Tar Said Unfit For Humans

By MELVIN LANG
Reflector Staff Writer

A few years back television frequently carried a public service message that portrayed a classic Indian face, with tears gently rolling down its cheeks, as its owner looked out over a badly polluted river.

The message was clear: look what man, with all his technology, has done to the pureness of the countryside.

The message came home: the Tar River — which some say derived its name from the Indian word "Tau" meaning beautiful — basically is unfit for human contact and its suitability for many other purposes is questionable.

By state standards, water in the Tar upriver from Greenville is safe for drinking so long as it is treated. But state environmental management specialists say the same bacteria present in the water from Greenville east is found upstream. Essentially, only the safeguards before it is consumed are greater.

And, according to two state water experts, no one can say for a surety how clean — or dirty — the river really is because it is monitored only periodically and, at the best, somewhat arbitrarily.

Greenville authorities test the water coming into the municipal system, treat it to make it safe for human consumption and then treat waste before it is dumped back into the river through Green Mill Run. The same procedure is used in Rocky Mount and Tarboro, but the prime responsibility for safeguarding the river from pollution rests with the state's Division of Environmental Management. And, apparently because there has been no necessity for doing so, monitoring of the river water is limited although regular.

The state has classified the river unfit for swimming from Rocky Mount to Washington but efforts to determine a degree of unsafeness were futile.

"I have been swimming where places obviously were polluted, and I have been swimming in rivers that were cleaner," was the response by Jim Mulligan to a query about the cleanliness of the river. Mulligan heads the Washington regional office of the Division of Environmental Management.

"I doubt seriously whether there is any one in the state who, without a great deal of work, could tell you," said Parks Lowe, a state environmental technician in Raleigh.

Wadie Lewis, superintendent of Greenville's water and sewer system, put it more bluntly: "It's fine for fishing and for drinking water when it's treated. It is not suitable for water contact sports. I certainly wouldn't go swimming."

Lowe said detailed analysis of a river requires monitoring the water five times a month. The Tar now is monitored only once a month, and Mulligan acknowledges that the check points may not be the best.

Mulligan said the flow of effluent in the river is variable and, depending upon the location of the monitoring point, "Sometimes you catch the maximum impact, sometimes you don't."

"Having these points — which aren't necessarily arbitrary but in some cases are selected for convenience — you don't necessarily get an accurate reading of the maximum impact," Mulligan said.

He said "there are miles of river where there isn't any data."

In a prepared statement released through the state environmental office in Raleigh, Mulligan said monthly monitoring "has shown no recent incidences of poor water quality in terms of either bacteria or dissolved oxygen" in the section of the Tar classified suitable as a source for drinking water.

"In other segments along the river, the waters are classified for uses which include the assimilation of treated waste water effluent. As the population and the industrial base of the region have grown, the flow of treated effluent to the river has increased. The nature and volume of effluent considered acceptable for discharge has changed as new water quality goals were adopted," Mulligan said.

"One such goal is the reduction of the discharge of bacteria in order to minimize the likelihood of waterborne disease. Prior to 1970, high levels of bacteria were common in many locations along the Tar River, especially immediately below the major population concentrations. Point source discharge controls have reduced bacterial loading to the point where high levels are now infrequent."

Mulligan also said another goal is to remove dissolved

Working Hard

WASHINGTON (UPI) — North Carolina congressmen are working frantically to ensure enough votes to save the federal tobacco program when it goes before the House this week.

Members of the tobacco lobby got a scare Thursday when the House voted to scrap the government allotment and quota program for peanuts. But Rep. Charles G. Rose III, D-N.C., said he doesn't think the tobacco program is in serious trouble.

"When we lobbied for tobacco and peanuts, we constantly found members who said we can help you on tobacco, but not peanuts," said Rose, chairman of the House Tobacco and Peanut Subcommittee.

House action on tobacco is scheduled for Tuesday.

Rose was using a computer to analyze vote counts, and he and other congressmen were busy courting votes for the tobacco support program.

Sen. John P. East, R-N.C., asked President Reagan to support tobacco during a visit to the White House last week to discuss the proposed AWACS sale to Saudi Arabia.

East's predecessor, Democrat Robert B. Morgan, also was reported to have lobbied during a business trip to Washington last week.

Meanwhile, Rep. L.H. Fountain, D-N.C., criticized a "Dear Colleague" letter sent out by two anti-tobacco House members. The letter asked members to back an amendment killing the tobacco allotments and supports, calling them "archaic" and claiming wiping them out would provide "deregulation" of the tobacco industry.

"This is the sort of erroneous and distorted portrayal of the tobacco program which we are fighting," Fountain said in a memorandum.

Fountain also sent his own "Dear Colleague" letter to House members saying the tobacco program helps "keep supply in line with demand and to insure that the small farmer is not destroyed."

Even leaders of the anti-tobacco lobby are impressed by the efforts of their opponents.

"Congressman Rose and others have gone to the wall and are pulling in all favors," said Stephen Weickert, an aide to Rep. Thomas E. Petri, R-Wis..

Dayan To Be Buried At Boyhood Home

By LARRY THORSON
Associated Press Writer

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Tributes to Moshe Dayan poured in Saturday as Israel prepared a state funeral for the illustrious soldier-statesman who was as daring in war as he was in peace.

Prime Minister Menachem Begin hailed him as "one of our greatest fighters of the ages" and said his life story recalled the victorious kings and warriors of the ancient Israelites.

"Moshe Dayan was both a soldier and a statesman," Begin said in a statement broadcast on Israel Radio, "and in both fields he served his nation with great devotion and faith."

The prime minister said Dayan's life story overpowered the centuries of "exile, degradation, fear and persecution" that the Jews have suffered, "and we returned in our spirit directly to Joshua and Caleb, to Samson, to Gideon and Jephtah, to Saul and Jonathan, to David and his generals...For he is their brother or their son or grandson or great-grandson, for their blood flows in his veins."

"There is a legend that he was supposedly a hard man," Begin said. "There is no basis for this. I can testify from personal experience that he had a tender heart and the soul of a poet."

Dayan, a general, former chief of staff, defense minister and foreign minister, died Friday night at the age of 66. "He had two heart attacks in a matter of hours," said his doctor, Boleslaw Goldman, deputy, director of Sheba Hospital near Tel Aviv. He said the death "had nothing to do with the cancer." Dayan underwent surgery in 1979 for cancer of the colon.

He will be buried Sunday in his boyhood home at Nahalal, a collective farm settlement in the Jezreel Valley.

Israel radio throughout the day broadcast long recaps of Dayan's illustrious career as soldier and statesman, as well as an interview recorded five days before he died.

Dayan, whose health had deteriorated because of cancer of the colon, said in the interview: "All through my life death passed close to me and it never worried me especially. If I die, I die...I don't see death as something negative or threatening ... In the end I will lie on the hill in Nahalal in the graveyard with my family and others."

Labor Leader Shimon Peres told a radio interviewer that Dayan would be remembered for giving Israel "a fighting and speedy army" and for being a visionary peace negotiator.

"Without him, one can hardly imagine that we would have peace with Egypt," Peres said. "And in a way, he was a creator of what one may call the Israeli style — very down to earth, always with a taste for history, for the land, for the past and for the special spirit which still blows in this country."

Dayan did not mince words in speaking on public policy issues and was not hardened, partisan or otherwise, in his positions. To critics of his changing stances on territorial issues, he likened the pursuit of peace to hunters chasing rabbits — "it zigzags ...and so must you."

He also had the soul of a romantic as a writer and was a respected amateur archeology buff. He was easily recognized around the world because of the eyepatch that concealed the loss of his left eye in a 1941 military campaign in Syria with British soldiers.

Dayan died just 10 days after the assassination of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, a fellow soldier-turned-statesman who in 1978 signed the U.S.-negotiated peace treaty with Israel. Dayan's role in the peace negotiations — a moderate, some even said dove — was emphasized by the tributes pouring in.

Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak said in a telegram: "It was with deep sorrow that I received the news of the death of Moshe Dayan. God bless his soul. I would like to express to you in my name and the name of the Egyptian people my deepest condolences and sincere sorrow at your loss."

Water, Sewer Treatment Vital To Greenville

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

An adequate supply of fresh water and the proper disposal of waste water are vital concerns of modern-day cities.

While the city's present water plant and sewage treatment facility are meeting today's needs, the Greenville Utilities Commission is building and planning for the future.

At present, a new fresh water treatment facility, designed to meet the city's needs well into the 21st century, is under construction, and planning is under way for a new waste water treatment plant.

Planning for the $11.6 million water treatment plant began in 1978 and a bond referendum in May of 1979 provided the funds needed to begin construction in October, 1980.

Greenville's first water treatment facility was completed in 1905 with a capacity of less than 1 million gallons a day. New filters and a settling basin added in 1949 boosted the capacity to 3 million gallons a day, while changes in the filter system in 1972 upped the capacity of the plant to 6 million gallons a day.

Today, with eight deep wells pumping into the distribution system, some 9 million gallons of water a day can be supplied to local area residents and industries.

The new facility, located on the Old River Road north of the Tar River, will have a capacity of 12 million gallons per day when completed in October, 1982, and can be expanded to handle twice that volume in the years to come.

GUC director Charles Horne last week said the raw water pump station, designed to handle 24 million gallons per day, is now about 75 percent complete, while a 60 million gallon impoundment basin — the size of 20 football fields, and designed to hold a five days's supply of raw water to provide a better and more uniform supply of water to the treatment plant — is 90 percent complete.

The plant itself, fully automated with a computer system controlling and monitoring the various stages of treatment, will include chemical treatment facilities, settling basins and rapid sand filters, and is 60 percent complete.

"We expect it to be completed on time. Everything is ahead of schedule," Horne emphasized.

The same bond referendum that provided money for the water treatment plant also provided funds for design and construction of a new sewage treatment plant to replace the existing facility built in the early 1960s and expanded in 1972-73 to handle 8 million gallons of raw sewage a day.

But the progress toward construction of the new waste water facility has been less than good, Horne said.

Planning for the new sewage treatment plant began 12 years ago, and has been hampered by changes in federal guidelines and other government red tape.

"The water treatment plant required only local and state approval, while the wastewater facility has had to meet the approval of federal agencies. Therein lies the difference," Horne emphasized.

Following years of work, federal approval of the required "201 Facilities Plan", the preliminary design phase of the new facility, was secured only last June. That approval was required before detail design work on the new plant could get under way.

Water, Sewer. . .

The delay has cost the city money.

Until recently, costs for the detail design and construction of wastewater treatment plants have been shared, with the federal government supplying 75 percent of the cost, the state 12½ percent, and 12½ percent from local governments.

Now, no federal funds are available and the State will not participate in the project unless the federal government does.

In light of that fact, members of the Greenville Utilities Commission voted last month to fund the detail design of the plant with 100 percent local money — some $505,000.

Final design of the plant, to be located north of the Tar River about 1½ miles east of the city's Eastern By-pass, off the Old Creek Road, is "well under way ... well on schedule" now, according to Horne. The design work should be completed by the end of 1982.

Commissioners must still address the question of "where we're going to get the money from" to build the plant, Horne explained.

The new facility, with a capacity of 10.5 million gallons per day, and designed to be expanded in the future, is estimated to cost some $10 million.

The passage of a new state clean water bond referendum would help, Horne said, as would continued federal support for the Environmental Protection Agency grant program under which 75 percent of the cost of the 201 Facilities Plan was funded.

"The delays have been absolutely ridiculous ... one stumbling block after another." If the wastewater plant, from start to finish had taken only four years, Horne suggested, it could have been built for half what it will cost now.

"Even if we get federal and state participation, it will end up costing us more local money than if we had been permitted to do it on our own. That's what's been so disgusting."

The time lag for the new sewer facility can also cost the Greenville area indirectly — by preventing industry from locating here.

Robert Griffin, manager of the Procter & Gamble Paper Products plant here termed adequate water and sewer service "survival ... an umbilical cord.

"Our needs (at P&G) are being met, and I'm not concerned for the future development. We're not a major user now," although he acknowledged that "we were when we were running Pringle's (potato chips)."

Griffin continued, "as a community citizen, my concern would be," that adequate water and sewer service, "is absolutely vital to the continued growth of the area. The water plant is a fantastic thing. But the sewer system ... we are now able to meet regulations, but we would have a very difficult time accepting another major industry if it wasn't dry. Any major liquid process ... if we wanted to restart Pringle's, or another industry wanted to come in," would cause problems, Griffin suggested.

"My understanding is we just couldn't accept it. We must be extremely selective on the type of industry we can accept now.

"A year or so ago, an industry was interested in locating near Greenville but "turned away due to our inability to respond to their water and sewer needs."(The industry Griffin referred to was Ajinomoto USA Inc. — a $37 million amino acid producer which located in Raleigh.)

And improved water and sewer facilities will be needed if large residential areas are annexed by the city, he noted.

"We don't have an option to move on a sewer plant if we want to grow. It's a decision we have to make — if we want to see the city grow or remain the way it is today.

"As a corporate citizen," Griffin said, "we are not opposed to seeing proper and orderly growth, and are supportive of seeing the sewer system expanded."

Henry G. Leslie, who heads the Burroughs Wellcome Co. plant here said water and sewer service is "certainly important to industry ... not only to existing industry but to industries considering locating in this area. Some require sizable amounts of water daily and also have a fair amount of discharge."

Large discharges of waste water can be taken care of, in part, by pre-treatment facilities, like Burroughs Wellcome operates, before the waste water enters the municipal system.

However, Leslie emphasized, "I think it's most important that we plan for the accomodation of industry that hopefully would be coming into the community in the future.

"It would be a deterrent if we did not have adequate facilities to take care of waste for future industry and expansion of existing industry around here too.

"Burroughs Wellcome is not going to stand still. We hope to expand progressively as business increases and we prosper."

Texasgulf Plant Start-Up Set

A Texasgulf official said this week that the world's largest sulphuric acid plant is scheduled for start-up in Beaufort County in December.

Thomas J. Wright, president, speaking at an international manufacturers group meeting in Paris, France, said the 2,800 metric tons per day (MTPD) plant is part of a $180 million expansion of the Texasgulf phosphate operations in Beaufort County. Four sulphuric acid plants in operation there now have a combined capacity of 5,545 MTPD, he said.

Wright said estimates of the size of the Beaufort County phosphate deposit range up to nine billion metric tons, one of the largest on the east coast. He said about 1.8 billion tons are recoverable by today's mining and processing technology.

Texasgulf currently employs about 1,500 persons at the Lee Creek operations, it was pointed out. When expansion is completed, the phosphate facilities will employ more than 1,700 persons.

Texasgulf mines phosphate ore and produces phosphate chemicals used in the manufacture of fertilizer. Sulphuric acid is necessary in the production of the phosphate chemicals.

TIME

Time if forever,
Time never dies nor fades away
Time, some people say, weakens the pain
They say time heals wounds,
But the pain we've suffered since you death never heals
It fades, but the memory stays

The memory of you grows each passing day, month and year
Like time, your memory will never die
It's forever...forever...forever

BATTLE RE—ENACTMENT ... Smoke from cannon fire billows as troops mass for the attack during the re-enactment of the attack on Redoudt 9. The re-enactment was part of the Yorktown Bicentennial celebration. (AP Laserphoto)

Yorktown Battle Re-Enacted

By DON McLEOD
Associated Press Writer

YORKTOWN, Va. (AP) — Grander armies than any massed here in 200 years swarmed over the trenches and fields of Yorktown on Saturday in a stirring recreation of the battle that ended the American Revolution.

On the hour and date that Lord Cornwallis waved the white flag in 1781, a modern day drummer boy beat the call to parley, just as a redcoat had done, to end the battle of Yorktown.

As the final Bicentennial pageantry reached a peak, Vice President George Bush and French President Francois Mitterrand were to join the festivities to renew their nations' long friendship that began here.

Bush was to welcome Mitterrand to America and entertain him at dinner in nearby Colonial Williamsburg. President Reagan arrives Sunday for a summit conference in Williamsburg with the French leader.

The martial display highlighting the four-day Yorktown Bicentennial was the largest 18th century military recreation ever held and one of the most colorful spectacles since the country's Bicentennial celebration began in 1975.

File upon file of brightly costumed troops marched into the ancient British fortifications, fired cannon and musket, fell back as new units moved in — all to the rap of drums and the skirl of bagpipes.

The midnight blue-coated Hessians on the right flank, the Green-frocked Jagers next. Then the kilted highlanders, the emerald-coated loyalist rangers and long lines of redcoats.

Across the grassy field, ringing batteries of Continental and French artillery answered in a booming reminder of the bombardment that brought Gen. Charles Cornwallis down.

Then a small boy mounted a parapet and — as it happened in the real battle — his drumming was drowned by the cannonade. But as Thomas Reinhart, 14, of Rahway, N.J., doggedly beat the call to parley, the guns fell silent. A redcoated officer with a white flag was blindfolded and led into the American lines.

The real call to parley on Oct. 17, 1781, had sent a message from Cornwallis to Gen. George Washington offering to negotiate the surrender of the cream of the British army. The surrender was completed two days later, effectively ending the American Revolution.

The final commemoration comes on Monday when Reagan and Mitterrand deliver speeches and 4,000 troops, camp followers, horses, wagons, cannon, drums and fifes re-enact the surrender ceremony.

Mitterrand's participation was partly in recognition of the 8,000 French troops and the French fleet that assured Washington's victory. But his visit also comes at a time when relations between the United States and France are strained by modern politics.

Bush caused a ripple in international relations last June when he commented that Mitterrand had caused concern in this country by including communists in his cabinet. The State Department agreed that Mitterrand's cabinet appointments would touch Franco-American relations.

When Mitterand accepted an invitation to Yorktown, the Reagan administration upgraded the ceremonial appearance to a summit conference in Williamsburg on Sunday.

'No Apologies' Approach To Summit

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan will attend the 22-nation summit meeting in Mexico this week intent on making "no apologies" for his approach to rely on private enterprise to help developing countries.

But in a gathering of leaders representing roughly two-thirds of the world's population, Reagan is likely to find himself advocating a position which few others share.

The core issue at the conference in the resort town of Cancun will be global political power. Poorer countries, with support from some wealthier nations, hope the meeting leads to a restructuring of the world's economic system through global negotiations.

An American official who briefed reporters on the conference described the prospects for U.S. accepatance of such negotiations as "slim."

The developing countries contend that that industrialized nations wield excessive power in the existing financial institutions, such as the International Monetary Fund and the World Bank.

Only through a larger role in the global economic and financial system, they say, can they improve their trade terms and gain better access to technology.

Given the broad differences in perception between Reagan and his colleagues, U.S. officials predict the conference will yield only modest results. The summit organizers agreed not to attempt to write a joint communique, recognizing that the areas of agreement are too narrow.

In speeches and briefings over the past several weeks, Reagan and other American officials have sought to lower expectations that they might unveil a major new initiative at the summit.

The administration's message has been that the irrefutable lesson of the past generation is that prosperity can only be attained through rigid adherence to capitalism.

Reagan outlined his views on the world economy in a "no apologies" speech last Thursday in Philadelphia. In it, he denounced a "propaganda campaign in wide circulation that would have the world believe the capitalist U.S. is the cause of world hunger and poverty."

"Yet each year," he said, "the United States provides more food assistance to developing countries than all other nations combined."

Answering critics who suggest that poor countries emulate the Soviet development model, Reagan referred to U.S. grain sales to Russia and asked sarcastically, "Who's feeding whom?"

Prosperity, he said, "is a question of freedom versus compulsion, of what works versus what doesn't work."

At Cancun, officials say Reagan is expected to urge the developing countries to improve their investment climate and take better advantage of the existing trade opportunities open to them.

In defense of U.S. trade policies, he will say, as he did in Philadelphia, that the United States imports half of all developing country exports combined.

The developing countries, however, complain that the terms of international trade have changed drastically over the past generation — at their expense. For example, 25 tons of rubber in 1960 earned enough to buy six tractors; now it buys only two.

Contending that the existing international economic system does not work, they note that the per capita income of poor countries is estimated at $600 a year, compared with a $6,500 in industrialized nations.

The conference will attract representatives from most western industrialized nations, the newly prosperous OPEC oil cartel, so-called middle income countries and poor countries. Bangladesh, with an annual per capita income of about $100, will be the poorest country represented at Cancun.

Issue Is Single Member Districts

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Legislators are scheduled to begin seeking a new reapportionment solution Tuesday, but officials on both sides say whatever plan they come up with probably won't resolve the key issues posed by a federal lawsuit.

State lawyers, political analysts and other officials say they believe the aim of the suit is to force North Carolina's General Assemby to go to distinct, individual districts for each member — a new alignment that legislative committees aren't likely to recommend this week.

"Single-member districts, in my opinion, is the ultimate objective of the plaintiffs," said James Wallace, the special deputy attorney general who is leading a team of state Justice Department lawyers against the suit.

John Sanders, director of the North Carolina Institute of Government in Chapel Hill, who has been close to reapportionment battles since the 1960s, said that issue underlies all the complicated debate over statistics and census counts.

"While they talk about numbers, what they're seeking is a declaration by the court that the Legislature ought to separate 120 House districts and 50 Senate districts," said Sanders.

A special legislative session is scheduled Thursday, Oct. 29, to revise the state House and Senate reapportionment plans after a suit was filed by the NAACP Legal and Education Defense Fund.

Reapportionment committees meet Tuesday, starting with an 11 a.m. public hearing.

The session was called after Wallace and other state Justice Department officials warned that the plans legislators drew up in June were so far out of balance they probably could not be successfully defended when a three-judge panel hears the suit.

The reapportionment talk by legislators has been mainly in the language of statistics, with debates centering around the "range of deviation" of different plans. The range is the percentage of difference between the number of people represented by legislators in the proportionately largest district compared to the number represented by those in the smallest district.

Most legislative leaders expressed the hope they could come up with new reapportionment formulas that make as few changes as possible from the maps drawn during the regular session.

oxygen-consuming materials from discharges to allow propagation of fish and wildlife.

"The program to achieve this goal is currently under way," he said. "Major improvements in stream quality were achieved by this program in the Tarboro segments of the river a few years ago and can be expected in the Rocky Mount area by spring 1982. Substantial reductions in the available funding for grants to municipalities for waste treatment plant construction has slowed full implementation of this program."

Lewis said the funding reductions may have an impact on Greenville plans to construct a new and large waste treatment plant. The proposed plant now is in the design phase, which will take about a year, and funding still must be arranged.

There is fishing on the Tar, and there are some who have gone swimming and there are some who have gone water skiing. All of these activities, along with canoeing and other water sports, are being considered by the Tar River Task Force, a group appointed by the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce, as potential areas of development on the stream. But the condition of the water is a major factor.

Other possible uses also are being explored by the Tar River Ports Commission, which has considered a resumption of the commercial traffic that used the river periodically in years gone by. The old Port Terminal, east of Greenville, was used occasionally during World War II but since has been dismantled.

Declining water levels, especially at Greenville and farther upstream, will hamper any potential development of the river for commercial or recreational uses.

Mulligan noted that the river, near Falkland, has a heavy growth of vegetation that is threatening to stretch across the waterway.

But overall, Mulligan said, the river "is getting better, certainly in this segment, because of the improvement in the treatment of discharges."

Sunday Opinion

Freeway Plan All-Important For This Area

The reports are ominous concerning the completion of the number one developmental need of Pitt County.

There is a general re-assessment of highway construction projects going on in the Department of Transportation.

Apparently caught up in it is the planning for a controlled access U. S. 264 freeway between Greenville and Wilson.

State officials say the reassessment is necessary because there will simply not be enough funds to construct all the promised projects even with the recently approved 3-cent per gallon increase in motor fuel tax.

No one is getting specific yet, but in general the considerations are that two lanes of some four-lane proposed highways will be dropped. There is also consideration of constructing grade level crossings, rather than clover leaf accesses, on some of the highways.

Meanwhile there are reports that acquisition of right-of-way on the 264 project has been temporarily held up.

At this point it is still felt that the U. S. 264 Greenville-Wilson link will be constructed. Whether or not it will be changed from the dual laned freeway concept such as exists between Wilson and Zebulon, no one knows.

It is important that everyone on this end of the highway do everything possible to get the road constructed as a controlled access freeway. If that isn't done now it won't be done in the foreseeable future, and this entire eastern area will suffer in regards to economic development.

Our Economic 'Brilliance' Needs To Benefit Us

For the 10th time in 13 years the Nobel Prize in economics has been awarded to an American.

The implication is that the United States has a rich treasury of expertise in that field, so rich that it dominates the knowledge and studies throughout the rest of the world. On such foundations are built superiority.

So we repeat a question asked in years gone by: if we're so rich in economic know-how and know-what, why is it that so much stumbling and folly prevail in coping with this country's economic problems?

You'd think some of all that "brilliance" would rub off on national, state and local economic policies.

It makes one wonder.

Sunday Morning Notes

Alvin Taylor

One critic was gazing at the pen and ink rendering of the water treatment plant now under construction by Greenville Utilities.

With its trees, brick-fronted buildings and broad expanses of windows, it had the look of a college campus.

"Boy," the critic said. "We've come a long way from the old farm wells with their buckets on a rope.

We have indeed.

ECU trustee chairman Ashley Futrell commented recently that the institution needs people who will "bleed purple and sweat gold."

He might have added that among its supporters it needs people who will unfold green.

And, as always, traffic is a major topic of conversation these days. There is grumbling about the street work at Charles Boulevard and 14th. It sometimes backs traffic up for blocks as the lines of cars await their chance to move through the intersection.

One exasperated motorist, after the long wait, commented, "I was there so long my car depreciated $100."

And he probably used $5 worth of gas.

The announced demise of the Redevelopment Commission recalled the days when local fighting was hot and heavy over whether there would ever be an urban renewal project. The first one was projected to be the Shore Drive area generally north of Second Street to the river. The section included some of the city's worst slums, but it also contained some substantial housing whose residents objected to being moved. Consequently it created quite a struggle.

A city official told him he would be in for some difficult times if he took the job.

"I know," Dubber replied.

"I don't think you understand," the official continued. "There are people here who are going to take a bite out of you."

The colonel fixed the official with a stare and replied, "Well, if they do they are going to break a tooth."

Nobel

Owen Ullmann

WASHINGTON (AP) — From the way Americans keep winning the Nobel Prize for economics, one might expect the U.S. economy to be a trouble-free, stable and prosperous system.

But success in the academic world, for which the Nobel is awarded, does not necessarily translate into success in the real world. The uncertain, troubled state of the economy is proof.

Since 1969, when an economics category was created, 10 U.S. economists have won or shared the Nobel Prize. Four of them, including the latest winner, Yale University professor James Tobin, have been advisers to American presidents at some time in their careers.

As scholars, the Nobel laureates have been hailed in all economic quarters as giants in their field. But as public policy advisers, they have been assailed and ridiculed. Their advice often represents conflicting views. On some occassions it has been ignored by politicans; other times it has been off the mark.

Tobin was a key adviser 20 years ago to President Kennedy and is an influential proponent of the Keynesian school of thought, which Reagan administration economists are now trying to discredit.

The Keynesian view is that the government should increase spending, even at the risk of budget deficits and inflation, to stimulate economic growth and full employment. That view was popularized during the 1960s by Paul A. Samuelson, the 1970 Nobel Prize winner, who also was an influential Kennedy adviser.

Similar views propelled government policy for 20 years until the election of Ronald Reagan, who criticizes the Keynesians for leading the U.S. economy down a path of slow growth, high inflation and high unemployment.

But Walter Heller, a Kennedy era economic adviser, insists defensively that economists "sometimes take a bad rap" for the misuse of their theories by politicians.

"The prescriptions written by economists certainly have not been followed with any consistency," he claims, but adds that politicians can't be blamed too much since they often receive conflicting advice.

Heller also notes that the Nobel Prize recognizes technical achievements that advance the study of economics as a science. The prize is not intended to condone an economic course for governments to pursue.

Thus, this year's winner was cited, not for his former role as a Kennedy adviser or more recent role as a stern critic of Reaganomics, but for his "portfolio theory," which advises investors to diversify their investments.

The 1980 winner, University of Pennsylvania professor Lawrence R. Klein, was the first prominent economic adviser to Jimmy Carter during the 1976 presidential campaign. Klein was cited, not for his advice to Carter, but for his development of econometric models, which are used to forecast and analyze changes in the economy.

The Nobel winner with perhaps the greatest influence on the Reagan administration today is the 1976 recipient, Milton Friedman, the leading exponent of monetary theory.

Friedman argues that inflation can be controlled only by limiting the supply of money and credit in the economy. At Reagan's urging, his theory is now getting an important test by the Federal Reserve Board.

There's More Than Meets The Eye

Bill Noblitt

RALEIGH — All that fuss about a 5 percent pay raise for teachers and state employees leaves most taxpayers outside Raleighh in the dark.

Why, many wonder, spend all the time and money over government salaries? Why should legislators converge for a week at $35,000 per day; work all the way through the night and stay for a Saturday session just to provide a salary increase?

When you consider that every percentage point provided in governmental salary increases amounts to $26 million (including fringe benefits accompanying it), part of the answer is clear.

When you consider that teachers, through the North Carolina Association of Educators, and other state employees through two professional associations, carry considerable political clout, the scene becomes somewhat clearer.

When you realize that political patronage is not dead and that governmental jobs — even routine ones — are now highly desirable given the salaries, working conditions, fringe benefits and, especially, the retirement program attatched thereto, you begin to see why the politicians spend so much time worrying about raises for the hired hands.

In the neighborhood of 80 percent of the total state budget — in excess of $5 billion yearly — is devoted to direct and indirect employee benefits: that includes thousands of cars and trips and such which by most standards aren't truly essential to getting the daily job done.

Don't be misled by the screams of agony from lobbyists for state employees who protested that a 5 percent raise for only half the year is such a paltry sum as to seem more a slap than a reward.

Actually, the majority of state employees will be getting right around 10 percent in salary increases this fiscal year.

First, there is an automatic 1½ percent raise for longevity — that is, for just staying around another year.

Then, there is merit pay which supervisors can dole out to those who do a good job. Most employees get that 6 percent.

That's just for raises. Then there is the wonderful world of step increases. The state has a salary schedule in which the raises apply to a base salary paid a beginning worker. That schedule allows the employee who gets experience and training to move up a step from time to time. For politically connected and important people, this can happen anytime; and often step increases take place after just six months or a year on the job.

This package of raises can, and quite often does, lead to pay increases of 15 or 20 percent for some people who are in favored positions.

What does all of this mean to taxpayers? If state employees this year average a 10 percent pay hike from these various sources, it means a total of $260 million committed for raises. And, it means the same amount already earmarked to continue those raises next year and another figure of like sorts to provide a new round of longevity, merit, step and across-the-board raises.

Willing To Let Tax Cut Slip?

Rowland Evans and Robert Novak

WASHINGTON — The likelihood of David Stockman quietly endorsing a delay of the tax cut to reduce the budget deficit pushes Ronald Reagan toward a moment of truth that could decide the fate of his economic program and even his administration.

Reagan's decision has been hastened by the unveiling Tuesday (Oct. 13) of a new economic proposal by conservative Democratic representative Kent Hance of Texas. He wants the 10 percent across - the - board personal tax rate cut scheduled for July 1, 1982, delayed to Oct. 1. But Hance insists this must be linked to postponing cost-of - living allowances (COLA) for the same three months on a variety of federal programs, including Social Security.

Although budget director Stockman recently testified in Congress against any tax cut delay, he is horrified by the prospect of future budget deficits climbing to near $100 billion in the midst of congressional insurrection against new spending cuts. Accordingly, key members of Congress describe Stockman aa willing to "slip" the tax cut — but only if the payoff on budget cuts is deep enough.

There will be no announced shift in administration policy, merely acquiescence in whatever Hance and Republican leaders can get through Congress. That would leave in President Reagan's hands the decision whether to accept budget relief at the risk of his landmark tax achievement. The pressure to do so would be immense, despite fears of further evisceration of the tax cuts.

This menace to the tax program derives from the long summer battle between economists at Treasury and Stockman's Office of Management and Budget (OMB) over prospective budget deficits. The more pessimistic OMB guesses prevailed, leading to the "fall offensive" of budget cutting and revenue-raising tax "loophole" closers. But predictions shortly after Reagan's Sept. 24 speech that his proposals would get nowhere are being realized.

It is no exaggeration to say that Congress is in rebellion against Reagan's spending cuts, with the Republican Senate only slightly more helpful than the Democratic House. The danger of Reagan vetoes probably means no more approtions bills will be passed. Thus, the U.S. government would resume its chaotic and unworkable mode of the 1970s.

The outlook for "loophole" closers is equally bleak. In truth, the Treasury is having trouble even drafting a package with any slight prospect for passage.

Confronting a failed "fall offensive," Stockman sees immense future budget deficits forecast in the next congressional budget resolution, with dreadful effects on Capitol Hill. Since a veto war such as President Eisenhower waged 25 years ago is impractical under present procedures, Stockman wants some arrangement with Congress.

The shape of the arrangement is suggeated by Hance, the West Texas congressman who suffered obloquy for cosponsoring Reagan's tax cut in defiance of the Democratic leadership. Hance's tax cut delay would save $8 billion, and his COLA delays would yield another $5 billion. Since $2.8 billion of the $5 billion COLA savings include delayed Social Security hikes ruled out of bounds by the White House, the Hance package is not acceptable to the administration in its present form.

But statements of absolute surprise by Reagan officials over Hance's initiative ring phony. He has discuseed them with key administration figures, who encouraged him. The truth is that the administration will quietly accept an amended version of the Hance plan — if enough budget savings are linked to it. That includes Ronald Reagan, though his asking price (according to a senior aide) of another $15 billion in non-defense budget savings from spending is unattainable.

Reagan's men contend a three-month delay in the July 1 tax cut will not matter that much. The all-important drop from 70 percent to 50 percent in top tax rates on dividends and interest would go into effect as scheduled Jan. 1, with attendant drops in capital gains rates. Besides, Reagan has the power to veto any subsequent reductions in his tax cuts.

So static an analysis ignores the role of momentum on Capitol Hill. Once Reagan yields to a three-month delay, supply-siders in his administration see an avalanche beginning.

The Grunts Get A Pay Raise

James J. Kilpatrick

WASHINGTON — The big headlines dealt with the big ticket items for defense — $60 billion for 100 MX missiles, $20 billion for 100 B-1 bombers. The big headlines should have announced a bigger story: Congress approved a major pay raise for the grunts.

The Uniformed Services Pay and Benefits Act of 1981, as the measure is formally known, provides immediate raises of 10 to 17 percent depending upon rank and service. The new pay scales, coupled with other benefits provided in the act, should provide effective incentives toward solving the most critical problem in national defense. That problem is the appalling rate of attrition within the enlisted ranks.

The armed services have not had much difficulty in recent months in meeting their quotas of raw recruits. The figures on original enlistments are mildly encouraging. What is profoundly discouraging is the rate of re-enlistment after first or second enlistments. The Marine Corps retains only 10 percent of its first-termers, and the Air Force only 20 percent.

The data change from time to time, but these recent estimates may suffice to indicate the gravity of the situation: The Army is short 46,000 non-commissioned officers, the Navy 20,000, the Marine Crops 5,000 and the Air Force 3,000. Each of the services is losing the experienced technicians, computer programmers, jet aircraft mechanics and other specialists whose skills are vital.

Low pay isn't the only reason for this hemmorrhage. Medical care, especially for dependents, can be described only as deplorable. Top sergeants and chief petty officers have been deprived of some of the authority they formerly exercised, with the result that discipline has become more difficult to maintain. In the Navy, long tours of sea duty have eroded morale. Navy wives lead lonesome lives.

But low pay is the principal factor affecting the retention rate of both non-coms and officers. A study last year found more than 100,000 military families receiving food stamps. Ninety percent of enlisted families rely upon second jobs to make ends meet. Without second incomes, thousands of such families would fall below the statistical poverty level.

Under the measure approved by both houses on Oct. 7, first-term recruits will get a raise of 10 percent, from $501 to $551. On up the line, the E-4 who is now at $756 will get $821. A sergeant first class with 18 years' experience, now paid $1,203, will get $1,408.

Officers will receive a pay boost of 14.3 percent, moving a newly commissioned second lieutenant in the Army to $1,056 and an Army colonel or a Navy captain with 10 years' experience to $2,608.

In addition, the act provides an increase in flight pay for officers with more than six years' experience. New travel and lodging allowances will ease the burden of military transfers. Increases are provided for hazardous duty pay.

Over the years much talk has been heard of "comparable" pay for military and civilian jobs, but the talk is idle. A sea-going sailor knows no such thing as a 40-hour work week with time and a half for overtime. Civilian life has no burden to compare with the burden of absolute obedience to orders.

To the editor:

I work for the U.S. Postal Service and I am proud of the service that I give our postal patrons.

It is true that there are lines at the stamp windows, but every where that I go I stand in line or wait for service. The U.S. Postal Service has one of the lowest postal rates in the world, and the most dependable and reliable and safest mail systems in the world. We deliver as much mail per year as the rest of the world combined. All of this with about 100,000 less employees than we had 10 years ago.

A few tips to make the line move faster:

Seal or secure your packages with a good fiber tape, NO string or Scotch tape, please.

If you want insurance, tell the clerk how much insurance you want on it when you give it to him. Don't wait until he has put postage on it and placed it in the outgoing basket.

If you are going to write a check for postage, have it filled out all but the amount and have two IDs ready.

Have your Registered, Certified or Return Receipt slips filled out before you get to the stamp window.

If you get a notice for a parcel or letter, please bring it with you because we will need it to find your item.

Please do not keep the clerk on the telephone longer than necessary because he has customers waiting at his window.

I hope these small suggestions will help us serve our postal patrons better and faster because we also have the best postal patrons in the world.

To the Editor:

The ERA proponents who talk more about "equality" than anybody else apparently didn't want Jerry Falwell to have "equal rights" to be heard in Raleigh Sept. 18.

About 30 of them picketed for the ERA and then attempted to disrupt while Dr. Falwell was speaking. They didn't succeed because the police hauled them out. These people seem to have gone full circle from the noisy bunch of 1973 to the noisy disruptive bunch of 1981. Why don't they accept that the people don't want ERA?

Mrs. Lilla C. McKinnon

To the Editor:

The death last Tuesday of Egyptian President Mohammed Anwar Sadat affords citizens of the world another poignant opportunity to calculate and assess the value of human life.

When I learned of the assassination of President Sadat, I immediately recalled the passage of scripture in Ezekiel 22:24-31. It was my feeling last Tuesday evening that President Sadat initiated the challenge to make up the hedge between the Arabs of the Middle East and the Israelis, and to stand in the gap before the Lord in order to save the region, and ultimately the world, from war and destruction.

Indeed, the contributions of Sadat's leadership of Egypt, and particularly the past four years, illustrate his commitment to peace and brotherhood in an area and a world where turmoil, hatred and strife remain commonplace.

In the days following Sadat's killing, some world leaders and many thousands of people commented that Sadat was murdered because his domestic and foreign policies were too controversial. The history of mankind shows that peace, righteousness and justice have always been controversial or contentious points of view from the days of Jesus Christ to the death of Anwar Sadat. To be controversial is fine as long as that person is right to pursue that course.

Obstentily, foreign nations and domestic opponents of Sadat do not want peace in the Middle East for the crown jewel of oil remains a lofty and priceless resource over which to fight and kill.

With the assassination of Anwar Sadat of Egypt, let all mankind recognize and faithfully pursue the urgent need for a just and honorable peace everywhere on this planet where confict or potential conflict abounds.

Like the prophet Micha many centuries ago, we may ask this question to discover the manner in which we may seek a real peace and a genuine respect for human life: "What does the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God?" (Micah 6:8)

Thad Eure, At Nearly 82, Looks Ahead

Noel Yancey

Some young voters were not born when Thad Eure was given the accolade, "oldest rat in the Democratic barn." Eure, who will be 82 Nov. 15, has been secretary of state since 1936 and apparently has given no thought to retiring.

Asked in a recent interview if he intends to seek a 13th term in 1984, Eure said, "if the doctor gives me the same report he gave me last week, yes."

Eure, who said he visited the doctor at his wife's insistence because of a lingering cold, said the doctor found him hale and hearty and allowed he was "good for two or three more terms" in office.

"He didn't even give me a prescription," observed Eure with obvious glee.

Eure who is never happier than when he is castigating Republicans, proudly asserts that he has always voted the straight Democratic ticket and always will.

That's why state Democratic Chairman John D. Larkins Jr., now a federal judge, introduced Eure as "the oldest rat in the Democratic barn," at a congressional district rally in 1960. The title stuck.

After serving on the Council of State under 12 governors, Eure's fondest memories are for the first one on his string, Gov. Clyde R. Hoey, whose long, swept-back hair, swallow-tailed coat and inevitable boutonniere, along with his melliflous oratory, made him the perfect model for a cartoon of a Southern politician.

Eure conceded that Hoey may not have been the greatest governor, "but he made the greatest impression on me."

"Governor Hoey knew more about how to handle problems and people than any other governor," Eure said. He recalled that during the "difficult days" of the Great Depression, the governor's office was besieged with citizens who sought to tell their troubles to the governor personally and thronged the corridors of the Capitol waiting their turn. Hoey would anticipate their pleas, turn on the charm and send them away happy — sometimes without mentioning the specific object of their visit.

"He was a quarterback," said Eure. "He just took the ball and carried it. He knew how to take care of the little things."

Eure said that Hoey would confer with his Council of State on the exact language of major speeches — such as one proclaiming his intention to crack down on sit-down strikers — and would seek its advice on major appointments.

He would confide the names of those he intended to appoint to particular offices and urge the Council of State members to tell him if they knew any reason why the appointment should not be made.

"No other governor ever did that," said Eure with a touch of nostalgia as he recalled political rallies at which Hoey would shower praise on Council of State members and other state officials.

"'My good right arm in state government,'" Eure recalled Hoey would say of his colleagues. "There was unity then."

Eure trademarks are his bow ties, long cigarette holders and straw hats which are certain harbingers of spring in Raleigh, and he's proud of the fact that the door to his office is never closed. As a matter of fact, the nameplate is on the inside of the door so people can see it.

"No one has walked into this office in 45 years and found that door closed," he asserted.

A native of Eure, a tiny community in Gates County, Eure attended the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill as an undergraduate and as a law student. After winning his law degree, he settled at Winton, across the river in Hertford County "just nine miles from his father's smokehouse." Although he has lived in Raleigh nearly half a century, Eure maintains his legal residence in Hertford County and has faithfully returned there to vote in every primary, general election or special election since. He figures he's driven 16,000 miles in doing this.

Eure is a strong believer in party loyalty and party regularity, and he has only scorn for those who boast they "always vote for the man," regardless of party label.

"Voting for the man instead of the party is nothing but hogwash," Eure asserts. He says those that do this have caused a breakdown in the American system of government because "the man is not going to administer government. Political parties administer government."

"I was nursed at a Democratic breast and rocked in a Democratic cradle," said Eure.

Even though he is nearly 82 years old, Eure does not look back nostalgically at the "good old days."

"All those folks talk about the horse and buggy days, but I don't want them. Nowdays people live longer and better. People who talk about wanting to go back to horse and buggy days are lying," said Eure, who recalled, "The first time I came to Raleigh there was not one foot of concrete pavement between Gates County and Raleigh."

Hope For Housing Exists

John Cunniff

NEW YORK (AP) — Can housing costs be stabilized? Unless they are total pessimists — and admittedly, their number is growing — few students of the housing situation are likely to answer negatively.

Yes, there is hope.

There is hope that inflation and interest rates will fall, and that speculators will get discouraged; that technology will lower production costs; that new financing techniques will provide mortgage funds.

And that regulations, most of them local, will be reconsidered in the light of the reality, which is that some of them needlessly add thousands to the dollars a person must pay for a roof over his head.

Consider these analyses by reputable researchers:

— A Rutgers University study that estimated excessive government regulation at all levels of government could add as much as $9,844 to the purchase price of a $$50,000 home.

— A Rice University study on lot costs that found the homebuyer had to pay an additional $1,410 to $2,100 per lot because of delays created by government regulation, and that if applications costs and costs of conformance with government specifications were added, the total would be $3,200 to $5,400 per lot.

— A General Accounting Office study three years ago that found if communities allowed 17 less expensive but reliable alternatives to requirements for roads, walks, driveways and water and sewer systems, typical savings would be about $1,300 per house.

Herman Smith, president of the National Association of Home Builders and himself a builder in Fort Worth, Texas, provides a detailed picture of what local requirements cost buyers in a subdivision there.

The basic cost of a single lot in the subdivision was $7,627, Smith reports, but in reviewing the recommendations of the consulting engineers, the city required changes that would cost $1,555.95.

Layoffs

Stephen Jones

DETROIT (AP) — The lists American automakers keep of their workers on indefinite layoff stretch to nearly 170,000 names, but that figure is only the tip of the iceberg.

Nearly 100,000 other former employees are not on the lists, and analysts say the two-year-old sales slump may have left 400,000 workers without jobs in related industries.

The reason for the discrepancy in the automakers' figures is that the weekly layoff reports include only those hourly workers who still are subject to recall.

Thus the lists do not include white-collar workers who have been laid off, and the names of many blue-collar employees have disappeared because they have exhausted their recall rights.

Auto workers generally have recall rights for the same length of time they were employed. For example, an auto worker who was employed at a given company for 18 months before being laid off would be eligible for recall for 18 months. After that time he loses his recall rights and, in most cases, disappears from the company's list of laid-off workers.

Jobs also disappear when the automakers choose not to replace workers who retire, quit or die. Those job losses, likewise, are not reflected in the companies' layoff figures.

The weekly reports include only the five major carmakers and do not reflect unemployment at smaller, independent companies that supply parts and components for the major automakers.

A more accurate measure of the current recession's impact on auto industry employment is a comparison of the industry's current workforce with the peak employment levels of 1979.

The five major automakers say they have 569,000 hourly workers on their current active employment rolls, a drop of 219,000 — or 28 percent — from the 1979 peak of 788,000. That means there are 52,000 former blue-collar jobs not accounted for by the 167,000 layoff figure.

In addition, the number of salaried workers at the major automakers has fallen to 231,000 from a peak of 274,000 two years ago, a loss of 43,000 jobs.

That brings the total job loss at the five major automakers to about 262,000, 57 percent more than the 167,000 layoffs listed in the weekly reports.

As for the related businesses, most analysts assume that for every job gained or lost at a major car manufacturer, at least 1½ jobs are gained or lost at smaller, supplier firms.

That would add an additional 393,000 laid-off workers, bringing total auto industry unemployment to around 655,000, when compared to 1979 employment.

On the positive side, most industry observers predict some increase in employment over the next four years as economic conditions improve and auto and truck sales rise.

But the sales growth — and accompanying employment growth — is expected to be slow, and few, if any, analysts are willing to predict a return to 1979 employment levels any time in the near future.

"The employment figures are volume-related — if you increase volume (of car sales) you'll increase employment," says Peter Pestillo, Ford Motor Co. vice president for labor relations. "But will we ever get back to full employment? I don't think so," he adds.

Arvid Jouppi, an auto industry analyst with Rooney, Pace Inc., says he expects employment in the industry to increase at a rate of only two-thirds of 1 percent a year through the 1980s.

That would put employment at the major automakers at about 820,000 in 1984, still 180,000 below the 1979 peak. According to Jouppi's estimate, the major automakers still would have a workforce of only 850,000 in 1990, 150,000 below 1979 levels.

United Auto Workers union officials also expect limited employment growth through 1985.

Daniel D. Luria, a UAW analyst, says his best guess is that the major automakers' workforce will amount to about 800,000 in 1985, meaning a loss of about 200,000 jobs from 1979.

"In addition to that, I'd say there's another 300,000 jobs on the line, depending on government policy," Luria says.

He says continued emphasis on tight money policies by the Federal Reserve Board, for example, could keep interest rates high, dampen car sales and eliminate more jobs.

On the other hand, congressional approval of a UAW proposal to force major car importers to build a percentage of their cars in the United States could dramatically increase the number of jobs available in the auto industry, Luria says.

Receptive To The New Federalism

George Gallup

PRINCETON, N.J. — President Ronald Reagan's "New Federalism" — in which the government in Washington would turn over much of its power to the states — strikes a responsive chord with the American public.

The New Federalism would embrace cuts in federal spending and regulations and would substitute broad block grants to the states, with few federal strings, for health and education programs which have been run under close federal supervision in the past.

Some taxpayers worry about the impact of the Naw Federalism on their state and local taxes. Others express concern about the ability of states and cities to adequately serve the needs of the disadvantaged through block grants, while still others are uneasy about the complexities of transferring responsibility from the federal to the state governments.

At the same time, however, the public as a whole is clearly receptive to the principles of the New Federalism, as evidenced by the following survey findings:

1. An almost complete reversal is notad in the public's views on Federalism since a Gallup survey conducted in 1936, during the early days of Franklin Roosevelt's New Deal.

In 1936 56 percent of persons surveyed voted in favor of the concentration of power in the federal government, while 44 percent preferred that such power be vested in the state governments. In sharp contrast, only 36 percent now favor concentration of power in the federal government while 64 percent prefer the state governments.

2. On three vital aspects of government, the public leans heavily in favor of the states as opposed to the federal government:

* By a 67-to-15 percent vote, survey respondents believe the state governments are more understanding than tha federal government of the real needs of the people.

* By similar 67-to-18 percent margin, the public feels its state government is more likely than the federal government to administer social programs efficiently. Even among survey respondents who favor the concentration of power in the federal as opposed to the state government, the majority view is that their state government is more likely to be efficient in its administration of social programs.

* By 42-to-26 percent margin, those interviewed believe the governments of states are more likely than the federal government to make decisions free of political corruption.

3. Gallup surveys have consistently shown the public believes that nearly half of every tax dollar that goes to Washington is wasted, whereas far fewer believe this of tax money that goes to state and local governments.

In the currant survey, the public's average estimate is that 42 cents of every tax dollar that goes to the federal government in Washington is wasted. In contrast, survey respondents estimate that 29 cents of every tax dollar that goes to the government of their state is wasted. And in the case of local government, the figure is 23 cents.

4. A far greater percentage of Americans believe "big government" will be a bigger threat to the nation in the future than either "big labor" or "big business."

Nearly half (46 percent) single out big government as the chief culprit, while 23 percent name big business and a like percentage, big labor. The proportion naming big government has been on a steady uptrend since 1977, when 39 percent gave this response. The present figure is three times that recorded in 1959 when 14 percent considered big government the greatest threat to the nation, 41 percent big labor and 15 percent big business.

In his televised speech Sept. 24, President Reagan asked for a reduction in the size of tha federal government and called for cutting the 1982 budget by an additional $13 billion, the dismantling of the Departments of Energy and Education and reduction of the fedaral payroll by 75,000 persons.

This question was asked:

"Which theory of government do you favor — concentration of power in the federal government or concentration of power in the state government?"

Concentration Of Power Preferred

Federal government	56%	36%
State government	44%	64%
	100%	100%

* "Undecided" allocated to enable comparison with 1936 findings.

Facing South: A Time For Action

Jim Overton

MEDEN, Tenn. — "It's like a nightmare you never wake up from," says 26-year-old Nell Grantham, speaking of her up-hill struggle to protect her family from chemical poisoning.

"You feel like everybody's patting you on the head like you're some little child, saying, 'Just calm down, everything's gonna be all right, I'm gonna handle it.' And nobody does anything. So I'll do it myself."

Ms. Grantham has lived all her life in Tennessee's Hardeman County. She and her husband have two children. They, her parents, her brothers and sisters and their families make up most of the residents of the Toone-Teague Road here in rural west Tennessee.

But just down the road is another neighbor — a 242-acre chemical dump site owned by the Velsicol Chemical Co.

In 1977, Ms. Grantham and her family began to wonder about the quality of their well water. "Our water had gotten so bad," she said, "that you could set a glass of water on the table overnight and it would congeal — like a jelly-type thing. When you'd run a dishwasher, it'd leave a powdered film on the dishes."

Over a year later — and after persitently pestering local, state and federal officials — the family finally learned that Velsicol's dump had leaked chemicals into their water supply.

"We found out that we had the most deadly chemical of all — carbon tetrachloride. If you look it up, you'll find that a teaspoon of it is lethal. We don't know how much we got," she said.

Since that time, Ms. Grantham and her family have been seeking compensation for the injuries caused by the improper dumping practices. Their day in court comes late in October. About 80 people have filed a class-action suit against Velsicol for the sum of $2.5 billion.

They were forbidden to use their well water for anything — not even for gardens or feeding livestock. "It was like camping in your home," Ms. Grantham said.

The National Guard brought in water in tanks, but it had to be hauled to their houses from a central location. Chemicals had leaked into the carpets, the paneling, the plastic dishes, even the plastic parts of household applicances. Consequently, the families have kept on receiving small doses of the chemicals. They still can't use the wells, but have been hooked up to a nearby town's water supply. Ms. Grantham is still using her contaminated appliances because she can't afford to replace them.

In addition to her involvement in the suit against Velsicol, Ms. Grantham is now the chairperson of TEACH — Tennesseans Against Chemical Hazards. She helped form the group to seek better waste management laws and to help other citizens.

"When people I talk to get discouraged," she said, "I try to let them know that what is happening in their county is the same thing that happened in Hardeman County. But neither them nor I by myself is going to stop it. People are saying all the time to me, 'Well, somebody needs to do something.' I look at that person and I say, 'Well, what's wrong with you? You get can do it. Get in there and fight. Don't give up. Together we can do it.'"

Forced Back By Gas, Heat

By JIM ABRAMS
Associated Press Writer

TOKYO (AP) — Thick poisonous gas fumes and searing temperatures forced back rescuers in one of Japan's worst mining disasters Saturday, dimming hopes that 50 trapped coal miners were still alive.

COAL MINE DISASTER ... Rescuers walk through a group of anxious relatives of coal miners trapped in a gas-filled shaft at Hokkaido Colliery Co. early Saturday. (AP Laserphoto).

Forty-three others were confirmed dead in the gas leak and fire at the Yubari coal mine 500 miles north of Tokyo. The body of a man previously listed missing was found Saturday, reducing those unaccounted for from 51 to 50.

Mine officials said rescue teams sent into the mine had to stop several hundred yards above the point where poisonous methane and carbon monoxide gas had gushed into the shaft Friday afternoon.

The teams said smoke from a fire sparked by the leak made visibility zero, and temperatures were 104 degrees.

The gas 1.2 miles below the mine surface is strong enough to put a man in a fatal coma within one or two hours, they added.

Trade and Industry Minister Rokusuke Tanaka, who heads the government investigation of the accident, arrived at the mine owned by the Hokkaido Colliery and Steamship Co.

"This accident will not be disposed of as a natural disaster," Tanaka said. "Something is very wrong with this mine."

Tanaka met with about 200 of the missing miners' relatives camped out in an office building at the mine, telling them, "Don't give up hope."

The families' frustration and tears had turned to anger when company president Chiaki Hayashi announced 14 hours after the accident that he had given up hope of finding survivors and was considering flooding the mine to prevent explosions or further fires.

"You're trying to kill them!" the families shouted.

If no survivors are found, the death toll at Yubari, a mining community of 40,000, will be the third worst since the end of World War II. In 1963, 458 people were killed in a gas explosion at the Mitsui Miiki mine in Fukuoka, southern Japan. Another accident in Fukuoka in 1963 claimed 237 lives.

The cause of the disaster has not been determined, although mine workers and the victims' relatives claim the heavily indebted company had sacrificed safety in its drive to increase production.

A labor official interviewed on television said new digging operations had been carried out in the area of the accident, about half a mile under the surface, despite heavy concentrations of gas detected.

"All they care about is making money," he said.

Media accounts said the mine's computerized gas detection buzzer was set to go off at a higher level than was safe and that it was common practice for miners to ignore the warning buzzer.

Miners reported inadequate supplies of oxygen masks and other equipment that might have saved lives.

Company officials said there were 160 miners in the immediate area when the gas leak occurred, and seventy-seven escaped. Voice contact was made with 15 of the 41 miners listed as missing Friday night. But a fire broke out as a rescue team descended to get them.

Center Has Car Pool List

In an effort to aid commuting students, Mendenhall Student Center has recently installed a car pool board. The board lists the counties adjoining to Pitt where there is likely to be a number of commuters.

Persons interested in using the service should fill out the appropriate card and place it under the county from which the car pool is desired. There are cards for persons in need of riders as well as for those needing rides. The board is located on the main floor of the Student Center at the entrance to the Snack Bar.

Clay Kirkman Says . . .

Fall has arrived and the cool winter days are just around the corner. During this time of year, work in your garden can be very enjoyable.

There is still plenty of time to plant your spring flowering bulbs, azaleas and other shrubs. Why not plant one of the berry producing shrubs this fall, for color all year. Both burgordi hollies and pyracanthas would have beautiful red berries in fall and winter which are great for use during the holiday seasons!

With all those falling leaves, why not start a compost pile. Essentially you will be recycling organic material to help enrich your soil. There are several ways to go about starting a compost pile. An enclosed area of chicken wire is probably best. Be sure to make the area large enough to be useful. Some of the materials which make up your compost include leaves, grass clippings, green weeds, vegetable wastes. Make alternate layers of leaves, grass and soil. Fertilizer such as 8-8-8 should be added over each layer. Water the compost thoroughly after your collection is complete and then again during dry periods. Also, every few weeks, be sure to turn and mix the compost.

The compost should be ready by spring. After its ready, use it as you would mulch and work it into your planting area.

Belk Tyler Garden Shops are ready to serve you for all your gardening needs. Stop by today and see our big selection of evergreens, azaleas and other shrubs.

Dayan Represented "New" Israelis

By MARCUS ELIASON
Associated Press Writer

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — With his eyepatch, his unadorned manner and disdain for ideological bombast, Moshe Dayan stood for the Sabra generation, the inheritors of the new Promised Land from its immigrant founders.

You have only to look and listen to grasp the generation gap. Where the early prime ministers, David Ben-Gurion, Levi Eshkol and Golda Meir, never lost their Russian or American accents, Dayan spoke in the straightforward, neutral style of the Israeli who had grown up in his native land.

Contrasting with leonine, craggy-faced Ben-gurion or wrinkled, graying Golda was the smooth-faced, almost eternally youthful-looking Dayan.

It was said that if Ben-Gurion was a modern Moses leading his people into Canaan, Dayan was his Joshua, fated to fight to keep the land.

While immigrants mounted soapboxes or waited in diplomatic foyers to plead their case for Jewish statehood, teen-ager Dayan carried a gun, guarding his boyhood settlement village of Nahalal against unfriendly Arabs.

The left eye he lost in battle in 1941 accentuated the difference. As his admirers saw it, Dayan had spilled blood while the others were spilling words.

The elders dreamed of a distinctly Jewish state, and were unwilling to forego territory if it meant keeping down the Arab population they would have to rule.

Dayan the soldier saw territory as the key to survival. Israel, he believed, would simply have to learn to accept the Arabs — "to live with them, beside them, among them and along borders with them."

He spoke a smattering of Arabic, which was more than most Israeli leaders could claim. He invited Palestinian nationalists to tea at his house. He visited their homes in the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River and Gaza to talk about peace and coexistence.

Characteristically, in one of the last articles he published before his death, he railed against Jewish bosses who treated their Arab workers shabbily.

His critics accused him of being unethical. They pointed to his disregard for political loyalties and his two defections from the Labor Party that had launched his brilliant political career.

His supporters excused his behavior as that of an avowed loner, true only unto himself.

Uri Avnery, the left-wing magazine publisher and one of Dayan's most articulate critics, believes the general combined all the best and worst qualities of the native-born Israeli.

"He had no intellectual breadth but he had natural intelligence," says Avnery. "He was brilliant at improvising solutions to basic problems, but he had no overall solution to anything. It might be said of him that he was clever at getting out of situations which a wise man wouldn't have gotten into in the first place."

Why did the Sabras never sweep him into the premiership, even before his reputation was sullied by the surprise Egyptian attack that launched the 1973 Mideast war? Some say the rigid machine-politics of Israel stifled independent candidates. But Avnery has a more intriguing theory.

"The Sabras never really wanted one of their own," he says. "It's their inferiority complex toward their elders. They're not a generation that rebels against mom and dad. Even when they had a Sabra in power, Yitzhak Rabin, they pulled him down and voted for Menachem Begin, the Polish immigrant."

Above all, Dayan was an enigma. The down-to-earth blunt talker was prone to sudden soaring bursts of imagination. He wrote love poems and humorous ditties lauding his favorite basketball team. What religious Jews draw from faith in God, Dayan drew from his amateur archeological digging.

Here is Dayan writing of a cave he once explored, which had accommodated a family thousands of years before:

"It was an extraordinary sensation. I crouched by the ancient hearth. It was as though the fire had only just died down, and I did not need to close my eyes to conjure up the woman of the house bending over to spark its embers into flame as she prepared the meal for her family. My family."

Well into his sixties, Dayan's face still managed to exude youthful Sabrahood. Many Israelis, seeing him in person for the first time instead of on television, would be surprised to find him short and potbellied.

But in his last two years age and cancer overtook him with terrible swiftness. His voice grew hoarse. His walk became a shuffle, his face skeletal. His good eye seemed to burn brighter but its vision ebbed.

He fought the cancer into remission, and although he tended to ramble in speech, his views remained as lucid and compelling as ever, and even in retirement he could easily fill a hall for a speech.

In 1956, in a graveside eulogy to a comrade fallen in battle, Dayan delivered what might be his own epitaph:

"We are a generation of settlers, and without the steel helmet and the cannon we cannot plant a tree or build a house.

"This is the fate of our generation, the choice of our life."

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The state Insurance Department has taken no action against a North Carolina auto club that is partly owned by a state legislator although a Wake County court ruled the club was breaking the law.

The Insurance Department also has failed to act against two Executive agents who signed affidavits last April that they can barely read or write, reported The Charlotte Observer in its Saturday editions. To sell insurance in North Carolina, agents must pass a written test which the Insurance Department issues.

The newspaper reported that Sen. R.C. Soles, D-Columbus, is an officer, director and stockholder of the Executive Motor Club of America Inc., according to a financial statement Soles filed in the State Legislative Library. Soles, an attorney who also has represented the company, said he owns $6,000 worth of stock in Executive.

In May, a Wake County Superior Court ruled the motor club violated several state laws — it illegally tried to pass off its insurance policy as that of a competitor, used unlicensed agents and frequently canceled customers' policies with the competitor without the customers' knowledge or consent.

Under state law, the insurance commissioner can revoke auto clubs' licenses if they act illegally. The Observer reported that department files show a June request from Jerry Trotter, deputy commissioner for special services, for a "routine examination" of Executive. The files show no action was taken.

Insurance Commissioner John Ingram, who credits Soles with Senate passage of a controversial insurance law last July, and his top deputies refused to comment on the matter.

Officer Planned Death

By MICHAEL GOLDSMITH
Associated Press Writer

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Egyptian investigators believe President Anwar Sadat's assassination was masterminded by a Moslem fundamentalist colonel who deserted from a high-level military intelligence post, an Egyptian source said Saturday.

The source, who has access to Egypt's top military commanders, also said the assassins apparently planned to kill all of Egypt's top leaders — including Sadat's successor, President Hosni Mubarak — but ran out of ammunition.

Police captured the suspected mastermind, Lt. Col. Abu Abdel Latif el-Zomor, on Tuesday after a gunbattle between police and Moslem extremists at the pyramids in Giza.

Police said they captured five Moslem fundamentalists linked with the outbreak of violence Oct. 7-8 in Asyut after the gunbattle, but made no mention of el-Zomor.

El-Zomor, the source said, is a "brilliant" officer in his early 30s who vanished from his post at military intelligence headquarters several weeks before the Oct. 6. assassination. He had access to most of Egypt's top military secrets, the source said.

Sadat knew el-Zomor, but not well, the source said.

The investigation is being conducted in strict secrecy, and Defense Ministry spokesmen refused to comment on the report.

El-Zomor is undergoing "intensive interrogation" to determine his links with the man alleged to have led the four-man assassination squad, 1st. Lt. Khaled Ahmed Shawki el-Islambouly, the source said.

Egyptian investigators, the source said, are convinced that neither man had any contacts with Libya or other foreign countries but acted out of religious fanaticism.

The killers are alleged by the government to be members of the extremist Takfir Wal Hegira (Atonement and Flight from Sin) sect, which condemned Sadat as a heretic for trying to Westernize and modernize Egyptian society.

The source, who was among high-ranking officers sitting within a few yards of Sadat when the president was killed during a military parade, said the assassination was carried out with commando-like precision.

He said Sadat, contrary to earlier official announcements, died instantly when he was hit by a barrage of bullets from an automatic rifle.

The rifle was fired from a truck carrying the crew of a 130-mm anti-tank gun in a parade celebrating the anniversary of the 1973 war against Israel.

The attack was launched at 1.05 p.m. (7:05 a.m. EDT) on Oct. 6. Sadat was rushed to Maadi military hospital within minutes, but it took six hours before the government announced his death, claiming doctors "pronounced him dead" at 2.40 p.m.

"When Sadat arrived at the hospital," the source said, "doctors found that a cluster of bullets, obviously fired by a first class marksman, had struck him in the area of the heart, killing him instanly.

Hospitalized After Wreck

A Tarboro man has been hospitalized following an accident early Saturday morning causing $6,900 worth of damage.

John Rhodes of 404 Lincoln Dr., Tarboro, is in critical condition at Pitt County Memorial Hospital. Rhodes was a passenger in a car driven by Michael Clifton Eller, also of Tarboro.

The vehicle left the road, struck a low wall and skidded down a 15-foot incline at Fifth and Cemetery Streets near Greenwood Cemetery, according to investigators.

Eller has been charged with driving under the influence, exceeding a safe speed and use of improper lane.

Damages amounted to $6,000 to Eller's vehicle and $900 in damage to the wall.

British Marines Chief Hurt In IRA Bombing

By ROBERT GLASS
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — The IRA struck in London for the second time in a week Saturday with a car-bombing that maimed the commandant of the British marines, Lt. Gen. Sir Steuart Pringle, a former commando leader in Northern Ireland. The blast blew the engine of his car across a street, ripped off the car roof and sent the hood flying over a house.

Pringle, 53, was rushed to King's College Hospital, where surgeons amputated his right leg below the knee. Doctors said they hoped to save his left leg, which also was torn. The general's dog also was in the car, but escaped unharmed, apparently because he was on the back seat and on the side away from the general.

In Northern Ireland, a stolen car booby-trapped with a bomb exploded in the parking lot of a golf course, slightly injuring one man, police said. No group immediately claimed responsibility for that explosion.

The outlawed Irish Republican Army claimed responsibility for the Pringle car bombing in a statement issued to news organizations by its publicity bureau in Dublin, Ireland.

Scotland Yard had warned of the possibility of a new IRA bombing campaign after the group's nail-bomb attack last Saturday on a busload of Irish Guards in London. Two people were killed and 37 others injured in that attack.

"Everyone should be careful, not just those who by virtue of their positions may be attacked," Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher said Saturday after learning of the Pringle car-bombing. "This will help break the threat and catch the perpetrators of these dreadful crimes."

Pringle's red Volkswagen Passat exploded as he drove off with his pet Labrador retriever from his home in West Dulwich, middle-class residential area of south London, a Scotland Yard spokesman said.

The impact of the explosion sent Pringle's car crashing into a parked car. The roof of the Volkswagen was torn off and its windows were blown out.

"The whole front of the car was in pieces," said Clifford Collins, who operates a nearby furniture store. He said a nurse who had been passing by in her car stopped to help Pringle.

Firemen freed him from the wreckage.

Mike Mullings, a 19-year-old airport customs agent, said he was waiting for a bus "when suddenly there was a big flash and I saw the hood of the car fly up over a house."

"I rushed to the car, and I could see the driver was still conscious but his legs were badly smashed and he was bleeding from the head," he said.

"I tried to calm him down but all he could say was, 'What about my dog?' " Mullings said. The dog was unharmed.

Police sealed off the area for fear of a second explosion, a tactic sometimes employed by the IRA in Northern Ireland in attacks on the province's security forces.

Commander Michael Richards, head of Scotland Yard's Anti-Terrorist Squad, said the explosion was caused by a bomb, adding, "It is possible it was the same type of device that was used to kill Airey Neave."

Neave, the Conservative Party's spokesman on Northern Ireland, was killed March 30, 1979 by a bomb that exploded in his car as he drove away from the House of Commons.

The Irish National Liberation Army, a leftist offshoot of the IRA, claimed responsibility for the Neave killing.

The IRA and INLA are fighting to end British rule of Northern Ireland and unite the province with the Irish Republic to the south.

Saudi Peace Plan

ABU DHABI, United Arab Emirates (AP) — PLO chief Yasser Arafat was quoted Saturday as saying that he "welcomed" a Saudi Arabian Mideast peace plan. The guerrilla leader, however, stopped short of endorsing the proposal.

Previously the head of the Palestine Liberation Organization said only that he was "interested" in the proposal advanced by Saudi Arabian Crown Prince Fahd in August.

Arafat, on his way back to Beirut from a four-nation Asian tour, told the al-Ittihad newspaper that the plan was a "basis from which we can commence to solve the primary problem in the Middle East."

The eight-point Fahd plan calls for Israeli withdrawal from all Arab lands seized during the 1967 Mideast war, and tacitly recognizes Israel's right to exist by emphasizing "right of the states in the region to live in peace."

"We are perfectly prepared to co-exist with the Jews in our democratic state," Arafat told al-Ittihad.

Political analysts pointed out that Arafat's use of "democratic state," without mentioning Israel by name, was in line with a long-standing PLO policy that calls for replacing the Jewish state with a Palestinian one.

The PLO, an umbrella organization for guerrilla groups seeking an independent Palestinian state on Israel-occupied lands, has never accepted Israel's right to exist. Israel has refused to recognize the PLO as a representative of the Palestinian people.

Other leaders of PLO factions have come out against the proposal as have several radical Arab states.

She is a graduate of G. R. Whitfield High School and has attended several Pitt Community College workshops. She will assume her new duties on Oct. 19.

Officials Say Weak Laws Lower Water Quality

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — State environmental enforcement officials say an obscure amendment allowing relaxed wastewater limits is one reason that the Environmental Management Commission has approved 46 of 47 applications.

Critics also say that most of the 46 towns that used the amendment this year do not have the means in hand to improve their waste treatment any time soon.

The Hardison Amendment, named for its sponsor, Sen. Harold Hardison, D-Lenoir, makes it more difficult for the division to justify the cost of additional wastewater treatment in badly polluted streams, officials say.

But critics say part of the problem also lies with politics and state government.

"The (state) administration does not seek professional counsel," said Dr. David Adams, former assistant state secretary for Natural Resources. "They make political decisions and expect the professionals to enforce them.

"The word is out — you don't get a good job down there by having good credentials. You get a job by knowing Joe Pell."

Pell is special assistant to Gov. Jim Hunt and Hunt's patronage chief.

Stephanie Bass, a Hunt spokesman, denied that political loyalties are an overriding concern in the choice or promotion of NRCD staff.

"I don't think you'll find many people who are not qualified for the job and who are hired just because they have political connections," she said.

But Grimsley admitted that NRCD's troubles have been compounded by deep cuts in federal support.

Hunt said at a September news conference that the state's share of federal money for new wastewater treatment has been cut to $42.8 million this year, with no new funds expected for the coming year.

The state could offset the lost federal grant money if voters approve Hunt's clean water bond proposal, passed by the Legislature last week.

Ken Cromartie, a soil scientist who left the Division of Environmental Management last month, is one of many agency staffers who say that agency management has failed to back its staff on policy matters.

"You've heard the expression, 'Get the government off the backs of the people.' Well, how about getting government off the backs of its own professionals," Cromartie said.

"We can't do our job with such an aura of suspicion and doubt around us."

Posters Made For Food Day

In recognition of World Food Day, Oct. 16, fourth grade students at Wahl-Coates Elementary School drew posters for a poster contest depicting hungry children, healthy children and the student's own solution to the world hunger problem.

First place went to Alicia Pascasio, second place to Trena RoCox and third to Melodie Hahn. All three received T-shirts.

First, second and third prize ribbons were awarded to individual home rooms also. All fourth grade students got apples on their lunch tray in commemoration of World Food Day.

The event was sponsored by the Community Nutrition class of East Carolina University.

Renovation Plans Said To Be Moving

Chairman Bob Griffin of the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce announced Friday that the building fund for the renovation of the historic Fleming House "has been successful to date."

He said the past vice chairmen — Jerry Powell, Lawton Nisbet, Charles Burnette and Tommy Edwards — are now in the process of working with volunteers to finish contacting all the chamber membership.

Tommy Edwards, chairman of the renovation task force for the house, will take members of the renovation task force to visit the Rocky Mount Chamber facilities on Tuesday. The purpose of the visit is to allow members of the committee to see the renovation of the Rocky Mount facility and investigate how it was accomplished.

Members of the renovation task force include Tommy Edwards, Jack Edwards, Bob Griffin, Reid Hooper, Larkin Little, Bob McGinty, Tim Rosche and A.B. Whitley.

Plans for the renovation of the Fleming House are in their final stages and it is hoped that the renovation will begin within the next 60 days.

Farm Bureau Sets Meet

The Pitt County Farm Bureau will hold its annual meeting for 1981 on Oct. 26 at the Pitt County Farm Bureau Building at 7 p.m.

Members are invited to attend and express their views concerning what the Farm Bureau should work for in coming years.

"A new farm program is being prepared and it appears that we may be able to salvage the main features of our tobacco and peanut programs," said Atlas Wooten, president of the Pitt County Farm Bureau. "The closeness of the vote indicates great opposition to these program exists.

"We are also confronted with depressed livestock and grain markets," he continued. "Many producers of these commodities are headed for disaster unless changes are made.

"Whatever the battle may be, if it involves working to improve rural living and bolstering farm income, you may rest assured Farm Bureau will be involved," he added

Elon Professor Is Speaker

The Delta Chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma met last week at the Saint James United Methodist Church with Dr. Jane Brown, professor at Elon College as the guest speaker.

Dr. Brown's topic was "The Characteristics of the Women Educators in the 21st Century."

"The characterisics of women in the future are to be yourself, to be in harmony with nature, to have dreams, desires and confidences and to have the desire and ability to use our influence in the classroom," she told the group.

Prior to the dinner, Dr. Mary Lois Staton, president of the chapter, inducted two new members, Dr. Betty Mobley Long and Elizabeth Taylor Dupree, into the society.

Laura Ingram, a transfer from the Statesville Alpha Zi Chapter of the Delta Kappa Gamma, was welcomed into the chapter.

During the business sessin, Dr. Betty Levy presented the past president's pin to Dr. Mary Lois Staton.

The president announced that Stella Chambliss has been appointed to fill the vacancy of vice president due to the resignation of Carolyn Fulghum.

B-1 Bomber Said Interim Step

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Air Force Gen. Robert C.Mathis defended the B-1 bomber Friday against claims that it would be obsolete three years after it is built.

Mathis, as Air Force vice chief of staff the third highest ranking U.S. Air Force officer, said the bomber will serve only as an interim step until development of the Stealth aircraft.

"That airplane is, in our opinion, the bomber that can be built in the shortest period of time and ready for service," Mathis told a Pope Air Force Base press conference. "The B-1 is not an interim anything. It is an airplane we will have with us for a very long period of time.

Critics in Congress have charged that the B-1 is a waste of money because the more advanced Stealth bomber, which will will be "invisible" to enemy radar, could be ready as soon as three years after the first B-1 comes off the production line.

But Mathis said that philosophy can be applied to any type of equipment and if it were followed to the extreme, "we would still be riding horses."

"As soon as you build any aircraft, there's obviously something better coming on the drawing board somewhere downstream," he said. "If you follow that logic through all the way, you'll never build anything because as soon as you start to someone will say 'Wait, I have a better idea.'"

Mathis said Air Force planners have made several technological changes in the original B-1 which was set to be built in 1977 before the program was scrapped by President Jimmy Carter.

Mathis said the B-1 is badly needed to replace the B-52 bomber, which was orginally produced in 1955.

Serviceman Sues Titan Manufacturer

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — An Air Force sergeant who was injured in a Titan 2 missile silo explosion last year is suing the missile system's manufacturer for $7.5 million.

Jeffrey Kennedy's lawsuit is by far the largest of the four lawsuits resulting from the Sept. 19, 1980, blast that killed Sgt. David Livingston, 22, of Heath, Ohio, and injured 21 people.

Attorney William N. Carter of Little Rock filed the lawsuit in U.S. District Court on Friday for Kennedy, 26, and his wife, Margaret, who live in Raymond, Maine.

Kennedy's lawsuit accused Martin-Marietta Corp. of Denver of negligence. The complaint said the firm did not adequately design the Titan 2 missile and silo.

Company officials were not immediately available for comment.

Carter said Friday that, unlike the other Titan lawsuits, Kennedy's asked the court to set punitive damages in addition to the $7.5 million request.

Livingston's father, Donald R. Livingston, also has sued Martin-Marietta for $760,000 in damages. Two other airmen injured in the explosion, Sgts. Rex Hukle of Mulvane, Kan., and John Gregory Devlin of Cincinnati have sued the company for $1.5 million each.

The Air Force said the explosion occurred after a six-pound socket wrench used by a maintenance worker inside the silo fell 70 feet and punctured a hole in a liquid fuel tank. That set off a leak, and a buildup of pressure from propellant vapors in the silo led to the explosion.

The Air Force reprimanded Kennedy, who suffered leg injuries and a lung infection because of the explosion, for breaking regulations by entering the missile complex alone several hours before the accident. He said he entered to take pressure readings. Later, Kennedy won a medal for helping rescue the injured.

The Air Force has given Kennedy a conditional disability retirement with the hope that he can re-enter the service within five years.

His lawsuit said Martin-Marietta did not provide adequate and safe materials in the construction of the missile and its fuel and oxidizer tanks.

Should Include Klan

By MARY ANNE RHYNE
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Civil rights activist Julian Bond warned a group of North Carolina educators Saturday that right-wing groups like the Ku Klux Klan are turning their recruiting efforts to young students in the public schools.

"They are strongly attempting to recruit young people in public schools all over the nation," said Bond, who spoke at a two-day North Carolina Association of Educators conference in Raleigh. "They are ready and available to scoop up young minds."

In response, NCAE President John I. Wilson said the group will form a committee to monitor the activities of right-wing groups and to provide political and legal support for educational groups attacked by them.

"The time in our society has come when we must stand up and not allow these groups to overshadow our public education," Wilson said at a news conference at the Professional Rights and Responsibilities Conference.

He said the Ku Klux Klan and Nazis threaten "to poison the minds of our young people" while the Rev. Jerry Falwell's Moral Majority threatens to "attack our valuable instructional materials and books."

NCAE leaders also encouraged participants in the conference to adopt a newly developed social studies curriculum for junior and senior high school students that teaches about the Klan and the Nazis.

"We must educate students about what the Ku Klux Klan is and about their violence," Wilson said. "So far these groups have not infiltrated the schools to our knowledge."

Bond said the Klan, which he called a 116-year-old terrorist group, is trying to recruit students in many areas for a new youth division. But he said he did not know whether North Carolina school children were being recruited by the Klan.

Bond, a Georgia state senator, is associated with the Klanwatch project at the Southern Poverty Law Center in Montgomery, Ala.

"There are frightening political currents flowing through America today," Bond said. "The fascist state tactics of yesterday — book burning, witch hunts, imposition of religion into the classroom, self-appointed censors, the no-nothing philosophy of yesterday — have surfaced today with a new ferocity."

Disagrees With Carter

BALTIMORE (AP) — Former Vice President Walter F. Mondale, breaking with Jimmy Carter on Middle East policy, said Staurday he is lobbying senators against the sale of AWACS radar planes to Saudi Arabia.

At a news conference during a Democratic party strategy meeting, Mondale volunteered that he maintains his opposition to the $8.5 billion arms package now pending before the Senate.

"I'm convinced it will escalate the arms buildup in the Middle East," said Mondale, vice president during the Carter administration.

Carter last week declared his support for the sale and urged the Senate to support it.

The House voted overwhelmingly on Wednesday against the sale but unless the Senate concurs the deal will go through as the administration wants.

Both the Reagan administration and Senate opponents have Senate surveys showing a majority opposing the transaction, but President Reagan has been lobbying hard and has succeeded in changing the minds of several senators.

Mondale also urged Reagan to appoint a top level negotiater to try to regain the momentum of the Camp David peace process.

"In the Middle East either you are talking about peace and working for peace or inevitably very quickly you are talking about war and moving toward war," siad the former vice president.

Mondale was one of the party leaders who participated in a two-day meeting of the Democratic National Strategy Council.

Most of the discussion centered on domestic affairs and ranged from philosophical commentary to exhortations about the need for the Democratic Party to pay more attention to grass roots politics.

Walter Heller, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers under President Kennedy, warned the Democrats that there might be short-term improvement in the economy that could benefit the Republicans in the 1982 elections.

Heller said Reagan's economic policies are characterized by "contradictions and false promises" and are certain to lead, in the long term, to escalating budget deficits and interest rates. But he said Democrats should not "delude ourselves into thinking Mr. Reagan or Reaganomics will self-destruct politically."

He said "it is entirely possible that by next summer, in the heat of the 1982 campaign, the American people may not have seen through Reagan's program, they may not have recognized its contradictions and false promises."

The economist said that the country is moving into a recession which could cut interest rates and the level of inflation and that the next stage of the multi-year tax cut, which goes into effect next July, might provide needed stimulus.

He said the Democrats would have to find ways of countering Reagan's skill as a salesman and to convince Americans that there are long-term dangers in the administration's economic pilicies.

During a wide ranging discussion of where the party stands and where it ought to go there still were echoes of a dispute that erupted Friday night when New York City Mayor Ed Koch called on Democrats to move away from what he termed failed programs such as racial quotas and school busing.

Sadat's Peace Efforts Visible In Israel

By MARCUS ELIASON
Associated Press Writer

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — An Israeli tennis player on an Egyptian court. An Egyptian musician in concert in Israel. Package tours to the Pyramids with kosher meals. The Egyptian newspaper Al Ahram on sale in Tel Aviv.

These are the first buds on the sapling of peace that Anwar Sadat planted in the wilderness of Arab-Jewish enmity by visiting Israel in 1977, and they may be the most tangible legacy so far of the Egyptian president who was assassinated Oct. 6.

Israelis line up daily at the visa section of the Egyptian Embassy on Basel Street, in residential north Tel Aviv. Twice a week a freighter of Israel's ZIM line sails for the Egyptian port of Alexandria with eggs or fruit, paper or furniture, metal goods or pharmaceuticals.

Israeli publishers have exhibited at the Cairo book fair, and manufacturers paraded goods at this year's trade fair.

The Egyptian contribution to what is known as normalization has been less spectacular, but even that would have been unthinkable four years ago — an Egyptian spending time on a kibbutz, Egyptian tourists in Jerusalem, Egyptian officials discussing agricultural cooperation with Israeli experts.

Some critics complain that Egypt is moving too slowly and reluctantly toward normalization since the two countries signed peace in March, 1979, and the Israelis began withdrawing from the Sinai Peninsula it conquered in the 1967 Middle East war.

For Israelis, normalization is the only nuts-and-bolts product of the treaty that can offset the withdrawal from the strategic Sinai and its oilfields. And despite Egyptian assurances to the contrary, there is widespread fear that as soon as Israel completes its withdrawal from the Sinai in April and has no more cards to deal in negotiations, normalization will disintegrate.

"From the start there was more talk than action," comments the Jerusalem Post. "Trade relations never seemed to get going. Cultural exchanges remained an Israeli idea. Even tourism ... resulted in many Israelis visiting Egypt, but few Egyptians coming to Israel."

The Israeli government faces a dilemma. On the one hand it knows it cannot rush Egypt into normal relations. On the other hand, Prime Minister Menachem Begin has banked his prestige on the peace process, and palpable gains from normalization are his only hope of selling peace to a skeptical Israeli public.

Dr. Eliahu Ben-Eliassar, Israel's first ambassador to Cairo, sees psychological barriers still to be overcome. Therefore, he says, "it's important that Israeli bananas enter Egyptian homes, that the Egyptian mother gives her child Israeli chocolate."

Critics point to the trade imbalance as further proof that normalization is a one-way affair. Israeli exports to Egypt totaled $9 million in 1980 and $7.98 million in the first half of this year, while Egyptian sales were so negligible that they were not recorded in statistics.

Officials here believe the gap results not from politics but from different bureaucracies and economic methods. Egyptians are not a traveling society like Israelis, they say, and Egypt has never been as export-minded as Israel.

"They are very keen to export to us and they tell us so whenever we meet," says Amos Efrati of Israel's Ministry of Trade and Industry. "But it's up to them to move the wagon. We can't force them."

Trade officials say they are happy if Israeli companies take the initiative and seek out their own markets. A kibbutz sells Egypt a shipment of honey. A paper mill sells Egypt a shipment of newsprint. An Israeli supermarket chain is looking into opening branches in Egypt.

One promising field of cooperation is agriculture. Israeli scientists are trying to sell Egypt a home-grown method of disinfecting soil, while Egypt hopes to sell Israel its expertise in growing spices and medicinal herbs.

Efrati says he is sure that ties will improve gradually and that trade will get a boost in November when Israeli trucks are allowed to drive to Egypt and bypass congested ports.

Opponents of the peace treaty claim events have proven that the tennis players and musical exchanges and package tours to Cairo are merely temporary concessions on the road to the ultimate goal of pushing Israel back to its pre-1967 war borders.

Allen and Whitaker will attend ten weekend sessions over the next eight months.

Navy To Fight Smuggler

By CHARLES RICHARDS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department has decided to use the Navy to help slow the traffic of illegal drugs from South America, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen said Saturday.

Bentsen released a letter he received from Attorney General William French Smith, who agreed with Bentsen that the Coast Guard needs help in its efforts to catch drug traffickers.

The Texas Democrat had complained last June about "an alarming increase in drug traffic" and asked Smith to accept the recommendation of a crime task force that the Navy be asked to help in the battle.

"Please be advised that I wholeheartedly support this recommendation. I have already taken up the matter with the Secretary of Defense. I am happy to report that he is eager to work with us," Smith said.

The attorney general added, "The use of the Navy's resources will be a part of this administration's border policy."

Smith said one of his aides will meet soon with Navy representatives to determine how the Navy can best be used in the fight against drug smugglers and work out the details "so that this program can begin as soon as possible."

The attorney general's "Task Force on Violent Crime" suggested several ways that existing resources might be used to help, including use of the Navy.

Smith said the United States needs a border policy that seeks to stop drug traffic, a foreign policy thav focuses on eradicating drugs wherever cultivated, and a legislative program that enhances the ability of prosecuting drug-related cases.

Spread Gospel Of The Orchid

By JOHN LAIRD
Associated Press Writer

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Thailand's Professor Rapee Sagarik has led a quiet, different kind of revolution. You can see its flower children in backyards, at street corners and in marketplaces all around Thailand.

Rapee has brought that most temperamental, varied and perhaps most beautiful of flowers — the orchid — to the people of Thailand. And he is largely responsible for Thailand's position as the world's leading exporter of cut orchids.

Rapee, a botanist and the rector of Bangkok's Kasetsart University, took orchids from the gardens of the privileged, developed ways to speed up their growth and spread the orchid gospel to all who were interested.

But this was not his only devotion. He has applied his science to uplifting Thailand's poor farmers, through improved growing practices and promotion of rural development. He served as deputy agriculture minister in the government of Kriangsak Chomanan.

Rapee says orchid-growing became popular in Thailand after 1954. "Before then, only the aged and wealthy grew orchids — a small group. The attitude was that orchids were only for the rich. That was an attitude of people, not the orchids. I wanted to give them to people from all walks of life."

Orchids have become a $75-million business. Thousands of Thais have improved their lot by growing them, even though the street price of orchids has steadily declined.

Exports of cut orchids to Europe began 12 years ago and Japan recently became a big buyer. This year, Thailand began shipping flowers to the U.S. West Coast.

Special low air freight rates to Europe and Japan aid export to there. They don't apply to the fledgling trade with the United States, but Rapee notes that growers' wages have been rising in Hawaii — the chief competitor in the American market — while Thailand's family-based economic system continues to supply cheap labor.

Rapee is no longer active in cross-breeding orchids. His many successes were capped in 1979 with his final creation, the cattleya sagarik wax, now listed with the International Orchid Registration Society in London.

Mubarak: 'No Mercy' Towards Militants

By MAURICE GUINDI

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) — Moslem extremists exchanged gunfire with police in a Nile Delta village Saturday and President Hosni Mubarak said he will show "no mercy" to religious militants who will face "the razor-sharp sword of law."

Despite protests by official spokesmen that the number was much smaller, sources close to the government insisted that more than 1,500 people have been arrested in the 11 days since the assassination of President Anwar Sadat by four Moslem extremists.

Interior Minister Nabawi Ismail indicated the crackdown was continuing and said police have been "raiding hideouts, making arrests and seizing arms. A small number of wanted persons is still at large."

Together with the arrests Sadat ordered shortly before his death, more than 3,000 people have been arrested in the past month on charges of fomenting sectarian strife and trying to undermine the regime.

Security sources said four extremists in two speeding cars opened fire on a group of policemen on guard at the village of Sandoub, two miles from the Nile Delta provincial center of Mansoura.

The police returned fire and the assailants fled, abandoning their cars on a highway cutting across cultivated fields. There were no reported casualties.

Mubarak chaired several meetings with top aides for an appraisal of the security situation and economic and foreign policies, including peace moves with Israel.

He first conferred with Foreign Minister Kamal Hassan Ali and later with provincial governors and economic experts.

A government spokesman quoted Mubarak as telling the governors that public security was his "top priority" and "no one shall be immune from the razor-sharp sword of law."

He quoted Mubarak as saying he "will show no mercy and the state will deal with utmost firmness with any deviation."

Invoking the state of emergency declared immediately after Sadat was assassinated at a military parade Oct. 6, Ismail decreed a ban on training in the use of firearms and explosives without official authorization.

The decree said offenders would be punished by at least three to five years imprisonment.

Ismail insisted the number of detainees since Sadat died was "very limited." Government spokesman Mohammed Hakki said detainees numbered "less than a hundred" and were "armed people who aimed at creating incidents like the one at Asyut" in southern Egypt two days after Sadat's death.

In that violence, 44 policemen were killed and 98 wounded when Moslem fundamentalists attacked a police station and other targets. Nine fundamentalists were killed in the day-long fighting.

Three Killed

ROCK HILL, S.C. (UPI) — Three people believed to be traveling to the Clemson-Duke football game in Durham, N.C., died Saturday when their twin-engine plane crashed into Lake Wylie, but three others aboard the plane survived.

Officials said the pilot, and the wife and daughter of one of the survivors died in the crash that happened about 10:30 a.m. Saturday. The survivors, who included two men and a woman, were taken to York General Hospital in Rock Hill.

Identities of the victims were withheld pending notification of next of kin, according to the York County Sheriff's Department. But unofficial reports indicated that the passengers were from the Clemson area and the plane was en route from Greenville, S.C., to Durham.

The Civil Air Patrol said the pilot of the six-seater Beechcraft Baron radioed the Charlotte, N.C., airport approach tower that one of the plane's engines had failed. Officials said the pilot decided to try instead to land at Rock Hill.

But as the plane tried to land at Rock Hill, its other engine failed and it disappeared from the radar screen, officials said.

Witnesses said the plane crashed into the lake in about 30 feet of water, just north of Rock Hill near Josslyn Park.

Divers were brought in to recover the bodies.

LAFAYETTE, La. — East Carolina, facing what Coach Ed Emory termed a "must win" situation, found its offense in this, the land of bayous and swamps. And the discovery was made not a first down too soon.

Led by Leon Lawson's 120 yards rushing, and two fourth quarter touchdowns — the first a 77-yard punt return by Jimmy Walden and the second, a 27-yard run by Harold Blue — the Pirates defeated the University of Southwestern Louisiana, 35-31, before a crowd of 13,378 at Cajun Field.

East Carolina trailed, 24-21, going into the final period, but after forcing the Ragin' Cajuns to punt in the fourth quarter, the Pirates regained the lead. Walden, a 5-10, 170 freshman from Greensboro, took Larry Trussell's punt, headed straight up the field, angled to the left sideline and raced 77 yards for the score. Chuck Bushbeck's kick made it ECU 28, USL 24 with 13:03 left.

Southwestern was again forced to punt on its next series, but Carlton Nelson, who returned in the second half after being shaken up in the first, fumbled on the Pirates' first play, and Lance Harwell, USL's defensive end, recovered for the second time during the night.

The Cajuns appeared stopped, when on second and eight, Jody Schulz, who had 11 tackles and was named defensive player of the game by the media, tackled quarterback Curt Caldarera for a 12-yard loss. But Caldarera scrambled for 15 yards on the next play and a penalty helped move it to the Pirate five, giving the Ragin' Cajuns a third and three.

ECU, behind for the fifth time in the game, answered with a 72-yard drive for the go-ahead score.

"I asked them to come back one time, and then twice," Emory said. "Then, they had to come back five times. What was it, four or five times we were behind and came back."

Lawson, a 6-2, 195 junior, drove up the middle for seven yards and Harold Blue followed with a six-yard gain to give the Pirates a first down on their 41. Roy Wiley, who had 66 yards on the evening, then ran for 12 yards and two plays later added a 15-yard burst to give the Pirates the ball at the Ragin' Cajun 27.

Blue, who had 60 yards and was one of four ECU backs over 50 yards for the evening, broke a tackle in the middle of the line and rambled the final 27 yards to cap the six play drive. Bushbeck's kick made it 35-31 with 6:24 left in the game.

The Ragin' Cajuns moved from their 47 on their next and final series, but Glenn Morris intercepted a Caldarera pass at the Pirate 44 to end the threat with 3:35 remaining. East Carolina then drove to the eight before time ran out.

East Carolina, which had been averaging 309 yards total offense and 15 first downs a game, ground out 407 yards — 358 coming on the ground.

"We moved the ball the best all year on offense," Emory said afterwards. "We moved it when we had to. We went inside with the ball well, where we felt we could run it.

"When we lost Nelson at the end of the first quarter, it hurt us, but Ingram and Stewart made some big plays. At the half, we just decided to stay inside and pound them."

The Cajuns, now 1-5, were held to 96 yards rushing, but picked up 196 passing on the arm of Caldarera. The 5-9, 179 pound senior connected on 14 of 23 passes and had two intercepted.

The Pirates continued to be plagued by their own turnovers. Of USL's five scores, three were set up by ECU fumbles. The Ragin' Cajuns longest drive of the night was 77 yards.

"We didn't keep our poise with the people that we in the different situations," said USL Coach Sam Roberton. "We need to learn to keep our poise and move the ball when the opportunity arises.

"We need to learn how to win in the fourth quarter. I felt it's not the youth but just the people who haven't played many downs yet."

The Ragin' Cajuns, down 14-10 at the half, used a Cooter Mansur recovery of a Blue fumble to set up its initial scoring drive of the second half. After Steve Hamilton and Mike Davis tossed Clarence Verden for an 11-yard loss on a reverse, Caldarera found wide receiver Phillip Flugence over the middle for 26 yards in front of Clint Harris at the ECU 27. Caldarera then hit Steve Dutnell for 20 yards to the seven. Foret then drove inside for six yards, and then followed that with a one-yard plunge for the score. Speer's PAT made it USL 17, ECU 14 with just 3:21 gone in the third period.

The Pirates, behind the passing of Nelson and running of Lawson, took the ensuing kickoff and drove 86 yards to regain the lead. With second and eight from the ECU 16, Nelson swept around right end for nine yards. Two plays later, Nelson hit Ricky Nichols for a 41 yard gain, but the play was called back because of illegal proceedure.

With third and 11 from the 24, Nelson hit Norwood Vann for 18 yards. Four plays later, Lawson went up the middle

'Pack Scares Tar Heels Before Finally Bowing In 2nd Half, 21-10

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) - Fourth-ranked North Carolina had not trailed an opponent this season — until Saturday.

North Carolina State jumped out to a 10-0 lead before the Tar Heels bounced back in the second half for a 21-10 Atlantic Coast Conference victory before a record crowd of 56,200.

"It was a little eerie to look up there and see us behind for a change," said Tar Heel defensive back Walter Black, who set up a touchdown with a blocked punt and saved one with an interception. "We just went out there in the second half to show we could play football because we weren't in the first half."

North Carolina coach Dick Crum said "we were fortunate to get just 10-0" in the first half.

But he said the opening kickoff of the second half was a big play. N.C. State tried an onsides kick that North Carolina recovered on its own 49.

"That was probably our most alert play of the day," Crum said. "That's what gave us field position for our first touchdown."

A tearful Wolfpack coach Monte Kiffin admitted, "All I can say, I called that one (the onsides kick). There've been other disappointments but not like this one. I'm just sick."

Kiffin said the team had practiced the play all week and thought they had a 95 percent chance of making it work. "But that other five percent killed us," he said.

Crum said North Carolina changed nothing in the second half but "Tyrone Anthony's shoes." Anthony had slipped some in the first half but came back in the sacond to run for 109 yards and finish with 183 on 32 carries.

N.C. State, led by McIntosh's 106 yards rushing and 204 yards passing by quarterback Tol Avery, led the statistical battle. The Wolfpack had 376 total yards to North Carolina's 288.

North Carolina remains unbeaten at 6-0 and 2-0 in the ACC. The Wolfpack falls to 4-2 and 2-2.

The Wolfpack threw a full body block on the Tar Heels in the first half, grabbing a 10-0 lead with a big play defense and an unpredictable offense.

North Carolina's top-rated rushing unit was limited to a mere 71 yards. And the Tar Heels completed only 5 of 11 passes for 67 yards.

State's first score came on a deceiving pass play from Avery to tight end Rufus Friday.

On a third-and-one situation from the Tar Heel 46, Avery faked a handoff and then lofted a pass to Friday. With no one within 20 yards, he almost walked into the end zone with 13:59 left in the second quarter.

North Carolina later recovered a Wolfpack fumble on the State 24, but then threw an inteception to kill the threat.

N.C. State marched to the North Carolina 3 before stalling and settling for a 19-yard field goal by Todd Auten with 19 seconds left in the half.

The Ouch Corner!

Arkansas Stuns No. 1 Texas, 42-11

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Unranked Arkansas, ignited by halfback Gary Anderson and quarterback Tom Jones, shocked No.1 Texas out of the unbeaten ranks Saturday with a 42-11 Southwest Conference victory over the astounded Longhorns.

It was the second worst whipping Texas had received from Arkansas in the 63 years the two schools have played each other. The Razorbacks bounced them 42-6 in 1938.

The Longhorns joined the graveyard ranks of Michigan, Notre Dame and Southern California who had been listed No.1 in The Associated Press poll then suffered an upset.

Arkansas is now 5-1 overall and 2-1 in SWC play while the Longhorns dipped to 4-1 and 1-1.

It was Arkansas' first victory over Texas in Fayetteville in 16 years and only the Razorbacks' third victory in 15 games against the 'Horns.

Arkansas pounced on an early fumble, cashed it in for a quick touchdown on a 1-yard run by Jones, and the jittery Longhorns never recovered in the regionally televised game.

Arkansas was ahead 15-0 before Texas ever had a first down thwnks to a safety on a bad center snap and a 5-yard touchdown run by Anderson, his first score of the season.

The two teams traded field goals before the Razorbacks scored just before the half on a 19-yard touchdown pass from Jones to Anderson.

With 44,031 fans in full-throated roar, Arkansas ran the count to 32-3 on a 4-yard Jones scoring run and led 39-3 at the end of the third period after Darrell Bowles' 19-yard scoring gallop.

Bruce Lahay's 37-yard field goal with 9:32 to play gave Arkansas a 42-3 lead before Texas scored its only touchdown on an 8-yard pass from Robert Brewer to Donnie Little.

Linebacker Jeff Goff was the defensive star for the Razorbacks, recovering a fumble and intercepting a pass which led to touchdowns. He also jarred the ball loose from a receiver on an apparent touchdown pass.

Cornerback Danny Walters had two interceptions in the rout.

It tied the second worst defeat in Texas' history. The Longhorns lost 46-0 to Texas Christian in 1956 and were defeated 52-13 by Oklahoma in 1973.

The Razorbacks scored all of their first half points after Texas miscues except for a 47-yard field goal by Lahay.

Texas quarterback Rick McIvor fumbled the snap on the 'Horns first play from scrimmage and Billy Ray Smith pounced on the ball at the 19. Anderson ran twice for short gains then caught a 14-yard swing pass from Jones to the 1. Jones then sneaked it across. The extra point was spoiled by a bad snap from center Greg Garrison.

Arkansas quickly made it 8-0 when Texas center David Jones snapped the ball out of the Longhorn end zone in punt formation.

Goff alertly snared tailback A.J. Jam Jones' fumble at the Texas 5 and Anderson scored his first touchdown of the year on the next play to make it 15-0 in the first period.

After Lahay's early second-period field goal mounted the count to 18-0 the Longhorns finally made their first first down after 16 minutes and 35 seconds of play.

The 'Horns drove to the Arkansas 7 before Goff tipped away a third-down pass, forcing Texas to settle for Raul Allegre's 24-yard field goal.

Free safety Kim Dameron's interception late in the first half provided the Razorbacks with their third touchdown. Working the ball from the Texas 36, the Hogs moved to the 'Horn 19. On third and 4, Jones found Anderson flying behind linebacker Doug Shankle and led him perfectly on a 19-yard touchdown pass with 20 seconds to go for a 25-3 halftime lead.

Texas was held to only four first downs in the first 30 minutes of play.

The Longhorns went into the game looking for their 600th collegiate victory but had to settle for their 16th loss in the 63rd meeting with Arkansas. There have been no ties in the series.

The Longhorns exceeded the school record of 38 passes in trying to overcome the Razorback blitz to no avail. McIvor was logged with 39 passes and suffered four interceptions.

Iowa Kicks Michigan

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Iowa freshman Tom Nichol booted three field goals and the 12th-ranked Hawkeyes' powerful defense made them stand up for a 9-7 victory over fifth-ranked Michigan in a Big Ten football showdown Saturday.

Iowa's Dave Strobel recovered Evan Cooper's fumble on the game's first punt and the Hawkeyes moved in for a 20-yard Nichol field goal seven plays later.

The next time the Hawkeyes got the ball, Nichol concluded a 56-yard, seven-play drive with a 36-yard field goal to give Iowa a 6-0 lead after one quarter.

Michigan put together its only drive early in the second quarter. The Wolverines marched 68 yards in 10 plays with Steve Smith passing 17 yards to All-American wide receiver Anthony Carter, who beat Iowa defender Lou King for the touchdown in the right corner of the end zone. Michigan then held on to the 7-6 lead at the half.

In the third quarter, Iowa defensive back Mel Cole intercepted a Smith pass intended for tight end Craig Dunaway in the end zone. The Hawkeyes went 67 yards in 12 plays with Nichol kicking a 30-yard field goal that put them ahead for good.

The victory left Iowa with a perfect 3-0 conference record and 5-1 for the season. Michigan fell to 2-2 in the Big Ten and 4-2 overall.

Iowa State Sinks Missouri

AMES, Iowa (AP) — Dwayne Crutchfield scored three touchdowns on short runs and John Quinn passed for more than 200 yards to lead Iowa State to a 34-13 upset of No. 8 Missouri in Big Eight Conference football Saturday.

Iowa State, bouncing back from a 52-31 loss to San Diego State, capitalized on Missouri turnovers for two touchdowns and a pair of Alex Giffords field goals to hand the Tigers their first loss in six games.

A homecoming crowd of 53,220 — the second largest in school history — saw Iowa State send its record to 4-1-1 overall, and 1-0-1 in the Big Eight. Missouri slipped to 1-1 in the league.

Crutchfield scored on a pair of 1-yard runs in the first half to help Iowa State build a 21-7 lead and added a 4-yard run midway through the fourth quarter. However, the 235-pound tailback, who has been bothered by a sprained ankle, was held to less than 100 yards for the first time this season. He finished with 98 in 32 carries.

Quinn threw a 41-yard touchdown pass to Vinny Cerrato late in the first quarter and Giffords kicked second half field goals of 36 and 47 yards. Quinn completed 15 of 21 passes for 190 yards in the first half and was 20 of 32 for 226 yards for the game.

Interceptions by Darren Longshore set up two of Crutchfield's touchdowns and Giffords' field goals followed fumble recoveries.

Quarterback John Hyde scored both Missouri touchdowns, a 2-yard run to cap a 98-yard drive midway through the second quarter and a one-yard sneak in the third period. Hyde, the leading passer in the conference coming into the game, hit 12 of 31 passes for 141 yards.

Garvey's Home Run Sparks LA; Series Is Tied At Two Each

MONTREAL (AP) — The Los Angeles Dodgers, for years known as the masters of baseball brinkmanship, may be on about to do it again.

Steve Garvey's two-run, eighth-inning home run triggered the Dodgers to a 7-1 victory over the Montreal Expos Saturday and evened their best-of-five National League championship series at two games apiece.

The Dodgers had to win Saturday or go home.

Garvey's home run snapped a 1-1 tie and the Dodgers scored four more in the ninth to set up Sunday's game which will decide the National League representative against the American League champion New York Yankees in next week's World Series.

By tying the series, Los Angeles forced Montreal into the same situation the Expos faced in winning the East Division title from the Philadelphia Phillies.

Against the Phillies in a fifth game, the Expos had to beat three-time Cy Young award winner Steve Carlton to capture the division. They had beaten Carlton in the first game of that series.

Now, they have to beat rookie sensation Fernando Valenzuela, who with Carlton is a candidate for this year's Cy Young award as the league's best pitcher. They defeated valenzuela in the second game of the series to gain a split in Los Angeles.

Valenzuela will again be opposed by Expos' right-hander Ray Burris, who pitched a shutout in his first meeting with the Dodgers' left-hander from Mexico.

In their own division series, the Dodgers faced elimination after losing the first two games to Houston in the Astrodome. But they proceded to sweep the next three games at Dodger Stadium, becoming the first team since major-league baseball instituted five-game playoffs in 1970 to come back from a 2-0 deficit to win.

The Dodgers have never lost a league championship series. Montreal is seeking its first pennant in the 13-year history of the franchise.

Garvey said his home run came on the exact type of pitch he was looking for.

"I told the guys on the bench that I was going to be looking for a slider up and was able to hit it out," Garvey said of his homer. "He had started me off with sliders and the pattern has been not to throw me the fastball with men on base. But the slider was up a little bit and I was able to hit it out."

Garvey said he felt that the momentum had shifted to the Dodgers. He said the club has had to fight adversity throughout the playoffs.

"So this (the fifth game) is nothing new to us."

Montreal Manager Jim Fanning, informed of Garvey's remarks about momentum, commented, "As I've said I'm not sure what momentum is. I guess it's what you want tolmake it in your mind. And if you want to talk about adversity our club has faced it all season."

Los Angeles Manager Tommy Lasorda said, "I feel very very confident now. It all boils down to who gets a good-pitched game and scores some runs," Lasorda said.

Winning pitcher Burt Hooton said he had much better stuff Saturday than he did in winning the opener of the series at home Tuesday.

"I wanted to get this win to give Fernando another chance tomorrow (Sunday). I know what he's capable of doing. He gives us another shot at it," Hooton said.

Dusty Baker also provided a big offensive punch for the Dodgers, driving in the first run, then batting in two

Jordan, Austin Team Up, Guide Clemson Past Blue Devils, 38-10

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Clemson head coach Danny Ford said he didn't have to show any replays of last year's game with Duke to get his players fired up for a 38-10 victory over the Blue Devils on Saturday.

All he needed was offense.

Ford got all the offense he needed from quarterback Homer Jordan and tailback Cliff Austin.

Jordan completed 13 of 19 passes for 198 yards and a touchdown and also ran for a score. Austin rushed 19 times for 178 yards and two scores as the 6th-ranked Tigers kept their unblemished record intact.

Austin's scores came on runs of 15 and 2 yards and he had a 27-yard scoring run called back by a penalty.

"Our guys were just anxious to come up and get a win," Ford said. "We didn't really talk to them about last year, because this is a different game."

Austin, whose totals included a 77-yard dash, said he was surprised to find Duke cornerback Dennis Tabron on his heels as he headed toward the goal line.

"I didn't know the defensive back was that close," Austin said. "I looked back and there he was and he caught me."

Ford was pleased with his defense, although he noted that there wasn't enough pressure on Duke quarterback Ben Bennett and that the Tigers didn't put Duke away.

"Duke just wouldn't die. Duke played well and did a good job against us," Ford said.

Duke coach Red Wilson said Clemson deserved its 6th-place ranking in the polls and may deserve an even higher rating.

"They are no doubt one of the top collegiate football teams in America," Wilson said.

Clemson ran its record to 6-0 overall and 2-0 in league play. The only blemish on the Tiger victory was a third-quarter touchdown pass from Bennett to Cedric Jones, the first six-pointer against the Tigers in 18 quarters.

Duke squandered three second-half scoring opportunities. The first came when it was called for offensive pass interference in the end zone. It lost another chance when Bennett failed to get into the end zone on a fourth-down play. A fourth-quarter fumble squelched its final scoring attempt at the Clemson 2-yard line.

Clemson's junior quarterback Homer Jordan accounted for two other scores on a 1-yard run and a 29-yard pass to Perry Tuttle.

Duke saw its three-game winning streak end and its record fall to 3-3 overall. The Blue Devils are now 1-1 in the ACC.

Austin's running helped set up Clemson's initial score. After moving from its own 37 to the Duke 4, tailback Brendon Crite scored on a reverse with 11:54 remaining. Bob Pauling's conversion gave the Tigers a 7-0 lead.

Early in the second quarter, after a Clemson drive stalled at the Duke 3, Pauling booted a 20-yard field goal to increase the margin to 10-0.

Clemson converted a Duke fumble into a 17-0 lead.

The Tigers converted an interception by Terry Kinard into a commanding 24-0 lead. Austin's 77-yard gallop set the stage for Jordan's 1-yard sneak with 3:07 left.

Pate Charges Into Four Shot Lead At Pensacola

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — Hometown boy Jerry Pate charged into a 4-stroke lead and three of golf's biggest guns wheeled into position for a shot at golf's top money-winning spot Saturday in the third round of the Pensacola Open.

Pate, followed by a massive gallery of friends, relatives and neighbors, took command of the tournament title chase with a 7-under-par 65. Meanwhile Tom Kite, Ray Floyd and Bruce Lietzke, all involved in the chase for leading money-winning honors, moved among the leaders in golf's tightest money race in 17 years.

Tom Watson, however, all but took himself out of it. Watson, who swept Player of the Year and leading money-winning honors for the 4-year period 1977-80, shot a 69. At 209, was a distant nine strokes off Pate's leading 200 total going into Sunday's final round of this, the last official event on the 10-month tour schedule.

Watson needs a victory — now a decided longshot — to overtake the absent Bill Rogers on the point list from which the Player of the Year is chosen. He needs a finish of no worse than second to have a chance to overtake Kite on the money list.

Kite, who leads the money list with $364,099, Floyd, with $354,926, and Lietzke, with $336,146, all stayed very much in contention, however. This tournament offers a total purse of $200,000 with $36,000 to the winner.

Kite, who made the cut for the final two rounds only by virtue of an eagle-2 Friday, came from the cutoff figure with an 8-under-par 64. That put him at 206, 10 under par for three trips over the 7,133-yard Perdido Bay Club course and six behind Pate.

"I'm much more comfortable," said Kite, who had one string of six consecutive birdies, the longest streak of the year on the pro tour.

"I got myself in position to be the determining factor in my own destiny," said the little man who has finished eighth or better in 16 of his last 17 starts.

Lietzke, who must win if he is to have any chance at the money title, also was at 206 after a 71, which he compiled while playing with his brother-in-law, Pate.

The veteran Floyd, only $9,173 back of Kite on the money-winning list and needing a victory — second place won't do it — to take Player of the Year honors, was one stroke better at 205 after a 67 in the bright, warm sunshine.

But Pate, a Pensacola resident and unofficial host for this tournament, is in the driver's seat for the title. Winner of the Memphis Classic earlier this season, he barged in front on the strength of a pair of 40-foot birdie putts on the back nine and a 60-footer that found the hole for an eagle-3 on the 11th.

"I think I'll have to play it three or four under tomorrow to win, but I think I'm capable of that.

Terps Outlast WF

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Maryland coach Jerry Claiborne was shell-shocked but happy Saturday after his team survived a record-breaking aerial barrage by Wake Forest to defeat the Deacons 45-33 in an Atlantic Coast Conference football game.

"I have never been in one like that before. I don't think we have ever played against anyone who has thrown the ball like that," said Claiborne, whose 2-3-1 Terrapins were hit for a conference record 556 passing yards.

Maryland quarterback Boomer Esiason threw three touchdowns himself while reserve tailback John Nash chipped in three touchdowns.

Wake Forest, 2-5, quarterback Gary Schofield completed 43 of 62 passes for 504 yards to set school and league records.

Schofield also tied an NCAA record for most passes completed, a mark held by Rich Campbell of California and Dave Wilson of Illinois.

Wake Forest set an NCAA record for most passes completed in a game, with 47, and a national record with 24 first downs by passing.

Schofield threw three touchdown passes to flanker Kenny Duckett, but had four passes intercepted including one in the first quarter which Maryland's Bill McFadden returned 97 yards for a touchdown.

Wide receiver Kenny Duckett tied a school record for three touchdown passes and tight end Phil Denfeld caught 12 passes to tie another record.

Eric Wilson intercepted Schofield at the Wake Forest 19 midway through the final period and Lendell Jones and Joe Aulisi closed the door on Wake with thefts in the final seven minutes.

"We finalhy got some turnovers, but we couldn't keep them out of the end zone," Claiborne said. "We were right in their hip pockets, but they made some great catches. I can't fault our defense, we were trying to stay as close to them as we could."

Wake trailed 24-17 at the half, but scored on its second possession of the third period when Schofield completed four passes for 46 yards to set up a 1-yard dive by Carlos Cunningham.

Iaryland forged back ahead when reserre tailback John Nash, playing for injured Charlie Wysocki, scored his third touchdown, a 4-yard run, with just under 4 minutes to play in the period.

Schofield and Duckett connected on a 3-yard scoring toss to tie it at 31-31 with 12:20 to play, but Maryland went ahead for good on its next possession driving 80 yards with Mike Lewis capping the drive with a 1-yard plunge.

Maryland went ahead 38-31 when Mike Lewis scored on a one-yard run with eight minutes to play, then scored an insurance touchdown when Esiason hit tight end Mike Tice with a 12-yard scoring strike just over three minutes later.

Trailing 24-17 at the half, Wake Forest tied the game in the third period when Carlos Cunningham bulled over from the one-yard line, capping a 79-yard drive on which Schofield completed four passes for 46 yards.

Maryland took the lead 31-24 when Nash ran four yards for a touchdown late in the third period. But Wake Forest battled back to tie it less than 5 minutes later.

The Terps broke a 17-17 tie when Esiason hit tailback John Nash with a 57-yard touchdown pass with 30 seconds remaining to go up 24-17 at halftime.

Wake Forest had tied the game 30 seconds earlier when quarterback Schofield connected with Duckett for a 13-yard touchdown.

However, one miss gave Maryland a 7-0 early lead. Defensive back Bill McFadden stepped in front of a Schofield pass at his own 3-yard line and returned it 97 yards for a touchdown.

Maryland scored on its next offensive possession when split end Russell Davis ran 41 yards for a touchdown on a reverse. The touchdown capped an 85-yard drive which was kept alive by a penalty on Wake Forest, nullifying a blocked punt.

Wake Forest scored in the second period when reserve quarterback David Webber marched the Deacons 68 yards in seven plays hitting Duckett with a 14-yard touchdown pass.

Penn State (2), Pitt (3) Both Claim Wins

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Curt Warner rushed for a school record 256 yards on 26 carries Saturday, scoring on a 69-yard gallop and setting up four other touchdowns with his running and receiving as second-ranked Penn State romped to a 41-16 college football victory over Syracuse.

Warner, a 5-foot-11, 195-pound junior from Wyoming, W.Va., carried 13 times for 189 yards in the first half and went on to smash the 69-year-old Penn State mark of 250 set by Shorty Miller in 1912 against Carnegie Tech.

Todd Blackledge, who completed 10 of 11 passes for 120 yards, scored on a 5-yard keeper and threw touchdowns passes of 7 yards to Mike McCloskey and 12 to Vyto Kab, giving the Nittany Lions a 21-9 lead and offsetting field goals of 51, 50 and 44 yards by Gary Anderson of Syracuse.

Warner carried five times for 53 yards including runs of 16 and 26 yards as Penn State took the opening kickoff — Warner returned it for 21 yards — and stormed 78 yards in nine plays for a 7-0 lead.

Early in the second quarter, he turned a short pass from Blackledge into a 17-yard gain to the Syracuse 8. Three plays later, the Lions made it 14-3 on the Blackledge-to-McCloskey pass which the second-string tight end caught between two defenders.

Penn State, 5-0 for the season, scored two touchdowns and a field goal in the final 4:05 of the second period for a 31-9 halftime runaway. Warner ignited an 80-yard, six-play drive with runs of 13, 18 and 21 yards on the first three plays.

Blackledge, who connected on his first 10 passes, hit Kab with a short pass and his tumbled across the goal line with two defenders clinging to him.

Warner then bolted 69 yards, the longest run of his career. He outraced defensive back Derek Frederickson down the left sideline on the first play after Penn State linebacker Walker Lee Ashley sacked quarterback Dave Warner for the fourth time, forcing a fumble which tackle Dave Opfar recovered at the Lions' 31.

Brian Franco kicked a 32-yard field goal on the final play of the half. Jon Williams, Warner's backup, scored on a 1-yard plunge in the third quarter and Franco added a 29-yard field goal in the final period. Syracuse, 1-4-1, scored its only touchdown on a 33-yard pass from Dave Warner to Paul Zambuto in the third quarter.

finished the scoring with a six-yard touchdown run with 2:14 left in the game, capping an afternoon in which he rushed for 217 yards on 23 carries.

Marino, sidelined the previous game with a bruised throwing shoulder, returned to action wearing a flak jacket and special shoulder pads. But he became Pitt's all-time career leader in passing yards and total completions, and his three touchdown passes boosted his season total to 16, another school record.

Marino finished with 15 completions in 27 attempts for 251 yards.

His career total of 4,360 yards broke the old Pitt record of 4,219 set by Rick Trocano and his 321 completions surpasses Dave Havern's previous record of 308.

In the first quarter, he and fullback Wayne DiBartola combined on a 22-yard touchdown pass play that gave Pitt a 7-0 lead.

In the second quarter, Sunseri intercepted a pass by Florida State quarterback Rick Stockstill and ran 22 yards for a touchdown that gave Pitt a 14-0 lead.

Midway of the second quarter, Flynn fielded a booming punt by Florida State's Rohn Stark and sprinted 83 yards for another Panther touchdown, eluding Stark at midfield and outrunning another defender.

Florida State cut the margin to 21-7 before halftime on a one-yard touchdown run by Mike Whiting, but Marino threw a pair of touchdown passes to Julius Dawkins in a span of 1:30 early in the third period.

Marino and Dawkins combined on a 65-yard bomb. After a Florida State fumble, Marino hit Dawkins for an 18-yard touchdown.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Quarterback Dan Marino, wearing special pads to protect a bruised shoulder, tossed three touchdown passes and set three school records to lead third-ranked Pittsburgh to a 42-14 victory over 11th-ranked Florida State Saturday.

Safety Tom Flynn also returned a punt 83 yards for a touchdown and linebacker Sal Sunseri returned a pass interception 22 yards for another score as Pitt, 5-0, avenged a 1980 loss to Florida State, 4-2, that cost the Panthers a possible national title.

Southern Cal (7) ... 25
Stanford 17

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Quarterback John Mazur threw for one touchdown and set up another and Steve Jordan kicked three field goals Saturday as seventh-ranked Southern Cal downed Stanford 25-17 in a Pacific-10 Conference football game.

Southern Cal led 22-3 at halftime and extended the advantage to 25-3 early in the third quarter, but the Trojans then had to hold off a fourth-quarter rally by Stanford that produced two touchdowns.

The Cardinals were able to hold Trojan tailback Marcus Allen below 200 yards rushing for the first time this season, as the senior from San Diego, who leads the nation in rushing, finished with 153 yards on 40 carries.

But Mazur, a sophomore, helped Southern Cal roll up a 22-3 halftime advantage as he completed 10 of 15 throws for 175 yards in the first two quarters.

Allen put USC ahead to stay when he dove 2 yards for a touchdown with 5:38 played in the contest.

Jordan hit a 37-yard field goal to make it 10-0 in the waning moments of the first quarter, then the Trojans' Dennis Edwards trapped Stanford quarterback John Elway in the Cardinals' end zone for a safety with 33 seconds remaining in the period.

Mazur's 8-yard touchdown strike to flanker Timmy White gave Southern Cal a 19-0 edge early in the second period. A 28-yard field goal by Stanford's Mark Harmon, his 11th in as many tries this season, cut the deficit to 16 points, but then Jordan extended USC's advantage to 22-3 when he kicked a 39-yarder 12 seconds before the intermission.

A 23-yard field goal by Jordan in the third quarter closed out the Southern Cal scoring. Stanford got its first touchdown on a 26-yard pass from Elway to Mike Tolliver with 9:32 remaining in the game.

The same combination clicked again on a 3-yard scoring pass with two minutes left, but the Cardinals lost their last chance as Southern Cal fell on an onside kickoff attempt.

The Trojans are now 5-1 and 2-1 in Pac-10 play. Stanford, suffering its fifth loss in the season, has just one victory on the year. The Cardinals are 1-2 in conference action.

Georgia (9) 52
Vanderbilt 21

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Flanker Lindsay Scott caught two scoring passes and All-American tailback Herschel Walker ran for two touchdowns Saturday to lead No.9 Georgia to a 53-21 Southeastern Conference football victory over Vanderbilt.

Scott, a senior from Jesup, Ga., set a school career receiving record when he pulled down a 48-yard scoring aerial from reserve quarterback John Lastinger. Earlier in the second quarter, Scott had combined with quarterback Buck Belue on a 6-yard touchdown.

Kevin Butler opened the scoring when he booted an 18-yard field goal after a 17-play Bulldog drive following the opening kickoff stalled on the Vanderbilt 2-yard-line.

The Commodores, forced to punt after the next series of downs, got a break when the ball rolled through Daryll Jones' hands and Vanderbilt's Bob O'Connor recovered on the Georgia 13.

On the next play, quarterback Whit Taylor found tailback Van Heflin alone in a corner of the end zone. Mike Woodard booted the extra point for a 7-3 lead for Vanderbilt, 1-5 and 0-3 in the SEC.

Walker, a sophomore who carried 39 times for 188 yards and set a Bulldog career rushing mark with 2,684 yards after 17 games, scored with 1:57 left in the first quarter when he capped an 80-yard, 10-play drive by scoring from the 3.

Butler connected on his second field goal of the game from 24 yards out to bring the score to 27-7 at the half.

Taylor got his second TD of the game less than four minutes into the third quarter when he hit flanker Norman Jordan from 4 yards out. Woodard's conversion kick closed the margin to 27-14.

Georgia, 5-1 and 3-0, broke the game open from that point, however, scoring three touchdowns, a safety and another field goal.

A 61-yard touchdown pass from freshman Kurt Page to Waymon Buggs ended Vanderbilt's scoring with 11:01 remaining in the contest.

Miss. State (16).... 14
Miami, Fla. (13) ... 10

STARKVILLE, Miss. (AP) — Quarterback John Bond, plagued with passing problems most of the season, connected at key times to set up two scores as 16th-ranked Mississippi State upset Miami's 13th-ranked football team 14-10 Saturday.

Bond engineered a second-quarter touchdown with two crucial passes to bring the Bulldogs from behind for good. He hit on a 15-yarder to end Jerry Price that set up a 47-yard Dana Moore field goal, his second, as the half ended.

But in the end, it was the Bulldogs' aggressive defense that salvaged the victory. Mississippi State shut out the Hurricanes in the second half and thwarted a flurry of last-minute passes by Miami quarterback Jim Kelly, who connected on 20 of 41 for 267 yards.

Bond completed 11 of 20 for 151 yards, with seven of them for 110 yards coming in the first half when the teams wrapped up the scoring.

Miami forged ahead early in the second quarter with an 83-yard touchdown march featuring Kelly's passing. The rifle-armed junior accounted for 77 yards with three throws, with the payoff an 11-yard pass to wide receiver Larry Brodsky that produced a 10-3 lead.

The State defense nailed Miami deep in its end zone on the Hurricanes' next possession and produced a safety when Miami center Don Bailey snapped the ball through the end zone on a punt attempt.

State went ahead to stay with a 53-yard march on its next possession. Bond hit wingback Lamar Windham on a 27-yarder and Windham scored two plays later on a 14-yard sweep.

The teams swapped first quarter field goals. Moore had a 39-yarder, and Dan Miller of Miami booted one for 50 yards.

Wisconsin (14) 14

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Bryan Clark passed for three touchdowns, two to Daryl Turner, as Michigan State stunned 14th-ranked Wisconsin 33-14 in Big Ten college football Saturday.

Clark completed 18 of 30 passes for 291 yards and set up a touchdown with a 41-yard run as the Spartans won their first conference game in four tries.

Wisconsin, playing on the road for the first time this year, suffered its first Big Ten loss and fell from first place with a 3-1 conference mark. Overall the Spartans are 2-4, the Badgers 4-2. Michigan State's 33 points was the most scored against Wisconsin this season.

Clark also threw a touchdown pass to Otis Grant and Aaron Roberts scored on a 1-yard plunge for the Spartans.

Wisconsin's points came on a blocked punt carried into the Michigan State end zone by Guy Boliaux and a 3-yard touchdown pass from reserve quarterback Randy Wright to Jeff Nault.

Michigan State scored on its first possession of the game, controlling the ball for 11 plays before Morten Andersen booted a 32-yard field goal.

The Spartans picked up two more points the next time Wisconsin had the ball when a snap sailed over the head of punter David Greenwood and out of the end zone for a safety.

VMI 14
Appalachian 14

BOONE, N.C. (AP) — Tailback Floyd Allen scored on a 5-yard run with just over nine minutes left to help VMI tie Appalachian State, 14-14, in a Southern Conference football game Saturday.

The tie give the Keydets a 4-0-1 record, 2-0-1 in the conference, and the Mountaineers a 3-3-1 record overall and 2-1 in league play.

VMI guard Jay Lasek caught a fumble from teammate quarterback Kelly Raber and fell across the goal line for the game's first touchdown.

Appalachian scored both touchdowns in the second quarter. Randy Joyce threw four yards to tight end Ken Wadkins. Mark French kicked the extra point.

With a minute and a half to go in the second quarter, Joyce hit wide receiver Tyrell Murphy with an 11-yard pass for a touchdown.

Gamecocks Defeat Cavs; Auburn Wins

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Defensive back Troy Thomas returned a punt for 43 yards for a touchdown and carried another punt back 56 yards, setting up a second score to inspire South Carolina to a 21-3 football victory over hapless Virginia Saturday.

Thomas' hit on paydirt late in the first half put the Gamecocks in the scoring column for the first time and ahead for good in a slow-moving, lackluster contest.

Virginia, which managed 16 first downs to Carolina's 10, was able to move the ball but was unable to sustain lengthy drives. The loss puts the Cavaliers at no wins against six defeats.

Neither team dominated the statistics, with both squads totaling 216 yards offense. USC quarterback Gordon Beckham, who has had off-and-on passing success, threw the ball for 41 yards. Virginia's Gordie Whitehead tossed the ball for 82 yards and backup signal caller Mike Eck threw it for 64.

Running back Johnnie Wright led the ground game for the Gamecocks with 87 yards and Virginia's Eric Fears led his team with 50 rushing.

USC, now 4-3, also got scoring help from running back Todd Berry, who danced into the end zone from the 3, and Wright, who also scored from the 3.

The first half was almost eventless, with both teams unable to keep up sustained drives.

Virginia scored first on a 48-yard field goal by Wayne Morrison late in the first period after he had missed an earlier 37-yard try.

The Gamecocks took a 7-3 lead to the lockerroom after Thomas swept down the sideline on his touchdown punt return.

Thomas helped set up an early third quarter touchdown when he returned another punt 56 yards. Three plays later, Berry went in from the 3 for the score.

Auburn 31
Georgia Tech 7

ATLANTA (AP) — Quarterback Joe Sullivan converted an Auburn fourth down gamble into a 24-yard touchdown scamper midway through the second quarter Saturday, triggering the Tigers to a 31-7 college football victory over Georgia Tech.

Sullivan's run on a fourth down and 4-yard situation gave Auburn, 3-3, a 10-7 lead and the Tigers added a three second half scores.

The first came on an 11-yard Sullivan pass to Mike Edwards, linebacker Chris Martin returned a blocked field goal 77 yards and Tim James plunged over from 1 yard out to hand hand the Yellow Jackets their fifth consecutive loss.

Tech, 1-5, had taken a 7-3 lead seven second into the second quarter when quarterback Jim Bob Taylor connected on a 39-yard scoring strike to Ken Whisenhunt in the end zone.

Al Del Greco had given Auburn a 3-0 lead with a 31-yard field goal after 11:33 of the opening quarter.

Lionel James, who led Auburn rushers with 94 yards in 13 attempts, helped set up Sullivan's TD run with an 18-yard scamper of his own. Sullivan, who completed only four of eight passes for 57 yards, also had a 19-yard completion in the drive.

The 5-foot-11, 180-pound junior quarterback then guided a nearly seven minute drive which he capped with his 11-yard strike to Edwards in the end zone with 2:29 remaining in the third quarter.

Tech then responded with its own threat of the second half after Mike Niebanck recovered a fumbled punt by Auburn's Chris Woods at midfield.

Tech, however, stalled at the 10 and Ron Rice's 27-yard field attempt was blocked by David King, and recovered by linbacker Chris Martin who raced 77 yards for the score.

Auburn closed out the scoring with 1:47 remaining when Tim James plunged over from 1 yard out after Doug Taylor intercepted Tech's Taylor on the 28 yard line.

Taylor, who was making his first start after Mike Kelley suffered a shoulder separation in last week's 10-7 loss to Tennessee, failed to generate much of an offense for Tech and wound up throwing three interceptions in the final quarter.

UCLA 14
Washington St.....14

PULLMAN, Wash. (AP) — Frank Cephous scrambled 6 yards for a touchdown with 4:53 to play to pull out a 17-17 tie for UCLA with 18th-ranked Washington State Saturday in a Pacific-10 football game.

Quarterback Clete Casper drove the Cougars downfield in the last two minutes, but their move stalled with 1:19 left after a holding penalty and a pair of losses pushed them back from the UCLA 19-yard line to the 32.

The game was played before 40,000 fans, the largest home crowd in WSU history.

The tie kept the Cougars, 5-0-1, in first place in the Pac-10 standings with two victories and a tie. UCLA is 1-1-1 in conference play and 3-2-1 overall.

Running back Tim Harris, with his third consecutive 100-yard game, fumbled three times. UCLA cashed in on the last one, taking over at the WSU 32 and driving into the end zone in seven plays for their tying score.

In the third quarter, WSU noseguard Matt Elisara picked off a pass from UCLA quarterback Tom Ramsey and rambled 42 yards to put the Cougars ahead 14-10.

The Cougars extended their lead to 17-10 on an 81-yard, 12-play drive that consumed 5:13 and ended with a 19-yard field goal by Morris.

for 11 yards to the USL 36. Two snaps later, Nelson broke around left end, started back up the middle, only to angle toward the left sideline and race 30 yards for the Pirates' first touchdown of the second half. Bushbeck's kick made it ECU 21, USL 17.

The lead was shortlived, however. USL used a 26-yard pass from Caldarera to Brent Anderson and a 12 yard pass to Mike Hoffman to give the Cajuns the ball at the ECU seven. Four plays later Foret drove over the right side for the touchdown. Speer added the point after and with 3:43 left in the quarter, USL led 24-21.

"I never thought they could move the ball on us like they did," Emory said. "They had a great game plan and executed well. But I don't think our defense had its feet and legs tonight like the last two weeks. Having to sit around here for two days did not help us any.

It took the Pirates nearly a half to get their defensive legs under them as statistically, the first quarter belonged to USL. The Ragin' Cajuns ran 25 plays to ECU's nine, had seven first downs to ECU's zero, and amassed 105 yards total offense to ECU's 18.

On its opening drive, USL drove from its own 20 to ECU's 41 before being forced to punt. On third and nine from the USL 35, Caldarera hit tight end Brent Anderson for 14 yards over the middle and a first down. Caldarera then hit wide receiver Greg Hobbs for a 17-yard gain to the ECU 34.

The drive was as good as ended on the next play, however, when Caldarera's pitchback was recovered by USL for a 13-yard loss.

Three plays later, Trussell lofted a punt that rolled dead at the ECU 4.

ECU failed to get a first down on its initial series and Tony Barnhardt punted for 49 yards to the USL 41.

Caldarera immediately went to work again hitting tight end Mike Hoffman for 13 yards and a first down at the ECU 46. Two plays later, after a holding penalty moved the Cajuns back to their own 49, Caldarera hit Hoffman again, this time for a 12-yard gain. Foret then burst through a gaping hole up the middle for a ten yard gain and a first down at the ECU 29.

Five plays later, on third and ten from the 16, Caldarera hit wide receiver Doug Waddell on a slant-in for ten yards. Then, following a five-yard loss, Foret rumbled through another big hole up the middle for 11 yards and the score with 2:57 left in the period. Speer kicked the PAT to give USL a 7-0 lead.

On ECU's next possession, Kevin Ingram replaced Nelson but failed to move the Pirates, and Barnhardt kicked 42 yards to the USL 23.

Neither team moved on its next possession, and following another Trussell punt, ECU got the ball at its own 46 early in the second quarter. Lawson drove off right tackle for 11 yards for the Pirates' first first down of the game with 10:25 left in the period. One play later, Lawson took a handoff from Ingram, started off right tackle, cut back to the left and raced 43 yards untouched into the end zone. Bushbeck's kick tied the game at 7-7 with 10:11 to go.

The Cajuns moved to their 46 on the next possesion and were forced to punt. Trussell's punt rolled to the ECU 6, but on first down Walden fumbled the ball and Harwell recovered at the eight for USL.

The Pirate defense, which had had trouble stopping USL in the early going, stiffened and Speer came on to kick a 20-yard field goal to give the Cajuns a 10-7 lead with 4:32 left in the half.

It appeared the score would stay that way going into the half but Ingram sparked the Pirates to a late score to give them the lead at the half. With first and ten at the ECU 41, Ingram scrambled around the right end for 12 yards, then three plays later on third and four on the USL 41, he hit Blue for five yards and a first down.

The Pirate drive stalled, however, when Greg Stewart, who had replaced Ingram, threw incomplete on third and four at the USL 30. Bushbeck's 47-yard field goal — one yard off the ECU school record — was long enough, but faded to the left.

However, a penalty for too many men on the field against the Ragin' Cajuns gave the Pirates a first down at the 15, and Stewart hit Norwood Vann over the middle from there. Vann outwrestled USL defensive back Clayton Jones for the ball in the end zone with 23 seconds to go.

Buckbeck's kick made it 14-10 at the end of the half.

"I thought the big play was when they had 12 men on the field and they called it (the penalty)," Emory said. "It may have been the only call we got all night, but we came back and made a big play to score.

"I'm just as happy as hell to get out of here with our teeth and a win. That four-point win is just beautiful to us."

insurance runs in the Los Angeles' four-run ninth inning.

Saturday's game had been a pitchers duel beween hard-luck Bill Gullickson of Montreal and Hooton, who got win with relief help from right-hander Bob Welch with one out in the eighth inning, and left-hander Steve Howe, who worked the ninth. Hooton allowed all five Montreal hits.

Gullickson struck out Bill Russell to open the Dodger eighth, then

That brought up Garvey, the Dodgers' veteran first baseman and one of baseball's top clutch hitters. He hit Gullickson's first pitch over the left-field fence for his first home run of the series to put the Dodgers in front 3-1 and send the series into the showdown game.

Hooton, who won 11 and lost six with a 2.28 earned run average during the regular season, won the first game in this series, 5-1, also working 71-3 innings. He appeared to be in control of his second win, using his key pitch, a knuckle curve, to work out of tough spots. Then in the eighth, the Expos knocked him out.

Rodney Scott started with a single to center, but was forced as Andre Dawson hit into a fielder's choice. Then Gary Carter singled to center, Dawson stopping at second.

That brought out Los Angeles manager Tom Lasorda, who summoned Welch.

Welch did the job. He struck out Larry Parrish swinging and got Jerry White, whose three-run home won Friday night's game, to fly out to center, ending the inning.

The Dodgers, after threatening in the first two innings, reached Gullickson for an unearned run in the third.

Russell was safe when third baseman Parrish fielded his grounder, but threw into the dirt at first and Warren Cromartie could not hold on to the ball.

Baker then doubled into the left field corner, scoring Russell for a 1-0 lead.

Montreal tied it in the fourth, also with an unearned run. Carter reached first with one out when third baseman Ron Cey bobbled his grounder.

After Parrish fouled out, White walked. Cromartie, hitting .167 in the series, then singled, scoring Carter.

White reached third on the hit, and Cromartie took second on the throw to the plate. Chris Speier was intentionally walked, loading the bases. But Gullickson took a third strike, and Hooton was out of the inning.

Gullickson worked out of a big jam in the sixth. Baker opened with a walk and raced to third on a single by Garvey.

The Expos' gutty right-hander got Cey to ground to Parrish at third. He threw home to get Baker despite the runner smashing hard into catcher Carter.

Then Gullickson brought the crowd to its feet by striking out Rick Monday and Pedro Guerrero to preserve the tie.

The Dodgers wrapped it up in the ninth as many in a crowd of 54,499 starting filing out of Olympic Stadium.

Steve Yeager, who had come to catch in the eighth, started the ninth with a single. He advanced to second on a bunt single by Derrel Thomas. The runners were sacrificed ahead by Davey Lopes. Russell was intentionally walked, loading the bases.

Baker then singled home two runs to make it 5-1.

Bucs Top Richmond

RICHMOND, Va. — East Carolina gained a 4-2 soccer victory over the University of Richmond Saturday as four different Pirates put the ball into the nets.

East Carolina goals were scored by Tom Lawrence, Dwayne Degaetano, Brian Winchell and Mark Hardy. Degaetano's goal was unassisted, but the other three came on assists by Bill Merwin — the three a new school record for assists in a single game.

Goalie Steve Brown, back in action following an eye injury, recorded eight saves. Richmond's two goalies had seven saves between them. East Carolina took 15 shots on the goal, while the Spiders took eight.

The victory boosts the Pirates to 4-7-1 on the season, while Richmond is now 1-9.

"We worked the ball well, made two mental mistakes on defense which cost us two goals, but we played better as a team," Coach Brad Smith said.

Second Half Carries Rose By Kinston

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Rose High School, after struggling through its worst performance of the year in the first half, rallied behind the running of Roderick Harrell, Roger Williams and Jeff Ferrell to pull out a 13-7 victory over defensive-minded Kinston Friday night.

"That first half had to be our worst of the year," Coach Ronald Vincent said of that period's play. "But we sure came back and did the job the second half."

Rose, held to only 42 yards rushing in the first half, came out and had that much only five plays into the second half. Rose finished the game with 177 yards rushing and passed for 78 more.

Chris McLawhorn scored the first Rampant touchdown, on a 10-yard reverse, while Harrell dashed 20 yards for the second — the one that meant the game.

Kinston's lone touchdown was a two-yard plunge by Donnail Howell in the second period. Steve Lovick kicked the Viking PAT, while Willie Levett was good on one of two for Rose.

The Rampants used fine ball control in the second half to great advantage. The Rampants held it 15:08 as compared to Kinston getting it only 8:52 — nearly half as long.

"Their defense was just as tough as I thought it would be," Vincent said of the Vikings, who haven't been beaten badly all year. Their worst loss was a 20-0 licking by Jacksonville — a game in which they fumbled it away five times in Cardinal territory.

In comparison, Kinston fumbled only once, and recovered that one, and it came late in the game.

The contest was Rose's Homecoming game, and Vincent felt that the function played a role in the team's first half performance. "I think we got caught up in Homecoming," he said. "We warned them all week, but I don't think it really sunk in until halftime. There were just so many distractions.

"But I'm really tickled with the way they came back in the second half. Roderick, Roger and Jeff all ran the ball very well," the coach added.

But it could have been a fine leaping catch between two defenders that really saved the day. That catch, by Edward Frazier, allowed Rose to gain a first down on third and eight down to the Kinston 39, a gain of 13 yards. It helped set up the second and deciding Rampant touchdown.

"We had some words at halftime," Vincent admitted. "We got some blocking adjustments straight and we got some minds readjusted."

Whatever it was, it worked.

Kinston, a team known for its lack of offensive punch, had 125 yards in total offense at the half, as compared to just 78 for the Rampants. Rose was also hurting itself with three big 15 yards penalties, two for personal fouls and one for illegal use of hands.

Rose had the chance early to get something going, taking over on the Kinston 45 after a punt. But after picking up a first down at the 32, Donnell Lee, back after missing three games with a broken hand, fumbled on his first carry, and Kinston had the ball back.

It was the game's only turnover.

A couple of plays later, a wierd situation caused the officials some embarrassment. Kinston had third and seven from the 36, and on the play, quarterback Bo Kintz picked up two yards.

The officials threw several flags, then marched off 15 yards against Rose for a late hit. Then, after conferring, they marched off 15 against Kinston for a clip. After another conference, they decided they had done it wrong, and moved the ball back 15 more yards, then marched it back upfield 15. Actually, the clip should have been enforced first, then the dead ball late hit — the officials third and fourth moves.

But, before the clip was first marked off, the chains were moved. The officials finally spotted the ball on the 40, two yards off the spot, and put the chains down indicating third down, with the series starting from the 39, six yards off the mark. Instead of third and three, it became third and nine.

Kinston failed to convert and punted.

Rose, taking over on its 35, moved the ball back down field, helped along by a 17-yard reception of a Barry Smith pass by Randy Warren. But Rose only reached the Kinston 42 before having to punt it away.

Kinston, taking over on its own 17, launched an 83-yard, 13-play touchdown drive that staked the Vikings to a 7-0 halftime lead.

Kintz went to flanker Mike Pittman three times on the drive, for 8, 17 and 17 yards. Howell picked up 15 yards on burst over right tackle to the Rose 19, and then took a screen pass from Kintz to the six. He then barrelled over from the two on fourth and goal with 10:52 left in the half. Lovick's kick made it 7-0.

Rose came back to drive down field, but a 15-yard penalty shoved the Rampants back across midfield, and they were unable to advance again.

In the second half, however, it was a different Rampants team on the field. Rose took the opening kickoff and marched 73 yards to tie it up.

Williams burst through the middle for 13 yards on first down, then he and Harrell added seven and six respectively. Williams came back for six, and after a five-yard penalty, Harrell got a first down at the Viking 36 on a 10-yard gallop.

Facing third and eight, Smith went to Chris McLawhorn for 14 yards to the 20, and then on third and eight again, Smith scrambled for ten yards to the eight. Rose lost two yards on first down, but McLawhorn then got the ball on the end around, and waltzed all alone into the end zone. Levett's kick knotted it at 7-7 with 5:57 left in the third period.

Rose, after holding, got it back in good field position at the Kinston 48, but picked up only one first down before failing by a yard to gain a first down at the 31.

Early in the fourth period, however, Rose got it back on a punt at the Rampant 31. On first down, Smith hit McLawhorn on a slant for 15 yards. Three plays later, he hit Frazier for 13 and a key first down at the Vike 39. Harrell broke free for 13 yards, then he and Williams each added three yards.

On third and four from the 20, Harrell broke over the middle and shook off several Vike defenders, finally pushing over the last man to make it into the end zone, and Rose led, 13-7 with 8:25 left to play.

Levett's kick was off the mark, leaving the door open for the Vikings.

Kinston did put on a threat, moving the ball from the 31 to the Rose 42 before Kintz failed on three straight pass attempts, the last just knocked away by Cornelius Moore.

And although Rose failed to pick up a first down to help run down the clock, the Rampant defense again held and that was it.

The victory boosted the Rampant record to 6-1 overall and 3-1 in Big East Conference play. Kinston falls to 1-5-1 overall and 1-3 in the league.

Rose travels to Wilson Fike next Saturday night, while Kinston is host to Northern Nash on Friday.

Roanoke Surprises

TARBORO — Roanoke High School, in one of the more stunning upsets of the year, knocked off Tarboro, 8-7, Friday night in a 3-A Northeastern Conference battle. It was the first loss of the season for Tarboro against conference competition. The only other Viking loss came at the hands of 4-A Rocky Mount.

The contest was a defensive one, although Tarboro was able to move the ball around in the middle of the field. The Redskins, however, got stingy when it came to the end zone.

Tarboro took a 7-0 lead in the second period, with Punchie Laws broke away and dashed 86 yards for the only Viking score. Robert Andrews kicked the PAT to give Tarboro a 7-0 lead at halftime.

In the third period, after getting the ball on a Tarboro punt, the Redskins got off on their scoring drive. Rick Hines capped it off, pulling in a 28-yard pass from Angelo Spruill, drawing Roanoke within one point of the Vikings.

Spruill then hit Lee Briley for the two-point conversion that allowed Roanoke to pull off the upset.

Tarboro still had one last chance, recovering a Roanoke fumble at the Redskin 25 with 2:29 left in the contest. After reaching the five-yard line, however, the Redskin defense held the Vikings and turned over the ball on downs, preserving the big victory.

The win raised the Roanoke record to 6-2 overall and 4-2 in the Northeastern. Tarboro drops to 5-2 overall and is 4-1 in the league.

Falcons Slip By Jaguars

FARMVILLE — Charles B. Aycock's Ken Grantham scored two touchdowns and intercepted three passes to stall Farmville Central's upset hopes Friday night as the unbeaten Falcons pulled out a 21-6 victory.

Grantham's early fourth period interception killed a Farmville drive for a score that could have put the Jaguars into the lead, and Grantham's second score, just seconds later, put the game on ice for the Falcons.

The 21 point total for Aycock was its lowest of the year in seven games, including two against 4-A teams.

Grantham got the scoring started in the first period, capping a 54-yard drive following a Farmville punt. Grantham went over from the one with 3:41 left in the first period and Paul Thomas' boot made it 7-0.

Farmville came back, also on a 54-yard drive to score in the second period. Calvin Tyson went in from two yards out, but the extra point kick was blocked, leaving Aycock with a 7-6 lead that lasted until the final quarter.

Farmville, driving toward pay dirt, had Grantham intercept a pass at the Aycock 27, and a few plays later, he broke loose on offense, going 62 yards for the touchdown that spelled the end for the Jaguars. He also ran over the two-point conversion to make it 15-6 with 10:52 left in the game.

Late in the period, Farmville fumbled at its own ten, and Aycock turned that into the final score of the game. Thomas passed the final four yards to J.L. Gurley for the score, making it 21-6.

The loss dropped Farmville to 4-4 on the year and 1-3 in Eastern Carolina play. Aycock is now 7-0 overall and 3-0 in the league.

Claims Runners To Get Payment For Marathon

NEW YORK (AP) — Secret payments to runners will be offered at the New York Marathon next week, according to a published report.

The New York Times said in its Saturday editions that according to coaches of many of the top runners as many as the first 12 men finishers and top 10 women will be given under-the-table payments. First prize for the men in the Oct. 25 event would be $14,000, with $9,000 going to the top woman, the Times said.

Fred Lebow, director of the race and president of the New York Road Runners Club which administers the marathon, denied that any money other than normal expenses would be paid.

"The New York Marathon is not giving any up-front money and I personally know of no prize-money payments that will be paid," said Lebow.

The Times noted that Lebow had no alternative but to deny the payments in order to protect the amateur status of the participants in the marathon.

But the newspaper made no mention of who would make the payments, though it did say that Adidas, a leading running-shoe company, had offered $5,000 in bonuses in secret contract agreements with world-class runners.

Lebow said he heard that a shoe company had agreed to pay a sizable amount of money to a collegiate runner if he led for part of the race while wearing the company's T-shirt. Lebow said another company asked to place a video camera at the finish line to note the brands of shoes the finishers were wearing. Lebow rejected that request.

"We're definitely concerned about potential abuses," he said. "The toughest competition these days is between the shoe companies."

ABC will televise the race, which is principally sponsored by Perrier, Manufacturers Hanover Trust and the Rudin family.

White Oak Romps To Victory Over Conley

JACKSONVILLE — Charlie Soos passed for one touchdown and ran for another as White Oak rolled to a 35-6 victory over D.H. Conley in a Coastal Conference football game Friday night.

White Oak scored twice in the first period to put the game away. First, Brian Baquer ran back the first Viking punt 85 yards for a touchdown and Tony Field kicked the PAT. Then, minutes later, Ivery Meadows went into the end zone from six yards away and Field's kick made it 14-0.

White Oak picked up two more scores in the second quarter. First, Soos raced 15 yards for one, then passed 44 yards to Lester Mattocks for the other. Field added the PAT after the first, and Jason Crisp took a pass from Richard Sloan for a two-point conversion after the second score. That upped the White Oak lead to 29-0 at the half.

The final score, in the third period, came on a 17-yard run by Isreal Meadows.

Steven King got Conley on the scoreboard in the final quarter, intercepting a White Oak pass and returning it 87 yards for the score.

Ivery Meadows led the White Oak offense, rushing 22 times for 198 yards.

Conley drops to 1-6 on the year, and is 0-2 in Coastal play. White Oak climbs to 5-2 overall and to 2-0 in the league.

Conley returns home to host North Lenoir next Friday.

Ayden-Grifton Rolls To Victory Over Panthers

BETHEL — Ayden-Grifton High School got two touchdowns from Cleveland Coley as the Chargers rolled to a 35-16 victory over North Pitt Friday night, spoiling Homecoming for the Panthers.

The two teams battled through a scoreless first period before Gregory Jackson pulled in a nine-yard pass from quarterback Bernard Ricciarelli for the opening Charger touchdown and a 6-0 lead.

Later in the period, Coley got his first score, dashing 46 yards on the play. Ricciarelli passed to Chris Strickland for the PAT, and Ayden-Grifton led, 14-0.

The Chargers added a third touchdown in the third period, as Coley again did the honors, this time on a nine-yard run. Jackson added a two-point run and the Charger lead climbed to 22-0.

Two more Ayden-Grifton scores came in the final quarter. Ricciarelli passed nine yards to Strickland for the first, with Joey Kennedy kicking the PAT, and then Kennedy scored on a 24-yard pass from Doug Coley, closing out the A-G scoring.

North Pitt then salvaged some respect, scoring twice in the final minute of play. Michael Battle scored on an 18-yard run with Greg Briley running over the PAT. Just seconds after the kickoff, the Chargers fumbled, and North Pitt recovered. Ricky Hines then pulled in a 45-yard pass from Ken Whitehurst for the score and Briley again ran over the PAT, cutting it to the final 35-16 margin.

Jackson led the A-G rushing with 123 yards on 14 carries, while Coley had 109 yards on 11 trips with the ball.

The victory boosted the Ayden-Grifton record to 5-2 overall and 3-i in the Eastern Carolina Conference. North Pitt slumps to 2-6 overall and 0-4 in the conference.

DCH Hosts Lejeune

The match will be held in the Conley gym starting at 5 p.m.

Conley went through the regular season unbeaten, and moves into the state playoffs for the third straight year. Last year, the Valkyries advanced to the second round, their best advance, before losing to West Carteret. Conley, now a member of the Coastal Conference, eliminated West Carteret this year during the regular season.

Midway's Quick Rallies Gun Down Jamesville

DUNN — Danny Lane and Tommy Fann teamed up to account for four touchdowns as 2-A Midway High School rolled to a 35-12 victory over Class A Jamesville Friday night.

Lane scored once and threw to Fann for three touchdowns as Midway never allowed the Bullets to get anywhere in the game.

Lane scored the first Midway touchdown in the first period on a three-yard run. Tom Jackson, who kicked after each score, added the extra point.

Lane hooked up with Fann for a 51-yard bomb in the second period, raising the score to 14-0.

But the Bullets came right back, as Matthew Moore went 85 yards on the first play from scrimmage after the kickoff. That cut the lead to 14-6.

But Jamesville had little time to enjoy its comeback. On the first play after the kickoff, Midway got into the end zone once more. Running the same play it had scored on just seconds earlier, Fann again pulled in a Lane pass, this one of 60 yards and the lead blossomed to 21-6 and held the rest of the half.

On the final play of the third period, Jamesville got back on the scoreboard, as Stanley Lilley pushed in from a yard out, triming the lead to 21-12.

But again, Midway countered, scoring on the first play of the fourth quarter, as Glenn Warren ran back the kickoff, 85 yards. Fann and Lane teamed up once more in the late stages of the game on a seven-yard pass, closing out the scoring.

Jamesville falls to 3-5 overall, while Midway is now 3-4. The Bullets return to Tobacco Belt Conference play on Friday, October 30, hosting Creswell.

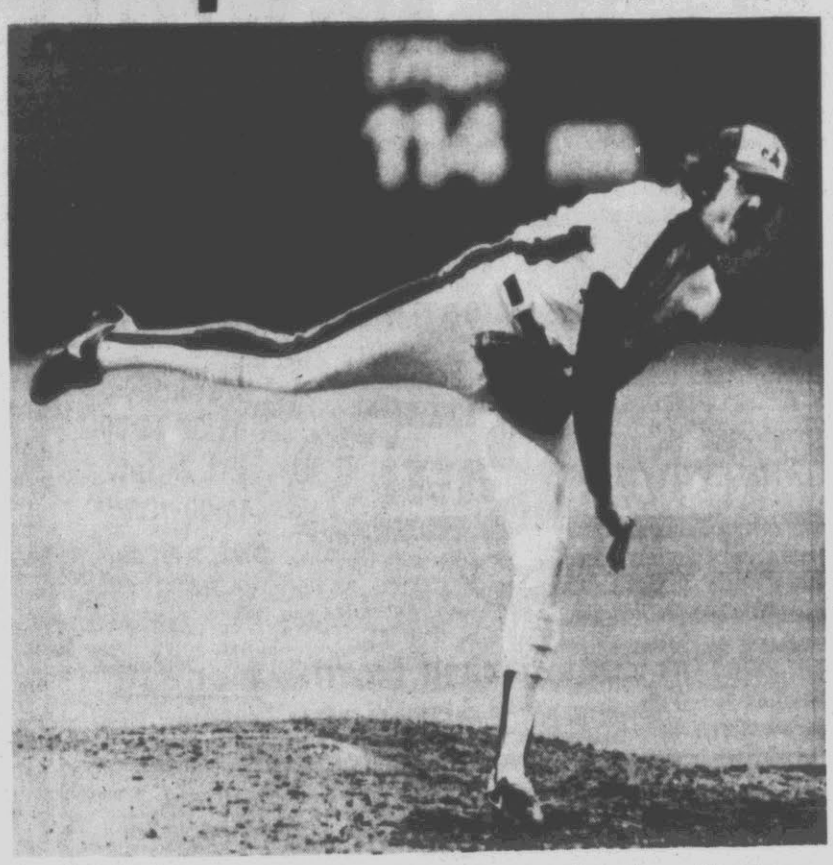
Expos Quiet As They Near NL's Flag



Letting Loose
Montreal Expos' pitcher Steve Rogers follows through on a pitch in the late innings of Friday's National League playoff game with the Los Angeles Dodgers in Montreal. Rogers got the win as the Expos pulled out a 4-1 victory on a three-run homer by Jerry White in the eighth inning. The Expos led the Dodgers, 2-1, after the game. (AP Laserphoto)

MONTREAL (AP) — The Montreal dressing room was relatively quiet considering the Expos were just one game away from their first National League pennant.

They had just defeated the Los Angeles Dodgers, 4-1, and taken a 2-1 lead in the best-of-five series for the National League championship.

But there weren't any stereo tape decks blaring. There was music but it was subdued.

The Expos appeared to agree with Manager Jim Fanning's postgame remark Friday night that the series was far from over.

Fanning hadn't forgotten that Montreal led Philadelphia two games to none, and had to go five to win the NL East Division playoff miniseries. And he surely hadn't forgotten that Los Angeles won three straight after losing the first two West Division series games to Houston.

Fanning perferred to talk about the two key players in the victory — outfielder Jerry White and pitcher Steve Rogers.

White hit a three-run homer in the sixth that snapped a 1-1 tie, and Rogers tossed a seven-hitter for his third postseason triumph — two in the miniseries with Philadelphia.

What kind of pitch was White looking for from Jerry Reuss when the count went to 2-1 with two outs and two runners on base?

"He (Reuss) has pitched me down and in since I've been facing him," said White. He had been coming up to the last few batters, so I was looking for a pitch up and in.

"I got it and hit it out."

Did White think the drive down the left field line was out of the stadium?

"No, I was just trying to hit it good...When I saw Dusty (Baker) turn his back, I thought it was either out or off the wall."

White is kidded by his teammates about not being a power hitter.

"Yeah, they get on me a little bit," said the switch-hitting utility outfielder. "They've been calling me the 'Toy Cannon.'"

White, who batted just .218 during the season, hit only three home runs, and two were game-winners.

"It just sort of happens," he said.

Rogers rated his performance fair.

"I had a good sinker and I was able to get a lot of ground balls. My curve was only fair," said the right-hander.

How did he feel in the ninth when the first two Dodgers singled and Fanning walked to the mound?

"Not real good. Normally when a manager comes out at that time, you're gone..."

But Fanning said he had no intention of relieving Rogers.

"Jim (Fanning) just told me he wanted me to slow down a little," Rogers said.

"I just patted him on the back," said Fanning, "asked if he was all right. He said 'OK.' I had enough confidence in Rogers. He had good stuff left.

"He's a money pitcher," Fanning added. "The evidence is on the table. It's difficult to describe how he's pitched."

Plunkett Sitting On Bench As Oakland Tries To Get Going

By The Associated Press

Just about a year ago, a quarterback named Jim Plunkett began a National Football League odyssey that would wind up with him leading the Oakland Raiders to the world championship.

Today, that same Jim Plunkett will be sitting on the Raiders' bench, watching a second-year quarterback named Marc Wilson call signals for the suddenly scoreless Super Bowl titlists, who host the Tampa Bay Buccaneers.

The Raiders have been shut out the last three weeks and their 2-4 record places them fourth in the American Conference West. The last team to be blanked three weeks in a row was the 1943 Brooklyn Dodgers.

"After a while, you start wondering if you'll ever get in the end zone," said Wilson, who'll be making his first start in the NFL. "Then you start pressing."

Oakland has gained a total of 529 yards in the losses to Detroit, Denver and Kansas City. And the Bucs, who are 4-2 and tied with Minnesota for the top spot in the National Conference Central Division, have allowed a total of 30 points in their last three contests — all wins.

"The Raiders still have a good football team, with many outstanding players," said Bucs Coach John McKay. "Their streak just shows that anything can happen in this league."

On Monday, it will be Chicago at Detroit.

While the Raiders are on a roll backwards, the Philadelphia Eagles and Minnesota Vikings are two of the hottest teams in the NFL. The defending NFC champion Eagles are the league's only unbeaten team and they'll put their 6-0 record on the line against the Vikings, who have overcome an 0-2 start with four consecutive victories.

"I'm very excited about being 6-0," said Eagles Coach Dick Vermeil. "It's the first time the Ealges have ever been 6-0 and now we have an opportunity and a challenge to go 7-0.

The Vikings edged San Diego 33-31 last week on Rick Danmeier's field goal as time ran out. That doesn't make them any more comfortable about playing Philadelphia.

"I guess you'd have to call this out of the frying pan and into the fire," said Minnesota Coach Bud Grant.

Washington lost its first five games before finally reaching the win column last week against Chicago. But the Redskins have the uneviable task of traveling to Miami to play a Dolphins team that lost its first game last Monday night.

"It's important to move forward and not fall back," said Washington Coach Joe Gibbs. "This is the third Super Bowl-type team we're playing.

Dodgers, Two Down, Know Their Position

MONTREAL (AP) — The Los Angeles Dodgers, in a foreign country, are in a familiar position.

They need to win one game to survive. They need to win two games to move into the World Series against the New York Yankees.

They lost 4-1 to Montreal Friday night and now trail the Expos 2-1 in the National League Championship series, precariously close to elimination.

Lose again Saturday and their post-season voyage will be over.

"It's simple mathematics," shouted Dodger Manager Tommy Lasorda when the "backs-to-the-wall" question was posed once too often.

"We have to win. There's no way we can lose and stay in this thing."

It was a truism, but not unfamiliar.

Ten days ago, the same thing was true for thm. They had lost two in a row to Houston. They needed to win each game to survive. And they survived.

Now they are here, in Canada, which had never before hosted a post-season baseball game, in Canada, where the weather is brisk, the fans exhuberant and loud about their beloved Expos.

The temperature of 46 degrees Friday night made the evening like a Los Angeles summer compared to the times when they have to clear ice from the field with a blow torch.

"I didnt think it was too cold," said Lasorda. Nobody complained. It was a nice evening."

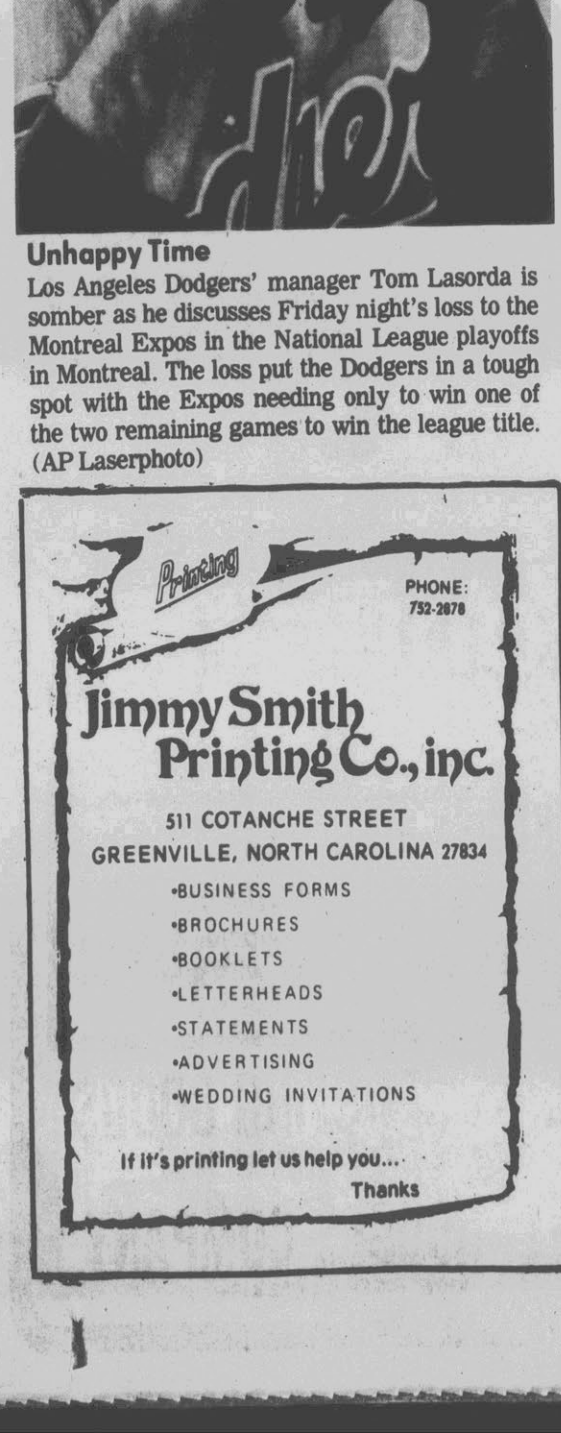
Lasorda had just one gripe. His players did not hit in the clutch.

"We had scoring chances, we just couldn't do it."

"You can't win when you score just one run in two games," he said, referring to the Dodgers' 3-0 loss in Los Angeles and this one.

"This was a pivotal ball game," he continued. "We'll beat them tomorrow."

Pitcher Jerry Reuss had given up just three hits through five innings when the roof caved in.



Unhappy Time
Los Angeles Dodgers' manager Tom Lasorda is somber as he discusses Friday night's loss to the Montreal Expos in the National League playoffs in Montreal. The loss put the Dodgers in a tough spot with the Expos needing only to win one of the two remaining games to win the league title. (AP Laserphoto)

Pistons Let Koonce Go

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — The Detroit Pistons on Friday asked waivers on rookie guard Donnie Koonce and two-year veteran Keith Herron, reducing their preseason roster to 13, a National Basketball Association team spokesman said.

Koonce, who played at North Carolina-Charlotte, was the Pistons' fourth-round draft choice in this summer's college player draft.

Herron was told last week that he would not make the 1981-82 Pistons and the NBA club unsuccessfully tried to trade him, said team spokesman Bill Kreifeldt. If Herron is not claimed by another team or doesn't sign as a free agent, Kreifeldt said the 6-foot-7 guard-forward plans to play in Italy.

The Pistons must make one more cut by Oct. 28. They open the season Oct. 30 against the Milwaukee Bucks.

Montreal Tops Dodgers; One To Go

MONTREAL (AP) — They have flirted with this fantasy before, but never has the affair gotten quite so serious.

The young, enthusiastic Montreal Expos stood on the threshold of their first-ever pennant Saturday and sent right-hander Bill Gullickson out to nail down the flag against the Los Angeles Dodgers' Burt Hooton.

Montreal moved into position to pop the champagne corks with a 4-1 victory over the Dodgers Friday night, taking a 2-1 lead in the best-of-five series.

But Manager Jim Fanning was playing it cool, following the axiom of that noted baseball philosopher, Yogi Berra, who once observed, "It ain't over till it's over."

"There's still a long way to go," said Fanning after Jerry White's three-run homer had backed the courageous seven-hit pitching of Steve Rogers on a chilly night more suited to football than baseball.

"Remember, we needed one more in Philadelphia and we couldn't get it the first day and we couldn't get in the second day," said Fanning, recalling the National League East Division playoffs against the Phillies. "We had to do it the third day."

Fanning also knows that the Dodgers came off the deck against Houston, sweeping three straight to win the National League West against the Astros after they had lost the first two games of that series. But he believes in his team.

"This team was so close in 1980 and so close in 1979," said Fanning. "Basically, it's the same team. They have developed the ability to bounce back in tough situations. That quality makes for a championship team."

The Expos were eliminated on the final day of the season in 1979 when East Division rival Pittsburgh went on to win the World Championship.

In 1980, they went to the next-to-last day before losing the division crown to Philadelphia. And, of course, the Phillies also went on to win the World Series. The Expos figure they've paid their dues. They want their championship, now.

"They deserve the game ball," Rogers said of his teammates. "We are a team in the true sense of the word. Everyone has to contribute. We don't usually win with big-run innings. We win by making the plays in the field and that's what we did tonight."

But they also won with a big-run inning, stunning Jerry Reuss with a four-run sixth and scoring all the runs after two men were out.

The Dodgers had nicked Rogers for a run in the fourth on singles by Dusty Baker and Steve Garvey and an RBI-grounder by Ron Cey. Reuss, unscored upon in post-season play, was cruising along and retired the first two Expos in the sixth when Andre Dawson singled. Then Gary Carter walked and Larry Parrish drilled a single to left, scoring Dawson with the tying run.

Pitching Coach Ron Perranoski visited the mound and that gave White, the next hitter, some time to think about the situation.

"He's been pitching me down and getting me out that way since I've been facing him," White said. "But he had been coming up on the last couple of hitters so I was hoping for something up and in."

Reuss missed with two pitches and then White got the high pitch he wanted. "It was too high," he said. The foul ball made the count 2-1. "I wanted it just a little lower."

The next pitch qualified and White sent it into the left field seats for a three-run homer. As he circled the bases with 54,372 fans roaring, White thought to himself that the way Rogers was pitching, that might just be enough to win the game. It was.

"He (Rogers) got away with some bad pitches," said Reuss, "and I got hurt on the one bad pitch I threw."

Rogers admitted that he had beaten the Dodgers on a night when he had little working for him except his sinker. "I can look back on it with a little bit of a smile, but it certainly was a lot harder work," he said. "I had a good sinker and I was able to get a lot of ground balls. My curve was only fair."

In the ninth inning, Garvey and Cey opened with singles, bringing Fanning to the mound.

"Normally when a manager comes out in that situation, you're gone," said Rogers. "But Jim told me he just wanted to slow me down a little."

Fanning had Elias Sosa and Woodie Fryman warming up in the bullpen, but Rogers was his man.

"The trip to the mound was to encourage Steve, give him a pat on the back," the manager said. "I was going to say very little."

Just as Fanning turned to go back to the dugout, he asked his pitcher the routine question, almost as an afterthought.

"You're all right, aren't you?" the low-key manager said almost casually.

"Oh, yeah," replied Rogers.

And he was, too, just as soon as third baseman Parrish turned Pedro Guerrero's shot into a rally-killing double play. It was another of the standout defensive plays that the Expos had been turning in all night long.

A moment later, Rogers finished off the Dodgers and Montreal was in position to do some celebrating, if the Expos can do it one more time.

Los Angeles Manager Tommy Lasorda took a straightforward approach to his team's situation.

"It's simple math," said Lasorda as he picked at a bowl of spaghetti in his office. "We have to win. There's no way we can lose and stay in this thing."

Then Lasorda had an observation.

"I haven't seen anybody yet who got congratulated for winning two games in a best-of-five series."

Yogi Berra couldn't have said it better.

Trinity Takes Flag Victory

Trinity Christian School downed Temple Christian School of Wilson, 32-26, in a flag football game held Friday. The two teams are members of the Baptist Christian Schools League.

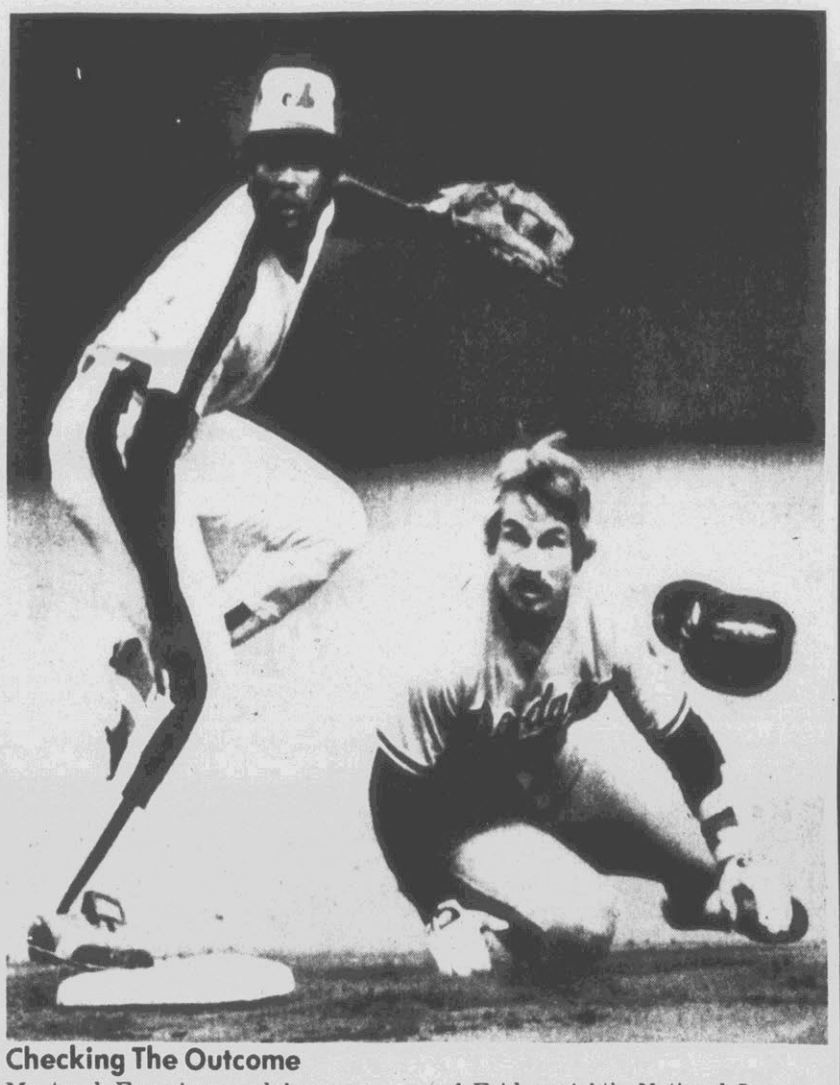
Dale Hudson scored two touchdowns to lead Trinity. Trinity is now 6-0 overall and 3-0 overall. Trinity plays again on Friday.

ASU Rally Tops ECU

East Carolina University's women, up 2-0, went down to Appalachian State in three straight games to drop a volleyball match Friday in Minges Coliseum.

The Lady Pirates won the first two games handily, 15-5, 15-8, but then allowed Appalachian State to come back and win the next three, 15-5, 15-8, and 15-5.

The loss drops the Lady Pirates to 6-17 on the year. They travel to William & Mary for their next match on Thursday.



Checking The Outcome

Montreal Expos' second baseman Rodney Scott dances over Los Angeles Dodgers' runner Ron Cey as they both watch the outcome of the double play in the second inning of Friday night's National League playoff game in Montreal. Cey was out at second and Dodger batter Pedro Guerrero was caught at first. (AP Laserphoto)

Roanoke Rapids Stings Tigers In 47-12 Northeastern Loop Win

WILLIAMSTON — Roanoke Rapids' Bobby Weisner caught two touchdown passes and ran for another as he led the Yellow Jackets to a 47-12 romp over Williamston High School Friday night.

The Tigers, now 3-4 overall and 2-3 in the Northeastern Conference, could not get anything going, and both of their touchdowns came on long plays, both by Vincent Washington.

Weisner got things started for the Yellow Jackets in the first period, scoring on a five-yard pass from Paul Carpoenter. Chuck Ward kicked the PAT for a 7-0 lead.

Roanoke Rapids then scored three times in the third period to run out to a 27-0 lead. Weisner scored again, on a one-yard run, with Ward again kicking the PAT. Jeff Smith followed that up with a two-yard scoring run, with Ward again kicking. William Wollett, who rushed 20 times for 172 yards during the evening, got the final Roanoke Rapids score of the half on a 13-yard run.

Williamston finally got on the scoreboard late in the half as Washington pulled in a 63-yard pass from Jonathan Runion. That cut it to 27-6 at halftime.

In the third period, Roanoke Rapids added two more scores. Carpenter scored from a yard away and Fitz Usserry scored on a three-yard run with Ward kicking after both. That raised it to 41-6.

Williamston's final touchdown came in the third period as Washington broke away for 38 yards.

The final score of the evening came on a three-yard pass from Carpenter to Weisner.

Roanoke Rapids is now 5-2 on the year and 4-2 in the conference.

Williamston travels to Roanoke on Friday, while Roanoke Rapids is host to Currituck in a non-conference game.

Endrin Pesticide Contamination — State officials will be responsbile for deciding whether to close waterfowl hunting seasons in the Central and Pacific flyways because of possible contamination of ducks and geese by the pesticide Endrin.

Although the Fish and Wildlife Service sets the broad frameworks for waterfowl hunting seasons, it will be up to each state to decide whether there is a threat to human health in its jurisdiction. The Fish and Wildlife Service will endorse any closures that the states determine are needed.

Endrin was applied to wheat in a number of Western states during March and April 1981 to kill army cutworms.

At this time, very little is known about Endrin and its possible effects on waterfowl.

Previous research on Endrin indicates that is is generally not accumulated to very high levels in waterfowl tissues. At the present time the problem rests on the levels of Endrin waterfowl are being exposed to. The seriousness of the situation cannot be determined until test results come out of the research labs at Patuxent, Maryland.

As of this writing most of the states affected were waiting for the lab reports before making their decision on season closures.

As a footnote, Ducks Unlimited, Inc., recently pledged a $25,000 grant to Montana's Fish and Game Department to fund additional research on the use of the pesticide Endrin and its effect on man, wildlife and their environment.

Texasgulf, Inc., of Aurora — last week had its second contaminated spill into the Pamlico River within three months. This time it was approximately 1,000 gallons of sulfuric acid that accidentally flowed into the Pamlico. At the present time, Texasgulf is nearing completion on the world's largest sulfuric acid plant at the Aurora site.

Some of you may ask why I bring this information up in an Outdoor Column. The answer is simple if you have any foresight into the future.

At the rate Texasgulf is dumping unnatural products (by accident) into the river (which incidentally empties into one of the world's largest inland bodies of water, the Pamlico Sound) there might come a day when all aquatic life ceases to exist in the Pamlico. If that day comes there will be little need of a fishing report. It's worth thinking about.

Aquafest Bluefish Tournament — sponsored by the Morehead City Jaycees will be held October 28, 29, 30, 31. Registration and rules are available from Dobey Burroughs (919-726-1846). Entry fees of $50 per boat or $25 per person, pier of surf fishing is due by 9 p.m. October 28.

Fishing Report

Nags Head to Ocracoke — all last week the wind was blowing hard out of the northeast keeping the boars inside and the fish from biting. Very little fishing news from the outer banks this week.

Drum Inlet to Bogue Inlet — the fishing is still good on Core Banks. Flounder, snapper, blues and small trout are plentiful. King mackerel have been abundant over the last two weeks. The water temperature is continuing to drop so this might signal an early end to offshore fishing.

Inland Fishing — if you can put up with the wind the flounder are still biting around Swan Quarter. It has been too rough to fish the open sound. A lot of fishermen are now turning their interest to the fall hunting season.

Local notes — deer season (rifles and shotguns) came in Monday, October 12. Overall hunter success in surrounding counties was good. Tommy Johnson of Robersonville, Wayne Evans, Billy Clifton and Benji Doughtie of Greenville all bagged a buck on opening day.

Ali Fight Date Reset

NEW YORK (AP) — Muhammad Ali's comeback fight has been pushed back nine days, but the three-time heavyweight champion is still sure he'll beat Trevor Berbick.

"He's rough and tough, but he's slow afoot," Ali said. "I'll win. It'll be no contest. I want to be the champion for the fourth time."

Promotors announced Friday that the scheduled 10-round bout would be held in Nassau, Bahamas, Dec. 11. The bout previously had been set for the same site Dec. 2.

Ali, 39, hasn't fought since being stopped by World Boxing Council champion Larry Holmes in the 12th round Oct. 2, 1980.

James Cornelius, a spokesman for Sports Internationale Ltd., said at a Playboy Club news conference that there would no be home television or radio, only closed-circuit and cable TV.

He said seats at the Queen Elizabeth Sports Centre would be priced from $50 to $1,000. A gate of $2.3 million is expected, Cornelius said.

Both fighters will receive guarantees, but no terms were revealed.

Ali has a record of 56 wins and four losses. Berbick, 28, a native of Jamaica who lives in Halifax, Nova Scotia, has 28 victories, two losses and one draw.

In a telephone hookup from Nassau, Ali said he has been been training there for three weeks. He said he was in excellent condition and said he had undergone checkups at UCLA, the Mayo Clinic and the New York Medical Center.

Ali said when he arrived in Nassau he weighed 249 pounds. He said he weighs 236 now and plans to fight at 228-230.

Promoters also announced three other scheduled 10-round bouts on the card. They are heavyweight Scott LeDoux of Minneapolis vs. Greg Page of Louisville, Ky.; heavyweight Earnie Shavers, a former Ohioan now fighting out of Martinsville, Va., vs. Tom Prater of Belleglade, Fla., and lightweight Rodolfo Gonzalez of Mexico vs. Johnny Lira of Chicago.

Bucs Ink Madlock

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Bill Madlock has signed a six-year contract with the Pittsburgh Pirates that includes a "weight clause," and at least one team official wishes a similar poundage provision had been placed in Dave Parker's pact.

Money terms of Madlock's deal were not disclosed at Friday's news conference. The Pirates reportedly had been offering about $900,000 a year to keep him off the free-agent market.

But both sides confirmed that the third baseman, fresh off his third National League batting title, will forfeit some of his salary if he fails to stay under a certain weight. The figures weren't revealed.

"I'm glad to get it over with, and I'm looking forward to a long and successful career in Pittsburgh," said Madlock, listed at 5-foot-11 and 190 pounds.

"We're looking forward to Bill being with us and giving us the kind of leadership that is going to bring us another championship," said Pete Peterson, the Bucs' executive vice president.

The 30-year-old Madlock, who could have been eligible for next month's re-entry draft, wore a warmup suit in the Pirates' black-and-gold colors, and a reporter kiddingly asked if he were planning some jogging after the news conference to stay trim.

"I just figured they were the right colors since I'll be here for a while," Madlock said.

Earlier this month, Madlock said he wouldn't accept a weight clause.

The Pirates wanted it because of the problems they've had with Parker, who has gained at least 20-30 pounds since signing a five-year contract in 1978 that was reportedly worth $5 million.

Madlock said Friday he had changed his mind because the weight clause "is very important, not only for me but for the ball club."

Peterson said he knew of no other weight clauses involving major league players.

"I wish I would have been smart enough and thought about doing that with Dave (Parker)," said Peterson. "And that doesn't mean I'm pointing the finger especially at Dave Parker. I plan to try to do this with any player in the future who I think possibly would have a weight problem."

After winning the World Series in 1979, the Pirates have fallen from among the National League's leaders and finished this season with the fourth-worst NL record overall.

Peterson didn't specify Madlock's weight restrictions.

"There is a weight Bill will report to spring training at," said Peterson. "And there will be a weight he will leave spring training at, and there will be a weight he will maintain throughout the season."

Madlock laughed. "I can be between Kent Tekulve and Rick Reuschel," he kidded, referring to the slat-thin Pirate reliever and a beefy Reuschel, a pitcher for the New York Yankees.

Had Madlock not signed with Pittsburgh, he probably might have gotten more money as a free-agent.

"I didn't look at it that way. I don't want to play for anybody else," he said.

Mitchell Holds Lead

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Stanley Mitchell, 21, of Fitzgerald, Ga., a rookie on the professional fishing circuit, caught 6 pounds, 11 ounces of bass Friday to maintain his lead over a field of 42 fishermen after two days of the $101,000 BASS Masters Classic.

His catch of four black bass from 75-mile-long Lake Montgomery brought Mitchell's two-day catch to 11 fish weighing 22 pounds.

That gave him a three-pound lead over Harold Allen of Batesville, Miss., who caught four fish weighing 8 pounds, 3 ounces Friday for a second-place total of 19 pounds. Jack Chancellor of Phenix City, Ala., dropped to third with 5 pounds of fish Friday for a total of 17 pounds, 8 ounces.

The three-day tournament sponsored by the Bass Anglers Sportsman Society winds up Saturday with the total weight of fish caught determining the winner of the $40,000 first prize.

Rick Clunn of Montgomery, Texas, a two-time classic champion, had the day's biggest catch, three fish weighing a total of 8 pounds, 11 ounces, to move into fourth place with 17 pounds of fish. Fifth is Jerry Rhyne of Stanley, N.C., with 13 pounds, 7 ounces.

Just Like Old Times To Sluggin' Yanks

NEW YORK (AP) — The third baseman decks the rightfielder and the owner says it was just a shove. The manager shrugs it off as a day in the life of a baseball team and the rest of the team prefers to talk about the upcoming World Series.

Just another capter in the saga of the New York Yankees, baseball's traveling soap opera.

"What else is new in New York?" Yankees Manager Bob Lemon said Friday. "We can't go calmly like other clubs. We've got to have something going on."

Considering some of the past fracases on the Yankees, it would have seemed impossible to top Billy Martin and Reggie Jackson getting into a pushing match in the dugout at Fenway Park in 1977. Or Billy calling George Steinbrenner a convicted liar in 1978.

How about Billy punching out a marshmallow salesman? Or George hiring Billy and firing Billy — twice.

And only last week catcher Rick Cerone cursing out George the owner.

But Thursday night the Yankees succeeded in playing can you top this, taking away from their impressive destruction of Oakland and the opening of Tuesday's World Series — in which a well-rested Ron Guidry was tentatively named the starter against the survivor of the Montreal Expos-Los Angeles Dodgers National League series.

Just hours after their 4-0 victory in Oakland eliminated the A's in a three-game sweep of the American League Championship Series, Graig Nettles, whose two-out, three-run ninth-inning double sealed the victory, got his second hit of the night when, according to eyewitnesses, he nailed Jackson with a punch that flattened Mr. October at a victory celebration at an Oakland restaurant.

"Things done in anger don't last long on this club," Steinbrenner said.

And while the Yankees were winging their way back to Newark International Airport — where they wearily arrived Friday at 11:17 p.m. EDT — fans formed rings around Yankee Stadium, waiting in line for World Series tickets. And Jackson and Nettles sat together on the charter discussing the incident and patching up their differences.

The fight, which lasted only a few minutes, was triggered when some guests of Jackson's to the players and family-only gathering, sat down at a table occupied by Nettles and his wife, Ginger.

"Some people came in and sat at the table where Ginger and the kids had been sitting," Nettles said, "and Ginger said they were a little rude to her and didn't know who the people were.

"I went up and said I don't know who you people are but I hope you have a good time because you just made my family leave. And then I noticed that Reggie came and sat down there, too, so they were friends of his. And Reggie came and wanted to know what the problem was and we had a little argument, a little shoving and that was about it.

"I'm sure he feels bad about it. I feel badly about it too. ..I'm going to forget about it and I hope Reggie does, too."

"It was just a weird thing," Jackson said at the Airport. "It's something that shouldn't have happened, but did because families were involved. If we could have found each other after it happened, we could have straightened things out right then. I think we're both embarrassed and sorry about it."

"We had a very pleasant talk on the plane," Nettles said. "I'm very sorry and embarrassed."

The rest of the Yankees, naturally, downplayed the incident. Tommy John, the probable second-game pitcher in the Series, even went so far as to plead ignorant of the skirmish.

"What happened last night? All I know is we won," he said.

"I don't even know what happened," Dave Winfield chimed in as he rushed into a waiting limousine at the airport.

Nettles, who knocked in nine runs against Oakland and was named the championship series' Most Valuable Player, said that he and Jackson have no animosity for each other.

"I hope people don't try to make a thing out oflit like we're enemies," Nettles said, "because we get along fine."

The New York Post said Steinbrenner and some plainclothesmen helped break up the fight. A source who spoke to The Associated Press and an eyewitness said, contrary to what Nettles, Jackson and Steinbrenner were saying afterward, the fight was serious.

"I was sitting outside the room and heard the walls rattle and a mob of people came rushing out of the room," the source said. "No doubt there was a skirmish but I don't know if any punches were thrown."

The eyewitness, Joe Ingargiola of Bay Shore, N.Y., told Newsday: "Steinbrenner, security people and several Yankee players — Willie Randolph, Rich Gossage and Ron Guidry — tried to break it up. Steinbrenner was yelling for them to cut it out. There was a big brawl. Nettles was moved out of the private room and was taken to one side of the lobby. A few seconds later, Jackson came out while Steinbrenner was yelling to knock it off."

Ingargiola quoted Steinbrenner as saying, "We're disgracing the Yankees in front of these people and the city. Stop it now."

He recorded on tape Jackson's comment and quoted him as saying, "I ain't liked the dude (Nettles) in 10 years. I don't care. Nothing matters. I don't care if I play in the World Series. It doesn't matter to me. I don't have a contract. I can go anywhere and I'm not gonna take it no more."

The Post said after the disagreement at the table, Nettles and Jackson stepped outside the party room. Nettles was holding a bottle of beer, which Jackson slapped out of his hand, the Post said. Then Nettles reportedly knocked Jackson down with a punch to the mouth.

ALL SAVERS CERTIFICATES

Start earning high interest tax-free. Beginning October 1, 1981 and until December 31, 1982, you can invest in Peoples Bank's All Savers Certificates. All you need is a $500 minimum deposit to earn up to 70% of the current one year U.S. Treasury Bill yield. That's very high interest. But what really makes this a high yield program is the tax exempt status of your earnings.

Convert your Money Market Certificates without penalty. Peoples Bank will be glad to transfer your six month Money Market Certificates to All Savers Certificates at no charge and without penalty. With the 12 month All Savers Certificates, you'll be able to earn up to $2,000 tax-free if married and filing a joint return. If you file a single return, you may earn up to $1,000 tax-free. And all your funds are insured by FDIC.

Good through October 1981.

*Maximum effective yield
Early withdrawal will result in an interest penalty and eliminate the tax exempt status of the entire certificate.

WE'VE COOKED UP A GREAT DEAL FOR ALL SAVERS!

Some See Increased U.S. Immigration Problems

By ANNA CHRISTENSEN

NEW YORK (UPI) — Some experts say President Reagan's policy proposals may increase, rather than decrease immigration problems.

Ten million people apply for U.S. visas each year, 3,500 Mexicans cross the Texas border on 74-hour passes each month. Last year 120,000 refugees entered the country from Cuba alone. There are 3 to 6 million illegal aliens now in the United States.

Besides the pain and suffering of these immigres, the paperwork they generate is already creating a nightmare for the Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS).

Experts agree that a clear-cut immigration policy is long overdue. But critics say the Reagan administration's proposals are weak, contradictory and may engender more fraud in a system which already encourages corruption.

Admitting that "we have lost control of our borders," Reagan has proposed an immigration policy which he described as designed to maintain the open door policy this country stands for while maintaining order.

The policy proposals range from a general amnesty for the illegal aliens to the imposition of fines on employers who knowingly hire them.

Gilbert DiLucia, a New York lawyer and immigration expert, described the proposal as a "weak-kneed, band-aid approach" to the problem of policing aliens living illegally on U.S. soil.

Calling the Reagan proposal "a capitulation to the aliens," the long-time immigration attorney proposed a system of "computerized credit cards" to police illegal residents. Under the proposal, the state would require all employers to demand a green card from an alien seeking employment.

The employer would then notify immigration authorities by calling a toll-free number to verify the identification number of the green card, a system similar to the one used by a restaurant or hotel when checking an individual's credit card.

As it stands, the Reagan proposal turns employers into immigration officials, but gives them no way of verifying an alien's papers, DiLucia said. He said his system also could be applied to the problem of illegal aliens who receive welfare and unemployment benefits.

"Employer sanctions will only create more fraud" in a system that already encourages aliens to buy illegal documents rather than wait for legal residency, said Lydia Savoyka, supervisor of the Migration and Refugee Services of the U.S. Catholic Council.

Social security cards, drivers licenses and green cards, the document which affords an alien all the rights, duties and privileges of a U.S. citizen except the vote, are already easily counterfeited and bought, she said.

"There is a problem for those who stay at home and wait patiently while others cross the border illegally," Janet Graham, an INS spokeswoman, admitted.

But will granting an amnesty to those who are here illegally encourage others seeking refuge in the United States to do so legally?

"It's a beginning," was all another INS spokesman, Vern Jervis, said about the proposal.

The new system also proposes that the ceiling for immigration from Mexico and Canada be raised from 20,000 to 40,000 people annually from each country.

Also under consideration is the institution, on a trial basis, of a temporary worker status for up to 50,000 Mexicans nationals. Under this program, the aliens would be restricted in the type of work they could do, they would be ineligible for welfare, food stamps or unemployment, and would not be allowed to bring their families with them.

"What if one of them gets sick, what do we do?" asked Miss Savoyka.

"The question is, how many people can the country absorb?" she said.

"The country is going to be overrun with emmigres if something isn't done," Graham said.

"Immigration is chaos. It's frustrating, they don't have enough employees. They bounce the aliens around from place to place. It's a tragedy." said Miss Savoyka.

Her office serves as a clearing house for hundreds of thousands of aliens, legal and illegal. Her clients lack the means to hire one of numerous immigration lawyers to help them cut through the red tape.

Over 180,000 requests for political asylum reach the office per year. There is a backlog of 170,000 applications from Salvadoreans alone.

"The exclusion laws are archaic," said Miss Savoyka, referring to the 33 categories which make an individual ineligible to immigrate.

was incorporated into the law in 1965 in response to an excess of workers and national unemployment.

Under the present system, only 10 percent of those admitted to the United States can come here to work.

The list includes the insane and sexual deviants and the poor and those entering for the purpose of performing skilled or unskilled labor. Those who are likely to become "public charges" have been excluded since 1885, the point on workers

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

I heard a sermon the other week chastising those of us who sit in the back of the church when there is plenty of room up front.

The point that was made was that if we were attending a Broadway play, we'd pay scalper's prices to sit up front.

If it were a football game, we'd camp outside all night to get a front seat.

If it was a school play in which one of our children had a part, we'd kill to get a seat in the front row.

As I was sitting somewhere between the back door and the parking lot, the sermon made me very uncomfortable. Also quite defensive. It seems every single-issue group in the country is organized and has a spokesman except the back-of-the-church-sitters. Until someone comes along with their own Xerox machine, I'd like to take on the job.

People who sit in the back of the church are the most misunderstood group of people on this earth. Who knows them really?

Basically, we are humble people who believe the meek shall inherit the laat parking place . . . the one that curves around the fire hydrant. It is our penance and we accept it gratefully.

We are people of extraordinary faith who put it on the line, so to speak, and give real meaning to "The first shall be last and the last first."

We are blessed with imagination as we sit from a vantage point that shows us nothing but the backs of heads as we try to imagine if they are as reverent as we are.

We are the caring compassionate people who turn around and say, "Shhhh," when someone is making noise in the hallway and disrupting everyone. We take out stray dogs that wander in and discover they are at the wrong service.

In our humble way we keep the minister on his toes. If the sermon is of sedative quality, those in front can do nothing about it. We at the back can make a firm statement. It is called walking out.

As a back-of-the-church militant of many years, I find my group is a wonderful class of worshippers. When you're late they never judge or look disgusted when you ask them to move over. They're always ready for the collection plate because they see it coming. Through the miracle of soundthey seemingly hear what everyone else hears.

The back-of-the-church people include a lot of handicapped persons who have trouble getting into pews and need a little more room, crying babies, distraught mothers and backsliders who aren't ready for the bright lights yet.

I happen to think that's where God sits . . . most of the time.

DEAR ABBY: You have consistently urged parents to respect their children's privacy and refrain from reading their diaries and letters and from listening in on their telephone conversations. But now that so many very young kids are doing drugs, has your viewpoint changed.?

If a parent suspects that his teen-ager is into drugs, doesn't the parent have the right to violate his child's privacy to find out for sure whether his suspicions are warranted or not? And when the parent confronts the child and it becomes obvious that the child's privacy has been violated, then what?

Please comment, Abby. There are a lot of worried parents who need to know.

CONCERNED IN AMARILLO

DEAR CONCERNED: There is a vast difference between invading a teen-ager's privacy in order to read his mail or diary and attempting to learn whether or not a child is involved with drugs.

Involvement with drugs can make the difference between life and death, and parents have an obligation to learn as much as they can by whatever means possible. God will forgive them. And so will the children, eventually.

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem that I am sure is common to many parents across the entire nation. My youngest daughter, age 22, a recent graduate from Michigan State University, is living with her fiance, who is also a graduate of M.S.U.

What do I tell all of my friends when they ask me how my daughter is doing? I'm embarrassed to say that she is living with a man without being married.

NAMELESS, NATURALLY

DEAR NAMELESS: When you're asked how your daughter is doing, say, "She's fine, thank you." It's not necessary to disclose her lifestyle.

DEAR ABBY: I am the 23-year-old mother of a beautiful baby boy born out of wedlock. I dated the baby's father only a short while. (I'll call him Glen.) I was in love. Glen was in lust.

The baby is nearly a year old now and Glen has never seen him (his choice). My family has stood by me and I am grateful for their love and understanding. Glen's family does not know me or the situation. They live in another state.

I would like my son to know all his family! Apparently Glen doesn't want his family to know, but I think they have a right to.

Abby, please ask your readers if they were the baby's grandparents on the father's side, would they want to know?

I still love Glen, even if he doesn't want to know me or his child. I don't want to cause any trouble, but isn't this baby just as much his as mine? And aren't his parents just as entitled to know about their grandson as my parents?

RAISING A CHILD ALONE

DEAR RAISING: When your baby is old enough to ask, tell him his father disappeared from your life shortly after the boy was born. (That will be no lie!) And if you seriously do not want to "make trouble," let that be the story's end.

DEAR ABBY: Do you have to show your driver's license to engage in sex in the state of California?

I am a girl, 19 years old, and I met a very handsome fellow who liked me as much as I liked him. On our very first date we felt as though we had known each other all our lives. We admitted a mutual desire to become intimate, but he asked to see my driver's license first. Why? This never happened to me in Nebraska or any other state.

WONDERING IN W. HOLLYWOOD

DEAR WONDERING: He's no dummy. He wanted to be sure you were at least 18 years old, which is the legal age in California.

On The Young Side

By Lisa Wang

Seniors Bill Bost and Elizabeth Longino were two out of three nominees to be chosen as Pitt County winners in the John Motley Morehead Scholarship competition.

They appeared before the Pitt County Selection Committee Tuesday and will now advance to the district level.

This past week marked Homecoming Week at Rose and included four days of dressing up and showing school spirit. Each day was set aside for students to show their spirit; Tuesday was Bananas Day, dress any crazy way, Wednesday was Athletic Day, Thursday, Music Day, dress to suit favorite music and Friday was School Spirit Day, dress in color colors, blue, green and white.

In addition to dressing up, students enjoyed carrot cupcakes at lunch especially made for homecoming by the food services classes under Mrs. Elaine Tschetter. The students were also responsible this year for preparing a dinner of spaghetti, Italian bread and salad for the football players before the game. They prepared for 90 while the cheerleaders, who normally are in charge of getting the food, hosted and sponsored the meal.

The Homecoming Parade began its route after school Friday in the school parking lot. Floats and trucks displaying Rampant pride traveled to the downtown area.

This year the Rampants faced Kinston Vikings in the traditional football game. At half time the Homecoming Court was featured and the queen crowned. Composing the court were School Spirits, Rachel Jones, Chip Little, Sonya Morris and Barry Smith. Princesses were Michelle Darden and Jessica Perry, sophomores; junior princesses included Alice Dawkins, Harriet Morris; and seniors, Angie Atkinson, Tracy Fearrington, Sonya Morris, Phyllis Pitt, Shaela Ray and Beverly Tedder. The final event was the dance which was held at the school and music was provided by the Fabulous K's.

Cast of this year's Christmas play "Flowers for Algernon," by David Rogers, based upon the novel by Daniel Keyes, has been selected after auditions wer held earlier this month. Judges for the auditions were Mrs. Betty Topper and Drama Club Executive Board.

Membes of the cast and the parts they will be playing are: Shaun Wallace, Charlie Gordon; Mary Kate Cunningham, Alice Kinman; Chip Little, Dr. Strauss; Brian Berryman, Professor Nemur; Marc Shannon, Burt Seldon; Louise Hindmarsh, Doris; Cathy Forbes, nurse; Michael Davis, Frank; Jeanne Ingenito, Gina; Lynn Lieberman, Mrs. Donner; Pattie Murphy, Mrs. Feldman; Virginia Haskins, Mrs. Mooney; Brenda Stanton, Mrs. Nemur; Kim Lingerfelt, mother; Kevin O'Neal, father; Chuck Leggett and Jon Pringle, little Charlie; Jon Pringle, teen-age Charlie; Andrew Harris, Joe; Judy Flower, Ellen; Clarence Jenkins, Mr. Harvey; Yvonne Nadeau, Bernice; Anne Halevy, Norma; Leslie Lazzo, child Norma; Stacy Sewall, Connie; Jennifer Berryman, chairlady; Myra Clark, Jackie Walberg; Leanne Licko, Anne Walberg; and Kermit Leggett, voice from the audience.

The play will be performed Dec. 4-6.

French Club members met at Mendenhall Student Center Wednesday to see the travel film "French Riveria" presented by Robin Williams.

Today the International Club will have a potluck supper and members will bring dishes representing different countries of the world.

Life As It's Lived

By GAIL MICHAELS

Love is dangerously overrated in our society. This is surprising because the word, love, is so over used. We love our spouses, our parents and our children. We also love that Cover Girl look, denture cream and Jello Instant Pudding.

One would think that this overuse would tend to make love seem trivial. But it doesn't. Although we moderns may invest our concept of love with more overt passion and female aggressiveness, we cherish essentially that one romantic fairy tale ideal found in "Cinderella" and "Snow White." After Prince Charming rescues his beloved and carries her off to his castle in the sky, neither lover is ever again troubled with poverty, dire diesase, in-laws, ring-around-the-collar or hemorrhoids.

At least in fairy tales these happy endings were reserved only for royalty. Cinderella may have worn rags, but she was originally the daughter of a wealthy nobleman. And Snow White, of course, was a princess. Spiritually, they were far above the common folk whose lot they were forced to share only temporarily. The peasantry knew well enough that whereas marriage marked the end of Cinderella's troubles, it initiated many of their own.

Nowdays, however, democratic idealism demands that we have amorous as well as political equality. Love is supposed to be as easy and at the same time as euphoric for us as for maidens of yore. We may not get it with a dance and a kiss, but it's there for the asking and for the couple who shares Harvey's Bristol Creme, Clorets, and Coke. Coke makes you feel good. So, implies the commercial, does love.

And it does, sometimes, but not all of the time. Love never has prevented morning sickness or postpartum blues. It may palliate them occassionally, but it doesn't prevent them. And if that sweet, vulnerable creation of our own doesn't herald endless joy, how much less does a grown man who has a penchant for leaving his dirty socks in the middle of the living room carpet?

That's why overrating love is so dangerous. To be truly meaningful love is, or should be, mundane as well as romantic. Not only is it supposed to hold two people together through the wedding festivities, but it's supposed to sustain them through colds, snoring and inflation. The traditional marriage ceremony recognizes this. For richer, for poorer, in sickness and in health two people take each other, and the minister might as well add for uncapped toothpast tubes, charred suppers and poker night. Romantic love alone will not prevent a couple from coming to blows over whether or not little Johnny deserves a spanking for scraping his English peas into the air vent. Only love tempered with tolerance can do that.

Tolerance for different ideas and different personalities. Tolerance for his insistence on leaving the house lit up like the Chicago fire. Tolerance for her long distance phone bills to her mother. Tolerance for his refusal to empty the catbox more than once a month. Tolerance for her coffee rings on the morning paper.

Tolerance for the unpacked suitcase and the stack of clothes topping his dresser like an ancient Doric column. And tolerance for well, let's face it, wives have fewer weaknesses than husbands.

Sure, love is grand. But it's tolerance which rekindles it when he's half an hour late for her dinner party and she's in a panic over vision of him upended somewhere in a ditch and a barely supressed belief that it's his just desserts for insisting on going to that stupid football game in the first place.

Yes, love may, in the final analysis, make the world go round, but tolerance keeps it on its axis.

Pension 'Right' Loses Believers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The number of Americans who believe they have a right to an adequate pension upon retirement has declined significantly in the past six years. In a recent survey the American Council of Life Insurance food only 66 percent agreed entirely that everyone is entitled to an adequate pension at retirement age — regardless of ability to pay. The comparable figure in 1974 was 82 percent.

A Love Of Trees, Wood, And Tools Shown In Woodcraft Book

The Woodwright's Shop. A Practical Guide to Traditional Woodcraft. By Roy Underhill. Chapel Hill. The University of North Carolina Press. 1981. 197 pages, paper, illustrated. $11.95.

In his book, "The Woodwright's Shop," Roy Underhill has skillfully framed more than 340 interesting photographs around a friendly, conversational style of writing. Roy loves wood — trees — and ancient tools powered only by muscle, bone, and the patient mind of an historical disciplinary.

He takes you straight to a forest of hardwood. Black and white photographs of chestnut, walnut, locust, birch, hickory and hornbeam shades many beginning pages. In a clearly written synopsis, Roy tells how each splits, resists rot, their degree of shrinkage, length of life after death, and which has served man most rewardingly.

Here he uses no scientific data, only a nature-taking course of accumulated knowledge — not what man has told but what the trees have shown mankind over the countless years of living together.

A hint of pain stings through as Roy writes of killing a tree, cutting it from the earth, chopping it, hacking it loose from its breast of life. But the tree must live again.

In his hands the old cordless tools quietly and persistently transform a fallen white oak into sturdy ladder-back chairs. He takes the hardy dogwood and chops from its trunk a tine wooden mallet. Rake tines from hickory. Sycamore bowls.

His woodwright shop hangs heavy under a myriad of homemade tools. All of them our grandfathers and their fathers handled comfortably and without awe. Drawknives and shavers, chisels, gouges and mallets; planes and splitting tools and handling tools. They came from an age when the arms bulged shirt-sleeves tight; and a man believed he was also making himself when he made a useful thing out of the wood of a tree.

In his pictures of the tools being used, Roy Underhill's hands capture that spirit of a simple, satisfying purpose. THey are strong-looking hands, thick and tightly gripped. And, like Steinbeck's Tom Joad, Roy leans low over his work, gouging, planing and chipping away the final shavings from the product of his boards and mid.

He shows and tells how to frame a house. He makes chairs, baskets . . . each picture detailing each step until the finished product stands ready for a human need.

It is easy to catch the enthusiasm of his work. And I too am caught up in my own enthusiasm of imagination, not of how to do, but how they, my forefathers, got the job done. In his book, Roy is asking us to take a backward look toward simpler, quieter times.

Many people enjoyed Roy's series "The Woodwright's Shop" produced by the University of North Carolina Center for Public Television. His book follows somewhat along the format of the TV production. However, the book stands strong alone and needs no other credentials than itself.

Perhaps there are only a few of us who will ever cover with hardwood shavings the floor of our own woodwright shop. For me, the book, the photographs, the reading is enough. Yet, now that I've enjoyed Roy Underhill's book, I appreciate more the still-standing buildings of our long-ago past. I know of their lightwood pegs, the mortcing, the borings of the T-handle augers and the boring machines. Now I can work a froe, an adze.

If I had to do these things, I could begin — which gives me a feeling of being smarter than I was. Here, then, is much more than a "how-to" book. I look forward to handling it again.

To Build 16th Century Boat

By Chancy Kapp
North Carolina Department
Of Cultural Resources

MANTEO — Wanted: boatbuilders interested in a 16th century style sailing ship.

On Wednesday, at 8:30 a.m. in Manteo's Town Hall, members of America's Four Hundredth Anniversary Committee (AFHAC), will hold an information and orientation session on plans for "Elizabeth II," a vessel which will play an important part in the 1984-87 celebration of the quadricentennial of the first English colonies in the New World.

"Elizabeth II" will be built and berthed in Manteo, but AFHAC has not yet decided who will construct it.

Stanley Potter, the naval architect finishing plans for the ship, will join AFHAC members Charles Wade and David Stick for the meeting, which is open to any boatbuilder interested in the project.

"We've been hearing about 'Elizabeth II' for a long time now," says Horace Whitfield, a Dare County boatbuilder and founder of "Friends of Elizabeth," a support group designed to encourage local interest in the ship.

"This meeting gives us our best chance to find out exactly what the project involves, what kinds of skills it will take to built it and how much we'll be able to offer the backers of the ship. It's a good chance for all the local boatbuilders to come forward and let AFHAC know just what we can do for them, too," Whitfield added.

According to AFHAC member Charles Wade, "We're going to have a beautiful ship. I think its construction will give the people of northeastern North Carolina a rare chance to see traditional skills at work and, once it's finished, it will be a wonderful tourist site."

Those wanting more details about the meeting are to call Horace Whitfield at 441-5076 in Manteo.

5th Place Nationally

Several weeks ago a brief announcement appeared in "The Daily Reflector" that a young Pitt County woman, Sheila Turnage, had received honorable mention in a national fiction competition sponsored by "Writer's Digest," a leading magazine for writers.

Recently, Sheila, of Farmville, who works with a publishing firm in Winterville, was informed that she was actually fifth place winner in a field of 100 fiction winners.

An article in the November 1981 edition of "Writer's Digest" informs that "from the 5,362 entries in Writer's Digest Writing Competition, judges have selected 301 excellent poetry, nonfiction and fiction manuscripts."

The 301 selected are the top 100 winners each in the three categories of fiction, nonfiction and poetry, with the one extra number over 300 representing the grand prize winner.

William Brohaugh, writing about the fiction entries, commented on Sheila's story: "Sheila Turnage's 'Homestretch Harry' is just short of hilarious. It is jaunty and saucy while drawing an analogy between grandson Harry's game-winning home run, and grandpa Harry's after-supper encounter with grandma back in '49."

Sheila is a member of the Greenville Writers Club and has written a number of short stories on a variety of themes. She was one of only two fiction winners from North Carolina. Top fiction winner in the annual competition was Royston Wood of White Plains, N.Y.

Grand-prize winner this year was Delbert Brobst, a 37-year-old English teacher from St. Cloud, Minnesota, and a veteran of Viet Nam. His top winning entry was a short story dealing with a man's reaction to the news of a brother's death in Viet Nam.

A booklet containing the grand prize story, and the top three winners in each category is available for $3.50 postpaid from: Contest Booklet Editor, Writer's Digest, 9933 Alliance Road, Cincinnati, 45242.

Book News

By LOUISE WILKERSON PERRY

With the cool crisp fall weather come several hot new fiction titles sure to please suspense fans. These and others are to be found at East Branch Library located on Cedar Lane.

Irwin Shaw's "Bread Upon The Waters" is set in New York city, the Hamptons, Connecticut and France, and highlights a high school teacher and his closely knit family. The family includes the father, a wife who gives music lessons, one ambitious, career-minded daughter, a teen-age son who is a would-be rock musician, and a younger daughter who is a dedicated athlete. When the latter rescues a rich and powerful Wall Street lawyer from muggers, his gratitude and involvement with the members of the family begin to rip apart the fabric of which it was made. The rags-to-riches-to-rags story starts on a deceptively quiet note and builds to a high drama.

"Chiefs" by Stuart Woods is an episodic five-decade tale of three police chiefs and many connected murders in one small Georgia town.

The first chief is a cotton farmer who escapes the boll-weevil by asking for the job of sheriff in 1919. He is soon handed the worst case of his career: a naked teen-ager is found dead under a bluff near the house of the local "Crazy." Just as he is about to break the case, the sheriff is killed and a new "chief" inherits the job.

Another "can't put it down" novel is Dorothy Uhnak's "False Witness."

The narrator is a wryly convincing assistant district attorney, Lynne Jacobi, whose latest case as chief of the "violent sex crimes division" involves a sex crime of spectacularly horrid, chillingly underplayed violence. A super-fashion model has been viciously attacked, and on awakening from her coma she accuses none other than the surgeon who has operated on her. Whether she is confused or arranging a frame-up, a bewildered Lynne must ascertain.

Again Uhnak has delivered a suspenseful first-rate crime thriller.

Lunchtime Theater Set

The Lunchtime Theater of the Greenville Museum of Art for October will present a comedy, "Reunion," at noon Wednesday in the carriage house behind the museum.

The one-act play by Greenville playwright Christine Rusch, a work that has been praised by members of the Greenville Writer's Club as one of their favorites of Mrs. Rusch's short plays, will be directed by Doug Mitchell of the Ayden Workshop Theater.

Three Ayden-based actors will be featured in the cast — Joey Pollock, Don Watson and Elizabeth Phillips.

The adult public is invited to attend. The play is not suitable for children. There is no admission charged, and the audience is invited to bring bag lunches, with refreshments to be provided by the museum. Those wishing are invited to remain after the performance to discuss the play with the author and the performers.

Pippin Cast Listed

NEW BERN — New Bern's Footlight Theater director Bill Rivenbark has announced the cast for the production of "Pippin," which opens at the Ramada Inn Ballroom on Thursday to play through Saturday, and again on Oct. 29-31.

Principal rolés will be portrayed by Curtis Fennel as the leading player; John Poole as Pippin; Dennis Delamar as King Charles; Bill O'Neal as Lewis; Nancy Blades as Fastrada; Laura Courter as Berthe; Pat Rowlett as Catherine; and Mark Register as Theo.

Cindy van Baars is musical director, Pat Rowlett and Bette Jo Pierce are vocal coaches and Kitty Bailey is choreographer. Staging and lighting design is by Jim Keeter, Lesley John Lee is technical and stage manager and Dennis Delamar is set designer, technical adviser and publicity chairman.

For reservations, call 638-8552 at least two days in advance of the date you plan to attend. Tickets for the dinner and performance are priced at $13.50 each. Dinner is served beginning at 7:15 p.m., and curtain time for each performance is 8:15 p.m.

1981 Has Been A Rewarding Year For Greenville Playwright

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

A housewife and the mother of three young children, Greenville's Christine Rusch is emerging as a young playwright on the road to successfully fulfilling a deeply felt and long abiding desire to write plays.

Christine's motivation for a relatively recent surge of creativity is stated simply: "People do what they have to do, and writing plays is what I have to do. I have no other choice.

"I'm fortunate," she added, "because David is very supportive and understanding." David Rusch, her husband, is a pharmaceutical chemist with Burroughs Wellcome. Christine speaks with gratitude of the help he gives her, especially in meeting the needs of their children — Haila, 10, Lara, 5 and Franklin, 4.

David and Christine moved to Greenville from Elkhart, Ind., in the spring of 1978.

"I have been writing plays for the past 10 years," she said. "When I got to Greenville, I immediately enrolled in the creative writing course at Pitt Community College and I became active in the Greenville Writers Club. The writing class, and the enthusiasm and support I've had from the members of the Writers Club, have helped me enormously.

"In fact, I've gotten encouragement from many sources since I've been in Greenville. This has made a world of difference in my work."

Plays Performed

The year 1981 has been a landmark year for Christine. She has just returned from New York where one of her one-act plays, "Potato Girl" was given two evening productions at the Ensemble Studio Theater, an Off-Off-Broadway theater on 52nd Street, on Oct. 1-2.

"The Ensemble Studio was founded by Curt Dempster about 10 years ago," Christine explained. "It's an excellent group, and Curt is dedicated to showcasing works by new playwrights. Needless to say I was excited to have one of my plays chosen for production."

Several weeks ago Christine was invited, based on submission of her work, to attend a workshop in the Catskills Mountains of New York. In September, she was informed that her "Potato Girl" would be included in the Ensemble Studio's first annual Octoberfest, a festival designed as an annual feature of the Ensemble's Workshop and Experimental Series.

From a sizeable number of young playwright entrants, Christine's play and two other plays were chosen for the Octoberfest — "The 50 Minute Midnight Hour" by Gurney Cambell, and "Class Reunion" by Kermit Frazier, a young black playwright.

Christine's actor-brother, Zachary Grenier, directed the play. "He and I were both pleased that he was given the chance to direct the first New York performance of one of my plays," she said.

"An interesting by-product of the production," Christine related, "is that we had a potato party following the second night production. The play calls for 50 pounds of potatoes on stage, so we decided it would be nice to have a potato party to use all those potatoes."

Local Productions

Although she was pleased to have a play given a New York performance, Christine is equally gratified by the exposure her plays have had in the local area this year.

In April, a workshop reading of three plays — "Coffee Break," "Tangled Thread" and "Paddy Song" was featured during the Eastern Carolina Arts Festival. These readings, held in the auditorium of the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department at 2000 Cedar Lane, was the springboard for a growing public exposure of Christine's work locally.

At noon on Sept. 16, a first-ever venture launched under the auspices of the Greenville Museum of Art, the Lunchtime Theater Showcase, premiered one of Christine's plays, a comedy entitled "Aging Swiftly." Ayden-Grifton's Theater Workshop personnel presented the play — with Joey Pollock directing and Joel and Judy McLawhorn portraying the husband-wife cast. An enthusiastic overflow audience attended this performance.

CHRISTINE RUSCH . . . Greenville housewife, mother of three and a playwright, has been encouraged by the public acceptance of her plays in performances given during 1981.

At noon on Wednesday, October 21, another one-act play by Christine, "Reunion," will be presented at the museum.

"There are tentative plans for my brother Zachary to come to Greenville in January to direct 'Potato Girl,' the same play he directed in New York," Christine revealed. "I hope this will work out.

Creative Family

Christine acknowledges that coming from a family with a substantial history of creativeness has to some degree shaped, or at least had a strong bearing on her desire to be a playwright.

Her brother Zachary, still in his 20s, is an established actor "who has toured with several repertory companies in the eastern and Midwest parts of the country," Christine said. "He is also enthusiastic about his part-time work of helping restore rundown brownstone houses in New York. He showed me a couple of these places. They're marvelous old buildings, with beautiful parquet floors under layers of dirty linoleum."

Another brother, who uses the stage name Theodore Arwulf, is jazz director for Radio Station WCBN at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor. A sister, Myra Grenier Stanley, who lives in Ypsilanti, Michigan, is an artist and a nurse.

Three uncles, "all brothers of my father, are into some form of entertainment," Christine said. One was a technical director for CBS for years before he retired. He worked with the Ed Sullivan show. Another uncle, on the West Coast, has for years been a director of the Lawrence Welk show, and the third uncle is a technical director for an independent television sports network and also does programs for the Public Broadcasting System."

Christine's father, Dr. George H. Grenier, teaches at Penn State University, and her mother, Helen Grenier, has recently retired as a librarian at the University of Michigan.

"It was only after getting into playwrighting myself that I discovered that my grandfather, George Garfield Grenier, had written a play," Christine related. "It was a vaudeville play, 'Town Gossip' which ran successfully in Boston and New York.

"I'd known all along that he'd had long years of experience in the early days of movies," Christine commented. "He was technical director for D.W. Griffith and built the sets for the pioneer movie epic, 'Birth of A Nation.' Later," she added, "he worked for Fox Features where he built the set for Theda Bara's 'Cleopatra.'"

There's also a precedent for a creative woman in the family, too. Christine's grandmother, Mary Bair Grenier, was a well-known New York City opera singer who performed frequently in New York's Town Hall.

The encouragement afforded by the public acceptance of her work, Christine says, "gives me further incentive to continue with what I feel I must do anyway."

Edenton Tea Party Set For Oct. 24-25

EDENTON — Military encampments, living history demonstrations, colonial games and contests and tea drinking will mark the second annual Edenton Tea Party and Street Fair on Saturday and Sunday, October 24 and 25 in downtown Edenton.

From 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Saturday, the 2nd N.C. Regiment of Foot Encampment will give living history demonstrations of games and food, drills and muster, in order to give visitors an idea of the life of the colonial soldier.

A "Yankee Peddler" will be held on the streets — this is a kind of flea market and demonstrations by period craftsmen on the Village Green, with demonstrations of woodworking, needlecraft, art and other crafts of all kinds.

Tea and cookies will be available at the Barker House.

Sheila Snell, assistant manager of Iredell House, notes that children are especially invited to attend the demonstrations and to take part in making cornhusk dolls. There will also be various contests to appeal to young people, such as corn shelling, chuck-a-farthing (coin throwing), bite-the-apple contest, pea-dab shooting and tug-o-war.

Sunday's activities are to begin at 9:30 a.m. with a Regiment of Foot prayer services. Activities will continue until 3:30 p.m. when the soldiers will break camp.

"I've been sold on The Albemarle since the beginning."

— Nina Fountain

"I haven't given retirement any sort of thought whatsoever. I'm just thinking about everyday living.

"The Albemarle will be a good second home for me — one where I won't have to worry about $400 oil bills and driving into town from seven miles out in the country.

"The lifetime care that it offers is important too. If you get sick you know that somebody is going to look after you — for the rest of your life if you need it.

"Convenience and security. Those are the reasons why I'm planning to live at The Albemarle.

"I don't see why everybody wouldn't be terribly excited about it."

Art Poster Features A Work In Greenville Museum Collection

THE COMMEMORATIVE POSTER . . . to be given as a souvenir to those attending the annual Fine Arts Ball on November 6 is displayed in its proof form. The quartet displaying the poster are (left to right) — Mrs. Mary Hannah Taft, publicity chairman for the ball, Mary Anne Pennington, Wes Crawley, and Kitty Joyner, secretary-treasurer for the ball. (Reflector Photo by Jerry Raynor)

A new venture is being undertaken for the first time by the Greenville Musuem of Art. In conjunction with the Fine Arts Ball to be held Nov. 6, a poster designed by Mary Anne Pennington, Executive Director of the Greenville Museum of Art, is being printed under the auspices of the museum.

The poster incorporates a photograph of a bronze sculpture by Wes Crawley that is in the permanent collection of the Museum. Crawley is a faculty member of the school of art at East Carolina University.

Commenting on posters as an art form, Ms. Pennington has written in the museum's bulletin: "Posters are a valuable art form. The French painter, Henri Toulouse-Lautrec, made poster art acceptable both as a valid art form and one popular with the masses.

"His lithographed posters advertising the famed Montmartre night club, Le Moulin Rouge, were beautifully executed compositions in color. Lautrec's posters have become extremely valuable to art collectors because of their fine quality and increasing rarity.

"Another high point in poster history was during the early 20th century when the all-encompassing styles called 'Art Nouveau' and 'Art Deco' were in vogue. The highly ornate and decorative posters of Aubrey Beardsley, Henry van de Velele, and Alphonse Mucha are now collector's items and bring high prices in art auctions."

Ms. Pennington adds that "Posters are primarily visual messages for the public but when designed with imagination and sensitivity, they are art objects within themselves. They, as all crafts which transcend their utilitarian purpose, become something more than an advertisement. They become art."

All attending the Fine Arts Ball this year will receive this commemorative poster as a gift from the museum. The poster will be a numbered limited edition.

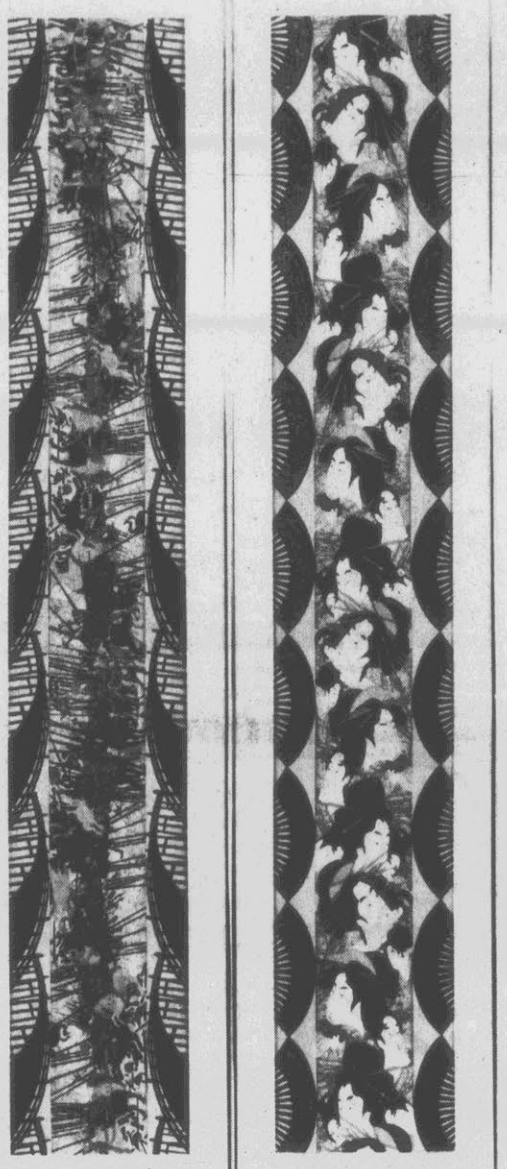
Former Tar Heels Art Show

By David Johnson
N.C. Museum of Art

RALEIGH — Several former North Carolinians whose art has won critical recognition outside the state will show their work in a new exhibition in the Collectors Gallery of the N.C. Museum of Art in Raleigh.

"Former North Carolina Artists" opens in the museum's sales and rental gallery next Sunday with a public reception from 4 to 6 p.m. The show will continue through Nov. 15, after which it will travel to Wake Forest University.

Included will be works by New York artists Robin Lehrer, Martin Johnson, Robbie Tillitson and Frank Faulkner. Also to be shown are works by West Virginia painter Ruth Rogers and San Francisco painter/photographer Jane Terry.



SCENES FROM A BATTLE (HIS AND HERS) . . . by Robin Lehrer, a former Raleigh artist now working in New York, will be among the works on view in "Former North Carolina Artists," a new exhibition opening Oct. 25 in the Collectors Gallery of the N.C. Museum of Art in Raleigh. (Photo Courtesy NCMA)

Former Raleigh resident Robin Lehrer holds a B.F.A. from UNC-Greensboro and an M.F.A. from Claremont Graduate School in California. Her watercolors feature intricate patterns into which a narrative is often woven.

Also a former Raleighite, Jane Terry is a graduate of UNC-Chapel Hill. Her work includes photographs upon which she paints.

Martin Johnson, a former Chapel Hill resident, earned an M.F.A. from UNC-Chapel Hill. His work is influenced by folk art. He creates abstract painted sculpture by piecing together found objects and then painting the assemblage to suggest symbolic themes.

Frank Faulkner and Ruth Roges are both formerly of Winston-Salem. Faulkner received the B.F.A. and M.F.A. degrees from UNC. He paints highly decorative Byzantine-like motifs of repeated arches and chevrons. These may be overlaid with such incongruous images as handprints. Ms. Rogers, who earned her B.A. from Randolph-Macon's Woman's College and her M.F.A. from UNC-Chapel Hill, works with stain painting to create studies of the relationships o colors and forms.

Former Denton resident Robbie Tillotson holds a B.A. from Appalachian State, where later he was an art instructor, and an M.F.A. from UNC-Greensboro. His work includes cray pas (an oil-based pastel) drawings on paper depicting half-length figures clothed in richly decorated patterns.

The N.C. Museum of Art is located at 107 E. Morgan St. in downtown Raleigh. Hours are 10 to 5 Tuesdays through Saturdays, 2 to 6 on Sundays and is closed Mondays and on state holidays.

Opera Program Set

A program of excerpted scenes from five well-known operas is being presented by The Opera Theater of the ECU School of Music on two dates, Friday and Saturday, October 23 and 24.

Curtain time is 8 p.m. each evening, with performances to be given in the A.J. Fletcher Recital Hall. There is no admission charged, and the public is invited to attend on a first-come, first-seated basis.

Dr. Clyde Hiss, director of the ECU Opera Theater, is directing the program. Faculty members, ECU alumni and local musicians will be singing roles and providing accompaniment.

The program opens with a scene from Gioacchino Rossini's "William Tell." Singers in the Act IV scene will be Patricia Hiss, a local musician and two ECU alumni, Carolyn Ipock and Susan Jones. The trio will be joined by the chorus of student singers for the production, comprised of Shannon Carson, Julie Clemens, Robin Drake, Teresa Guion, Donna Montague, Suzanne Quick, Mary Parker, Robin Rio, Valerie Segraves, Beth Smith and Marget Williamson.

Two scenes are being presented from Mozart's "The Marriage of Figaro." In a scene from Act I, Valerie Segraves and Teresa Guion will sing the roles of Marcellina and Suzanna, respectively. In the scene from Act II, Ms. Guion will sing the role of Countess Almaviva and Robin Drake that of Suzanna.

Modest Moussorgsky's dramatic opera, "Boris Godonoff," will be represented by a scene from Act II, with Carolyn Ipock as Princess Marina and the chorus performing as Ladies-in-Waiting.

Scenes from two Verdi operas are the final offerings of the program. First is a scene from Act I of "Macbeth," with a chorus of witches, and Phillip Brown, Ricky Narron and Mark Johnson as Macbeth, Banquo and the messenger. They will be accompanied by faculty pianist Ellen Reithmaier Nagode. The final Verdi scene is drawn from Act III of "Rigoletto." Singers will be: Phillip Brown, Sparafucile; Clyde Hiss as Rigoletto; Patricia Hiss as Gilda; Mark Johnson as the Duke of Mantua; and Susan Jones as Maddalena. An ECU alumnus, pianist Alisa Wetherington, will accompany the second "Rigoletto" scene.

Lighting for the production is by Beth Carter, assisted by members of the Opera Theater, and costumes are by Patricia Hiss.

The 52-member Ensemble will perform five works on the program, opening with Malcolm Arnold's "Prelude, Siciliano, and Rondo," arranged by John Paynter.

This will be followed by Vincent Persichetti's "Masquerade for Band" and Percy Grainger's "Children's March (Over the Hills and Far Away)."

The third composition to be performed is Morton Gould's "Suite from Holocaust," which is comprised of six parts — Main Theme (Prologue); Kristallnacht (The Night of Broken Glass); Berta and Joseph; Babi Yar; Liberation; and Elegy (Epilogue).

The concert will conclude with John Philip Sousa's "Nobles of the Mystic Shrine."

The program consists of works by five contemporary American composers, three of them younger than 40 years old.

Ms. Coleman's program will open with "Six Pieces for Piano" by George Balch Wilson, director of the Electronic Music Studio at the University of Michigan.

"Motivations, Book I," by Eugene Kurtz, is the final work in Coleman's recital. Now a resident of Paris, France, Kurtz frequently teaches on one-year appointments as artist-in-residence at major American universities.

CRT Play On Tuesday

ECU News Bureau

A dramatic view of the ill-fated Donner party — the western pioneer group which resorted to cannibalism when snowbound in the Sierra Mountains — will be presented in "Tasmen Donner," a one-woman performance to be given at East Carolina University on Tuesday, October 20.

The play, a production of the Carolina Regional Theater, features Martha Nell Hardy, and will be presented at 8 p.m. in Hendrix Theater, Mendenhall Student Center. The Student Union Special Events Committee is the play's sponsor.

Tickets for the play are available at the ECU Central Ticket Office at $3 each. Reservations can be made by phone, 757-6611.

"Tasmen Donner" is based on the work of Ruth Whiman, who retraced the westward journey of the original pioneers in 1846 along the Oregon and Mormon trails and the Hastings cutoff across the Salt Desert through the Sierra Mountains.

Tasmen Donner was a Massachusetts teacher and poet who moved to Springfield in the 1830s, where she met and married her second husband, George Donner. Ten years later, the Donners decided to join a wagon train to California where they could buy cheap land.

Originally intended as a summer excursion, their expedition took many months. They miscalculated the time it would take to cross the Salt Desert and lost food, wagons and pack animals. By the time they were caught in a series of blizzards in the Sierras, they were just a hundred miles from the Sacramento Valley.

Snowed in for six months, without provisions, many members of the party ate flesh from the bodies of others who had died. Some survivors were eventually brought out by rescue parties.

"Tasmen Donner" is based upon Tasmen's published poetry and written accounts of the harsh journey, which weave a fascinating and chilling story of a dark phase of American history.

Fossil Fair Saturday

AURORA — Do you have any old bones lying around your house? A bone, a tooth, a shell or an artifact from an Indian tribe that lived long ago?

These type of objects are found throughout eastern North Carolina; in fields, along banks of creeks and rivers, and on the beaches.

On Saturday, October 24, the annual Fossil Fair — sponsored by the North Carolina Fossil Club in cooperation with the Smithsonian Institution and the North Carolina State Museum of Natural History — will be held near Aurora.

If you are one of many who has any of these types of objects, the N.C. Fossil Club Fossil Fair can help you.

At the fair, which will take place from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Texasgulf Recreation Center off N.C. 306 near Aurora, there will be displays of fossils, with experts from the Smithsonian Institution, East Carolina University, UNC and the North Carolina State Museum of Natural History to help with identification and to answer questions.

The N.C. Fossil Club is a non-profit organization, and invites the public, including children, to attend the fair. There is no admission charged.

The first sedan-type automobile was introduced by Hudson Motor Car Co. of Detroit. Its first official showing took place at the 13th National Auto Show in New York City Jan. 11, 1913. All accessories were included as standard equipment.

Harvey Cast Chosen

WILLIAMSTON — The cast for The Martin County Community Players' forthcoming production of "Harvey" has been announced. The play will be presented Nov. 11-14 in the Martin County Auditorium in Williamston High School. The play is directed by Alan Osborne.

Others in the cast are Jeane Robertson as nurse Ruth Kelly; Sam Speller as Judge Omar Gaffney; Randy Stalls, the psychiatrist, Dr. Chumley; and Betty Reddick as Mrs. Chumley.

Also, Mary Charles Coppages as Dowd's sister, Veta Louise Simmons; Reno Council as Dr. Lyman Sanderson; Bob Maple as the sanitarium strongarm attendant, Duane Wilson; and Billy Copeland, the taxi driver.

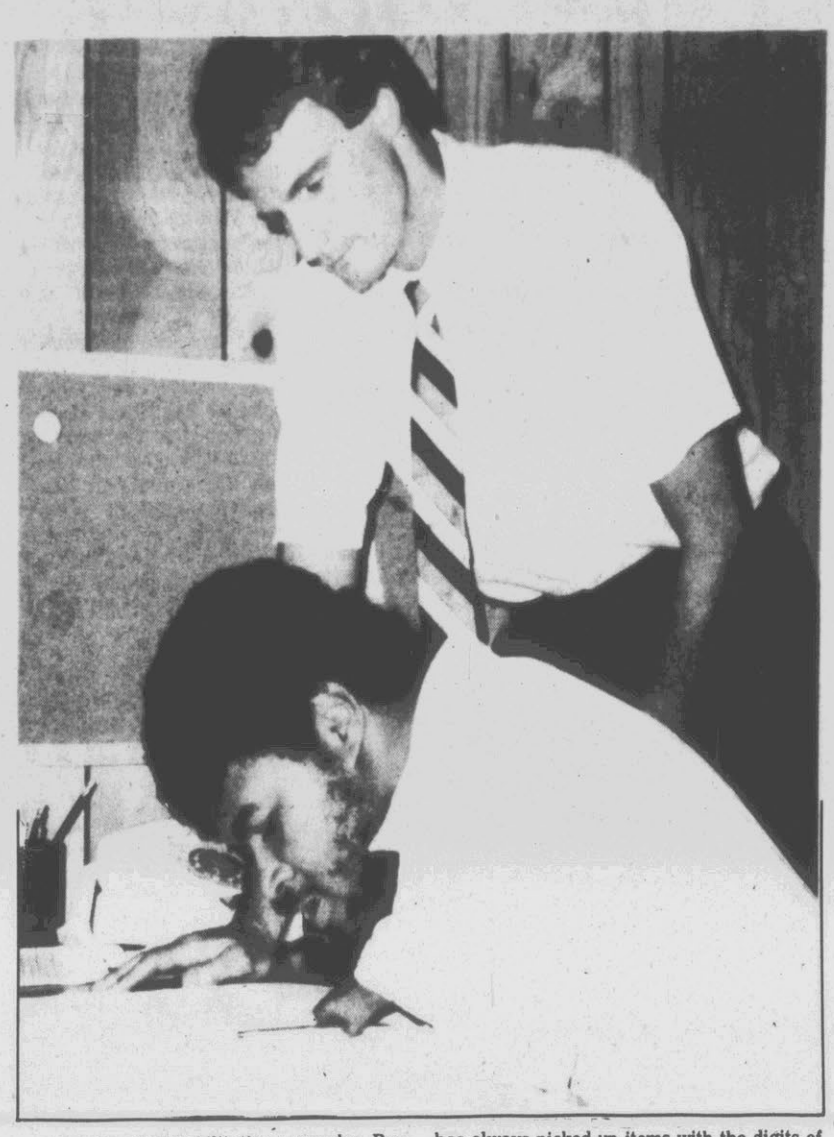
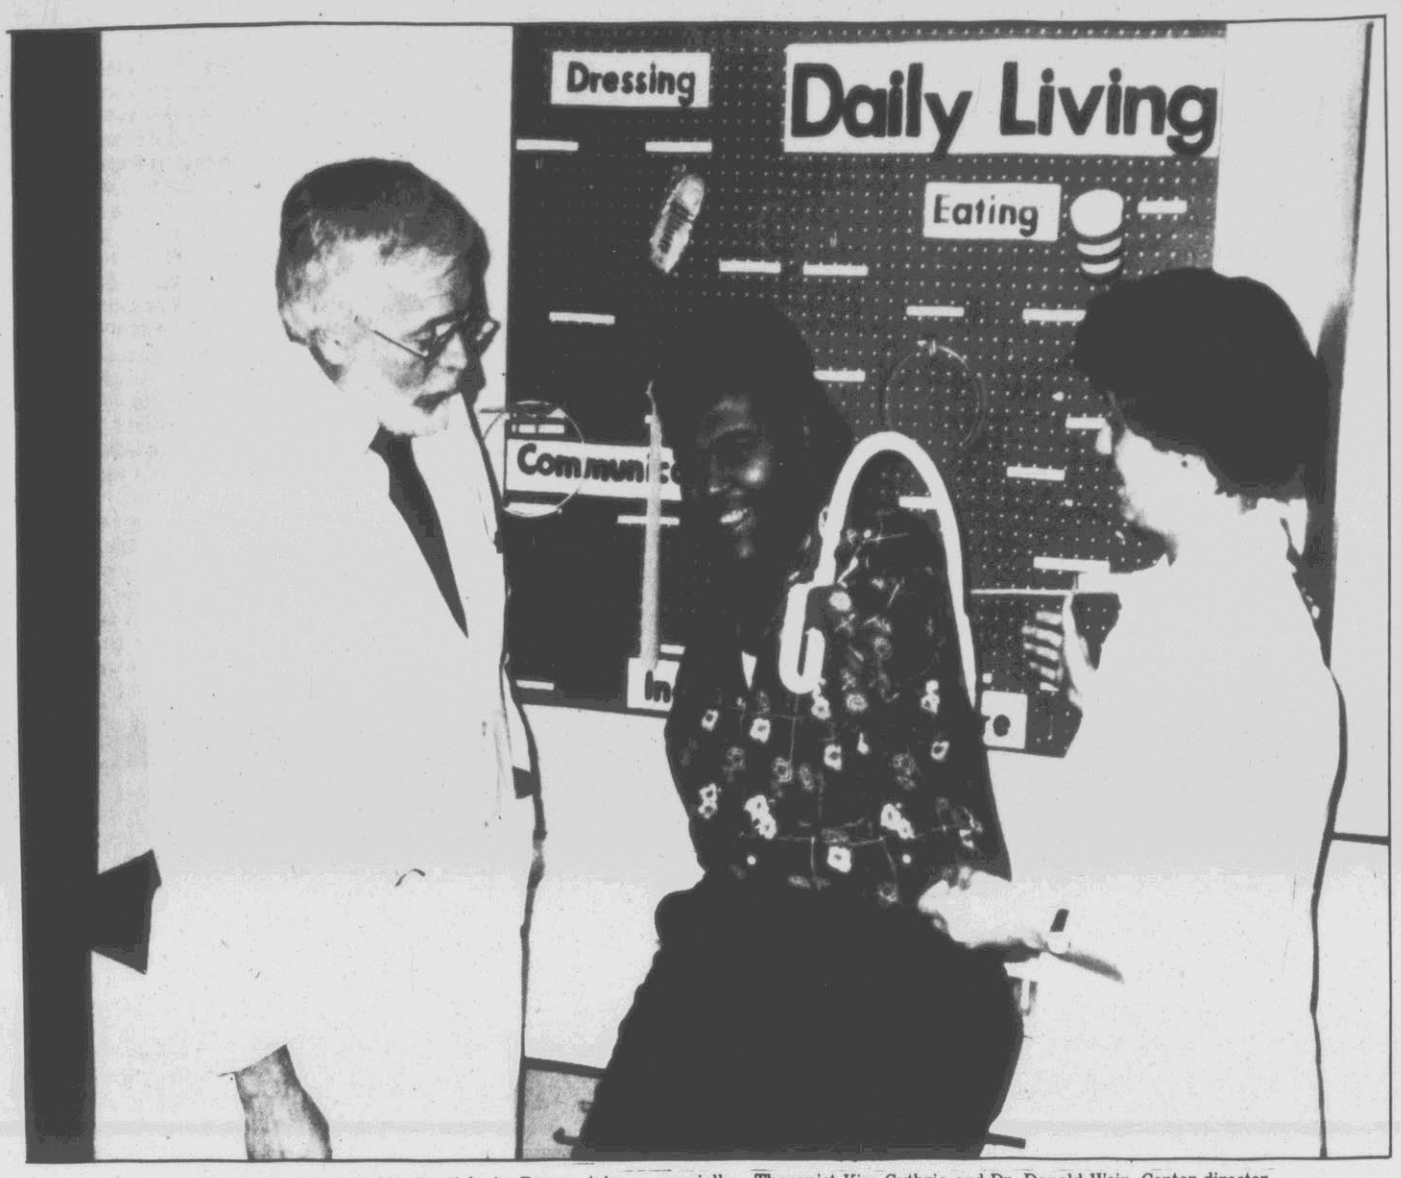
Handicapped Man Displays A Beautiful Attitude



—Vocational Rehabilitation counselor Ron LePors of New Bern has worked with Brown during his job search. Brown shows how he has always picked up items with the digits of his left shoulder.



—A lesson in self-help. Adonis Brown tries a specially designed bath brush at Pitt County's Rehabilitation Center. Therapist Kim Guthrie and Dr. Donald Weir, Center director, observe Brown, who will soon be fitted with an electronic arm.

NEW BERN — Adonis Brown's parents named him for one of history's greatest lovers. The girls who swooned over his soft-as-milk deejay voice dubbed him Sweet Donnie B. His mentors call him a solid citizen.

He was born without arms, but his "So what? I can do anything!" attitude is beautiful.

Brown's reach has always been high, and soon he'll reach even higher. He's to be fitted with an electronic arm that will enable him to bathe himself, feed himself, dress himself, and best of all, be more employable in the field he loves—radio.

At 26, Brown looks back on a life full of adjustments. "My mother didn't take drugs when she was pregnant with me," he told a new friend in his silken radio voice.

Nobody can explain the freakish accident of genes that gave him two small appendages protruding from his shoulders instead of arms and hands. The left appendage has three finger-like digits; the right has one. His birth defect is much like that of the thalidomide babies of the 60's whose mothers took the tranquilizer during their pregnancies.

Such a handicap has stopped many victims cold. But Brown, who said, "I never got any teasing or bad feelings from other kids" was an excellent athlete, an artist and scholar.

"I was a pretty good ball player," he said. "I'd catch the basketball between my shoulder and my chin and heave it." On the gridiron, his big body could knock the opposition down right and left.

Brown started drawing in the fourth grade. He'd grasp brushes or pencils with the digits of his left shoulder, lean way down to the paper and draw away. His handwriting is that of an artist, full of curlicues and sworls.

Encouragement came not only from his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Brown, and his friends, but from school counselors who, in his sophomore year put him in touch with Vocational Rehabilitation people. They were impressed with Brown's accomplishments and helped him enroll in Appalachian State in Boone where he studied commercial art.

He also found a voice. "I got interested in the choir and glee club. I was a first tenor. Was I good?" He grinned modestly. "Yeah, I guess I was pretty good. I love to sing. And I got interested in Sociology, too, and let my art work go by."

Like many youngsters who are trying out everything too fast too soon, Brown stepped back from his frenetic activity. "I had to ask myself — where was I going? What did I want to be?" So he dropped out of college and returned home to "sort things out."

He ran into a cousin who had a traveling disc jockey show, rambling around in a van, setting up wherever people wanted a disco party.

"My cousin asked me to substitute for him sometimes," Brown said. "I did it and really liked the snappy chatter and direct contact with an audience. It made me feel good to liven up others' spirits, so I decided to take a crack at being a traveling deejay myself."

He Vocational Rehabilitation counselor told him the agency would help him outfit a van if he could get a drivers' license. He'd be driving for years with a learners permit, but now, he ran up against the biggest challenge of his life.

"There was this highway patrolman who said 'no way would a man who didn't have any arms drive up and down the roads of North Carolina'!" Brown grinned wryly. "I showed him. I went to St. Andrews College where they have a drivers' education course for handicapped people and I got my license in a week."

In his specially equipped van with its longer steering gear, Brown traveled around the county driving with the digits of his left shoulder. For a few months, he was also Sweet Donnie B. with a black-oriented New Bern radio station.

The experience, though, was a bit sobering. Even though Brown is popular, with a soothing flow of talk, and can handle records just as deftly as he handled the basketballs of his high school days, he needed much more speed in the intricate dial-filled controls of today's fast paced radio.

And, no less importantly, he needed to be independent of his friends and family. The cousin who helped him bathe, dress and eat, found another pad. Brown now depends on a paid helper.

His new counselor, Ron LePors, decided the time had come for Brown to be fitted with a prosthetic device to make his future secure.

In the 18 months of their association, Brown and LePors finally worked out Brown's destiny. He's to be fitted with an electronic arm. The device, widely used in Europe, has been in this country ten years or so. LePors took his client to two professionals who have been developing the motor-driven prosthesis, Dr. Donald Weir, director of Pitt County Memorial Hospital's Rehabilitation Center in Greenville and his colleague, Dr. Maurice Schnell. Brown's arm will have a series of battery-operated motors. He will have to use certain signals — moving his shoulder muscles a certain way — to activate the arm and the attached "hand."

"He'll have to practice using his arm for sime time before he's completely independent," Dr. Weir explained to a visitor at the Center. "After a while, it'll be like typing — instinctive."

Dr. Weir said each electronic arm is designed specifically for the user. Brown's arm will be attached to his right shoulder since he already writes and eats with his left. "The main thing is his independence," Dr. Weir stressed. With the arm he can tend to his own personal needs. And he can function as fast as a disc jockey's job demands.

"Adonis is a really solid citizen," Dr. Weir said. Echoed LePors, "He'll make good use of that arm because he has a great, positive attitude."

As for Adonis Brown, he can't wait for that motorized extension of himself. "I've been through therapy here, learning how to use gadgets like curved brushes to bathe myself with, things like that. It was really interesting. I know I can do anything I set my mind on. A man has to build his own personality, his own strength. I might go to broadcasting school, who knows?"

His fans still clamor for Sweet Donnie B's return. They may not have to wait too long.

Text By Bette Elliott, Photographs By Carmen Elliott

—In the control room–here is where Brown's dream lie. His electronic arm will make him a fast deejay.

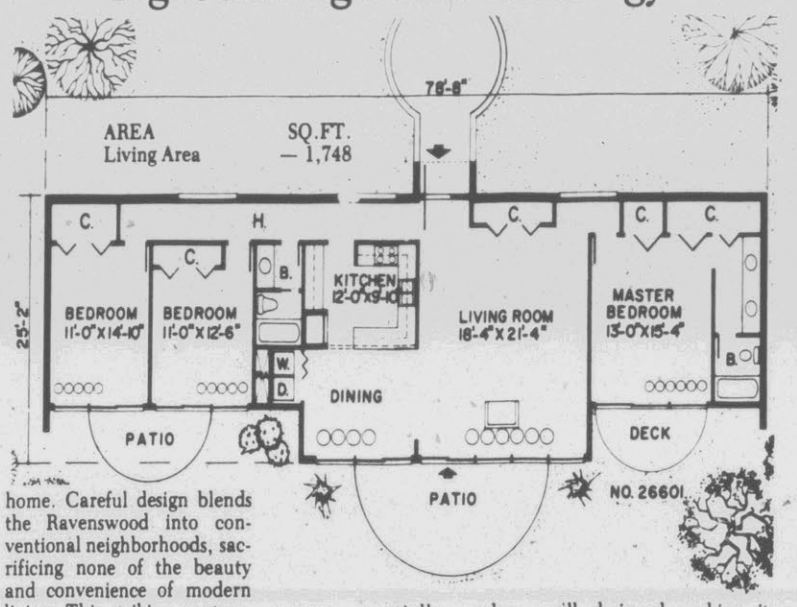
—Writing is easy–if you work out your own style! Brown's handwriting is excellent.

PLAN YOUR HOME

The Ravenswood

By Jerry Bishop

Fight the High Cost Of Energy



Since the beginning of time man has been an earth dweller. The earliest man lived in caves and later in subterranean homes built for safety and shelter. Underground homes provide a feeling of safety, comfort and well being. After years of experimentation with surface living, man is again showing a tendency to return to nature. One valid reason is his concern for energy conservation. Earth homes blend with the landscape and take advantage of the natural moderation of temperature provided by the soil. Solar heating under these conditions can provide a considerable energy saving. Even passive heating, where the sun's energy is concentrated on exposed surfaces, contributes to the heating and cooling of an earth oriented home. Careful design blends the Ravenswood into conventional neighborhoods, sacrificing none of the beauty and convenience of modern living. This striking contemporary, partially underground, passive solar home, designed for a growing family, can help combat runaway fuel bills.

Large expanses of glass on the south side warms the house during the day while storing heat in solar water tubes positioned behind windows for heat at night. The master bedroom, occupying the east wing, has a private bath with a double vanity and an abundance of closets, this room also has a private deck. Living room, dining room and kitchen are the central attraction in this well zoned home. The kitchen is well designed making it a delight to fix meals for the family. Sliding glass doors provide access to the patio from both the living room and dining room. Gift-Wrapping Priority: Get The Paper On Neatly

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

At least since a sociologist declared that the medium is the message, ordinary folks have realized that presentation — the way something is conveyed — plays an important role in meaning.

This concept explains the notion that a beautiful wrap is as much a part of the gift as the object given. It may still be the thought that counts, but Jane Cornell, co-author of a book on gift wrapping, says that your friends and family will judge a gift by its package.

It's easy, inexpensive and fun to wrap presents imaginatively, she said in a recent interview, backing up her statement with some elementary and advanced tips on wrapping and embellishing packages.

In gift wrapping, the first step is to get the paper on neatly. From this procedure, all the rest follows.

Since virtually all objects you'll be wrapping are cubes, cylinders or spheres, it's a question of simply measuring the package (a piece of string around the circumference is the easiest way to accomplish this with bulky packages) and cutting the paper correctly.

Neatness is achieved by having the right amount of paper, pressing seams flat and using double-faced tape to adhere the paper to itself.

The elementary concepts have been mastered by most adults, acknowledged the author, but many people do not know how to tackle fragile, odd-sized and extra-large packages. A good method for wrapping fragile items is to surround the present with air trapped between loose pleats of tissue paper or newspaper. These pleated rolls should be placed all around the item in a box so that it is cushioned on all four sides.

Excelsior corrugated paper or polyurethane beads can be used in place of the folded paper, if you have them. But for originality, try home-made popcorn — hold the butter and salt — as insulation for something fragile. Remember to wrap your present in colored paper if it is tiny so it does not get lost in all the packaging.

Lack of purchased trimmings and paper need deter no one from creating a beautiful package. Among available and sometimes free "gift paper" are newspaper sections (the sports or business section for some recipients, the comics for a child), old road maps, discarded sheet music, extra shelf paper, wallpaper remnants, and foreign language newspapers (Chinese papers are particularly effective).

A potato, onion or apple and some ink or acrylic paints can be fashioned into a home-made stenciling kit to decorate brown paper grocery bags or inexpensive white shelf paper. A simple pattern is cut into the vegetable, which is then dipped into ink or paint and applied to the paper.

Other materials for hand-decorated paper include small sponges and sheets of acetate (available in office supply stores). The home craftsman cuts a pattern in the acetate sheet with a craft knife, lays it over the paper and swabs the paint on.)

Jane Cornell also applies nature's freebies to packages. She has used leaves pressed and dried between sheets of a book, dried weeds, roots and flowers to embellish packages.

"Giving them a spritz of hair spray keeps them looking shiny and in good condition," she said.

Her kitchen cabinets have also yielded materials to decorate packages. Macaroni, cinnamon sticks, pot scrubbers and disposable wipes are charming flourishes, particularly on a gift destined for the homemaker.

Even the all-thumbs individual can produce an attractive package, she said. Bags are the greatest invention for clumsy types. You can make your own with paste and scissors. Then just gather the bag at the top and tie it with a ribbon or fold it down neatly. Pieces of leftover fabric, or a dish towel are easy to use. Just tie them around the gift, hobo-fashion. "If you can't tie a good bow, use a greeting card without the envelopes as the decoration, or tape a candy bar or a bookmark to the top of the package," she suggested.

If you're stuck for a durable covering for a package that must be mailed, bring home a carton in good condition from the supermarket. Unfold it and cut, if necessary, so the carton lies flat. Then reassemble it inside out, taping the box closed, for a free, sturdy box without advertising in which to wrap your gift, concluded the author.

"The Art of Gift Wrapping" is published by Warner Books.

We'd all like to have as many luxurious features in our new houses as possible, but these days it's difficult enough trying to get enough money for down payments. High land, construction and interest costs being what they are, more and more people are being priced out of the housing market.

Curiously, one of the solutions may be more amenities, not fewer. As prices rise, interior spaces necessarily get smaller. Where spaces are limited, architects must use open room designs. And that calls for making the best possible use of the available space by the employment of equipment that saves such space.

At the turn of the century, when many architects thought that the bigger the better, what set their houses apart were revolutionary exterior designs, soon followed by innovative interiors. Frank Lloyd Wright concentrated on built-ins to convey luxury to his clientele through such features as recessed lighting, built-in chiffoniers, recessed cabinets and built-in window seats with storage space beneath.

Today's emphasis on more efficient use of space has developed some twists that combine the desired luxury with the practical convenience of space-saving techniques. James Rankin, who heads the Housing Group of Scovill, calls attention to bathrooms in this regard.

"Bathrooms," says Rankin, "are traditionally the smallest rooms in the house, yet built-ins now can save even more space by using hidden-in-the-wall bath scales and recessed receptacles. Another comfort and convenience unit, controlled by a three-way wall switch, is a fixture recessed in the ceiling to provide overall light, heat and ventilation. The three functions can be used together or in any combination, depending on the season."

Other space savers are helping to solve the age-old problem of storage and work space in the kitchen. Such handy systems for instance, as cabinet storage organizers — revolving shelves that allow the householder to have all the items at his or her fingertrips, and door storage bins to utilize otherwise wasted space. Some food centers now have power units recessed beneath countertops to operate the most-used kitchen appliances, which are stored out of the way until needed instead of cluttering the work areas.

A built-in luxury appliance that has been around a while but is becoming more popular these days is the central cleaning system where the power unit is installed in the utility area, garage or basement. In the average-sized house, only two or three automatic inlets, installed in walls or through the floor, are utilized. Removing the soil collection bag from the power unit only two or three times a year is a white-glove operation.

While the houses of the '80s may provide less overall floor space, the buyers of the future are expected to demand that the spaces appear to be larger through architectural ingenuity.

(Home handymen will find much valuable information about repair techniques in Andy Lang's handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," which can be obtained by sending $1.50 to this paper at Box 5, Teaneck, N. J. 07666.)

Q. What advice can you give me on ripening green tomatoes remaining on the vine when the first frost arrives. (W.F., Pittsboro)

A. One suggestion is to cut the entire vine and hang it in a warm (60 to 70 degrees) shelter or basement. Another suggestion is to pick the tomatoes, wrap them in newspaper and store them at 50 to 60 degrees. If you have only a few tomatoes, you might place them on a shelf or window sill to ripen. You can extend the storage life of tomatoes by trying to save only those that are insect and disease free. (Larry Bass, extension horticultural specialist)

Q. My holly seems to be bleaching out. There are tiny, red bugs on the leaves. What can I do? (F.B., Morganton)

A. Your holly is infested with southern red mites which feed in the spring and fall. Treat now (mid-October) and again in two weeks with Kelthane. Use two teaspoons of liquid Kelthane per gallon of water. Although your shrubs will not improve in appearance until new growth comes out next spring, at least you can halt the damage. (James R. Baker, extension entomology specialist)

Q. My pecan and English walnut trees are losing limbs from some insect that cuts them off. Is this harmful to the tree? Will picking up the limbs and destroying them help? (G.H., Hickory)

A. The answer to both questions is "yes". Next year's nut crop could be reduced by the loss of limbs this year. Prompt removal and destruction of fallen limbs (twigs) is recommended. Your problem is caused by the "twig girdler". They ley eggs in the twigs they girdle. The twigs fall to the ground where the grubs develop during the winter. Along with picking up the twigs, ground sprays of Sevin and malathion in mid-September are helpful. (Ken Sorensen, extension entomology specialist)

Q. What are the most shade tolerant turfgrasses available to homeowners? (R.S., Harrisburg)

A. Cool season grasses, such as tall fescue and Kentucky bluegrass, will grow better in semi-shade than the warm season grasses, such as zoysia and bermudagrass. However, the cool season grasses are adapted only to the Piedmont and Mountains of North Carolina. If your lawn gets less than 50 percent sunlight compared to an open area, you will not be able to grow any turfgrass satisfactorily. Consider permanent mulch or a nongrass ground cover. (Carl Blake, extension agronomy specialist)

RAIL EQUIPMENT

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two-level Superliner observation-lounge cars with wrap-around windows have replaced the dome cars on all of Amtrak's long-distance Western runs.

But the traditional dome cars, long an attraction on many U.S. trains, are not entirely gone from the rail scene.

The Alaska Railroad has leased four Amtrak dome coaches as well as two diners for use while its own equipment is being converted from steam to head-end power heating.

Here's The Answer

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q. — I am 56 years old. My husband is 58. We expect to sell our house within the next year or so. We have lived in it for 17 years and paid $28,000 for it, but hope to sell it for more than $100,000, as that is about the sales prices of similar houses sold in the neighborhood. We knew that we probably would not have to pay any federal taxes on the profit we make, but understand that the law has been changed. How will it affect us?

A. — Not at all. Under the old law, you could make up to $100,000 capital gains without paying any federal tax. Under the new one, the limit is $125,000. Therefore, unless there is some disqualifing factor which you did not mention, you will not have to pay any tax on the sale. This is a one-time exemption.

Q. — My wife and I are in our 40s. If we sell our house, on which we expect to make a profit of $50,000, how much time do we have in which to buy a new house without paying tax on the profit? We have heard conflicting opinions. One person says a year, another says 18 months.

A. — Both are wrong. Under the new law, you have two years to buy or build a house of at least equal value to avoid the payment of a capital gains tax on the sale of your present home. The previous law was 18 months and the one before that one year.

Q. — I have replaced the mesh in regular wooden screens many times over the years, but now I have to do a similar job on three screens in metal frames. Is there any basic difference in the way in which it is done?

A. — The principal difference is that, with metal screens, the mesh is held in place with aluminum or plastic splines or steel rods of some kind rather than with staples or nails. As you take off the old mesh, observe carefully how the material is held in place. The screening is placed over the frame, allowing a couple of inches overlap on each side. When the splines or rods are set in place with a block of wood and hammer, or with a specially designed roller made for this purpose, the screening will become taut. After you are sure everything is just the way you want it, cut off the stray pieces of screening material with a single-edged razor blade or something similar.

Q. — I have made many repairs in wooden table tops and other pieces of furniture that have been nicked, but never have gotten quite the results I imagined or saw in home-repair publications. I now have been told that the professionals use something called a shellac stick, along with an alcohol lamp. Can you tell me how such a repair is made? Incidentally, I have never heard of a shellac stick until recently. Where do I buy it?

A. — A shellac stick is merely hardened shellac in the form of what looks like a fat crayon. You can get it in a well-stocked hardware or paint store. Since shellac sticks come in various colors, remember that shellac in stick form appears to be darker than when it is melted and spread out thinly. A palette knife is heated in the flame of an alcohol lamp, which usually can be bought where you get the shellac stick. When the heated blade is placed against the stick, some of the shellac adheres to the blade, which then is drawn quickly across the area to be repaired. This is repeated until the gap in the wood is filled to a point a bit above the surrounding surface. When the shellac is hard and smoothed with fine steel wool or sandpaper, varnish the area. Since it takes a little time to get the knack of using shellac stick, practice it a few times on scrap wood before making the actual repair.

Translating Oft Treacherous

By JOHN NEEDHAM

TOKYO (UPI) — Former President Jimmy Carter didn't really want to know about the sexual desires of the Polish people and Japanese Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki didn't really compare Japan to a mouse.

But millions of people thought that's what the men said, because the translators told them so.

Masumi Muramatsu shakes his head at such tales and thanks his stars it hasn't happened to him.

He admits to putting words in the mouth of a U.S. senator when a U.S.-to-Japan satellite transmission of the sound failed and of referring to a South Korean leader repeatedly as "the president" because he forgot how to translate the man's name.

But by and large things have gone smoothly for the man who is president of Simul International Inc., a major Japanese translation and interpretation service.

Muramatsu, 51, worked by day as a clerk and interpreter during the post-World War II U.S. occupation of Japan and went to college by night. After 10 years interpreting in the United States, he returned to Japan to found Simul. Foreigners often mistake him for the prime minister of Japan, the man next to Muramatsu who's speaking Japanese.

Muramatsu said in a recent speech and magazine article that the 1977 Carter gaffe in Poland could have been avoided if the interpreter hired by the U.S. State Department had traveled on the plane with the president and gone over the draft remarks.

But it was raining and cold as the interpreter awaited the plane at Warsaw airport "and I can imagine that there wasn't enough light for him even to take a look over the president's shoulder to see what he was reading."

So Carter, instead of delivering some innocuous remarks about wanting to get to know the hopes of the Poles, had his words translated into a wish to know about their carnal desires.

Suzuki's "wise mouse" comment in Washington this year brought newspaper editorials pointing out that on defense spending surely Japan could be something other than either a mouse or a lion.

The alarmed Japanese embassy in Washington called newspapers and told them the translation was wrong — the prime minister said Japan didn't want to be a roaring lion but a wise porcupine, an animal people don't mess with lightly. That explanation tickled editorial funnybones and this time the comments were humorous.

Muramatsu said the Suzuki interpretation problem came because the room was noisy, the interpreter couldn't see the prime minister and no one in the audience corrected him.

"If I were there I would have liked to have been corrected, right then and there, in the interest of the best communication," Muramatsu said.

Muramatsu said one of the main problems translators face is protocol people who decide who stands where, and who "try to push the interpreters as far back as possible."

"I really feel that I should not only be able to hear my client well but see his facial expressions because when he tells what sounds like a joke I would like to know if it's a well-meant, friendly piece of humor or whether it's meant to be a sarcastic remark.

"Often one has to see his face to tell which is the case."

Muramatsu said one of the worst horrors for an interpreter is a speaker who delights in puns. In fact, nearly all humor can be treacherous.

He cited as an example the return of the space shuttle to California in April and a controller joking as it churned up the sands of the Mojave Desert that, "We're going to dust it off first" before the inspection.

He said his checks with Japanese later found few who recognized the line as a joke because they treated it as a historic moment, one at which Japanese wouldn't use humor.

"Many thought they were referring to some kind of radioactive contamination or something that the spaceship Columbia had picked up in outer space."

Want Millard Fillmore Day

By DOUG McCLELLAN
El Paso Times

ALAMOGORDO, N.M. (AP) — There is a conspiracy afoot in America — one so insidious, and so well-financed as to make assassination plots and other schemes seem as innocent as fresh-faced boys in knickers.

That, anyway, is the view of two history professors at New Mexico State University's Alamogordo branch.

For nearly a decade, branch director David Townsend and Peter Hendrickson have fought a battle — not altogether serious — against the covert powers behind the conspiracy, which Townsend says seeks to sully the reputation of one of the greatest American presidents and a savior of New Mexico — Millard Fillmore.

Besides several important claims in office — the first president to have a bathtub in the executive chambers; the first president to have a stepmother; the 13th president — Fillmore is one of the heroes in the Land of Enchantment's never-ending struggle against its neighbor, the land-greedy state of Texas.

Since 1973, Townsend and Hendrickson have urged the governor to proclaim Fillmore's birthday, Jan. 7, "Millard Fillmore Day" in New Mexico. Their efforts have failed so far, which Townsend blames on the far-reaching influence of the anti-Millard Fillmore forces.

Fillmore ensured his niche in New Mexico history by the way he handled a land-grab attempt by New Mexico's neighbor to the southeast.

In 1848, Texas claimed all of New Mexico east of the Rio Grande River, Townsend says. The Texans threatened to send militia into New Mexico and begin enforcing Texas laws.

In 1850, with a proclamation famous in New Mexico history, he flatly denied Texas had any claim to New Mexico.

To reinforce his point, the president sent 750 federal soldiers to New Mexico and said he would send more if there were too many Texans for New Mexico authorities to handle.

Townsend and Hendrickson drafted a resolution calling for "Millard Fillmore Day," citing the "honor and determination of this president whose actions in 1850 not only saved the eastern portion of New Mexico from a terrible fate, but also prevented the beautiful and historic city of Santa Fe from becoming just another Texas town."

In 1973, the two asked Gov. Bruce King to adopt the resolution. He never answered their letter.

But Townsend and Hendrickson have not given up.

Their new plan calls for them to distribute copies of the resolution to New Mexico citiizens. Then when someone receives a piece of junk mail with a business reply envelope, he should slip a resolution into the envelope and mail it off to wherever.

"Don't use the other kinds of envelopes because you have to pay for them," Townsend warns.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: W equals T

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Ginseng Research Underway In N.C.

By ELISSA McCRARY
Associated Press Writer

MILLS RIVER, N.C. (AP) — The small garden plot surrounded by a wire fence may not look impressive, but growing in the rich, black earth are thousands of dollars worth of rare plants prized for their healing properties.

The valuable plants are ginseng, but they're not for sale. The ginseng patch is part of a unique research project being conducted at the Mountain Horticultural Crops Research Station in Henderson County. The study — to determine if ginseng can be grown as a cash crop by farmers — is the only one of its kind in the world.

"We started this particular experiment when we got so many questions about growing ginseng and found out we didn't have any answers," said Dr. Tom Konsler, project leader and a horticulture professor at North Carolina State University.

"I'm certain this can be a money-making crop for farmers in this area," he added.

Ginseng or "sang," as the mountain people call it, is a mysterious plant that grows in the rich, cool woods from Canada to Florida. The root of ginseng plants has been prized for thousands of years by the Chinese, who believe it can cure most diseases. They also believe the dried root is an aphrodisiac. A pound of ginseng roots sells for about $135.

Export of dried ginseng roots to Hong Kong from the United States began in the 1700s. Most of the ginseng grown in this country is still exported to China.

Ginseng is a delicate looking five-leaved plant. In the fall its clusters of seed pods atop the plant turn brilliant red. It is illegal to dig the rare plant before it drops its seeds.

Cultivating ginseng is not a new idea, but growing it as a marketable crop, like corn or tobacco, is. Konsler and his assistants spend their days checking soil acidity and the effects of different fertilizers on the ginseng plant.

"We know that ginseng grown in cultivated surroundings, instead of in the wild, matures faster," said Konsler, one of the world's foremost authorities on ginseng culture. "Ginseng roots grown in our plot are bigger at three years than ginseng in the wild after as much as 14 years."

The only problem with cultivated ginseng is that it is worth less than half the amount wild ginseng brings. Scientists say there is no difference betweeen the two as far as they can tell.

"All we know is that the Chinese believe that some of the medicinal and aphrodisiac properties are lost in cultivation," Konsler said.

Sales To Boom In Video Games

NEW YORK (UPI) — Sales of video games are expected to exceed $1 billion by 1985, according to an industry source.

Because of the increased popularity of video and home computer games, cartridge sales of new games are doubling each year, says Jim Levy, president of a cartridge company (Activision).

At present Americans have installed more than 5 million systems in their homes, Levy said, and the market is growing by 50 percent a year in the United States and an even greater rate in froeign countries. However, he pointed out, the industry does have problems.

"The industry has had a continuing struggle with being out of stock of the popular cartridges, the lack of cross-compatibility of hardware systems and uncertainty among retailers about how to display and merchandise game cartridges," Levy said.

Philippines To Celebrate Gen. MacArthur's Return

By DAVID BRISCOE
Associated Press Writer

PALO, Philippines (AP) — A lifelike monument of the late Gen. Douglas A. MacArthur wading ashore here in Leyte to liberate the Philippines from Japan in World War II usually attracts more Japanese war veterans than Americans.

But on Tuesday, when scores of Filipinos, Americans and Australians honor MacArthur and his 200,000 allied troops who started landing on this central Philippine island of Leyte on Oct. 20, 1944, the Japanese will have no part on the program.

Some bitterness remains here after 37 years.

"There are hard feelings among those who remember the cruelty and now feel we are victims of the Japanese economy," said Gus Arnaiz, part owner of a newspaper in nearby Tacloban, the provincial capital where MacArthur set up his liberation headquarters and re-established the Philippines government under the late President Sergio Osmena.

Arnaiz drives a World War II vintage American jeep but recently had to replace its engine with a Japanese brand.

Younger residents, many two generations away from the war, have no memories of the Japanese occupation or the MacArthur landing, however.

"We don't know the man," another girl added.

On a dusty corner across the street, the Palo public library has 3,170 books, most of them contributed by Palo's sister city, Palo Alto, Calif. But the library has no books about World War II, no pictures of MacArthur, no trace of Palo's one great moment in history.

The $1.3 million MacArthur memorial, completed by the government in 1977, is just a few steps from the Palo Beach, 350 miles south of Manila. It includes figures of MacArthur, Osmena and five other men, all 1½ times life size, caught in midstep in water. The monument is in a pool with a wave-making machine.

Not even the memorial's sculptor, Filipino Anastacio Caedo, can identify all seven figures. He did the sculptures from photographs of the landing.

Caedo said he wanted to make them of brass but there wasn't time or funds to get them ready for the 1977 anniversary, so he did them in reinforced concrete with a metallic olive-drab paint.

He also spent eight months building a giant landing barge for a backdrop as it appears in the actual photographs and had it shipped in pieces from his Manila studio. Imelda Marcos, the Philippines first lady, who is from the nearby town of Tolosa, ordered it torn down just before the unveiling because she said the monument should honor men not barges.

Caedo, who friends say "cried like a baby" over the barge's destruction, said he still feels the memorial is not as good as it might have been.

"It's incomplete, as if they walked up out of the sea," he said.

One figure that can be identified is Brig. Gen. Carlos P. Romulo, now the Philippines' 82-year-old foreign minister, who appears in a helmet behind MacArthur.

Romulo, on MacArthur's staff as the general waited in Australia to fulfill his promise to return to the Philippines, is unable to attend the ceremony Tuesday because he will be attending the North-South summit with President Ferdinand E. Marcos in Cancun, Mexico.

The memory of MacArthur still pays dividends for U.S.-Filipino relations, Romulo said in an interview in New York.

"We owe him a debt of gratitude that we cannot forget....His name is revered and idolized in the Philippines," Romulo said.

He recalled that there were still Japanese snipers in the trees on the day of the landing but "that did not deter Gen. MacArthur from wading to the beach" where he broadcast his return via shortwave radio.

"People of the Philippines," MacArthur said, "by the grace of God, the American forces have returned to liberate you from the enemy."

A. Espinoza, who is in charge of a "Reunion for Peace" program that allows World War II veterans on both sides 50 percent discounts on hotels and travel within the Philippines, said about 58,000 Japanese veterans or family members have returned since 1977, while only 14,000 Americans have come to view their war memorials.

He said this is mainly because Japan is so much closer.

The discount program is to run out at the end of the year, but Espinoza said he expects it to be extended two more years to cover the 40th anniversary of the fall of Bataan and Corregidor, where Americans staged their final defense of the Philippines in the early part of the war.

Palo Town Councilman Jose Espeletea, 65, still remembers MacArthur but says he thinks the general has been given too much attention.

"Why should we glamorize one man?" he asks, displaying a T-shirt with the slogan for Palo's celebration this year: "The Yanks Have Landed."

Planning Raise Expensive Mink

By KEVIN McCULLEN
Associated Press Writer

COALVILLE, Utah (AP) — The creator of the world's rarest, darkest and most expensive mink plans an encore — if he lives long enough.

John Adkins says he's determined to present the fashion world with an improved Black Willow mink, one more glamorous than the original Black Willow a senior vice president of Neiman-Marcus Co. calls the finest mink available.

"There's a synonym for both John Adkins and his mink and that's quality," says David Wolfe, the Neiman-Marcus executive. "His product — and there's no doubt about it — is the finest in the world. There's no other mink that's even close."

Adkins, who has spent most of his 74 years in the small city of Coalville, stunned the fashion industry in 1966 when he unveiled the Black Willow, a rare dark mink with fine, coal-black fur.

He sold about 500 pelts at a fur buyer's auction in New York City that year. One bundle had pelts that sold for $1,100 apiece — the highest price ever paid before or since, Wolfe says.

"He set a standard for quality that year that has lasted ever since," Wolfe says. "John worked hard to develop that mink and the results are fabulous. It's a real example of diligence, where a person's character and quality stands out in their work."

Now Adkins has developed through inbreeding an even darker Black Willow he plans to unveil in 1983.

But Adkins underwent surgery in October 1980 for removal of a malignant tumor on his pancreas. Physicians gave the father of nine children two months to live.

"I've been lucky in that I don't get sick like most people," Adkins says. "The doctor said he was amazed at how I was handling the chemotherapy. I've been fortunate and we're hoping I live long enough to start producing these new mink.

"You never know how long you're going to live — that's up to the Lord. But I'm still working," he says.

Adkins and his family have about 5,500 mink at their ranch along Echo Reservoir in northern Utah, the No. 2 state in mink production last year with sales of about 465,700 pelts worth $16 million.

Wolfe says a Black Willow mink is prized for its dark guard hairs and naturally deep coloration, in contrast with some other mink coats that are dyed black. Pelts from Black Willow mink also have a lightweight and supple leather, which makes for a lighter coat.

Dark mink coats also are more fashionable because they can be worn most of the year, Adkins says.

Neiman-Marcus sells a Black Willow coat for between $12,000 and $18,000 and demand always exceeds supply, Wolfe says.

"People appreciate quality," he says. "People would rather spend the $18,000 on a Black Willow coat than $800 for a lesser coat that's not going to last as long. It's like having the finest Rolls-Royce and Mercedes-Benz."

Adkins and his family auction a varying number of bundles of 40-50 pelts in New York City each year to buyers from around the world.

Neatness Counts Again Today's School Students

By LEE MITGANG
AP Education Writer

Hair is less shaggy, and probably styled with a blow dryer. Jeans are pressed and boast designer labels on the back pockets. Penny loafers are as plentiful as beat-up running shoes.

"It's cool," once again, to be neat, says Judith Russo, who recently attended high school in Seattle.

A check of public schools across the country, from Providence, R.I., to Albuquerque, N.M., indicates that after decades of pushing for more lenient standards of dress and personal grooming, students are toning down what they wear and, like the rest of the country, growing more conservative.

School authorities say the trend is almost entirely voluntary and coincides with the more tolerant attitudes of schools toward the often outlandish styles of recent years.

In Des Moines, Iowa, where the school dress code was so strict in the 1950s that students were sent home for not wearing belts, "We think there are more important things to do with our time and efforts than enforce a dress code," said system spokesman Norm Miller.

Roughly half the states allow local districts to have school dress codes, but rigid rules were generally overruled in numerous lawsuits in the 1960s and '70s.

A striking example of the flexibility schools now practice occurred Wednesday in Garland, Texas, where male students gathered 700 signatures and persuaded North Garland High School officials to allow boys to wear earrings.

Some rules remain, of course. While most districts have abandoned dress codes, many still prohibit apparel or jewelry that poses a health hazard or is distracting to classroom life.

In Baltimore, for instance, platform shoes so high they could be considered potentially dangerous to the wearers are taboo. In Cooley High School in Detroit, assistant principal Ocie Curry says plunging necklines, see-through blouses, short-shorts and jogging suits are off limits.

Burbank, Calif., school officials are cracking down this fall on the bra-less look, bare midriffs, shorts and shirts emblazoned with sex or drug slogans. Boys in Phoenix, Ariz., who wear only sleeveless undershirts are being urged to wear shirts.

A public school in Cleveland — a "magnet" school named the Fundamental Education Center — requires its students to wear uniforms, white or blue shirt or blouse with navy blue trousers or skirts and a dark blue sweater or jacket.

Edward Knight, principal of Weymouth North High School in Weymouth, Mass., said, "We try to discourage what could be looked upon as beach wear."

On Wednesday, the Chicago Board of Education approved a new, loose dress guideline: "Dress which is disruptive to the educational process is not permitted."

"School boards are much more sophisticated now, and kids are more neat," said Thomas Shannon, executive director of the National School Boards Association in Washington. "The kids who revolted in the '60s in fact won. They made their point."

Shannon and others are quick to add that the growing conservatism of school garb is at least partly a function of more modest fashions. It's far easier for principals to go along with the designer jeans and T-shirts of the '80s than the hot pants of yesteryear.

"The students are becoming much, much more conservative in their dress," Sam Lee, a spokesman for the St. Louis Board of Education, said. "They're not as bushy-haired or straggly, and more of the girls are wearing skirts and blouses."

School officials note that they consider the new conservatism in school clothes completely unrelated to the new conservatism in politics.

In Pacific Palisades, Calif., where President Reagan lived before moving to the White House, Jim Mercer, principal of Palisades High School, said there is "no way" the election of a conservative president had anything to do with more conservative fashions.

"It's been a slow process. It isn't something that began with an election in January," he said.

The Reagan administration, however, may soon make a mark on school clothes. In April, Education Secretary T.H. Bell proposed ending a regulation which allowed high school students to file federal complaints about restrictive dress codes.

The regulation generally forbids schools from enforcing rules that discriminate on the basis of sex. Under the rule, for instance, schools cannot forbid girls to wear jeans unless boys are also forbidden. More commonly, schools cannot forbid long hair for boys without similar rules for girls.

The regulation may be abolished before the end of the year, according to a spokeswoman at the Education Department's Office of Civil Rights.

Women's groups and Indians are among those who oppose the proposed rule change, fearing it could lead some school districts to renew rules forbidding girls to wear pants or culottes, or keep Indian children from wearing their hair long according to tradition.

But like all student fads, neatness, too, may pass.

"It's cyclical, like anything else," said Lawrence Buford, associate superintendent for the Austin, Texas, Independent School District. "I'm sure it all will change in the next year or two. Something else will catch on."

'Answer' To Cube Puzzle

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Two brothers from Menlo Park are marketing a way to break the mind-boggling Rubik's Cube puzzle in record time.

The answer, they say, is to take their small, mallet-like club and smash the multi-colored cube to smitherines.

The Cube Smasher not only undoes the subtleties of the cube, but it also is effective on other, similar puzzles that have baffled millions.

"There are all different kinds of ways to use it," says Roger Hill, 26, who developed the "answer" with his brother Steven. "You can swat the cube, smash it or club it.

"The ultimate goal is to beat it into 43 quintillion pieces, which is the number of possible combinations in the puzzle."

Several books have been written on how to solve the cube, which challenges the player to re-match its six colored sides after mixing them up, but none offers the simplicity of the smasher.

Hill said he and his 24-year-old brother, Steven, developed the smasher after listening to friends express frustration over the cube, some 30 million of which have been sold worldwide.

"This thing has caused so much anxiety and frustration across the country — causing marital problems and stress at work — I just like to sneak up on it when it's not looking and smash it," Roger Hill said.

The Hills say they have orders for 25,000 smashers and hope to sell a million, at $4 each, by Christmas. The device comes with a 24-page illustrated booklet.

Exposition For Japan In '85

TSUKUBA, Japan (AP) — An attendance of 20 million is projected by planners of Tsukuba, Expo '85, an international exposition that will open March 17, 1985, at Tsukuba, 38 miles northeast of Tokyo.

Its central theme will be "Dwellings and Surroundings — Science and Technology for Man at Home." It will focus on the impact of science and technology on a worldwide basic concern, the homes and environments in which people lead their daily lives.

The exposition is designed to appeal to a broad spectrum of the public, from the scientist to the layperson, from the youngster to the adult, according to the Japan Association for the International Exposition, Tsukuba 1985.

"Interested insert buyers should also pay close attention to how the appliance connects with the existing fireplace flue — at or above the damper being the safest and most efficient point. In Oregon, for example, state codes require a "positive connection" between the insert flue and the chimney flue. Installations that vent into the open area behind or above the insert have the potential of depositing large accumulations of creosote inside the fireplace cavity."

Colorful tile borders: attractive decorative accent for kitchens

Decorating your kitchen with tile borders is the latest news from the Italian Tile Center. The contrast of patterned tiles against plain background tiles adds an element of excitement and drama to what might otherwise be a very plain looking room.

Because kitchen cabinets provide only a large, uninteresting expanse of wood or metal, the remaining decoration in this much used room takes on added importance. The walls and floor need to be bright, gay and colorful.

Designer tiles, too

The variety of Italian ceramic tile patterns available has increased greatly in the last few years. Famous fashion designers, such as Valentino and Pierre Cardin, are now turning their talents toward tile.

Up-to-the-minute designs

Sophisticated stars, circles and heart patterns from these designers offer a modern look to this ancient material. Color choices in these new patterns range from striking red, navy or cocoa brown to soft, wash-effect pastels.

Some easy, useful decorating tips include:

- Decorate the border of a long, under-window counter with patterned tiles.
- A patterned border around a window is all the decoration needed there.
- For the floor, obtain a "rug" effect by laying patterned tiles as a border.
- For added color emphasis, use tile grout mixed in a color to match the border pattern.
- Personalize your room by creating your own designs using the variety of tiles and colors on the market.

Because ceramic tile needs only a wipe with a damp sponge or mop to be kept clean, it is the ideal choice for kitchen walls, counters and floors.

RED TOPIARY TREES brighten the walls and floor as a border motif in this Italian ceramic tile kitchen. Other red accents are shutters at the window and painted legs of the straw cushioned stools under the long kitchen counter. The eating counter also doubles as a preparation and serving area for multi-purpose use. For a free color brochure full of design ideas, write Italian Tile Center, Dept. A BATHROOM MAKES A QUICK SWITCH from dreary to cheery with a plant hung in front of the window, a soft skirt hiding ugly pipes under the sink, and Bowl Power™ in the tank to banish ring around the toilet bowl. The bowl will stay clean, with clear water, for up to four months.

Give a springtime lift to that boring bathroom

A dreary bathroom can take all the pleasure out of a long hot bath or an experimental make-up session.

One of the quickest ways to change the atmosphere of the whole room is with paint or wallpaper. A light shade will make the bathroom look bigger and airier; a darker, warmer color will impart a cosy feeling.

If you like a modern look consider a vivid color scheme such as red, white and blue, or a stark black and white. For a traditional effect, look for wallcovering in a soft shade with a subdued print.

If you're not ready for a full-room makeover, you can still change the ambience from dreary to cheery with a few simple touches. Here are some ideas that can give big returns for a small investment:

- Add some plants–they'll thrive in the humid environment. You probably can't think of any place in the bathroom to plant a plant, so put up a couple of shelves.

You could also hang a plant in front of the window for guaranteed light, or find a tall floor plant that will fit into a particular spot.

- Play a trick with mirrors–apply mirror squares to an entire wall and the room will grow visually and look brighter.
- Sew a skirt for an old-fashioned wall-mounted sink. A soft, smock-topped skirt in a pretty fabric will hide ugly pipes and provide storage space for cleaning implements. Attach the skirt with fastening tape so it will be easy to remove for laundering.
- Avoid ring around the toilet bowl by putting in the tank a strong, long-lasting automatic cleaner like Bowl Power™ from the makers of Lysol® products. The bowl will stay clean, with clear water, for up to four months with little or no scrubbing.
- Put an old standing radiator under cover. Box it in a window-wide cabinet that has a grille on top to release the heat and shelves at each end, all painted the wallcover color.

Constructive way of ending boredom: create a hobby center

Are you keeping time by the programs on the television set? Maybe that's a signal to turn that passive activity into more industrious pursuits.

Whether it's sewing, painting or just ordinary "fix it" work you enjoy, an indoor hobby center (even if it's just a corner) can help spur you into developing your creative interests.

Fun to do

Does setting up a hobby center sound like work? It can be fun . . . just select an out-of-the-way spot and follow these steps to create your own multi-purpose work area.

Pull together all those loose supplies and tools scattered throughout the house . . . giftwraps, stationery, hardware, craft projects, etc. You'll save time by not having to hunt for these when that "creative surge" hits. Plus, you won't find yourself buying duplicates of items simply because you can't locate them.

Hobby center musts

Organize supplies according to categories . . . one shelf for tools, another for needlecraft . . . however your personal interests dictate. A table, chair and good lighting are musts, and will be the focal point of this area. Keep supplies you'll use most frequently at arm's reach; others can occupy less convenient space.

Stackers and storage bins by Rubbermaid now come in bright colors and are sturdy enough to stack several feet high with ease. One row might hold tools, another macrame supplies, sewing remnants and other hobby essentials.

Check off all the goods you have stored in this hobby area. Then make a list of what you still need and do your shopping in one trip. Keep a checklist in your "creative corner" so you can jot down items as they need replacing.

Tell family or friends you live with what you've done and how it can be useful for them too. Your hobby center can save everyone time and just might inspire others to take up a new hobby too.

Now, the next time you're tempted to turn on the tube, aim yourself toward that fully-equipped hobby center instead. Who knows, you just may be another undiscovered artist!

A HOBBY CENTER requires storage helpers and this one is designed to adapt to a variety of projects. Note how two milk crates were stacked and treated to a custom-built wood top which makes a handy side table (and storage spot) for this artist's retreat. Stackers and milk crates from Rubbermaid.

Home decor for the eighties

Styling for today

"Space, money and mood are the key influences in the way our homes will look in 1981," says Anne Anderson, executive editor of House Beautiful magazine.

"Sometimes singly and sometimes all together, these elements are producing some of the most dramatic changes in years in the American dwelling."

Begin with space. New homes and construction are increasing in cost. The need for economy has produced ingeniously designed and more efficient living quarters. Individual buildings have given way to continuous units, eliminating outside walls and allowing volume installation of wiring and plumbing.

Architects have opened interiors through use of skylights and greenhouses, giving an illusion of space and sunlight. Like building blocks, one apartment nestles into the next, allowing for individual variation while using every square foot.

Open space is often common. Amenities like a pool or tennis court for a group of owners or tenants is increasingly popular.

This better use of space is not only economical. More and more Americans are two income families with a preference for enjoying leisure time rather than spending it cleaning or cooking. They want to save on fuel and gas bills. All these needs are being met by smaller, better designed housing.

Of course, in this country, there is never any one trend. And, just as one group of people will seek one solution to living, another will find a different way.

For many, all the extra space they want is to be found in old buildings which can be restored. Renovation most often takes place in city centers. Low initial cost is a factor, but easy access to metropolitan activities is also relevant. Jobs in town are easier to get to; so are shops, museums and the theatre.

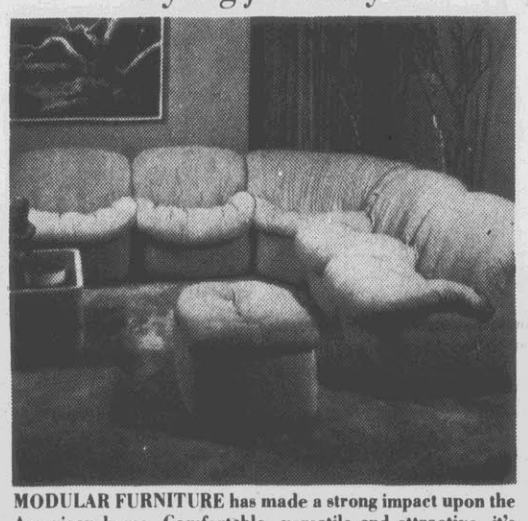
Time is a vital part of mood. People don't want to work at home. They want to relax and enjoy. According to Anderson, they spend less time on cooking except for entertaining. They prefer simplicity and elegance in food.

And, since most family units are smaller, with each family member off doing his own thing during the day, they want to relax when they are together.

The walls between dining room and kitchen have come down. What used to be the den is now part of the living room or kitchen. Casual living is a fact.

Inside, homes are simpler, more comfortable and touched with more color than seen in quite some time. Easy care fabrics and surfaces are important, as is a basically cheerful feeling. Soft but bright pastels, sunshine and ice cream tones seem to add an innocent optimism in this complex world.

"Above all," says Anderson, "Americans, men and women, have become much more sophisticated and less self conscious about their homes. As a result, they are more interesting, more personal and more successful than before. Space, money and mood have created parameters which seem to bring out the best in everyone."



MODULAR FURNITURE has made a strong impact upon the American home. Comfortable, versatile and attractive, it's really the ideal living room furniture for apartment dwellers who are short on space, but hope to expand in the future. These Zurich modular seating units, the best sellers in the Domani line (a division of Burris Industries), truly combine fashion and function. A corner table adds yet another option.

From common to culinary, cooktops offer the choice

Cook-out fun and flavor in the convenience of your kitchen, without messy clean-up? It's all possible with the new Converta-Cook™ cooktop from Tappan— a complete culinary center that offers a wide selection of à la carte cooking options.

This multi-faceted modular top gives you nine modules to choose from, including a self-basting rotisserie, a griddle and a grill for real cooking flexibility.

Best of all, clean-up is extra easy as most items remove or come apart for cleaning in the dishwasher.

With the special grill module, the favorite flavor of outdoor-grilled foods can be achieved indoors. A powerful downdraft venting system captures smoke and splatters, directing them down and out of the kitchen.

This special downdraft venting system allows for the island installation that is popular with many cooks today. Conventional overhead hood-type ventilation can also be used with the cooktop.

A rotisserie module adds the finishing touch to the indoor barbecue. A brushed aluminum cover seals in heat and eliminates spatters, while slots in the cover allow the downdraft to pull excess smoke from inside the rotisserie unit.

MODERN COOKTOPS, such as this Tappan Converta-Cook™, offer cooks a wide range of options with a selection of nine cooking modules. The module choices include a self-basting rotisserie, a griddle and a grill for real cooking flexibility.

Change-of-pace brunch

For a change-of-pace Sunday brunch, the family-sized griddle makes preparing eggs and bacon or flipping pancakes quick and easy.

Don't be surprised when the family teenager actually volunteers to help! The griddle makes cooking fun. A non-stick DuPont Silverstone coating on the dishwasher-safe griddle makes clean-up a snap.

Standard electric cooking elements are available with either open-coil modules or with a one-piece smooth top module. It takes only seconds to plug in these units for complete cooktop convenience with the Tappan Converta-Cook™.

Augment workspace

Modern cooktops can do even more than cook— they can increase kitchen workspace. A maple cutting board can be placed over the cooktop to offer extra kitchen work space.

With all the choices offered by this unique cooktop system, the ultimate choice is left up to cooks— a "common" kitchen or the ultimate in complete culinary centers?

A frilly, feminine bedroom is the perfect place to relax

After a busy day—whether at work or school—one of the nicest ways for a modern miss to relax and unwind is in a fresh, utterly feminine and romantic-looking bedroom, especially one in which she has put her own personal touch.

It isn't necessary to be an interior designer to think of ways to redecorate a bedroom to make it a very personal haven.

Quick facelift

Among the many creative ideas for giving a bedroom a face-lift, the fastest and least expensive way is with crisp new curtains and bedspreads.

In today's market, there is a wide assortment of very stylish and moderately priced ready-made bedroom ensembles. The harried young woman no longer needs to take time out during her busy day to try to mix and match patterns and styles.

According to Kay Lewis, Vice President of Design for Kenneth Home Fashions, "more attention has been focused on the design of bedroom ensembles in recent years than ever before." She noted that there are more pattterns to choose from and the quality is better than ever. Many are even washable.

The romantic canopy

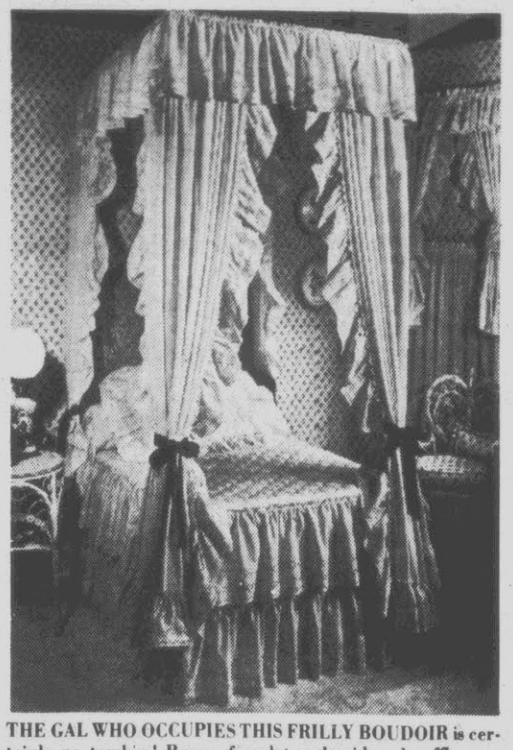
From a very private and feminine room, one of the most exciting ways of escaping from the hustle and bustle of everyday life is by lying beneath a canopy. Even if the bed doesn't have one, it's easy to make by constructing a framework with dowels bought in a lumberyard.

Rows of eyelet embroidered ruffles add a soft look to the room. A great way of creating your own little "heaven" is by hanging a pair of eyelet embroidered deeply ruffled curtains, such as Kenneth's "Valerie," on each corner topped by the canopy valance. For an airy look, use tiebacks and, for a free-flowing effect, leave the curtains open.

Moreover, there are many simple and creative ways for giving ready-made a custom-made look. An idea offered by the designer, is to use tiebacks such as braid wool, wool tassel, a strand of pearls, or even a sash from an old dress that complements the curtains.

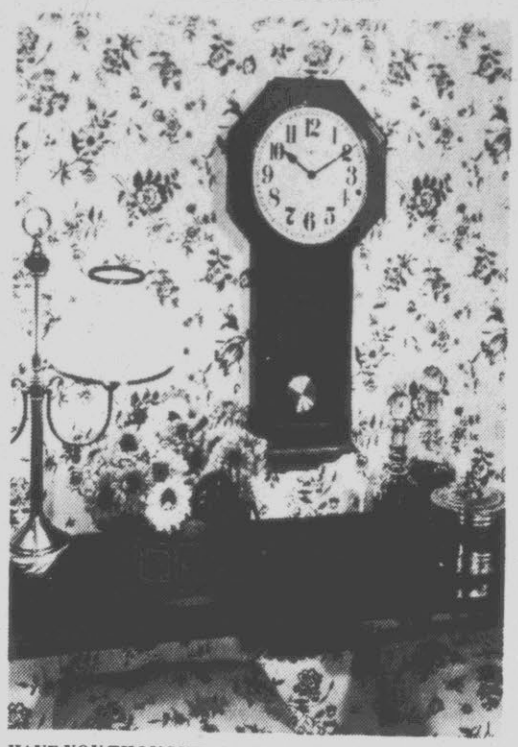
For a more formal look, simply twist the strands of wool to make a heavy cord tie. Or try making a tie using wide grosgrain or velvet ribbon that picks up the colors of the drapery. For a swaggered back effect, use a heavier tie-back such as a silk tie or a leather belt.

As times change, ideas change. A bedroom can be personalized according to a woman's change in lifestyle, mood or even just for fun during a rainy Sunday afternoon.



THE GAL WHO OCCUPIES THIS FRILLY BOUDOIR is certainly no tomboy! Rows of eyelet embroidered ruffles are brought together to create this utterly feminine room. The quilted double ruffle bedspread teams with a canopy ruffle used atop the homemade canopy frame. The effect is completed, according to Kay Lewis, Vice President of Design for Kenneth Home Fashions, by using four pairs of 63″ priscilla curtains tied back with velvet bows that can be let loose when privacy is needed. A set of ruffled tier curtains, teamed with short priscillas with self valance, pull the room together. This pattern called "Valerie" is from Kenneth Home Fashions collection of bedroom ensembles and comes in white or beige.

Time to decorate



HAVE YOU THOUGHT of making a clock the focal point of a room's scheme? Designer Ann Heller suggests highlighting a traditional living room with a long drop octagon clock from Howard Miller, framing it with a variety of decorative objects on a console shelf underneath and using a pretty floral wallcovering as its background.

A MAN'S HOME IS HIS CASTLE . . . or his chateau, as the case may be. The right balance of furnishings, wall coverings and carpeting creates a regal atmosphere in the room pictured here. Carpet from the "Chateau Collection" by Bigelow-Sanford Inc., fine carpet makers since 1825.

Classic, high-quality carpeting: a wise investment for your home

A number of factors will influence the direction of interior design during this decade. Changing aesthetics, the state of the economy and a renewed interest in home decorating are not the least among these, according to experts at Bigelow-Sanford, makers of carpets since 1825.

In home furnishing as in fashion, today's trends reflect a return to the classics. Time-honored mixes of interior design elements allow homeowners to choose long-lasting and versatile decorating options.

And, as more and more homeowners feel the pinch of the inflated dollar, they will opt for the products of lasting quality and reliability—products which will withstand the rigors of time and wear.

In addition, Americans during this decade will be spending more time entertaining and relaxing in their homes. The increased importance of the home environment will spark off a renewed interest in home decorating, experts believe.

During the '80s and beyond, home building costs are expected to escalate. New homes will be smaller, with fewer rooms in each house.

Homeowners will be forced to use better judgment to make smaller spaces appear larger, as well as attractive.

With these factors in mind, Bigelow-Sanford has introduced the "Chateau Collection," a group of four modern carpet masterpieces, each crafted of the very latest fibers.

The "Chateau Collection" represents a return to the classics: traditional textures combined with subdued, elegant colors and state-of-the-art technology for built-in quality. They are, quite simply, the finest carpets made. The styles include:

• Chateau Normandy—A plush carpet which combines sophistication, style and unquestionable quality to win a worthy place in Bigelow's Chateau Collection of luxury carpets.

The designers of Chateau Normandy selected soil-resistant DuPont Antron Plus yarn, with its remarkable sheen and resiliency, for a classic carpet destined to delight the most discriminating tastes. In 24 rich colors, it is performance rated for heavy traffic.

• Chateau Imperial—A superlative saxony that lives up to its name. Every elegant yard is tightly packed with beautiful, soil resistant Antron Plus yarn, giving it unheard-of density, weight and luxurious hand.

Its velvety surface highlights its deep, rich color, and the color options are the broadest ever offered: 34 in all.

• Chateau Royale—One of the richest, most luxurious carpets Bigelow has ever produced. A dense, saxony plush, it offers the perfect balance of surface beauty, elegant styling and soil and stain resistance, thanks to Anso IV nylon fiber. A carpet for the most discriminating customer, Chateau Royale comes in 22 enchanting colors.

• Chateau Elegante—The super-dense saxony weave of this carpet gives it a glowing, wool-like quality. Its soft, velvety finish and deep, plush body are fashioned from practical Anso IV fibers—practical because of their built-in soil and stain resiliency, as well as their anti-static quality.

Chateau Elegante carpets are available in 23 tempting colors, and are performance rated for heavy traffic.

MILDEW: CAUSES AND CURES

Mildew is a problem familiar to homeowners and apartment dwellers alike. It is a thin, usually black (sometimes white) growth produced by molds on many household surfaces. And, while molds are always present in the air, those that cause mildew need moisture and warm temperatures to grow.

The causes of mildew

Mildew often accompanies humid weather, especially in houses that are closed or rooms that have poor ventilation. Mildew-causing molds flourish wherever it is damp, warm, poorly lighted and/or where the air is not circulated: in cellars, crawl spaces, clothing closets; on draperies, rugs and shower curtains.

To prevent mildew, get rid of dampness in areas of your home which are prone to musty smells. Circulate the air by opening windows in dry weather or by using air conditioners or dehumidifiers. A commercial cleaning product may be necessary where advanced mildew is a problem.

How to choose the furniture retailer that suits your needs

When shopping for furniture, you'll probably visit all kinds of retail establishments, from giant warehouse operations to custom decorating shops. Each has its advantages.

Just as important as planning your furniture needs is deciding on the retailer who will best suit your requirements.

It's always a good idea to check with friends who may have first-hand knowledge about dealers in your community. The Better Business Bureau and local consumer organizations can also be of assistance.

It pays to know what benefits are available when you purchase furniture from various retailers. Perhaps the most familiar is the full-service furniture store which may vary from individually-owned businesses that have catered to local families for generations to large metropolitan stores that offer special galleries and interior design staffs.

Full-service stores

Full-service stores usually extend credit, provide delivery, warehousing and installation at little or no extra cost and accommodate returns, refunds or exchanges.

They service warranties, polish and touch up furniture upon arrival and furnish decorating assistance. Personal service is the hallmark of such stores.

Furniture styles which appeal to the general tastes of that locale are displayed in attractive room settings so customers can easily relate them to their homes.

If a style or color is not offered on the floor, trained personnel help the consumer order from catalogs which illustrate and provide pertinent information about furniture in virtually every style category and price range.

Department stores

Department stores are interested in creating an air of fashion on all floors which make them a good place to see new styles and get ideas. Furniture in tune with the latest trends is usually well-displayed to gain attention and traffic.

The customer generally buys only what is available in department stores which often extend credit to regular customers and include such services as delivery and decorating assistance in the price.

Furniture chains and warehouses deal in volume and offer stylish, value-oriented products with few "frills" in the way of service. Usually, the merchandise is still in shipping cartons and the customer is responsible for delivery, uncartoning and installation.

The advantage is that the furniture on display is immediately available with no waiting. While floor salespeople may be knowledgeable about furniture, they usually are not trained to provide decorating help.

Furniture outlets and similar operations generally offer less expensive promotional type furniture, "as is" merchandise and close-outs on groups manufacturers are discontinuing.

This dealer is operating on a low profit margin, so he generally cannot provide warranty or decorating services and usually must charge for delivery. In most cases, outlets offer "buy at your own risk" situations.

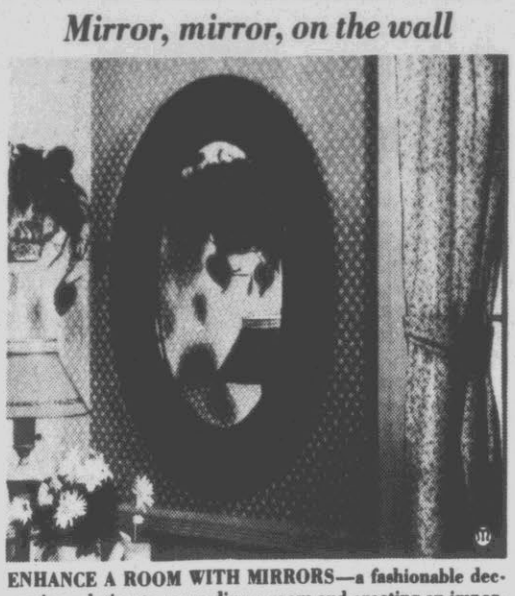
It's possible to save money on this furniture as long as you examine each piece carefully to make sure you can live with any defects.

Custom establishments

At the high end of the retail spectrum are the custom establishments that can oversee every last detail of an interior decorating program.

They are usually small, exclusive, and staffed by designers who are knowledgeable about quality merchandise available in other areas as well as furniture. Naturally, the consumer pays more for their expertise and this complete type of service.

Mirror, mirror, on the wall



ENHANCE A ROOM WITH MIRRORS—a fashionable decorating solution to expanding a room and creating an important decorative focus. New 1981 decorating trends illustrated in design guide

What home design trends are "in" in 1981? According to four leading kitchen and bath product manufacturers, open spaces and increased space efficiency will lead the kitchen and bath design trends of 1981.

"The trend toward eliminating walls that segregate rooms by activity continues to gain momentum, giving the smaller home an emphatic focal point," states the "Official Kitchen and Bath Color/Design Guide," prepared by Wilsonart, GAF, Kohler and Magic Chef.

This informative 64-page, full color Guide vividly illustrates eight innovative kitchens and four spectacular baths designed to meet homeowners' needs of the eighties.

A wide range of color-coordinated decorating schemes with two alternate color schemes for each room is offered, plus a bonus of kitchen islands and bath vanities, making this Guide the leader in "how-to" design books.

Whether remodeling, adding on or just dreaming, readers will find instructions in the Guide for ordering working drawings for these and 20 other drawings, too.

For your copy of this Guide, write "Official Kitchen and Bath Color/Design Success System," P.O. Box 2256, Dept. M, Fort Worth, TX 76113. Enclose $3.

How to take the housekeeping problems out of owning a pet

Is the high cost of hamburger and possible wear and tear on your home keeping you from having a dog? Here are some tips that could change your mind.

Forget about hamburger for a dog; it isn't as healthful or balanced a diet as the many commercial pet foods available. And, while you may like a varied menu, a variety of dog foods can give a dog a very upset stomach—and all the problems that go with it.

A 'hairy' complaint

Two major housekeeping complaints that could come from having a dog around the house are shedding and doggy odor. Odors are very easily overcome, and you can avoid too much shedding if you take some care in selecting your pet.

You'll also want to make sure you puppy is healthy and friendly. A dog with a pedigree will cost more money but that is no guarantee that the puppy will make a good pet for you.

What can happen

Very often, thoroughbreds, especially if there has been too much inbreeding, are nervous, unfriendly and given to accidents when under stress.

Knowing a dog's parents does help when it comes to evaluating many characteristics, but there are still ways to judge a puppy, even without this knowledge.

Small, short hair dogs require less food and grooming. In a mixed breed, its futuure size can usually be judged by the dog's face.

If, for example, the puppy is only part collie, but looks like a collie, the chances are that the puppy which looks like a piece of fluff will grow to collie size and will probably have a shaggy coat.

It is important to know how a dog has spent the first eight to 12 weeks of life. Dogs that have been cooped up, or have spent this time in the company of other dogs without regular and close contact with people during these early weeks, may never really adjust to family life.

Temperament important

Do not judge a dog by looks alone. Play with it. Make sure it responds to you, and shows affection.

A dog that is shy and hugs the back of the cage may tug at your heart, but it will be difficult to train, and may have emotional problems as well.

Before you buy any dog it is wise to have it checked by a veterinarian to make sure it is healthy and sound. This check-up could save you from having many problems in the years ahead.

All dogs, even poodles, shed some hair and have some odor. This comes from a natural secretion which helps keep coats shiny and weatherproofed.

One easy and extremely effective way to keep these odors under control is by using "Love My Carpet"™, a rug and room deodorizer from the makers of Lysol® products, and a great favorite with pet owners.

For a pet-proof carpet

All you do is sprinkle it lightly on the carpet as you vacuum. The anti-static ingredients in "Love My Carpet" make it easy to vacuum up hair that clings to carpet fibers, while at the same time overcoming the doggy odors trapped in your carpet. You have a choice of three scents—Regular, Citrus and Floral.

When you finish vacuuming, your room and your vacuum will smell clean and fresh. It's a housekeeping tip that helps make having a pet a pleasure.

AN EXTREMELY EFFECTIVE WAY to keep doggy odors that get trapped in the carpet under control is by using "Love My Carpet"™ a rug and room deodorizer that is a great favorite with pet owners. Its anti-static ingredients also make it easier to vacuum up those clinging hairs.

Window shades save energy dollars

Energy-saving—it's a topic of prime importance these days to homeowners and apartment dwellers alike. Faced with soaring energy costs, more and more people are searching out ways and means of conserving energy all year round.

Many of these energy conservation measures involve expensive structural improvements which take a long period of time to complete. But, there are many which are simple and relatively inexpensive to install, and which will pay off in lower energy bills in a few months or a year.

One of the most effective of these energy-conserving measures is the installation of energy efficient window shades, such as new Energy Guard™ from Clopay Corp.

Energy Guard window shades feature a specially formulated shade material that acts as an excellent insulator and sun reflector. When properly installed, Energy Guard shades can reduce summer heat gain through windows by as much as 66 percent.

And, these same shades, in the winter, can reduce heat loss by as much as 24 percent compared with other window treatments.

Data gathered in laboratory tests prove Energy Guard to be more energy efficient than storm windows, insulated drapes, woven wood shades and one inch blinds.

Energy Guard is available in either of Clopay's cut-in-store or Sure Fit, trim-at-home shade lines. Shades come in four widths—37¼", 46¼", 55¼" and 73¼"—and are six feet long.

They're constructed of white, light-blocking, linen-embossed vinyl for long wear and easy cleaning. All shades are mounted on Clopay's patented, adjustable steel rollers to ensure an exact fit.

For more information on Energy Guard, write Clopay Corporation, Household Products Division, Dept. M, Clopay Square, Cincinnati, OH 45214, or call (513) 381-4800.

ENERGY SAVING MADE SIMPLE: An efficient and inexpensive means of conserving energy in the home all year round, attractive Energy Guard™ window shades help keep out summer's heat and winter's cold. From Clopay Corporation, they feature a specially formulated shade material which acts as both an insulator and sun reflector.

Let your imagination go—be a creative homemaker

Homemaking can be as creative a career as you want it to be. All that's required is letting your imagination go and opening your mind to new ideas.

Think of unusual ways to brighten your home with fresh flowers, for example. Invent tasty variations on the classic baked potato, for instance. Remember, the little things in life are what really do count, and variety truly is the spice of life.

To show you how simple, yet innovative, ideas can make life more enjoyable with very little effort and even less money, S&H Green Stamps' latest gift catalog, "Ideabook '81," offers lots of clever household hints along with more than 1,800 top-quality, name-brand items filling 100 colorful pages.

To brighten up your home with charming decorator touches, the people at S&H Green Stamps suggest:

- Floating fresh flowers on water in ceramic bowls to make lovely room accents.
- Placing candlesticks surrounded with clusters of fragrant greenery and unshelled nuts on your prettiest serving plate to beautify the dining room table.
- Filling stemmed glassware with linen napkins; fold in half, accordion pleat across, then fan out to dress up table settings.
- Arranging pine cones, gourds, dried flowers or fresh fruits in baskets or bowls to lend a warm, Early-American feeling to any room in the house.
- Organizing all those toiletry bottles and cosmetics scattered about the bathroom and on the dressing table in colorful plastic containers to match the decor.

You will find lots more great ideas and helpful hints in the recently published "Ideabook '81," the new gift catalog from S&H Green Stamps.

For generations creative, practical-minded homemakers have saved Green Stamps and redeemed them for valuable gifts, proving themselves to be smart shoppers who understand collecting trading stamps increases the value of their shopping dollars. S&H estimates the average family can save enough green stamps to fill two books every three weeks or so.

"Ideabook '81" boasts everything from kitchenware to cameras, luggage to linens, silver to sporting goods. 43 percent of the items are being offered for the first time, including such prestigious lines as Yves St. Laurent luggage, Buxton leather accessories, Braun kitchen appliances and William Adams silver.

Creating a striking new look with vertical blinds

HOW DO YOU HIDE UGLY WINDOWS? Designer Michael Jackson suggests solving that prevalent problem with vertical blinds. For a New York apartment he chose Levolor verticals in a soft, creamy apricot to hide not only windows but a radiator as well. Easily adjustable blinds were installed wall to wall to improve the view and at the same time provide privacy and complete light control.

Origins of Country French furniture

The inhabitants of French cities during the 17th and 18th centuries developed distinctive furniture styles which were very ornate and reflected the state of the art of urban craftsmen, wealth and local customs.

During this same period the people living in the rural provinces developed furniture geared to their needs. It was much simpler in design and reflected their more basic way of life and level of local craftsmanship.

There was not an overabundance of ornateness and that which was done was usually less detailed and more crude.

The bourgeois and peasants in the country acquired wealth, but continued to live simply. Their furniture comprised only the essentials; beds, straw seated stools, open hutches (cupboards), wardrobes and cabinets.

Then, wealthier provinces adopted the wide divergence of style of Louis XIII enthusiastically and have maintained it ever since. There was little influence of the overly ornate Louis XIV style. However, the modified details of the Louis XV style were widely adopted by the provinces.

When the French emigrated to North America in the 17th century, they brought very little furniture with them, usually only a chest or cabinet. necessary and was handcrafted by the new settlers, they reached back to their past and tried to recreate the lifestyles they left behind in France.

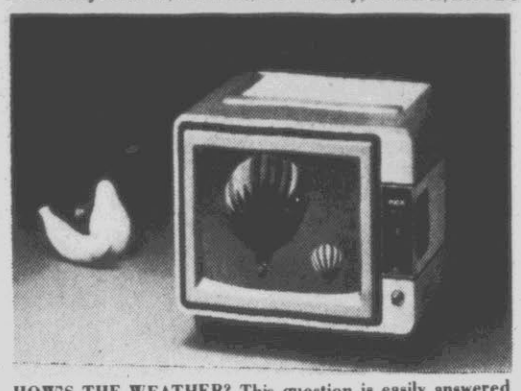
The combination of furniture, recreations from memory and new imports which eventually came to the New World, plus the intermingling of design influence with the English Colonies, gave the new French-inspired furnishings a very distinctive and charming appeal.

The scales of the pieces was often large. The details of the pieces remained fairly crude, as the tools and skills were not as refined as they were in France.

Louis XIII and Louis XV details became the most popular styles in the late 18th century and were often combined in the same pieces.

Pine was the most popular cabinet wood since it was very plentiful and was considerably easier to carve. The furniture was usually simply treated with linseed oil as a finish, which today gives the antiques from this period a warm orange-brown patina.

Today, Americans can enjoy the look of country French furniture in their own homes — as interpreted by Ethen Allan in their Chateau Normandy furnishings.



HOW'S THE WEATHER? This question is easily answered with a simple flick of a switch—any time, any place. RCA's new 9-inch ColorTrak model EFR293 has a unique weather band feature which gives the viewer an instant weather report. A compact model with AC/DC capability, this set will go anywhere—in any kind of weather.

Silverplated flatware: answer to today's dining "Shall we dine?" or "Come and get it." The difference between "dining" and "eating" is a beautifully set table. And, with today's trend of more at-home entertaining and a return to traditionalism, elegant dining is more popular than it has been in two generations.

Instead of trays in front of the television set, why not have your family table set with candles and a tablecloth? Or, for a more casual atmosphere, try ruffled placemats around a centerpiece of daisies. Whatever your preference, attractive table-top furnishings will complement and enhance any meal and turn it into a dining experience.

For a lovely table

One of the most important decisions in selecting your table-top furnishings is your choice of flatware. The styling should complement your other table-top accessories and careful consideration should be given to the alternatives of sterling, silverplate and stainless steel.

Sterling is solid silver and can be purchased and cherished as an heirloom. It has intrinsic value and timeless beauty. However, due to its cost, sterling may not fit into your budget.

On the other hand, stainless steel is economical, maintenance free, durable and very practical for everyday use. However, you sacrifice the lustre and precious value of sterling.

Attractive choice

The third choice, silverplate, is an attractive alternative for many households. It is economical, and yet it has the elegance of sterling. It is made by permanently bonding a layer of pure silver to a base metal—the heavier the layer, the more beautiful and durable the flatware.

One company, Reed & Barton Silversmiths, uses such a heavy layer of solid silver that their silverplated flatware carries a 100 year warranty.

High quality silverplate such as this has an outward appearance virtually indistinguishable from that of sterling. A fine example of beautiful quality and design in silverplate is "French Chippendale," the newest pattern in the Reed & Barton line.

With silverplated flatware, it's not, "Soup's on!" but, "Dinner is served."

ELEGANT DINING IS MADE EASY by this feminine, sophisticated silverplated flatware pattern by Reed & Barton Silversmiths. "French Chippendale" exemplifies today's trend towards beautiful and affordable at-home dining.

Breezier approach to design

Where is it written that a couch has to be placed against a wall, or that fabric patterns have to match? When it comes to decorating, the most relaxed and livable rooms upend what is traditional and conventional, according to Cosmopolitan LIVING Magazine.

Why design your home according to the rules of past generations? Here are some decorating rules just made to be broken, from Cosmopolitan LIVING.

Rule: Never mix periods or styles.

Reverse: Juxtapose the antique and the modern. Place a Louis XVI desk in a contemporary room, a 20th century fabric on a Victorian love seat, a Plexiglas cube on the Kilim rug.

Rule: Shop only at furnishings stores.

Rule: Paint walls and ceilings one color.

Rule: Dining room chairs should match.

Reverse: Chairs that are painted can be mixed with bare wood, upholstered armchairs go with hardback seats, or float a sofa on one side of the table like a banquette.

Rule: Outdoor furniture belongs on the terrace.

Reverse: Bring lawn furniture inside for seats that are casual, comfortable, carefree and much less costly.

Reverse: Show off the prettiest linens with an unmade bed. It's more inviting, more feminine and so much easier.

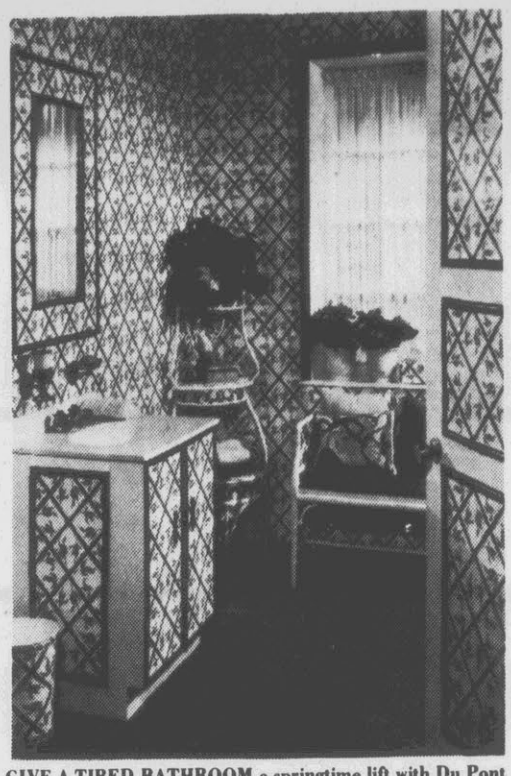
Elegant addition

CLASSIC STYLING—With leaf carving on the knee, a vase shaped baluster and a fluted column, this snap or tilt-top table harks back to a New York table which dates from approximately 1760. These tables were sometimes referred to as "china" tables, because the raised pie-crust edge was added to protect any china pieces that might be displayed thereon. By the Hickory Chair Co.



GIVE A TIRED BATHROOM a springtime lift with Du Pont "Flair Squares" prepasted wallcovering in a bright green-and-white bamboo pattern. Leftover squares and bamboo trim add up to custom paneling on door and sink cabinet, and trim the mirror, the tissue box and the wastebasket.

Give a springtime lift to that boring bathroom

Does your bathroom have a case of the blahs? Give it a springtime lift and turn it into a luxurious sanctuary quickly, easily and inexpensively.

Washable wallcoverings in attractive designs are ideal for bathrooms. Consider easy-to-handle Du Pont "Flair Squares" prepasted wallcovering in convenient one-foot squares. These colorful and inexpensive squares are easy for even the most inexperienced decorator to apply.

The green bamboo pattern shown here is fresh and bright, and easy to match. Before applying "Flair Squares," prepare the wall.

How to do it

Remove old wallcovering, wash the wall and dull down glossy surfaces. Then dip each square in room-temperature water for 30-60 seconds. Slide into position on the wall, and sponge away excess water.

Leftover squares and painted bamboo molding give this bath a custom touch. The sink base and plain door are trimmed with "Flair Squares" and bamboo molding for a paneled effect.

Mirror to match

The mirror is set in a plain plywood frame and given the same decorative treatment. More bamboo molding frames the window.

The wastebasket and tissue box are also covered in the bamboo squares, and trimmed with insertion eyelet laced with green ribbon.

GENUINE BRASS BEDS: HOME FASHION INVESTMENT

During the past five years, brass beds have been enjoying a surge of popularity which from all indications will be increasing.

The home fashion consumer is still holding a love affair with nostalgia and Victoriana. There's also a definite direction toward more luxurious and elegant furnishings and moods.

Brass bed bandwagon

And, now, a new factor has joined the brass bed bandwagon in the form of a "buy now before the price rises" attitude of the inflation hit American consumer.

In previous years if inflation was expected to get worse, consumers believed it was a bad time to purchase big ticket items. The logic was that staples were going to cost more, so it was no time to splurge on things that could be deferred.

But, a curious phenomenon is occurring today. The really large purchases such as homes and cars are almost prohibited by high interest rates.

Affordable luxuries

So, we find many consumers looking for affordable luxury items which would be wise to buy, before the price rise gets worse!

The evidence of this behavior can be seen throughout the home furnishings industry as manufacturers respond to consumer demands for better woods, more luxurious fabrics and quality workmanship.

And it's exceptionally evident in the popularity of brass in beds and in home accessories.

A good investment

Genuine brass is a precious commodity. There's little doubt that its price will rise. The consumer apparently is aware of this and is willing to spend a little more for an item which will increase in value and the genuine brass bed is just such an investment!

THOSE TINY TILES KNOWN AS CERAMIC MOSAICS are great for one-of-a-kind floors. This Block and Chain border design by Winburn Tile is pre-mounted on ready-to-install sheets but, since so many color combinations are available and room layouts vary so widely, no two installations appear alike.

About the house...

By LIS KING

If you like to express your feelings and talents in the way you decorate your home, tiling a one-of-a-kind floor should be on your list of soon-to-try projects.

For, such a floor, created by you, is much more than a money-saving spruce-up job. It's also the kind of personal investment that makes a house a home.

Here, to boost your creative thoughts, are some design ideas from the Tile Council of America:

• A plaid or gingham-patterned floor a la ceramic mosaics is sure to put a country kitchen in a class of its own. But, if you spend a lot of time in the kitchen, choose relatively quiet colors that won't tire the eye easily.

• A needlepointer's favorite Bargello interpretation is an interesting idea for a dining room floor . . . especially if the chair cushions are Bargello-stitched, too.

• Medallion motifs created with hexagon-shaped mosaics suit provincial rooms, be they of the French or South-of-the Border persuasion.

• Stripes—whether awning-bold or pinstripe-polite—are the easiest of all underfoot patterns to create. In a contemporary room just one racy stripe might do the trick.

• If you're especially creative and patient, think of an overall floral or foliage design for an enclosed porch or sun room. Such a design is also a beautiful possibility for a dining room furnished to create a gazebo atmosphere.

• Black and white exudes formality. The pattern might be symmetrically placed fleur-de-lis motifs, elaborately intertwined medallions, or a Greek Key border.

• Tiled-in-place area rugs and special motifs—such as a coat-of-arms, or a favorite needlepoint—are dramatic accents. A good example is a Navajo rug reproduced in tile and perfect for a 'plain-Jane kitchen, mud-room or foyer.

According to the Tile Council, ceramic mosaics usually come in one or two-inch squares, and in small rectangles and hexagon shapes, all in a rainbow of colors.

There are glazed and unglazed versions and, generally, only the unglazed tiles should be used for floors. It's characteristic of unglazed ceramic tile that the color goes all the way through, so it stands to reason that this product is tough.

Ceramic mosaics are usually mounted on 1 sq. ft.-sheets for easy installation, and on these sheets they're spaced for even grout lines.

If you need just a few tiles of the sheets to create your pattern, merely cut the bonding material with ordinary scissors. But, don't forget to include grout line spaces when you lay out loose tiles.

Use those new colored grouts judiciously. Remember, they can emphasize or blend. It's up to your creative eye to choose the best effect.

Today, tile-setting is a cinch if you're reasonably handy. But, to play it safe, describe all the particulars of your project to the tile retailer. Bringing snapshots helps, too. Then, follow all the good advice you get. This is one case where it doesn't pay to be a "wise guy."

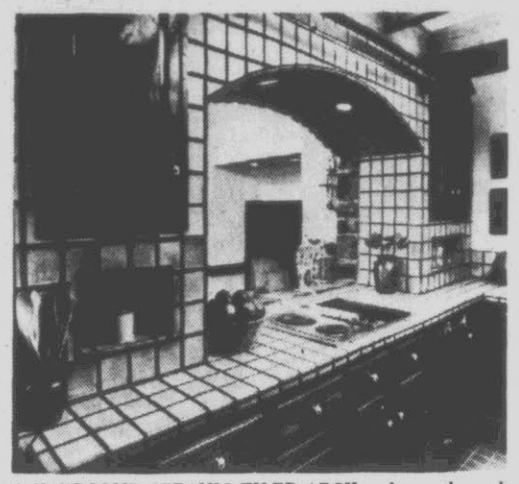
Imaginative uses of ceramic tile

Ceramic tile is a natural for almost every room in the home, but there's a lot more you can do besides installing it on your floors and walls. More than any other finishing material, ceramic tile lets you create a one-of-a-kind design that's yours alone.

Why limit yourself to ho-hum brick when you can have a ceramic tiled hearth in almost any color for your woodburning stove or fireplace? An added plus is the easy way wood chips and ashes can be swept away.

Build in a tiled wood box for close, easy storage and shelves for displaying plants or your favorite collection. American Olean Tile Company suggests a ceramic tiled freestanding fireplace in a hexagonal or circular shape or a tiled barbecue in your kitchen, family room or outside patio.



A HANDSOME CERAMIC TILED ARCH and pass-through unite kitchen and family room and make for convenient entertaining. Hot pans can be set down on the tiled countertop without fear of scorching or blistering the tile. Tiled niches on either side of arch provide handy storage space. Ceramic tile: American Olean's Primitive Encore Wheat.

New ideas for the kitchen

What kitchen can't use more storage space? Install yours with a built-in ceramic tiled niche next to your wall oven for a handy place to set hot pans. Ceramic tile won't peel or scorch.

Install a tiled shelf above the sink to store spices or display plants. A shallow, recessed food preparation area built into your tiled countertop complete with a drain and disposal unit leaves your other sink free for pots and pans clean-up. A fitted, removable chopping board over the recessed area gives you added space for preparing fruits and vegetables.

If you're thinking of making a pass-through between your kitchen and family or dining room, why not create a colorful ceramic tiled arch and counter for an attractive design touch.

In the bath

Tile your bathroom floor and walls, but don't stop there. A built-in ceramic tiled sunken tub or whirlpool is the ultimate in luxury.

Continue the flow of ceramic tile onto the vanity for a finished look and a surface that won't be harmed by hot curling irons and electric rollers.

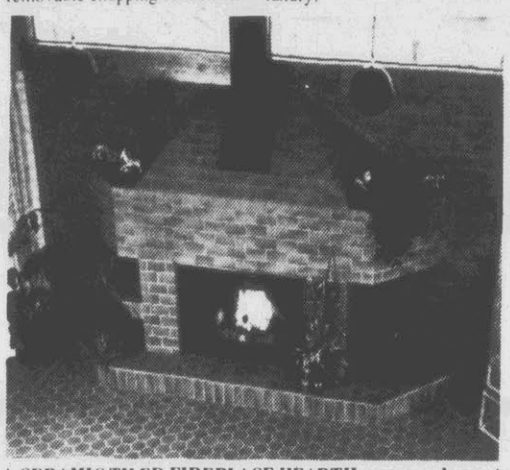
Shower conveniences

In the shower, a ceramic tiled seat offers safety as well as comfort and a tiled ledge or niche is a great place to keep soaps and sponges close at hand.

Live plants add freshness to any room, but there's always a clean-up problem due to water leaks and spilled pots. With a ceramic tiled planter or window box you can eliminate these problems.

You might even want to install an atrium or greenhouse. A ceramic tile floor cleans up easily from spilled water and soil.

Ceramic tiled planters, hearths, shelves, niches, counters. There's so much you can do with ceramic tile—all you need do is let your imagination run free.



A CERAMIC TILED FIREPLACE HEARTH creates a dramatic focal point for this vacation home with picture windows overlooking the bay. Hearth facing is set in a staggered brick design while niches and base of hearth are set in hexagon shaped tiles to match floor. Large niche at right may also be used to store wood as well as display plants. Ceramic tile: American Olean's Ember Flash quarry tile.

New computerized air conditioner rates high in energy efficiency

Sears has introduced the first computerized air conditioner. In addition to being programmable, this Kenmore window unit is designed to reduce electrical operating costs. It has a high energy efficiency rating of 9.6.

It has a LED clock with built-in-timer. The homeowner or apartment dweller can program temperature, cooling time and humidity over a 24-hour period by touching a few buttons on the digital control panel. Solid-state controls minimize the need for maintenance and repair, according to Sears.

The new air conditioner has four fan settings. To save power, the fan gradually slows as the desired temperature is reached. Then the air conditioner shuts off.

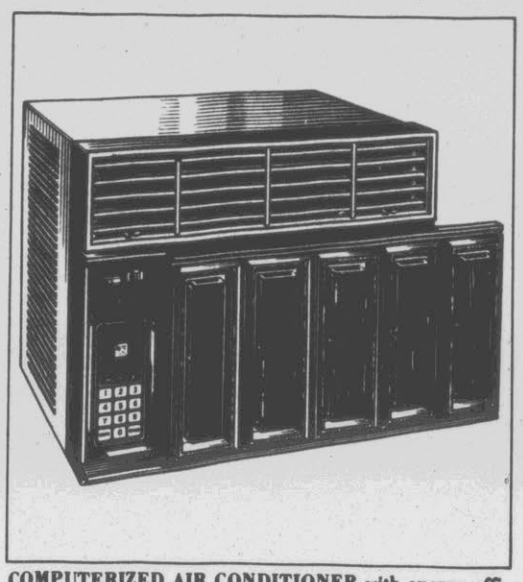
However, during periods of high humidity, a control keeps the air circulating to dehumidify with minimal cooling. The fan can also be independently operated for ventilation.

For comfort during sleep, there's a night set-back control. When the control is touched on, the thermostat allows the temperature to rise four degrees after one hour, following the onset of sleep.

Five hours later—shortly before wake-up—the thermostat returns to the original, cooler setting. (Studies show the body at rest does not require air as cool as when it's active.)

Now available in a 9,000-BTU model, the Kenmore is one of the largest capacity air conditioners to require no more than 7.5 amps for operation. It has four-way air direction settings, woodgrain plastic grille that conceals the controls, and beige steel cabinet.

It's priced at about $550 at Sears stores.



COMPUTERIZED AIR CONDITIONER with energy efficiency rating of 9.6 is designed to reduce electrical operating costs. This Kenmore window unit requires no more than 7.5 amps for operation. Its woodgrain grille conceals the solid-state control panel.

SOLID-STATE control panel of Kenmore computerized air conditioner allows programming of temperature, cooling time and humidity over a 24-hour period.

Tips for making the most of your freezer

To get the most from your freezer, you have to practice good freezer management and be familiar with freezing techniques. The makers of Arm & Hammer Baking Soda, that pure, natural product that's been around for more than 130 years, would like to share these freezer hints with you:

- Frozen foods lose moisture if not adequately protected, so choose your packaging materials with care. They should be airtight, moisture proof and non-porous.
- Aluminum foil and freezer-safe plastic wrap are especially suited for poultry and other unevenly shaped foods, as they mold easily to the food.

Be sure to seal the ends of plastic wrap packages with freezer tape as the wrap may not cling to itself at freezer temperatures.

- Plastic bags are convenient for individual foods such as rolls and cookies, because you can easily remove what you want, leaving the rest frozen.
- Rigid plastic containers with tight fitting lids won't leak and make efficient use of freezer space.
- Label and date all packages. You may even want to include pertinent cooking information.
- Make an inventory checklist of the frozen food, and store the list right in the freezer.
- Try to organize your freezer space into sections for meats, vegetables, leftovers, etc. This reduces the time spent searching for frozen foods and lowers operating costs.
- Remember the golden rule of freezing — "First in, is the first out!"
- Freeze food in meal-size quantities whenever possible. Small size, flat packages freeze and thaw the fastest.
- For convenience, try freezing foods such as meat patties, chicken parts, chops and home frozen vegetables (peas, green beans, broccoli pieces) by the loose pack method.

Spread the food out on a jelly roll pan or cookie sheet and freeze it until firm, about one to two hours. Remove the food, quickly bag or package it, and return to the freezer.

Now, you can remove or pour out just the portion you need because the food isn't stuck together.

- Avoid frantic meal preparation after work or a busy day, by making double or triple batches of casseroles, soups and stews, and freezing them for future use.

Shorten the cooking time by 10 to 15 minutes to allow for the additional cooking during reheating.

Freezing causes some seasonings to fade or intensify in flavor, so you may want to under-season and then add to taste when heating the food.

- Cooling hot foods before freezing them is an energy-saving practice. Allow food to cool at room temperature about 30 minutes, then package and freeze.
- Don't put too much unfrozen food in the freezer at one time. Overloading causes slow freezing and results in poor quality.
- Avoid placing unfrozen items directly on top of frozen ones. For fastest freezing, spread the unfrozen food packages out in a single layer wherever it is the coldest.
- After defrosting, clean the interior of a manual defrost freezer with a solution of one quart warm water to four tablespoons Arm & Hammer Baking Soda. For stubborn stains sprinkle baking soda on a damp sponge and scrub. Rinse and dry thoroughly.
- Wash inside of frostless freezer with baking soda and water solution in the same proportions as for manual freezer.

Corral carpet critters with your trusty vacuum

If your home is fairly typical, there's a gang at work right now undermining the very fiber and depreciating the value of one of its most expensive items.

It's the "Under-the-Carpet Gang," a.k.a. the "carpet critters." This small band of insidious irritants—grit, gunk, dirt and hair—goes virtually unnoticed as it does its dirty work in nearly every home in the country. Its accomplices include active feet, small children and vacuum cleaners that don't do the job they're supposed to.

According to the floor care experts at The Eureka Company, your carpet can hold up to one and a half times its weight in these hidden critters. To help you identify and flush them out, or rather, vacuum them up, Eureka has put together the following "Most Wanted" list.

- Carpet Enemy No. 1—Grit (a.k.a. Sand). Identifying features—hard and sharp edges. Probably the most dangerous gang member; will cut carpet's fibers when provoked by walking feet. Usually establishes a hideout at the root of the carpet.
- Carpet Enemy No. 2—Gunk (a.k.a. Goop, Glop and Goo). Identifying features—stickiness and tenaciousness. Accomplices—small children and clumsy adults. Often disguises itself as bits of dropped food.
- Carpet Enemy No. 3—Dirt (a.k.a. Dust, Debris). Identifying features—none; this master of disguise comes in all shapes and sizes. Frequently seen around shoes and small children. Can change color of carpet from beige to blah.
- Carpet Enemy No. 4—Hair (a.k.a. Fuzz, Fur). This downwardly mobile critter can be a real nuisance once it forgets its place. It is only too happy to leave dogs, cats and receding hairlines, and entwine itself amongst carpet fibers.

Now that these sneaky enemies have been identified, how do you go about evicting them from your carpet? Frequent vacuuming, of course, is an absolute necessity. Eureka recommends vacuuming at least once a week with slow, backward and forward strokes.

TO REPLACE GROUT between wall tiles, apply the grout from the tube directly into the space between tiles. Smooth with your finger and remove excess grout with a moist sponge. Red Devil's Ralph Wusthoff recommends that you allow 48 hours for curing before using the bath or shower.

Fix loose wall tiles now to prevent big repair bills later

If the wall tiles around your bathtub are loose or broken, or the grout between them has disappeared, better fix them now or face serious repair bills later.

That's the suggestion from Ralph Wusthoff, merchandising manager of Red Devil, Inc., who notes that water from a shower or bath can easily work its way behind wall tiles and rot out wallboard and structural wood.

"The real shame is that most people don't discover the problem until water starts dripping through walls and ceilings," notes Wusthoff.

With some inexpensive do-it-yourself products and about an hour's worth of time, the average homeowner can do some repairs that will ward off big contracting bills and headaches later, says Wusthoff.

Helpful hints

He offers the following tips to homeowners:

For damaged or loose wall tiles, chip away old tile grout around the tile, then use a 1¼-inch, flexible blade putty knife to pry the tile from the wall.

Use turpentine and the putty knife to remove old adhesive from the exposed wall area. Also remove the adhesive from the back of the tile if you plan to use it again.

While most tile adhesives are sold in quart or gallon cans, homeowners can pick up a 2½-ounce tube of tile adhesive designed specifically for small tile jobs and repairs.

Spread the adhesive on the exposed wall and the back of the tile, and press it firmly into place. Let the tile set for 48 hours; do not use the bath or shower during this period because moisture can inhibit the curing process. A longer cure time may be required when high humidity is present.

Available in box or tube

Grout in powdered or premixed paste form can be bought by the box or tube respectively. But, for small projects involving tile repair, the pre-mixed grout is available in both 5½-ounce and 2½-ounce tubes.

Apply the grout from the tube, then smooth it into the cracks around the tile with your finger. Remove excess grout from the tile surface with a moist sponge.

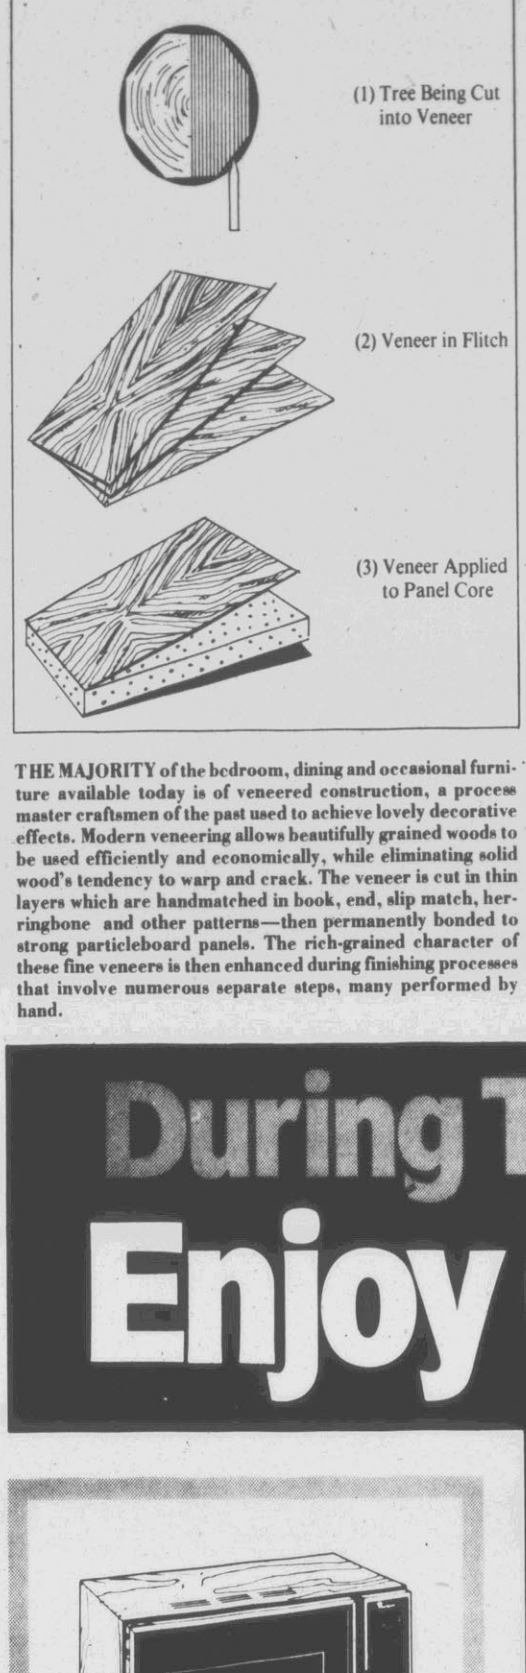
Let the grout cure for 48 hours before using the bath or shower. This same procedure should be used where grout has eroded around an otherwise secure wall tile.

"The total cost of the project is about five dollars and involves tubes of tile grout and tile adhesive, a flexible blade putty knife, some turpentine and a sponge. The long range savings is the cost of a new wall," notes Wusthoff.

To remove old soap film and mildew from existing tile and grout, Wusthoff recommends you try a commercial tile and grout cleaner available from most hardware stores and home center chains.

And, if you want to keep soap film and grime from collecting around the bathtub and shower stall, most of the hardware stores and departments carry a commercial tile grout sealer that wards off dirt and erosion.

Furniture Veneering Process



THE MAJORITY of the bedroom, dining and occasional furniture available today is of veneered construction, a process master craftsmen of the past used to achieve lovely decorative effects. Modern veneering allows beautifully grained woods to be used efficiently and economically, while eliminating solid wood's tendency to warp and crack. The veneer is cut in thin layers which are handmatched in book, end, slip match, herringbone and other patterns—then permanently bonded to strong particleboard panels. The rich-grained character of these fine veneers is then enhanced during finishing processes that involve numerous separate steps, many performed by hand.

What's it all about? The inside story of wood veneers

Higher transportation and entertainment costs may have you interested in new home furnishings—or maybe real estate prices have caused you to plan on updating your present home rather than moving up.

Whether you want an elegant setting for dining, a master bedroom/den, or a multipurpose "great room," it pays to know more about the wood furniture that's now available.

Wood furniture, also known as "casegoods," includes bedroom and dining room groups, plus occasional tables, bookcases and cabinets.

The casegoods you see today in retail stores reveal an emphasis on multifunction as well as attractive styling, and can be constructed in a variety of ways according to the manufacturing methods used by individual companies.

Most wood furniture in all price ranges is of veneered construction, a method that has been used for centuries and is often seen in fine antiques.

The inferior glues used years ago in inexpensive veneer furniture, and which once gave veneers a bad name, have been replaced by stronger-than-wood adhesives and advanced crafting techniques that offer great durability as well as a wide variety of decorative effects.

Today, veneers are often used in combination with solid wood, wood products, and sometimes simulated wood to provide maximum visual appeal and affordability.

Economical use of wood

Veneering permits beautiful and rare woods to be used most efficiently and economically, thereby making wise use of this natural resource.

The richest grain areas of native trees and exotic tree species are sliced in thin layers, from 1/26" to 1/36". The entire tree is sliced in one of several ways to achieve a particular grain motif.

Rotary cuts, for example, produce uniform grain and color while flat out slicing increases variations. Slices are cut in order and remain together in a so-called veneer "flitch."

In manufacturing, each piece of furniture is to be constructed from the same flitch to allow proper grain matching from drawer to drawer, door to door, table top to leaf.

Often, veneer from two or more flitches is used for a special design effect. A dining table top might feature a matched pecky pecan veneer with an olive ash burl veneer border. Such "fancy face" veneer patterns are matched and laid together by hand.

Fine veneers become the visible top ply or layer in a three, five or more ply panel. Usually, this veneer is adhered to a strong and stable panel core comprised of wood particles bonded in resins. Plies can also be less costly wood veneers in cross grained layers.

Surface veneers must have balancing veneer layers to seal the back side of the core, and to nullify the expansion and contraction stress inherent in all wood.

Good for large areas

Having eliminated wood's tendency to warp and crack, these veneer panels are used for large areas—tops, sides, doors. They're combined with solid wood elements which are still required for many exterior areas such as base rails, turned posts and machine carved moldings.

To keep costs down, some structural components or decorative details may be of molded polystyrene which must be carefully finished to match wood areas.

Some casegoods furniture now available has an engraved finish, a process whereby a particularly distinctive veneer flitch is photographically reproduced on smooth particleboard panels. Grain characteristics are acid-etched or engraved on a series of copper plated steel cylinders.

These cylinders pass over panels in rapid sequence and reproduce the wood grain in perfect registration. The engraved panels are finished during multi-step processes just as in veneer construction.

Furniture can also be made entirely with laminated surfaces. In this type of manufacturing, a layer of woodgrained or other laminate motif is adhered to particleboard pannels.

The wipe-clean plastic surfaces of such furniture require no further finishing, one reason it often costs less.

To determine the kinds of woods and veneers, and the type of construction used to create a particular piece of furniture, check the hangtag.

Read carefully

Manufacturers are required to disclose the use of veneers, wood products such as particleboard, and simulated wood such as polystyrene or woodgrain laminates.

Keep in mind that advances in manufacturing constantly reveal new ways to produce enduring, serviceable and attractive wood furniture in a range of prices for a broad consumer market spending more time and money at home than ever before.

MAKE BEAUTIFUL MUSIC with this reproduction Tuckahoe Plantation music stand from the Hickory Chair Company. A kitchen with ideas

IN A KITCHEN DESIGNED FOR A FAMILY as tuned to plants as food preparation, Margot Gunther, ASID, offers a number of decorating ideas. To contrast with the new, medium-dark pecan finish of "Country Oak" cabinets by Yorktowne, she chose white for counters and walls, adding red and blue in the easy-care vinyl flooring. High-up shelves that add open storage are painted blue, and the cafe curtains are blue and white toweling. An ogee wall clock adds a timely touch, and for convenience the stools are adjustable.

Protect your investment with adequate insurance

Regardless where you live—in a house, an apartment, a mobile home or a condominium—your home probably accounts for the largest single expenditure in your budget.

Your household furnishings and personal belongings also represent a sizable investment. Most people take precautions to safeguard their possessions against losses due to fire or burglary, but despite these efforts losses sometimes occur.

Having adequate insurance coverage can protect you from severe financial losses. Coverage for your home and its contents, and your liability to others, usually is combined in a single "package," although separate policies for fire, theft and other perils are available.

When you purchase a homeowners policy, the number of perils your property is insured against depends on which of several forms you choose.

The Basic Form (HO-1) insures your property against the first 11 perils shown on the chart below. The Broad Form (HO-2) covers all 18 perils listed in the chart and the Comprehensive Form (HO-5) insures against all 18 perils and many more.

It is sometimes referred to as an "all-risks" policy. Generally speaking, an "all-risks" policy is one that insures you against all perils except those which are specifically excluded.

A special policy, known as the Tenants Form (HO-4), is available to meet the needs of persons who rent apartments or houses.

A condominium unit-owner (HO-6) is available for persons who wish to insure their personal property or to cover any additions or alterations not insured by the condominium association.

The mobile home policy provides basically the same coverage as the Homeowners Broad Form (HO-2). However, the premiums for a mobile home policy are substantially higher than for a similar policy on a conventional house because of the differences in construction and the greater susceptibility of mobile homes to wind damage.

In addition to the perils covered under a homeowners, tenants, condominium or mobile home policy, coverage is provided for additional living expenses which pays for any increase in living expenses if your dwelling cannot be occupied because of damage caused by the insured peril.

All forms of homeowners policies also include liability coverages which apply not only to you as a policyholder but to all family members who live with you.

These coverages include personal liability, medical payments to others and several supplemental coverages, including physical damage to the property of others.

Free leaflets explaining, "Insurance for the Home" and "Tenants Insurance Basics" are available from the Insurance Information Institute, 110 William Street, New York, NY 10038.

HOW TO OVERCOME YOUR FEAR OF DECORATING

Does the thought of spending $180 on a table send shivers up your spine? Have you been talking for years about getting your home together but still haven't found the time? You suffer from a common phobia: fear of decorating.

When it comes to spending money on furniture, most women are absolutely paralyzed, says Ellen Levine, editor of Cosmopolitan LIVING. "Women don't mind spending money on that silk dress, but they agonize over a new lamp."

Following are nine tips from Cosmopolitan LIVING Magazine, to help kick the fear of decorating.

- Be flexible in your attitudes toward furnishings. They don't have to last forever!
- Don't wait for the Right Man to give you the Real Home. Your home should reflect you (and you're appealing to him!).
- Move furniture that you can't part with to another room. That way you can make room for the new without feeling guilty about the old.
- Educate your eye by looking at decorating magazines, tearing out photos of what you love or what you hate. Visit model rooms and showhouses to help identify your tastes.
- When you find something you like, try to analyze why. Your home does reflect your personality.
- Don't belabor the decision unnecessarily. Sometimes the first impulse is the right impulse.
- Check out the sales and bargains in your area. We all like to feel that we got a good deal.
- Make a decorating fund and budget your goals.
- Have the courage to express yourself in your home. If you love pink, paint a room pink! If you hate clutter, stick it in the closet!

Mix and match with wallcoverings for a coordinated, customized look

Today, anyone who can coordinate her clothes and accessories can create a customized look in her home. With many wallcovering manufacturers now producing entire collections which offer coordinated wallcoverings as well as coordinated fabrics, a mix-and-match decorating scheme is easy and mistake-proof.

Coordinated fabrics—once available only through professional designers—are very prevalent today, and an important aid to the custom look, according to the Wallcovering Information Bureau.

They can be used for upholstery fabrics, curtains, draperies, slipcovers, pillows, tabletops, shower curtains and bedspreads.

CUSTOM COORDINATES: A stencil-like pattern in wallcovering and coordinated fabric gives this foyer an elegant, custom look. The wallcovering covers ceiling, walls and door panels, and coordinating fabric covers a camelback loveseat. The pattern is "Hancock Stencil" from the Taconic Collection by Waverly. For a copy of the booklet, "All You Need To Know About Wallcoverings," write to The Wallcovering Information Bureau, Dept. HS81, 66 Morris Avenue, Springfield, NJ 07081.

Many types of coordinates

Coordinated wallcoverings are usually done in matching colors, but some are in contrasting or analogous colors. Matching colors are easiest to correlate with existing furnishings, but contrasting and analogous colors give you variety with harmony.

Usually the size of the coordinating patterns will differ. A single motif in one pattern can be repeated in the companion wallcovering, or the patterns can be completely different but use the same colors.

There are also wallcoverings with identical designs printed in the reverse colors, giving a totally different effect but a pleasing continuity.

Decorating tips

Here are some tips on decorating with coordinated designs, offered by the Wallcovering Information Bureau:

- You can use as many as three patterns in one room, but what you select will largely depend on the scale and the layout of your rooms.
- All rooms visible from another room should be compatible. The foyer or entry is a good place to start.

Whatever you use to say "welcome" should be in harmony with whatever areas are within sight. Frequently, the entire home should be coordinated, and this is especially important in open plan designs.

- Colors should always be compatible, but the scale may vary depending on the size of your rooms.

One method is to select a larger pattern for the larger areas. Then, select a smaller pattern —either a smaller version of the same design, or a plaid, stripe, geometric or textured wallcovering—in the same or very similar colorway for the smaller areas.

- In smaller homes or apartments, the secret to mixing patterns is to keep the scale quite similar for major areas. The same pattern in reverse colors could be an easy and interesting solution.
- Select the predominant pattern, then use one color in the pattern as the key decorating shade.

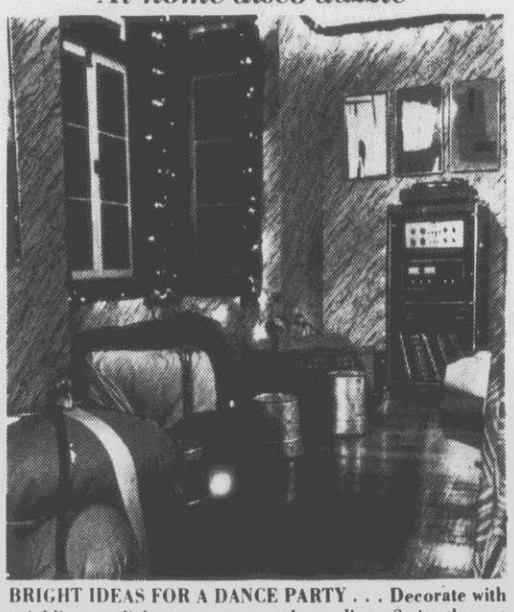
At-home disco dazzle



BRIGHT IDEAS FOR A DANCE PARTY . . . Decorate with twinkling tree lights to create an at-home disco. String them at the base of the floor and ceiling and around window ledges. For a juke box effect, designer Allen Scruggs attached them to a Gusdorf Component File which compactly houses the stereo system. Shiny silver tape holds the lights in place and captures the reflections from the tiny bulbs. To add to the sparkle and produce a flickering lighting mood, votive candles are set inside waxed paper bags. Brightly colored cloth covers plump throw pillows. Tie a group of these inexpensive, easy to-make sit-upons together with ribbons and, when the party's over, surprise guests with a take-home favor.

Wood: furniture's super star

From earliest history, wood has been the primary raw material used in building furniture, from lacquered Oriental chairs and carved Renaissance tables to humble Early American trunks and benches.

The inherent distinction, availability, durability and crafting ease of wood made it a nearly perfect medium for furniture. Wood's only shortcoming is part of its ageless charm.

Wood always remains a living thing, increasing in beauty with time, yet also expanding and contracting with humidity and temperature changes.

Antique furniture, for example, often has solid wood areas that have cracked or warped, loose joints, drawers that stick, perhaps veneers which have buckled or peeled.

Today, increased knowledge about the behavior and handling of various wood species, plus advances in materials and furniture technology, have virtually eliminated these problems.

Indeed, modern construction methods now permit the creation of furniture designs that would have been unaffordable for most consumers just 15 years ago.

Despite numerous breakthroughs, furniture still requires a good deal of hand craftsmanship and wood remains the basic material used in construction.

Wood is used on exterior surfaces and for the inner framework of upholstered as well as "casegoods" furniture such as chests, dressers and cabinets.

Attributes of various woods lend themselves to specific areas on furniture. Frames, for example, must be built from species which are strong and free of defects such as large knots.

Most exterior areas utilize woods and fine veneers which will "finish" well and that have an especially handsome or highly decorative grain pattern.

According to the Southern Furniture Manufacturers Association, one quarter or more of the total cost of casegoods furniture is directly related to the wood species and grades used in construction.

Only about 20 percent of any tree can be used in furniture manufacturing and all wood must undergo a methodical drying process to remove natural moisture.

Planks are first air-dried for a period of 90 days to six months, depending on wood density, followed by two to eight weeks in a dry kiln until an optimum moisture content of about six percent is reached.

This assures stability of the furniture in tropical or desert regions, as well as satisfactory gluing and finishing.

The lumber is now ready to be transformed into furniture. First, defects are removed and the wood is cut in strips of various sizes. Solid pieces of some woods are removed to an area where frames are assembled.

For the exterior areas, three and four-inch wood strips are matched for grain and color, then bonded together under pressure with stronger-than-wood glues to form "boards" and "blocks" for machine cutting, carving, turning and molding.

These united strips of solid wood interact to nullify expansion stress and also permit attractive variations in grain and color.

The many components that comprise a certain style are produced simultaneously during a so-called "cutting."

All pieces are sanded individually and after each sub-assembly step, as well as after they are joined with the frame. This results in proper fitting of parts and an overall smooth, uniform finish.

In better furniture, doors and drawers are numbered so that veneer grain patterns match when they are hand fit in the case. Table tops and leaves should also match in design and coloration.

The bonding of beautiful and expensive veneers to cross grained layers of less expensive woods or to strong hardboard panels is one way manufacturers have been able to keep costs down while achieving the delicate curves, unique decorative effects and magnificent finishes that hallmark today's furniture.

Such processes have allowed wood to finally achieve perfection as a medium for the furniture art.

An idea from the past returns to add new charm and richness to any room in your home.

Pretty as a picture

A SUNNY BEDROOM CORNER washed in butter yellow becomes the ideal work space for the home-based budding author. The desk top is also efficient for paying bills, putting on make-up and reading the paper. Ingeniously planned to make the most of an awkward window corner, the deep yellow built-in unit is a headboard, nightstand, bureau and writing surface. Lighter yellow walls with matching Flexalum blinds repeat tones found in the floral curtains and pillow shams. The rusty tones in that same print are repeated in wooden walls and comfortable easy chair.

Use fashion savvy to dress your room

Finding a style and dressing a room is as easy—and as much fun—as dressing yourself. To get over your fear of decorating (What if I choose the wrong color?) just look as far as your closet, says Ellen Levine, editor of Cosmopolitan LIVING Magazine.

"By looking through your closet, you'll analyze your personal style and then translate that into a look for your home."

For example, if you are always the first one to try out the unusual in your clothing, you will want to be bold with your room, as well. If you like lace and high collars, give yourself a frilly, feminine bedroom!

To find out what type you are, use Cosmopolitan LIVING's fashion test:

High chic

Your Clothes: Baggy trousers, skirts that were thigh-high last spring, beaded moccasins, a ruffled taffeta skirt, one-of-a-kind sweaters, silk tunics, ultra-wide grey flannels, a snakeskin jacket lined with fur, tasseled sweaters with shoulder pads, one fringed jumpsuit—in red suede!

You: You were the first on your block to roller skate to work. You practically invented High Tech. When everybody else thought it was fattening, pasta was your dish. Your habits are tomorrow's trends.

Your room: Play up your creativity. Be bold with your colors. Live with the kooky things you love.

- Color: Powerful, vivid, daring.
- Floors: Industrial carpet, Pirelli rubber tiles, paint-splattered raw wood.
- Lighting: Bare bulbs, neon, tracks with colored gels.
- Furniture: Platform bed, a banquette, chic classic chairs.
- Exotic accents: A Deco juke box, a mirrored piano, a mission settee, anything oriental.
- Windows: Bare, or covered in skinny-slat blinds.
- Art: Pop posters, soft sculptures.

Classic tailored

Your Clothes: Preppy blazers and pleated skirts, gabardine suits, button down Oxford shirts, classic pumps, culottes with knitted stockings, a tweed jacket with suede elbow patches, Shetland pullover sweaters, a beret, a simple silk dress with a single strand of pearls.

You: You prefer intimate dinners to noisy discos, have season tickets to the symphony, are settled in a successful job.

Your Room: You need rooms that are softly contoured and neatly crafted, with surfaces and fabrics that are elegant and easy to maintain.

- Color: Soft neutrals: gray, lavender, aqua, beige.
- Floors: Wall-to-wall carpet, dark wood, Orientals.
- Lighting: Pharmacy lamps, ginger jars, sconces.
- Furniture: Antiques, a curvy loveseat in chintz, built-in shelves for records, books.
- Traditional touches: Good family pieces, a grandfather clock, a mirror edged in gilt.
- Windows: Shutters, side drapes of fabric.
- Art: Primitive portraits, a Post-Impressionist print.

Romantic

Your Clothes: High-necked, lacy blouses, long ruffled skirts, angora sweaters, gauzy fabrics, ballet slippers, a long flowing cape, cameo brooches, peasant shirts, a calico vest, straw boater, wildflower prints, cotton granny gowns, a ruffled taffeta skirt, knitted shawls, fresh flowers in your hair.

You: You never miss "Masterpiece Theatre," and you never forget a birthday. You're an incurable, irresistible romantic.

Your Room: You want a bedroom that's as frilly as a French boudoir; a living room with country charm and clutter.

Catalytic converters aren't just for cars anymore.

The catalytic converter, known to most Americans as an exhaust unit that reduces automotive air pollution, has branched out into the wood stove business—and the results promise real home heating benefits.

Now, the same device that cleans up auto emissions can provide greater heating efficiency and lower air pollution levels in wood stoves.

An economical alternative

Wood stoves first came into prominence with the 1973 oil embargo, when rising fuel costs forced many consumers to take another look at the way they heated their homes.

Across the country, homeowners examined such renewable resources as solar energy, wind power and wood burning as possible ways to beat the high cost of heating.

Wood was at the forefront of the trend and, since '73, consumers have bought over 7 million wood burning stoves. In the next few years, industry forecasters expect 1.5 million more stoves to be sold annually. With the advent of the catalytic stove, the 1980s look even brighter for wood burning.

More heat from less wood

The catalytic stove uses 30 percent less wood and produces the same amount of heat as conventional stoves. It also reduces the amount of air pollution that escapes from the ordinary stoves and cuts the formation of creosote, a sooty material that coats the interior of the chimney and creates a fire hazard.

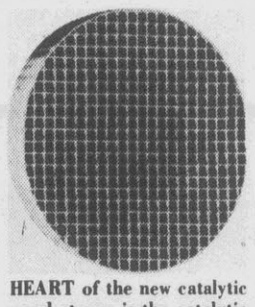
The catalytic system of woodburning forces wood smoke to undergo a catalytic reaction before it escapes through the chimney. As smoke passes through the converter, it is reburned and most of its harmful material is consumed.

The catalytic stove effectively eliminates creosote that would otherwise build up in the chimney, and emission particles that would pollute the air. The only gases that escape are carbon dioxide and water vapor, the same gases given off by trees, grass and other plants.

The heart of the catalytic stove is a high temperature ceramic honeycomb coated with a thin filament of precious metal catalyst.

The chemical catalytic action of the converter reduces the ignition point of combustible materials in the smoke, allowing them to burn completely.

NEW CATALYTIC WOOD STOVES provide up to one third more heat than airtight stoves from the same amount of wood. Complete catalytic combustion also cuts air pollution and dangerous creosote buildup in flues and chimneys. Catalytic stoves are available in modern styles, such as the Concorde Catalytic shown above, as well as European, traditional and Early American, from Franklin Industries.



HEART of the new catalytic wood stoves is the catalytic converter, a ceramic honeycomb coated with precious metal catalyst. Chemical reaction between wood smoke and the catalyst allows the smoke to burn as well as the wood, producing more heat and consuming harmful particles that would otherwise coat the chimney or pollute the air.

Independent lab-test results

To fully appreciate the "catalytic difference," it's necessary to review the performance of conventional airtight stoves versus catalytic stoves.

In a series of tests conducted by an independent laboratory, the catalytic stove was rated far superior in heating efficiency and air pollution reduction.

Two factors combine to produce the "overall efficiency" of any wood stove: combustion efficiency—the percentage of potential fuel that is converted to heat; and transfer efficiency—the percentage of heat delivered to the room.

Traditional stove designs require a trade-off: improvements in combustion efficiency cause reductions in heat transfer efficiency, and vice versa.

Catalytic stoves are the first to achieve nearly complete combustion efficiency (95 percent) while equaling the 89 percent transfer efficiency found in better traditional stoves. The result is an overall efficiency of 84 percent, as compared with 55 percent for typical non-catalytics.

Pollution tests also indicate that harmful emissions from the catalytic stove are significantly lower than from traditional stoves. This is especially important, because pollution from wood stoves is becoming a problem in New England and several Western states. Three homes can be heated by catalytic wood stoves with the same amount of pollution now caused by one regular stove.

The catalytic stove also burns mildly seasoned and highly resinous wood without fear of creosote build-up and with little loss of efficiency. It's almost impossible to burn those types of softwoods in a traditional stove.

The first company to introduce the catalytic stove was Franklin Industries. They have developed models in a wide variety of contemporary, European, traditional and Early American styles.

Each stove is a totally new model, not an old stove with a new catalytic converter, and will take full advantage of the new technology.

Experts are predicting that eventually all stoves will be catalytic. The consumer who installs a catalytic wood stove, now can use considerably less wood, reduce the risk of creosote buildup and chimney fires, and cut his contribution to air pollution.

For more information about the catalytic stove, write Franklin Industries, 1800 Post Road, Warwick, RI 02886.

Thank goodness it's Friday flowers!

Why not do as the Europeans do? Traditionally they return home Friday evenings with a loaf of fresh bread tucked under one arm and a bundle of fresh flowers tucked under the other.

Even on our side of the Atlantic bunches of fresh cut flowers are appearing more and more frequently on weekend shopping lists because they help start the weekend off cheerfully.

Gladiolus, roses, bachelor buttons, mums or carnations will make Friday dinner a bit special, even if your only expected company is your faithful gray cat and a good movie on TV.

But if you're throwing a party over the weekend, or any other time, there's nothing like fresh Friday flowers to set a festive mood.

MORE AND MORE FLORISTS are doing it the European way by offering inexpensive bunches of flowers for the weekend. Arranging them is a pleasurable way to unwind after a hectic week, and brass pots overflowing with flowers make cheery home decorations.

Year-round supply

Florists have a year-round supply of flowers in season and rare surprises from faraway lands.

One of the classic fall flowers is the chrysanthemum, perfect for both formal and informal bouquets. These versatile flowers bloom in assorted whites, pinks, yellows and oranges, and take various shapes ranging from neat pompons to daisies to long spidery quills.

Among the longest lasting cut flowers, mums will stay fresh for up to 10 days. Since the foliage is not so hardy, it's advisable to remove any leaves that will be submerged in water.

Tall, sword-shaped gladiolus add a fine touch to any flower arrangement. Available in pure white, pink, salmon, yellow, orange and red, they provide long-lasting color because each of the florets along the stalk opens at a different time.

The virtues of carnations

Carnations combine the advantages of long storage life and blooms of many colors and combinations of colors. Besides roses, they are among the few scented cut flowers.

Occasionally you might want to treat yourself to a novelty such as the 'bird of paradise.' This large bird-shaped flower of orange and blue is used mainly in groups of three to garnish arrangements of other flowers.

Another novelty available is anthurium, with exotic looking wrinkled waxy petals of predominantly red and orange.

Many-hued proteas

Thick spikes and puffs of proteas, also novelty flowers available year-round, bloom in an array of vivid colors—even black. Bought fresh, proteas will last about two weeks before drying out. Then, they can be displayed dry attractively for up to one year.

Keep in mind that there is more to a flower arrangement than flowers; you need greens, too. Ferns are popular because their feathery shapes soften the vibrance of the flowers. They look almost as if they're floating on clouds.

Florists carry several kinds of foliage. Ask which ones would best complement the bouquet you want to create.

The art of weekend flower arranging rests more on whim than on steadfast rules. For example, containers need not be traditional vases. Coffee pots, mason jars, wine bottles and ceramic bowls overflowing with fresh cut flowers will enliven your home with a simple charm all their own.

Festive feeling lingers

Sunday may mark the end of the weekend, but the festive atmosphere created by flowers won't fade. The freshness of your Friday flowers will linger well into the week ahead.

Your furniture order: worth the wait

Consumers often find they must special order the furniture that will best suit their wants and needs. The dining table and chairs may be perfect but the china cabinet on the retail floor may be too large for the only wall available in the dining room.

A chair may be just what you want except for the upholstery fabric. The style of a bedroom group may be ideal, but you want additional pieces for personal correspondence or hobbies.

In these cases, ordering is usually your only alternative. The advantage is that you get the exact furniture you want, fresh from the factory.

When you order, you'll notice a vast number of furniture catalogs on hand at your furniture retail stores. This is still only a portion of the catalogs available overall since your retailer probably obtains goods from only a few manufacturers.

This gives you an idea of the great number of companies, large and small, involved in the manufacture of home furnishings.

While there are 10 or 15 major manufacturers who produce a broad variety of both wood and upholstered interior furnishings, a tremendous amount of furniture is produced by medium-sized and small companies—some making only occasional tables, only recliners, only traditional sofas, etc.

Furniture manufacturers create new product lines in tune with new consumer trends. They are introduced at international markets held twice a year in High Point, North Carolina, and at regional markets in various metropolitan areas.

These new products appear on the retail floor six months or so after they are first introduced because the furniture manufacturer must set up new assembly processes, retool machinery, and obtain necessary raw materials.

The manufacturer will produce a quantity of that particular group or style, which is called a "cutting." Then, the manufacturer changes these processes and retools to build another style, perhaps one that has been a good seller for several years.

The manufacturer's cycle of cuttings is a critical factor when you order furniture. If your order arrives just after he has completed a cutting of that particular wood furniture style and all merchandise was "pre-sold" to cover existing orders, you will have to wait until the next cutting.

In the case of upholstered furniture, the manufacturer may have to wait for the textile mill to produce and deliver the fabric you ordered.

For these reasons, it may be weeks or months before your order can be filled. This might be annoying, but bear in mind that if manufacturers did not schedule their production, your furniture would be prohibitively expensive.

Your retailer should be able to give you some idea of how long it will take after contacting the manufacturer of the furniture you've selected.

Upstairs, downstairs, all around the house

Create home environment that reflects the real you

It's where the heart is. In that shrinking studio apartment or that sparkling split-level ranch you call "home." In the barn that took you years to renovate, or the condominium that took you months to negotiate.

Whatever may be the nature of the space where you hang your hat, it represents one of the biggest investments—in time, effort and money—that you are likely to make. So, invest wisely.

In these days of tight money, this means dashing unrealistic or haphazard plans and adopting sound, sensible plans for your living quarters.

For the homeowner, the potential for creating a personalized, comfortable living space is multiplied by the number of rooms in the house.

A high-tech kitchen can be filled with professional equipment such as a microwave oven, a 6-burner stove, a large capacity food processor and more.

Country kitchen chic

Alternately, a country kitchen look is convincing with the addition of a wood-burning stove, a rough-hewn dining table, fresh produce in wicker or wire baskets.

Floors, walls, windows and ceilings—each of these is a likely target for special decorator touches.

Floor tiles, linoleum, carpeting and wood panels will change the look of a room, providing a versatile backdrop for furniture and other decorator items.

Walls can be tiled, papered or painted to suit the mood of a room—either dramatic or muted, avant-garde or traditional.

Window treatments

Windows lend themselves to a number of interesting decorating possibilities. A clean, regular surface is easy to achieve with any of the number of blinds and miniblinds on the market today.

Austrian shades fall in opulent folds when lowered, or gather in rich swads of fabric when raised.

Traditional draperies in fabric which either matches or complements the upholstery are another possibility. Or, for a country interior, short, flounced curtains and wooden shutters evoke the proper feeling.

Whatever your choices in interior decoration—whether you make them yourself, or with the help of a decorator—they should create an environment which reflects you, your style and your interests.

Travel mementos

If you're a world traveler, one room (or an entire house) filled with treasures from your travels will keep your memory fresh.

If you're a book lover, then you should, by all means, devote a room to your collection that will also serve as a quiet reading area—far away from the television and the telephone.

Do you have young children? Then, some sort of family room or den with stain-resistant furniture is in order.

The apartment blues

It's an old story. You're dissatisfied with your apartment. The view from its limited supply of windows opens onto a neighboring brick wall and, even at high noon, it seems as though dusk has descended upon your living room.

The kitchen cabinets are too small; the bathroom fixtures are at least 70 years old.

You've considered moving, but available and affordable apartments are scarce. Besides, you like the arched doorways, high ceilings and parquet floors where you are now.

It's easy to do

A few simple changes can transform such an apartment into a comfortable living space.

To offset the lack of natural light, any combination of track lighting, spotlights and standard lamps can change the character of a room.

Window blinds, shades or curtains are also valuable decorating tools, in either whispers or shouts of color, and are energy efficient, too.

Cluttered kitchen cabinets are a problem for owners of even the most spacious homes but, with the many shelf organizers on the market today, there's no excuse for kitchen clutter.

Old-fashioned charm

Play up that antique bathtub and those brass fixtures by creating an old-fashioned bathroom decor. Store cotton balls, mouthwash and other bathroom essentials in colored apothecary jars.

Keep scented soap in a china dish on the sink, and place it next to a matching tumbler.

Sew imitation antique lace onto the edges of towels and washcloths. Place a wicker clothes hamper in the corner behind the door.

Decorating a home is a lifelong undertaking, as well it should be. No room should ever seem so static that a piece of furniture cannot be rearranged, or something new added.

No one should ever be intimidated by a space, or by the idea of change. After all, your home is simply an extension of you.

In the market for furniture? Send for free brochures

Before investing in new furniture—whether you're redecorating the whole house, a single room or merely replacing one or two choice pieces—you should research your options.

Window shop, ask questions and more questions, and read as much as you can on the subject of beds, dining tables, sofas or whatever.

Two excellent, informative brochures can be yours for the asking, free of charge. To receive copies of "Furniture Facts Worth Writing For" and "Furniture Buyers Guide," simply send a self-addressed stamped business size envelope to: Southern Furniture Manufacturers Association, P.O. For Week Of October 18 - October 24, 1981

World Series: A Baseball Octoberfest

ABC Sports will provide live coverage of the 1981 World Series beginning on Tuesday, Oct. 20 (8-11:15 p.m.). This best-four-out-of-seven series, which pits the American League pennant winner against its National League counterpart, will commence in the home park of the American League champion. The second game will also be played at that site on Wednesday, Oct. 21 (8-11:15 p.m.).

After a travel day, the action for the next three games will originate from the National League champion's city. The third game will be broadcast on Friday, Oct. 23 (8 p.m.), the fourth game will be broadcast on Saturday, Oct. 24 (12:30-3:30 p.m.) and the fifth game, if necessary, will air on Sunday, Oct. 25 (4:30-7:30 p.m.).

If the Series still hasn't been decided, the teams will travel back to the American League champion's home field for games six and seven, which will be played on Tuesday, Oct. 27 and Wednesday, Oct. 28 (8 p.m. both nights), respectively.

Last year the World Series stretched to six games, with the Philadelphia Phillies besting the Kansas City Royals. Both teams recorded extraordinary batting averages of over .290. Mike Schmidt of Philadelphia won the Most Valuable Player award.

The first World Series was played in 1903 and the annual October pageant has been host to some of the greatest players in the history of the game.

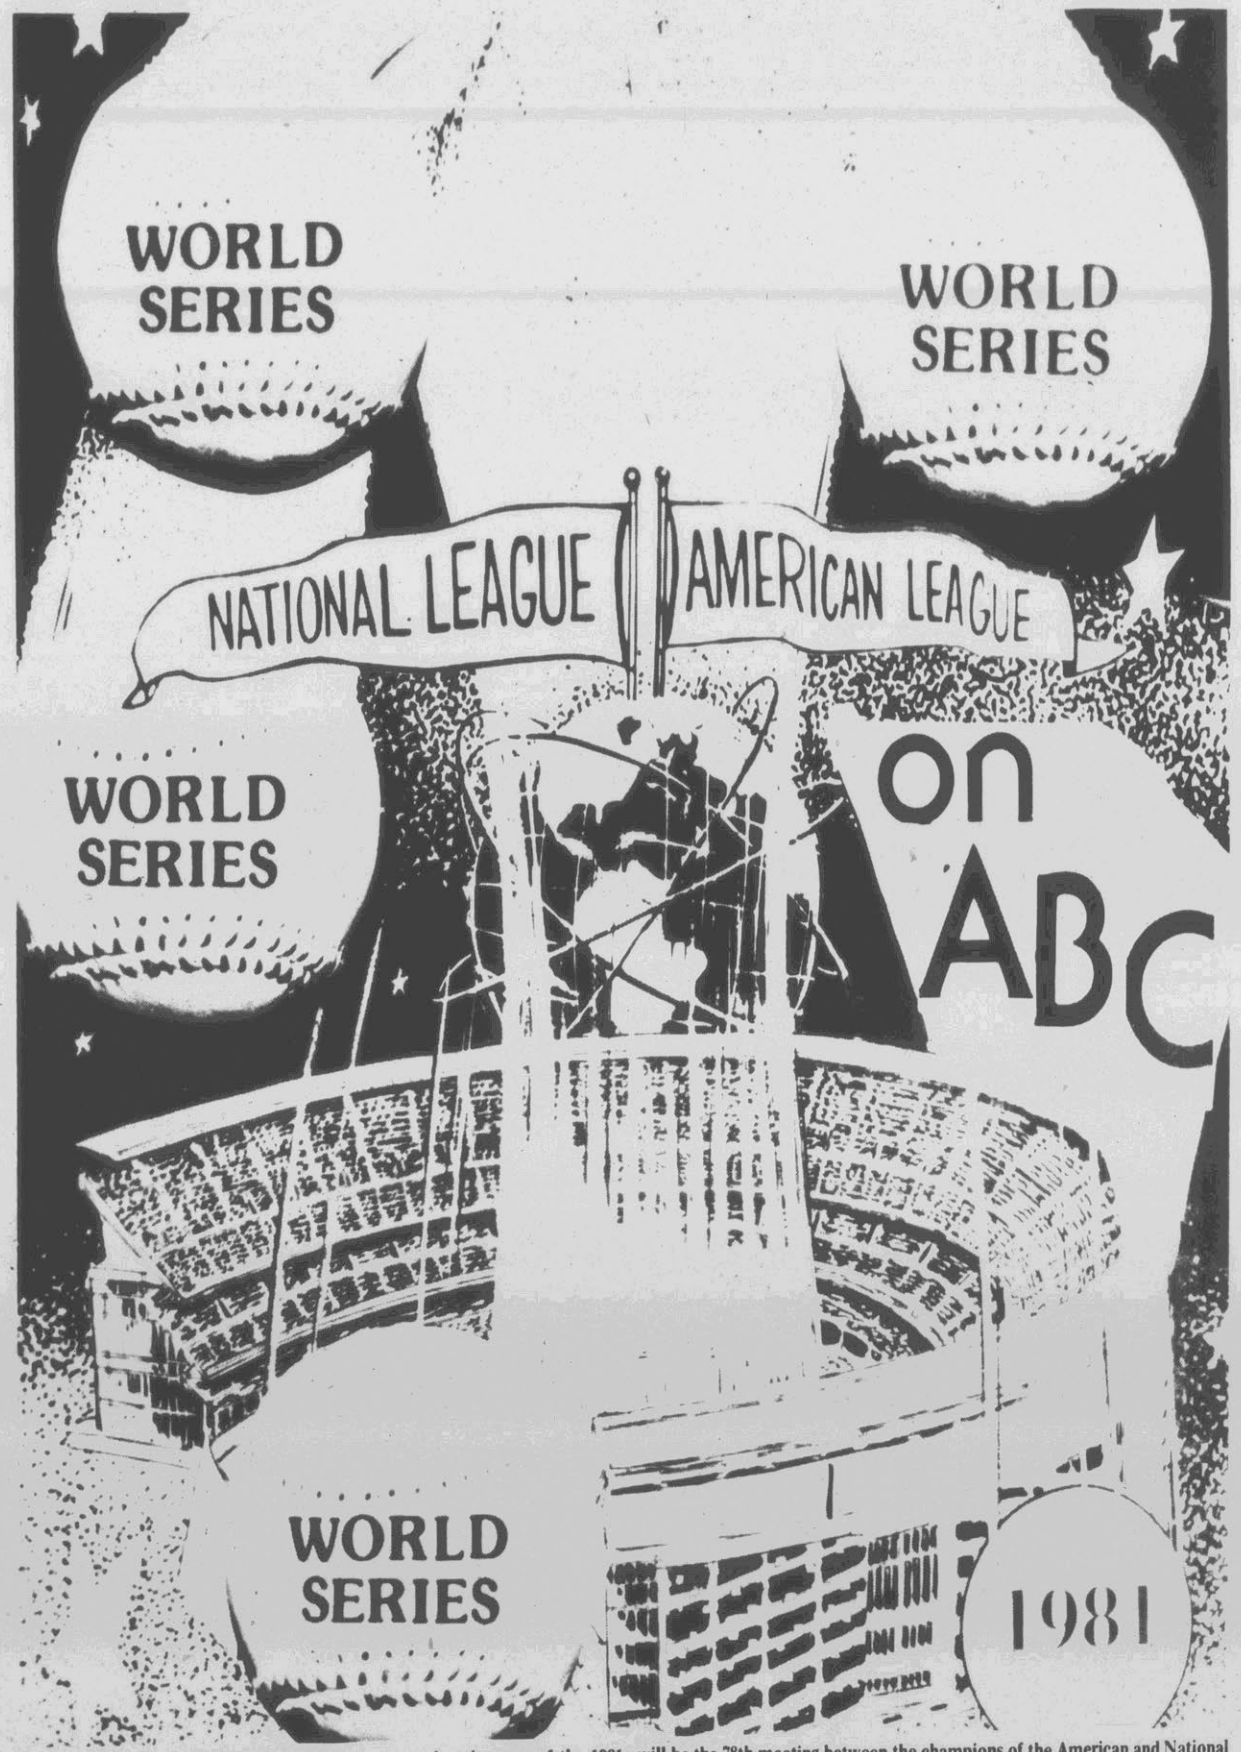
In the 1968 Series, St. Louis Cardinal pitcher Bob Gibson set a major league strikeout record for a single game, sending 17 Detroit Tigers back to the dugout with their bats in their hands.

Whitey Ford holds the record for the most strikeouts compiled in World Series play. He has fanned 94 batters in this post-season classic and, in doing so, won a record 10 Series games.

The N.Y. Yankees have played in the most World Series, appearing in 32 of these championships and winning 22 titles in the process.

Yankee outfielder Reggie Jackson holds the record for hitting the most homeruns in a single World Series. In 1977, he banged five fourbaggers, all of them off of different pitchers and three of them hit consecutively.

Former Yankee pitcher Don Larsen is the only man to ever hurl a perfect game in a World Series.



ABC SPORTS WILL PRESENT all the glamour and excitement of the 1981 World Series, beginning Tuesday, Oct. 20 (8-11:15 p.m.). This year's fall classic will be the 78th meeting between the champions of the American and National Leagues.

Gossett: A Pro Either Way

Early in his career, Louis Gossett Jr. faced an important decision — he was forced to choose between the Broadway stage and the basketball court. Gossett chose acting and has since created memorable performances such as his Emmy Award winning role of Fiddler in "Roots," the lead role in "The Lazarus Syndrome" and baseball great Satchell Paige in "Don't Look Back."

This season Gossett will star with Peter Barton in NBC's new series "The Powers of Matthew Star" on Sundays. Gossett will portray Max, who is both teacher and foster father to Star.

When Matthew was an infant on his home planet, his parents were slain and he was marked for death. Max rescued the baby and brought him to Earth to raise him to manhood, when he must return to his world and free his people.

Gossett was a student at Abraham Lincoln High School in Brooklyn when some Broadway producers came looking for young black actors. "There weren't any in the business then, so they had to go to the school system," Lou recalled. "After about eight months, I finally got a part in the play 'Take a Giant Step.' It was about a boy going through the same changes I was, growing pains in a white neighborhood."

But Gossett was also an ace basketball star at Lincoln High, and he had dreams of becoming a pro. While appearing with Shirley Booth in "Take a Giant Step," he tied Ben Gazzara for the Broadway Critics Awards for the Most Promising Newcomer of 1953.

LOUIS GOSSETT JR. (left), who stars with Peter Barton in NBC-TV's new series "The Powers of Matthew Star" which will be airing Sundays (7-8 p.m.), had to choose between being an actor and a pro basketball player.

When the play closed, Gossett was offered a role in "The Desk Set," also with Booth on Broadway. He did the role at night while attending New York University during the day.

It was during the production of "The Desk Set" that Gossett was drafted by the New York Knicks. His dream of becoming a pro basketball player was about to come true.

Too Much Power

Joe Garagiola was reflecting recently on the issue of negotiation and bargaining between players and owners in today's major league baseball system.

"When I was playing," said Garagiola, who played on four clubs during his nine-year major league career, "I felt like an honorary slave. The owners had too much power. Management would sit down in a negotiating session and say, 'We finished last with you last season — we can finish last without you next season,' and of course, I'd sign."

THE Rook Look AT GARMENT CARE

DICKIE ROOK

One Goat In Hand Is Worth...

Cashmere is the world's rarest fiber. It is handcombed from the underbellies of Kashmir goats in Tibet, Mongolia and China once a year. The hair from one goat makes a scarf. Three goats are needed to make a man's sweater.

Most cashmere is shipped halfway around the world, to Scotland, to be made into fabric. This is due to the expert reputation of Scottish weavers. Until the turn of the century, and the advent of central heating, most cashmere was woven into underwear and hosiery, because of its extreme softness and warmth.

Today cashmere is used mostly for sweaters, coats and dresses. The naturally white, grey or tan fiber is brilliantly dyed. Designers are using cashmere more than ever before for its lightweight and durable luxury. Scarcity of this fiber, however, has caused its price to skyrocket.

If you are lucky enough to own this precious fabric, you know it requires special handling because it is prone to shrinkage and felting. A CLEANER WORLD reminds you that cashmere should always be drycleaned.

We repair and alter garments. God repairs and alters lives.

Michele Will Tell

Q: Is the guy who stars in those singing "Dr. Pepper" commercials, and the guy who starred in "An American Werewolf in London," as the werewolf, the same guy? SHARON, McMILLIAN, FARMVILLE, N.C.

A: He sure is! Actor David Naughton who's made everyone a "pepper" too in the "Dr. Pepper" commercials is now starring in the feature film, "An American Werewolf in London."

Q: Please tell me about John Wesley Shipp who portrays Kelly Nelson on "Guiding Light." KELLY FAHLING, WILSON, N.C.

A: John, who created the role of Kelly Nelson on "Guiding Light," in February 1980, is a graduate of the University of Indiana in Bloomington. Before landing the role of Kelly, he had various walk-on parts on the serials "One Life to Live" and "All My Children," and the prime time series "On Our Own." John has studied dance, piano and organ and still takes singing lessons. When he's not at the studio, he enjoys basketball, bowling, tennis, volleyball, swimming and water-skiing — and the company of castmate Marsha (Hillary Bauer) Clark.

Q: Would you please send me the address of Tristan Rogers, the man that plays Robert Scorpio on "General Hospital?" BRENDA HENDREN, RAEFORD, N.C.

A: You can write to all your favorite stars of "General Hospital," including Tristan Rogers in c/o ABC-TV, Prospect at Talmadge, Hollywood, California, 90027.

Q: Was Loni Anderson of "WKRP in Cincinnati" ever married to Jimmy Walker of "Good Times?" A. PHILLIPS, FAYETTEVILLE, N.C.

A: No, she wasn't! Loni and her second husband, Ross Bickell, are now in the midst of a divorce. Her first marriage lasted a mere three months, however sixteen-year old daughter Deidre was a result of the short union. It's rumored that Loni and 'WKRP' co-star Gary Sandy are becoming more than 'just friends.'

Q: We know that Henry Fonda is the father of Jane and Peter, but who is their mother? D. NOVAK, FAYETTEVILLE, N.C.

A: Frances Seymour married Henry Fonda in 1936. She was the mother of both Jane (born 1937) and Peter (born 1939). In 1950 she committed suicide.

Q: Could you tell me if the man that plays Max (Lionel Stander) on "Hart to Hart" is the same one that played on "Car 54?" W. CREECH, GOLDSBORO, N.C.

A: No! Gunther Toody, the 'ooh-ooh' character on "Car 54, Where Are You," was portrayed by actor Joe E. Ross.

Lure Of The Vixen

Prime time vixens, the spoiled and devious characters on TV at night, are generating a flood of approving fan mail at the networks. One of the most popular "bad girls" at NBC is Morgan Fairchild, who plays Constance Carlyle on "Flamingo Road" on Tuesdays (10-11 p.m.)

Ms. Fairchild explained that viewers are attracted to her kind of character because people no longer believe in nice guy heroes — nice guys get stepped on and good girls become victims. However, vixens can be assertive, and they take control of their own lives, said Ms. Fairchild.

Audience reaction to the smug, selfish, utterly obnoxious — albeit rich and pretty — Scarlett Taylor (played by Suzi Dean) of "Harper Valley P.T.A." is also approving.

While there appears to be an abundance of vixens in the media today, their appeal is no new phenomenon, according to Dr. Antonia Bercovici. "Throughout history there's been a certain amount of excitement in the potentially evil, glamorous female," affirmed Dr. Bercovici.

Ying To Star

Ying Ruocheng, the most renowned actor in the People's Republic of China, will star as the legendary Kublai Khan in "Marco Polo," NBC-TV's upcoming eight-hour miniseries starring Ken Marshall in the title role.

"Ying Ruocheng is often called 'the Laurence Olivier of China' — and for good reason," says producer Vincenzo Labella. "He's not only a marvelously talented actor who has done everything from the classics to comedy, he also speaks perfect, fluent English.

Ying, who has been a towering figure as an actor, writer and director in the Chinese theater for more than 30 years, was born in Peking in 1929. His fluency in English stems from the fact that his father was the long-tie head of the foreign languages department at the Catholic University in Peking.

NICHOLAS B. DADDAZIO PORTRAYS a hansom cab driver who is startled when three suburban housewives (Tina Louise, top) and Georgia Engel and Jo Ann Pflug (l-r) stop him in Central Park, in "The Day The Women Got Even," airing Tuesday, Oct. 20 (8-10 p.m.) on NBC-TV.

Film Has All-Female Cast

Six women become suspects in a murder twenty years after the crime was committed, in "Friendships, Secrets and Lies," to be rebroadcast on Oct. 21 (9-11 p.m.) as the NBC Wednesday Night at the Movies.

The program is billed as the first television movie ever to feature an all-female cast. The leads are played by Tina Louise, Paula Prentiss, Stella Stevens, Loretta Swit, Sondra Locke, Shelley Fabares and Cathryn Damon. Also, members of the creative staff, including the producers, directors and screenwriter are all women. To take the reverse discrimination one step further, no males are seen or heard in the film.

The mystery focuses on six women, one of whom harbors a dark secret; she was responsible for a baby's death 20 years earlier when the women were sorority sisters. The six become suspects when their old sorority house is torn down and the baby's skeleton is discovered.

Jesse, a local newspaper reporter, learns that the six women, still living in the same college town 20 years after graduating, were the only students staying in the house the summer the baby died.

The sensation caused by the incident leads to angry demonstrations by pro-abortionists and anti-abortionists. Insults are hurled at the suspects and their children.

"Friendships, Secrets and Lies" was based on the novel "The Walls Came Tumbling Down," by Babs H. Deal.

Tina Louise and Stella Stevens have something in common besides being co-stars and having good looks — they both played Appassionata von Climax in "Li'l Abner." Ms. Louise played the role on Broadway and Ms. Stevens played the role in the movie version.

Ms. Louise seems to have been typecast in sexy roles ever since, having played the voluptuous Ginger in "Gilligan's Island" for several years.

She once told an interviewer: "I'm typed as a breather and a weeper."

Another Honor

The record-setting Emmy winner "Hill Street Blues" added another honor to its collection when it received the first Law Enforcement Entertainment Award, presented by the Federal Criminal Investigators Association at its national board meeting in California.

The 4,000 member organization is comprised of a variety of professionals involved in intelligence and criminal investigations. Some of these include special agents of the FBI, Secret Service, U.S. Marshals, I.R.S., and State Dept. Security.

The award was determined by a poll of the general membership, which named "Hill Street Blues" the best law enforcement-oriented program on television today.

Zeal People?

Ned Beatty explains his decisions to become an actor.

"I have more emotions than brains or strength," he said. "Acting is a funny thing. You can put everything into it and not get caught. If you tried to do anything else with complete zeal, you'd be in trouble. People wouldn't be able to handle it. If you're an actor, they can, because that's what's expected."

Barb Got Hooked

Said Mandrell: "My dad, Irby Mandrell, encouraged by sisters and me to enter show business, but he never pushed us. He said it was our decision. After performing with my dad's group, I knew it was a show business career for me. I was hooked."

He Really Won

Emmy-winning Daniel J. Travanti, who won Best Dramatic Actor for his role of Captain Furillo in NBC-TV's Emmy-winning "Hill Street Blues," underwent a slight case of delayed reaction after picking up his statuette.

"It didn't hit me until the next afternoon," said Travanti. "I kept having to tell myself, 'It's you, dummy — you won!'"

Behind The Perfect Wives

A television reporter stumbles onto the sinister secret of Stepford, a New England town where women are programmed to be domestic slaves, in "Revenge of the Stepford Wives," to be broadcast on NBC's Friday Night at the Movies on Oct. 23 (9-11 p.m.). The film is a sequel to the theatrical release "The Stepford Wives."

Julie Kavner (who won an Emmy for her performance as Brenda in the "Rhoda" series) stars as Megan Brady, a free-thinking young woman who is new in Stepford. Arthur Hill stars as Diz, the head of the Stepford Men's Association and instigator of the evil plot against the women. Sharon Gless stars as Kay Foster, a television reporter.

Miss Foster visits Stepford to find out why none of the residents ever move away or divorce. Searching for an assistant, Kay meets the effervescent Megan Brady, who has just moved to Stepford with her husband, Andy (Don Johnson).

The suspense rises when Barbara Parkinson (Audra Lindley), one of the strange Stepford wives, tries to run down Kay with her car. Then Megan mysteriously disappears — only to return as the perfect domestic wife whose sole purpose in life is to please her husband.

Kay is determined to find out what has happened to Megan and in doing so has a life-and-death confrontation with Diz.

Ms. Kavner, who was born in Los Angeles, didn't begin working in the theater until she entered California State University in San Diego. There, she majored in theater arts and graduated with honors.

Her stage credits include "Luv," "Feiffer's People," "The White House Murder Case," "Marat Sade," "The Typist" and "The Devils." Ms. Kavner has also directed a number of children's theater productions.

Ms. Kavner started her professional acting career auspiciously, winning the part of Brenda Morgenstern on "Rhoda," and immediately earning the Photoplay Gold Medal as "Favorite Television Newcomer."

SHARON GLESS (r) stars as television reporter who comes to a New England town and meets a young wife (Julie Kavner) who is initially a free-thinking woman in "Revenge of the Stepford Wives," airing Friday, Oct. 23 (9-11 p.m.) on NBC-TV.

Musical Profile

Production has started on "Rock and Roll Dreams," a one-hour visual and musical profile documenting the emergence of a newly formed rock and roll band, to be telecast in NBC-TV's Project Peacock series of primetime specials for young people and their families.

The five members of the new rock group include Michael Hurt, lead singer; Marty Ingle, base guitar; Chris Kaye, drums; Tony Kowalski, lead guitar; and Tom Newman, keyboards.

Walton's Reunion

One of the television's most popular families will be reunited in "Walton's Mountain," the first of three two-hour NBC World Premiere movies based on the Emmy-winning series, "The Waltons," which ran for nine years, from 1972-81.

Ralph Waite returns to star as the paternal John Walton, heading a cast that includes such "Waltons" regulars as Judy Norton-Taylor, Jon Walmsley, Mary Elizabeth McDonough, Eric Scott, David Harper, Kami Cotler, Ronnie Claire Edwards and Joe Conley.

The story of the maturing Walton clan will resume in 1947 at their home on Walton's Mountain, Va.

SECOND YEAR RUNNING BACK JEWERL THOMAS (33) of the Los Angeles Rams eludes a defender. Thomas made his first-ever NFL start against the Dallas Cowboys last season and eluded enough defenders to gain 147 yards on 16 carries in a 38-14 Rams victory. He'll try to duplicate that mark when the Rams and Cowboys meet again on Sunday, Oct. 18 (8-11 p.m.) on ABC-TV.

Morton Ranks High

Going into the fifth week of the regular season, Denver's veteran Craig Morton was the number one rated quarterback in the NFL with a 111.1 rating. His 17 completions in 18 attempts against San Diego is a Denver record for single game completion percentage (94.4).

Cowboys Host Rams

On Sunday, Oct. 18 (8-11 p.m.), the NFL contest between the Dallas Cowboys and the Los Angeles Rams will be nationally televised on an "ABC NFL Special." The game will take place at Texas Stadium in Irving.

Dallas has posted a 4-1 won-loss tally after the first five weeks of play. Los Angeles has won three of their first five games.

These two teams played each other twice last season. The first meeting was during the regular season, and the Rams dominated. Their offense compiled a total 517 yards while holding the Cowboys to paltry 271 yards. Los Angeles won the match handily, 38-14.

The second time these teams met was in the first round of the NFC playoffs. This time the Dallas offense scored four touchdowns in their 34-13 victory.

In both games, Rams running back Jewerl Thomas broke through the Dallas defense to score a touchdown. In the first game, Thomas' NFL debut, he rushed for 147 yards on 16 carries.

Los Angeles has enjoyed a relatively easy schedule so far in 1981. The toughest team they faced was the Houston Oilers. Houston won the game 27-20 with a last minute desperation pass for a touchdown. The New Orleans Saints handed the Rams their second defeat of the season.

Bean Plans Return

Professional golfer Andy Bean has been on the inactive list since late April. He has planned to close out the season by competing in the Southern and Pensacola Opens. He still remains questionable for the Southern Open at Green Island Country Club in Columbus Georgia, but indicated that if his hand injury continued to improve, he would be in the field there.

Stamping out postal subsidies.

FOR CONGRESSMAN BARRY GOLDWATER Jr. (R.-Calif.)

What happened to your proposal to put commercial advertisements on postage stamps? If it goes through, how can you control the type of advertising on them? — J.A., Garratsville, N.Y.

● The Free Enterprise Postage Stamp Act is currently before the House of Representative's Committee on Post Office and Civil Service. By allowing advertisements on stamps we can reduce our postage rates and stop subsidizing the Postal Service with our taxes. My bill specifically prohibits political, pornographic, scandalous or religious advertisements, and an oversight panel will monitor the ads to make sure that they are in the public interest. If the advertisements are in good taste, why not try the idea?

FROM THE "ASK" EDITOR

Lynn Redgrave, who caused a furor by insisting on nursing daughter Annabel on the set of TV's House Calls, told us: "It's time breast-feeding came out of the closet and we followed other countries, where it's considered natural. All those prudes who object due to the 'exposure' aspect are too stupid to realize that it's less revealing than some of the low-cut, sexy dresses or bikinis that many women parade around in." Lynn, a breast-fed baby herself, as were her sister (actress Vanessa) and brother, felt that it was important to breast-feed her own babies. She did so with her two older children and claims: "It's so much easier than bottles and breast-feeding is, after all, nature's way of feeding children. Hospitals, too, approve and recommend breast-feeding to new mothers."

Won't be bottled up.

FOR MELISSA SUE ANDERSON, of TV's Little House on the Prairie

Are you for or against marriage? — T.N., Altoona, Pa.

● I believe in it and hope to marry one day because I want children. I don't feel that living together is necessary. I do like the idea of finding the right person and going together for a long time. If you know someone over a period of years, it's better. Chances are it will work out if the couple has spent a great deal of time together. I don't believe in quick marriages.

FOR LINDA PALMER, author of Star Struck

Is it true that you are getting back at all those people in Hollywood you did not like? — E.B., Terre Haute, Ind.

● My book is essentially fiction. It's not a "pay back" work. So many Hollywood novels written by insiders are mean-spirited and written for revenge. I don't like "kiss and tell" books. I love kissing, but I don't believing in telling. But there are some similarities between myself and the book heroine. The character "Abby" is more the person I wish I were, than the person I am.

FOR DANNY THOMAS

Why do you allow doctors from the Soviet Union to attend medical seminars at your St. Jude Children's Research Hospital in Memphis? — G.E., Bristol, Tenn.

● We benefit from opening our doors. Russian doctors who have visited us have often supplied medical information that has been extremely useful to American doctors. We refuse to let a child die if we can prevent it. To achieve that, we'll accept help or advice from anyone, regardless of political barriers.

FOR CLARA R. JACKSON, mother of Reggie Jackson

How did your son's success change your life? — P.S., Fond du Lac, Wis.

● Improved it, of course. Made it easier for me to function financially, which is a help, because of my heart condition. But I still do what I've been doing for the last 25 years. When Reggie became a star, I was determined to continue my own way. After all, he is the celebrity, not me, even though he says to me, "I'm here because of you."

FROM THE "ASK" EDITOR

The "his" and "hers" matching gold pins worn by Ringo Starr and his wife, Barbara Bach, on their lapels have an insert that holds a fragment of the windshield from the car in which they had a near-fatal accident last year. They refer to those pins as their good-luck charms ("if we survived that crash, we can survive anything")....Don Rickles has come to the sad and reluctant conclusion that to know him is to become unimpressed with him. On the first day of his Mediterranean cruise he was asked for his autograph, on the second, he was greeted, "Hello, Don," on the third, it was a brusque order, "Hey, you, pass the salt"...Colleen Zenk, a regular on daytime's As the World Turns, is in the film version of Annie, and reports that Albert Finney (who plays Daddy Warbucks) always carried a big suitcase with him on location which he never opened. One night, when the restaurant they were dining in did not serve liquor, the mystery was solved. Albert opened his case and revealed a portable bar.

PRO AND CON

Should Senate Sessions Be Televised?

PRO Senator Howard H. Baker Jr., (R.-Tenn.), Majority Leader

By opening the Senate floor to the wonders of electronic communication, we will enhance the quality of our deliberations and foster, through our deliberations, a greater public awareness. The judgment we apply to every decision can and must be derived from the collective wisdom of the people who chose us to represent them. They are entitled to complete access to the Senate proceedings. By utilizing video communications we are applying a relatively new, but well-established, technology to the American democratic process.

Send questions of national significance, on a postcard, to "Pro & Con," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $10 for those published.

CON Senator Wendell H. Ford (D.-Ky.), ranking minority member, Rules Committee

The idea of televising Senate proceedings is not without merit. Yet, at a time when we are trying to reduce Government spending, it seems contradictory to approve a major new expenditure. Installation costs for television will be a minimum of $5 million. Annual operating costs will run between $400,00 and $600,000. Instead of television, I suggest proceeding immediately to gavel-to-gavel radio coverage. The cost will be minimal, and then everyone — not just those with cable television — will have access to the Senate.

COVER STORY

Life in a Gilded Cage

Models are perhaps the richest, most visible and most envied women in the world. Now, one of the highest paid models of the past decade talks candidly about the not-so-glamorous parts of the job: loneliness, drugs and the burnout many top models experience.

Frank Edwards / Fotos International

Author Smith with husband Jonathan Axelrod: "As you grow older, you want people to like you for yourself and not for your haircut."

By Shelley Smith

It was the summer of 1978, an exceptionally hot one in New York City, and I found myself standing on a beach one day, posing for a magazine advertisement. People fussed with my hair and my makeup and it was all quite glamorous — except for one small detail: In the 90-degree heat I was bundled up in a fur coat, sweater and gloves.

There was also a bit of irony to the situation. The previous winter I had posed outdoors in a bikini (ads must be shot, you see, far in advance) and had developed a serious case of pneumonia, which kept me out of work for three months. Modeling just isn't as easy — or glamorous — as it looks.

I guess you could say that fate determined I would become a model. When I was 17 years old, I grew four and a half inches in just a few short months but only gained six pounds. I had trouble walking without tripping over my size-nine feet, and as much as I tried to look petite, at 5 foot 9 inches I was still taller than most of the boys I knew.

During summer vacation that year, I worked in a New York City department store. One day Diana Vreeland, then editor-in-chief of Vogue and reigning queen of the New York fashion world, walked into the store, pointed in my direction and announced, "You are very beautiful. You must come work for us." I turned around quickly to see whom she was talking to. I was the lucky one she had singled out, and that summer was my first stint at modeling.

After college I started modeling full time in Paris. Europeans love Americans, especially blondes, and I was thrilled by the chance to travel. I worked in Paris for a year and then arrived at my first interview in New York — at Mademoiselle — dressed in leopard-print hot pants, the rage in Paris at the time. In retrospect I realize I must have looked awfully foolish, but the editors of the magazine overlooked it and put me on their upcoming cover — and for the next eight years I worked as a model in New York.

The modeling industry has received an awful lot of attention lately and I think the publicity is related in part to the enormous fees models get today — and why some models are particularly sought after.

There's a reason for all of this. In 1978, John Casablanca, who ran one of the best modeling agencies in Paris, decided to open an office in New York and several of the top models and bookers (agency employees who book the jobs over the phone) deserted for Casablanca's camp, the Elite Model Management Corporation. Eileen Ford Models Inc. and Wilhelmina Modeling Inc., then the two largest modeling agencies in this country, initiated lawsuits against Casablanca's agency — and thus began the so-called "Model Wars."

Each agent took the situation seriously and plotted a careful battle strategy. After all, it was wartime and there were thousands of dollars worth of commissions involved. Every time any model left for a different agency, the desertion was taken personally. I heard that Eileen Ford even sent a copy of the Bible to one of her bookers who moved to the Elite agency, marking the passage where Judas betrays Christ.

Ron Galella

One of the biggest effects of the model wars was the tremendous increase in model fees. When John Casablanca came to New York he started raising the rates of his models and each agency followed suit. Suddenly prices jumped from $1000 a day to $2500.

To the public, I guess it seems we lead pretty exciting lives. I must admit that it is wonderful to be able to travel to exotic places and earn such good money. But, as in any job, there are negative aspects. The hours are gruelling and many of the models must diet constantly. The travelling is exciting at first, but eventually you find yourself exhausted and lonely when you're away from home for up to three months at a time.

And, surprising as it sounds, one of the hardest aspects of the job is coping with the image of being a model. There are people in the business who treat you like nothing more than a mannequin that moves rather than a person. I've had stylists stick pins in me, forgetting I'm there. I always hated it when I was at a booking and the magazine or ad agency people would start talking about whom they were going to hire the next day — as if I weren't there. "Oh no, she's no good, she's gained five pounds," they would say. Or "she ruined her hair." And you knew that they had been talking about you the day before.

Being a model can also affect how men relate to you. There are some men who think you're just a pretty face, and new models sometimes fall into the trap of dating the rich playboy type of man who wants just an arm

Shelley Smith was the world's highest paid model in 1977 and '78, and has appeared in over 75 TV commercials. She is now a successful actress and has starred in a TV series, The Associates, and the TV movie Scruples. Currently she is rehearsing the role of a lawyer for a play to open in November.

Models

piece (if you open your mouth and he discovers you can talk, he'll feel threatened). If you go to discos you meet up with this type sooner or later.

And there's also the model groupie, the kind of guy who doesn't have a job, doesn't earn any money and loves to hang out with a model because she's rich and pretty. He'll fawn over her and carry her modeling portfolio around and wait for her after bookings. He may even cook her meals.

Sometimes he'll even get involved in her career, telling her which jobs to take — and that's always a big mistake. Generally a model who dates this kind of guy does it for security — because she feels so insecure during the day.

Some models also end up dating male models and photographers — and I think this might be a good time to put an old myth to rest. You certainly don't have to get into any sexual situations with photographers in order to get modeling jobs. In fact there's a funny story about a man who was a big catalogue photogapher when I first started modeling, and he was literally driven out of the business because he had a reputation for attacking every girl who walked into the studio. The head of one of the big modeling agencies wouldn't let any of her models work with him, and she called lots of clients and told them not to book him. The agencies are very protective of their models.

Of course if you're dating a photographer, you're going to probably go on a few more location trips with him than you might normally. And sometimes on a trip a romance might blossom. If five or six people go away together to a beautiful tropical island for two weeks, maybe two of them might fall in love but it doesn't happen any more in modeling than it does in other life situations.

There's something else that's awfully hard to deal with as a model. When you're first successful, people keep telling you how great you look and it doesn't matter about anything else inside you. As you grow a little bit older, though, you start to care about what's inside of you, and you want people to like you for yourself and not for your haircut. But suddenly you may find that the same people who six months before told you, "You're just the best, you're the greatest" now say somebody else is the greatest. You start to feel like your career may be over and you're not going to be loved anymore. Because, after all, what you've been loved for is totally exterior.

Right now in particular there's a lot of tension for models. Up until a few years ago, there were 20 or 30 top models at any given time. There was not one girl who was the girl of the moment. Now it seems that every few weeks there's a hot new face of the moment — but she doesn't last on top for more than a few months.

One reason these models burn out is because they're overexposed in magazines. If Vogue loves you, it will book you every day. So will the other magazines. They'll use you for the best clothes and they'll do the nicest pictures because they're so happy to get you. But then after three months they'll stop using you. They'll spit you out. That can be very hard to take.

Brooke Shields reflects the trend toward younger models, but the author questions whether most teens are mature enough to handle such emotional pressure.

It's especially hard for some of the young girls. Though not all the girls getting into the business today are as young as Brooke Shields, many of the models who are making it big are under 20. When I was starting out, the models who were making it were between 20 and 25. And they had put several years into the business to establish themselves as top models. Many of the young girls haven't really learned to model. And they're so young, they're not equipped to handle the emotional pressure and make shrewd decisions — like choosing the right jobs so they're not overexposed.

I've realized lately that there is a higher use of drugs in the business today and I think it's because of some of the problems models face. People go quietly into the bathrooms now on bookings. I'm not saying it happens all the time, but it does happen. Of course, drugs are more prevalent everywhere. But I do think if you're depressed and take a snort of cocaine it's easier to go into the photographer's studio and do your thing. You concentrate on the visual and you don't care so much about what's going on inside you.

I think at the heart of all of these problems are the enormous rate increases. As soon as the prices began skyrocketing, many models wanted the distinction of being one of the highest paid in the business. And just about everybody wanted to be a star, the girl of the moment.

I believe all of this has led to a loss of professionalism in the business. When you're getting paid so much it's easy to think you can get away with anything. I've seen girls come late to a booking or arrive with dirty hair and this can cost clients money. A couple of years ago one of the top models was booked with Richard Avedon, the best photographer in New York, for a cosmetic ad at the rate of $5000 for the day. She showed up four hours late and then when she didn't like the way her hair and makeup were done, she stuck her head under the water faucet in the sink.

What does the future hold for the modeling industry? There has certainly been a new look emerging in the past few years. Gone are the days of skinny, scrawny, pale fashion models. Now it's fine to have a light tan and even a fuller figure. Of course the blond all-American look of such models as Cheryl Tiegs will always be in, but pick up a recent issue of Vogue or Harper's Bazaar and you'll see many more exotic brunettes. The new trend is toward a much sexier look: girls with full lips and wild hairdos looking like they just tumbled out of bed in their latest designer fashions.

As far as the high rates, I think they're going to level off. And I think that the people who keep working will be the really professional ones. That means showing up on time and not using drugs.

For all my griping, if I was given the chance to live the past eight years of my career over again, I wouldn't change a thing. I've travelled in Europe, Japan and Africa, met some wonderful people and been paid handsomely. And there's something magical and exciting about walking onto a set in a gorgeous dress and hearing, "Click. Click. Turn around a little. Click. That's it. Click. You're beautiful." FW

AT HOME

THE FIX-IT, REFURBISH-IT GUIDE

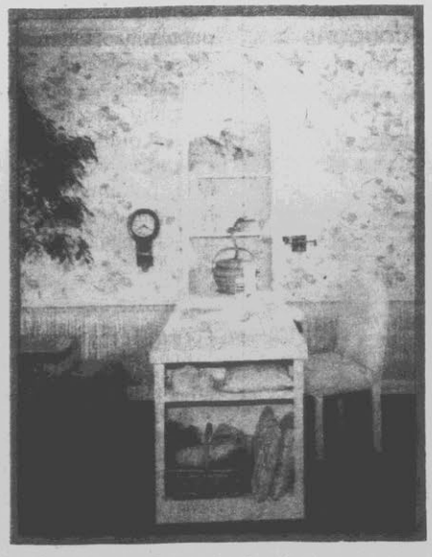
By Rosalyn Abrevaya

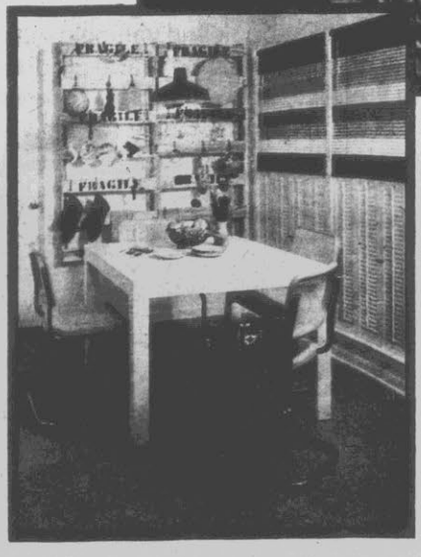
With today's housing prices and interest payments practically keeping pace with the cost of the space program, is it any wonder so many of us are considering remodeling our homes? It's a smart way to add beauty and comfort to an existing house at a fraction of the cost of moving. This At Home section is just brimming with ideas that you can start putting into practice right now: You'll learn all about wallcovering trends, decorating with paint and wonderful ways with windows, as well as energy-saving ideas for plugging those drafts and cracks that frequently occur around your home.

Photographic House, Inc.

A Bedroom Sewing Nook

This charming area features coordinated wallcoverings and a companion fabric. The calico field-flowers design, set on a subtle striped background, surrounds the arched niche covered in a mini-floral pattern. By Gloria Vanderbilt for James Seeman Studios.





Window Magic

This kitchen, which receives little natural light, needed color to brighten it up. The solution was an orange vinyl floor and an unusual window treatment that features multicolored blinds on top and shutters on the bottom. Flexalum Decor Blinds. The flooring by Armstrong.

Early American Mood

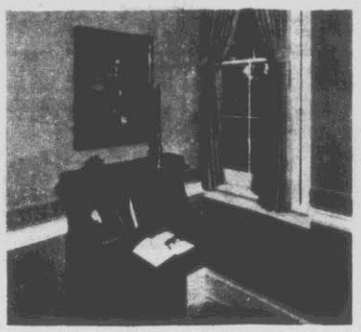
AT HOME

A Wallcoverings Primer



A crisply checked vinyl wallcovering and matching fabric transform the corner of this room. Both are from Imperial.

Before you rush off to buy wallcovering for your entire home, it's a good idea to take stock of your family's preferences. Find out what colors they like. Ask them about the size and kind of pattern they prefer. Perhaps you can select a pattern that reflects a family member's favorite hobby.

In selecting wallcoverings for the major living areas, consider the type of use you get out of each room. If you're frequently in the kitchen, you may want a pattern in warm, friendly colors. If you use the dining room only on formal occasions, you may want a pattern that will "dress it up," perhaps a wallcovering with a silky sheen.

Be sure to take your time and choose your wallcovering carefully. If possible, take home samples of the patterns you're considering, and get a family consensus (you can ask your dealer to lend you his sample book). If you're undecided about a pattern, buy one roll, tack it up on the wall and live with it for a couple of weeks to see how it "wears." It's a lot cheaper to spend money on one roll than on redoing a whole room.

Today there's a wide range of wallcoverings to select from including paper, vinyl, foil and Mylar, burlap, cork or grasscloth. By far the most popular, long-lasting and economical are the strippable, scrubbable, fabric-backed vinyls; some of the fairly heavy grades are durable enough to be used again.

Wallcoverings are more of a bargain than you may realize. While everything else is zooming in price, wallcoverings have remained relatively stable. You can get handsome, good-quality pre-pasteds with easy-care finishes for as little as $8.95 a roll. Rolls measure about 27 inches wide by 16 feet long. How much do you need for an average 10- by 12-foot room? Figure on 11 rolls. That means you can do the room for about $100.

Be sure to consider scale: Small-scale patterns are easy to live with, but large-scale patterns can be dramatic — and are usually most effective when confined to a small area or one wall. You might also consider using coordinates. Most wallcovering collections include dozens of coordinated patterns — such as stripes and flowers, dots and checks — that can make a room look really grand. And more companies are offering wallcoverings with matching fabrics.

What do wallcoverings designers see as upcoming trends? According to Sharon Clarke-Fodor, design director for Sanitas, "For the first time in memory, there is more than one color trend happening simultaneously." The leading direction is in colors currently popular with the fashion industry — such as teal, jade green, mauve, raspberry, apricot and periwinkle blue. There's also a strong "red influence." "Natural" colors such as wheat, gray and other earth tones are also popular.

Still another trend is visible in the preponderance of deep, rich colors like forest green, burgundy, rust, navy and the paintbox-bold colors that are being utilized to accent small areas. "As for patterns, country prints and all small-scale designs are sweeping the country," says Clarke-Fodor.

Robert Cappel, director of design for Wall-Tex Wallcoverings, has this point of view: "If anything characterizes this moment in time on the American scene, it's a return to elegance, and it's showing up strongly in wallcoverings." He feels the country look has branched out, mingling with traditional and romantic styles. Muted shades such as peach, grey, pink-beige and blue and quiet patterns express today's soft, sensuous mood. The fascination with elegance, Cappel believes, also accounts for the increasing popularity of Oriental motifs. They are varied and lend themselves as backgrounds to many decorating styles. Hottest of the Orientals right now is paisley — the intricate floral patternings which are having a heyday comparable to their first flowering back in the '20s.

For a free copy of "All You Need to Know About Wallcoverings," the 16-page booklet which gives tips on how to decorate with wallcoverings and instructions on how to hang them, write to The Wallcovering Information Bureau, Dept. FW, 66 Morris Avenue, Springfield, N.J. 07081.

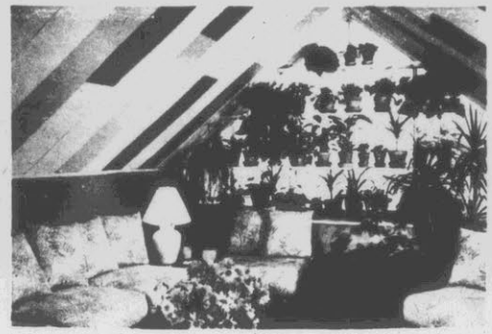
Try Decorating With Paint



Decorate an attic ceiling with painted plywood panels nailed in place in a random arrangement. Paint by PPG.

In the past, the very thought of going through the experience of a home paint job was enough to turn a person a pale shade of green. But all that has apparently changed — with the new technology of dripless rollers and quick-drying paints. Here are the answers to some typical questions you might have:

Where do I start? The first step is to select an overall color scheme, taking into account all furnishings and carpeting. Decide what type of mood you want to create, what furniture, art work, architectural features or other aspects of the room you want to emphasize, as well as any awkward physical characteristics of the room you would like to downplay. For example, molding can be emphasized by painting it a darker or lighter color than the walls. A dark color can create a cozy, sophisticated mood in a room. It can also play down elements that jut out, such as a radiator.

How do I choose the right paint color for a room? Basically, yellows, oranges and reds are "warm" colors. The shades opposite them on the color wheel — greens, blues and purples — are "cool" colors. You can therefore use paint to "warm" up a room on the shady side of the house or "cool" off a room with a southern exposure.

Some other hints: White or pastel tints in a room with conventionally sized windows that are used mostly in the daytime will give optimum brightness and allow you to use less artificial light. Muted-to-deep colors go well in a room designed for nighttime functions, such as a living room. Light ceilings efficiently reflect and diffuse light from direct and indirect sources.

Can I get special effects with paint? Yes. Color can establish a focal point. For example, a perfectly square room can be made more interesting by painting one wall in an accent color. An art object or attractive piece of furniture can be highlighted by placing it against a wall painted a rich, contrasting color. With a dark color paint, you can give the illusion of lowering a too-high ceiling or "alter" the proportions of a room. For instance, to make a narrow "bowling alley" room look wider, use a dark, warm color on each end wall and apply a lighter, receding color on the side walls.

How do I paint walls that are cracked or peeling? Preparing surfaces for paint can be the most time-consuming and difficult part of the job. Walls must be scrupulously cleaned, which can mean anything from a mere dusting to a heavy scrubbing, especially in kitchens and baths where dirt and grease accumulate. Cracks and holes must be plastered or spackled and rough spots sanded smooth. Don't paint until the plaster has dried. (If a nail will easily penetrate the plaster, you'll know that it's still wet.) Where walls have been patched, some kind of priming is generally necessary. You simply cover the surface with an undercoat which acts as a sealer and helps the topcoat to adhere. Check with your paint store before proceeding.

Interior designers have been known to create legendary rooms with richly painted walls, often setting the pace for the whole room scheme. FAMILY WEEKLY asked several of them for their best tips.

• John Saladino stresses that one "cannot spend too much time in preparing walls for painting. The time spent will make a tremendous difference in the final result." He adds that when selecting paint, "it's smart to check paint samples under natural light and for a color to be used on a ceiling, hold the samples above your head." Saladino cautions that when in doubt about a paint color, first buy a quart to try it out.

• Liz Shean points out: "If you select a deep or dark color, purchase it in a satin finish or high gloss. Otherwise fingermarks or furniture leaning against that particular wall will show up." If a ceiling is too low, Shean suggests you paint it a paler shade than the walls or, if they're light colored, the same shade as the walls. That way the eye sweeps up without interruption — and there's an illusion of height.

• Mario Buatta likes the return of the trend of "glazing" walls, a technique that utilizes a sponge or cheesecloth on a wall to give handsome stippled, striated or marbleized effects. (Check with your paint store or home center for information.)

"As for trends in paint colors," says Buatta, "rainbow pastels seem to be the going popular direction." But he suggests that people have one dark-walled retreat to come home to at night (perhaps painted a forest green) — it's just the thing for those who don't have the room for a paneled library or den.

Another tip for small-size interiors: If you paint a hallway or foyer a dark color, but keep the rooms it leads to a light shade, the other rooms will have the illusion of being larger. Buatta's idea for a great color scheme? Yellow walls and a pale blue ceiling with the woodwork and molding painted white.

Wonderful Ways With Windows

Windows are the eyes of your room. They determine what you see of the outside world. Inside the room, they express your decorative point of view.

Since windows come in all sizes and shapes, each has its own decorating challenge. But whatever your window style, keep in mind the adage that form must follow function. Windows are there to admit light and air. Unless your view is offensive, don't treat a window in a way that will interfere with its function.

Otherwise, windows are wide-open to decorating ideas. Here are some of today's most popular options:

Fabric Window Treatments. Draperies and curtains come in styles and fabrics as limitless as your imagination. And they needn't cost a bundle. The available ready-mades on the market are not only a good buy in terms of styling and easy care, but they also offer the fundamentals for unusual or dramatic window decor.

"If your desire is for a formal or romantic room, there are many draperies or curtains that can provide the initial ingredients," says Kay Lewis, vice president of design for Kenneth Home Fashions.

For such a room, she suggests draperies with a pouf or flounce. "They're easy to do up," she notes, "by simply buying an extra-long drapery and gathering it up at the point at which you'd like the pouf — with a ribbon or string pulled tightly (attached to the wall with a thumb tack) — then allowing the extra yardage to balloon over the gathering."

You can get yet another custom look by combining a solid color with a patterned drapery on the same rod, then arranging them in pleated fashion, held in place with a tie-back. A variation on this idea is to sew a solid drapery and a patterned one back-to-back. This way you can make a distinctive tailored style by turning the inside corners up into a triangular fold and fastening them in place with a large ornament.

For a really opulent look, especially good on picture windows or French doors, try triple layerings. Start with sheer curtains. Over these, add tailored panel draperies on a rod that will permit them to be drawn closed and, on the outside, add tie-back draperies. "Layered window treatments are economical in the long run, because they can be a significant energy-saver," Lewis points out. The air caught between the layers is crucial in insulating the room from cold drafts.

Such multiple layers, as well as lined draperies, are only two energy-saving solutions. New on the market are "window warmers," quilted draperies in a range of cheerful colors that are reminiscent of comforters. You can use them either underneath your present draperies or instead of them. As for easy care in draperies, there is even a washable antique satin style available now.

Draperies are also great camouflage for difficult windows. Hung so that they extend across the wall, they can give a greater sense of width to tiny windows or make look-alikes of uneven sized windows. Those hung on a ceiling-mounted track with tie-backs can frame a bay window, picture window or French door providing a beautifully dressed look without interfering with the view or with traffic in the case of the door.

Blinds. Always efficient for controlling light and the view, blinds have moved into high home-fashion circles, with stylish, narrow slats and a rainbow of colors — more than 100 — to choose from. If that's not enough, you can apply your own designs on these blinds using acrylic paint.

Horizontal blinds, the popular choice for most homes, generally come in 1-inch slats, either wood or aluminum with colored or metallic finishes. The availability of custom coloring makes the blinds adaptable for interiors in all decorating styles. Horizontal blinds typically have a ten-year life and are less expensive than vertical blinds.

Blinds provide energy savings too. According to Gordon Clements, general manager, Hunter Douglas Window Products Division, their heat-retaining capability increases when they are used in conjunction with draperies and valances in the wintertime. "If the blinds have a light-colored finish on the window side, up to 55 percent of the sun's rays can be reflected, cutting air-conditioning costs in the summer," he adds. Blinds can be easily cared for with regular vacuuming and sponged clean using warm water and a mild detergent.

Shades. That old favorite, the roller shade, is an inexpensive and effective window treatment, in terms of both function and fashion. Roller shades are easy to install, easy to maintain and easy to individualize with fabric cutouts and trimmings. Or use your embroidery skills to decorate open-mesh shades.

For problem windows, or special effects, there are custom shades. These can be ordered for any window size and are offered in a wide range of decorative trims, hems, pulls and even matching custom valances. Available, too, are laminated shades: Your fabric is bonded to the shade cloth to coordinate with other room decor. You can also buy duplex shades, a "two-faced" variety in a wide range of colors for the side facing the room; white on the side facing outward. There is also the reverse-roll shade. In this custom-shade variation, the cloth pulls down in front of the roller to conceal it. The roller is not seen on the room side. And, there are bottom-up shades: These have sill-mounted rollers with a pulley device for drawing the shades up. They are ideal for street-level rooms to provide privacy without cutting off all light.

The energy-saving benefits of window shades are reputed to be superior to other window-coverings, according to research conducted at Cornell University and North Carolina State. Recently introduced is an innovative new system called "Windo-Seal," which combines an opaque shadecloth with channels and a side-operated raising mechanism. This system reportedly increases the winter fuel-saving effect of a conventional window shade by 20 percent.

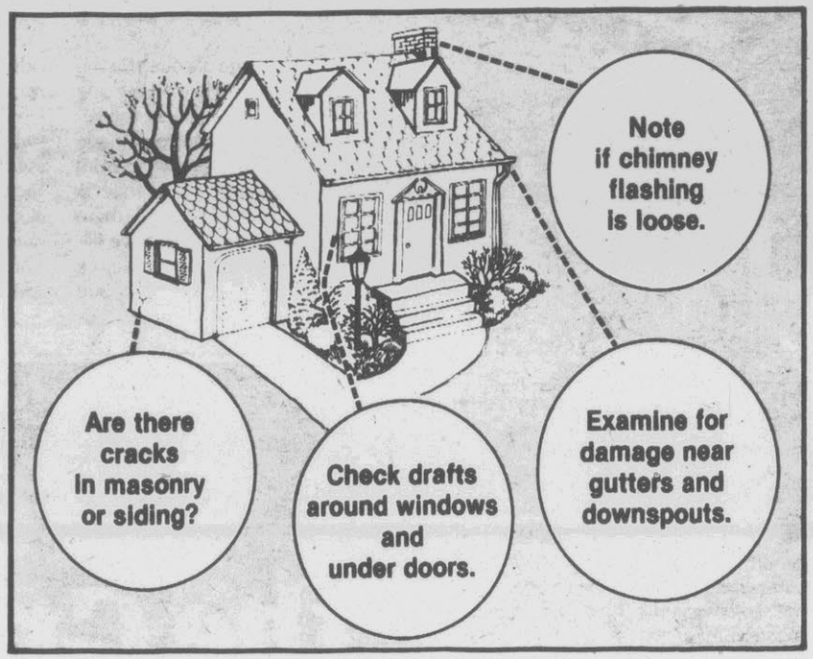
Save Energy Dollars By Weather Stripping And Caulking



If you're sick of high fuel bills, the time and money you invest in weather stripping and caulking can pay off faster than any other home improvement — even when your house is already well insulated. Warming the cool air that leaks into the house in winter and cooling the warm air that sneaks in during the summer, wastes energy and costs you money.

Weather stripping. It's designed to reduce air infiltration around doors and windows, but it will also keep out moisture, dust and noise, resulting in a cleaner, quieter home. You can buy weather stripping by the foot or in handy kits. You'll find installation instructions and diagrams on most packages. A hammer, tin cutters, a tape measure and a screwdriver or putty knife are the tools needed to apply the many kinds of weather stripping materials — which include aluminum, brass, plastic, rubber, fabric and composition material.

An easy way to tell whether a window or door needs to be weather stripped is to feel for drafts. Also, notice if there's any light coming in around the door.

If you plan to do a complete weather-stripping job, don't limit yourself to the obvious windows and doors that lead outside. You ought to weather strip doors that lead to any unheated space, such as a garage or porch. Weather strip storm windows and storm doors, too.

To find the total length of weather stripping you'll need, measure your window or door frame carefully. If you're buying stripping materials for more than one door or window at a time, make a list of how many strips of each length you will need for every door or window. Before beginning make sure all the channels are clear of flakes of old paint and other debris.

Caulking. Its purpose is to plug holes and cracks that occur around pipes, ducts, wires or electrical outlets; where the roof joins the wall; where the walls join the foundation; where any exterior coverings such as masonry and siding meet each other, and in masonry or siding itself. Caulking may be used effectively on indoor walls, ceilings or floors where they have become cracked, and around door and window frames.

Anyone with a firm hand and a steady eye can do a good caulking job. It may be a bit messy, though, until you get the feel of it. All you need is a putty knife or old screwdriver to scrape out old caulking and an inexpensive trigger-pressure caulking gun (generally used for cracks about 1/8-to 1/4-inch wide or deep) to hold either a cartridge or bulk compound.

Cartridges filled with any of five types of compound are available: Silicone, butyl rubber, oil base, latex or polyvinyl acetate. Silicone is the most expensive and the easiest to apply but will last five years or more while the others — except butyl rubber — may dry out and crack in a few years and require repair.

For narrower or shallower cracks, sealant from a toothpaste-dispenser-type tube is commonly used. Wider or deeper cracks are filled with canned caulking, putty or other sealant, applied with a flat-bladed knife.

For safety's sake, do not use caulking near an open flame and don't smoke while caulking. Most caulking compounds are flammable to some degree, and often give off noxious odors near high heat. If you need to caulk in close quarters, make sure that ventilation is adequate to keep the air fresh. Wash your hands when you've finished working, and always keep these materials out of the reach of children and pets.

FASTEST WEIGHT-LOSS METHOD KNOWN TO MEDICAL SCIENCE!

(EXCEPT FOR TOTAL STARVATION)

Compared to the Scarsdale Diet, Weight-Watchers, Duke Univ. even Atkins or Pritikin it burns away fat as much as:

Recently, America's leading consumer report magazine—in a special release—dropped a medical bombshell on the entire weight-loss field that, based upon their findings, demonstrates how a wondrous London University super crash-loss diet program burns away fat, flab and fluid with such lightning speed ... it actually melts away clinging pockets of flab up to 4 TIMES FASTER THAN EVEN THE MOST WORLD-FAMOUS DIETS ... and even more startling ... 11 TIMES FASTER THAN HOURS OF BRUTAL EXERCISE!

Yes, speeds up your body's rate of fat burn-off to such blast-furnace intensity that according to medical science, based upon how heavy you are ... in just the first 48 hours alone, melts away excess flab, fluid and fat at so staggering a rate of speed, you'

LOSE up to 1 lb. EVERY 8 HOURS
LOSE Up to 1½ lbs. EACH DAY!

Yes, lose weight by the hour, carve away inches by the week ... shrink down as much as 4 sizes smaller in JUST 14 DAYS!

GOVERNMENT OFFICIAL LOSES 10 POUNDS IN JUST 72 HOURS . . .

So effectively does this London University's wonder 'crash-loss' diet safely step up your fat-burning metabolism that:

When tested not just on ordinary overweight people but on the most extreme cases of obesity imaginable ... it EVAPORATED 10 POUNDS OF FAT, FLUID AND FLAB IN JUST 3 DAYS TIME! Even more amazing ... when tested at one of medical science's foremost research centers on scores of grossly overweight men and women ... they not only lost as much as 7 lbs. of excess weight IN JUST THE FIRST 72 HOURS ALONE ... and as much as 10 lbs., 12 lbs., 14 lbs. GONE IN JUST THE NEXT 14 DAYS ... meaning during this all-out 'fat-burn blitz' ... melted away so many pounds, so many inches they ACTUALLY SHRINK DOWN AS MUCH AS A FULL SIZE SMALLER EVERY 3 OR 4 DAYS!

AS MUCH AS 50% OF ALL EXCESS WEIGHT GONE IN JUST 14 DAYS!

But most mind-boggling of all ... when tested on average overweight people who for years lugged around a spare tire, bulge of 10, 15 or even 20 extra sagging pounds ... IT ACTUALLY MELTED AWAY AS MUCH AS 50% OF ALL EXCESS WEIGHT IN JUST 14 DAYS!

Yes, stepped up their body's rate of fat burn-off and melted away hard set fat as much as 4 TIMES FASTER THAN THE WORLD'S MOST FAMOUS HIGH-SPEED DIETS ... AND 11 TIMES FASTER THAN EXERCISE!

TURNS YOUR ENTIRE BODY INTO A SUPER FAT-BURNING FURNACE!

In fact, based upon Calorie Burn-Off Research from California's Leading Medical School, the calorie-deficit created in your system by this 'crash-loss' high-burn diet program (a staggering deficit of as much as 2,400 calories a day off required daily intake) works with such breath-taking speed you actually

BURN AWAY MORE FAT EACH DAY than:

Running 100 Miles A Week or—over 3,000 sit-ups and push-ups a day or—10 Solid Hours of Weight-lift workouts or—even 15 hours of non-stop Marine Corps calisthenics!

WAKE UP SLIMMER THE VERY FIRST MORNING!

What is this amazing fat-destroyer wonder program that helps to burn away fat by the hour—carve away inches by the week?

Briefly stated ... it is a London University crash-burn diet, a remarkably simple way to take special combinations of high-burn foods and create what doctors call a 'hypo-caloric effect' to take place inside your body ... that turns your system into a GIANT FAT BURNING MACHINE! Yes, actually reverses your body's fat build-up process as you COMPLETELY STOP EXCESS fat-builder calories from entering your system ... or being absorbed by your body and turned into fat like in the past! So obviously, down go the calories, up goes the rate of fat burn-off and off come the pounds and inches at a rate that absolutely staggers the imagination!

Yes, a TOTAL FAT-DESTROYER program that literally 'ignites' a fat-burning chain-reaction inside your system ... revs up your body's rate of fat burn-off and ACTUALLY SHRINKS YOUR BODY'S FAT CELLS starting in just hours.

Think of it! With each tick of the clock, your body burns away a steady flow of fat-builder calories ... melts down even the most stubborn fatty bulges ... so you lose weight like never before ... LOSE IT BY THE HOUR ... all starting the very first day. In fact, of all medically sound reducing programs ONLY TOTAL STARVATION WORKS FASTER!

IF YOU READ NOTHING ELSE, READ THIS

This program involves a high-speed crash-loss diet that lowers caloric intake, essential to the reduction of body weight. Such results cannot be achieved solely through the use of the capsules. The more overweight you are, the higher caloric requirements, the more you should lose the faster you should lose it. Before starting this weight-loss program consult with physician to be sure you are in normal health, that your only problem is excess weight and simple obesity. Individuals with high blood pressure, diabetes, heart, kidney disease, thyroid problems, Pregnant or nursing women should not use except on advice of a physician. Do not exceed recommended dosage.

LIKE GROWING A BRAND NEW BODY IN JUST 2 WEEKS TIME!

Because quite obviously ... since this University's ALL OUT ASSAULT ON FAT lowers your system's rate of calorie intake ... raises the level of calorie burn-off revs-up that rate of body-fat burn-off ... pounds and inches vanish at a rate that in plain simple talk is ABSOLUTELY MIND BLOWING!

World's Leading Medical Authority on Obesity Reports:
'. . . AS MUCH AS 50% OF ALL EXCESS FAT GONE IN JUST 14 DAYS'

AMAZING "INNER FURNACE EFFECT" HELPS TRIGGER THE MOST DYNAMITE FAT-BURN SPREE OF YOUR LIFE!

Now comes the most exciting news of all. Because, now, from London, England comes the thrilling announcement and release to the American public of a wondrous 2-stage reducing-aid formula that is medically designed to work both at meals and between meals to help defeat the greatest single cause of fat build-up, as this incredible University 'crash-loss' diet helps you keep the fat burning chain reaction going in your body non-stop all day long.

Called Thera-dex 100, these amazing capsules, when taken as directed, work in your body morning, noon and night to help you lose weight with a 2-stage all-out attack against the basic cause of fat build-up.

STAGE 1. Turns off your hunger drive—that maddening urge to eat, just like you turn off a light switch. Makes it easier to lower calorie intake.

STAGE 2: AT BOTH MEALTIMES AND SNACKTIMES, BECAUSE IT HELPS LOWER INTAKE, YOU NOT ONLY REVERSE THE FAT BUILD-UP PROCESS IN YOUR SYSTEM ... BUT THIS LONDON 'CRASH-BURN' PROGRAM STOPS EXCESS FAT FROM FORMING ANYWHERE ON YOUR BODY!

Most amazing of all on this high-burn program because you actually 'rev-up' the level of your fat-burning metabolism ... every last morsel of food that enters your body ... every last calorie is COMPLETELY OXIDIZED, METABOLIZED, BURNED RIGHT OUT OF YOUR SYSTEM AFTER EVERY TIME YOU EAT!

Meaning the food you take in, the calories you enjoy are burned away even more quickly by your own stepped up metabolic system ... as little as 2 to 3 hours after eating!

ALL CALORIES BURNED AWAY JUST 2 TO 3 HOURS AFTER EATING SO, THE FOOD YOU EAT NO LONGER TURNS TO FAT

So, obviously, since it takes far less food to satisfy you, lowering calories is a lark. And since the calories you do take in on this 'crash-loss' diet program are burned right out of your body after every time you eat ... you start to TURN SLIMMER, not only the very first day ... BUT—after the very first meal thereafter! as excess fat and fluid start to disappear—GET OXIDIZED BY THE HOUR!

PROVE EVERY LOST OUNCE, EVERY LOST INCH —ENTIRELY AT OUR RISK

Right now, look at your figure in the mirror and ask yourself these questions—the solutions to which are right now within your grasp:

How would I look one week from today as much as 5 to 10 pounds lighter?

How would I look in 2 weeks with my waistline 2 to 4 inches smaller?

BUT DON'T STOP THERE—if you need to lose still more inches, then continue the University "crash-loss" diet, continue to take 'Thera-dex 100' until you've reached the figure of your dreams, with as much as

6 INCHES CARVED OFF YOUR HIPS . . . UP TO ANOTHER 3 INCHES CARVED OFF YOUR THIGHS . . . ANOTHER 4 INCHES OFF YOUR BUTTOCKS . . . ANOTHER 6 INCHES OFF YOUR STOMACH . . . ANOTHER 6 INCHES OFF YOUR WAISTLINE!

Because NEXT TO COMPLETE STARVATION THERE IS SIMPLY NO OTHER MEDICALLY SOUND REDUCING PROGRAM THAT WORKS FASTER.

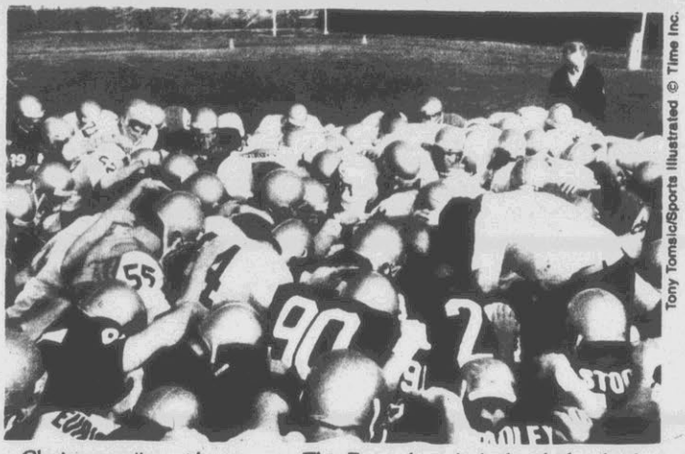
Notre Dame's Gerry Faust

A High-School Legend Leads the Irish



Tony Tomsic/Sports Illustrated © Time Inc.

Closing practice with a prayer: This Faust doesn't deal with the devil.

By Loren Feldman

When Dan Devine coached the Green Bay Packers, the local critics spat on his daughter and shot his dog, but Devine thinks coaching football at Notre Dame was tougher. Leading the famed Fighting Irish might be the most pressure-filled job in football. The Irish have as strong a claim as the Dallas Cowboys to the title "America's Team." Their games are broadcast by approximately 350 radio stations throughout the country and televised by delayed tape to most major markets.

It was something of a surprise, then, that when Devine asked out effective after the 1980 season, this most hallowed and most feared of jobs was handed to, of all things, a high-school coach. Don Shula of the Miami Dolphins and college coaches like Lou Holtz (Arkansas), Terry Donahue (U.C.L.A.), Lee Corso (Indiana), George Welsh (Navy) and Joe Restic (Harvard) were all considered during the lengthy selection process. But, when the white smoke cleared above South Bend's Golden Dome, the winner was 46-year-old Gerry Faust from Cincinnati's Moeller High.

At Moeller, Faust was known for sending 250-pound linemen to ballet class, for exhorting his charges at crucial moments to "say a Hail Mary," for choreographing pep rallies that drew 2,000 fans at a school with an enrollment of 1,000, and for staging parents' days when every Moeller player would take his turn kissing his folks before the assembled team.

Not all of Faust's graduates were all-American players on the field, but most were all-American boys off of it. Every Moeller athlete understood, as Faust has often said, "No matter how great he is, he better never cuss, he better never play dirty football, and if he burps, he better say 'excuse me.'"

But will Faust, the archetypal fire-and-brimstone, motivation-and-discipline, high-school coach, try his sophomoric ploys with college athletes? "I don't think I'll change as a coach," says Faust. "These young men are very mature, but they have a spirit that's very similar to the spirit that existed at Moeller. I think they want me to be the way I am."

At Moeller, a Catholic school for boys, Faust blended Catholicism and football with stunning success. Every one of his teams lived, prayed, and won religiously. Since Faust fathered the varsity program in 1963, with used uniforms and a homemade blocking sled, Moeller has won over 90 percent of its games, including Faust's last 33, and 90 of his last 93. More than half of his 174 wins were shutouts. Moeller was city champion 10 of the last 12 years, state champion five of the last six years, and, for what it's worth, the school claims four of the last five "mythical" national championships. Few will argue.

Nearly 300 of Faust's players, including 25 from last year's team alone, have been awarded athletic scholarships to play college football. Eighteen Fighting Crusaders have gone on to be Fighting Irish, and nine are currently on the Notre Dame squad, including all-American linebacker Bob Crable, speedy wingback Tony Hunter, backup quarterback Tim Koegel, and prized freshman fullback Mark Brooks.

Indeed, Faust has helped recruit what many consider to be the strongest freshman class in the nation. Last year's team ended up battling for the number-one spot until the season's final day, and this year, despite an ear-

Observations

Braving new worlds. Even back in Columbus' day (the 15th century, not last Monday's holiday), farsighted scholars had come to believe the earth was round. Many sailors shared their view, just from seeing the horizon's curve at sea. And contrary to our kindergarten memories, Columbus didn't sail west from Spain to "discover America"; headwinds blow the wrong way, so he sailed south to the Canary Islands, then turned west to pick up the trade winds. Today, seagoing scientists are echoing Columbus' unprecedented exploration in a new direction–miles under the oceans. This time the quest is for a wealth of energy.

On the shelf. The Outer Continental Shelf, the offshore areas of the Atlantic, Gulf of Mexico and Pacific that border America, extends more than 250 miles to sea in some places, is 8,200 or more feet deep, and has a total area almost six times as large as oil-rich Texas. Government geologists say the OCS may hold more than a third of all our oil still to be discovered and over a quarter of America's undiscovered natural gas. But exploration, as Columbus found, is full of surprises: In a prime spot 70 miles off New Jersey, the Baltimore Canyon, oil companies spent $1.6 billion on exploration but so far have only a little natural gas to show for it, not even enough to be worth piping ashore.

"It's obviously a higher civilization than we thought."

Modern mariners. A far cry from the Santa Maria and Columbus' sextant, today's fleets of seismic ships like Mobil's T. W. Nelson use "air guns" to bounce sound waves off rock formations thousands of feet beneath the seabed. On-board computers analyze oceans of data to point oil explorers toward potential oil and gas reservoirs. Space satellites precisely position deep-drilling rigs. There are even "robot pipefitters," an experimental Mobil system that can automatically connect pipelines to wellheads 2,500 feet beneath the surface–far deeper than divers can work unprotected. Still, Columbus would spy something familiar–huge sails that help speed some drilling rigs from site to site (and save energy, too).

Gem of the ocean. To launch such an energy armada, and mount the best technology to protect the environment, takes a king's ransom...and there's no modern-day Queen Isabella to foot the bill. Just the opposite, in fact: Oil companies pay the government for the privilege of exploring–more than $4 billion for OCS sites in 1980 alone. But the search must continue, for the U.S. needs domestic oil. And as historian Ruth Sheldon Knowles wrote in The Greatest Gamblers, oil "is found in abundance only if a great many people are looking for it all at once in all sorts of unlikely places." Like Davy Jones' locker.

It's a fact: Mobil spent nearly $1.3 billion on exploration and production in the U.S. last year, one-third more than our earnings on all energy operations in 1980.

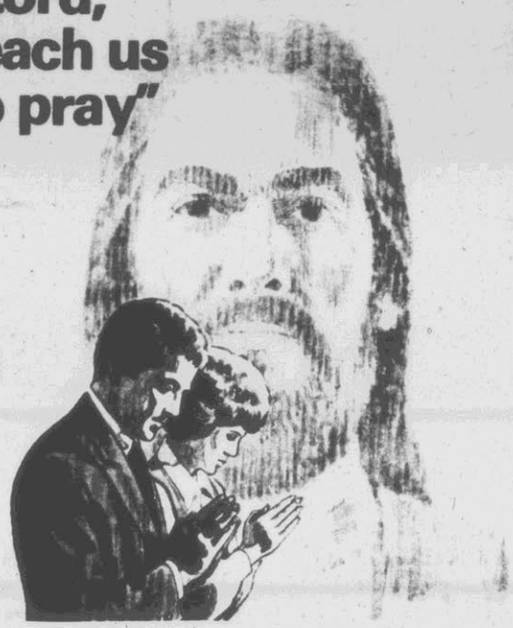
"Lord, teach us to pray"



The need for prayer—especially in time of danger or anxiety—is instinctive in almost everyone. Yet many people regard it chiefly as a means of obtaining God's favors. And when everything they pray for is not granted, they often wonder if God is really listening.

Christ's teachings on prayer, however, reveal that God does indeed hear and answer each of our prayers . . . but not necessarily by granting every favor we want or think we need.

To help you understand why this is so, we have prepared a special pamphlet explaining the true meaning and purpose of prayer. You will learn from it how Christ gave us the Lord's Prayer not merely as words to be recited, but as the model for perfect prayer. And you will learn, too, the truth of Our Lord's promise: "Ask, and it shall be given you."

Gerry Faust

Faust family album

At home with wife Marlene and (from left) sons Gerry and Steve, daughter Julie Marie: "No cussing and say 'excuse me' if you burp."

ly loss to Michigan, the Irish still have a shot at the national title — if they can win their remaining games against powerhouses Penn State and, next Saturday, arch-rival U.S.C.

Despite his record, some of the Irish were apprehensive about Faust's arrival. "Before spring practice people were skeptical," says Koegel, who quarterbacked three Moeller teams. "Everyone kept asking me, 'What's he like, what's he like?' And I would just say, 'Well, you really can't describe him. You'll have to wait and see.'"

But it did not take Faust long to win over his team. He met individually with the entire squad and knew the names of all 120-plus players within a week. The team also got to see Faust's relentless enthusiasm day after day in practice. "As soon as people start realizing that he's genuine in what he's doing," says Koegel, "they appreciate it. Everybody likes him."

The Faust charisma has been selling for years. Corporations like IBM, AT&T and Proctor & Gamble regularly pay Faust to give motivational lectures to their employees. Even as a high-school coach, Faust, who is forever being described as "rumpled," was so well received that the Wall St. Journal gave his performances a rave review in 1978. Since moving to South Bend, Faust's lecture fee has reportedly doubled to about $3,500 a shot, which helps make life easier for the coach, wife Marlene and their three children, Julie Marie, 16, Gerry III, 13, and Steve, 12.

Those same motivational and promotional abilities helped fund Moeller's $100,000-a-year, 200-player, 15-assistant-coach program without taking a cent from the school's general fund. Faust sent his players to Jack Louiso of the Cincinnati Opera Co. for stretching exercises, sent his coaches to Dallas to study Tom Landry's offense, instituted a year-round weight-lifting program, and all the money came from donations, advertising and ticket sales — promoted by Faust. Even without its own stadium, Moeller has averaged 18,000 fans a game while playing throughout Cincinnati. On some Friday nights in September, Moeller will outdraw the Cincinnati Reds.

The Notre Dame top spot was the only job for which Faust ever considered leaving Moeller. An all-state quarterback at Dayton, Ohio's Chaminade High School (where father Fuzzy coached for 20 years), Faust desperately wanted to go to Notre Dame. But he just wasn't quite good enough to get a full football scholarship, so he settled for his hometown University of Dayton.

After graduation Faust was an assistant at Chaminade until Moeller hired him in 1960 to start a football team. He scrounged up some equipment and a few lockers, and 20-odd years later, a high-school legend has been called upon to follow in the mythical footsteps of such Irish heroes as Rockne, Leahy and Parsegian.

Few doubt he can do it, although some question how Faust's less-than-secular-approach will go over at a school that, despite its Catholic heritage, has tried very hard to keep church and football separate — at least publicly. There had been reports Notre Dame officials might ask Faust to downplay the open religiousness, especially the sideline Hail Marys, but Faust scoffs, "They've never said a word to me; in fact, they encourage it. They did more at Notre Dame in the past than we did at Moeller. Each young man who wants to be blessed when he comes off the field before the game is blessed. They bless them up in the locker room. They kneel down in front of the priest, the priest puts his hand on each of their helmets and gives them a blessing. Almost all the kids do that...it's just a beautiful thing to see."

Faust has been blessed with a superb team, but now expectations are mounting — and so is the pressure. "Only the [Notre Dame] football coach really knows," says Devine. "I'd heard all the things before, and you prepare yourself for the worst. But I still wasn't prepared."

In fact, the head coaching spot at Notre Dame has been called the third-toughest job in America, behind only the President and the mayor of New York City. When told of this ranking, Devine once quipped, "The mayor of New York? How did he get in there?" FW

WHAT IN THE WORLD

By Eliot Kaplan

WILD IN THE SEATS

It's often said that sport mirrors society, and Dr. John Cheffers, who has studied New England fans for 10 years, notes that although spectator violence has been around since the Roman gladiators, it is increasing rapidly today in America.

Cheffers, a professor of education at Boston University, concludes that "violence on the field causes violence in the stands." In football, for instance, when there's violent behavior in the game, 49 percent of the time there's trouble in the crowd.

Today's soaring player salaries have only fueled the fire, he adds: "The days are gone when the average fan could identify with athletes as peers. Now they're looked upon as performing seals."

Cheffers says he doubts anything will be done to curb fan violence "until a tragedy occurs," but he suggests using distractions like scoreboards and cheerleaders to divert attention from trouble on the field; quick and clear explanations of controversial decisions; isolating troublemakers early with TV crowd scanners; dividing stadiums into smaller sections, and even making them seem more "homelike" by planting flowers.

Wide World

STAR TALK

Marlon Brando periodically talks to the ashes of his late roommate, Wally Cox. As a girl, Dorothy Hamill refused to skate unless her stuffed animals were propped up on a chair at rinkside. Before marrying Paul Newman, Joanne Woodward was engaged to Gore Vidal.

This is just a sampling of the goodies packed into Christopher Andersen's new The Book of People, a page-turning mass of minutiae on some 500 celebrities, from Donna Summer to Shelley Winters.

For instance, born-again Pat Boone baptizes sinners in his swimming pool; Ryan O'Neal once mailed Rona Barrett a live tarantula; Penny Marshall was the "before" in shampoo commercials where Farrah Fawcett was the "after"; the elusive Greta Garbo enjoys randomly following strangers, and, for added protection, the downstairs buzzer to Al Pacino's New York apartment is marked "Goldberg."

Andersen, an editor at People magazine, told us that a disproportionate number of celebrities were born under the sign of Taurus, that many were army brats and that 80 percent of those who are married have been divorced at least once. He adds that even seemingly inaccessible personalities like Jackie Onassis are very much image conscious. "Somebody once went through her garbage," he notes, "and found that her name had been circled in every story about her."

WHAT NEXT?

Add a new pair of trendy medical ailments to "Disco Finger" (from snapping the fingers during disco dancing) and "Urban Cowboy Syndrome" (from riding mechanical bulls).

First, med student Steven Gold came up with "Bozo Syndrome" after a three-mile, 45-minute unicycle ride. He reports a pins-and-needles sensation in his legs and feet and painful urination for two days.

Next, Dr. Leonard Hymes, a podiatrist whose practice is near Atlantic City, stumbled over "Casino Feet." He says he's observed tender and puffy feet in gamblers, dealers, cocktail waitresses, really anyone who stands in one place for a long time without moving.

YOU ARE GETTING SKINNY

"Nowhere does it say that losing weight has to be martyrdom," insists Damon Reinbold. Damon's solution is hypnosis. For 12 years, he and his wife, Grace, have been leading group hypnosis sessions around the country, holding up to 400 sessions annually, with 100-600 persons per group. Group hypnosis is effective, he says, "because it's reassuring. People are mentally holding hands." He claims that together his clients have shed over 2.1 million pounds.

"Almost anybody can be hypnotized to at least a low level," says Damon, 42, who also has hypnosis programs for stress control, memory retention, smoking cessation and sports concentration. "Hypnosis is not a magic cure-all," he notes, "but it's a shortcut method of behavior modification because we circumvent psychological causes by going directly to the subconscious."

Each session is 75 minutes long and costs $35. For the location of a program near you, call toll-free 800-248-1530. (In Michigan, 517-337-7471).

WAR GAMES

Are video games the answer to our nation's soaring defense costs? Since using real-live tanks for target practice can get rather expensive, Rolling Stone reports that the Pentagon is considering the purchase of coin-operated, tank-combat games, such as Atari's Battlezone, to help soldiers develop the hand-eye coordination needed for today's new weapons systems. In the meantime, Fort Stewart in Georgia is trying to get a video-games concession installed in its PX.

CAN YOU TRUST YOUR EYES? There are at least six differences in drawing details between top and bottom panels. How quickly can you find them? Check answers with those below.

Difference: 1. Number is reversed. 2. Hair is different. 3. Skirt design is different. 4. Beads are shorter. 5. Roof is lower. 6. Hydrant is missing.

● HEAR THIS! It always pays to be a good listener. Or, as an anonymous saying has it: "When you talk you only say something you already know; when you listen you RENLA TAWH MEOESNO SELE WNOSK." Unscramble each capitalized word for sense.

● Sum Fun! Sandra took a number, doubled it, subtracted 7, divided by 5 and obtained 7. What number did she take?

Twenty-one.

● Well Stated! Find a U.S. State in each sentence: 1. I adore gondolas. 2. We'll help Me in every way. 3. She saw Dr. Lament, an allergist.

1. Oregon. 2. Maine. 3. Montana.

● What's That? What has eight arms and works in a hospital? A doctor-pus. What has a hundred legs and attends West Point? A centi-plebe.

SET UP A WAGER YOU CAN'T LOSE

There are some bets that you can make with almost certain results. For example: A magician places three coins on a table or other flat surface. He places the middle coin so that it is slightly closer to one of the outer coins. He then asks someone to point out the coins that are farthest apart. "Wanna bet?" he challenges.

Opponents generally pick out the obvious pair. In which case they are wrong, natch, for the two coins farthest apart are at the outer extremities.

SPELLBINDER

SCORE 10 points for using all the letters in the word below to form two complete words:

TERRAPIN

THEN score 2 points each for all words of four letters or more found among the letters.

Try to score at least 50 points.
