Singleton Named To Pitt Hospital Board

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

The Board of County Commissioners this morning appointed Louis Singleton to the Pitt County Memorial Hospital Board of Trustees and approved the paving of the Stantonsburg Road solid waste container site.

Singleton, a Greenville attorney, was named to the hospital's board after being recommended by the University of North Carolina Board of Governors. He fills the unexpired term of Thomas A. Bennett of Greenville who resigned.

Commissioners voted to pave the Stantonsburg container site after Gray said there should be sufficient funds in the solid waste budget to fund the estimated $7,000 cost of the project.

In other business today, the board appropriated $200 to fund the expenses of up to 25 county employees to take a cardio-pulmonary resuscitation (CPR) course, sponsored by the Mid-East Commission's Emergency Medical Services Committee.

Mid-East representatives told the board that the EMS committee has as a project the training of five percent of the residents of the five-county Mid-East area in CPR.

In addition to appropriating the funds for county employee participation, the board voted to "endorse" the program and "encourage" other county residents to take the training which is to be conducted through Pitt Community College.

Commissioners also approved the county's participation in the Low Income Energy Assistance Program again this year and appropriated funds to hire temporary workers to take applications for the assistance.

Social Services Director Ed Garrison, who said some 7,200 households in Pitt participated in the program last year, emphasized that "everybody" who wishes to take part in the program this year must "come in and make an application."

Gray also told commissioners that revised population figures for the county have been received from the federal government which places the population of the county, according to the 1980 Census, at 90,146. Preliminary figures had set the population at some 83,000.

The county manager noted that the N.C. Department of Administration now estimates Pitt's population at 90,581.

Completing N. Carolina Interstates Is In Doubt

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Completing the remaining 80 miles of North Carolina's interstate highways depends on $260 million in federal funds that the state may never get, state Department of Transportation officials say.

The state needs another $500 million to widen congested sections and restore miles of aging roadbeds, the officials say.

About 93 percent of the interstate mileage authorized by the Federal Highway Administration has been completed in North Carolina.

But the officials are worried that completion of the system may be delayed — or ruled out — if the Reagan administration and Congress makes sharp cuts in federal assistance.

The state's ability to match federal grants in the future is also in doubt, said Highway Administrator Billy Rose.

Continued inflation and reduced gasoline consumption are still threatening the state Highway Fund, budget figures indicate.

The state has been able to match federal funds this year, thanks to a 3-cent-a-gallon gasoline tax hike and increased motor vehicle fees.

But Rose said maintenance needs over the next two years will leave the construction program without additional funding.

"I don't think (legislators) understand how serious it is," Rose said. "In 1983, they're going to have to face either new taxes or no construction or reducing maintenance to allow even a minimal construction program."

Federal funds pay for 90 percent of the interstate system. Since 1958, when the state opened its first stretch of Interstate 85 between Greensboro and Salisbury, the system's price tag has exceeded $1 billion for the 782 miles open in North Carolina. Nationwide, 42,500 miles were authorized and about 5.9 percent, or 2,500 miles, remain unfinished.

The missing portions of the interstate system in North Carolina include a stretch of I-85 between Greensboro and Lexington; I-40 from I-85 at Hillsborough to existing I-40 in the Research Triangle Park; I-40 from the Raleigh

Beltline to I-95 near Benson; and I-277 in Charlotte.

Congress is developing a new funding formula for highways, so completion of the widening projects is also threatened, said William Caddell, assistant state highway administrator.

North Carolina may be shortchanged because of a formula that would favor metropolitan areas in the Northeast and on the West Coast, he said.

State officials say continued federal funding for the proposed Benson to Wilmington Freeway — a 90-mile, $300 million superhighway link to the state's major port — is also in doubt. The highway would be incorporated into I-40 when it is completed.

Dramatic Finale Closes Celebration At Yorktown

By DON McLEOD
Associated Press Writer

YORKTOWN, Va. (AP) — President Reagan today affirmed the United States as a "beacon of freedom" shining on totalitarian nations as he and the president of France celebrated their countries' victory at Yorktown, which ended the Revolutionary War 200 years ago.

"Our Revolution was won by and for all who cherish the timeless and universal rights of man," Reagan told celebrants who gathered on the battlefield where George Washington finally defeated the British on Oct. 19, 1781.

"We have come to this field to celebrate the triumph of an idea," Reagan said.

The dramatic finale of the four-day Yorktown commemoration ended six years of Bicentennial celebrations that began in the Massachusetts communities of Lexington and Concord in 1975 and peaked on Independence Day, 1976, the 200th birthday of the Declaration of Independence.

It was Yorktown in '81, however, that fulfilled the promise of Philadelphia in '76, and some 175,000 Americans came here to see the celebration end on a high note of fun and prayerful remembrance.

"The surrender at Yorktown was a victory for the right of self-determination," Reagan said. "It was and is the affirmation that freedom will eventually triumph over tyranny. It is and always will be a warning to those who would usurp the rights of others: time will find them beaten."

"The beacon of freedom shines here for all who will see, inspiring free men and captives alike, and no wall, no curtain nor totalitarian state can shut it out."

Reagan also took advantage of the historic occasion to promote his own political program, attacking big government and opponents of his defense spending plans.

"The men and boys who fought on this field somehow understood that government must be close to the people and responsive to them," he said. "Today, in our country, those concepts are threatened by government's bloated size and the distortion of its true functions."

"Our people are struggling under a punishing tax burden many times heavier than that which ignited our first rebellion," Reagan said. "Regulations that inhibit our growth and prosperity would be incomprehensible to the colonists who revolted because of the Stamp Act."

Reagan said he also is concerned about "the uncertainty some seem to have about the need for a strong American defense."

"We must keep this nation strong enough to remain free," Reagan said.

President Francois Mitterrand of France joined Reagan in commemorating the oldest alliance in American history. Britain, the enemy of 200 years ago, was represented and pledged the three nations "in everlasting friendship to remain."

The final pageantry featured a grand parade of today's finest fighting forces and costumed copies of the 18th century troops who fought here.

Next on the schedule was a colorful reenactment of the ceremony in which Lord Cornwallis surrendered a British army to George Washington and effectively ended the American revolution.

After Cornwallis lost 8,000 troops, a fourth of the redcoats in America and the cream of the British army, Great Britain decided to give up the struggle to subdue its rebellious colonies. Although negotiations would take two more years, American independence was assured.

In nearby Williamsburg Sunday night, Mitterrand called on America to ally with France once again in pursuit of revolution.

"There are so many suffering. There is so much distress and anguish and violence on this unfortunate planet that we must recover the spirit of our youth," Mitterrand said, "the guilelessness, the courage, the generosity which inspired here some of the most noble actions of the mind and conscience of men."

At a state dinner given for Mitterrand, Reagan also said it is the role of today's generation of Americans and Frenchmen to work together again "to protect something much bigger than ourselves — first the creation and now the preservation of the most magnificent institutions of western civilization, constitutional government, the rule of law, economic liberty and the right to worship God."

Sunday featured an ecumenical worship service on the battlefield, a naturalization ceremony for 139 new Americans, and a parade of all the troops, real and pretend, taking part in the celebration.

Spelled Out

Greenville Police Chief Glenn Cannon said this morning that letters will be delivered to candidates for election to city offices in the Nov. 3 election, informing them of a city ordinance which prohibits the placing of advertisements on utility poles and other property without permission.

Cannon said the ordinance prohibits the posting of bills or other advertising on any "house, fence, wall, pavement, post or other property," owned by any "person, firm, corporation," or the city, without permission of the owner and a permit from the city clerk.

The chief noted that violation of the ordinance is punishable by court action as a misdemeanor.

Cannon explained that several complaints have been received about advertising for candidates being posted on utility poles over the past few days.

Hearing Slated At Washington

WASHINGTON — The N. C. Department of Transportation has scheduled a public meeting for Oct. 22 at 3 p.m. in the old council chambers, 124 N. Market St. here, to receive public comment on Seaboard Coast Line Railroad's announced intention to abandon a rail line in Beaufort and Pitt Counties.

The line runs between Parmele and Washington and its abandonment would leave no rail service along the corridor of U.S. 264 from Washington to Greenville, according to the DOT, which noted that the corridor has been designated as a principal industrial development area by Beaufort County. Secretary of Transportation W. R. "Bill" Roberson said "We oppose the abandonment of this line. Rail service is vital to the U.S. 264 corridor area and we are urging Seaboard Coast Line to reconsider its position on this issue."

"To gather necessary information on the effects if rail service were lost, we have set a public meeting. Actions related to the proposed abandonment will be discussed. Interested citizens are encouraged to attend and voice their opinions."

Additional information on the hearing may be had by contacting Mark Boggs, NCDOT's rail program coordinator, at 733-2804, Raleigh.

Third World Bringing Demands To Summit In Cancun, Mexico

CANCUN, Mexico (AP) — Bangladesh is desperately poor and needs foreign food aid. The Philippines is growing rapidly and seeks larger export markets. Saudi Arabia is rolling in oil money but wants to diversify its economy.

Despite vastly different needs and stages of development, these and other Third World countries are bringing a common program to the Cancun summit here this week: They want a new international economic order.

Developing countries, represented as the south in the so-called north-south dialogue, say the current structure of world economic relations is unfair to them and in the long run, not even beneficial to the rich countries of the north.

They say that because the richest nations set the rules of the game, the poor are condemned to export their raw materials cheaply and import increasingly expensive finished products from the industrialized states.

They want to redress this imbalance with a set of new rules that would include international agreements to protect commodity prices, changes in the world monetary system and new rules to govern the transfer of technology.

If developing countries are given better opportunities, they say, their economies will expand and rich countries will benefit from larger markets for their exports.

President Reagan set the tone for the likely U.S. response to Third World demands in a speech last week to the World Affairs Council in Philadelphia. He said critics "flirt with fantasy" when they suggest the international economic system is unfair.

He also reaffirmed his administration's belief that private investment is the key tool for developing the underdeveloped world.

The developing nations hope to reach a breakthrough on global negotiations on trade and money issues at the two-day summit opening here Thursday.

Mexican organizers of the conference say the purpose of Cancun is not to negotiate the complex disputes but to provide "political impetus" for lower-level negotiations that the poor nations hope will begin next year.

Leaders from 22 nations are attending the summit, including Reagan and leaders of seven other industrialized nations — Britain, Japan, West Germany, France, Canada, Sweden and Austria.

The developing nations participating are Algeria, Bangladesh, Brazil, China, Guyana, India, Ivory Coast, Mexico, Nigeria, Philippines, Saudi Arabia, Tanzania, Venezuela and Yugoslavia. They can be divided as follows:

—Oil-exporting countries, represented at the summit mainly by Saudi Arabia. These Persian Gulf states have the highest per capita incomes within the developing world. They say they support Third World economic programs because they are not immune to problems caused by inflation in industrialized countries, fluctuating oil prices and dependence on multinational corporations.

Americans Share Nobel Prizes In 2 Sciences

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Two Americans and a Swede won the 1981 Nobel Prize in Physics today for work with laser-beam studies of the atom. Another American shared the chemistry award with a Japanese professor for "milestone" theories on chemical reactions.

Professor Kai Siegbahn of Uppsala University, who followed up on research that won his father the same prize in 1924, got one half of the $180,000 award in physics. The other half was shared by professors Nicolaas Bloembergen of Harvard University and Arthur Schawlow of Stanford University.

The 1981 Nobel Prize in Chemistry was awarded to Roald Hoffmann of Cornell University and Kenichi Fukui of Japan's Kyoto University. They split the prize, awarded by the Swedish Academy of Sciences, of $180,000.

The awards underlined a continued American dominance in the Nobel science categories, particularly by researchers at Harvard. In addition to American winners today in physics and chemistry, Dr. Roger W. Sperry of California Institute of Technology and Harvard professor David Hubel shared this year's Nobel Prize in medicine with Torsten N. Wiesel of Sweden.

Bloembergen, one of four current or past Harvard professors to receive a Nobel Prize this year, and Schawlow were cited by the Swedish Academy of Sciences for their contribution to "the development of laser spectroscopy."

Siegbahn was cited "for his contribution to the development of high-resolution electron spectroscopy."

"It's sort of fun to see a lifetime of work being rewarded," Bloembergen said today in an interview from his home in Lexington, Mass., where champagne was served with breakfast.

Schawlow said in a telephone interview that he was first informed of the prize by reporters. He chuckled when asked how he felt and said, "Well, you know I'm sort of wondering whether it was real."

Hoffmann, 44, was born in Zloczow, Poland, and moved to the United States in 1949, where he became a naturalized citizen in 1955.

He was graduated from Columbia University in 1958 and earned his master's degree and Ph.D. in chemistry from Harvard University. He taught at Harvard for four years and has been associated with Cornell University since 1965.

Fukui, 63, is Japan's first Nobel winner in chemistry. He has been a chemistry professor at Kyoto University, where he received his doctorate, since 1951 and has specialized in hydrocarbon chemistry.

Hoffmann's and Fukui's work aims at theoretically anticipating the course of chemical reactions, members of the awarding faculty said. Their work is based on quantum mechanics — the theory whose starting point is that the smallest building blocks of matter may be regarded both as particles and as waves — which attempts to explain how atoms behave.

HAVE ADDRESS ON CARD

I recently was visiting with a lady who has had a death in her family a short time ago. She was attempting to write thank you notes and was having a difficult time obtaining the addresses of everyone to whom she wished to send a note. She was finding out that the telephone directory doesn't always list complete addresses any more and that the Post Office isn't supposed to give out addresses. When people order flowers, I think florists would help their customers a lot if they'd merely put the address of the sender on the card. It would be so much help to a family in their time or sorrow. Miss Bunch Marries

Tammy Jo Bunch of Greenville and Derek Wayne Moore of Walstonburg were united in marriage Sunday afternoon at three o'clock at Saint James United Methodist Church. The Rev. Don Paul Lee performed the double ring ceremony.

Daughter of Mrs. Ruth H. Kinion and Mr. Linwood C. Bunch of Greenville, the bride was given in marriage by her parents. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jasper E. Moore of Walstonburg.

A program of wedding music was presented by Frances Cain, organist and Jane Vaughn, soloist. Selections were "Wedding Song," "One Hand, One Heart" and "Wedding Prayer."

Robin Larmar Harrell of Greenville was honor attendant. Bridesmaids included Dianna Bunch Hill and Melanie Ann Bunch, sisters of the bride, Sandra Everette Bunch, sister-in-law of the bride, and Debbie Grubbs Taylor, all of Greenville. Junior bridesmaid was Wendy Rene Heath and flower girl was Rebecca Heath, both of Alliance, nieces of the bride.

The father of the bridegroom was best man. Groomsmen included Ricky Moore, brother of the bridegroom, and Steve Williamson, both of Walstonburg, Steve Sowers of Fountain and Jay Little of Grimesland, cousin of the bride. The ring bearer was Jason Paul Hill of Winterville, nephew of the bride.

The bride, escorted by her father, wore a chantilly lace over taffeta floor length gown with a chapel train. The fitted lace bodice featured a Queen Anne neckline, natural waist and full length tapered sleeves ending with a flounce over the hand. Satin ribbon, accented with a bow, outlined the neckline and encircled the sleeves at the wrist. The floor length tiered lace skirt extended into a chapel train. Satin ribbon edged each tier accented with a satin bow layering the skirt to the scalloped lace hem. She wore her sister's bouffant three tiered veil of illusion attached to a petal design headpiece of cluny lace trimmed with bridal satin loops. She carried a cascade of white roses, pink pompons, accented with baby's breath and ivy.

The honor attendant wore a formal gown of daphne rose siesta and chiffon. The T-strap empire bodice was topped with a chiffon cape accented with a cowl drape. The siesta accordion pleated skirt flowed to floor length. She carried a hand bouquet of pink and white cushion poms tied with pink ribbons. The bridesmaids wore identical dresses in burgundy and each carried a hand bouquet of pink and white cushion poms tied with pink and white ribbons. The junior bridesmaid wore a formal daphne rose gown of siesta with butterfly sleeves and featured a hemline of ruffles. She carried a hand bouquet identical to the other attendants. The flower girl wore a white formal dress identical to the junior bridesmaid. She carried a white wicker basket of pink flowers.

The mother of the bride wore a formal gown of blue chiffon. The mother of the bridegroom selected a yellow formal gown. They wore corsages of white roses.

Mrs. Minnie J. Bunch, grandmother of the bride, wore a mauve ensemble with a white carnation corsage.

The couple will live at Rt. 2 Walstonburg after a wedding trip to unannounced points.

The bride is a graduate of North Pitt High School. She is employed at Morgan Printers, Inc. The bridegroom is a graduate of Greene Central High School. He is employed at Firestone Tire and Rubber Co., Wilson.

The wedding was directed by Mrs. Linwood C. Bunch.

A reception was given by Mr. and Mrs. Linwood C. Bunch in the church narthex. Mrs. Linda B. Heath, sister of the bride, presided at the bridal register. Donna Lynn Bunch, cousin of the bride, poured punch and Joanna Rayborn, aunt of the bride, served cake. Joel T. Bunch, uncle of the bride, said good-byes. Rhonda Gall and Angela Dawn Haymond, nieces of the bridegroom, distributed rice bags. Music was provided by Melanie Ann Bunch, pianist.

The father of the bride entrained the wedding party and guests at an after-rehearsal party Friday evening at the Three Steers.

A bridesmaids luncheon was given Saturday hosted by Dianna Hill and Melanie Bunch.

Engagement Announced

MRS. CLINTON BOYD ROWLETT

Double Ring Ceremony Held

WILSON — The wedding ceremony of Teresea Lynn Hairr and Clinton Boyd Rowlett was solemnized Sunday at 3 p.m. in the First Baptist Church here. The Rev. Craig Simmons performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the granddaughter of Mrs. William Taft Hairr of Wilson. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Critcher Rowlett of Greenville.

The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, Kedith Finch. She wore a floor length gown with a chapel train of organza and chantilly lace. The fitted lace bodice featured a Queen Anne neckline outlined with scalloped lace and adorned with seed pearls. The organza lantern sleeves were cuffed with lace at the wrist. The organza skirt had an inverted accordion pleated panel bordered with lace. Lace overlaid the chapel train and scalloped lace bordered the gown hemline. The bride chose a headpiece circlet of white roses accented with fern and baby's breath. She carried a bouquet of white roses and lily of the valley accented with baby's breath and white picot ribbon.

Bridesmaids each wore burgundy siesta floor length gown styled with a criss crossed bodice with a sweetheart neckline, shirred cap sleeves and natural waistline encircled with a self-fabric rope belt. A Grecian drape accented the gown back and the skirt was accordion pleated. The honor attendants carried two long-stemmed pink roses accented with fern and baby's breath. Bridesmaids carried single pink roses identically accented.

The honor attendant was Denise Hargrove of Wilson and the matron of honor was Kathryn Gaston of Greenville, sister of the bridegroom. Bridesmaids were Sandy Link and Marci Minner of Greenville and Amy Magers of Raleigh. The flower girl was Amber Stone of Wilson, who wore a white floor length bouffant gown of organza and taffeta styled with a fitted bodice, jewel neckline, puff sleeves and natural waist. She wore a headpiece circlet of pink and white sweetheart roses accented with fern and baby's breath and carried a white lace basket filled with pink sweetheart roses accented with greenery and baby's breath.

The father of the bridegroom served as best man and ushers were William Gaston, Rodney Brantley, Ron Dennis and Steve Nagy, all of Greenville. The ring bearer was Gentry Pinner of Greenville.

A program of music was presented by organist, Sandra Pearson of Wilson and soloists, Mr. and Mrs. William Stinson of Greenville.

A reception was held in the fellowship hall and was given by aunts of the bride, Mrs. Annette Finch, Miss Wilma Hairr and Mrs. Sally Wilson. Guests were greeted by Mrs. Emma Spencer.

Wedding Vows Spoken

The wedding ceremony of Jennifer Lorraine Rayford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Rayford of Greenville, and Dr. William E. Rucker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur L. Rucker of Charleston, S.C. was performed at Immanuel Baptist Church Sunday afternoon.

The double ring ceremony was conducted by the Rev. Roy Turnage at three o'clock. A program of wedding music was presented by organist Sylvia Carraway. A duet was sung by Terry Leggett and Jeff Barber, accompanied by Barber on the guitar.

The bride was escorted by her father and wore a formal gown of maracaine jersey designed by Pandora featuring a high rolled neckline and long full sleeves styled with fitted cuffs. Pearl clusters outlined the empire bodice in a bolero effect and encircled the waistline. The gathered skirt extended into an attached chapel train. Her walking length veil of silk illusion, bordered in chantilly lace, was attached to a matching lace capulet etched in pearls. The bride carried a white Bible centered with red and white roses.

The honor attendant was Blanche Ruth Rayford of Rocky Mount, sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Patricia Rucker Vestal of Washington, D.C., sister of the bridegroom, Laura Minges Greene and Martha Ann Williams, both of Greenville. Flower girls were Laura Beth Nichols and Jennifer Elizabeth Moore, ring bearer was Collice Clyde Moore Jr., all of Greenville.

The attendants were attired in formal gowns of burgundy tinesetta knit designed with a wrap front bodice with corded straps. The full, pleated skirt extended from a modified empire waistline. The sleeveless gowns were com-

Vows Spoken On Sunday

Timothy Christian Church was the scene of Sunday afternoon wedding ceremony of Patricia Ann Jones and Randal Earl Doughtie. The double ring ceremony was conducted by the Rev. Paul Brown at three o'clock.

A program of wedding music was presented by Randy Buck, organist, who sang "We've Only Just Begun," "You Light Up My Life" and "The Wedding Prayer." He was accompanied by Joe Hudson, guitarist.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronnie Lee Jones Sr. of Rt. 3 Greenville, the bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a formal white gown of organza accented with lace applique. It featured a Queen Anne neckline with beaded trim. The fitted bodice was overlaid with chantilly lace. The unlined sheer bishop sleeves were trimmed with scalloped lace at the cuffs. The modified full skirt and attached cathedral train were enhanced with chantilly lace. The bride wore a white illusion chapel length veil edged in chantilly lace and pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of silk roses and carnations accented with baby's breath tied with peach and yellow ribbons.

The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Earline Doughtie and the late Mr. Charles S. Doughtie Sr. of Rt. 2 Ayden.

The honor attendant was Brenda Adams. She wore a formal gown of peach organza with a ruffled front and back neckline. A ruffled skirt flowed from a self-fabric bow in back. She carried a long-stemmed silk mum tied with ribbons matching her dress. Bridesmaids included Maria Jones of Ayden and Angie Smith of Greenville. They wore yellow gowns identical in style and carried white silk mums tied with yellow streamers.

The flower girl was Angie Lynn Jones, sister of the bride. She wore a yellow gown styled like the bridesmaids and carried a white wicker basket filled with peach and yellow flowers tied with peach and yellow ribbons.

Charles E. Doughtie of Winterville served his brother as best man and ushers were Randy Adams of Calico, Gordon Summerlin and Robert Halstead Jr. of Ayden, cousins of the bridegroom.

The wedding was directed by Mrs. Jean Evans.

The mother of the bride wore a formal gown of peach crepe trimmed in white lace. The mother of the bridegroom selected a pink chiffon formal gown. Both wore corsages of white carnations.

A reception was held at the Timothy fellowship hall and guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Halstead Sr., aunt and uncle of the (Continued on page 8)

Founder's Program Set

A brunch will be held Saturday, Oct. 24, to commemorate the 84th anniversary of the founding of Kappa Delta Sorority.

The brunch will be held at the Kappa Delta Sorority house beginning at 10 a.m. Invited guests, alumnae, sisters and pledges will be in attendance. Preceding the meal will be a program presented by the sisters and pledges. This program will depict the meaning of Kappa Delta and Sisterhood.

Kappa Delta Sorority was founded at Longwood College, Farmville, Va., Oct. 23, 1897.

Mrs. Earl Jackson of Lincoln, Neb., is the national president of Kappa Delta Sorority.

Look At All Prospects

The scheduled loss of two top administrators has placed East Carolina University at a crossroads. In the coming months, the university must replace its chancellor and a top-level vice chancellor. A search committee already has begun its work toward finding a suitable nominee for the chancellorship, but still to be decided is what type of person that individual will be.

Trustee Chairman Ashley Futrell said recently he wants people at ECU who "bleed purple and sweat gold," a colorful allusion to the school's colors. Futrell, and other trustees, also have said they want the new chancellor to be from the region or to be willing to make a long-term commitment. Either characteristic would be commendable, but it is hoped the search committee, the trustees and eventually the state Board of Governors proceed with caution.

Restricting the search for a chancellor only to those "from the region" obviously would be a mistake — not that some one fully capable of filling the job could not be found, but because it narrows the field unnecessarily and automatically eliminates anyone from outside eastern North Carolina from consideration. Over the years ECU has developed into a highly respected academic institution. Such a course could only place a damper on that reputation, a damper that could take years to overcome regardless of the effectiveness of any individual chosen in the process.

On the other hand, "regional" candidates certainly could be considered if the search is based on a view toward long-term commitment. Such a route would, in effect, allow the university to play the field in finding its new leader — one that could "bleed purple and sweat gold" while leading the institution on to even greater excellence. If that leader comes from the region, that's a plus. But either way, ECU stands to gain by looking at all prospects.

Abandoning Space Probe

I know it doesn't sound important when you measure it against other budget cuts, but NASA is now considering abandoning the Voyager 2 spacecraft which, at this very moment, is on its way to Uranus and Neptune.

The estimated arrival time to Uranus was 1986, and if all went well it was supposed to make a pass at Neptune in 1989.

I happen to be a big fan of Voyager 2 and I know it would break the spacecraft's heart if they cut off all its controls after its magnificent performance to date. To me, it would be a human tragedy. How do you break the news to this magnificent satellite, which is now billions of miles from home?

"Hello, Voyager, this is NASA control. We are aborting your mission. Do you read us? We are aborting your mission."

"Are you crazy, NASA Control? Everything is going smoothly?"

"You are being riffed for budgetary reasons. Over."

"But my understanding was, when I took this mission, I would get to photograph all the planets. If I don't get to Uranus or Neptune we'll never know what makes them tick."

"We're sorry, Voyager, it's photographer and it won't cost you a dime."

"It isn't just you that's being riffed. The whole program has to be aborted. We can't afford the ground support to get you to Uranus."

"But where am I going to go? What am I going to do?"

"I guess you're going to have to keep tumbling along. But you can no longer count on any help from us."

"What are we talking about, moneywise?"

"Stockman figures we can save $220 million by canceling your trip."

"That's chicken feed compared to what you people can get out of it. Playboy spends more than that to photograph a centerfold."

"Please, Voyager, don't make it harder on us than it is already. If we could have saved the mission we would. A lot of us on Earth are being riffed too."

"Yeh, but you have families to go home to, and you can probably find jobs in military space probes. I'm up here all alone with no one to talk to. If you would just let me get to Uranus, maybe I could get the money from Traveler's Aid to get me back."

"Sorry, Voyager, orders are orders. In 10 seconds we're cutting off all power. You're on your own. Is there anything you want before I press the abort button?"

"Yeh, I want to talk to a priest."

Programs In Greatest Test

Last week was another hectic one for the nation's farm programs

In the House of Representatives there were adverse votes on the peanut and sugar programs. Tuesday, debate is scheduled on the always controversial tobacco program.

In many cases it appears that some of the negative votes on farm legislation is due to resentment against southern congressmen who voted with the administration on programs which involved cuts in other areas.

Whatever the reason, there was still considerable hope that the major farm programs, including tobacco, would survive the critical tests in the House. Certainly all farm programs have faced the greatest onslaught in Congress this year that they have seen since the programs were begun.

THIS AFTERNOON

Special Tax Plans

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Over a 10-year period, special tax districts have more than doubled in North Carolina.

Those are carefully defined areas of a county in which the people agree to pay a special tax rate to finance some service which is not presently provided, but which the people want.

There is some evidence that increasing pressures on state and local governments to keep the lid on expanded services and spending will serve to increase the phenomenon of special tax districts.

The federal government is currently pointing the way toward that development as it turns the screws on special services and programs. Canal locks, for example, have routinely been provided at taxpayer expense but used almost exclusively by commercial and recreational boaters. Schemes are now in the works to let the users pay for these and other specialized services.

Growth
Some 10 years ago, there were 251 special tax districts in North Carolina, in which special school programs, fire protection, garbage collection or such services were financed by special levy. Often, the special tax district has been eliminated when the purpose for which it existed was eventually taken over routinely by the local government for the entire jurisdiction.

Still, by the latest count, North Carolina has 523 special tax districts and the number is growing.

The implication of this trend as seen by governmental planners is that the future may see increased reliance on the use-tax concept.

While special tax districts are not involved, some of that trend is already apparent in urban areas where businesses which generate huge amounts of waste must contract with private haulers to carry the stuff away. Why, the reasoning goes, should all taxpayers have to bear the cost of hauling big truckloads of refuse away from a shopping center?

Increasingly, city park facilities are charging admission or use fees. Sometimes, the charge is higher for non-residents than for residents in an effort to discourage use from outside areas.

During recent argument about how best to raise more money for North Carolina roads, the prospect of user fees was often mentioned. Why should all taxpayers bear the cost of a road built specially for one industrial plant, or for ultra-expensive construction to bear the weight of long-haul trucks?

Benefits
Those who oppose such special use taxation schemes protest, on the other hand, (Please turn to Page 6)

Other Editors Say Easier To Burn

(The Hickory Daily Record)

"A book is easier to burn than explain. Censorship betrays the insecurities and fears of some of the fanatical groups who try to ban books."

—Dr. Gene Lanier

Lamenting attempts to censor books available at school and public libraries led Dr. Gene Lanier to make the above statement. The professor of library science at East Carolina University is concerned that too many people, including librarians, are slow to defend books against those who would censor or burn them.

The most staunch defenders of First Amendment rights often are those interested in publishing pornography, he admits. If those who believe in the public's right of access to published material allow pornographers to lead the fight for freedom, the cause will suffer through association with these less desirables, Lanier worries.

Lanier is chairman of the N.C. Library Association Intellectual Freedom Committee. He travels the state speaking on the right of free expression.

The father of two school-aged daughters, Lanier opposes what he terms "so-called reviews of textbooks" by members of Moral Majority and other "concerned" groups.

Lanier feels children should be free to read and learn about a variety of ideas and lifestyles. "Presuming young people cannot think for themselves is a cynical indictment of our youth," he maintains.

Lanier is fighting the good battle for academic freedom and the right of access to a wide variety of printed materials. May he continue his work and — better still — may he find other decent and thinking people willing to aid in the struggle.

Strength For Today

WARNING EXAMPLE
The 16th century British author, George Gascoigne concluded one of his stories with the following statement: "And to that end I have recited this fable which may serve as an example to warn the youthful reader from attempting the like worthless enterprise."

Certainly it is in the spirit of Gascoigne's conclusion that we must often read our daily newspaper. The headlines tell us of a son killing his parents, an official accepting a bribe, an employe stealing from his firm, a marriage ending in divorce. We might well ask ourselves what value goodness has in such a wicked world. But we may better remember Gascoigne's words: "An example to warn." With this attitude our spirit of morbid curiosity becomes a spirit of thankful prayer: "There, but for the grace of God, go I."

We cannot, and should not live in ignorance of the evil around us, but we can always make of it an example to warn, never a model to imitate. — Elisha Douglass

Ideology Not 'Full Story'

By GENE GRABOWSKI

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) —

Not for ideology alone did Rep. Eugene V. Atkinson bolt the Democratic Party to become a Republican. He also stood to gain politically from the shift.

President Reagan and Republican congressional leaders are searching out Democratic converts in hopes of solidifying the conservative bloc in the House and ending, perhaps next year, the longtime Democratic domination.

By switching parties in mid-term, Reagan said, Atkinson was "standing up for principles he believes in without regard to meaningless political labels."

Actually, in making his decision last week, Atkinson was guided in large measure by more parochial considerations than simple principle.

With a jump to the GOP, he:

—Guaranteed the preservation of his Pennsylvania congressional district.

—Avenged slights suffered at the hands of former Democratic colleagues.

—Stood to gain a healthy campaign contribution from the GOP, and —Stemmed the rise of his main district challengers — a pair of Republicans.

While Atkinson announced in the White House Rose Garden that "it's time for independent thinkers to leave the Democratic Party," Republican leaders in the Pennsylvania Legislature were confirming their plans to spare his 25th district seat in the coming redistricting.

The Republican National Committee's redistricting plan, blueprint for the Pennsylvania proposal authored by state Sen. Frank O'Connell, maintains the borders of Atkinson's heavily industrial district.

Glenn Reber, an assistant to O'Connell, said, "Certainly, people noticed that he voted for Republican programs," but he noted, "The feeling in Harrisburg has been all along that the district would be saved no matter which party he was in."

Still, it's no coincidence that GOP campaign committees informed Atkinson they can provide him with up to $32,000 in re-election contributions and services next year.

Democratic groups generally have more limited resources than GOP groups. Officials in the Republican National Committee and the Republican Congressional Campaign Committee are boasting they that intend to outspend Democrats 3-to-1 in 1982.

"He (Atkinson) knows he can bank on our help. In the past few elections, we have helped our candidates to the fullest extent of the law and we intend to do more of it in the future," said Rep. Guy Vander Jagt of Michigan, chairman of the GOP campaign panel.

On a more personal front, Atkinson's new membership in the Republican House caucus is a dramatic answer to Democrats in the Pennsylvania delegation who tried to squeeze him out of his district this year.

Atkinson's shift could also sidetrack strong Republican foes in his district, who would have to take him on in a primary election or change parties to beat him.

Atkinson maintains that he's preserved his integrity and that his switch amounts to nothing more than a political costume change.

But Democratic leaders, watching Atkinson's two-year swing of affection for the presidential bids of Jimmy Carter, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, John Anderson and Ronald Reagan, aren't convinced of his sincerity.

"The real question is who will Gene Atkinson support next year," said Rep. Tony Coelho, D-Calif., chairman of the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee.

Atkinson is the second Democrat to go Republican in recent weeks, following Rep. Bob Stump of Arizona, and Democratic leaders say they do not fear a trend is developing. Stump's district, like Atkinson's, is more Republican than not.

"Most politics are local," Coelho says.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., said Atkinson's shift was pure and simple political expediency, accusing him of "bartering his principles to run in a district where he can't win as a Democrat."

Still, the symbolism of Atkinson's shift is stark: the large Pennsylvania delegation now swings Republican, 13-12.

Today In History

By The Associated Press

Today is Monday, Oct. 19, the 292nd day of 1981. There are 73 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Oct. 19, 1954, Britain and Egypt reached agreement on evacuating troops from the Suez Canal zone.

On this date:

In 1781, British troops under Cornwallis were defeated at Yorktown, Va., as the Revolutionary War neared its end.

In 1944, U.S. troops landed in the Philippines during World War II.

In 1960, the United States placed an embargo on shipments to Cuba.

And in 1973, Libya halted its oil shipments to the United States in a dispute over Washington's Mideast policies.

Ten years ago: Japan called for the seating of both Communist China and Nationalist China at the United Nations.

Five years ago: A triple veto in the U.N. Security Council by the United States, Britain and France blocked a resolution to embargo arms shipments to South Africa.

Getting Help, Getting A Job

By LOUISE COOK

Associated Press Writer

A helping hand can be worth a lot when you're looking for a job, but would-be workers should be sure they know what they are getting when they pay for advice from an employment service.

That's the word from the Federal Trade Commission, which says it regularly receives complaints about job counseling and placement agencies.

The FTC says that many firms in the field "are legitimate and helpful businesses." But there are some which "charge large fees and misrepresent their services."

Some people may be confused by the variety of services which are advertised.

An employment agency, for example, is not the same thing as an executive search firm. And neither one should be mistaken for an executive recruiter.

Here are some of the basic differences:

—Employment agencies usually are licensed by the state in which they are located, says the FTC. Search firms are licensed in only a few areas.

—Employment agencies usually know of specific jobs available with companies. Search firms generally do not; they provide more general advice, offering help with things like resume-writing, for example.

—Employment agencies usually do not require payment until after you get a job. The fee is either a fixed sum or a percentage of your salary. Search firms may demand payment in advance.

—Executive recruiters — often known as "headhunters" — work for companies rather than individuals. They are paid by the company.

The FTC has some general advice for job seekers considering signing a contract with an employment firm. Among the suggestions:

—Check the company's credentials before you agree to anything. Contact local consumer protection agencies or the Better Business Bureau to see if there is a record of complaints.

—Find out exactly when you have to pay, how much, you have to pay and what you will get for your money. Will your new employer pay any part of the fee? Are you obligated even if you don't get a job?

—If a company says it has exclusive contacts in a particular field, contacts you would not get anywhere else, ask for names and phone numbers so you can verify the claim.

You don't have to use an agency to get a good job, of course. Free sources of help include state job service offices, which post lists of vacant positions in many fields, and local human resource centers which provide general placement guidance. Universities and colleges generally restrict their aid to students or alumni, but it is worth asking for information even if you are not a graduate.

The U.S. Department of Labor has a new, low-cost guide to help you market the skills you have. The guide, "Merchandising Your Job Talents," costs $1.75 and is available from the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 208J, Pueblo, Colo., 81009. The guide stressed the importance of the job interview — an event that is often the deciding factor in whether you will be hired. Do not go to the interview unprepared. Find out, in advance, all you can about the company and its products or services, even if the actual job you are seeking does not require any specific knowledge.

Draw up a resume — for your own benefit as well as your prospective employer's. Listing your education, previous experience, etc. on paper will make it easier to present your case in person.

Don't take anyone with you for an interview. It is tempting to seek the moral support of a friend, but it is unprofessional.

Give yourself enough time. Don't, for example, put yourself in the position of being forced to interrupt an interviewer because you have to put another coin in the parking meter.

Let the interviewer control the conversation. Don't criticize former employers or co-workers. Don't volunteer information about personal or financial problems.

Difficult Redistricting Options Face N.C. GOP

An AP News Analysis
By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) —
North Carolina Republican leaders see themselves facing a difficult choice as state legislators this week again take up the battle over how their district lines are drawn.

Do they join the majority Democrats in trying to make as few changes as possible in the district maps, confining the issue to a handful of districts most out of balance?

Or do they seize what many believe is the deeper issue behind a federal lawsuit filed against the state and join the call for establishment of single-member districts?

A debate over just that choice is going on now within the state GOP leadership.
For now, the party isn't pushing for single-member districts.

State GOP Chairman
David Flaherty said the party has decided, at least for now, not to file a friend-of-the-court brief supporting the NAACP Legal and Education Defense Fund's federal suit against North Carolina's legislative reapportionment plans.

But Flaherty and other GOP strategists say they also believe the party — with just 20 percent representation in the General Assembly — probably would gain under such a radical change to distinct and separate districts for every House and Senate member.

"I think there's a reluctance in both parties to make that break with tradition and accept it," said a Republican political consultant who, for professional reasons, asked not to be named. "I think there would be a significant increase in both black representation and Republican representation."

And, he added, Republicans are so weak in the General Assembly now any dramatic change would probably help the party — particularly at a time when state voting patterns show a GOP vote far more significant than the party's numbers in the legislature.

Flaherty says he's been doing a lot of talking and thinking on the subject, and it was with mixed feelings that he decided against entering the suit. He agreed the GOP stood to gain

"tremendously" if a federal court ordered the legislature to abandon the current practice, where as many as eight representatives are elected from a single district.

But, he said, there are drawbacks, too. Such a change would be a major disruption for the state, confusing next spring's primary elections and making it more difficult for the GOP to recruit new candidates, he said.

And Republicans also are concerned about protecting their incumbents, just as the Democrats are.

"It isn't clear cut," said Flaherty. "There's no question in anyone's mind that it would be to the advantage of the GOP. However, there are some problems, one being that some of our experienced legislators would probably be put together in the same district. They'd be running against each other."

Rep. Harold Brubaker,
R-Randolph, the House minority leader, says he too has "mixed emotions." A change to single-member districts could allow more Republicans to be elected initially but then might make it more difficult in future elections for the GOP to score gains in districts where Democratic votes were concentrated, he said.

Brubaker is likely to be directly affected by the actions this week of legislative reapportionment committees, as Democrats are considering putting Randolph together with heavily Democratic Orange and Chatham counties.

"We have no problems with the plan the way it is now," he said. "If they change it, I don't know what would happen."

Whether Republicans could make any difference by joining the suit remains open to debate. But advocates of a GOP push for the change to single districts say the party could at the least reap a public-relations benefit by arguing their way puts representation closer to the voters.

"I think it would be a popular thing for Republicans to do," said the GOP analyst.

Jokeying for position
among potential candidates for governor three years from now is going on among the Republicans now, though with a lesser visibility than among Rufus Edmisten, Jimmy Green, John Ingram

and the Democrats' other would-be candidates.

A new name recently heard in GOP circles is that of Norman Wiggins, the 57-year-old president of Campbell University, the Baptist institution at Buies Creek.

Wiggins is a registered Democrat, but he confirmed in an interview last week he's considering running for governor. Wiggins said he's been talking to friends about the race and hasn't ruled out a candidacy as a Republican or as a Democrat.

"I have not been talking solely to Republicans," he said. "I am certainly going to give it very careful consideration."

Wiggins, who described himself as a "close friend" of GOP Sen. Jesse Helms, is viewed by some Republicans as a possible candidate for alignment with Helms' powerful National Congressional Club organization. Helms was a Democrat before running for the Senate, and club's 1980 candidate for governor, I. Beverly Lake Jr., switched parties just before running.

Wiggins declined to comment when asked if he had discussed such a campaign with Helms or other club leaders. Club Chairman Tom Ellis said he hadn't talked to Wiggins about it.

Flaherty said he's heard the speculation from prominent Republicans but does not expect Wiggins to run, at least not as a Republican. "I don't believe that," he said.

Marriage Tax Penalty Upheld

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although the so-called "marriage tax penalty" causes an estimated 34 million Americans to pay more in taxes than if they were single, such discrimination affects males and females equally and is not unconstitutional, according to the U.S. Tax Court.

The ruling was in response to a challenge of current tax laws by a New York couple,
James O. and Joan S.
Druker, who argued, "We are unable to comprehend why we should pay several thousand dollars more in taxes than if we chose to get a divorce for one day of each year."

The court, however, ruled:
"We think it sufficient for us to state that the differences in exposure to tax liability between married and single persons do not rise to the level of an impermissible interference with the enjoyment of the fundamental right to marry or remain married."

The Drukers contended that separate tax rates arise from the notion that married women stay at home as non-earners, and cited a Supreme Court decision that struck down a welfare law which mentioned fathers but not mothers. But Chief Judge Theodore Tannenwald Jr., who wrote the opinion, rejected that argument on the ground that the marriage penalty hurts males and females equally.

The marriage penalty results from tax laws that set a higher tax rate and a lower standard deduction for married people than for single taxpayers. An estimated 17 million working couples thus pay more taxes than if they were single.

Congress has taken a step to reduce the penalty. In 1982, a working couple filing a joint return will be allowed a special deduction of up to $1,500; in 1983 and later years the deduction will rise to a $3,000 maximum.

But that relief comes too late for the Drukers, whose challenge was based on tax returns for 1975 and 1976.
The court ruling will cost them $5,833 in extra taxes for those years.

Jailed For Child Abuse

Mrs. Shirley Guerrero, 28, of 424A W. Fourth St. was arrested by Greenville Police on child abuse charges following investigation of an incident reported to officers about 10:45 p.m. Saturday.

Chief Glenn Cannon said
investigators were called to Pitt Memorial Hospital when Mrs. Guerrero's husband brought their 16-month old son Vidal Guerrero Jr. to the hospital for treatment.

The chief said Guerrero told officers that his wife left their home following an argument about 6 p.m. He said he was awakened by screams from his son about 10:15 p.m. and found his wife choking the child.

Before he could take the boy away from his mother, Guerrero said, Mrs. Guerrero struck the boy several times with her fists.

The child, Cannon said, suffered cuts, abrasions and massive bruises and was admitted to the hospital for observation.

Mrs. Guerrero was placed in Pitt County jail under $1,000 bond.

Planning Agenda

The Greenville Planning & Zoning Commission will hold its regular October meeting Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the council chambers at city hall.

Business on the agenda includes: request by Leroy Cherry to rezone some 50 acres west of Memorial Drive and south of Greenville Country Club from RA-20 to R-15 and R-6; consideration of an amendment to the Neighborhood Commercial district;

Consideration of zoning amendments relative to the R6-MH residential/mobile home district and to Section 32-97(a) of the ordinance; consideration of an annexation request by the property owners of Meadowbrook Drive; and naming of a street running eastward from N. Greene Street south of Farmer's Warehouse.

The "Last Frontier" State

Yesterday was Alaska Day. It reminds us that our "last frontier" could have been Russia's last frontier instead. During the 1600s Russian explorers and fur traders had gradually moved eastward across Siberia, reaching Alaska in 1741. At first the colony they founded there thrived, but later it became a financial drain, and Russia decided to sell it. If gold had been discovered there sooner, Russia might still be a North American power, straddling three continents rather than two. Instead, the United States bought it for $7 million — a gamble that is repaid every 3 hours in oil production alone. Now Alaska's only remnants of the Russian presence are cities with names like Chirikof and Petersburg, and the onion-shaped domes of Russian Orthodox churches.

DO YOU KNOW — What price per acre did the U.S. pay for Alaska?
FRIDAY'S ANSWER — Camberra is the capital of

Charges Follow Friday Incident

Danny Ray Cox, 18 of Glendale Court, was charged with larceny from person and delaying and obstructing an officer, following investigation of an incident about 11:30 p.m. Friday in a parking lot near the intersection of Fourth and Cotanche Streets.

Chief Glenn Cannon said
officers on foot patrol saw a man, later identified as Cox, attempt to wake up a man asleep in a car in the parking lot, then take the man's wallet, remove the money, and throw the wallet back into the car.

After taking Cox into custody, Cox allegedly ran from the policemen, but was recaptured following a short chase.

Peat Fuel Plentiful For Eastern North Carolina

By ELISSA McCRARY
Associated Press Writer

CRESWELL, N.C. (AP) — If Hobart Truesdell's experiments work, industries and homes in North Carolina soon may fire their boilers and stoves with a fuel Europeans have been digging out of the ground for centuries.

The fuel is peat, a natural resource plentiful in the scrub-covered land in the eastern part of the state. Truesdell and the "superfarm" he heads, First Colony Farms Inc., are experimenting with ways to harvest the rich black peat and turn it into energy.

"You might say we're engaged in the sport of trying to get the peat out of the ground in an efficient manner," said the 32-year-old Truesdell, president of First Colony. "We're still trying to determine the best way to get the stuff out of the ground. We have come up with an acceptable technology but we've got to come up with something better if peat is to be used to supply any quantity of energy for the state."

First Colony, an agricultural corporation owned by McLean Trucking Co. founder Malcom McLean, started North Carolina's first peat-mining operation five years ago. The peat is harvested in the Albemarle Pamlico peninsula region near the Outer Banks.

First Colony bought 372,000 acres for its peat operation and currently has a state permit to harvest peat on 15,000 acres. Only about 300 acres have actually been mined.

"Our peat-mining got started when the price of oil zoomed up almost overnight from $2 to more than $30 a barrel in the early 1970s," Truesdell said. "That's when energy experts around the country started paying attention to peat as a natural resource which could conceivably take the place of oil or coal and save untold amounts of money in the process."

Using peat for fuel is not a new idea. The Russians, Finns and Irish have been heating their homes and cooking their meals with peat for centuries. The United States has one-sixteenth of the world's peat, most of it in North Carolina, Alaska and Minnesota.

Truesdell said when the Russians first found out about the peat fields in the state, they sent representatives to look over First Colony's fledgling peat operation.

"They sent groups over to look at our peat. They called it black gold and told us we had a fortune here if we could harvest it," Truesdell recalled. First Colony purchased Soviet-made equipment to begin mining the peat. Later they added Finnish machines to their fleet of expensive peat-farming vehicles.

First Colony uses several steps in harvesting the 5,000-year-old fuel. First, the fields are ditched for drainage and scrub plants are cleared away. Then a huge machine fine mills the peat, chopping up cedar and cypress logs buried in the greasy-looking peat. In the final process, machinery picks up the peat and shapes it into large briquettes. The peat is then piled up at the edge of the field.

"The amazing thing about peat is that once it is dried, it won't go back into that damp, greasy form it was in before it was harvested," Truesdell said. "It can be stored out in the open and rain won't hurt it a bit. It holds its shape well."

According to a magazine published in North Carolina by engineers, First Colony peat burns considerably cleaner than coal with sulphur and ash content much lower. But the publication says it takes more tons of peat to produce the same amount of heat as good-grade coal.

"It's much lighter than coal but you get charged the same amount as coal by the truck or train load. We've decided we have to have an on-site user if the operation is to be anywhere near profitable."

Markets for First Colony peat haven't developed as quickly as Truesdell had hoped. Plans for a large peat-fired electric generating plant were dropped this year when the federal government cut back on its grants and loans. At the same time, the state association of rural electrical cooperatives decided to wait to go any further with their plans to use peat.

However, a group of investors, including former CIA Director William Casey, have announced plans to build a $300 million plant on First Colony land that would convert peat to methanol fuel. The facility would be the first of its kind in the world.

"As far as long range plans, the methanol plant is as far as we can see right now," Truesdell said. "We would like to see the 15,000 acres utilized for the production of methanol. If that works out all right, then we could use another 15,000 acres."

Truesdell said short-range goals including promoting the idea of burning peat to North Carolina industries. Several local industries, including Weyerhaeuser and Texasgulf, already are using peat.

Meanwhile, state and federal environmentalists are warily watching First Colony's peat operation. Scientists point out that the fact that peatlands are ecologically fragile. They say their main concern is that drainage from peat-mined land not be allowed to discharge into estuaries that harbor all types of fish, wildlife and plants.

"We have a steady stream of environmental people from state and federal agencies, county governments, you name it. They're all concerned about what we're doing out here," Truesdell said.

"Sometimes we call up some of these people and tell them what our plans are and try to show them what we've done," he said. "All we want to do is reassure people that we're not going to destroy anything."

Truesdell said when First Colony first acquired the peatlands, most of the vegetation had been scalped by timber operations. First Colony has allowed vegetation to grow back on much of its land and has planted crops in some of the fields.

"I guess we haven't promoted what we're doing very well. We just don't seem to be that organized yet," Truesdell admitted.

The state Natural Resources and Community Development Department recently awarded $154,000 in federal research funds to four projects, aimed at uncovering environmental threats posed by peat mining. The state has also appointed a task force to review peat-mining applications.

Library Lecture Series Set

A panel of school and public librarians will explore ways and means to reach out to the community it serves in a 1981-82 Library Science Lecture Series. One program will be held Thursday, Oct. 22 to start at 6:30 p.m. in Room 221 of the East Wing of Joyner Library on the ECU campus. A social hour will follow the lecture. Interested people are invited to attend.

Willie Nelms, librarian of Sheppard Memorial Library, will be the speaker. Project CHEER, Sheppard's outreach to day care centers in Pitt County, will be discussed by project director Ms. Dorsey Sanderson.

Ms. Jen Johnson, media supervisor for Wake County Schools, and Ms. Helen Tugwell, media coordinator at James B. Hunt Jr. High School in Wilson, will discuss school library outreach to teachers, students and the general community.

The lecture series is being sponsored jointly by the ECU Department of Library Science, the Pitt-Greenville Media Society, and the ECU Library Science Alumni Association.

CEU credit can be earned by teachers and librarians who attend at least five of the six lectures in the series. A $5 fee will be charged for those persons wanting ECU credit. Additional information can be obtained by calling the Dept. of Library Science at 757-6621.

Slowdown Hits Furniture Mart

HIGH POINT, N.C. (AP) — Furniture industry officials, preparing for the Southern Furniture Market opening on Thursday, say the industry is suffering from the current economic slowdown.

The Southern Furniture Market Center, the world's largest concentration of home furnishing showrooms, opens Thursday on its 60th anniversary. The center is the base of the Southern Furniture Market, a semi-annual exhibition that runs through Oct. 30.

"I'd say business is rather dismal right now," said L.E. Bish, president of Thomsville Furniture Industries Inc., a subsidiary of Armstrong World Industries Inc. and one of the more successful furniture companies during the current slump.

"We don't really know what's happened," Bish said. "Maybe it's the uneasiness of the total economy."

Expectations that the postwar baby boom generation would make furniture a big business in the 1980s have not become reality. Analysts blame inflation, high interest rates and a slumping housing market.

High interest rates have hurt home sales and made it harder for retailers to finance inventories and for consumers to buy furniture on credit, while inflation has robbed consumer's pocket-books.

"The large problem is discretionary income," said Barbara Alexander, a financial analyst with the New York stock brokerage firm of Smith Barney, Harris Upham & Co. "We really don't look for any improvement until the second half of next year, when some of the tax cut will take effect."

Henredon Furniture Industries Inc. of Morganton said last week that its earnings for the March to September period were up 27 percent on a 15 percent sales increase.

Meanwhile, Bassett Furniture Industries Inc. of Martinsville, Va., reported a 40 percent third-quarter sales gain and an 80 percent earnings gain.

The nine-day exhibition includes 5 million square feet of showrooms spread from Burlington to Lenoir and is expected to attract some 38,000 buyers, salesmen and trade writers.

During its 60 years, the Southern Furniture Market Center has grown from a 249,000-square-foot, 10-story building to more than 2 million square feet of space in four buildings.

But officials of the North Carolina furniture industry, which employs 80,000 people, say they are worried that regional markets in Dallas, Atlanta and San Francisco are gaining in popularity.

"I don't think it will be a somber market, but I think it will be a close-to-the-vest market," said Richard Barentine, executive director of the Furniture Factories' Marketing Association of the South, which sponsors the market.

Market attendance was down 3 percent at the exhibit this past spring, he said. But Ms. Alexander said overall market attendance is off 20 percent.

More 'Managers' Than Fighting Men

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Les Aspin, saying the Army has 13 lieutenant colonels for each infantry command position, charges that the officer corps "is loaded with lots of managers but few fighters."

The Wisconsin Democrat, a frequent critic of the Pentagon, said in a statement released Sunday that more lieutenant colonels (903) specialize in personnel management than command infantry battalions (838), and more are involved in computers and operations research (461) than run tank units (413).

"Twice as many specialize in various phases of materiel management (1,148) as in commanding artillery (547) and there are more lieutenant colonel dentists (294) than lieutenant colonel air-defense specialists (223)," he continued.

"If you could shoot down Russian airplanes with dental drills, the Army would be in great shape," Aspin added. "And if Harvard Business School methods won battles, we'd have nothing to worry about."

An Army spokeswoman, Margaret Tackley, said officials had not seen Aspin's statement and thus could not comment on it immediately.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices fell along a broad front today amid concern over the course of the interest rates and the economy.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks slipped 6.66 points to 845.03, after a 21.31 point slide last week.

The number of stocks falling in value held a better than 2-1 lead over gainers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

President Reagan said Sunday that he believes the nation is experiencing a slight recession, and today, Treasury Secretary Donald Regan said he agreed with the president's assessment.

Hopes that a recent drop in interest rates would continue were dampened when the Federal Reserve Board reported after the close of trading Friday that the nation's basic money supply surged $5.6 billion in the first week of October. The unexpected growth of funds raised fears that the Fed may postpone further credit-easing moves.

Those fears appeared to be borne out late in the morning, as market sources said the Fed drained reserves from the banking system.

The NYSE's composite index of all of its listed common stocks fell 48 to 68.65. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off 2.64 at 304.55.

Volume on the Big Board reached 18.76 million shares over the first two hours, up from 15.29 million in the same period Friday.

Declines were widespread among interest-rate sensitive bank stocks, with Manufacturers Hanover down 1/4 at 35 in trading that included a block of 200,000 shares changing hands at 35 a share. Citicorp fell 1/2 to 24 1/2, and Chase Manhattan was off 1/2 at 55 1/2.

Living Together Trend Tripled During Decade

By RANDOLPHE SCHMID Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Growing numbers of Americans are choosing to live alone or as unmarried couples, according to new figures from the Census Bureau.

Divorce and postponement of marriage were major factors in the jump from 10.9 million to 17.8 million in the number of people living alone in the last decade.

And during the same period the number of unmarried couples skyrocketed from 523,000 to 1,560,000, said the new study on marital status and living arrangements.

Arlene F. Saluter, author of the study, said "the growing acceptance of new types of lifestyles" was a major factor in the increase.

But, she added, these couples make up only a small group compared with more than 48 million married couples.

"They're still such a small number that it's hard to make to big a deal over it," she commented.

Another factor cited by Ms. Saluter is the continuing

Busy Month For Pitt Fire Units

During September the rural fire departments of Pitt County answered 69 alarms and fought 61 fires, County Fire Marshal Bobby Joyner said.

There were nine fires involving houses, two in house trailers, eight in buildings, 13 in motor vehicles, 11 grasslands and woods fires, two false alarms, 16 "others" and eight mutual aids.

There was $358,600 involved in fires, $581,700 exposed, $124,100 lost, and $816,200 saved by the rural fire departments, Joyner said. The Ayden Fire Department, with 13, had the most fires, he added.

tendency of young people to pursue educational and job opportunities, postponing marriage.

Some 36 percent of the unmarried couples had never been married, she noted, a significant percentage.

These same factors helped in the growth of those living alone, with women in the majority there at 11 million to 6.8 million men.

Men were gaining, however, as their number living alone grew 92 percent during the decade, while women living alone increased 51 percent in the same period.

The report said women alone tend to be older and widowed, while men alone are more likely to be young and never married.

The growing trend to postpone marriage also increased the median age at first marriage between 1970 and 1980 from 20.8 years to 22.1 years for women and from 23.2 years to 24.6 years for men.

At the turn of the century, median marriage ages were 22 for women and 26 for men, but they declined steadily until about 1956, when they reached an all-time low of 20.1 for women and 22.5 for men, the report states.

As of last year, half of women aged 20-24 had never married, compared with 36 percent a decade earlier. For men in that age group the

"While increasing proportions of the adult population are postponing marriage or never marrying at all, other persons who have married are ending their marriages in divorce at very high rates," the report adds.

In 1970 there were 47 divorced people for every 1,000 married people living with their spouse. By 1980 this number had risen to 100 divorced per 1,000 married.

The report noted that because of the higher percentage of remarriage among men, the percentages differ considerably by gender. There were 79 divorced men for every 1,000 married and 120 divorced women for every 1,000 married.

Investigating Weekend Theft

Greenville Police are investigating the theft of an estimated $1,015 worth of property from a house at 120 Prince Rd., reported about 4 p.m. Saturday, Chief Glenn Cannon said today.

Cannon said included in the items reported stolen were four figurines, three silver steins, silver Montreal and Moscow Olympic medallions, a Franklin Mint miniature set of U.S. coins, and Franklin Mint silver ingots.

Entry to the house was gained through a door, the chief noted.

Candidates To Present Views

SIMPSON — Candidates for the city council here will be present at a meet-the-public session Tuesday at 8 p.m. at the educational building.

All candidates will be available to present their platforms to voters and answer questions, according to Clarence Moore of the Pitt County Democratic District number two.

Woman Victim of Flim-Flam
Greenville Police are looking for two men in connection with a flim-flam operation reported about 6 p.m. Saturday.

Chief Glenn Cannon said two men, operating out of two cars parked in a lot at Pitt Plaza shopping center sold a boxed television to Shirley Teel of 900 Ward St. as being a new 19-inch remote controlled color set.

When Ms. Teel opened the carton, she found it contained a junk television.

Cannon said Ms. Teel paid the two men $250 in cash.

Montreal, Los Angeles Set For Deciding Game

MONTREAL (AP) — An idle construction scaffolding stands beyond the center field fence at Olympic Stadium, a grim reminder of the roof that was never built on the ball park.

That roof was part of the proposed stadium package when Montreal was granted a National League franchise in 1969. Its future, 13 years later, is still being debated and remains clouded at best.

Because the stadium is exposed, the deciding game of the National League Championship Series between the Montreal Expos and Los Angeles Dodgers was rained out Sunday and rescheduled for today.

"I wasn't the league president when the stadium was built," said NL President Chub Feeney, "but I understand a roof was to be completed by the '76 Olympics. Sometimes, you can't get things done as quickly as you would like."

Feeney waited almost 3½ hours before calling off Sunday's contest, which had been scheduled to start at 4:05 p.m. EDT. Throughout the delay, league officials were in touch with the weather bureau, listening to forecasts.

"First, they said it was supposed to stop at 5:15, then 6:30 and then 7:15," said Feeney. "I'm not blaming anyone, but the rain kept coming. At 7:15, it was still raining and we were told another front was developing. Even if the rain stopped, our information was it was supposed to be cold and windy the rest of the night. Our reports just weren't encouraging."

Ironically, within minutes after the postponement was announced, the rain stopped and the weather turned pleasant.

The rainout gave opposing pitchers Fernando Valenzuela of the Dodgers and Ray Burris of the Expos an extra day of rest to prepare for the showdown game.

Both pitchers warmed up and it seemed the game might start on time. Hockey great Maurice Richard even threw out the first pitch. But then a steady drizzle turned heavier, and that was as close as the game ever came to getting started.

"I don't think the rainout is a factor for either club," said Montreal Manager Jim Fanning. "Neither club did anything. Burris warmed up for maybe 10 minutes. That won't detract at all from his effectiveness."

The postponement could mean that Montreal will have ace pitcher Steve Rogers available for relief help, if necessary. Rogers pitched Friday night and ordinarily would throw on his third day after working, anyway. "I might consider Rogers for the late innings," Fanning said. "He'd be available."

Today's winner will move into the World Series Tuesday night in New York. The Yankees returned home Friday after eliminating the Oakland A's in the American League playoff.

Dodger Manager Tommy Lasorda saw the rainout as a problem for whichever team survived this playoff and advanced to the World Series.

"It will have a definite effect," he said. "It's one more day you have to play while they're sitting there, waiting."

The other side of the coin, of course, is that both Valenzuela and Burris worked today with their full quota of four days rest. Lasorda thought that might help his man.

"I think anytime a pitcher gets an extra day of rest, it helps," the Dodger manager said.

Burris was not disturbed by the delay and seemed calm.

"How can I get excited?" he asked. "We haven't won yet. When we win and there's champagne flying all over here, then I'll get excited. How can I get nervous? It's in God's hands. There's (Please turn to page 10)

Kite Captures $$$$ Crown & Vardon Trophy

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — Jerry Pate won the tournament, but Tom Kite picked up two larger, more important titles in the Pensacola Open, the final official event on the 10-month pro golf tour.

"This probably has more meaning than anything I've done in golf," Kite said Sunday after his tie for third and an $11,600 check had made him golf's leading money-winner, breaking Tom Watson's four-year hold on that prestigious position.

Kite also won the Vardon Trophy — perhaps the most coveted of all the game's awards — for the low stroke average on the tour. He completed the year with a 69.80 average, followed by Bruce Lietzke at 70.01.

"I really haven't had a chance to think about it, but I'm sure it's something I'll be able to look back with a lot of pleasure 20 years from now," said Kite, who finished eighth or better in 17 of his last 18 starts of the season.

He won only once during the season, at the Inverrary Classic, but his consistently high finishes enabled him to collect a total of $375,699.

Watson, Ray Floyd and Lietzke all had a shot at passing him in this season-closing event, but they were turned back by Kite's closing rounds of 64-69. He finished with a 275 total.

Floyd finished second on the money-winning list with $359,359, followed by Watson with $347,660 and Lietzke at $343,446.

Watson and Floyd also had a chance at the Player of the Year title, but each needed a victory here to go past the absent Bill Rogers on the point list that determines that title. Neither could manage it and Rogers, the British Open champ, took the title in absentia.

Floyd had a closing 73 and a 278 total, seven strokes back of Pate's winning total. Watson, who opened the tournament with a 64, closed it with a round of par 72 and was at 281.

"I just didn't play well enough over the last half of the season," said Watson, who had won Player of the Year honors for four consecutive seasons. He won the Masters and two other titles this season "but from the (U.S.) Open on, I just didn't play very well. I didn't deserve Player of the Year."

Pate, a hometown boy who lured a huge gallery of friends, neighbors and relatives to the Perdido Bay Club course, won with relative ease despite an aching back.

He opened the final round with a 4-stroke lead and wasn't really challenged.

Detroit Faces Chicago Tonight

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Tonight's nationally televised National Football League game between the Detroit Lions and Chicago Bears might not be one the country will want to watch if Detroit's chief offensive weapon doesn't start.

But with or without Billy Sims, the game is a "must" for the Lions, 2-4 and winless in two Central Division games. A loss would hobble Detroit's hopes of overtaking the division-leading Minnesota Vikings.

"It's a big game," Sims said. "This is one we've got to have. It's a must win."

The Vikings are 5-2 after beating previously unblemished Philadelphia on Sunday.

Sims is listed as "questionable" — meaning there's a 50-50 chance he will play — after stubbing a big toe last Sunday against the Denver Broncos. He missed practice all week, but maintains he still will line up with the help of a support designed to shift the weight on his ailing left foot.

And Eric Hipple, the No. 3 quarterback behind Gary Danielson at the beginning of the season, will make his first start for Detroit.

Hipple, a second-year pro out of Utah State, has total experience in live NFL game action consisting of mop-up detail late in Detroit's defeat at Tampa Bay two weeks ago.

The Lions' quarterback problems began three weeks ago when Danielson suffered a dislocated wrist. Danielson is expected to be out about four more weeks.

"As the week went along, I've felt better," Hipple said. "At first I was wondering how the players would react to having a young quarterback. But the offensive linemen seem like they've taken me under their wing. They understand the pressure we're under."

Last-Second Goal Gives ECU 2-1 Win

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. — Mark Hardy fired in the winning goal with eight seconds left to lift East Carolina to a 2-1 victory over Virginia Wesleyan Sunday afternoon in a college soccer match.

Hardy's unassisted goal came after Virginia Wesleyan, now 3-6-0 this season, tied the match earlier in the second half on a shot by Tony Pringle, assisted by J.P. Murphv.

ECU, now 5-7-1 and only two wins away from tying the school record for most wins by a soccer team, moved ahead 1-0 at the half on a goal by Kyle Milko — his first of the season. Brian Winchell got the assist.

The Pirates took 17 shots to Virginia Wesleyan's 16. ECU goalie Steve Brown had 12 saves while VW goalie Tony Redder stopped 15 shots.

ECU travels to UNC-Wilmington Wednesday.

East Carolina 1 1-2
Va. Wesleyan 0 1-1
Goals — ECU: Milko, Hardy; VW: Pringle; Assists — ECU: Bn. Winchell; VW: Murphy; Shots — ECU 17, VW 16; Saves — ECU (Brown) 12; VW (Redder) 15.

Eagles Suffer First Loss

By The Associated Press

Good things...and bad things...eventually come to an end. And in the seventh week of the National Football League season, last year's Super Bowl teams stopped streaking.

For the Philadelphia Eagles, week #7 meant their first loss, a 35-23 decision to the Minnesota Vikings, a team on a streak of its own with five straight victories.

For the Oakland Raiders, the defending NFL champions, week #7 was a happier time. Not only did the Raiders end a three-week scoreless streak, they escaped with a hairy and much-needed 18-16 victory against Tampa Bay.

The "Pride and Poise" gang from Oakland had endured the embarrassment of becoming the first team in over 30 years to get shut out three weeks in a row. At the New York Yankees-Oakland A's baseball game Thursday night, a fan held up a banner, "Where's Jim Plunkett? We need a shutout."

Plunkett, the most valuable player in January's Super Bowl, was benched Sunday in favor of Marc Wilson, who did not distinguish himself, but nonetheless helped get the Raiders get on the board.

Early on, Oakland ended any thoughts of making it a full month without a point when Chris Bahr connected on a 51-yard field goal 3:03 into the first quarter.

"We needed to get off to a quick start," Bahr said. "The longer you go without scoring any points, the tougher it gets."

The Raiders added a safety and a touchdown in the first quarter but needed a 44-yard field goal by Bahr with 2:21 left in the game for the victory after Tampa Bay came back from a 15-0 deficit. But Oakland couldn't rest easy until Ted Hendricks blocked his NFL record 22nd kick on Bill Capece's 30-yard field goal attempt with eight seconds remaining.

"We brought back some of the Raiders tradition, coming from behind and winning in the final minutes. That's important," Oakland Coach Tom Flores said. "We played a tough team and it was a big win for us after all the trouble we've had the last few weeks. But, we have a long way to go."

The Eagles simply ran into a red-hot Minnesota club that now sits atop the NFC Central with a 5-2 record. Vikings quarterback Tommy Kramer fired four touchdown passes for the second week in a row, completing 24-of-46 for 257 yards. A 50-yard scoring play to Sammy White highlighted a 21-point second quarter for Minnesota.

"We hoped to go 16-0 but we also have to be realistic," said Eagles quarterback Ron Jaworski. "We were ready to play, but it was one of those days when we didn't play up to our abilities. The Vikings are one of the hottest teams in football right now."

Cowboys 29, Rams 17
After last week's humiliating 45-14 loss to the 49ers, the Cowboys bounced back with a big win Sunday night. Tony Dorsett rushed for 154 yards, including a 44-yard touchdown and Danny White hooked up with Tony Hill on a 63-yard pass play, the longest of White's career. Dallas, 5-2, pulled within a game of Philadelphia in the NFC East while the Rams, 4-3, fell one game behind the 49ers in the NFC West.

"We played with emotion," Dallas Coach Tom Landry said.

Bengals 34, Steelers 7
Ken Anderson threw for 346 yards and a pair of touchdowns, including a 73-yarder to David Verser, as the Bengals took over first place in the AFC Central with a 5-2 record. The loss snapped a four-game winning streak by Pittsburgh, which managed just 210 yards of offense.

Cincinnati racked up 494 yards of offense.

"What have I played, 12 years?" Pittsburgh quarterback Terry Bradshaw said. "I can't remember playing in a game like this in my life where we have been so totally dominated."

Jets 33, Bills 14

Bobby Jones scooped up teammate Mike Augustyniak's fumble and ran 61 yards for a touchdown to climax the Jets' 21-point third quarter. The victory avenged the Bills' 31-0 humiliation of New York in the season opener. The Jets' other (Please turn to page 11)

Woody Peele

Ed Emory, in his weekly press conference last week, called the Southwestern Louisiana game, a "must win" contest for East Carolina's Pirates.

Saturday night, there were times when it seemed that Southwestern felt the game was the same situation. Back and forth it went all through the game, until finally the Pirates emerged with a 35-31 victory.

And while the Pirates were finally able to move the ball on the Ragin' Cajuns, it was still offensive mistakes that put them in the serious trouble they found themselves.

East Carolina fumbled three times, losing all three. And each time, Southwestern was able to convert these into scores, two touchdowns and one field goal. It put a lot of pressure on the defense, a unit that has played quite well in recent weeks, but found itself hard pressed in this contest.

The Pirates did survive, and are now 4-3 on the year. They have an excellent shot at having a winning season again after a losing effort last year.

They still have four games remaining, with just one of them on the road. That, of course, doesn't mean that the Pirates have it made.

Right away, they have to face the University of Miami (Fla.), a team that is probably stronger than any to have visited Ficklen Stadium — and there have been a few, like George Washington's 1964 team that the Pirates beat to earn a berth in the Tangerine Bowl, or like Toledo's 1971 team that held the country's longest winning streak at the time and also went to the Tangerine Bowl.

None who have appeared here, however, have the credentials the Hurricanes bring into Ficklen.

Miami will be coming in following only its second loss of the season, that to a tough Mississippi State team. Whether the Hurricanes will drop out of the Top Twenty because of the loss remains to be seen when the votes are counted tonight. They definitely are Top Twenty caliber, however.

East Carolina will be hard pressed to beat them, or even stay on the field with them.

Then, next up is another road trip, to strong West Virginia, a team that beat Virginia Tech solidly this past weekend. That, too, will not be a team the Pirates will be favored to win against.

The final two home games will be against East Tennessee State and William & Mary. The Buccaneers of ETSU have always been tough for the Pirates to beat (they've only one once, tied once in six games). William & Mary, off to a terrible start has come on strong recently, winning its last two outings in respectable style.

So there are no surities. East Carolina will have to struggle for everything it can get over the next four weeks.

The chance is certainly there for the Pirates to close the year on a winning note.

Now, we will see if ECU can answer that challenge.

nothing I can do about it." The rainout was just the second in the history of League Championship Series. The only other washout came in the 1973 American League series when the third game of the Oakland-Baltimore playoff was postponed by rain in Oakland.

Rain has, however, hit other NL playoffs. The fourth and final game of the 1977 series between Philadelphia and Los Angeles was played in a constant downpour at Veterans Stadium in Philadelphia.

Lasorda was asked if he remembered that night.

"I didn't think it rained at all in Philadelphia," he said.

Later, Feeny was asked the same question. His response was identical.

Then, the NL president turned philosophical.

"It rains alot in October," he noted. "That's why flowers grow."

And it's also why baseball games get postponed.

Baseball Fooling With Mother Nature

MONTREAL (AP) — Baseball rolled the dice and it came up snake eyes.

Remember the old adage. It's not nice to fool with Mother Nature.

Canada is lovely at this time of the year — for hockey, not baseball. But, because of the player strike, baseball insisted on an elongated schedule this season and a new tier of playoffs that will carry the World Series to the threshold of Halloween — or, if ol' Ma Nature gets annoyed again, perhaps even Election Day.

Two years ago, when the climate got a little winterish for a normally scheduled World Series between Baltimore and Pittsburgh, the players took the entirely sensible step of donning woolen ski caps. They were ordered to remove them. Bad image for The Game, you know.

There were no reports of pneumonia following the Pirate-Oriole chiller, but that could change this year. The ski parkas were out in full view over the weekend in Montreal and it was appropriate garb. The weather was... well...you'd call it chilly if you were an optimist or downright cold if you were a realist. That was for Friday night. For Sunday, the weatherman delivered some Canadian dew, masquerading as steady rain.

So, the National League pennant had to be decided today. It was a vital game for Los Angeles and only the most important one in the history of Montreal's franchise. The dress code dictated gloves and scarves. And a fur hat would have been entirely appropriate — for all three games.

Understand that this is only the beginning. The World Series is scheduled to begin Tuesday night in New York. Granted, it does not have to cope with climate quite as extreme as Montreal's, but the Big Apple's October evenings aren't exactly balmy. A seven-game Series would produce four night games in New York — another dice roll for baseball.

It is somehow sweet justice that in its most embarrassing season, baseball has had to cope with the climatical vagaries of Montreal and the North country. This is already the most unique season in history. What more perfect explanation point for this sorry year?

Baseball's 162 games provide a truer measure of a team's quality. If you're second best after 162, then brother, you're second best. Period. And if you're second best, you shouldn't have a shot at playing in the World Series. Baseball's ultimate showcase should be reserved for winners only.

It was that way once. And once the World Series was an early October spectacle, played in brilliant afternoon weather that did not require thermal socks for the fans. Times change.

So here we are, looking at the final dozen days of the month with baseball daring Mother Nature to rain — or snow — on its parade. Good luck.

It should be noted that, barring any weather-related havoc, the final game of the World Series is scheduled for Oct. 28. Coincidentally, that's also Commissioner Bowie Kuhn's birthday.

Former ECU Golfer Wins PGA Tourney

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Kathy Postlewait, anything but a prominent member of the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour, made a name for herself at the Desert Inn Country Club over the weekend.

Postlewait, a 31-year-old veteran who attended East Carolina University and has never won an LPGA tournament and earned just $47,507 in 25 events this year, defeated Patty Sheehan by five strokes Sunday to win the $50,000 first prize in the $100,000 J&B Scotch Putt-Off.

Sheehan never led in the 36-hole championship match after being the sensation in Saturday's competition of the two-day event. She was four shots behind Postlewait after the first 18 holes and fell back another stroke in the afternoon.

Postlewait, who has earned $188,981 during her eight years on the LPGA tour, played steady but not spectacular golf Sunday, just as she had Saturday.

"I'm not quite sure I still won but I'm going to call my broker and find out what to do with it (the money)," said Postlewait. "I had the butterflies, I was conscious of them, but I felt I kept them under control. I didn't have time to get nervous."

Postlewait's biggest purse before Sunday was $10,500 for a second-place finish in a tournament last year. She said she was donating $10,000 of her winnings here to the St. Jude's Catholic Church in her hometown, Sylacauga, Ala.

Sheehan, 24, had a short explanation for her disappointing performance Sunday, saying, "It was a day of being close, but no cigars." She received the runner-up prize of $15,000.

In the match for third place, Amy Alcott defeated Donna Capani, the 1981 LPGA champion, by one stroke in an 18-hole match.

Alcott who was 3-under par, received $7,500, while Capani, who was 2-under, collected $5,000.

Trial Begins In 'Shaving' Scandal

NEW YORK (AP) — Rick Kuhn, one of three former Boston College basketball players allegedly involved in a point shaving scandal, goes on trial along with four other men in U.S. District Court.

The FBI's star witness in the case, Henry Hill, has claimed he paid Kuhn, a 6-foot-7 reserve forward, playmaker Jim Sweeney and leading scorer Ernie Cobb between $1,000 and $3,500 to rig the outcome of nine games in the 1978-79 season.

Of the players, only Kuhn was to go on trial today, however. Sweeney, co-captain of the 21-9 team, has been granted immunity from prosecution and Cobb has not been charged with any crime.

Charged under the Racketeer Influenced Corrupt Organizations Act statutes were Kuhn, James Burke, allegedly the mastermind behind the $5.8 million 1978 Lufthansa robbery in New York; Paul Mazzei, a convicted heroin trafficker, and Rocco and Anthony Perla, high school friends of Kuhn from Swissvale, Pa. All pleaded innocent to the charges.

Winfield Mum On Picking Opponent

NEW YORK (AP) — Dave Winfield, the New York Yankees' $21 million-man, had reservations about picking an opponent for his club's 33rd World Series appearance.

"You never want to wake up the opposition," he said.

Later, he added, "Let's just say that whoever we play, it'll be a good matchup, but I'd rather be on this team."

"You've always got to be careful how you word this; you don't want to give the other team anything to hang on the locker room wall," the Yankees left fielder said.

Winfield, acquired as a free agent from San Diego and signed to a long-term contract worth an estimated $21.3 million, was just one of Yankees who was asked Sunday whether he'd rather play Los Angeles or Montreal in the World Series.

The Yankees expected to know which team they would be playing Sunday night, but the Dodgers-Expos game at Montreal was rained out and rescheduled for Monday.

"With the hitting we have, and the pitching we have," Winfield said, "we can stop just about anybody from scoring and score on anybody at any given time."

The theory was that the Yankees would rather face Montreal, with its predominantly right-handed pitching, than Los Angeles, which has two fine left-handers in Fernando Valenzuela and Jerry Reuss.

"With two switch hitters in our lineup (Jerry Mumphrey and Larry Milbourne), we're not that bad off against left-handers, but we are a better-hitting club against right-handers," Yankees Manager Bob Lemon said.

Against left-handed pitching, the Yankees actually would have only two left-handed hitters in the lineup, Graig Net-

les and Reggie Jackson, Lemon said, while acknowledging that both Mumphrey and Milbourne are better left-handed hitters than they are right-handed.

During the playoffs, Lemon moved the right-handed hitting Willie Randolph from the leadoff spot to ninth spot. Randolph broke out of a slump with a homer in the deciding game of the American League Championship Series against Oakland, and he could be moved back into the leadoff spot against left-handers, Lemon said.

Since this World Series will be played without the designated hitter, that also left Lemon with another decision — what to do with platooned DH's Lou Piniella, a right-handed hitter, and Oscar Gamble, a lefty. Piniella is considered one of the best professional hitters in baseball, and Gamble hit 10 homers during the season.

Another problem could be the health of right fielder Reggie Jackson, who missed the last game of the Oakland series with a strained calf muscle in his left leg. Jackson took batting practice as the Yankees worked out Sunday, but he hasn't run on the leg in four days. Lemon said he expected Jackson to be ready, but there were no guarantees.

third period scores came on a 29-yard run by Bruce Harper and a 19-yard Richard Todd to Jerome Barkum TD pass. Buffalo quarterback Joe Ferguson was just 15-for-34. The Jets, 3-3-1, are 3-0-1 in their last four games.

"We always had the talent but we were playing up tight," Harper said. "Coach (Walt) Michaels said just go out there and enjoy it and you'll win. So we did and we sure do enjoy it."

Falcons 41, Cardinals 20

Steve Bartkowski passed for 288 yards and four touchdowns, two each to Alfred Jenkins and William Andrews, as Atlanta, 4-3, stopped a three-game losing streak. Andrews caught eight passes for 132 yards and took fourth quarter screen passes 18 and 70 yards for touchdowns. St. Louis, 2-5, has been blown out two weeks in a row after defeating Dallas.

"I want to be considered the best all-around back in football," Andrews said. "I want to be the best there is."

Giants 32, Seahawks 0

Joe Danelo kicked a club record six field goals, including a 54-yarder, and Rob Carpenter ran for 116 yards and a touchdown as the Giants, 4-3, went over .500 this late in the season for the first time since 1978. The Giants are the only team in the NFL to give up less than 100 points.

"I don't have to describe how bad it was," Seattle Coach Jack Patena said. "The Giants looked like champions of the world."

49ers 13, Packers 3

Johnny Davis plunged one yard for the go-ahead touchdown late in the third quarter and Rax Wersching kicked two field goals in the 49ers fourth straight victory, which, combined with the Rams loss in Dallas, gives the 49ers sole possession of first place in the NFC West. San Francisco held Packers wide receivers James Lofton and John Jefferson to a combined four catches for 60 yards. Green Bay quarterback Lynn Dickey suffered a jammed neck late in the third quarter and was replaced by David Whitehurst.

Dolphins 13, Redskins 10

Rookie fullback Andra Franklin scored from 1 yard out and Uwe von Schamann kicked a pair of field goals, including the game-winner with 9:39 left. The victory enabled the Dolphins, 5-1-1, to extend their lead over the Bills in the AFC East to 1 1/2 games after Miami lost to Buffalo last week.

"I didn't have much to say to anybody during the week," Miami Coach Don Shula said. "I felt they were very upset by the loss."

Browns 20, Saints 17

Benny Ricardo missed a 37-yard field goal with 1:11 remaining to enable the Browns to improve to 3-4. Rookie George Rogers stunned the Browns defense with a 79-yard TD run and New Orleans, 1-6, got its other touchdown when Wayne Wilson went eight yards with a fake field goal. Mike Pruitt's 1-yard fourth-quarter plunge was the difference for Cleveland.

"I get paid to make the kick and I didn't make it," Ricardo said. "When I kicked it, it was dead center, right down the middle. The wind came off the lake and blew it out."

Chiefs 28, Broncos 14

Whitney Paul returned a fumble 47 yards for one TD and rookie Joe Delaney raced 82 yards for another as the Chiefs tied the Broncos and Chargers for the AFC lead at 5-2. Denver quarterback Craig Morton threw for 342 yards. Delaney, who rushed for 149 yards, became the first Chiefs back to gain 100 yards in three straight games.

Chargers 43, Colts 14

Dan Fouts passed for 298 yards and three touchdowns. Chuck Muncie scored twice on runs of 3 yards and John Cappelletti scored on a 12-yard pass and 1-yard run. It was the sixth straight loss for Baltimore, whose quarterback, Bert Jones, was sacked six times.

"Our defense came to life," Chargers Coach Don Coryell said.

Patriots 38, Oilers 10

Steve Grogan, starting his first game in a month, threw for two touchdowns to spark a 17-point third quarter that carried the Patriots to just their second victory in seven games. Houston quarterback Ken Stabler threw four interceptions and Earl Campbell was held to 86 yards on 27 carries by a defense that was ranked last against the run. "We got our tail beat," Houston Coach Ed Biles said.

A BIG GIRL NOW — Melissa Gilbert has come a long way from the role of the pig-tailed 10-year-old to the role of wife and teacher she plays on the NBC-TV series "Little House on the Prairie". She has recently revealed a new, more glamorous image, right, as she portrays her first role as a tempting young lady in "Splendor in the Grass" which will air on World Premiere Movie, October 26. Gilbert is 17 years old. (AP Laserphoto)

PBS Adopts Satellite Useage

By TOM JORY
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Public television only recently has begun to realize the enormous potential of the satellite in public affairs programming, at least that part of the technology that allows for live broadcast from traditionally "remote" locations like Boston and Miami.

Boston's WGBH led the way early in 1980 with "The National News," a 15-minute report available each weeknight to the 280-plus stations in the Public Broadcasting Service network.

"The National News" didn't last, but the capacity to reach stations by satellite and, in turn, receive live or taped reports from even more distant points was advanced a good deal by the experiment.

Public TV introduces "The Nightly Business Report" tonight, from Miami, and Walter Cronkite's weekly "Why in the World" Tuesday evening, from Los Angeles. Both take full advantage of two-way satellite technology.

"The Nightly Business Report," begun by WPBT in Miami two years ago as a local program, is the first public TV series to establish bureaus in key news centers as part of a cooperative effort.

Two current PBS series, "Enterprise" and "U.S. Chronicle," enlist the help of stations. WGBH also offers a nightly package of news segments collected from stations and other sources and intends to offer a weekly news roundup called "The Public File," beginning in November.

"The Nightly Business Report," in contrast, will have its own reporters in New York and Washington, and will count on stations in other cities for continuing coverage of specific subjects — Detroit's WTWS on the auto industry, WGBH on higher education and technology, Denver's KRMA on mining and ranching, KCET in Los Angeles for regular commentary.

The program will be fed each evening at 6:30 EDT. Some of the 126 stations signed up so far will run "The Nightly Business Report" back-to-back with PBS' established "MacNeil-Lehrer Report."

Producers of "The Nightly Business Report" expect a back-to-back audience that will include people in business as well as those simply interested in the economy.

"There's so much headline news on the economy these days," says Linda O'Bryon, the series' co-anchor and executive editor, "that the average viewer is much more sophisticated today, and is concerned about problems like inflation as well as about what the dollar is doing abroad."

"I think our audience will include people who are connected with business, real estate, for instance, as well as the consumer who is concerned about the economy."

If acceptance is any measure, there is precedent for the new show in "Wall Street Week," a PBS fixture since 1972 and historically one of the system's most popular programs among stations.

"Why in the World," conceived by Cronkite, is designed to link current events to the high school curriculum. The program will be offered to stations each Tuesday night at 6 EDT.

The program will call on educators and guest commentators to discuss topics in the news as they relate to classroom work. The satellite will connect the experts in the field with the "Why in the World" studio in Los Angeles.

Had the program been on the air when Egypt's President Anwar Sadat was assassinated, executive producer Joseph Benti says in illustration of the approach, "Why in the World" might have called on a Shakespearean scholar to discuss the political assassin in literature.

"What we want to be," says Benti, "is a connective link with the curriculum. And I'd rather the program be connective in ways no one would expect."

Cronkite will be a consultant to the series.

Film-TV Fund Marks Sixty Years Of Charity

WOODLAND HILLS, Calif. (AP) — The Motion Picture and Television Fund celebrated its 60th anniversary this weekend with a ceremony that included a tape-recorded salute from one of the world's most famous ex-actors, President Reagan.

Some 250 film-TV performers and executives were at a Saturday night ceremony at the Motion Picture and Television Country House, a retirement facility and convalescent hospital here. During the celebration, a building was dedicated to the memory of Frances Goldwyn, the wife of late film mogul Samuel Goldwyn. As specified in Mrs. Goldwyn's will, the 39-year-old Country House and Hospital, which is administered by the Motion Picture Fund, received more than $35 million from the sale of the Samuel Goldwyn Studios last year.

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, OCT. 20, 1981

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A good day express your talented ideas so that they can soon become a part of your life and activities. Your mind is brilliant now and you can gain benefits in a logical manner.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) A good day for advancement, but take no risks with your work. Listening to suggestions of co-workers is wise.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Get busy with financial and property affairs and you can make rapid progress. Don't force any issues at this time.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Put those ideas to work that will bring you advancement in the business world. Rest on your laurels tonight.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Make sure you know what you have committed yourself to and discharge your duties well. Use care in travel.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Seeing good friends is fine but don't get involved in any financial deals. Take no risks with your money at this time.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Handle civic affairs well and gain added prestige. Meet expectations of family members and have more harmony at home.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You have new ideas that should be put in operation without delay. Sidestep one who is jealous of you and could cause trouble.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Use new methods that will help you advance in your line of endeavor. Take no risks with your health at this time.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Figure out the best way to operate with associates and make the future brighter. Handle business affairs wisely.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Forget about going on a fun spree and get busy with all that work ahead of you. Enjoy pleasure in the evening.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You are bored and want recreation, so seek the right kind and you feel much better. Relax at home tonight.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Don't permit an outsider to take advantage of you and thus avoid trouble this person could bring. Use care in motion.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be most clever at reaching right decisions and should have the finest kind of academic education you can afford. A good salesperson in this chart and one who can easily put ideas across to others.

Young Musician Given Chance

NEW YORK (AP) — Carnegie Hall was three-quarters full for the debut of teen-age violinist Kerry McDermott, a student who was the center of a hoax started by a Florida millionaire who says he wanted to spotlight the plight of young musicians.

The turnout Sunday was termed "very good" by Willa Roudner, a spokeswoman for the music hall. Several other young musicians also performed at the concert.

Last week Stewart Fason of Palm Beach, Fla., admitted he lied when he asked the public to help him locate a violinist he'd heard while strolling on the street. He said at the time that he wanted to showcase her at Carnegie Hall.

Saturday's Cryptoquip — VALUABLE INFORMATION: TRUE LOVE IS BLIND—ALSO DEAF AND DUMB.
 Today's Cryptoquip clue: W equals C
 The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Director Will Speak

Myrick Howard of Raleigh, executive director of the Historic Preservation Fund of North Carolina, Inc., will speak twice in Greenville on Tuesday, October 20. At 3 p.m. he will discuss the topic "Finances" with area bankers, attorneys, city officials, community developers and representatives of the Greenville Neighborhood Association in the community room at Planter's National Bank.

At 8 p.m. Tuesday, Howard will speak on "Preservation in the Private Sector" at the monthly meeting of the Greenville Area Preservation Association, to be held at the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department building, 2000 Cedar Lane. The talk is free and the public is invited to attend.

The meetings are sponsored by the Greenville Area Preservation Association. Dr. Patricia Rice, president, will preside. Mrs. Nancy Meyer will introduce the speaker.

Howard holds a MA degree and the law degree from UNC-Chapel Hill. He did his undergraduate work at Brown University.

Adm. DeGrasse - Unsung Yorktown Hero's Story

By SID MOODY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

The forgotten hero at Yorktown, the battle that is being remembered all over America this month, was a Frenchman who never set foot on U.S. soil.

His name was Francois Joseph Paul, Count de Grasse du Bar. More than any other man, he won that last and conclusive battle of the American Revolution just 200 years ago. And remains unsung.

Yet de Grasse gambled the ultimate chip, his life, for American independence. He disobeyed orders and risked his fleet.

He had set sail in March 1781 from France for the West Indies.

His orders were to torment his perennial British foe, Adm. George Rodney, until the hurricane season when he was to depart for the American coast to torment Rear Adm. Thomas Graves.

De Grasse had been told to take no more than 12 of his ships-of-the-line, his battleships, north. Instead, he took all 28 of them, minus one that blew up when the grog stores exploded from a careless lamplighter.

In 1781, George Washington freely admitted, "We're at the end of our tether." He was fighting a revolution, and no one was showing up. His army was down to 2,500 men. Calls for militia went unanswered. Unpaid soldiers mutinied.

It seemed all the British had to do was wait for the revolution to peter out, and in Sir Henry Clinton, their commander in America, they had just the man for the job. Sir Henry was a sitter.

His fightingest general, Charles Cornwallis, was traipsing somewhere in Virginia.

Rodney suffered from gout and the illusion that de Grasse would follow his orders, which Rodney had intercepted. But de Grasse did not have the mercantile heritage of an Englishman. Not for a moment would Rodney conceive of leaving the West Indies uncovered. The French thought differently. Their fleet was a means to strategic ends. De Grasse gambled all when he left Haiti, Aug. 5, 1781.

De Grasse, 39, had been in the navy since he was 12. Although collision prone, he had been given high marks for seamanship. Normally he was 6-feet-2, "but 6-6 on battle days."

Having just what Washington needed — seapower, men and money — de Grasse set off for Chesapeake Bay. Rodney sent Sir Samuel Hood north from Antigua to cover, but sent him with only 14 battleships.

Hood looked in on the Virginia Capes on Aug. 25, saw no French and continued to New York to rendezvous with Graves. De Grasse reached the bay six days later. Cornwallis was now cut off by sea.

Washington appreciated this well. He saw the possibilities of combined operations with de Grasse against Cornwallis, gave up his plan for attacking Clinton in New York and within five days had his army moving to Virginia.

Cornwallis could see the French fleet and had no illusions.

He chose to march to Yorktown, a very bad thing. It meant he had to split his army to fortify Gloucester on the north bank of the York river.

Nonetheless, on Aug. 1 he moved into Yorktown and began digging fortifications. The French boy general, the 24-year-old Lafayette took up positions beyond Yorktown and hoped Washington could get there before Cornwallis decided to leave. Washington's hopes were that de Grasse would reach the Capes before Graves.

De Grasse did. Notified of this Sept. 5 as he left Philadelphia, Washington beamed.

"We've got him (Cornwallis) handsomely in a pudding bag," said Gen. George Weedon of the Virginia militia.

Graves raised the Capes early Sept. 5. De Grasse was anchored aboard his highly varnished flagship, the 110-gun Ville de Paris, the mightiest warship afloat. The admiral ordered his fleet of 24 battleships (Graves had 19) to cut their moorings and make to sea, stranding 1,000 cannoneers who had been ashore.

Instead of attacking the French ships one by one as they straggled out, Graves stuck to the book which said fleets should fight in proper lines of battle. He thus sacrificed better wind position and his greater speed.

If Cornwallis were to save his army, now was the time to attack before Washington arrived, but a message from Clinton promised reinforcements. Like his boss, Cornwallis became sedentary.

Washington reached Williamsburg Sept. 14. Cornwallis was now well and truly treed.

Not until Oct. 9 did Washington feel he had enough trenches dug and guns in place. At 3 p.m. the French cannon opened up, at 5 p.m. the American with Washington touching off the first shot.

The noose drew ever tighter. British Lt. Col. Robert Abercromby led a futile night sortie. On the 16th, Cornwallis tried to evacuate his best men across the York River to Gloucester, but a violent squall broke up the effort.

The next day Cornwallis sent a drummer to the parapet to signal for a truce.

On Oct. 19, Cornwallis had surrendered his 7,247 men, 840 sailors and 244 cannon. The last battle of the American Revolution was over.

De Grasse set sail for the Caribbean where the next year he was captured along with the Ville de Paris by Rodney and lived out his life in disgrace.

And in America? We have a Washington College, a Lafayette College, a Hamilton College. But De Grasse U.?

Automakers' Loss Up To $600 Million

DETROIT (AP) — The Big Three U.S. automakers will show third quarter losses of at least $600 million, with little improvement likely in the fourth quarter, auto industry analysts say.

Wall Street analysts estimate General Motors Corp. will be $200 million to $300 million in the red for the third quarter, with losses of nearly $300 million predicted for Ford Motor Co., and $100 million to $200 million for Chrysler Corp.

American Motors Corp., the only U.S. carmaker so far to report third-quarter results, said Friday it lost $16.8 million from July to September — its sixth consecutive quarterly loss.

The other automakers are expected to issue quarterly statements within the next two weeks. Analysts noted, however, that a $600 million loss would be an improvement on the $1.6 billion loss reported in the third quarter last year.

The fourth quarter has gotten off to a slow start as well, with sales at a 23-year low for the first 10 days of the period.

"I don't think we will see a sizable move into the black until the second quarter of 1982 at the earliest," said William R. Pochiluk Jr., automotive analyst with Chase Econometrics, an economic forecasting company.

"It's white-sale time again. And white-sale time may hang in there for another quarter or two," said David Eisenberg, an automotive analyst for the brokerage firm of Sanford C. Bernstein & Co.

Traditionally, the third quarter is the auto industry's worst, with huge retooling costs, plant closings and few cars sold to dealers.

This year, lagging sales and rebates have added to the problem.

"This was the year we hoped we could get back to fundamentals in marketing, but now we are back to offering incentives," said AMC's general manager of marketing, David Van Peursem. AMC is offering rebates on many models.

Analysts said that if losses have been cut at all, it has been due to cost-cutting efforts rather than improved sales.
