Helms Says Maybe But...

Tobacco Outlook Cloudy

By SUSAN RIES
and SUE FERNALD
Reflector Staff Writers

Sen. Jesse Helms expressed cautious optimism Saturday over the future of the tobacco program, qualifying his outlook on the condition that tobacco-state representatives "lay politics aside and work together."

Helms, a Republican, said in a telephone interview that new attacks on tobacco could be made during the current session of Congress, especially in the Senate where amendment rules are more liberal than in the House. But he noted such attacks are not new.

Helms said that, in a conversation shortly before he succeeded the late B. Everett Jordan in the Senate, Jordan advised him the tobacco program was in serious trouble.

"He told me then, 'Jesse, you will be lucky if you can save the tobacco program for four more years.' This was December 1972," Helms said.

"He was very gloomy about the survival of the program at that time. Here it is nine years later and we have thus far managed to preserve the program."

The tobacco program, under attack for years by those against smoking, has been subjected this year to even harsher attacks. Anti-smoking forces now are only part of a coalition of those against farm subsidies of any type, those who want deeper budget cuts and those seeking political revenge against Southern Democrats who have supported President Reagan's program.

Last week the House voted 231-184 against an amendment that would have abolished the tobacco program in its entirety. The Senate earlier had rejected a similar effort.

The tobacco program, begun in the 1930s, is designed to guarantee farmers a minimum return on their crop and to stabilize production. It includes price supports, acreage allotments, fines for growers without allotments and poundage quotas.

Reagan Sees New Hope For Economic Recovery

By GEORGE GEDDA
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) —

President Reagan returned from the Cancun, Mexico, summit of rich and poor nations Saturday and declared it had created "a spirit of new hope" that the United States will help transform into a revitalized world economy.

"We have an enormous opportunity now to advance mutually beneficial economic relations with our developing country partners," the president said in nearby Andrews Air Force Base where Air Force One was touched down.

"The exchange was direct, frank, wide-ranging and free of recrimination," said Reagan, who was initially reluctant to participate in the historic conference.

Calling the two-day summit "a substantial success," Reagan maintained that there had been "broad acceptance" of the approaches to economic development he outlined in a speech last week in Philadelphia.

In that address, Reagan said free enterprise, fiscal discipline and expanded global trade were the key elements to economic progress.

Reagan, who left the White House on Wednesday for the summit, said he was glad to be home "even though it was a beautiful place." Vice President George Bush met the president at Andrews.

Treasury Secretary Donald Regan told reporters aboard Air Force One that the administration had feared there would be confrontation at the conference. He said none of the participants "came out and told us we were wrong."

"I believe all those who attended found our expectations fulfilled and even exceeded," Reagan said in his arrival statement. "Together we succeeded in creating a spirit of new hope which we want to translate into progress to revitalize the world economy and accelerate the growth of developing countries."

The president did not mention what most participants considered the key achievement of the conference: an agreement to begin a process leading toward global negotiations on ways to reduce the income gap between rich and poor countries.

But he said that all of the participants at the summit, representing two-thirds of the world's population, recognized that prosperity depends both on the efforts of individual countries and on close international economic cooperation.

"We did not waste time on unrealistic rhetoric or unattainable objectives," he said. "We dealt with pragmatic solutions to the problems of growth, efforts to improve food security and agricultural development."

"At Cancun, we made a good beginning toward more constructive and mutually beneficial relations among developed and developing nations, and toward a more prosperous world," he said.

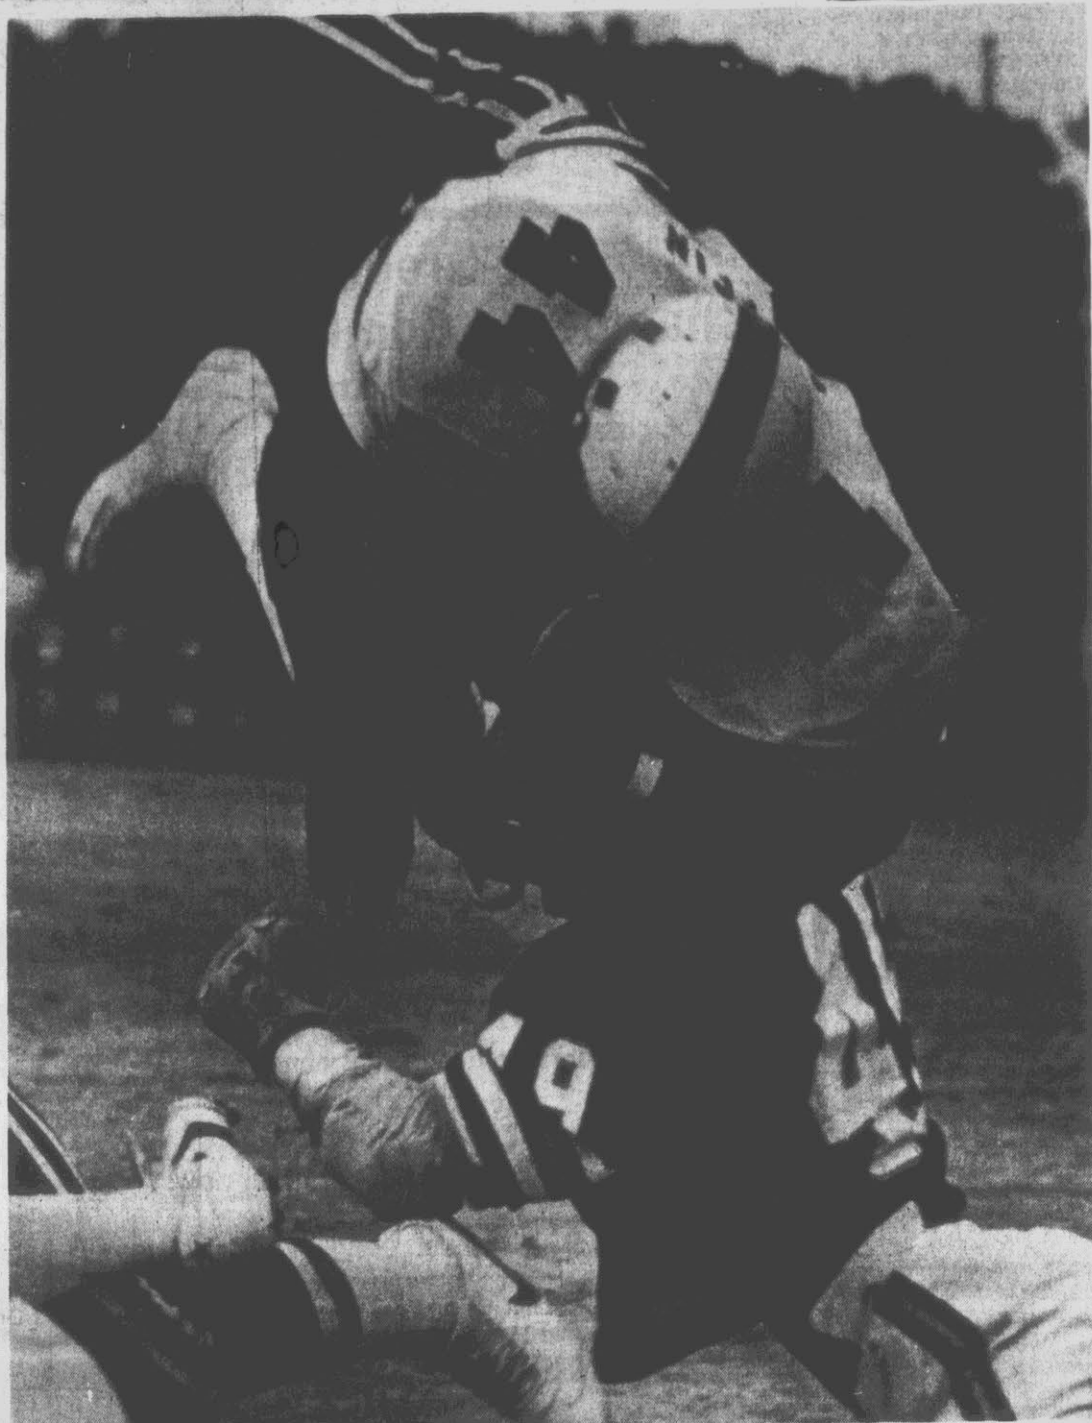

Reagan departed the island site of the historic North-South summit Saturday willing to join other nations in negotiations to alleviate poverty but without committing himself to any major changes in the international economic system.

Reagan's aides appeared confident that the United States had engendered goodwill by attending the 22-nation summit and by tentatively embracing its call for negotiations to reshape the world economy.

"This could have been an extremely risky venture,"

Strikers Ignore Threat Of Troops

By THOMAS W. NETTER
Associated Press Writer
WARSAW, Poland (AP) —

More than 280,000 workers, ignoring government plans to use troops to quell "local disputes" and Solidarity pleas for calm, continued wildcat strikes Saturday over food shortages, union officials said.

Regional officials of the independent union said there were no unusual troop movements in their provinces, and some said they would welcome the soldiers if they could help solve the shortages.

PAP, the official news agency, said strikes were reported in 36 of Poland's 49 provinces.

The Communist government announced Friday that it was sending special army units nationwide to stop supply disruptions, ease food buying, improve transportation and fight mismanagement and waste.

Western diplomatic observers said the troops could be stationed in factories as strikebreakers. But they said the move did not presage the immediate onset of martial law, but rather would have what one called a "psychological effect" on local unionists.

The government announcement followed violent protests in two Polish cities last week and a call by Solidarity for a one-hour warning strike Wednesday to protest alleged police harassment and the food situation.

Trybuna Ludu, the Communist Party daily, lashed out Saturday at the union's call for a national protest, calling it another "escalation of (Solidarity's) political demands."

Leaders of the 9.5-million member union called on local chapters to end their protests. But they were largely ignored.

Some 150,000 workers in southwest Zielona Gora province, and 12,000 women textile workers in Zyrardow, just west of Warsaw, stayed off the job Saturday, union officials reported.

They also said more than 120,000 workers in steel mills, mines and plants in the sulphur-producing southern Tarnobrzeg province continued to strike.

The Zielona Gora workers are protesting the government's refusal to replace a local official who fired a union leader, while the Zyrardow workers are striking for the 12th day over shortages of food.

The strikes are part of a massive protest wave that began earlier this week and is nearing the level of strikes when the Polish labor crisis began 14 months ago.

"There are no troops in sight, but if they come and start shipping fuel about, that's fine with us," said Marian Podpada, Solidarity spokesperson in Zielona Gora.

But Podpada added it would be "stupid" for the local union to halt its strike as called for by Solidarity's national leaders. He vowed the protest will "carry on, no matter what they order."

Some union officials were skeptical about the army's ability to ease the food shortages.

"Who needs the army loitering here?" Asked Olsztyn Solidarity spokesman Wieslaw Brydzki. "They should mind their own business," he said.

Other local Solidarity leaders, however, saw the government's action as a positive development.

Greenville Moose Lodge Selling Property

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

The Loyal Order of Moose, with a declining membership, is offering its lodge building and other property at the intersection of Dickinson Avenue and Maxwell Street for sale.

"Our main purpose," according to lodge secretary Marvin Fordham, "is to relocate in another place with a building more in keeping with our size," one "that would be for the benefit of our members...planned in advance."

"This one just grew with the membership," Fordham suggested.

No decision has been made on a location for the new lodge building Fordham said. "A site committee has just been appointed," he said.

But wherever the new lodge is located, it should include a pool and other facilities available to members now, he said. "We're not reducing any of the benefits," Fordham said.

Membership in the Greenville Moose Lodge is now 850 to 900, Fordham explained, down from a high several years ago of some 2,000 members.

"I have no idea" why the membership has declined, Fordham said, "other than it is a general trend in other areas, too. Fraternities seem to run in cycles. We're on the down side of the cycle."

It was in the mid-1950s, when the membership was on the increase, that the present lodge building was constructed. Fordham said "new parts have been added on since. We anticipate that a new building will not be as large, but more efficient for our use. I have no estimate of what a new facility might cost."

The Moose property was listed for sale with Estate Realty Co. here on Sept. 29. Doris Mills of Estate said last week that the price has been set at $582,000. That, she explained, includes the 23,449 square-foot building and parking lot for $427,000, the pool and bath house for $51,000, and two lots across Maxwell Street for a total of $103,000.

She added that there have been "two or three" inquiries about the property, including interest from groups interested in using the lodge building for church purposes.

Records on file at the Pitt County Tax Supervisor's office place the tax value of the building and land at $503,770, with replacement cost of the building alone at $587,204.

The proposed sale of the Moose Lodge is not precedent-setting in Greenville. Several years ago the Benevolent Protective Order of Elks, when membership declined, sold the Elks Lodge building on West Sixth Street and built a new but smaller facility off 14th Street near the Greenville Boulevard intersection.

Apartment Fire Kills 11

HOBOKEN, N.J. (AP) — A smoky fire raced through a five-story apartment building Saturday and killed 11 people, including a family of seven Puerto Rican immigrants and another family of four Cuban refugees, officials said.

Three children and three teen-agers were killed in the blaze. Two apartment house residents were hospitalized, and fire officials said about 10 residents were left homeless.

Five members of the Puerto Rican family were found dead at a front window on the fifth floor, police said.

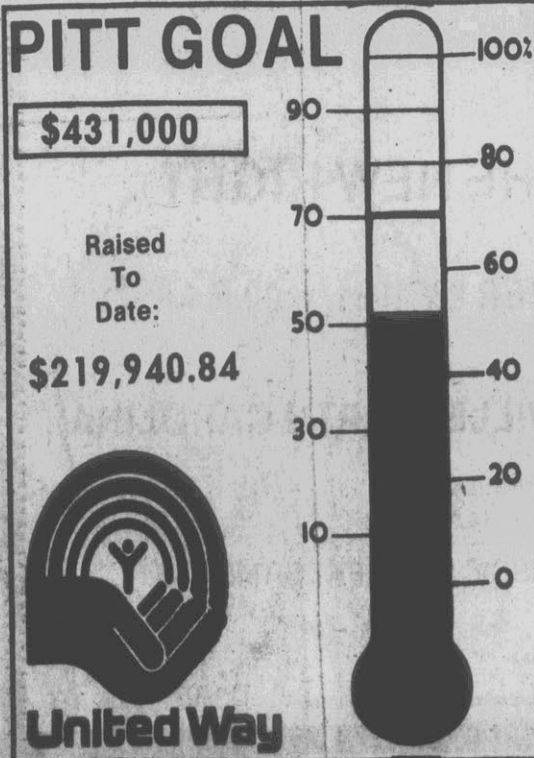

"Apparently they were looking for someone to rescue them," said a police officer.

The fire apparently started in the first-floor hallway of the five-story brick building, fire officials said. Authorities said they had not determined the cause late Saturday.

A police officer who was one block away when the alarm sounded at 4:13 a.m. Saturday morning said the building was fully ablaze when he arrived.

The blaze was the second fatal fire in Hoboken in 12 days. On Oct. 12, two children died in a blaze that enveloped a five-story tenement.

Obituaries

Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. told reporters. "And it did pay off."

As Reagan and the other leaders were leaving the Caribbean resort island after two days of talks, Haig hailed the conference as having taken "an extremely successful step toward greater international cooperation."

The final agreement calling for global negotiations in the United Nations to alleviate poverty was worded vaguely, to the disappointment of some participants but to the pleasure of the Reagan administration.

Haig said Reagan had established "warm, cordial and respectful" relationships with each of the leaders, some of whom he met here for the first time. "Both found themselves devoid of horns."

The secretary of state said the summit was conducted in a spirit of "what we can do together" instead of "sterile" exchanges.

"None of the dialogue was 'we versus they,'" Haig added.

The key achievement of the conference, which ended late Friday, was to launch a process leading to global negotiations at the United Nations on economic relations between rich and poor countries.

The negotiations would be conducted "on a basis to be mutually agreed and in circumstances offering the prospect of meaningful progress."

However, Reagan served notice as the conference began Thursday that the United States would participate in such negotiations only if they did not point toward a fundamental restructuring of the international economic system and if the emphasis was on global economic growth and not redistribution of wealth from rich to poor countries.

Haig characterized Reagan's position as an "evolution" of the traditional U.S. stance toward such negotiations since the United States for several years has resisted demands by poor nations that major economic disputes between industrialized and developing countries be brought before the United Nations, where talks could change the basic international economic order.

Prime Minister Indira Gandhi of India chided the United States for its insistence on self-reliance as the key to economic development. Noting talk "about pulling oneself up with one's bootstraps," Mrs. Gandhi said:

"Most people forget that there are very large numbers of people in the world who don't own any boots... and therefore they don't have any straps with which they can pull themselves up."

Nonetheless, most delegates seem to agree that the summit was conducted in a spirit of conciliation, a sharp contrast with attempts at North-South dialogues dating back nearly two decades.

During the 12 hours of formal discussions at the Cancun Sheraton Hotel here, Haig said, there was "a strong focus on pragmatic solutions."

Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau, a co-chairman of the event, said it had been a shattering experience for some of the leaders, who were contradicted by their colleagues. "If you want to read speeches, just put them in the mail," Trudeau said he told the participants at the conference table. "The debate that followed was a new experience, a shattering experience for some."

He said that some of the leaders "were getting exposed to realities of the world that three-quarters of them had never been exposed to before. I would bet my bottom dollar that leaders like Lopez Portillo and Marcos have never been contradicted with so many arguments before in their political lives." He was referring to Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo, the host of the conference, and Philippine President Ferdinand Marcos.

Haig said the world was "better off as a result of this conference," and added that he expects the process aimed at launching global negotiations to begin soon. Algerian United Nations Ambassador Mohammed Bedjaoui said consultations would begin

If you already know Janice Buck, you know how lucky we are that she's running for City Council. If you don't know her, read this:

All of Janice Buck's life has been an individual testimony to her outstanding leadership qualities. Since the tragic death of her husband in 1966 she has successfully built the wholesale supply business he founded. Determination, courage, perseverance and cool-headed decision-making have all helped Janice to be successful in a business that is overwhelmingly dominated by men. And through it all, Janice has remained a lady.

Janice Braxton Buck is also civic-minded. Many people know her for the outstanding work she did as director of Greenville's Bicentennial Celebration. Others know her for her more recent work on the Redevelopment Commission. And many know she received Greenville's Citizen of the Year Award for her outstanding community service in 1974.

Janice Buck wants to bring her aptitude for managing business to bear on the workings of City Government. She wants to fulfill her civic responsibility. And we feel the people of Greenville should give Janice Buck an opportunity to do just that.

Your vote for Janice Buck for City Council on November 3 will help.

Paid for by the committee to elect Janice Buck.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our deepest thanks to each and everyone for the cards, flowers, food, contributions, and prayers extended to us during our recent time of sorrow. We are especially grateful to the employees of the Grifton Rest Home. May God bless all of you.

Chief Says Police Beat No Place 'To Look Pretty'

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Knoxville's police chief, shaping up his department for the 1982 World's Fair, has ordered female officers to cut their hair because a police beat is "no place to look pretty."

Debbie Frank, a Nashville police officer and chairwoman of the Tennessee Association of Women Police, said her organization would fight the order handed down by Police Chief Robert Marshall.

"That's what they did to women in prisoner of war camps to dehumanize them ... made them cut their hair like men," she said.

Starting Nov. 1, the 10 uniformed women officers of Knoxville's 325-member police department must keep their hair cut above their shirt collars and the tops of their ears, just like the men.

No officer's hair may protrude more than 1½ inches from his or her scalp.

"The chief says he doesn't want us to look sexy," said Officer Donna Meredith, whose curly hair fit under her hat. "We wear men's uniforms and men's shoes. Now how are we going to look sexy?"

"Basically what they're saying is that this is a man's job and you should look like a man."

The rule won't apply to the city's three female plain-clothes officers, Marshall said.

"The eyes of the world will be on us next year," Marshall said. "With all the visitors, dignitaries of state and other world's leaders coming to Knoxville for the fair, we want our law enforcement officers to reflect a professional image."

"This is a tough job. This is not a place to look pretty."

Buns or pinning hair under a cap will not be permitted, although a wig or hairpiece will be okay as long as they conform to natural hair standards.

Knox County Sheriff Joe Jenkins has issued a similar order. The county has only one female deputy, but she has waist-length hair.

Marshall said long hair is dangerous, because a suspect might try to grab it. He also said some male officers complained the current rule — which permits women to have shoulder-length hair — is discriminatory.

"Personally, I think a woman is a woman," Marshall said. "But every female was informed that under federal law and guidelines, they are the same as men and must be treated the same."

The Knoxville police department has been criticized recently by the U.S. Justice Department for not employing more women and minorities.

Marshall said, however, the new regulation is not designed to keep women out of police work.

"They'll be treated exactly the same as everybody else and I don't think you can ask for anything more," he said.

The Tennessee Association of Women Police said Saturday night its legal counsel would discuss the order with the Knoxville chapter of the Fraternal Order of Police.

"These steps are designed to humiliate and denigrate those women who desire an active law enforcement career," the association said in a statement. "Not only do these tactics show a disregard for studies which show women are suitable in a police environment and in some instances superior to their male counterparts, but it displays an unwillingness of the chief to bring the Knoxville Police Department into the 20th century."

The statement said the sole objective of the order "appears to be the harassment of the women officers of Knoxville as they attempt to pursue their career goals."

Tobacco Outlook...

Much of the public recognition has gone to Rep. Charles Rose, a Democrat representing North Carolina's 5th Congressional District, as the leader of the pro-tobacco forces that blocked the attack on the price support program.

But Helms said Saturday he thought much of the credit should go to two eastern North Carolina congressmen, Reps. Walter Jones of Farmville and L.H. Fountain of Tarboro. Both are Democrats.

"I think they ought to be recognized," Helms said, noting that Jones left a convalescent bed to return to Washington to fight for the tobacco program. He said Fountain wrote several congressmen explaining how the tobacco program worked in an effort to make it understandable to non-farm members of Congress.

Helms, along with North Carolina's other Republican senator, John East of Greenville, led the tobacco defense in the Senate earlier in the session.

East, asked about the House vote, said he was "pleased the House followed the action of the Senate and voted to preserve the tobacco program."

"These victories in the House and Senate are the direct result of many long hours of work on behalf of a bi-partisan coalition of pro-tobacco senators and congressmen. In my judgment, it was the bi-partisan nature of support for tobacco that proved to be the key ingredient for achieving these victories," East said.

Other North Carolinians echoed East's satisfaction with the tobacco victory.

"All of us in North Carolina owe a lot to these men in congress and the support they had from other states ... This defeat is very important to all the people of North Carolina, especially our farmers," Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham said.

"It would have been disastrous for the farmers in Pitt County if the bill had passed," said Roger Cobb, the county's agricultural extension agent. Cobb noted that rejection of the price support program would have made it difficult for farmers to borrow money for their crops.

Fountain observed: "The battle in the House to save the tobacco program was extremely long and hard this year — the longest and hardest it's been since the program started almost a half-century ago."

"Whoopie!" was the response of Arthur Jackson, an accounting executive for the Flue-Cured Tobacco Stabilization Corp. in Raleigh. Stabilization administers the price-support program for flue-cured tobacco.

Helms, who is chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, has called for a series of hearings on changes that can be made in the tobacco program to make it more palatable to members of Congress. He said he was reluctant to discuss any proposals for change in advance of the hearings.

"I just want to be sure that everybody understands the problem so that we can move in a united way in our efforts to counteract the tremendous pressure that has been building for 15 to 20 years against the program," Helms said.

"Congress is dominated by people from urban areas who have no interest in and very little concern for any farm program. Every time there has been a vote ... and this year with the budgetary restraints the problem was all the more emphasized ... we are going to continue to have problems applicable to any number of commodities."

Helms said the congressional fight this year has produced a situation of "good news" and "bad news."

"The good news is that, if we stand united and don't allow the tobacco program to be politicized, then I think we've got a good chance of preserving the tobacco program," Helms said.

He added, "The bad news is that it's getting harder all the time."

Although Helms declined to discuss proposals for change, one area that has drawn sharp interest on Capitol Hill is corporate ownership of tobacco allotments. Corporations own less than 2 percent of the allotments, but opponents have seized on their presence in an effort to discredit the program.

Jones is among those who believe corporate ownership of allotments is bad.

"This is an area that needs thorough investigation," Jones said after the House vote. "I don't see any reason for a corporation, which has no farming interests, to own allotments."

Another proposal cited publicly would give the secretary of agriculture authority to lower price supports on low-stalk tobacco in an effort to discourage the sale of that type of leaf.

Rose, chairman of the House Tobacco and Peanuts subcommittee, also has called for hearings on the program.

"The vote ... means that changes must occur," Rose said after the House action.

Officers Slain In Robbery Buried

By EILEEN PUTMAN

Associated Press Writer

NYACK, N.Y. (AP) —

Thousands of peace officers lined black-bannered village streets Saturday, offering final tribute to two policemen gunned down after a $1.6 million Brink's armored car holdup.

Meanwhile, police and FBI officials in New York City said the underground radical movement was "in traction" because of arrests and raids made since Tuesday's bungled heist.

Sgt. Edward O'Grady and Officer Waverly Brown were mourned Saturday at separate funeral services by friends, families and officers who filled streets and churches.

"They lived as brothers. They worked as a team and they were slain like heroes together," said the Rev. O.T. Moore Jr. in a service for the 45-year-old Brown at the Pilgrim's Baptist Church.

Brown and O'Grady, 32, became the first Rockland County officers killed in the line of duty when they were caught in a fusillade of automatic weapons fire after halting the robbers' getaway van at a roadblock outside Nanuet.

Services were also held Saturday in South River, N.J., for Peter Paige, the Brink's guard who was killed in the holdup in Clarkstown. He was buried in East Brunswick, N.J.

Three members of the Weather Underground — Katherine Boudin, 38, Judith Clark, 31, and David Gilbert, 37 — have been charged with murdering the two policemen and the guard.

Authorities said Ms. Boudin, Ms. Clark and Gilbert were members of the May 19 Coalition, a recently formed radical group named for the birthdays of Ho Chi Minh and slain black leader Malcolm X. Another man, 41-year-old Samuel Brown, was also captured Tuesday and has been charged with murder.

Meanwhile, the search for those who escaped after the robbery continued following the arrests two more members of the Weather Underground early Saturday morning. A fugitive Black Panther was arrested after a shootout on Friday.

At a news conference in New York on Friday, Police Commissioner Robert McGuire refused to say if a conspiracy of radicals and terrorists was behind the robbery, but police officials said they have made 10 raids in the New York area.

Suspect Held In Attack On Nun

bus station here Saturday seized a 22-year-old suspect in the rape of a Manhattan nun. Officials said the man admitted the attack, named an accomplice and was fleeing in fear of a rumored mob contract on his life.

Twenty-seven crosses were cut on the body of the 30-year-old nun, who was attacked by two men while alone in an East Harlem convent.

New York City offered a $10,000 reward in the case, but Chicago police said a rumor that organized crime had put a $25,000 bounty on the rapists' heads apparently prompted the suspect to flee Manhattan.

Police Sgt. Thomas Kelley of the Chicago violent crimes division said the suspect was being held for New York authorities, who arrived later in the day. No charges were filed by Chicago authorities.

The man, identified by Kelley as Harold Wells, 22, a former resident of Chicago, was taken into custody at 6 a.m. when he arrived by bus from the East.

Time Bought With Defense Of Program

Once again the tobacco program has been saved from the onslaught of opponents by some frantic work on the part of tobacco state congressmen in the House of Representatives.

The program had previously slipped through the Senate, where a strong move was made to amend the farm bill and gut the tobacco program.

This week it was the House's turn and a strong effort was made to amend the bill and strip the tobacco program.

A lot of good work was done by many people to save the program. Rep. Charlie Rose, D-N.C., led the fight and Rep. Walter Jones returned to Washington to do what he could when he was supposed to be convalescing.

Supporters of tobacco see a clear warning in the strong attack that was mounted this year, however. There must be changes in the tobacco program. It has already been conceded that the program should be run at no cost to the government. While it has been that way in the past no one knows what future costs will be incurred or where the money will come from.

Rep. Rose says changes in the program must occur, if it is to be saved and the "only blessing ... is that Congress has allowed us to accomplish them."

We who live everyday with the tobacco program well know that it has been beneficial to the small farmer. That is difficult to get across to the rest of the nation, however.

We have some time now to do a selling job, and also to make changes which will make the program more efficient before it is considered again.

No one should doubt, though, that there will be future attacks on the tobacco program in Congress. With the current mood in Washington, one day those attacks can succeed.

Robert Morgan Still Has Potential In Political Arena

Is former Senator Robert Morgan a prime candidate for the position of ECU chancellor?

He's not saying but some of his friends believe he is leaning away from this possibility.

It is believed that Morgan feels a long term commitment would have to be made to serve as chancellor of the university, and the thinking is that he is studying his options for future political involvement — possibly in the governor's race in 1984.

Morgan has served the university well, starting in his days as an undergraduate student and continuing through 15 years on the board of trustees — nine years as chairman.

The possibilities of a Morgan chancellorship are exciting, but we also believe he has excellent prospects still in the political arena.

Sunday Morning Notes

The Tar River is a nice, relatively rural stream that meanders its way to the Pamlico.

Generally it doesn't attract much attention — it's not wide enough to greatly excite exponents of recreational boating. There is some fishing in it but it's not known as one of the great fishing spots of the world.

Nevertheless we have always considered it a friendly river; that is, until we learned that it is rated unsafe for humans.

One observer stared at it recently and commented on its unreliability.

"Can't understand it," he said. "It looks harmless enough."

Well, of course, the river is a friend in many ways. Many people still boat on it and there is still considerable fishing. The city of Greenville takes its drinking water from it and, after treatment, it is considered safe. In fact the new water plant will draw large quantities of drinking water from the river.

What has happened is, even with present day laws against dumping, pollutants have found their way into the river.

There was a time, of course, when raw sewage flowed into the river from Tarboro, Greenville and other sources. The stream was also the "swimming hole" of the time and no one knew whether or not the river was polluted because no one really checked.

There were fish in the river then, too. They were mostly catfish and carp which thrived off the sewage.

Most kids had sense enough to swim upstream from the point where sewage dumped into the river and it was considered safe enough, even if there were a few drownings every summer.

Our observer commented, "It's a good thing we didn't know about pollutants then. I never would have learned to swim."

The Tar doesn't always meander, however. In drought times it has been low enough so it was possible to walk across at the Pillsbury bridge between Falkland and Belvoir. It has also been high enough to flood North Greene Street and block traffic on that thoroughfare.

There have also been ice floes on the river and some say it froze solid in the 1800s, enough so that horses could be ridden up and down it.

Tar Heel Furnishings Are Going Abroad

RALEIGH — An increasing number of foreign visitors find North Carolina a major attraction each year. This October, buyers from more than 60 foreign countries are expected to join the throng viewing the world's largest collection of home furnishings at the Southern Furniture Market.

Interest in North Carolina furniture overseas is growing strongly, according to experts with the North Carolina Department of Commerce.

Television seems to be playing a key role in this market expansion. So many TV shows are shown abroad, creating foreign interest in the home furnishings which are seen on the screen.

Says Deborah Ahlstedt of the phenomena: Japanese families now want to have at least one room decorated in Western style. Germans love Early American furnishings and call them "Early Bavarian," and the British translate that same style into "Early Colonial."

The craftsmanship, high-gloss woodwork, and design appeal to foreign buyers, and Ahlstedt says that, "Nowhere in the world can one find a complete line of more manufacturers at one time" than in the North Carolina furniture market each April and October.

Over 38,500 people attended the April show this year at a market covering hundreds of central Carolina miles with exhibits in High Point, Lexington, Thomasville, Statesville, Hickory and Lenoir. Exhibit space involved 90 buildings.

In 1979, total export of furniture was $180 million. Last year it reached $520 million. Major markets are Western Europe, Japan, the Middle East and Australia.

People seem to take trains for granted and ignore all the warnings. Last year there were 287 accidents at railway

Role

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Democrats in Congress are finally beginning to act like a minority party.

In terms of real numbers, of course, Democrats have an even split. They are a 53-47 minority in the Senate, but control the House 243-191.

But in the terms that count — political power — they are a minority. After 25 years of unbroken control of congressional politics, House Democrats have found that real control in 1981 lies with a combination of a GOP White House, a GOP Senate, and conservative House Democrats.

The trouble was that House Democrats continued for months to act as if they were still in control.

For instance, when President Reagan presented his budget and tax plans, Democrats developed their own programs and proceeded as if they had the power to shove the plans through.

The Democrats acted as if it were their duty to tell the White House to stand aside, to develop a plan to solve the nation's ills, then give it to Reagan and say, "Here, sign this."

That is what a majority party does.

Clearly, it didn't work.

A minority party, on the other hand, has one of four choices:

— It works with the majority when it can to reach bipartisan solutions. This usually occurs in time of war or when regional or special interest considerations become more important than party.

— It attempts to siphon off enough dissident votes from majority party members to form temporary majority coalitions on specific issues.

— It plays the role of obstructionist without proposing any ideas of its own.

— It develops programs that are politically popular but ridiculously impractical.

In each of the last two cases, this gives the minority party a political stump to speak from with no fear that its ideas would actually be adopted. Meanwhile, it can watch the majority party stumble around attempting to reach real solutions.

Republicans over the years learned this art well, and now Democrats apparently are trying.

When Reagan announced his second round of budget cuts, Democrats viewed them with alarm, but offered no alternate ideas.

They have chosen to watch the Republicans stew in the increasingly unpopular budget cuts, and they apparently will continue to do so. Democratic leaders say they probably will not develop a position on either the new budget cuts or on individual suggestions that the tax cuts be deferred a few months.

Instead, they will try to block as many as possible of the many new budget cuts that Reagan has proposed, developing coalitions of Democrats and dissident Northeastern GOP members who feel betrayed by the latest cuts.

And they will do everything they can to blame the Republicans for the inevitable pain that budget cuts will cause, hammering away at the theme that the GOP has taken from the poor to give tax breaks to the rich.

It is a painful process for Democrats to learn that they no longer have the power to impose their ideas on the country.

But they may find that being a minority is easier.

And Republicans probably already are discovering that they aren't having quite as much fun as they did just a few short months ago.

Virginia Offers Challenge To Reaganism

RICHMOND, Va. — The Democratic resurgence in Virginia, where Republicans have not lost the governorship since 1965, casts a shadow over Republican strategy to Reaganize the land of Dixie with the ideological force of the Reagan Revolution.

The reverse may be happening here in new twist to the old adage: If you can't whip 'em, join 'em. Grabbing at the heart and soul of Reagan's philosophy — stripped down federal bureaucracy, lowered taxes and strong defense — Chuck Robb, the Democratic nominee for governor, is converting Reaganism into the cutting edge of his own otherwise bland campaign.

For the progenitor of Reaganism, Ronald Reagan himself, the prospect of Robb beating Attorney General Marshall Coleman, moderate Republican by Virginia standards, has unfortunate implications. Reagan desperately wants the state's senior senator, Harry F. Byrd Jr., to finish his long journey out of the Democratic Party in time to run as a Republican in his bid for re-election next year. Byrd, now an independent, would be more likely to run as a Democrat than a Republican if Robb is elected governor on Nov. 3 with four years to rebuild and consolidate his party.

For the president, the pain of watching the state just across the Potomac River elect a Democratic governor during the first year of his presidency would be especially galling. With the single exception of Byrd, not since 1965 has Virginia elected either a non-Republican governor or a U.S. senator, a 16-year record that no other state can beat. The triumphs of Reaganism nationally should have reenforced Reagan's party in the only Southern state carried by Gerald Ford in 1976.

His wife Nanoy substituted for the president at a fundraising party here for Coleman's last month, but the president has promised to campaign himself for the Republican nominee in the heavily-populated Tidewater next week. Coleman's political operatives expect no miracle from Reagan's visit but hope it will spark a little electricity in a campaign now celebrated as one of the most boring in the colorful political history of the state.

One reason for the boredom is the phlegmatic Chuck Robb, who married the elder daughter of former president Lyndon Johnson.

Ex-Marine Robb is the first conservative to be tapped by his party for governor since Mills Godwin, now a Republican, won in 1965. But strenuous Republican efforts to tie him to Lyndon Johnson's Great Society seem unavailing.

Polls taken by Richard Wirthlin, Coleman's chief researcher and longtime Reagan political adviser, show a perceptive decline in voters' positive perceptions of Robb — up to 50 percent — when they are reminded that the Great Society introduced the era of big government that Reagan is now trying to dismantle, with strong backing in Virginia. The Coleman campaign saturated central and southside Virginia with radio ads for three days last week contrasting Johnson's and Reagan's concepts of the proper role of the federal government. Robb was portrayed as political leader only by right of marriage.

Robb's answer — "I didn't marry Lyndon Johnson, I married his daughter."

It's Time For Thinking By Media

WASHINGTON — Our town is a media town. The place swarms with an estimated 10,000 reporters, editors, correspondents, broadcasters and public relations people; and wherever two or three have been gathered together this past week, the talk has been of The Ear and Jimmy Carter.

It has been sober talk, for the incident has raised some troublesome questions about the role of a newspaper and the responsibility of its writers and editors. We have some serious thinking to do.

You should know, first, that "The Ear" is a gossip column written by Diana McLellan. The column originated in the Washington Star, but when the Star folded in August the feature moved over to the Washington Post. During its tenure at the Star, The Ear was probably the best-read feature in the paper. That point is important, because a part of our business is to entertain our customers, and our customers loved The Ear.

Ms. McLellan's gossip is often wrong, but Diana's followers know this. They rarely take her seriously anyhow. They read The Ear as they read the astrology column, for the fun of it. She writes with a kind of feather-brained insouciance, but she works hard at her trivial trade and she has excellent sources.

On October 5 she led her column with an item saying that "the tired old tale about Nancy dying for the Carters to blow out of the White House as swiftly as possible is doing a rerun." She recalled the uproar in January when Mrs. Reagan "supposedly moaned that she wished Rosalynn and Jimmy would skip out before the inauguration so she could start into decor chores."

"Now word's around among Rosalynn's close pals about exactly why the Carters were all sure Nancy wanted them out. They're saying that Blair House, where Nancy was lodging and chatting up First Decorator Ted Graber, was bugged. And at least one tattler in the Carter tribe has described listening to the Tape..."

Former President Carter read the item and drew the understandable inference that the rumor imputed the bugging to him. He summoned lawyers and threatened to sue for libel. On October 14 the Post carried an editorial saying, in effect, that the rumor was untrue, but it was true there was a rumor. The story was in fact circulating, but the story was "utterly impossible to believe."

Very well. Some of my colleagues contend that no reputable, responsible newspaper has any business running a gossip column at all. I don't buy that. Our first function, of course, is to print the news, but we have other functions also. We carry editorials, letters, opinions, comic strips, and columns on bridge, astrology, stamp collecting and advice to the lovelorn because these features entertain and amuse. This is where Diana comes in.

But is it defensible to amuse at the expense of a public figure's reputation? Plainly it is not. Poking fun is one thing, but the bugging bit was something else. Yet let us provisionally accept as fact that the bugging rumor was abroad. Was this news? I think it was. Even the most unfounded rumors can be news. Such rumors crop up constantly in our town. A rumor swept the Hill the other day that Sen. Charles Percy had been killed in an airplane accident; it wasn't the senator, it was one of his aides. A persistent and malicious rumor has it that a leading GOP congressman is homosexual; there isn't a word of truth in it, but the rumor itself is fact.

What should an editor do when he confronts a newsworthy statement or a rumor that he believes to be wrong? The late Sen. Joe McCarthy made statements that were untrue, but it was true that he made them. The answer, it seems to me, is to check it out and then to print the false and the true simultaneously — to keep the record straight as the record is being made. Here the Post slipped up. Its editorial repudiation came about nine days too late.

Public Forum

To the editor:

Five thousand people die each day from hunger and malnutrition. This statistic is a recent United Nations estimate. These deaths, for the most part, go on silently without much attention.

The Greenville Hunger Coalition worked hard to observe World Food Day Oct. 16. This global event was sponsored by the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations. The Hunger Coalition has been serving the people of Greenville for 11 years. We have used educational projects to successfully raise the consciousness of local people. Political efforts have also stirred public awareness to World Hunger.

The various local activities included putting on a street theater showing educational films in local elementary school and encouraging 80 people to write letters to their legislators about the Hunger and Global Security Bill now in Congress. There was a good response to our efforts.

On a planet as small as ours, in a time of such advanced technology, global security has as much importance as national security. We can no longer deny people their basic human right — food.

A Dream Falls Away

NEW YORK (AP) — In conceding that recession may now be upon us, the president has descended from the stratosphere of political dreams to a mundane world of people having a very tough time making ends meet.

Millions of Americans have been aware for months that the economy was bogging down, and they needed no statistics to document their feelings. Home builders, car dealers, job seekers, retailers knew the reality.

President Reagan knew it, too, but because he had a program to sell he was forced to dwell on the positive, long-range aspects of his goals. He had to sell the dream; to dwell on pain was counterproductive.

The pain therefore was hardly discussed, though the president and his economic advisers knew that before the dream could come there would be a period of unemployment, bankruptcies and business strife.

Now that these negative economic facts of life are with us, some of the president's supporters are disillusioned. The mood has changed. The unmentionable word has been spoken. A new economic reality is upon us.

The evidence that forced the president's admission of bad times in the economy, an admission so belatedly made that it is considered a political blunder by some of his supporters, is indeed widespread.

Consider: industrial production is off, business inventories are up, new orders for manufactured goods are down, capacity utilization is at the lowest level in a year, the merchandise (export) trade deficit is up, housing is a disaster area and the auto sector is in a depression.

The National Association of Home Builders says the failure rate of firms in construction is up 53 percent over last year, as new-home construction has dropped to less than 1 million units a year. The National Automobile Dealers Association claims 2,500 dealers — 10 percent of the total — have closed their doors in the past two years. Dun & Bradstreet reports an average of 326 commercial and industrial bankruptcies each week, a 42 percent rise from last year.

Small businesses, which seldom generate as much news as their big brothers, the blue chip corporations, have been especially devastated and, they tell you, overlooked also. High interest rates, they claim, are especially hard for them, one reason being they are less able to pass on their added expenses in the form of price increases.

The evidence of decline has been out there for many months, but the acceptance of it hasn't been. In the quest for long-term economic accomplishments, the pain of the moment had been almost ignored, as if it didn't matter.

Would it have been easier on everyone if the White House had better prepared the public for the pain that comes before the prize?

Johnson said, referring to the theories developed in the 1930s by British economist John Maynard Keynes. "But we came at it from a totally different motivation. We didn't do it for the recession but to fight inflation."

The motivation of the supply-siders' tax cut is to stimulate savings and investments that can be used to build plants and new businesses — to increase the supply of goods and services. By contrast, the idea behind traditional Keynesian tax cuts is to put more money into the pockets of consumers — to increase the demand for goods and services.

The motivation behind Reagan's plan to increase defense spending by $22 billion in 1982 is to strengthen the nation's military forces, while public works programs sought in the past by Democrats have been aimed at helping economically depressed areas.

But the short-term effects of these policies are indistinguishable. Reagan's tax cut, which reduced personal income tax rates 5 percent in October and will bring another 10 percent cut next July, will put money into consumers' pockets. His defense buildup will mean more jobs, although not for the sectors most in need, and he may wind up with a budget deficit of more than $60 billion to pay for these policies, although he has decried the Democrats for chronic red-ink budgets.

"It is ironic that they have an anti-recession program in place for a recession they didn't predict and which is based on a Keynesian model but came out of supply-side rhetoric," said Walter Heller, the chief economic adviser in the Kennedy administration.

Heller, a Keynesian economist who was the principal architect of a tax cut that Reagan emulated in part, praised the initial installments of Reagan's tax plan as the perfect tonic for perking the economy out of a recession.

Reagan's defense spending push, however, is an unintentional job-creation program and a poor substitute for public employment programs, which have been eliminated at the president's urging, Heller contends.

Heller says defense spending is a very expensive way to create employment; that it directly benefits the healthiest industries, such as high-technology electronics, while ignoring distressed industries, such as homebuilding, and that it increases demand for jobs already in severe shortage — machinists, engineers and other highly skilled workers.

Administration economists, however, insist the money spent on defense eventually will ripple through the rest of the economy to produce an overall beneficial effect.

The administration and Heller also part ways when it comes to predicting what effect Reagan's policies will have after the recession has passed.

The administration envisions a period of fast growth, high employment, low inflation, low interest rates and an end to budget deficits.

Heller foresees a return to high inflation, rising interest rates and more budget deficits — the same economic problems that contributed to the downfall of Reagan's Democratic predecessor.

Action

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan knows how to cut his losses.

Unlike some of his predecessors, he is not one to let a situation fester, nor does he tarry in sending an aide on his way when he might cause embarrassment to the White House.

Sentimentality does not stand in the way of swift action.

"This is a fine soldier," Reagan said of Maj. Gen. Robert L. Schweitzer, shortly after Schweitzer was removed from the National Security Council staff and sent back to the Pentagon. "He will be of great benefit to the country wherever he serves."

The top military planning adviser on the NSC got his marching orders after he told several hundred Army officers in what he thought was an off-the-record speech that the "Soviets are on the move" and there is "a drift toward war."

The next morning, national security affairs adviser Richard Allen had him shifted back to the Pentagon on grounds that Schweitzer had violated the rules by not clearing his speech with Allen in advance.

It was the second time that a member of Allen's staff has raised the possibility of war with the Russians. Richard Pipes did the same thing in an interview with a reporter. But Pipes, who has not been heard from since, managed to remain on the NSC.

More typical is the case of CIA Deputy Director Max Hugel, who was fired within hours from his position dealing with top secret matters after The Washington Post printed allegations of his financial transactions.

There is no agonizing on Reagan's part in such matters and often he is the last to be informed that there is a problem.

His aides have a way of quickly disposing of potential bombshells. And they all know how to beat a strategic retreat such as when the potential nomination of Ernest LeFevre to be head of the State Department's human rights division was pulled back when it faced certain defeat in the Senate.

Other presidents have clung to loyal friends and relatives despite the handwriting on the wall. President Jimmy Carter remained loyal to budget director Bert Lance, top aide Hamilton Jordan and his brother Billy Carter almost to the bitter end.

In each case, he paid a heavy price, not only in barrage of scathing editorial criticism, but in personal anguish and pain. Angry as he might have been at times, he could not bring himself to renounce alleged activities of friends or relatives.

He could not and would not turn his back on them even though he realized that these situations were harming his administration.

Long before he was forced to resign himself in the Watergate scandal, President Richard Nixon had to bring himself to ask for the resignations of H.R. Haldeman, his right arm in the White House, and John D. Ehrlichman.

The dismissals took place in an excruciating meeting at Camp David, and long after damaging news stories on the Watergate break-in were being published.

President Dwight D. Eisenhower also had a cross to bear when he at first resisted firing Sherman Adams, his chief of staff, following revelations that Adams accepted gifts from a Boston businessman.

But in the case of the Reagan White House, aides seem to try to make sure that it will only be a one-day story.

Roxboro Sees A Night Of History

The crowd began forming outside the Person County Courthouse at Roxboro that August night in 1941 a few hours after Sheriff M.T. Clayton arrested Cy Winstead, a 22-year-old black man, on a charge of raping the foster sister of a white farmer for whom Winstead worked.

Clayton, who had heard older citizens tell of the time in 1919 when a mob of whites stormed the jail, removed a black man and killed him, quickly called for help. Gov. J. Melville Broughton ordered a force of Highway Patrolmen to Roxboro. They waited in the courthouse, where Winstead was jailed, along with local officers and a contingent of Durham police.

As the hours passed, the mob grew larger, angrier and more dangerous. Some hurled bottles through windows of the courthouse. Some fired their pistols whenever they spotted the figures of officers through the windows.

The lawmen lobbed canisters of tear gas into the crowd on the courthouse lawn. This forced the whites to draw back but an errant breeze blew some of the choking fumes into the building, leaving the officers teary-eyed and gasping for breath.

At one point, Sheriff Clayton and Officer Gilbert Oakley ventured outside, but they scrambled back into the courthouse when they were greeted by a hail of bullets. At the height of the disorder, a group of 35 to 40 blacks at a nearby Civilian Conservation Corps camp armed themselves with sticks and marched toward the courthouse. The marchers fled in confusion when pistol fire rang out from the roofs of buildings.

The crowd, which had numbered upwards of 400, dwindled to less than 100 around 4 a.m. Some members of the mob, frustrated in their aim to storm the building, vented their spleen on the troopers' cars.

Around 5 a.m., seven hours after the mob formed, officers bundled Winstead into a patrol car and sped him to Central Prison in Raleigh. The rope that someone had tossed over the limb of a tree on the courthouse lawn was denied its victim.

A few days later, Gov. Broughton called on Roxboro authorities to apprehend the leaders of the mob and bring them to justice. His words were echoed in mid-October when Judge Henry A. Grady, a white-haired jurist who had once headed the Ku Klux Klan in North Carolina before denouncing it, empaneled a grand jury.

Grady declared the Roxboro mob members "misguided hoodlums and inconsequential nobodies."

Three days later, the grand jury which had indicted Winstead on a rape charge also indicted 10 Roxboro white men on a misdemeanor charge of attempting to assemble for the purpose of lynching a black man. Grady praised the grand jury action as "heartening to the law-abiding people of the state."

At a term of Person Superior Court early in 1942, Winstead — who had denied he raped the girl — changed his plea to one of guilty of attempted rape. He was sentenced to 2½ to 5 years in prison.

Three months later, five of the 10 white men were convicted and sentenced to prison terms. They had served about three months when Broughton paroled them on recommendation of Solicitor William Murdock, members of the grand jury and the trial jury and over 200 Person County citizens, including Lt. Gov. Reginald L. Harris of Roxboro. Broughton noted that the five were among several hundred persons outside the jail and that the state never contended they were ringleaders — just the "only ones the state was able to present evidence against sufficient to convict."

The episode at Roxboro and its aftermath made history of a sort. It was believed to have been the first time in the history of race relations in the South that white men had been convicted and sent to prison for attempting to lynch a black man accused of raping a white woman.

Chipmakers Face Continued Slump

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The sluggish market for the tiny "chips" at the heart of today's computers is putting the squeeze on semiconductor companies, from the bottom line to the assembly line.

Accustomed to growing by as much as 10 percent from quarter to quarter, the industry has been essentially flat for more than a year, and analysts see more lackluster results ahead.

For the year, Dataquest Inc., a Cupertino, Calif., market research firm, predicts sales will fall 3 percent from 1980's industrywide $10 billion. And Dataquest vice president Daniel L. Klesken predicts no real strength will return until the fourth quarter of 1982, although other analysts expect sales to begin picking up sooner.

The industry, which is centered in a nearby area dubbed the "Silicon Valley," produces tiny, gridlike circuits traced on tiny chips of silicon. The chips have been responsible for the big strides in miniaturization of computers in recent years.

The worldwide economic slowdown and high interest rates are the main factors in the semiconductor slump. In addition, profits have been hurt by the falling dollar-value of foreign currencies received for sales in Europe, where the industry does 35 percent of its business, according to the Semiconductor Industry Association.

"Many companies don't want to borrow money to buy equipment," says Tom Hinkelman, the association's executive director.

Customers that once stockpiled a three- to six-month backlog now are living off inventory. And shipments of the minute circuits, which are traced or implanted on silicon wafers, have fallen as a result.

The industry's own intense competitiveness and overcapacity — the ability to make more parts than the market can handle — are also at fault for what Intel Corp. executive James Jarrett calls "a price recession."

Vying to keep their share of a slow market, semiconductor companies have slashed their prices. "Companies are bidding strongly for business and barely covering their direct costs," Klesken says.

"We're used to a 30 percent per year decline in prices for components," says Jarrett, the Santa Clara company's manager of corporate communications. "Now some are down more. ... We've felt it heavily in EPROMs (an erasable computer memory device). Because of overcapacity and competition, the price of a 16K EPROM has gone from $25 to $5 or $6, depending on quantity, in the past year."

At Monolithic Memories Inc. in Sunnyvale, the market for another memory device, PROMs, has been dropping since January, says Ray Gouldsberry, director of marketing communications. "The demand is still there, but the prices are atrocious ... because the competition's been something fierce," he says.

Not all components have fallen prey to the price wars, and at some companies an increase in the number of units sold has helped offset price erosion.

Industrywide, however, flat sales have meant lower revenues.

"There used to be a 25 percent price decline per year on average, offset by 50 percent to 75 percent increases in unit volume," Klesken says. "Now we have the price declines without the corresponding increase in volume."

New products have been the bulwark against the usual price erosion, but with demand sluggish, semiconductor companies have turned to cost-cutting strategies for riding out the slump.

"Silicon Valley companies will ride it out as long as they have to," says Klesken. "Perhaps a few of the smaller companies in the $5 million to $25 million range may go bankrupt or seek mergers. There may be some business failures. I expect Intel, National and others to weather the storm with varying degrees of success."

"The question is: How effectively can they weather the storm and come out in the best shape?"

In the semiconductor slump of the mid 1970s, analysts say, manufacturers cut back both people and production. When the market revived, they were not ready to meet demand and the Japanese moved in.

Now U.S. manufacturers are giving employees unpaid holidays but not furloughing them, slowing production but not curtailing it, trimming capital investment but not cutting it off, expanding facilities but not in the high-cost Silicon Valley.

"We're trying to protect our skilled people," says Michael L. Ayers of National Semiconductor in Santa Clara. "All the things we've been designing are about to 'give birth.' We don't want to be without people to carry them out."

Facing South: Tales Of An Era Gone By

WOODSTOCK, Va. — "At daylight I lay in the laurel waiting for him to come. When he came, he walked right past me. First thing he checked was the mash. It was still raw."

"About then he saw me. I felt sorry for him. He started to cry. Then he said, 'How did you find us? Who turned us in? Tell me who done it!'"

"He was so mad he showed us eight other stills. He left the county after that. Went to Ohio. Never did come back."

The speaker: 80-year-old Fred Painter of Virginia's Shenandoah Valley, mulling over the prohibition days of the 1920s when he served as a sheriff's deputy.

"For every still destroyed, the federal government paid $50, but the state got part of that and the sheriff got a cut. The finder of the still got the balance. You would wind up with maybe $25. Four or five stills found and destroyed was a good month," Painter said.

"If someone had it in for a moonshiner and wanted to get him in trouble, he'd come to a law officer and draw a map to show where the still was. You'd go there just before daylight and lay low, waiting for them to come and make their fires and start up the still. Then you'd serve the warrant and destroy the still. One day we destroyed seven stills. That was the record, I guess."

"We went to pay a call on a man we knew was running a still. He came to the door and the sheriff said, 'Fred here has a warrant. We want to come in and have a look around.'"

The moonshiner said, 'Come in, come in. Glad to see you. Just stop in anytime. While you're here, I want you to hear my daughter play the piano. Virgie, sit down there and play for the sheriff and the deputy.'"

"Virgie played while we searched the place. Nothing turned up. There was no liquor to be found. When we left, Virgie was still playing that piano. We found out later the piano was right over the trap door where he kept his moonshine."

"Another time, I went and knocked on a door, and when the man's wife came to the door, I didn't know what to do with her. She was the biggest woman I ever did see. She had on a gray dress that went all the way to the floor. Mother Hubbards, they called them. She filled the door frame. We found out later she weighed 326 pounds."

Painter, asked if he was ever shot at, replied:

"Oh, yes, indeed. We had searched a house the night before. The husband went out the window. I went back just before dawn to get him. The wife came to the door with a rifle in her hand. She fired a bullet that went through the crown of my hat and I went behind a tree while she settled down. I got that gun away from her and took her in. When we had the hearing that afternoon, the trial justice fined her $2.50. The other deputies pestered me for a long while after that about my life only being worth $2.50."

When a trial came up, moonshiners came from miles around to listen to the testimony and find out the methods the defendant had used in making his whiskey.

Painter said that, for the most part, "Good feeling existed between the law officers and the moonshiners. Some of the finest people in the community were moonshiners."

He added, "Someone drawing a gun on you was the exception. Mutual respect existed on both sides. We both had a job to do. And we were doing it."

Waldheim Faces Third World Challenge In U.N. Election Tuesday

By O.C. DOELLING
Associated Press Writer
UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Kurt Waldheim, a cautious, 62-year-old Austrian diplomat, is favored to win an unprecedented third term as U.N. secretary-general. But he faces a tough Third World challenge.

The Security Council is scheduled to begin the two-stage elective process on Tuesday. Delegates, expecting a close contest, refuse to predict whether the council will be able to agree on their choice at a single meeting.

Waldheim's only declared opponent is Salim Ahmed Salim, Tanzania's ebullient, 39-year-old foreign minister.

But, according to Latin American diplomatic sources, Peru has informed the council that its veteran diplomat, Javier Perez de Cuellar, a former undersecretary-general for special political affairs, would be available as a compromise candidate if a deadlock develops.

Waldheim's current five-year term expires on Dec. 31. The last time out, in December 1976, he beat back a Latin American challenge by ex-President Luis Echeverria of Mexico.

To win re-election, Waldheim must receive the votes of at least nine members of the 15-nation council. Any of the five permanent council members — the United States, Britain, France, the Soviet Union and China — can veto a nomination.

A simple majority is needed in the 156-nation General Assembly, which can only vote on the candidate proposed by the Security Council.

Salim, who was a popular General Assembly president during its 1979 session, probably would be the favorite if that body, with its large Third World majority, were key in deciding who will be U.N. chief for the next five years.

The Tanzanian not only has the endorsement of the 51-nation Organization of African Unity but also of the 93-nation group of non-aligned countries.

Waldheim, on the other hand, is believed to have the backing of four of the five big powers in the Security Council. China, committed to supporting a viable Third World candidate, is expected to back Salim in the initial secret balloting but then — if past practice is any guide — switch to Waldheim should Salim's nomination be effectively blocked by the other permanent council members. Neither candidate is expected to receive the required votes on the first or possibly second ballot in the council.

Waldheim's supporters contend that opposition to his re-election is as soft as is Salim's support. This assessment is supported by some Third World diplomats upset by what they consider Algeria's steamrolling tactics in securing the non-aligned endorsement for Salim. That endorsement came in a resolution swiftly adopted without a vote at a non-aligned ministerial meeting here last month.

Sources close to Waldheim claim that a number of black African diplomats privately had informed the incumbent that they supported him irrespective of the OAU's blanket endorsement of Salim.

Reacting to such assertions, Salim said, "I think it would not be proper for me to dignify allegations which tend to question the integrity and the credibility of African leaders."

Since the United Nations was organized in 1945, three of its four secretaries-general have been Europeans rooted in Western parliamentary democracy: Trygve Lie of Norway, Dag Hammarskjold of Sweden and Waldheim, whose predecessor, U Thant, was Burmese.

Waldheim's strength is that he is a known official with 10 years of experience as the world body's chief administrative officer and moral authority.

Waldheim sometimes is faulted for risking too little. But he rarely is accused of exceeding his international authority. Even some of his staff members concede that, while he is a highly professional diplomat, he is not an inspiring figure.

While the energetic Salim has youth and enthusiasm on his side, his Third World bloc support could be worrisome to the West as well as the Soviet bloc. A factor that might heavily influence the Soviet vote is the close links between China and Tanzania, which practices an African brand of socialism.

A Salim advocate believes that, since the Russians like to portray themselves as champions of the Third World, they would not dare to veto Salim. "At worst," he said, the Russians would abstain in the expectation that the United States would cast the veto.

Although the balloting is secret, word leaked out on previous occasions how the big powers voted.

Of the non-permanent council members holding two-year seats, Panama, Niger, Tunisia and Uganda are members of the non-aligned movement and can be expected to vote for Salim. Mexico, not a member of the non-aligned group, has nevertheless endorsed the Tanzanian. With China, this should give Salim at least six votes on the first ballot.

If the Philippines joins

Spain, Ireland, East

Germany and Japan in backing Waldheim, the secretary-general could get nine votes on the first ballot, but

Guerrillas Kill Iranian Official

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Mujahedeen Khalf guerrillas kidnapped and burned to death a provincial government official loyal to Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, Tehran Radio said Saturday.

The radio also reported a land mine laid by "counter-revolutionaries" went off under a mini-bus in the northwestern Kurdish-populated town of Kamyaran, killing four occupants and wounding seven.

Parliament Speaker Hashemi Rafsanjani, who claimed Friday that 90 percent of the Mujahedeen Khalf had been destroyed, called for accelerating the process of eliminating dissidents, and said the "roaring waves of the revolution will swallow them up."

Tehran Radio said the Mujahedeen Khalf kidnapped and assassinated Javad Husseinikhah on Friday, and indirectly blamed supporters of Ayatollah Kazem Shariatmadari, a senior Shiite Moslem authority who lost a power struggle with Khomeini in 1979 during the early days of Iran's Islamic revolution.

The radio said Husseinikhah was the political and religious affairs director in Turkish-populated East Azerbaijan province, ethnic and spiritual homeland of Shariatmadari's followers.

The broadcast, monitored in Beirut, said Husseinikhah was abducted by Mujahedeen Khalf guerrillas just after he left Tehran on his way to Tabriz, provincial capital of East Azerbaijan near the Soviet border. His charred remains were discovered near the city of Mianeh, 220 miles northwest of the capital, the radio added.

Reagan Sees AWACS Deal 'As Still Good'

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG and BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writers
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, fighting to save his embattled arms package for Saudi Arabia, declared Saturday that senators who refuse to see the benefits in the sale for both the United States and Israel "are not doing their country a service."

Reagan also said he has no intention of withdrawing the AWACS sale proposal from Senate consideration, despite vote counts indicating the arms sale was headed for a congressional veto.

"I can say with all my heart we have guaranteed the security of the technology and the security of Israel," he told reporters at nearby Andrews Air Force Base after returning from the 22-nation summit meeting in Cancun, Mexico.

Asked how he thought Wednesday's Senate vote would go, Reagan replied: "I will repeat my cautious but optimistic statement, but say that is what I am back home to get busy with again." The president has scheduled individual meetings with 18 senators over the next three days.

"The greatest security for the United States and the greatest security for Israel rests with the sale of AWACS," Reagan declared. "Senators who refuse to see this I'm afraid are not doing their country a service."

He said those who vote against the AWACS are "not being realistic" about the Middle East, the threat of the Soviet Union there and the need for a U.S. presence to be felt in the region.

Veto of the $8.5 billion arms deal that includes five AWACS radar planes would be an embarrassing defeat for the Republican president who, until now, has shown a remarkable ability to get his way in tough confrontations with Congress.

But White House spokesman Larry Speakes told reporters aboard Air Force One on Saturday that "the picture is still good."

"We think it is brighter than it appears," Speakes said during Reagan's return flight. "We believe these meetings next week will put us very close (to winning) in the vote tally."

He was referring to the individual meetings Reagan plans with seven senators on Monday, eight on Tuesday and three on Wednesday, the day of the climactic vote.

Speakes said Monday's sessions would include Sens. Edward Zorinsky, D-Neb.; William Armstrong, R-Colo.; David Boren, D-Okla.; Bob Kasten, R-Wis.; Charles Grassley, R-Iowa; Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas; and Howard Cannon, D-Nev.

Senate Republican leader Howard H. Baker Jr. of Tennessee, who is leading the fight to avert a Senate veto, also maintains that the battle "is still eminently winnable."

But the optimistic views are disputed by Senate opponents who appear to have the numbers on their side.

The latest Associated Press survey of the Senate found 52 opposing the sale, 36 supporting it and nine uncommitted. One senator is regarded as leaning toward supporting the package while two are leaning against it.

Just before Reagan left for the economic summit meeting in Cancun, it was looking as though he would pull out another victory on Capitol Hill. But his momentum was halted when Senate Democratic leader Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia declared his opposition to the sale.

The House already has voted against the deal by a 3-to-1 margin, but the sale will go through unless the Senate also votes against it. No president has ever been denied the power to sell weapons abroad by Congress.

Former Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger, meanwhile, said Saturday that chances of Senate approval of the sale appeared "minuscule," adding that the congressional veto could have serious consequences for U.S. foreign policy.

Youth Drives To Hospital After Losing Arm And Leg

GREENVILLE, Ala. (UPI) — A 16-year-old boy who won a race with death by driving himself nine miles to a hospital after having a foot and a hand yanked off by a corn-picking machine was "doing fine" Saturday and expected to be moved from intensive care.

Mac Scott was listed in stable condition at L.V. Stabler Memorial Hospital.

"He's doing fine," said his 19-year-old sister, Cathi. "They're going to try and put him in a private room later on. He's got a few of his old girl friends who want to see him, but they're still limiting visitors to the immediate family."

Scott underwent three hours of emergency surgery after the accident Thursday and may have more surgery Monday.

His right hand and left foot were caught in the corn-picker when he tried to clear grass from the machine. Scott told his family that he kicked himself free with his right foot.

His mother, Mrs. Faye Scott, says her son's right arm was severed three or four inches below the elbow and his left leg was ripped off about one third of the way between the ankle and the knee.

The boy then crawled back onto the cornpicker, drove it nearly a mile to his home, got into a pickup truck and drove eight miles to the hospital.

"I was home, but he didn't know it," said Cathi. "So, he decided the only way he was going to get to the hospital was drive himself."

Scott's physicians have refused to discuss the case with reporters, but Cathi said everyone was amazed that the teen-ager had been able to get himself to the hospital.

"By the time he got back to tractor, he had walked on the leg some. They (doctors) think dirt particles stopped it from bleeding so bad," said Cathi.

"He lost a lot of blood. There was a lot of blood around the tractor, but very little in the truck," she said. "We went to clean up the truck and found very little blood inside."

No one is sure how Scott was able to stand the pain while driving to the hospital.

"It wasn't easy," the boy told his father.

"People say that when something like that happens, it doesn't hurt right then," Cathi said. "But, Mack says he was hurting so bad he didn't know what he was doing."

"He's in pain some now when he wakes up. He told Mama he's going to stand the pain because he knows he's got to," she said.

"He's handled it pretty well," Cathi added. "It wasn't like waking up and still being in some kind of nightmare. He pretty well knew what to expect (loss of his limbs) when he woke up. He feels depressed sometimes, but bounces back. He's been laughing and talking with us."

Atlanta Voters Face Costly Mayor's Race

By JAMES M. EVANS
ATLANTA (UPI) — Voters decide a million dollar race for mayor of this deep South city Tuesday, choosing between former U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young, a black, and white state Rep. Sidney Marcus.
Young, who gave up his seat in Congress to serve the Carter administration, and Marcus, a liberal Democrat who heads the Fulton County legislative delegation, led a seven-candidate field in the nonpartisan Oct. 6 election.
Young was the frontrunner with almost 41 percent of the vote, but his failure to gain a clear majority set the stage for the runoff with Marcus who polled 38 percent.
Each of the candidates reported contributions and loans of more than $600,000 to cover costs in the campaign to succeed Mayor Maynard Jackson, who was ineligible to run again after two straight four-year terms in office.

The initial election drew a surprising 60 percent of the city's 190,000 voters, and Tom Malone, Fulton County elections supervisor, said he expects a similar turnout for the runoff.
A televised debate between the two was scheduled Sunday night.
Inflation coupled with federal spending reductions and a perception of rampant crime were the issues most often voiced by the candidates, but Jackson warned that blacks — who make up 66 percent of the city's population and 56 percent of the voters — could not afford to lose the office he won for them eight years earlier.
At one point in the runoff campaign, Jackson told the politically active Hungry Club that blacks supporting Marcus were "shuffling and grinning ... Negroes" who said only whites were capable of governing.

Jackson later said his comments were mainly an angry reaction to criticism of his administration that surfaced during the campaign, but it prompted Young to remark that he and the mayor had "very little in common."
In response to charges he had introduced

"racism" in the campaign, Young charged that Marcus supporters had waged "a very subtle behind-the-scenes racist campaign for two years now."
A racial division was evident in the initial balloting, with Young receiving about 65 percent of the vote from mostly black precincts and Marcus getting upwards of 80 percent in mostly white areas.

Man Shoots Woman In Emergency Room

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — A 24-year-old woman injured in a shooting was killed Saturday when the gunman burst into a hospital emergency room and pumped several bullets into her as she lay on an examining table, police said.
An attending physician also was injured in the attack.
The victim's estranged husband was arrested a few hours after Sharon Lawrence Reed died. Albert Reed also was accused of wounding Leonard Davis and Dr. Stephen Hill.
Davis, who was injured in the shooting at Mrs. Reed's home, tore the needles out of his arm and fled when he heard gunfire in the emergency room, said a spokeswoman at Shands Teaching Hospital.

He suffered no further injuries and was hospitalized in fair and stable condition, Virginia Hunt said.
Hill was shot in the hand as he attended to Mrs. Reed's injuries. He was treated and released.
Reed, 24, was held without bond in the Alachua County Jail on charges of first-degree murder and assault with intent to murder, sheriff's deputies said.
Detective Julie Denson said Reed, apparently wanting to reconcile, became upset and allegedly shot his wife and Davis, 31, at Mrs. Reed's home. The two were taken to Shands.
As doctors and nurses evaluated their conditions, a man who claimed to be Mrs. Reed's brother arrived at the front desk and asked to see her, Ms. Hunt said. The victim was apparently in shock, but was conscious and able to talk, she said.

"The nurse left the man there at the desk and went back to ask Mrs. Reed if she was willing to see him," she said. "She said no, he wasn't her brother, it was her estranged husband and she did not want to see him."
The nurse spotted the man talking to another patient and told him he was not allowed there, "and he pulled open the curtain where Mrs. Reed was and started shooting," the hospital spokeswoman said.
The gunman fired at the fleeing Davis and missed, and then the man escaped through an unmarked back door, Ms. Hunt said.

"Our information now is that he knew the layout of the health center," the spokeswoman said, explaining that the door to the treatment area was locked. "He did not get buzzed in through the main patient entrance area."
Mrs. Reed was pronounced dead in surgery at 12:44 a.m. EDT.
Deputies, Florida Highway

Patrol troopers and police from Gainesville and the University of Florida searched several hours before Reed was arrested driving with a relative in a southwestern Gainesville industrial park, authorities said.
During the search, police blocked roads surrounding Shands and the hospital had to send a shuttle bus to pick up staff members who were reporting for the midnight shift.

Amtrak Hikes Fares, Cuts Back Services

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Amtrak increased most passenger fares by 6.5 percent, effective Sunday, and at the same time cut back some service and made other schedule changes.
One of the changes included speeding up Metroliner trains on the heavily traveled Northeast Corridor, between Washington and New York, which an Amtrak spokeswoman said should make Amtrak "very competitive with the airlines." Amtrak said it was increasing most regular ticket prices by 6.5 percent to comply with a congressional mandate directing it to recover a greater portion of its operating costs through ticket revenues. Fares were last raised in April, by 9 percent.

There were exceptions to the latest increase, with prices on some routes going up as much as 15 percent and others remaining the same.

The service reductions are the second this month. Amtrak dropped several trains Oct. 1, because its new budget is $171 million below previous levels.

Three of the New York-Washington Metroliner roundtrips were being cut, said the spokeswoman, leaving 10 runs. But three of the remaining Metroliners will be "express" — stopping only in Philadelphia and Baltimore — for a travel time of less than three hours. The usual travel time is about 3½ hours.

The rest of the Metroliners also will be speeded up by 10 to 20 minutes.

"Our 38th Year"

HOW TO TURN BEANS INTO BUCKS.

In the next few weeks, you're going to be trading in that bean crop of yours for some hard-earned cash. You'll want to put that money away of course, but you'll also want to put it to work. Your best bet? CONSIDER A SIX-MONTH MONEY MARKET CERTIFICATE FROM PLANTERS NATIONAL BANK.
With a Planters six-month Money Market Certificate, your money earns the highest interest possible over a limited period,* and it matures right when you need it most — at the start of your next planting season. So the soybeans you turned into bucks have made even more bucks, and you've got the extra cash you need to keep your farm growing strong throughout the year.

IN ADDITION, WHEN THE TIME COMES TO MAKE A LONGER INVESTMENT, PLANTERS NATIONAL BANK OFFERS A 2½-YEAR MONEY MARKET CERTIFICATE.
And for interest on your checking account, there's Planters Interest Checking. That's three worthwhile ways to make those hard-earned bucks work hard for you, no matter what kind of crop you grow.
Sure, you can find other banks with accounts like these, but you'll be hard-pressed to find a bank with the kind of investment know-how for farmers that Planters National Bank has. Why do you think they call it Planters? Stop by one of our convenient locations soon. Our experienced staff is ready to help put your money to work.

Co-Op Winery Reports Good Grape Harvest

By MARY ANNE RHYNE
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Connoisseurs of North Carolina wine will find a new, mellow, white variety — Magnolia — on their grocers' shelves by May, the outcome of what growers say was a good grape harvest this month.

Ann Fussell, who operates the Duplin Wine Cellars in Rose Hill with her husband David, says this season's grape harvest yielded more French hybrid grapes from which the new brand will be made.

As for the rest of the harvest, Mrs. Fussell says, "We think the grapes are the prettiest they've ever been.

But they didn't yield as much because of dry weather. They'll make much better wine."

Mrs. Fussell says the winery, which is a farmers' cooperative, put up two-thirds more grapes this year than last year. The harvest was two weeks early, she says, with the last of the grapes picked the first week of October.

She says the winery will produce about 100,000 gallons this year compared to 3,000 gallons during its first year in 1976. But most of the wine, she says, will not be on the shelves for another year — the length of time which it takes for the grape juice to ferment.

The Magnolia wine, Mrs. Fussell says, began as an experiment last year when the winery made 500 cases of wine to sell at the winery. The wine proved to be popular with customers.

"In our showroom here, we had completely given out of it within two months," Mrs. Fussell said.

The wine not only provides a unique taste among North Carolina wines, it also requires a different manufacturing technique. Mrs. Fussell said the grape is not fermented in the skins as are scuppernon and muscadine wines.

"The Magnolia is smoother because the harshness comes from the hulls," she said.

As soon as the juice and pulp are squeezed from the grapes, sugar is added to the liquid and the mixture is placed in large tanks to ferment. It takes several months less time for the Magnolia to ferment than it takes for muscadine, Mrs. Fussell added.

The process of fermenting the grape juice in the hulls is unique to the North Carolina wine industry. The double fermentation process begins with allowing the juice to ferment in the skins for several days, then crushing the grapes and funneling the juice into a secondary fermentation tank where it remains for six to eight weeks.

The process results in about seven different wine varieties ranging from the very sweet scuppernon to the dry, crisp Carolina Preeminence White, with the medium dry, rose Noble in between.

Mrs. Fussell said she hopes that money from the sale of the Magnolia will provide enough money to expand the winery's advertising. Already, she said the winery has expanded its market into Virginia.

Dear Abby

Mother of Addicted Son Searches for Some Fix

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: My 39-year-old bachelor son is hooked on cocaine. He sold a very successful business 10 months ago and hasn't worked since.

He lives with me and pays me $200 a month. I don't want his money, Abby. I just want him to shape up. I haven't been nagging him to get a job because he blows up if I mention it, but I just can't take any more of his Jekyll-Hyde personality.

I've thought of giving him an ultimatum: Either go to work somewhere or get out.

I'm so desperate, I've even thought of suicide. I'm 62, I still work, and I feel like a complete failure as a mother. His father and I separated when he was 3. I never remarried or dated. I was a very religious person, but I don't even have the strength to pray anymore. I'm afraid if I ask him to leave he may end up even worse than he is now. Help me.

DESPERATE MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Find the strength to pray. There is power in prayer.

Don't turn your son away. You must get him into a drug rehabilitation program. Your clergyman or Family Service Association can direct you.

Since the thought of suicide has occurred to you, call your local suicide prevention center and ask for help. Please, don't give up. Write again after you have acted on my advice and let me know how you are. I care.

DEAR ABBY: Is there any way I can find out if the woman my father married has ever been married before? (I will call her Leona, which is not her real name.)

Leona is a terrible person, and I wouldn't believe her anyway, so asking her is out of the question. I wouldn't ask my father either.

Also, there is a girl my age living with my father and his horrible wife. Is there any way of finding out if she is really Leona's "kid sister" like they say she is, or is she possibly a child Leona had out of wedlock? How can I find out the facts?

WOULD LIKE TO KNOW

DEAR WOULD LIKE: The "facts" are none of your business. However, if you are sufficiently curious to nose around, hire a private eye.

DEAR ABBY: I recently received an invitation to a bridal shower for the daughter of a friend, whom I haven't seen in a while. When I arrived at the party, I found a very pregnant bride-to-be (at least six months along) opening her bridal gifts in a maternity dress!

No one seemed to know anything about a wedding date, or if there is even to be a wedding.

I feel that I was ripped off. What is your opinion of this?

CAN'T BELIEVE IT

DEAR CAN'T: After writing this column for 25 years, I can believe anything. Life for some is one big, convoluted three-ring circus: the engagement ring, the wedding ring and the teething ring!

DEAR ABBY: Some time ago you had a letter in your column from a 52-year-old woman who had been married to a 60-year-old, well-to-do man for five years. She said the man knew he was impotent when he married her — a fact he did not tell her because he didn't want to lose her. She said he was a wonderful, generous man and she wanted for nothing except the physical side of marriage, but she had fallen in love with another man whom she'd marry in a minute, but she didn't want to hurt her husband.

Abby, if this woman ever leaves her husband, please put him in touch with me. I have searched for years for an impotent gentleman. I would greet him with open arms and love and cherish him forever. I am not an old maid. I'm a widow. My children are all on their own and are not in any way dependent on me. I'm free, white and 55. I'm also an R.N. and would dearly love to spend the rest of my life with a generous, well-to-do gentleman who can live without sex. So can I?

AVAILABLE IN ARIZONA

DEAR AVAILABLE: Wish I could help you. If there is an "I.A." (Impotents Anonymous), I haven't heard of it.

Europeans Stage Anti-Nuclear Rallies To Protest Arms Buildup

By The Associated Press
More than 350,000 anti-nuclear demonstrators rallied in Italy and Britain Saturday. The mass protests were the second and third in Western Europe in two weeks, and were clearly directed against the Reagan administration.
In Rome, more than 200,000 leftists, trade unionists and members of anti-war groups marched for peace and nuclear disarmament in the biggest demonstration in the Italian capital in more than a decade.
Organizers of the march criticized the buildup of arms by both the United States and the Soviet Union, but the slogans the marchers chanted were anti-American rather than anti-Soviet.
As the crowd marched by the American Embassy on the fashionable Via Veneto, protesters shook their fists and shouted "Yankee Go Home!" and "Reagan Is A Hangman!"
Italian police wearing bullet-proof vests and carrying submachine guns guarded the U.S. Embassy. Wooden barriers were placed around the embassy. The crowd marched near the Soviet Embassy, but not directly in front of it.

In London, meanwhile, an estimated 150,000 demonstrators streamed into Hyde Park for an anti-nuclear demonstration coinciding with a visit to the British capital by Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger. It was the biggest such protest in two decades.
Michael Foot, leader of the opposition Labor Party, which is pledged to scrap Britain's nuclear deterrent and ban American nuclear weapons from British soil, told the rally: "What we want President Reagan to do is to put (his administration's) whole support behind the possibility of real arms reductions. We believe there should be no cruise missiles and no Pershings established in Britain and Western Europe."

Foot said it was not an "anti-American" rally. "It is anti-nuclear arms and anti-nuclear arms race." However, Labor Party left-winger Tony Benn told the rally: "The Poles have had the courage to stand up to the Kremlin. The British people must now stand up to the Pentagon and close all their nuclear bases here. President Reagan cannot ignore us because Britain and Europe belong to us and not to him."

Some 250,000 West

Germans rallied against nuclear weapons in Bonn on Oct. 10. Within the last year, anti-nuclear sentiment has burgeoned in Western Europe, fueled by Reagan's decision to build the enhanced-radiation neutron weapon, and NATO insistence on deployment of 572 U.S. cruise and Pershing II nuclear missiles in Britain, West Germany, Italy,

Belgium and the Netherlands starting in 1983.

German Politician Says Reagan Falls Short On Europe

BONN, West Germany (AP) — President Reagan's statement about the possibility of a limited nuclear war shows that he is "not sufficiently well versed in European problems," a senior West German politician said Saturday.
Peter Glotz, executive secretary of the ruling Social Democratic Party, told a radio interviewer, that Reagan's remarks did not signal a shift in U.S. doctrine.
Glotz said the remarks "showed ... that the American president is not sufficiently well versed in European problems in contrast to his secretary of state," Alexander M. Haig Jr.
He said said the controversy over Reagan's remarks also showed that millions of Western Europeans wanted to reconsider military strategy and that many people no longer supported "the logic of the generals."

Afghan Rebels Say Captive Is Soviet

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — A Soviet official reportedly captured in Kabul by Afghan rebels was identified by them Saturday as a senior civilian adviser who headed a 50-member geological mission attached to Afghanistan's ministry of mines and industries.
E.M. Okhrimiyuk, a 67-year-old fossil fuel expert who lived in Kabul for five years was kidnapped Sept. 12 by a faction of the Hezbi Islami (Islamic Party), the Afghan insurgent group claimed in a statement issued from Peshawar in northwest Pakistan.
A Hezbi official said Saturday that Okhrimiyuk was being held at a guerrilla stronghold near the Pakistani border in the eastern Afghan province of Nangarhar. He gave no further details.
The Youms Khalis faction of Hezbi Islami has declared its readiness to exchange the Soviet adviser for 50 Afghan insurgents jailed by the Kabul regime. It also released letters reportedly written by Okhrimiyuk, calling on Soviet Premier Nikolai A. Tikhonov and the Soviet ambassador to Afghanistan to agree to a prisoner exchange with Hezbi.

"Nikolai Alexandrovich (Tikhonov), my destiny is in your hands," said one letter, handwritten in Russian. "I am exhausted, worn out. You will have to agree to evacuate me by air because I cannot walk. Please save me. I live only with this thought."
Hezbi has released a photograph it says is Okhrimiyuk. It shows a white-haired, bespectacled man with several weeks' growth of beard and looking haggard.
Hezbi's original statement reported that Okhrimiyuk was beaten unconscious during the kidnapping.
The letters reportedly written by the Soviet adviser in captivity said that his lower dentures were broken, making it difficult for him to eat, and that he suffered from severe headaches.
A Western diplomatic source said that rumors circulated in Kabul during mid-September that a ranking Soviet adviser had been killed in the Afghan capital. He speculated that they might have spread to explain Okhrimiyuk's sudden disappearance.

Pitt Teen-Ager Says First Lady 'Down-To-Home'

By Ida Wooten Tripp
Tricia Tripp, a Pitt County teen-ager and a senior at North Pitt High School, recently talked about the honor of being invited to attend a reception at the White House and meeting America's first lady.

Tricia is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Tripp of Route 5, Greenville.
"Security was tight," Tricia said. "When we entered the southeast gate of the White House, we were questioned closely and our identification and invitation cards were double-checked. We were allowed to take cameras in, which surprised me."

"My mother and I, along with representatives of the other states and their parents, went on up to the Rose Garden. I thought about the song, 'I Never Promised You a Rose Garden,' but here I was. It was lovely. They had set up a buffet table with hors d'oeuvres and tea and coffee. Four or five white-coated waiters were on hand to serve us."

"We were seated alphabetically by states. I guess the winner from farthest away was a Polynesian girl from the Somoan Islands in the South Pacific. She was in native costume."

Tricia said that when Mrs. Reagan, along with the chairman of the Inaugural Committee and the president of the National School Board Association came out, "they were flanked on all sides by Secret Service people."

After the two men made a few comments, Tricia said, "the chairman of the Inaugural Committee introduced Mrs. Reagan. She called us up, one at a time, to meet her and receive our certificate of award.

"Mrs. Reagan was very charming and elegant-looking in her purple knit suit and matching shoes. Her easy, down-to-earth manner gave us a warm, comfortable feeling."

"After the ceremony, Mrs. Reagan invited us into the White House for a special tour. We saw parts of the White House that are not open to regular tourists.

"The whole thing was a thrilling experience, one I'm not likely to forget."
Since returning home, Tricia has received a letter of congratulations from Mrs. Reagan's office. Included with the letter were two large color photographs of Tricia chatting with Mrs. Reagan.
Tricia was invited to the White House ceremony as the result of being state winner in an essay entitled "Inauguration: A New Beginning." The essay contest was conducted nationally, including American possessions.

In September, Tricia and her parents, along with winners from the other states, received engraved invitations to a reception at the White House honoring the winners.

(Editor's Note: Mrs. Ida Wooten Tripp of Pactolus, a frequent contributor to "Facing South," the syndicated column carried in this paper on Sundays, is an aunt of Tricia Tripp).

ECU Students Are Interns

ECU News Bureau
Seventeen students in the department of clothing and textiles of the East Carolina University School of Home Economics are involved in merchandising internships this semester.

The students are employed or are doing volunteer work with 14 local businesses as well as at Woolward and Lothrop in Washington, D.C., where three of the students are assigned.

Each intern attends weekly seminars during which the students discuss what they are learning on the job in relation to various merchandising topics.

Greenville businesses participating in the internship program are Brody's, The College Shop, The Traffic Light, Annie's Brides Beautiful, The Namedropper, Fashion Fabrics, D.A. Kelly's, Virginia Crabtree, Foxmoor, Gandalf's, Lautares, The Showroom, The Gazebo, The Junction and the Lerner Shop.

Names and hometowns of area merchandising interns include:

Martin County: Williamston — Susan Edmondson, assigned to Gandalf's, a novelties and gifts retailer.

Greek Artist To Teach Class

WASHINGTON — Dimitrios Pantelis Zografos, whose works of art are being exhibited at the Brown Library in Washington during October, will teach a three-day watercolor workshop for the Beaufort County Arts Council on Oct. 28-30.

The workshop is designed for beginners; however, more advanced students can also take part in the classes. Classes will be held from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on each of the three days, with a half-hour lunch break. Fee for the 16½ hour course is $82.50. The workshop is open to residents of Beaufort and surrounding counties.

Registrations are now being accepted and will continue to be accepted until the maximum number of registrants is reached. For additional information and registration, interested people are to call 946-2504. If sufficient interest is shown, evening classes will also be arranged at a later date.

Quarterbacks Lead Miami Past Pirates

Quarterback Jim Kelly passed for two touchdowns and his backup, Mark Richt ran for one and passed for another as the University of Miami rolled up a 31-6 victory over East Carolina in Ficken Stadium yesterday.
A disappointing crowd of 20,282 watched in the cold, windy weather as the Pirates let chance after chance get away while the Hurricanes were still within catching distance in what could have been one of the biggest upsets in Pirate history.
The Hurricanes, ranked 13th in the nation last week before losing to Mississippi State in a close 14-10 decision and dropping out of the Top Twenty, came into the game ballyhooed as the top team ever to have visited Ficken.
Kelly, who is moving closer with every game to the records of all-time Miami great George Mira, hit Speedy Neal on a one-yard pass in the first period after the Pirates stopped them three times inside the two yard line on rushing plays.
Kelly's other touchdown pass came in the fourth period, hitting Rocky Belk on a 54-yard bomb. Richt scored on a one-yard fourth down plunge in the second quarter, then passed to Lawrence Thompson for 20 yards in the final period.
Dan Miller, who hit all four of his PATs, also added a 45-yard field goal.
All of East Carolina's scoring came on field goals by Chuck Bushbeck, who booted three-pointers of 38 and 49 yards. The latter broke the school record for distance, the previous long being a 48-yarder by Junior Creech.
Both Miller and Bushbeck missed on shorter tries.
East Carolina, which had extreme difficulty in moving the ball, had chance after chance when trailing 17-6, but just couldn't seem to get any offense going. Four times in the contest the Pirates had excellent field position but came away empty-handed.
The Pirates controlled Miami's rushing game fairly well on defense, but the passing game proved the difference as Kelly and Richt ripped the Pirates for 14 of 21 for 252 yards. Kelly hit on eight of 13 for 147 yards, while Richt made good on six of eight for 105. Richt had one picked off.
"I do believe that Miami is a better football team than we are," ECU Coach Ed Emory said, "but our kids came out and really put forth a great effort. We just needed to move the ball and score some more."
"Miami is very, very good in adjusting its passing routes. They are truly a fine passing team, much better than a layman can watch and see. They are the best adjusting team we will probably play."
Emory said he felt that the pro backgrounds of head coach Howard Schnellenberger and assistant Earl Morrall make the Hurricanes more of a pro-oriented team. "They just finesse you like the pro teams."

Emory said that the Pirates made some adjustments at the half and made great defense in the third quarter. "It was a hard fought game. Our defense played good enough to win. We just did not have the offense to win the game," Emory said. "I'm very disappointed with our offense. I thought the line blocked well at times, but we have some problems at center and fullback. We got the fullback plays at times today, but couldn't do anything with it."
East Carolina got the opening break of the game when safety Fred Marion fumbled the initial punt of the game and Jeff Pegues recovered for ECU on the Miami 15. But the Pirates failed to pick up a first down and a 39-yard field goal attempt by Bushbeck was off the mark to the right.
Then, three plays into the next series, East Carolina made a decision that turned out to be the wrong one. On third and four, the Pirates held short of a first down. But a flag was thrown, and the Bucs elected to take holding call back to the Miami 12.
"It was only about fourth and a foot, and we could have been drawn off-side by a sneaky call. Anytime you can back them up deep it gives you a better chance," Emory said. "We were fighting for field position, and we shouldn't have allowed them to complete the pass."
Complete the pass was what they did, with Kelly hitting wide receiver Mike (Please Turn To Page B-4)

Dodgers Rally To Nip Yanks, 8-7

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Pinch-hitter Steve Yeager's sacrifice fly in the seventh inning snapped a 6-6 tie and the Los Angeles Dodgers scrambled for an 8-7 victory over the New York Yankees Saturday to deadlock the World Series at two games apiece.
The Dodgers scored three runs in the sixth and two more in the seventh to cap a comeback in Game 4 that changed the complexion of this 78th World Series. Few took the Dodgers' chances too seriously after they lost for the first two games in New York, but they are no strangers to adversity.
The Dodgers recovered from a 2-0 deficit to beat Houston in the National League West Division series, and they trailed Montreal 2-1 in games before winning the National League Championship Series. Both were best-of-five series.
Jay Johnstone's pinch homer, the 13th in World Series history, started the comeback in the sixth inning, and the Dodgers kept coming in the seventh. Dusty Baker started the inning with a bouncing single to shortstop. By the time the ball dropped from the air, Yankees shortstop Larry Milbourne had no chance to make the play. Rick Monday then doubled under the outstretched glove of Yankees centerfielder Bobby Brown and Baker held at third.

Yankees reliever George Frazier walked Pedro Guerrero intentionally and Tommy John, the Yankee starter in Game 2, was called in. Yeager, hitting for Mike Scioscia, then hit a line drive to right field that scored Baker, and after Dodgers reliever Steve Howe sacrificed the runners to second and third, Davey Lopes came to bat.
Maligned for his fielding earlier in the week, Lopes hit a high bouncer that was fielded by Rodriguez at third. The wait seemed interminable and when the ball finally floated to the ground, Monday had scored.
Jackson, who injured his left leg in the American League Championship Series against Oakland, was making his first start of the Series. In the eighth, Jackson, after two earlier singles, hit a solo homer, but his thunder came too late.
The Dodgers were not to be denied this victory. Game 5 is scheduled for Sunday afternoon, with the Dodgers' Game 1 starter and loser, Jerry Reuss, going against Ron Guidry, the Yankees' first-game starter.
The Dodgers began their comeback against Ron Davis in the sixth, when they trailed 6-3. Davis had relieved with one out in the fifth and a run already across. He struck out Baker and Monday to end the inning but then his troubles began.
After Guerrero had fled to center, Davis walked Scioscia, and Johnstone, pinch-hitting for reliever Tom Niedenfuer, drilled a 1-2 delivery over the right-center field fence to cut the Yankees lead to one. Lopes then hit a high pop to shallow right field, but Jackson lost the ball in the sun. It caromed off his chest and Lopes wound up at second base.
On Davis' 0-1 delivery to Bill Russell, Lopes stole third without so much as a passing glance from the Yankees

Rampants Outslug Fike For 30-23 Win

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer
WILSON — It was Saturday night at the fights — Greenville Rose and Wilson Fike style.
Back and forth the two Big East Conference teams battled. Punch was met by counter-punch until Rampant heavyweights Chris McLawhorn and Roderick Harrell combined with a gutsy second half defensive effort to stop the Golden Demons, 30-23.
The win left Rose, now 7-1 overall, tied for first in the conference with Rocky Mount. Both teams are 4-1 in league play. Fike is 4-4 overall and 3-2 in the league.
Rose scored on its first possession on a 22-yard run by Harrell but then saw the Golden Demons use a 40-yard field goal by Lee Gliarmis and a six-yard run by quarterback Tom Benson to take a 10-6 lead late in the first period.

Fike did not score again until the fourth period. Rose, meanwhile, was scoring three times in the second quarter and once in the third period. Fullback Roger Williams scored the first TD on a one-yard plunge and quarterback Barry Smith scored the other three.
"I expected both teams to score, but I didn't expect this many points to be put on the board," Greenville Rose coach Ronald Vincent said. "It was wide open in the first half, but we were able to put more pressure on the passer in the second half and that helped."
Benson, the 5-11, 155-pound Fike quarterback, completed nine of 15 passes for 122 yards in the first half but was just three for 11 for minus two yards in the second 24 minutes.
"We worked on some things at halftime," Vincent said. "We got our outside linebackers blitzing a little and got them to take away the look-in."
Even with Benson throwing well in the first half, however, the Rampants still managed to take a 24-16 lead at intermission.
The Rampants wasted little time in taking the initiative away from the Golden Demons on this, their Homecoming.
A 51-yard kickoff return by Donnell Lee gave Rose the ball on the Fike 35 and Harrell, who rushed for 81 yards on 22 carries, took a pitch around left end for eight on the Rampants first play from scrimmage.
Three plays later Harrell, the Rampants' leading rusher this season with 571 yards on 141 carries, swept around right end for 22 yards and the touchdown. Willie Levett's kick was no good, but Rose led, 6-0, with 9:37 left in the opening period.
Fike drove from its 37 to the Rose 23 thanks mainly to a 23-yard pass from Benson to Tom Felton before the march stalled and Lee Gliarmis came on to kick a 40-yard field goal.
Linebacker Freddie Cherry stopped a Fike thrust minutes later by recovering the first of two fumbles at the Rose 21. Rose was unable to move, however, and Roger Williams came on to punt.
Williams never got the punt off. A host of Golden Demons, led by tackle John Reid, blocked the punt. Fike recovered at the seven and two plays later Benson rambled up the middle from six yards out for the score. Gliarmis' kick made it 10-6 with 28 seconds left in the period.
Rose — for the third straight series — was unable to move and again punted. But Cherry again gave the ball back to Rose when he recovered a fumble by Izel Jenkins at the Fike 46.
Rose quarterback Barry Smith went to work immediately. Despite seeing McLawhorn covered, Smith lofted the ball downfield towards the Rampants' star receiver. The 6-0, 160-pound senior pull within 8 points. But then the turnovers began to tell.

Sammy Johnson fumbled a Gamecock punt and South Carolina recovered and took over on the Tar Heel 26. The Gamecocks came away with only a field goal.
But then backup quarterback Scott Stankavage threw an interception on the Tar Heel 22 and running back Kendrick Stafford took it in from the 5 four plays later with 10:09 left.
The Gamecocks, 5-3, rolled up 361 total yards against the Tar Heels.
The loss drops the Tar Heels to 6-1 and ends a 10-game winning streak.
Johnnie Wright led the South Carolina rushing attack with 115 yards.
The Gamecocks ignored North Carolina's national ranking in the first half, limiting the Tar Heels' usually potent offense to 147 yards, including only 50 rushing.
South Carolina passed for 114 yards as Beckham posted a perfect 11 for 11 passing, and the Gamecocks picked up 80 yards rushing.
South Carolina showed its disdain early, taking the opening kickoff and driving 80 yards for a first-quarter touchdown. Tailback Kent Hagood took the ball in from 7 yards at 11:48.

The Rampants forced the Golden Demons to punt — their first of the night — on their next possession and quickly headed in for another score. Smith hit McLawhorn for 15 yards and a 15-yard penalty put the ball at the Fike 24.
Smith then hit Lee for nine yards and Randy Warren for eight to put the ball at the Fike 7. Harrell then rambled for six yards before Smith went over from one yard out with 1:08 left. The kick failed, but Rose led, 24-16, going into intermission.
A light drizzle greeted the two teams when they came out for the second 24 minutes. Neither team scored on its initial series of the third period. An errant snap by Fike on a punt gave Rose the ball on the four and three plays later Smith went in from two yards out to give Rose a 30-16 lead with 2:23 left.
The kick for the point after failed. The Rampants did not make an extra point all night — missing three kicks and missing once on a run and a pass attempt for two points. (Please Turn To Page B-4)

Gamecocks Stun Heels, 31-13

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina players were dropping like flies Saturday. The third-ranked Tar Heels lost three players on offense and three players on defense.
And they lost the game, 31-13, to South Carolina.
North Carolina coach Dick Crum was not making any excuses, giving all the credit for the win to the Gamecocks.
But, "We had a lot of adversity," Crum said. "Things like injuries to people like Elkins, Anthony, Marr, Nicholson, Jackson, Parry. I'm glad we don't have to practice right now. I don't think we would have enough people."
Those six players account for a quarterback, offensive tackle, tailback, linebacker, defensive tackle and defensive back — all starters. On top of that, Crum mentioned, the Tar Heels were without the services of two other starters — linebacker Lee Shaffer and defensive back Greg Poole. And several weeks ago, the Tar Heels lost the nation's leading scorer, Kelvin Bryant, to a knee injury.
"South Carolina just has a very strong defense. They did a good job on us," Crum said.
Gamecock coach Jim Carlen was a quiet victor.
"I think we're getting a little better,"

he said simply. "Our kids played with a tremendous amount of character — it's something we teach."
Most of the credit for the Gamecocks' upset, however, goes to quarterback Gordon Beckham who put on a nearly flawless passing performance.
Beckham connected on an amazing 16 of 17 passes for 195 yards and one touchdown. And the Gamecock defense did its job, holding the Tar Heels potent rushing attack to 176 yards and forcing 5 turnovers — 3 interceptions and 2 fumbles.
North Carolina struggled, playing catchup all afternoon and losing starting quarterback Rod Elkins to a sprained ankle in the first half. The only offense the Tar Heels could manage was a scoring pass in the first half and a 70-yard touchdown run off a fake punt in the second.
South Carolina did not have such problems.
After jumping out to a 14-7 lead at the half, the Gamecocks started the second half with a 53-yard pass from Beckham to Horace Smith. That put the ball on the North Carolina 5 and Beckham hit DeWayne Chivers with a scoring pass from the 3 with 8:10 left in the third quarter.
The Tar Heels came back with the fake punt turned touchdown by Jeff Hayes to pull within 8 points. But then the turnovers began to tell.

Sammy Johnson fumbled a Gamecock punt and South Carolina recovered and took over on the Tar Heel 26. The Gamecocks came away with only a field goal.
But then backup quarterback Scott Stankavage threw an interception on the Tar Heel 22 and running back Kendrick Stafford took it in from the 5 four plays later with 10:09 left.

South Carolina came back early in the second quarter with another score following a fumble by Elkins. The Gamecocks drove for 45 yards behind Beckham's passing. Backup fullback Todd Berry ran it in from the 2.
Elkins suffered a sprained ankle on the fumble and Stankavage took over. As halftime neared, he engineered a 93-yard scoring drive, mostly through the air. He hit flanker Larry Griffin with a 19-yard pass for the score with 57 seconds left.

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — All-American tailback Herschel Walker and quarterback Buck Belue each scored on short touchdown runs and freshman Kevin Butler booted a pair of field goals as the seventh-ranked Georgia Bulldogs beat Kentucky 21-0 Saturday.

Walker, who had 129 yards on 33 carries, scored from 1-yard out and Butler kicked field goals of 37 and 40 yards to give Georgia a 13-0 lead at intermission in the Southeastern Conference game.

Belue scored on a 5-yard keeper in the third quarter to complete the scoring as Georgia raised its record to 6-1 and 4-0 in the SEC. Kentucky, which netted only 69 yards total offense in the first three quarters, fell to 1-6 and 0-3 in the league.

Georgia scored twice within 3:05 late in the opening period. First, the Bulldogs went 48 yards to the Kentucky 20 before stalling and settling for Butler's 37-yard field goal.

Kentucky quarterback Terry Henry then fumbled the next time Kentucky had the ball and it was recovered by Nate Taylor on the Wildcats' 26.

Walker then plunged over from one yard out, carrying on all but one of Georgia's six running plays.

Georgia linebacker Tim Bobo then set up Butler's 40-yard field goal only three seconds before halftime, when he returned a Henry interception 14 yards to the Georgia 47. Belue then connected on a 13-yard pass and scrambled for another 24 yards to set up the three-pointer.

Auburn.....17

AUBURN, Ala. (AP) — John Bond fired an 18-yard scoring strike to Danny Knight with one minute remaining Saturday to give ninth-ranked Mississippi State a 21-17 Southeastern Conference football victory over Auburn.

The Bulldogs took advantage of an Auburn mistake at mid-field with 2:28 remaining to set up their winning drive. The march also included a 32-yard pass from Bond to Knight on a fourth-and-ten situation at mid-field.

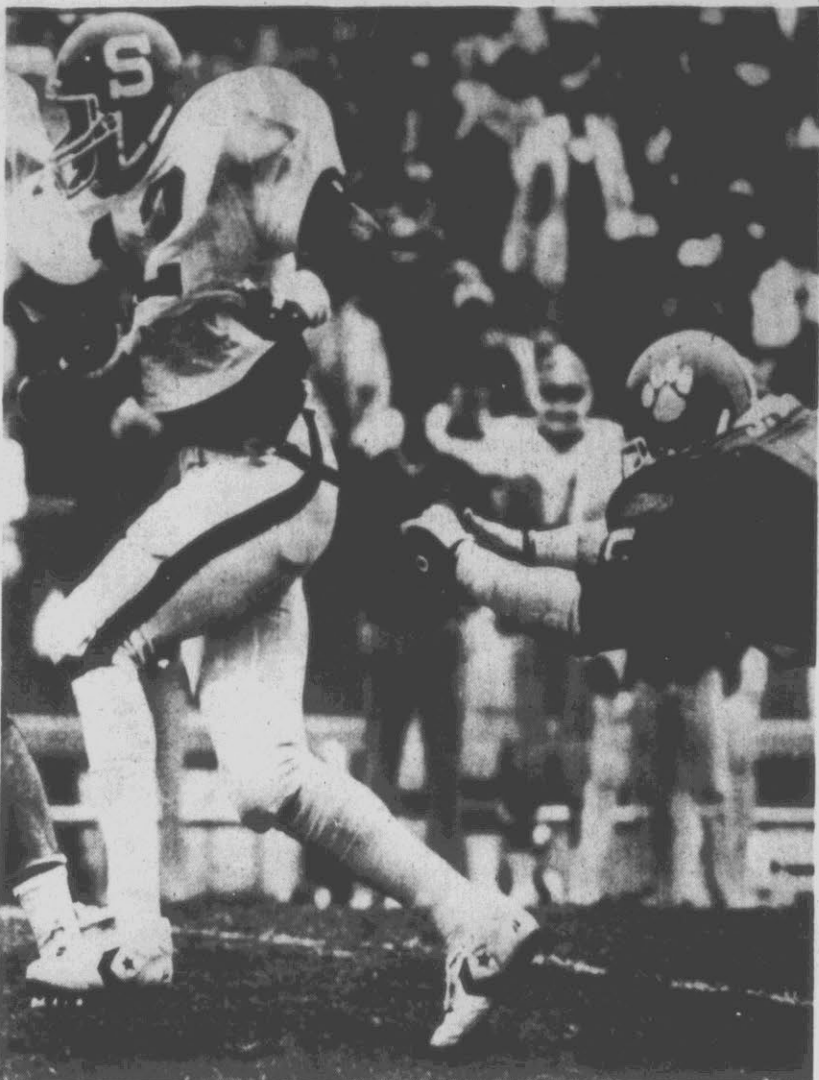

Auburn, holding a 17-14 lead, had a fourth-and-two at mid-field and attempted to lure State off sides. A State player did jump, but quickly returned before making contact. As he got back, the Auburn center snapped the ball and the Tigers were dropped for no gain on the fourth-down play. State then took possession.

Christopher Martin of Auburn returned a blocked kick 32 yards for a tying touchdown early in the third quarter and Al Del Greco drilled a 26-yard field goal with 3:21 left in the third quarter. That gave the Tigers a 17-14 lead.

Bond fired a 16-yard touchdown pass to Glen Young in the second quarter and State's other score came on a 3-yard run by Donald Ray King in the first quarter.

The Tigers' other score came on a 1-yard run by Ron O'Neal in the second quarter.

The victory lifted State's record to 6-1 for the season and 3-0 in the SEC. Auburn fell to 3-4 and 1-2.

Terps Hold Off Duke Rally For 24-21 Victory

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—Tim Quander scored on a 92-yard kickoff return and Charlie Wysocki's touchdown runs of 17 and 54 yards staked Maryland to a 21-7 lead and the Terps held on to defeat Duke 24-21 Saturday.

Duke, held in check after an explosive 21-14 first quarter, scored with 5:11 left when Ben Bennett tossed his second TD pass to Cedric Jones for 23 yards.

The Blue Devils regained possession and missed a chance to tie when Scott McKinney's 42-yard field goal attempt was wide with two seconds left.

Wysocki picked up 143 yards on 22 carries as he ran his career rushing total to 3,045, highest in Maryland history.

Duke, 1-2 in the Atlantic Coast Conference and 3-4 over-all, went 91 yards in three plays after receiving the opening kickoff, with a 28-yard Bennett to Jones pass making it 7-0.

But Quander returned the ensuing kickoff all the way and Maryland, 3-0 in the ACC and 3-3-1 over-all, added another TD when Wysocki capped a 58-yard drive.

After McKinney missed a 44-yard field goal attempt for Duke, Wysocki's 54-yard run extended Maryland's lead to 21-7.

Duke completed the 35-point period on a one-yard TD run by Mike Atkinson after Bennett completed two passes for 57 yards.

Jesse Atkinson was successful on one of three Maryland field goal attempts in the second period, a 39-yarder which proved to be the winning points.

McKinney had converted eight of 11 previous field goal attempts, the longest from 42 yards, before missing three against the Terps.

He was wide from 38 yards in the third quarter after Maryland declined a holding penalty against Duke on third down.

Maryland, which blew fourth quarter leads in earlier games which resulted in two losses and a tie, couldn't move the ball after starting quarterback Boomer Esiason left with an injured knee in the third quarter.

Bennett rattled Maryland's weak pass defense for 397 yards with 31 completions in 46 attempts. But, counting six quarterback sacks, the Blue Devils had a net of four yards rushing.

The Duke sophomore was 7-for-11 with short gainers on the last drive, but his last two attempts fell incomplete after the Blue Devils gained a first down on Maryland's 26 with 12 seconds left.

The last pass stopped the clock for Duke, which had no timeouts left and set the stage for McKinney.

Duke, with five defensive starters out with injuries, stiffened after the first period.

The Terps had only five first downs and a net of 101 yards gained after the first half.

Clemson Gains 17-7 Win Over Wolfpack

CLEMSON, S.C. (AP) — North Carolina State head football coach Monte Kiffin had a chance to see third-ranked North Carolina and fourth-rated Clemson in the flesh.

But after Clemson edged N.C. State, 17-7, Saturday, the Wolfpack coach was reluctant to compare his most recent opponents.

Kiffin said Clemson and North Carolina were so even in talent that you'd have to flip a coin to decide which is better.

North Carolina beat State 21-10 eight days ago but lost to South Carolina Saturday, 31-13.

"They're both great football teams. I'd say Clemson is very physical on defense and (North) Carolina is very quick," said Kiffin.

Clemson Coach Danny Ford said the Tigers weren't as sharp as they should have been.

"I thought we moved the ball pretty good in the first half but we stopped ourselves. This is the first time this year that we have had more turnovers than take-aways," Ford said.

Cliff Austin and Jeff McCall rushed for one touchdown apiece in Clemson's Atlantic Coast Conference victory over N.C. State.

The Tigers used a balanced rushing attack to improve their overall record to 7-0 and their ACC mark 3-0.

The victory was not assured until McCall burst up the middle for a 15-yard touchdown with 8:30 left in the game.

N.C. State jumped out to a 7-0 lead when tailback Lar-mount Lawson scooted off right tackle eight minutes into the game for a 13-yard touchdown.

The score was the first rushing touchdown allowed this year by the Clemson defense, which has given up two TDs in the air. Todd Auten kicked the extra point. Donald Igwebiuke kicked a 39-yard field goal late in the first quarter and Bob Paulling converted both extra point kicks for Clemson's other points.

The Wolfpack's record slipped to 4-3 overall and 2-3 in ACC play.

Clemson moved the ball fairly well during the entire game, but several drives were stopped by turnovers.

Quarterback Homer Jordan, who was intercepted only three times in the Tigers' first six games, had two passes picked off by the Wolfpack's Eric Williams in the second period.

N.C. State missed a scoring opportunity when Auten missed a 53-yard field goal attempt late in the first half.

Clemson, which usually has a strong third period offensively, sputtered against the Wolfpack defense.

On Clemson's first possession after halftime, it had to punt. The next two times the Tigers had the ball, fullback Kevin Mack lost a fumble and Jordan was intercepted by Ricky Etheridge.

The first time Clemson touched the ball, Austin fumbled and Etheridge recovered.

N.C. State turned over the ball once, on an interception of a Tol Avery pass by Hollis Hall.

Clemson wide receiver Perry Tuttle made two clutch catches in the waning moments of the second period to keep the Tigers' first touchdown drive alive. Clemson outgained the Wolfpack, 304-87, with Jordan grinding out 104 yards. Austin added 75.

State's only potent weapon was receiver Mike Quick, who caught five passes for 72 yards.

Texas Hands First Loss To Mustangs

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Playing before a Texas Stadium crowd of 60,777, the Longhorns upped their record to 5-1 and 2-1 in the SWC. SMU dropped to 6-1 and 3-1.

Allegre kicked a pair of 32-yard field goals after Texas recoveries of Eric Dickerson fumbles, and a 52-yarder after a 20-yard punt by the Mustangs' Craig James.

The Mustangs' potent ground game was held to less than 2 yards per carry by a bristling defense led by All-American tackle Kenneth Sims. SMU struck overhead for its only touchdown in the fourth quarter.

Sophomore quarterback Lance McIlhenny found wide receiver Jackie Wilson running free behind Texas defensive back Vance Bedford on a 70-yard touchdown pass play.

Wilson took the ball at the Longhorn 35 and outraced Bedford to the end zone to close the deficit to two points with 10:03 to play.

Sims, who had six tackles behind the line of scrimmage, and his teammates held the tailback tandem of Dickerson and James to only 94 yards rushing.

Dickerson, the leading scorer in the nation who was averaging 135 yards per game, gained only 38 yards on 18 carries. James could manage only 56 on 17.

Texas beat back a last-ditch Mustang rally when safety William Graham intercepted a McIlhenny pass at the Texas 22.

Wake Forest Slips Past Virginia, 24-21

CHARLOTTEVILLE, Va. (AP) — An early field goal by Phil Denfield and three touchdowns passes by sophomore quarterback Gary Schofield carried Wake Forest's Deacons to a 24-21 Atlantic Coast Conference football victory over Virginia Saturday.

Schofield scoring passes of 11 yards to Tim Ryan, 24 yards to Kenny Duckett and a 12-yard game winner to Bill Ruffner that gave Wake Forest a 24-13 edge with 11:59 to play.

The Cavaliers closed to within 24-21 midway the fourth period as quarterback Gordie Whitehead threw to Henry Johnson for a 49-yard touchdown and then hit Mark Sanford for a 2-point conversion. Sanford.

But Whitehead, who earlier had thrown touchdowns of 31 and 31 yards to Greg Taylor, twice was intercepted in the final two minutes as Virginia tried to pull out its first victory of the season.

Virginia now stands 0-7 and has lost 10 in a row over the past two seasons. Wake Forest ran its record to 3-5. Virginia is 0-4 and Wake Forest 1-3 in the ACC.

Schofield, who last week completed 43 of 62 passes for 504 yards and two touchdowns against Maryland, had another good day, hitting 30 of 46 for 373 yards against the Cavaliers. Ten of his passes went to Ryan for 155 yards.

Whitehead had his best day of the season, completing 15 of 31 for 275 yards. Taylor, with six receptions for 130 yards, and Johnson, with six for 121 yards, were his favorite targets.

The game was marred by penalties and turnovers.

Its offense stymied by four major penalties and a pass interception, Wake Forest had to capitalize on a pair of fumble recoveries to take a 10-0 lead in the first quarter. Altogether, Virginia was guilty of six turnovers and was penalized 81 yards, while the Deacons had four turnovers and 104 yards in penalties.

Wake Forest never trailed after jumping ahead in the first quarter, but Virginia, which saw two scoring opportunities go by the boards as Taylor dropped passes, was behind by only 3 points at halftime.

Taylor dropped a pass in the clear at the Wake Forest 20 late in the first quarter and dropped another in the end zone in the second quarter.

Penn State (1) 30

West Virginia 7

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP) — Second-string running back Jon Williams gained 140 yards on 27 carries and scored a touchdown Saturday as No. 1-ranked Penn State beat West Virginia 30-7 to remain unbeaten and untied in six games.

Williams, a sophomore from Somerville, N.J., became a starter because Curt Warner, the nation's third-leading collegiate rusher, was sidelined with a pulled leg muscle.

Penn State, in beating West Virginia for the 23rd straight time, took a 7-0 second quarter lead on a 5-yard run by Williams.

After West Virginia (5-2) tied it on a 54-yard pass play from quarterback Oliver Luck to flanker Rich Hollins, Penn State gained a 10-7 halftime lead on a 23-yard field goal by Brian Franco.

In the second half, Penn State's defense held the Mountaineers scoreless, while quarterback Todd Blackledge threw an 11-yard scoring pass to Kenny Jackson, capping a 72-yard drive, and Mike Meade plunged a yard at the end of a 66-yard offensive.

Meade, a junior fullback, also helped make up for the loss of Warner by gaining 97 yards on 18 carries.

Penn State's final touchdown came with 28 seconds left, on a 13-yard run by freshman tailback Tony Mumford.

State lost an opportunity for an early first period touchdown when Williams fumbled a pitchout and West Virginia defensive tackle Todd Campbell recovered at his 13.

It was the only scoring threat of a scoreless quarter.

State, however, took a 7-0 lead after just 4:22 of the second period, helped by a 29-yard West Virginia punt that carried to the Mountaineers' 44.

Three plays picked up a first down at the 31, and then Meade raced 26 to the 5. On the next play, Williams, aided by a crushing block from guard Mike Munchak, romped into the end zone. Franco kicked the point.

West Virginia came right back after the ensuing kickoff to drive 84 yards on 10 plays for its only score of the game.

Luck completed six of seven passes in the drive, the last eating up 54 yards to Hollins, who caught the ball at the Penn State 35 and outran the defense into the end zone.

Murat Terzan kicked the tying point with 5:47 left in the half.

Penn State forged ahead for good after returning the kickoff to its 21. A 23-yard pass from Blackledge to split end Gregg Garrity, and a 21-yard run by Meade, set up Franco's field goal, his eighth of the season.

That made it 10-7 with 1:47 remaining before intermission.

State gained 341 yards on the ground and 118 passing for a total offense of 459, while the defense held West Virginia to just 38 yards on the ground and gave up 226 yards in the air for a total of 264.

Blackledge completed nine of 15 for 118 yards and one touchdown, while Luck tried futilely to pass the 16-point favorites into submission with 24 of 39 for 226 yards.

Pittsburgh (2) 23

Syracuse 10

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Dan Marino threw three touchdown passes as second-ranked Pittsburgh overcame six turnovers and an early 10-0 deficit to defeat Syracuse 23-10 Saturday.

The 1-5-1 Orangemen surprised a Pitt homecoming crowd by taking a 10-0 lead with 2:35 left in the first quarter on a 7-yard touchdown run by Joe Morris. Earlier, Gary Anderson had booted a 36-yard Syracuse field goal, making him 9-for-9 in field goal tries this season.

The 5-foot-7 Morris finished the game with 128 yards rushing on 31 carries against a Pitt defense that had been allowing an average of just 18 net rushing yards a game.

Syracuse also intercepted four passes by Marino and recovered two Pitt fumbles.

But Pitt took the lead to stay with a 17-point second quarter surge that began with a 32-yard field goal by Snuffy Everett.

Marino followed with a 13-yard touchdown pass to tight end John Brown to give Pitt a 10-10 tie with 3:54 left before halftime.

With about a minute left in the second quarter, Pitt cornerback Dan Short intercepted a pass by Dave Warner at the Syracuse 22-yard line. Marino then threw a 2-yard touchdown

It was the 10th touchdown catch of the season for Dawkins. Marino added a 5-yard touchdown toss to Dwight Collins with 4:13 left in the game as Pitt raised its record to 6-0.

Southern Cal (5) . . . 14

Notre Dame 7

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Todd Spencer's 26-yard touchdown run with 4:52 left in the game Saturday lifted fifth-ranked Southern California to a 14-7 victory over Notre Dame.

Spencer's run came shortly after Marcus Allen, the nation's leading rusher, had ripped off a 21-yard run.

The victory was the sixth against one loss this season for the Trojans, while Notre Dame's record fell to 2-4 for the worst start for the Irish in 18 years.

After a scoreless first half, Southern Cal struck for a touchdown midway in the third quarter. John Mazur, bottled up on a pass attempt, broke loose for a 24-yard run to the Irish 41-yard line.

Spencer ripped off a 27-yard run to the Irish 14-yard line and Allen broke off left tackle on the next play for the game's first touchdown and a 7-0 lead.

The Irish took the ensuing kickoff and went 80 yards in eight plays for the tying touchdown, with Phil Carter going around left end for the score.

The game had been errorless to this point, but following the kickoff Allen fumbled on the second play from scrimmage and Joe Johnson recovered for Notre Dame on the USC 33.

Blair Kiel completed an 18-yard pass to Carter before Carter gained a first down on the USC 5-yard line. But the Irish were stopped and Harry Oliver's 24-yard field goal attempt on the second play of the fourth quarter was wide.

The game turned into a punting duel until the Trojans put together the winning touchdown.

Allen, who had averaged nearly 215 yards a game, gained 147 yards in 33 carries while Carter gained 161 yards in 31 attempts for the Irish.

Iowa (6) 10

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — Jim Gallery kicked four field goals, including the winning points with 2 minutes, 22 seconds remaining, to give Minnesota a 12-10 victory over No. 6 Iowa in Big Ten football Saturday.

The victory pushed Minnesota to 5-2 overall and 3-2 in the league. Iowa, hoping for a victory which would have ensured its first winning season in 20 years, dropped to 5-2 and 3-1.

Iowa's offense sputtered in the first half, making just two first downs to Minnesota's nine as Gallery kicked three of his field goals in the second quarter.

The Hawkeyes came to life after halftime, and Tom Nichol, who kicked three field goals last week as Iowa beat Michigan, gave the Hawkeyes their first points early in the third.

Tailback Ghil Blatcher scored the only touchdown of the game midway through the third quarter, giving Iowa a 10-9 lead.

But that was the best the Hawkeyes could do, and Gallery's final field goal, a 27-yarder, gave Minnesota the game.

The Gophers racked up 259 yards total offense, including 188 in the first half. Iowa was held to just 45 yards in the first two quarters and finished with 204.

Nebraska (15) 6

Missouri (19) 0

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Fullback Phil Bates, a 215-pound Nebraska senior, saved his two best runs for the closing minutes Saturday for the 15th-ranked Cornhuskers.

The first, a 39-yard sprint to the 23-yard line of Missouri, was followed by a field-goal try that went awry. On the second, following a trap block, Bates barreled 3 yards into the end zone with 23 seconds remaining to give Nebraska a 6-0 triumph over the 19th-ranked Tigers.

Bates said Missouri's defense had been lined up to stop his third-down smash.

"When we got close to the goal line they were trying to stop our trap play," he said. "They thought they had it stopped and we ran it again. I had the good fortune to be the ball-carrier."

The 6-foot-2 Bates credited center Dave Rimington, right guard Carl Strom and left guard Mike Mandelko with the block that made possible his winning touchdown.

Cornhusker Coach Tom Osborne said he was surprised by neither the low score nor the game's winding down to the closing seconds before it was decided.

"I kind of knew it was going to be this way because emotion was involved," he said. I think you've got to give credit to the defense."

Tigers Coach Warren Powers said his team's defeat was difficult to swallow.

"I thought both teams showed a lot of poise in a hard-hitting football game," said Powers. "I think our defense played super. They kept turning them back. It was a very tough way to lose."

Nebraska, repulsed at every previous turn in the regionally televised battle, struggled until mounting a 10-play drive covering 64 yards in the last three minutes.

It was the third straight victory for the Cornhuskers and second loss in a row for Missouri.

Both teams are 5-2. Nebraska is 3-0 in the Big Eight while Missouri fell to 1-2

East Carolina Falls To Hurricanes...

On The Move

Rodrigue for 21 yards and a first down. It was the key play in a 14-play, 80-yard scoring drive for the Hurricanes. Kelly later went to his back Mark Rush for 18 yards and a first down at the ECU 38, then gained 21 yards himself on a keeper around the left side of the line.

The Pirates stopped them on three plays inside the two after that, but Kelly then hit another back, Robert Neal, for the final yard and the score. Miller's kick with 2:49 left made it 7-0.

East Carolina came right back get on the scoreboard and close the gap to 7-3 on Bushbeck's record-setting kick. Taking over on the 20 after the kickoff, the Pirates were helped along on a 20-yard scramble by Carlton Nelson to the ECU 43. The Pirates steadily ground out yardage, but finally were stopped when Nelson stumbled early in the second quarter at his own 32, losing six on third and seven. Bushbeck then booted the 49-yarder with 12:40 left in the half.

East Carolina then — shades of Monte Kiffin — tried an on-side kick on the kickoff.

"We wanted to get the ball back with the wind at our backs," Emory said. "We've practiced it 40 times and never had anything go wrong."

This time, however, the Pirates, who gathered closely around the ball instead of spreading out as usual, were off-sides and Miami recovered anyway.

Emory felt that the Pirates probably should have had alternate kicker Kurt Larkins doing the booting on the play. "Chuck has been real sick (from his Hodgkin's Disease treatments) this week, and hadn't practiced. Nobody has probably ever seen a kickoff like this since the kicker is the one who is supposed to recover the ball, with the rest blocking for him. But the lack of practice time this week threw Chuck's timing off for it."

The Hurricanes failed to get anything from it, however, as a 39-yard field goal attempt by Miller was wide left after Miami advanced the ball to the 23.

Another odd play followed on the third play afterwards. Nelson went back and lofted a long pass to Ricky Nichols, who may or may not have caught the ball. He was hit just as the ball got to him, and it bounced down to the ground and up into the arms of Miami's David Jefferson at the Miami 18.

"I really don't know what they called it," Emory said. "It must have been a fumble, since they didn't allow them to return it. But I thought maybe the ball hit a player's shoe on the rebound, and was an interception. I don't think Ricky really had possession. I understood that one of the officials told Schnellenberger that he had blown the play and should have allowed a runback, but I don't know."

At any rate, it went into the books as a completion, a fumble and a recovery for Miami.

And it started the Hurricanes on the way to their second score. With Richt in guiding the team — the standard Miami procedure of using several units to wear down opponents — the Hurricanes drove downfield on another 14 play drive, this one of 82 yards. Richt hit flanker Larry Brodsky for 21 yards on a third and nine play to get things started, then went to Brodsky again for 18 more yards to the ECU 42. Another long pass, to Rodrigue netted 26 yards to the 15. Al Bentley picked up 13 yards to the one, but again it took four raps at the door from there before the Pirates finally allowed Richt to squeeze over for the score. Miller added the PAT with 1:30 left in the half for a 14-3 lead.

Miami came back to score quickly on a field goal after Al Zappalla recovered a Nelson fumble on the first play after the kickoff at the ECU 39. The Pirates held, however, and on fourth and 13, Miller booted a 45-yarder to up it to 17-3 with 59 seconds left.

Then, in the second half, the Pirates missed out on chance after chance after making an opening field goal. After holding the Hurricanes, the Bucs forced the first punt by Miami, and kicker Greg LaBelle got off a poor kick that bounced back upfield and ended up ten yards away from the line of scrimmage, giving the Pirates the ball at the Miami 32.

On first down, Roy Wiley got five yards, and Miami was penalized for face masking giving the Pirates a first down at the 14. But after reaching the eight, the Pirates were sacked, and Bushbeck kicked a 28-yard field goal to trim it to 17-6 with 11:34 left in the period.

After an exchange of punts, East Carolina got it back on its 44 and picked up a first down at the Miami 45, but the drive stalled at the 39, and ECU was forced to punt again.

Glenn Morris just missed on a safety when he sacked Kelly right at the goal line, and the Hurricanes were again forced to punt from the three two plays later. That gave the ball to the Pirates at the Miami 36.

But again, they were unable to move it, thanks to a fumble, and booted it away.

Then, in the final period, Miami took over on its own 36 and moved in just two plays to put it out of reach. Kelly hit tight end Glenn Dennison for 10 yards on first down, then threw the long bomb to 9.2 speedster Rocky Belk on a 54-yard touchdown pass. That upped it to 24-6 with 9:20 showing.

After holding the Pirates, Miami got great field position when Thompson returned a punt 13 yards to the EC 35 and a personal foul penalty moved it on to the 20.

From there, on the first play, Richt hit Thompson over the middle for the final score with 7:43 left.

Both teams had the ball in the other's territory once more in the game, but the threats came to naught, ECU advancing to the Miami 31, and Miami getting to the ECU 33.

The victory raised the Miami record to 4-2 on the year (losses to national ranked Texas and Mississippi State), and gave the Hurricanes their first road win. ECU fell back to 4-4 and lost its first home contest of the year.

East Carolina closes out its road season on Saturday at West Virginia, while Miami is host to top ranked Penn State in the Orange Bowl.

Rose Defeats Fike...

That, plus the blocked punt and the 89-yard kickoff return by Fike left Vincent concerned afterwards.

"We made more breakdowns in the kicking game tonight than we have all year," Vincent said. "That hurt us."

But what saved the Ramblants, in part at least, was their defensive play in the second half. Not only did they shut down Benson, they held Fike to 36 yards total offense.

Fike's only score of the second half came early in the fourth period. After taking the kickoff following Rose's sixth score of the night, the Golden Demons put together a nine-play, 69-yard drive to cut the Rose deficit to 30-23.

Jenkins, who had 71 yards on 10 carries last night, sliced off left tackle for 38 yards and Wade Williams added a 10-yard run through the middle to put the ball on the Rose 21.

Then, with third and two from the Rose 13, Jenkins ran four yards to the nine and a first down. Three plays later Benson scored from two yards out. Gliarmis added the point after and Fike trailed, 30-23, with 10:18 left in the game.

Fike managed to get to the Rose 41 on its next possession, but a 15-yard penalty and a 10-yard loss on a pass from Benson to Jenkins ended the threat and the Golden Demons never got closer.

Rose managed 264 yards total offense — 133 rushing and 131 passing. McLawhorn led Rose in receiving with five catches for 108 yards.

Fike had 185 yards total offense — 120 of that coming on the passing arm of Benson.

Tide Tops Rutgers

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) — Alan Gray and Walter Lewis threw touchdown passes as 11th-ranked Alabama defeated Rutgers 31-7 Saturday to put Bear Bryant within two victories of the college football coaching record.

The Crimson Tide scored on its first three possessions to run its record to 6-1-1 and put Rutgers at 5-3. It was Alabama's 54th consecutive victory on its home field, where it is 69-1 under Bryant.

Bryant's record now is 312-80-17, with three regular-season games remaining this year. The late Amos Alonzo Stagg had 314 victories.

Alabama drove 92 yards on its first possession, with Gray finding Bart Krout alone over the middle for a 27-yard scoring pass.

Rampants Again Win Sectional Crown

SMITHFIELD — Rose High School's boys' cross-country team won its second straight Eastern Sectional Friday, easily outdistancing second place New Bern as Kenny Smith captured the individual championship.

The Rose girls finished second in their half of the meet and joined the boys' team in qualifying for next Friday's State Meet to be held in Charlotte.

Rose's boys finished the meet with 48 points, well ahead of New Bern, second with 119 points.

Smith crossed the finish line in 15:06 over the three-mile course. Teammate Harry Williams was second in 15:07, while Fike's Tony Hills was third in 15:30. Chuck Kugler of White Oak finished fourth in 15:43.

Other Rose finishers included John Ormond, 11th in 16:23, John Byrd, 16th in 16:36, and Chip Little, 18th in 16:45. Non-counting finishers included Joe Norcotte, 28th in 17:04 and Jeremiah Brown, 35th in 17:11.

"We ran in a good group, which helps us in a big meet," Coach Ron Hockmuth said.

Rose's girls finished second in the meet to Westover of Fayetteville, which had 92 points, while Rose had 97. Beddingfield finished third with 110, while Fike was fourth with 117.

Pam Hill of New Bern won the individual title in 18:59, while Rose's Angie Michel was second in 19:44. Renee Felder of Westover finished third in 19:58, followed by Sandy Ess of Rocky Mount in 20:15, and Isabelle Sass of E.E. Smith in 20:41.

Other Rose finishers included Mary Holloway, eighth in 21:08, Carol Moore, 22nd in 22:13, Cissy Taft, 25th in 22:31, Hope Streeter, 40th in 24:19, and Kristine Ambert, 43rd in 24:38.

Panthers Just Miss Upset Win

PINETOPS — Southwest Edgecombe scored twice in just over a minute and pulled out a 14-8 victory over stubborn North Pitt Friday night in an Eastern Carolina Conference football game.

Southwest entered the final period of the game trailing, 8-0, before managing to take advantage of two late Panther mistakes to gain the victory and remain unbeaten in the league.

North Pitt had scored first, as Dennis Bradley romped 45 yards after the Panthers had gotten the ball on a punt in the second quarter. Bradley also ran over the two-point conversion.

It remained that way until early in the final period when the Cougars started a touchdown drive of their own. Taking over late in the third period after a North Pitt punt, Southwest extended its drive into the final quarter, with Wayne Mayo going over from the one to put the Cougars on the scoreboard. A two-point try, however, failed, and the North Pitt team still led, 8-6 with 8:32 left in the game.

But just after the kickoff, North Pitt fumbled it away, and Southwest recovered on the Panther 37. On the first play after the turnover, James Thorne broke away to race 37 yards for the go-ahead score and Mayo ran over the PAT for a 14-8 lead, now with just 7:22 remaining.

North Pitt tried to rally, driving back down to the Cougar eight before another fumble ended the Panther hopes.

Bradley led the Panther efforts with 21 carries for 116 yards. Mayo led Southwest with 109 yards on 29 carries.

North Pitt is now 2-7 overall and 0-6 in conference play. Southwest climbs to 6-2 overall.

Jackson Leads Chargers Over Lakewood, 34-8

LAKEWOOD — Gregory Jackson rushed for 134 yards and two touchdowns and Bernard Ricciarelli threw two touchdowns passes as Ayden-Grifton rolled past Lakewood, 34-8, Friday night in a nonconference high school football game.

The Chargers, now 6-2 overall, jumped out to a 14-0 lead at the end of the first period and increased their advantage to 21-0 at half before coasting home with the victory.

Lakewood's only score came against the Charger second string on a 94-yard pass from Craig Howard to Betronnie Williams with 2:03 left in the game. Howard ran for the two points as well.

Other than that pass, the Ayden-Grifton defense held 2-A Lakewood, now 4-4, in check. The Leopards managed just 30 yards rushing in 20 carries and had 181 yards total offense.

Ayden-Grifton wasted little time in taking the lead Friday night. Taking the opening kickoff, the Chargers drove 78 yards in six plays for their first touchdown.

Cleveland Coley ran for 11 yards and Jackson 20 in the drive, which ended with Ricciarelli hitting Chris Strickland on a fly pattern for 24 yards and the score. Ed Taft kicked the PAT to give A-G a 7-0 lead with 9:35 left in the opening quarter.

The Chargers were back for more minutes later. Taking the ball on the Lakewood 40 following a punt, Ayden-Grifton drove 40 yards for its second TD. Four plays into the drive Coley raced 19 yards to the one. Jackson plunged over from there and with Taft's kick A-G led, 14-0, with 1:31 left in the period.

It stayed that way until late in the second period when the Chargers put together a 14-play, 78-yard scoring drive. In the march Ricciarelli hit four passes, including a 22-yarder to Joey Kennedy. He then capped the drive by hitting Strickland from nine yards out. Taft's kick made it 21-0 with 46 seconds left in the half.

The Chargers fourth score of the night was set up by a 16-yard interception return by Strickland early in the third period. Jackson who has now rushed for 693 yards this season, raced 22 yards on the first play after the pickoff and then two plays later rammed the final 17 yards for the TD. The run for two failed.

Ayden-Grifton's final tally of the evening came early in the final period on a 12-play, 77-yard scoring drive — the third plus 70-yard drive of the night for the Chargers.

Coley got the touchdown on a one-yard run with 9:49 left in the game. Taft kicked the point after.

Coley, who rushed for 91 yards on 21 carries, now has 668 yards rushing this season and five touchdowns. Ricciarelli hit six of 10 passes for 100 yards and now has connected on 43 of 92 passes for 527 yards and six scores. He has had six passes intercepted.

Strickland, who was leading the ECC in receiving going into the game, caught four passes for two scores Friday night.

Aycock Rally Spoils Ram Bid

PIKEVILLE — Charles B. Aycock, down 20-8 early in the third period, rallied to pull out a 31-20 victory over Greene Central Friday night, preserving its unbeaten status.

"We really thought we had a chance at upsetting them," Coach Spence Grantham of Greene Central said. "But they just wore us down in the final half. They stick with their blocks and just wear you out."

Robert Sheppard staked Greene Central to an initial lead in the first period, scoring on a three-yard run to cap a 57-yard drive off the opening kickoff. Donald Warren booted the extra point for a 7-0 lead.

The Rams came back two plays after forcing a punt as Brian Forbes hit Chris Ginn on a 55-yard scoring bomb and Warren again kicked to up the Greene Central lead to 14-0.

But after missing a chance later in the half, the Rams saw the Falcons get on the scoreboard before the half ended. Kenny Grantham scored on a 30-yard scamper and G.L. Gurley ran over the two-pointer, cutting the lead to 14-8.

Early in the third period, the Rams forced Aycock to fumble and drove the ball 57 yards to up the lead to 20-8. Sheppard again did the honors, from six yards out.

But the Falcons, their backs to the wall, rallied and charged ahead in the third period.

First, Gurley scored on a four-yard run and Paul Thomas kicked the extra point to cut the Ram lead to 20-15. Then, (Please Turn To Page B-6)

Valenzuela Struggles In 5-4 LA Win

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Like a card shark working with a fast shuffle and a deck full of aces, Fernando Valenzuela dealt a little magic to breathe some World Series life into the Los Angeles Dodgers.

"It was one of the guttiest performances for a pitcher without his stuff that I have ever seen," Manager Tommy Lasorda said with a touch of admiration in his voice after Valenzuela had struggled to a 5-4 victory over the New York Yankees Friday night.

The victory left the Dodgers still trailing 2-1 in the best-of-seven Series. They sent right-hander Bob Welch against New York's Rick Reuschel in today's fourth game, hoping he had more going for him than Valenzuela did in Game Three.

"He was like a poker player bluffing his way through a bad hand," Lasorda said of the 20-year-old rookie who has become the Dodgers' meal ticket this season.

"I don't play poker," he said. "I play baseball."

The young left-hander gave a gutsy demonstration of his craft, surviving on a night when he surrendered nine hits, including two home runs, and seven bases on balls. He had important help from Ron Cey, who clubbed a three-run homer and made two key fielding plays at third base.

It was obvious early that this would not be a vintage Valenzuela game. He walked two Yankees in the first inning but squirmed out of trouble by getting Lou Piniella to bang into a double play.

In the bottom of the first, Cey supplied the Mexican southpaw with a quick three-run cushion.

Davey Lopes opened with a double and Bill Russell beat out a bunt for a single against Yankee starter Dave Righetti, also a rookie.

It looked like the 22-year-old Righetti might escape when he got both Dusty Baker and Steve Garvey with the runners still anchored. But Cey worked the count to 3-2 and then drove a fastball into the left field seats as a record Dodger Stadium crowd of 56,236 howled.

"We had a chance to get him, but he came back to get Dusty and Steve," said Cey. "We haven't been doing the right things in hit situations. It was just hopeful I could get something early for us."

Now Valenzuela had a three-run lead and there have been times when that would have been plenty for him. This, however, was not one of them.

In the second, Bob Watson reached him for a leadoff homer and before the inning was over, the Yankees had another run on a double by Rick Cerone, a long fly that advanced him to third, and Larry Milbourne's RBI-single to right.

An inning later, the Dodger lead had completely evaporated as Valenzuela was jolted for a single by Piniella and Cerone's home run, putting the Yankees in front, 4-3.

Valenzuela was being rocked and later he would be asked about two minor earthquakes that sent pre-game tremors through Los Angeles.

"I didn't feel any earthquakes this morning," he said. "I thought the earthquake was during the game, because they were hitting the ball so hard."

Righetti, however, wasn't finding his first World Series start very smooth, either.

"I knew in the bullpen that I wasn't at my very best," the young Yankee left-hander said. "I just didn't feel good."

After being belted around in the first inning, Righetti walked Valenzuela leading off the second, but escaped without any damage. When Garvey opened the third with a single and Cey walked, Manager Bob Lemon came out to get Righetti. He thought nervousness was part of the problem.

"They're human," Lemon said. "You're not a machine. I pitched a couple like that and I still remember being nervous. You can't be human and not be nervous."

George Frazier relieved and pitched out of the jam without the Dodgers scoring. In the fifth, with the score still 4-3, the same scenario was repeated. Garvey opened with a single, bouncing the ball over the head of third baseman Aurelio Rodriguez, who replaced injured Graig Nettles in the Yankee lineup. Again, Cey followed with a walk. This time, however, the Dodgers cashed in on the opportunity.

Pedro Guerrero faked a bunt, perhaps drawing Rodriguez in a fatal step or two. Then he bounced the ball over the third baseman's head into left field for a double. "If I catch the ball, it's a double play, maybe a triple play," Rodriguez said.

Instead, Garvey dashed home with the tying run. After Rick Monday was intentionally walked, loading the bases, Rudy May relieved for the Yankees. With Mike Scioscia at bat, Lasorda sent Reggie Smith into the on-deck circle. It looked like Valenzuela's night might be done.

"We had to get a run," the manager said. "If we didn't score the go-ahead run, I would have pinch-hit for him."

Scosia hit into a double play, scoring Cey. It wasn't exactly the way Lasorda had planned it, but the run had scored and the Dodgers were ahead. So, Valenzuela stayed.

He pitched through the next two innings without allowing a hit, although Watson drove Baker to the fence for his long drive in the seventh. Then in the eighth, the Yankees turned the heat on the young lefty again.

This time, Rodriguez and Milbourne opened with singles. Bobby Murcer was sent up to swing for May and the instructions from Lemon were to bunt for a base hit. Murcer squared on the first pitch and got the bunt into the air. Cey burst in from third base and made a diving stab, grabbing the ball at the last moment. Then he jumped to his feet and fired to first, where Milbourne was trapped for a double play.

"I got greedy and I got caught," said Lemon.

Murcer said he had not gripped the bat hard enough on the bunt. "I was trying to get the guys over, but I was trying to make it perfect," he said.

Willie Randolph followed with a slow roller to third and Cey grabbed the ball and tagged Rodriguez for the final out of the inning. It was to be the Yankees' last gasp.

In the ninth, Valenzuela retired the Yankees in order, pitching for the first time all night like the brilliant rookie who had captivated baseball for much of the 1981 season.

"When he smelled the win, he went after it," said Lasorda. And when he got it, the Dodgers hoped it might signal a turnaround in the Series for them. It fell to Welch, who has been living in the bullpen during the post season, to keep the recovery going.

"I always wanted to start but it (the rotation which did not include him) paid off for us in the playoffs," he said.

The Yankees also went to a fourth starter today, using right-hander Reuschel. Lemon promised a return to action for slugger Reggie Jackson, who has sat out the first three games of the Series, recovering from a strained calf muscle. Jackson was available Friday night but Lemon kept Mr. October in the dugout.

Someone asked the manager why.

"Are you kidding?" He said. "You have the best left-hander in the National League out there and the guy hasn't been to bat in a while. It wouldn't be fair to him."

Then Lemon learned that Lasorda was going with a righty today. Would Reggie play under those conditions, he was asked.

"You bet your life," the manager said. "If I tried to keep him out, he'd probably stomp me to death."

Big East Champs

Rampettes End Year Unbeaten In Tennis

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Rose High School's girls' tennis team made a little history last Thursday afternoon, and they might have made even more besides that.

The Rampettes completed the 1981 season with a perfect 16-0 record, becoming the first Rose tennis team to win the Big East Conference championship. And, according to some, the team is also the first girls' team at the school to post an unbeaten season.

There may have been an unbeaten year back in the "old" days, but since girls' sports were re-instated at Rose several years ago, no team has come close to posting a perfect record.

Now, with the conference championship safely tucked away, the Rampettes are hoping to make some noises in this week's Sectional Tournament, scheduled for Wednesday and Thursday at Wilson.

In the sectionals, the Rampettes will have two girls competing in the singles events, and four in the doubles. Lou Taft and Pauline Bearden, seeded one and two, respectively, for the Rampettes, will be competing in the singles.

The doubles will feature Janet Mizelle and Belinda Haselrig as one unit with Louise Evans and Marsha Tart as the other.

While Rose was able to complete the season unbeaten, only one member of the team went through the season unscathed — Bearden. She posted a 16-0 mark, competing in every match. Evans, who lost her match Thursday to Northeastern, suffered her first defeat of the year at that time.

Coach Gwen Deyton is hopeful that Rose will be able to establish somewhat of a dynasty too. "We have only two seniors on the team, Lou and Belinda. The rest are juniors and sophomores, so we'll have a lot of them back next year."

One thing that has helped in recent years is the formation of a feeder program — at least unofficially. The Greenville Recreation and Parks Department sponsors a team for the junior high school level for both boys and girls, running the same as the high school seasons. (The boys participate in the spring.) "This has really helped us a great deal," Deyton said. "They serve the same function as a junior high school team does."

Because there is no official junior high team, ninth graders at E.B. Aycock are eligible for the Rose team, but so far none have come out. "I would welcome them if they did," Deyton said. "But I would understand if some of them felt they'd get more playing time on the recreation team." The recreation team does play matches with junior high level teams from other towns.

Deyton feels that attitude has been one of the primary assets of this year's Rampette team. "We didn't put our first emphasis on winning," she said. "We just told them to go out and do their best. Give 100 percent and don't give up. That's all we asked of them."

"It paid off for us. We started to win, and it just built. We kept playing them one at a time and warning the girls that just because they beat someone the first time around didn't mean that they might not lose the second time. But it just turned into victory for us, and I think the attitude did it."

Depth helped too, Deyton feels. "The people who are seven through 12 on the ladder are all very, very close, all about the same skill level. So when we had two or three people out with injuries, sickness, or for some other reason, we were able to go to the bench and find people to fill in and win."

Even those who didn't get into the official matches were able, many times, to play in exhibition matches, building their experience and skills.

"I think we really showed a lot of patience with this year's team," Deyton said. "The girls took the season one match at a time, and I think that's a tribute to their patience."

Whatever it was, it paid off — with an unbeaten regular season, a conference championship, and hopefully, some extended play in the state playoffs.

Aycock...

Steve Hicks pounced on the ball in the end zone after the Falcons blocked a Greene Central punt, and Gurley again ran the conversion, putting Aycock ahead, 23-20.

Thomas added the final touchdown for Aycock in the last quarter, on a two-yard run with Gurley once more running over the conversion.

Grantham cited Butch Brown (11 tackles, 4 assists), James Moore (9 tackles) and James Brown (8 tackles, 2 assists) for their defensive play in the game.

Aycock, now 8-0 overall and 4-0 in the conference, travels to Southwest Edgecombe — currently tied with the Falcons for first — next Friday. Greene Central, 4-4 and 1-3, plays host to Farmville Central in its final home game of the year.

Lady Bucs Take Win

East Carolina's women's tennis team downed the Duke Racquet Club, 8-1, yesterday in a match originally scheduled to have been played today.

The only loss the Lady Pirates suffered was in the number one singles, where June Ahrendt downed Debbie Christine in a hard fought match.

Four other matches went to split sets with ECU winning all four. "I'm very pleased with that," Coach Caroline Brown said of the sweep of the three-setters. "We've had difficulty in that before. I'm just pleased with the win."

East Carolina returns to action on November 13.

Summary:
June Ahrendt (D) d. Debbie Christine, 7-5, 7-6.
Kathrine Tolson (EC) d. Paige Adams, 6-4, 6-1.
Laura Redford (EC) d. Pam Moorman, 6-1, 1-6, 6-0.
Janet Russell (EC) d. Amy Smith, 6-1, 4-6, 6-1.
Tracey Eubank (EC) d. Gigi Meister, 6-3, 4-6, 6-4.
Hannah Adams (EC) d. Cynthia Perreon, 7-5, 7-6.
Tolson-Christine (EC) d. Ahrendt-Adams, 8-4.
Redford-Russell (EC) d. Moorman-Smith, 8-3.
Eubank-Adams (EC) d. Danielle Hickory-Meister, 8-3.

Endrin Pesticide Update — The National Wildlife Federation has called on the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency to ban any use or export of the toxic pesticide endrin. The call from the nation's largest conservation group came two weeks after the Montana wildlife agency announced that it had found high levels of the pesticide in ducks and geese.

Against the advice of the state health department, the Montana Fish, Wildlife and Parks Commission voted in September to allow a duck and goose season this fall. However, the Commission cautioned hunter to strip birds of skin and body fat, to eat no more than one bird a week, and no more than six per year. The Commission also recommended that pregnant women avoid eating any waterfowl.

The NWF statement follows:

The recent discovery of endrin contamination of waterfowl in Montana is more than just a wildlife problem. It is also a human, economic, and agricultural concern. And, it affects states other than Montana. Because the contaminated waterfowl are migratory, every state in the central and Pacific flyways must be on the alert. Although only ducks and geese have been tested for endrin contamination, it is clear that other wildlife species will also be affected, including such endangered species as the whooping crane, bald eagle, and peregrine falcon.

Obviously, there is a need for pesticides. However, the use of endrin, which is more toxic than the outlawed pesticide DDT, is simply unnecessary. The availability of less toxic but effective pesticides and new integrated pest management techniques make endrin an archaic choice.

"It is clear that a change in the regulations is called for. EPA must act swiftly to ban all use of endrin in the country, and since we do not want to export our environmental problems, the ban should cover export of this deadly pesticide as well as its domestic use."

The Montana Wildlife Federation joined NWL in calling for the ban.

Trap Shooting — is now available in Pitt County through the facilities of the Pitt County Wildlife Club. The range is open on Sunday afternoons from 1 to 4 p.m. (weather permitting). Lights have recently been installed to allow night shooting. A night schedule will be announced soon.

The cost is minimal — $2 for members and $3 for invited guests per round. Annual membership for the club is only $25. The Pitt County Wildlife Club is located eight miles west of Greenville off the Falkland Highway. For further information contact Tom Gardner in Greenville, 756-0608.

ROCKINGHAM, N.C. (AP) — Joe Ruttman will take the outside of the eighth row when the American 500 NASCAR

1.017-mile high-banked track at an average speed of 139.151 mph Friday, nearly one mile an hour faster than pole-sitter

Darrell Waltrip, who qualified Thursday at 138.164 mph. Qualifying for the final six starting runs was scheduled for yesterday.

Waltrip blamed the weather for his slower speed Thursday.

"If we had qualified today (Friday) under the cooler, overcast skies, we would have run better than 140 miles an hour," Waltrip said. "The track is a lot faster today than it was yesterday."

Joe Millikan ran his Pontiac through the speed test at an average of 137.820 miles per hour, second fastest of the day and fourth quickest overall.

Millikan and Lake Speed will share ninth-row starting slots.

The track continued to be slick Friday, causing several spins and accidents.

Here is order after Friday's qualifying for Sunday's American 500 NASCAR Grand National race at North Carolina Motor Speedway.

Conley Slips By North Lenoir, 14-7

HOLLYWOOD — D.H. Conley fullback Alfred Ross scored in the first and third periods to guide the Vikings to their first Coastal Conference football victory Friday night, 14-7, over North Lenoir.

The two teams, former members of the Eastern Carolina Conference, were battling for the first time in their new conference, and it went right down to the wire.

Conley scored early, with Ross going into the end zone on a three-yard run ending a 70-yard drive. Doug McRoy added the PAT kick for a 7-0 Viking lead.

Following the kickoff, North Lenoir drove downfield to put the ball into the end zone for a score of its own. William Turnage got the score on a six-yard rip, with Jimmy Batts tying it up with his kick.

North Lenoir threatened again near the end of the half, but Conley knocked down two potential touchdown passes in the end zone to leave it knotted at 7-7 at intermission.

In the third period, the Vikings took the opening kickoff and marched for what proved to be the winning score. Ross again did the job, plunging over from a yard away. McRoy again kicked the PAT.

Conley, which saw two other touchdowns called back because of penalties had to stall two late Hawk drives. In the final two minutes of the game, Conley intercepted a North Lenoir pass at its own 20, but then fumbled it right back, and had to hold again to prevent North Lenoir from having a chance to tie it up once more. Jesse Maye led the Conley effort rushing 21 times for 124 yards.

The victory boosts the Conley record to 2-6 on the year, and to 1-2 in the conference. North Lenoir falls to the same marks. Conley plays host to West Craven in its final home game of the year on Friday, while North Lenoir is at home to Havelock, also in its home finale.

Redskins Rip Rigers

ROBERSONVILLE — Roanoke pushed over three second half touchdowns and pulled out a 22-0 victory over a defensive minded Williamston High School team Friday night.

The first half saw no scoring at all, although Roanoke advanced inside the Williamston ten late in the half, only to fail to convert a first down try.

But in the second half, the Redskins came up with two offensive scores, and added another by the defense to take the victory.

First Calvin Andrews scored on a four-yard run, giving the 'Skins a 6-0 lead. Later in the third period, Gable Griffin scooped up a Williamston fumble and carried it five yards for the score. Andrews added a two-point run and the Redskins were up 14-0.

The final score came in the closing period of the game, with Angelo Spruill going in from ten yards away to cap the evening. Andrews also ran over the conversion on this score.

The victory raises the Roanoke record to 7-2 overall and 5-2 in Northeastern Conference play. Williamston dips to 3-5 and 2-4.

Roanoke closes its season on Friday night, traveling to Roanoke Rapids. Williamston is at home to Washington in its final appearance of the year at High School.

Smith Not Ballyhooing Heels

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — In his 20 years of coaching the Tar Heels, North Carolina Coach Dean Smith has compiled a 436-143 record. Not once in all that time has he come out and said, "We have a great team."

And that isn't apt to change in 1982, despite the Tar Heels' 29-8 record and second-place finish in the NCAA college basketball tournament in 1981.

"I think there is a confidence that stems from the past," Smith said recently, "as fall practice began. But I'd rather start anew."

Al Wood, the All-America guard-forward now practicing with the Atlanta Hawks, is a major loss.

But some very promising players are back.

James Worthy, the non-smiling, intimidating 6-foot-9 forward, is back and he is lighter. No, he has not shed any of his 224 pounds of solid flesh. But the metal rod and screws which supported his ankle last season are gone.

Worthy's freshman year ended about midseason when he slipped on a fast break and broke his ankle.

"Yeah, my ankle feels lighter," said Worthy, a junior. "All that metal in there was pretty heavy. It's more flexible now and lighter."

Worthy said he was hampered by soreness in the ankle last season and couldn't really take off on it. Still he was the No. 3 rebounder in the Atlantic Coast Conference, averaging 8.4 a game.

"It's just something I'm not worried about this year," he said. "Last year I was a little cautious about it but this year it is totally out of my mind."

Then there is 6-foot-9 center Sam Perkins, ACC Rookie of the Year last season. He was the ACC's fourth-leading rebounder with 7.8 a game. He scored 14.9 points a game and hit 62.6 percent of his shots from the field. Not bad for a guy who didn't start playing basketball until his junior year in high school.

But through it all Perkins remains aloof. He doesn't feel the pressure. He says it is all fun.

What, however, does he do for an encore?

"Improve on everything," he said. "I came in so quick last year and everything went so rapidly that I didn't have time to concentrate on any one thing. I had to do it all in a hurry."

The only senior starter coming back is 6-foot-2 guard Jimmy Black. Never a great scorer, Black has been working on his shot and wants to improve on the 188 assists he had last season.

"I'm not worried," he said. "I'll take care of what I can control."

The leadership of the team will fall on those three men.

Black, the eldest, said, "I just have to set an example where before I followed one. But that will take care of itself too."

Worthy: "It's not something you look forward to, but it's a role you take on. You have to adjust."

Spikers In Consolations

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — East Carolina's women's volleyball team finished third in the consolation bracket of the Maryland Invitational Tournament this weekend.

On Saturday morning, the Lady Pirates fell to Penn State, 15-5, 15-10, and then beat Fairleigh-Dickenson, 15-5, 15-8, to finish fourth in a field of five in pool play. (Results of Friday night's play against Temple and the University of South Carolina were not available.)

In the consolations, East Carolina downed Catholic University, 12-15, 15-6, 15-11 to gain the semifinals, where they lost to Delaware, 12-15, 15-6, 15-10, leaving them tied for third in the consolations.

East Carolina returns to action on Tuesday, hosting Duke.

Jaguar Rally Fails As Firebirds Hang On

STANHOPE — Southern Nash managed to hold off a late rally by Farmville Central — thanks in great measure to the clock — and defeated the Jaguars, 20-16, Friday night in an Eastern Carolina Conference football game.

The Firebirds, now 2-6 overall and 2-2 in the league, led 20-8 at the half but saw the Jaguars close to within four points on a 21-yard run by Farmville's Wesley Carmon midway through the fourth period.

An onside kick failed following Carmon's score but the Jaguars got the ball back moments later after holding the Firebirds on downs. Farmville then drove to the Southern Nash seven.

With no time outs left, the Jaguars tried a sweep hoping to get out bounds and stop the clock, but Carmon could not get out of bounds and the game ended with the Jaguars on the seven.

The Firebirds recovered a Farmville fumble at the Jaguar 35 midway through the first period to set up their first score. Jeff Lucas capped the short drive with a three yard run and Terry Best kicked the PAT.

Southern Nash then blocked a Jaguar punt early in the second quarter and two plays later Lucas hit Elvis Perry from 18 yards out for the TD. Best again added the extra point.

Farmville, now 4-5 overall and 1-4 in the league, finally got on the board minutes later. With third and seven from the 35, Farmville quarterback Jeff Cutler hit Carmon on the left with a screen pass. Carmon took the pass, raced through the Southern Nash secondary for a 65-yard scoring jaunt. Cutler then hit Willie Davis for the two points and Farmville trailed, 14-8.

It appeared that's the way the half would end. That is, until Carmon tried a halfback pass.

Taking a handoff from Cutler, Carmon looked downfield but threw short to a wide open Reggie Willoughby. Instead, Calvin Mitchell picked off the pass and returned it 50 yards for the score as the gun sounded to end the half. The kick failed, but Southern Nash led, 20-8, at intermission.

Farmville drove to the seven early in the third period but saw the march fizzle on downs. The Jaguars then closed to within four midway through the fourth period when Carmon raced 21 yards for a TD. Cutler hit Carmon for the two points.

The drive was set up when Willoughby picked off a Lucas pass after Southern Nash had driven to the Farmville three, where they had a fourth a goal. It was Willoughby's fifth interception of the year.

After Carmon's score, the Jaguars got the ball back again later but came up seven yards short as time ran out.

James Moore led the Jaguars in rushing with 58 yards in 12 carries.

Turner Says Joe Torre Hiring Not Guided By Possible Ticket Sales

ATLANTA (AP) — Ted Turner, television magnate and owner of the Atlanta Braves, says his decision to hire Joe Torre, recently-fired New York Mets manager, as the new skipper of the Braves was not influenced by Torre's potential to boost ticket sales or TV ratings.

"What we want to do is win. That's the only thing that really counts," said Turner, whose WTBS Superstation broadcasts most Braves' games nationwide over cable television hookups.

"That (TV) didn't enter into the consideration," Turner said Friday at a news conference to officially announce Torre's hiring.

"Show biz in this game is out there on the field. I don't remember ever seeing Torre kick dirt on an umpire, anyway. Has he ever done that? Billy Martin is good for show biz. But our show biz is going to be winning."

Torre, who compiled a 286-420 record in five years with the Mets before being fired on the last day of the 1981 season, replaced Bobby Cox, who was hired to manage the Toronto Blue Jays next year after being fired by Turner 15 days ago.

"It's like coming back home," said Torre, referring to the three seasons he played for the Braves in Atlanta, from 1966 through 1969, before being traded to the St. Louis Cardinals.

Torre was not the first choice of the Braves' front office group that had recommended the hiring of Eddie Haas, manager of the Braves' AAA farm club at Richmond, Va.

However, Turner rejected the recommendation and also ruled out veteran Braves' pitcher Phil Niekro, who had expressed an interest in the job.

"We considered Haas and Niekro, but I really felt we needed someone with major league experience," Turner said. "I wanted someone not real old that had experience and didn't have a drinking problem or whatever."

Turner said Torre was signed to a three-year contract, but he would not disclose the terms. It was believed, however, that Torre will receive $100,000 in 1982, and $150,000 in each of the final two years of his contract.

Ayden Golf and Country Club

The Ayden Golf and Country Club held a best-ball tournament last week, and played from the women's tees. First place went to the team of Pete Beaman, Donnie Taylor, George Moores and W.J. Jackson with a 59.

On Sunday, the club held a superball with one lady tournament. John Haughn, Chuck Allen, Jim McDermott Sr. and Chris Tripp took first place with a score of 60.

During the past week, Roy Jordan eagled the 16th hole, hitting a four-iron into the hole for a two.

Brook Valley Country Club

The Brook Valley Country Club held its 12th annual Four-Ball Tournament last week. Winners in the championship flight, with a 135, were Jerry Lee and Don Gafner, both members of the East Carolina University golf team. They actually won the title in a playoff with Scott Irby and Graham Campbell, who also had 135.

The first flight went to Roger Allen and Roger Savage of Chesapeake, Va., who had a 141. Second place resulted in a three-way tie for second, eventually won by Fulton Woods and Albert Myers of Portsmouth, Va.

In the second flight, winning with a 148 were Dr. Jerry Michaels of Greenville and Dr. Dennis Michaels of Kinston. Second were Paul Browning of Elizabeth City and Jerry Deasey of Durham, in a playoff.

Winning the third flight in a playoff were Melvin Holland and Bill Sherrill of Portsmouth, Va., with second going to Sam and Joe Russo of Chesapeake, Va. Both teams had a 155. A total of 62 teams participated.

"We look forward to living with people we've known and people who share our interests."

— Hassell and Hack Thigpen

"There are a lot of nice people involved with The Albemarle — people who share our interests and lifestyles. We can enjoy old friends and make new ones.

"Unquestionably, it will be a very secure place to live. And to us, that's a main point. If you need care, they have it available right there, so you don't have to go out and look for it. It's a total independent living situation that gives you peace of mind.

"The accommodations are very nice — like the kitchenette for example.

"We know that time will come when the convenience of being in town will mean a lot to us, and we're looking forward to being able to walk to the downtown stores.

"We think we're being smart about it by signing up now."

Pitching Battle Fails To Show As The Penguin Steals The Act

LOS ANGELES (AP) — They came to see a bullfight but got a "Penguin."

The record Dodger Stadium crowd of 56,236, who saw Los Angeles bound back against the New York Yankees 5-4 in the third game of the World Series Friday night, should have got their money back.

Not that they didn't see a show. It simply wasn't the performance that had been advertised and they had paid to see. They were victims of a quick swap. It was billed as a historic pitching duel between Fernando Valenzuela, the blimp-like Mexican kid known as "El Toro," or "The Bull," of the Dodgers and the tall lightning-quick matador of the Yankees, Dave Righetti, like Fernando a rookie.

Righetti has a fastball deadlier than a stiletto. All 56,236 spectators — not to mention the millions watching and listening to Howard Cosell on television — knew what they were in for. Zip, zip, zip — like flashing swipes of Zorro's blade. Bam, bam, bam — fastballs resounding in the catcher's mitt.

Three up, three down. You could just see those big goose-eggs going up on the scoreboard like Hitler legions marching off to war — scoreless until the late innings when a tricky bounce or a lucky meeting of bat and ball gave either Valenzuela or Righetti the edge.

It didn't happen that way. Instead, a bandy-legged third baseman for the Dodgers named Ron Cey, called the "Penguin," because of his walk, moved in and stole the show.

Meanwhile, Righetti was taking a shower by the third inning, having yielded five hits and three runs and hitting a batter which permitted the Dodgers to get off to a quick lead. During his brief two-inning period, he had thrown an exhausting 62 pitches. And Valenzuela, a gutsy guy, was surviving by the skin of his teeth, threw 145 pitches for the nine innings.

At the end, although a struggling victor, he had his left arm and shoulder patted like a man who had just caught an exploding grenade.

Cey, a 5-foot-9, 180-pound package of pure power and quick reflexes, lashed a three-run homer in the first inning that shook the Dodgers out of their lethargy, got a couple if walks and finished with a single and batting .1000. But he didn't win the game with his bat. He won it with his glove and his audacity.

In the eighth after the Dodgers had lost and then regained the lead in a wild game fraught with bad judgment, erratic base-running and wasted opportunities, he was defending his post at third base with the Yankees Aurelio Rodriguez on second and Larry Milbourne on first and no one out.

Things never looked bleaker for the Dodgers.

Bobby Murcer, stroked a lazy, high-sailing, bunt down the third base line. Cey ran in to make a leaping, tumbling, stab of the ball and then, noting Milbourne running toward second flipped the ball to first for a double play. A moment later, Willie Randolph hit a big bouncer also in Cey's sacred territory which the slick third baseman snagged and tagged Rodriguez who was speeding foolishly toward third — a tactical boo-boo.

The Yankees' rally died a groanin'. It wasn't the Yankees' finest hour. They got two big home runs by Bob Watson and Rick Cerone. They collected nine hits and still couldn't win. They left nine runners stranded, as did the Dodgers.

Shades of the Orioles. The Yankees, in the final analysis got beat by two Baltimore chops — the first a high-bouncer by Steve Garvey and the other by Pedro Guerrero, both in the fifth inning which produced the two runs that sealed the Yankees' defeat.

It was the kind of sloppy performance that had only a few days ago provoked a locker-room dressing down from owner George Steinbrenner during the Milwaukee series.

This time, the boss took it all with a contented smile.

"I didn't say a word of criticism," Steinbrenner said after visiting the clubhouse. "If the Dodgers can't beat us worse than this in this matchbox park the way we played tonight, I have no worries."

The ebullient Dodgers' skipper, Tommy Lasorda shed Dodger blue blood all over the premises but stuck with the fat 20-year-old Mexican who had brought him through the split-season and the playoffs.

As they say down Texas way, he danced with the one who brought him.

Cey's Play Keyed Dodgers To Victory

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An outstanding defensive play at third base had a lot to do with the outcome of Game 3 of the World Series.

No, Graig Nettles didn't make it. Ron Cey did. The man called Penguin because of his odd, stocky build started a double play with a diving catch of a bunt by New York's Bobby Murcer in the top of the eighth inning.

It helped the Los Angeles Dodgers defeat the Yankees 5-4 at Dodger Stadium Friday night.

The Yankees, who were without Nettles because of his sprained left thumb, lead the Series 2-1 entering Game 4 today, but the Dodgers believe they're in good shape.

"We felt we could come back and do something; we're in our ballpark now," said Cey, who gave the Dodgers an early lead with a three-run homer in the first inning. "We've done this before."

The Yankees had two runners on base and nobody out when Cey made his big fielding play, going into foul territory and diving to snag Murcer's bunt. He then jumped to his feet and doubled Larry Milbourne off first.

Then, Willie Randolph hit a slow grounder toward Cey, who tagged Aurelio Rodriguez to end the inning. Cey probably didn't have a play on Randolph.

"I had a few big plays of significance in one inning, which got us out of a big jam," said Cey. "They made a couple of mistakes that inning, the big one being Milbourne leaving first. Rodriguez had to run on the other play."

Cey's first-inning homer saved the Dodgers from more of the frustration they experienced in the first two games of the Series at Yankee Stadium.

Cey came up after New York starter Dave Righetti had retired two batters with runners at first and third.

"I was just hoping I could go up there and get something across for us," said Cey. "We haven't been executing offensively. It was very important for us to score early."

The Yankees scored early off rookie sensation Fernando Valenzuela. Home runs by Bob Watson and Rick Cerone helped New York to two runs in both the second and third innings, and make Valenzuela think he was living through something like the two minor earthquakes that hit Southern California Friday.

"I didn't feel an earthquake this morning," said Valenzuela. "I thought the earthquake was during the game because they were hitting the ball so hard."

Valenzuela finished with an uncharacteristic nine-hitter and walked a season-high seven batters. He retired the side in only two innings — the seventh and the ninth.

"This is the most difficult game I have ever pitched because I was having trouble with my control," said the 20-year-old left-hander. "I felt I got stronger about the seventh inning. I didn't get tired."

"I wasn't nervous. I knew it was a big game and we had to win. I tried to put more on my pitches, more speed on the other pitches."

Valenzuela was on the verge of coming out of the game in the fifth, when the Dodgers scored twice to take a 5-4 lead.

Reggie Smith was in the on-deck circle, apparently to hit for Valenzuela, but Mike Scioscia bounced into a double play and the go-ahead run scored. So Valenzuela hit for himself.

"We didn't score that go-ahead run, he's out," said Los Angeles Manager Tom Lasorda. "He did not have his good stuff. That's one of the guttier performances I've ever seen. He was like a crafty poker player bluffing his way through."

The Dodgers, who had only nine hits in the first two games of the Series, had 11 Friday night.

"A game like this gives us a lot of optimism," said Steve Garvey, who is 5-for-11 in the Series and the only Dodger to hit with any consistency during the postseason. "We knew coming home would be a benefit."

Slump-ridden Pedro Guerrero came through with the big hit of the Dodgers' two-run fifth, a double he bounced over the head of Nettles' replacement, Aurelio Rodriguez.

"The pitchers have been doing a good job, but we haven't been hitting," said Guerrero. "Tonight, we get 11 hits. We all feel we can win. We lost the two games in New York, but we have come back before."

Let's go Krogering

KROGER GARDEN

Our Kroger gardener tends her garden with care, so you can pick the best quality fruits and vegetables available.

PICK ONE OR MORE

Because our produce isn't pre-wrapped, you can select as much or as little as you need.

PHARMACY

Getting the best value for your good health has never been more convenient. Just drop off your prescription with our registered pharmacist.

PHOTO PROCESSING

The Kroger camera and film department carries a wide variety of film, flashbulbs and other camera supplies. Plus you can leave your film with us for developing.

RESTAURANT

For ready-to-eat meals or snacks, visit the Kroger restaurant. We have a wide selection of entrees and all the trimmings like salads, vegetables and hot rolls.

DELICATESSEN

For the very best, visit the Kroger Deli. All sorts of meats and cheeses for hearty sandwiches. If you're entertaining, we'll design beautiful party trays to your order.

NUTRITION NEWS

Kroger knows you care about your family's nutritional needs and we want you to know that we care too. We have easy-to-understand facts and answers for you.

UNIT PRICING

Kroger unit price shelf tags can help you cut your costs by showing you the price of each product by unit. Compare the cost of products of unequal sizes, so you can find the best buy.

FRESH SEAFOOD

Where else but Kroger can you find such a catch? Honestly fresh! The best is rushed fresh, never frozen, to us for you.

SAY CHEESE

Kroger says cheese in many ways. In our Dairy department you'll find over 200 varieties of cheese and processed cheese products.

THE CHOICE IS YOURS

At Kroger, you can choose from thousands of different grocery items, including national and Kroger brands, as well as your favorite local brands. Kroger has tremendous variety so you can get just what you need.

FRESH DAIRY

The Kroger dairy case is a showcase of fresh goodness. You'll find just about every dairy product imaginable at Kroger.

BETTER MEAT

Depend on the Kroger meat department for the best of everything. Over 200 kinds and cuts. U.S. choice beef that cooks up tender and delicious every time. Top quality pork, U.S. choice American lamb, prime veal, and grade A poultry.

FRESH PIZZA

You can get fresh, made-to-order pizza right at Kroger. Zesty sauce, lots of cheese and your choice of toppings. Pick it up ready for your own oven.

BAKERY

You'll know you're near our bakery when you smell fresh baked breads, pastries and pies. And for those special occasions, ask our bakers to decorate your cake just the way you want.

GREETING CARDS

In the Kroger card shop, you'll find greeting cards for every occasion, as well as gift wrap, color coordinated ribbon and bows, and small gift items.

COSMETICS

The top name brands in make-up and fragrances. That's what you'll find at Kroger Sav-on along with a high selection of health aids, too.

OPEN DATING

To ensure that the foods you buy are really fresh, Kroger puts a freshness date on perishable items such as meat, dairy and bakery products.

Guess who's going to give you $2000* in tax free income with First Federal's All-Savers Certificate?

Convert your 6-month money markets without penalty!

What do you do when someone offers you as much as $2000, tax free?

Take it, of course!

And beginning October 1, 1981, that's just exactly what First Federal is going to do. Because the interest is completely tax-free on our new 1 year All-Savers Certificates.

First Federal's All-Savers account is twice as good as a money market certificate.

Because first, there's the $500 minimum. And your net income will probably be greater because the interest is tax-free, unlike money markets.

Fact is, First Federal's new All-Savers Certificate is just about the best thing we've ever been able to offer our savers.

So come on in and take advantage of this opportunity.

*$1000 for single account. $2000 for joint account.

Therapeutic Touch Is Healing Practiced By Area Nurse

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

Nursing journals and some national women's magazines in recent months have published articles on a psychic healing and pain alleviation method known as therapeutic touch.

The concept is not unlike the ancient practice of "laying on of hands," which almost always is associated with curative and soothing powers based on the religious faith of the healer, the healee or both.

Not so, with therapeutic touch, says Judi Brown, an area nurse and nurse educator who practices therapeutic touch upon request. Basic to therapeutic touch is the idea that the human body is an energy system. The person who administers therapeutic touch makes an effort to direct his or her own healthy and positive energies for the use of the ill person who, it is believed, is in a less-than-optimal energy state. Mrs. Brown said she learned this explanation and the technique for administering therapeutic touch during a workshop conducted by Lynn Brallier, R.N. and Ph.D. candidate, in Washington, D.C. three years ago. She's been practicing it since, but only with the full knowledge of the person to be treated and almost always at the request of that person.

"This transfer of energy is intentional and is motivated by a real interest in the needs of the patient," she said. "I quiet my mind, concentrate fully on the task at hand, acknowledge within myself that I will in no way be depleted of energy by the experience, and then let my hands move over the body a couple of inches away. I scan the body and usually can quickly become aware of the areas of blocked energy flow in the patient's body. Sometimes there's heat, sometimes a tingling, sometimes lumpiness. I then concentrate on smoothing out and redirecting the energy from these areas."

She asks the healee to describe whatever feelings and changes he or she observes. When Judi worked on me, I felt something akin to an electrical impulse at one point and steady intense, but not burning, heat at another, not unlike having a heat lamp trained on the area under her hand. There was never any direct contact between her hands and my body.

Therapeutic touch practitioners work, Judi explains, almost always not on the body itself, but on the energy field around the body, which is usually invisible to the naked eye, yet discernible with a special type of photography called Kirlian.

The healer keeps in mind, too, that her own energy is not limited, that universal energy is limitless, available to all, and can be shared with another without depletion, Judi said.

She adds that, just as anyone can avail himself or herself of universal energy, so can anyone learn therapeutic touch. It's no special gift, but a technique that can be taught and learned.

Probably the most well known practitioner and teacher of therapeutic touch is Dr. Delores Krieger, a professor of nursing at New York University. She first began practicing it as early as 1969 and described it academically in 1975. She did her postdoctoral research on this subject.

Krieger and others are now teaching therapeutic touch as part of the master's curriculum in nursing at NYU and are conducting continuing education courses and workshops at universities and hospitals across the country. And she has written a book titled, "The Therapeutic Touch: How To Use Your Hands to Help or Heal" (Prentice-Hall).

Krieger explains the reasoning behind therapeutic touch, saying, "In the process of touching, there appears to be a transfer of energy from the healer that helps the patient to repattern his or her energy level to a state that is comparable to that of the healer. This appears to be done physiologically by a kind of electron transfer resonance."

"The mind (of the healer) is totally focused without effort upon the healing touch; no other thoughts enter awareness. This process, like any meditation, requires 'attentiveness training,' and no scattering of thoughts to personal needs and emotions." This, too, is something anyone can learn and benefit from even if he does not believe in or wish to practice therapeutic touch, Judi said.

Both Brown and Krieger maintain that therapeutic touch is not an alternative to conventional medicine, but is to be used in conjunction with it. Both are dedicated practitioners of nursing in its usual sense.

Krieger has, of course, had to answer skeptics who say her patients experience a placebo effect. She says, "Placebo has been noted to help in over 30 percent of illnesses. Learning to systematically maximize this process through a healing meditation would, in itself, be a significant contribution to nursing."

She believes, however, and feels she has demonstrated and will continue to demonstrate through further use and study of the process that therapeutic touch goes beyond placebo and involves an as yet undefined but learnable method of balancing human energy.

Therapeutic touch has been used by Judi Brown to effect healings and pain alleviation in persons with a wide variety of ailments. She is a nurse and a nurse educator and never accepts pay for therapeutic touch which she does on her own and only with the full knowledge and consent of the person wishing to be ministered to.

Today Is UNICEF Day

Children and grownups in Pitt County will be out in force this afternoon trick or treating for the United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund, so that youngsters like those pictured above may enjoy a nutritious meal at school. Funds raised through UNICEF Day collections and greeting card sales help UNICEF meet the nutritional needs of children in more than 100 developing countries. UNICEF Day here is the cooperative effort of local churches and civic organizations to help care for the hungry of the world. A special goal of this year's fund-raising is to provide safe drinking water to people of the world who need it, Mrs. Carolyn Parsley, a co-chairman of this year's drive, said. Are you a troubled or nervous parent who has no place to get help?

When you are ready to blow up, is it you and the children who bear the brunt of it?

Do you feel confused, guilty and frightened about your parental behavior and feelings?

Do you believe that you were treated indifferently or cruelly as a child and that now you're repeating some of the past?

When you hear the words "abuse" or "neglect," do you end up thinking about your childhood or the parenting you're doing now?

Are you physically or emotionally abusing or neglecting one or more of your children?

Do you want your relationship with your children to be different ... your family life more fulfilling ... less explosive and tense ... more loving?

These are questions published in a brochure of Parents Anonymous, an organization which meets weekly in Greenville and welcomes any parent feeling stress and any parent who feels the need to improve his or her relationship with his or her children. Couples are welcomed, and so are parents without their spouses.

P.A. meets every week at 7 p.m. at the Mental Health Center Annex behind the Pitt County Office Building. Free babysitting is provided.

"We've been under way a little over a year now," volunteer coordinator Sue Wilson said, "and we believe we have seen some meaningful changes in families' lives as a result of these meetings."

Though more loosely structured, the organization is patterned somewhat after Alcoholics Anonymous. Those taking part attend mostly of their own accord, though occasionally as the result of court or social worker referrals. Judges and social workers are encouraged to use the benefits of P.A. as humane sentencing or referral and are invited to contact the coordinators to learn more about what the organization offers.

Don Reeves

A spokesperson for P.A. says, "We came for help because we were having a difficult time coping with our children. We wanted to enjoy being parents, but were unprepared for the responsibilities of parenthood."

Is there a parent anywhere who hasn't felt such pangs of unpreparedness?

The universality of the feelings of need for better parental coping ability is what the organization is based on. "Being a parent is one of the toughest jobs in the world," is the organization's credo, so there should be no stigma attached to a parent's admission of need for help in getting through the child-rearing years. Anonymity and confidentiality is a prerogative of P.A. members, not because they have anything to be ashamed of, but because it's their right both during and after P.A. involvement, the organization's tenets say. Like A.A. members, P.A. members often give their first names only to fellow members.

P.A. members, as a rule, object to references to child abuse in the same breath with references to P.A. "This is not an organization of child abusers or even of potential child abusers," co-coordinator Don Reeves said. "Some may have abused their children or felt fear that they would, but not all."

"In fact," Ms. Wilson added, "many are abusers of self rather than their children. They've been too self-sacrificing as parents, too centered on the well-being of the children to think of themselves and their own needs enough. That's part of what we do, tell them it's okay and teach them to treat themselves better."

"There's a sincerity of helpfulness to each other that makes the organization very special," Ms. Wilson said. "Many of the members exchange phone numbers and are thereby available to each other all through the week between the meetings for help through problems and for pats on the back for interactions with children that went well. Some members even get together socially between meetings. We also encourage each member to call Don or me if they feel the need and to call the REAL Crisis Intervention Center if there's a need."

The local organization is loosely affiliated with Parents Anonymous of North Carolina Inc., which has headquarters in Charlotte. P.A. nationally is a private non-profit agency founded in 1970 in California. There are more than 1,000 chapters nationwide.

Ms. Wilson, whose professional background is in special education, is a wife and parent of two. She is thinking of entering the field of family counseling and likes her work with P.A. because she believes in the good that such a self-help mutual aid group can bring into being.

Reeves is employed by the Pitt County Mental Health Center and works with P.A. as part of his job, yet the Mental Health Center is not a sponsor of the organization, only an encourager. P.A. is a private organization that is not an extension of any agency, he emphasized.

Both Reeves and Ms. Wilson are high on the merits of the organization. "As well as good fellowship and a give-and-take caring, understanding atmosphere, P.A. offers the sharing of positive behavior alternatives to alleviate critical parenting problems," Ms. Wilson said. "A parent with a specific problem—say a child who talks back—can get advice about dealing with that particular problem, as well as assurance that he or she is not the only one who's ever faced it before."

According to Reeves, P.A. does not profess to have all the answers and solutions to problems of stress in parenting, but it does show that positive answers and solutions are possible and that happy and well-cared-for families can be the outcome of involvement in P.A.

Anyone interested in being involved in P.A. may attend any meeting or may call Reeves, 752-0119, or Ms. Wilson, 753-4082, for more information.

MRS. DAVID WAYNE LOOP

Doris L. Wilson, David Wayne Loop Wed Saturday

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Leon Wilson Jr. of Robersonville and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Bowie Loop Jr. of Jacksonville, Fla.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an heirloom gown worn by both her mother and grandmother. The formal gown is designed with a bodice of ivory satin, featuring a dropped waistline and a bertha of schiffli lace caught up in the back to form short cap sleeves. Under the overskirt of schiffli lace is a bouffant satin skirt. The gown is adorned with a cathedral length train. She wore a veil of ivory illusion banded with schiffli topped with a Juliet cap and carried a cascade of roses, fujii mums, baby's breath, stephanotis and orchids.

Marion Fountain Green of Raleigh served as the bride's matron of honor and wore a waltz-length gown of autumn coral moire with squared front and back necklines, short puffed sleeves and a full gathered skirt with a pleated sash. She carried a bouquet of white mums and coral sonya roses.

Bridesmaids were Jane Elizabeth Loop, sister of the bridegroom of Jacksonville, Fla., Mrs. Charles Leon Wilson III of Tarboro, Mrs. Marvin S. Searle, sister of the bridegroom of Melrose, Fla., Harriet Bailey Little of Tarboro, Sue Frances Gregg of Florence, S.C. and Ruth Leigh Chambers of Jacksonville, Fla. The bridesmaids wore dresses and carried flowers identical to those of the matron of honor.

The father of the bridegroom served as best man. Ushers were Capt. Marvin S. Searle of Melrose, Fla., Charles Leon Wilson III, brother of the bride of Tarboro, Matthew Mayo Wilson, brother of the bride of Robersonville, William Sidney Carver III of Cary, Braxton Wesley Smith of Raleigh and John Steven Pappas of Raleigh.

Organist Michael Gibson provided nuptial music for the ceremony.

Following the wedding the bride's parents gave a reception at their home. Guests were greeted by the bride couple. Mr. and Mrs. Claude Roberson and Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Ben Wilson, aunts and uncles of the bride, received guests.

Members of the wedding party and out-of-town guests were entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Carl Bowie Loop Jr. at a rehearsal dinner at the Roanoke Country Club, Williamston.

Following the rehearsal dinner, the bride couple was honored at a dance at the Roanoke Country Club given by Mr. and Mrs. I. Mayo Little, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Roberson Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Benjamin Wilson, Mrs. William Ely, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Corey, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Leon Wilson III and Matthew Mayo Wilson.

Mrs. Robert Whitfield and Deborah Wilson were hostesses for a bridesmaid luncheon at the Whitfield home. The bride presented gifts to her attendants.

A dinner party, honoring the bride and bridegroom, was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Sharpe. Assisting hosts and hostesses were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Dunstan, Mr. and Mrs. Robert James, Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Lee-Mr. and Mrs. Irving Smith Jr. and Mr. and Mrs. Gene Taylor.

After a wedding trip to Bermuda the couple will live in Jacksonville, Fla.

The bride is a graduate of Salem College, Winston-Salem. The bridegroom is a graduate of North Carolina State University, Raleigh and is employed with his father at Loops Nursery and Greenhouse in Jacksonville.

MRS. KENNETH RAY HARDISON

Miss Mullen, Mr. Hardison Married In Grifton

GRIFTON — Lillian Hope Mullen and Kenneth Ray Hardison were united in marriage Saturday afternoon at three o'clock. The double ring ceremony, performed by the Rev. John Gray, took place in the First Baptist Church of Grifton.

A program of organ music was rendered by John Thompson. The pianist was Becky Thompson. Soloists were Guyla Evans and Bobby Bennett who sang "I Love You More", "The Wedding Song", "We've Only Just Begun", and "Endless Love".

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Early Mullen. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. James Hardison, Jr.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents and escorted to the altar by her father. Her honor attendant was Gail Simmons, sister of the bride, of Grifton. Bridesmaids were Earlene and Diane Mullen, sisters of the bride, and Jill Paget, all of Ayden.

Ushers were Jim Hardison of Christianburg, Va., Dennis Hudson of Grifton, and Charles Venters of Ayden.

The bride was dressed in a formal gown of white Sheerganza and Alencon lace. The bodice was designed with a V-neckline outlined with Alencon lace encrusted with pearls. The long fitted sleeves closed with traditional bridal buttons. The A-line skirt, appliqued and encrusted with pearls and bordered with scalloped lace, flowed into an attached chapel train. The rolled fingertip veil of silk illusion, was attached to a lace Juliet cap etched with pearls. She carried a bouquet of white carnations and spice sweetheart roses accented with baby's breath.

The honor attendant wore a tea rose knit gown with a nylon lace yoke and long sleeves. The collar, front yoke, and sleeves were edged with schiffli embroidery. The gown was accented with a bow trim at the neckline. The waistline was slightly raised with a self-tie belt which fell into a full skirt. She carried a nosegay of fall flowers accented with a spice bow and ribbons.

The bridesmaids wore spice dresses identical to the honor attendant. The nosegays were also identical except they were accented with a tea rose bow and ribbons.

The bride's mother chose a formal melon knit gown designed with a V-neckline and empire waistline. The bridegroom's mother was attired in a sea green, magic knit gown fashioned with a V-neckline and chiffon cape.

A reception was held in the church fellowship hall following the ceremony, hosted by the bride's parents. Suelene Abbott, aunt of the bride, served the wedding cake. Punch was poured by Vicki Abbott, cousin of the bride. Also assisting at the reception was Tammy Burch, Kay White, and Beverly Edwards.

The groom's parents entertained the couple, members of the wedding party, and out-of-town guests at a dinner at King's Restaurant following the rehearsal on Friday.

Gladys Thomas directed the wedding and Jennifer Tyndall presided at the register.

The bride is a graduate of Lenoir Community College with an AAS degree in general office technology. She is presently employed with The West Company in Kinston. The groom is a graduate of Ayden-Grifton High School. The couple will live in Kinston after a wedding trip to unannounced points.

Engagement Announced

PATRICIA ANN HILL... is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thomas Hill of Rt. 1, Sneads Ferry, who announce her engagement to Hubert Tracy Smith III, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Tracy Smith Jr. of Greenville. The wedding is planned for Dec. 5.

Tana Lynn Nobles, Mr. Kearns United Saturday In Hooker Memorial Church Wedding

Hooker Memorial Christian Church here was the scene of the Saturday afternoon wedding ceremony of Tana Lynn Nobles and Michael Patrick Kearns. The ceremony was performed at 5:30 by Father Albert Tittiger.

Rosemary Fischer was organist for the ceremony while vocalists, Billy and Sandra Stinson sang "The Rose" and "The Twelfth of Never," accompanied by guitar.

Parents of the bride are Mrs. Dean S. Shepard of Havelock and Mr. Gilbert L. Nobles of Plymouth. Mr. and Mrs. James J. Kearns of Philadelphia, Pa. are parents of the bridegroom.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and the father of the bridegroom was best man.

Denise Nobles of Greenville, sister-in-law of the bride, was honor attendant and bridesmaids were Cindy Ange Camlin of Norfolk, Va. and Gail Edwards of Greensboro. Ushers included Thomas Kearns of Philadelphia, Pa., brother of the bridegroom, and Lloyd Nobles of Greenville, brother of the bride.

The mistress of ceremonies was Debbie Hester of Greenville.

For the double ring ceremony, the bride chose a formal white gown of silk chiffon over peau de soie fashioned with a fitted empire bodice, scooped neckline and full sleeves closing with cuffs of point d'esprit adorned with motifs of Venise lace. Motifs of Venise lace, sequins and bridal pearls enhanced the bodice continuing around the waist of the gown. The full skirt flowed into a chapel length train. She wore a waltz length mantilla edged with Venise lace attached to a lace covered Juliet cap adorned with pearls. She carried a white colonial silk bouquet of lilies, roses, stephanotis, gypsophila and baby's breath tied with ribbons of satin.

The honor attendant wore a formal gown of turquoise jersey with an overdress of matching ribboned chiffon.

The blouson overdress was designed with an oval neckline, short dolman sleeves and side hemline slits. She carried a cluster of silk fall wood roses, sweet peas and gypsophila accented with greenery and baby's breath tied with satin ribbons.

The bridesmaids wore gowns identical to that of the honor attendant and carried identical clusters of silk fall flowers.

The mother of the bride wore a blue formal gown and the bridegroom's mother selected a formal rose gown. They wore corsages of white phalaenopsis orchids. Mrs. Ed Craft of Plymouth, aunt of the bride, was remembered with a corsage of yellow roses.

Following the ceremony the bride's parents gave a reception at the Casablanca. Music was provided by the Contrast Combo.

After a coastal wedding trip the couple will be living in Nashville, Tenn.

The bride has been the crafts and recreation director at Mendenhall Student Center, East Carolina University. The bridegroom is employed with American Management Services, Vanderbilt University Hospital, Nashville, Tenn. They are both graduates of ECU.

On Friday evening, the parents of the bridegroom entertained at an after-rehearsal dinner honoring the wedding party and out-of-town guests.

On Saturday, Oct. 31, a Mass of Thanksgiving will be celebrated for the couple at the Church of the Ascension of Our Lord, Philadelphia, Pa. A reception and dinner will then be given by the parents of the bridegroom.

COOKING IS FUN!

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
AP Food Editor

Tony Giles is a businessman — a tall bachelor who lives in a big-city apartment with the typical tiny kitchen. But he never lets a little matter like that keep him from inventing and preparing a dish that serves eight people.

Recently a friend of his asked him to "fix a dish" and bring it to a potluck supper she was giving. She warned him that her guests would include a number of vegetarians. Giles invented a Mushroom Lasagne and, judging from reports, it was a success. After testing his recipe in our own kitchen, we can understand why.

TONY GILES' MUSHROOM LASAGNE
4 tablespoons vegetable oil
1 pound fresh mushrooms, sliced (about 5½ cups)
1 cup chopped (medium-fine)
onion
1 cup chopped (medium-fine)
green pepper
2 large garlic cloves, minced or crushed
Two 6-ounce cans tomato paste
1½ cups water
1¼ teaspoons salt
1¼ teaspoons dried, crushed oregano
1 pound fresh spinach (cooked, well-drained and coarsely chopped)
One 16-ounce package lasagne noodles
¼ pound (1 generous cup) shredded sharp cheddar cheese
8 ounces mozzarella cheese, cut into 24 slices
3 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese

In a large skillet heat the oil; add the mushrooms, onion, green pepper and garlic; cook rapidly, stirring often, until wilted — 5 minutes. Add tomato paste, water, salt and oregano. Bring to a boil; simmer, covered, for 15 minutes. Stir in spinach.

Cook lasagne according to package directions; drain.

Spread a thin film of the sauce in the bottom of a 3-quart oblong baking dish (13½ by 8¾ by 1¾ inches). Cover with 1-3rd of the lasagne noodles, overlapping if necessary. Add 1-3rd of the remaining sauce, then 1-3rd of the cheddar cheese, 8 slices of the mozzarella and 1 tablespoon of the Parmesan. Repeat layering two more times. Cover with foil. Bake in a pre-heated 375-degree oven until hot — about 20 minutes. Uncover and bake until cheese is completely melted, about 5 minutes. If you like, you can use extra sauteed mushrooms as a garnish.

Makes 8 servings.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

Every time a manufacturer of appliance comes out with a new feature on their product, they call it a "scientific breakthrough."

We have seen the coming of the see-through oven, the talking refrigerator, the thinking-woman's computerized stove top and the sweeper that does everything but dance backwards.

One more scientific breakthrough and I'm going to have a scientific breakdown.

Who wants to see their oven under glass? Why would a manufacturer consider corrosion a turn-on? It was always enough for me to open the door, grope through the darkness and be cheered when I still had room for a small casserole.

The "breakthroughs" will never give you a break. The newest accessory for refrigerators is a signal light that lets you know when it needs vacuuming underneath.

I don't know how it works but I can only suspect instead of the dust growing up through the refrigerator until it reaches the top under the phone book, it reaches level and shorts a light which goes on, signaling it is ready to be hauled away.

Let us be practical. If God had meant for us to clean under refrigerators, He would have given us yardstick hands.

I do not know anyone personally who does it, nor do I want to establish a relationship. They're probably people who wash their hands after they play with the dog and

COOKING IS FUN!

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
AP Food Editor

BROILED CHICKEN

It's a spicy version.
3-pound frying or roasting chicken, cut in 10 pieces
1/4 cup butter, soft
1 teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons dry mustard
2 teaspoons paprika
2 teaspoons curry powder
2 large cloves garlic, crushed
Wash and dry chicken.

With a spoon blend butter with the remaining ingredients; spread half of this mixture over underside of chicken and arrange, seasoned side down, in the bottom of a 12 by 9 by 2-inch broiler-proof pan without a rack. Broil 6 to 8 inches from high heat for about 20 minutes. Turn chicken skinside up and spread with remaining butter mixture. Continue broiling, basting once midway, until breast portions are tender — about 10 minutes; remove them and keep hot. Continue broiling remaining chicken, basting once midway, until tender and extremely brown — about 10 minutes longer. Pour drippings in pan over chicken and serve with rice. Makes 4 servings.

Changes In Cheese

It's that cool time of year when toasted cheese sandwiches and casseroles start to appear on the family table. If these foods are served often at your home, says Rachel Kinlaw, food and nutrition specialist at NCSU, experiment with cheese spread instead of cheddar cheese. "The pasteurized processed spreads can also be used in some combination dishes," she says. If you're not sure your family will accept the change, try the eight-ounce size of processed cheese until you're sure.

If you buy quickie breakfast foods, spend some time reading ingredient labels before making a selection. Remember, ingredients are listed in order of predominance.

First Lady Puts Rumor To Rest

NEW YORK (AP) — Nancy Reagan has laid to rest any rumors that might have arisen up after Washington gift shops started selling postcards showing the first lady dressed as a queen. "I never wear a crown," Mrs. Reagan joked Thursday at a dinner in New York City. "It messes up my hair."

During brief remarks at the annual Alfred E. Smith memorial dinner honoring the late New York governor, Mrs. Reagan said she wanted to tell the 1,000 guests about some of her activities, such as fighting drug abuse and supporting the Girl Scouts. "And then, of course, the Nancy Reagan home for wayward china," she quipped. Referring to criticism of the $209,000 set of state china purchased through private donations, Mrs. Reagan said she was just glad to be able to "make as much money as I did for the White House." "Ronnie thinks I did such a good job he wants me to help with the deficit."

Judy Ann Dezean, D.G. Woody Wed Saturday

BURLINGTON — Judy Ann Dezean and David George Woody were married Saturday at 3 p.m. at the Glen Hope Baptist Church here. The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Clarence C. Vaughn.

Mildred Horner was the organist for the ceremony and Faye Womble was the soloist. Other musicians were Doug Shaw, flutist, and June Riddick, pianist.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Kelly S. Dezean of Graham. Mr. George B. Woody of Clinton and the late Mrs. Ruth Woody are the parents of the bridegroom.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents. The honor attendant was Nita Castagna, sister of the bride of Graham. The father of the bridegroom was best man. The bride was dressed in a gown of antique satin trimmed in lace. The gown, made by the mother of the bride, had a fitted bodice and waist with a cathedral length train and veil. She carried a cascading bouquet of cymbidium orchids with wine throat, red roses and stephanotis.

Bridesmaids included Vickie Dezean of Graham, sister of the bride, Robin Parrish of Burlington, Judy Choquette and Freda Kramer, both of Greenville. The flower girl was Christy Castagna of Graham, niece of the bride.

Ushers for the ceremony included Paul Woody of Charlotte, brother of the bridegroom, George Stout of Fayetteville, Paul Greene of Greensboro and Ricky Williams of Greenville.

A reception following the ceremony was given in the church fellowship hall by the bride's parents. A rehearsal dinner, given by the bridegroom's father and stepmother, was held at the Holiday Inn, Burlington.

The couple will live in Greenville after a wedding trip to the Asheville area.

The bride, a graduate of Cummings High School, attended East Carolina University and studied business administration. The bridegroom, a graduate of Sanford High School, attended East Carolina University and has a B.S. and M.S. in biology. She is employed with Ferguson Enterprises Inc. and the bridegroom is a research assistant with the ECU School of Medicine, Department of Family Practice.

The wedding was directed by Mrs. Sarah Cobb and Mrs. Gayle Balliet presided at the guest register.

On The Young Side

By Lisa Wang

Named as one of 1500 semifinalists in the 1982 National Achievement Scholarship Program for Outstanding Negro Students is senior Curtis Edwards.

Based on scores from the PSAT/NMSQT taken in 1980, semifinalists were chosen from among 70,000 black students who took the test. They represent the highest scoring black students in their regional selection unit which is composed of several states.

In order to advance to the finalist standing, Curtis will be considered by a selection committee and will have to meet certain requirements: he must confirm his earlier qualifying test scores by taking another examination (SAT), demonstrate high academic standing, submit biographical information and a self-description, and receive a recommendation from the school principal.

Only finalists qualify as recipients of the 650-plus scholarships financed by grants from business and industrial sponsors, donor contributions, colleges and universities. Winners joining the 7500 other outstanding black students who have won Achievement Scholarships since the year the program began in 1965, will be announced in the spring of 1982.

Two students, Katherine Justice and Cathy Price, were named Commended

Students by the Achievement Program. Though their scores on the PSAT/NMSQT were below the level required to become semifinalists, Commended Students are placed in the upper seven percent of the total number of students to take the test.

The National Achievement Scholarship Program for Outstanding Negro Students parallels the National Merit Scholarship Program in procedure and form. Though administered separately, both programs are conducted by the National Merit Scholarship Corporation. Students participating in the Achievement Program can simultaneously participate in the Merit Program, but can receive no more than one monetary award.

Now is the time for this year's juniors to consider participating in such scholarship programs as the National Merit and National Achievement programs, for Tuesday, Oct. 27, marks the date of the first administration of the 1981 PSAT/NMSQT, to begin at 9 a.m. in the school cafeteria.

Suzanne Wille, vice president of Anchor Club, returns today after attending a four-day national Freedom Foundation Convention of Anchor Club members in Valley Forge, Pa. Because of her office this year, she will automatically be named president next year.

Recapping Homecoming Week events, Angela Atkinson and Shaela Ray were crowned as Homecoming Queens during half-time at the football game which Rose won with a score of 13-7 over Kinston. Winner of the float contest in the parade was the Junior Class float, followed by the Senior and Sophomore Classes floats.

Competing recently at Salem College in an audition sponsored by the North Carolina Music Teachers' National Association was sophomore Carol Moore. She was named alternate winner in the string division, based on her performance, technique, sight-reading, and theory in a 30-minute program before a panel of judges. The competition, beginning with the state level and advancing to the Regional and finally National levels, consists of several divisions in which to compete, such as piano, organ, voice, instrumental, or woodwind/brass. Carol is studying violin under JoAnne Bath and performs in the Rose High orchestra.

change the baking soda every year or so.

Frankly, I clean under my refrigerator every time we move and I've never found anything under there worth getting a hernia over. The last time we moved from the farm to the West, I uncovered a pencil stub, an iced teaspoon, two marbles, a cold tablet, a cluster of black globs that had been grapes in another life, two nails, a coat hanger, a skeleton (possibly mammal) and note reminding me of an appointment with my obstetrician. The kid was 14 yrs old.

I suspect there are talking stoves in our future, mixers that whimper, "Clean me," and washers that will flash OVERLOAD and give us a lecture.

I don't know about you, but if I wanted guilt, I'd call my mother.

Slide Show On Mississippi Painter

ECU News Bureau
The watercolor works of Walter Anderson, 20th century Mississippi painter, will be shown during a slide presentation and interpretive talk by Susan Donaldson of the East Carolina University faculty on Thursday.

The program is set for 4 p.m. in Room 224, Mendenhall Student Center, is free and is open to the public. Anderson, although a reclusive painter, was well known in the New Orleans area and in Mississippi and Tennessee. He completed about 8,000 watercolor paintings, many of which were discovered after his death. Trained at the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts in the 1920s, Anderson studied briefly in France, where he was strongly drawn to the prehistoric cave paintings at Las Eyzies. Eventually, he produced murals, block prints, sculpture and drawings, as well as watercolors. He was also associated with the family-owned Sherwater Pottery in Ocean Springs, Miss.

He is especially known for his paintings of Horn Island, one of the Gulf coast barrier islands.

Susan Donaldson, native of Georgia and specialist in American studies, is one of six scholar-consultants to the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts for the "Painting in the South" exhibition which will open in Richmond in 1983. She is completing a dissertation on romanticism and pastoralism in 20th century Southern literature and painting for the Brown University American Civilization program.

Arts Memberships On Sale

WILLIAMSTON — Memberships in the Martin County Arts Council are now on sale.

Memberships, priced at $5 per person, provide admission to the three remaining events of the season — the Vincent Phillips-Ned Gardner duo, the Apple Chill Cloggers from Chapel Hill and a dance recital by the Studio of Performing Arts.

People interested in more information and in purchasing memberships may write to: Martin County Community Schools, 300 N. Watts St., Williamston, N.C., 27892, or telephone 792-1575, extension 22.

Reservations are also being taken beginning Wednesday for performances of "Harvey." Tickets are $4 for the play only, Nov. 11-12, and $8 for the play and dinner Nov. 13-14. The play will receive two performances in Plymouth Nov. 20-21.

Date Change For Lecture

The date for an appearance by James Callaghan, former prime minister of Great Britain, in the ECU Lecture Series has been changed. Callaghan was slated to appear in Greenville on Monday. His appearance has been postponed until March 29.

The change results from acceptance by Prince Charles and Princess Diane of an invitation to visit his estate. The visit date falls on the scheduled October date of his lecture at ECU.

Photography Show At Gray Gallery

Photographers and anyone who finds pleasure in looking at fine examples of modern photography will enjoy "Contemporary Southeastern Photography" now on view at Gray Art Gallery, Jenkins Fine Arts Center on the East Carolina University campus.

The show of about 50 works by photographers from North and South Carolina, Kentucky, Georgia and Florida (plus one now living in New York) was organized by the Mint Museum of Art in Charlotte. The exhibition has been handsomely installed in Gray Gallery.

This show amply reveals the diversity of photography today. Here, there is not only traditional photographs, but images created through photographic processes mastered by innovative artist-technicians. For some the unaided camera is the sole instrument of creativity. Others use the camera as the principal stepping stone to complex and fascinating possibilities.

The technical knowledge displayed by these 18 photographers range from basic black and white picture taking through cibachrome, on to multiple processes and works printed by a photographic process on computer canvas.

These technical processes will appeal to specialists knowledgeable about various photo technology. However, the viewing pleasure afforded by these works is not in the least dependant on understanding techniques.

Many moods are established in these works. Dennis Carpenter's constructions are lyrical yet formally structured presentations of earth through the use of map cut-outs and landscapes formed of metallic powders and prismacolors. In one, he incorporates an oval of pale polished agate that carries out a marvelous counterpoint to the richer colors of other areas in the composition.

Blake Prayton's sharply contrasted photographs of dark and light areas are bold evocations of sun and shadow. Sam Wang's silver gelatin prints, circular framed, effectively focuses on and dramatizes the inherent interest in textures — the smooth whiteness of a nude's foreshortened body against darker, fragmented texture of grass.

Employing an intricate (and evidently demanding) process of a black and white negative printed on direct color paper, Evon Streetmann has created a stunning art work in "Idaho Rainbow." This photograph, designed in a combination of delineated segments, reflects lustrous colors on a metal auto wreck centered in a foreground field of golden grain that leads to mountains and a brilliant rainbow in the background.

Florida's Jerry Uelsmann, one of America's most innovative and poetic photographers, has a remarkable talent for bringing together the real world that exists around us and the fantasy world hidden in reality for those with the imagination to perceive this duality of existence. In the untitled landscape pictured on this page a tree in two variations descend (or do they arise?), hovering in the air within an encircling ring of snow touched hills. The opened bean pod resting beneath the surface of the water disturbs, but is not necessarily sinister. Another of his photographs depicts the interior of a lovely old-fashioned room, its occupants dreamily unaware of the great flow of clouds that constitute the room's ceiling. (Fanciers of Uelsmann's work can see more of his photographs in a book of his photographs).

The works cited are merely a hint of the attractions offered in this exhibition. Other photographers represented in the show are Donald Anderson, Suzanne Camp Crosby, William Eggleston, Robert Fichter, Steven Katzman, John McWilliams, Robert May, John Menapace, Suzanne Mitchell, Murray Riss, John Scarlata, Howard Spector, and Martha Strawn.

One of the photographers, Howard Spector, gave lectures at ECU on October 21 and 22. Spector is also scheduled to have a one-man show of his work at the Greenville Museum of Art later this year, and will give a gallery talk there on December 4.

The "Contemporary Southeastern Photography" exhibition will remain on view at Gray Gallery only through November 15. Gallery hours are 10-5 weekdays and from 1-4 on Sundays. The gallery is closed on Saturdays.

Sale Of Cartoon Cel Paintings Slated

Hundreds of animation cel paintings from Hollywood cartoons are being shown in a special exhibit and sale to be held at East Carolina University Thursday and Friday.

Exhibition hours each day will be from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. in Mendenhall Student Center, with the public invited to attend.

Animation cel paintings, called "cels," are the paintings actually filmed in making the animated cartoon. Each character is painted by hand on a clear sheet of acetate, usually 11 by 14 inches or larger, then placed against a background and photographed one-by-one to produce a reel of motion picture film.

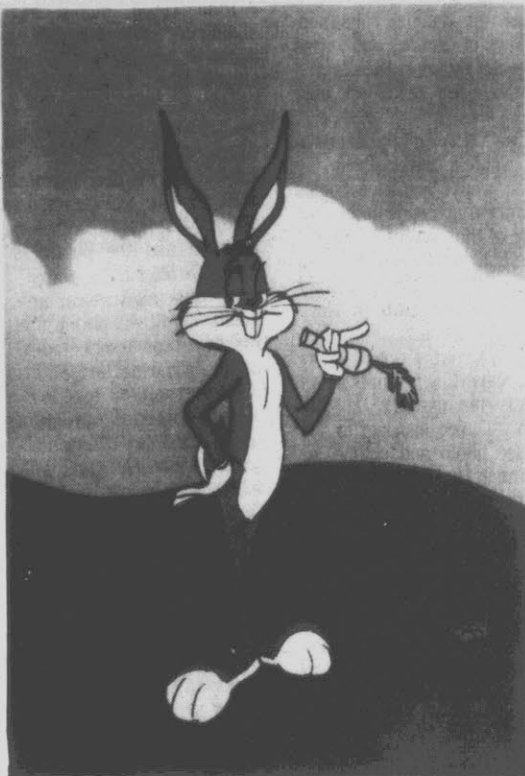

Cels are one-of-a-kind art, not prints or reproductions. They are the final image photographed by the camera.

The exhibit/sale will feature a selection of cels from feature-length Walt Disney films, including "The Jungle Book," "Robin Hood," "The Rescuers," "Winnie the Pooh," "The Aristocats," and the recently released "The Fox and the Hound." Original pencil animation drawings from some of Disney's early films of the 1930's and 1940's will also be offered.

Of particular importance at this exhibit is a collection of cel paintings featuring the popular Warner Brothers characters — Bugs Bunny, Daffy Duck, Wile E. Coyote, the Roadrunner, Pepe Le Pew, and the Tasmanian Devil. Some of these paintings bear the signature of Chuck Jones, widely regarded as one of America's foremost animators. Another well-known animated artist represented is Ralph Bakshi, creator of "American Pops" and "Wizards."

Permanent collections of animation art are included in the collections of major museums such as the Museum of Modern Art, the Metropolitan Museum of Art and the San Francisco Museum of Art. Original animation art was the subject of a two-month exhibit at the Library of Congress in 1978.

BUGS BUNNY... an original handpainted animation cel, is signed by Chuck Jones. An exhibit/sale of original cels from animated movie cartoons is being held from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. on Thursday and Friday at Mendenhall Student Center, with the public invited to attend.

A Review

Something New In Romances

Sands of Desire, (A Rhapsody Romance, Number 1) By Julia Hastings. Palm Beach Gardens, Fla. Valueback Publications, Inc. Paper (magazine format), illustrated. 70 pages, 99 cents.

Something new in reading experience hit American newstands markets in October. Down in Palm Beach Gardens, Fla., two men, Tom Kuncel and Mike Walker, left the financial safety of top jobs on the National Enquirer to put into motion a new publishing idea.

The new venture in publishing is a large format (10 x 12 plus inches) paper series to be published under the general title "Rhapsody Romances," designed to sell at a trifle less than one dollar — 99 cents to be exact. The romance novels will be on sale in supermarkets, drug and convenience stores.

The founders describe their brainchild as "a splashy marriage of the tabloid-sized magazine, the ordinary paperback romance novel, and action-packed pictures that conjure up your favorite TV series."

Their claim that "the result is a lavish, full color illustrated... romance novel" is true, judged on the basis of the No. 1 issue, a romance by Julia Hastings entitled "Sands of Desire."

About 50 photographs, mostly in full color, including a two-page boy-girl centerfold, one full-page spread, and numerous smaller shots — features professional models, touristic sunsets, and decorator smart interiors — all guaranteed visual eye-catchers.

This first issue, set in Hawaii, deals with a cast of characters easily manageable in a lightweight romance. Blake Whitlock, a famous "in" artist, is dark and ruggedly handsome. Melanie Calder, who loses her heart to Blake, is a TV newscaster, dark, slender and beautiful. The "other" woman in Blake's life is a possessive, sophisticated, sleekly beautiful silver blonde. Two other silver-gold types are Grace, fabulously rich and older but still ravishingly attractive, and Melanie's youthful boss, Roger, not so rugged, but handsome enough. Two characters provide abrasive touches to the scene. One is Tom, the Beatnik oriented, muscular, boyishly handsome brother of Melanie. The other, even more disturbing personage is a mystery woman in Blake's life whose existence threatens to destroy the idyllic dream flow of romance astrir between the two principals.

Of course, it all works out. Tom is saved (by Blake) from the path that leads to degradation. The mysterious woman, it turns out, fits neatly into the noble pattern of Blake's life.

Readers hooked on fashions will have a field day in "Sands of Desire." All the women (and the men to an alarming degree) are forever popping into an exceedingly become change of rags. The author lavishes loving descriptions on hair styles, makeup, material fabric, design and accessories.

"She wore her hair up on her head, in a mass of curls, with a curling tendrill in front of each ear."

"In his loose-sleeved blue shirt and jeans, he managed to look both informal and dashing."

Kuncel and Walker display a refreshing honesty about motivations behind the publishing venture. They make no bones about the fact the tabloid romances are unabashedly designed with a mass market female readership in mind.

Carol Cerny Romkey, one of the editors, comments: "We want to give women all the things they enjoy reading and seeing most. Not only will our readers get a beautiful love story, but we'll also give them pictures of our characters acting out the story in exotic locations with the latest fashions and hairstyles."

The layout and photography is first rate. In this initial novel, the writing is well structured and its glossy, breathless fast paced style is ideally suited to the stated purpose of the publishers. It can also be noted that the large clear type and generous margins make for easy reading — a

Poetry Winners Listed

ASHEVILLE — Phyllis Stump of Thomasville is winner of the Oscar Arnold Young Memorial Award of $100 for the volume judged as the best book of poetry published in North Carolina during 1980.

Her winning volume is entitled "The Heart Knows." Second-place winner in this category is Billie Varner of Lexington for her volume, "Woodland Footpaths."

Awards for the best volumes and for best individual poems in four categories were presented at the 32nd Poetry Day celebration of the Poetry Council of North Carolina. The annual meeting was held Oct. 14 in Asheville.

First, second and third place winners in the individual contests for cash awards of $50, $25 and $15 respectively, are:

The Virginia Dare Contest — Frances Robin Sibley, John Walter Hicks and R. Clayton Wactor.

The James Larkin Pearson Contest — Jean Ellen Magers, Nancy Adams, and Gerda Nischan. (Mrs. Nischan is from Greenville).

The Archibald Rutledge Contest — Ellen Turlington

Johnston-Hale, Katherine Nelson Davis, David Andrews.

The Charles A. Schull Contest — Dr. Louis E. Rorabacher, Burt Kornegay, Elizabeth Latham.

The annual candle-lighting service honoring North Carolina poets who died during the past year memorialized James Larkin Pearson, Paul Green, Guy Owen and Virgil Sturgill.

Poems from both winning books and a biennial compilation of winning poems will appear later this fall in "Bay Leaves 1980-81." People interested in information on securing copies can write to: Mrs. Carl Dan Killian Sr., Box 1959, Cullowhee, N.C. Those interested in information concerning contests are to write to: Miss Carolyn Kimzey, Route 1, Horse Shoe, N.C., 28742.

BALD HEAD ISLAND

Bald Head Island... the incomparable sub-tropical island retreat. Here as nowhere else the temperate zone flirts with the tropics. Palm trees reverently bow in respect to the regal live oaks who sometimes wear a crown of egrets nestled in their gnarled branches. Warm sunshine bathes the 14 miles of glistening white beach and an unsurpassed golf course curves lazily thru the forest and dunes. Home sites nestled in the woods and on the beach, provide that priceless privilege of charm and privacy. Overlooking the beaches, the surf and great ships passing by, the Bald Head Inn offers a banquet of casual hospitality for guests and visitors. Bald Head Island so alive with history, so full of the future; quiet, private, uncrowded, serene in its majestic splendor.

Many discerning people think the fall of the year is the most beautiful at Bald Head Island. The moderate climate provides opportunity for fishing, strolling on the beach, tennis and golf. For information and reservations for this very special place at this special time of the year, contact Bald Head Island Corporation, P.O. Drawer 11058, Southport, North Carolina 28461. Varied Week Of Center Fare

TRIBUTE TO NIJINSKY... Ballet star Rudolf Nureyev is shown in a scene from "Afternoon of a Faun," the Emmy Award-winning performance with three dances made famous by Nijinsky recreated by Nureyev and The Joffrey Ballet. The Dance in America production will be aired from 8 to 9:30 p.m. on Monday over Channel 25, Greenville, a channel of UNC-Chapel Hill Public Television.

CHAPEL HILL — The Center for Public Television, UNC-Chapel Hill, has lined up a week of exciting and varied fare to be aired during the last week of October. Details on a few of the outstanding programs to be broadcast over Channel 25, Greenville, are:

Sunday — 2 p.m., repeat of part 3 of "A Town Like Alice," a six-part dramatization of Nevil Shute's novel about the romance of two prisoners of war whose romance begins during the Japanese takeover of Malaya and ends in the vast Australian outback; 7 p.m., "More of that Nashville Music" with Janie Fricke, Johnny Russell, Eddy Raven and Don King; 8 p.m., "Locusts: War Without End," a documentary on desert locusts that devour all in their path. A Nova feature; 9 p.m., Episode 4 of "A Town Like Alice."

Monday — 8 p.m., "Requiem for a Crown Prince" shows how the suicide of Prince Rudolf at Mayerling prompts a love nest coverup undermining the Austrian dynasty (another episode in Fall of Eagles); 9 p.m., "Dance in America," a Great Performance production (see photo and outline for details); 10:30 p.m., Artist Freidenreich Hundertwasser talks about his life, his work and the relationship between architecture and lecturing in the nude.

Tuesday — 7:30 p.m., Roy Underhill's topic is "You Need a Shaving Horse," another in "The Woodwright's Shop" series; 8 p.m., Carl Sagan's Cosmos takes a look at "Blues for a Red Planet" through the use of special effects and photos taken by the Viking spacecraft; 9 p.m., "Bath Waters," an Odyssey special, explores the excavation of England's famous spa to learn about the Romans who built the baths 2,000 years ago; 10 p.m., an adult fare special, a six-part series revealing the loves of the notorious Casanova.

Wednesday — 8 p.m., a Smithsonian special, "Monsters! Mysteries or Myth?" investigates the Loch Ness Monster, the Abominable Snowman, and Bigfoot; 10 p.m., the Mudra-Afric dance school in Dakar, Senegal combines regional African dance and music with classical ballet for a startling new concept of dance.

Thursday — 8 p.m., "The Dragons of Galapagos" is the subject of a Jacques Cousteau special; 10 p.m., in "Peace and Quiet," Michael seeks a quiet place and finds a new roommate.

Friday — 9 p.m., in the Enterprise series, the topic is "Bankrupt: Is There Life After Bankruptcy?" 10 p.m., the focus this week in "Ten Who Dared" is on "Captain James Cook," who in 1768 sailed in the "Endeavour" to explore the South Seas.

Saturday — 1 p.m., Soccer Made in Germany features Bayern Munich vs. Bayer Uerdingen; 2 p.m., "The Last Mile" is the feature film in the Matinee at the Bijou series, plus shorts, a 1933 cartoon and episode 4 of Gene Autry's 1930s serial, "The Phantom Empire"; 8 p.m., June Carter and Carl Smith perform in Classic Country; 9 p.m., Orson Welles' brilliant early 50s film, "The Third Man," starring Welles, Joseph Cotton, Alida Valli and Trevor Howard is this week's "Hooray for Hollywood" selection.

Book News

By Willie Mae Gibbs

Gordon Parks, noted photographer and author of an autobiographical novel, "The Learning Tree," has written a new book that is exciting and memorable.

Set in New York during the year 1913, "Shannon" is a story of passion and fate that takes the reader from the mansion of New York's wealthy Irish to the drab rooming houses of the working-class poor they employ as it traces the lives of two couples ensnared by their dreams.

The war in Europe, a distant rumble for most Americans, spells immense profit for the self-made, ruthless Meath Sullivan. He attempts to exploit a brilliant but struggling industrial genius, Kevin O'Farrell, to modernize his plant. Introducing the handsome young man to his daughter, Shannon, proves to be a mistake when the extraordinary beauty who was to marry into even greater wealth falls in love with the poor engineer and marries him against Meath's wishes.

Interwoven with the O'Farrells' fate is that of another family: Hannibal Jones, a college-educated black man and his lovely wife, Phoebe. Hannibal once saved Kevin's life, but tragedy overshadows all his efforts to repay the debt. Even as Kevin's fortunes propel him from his modest tool shop to an industrial empire of his own, his once radiant wife edges toward madness after the death of their firstborn child.

Equal in its portrayal of striking workers in the street and rustling on ballroom floors, "Shannon" is a tale of romance, vengeance, and tragedy.

In his new book, "The Love Hunter," Jon Hassler has created for his readers a story that is assuredly a novel of suspense, but also a beautiful and startling description of nature and human feeling.

Two thoroughly decent people, Chris MacKenzie and Larry Quinn, are caught by circumstances they cannot control. Every fall they go duck hunting together. This year's hunt is different from all the rest. Larry is terminally ill, dying a slow and humiliating death.

While they are in the marshes Chris plans to stage an accident that will be a mask for the murder of his best friend. But there are many doubts in his mind. Does he have the ability to kill another man? What happens if he wants to marry that man's wife? Where do you draw the line between an act of love and a crime of passion?

Tardif Recital Monday

Paul Tardif, pianist and member of the keyboard faculty in the school of music, East Carolina University, will perform in a recital of Russian Piano Music at 8:15 p.m. Monday in the A. J. Fletcher Recital Hall on the ECU campus. There is no admission charged and the public is invited to attend.

In this all-Russian program, Tardif will play works by two composers, Alexander Scriabine and Sergei Rachmaninoff.

He will open the program with Scriabine's "Four Preludes, Opus 22" and will follow with "Five Preludes, Opus 74." Tardif will then complete the Scriabine portion of his recital with two works — "Deux Poemes" and "Sonata No. 5, Opus 53." After an intermission, Tardif will perform four works by Rachmaninoff. The first is "Variations on a Theme of Corelli, Opus 42." The final three selections are all earlier Rachmaninoff works — "Prelude in E-Flat Major, Opus 23, No. 6"; "Prelude in D Minor, Opus 23, No. 3"; and "Etude-Tableau in D Major, Opus 39, No. 9."

Tardif has performed this program earlier during October on two occasions as guest artist at Atlantic Christian College and at N.C. Wesleyan college.

Tardif received his formal training with Cecile Genhart at the Eastman School of Music where he received the Performer's Certificate and a first prize in the International Piano Guild Competition. He completed his doctorate in piano at Peabody, studying with the renowned American pianist, Leon Fleisher. After a successful tour of Poland for the U.S. State Department, Tardif studied in Munich, Germany, as a recipient of a Fulbright Grant and was awarded the coveted artist's diploma from the Salzburg (Austria) Mozarteum. He has performed extensively in recitals, concerts and as guest pianist with several orchestras.

Roxy Sponsoring Halloween Gala

The Roxy Theatre on Albemarle Avenue in Greenville will again be the site of a Halloween gala this All Saint's Eve.

The Roxy organization, a non-profit group aimed at bringing arts and crafts back to the building used as a theater in the past, will sponsor the party, scheduled for Saturday from 9 p.m.-2 a.m.

"What we are trying to do," said Bill Shepherd, a spokesperson for the Roxy organization, "is work with the new owner in an attempt to bring back art and craft shows to the building." The Roxy organization lost ownership of the theater two years ago.

"This Halloween party serves two basic purposes," he noted. "First, it gives local performers some exposure. Second, it is stimulation to folks to dress up and be creative."

A prize will be given for the best costume. Judging will be done by members of the East Carolina University Art Department.

Admission is $5 per person for the public and $4 per person for Roxy members. All proceeds, reported Shepherd, will help sponsor the Green Grass Cloggers Day.

Four local bands, the Gillespie Hamer Band, the Blue Plus, Lightning Wells and Studio, are volunteering their time for the event. Sandy Steinberg, who made the videotape of the Pointer Sisters during their performance at the Attic last February, will be sound engineer.

Tokyo, the capital of Japan, is the third largest city in the world, with a population of about 8½ million people. Only Shanghai and Mexico City have more people.

Mark Harrell Senior Recital

Mark Harrell of Kinston, a senior in the school of music, East Carolina University, will present his senior recital in trumpet at 7:30 p.m. Friday in the A. J. Fletcher Recital Hall. There is no admission charged and the public is invited to attend.

Harrell will be accompanied by pianist Patricia Faltz. For his program, he has listed two works — Barat's "Fantasie" and Hindemith's "Sonata for Trumpet and Piano."

1981 Europa Stamps

By SYD KRONISH
AP Newsfeatures

One of the most popular annual issues is the "Europa" sets produced by European nations in conjunction with CEPT (Conference of European Posts and Telecommunications).

The Netherlands, one of six countries to initiate such stamps when first introduced in 1956, has now issued a new set of two Europa stamps for 1981 with the theme "Folklore."

The 45-cent depicts a carillon, one of the oldest mechanical musical instruments. The colors are ochre, brown, blue and black. The carillon, which was first played in the Netherlands and Flanders, still characterizes the music played from towers in the Low Countries, and as such is an essential part of Dutch folklore.

The 65-cent features a barrel-organ, which first appeared on the streets of Dutch towns about 80 years ago. The colors are brown, blue, red and black. The barrel-organ is sometimes referred to as a street organ, since it is operated by turning a handle as it is pushed through the streets. These street organs, still seen today in pedestrian areas of the Netherlands, are an important part of folklore in that country.

Piedmont Orchestra To Perform

The Piedmont Chamber Orchestra will be in concert at 8 p.m. Monday, November 2 in Hendrix Theater, Mendenhall Student Center. Tickets are priced at $5 and may be purchased at the door or in advance from the Central Ticket Office, Mendenhall Student Center — telephone 757-6611, extension 266. A professional ensemble that incorporates faculty artists from the North Carolina School of the Arts, the Piedmont Chamber Orchestra was formed in 1968 with the help of the Rockefeller Foundation and the Foundation of the N.C. School of the Arts. Recognition of the excellence of the orchestra is manifested in invitations to perform at the inauguration of the John F. Kennedy Center in Washington, D.C. and in performances at Lincoln Center in New York, as well as in major concerts from Detroit to Miami.

Nicholas Harsanyi, who was founder and former conductor of the Princeton Chamber Orchestra, is the Piedmont's director. George Trautwein is conductor and artistic director.

The repertoire of the ensemble consists of a legacy of solo and concerti grosso instrumental music of the 17th and 18th centuries including the work of the Bach family, Mozart, Hayden, Handel, Vivaldi, Corelli, Telemann and many other composers.

THE PIEDMONT CHAMBER ORCHESTRA, conducted by George Trautwein, will perform in concert at Hendrix Theater, Mendenhall Student Center, at 8 p.m. on Monday, November 2. Tickets are priced at $5, available from Central Ticket Office or at the door prior to performance.

By The East Carolina Symphony Orchestra

First Concert For Season Set

"Roman Carnival Overture" by Berlioz; and Respighi's "Pines of Rome."

The East Carolina Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Robert Hause, will perform its first concert of the 1981-82 season at 8 p.m. Nov. 1 in the Memorial Gym on the ECU campus.

There is no admission charged and the public is invited to attend on a first-come, first-seated basis.

Four members of the school of music faculty will be featured in the performance of Mozart's "Sinfonia Concertante." These are David Hawkins, oboe; Deborah Chodacki, clarinet; James Parnell, French horn; and Jon Pederson, bassoon.

Other compositions to be performed in this concert are: Mozart's Overture to "The Magic Flute;" the and horn — the Jahn find indicates clarinet instead of flute.

Respighi's "Pines of Rome," composed in 1924, is the second of a series of symphonic poems in which Respighi celebrates the ancient dignity and grandeur of the Eternal City. The four sections are played without pause, and depict life scenes in Rome at four intervals of the day. The first is about children at play, dancing in circles, playing at soldiers. The second depicts the shades of the pines fringing the entrance to a catacomb, with the sound of mournful singing in the air. Then comes a moonlight night scene with a nightingale singing among the pines of the Janiculum. The final section pictures a misty dawn on the Apian way, where solitary pine-trees guard the landscape. The muffled, ceaseless rhythm of unending footsteps is followed by trumpets announcing a consular army bursting forth toward the Sacred Way, mounting in triumph to the Capitol.

WOOW Classics

Karen Hause's weekly WOOW Classics program for Sunday nights this week features an interview and performance by a well-known Greenville musician, pianist Paul Tardif, a member of the East Carolina University School of Music faculty. Tardif will perform the "Sonata No. 5" by Scriabin.

Recorded selections for this program are: Mozart's "Symphony No. 40;" a "Trio Sonata" for recorder, oboe and continuo by Telemann; Satie's "Two Gymnopedies;" "Concerto de Aranjuez" for guitar and orchestra by Rodrigo; and airs and dances of the Italian Renaissance.

WOOW Classics airs each Sunday evening from 10 p.m. to midnight. WOOW is 1340 on the radio dial.

Carolina Today

Carolina Today is now 22 years old and the week's program opens with hosts Slim Short and Susan Roberts and special host Hal Moore cutting a birthday cake at the early hour of 6:40 a.m. on Monday. Other acts to follow this celebrant opening for the week are:

Monday — 6:45 a.m., Ross Persinger, mayor of Ayden, tells why Ayden won the Governor's Award of Excellence; 7:15 a.m., Albert Potts, director of the Onslow County Museum, on outstanding relics of North Carolina.

Tuesday — 6:40 a.m., John Daniels of the Carteret County Chamber of Commerce with facts on the Aqua-fest; 6:45 a.m., Healthbreak; 7:15 a.m., Greg Moll, portrait artist, will sketch Susan, Slim and Hal during the show.

Wednesday — 6:40 a.m., a talk about Halloween; 6:45 a.m., Penny Mieggs, superintendent of Currituck Schools, is the Education Spotlight guest; 7:15 a.m., Bob Hause, director of the ECU Symphony, discusses the orchestra's activities. A video tape of a performance will also be aired.

Thursday — 6:40 a.m., Mike Ernest and Kathy Westbrook will talk about the program for the deaf at ECU; 6:45 a.m., home extension agent Linda Aycock previews the Coastal Plains Arts and Crafts Show; 7:15 a.m., Dr. Allan Barker and Dr. Harold Blair with the latest developments in contact lenses.

Friday — 6:40 a.m., "Getting Ready for Halloween" has Slim and Susan carving a pumpkin; 6:45 a.m., plant doctor Eddie Harrington shows ways of scaring plants into another year's growth; and 7:15 a.m., "Halloween! Ghost Stories and Kids."

On Top Of It All

WASHINGTON — Hosts Kay Currie and Lee Kanipe will be entertaining music, education and wildlife personalities on their morning show, "On Top Of It All Today," during the coming week. The show is aired each weekday morning beginning at 9 a.m. on WITN-TV, Channel 7, Washington. The calendar is:

Monday — Dr. Harold Doster, president, Atlantic Christian College, Wilson, will discuss ACC's sports program. A second guest, Tim Hergenrader of the N.C. Wildlife Commission, will talk about outdoor sports available in North Carolina forests.

Tuesday — Robert Hause, director of the East Carolina University Symphony, will present video highlights of the orchestra in concert. He will be followed by Evelyn Roper, home economics extension agent for Wayne County, who will provide tips on household money savings.

Wednesday — First guests are Re and Sam Sjoström of Elm City, who will talk about an annual doll show. Also appearing Wednesday will be Mrs. Robert Saunders, chairman of the third Oriental Women's Club Bazaar, with details on the event.

Thursday — Loonis McGlohon, composer-pianist-TV personality, native of Ayden now working in Charlotte, will talk about his work and his Nov. 13 concert in Washington. Rose Lewis and Judy Myer of the Beaufort County Arts Council will join McGlohon with details on the concert.

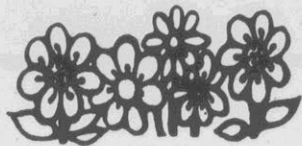

Friday — Halloween is Friday's theme, with a look at a fashion show of childrens costumes, a pumpkin carving demonstration and a look at Disney World's Haunted House.

Concert Today

The 52-member ECU Symphonic Wind Ensemble, directed by Herbert Carter, will perform its fall concert at 8:15 p.m. Sunday in Memorial Gym on the ECU campus.

A special feature of the program will be the performance of "Suite from Holocaust" by Morton Gould.

Charlotte Sets Dance Schedule

CHARLOTTE — Dance Charlotte has announced details on its 1981-82 season, with four subscription performances, and six special events scheduled.

Tickets for the four subscription performances are now on sale. They are priced at $48 for main orchestra or mezzanine; $38 for back orchestra or orchestra left and right; and $28 for balcony.

All performances (both series) are accessible to the physically handicapped, and those wanting this service are to indicate special seating on ticket requests.

The four subscription series, to be held in Ovens Auditorium, are:

Nov. 12 — The Pennsylvania Ballet in a full length classical ballet, "Coppelia," with the Pennsylvania Ballet Orchestra.

Jan. 18 — Paul Taylor Dance Company, featuring "Le Sacre du Printemps (The Rehearsal)" in the version prepared for Nijinsky's rehearsals for the original 1913 production.

March 6 — the North Carolina Dance Theater, the state's professional company.

April 3 — A Dance Gala, with Patricia McBride and Helgi Tomasson of the New York City Ballet, the Charlotte Ballet and the Reflections Dance Company in a varied program to include a premiere performance of a Salvatore Aiello ballet.

DICTIONARY UP-TO-DATE?

STAMFORD, Conn. (AP) — A quick check of a few words can determine if a dictionary is up-to-date.

Waldenbooks, one of the nation's larger booksellers, suggests checking to see if these words are included: frag, black hole, quark, preppie and laser.

Almanac Calendar

WASHINGTON — Sports and school programs are among topics to be discussed with guests during the coming week on "Almanac," the early-evening morning show aired at 6 a.m. each weekday over WITN-TV with hosts Dick Jones and Jim Mallory. Details are:

Monday — ECU basketball coach Cathy Andruzzi will talk about her highly successful season last year and the prospects for the 81-82 season.

Tuesday — Herman Gatewood of Chowan College is the guest. He will discuss communications programs in radio, newspaper and television offered by Chowan.

Wednesday — Pravin Shukla of Nash Technical Institute will give facts on improvements in the school's program.

Thursday — Susan Hardy of the N.C. Egg Marketing Association with details on new egg dishes.

Friday — Members of the ECU football coaching staff will give their views on the team's weekend game to be played against the Mountaineers at Morgantown, W. Va.

Writers To Meet Tuesday

The second meeting in October of the Greenville Writers Club will be held beginning at 8 p.m. Tuesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Raynor, 2106 Pendleton St.

People interested in creative writing are invited to attend.

Holley Watercolor In Raleigh Show

Bill Holley, faculty member in the school of art, East Carolina University, has a watercolor entitled "Flow Chart" selected for exhibition in the 18th semi-annual competition of the Watercolor Society of North Carolina.

The show at the Student Center, N.C. State University in Raleigh, opened on Oct. 18 and will be on view through Nov. 1.

First place award in the show went to Stephanie B. Carleton of Chapel Hill for her watercolor, "Another Washday Miracle."

Springs Top Winner Named

LANCASTER, S.C. — Thomas E. Flowers, an art professor at Furman University, Greenville, S.C., is the recipient of the best-of-show $2,000 purchase award in the 23rd Springs Art Show. His winning entry is an oil sketch entitled "Dacusville."

The annual competition this year drew 977 entries from artists in North and South Carolina. From that number, 37 entries were selected as the Springs 1982 Traveling Art Show, which will travel the two Carolinas for a six-month itinerary following the close of the exhibit at the Lancaster National Guard Armory on November 1.

HORN OF DOOM
NEW YORK (AP) — A dagger with a rhino-horn handle has become a veritable sword of Damocles for the huge animal.

The biggest buyer of the rhino horns is the tiny Arab country of North Yemen, which imports as many as 1,000 a year, according to World Environment Report, an environmental newsletter.

Because of soaring prices, poachers are killing the wild beasts indiscriminately.

YARD FULL OF MONSTERS . . . Each year the Robersons populate their big front yard with an assortment of monsters garnered from books, movies and legends, plus a few of their own imagining. In another part of the yard, the family has created a cemetery complete with plywood tombstones and a coffin with Count Dracula.

WITCHES BREW AND . . . the suspenseful question is whether this fashionably attired witch will throw the baby doll into the pot of gourds brewing at her feet. The ape man behind her seems to be making a mute appeal — hopefully a plea to save the little one from a terrible fate.

HARVEST TIME RICHES . . . such as this pile of gourds and a couple of pumpkins are appropriate brown and gold accents to a roll call of Halloween characters.

BEWITCHING WITCH . . . A baby-faced doll up a tree is appealing rather than frightening despite the peaked witch's hat and broomstick transportation.

The Roberson Family Halloween Yard

Every year in early October, Martin County farmer Alonza Roberson, his wife Mary and their children take time out from housework, harvest and school to decorate the large front yard of their farm home with a fascinating assortment of familiar monsters as well as a few of their own conceiving.

Theirs is not an assemblage of ready-made decorative figures purchased from stores. Except for face masks and wigs, the figures are of their own creation. Mary saves old clothes — dresses, hats, men's suits, gloves and discarded jewelry. Alonza salvages pieces of plywood, boards and boxes to build coffins, tombstones, and supports for the life-size and larger characters.

Just before peanut harvest time, the family once again take on the project of fashioning a fairy tale front yard display. If they want to feature a creature not generally associated with Halloween, that's no problem. They simply include him along with the others.

Gourds and pumpkins are gathered and piled around nearby trees. Bales of hay and corn stalks are put into use as props for some of the figures. Crape myrtles, apple trees and a bower of vines in the yard are ideal stage settings for the figures.

Hay and cloth remnants are used to stuff clothing to shapes best suited to each individual. Some are contoured to be whimsically elongated or ape man muscled. The lady loves of Count Dracula and the witches are given svelte figures, fashionably dressed. The devil and Dracula are invariably represented as dapper males sporting capes and gloves.

When all is in place, Alonza strings lights into the yard. He spotlights the figures so that they show to dramatic advantage at night.

Over the past few years, people traveling U.S. 64 between Williamston and Everetts have become accustomed to the annual reappearance of the Roberson family's gathering of Halloween people. The pageant of figures has now assumed the status of a local tradition.

HUMAN ADMIRERS . . . Pam Roberson, daughter of Alonza and Mary Roberson, and her friend Eddie Coltrain, pose with a Count Dracula whose lady victim lies lifeless in his arms. Pam is a junior at Williamston High School, and Eddie is a recent graduate of West Carteret High in Morehead City.

A PILLOW FOR HIS COMFORT . . . is provided this coffin occupying Dracula, who sports a wig of tousled hair, a chalk white face and ruby red cellophane eyes. Next to his coffin, a slim brunette stands by wistfully, holding Dracula by one hand, with her other hand placed prayerfully over her heart.

New Insulin Pump Helps Keep Diabetics' Blood Sugar Constant

By WILLIAM FOX

ROSEMOUNT, Minn. (UPI) — Eldon R. Anderson started giving himself insulin injections for diabetes in the first grade.

"My mother and teacher told me I had to learn how to do it," he recalls. "For a while, others gave me shots but I learned how to do it by the time I finished the first grade."

Anderson, who runs a janitor service in Minneapolis and St. Paul, grew up on a farm near Pepin, Wis., and knew when he was very young that he had to stick with shots and tests just to stay alive.

"I was sick a lot," he said.

But Anderson, who is now 33 and lives just south of the Twin Cities in Rosemount, is very excited about a new medical tool which has made life much easier and much better for him.

"I have a 'bionic pancreas' I carry in my pocket," he said. "This replaces the four or five daily insulin shots I have needed since childhood."

The big thing about the device, which is actually a small hand-held pump, is that it helps keep the blood sugar at a more constant level.

"I feel more normal more of the time," he said, "there is not those peaks and valleys and I feel the pump will help prevent more serious problems such as blindness later on in life."

Anderson, out-going and enthusiastic by nature, is eager to help other diabetics. But he says the new gadget is not for everyone.

He said he is only one of a handful of people in the Midwest who have such an external pump which provides a continuous supply of insulin to the body.

"I persuaded my doctor to fit me for the pump in April," Anderson said. "Before the pump I was taking as much as 127 units of insulin in four and five shots a day and still could not maintain proper control. Now on the pump, my insulin requirements have dropped to 73 units of insulin each day."

He wants more doctors and all health insurance companies to take a closer look at the pumps.

"The pumps are not a cure for diabetes, they are not even close, but it helps give better potential for control and that is the key," Anderson said. "I think this pump is the best thing to become available for the diabetic in this decade."

At the Juvenile Diabetes Foundation in New York, a spokesman said the pumps are "generally regarded as an advance in treatment, an important advance." But doctors are often reluctant to put patients on the pumps and insurance companies consider them experimental and won't pay the cost of about $1,100.

Only about 800 of the machines are currently in use in the United States, according to Anderson. He said, "the companies should realize that the machines are cost-effective in maintaining a hard to control diabetic such as myself."

The pump has two delivery methods. The first, called a basal dose, provides a continuous flow of insulin signaled by a faint beep every few minutes. In Anderson's case, 28 percent of his daily insulin intake is delivered by this method.

The second method of insulin delivery is called the bolus dose, requiring Anderson to push a button 30 minutes before eating his three meals and three snacks. Using the bolus dose, Anderson gives himself 14 percent of his daily insulin before meals and 10 percent before snacks.

The machine has three safety features. The pump sends out an alarm and stops running instantly if it malfunctions. If the battery runs low, a light flashes and a buzzer sounds. The third safeguard is a buzzer that sounds if the tubing clogs and stops the machine.

Anderson is required to take his blood sugar reading four to five times a day by pricking a finger and placing a drop of blood on a test strip that he inserts into a dextrometer. This machine gives a digital readout of his current blood sugar reading and is accurate to within 5 percent.

Some diabetics need only to stick to a certain diet or to stay on a diet along with limited insulin shots. These people would have no need for the pump, which medical technology is still perfecting, Anderson said.

But many others, especially those like Anderson who got the disease as a child, could benefit from the device.

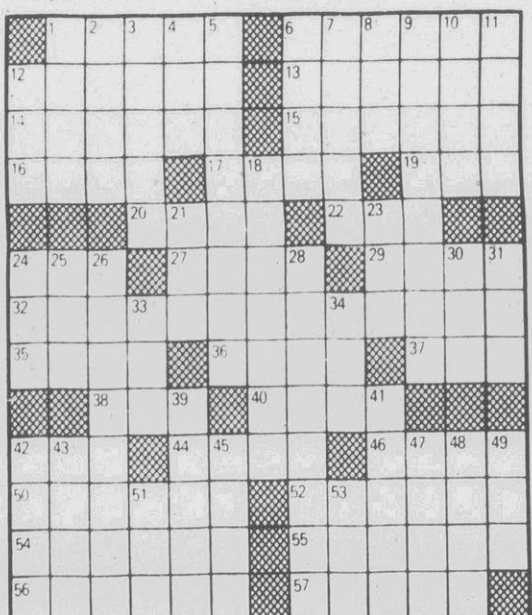

His pump was made by the Auto Syringe Co., Hooksett, N.H. It measures about 3 by 5 inches and weighs just under 10 ounces. The pump, which can be concealed in a pocket or worn on a belt, is powered by a 7.2 volt rechargeable battery which is replaced each day.

Anderson replaces a disposable syringe each morning. This syringe connects to a 42-inch plastic tube with a three-quarter inch needle at the other end which he inserts into his abdomen. He said he changes the tubing each day and also rotates the injection sites on his abdomen.

GOREN BRIDGE

BY CHARLES H. GOREN AND OMAR SHARIF
1981 by Chicago Tribune

DEAR MR. GOREN

Q.—I know that opponents' preempts are supposed to cause problems, but in my case, those problems seem to be especially acute. In particular, I don't know how to react when partner makes a takeout double. I always seem either to underbid or overbid, and it's costing me a lot of points. How about some help?—J. O'Reilly, Boston, Mass.

(This question has been awarded the weekly prize.)

A.—There really is no reason why this should be so. Partner's double of a preemptive bid is for takeout, and basically the same system of responses apply as over a one-bid, except that they have to be modified slightly because of the level at which you are forced to act.

Let us examine the problem logically. Since partner's takeout double of a preemptive bid will force you to bid at the three- or four-level, obviously it has to be stronger than would be a takeout double at the one-level. As a rule, the doubler should be about a king stronger than he need be for a double at the one-level. In other words, it should show the equivalent of about 16 points.

Therefore, we can presume that the preemptor and the doubler between them have about 22-26 points. That leaves only about 14-18 points combined in your hand and the other opponent. Thus, partner can reasonably expect something like 6-8 points in your hand.

With this in mind, responding to his double becomes relatively simple. If you have 6-8 points, you have only what partner expects you to hold. Therefore, you should do no more than simply bid your longest suit at the cheapest level. If you have any more than that, you can reasonably expect to make game and you should bid it in your longest suit, or make a cue-bid if you want partner to choose a suit on those hands where you have support for at least two of the unbid suits and no clear-cut choice of your own.

With some strength, a balanced hand and no clear-cut action, it might be right to convert partner's double to a penalty double. You do not need a trump stack for this action, and partner should realize that you may not have great length in the opponent's trump suit—after all, the opening bidder has shown a seven-card suit and there is no reason to suppose that his partner is very short in the suit.

With positive values and a sure stopper in the opponents' suit, you might want to play three no trump, especially if your long suit is a minor. But be wary of a holding such as Q-x-x; all too often one of the high honors will turn up in opener's partner's hand, and if you try three no trump, the opponents will reel off the first seven tricks. With that type of holding, it might be wiser to leave in the double and elect to defend.

Sometimes you just cannot get to your best contract after an opposing preempt—that is its purpose, and at times the opponents will succeed with their barrage. Be happy if you can obtain the best result possible, rather than the best possible result!

Charlotte Says Council Success

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)—The Greater Charlotte Chamber of Commerce says its Small Business Action Chamber has been a success.

Chamber chairman Brand Worley said the council has completed 12 months' work in 10 months.

Jerry Hancock, the chamber's community development manager, told the board of directors Wednesday that more than 300 people have been involved in small-business seminars, discussion sessions and meetings, double the goal of 150. More than 12 seminars, double the goal, have been held on subjects of special interest to small businesses.

Attaching laminated plastic to a table top, counter or similar flat surface can transform a drab piece of wood into a colorful, smooth, eye-catching article.

The attachment is generally made with contact cement, although a variety of other adhesives can be used. What gave contact cement its instant popularity during the '40s and '50s was that it permitted bondings of this nature to be made without the use of clamps or other holding devices.

Suddenly, two pieces of wood — or a piece of wood and a sheet of laminated plastic — could be held together securely merely by pressing them together and applying a little pressure with the hands. For large items, a small roller, of the type used for wallpaper seams, worked even better than hand pressure.

There was no questioning the term contact cement. It bonded immediately on contact. That tremendous asset also had a disadvantage. When you brought two materials together, you had better be very certain the pieces were aligned properly. If they weren't, you couldn't get them apart again.

This propensity of contact cement to bond instantly and firmly is the very advantage that makes necessary a special technique when attaching a large sheet of laminated plastic to a table top, piece of plywood or similar surface. It is almost impossible to hold such a piece of plastic over a table top and lower it into position without being off a fraction of an inch, which is disastrous on that kind of project. The item that keeps you from such trouble is nothing but a piece of brown paper. You can buy special paper where you get the plastic, but I have used ordinary brown wrapping paper with good results.

Cement the two surfaces to be joined. Allow the adhesive to dry according to the directions on the container, usually 15 to 20 minutes. When it is dry, place the brown paper on the wood so that it covers it. Do this carefully and you will find that you can maneuver the paper without it sticking to the cement. Now lightly place the plastic into position. Again you will be able to get it exactly right without anything sticking.

Lift one end of the plastic. Bend down a corner of the paper and press down the plastic so that it fits perfectly on the wood. Now you will be able to slip out the brown paper from the bottom, just an inch or two at a time, as you press down the upper portion of the plastic. Within a few minutes, the attachment will be complete. Remember that it is important the first bonding at the top be correct. Once that has been done, the alignment can never be disturbed because of the ability of the adhesive to hold tightly on contact.

Once laminated plastic has been bonded properly to wood, it holds indefinitely. To prevent the wood from warping over a period of time, many woodworkers seal the side of it opposite the laminated plastic to prevent the entry of moisture. If that side is already finished, a sealer is generally unnecessary, but don't forget that moisture entering the edges of wood also can cause trouble. The edges can be painted, finished with veneer tape or moulding, hidden with metal stripping or trimmed with edges of the same laminated plastic.

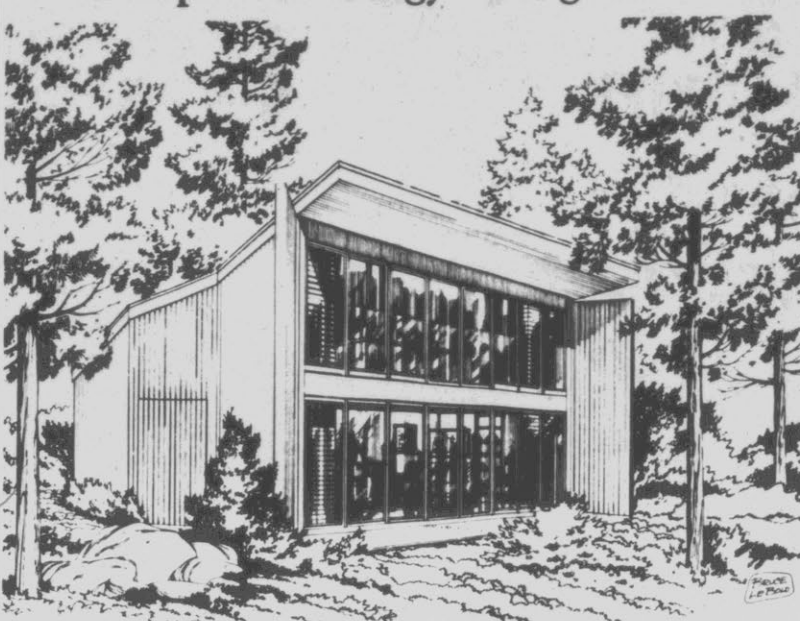

(Home handymen will find much valuable information in Andy Lang's handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," available by sending $1.50 to this paper at Box 5, Teaneck, N.J. 07666.)

Your leisure time is precious and no one wants to spend their vacation or get away time worrying about maintenance, upkeep or utility costs. Solar energy has come into its own now with the ultimate in a vacation retreat. Easy to care for and inexpensive to maintain, who could ask for anything more?

Just the thing for a hunting lodge, summer and or winter cabin or family retreat. This economical energy efficient, open living design features unique solar advantages. The entire south wall is made of glass which gains direct heat from the sun while two full length thermal walls release heat slowly at night. For cheerfulness and additional heat a "free standing" fireplace is located in the center of the room. Moveable hinged walls on the front and back help control the solar effectiveness of this charming little retreat. A ladder gives easy access to the sleeping loft located at one end of the retreat. Kitchen facilities are arranged for maximum effectiveness and storage areas are readily available as is the roomy bath.

Q. — We have an old dining-room chair that I would like to refinish. Is it better to put on a clear finish or paint?

A. — No way to answer that unless some questions are answered. What kind of chair is it? What kind of finish does it have? Is the wood of good quality and appearance? What about the other chairs in the room? What is the general decor?

Q. — My husband's father says that the reason we and other people have so much trouble with humidity these days is because houses have too much insulation in them. He says there was never any such problem years ago when houses had little or no insulation in them. Is he right?

A. — Yes. The installation of insulation, weatherstripping and other devices to keep heat in and cold out has resulted in so-called "tight" houses. When moisture has no place to go, it condenses on cold surfaces. Sure, this means problems, but with the price of heating fuels and air conditioning being what they are, most of us could not afford to heat or cool our houses if they were not well insulated and weatherproofed. There are many steps we can take to keep a house airtight (reasonably airtight, that is), and yet provide enough ventilation to enable moisture to escape. One of these is a sufficient amount of sizable vents in the attic.

Q. — I live in an apartment where I can hear almost every noise in the apartment next door. If I attach panels of an absorbent material to the wall, will that help to keep out the noise?

A. — Not very much. You would have to build a separate wall away from the present one in order to provide a space for the noise to dissipate, an impractical idea for an apartment. Such a wall on the other side would do more good. So would some draperies or other absorbent material placed on the neighbor's wall. It's a lot easier to keep noise within an area than it is to keep it out.

Q. Every year my sweet potatoes rot about the middle of winter. How can I prevent this? (G.C., Ashboro)

A. Most sweet potatoes rot during storage because of rough handling during harvest. Scarring and bruising during harvest not only detracts from the appearance but allows germs to enter the flesh. The quality of sweet potatoes can never be higher than it is at the time of harvest. Your only hope is to maintain this quality; you cannot improve it. Therefore, harvest your potatoes to prevent bruising. Cure them promptly by keeping them at 85 degrees and 90 percent humidity for four to seven days.

Q. When should I prune my climbing clematis and how is the best way to root a new plant? (V.P., Fayetteville)

A. The climbing species of clematis such as c. paniculata should have sufficient old growth removed to keep them trained or in bounds. This can be done as soon as the flowers fade. It is important to know which class the particular vine belongs to as some are best pruned in February. Propagation can be either by seeds, cuttings in the spring or by division of roots in the fall.

Q. I saw some trees growing in downtown Charlotte that looked like boldcypress. I thought baldcypress grew only in swampy areas. (T.H., Charlotte)

A. Large baldcypress trees are growing on the Biltmore Estate near Asheville and they have been successfully planted as far north as Massachusetts.

The ancient city of Pompeii was completely covered by the volcanic eruption of Mount Vesuvius in A.D. 79. The remains of about 2,000 victims of a population of 20,000 have been found in excavations of the city.

Designers Offer Public Service

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

Whether the client is wealthy or poor, the functional problems are basically the same when either consults an interior designer.

What is different is attitude.

"Poor individuals are much less jaded and much more appreciative," says Janet Schirn. Heretofore, not very many of the poor have had a chance to consult designers. But if Ms. Schirn has her way, individuals and groups without access to professional designers soon may gain entree.

The Chicago-based designer has been the moving force behind a new community service program which the American Society of Interior Designers is sponsoring.

Ms. Schirn says the steps taken so far by the professional group include publication of a book providing designers with a blueprint for community involvement on many levels and a series of workshops to be held in seven cities this fall and during 1982.

The aim is to encourage local chapters of ASID as well as individual members to offer service in their communities.

According to Ms. Schirn, designers are already working with the disadvantaged, the aged and handicapped, and providing guidance and other services to institutions such as hospitals, day-care centers, drug-treatment facilities, correctional institutions, schools, community centers and libraries.

As advocates, designers have spoken up for landscape beautification, for threatened landmark buildings and for consumer protection, particularly in the areas of fabric flammability and home furnishings product labeling.

Contrary to popular opinion, the smaller the quarters and the lower the budget, the greater the need for a designer, says Ms. Schirn. That is because designers are trained to take a humanistic point of view, to ask the questions that will make the environment truly responsive to human needs. She says society has been putting the cart before the horse by restricting access to design services to those who can pay.

The designer began conducting seminars on community service as an ASID member six or seven years ago. Recent events have led her to believe that "we are on the threshold of greater involvement of designers in their communities. When I first began giving these seminars, only 10 or 15 individuals would attend."

"At one conference recently, 80 people came. Furthermore, I am being stopped at conventions by designers who want to tell me success stories about their own or their chapters' involvement in the community," she said.

A $15,000 grant from the National Endowment for the Arts, matched by a similar donation in money and time from ASID, has made possible further development of the program. Besides Ms. Schirn, 11 other ASID members are now trained to lead community development seminars.

The grant also helped a small group of workers to collect details about the types of community betterment projects in which various ASID chapters and individuals have participated.

Among some typical examples, Ms. Schirn cited the design of a model theater for the handicapped, lobbying for art works in public places, the design of a cooperative grocery store and the redecoration of a hospital burn ward.

The Chicago chapter helped get state funding for interior repairs to a state school for the retarded, while a southern chapter scrubbed and repainted a long tunnel connecting two hospital facilities and then redid the hospital's cafeteria.

For the benefit of Goodwill Industries, the Georgia chapter decorated a six-room home with second-hand furniture and welcomed 4,000 visitors to the home in a weekend, demonstrating how to reclaim similar low cost finds.

Middle class buys Thrift shop operators in Columbus, Ohio, said the economy is attracting middle income and younger customers.

Marge Piacent, manager of three Children's Hospital thrift shops in the Ohio capital, says many are college age.

Maj. Graham M. leSturgeon of the Volunteers of America said more middle class people are buying more clothing than ever before.

"We used to have clientele that was real poor," he said.

We put our foot down about apartments being within walking distance.

Wedgewood Arms apartments are within walking distance of three shopping centers, a nursery school, a junior high school, doctors' and dentists' offices and an athletic center.

As if that wasn't enough, three major traffic arteries, 264 Bypass, Arlington Blvd., and Charles St. are close enough to be seen and heard.

Fact is, no apartments in town can legitimately claim to be more convenient to more things than Wedgewood Arms.

And, that's not all. Because Wedgewood Arms is not only convenient, it's different in other ways, too.

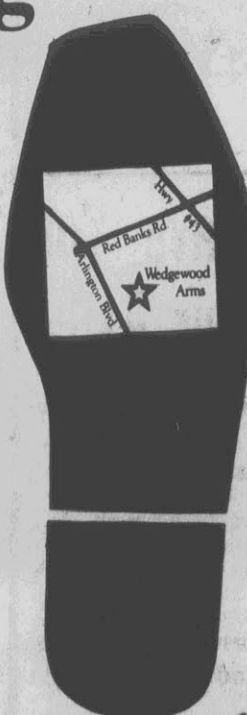

Take the floorplans: they're different from anything you've ever seen. And when you add in high energy efficiency, tennis courts, swimming pool, and the neighborhood "feeling" that these apartments will give you — well, you'll just have to see for yourself.

Call us for an appointment today.

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The daytime finds it easy for you to put across ideas of considerable scope. An ideal time to be outspoken about your true goals. Be more optimistic about the future.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Plan how to advance in career matters. Communications from a distance require that you make prompt decisions.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Engage in a new activity that can help you have added income in the future. Show that you have outstanding ability.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You have excellent talents and can now put them to work and gain added benefits. Much care in motion is important now.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Try to be more thoughtful of those you come in contact with today. Be more concerned with your health.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Good day to catch up on correspondence you've been putting off for some time. Take on a more optimistic outlook on life.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Begin the new workweek properly by forging ahead where career matters are concerned. Make plans for the future.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You have fine ideas that can help you to advance, so waste no time in putting them in operation. Think constructively.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Plan how to discharge agreements best and in an orthodox fashion, then carry through. Use more common sense.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Give more attention to associates today and help them with their aims. Show more devotion to loved one.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Study your work schedule well and you can then accomplish a great deal today. Stick to the tried and true.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Be more encouraging to others and gain added goodwill. Use tact and diplomacy in handling a business matter.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You know what family members expect of you, so try to please them to the best of your ability. Express happiness.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one who can think very fast in an emergency and one who can combine mental ability with physical dexterity. Be sure to send to college where the most can be made of these talents and capabilities.

Doles' Lifestyles Show Influence Of Job Power

By MAUREEN SANTINI
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — When the head of the Blind Veterans' Association wanted the White House to comply with a list of demands for his organization, he went to Elizabeth Dole.

When Lupe Angiano wanted to inform the White House about her program to help women get off welfare and into jobs, she went to Elizabeth Dole.

And when President Reagan wanted business, labor, minorities, professional organizations and everyone else to support his economic package, he went to Elizabeth Dole.

Reagan, of course, didn't have to make a special trip. Persuading organizations of all stripes to support Reagan's policies — or at least not work against them — is Elizabeth Hanford Dole's job.

But Mrs. Dole, the highest ranking woman in the White House — her office is on the second floor in the West Wing — takes it seriously. That's her nature, according to someone who should know — her husband.

Since Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, married the North Carolina native in 1975, they have become one of the nation's most visible high-powered career couples. And their lifestyle reflects it.

"She leaves earlier than I do in the morning," says Dole, who helped the administration push its tax and budget cuts through Congress while his wife lobbied for support for the same economic package with labor, business and nearly every other organized group in the country.

The 12-hour day Mrs. Dole regularly puts in is a hectic series of meetings with Reagan's other top aides, her own staff, and the varied organizations she tries to keep happy.

One recent day, for example, she spoke at an awards ceremony with Nancy Reagan.

Many items in this ad carry a reference retail price. This reference is intended to provide a guide to the range of retail selling prices in our selling area and may be useful in identifying different units of the same manufacturer. An item's reference retail price is either the manufacturer's suggested retail price or our determination of its full retail price based on prices at which it or similar merchandise is offered by principal retailers (department stores, specialty shops, and other non-discount sellers) in our selling area. While we believe our reference retail prices do not appreciably exceed the highest retail prices at which sales are made in our selling area, we cannot assure you that our reference retail prices, as described above, represent the prices in every community on any given day. Some items in this ad are listed as "regular" selling price. The merchandise is offered at this price except during a special sale. The purpose of showing a reference retail price (or a regular price) is to assist you, our customer, in making a knowledgeable and better informed buying decision. We suggest that you also do comparative shopping and compare our prices.

Life As It's Lived

By GAIL MICHAELS

Organized activity cramps Meg's style. It's not that she enters into the activity in question with the wrong attitude. It's just the activity never quite lives up to her expectations.

She was, for example, insistent on dancing lessons. I did everything I could to talk her out of them. Dancing was hard work, I told her. Suddenly, she adored hard work.

Lessons were expensive, she would have nothing to show for her birthday but a pair of pink slippers and a sleazy black bathing suit with sleeves. She couldn't wait.

But within five minutes after the first class started, she changed her tune, her enthusiasm waned visible for the intricate exercises which she executed with her tongue stuck straight out and with all the agility of a three-legged elephant.

I was surprised that this intense concentration didn't result in a headache. As it was, she was complaining all too soon of other aches and pains. "My legs hurt, my back aches. Aren't you going to let us rest soon?" she moaned to her teacher at every possible opportunity.

She began to sink to the floor after each exercise. Her teacher was obviously irritated. Finally, the teacher snapped, "Which one is your mother?"

I raised my hand reluctantly. "Is it absolutely necessary that I claim her?"

"Does she have some physical disability which would explain this behavior?"

"Yes," I answered. "She's allergic to instruction."

Meg told me later that what they had done was not dancing at all. She wanted to leap and to twirl, not to squat like a frog.

"Before you learn to dance, you must master the exercises the teacher showed you," I tried to explain. "Dancing is not all fun. It also requires quite a bit of self-discipline."

No truer words were ever spoken. Meg is not amenable to discipline of any kind. When she first entered school she was ecstatic. She expected to learn to read "The Secret Garden" all by herself within the first week. How she was going to do this was not a cause for concern. She evidently believed that the atmosphere of the school itself would have a beneficial effect on her brain. Her discovery that there was nothing magical in the school-room air almost devastated her.

"School is boring. All it is is rules, rules, rules," she announced after the first day.

I hid my disappointment. Little did she know how fervently I had wished that she would enter the ranks of the bright-faced kindergarteners who bubble over with enthusiasm at the mere mention of school. "You have to give it a chance."

She did. Two weeks passed before she pronounced final judgment. "School kills the imagination. Children would be much better off if they could stay home and educate themselves."

"Is that so?"

"Yes, it is. Here I can do anything I want to, and so my mind is completely free to think."

"Meg Michaels, you know very well that you can't do everything you want to here. And what's more," I added, hoping that building school up at my expense would change her attitude, "at home when you do something you're not supposed to or don't do something you are supposed to do, I yell and scream and act like an old witch, but your teacher is always very nice."

"That's true," Meg conceded, too quickly I might add. "But eventually you get tired of saying no. My teacher never does."

Dressing the part. Appropriate dress, she said, includes comfortable shoes, layered apparel so "you can unpeel once you get inside where it's warm and you're active. But never wear anything you treasure if you mean to take it off: my raincoat was sold and gone minutes into a sale..."

She prefers pockets to a purse — and uses a hidden safety pin to fasten pockets containing money or other valuables.

A tape measure or steel tape and a pocket magnifier are also handy, she says.

This advice is just the tip of the iceberg in Mrs. Weill's book. Other topics she discusses with wit and savvy include how to safeguard things you're thinking of buying, when to bargain and how to spot the best stores, flea markets and auctions.

AT THE TROPICANA, THE DEAL ISN'T ONLY AT THE TABLES.

There's one hotel in Atlantic City where you don't have to be lucky to get a good deal.

We offer two plans where the odds are way in your favor.

And the entire experience at The Tropicana is in your favor, too. Because the feeling is very reminiscent of Monte Carlo. The lobby, the casino, the lounges, all feel more like the South of France than the Coast of Jersey.

That's why we call our special accommodations The Monte Carlo Plan.

Call your travel agent or The Tropicana at 609-340-4200. And stay at the one hotel where nothing is left to chance.

202 BELVEDERE. Belvedere Subdivision. 3 Bedroom, 2 bath brick ranch with den with fireplace and carport. Fenced back yard. LOAN ASSUMABLE at 9 1/2% with 23 years remaining, outstanding balance approximately $31,500, principal and interest payment of $278.63. Purchaser may refinance with 10% down at 13 1/2% fixed rate for 30 years with principal and interest payment of approximately $583.00. $56,500

410 LEE STREET. Cherry Oaks Subdivision. 4 Bedrooms, den plus recreation room, screened porch, carport, and wooded fenced lot. This home is one of the best, if not the best value on the market, in it's price range. It has been previously appraised and the price is far below the appraised value. With over 2500 square feet this home is priced at less than $31.50 per square foot. Now is your chance to purchase a home at a very low price. $79,900

408 LANCELOT. Camelot Subdivision. 4 or 5 Bedrooms, 3 baths, double garage, and beautiful wooded lot. The purchaser may assume the loan of approximately $40,700 with 26 years remaining at 13 1/4% with approval plus 1% on unpaid balance or 14% without approval plus $100.00. This is a FIXED RATE assumption. Seller will consider a Lease/Purchase Agreement. This home has over 2000 square feet of heated heating/cooling with GE Weathertron Heat Pumps. $75,900

200 SUMRELL. Cherry Oaks Subdivision. 3 Bedrooms, 2 bath quality-built brick ranch. Williamsburg decor with lots of decorative, custom features. Over 1800 square feet plus deck and outside storage. Heating/cooling with energy efficient heat pump. Owner will consider Lease/Purchase Agreement. $79,900

200 EVANSWOOD. Cherry Oaks Subdivision. 3 Bedrooms, 2 baths, great room and dining room. This home was chosen as the Home Builders Association Parade Of Homes Winner. Top notch construction. Heating/Cooling with heat pump. Previous owner's utility bill averaged less than $70.00 per month. Nearly 1800 square feet plus double garage makes this home an excellent value. $74,500

25 TUCKER DRIVE. Rosewood Subdivision. New home with rustic cedar siding. Greatroom with Casa Blanca fan and energy-efficient Majestic fireplace with stone profile. Lot is large enough to add carport or garage. Possible Federal Land Bank Financing or Owner will consider Lease/Purchase Agreement with only $2,000 down and $400/month rent. This home was judged as one of the Home Builders Association Parade of Homes Winner. $58,500. Call for directions.

William Inge's Story Of Tragic Love

Two sensitive teen-agers wrestle with strict sexual mores and parental pressure in 1928 Kansas, in "Splendor in the Grass," a television adaptation of Elia Kazan's 1961 film. The drama airs on NBC's Monday Night at the Movies on Oct. 26 (9-11 p.m.).

Deanie Loomis (Melissa Gilbert) is a "nice" middle-class girl, headed for emotional collapse. Bud Stamper (Cyril O'Reilly), captain of the basketball team, vents his frustrations on the court. The couple plan to marry and live on a ranch after their high school graduation, but Bud's domineering oil-rich father, Ace (Ned Beatty), won't allow it.

Bent on controlling his son's future, Ace urges the confused boy to attend Yale for four years and then join the Stamper Oil Company. Ace pins all his hopes on Bud.

The family problems are aggravated by Ginny (Michelle Pfeiffer), the promiscuous daughter, who rebels against Ace's tight-fisted control and meets an untimely end.

Deanie stays true to the Victorian values stressed by her quietly domineering mother (Eva Marie Saint), who is blind to her daughter's anguish until the girl suffers a breakdown.

Miss Gilbert considers her character of Deanie to be "my most grown-up role yet." She added that "Splendor in the Grass" is the first time she has acted in a tragic love story. Miss Gilbert is familiar to most viewers from her role as Laura Ingalls Wilder on NBC's "Little House on the Prairie."

Miss Gilbert also enjoyed playing a more contemporary character. "It's still not easy being a teen-ager," she sighed. "Times have changed some, but not as much as many people think. People are more open about sex today, but they don't discuss it in depth with teen-agers. They just say, 'Oh, it's great. But wait until you're older.'"

Marriage apparently has no appeal for Miss Gilbert at this point in her life. "I think marriage would be one of the most foolish things I could possibly do. It would wind up tragically. I'm too young, too flighty and have too many things I want to do before settling down."

Miss Saint described her character of Mrs. Loomis as "a product of a Victorian age."

MELISSA GILBERT, AS DEANIE LOOMIS, and Cyril O'Reilly, as Bud Stamper, have a rough time making their romance click in the strict environment of pre-Depression Kansas in the new World Premiere production of William Inge's famed drama "Splendor in the Grass," airing Monday, Oct. 26 (9-11 p.m.), on NBC-TV.

An Updated FBI Series

Mike Connors stars as Ben Slater, who, aided by his elite team of special FBI agents, seeks crucial evidence against a high-ranking member of organized crime, in "Today's FBI." Airing as The ABC Sunday Night Movie on Oct. 25 (8-10 p.m.), this episode serves as the premiere of this new show about modern-day crime-fighting techniques.

Tony Lo Bianco stars as tough mobster Joey D'Amico, local president of a waterfront union and national vice president of the Stevedores Association of America. D'Amico has been linked to many crimes on the waterfront, from labor extortion to murder, but he has never been indicted, the result of having many political connections.

However, when the life of Pete Kositchek (Paul Sorvino), the owner of a company on the docks, is threatened, and one of his employees murdered, Kositchek decides to come forth as a private citizen to help the FBI nail D'Amico and his henchman, Vincent Tigner.

Veteran FBI agent Slater is assigned to gather top-flight agents to get the evidence needed on D'Amico and Tigner so they will finally be brought to trial.

In the course of the team's efforts, Slater discovers that his brilliant undercover agent, Nick Frazier (Joseph Cali), has fallen under the influence of D'Amico and his partners. Having posed as D'Amico's chauffeur, Nick gains D'Amico's trust, and unfortunately, becomes too emotionally involved. After learning about Nick's difficulties, Slater thinks about taking him off the case.

When Frazier's real identity accidentally becomes known to MIKE CONNORS (forefront) is cast as a veteran FBI agent who handpicks an elite team from the Bureau to fight crime and corruption. This dramatic series, inspired by actual FBI cases, also stars, from left, Joseph Cali, Richard Hill, Harold Sylvester and Carol Potter as FBI agents in "Today's FBI," airing Sunday, Oct. 25 (8-10 p.m.), on ABC-TV.

D'Amico, the young agent's life is in great jeopardy.

AT GARMENT CARE

Wool
 Wool, a popular fabric in everyone's winter wardrobe, is a natural animal fiber that is obtained by shearing sheep and lambs. A warm and comfortable fabric, wool absorbs moisture easily without making the wearer feel cold. A CLEANER WORLD offers you the following information about wool to help you care for this popular fabric.

Wool is a resilient fabric—it retains its shape very well. When drycleaning wool, special care is required to prevent felting shrinkage. This is why professional care is often recommended for wool garments.

When pressing wool, care must be taken because the fabric will become harsh at 212°F and will scorch at 400°F. Because wool is a natural fiber, it is also readily attacked by moths and carpet beetles unless the fabric is treated to resist them.

A CLEANER WORLD suggests that you let their staff of professionals care for all of your wool garments.

Trying To Find His Children

James Caan stars in "Hide in Plain Sight," a dramatic thriller based on the true story of a Buffalo, N.Y., stone mason who undertakes a frustrating, heart-rending search for his two missing children, who have been abducted by the U.S. Department of Justice under a witness relocation program. The film, which was released theatrically in 1980, will make its television debut on Wednesday, Oct. 28 (9-11 p.m.) on CBS.

It is the late 1960s in Buffalo, N.Y. A small town hoodlum, Jack Scolese (Robert Viharo), in jail for a petty holdup, is persuaded by the police to turn informer. The information he provides leads to the conviction and imprisonment of two organized crime bosses. In return, under the federal government's witness relocation program, Scolese is granted a new identity, in a secret location.

The informer vanishes along with his new wife, divorcee Ruthie Hacklin (Barbara Rae), and her son and daughter. Ruthie's former husband, stone mason Thomas Hacklin (Caan), discovers that his children have disappeared, but when he tries to locate them, he is thwarted by the police and government authorities.

For a year and a half, Hacklin desperately searches for his kids, battling the wall of silence surrounding the case. He retains a lawyer, Sal Carvello (Danny Aiello), who pursues all legal remedies. Hacklin also is aided by his new sweetheart (Jill Eikenberry), who becomes his second wife, and his factory buddy, Matty Stanek (Joe Grifasi), who helps fill the void left by Hacklin's absent family.

As Hacklin hunts down the hiding place of Scolese, he in turn is followed by mobsters intent on eliminating the informer for having squealed on his associates. When Hacklin finally locates the house in which Scolese is hiding, he must contend with the mob and the government agents trying to protect Scolese from the hoods. The resulting confrontation leads to a tense gun battle.

Three Decades Of Music

"American Bandstand" has been on television for an incredible 30 years. To celebrate the occasion, host Dick Clark is presenting "American Bandstand's 30th Anniversary Special," to be broadcast on Friday, Oct. 30 (8-11 p.m.) on ABC.

This unprecedented special features performances by Barry Manilow, Stevie Wonder, Rod Stewart, Kim Carnes, The Oak Ridge Boys, Frankie Laine, The Righteous Brothers (reunited for the first time in six years), Connie Francis, Little Richard and The Beach Boys.

As a special feature, a mammoth, one-time-only, all-star band will play "Rock Around the Clock" along with an historic videotape recording of Bill Haley and the Comets. The ad hoc band includes Stanley Clarke, George Duke, Johnny Rivers, Charlie Daniels, Dwane Eddie, Bo Diddley, Doug Kershaw, Boots Randolph, Mick Fleetwood, Mickey Gilley and Jerry Garcia.

The anniversary celebration also features taped highlights of moments on "American Bandstand" that launched the careers of musical stars spanning three decades. Included are such stellar names as Elvis Presley, Barbra Streisand, Elton John, The Rolling Stones, Glen Campbell, Nat "King" Cole, Johnny Mathis, Johnny Cash, Bobby Darin, Jim Croce, Buddy

23 Celebration

DICK CLARK SITS ON A SYMBOLIC "30" to mark the celebration of his three decades as host of America's longest-running and most popular teen-age dance show on "American Bandstand's 30th Anniversary Special," airing Friday, Oct. 30 (8-11 p.m.), on ABC-TV.

Holly, Aretha Franklin and Conway Twitty.

"American Bandstand" first aired as a local program based in Philadelphia. In 1957, the show went nationwide on the ABC Television Network. One of the recording artists appearing on that initial show was Billy Williams, whose "I'm Gonna Sit Right Down and Write Myself a Letter" was a current hit. The number one record on that date was The Coasters' "Searchin'" and the dances performed by the kids on the show included the lindy and the jitterbug. Since its premiere, "American Bandstand" has been on the air for more than 5,000 hours, played in excess of 60,000 records and showcased more than 9,000 musical performances.

Clark began his broadcasting career at Syracuse University in 1947. After graduating he became a staff announcer of WOLF in Syracuse. After several other announcing jobs, he joined WFIL radio in Philadelphia. When he became the host of that station's "American Bandstand," his career skyrocketed. The rest, as they say, is history — and 30 years of it, at that.

Engaged To Marry

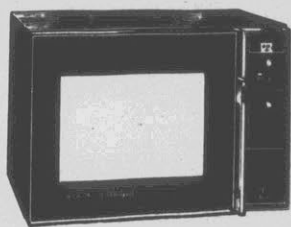

Two new engagements for Harley Venton, the young actor who plays attorney Derek Colby in "Guiding Light": first, along with his role on the popular serial, Venton has been chosen to understudy a role in the Broadway production of Beth Henley's Pulitzer Prize-winning play, "Crimes of the Heart." The second engagement was a more personal one: the actor recently became engaged to be married.

Double Billing

Actor Charlton Heston will direct his first project in nine years, "Mother Lode," a Canadian film in which he also acts.

Houston, Pittsburgh In AFC

On Monday, Oct. 26 (9-11:45 p.m.), "ABC's NFL Monday Night Football" will feature the Houston Oilers against the Pittsburgh Steelers. After the first six weeks of play, the Oilers and the Steelers were tied (4-2) with the Cincinnati Bengals for the AFC Central divisional honors.

Houston beat the Los Angeles Rams, the Cleveland Browns, the Cincinnati Bengals and the Seattle Seahawks, and they lost to the Miami Dolphins and the N.Y. Jets.

Oiler quarterback Ken Stabler is at the helm of the Houston offense. After the first six weeks of play, he threw 61 completed passes for 775 yards. He also threw seven touchdown passes, while tossing only four interceptions.

Stabler's favorite receiver has been Ken Burrough, who led the Oilers in receptions for six consecutive years (1974-1979). In 1980 Burrough injured his right knee during training camp and did not come off the injured reserve until early November. In his second game, he broke his wrist diving for a pass and was out for the season. Consequently, Burrough managed only two receptions all year. This year Ken has made 15 catches for 336 yards and five touchdowns, the longest of which was a 71-yarder.

Pittsburgh is recovering from a slow start this year, after losing their first two contests to Kansas City and Miami. However they have come on strong in the last four weeks defeating the N.Y. Jets, and New England Patriots, the New Orleans Saints and the Cleveland Browns.

Pittsburgh has a well-balanced team that has endured tight divisional races in the past. Quarterback Terry Bradshaw is the field general for the Steeler offense. So far in 1981 Bradshaw has thrown 97 completions for 1,488 yards and eight touchdowns, including three to Lynn Swann and two to John Stallworth.

HOLLYWOOD — BARBI BENTON could be called a "regular guest star" cast member of "FANTASY ISLAND" — she has been asked back for her ninth guest appearance on the popular series.

NBC has found a new niche for RONA BARRETT on their primetime schedule. She will be hostess of "TELEVISION INSIDE OUT," an entertainment news magazine, set for Saturday night.

Cast and crew were shocked by INGRID BERGMAN's first appearance on the set of "A WOMAN NAMED GOLDA" because of her startling resemblance to the late GOLDA MEIR. Wearing a wig, her body padded in all the right places and special makeup, she was met by a stunned silence — when suddenly the dozens of crew members spontaneously burst into applause for BERGMAN who appeared delighted by it.

MACDONALD CAREY, star of "DAYS OF OUR LIVES," will have a book of his poetry published by Coward-McCann in June of 1982. The book "Out of Heart," represents four years of writing by the actor who says, "I'm as proud of this as I am of anything I've done in this business."

GREGORY PECK has finally agreed to film a movie for television. His dramatic debut will be made in the mini-series "BRUCE CATTON'S THE BLUE AND GRAY," portraying Abraham Lincoln.

BURT REYNOLDS became the 106th personality to be immortalized in concrete at Mann's Chinese Theatre in L.A. He wrote, "To the public who made all this possible, Lov Ya, Burt Reynolds."

Coal mines: A burning issue.

FOR THOMAS P. FLYNN Jr., Chief, Branch of Applied Technology and Demonstrations U.S. Bureau of Mines

How many fires are burning in abandoned coal mines in the U.S.? How long will they burn and how can they be put out? —B.R., Trenton, N.J.

● In 1977, the Bureau of Mines recorded 261 fires along exposed coal outcrops and in abandoned coal mines in 16 states. If not detected and controlled early, these fires can burn for several decades, endangering lives and causing millions of dollars in property damage and loss of valuable energy resources. Several methods can be used to extinguish the burning materials. One method is to dig out and extinguish the fire. Another technique is to blanket the earth above the fire with clay to seal off oxygen from the burning material.

FROM THE "ASK" EDITOR

Eileen Fulton, star of TV's As the World Turns, compares her love life on TV to the one she has in real life: "I've had 33 on-screen lovers in the 21 years I've been on the show. In real life I've had only two husbands." Of her last husband, Donato Ernesto Umberto Fortunato, she says, "By the time I had learned how to spell and pronounce his name, I had divorced him." Her eeriest experience was re-living on the show what had happened to her in real life: "When I left Danny, I ran away to a small place I had known in earlier, happier days. When I arrived in the dead of a stormy night, the hotel was deserted. When I got back to the show, my script showed that 'Lisa' had run away too, and the hotel she headed for, in a bad storm, was also abandoned."

As her worlds turn.

FOR ANNE MEARA, featured star of Archie Bunker's Place

Do you and your husband (Jerry Stiller) wash your linen in public the way many show biz couples do? —M.J., Vancouver, Wash.

● We stopped that after we worked together, and everything went wrong. After the show, Jerry and I went out for pancakes and in the middle of a heated argument I sent a pile of blueberry pancakes flying, all over us, syrup and all. No more arguments in public since.

FOR BROOKE SHIELDS, star of Endless Love

Was there one precise moment when you realized you were a famous person? —W.L., Cheyenne, Wyo.

● There was never one moment. It was gradual. It has really been in the past couple of years — after seeing all the stuff that gets written about me — that it's started to sink in; I guess before I was too young. Now, when I look around and see all those newspaper and magazine stories, it's spooky and I feel I'm seeing and reading about another person, not me.

FOR NEIL SIMON, playwright and co-producer of Only When I Laugh

Are you thinking of ditching writing in favor of producing? —A.K., Odessa, Texas

● I really don't want to be a producer. I have no desire to produce anybody else's material. What I want is to have control over my own material, making sure that what I write gets a fair shake. I was co-producer on Only When I Laugh, but once the decisions were made, I went back to writing.

FROM THE "ASK" EDITOR

● Woody Allen and Rudolf Nureyev have one thing in common — neither one removes his hat while eating. Woody keeps on his early-Depression-style battered brown fedora and, at New York's Russian Tea Room, Nureyev's favorite watering hole, his fur cap stays glued to his head... George Hamilton made a big dent in his Zorro, The Gay Blade profits by buying Charlie Chaplin's million-dollar Beverly Hills manse (then he put up for sale his $1.2 million, 16-room Mississippi mansion)...the shower-room scene in Porky's, a new movie about the sexcapades of high school students in the 1950's, will make Angie Dickinson's explicit shower sequence in Dressed to Kill look like a kiddie-pool workout... Princess Margaret has a new beau, a 54-year-old business executive. Formerly the head of a restaurant chain, he now runs a small publishing company. Pals of the Princess report, that she has a "settled-down" look... Eugene Derosa and Fortune Gallo would not recognize the building they designed 52 years ago, as the home of the San Carlo Opera. It is now Studio 54.

FOR HANK KAPLAN, editor, World Wide Boxing Digest

How do you feel about Muhammad Ali making a comeback? —E.W., Bronx, N.Y.

● He is one of the most superb athletes in the history of boxing and for that reason it would make me very happy if he would abandon the idea. I would like to see him go out as the legend that he is but it is strictly for him to decide. If he decides not to, I would like to see Ali become an emissary to the young people of the world. He would be a great and powerful teacher.

PRO Representative Henry J. Hyde (R.-Ill.), member, Judiciary Committee

The Constitution recognizes the importance of an independent judiciary, but under our system of checks and balances, no one branch is supreme. Congress is given specific powers to check judicial abuses. For example, in 1959 the Court said the Constitution empowered states to impose literacy tests for voting. In 1965, Congress outlawed such tests, and the Court subsequently agreed. In this and other historic cases, Congress, as a coordinate branch of government, interpreted the Constitution differently than the Court and was proven to be right.

PRO AND CON

Should Congress Be Able To Legislatively Overturn the U.S. Supreme Court's Constitutional Rulings?

Send questions of national significance, on a postcard, to "Pro & Con," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $10 for those published.

CON Archibald Cox, former U.S. Solicitor General, chairman, Common Cause

Absolutely not. Our forefathers developed the Constitution and independent judicial power to enforce it for the very purpose of putting our basic liberties beyond the control of Congress. If Congress may overturn one unpopular Constitutional ruling by depriving the courts of jurisdiction or by some similar device, Congress may likewise nullify any and all Constitutional decisions. Americans have always rejected such measures as radical and unprincipled attacks upon Constitutional government. We should correct any "wrong" decisions, as in the past, by judicial reconsideration or Constitutional amendment.

Politicians On TV

Is What You See What You Get?

How important is television in the making of politicians? The answer from this best-selling author may surprise and, believe it or not, even comfort you.

By Michael Korda

Common belief has it that television is destroying — or perhaps has already destroyed — the American political process. The skilled performer will, it is alleged (with a glance in the direction of President Reagan), win out over the man of substance who lacks the skills of an actor. From now on, we are told, elections will be won by the person who knows how to use television best. The Presidency will be decided by media experts, makeup men, acting coaches and voice teachers.

In fact, nothing of the sort has happened, or is likely to. Television is the healthiest thing that has happened to politics since the secret ballot, and by far the most important. Some people complain that Reagan won the election (and support for his tax cut) because as an actor he knows how to use television and project the image of a sincere, nice man. But there is no evidence for this at all. Those who know the President — including those who disagree with him — have always said he is a sincere, nice man. Television merely shows him as he is.

If Jimmy Carter appeared weak, petulant and vacillating on television, it was because he was weak, petulant and vacillating, as even his close advisers are beginning to admit in their memoirs. If President Reagan seems to show up on television as a sincere, nice fellow with some very rigid ideas, which he picked up from southern California conservatives in the early 1950's and has seen no reason to modify since, that is no doubt because he is precisely that person. He isn't faking it for television, any more than Jimmy Carter was.

It is, in fact, very hard to lie on television, or to fake things. This harsh truth was apparent almost at the beginning of television's connection to politics — in the 1950's. The late Senator Joseph McCarthy was doing fine until television revealed the real man: sweaty, shifty and menacing, wilting away under the steely honesty of Joseph Welch in the famous Army hearings (in which McCarthy accused the Army of giving a promotion to a Communist dentist). And the Kefauver hearings in 1951 exposed the union racketeers and mafia dons to the public for the first time, as they took the Fifth in a monotonous litany. The camera is an unblinking and unkind eye, and no amount of makeup or preparation will fool it.

The case of Richard Nixon is an interesting example. Those who don't trust television argue that Nixon learned to manipulate the media, and certainly he tried, but any rational examination of his career reveals that the truth is more complex. When Nixon made his famous "Checkers" speech, he appeared to most viewers to be a nervous, apologetic young man, trying to explain away a campaign irregularity by throwing himself and his family at the viewers' feet and begging for mercy. It was not an approach that won him universal sympathy, but there was nothing fake about it. People decided he deserved another chance.

After Watergate, President Nixon tried the same tactics again, and they failed him. The public watched the Senate Watergate hearings and the President's news conferences and decided the President was lying. Television didn't "save" Nixon in '52 or "destroy" him after Watergate. In both cases, it merely showed him as he was.

There is therefore no special magic to television. It reflects what's there, and reveals (often painfully) what is

When a candid camera caught Democratic candidate Edmund Muskie crying in 1972, some viewers questioned whether he could take the heat of the Presidency.

In response to claims that TV favors Reagan over Speaker O'Neill (together above) the author states: "It is not television that is at fault but the Democratic Party."

Public scrutiny was the undoing of Sen. Joseph McCarthy in the 1950's: "Television revealed the real man — sweaty, shifty and menacing."

Michael Korda is editor-in-chief of Simon and Schuster. He is also the author of Power, Success (both Ballantine) and, most recently, Charmed Lives (Random House).

Peanut Butter 'n Jelly Bars

- | | |
|--|---|
| 3 cups unsifted all-purpose flour | 2 eggs, beaten |
| 1 cup sugar | 1 cup grape jelly
(or individual preference) |
| 1½ teaspoons baking powder | 2 cups (12-ounce package)
Reese's® Peanut Butter Chips |
| 1 cup butter or margarine,

not. Gerald Ford came across as a very nice guy, but television also revealed that he didn't seem to have any ideas of his own and found it difficult to separate one foreign country from another. This was not the fault of television — the camera merely revealed a known fact about Ford.

There were people who screamed in outrage when the cameras showed Ed Muskie bursting into tears because a New Hampshire newspaper had made unkind remarks about his wife, but he did cry, and it is legitimate to question whether we want a President of the United States who can't take the inevitable heat of politics. By the same token, television cannot be blamed for revealing that Eugene McCarthy didn't take his own candidacy seriously; that George McGovern lacked Presidential stature; that Hubert Humphrey was a pious windbag (however good his motives); that Edward Kennedy is addicted to the rolling thunder of liberal rhetoric, but lacks his brothers' charm and sharp political savvy, or that Jimmy Carter seemed to regard the Presidency as a painful and unwelcome duty, apparently placed on him by God to try his patience.

Television didn't invent or distort any of these people. It simply presented them to us in our homes and left it to us to make up our minds about them. Liberal journalists like David Halberstam wistfully complain that television performed a great disservice to Lyndon Johnson, that his style was unsuited to television so that he came across on the screen as shifty, hypocritical and mean. But, in fact, Johnson was pretty good on the screen when he was campaigning or selling the Great Society to the voters, and only appeared shifty, hypocritical and mean when he was trying to explain away the defeats in Vietnam or pretend they were someone else's fault.

Once again, television showed what was there, and the public eventually decided that the President might be the only person in the country who didn't know we were losing the war. If Lyndon Johnson had been willing to come on screen as himself, and say, "By God, we're losing this war, and Americans don't lose wars, right or wrong, so let's go all out and win it!" the outcome might have been very different. But Johnson couldn't admit that things were going badly, even after network news had shown, in the Tet fighting, that they were going very badly indeed, and the public decided he was lying to them. It wasn't television's fault, but the President's.

Television is hell on evasion and lies — it's like looking at someone close-up when you're talking to him. Had Nixon gone on television, nationwide, and said, "Yes, my people were responsible for Watergate and they were wrong, and I'm firing all of them," he just might have survived.

Television, partly because it's in the home, produces familiarity and intimacy — and demands it from those who appear on the screen. Television stars are seldom, if ever, stars in film, the more public media. Ed Asner, Eric Estrada, Cheryl Ladd, Jack Klugman, Telly Savalas: all were either un-cause they're not acting, and the same is true of television "personalities." Alistair Cooke is, in real life, a relaxed, kindly, debonair raconteur; Walter Cronkite is a warm, wise, friendly man, not an intellectual or a hotshot reporter; Gene Shalit is a wisecracking cynic with a heart of gold. These people are not putting on are not performing a movie role or making a speech before a live audience. You're appearing, like a guest, in people's homes, in their living rooms, even in their bedrooms. You have to project the warm, relaxed, intimate tones and image of someone who has been invited into a stranger's home — low-keyed, sincere. There's no artifice to television.

Lyndon Johnson lost the support of his fellow Americans, the author claims, when he failed to admit on television that the Vietnam War was going badly.

Hence, when people complain that television favors President Reagan over House Speaker Tip O'Neill, it's simply not the case. Tip O'Neill is a professional pol from Massachusetts, who has the bad luck to be in opposition to a popular President at a time when people don't put much faith in professional pols. It is not television that's at fault (and probably not even Tip O'Neill), but the Democratic Party, which is temporarily leaderless. Under the right circumstances, in fact, Tip O'Neill would be pretty good on television. His big, rumpled, folksy charm, and his evident sincerity, would be readily apparent, much as Sam Irvin's folksiness came across during the Senate Watergate hearings.

Television doesn't necessarily preclude middle-aged spread, jowls, a regional accent, pouches under the eyes or a big red nose. What matters is not so much the way you look (Telly Savalas, Ed Asner and Jack Klugman are hardly youthful beauties either), but that you project yourself with simplicity, sincerity, self-confidence — and a certain respect for the audience. But what else, after all, do we want in a politician?

To my mind, in fact, television is the strongest guarantee of our democratic traditions. In the 19th century, it was widely understood that a Presidential candidate, indeed any candidate, had to go out among the people and debate his opponents. He might look pretty good on paper, but if he couldn't stand up on his own two feet and get his ideas across to the crowd, knowns or comparatively minor character actors, but given a television role in which they could basically play themselves, they became superstars. Great actors, by contrast, seldom do well on television — when brought in to the intimate setting of the home via television they lose some of the glamour they convey on the silver screen.

Those actors and actresses who succeed on television, succeed bean act for the television camera, they are simply being themselves. Hence their success.

As everybody who has ever appeared on a television talk show knows, your best bet is to relax and be yourself. Whatever you are will come across on camera, for better or for worse. Any attempt to fake it, to act, to pretend to be something you're not will be exposed instantly.

My first major TV appearance was on The Today Show to promote one of my books, and I tried desperately to cram everything I wanted to say into the five-minute segment. I came out sounding hysterical and rude, since I never gave the host a chance to speak. When I watched a tape, I realized my mistake. On television you don't sell your book. You sell yourself. You relax, talk, show you're listening to questions, try to be yourself. If you can say a couple of interesting things about what you're trying to promote, without giving the appearance of making a hard sales pitch, fine. If you come across, with one or two points you care about, the audience will be interested in you and your product. You can't hustle on television.

And you must keep in mind that when you appear on television, you he was unlikely to be elected.

This tradition, best exemplified in the Lincoln-Douglas debates, gave way to clubhouse politics in the late 19th century, as the country grew too large for the old one-to-one debating process to work. Radio was the first powerful instrument in bringing the election process back to the people, and Franklin Delano Roosevelt made masterful use of it. He understood that radio brought him into people's homes, as a guest. He did not make speeches, and it was no accident that he called his broadcasts "fireside chats." He talked to his constituents as if they were equals, but he never attempted to alter his own personality to try to please them. Despite widespread assumptions that his aristocratic style and manner of speaking would offend the audience, he remained firmly in character, and prevailed. He never talked down to his audience, as Thomas Dewey did, nor did he orate at them, as Hubert Humphrey was later to do.

Television was inevitably even more effective. Dwight D. Eisenhower's optimism, simplicity and sense of responsibility came across on the screen, not because they were fake but because they were there, and it won him the election — just as Adlai Stevenson's impatient ego (he was smarter than most people, and showed it) came across equally clearly, and lost him the Presidency twice.

Those who fear television, fear the people — and assume they can be fooled. I have always doubted that the public can be duped. People have, in the aggregate, a sound instinct for what is real and important in a candidate. When they make a mistake, as they sometimes do, our system is designed to give them an opportunity to correct it, in two years' time, or four.

Intellectuals complain that because of television, people are no longer voting on issues but on personality — but what's wrong with that? Personality is what matters, rather than the issues themselves, and anyway, the two are inseparable. There is nothing wrong in voting for a man or a woman because we find him or her, on evidence and observation, trustworthy, warm and appealing. It was widely noted that George Washington was not by any means the most intelligent of the available choices for the Presidency and that his ideas were not nearly as interesting nor as clearly expressed as those of Alexander Hamilton or Thomas Jefferson, among others. He did, however, command widespread trust and a certain degree of respect, and these qualities were wisely thought to be decisive. As for television, I have no doubt that had it existed in the 18th century, it would merely have confirmed what Washington's colleagues and contemporaries knew: that he was the right man for the job. Character is what counts.

Television is merely a screen. It does not make choices for us. It shows us a person. Can we trust that person? As a Congressman or mayor or Senator or President? We can look at the face, the eyes, the gestures, the expression, hear the voice, study the way he or she answers questions, speaks to us, explains the issues. We cannot ask for more, and we don't need more.

If you are buying a house, and the seller seems to you shifty, dishonest or too eager to please, you back away, if you're sensible, and think it over. The house may look fine, but something about the seller warns you there's a problem somewhere. You have to trust your instinct, to go on your reaction to his personality.

Politics is no different. A candidate that doesn't inspire our trust is someone we would do well not to vote for, however smart he or she might appear to be. If television does nothing else, it gives us the opportunity of making that assessment. It puts politics back on a person-to-person basis. And surely that can't be bad? FW

When the Boss Speaks: A Guide to Doubletalk

By Peggy Schmidt

If you're having a hard time understanding the real meaning of some of your boss's words, rest assured that you're not alone. Doubletalk is one of the most troublesome office communication problems, and according to organizational psychologists, even the best boss-employee relationships are affected by it.

There are many varieties of doubletalk. Some of the most common you're likely to encounter on the job are:

- The humorous warning: If something you've done is annoying but not terribly serious, your boss may try to bring it to your attention by teasing you about it. For example, he or she may say with a smile, "Here are the calls I took for you — you're obviously a very popular person." But the hidden message may be: "Why wasn't your phone covered when you were away from your desk?"

- Misplaced irritation: A boss may sidestep what's really making him angry and instead pick on a more obvious but less important slip-up. For instance, he might say, "You were late to arrive at the meeting," when what was really annoying him was the fact that you weren't around beforehand to help him prepare for it.

- The coded message: Rather than being straightforward about a difficult bit of news, a boss may communicate his feelings through innuendos in an attempt to spare your feelings.

- The cool tone of voice: There's no direct criticism but conversation is less friendly than usual, probably because your boss hasn't decided how to respond to something you did that he doesn't like.

However doubletalk manifests itself the reason for it is usually the same. Bosses use doubletalk, above all, to regulate the way their employees behave. "A boss can't always control an employee's behavior by virtue of his position," says William M. Jones, author of Survival: A Manual on Manipulating (Prentice-Hall). "Doubletalk is a way to assert power, communicate dissatisfaction, influence behavior and avoid problems."

There are several situations in which supervisors are prone to use doubletalk with employees. One of the most common is when a boss anticipates a negative reaction. A boss may avoid talking straight because he doesn't want an employee to refuse an unpleasant order.

A boss's signals may also be ambiguous when his goals are unclear. The boss who changes procedures or priorities after you've already begun working on a project, for example, may not understand what his boss — or company management — wants. And if he's feeling insecure because his superiors are putting pressure on him, he may try to bolster his ego by questioning or criticizing you in ways you're not accustomed to.

Supervisors also rely on doubletalk when they have to deliver bad news. Often bosses try to mask bad news by talking about it in a positive tone, mixing it with encouraging language or smoothing over the real reasons for a decision.

Bosses often use doubletalk to regulate the way their employees behave.

Finally, if a boss is put off by your behavior he may be ambiguous in communicating his anger. Bosses have a particularly hard time talking about the little things that irritate them: your personal habits, for example, or style of working. Instead of telling you to lower your voice, for instance, your boss may communicate his ire by slamming his door.

Many employees blame their failure to understand such signals on personality differences, but in fact it is more likely to result from differences in perceptions and goals, says Jerald Jellison, an associate professor of psychology at the University of Southern California. Here's what Dr. Jellison and other behavior experts recommend you do to learn how to recognize and handle doubletalk:

- 1) Observe how your boss treats other employees, colleagues and clients. You can gain valuable insights into why your boss reacts the way he does by listening to his exchanges with others.

- 2) Don't hesitate to initiate conversations with your boss. The more regularly you talk to your boss, particularly on business-related matters, the more opportunities you'll have to learn what's important to him and how he operates.

- 3) Realize that your boss is only human — that he has to cope with the same pressures that you do from company management, friends and family, and that his behavior is usually unrelated to your actions. If you put your boss's behavior into perspective, it won't interfere with your work.

Jasco Collectibles Ltd. invites you to acquire

THE SUGARPLUM MUG COLLECTION

Each mug holds a full 10 ozs.

Drink a toast to the holiday season, admire their beauty all year long. This special set of fine porcelain mugs can be yours for only $15.95.

There are certain things that remind us of the joy each holiday season brings. Sometimes it is a treasured object we display all year, or one we take down from the attic for use only at Christmastime. Using it then, and only then, seems to add significance to our celebration. It becomes part of our tradition.

In a tribute to this kind of tradition, Jasco Collectibles Ltd. has commissioned a set of porcelain mugs named The Sugarplum Collection. Like Tchaikovsky who created the Sugarplum Fairy for his ballet "The Nutcracker", our artist was inspired by the traditional English delicacy of brightly-colored fruit candies. His creation, Little Miss Sugarplum, is the epitome of sweetness . . . a perfect character to adorn these holiday mugs.

The refined qualities of pure porcelain are perfect for collectors' mugs such as these. Their bone white color sets off the predominately red and green motif for a rich effect, while their light weight makes them most appropriate for drinks served at special occasions.

Each mug has a different illustration of Little Miss Sugarplum: delivering gifts, serving plum pudding, stuffing a stocking, and saying her prayers. Note the expressions on her face and the details in the background. The hand of a skilled artist quickly becomes evident.

We are sure you and your friends will marvel at their eye-catching craftsmanship. Fine porcelain is a collector's item sought after and appreciated by everyone. You will be proud to display your Sugarplum Mug Collection along with other cherished keepsakes, whether you are a serious collector or simply a person who enjoys beautiful objects.

An original collection available only from Jasco

Little Miss Sugarplum was created exclusively for this offering. The mugs may not be purchased separately, nor can they be obtained from any source other than Jasco.

The price is $15.95 for the complete set. This is an exceptionally low price for a special edition of fine porcelain, so act quickly to avoid disappointment. Clip the coupon and mail your order today. Of course, if you are not totally satisfied you may return within 30 days for a full refund.

Rock's Sexy, Sizzling Pat Benatar

By Jim Farber

Pat Benatar may be known to millions of record buyers as a leather-clad sex symbol, but in conversation she slices through that cheesecake image immediately. "I was a pretty secure person before this began, and now I have a little problem with it," she says. "People have such high expectations now. I'm all right, and with costuming and makeup I become something more than average. But it's no big deal."

So far her success has been quite a big deal. A 5-foot, 90-pound sizzling bundle of energy, Benatar, 28, is the hottest rocker — male or female — around today. Her first two albums, In the Heat of the Night and Crimes of Passion, both went platinum, and her latest, Precious Time, shot to number one only two weeks after its July release. The irresistible "Hit Me with Your Best Shot," was one of 1981's top singles; her last release, "Fire and Ice," hit the top 15, and a new cut, "Promises in the Dark," is just out.

Benatar readily accepts her sexual fantasy character on-stage. "That's what rock 'n' roll is," she says. "It isn't Mary Poppins." But it does upset her when it's emphasized over her music or when people expect her to live up to their raunchy expectations in real life. "I'm real conservative when it comes to certain basic things, like family," she says. "My profession keeps me from being the girl next door, but in relation to most people in my business I'm a lot straighter."

Actually, Benatar spent as much time with opera as rock 'n' roll when she was growing up as Pat Andrzejewski in Lindenhurst, Long Island. Her mother was an opera singer who gave it up to have a family, and Pat followed her mom's early example for a time, studying classical singing at The Juilliard School. But she ditched it all at age 19 to marry video editor Dennis Benatar, who took her off to Richmond, Va. She had no plans to pursue any kind of career in music, but as she puts it, "Four years later I flipped out. I used to work in a bank and every day I would count that money. I thought, 'What am I doing here? I have some kind of talent.'"

She got her start in small clubs and eventually put together a solid four-man backup band. They're currently winding up a grueling 16-week 60-city national tour. And while Pat says that working with a bunch of guys is no problem, she admits life on the road with them can be tough. "They're the boys in the band and I'm the girl in the band and that's the way it is," she explains. "But I'm not one of those girls who has to spit and smoke and do all this other stuff to feel equal. When they all go out drinking, I don't go and they don't ask. It's not a double standard. It's just that I prefer not to be a certain way."

But with lead guitarist Neil Geraldo, things are decidedly warmer. Not only do they co-write many of the band's songs, but they've also been living together on and off for the past two years. (She got divorced in 1979.)

Lynn Goldsmith Inc. © 1980

Benatar with boys in the band Scott Sheets (center) and Neil Geraldo, her oft-times roommate for two years.

While admitting of her relationship with Geraldo, "sometimes it's impossible," she adds, "I don't think the magic of the band would exist if we weren't together — not so much romantically as professionally."

To get away from such pressures, Benatar lives in Tarzana, Calif., a quiet suburb about 20 miles north of Los Angeles, an area much like the sleepy town where the singer grew up. "Normalcy is something I try to hold on to," she says. "Rock 'n' roll is such an all-encompassing life style that I need to come away from it and be a normal person for a couple of months out of the year."

And a full-time "normal" life style may not be all that far away. "I want to have a family," she says. "Music is the most important thing in my life now, but I know that it won't be forever. I know I can't raise children in my boots and tights."

$130.00 REWARD

World's Fairest Coin Dealer Will Pay You $130.00 For A 1972 Penny Like This One. It's Different From Most 1972 Pennies. Can You Spot The Difference?

Brand new 1982 Coin Guidebook shows you how much America's best coin dealer guarantees to pay for hundreds of valuable coins.

For Certain Special	Rare Coins Dated Before	Up To
Nickels	1914	$95,000.00
Gold Coins	1932	88,000.00
Silver Dollars	1935	75,000.00
Quarters	1955	5,000.00
Half Dollars	1901	1,200.00
Pennies	1955	10,000.00
Dimes	1926	310.00

The Coin Guidebook tells which special coins listed in the Guidebook dated before the dates given above are valuable.

(By Wayne K. Wood)

I want to give you the secret of finding ordinary coins that have great value. What's more, America's best coin dealer will buy them from you after you find them. Is it worth a couple of minutes of your time each day looking through your change, so you can make a killing in coins? What if you found a coin that was valuable enough to let you go on a shopping spree and buy a few of the luxuries of life?

Then just mail the coupon below. F.C.A. will send you their concise, new, easy-to-understand Coin Guidebook that shows you the secret of identifying valuable coins. Read on, and find out how valuable your coins can be.

Coins Can Be Turned Into Big Bucks

Yes, you can find valuable coins in your own pocket or in a jar of change. People who know what to look for are doing it every day. Imagine owning things like new clothes or just seeing your picture in the paper. You can be one of the fortunate ones to strike it lucky if you know what to look for.

Big Profits From Small Change.

It's easy to make big profits from small change. Not long ago every coin of a certain type tripled in value almost overnight. The total increase in value to people who knew what to look for amounted to billions of dollars. It's possible to add a valuable coin to your treasure trove each day just by going through change.

Did You Spend This Coin Today?

Take another look at the coin pictured above. It looks almost like an ordinary '72 penny, but there is something almost unnoticeable about it which makes it valuable. Unless you know what to look for you'll ignore a coin like this and pass it to someone else. Did you spend this coin today? Think about the many valuable coins that may have slipped through your fingers.

Coin Guidebook Shows You How To Spot Rare Dates and Marks

I've bought quite a few coins like this from people who've read my Coin Guidebook. I'll buy from you too, if you find one like it. But you need to read my guidebook first. It's hard to spot the difference unless you know the special markings that make this coin valuable. I guarantee this will never happen after you read the Coin Guidebook. Then you'll know what rare dates and mint marks to look for.

The new, 1982 Coin Guidebook contains pictures and listings of hundreds of coins that have extra value. It gives the prices I guarantee to pay for them in stable markets.

How To Make A Killing In Coins

Order the Coin Guidebook now so that you can learn the rare dates and special marks that make coins valuable. Coins don't have to be old to be valuable.

Remember, you can make a killing in coins with absolutely no risk, because the coins you find will always be worth at least their face value. By the same token, the Coin Guidebook will also hold its value, because I guarantee to buy it back from you anytime for exactly what you paid for it. What could be fairer?

How To Sell Your Coins

Hold on to your coins; DON'T send them to us until you read the very important safety mailing instructions in the Coin Guidebook. Answers to questions about coins can be found in the Coin Guidebook.

You must order the guidebook and read these instructions before you can participate in my coin buying service. Order now!

☐ I enclose check, cash or money order for $2.99 plus 50¢ postage & handling. Send me your 1982 Coin Guidebook.

Your Eating Habits: Food for Thought?

By John E. Gibson

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. Your food preferences reveal intriguing things about your personality.
2. Overweight persons eat in an entirely different manner from thin persons.
3. The combination of television viewing and food consumption has an interesting effect on social behavior.
4. If you haven't yet discovered why you don't feel better than you do, what you eat may actually be what's eating you.
5. The person who has difficulty resisting bizarre diets and food fads may experience strange side effects as a result.

ANSWERS

1. True. In studies of personality traits and food preferences, a team of behavioral specialists at Britain's University of Exeter administered men and women college students a multitem questionnaire indicating liked and disliked foods. Subjects were then given standard personality tests. Results indicated that optimism correlated with preferences for bland "milk foods" — such as custards, tapioca, bananas and cream, etc. On the other hand, pessimists preferred foods with a sour or vinegary taste, notably spicy pickles and the like. Other studies are cited reporting similar findings.
2. True. Research conducted at Houston Baptist University's Department of Behavioral Studies tested a random selection of men and women who were 20 pounds or more overweight and compared them with a group within 20 pounds of "desirable" weight. Findings: "Thin persons eat more slowly, less often during the day and take smaller bites than do overweight persons." It was also found that overweight was associated with a tendency to overeat when bored or depressed.
3. True. Behavioral studies at the University of Chicago's Human Resources Center show that people interact differently when eating and television viewing are combined. It was found that "eating snacks while watching TV increases one's sociability, alertness and concentration."
4. True. Dr. William Grant Crook, Children's Clinic (Tennessee) allergy specialist, concludes that food may be directly responsible for many mysterious allergy symptoms in children and adults. If you have reason to feel that an allergy may be the culprit, it is suggested that suspect foods (chocolate, eggs, corn, wheat, etc.) be carefully eliminated, one by one, until the allergen is discovered and avoided in your diet.

5. True. The noted psychiatrist Joost A.M. Meerloo has analyzed these effects. He finds that many curious diets and food fads "can have a disturbing effect on a person's fantasy life, invoking early infantile anxieties and emotional fixations...." To put it simply, what you eat can upset your mind as well as your stomach.

Spoon shown smaller than actual 6 1/4" size

The mother, and legal heir, of the world-renowned artist, Berta Hummel, has authorized the New England Collectors Society to offer this First Christmas Spoon inspired by the art of Berta Hummel in an exclusive limited edition.

This exquisite silver-covered spoon is produced by one of America's most prestigious and oldest silversmiths—Reed & Barton. The Hummel Child—"The Herald Angel"—is elegantly reproduced in rich Damascene, and permanently inlaid in the spoon handle.

The First Christmas Spoon is inspired from one of Berta Hummel's early original works of art, now in the Hummel Family Archives. It will become a treasured heirloom in your family, and a unique and cherished gift for Christmas, 1981.

Each spoon will be sent with a certificate of registration issued by the mother of Berta Hummel, Mrs. Viktoria Hummel, attesting to the authenticity of this historic First Edition Christmas Spoon.

Which is the lowest 100's? (Hint: it's not Carlton.)

Now is the lowest tar 100s. But it's easy to see why some people think the right answer is Carlton. Carlton's been advertising itself as lowest for a very long time. And, in fact, at one time, it was.

But that time is long gone. Look at the chart on the right and see for yourself.

The truth is that today, Now 100s Soft Pack, at 2 mg., contains less than half the tar of Carlton 100s Soft Pack, at 5 mg. (Is any cigarette with 5 mg of tar even seriously competing for the title of "lowest?")

Which is the lowest 100s? No need to guess—Now.

Helping Your Child Overcome Shyness

By Mary Long

John Travolta, currently celebrated for his sexiness, was once a child noted for his shyness. Albert Einstein, the 20th century's most brilliant scientist, was such a shy child that family and friends thought he was "slow."

At some time or another, just about all children suffer from shyness. Though some individuals grow out of their shyness, others continue to carry it with them as a burden. It's a mistake, therefore, for adults to believe shyness makes a child more graceful and charming — not to mention easier to live with. Dr. Philip Zimbardo of Stanford University, a social psychologist and the author of the recently published The Shy Child (McGraw-Hill), believes that severe shyness can ruin a child's future life.

"I have yet to meet one very shy person, whether he be 4 years old or 84, who sees shyness as a personal asset," Zimbardo says. "Rather, it is seen as an affliction, an unwelcome state of being that forces him or her to shrink back from life."

Parents, however, can help a child overcome shyness. Here are some suggestions.

1) Provide social opportunities: It's best for children to have as much exposure as possible to other people, and the younger they are when they have it, the better, says Zimbardo. If your child is so shy that he or she is terrified of the idea of playing with other children, you might start a play group in your home.

2) Teach social skills: These skills are largely just everyday friendly behavior: being an attentive listener, giving praise and compliments, taking part in conversation, showing interest in others, asking questions.

Keep in mind that we are not born with social skills. It's just a matter of practice. And it will help if you are a good model for your child.

Zimbardo's research with parents reveals that shy parents are likely to have shy offspring. If you are shy, "teach your children whatever you can," says author Claire Rayner (The Shy Person's Book). "Treat them with courtesy and with an honest attempt to avoid the diminishing tricks the adults in your childhood might have used."

3) Praise effort rather than only triumphs: All children are likely to encounter failure, says Dr. Curtis Booraem, psychologist and author of

The Image Bank

Help Your Children to be Self-Confident (Prentice-Hall). What they need to learn is that the effort is worthy of praise. "Even in the face of total failure or a flat refusal, the important thing is that the person tried hard," he says. "In social relations, advocate that 'doing' is all important."

4) Take one step at a time: One important point to keep in mind when trying to get your shy child to take risks is that often it is only the first step that is the difficult one — getting the child to raise his hand, say "hello," join in the game. Encourage your child to practice that first action with you: you can role play the situation together and have him or her actually go through a "dress rehearsal."

5) Avoid labels: Don't allow anyone to label your child "shy," not even you. "Often a child will adopt a shyness label as self-descriptive," says Dr. Zimbardo, "because it must be so if authoritative dad or all-knowing teacher says so."

Also monitor how often your child says good and bad things about himself. Reinforce all statements that portray the child in a favorable light.

6) Enlist a "little" help: Create opportunities for your child to play with a younger child. There is considerable research showing that when shy older children are paired with younger children for brief play periods, they tend to be less withdrawn later in play groups of their own age.

7) Love your child unconditionally: Parents need to make sure they convey to a child that while they do not particularly like what a child may do at a given moment, it is the behavior and not the child that is disliked.

Shyness tends to go hand-in-hand with low self-esteem. Ideally, the relationship between parent and child should enable the child to develop a sense of identity that is anchored in a firm belief in his or her self-worth.

Classic Pot-Au-Feu

By Marilyn Hansen

This dish of French country origin is perhaps something that you have enjoyed in a favorite restaurant or on a trip to la belle France. It is a memorable preparation and a meal that should be savored with a small group of close friends and a bottle of good red wine such as a beaujolais.

POT-AU-FEU

- 2 lbs. beef rump or round in one piece
- 2 lbs. beef chuck, plate or brisket in one piece
- 4 lb. stewing chicken in one piece
- 1 veal knuckle, cut into 3 pieces (reserved from brown stock)
- 4 qts. clarified brown stock
- 1 marrowbone, cut crosswise into 3 pieces

Cooking vegetables

- 6 carrots
- 4 onions
- 4 leeks
- 2 ribs celery, broken
- 3 white purple-top turnips
- 1 small parsnip

Bouquet garni

- 4 sprigs parsley
- 1 large bay leaf
- 1 sprig or pinch thyme, tied in a cheesecloth bag
- 2 cloves garlic, if desired
- 1½ tablespoons salt

Garnish vegetables

- 2 stalks celery, ribs only
- 16 small carrots
- 16 small white purple-top turnips
- 8 onions, peeled and left whole
- 8 small leeks, tied in cheesecloth bag

Accompaniments:

- white toast
- horseradish
- mustard
- pickles
- coarse salt

1. Place beef and veal knuckle into 12-qt. stockpot and add 4 qts. clarified brown stock. Bring to boiling and simmer for 20 minutes, stirring and carefully skimming off gray residue, until broth clears. Skim as necessary during cooking.
2. Add cooking vegetables, bouquet garni, garlic and salt. Heat to a slow simmer, leaving cover partly off pot. Cook beef and bones for 2 hours.
3. Add whole, trussed chicken and continue to simmer for 1 hour.
4. Add garnish vegetables, celery, carrots, turnips and onions and continue to simmer ½ hour. Add leeks and marrowbone and simmer for ½ hour longer, then remove garnish vegetables from stock. Keep vegetables warm and moist with a spoonful of broth.
5. Add 1 cup cold water to kettle, and let sit for 5 minutes to allow floating particles in liquid to settle. Lift out bouquet garni bag and discard. Lift out garnish vegetables, leeks and marrowbone.

6. Arrange meats and chicken on large serving platter. Surround with garnish vegetables, moistened with a spoonful of hot broth. Sprinkle with parsley.
7. Skim off fat from surface of broth. Spread marrow from bones on thin white toast triangles and serve with the clear hot broth as a first course. Serve the meat and vegetables as a second course with selected piquant accompaniments. Pass around loaves of sliced crusty bread and boiled potatoes if desired.

Makes 8 servings

BROWN STOCK

- 1 (1-lb.) veal knuckle, sawed in 3 pieces or veal bones (1 to 2 lbs.)
- 2 tablespoons oil
- 2 large carrots
- 2 large onions
- 2 to 3 lbs. meaty beef bones
- 2 tablespoons beef drippings or oil
- Water
- Salt
- ½ teaspoon whole peppercorns
- 4 sprigs parsley
- 2 bay leaves
- ½ teaspoon dried thyme leaves or 3 sprigs fresh thyme

1. In large skillet or Dutch oven, brown veal knuckle in 2 tablespoons oil.
2. Place beef bones in roasting pan; drizzle with beef drippings and brown in hot oven (450°F) for about 30 to 45 minutes.
3. Place browned veal knuckle and browned beef bones into Dutch oven or soup kettle; cover with about 4 qts. water. Add 2 teaspoons salt, peppercorns and bouquet garni (parsley, bay leaves and thyme).
4. Heat to boiling; skim off any foam or skin. Reduce heat and simmer 2 to 6 hours, depending on time available.
5. Strain broth and chill. Rinse veal knuckle and beef bones in clear water; reserve. Discard cooking vegetables and bouquet garni. Makes about 4 qts. stock

CLARIFIED BROWN STOCK

- 4 qts. cold brown beef stock
 - 2 egg whites
 - ¼ lb. lean raw beef, diced
 - 1 carrot, peeled and diced
 - 1 onion, peeled and chopped
 - 2 tablespoons minced parsley
1. Carefully remove all solidified fat from top of stock and pour all but 1 cup into large Dutch oven or kettle. Heat to simmering point.
 2. In blender or food processor, combine reserved stock, 2 egg whites, beef, carrot, onion and parsley. Blend until well pureed.
 3. When stock is simmering, stir in pureed mixture. Heat to simmering point, stirring slowly.
 4. Hold at low simmer for 1 hour without stirring, then strain stock through several layers of clean cheesecloth into a large bowl. Use as needed, refrigerate or freeze. Makes 4 qts. clarified stock

Mike, a 42-year-old television cameraman who carries a lot of heavy equipment, used to have pains in his back, shoulders and neck. "There were days when I could barely move," he explains. But now, he regularly visits a doctor for an "adjustment." And, he says, "I don't have any more trouble."

Gerald is a lawyer whose degenerative disc disease gave him lower back pain. "I was in such agony that I could do nothing but go to my office in the morning and come home and crawl into bed at night," he says. "I went from orthopedist to orthopedist and no one could help me." Finally, Gerald found a doctor who manipulated his leg and the vertebrae in his spine. "After the first treatment, I noticed significant improvement," he says. "For the first time in several years, I had hope that I wouldn't have to spend the rest of my life in pain."

Irene, Mike and Gerald are three of more than 12 million people each year who seek help from doctors of chiropractic — or chiropractors. Many of them have been under traditional medical care for years without experiencing relief and view chiropractors as their last hope.

Yet chiropractic, despite its large numbers of enthusiastic devotees, is still a highly controversial discipline, labeled as worthless by many physicians.

What is chiropractic and why is there so much conflict about it?

Chiropractic is rooted in the theory that disturbances in the nervous system, as evidenced by misalignment of vertebrae in the spinal column, can cause pain and disease throughout the body.

Chiropractors

The spinal column is a series of movable bones which runs down the center of the back. It begins at the base of the skull and ends in the center of the hips. There are seven cervical (neck) vertebrae, 12 mid-back vertebrae and five lower-back vertebrae. Between the vertebrae are discs which permit movement, cushion shock and reduce friction. Thirty-one pairs of spinal nerves travel down the spine from the brain through openings between the vertebrae. These nerves branch out from the spine to reach all tissues in the body.

Chiropractors believe that stress and injuries can cause shifting of one or more of the spinal vertebrae, thus irritating spinal nerve roots, which carry nerve impulses through the body. This irritation, in turn, can cause disturbances in the parts of the body to which the nerves are connected. Chiropractors hold, for instance, that problems with the nerve roots that lead to the head can cause migraine headaches. And over a period of time, displacement of the vertebrae, which chiropractors call a subluxation, can alter nerve quality and affect a person's physical well-being.

Chiropractic, which comes from the Greek words — "cheir" (hand) and "praktikis" (done by) means, not surprisingly, "done by hand." To realign the spinal column chiropractors perform "adjustments" with their hands by moving the vertebrae into their proper position.

Chiropractic was developed by Daniel David Palmer, a Canadian-born teacher and healer who began searching for a fundamental cause of disease at the end of the 19th century. In 1875 he gave the first chiropractic adjustment to a janitor in his office building. The janitor had received an injury to one of his spinal vertebrae and had been deaf ever since. When Palmer discovered that the vertebra was out of alignment, he adjusted it with his hands. When it was realigned, the janitor's hearing was allegedly restored.

Most people visit chiropractors because of specific orthopedic conditions such as backaches, stiff neck, walking difficulties or whiplash. But it is the contention of chiropractors that the overall health of the body depends on a normally functioning nervous system and that attention to that system will help maintain physical well-being.

Chiropractic, though, has encountered a lot of disdain from the medical profession, and many doctors still believe that chiropractic is equivalent to quackery. But many others feel that it is here to stay and that there may even be instances where it can be helpful. Indeed, in the summer of 1979, the American Medical Association, which for years had threatened to censure members who associated with chiropractors, agreed that now a physician may refer a patient to a chiropractor "whenever the physician believes that this will benefit the patient."

"Chiropractic is rooted in the theory that disturbances in the nervous system can cause pain throughout the body."

Meanwhile, reports from growing numbers of patients indicate that the benefits can be significant.

Peggy, for instance, a 42-year-old housewife, had been suffering from dizzy spells for 11 years. Whenever she turned her head to the side or bent it backward, she would feel as if she was about to faint. Extensive testing, including a CAT scan, revealed nothing. Finally, her medical doctor told her that she would just have to learn to live with it.

Peggy lived with her symptoms for two more years — until a friend told her that she had been relieved of a similar condition through chiropractic. "I had never even considered consulting a chiropractor," Peggy says, "but I figured that I had nothing to lose. And I was willing to try anything."

Peggy consulted Dr. Joel Klein, a chiropractor who practices in Villanova, Pa. "When I walked into Dr. Klein's office, I was dizzy," Peggy recalls. "He made me put my head back and I almost blacked out. After he adjusted my spinal column, he asked me to put my head back again and I was amazed. For the first time in 11 years, I could do that without getting dizzy."

At this writing, Peggy has had 12 adjustments and has not had a dizzy spell since she began the treatment. "I admit I don't really understand the

Would You Like A Norman Rockwell Collector's Edition Plate For $4?

As part of an advertising program commissioned by International Collection Finders, we will send a Norman Rockwell Collector's Edition Plate to any reader of this publication who responds to this notice by midnight November 30 for the sum of $4 plus $1 shipping and handling. There is no further financial obligation. These plates feature Norman Rockwell's famed family's four seasons scenes in glowing colors on a background of highest quality pure white porcelain. Each 6½" plate is highlighted with 22-karat gold trim. Please indicate choice of design from: Spring's Young Love, Summer Carnival, Fall School Days, or Winter Morning when you make your request. Or, you may purchase the complete edition of all four for a special price of $13 plus $1 shipping and handling. You save $6 over the individual price. There will be a strict limit of two sets (or 8 collector edition plates) per address, at a cost of only $25 postage paid. That's a savings of $15 over the individual price. These collector's plates make a beautiful display and make valued gifts. This program is being conducted simultaneously in other publications. If you see it in more than one, please let us know as this information is important to us. Should you wish to return your Norman Rockwell plates, refunds will be promptly made. No requests will be accepted past midnight November 30. Any checks postmarked later will be returned uncashed. We will also accept credit card orders. Just give us the name of the card, account number and expiration date. Or, send appropriate sum together with your name and address to: International Collection Finders, Dept. #NPL-1521, 390 Pike Road, Huntingdon Valley, Pennsylvania 19006.

Chiropractors

treatment," she says, "but I don't really care how it works. I just care that it works."

Dr. Klein calls himself a "straight" chiropractor, which means that he relies on adjustments to the spine as his sole treatment. However, Dr. Klein does not adjust the spine, as do most "straight" chiropractors, with his hands. He uses a small, cylindrical detector which consists of a series of finely calibrated lenses, to pick up and amplify the electromagnetic microwave current that radiates from the spine. This current, says Dr. Klein, is believed to be associated with local nerve pressure. When the part of the spine that has the greatest area of nerve interference is located, an adjustment is given to that area. (Dr. I.N. Toftness, who invented the detector, stresses that the device is only a research tool and must be used in con-for the American Chiropractic Association. And that is "the relationship between the health of the body and the mechanical system of the body. Adjustment is the principal method of treatment...other techniques enhance adjustment."

Chiropractors are licensed in all 50 states, the District of Columbia, the U.S. Virgin Islands and Puerto Rico, and more than three-quarters of the states require that chiropractic services be covered by commercial health-and-accident policies. Medicare and Medicaid cover the cost of chiropractic care, and, under the Internal Revenue Code, chiropractic care is a "medical deduction." There are eight colleges of chiropractic in the country which are fully accredited by the Council on Chiropractic Education, which is recognized by the U.S. Office of Education.

"There is no doubt that chiropractic has attracted some fringe practitioners who have helped give the discipline a bad name."

junction with other techniques, such as X-ray or a manual examination in making a diagnosis.)

Once the diagnosis has been made, the adjustment is given with a 12-inch-long metal instrument that some patients call a "magic wand." This instrument permits slight pressure to be exerted on the affected area over a period of five or more minutes and eliminates the external force into the body that many patients find objectionable.

In addition to "straight" chiropractors, there are other practitioners called "mixers" who combine several techniques in their treatments. These men and women will use manipulation but will also employ the techniques of physical medicine. They will use ultrasound equipment, diathermy machines (which heat body tissues), massage therapy, heat packs — whatever they feel is needed to relieve the patient's condition. Many "mixers" stress the value of nutrition and promote the use of vitamins and minerals.

And there are still other chiropractors, such as Dr. Raymond Nimmo in Texas, Dr. Sheila Laws in Illinois and Dr. Jeffrey Cohen in Pennsylvania, who practice a technique through which they apply finger pressure to trigger points (tender spots in the muscles which trigger pain in the body parts) to relieve pain. Irene, one of the women described earlier, is Dr. Cohen's patient.

"But whatever the technique, there is a common thread that binds the profession," says Dr. Raymond T. Kern, director of professional affairs

Nonetheless, the extravagant claims and gaudy advertising of some practitioners have hurt chiropractic. There have been unsubstantiated claims that chiropractic will cure every ailment from pimples to sterility. And there is no doubt that chiropractic has attracted some fringe practitioners who have helped give the discipline a bad name.

What's more, some outraged medical doctors insist that the whole theory of subluxations is unsound. Chiropractic has even been called "a treatment in search of a disease."

A Canadian study, headed by Dr. Charles Godfrey, professor of rehabilitation medicine at Wellesley Hospital in Toronto, verified claims that "manipulation is possibly a little better than receiving no therapy at all for patients with lower back pain; but the improvement did not match the magnificent claims that have sometimes been attributed to the technique."

Yet, according to the American Chiropractic Association, millions of patients insist that chiropractic has made their lives bearable when medical science could not. They say they like the time taken with them by chiropractors who are willing to explain their theories. And they like chiropractic's simpler, more "natural" approach.

Max, for example, who works in a supermarket, explains it this way: "Since I have been seeing a chiropractor, I have no more headaches, I don't wake up with a stiff neck and my blood pressure has gone down. That's good enough for me." FW

MELTS DOWN BODY FAT LIKE HOT WATER MELTS DOWN ICE!

London University "Crash-Loss" Wonder Diet . . .

BURNS AWAY MORE BODY FAT EACH DAY THAN 15-HOURS OF NON-STOP EXERCISE!

Shrinks Down Your Waistline As Much As A FULL SIZE SMALLER IN JUST 24 HOURS
4 SIZES SMALLER IN JUST 14 DAYS!

YOU ACTUALLY SHRINK YOUR BODY'S FAT CELLS STARTING IN JUST HOURS!

What you see on this page is news of a fantastic crash-loss program—the remarkable London University super slim-down diet—that speeds up your body's rate of fat burn-off so that, IN JUST A MATTER OF HOURS, you start to burn away clinging layers of fat . . . break down bulging pockets of flab . . . drain away excess puffiness, just like hot water melts down ice . . . so that, in just the first 48 hours, excess flab, fluid and fat gets melted away at such a staggering rate of speed you:

LOSE up to 1 lb. EVERY 8 to 12 HOURS
 LOSE up to 1½ to 2 lbs. EACH DAY!

Yes, lose weight by the hour, carve away inches by the week and as stated above, and we feel compelled to repeat . . . shrink down as much as 4 sizes smaller IN JUST 14 DAYS!

GOVERNMENT OFFICIAL LOSES 10 POUNDS IN JUST 72 HOURS—

So effectively does this University wonder "crash-loss" diet step up your system's rate of fat burn-off, that:

■ When tested at one of medical science's foremost research centers on scores of grossly overweight men and women . . . they lost as much as 7 lbs. of excess fat, flab and fluid IN JUST THE FIRST 72 HOURS ALONE . . . and as much as another 3-5—even 7 POUNDS MORE the next 14 days!

■ Even more amazing . . . when tested not on ordinary overweight people but on the most extreme cases of obesity . . . it EVAPORATED up to 10 POUNDS OF FAT, FLUID AND FLAB IN JUST 3 DAYS TIME!

AS MUCH AS 50% OF ALL EXCESS WEIGHT GONE IN JUST 14 DAYS!

■ But most mind boggling of all . . . when tested on average overweight people . . . who for years lugged around a 'spare tire' bulge of 10, 15 or even 20 extra sagging pounds . . . IT ACTUALLY MELTED AWAY AS MUCH AS 50% OF ALL EXCESS WEIGHT IN JUST 14 DAYS!

Yes, stepped up their body's rate of fat burn-off and melted away hard set fat with OVER 20 TIMES THE SPEED OF EVEN BRUTAL EXERCISE!

URNS YOUR ENTIRE BODY INTO A SUPER FAT-BURNING FURNACE!

In fact, based upon Calorie Burn-Off Research From California's Leading Medical School, the calorie-deficit created in your system by this "crash-loss" high-burn program (a staggering deficit of as much as 2,400 calories a day off required daily intake) works with such breathtaking speed you actually:

BURN AWAY MORE FAT EACH DAY than

- Running 100 Miles A Week
- or—over 3,000 sit-ups and push-ups a day
- or—10 Solid Hours of Weight-lift workouts
- or—even 15 hours of non-stop Marine Corps calisthenics!

WAKE UP SLIMMER THE VERY FIRST MORNING!

What is this amazing fat-destroyer wonder program that helps to burn away fat by the hour—carve away inches by the week?

Briefly stated . . . it is London University's crash-burn diet, a remarkably simple way to take special combinations of high-burn foods and create what doctors call a "hypocaloric effect" to take place inside their bodies . . . that turns their system into a GIANT FAT BURNING MACHINE! Yes, actually reverses your body's fat build-up process as you COMPLETELY STOP EXCESS fat-builder calories from entering your system . . . or being absorbed by your body and turned into fat like in the past! So obviously, down go the calories, up goes the rate of fat burn-off and off come the pounds and inches at a rate that absolutely staggers the imagination!

Yes, a TOTAL FAT-DESTROYER program that literally "ignites" a fat-burning chain-reaction inside your system . . . 'revs up' your body's rate of fat burn-off . . . and ACTUALLY SHRINKS YOUR BODY'S FAT CELLS starting in just hours.

IF YOU READ NOTHING ELSE, READ THIS

This program involves a high-speed crash-loss diet that lowers caloric intake essential to the reduction of body weight. Such results cannot be achieved solely through the use of the tablets. The more overweight you are the higher caloric requirements, the more you have to lose, the faster you should lose it.

Because, quite obviously . . . since this London University ALL OUT ASSAULT ON FAT lowers your system's rate of calorie intake . . . raises the level of calorie burn-off . . . "revs-up" fat-burning metabolism . . . pounds and inches vanish at a rate that in plain simple talk is ABSOLUTELY MIND BLOWING!

AMAZING "INNER FURNACE EFFECT" HELPS TRIGGER THE MOST DYNAMITE FAT-BURN SPREE OF YOUR LIFE!

Now comes the most exciting news of all. Because, now from London, England comes the thrilling announcement and release to the American public of a wondrous reducing-aid formula that works before meals to reduce hunger, to help keep the program's "crash-loss" fat-burning chain-reaction going in your body non-stop all day long.

World's Leading Medical Authority on Obesity Reports:

' . . . as much as 50% of all excess fat gone in just 14 days.'

Called "MIRA-SLIM/100," these amazing tablets turn off your hunger drive . . . that maddening urge to eat just like you turn off a light switch. Makes it easier to lower calorie intake so you safely, surely TURN UP the level of your fat-burning metabolism after every time food enters your body on this London University wonder diet program.

Meaning the food you take in, the calories you enjoy are burned away even more quickly by your own stepped-up metabolic system. Yes, metabolized and oxidized in as little as 2 to 3 hours after eating!

THE FOOD YOU EAT NO LONGER TURNS TO FAT!

So, obviously, since it takes far less food to satisfy you, lowering calories is a lark. And since the calories you do take in on this "crash-loss" diet program are burned right out of your body after every time you eat . . . you start to TURN SLIMMER, not only the very first day . . . BUT—after the very first meal—and every meal thereafter! as excess fat and fluid start to disappear—GET OXIDIZED BY THE HOUR!

PROVE EVERY LOST OUNCE, EVERY LOST INCH—ENTIRELY AT OUR RISK

Right now, look at your figure in the mirror and ask yourself these questions—the solution to which is right now within your grasp.

How would I look one week from today as much as 5 to 10 pounds lighter?

How would I look in 2 weeks with my waistline 2 to 4 sizes smaller?

BUT DON'T STOP THERE—if you need to lose still more inches, then continue the London University "crash-loss" diet, continue to take "MIRA-SLIM/100" until you've reached the figure of your dreams:

6 INCHES CARVED OFF YOUR HIPS . . . UP TO ANOTHER 3 INCHES CARVED OFF YOUR THIGHS . . . ANOTHER 4 INCHES OFF YOUR BUTTOCKS . . . ANOTHER 6 INCHES OFF YOUR STOMACH . . . ANOTHER 6 INCHES OFF YOUR WAISTLINE!

Because NEXT TO COMPLETE STARVATION THERE IS SIMPLY NO OTHER MEDICALLY SOUND REDUCING PROGRAM THAT WORKS FASTER.

FASTEST WEIGHT-LOSS METHOD KNOWN TO MEDICAL SCIENCE! (next to total starvation)

MIRA-SLIM/100, Dept. RPWG-22
 P.O. Box 953, Station Plaza East,
 Great Neck, N.Y. 11022

Yes, I want to lose more weight each day than 15 hours of non-stop exercise. Please RUSH me the MIRA-SLIM/100 "Crash-Loss" program as indicated below. I must lose pounds and inches as never before or my money refunded in full (less postage and handling).

WHAT IN THE WORLD

By Eliot Kaplan

SOARING TO NEW HEIGHTS

In 1978 Jim Knaub was a world-class pole vaulter, gearing up for the 1980 Olympics. But in August of that year, a car slammed into his motorcycle, and Knaub lost the use of his legs. While admitting "like everybody, at first I went through a period of depression and suicidal thoughts," he left the hospital after only six weeks and immediately began lifting weights.

Today Knaub, 25, is America's top wheelchair racer, holding U.S. records for his class in all distances from 100 to 5,000 meters. And now he's gearing up for the 1984 Wheelchair Olympics in Los Angeles.

Knaub, a sometime actor (on Happy Days in 1979, he became the first real-life paraplegic to play a paraplegic on TV), now swims daily, lifts weights and pushes 150 miles a week. In a race, Jim (leading above) burns clear through his protective gloves.

"I've made a greater commitment to this than I ever did to vaulting," he says. "There's a whole area to pioneer here — to get us recognized as athletes rather than gimps."

In case Knaub needed any more inspiration, he need look no farther than his father, who, after several strokes, was in a wheelchair for 15 years before slowly recovering and learning to walk again.

Mary Orloff

Oh my!

Society may frown upon it, but according to a professor of psychology at U.S.C., swearing may actually be good for you.

Profanity is a proven, age-old trick for releasing frustration and tension, says Chaytor Mason, who swears by it. Not only does flaunting society feel good, he explains, but a well-timed cuss after hitting your thumb with a hammer also draws your attention away from the pain.

Swearing probably originated in caveman days with some colorful grunts, says Mason, adding that for the optimum in obscenity, the words must be "quick to formulate, easy to articulate and easy to remember." And that's why four-letter words are our most popular choice.

CASTOFFS

From Gabe Essoe's new The Book of Movie Lists, here's the real story behind some classic screen castings. Shirley Temple (as Dorothy) and Buddy Ebsen (as the Tinman) were off to see The Wizard of Oz (originally W.C. Fields) before problems — including Ebsen getting a lung infection from the metallic paint — sent them home. Clark Gable and Vivien Leigh were Gone with the Wind before Gary Cooper and Bette Davis said, frankly, we don't give a damn for the Rhett Butler/Scarlett O'Hara roles. William Holden and Gloria Swanson dawned on the makers of Sunset Boulevard only after Montgomery Clift and Mae West said no.

Burt Lancaster thought he looked silly as Ben Hur, while Robert Redford felt he couldn't pass as naive enough for The Graduate, Play it again, Ronnie.

opening up the door to Mrs. Robinson's (potentially Doris Day's) room for Dustin Hoffman. (Redford did luck out with Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid when a proposed Paul Newman-Steve McQueen teamup bit the dust.)

And before Ingrid Bergman walked into Humphrey Bogart's gin joint in Casablanca, the film was originally titled Everybody Goes to Rick's and was to star Ann Sheridan and a hot young actor named Ronald Reagan.

FAILING KIDS 'KILL' PARENTS

In her landmark book, On Death and Dying, Elisabeth Kubler-Ross found that dying patients and grieving loved ones often experience a series of emotional stages. Now a professor of education at the University of Louisville has discovered that parents of children who are failing in school go through almost exactly the same stages.

Dr. Stanley Mour defines "failing" as failing to live up to parental expectations and says that in both his work and his own experience with his son, a high-school dropout, he's observed six emotional stages: 1) denial; 2) recognition; 3) anger; 4) guilt; 5) depression; 6) acceptance.

"When children fail in school, it can be like death in that it limits their future, their potential," theorizes Mour.

BEWITCHED

This Halloween, forget the candy corn, bobbing apples and Spiderman masks. Why not call Rent-a-Witch in Parlin, N.J.?

Bewitching Barbara Janus (left) says she is a witch, and for $200 for two hours you can rent her or any of her 14 staff witches for parties, bar mitzvahs, business consultations or really any occasion when a witch might come in handy. With tarot cards, palmistry and astrological charts, they'll foretell your guests' futures or perhaps reveal a previous life or two.

Janus, who's in her 20's, told us she inherited her powers from her grandmothers and says she gets a headache or a knot in her stomach if a vision of danger comes over her, and feels blissful ("It's like flying without my broom") when happiness lies in the stars. Her predictions are 90-percent accurate, she claims, noting, "After all, I am human." Then she laughs, a trace demonically, and adds, "Or at least, I'm here in a human body."

Quilted Thermal Socks Keep Your Feet Toasty
Warm Down to 30° Below!

These terrific quilted Thermal Socks keep your feet amazingly warm and comfortable, even if you work outdoors in temperatures as low as 30° below! The secret is the heat-retaining construction of quilted nylon and fluffy polyester filing.

Now there's no reason for anyone to suffer the agony of freezing cold feet...no reason for anyone to risk dangerous frostbite...no reason for anyone to have a ski weekend or a skating session ruined because of cold weather.

Perfect for sports...for camping...for working or playing out-of-doors. And they're wonderful all by themselves as cozy, warm slippers to wear around the house! Ankle grip assures comfortable, snug fit. Wear them under shoes or boots—or wear them alone. Just $2.99 a pair—or order 2 pair for $4.99 and save!

HOCUS-FOCUS

CAN YOU TRUST YOUR EYES? There are at least six differences in drawing details between top and bottom panels. How quickly can you find them? Check answers with those below.

Differences: 1. Sweater is different; 2. Arm is lower; 3. Newspaper is missing; 4. Shadow is shorter; 5. Picture is different; 6. Pillow is missing.

Junior Whirl

by Hal Kaufman

● 'TIS WRITTEN! Aristotle wrote: "In the arena of human life the honors and rewards fall to those who show their good qualities in _____." What six-letter word is missing? P.S.: It's the opposite of inactivity.

The missing word is "action."
● Seating Chart! Who sat where? Identify these hasty rhyme characters: 1. _____ sat on a wall.
2. _____ sat on a tufted 3. _____ sat in a corner.
4. _____ sat among the cinders.

He Polly Flanders.
1. Humpty Dumpty, 2. Little Miss Muffet, 3. Little Jack Horner, 4. Little Bo Peep.

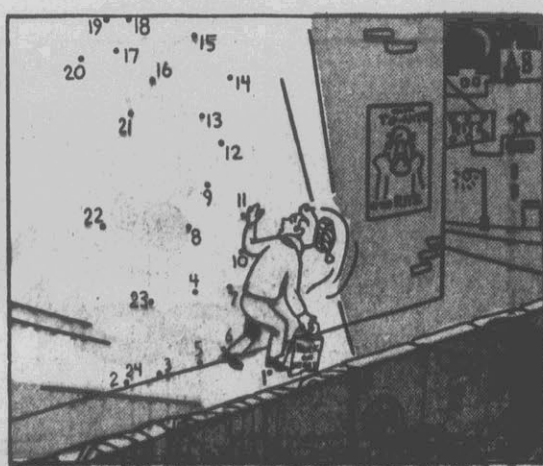

● Halloween Fun! What kind of music do ghosts prefer? Sheet music. Who plays croquet on Halloween? The wicket witch. Where did the witches go boating? On the Eerie Canal.

PHANTOM DIGITS TO DECIPHER!

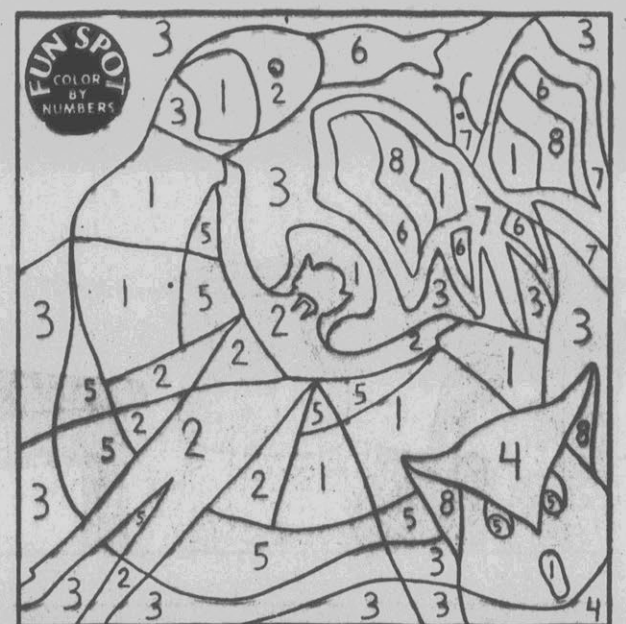

Our ghost friend above just loves to work with phantom figures. But one needn't be a ghost to deal with the poser at hand.

You are asked to determine from the few numbers given, and their positions in the computation, the other numbers represented by X's.

As a starter, note that the first digit in the multiplier must be a 4, because no other product would end in a 2. Now multiply 847 by 4... and go on from there.

SPELLBINDER

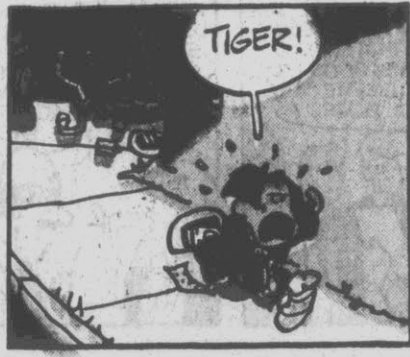

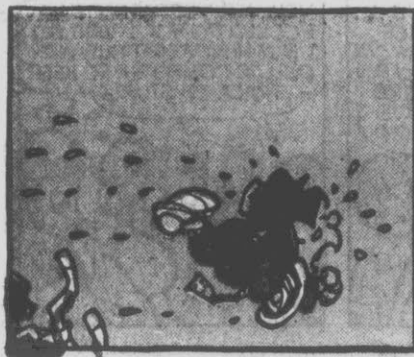

SCORE 10 points for using all the letters in the word below to form two complete words:
SPECTRAL

THEN score 2 points each for all words of four letters or more found among the letters.

Try to score at least 30 points.

CREATED BY HAL FOSTER

Our Story: HIS VICTORY IN THE CHARIOT RACE HAS ENDED THE FEUDING AND MADE PRINCE VALIANT THE MOST POPULAR MAN IN THE MISTY ISLES. "IF I DIDN'T KNOW YOU," SAYS ALETA, "I WOULD THINK YOU WANTED MY THRONE." "IF I WANTED YOUR THRONE," VAL REPLIES, "I WOULD NOT HAVE GIVEN YOU SO MANY HEIRS."

IN ALL THE EXCITEMENT, ARN HAS NOT FORGOTTEN MAEVE. LIKE ALL PEOPLE HE LONGS FOR IMMORTALITY...

...AND, LIKE OTHER PEOPLE, HE KNOWS THAT IT TRULY COMES NOT FROM THE GREATEST OF DEEDS BUT THE MOST COMMON. HE LONGS TO HAVE A WIFE AND CHILDREN. ONE DAY HE BIDS HIS FAMILY GOODBYE. THE WINTRY SEAS ARE ROUGH, BUT HE MUST FIND MAEVE.

VAL UNDERSTANDS. HE REMEMBERS HIS OWN WANDERLUST AS A YOUTH, AND HOW AN ACCIDENT HAD BROUGHT HIM TO ALETA, JUST AS ARN WAS LED TO MAEVE.

NOW HE MUST MAKE TIME FOR GALAN. THE LITTLE BOY HAS BECOME A LITTLE MAN SINCE THE SIEGE OF CAMELOT.

THE TWINS ARE IN GREAT DEMAND. ALETA, CARRYING HER FIFTH CHILD, IS SHOCKED TO RECALL THAT SHE WAS NOT MUCH OLDER THAN KAREN AND VALETA WHEN SHE MET PRINCE VAL. SHE IS INTRIGUED AND APPALLED TO SEE THAT THE TWINS HAVE ACQUIRED BOTH HER ALLURE AND HER COYNESS.

AT CONSTANTINOPLE, JUSTINIAN IS IN HIS CUPS. "LET IT BE A BOY," HE PRAYS. "IT MUST BE A BOY."

WHAT TIME IS IT, UNCLE COSMO?

WHAT DOES THE OLD CLOCK SAY?

THIS CLOCK BELONGED TO MY GRANDFATHER...IT ALWAYS REMINDS ME OF HIM.

LIKE GRAMPA, IT'S A CLASSIC DESIGN, AGING GRACEFULLY...

IT'S DIGNIFIED, YET IT SHOWS THE SCARS AND SCRATCHES OF A FULL LIFE.

BONG BONG

HEY! IT'S SEVEN O'CLOCK, AND IT ONLY RANG TWICE!

YEAH, WELL, OL' GRAMPA WAS MISSING A FEW CHIMES, TOO.
