

Announce Consumer Price Index Change

By OWEN ULLMANN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government announced today it will change its most closely watched inflation measure — the Consumer Price Index — to remove the volatile effects of house prices and mortgage rates. The result is expected to be a lower inflation rate and smaller cost-of-living raises for millions of Americans.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics, an independent and non-partisan branch of the Labor Department, said that starting in January 1983 it will revise its basic index to treat housing costs as if the owner were renting the dwelling.

A companion price index geared toward wage earners and clerical workers will be changed in the same way, but not until January 1985. The change was delayed because this particular index is commonly used for union contracts with cost-of-living clauses, and many of those contracts do not expire for several years.

The change in the CPI will directly affect an estimated 90 million Americans whose incomes are tied to rises in the index. About 9 million union members are covered by labor contracts that provide cost-of-living wage increases based on the CPI, and another 81 million people receive Social Security, government pensions, food stamps and other federal benefits that increase based on rises in the CPI.

"A growing number of people feel that there is something wrong with the CPI and that it should be fixed," Janet L. Norwood, commissioner of the statistics bureau, said at a news conference. "In light of the extensive use of the CPI in our economic system, it is essential that public confidence in it be maintained. These facts clearly indicate that the time for changing the CPI has come."

If the change took effect in 1980, according to government figures, inflation as measured by the CPI would have been 10.8 percent; instead it was 12.4 percent. Similarly, inflation during the 12 months through September 1981 would have been 9.2 percent instead of 11 percent.

Changes in the index also affect government spending on programs with automatic cost-of-living increases. For each 1 percent rise in the index, federal spending goes up about $2 billion.

Although details still are to be worked out, the index would be revised to measure housing costs as if the owner were paying rent. The rent would be based on the costs of operating a home, including property taxes, repairs, insurance and regular maintenance.

Ten Greenville Candidates Give Views At Forum

By JERRY RAYNOR

Concern for ways to finance the city government without increased taxation, the future role of the Greenville Utilities Commission, closer cooperation between city and county governments, annexation of residential areas adjoining Greenville, and ways to attract new industry to the area were the foremost topics touched on this morning at another in a series of candidates' forums now underway.

Two of three mayoral candidates and eight of 11 city council candidates were on hand at 7:30 this morning to take part in the Pepsi Break-Greenville Chamber of Commerce candidate forum held at Ramada Inn.

Bob Griffin, president of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce, welcomed the candidates and visitors.

Each candidate was first given two minutes to express his stands and views. After that round, each was given additional time to answer questions provided by the Chamber.

Percy Cox, a candidate for mayor, said, "There's much concern about the rescue department, the service it's providing. It's evident cross-training is not working out, that we don't have the quality of local service we had before," Cox said. On the subject of industry, Cox believes "low taxes will promote expanded industry and new taxes. The city is now able to handle the water situation . . . but the waste water facility is in trouble, we need to raise money for this project."

Don McGlohan noted he believes the city government "is on the right track with the city's comprehensive plan and our program of citizen involvement. I feel too that our relationships with the Greenville Utilities Commission and East Carolina University are outstanding. Basically, I want to continue our programs. I'm a good listener and will listen to any citizen suggestion on improving our city government."

Mayoral candidate Mrs. Beatrice Terry was not present for the forum.

Candidates for the City Council were presented alphabetically. Three candidates — Judy Green, George Pugh and Louis Clark were unable to attend.

Mrs. Janice Buck said, "I would use the same principles in city government that I have used in running a business. Good government is good business. If I can claim any expertise, it is that of looking at the big picture, putting all the issues together. I'm concerned about where the money is coming from, where it's going." On industry Mrs. Buck said, "Industry has never failed us, and I feel it will help us in the future."

Faircloth Advises 'Keep On Doing It'

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

"It's amazing what's taken place in Pitt County . . . the growth has been spectacular. Keep on doing the things you are doing," N.C. Department of Commerce and Industry secretary D. M. "Lauch" Faircloth said yesterday.

Those comments were made as Faircloth spoke to a group of business, industry and government leaders at a luncheon sponsored by the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce, PGCC's Ayden Council, and the Pitt County Development Commission, and the Farmville Economic Council.

Talking of industrial development in the county, Faircloth, a Sampson County native, said, "There is no section of Eastern North Carolina that has the background in industrial development . . . the mix of agriculture and industry, that Pitt County has. There is no telling what East Carolina University has meant to this county."

Faircloth noted, "Many of you in this room today . . . are responsible for the growth Pitt County has had. It's amazing what has taken place in Pitt County . . . the mix, the variety . . .

a mix (of industry) you just don't see in any other community.

"The university," he continued, "is going to continue to attract people . . . is going to continue to be the magnet," because it makes Greenville and Pitt County "more sophisticated," and is "an attraction to industry."

"Greenville is an enormously attractive community in every respect." That's why, he suggested, "the growth has been spectacular."

According to Faircloth, "There is always the feeling (in industrial development) you haven't done enough." However, he pointed out that since Jim Hunt became governor almost five years ago, there have been 15 new industries or expansions of present industries in the county. Last year, he said, 10 firms expanded or located in Pitt, while so far this year, four expansions have been started.

"When you consider the state as a whole, you have done extremely well," Faircloth emphasized.

"There's no way to guarantee new industry and growth. You do it by keeping on doing the things you are doing right now," Faircloth suggested, such as providing land ("it simply isn't available" in many places he noted), water, sewer, electricity, transportation, and labor.

Pitt County he said "is one of the few communities that is doing a good job . . . an exceptional job. The greatest thing you've got going "is being kind to the industry you have here . . . it's growing. The greatest industrial growth is in expanding of existing industry."

According to Faircloth, "economic development is not part of government. It is government. Without industry you can't create the tax base that all the people would like to see. It's not possible without the economic base, and it's the basis on which all other things come."

Faircloth was introduced by Rep. Ed Warren, who arranged for the Commerce and Industry secretary to speak yesterday. Warren also accompanied Faircloth on a tour of some of the county's industrial sites.

Bruce Beasley, chairman of the Pitt County Development commission welcomed those attending the session, which was presided over by Bob Griffin, board chairman of the PGCC.

Constitutional Rights Said Jeopardized By Computer Technology

By MIKE FEINSILBER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new study says Congress soon must consider how society is to deal with computers capable of predicting who is likely to become a criminal and disclosing whether someone is lying.

The study, published Monday by the Office of Technology Assessment, said computer technology already in use and advances on the horizon raise many questions that demand answers.

"These technical advances are generating public policy issues at a rate that may be outstripping the federal government's ability to respond," said the OTA, an analytical agency of Congress. The OTA proposed no answers.

Many constitutional rights are jeopardized, the report said.

For example, people now have the right to refuse to take lie detector tests. But they can be forced to give self-incriminating testimony — in violation of the Fifth Amendment — if a machine called a "voice-stress analysis" is used without their knowledge to determine from their voice whether they are lying.

And devices that note what television programs someone watches and what books he checks out can reveal much that he might want to keep private. Such machines can give "an accurate profile of an individual's interests and attitudes."

"Psychology-based" computers — including those used to predict behavior — raise questions that have not received congressional attention, the report said.

For example, "Much research has been done on the application of computer-based social science and statistical models to files of personal data and the result of psychological tests in order to predict behavior. Techniques are being studied for detecting tendencies toward juvenile delinquency, drunken driving or violent anti-social behavior and for security checks by the government."

Businesses may some day use such computer-based predictions to decide whether to extend credit or insurance to people or give them jobs.

"On the other hand, society cannot imprison a person who a computer model predicts may someday rob a bank," the report said. "But should that knowledge be 'reasonable cause' to monitor such a person closely or deny employment?"

Market Closing

The Greenville Tobacco Board of Trade, meeting yesterday, set Monday, Nov. 2 as the final sales date of the 1981 flue-cured tobacco marketing season in Greenville.

The Board of Trade also announced that the dates for the sale of Maryland tobacco have been changed to Friday, Oct. 30 and Friday, Nov. 6, commencing at 8:30 a.m.

Six warehouses will hold sales for Maryland tobacco, it was reported. They are Keel's, Raynor-Forbes & Clark, Star-Planters, New Independent, Growers, and New Greenville.

PUBLISH SOLAR FRACTION?

I wish The Daily Reflector would start publishing the solar fraction each day. Radio and television stations are airing it now. It gives solar heat users an idea of what they have gained and helps make others of us aware of the benefits of solar heat, I should hope. J.K.

Consider it done. The Daily Reflector has arranged with the East Carolina University Department of Physics to have the solar fraction reported each weekday by Bonnie Main. It will be a regular weekday feature of our newspaper.

The solar fraction, Dr. Carl Adler of the ECU Physics Department said, is obtained by monitoring hour-by-hour solar energy gain for this area and figuring how much of a family of four's hot water needs could have been met by the sun each day if they were using standard commercially-produced solar energy collectors for water heating.

Haitian Refugees Say Crew Abandoned Them

By DAVID CHANDLER
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI (AP) — Survivors of the deadly wreck of a rickety sailboat carrying Haitian refugees say the vessel's crew abandoned them about an hour before the boat capsized.

Meanwhile, a medical examiner said autopsies on the 33 people whose bodies washed ashore indicate the refugees had been loaded into the boat from a mother ship a short time before.

The refugees were fed a variety of refrigerated meals about one hour before their open-hulled, 25-foot boat broke up on a reef, Dr. Ronald Wright, the Broward County medical examiner, said Monday night in a telephone interview from his Fort Lauderdale office.

At least 30 more Haitians swam to safety at Hillsboro Beach in the pre-dawn incident Monday. The survivors claimed they had sailed from Haiti to Florida by way of the Bahamas in the mud-caulked, square-rigged boat.

They were taken into custody by the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service and transferred to the Krome Refugee Camp near Miami, 30 miles to the south.

It was the worst such accident since large numbers of Caribbean refugees began arriving by boat more than three years ago.

Wright said that as far as he was concerned, the death toll was 35. "There were two ladies pregnant with near-term babies," he said. "We got them born. Then we issued them death certificates."

He described the remainder of the dead as young adults.

"They had just eaten the type of meals that come from a really good refrigerator," he said. "Some people had had rice and chicken. Others, potatoes and pork, some vegetables, salad. They were well-fed."

The survivors (Immigration officials that four other Haitians, identified as boat captain Charles Joseph and his three mates, anchored the boat just offshore about 5:30 a.m. EST.

"The captain and crew swam ashore, telling everyone to stay put," while they arranged transportation to the beach, said Leonard Rowland, an immigration official in Miami.

"About an hour later, two or three big waves came along and overturned them. Those who could swim made it. Those who couldn't, didn't," Rowland said.

A police search turned up no sign of the four.

Demonstrations Won't Change NATO Decisions

By ROBERT WIELAARD

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Anti-nuclear demonstrations by more than 850,000 West Europeans are not going to change NATO's decision to deploy American nuclear missiles in Europe, a senior U.S. representative at the alliance's headquarters reports.

The official, who asked not to be named, said the protests expressed the opinion of "a fairly substantial number of Europeans."

But he said that would force "no change of attitude" by the members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization toward the planned deployment of medium-range American nuclear missiles in Britain, Belgium, the Netherlands, West Germany and Italy to counter Soviet missiles already in place and targeted on Western Europe.

However, the Belgian and Dutch governments have not agreed to accept the missiles on their territory, and British officials foresaw that growing Dutch opposition to the deployment might force modification of the plans.

The Dutch Labor Party, a member of the outgoing coalition government, adopted a resolution over the weekend opposing the missile deployment. "If the Dutch do not finally accept the missiles, we will obviously have to revise the deployment," said a British source in London who asked not to be identified.

U.S. officials have said if Belgium or the Netherlands rejects the missiles, other locations would have to be found for them or the number to be deployed would have to be reduced.

In an interview with The Washington Post, published today, presidential counselor Edwin Meese III said the United States remains committed to the plans for deploying the missiles in Europe, despite the protests.

Vice President George Bush said at a meeting of investors at the White House that the threat to peace is a Soviet buildup, not the U.S. weapons.

"I don't question the idealism of the people who have been protesting the deployment of medium-range nuclear missiles in Western Europe, but I do question their sense of perspective," Bush said.

According to NATO figures, the Soviet Union has deployed 750 SS-20 warheads targeted on Western Europe. To balance this, the Western alliance agreed two years ago to deploy 572 cruise and Pershing II missiles in Western Europe beginning in 1983.

Amid growing public opposition in Europe, the NATO defense ministers last week reaffirmed the plan to begin the deployment in 1983 after U.S. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger pledged the United States would consider trying to reduce missiles in Europe to the "zero level" in arms limitation negotiations with the Soviet Union starting Nov. 30 in Geneva, Switzerland.

"Zero level" would mean cancellation of the NATO deployment in exchange for removal of all the Soviet missiles.

The biggest demonstrations have been held in capitals of countries that are scheduled to get the missiles. During the weekend, there were 200,000 marchers in Brussels, 200,000 in Rome and 150,000 in London, along with 50,000 in Paris and 7,000 in Oslo. Two weeks ago, 250,000 demonstrated in Bonn.

Adm. Robert Falls, the Canadian chairman of NATO's military advisory committee, said the alliance should undertake a coordinated disarmament strategy to reassure "frightened citizens" in Europe and counter Moscow's propaganda. He proposed linking the talks on reduction of conventional and nuclear weapons to insure balanced reductions.

Falls told reporters in Ottawa he hoped the anti-nuclear demonstrations would not undermine the alliance, but added, "I confess it is a danger."

Pitt Native On Raleigh Council

RALEIGH — A Pitt County native was recently elected to the city council of the capital city.

Sandra Porter Babb, formerly of Portertown, won a seat on the Raleigh City Council during elections held earlier this month.

Babb, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Lerman Porter of Route 3, Greenville, is director of the division of community assistance, N.C. Department of Natural Resources and Community Development.

She graduated from East Carolina University with a B.S. in social studies and English and an M.A. Ed. in history and education. Babb also received an M.A. degree in American History from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

The councilwoman was elected as a fellow in the North Carolina Institute of Politics, 1975, the National Endowment for the Humanities Seminar for Public Administrators, 1978, and the North Carolina Government Executive Institute, 1980.

Bolivia Report

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP) — A U.N. Human Rights Commission report will detail "monstrous" human rights violations "that have been and continue being committed" in this South American country, a source close to the panel said.

The report will also charge that the United States and its Western allies contributed to the violation of "economic and social rights" of the majority of Bolivians by economic sanctions against the country.

Human rights violations have been widely alleged since the military seized power in July 1980. The United States and other foreign governments cut off aid because of the huge cocaine exports, much of which goes to the United States.

Suckers Sold For Lighthouse

Students at A.G. Cox Grammar School are "licking the problem" of the Cape Hatteras Lighthouse by buying and selling suckers at the school and by concentrating on the historic lighthouse in their studies.

Profits of the sale of the suckers, estimated to be around $600, will be donated to the Cape Hatteras Light-house Preservation Fund at a date tentatively set for early November.

The school has conducted the campaign in association with the history classes' study, in grades 4-8, of the lighthouse and its fate. Individual research projects, model constructions, letters written to state and national congressmen and poster campaigns highlighted and illustrated the impact felt school-wide about the threatened structure.

Flower Arranging Seminars Feature Colonial Williamsburg Florist Owner

By ROSALIE TROTMAN

 Keep your colors pretty much together—it makes an arrangement more attractive. Use what you have in your garden, yard or neighbor's yard," said Claude Jones of Williamsburg, Va.

ately after its cut to prolong its beauty. His first arrangement, in addition to the foliage, included osage oranges, Indian corn, greenery, cones, carrots and small red potatoes. As a hearth piece, he combined bay leaves, fall leaves, dog fennel, golden rod and broom straw in a tobacco jar.

them to the arrangement. A second epergnette featured light bronze daisies, Chinese holly and ivy.

Several of his Della Robia wreaths were created with mangolia leaves or white pine roping. Apples, lemons, grapes, cones, grapes and acuba were also featured on the wreaths. He described making a swag using chicken wire rolled and then decorated with greenery and fruit.

A Hogarth curve was decorated with berries, lemons, apples, cones, grapes, magnolia leaves and accented with four candlesticks. "It's unbelievable what you can do with what you have right at your fingertips," he commented.

Prince Charles visited Colonial Williamsburg in May and was at the College of William and Mary where he was entertained at a luncheon and presented a degree. In describing his arrangements for the luncheon which was held in the Great Hall of the Wrenn Building, Jones said, "I used colors from the Royal Crest which included burgundies, dark blues, golds and some peach colors. The colors were in the portraits of Queen Anne and William and Mary. The arrangements were 'open and airy' or as the English say 'so the butterflies can fly through them.'"

The flowers were in variegated red and yellow tulips, sonya roses and ivy and were placed in baskets.

Using more of what's available and a more natural look are things Jones foresees in the future of flowers and arrangements. "Everything now is in the country look," he said. "For Christmas, the most beautiful things you can do is with fresh greenery," he added.

FALL FOLIAGE. osage oranges, carrots, red potatoes, yellow squash and apples are featured in this arrangement created by Claude Jones, whose picture is shown inserted.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

I don't know about you, but I find a great deal of comfort in knowing there is a wife and mother on the Supreme Court of this land.

It gives us that edge and we need it the way things are progressing. I suspect it will be only a matter of years before this judicial body is faced with a monumental decision regarding the American family: Does a bedroom occupied by a child give the child ownership and jurisdiction for the rest of his life? Or does it legally belong to the parents to make available at their terms?

It's a question that has been argued between mother and child for as long as I can remember... usually with a door locked between them.

With the coming and going these days of grown children, parents are confused. When do you take a bedroom off the market and convert it to something else? Are there house rules on who occupies the bedroom and how many and what their marriage status is? Who enforces health standards? Is a locked door a right or a challenge?

Knowing how slowly the wheels of justice move, I would like to introduce the 28th amendment to the Constitution: the Bedroom Rights Amendment (BRA).

I only hope this is written obscurely enough to be taken seriously: "THE LAW SHALL DECLARE THAT AS LONG AS PARENTS OCCUPY A DOMICILE, THE BEDROOM IS A PART OF THAT DOMICILE AND THE RULES ACCORDED THE ROOM ARE WITHIN THE JURISDICTION OF THE PARENTS."

If a parent grants rights to live in said bedroom then the bedroom must sign the following document of consent:

Anything that dies in the room must be buried before the sun sets on it.

In the event of missing towels, glassware, food and silverware, a parent has the right to search and seizure.

Parents have the right to break down the door when it is too quiet.

Boxes and luggage upon returning from an apartment/arrriage will be left in the garage for 30 days of de-bugging before being allowed in the house.

No stereo system will be permitted on the premises without headphones.

Parents are not only allowed to accept payment for room... but will insist upon it.

Persons left in the room longer than 60 days should be forwarded.

After age 18, a child's bedroom becomes a part of the house again with beds made daily, linen changed weekly and an air of wholesomeness. At least once a week, returning child should say, "Thank you for letting me stay here."

The BRA would take 35 states to ratify or 15 mothers... whichever comes first.

Miss Russ will marry Mark Smith Dec. 6.

Speak To Friend Then To Dad

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I'm 39 and work in the stockroom of my father's sportswear store. A man about my father's age (60), who happens to be a good friend of my father, works with me. This "friend" steals merchandise all the time. I'm the only one who knows it because there are just the two of us back there. He makes no effort to hide his stealing from me—he just takes whatever he wants as though it belonged to him!

Should I tell my father, or should I say something to this man?
 "C"

DEAR "C": First, tell the "friend" that you've noticed him helping himself to your father's merchandise, and ask if he has some kind of arrangement with your father that permits him to take what he wants without cost.

Then check it out with your father.

DEAR ABBY: Please give more publicity to a problem that has been "in the closet" much too long. It concerns incest and child molestation.

When this catastrophic crime hit my family of highly respectable, educated people, I handled it all wrong. In our case, it was a grandfather. Half the family was outraged. The other half thought the first half was overreacting, or possibly that we were mistaken about the intentions of a loving old grandfather.

Out of family loyalty, we did not prosecute. We were wrong. Consequently, nothing has been done to get the offender the help he needs.

Abby, this crime must be stopped. I am certain there is much more of it going on than most people realize. The child must be the first concern. Then treatment (forced, if need be) for the sick offender. Please let your readers know that ignoring child molestation hurts everyone.

WITHHOLD MY NAME AND CITY

DEAR WITHHOLD: Child molestation and particularly incest already have one foot out of the closet. There is an organization that has proven to be very helpful.

"Parents United and Daughters and Sons United" chapters have sprung up in many parts of the country. This self-help group is affiliated with a professional treatment program and works closely with the courts. While protection of the child is always given top priority, support is provided for families who want to work out their problems and stay together, and even for those who don't!

Information is available free by writing to: Parents United, P.O. Box 952, San Jose, Calif. 95108. Because this is a non-profit organization, please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope for a reply.

DEAR ABBY: Tears of anger burned my eyes when I read the letter from "Smothered in Maine," who claimed her mother-in-law was doing too much for Karla, her 2-year-old granddaughter. ("She has bought her way into our lives," she said, "and I am sick of it.")

She ridiculed "Gamma's" offer to baby-sit every weekend and resented all the lavish gifts she showered on Karla.

This is my Gamma: Thank you for your generous gifts that often allowed my parents the extra money to add to my education fund.

Thank you for providing time for my mother and dad to be alone together.

Thank you for letting me bake cookies in your magic kitchen and never mentioning the mess.

Thank you for the nights spent in your big bed, and for not being cross when I threw up on your comforter.

For my first roller skates, for telling me when Grandpa went to Heaven, for holding my hand at the dentist, for helping me look for Snuffy for three days when he was lost, and for all the wonderful years and endless hugs, thank you, Grammie. Dear heart, wherever you are, I love you.

Bridal Policy

A black and white glossy five by seven photograph is requested for engagement announcements. For publication in a Sunday edition, the information must be submitted by 12 noon on the preceding Wednesday. Engagement pictures must be released at least three weeks prior to the wedding date. After three weeks, only an announcement will be printed.

Wedding write-ups will be printed through the first week with a five by seven picture. During the second week with a wallet size picture and write-up giving less description and after the second week, just as an announcement. Wedding forms and pictures should be returned to "The Daily Reflector" one week prior to the date of the wedding. All information should be typed or written neatly.

Easy to make, rich and tender, crunchy crust.

1/2 cup fork-stirred all-purpose white flour
 1/2 cup wholewheat flour

2 teaspoons baking powder
 1/4 teaspoon salt
 1 1/2 teaspoons sugar
 3/4 cup heavy cream

In a medium bowl stir together the flours, baking powder, salt and sugar. With a fork, gradually stir in the cream. Using a spoon and a small metal spatula, drop the soft dough into small muffin-pan cups (each 2 inches across the top and 1 inch deep) filling them almost full. Bake in a preheated 450-degree oven until browned—15 minutes. Serve very hot with butter. Makes 12.

East Will Hurt Most

Meeting highway needs in the future is going to become more and more difficult.

State officials are already saying there is little money available for new construction work — that most of the funds now coming in will be needed for maintenance of the present highway system. The tight situation for new road construction is true despite the increase of 3 cent per gallon in the state fuel tax.

Now the Department of Transportation is saying that completion of the 80 miles of the interstate highway system is in danger of not being carried out. The completion of the interstate system depends on receiving $260 million in federal funds, and those funds may not be forthcoming. The state also needs another $500 million to widen congested sections and restore road sections which are already wearing out.

A new formula for funding the interstate system is currently being developed and it is feared the formula will favor more urban states than North Carolina.

There is also concern that there won't be enough money in state funds, to pay North Carolina's 10 percent share of interstate costs, even if the federal money is available.

It tells us that either we are going to do without new roads, or we must find new methods of financing road construction ... and if new roads are not constructed it will once again be Eastern North Carolina which suffers most since we have been so much left out in the past.

Bond Issues Can Be Helpful

There is mounting opposition to government bond issues at every level, but sometimes it is wise to issue bonds, pay them off on a regular basis and have the benefit of the projects they finance.

That has been true for several decades as rising cost of construction meant it was more expensive to build school buildings, roads and other capital improvements.

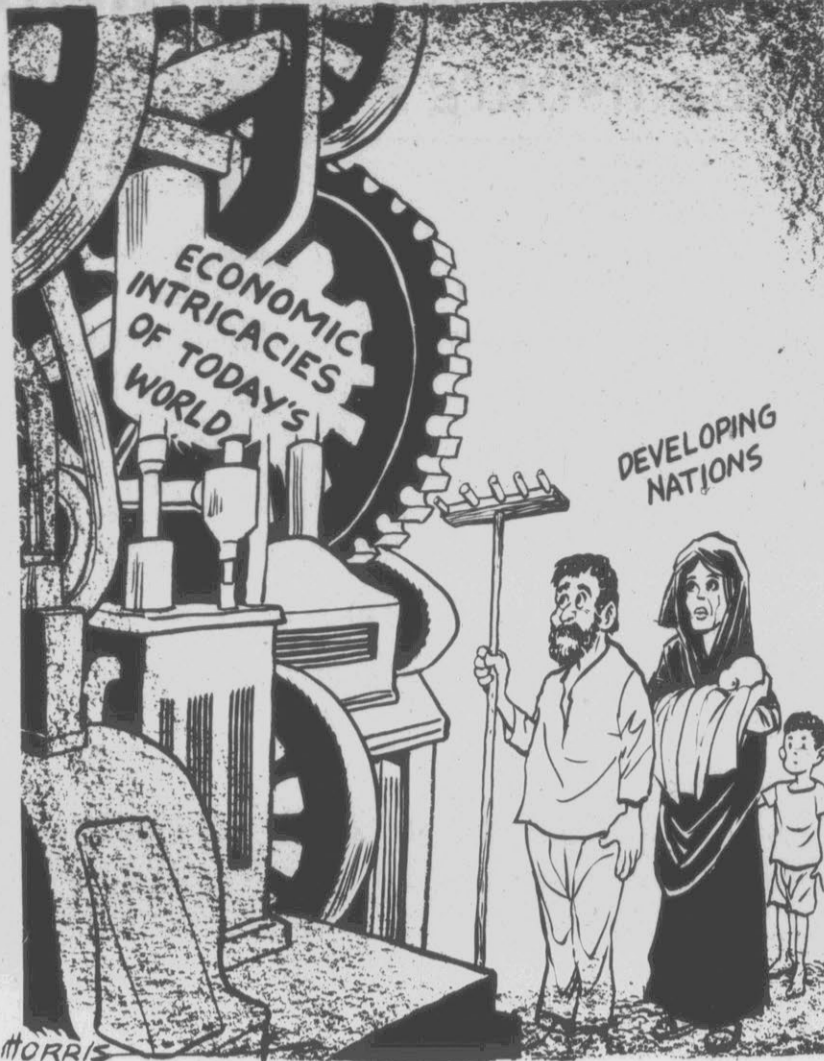

The Kerr Scott road bond issue built far more secondary roads than the same amount of money could today, and other bond issues have built educational buildings which would cost far more today.

It proves, of course, there is room for bond issues in government financing so long as it is not overdone.

In these times of high interest rates, any bond issue should be studied carefully, but we should not hesitate to consider this method of financing if it is to our long term favor.

YES--THEY DO NEED HELP!

BY JAMES J. KILPATRICK

Deadly Press Releases

WASHINGTON — The power to tax, said the first Justice Marshall, involves the power to destroy. In the everyday exercises of the federal bureaucracy, the power to issue a staff press release can have the same effect. Ask the small-business men who used to install urea formaldehyde foam insulation.

The story is instructive. Most of us are at least dimly aware of the immense and arbitrary power of federal agencies. Few of us have felt the impact quite so keenly as the 1,100 foam installers who had nice little businesses just a year ago. Only 220 are known to be still in business today.

Forty-odd years ago an inventive German discovered how to turn formaldehyde resin into foam. Then it was found that the foam had excellent properties for insulation. No one imagined that the infinitesimal level of formaldehyde in the final product — less than half of 1 percent — could present any hazard. Formaldehyde, after all, is the most common of all industrial chemical compounds. The pungent gas turns up in disinfectants and preservatives, in plywood, draperies, carpeting, shampoo and cosmetics. It puts the permanent press in fabrics. It appears in cigarette smoke.

JAMES J. KILPATRICK

The makers of Gleem toothpaste, with the approval of the Food and Drug Administration, add a trace of formaldehyde resin to their product. Formaldehyde is all around us.

But on Nov. 24, 1980, zealous staffers of the Consumer Product Safety Commission seized on a study that had been made of the effects of formaldehyde on laboratory rats. The animals were exposed to unrealistically massive doses of formaldehyde fumes for six hours a day, five days a week, for more than two years. Not surprisingly, some of the rats developed tumors in their noses. The study was replicated this year at New York University Medical Center.

In any common sense view, the two studies would indicate no significant risk to human beings. Indeed, the Environmental Protection Agency staff, in an unrelated action, last month looked at the two studies and came to precisely that conclusion. But over at the CPSC, common sense is in short supply. Citing 1,600 consumer complaints — many of them quite dubious complaints — staffers took to TV and to the press.

Their press release warned in ominous terms that homeowners risked cancer if they installed urea formaldehyde insulation. Staff members urged an immediate ban. In January, by a 3-2 vote, the commission took indecisive action — not to ban the stuff, but to propose a ban and to invite comments. On October 1, the commission voted 4-1 to extend the period of delay for another 130 days.

The delay is killing the industry. Formerly there were 34 manufacturers of the foam insulation. Now there are six. In 1977 a single manufacturer had 12 plants going; one of those plants alone had a monthly output of 7,500 drum sets. Today the monthly production for the entire industry is about 1,100 drum sets. Scores of installers, most of them mom-and-pop enterprises, have taken bankruptcy. And as the EPA's decision makes clear, there is still no convincing evidence whatever of serious hazard to humans.

The commission's irresponsible conduct has side effects.

Said No To Inner Circle

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — Veteran California political consultant Stuart Spencer has turned down President Reagan's plea to come to Washington as top political aide in the White House with particular emphasis on the 1982 mid-term election.

Spencer last month was asked to replace Lyn Nofziger, who has resigned effective Jan. 22 as political aide, but at a new and higher level. Spencer, who has managed Reagan political campaigns dating back to 1966, was offered a senior post that would have included him in the exclusive little circle of aides closest to the president.

That circle now includes James Baker III, White House chief of staff; Edmund Meese III, presidential counselor, and Michael K. Deaver, deputy chief of staff. They constitute an all-powerful "Big Three" that meets each morning. Spencer would have expanded it to a "Big Four."

Spencer has informed Baker that economic and other personal considerations prevent him from coming to Washington full-time from his Orange County, Calif., base, but added he will continue to consult Reagan on a part-time basis. Spencer also felt that the "Big Four" concept simply would not work.

The idea of Spencer replacing Nofziger was suggested by Baker, who has been worried about the 1982 campaign specifically and the lack of political expertise in the Reagan White House generally. Reagan was enthusiastic, placing a personal telephone call to Spencer to urge his acceptance.

Spencer and his then partner, Bill Roberts, managed Reagan's campaigns for governor in 1966 and 1970. But as key political operative for President Gerald R. Ford in 1976, he directed a tough personal campaign against Reagan's challenge.

Nevertheless, when his 1980 general election campaign was running into trouble, Reagan called for Spencer to ride with him as personal political adviser on the campaign plane. His counsel is generally credited with turning around the Reagan campaign.

With Spencer out of the picture, Reagan and Baker still are looking for a political manager at the White House. These are understood to be the possibilities, in the order currently referred to by Baker:

— Rich Williamson, White House aide for intergovernmental affairs. A former aide to Sen. Paul Laxalt (R-Nev.), he has impressed Baker but has many critics in Republican ranks.

— Bayley Barber, a Republican political operative and lawyer from Yazoo City, Miss. His main drawback is his background as Southern manager for John B. Connally against Reagan contesting the 1980 presidential nomination.

— Ed Rollins, Nofziger's deputy. He has been scheduled to manage Lt. Gov. Michael Curb's campaign for governor in California, but would stay in Washington if offered the job. His main liability is that he has been hidden in Nofziger's shadow.

Whoever gets the job, Nofziger aide Lee Atwater probably will be transferred from the White House to Republican National Headquarters to concentrate on the 1982 campaign. The president's men have not been impressed with the first year's activity by Republican-national Chairman Richard Richards.

THIS AFTERNOON

Power Motivator

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — The General Assembly of North Carolina has discovered an important new fact: it can call itself into session whenever it wants.

This year, history is being made. The General Assembly is really supposed to meet once every two years for a few months. With the 1974-75 recession it began meeting yearly to "balance the budget."

Getting around the spirit of the Constitution, the second-year session is a continuation of the first.

This year, however, a continuation of the first session was held within a few months for the stated purpose of considering the impact on state government, and more especially the budget, of federal spending cuts taken by the U.S. Congress. Never mind the fact that the information about those cuts still was not at hand. The Assembly convened to balance the budget.

The budget balancing was not what was on the minds of key leaders in the General Assembly during the recent weeklong session however. Power was the motivator. And tucked deeply away in the legislative package adopted were two significant power plays. More about that later.

Three Times
Meanwhile, midway through the "second session," the legislative leadership decided to hold yet another 1981 meeting which will come up late in October. This time, redistricting is the matter. But far above what the legislators are mulling when they convene in Raleigh is the simple fact they are convening. Traditionally a special session was called by the governor to handle some truly timely crisis. Legislators did their thing and forgot about state government until the next session was in the offing.

Ironically, the Republican administration of President Ronald Reagan is providing North Carolina Democrats the excuse they have long wanted to put the General Assembly on a fulltime basis. The federal government is relinquishing its iron grip on hundreds of categorical grant programs and dozens of regulatory, supervisory, and rules-writing functions. As the president has said: it is time to restore the states that historical role which they were assigned earlier in the nation's history.

If the state is to assume all that important power over money and decisions, who is going to be the boss? Again, traditionally, the governor has been the boss. The Legislature put down broad guidelines of policy and spending practices and left it up to the executive to do the daily job.

In bigtime politics, though, power over money is the way the score is kept. The more power over money, the bigger the winner.

Here is where a brief backgrounder is essential to understanding what is going on in Raleigh. Remember the cast of characters: Jimmy Green, Harold Hardison, Ken Royall, and Craig Lawing in the state senate; and Liston Ramsey and Billy Watkins in the house. A few others have come and gone, but the key

To the editor:

On Wednesday I visited J.H. Rose High School to meet and talk with several of my son's teachers. The experience was both rewarding and disheartening for me. I was quite pleased with the extent of the teachers' interest in and concern for my son and his academic progress. On the other hand, the realization of how few parent ever personally contact their children's teachers was a real eye-opener for me.

We hear so much today about the poor quality of education and educators and most of the blame generally falls on the teachers. But is this where it belongs? I think education of our children MUST be a cooperative venture that includes not only teachers but parents and students as well. And this cooperation must begin when your child enters kindergarten and continue through his/her graduation from high school. The education of our children is too important a charge to be just turned over to a third party, and that is what we are doing when we send our children to school and expect the teachers to do it all with no help or support from us. It should not be the complete responsibility of the school.

I'll bet if just half the parents in this area were to schedule conferences with their children's teacher this year, we would see a dramatic rise in academic progress. We might also see a few teachers fainting, but maybe they would get used to it in time. At least it's worth a try and all it will cost you is a few minutes of your time. At Rose High, all you have to do is call the Guidance Office and they will arrange conferences with the teachers to suit your schedule. At the other schools, I'm sure a guidance counselor, secretary or the principal will be happy to do the same.

Let's show teacher AND our children that we care. They'll be better for it and I'll bet you will, too.

To the editor:

Some time ago, you printed an article concerning alcohol use in J.H. Rose Highschool on the front page of a Sunday paper. We find it hard to believe that you could not find any room in your paper to cover the Rose High School's Homecoming. Aside from the football game, there was also a parade, and a half-time ceremony where the 1981 Homecoming Queen was crowned.

The Alcohol story was not only unnecessary, it was highly overrated, and the fact that the Homecoming was totally overlooked, proved to be a disappointment to all concerned. This event is a big accomplishment to everyone involved.

We sincerely hope, that in the future, your consideration on such events of importance, as the Homecoming, receive more attention.

Testing Supply-Sider Courage

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — These are the days that try supply-sider souls, testing whether they have courage sufficient to stay the course in the face of terrible economic news.

These are days also that could provide millions of Americans with an indelible lesson — that the economic future isn't always a simple projection of the present, because great changes may be under way.

Supply-siding is a long-term theory in which money is steered into investments that make the production side of the economy more efficient — so efficient, it is said, that the bounty can be shared by all.

In the short term, however, it has at least one undeniable consumer consequence: It means tougher times, times such as these, when modest attempts to buy cars and houses and good vacations are frustrated.

In the short term it also means political problems, such as those President Reagan may soon be encountering from automobile workers, homemakers and others who feel they are getting a bad deal from the administration.

And so it is a time, therefore, when political realities may intrude on economic convictions. A time when the most convinced supply-siders may, in the forest of details, lose courage in reaching the goal.

It is in this setting that a forecast of boom for automakers produces a feeling of disbelief. But there it is, an announcement from Value Line, the biggest investment advisor of all, that its analysts expect the U.S. auto industry, which lost nearly $4 billion last year, to earn $3.6 billion next year, and nearly double that in the years 1984-1986.

Value Line makes mistakes, although probably far fewer than the great majority of those who claim to have insight into the future. It is also the biggest advisory service, having won that status over 50 years.

In the midst of the worst mid-October car sales period in 23 years (from Oct. 11 to Oct. 20), during which sales fell to a 5.1 million unit annual rate, the advisory service talks about 12 million units by 1984.

Between then and 1986, it declares, General Motors stock, now selling around $40 a share, could sell from between $145 to $175. Ford, now under $20 a share, might reach $60 to $80. Chrysler, under $5, could reach $16, and American Motors, now under $3, could reach $12.

How can such a bullish forecast be made in the midst of such pervasive gloom? Because, the service says, a number of factors, already at work, will make their impact.

First off, there is pent-up demand. Buyers have learned to run their cars a few years longer than would have considered wise a few years ago. But they cannot postpone their purchases indefinitely.

Next, auto companies have been on cost-cutting programs, at the same time pouring billions into improving production facilities. They are becoming more efficient. They are learning to control inventories. Value Line also foresees a possible rise in real consumer income — that is, income adjusted for inflation — and a decline in interest rates. Moreover, it notes, Japan has agreed to limit its shipments.

In short, it declares, the automotive industry is changing. Today's performance, it suggests, cannot be used to project the future, any more than today's economic performance foretells the standard of living a few years hence. The industry is supply-siding.

At the moment, automotive stocks are depressed, and so is the economy. The automobile companies say wait until tomorrow and we'll look a lot better. President Reagan says wait until 1983 and the economy will look as bright and shiny as promised during the election campaign.

The question is whether or not the voting public is willing to invest in him and perhaps win big over the long-term.

It's a situation similar to investing in automotive stocks. It takes faith.

Strength For Today
WE LONG FOR HOME
A child was in a hospital awaiting an operation necessary to save his life. And yet, completely unaware of the circumstances, his mind was set on only one thing. "I want to go home," he murmured over and over again.

That person has a very hard heart indeed who is not touched by the plaintive cry of a child. And yet there is a way in which we are, all children. The Bible declares that all of us, like sheep, have gone astray. There are times when, no matter what advantage may be ours, we keep murmuring "When can I go home?"

St. Augustine described this longing well when he said that our souls are restless until they find their rest in God. We are primarily spiritual beings. We are never at rest until we have met the demands of a spiritual existence.

French Assembly Passes Nationalization Measure

PARIS (AP) — The Socialist-dominated National Assembly, after 118 hours of debate in 13 days, passed President Francois Mitterrand's nationalization bill providing for state control of five industrial groups, 36 banks and two other financial institutions. The final vote late Monday was 332-154. The bill now goes before the Senate, a largely consultative body which can amend but has no power to reject legislation.

The bill would nationalize the Rhone-Poulenc chemical group, Pechiney-Ugine-Kuhlmann, an aluminum manufacturer, the electronic firms Thomson-Brandt and Compagnie Generale d'Electricite, and Saint-Gobain-Pont-a-Mousson, a diversified conglomerate.

The financial institutions are Compagnie Financiere de l'Indochine et de Suez, known as Indosuez, and Paribas.

The Socialist government elected last summer already has nationalized the two major steel firm Usinor and Sacilor and has taken majority control of the Dassault aviation company and the military manufacturing portions of the Matra high-technology firm.

The bill will increase state control over French business from 12 percent to about 17 percent. The government took over the railroads and shipping in the 1930s and has always controlled broadcasting. In the immediate postwar era, President Charles de Gaulle took over electricity, gas, coal, a number of banking and insurance companies and the fledgling nuclear energy industry. In the 1960s, the Gaullist government took over parts of the automobile and aviation industries.

The final passage of the bill brought long applause from the Socialist majority in the assembly while conservative and centrist deputies expressed dissatisfaction.

"Behind your nationalization project, it is the economic system that is brought into question, it is the kind of democracy that is being changed," said Charles Million, speaking for the centrist coalition, Union for French Democracy.

Jacques Godfrain of the Gaullist Rally for the Republic said: "The state, a benevolent despot, is overseeing everything, assuring everything. No more risks because there is no more competition — no more uncertainty because of the monopolies."

Pierre Joxe, president of the Socialist group in the assembly, replied that the bill "puts into effect a more rational policy of investments" and "gives workers their right place. It returns morality by restoring the general interest as opposed to the search for private profit."

Jean Le Garrec, secretary of state in charge of nationalizations, said passage of the bill was "a step toward more justice for the rights of the workers of our country." He said the bill is "not an end, but a point of departure."

"Everything that concerns the power of money incites in you reactions of incomprehensible violence," Le Garrec told the opposition deputies. "You wanted to cause fear. We are fighting for more liberties."

Center Offers New Services

The Pitt County Mental Health Center is offering two new services through its community services component of the center — a Speakers' Bureau and an Employee Enhancement Workshop.

The speakers' bureau provides information programs, ranging from 20 to 60 minutes in length, on child discipline, aging, marriage and the family and stress management and other topics of contemporary interest.

The Employee Enhancement Workshop is designed for use in industry and business to promote positive well-being. Training in the areas of stress management, human relations and motivation are offered. The workshops have been shown to increase morale and productivity within industries and businesses.

All presentations and workshops are individually designed by the diverse staff of the Mental Health Center to meet a particular group's special needs. Both the Speakers' Bureau and the Employee Enhancement Workshop are available to industries, businesses, schools, clubs and other interested organizations. For more information, contact Don Reeves, coordinator of community services, Pitt County Mental Health Center, 752-0119.

'Spotlight' Program To Be Held

The third of four "Spotlights on Stress," to be held Thursday at noon, will feature Dr. Charles Mitchell as the speaker.

"Spotlights on Stress" is a series of Thursday luncheon talks sponsored by the Mental Health Association in Pitt County held at the Greenville Recreation and Parks Administration Building, 2000 Cedar Lane.

DR. CHARLES MITCHELL

Dr. Mitchell, professor of psychology at East Carolina University and a licensed psychologist, will speak on "Self-Help Techniques in Managing Stress." He will center his session around relaxation techniques. He has been a member of the ECU faculty since 1965. He has degrees from N.C. State University and the University of Tennessee and, in addition to his teaching, has been a clinical and consulting psychologist for several hospitals, clinics and school systems. He has served as president of the Mental Health Association in Pitt County and now serves as an active volunteer with the Association.

There is no charge for attending this program. For more information, call the MHA in Pitt County, 752-7448.

More than half a million homes have been insulated with foam in the past 10 years. If an outright ban should be imposed, a statement of defect presumably would have to be included when the home is sold. In Massachusetts, which imposed its own state ban, the value of foam-insulated houses has dropped by 25 percent.

This is not the first time the commission has acted with such reckless disregard for human consequence. The commission very nearly destroyed a toy manufacturer in Wisconsin by sheer negligence. Again, it drove a California importer to the wall by impounding his stock at the peak of his Christmas sales season. Now it's the foam insulators who are being ruined. Upon what merit do these our Caesars feed that they have grown so great?

Power Play

Back in 1972, Republican Jim Holshouser was elected governor. Democrat Jim Hunt became lieutenant governor. The Democratic power bloc in the Legislature decided to strip the governor's office of its power over money, and take it for themselves. The carefully made strategies to take over writing, adopting, administering, and supervising the state budget came within an inch of succeeding.

Only after Hunt found out what was going on and what it would do to him when he became governor did he slam the brakes on the plan.

Still the scheme did not die. It continued to move forward bit by bit: changes in legislative membership on the Advisory Budget Commission; enormous increases in legislative staff and computer capability; vastly expanded legislative office space; tremendously more complex legislative proceedings which have left the rank-and-file membership practically helpless, and vulnerable to the "leadership" of the power brokers; and, the creeping enlargement of the legislative role in government through oversight committees which meet around the calendar, and now — three sessions in one year.

North Carolina now has, for all intents and purposes, a fulltime General Assembly with fulltime professional leadership in control.

PCC Course Announced

Pitt Community College will begin a 30-hour Emergency Medical Technician (EMT) refresher course beginning at 7 p.m. Nov. 2 in room 203 W.

The class will meet from 7-10 p.m. each Monday and Wednesday for 10 sessions, totaling 30 hours.

Instruction will be completed Dec. 8. The regional test for re-certification will be given Dec. 12 at Beaufort Community College, Washington, N.C. The re-certification test for providers only will be given Dec. 8 at Pitt Community College.

All persons needing to re-certify are invited to enroll in this course at 7 p.m. on November 2.

ATTORNEY SPEAKS

Greenville attorney Dallas Clark spoke to the North Pitt High School college preparatory U.S. history class of Gigi Walter recently, discussing the preparation of court cases for the Supreme Court and constitutional law.

Clark also spoke to the new regulations and their effect on young adults.

The visit was in conjunction with the class' studies of the U.S. Constitution and laws.

Halloween At Waldrop Acres

Waldrop Acres Day Care Center will host a Halloween Open House from 7:30 to 9 p.m. on Friday, October 30 at the Center in Winterville.

Heart Fund Memorials Welcomed

The practice of making tax-deductible contributions to charities in honor of deceased relatives and friends has become a habit for many people in North Carolina, according to Sharon Lewis, president of the Pitt County Heart Association.

"During the last 30 years, memorial gifts have become an important source of funds for our life-saving programs," she said, "and we are grateful for this support. In addition, we find that more and more people are choosing this same method to honor the living on birthdays, wedding anniversaries, Mother's Day, Father's Day and similar occasions. This is appropriate because many heart and stroke patients who might have died in the past are alive today thanks to medical advances made possible by the Heart Association."

There are three ways to make memorial gifts to the Heart Fund, she pointed out. Checks made payable to the Heart Fund may be sent to the N.C. Heart Association, 1 Heart Circle, Chapel Hill, N.C. 27514 or they may be sent to Pitt County Heart Association Treasurer Nancy Warren, P.O. Box 1807, Greenville, N.C. 27834. If time is pressing, gifts may be made by phone and payment sent later. Ms. Warren's telephone number is 758-3471 or 752-1356. The Chapel Hill telephone, 919-942-8781, is reserved for memorial gifts and is answered from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily except Sunday, when it is answered from 1 to 5 p.m. Master Charge may be used when calling the state office. The number is listed in the white pages of the telephone books throughout the state under "Heart Fund Memorial Gifts and Information."

Edwards To Be Pitt Chairman

RALEIGH — Governor Jim Hunt has announced the appointment of Greenville businessman Thomas L. Edwards as Pitt County chairman for North Carolina 2000.

Edwards will join other county NC 2000 chairmen and the Commission on the Future of North Carolina in putting into action a statewide program to set directions for the next two decades in this state.

As NC 2000 chairman for Pitt County, Edwards will be putting together a local organization to build awareness among citizens of the emerging issues in North Carolina and to determine what citizens want for their future in the state.

Edwards is the president and general manager of Carolina Dairy Products, Inc.

AP Business Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The Reagan administration's early decontrol of domestic oil prices helped the nation's major oil companies in the third quarter, but weak demand in Europe cut into the profits of corporations with large foreign operations.

U.S. crude oil prices have fallen slightly in recent months, although they still are higher than a year ago, when they were under federal price controls.

The administration lifted the controls in January, nine months ahead of schedule, and the higher prices have meant bigger profits for the domestic oil production businesses of most U.S. companies, analysts say. The companies noted their profits were hurt, however, by the federal windfall profits tax.

Although Exxon Corp. and Standard Oil Co. of California both had higher U.S. production profits, they said Monday that weak demand overseas contributed to a decline in overall third-quarter profits compared with a year earlier.

Shell Oil Co. and Atlantic Richfield Co., whose operations are more heavily dependent on the U.S. market, reported sizable profit gains for the period.

Exxon, the nation's largest company, reported a 20.7 percent drop in earnings and Standard of California posted a 15.5 percent decline. Shell said profits increased 33.4 percent and Atlantic Richfield had an 11 percent gain.

Standard of California, the fourth-largest U.S. oil company, said its foreign petroleum earnings fell 36 percent.

It said earnings for the quarter fell to $527 million, or $1.54 a share, from $624 million, or $1.82 a share, a year earlier. Revenue rose 9 percent to $11.46 billion from $10.51 billion. For the first nine months of the year it earned $1.81 billion, or $5.29 a share, up 1 percent from the $1.79 billion, or $5.22 a share, earned in the same period last year. Revenues rose 9 percent to $34.42 billion from $31.60 billion.

Exxon said its earnings for the third quarter dropped to $1.08 billion, or $1.25 a share, from $1.36 billion, or $1.56 a share, in last year's third quarter. Revenues rose 3 percent to $27.61 billion from $26.75 billion. It was Exxon's weakest third quarter since 1978.

Clifton Garvin Jr., Exxon's chairman, said profits from worldwide refining and marketing plunged 38 percent, with overseas earnings falling to $264 million from $404 million.

For the first nine months of the year, Exxon earned $4.5 billion, or $5.21 a share, on revenue of $85.41 billion. That profit is 4.4 percent higher than in the first nine months of last year, when Exxon earned $4.31 billion, or $4.94 a share, on revenue of $80.62 billion, the company said.

Atlantic Richfield, ranked seventh largest among U.S. oil companies, said third-quarter profits rose to $433.5 million, or $1.73 a share, from $389.7 million, or $1.57 a share, last year. Revenues grew 24 percent to $6.97 billion from $5.64 billion.

Arco earned $1.20 billion, or $4.80 a share, in the first nine months of the year. That was 4 percent lower than the $1.25 billion, or $5.04 a share, earned in the same period last year. Revenues increased 26 percent to $21.07 billion from $16.77 billion.

Shell, the nation's eighth-largest oil company, said its net income rose to $471 million, or $1.52 a share, from $353 million, or $1.14 a share, in last year's third quarter. Revenue climbed 10 percent to $5.6 billion from $5.1 billion.

For the first nine months of the year, Shell earned $1.24 billion, or 4.02 a share, up 9.7 percent from $1.13 billion, or $3.67 a share, a year earlier. Revenue climbed 12 percent to $16.55 billion from $14.83 billion.

Shooting Charged To Pactolus Man

A Pactolus man has been arrested by Pitt County deputies and charged in connection with a Friday morning shooting incident at a mobile home park near Greenville that left a local man injured.

Curtis Clark was charged with shooting into an occupied dwelling, assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill, and escape, according to Sheriff Ralph Tyson, who said Kenneth Kelly of 202 Chestnut Street was shot in the thigh. Kelly was taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital for treatment.

Sheriff Tyson said Clark was arrested at Azalea Mobile Home Park following the 5:03 a.m. shooting there but he escaped from officers and was apprehended again Monday morning around 5 a.m. at his Pactolus residence.

Clark was placed in Pitt County Jail under a total bond of $6,100, the sheriff said. Sheriff Tyson, who said a vehicle belonging to Kelly was also struck by bullets, noted that a .357 magnum pistol was allegedly used in the shooting.

Halloween Party Set

Pi Kappa Phi Fraternity will hold a Halloween party Friday from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. at Country City across from the Pitt County Fairgrounds.

Patrons are invited to come in costume and compete for costume prizes. Music will be provided by Pegasus Plus.

Tickets are $4 in advance or $5 at the door. Proceeds will go to Project Push, to provide play units for the severely handicapped. This is the fraternity's national philanthropy project.

Growing Pains And Shortage

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The Roman Catholic Church has a severe case of growing pains — an increase in membership in North Carolina and not enough priests to go around.

There are fewer priests now than in 1950, and they are trying to serve nearly five times as many parishioners.

"Our situation is becoming critical," said the Rev. Joseph Vetter, associate pastor of the Newman Community in Chapel Hill.

"Priests face the challenge of doing too much and burning out, or limiting their service to a reasonable degree and failing to satisfy real and immediate needs," Vetter added.

In 1950, there were 188 priests in the state, serving 20,770 Catholics. Last year, there were 175 priests to minister to 94,496 parishioners.

Nationally, about 1,300 students are studying to become priests, compared with approximately 5,200 in 1965.

North Carolina's problem is worse because its Catholic population is small, produces few priests and must recruit most of its pastors from other states, church officials said.

The problem is forcing the Catholic church to re-evaluate what it expects from its priests and just how much work a priest can do.

"Part of the problem is that if you are really dedicated and want to provide people with service they deserve, well, you reach a point where you can't do that," Vetter said. "I would like to visit someone in Siler City and be here at the same time, but I can't. I do the best I can and hope people understand that."

Catholic leader attribute the shortage of priests to long hours, low pay and celibacy.

Catholics have vocation directors, or recruiters, who visit schools, colleges and military bases, urging young men to go into the priesthood.

Vetter and the Rev. Gerald Lewis of Raleigh said that priests constantly must display a pleasant attitude to let potential priests know the job is a good one.

"If people see me smiling, they think I'm happy," Lewis said. "We have to give a positive image of this life service."

Vetter and Lewis suggest that priests give parish members many duties the priests normally do, such as some visitation and administration.

Vetter added, "If we don't get more priests, what is going to happen to our church?"

Rose Teacher Is Selected

GREENWICH, CONN. — Betty G. Beacham of Greenville, a teacher at Rose High School, has been selected by the American Institute for Foreign Study (AIFS) to accompany a group of students on a travel adventure abroad. The trip is organized by the AIFS of Greenwich, Conn. Over a quarter million teachers and students have participated in AIFS programs since it was founded in 1964.

Ms. Beacham will be traveling with group members of "Fiesta Espanola." The group will spend ten days visiting Spain during April. Among places they will visit in Spain are Madrid, Toledo, El Escorial and Segovia, Granada, Cordoba and Seville. A highlight of the tour will be a stopover in the resort town of Torremolinos on the Costa del Sol.

HALLOWEEN

The PTA of St. Gabriel's Catholic School, 1100 Ward Street, will sponsor its annual Halloween Carnival on Friday, October 30 from 5 p.m. until 8 p.m.

Attractions will include a country store, a haunted house, games, prizes and refreshments. General admission is 50 cents.

CBC MEETING

The Citizens Bikeway Committee will meet tonight at 7:30 p.m. in the first floor conference room at city hall.

Legislators Disagree Over Redistricting Plans

By MARY ANNE RHYNE
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Emerging from a smoke-filled room Monday, legislators disagreed on whether plans for reshaping House and Senate districts would stand up in court.

More than 40 lawmakers met in a closed-door session with Washington attorney Jerris Leonard of Jerris Leonard and Associates, who said the plans might be flawed because they could dilute minorities' voting strength.

Leaders of the Legislative

Services Commission hired Leonard, who specializes in reapportionment cases, to give an outside opinion on the proposed plans.

Legislators at the meeting asked security officers to check the room for bugging devices during a lunch break.

"It's ridiculous paranoia," said one House member, who asked not to be identified. No bugs were found.

Rep. Jack Hunt, D-Cleveland, said chances remain "reasonably good" that the General Assembly would approve the plans as proposed or approve them with a few minor changes.

But other lawmakers, dissatisfied with the proposed districts, said Leonard's comments meant that the proposed maps would not stand up in court.

"We've got a dilution of minority voting strength that's just patently unfair," said Rep. Bertha Holt, D-Alamance, who the plans need a lot of work.

A legal challenge forced legislators to redraw their original plans. State attorneys said the plans were too far out of numerical alignment to defend in court.

The General Assembly has scheduled a special session to convene Thursday and consider the latest redistricting plans.

Leonard refused to comment on what he told the legislators. Many legislators refused to discuss the meeting too, saying they were pressed to keep discussions about the pending lawsuit confidential.

But Senate leader Harold Hardison, D-Lenoir, confirmed that minority voting strength was Leonard's main point.

"His only question was don't dilute the black vote," Hardison said. "In his experience with the courts that was it (the main consideration). Our plan can pass if that concentration of black voters has been avoided."

Leonard did not predict whether the proposed legislative maps would pass court tests because he did not have statistics about the number of minority voters, Hardison said.

Rep. Bob Jones, D-Rutherford, said that although Leonard said the plans "have room for improvement" as to minority voters' strength, he said chances are that the House plans will be approved.

One powerful senator who asked not to be named said he believed both House and Senate plans would have to be redrawn because of the concentration of minority voters and because of multi-member districts.

He said there was "no way" the job could be done during a two-day legislative session.

Sen. Robert Jordan, D-Montgomery, also criticized the multi-member districts, saying he believed the dilution of minority voting strength was inherent in such districts. Jordan said he would work to change the Senate map.

Life Action At Church

Life Action, a family-centered revival team, will come to Grace FWB Church on Oct. 27.

The team will present a one-hour program entitled "The Glory of the Cross" at 7:30 p.m. at the church. The program will feature a musical package by the Life Action Singers and a message by one of the team evangelists.

Life Action Ministries was founded in 1971 by evangelist Del Fehsenfeld Jr. and is made up of college students from across the nation.

R. Randall Riggs and the congregation of Grace FWB Church encourage the public to attend the program. For more information call 752-5031.

NEAR-RECORD CROP PEKING (AP) — China expects this year's grain harvest to approach its record 1979 crop despite serious floods in some areas and drought in the north, the Xinhua news agency says.

Property Tax-Use Ruled Out

NEW YORK (AP) — An appeals court has ruled that New York State's funding of public education with property taxes is unconstitutional because the system discriminates against students from poor areas.

"In property-poor districts, budgetary constraints limit local ability to provide desired educational output," wrote Judge Leon D. Lazer of the Appellate Division of State Supreme Court.

The judges found that "many of the children who fail to obtain minimal skills are educable, and that properly staffed remedial programs, which afflicted school districts are prevented from providing because of fiscal constraints and misallocation of resources, do alleviate or totally remedy learning problems."

Unless reversed in the Court of Appeals, the state's highest court, the ruling by the four-judge panel will force the state Legislature to revise formulas so that more money can be provided for education in poor big-city school districts and in poorer suburban districts.

State Attorney General Robert Abrams is expected to appeal the decision.

In the meantime, a Special Task Force on Equity and Excellence in Education, commissioned by Gov. Hugh Carey, has been instructed to make recommendations in January on how to modify the system.

The suit dates from April 1976, when the Long Island residential community of Levittown community complained that it had to tax its residents at higher rates than neighboring districts.

New York City, Buffalo, Syracuse and Rochester joined the suit, arguing their school systems had to accommodate greater concentrations of poor children from neighborhoods of lower property values.

At Wachovia, you can buy a tax-exempt savings certificate.

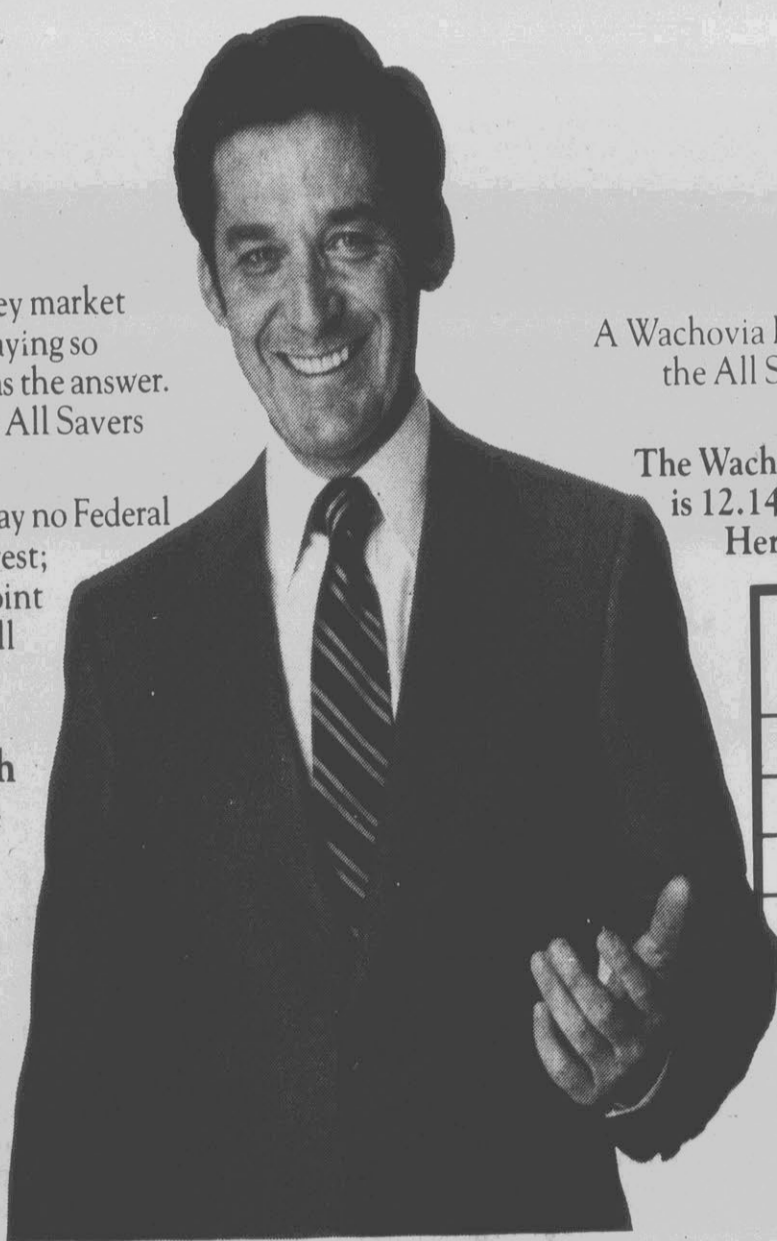

And you have a Personal Banker to explain what it can mean to you.

If you like the high yield of money market certificates, but you don't like paying so much of it in taxes, Wachovia has the answer. The new tax-exempt Wachovia All Savers Certificate.

Tax-Exempt Interest. You pay no Federal taxes on the first $1,000 of interest; on the first $2,000 if you file a joint return. A glance at the chart will show you what that could mean to you.

$500 Minimum, 12-Month Term. If you don't have a large amount of money to invest, or you can't afford to tie up your money for a long time, our new All Savers Certificate may be just what you're looking for.

Insured Safety. Your savings are safe, insured by the F.D.I.C. up to $100,000 per depositor, and backed by the financial strength of Wachovia Bank.

The Help of a Personal Banker.
A Wachovia Personal Banker can give you all the facts about the All Savers Certificate, so you can make an informed investment decision. Stop by this week.

The Wachovia All Savers yield effective Oct. 5 to Oct. 30 is 12.140% when interest is left on deposit to maturity. Here's what the tax-exemption could mean to you.*

| If your taxable Income is approximately: | Your tax bracket probably is: | Your All Savers Yield of 12.140% is equivalent to a taxable rate of: |
|--|-------------------------------|--|
| $46,000 | 49% | 23.804% |
| $36,000 | 43% | 21.298% |
| $25,000 | 32% | 17.853% |
| $16,000 | 24% | 15.974% |

*The yield of 12.140% is based on an annual rate of 11.513% compounded monthly with interest left on deposit until maturity. To earn $2,000.00 interest on one All Savers Certificate at 12.140% you need to invest about $16,474.00 if you leave interest on deposit to maturity. To earn $1,000.00 in interest on one All Savers Certificate at 12.140% you need to invest about $8,237.00 if you leave interest on deposit to maturity. These tax brackets are based on a married couple filing a joint return. The equivalent taxable rate shown assumes no more than $16,474.00 is invested. Substantial interest penalty is required for early withdrawal.

Learn Slain Gunman Had Been In Brinks Shootout

NEW YORK (AP) — When Sam Smith was shot dead by police after a screaming highway chase and a gunbattle, the key to his role in a murderous attack on a Brink's truck was tucked in his pocket, a prosecutor says.

In his pocket when he was killed Friday night was a flattened .38-caliber bullet, and over his chest was a bulletproof vest.

Rockland County District Attorney Kenneth Gribetz said

Monday night the bullet came from the gun of police Sgt. Edward O'Grady Jr., one of two Nyack police officers killed Tuesday when a getaway car from the robbery of the truck was halted at a roadblock. A Brink's guard also was killed.

"There is very strong evidence to believe that Samuel Smith was involved in the murders and robberies in Rockland County," Gribetz said. "The bullet found in his pocket — a flattened .38-caliber — was shot from Sgt. O'Grady's gun."

He said "the reason Smith was not killed (in the Rockland holdup) was that he was wearing a bulletproof vest."

Four suspects, including Katherine Boudin and two others identified as members of the Weather Underground terrorist group, were arrested after the $1.6 million robbery from the Brink's truck in Nanuet, N.Y., about 25 miles north of Manhattan. The money was recovered.

At a news conference Monday night, Gribetz said authorities "have knowledge concerning other individuals" involved in the Brink's robbery, but said he couldn't release more details.

The New York Times reported three more suspects had been identified, and the New York Daily News said arrest warrants for four more suspects were being drawn up.

Smith, 37, was in a car bearing a license plate seen near what police described as a "safehouse" for the gang believed responsible for the Brink's job.

A detective spotted the license and New York City police chased the car until it crashed. Smith and another man got out and fired at authorities and Smith was killed, police said.

A former Black Panther, Nathaniel Burns, 38, was arrested. He was to be arraigned today at Kings County Hospital on charges of attempting to murder six policemen.

Burns was moved from a Brooklyn jail to the hospital during the weekend because he was suffering what Correction Department spokesman Ed Hershey described as "blunt abdominal trauma." He did not elaborate, and hospital officials would not comment.

Gribetz refused to comment on whether Burns had been connected with the armored car holdup. He also said the four suspects in the robbery had been moved from the small Rockland County jail to federal facilities for security reasons.

He said Ms. Boudin and Judith Clark, also identified as a member of the Weather Underground, had been transferred to the federal correctional center in Manhattan, and Samuel Brown and David Gilbert, the other Weather Underground members, were taken to a federal facility in Otisville, N.Y.

Keeping the four in Rockland County would "invite disaster," Gribetz said.

He said weapons seized in the Queens shootout were being tested by the FBI to determine whether they might have been used in the Rockland County killings.

Meanwhile, two fugitives identified by the FBI as members of the Weather Underground waived extradition to New Jersey at a hearing before U.S. Magistrate Kent Sinclair in Manhattan. Jeffrey Carl Jones and Eleanor Stein Raskin were arrested Friday night in the borough of the Bronx in connection with the Nyack investigation. They face 1979 charges of unlawful possession of explosives.

HOME ON THE RANGE — Oliver Scott is shown scattering ears of corn to some of the 165 buffalo he raises in New York, south of Rochester.

Bankers Finally Beginning To Believe In His Buffalo Herd

By JOHN C. GIVEN
Associated Press Writer

WEST BLOOMFIELD, N.Y. (AP) — Oliver Scott remembers when bankers looked "kind of funny" when he said he wanted to borrow money for some buffalo.

"They're just starting to believe me now," he added recently, as his 165 American bison — heads low and tails switching — thundered across his pasture and into some distant woods.

Starting with three animals 1973, Scott's herd, located amid rolling wheat and corn fields south of Rochester in Ontario County, now is one of the largest in the East, said Judy Hebring, executive director of the Custer, S.D.-based National Buffalo Association.

"It's nothing great yet, but I think it will get there," said Scott, 30. His optimism is based on a steady demand for the meat he sells to farm visitors, two local stores and a Manhattan night club.

"At first, we didn't have a market. Now we can get rid of as much as we want to," Scott said. This year, he'll probably slaughter about 45 for market — at a federally inspected slaughterhouse — after an expected herd increase of from 75 to 130 calves.

Scott is one of only "one or two" full-time buffalo ranchers in the nation. Ms. Hebring said. His business would not exist had it not been for a handful of conservationists, who saved the animal from extinction around the turn of the century.

Numbering between 30 million and 60 million at the time of Columbus, the great bison herds once stretched for miles across the Great Plains. During the 19th-century push to expand through the Plains states, greedy hunters and adventure-seekers knocked those numbers down to a few hundred.

State and federal protection boosted the total to about 7,000 before private breeding began with government approval in the 1950s. Today, there are between 50,000 and 60,000 buffalo in the United States, with between 4,000 and 5,000 slaughtered for market each year, Ms. Hebring said.

"A lot of people get shook up at the thought of eating buffalo, because they think it leads to their demise," she observed. "Actually it contributes to their increase. Without the profit factor, who would raise them?"

Though wilder and harder to handle than beef cattle, Scott pointed out that they are relatively disease-free, and easier in other ways.

"They're a pretty hardy animal," he said. "You don't have to feed them grain. You can leave them outside in winter — they wouldn't go into a barn anyway. You can feed them grassy hay, no alfalfa or anything like that."

"They're peaceful in the pasture — but get them in a corral and they're wild," he added. "They get nervous. They don't really want to hurt you. But get one in a corner, and he'll come after you. You learn not to chase them."

"The only way to get them in the corral is to give them something to eat and they'll follow me in there. But as far as rounding them up is concerned, we haven't had much luck."

Aficionados say buffalo meat is tasty, not gamey, and as tender as beef if it's cooked right. But it is not cheap. "Buffaloburger" goes for $2.50 a pound, roasts for $3.50 and premium steaks $4.75 at Scott's store.

Career Day Held At Cox

WINTERVILLE — Students from Chicod, G.R. Whitfield and A.G. Cox Grammar School participated in a career day recently at A.G. Cox, held in conjunction with Career Planning Week.

Eighth grade students from each school heard speakers from various vocations present career choices and ideas. Job descriptions, training, educational requirements, pay and benefits were also discussed.

The students were encouraged to focus on interest areas and were given the opportunity to question the representatives of over 20 different vocations.

Welcome to the bank that grew up on the farm.

At BBT, we feel very comfortable lending money to farmers.

After all, these are the people we grew up with. Our very first customers were farmers.

And even today, we lend a bigger percentage of our money to farmers than any other major bank in the state.

We also manage more farm land than any of our competitors. And a number of our bankers even have their own farms.

We know firsthand what it's like to borrow money for equipment, seed, chemicals or repairs. We know what kind of repayment schedule makes sense for a farm's cash flow.

We know where farm money comes from—and where it goes.

In fact, no financial institution in North Carolina is as committed to the farmer as we are.

Come in and see us. You'll feel right at home.

After all, we grew up together. And neither of us is finished growing yet.

Nobody works harder for your money.

Seek Longer Imprisonment Of Career Criminals

By JAMES H. RUBIN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration, although pledged to step up the fight on violent crime, is withholding support for a measure its sponsor says will help imprison career criminals for longer periods.

The bill, sponsored by Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa., would make it a federal crime for a repeat offender to commit robbery or burglary using a gun.

Assistant Attorney General Lowell Jensen, head of the criminal division in the Justice Department, said the idea may have merit and warrants further study.

But Jensen testified Monday before a Senate Judiciary subcommittee headed by Specter that "the area of expanded (federal) jurisdiction is a sensitive one" and the administration generally opposes broadening the government's power to take criminal cases.

Jensen also raised questions about the cost of the proposed legislation and said White House budget officials did not have time to analyze the plan since it was introduced Oct. 1.

In a speech last month, President Reagan said there was an urgent need to reduce violent crime. But congressional Democrats have criticized the administration for cutting back on federal spending to fight crime and have said the president's program lacks new initiatives in an area in which states and cities have most of the responsibility.

Specter's bill would allow federal prosecutors to take cases in which anyone convicted of at least two previous burglaries or robberies is accused of another such crime using a firearm.

The purpose is to rid the streets of the "relatively small number of career criminals who commit a very large number of robberies and burglaries," said Specter, a former district attorney in Philadelphia.

He said there would be no need for additional police work, leaving it to local authorities to investigate street crime.

A companion bill would permit a habitual offender who is sentenced by a state court to a life term to be placed in a federal prison.

Specter said the measures could be a substitute for plea bargaining in many cases in which repeat offenders get light sentences because court calendars and prisons are so overcrowded.

Kenneth Conboy, a deputy police commissioner in New York City, said most convicted felons there serve as little as three months behind bars.

"The situation you describe is extraordinary," Specter said. "I don't have a word for it. It's terrifying."

Conboy said that New York City criminal courts dispose of 750 cases a year and only eight to 10 trials are in progress each day.

Conboy is directing a program in New York focusing on career criminals. He said "10-to-15-year sentences is the only responsible approach" to coping with habitual offenders who commit violent crimes.

William Cahalan, prosecuting attorney for Wayne County, Mich., said the criminal justice system in America has refused to recognize the importance of stiff sentences.

"Certainly punishment will deter crime," he said. "We've never had it in the United States. That's the problem."

Benjamin H. Renshaw, acting director of the Justice Department's statistics agency, said that nearly 1 million American homes have been touched by robbery and about 5.5 million homes were burglarized last year.

The robbery rate jumped 30 percent from 1977 to 1980, and a gun was used in nearly a third of robberies last year, he said.

Candidates

one issue facing city government. One alternative in saving money is reorganization. I want to take a look at annexation of residential areas, but I do not favor annexing industrial areas. We have to live up to our obligations to industry to not annex them. There are many ways to reduce administrative costs, such as have department heads ride in smaller cars."

Rev. Bill Hadden spoke of a need for "a continued strong effort for Greenville to meet goals and objectives set for every department, of stopping any sense of crisis management." Hadden added that "the work done by the mayor's advisory council, by the program of volunteer involvement, is working well in Greenville. Through comprehensive planning, we can staff our departments, meet our needs and services effectively despite federal cuts."

Lucy Jones, mentioning this "is my first episode in the political arena," emphasized the necessity "to tighten our belts, work together. Budget cuts and available money is our most serious issue, but we can find a way out." Mrs. Jones, who said she has lived in Greenville "all my 67 years," added that "we need to forget Reaganomics and to put our hand in the hand of the One who walked on the waters of Galilee."

"I am proud of the council's work and I feel my part in planning has been significant," candidate Dick McKee commented. "I want to see these activities continue. We have two major problems, the first is a short time financial one, the second, how to reduce costs and increase revenue. There's difficulty in doing things for less cost, but we must look at all the resources."

Oscar Moore opted for "looking at all our needs and setting priorities" as the basic beginning point for plans and programs. "We must establish these and then go from there." Moore said "working people need to be represented in city government. I think we do have resources to attract industry, and I am for certain annexations, but I don't want to go back on promises to industries already here."

Stuart Shinn concentrated on what he terms "my main concern, better safety for the public. We need better police and fire protection, better building inspection standards for our older neighborhoods. For these things we need to find funds even if we may have to cut on some other programs."

Candidate Wallace Woolees, mentioning he was general chairman of the Mayor's Advisory Committee, said "in the committee's report, we have looked at every service and resource in the city. What I stand for are the 84 recommendations made in that report. Greenville needs additional personnel, and there are ways of paying for these without extra taxes. We can't stand another increase in taxes." One of these ways mentioned by Woolees is that of "getting more money from the county to pay their fair share on certain programs."

In the second phase of the forum, candidates responded to a specific question — one addressed to candidates for mayor, the other addressed to city council candidates.

It was in this session that a number of candidates referred to increased funding from the county for projects and programs in which the county as well as the city receives benefits. One candidate, Oscar Moore, went against the opinions expressed by other candidates and came out in favor of a one cent city sales tax as a source of revenue.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices rose sharply today, paced by gains among oil and utility issues, to reverse a recent slide.

Drug, defense, forest product, steel, and technology stocks also posted broad gains.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, which fell 7.03 points Monday, rose 7.80 to 838.76 at noon.

Stocks rising in price outnumbered losers 5-2 in the mid-day tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The weak economy, disappointing corporate earnings reports and concern about the course of interest rates had all contributed to the stock market's latest slide. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials had given up 47.18 points between Oct. 8 and the close of trading Monday.

"It's been going down so long, it just can't rain forever," said analyst Eldon Grimm at Birr, Wilson & Co.

Grimm said oil issues rose in advance of Thursday's meeting of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries. Many analysts expect an agreement on unifying oil prices and a possible cutback in oil production by Saudi Arabia.

He said interest in utility stocks have picked up with the realization that unlike automakers and steel companies, utility profits are usually unaffected by a recession.

The NYSE's composite index of all of its listed common stocks rose .65 to 69.23. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 4.13 at 309.50.

Big Board volume totaled 22.40 million shares over the first two hours, up from 16.05 million in the same period Monday.

Lanier Business Products topped the active list at noon, up 3/4 at 14 1/2, in trading that included a block of 419,000 shares changing hands at 13 1/2 a share. Minnesota Mining & Manufacturing announced today it expanded distribution rights granted to Lanier for its copiers.

The Dow Jones average of 15 utilities rose .97 to 104.42. Among utility issues, Southern rose 1/8 to 11 3/8, American Telephone & Telegraph gained 3/8 to 57 3/8, and Commonwealth Edison advanced 1/4 to 19 3/8.

Among energy issues, Schlumberger rose 1/4 to 56 1/4; Texaco gained 3/8 to 32 1/4; Atlantic Richfield soared 1 1/2 to 47 3/4 and Halliburton leaped 2 1/2 to 55 1/4.

Blount Said 'Interested' In State Post

Greenville attorney Marvin Blount Jr. said today that "I'm interested" in running for the post of North Carolina Attorney General, but added, "I'm going to have to wait and see..."

Blount's comments came after he was asked about rumors that he is considering seeking the post in the 1984 election.

"It's too early right now to make any formal plans," Blount noted, suggesting that one factor that would help decide whether to enter the race or not would be if the present attorney general Rufus Edmisten chooses to seek re-election.

If Edmisten is a candidate for re-election, Blount suggested he would not enter the race. However, "If Edmisten doesn't, I'm certainly interested."

A Democrat, Blount began practicing law in Greenville in 1966 after graduating from the Wake Forest University law school.

For three years, 1970 to 1973, Blount served on the Superior Court bench, the youngest Superior Court judge at that time and one of the youngest in history.

Some political observers feel Edmisten might seek the governorship when incumbent Jim Hunt's second term expires.

Former N.C. Attorney General and former U.S. Senator Robert Morgan has been mentioned as another possible candidate for governor in 1984.

Morgan, a former chairman of the Board of Trustees of East Carolina University, has also been mentioned as a possible candidate for chancellor of ECU. However, friends say Morgan is not interested in the post and suggest that he is eyeing the governor's post.

McLawhorn To Be Speaker

Charles McLawhorn Jr., Greenville attorney, will be speaking at the Wednesday afternoon meeting of the Pitt Council on the Status of Women.

His program topic will be "Estate Planning."

Chairman Willie M. Carney will be appointing a nominating committee during the business session.

Plans will also be finalized for the group's combined November and December meetings. The meeting will be held Wednesday, Dec. 9, at the Stokes Town and Country Restaurant.

Farmville Chapter At Meeting

PLYMOUTH — The Farmville Central Chapter of the Distributive Education Clubs of America attended the District I Leadership Conference held here today.

Members participated in various workshops, including fashions for work, a future in distributive education, competency-based competition, and shoplifting. Discussion on competitive areas of job interviews, salesmanship and advertising were also heard by members of DECA groups throughout district I. New district I officers were also elected.

Mrs. Cindy Kittrell, Regency Room fashion consultant for Belk-Tyler of Greenville conducted the fashions for work seminar, with Farmville Central DECA members Jay Tyson, Wade Corbett, Mary Stoddard and Martha Satterthwaite modeling the dress selections.

St. Peter's Plans Carnival

The public is invited to St. Peter's annual Halloween Carnival to be held Thursday from 4 to 8 p.m. at the school located at 2400 E. Fourth St.

The carnival is divided into five sections. Section one is a country store with crafts handmade by the children, homemade jellies and preserves, hot dogs, sloppy Joes, popcorn, drinks and ice cream. Section two features game booths — bean bag toss, sponge toss, duck pond and go-fishing. Section three is a contest, with the most original Halloween costume to be judged. Section four is a bake sale — homemade breads, cakes, candies, cookies and pies.

Family tickets are $1. Chairperson of the carnival is Mrs. Anthony Rogers, assisted by Mrs. Thomas Thompson, Mrs. Jack Whitchard, Mrs. Richard C. Taft, and Mrs. Jimmy Wynne, and Mrs. Charles Kavanaugh.

Money Taken

Greenville Police are looking for a man who stole an undetermined amount of money from a cash register at the Stop-Shop at 213 East Fifth St. about 5:10 p.m. yesterday.

Chief Glenn Cannon said an estimated $40 to $50 was taken. A clerk in the store told investigators that a man came to the register to purchase a candy bar and tossed a "handful" of change on the counter. When the clerk bent over to pick up some of the change that fell on the floor, according to Cannon, the man reached into the cash register, picked up a number of $5 bills, then walked out.

Steelers Rebound To Kick Oilers, 26-13

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Nobody seems to know who the real Pittsburgh Steelers are — least of all the Steelers themselves.

"I hope these are the real Steelers 'cause we sure didn't play like ourselves last week," linebacker Jack Ham said after Pittsburgh rebounded from a 34-7 pounding in Cincinnati eight days earlier to beat the Houston Oilers 26-13 Monday night.

The victory put the Steelers, 5-3, back into a first-place tie with the Bengals in the American Conference Central Division. The loss dropped the Oilers a game back into a tie with Cleveland.

"I don't know who the real Steelers are, but I'd like to think we're getting back to where we used to be," said quarterback Terry Bradshaw. He threw two touchdown passes, a 46-yard bomb to Jim Smith in the first quarter and a game-winning 6-yarder to John Stallworth to break a 13-13 tie with 3:41 to play.

"A game like this does a world of good for your confidence," added Bradshaw. "The thing I was most pleased with was the fact that we really went after 'em. We haven't played all that physically offensively in a while. We went after 'em and I think they sensed it. We tried to give them a lot of different looks, tried to attack them from all angles and not just stereotype our offense. I think that's the way the Steelers operate best."

"We're back in the race," said Ham. "Fortunately, we got some help yesterday (New Orleans' 17-7 victory over the Bengals). We played poor football against Cincinnati, maybe our worst of the year. This game we played real well, maybe our best. Football's a long season. You're going to have ups and downs, peaks and valleys. Hopefully, we've gotten the valleys out of the way."

The Steelers beat the Oilers the way they've always beaten them, by virtually shutting down Earl Campbell. The National Football League's three-time rushing champion, whose best game against Pittsburgh was a mere 109 yards two years ago, was held to just 56 on 23 carries over Three Rivers Stadium's rain-soaked artificial turf. He also fumbled four times, losing two of them, to kill a pair of scoring threats. "I don't have any excuses," Campbell said. "I made some mistakes and they capitalized on them...I wasn't very pleased with the way I was running the ball."

Quarterback Ken Stabler intimated he wasn't pleased that the Oilers relied so heavily on Campbell. "The I-Formation works if Earl's getting 150-175 yards," he said. "When they're stopping the run, that makes it tough. We've been successful with it at times and at times, we haven't been. I think maybe we hung our hat on the run a little too much — but that's hindsight and I'm not gonna second-guess myself."

52-yard pass player from Stabler to Dave Casper. Casper caught the ball at the Pittsburgh 30, was enveloped by Ham and fellow linebacker Jack Lambert, then was jetted free when safety J.T. Thomas barreled into the trio.

"I was trying to punch the ball loose 'cause he didn't see me coming across," Ham said of Casper. "The next thing I know, we're all laying on the ground watching him go in for a touchdown."

On Houston's next possession, the Steelers forced a fourth-and-three at the Oilers 35. But punter Cliff Parsley's 31-yard pass to Adger Armstrong revived the Oilers. "Gamble!" said Steelers Coach Chuck Noll. "When they work, I don't think you can call them gambles." Four plays later, with 5:43 to go, Fritsch tied it with a 44-yard field goal.

But on Pittsburgh's first play from scrimmage, Franco Harris broke loose through the left side for 35 of his 84 yards, running out of bounds at the Houston 34. And when linebacker Ted Washington was flagged for a late hit, the penalty put the ball at the 19. "That run proved that Franco is still a great back, I don't care what anyone says," said defensive end Elvin Bethea of the Oilers. "Franco's run spoiled everything. That got their momentum going. It had sort of died out for them in the second half."

Three plays later, offsetting penalties wiped out a 14-yard pass to Smith in the end zone. But Bradshaw, on third and five, scrambled eight yards to the six, then found Stallworth in the left corner of the end zone.

Trout's missed extra point left the Steelers' lead at 19-13. Three plays later, though, safety Ron Johnson intercepted Stabler and four plays after that, at the two-minute warning, Harris bulled in from the one.

"They beat us in the last five or six minutes and it seems like it happens that way every year," said Bethea. "Knowing how well they execute in the last five minutes, we should've been ready. As many times as they've beaten us, we should know."

Salazar Hits Group After Winning NYC Marathon

NEW YORK (AP) — Alberto Salazar, world record holder in the marathon, in an uncharacteristic display, has vented his anger on The Athletic Congress, the governing body for track and field in the United States.

"I would rather get prize money directly under-the-table than accepting it over-the-table and having to put it in a trust fund with TAC," Salazar said Monday, one day after setting the world mark with a time of 2 hours, 8 minutes, 13 seconds in the New York City Marathon.

By taking it under-the-table — a long-standing practice that has been publicly ignored by TAC and the International Amateur Athletic Federation, the world governing body for the sport — athletes do not have to put the money in escrow or a trust fund, as some of those openly accepting prize money have done.

A prime example was New Zealander Allison Roe, women's winner of Sunday's New York City Marathon in 2:25:29, a world mark for women. She had received $4,000 for finishing second in the Cascade Run-Off at Portland, Ore. June 28. The 15-kilometer road race was under the auspices of the Association for Road Racing Athletes, a rebel professional group.

Roe was suspended, meaning she was ineligible to participate in international competition or the Olympic Games. But she then agreed to put the $4,000 into a trust fund supervised by the New Zealand

Federation, and her amateur eligibility was restored.

Meanwhile, two other long-distance runners, Herb Lindsay of the United States and Rod Dixon, a native New Zealander now living in the U.S., have agreed to put their prize money from ARRA races into escrow accounts.

A TAC spokesman said the accounts were "between the athletes and us. If the IAAF decides at its meeting in Rome Dec. 12-13 that the money can be used for training purposes, then the money will be put into a trust fund."

Salazar, labeling TAC "hypocrites and thieves," said he wants no part of trust funds.

Two Picked Top Players

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Maryland tailback Charlie Wysocki and Duke split end Cedric Jones were selected as Atlantic Coast Conference players of the week following Saturday's clash between their respective teams.

Wysocki, of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., gained 143 yards on 22 carries against the Blue Devils in Maryland's 24-21 victory. The 5-11, 199-pound senior scored two touchdowns on his way to becoming the first Maryland running back to rush for more than 3,000 yards. With touchdown runs of 17 and 54 yards, Wysocki pushed his career total to 3,045 yards.

Jones, of Weldon, N.C., responded with two touchdowns of his own on passes from Duke quarterback Ben Bennett, upping his ACC record for career touchdown receptions to 19. His six receptions Saturday raised the 6-1, 188-pound senior's career catches to 33 for 698 yards.

It was the fourth time Wysocki had been chosen as player of the week in his career, but it was Jones' first selection.

"Why should TAC have control of my money?" said the usually soft-spoken Salazar. "They want to be like our agents. Why does TAC insist on this?"

"I think TAC is scared to lose its power. They want to have control over the athletes. They have no right to. They're just a bunch of hypocrites and thieves."

Ollan Cassell, executive director of TAC, was supposed to attend a new conference Monday following a meeting of international marathon race directors. But he failed to show.

Salazar, continuing his diatribe against the national organization, said, "I don't have much respect for TAC. I don't care what they think."

The University of Oregon graduate said he was in favor of open racing. "The athletes want it. Everybody wants it. That's the way it should be," he said. "What are we supposed to do: live like bums?" Salazar said.

Fred Lebow, race director of the New York City Marathon, said that the marathon directors were in favor of open competition.

"The directors (representing 25 countries and 35 marathons, who formed the International Marathon Race Directors Association) unanimously agreed they would support open competition for runners, but would protect the amateur status of the athletes so they would not lose their eligibility for the Olympics and international events," Lebow said.

However, he said the directors had not yet formulated any open plan to present to the IAAF. But he added, "We don't want the ARRA situation to develop in the rest of the world."

S. Carolina, State On TV

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — The University of South Carolina-North Carolina State football game Saturday will be televised by ABC-TV, and head coach Jim Carlen announced Monday that the kickoff time has been switched to 12:30 p.m.

Carlen said the change in game time was made after consulting with the school's administration, which Carlen said agreed to rearrange Saturday's homecoming festivities to accommodate the new time.

The Gamecocks are coming off a 31-13 upset win over third-ranked North Carolina, but Carlen said N.C. State is a formidable foe.

"They are improving and hungry and in need of a win," Carlen said. "We've been in that situation before. N.C. State had to play Clemson and North Carolina back-to-back and that is a tall order."

Carlen praised Wolfpack quarterback Tol Avery and freshman running back Joe McIntosh, and he said N.C. State has an aggressive defense, led by linebacker Robert Abraham and defensive back Donnie LeGrande.

The South Carolina coach said the Gamecocks showed improvement in their win over the Tar Heels, and said the offense played considerably better.

Penn State Holds To First, Heels Fall After Loss To Gamecocks

By The Associated Press
Penn State is only the second team in seven weeks not to fumble away the No. 1 spot in The Associated Press college football poll, while intrastate rival Pittsburgh has held on again for the second spot.

The Nittany Lions avoided the upset jinx that had knocked Michigan, Notre Dame, Southern California and Texas off the top perch over a six-week period. Only Southern Cal was voted No. 1 for two straight weeks until Penn State did it in the poll released Monday.

Clemson climbed into third place, but its Atlantic Coast Conference rival, North Carolina, slipped from third to ninth after suffering its first defeat of the season, 31-13 to South Carolina.

Penn State defeated West Virginia 30-7 and received 45 first-place votes and 1,259 of a possible 1,280 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and sportscasters.

Pitt turned back Syracuse 23-10 and received the other 19 first-place ballots and 1,235 points. Last week, Penn State led Pitt 1,283½-1,277½ in total points and 36½-26½ in first-place votes.

Clemson jumped from fourth place to third with 1,105 points following a 17-7 victory over North Carolina State and Southern Cal rose from fifth to fourth with 1,079 points following a 14-7 triumph over Notre Dame.

Georgia's defending national champions moved up from seventh to fifth with 990 points after blanking Kentucky 21-0 and Texas, which skidded from No. 1 to No. 10 a week ago, skipped back to sixth with 893 points after a 9-7 decision over previously unbeaten Southern Methodist. The loss dropped the Mustangs from eighth to 13th.

Iowa, last week's No. 6 team, also fell out of the Top Ten, slipping to 16th after losing to Minnesota 12-10.

Mississippi State went up from ninth to seventh with 796 points for a 21-17 victory over Auburn, Alabama jumped from 11th to eighth with 730 points for a 31-7 triumph over Rutgers, North Carolina was ninth with 630 points and Shackelford-Grine (WG) d. Evans-Hines, 8-3.

Christy Tyler-Mary Helen Allen (G) d. Leah Cunningham-Nowell, 6-0.

Arizona State cracked the Top Ten for the first time this season, climbing from 17th to 10th thanks to a 62-36 victory over Stanford.

Iowa State, Nebraska, SMU, Washington State, Michigan, Iowa, Florida State, Washington, Oklahoma and Arkansas make up the Second Ten.

Last week, it was Alabama, Arkansas, Brigham Young, Iowa State, Nebraska, Washington State, Arizona State, Michigan, Missouri and Florida State.

Little In Pick Win

Durwood Little of P.O. Box 203, Farmville, is the winner of last week's Daily Reflector Football Contest.

Little correctly picked the winners in 29 of the 32 games, winning on the basis of his point total guess. His guess of 74, was closest to the actual total of 77.

Second place went to Glenn Potter of 207 Harmony Street in Greenville, who also had 29 of the 32 right. His point total guess of 59 was further off the actual total.

The next contest in the series appears on the following pages.

DUNKELINDEX COLLEGE FOOTBALL

EXPLANATION - The Dunkel system provides a continuous index to the relative strength of all teams. It reflects average scoring margin combined with average opposition rating, weighted in favor of recent performance. Example: a 50.0 team has a 100 scoring points stronger, per game, than a 40.0 team against opposition of identical strength. Originated in 1929 by Dick Dunkel.

HUNTER ORIGINAL OLDE TYME CEILING FANS

This was the fan that went 'round the world. These Hunter ceiling fans, the 1903 originals, swirled away heat in the steamy jungles of Africa, in the deserts of Morocco, on the shores of India and in the plantation homes of the South. A lot of people who remember those days still refer to all ceiling fans as "Hunter Fans". Johnny-come-lately's can't fool them—they know Hunter is the original.

Next Chapter In Series Soap Opera Set

NEW YORK (AP) — Looking like a bloodied but unbowed patriot right out of a Revolutionary War portrait, owner George Steinbrenner leads the New York Yankees into tonight's sixth game of the 1981 World Series against the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Will Team Turmoil rally around its battered and bandaged boss, who says he was injured defending their honor in a hotel brawl?

Or will the Dodgers, baseball's huggingest team, nail down their first world championship in 16 years?

Stay tuned for the next exciting chapter in this thrilling soap opera. It arrives tonight with Tommy John trying to keep the Yankees alive against the Dodgers' Burt Hooton.

Steinbrenner promises that his team will rebound in a topsy-turvy World Series that has had a little bit of everything so far.

"We'll win it in New York," he stormed after the Yankees had dropped three straight games in California to slip perilously near the brink of elimination.

When two men got into a heated debate with Steinbrenner following Sunday's 2-1 loss, one thing led to another and the Yankee owner emerged with a cast on his hand. It's a good thing he wasn't scheduled to be in the lineup tonight. He'd have trouble holding a bat.

But outfielder Jerry Mumphrey, benched for the fourth and fifth games after getting just two hits in 10 at-bats earlier, will get that chance. Yankee Manager Bob Lemon was expected to restore Mumphrey to the lineup and return him to center field.

The Dodgers hoped to have third baseman Ron Cey in their starting lineup. Cey suffered a slight concussion when he was hit in the helmet by one of Goose Gosage's 94-mile per hour fastballs in the eighth inning Sunday. He was x-rayed and stayed in Los Angeles overnight before flying to New York Monday to join his teammates.

Dodger Manager Tommy Lasorda said he would use Cey as long as the third baseman had no dizziness or aftereffects of the beating.

Hooton and John were the starters in Game Two of the Series won by the Yankees 3-0. Hooton has not worked since and will have five days of rest for tonight's assignment. Jogn volunteered to go to the Yankee bullpen Saturday and pitched two innings in an 8-7 Dodger victory that deadlocked the Series at 2-2.

Los Angeles then used consecutive seventh-inning home runs by Pedro Guerrero and Steve Yeager to beat Ron Guidry Sunday and move within one victory of the world championship.

To nail it down, the Dodgers must break a six-game losing streak in Yankee Stadium. Los Angeles has not won a game in New York since the second game of the 1977 World Series. Hooton was the winning pitcher in that one and the Dodgers hope he can repeat that tonight. If he can, it will complete a perfect turnaround from the 1978 Series when Los Angeles won the first two games at home only to lose the next three in New York and Game Six and the Series in Los Angeles.

Hooton remembers. "I tell everybody I don't think back to the last Series we played in," he said. "But the same thing happened in '78. We won the first two and the Yankees won the next four. We'll have our work cut out Tuesday."

While the Dodgers battled their Yankee Stadium hex, the Yankees had World Series history working against them.

Battlin' George Gives NY One Victory: In Los Angeles Elevator

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

Leave it to George — he had no intention of allowing his New York Yankees to leave Los Angeles with their tails between their legs. He took matters into his own hands.

By his own account, he punched out an unofficial decision over two hecklers when they began saying bad things about the Yankees in an elevator in the Los Angeles headquarters hotel Sunday night.

It was the only victory in the Yankees' "lost weekend" in the City of the Angels.

Call him George M. Steinbrenner III, "M" for "Manassa Mauler," undisputed light-heavyweight champion of frustrated club owners.

Hold the line, George, promoter Don King calling.

Somewhere today, roaming the streets of L.A., is a guy with a few front teeth missing and a friend who might be suffering bruises.

That is, if George is giving it to us straight. And we have to take his word for it. There were no other eyewitnesses. The culprits, according to George, took off like frightened rodents.

The hotel manager could add no details. The L.A. police said nothing was reported to them. An angry Steinbrenner, it seems, takes no prisoners.

The controversial Yankee boss, a stickler for rigid ethics codes, showed more relish than embarrassment when he called a late-evening press conference in Los Angeles to show a left hand in a cast, possibly fractured, a bruised right hand, a cut lip and a bump on the head from a whack with a beer bottle.

Meanwhile, the baseball world buzzed with mild amusement over the irony of the incident.

It was two years ago almost to the day that the then Yankee Manager Billy Martin, similarly taunted beyond his endurance, belted a marshmallow salesman in a Bloomington, Minn. hotel lobby.

Although Billy insisted that he was provoked into the act,

George proceeded to fire him, saying, "I can't put up with this kind of stuff any more."

The Yankee boss insisted that his players must avoid the very appearance of evil. He virtually invoked the Biblical "turn the cheek" policy.

Billy the Kid, wherever he is fishing, must surely have an interesting reaction.

Reggie Jackson, hearing the news, said, "Now George knows how I feel." Reggie was punched by teammate Graig Nettles during an argument at the victory party in Oakland after the Yankees had clinched the American League pennant.

Skirmishes between ballplayers and between players and antagonizing fans are fairly common, although it's rare for an owner to get thus involved, particularly a stickler like Steinbrenner who always has been so protective of "the Yankee image."

Steinbrenner, describing Sunday's incident, said he was coming down an elevator of the Hyatt Wilshire hotel around dinnertime when the lift stopped at another floor. A man entered while a companion held the door open. Recognizing Steinbrenner, the first man, according to the Yankee boss, began making remarks about New York "animals" and Yankee "chokers."

Steinbrenner said that's when he reacted.

He later explained: "It's okay for me to criticize my ballplayers, because I pay the checks, and we're in this together. But when other people call them chokers, I've had enough."

The first man, George said, struck him with a beer bottle. "I clocked the guy with my right hand," he said. George said the second guy also hit him. "There are two guys in that town looking for their teeth," he added.

Steinbrenner, 51, is a husky man with an athletic background. He boxed at Culver Military Academy and later was assistant football coach at Northwestern and Purdue. He is also a man with a short fuse.

Sitting in his box at Dodger Stadium last weekend, wat-

Since the present 2-3-2 Series scheduling system was adopted in 1924, no team has captured the championship by gaining all four required victories at home and none on the road. If the Yankees are to take the crown, they will become the first club to achieve it that way.

But Series history also seemed to dictate that this showdown would stretch into a decisive seventh game. Of the 46 times a team has held a 3-2 advantage in games, it has won Game Six and the Series only 17 times.

Still the Dodgers were delighted to win the pivotal fifth game at home. "We go into the Stadium with just one game to win before we know we're champions," said Dusty Baker. "That's a lot different than going in there one game down."

If the Dodgers fall tonight, they would turn to rookie sensation Fernando Valenzuela for Game Seven. Valenzuela struggled to a 5-4 victory in Game Three, triggering the Los Angeles recovery. The Yankees would use Dave Righetti, also a rookie, who was knocked out early in Game Three against Valenzuela.

Both teams had scheduled workouts at the Stadium canceled by rain Monday. And tonight's forecast was bleak with showers predicted. This already is the latest World Series in history because of the player strike and the extended playoff schedule. The Dodgers hope it lasts just one more day, but the Yankees aren't ready to end the season quite yet.

Willie Mays Celebrates 50th

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Willie Mays is 50 years old and claims to be five or six pounds overweight, but it appears as if he could trot out to centerfield, glide effortlessly under a fly ball and make one of those patented basket catches.

For 22 years, he was one of the game's most exciting stars. And his statistics — 3,283 hits, 2,062 runs, 1,903 RBI, 660 home runs, 338 stolen bases and a .302 lifetime batting average — earned him a spot in baseball's Hall of Fame in 1979.

It's been 30 years since he broke into the major leagues and played in his first World Series and eight years since he last donned a uniform as a player.

He is watching the World Series on television, but only in brief, half-inning spurts. He says he has trouble watching a game when he can't play and, as a result, saw only two games in person this season.

"I was there when Pete Rose tied Musial's (National League hit) record and I was there when he broke it," says Mays. "I just hate to go to a game and sit through nine innings and not be able to participate."

"All my televisions have remote controls and I can flip them off and not really be in the game. But you can't do that at the ball park."

Mays, who broke in with the New York Giants in 1951 and moved west with the club to San Francisco in 1958, finished his career with two unproductive seasons for the New York Mets.

He shunned offers to become a full-time coach and, though he still loves the game, says he has no desire to return as a manager or club executive.

"I think I would lose too much money if I did," says Mays, who started public relations work for Bally's Park Place Casino Hotel in Atlantic City, N.J., two years ago. He is in Miami Beach doing promotions for Bally.

Mays recalls that he was one of about five players earning $100,000 a year early in his career. The sum, while hefty in its day, seems paltry compared with what players are making today.

But Mays doesn't spend time thinking about what kind of contract he might command if he were in his prime now.

"I don't like the word if. I think it's very difficult to start looking back," he says. "I think I make more money today than when I played ball. So what am I crying about?"

"Sure I wish I was coming along today and making the money these guys are making. I would love that. But I don't like the word if. That means you're looking back over the years that you played and saying, 'Hey, I played better than those guys play, why couldn't I make the money? I think that's wrong.'"

Russell Knows How Errors Feel

NEW YORK (AP) — If anybody could sympathize with what Davey Lopes went through the other day, it would be Bill Russell, who knows what it's like to have fielding problems in a World Series.

Lopes tied a Series record in Game 5 on Sunday by committing three errors. But the Los Angeles Dodgers overcame his miseries to nip the New York Yankees 2-1 and take a 3-2 lead in the best-of-seven Series.

Back in 1978, Russell wasn't so fortunate.

The usually mild-mannered Dodger shortstop committed three errors in the '78 Series, but that wasn't the extent of his difficulties as the Dodgers, after winning the first two games, dropped four in a row to New York, the first three at Yankee Stadium.

Russell's play prompted widespread criticism by New York reporters, and by the end of the third game at Yankee Stadium, he refused to talk to them.

"He cursed out New York writers and the city in general," recalled a New York reporter. "He did not play aggressively, he was letting balls play him. Every ball in his direction was an adventure. "He was abusive to New York writers, who were writing that he was playing lousy, which he was doing."

The outbursts were way out of character for the 33-year-old midwesterner, who is almost always cooperative and soft-spoken.

"I know what he goes through, believe me," said Russell, speaking of Lopes' difficulties in Game 5. "I've done that lots of times. You try so hard, sometimes you fight yourself and it doesn't work out the way you want it to. You just feel for him. He's been under a lot of pressure."

Russell should know. The '78 Series wasn't the only time that he's been bad-mouthed. A converted outfielder, Russell took over as the Dodgers' starting shortstop in 1972, and he's been the regular at that position ever since.

To be a regular at such an important position as shortstop for so long on a team that has won four National League pennants, obviously Russell has been doing at least a few things pretty well.

There have been those four pennants, but no world championships. However, that could change tonight, if the Dodgers are able to win Game 6 of the Series at Yankee Stadium, where they've lost their last six Series games, dating back to 1977.

Right-hander Burt Hooton, loser of Game 2, will pitch for the Dodgers against Tommy John, the winner in Game 2.

There have been whispers that the Dodger infield, which has been together as a starting unit for eight years, will soon be broken up. Lopes and Russell are most prominently mentioned as those who could be replaced.

Terps Are No Surprise

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Duke football coach Red Wilson says Maryland, which beat the Blue Devils 24-21 last week, are no surprise.

"Maryland is ... not much difference from Maryland teams of the past," Wilson said Monday at his weekly news conference. "They were physical and nobody is able to run against them."

"But people have been able to pass against them and we were no exception," said Wilson, whose team rushed for only four yards in the game.

How can you use a classified ad to help with the family budget?

1. Sell that tuba that hasn't sounded a note the last three years. Any musical instrument will do if you don't have a tuba.
2. Take a good look in your garage. If there's a bike, moped, or motorcycle that hasn't had a rider in a long time, now's the time to exchange it for cash.
3. Grown-ups also let still-good items go unused! Got a sewing machine, typewriter or knitting machine you haven't mastered? Find a cash buyer for it.
4. Don't forget sound equipment . . . radio, TV, stereo, tape recorder, CB, walkie-talkie . . . people are always looking for things to listen to.
5. And the workshop . . . wherever it is . . . is the place to spot tools which still have a lot of good use in them. Let someone else put them to work while you fatten your budget.

That's how!

Just take inventory of the many good items in your home some family would like to have. Then give us a call to place your ad. Classified ads have been helping families stretch their budgets for years . . . and they can help you, too.

Stardom Seems To Have Escaped Zorn

By BRUCE LOWMY
AP Sports Writer

Only a few years ago, Jim Zorn was the Golden Boy of the National Football League. He was typecast as a young, left-handed Fran Tarkenton. He was everything but a cover boy.

Today, halfway through his sixth season, is was just another quarterback, trying very hard to keep the Seattle Seahawks afloat.

While the Eric Hipple, Joe Montana and David Woodleys are hailed as the new rising stars, Zorn's star has all but vanished beyond the horizon. He is ranked 16th among the NFL's passers. He has thrown more interceptions (8) than touchdowns (7). And he is on a team which needs a miracle to break even this year.

The deeply religious 28-year-old Zorn seems to view his job as just a small part of his life. Amateur boxing, speed skating, mountain climbing, playing the viola with the Seattle Symphony and disc-jockeying on a local radio station all have made up a part of the mosaic.

So has forthrightness. Better quarterbacks than he have scrambled out back doors of locker rooms, hidden in training rooms or otherwise turned their backs on the people paid to write about them — and thus on the people who pay to see them play.

But that's not Zorn.

"I couldn't see me clammimg up now anymore than I could see myself saying, 'this is it, guys. I've arrived. C'mon and talk to me, baby!' when things were going good," he says. "I don't live and die by whether we've won or lost. I hate to disappoint you, but I'm still me, the same guy I was when we were winning."

That was in 1978 when the Seahawks, in just their third year of existence, finished 9-7 and failed by just one overtime loss to Denver to win a division title. Seattle also was 9-7 in 1979 before crashing to 4-12 last year.

"He's been around about five years now, hasn't he?" former San Francisco quarterback John Brodie said not too long ago. "Well, if Jim doesn't start coming through in a big way, the fans will turn on him. They always do. It's part of paying your dues. The quarterback is really know the whole game, to do a lot of different things. Those types of mistakes, they're just part of the learning process. Once I've made a mistake, once we've lost a game, I can't go around saying 'woe is me.'"

The 4-12 season could just as easily have been Seattle's third consecutive 9-7, and this year's 2-6 could just as well be the other way around, says Zorn.

Jean-Claude Killy, the great French skier, had his first pair of skis at the age of 3.

Pats Playing Just Poorly Enough To Keep Losing

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — The New England Patriots have been playing just poorly enough to eke out losses on the field. Now Coach Ron Erhardt is wondering what effect those losses are having on their minds.

A day after the Patriots were edged by the Washington Redskins, 24-22, Erhardt was asked Monday if their 2-6 National Football League record is hurting his players' confidence.

"I don't think so, right now. I don't know," he said. "I'll probably have a little better feel by Thursday."

"But you're bound to start thinking and second-guessing yourself as you drop ballgames," Erhardt added. "I think they know they can play with anybody. But what we need right now is to win some games."

The Patriots, who were expected to have a much better season, have lost by 1, 10, 14, 6, 4, and 2 points. They have outgained their opponents in three of those games, including the last two. Their victories have been by 16 and 28 points.

Of the 10 NFL teams with losing records, only the Patriots have outscored their opponents.

The Patriots outgained the Redskins, also 2-6, 409 yards to 230, but had to settle for field goals by John Smith on their first two possessions after moving the ball inside the Washington 10-yard line.

"We're getting in position to get it done and then we don't get it done," Erhardt said. "I don't know of anybody that's gotten any more yards against them. I don't know of anybody that threw the ball any better than we have against them."

"However, you have nine penalties staring you in the face and they happen at crucial times and it's tough to win."

The Patriots were stymied on their final drive of the game by a holding penalty against tackle Shelby Jordan and a pass interference call on wide receiver Stanley Morgan. Smith then tried to win the game with a 53-yard field goal but failed.

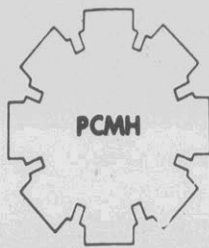

"If I could speak without getting fined all the time..." Erhardt began. "All I'm going to say from this standpoint (is) we sure didn't change our blocking techniques from last week to this week. And last week (in a 38-10 trouncing of the Houston Oilers), we had two flags."

Erhardt was pleased with the defense, which gave up just 14 points, and displeased with the special teams, which allowed Mike Nelms' 75-yard punt return for a touchdown.

The Patriots are on the road again next Sunday, playing the Oakland Raiders, 3-5.

The large cast does much to compensate for the screenplay's inept dialogue. Peter Toole and John Gielgud, in rather minor roles as Tiberius and Nerva; Giancarlo Badessi as the plump, effeminate Claudius; Guido Mannari as the loyal prefect and the beautiful Adriani Asti as his wife, Ennia; Helen Mirren as Caligula's wife, Caesonia; and John Steiner as Longinus are all impressive.

Teresa Ann Savoy is a lovely young lady who struggles valiantly with the paper doll role of Drusi. Malcolm McDowell as Caligula manages to bring a fine degree of reality to the degeneracy of a lust-ridden, power-mad emperor god, despite the wooden lines all too often provided him.

As a splashy, superbly photographed gallery of fragmented erotica, "Gore Vidal's Caligula" succeeds admirably. Viewed from any other criteria, it fails to measure up to the potential of the material and talent at Vidal's disposal.

Jerry Raynor

Given this dramatic situation within a framework of decadence, "Gore Vidal's Caligula" disappoints in that it never makes convincing use of the scope for tragedy inherent in the material. Emphasis is slanted strongly to the exotic, decorative aspects of a succession of spectacular, erotic scenes. Substance is often hinted at, but never fully realized. There is no sense of history. Instead, we are presented with colorful picture postcards of events devoid of the excitement of history unfolding.

Caligula's incestuous love for his sister Drusilla is the most convincing, best developed theme in this film which is generally short on efforts to probe beneath the surface of human emotions. Caligula is happy only when he is with Drusilla. Her death of fever, instead of becoming a sobering factor in his conduct, triggers him to further irrational, irresponsible actions of cruelty.

Convinced that he is a god, justified in every whim of his imagination, Caligula blithely orders and carries out one horror after another — the execution of Macro, his staunch friend and advocate; the establishment of a brothel peopled by the wives, daughters and sons of the elite of Rome; blatant confiscation of personal property.

Farmville Student In Chorus

FARMVILLE — Julia Smith of Fountain was one of 150 high school students in the state selected as a winner in the North Carolina Honors Chorus. Over 500 singers competed for a spot in the chorus.

Smith, a senior at Farmville Central High School, is a member of the Keywannes, National Honor Society, FBLA, Spanish Club and softball team. She participates in the FCHS band and attended all-state band for the past two years. She received the "I Dare You" award in 1980.

Students are selected for the honors chorus by audition. The chorus will perform under the direction of Dr. Lloyd Pfautsch on Nov. 22 at Benton Convention Center in Winston-Salem. Dr. Pfautsch is professor of sacred music and director of choral activities at Southern Methodist University in Dallas.

The honors chorus will perform three of his works, "In Music, God is Glorified," "Kyrie Eleison" and "Music's Empire." The chorus will also perform music by Copland, Brahms, Mozart and Bruckner.

This is the second year a Farmville Central student was selected for the honor chorus.

Smith is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carter Smith.

Another Night Of TV Baseball

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — ABC will have the nation's attention tonight for the sixth game of the World Series. For at least three hours, ABC again will give viewers a mixture of baseball, commercials and promotions. Some thoughts on how the multi-pitch experience has gone so far:

Don't you hate the way Howard Cosell must have the last word on everything. Although he's provocative and less obtrusive than in previous Series, baseball is not Cosell's sport. He doesn't know the game's intricacies, so he offers history. His play-by-play from the 1947 World Series made it sound like it was actually happening on Sunday. Is that telling it like it was?

Don't you love sportscaster Al Michaels? As the song says, he's talking baseball. Tonight Keith Jackson returns to do play-by-play, so there'll be more giggles, cliches and trumped-up melodrama in the booth.

Don't you hate drawn-out pre-game shows and introductions? The National Football League dispenses with the national anthem and player announcements before airtime. But it could have been worse in the Series. If Montreal made it, there'd have been an extra anthem.

Don't you love those "Baseball Fever" promotions? Sometimes they're better than the games.

Don't you hate manager Tommy Lasorda's cursing whenever something bad happens to his Dodgers? Is that called grace under pressure?

Don't you love those reaction shots from Yankee owner George Steinbrenner? But why didn't ABC have his pouting puss in Games 3 and 4?

Don't you hate excessive pictures of the players' wives, particularly early in the game? You can tell they know when the camera's on.

Don't you love Reggie Jackson home runs? Putting aside whether you like the Yankees, no one in baseball hits a more picture-perfect homer.

Don't you hate the way ABC tried to prevent dial-switching by not giving any pro football scores until the fifth inning Sunday? But there were several plugs for ABC's Monday night game, the only pro football the network recognizes. On Saturday, of course, there were plenty of college football scores. That's ABC's game, and it wasn't competing with the Series.

Don't you love commentator Jim Palmer? He's perceptive and analytical, telling us that Dodger shortstop Bill Russell should be closer to the hole because Dave Goltz was pitching right-handed batters inside. Nobody misses ABC's regular season commentator Don Drysdale.

Don't you hate the extra 30 seconds of commercials — compared to normal prime time — between innings? That means more time for annoying ads, like McDonald's "Uhyeeees" and Chevy Citation's Everyman. And more time for ABC's promotions.

Don't you love it when ABC has a replay from a different angle? But where was ABC on Yankee third baseman Graig Nettles' great catch in Game 1? NBC still does baseball better.

Don't you hate Cosell's plugs for his own golf tournament, especially when playing in it is used to measure the quality of the man? While we're on the subject, if Dodger Jerry Reuss is a "good pitcher and a good man," as Cosell says, does that mean those not described this way aren't good men? Don't you love Cosell's pre-game interviews? Compare them to Bob Uecker's shameless hyping for ABC stars Lee Majors and Mike Connors. Since this is all he does, there's no excuse for his ill-prepared player interviews at the end of the game. Don't you hate it when they try to make heroes out of baseball players? They talk about courage and guts. What's so courageous and gutsy about playing a little boys' game?

Car Tow-Away Can Be Salvaged Ordeal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Getting your car towed away for illegal parking here can mean standing in line for half a day. But for those who can afford it, the awful experience can be salvaged with a chauffeured limousine, champagne and caviar.

All it takes to cross the line from average guy to pampered customer is a good line of credit and paying a $45 yearly fee to a new company called Humiliation Elimination Inc.

Members who are suddenly without wheels alert HEI with a phone call. The company sends a chauffeured limousine loaded with goodies to transport the distraught violator to the city lot where the car has been towed. An HEI staffer stands in line to pay the ticket. The customer is billed through his credit card. The concern claims 2,000 members, has expanded to Boston, and eventually plans to locate in other cities that emulate Washington's tough parking enforcement, says HEI founder Lincoln Bouve.

"You have to have a public that is up in arms and outraged," he says. Washington police use the "boot," a mechanical device clamped on a wheel to render an automobile immobile. Three unpaid tickets earn a boot; fine and late penalties must be paid before it's removed.

Top Fashion Designer For Movies Now Dead

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Edith Head, who dressed Hollywood's most famous stars for 50 years and earned a record eight Oscars, has died of a rare bone disease.

Her age still a secret, Miss Head died Saturday night from myelofibrosis myeloid metaplasia, an inability of the bone marrow to produce blood, her attorney John Piggott announced Monday. Miss Head was believed to be in her 80s.

"It was a fairly lengthy illness, with remissions during the time after she had blood transfusions," said Piggott. "She continued working until recently."

In her half-century in Hollywood, Miss Head designed costumes for such stars as Elizabeth Taylor, Bette Davis, Audrey Hepburn and Sophia Loren. She also designed costumes for Ingrid Bergman, who would not make a film without her.

Miss Taylor called Miss Head "one of the most important people in my life."

Besides the glamorous female stars, she also designed clothes for Fred Astaire, Cary Grant and other male stars. She won her last Oscar in 1976 for "The Sting," starring Paul Newman and Robert Redford.

"I believe it was the first time that the costume-design Oscar went for a picture with no female star," she said at the time.

Her first Academy Award was for "The Heiress" in 1949, the second year that the costume design award was given. Her other Oscars winners were "All about Eve," "Samson and Delilah," "A Place in the Sun," "Roman Holiday," "Sabrina" and "The Facts of Life."

Born in Los Angeles, she grew up in Searchlight, Nev., and after a working as a teacher, studying design and finally finding a job as a sketch artist in Paramount Studio's costume department, she got her first big assignment — designing gowns for Mae West in "She Done Him Wrong."

She left no close relatives. Her husband, art director Ward B. Innes, himself an Oscar winner, died several years ago.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip — RANCHER LAUGHED AT CITY LADY'S UNGAINLY ANTICS.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: Y equals P

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Opening lead: Jack of ♠.

It is not easy to see where declarer can develop an extra chance at his three no trump contract. But there was one, and by unearthing it, South landed a game that seemed destined for defeat.

The auction was straightforward. South's jump to two no trump showed 19-20 points, and North's five-card suit and good intermediates were just enough to sway him to raise to game.

West led the jack of hearts, and when dummy came down declarer could count four tricks in the major suits, plus the ace of clubs. Therefore, he had to develop four more in the minor suits to make his contract. That would be a simple matter if the club finesse succeeded. But what if it failed?

In that case, the defenders would knock out the remaining heart stopper before declarer could establish a diamond for his ninth trick. Whichever defender won the ace of diamonds would then be able to continue hearts, enabling the defenders to cash their tricks to defeat the contract.

Declarer, therefore, decided to play on diamonds first. However, after winning the first heart trick it would not have done to lead a diamond from the closed hand. East would win and force out the ace of hearts, and declarer would still have to concede a club trick and with it the contract.

Declarer found the superior play of crossing to the king of spades and leading a low diamond from the table. East perforce rose with the ace, so declarer was able to bring in the diamond suit, with the help of a marked finesse, after winning the ace of hearts.

Note that, had East played low and had the king of diamonds won the trick, declarer would abandon diamonds and play on

FOCUS

The Last Great Master

Pablo Picasso, the most influential and prolific artist of the 20th century, was born one hundred years ago today in Malaga, Spain. Most of his life was spent in France, however, in self-imposed exile from the regime of dictator Francisco Franco. The Nazis banned his work from exhibition during their occupation of Paris because they considered his art too radical. Despite his world renown, the Germans ignored his work in their wholesale looting of masterworks and never questioned Picasso's own valuation of his entire collection at $1,600. After his death, his work, including 13,500 paintings, 100,000 prints, 34,000 illustrations and 300 sculptures, was assessed at $690 million. His Saltimbanque or Seated Clown (above) alone sold for $3 million last year. DO YOU KNOW — What gigantic mural by Picasso was recently returned to Spain from New York? FRIDAY'S ANSWER — Mussolini was the first Fascist leader who led Italy during World War II.

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, OCT. 28, 1981

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Wait until later in the day to patch up strained relationships with certain family members. A good time to organize your life so you can make rapid progress in the future.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You are able to relieve yourself of pressures that have been annoying you earlier in the day. Be more optimistic.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You may find it difficult to communicate properly with others during the daytime, but the evening is fine for such.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Get busy with details of finance, but big investments are not wise now, since there are unusual forces at work.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Make plans to have more abundance in the future. The planets are most favorable for getting ahead in career matters.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Be sure to complete any work left undone before taking on new work. Discuss important business matters with financial experts.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Plan early for whatever you want to do, then carry through intelligently. This can be a particularly fine day for you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Take time to put your business affairs in better order. Await a better time for looking into new outlets. Use care in motion.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Support persons who have been loyal to you in the past. Show increased devotion to loved one. Plan for the future.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Study your money situation and make plans to have more financial security. Strive to be more efficient in your work.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Have conferences with higher-ups early and gain their support and goodwill. Take time to improve your appearance.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Obtain the information you need from the right sources. A financial expert can give advice for a plan you have in mind.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Keep busy at tasks that can bring you added income in the days ahead. Handle important business matters wisely.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one who can solve difficult problems, so direct education along lines of investigations for best results. Give as fine a religious training as you can in order to maintain an optimistic manner. Sports are a must.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!
