N.C. House, Senate At Odds Over Plans

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) - The state House faced yet another formula for legislative redistricting today, but in the Senate, lawmakers said Thursday they wouldn't go along with any new changes in that chamber's district lines.

point in the late afternoon a consensus was reached on a plan, but it fell apart when embarrassed House members learned a short time later that their map made room for only 119 representatives - not the necessary 120.

In both chambers, support quickly disappeared for plans that had been recommended by the committees in pre-session meetings last week.

percent variation if they are to have a reasonable chance of winning federal approval. But the Senate Legislative Redistricting Committee voted nearly unanimously to make no further changes and stick with the plan viewed skeptically by its own lawyers.

Grounded Sub's Skipper Balks At Leaving Ship

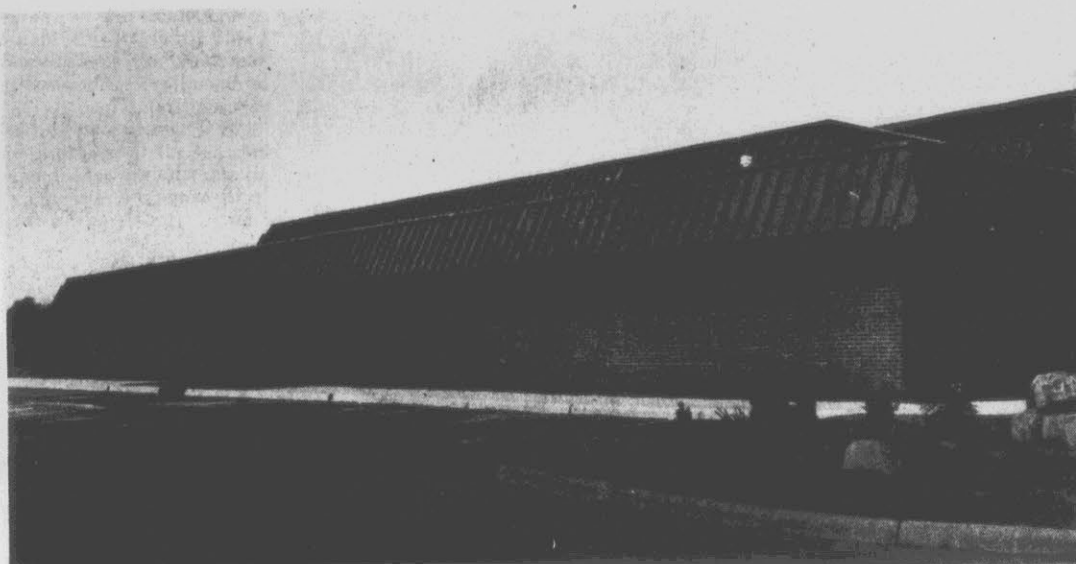

By DICK SODERLUND
Associated Press Writer

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) - The captain of a grounded Soviet submarine balked again today at leaving the ship for questioning, and the area around the sub was cordoned off to minimize the risk of accidental gunshots, Swedish officials said.

against the actions taken by the Swedish authorities and their demands to interrogate him. He also denied a report by the Stockholm newspaper Dagens Nyheter that the captain, Pyotr Gushin, had been replaced by the ship's political officer and locked up in his quarters.

The Swedish military cordoned off the area surrounding the submarine, barring any curious civilians except for reporters. The Swedish government says it won't refloat the sub until the captain submits to questioning aboard a nearby Swedish minesweeper.

"very careful navigation." The Swedish government refused to let a Soviet flotilla enter its waters to salvage the sub, and the Soviet government agreed to the Swedish navy doing the job. But after an emergency meeting with military leaders, the Swedish government said the sub would be refloated until the Soviets cooperated fully in sorting out the incident.

Boyette and the committee's faculty representatives "for the purpose of discussing the chancellor search process."

Arafat Blames Reagan

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) - Yasser Arafat, head of the Palestine Liberation Organization, was quoted today as saying President Reagan is to blame for the assassination of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat. Arafat, in an interview published in the independent Beirut newspaper An-Nahar, was reported to have said Reagan pressured Sadat to a "squeezing point" to give concessions to Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin, which helped bring about Sadat's assassination.

Gasoline Prices To Rise With New OPEC Rates

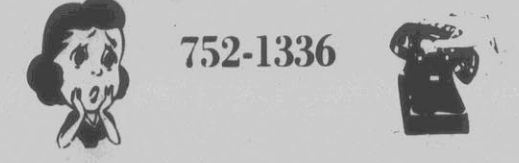

By ROBERT MCCARTNEY

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) - Americans will pay about 2 1/2 cents more per gallon for gasoline and fuel oil, analysts say, as a result of an OPEC agreement raising Saudi Arabia's base price for crude oil $2 a gallon.

Polish Parliament Is Asked To Ban Strikes

By THOMAS W. NETTER
Associated Press Writer
WARSAW, Poland (AP) - Premier Wojciech Jaruzelski urged Parliament today to pass a resolution for an immediate ban on strikes to protect Poland from the wave of labor unrest that has thrown the country into turmoil.

This one would hold. "The ministers gave their words, and we are sometimes gentlemen," he told reporters. The accord followed weeks of intensive negotiations by telephone and telex. With the demand for OPEC oil reduced by the international oil glut and members cutting prices individually to retain customers, the 13 oil ministers were determined to avoid a third failure after divisive meetings in May and August.

Dear Abby

Marijuana Flap Puts Readers Out Of Joint

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR READERS: My mailman isn't speaking to me (again). "Concerned Mom" wrote to say that her 12-year-old son was grounded by his father for having taken it upon himself to call the police and report the next-door neighbors for growing marijuana in their garden. The neighbors, according to "Concerned Mom," were good friends who neither sold nor used marijuana — they were just growing it for "the fun and novelty" of it.

The boy had been lectured at school about the evil of drugs and had been instructed to report users and growers to the police.

The mother said she thought her son's actions were commendable and he should not have been grounded. I said I didn't think his actions were all that commendable, and I wondered why he blew the whistle on friendly neighbors without discussing it with his parents first.

(As it turned out, the police didn't press charges because all they found were two dying marijuana plants, which would indicate the neighbors were not trafficking in marijuana.)

Some typical responses from my mailbox:

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I, who work with juvenile delinquents in the Baltimore City Juvenile Court, were infuriated with your response to "Concerned Mom."

Abby, there is nothing cute or novel about growing marijuana. A little marijuana is like being a little pregnant — it has a way of blossoming into a big responsibility for someone.

I wish you could see the thousands of children we see who were a little high when they punched out that little lady for her little Social Security check, or stole a little car and went on a little chase when they were a little high on a little marijuana.

There is no such thing as a little illegal. This country is overburdened with people who cheat a little on their taxes, steal a little from welfare or shoplift a few little things — often for the fun and novelty of it.

You may use our names if you wish.
HELEN AND RICHARD BARTHOLOMEE

DEAR ABBY: Your answer to "Concerned Mom" really stunk! I'm 13 and they are always telling us in school that marijuana is bad and we should report anything we find out about it. I don't think that kid deserved to be grounded, even if the neighbors were good friends. Breaking the law is breaking the law, no matter who does it.

ON HIS SIDE IN CHARLES CITY, IOWA

DEAR ABBY: I just can't believe your answer. The boy probably didn't discuss it with his parents first because he knew they would tell him to mind his own business. What makes you think "good people" with "harmless" intentions are above the law? Who is to say what might have happened if the good neighbors had been successful in growing these plants? They might have been tempted to grow more for a little extra income. (We all have our weaknesses.)

I think that boy made the right and mature decision. His blended. Shape into a flat square, wrap in saran and chill. Divide into 4 equal portions; work with one at a time, keeping the others chilled.

only mistake was revealing the fact that he was the informer.

DENISE K. BIRKEL, BANGOR, MAINE

DEAR ABBY: For a father to punish his 12-year-old son for reporting a crime to the police is beyond belief. The boy deserved a medal! Dad's judgment must have been warped by his embarrassment at having his progeny pull the plug on his friends.

You blew it, kid. Tell Dad to get off Junior's back. Too many people feel they have no responsibility to assist in the enforcement of the law for fear of being called a "fink."

FRED R. STAPLES, JUDGE,
SUPERIOR COURT, PASCO, WASH.

So far, the score is Readers, 406; Abby, 1.

And here is the lone letter in support of my side:

DEAR ABBY: I commend you for your very perceptive answer to "Concerned Mom." I'm sure you'll catch a lot of flak from your readers, but 12-year-olds are not too young to realize that their actions in "following instructions" literally without using some judgment and consulting their parents can result in serious consequences.

Some children enjoy causing trouble and being "right" at the same time. I do not condone either growing or using marijuana, but somehow I also had the feeling that the boy's motives were not all that "commendable." I wonder if the boy wasn't trying to get even with the neighbors for something.

Lisa Richey Gives Talk

The Eta Delta Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi held its meeting Tuesday at the home of Nora McLean. Lisa Richey was speaker for the evening.

She is a weather reporter for WNCT-TV news. She explained that unlike a meteorologist, who is trained to map and interpret various weather patterns, she does not forecast the weather. Information gathered and charted is provided by the National Weather Service.

She indicated that an enjoyable aspect of presenting the weather forecast for her, is bringing sign language to the report.

Fran Rostar was assisting hostess.

It was decided that a contribution would be made to the Pitt County Department of Social Services offering assistance in providing Christmas gifts to foster children. A reaffirmation ritual was held for Barbara Sloan, who is returning to the sorority from an extended leave. She is a charter member of the chapter, when it was organized in November, 1974.

Consider Human Services Role

By ROBIN PATER
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Churches in North Carolina have no choice but to step in and help poor people who have been affected by federal budget cuts by the Reagan administration, an Episcopal Church official has advised.

The Rev. Lex Mathews, director of the Christian Social Ministry for the Episcopal Church, said he doesn't necessarily agree with the federal cuts nor President Reagan's suggestion that churches should take over social programs. However, he added that there is no other institution that can pick up the slack.

Other church groups moving in the same direction include the Baptist State Convention, based in Raleigh.

Doug Cole, executive director of the Baptists' Christian Life Council, said a report will be issued to the convention next week encouraging churches to seek out people in their communities who need food, clothing and shelter.

"We are asking churches to sort of re-focus their resources," Cole said. "We are aware of reductions in human services in our state." But, he says, "there's no way for a local church or group of churches to replace all federal aid (being cut)."

The United Methodist Church North Carolina Conference, which oversees the eastern portion of the state, has announced no specific plans for responding to the federal cutbacks.

However, Beanie Kelly, communications coordinator for the conference, said it was decided at the conference's annual meeting in June that church officials should ask government to give more consideration to the needs of the poor and elderly and less to the build up of military weapons.

As many as 37,000 people in North Carolina will lose welfare money, said Charles Page, research director for the United Community Services, a branch of the United Way in Charlotte. More than 10,000 people in the state may soon be coping with the reduction or elimination of food stamps, he added.

Page said The United Way will conduct workshops between now and mid-December on how to deal with the reductions on the local level.

Mathews said that in August, he sent a memo from his Raleigh office to clergy and senior wardens in the Episcopal Diocese of North Carolina suggesting that the church's vestry set up a fund to help the poor.

If every parish of the diocese, which has more than 30,000 church members, gave a sum equivalent to 5 percent of its annual budget, about $500,000 would be raised, Mathews estimated.

Since the memo was sent out, local feedback has all been positive, he said.

For years the Catholic Community Services — which is privately funded — has provided emergency aid to the needy, such as help with food or heating, said Sister Maria Rhoads. Also, four outreach centers in the state ask parishes to look at their own local needs.

"In light of the tax cuts, we know that people will definitely be hurt by them," Sister Rhoads said. "We have already sensed the increase (in need) and just hope the resources will hold out. I don't think we realize yet what the impact is going to be."

On Wednesday, several religious and social service agencies — including the Salvation Army; CROP, a national ecumenical group; and the Inter-Faith Council for Social Service, another ecumenical group — came from Fayetteville, Smithfield, Raleigh, Chapel Hill, Salisbury, Charlotte and Greensboro and met in Greensboro to start a grassroots effort to deal with the budget cuts.

The groups recommended that communities hold meetings on the budget cuts and decide what ecumenical and human service agencies should be expected to do.

Collins Kilburn, executive director of the N.C. Council of Churches said the agencies "see the magnitude of the budget cuts and plan to take up the crunch but they can't do it all. They will continue to argue that the federal government must be responsible to its citizenry."

Sees 'Disgusting' Election Tactics

National conservative organizations are planning "disgusting" tactics in four campaigns for U.S. House seats in North Carolina, the executive director of the state Democratic Party said Wednesday.

Janice H. Faulkner told a party gathering that the four targeted congressmen were Reps. Charles O. Whitley in the 3rd District, Stephen L. Neal in the 5th, Charles G. Rose III in the 7th and William G. Hefner in the 8th.

She said the tactics included soliciting conservative Democrats to run against the incumbents and using large amounts of money for campaigns to distort the issues.

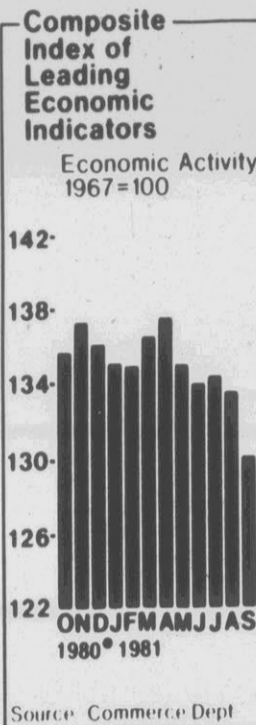

Mrs. Faulkner said she was speaking primarily of groups like the National Congressional Club — the campaign organization of Sen. Jesse A. Helms, R-N.C. — rather than the state Republican Party in making the charges. "My position is that a large movement is usurping the role of the Republican Party," she said.

State Republican chairman David T. Flaherty scoffed at the remarks as an attempt to make all conservatives look bad.

"I think she knows that she is lying," he said when contacted in Raleigh. "She is trying to throw up a smokescreen."

Mrs. Faulkner passed out copies of a Goldsboro newspaper advertisement as an example of the tactics. The ad, which ran Sept. 23, solicited a "conservative Democrat to challenge Congressman Charles Whitley, who acts as a rubber stamp to Tip O'Neill and the Eastern Liberal Establishment."

Pitt JA Has 200 Students

Over 200 Pitt County teen-agers are participating in the Junior Achievement program, which recently began operations in a new facility at the Carolina East Convenience Center, according to JA community coordinator Sue Lemish.

Volunteer adult advisers for the program this year are being provided by Burroughs Wellcome, Eaton Corp., Empire Brushes and Procter & Gamble.

Mrs. Lemish said the new facility at Carolina East Convenience Center is being provided through the efforts of Barbara DeVoss of Carolina East Mall, Dick Flye of Carolina Telephone & Telegraph Co. and Tom Wilbourne of Eaton Corp., with furniture being supplied by Pitt County and the Pitt County Schools and contributions from 43 individuals and businesses.

Junior Achievement is a nonprofit economic education program which allows students from all five high schools in the county to form a company by selling stock.

The students then operate the company by selecting, manufacturing and marketing a product, electing officers, keeping records, paying miniaturized wages, salaries, sales commissions and taxes.

By forming and operating the company, the students have the opportunity to learn about business and the free enterprise system, according to Mrs. Lemish.

'Rent' May Be Accurate

The federal government plans to change the Consumer Price Index formula, the most closely watched guide of inflation.

To be removed from it are the effects of house prices and mortgage rates.

Janet L. Norwood, commissioner of the statistics bureau, sees it as "fixing" the index. "In light of the extensive use of the CPI in our economic system, it is essential that public confidence in it be maintained. These facts clearly indicate that the time for changing the CPI has come."

The practical effect, of course, will be on various programs and contracts tied to the cost-of-living index. They include union contracts, Social Security, government pensions, food stamps and other federal benefits.

Obviously the time has come to do something about those ties to the CPI, which have an inflationary effect in themselves.

There will also be the illusion, however, of a lower cost-of-living increase which will have political benefits.

The American public needs to be educated to this. Housing cost will be treated as if the owner were paying rent with cost based on property taxes, repairs, insurance and regular maintenance.

Unless things change, however, cost of owning a house could still be astronomical due to the high interest rates we are currently seeing.

But then come to think of it, the new CPI might indeed be accurate. By the time it is instituted most Americans might well be renting because the cost of housing and financing is so far out of reach.

Uniformity Will Be Necessary

With anticipated cutbacks in federal regulation by the federal Environmental Protection Agency, the job will presumably fall to the states.

That could mean 50 sets of rules, which could be confusing and costly to industries involved.

Robert Oldfield, president of the Union Carbide Corp. Agricultural Products Co. told a Governor's Conference on Economic Development that the cutbacks must not bring a wave of new regulations by the states. He said business must work with the states to develop reasonable and uniform regulations.

It makes sense. If the states are to develop environmental regulations rather than the federal government there needs to be coordination between states to provide uniformity.

A wide range of varying regulations can mean total confusion to industry and ultimately much higher costs to the buyers.

THIS AFTERNOON

Coalition's Roots

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — "The Coalition" is a term much used in recent weeks as the U.S. Congress battled over the price support and allotment program for tobacco which means so much in North Carolina.

Television and newspaper reports have repeatedly talked about the coalition; warned of its eminent failure; worried that it was falling apart; exulted in its ultimate triumph.

To those of us with short memories, it was never quite clear what this "coalition" was all about. Was it, as some thought, a long standing group with farm and rural interests? Or, was it a hastily assembled power group trading off this and that for tobacco support?

To find the answer requires reaching way back in history. All the way to Franklin Roosevelt and his New Deal politics. For that is where the coalition begins.

Various described as New Dealers, New Frontiersmen, Soldiers in the War on Poverty, the coalition is actually that long recognized Congressional power formed by Democrats in which the Southern brethren go along with the national policy despite their misgivings about liberal directions.

It had looked like Ronald Reagan had broken the back of the coalition with his election. He carried the South. But Democrats remain in charge in the U.S. House of Representatives if not in the U.S. Senate.

There is no rural or agricultural coalition. There aren't that many country folk left in the Congress. There is no tobacco coalition because a lot of liberals oppose tobacco on health or esthetic grounds.

There remains, however, that Democratic Coalition which once stuck together through thick or thin to vote together on the party line.

There was the War on Poverty with its social programs for jobs and education, the elderly and the poor. Many of those have been, now, repudiated and are being dismantled.

There was the federal underwriting of New York City's bankrupt budget; and the bailout for the foundering Chrysler Corporation.

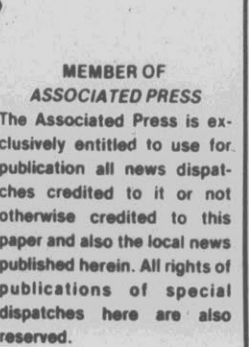

Some would call the policies, over the years, progressive. Some call them moderate. Many use the label Liberal. Whatever the name given the programs and the Democrats who stood behind them, the coalition represents that philosophy in big federal government which says that government should be all things to all people, for the good.

That runs head on into Reagan's new federalism Republicanism which preaches that government should do for people only that which they can't do for themselves.

New Day Was the tobacco vote, then, a sign of rejuvenation for the Democratic Party as it regains strength and con-

Return Of The CIA

I have good news today. The CIA is going to come back in all our lives. If President Reagan's executive order goes through, the agency can once again spy on Americans in this country.

There are a few people in America who are nervous about giving the Central Intelligence Agency this kind of power, so I will put their fears to rest by answering some of the questions being raised by the new ground rules.

Q — If you allow the CIA to operate in this country don't you violate our civil liberties?

A — No, the CIA protects them. The more it knows what Americans are up to, the safer we will all be from the Commies.

Q — Will the CIA agents be able to read our mail and tap our telephones?

A — Within reason. But they are only going to read the mail and tap the phones of those people who deserve it. The rest of us have nothing to fear.

Q — The CIA was used as a political instrument by the Nixon people. What's to prevent them being used again to "get" the administration's opponents?

A — The difference is that the men under Nixon lost their moral compass. But the people who work for Ronald Reagan are beyond reproach.

Q — How do we know this?

A — Because most of them are lawyers.

Q — What's to prevent the CIA from working with the Mafia or hiring Cuban gangsters to do their dirty work for them?

A — Nothing really, when you're doing a covert job, you want the best people you can get.

Q — Isn't there a chance that the CIA will start off their domestic spying with the best of intentions, but as they get more and more power they could turn the country into a police state?

A — It couldn't happen. The CIA is monitored by a Senate Watchdog Committee, and nobody in the CIA would ever lie to a United States senator.

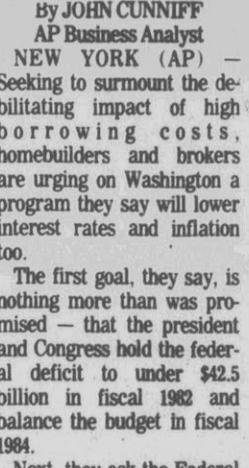

Q — Will the press be allowed to report on what the CIA is up to in this country?

A — Not if Congress passes its new American Official Secrets Act. You can't have a first-class domestic intelligence operation if the media are going to write about it.

Q — Then who protects us from our own Secret Service?

A — That's like asking who protects Soviet citizens from the KGB?

ART BUCHWALD

Q — Doesn't the CIA have enough to do gathering intelligence abroad without bugging Americans?

A — You would think so, but most intelligence organizations know if they can operate in their own country they can justify a much larger budget.

Q — Will the CIA be able to break into your home under the new guidelines?

A — Not legally. But no one is going to make a big deal of it if an agency does so without getting an official okay.

Q — What's the worst that could happen to a CIA person who oversteps his authority?

A — He would be asked to resign, and then get a job working for Colonel Kadafi.

Q — I thought the FBI was in charge of catching spies in the United States. Why is the CIA getting into the act?

A — Because there are a lot of bag jobs FBI agents are no longer permitted to do. Since the CIA is not interested in prosecuting anyone, they can justify almost anything in the name of national security.

Q — What's to prevent the CIA from working with the Mafia or hiring Cuban gangsters to do their dirty work for them?

A — Nothing really, when you're doing a covert job, you want the best people you can get.

Q — Isn't there a chance that the CIA will start off their domestic spying with the best of intentions, but as they get more and more power they could turn the country into a police state?

A — It couldn't happen. The CIA is monitored by a Senate Watchdog Committee, and nobody in the CIA would ever lie to a United States senator.

Speaking Of The Ghost

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN AP Special Correspondent RIDGEFIELD, Conn. (AP) — Do I believe in ghosts?

Hmmmm. To repeat: Hmmmm.

Well, seeing as how I live across from a graveyard and up the road from what is reputed to be a haunted house and have an Irish born wife who professes to read tea leaves, I try to keep an open mind on the subject.

I have never seen any ectoplasmic blobs hovering over our tiny cemetery, which has tombstones dating to the Revolution, although around Halloween some hobgoblins from the high school do mimic the sheeted dead and squeak and gibber at passers-by on the road at night.

The haunted house has the standard wrought iron fence and gloomy mansard roof that you see in Charles Adams cartoons. However, it has always kept to its own private haunts as I hurried by on nights when the moon was full and the wind a torrent in the trees.

Old-timers in the neighborhood tell strange tales about the place. They say everyone who ever lives there sooner or later upon a midnight dreary hears the clop of horses' hoofs and the crunch of carriage wheels in the gravel driveway, although the old carriage house hasn't had a non-combustion occupant since Henry Ford introduced the Model A. And that was right after a young serving girl was decapitated in a buggy accident.

They say whenever the menfolk living in that house go up to the second floor, the bedroom and bathroom doors open automatically, while the frazier sex has to yank hard on the doorknobs.

Of course those who don't give a rap about ghosts say that's all nonsense, like the reports you sometimes hear of young girl's head appearing in the attic window of the long ago boarded up servants quarters. That face has never frowned down at me. So far.

In my career as a newspaper reporter, I have had to spook out several ghost stories.

I had occasion a few years back to spend a night in a house in Seaford, N.Y., where strange things were allegedly happening in the early watches of the night, like bottles exploding off shelves, dishes tumbling out of closets and heavy pieces of furniture moving about without benefit of human hands. These nocturnal disturbances antedated the Amityville horror.

The family wound up calling in the police, some atomic scientists and a specialist in psychic phenomena from Duke University to determine whether the cause was a local prankster, an underground river, energy emanating from the Brookhaven laboratories or a demon in possession of their prepubescent son. They never did find out, but during the investigation a large, round detective from the Nassau County Police and I elected to spend an entire night in that house waiting for those bottles to bounce or whatever.

After the family retired to bed, we maintained an alert, silent vigil in the living room, broken only by the hissing of logs in the fireplace and the ticking of the high grandfather clock. Just before midnight, the detective sergeant broke the spell by blurting out, "Hey, why don't we call up for a pizza before they close?"

Now it is a scientific fact, supported by numerous case histories, that a pepperoni and anchovy pizza, garnished with onions and green peppers, will induce nightmares, but we came up with a blank. Nothing shook the house that night beyond the officer's thunderous belches, which must have registered 3 on the Richter scale.

In Ireland, I once journeyed up into the glens of Antrim to hear a Sunday sermon on the Ulster situation by the Rev. Ian Paisley. My taxi driver that rainy morning was a pookish wizened man in a tweed cloth

Strength For Today

ENDURE IN HOPE

Jesus said on one occasion, "I have overcome the world". Also, in the First Epistle of John we find the declaration, "Whosoever is born of God overcometh the world."

When problems begin to pile up around us, when troubles arise which threaten to overwhelm us, when sorrow strikes us down, when disappointment blinds us and leaves us bleeding at the roadside — this is the time for us to remember that we live in a world in which there is rescue. Just as am-balances are always ready to go to the scene of disaster, gather up the victims and take them to a place where they will be cared for and cured, so the love of God is waiting at all times to rescue us from trouble.

It is not always easy to believe this, but we should with confidence thrust the doubt aside. The word "overcome" looms large on the pages of the Bible. "Be of good cheer, I have overcome the world." That should be a very welcome and a very sufficient assurance. — Elisha Douglass

To the editor:

Congratulations to the Daily Reflector Hotline investigator for the fine job done getting information about organizations working to prevent nuclear war. Mrs. C.P.'s concerns were valid.

I am a member of the Greenville Peace Committee. We are a group of concerned Greenville citizens who come together weekly to discuss issues concerning peace and justice.

Obviously two of our major concerns are nuclear weapons proliferation and the renewed arms race. Currently the Reagan Administration is proposing multi-billion dollar increases for nuclear buildup. The M-X missile, B-1 Bomber, and neutron bomb are currently under consideration and appear likely to win approval.

The key question for me is: Does this continued buildup actually provide us with greater security? I believe the answer is a clear NO! Increased buildup can only bring up closer to nuclear holocaust.

This week has been declared "United Nations World Disarmament Week." At this time all citizens of the world should consider this issue and work for ways to make our world a safer place to live.

Education to increase our awareness of the nuclear weapons issue is a good way to begin. Then we can get involved with other people in a citizens' movement to oppose this insanity.

A clear example of this kind of action is now taking place in numerous Western European cities. We, as concerned citizens, can make a difference.

Patrick O'Neill 403 Contentnea St. Greenville

To the editor:

I have read and watched the recent news concerning Sen. Jesse A. Helms' political organization, the National Congressional Club, with growing dismay. It seems absurd to me that a political organization would adopt a policy of silence concerning the news media. Reportedly, it's because the media won't promote their cause.

These actions bring to mind an era not too distant in our past. I remember a certain president who didn't like dealing with the press. So paranoid was he about leaks to the press and the likes, that an effective argument can be made this idiosyncrasy cost him his presidency.

I laud the media with all its faults. It has its share of problems, but at least it rarely becomes another propaganda tool for political organizations. I only hope that the National Congressional Club abandons this, what I feel is, an immature and irresponsible policy. They can not possibly expect the news media to report only their side of the story. If they don't feel they are getting a fair shake from the media, then they should work harder at doing a better job. I believe that if you do a good job, then you'll get a good story. I also believe in talking to work a problem out.

Builders', Brokers' Target

By JOHN CUNNIFF AP Business Analyst NEW YORK (AP) —

Seeking to surmount the debilitating impact of high borrowing costs, homebuilders and brokers are urging on Washington a program they say will lower interest rates and inflation too.

The first goal, they say, is nothing more than was promised — that the president and Congress hold the federal deficit to under $42.5 billion in fiscal 1982 and balance the budget in fiscal 1984.

Next, they ask the Federal Reserve Board to allow the money supply to increase at the higher end of its targets, instead of at the lower and more restrictive end of what it considers to be permissible growth.

To achieve these ends, they would favor more budget cuts if necessary, and would support delays in personal income tax cuts also.

And finally, they ask the president to appoint a non-banking, small-business person to fill the first vacancy that opens on the Federal Reserve Board, which they say does not understand small businesses.

That amounts to severe criticism of President Reagan's heavy reliance on high interest rates to curb inflation, and fears that the deficit might swell $20 billion beyond the original $42.5 billion target.

The impact of the deficit is direct, says Jack Carlson, executive vice president of the National Association of Realtors. An economist, he claims housing's portion of the money taken by government to finance the deficit is 25 percent. "For every $10 billion of deficit, $2.5 billion is taken from home mortgages," he argues.

Robert Sheehan, associate director of economic research for the National Association of Home Builders, has an equivalent statistic for the impact of high interest rates, which he sees as a consequence of deficits and extensive government borrowing. Drop interest rates just 1 percentage point from the current average of about 17, he says, and 800,000 more families would be able to qualify for home mortgage loans.

It is statistics such as these that arouse anger in the industry, and among would-be homebuyers also.

"It (government policy) is anti-housing. It is insensitive to interest rates," says Carlson. Says Louis Thompson, Jr., NAHB vice president, "We're about ready to take the gloves off."

The industry also watches warily while the administration floats trial balloons about eliminating the Federal Housing Administration insurance program and ponders limits on homeowner interest rate deductions.

But of more immediate concern is a matter on which builders and brokers seem to break rank with some lenders. Builders' and real estate brokers insist it is necessary that savings and loan associations and savings banks, traditional home mortgage lenders, remain tied to the housing industry, rather than freed to expand into other areas of finance.

The nail in housing's coffin, says the NAHB, is a bill now pending that would permit thrift institutions to use 100 percent of their assets for corporate, business or farms loans, and investments in commercial paper, corporate securities and consumer loans. Such activities are now limited by regulations to 20 percent of assets.

In effect, says the NAHB, strongly supported by the realty brokers, passage of such legislation would permit the thrifths to desert housing, whose problems in recent years have undermined their financial structure.

"It is in our self-interest to stay in housing," counters James Christian, chief economist of the U.S. League of Savings Associations. "All our expertise is in housing."

And almost all its investments. "Our big problem is that two-thirds of our loan portfolio is at fixed rates below 10 percent," said Christian. That, and the desertion of savers to the money markets.

But when savings returns, says Christian, thrifths can offset some of those below-cost loans by lending on mortgages at higher rates. He sees that day fast approaching, and looks upon it as an opportunity.

The real estate brokers, as well as the NAHB, aren't convinced. Should the proposed legislation be enacted, they have indicated, it would amount to the abandonment by the thrifths of their responsibility to housing.

Persian Gulf Carrier Force Reduced

WASHINGTON (AP) — For the first time in nearly two years the United States has only one carrier battle group in the Indian Ocean, Defense Department officials say.

Reducing the U.S. presence in the Indian Ocean area from two carrier battle groups to one was necessitated in large part by budget considerations, said the officials, who asked not to be identified. They also cited the strain placed on U.S. Navy crewmen who have been in the region for extended periods.

The change apparently had been pending for several months. Officials, however, had been reluctant to discuss it because of the Reagan administration's efforts to win Senate approval of its proposed sale of five AWACS radar planes to Saudi Arabia.

A major administration argument in favor of the AWACS sale, which was approved on a 52-48 Senate vote Wednesday, was that it was essential to strengthen Saudi Arabia's security and demonstrate U.S. resolve to safeguard its friends and its oil supplies in the Persian Gulf area.

In response to an inquiry Wednesday, the Defense Department said that "this current level does not indicate any lessening of U.S. interest, determination or resolve in the area." U.S. naval forces can be moved quickly from other areas such as the Mediterranean and Pacific into the Indian Ocean in event of a new crisis, officials said.

The only carrier now in the Indian Ocean area is the Coral Sea, which is stationed in position to cover approaches to the Persian Gulf.

Last week, the carrier America left the Indian Ocean through the Red Sea and Suez Canal and now is in the Mediterranean.

One of the factors cited as influencing the reduction in U.S. carrier strength in the Indian Ocean was modernization of the Suez Canal, which is now navigable by huge U.S. aircraft carriers such as the 80,000-ton America.

Since the canal project was completed last December carriers no longer must sail around Africa to reach the Indian Ocean but can take a relative short cut through the Suez Canal and the Red Sea.

The Carter administration had stationed two aircraft carrier battle groups in the Indian Ocean in late November 1979, following the seizure of American hostages in the U.S. Embassy in Iran. Not long afterward, the Soviet Union moved troops into Afghanistan and the Carter administration pledged to protect the Persian Gulf area from any Soviet takeover attempt.

The Indian Ocean and Persian Gulf, virtually empty of U.S. naval forces before the Iran crisis, subsequently became an area of primary U.S. concern. U.S. policy contemplated a permanent American military presence in the region and naval forces have represented that presence.

The U.S. Navy now has 25 ships in the Indian Ocean-Arabian Sea-Persian Gulf while the Soviet Union has an equal number in the region.

cap who might have stepped from the set of a John Ford movie. He said his name was Liam Rooney and we'd better have "a jar or two" before setting out, because the further north we got into Protestant country the less likely it would be to find a pub open while services were going on.

Twenty miles or so out of Belfast we passed a graveyard on the left side of the road and could see another at the top of a long hill on the right.

"This is where the ghost got into me car," said Rooney, in a nervous voice suddenly drained of humor. "She sat right where you're sitting in her green rain slicker."

"Oh, really," I said, as matter-of-factly as I could, "what did she say?"

"Say?" He rebuked me. "Surely, ghosts can't talk."

I apologized for my ignorance and he resumed: "I didn't stop for her or even slow down, but there she was suddenly in the back seat. And she was gone when I got to the top of the hill. It was a terror (which he pronounced tara). I was petrified with fear and white as a sheet, when I pulled into the first pub I could find for a restorative. Your man behind the bar looks me in the eye and says 'I can tell by your face that you've seen the lady in the green mac.'"

"I nodded, threw down a quick gargle and got the story out of him. She was a young Catholic girl who had fallen in love with the Protestant school master, who already had a wife. Rather than live apart, they carried out a suicide pact and were buried in their separate cemeteries. Every now and then, though, her spirit takes a notion to go up the road courting his."

Rooney told this with a face as straight as the three large Jameson's he coaxed out of me.

Until eternity's jury returns a verdict, I'm willing to give the spirit world the benefit of the doubt, especially on Halloween. In coping with spectral visitors, if any, I comfort myself as the poet Henry Wadsworth Longfellow advised in "The Golden Legend":

"So many ghosts and forms of fright
Have started from their graves tonight,
They have driven sleep from my eyes away.
I will go down to the chapel and pray."

fidence to do battle with Reagan on political points of difference? Or, was it the last gasp of a wheezing old machine which had all but seen its last days of glory? Will another election mean that the Solid South replaces loyal Democrats in the Congress with loyal Republicans; and will Southerners who preach conservatism and exhibit strong support for Reagan's brand of Republicanism continue to back candidates who talk their way at home, then vote the other way in Washington?

Only time will tell. Time will tell something else. It will tell what North Carolina Democrats in Congress, and what other Southern Democrats, had to promise in payment for coalition support of the tobacco program. But observers are still shaking their heads over the sight of New Right leaders like Jesse Helms and John East joining hands with urban liberals, blacks and California social activists to help the "poor dirt farmers" of North Carolina.

Cautions Trick-Or-Treaters

Greenville Police Chief Glenn Cannon today urged trick-or-treaters to begin their annual Halloween rounds early Saturday and try to finish before dark in an effort to reduce the safety hazard created by youngsters making rounds at night.

The chief suggested youngsters should stay within their neighborhood, where they are more familiar with the area and the people, and suggested that light-colored clothing be worn to make them more visible to motorists.

Cannon urged children to be especially careful while walking near streets and to stop and look both ways before crossing streets. He also said drivers should be more alert than normal and watch for children who may be walking in the street or dart into the path of oncoming traffic.

Cannon cautioned, too, about children wearing masks which might obstruct vision.

The chief said home owners should turn outside lights on. By doing so, he said more light will be available for children to see where they are going and suggested that more light would tend to prevent acts of vandalism.

Parents should go trick-or-treating with younger children, the chief said, and urged that children bring their trick-or-treat goodies home for inspection by adults before they eat any of the candy or fruit gathered on their rounds.

B-52 Bomber's Crash Killed 8

LA JUNTA, Colo. (AP) — A B-52 bomber on a training mission from California crashed on remote rangeland eight miles east of this southeastern Colorado town early today, killing all eight crew members, sheriff's deputies said.

Air Force officials did not immediately confirm the deaths or release the identities of the crew.

Staff Sgt. Ada A. Martin of Peterson Air Force Base in Colorado Springs said the plane was a B-52 on a low-altitude training mission from March Air Force Base near San Bernardino, Calif.

No weapons were aboard the intercontinental jet bomber, she said.

The Otero County Sheriff's dispatcher said a caller reported hearing an explosion at about 4:45 a.m. MST and authorities who went to the scene said wreckage was scattered over a three-quarter mile area.

Ms. Martin said crews from Peterson and the Fort Carson army installation at Colorado Springs were dispatched by helicopter to the crash site.

Air Force officials said the plane was a B-52D, the oldest version of the plane in use. The B-52D is more than 20 years old and has been scheduled for retirement by the Reagan administration.

La Junta is in extreme southeastern Colorado, about 50 miles east of Pueblo.

Sheriff's officers said there is no direct access to the crash site south of U.S. Highway 50 and investigators reported some difficulty in reaching the site by ground transportation.

Low Bidding On Airliners

MIAMI (AP) — The high bid of $2,500 was way below the sticker price, but Belize Airlines was trying to move its jetliners off the lot in a hurry, so the bidder got himself a deal.

Another jet went for $6,000 Thursday, and someone bid

$7.50 and walked off with 700 movie earphones, all individually wrapped.

With debts of about $6.5 million and 1,250 creditors, the assets of failed Belize Airlines were ordered auctioned off by the United States Bankruptcy Court.

"It's sad to see it go," said Maria Dousbedes, one of the carrier's two remaining employees.

Miami International Airport had become a used-plane lot for Belize Airline's five green-and-orange trimmed jets. The Boeing 720s had sat there for months and were missing dials, windshields, engines and noses.

The jets were bought used from United Airlines five years ago for $1 million each, but at auction they went for such bids $22,000, $9,500, $6,000 and $2,500.

But even so they were no great bargain, said Kenneth Sitomer, manager of jet operations for Air Haiti. "Nobody in their right mind would bid on those aircraft," he said.

It would cost at least $75,000 to make the best of the bunch airworthy, said Fred Wight of Aeroservice, Inc.

Fined Amount Of Extortion

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — A former state senator convicted of extortion for accepting $5,000 in exchange for advancing legislation favorable to the mobile home industry was fined that amount and sentenced to three years in prison by a federal judge.

William M. Murphy Jr.'s crime was "too serious to justify a sentence of probation alone," U.S. District Judge Walter Stapleton said Thursday. Murphy, who has served in the statehouse since 1973, had resigned his seat Wednesday.

House, Senate . . .

He and other senate leaders in effect conceded that their plan wouldn't pass the legal tests but that they couldn't pass a better one, either.

"The Justice Department, we've been informed, is going to turn it down," Royall said. "There's no use sending them another plan that's going to upset half the Senate and half the people in this state."

Sen. Harold Hardison, D-Lenoir, said the Senate expected the courts to give them clearer guidelines on drawing up a new plan. "We're just stabbing in the dark," he said. "Let's wait for some instruction."

The House committee's embarrassment came on a plan drawn up by Rep. Dan Blue, D-Wake, Blue, a freshman and one of three blacks in the House, had carefully drawn his plan and lobbied for it successfully.

But he had failed to realize his district had one House member too few, and there was no place to add the seat without upsetting the numerical balances.

"I thought the staff had counted it up," Blue said glumly.

The House and Senate plans follow the state's tradition — and a 1968 constitutional provision — that prevents the division of counties to form districts. Because counties must be considered as whole blocks, both the House and Senate plans form many large districts in which several legislators — as many as nine in the House plan — run at large from the district.

McDowell's plan, which won a 22-7 committee vote, would make a number of district changes. It combines Wake County with Johnston for an eight-seat district.

It puts heavily black Halifax County with Nash, Edgecombe, and Wilson counties. Blue and other opponents charged that move could endanger the plan in federal court because it could be viewed as diluting black voting strength in Halifax.

The plan also creates a large, five-seat district composed of seven western counties — Mitchell, Avery, Watauga, Ashe, Wilkes, Caldwell and Yadkin counties. Another six-seat district would be shaped out of Burke, Catawba, Alexander and Iredell counties. Guilford County would be combined with Rockingham and Caswell counties for a nine-member district.

The plan has a balance that would fall within the 10 percent range of population variations between districts that state attorneys have urged lawmakers to strive for. It would have a range of 9.96 percent between the largest and smallest districts per legislator — lower than the 10.3 percent of the House plan approved by the committees last week.

Has Mountain Of Popcorn

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — Hordes of trick-or-treaters will hammer on Gov. Bob List's door tonight, and he'll be ready — with 4,000 bags of popcorn.

The mountain of popcorn that List and aides will hand out at the governor's mansion was popped at a Reno hotel-casino and trucked here in big plastic bags.

Republican women's club volunteers put the popcorn in small bags and attached notes saying "Happy Halloween — Gov. and Mrs. Robert List."

"We got enough for 4,000 bags," said aide Barbara Clauson, who helped to organize the event the GOP governor inherited from former Gov. Mike O'Callaghan. The trick or treating will be in advance of the official day for celebrating Halloween, Saturday.

"It's a lot of work, but it's fun too," she said. "There must be very few states — only small ones like Nevada

Seek Refunds For Students

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Trade Commission is seeking refunds for former students of Lasalle Extension University, contending that the correspondence school failed to make clear how refunds would be calculated if they canceled a course.

In a suit filed in U.S. District Court in Chicago, the FTC said Lasalle used a "front-end loaded" method of computing students' obligations which accelerated their tuition obligations.

Budget Knife For U.S. Space Role

WASHINGTON (AP) — Science projects and space missions like those which took breathtaking pictures of the rings around Saturn and volcanoes on Mars may become extinct if administration budget cutters win their battle with the space agency.

President Reagan's budget advisers are hoping to trim nearly $2.5 billion from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's proposed budgets in the next three years.

Space officials are fighting the effort and have gained support in scientific circles and Congress.

"If the administration goes through with this plan and Congress passes it, the planetary program could be cancelled in a matter of weeks," said Carl Morrison, chairman of the American Astronomical Society's Division for Planetary Sciences. "It's really a very depressing thing."

Morrison and astronomer Carl Sagan recently wrote presidential counselor Edwin Meese, asking for a reconsideration of the science cuts.

The National Academy of Sciences also has begun a lobbying campaign in favor of scientific research in several areas threatened with cuts.

The administration considers NASA's No. 1 project, the space shuttle, almost immune to the budget ax, primarily because it has important military applications. But some flights could be eliminated or delayed to save money.

The first shuttle, Columbia, is back on its launch pad at Cape Canaveral, Fla., awaiting a planned liftoff Wednesday as the first spaceship to make a return trip to orbit.

As the 1980s began, NASA had plans for a Galileo satellite to orbit Jupiter, a huge orbiting Space Telescope, a Venus orbiter, a probe of Halley's Comet and a collaborative effort with the Western Europeans called the International Solar Polar Mission — a two-spacecraft expedition to study the sun.

Photographer Has Run Away To Hide

CINCINNATI (AP) — A 30-year-old nature photographer, who shot the pictures for the "1982 Cat Haters Calendar" to pay his debts, says he's now scared to death and heading for Florida to hide out.

The calendar featured color photographs of cats being hanged, dropped into a pan on a stove, bagged in a freezer, wrapped in foil on a grill and crammed into a toilet.

"These cats belong to my friends. I would never hurt them," said James Rybolt, who said he has been harassed by cat lovers. Rybolt said he shot the pictures to poke fun at cat lovers, not cats.

Rybolt said he took special precautions to insure none of the felines was harmed during the photographing. One black-and-white cat, pictured buried up to its neck with a croquet mallet nearby, is his pet, named Wiener.

Rybolt's attorney, Peter Edgar, announced Thursday that the $4.95 calendars have been removed from the market by Creative Photo Art of Cincinnati.

He said manufacturers of brand-name products seen in the photographs had complained, and the national American Humane Association had demanded a boycott.

"I'm scared," Rybolt said Thursday. He said he has received many telephoned death threats, and one person tried to exorcize the devil from him by mail.

Rybolt said he sold everything to finance travels to shoot wildlife photographs. He needed $15,000 to pay debts while he tries to market his wildlife portfolio, he said.

A 2-Year-Old

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — A 250-pound tiger described by her owner as "tame" is undergoing standard observation for rabies after jumping on a 2-year-old Oklahoma City child during a photo session in a downtown parkway, police say.

The child, Shawna Hill, was in stable condition Thursday night at South Community Hospital, where she was being treated for deep cuts to her face, investigators said.

"It's awful, but it's just carelessness," said John Aynes, Choctaw, who owns the tiger. "It's no one's fault."

Aynes said Shamar, the tiger, usually is a "tame, friendly cat" and probably considered the child "something to play with."

Aynes said the child probably wouldn't have been hurt if she had been kept inside a vehicle. "The baby was just too close when the tiger came out of the trailer" to be photographed, he said.

People in the photo party declined to say what the promotional engagement was for.

Brinks Bungler Is Linked Earlier Holdup Case

NEW YORK (AP) — One of the jailed suspects in the bloody Brink's truck holdup allegedly carried out by Weather Underground members and other terrorists has been linked to an earlier armored car heist in New York, according to broadcast reports.

TEETH DONATOR — Peter J. Harmatuk, right, displays a set of shark teeth to Dr. Richard Fiske, director of the Smithsonian Museum of Natural History recently. Harmatuk and his wife Mary, who are from Bridgeton, N.C., donated four cartons containing more than 500 fossil great white shark teeth to the museum. All of the teeth, running from one to six inches in length, are from the Carcharodon, the ancestor of the modern white shark, and was the biggest shark that ever lived — with a mouth large enough for a man to sit in. (AP Laserphoto)

Fingerprints of Weather Underground member David Gilbert, 37, were found at the scene of a June 2 heist in New York City and on rental papers for a van used that day when a Brink's guard was killed and robbers made off with $300,000 cash, said the reports by the CBS News and WNBC-TV.

Gilbert has been charged with murder in connection with the shoot-out during the aborted Brinks robbery two weeks ago in Nanuet, 25 miles north of New York City. Two Nyack police officers and a Brink's guard were killed. Also charged with murder were Weather Underground members Katherine Boudin and Judith Clark and Samuel Brown, who has no known political connections.

Two other people have been charged in the case.

Cynthia Boston, 33, a member of the radical Republic of New Africa group who was arrested in Mississippi and transferred to New York, is charged with conspiracy to commit robbery. Eve Rosahn, 30, of Brooklyn, is charged with criminal facilitation.

The FBI, which gathered the fingerprints of the June heist, refused comment on the broadcast reports.

Authorities are also seeking William Johnson, 33, a member of the Black Panther Party and Miss Boston's common-law husband; and Black Liberation Army members Marilyn Jean Buck, 34, and Donald Weems, 34.

The New York Times said today that the FBI and New York City police have set up a special joint task force to locate those four.

Police also have said fugitive Black Liberation Army leader Joanne Chesimard, accused of killing a police officer, also may have been involved in the attempted heist in Nanuet, N.Y.

Meanwhile, a grand jury Thursday handed up its first indictment stemming from the suburban shootout. Miss Rosahn faces arraignment today on charges of aiding in the three killings and one count of robbery. The charges carry sentences of up to 15 years in jail.

Miss Rosahn was linked to the robbery through her tan 1980 Honda which was used as a getaway car in Nanuet and also used "in the killing of two Nyack police officers," Gribetz said. The district attorney said she also rented the van used in the heist attempt.

Gribetz would not say why she was not charged with murder.

Gribetz has said that a grand jury will convene within three weeks to consider murder indictments against Miss Boudin, Miss Clark, Gilbert and Brown.

Also the New York Daily News reported today that its police sources said terrorists may have been responsible for the theft of 18 court officers' uniforms at the Queens County courthouse last month and may have planned to use them in an attempt to free James Dixon York, who is jailed there for allegedly killing a police officer.

The newspaper, which did not identify its sources, said police found drawings of the courthouse and a keymaking machine in a hideout used by radicals. York is a suspected member of the Black Liberation Army.

Sets Back Date For Migration

LA JOLLA, Calif. (AP) — A Canadian archaeologist has fueled the debate of when the first settlers appeared in North America, saying humans may have crossed the Bering Strait as long ago as 120,000 years.

"The timing of entry and subsequent spread of early peoples into the New World...is a (subject of) continuous debate," Brian Reeves of the University of Calgary acknowledged Tuesday in a paper presented at a symposium on human migration and undersea archaeology.

In a separate presentation, a Soviet scientist argued his nation's experts believe the migration could have been begun as long ago as 70,000 years.

But Reeves said evidence indicates man was on the move across the Bering Strait during an ice age more than 100,000 years ago. Earlier, he said, the ice age sucked up water from the sea, creating ice bridges and dry areas.

As many as 120,000 years ago, he said, man could have moved southward into North America through at least four corridors.

A generally accepted theory has been that man entered the Americas across the Bering Strait about 13,000 years ago, but possibly as long as 25,000 years ago.

Dikov Nikolai Nikolayevich of the Soviet Union's Scientific Research Institute said studies from his side of the Bering Strait indicate the human occupation of Beringia may have occurred in stages.

He said the stages were 70,000 to 50,000 years ago, from 27,000 to 10,000 years ago, and from 14,000 to 13,000 years ago. He gave no dates for a fourth, more recent stage.

The tools used by these ancient people uncovered on the Kamchatka Peninsula of Siberia resemble those found at sites in the northwestern United States and even those of the San Dieguito Indians of the Southwest, Nikolayevich said.

David Hopkins of the U.S. Geological Survey in Menlo Park, Calif., said he believed "the Bering land bridge was probably in existence during most of the period between 80,000 and 14,000 (years) before present."

Scripps Institute of Oceanography is hosting the four-day symposium on human migration and undersea archaeology.

Disease Center Faces Layoffs

ATLANTA (AP) — The nation's main agency for combating disease in this country is facing layoffs of up to 780 workers over the next few months, its director says.

Because of federal budget belt-tightening, the national Centers for Disease Control will lose about $16.5 million in operating funds this year, Dr. William Foege said Wednesday.

Spokesman Don Berreth says some of the 350 to 780 layoffs will occur at CDC headquarters in Atlanta, where half of the agency's 4,000 workers are employed.

GOSPEL SINGING

Third 'Agreement' On Czech Gold Payment

By STEPHEN H. MILLER
 Associated Press Writer
 PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) — Negotiators have worked out the third proposed agreement since 1964 to pay Czechoslovakia for 18.4 tons of gold stolen by the Nazis and recaptured by the Allies during World War II, the Czechoslovak news agency CTK reported today.

Prague confirmed that a new agreement has been largely worked out but said minor details were still being touched up and the document had not been initialed.

American officials, who spoke to a reporter on grounds that their names not be used, said they hoped to get an initialed agreement to Washington in time for legislative action before the end of the current congressional session, expected in four to six weeks.

The gold is worth approximately $250 million at today's market price of about $426 an ounce.

Congress, which must approve the agreement, torpedoed two previous accords initialed in Prague in 1964 and 1974 pending settlement of American claims for an estimated $105 million — including more than $41 million in interest — for property nationalized after the communists took power.

Congressional opponents of the earlier agreements claimed they were too generous to Czechoslovakia.

U.S. officials in Prague indicated the proposed new payment would be substantially higher than the 42 cents on the dollar figure rejected by the U.S. Senate in 1974. The size of the payment and details of the agreement were not disclosed immediately.

"Recently, an agreement was reached with the American government," Vasil Bilak, secretary of the Communist Party Central Committee, told a committee meeting in Prague this week, CTK reported.

"However, in view of the preceding negative experiences it is difficult to predict what attitudes will be taken toward the agreement by the American Congress," Bilak was quoted as saying.

The dispute has chilled American-Czechoslovak relations for three decades.

The gold is the Czechoslovak share of coins and bullion that the Nazis looted from several European nations and the Allies recovered at the end of the war.

It has been held since then by a tripartite commission made up of the United States, Britain and France, with 10 tons stored by the Bank of England and the remainder at the Federal Reserve Bank in New York.

Judges Elected New President

WASHINGTON (AP) — A national association of about 1,600 state and local judges has elected a new president after a reprimanded Florida judge set to assume the post stepped aside.
 Judge Dick C.P. Lantz of Dade County, Fla., said in a letter to the board of governors of the American Judges Association: "I am afraid press reports in the past few days have made it difficult for me to serve as your president."
 In July 1980, the Florida Supreme Court reprimanded Lantz for misbehavior as a judge. Lantz pleaded guilty to some of 13 charges of misconduct and no contest to others.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

ALTHOUGH SOLOMON'S FAME AS A WISE KING IS NOTED IN THE BIBLE, LITTLE HAS BEEN SAID OF HIS NEIGHBOR TO THE SOUTH—THE QUEEN OF SHEBA. THIS YOUNG WOMAN, RULER OF WHAT TODAY IS THE MOST SOUTHERN POINT OF SAUDI ARABIA, HAD TO BE AS EQUALLY SMART AS HER MORE FAMOUS NORTHERN COUNTERPART. THOUGH MISTRESS OF A RICH COUNTRY HERSELF (CALLED YEMEN TODAY, THE LAND WAS A CROSSROADS OF MANY IMPORTANT TRADE ROUTES TO THE EAST, THUS SHEBA DID PROFIT IMMENSELY) SHE COULDN'T HELP BUT BE IMPRESSED BY THE TALES OF SOLOMON'S TREMENDOUS WEALTH AND THE ABSOLUTE LUXURY OF HIS PALACE... SO SHE ADORNED HER STRANGE DARK BEAUTY WITH HER FINEST GARMENTS AND SET OFF TO VISIT SOLOMON IN THE NORTH.

NOW, IT SHOULD BE QUITE OBVIOUS THAT SHEBA'S VISIT WASN'T JUST TO VIEW SOLOMON'S MAGNIFICENCE—FOR THE TRIP ITSELF HAD TO TAKE THE BETTER PART OF THREE YEARS—AND SHE WENT WITH A GREAT TRAIN OF CAMELS LOADED WITH GIFTS, SPICES, PRECIOUS STONES, PEARLS, ONE HUNDRED AND TWENTY TALENTS OF GOLD (ABOUT $185,000). THIS YOUNG QUEEN WAS "LOADED FOR BEAR" AS THE SAYING GOES—AND SHE GOT IT!

NEXT WEEK: WASTED STRENGTH!

35

ONCE AT SOLOMON'S COURT, THE QUEEN OF SHEBA "OOHED AND AHHEED" AT EVERYTHING SHE SAW AND HEARD! SOLOMON'S HEAD HAD TO BE SWIMMING FROM ALL THE VERBOSE FLATTERY WITH WHICH SHE DELUGED HIM. AND SOLOMON, CERTAINLY A LADIES MAN BY REPUTATION, SEEMS TO HAVE SUCCEumbed TO HER SUBTLE CAMPAIGN—AT LEAST THE RECENT LATE EMPEROR OF ETHIOPIA, HAILE SELASSIE, THOUGHT SO—FOR HE TRACED HIS OWN LINEAGE BACK TO MENELIK, SUPPOSED OFFSPRING OF THE ROYAL COUPLE'S "CONFERENCES". HOWBEIT, WHEN SHEBA LEFT, SHE TOOK BACK TO HER OWN COUNTRY IMPORTANT TRADE AGREEMENTS, PROFITABLE TO HER FOR YEARS TO COME, FOR, IN THE WORDS OF THE BIBLE... "AND KING SOLOMON GAVE UNTO THE QUEEN OF SHEBA ALL HER DESIRE, WHATSOEVER SHE ASKED..." SMART LITTLE LADY!

Thousands Of Victims Due Influenza Pandemic

By Dr. H.G. JONES
For The Associated Press
CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — It should have been a happy time. The great world war was almost over, and soon the soldiers would be returning home.

Instead, the month of October 1918 brought immeasurable tragedy to North Carolina, and the fact that many parts of the world suffered even more provided no comfort to Tar Heels.

In the 31 days of that month, 6,056 North Carolinians died in the greatest influenza pandemic in history. By the end of the following year, the toll reached 13,644.

Hardly a community escaped the flu for which no vaccine or cure had been devised. Whole families came down with the disease, with no member able to care for the others. The virulent disease often turned into deadly pneumonia.

Among the hardest hit towns was Fayetteville, near where Camp Bragg was being built and many construction workers were temporarily based. When the itinerant workers became ill, they often lay in their rented rooms with no one to wait on them.

Heroes and heroines were legion. In Raleigh young Elizabeth Riddick tenderly cared for State College students until she herself succumbed. At Chapel Hill, Dr. W. deB. MacNider directed efforts to treat 500 university students until he too became ill. The popular university president, Edward Kidder Graham, died from pneumonia which followed influenza.

At Durham an estimated 500 black and white women risked their lives for $15 per week to attend to the sick. A local judge ordered the state revenue department to release large quantities of confiscated moonshine for use by the victims.

A Miss Wood in Wilmington organized a block system for providing as much aid and comfort as possible to the sick in that port town, one of the most severely hit communities in North Carolina.

At Clarkton two young friends became ill together, died the same day and were taken to their graves in the same hearse. After the funeral their families became ill.

Hospitals were filled. The ill were admitted in one side of the building and bodies were sent to the morgue from the other. Public buildings and college dormitories were turned into make-shift hospitals.

But the influenza germs hit the strong as well as the weak, and doctors and nurses were not immune. Virtually all of the medical personnel in Fayetteville became ill.

Little was known about the cause, prevention and cure of influenza in 1918, but it was easily spread. Consequently, schools, churches, mills and theaters were closed and annual meetings of organizations such as the North Carolina Literary and Historical Association and the King's Daughters were cancelled.

In Winston, town officials ordered that all funerals be private. Public gatherings were prohibited.

The epidemic in the fall of 1918 followed an earlier but milder outbreak the previous spring and preceded a third (also milder) one the following year. It started in western Europe and was referred to as Spanish influenza or "le grippe."

The absence of medical knowledge to prevent or cure it allowed the disease to spread like wildfire around the world. By the time it ran its course, about 20 million people had died.

In the United States, Philadelphia was especially hard hit. There the death rate was 95 per 1,000 people.

The tragedy had a positive side in North Carolina, for the General Assembly the next year passed several laws relating to conditions that were believed to have contributed to spreading the disease. These included an act to require adequate sanitary equipment in public schools and another to encourage elimination of insanitary privies.

Two Events At Wahl-Coates

Two festive events are to take place at Wahl-Coates Laboratory School on Saturday.

The annual Halloween Carnival gets under way at 11 a.m. There is no general admission charge but there will be a minimum charge for participating in various games and attractions.

At 2:30 p.m. all sixth grades at Wahl-Coates will perform a creative dramatic production directed by Steve Myott. The production, "Wahl-Coates Circus," features a variety of creatures in action, with the characters garbed in costumes designed and made by the students with the assistance of Myott. There is no charge for this carnival, and the public is invited to attend.

Pirates Go After Last 'Upset' Chance

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

East Carolina's Pirates, banged up from the last couple of ballgames, try to patch things up enough to pull off that upset they've been looking for all season long. Saturday, the Pirates face the University of West Virginia in Morgantown, W. Va., with a 1:30 p.m. kickoff.

The Mountaineers bring a 5-2 record into the game, having lost only to Pittsburgh (ranked #2) and Penn State (ranked #1). The loss to the Panthers was by 17-0 on Mountaineer Field, while the Penn State loss came on the road, 30-7, this past Saturday.

West Virginia has recorded victories over Virginia, 32-18; Maryland, 17-13; Colorado State, 49-3; Boston College, 38-10; and Virginia Tech, 26-7.

East Carolina, meanwhile, is only 4-4, having lost last weekend to the University of Miami, 31-6, as the offense found little punch against the tough Hurricanes.

And the injury list has been growing for the Pirates. Coach Ed Emory announced Wednesday that Jeff Pegues, backup to defensive end Mike Davis, is out for the rest of the season with a knee sprain, and that Ricky Nichols, the fleet wide receiver, has a sprained ankle, and is doubtful. Harold Blue, hurt against Southwestern Louisiana, will probably continue sidelined for the game, and running back Leon Lawson, quarterback Carlton Nelson, offensive guard Bud LaCock, receiver John Felton and running back Mill Corsey are all nursing various other injuries and may not be healthy for the game.

Nelson's availability could be the most crucial, and Emory announced that Villanova transfer Kevin Ingram would get the starting nod should Nelson not be ready to play.

"Defensively, except for Pegues, we are pretty healthy," Emory noted. It has been the defense that has led the Pirates in most of the recent games, especially against Richmond and Miami.

The offensive line, also except for LaCock, appears to be in good shape.

"West Virginia is the same caliber team as North Carolina and Miami," Emory said. "They might not be as good overall, but they are the type of team that will beat you worse if they get on top of you. They are the type of team that can make things happen quickly."

Led by quarterback Oliver Luck, the Mountaineers have shown the ability to move the ball well. Luck has connected on 120 of 226 pass attempts, with just seven interceptions, for 1,409 yards and 10 touchdowns. He's averaging 201.3 yards a game passing.

His chief targets have been tight end Mark Raugh, pulling in 34 for 322 yards and one touchdown, while wide receiver Rich Hollins has caught 28 for 576 yards and six scores.

Tailback Curin Beck is the leading rusher with 290 yards on 77 carries, while alternate King Harvey has 177 yards on 58 trips. Fullback Damon Beasley is next with 161 yards on 31 carries.

Overall, the Mountaineers have rushed for only 133.7 yards a game, while passing for 212.0.

Defensively, however, they have given up only 143.2 yards rushing and 108.3 passing.

"They have a great, great quarterback in Luck," Emory said. "Someone told me the other day: good luck!, but I'm hoping that Luck won't be so good. Although they don't run that much, they have fine backs. Their tight end is an excellent receiver, and they have a big, good offensive line."

Emory feels the Mountaineer defense is a good one too. "They swarm all over you. They blitz and move around a lot. They're not as big as Miami, but they'll send everything at you but the kitchen sink. They really could go 9-2 this year and go to a bowl game."

The Mountaineers also have a good kicking game as witnessed by the fact that their leading scorer is kicker Murat Turcan, who has 36 points on 21 of 21 PATs and five of 12 field goals, the longest of 46 yards.

Defensively, outside linebacker Darryl Talley is the leading tackler with 83, followed by inside linebacker Dennis Fowlkes with 73.

The defense has also picked off 15 passes, at least one in every game this year.

"We feel if we get great play from the defense and some pass protection on offense with some more movement off the football, we have the chance of an upset," Emory said. "This is our last chance for a big upset this year, and we close out with two must wins if we are to have a winning season. We have to do all we can for the upset. We could really use a big, big win Saturday."

With the injuries, Emory said he expected to see Bubba Bunn, Jimmy Walden and Stefan Adams to see quite a bit of work in the backfield. Walden is the most experienced on the freshmen running backs, having rushed 32 times for 138 yards. Adams has only one carry, and Bunn has yet to see the ball in a varsity contest.

The game is the final road appearance for the Pirates, who close out their season the next two weeks with East Tennessee State and William & Mary.

Important Weekend For ACC Teams

By TOM FOREMAN Jr.
Associated Press Writer

The schedule makers may not have known it before the start of the 1981 Atlantic Coast Conference football season, but this weekend's action will do much to decide just who this year's champion will be.

Third-ranked Clemson, ninth-ranked North Carolina and unranked Maryland are all undefeated in conference action. However, a loss by any of the three Saturday and hopes of an ACC title can be put on the shelf until next summer.

The Tar Heels and the Terrapins clash in College Park Saturday, while the Tigers take on Wake Forest in Death Valley.

In other ACC games Saturday, Duke is at Georgia Tech, Virginia Military travels to Virginia and North Carolina State faces another grueling test in South Carolina.

WAKE FOREST
AT CLEMSON

Demon Deacon quarterback Gary Schofield has completed 73 of 108 passes in the last two games for 877 yards and five touchdowns. But his splurge may come to an abrupt end against the conference's stingiest defense.

Wake Forest has no ground game to mention, ranking last in the ACC in rushing offense with an average of 73 yards per contest. Thus, the hopes of the Deacons are on the arm of Schofield.

The Tigers have plenty of weapons to choose from, not least of which is quarterback Homer Jordan.

Jordan is second to Schofield in total offense and is second in passing efficiency. Cliff Austin has gained 541 yards from his fullback position, while wide receiver Perry Tuttle has snagged 24 passes for three touchdowns.

Clemson, although second in defense against the run, is fourth in passing defense, something that might help coach Al Groh's team in Death Valley.

NORTH CAROLINA
AT MARYLAND

The Tar Heels are one-half game behind, both Maryland and Clemson must win to stay alive in its fight to successfully defend its 1980 title.

Of course, finding able bodies for the clash with the Terrapins will in itself be no easy task. The nation's most proficient scoring offense is hoping to have tailback Tyrone Anthony and quarterback Rod Elkins available for duty tomorrow. Otherwise, the responsibilities fall on Bobby Radliff and Scott Stankavage, respectively.

North Carolina is the master of its own fate. A victory Saturday sets up the showdown with the Tigers in Chapel Hill next weekend.

Maryland's starting lineup is also full of question marks. Quarterback Boomer Esiason was injured in the Duke victory and his status is uncertain. Tailback Charlie Wysocki enjoyed good health for a week against the Blue Devils and rushed for 143 yards.

However, if Esiason cannot perform, Bob Milkovich will take over.

Should Maryland win, there's a Nov. 14 meeting with Clemson which may settle the issue.

NORTH CAROLINA STATE
AT SOUTH CAROLINA

The Gamecocks shocked the Southern portion of the football world last weekend in its total dismantling of North Carolina. The victory was apparently enough to convince ABC-TV to return to Columbia for its second visit of the season.

When television cameras were last positioned in Williams-Bryce Stadium, South Carolina took a 42-24 licking from Pittsburgh. But the Gamecocks have turned things around since then and moved their record up to 5-3. Quarterback Gordon Beckham is the key to the attack, having completed 16 of 17 against the Tar Heels.

N.C. State would like to snap a two-game losing streak, but Columbia is not the best place to start. While the defense has risen up to stymie North Carolina and Clemson, the offense has been mired in mistakes.

Freshman tailback Joe McIntosh and junior quarterback Tol Avery have provided almost 1,600 yards of offense to the Wolfpack en route to a 4-3 record. However, the offense will have to catch up with the defense to keep the game close.

DUKE AT GEORGIA TECH

The Blue Devils, enjoying their best season in some time, will look to get back to the .500 plateau in Grant Field.

Duke will have a healthy Ben Bennett to lead them. Bennett completed 31 of 46 passes against Maryland for 397 yards. Mike Grayson and Greg Boone have been respectable as runners, but not enough to allow a balanced attack.

While Red Wilson has the luxury of his first-team quarterback, Yellow Jacket head coach Bill Curry is down to his final two signal-callers.

One of them is Stu Rogers, the same man who started in a losing effort against the Blue Devils last year. After Rogers is converted tight end Ken Whisenhunt.

VMI AT VIRGINIA

An in-state rivalry always stirs the blood, and Saturday's Keydet-Cavalier contest may be just the tonic coach Dick Bestwick needs for his battle-weary troops.

The Cavaliers are a dismal 0-7, while VMI boasts a 5-0 record. Knocking off an unbeaten team may help ease the pain of a campaign marked with injuries to key personnel.

But VMI's inspiration is its annual battle against the ACC. Saturday is a chance for them to avenge a loss suffered in 1979, the last time the two teams met.

Coach Bob Thalman can always rely on tailback Floyd Allen, but Thalman has been surprised by the play of quarterback Kelly Raber.

Raber is third in the Southern Conference in total offense and second in passing efficiency.

Tigers' Duffy Is Champ; Rampettes Qualify Two

WILSON — Top-seeded Theresa Duffy of Williamston captured the individual title in the Northeastern Tennis Sectional yesterday, while Rose and Edenton shared the team title. Duffy beat out Rose High's Pauline Bearden, seeded sixth, to take the individual crown, 6-0, 6-3.

Rose and Edenton finished tied for the team title, both scoring 34 points, while Williamston was third with 21.

Duffy, along with Rose High School's Bearden and Lou Taft, and all others who won in quarterfinal matches, advance to next Wednesday and Thursday's Eastern Regionals, to be held in Goldsboro.

Duffy defeated Fike's Cathy Page, 6-0, 6-1, then defeated Patricia Ashley of Edenton in the semifinals, 6-7, 6-4, 6-3.

Bearden won her way into the finals by downing Susan Smith of Fike, 6-3, 6-4, in the quarterfinals, and then beating teammate Taft, 6-1, 5-7, 6-3, in the semifinals.

Taft, who was seeded second in the tournament, beat Kathy Coward of Eastern Wayne, 6-4, 6-2, to advance to the semifinals and gain a regional berth.

Throughout the tournament, Duffy, who did not reach the regionals last year, had a fairly easy time, extended to three sets only once. Aside from that, no one won more than four games against her in a single set.

Duffy, who transferred to Williamston from New York when she was in the eighth grade, did not participate in the sport until her sophomore year. She won the Northeastern Conference title the last two years in singles competition.

During the regular season, Duffy amassed a 12-2 record, losing once to Ashley and once to Dee Edwards of Tarboro. She also beat them once during the regular season, and beat Edwards, 6-4, 6-1, in the league tournament finals.

The only other area players to reach the quarterfinals were the Rose doubles team of Belinda Haselrig and Janet Mizelle, who lost in that round, 6-2, 6-3, to Harless and Hornthal of Edenton.

Luck Rewriting Pass Records At W. Va.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. (AP) — When Oliver Luck completes his final season as West Virginia University's quarterback sometime later this year, it's likely his name will remain in the Mountaineer record book for some time to come.

Luck, a senior from Cleveland, Ohio, has broken just about every WVU career passing record, and still has at least four more games to go — and possibly five, if the Mountaineers (5-2) should make it to a post-season bowl game.

Last week, in a 30-7 WVU loss to Penn State, Luck broke school records for career completions with 360, breaking the record of 348 previously held by Dan Kendra, and for touchdown responsibility with 47. The previous mark was 46, also set by Kendra, who played from 1974-77.

So far this season, Luck — despite an ankle injury which bothered him in several games — has set school records for most touchdown passes, total offense, passes attempted and total offensive plays.

"Oliver Luck is just a great quarterback ... one of the finest players in America," says West Virginia Coach Don Nehlen.

This season, Luck, an academic All-American, has completed 120 of 226 passing attempts for 1,409 yards and 10 touchdowns and has accounted for 1,421 yards in total offense.

For his career, Luck is 360 of 743 passing for 4,726 yards and 37 touchdowns and has accounted for 5,106 yards in total offense.

Luck hopes to pad his records Saturday when West Virginia bids for its sixth victory in eight games by hosting 44 record East Carolina. A win by the Mountaineers would assure them of their best record since 1975 and would also match their total victory total of a year ago, when they finished 6-6 in their first season under Nehlen.

While East Carolina has a 4-4 record, coach Ed Emory's Pirates have had trouble beating the better teams on their schedule. While they own victories over Western Carolina, Toledo, Richmond and Southwestern Louisiana, they have lost to all of the major college opponents they have played — North Carolina, North Carolina State, Duke and Miami (Fla.)

West Virginia defensive back Tim Agee, who has played well this season and has been one of the surprises on the Mountaineers' nationally ranked defense, will play Saturday despite a broken hand. He has practiced with the hand in a cast this week and will play with a heavy protective wrap on the hand.

Nehlen also says that fullback Dane Conwell, who has missed the last three games with a bruised knee, is expected to play Saturday. However, the Mountaineers remain at less than full strength at defensive tackle, where Todd Campbell and Rich Walters are the only healthy players. Calvin Turner, Chuck Harris and Dale Rusesky continue to be sidelined with injuries.

Last week, the race tightened up again, and we find two tied for first, with three right behind them tied for third one game off the pace.

This writer turned in a 10-3 week and pulled even with Tom Baines for the season. We both now have 71-24 records.

Rick Scoppe, Vicky Spivey and the guest are all knotted with 70-25 records, after Etha Lesley, our former panelist who was guesting last week, came up with just eight of the 13 right.

Joe Jenkins, of course, brings up the rear with a 58-37 record.

Our guest for this week's picks is the interim coach at Rose High School, Ronald Vincent, and we expect to get the other new coaches in the county to follow him before the season is over. Of course, Ronald is handicapped by having to pick Rose, but he's done a pretty good job there so far.

Our high school picks last week turned out with a poor 4-2 record, which brings us to 42-14 on the season.

The season begins to wind down this weekend, as Farmville Central becomes the first to fold its tents and fade into the sunset. The Jaguars close out the year by traveling to Greene Central. Now this could turn out to be some kind of a game. Both teams lost heartbreakers last week, the Jaguars to Southern Nash, and the Rams to Charles B. Aycock. Greene Central has the home field advantage, but Farmville will be out to close on a winning note. We're going to pick the

Peele	Scoppe	Baines	Jenkins	Spivey	Vincent

Jaguars just for that reason. But it should be a fine game.

West Craven visits Conley as the Vikings try for two in a row. After their win over North Lenoir last week, they still have a chance at a playoff berth, but must win these last two. Sorry, Charlie! We must go with the Eagles to win this one.

Ayden-Grifton plays host to Southern Nash in another important ECC game. The Chargers are in line for the playoffs, too, but must win these last two to make it, so it would appear. Ayden-Grifton warmed up for the last two conference games with a little non-conference action last week, while Southern Nash struggled to hold off Farmville. We look for Ayden-Grifton to win this one.

Elsewhere, we look for Roanoke Rapids to nip Roanoke, and Williamston to down Washington.

Turning to the panel, we see Rose hosting Wilson Hunt in a game that the Rampants could use as a springboard into the playoffs. The Warriors, of course, will be trying to upset the Rampants and slow their progress. But the panel is solid here, going for Rose down the line, 6-0.

East Carolina travels to face West Virginia in the last chance the Pirates have for a major upset. East Carolina must find some offensive punch if its wants that upset, however, and the panel just doesn't see it coming. Here, too, the panel goes down the line with the Mountaineers, 6-0.

The rest of our picks go like this: Clemson over Wake Forest, Maryland over North Carolina; Virginia over VMI; Southern California over Washington State; Notre Dame over Navy; Duke over Georgia Tech; South Carolina over N.C. State; Alabama over Mississippi State; Ohio State over Purdue; and Auburn-Florida, a toss-up.

Phillies Are Sold: Free Agency, Salaries, Strikes Are Reasons

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Bill Giles, who heads a group which purchased the Philadelphia Phillies, was in Arizona today for a special meeting at which he says owners will try to restore some sanity to the contracts of major league baseball players.

The sale of the Phillies, for a record price of $30.175 million, was announced at a news conference Thursday by former owner Ruly Carpenter, whose family purchased the National League team in 1943 for approximately $500,000.

Giles said his three main goals were to have the Phillies be declared "team of the decade" in 1991, to win the World Series every year and to draw three million fans every season.

Carpenter said he loved the game, but couldn't live with free agency, its escalating salaries and the continual scrapes with the Major League Players Association.

"I have not enjoyed what I've seen happening in this grand old game the past five or six years," said the 41-year-old Carpenter, who succeeded his father Bob as president of the team in 1972. "That's primarily the reason I'm selling."

Carpenter probably will remain in the organization as an unsalaried adviser in his favorite fields, scouting and player development.

Giles, who is the general partner of the group and in complete charge of team operations, spoke of the meeting in Phoenix, Ariz., in hopeful terms.

The purpose of the special meeting was to discuss mutual problems facing baseball and its future, he said.

"I agree with Ruly that some of the ownership has gone haywire in salaries," Giles said. "In fact the meeting...is going to address that subject primarily. I think enough clubs now have been burned with giving too many free agents too much money, and hopefully we have learned a lesson."

"I really feel deep in my heart that there is going to be some sanity put into the contracts of major league baseball players. I don't think I would have tried to convince these people (his group) to put in $30 million if I didn't believe that there was going to be sanity reigning in the future."

The limited partners who put up the big money were:

—Taft Broadcasting Co. of Cincinnati, which picked up most of the tab and in two years obtains the Phillies' television rights now held here by a rival station.

—John Drew Betz and Robert D. Hedberg, who are in industrial water treatment and related specialty chemicals.

—Three brothers, Alexander K. Buck, James Mahlon Buck Jr., and William Clifton Buck, executive officers of private venture capital investment companies.

—Fitz Eugene Dixon Jr., who recently sold the Philadelphia 76ers basketball team, and has at one time or another owned an interest in the Philadelphia Flyers hockey team, the Philadelphia Eagles football team and the Phillies long before the Carpenters became involved.

—Rochelle Levy, wife of Robert P. Levy, owner of the Atlantic City Racing Association.

Taft reportedly put up in excess of $13 million, but none of the partners own as much as 50 percent of the stock.

The deal is subject to completion of final documents and league approval, expected at the Winter baseball meetings in Hollywood, Fla., the second week in December.

Giles said the structure of the team's organization would remain essentially the same. However, he did announce three changes.

Paul Owens, vice president and director of player personnel, will become vice president and general manager.

Dave Montgomery, who had been the team's director of sales, will assume Giles' position as executive vice president.

And Larry Shenk, who had been the team's publicity director, will become vice president and director of public relations.

Cubs Lose; EBA, Cox Take Wins

WILSON — Wilson Hunt High School's junior varsity squeezed out a 6-0 victory over the Rose High School Cubs yesterday.

The defensive struggle climaxed when Hunt scored on a short pass. Rose, which offered several threats, was unable to punch the ball into the end zone.

The loss dropped Rose to 6-3 on the season, while Hunt remains unbeaten on the season.

The Rampant Cubs close out their season on Thursday, hosting Northeastern.

Los Angeles Celebrates, But It Could Turn Into A Last Hurrah

NEW YORK (AP) — The Los Angeles Dodgers, survivors of baseball's longest season, celebrated their world championship with a parade in their city today.

But it could be the last hurrah for the team which ended years of frustration by defeating the New York Yankees in six games to win the World Series.

There are rumblings that despite their championship, the Dodgers brass could be ready to begin breaking up this veteran team, which has been intact for so long. Of the nine Dodger starters in the final game of the Series, only one, Pedro Guerrero, was under the age of 30.

That had a lot to do with the emotion the veterans felt at finally winning the world championship which had eluded them for so long.

"We were tired of losing to these guys," said catcher Steve Yeager, who shared the Series most valuable player award with Guerrero and third baseman Ron Cey. "We were beaten in 1977 and 1978 and we felt our time had come."

First baseman Steve Garvey sounded a little wistful about the possibility that this cast of Dodgers may not all be back when spring training begins next year.

"As the song says, 'It's not for me to say,'" he began. "This is certainly the end of a very sentimental journey. Our infield that has played together so long may not be together much longer. What better way to go out than with a world championship?"

Garvey said he will never forget the instant Ken Landreaux caught Bob Watson's final out fly ball, ending the Series.

"There will never really be another moment like it," he said. "It's been 25 years of blood and sweat. Baseball is a team sport and the ultimate is to be a world champion. I will admit, I did have tears in my eyes."

Garvey, 32, Cey, 33, second baseman Davey Lopes, 35, and shortstop Bill Russell, 33, have played as a unit since 1973, a record for an infield remaining intact. But Lopes has had two bad years in a row and committed a record six errors in the Series. Waiting in the wings are two candidates — Steve Sax, promoted from San Antonio of the Texas League where he was the most valuable player in 1981, and Jack Perconte, who's had a couple of solid years at Albuquerque of the Pacific Coast League.

Two other young sluggers, outfielder Candy Maldonado and first baseman Mike Marshall, both had big years at Albuquerque and carry can't-miss major league credentials.

Rick Monday, who hit the pennant-winning home run in the ninth inning of the fifth game of the National League Championship Series, is considering retirement. Yeager, used sparingly during the regular season, has asked repeatedly to be traded.

If there are changes to be made, the Dodgers were not thinking about them today. They were accepting the congratulations of their city. Manager Tommy Lasorda and owner Peter O'Malley were to receive the keys to the city.

Meanwhile, combustible New York Yankee owner George Steinbrenner promised there would be some changes in his club. Moments after the final out of the sixth game, Steinbrenner issued an apology to the people of New York and said: "We will be at work immediately to prepare for 1982."

Among the decisions facing Steinbrenner are the status of several unsigned Yankee veterans, headed by slugger Reggie Jackson and pitcher Ron Guidry. They are eligible for free agency, and another unsigned veteran Yankee, outfielder Lou Piniella, is certain there will be changes.

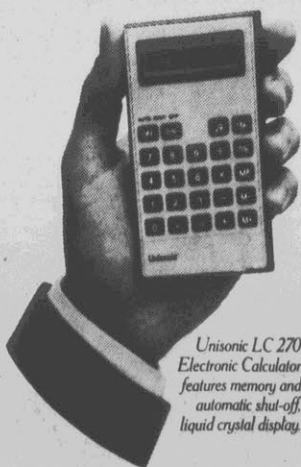

"Sure, they'll make changes," he said. "George doesn't stand still, but I'm sure they'll be for the good of the club. Hopefully, a lot of us will be back, but we all know some of us won't."

NBA Teams Set To Open '81-82 Season

By GARY MYERS
AP Sports Writer

Four years ago, Philadelphia lost in the National Basketball Association finals to the Portland Trail Blazers and Julius Erving appeared in commercials telling the 76ers' fans, "We owe you one."

The Sixers open the NBA season tonight owing five. Following last year's playoff disappointment, when they lost three straight to the Boston Celtics in the Eastern Conference finals after being ahead 3-1, Philadelphia faces the same obstacle in its quest for the elusive championship—the Boston Celtics.

Boston is trying to become the first NBA team to successfully defend its title since the Celtics of 1968-69 were winning their 11th championship in 13 years. The usual sellout crowd is expected at the Boston Garden to greet the Celtics for the first time since they defeated the Houston Rockets for the title in six games, while the Sixers are home against the Cleveland Cavaliers.

Philadelphia and Boston each won 62 regular-season games last year before waging their titanic struggle in the playoffs. With basically the same teams back on both sides, the Boston-Philadelphia division race and possible playoff encounter could again be the highlight of the NBA season.

The NBA pushed back the start of the season to avoid conflict with the World Series. The strategy didn't fulfill all its goal of drumming up pre-season interest because baseball added another playoff due to the players' strike. The NBA's late start, however, means the playoffs won't end until the middle of June.

Twenty of the 23 teams are in action tonight, with only Seattle, San Diego and Atlanta idle. Besides the Washington-Boston and Cleveland-Philadelphia games, the rest of the schedule includes:

The New York Knicks helping inaugurate the new Meadowlands Arena when they meet the New Jersey Nets; the Milwaukee Bucks at the Detroit Pistons; the Chicago Bulls at the Indiana Pacers; the San Antonio Spurs at the Kansas City Kings; the Golden State Warriors at the Denver Nuggets; the Dallas Mavericks at the Utah Jazz; the Phoenix Suns at Portland and in a game that will be televised live by CBS at 11:30 p.m. EST, the Los Angeles Lakers will host the Rockets.

The Celtics' route to a second successive championship will be most severely challenged by the Sixers, Lakers, Sonics, Suns and Bucks. But if any team in that span has been capable of repeating, Boston seems the most likely. Their frontcourt of Larry Bird, Cedric Maxwell, Robert Parish, Kevin McHale and Rick Robey is among the best in the league.

Elsewhere in the Atlantic Division, the Knicks figure to be stronger with the addition of veterans Maurice Lucas, Mike Newlin and Randy Smith. The Nets, with more than 11,000 season tickets sold in their new arena, have a new coach (Larry Brown), new players (Buck Williams, Ray Tolbert, Albert King and Ray Williams) and an old problem—the lack of a bona fide center. The Bulls' days of Wes Unseld, Elvin Hayes, Mitch Kupchak and Bobby Dandridge are over. Washington has signed veteran Spencer Haywood, in addition to acquiring in trades John Lucas, Jim Chones and Brad Holland.

The Central Division could be a tossup between Atlanta, Milwaukee and Chicago, providing all have their full teams. Due to an incredible string of injuries, the Hawks, under new Coach Kevin Loughery, will begin the season without starters Wes Matthews, Eddie Johnson and John Drew and a top reserve, Al Wood. The Bucks are without forward Marques Johnson, a holdout. The Bulls are without unsigned Orlando Woolridge, their No.1 pick.

The Pistons have new life with Isiah Thomas and Kelly Tripucka; the Pacers have benched George McGinnis in favor of Louis Orr, and the Cavaliers hope free agents James Edwards, Bobby Wilkerson and Scott Wedman turn the struggling franchise around.

In the Midwest, perhaps the weakest of the four divisions, the Kansas City Kings are a new-look team. Gone are free agents Otis Birdsong and Wedman. The new Kings include Steve Johnson, Cliff Robinson, Eddie Johnson and Kevin Loder. The Rockets brought back Hayes, a familiar face in Houston, to team with Moses Malone; the Spurs have the "Bruise Brothers" frontline, a collection of tough, aggressive rebounders, and George Gervin in the backcourt, which means they will score a lot of points.

Denver, with its new run-and-gun style under Doug Moe, will have much-improved Kiki Vandeweghe for a full season. Utah always scores a lot of points with Adrian Dantley and Darrell Griffith and hopes that No.1 pick Danny Schayes can get some rebounds. And the Mavericks, with rookies Mark Aguirre, Rolando Blackman and Jay Vincent, should do better than the 15 games they won in their first year.

In the Western Division, the Lakers' starting five of Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, Kupchak, Jamaal Wilkes, Magic Johnson and Norm Nixon is among the best. The Sonics, with Gus Williams back and

Lonnie Shelton healthy, are a different team than the one that won just 34 games last year. The Suns will have a tough time replacing guard Walter Davis, out six weeks with a fractured elbow. The Blazers have lots of talent with Mychal Thompson, Kelvin Ransey, Jim Paxson and Billy Ray Bates. The Warriors will rely on Bernard King and Lloyd Free to keep them in games with rebounder Larry Smith holding out, and the Clippers are building around Michael Brooks and Tom Chambers.

New rules include 12-man rosters, elimination of the penalty shot on free throws and elimination of a shot on backcourt fouls unless a team is over the limit.

Steeler Fan Montana To Try To Beat Them

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

Joe Montana knows Pittsburgh all too well. Not the Steelers. The city. He grew up 30 miles south of it, in the blue-collar river community of Monongahela.

That didn't keep him from being a Steeler fan. "I still am," said the San Francisco quarterback. "Seeing them come from way back when they weren't winning a whole lot to what they've grown to be now, it just makes you feel good to be from back there."

And back there is where he'll be Sunday, setting foot in Three Rivers Stadium for the first time as he tries to keep the 49ers' dream season rolling along. The team has won five in a row. It has never won six in a row.

Sunday's other National Football League games are Detroit at Los Angeles, Atlanta at New Orleans, Houston at Cincinnati, Cleveland at Buffalo, Dallas at Philadelphia, Kansas City at San Diego, St. Louis at Washington, Baltimore at Miami, Chicago at Tampa Bay, the New York Jets at the New York Giants, Seattle at Green Bay and New England at Oakland. Minnesota visits Denver Monday night.

The 49ers, 6-2 and two games ahead of Los Angeles and Atlanta in the National Conference West, haven't won a division title since 1972, the year the Steelers began their string of eight consecutive seasons in the playoffs.

San Francisco is coming off an emotional 20-17 victory over the Rams. Pittsburgh is 5-3 this year and also is trying to maintain a winning edge after beating American Conference Central rival Houston 26-13 last Monday night to pull into a first-place tie with Cincinnati.

Montana is first among NFC passers. But he says, "I'd be last if we could just have a winner here. They're just talking about stats. But I'd trade anything, I'd be last in the NFL, just for us to win. I guess I'm just the competitive type. And whatever it takes to win, I'm willing to do."

The Rams succeeded the 49ers as NFC West champs in 1973 and stayed in that lofty position for seven seasons before being upended by Atlanta last year. LA is 4-4 and must cool off hot Eric Hipple, Detroit's young sensation at quarterback. In two weeks he's passed for more than 700 yards and five touchdowns, and has run for four more.

The last time the Lions ventured into Los Angeles, in the 1980 season opener, they shocked the Rams 41-20 with another youngster, Billy Sims. He rushed for 153 yards and three touchdowns.

The Falcons are skidding badly. They've lost four of the last five games since routing San Francisco 34-17 Sept. 20. They may be thinking they've got a "breather" this Sunday in New Orleans, having blanked the Saints 27-0 on opening day. But those Saints delighted the homefolks last Sunday by stunning Cincinnati 17-7 after the Bengals, no doubt hoping for a breather, had pounded Pittsburgh 34-7 the previous Sunday.

That, coupled with Pittsburgh's Monday night victory over Houston, left the Bengals and Steelers tied for first in the American Conference's Central Division, while the Oilers fell into a tie with Cleveland, a game off the pace.

Houston has taken six in a row from Cincinnati, most recently 17-10 earlier this year when Earl Campbell erupted for 162 of the 840 yards that has him leading AFC rushers.

Dallas and Philadelphia are meeting for the first time since the Eagles, on the strength of Wilbert Montgomery's 194-yard rushing performance, swamped the Cowboys 20-7 in last year's NFC title game. Both teams won last weekend — each had to do it the hard way, in the closing minutes — to keep the Cowboys one game behind the Eagles and one game ahead of the resurgent Giants in the East Division race.

Kansas City can remain atop the AFC West by beating San Diego. But the Chiefs haven't been able to beat the Chargers since shutting them out 23-0 in 1978.

Dodger Day Set In LA

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Dodgers are the champions of the baseball world, and are to be honored as such with a parade in downtown Los Angeles.

Mayor Tom Bradley has declared today "Dodger Day." The City Council had approved the $1,177 grant for the celebration even before the team's 9-2 rout of the New York Yankees in Game Six on Wednesday.

The parade, with 12 marching bands, was planned no matter how the Dodgers fared at Yankee Stadium.

"With what they've gone through with two series prior to this World Series, what difference does it make whether they win or lose?" Councilman Ernani Bernardi said in making the motion for the appropriation.

Not even the team's pre-dawn arrival Thursday discouraged 10,000 fans from flocking to the airport to see the Dodger plane land.

Turnout estimates for today's festivities were at 20,000. "It's a school and work day and that creates problems," said Ronnie Lomas of Pageantry Productions, parade organizers. "But people are just so thrilled to be part of the Dodger victory they're pulling themselves out wherever they can."

Ms. Lomas says plans are for "all the victory type things," including airplane-launched confetti and 5,000 balloons in blue and white, the Dodger colors.

Time Said Running Out On Social Security Plan

By MARGARET SCHERF
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of a House subcommittee, directed by Democratic leaders to let the Senate act first on Social Security's financial problems, says "time is running out" for the retirement system.

"It's my hope that we still have time to do something about this on a bipartisan basis," Rep. J.J. Pickle, chairman of the Ways and Means subcommittee on Social Security, said Thursday. "But time is running out on us."
The Texas Democrat referred to new figures from the Social Security Administration showing that a Senate-passed bill permitting borrowing among the system's three trust funds will not be enough to keep it afloat through the 1980s.

"The three trust funds could go broke by 1983 or 1984," Pickle said, adding that "this report by the actuarial is one of the most ominous the House has received on a subject so vital."

But, he said, "the House leadership has specifically recommended that no action be taken by my subcommittee until the Senate acts and that's very unfortunate."
The legislation passed by the Senate permits mingling of the three trust funds, thus providing more money for the hard-pressed retirement fund and less for the Medicare fund, which pays hospital bills.

But the new figures show larger-than-expected increases in hospital costs, thus leaving the Medicare trust fund in a more precarious position than actuaries had thought when the Senate fashioned its legislation. No other bill is in the works in the Senate at present.

everything except a provision restoring the $122-a-month minimum benefit, which Congress had eliminated in budget legislation. Then, he said, the House should come up with a new bill containing long-range Social Security solutions.
He accused the Democrats of "playing political Pollyanna" by refusing to face up to the need for more drastic measures than interfund borrowing.

"For what appear to be purely political reasons, they have closed their eyes to reality by continuing to foster totally false hope that the system can survive for more than two or three more years without major restructuring," Archer said.

Archer said the Democrats "would much rather have it as a political issue for the election in 1982 ... and they are pushing us right up to the cliff."

How's The Weather?

WEATHER MAP — Rain is predicted Saturday for the Pacific Northwest, Minnesota, portions of the Dakotas and the Great Lakes. Showers are forecast for southern Florida and the Mississippi River Valley. (AP Laserphoto Map)

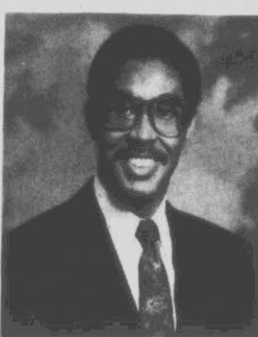

By The Associated Press
Soggy conditions will continue into the weekend in North Carolina, thanks to a strong area of high pressure covering New England to Florida.
The high pressure system is pumping a northeast wind into the area, bringing mostly cloudy skies and cool temperatures for the next couple of days. Some light rain or drizzle may also occur mainly during the morning and at night.
Skies were mostly cloudy across the eastern half of the state Thursday. After some morning cloudiness, skies were mostly sunny in the west. Afternoon temperatures were generally in the 60s.

The range included a 57 at Boone to a 72 at Cape Hatteras.
Last night, the cloudiness spread from eastern sections to western sections of the state. Some drizzle occurred along the Outer Banks and in the north. Overnight temperatures cooled into the mid 40s to mid 50s for the most part.
Mostly cloudy skies will prevail through Saturday. Some scattered light rain or drizzle will occur mainly east of the mountains. Rain or drizzle will occur mainly at night and during the morning hours.

Lows tonight will be in the 50s with 40s in the mountains. Highs Saturday will be mostly in the 60s.
Along the coast, small craft advisories are in effect for strong northeast winds and rough seas. Due to the prolonged strong northeast winds, minor beach erosion is possible at times of high tide.

Saudi Middle East Peace Plan Said Encouraging

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a sudden switch of position, the Reagan administration says it is encouraged by Saudi Arabia's eight-point Middle East peace plan because it recognizes "Israel as a nation to be negotiated with."

The plan, put forward by Crown Prince Fahd in August, is the Saudis' alternative to the Camp David peace accords.

After earlier dismissing the plan as nothing new, administration officials said Thursday that some of its points may be absorbed into the Camp David peace process and that it may lure moderate Arab nations into participation.

"There are aspects in the eight-point proposal made by Crown Prince Fahd by which we are encouraged," Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. said.

President Reagan told reporters that "the most significant part is the fact that they recognize Israel as a nation to be negotiated with."

The Saudi plan never specifically mentions Israel but says that all people in the region should live peacefully. Haig said that is "a direct, a very implicit recognition of Israel's right to exist."

"There are other aspects of these eight points ... which are issues that must be negotiated by the parties," he added.

Saudi participation in the peace process was one of the conditions that Reagan set forth to win approval Wednesday of his sale of AWACS planes to the Arab monarchy. Reagan said the arms deal would help achieve that and added after the Senate vote, "The cause of peace is on the march again in the Middle East."

White House chief of staff James A. Baker III, meanwhile, acknowledged Thursday that the conditions included in Reagan's letter to the Senate will not require U.S. military personnel to be aboard the aircraft once Saudi crews are trained.

However, some 800 Americans will be based in Saudi Arabia to help maintain the AWACS equipment throughout its anticipated 20-year life. And officials said the aircraft are so complicated they are likely to lead to American flight crew members being on them indefinitely.

The first of the Airborne Warning and Control Systems planes is expected to be delivered in late 1985 and the last of the five by early 1987.

While noting Thursday that the United States welcomes the Saudi peace plan, State Department spokesman Dean Fischer said the 1979 Camp David accords remain "the operative framework in which we are working."

But one senior official, who asked not to be identified, said the Reagan administration was giving greater attention to the Saudi plan now that the Saudis are known to take it seriously.

The official said the administration originally thought it was a "throw-away" proposal designed to draw attention from the late Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, who was visiting the United States at the time.

Arab nations other than Egypt have refused to recognize Israel's right to exist, and the Saudi plan actually only says that there should be the right of the people — or states in another published version — "of the region to live in peace."

The plan also would impose a high price on Israel, including establishment of a separate Palestinian state with Jerusalem as its capital.

Israel is adamantly opposed to a separate Palestinian state and favors pursuing the Camp David process, which it signed with Egypt and the United States three years ago.

Yet the feeling is growing, even among some U.S. officials, that the Camp David accords will have to be broadened to include an approach to Palestinian autonomy acceptable to other Arab nations. The Saudis may be able to deliver that support if their plan can be incorporated into Camp David, the senior official said.

Fischer acknowledged that it would be difficult to bridge the two peace plans but suggested for the first time that the Saudi plan could be subject to negotiation.

"We welcome some points in the plan and we find certain other points in the plan probably best left to negotiations," Fischer said.

Fischer said Haig had discussed the plan with Fahd at Malaga, Spain, last month, and an official who asked not to be identified said it probably also would be discussed when Fahd visits Washington later this year.

The eight points of the plan, as published in Saudi publications, are:

—Israeli withdrawal from all Arab territories, including Jerusalem, occupied in 1967.

—Removal of Israeli settlements set up after 1967.

—Freedom of worship and religious rites for all religions in their holy place of Jerusalem.

—The inalienable rights of the Palestinian people to return to their homeland and compensation to those who do not wish to return.

—A provisional U.N. mandate for several months over the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip.

—Establishment of the Palestinian state with Jerusalem as its capital.

—The guarantee of the right of the Palestinian people to live in peace.
—The right of the people of the region to live in peace.

Revising Its Regulations Under Orders On Power Lawn Mowers

By JEFFREY MILLS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Consumer Product Safety Commission, under orders from Congress, is changing a regulation it wrote to reduce injuries caused by power lawn mowers.

The commission is expected to amend its two-year-old lawn mower regulation today as the culmination of a lobbying campaign by an industry group.

The regulation required that a mower's blade, which can revolve at up to 200 miles an hour, stop within three seconds after the operator takes his hand off the mower's handle. The rule was designed to make it virtually impossible for someone using a mower to move his hand from the handle to the blade before the blade stops turning.

When the commission approved it unanimously in 1979, it estimated that the rule would prevent 60,000 injuries each year.

However, the Outdoor Power Equipment Institute said mower prices could increase by up to $60 because of the rule.

The industry group opposed the regulation when the commission was considering it, and later took its case to Congress. An amendment was added to an appropriations bill ordering the commission to change the regulation before it takes effect June 30, 1982.

Under the change ordered by Congress, the entire engine must stop, instead of just the blade, when the operator releases the handle. Operators will have to restart the engine every time they release the handle, and for some mowers that takes many tugs on the rope each time.

The industry group was successful in arguing against the regulation as originally drafted because of the additional cost. Having the engine stop automatically is a less expensive mechanism than an independent device to stop only the blade.

Consumers Union, which had supported the original rule, said the change ordered by Congress "will make the blade-control system so annoyingly inconvenient that many users will wish to defeat it, especially when the engine becomes difficult to start."

Carl Blechschmidt, a CPSC staff member who worked on the regulation, said he hopes the industry develops mowers that are easy to restart so that consumers do not defeat the safety feature.

"We hope that what Congress told us to do works, but we have our doubts," Blechschmidt said.

A part of the regulation that will remain also requires that the blade be shielded from the operator.

About 77,000 injuries are blamed annually on power mowers, 10,000 of which lead to amputations of fingers or toes.

Congress told the commission that its revision must last for at least two years. "After the two years, we'll do a study and see how many injuries there are," Blechschmidt said.

Sever Ties

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP) — Jamaica said it broke relations with Cuba and ordered its embassy closed because of Cuba's refusal to return three wanted men here for murder and bank robbery.

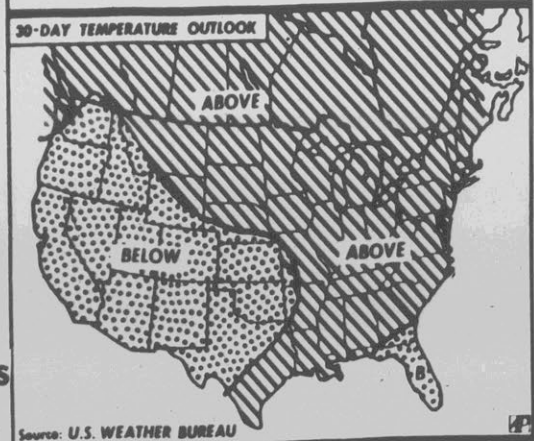

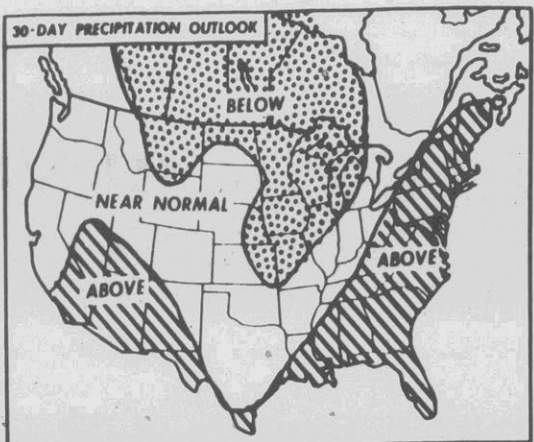

Jamaica made an official request Wednesday for the return of the three and gave Cuba 24 hours to respond, Prime Minister Edward Seaga said Thursday. He said the decision to break ties and order the embassy closed by Saturday was made when the Cubans failed to respond to the request by the deadline.

The two countries have maintained relations since 1962 when Jamaica became independent, and grew closer under the socialist government of Seaga's predecessor, Michael Manley.

New Life For A Defunct Campus

MONTPELIER, Vt. (AP) — After standing unused for three years, the 126-acre campus of the now-defunct Windham College is headed for a new life as a business conference center.

The liberal arts school — a victim of bankruptcy, the target of a federal inquiry and the prey of a fast-talking con man — is being sold to Donald Wheeler, who is paying $80,000 for the land and is negotiating for the buildings. The sale is to be completed today.

The school in Putney folded in 1978 because of debts and declining enrollment. A recruitment scheme for foreign students drew the attention of U.S. immigration officials, but no charges were brought.

Officials announced that the campus would become a refugee center, but it turned out that a man claiming to represent a placement group was acting without authority from the group.

LOCATED 1½ MILES SOUTH OF TV STATION ON EVANS ST. EXTENSION

A rendering of the new Winterville Free Will Baptist Church, for which construction has just begun, has been presented the congregation.

Begin Building In Winterville

WINTERVILLE — Members of the Winterville Free Will Baptist Church and their pastor, the Rev. Ed Taylor, celebrated the church's 76th anniversary and homecoming with a groundbreaking service on the site of the new church recently.

The groundbreaking was the culmination of nine years of prayer, planning and fund-raising, the pastor said. The new facility to be erected on a 3.5-acre site on the corner of Cooper Street and Glendale Avenue was designed by Dudley and Shoe Architects of Greenville. Construction by J.H. Hudson Inc. of Greenville got under way this week.

The church will have approximately 13,000 square feet and will be composed of a sanctuary with a seating capacity of over 300, the educational department and a fellowship area. The new facility will be built in phases, with Phase 1 being the closing in of the structure and continuation as funds permit.

Celebration

New Deliverance Free Will Baptist Church of Ayden will celebrate its second anniversary next week.

Monday evening the Rev. Nathan Darden will deliver the sermon. Bishop W.L. Jones will speak Tuesday night. The Rev. A.L. Matthew of Ayden will preach Wednesday evening and the Bishop Ben Sutton will address the congregation Thursday. All evening services begin at 7:30 p.m.

The Rev. Elmer Jackson will preside over Sunday Services.

Rookie Astronauts Can Hardly Wait For Trip

By HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer
CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Two eager rookie astronauts scheduled landing practice in a jet as workers readied the launch pad to begin the five-day countdown for the second flight of the space shuttle Columbia.

The countdown is to begin at 1 a.m. EST Saturday, with liftoff at 7:30 a.m. Wednesday. Columbia is the first spaceship ever designed for a return trip to orbit. Its first mission was in April.

Astronauts Joe Engle and Richard Truly were to rehearse landing approaches today at Rogers Dry Lake at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., where they are to touch down at the end of their planned five-day mission.

Their aircraft is a Gulfstream II, modified to have the shuttle's handling characteristics.

The space flight will be the first for both pilots, and after they finished their final simulator runs Thursday in Houston, space agency spokesman John Lawrence reported, "They're really high, animated, excited and enthusiastic. They can hardly wait."

They've waited a long time. Engle, the commander, has been an astronaut for 15 years, and Truly has been one for 16 years.

Launch teams finished preparing Columbia for flight Thursday and crews began to close out the pad, removing access platforms, making final inspections, installing flight doors on Columbia's access hatches and stowing some of the crew's flight equipment.

Meanwhile, launch director George Page assessed the readiness of the spaceship, the flight control teams, the worldwide tracking network and other aspects prior to issuing the call to stations that will summon countdown specialists to their posts in the control center three miles from the launch pad.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration plans to land Columbia at Edwards after this flight and at least one more to gain confidence that the winged spacecraft can make a controlled, pinpoint landing. Once that confidence is gained, the ship will return to a 15,000-foot runway at Cape Canaveral.

The major goal of the second flight is to prove the shuttle can indeed be flown again. The Columbia and other space shuttles are designed to make at least 100 trips into space.

Engle and Truly also will devote several hours during the mission to testing a 50-foot mechanical arm that will be used on later flights to deploy and retrieve satellites. Also aboard is the first shuttle payload, a package of instruments to look at Earth's resources.

Auto Earnings Said To Reflect Entire Country

By STEPHEN JONES
Associated Press Writer
DETROIT (AP) — Chrysler Corp.'s third-quarter loss of $149.3 million and the heavy losses by other U.S. automakers in the same period largely reflect economic problems facing the entire country, according to auto industry analysts.

Chrysler's losses reported Thursday were less than one-third of losses reported for the same period last year, but were enough to push the nationwide industry drop to $969 million for the quarter.

So far this year, Chrysler has lost $436 million while the total industry has lost slightly more than $1 billion.

"The third quarter was unexpectedly bad and I think it illustrates the problems of the economy," said Maryann Keller, auto industry analyst for Paine Webber, Mitchell Hutchins & Co. in New York. "It's really a reflection of how reluctant the consumer is to come into the car market."

"The U.S. economy is in a recession and the auto industry is in a depression," said David Healy, analyst for Drexel Burnham Lambert Inc. in New York. "That's where we've been for the last couple of years."

Chrysler blamed its loss, which amounted to $2.14 per share of common stock, on high interest rates and a generally weak economy that sent sales for the first 20 days of October plunging to 23-year lows.

The company's third-quarter loss was much smaller than the $498.7 million, or $7.42 per share, loss Chrysler reported in the same three-month period last year. Domestic automakers lost $1.74 billion in the 1980 third quarter, their worst quarter ever.

Chrysler's announcement followed by one day Ford Motor Co.'s report that it lost $335 million in the third quarter.

General Motors Corp. reported last week it lost $468 million for the period, while American Motors Corp. reported a $16.8 million third-quarter loss earlier this month.

In a message to Chrysler stockholders, Chairman Lee A. Iacocca said the company's third-quarter results "should be considered in the perspective of the worst automotive recession in 50 years."

"In the context of a 2½-year slump, our third-quarter improvement from a year ago is evidence of the dramatic progress Chrysler has made in restructuring the entire company, in reducing costs and in improving productivity," Iacocca said. Ms. Keller said Chrysler's financial situation is "precarious" and could force the automaker to sell some assets or seek the remaining $300 million in federally guaranteed loans authorized by Congress if the losses continue.

Chrysler already has received $1.2 billion in federally guaranteed loans but Iacocca has said the company will not ask for the remaining loan guarantees.

Life As It's Lived

Oldtime Fun Now Gone From Halloween Today

If you ask me, Halloween is not nearly as much fun as it used to be. Not only does the price of candy nowadays leave a sour taste in my mouth, but a large percentage of the kids who trick-or-treat for it can't even be bothered to say thank you.

In fact, the behavior of some of these little and larger monsters lends credence to the medieval superstitions they're celebrating. After attending several poorly organized Halloween carnivals at which gangs of 11-year-old youths ran indiscriminately over preschoolers and pregnant women alike, and I am convinced that a significant minority of the Halloween revellers are actually possessed.

Meg thinks I'm the one who's possessed. Halloween is her favorite holiday. And my refusal to allow what little cash I have on elaborate costumes and a carnival that doesn't even have a go-fishing booth for the little ones - along with my general unwillingness to celebrate this holiday with the same inflationary abandon with which I approach Christmas - merely confirms her suspicions that in addition to being old, my mind is going, too.

My failure to recognize the name of the character she wanted to be this Halloween did nothing to improve her opinion of my sanity. "Scrappy Doo," she repeated impatiently. "Don't you even know he's Scooby Doo's brother?"

I had to admit that I didn't. "And anyway, we aren't buying a new costume this year. You're going to have to settle for one of those darling costumes that Santa's elves spent such a long time making last Christmas."

"How do you know how much time they spent?" "Just trust me. I do."

"Well, I don't want to wear a used costume."

"Well, that's tough. Between now and the end of November we have three birthdays, two weddings and Christmas shopping. I know that this is hard for you to understand, but we just don't have any money to waste on something as silly as Halloween."

"Silly!" she wailed. "That shows what you know!" And she stomped off to her room.

I did manage to budget for a pumpkin, even though the teenagers in our neighborhood always smash the ones left outside. We decided that it could sit on the dining room table.

Meg, of course, immediately wanted to disembowel it. "I want a jack-o-lantern, and my teacher said we could roast the pumpkin seeds."

I could scarcely contain my excitement. Teachers are always coming up with such interesting ways for me to spend time. But my guilt overcame my better judgment, and working feverishly over newspaper spread on the kitchen floor, we created a terrific jack-o-lantern, which Meg insisted on carrying to the table all by herself.

Unfortunately, when she dropped it on the floor (as was inevitable), his skull fractured.

"Oh no, now we'll have to buy a new one!"

"No we won't," I reassured her, my miser's imagination working overtime.

"We'll patch him up. He'll be as good as new."

First I performed surgery with Scotch tape. But Scotch tape doesn't adhere to pumpkin skin. I finally managed to bridge the gap with electrical tape.

Meg was not impressed with my silver patchwork. "He looks icky."

"The more grotesque, the better. Jack-o-lanterns aren't supposed to be pretty."

She was not appeased. "I want a new one," she persisted. "I don't like this one."

"Hush, you'll hurt his feelings."

Meg looked at me in disbelief. "Mommy, you're always weird, but I think you're getting weirder."

Translation Is Far From Done

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Calif. (AP) - Wycliffe Bible translators say there are more than 5,000 languages spoken in the world and of that number, about 3,000 language groups still lack Scriptures in their own dialects.

The Wycliffe language specialists, working in many countries, have completed translations into writing of about 60 additional languages in the last two years and work is going on in 700 other kinds of speech.

In one newly alphabetized tongue, a New Testament recently was issued in the formerly unwritten language of the Paez people in Colombia where American translator Chet Bitterman was shot last March 7 by kidnapers.

Centerfold Girl's Story Sunday Night

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Television is always looking for front-page violence to dramatize, particularly during the crucial November sweeps, when ratings establish the advertising rates of network stations for the next few months.

Already, several production companies are rushing to turn the Atlanta murders into prime-time TV. And, in this vein, "Death of a Centerfold: The Dorothy Stratten Story" on NBC, fits the bill. It's the ideal Hollywood rags-to-riches-to-ruins story, which has TV executives mouthing their sympathy, while scurrying to secure the rights.

Executive producer Larry Wilcox, co-star of "CHiPs," won the bidding, and NBC now has some competitive programming Sunday night — when viewership is highest — against two blockbusters: Clint Eastwood's "Every Which Way But Loose" on CBS and Neil Simon's "The Goodbye Girl" on ABC.

As a Cinderella story turned sour, what happened to Dorothy Stratten has some fascination. But it's not enough to merely flesh out newspaper accounts. The movie never moves beyond the superficial; it never looks for answers and motivations.

In the end, we're left with a sad story, without any real understanding.

Dorothy Stratten (Jamie Lee Curtis) was a small-town beauty who dished out ice cream in Vancouver, Canada. She wanted more, but didn't realize how much more until she met Paul Snider (Bruce Weitz), a two-bit hood.

Snider is a true talent scout. One look behind the counter and he sees Dorothy is his grab for the gold ring. Dorothy is swept off her feet, despite protestations from her family. It's hard to conceive how even the innocent Dorothy can take this transparent con man seriously. "Paul's a man," she says. And later: "He makes me feel like somebody."

Snider's soon running her life and sharing her bed. He persuades her to pose in the nude. Before long, Dorothy is the middle-of-the-book feature in "Playboy" and the 1980 Playmate of the Year.

Weitz, the primal undercover cop Mick Belker in "Hill Street Blues," was not the first choice to play Snider. Selected the day before production began, he doesn't have the presence to make his spell over Dorothy believable. He sure is sleazy though, right down to his thin moustache, which makes him a dead ringer for that oily superintendent Schneider on "One Day At A Time."

Miss Curtis, daughter of marrying him. Their marriage is short-lived, and Snider is finally driven to kill her with a shotgun and then turn the weapon on himself. Dorothy was 20.

Weitz, the primal undercover cop Mick Belker in "Hill Street Blues," was not the first choice to play Snider. Selected the day before production began, he doesn't have the presence to make his spell over Dorothy believable. He sure is sleazy though, right down to his thin moustache, which makes him a dead ringer for that oily superintendent Schneider on "One Day At A Time."

Miss Curtis, daughter of

Janet Leigh and Tony Curtis, brings a sweet innocence to the role. She has the physical attributes to be a centerfold, but can't carry the more emotional scenes. Her background is horror movies, where wide eyes and screams are the acting prerequisites. Her credits include "Halloween" and its sequel, "The Fog," "Prom Night" and "Terror Train."

Robert Reed (patriarch of "The Brady Bunch") brings some much-needed professionalism as the low-key director who becomes Dorothy's love interest.

A highlight of the film is getting to see one of Hugh Hefner's parties. Hef (Mitchell Ryan) is in his pajamas and bathrobe, and bikinis are everywhere — fulfilling his needs and TV's. But it's nice to report that it didn't look like much of a party.

GOREN BRIDGE

BY CHARLES H. GOREN
AND OMAR SHARIF
1981 by Chicago Tribune

East-West vulnerable. South dummy and, if East follows with a low trump, declarer runs the jack to West. When West shows out, declarer is home and can later try the diamond finesse for an over-trick.

NORTH

♦ K J 3
♠ A 10

The bidding:
South: West North East
1 ♥ Pass 2 ♥ Pass
4 ♥ Pass Pass Pass
Opening lead: Two of ♠.

Bridge terminology is quite graphic. For instance, an end play is so named because the position usually occurs late in the hand after a considerable amount of groundwork has been laid. Here's an example.

Once his suit had been supported, South's hand revalued to 20 points. He saw no reason not to bid what he expected to make.

West led a low spade. East won the ace and shifted to the king of clubs. If declarer wins and tries two rounds of trumps, he can be defeated. Whether declarer exits with a trump or a club, the defenders will prevail if East wins, cashes his other winner and shifts to a diamond.

But observe the difference if, at trick two, declarer allows the king of clubs to hold the trick. Assume that East now shifts to a diamond (as good a defense as any). Declarer wins the ace, cashes one high trump and the ace of clubs and then strips the spades, ending in dummy.

The risk in this is minimal, for West's opening lead was almost surely from a four-card suit and, should someone ruff a spade, declarer can still fall back on the diamond finesse for his contract.

Now the scene is set for a perfect end play. Declarer leads the jack of trumps from

No, declarer is not playing against the odds (we know all about "eight ever, nine never"). The fact is that declarer does not mind if West wins the queen of hearts!

With the black suits stripped from the North-South hands, when West wins the queen of hearts he has a Hobson's choice of losing options. A spade or a club allows declarer to ruff on the table while discarding a diamond from his hand. A diamond is into the king-jack tenace. In either case, declarer will not lose a diamond trick.

Logging Event Is Being Held

A series of logging equipment displays, educational sessions and live woods demonstrations are being held today and Saturday at the Pitt County Fairgrounds and at a nearby timber tract, according to Sam Uzzell, Pitt extension agent.

Uzzell said the event, called "Carolina Log'n Demo," is the first of its type in the state and "is being held for loggers, equipment dealers, timber buyers and others for the entire mid-Atlantic region."

Between 30 and 40 exhibitors are expected, he said, and there will be talks by industry leaders on the timber outlook, fuel conservation and other topics.

A log truck driving contest is also planned with prizes offered for the oldest working log truck and the log truck with the most chrome.

The logging event is sponsored by the N.C. Agricultural Extension Service and Hatton, Brown & Co., which publishes three magazines for the forest industry.

More information can be obtained by calling the extension office at 752-2934.

Police Find Store Break-In

Greenville police were investigating a break-in at Baines' Foodland on Charles Street, near the 14th Street intersection, early today.

Chief Glenn Cannon said officers discovered the building had been entered through the front door about 4:55 a.m.

A quantity of meat was reported taken from the meat counter, Cannon noted.

Former Lawmen Indicted In Racketeering Scheme

BAXLEY, Ga. (AP) — Eighteen people, including five former law enforcement officers and members of a wealthy Appling County family, have been arrested on federal racketeering charges stemming from an alleged drug smuggling operation.

Among those taken into custody Thursday were James Bazel "Red" Carter, an Appling County sheriff for 16 years and a former Baxley police chief, and Joe Veston Lightsey of Surrency, the immediate past sheriff of the south Georgia county and Carter's ex-son-in-law.

The alleged drug smuggling operation centered around a clandestine landing strip on the more than 2,000 acres of property owned by Morris Brothers Dairy Farms Inc., 16 miles south of here, according to the federal grand jury indictment handed down Wednesday in Savannah.

The owners of the dairy — brothers Thomas Morris and Lemuel Morris, described by Mayor Quentin Frost as being among the wealthiest residents of the area — also were among those indicted. The dairy itself was seized under the federal Racketeer-Influenced Corrupt Organization (RICO) statute.

Among the others indicted were former Appling County deputy sheriffs Larry Carter and Charlotte Lightsey, Lightsey's current wife, and former GBI agent Rayford Phillips.

The indictment charges that Phillips and Larry Carter were paid at least $12,000 in bribes during the two-year long investigation that led to the indictment. Lightsey received at least $6,000 in payoffs and was involved in transferring some of the money to the other two men, the indictment said.

James "Red" Carter, the former sheriff, who along with Lightsey ran a losing campaign for sheriff last year, was charged with making an unsuccessful attempt to bribe Wayne County Sheriff Riley Reddish.

GBI Director Phil Peters said an internal investigation of Phillips helped prompt the investigation by the FBI, GBI, Internal Revenue Service and other agencies, which led to the indictment.

Lewis Parker — a reform candidate who defeated "Red"

Carter for sheriff in the runoff election last year — asked the GBI to conduct an investigation prior to taking office, Peters said. He said Baxley Police Chief Charles Beach also participated in the probe.

Carter had run for sheriff on a promise to "stop drugs at the source" by cracking down on drug operations, Parker said Thursday.

Bond was set at $250,000 for both "Red" Carter and Lightsey, who were described by government attorneys at a magistrate's hearing Thursday in Brunswick as "two of the most serious and dangerous defendants."

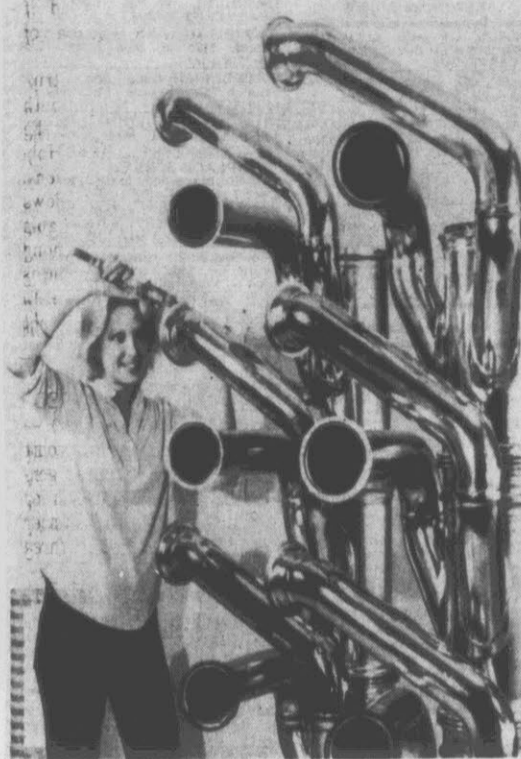

Assistant U.S. Attorney Dan Small described Carter as "an arranger, an enforcer, a man who attempted to keep witnesses in line and to limit this investigation." Small said he had tape recordings in which Carter and Lightsey discussed threats to harm or influence potential government witnesses.

Bond for Larry Jackson of Baxley, the alleged "ringleader" of the operation, was set at $5 million. Lemuel Morris and Thomas Morris had bond set at $1 million and $500,000, respectively.

Also indicted were James S. "Buddy" Morris, brother of Lemuel and Thomas Morris; Johnny Morris, Thomas Morris' son; A.Z. Jackson, father of Larry Jackson; Suzette Jackson, Larry Jackson's wife.

Also, James Holt Griffin, James W. Griffin, Robert Wayne Sapp; James Ricky Williams, all of Baxley; and Lowell Winn of Bristol and his wife, Lillian Winn.

Cite Rise In Airline 'Bumps'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The rate of passengers being bumped off commercial flights increased by 55 percent last August because of the air traffic controllers strike, the Civil Aeronautics Board says.

The CAB said Thursday nearly 7 passengers out of every 10,000 passengers were unable to get a seat on a flight for which they held a confirmed reservation. The rate was 4.45 passengers per 10,000 in August, 1980.

Greetings:

Since passage of the "mixed beverages" referendum this past Spring, a great deal of interest has been expressed in a private club to service the social needs of the Greenville business community in the downtown area (not open to the general public.)

An application with the State of North Carolina has just been completed by Grog's of Greenville to obtain a Private Club License. Located at 119 E. 5th Street between the Book Barn and the Treehouse, Grog's is in the final stages of remodeling which will make it one of Greenville's finest social establishments. The unique atmosphere of Grog's is based on a comic strip theme and is one of contemporary comfort.

Grog's will attempt to market itself to the Greenville business person during the late afternoon and early evening. Since space prohibits us from going into detail about our musical selections, our many upcoming specials and seasonal events, we would like to take this opportunity to invite you to visit us, look over Greenville's newest private club, and ask any questions you may have. We are going to be a fun place and we hope you will join us in the festivities.

See you soon.

Sincerely yours,

David Anderson

Only One Major Flaw In A Lawmaker's Plan

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Freshman Rep. Dan Blue, D-Wake, thought he had found the answer Thursday to the redistricting riddle that has bedeviled the state House for months.

What he found instead was a redistricting solution that brought him instant recognition, then sudden embarrassment.

After spending several days coming up with a new plan for reapportioning the state House's districts, Blue ably argued for it among his colleagues and won approval in the House Legislative Redistricting Committee late Thursday afternoon.

Its population figures were as well balanced as any plan put before the committee since January. The House leadership embraced the plan and the full House set a night session to debate it.

His success was ironic, too, because Blue is one of only three blacks in the state House. The House committee, stumped by the redistricting problem and facing a federal suit by the NAACP Legal and Education Defense Fund, had turned to a young, black legislator for its answer.

But shortly before the session, staff attorneys found one serious flaw. Blue's plan made room for only 119 House members — not the 120 required by the state Constitution and years of practice.

"I can't think of anything witty to say," Blue, stunned and speechless, told a reporter after the error was found.

"I don't know how we lost a member," he told another.

The House, also stunned by the news, sent the issue back to committee and recessed again. Several newspaper reporters had to scrap stories they had written for morning papers based on Blue's plan.

"It's unfortunate. It's not funny," said an exasperated Rep. Dan Lilley, D-Lenoir, co-chairman of the House committee. "It shows how human we all are."

Blue tried to add a House member somewhere in his map, but the addition threw off the population balance wherever he tried it.

And he spent the next three hours watching quietly as the committee finally approved another plan and sent it to the full House.

Blue, a Raleigh lawyer, later realized where he had erred. He had tried to solve a problem with Greensboro's district by shifting Guilford County out of a district with Alamance County and into one with Rockingham. The population decrease then dictated that the Guilford district would drop from nine House seats to eight.

But he never added that dropped seat to any other district, and his plan was so evenly balanced that the error never showed up in any other district.

Blue said he never bothered to count all the districts but assumed the staff did. The map, after processing by computer, listed a total of 120 districts. But committee counsel Bill Hale said that was a fixed number printed on all proposed redistricting plans, and the staff assumed Blue had counted his House seats.

TO ALL TELEPHONE COMPANY SUBSCRIBERS NOTICE OF HEARING

DOCKET NO. P-100, SUB 57
BEFORE THE NORTH CAROLINA UTILITIES COMMISSION

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the North Carolina Utilities Commission has instituted an investigation into the rates, charges, and regulations applicable within North Carolina for long distance, WATS and interexchange private line service. This action is made necessary as a result of the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company application for a rate adjustment as filed in Docket No. P-55, Sub 794, wherein Southern Bell proposes changes in rates, charges and regulations which, if approved in whole or in part for Southern Bell alone, would result in non-uniform rates for long distance services in North Carolina.

The Commission is of the opinion that it is in the public interest for uniform intrastate long distance, WATS and interexchange private line rates to be maintained for all telephone companies under its jurisdiction. Accordingly, the Commission has assigned this matter in Docket No. P-100, Sub 57; has instituted an investigation into said intrastate long distance, WATS and interexchange private line rates; has made all telephone companies under its jurisdiction parties to the investigation and has set the matter for hearing. The Commission's investigation is for the purpose of determining if changes should be made in the present intrastate rates for these services and, if so, if the rates should be made applicable to all telephone companies under the Commission's jurisdiction.

LONG DISTANCE MESSAGE TELECOMMUNICATIONS SERVICE

The changes in long distance rates herein under consideration include changes in rates for all categories of intrastate toll calls. The present and proposed schedules are shown below:

The existing discount periods and discount percentages will continue to apply to the initial and additional minute charges for all classes of calls. Discounts do not apply to the additional charges for Operator Services.

WIDE AREA TELECOMMUNICATION SERVICE

FURTHER DETAILS

Other changes in rates, charges and regulations are proposed for long distance service, WATS, interexchange private lines, foreign exchange and Enterprise Service. Details of the changes are available at telephone company building offices or at the North Carolina Utilities Commission, Dobbs Building, 430 North Salisbury Street, Raleigh, North Carolina, where a copy of Southern Bell's application is available for public review. The Commission will consider additional or alternative rate proposals which were not included in the original application and may order rate increases or decreases which differ from those proposed by the Company. Upon request the Commission will place copies of all trial documents in centrally located public libraries. The material may be copied without prohibition at the library.

The Utilities Commission has suspended the proposed rate adjustments, has set the application for investigation and hearing and has required each regulated telephone company in North Carolina to comply with all provisions of law and Commission Rules in connection with the proposed adjustments.

The hearing on the matter has been scheduled to begin December 1, 1981, in the Commission Hearing Room, Dobbs Building, 430 North Salisbury Street, Raleigh, North Carolina at 9:30 A.M. and will continue through December 4, 1981, as necessary. On these dates, the Commission will hear the testimony and cross-examination of witnesses for all telephone companies, the Public Staff, intervenors and public witnesses.

The Commission requires that each company inform its customers of the following procedures by which comments regarding the rate application can be made part of the record of the case upon which the Commission must base its decision. Persons desiring to intervene in the matter as formal parties of record should file a motion under North Carolina Utilities Commission Rules R1-6 and R1-19 ten days prior to the hearing. The testimony of intervenors shall be filed on or before November 20, 1981. Other persons desiring to present testimony for the record should appear at the public hearing. Persons desiring to send written statements to the Commission should submit their statements prior to the hearing and should include any information which those persons wish to be considered by the Commission in its investigation of the matter.
