Municipal Elections Tuesday

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

Municipal elections will be held in Greenville and eight other Pitt County towns on Tuesday and run-off balloting will take place in Farmville to decide a town board seat.

All municipal polling sites will operate from 6:30 a.m. until 7:30 p.m. tomorrow, according to Margaret Register, supervisor of the Pitt County Board of Elections.

In Greenville, voters will receive a ballot containing the names of three mayoral candidates and 11 people who are seeking the six positions on the city council.

Incumbent Don McGlohn is seeking his second term as mayor and will be opposed by former mayor Percy Cox, and newcomer Beatrice C. Terry.

Four of the six incumbent council members (Louis Clark, Judy Greene, William Hadden, and Dick McKee) are seeking re-election and their names appear on the ballot with Janice Buck, Ed Carter, Lucy Jones, Oscar Moore, George Pugh, Stuart Shinn, and Wallace Woole. Present Councilmen Joe Taft Jr. and Clarence Gray are not seeking new terms.

The council seats in Greenville will be decided tomorrow on a straight, non-partisan plurality basis, Miss Register explained. The top six candidates in the council voting and the mayoral aspirant receiving the most votes will be elected and in contrast to prior elections here, there will be no provisions for run-offs.

In addition to Greenville, area towns holding elections tomorrow include Ayden, Bethel, Falkland, Fountain, Grifton, Grimesland, Simpson and Winterville. Farmville elections were held on Oct. 6 and a run-off to decide one town commissioner seat is scheduled for tomorrow.

Miss Register pointed out that no absentee ballots are allowed for any of the municipal elections in Pitt County. She said that counting of the vote totals will begin following the closing of the polls tomorrow evening and all counting procedures are open to the public.

The elections spokesman added that curbside voting for citizens who can get to the polling site but are unable to go inside due to age, physical disability or a physical barrier encountered at the facility, will be allowed from 7 a.m. until 6 p.m. In addition, anyone needing assistance in voting will be able to request help and designate someone to aid the voter at the polling site.

Total voter registration in Greenville for tomorrow's elections is 14,063, Miss Register said.

Nov. 24 To Be Jim Graham Day

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

The Board of County Commissioners this morning designated November 24 as "Jim Graham Day" in the county to honor the N.C. Commissioner of Agriculture.

The board action was taken after Sam McLawhorn, a member of the State Board of Agriculture told the board of plans to honor Graham at a barbecue supper in Greenville on that date.

McLawhorn said 1,000 people would probably attend the dinner to "let Jim Graham know we appreciate his efforts" on behalf of agriculture over the past 20 years.

Ralph Hall, director of the physical plant at Pitt Memorial Hospital, told commissioners that the third floor of the new bed tower has been occupied and said patients would be moved into the first floor of the new wing about Thanksgiving.

"There is a need for more space," at the hospital, Hall said, asking that the board consider allowing a two-story metal building to be erected on an acre of land formally designated as part of a six acre site for the Pitt County Mental Health Clinic.

Hall said the new building would provide space for the hospital's business offices and space for education programs at the medical facility.

The board, which took no action on Hall's request, referred the matter to the Pitt County Mental Health area board for consideration.

Commissioners also presented resolutions of congratulations and appreciation to Register of Deeds Elvira Alred, Commissioner R. L. "Bob" Martin, and county Finance Officer Margaret Roberts.

The resolution to Mrs. Alred, who began her employment with the Register of Deeds office in March, 1952 and was named Register of Deeds in December, 1962, cited her service as president of the State Register of Deeds Association during 1980-1981 and her recognition by the N.C. Association of County Commissioners earlier this year as Register of Deeds of the Year.

The resolution to Martin, a member of the Board of County Commissioners since December, 1956, cited his service as chairman of the board on several occasions, his membership on the board of directors and as president of the N.C. Association of County Commissioners in the past, his membership on the board of directors of the National Association of County Officials, and his recognition by the N.C. Association of County Commissioners earlier this year as County Commissioner of the Year.

Mrs. Roberts, an employee of the county since September 1962, was honored for her service to the county in several capacities, including clerk to the board from December 7, 1970 until July of this year when the board, in order to relieve her of some responsibilities so her full time could be devoted to her job as finance officer, relieved her of her clerk duties.

Quiz Sub Skipper; Ship Is Refloated

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Two tugboats today refloated a Soviet submarine aground deep inside Sweden's territorial waters since Tuesday and Swedish military officers interrogated its skipper aboard a torpedo boat.

The developments — aimed at ending a five-day impasse — followed the Foreign Ministry's announcement of a Soviet agreement allowing the sub's commander to be questioned by Swedish authorities.

The Swedish government had said the sub was specially modified for intelligence missions. Authorities had refused to refloat the sub until they received a satisfactory explanation of the incident, saying apologies alone would not be sufficient.

Defense staff spokesman Bertil Lagervall said the submarine was taken off the rocks at the southeast coast near the Karlskrona naval base, where it had been firmly stuck since late Tuesday.

"It has been safely anchored up," he said.

Gen. Lennart Ljung, Sweden's commander in chief, told reporters that the sub's commander and its navigational officers were taken to a Swedish torpedo boat for the interrogation. He said two Soviet diplomats were allowed to attend the session.

Ljung also said the Soviets had agreed to let Swedish officers inspect the sub's navigational equipment, nautical charts and duty lists.

Today's communique from the Foreign Ministry said Soviet Ambassador Mikhail Jakovlev and Swedish Foreign Minister Ola Ullsten agreed that the questioning would take place on a Swedish ship outside the military protection zone.

The communique said those aboard the Soviet sub would be granted immunity.

The decision to refloat the submarine without waiting for the talks to end came after its assistant commander made an emergency call. He reportedly told Karlskrona naval headquarters that the sub was in danger of breaking up because of the weather. Winds as high as 80 mph were recorded in the area.

The Soviet ambassador informed Ullsten today that the Soviet Union accepted his proposals for the questioning procedure.

Solidarity Tries End Polish Wildcat Strike

By THOMAS W. NETTER
Associated Press Writer

WARSAW, Poland (AP) —

More than 250,000 Polish workers remained on strike today despite Parliament's no-strike appeal and efforts by Solidarity union leaders to end the country's worst wave of wildcat walkouts.

Poland's Roman Catholic primate, Archbishop Jozef Glemp, called for cooperation and moderation "in these difficult days for the country."

Workers were on strike in four cities protesting food shortages or demanding redress of local grievances. Leaders of the Solidarity labor federation in six cities announced plans for new strikes this week.

Solidarity chief Lech Walesa met today with strike leaders in Tarnobrzeg, southern Poland, to ask them to end their two-week-old strike by more than 100,000 workers.

Zdzislaw Kosmowski, who represents the union in the mining town of Sosnowiec, said he had convinced workers in six coal mines not to join the strikes.

"We succeeded in explaining to the workers that it was a very bad time for this kind of action," Kosmowski said. "They made this decision in a moment of emotion, but they seem to be convinced they were wrong now. Reason has won."

Solidarity's national committee was to meet Tuesday to discuss the union's response to the resolution in which the Sejm, the Polish Parliament, threatened "to equip the government with legal means dictated by the situation."

Walesa has already called for an end to wildcat strikes. But leaders of striking locals indicated the protests would continue until their demands were met.

"We won't end the strike until we have a real guarantee of conditions in which we can at least survive," said Grzegorz Popielczyk, spokesman for some 12,000 women textile workers in Zyrardow. They have been on strike for three weeks to protest scarce supplies and poor quality of food.

In Tarnobrzeg, 120 miles south of Warsaw, where workers have struck heavy industrial plants for over two weeks, the strike committee accused government negotiators of "stubbornness" for demanding the strike be ended before talks begin.

"The strike committee considers all important matters and it will have to consider both the Solidarity leadership and the Sejm resolutions," a committee spokesman said, adding, "There is almost no chance that the strike committee will decide to stop it in the next day."

A parliamentary deputy from Tarnobrzeg said the strike there has cost Poland $5 million in lost sulphur exports.

Prosecutors in the Baltic port city of Szczecin began a criminal investigation of Marion Jurczyk, a local Solidarity leader and onetime candidate for national union chief. It was the first reported investigation of a senior Solidarity official since the union was founded 15 months ago.

The official PAP news agency said he was being investigated for "criminal elements" in a speech Oct. 25 in which he called the Sejm members and the government "traitors to Polish society."

PAP quoted him as saying "a couple of gallows would come in handy" for Polish officials he called puppets of Moscow.

In a telephone interview with The Associated Press, Jurczyk denied he had spoken of gallows, saying "no, never." He would not say if he had actually called members of Parliament "traitors" and puppets of Moscow.

Astronauts Eager To Go

By HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Joe Engle and Richard Truly were flying here today, anxious to take the shuttle Columbia on its second mission and fulfill a dream of space flight that long has eluded both military pilots.

"Both are very up," a NASA spokesman said after the astronauts underwent a medical exam this morning in Houston.

Columbia's countdown passed the halfway mark and was advancing without a hitch toward launch at 7:30 a.m. EST Wednesday. With the weather outlook brightening, officials were optimistic they would make it right on time.

"We've got our hearts set on 7:30 a.m. Wednesday," said Clyde Netherton, a countdown planner with the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Test director Norm Carlson reported that today's major early activity, the loading of chemicals for the craft's electrical and environmental systems, was completed ahead of schedule and that the count had entered a scheduled 8-hour hold at 7 a.m.

Columbia is the first spaceship scheduled to make a return trip to orbit, and success would be a major milestone in transforming it into a space truck making routine trips out there.

After their medical exam, Engle and Truly finished up some paperwork at the Johnson Space Center office. Then they were to pilot separate T-38 NASA jets to Cape Canaveral, arriving at nearby Patrick Air Force Base in mid-afternoon.

While ground crews refuel their jets, they were to make a few remarks to reporters. Then they were to take off again to fly some fast proficiency patterns over central Florida. One goal: to adjust their inner ears to accelerations to reduce the possibility of motion sickness in orbit.

Motion sickness often has bothered astronauts on their first trips in space, and Engle and Truly both are rookies, although they have a combined total of 31 years as astronauts.

Each had hoped to make a flight years ago. But Engle, a 49-year-old Air Force colonel, was bumped from the final Apollo moon flight in 1969 by a geologist. And Truly, a 43-year-old Navy captain, saw his dream delayed when the Defense Department canceled a military man-in-space project in 1969.

"It's been a long time coming," Truly said in a recent interview.

"I've waited long enough," Engle, the Columbia commander, said. "I'm ready to go, and I'm really looking forward to it."

The first shuttle mission was flown by one civilian, commander John Young, and one military pilot, Navy Capt. Robert Crippen.

Engle and Truly were reported in good spirits as they met with flight controllers in Houston on Sunday and received word that the countdown to Columbia Launch II was on time.

ASTONISHED, GRATIFIED

I went to Greenville Saturday and was astonished when I got back to learn that two teenaged boys had gotten two pumpkins from my front yard, where I had them for sale, and left the money for them in my mailbox. WASHINGTON (AP) — A former Army officer today defended the forced relocation of 120,000 people of Japanese descent in World War II as essential for their own well-being in light of American hostility and the threat of an invasion of the West Coast by Japanese forces.

Retired Col. Karl E. Bendetsen, who administered the internment program, defended his own actions in testimony to a panel commissioned by Congress to investigate the episode.

He said it is unfair to condemn by current standards what was done in those "tense, explosive and trying times" and added that he would find the incident hard to believe if he had not been there himself.

But he said that in the early months of the war, with Japan scoring one Pacific victory after another, a Japanese invasion of the United States appeared likely, and Japanese living on the West Coast had to be removed for their own good because they could have been shot by the invading forces.

"If there had been an attack, it would have been too much to expect that if Japanese forces landed on the Pacific coast — as they well could have — that persons of Japanese descent would have had an easy time regardless of their feelings of remaining loyal to the United States," Bendetsen testified.

Dressed in a brown suit, he sat at a witness table before the commission with military bearing, his back absolutely straight as he recalled the events of 40 years ago. He spoke in a gravelly voice, toying with a pen in his hand.

Bendetsen said many in his audience would not be able to believe the wartime atmosphere. "If I were 30 years old, I wouldn't understand it," he said. "Unfortunately, I was there, and had an assignment I didn't ask for. ... It became essential in the first instance to ask persons of Japanese ancestry to move away from the coastal frontier."

In a long written statement, he offered a spirited defense not only of his own actions but those of President Franklin D. Roosevelt and all under him who carried out Roosevelt's order providing for the mass detention of the West Coast Japanese. The order was signed 2½ months after the Dec. 7, 1941, attack on Pearl Harbor.

"To evaluate these past actions in the perspectives of today would not be useful," Bendetsen said.

Others who appeared before a congressionally commissioned panel to investigate the episode have testified that America's action was shameful, undemocratic, unjustified and inexplicable, but Bendetsen said the critics were passing judgments from the luxury of hindsight. "The sweeping condemnations recently made of the responsible officials cannot be condoned on any basis," he said. "They were each faced with compelling necessity. The slurs and slanders of men who are above reproach demeans the character of those who cast them."

Ex-Officer Defends World War II Internments

In 14 days of hearings across the nation, the nine-member Commission on Wartime Relocation and Internment of Civilians heard from hundreds of the internees who told of losing their homes, jobs, property and dignity, and of being put in crowded barracks for up to three years. Some survivors asked for financial redress of $25,000 each.

In disagreement with most other witnesses, Sen. S.I. Hayakawa, R-Calif., told the commission in August that such proposals made his "flesh crawl with shame and embarrassment."

A citizen of Canada during the war, Hayakawa suggested the Japanese had to be relocated for their own protection. Bendetsen said critics must consider the atmosphere of the day and argued that the Japanese were treated humanely.

With reports coming in from the conquered Philippines of Japanese brutality toward captured American soldiers and civilians, he said, "anti-Japanese feeling was intense, particularly in the West Coast states. Violence was near at hand."

A weak cell of high pressure will be the dominating weather feature over North Carolina through Tuesday, although the weakened north-northeast flow around the high will mean a decrease in cloud cover. Skies were fair with patchy dense fog over much of western North Carolina and the outer banks this morning. Temperatures ranged in the upper 40s and 50s with slightly cooler readings in the mountains.

Clouds remained over the state Sunday as the result of a persistent strong northeast flow. However, by the afternoon the cloudiness began to break up over the mountains and along the coast.

Temperatures ranged from 62 at Greensboro to 79 at Jacksonville.

Under fair skies tonight, lows will dip into the 40s and 50s. Highs Tuesday will once again reach the 70s. Dry weather is also expected for the remainder of the week.

State ABC Law Revised

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A revised state law that takes effect Jan. 1, 1982, will allow the North Carolina Board of Alcoholic Control to impose civil fines against violators of state ABC laws.

The new law will also allow the board to negotiate with violators, such as a district attorney would negotiate a plea bargain in a criminal case. Currently, the board must take the violator's license or drop the charges.

Marvin L. Speight Jr., state ABC board chairman, said the change would enable the board to punish minor infringements of regulations without forcing an establishment out of business by taking its license.

Permit holders will be able to appeal fines to their county Superior Court just as they may appeal license suspensions and revocations.

William Hester, administrator for the ABC board, said violations are few among the 38,754 establishments licensed to sell beer, wine or mixed drinks. There were 509 violations in 1980, he said.

11 Known Dead In India's Hurricane

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — A powerful hurricane pummeling India's west coast has left 11 known dead and 1,400 missing, the United News of India reported today.

The domestic news agency said six Indian navy ships were searching the Arabian Sea off Gujarat state where dozens of fishing boats, with over 1,000 crewmen, were reported sunk in the storm, which packed winds up to 87 mph. Torrential rain pounded the coastal region between Bombay and the smaller port of Porbandar, washing away an entire fishing village at Rajpara, 650 miles southwest of the Indian capital, UNI said.

A Greek cargo ship, the Ioniof Hilaf, was damaged when it collided in Bombay port with the Indian cargo vessel State of Bihar, while another Indian ship, the Chand, was reported missing with eight crewmen on board en route to a Gujarat port, UNI said.

In the coastal city of Veraval, which bore the early brunt of the storm, seven persons were killed and eight seriously injured when the wall of a textile mill collapsed, UNI said. Four persons drowned when two boats sank near the port on Sunday.

The storm pushed up the coast from Veraval northwest about 60 miles to Porbandar where it remained stationary overnight, then resumed a northerly trek early today, weather officials said. It was expected to emerge as a cyclone in the Bay of Kutch later in the day.

Federal Spending Cuts Over The Next Two Years Promise Tough Decisions For Greenville's City Government

We Need Percy Cox's 15 Years Of Experience

The days of ever-increasing federal aid to city government are over. In fact, many critical responsibilities will shift to our local city government over the next two years. This means tough decisions about sources and uses of funds for Greenville. That's why we need Percy Cox's 15 years of city government experience in the Mayor's seat.

Percy Cox

As a two-term former Mayor, eight years as Mayor pro-tem, and three more years as a city council representative, Percy Cox draws on 15 years of Greenville City Government experience.

And while Percy Cox was Mayor, he was readily accessible to every citizen of Greenville.

He knows the workings of State and Federal government agencies that will determine funding for absolutely necessary city projects like our much-needed waste water treatment facility, which is an essential part in our city's planned industrial growth. He understands the importance of local input into city government. Simply put, Percy Cox can bring more resources to bear to set the priorities and make the decisions we'll have to face.

Greenville must meet the challenges of the 80's with experience. Please vote for Percy Cox for Mayor on November 3rd.

Dear Abby

Can Marriage Coexist Faiths?

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: My name is Jim and I'm in my last year of college. First off, I am a Catholic, and ever since I can remember, my mother drummed it into my head that she didn't care who I married as long as she was Catholic.

Well, for two years I've been in love with a wonderful girl, and when we graduate from college we plan to get married. You guessed it, she's not Catholic. She wants to be married in her own church (Methodist), and I can't blame her.

She hasn't asked me to give up my religion, and I'm not asking her to give up hers. We get along fine, never argue about religion, and we know we can make our marriage work.

I can't discuss this with my parents because it always ends up in a fight. I don't want to talk to my priest because I'm afraid he might try to talk me out of marrying this girl, and there's no way I will give her up.

Any advice?

JIM

DEAR JIM: If you and the girl you love can coexist in different faiths, your parents must sooner or later recognize your independence from them in matters of religion and marriage. And if they can't adjust, the loss will be theirs.

DEAR ABBY: The girl my son has been dating for the last 10 months just informed him that she is four months' pregnant! I can understand how this could have happened, but she insists on having a formal wedding. She says the planning will take time, and according to her calculations she will be seven months' pregnant when she walks down the aisle — in a white gown and veil yet!

She's already wearing maternity clothes, so there's no way she'll be able to conceal her condition at the time of the wedding.

I've always considered myself a fairly broad-minded person, but I can't for the life of me understand this girl's thinking. Am I an old fuddy-duddy or what?

GETTING OLDER BY THE MINUTE

DEAR GETTING: Not in my book. However, I understand that the maternity bridal gown is a big seller these days, so maybe we're both a couple of old fuddy-duddies.

Ayden, Farmville Cited

Community of Excellence Awards have been presented to Farmville and Ayden by Gov. Jim Hunt. The awards were given at the Governor's Conference on Economic Development recently. The awards go to various communities across the state which have established economic development programs and are recruiting new industry. Ayden prepared a publication listing prime industrial sites and giving information about services available to prospective industry. Farmville won the award for the third year. Economic development requires the constant attention of any community. Farmville and Ayden are clearly serious about their efforts to seek out new industry and these awards of excellence are an indication of that.

All Helped Stabilize Oil Price

The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries' has reached agreement on a unified base oil price of $34 per barrel. The agreement will increase gas and fuel oil prices by about 2½ cents in the United States. There is reason for cheer in the agreement, however. If it holds, the price will remain stable through all of 1982. That is important to the industrialized world which has been fighting the effects of inflation. If we know what the price of oil will be for the next 14 months it will make the job of achieving economic stability easier. The oil price stability was brought on to a great degree by the conservation practices of the American public. All of us who have been saving fuel can take some of the credit for stabilizing the price of oil.

ANOT-SO-FUNNY THING HAPPENED ON THE WAY-

Taxes: The 1980s Issue

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
NEWARK, N.J. — The managers of Rep. Jim Florio's Democratic campaign for governor of New Jersey, well aware that his once-comfortable lead has disappeared, showed they also understand the real issue in Tuesday's election by the nature of their final week's television-radio blitz. That issue is not Ronald Reagan's popularity in this state but taxes, specifically the massive tax reduction for business pushed all year by Republican candidate Thomas Kean. Thus, Florio's last media burst ignores Reagan and concentrates on painting Kean's tax plan as a handout for big corporations. Yet, it is the tax cut that brought Kean from behind to win the Republican primary last spring and is credited with closing the gap in the general election. Republican pollster Robert Teeter's final statewide survey taken Oct. 2 and 25 gave Kean a three-percentage point lead — and high marks on his tax reduction plans. This tax debate is not only Reagan-Carter revisited but is in fact the issue of the 1980s, an issue transcending taxes. Soft-peddling the liberal Republican "problem solving" approach to government that was his trademark as speaker of the New Jersey Assembly, Kean now says government is the problem. Florio argues back that government is — or at least ought to be — the solution. Jim Florio bears no superficial resemblance to the McGovernite Democratic candidates mowed down in the 1978 and 1980 elections. The grandson of an Italian immigrant ice peddler and son of a shipyard worker, Florio is a high school dropout who worked his way through college after a Navy hitch. His commercials stress this working-class background, in contrast to Kean's blue-blood pedigree (Kean's public servants in every generation dating back to the Continental Congress). Florio's anti-abortion credentials are clearer than Kean's. His anti-gun control stance makes him a favorite of the National Rifle Association. When he was touring the Revlon factory in Edison six days before the election, a scowling woman worker shouted to Florio: "Bring back the death penalty!" His quiet reply: "We'll try." Indeed, Florio contends his support for capital punishment predates Kean's conversion. Clearly, there is no real difference between the candidates on social issues. There are differences in abundance on the economy. While Kean pushes economic growth through supply-side tax cuts, a Florio television spot declares: "The only way to keep your taxes down is to make sure corporations pay their fair share." Here is the old zero-sum game, with government redistributing income. The Florio camp, considering the Kean tax cut a sure political loser for the Republican, was stunned by The New York Times poll showing New Jersey voters preferring Kean's across-the-board business tax cuts to Florio's targeted tax reductions limited to small business. Joe White, Florio's innovative media consultant, called it "pure confusion" on the part of the voters. That mirrors the attitude of Jimmy Carter's advisers, who never could believe until the very end that voters really liked Ronald Reagan's tax plan. But New Jersey labor leaders, all backing Florio, worry about their rank-and-file's affection for Kean's reduction of taxes and shrinking of government.

To dilute that sentiment, Florio's late blitz of commercials try to paint the tax cut as a handout for big business that will end up increasing everybody's property tax. One favorite TV spot tells the viewer he should favor Kean's tax program if his name is on the following list. The screen then lists Exxon, Mobil, General Motors and a dozen other big corporations. The Kean campaign is countering with 11th-hour charges of secret plans for a Democratic state tax increase (denied by Florio, who makes no promises about what happens after the first year of his governorship, however). But Kean does not seem all that comfortable with the tax issue. His final week's basic campaign speech, scouring Florio as a spender and taxer, mentions "cutting unproductive business taxes" only in passing.

"Tom Kean has tried hard," one New Jersey conservative told us, "but he really is too much of a moderate to wholeheartedly embrace the supply side." Although Kean strikes responsive note with all Jerseyites who believe government has failed in Washington, he somehow evokes the aura of the now-vanished Rockefeller-Republicanism, based on making government work. But if candidate Kean is not the Republican prototype for the 1980s, candidate Florio indeed is the authentic Democratic model: safely conservative on social issues, dedicated to a preeminent government role invigorating the economy and fairly distributing national wealth. However it comes out, the New Jersey election for governor will be repeated throughout the decade in the continuing struggle over which course the republic shall take in its third century. Design For Chocolates

BY ART BUCHWALD
As you may have noticed, the dress designers are putting their name on every product from pillowcases to automobiles. So I shouldn't have been surprised to see that Bill Blass, one of America's leading couturiers, was now designing chocolates. The copy in the ad read "Bill Blass, renowned for brilliant interpretations of American fashion, has teamed with the true aristocrat of chocolate, Godiva, to create a unique confectionary collection." How does a fashion designer create a collection of chocolates? Maybe like this: "Where is the master?" "Hush, he is in his atelier working on new bonbons for Mother's Day." "Renee, come in here right away."

"Yes, master." "I believe I've got it. Look at these sketches. What do you think?" "It's divine, master." "I've filled the bust of the chocolate with raisins, brought in the waist with vanilla cream, and put butter crunch on both hips." "Quelle inspiration! Christian Dior in his greatest days box." "Now this is my daytime chocolate that you can eat at a lunch or a fancy tea." "It's so simple and yet so chic." "I've put a tiny dash of Grand Marnier in it so it will make you feel naughty." "Oh, master, only you would think of putting a liqueur in a plain chocolate bonbon." "Now over here in the upper left-hand corner of the box I've designed a caramel. But it's not an ordinary caramel. One layer is brown, one layer is pink and one layer is peppermint." "The candy critics will go crazy when they see it. Even Yves St. Laurent never put brown, pink and peppermint in the same caramel." "Wait, there's more. Look at this one." "A seashell chocolate?" "That's what it looks like. But when you strip off the chocolate, there is a tiny white saltwater taffy ball inside. Elizabeth Taylor will go nuts over this one." "Now for my second layer. I have my big surprise. In the very center of the box I'm placing a coffee-cream-filled star with a red cherry on the bias." "Mon dieu. No wonder they call you the greatest bonbon designer in the world." "I've saved the best for last." "A perfect chocolate sparrow's egg?" "And what do you think is inside?" "Tell me, master. I can't stand the suspense." "A jellybean." "I think I'm going to faint." (c) 1981, Los Angeles Times Syndicate would have never thought of it." "Now look at this sketch. I call this 'Evening in Vienna.'" "It's so gorgeous it makes your mouth water." "Do you know what makes it different from any chocolate you've seen?" "Tell me, master." "I've put the nuts on the outside like sequins, so that you can see them before you bite into the bonbon. Most designers hide their nuts inside the chocolate and you don't know they're there. But if you put the nuts, like so, it not only adds lustero to the outside, but it says 'I'm yours.'" (Goldsboro News-Argus)

There's an old saw about telling a story often enough and people will believe it. One of the most widespread slanders in this state is that East Carolina University grew in size at the expense of quality. In drawing room conversation, public statements and editorial page comments, the suggestion is that "now" ECU needs to focus on academic "excellence." There are those who would cast former chancellor Leo Jenkins as some sort of rough-hewn brawler who beat the state out of bricks and mortar and slapped together a ragtag institution to warehouse redneck illiterates. They underestimate the man and they sell short the institution. Dr. Leo Jenkins wanted a medical school for eastern North Carolina. He wanted a nursing school at ECU. He wanted it to have a strong athletic program and a stadium befitting a university. He wanted more dormitories and classroom buildings for the fastest growing student body in the state. But at no time, consciously or unconsciously, did Leo Jenkins assign low priority to quality education. The school grew in academic excellence just as it grew in brick and mortar. It should continue to grow in excellence, as should all schools. But that effort at ECU should not be regarded as trying to "catch up." If any "catching up" is needed it is on the part of those who still feel constrained to look down their noses when they face the east. These also are the same people who begrudge ECU every new brick, every new block, every new program — people who didn't want the institution to grow in any direction, physically or in "academic excellence." What they really are saying now with their vocal interest in ECU's academics is: "Don't you rednecks start anything new over there." To supporters of East Carolina University it is a familiar refrain.

Strength For Today

THE ONE FLAW
We read in the New Testament that a young man came to Jesus one day asking what he should do to inherit eternal life. Jesus reminded him of the commandments. The questioner replied confidently that he had kept them from his youth up, and we are told that when Jesus heard this he looked upon the young man with affection. But, continued Jesus, there is one thing you lack. You have wealth. Give it up. I do not require this of all men, but I require it of you because you have made an idol of your money. Give it to the poor. Everyone is tempted to have a deep attachment for something which does not entirely square with God's will for our lives. This is a lack which may keep us from moral triumph. It may damage the divine destiny which God has in store for us unless we are resolute in our handling of it. The rich young man could not accept Christ's command and went away sorrowing. Let us hope that we can meet and accept the divine imperative when it comes. —Elisha Douglass

Changes In Growth

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — Sunbelt growth seems certain in coming years. That means growth for North Carolina whatever communities think of that or "no-growth" people desire. And growth is going to mean some elementary changes in the traditional ways that local municipal and county governments have done things. More particularly it will mean basic change in the ways the people who make up those governments — elected, appointed, or hired — relate to one another. For after all else is considered, it is still people who make government work and things happen in a given community. "The Law" is open to interpretation, and can be written in the General Assembly to suit local interests and pressures; in some cases, even local politics and personalities. All things considered, says Jake Wicker, veteran local government watcher and advisor and assistant director of the Institute of Government at Chapel Hill, "City and county officials are able, intelligent and resourceful. Thus they are capable of generating conflict out of almost any issue or question! They also are capable of resolving issues constructively." Giving examples of both attitudes at work, Wicker reviewed for county commissioners from across the state at a recent conference six areas which he sees as posing special opportunities and problems for local governments as they seek to work more closely together: —Solid waste collection and disposal. Most counties dispose of waste and some provide collection. Direction should be toward reasonable cost-sharing and assuring good service in city and county. —Water and Sewage. Cities mostly have systems in place. Counties are getting into the business all over the state. Expanding the city system is more efficient than establishing new ones. A plan for fair financing and that meshes with land-use plans pay for services; use of special tax districts on the increase; more transfer of programs to the county government with best candidates being solid waste disposal, libraries, and recreation; and continued interest in city-county consolidation. Asheville and Buncombe County are beginning a consolidation study. Other communities have explored such moves, but none have been accomplished as yet. "Experience suggests, however, that we may not see many consolidated governments within the next few years," Wicker said. Overall, Wicker suggested, local officials wrestling with relationships during growth periods should keep the public's interest uppermost, and try to view things in a total concern for present and future developments rather than focusing only on a particular, isolated problem at the moment. —Fire protection. City and county officials must work together to assure adequate protection and financing without disrupting the communities which have programs. —Law enforcement. This area most frequently leads to charges by city residents of double taxation. Small communities need more. Joint municipal-rural operations need to be explored. —Annexation. Agreements and programs for many services involving both governments can be sharply affected from both operation and financing views. Arguments are frequent. The goal, says Wicker, should be how best to provide and finance service to citizens ... not who in government runs them. Pressure As growth continues in undeveloped areas of the state, cities and counties will face added pressures. Wicker looks ahead to see more county involvement in providing urban-type services; more joint agreements between city and county people to provide and

Farm Scene

By LEROY JAMES
Agri. Ext. Agent

Caught between relatively low grain prices and currently high interest rates, many farmers are faced with hard decisions this fall. As a result of the rapid decline in grain prices, farmers are reluctant to sell their corn and soybeans. Many prefer to store their grain anticipating that prices will be higher later in the season.

The current interest rate makes storage very expensive. Thus, farmers are asking if they should store for later sale or simply sell their grain from the combine and maintain ownership by buying an equivalent amount of grain in the future market. On the surface, holding futures contracts instead of grain appears attractive. The cost of owning the future contract is quite low, a small commission fee and interest on margin money. However, the real cost is considerably higher than the sum of these two items. When cash grain is replaced with futures, the producer gives up any grain in the basis that would accrue to him if he stored the grain.

On Oct. 10, 1981, the price of corn in central North Carolina was $2.65 and the price of soybeans $6.30 per bushel. The cost of storing these crops from harvest until March includes interest on the value of the inventory, shrinkage and physical storage expenses. If grain is stored in commercial facilities for five months, shrinkage is two percent, and annual interest rates are 15 percent, then the total cost of storing corn is 34 cents per bushel. The cost of storing soybeans for the same period would be 55 cents per bushel. Hedging the stored crop on today's market for March delivery would result in a profit of about 28 cents per bushel for corn and about 23 cents per bushel for soybeans.

Estimated cost and return to store corn and soybeans for sale, in March 1982 is: cost price at harvest, corn, $2.65, soybeans, $6.30; carrying cost, corn, plus 34 cents, soybeans, plus 55 cents; break even, corn, $2.99, soybeans, $6.85. The returns for the same period are: March futures 1982, corn, $3.09, soybeans, $7.07; basis (central NC), corn, plus 18 cents, soybeans, plus one cent; expected cash price, March, 1982, corn, $3.27, soybeans, $7.08; profit, corn, 28 cents, soybeans, 23 cents.

To replace the corn with futures, the producer pays a direct cost, commission fee plus interest on initial margin, or about 2.5 cents per bushel. Interest costs could be higher if the price declined and additional margin money were required.

In addition to the direct costs, the producer should consider the potential gain he forfeits by selling the corn.

On Oct. 10, March futures closed at $3.09. Since the cash price was $2.65, the March basis was 44 cents over the past three years, the local basis has averaged about 18 cents over the March futures. Thus, the producer is giving up 62 cents in potential basis gain. Adding that figure to the direct cost brings the total cost of owning future up to 64.5 cents per bushel, about 30.5 cents above commercial storage costs and 35.5 cents above on-farm storage.

P&G Employees Make UW Gift

Procter & Gamble employees pledged a total of $84,400 to the 1981 Pitt County United Way fund drive, an average of $128 each, according to Mike Schneider, chairperson of the plant's campaign.

This contribution, the highest level of giving of any industry or institution in the history of the Pitt County campaign, represents a 16 percent increase over last year's gift.

Schneider noted that this is the fifth consecutive year that Procter & Gamble has been the largest county contributor.

Plant manager Bob Griffin presented the plant gift to United Way chairperson Reid Hooper, who noted that "P&G employees have demonstrated an unsurpassed level of charitable giving."

"This year's gift," he added, "will again play a vital role in the county reaching its goal."

See Benefits In Tax Change

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — New depreciation rules and bigger tax credits may give North Carolina's business community just the shot in the arm it needs, experts predict.

The changes are expected to help most in the struggling textile and furniture industries. Experts also say tax breaks for research and development could spur growth at the Research Triangle Park.

However, with the anticipated resurgence in industry comes a warning of declines in North Carolina's corporate tax revenues.

"We anticipate that the tax changes could lead to a big increase in capital investment," said Josh Hamilton, senior economist at the American Textile Manufacturers Institute in Washington.

Furniture analyst Jerry Epperson of Wheat First Securities Inc., said in an interview the new laws "will be enough to allow people to go out and construct or go ahead with projects they've put off for four or six years."

The new depreciation and tax credit laws are designed to spur investment in capital improvements and increase productivity. They should prove most helpful to states with large manufacturing sectors, experts say.

North Carolina's manufacturing sector ranked seventh in the U.S. in the number of large plants and 10th in value of manufacturing shipments in 1980. Approximately 35 percent of the Tar Heel state's non-farm workers are employed by manufacturing plants — a higher percentage than in any other state.

Such new laws will allow textile companies to depreciate much of their manufacturing equipment in five years, instead of the seven to 13 years under the old laws.

Tax credits also have expanded. Under old laws, buying a piece of equipment with a three- to four-year "useful life," entitled the purchaser to a 3.33 percent tax credit in the first year. Machines with a useful life of five to six years were worth twice that amount.

Under the new tax credit provisions, the credits have expanded to 6 percent and 10 percent, respectively.

distressed businesses to take advantage of the faster writeoffs and bigger tax credits, said Jack Murphy, director of taxes for the Charlotte office of Arthur Young & Co., an accounting firm.

State Senators Resist Changing Own Districts

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Why did the state Senate decide to make no re-districting changes last week — and to go into federal court with a plan its own attorneys say is likely to be struck down?

The answer, legislative observers said as the smoke cleared from the two-day special session of the General Assembly, appeared to lie in the strong inclination of legislators to resist changes in their own districts.

They won election in those districts and naturally would want to keep the same district boundaries. And their efforts sometimes took on the dimensions of a struggle for survival.

"There were certain people who were personally concerned with their own constituents, saying, 'I can't give you that county,' or 'I don't want that county,'" observed Sen. William Creech, D-Wake.

That reluctance to change districts was at work last June when the Senate agreed to a redistricting plan that altered only five of the existing, 10-year-old district lines. That map was left standing when the Senate went home Friday, even though it has a large, 23 percent variation in the number of people in the smallest to largest districts.

State Justice Department lawyers, who must defend the plan in a suit filed by the NAACP Legal and Education Defense Fund, said the variation should be reduced below 10 percent if it was to stand a good chance in court. That, they said, would be more in line with the U.S. Supreme Court's one-person one-vote ruling, a doctrine requiring equal representation for all people.

But particularly in the state Senate, the changes needed to achieve a population variation under 10 percent would have required altering districts that included those represented by some of the legislature's most powerful Democrats.

In fact, there were many districts held by veteran Democratic senators in which the 1980 census figures showed the districts to be actually over-represented — where there were too few people to evenly support the amount of Senate representation they have.

That pattern was not discussed by senators on the occasions when they allowed the public into their redistricting meetings. But it was a point that was discussed by some close to the redistricting process.

"There is over representation in areas where there are powerful Democratic senators, particularly some in the East," said one lawyer closely familiar with the Senate maps, who asked not to be named to avoid offending those Senate powers. "There's a clear pattern."

There were population imbalances in districts across the breadth of the state in the Senate plan, so the needed changes were not confined to one region. And the districts farthest out of balance were Guilford and Wake counties.

Over-representation is shown in redistricting maps by negative percentages of variation from the ideal number of people needed to support one legislator. A positive variation means under-representation.

Using that yardstick, the instances of district over-representation as opposed to under-representation did occur more often in the eastern areas than in the rest of the state. Of the 11 districts east of Raleigh and Fayetteville, not including those two cities, eight had fewer people than the ideal number to support their amount of Senate representation. One of the three with too many people was the district that includes New Hanover County, which has a Republican senator.

Seven other districts with negative variations were in the Piedmont and West.

"It stares you right in the face," said the observer.

"That indicates where the power is here," said another non-legislator who has worked with the committee and also asked not to be identified.

Those districts include some of the most established, influential members of the Senate, such as Sen. Harold Hardison, D-Lenoir, chairman of the Appropriations Committee. Hardison said in an interview it was "coincidence."

"You've got minuses all over the state," said Hardison, a redistricting subcommittee chairman.

But a Piedmont legislator, Sen. Robert Jordan, D-Montgomery, called the pattern "an underlying thing" in the reapportionment process.

"What's happened is the East hasn't kept up in population growth with the Piedmont," Jordan said. "So at this time, they do have over-representation. That's just where we are today."

The trend was continued, Jordan said, as senators were "protecting everybody's bailiwick."

In the House plans, over-representation was corrected in the northeastern corner of the state by deleting one House seat from the region.

The Senate, rather than make further changes, decided to see what the federal courts and the U.S. Justice Department would say. They were hoping that if the plans are rejected the courts will let the Senate have another chance to draw a new plan — rather than the judges doing it for them.

300,000 Households In N.C. Can Get Heat Aid

An estimated 300,000 low-income households across the state will be eligible for financial help with their heating bills this winter through the federal Low-Income Energy Assistance Program.

Applications will begin being taken Monday at local social services departments, with continuation through Dec. 11. Priority will be given to the elderly and the handicapped.

According to George Fleming, assistant director for program administration, N.C. Dept. of Human Resources, Division of Social Services, "the program provides a one-time payment to help eligible households pay their heating bills. However, it is not the purpose of the program to pay all of a household's heating bills, but to provide some relief from the high costs of energy."

Last year approximately 210,000 households received assistance under the program with payment averaging $155 per household. The lowest payment was $59; the highest, $361. The amount of payment a household received depended on the number of people in the household, their income, the region of the state in which they lived and the type of heating fuel used.

North Carolina's share of the $1.865 billion in federal funds authorized by Congress for this year's program is $35.6 million. Fleming said that, since Congress has not yet appropriated any funds for the program, he hopes this amount is not reduced when funds are appropriated.

The Department of Human Resources has been designated as the state agency responsible for the administration of the program. County social services departments across the state will determine eligibility.

The only households that may be eligible for financial assistance are those that have heating bills. For those in a private living arrangement, their heating cost may be included in the rent. Households that live in public housing or receive a utility allowance from the HUD Section 8 Program will be eligible for a partial payment if their utility allowance does not cover all their heating costs. Unlike last year, when households who were receiving Supplemental Security Income, food stamps or AFDC did not have to apply, all households will be required to apply for the program this year. Elderly or handicapped individuals may send a representative to apply for them or call the social services department for other arrangements.

County social services departments will be working with local councils on aging and other groups to make sure the elderly and handicapped know about the program and have access to the application process.

"A one-time payment will be made in early February after all low-income households have applied and eligibility has been determined," Fleming said.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market raked up a broad gain in heavy trading today, continuing Friday's strong rally amid anticipation of further declines in interest rates. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which jumped 19.60 on Friday, rose 9.89 to 862.44 by noon today. Advances held a 5-1 lead over declines among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues. Open-market money rates fell sharply late last week and today. After the close on Friday, the Federal Reserve lowered its discount rate — the charge it sets on loans to its member commercial banks — from 14 to 13 percent. Today numerous large banks across the country reduced their prime lending rates from 18 to 17 1/2 percent. There were forecasts of more cuts soon in the basic charge on blue-chip loans. Bank stocks attracted buyers. Citicorp led the active list, up 1/4 at 24 1/2, and Chase Manhattan climbed 1 1/2 to 56. The NYSE's composite index gained .99 to 71.63. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 6.32 at 318.34. Volume on the Big Board reached 32.31 million shares by noon, against 20.24 million at the same point Friday.

Claims Sum Inadequate

SUN CITY WEST, Ariz. (AP) — Compensation offered by the federal government to the 52 Americans who were held hostage in Iran is "totally inadequate," says Robert Ode, one of the former captives. The former hostages have been offered about $5,550, in addition to back pay, for their 14 months in captivity.

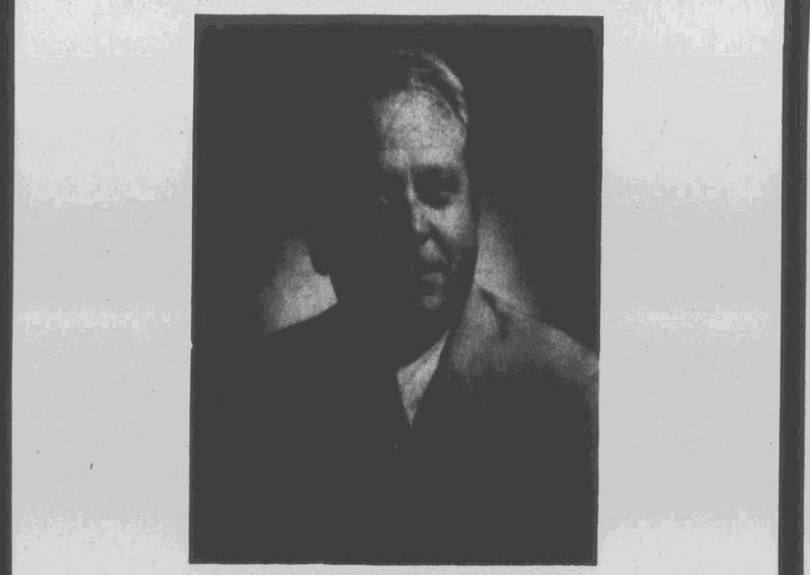

"We lived in danger of our lives and under prison conditions for 444 days and I think the amount recommended by the president's commission is totally inadequate," Ode said in an interview Sunday with the Arizona Republic, a Phoenix newspaper. "The niggardly sum of $12.50 a day is an insult to the hostages who served their country well," Ode said. Ode, 65, said taxpayers need not pay for the compensation "because Iran, when it becomes more stable, will want to have diplomatic ties with the U.S." Reimbursement of the compensation should be a condition of the re-establishment of those ties.

All Savers at BB&T. Better than money market rates.
What makes our All Savers rate such a good deal—and, for many people, a better deal even than the money market certificate—is one simple fact: you'll get the first $1000 in interest free of all federal tax. In fact, if you file a joint return, you can get up to $2000 in tax-free interest. With an initial deposit of $500 or more, you can lock this rate in for a whole year now with our one-year All Savers certificates. But hurry. The All Savers rate will change at the beginning of next month. The yield of 10.77% is based on an annual rate of 10.272% compounded monthly with interest left on deposit until maturity. You will lose tax benefits if you withdraw your money early or use your certificate as security for a loan. There is a substantial interest penalty for early withdrawal.

Seek Way To Save Wild Elk

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A five-year study, paid for with a $25,000 grant from two private foundations, is under way to find a way to protect Pennsylvania's wild elk from a parasitic worm that kills the animals. The herd in western Pennsylvania was imported from the Rocky Mountains in 1913, 33 years after the state's last native elk was killed.

49ers Defeat Steelers For Sixth Straight Win

By The Associated Press
The San Francisco 49ers may have reached the point where they won't surprise anyone else around the National Football League... unless they lose, that is.

Picked no better than third in the National Football Conference West by most prognosticators, the 49ers raised some eyebrows this year with six victories in their first eight games, including a romp over Dallas and a road triumph against Los Angeles.

San Francisco did it again Sunday with a 17-14 road win over the Pittsburgh Steelers, giving the 49ers six victories in a row and a 7-2 record, best in the NFL along with the Cowboys and Philadelphia.

"When we beat the Rams, I think people started to believe in us," said Carlton Williamson, one of three rookies in San Francisco's defensive backfield. "But we knew this was going to be a big test. Now maybe everybody will believe we're for real."

"This was the best physical test for us, playing away from home and playing in this stadium, where very few teams win," said 49ers Coach Bill Walsh. "I'm proud we could stand in against this team and hold our own."

Quarterback Joe Montana had thrown a 49ers-record 122 passes without an interception until Steelers cornerback Mel Blount picked one off and ran 50 yards for a touchdown to cut a San Francisco lead to 10-7 in the third quarter.

Montana threw another interception — to linebacker Jack Lambert — on the 49ers' next possession, and Pittsburgh converted the turnover into a 22-yard touchdown pass from Terry Bradshaw to Jim Smith.

But Montana engineered a 43-yard touchdown drive in the fourth quarter after Williamson intercepted a Bradshaw pass, the Steelers' sixth turnover of the day. Walt Easley ran the final yard for the game-winning touchdown with 5:35 to go.

"This is a big win, really big when you beat Pittsburgh in Pittsburgh," said Montana, who spent his childhood a few miles from the city. "It means a lot, especially for our season. I was a Steeler fan growing up, so it was a little extra special."

"He's a tremendously resourceful quarterback," said Walsh. "When he makes a mistake, he doesn't get too upset. He played brilliantly."

Bradshaw was especially frustrated by his team's turnovers, which included three interceptions of his passes by the young 49ers secondary.

"You just want to take a hammer and pound your head in," Bradshaw said. "It's just so frustrating. You'd like to go someplace and hide, but there's no place to go."

Cowboys 17, Eagles 14
Dallas tied Philadelphia for the NFC East lead by rallying for two touchdowns in the fourth quarter to overcome a 14-3 deficit.

Danny White connected with backup tight end Doug Cosbie on a 17-yard TD pass to cut the margin to 14-10 and then Tony Dorsett scored on a 9-yard run with 7:24 left to put the Cowboys ahead to stay.

"When we're behind, we always come out to play our best football," said White.

Dolphins 27, Colts 10
David Woodley passed for two touchdowns and ran for a third to lead Miami over Baltimore, which lost its eighth straight game after a season-opening victory.

Woodley ran 3 yards on a draw for the Dolphins first score in the first quarter and later hit Duriel Harris with a 22-yard scoring pass and Ron Lee for a 7-yard TD.

The Dolphins are 6-2-1 and lead the Bills by one-half game in the American Conference East.

Bengals 34, Oilers 21
Ken Anderson threw for two touchdowns during Cincinnati's 24-point second quarter, and finished with three scoring passes while completing 21 of 30 throws for 281 yards against Houston.

Anderson's touchdown aerials went to tight end Dan Ross for 6 yards and to Cris Collinsworth for 18 yards before the half. Cincinnati, which took over first place in the AFC Central with a 6-3 record, built its lead to 34-7 in the third quarter on Anderson's 14-yard scoring pass to Ross.

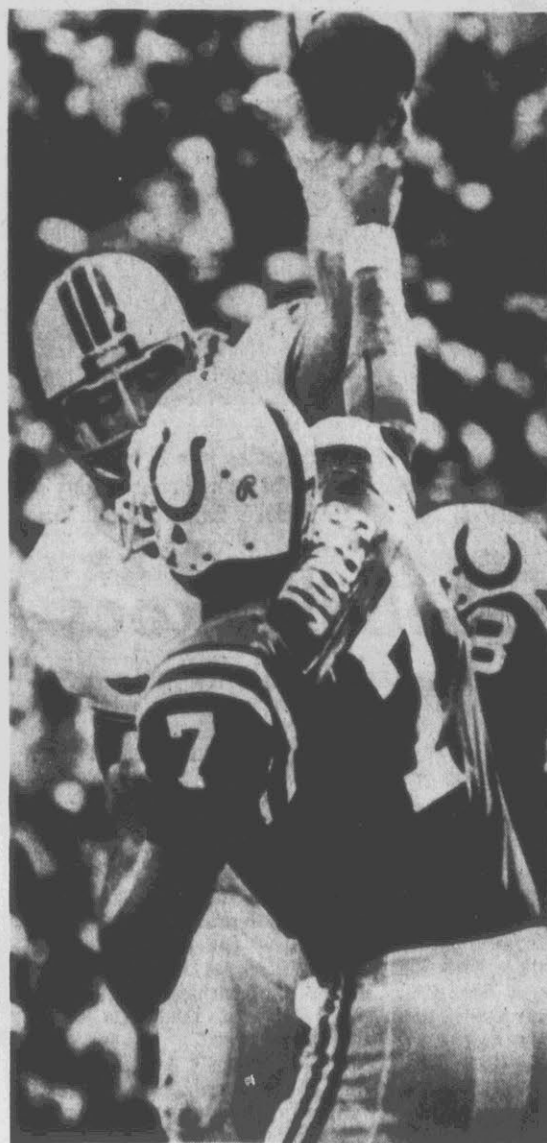

Star runner Earl Campbell and quarterback Ken Stabler both had to leave the game with injuries for Houston.

Bills 22, Browns 13
Joe Cribbs caught three touchdown passes from Joe Ferguson and finished with five receptions for 163 yards, 14 yards short of the Buffalo record.

Ferguson connected on TD passes for 58, 15 and 60 yards to Cribbs, who added 85 yards rushing on 23 carries. The Buffalo defense hounded Cleveland quarterback Brian Sipe all day, sacking him six times.

Jets 26, Giants 7
Pat Leahy kicked four field goals, Richard Todd threw a 39-yard touchdown pass to Wesley Walker and the New York Jets' defense registered nine sacks to make a runaway of the game between the two metropolitan-area rivals.

Waltrip On 'Inside Track'

Win 4th Straight, 12th This Year For Kentuckian

ROCKINGHAM, N.C. (AP) — Darrell Waltrip had the inside track when it counted in Sunday's $196,400 American 500 NASCAR race at the North Carolina Motor Speedway, and he did make it count.

"Inside was the only place you could run," Waltrip said afterward. "Outside was too slick. This is a groove track." Bobby Allison found out on the 487th lap of 492-lap race how important the inside groove was. That was when Waltrip pushed the nose of his Buick to the inside of Allison's car for a final bid at the lead.

Allison ran out of track as the two headed into the third turn and had to back off, allowing Waltrip to go ahead to his fourth straight victory and his 12th triumph this season.

"We survived the first half when Richard Petty ran so well," Waltrip said. "I knew it would be a tight race. I knew the last 20 laps were going to be real hard."

It proved to be as difficult as Waltrip expected. In the end, Waltrip's pit crew took care of part of the problem.

When the leaders pitted during a caution flag on the 412th lap, Petty and Allison beat Waltrip into the pits. But his Mountain Dew-sponsored Dew Crew had Waltrip Buick back in action first.

That same pit crew turned in another brilliant performance on the 452nd lap, getting Waltrip in and out of pit row without relinquishing the lead.

"That was the key," Waltrip said. "If I had to work around Petty and Harry (Gant), it would've been too late to get to Bobby (Allison). The race would have been over."

The victory, Waltrip's second on the 1.017-mile high-banked oval, earned him a $23,410 payday, running his season's winnings up to $526,400. He also finished ahead of Allison for the 13th consecutive time and increased his Winston Cup point lead to 68.

"I didn't have any problems all day," Waltrip said, later admitting he fell far behind Petty because one set of tires did not function as well as expected.

Petty experienced similar problems, only his came at a time when it was too late to recover.

"The four new tires we put on during our last stop just (weren't) as good as the four we took off," Petty said. "That's the way it goes. Besides, Darrell and Bobby really took off there at the end."

Waltrip finished with an average speed of 107.399 mph, despite the fact the race was slowed 12 times for caution flags involving 96 laps.

A crowd of 35,000 had 33 lead changes to cheer about, with 11 drivers fronting the pack at different times. Waltrip led eight times for 163 laps.

Waltrip started the race from the pole, the same place he had started the three previous races. Even a week's delay due to rain did not dampen his winning ways.

"I feel like I'm in the prime of my career this year," the 34-year-old Owensboro, Ky., native said. "We have really come on strong the last half of the year."

Gant held Petty off for third place, a great deal better than Gant's last-place finish in the National 500 at the Charlotte Motor Speedway three weeks ago.

The only other driver to finish on the same lap with the leaders was Joe Ruttman, the fastest qualifier but a 16th-place starter since his pre-race effort came on the second day of time trials.

Benny Parsons finished sixth with Terry Labonte, Bill Elliott, Dale Earnhardt and Jody Ridley rounding out the top 10.

Two stops remain on the 1981 NASCAR tour, with the next stop scheduled for Nov. 8 at Atlanta for the Atlanta Journal 500.

Let's Rescue Rescue

This advertisement is placed so that the voting public can be aware of the position of candidates on rescue services in Greenville and the surrounding area, as this Committee sees it.

Incumbents: The Committee is aware that the present City Council did not create the present structure of the Fire/Rescue as it now exists. However, on April 10, 1980, a group of interested citizens and members of this Committee requested of the City Council at a formal meeting that they reconsider giving autonomous administration to the Rescue services here. A petition bearing the signatures of 1700 registered voters, which would have been 4000 if the meeting had been one week later, was presented backing up this request. The only action taken was the comment by Mayor McGlohon that they were waiting for an independent study by the Chamber of Commerce concerning this matter. The Chamber of Commerce report is dated July 16, 1980, and makes several recommendations, but our Committee is unable to find any public acknowledgement of this report. Consequently, our Committee can only assume that the incumbent Mayor and City Councilmen, four of whom are running for re-election, are satisfied to let the situation stay status quo and seek its own level.

Nonincumbents: At the League of Women Voters Candidate Forum Tuesday night, Oct. 27, the question was asked of each of the nonincumbents if they felt Rescue services could be improved and, if so, what action would they take if elected. Their answers all were affirmative that there could be improvement and their approach to the subject would be to restudy it, and one or two candidates to give it autonomous administration, and in the case of the ex-mayor, Percy Cox, stated that along with other things that he would like to be elected to help correct mistakes made during his administration in respect to the Fire/Rescue motion.

East Carolina's final chance for a major upset went by the boards Saturday afternoon. But it wasn't before the Pirates had a chance at it.

West Virginia, which seems to have a tradition of a letdown following its meeting with Penn State, was ripe for the picking, but the Pirates just didn't have the stuff to get the ball into the end zone.

It marked the second straight game that the Pirates have failed to score a touchdown. The strong toe of Chuck Bushbeck has been the only effective offensive weapon the Pirates have had during the period.

But, there were some pleasant surprises in the game. The Pirates unveiled some hope for the future in the running of three freshmen, Stefan Adams, Bubba Bunn and Scott Lewis. All three ran the ball well, giving the Pirates hope for being able to move the ball in upcoming games and in future years.

West Virginia is the final "major" team the Pirates face this year, but that doesn't mean that everything will be rosy from here on out. This Saturday, the Pirates host East Tennessee State, and the record with that school is anything for great. East Carolina has won but one of six meetings with that school.

The Buccaneers will bring a 5-3 record into the contest, having beaten Tennessee Tech, Marshall, The Citadel, Western Carolina and Wofford. They fell to UT—Chattanooga, 17-0, this past Saturday.

Then, the next week, a resurgent William & Mary comes to town. The Indians, who always seem to play the Pirates tough, got off to a rocky start, losing their first four games. But they have won three of the last four, including Dartmouth, Marshall and James Madison, falling only to Navy.

East Carolina still has the chance to finish the year with a winning record, 6-5, but it will take fine performances from the team each of the next two weekends.

Then, it will be off to the recruiting wars for Coach Ed Emory and his staff.

In retrospect, people of Eastern Carolina now know just how good the University of Miami is. You folks who said time and again that you wanted quality opponents got one last week. But apathy apparently set in.

It appears still there too — apathy that is. In the past week, we've only received three replies to our question of who the fans would like to see in Ficklen. Anybody out there care? Drop us a line.

We'd like to take a pause to congratulate Rose High School's cross-country teams for their final performances in the state meets this past Friday.

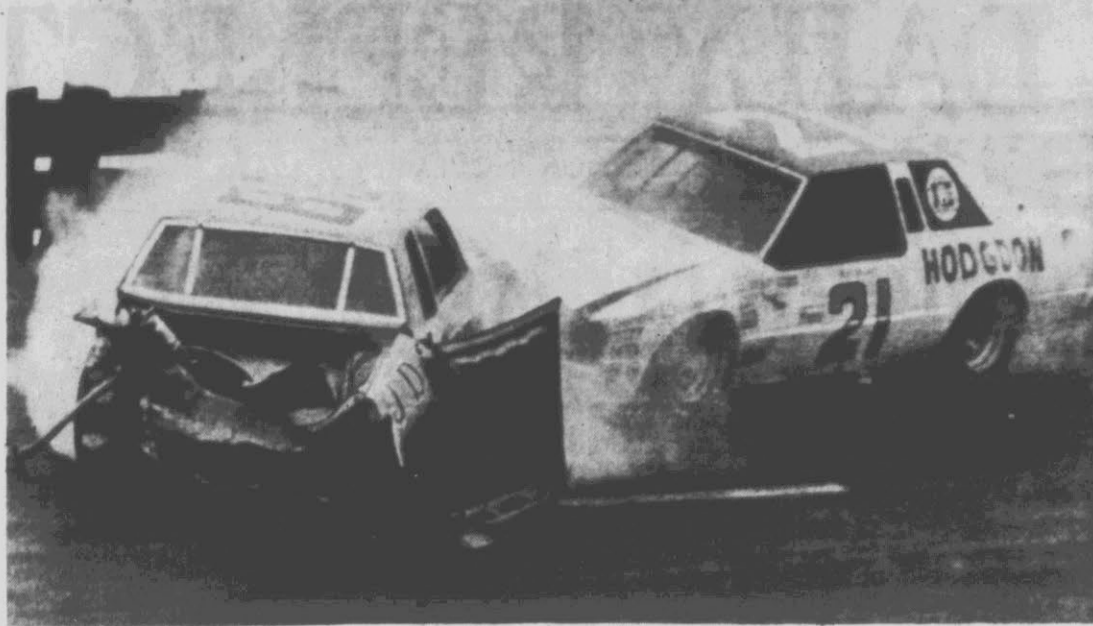

Kenny Smith finished second overall, while Harry Williams was fifth, and Rose finished fourth. John Ormond, another member of the team, ran injured, and still helped the cause.

The Rose girls finished tenth in the standings, and both teams will help the Rampants earn points in the Wachovia Cup charts.

A pat on the back to these fine young athletes and their coach, Ron Hochmuth.

Baseball Execs In Trade Market

PARADISE VALLEY, Ariz. (AP) — Apparently, standing with a pat major league baseball roster is courting disaster, say executives of three franchises that had varying degrees of success this past season.

Milwaukee Brewers' General Manager Harry Dalton said Saturday that his club is pursuing "pitching and an extra outfielder" and is "looking at the Seattle Mariner roster for some possibilities."

Meanwhile, California Angels' Executive Vice President E.J. "Buzzy" Bavasi and his Phillies' counterpart, Bill Giles, said their respective teams need pitching help — with Philadelphia looking at the free-agent market.

But Giles cautioned that the National League Eastern Division runners-up are not going to go haywire spending money.

Bavasi, seeing his squad near the American League Western Division cellar the past few years, said: "If I stand pat, I'll finish last. We need pitching, like everybody does, and I'm here to look the field over."

Ironically, Bavasi hinted that the Angels may use minor league lefthander Dennis Rasmussen — a Creighton University and Arizona Instructional League standout — as trade bait.

"We don't have any untouchables," Bavasi said. "If we can, we'd like to hold onto this kid. He has a chance to make the big club this spring. Rod Carew came over here last week and raved about Rasmussen. He struck out seven Dodgers in a row in one (instructional) game. He's awesome when he's right."

Chicago Cubs' new General Manager Dallas Green, trying to avoid another nightmarish season, said his club may pedal slugging first baseman Bill Buckner — a player Giles said the Phillies "would love to have."

The major league owners and general managers wrapped up their three-day meetings Saturday at this plush Phoenix-area resort.

Giles said most of the teams "put some deals on the table but won't start to talk turkey until the winter meetings" at Hollywood, Fla.

Also tabled Saturday until the December caucus were voting on a proposed three-division alignment and refinements in baseball's national television and radio package dealing specifically with interleague territorial agreements.

Commissioner Bowie Kuhn said ratification of the concept would require "the unanimous vote of the National League and a 75-percent majority of American League teams."

Kuhn told the Associated Press that he "wouldn't be surprised if we had a three-division setup by 1983. There is fair interest in the subject and it looks to have good support."

Co-chairmen of a committee selected to study the proposed realignment are Montreal Expos' owner Charles Bronfman and Brewers' owner Allan H. "Bud" Selig.

The two said the group has even drawn up mock schedules — with American League teams playing balanced schedules and National League clubs playing 22 games in their own division plus 12 against those in the other two divisions.

Giles predicted here Thursday night that the off-season would produce the most active "Hot Stove League" ever with numerous transactions.

New York Yankees' owner George Steinbrenner said he came here looking to make "two, maybe three, deals." Steinbrenner departed empty-handed late Friday night but "left a couple of shadows — me, (vice president Bill) Bergesch and (vice president Cedric) Tallis," said Yankee scout Birdie Tebbetts.

But no deals were consummated here, despite "considerable groundwork set down," according to Giles.

Rozelle, Ariz. Governor Discuss Phoenix Franchise

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Arizona Gov. Bruce Babbitt has reportedly met with National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle to discuss the possibility of a franchise in Phoenix.

An aide to Babbitt said the governor flew to New York Friday for a meeting with Rozelle "on behalf of the state" and was not representing any interests that may finance an NFL expansion team.

"His intention was to find out what the obstacles are," the aide said Saturday, adding that it was "an exploratory meeting."

Normalcy Returning To College Football?

The college football season has been one of the scariest ever, but there are signs that normalcy may be returning.

Nebraska and Oklahoma are 1-2 in the Big Eight, Alabama and Georgia are the only teams with perfect records in Southeastern Conference play and, just like old times, there is Ohio State atop the Big Ten with Michigan right on its heels.

Although they were not ranked in The Associated Press Top Twenty last week, the Ohio State Buckeyes took over the Big Ten lead Saturday with a 45-33 triumph over Purdue as Cedric Anderson set up one touchdown by blocking a punt and scored twice on passes of 47 and 23 yards from Art Schlichter.

That gave the Buckeyes a 4-1 conference mark, just ahead of 15th-ranked Michigan, a 3-13 winner over Minnesota; Illinois, which knocked off No.16

Iowa 24-7, and Wisconsin, which handed Northwestern its 28th consecutive setback 52-0, tying the major college record for futility. Michigan, Illinois and Wisconsin all have 4-2 league marks to Ohio State's 4-1. Iowa is 3-2.

The Pacific-10 Conference, which provides the host team in the Rose Bowl, also has a tight five-team race thanks to fourth-ranked Southern California's 41-17 trouncing of No.14 Washington State as Marcus Allen rushed for 289 yards and scored four times.

Tenth-ranked Arizona State, idle over the weekend, leads with a 4-1 mark. Washington, ranked No.18 and a 42-31 winner over Stanford, is 4-1 to 3-1 for Southern Cal and 3-1-1 for both UCLA and Washington State.

'Bear' One Win Away From Mark

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) — Amos Alonzo Who? Bear Bryant has nothing to say on the subject.

"I have no comment. I've commented too much already," Bryant said Saturday after moving within one of Stagg's all-time coaching mark of 314 victories when eighth-ranked Alabama knocked off No. 7 Mississippi State 13-10. Alabama, 7-1-1 overall, leads the Southeastern Conference at 5-0 to 4-0 for Georgia and MSU's 3-1.

In fact, Bryant said he was unaware that his 313th career triumph tied him with Glenn "Pop" Warner for second place.

"I didn't know that," he said. "I had the privilege of playing against Coach Warner's team (Stanford) in the Rose Bowl. He was an excellent coach."

But Bryant continued to insist that "I don't think coaches win games. Players win games. But I think our coaches did a good job preparing them mentally for this game. We haven't played like that this year."

He was referring to Alabama's staunch defense, which more than made up for seven lost fumbles that continually gave Mississippi State excellent field position.

"I've been around a long time and I've seen a lot of football games, but I never recall being involved in one exactly like that where there were so many turnovers," Bryant said. "I thought our team showed about as much guts, determination and pride as one could."

"Time after time after time, it looked like we were in position to win the game and we'd put them in position to win. But the defense rose up time after time after time and made the big play."

The biggest was an interception by strong safety Tommy Wilcox at his own 1-yard line that gave Alabama possession with 18 seconds left after the Bulldogs had driven from their 22 to the Bama 9.

"Coach Bryant always says that if you don't think they can score, then you can stop them," Wilcox said. "The credit should go to the linemen who rushed (quarterback John) Bond hard and to the linebacker (Eddie Lowe) who tipped the pass. I had the easy part — just catch the football."

Kramer Squaring Off Against Morton Tonight

DENVER (AP) — This is a tale of two quarterbacks, one 38 years old, the other 26.

The former operates on a pair of legs that bear the signs of lengthy warfare in the National Football League. Numerous knee surgeries and constant pounding have caused his knees to nearly face each other, creating an agonizingly slow gait on the mercifully rare occasions when he is forced to run.

He has known both acclaim and derision while playing in Dallas and New York, but mostly cheers in his five seasons as the Denver Broncos' quarterback.

Craig Morton, like a fine wine, seems to have gotten better with age. Always a picture passer despite his other infirmities, Morton has emerged this season as the No. 1 passer in the NFL, having completed 62 percent of his throws for 1,847 yards and 16 touchdowns, with just seven interceptions.

His counterpart on the Minnesota Vikings in Monday night's nationally televised NFL game here is Tommy Kramer, who, in his fifth pro season, is nearing his prime.

Kramer, a prolific passer as a collegian at Rice, interned for two seasons until Fran Tarkenton retired, then took his lumps while learning the pro system.

This season Kramer, despite being injured early in the year, has been nearly as proficient as Morton, completing 54 percent of his passes for 1,853 yards and the same 16-7 touchdown-to-interception ratio as Morton.

Kramer is responsible for a Viking passing attack that ranks first in the National Conference, and that poses an interesting matchup against a Bronco defense that ranks No. 1 in the NFL in both total defense and pass defense.

While Morton has been throwing primarily to young wide receiver Steve Watson, who has 10 touchdown catches including grabs of 95 and 93 yards, Kramer throws indiscriminately to his wide receivers, tight end and running backs. Viking fullback Ted Brown is the league's top receiver with 48 catches, but wide receiver Sammy White has 37 and tight end Joe Sener 35.

Both quarterbacks are main reasons their teams bring 5-3 records into the Monday night game.

"Kramer makes them go," said Denver Coach Dan Reeves. "He has great vision, and he finds the open receiver. I think they've only lost one game with him at quarterback."

Viking Coach Bud Grant says a major change in the Bronco offense from past seasons is their "big-play" potential through the air. "You have to have a lot of respect for Morton," Grant said.

Grant scoffed at suggestions that Kramer has suddenly burst onto the scene. "Tommy hasn't suddenly arrived," said Grant. "He has been at this stage the last three years. He's a bona fide big-league quarterback, and the longer he plays, like Morton, the better he'll get because of the experience he'll gain."

Blazers Beat Sonics

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Portland's lack of rebounding in several preseason games caused Blazer Coach Jack Ramsay some concern, but he's beginning to feel better about things.

In fact, he felt much better after the Blazers dominated Seattle in a 104-94 National Basketball Association victory Sunday night.

The Blazers out-rebounded the Sonics, 58-39, on the way to their second NBA victory in as many games. Seattle dropped to 1-1.

"Our rebounding was solid," Ramsay said. "I was pleased with our young guys — with the defense of Darnell Valentine and the solid play of Pete Verhoeven."

The Blazers also out-rebounded Phoenix 44-43 in a 103-95 victory Friday night.

Wonder Woman Tries, But Movie Lacks Drama

Newscast Hit By Shakeups

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Andy Friendly, producer of "Entertainment Tonight," has resigned from the 7-week-old industry newscast in a dispute over its ratio of hard news to features.

The show has been criticized as lightweight by newspaper television critics, who say its not fulfilling its promise to be the "watchdog" of the entertainment industry.

"We wanted more news," Rich Frank, president of television and video distribution for Paramount Pictures, said Saturday. Paramount shares ownership of the show with Cox Broadcasting, Taft Broadcasting and TeleRep.

"We're not reporting on AWACS or curing cancer, but we should be on top of the industry," Frank said. "We felt we could cover it better and in more depth. We didn't think the show was taking advantage of its satellite capabilities."

The show's co-host, Marjorie Wallace, also will be leaving soon, Frank said, because, "It was felt that she was better at doing pieces outside the studio than reading information as co-host."

Ron Hendron will continue as host and Tom Hallick will remain as roving reporter for the show, which premiered Sept. 14 with the highest pre-sold number of markets in television history. It is sent by satellite to 114 stations in the United States with a weekly audience estimated by the A.C. Nielsen Co. at 22 million.

In an interview last week, Friendly denied the show shied away from controversy. "I'm proud of what we did on pressure groups and on the Washington-Hollywood connection," he said.

Friendly is the son of former CBS News Vice President Fred Friendly.

May Turn To Song & Dance

NEW YORK (AP) — Richard Thomas has left his role on Broadway, but he's vowing to return to the Great White Way as a song-and-dance man.

Thomas, who played John-Boy in the television series "The Waltons," passed his role in the play "Fifth of July" to Timothy Bottoms Sunday. But he said he will be back on the stage next year in a musical.

"I can't say what it is because it's still in the discussion stage," said Thomas, 30, "but I can tell you it's a classic — a great role with singing, dancing, comedy and marvelous characterizations."

Later this month, he is to appear in "Barefoot in the Park" in Seattle.

Kinston High To Give 'L'il Abner'

KINSTON — The Kinston High School Drama Club will present the musical "L'il Abner" for three evening performances on Saturday, Sunday and Monday, November 7, 8 and 9.

The cast includes 50 Dogpatch characters. Curtain time is 8 p.m. each evening.

For more information and ticket reservation, call the high school at 527-8067.

NEW YORK (AP) — "Born To Be Sold," a television movie about an illegal baby-selling ring, would have been more interesting and entertaining if "60 Minutes" was doing the sleuthing.

Instead, Lynda Carter provides some derring-do as activist social worker Kate Carlin, whose concern for a 14-year-old client extends to break-ins and other risks beyond the call of duty.

Miss Carter and her husband, Ron Samuels, produced tonight's NBC movie, and their hearts were in the right place. Miss Carter wants to mothball her Wonder Woman costume and take on significant roles. Her previous production, "The Last Song," focused on the dangers of chemical waste disposal.

But despite these good intentions, tonight's film never achieves the drama that would provoke strong concerns and feelings about cradle-buying.

A liberal tone is established immediately when a white co-worker of Kate's ogles a black cop. The scene then shifts to a home for unwed mothers, where the women mope around watching TV quiz shows. NBC is identified as their channel of choice, perhaps an explanation for their blue funk.

It's obvious that this home is not where the heart is. House father Marty Helick (Dean Stockwell) is a shifty character, whose concern for the pregnant woman extends only to their forking over babies to lawyer Robert Westfield, played assuredly by Harold Gould.

Westfield runs an adoption agency that, for a large fee, will dispense with normal legalities and find babies for families rejected by other organizations, sort of the assigned risk of adoption.

Cindy has misgivings about dealing away her baby. It turns out her mother, who pressured her into selling the child, has already spent some of the money. Cindy sneaks away from the home and calls Kate into time to deliver — in record time — a squeaky clean baby. Remember, we're talking Wonder Woman here.

But Kate can't prevent Westfield from enforcing the contract Cindy signed. The rest of the movie traces Kate's efforts to return Cindy's baby and expose Westfield's operation.

Whether teen-agers are mentally and emotionally capable of raising children is given short shrift here. Cindy is irresponsible and gets pregnant again soon after giving birth. But age is only one factor in the complicated issue of whether black-market babies can provide family opportunities for loving parents who would otherwise be restricted by red tape and regulations.

"Born To Be Sold" really doesn't cover this perspective, rigidly restricting the story by selecting an unloving, pill-popping mother as the sole example of black-market parenting. Several weeks ago, "60 Minutes" focused on a companion situation, in which a married couple paid a surrogate mother $10,000 to bear the baby the wife couldn't have. In 15 minutes, Morley Safer explored the feelings of the three parents and all the legal ramifications.

In two hours, "Born To Be Sold" just glossed over these things. Entertainment programming can get away with this when it's engrossing and exciting, but tonight's film evolves into a run-of-the-mill detective yarn. It's Miss Carter's production, so she's the star, although her acting is a weak link. Miss Carter has proven to be a versatile entertainer in Las Vegas, but subtle, convincing characterizations are not her forte.

It's interesting how her sex image is treated in the role of an innercity social worker. Her wardrobe is subdued chic, with only a couple of the outfits slit up the leg. Although refined acting and serious roles may not come naturally, at least Wonder Woman is trying.

Today's Cryptiquip clue: K equals U
The Cryptiquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Equipment Fails CHICAGO (AP) — An attempt by a professional acrobat dressed as Spider-Man to scale the 1,107-foot John Hancock Center ended when the stunt man's equipment apparently failed to do the job.

The acrobat, Daniel Goodwin of Kennebunkport, Maine, abandoned his efforts Sunday when the suction cups he uses for climbing would not stick to the building's surface.

Last May, Goodwin was more successful when he climbed the world's tallest building — the Sears Tower — on Memorial Day. He reached the top after a 7½-hour adventure in which he used metal binders, suction cups and rope to scale the 1,454 foot, 110-story building.

Police said Goodwin started to climb the 100-story John Hancock Center early Sunday morning while wearing a red-and-blue Spider-Man outfit before he was rescued by a Fire Department hook-and-ladder unit at the building's second story and brought safely to the ground.

He was charged with disorderly conduct and released on a $5 cash bond, police said.

Q.1—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠KQ75 ♠AK843 ♦92 ♣A5
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♥ Pass Pass 1 ♦
Pass Pass 2 ♦ Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—Partner did not have enough to respond to your opening bid. Now, he is simply competing for the part score with very little in high cards and length in diamonds. Pass—you should have enough for him to make two diamonds.

Q.2—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠K72 ♥62 ♦82 ♣J109865
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 ♥ Pass 1 NT Pass
Pass Dble Pass 2 ♣
Pass 2 ♥ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—Obviously, partner has a strong hand, but he couldn't act over one heart because his suit is hearts. He has shown no interest in your clubs, and there is no reason to suspect that you have a better spot or that you should be any higher. Pass.

Q.3—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AJ1076 ♥98754 ♦105 ♣7
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South
1 ♥ 1 ♦ ?

What action do you take?
A.—We do not object if you opted to leap to four hearts, but what's the hurry? Your hand might be unsuited to a game contract. We prefer the slightly quieter action of two hearts. What we strongly disagree with is a penalty double—as a general principle, it is unsound to make a low-level penalty double when you have length in partner's suit.

Q.4—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠Q103 ♥AQ9763 ♦QJ3 ♣K
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♥ Pass 2 ♣ Pass
2 ♥ Pass 3 ♣ Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—This hand has all the appearances of a misfit since partner's bidding shows a long club suit and, possibly, sub-minimum values for a two-over-one response. In such a case, it's wise to get out of the auction as quickly as possible before the doubling starts. Pass.

Q.5—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AQ10762 ♥832 ♦8 ♣AK8
Your right-hand opponent opens the bidding with one diamond. What action do you take?

A.—We suggest you overcall one spade. While this hand is slightly strong for a simple overcall, a takeout double would leave you awkwardly placed if the auction becomes competitive and partner competes in clubs or hearts—you won't know whether or not it's safe to introduce your spades. If partner cannot act over one spade, we doubt that you will have missed much.

Q.6—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠Q76 ♥A9873 ♦KQ10 ♣J7
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♣ Pass 1 ♥ Pass
2 ♣ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—There should be a slam somewhere—the question is where? For the moment, we suggest that you bid three diamonds to see what partner's next move is. The only other action we might consider is a jump to three no trump—a bid of two no trump grossly understates your values.

REGIONAL PROMOTION

WCTI-TV, WNCT-TV and WITN-TV have chosen Hodskins, Simone & Searls Advertising of Raleigh to handle a joint regional advertising and promotional effort by all three stations, it was announced.

Purpose of the promotion, they reported, is to advance regional pride and build market identity. "Livin' It Up Down East" is the theme of the campaign, which is scheduled to run at least through a two-year period.

NEW FACILITY

Yellow Freight System Inc. announced the promotion of George A. (Nick) Luper as branch manager of the company's new terminal facilities presently under construction in Greenville.

The firm said that Luper, a Wilson native, has some ten years experience in the transportation industry.

The new facility, located on United Drive in the Industrial Park, will be a "full service" terminal with a computerized tracking system for both incoming and outgoing shipments.

The company said it maintains some 344 terminals throughout the United States and Canada, including Hawaii, and will offer direct service from Greenville to all major market areas of the nation.

FINANCIAL TOTALS

Eaton Corp. announced sales of $2.4 billion for the first nine months of 1981, an amount similar to that reported for the same period in 1980. Net income was $58.7 million, down 37 percent from $93.9 million during the 1980 period.

Company sales for the third quarter of 1981 amounted to $759.1 million, up four percent from $732 million in the same period last year. Net income for the three months was $22.2 million, up 43 percent from $15.5 million recorded for the third quarter of 1980.

INCOME REPORTED

Thorne Gregory, Branch Corp. board chairman, reported that income before securities transactions for the nine months ended Sept. 30 was $7,795,178, a 43 percent increase over the $5,449,721 recorded for the 1980 period.

Gregory said net income for the same period was $6,744,307 compared with $5,459,556 in 1980, an increase of 23.5 percent.

Income before securities transactions for the third quarter totaled $2,804,063, an increase of 62.1 percent over the $1,729,734 earned in 1980. Net income for the quarter was $2,238,854 compared with $1,732,466 in 1980.

SALES-EARNINGS

The Procter & Gamble Co. announced sales and earnings for the three months ended Sept. 30.

Net earnings from operations amounted to $219 million, up 13 percent over net earnings in the same period a year ago which were $194 million.

Worldwide net sales were $3 billion, an increase of four percent over sales of $2.9 billion for the similar period in 1980. Procter & Gamble, which has a facility here, had sales of over $11 billion during fiscal 1980-81.

INDEX ROSE

The level of business activity in North Carolina rose slightly in September, registering 153.8 or 0.6 percent above the August level, according to the Wachovia Business Index.

The index declined during the third quarter but was marginally higher than its level at the same time in 1980. It began the year at 155.2 and remained virtually level through the first five months.

The September increase, it was noted, resulted from seasonally adjusted employment gains in manufacturing and non-manufacturing industries.
