Soviet Sub Freed; Swedes Protesting

By DICK SODERLUND
Associated Press Writer

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) - Anti-Soviet demonstrators gathered in Stockholm and Copenhagen today, protesting the violation of Swedish waters by a Soviet submarine that carried Uranium-238 and probably was armed with nuclear-tipped torpedoes.

The sub was released and turned over to a Soviet flotilla earlier in the day, ending a 10-day stalemate.

About 4,000 people gathered in downtown Stockholm and listened to Socialist opposition leader Olof Palme declare: "It is inconceivable why Soviet military authorities would jeopardize friendly neighboring relations by an action which was sure to outrage the entire Swedish people."

He said the incident was a "frightening reminder how close we are to the precipice, how great the risk is for a nuclear war."

Palme demanded the Soviets withdraw all their nuclear-armed ships from the Baltic, or the "Sea of Peace," as the Kremlin calls it. "If the Soviet Union wants to strengthen its credibility there is hardly any other way," he said.

Hundreds of demonstrators milled around outside the Soviet Embassy, both in Stockholm and Copenhagen. Danish Prime Minister Anker Joergensen said in a written statement that if the Soviet sub was cruising the Baltic with nuclear arms "it weakens the Soviet Union's credibility in the European debate on the limiting of nuclear arms."

"It also questions all that (Soviet) talk about the Baltic as the 'Sea of Peace.'"

The transfer of the Soviet sub capped the sharpest post-World War II diplomatic clash between the Soviet Union and its neutral Baltic neighbor.

The Swedish government released the aged Whiskey-class submarine No. 137 and its crew of more than 50 men at 10:25 a.m. - 4:25 a.m. EST - despite the disclosure Thursday by outraged officials that it probably carried nuclear-armed torpedoes.

The sub was towed part way through the archipelago off Sweden's southeast coast, then cut loose, apparently because of worsening weather, to continue on its own power to the 12-mile territorial limit where the Soviet flotilla of 11 ships waited.

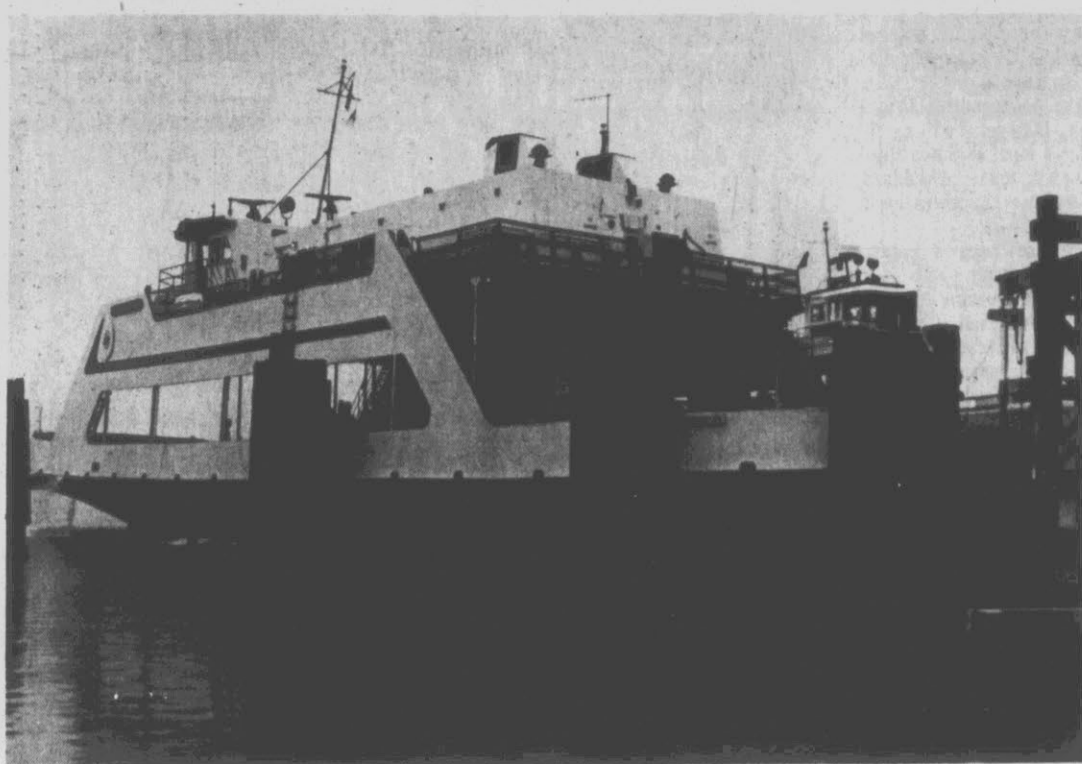

A minesweeper and pilot, two patrol boats, three torpedo boats and two anti-submarine helicopters escorted the sub on the two hour trip out of Swedish waters.

The commander of the Soviet Baltic Fleet, Rear Adm. Aleksei Kalinin, was aboard a destroyer in the waiting flotilla, Swedish navy staff official Evert Dahlen said.

Nils H. Lundquist, the head of the Swedish Defense Research Institute, told reporters his organization concluded that the sub was carrying nuclear torpedoes because of radiation measurements take outside one of the sub's torpedo tubes.

Gen. Lennart Ljung, the Swedish commander-in-chief, said there was as much as 22 pounds of Uranium 238 aboard, and it could have been used as a protective shield around U-235, a main ingredient in nuclear warheads. He said more information could not be obtained because the Soviets would not allow inspection of the ship's torpedo hold.

"Incredible! I can't understand why they would be so stupid as to enter Swedish inner waters with nuclear charges aboard," said Nils Gylden, a nuclear arms expert on the Swedish defense staff.

Ferry Limpers Ashore

OCRACOKE, N.C. (AP) - Twenty-three ferry passengers and 15 automobiles arrived safely at Swan Quarter Thursday after the vessel collided with a submerged object and began taking on water, the Coast Guard said.

Ben O'Neal, director of the ferry division, said the ferry was en route to Swan Quarter from Ocracoke when it struck an object that has not yet been identified.

Workers later found a 63-inch gash and up to 4 inches wide in one hold and seven holes in another hold, ranging up to an inch and a half in diameter.

Richard Brady, a spokesman for the Coast Guard, said he received a call from someone at the ferry docks in Ocracoke that a ferry had struck an object, but that no damage had occurred.

Later, he received a distress call from the captain saying that one compartment was flooded with 8 feet of water and another had 3 feet of water in it. Brady ordered the two boats to the scene.

Max Powell, a spokesman for the Transportation Department, said the biggest danger to the vessel was the possibility it might run aground before it reached shore.

Brady said the two boats later located the sunken object, but have been unable to remove it. They were ordered to remain in the area to direct traffic around it until the object can be removed by a larger vessel.

Brady said the object may be part of a dredge that sank near the mouth of the channel some time ago.

He said the Coast Guard will investigate the accident.

Unemployment Rate Up To 8 Percent In Report

WASHINGTON (AP) - The nation's unemployment rate soared to 8 percent of the labor force last month, the highest rate in nearly six years, surpassing the recession peak of 1980, the Labor Department reported today.

More than 8.5 million Americans were out of work in October, the largest number of people without jobs since 1939. Department analysts noted, however, that the 8.5 million figure must be weighed against a labor force that has expanded sharply in the last four decades.

The Reagan administration, which had been predicting unemployment would peak at 8 percent, said in the wake of today's report that "the rate could move somewhat higher over the next few months before declining as the economy strengthens in 1982."

The Bureau of Labor Statistics said the jobless rate jumped half a percentage point - from 7.5 percent to 8 percent - from September to October.

And it said the unemployment rate among blacks reached 16.7 percent, the second consecutive record monthly high.

Although the jobless rate reached 8 percent overall, it was still far below the 9 percent high registered in May 1975.

Reagan administration officials and private economists have said that unemployment will worsen as the economy suffers from its second recession in as many years.

"The October statistics reflect a substantial deterioration in the labor market," Janet L. Norwood, commissioner of labor statistics, said in testimony prepared for delivery today to the congressional Joint Economic Committee. "The negative signals from so many important indicators provide clear evidence of a substantial weakening in the employment situation."

Ms. Norwood said, "The number of persons working parttime because their hours were cut back or because they were unable to obtain fulltime work reached a record 5 million in October."

The October jobless rate was the highest since the 8.2 percent figure registered toward the end of the 1974-75 recession, in December 1975.

Ed Carter Ask Recount

Ed Carter, a City Council candidate in Tuesday's municipal elections who fell 20 votes short of a sixth-place finish, filed a written request Thursday for a recount of the votes.

Carter submitted the request to the Pitt County Board of Elections.

The elections board conducted the official canvass of the voting results Thursday but withheld certification of the totals in the council race, pending the results of the upcoming hearing.

Clifton Everett Jr., chairman of the elections board, said this morning that the recount request does not affect the mayoral race and the election of Percy Cox by a 2,667 to 2,246 margin over incumbent Don McGlohon is official.

In the council balloting, Janice Buck, Judy Greene, Louis Clark, William Hadden, Stuart Shinn and George Pugh received the top six totals.

Carter finished the balloting with 2,564 votes, just behind Pugh's 2,584 and Shinn's 2,594.

Everett said the hearing will be conducted by the board on Tuesday at 8:30 a.m. to consider Carter's request. He said notice of the hearing will be sent to each council candidate.

In the notification letters, Everett points out that the board adopted a resolution following the canvass stating that "certification of the election results...be withheld...until a hearing can be had...to determine whether or not to recount should be ordered..."

Carter said that, while he had no "evidence or feelings" that any counting problems were intentional, he had reservations about the accuracy of tabulations at several precincts.

He said campaign workers observed procedures at one precinct where "at least one team counting votes did not have a system at all." Carter said a registrar at another precinct expressed doubts as to how accurate counts could be made due to lack of organization.

In addition, he cited a similarity in the pronunciation of the names Carter and Clark and said some counting errors could have occurred because of that.

"I have no feelings that any of it was intentional at all," Carter said.

Katrina Loses Its Hurricane Punch After Big Cuban Blow

By ANNE S. CROWLEY
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI (AP) - Storm Katrina lost its hurricane punch today after drenching Cuba and reportedly forcing the evacuation of 150,000 people, but forecasters warned it could regain some force as it swirled toward the Bahamas.

The storm roared across low, swampy Cuban coastal land, reportedly causing some flash flooding in the mountains, before its winds dropped from 75 to 50 mph. It was then downgraded from hurricane to tropical storm status.

Havana radio, monitored in Miami, said 150,000 people and 120,000 head of cattle, most located in south-central Cuba, were moved to higher ground as the storm moved north across the island.

The broadcast reported no casualties or property damage because of the storm.

"It should be interesting because if it does reorganize over water, it could bring a band of very heavy weather to the Bahamas," said Gil Clark, a forecaster at the National Hurricane Center.

The center of Katrina was off the north central Cuban coast just east of Camaguey this morning. It was moving northeast at 14 mph.

Storm warnings remained in effect for the central Bahamas.

Forecasters urged people in the Bahamas to monitor the storm's developments closely today.

At 8:30 a.m. EST, the center of Katrina was 22.4 north, longitude 76.8 west or 115 miles southwest of the central Bahamas.

The late-season storm, which grew to hurricane strength Thursday, dumped 12 inches of rain on the Cayman Islands.

Cuban Civil Defense officials Thursday declared a storm alert for five provinces in South-Central Cuba, said a Havana radio broadcast monitored in Miami.

The provinces affected are Matanzas, Cienfuegos, Santa Clara, Sancti Spiritus and Ciego de Avila.

The hurricane's threat to the United States is negligible, forecasters said. An upper trough in the Southeast would enable nearby South Florida to be untouched by the hurricane, Clark said.

There have been six other hurricanes this season - Dennis, Emily, Floyd, Gert, Harvey and Irene. The strongest system of the year has been Harvey, which had winds of 115 mph in September as it safely bypassed Bermuda and dissipated in the North Atlantic.

The most serious damage this season was caused by Tropical Storm Dennis, which sloshed into South Florida on Aug. 16, dumping 20 inches of rain and flooding parts of Homestead and Miami before passing into the colder Atlantic.

The Atlantic hurricane season, which starts June 1 and ends Nov. 30, normally has nine named systems, forecasters said.

Cease-Fire?

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) - Iraq has offered Iran an unconditional month-long cease-fire in observance of the Moslem holy month of Muharram, the official Iraqi News Agency reports.

The offer came during a speech Thursday by President Saddam Hussein, it said. A similar offer during the fasting month of Ramadan in July was rejected by Iranian authorities, who claimed that Hussein was trying to gain time to regroup his forces for more attacks in the 13-month Iran-Iraq war.

Muharram is the first month of the Islamic lunar year. Moslems are required to desist from quarreling with each other during the holy month.

Minges, Waldrop Honored For Hospital Service

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

Dr. Ray D. Minges and Ed Waldrop were the annual Pitt County Memorial Hospital Service Awards winners for this year - the first time that such awards have been given.

The awards were presented as the climax of the first annual PCMH awards benefit banquet held at the Casablanca Restaurant last night. Approximately 400 persons attended the $25-a-plate affair.

Minges was honored for his service to the hospital as a physician, a former chief of staff and an enthusiastic and effective fund-raiser.

Waldrop was honored for his foresight and leadership as chairman of the board of trustees during the years when the present hospital service awards was being planned. Both expressed surprise and delight at having been chosen.

State Secretary of Human Resources Sarah Morrow, the keynote speaker, was accompanied by her son, John Morrow, a first-year student in the East Carolina University School of Medicine.

She spoke of the budget cuts that are greatly affecting human service delivery in North Carolina. Hardest hit so far, she said, is the Medicaid budget, cut $25.6 million this year. She said 73 percent of this money has gone for hospital and nursing home care for disabled and elderly citizens. Dr. Morrow said individual families will have to take up the slack.

The federal budget did not become unbalanced in four years, she said, and she feels it is unreasonable to try to balance it in four. North Carolina citizens, though, are resourceful people and she said she believes in their ability to adjust and adapt and to minimize hardship on themselves and their fellow citizens. She cited the fact that the DHS this past year had 85,000 volunteers helping provide its services throughout the state, saving millions of dollars.

East Carolina University has done what it told the state it would do when it petitioned the Legislature for a medical school, she said. It's alleviating the physician shortage in the state. It's also brought good things to Eastern North Carolina through the enlargement of Pitt County Memorial Hospital to a regional teaching facility. She said she is especially impressed with the neonatal unit here that is functioning to save babies not only from death, but from retardation and other lifelong hardship through (Please turn to Page 12)

Grand Opening Of Athletic Club

NEW CLUB OPENS ... The Greenville Athletic Club, a health-athletic-entertainment facility, is housed in a 20,544-square-foot structure at 140 Oakmont Drive. Features include racquetball, Grand opening activities at the new Greenville Athletic Club, 140 Oakmont Drive, were scheduled to get underway this afternoon and continue through Sunday.

A spokesman said the grand opening will be observed from 4-8 p.m. today and Saturday and from 1-5 p.m. on Sunday. During those hours, non-members of the club will be able to utilize the facilities and get an idea of the health/athletic/entertainment opportunities available, it was mentioned.

Individual fitness testing will be available during the grand opening days and various competitive exhibitions have been scheduled, including racquetball.

Dave Odom and Kathy Andruzzi, head coaches of the men's and women's basketball teams at East Carolina University, were expected to be on hand during the activities, the spokesman said.

The club, housed in a 20,544 square foot structure, features eight championship racquetball/handball courts, Nautilus running track, weight training room, nursery, restaurant, pro shop, body maintenance classes and hot tubs-steamrooms-saunas. (Reflector Staff Photo)

Fitness Center, body maintenance classes, weight training room, a health spa (with hot tub, saunas and steam rooms), a one-twelfth of a mile running track, nursery, restaurant (open daily from 5-7:30 p.m.), and pro shop, offering popular accessories.

The spokesman said a professional staff is on duty seven days a week to provide instruction and assistance.

Memberships are available to individuals and families. A one-time initiation fee is required and members pay regular monthly dues.

The Greenville facility, owned by John M. Kane and H. William Hull Jr., is open from 6 a.m. until 10 p.m. Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. until 7 p.m. on Saturday, and noon until 7 p.m. on Sunday. The club is managed by Andrews Athletic Clubs.

The spokesman said the club is dedicated to promoting and preserving the fitness and physical well-being of its members.

Jonathan Daniels Dies Today At 79

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S. C. (AP) — Jonathan Daniels, editor emeritus of The News and Observer of Raleigh and former press secretary to President Franklin D. Roosevelt, died today at age 79.

The newspaper confirmed that Daniels died shortly after 1 a.m. at Hilton Head Hospital, where he had been undergoing treatment for a lengthy illness.

He had been a patient there two weeks.

Daniels became editor of The News and Observer, owned by his family, in 1933 when his father, Josephus Daniels who had been editor, was appointed ambassador to Mexico by President Roosevelt. In 1942, Jonathan was summoned by Roosevelt to serve in the wartime government. The elder Daniels then returned to Raleigh to resume control of the paper.

Jonathan Daniels' first appointment by the administration was as director of civilian defense.

As the war progressed, Roosevelt assigned him to confidential work. In 1943, he became the president's administrative assistant. In 1945, he was named presidential press secretary and was serving in that capacity at the time of Roosevelt's death.

JONATHAN DANIELS

After his service in Washington, Daniels returned to Raleigh to become executive editor of The News and Observer. He became editor in 1948 after his father died. Daniels moved to Hilton Head following his retirement in 1970.

Among the family enterprises are the Island Packet, a biweekly newspaper in Hilton Head which Daniels helped to found. He contributed a column to the paper until his death.

He is survived by four daughters, Elizabeth Squire of Weaverville, N.C., Dr. Lucy Inman of Raleigh, Adelaide Key of Franklin, N.C., and Cleves Weber of New York City; a brother, Frank Daniels Sr. of Raleigh; 13 grandchildren and a great-grandchild.

Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

Permit Sought For Creek Site

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers said today that Raymos D. Manning of Route 3, Washington, has applied for a permit to construct a bulkhead with backfill and a boat basin in Tranter's Creek in Pitt County, north of State Road 1567, about one mile west of the Pitt-Beaufort County line.

The proposed work includes construction of 140 linear feet of wood bulkhead to be backfilled with 70 cubic yards of upland fill. A portion of the 20-foot by 20-foot boat basin will be constructed into the creek bank with the excavated material placed behind the bulkhead.

No wetland is present within the confines of the proposed bulkhead, according to the Corps of Engineers, which said the purposes of the project are to stabilize the applicant's shoreline and to provide a boat storage facility.

Written comments about the proposed project should be made to Ernest Johnke at the Corps of Engineers' Wilmington, N.C. office, P. O. Box 1890, by 4:15 p.m. Dec. 7, or call Jahnke at 343-4467.

Four Attend Co-Op Meeting

SOUTHERN PINES — The fall conference of the North Carolina Cooperative Education Association was held here recently with four members of Pitt Community College, faculty and staff attending.

Those attending from PCC were Joanne Leith, chairman of the business education department; Roy Boyd, chairman of heating and air conditioning; Gail Wallace, placement officer, and Terry Shank, director of cooperative education. Ms. Shank is also the state association's treasurer and secretary.

Ms. Shank advised that upon her return from the convention that PCC had received federal grant monies to strengthen the co-op program by involving instructors in the evaluation visitation of students during their field experience.

This grant will enable several faculty members to engage in the identification of skills and competencies required by the employers which the curriculum should address and to become aware of employment opportunities.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Snow flurries are forecast for Saturday in New England and upstate New York according to the National Weather Service. The rest of the nation can expect clear skies. (AP Laserphoto)

By The Associated Press
The showers and widely scattered thunderstorms that dampened much of North Carolina on Thursday moved offshore this morning, leaving the state shrouded in dense fog.

The National Weather Service predicted the fog would dissipate into partly cloudy skies today, with cooler temperatures expected throughout the state for the weekend, but no precipitation.

Rainfall amounts during the 24 hour period ending at 1 a.m. this morning ranged from just over half an inch at Cape Hatteras to a trace reported at New Bern. Pre-

-dawn temperatures ranged from near 50 in the Asheville area to the 60s along the coast.

A cold front moving east from the Great Lakes this morning was expected to cross the North Carolina mountains during the day, converging on the coastal areas by nightfall.

The front's passage was expected to result in a shift in winds to the northwest, allowing cooler air to pour into the region. The cooling trend was expected to blanket the state by Saturday.

A high pressure system currently over the central United States will dominate the state weather for the remainder of the weekend, bringing sunny, cool days

Fashionable Knickers For Boys And Girls

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Family Editor

Remember when little boys wore knickers? Girls will wear both classic knickers and the much fuller, bloomer type, says fashion marketing executive Lillian Rossilli.

Some knickers are seven-eighths length and some have ankle bands, she said. Culottes are another style carryover from summer to fall.

Cotton knit sweatshirts banded at the knee are a back-to-school clothing trend for the eight to 14-year-old crowd.

"The preppy look has had its run," Miss Rossilli added in an interview. She is fashion marketing director of Cotton Incorporated, a New York City-based trade association.

"I don't think anyone can afford to throw away clothes," she added, so she expects the preppy blazers, shirts and skirts or slacks to show up for classes in different combinations this year — jackets with jeans and open-necked shirts with neckerchiefs to replace the shirt-with-necktie look.

Running and jogging wear have become staples like jeans, Miss Rossilli added. "The stripings from jogging suits are in heavier cotton velour or knit for school wear," she said.

But the leading fabric for school clothes this fall is corduroy, "for the very young right through high school ... in dresses and sportswear, for girls and boys."

Flannel with easy-care finishes is the runner-up, used for shirting and dresses. Jackets for junior and senior high school students are much shorter, nipped at the waist and with slightly puffed shoulders.

Circle skirts that stop anywhere from just below the knee to below the calf are in. "For older girls, they're practically to the ankle and worn with boots," Miss Rossilli said.

"Cotton knit sweatshirts are going to be even bigger this winter than last," she said, worn with jeans.

The peasant look continues, with cotton challis skirts and matching shawls and the buttons-and-bows look of the Old West.

For party time, Miss Rossilli said there'll be lots of cotton velveteen with lace trim. In fact, even denim comes with lace, ribbon or leather trim.

Fashion experts at one youth-oriented magazine said back-to-school fashions will draw on fantasy, folklore and foreign cultures this year, including storybook characters such as Heidi and Robin Hood.

"That's happening now," Miss Rossilli said, "but I think it's just a fad. I don't think many kids are going to feel comfortable in tunics with hoods. That's a lot of fabric for kids to belt in and take care of."

Blazers and the layered look, with sweaters and velour shirts is a strong trend for boys, she added.

Cotton and a hand-knit look are still strong in sweaters for both boys and girls.

As for prices, Miss Rossilli said she thinks there'll be very little difference between those for comparable quality apparel in cotton, synthetics or blends.

Facts Will Serve Better

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: How does one explain "Daddy" to a 3-year-old child who has never known her father and in all probability never will?

She's a bright, perceptive, warm, loving child, and although she has never actually asked, "Where is my daddy?" the time is near when we must explain this to her.

We are her grandparents and are raising her. Her mother (our eldest — age 23) is unable to provide a stable home for her at this time due to an alcohol-drug problem that she is attempting to resolve through counseling and A.A. (She is also gay.)

Our grandchild talks to her mother on the phone once a week and sees her about once a month. Her "daddy" is a man our daughter knew casually and never married. He doesn't know about the child and our daughter doesn't want him to know. She says she never wants to see him again, doesn't know where he is and probably couldn't locate him if she tried.

Abby, we love this child dearly, but need to know what to tell her. Can you suggest an explanation that would be appropriate for a 3-year-old?

MISSOURI GRANDPARENTS

DEAR GRANDPARENTS: Stick to the truth, as cruel as it may seem. Inasmuch as the child's father doesn't even know she exists, and the child's mother has no intentions of locating him, simply tell her that you don't know where her father is. (None of this, "Daddy is far away and is coming back one day.") Do not say that he is "dead," because he may surface one day.

As the child grows older she can be told that her parents were not married. It will be easier for her in the long run if she grows up knowing the facts. She may feel cheated, but she will never feel deceived.

DEAR ABBY: I suppose this will sound like a dumb (or made up) letter coming from a 23-year-old married woman, but it is a very real problem, and if I asked other people they would think I was crazy.

I'm happily married to a very sweet guy (he's 27) who I thought I knew well, but I got the surprise of my life on our honeymoon. This 6-footer is afraid of the dark! When he goes to sleep at night, he has to have a light on in the bathroom with the door half-open so he won't be in total darkness! Abby, I can't sleep with the room half-lighted, but he can't sleep if it's dark.

Don't suggest separate bedrooms. I enjoy cuddling and falling asleep in his arms. Can you, or any of your readers, come up with a solution? Don't use my right name. He'd never live it down.

SLEEPY-TIME GAL

DEAR SLEEPY: You have two choices: Eye shades for you, or behavior modification for him. The latter will mean some sessions with a therapist who will try to condition your man to tolerate darkness slowly by degrees.

WORD-OF-MOUTH COOKWARE.

We thought we were only really known for our Cuisinart food processors. And that our cookware was a well kept secret among only the most dedicated cooks. But, in just this year, our cookware sales have doubled. The reason, since we do very little advertising for our cookware, is simple: word-of-mouth the best recommendation of all. Every devoted cook is looking for cookware that helps rather than hinders. Thus, cookware that cooks food evenly and uniformly, whose metal doesn't alter the taste of food, is to be appreciated.

Cuisinart cookware has an ingenious sandwich of stainless steel surrounding a heavy inlay of aluminum. This exclusive cooking surface provides freedom from hot spots, constant temperature over the cooking surface, a warp-proof bottom that stays flat at all temperatures and can be safely plunged into cold water while hot. Cuisinart cookware also has dripless rims and compressed wood handles that are oven proof to 375°. You heat your pan to the temperature you desire, you then put a cold piece of meat into it. But usually the cold food drops the temperature of the pan way down. But our unique stainless steel and aluminum bottom is unusually thick and has more heat storage capacity than ordinary cookware. This means that the initial temperature drop is much less and the return to the proper temperature is much quicker. You'll turn out beautiful omelets in the same pan that cooks your steak faster and more evenly. We will be pleased to send our recipe for Steak Diane to you. Simply write, Cuisinarts, Inc., 411 West Putnam Ave., Greenwich, Conn. 06830.

Bread Baking Is Club Topic

"Tips on Bread Baking" was the program given at the meeting of the Cherry Oaks Home and Garden Club held Tuesday at the club house. Members Brenda Edwards and Patsy Garzik were speakers.

It was announced Emily Mallard will chair the tasting tea to be held in the spring and members were asked to volunteer their services. The group will be aiding The Salvation Army with its kettles Dec. 5 and a needy family will be remembered at Christmas.

The yard of the month winner was Robert League.

The meeting was conducted by President Brenda Whichard.

Meeting hostesses were Laura Charlton and Nancy Abernathy. Gladys Anderson announced the December program will be given by Gayle Wainwright of Little's Nursery.

Impressive Facility

A new home for the Boys Club of Pitt County was officially opened on Arlington Boulevard last week.

It is an impressive facility embracing some impressive work with the youth of our area.

The club began in 1966 through the efforts of Wally Howard, Austin Britt, W.M. (Booger) Scales and other citizens and it rapidly became a gathering place for boys of the community from six to 18 years old.

Now the club has a $600,000 facility — not quite paid for — in which to carry out its activities. Included are game activity spaces, arts and crafts room, wood shop and learning center. There is a gym and weight development and exercise area, counseling and administrative offices in the facility. There are also two baseball fields and a soccer field on the premises.

The club building is located in a good area, which is accessible to all parts of the community.

Boys Club of Pitt County has proven itself to be of great benefit to our area. It gives the youth of the community some place to gather for wholesome activities. There is no measuring the value of the club to the community in motivating boys to achievement.

Now the club has an outstanding facility, and that is something in which we can all take pride.

Truth Needs Determining

A Soviet submarine found itself in the embarrassing position of being stuck in Swedish waters, much to the discomfort of the Kremlin.

The Swedish authorities demanded that the sub commander submit to interrogation and the demands were finally met by the Russians. In the meantime a storm threatened the vessel and Swedish tugboats towed it to a safe harbor.

The Soviets claim the sub inadvertently strayed into Swedish waters, a contention that neither the Swedish government nor the rest of the world buys.

It is obvious the sub was on a spying mission, and clearly Sweden — traditionally a neutral nation — has every right to protect its waters from Soviet spying.

Sweden seems determined to obtain the truth about this mission, and its efforts should be applauded.

The Voodoo Economics

During the election campaign, President Reagan's Republican opponent George Bush, described Mr. Reagan's economic plans as "Voodoo Economics." I thought this was all political hyperbole, until I walked behind the White House on Halloween night, and found a witch doctor stirring up a broth in a large black kettle.

"What's cooking?" I asked him.

"A little recession," he said mournfully. "I think I made a mistake in my recipe."

"Let me taste it," I said. He handed me a wooden spoon. "Ughghgh," I spit it out. "It's much worse than I thought. What did you put in it?"

"I know it's bitter, but I thought that's what was needed. I took all the fat off the bone and then I cut up the bone. Then I added a dose of interest rates and the pot boiled over. I have to start all over again."

"What are you doing now?"

"I'm throwing out the baby with the bath water."

"What for?"

"If I don't, the recession will thicken and we'll be in a worse stew than we are now. I have to start from scratch."

glorious economic pie. Now I don't know what the hell it is."

"Maybe it needs more tax seasoning than you thought," I suggested.

"We don't call them taxes. We call them revenue enhancers. They're additives that I'm going to have to put in whether I want to or not."

"What are you dumping in now?"

"I'm peppering it with blame. When the people finally realize what a mess we've cooked up, we're going to show them where the blame is."

"What kind of blame are you putting in?"

"Congressional Blame No. 1. You sprinkle it on everything, and people don't know what they're eating."

"That's some recipe for an economic stew."

"It might not be stew after it's finished. It could turn out to be gruel."

"I don't understand it. The way Reagan and his people described this dish, it was going to be tasty and delicious and there would be enough to go around for everyone."

"A Voodoo Economist can do just so much," the witch doctor said. "They promised me all the ingredients and couldn't deliver. I'll be grateful if this mess doesn't turn into a heavy recession hash."

"The stew is starting to boil over again," I said.

"Well, it's not my fault," the witch doctor said angrily. "They told me if I cut out all the waste and chopped up large cuts of taxes, there would be more pie for everyone."

"I thought you were making stew."

N.C. Salary Rates

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — During the past 10 years, the average salaries of North Carolina state employees more than doubled. The average salary in 1971 was $6,748. In 1981 it is $14,401. That is a 113 percent increase.

This track record, which has kept North Carolina consistently in the top 10 paying state governments nationally, is being cited by legislative leaders and fiscal analysts to counter complaints from some state employees that they were shortchanged by the five percent raise granted by the General Assembly this year, to begin in January, 1982.

Employees and their association representatives regularly present the record of General Assembly across-the-board pay increases to demonstrate that state salaries have not kept pace with inflation.

But those across-the-board pay hikes do not tell the entire story. There are automatic pay increases in the first two years of employment as the employee moves up the pay scale ladder. There are merit increments in subsequent years, and longevity pay for those in the state's employ for more than 10 years.

Rewards
While it is true that in recession years state employees have gotten little or no salary raise from the General Assembly, the other raises have continued. And when times improved, as they did in 1977, the Legislature has come through with sizable increases to offset the past lack of a hefty raise. In that year, the increase was 17 percent.

Thus, over the 10-year period, state salaries have increased at an annual rate of more than 10 percent — based upon the average salary track record kept by the division of personnel. True, not all employees get all the money shown in "averages." But in dealing with billions of dollars and 180,528 individuals, averages must be used with the understanding that some get more and some get less.

BILL NOBLITT

A recent column in this space dealing with the question of employee salaries and raises has drawn strong criticism from any number of state employees. Some complained that the article demeaned them, was distorted, and displayed an attitude of begrudging them a raise.

Reporting these figures is not meant to demean state employees, but rather to keep the public informed on what is, above all, the reason that state spending, and the taxation to fund that spending, are growing at such a steady pace.

During the same 10-year period in which employee salaries rose 113 percent, state employment grew from 126,087 to 180,528. The state budget grew from $1.7 billion to $5.4 billion.

Control
There is, then a clear correlation between growth in employees, salary raises, and the state budget growth. To control budget growth, employee costs must be controlled.

As for specific complaints lodged by some state employees that a five percent raise for six months is really only two and one-half percent. That would be true if the raise were terminated at the end of six months. But it will continue for the coming year, and future years, as part of the base salary.

There were complaints that the column made it seem all employees get a merit increase when, in fact,

Other Editors Say How's That Again?

(High Point Enterprise)

Don't worry, North Carolina. State Revenue Secretary Mark Lynch says the recession hasn't hit here.

Lynch used some curious figures to support his declaration. He said the state's tax collections are up.

For example, September gasoline tax revenues were 25 percent higher than they were in September, 1980 — according to Lynch, who apparently took that to mean that motorists have not been forced by economic hard times to cut down their driving.

But that view gets hazy when looked at in the light of the General Assembly's 32 percent gasoline tax increase, which went into effect July 1. According to Lynch's figures, motorists must have actually bought less gasoline last month than a year ago last month.

Lynch also pointed to sales and personal income tax collections. The former category of revenue was up 8 percent in September over the same month in 1980; the latter was up 12 percent.

But sales tax figures reflect inflation, which ran higher than 8 percent between September 1980 and September 1981. Sales volume likely increased little, if at all; indicating that people do not have much money to spend.

And income tax figures are doubly susceptible to the cruelties of inflation. They indicate inflationary wage increases, which push taxpayers into higher brackets. These taxpayers may end up with less real money to spend.

Furthermore, everyone may be in a precarious position because of one more statistic presented by Lynch: corporate income tax collections for September dropped 1 percent from the previous September — and in fact, were 1.7 percent lower during this year's third quarter than last year's.

That may indicate, as Lynch theorized, that businesses are delaying tax payments because of tight money. If so, he said, that may be a sign that "a slowdown is coming."

It could also impact on employment in North Carolina. In short, Lynch's assessment seems inaccurate, even judging by his own statistics. So much for the good news from Raleigh.

Strength For Today

OPEN TO ALL
Sometimes we hear of people who have lost their glasses and then cannot find them because their natural eyesight is inadequate to distinguish the glasses from their surroundings. There is a certain tragic irony in this circumstance because often in life we find that in order to get what we want, we must first have it.

This irony sometimes seems to be present in religion. Many people desperately want the inward peace and strength which they have heard can come from a strong religious faith. But without the peace and strength, they cannot seem to have the faith — and without faith they lack peace and strength.

Fortunately, God did not leave man to struggle alone with this dilemma. The church is not restricted to those who have conquered their doubts and can enter in triumph. On the contrary, we are invited to come as we are, bringing our troubles and problems with us and to seek God's help not because we deserve it, but because we need it. — Elisha Douglass

Hailing The Mod Caesar

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent
RIDGEFIELD, Conn. (AP) — Southern New

England, another part of the forest. Alarums, excursions! Trumpets sound. Drums, flourishes and colours. Hautboys and torches. Enter a courier with scroll: Good Morrow, America. My ladies and lieges, pride guides my tongue and bids me speak great news. Heigh-ho and herewith, prithee, I proclaim the five grand winners in the first annual Mulligan's Stew Do It Yourself with a Bare Bodkin Contest.

This enterprise of great pith and moment, you may recall, was for readers to render a more mod version of Mark Antony's "friends, Romans and countrymen" funeral oration for Julius Caesar in Act III, Scene two of Shakespeare's masterpiece.

Giddy fortune and a panel of experts have plucked the five champions from the lists of hundreds who jostled for the prize, which forsooth is a tape cassette of my silver-tongued columnist reading from his works.

Here then, in no order of preference, are the five whom fickle fortune hath favored:

Nike Bourgeois of Baton Rouge, La., rendered Antony's graveside remarks in the Star Wars "interstellar free verse of the future." Here is a sample: "Ship's log. Star Date 044.0 B.C. (Bearing Rome)"

This is First Officer Mark Antony of the Starship Roman Empire. I have come to Deep Space Region 7 near Klingon Territory

To bury Capt. Julius Caesar in Black Hole X02 A short time after we began our mission of peaceful contact

With the Plebeians of the planet Italio In the Tiberious Star System, Capt. Caesar exhibited blatant disregard

For the non-interference policy of the United Federation of Planets...

Capt. Caesar's deplorable and reprehensible

Behavior was ended, however, by Science Officer Brutus Spock

Who fortunately dispatched Caesar with one of the Primitive metal implements indigenous to the planet...

The entire advanced English class at Cedar Ridge High School in Old Bridge, N.J., entered the fray and produced a way out winner in Marci Shapiro:

"Hey there, all you mellow, laid-back drugged-out space cadets, I'm coming to ya straight. I'm here to see that Caesar remains permanently horizontal

And not to blow up his head like the Goodyear blimp... Those bureaucrats in D.C. make sure the public knows all

(c) 1981, Los Angeles Times Syndicate

about the murders in the Nam;

But who remembers Woodstock and the Flower Children?

Can you feel where I'm coming from?

Caesar was a really mellow fellow. Brutus rapped with us about Caesar's drive

But Caesar really went with the flow... Jean McKeon, from Malta, Ohio, thought Shakespeare let Antony "ramble on too long" and what these TV attention span audiences needed was a much shortened version:

"Hey, all you dudes and chicks out there, listen up! I'm not here to blow Caesar's horn, you know.

I'm here to blow him away, like waste him. Can you dig it?"

This dude has been an all around two-timin' turkey

And the only cool thing about him is that he's gonna allow me

To put him six feet under." Russ Parrish of Atlanta, Ga., who described himself as "poet, lover, fool," told how a convention of insurance actuaries might entertain a moment of silence for their dear departed confrere, Big Julie. It ended thus:

"...At this time, given the concurrence of Mr. Brutus And the ad hoc committee on solonair affairs,

Which I am certain will be forthcoming,

As they are all really fine fellows,

I shall get to the bottom line and construct for this audience

A viable scenario vis-a-vis the mortality termination ceremonies

Impacting the prior-mentioned Julius Caesar."

A quartet of ninth-graders at Walter Panas High School in Cortland, N.Y. — Grace Andersen, Bertha Chang, Susan Morogello and Beth Nathan — collaborated on a really super C.B. (citizens' band) relay of Antony's farewell send off for Good Buddy Julie that should shake up the truckers on the superslab:

"Breaker! Breaker! Good Buddies, get your ears on, I'm on this squawk box to plant the Big C., not to up his ego.

Some bad buddies lead a mean convoy.

Their good numbers are usually packed away with their cargo.

So let it hang with the Big C.

Brute, the main man, has tossed out the info

That Big C was movin' with his pedal to the metal

If this was a Big 10-4, it was a big boo-boo

That Big C had to answer With Brute and his convoy's 10-4, — 'Cause they're a bunch of classy truckers — I came to modulate at the Big C's last 10-7

He was my good buddy, always stickin' with me.

But Brute said he was movin' with his pedal to the metal

Big Fish Swallow Small Fish

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — It's true what they say about the world of business today, that it's a place wherein the bigger fish swallows the smaller one — and then sleeps with one eye open lest it be swallowed too.

A survey confirms it. More than one-third of respondents, all chief financial officers, told the National Association of Accountants that their firms were actively seeking to merge with or acquire others.

Forty-nine percent of the respondents then replied that their own companies, though often actively seeking to buy up or take over other companies, were themselves vulnerable to a takeover effort.

About 50 percent boasted that they weren't vulnerable — and then 38 percent of them conceded that they had dreamed formal plans aimed at thwarting any attempt by another company to seek control of them.

That picture of a shark-infested corporate ocean was developed from inquiries to the 1,500 biggest industrial companies. Thirty-two percent, or 480 companies, responded to the September-October survey.

The results drew the comment from Robert L. Shultis, chief executive of the NAA, the nation's largest association of management accountants, that executives "must be sleeping with one eye open."

When one-third of the biggest companies are looking for someone to take over, said Shultis, it constitutes a fever, "and it looks like the fever is going to continue unabated for the foreseeable future."

The response of one chief financial executive, who declined to have his named used, offers an insight into one possible reason for the rash of mergers and takeovers, some by companies whose earnings are poor.

The increase, said the executive, "is a symptom of fewer growth opportunities, a maturation of industry, a lack of vigor in American business." The preoccupation, he added, "distracts larger companies from devotion to new businesses and to developing new technology."

Biologists would, of course, compare this to the cannibalization that sometimes occurs among people whose regular diet has been eliminated by drought or other natural causes. But some executives tend to disagree.

In defending the bigness that follows mergers, one executive observed that "you must not forget the international aspects and competition for world markets."

Another reminded critics that some mergers lead to lower costs and greater productivity.

But another area of criticism concerned the amounts of credit required for mergers. Said one: "The huge lines of credit being maintained by major corporations must be having an elevating effect on interest rates in general. This is obviously harmful to the general economy."

While 56 percent disagreed with a commonly expressed belief that mergers mean the bulk of the nation's wealth will be concentrated in fewer and larger companies, a somewhat surprising 44 percent did agree.

"Although one would expect that most chief financial officers would disagree with the statement," said Shultis, "the fact that 44 percent agree can be considered rather significant."

It shows corporations are "not as lacking in social consciousness as some would believe."

Even so, the big continue to eat the small.

Net merger and acquisition announcements in the third quarter of 1981 totaled 623, up 25 percent from the 496 recorded in the comparable 1980 quarter, according to W.T. Grimm & Co., merger specialists.

While mammoth public takeovers reached record-breaking levels this year, said Grimm, "acquisitions of small privately held companies remain the focal point of merger and acquisition activity."

Budget-Cut Impact Delay Seen By Fiscal Analyst

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — It could be next spring or summer before it is known how many North Carolinians will be hurt by federal budget cuts, a legislative Fiscal Research Staff analyst says.

"Officially, nearly everything's in place now," said Bob Daughtry. "But the county agencies have to look through their records and make the changes, and that's a very complicated process that will take some time."

Daughtry said another factor delaying evaluation of the impact was the response of county governments.

"In some counties, there's going to be great pressure exerted to pick up certain programs, and it's my guess that some of them will," he said.

"Additionally, there's some state money available for certain programs that might be re-channeled so it will pick up other services. It will take a while to determine how the individual counties react."

He also said some county agencies still aren't keeping records that will enable the state to identify people hurt by the cuts.

Many cuts, including food stamps, Aid to Families with Dependent Children and a number of health-related programs such as perinatal care took effect Oct. 1, while Medicaid cuts underwent some General Assembly revisions and will take effect Dec. 1.

State officials said earlier that thousands of North Carolinians would lose all or part of the benefits they had been getting. The State Budget Office estimated last month that the state would lose $121 million in federal aid to a variety of programs the state administers.

June Milby, spokesman for the Department of Human Resources, has said that 10,500 families would lose all food stamp benefits and 70,000 more would see a reduction in stamps, while 13,000 families were expected to lose AFDC benefits.

She said Thursday that those estimates had not been revised, with the exception of those referring to AFDC.

"The state legislature changed the eligibility formula, raising the standard of need to the point that 300 families were saved from losing their benefits," she said.

The revision allowed some poor mothers to continue receiving AFDC payments while working. But estimates on the number of people cut range from 30,000 to 37,000.

Another factor officials say could delay evaluations of the budget cuts on North Carolina is President Reagan's call for still more cuts, which Congress has yet to approve.

Ms. Milby said the Department of Human Resources is worried about several programs covered under Title 20, including day care and services for the elderly but especially programs to care for pregnant mothers and newborn infants.

She credited the programs with helping lower North Carolina's infant mortality rate from 18 deaths per 1,000 births to 14.3 deaths per 1,000 births over the past five years. The state's infant mortality rate dropped from the nation's fourth highest to the sixth highest last year, she said. "If we lose the perinatal and neo-natal programs, you can look for the rate to go up," she said. Dr. Ronald H. Levine, state health director, said he opposes Reagan's effort to include the Women, Infants and Children program in his latest round of cuts.

only two-thirds of them receive that money. This is based on the misconception that merit pay is designated for two-thirds of the people. It is not. It is two-thirds of the money needed for increases in a given agency. Exempted from the eligible list are those on the automatic pay increase scale for the first two years of employment; certain top-level administrators; job vacancies; and in some cases individuals known to be leaving the agency. Thus, the available money can be used to give all eligible employees a "merit" raise, and often is. In some agencies, though, different administrative interpretations exist.

Despite the various interpretations and arguments about who does or doesn't get how much, the simple fact is that the average state salary has increased in a manner which most objective analysts consider highly satisfactory.

Quebec Balks At All-Canada Constitution Project

By CHARLES J. HANLEY
Associated Press Writer

Ten Canadian "Founding Fathers" — Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau and nine of the 10 provincial premiers — have finally patched together an agreement to establish an all-Canadian constitution.

But the process of "nation-building," as Trudeau has called it, may give a boost to those in Quebec who want to shrink the nation by taking the French-speaking province out of the 114-year-old Canadian confederation.

Rene Levesque, Quebec's separatist leader, was the only premier to reject the accord reached Thursday, on the fourth day of a conference in Ottawa, after more than a year of wrangling between the federal and provincial governments. The agreement calls for the British Parliament to surrender control of the colonial-era constitution after first insuring a charter of rights and a formula for ratifying future amendments.

The fiery Levesque, speaking in French on national television as the conference closed, accused his fellow French-Canadian and longtime political foe Trudeau of having "deliberately chosen to obtain the consent of the English-speaking provinces as a way to reduce the rights of Quebecers."

In an ominous statement to reporters later, he said the effect of a constitutional deal without Quebec's support "could be incalculable" for all of Canada.

Levesque denounced the charter of rights as an attack on provincial autonomy. Its guarantee of minority-language education, for example, would nullify a Quebec law restricting English-language education. He also opposes the charter's guarantee that Canadians can seek work anywhere in the country, a provision that would override provincial laws limiting the hiring of outsiders.

Gilbert Paquette, an outspoken member of Levesque's separatist Parti Quebecois, told reporters it would be "for Quebec to decide" on its constitutional options, possibly through a provincial referendum.

Levesque lost Quebec's last referendum, in May 1980, when he asked for authorization to take the first step toward making the province a sovereign nation. He said it would end more than two centuries of economic and political domination by Anglo-Canadians. Sixty percent of the voters rejected the proposal, although the vote among the French majority — 5 million of the 6 million people — was split about even.

The PQ bounced back in a provincial election last April, easily winning re-election. At that time, Levesque indicated he might present the separatist option to the voters again in two or three years. Earlier this year the Quebec Liberals, the provincial affiliate of Trudeau's national Liberal Party, joined the PQ in a bipartisan position on the constitutional talks, warning Trudeau against trying to dilute Quebec's provincial powers.

After an emergency caucus of his legislative group late Thursday, Quebec Liberal leader Claude Ryan called the Ottawa agreement a "breakthrough" but refused to endorse it unreservedly. Whether his party will continue its "common front" with the PQ will probably become apparent after the Quebec legislature convenes Monday.

The Canadian constitution now is the British North America Act of 1867, which federated the colonial provinces. The British Parliament tried to give full self-rule to Canada in 1931, but the Canadians could not agree among themselves on a method of amending the constitution.

The constitution remained in the hands of the British Parliament, which adopted amendments only at the unanimous request of the federal and provincial governments. A recent Canadian Supreme Court ruling indicated that despite this tradition of unanimity, the opposition of only one province — Quebec — should not prevent the Canadian Parliament from asking Britain to relinquish control of the constitution.

Find Drugs In Barracks Check

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Illegal drugs including LSD, marijuana, and hashish were found during an inspection in the Marine Corps barracks at Camp Elmore, Marine Corps spokesmen say.

Lt. Col. Ed Condra of the Fleet Marine Force Atlantic said Thursday that drug dogs found five to six ounces of marijuana, 10 LSD tablets, and traces of hashish Wednesday in rooms occupied by enlisted personnel. No charges had been filed.

Drugs in at least trace amounts were found in 30 of 129 rooms inspected, Condra said, but a single room contained the bulk of the illegal substances — 10 small bags of marijuana. The lock to the room had to be cut because the occupant was on leave.

Enlisted people of the rank of sergeant and below live in the barracks that were inspected.

Condra said it could be four to six weeks before an investigation of the drug find is complete. The investigation will include interviews with various Marines and testing of the drugs.

The find followed a recent vow by Corps officials to get tough on drugs.

Marine commandant Gen. Robert H. Barrow, the former commander of the Fleet Marine Force in Norfolk, was quoted in a recent Navy Times article as saying that the Corps will be hard on offenders. Barrow said drug use had been treated naively, with the Corps assuming that its drug and alcohol program was adequate.

Statistics show that in the first nine months of fiscal 1981 there were 7,097 drug-related incidents in the Marine Corps, the smallest of the armed forces with fewer than 200,000 people.

Annual Bazaar Is Planned

The women of the Hollywood Presbyterian Church invite the public to its Annual Church Bazaar to be held Saturday, November 14 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the church fellowship hall.

Features include a bakery shop, garden shop, clothing shop, snack shop, Christmas shop, and furniture shop.

The Hollywood Church Annual Bazaar will be located on Highway 43, south of Greenville. The public is invited.

THANKSGIVING

The United Order of Tents will celebrate its annual Thanksgiving service on November 8 at 3 p.m. at the Cornerstone Missionary Baptist Church. The guest speaker will be the Rev. Arlee Griffin. All tent sisters are asked to be present and dressed in white at 2:45 p.m. All members of the Tent 464 are asked to be present tonight at the Masonic Hall on West Fifth Street.

Recognition will be given to all elder members.

BAZAAR PLANNED

The Women's Auxiliary of the Gum Swamp Church, near Belvoir, will sponsor a bazaar on November 21, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the church fellowship hall.

Features include handmade crafts, Christmas decorations, candles and baked goods, and a dinner consisting of pork barbecue plates, barbecue sandwiches, and hot dogs. The public is invited to attend.

Theorize 'Several' Shared In Assault

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Charlotte police theorized Thursday that several teen-agers wearing Halloween costumes may have robbed, raped and killed 71-year-old Henrietta Wallace on Saturday.

Sgt. Dale Starnes said he didn't think the youths went to get her specifically, but probably decided to attack her on the spur of the moment.

Residents of the Woodhaven Apartments told police that a group of about three older teen-agers or young adults were seen in the complex between 7:45 p.m. and 8:45 p.m. Two wore Halloween masks, and one was about 6-feet tall, Starnes said.

He said the group "knocked on quite a few doors," including that of an older woman who saw them through a window but did not come to her door. A number of people saw the group but didn't open their doors to them because they were too old and didn't look like trick-or-treaters, Starnes said.

"We found a good bit of evidence," said Capt. Wade Stroud. "A lot of things are falling into place."

An autopsy Wednesday showed that Miss Wallace was strangled to death sometime Halloween night and was sexually molested. She had been strangled by hand, according to Dr. Thomas L. Bennett of the state Medical Examiner's Office in Chapel Hill.

During searches Tuesday night and Wednesday, police found Miss Wallace's handbag at Grayson Park on Beal Street, a tray from a jewelry box believed to be Miss Wallace's, other parts of the box in a trash can and an earring believed to be hers, in different locations nearby.

ASSOCIATION MEET

The Greenville chapter of the United Ostomy Association will hold a meeting November 10 at 7:30 p.m. The program will feature a film called "Ostomy, A New Beginning." The program will also include a presentation on ostomy equipment. Nurse Janice Ramsey, E.T. will be present for the meeting.

SERVICES

The Church of Jesus Christ of the Latter Day Saints will be holding services for investigators, or non-members, at 9 a.m. every Sunday.

The meetings are held on Martinsborough Street, across from Union Carbide. Elders Danny Blackburn and Terry Bradley invite the public.

AARP TO MEET

The Greenville Chapter of the American Association of Retired Persons will meet Monday at 2:30 p.m. at The Memorial Baptist Church.

Officers for 1982 will be elected and members are asked to pay dues. All members of the national association are invited.

Brief Life Of Katie Champlin Blossomed During Final Days

NARRAGANSETT, R.I. (AP) — When Katie Jane Maria Champlin was born 2½ years ago, doctors "couldn't even categorize her," the girl's mother recalls.

She was paralyzed from the hips down. She had club feet, spaces in her spinal cord, holes in her heart, poor circulation and a malformed kidney. Her hips were dislocated, her legs broken at birth.

But before Katie died last month — one week after an eight-hour operation to correct the curvature of the spine that was interfering with her breathing — her life blossomed for a time, nurtured by intensive hospital care and the love of her family.

Her father, Gary, made what looked like a broad skateboard that Katie would lie on belly-down to push herself around the floor.

One early spring morning, she scooted around the kitchen floor amid bowls and blenders as her mother, Priscilla, made cupcakes. Many family activities were done on the floor for Katie's benefit.

Katie peered over the edge of a bowl while Mom mixed. She put batter into tins on the floor and laughed and hugged Mom when she got batter on the end of her nose.

Her skateboard got stuck on the corner of a rug.

"Uh-oh, Mom," she said. "C'mon, Katie, you can do it."

Katie pushed again but instead of going forward spun herself in a circle, one wheel still on the carpet.

Priscilla got up to help, but it was a game to Katie and she whirled herself around, her eyes bright with the joy of discovery.

In quiet moments, Katie would lie with her head on Mom's lap, playing with dolls while Priscilla read, stroking Katie's hair until she fell asleep, holding her doll and her mother's hand.

It was hot and hazy in Narragansett the day of Katie's funeral.

"She was a gift from God to all of us," said the minister.

The sound of the Point Judith lighthouse horn drifted in and out, and dry autumn leaves still on the oaks hissed in the distance.

"... and she changed the life of everyone she touched."

Stress Said Real Childhood Problem

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stress is a serious problem with children, says Dr. Jerome Vogel.

"A child under biological stress may have frequent colds or allergic reactions. He may skip over words or phrases or be unable to finish reading tasks within an expected length of time. He may be accident prone. His behavior may be erratic," Vogel says, "and his activity level may cause problems in dealing with parents, teachers and peers."

Biological imbalances associated with stress are also a major factor in school failure, poor athletic performance, weight, behavior and social problems, the doctor says. Vogel, who is medical director of The New York Institute for Child Development, has developed a special stress test guide for parents' use.

Nuclear 'Warning Shot' Plan Said Never Adopted

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) —

The Reagan administration is acknowledging that NATO has discussed firing a nuclear warning shot to discourage the Soviets if war breaks out in Europe but says the idea "has never been translated into a military plan."

In a carefully worded statement Thursday, the administration sought to reconcile contradictory statements by Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. and Secretary of Defense Caspar W. Weinberger on whether such a plan exists.

Haig said it did; Weinberger said it didn't.

"Both are right," the administration statement said.

"Secretary Haig was correct in noting that demonstrative use is an option that has been considered by NATO," it explained. "Secretary Weinberger was correct that this option has never been translated into a military plan."

It wasn't clear, however, if the statement would dispell growing expressions of anxiety over what many Europeans interpret as warlike statements from Washington at a time when the United States wants to deploy medium-range nuclear missiles in Western Europe.

Haig, a former NATO commander, told Congress on Wednesday that a NATO contingency plan called for firing a nuclear weapon "for demonstrative purposes" if conventional war broke out in Europe. But Weinberger declared Thursday that he knew of "absolutely nothing in any plan that even remotely resembles that."

David Gergen, the White House spokesman, said neither man was in error and that they discussed the nuclear warning issue before Weinberger's testimony Thursday to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

In a statement prepared by the Defense Department, the administration tried to clarify the apparent discrepancies.

"In its consideration of nuclear deployment issues, NATO a number of years ago identified the so-called demonstrative use as a possible option. It is this that Secretary Haig referred to yesterday," the statement said.

"However, as Secretary Weinberger indicated today, there is no precise NATO military plan and there have always been significant doubts expressed in NATO — doubts which the U.S. shares, about the utility of this option."

But the administration referred to statements that were slightly different from what the two secretaries actually said.

Haig actually told the committee, "There are contingency plans in the NATO doctrine to fire a nuclear weapon for demonstrative purposes to demonstrate to the other side that they are exceeding the limits of toleration in the conventional area."

Haig did not mention whether or not doubts existed about the plan, saying it was an example of what NATO might do to keep the outbreak of war at "the lowest level of violence."

Weinberger, asked about Haig's remarks, replied:

"There was a suggestion, as I understand it, in the '60s, from some military planners. ... But there is absolutely nothing in any plan that even remotely resembles that, nor should it."

The interpretation being given to Haig's remarks was that faced with the threat of defeat at the hands of Soviet conventional forces, NATO forces might fire a nuclear warhead to signal their intent to employ nuclear weapons to defend themselves unless the Soviets backed off.

Haig did not say what kind of weapon would be used or where it would be fired, but State Department officials said they assumed that it would be a warhead detonated harmlessly in the air.

However, one objection has been that the Soviets might think the warning was the real thing and counter-attack, thus igniting a full-scale nuclear war.

The administration's statement said NATO strategy is designed to confront the enemy with a wide range of possible responses to acts of aggression.

"NATO forecloses no options," the statement said. "All seek to keep the level of violence at its lowest level."

On Oct. 16, 1968, The Associated Press reported that then-Defense Secretary Clark Clifford had discussed such an idea with the NATO planning group the week before. At the time, the alliance was concerned about Soviet intentions after the Warsaw Pact invasion of Czechoslovakia two months earlier.

Life As It's Lived

Other Uses For Closet Than Hanging Clothes

By GAIL MICHAELS
There used to be a time when lots of closet space was really in demand. But no more. I, for one, think it has something to do with the lack of a draft. Without universal conscription a whole generation of young men has entered into marriage without benefit of effective instruction on the value of neatness. Whether or not Phillip would have benefitted from such instruction, however, is a moot question. As it is, his system for disposing of his clothes resembles the way a squirrel stores nuts for the winter: deposit them anywhere and if they can be found again, fine; if they can't, well, such is the way of the world. Unlike the squirrels, Phillip's philosophy doesn't include the idea of burying things out of sight. His clothes are always in plain view. When he gets home from work, he walks right past the coat closet by the front door and into the dining room, where he hangs his coat on the back of a chair. That display of neatness is laudable in comparison to the way he treats the rest of his clothes. He reserves the space in front of his chest-of-drawers for all his dirty clothes except for the handkerchiefs and socks. Those he usually would have benefitted from such instruction, however, is a moot question. As it is, his system for disposing of his clothes resembles the way a squirrel stores nuts for the winter: deposit them anywhere and if they can be found again, fine; if they can't, well, such is the way of the world. Unlike the squirrels, Phillip's philosophy doesn't include the idea of burying things out of sight. His clothes are always in plain view. When he gets home from work, he walks right home. He entered the bedroom of his college apartment, opened a suitcase on his bed and started indiscriminately pitching in the clothes which blanketed the floor like a foot of old snow. "I'll wear whatever is clean, and Mother can wash the rest," he explained. I thought marriage would change him, but it didn't. All I got was another family member who is just as messy but for whom I still entertain hopes of eventual chromosomal mutation. "Why are you always yelling at me to pick up my clothes when Daddy makes an even bigger mess?" Meg asked recently.

Center Holds Graduation

Immanuel Baptist Church provided a graduation luncheon for 25 inmates from the Greenville Pre-Release and Aftercare Center on November 3. Mrs. Ann Briley, president of the Women's Missionary Union, planned the luncheon. She coordinated the efforts of the Baptist Men's Brotherhood, the Acteens, the G.A.'s and the Women's Missionary Union.

Howard Dawkins, director of the Eastern Carolina Vocational Center, spoke to the graduates, encouraging them to strive for more community involvement and stressing the importance of asking for and giving help.

Pat Higgins, center director of PRAC, emphasized the importance of the community volunteers in the offering of services to the inmates and acknowledged the efforts of the more than 2,000 volunteers utilized by the Greenville center.

The PRAC center provides services to inmates returning home to 26 eastern counties. The Pre-Training program offers a four week re-socialization program concentrating on the areas of family relations, community awareness, vocational skill development and self concept.

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day for you to avoid arguments and disagreements over money and property matters. Look over your environment and make long-range plans for improvement.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Be more considerate of the needs of family members and establish more harmony at home. Avoid one who likes to gossip.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Do whatever will improve your health and appearance today and then you can accomplish more. Engage in favorite hobby.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Use wisdom in handling private affairs now and you keep out of trouble. Show that you are a capable person.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Don't rely on friends helping you during the day, since they are busy with own affairs. Improve your appearance.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Be careful of your reputation today, especially in your own neighborhood. Be more willing to cooperate with others now.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Study a new venture carefully before making any definite plans. Think along more constructive lines. Be happy.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) A good day to improve your surroundings. Go to influential persons who can give you important data you need.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Be clever in handling anything of a civic nature today and gain added prestige. See that your personal life is well organized.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Get busy attending to regular chores so you'll have more time for recreation. Spend your money wisely.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Good day to be of assistance to those who are having a difficult time. Find better ways of using your talents.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Show family members you have poise and avoid any arguments. A talent you have can be expressed at this time.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Much care and caution has to be exercised in motion to avoid possible accident today. Put your talents to work.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those clever young persons who can easily solve difficult problems, so be sure to send to schools where modern methods are taught in order to make the most of this ability. Teach good manners.

"Because when I yell at Daddy, it's called nagging; when I yell at you, it's discipline. Now get in your room and start cleaning before I get violent." "It's not fair!" she wailed. "There's no place to put that stuff." "That's your father's line. It may surprise you, but we do have a dirty clothes hamper."

I asked in exasperation. "What do you think a closet is for?" "For throwing toys in when you tell me I have five minutes to finish cleaning my room or death will be on my doorstep." "I can't believe this!" I screeched. "You get this room and that nasty closet clean! I swear, when it comes to the messes you and your father make, I'm ready to throw in the towel." Meg looked at me in dismay. "Well, throw it in Daddy's closet and not mine. I've got enough to pick up already."

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

SAMSON, THE SON OF MANOAH, OF THE TRIBE OF DAN, IS ONE OF THE JUDGES OF ISRAEL DURING THE PERIOD OF DOMINATION BY THE PHILISTINES, HOLDING THIS OFFICE FOR TWENTY YEARS (JUDGES 13:5). HIS AUTHORITY SEEMS TO HAVE EXTENDED ONLY OVER HIS OWN TRIBE AND HIS ACTION AS A DELIVERER OF ISRAEL FROM THE PHILISTINE BONDAGE DOES NOT GO BEYOND A FEW DEGLUTORY ATTACKS UPON THE PHILISTINES.

DEDICATED TO THE SERVICE OF GOD AS A NAZARITE BY HIS MOTHER FROM TIME OF BIRTH, SAMSON'S HISTORY SHOWS HIM A FUN-LOVING FELLOW WHOSE LIFE STYLE WAS BOISTEROUS INDULGENCES AMONG THE PHILISTINES, THEMSELVES. HIS MARRIAGE TO A PHILISTINE WOMAN AND LOVE FOR RIDDLES AND PRACTICAL JOKES ONLY LED TO DISASTER FOR HIS WIFE AND HER FAMILY. HIS GREAT STRENGTH SEEMS TO BE THE ONLY THING THAT SAVED HIM ON THE NUMEROUS OCCASIONS WHEN HIS PENCHANT FOR DANGEROUS LIVING GOT HIM INTO TROUBLE. SUCH A MANNER OF LIVING COULD ONLY END DISASTEROUSLY, AS IT DID FOR SAMSON, WHEN, BLINDED AND USED AS A SLAVE BY HIS ENEMIES, HE EXERTED HIS GREAT STRENGTH IN AN ACT OF PERSONAL REVENGE UPON HIS TORMENTORS BY CAUSING THE COLLAPSE OF A TEMPLE IN WHICH THE PHILISTINES WERE FEASTING TO THEIR GOD, DAGON. IT IS NOTED THAT WITH SAMSON'S DEATH THREE THOUSAND PHILISTINES WERE ALSO DESTROYED—BUT ONE WONDERS HOW MUCH MORE SAMSON MIGHT HAVE ACHIEVED IN HIS LIFE HAD HE CONFINED HIS AGILE THINKING AND ENORMOUS STRENGTH TO THE DEDICATED LIFE OF A TRUE NAZARITE INSTEAD OF... "A-WHORING AFTER THE DAUGHTERS OF THE PHILISTINES".

Minister Helps The Vagabonds

By CRAIG HORST
Associated Press Writer
ST. LOUIS (AP) — He looks like a distinguished college professor, a goateed man in his 40s with a coat and tie. But he's sound asleep at midnight on a park bench below the "Gateway to the West" arch.

The Rev. Larry Rice shakes the man's shoulder. Groggy, he sits up. "Do you have a place to stay tonight?" asks the minister. "Do you want something to eat?"

The man accepts a sandwich, but declines the offer of shelter. "I'm catching a boxcar tomorrow morning," he explains. "I'm moving on, looking for work."

There are 20,000 such people in St. Louis alone, estimates Rice, sleeping in doorways, bus stations, or on the cobblestones along the riverfront. "They're the untouchables of our society," he says. "There are tens of thousands of them in old cities across the country."

Rice, an evangelistic minister, knows many of them. He knows where they stay and what they do. To many of the homeless, he's their only friend.

Rice and his wife, Penny, founded the New Life Evangelical Center 10 years ago after watching homeless men shuffle into a downtown coffee shop.

"Those guys had nowhere to go," he says. "I couldn't very well stand there and tell them about the word of God and then, when it was time to close up shop, just say, 'Good night, fellas.'"

"I had to find them a place."

Six shelters have sprung up across the city, places where a door temporarily locks out the fear of the streets.

Last year, Rice and 15 full-time volunteers distributed $212,000 in aid through four emergency shelters and two longer-term homes.

New Life is funded entirely through donations. About 3,000 persons are listed as regular donors by New Life, supplementing some contributions from corporations, Rice says. The center does not solicit funds, but describes its work in a bi-monthly newsletter.

"We have to trust to God for everything around here," says Rice.

On a recent day, Rice helps move a family out of a rat-infested, condemned house in a northside ghetto.

Next stop is Alberta's new home across town. Rice has just helped the 79-year-old woman move from the shack where she cooked out of a hupcab because she couldn't pay her gas bill.

Rising utility bills, along with cuts in social programs ordered by President Ronald Reagan, will force more people out into the streets, Rice says.

"Anybody can catch homelessness faster than they can catch cancer," he says.

Rice moves across the Mississippi River to the New Life shelter in East St. Louis, Ill. Up to 60 women may stay there for a month while they try to find work and a home of their own.

Glenda and Willie sit smoking cigarettes in a large hall.

Willie, who guards her age, says she came to the shelter after being "stabbed all over my body" by her pimp.

"I've been on the streets, hitchhiking, since I was 14," says Glenda, 21. "I've been raped so many times I don't even want to think about it. I just laugh at it now."

"Maybe she's right," says Glenda, glancing at Willie. "Maybe I ain't gonna find the kind of husband I want."

After helping some of the kids with homework and sharing a meal with the women, Rice heads back to New Life headquarters where some of the regulars begin shuffling in for the evening. Overnight housing is provided there for men with alcohol or emotional problems.

Then, Rice hits the streets to help the 20,000 indigents he estimates live on city streets.

Mary, an aging alcoholic, is found in the bar at the Greyhound station where she's helping a male friend spend his Social Security check. "Rev. Rice," she cries. "Can I go with you?"

Rev. Rice walks through the Continental station next door with a shopping bag full of ham sandwiches. Josephine, 79, accepts a sandwich, but declines a trip to the shelter. Ronnie, who says he's 45, accepts a ride. Michael is picked up during a tour of hospital emergency rooms.

"Our whole culture is built around having things," Rice says. "These people walk the streets and see the billboards that tell them they are not a person unless they have those things. More and more people are being broken. There's a brokenness in the people's spirit."

"If there's one thing they're successful at in America, it's hiding their poverty," he says. "Build an overpass over it. Keep them on the other side of the tracks. Just so long as you don't have to see it."

Faith in the power of prayer is sometimes all that keeps Rice going. "God is bigger than every problem," says Rice. "You have to remember that because the problems are so big."

Financial Matters Play Big Role For Adventists

By LAURINDA KEYS
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Like their faith, financial matters are part of the mission of the 604,000 Seventh-day Adventists in North America, whose church owns hospitals, schools, food stores, retirement homes and businesses including publishing houses and a lumber mill.

In addition to tithes (10 percent of their income) and offerings on top of that, many members donate their time, businesses, knowledge and expertise in unique ways to help the church and their fellow man.

The church's financial dealings with its members recently have received public attention with the collapse of the $46 million investment empire of a California land developer; 17 church institutions had $17.8 million invested, says spokesman Franklin Hudgins in Washington, D.C.

The financial tangle occurred as the church was dealing with challenges to the authenticity and accuracy of its theology, developed more than 100 years ago to explain why Christ had failed to return then as believers expected.

They employ Adventist students, buy products from fellow Adventists and invest for retirement in regional Adventist trust funds.

An Adventist businessman's group in Southern California lends money at low interest rates for church construction; a Mercedes-Benz dealer in Grants Pass, Ore. uses his showroom as a church; and Versitron Industries in Riverside hires students to cook health foods for Adventist college and high school cafeterias.

"The key purpose is to use their business in advancing the work of the Seventh-day Adventist Church," explained Ken Livesay director of Adventist Services Industries in Riverside, Calif.

"Their goal is to witness to all they come in contact with about the great love and salvation of Christ, thus hastening his return."

The church's financial dealings with its members recently have received public attention with the collapse of the $46 million investment empire of a California land developer; 17 church institutions had $17.8 million invested, says spokesman Franklin Hudgins in Washington, D.C.

The financial tangle occurred as the church was dealing with challenges to the authenticity and accuracy of its theology, developed more than 100 years ago to explain why Christ had failed to return then as believers expected.

The bankruptcy was filed early this year by Dr. Donald J. Davenport of Century City, an Adventist who relied on his connections to church leaders to solicit investments for building and leasing post offices and telephone company facilities. In addition to Adventist institutions, more than 200 individuals were listed among his creditors in the preliminary bankruptcy petition.

The Adventist General Conference did not have money invested, but regional conferences did. The North Pacific Union Conference, based in Portland, Ore., had $3 million invested; more than any other regional institution.

In addition, many individual Adventists, such as missionaries and retired pastors, formed into trust associations to invest a promises of 15 percent interest when banks and savings and loans were paying 6 percent to 8 percent.

A spokesman for the North Pacific conference, who declined to be identified, said some investors had demanded no collateral, and others were given what they thought were first trust deeds on property which turned out to be second and third trust deeds.

The creditors have until Dec. 15 to file reasons why their claims should not be forgiven by the court, and Thomas Long, an attorney for the General Conference in Washington, D.C., said the church may do so.

City Closed Off Nine Indicted By Armed Guard In Tax Case

GOLDEN BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The residents of the affluent Dade County community of Golden Beach say they're pleased that they now have to pass by an armed sentry in order to get to their homes. That's because the seprtry is there to let them in, and keep outsiders out.

Armed police began sentry duty Thursday in a new guardhouse along the only thoroughfare linking this town of 612 people to the rest of crime-plagued Dade County. Six other streets that intersect State Road A1A were sealed off last month. Residents appeared pleased that the anti-crime measures, first proposed 18 months ago, had gone into effect.

FARMVILLE — Nine eastern North Carolina persons, including seven Pitt County residents, have been charged in an 18-count indictment alleging conspiracy to commit acts of mail fraud, conspiracy to traffic in contraband cigarettes, trafficking in contraband cigarettes and use of the U.S. mails to facilitate the transmission of false and fraudulent representations.

The indictment generally alleges that the individuals established a mail order cigarette operation providing for the shipment of North Carolina cigarettes into high cigarette tax states, without paying the tobacco tax in the states where the cigarettes were to be distributed. Indicted were Norris Lee Eason, Ellis Hunter, Edward Lewis Jones Jr., Edward Lewis Jones Sr., Clarence Raymond Prescott and Barbara Prescott, all of Farmville, Paul David Thompson of Greenville, Linda Dixon Lilley and William Raymond Lilley of Scotland Neck. Each count of the indictment carries a possible five-year prison term and possible fines of $1,000, $10,000 or $100,000 per count. The nine are scheduled for arraignment Nov. 17 in New Bern. Warrants were sent from the U.S. attorney's office to the U.S. marshal's office Wednesday afternoon and some arrests were made Thursday, a spokesman for the U.S. Marshal Service said this morning.

 prevention of early development defects. More drastic effects from the Reagan budget-cutting will be felt in six or eight months, she predicted.

Dinner music was provided by Elizabeth Ellen and Carol Moore, violinists, and Dr. Charles Bath, pianist. Then the Eastern North Carolina Suzuki violinists, under the direction of Joanne Bath, presented a concert. Recognized as being in attendance were state legislators Vernon White, Sam Bundy and Ed Warren, the mayors and mayors-elect of various Pitt County towns; Steve Morrisette of the N.C. Hospital Association; Pitt County commissioners, hospital trustees, hospital foundation and gifts committee members, and employees of the hospital. Betty Speir, secretary of the Hospital Foundation, and Norma Van Veld, president of the Greenville Service League, were recognized for their work in preparing for the banquet.

Honored posthumously with a moment of silence called for by hospital Director Jack Richardson were Dr. Charles Adams, Dr. Howard Gradis, Vernon Cox, Curtis Hendrix and W.W. Speight, all of whom were cited as being instrumental in bringing the present PCMH to reality.

East To Debate

George McGovern

Sen. John East of Greenville will debate former Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., at a symposium on "The Liberal Tradition in America and Contemporary Conservatism" sponsored by the Southern Political Science Association.

The debate is scheduled for 9:30 a.m. Saturday at the association's annual meeting in Memphis. East, a former political science professor at East Carolina University, is a member of the association. He said, "McGovern and I have widely divergent views on political theory. I look forward to meeting him, especially in an academic environment." East and McGovern will have 30 minutes each to respond to papers delivered on the topic by two other participants.

Pirates Host Bucs For Homecoming

By WOODY PEELE

After two straight losses to outstanding teams, East Carolina University's Pirates hope to bounce back on Saturday against East Tennessee State University.

week's losses. East Tennessee brings in a 5-3 record and will be seeking to wrap up a winning year.
'This is a 'must' game for us,' East Carolina coach Ed Emory said.

the Pirates to go into the game as healthy as any team he could remember after nine games. Only three players were definitely expected to be out of action, defensive end Jeff Pegues, running back Earnest Byner and center Tony Hensley.

Blue, running back Milt Corsey, running back Leon Lawson, split end Ricky Nichols, corner back Gerald Sykes, and strong safety Marvin Elliott.
East Tennessee was also facing a major problem, with a shoulder separation sidelining quarterback Scott Nault.

Emory noted. 'They have five seniors on the line, and that means a lot.' The five include left tackle Benny Cook (6-0, 246), left guard Jeff Bridges (6-2, 245), right guard Chuck Gibson (5-11, 228), right tackle Joe Clement (5-11, 250), and tight end Mike Barnes (6-1, 200).

linebacking and good end play. And they round things out with a good kicking game, too.'
Emory said East Tennessee would compare favorably to both Toledo and Southwest Louisiana, two teams the Pirates beat, but in close contests.

you might call a 'dead' wishbone.'
Emory is hopeful that two of the injured backs, Lawson and Blue, will be able to go full speed against the Buccaneers.

failed to produce a win. The first meeting, back in 1954, resulted in a tie, 6-6. After that, ETSU won the next four, before East Carolina pulled out a 24-8 win in the last meeting of the two, back in 1974.

Gant Grabs Off Journal Pole

HAMPTON, Ga. (AP) — Even when Darrell Waltrip doesn't come out on top he's still the main topic of conversation these days on the Grand National stock car circuit.

his two years full time on the Grand National circuit, earning himself the reputation of a perennial bridesmaid.

Deserves A Rest

Stock car driver Darrell Waltrip takes a cat nap in the garage Thursday before time trials for Sunday's Atlanta Journal 500. Waltrip has won four races back-to-back also taking the pole position in each race. Thursday, however, he was bumped from the top spot by Harry Gant. (AP Laserphoto)

Harry Gant managed to end Waltrip's string of four straight pole position victories Thursday, taking the top spot for Sunday's Atlanta Journal 500.

Carter said, 'It gives us real satisfaction to beat them (Waltrip and Johnson) in qualifying. The way they run, it really gives us a goal to shoot for.'

'And, sure, it would be nice to win at least one of these last two (1981) races. It would certainly make the layover during the winter nice; to lay back at Christmas and enjoy thinking about it.'

'We have a lot of young people on our team,' Carter added. 'They're the people I'd like to see get the benefit of winning. I can live without it, if I have to. But, of course, I'd like to win, and I'd like to see Harry get his first victory.'

Waltrip, who is the first driver to win four straight races since Cale Yarborough did it on the way to a national championship in 1976, was not particularly concerned about losing the pole.

Pretending to cry, the Franklin, Tenn., driver said, 'I sure do hope that everybody feels sorry for old Darrell because I finished second today.'

Then, getting a bit more serious, he said, 'The most important thing is still to win races, not win poles. I like being up front, and second place isn't too bad. I figure we've still got a pretty good shot at this thing.'

Waltrip goes into Sunday's 500-mile leading second-place Bobby Allison by 68 points in the race for the 1981 Winston Cup driving championship.

Allison, still trying to rediscover the formula that had him ahead of Waltrip by more than 300 points midway through the season, qualified his Buick sixth Thursday, at 161.781.

Richard Petty, also in a Buick, was third at 162.453, followed by the Ford Thunderbirds of Bill Elliott, 161.872, and Neil Bonnett, 161.786.

The top 15 spots were decided Thursday, with qualifying sessions scheduled today and Saturday to fill the rest of the 40-car field.

City Hires New Net Supervisor

A reception will be held Sunday at the River Birch Tennis Center at Evans Street Park to honor the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department's new tennis supervisor, Henry Hostetler.

The Rose High School girls' tennis team, along with the department's junior girls tennis team will also be honored at the reception. Both teams recently completed unbeaten seasons.

The reception will be held from 3 to 4:30 p.m. Hostetler, a native of Raeford, is a graduate of East Carolina University, where he was a member of the Pirate tennis team.

He played three years at the number one singles slot and was the team's Most Valuable Player in 1977.

In the I backfield, the Buccaneers will have tailback Richard Dill (5-9, 166, Jr.), who 'has great speed,' and fullback Earl Ferrell (6-0, 215, Sr.). 'Ferrell is an outstanding fullback. I don't know if Nault will play, but his backup is pretty good too,' Emory added.

On his side of the ball, Emory noted that he has been concerned about the inability of the Pirates to put the ball into the end zone the last two games. East Carolina has been held to only three Chuck Buschbeck field goals the last two outings.

The kids are in a positive mood. They are ready to have a winning season. They've worked hard to achieve it, but they know that East Tennessee and William & Mary (next week's final opponent) aren't going to lie down and let them have it.

During halftime, four new members in the East Carolina Sports Hall of Fame will be recognized. They are former football coach Jack Boone, former football player James Speight, former diver Bob Kingrey and the first Lady Pirate 1,000-point scorer in basketball Sheila Cotten, who is also the first woman selected to the hall.

Clemson, Carolina Clash In Big ACC Game; Bryant May Be Back

By TOM FOREMAN Jr. Associated Press Writer
No less than 130 writers, 12 television stations and an overflow crowd of 52,000 are expected in Chapel Hill Saturday for the Atlantic Coast Conference's finest hour of football — the game between No. 2 Clemson and No. 8 North Carolina.

CLEMSON AT UNC
Bryant, whose 15 touchdowns in the early going were leading toward an NCAA record, worked out for the first time this week since the injury on Oct. 3.

a Blue Devils attack which has gained four victories for Red Wilson this season, the best a Duke football squad has done in several years.

Warner, the nation's third-leading rusher, Warner reinjured a hamstring pull against the Hurricanes and is questionable for Saturday.

In addition, the contest to determine the leader in the ACC football race will be televised to about 60 percent of the nation by ABC-TV. The game might have garnered nationwide attention, but reluctance by the two schools to change dates, plus the Georgia-Florida contest in Jacksonville this weekend relegated The Battle of Chapel Hill to "regional" coverage.

If Bryant does play, or even if he doesn't, the Tar Heels are facing the ACC's second best rushing defense and best overall defense. In addition, Homer Jordan is second in total offense and third in passing.

Coach Monte Kiffin has decided to throw sophomore quarterback Ron Laraway to the Nittany Lions.

Paul Catanese suffered an injury in last week's loss to Cincinnati, meaning Wade Elmore will regain the starting quarterback spot for the Green Wave.

Fueling the interest in the game is speculation that injured tailback Kelvin Bryant may return to play against the Tigers. Bryant, who underwent surgery after suffering cartilage and ligament damage in a game against Georgia Tech.

Elsewhere in the ACC, No. 6 Penn State plays North Carolina State in Raleigh, Georgia Tech is at Notre Dame, Maryland meets Tulane in the Louisiana Superdome and Duke goes to Wake Forest.

Based on junior Tol Avery's six fumbled snaps and three pass interceptions, Kiffin felt Laraway should have the chance to prove himself. But it was Laraway who, with the Wolfpack trailing by one and marching down the field, threw an interception which South Carolina's Chuck Finney returned 55 yards for the game-tying score.

Stu Rogers will lead the Georgia Tech offense for the second consecutive week as starter Mike Kelley and backup Jim Bob Taylor are still injured.

History is in Clemson's favor. In the last four games in Chapel Hill, the Tigers have won three and tied one.

Ben Bennett, rated the ACC's most efficient passer, will lead

Penn State's loss to Miami, Fla., marked the fifth time in eight weeks that the No. 1 team had failed to hold on to the position. But quarterback Todd Blackledge will attempt to lead his team back toward the summit.

Old 43 To Stay In 43

ATLANTA (AP) — If NASCAR driver Richard Petty is to switch stock-car teams, he will have to retain car No. 43 and continue racing under STP sponsorship, officials for STP said Thursday.

'In 1982 Richard Petty will drive an STP car numbered 43,' said STP spokesman Harvey Duck. 'He can't get in the No. 28 car (Ranier's). He has to be in the 43 car. We have a lifetime contract with him, and we intend to exercise our option and pick him up again for '82.'

Petty is reportedly thinking about a switch from Petty Enterprises to Harry Ranier's Charlotte, N.C.-based team next year.

Duck said Petty has little room to negotiate, but he said the contracts did not specify that the No. 43 car itself had to be a Petty Enterprises car.

So Petty apparently would be free to drive for Ranier as long as the car he drove was painted STP's colors and was numbered 43.

The Petty-STP contracts are worth between $800,000 and $900,000 a year. Petty said in September that his operation is losing money this season, with total expenses running over $1.5 million.

Tom Baines made great strides last week, pulling out to a two-game lead over the rest of the panel by turning in a 10-2 week. He got the breaks in a couple of close games that were decided in the final period that could have really shaken up the standings.

Baines currently holds down an 81-26 mark, while this writer and Vickie Spivey are next at 79-28. Rick Scoppe and our guests hold down fourth place with a 78-29 mark, close behind, while Joe Jenkins is still at the tail end, holding a 66-41 mark.

Our guest last week was Rose High School coach Ronald Vincent, who went 8-4. And one of those four really hurt: it was Hunt's victory over the Rampants in an upset. This week's guest is another new area football coach, Conley's Gerald Garner, who's already posted three victories for the Vikes after last year's team went winless.

There are still plenty of picks left, however, before the season comes to an end.

On the high school end of the pickings, we find a 3-2 week last time out pulled us down to 45-16 on the season.

This is the final week of the high school picks — at least those solely on our own. Any other games, in the playoffs, will be added to the picks of the whole panel.

Charles B. Aycock visits North Pitt, and the Falcons will be coming off their first loss of the season. It's imperative that the Falcons win this one, or they could be staying home next week. North Pitt, after having the week off, could turn a lot of heads by pulling off another upset of the Aycock eleven. But we don't believe Aycock will let that happen.

Conley travels to Havelock, still with an outside chance to make the playoffs. But — Conley must win, and North Lenoir must upset West Carteret for it to happen. The Vikings have shown a lot of improvement during the last couple of weeks, but we still have to go with Havelock to win this one.

Finally, on the local scene, Southwest Edgecombe visits Ayden-Grifton in one of the more important Eastern Carolina games of the season. A victory by the Chargers would pull them into a three-way tie for the championship. Southwest, however, has been very strong, handing C.B. Aycock its first loss of the year last week. Whether the euphoria of that win lingers too long might be the question. We'll give a sentimental nod to the Chargers to pull this one out.

Elsewhere, it will be Bath over Jamesville, Southern Nash over Greene Central, and Edenton over Jamesville.

Now, to the panel's picks.

First off, Rose High School's Rampants, after being upset by Wilson Hunt last week, travel to Elizabeth City to face Northeastern High School in what has turned into a very key game. Rose must win to make it into the playoffs, without having to rely on what happens elsewhere. Northeastern can play spoiler at the same time. The panel, however, is sticking with Rose, going down the line with a 6-0 ballot.

Saturday afternoon, the Pirates of East Carolina play host to East Tennessee State at Homecoming. The Pirates have been struggling, while East Tennessee brings in a 5-3 record — but against lesser opposition. However, the Pirates have had little success with the Buccaneers in the past. The panel likes East Carolina's chances, however, and again goes 6-0 with the Pirates.

Our other picks look like this: Clemson over North Carolina; Notre Dame over Georgia Tech; Penn State over N.C. State; Mississippi State over Southern Mississippi; VMI over Richmond; Duke over Wake Forest; Maryland over Tulane; Florida State over Miami of Florida; Iowa over Purdue; and Texas over Houston.

For The ACC, Meeting Of Heels, Tigers Is Attracting Attention

By The Associated Press
The Atlantic Coast Conference has had many confrontations between powerhouses in basketball, but never has an ACC football game been anticipated nationally as much as Saturday's matchup between second-ranked Clemson and No. 8 North Carolina.

The game will be televised to 60 percent of the nation, and an overflow crowd of 52,000 is expected in Chapel Hill, N.C. Clemson is 8-0 and ranked highest in its history, while the Tar Heels are 7-1.

The ACC has never had a football game pairing teams ranked so high. In 1978, Maryland was 11th and Clemson 12th when the Tigers won and went on to beat Ohio State in the Gator Bowl.

In other games involving ranked teams Saturday, No. 1 Pittsburgh travels to East Rutherford, N.J., to meet Rutgers, No. 3 Southern California is at California, No. 4 Georgia meets Florida in a national television game at Jacksonville, No. 5 Texas is at Houston, No. 6 Penn State at North Carolina State, No. 9 Arizona State plays host to San Jose State, Rice is at 10th-ranked Southern Methodist, No. 11 Nebraska is at Oklahoma State, Illinois is at No. 12 Michigan, No. 13 Miami, Fla., is at No. 14 Florida State, No. 15 Mississippi State is at No. 20 Southern Mississippi, No. 16 Washington is at UCLA, No. 17 Oklahoma is at Kansas State, 18th-ranked Ohio State is at Minnesota and Baylor is at No. 19 Arkansas.

Another closely watched game will be Michigan State at Northwestern, which will establish a major-college record for consecutive losses with 29 if it falls to the Spartans.

If Bryant does play, or even if he doesn't, the Tar Heels are facing the ACC's second-best rushing defense and best overall defense. In addition,

Clemson quarterback Homer Jordan is second in total offense and third in passing.

Besides Bryant, North Carolina has several other question marks because of injuries. Quarterback Rod Elkins is still nursing a twisted ankle and, for the second week in a row, Scott Stankavage will start.

"Any good football team has to have a good defense and Clemson does," said North Carolina Coach Dick Crum. "And their offense complements that defense."

"Looking at all the quarterbacks we've played to date, he is the most well-rounded," Crum said of Jordan. "He runs well, he throws well and runs the offense well."

Perry Tuttle is from Winston-Salem, N.C., but he is Clemson's leading receiver.

"Watching the film, they have a good team that is very quick," Tuttle said of the Tar Heels. "They are comparable to Georgia. Once thing Carolina does is get around the ball with all 11 defenders."

North Carolina beat Clemson 24-19 last year, but Tuttle, who has caught 31 passes this year for an 18.5 average and 5 touchdowns, said 1981 will be different.

"I expect the game to be close like last year, but with a different result," he said.

Area Juniors Close With Wins

Rose High School's junior varsity closed out the 1981 season with a 42-6 victory over Northeastern yesterday.

Rose scored six touchdowns during the afternoon, and each was scored by a different player.

Reggie Smith put the Rampant Cubs on the board with a four-yard run in the first quarter. Cyrus Blackwell ran over the extra points for an 8-0 lead.

Northeastern's lone score came in the second period on a 35-yard pass play.

Later in the period, Ronald Moore pulled in a 23-yard pass from Kenny Kirkland to tie the margin. Roswell Streeter caught the conversion pass also from Kirkland, making it 16-6. Kirkland then closed out the first half scoring on a two-yard run, and the Rampants led, 22-6.

Cyrus Blackwell scored from 12 yards out in the third quarter to run the lead to 28-0, and Tony Bradley scored from 15 yards out later in the frame, with Blackwell getting the extra points to make it 36-6.

Finally, Randy Moore scored on a one-yard plunge in the third to tie the lead to 42-6. Frankie Carr and Delano Williams sparked the defensive effort of the Cubs.

The win closes the year with a 6-4 for the Rampant Cubs.

ELIZABETH CITY — E.B.

Aycock Junior High School closed out the 1981 football season with a 28-22 victory over Northeastern yesterday.

Aycock was led by Anthony Cobb, who scored on runs of 63 and one yard. He also scored on one two-point conversion and rushed for 185 yards.

Aycock's other scores were by Tyrone Smith, one a 48-yard pass from Battle Emory, and the other on a 12-yard pass from Emory. Smith also added the final conversion, also on an Emory pass.

Aycock trailed 14-0 before rallying to take the lead. Northeastern had scored first on a 70-yard pass, with Percell Sharpe getting the score. The Eaglettes followed that up with an interception on the first Aycock pass, and scored on a 23-yard pass to George Pledger, for the 14-0 lead.

Aycock then came back on touchdowns by Cobb and Smith to tie it at 14-14 at the half. The Jaguars then pushed in the first possession of the second half, and Cobb's score pushed Aycock ahead for good.

Smith added his other score for a 28-14 lead. Northeastern scored in the final minute of the game, scoring on a 71-yard kickoff return by Sharpe.

Aycock finishes with 3-2-1 on the year.

Although quarterback Joe Namath led the New York Jets to their 16-7 upset of Baltimore in the 1969 Super Bowl, the Jet defense also played a strong part, intercepting four Colt passes.

Shula Goes For 200th Pro Win As Patriots Host Dolphins

By The Associated Press
For Don Shula, the password is "perspective."

"Right now," he says, "the important thing is us winning our seventh game."

If the Miami Dolphins win it Sunday against the New England Patriots, it'll also be Shula's 200th career victory as a coach in the National Football League. For a profession in which longevity is the exception rather than the rule, it would put Shula in some pretty exceptional company.

Of the dozens and dozens of coaches who have come and gone, only George Halas (founder of the Chicago Bears and a founding father of the league itself), Curley Lambeau of the Green Bay Packers (another founder), and Tom Landry (the only coach the Dallas Cowboys have had since their birth in 1960) have won 200 games.

For the moment, the only number Shula wants is the number of victories it takes to win yet another division title.

"Someday, when you have time to cherish all your accomplishments, it's something I'll be proud of," Shula said of the upcoming 200th victory. "I have the ball that was given to me after the 100th. It's at home. But it doesn't help me win Sunday."

Sunday's other games are Tampa Bay at Minnesota, Atlanta at San Francisco, New Orleans at Los Angeles, the New York Jets at Baltimore, Cincinnati at San Diego, Oakland at Houston, Detroit at Washington, the New York Giants against Green Bay at Milwaukee, Philadelphia at St. Louis, Chicago at Kansas City, Cleveland at Denver and Pit-sburgh at Seattle. Buffalo is at Dallas Monday night.

The Dolphins of 1981, despite being a team in transition, have managed to stay atop the American Conference's East Division since opening day. They won their first four games and tied the fifth en route to a 6-2-1 record which has them one-half game ahead of Buffalo.

"This is the year we want to change a lot of things around," Shula said. "This (game at New England) is another important test for us to determine whether or not we're playoff-bound."

One thing he'd like to change is the Dolphins' record in Schaefer Stadium, the Patriots' home in Foxboro, Mass. Miami hasn't won there in its last five tries, not since sweeping the two game series 22-14 and 20-7 in 1975. Last year's visit produced a 34-0 blowout by the Pats. But the Dolphins got even later in the season with a 16-13 overtime victory in the Orange Bowl which knocked the Patriots out of the playoffs.

Tampa Bay, which got the jump on the rest of the league this year (they opened their season on a Saturday night at home) by beating Minnesota 21-13, can take command of the National Conference's Central Division with their first season sweep of the Vikings. The teams are tied for first place with 5-4 records, one game ahead of Detroit.

In the NFC West, Los Angeles and Atlanta are tied for second place at 5-4. Rams'

Coach Ray Malavasi, distressed by quarterback Pat Haden's erratic play and lack of point production and by the loss of Jeff Rutledge with a dislocated right thumb, has turned to Dan Pastorini, the Oakland castoff, as his starter against the Saints.

"This is as good a time as any to take a look at Pastorini," Malavasi said of the quarterback whose broken leg last year enabled Jim Plunkett to guide the Raiders to the Super Bowl. "He's been with the team three or four weeks, long enough to take a look at our system. It would not have been fair to him to start him earlier. Haden has done good things for us but we have not been putting enough points on the board."

San Francisco owns the biggest lead in the league, a two-game edge over the Rams and Falcons. The 49ers play Atlanta, which beat them 34-17 in September. The following week San Francisco began what has now stretched to a six-game winning streak, the longest in the club's history.

On a streak in the opposite direction are the Baltimore Colts, the losingest team in the NFL this year at 1-8. The lone victory came against the Patriots on opening day. Like the 49ers, the Colts have never had a streak to match this one.

One More Exam Before Decision

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina tailback Kelvin Bryant will be examined once more before a final decision on his status for Saturday's Atlantic Coast Conference game against second-ranked Clemson.

Dr. Joseph DeWalt, team physician for the eighth-ranked Tar Heels, said he "feels good" about Bryant's progress.

Bryant, sidelined since undergoing knee surgery on Oct. 4, hasn't participated in contact work but has been running alternately with the team's first unit in dummy drills this week.

"He looks like he's running well and he looks just as quick (as he did before the injury)," said trainer John Lacey.

Before being injured in the fourth game of the season against Georgia Tech, Bryant had scored 15 touchdowns and gained 566 yards for a 7.5 per carry average.

Since the injury, Bob Ratliff, Tyrone Anthony and freshman Ethan Horton have done an admirable job of taking up the slack.

If Bryant returns to action against Clemson, however, the Tar Heels will still have substantial injury problems.

Lacey said quarterback Rod Elkins, suffering from a sprained ankle, "might be a week away" from solid recovery. Meanwhile, offensive lineman Steve McGrew and defensive back Bill Jackson are still ailing.

Scott Stankavage, who directed North Carolina to a victory over Maryland last week, is slated to start at the quarterback slot. But Elkins will be waiting in the wings.

"If he (Elkins) had to go, he could do a commendable job, I'm sure," Lacey said. "When he sprints, you detect a small limp."

NASCAR figures indicate Petty and his son Kyle Petty have grossed $455,000 in purse winnings this year; they would thus be operating some $200,000 or more in the red.

Ranier reportedly offered Petty a substantial bonus for joining the team, but Duck said his contract prohibited such a deal.

Asked about the proposed switch, Kyle Petty, 21, said, "There's nothing to that, unless Daddy has been dealing behind my back."

Evidence Presented

NEW YORK (AP) — The government has submitted telephone records and other documents as evidence to substantiate charges against a former Boston College basketball player and four others accused of conspiring to shave points in games during the 1978-79 season.

The government, represented in the trial by Assistant U.S. Attorney Edward McDonald, spent much of the day Thursday before U.S. District Judge Henry Bramwell introducing telephone records of four of the defendants and documents from Western Union and several Boston hotels.

To The Editor:
I'm not sure what would fill the stands, but I do know why people do not go to ECU home games.

First, the ECU Athletic Association has to sell tickets to people other than just students and local alumni. Up until the past two years, it was almost like one had to belong to a secret fraternity to buy tickets. Once I finally found out where the ticket office was, the business hours were not convenient to picking up tickets after work. Why not advertise a mailing address and prices? Selling them at local businesses is a great idea, but too late now that the winning days have left. Tickets must be easily available to those who live in areas outside of Greenville.

The "stadium" itself still reminds me of a very large set of bleachers set up in a field. The pedestrian area is underneath the stands and was very muddy or dusty the last times I was there. Atmosphere gets people to football games. It is the non-ECU, average football fan who can fill the stands and they just haven't yet found the stimulus to go to the expense and time to see ECU play.

And why not afternoon games, particularly after the first one or two games when the weather gets cooler? Also, $9 to see ECU play someone we have never heard of is a lot of ask.

The same people who overflow the stadiums at State, Duke and UNC will come to Greenville. Would you be willing to guarantee what ever is asked by these schools to get your stadium filled?

The reason football fans did not attend the Miami game was that there was nothing to see. Three years ago when ECU had a winner, it would have been a different story. There must be a combination of a home town winner and either outstanding, nationally recognized competition, or good local rivalries where the outcome could go either way. Neither of these two combinations has ever existed in the 11 years I have lived here.

The combination has to be there. Winning is unimpressive if it is against unknowns, and playing the big boys is dull if ECU loses 90 percent of the time. Efforts should be aimed at the typical college football fan, not just Pirate fans — they will be there under almost any circumstances. It is we "others" who were not there last Saturday (when ECU played Miami).

Holmes Predicts KO Victory Over Snipes

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Larry Holmes had just predicted he would knock out Renaldo Snipes in defense of the World Boxing Council heavyweight championship tonight when a member of Snipes' camp shouted, "Promises, promises."

Holmes turned and faced the heckler, then said, "Don't worry about it, I keep mine."

The champion is such a strong favorite to there is no betting line on the fight.

The 25-year-old Snipes has won all 22 of his pro fights, 11 by knockout, but he was a controversial winner of a split decision after being knocked down twice in his last bout against Gerrie Coetzee Aug. 9. And he is at big disadvantages in both general experience and experience in a big fight to Holmes, who was 32 Tuesday.

During the official weigh-in Thursday — Holmes, 6-foot-3 weighed 213½ and the 6-2 Snipes 215½ — the fighters exchanged jibes, leading one bystander to remark that he hoped the fight had as much action.

Because Holmes, who is getting $1.1 million, could blow a $10 million payday against top-ranked Gerry Cooney in March by falling victim to a major upset, promoter Don King has billed the fight as "Imminent Danger."

That piece of hype also stems from the fact that Jersey Joe Walcott, a 6-1 underdog making his fifth bid for the title, knocked out Ezzard Charles in the seventh round at old Forbes Field here July 18, 1951.

Pittsburgh's first heavyweight championship fight since the Walcott-Charles bout will be held in the 17,000-seat Civic Arena. A spokesman for the Civic Arena Corporation said he hoped for a crowd of at least 12,000. A crowd of 13,000 reportedly was needed for the arena to break even. Tickets were scaled from $200 down to $20.

Holmes' 11th defense of the title he won from Ken Norton on a split decision June 9, 1978, was to be televised live by ABC, as was a 10-round bout featuring Michael "Dynamite" Dokes. The telecast was scheduled for 9 p.m. to 11 p.m., EST.

Dokes and Randy "Tex" Cobb, another heavyweight on the show, are both ranked higher by the WBC than Snipes, who is listed No. 7.

Dokes, of Akron, Ohio, 24-0-1, with 12 knockouts, is ranked second behind Cooney by the WBC and No. 4 by the World Boxing Association. He will fight George Chaplin of Baltimore, 16-4-2, with eight knockouts, who is unranked but lost two controversial decisions to unbeaten Greg Page.

Dokes reportedly was getting $100,000, just $50,000 less than Snipes.

Cobb, of Philadelphia, ranked sixth with a record 18-2, with 17 knockouts, will fight a scheduled 10-rounder against WBC ninth-ranked Bernard Mercado of Colombia, 27-2, with 23 knockouts.

In another heavyweight 10, Thomas "Franco" Thomas of Clarksburg, W.Va., 24-2, with 15 knockouts, will meet Jimmy Young of Philadelphia, 29-10-2, with 10 knockouts. Thomas is ranked eighth by the WBC and No. 6 by the WBA. Young, who lost a decision in a title bid against Muhammad Ali in 1976, is rated 10th by the WBC.

Holmes has a 38-0 record in a pro career that started March 21, 1973, with a four-round decision over Rodell Dupree at Scranton, Pa. About 6½ years later, Snipes, of Yonkers, N.Y., knocked out Dupree in the third round at Atlantic City.

Pistons Off To Fast NBA Start

By The Associated Press

The urge to "Break up the Pistons," is nothing new to pro basketball in Detroit. This year, however, the phrase has taken on completely new — and positive — significance.

The Pistons, giving new meaning to the word hapless over the last two seasons, winning 37 of 164 games, are off to a fast start in the 1981-82 National Basketball Association season.

Detroit is 3-0 and smokin'. Break up the Pistons.

The Pistons, with renewed spirit thanks to rookies Isiah Thomas and Kelly Tripucka, made it 3-for-3 Thursday night with a 109-103 victory over the winless New Jersey Nets at the Silverdome. And most impressive was the fact that Detroit rebounded from a 14-point second-quarter deficit and had to go the last 1:26 without Thomas, who fouled out.

"We've been winning because of team effort not because of me," said Thomas, who scored 15 points after totalling 59 in his first two games. "Everybody's really been playing well and I just hope that people don't overstate my importance to this team."

"I hope we are for real. I don't know if we're contenders yet, but we're a pretty good basketball team."

John Long scored 10 of his game-high 23 points in the fourth quarter and the Pistons held off a late rally by New Jersey, which closed within 105-103 with 18 seconds remaining.

Thomas and Tripucka were responsible for the first two victories, but against New Jersey, reserve Terry Tyler came off the bench to score 15 points with nine rebounds and six blocked shots, including two by Nets rookie Buck Williams.

"Starting doesn't matter to me," Tyler said. "I don't get hung up on that. I just want to contribute. I'd like to be playing more, but when the time comes, I have to be ready to do the job."

Nets Coach Larry Brown, who blasted Meadowlands Arena fans for booing his team in a loss to Atlanta Wednesday night, found life on the road just as tough. The Nets are in a streak where they play 10 of 13 on the road.

"I don't enjoy not winning, but I'm very mindful of the effort we're giving," Brown said.

Brown, who expects a rough time with his very young New Jersey team, was impressed with the Pistons, whose players, for the most part, are not far removed from the campus.

"For Detroit to win as young as they are they have to get everyone involved off the bench," Brown said. "We did as good a job as possible on Isiah. He's a special kid."

Bucks 96, Bullets 90

Washington, 0-3, and the Nets are the only winless teams left in the NBA. And Milwaukee's Brian Winters made certain the Bullets stayed that way, scoring 18 of his 25 points in the second half. Winters' layup and three long jumpers helped the Bucks open a 14-point lead in the third quarter and Milwaukee, 2-1, then held off a late Washington rally that saw

Jazz 110, Warriors 101

The dynamic duo of Adrian Dantley (43) and Darrell Griffith (28) combined for 71 points as Utah won for the second time in three games. The Jazz led by 81-80 after three quarters and slowly pulled away at the end. Bernard King led the Warriors with a season-high 26 points, but it was not good enough to prevent Golden State's third loss in four games.

Suns 121, Jazz 93

Second-year guard Kyle Macy scored 20 points — including 14 in the first half — and veteran forward Truck Robinson added 19 as the Suns breezed to even their record at 2-2. Dallas, 1-3, got 19 points from rookie Rolando Blackman and 16 from Brad Davis.

Steinbrenner: Yankees Won't Deal In The Draft

NEW YORK (AP) — The re-entry draft of baseball's free-agent talent Nov. 13 will be missing George Steinbrenner, one of its most ardent patrons.

One of the main reasons why the draft has come to mean big-money contracts since its inception in 1976, Steinbrenner, the New York Yankees' owner, announced Thursday that the American League club would bypass it this year.

Among the high-priced free agents Steinbrenner has plucked from the draft have been outfielders Reggie Jackson and Dave Winfield, first baseman Bob Watson and pitchers Tommy John, Goose Gossett, Rudy May and Don Gullett.

The announcement that the Yankees would not draft free agents was buried in a statement that they had reached agreement with center fielder Jerry Mumphrey on a multiyear contract.

That appeared to finalize Steinbrenner's dream outfield, 1982 version: Winfield, last year's $23 million free-agent acquisition, in left, Mumphrey in center and Ken Griffey, acquired Wednesday in a trade with Cincinnati, in right.

"With the signing of Mumphrey and the acquisition of Griffey from Cincinnati, the Yankees felt they have strength in the outfield," the club's statement said.

Therefore, it continued, it is the "present intention" of the Yankees "to not participate in the upcoming free-agent draft."

"It is felt that this would be an excellent time to allow some of the young players from (our) championship minor-league teams to have an opportunity to fill any available openings in the major-league roster," the statement continued.

What all of this does to Jackson's future with the Yankees was unclear.

plus an additional amateur draft choice.

Earlier this week, five teams — Los Angeles, Boston, California, Minnesota and Seattle — were granted requested exemptions from the Type A portion of the draft for this year and the next two, thus avoiding having to help stock the pool. The Yankees acquired Griffey, who would have been a Type A free agent, the next day.

Mumphrey was acquired last March from the San Diego Padres in a six-player deal. The 28-year-old center fielder hit .307 in 80 games with six home runs and 32 runs batted in, and stole 13 bases.

Golf Architect Surprised When Augusta Unlisted

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

To Robert Trent Jones, the world's foremost golf architect, courses are like people. They have their own distinct personality and character. They have a soul.

The 450 he has designed and redesigned in 35 countries around the world he pampers as he might his own children. Others, such as the ancient St. Andrews of Scotland — he reveres as rare masterpieces.

Thus it was understandable that this eminent sculptor of landscapes should have been upset when he noted recently that a panel of experts for a golf magazine had voted to drop Augusta National, site of the Masters, from the Top Ten of America's greatest golf courses.

"How could they do it?" Jones asked. "Augusta has proved itself a course for the ages. I see no reason at all for it to be downgraded."

The panel cited as a reason for removing Augusta its wide fairways and negligible roughs which placed no premium on accurate driving and gave long hitters an undue advantage.

Also, the panel reasoned, Augusta greens over the years have lost much of their old speed and firmness, making it easier to get down from any part of the putting surface.

"The measure of a great golf course," Jones insists, "may be found in the names of those who went on it. With only rare exceptions, superplayers have dominated the Masters. The greats of all eras have won there — from Gene Sarazen and Byron Nelson to Jimmy Demaret, Ben Hogan, Sam stretch known as the 'Amen Corner' — the 10th through the 13th," he said. "Here, many a championship has been won and lost."

Augusta National is not one of Jones' brainchildren, although he has been called upon to make revisions over the years.

The course was the dream of the late Bob Jones (no relation) who, after completing his Grand Slam in 1930, sought a place to build an ideal course for himself and his friends.

He and the late Cliff Roberts one day happened upon an old indigo plantation known as Fruitlands, outside Augusta, which became the Augusta course and site of the Masters in 1934.

Trent Jones is a plumpish, balding man of 75 who operates out of Upper Montclair, N.J., but is rarely home. He is constantly skitting continents or crossing oceans to plant his handiwork.

He has built courses on every continent except Australia and Antarctica. He built a 45-hole layout for the King of Morocco in Rabat, another for the Aga Kahn on the coast of Sardinia and even had a go-ahead to build a course behind the Iron Curtain.

"Many a golfers' dream has been shattered on that small

Sub Grounding Undercuts Peace Talk Credibility

By WILLIAM C. MANN
Associated Press Writer

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP) — The grounding of Soviet submarine 137 put the credibility of the Soviet Union's peace initiatives in Scandinavia to a test, and some of Moscow's best friends are saying it failed.

"Unacceptable," said the chairman of Denmark's pro-Moscow Communist party. Sweden's Communists protested and said the Russian party had not even bothered to reply to a recent letter protesting its submarine fleet in the Soviet-proclaimed Baltic "Sea of Peace."

Their judgments were likely to become more harsh after Swedish Prime Minister Thorbjorn Falldin's charge that the submarine probably carried nuclear warheads on its torpedos. If it did, it would be the first known entry of nuclear weapons into the territory of any of the Nordic nations, which have been under considerable Soviet pressure to agree to a formal renunciation of such weapons even in wartime.

From the Soviet point of view, Lt. Cmdr. Pyotr Gushin could hardly have picked a less convenient time to drive his submarine onto a skerry of rocks and mud just outside Sweden's main Baltic defense post.

Finland, the buffer between Russia and Sweden, has a presidential election coming in January; the Finns will be asked for a mandate to continue outgoing President Urho Kekkonen's policy of cooperation and detente with the big communist neighbor.

Norway, like Denmark a member of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, has a new Conservative government that is reassessing the foreign policy of the previous Labor regime. One of its planks was strong support for a ban on nuclear weapons in the Nordic countries, urged by the Soviets.

More than a million people have taken streets in Scandinavia and elsewhere in Western Europe in anti-nuclear demonstrations that up to now have been directed at the stationing of U.S. nuclear missiles in Europe.

On Wednesday, Danish government sources reported the expulsion of Vladimir Merkoulov, a second secretary at the Soviet Embassy in Copenhagen, for allegedly financing much of Denmark's strong peace movement on behalf of the KGB, the Soviet secret police. The next day, officials confirmed the arrest of a leftist Danish writer charged with accepting the Russian's money and using it to get the Soviet message across to the Danish people.

A Social Democratic member of the Folketing, the Danish parliament, reported after a party caucus Thursday: "I don't think anybody really wanted to change our relations with the Soviet Union, but it could be a step on the way to changing."

"Some of us think, and many of us know, that there is infiltration on both sides, the KGB and the CIA. But I could see if there are more of this kind of thing coming up, it might lead us to a reassessment."

Moscow's embarrassment is the talk of Nordic political and diplomatic circles and editorial writers.

"The champion of peace grounded on the embarrassment of a lie," said Aktuelt, the newspaper of Denmark's ruling Social Democrats.

American officials are gleeful. "The Soviets are getting a bad press," said an American diplomat in one Scandinavian country. "As a result, we expect to hear a little bit less of the sort of thing that the Soviets aren't really such bad guys after all. We're going to try to get whatever mileage we can out of it."

U.S. diplomats also were full of praise for the firmness of the Swedes, who exacted a public apology from the Russians, refused to let Soviet ships refloat the sub and forced the Kremlin to let them interrogate the sub's captain and his navigating officer and inspect his navigation equipment and logs.

"You have to take a tough stand against all kinds of spying," said Foreign Minister Ola Ullsten.

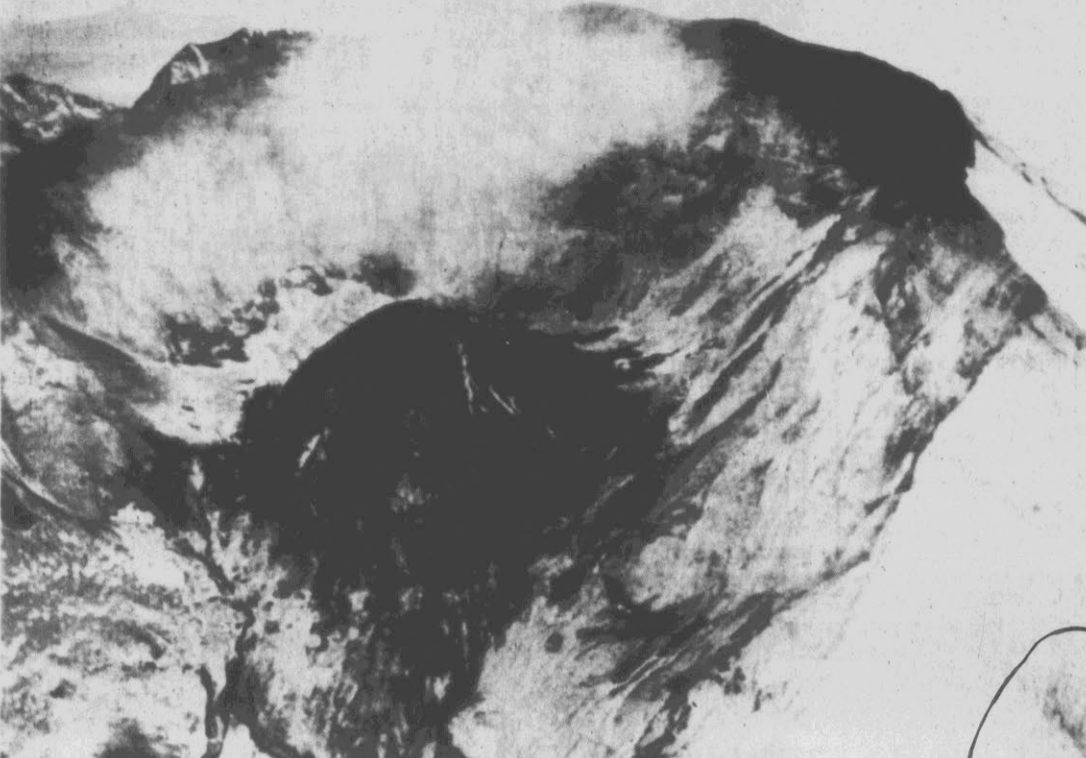

The conservative Norwegian newspaper Aftenposten compared the submarine incident with the recent visit by U.S. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger to Sweden, which the Soviets charged threatened Sweden's neutral status.

"The differences between him and the Soviet submarine captain were many," said Aftenposten. "The most important one was that the Russian was not invited."

It remains to be seen whether the submarine incident and the alleged KGB infiltration of the Danish peace movement will have a lasting effect on Nordic attitudes toward superpower politics.

Former Prime Minister Olof Palme of Sweden said he does not feel "the gross Soviet violation" of Swedish territory should lessen efforts to ban nuclear weapons in Northern Europe.

"Instead," he said, "it increases the importance of such a nuclear-free zone," which the United States strongly opposes.

NEW MOUNTAIN GROWING — The dome of molten rock in Mount St. Helens' crater continues to grow with each new non-explosive eruption. This photo, from the north rim of the crater, was taken Wednesday when skies around the southwest Washington volcano cleared long enough to allow research work and good observation. Scientists have said the oozing up of lava in the crater is the mountain's way of rebuilding itself after its cataclysmic eruption on May 18, 1980. (AP Laserphoto)

Hunt Says Schools Feel Budget Cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt said Thursday that the schools are already feeling cuts in education favored by the Reagan administration, and urged the government to hold off on further reductions in education, health and social programs.

"Today the schools are being shaken by the great political earthquake that hit this city and this nation one year ago," he said in a speech prepared for delivery to the National School Volunteer Program.

Hunt planned today to begin a series of meetings of a Democratic Party commission.

He said schools had been at the mercy of U.S. budget director David Stockman.

"David Stockman is poring over that education budget, sharpening his knife and licking his chops," Hunt said. "I think the schools have been cut enough."

Earlier Thursday, Hunt and two other governors met with Richard S. Schweiker,

Cardinal Urged Answer Charges

CHICAGO (AP) — Saying that the nation's largest Catholic archdiocese is caught in a "tangled crisis," a group of Catholics has called on Cardinal John P. Cody to respond to allegations that he misused church funds.

A federal grand jury is investigating allegations that Cody, 73, diverted up to $1 million church funds to a long-time friend, Helen Dolan Wilson.

The group, calling the letter an "unprecedented" step, asked Cody to respond "honestly, promptly and publicly" to the allegations. "These monies are donated by Catholics for charitable purposes and the faithful deserve an honest and open accounting of their use," the letter said.

Peter Foote, director of communications for the archdiocese, said Thursday that Cody "received the statement this morning and has taken the matter under advisement." Cody has previously said he would issue a statement on the matter at some point.

Financial Role . . .

Grounds for refusing to discharge debts in a bankruptcy proceeding include fraud and misrepresentation.

California after he asserted there was no biblical basis for her claim that Christ moved from one section of heaven to another in the late 19th century to begin the Judgment.

At a church boarding school in Watsonville students work in 13 profit-making industries. "They have the largest dairy in Santa Cruz County, the largest laundry, they manufacture motorized hang gliders and have a significant farming and greenhouse operation," said Lance.

Attorney Robert Shutan, who represents Davenport, said he had not studied allegations of improper conduct that have been filed. He said Davenport was cooperating with an accountant appointed by the court's trustees, and noted Davenport had packaged real estate deals for 30 years before filing for bankruptcy.

And Long Beach, Calif., pastor, Walter Rea, was removed from the ministry after charging that more than half of the revelations Mrs. White claimed had come from angels in fact were copied from other spiritual writers.

And at a church-run grade school in Ontario, each student has his own garden plot. The school strawberry patch — a group effort — grossed $4,000.

"We try to operate in the black; we're a pretty solid business concern," said communications director James Chase. "We do reasonably well, but we're not making a lot of money. We subsidize many of our programs, our mission outreach, schools and hospitals."

The General Conference studied Rea's claims, which will be the subject of a book entitled "The White Lie," agreed Mrs. White had used other writings, but concluded there was no plagiarism.

Adventist self-sufficiency is epitomized by Keene, Texas, home of Southwestern Adventist College. About 90 percent of the 3,000 residents are church members. The college owns the motel, gas station, food store, car wash, shopping center, Brandom Kitchen Cabinet Co., and a print shop. The operation grosses $15 million a year, says President Don McAdams.

He said the church, which preaches the imminent return of Jesus Christ and the end of the world, believes there are many "signs of the end times," but that does not conflict with the heavy involvement in financial dealings.

In addition to tithes and offerings, the Adventist laity have found many ways to contribute to the church's mission to "preach, teach and minister throughout the world."

Tuition is $152 a semester hour for professional programs such as nursing and pre-medicine. "The way the students pay it is by working," said McAdams. "That's why all these industries are here."

"We have faith, but we go ahead and do things. Where we make mistakes, we're sorry on that one (the Davenport case) for sure, but we regard ourselves as being stewards of that which God has given. Christ plainly taught the church to 'occupy until I come.'"

Their goal is to build a church a month in the Pacific Union Conference area — California, Nevada, Arizona, Utah and Hawaii. Supervisor Gary Rusk says they would save the church $1 million a year in labor costs. "They love their church and fellow men, that's why they do it," said Rusk.

According to Harold Lance, president of the Adventist laymen's association, a fundamental concept of Adventist education is the dignity of labor; everyone, regardless of profession, should have useful practical skills.

Country Bazaar Will Be Held

The members of Calvary United Methodist Church, Snow Hill, are sponsoring an Old-Fashioned Country Bazaar to be held Saturday at the church.

The doors will be opened at 10 a.m. Saturday and will close at 3 p.m. The craft shop will feature crafts in the heirloom tradition, as well as country knick-knack crafts. The children will operate their own booth. Features include a country kitchen and bake shop, a gallery of art featuring local Greene County artists, a garden shop, Christmas shop, calligraphy shop, and photography shop.

A barbeque will be held from 11 a.m. until the bazaar will close with an auction of all unsold items.

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Certain things are guaranteed to glaze the eyes and turn the brain to mush: insurance salesmen, Mr. Whipple and computer mumbo jumbo.

Big business — the never-never land of high finance, mergers and ticker tape — is on that list, too. But help has arrived in the form of PBS' "Enterprise," 13 weekly documentaries on how American business works.

Tonight's episode, "The Making of a Package Deal," is typical of the series' case-study method, in which institutional economics are minimized. The focus, instead, is on the humans behind the facts and figures.

Max Morgan-Witts and Gordon Thomas are British authors who have turned writing into a science and a business. Together they wrote seven books, which sold 24 million copies in 23 countries.

Before they wrote a single word for their eighth collaboration, "The Day the Bubble Burst," they were $500,000 richer. Their concept on the 1929 stock market crash had spawned plans for an NBC miniseries, a 20th Century-Fox feature film, hardcover book contracts with American and British publishing houses and a deal with Reader's Digest, in which they bartered serialization rights for the magazine's research help.

NBC had tested some project ideas for Morgan-Witts and Thomas and decided that the 1929 crash would have the most mass appeal. Then the authors began their research, traveling to Madrid, Munich, Hong Kong and Wall Street for eyewitness accounts.

CBS News commentator whose function is to provide a brief introduction each week.

Morgan-Witts and Thomas are seen tediously traveling the talk-show circuit. We're privy to one conversation on a plane about an appearance at an all-important book convention, where merchants will decide what to stock.

The problem with this kind of supposed eavesdropping is that the two authors know the camera is rolling. Their conversation has the careful sound of telling the public precisely what they want to know. The juicy stuff is probably left in backrooms.

When the book is completed, NBC expresses delight, claiming its fears that "Bubble" would only chronicle the wealthy were unfounded. Would you expect NBC to knock its own acquisition? In any case, the three-hour TV movie has been gathering moss for a year, and NBC has no plans to show it this season.

This kind of missing information and the absence of time elements are major flaws in "Enterprise."

Studio Hopes Try Three-D Television

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Those cardboard glasses that 1950s movie-goers donned so they could see films in three dimensions may be the newest television accessory if MCA-TV persuades enough local TV stations to buy the industry's first 3-D movie.

The television distribution arm of Universal Studios hopes to launch its 3-D attack with the 1955 monster movie "Revenge of the Creature," MCA-TV President Don Menchel said Thursday. The film has not been sold yet, so there is no planned broadcast date.

The film will cost local stations $1,500 plus licensing fees, but Menchel said buyers could offset the tab through "a lot of hoopla locally" that might involve selling glasses to viewers. Menchel said details of distribution had not been ironed out.

The new TV 3-D process involves transferring the old 3-D celluloid image onto master tapes resembling videotapes, said James Butterfield, head of the company producing the new process, 3 D Video in North Hollywood.

The first film planned is to be shown in black and white, and the glasses worn by viewers would have opposite polarizing filters over each eye. Each eye would see a slightly different image, creating the illusion of a three-dimensional image.

The new system should eliminate eyestrain that early 3-D watchers suffered, Butterfield said, although TV watchers without glasses will get a fuzzy image.

"Revenge" would be the first over-the-air 3-D movie, although cable and subscription companies in Los Angeles and Cincinnati already offer the effect.

If its sales are good, Menchel said MCA-TV will follow with "It Came From Outer Space" and "The Creature From the Black Lagoon."

Recall Shah Confused In Iran Revolution

By CHARLES J. HANLEY
Associated Press Writer

In new books recounting Iran's revolution, two senior U.S. diplomats present a vivid picture of a dispirited, beleaguered and confused shah, and of the deep involvement of Americans in the revolutionary tug-of-war. They offer probably the most detailed look yet at the pivotal role of the United States during the 1978-79 uprising, including the U.S. ambassador's personal intercession to keep the Iranian military chief from resigning, and the embassy's position as an intermediary between the revolutionaries and the Iranian army in the final hours.

The books are "Mission to Iran" (W.W. Norton), by William H. Sullivan, the last U.S. ambassador to Iran, and "Inside the Iranian Revolution" (Indiana University Press), by John D. Stempel, who was deputy chief of the Tehran embassy's political section during the 1978-79 revolution.

Sullivan, who met with Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi every other day in the last months of his rule, draws a firsthand portrait of the proud "king of kings" and a dynasty under siege.

—Of Pahlavi, at a desert military exercise, haughtily ignoring Iran's top generals in order to do to Sullivan, representative of a superpower.

—Of the shah, purportedly a devout Moslem, railing against revolutionary leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini and other Shiite clergymen as corrupt "ragheads."

—Of the monarch, worried, ill and unsure about how to handle the budding insurrection, asking Sullivan in October 1978, for explicit instructions from Washington, "presumably a message urging him to use military force to suppress the revolution." He never got them.

In one of the most telling scenes from the final weeks, Gen. Gholam Reza Azhari, ailing chief of a short-lived military government, summons the U.S. ambassador to his sickbed and tells him, "This country is lost because the king cannot make up his mind."

Pahlavi was torn between unleashing military force and seeking accommodation with his opponents. Sullivan concludes he was "not truly cast to be a leader of men."

Stempel, who is now director of the State Department operations center, reports that in late 1978 the intelligence services of three nations pressed Pahlavi to have Khomeini assassinated in his French exile, but the monarch rejected the idea.

The author does not identify the intelligence services, except to say they included Iran's SAVAK but not the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency.

Sullivan's book is chiefly a defense of his side in the Washington debate over "who lost Iran."

The ex-ambassador, who left Iran in April 1979, and resigned from the Foreign Service, writes that he warned in early November 1978, that the shah might fall, and he and the embassy specialists set to work trying to arrange an accommodation between the revolutionaries and the U.S.-armed Iranian military. Such a peaceful transition could preserve some U.S. standing in Iran in the post-shah era, he reasoned.

But the White House, through National Security Adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski, often worked at cross-purposes with the embassy, seeking to convince the shah that he could and should cling to power, Sullivan claims.

On Jan. 4, 1979, the White House sent U.S. Air Force Gen. Robert E. Huyser, deputy NATO commander, to Tehran to rally Iranian military support behind Shahpour Bakhtiar, the shah's last prime minister, Sullivan recounts.

Later that month, Bakhtiar unexpectedly called Sullivan in his office for a three-way meeting with the Iranian chief of staff, Gen. Abbas Gharabaghi, who was about to resign because he had decided resisting the revolution was pointless.

Sullivan says he personally agreed with the general, but because "I was under instructions to maintain the military loyalty to Bakhtiar" he helped the prime minister persuade Gharabaghi to stay on.

The climax of these U.S. efforts came on Feb. 11, 1979, when the leaders of the Iranian military and the U.S. military mission in Tehran were trapped by a revolutionary mob at their headquarters.

Sullivan claims that Brzezinski, apparently influenced by Huyser's relatively optimistic reports about the Iranian military's steadfastness, chose that moment to ask him by telephone — via Undersecretary of State David Newsom — whether a military coup could be launched.

"The total absurdity of the inquiry in the circumstances then existing in Tehran provoked me to a scurrilous suggestion for Brzezinski," Sullivan writes. "... When he (Newsom) told me it was not a particularly helpful comment, I asked whether he wished me to translate it into Polish and hung up the receiver."

Sullivan first reported this exchange in a magazine article last fall, after which the Carter administration denied Brzezinski had initiated a call about a military takeover. In his book, Stempel refers to an ill-timed call from Washington that day and adds, "Until the last minute (or beyond), the president's foreign affairs adviser believed that the army was capable of a coup."

Later on Feb. 11, the Iranian military chiefs decided to head off further bloodshed by not contesting the revolutionary victory.

It was at this hour of revolutionary triumph, Stempel discloses, that the embassy played a crucial role. "Through fortuitous circumstances," he writes, "the American Embassy was able to pass word very swiftly (to the revolutionaries) about the military's decision to withdraw."

He gives no further explanation of the "fortuitous circumstances," but he apparently is referring to the contacts the Americans had within both the revolutionary camp and the military establishment.

American relations with the revolutionaries deteriorated in the months to come, climaxing with the takeover of the U.S. Embassy in Tehran Nov. 4, 1979.

Cold Winter Alert For Central Plains

ITHACA, N.Y. (UPI) — The central plains region of the United States is in for exceptionally cold weather this winter with temperatures averaging 6 to 10 degrees below normal, a Cornell University scientist forecasts.

The areas to be hardest hit include South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas, Iowa, and northern Illinois, and portions of Minnesota, Wisconsin, and Missouri, according to Douglas A. Paine, atmospheric scientist in the New York State College of Agriculture and Life Sciences at Cornell.

For the Northeast, Paine forecasts a winter not quite as severe as the first half of the past winter, but still temperatures will average 2 to 4 degrees below the normal 32 degrees for the months of December, January, and February.

For the rest of the nation, Paine forecasts that much of the southeast, including Florida, and some of the desert states of the southwest will enjoy slightly warmer than normal weather in the months ahead. "It is unlikely the citrus crop in Florida will suffer any serious freeze damage this winter," he said.

Paine makes his long-range forecasts on the basis of his office, controversial weather forecasting techniques that take into account, in part, sunspot activity which, he says, influences Earth's weather patterns. He has forecast a series of harsh winters starting last winter as well as worsening droughts for several years to come for a significant part of the nation, beginning in 1982.

He forecasts the winter ahead will begin earlier than last year, starting in November in the plains states and early December in the northeast. Snowfall for the northeast, he says, will be heavier than last year but only about 80 percent of normal.

Bargain Price On Watch Bird

DODGE CITY, Kan. (AP) — Should you need a watch-bird and happen to live out of earshot of neighbors, the Dodge City Park Department has a deal for you.

For a mere $20, Wright Park Zoo officials will sell you a bird with a call piercing enough that it might scare away the most strong-hearted burglar. Or rile the friendliest neighbor.

Faced with an overpopulation of peacocks, city officials decided to sell 35 of them.

"Right now we have about 70 and we like to keep the population at about 35," said Farrow Ford, park department spokesman.

He said zoo employees want to get rid of the birds before the spring mating season because there are now twice as many males as females. The fighting could be fierce when the males spread their huge fans of tailfeathers, attempting to impress the few females available, zoo officials said.

Homecoming Parade For Saturday

East Carolina University's homecoming parade, scheduled to begin at 10 a.m. Saturday, will follow the same route the parade took last year, according to Police Chief Glenn Cannon.

The parade, Cannon said, will form on Elm Street at the Elm Street Gym and travel north on Elm Street to Fifth Street.

The line of march will head west on Fifth Street to Reade Street, where it will turn right and continue north on Reade to First Street, where the parade will disband.

The chief noted that traffic may be congested at some locations during the parade, but emphasized that officers stationed at a number of intersections to direct traffic will make an effort to keep any congestion to a minimum.

FOCUS

As American As ...

Today marks the 120th anniversary of the birth of Dr. James Naismith, the inventor of basketball. The only major sport of completely American origin, basketball has changed dramatically from its early days of peach baskets, soccer balls, and wrestling tights. The first courts contained obstacles like pillars, stairways and offices. One early contest at Cornell was played with 50-man teams. In an 1896 intercollegiate match with 7-man squads, Yale drubbed Wesleyan (Conn.) 4-3. The introduction of such innovations as a hole in the net, and the elimination of jumpballs after each basket have resulted in more scoring, like Houston's record-breaking victory over Valparaiso, 158-81.

The secret of successful dummy play is to envision what might go wrong and then take steps to circumvent it. Note this hand.

There are two interesting aspects to the auction. First, North raised his partner's suit despite his balanced hand and stopper in each suit — to suppress such trump support would have been a crime, especially since the odds are that the opening two-bidder has an unbalanced hand. And observe that, despite the fact that he held all four aces, South started his Blackwood inquiry with a bid of four no trump — a jump to five no trump would have been the Grand Slam Force, inquiring about two of the three top honors.

West led the queen of hearts. When dummy comes down, the optimistic declarer sees that he can make a grand slam if East started with a singleton or doubleton king of spades. He wins the first trick in dummy and leads a spade to his queen. The finesse works, but when West fails to follow, declarer
