

Nuclear Cutback Is Challenged Kremlin

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan challenged the Soviet Union today to take "a giant step for mankind" by joining the United States in a sweeping reduction of nuclear and conventional arms in Europe and around the world.

In a speech televised live to Europe and the United States, Reagan said he is prepared to cancel deployment of Pershing II and ground-launched cruise missiles to NATO forces if the Soviets dismantle their SS-20, SS-4 and SS-5 missiles.

"This would be an historic step," Reagan said. "With Soviet agreement, we could together substantially reduce the dread threat of nuclear war which hangs over the people of Europe."

"This, like the first footstep on the moon, would be a giant step for mankind."

In a speech that went beyond the strategic situation in Europe, Reagan also said:

"He had instructed Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. to discuss the timing of U.S.-Soviet negotiations on strategic weapons as soon as possible next year. Reagan said he had told Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev "that we will seek to negotiate substantial reductions in nuclear arms which would result in levels that are equal and verifiable."

"The Soviet Union has been asked to help reduce the levels of conventional military forces in Europe. 'The Soviet Union could make no more convincing contribution to peace in Europe — and in the world — than by agreeing to reduce its conventional forces significantly and constrain the potential for sudden aggression,'" Reagan said.

"Brezhnev also has been asked to send Soviet representatives to a new proposed conference to develop ways to 'reduce the risks of surprise attacks' by enhancing stability and security in Europe."

"All of these proposals are based on the same fair-minded principles: substantial, militarily significant reductions in forces, equal ceilings for similar types of forces, and adequate provisions for verification," Reagan said in a prepared speech before the National Press Club.

Said Reagan: "My administration, my country and I are committed to achieving arms reductions agreements based on these principles. Today I have outlined the kinds of bold, equitable proposals which the world expects of us."

"But we cannot reduce arms unilaterally. Success can only come if the Soviet Union will share our commitment; if it will demonstrate that its often-repeated professions of concern for peace will be matched by positive action."

House Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Texas, called Reagan's proposals "a useful and bold initiative which I think all of us in the House — Democrats and Republicans — do and should support."

A senior administration official, who requested anonymity, told reporters that Haig will meet in Geneva with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko on Jan. 26-27 to discuss the start of strategic arms reduction talks.

This official said the United States intends to go ahead with deployment of NATO missiles in Europe "unless there is a breakthrough and an agreement which would change the motivations for making a decision."

He denied the Reagan proposals were advanced as a "propaganda ploy" or on a take-it-or-leave-it basis. "If the Soviets have counter-proposals that are meaningful and serious, they will be considered," he said.

The president coupled his call for elimination of medium-range nuclear missiles in Europe with a renewed commitment to continue U.S. deployment of medium-range weapons so long as a major Soviet threat exists.

The Soviet missiles are capable of reaching virtually all of Western Europe, he said, and "there is no equivalent deterrent to them."

He noted that the Soviets continue to add one new SS-20 missile a week and that to counter this the NATO allies agreed in 1979 to deploy cruise missiles and Pershing II missiles in several Western European countries where they would be aimed at Soviet targets.

"This relatively limited force in no way serves as a substitute for the much larger strategic umbrella spread over our NATO allies," he said.

"Rather, it provides a vital link between conventional, shorter range nuclear force in Europe and intercontinental forces in the United States. Deployment of these systems will demonstrate to the Soviet Union that this link cannot be broken."

Reagan stressed what he said is the deterrent effectiveness of these forces. "The more effective our forces are, the less likely it is that we will have to use them," he said.

The president said that as American arms control negotiations prepare to go to Geneva for the 30 start of talks on reducing nuclear forces in Europe, it is necessary "to address certain Soviet claims which left unrefuted, could become critical barriers to real progress in arms control."

He said the Soviets are "wrong" asserting that a balance of intermediate-range nuclear forces already exists in Europe, because the Soviet Union "has an overwhelming advantage, of the order of six-to-one."

Reagan said the Soviets' suggestion that they could remove the threat of Europe by moving the SS-20 from beyond the Ural Mountains also is wrong. Even from so great a distance, Reagan said, almost all of Western Europe, including the cities of Rome, Athens, Paris, London, Brussels, Amsterdam and Berlin, would be within range of mobile weapons that can be moved on short notice.

Shift Differential Hospital Nurses' Pay Adjusted

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

A pay increase in shift differential rates for nurses is to be effective Jan. 1 and a one-step salary increase to be effective April 1 were approved Tuesday night by directors of Pitt County Memorial Hospital.

Citing the fact that only two nurses are now available to man the 144-bed tower which is in the process of being put into operation, several spokesmen stressed the necessity of being competitive in order to recruit and to retain nurses.

Under provisions of the approved schedule, nurses working the 11 p.m. to 7 a.m. shift will have differential pay increased from 75 cents per hour to $1.25 per hour, up from $6 to $10 above base pay for the eight-hour time period. Nurses on the 3 p.m. to 11 p.m. shift will have differential pay increased from 75 cents to $1 per hour, up from $6 to $8 above base pay for that shift. For nurses on week-end shifts, a differential of $1 per hour has been added to base pay, giving nurses on these shifts an added $8 above their base pay.

The increased differential pay for two shifts and the added differential for weekend shifts will add an estimated $300,000 to the hospital budget.

The April 1 one-step increase for all registered nurses will cost about $200,000 for the remainder of the 1981-82 fiscal year. The one-step increase will also result in an additional $1.5 to $2.5 million for the 1982-83 budget.

It was noted that since the budget contains no excess funds, funds for the increases will have to be transferred from capital outlay money.

Approval was given to purchase of budgeted items amounting to $20,429, and for non-budgeted items in the amount of $3,914.

Authorization was given for the administration to make an appeal to state officials relative to a state-directed maximum cost level of $229.23 per day for Medicaid patients. This figure is said to be about $110 per day below the actual average cost incurred daily for patients in this category. If relief from this directed level is not granted, the administration will go back to Blue Cross to negotiate a rate adjustment.

Building Committee chairman Charles Gaskins reported as a matter of information on the concept of a new administration building. He said a long-term loan to finance the building would be one possible approach.

Announcement was made that a search committee has been appointed to seek a medical director for the Rehabilitation Center.

The board approved a request on personnel made by Dr. R. William McConnell, chief of staff of the hospital's medical staff. The request was for provisional active staff privileges for Dr. Everett C. Simmons, Dr. Samuel Spicer and Dr. David M. Baughan. Also approved were the status of physician's assistant for Linda Willis and for honor staff privileges for Dr. James Smith.

Dr. William E. Laupus, dean of the East Carolina

University Medical School, reported that the General Assembly has released money for construction of the radiation therapy center. Estimated construction cost of the center is $5.3 million. At this time the anticipated planning date for the project is July 1, 1982, with construction to take place in late 1983 and early 1984. Dr. Laupus also reported that the initial phase of the move to the Brody Building is now under way, with library services the first involved in the transfer. Most administrative activities are due to be located in the Brody Building by March.

Skepticism Runs High Over Reagan Proposal

By BARTON REPPERT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's plan to strive for elimination of medium-range nuclear missiles in Europe is running into skepticism on Capitol Hill, with the chairman of a key House panel calling the move "a propaganda ploy against the Soviets."

State Department officials said Tuesday that the president would use a foreign policy speech today to embrace the so-called "zero option" as the goal for upcoming U.S.-Soviet negotiations in Geneva on curbing nuclear arsenals in Europe.

The option consists of an expected U.S. offer to abandon the planned deployment of new U.S. medium-range missiles in Europe

if the Soviet Union agrees to disassemble its own missiles, stationed in western Russia, aimed at European targets.

Congressional response to advance reports on the missile plan ranged from optimism to concern that Reagan's speech may be aimed largely at deflecting attention from White House troubles with budget director David A. Stockman and national security adviser Richard V. Allen.

Sen. Larry Pressler, R-S.D., who heads the Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee on arms control, said he was encouraged by Reagan's decision to advocate the zero-option approach.

"In the area of arms control, I think Ronald Reagan could surprise a lot of people," Pressler said. He argued that Reagan — much like Richard M. Nixon's move to unfreeze U.S. relations with China — may feel confident to try a major initiative in arms control because of his conservative credentials on defense issues.

However, Rep. Samuel S. Stratton, D-N.Y., chairman of the House Armed Services subcommittee on military nuclear systems, said he had strong doubts about the feasibility of the zero-option plan, which would require the Kremlin to scrap hundreds of missiles already in place.

"I rather gather ... that this is really supposed to be a propaganda ploy against the Soviets — that they will reject the zero option and that puts the monkey on their back," Stratton said in an interview.

He said he "would be very skeptical that this would do anything to change the views of the pacifists" who have been mounting widespread demonstrations in Western Europe against deployment of new U.S. Cruise and Pershing II missiles.

Also, the New York Democrat said, the chances would be "very slim" for adequate verification of Soviet compliance with any accord on eliminating or drastically limiting medium-range missiles.

Rep. Patricia Schroeder, D-Colo., an Armed Services Committee member, commented about the Reagan plan: "I hope it's more moderate than what he's said before, because he hasn't done much for the (NATO) alliance lately. ... His casual, offhand remarks are going to be awfully hard to overcome."

She was referring to Reagan's recent remarks seen by many Europeans as suggesting that the use of tactical nuclear weapons in Europe might be possible without necessarily leading to a wider U.S.-Soviet conflict.

She added that the timing and political circumstances of Reagan's foreign policy speech make it appear "more like it's being done for theater than for realistic negotiations."

Recommend Annexation At Planning-Zoning Meeting

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

The Greenville Planning and Zoning Commission voted Tuesday night to recommend to the City Council the annexation of a 17.63-acre tract on Arlington Boulevard at the Beasley Drive intersection, and the re-zoning of five other parcels.

The approved annexation, at the request of the Doctor's Park Apartment group, includes 17.63 acres of property located on the western side of Arlington Boulevard with its intersection of Beasley Drive, west of Pitt Memorial Hospital. The property, considered for future apartment development, is adjacent to a tract of land now containing 88 apartments.

Without voiced opposition from citizens attending the session, and very little discussion by members, the commission approved: a request by Eaton Corp. to rezone about 13.13 acres of property on the east side of Greenville Boulevard, northeast and adjacent to the present Eaton site and the Seaboard Coastline Railroad, from RA-20 to Industrial; a request by James H. Hudson to rezone the portion of a 26.26-acre site at the rear of the lot requested for rezoning by Eaton that is within the city extraterritorial jurisdiction, from RA-20 to Industrial (only about two acres of the tract is within city jurisdiction); and a request by the Greenville Housing Authority to rezone about 5.2 acres located on the North side of Arlington Boulevard, west of adjacent to the Pitt County Boys Club, from RA-20 to R-6.

After some discussion, the commission approved a request by Thomas Taft to rezone 15.61 acres of property at the northwest corner of the Stantonsburg and Allen road intersection from RA-20 to Highway Commercial and request by Leroy Cherry to rezone approximately 45 acres of property west of Memorial Drive and south of the Greenville Country Club from RA-20 to R-15 and R-6.

Taft, who told commission members that he has been trying to have the property rezoned for about two years, said half the property will be taken by the state when work on U.S. 264 limited access highway between Greenville and Wilson gets under way, leaving only about 7½ acres of property for development.

The city planning staff did not recommend the property for rezoning because of a concern for having too much commercial property at the site where the new U.S. 264 will connect with the Stantonsburg Road, a spokesman said.

The city's planning and engineering staff also expressed concern about the potential increase in traffic that could be generated along Memorial Drive if the Cherry property were to be developed to the full potential allowed under the rezoning.

Staff members, who said access to the property would be provided by a new street beside Clark Equipment Co. and over Clubway and Country Club drives, noted that the projected increase in traffic flowing onto Memorial Drive, the property were developed to its full allowable potential could cause the need for signal lights at the two intersections.

In other action, the commission rejected a request by J. Manning to rezone 4.51 acres of property adjacent to the Tucker Farm Development and Shenandoah Subdivision from RA-20 to R-9. Planning and Zoning has deferred action on the property several times in the past.

Joe Laney, speaking for a group of single-family home owners in the area, told the committee that, if the tract were rezoned to allow multi-family development, "You are not listening to the owners ... you've ignored the single-family owners in the neighborhood" who should have some protection.

Border Clash

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Honduran troops armed with mortars and machine guns attacked a Nicaraguan border checkpoint near Guasaule, about 85 miles northwest of Managua, the Foreign Ministry said.

A similar incident occurred last Thursday near Guasaule, but military spokesmen on both sides of the border refused to accept responsibility.

A Foreign Ministry spokesman said the attack Tuesday night lasted about 10 minutes. He said Nicaraguan troops held their fire in accordance with orders. There was no mention of casualties.

Relations between the two countries have been tense since a leftist-led revolution overthrew Nicaraguan dictator Anastasio Somoza in July 1979.

Leaf Exporters Advise Changes For Program

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Warning that "the handwriting is on the wall," the Leaf Tobacco Exporters Association recommended significant changes Tuesday in the federal tobacco program.

The tobacco program survived after a tough fight in the U.S. House and Senate last month, and a number of legislators acknowledged after the votes that changes will have to be made in the program.

Association executive vice president Hugh C. Kiger echoed those sentiments Tuesday, saying the program must be modified if it is to survive over any period of time.

The Leaf Tobacco Exporters Association and the Tobacco Association of the United States purchase about 70 percent of the United States' flue-cured tobacco crop.

"Preservation of the tobacco program is vital to all sectors of the tobacco economy. Officials in the tobacco economy should take the leadership to make the changes in the program which are necessary to (ensure) its survival and to increase U.S. tobacco production and exports," Kiger said.

The association suggested three changes to the price support program, including:

— Stabilization of the average support price for the 1982 crop at the 1981 level.

— The establishment of support prices for 1983 and subsequent crops to be established at 115 percent and 130 percent of the cost of production, excluding land, management and lease costs.

— Allowing the Secretary of Agriculture to adjust support prices for individual grades of tobacco which he determines to be in excess supply.

The group also suggested changes to the tobacco allotment program. The association said allotment holders currently outnumber flue-cured tobacco growers by a ratio of about four to one. The association said the allotment program encourages holders to increase their income from leasing and reduce quotas, setting off a chain of events which would affect growers.

The suggested changes to the allotment program include:

- Allowing only active growers to take part in establishing quotas.
- Permit the sale of quotas within counties.
- Stipulate that quotas not used should be forfeited, effective with the 1984 crop.

FLYING THE FLAG

I've been noticing that the flags are flying at the U.S. Army Reserve Center and the National Guard Armory at night. At one time regulations prohibited flying the American flag at night. Is that still in existence or has it changed? E.C.

Army Reserve and National Guard spokesmen said the flag may be flown at night if properly lighted.

A U.S. Marine Corps publication "How to Respect & Display Our Flag," emphasizes, "There is no law prohibiting the flying of the American flag at night," and quotes Public Law 829 as permitting "the flag to be displayed at night ... when it is desired to produce a patriotic effect."

Dear Abby

Innkeeper Breathes No Smoke

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR READERS: Tomorrow will mark the Fifth Annual Great American Smokeout, a good-humored, upbeat, one-day campaign to encourage smokers to give up cigarettes for 24 hours — just to prove to themselves that they can. It's the brainchild of the American Cancer Society, which insists that anyone who can live without a cigarette for 24 hours can quit forever.

Last year 16.5 million smokers took up the challenge and 4.9 million made it through the day without a puff. One to 10 days later, 2.2 million were still not smoking, and a year later over a million were "clean." So if you are hooked on cigarettes and have been meaning to quit, why not start tomorrow — just for 24 hours? It won't be easy, but I promise you it will be the best holiday present you can give yourself and those who love you.

Coincidentally, tomorrow is the grand opening of a new 134-room motel in Dallas for people who hate smoke. It is appropriately named the Non-Smokers Inn. Its owner, Lyndon Sanders, a native Texan, says it will be the first in a chain of other such motels.

When I phoned Mr. Sanders to learn more about the Non-Smokers Inn, he said: "Smoking killed my father and my uncle, and I don't know how many of my friends. I know that a motel for non-smokers can work because I tried it out at the Dollar Inn in Albuquerque, N.M., in 1974. I offered a non-smoking wing and started with 15 rooms, and now it has 108 rooms!"

"In the Non-Smokers Inn in Dallas I'm going to offer luxurious rooms at bargain prices for non-smokers only. When a person registers, he is asked to sign a note stating that he will not smoke on the premises, and neither will he permit anyone visiting him to smoke. Anyone caught violating that oath will be evicted and fined $100 to pay for cleaning the room."

"Smoke stinks up everything. We have to take down the draperies, shampoo the carpets, strip the beds — even clean the shower curtains. You should see the yellow nicotine stains on the cleaning rags. I tell you, it would make a buzzard gag!"

I asked Mr. Sanders if he was prepared to handle any legal problems should a smoker be refused admittance to this motel or, heaven forbid, light up on the premises and face eviction. His reply: "I just want to know which courthouse to go to. I'll be there with my lawyers, and I'll fight it all the way to the Supreme Court if I have to."

"How about the rights of smokers?" you ask. Of course they are entitled to smoke if they wish. But they will have to find a place where they can smoke to their hearts' content without offending those who can't tolerate it.

First the good news. I just heard about Muse Air, an airline especially for non-smokers. There is positively no smoking on its planes. Now the bad news. It flies only between Dallas and Houston.

DEAR ABBY: I've smoked for a number of years. I started when I was very young and too naive to know how hooked I could get. I've tried to quit several times but have never been successful.

Abby, I've always tried to be considerate of others when I smoke, and I never hesitate to put out my cigarette promptly without grumbling if someone asks me to. The problem is, I am rarely asked politely. I've had total strangers tell me I am boorish, inconsiderate and selfish for smoking in their presence when they haven't even indicated that it bothered them. I've been yelled at, called names and been given dirty looks by people who made no attempt to explain calmly that they were offended by my smoking. I've even been told I was a rotten mother for smoking in front of my children.

I don't think it is fair to be treated like a criminal for doing something that is perfectly legal. I know very few smokers who would not like quit. We are all aware of the health hazards, so please tell your readers to ask politely if they are offended by cigarette smoke. Also, try to understand that people do not smoke because they want to hurt other people.

We are not evil; we just have a bad habit — and I've never met anyone who doesn't have at least one. Smokers are people too.

DAR Hears Speaker

FARMVILLE — Capt. Steven A. Bienstock gave the program at the meeting of the Major Benjamin May Chapter DAR held at the chapter house here Saturday.

Assistant professor, department of aerospace studies, ECU, Capt. Bienstock discussed "International Terrorism — National Defense." He elaborated on three phases: Definition of Terrorism, Purpose of the Terrorist and Implications in World Affairs.

"Terrorism is not a passing fad and could be the basis of the wars of the future. The terrorists are a zealous group and thrive on publicity..." he said. Terrorism is increasing on a world-wide scale — from 279 incidents of attack in 1971 to 2,773 in 1980.

Mrs. Anthony D. Holland introduced the speaker.

Miss Lu Ellen Tucker of Greenville was welcomed as a new member and Mrs. Annie W. Scribner of Bethel was accepted as a new member.

Collections were taken for the bird cage fund at Crossnore and nickles for Indians. A flag dedication service was held at the Farmville Public Library Nov. 11, Veterans Day. Participating were members of the chapter, CAR, Woodmen of the World, Boy Scouts and veterans. Miss Elizabeth Lang gave the

New Members Accepted By Club Women

Seven new members were accepted into membership at the November meeting of the NCFWC Junior Woman's Club of Greenville. They will be inducted next month.

Laura Shivar, education department chairperson, honored the teachers in the club for American Education Week Nov. 16-20. A contribution to the Greenville Area Preservation Association for wood plaques was given.

President Kathy Hunnings asked for volunteers to "ring the bell" for the Salvation Army Dec. 5 at Pitt Plaza. Patty Hogan asked that gifts for Operation Santa Claus be brought to the December meeting.

Karen Rogers discussed plans for the Christmas family which the club will sponsor at Christmas. Sandra Garner, public affairs department chairperson, discussed plans for a presentation to be given which will be opened to the public on "Crime Against Women."

President Hunnings reported on the Fall District 15 meeting held in Farmville. Second Vice President Lynn Forbes reported on the outcome of the ways and means project, selling picture coupons.

Mary Vojtecky, Nancy Harrington and Ms. Shivar were meeting hostesses.

Members plan to have a Home and Garden Tour in April, 1982.

The group will meet Dec. 12 with the Farmville Madrigals presenting the program. CAR members have been invited to attend. Mrs. Woodrow Wooten, Mrs. J. H. Andrews, Mrs. F. L. Andrews, Mrs. Francis Price and Mrs. Johnny Davis will be meeting hostesses.

Meeting hostesses Saturday were Mrs. Ernest Hardee, Mrs. Edward Lee Hill, Mrs. Thomas E. Hales, Mrs. F. McCoy Tripp and Mrs. Carl Betts Jr. A Thanksgiving decorating motif was used.

and larger. It is available frozen pre-stuffed, fresh frozen or fresh chilled. Turkey parts and boneless turkey meat are popular items, too. Parts—Fresh or frozen cut-up turkey parts, attractively displayed in tray-packs, are now available at modest prices in your grocer's meat case. You'll find turkey wings, drumsticks, giblets and necks, dark meat and light meat roasts, steaks and cutlets, all containing turkey's high-quality protein.

Turkey parts do not require long cooking times. They can be broiled, grilled or roasted in about the same time as other popular meats.

Roasting the whole turkey—Approximate roasting time for turkey in 325°F. oven: Weight, 8 to 12 pounds; Unstuffed, 3-4 hours; Stuffed, 4-5 hours. Weight, 12 to 16 pounds; Unstuffed, 3½-5 hours; Stuffed, 4½-6 hours. Weight, 16 to 20 pounds; Unstuffed, 4½-6 hours; Stuffed, 5½-7 hours. Weight, 20 to 24 pounds; Unstuffed, 5½-6½ hours; Stuffed, 6½-7½ hours.

The turkey is done when the meat thermometer reads 180-185°F. or when the automatic timer indicates it is done. The thickest part of the drumstick will feel soft when pressed with thumb and forefinger (protected with paper towel) and the drumstick and thigh will move easily. (Don't test by pricking the skin with a fork since meat juices will escape.)

When roasting is completed, remove turkey from the oven and set aside at room temperature for about 20 minutes. This allows the juices to redistribute and the temperature to become even throughout the meat, making carving easier.

The wonderful aroma of roasting turkey is unmatched, and this oven roasting dry-heat method gives an excellent flavor and texture with the least amount of time and effort.

After the meat—As soon as possible after serving, refrigerate the leftovers. Remove stuffing from neck and body cavities. Wrap and refrigerate or remove meat from bones.

Use the gravy and stuffing within two to three days. Heat the stuffing thoroughly and bring gravy to boiling before serving. Serve refrigerated, cooked turkey meat within two to three days after roasting. It can be reheated or served cold.

Small meal-sized units, properly wrapped, may be frozen and held up to one month. Cooked stuffing may be frozen and kept for 3-4 weeks. If stored in the freezer for a longer period of time, turkey meat will not spoil, but a gradual deterioration in the quality takes place, e.g. drying, "off"-flavors.

Good Tobacco Year

A magic figure was exceeded for the third time in North Carolina this year. With the closing of the flue-cured belts, figures show that flue-cured tobacco growers in the state grossed $1.3 billion. It was the third year that the billion dollar figure had been exceeded.

It was apparently a good year all around. Gross sales totaled 789 million pounds, selling at a record average of $167.30 per hundred pounds. This compares with an average of $147 per hundred pounds last year.

Quality was seen as the reason for the good prices. William S. Humphries of the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service, said, "This is one of the two best crops grown in the last six to eight years."

Things were better also for Flue-Cured Stabilization Corp. which took only 108 million pounds of tobacco, or slightly less than 9 percent of the total. Last year Stabilization took 12.7 percent of the total poundage. There is also less tobacco on hand for Stabilization than at the same time last year.

Stabilization is in better shape because it took no downstake leaf this year, according to Humphries.

There was a dark side. "This without a doubt was the most expensive crop ever produced," Humphries said. Supplies, labor and utilities increased by 10 percent.

But farmers produced as much tobacco on less acreage this year, a big help in cutting costs.

Theories Are Not Helpful

The Reagan administration has not only told us a recession is ahead; now one of its spokesmen says we can anticipate a 9 percent unemployment rate.

Murray Weidenbaum, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers conceded on CBS's "Face The Nation" that the jobless rate "could conceivably" reach the peak of the 1974-75 rate, which was 9 percent.

The theory then is that the administration policies will begin to work the nation out of the recession.

These are interesting theories, but they aren't going to be helpful to the 9.5 million people who are going to be out of work at the peak of this thing.

Worse, there is real question as to whether the Reagan policies ever will work, and where do we go from there?

THIS AFTERNOON

Ramsey In Saddle

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — At the time state Rep. Liston Ramsey was campaigning for election by his colleagues as speaker of the North Carolina House of Representatives, he disavowed any interest in higher office.

He would, Ramsey promised, devote all his time and energy to serving as speaker. Wealthy and retired, the Madison County Democrat left it said that he wouldn't need to run for governor or lieutenant governor; that he could put together such a powerful position in the House of Representatives that he would, in a few years, be The Boss.

Things are moving in that direction, say legislative insiders who keep tabs on how the legislative leadership works.

Recent actions by the General Assembly in adopting budget amendments made it clear that the leadership intends to continue past efforts to bring the state budget more and more firmly under control of the General Assembly.

Citizens
Time was when the members considered themselves a citizen assembly, devoting of their time and energy for a couple of terms in Raleigh but fully intending to return to their jobs at home after a few months in session.

Carl Stewart and Gov. Jim Hunt — inadvertently — changed all of that. Stewart, the Democrat from Gaston who was the first to serve two terms as speaker of the House, broke the tradition of the speaker stepping down after two years in that post. Hunt pushed successfully for two terms in the governor's mansion, and one result of that has been to cause a lot of ambitious people to wait another four years before seeking the higher office and others to abandon hope due to their ages or the long wait.

If, then, you can't be governor, why not take power and be happy with what you got?

That political philosophy will continue to dominate actions in the General Assembly. Speaker Ramsey will in all likelihood not only take a second two-year term, but continue in office so long as health allows.

That prospect actually puts the speaker one step ahead of the lieutenant governor since the officeholder there must step down after two four-year terms. When Jimmy Green leaves office, that will leave Ramsey as the most experienced and entrenched legislator in the building. And even with a savvy lieutenant governor, the speaker is ahead in the game because he has more actual control over his followers. The lieutenant governor is not a member of the General Assembly, but rather a member of the executive branch and merely presides over the Senate sessions. There have been moves in the past, which are likely to

(High Point Enterprise)

North Carolina has reason to regret that the federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms is no longer enforcing laws against cigarette smuggling.

Since 1978, when Congress made "butterlegging" as cigarette smuggling is often called, a federal offense, ATF was successful in substantially reducing cigarette tax revenue losses sustained by states like New York and Pennsylvania. In doing that, it had also helped clean up this state's image.

Cigarette taxes are lower nowhere in the United States than in North Carolina — two cents a pack. In contrast, levies in some states top 20 cents a pack. A butterlegger with a truck can make a small fortune by purchasing a load of cigarettes here, driving a few hundred miles north, and selling the merchandise illegally.

Before the federal law was enacted, New York, for example, claimed to be losing $70 million a year in cigarette tax revenues. The cigarettes were being sold in that state without Albany's getting its share. However, that loss has since been reduced to about $40 million a year.

It's not that ATF was making that many arrests. In the last two years, in fact, agents arrested fewer than 100 people and confiscated just under 200,000 cartons of cigarettes. But the law was there and it was at least selectively enforced.

Now it's not. Because of federal budget cuts, the number of ATF agents assigned fulltime to the problem has been reduced from 81 in 1980 to none now.

Officials fear a surge in butterlegging. That makes sense — the practice will be as profitable as ever. After all, the states involved have taken no steps to correct the conditions that make butterlegging pay. States like New York and Pennsylvania have not lowered their taxes, and North Carolina has not raised its. Such action would reduce the butterleggers' margin of profit.

Why should North Carolina be concerned about butterlegging? No financial reason, really. If anything, the practice boosts this state's cigarette tax revenue. Per capita cigarette sales are much higher in North Carolina than in other states, a fact not necessarily attributable to Tar Heel smoking habits. Obviously, hundreds of thousands of cartons of cigarettes purchased here are smoked elsewhere.

But North Carolina should be concerned that it helps butterleggers ply their illegal trade. North Carolina, with the high-tax states, shares responsibility for the cigarette tax discrepancies.

The image of aid to butterleggers is not one this state should cultivate.

RESOLVING DOUBT

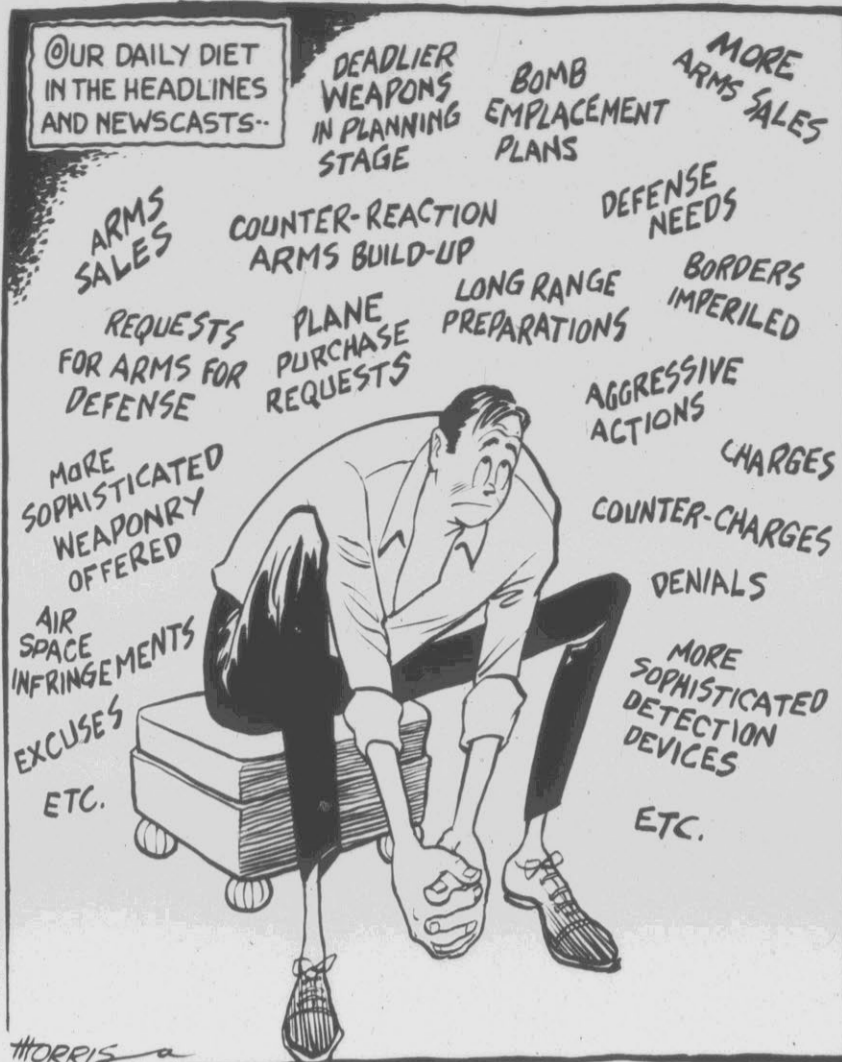

Robert Browning, the great English poet, once noted that just when we feel safest and think that everything in our lives is settled, numerous hopes and fears rise up, join hands, and dance a grim and fantastic ring about an ancient idol — "The Great God Perhaps".

Browning here presents with poetic insight something which so often twists the soul, namely, misgiving and doubt. We keep saying to ourselves that God could make everything right if He only would. Our faith in the goodness of God is shaken.

But Browning concludes that all our fears and doubts can be laid to rest if we can only accept and cherish one statement of Christ: "I am the way, the truth, and the life."

In other words, if we draw our conclusions about the nature of God only from what is happening around us, we may well be shaken by doubt. But if we can remember that Christ is the word of God made flesh so that sinners might live, the grotesque idol Perhaps can be erased from our minds. — Elisha Douglass

WHERE IS IT ALL LEADING US?

Watch Out Mr. Kadafi

As a reader of spy thrillers, I have been following the CIA-Libyan Connection with a great deal of interest. It appears there are these two ex-agents named Frank Terpil and Edward Wilson who have a contract with Col. Kadafi to train terrorists, organize assassinations, hire American pilots and ex-Green Beret types, and procure all sorts of lethal weapons which will help Kadafi knock off his enemies.

Now you may wonder why two Americans, who served their country, would go over to the other side to help a madman who runs one of the most heinous governments in the world.

Well, if you read thrillers the way I do, then you'll probably buy the answer. Wilson and Terpil really still work for the CIA. But in order not to blow their cover, they require unless they became double agents, which both men agreed to do.

What the KGB doesn't know is that the real Terpil and Wilson were spirited off to Israel, and replaced with two Israeli intelligence agents (ital) pretending (unital) to be Terpil and Wilson, but actually reporting on Kadafi's activities to Tel Aviv through a Swiss company that "Mossad" has set up.

The French found out about this and that's how they managed to get the Libyans to pull out of Chad. Terpil and Wilson advised Kafi to give up in Chad, because they said they couldn't supply him with any more planes from the United States.

British intelligence, which is not sure what game the CIA is playing, has planted a beautiful Italian countess on Terpil, who will do anything to avenge the murder of her father by Kadafi.

Egyptian agents have offered Wilson one million dollars in an American tax-free All-Savers account, if he will push Kadafi out of an airplane at 35,000 feet.

In order to prove his loyalty to Kadafi, Wilson reported the offer to the colonel, which has made Kadafi believe more in Wilson and Terpil than he ever did.

The biggest problem Terpil and Wilson have at the moment is to keep Libya from building an atomic bomb in Pakistan.

The CIA has supplied the two men with blueprints of the Three Mile Island nuclear plant, and if the Pakistanis follow the plans, the bomb will blow up in their faces.

Now I know there are a few people out there who believe that this scenario is farfetched, but it's the only one that keep devising ways to knock off American diplomats.

"The Company" has known for a long time what the two men are up to, particularly when it comes to buying material in the United States to further the cause of world terrorism.

The two turncoats also have been permitted to recruit mercenaries in the United States while the U.S. has looked the other way, to convince Col. Kadafi that they are on his side.

Unbeknownst to the CIA, Terpil and Wilson were photographed by the GIB in a compromising situation in a Tripoli hotel room, and the Soviets turned them around so they would work for them. The Russians don't trust Kadafi any more than the Americans, and threatened to release photographs of the two men to the "National Enquirer" unless they became double agents, which both men agreed to do.

What the KGB doesn't know is that the real Terpil and Wilson were spirited off to Israel, and replaced with two Israeli intelligence agents (ital) pretending (unital) to be Terpil and Wilson, but actually reporting on Kadafi's activities to Tel Aviv through a Swiss company that "Mossad" has set up.

Stockman's Trust Gone

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — While President Reagan and his senior aides were giving the embattled David Stockman a vote of confidence as budget director, national Republican political operatives were sending this message to the White House: Stockman must go!

"As long as Stockman is still around," one national campaign planner told us, "we might as well close down our operations for 1982." Practicing Republican politicians predict that Democrats never will let the American people forget Stockman's harsh words about Reaganomics.

That is one reason why Republican insiders here consider the president's pat on the back to be a temporary reprieve. One of Reagan's closest advisers believes that sooner or later the president will have to cut loose his bright but imprudent budget director.

Converted Majority Leader? In seeking to lure conservative Democratic congressmen across the aisle to the Republican side, House GOP leaders may offer them an unprecedented prize: the House majority leadership.

If gains in the 1982 elections push the Republicans near to a majority that would be reached if enough Democrats switch parties, the House's first Republican majority leader in 30 years might be a Democrat. Not even informal feelers have been put out, but Rep. William V. Chappell Jr. of Florida has been mentioned.

Chappell would be one of the last, not the first, to cross the aisle (Alabama's Rep. Richard C. Shelby is the next candidate for conversion). But Chappell's voting patterns as a Democrat seem adequately Reaganite: 81 percent conservative record (as measured by the American Conservative Union) since his election in 1968, and 6 percent liberal last year (as measured by the Americans for Democratic Action).

Ted Fritz Bomb
With all the bright lights of the Democratic Party ready to be impressed, the two front-runners for the 1984 presidential nomination — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy and former vice president Walter F. Mondale — bombed out at last week's black-tie fundraiser in Washington celebrating Averell Harriman's 90th birthday.

"I would give them a C-minus at best," one party insider told us. Both Kennedy and Mondale were unimpressive in reading their brief speeches. In contrast, Harriman and 74-year-old Clark Clifford, the Democratic Party's elder statesmen, were impressive and eloquent in impromptu remarks without notes.

CIA VS. CIA
The Senate debate over the value of building the new B-1 bomber proposed by President Reagan has found the Central Intelligence Agency on both sides of the fence.

The CIA is not supposed to take positions, pro or con, on weapons systems considered by Congress. But its semi-official position was put forth when a CIA analyst secretly briefed senators to suggest that the B-1 would be inferior to the present B-52 as a launcher for cruise missiles.

In response came a wholly unofficial, back-channel CIA memorandum contending that the briefing committed six factual errors. The half-page memorandum listed the Air Force's principal private argument for early B-1 production: It would be able to get off the ground more quickly than the B-52 in the face of enemy attack.

Kemp's Senate Backers
Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker, anxious to maintain a Republican majority in the Senate through the 1982 election, is behind the continuing pressure on Rep. Jack Kemp to challenge Democratic senator Daniel Patrick Moynihan in New York next year.

Baker for months has bombarded Kemp with a series of Robert Teeter polls showing that Moynihan is beatable. Baker and his friends think there is a 30 percent chance that Kemp will run, creating the undisputed glamour race of 1982' now that he has bowed out of consideration for governor. But friends of Kemp think the percentage is closer to zero.

A footnote: A recent private Democratic study in New York suggests any Democratic candidate will have trouble carrying the state without at least 60 percent of the vote in Erie County (Buffalo). That would be tough to do against Kemp, who represents an Erie County constituency.

Today In History

by The Associated Press
Today is Wednesday, Nov. 18, the 322nd day of 1981. There are 43 days remaining in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Nov. 18, 1978, more than 900 members of the Peoples Temple took part in a murder-suicide at Jonestown, Guyana.

In 1626, St. Peter's Basilica in Rome was consecrated by Pope Urban VIII.

In 1903, the United States and Panama signed a treaty granting the U.S. rights to build the Panama Canal.

In 1936, Germany and Italy recognized Gen. Francisco Franco's government in Spain.

And in 1970, China named an ambassador to the Soviet Union, restoring top-level diplomatic relations for first time in four years.

A Few Points Has Big Impact

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — A few points up or down in the level of interest rates can produce enormous economic changes, as anyone trying to sell houses or automobiles or balance a budget can tell you.

It produces huge changes in the cost of funding Uncle Sam's trillion dollar line of credit as well as in the level of debt that households can handle without feeling they are imperiling their existence.

It can be the controlling factor, as it is now, in the number of jobs the economy can provide, in the number of companies that fail, in the outlook of General Motors, and in the mood of ordinary consumers.

With high interest rates playing a big role, the jobless rate is now 8.5 percent and probably headed toward 9, business bankruptcies have soared to a 60 per 10,000 rate versus 29 per 10,000 in 1976-1979, automakers have just lowered by a million their sales expectations for next year, and consumers are cutting purchases and maybe saving again.

The University of Michigan's latest survey report indicates strongly that high interest rates now control consumer thinking, lower prices notwithstanding. According to a statement accompanying the report:

"High interest rates stifle buying. Lowered price expectations and a more optimistic outlook for the economy stand in sharp contrast to widespread unfavorable buying attitudes, due to high interest rates."

Sellers and buyers of houses might be particularly interested in how high rates have been maneuvering the housing market, as described in the Michigan report:

"When interest rates declined in mid-1980, favorable house buying attitudes grew rapidly, but these improvements were quickly reversed when interest rates again rose in late

Confronted with the irrefutable evidence of lower automotive sales — a rate that may put final 1981 sales at less than 9 million units — and surveys showing high interest rates are a major factor, the industry is now said to anticipate a third bad year in a row during 1982.

What would lower rates mean to the industry? Automotive people seem to think that 10-million-plus years are still conceivable if rates ever fall back into single digits. The potential demand is said to be there. They point out that cars on the road are aging — 5.7 years, according to a study by Arthur D. Little, Inc.

Measurements of the impact on housing are probably easier to make, and indeed they have been made. The National Association of Homebuilders claims that if mortgage rates dropped to 12 percent, from around the current 17 percent, more than 8 million more households would be able to enter the market. They say only 15.4 percent qualify at 17 percent, but that 29.2 percent of households could afford to buy at 12.

Will interest rates continue to fall? The prime rate, which reached a high of 20.5 percent early this year, has now fallen to 16.5 percent, amid numerous forecasts of further declines.

While such a sizeable decline cuts huge amounts from the financing costs of Uncle Sam and General Motors, it has had little impact so far on consumer markets. And it may be months before it does.

Several factors are at work to delay the translation of lower prime rates into lower consumer rates.

One is the big federal budget deficit. Another is the view of Paul Volcker, Federal Reserve chairman, who is said to feel that inflation hasn't been conquered. And equally important, it appears, is the "show me" attitude of lenders, who want to be sure the decline is real.

Rev. Clarence Gray Seven Palms Old-Time Music Is Is Presented DD Hide A Sign Part Of The Fare

The Rev. Clarence Gray, principal of the Eastern Elementary School and a former City Councilman who did not seek re-election in November, has been presented the doctor of divinity degree by Shaw Divinity School.

Shaw Divinity Degree, N.C. Central University and has taken several courses at East Carolina University. Gray began his teaching career in Henderson, where he later became assistant principal. When Epkes High School and Rose High School MIAMI (AP) — There's a hidden message on Delta Air Lines' big billboard, and Eastern Airlines has a lot to do with it.

As part of a federally funded beautification project, six young royal palms — each 15 feet tall — went up in downtown Miami in front of the blue-and-yellow Delta billboard that says "Fly Delta."

Two months later, somebody sawed the trees down, leaving six gray stumps. County officials called for a police investigation.

But the unobstructed view of the billboard didn't last long. When Eastern officials learned of the vandalism, they contacted the county with some good news. The Miami-based airline had seven 35-foot-tall palms to donate.

Eastern officials said the palms became available because of company expansion at the airport. Engineer Victor Citarella, who arranged the gift, said he didn't know there was a Delta sign nearby.

"I had no idea about that," Citarella insisted. "We don't have any comment on that."

Eastern and Delta compete hotly on routes throughout the eastern United States and the Midwest.

"I don't care whether they are competitors or not," said Jorge Morales, the chief planner with Dade County's Office of Community and Economic Development. "These trees are expensive. I'm just happy to get them."

The seven trees donated by Eastern were planted Monday, along with seven smaller palms from other donors. The sign was partly visible behind the original trees, but Eastern's palms tower over the billboard.

An old-time string band music festival at the Holiday Inn in Raleigh?

Well, not exactly. But the fans of old-time music will easily recognize the strains of such tunes as "The Eighth of January," "Ragtime Annie," and "Under the Double Eagle" coming from The House and Senate Room of the hotel Friday from 3:30 to 6:30 p.m. when the North Carolina Folklore Society holds its annual meeting as part of North Carolina Culture Week.

Organized in 1913 to encourage the study and appreciation of traditional life and arts in the state, the NCFCS will feature banjo and string band music from the Piedmont and the folklife studies of elementary and high school students from the coast and Coastal Plains in this year's program.

A display of publications and projects in folklife studies done by elementary and high school students from Bear Grass, Hallsboro and Cape Hatteras will also be featured. "The Skewarkians," an eighth grade group from Bear Grass, has produced various film, tape and print publications dealing with the history and folklore of Martin County.

The NCFCS meeting is open to the public and its membership will be available at the meeting or may be obtained from its treasurer, Thomas McGowan, English Department, Appalachian State University, Boone, N.C., or its president, Karen Baldwin, English Department, East Carolina University.

Action
The Legislature, then, seems firmly on the track of becoming a full-time organization, and Speaker Ramsey has said he favors just that end. The sessions this year promise a continuation of the move in that direction.

When the 1982 session convenes with a new $10 million building and lots of space to fill up, and with a staff now at 650 people to do their bidding, legislators will no longer be members of a policy-making board which adjourns to go home and let the full-time bureaucrats run things. They will follow the lead already established to remain in Raleigh, keeping a close watch on all state government spending and action.

Already the machinery is in place for various legislative committees to oversee routine day-to-day governmental operations, and others are taking effect now which will give more direct control over the budget making and adjusting process.

Fifty years ago about half the membership of the General Assembly changed each term. That turnover rate is now down to 14 percent in the Senate and 24 percent in the House.

makes any sense.

Otherwise, you have to ask yourself why would the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency, which has terminated many of its enemies for far less, permit two of its ex-agents to organize a worldwide terrorist network, and supply them with weapons and American pilots and ex-Green Berets.

I'm sticking with my theory until a better one comes along. If I were in Kadafi's place, I would bury both Frank Terpil and Edward Wilson in hot sand up to their necks, and let red ants have a go at them until they tell the real reason why they're so anxious to help Libya become the terrorist capital of the world.

Feel Pressure Retail Outlets

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Local retailers say the growth of retail outlets in Charlotte are pressuring some traditional merchants to cut prices and spend more on advertising to keep customers.

Outlet openings in just the past month have included nine stores in the 110,000-square-foot Outlet Square, and at least six other clothing outlets are operating within the city.

Retailers say an outlet is a store claiming to sell name-brand goods at less-than-retail prices.

Postal Service Is Probing Ads

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — U.S. Postal Service inspectors are probing a Florida company that ran advertisements for mail-order electronics in newspapers around the country, including Raleigh.

Mail addressed to the firm, Parko of Coral Gables, Fla., is being held by postal authorities.

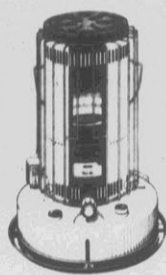

The ad, published in The News and Observer of Raleigh and in the Raleigh Times, offered electronics devices and cameras at half price.

Ruling May Delay Trial Of Hinckley

By LARRY MARGASAK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) —

The government is losing two pieces of evidence it intended to use as proof that John W. Hinckley Jr. was sane when he shot President Reagan.

Tuesday's ruling by U.S. District Judge Barrington D. Parker casts further doubt on Hinckley's Jan. 4 trial date, which already was jeopardized because of his second suicide attempt.

Hinckley, meanwhile, is reported functioning well mentally at a military hospital at Fort Meade, Md., after trying to hang himself in a prison cell Sunday. The Justice Department said his "mental capabilities are intact," except for lack of memory about the suicide attempt.

Parker suppressed handwritten notes seized from Hinckley's prison cell last July and a statement that Hinckley gave federal agents March 30, the day Reagan was shot outside the Washington Hilton Hotel.

Parker said the seizure violated Hinckley's Fourth Amendment right against unreasonable searches and the statement violated the Supreme Court's Miranda ruling, which held that questioning must cease once a suspect requests an attorney.

The trial could be delayed if prosecutors appeal the ruling, because there would be no time limit for the U.S. Court of Appeals to act.

Charles F.C. Ruff, the U.S. attorney for the District of Columbia, said the government has not decided whether to appeal. In the past, however, prosecutors have asked the appellate judges to overturn pretrial rulings that could harm their case in a criminal trial.

Prosecutors said in court that they intended to use the March 30 statement, detailing Hinckley's travels around the country the year before the shooting, to rebut defense arguments that he was insane and did not appreciate the wrongfulness of his actions.

Federal agents who took the statement said he was able to recall precise details about his travels and reportedly remembered his car license number.

The content of Hinckley's handwritten notes has been sealed by Parker.

In his opinion, Parker said an FBI agent and a Secret Service officer who took Hinckley's statement 4½ hours after the shootings made "no genuine or sincere effort to comply" with his earlier request for a lawyer.

"In this case, the testimony shows that Hinckley sought to consult with an attorney on several occasions and expressed his desire not to provide a statement," Parker said. "Under the circumstances, the police and FBI personnel should not have pursued their interrogation until an attorney was present."

Parker acknowledged that guards and officials were concerned that Hinckley was a suicide risk when they seized the notes while he held for psychiatric testing at a federal correctional facility at Butner, N.C. He earlier had taken an overdose of Tylenol, an aspirin substitute, and Valium, a tranquilizer.

But, the judge said, that did not mean Hinckley gave up his rights against unreasonable searches.

Hinckley pleaded innocent to a 13-count federal indictment charging him with attempted assassination of the president. His lawyers say they will not contest the fact that he shot Reagan, a Secret Service agent, a District of Columbia policeman and White House press secretary James Brady.

Informant Claims He's Vulnerable

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — A prison inmate who claims an imprisoned member of the Outlaws motorcycle gang confessed killing five people claims authorities are not doing enough to protect him from other inmates.

The informant, whose name police won't release, told The Charlotte Observer that he has been made vulnerable to attacks although promised that he'd be kept safe in exchange for his assistance in prosecuting the gang member.

"I've exposed myself to get my throat cut or get thrown off a balcony somewhere, and they haven't done (anything)," the inmate said.

Charges have not been filed in the July 4, 1979 slayings of five Outlaws gang members, and police say privately that the testimony of the inmate isn't enough to bring the gang member, whose name is being withheld, to trial.

District Attorney Peter Gilchrist declined to comment on the case except to deny that it had been solved.

Meanwhile, the imprisoned Outlaw says he's being framed by the informant and has offered to take a lie detector test to prove his innocence. The Observer reported.

The suspect has been a prime suspect since April, when a fellow inmate told police the Outlaw had admitted the killings, The Observer said.

The fellow inmate told police and The Observer that the imprisoned gang member told him on at least four occasions that he killed the five.

At one point, the inmate told The Observer, the Outlaw said, "Anybody who can do what I did is a brick, an absolute brick."

In an interview last week, the gang member called the accusations "all lies," saying the inmate "is evidently scraping for his existence, trying to make a deal to save his own neck.... I imagine he does a lot of snitching."

"There's no way in the world I'm going to tell some creep a story that's going to get me killed," the Outlaw told The Observer.

He also said, "I'll take a lie detector test and pass it.... I (refused) up to now taking one because I don't like cooperating with the police."

The informant said the conversations took place in a medium-security state prison where both men were housed until late last week. They were separated after The Observer informed prison officials it planned to publish its story.

The gang member is serving a 10-year sentence for attempted armed robbery, assault with a deadly weapon and larceny.

The informant is serving a 10-year sentence on morals charges.

In October, police gave the informant a polygraph test to determine if he was being deceptive when he told police he had heard the gang member outline his role in the killings. The test showed no deception, police said.

Fail To Apply Exercise Facts

NEW YORK (AP) — While Americans generally understand the importance of exercise to good health, less than half exercise regularly, finds a national survey for the Fitness 3 Council.

The survey finds: —81 percent feel exercise important to health, but only 45 percent exercise regularly, 36 percent irregularly.

—Though 62 percent of those who exercise consider nutrition important many have difficulty identifying two of the four basic food groups.

Recruiter Hunt Visits Companies

TOKYO (AP) — North Carolina Gov. Jim Hunt said Wednesday that it is useful to call on the "home office" of companies he wants to recruit to the state — even if those companies are halfway around the world.

Hunt, in charge of a 40-member trade delegation to Japan, also said the visit is a way to thank Japanese companies for investing in North Carolina.

The governor plans to travel to the central Japanese city of Nagoya on Thursday to meet with officials of electrical, chemical, seafood processing and lumber companies, which have expressed interest in investing in North Carolina. He also is to meet with the Chamber of Commerce and tour the factory of Japan's number-one automaker, Toyota Motor Co.

Hunt also plans to host a dinner Friday in Osaka for the heads of Japanese businesses which have factories in North Carolina "as part of our thank you" before traveling to South Korea and Taiwan.

Japan buys agricultural and forestry products from North Carolina and has a growing industrial relationship with the state, Hunt said. The Japan Tobacco and Salt Public Corp. buys $90 million worth of tobacco annually.

Ajinomoto Co., Japan's largest investor in the state, plans to open a $40 million plant in April. It is known for its food and chemical products, and the new plant is associated with medicines, Hunt said.

Hunt met Tuesday with officials of Japanese shipping companies and attended a reception given by U.S. Ambassador Mike Mansfield.

The governor thanked officials for using ports in North Carolina to transport tobacco.

"We are going to do everything possible at North Carolina's ports to assure that you have the type of service you need," Hunt was quoted as telling Japanese businessmen in a statement released by his press office in Raleigh.

Hunt's comments came during a breakfast meeting hosted by the state of North Carolina and attended by 35 executives of the major Japanese shipping companies and executives of Japan Tobacco and Salt, the government tobacco monopoly.

Joining Hunt at the breakfast was William M.A. Greene, director of the State Ports Authority. Hunt told the Japanese that the ports at Wilmington and Morehead City are growing, particularly in container service at Wilmington.

Cities' People Closely Knit

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Because movement between this city and Juarez, Mexico, is so easy, a wedding may be held in El Paso and the reception in Juarez, or a funeral held in Juarez and the burial in El Paso.

Many people on each side of the border have relatives on the other side.

Although technically illegal, the El Paso Fire Department responds to blazes in Juarez, if invited.

Said Vows On Oil Platform

STAVANGER, Norway (AP) — Karl Larsen and Marie Grontvedt chose to be married in an unusual setting — an offshore oil platform.

Both work for Phillips Petroleum at the Ekofisk platform near here in the North Sea. The couple originally intended to be wed in the chapel on the platform. However, the ceremony had to be moved to the larger 115-seat cinema and even then there weren't enough seats to accommodate everyone.

Sculptor At School Again

PORTLAND, Maine (AP) — Sculptor Louise Nevelson says she returned to Maine, the state where she spent her childhood, "to communicate directly with the students."

She said Tuesday in an appearance at Westbrook College in Portland that art teachers in her hometown of Rockland "colored my whole life."

"I loved to go to the art room. It felt warmer than the rest of the school, but it was some time before I realized that I was radiating my own heat."

Mrs. Nevelson, 82, who lives in New York City, was named last spring as one of the recipients of Westbrook's Deborah Morton Award, but was unable to visit the campus until this month.

After a session with reporters, Mrs. Nevelson met with students to discuss her work, "Moonscape II," a wood sculpture painted black.

Born in Russia, she came to Rockland with her family at age 4 and remained there 16 years until her marriage to a wealthy shipbuilder.

Two years ago, she returned in triumph to Rockland for a retrospective exhibit of her work at the Farnsworth Museum of Art. Mrs. Nevelson is best-known for her "environments" — massive wall sculptures assembled out of wood and spray painted, usually in her favorite tones of white, gold or black.

Criteria Set For New ECU Chancellor

East Carolina University's chancellor search committee has released a list of 15 criteria it will apply in screening applicants and choosing nominees to succeed Chancellor Thomas Brewer, whose resignation takes effect next summer.

Heading the list is "absolute commitment to the advancement of the university to overall excellence," followed by "the ability to represent effectively the role of the university in the state educational system, and to express the role to the various publics, and thus attain their confidence and gain their moral, political and financial support."

The list continues by saying the new chancellor must be a person "with superior intellectual and social qualities and a demonstrated ability in academic leadership," and a person with traits necessary to provide "the basic skills involved in good human relations," including "intelligence, integrity, friendliness, a sense of humor, maturity and vigor, good health and a capacity for hard work."

A record of "significant regional and community service;" educational credentials that reflect "a demonstrated scholarly competence, including the

2 Aides Would Fire Stockman

WASHINGTON (AP) — Budget director David A. Stockman's hold on his job is far from secure despite President Reagan's decision last week not to accept his resignation, The Washington Post says.

Quoting unidentified White House sources, the newspaper said in today's editions that two of Reagan's three top advisers urged the president to fire Stockman because of remarks in Atlantic Monthly magazine that the president's economic program wasn't working and might have been ill-conceived.

White House counselor Edwin Meese III and Michael K. Deaver, Reagan's assistant chief of staff, thought Stockman should be replaced because of his statements, sources told the newspaper.

The only member of the White House triumvirate to advise that Stockman not be fired was chief of staff James A. Baker III, the Post said.

Stockman recanted the statement and Reagan rejected the budget director's offer to resign last Thursday. However, the Post said the president is paying close attention to Republican congressional leaders' assessment of Stockman's credibility, and that could yet result in his leaving as head of the Office of Management and Budget post, the sources told the Post.

Discussing what should be done after news of the magazine interview was reported last week, Baker reportedly argued that Stockman's participation in planning the fiscal 1983 budget is essential because he is the administration's most capable domestic policy official, the Post said.

But Deaver reportedly maintained Stockman should be fired quickly because his statements had damaged Reagan's credibility with the public retained, and Meese supported that view, the newspaper said.

Problems developed for other boats trying to run Tuesday between Ocracoke, Cedar Island and Swan Quarter. High winds over the weekend had caused a shift in the channel and narrowed the Pamlico Sound channel to 80 feet near a sunken dredge.

The ferry Governor Hyde struck the dredge about two weeks ago but managed to get to shore.

Tuesday, a sailing vessel ran aground near the dredge and was freed by the Coast Guard.

management skills" that would enable the person to motivate others, maintain an open-door policy, stimulate research and perpetuate academic freedom are other criteria on the selection committee's list.

The possession of "skills in involving colleagues in cooperative efforts; an awareness of and commitment to the personnel and other policies or documents affecting the status of the faculty... (and) the ability to mediate successfully among the disciplines" as well as "demonstrate a sincere commitment to affirmative action and equal opportunity programs" are also on the list.

The chancellor, according to the committee, must also "have absolute dedication to supporting an excellent program" of intercollegiate athletics, and "must have a keen preception of the administrative responsibilities of a major state institution and the need for extramural funds," and should have "experience, aptitude, expertise and interest in developing adequate resources."

"As the chief advocate for the university and its region, the candidate must bring to the chancellorship the abilities to relate to the citizenry, to understand the wide scope of roles and responsibilities of the university, and to be responsible to them," the list concludes.

Ashley Futrell of Washington, chairman of both the search committee and the ECU Board of Trustees, said "unseen factors that you can't put on a piece of paper" also would be used, along with the 15 criteria, to judge the applicants.

Futrell noted that the qualifications contained in the list are intended as a goal, realizing that it would be impossible for one person to meet all of the criteria.

No Escaping Her Revenge

MONROE, N.C. (AP) — A 20-year-old Marshville man who escaped conviction on two of three charges brought against him by his estranged wife didn't get much of a reprieve.

Larry Dutton had barely made it out of the Cabarrus County Courthouse Tuesday when his wife, Connie, decided to take revenge. He had been found innocent of two counts of assault on his wife and was convicted on a third charge. District court Judge Bobby Huffman fined him $25 and court costs.

Mrs. Dutton first went to the courthouse parking lot and let the air out of Dutton's car tires.

Then, according to police Sgt. Reid Helms, Mrs. Dutton told him there was marijuana in the car, and "when I told Dutton what she said, he offered to let me search the car, denying that there was anything in the car."

Suddenly, Dutton grabbed a brown paper bag out of the trunk of the car and ran, shaking out the contents of the sack as he went.

As Dutton walked back to the parking lot, police arrested him and charged him with possession of marijuana. He was later released on his own recognizance and was taken to a service station to borrow an air tank so he could get his car moving again.

Ferry Service Resumes Today

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Ferry service from Ocracoke to Cedar Island and Swan Quarter was resumed today after winds subsided and visibility improved.

Ferry runs were cancelled Tuesday when visibility was limited to a mile or less. Winds also were strong, making it difficult for the ferries to navigate.

Problems developed for other boats trying to run Tuesday between Ocracoke, Cedar Island and Swan Quarter. High winds over the weekend had caused a shift in the channel and narrowed the Pamlico Sound channel to 80 feet near a sunken dredge.

The ferry Governor Hyde struck the dredge about two weeks ago but managed to get to shore.

Tuesday, a sailing vessel ran aground near the dredge and was freed by the Coast Guard.

Given Wine, Baby Dead

MILWAUKEE (AP) — A 14-month-old girl died after she drank wine from her baby bottle, the Milwaukee County Medical Examiner's office said.

Tests showed that Rosenell Hicks' blood-alcohol content at the time of death Monday night was 0.4 percent, the office said Tuesday. An alcohol content of 0.45 percent or more is usually considered fatal in an adult.

Police were questioning the baby's 23-year-old mother, who was not identified, according to Rudolph Will, deputy inspector of detectives. The woman's boyfriend and a cousin of hers were also being questioned, Will said. No one was arrested, Will said.

Police said the woman had gone to a neighbor's apartment and left the child and her 3-year old daughter with a 23-year old male relative. When the mother returned an hour later, she found the baby unconscious and smelling of alcohol. A rescue squad took the baby to Children's Hospital where she was pronounced dead.

The medical examiner's office said it was not known how the wine got into the baby bottle.

Meeting Set On Ambulatory Care

GOLDSBORO — A meeting featuring two speakers and a panel to discuss ambulatory surgery will be held Thursday at Wayne County Memorial Hospital.

The meeting will begin at 10 a.m. and interested people are invited to attend.

Insists Farm Bill Concessions 'Must'

By BOB FICK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration must make concessions to the House on grain price supports if any compromise is to be reached on a new four-year farm bill, a top House negotiator says.

Rep. Thomas Foley of Washington, the Democratic whip, says the administration's refusal to consider support alternatives costing more than those it has endorsed could force him to actively oppose adoption of a farm bill.

"They (administration officials) are pushing the House members into the position that we cannot go back to the House with this kind of surrender," Foley said.

The grain support issue has been a major hangup in two weeks of negotiations toward a compromise between the $16.6 billion House farm bill and the $10.6 billion Senate version endorsed by President Reagan.

Reagan has threatened to veto any farm bill costing more than the Senate version, which already exceeds his original proposal by $2 billion to $3 billion.

Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., who has been trying to find common ground on the grain support question, has proposed a compromise costing as much as $650 million more than Reagan wants to spend. Although more costly than other House-authored compromises rejected by Senate negotiators, it falls below what Foley says is a minimum support level in one area.

House negotiators put off a decision on Dole's offer until today.

But shortly after Dole made the offer Tuesday, Foley was adamant in saying, "I have reached the end of the line on concessions on wheat and feed grains."

Unlike Foley, Dole has continued to be optimistic about reaching agreement on a commodity price support package to replace the one that expired in September.

"We're going to work it out," he said during Tuesday's session. But he added, "We can't exempt agriculture from the budget constraints."

Foley said he has become pessimistic that any agreement can be reached, and he suggested that Congress think about starting the process over, abandoning the nine months of work invested in the current proposals.

Even Dole acknowledged that a compromise on grain supports only ends "round one" in the committee's work. Budget overruns already agreed on for dairy, wool and rice and retention of supports for sugar and peanuts despite their rejection by the House will force the entire farm bill agreement to be reworked and probably pared back, Dole said.

"Every commodity is going to have to take one more look at their hole card and say, 'Maybe we can come down a little more,'" he said. "I think we're flirting with danger. It's a high-risk business to get a farm bill passed."

Dole said he personally would be forced to oppose a compromise including supports for peanuts and sugar if he felt those commodities would jeopardize passage of the bill covering supports for the other commodities like grains and dairy.

"We don't want to be sunk because somebody else asked for too much," he said.

Groups opposing sugar and peanut supports have claimed there are as many as 235 House members ready to oppose a farm bill compromise if those programs are included.

Plunge In Sea By Navy Jet

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — A submarine-hunting jet on a routine flight from the aircraft carrier USS Nimitz plunged into the Mediterranean Sea and sank, killing four crew members, the Navy said.

The S-3A Viking, attached to Air Anti-Submarine Squadron 24, crashed Tuesday about a mile from the Nimitz and about 70 miles northwest of Sicily, said Lt. Cmdr. Tom Connor of Atlantic Fleet Headquarters in Norfolk.

He said today that the cause of the crash was unknown.

The plane wasn't landing or taking off when it crashed, Connor said.

An EA-SB Prowler Marine jet crashed on the deck of the Nimitz off the Florida coast on May 26, killing 14 people and injuring 48.

Helicopters arrived almost immediately after the plane crashed at 10:45 a.m. EST Tuesday, or 4:45 p.m. local time, but crews were unable to rescue the men, officials said.

The victims' names were withheld until their families could be notified, said Lt. J.G. Lesley Rutledge, a Navy spokeswoman at Cecil Field Naval Air Station in Jacksonville, Fla., where Squadron 24 is based.

The S-3A is a twin-engine, anti-submarine plane and carries a crew of four. Normally the Nimitz would have a squadron of 10 such jets.

The carrier left its home port of Norfolk in early August for deployment in the Mediterranean.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Snow and rain are expected in the forecast period until Thursday morning for the upper Great Lakes and upper Midwest. Cool weather is due for the northern Plains. The West and the South will be sunny and mild. (AP Laserphoto Map)

A fair weather pattern has returned to North Carolina in the wake of a low pressure area that moved off the northern coast Tuesday. This low pressure area is deepening off the coast of New England.

Meanwhile, high pressure over the lower Mississippi valley region continues to drift east. This area of high pressure will be in control of North Carolina through tonight.

The sky cleared across the state late Tuesday and as this drier air mass moved into the state. Variable conditions were noted around the state Tuesday. While some rain was noted from the north-central and north-eastern parts of the state, the remainder of the state saw sunshine returning during the day.

The more significant rainfall was reported over the northeast portion of the state Tuesday. Elizabeth City topped the list with seven-tenths of an inch. More persistent cloudiness and patchy areas of rain kept the eastern portion of the state mostly in the 50s. With the return of sunshine, the west had readings in the upper 50s and low 60s. Only the higher mountains stayed in the 40s.

A gentle southwest-to-west breeze continued across the state during the night. This helped to keep temperatures from falling to their potential low values under the clear sky. Early morning readings ranged mostly in the upper 30s and low 40s. Sunny skies and mild temperatures were foreseen for today as high pressure drifts slowly into the southeastern states.

Afternoon temperatures will reach the 60s over much of the state except for the 50s in the northern mountains. High pressure will maintain fair skies tonight. Cloudiness will be in the increase Thursday as winds become southwest ahead of a storm system that will be developing and moving across the central section of the nation during the next day or two.

A cold front, extending from this low pressure area, will approach the far western part of the state by late Thursday. This will increase the prospect of showers mainly for the mountains on Thursday. Scattered showers will then spread east across the state Thursday night into Friday as the front advances eastward. Cooler air will spread in behind this front so much cooler weather will be with us by this week-end.

Solar Fraction

Greenville's solar fraction calculated by the department of physics of East Carolina University was zero Tuesday, which means that a solar water heater could not have provided hot water.

FOUND IN CONTEMPT

CHICAGO (AP) — Four officers of the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization have been found in contempt of court for ignoring a back-to-work order of the court at the onset of the union's Aug. 3 strike. Sentencing is scheduled for Jan. 7.

Reagan Long Aware Of Inquiry

By MAUREEN SANTINI Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan was told in September that his national security adviser was being investigated for receiving $1,000 from Japanese journalists but followed "proper procedures" in not announcing the probe, a White House spokesman says.

Chief spokesman David Gergen reversed himself Tuesday and said Reagan was told two months ago — not last week as Gergen previously stated — that national security adviser Richard V. Allen received $1,000 for helping to arrange an interview with first lady Nancy Reagan.

Gergen's correction was among several contradictions that have crept into official accounts of the incident since it was disclosed publicly last Friday.

The Justice Department is investigating Allen for accepting the $1,000 honorarium from two Japanese reporters who interviewed Mrs. Reagan on Jan. 21. Allen said he put the money in his safe and then forgot about it for eight months.

Though Gergen maintained, as White House officials have for several days, that there would be no more comment on the matter until the investigation is ended, he did set the record straight on when the president was told.

"Friday, I said the president was told about the story on Friday morning," Gergen told reporters Tuesday. "I subsequently learned that he knew of the fact that the matter had been referred to the Justice Department prior to that time."

Reagan was informed "approximately at the time the money was discovered and the matter was referred to the Justice Department, sometime in September," Gergen said. "I don't have an exact date."

"Our description of what happened is that proper procedures were followed," Gergen said.

"The procedures are that you send the information to the Justice Department," he added. "The Justice Department is then prohibited by law from discussing the investigation. For similar reasons, the White House does not comment on the investigation."

The Justice Department has 90 days to decide whether to appoint a special prosecutor to consider the case. The department's review may be finished by the end of the month.

Gergen said Reagan retains confidence in Allen, who quit Reagan's presidential campaign shortly before the 1980 election after it was alleged that he used his connections in Richard M. Nixon's White House to get lucrative consulting contracts for himself and his friends.

Allen was welcomed back almost immediately after the election. Reagan said he was satisfied that Allen had done nothing wrong.

Gergen said Allen has not offered to resign since the latest controversy arose late last week.

"Dick Allen is performing the same services and same functions that he has performed before," Gergen said. "He's going forward in his job."

Allen sat in on Reagan's meetings Tuesday with President Herrera Campins of Venezuela and later accompanied Reagan to the Pentagon. He refused to comment when questioned by reporters.

The matter had been referred to the Justice Department.

Asked whether the matter was an embarrassment to Reagan, Gergen replied: "No, the president never expressed that view. ... It's clear that Mr. Allen wishes he had not forgotten the money."

Gergen said he did not believe the first lady was told about the investigation in September. Nor would he confirm reports that the president's wife was "furious" at being involved in a controversy that affected her husband.

All-Volunteer System Said 'Working'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The all-volunteer military is proving itself "the best way" in peacetime, says President Reagan, citing a Pentagon report that all the armed forces met their recruiting goals in fiscal 1981.

The report, issued Tuesday, also showed that re-enlistment rates were up, test scores of volunteers increased dramatically and the percentage of high school graduates joining the military was the highest ever.

"The success of this past year shows that the voluntary system can work and represents the best way to meet our manpower requirements in times of peace," Reagan said in a statement.

Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger called fiscal 1981, which ended Sept. 30, "one of the best recruiting and re-enlistment years since the inception of the all-volunteer force, both in terms of quantity and quality."

Pentagon manpower chief Lawrence Korb added that fiscal 1981 was the "first time the services met and exceeded their authorized strength" since the draft ended in mid-1973.

The statements by Reagan and the Defense officials rebutted arguments by critics in Congress and elsewhere who have contended the all-volunteer force is a failure and that the country should return to the peacetime draft.

The Carter administration restored peacetime draft registration of young men on grounds it would permit the draft machinery to start producing troops faster if conscription were resumed in a war.

When asked whether the report foreshadowed a Reagan administration drive to end peacetime draft registration, Korb said it is impossible to "posit any conclusion" of that sort.

Reagan said all branches of the armed services met their recruiting goals in fiscal 1981, that re-enlistment rates and test scores of recruits were up and that the proportion of high school graduates volunteering was the highest on record.

"Fiscal year 1981 was an important milestone in the history of America's all-volunteer armed forces," Reagan said.

Reagan and Weinberger attributed the gains to higher pay, increased enlistment and re-enlistment bonuses, improved educational benefits and "increased appreciation and respect" for men and women in uniform.

Korb noted also that the high level of unemployment "obviously does have some impact" on recruiting, but said he did not know how much.

After every service failed to meet its recruiting goals in fiscal 1979, the situation reversed in fiscal 1980, the last year of the Carter administration.

The Pentagon report indicated the upward trend has continued during the Reagan administration's first year. Congress has voted two hefty military pay increases, which went into effect over the past 13 months.

According to the Pentagon report, there were 2,082,000 men and women in uniform on Sept. 30. That was 2,000 more than the congressional authorization for the 1980 fiscal year, which ended on that date.

The percentage of high school graduates rose in all services. The most dramatic increase was registered by the Army, which reported 78 percent of its male recruits were high school graduates. This was an increase of 29 percent over fiscal 1980.

The Pentagon regards the percentage of high school graduates in a service as an important measure of quality, because manpower officials say that those who have finished school have proven to be more reliable, more trainable and less likely to become disciplinary problems.

The percentage of high school graduates among women recruits always has been high in all services.

The Pentagon also reported: —Sixty-one percent of those eligible for re-enlistment last year signed up for additional hitches, a rise of some 6 percent from the previous year.

—The percentage of blacks in the armed forces as a whole decreased by about 1 percent to 19 percent in fiscal 1981, while the percentage of blacks in the Army remained at 30 percent, highest of all the services. —Nine percent of the armed forces was made up of women, an increase of about one-half percent over 1980.

Ribbon Cutting

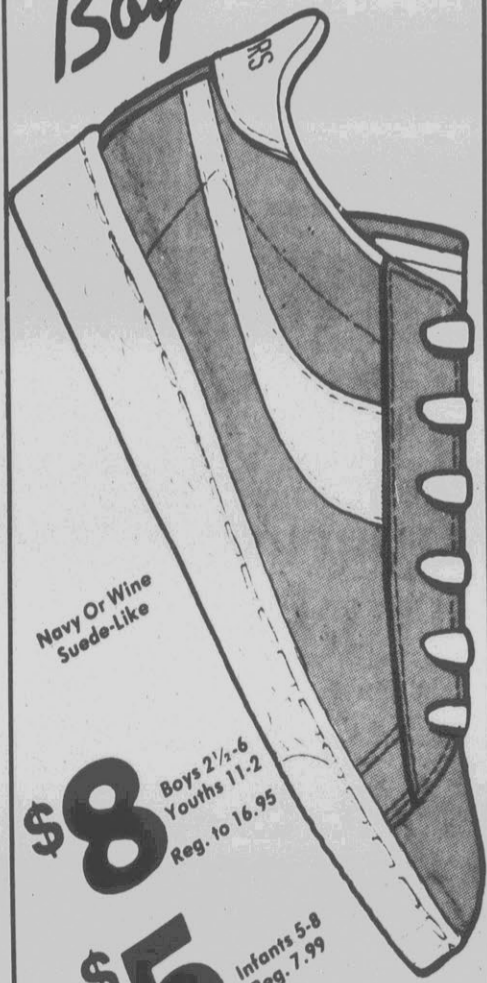

Pitt County Memorial Hospital will hold a ribbon-cutting ceremony for the new west bed tower on Sunday. Following the 2 p.m. ribbon cutting, public tours of the bed tower will be conducted from 2 to 4 p.m.

The three-floor addition, funded through the East Carolina University School of Medicine, will add 40 beds to the hospital. The first patients are scheduled to be moved in on Thanksgiving Day.

The new tower will be opened to patients in phases during the next 18 months. When fully occupied, it will bring the total number of beds at Pitt Memorial to 556.

The $5.3 million construction project also included the addition of 18 beds to the psychiatric unit, which opened last May.

NEW YORK (AP) - The stock market was mixed today, pausing after the erratic swings of the past two sessions.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials dropped 3.90 to 846.27 in the first half hour. But gainers held a slight lead over losers in the early tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said they expected the market's recent erratic behavior to continue a while longer. On the plus side, interest rates have been coming down sharply, and the battered bond market has staged its best showing of the year over the past three weeks.

But the stock market's reaction to those developments has been tempered by concern over the deepening recession.

Carter Hawley Hale led the active list in early trading, unchanged at 15. A 181,000-share block changed hands at that price.

On Tuesday the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 5.14 to 850.17 after taking a 10.85 drop in the previous session.

Advances held a 54 edge on declines at the NYSE. Big Board volume totaled 43.19 million shares, against 43.74 million Monday.

The NYSE's composite index rose 40 to 70.39. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 1.38 at 311.25.

"I was at lunch at work," the Schenectady County resident said. "When I got back to my desk, there was a note to call this number. It turned out the number was for Herzog and Hopkins (the oil company) and they told me what happened."

The oil flowed through the furnace room, the newly paneled and carpeted family room, the garage and finally down the driveway. The oil company cleaned up the mess.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today, pausing after the erratic swings of the past two sessions. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials dropped 3.90 to 846.27 in the first half hour. But gainers held a slight lead over losers in the early trading of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues. Analysts said they expected the market's recent erratic behavior to continue a while longer. On the plus side, interest rates have been coming down sharply, and the battered bond market has staged its best showing of the year over the past three weeks. But the stock market's reaction to those developments has been tempered by concern over the deepening recession. Carter Hawley Hale led the active list in early trading, unchanged at 15. A 181,000-share block changed hands at that price. On Tuesday the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 5.14 to 850.17 after taking a 10.85 drop in the previous session. Advances held a 54 edge on declines at the NYSE. Big Board volume totaled 43.19 million shares, against 43.74 million Monday. The NYSE's composite index rose .40 to 70.39. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 1.38 at 311.25.

Hooked A Submarine

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — A Swedish helicopter's eavesdropping gear got hooked on an unidentified foreign submarine in Swedish territorial waters but the chopper freed itself, a navy spokesman said today.

The helicopter's hydrophones got tangled on the hull of the sub Tuesday night off the east coast, the spokesman, Cmdr. Sven Carlsson, said.

"There was no danger. The wire, which linked the equipment with the chopper, would have broken before the helicopter had been brought down," Carlsson said.

The sub, believed to be monitoring coastal navy maneuvers in the area, disappeared after the incident. Asked about its nationality, Carlsson said, "All we know is that it was not Swedish."

FARMVILLE — Funeral services for Mr. Grover Cleveland Barrett, who died Sunday in a Lumberton hospital, will be conducted Thursday at 2 p.m. from the Joyner Mortuary Chapel by the Rev. James Lindsey. Burial will follow in the Barrett Cemetery near Farmville.

Mr. Barrett was a life-long resident of Farmville. He was a member of St. James Free Will Baptist Church, where he served for years on the senior deacon board.

He is survived by a son, Grover Cleveland Hinton of Farmville, and a sister, Mrs. Mary Barrett Moore of Buffalo, N.Y.

Victim Says Car Used In Attack

Greenville police are continuing their investigation into an incident Tuesday that resulted in two traffic mishaps.

Chief Glenn Cannon said a car allegedly driven by Robert Earl Hinton, 38, of 1403 Willow St., collided several times with a car operated by Kenneth Lawarza Outerbridge of Route 3, Williamston, about 3:45 p.m. near the intersection of Willow Street and Woodlawn Avenue.

Cannon quoted Outerbridge as saying Hinton was attempting to stop his vehicle by force in an effort to force Mrs. Constance Bond Hinton out of the Outerbridge car.

The chief said the Hinton car, about 3:50 p.m., allegedly forced a car driven by Jimmy Ray Vines of Route 1, Greenville, off Fifth Street and onto the sidewalk about 75 feet east of the Reade Street intersection while still in pursuit of the Outerbridge vehicle.

Damage to the Outerbridge car was set at $200, while damage to the Vines vehicle was estimated at $350.

A car driven by Linwood Earl Daniels of 1502 Powell St. collided with a tree at the intersection of Gum and Allen roads about 7:33 a.m. Damage to the car was estimated at $800.

Karr
GOLDSBORO — Otis K. Karr Sr., 86, died Tuesday in Veterans Hospital at Fayetteville. He was a retired highway commissioner from Illinois and was a veteran of World War I.

Funeral will be at 11 a.m. Friday at Seymour Funeral Chapel by the Rev. Jan Dickens and the Rev. Glenn Mason. Burial will be in Wayne Memorial Park with Masonic rites.

Surviving are his wife, Ruth White Karr; one son, Dr. Ken Karr of Greenville; a daughter, Mrs. Harold Jordan of Goldsboro; a brother, Fred Karr of Seymour, Ill.; two sisters, Mrs. Hallie Condit of Miami Shores, Fla., and Mrs. Ruth Lyddon of Rockford, Ill., and six grandchildren.

The family will receive friends 7-9 p.m. Thursday at the funeral home.

Patterson
Mrs. Charlotte E. Pat-

erson, 89, widow of Hugh M. Patterson, died Tuesday in Guardian Care in Farmville. The funeral service will be conducted at 11 a.m. Friday in Roberts Funeral Home Chapel in Sarasota, Fla., by the Rev. George Cooley and the Rev. Russell A. Bufaloe. Burial will be in Sarasota Memorial Park.

Mrs. Patterson was born and reared in Birmingham, England, and attended Derby Teacher's Training School and went to Winnipeg, Manitoba, Canada, where she was a public school teacher. After her marriage to Mr. Patterson, they lived in Winnipeg for 12 years before moving to Sarasota, Fla. She had been a resident of Greenville since 1975. She was a member of Bee Ridge Presbyterian Church, Sarasota, Fla.

She is survived by a son, H. Thomas Patterson of Greenville, and two grandchildren.

The family will receive friends at the funeral home from 7-9 p.m. Thursday.

Vines
Miss Martha B. Vines died Wednesday in Philadelphia. A funeral service will be conducted Friday at the Tabernacle of Victory at 2 p.m. by the Rev. Paul A. Thomas. Burial will follow in the Brown Hill Cemetery.

She was reared in Greenville where she attended the city schools.

Surviving are her mother, Mrs. Christine Barrett Vines of 607 Ford St., Greenville; her father, Julius Vines of New York; two sisters, Mrs. Resa Johnson and Mrs. Carol Barrett, both of Greenville; two brothers, Joe Barrett of Greenville and Julius Vines Jr. of New York.

The family will receive visitors at Phillips Brothers Mortuary from 7-8 p.m. Thursday.

Chapter Two: Chargers Host Eagles

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer
LITTLEFIELD — The goals of its season re-evaluated, Ayden-Grifton is prepared to continue with the second chapter of what the Chargers hope to be a four-part story that will end with the state 3-A championship.

The first chapter of the Chargers saga was written last week, on a cold and windy Friday the 13th. The principle author was a stalwart defense as the Chargers defeated White Oak, 8-0, in the first round of the Division I State High School Playoffs.

Preparation for the second chapter started the next day and will continue until Friday night when Ayden-Grifton plays host to Warren County in the quarterfinals of the state 3-A playoffs.

"Since the playoffs started we have (re-)evaluated our goals," Ayden-Grifton coach Dixon Sauls said. "We want to win. We want to take advantage of a situation that we might not get again."

"The players are confident and very determined at this state. They feel we can win anytime we take the field."

Dixon Sauls

Greg Jackson

They've got the winning attitude we talked about earlier this year."

Both teams come into the game sporting 9-2-0 records and riding seven-game winning streaks. Warren County, which last lost seven weeks ago to 4-A power Henderson Vance, 14-12, defeated Tarboro, 42-6, last Friday in its first-round game.

Warren County, joining the 3-A ranks for the first time this Ayden-Grifton won the right to advance to the Division I playoffs. Charles B. Aycock is the league's Division II representative. The Falcons, now 10-1-0, defeated West Carteret, 21-7, last week and will meet Bertie Friday in the Division II semifinals.

Sauls does not know as much about the Eagles as he might like. Tarboro shot six rolls of film during last week's game, but all turned out blank. Instead, Sauls must rely on an early-season film of the Eagles and discussions with coaches who have played Warren County during the season.

"In some ways that's an advantage," Sauls said. "I would like to see their last game and our diminished knowledge about them might hurt us, but we're more concerned about our players."

One thing Sauls does know about the Eagles is that in Warren County the Chargers face their third straight team featuring as its offensive leader a running back.

Two weeks ago, Southwest Edgecombe came to town led by Wayne Mayo. Mayo, the ECC's second-ranked rusher going into the game with nearly 1,000 yards, was held to eight yards on six carries.

Last week, White Oak traveled to Littlefield counting heavily on the running of tailback Ivery Meadows. Meadows came into the game having gained over 1,400 yards, but the Chargers held the 5-6, 204-pound senior to 51 yards on 18 carries — his lowest output of the season.

This week the Chargers face perhaps their best back yet in tailback Joe Greene. Greene, a 6-1, 194-pound senior, gained 129 yards against Tarboro to up his season total to 1,594 yards.

"Joe Greene is the best runner we have faced this year," Sauls said. "He has outstanding speed. He is an instinctive, natural runner who is very dangerous on sweeps."

The Chargers will be out to control the ball on offense and use their talented and quick defense to hold Greene in check. For the most part this season, the Chargers have been able to do both.

"Last week (against White Oak) was our best defensive effort of the season," Sauls said. "In particular, our down front six had an excellent game."

The front six are defensive ends Chuck Smithwick (5-11, 178 senior) and Doug Coley (6-0, 152 sophomore), defensive tackles Matthew McCotter (5-10, 194) and Donovan Arnold (5-9, 185) and defensive guards Kevin Craft (6-1, 190 junior) and Gregory Jackson (6-0, 190 senior).

The rest of the Charger defense, which has recorded four shutouts and has given up only 96 points this season, includes Cleveland Coley (5-5, 145 senior) and Jarvis Koonce (6-0, 183 junior) at linebackers and Chris Strickland (5-9, 145 senior), Tyrone Gay (5-10, 158 junior) and Joey Kennedy (6-0, 162 junior) in the defensive backfield.

Strickland leads the Chargers and the league in interceptions with seven. Top reserves are defensive lineman Edward Taft (5-9, 207 junior) and defensive back Malcolm Worthington (5-10, 165 freshman).

"I think the players have gained tremendous confidence in their defense as the season has gone along," Sauls said. "We've got an outstanding defensive team."

The offense, while not scoring as much as Sauls would like, has been able to control the ball the last few weeks. The Chargers ran 58 plays to SWE's 39 two weeks ago and ran 50 to White Oak's 38 last week.

"Any time you run over 50 plays in high school that's good," Sauls said. "We did not execute well last week on offense or block well. For us to win this week we'll have to move the ball more consistently and block better."

The Chargers also need a more productive game out of tailback Cleveland Coley. Going into the game, Coley had run for 913 yards, but he was thrown out late in the third period and managed only four yards on seven carries.

Coley's running mate, Jackson, no slouch as a runner himself, carried much of the rushing load. Jackson ran for 87 yards on 22 carries to up his season total to 1,103 yards.

Another key — one that Sauls was particularly pleased with — was the play of quarterback Bernard Ricciarelli. The 5-7, 150-pound senior completed four of eight passes for 81 yards and threw for the only score of the night, to freshman reserve back Malcolm Worthington from four yards out.

"The poise shown by our quarterback was outstanding," Sauls said. "He took some hard shots but he managed to get back up and throw some key passes."

Two of Ricciarelli's tosses went to Strickland, who at split end is the A-G's leading receiver with 25 catches for 312 yards and five scores. Kennedy, at one tight end, has caught 10 passes for 181 yards.

Others who will start Friday for A-G on offense are Koonce at tight end, Arnold and Smithwick at the guards, Craft

Warren County Riding 7 Game Win Streak Into Charger Contest

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer
Warren County coach Bill Frazier is unperturbed about having to travel to Littlefield for the quarterfinals of the Division I State High School Playoffs.

"As long as its a football field we'll be there," Frazier said. "Being on the road doesn't bother me none whatsoever."

Fresh off an impressive 42-6 victory over Tarboro, Warren County faces Ayden-Grifton Friday night for the right to advance to the semifinals of the state high school playoffs.

The Eagles enter the game with a 9-2-0 record and have won seven straight since losing to 4-A power Henderson Vance, 14-12, the fourth week of the season. Warren County's only other defeat came in its season opener when Eastern Alamance scored in the last 30 seconds to win, 7-0.

"I tell you, Ayden-Grifton is a lot like us," Frazier said in a telephone interview earlier this week. "They believe in fundamentals. They don't try to do a whole lot of different stuff."

"So far for the 15 different formations and the 100 plays, they don't do it. They go with basic stuff, just like us."

record of the Eagles' regular season opponents. Vance defeated Asheville, 14-5, last week in the opening round of the 4-A playoffs.

Other than Vance, however, Warren County's schedule is weak. The combined record of the Eagles' 10 regular-season opponents is 34-61-3. Still, the weak schedule did not seem to hamper Warren County last week as the Eagles whipped Tarboro.

"I was elated," Frazier said. "I thought we could beat them, but I did not think we'd score that many points. But we got some breaks early."

Indeed, Tarboro fumbled the opening kickoff and the Eagles recovered to set up their first score. The Eagles then blocked a Viking punt on the next series and took it in for their second TD.

"It's the best ball game we've played all year," Frazier was quoted as saying after the game. "Our conference doesn't have that good an overall record and we were concerned about the competition, whether it would hurt us or not. But it didn't."

Against the Vikings, the Eagles were led, as they have been all season, by tailback

Strong Night For Pitt DU Group

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

The Pitt County Area Chapter of Ducks Unlimited, which has set marks that DU organizations in most of the larger cities of the state have failed to match, continued its model effort on behalf of waterfowl conservation Tuesday night.

With some 260 area sportsmen and others who support the work of Ducks Unlimited on hand, the chapter's annual dinner meeting and auction again provided a boost to the organization's international fund raising program.

The area chapter, at or near the top of the list statewide last year in fund raising totals, utilized another strong effort by auctioneer Jimmy Hudson and an increasing sponsor program to raise some $45,000 for the national DU budget. The overall total included approximately $30,000 in sponsor (supporters who contribute $200 or more annually) and general memberships and roughly $15,000 generated during the auction and related fund raising activities.

The auction, always a highlight of the meeting, was again a success as Hudson sold a variety of things, among them the DU Print of the Year, "Black Magic At Little Lake" by Ralph McDonald, a handcrafted hunting knife made and donated by a local supporter, original watercolors and paintings by area artists, fishing and hunting trips, and a DU exclusive edition collector's series decoy.

Dr. Ray Minges, chairman of the chapter's sponsor program, said following the meeting that 131 area sportsmen are now on the sponsor roster. The chapter has led the state and much of the nation for several years in the number of $200 contributors to the program, which Minges said is the "backbone" of the overall DU effort.

Bobby Rippy, co-chairman with Dr. Ed Clement of the area DU committee, said North Carolina was in the top group in the nation last year in Duck Stamp dollars. He reported that DU has some three million acres of land under lease for waterfowl habitation and it is projected that six million is needed by 1987 in order to "sustain the number of ducks we now have."

North Carolina was the first state east of the Mississippi last year to raise a million dollars for Ducks Unlimited.

The area chapter, which held the first DU fund raising dinner in the state, held last night's meeting at the Casablanca.

Ducks Unlimited, with a present membership of approximately 350,000, was founded in 1937 to help restore and rehabilitate prime waterfowl breeding grounds in Canada, where over 70 percent of North America's waterfowl are hatched.

Over 1,700 wetland restoration projects have been completed since the program began and over $100 million has been raised in the organization's 44-year history. In 1980 DU raised over $25 million for wetland habitat restoration and has set a $30 million goal for 1981.

DU Print Of Year
"BLACK MAGIC AT LITTLE LAKE," the DU Print of the Year, was purchased last night by Mac MacKenzie (R). The DU member

Bryant Said Unhappy Over Sugar's Selection

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Bear Bryant had reason to be angry at the Sugar Bowl once before. He forgave them that time. Now, Alabama is up in arms again because the Sugar Bowl has picked Georgia over the Crimson Tide to be the host team on New Year's night against No. 1-ranked Pitt.

Bryant hasn't been heard from yet on this one, but one source close to the Sugar Bowl says that "we owe him everything. If not for him, the Sugar Bowl would probably be like the Peach Bowl."

It all goes back to the 1960s when the Sugar Bowl had 15,000-20,000 unsold tickets every year and a depressing television contract. Bryant came riding to the rescue, he thought, in 1971. That was the year Alabama, Auburn, Nebraska and Oklahoma all were unbeaten at bowl-picking time.

The Sugar Bowl sent committee member Aruns Callery to try to get Alabama to come to New Orleans. Bryant told Callery to be at his office at 6 o'clock on a Sunday morning and the Bear started making phone calls.

Before long, he convinced Oklahoma Coach Chuck Fairbanks to come to the Sugar Bowl for a game with Alabama. Callery headed home a happy man. But when he got back to New Orleans, he learned that the Sugar Bowl had called an emergency meeting and invited Auburn, which was wiped out 40-22 by Oklahoma, while Alabama was bombed 38-6 by Nebraska in the Orange Bowl.

"It must have looked like I was a fraud," Callery remembers. "You can't print what Coach Bryant said when I told him, but he said he wouldn't hold it against us."

And Bryant didn't. Two years later, he saved the Sugar Bowl when he challenged Notre Dame to a national championship shootout in New Orleans and the Irish accepted — and won the title — although they could have made much more money in the Orange Bowl. Notre Dame's subsequent 24-23 triumph ranks as one of the greatest bowl games in history.

In 1975, Bryant had a change of heart and, after opposing a request to align the SEC champion with the Sugar Bowl, decided to go along. The Bear's approval meant SEC approval.

"He kept saying, 'I'm not interested; I can go to any bowl,'" Callery said. "Then, one day he called and said, 'I've got to think about the conference. I think it would be good for the conference.'"

"Johnny Vaught of Mississippi also played a very important role, but without Coach Bryant it wouldn't have gotten off the ground."

As a result, the national champion has come out of the Sugar Bowl four times in the last five years — Pitt in 1976, Alabama in 1978 and 1979, Georgia last January.

That's why some old-guard Sugar Bowl people favored Alabama over Georgia — even though Georgia is ranked third nationally to Alabama's fourth and has a 9-1.

To The Editor:

In response to your article concerning Larry O'Roark, the editor has undoubtedly selected a worthy representative to interview. What should be emphasized is that the opinions of a quitter fail to qualify for front page headlines.

Where does one begin to evaluate any football program? An obvious beginning is to commend those young men who exhibit the fortitude to remain with a program, regardless of adversity. These men choose to fulfill their obligation to both themselves and the university.

Fan support is imperative. How can anyone expect a football team to care when the people they represent appear so apathetic. Just because a team fails to win, doesn't imply they didn't give their best.

Also reflected in the O'Roark article was the importance of respect between players and coaches. Conversely, O'Roark has contradicted his own philosophy. Ed Emory's task is far greater now that O'Roark and the press have made their accusations. A player that dedicates himself to a program should never be allowed to destroy what he personally couldn't achieve.

As to the status of the program, the last two years have been disappointing to many. But Rome wasn't built in a day.

More emphasis should be placed on own self-evaluation. If we wish to see progress, we must begin by expressing less destructive criticism and being more supportive. Let the coaches and players know that we care. Our best effort begins by supporting the Pirates through thick and thin.

To The Editor:

Sunday's paper reflects the thinking of a loser in putting a loser in front of a winner.

Rose High's 20-0 loss preceded Ayden-Grifton's fine 8-0 win over White Oak, which will continue play Friday night against Warren County.

This is still a county newspaper, and to give a loser more credit than a winner is ridiculous. I'm still for whoever wins over one that loses.

Gene Tripp

Joe Greene, Greene, a 6-1, 194-pound senior, rushed for 129 yards on 27 carries to up his season total to 1,594 yards.

Greene, who runs the 40-yard dash in 4.6, scored two touchdowns against Tarboro — one on the ground and one on a halfback pass to quarterback Mark Ellington. Ellington ran for two scores and passed for another while directing the Eagle I formation offense to 258 yards total offense — 203 rushing and 55 passing.

Ellington, a 6-1, 195-pound senior, took over at quarterback four weeks into the season. Since then, the Eagles have not been beaten. But while the offense has scored 355 points — a 32.2 average — this season, much of the credit for Warren's success must go to the defense.

The Eagles, which run out of both a five- and six-man front, have given up only 57 points in 11 games this season. Warren County ended the season by shutting out its last four foes.

In their playoff opener, the Eagles held Tarboro to 83 yards total offense — 45 rushing and 38 passing. Leading the defense is defensive tackle Alvin Crossin (5-10, 175 junior) and John Falcon (6-1, 196 senior). Falcon had 11 tackles against Tarboro.

Others set to start up front against the Chargers are Stephen Kearney (5-10, 178 junior) at nose guard and Dennis Whorton (6-0, 172 senior) and Greg Williams (6-0, 160 senior) at defensive ends.

Ellington, Barry Milam (5-10, 173 senior) and James Fitts (6-0, 181 sophomore) will be at the linebackers. The defensive backfield is led by Greene at safety and Eric Twitty (6-0, 155 senior) and Kenneth Yancey (5-10, 155 sophomore) at the corners.

When the defense comes off and the offense comes on, eight players remain on the field. Besides Ellington and Greene in the backfield, the Eagles have Milam at fullback, Whorton and Williams at the tight ends and Twitty at the wide receiver.

Up front, Fitts and Kearney are at the guards. Those not going both ways are center Mark Sammon (5-10, 190 senior), and tackles Xavier Hargrove (6-0, 193 sophomore) and Keith Sherin (6-0, 184 senior).

Randy Garrett, who started at quarterback the first four games of the season before giving way to Ellington, does the punting for Warren County and is averaging close to 32 yards a punt. Taft kicks the PATs and Gay handles the kickoff duties.

Tar Heels Are Picked Tops In Pre-Season Poll

By The Associated Press

The North Carolina Tar Heels, runners-up to national champion Indiana in the NCAA tournament last season, were selected No. 1 in The Associated Press' preseason college basketball poll, announced today.

In a nationwide ballot of sports writers and broadcasters, the Tar Heels received 25 of 61 first-place votes and 1,138 points, 19 points ahead of second-ranked UCLA.

Despite losing second-team All-American center Al Wood from a team that went 29-8 last season, Dean Smith will start his 20th year as coach at North Carolina with an explosive mixture of veteran and rookie talent.

Returning from Smith's 1980-81 team are three starters — 6-foot-9 junior forward James Worthy, 6-9 sophomore center Sam Perkins and 6-3 senior guard Jimmy Black. Smith also recruited five top freshmen, including 6-4½ guard Michael Jordan of Wilmington, N.C., in an effort to win his first NCAA title. The Tar Heels lost to Indiana, 63-50, in the NCAA final last March.

UCLA, 20-7 last season, gathered 20 first-place votes and 1,119 points, and Kentucky, coming off a 22-6 campaign, was a close third with eight No. 1 votes and 1,041 points. Louisville, with four first-place votes, was No. 4 with 1,017 points, and Georgetown collected two first-place ballots for a distant fifth with 861 points.

First-year UCLA Coach Larry Farmer, who played for the Bruins when they went 89-1 from 1970 to '73, has all five starters returning from a roster that had no seniors on it last season, including 6-6 senior Mike Sanders and 6-1 junior Rod Foster. Farmer's only quandry in his rookie year will be how quickly to bring along 7-foot freshman Stuart Gray of Granada Hills, Calif.

The Bruins advanced to the second round of the NCAA East Regionals last season before losing 78-55 to Brigham Young. Kentucky Coach Joe B. Hall must try to meld 6-11 sophomore Mel Turpin into his early-season lineup while 7-1 center Sam Bowie recovers from a broken shinbone sustained on Oct. 15. The Wildcats were 22-6 last season, losing to Alabama-Birmingham, 69-62, in the Midwest second round.

Louisville, 21-9, lost a 74-73 heartbreaker to Arkansas on a last-second halfcourt shot by U.S. Reed in the second round of the Midwest Regionals, ending the Cardinals' 1980-81 season. Coach Denny Crum, however, returns four starters, including seniors Derek Smith and Jerry Eaves, who were around for Louisville's national championship in 1980.

Georgetown, 20-12 last year and an upset victim of James Madison in the first round of the NCAA playoffs, hopes to improve mightily on its record with the help of 7-foot freshman Patrick Ewing of Cambridge, Mass., the most sought-after center in the country last year.

Rounding out the Top Ten were Wichita State, 26-7, 794 points; Virginia, 29-4, 739; DePaul, 27-2, 701; Iowa, 21-7, 700, and Minnesota, 19-11, 513.

The Second Ten consisted of Tulsa, 26-7, 482 points; Indiana, 26-7, 405; Wake Forest, 22-7, 382; Alabama-Birmingham, 23-9, 285; Missouri, 22-10, 273; Georgia, 19-12, 233; Louisiana State, 31-5, 204; Arkansas, 24-8, 196; Notre Dame, 23-6, 148, and Alabama, 18-11, 140. Indiana and Arkansas received the other first-place votes.

Besides Gray and Ewing, there was another blue-chip high school freshman recruited this year, and he went to Wichita State. Greg Dreiling, a 7-1, 240-pounder from Wichita, will work on the frontline with Antoine Carr and Cliff Levingston, a pair of double-figure scorers, to make the Wheatshockers one of the best teams in college ball. However, Wichita State is on NCAA probation and thus is ineligible for any postseason play.

Virginia, which, along with LSU, made up the rest of the Final Four last March, is led by 7-4 junior Ralph Sampson, and DePaul will try to overcome the loss of Mark Aguirre with the likes of Teddy Grubbs, Terry Cummings and Skip Dillard. Iowa is paced by 6-6 senior Kevin Boyle, and Big Ten rival Minnesota has 7-2 junior Randy Breuer.

The final pole of the 1980-81 regular season had DePaul No. 1, followed by Oregon State, Arizona State, LSU, Virginia, North Carolina, Notre Dame, Kentucky, Indiana, UCLA, Wake Forest, Louisville, Iowa, Utah, Tennessee, Brigham Young, Wyoming, Maryland, Illinois and Arkansas.

Hoyas' Coach Is Not Happy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The selection of Georgetown University as the No. 5 school in the country in The Associated Press' preseason poll is not sitting well with the Hoyas' coach, John Thompson.

"When I saw last year's poll I started to laugh, this year I'm crying," Thompson said Tuesday.

A Top Twenty selection in last year's preseason poll, the Hoyas finished with 20-12, including an upset loss to James Madison in the opening round of the NCAA Eastern Regionals.

"We really weren't that good last year and I knew it. That's why I was surprised at the early season ranking," Thompson said.

"The laughing is over, this year I am crying," he added. "I don't want to question the validity of preseason rankings but all you have to do is look at football and the musical chairs they have had this year. Now you have Pitt and Clemson, 1-2. I can't believe too many people predicted that at the beginning of the season."

"Last year's NCAA champion lost what, eight or nine times (Indiana was 26-9). There is just too much balance in college basketball for one team to dominate from the beginning of the year to the end."

"The preseason stuff is great for the fans and the alumni to rally around their team. It also gives everybody an opportunity to say later, 'Look how stupid John is to lose all those games with that talent,'" Thompson laughed.

Thompson came to Georgetown in 1972 after coaching high schools in the nation's capital. In nine years with the Hoyas, his teams have compiled a 176-84 record.

"I don't usually talk about polls until later in the season when you are trying to influence the NCAA committee you belong in their tournament," Thompson said.

The Hoyas are expected to go far this season as Thompson adds a talented freshmen group to last year's returning starting five.

Phillies' Schmidt Is National's MVP

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Mike Schmidt said he didn't feel any extra satisfaction in becoming only the third National League player ever to win consecutive Most Valuable Player awards.

"Extra satisfaction? Not really," the Philadelphia Phillies third baseman said Tuesday, shortly after he was notified that the Baseball Writers Association of America had voted him NL MVP.

"I don't know how you can measure satisfaction. I'm about as satisfied as I possibly can be, whatever the numbers are, second time, third time, first time. An MVP award is something that darn few people ever get the chance to enjoy," Schmidt said at a news conference.

The only other consecutive winners of the NL MVP award were Ernie Banks of the Chicago Cubs in 1958-59 and Joe Morgan of Cincinnati in 1975-76.

"As far as the number of guys, the number of people who have won it, back-to-back, or the number of times I'm really not concerned with that right now. I know there are some good names, and to be included along with Morgan and Banks...is quite an honor," Schmidt said.

ing choice in the balloting by two writers from each National League city. He is only the eighth to accomplish the consecutive double since the voting began in 1931.

Schmidt, who was a unanimous choice in 1980, the year he also won the World Series MVP honor, received 21 of a possible 24 first place votes, and 321 points from the panel.

Montreal's Andre Dawson was runner-up, and like Schmidt listed on all 24 ballots. Dawson received two first-place votes and a total of 215 points. The only other player to get a first-place vote was rookie pitcher Fernando Valenzuela of the Los Angeles Dodgers, who was selected the NL's Cy Young award winner by the writers last week.

The other five consecutive winners were in the American League — Roger Maris, Mickey Mantle, Yogi Berra, Hal Newhouser, and Jimmy Foxx.

Other top 10 finishers in this year's balloting were Cincinnati's George Foster (146), Dave Concepcion of Cincinnati (108), Valenzuela (90), Montreal's Gary Carter (77), Dusty Baker of Los Angeles (65), Bruce Sutter of St. Louis (59), Steve Carlton of Philadelphia (41), and Tom Seaver of Cincinnati, Pete Rose of Philadelphia and Chicago's Bill Buckner, each with 35 points.

"It sure is fun coming up to these press conferences after the MVP Award is announced. I hope I can do it again next year," said Schmidt, 32.

Schmidt said one of the reasons for the success he enjoyed this year and the year before was learning to deal with pressure.

"I learned to go to the plate relaxed and not feeling that I have to do it," he said. Schmidt accumulated impressive statistics in the strike-shortened season. In 102 games he hit 31 home runs and drove in 91 runs, leading the majors in both categories. He averaged a career high of .316 and led the league in seven offensive categories.

The 31 homers gave Schmidt 295 for the past eight years, top production for any major league player over that period. Last year he hit 48, breaking the record of 47 for a third baseman set by Hall of Famer Eddie Mathews.

Schmidt, who is a .259 lifetime hitter, but one of the game's premier sluggers, credits teammate Pete Rose and former Manager Dallas Green for much of his success.

"The example he set for me as a major league ball player I believe is second to none in all of the game today," said Schmidt.

"The two greatest years I've had as a player were under the management of Green," Schmidt said. "I know there wasn't a heck of a lot said about how much Dallas had to do with my performance, but I know that he had a great deal of confidence in me."

Schmidt recalled how Green and the Phillies' coaches would stay on a Sunday after the crowd left the park and pitch to him when he was in a slump.

"They enabled me to leave the ball park in a good frame of mind," Schmidt said. "I can't thank these people enough." Schmidt said the most satisfying statistic for him in 1980 was hitting over .300, the first time he had done that in his major league career.

"That was a real challenge. I had hit .300 before but couldn't hold it. But I've learned to stay within myself, get base hits, not be afraid to fail. "My figures (in 1981) were over 102 games because of the strike," Schmidt said. "The real test is 162 games...not 102. The real test is a test of time. I only did it for 102 games, so there is still that challenge of 162."

Schmidt, who is in the process of negotiating a rich, long-term contract, joined the Phillies at the end of the 1972 season. He struggled through a .196 rookie year. But his 18 homers were a tip on his power potential.

He has gone on to become one of the game's most feared sluggers, who twice has hit four consecutive homers, the first time April 17, 1976, at Chicago, and July 6-7, 1979, against the San Francisco Giants in Philadelphia.

He is only the third member of the Phillies to be an MVP. Outfielder Chuck Klein won the award in 1932, and reliever Jim Konstanty in 1950.

Carolina Continues To Patch Team Together

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — The ravages of an 11-game college football season have taken their toll on 12th-ranked North Carolina, and while several front-line performers have returned, others have dropped out of the picture.

Quarterback Rod Elkins will start against Duke Saturday after suffering an ankle sprain against South Carolina. Tailback Kelvin Bryant is back in the lineup after arthroscopic surgery on his knee one month ago. Defensive back Bill Jackson returned against Virginia, but was not at full speed.

But while Elkins and Co. returned, two more starters were lost for the season. Fullback Alan Burrus underwent knee surgery Sunday after the victory over the Cavaliers, while linebacker Lee Shaffer broke his leg.

Replacing Burrus for Saturday's Duke game will be James Jones, a 199-pound sophomore who's rushed for 73 yards in 13 carries and one touchdown.

Chris Ward, a Cincinnati product, will fill Shaffer's spot, an opportunity he had earlier this year against the Gamecocks.

"I'm really looking forward to it," Ward said of the chance to start against Duke. "I've been waiting for it a long time, too."

When Ward came to Chapel Hill, he was the No. 2 linebacker behind Darrell Nicholson, who at the time appeared immovable. When Shaffer arrived, Ward was switched to the opposite side behind Shaffer.

The injury to Shaffer earlier in the season afforded Ward his first start as a Tar Heel. Shaffer's broken leg now allows Ward to lay a foundation for his senior year.

"I was nervous last week. I just wanted to have a real good game," he said. "I needed confidence in myself and I needed the experience, too. Experience is the only real way you can learn the game and learn the position."

Ward will get his share of experience against a Blue Devil team which has found a fine blend of running and passing and converted the pair into a 6-4 season.

Tar Heel head coach Dick Crum said it doesn't matter which quarterback starts against his defense. Ward agreed, saying the defense would have to be prepared to stop either Ben Bennett or Ron Sally.

"They're both real good quarterbacks and they're both dangerous passers," Ward said. "We have to be ready for the both of them."

As for the situation which has allowed him, Jones and several others to step into starting roles, Ward said the team has confidence that the second-stringers can do the job as adequately as the first-stringers.

"You just can't worry about the injuries," he said. "You just have to go on. You have to forget about them. The person who fills the spot has to do the best and the other people around him have to have confidence in him to do the job. If you do that, everything will be fine."

UNC Officials Mum On Gator

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — University of North Carolina officials won't confirm a report that the 12th-ranked Tar Heels will play in the Gator Bowl on Dec. 28 against either 16th-ranked Arkansas or 8th-ranked Texas.

The Durham Morning Herald quoted a source close to the Gator Bowl Selection Committee as saying the invitation for the Tar Heels, now 8-2, may be offered Saturday.

"We won't have any comment on the situation until after our ball game Saturday," said North Carolina Athletic Director John Swofford. "We hope to play well on Saturday and have a bowl to look forward to."

Swofford added that the school has talked with officials of several bowl games, but he declined to name which bowls were involved in those conversations.

Either Arkansas or Texas could receive a Cotton Bowl bid since the SWC race hasn't been decided. The league winner will go to the Cotton Bowl but Southern Methodist, which leads the league, is on NCAA probation and cannot attend a bowl.

North Carolina defeated Texas 16-7 in last year's Bluebonnet Bowl.

"If the Arkansas-Texas thing blows up, then Carolina's opponent will probably be a Big Ten team — Michigan, Ohio State or Iowa — depending on who gets the Rose Bowl," the newspaper's source said.

Bowl Selections Apparently Are Revolving Around Cotton's Pick

Kings Finally Get A Victory In Post-Birdsong, Wedman Era

By The Associated Press
The Sugar Bowl has the No. 1-ranked team but the Cotton Bowl has control of the bowl picture.

A lot of people are waiting for the Cotton Bowl to make up its mind and invite either fourth-ranked Alabama or No. 10 Southern California. But the Cotton Bowl can't make up its mind and says it won't have any further announcement until bowl-picking day Saturday. "We're really struggling with the choice," John Scovell, president of the Cotton Bowl, told The Associated Press Tuesday night. "It will be either Alabama or Southern Cal...and that's in alphabetical order." "The only comforting thing is that there's no downside. Both schools represent the very best in college football. We expect to be there between now and Saturday. We expect to go into Saturday with some priorities. The holdup is which team is the best for us — it's that simple."

Southern Cal has football tradition, a record-breaking runner in Marcus Allen and television desirability, meaning all the TV sets in the populous Los Angeles market.

Alabama has football tradition and a legendary, record-holding coach in Bear Bryant.

But, said one source close to the bowl picture, "Southern Cal has the biggest clout of anybody, and that includes Bryant."

Southern Cal still has an outside chance to go to the Rose Bowl, plus a chance to get beaten badly by UCLA on Saturday. "We'd just as soon wait until those two conditions are eliminated," Scovell said. "But we're not playing the 'what-if' game. We're trying to do what's in the best interests of the Cotton Bowl on Jan. 1."

The Cotton Bowl's reluctance to make a quick decision raised the speculation that (1) it would invite Southern Cal if the Trojans beat UCLA and (2) that CBS-TV, which obviously would prefer the huge Los Angeles market, had expressed a desire for USC.

"We're not putting any pressure on the Cotton Bowl," a CBS spokesman told The AP. However, a Pacific-10 Conference spokesman said, "I think USC expects a decision tomorrow (Wednesday)."

Barring any last-minute upsets, the Sugar and Orange Bowls are set. The Sugar Bowl picked third-ranked Georgia over Alabama as the host team, even though the two can tie for the Southeastern Conference championship, with top-rated Pitt as the visitor. The Orange Bowl has second-ranked Clemson, the Atlantic Coast Conference king, against No. 5 Nebraska, the Big Eight champ.

The Fiesta Bowl is waiting for the Cotton Bowl's decision, since it, too, intends to invite either Alabama or Southern Cal. If it's USC, the opponent will be No. 13 Penn State. If it's Alabama, the Fiesta will have to turn elsewhere since Bama trounced the Nittany Lions 31-16 last Saturday.

The host team will be the Southwest Conference representative. Should Texas beat Baylor and Southern Methodist defeat Arkansas on Saturday, Texas will go. If Arkansas beats SMU and Baylor upsets Texas, then it will be Arkansas. SMU can win the SWC title but is ineligible for a bowl game.

The Rose Bowl races hold the keys to numerous other bowls. Michigan, Iowa and Ohio State in the Big Ten and Washington State, Washington, UCLA and USC in the Pac-10 are all in the running for the Rose. On Saturday, Michigan plays Ohio State, Iowa meets Michigan State, Washington faces Washington State and UCLA goes against USC.

If Michigan and Washington State win, they will meet in the Rose Bowl. That probably would send Washington to the Holiday Bowl against the Brigham Young-Utah winner. Washington probably would go to the Holiday Bowl if it beats Washington State and UCLA goes to the Rose Bowl by beating Southern Cal.

And don't discount the possibility that Washington State, one of the Cinderella teams of the year, could get shut out of the bowls if it loses to Washington.

Assuming that everything else falls into place, which rarely happens, it would be North Carolina against either Arkansas or Texas in the Gator Bowl and Southern Mississippi against BYU — if the Cougars lose to Utah — or possibly Houston or Missouri in the Tangerine Bowl.

Houston also has a shot at the Sun Bowl against Oklahoma. The Sooners had said they would stay home if they lose to Nebraska on Saturday but had a change of heart.

It could be UCLA against Oklahoma in the Sun Bowl. There was a strong report that the Bluebonnet Bowl had locked up UCLA and Ohio State, despite a gentleman's agreement among the bowls that only the Rose could match the Big Ten against the Pac-10. The Bluebonnet might be willing to trade UCLA for Penn State and Missouri is a possibility, too. The Liberty Bowl has taken Navy, with Ohio State or Iowa as the opponent. There had been talk of Notre Dame, but the Rev. Theodore M. Hesburgh, president of Notre Dame, was said to be opposed to the possibility of the Irish accepting a bowl bid with the possibility of a 6-5 season. Notre Dame, currently 5-4, faces Penn State on Saturday and Miami, Fla., on Nov. 27. Tennessee and Wisconsin are in the Garden State Bowl. The Hall of Fame has Mississippi State, which guarantees a large crowd. The opponent is up in the air.

The Peach Bowl will pair West Virginia against the Florida-Florida State winner and Texas A&M is in the Independence Bowl, probably against the Oklahoma State-Iowa State winner.

Take an Otis Birdsong and Scott Wedman away from any team and the results would be predictable — and poor.

The Kansas City Kings, perhaps the hardest hit of any National Basketball Association club since free agency was instituted five years ago, have been experiencing the post-Otis and Scott blazes. Tuesday night, they broke a four-game losing streak in the fifth game of a brutal seven-game road trip with a 124-110 victory over the New York Knicks.

The Kings are a new team this year after the departure of Birdsong, who was eventually traded to the New Jersey Nets for high-scoring forward Cliff Robinson after he had signed a $1-million-a-year offer sheet with Cleveland; and Wedman, who went to the Cavs in a similar type deal for a No. 1 draft pick which was turned into Kevin Loder.

"Losing Otis and Scotty is the reason we're off to a slow start," said Kansas City Coach Cotton Fitzsimmons, whose team was a playoff surprise last year, making it to the Western Conference finals. "We're not a very good team at this particular time. We have only two starters back from last year."

Last week, Fitzsimmons traded last year's starting center, Sam Lacey, to the Nets for Mike Woodson, now the Kings starting shooting guard, and a 1982 No. 1 draft pick.

"I wouldn't call this a rebuilding year. Rebuilding means you're going to lose," Fitzsimmons said. "I'm trying to develop a good club after free agency tore us apart. I still think we'll make the playoffs."

If their performance against the Knicks is an accurate indication, the Kings, 3-6, will be a good team before the season is over. Forward Reggie King, who really came around in last year's playoffs, hit 15 of 22 shots against New York — 3-6 with a three-game losing streak — on his way to a game-high 33 points. King got 13 of his points in the third quarter when the Kings outscored New York 34-25 to open up an 11-point lead. This complemented Robinson's 21 points and 17 rebounds, most of which came in the first three quarters. And in the fourth quarter, reserve guard Ernie Grunfeld took control, scoring 17 of his 26 points.

"I think we wanted it more than the Knicks," said Robinson, who came to the Kings in the trade for Birdsong. "I feel we played very well and worked harder than the Knicks. I think we caught them off guard and played really good defense. We just outplayed them."

Center Bill Cartwright led New York with 31 points, including 19 of 19 from the foul line, which tied the NBA record for most free throws made in a game without a miss. It was set by Bob Pettit of St. Louis in 1961.

Spurs 112, Mavericks 105
Mark Olberding scored eight of San Antonio's final 10 points and teammate George Gervin had a game-high 38. The Mavericks pulled within two points, 105-103, with 2:30 left, but failed to score on their next five possessions.

Bucks 99, Bulls 95
Quinn Buckner's 17 points led Milwaukee to its fourth straight victory. John Lucas led Washington with 18 points. Milwaukee turned the game into a rout in the third quarter, using a 15-4 spree in the opening five minutes to go up 72-51. The lead grew to 84-61 at the quarter as Washington could convert only 6 of 23 shots and score only 14 points in the 12-minute span.

Celtics 96, Bulls 96
Larry Bird scored a game-high 29 points and Robert Parish added 21 as Boston, 9-1, won its eighth straight. The Celtics have not lost since Oct. 31, the second night of the season. Boston opened an 89-84 advantage in the fourth quarter, but baskets by Chicago's Artis Gilmore and David Greenwood closed the gap to a point. The Bulls stayed close until Bird's long jumper with 3:24 left and a hook shot by Kevin McHale with 1:55 left gave Boston a 97-91 lead.

Rockets 102, Pacers 82
Allen Leavell and Elvin Hayes each scored 17 points as Houston improved to 4-5. The Rockets took the lead for good in the second period when Indiana went nearly five minutes without a field goal and made only two shots from the field in 11 minutes. Indiana, paced by Billy Knight's 15 points, got no closer than seven points in the second half.

Hosting Tournament
Trinity Free Will Baptist captured the North Carolina A.C.E. Conference with an 8-0-1 record this year. The school will host the state tournament on Friday and Saturday, hosting Bladenboro, Fayetteville and Edenton. Members of the Trinity team are, first row, left to right: Art Reynolds, Glen Tripp,

Point-Shaving Case To Jury

NEW YORK (AP) — The defense has rested in the Boston College point-shaving trial following testimony from the school's basketball coach that he found nothing in the behavior of his 1978-79 squad to make him suspect them of rigging the games.

Summations by government prosecutor Edward McDonald and four defense attorneys were scheduled today before the jury of eight women and four men.

After hearing from coach Tom Davis and several others Tuesday, the defense rested its case and U.S. District Judge Henry Bramwell rejected motions for dismissal of charges that former BC basketball player Rick Kuhn and four others conspired to shave points in games that season.

Charged with racketeering conspiracy and bribery are former BC player Rick Kuhn; brothers Anthony and Rocco Perla and Paul Mazzei — all of the Pittsburgh area — and James Burke of New York. If convicted, defendants face a maximum 30 years in prison.

The government charges the defendants conspired to fix the outcome of Eagles' games that season so their betting syndicate could beat bookies' odds and cooperating players could make money. Kuhn was allegedly paid $2,500 per game fixed.

Davis, a basketball coach for 20 years, the last four at BC, said he noticed nothing odd in his team's play as the season unfolded, but did review the year through videotapes and statistics after learning that the FBI was investigating the team. The review also revealed nothing, he added.

"Coaches are always hard to please, but I didn't find anything unusual," Davis said when asked specifically about the Feb. 10, 1979, BC-Holy Cross game — one of six on which the government has centered its investigation.

However, under government cross examination, he conceded that point-shaving was "virtually impossible" to detect because there was no way of telling the difference between intentional and unintentional errors. Davis said players make "countless" mistakes, some more obvious than others, and agreed when McDonald said, "The only way to know (whether a mistake was intentional) would be if a player told you."

Yankees Deal Off Rodriguez

NEW YORK (AP) — Aurelio Rodriguez did such a good job as a fill-in third baseman for the New York Yankees last season that they decided to trade him.

At least that's the reason George Steinbrenner gave for making the move Tuesday.

"We traded Aurelio very reluctantly," said Steinbrenner, "but we felt in fairness to him, that he deserved a chance to play regularly. He will have that chance with Toronto."

While sending the 33-year-old infielder to the Blue Jays for a player to be named, the Yankee management wasn't discounting up-and-coming talent in their minor league system. Among that talent is Tucker Ashford, a infielder-catcher with the Yankees' Columbus team in the International League.

"Kids like that demand to be moved up, and we feel he can move up and do the job," said Bill Bergesch, the Yankees' vice president for operations. Ashford, who will be 27 next month, batted .300, hit 17 homers and drove in 86 runs last season in 132 games.

Rodriguez, recognized as one of the game's best defensive third basemen, played sparingly, but well, for the Yankees last season in relief of Graig Nettles. Rodriguez batted .346 in 27 regular-season games and when Nettles was hurt in the World Series, he took over at third and batted .385 in three games.

"Aurelio has done an outstanding job for the Yankees," said Steinbrenner. "He was a great team man who accepted his role on the club without complaint. He delivered when he was called upon to play. This was especially true during the World Series. (But) with Nettles' contract extended through the 1983 season, it would have been next to impossible for Aurelio to be an everyday third baseman with the Yankees."

Rodriguez had his best year in 1978 for the Detroit Tigers, batting .265 in 134 games. His top home run year was in 1970 when he hit 19 to go with a career-high 76 RBI.

Threats Cause Connors To Leave Tournament

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
Jane Upton Bell recalls as if it were only yesterday the long transcontinental train ride from Philadelphia to Los Angeles with her dad nearly 30 years ago.

"Dad hated airplanes and refused to fly," she said. "When we got off the train we were met by Pete Rozelle, who, instead of booking us into our hotel, whisked us off to a beautiful club where we had lunch."

Present at the lunch were Jane; her dad, Bert Bell; Dan Reeves and Bob Hope, who were partners in the ownership of the Los Angeles Rams, plus Rozelle, a lowly press agent for the Rams who subsequently succeeded Bell as commissioner of the National Football League.

Mystically, the luncheon party — minus Bell and Reeves, who are no longer alive — are reunited next Sunday in a two-hour TV special which carries the long-winded title of "Bob Hope's Stand-Up-and-Cheer for the National Football League's 60th Year — An All-Star Comedy Salute to America's No. 1 Spectator Sport" (NBC 8-10 p.m. est).

The title alone takes up two pages in the TV guides.

"I think that meeting really was the germ of the idea," Bell said from her home base in Los Angeles.

The grandiose special came out of her own head. A successful director and producer, she is the producer putting all the pieces together. She persuaded Hope to go along.

Sherrill: It's Not Set

PITTSBURGH (AP) — It looks like a sure thing: top-ranked Pitt versus third-ranked Georgia in the Sugar Bowl.

But Pitt Coach Jackie Sherrill currently is focusing on Saturday's game with Temple, which the Panthers must win to stay in command of the bowl picture. And he denies the Pitt-Georgia matchup has already been arranged in New Orleans.

"That hasn't been decided," Sherrill said Tuesday at his weekly press luncheon.

Sherrill, of course, was complying with NCAA rules, which say bowl bids may not be extended officially until 6 p.m. Saturday.

Pitt will make its announcement at a locker room news conference after Saturday's game at Veterans Stadium in Philadelphia, provided the Panthers win.

What about the Sugar Bowl? "It's a possibility," said Sherrill.

"And there's a possibility there are other places to go," he added.

There had been speculation Pitt would consider the Cotton Bowl, which pays more money than the Sugar Bowl.

But The Associated Press has reported Pitt and Georgia will play in a Sugar Bowl rematch of the game that brought Pitt the 1976 national title.

After last weekend's 49-0 romp over Army, an assortment of Pitt players voiced a preference for the Sugar Bowl.

Sherrill said he didn't believe it was necessary to hold a special meeting with his players this week to discuss the bowl matter.

"I've talked to them all along," he said.

"Like I told our players yesterday, I know what your temperature is because I check it every day," he added.

"They know that I'll do what is right for them. So there is really no question. We're not going to have a vote. We're not going to have a meeting."

"They've got other important things to worry about. They've got to win this week. They got to prepare to play Temple."

Pitt, 9-0, has a 16-game winning streak that is the longest in the nation.

Dan Marino is the top-rated quarterback in NCAA statistics, split end Julius Dawkins leads the nation with 14 touchdown catches.

Then she got approval from Rozelle.

"I grew up listening to Bob Hope on the radio and watching him on television," Bell said. "When I approached him with the project, he was delighted. 'Let's go with it,' he said."

"I thought it was great," said Hope, a sports buff who boxed as a kid, put some of his excess cash in the Rams and Cleveland Indians baseball team and is sponsor of one of the pro tour's top golf tournaments.

While declining to reveal the plot, both Jane and Bob let the cat out of the bag in warning fans that the salute to the NFL will not be a dull re-creation of old games.

It's going to be jazzed up, as only Hope can do it, and, besides a few zany film clips, will feature some real live human beings who won't be wearing helmets and pads, principally Elizabeth Taylor, Barbara Mandrell, Susan Anton and Howard Cosell.

Liz Taylor plays the first woman football commissioner.

Hope has fun with Cosell of whom he says, "Howard Cosell is the one man Will Rogers never met."

"It's a sort of spoof but more a fun look at history," Bell says. "We have some amusing situations. It has pace and variety."

"It's fun to see great players such as Red Grange and Jim Thorpe," added Hope, "but the modern fan will be startled to see those high-top cleated shoes, baggy, slat-padded pants and cumbersome shoulder pads."

Pro football actually traces its birth to 1920 with the formation of the American Professional Football Association by Chicago's George Halas and friends. It officially became the NFL in 1922. For years the pros struggled in the shadow of the college game but took off with a boom after World War II and the advent of television.

Bert Bell, scion of a wealthy Philadelphia family and a Penn player who participated in the Rose Bowl, became the third commissioner in 1946. He died after suffering a heart attack at the Steelers-Eagles game at Franklin Field Oct. 11, 1959. Enter Rozelle.

Bell was married to a beautiful actress and dancer, Jane Upton, who appeared in "Ziegfeld's Follies."

"As a kid, I didn't know whether to put cleats on my ballet slippers or taps on my cleats," says daughter Jane. "I played football with my older brothers, who used me as the ball, and went to school with a book bag, a doll and a football."

"I loved football and attended all the games with dad. I remember I had to be careful not to cheer for any one team."

After graduation from college, she felt her mother's blood taking hold. She got into television production and in 1970 went West where she served as assistant director of the "Dinah Shore Show," provided features for "Good Morning America" and worked with Mike Douglas and Hope, among others.

Now she's back to football, and old Bert would be proud.

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Jimmy Connors has withdrawn from the Sigma Tennis Tournament here reportedly because of death threats to himself and his wife. Other athletes are expected to follow, according to the South African Press Association (SAPA).

"Connors told me by telephone there had been threats on his life and that of his wife if he came to Johannesburg," Sigma tournament director Keith Brebnor was quoted as telling SAPA Tuesday. "It looks as if the boys in the United Nations have won."

Brebnor referred to international groups who oppose the country's racial segregation policy and have blocked the appearance of both sports and show business personalities here.

Brebnor said that Poland's Wojtek Fibak also had withdrawn "under pressure" and it was feared that American Vitas Gerulaitis would pull out. "The Afro-Asian countries got at him," Brebnor said of Fibak.

In Dallas, Amy Wishingrad, entry coordinator for the Association of Tennis Professionals, confirmed that Connors had withdrawn from the South African tournament because she understood "that there have been some threats to his life. I don't know if his wife was also involved." Wishingrad said Fibak also had withdrawn, but did not know whether Gerulaitis would appear.

The ATP had designated the Sigma tournament for an appearance by Connors. Wishingrad wasn't sure what Connors' decision would mean to his world ranking or his qualification for the Volvo Grand Prix Masters Tournament in New York next January.

Connors, playing in a tournament in Israel, could not be reached for comment.

Brebnor said that other tennis stars were likely to follow in Connors' footsteps.

"The organizers of this anti-African campaign have already got to our top four players," he said, "and we can expect ripples to spread on this lake of tragedy."

The tournament director apparently also included Brian Teacher among the players who have withdrawn for political reasons, although Teacher has said he is recovering from an injury.

With Connors, Fibak and Gerulaitis out, Kim Warwick of Australia would be the top-ranked player in the tournament. He is currently rated 15th in the world.

Major sporting events have been canceled in South Africa because of pressure from anti-apartheid groups. Most recently, a proposed match between John McEnroe and Bjorn Borg was called off after pressure was put on both players.

"I'm a little tired of hearing about all this ghost talent I have," Thompson said. "You want to know what real talent is, look at Joe Hall at Kentucky. This guy is so loaded with talent he misses his appointment to see Ewing."

"I'm not complaining, when he missed his appointment I got a chance to speak to Patrick for two hours, while everybody else saw him for just one. I could have kissed Joe for that."

If he is worried that his young freshmen will suffer inflated egos from the pre-season hoopla, Thompson doesn't show it.

"They are 18- and 19-year-olds living in a goldfish bowl. There is a certain amount of pressure on them but it goes with the occupation they have selected. So far they have handled it well," Thompson said.

Despair Among Exiles

HONG KONG (AP) — When Vietnamese refugees began arriving here in 1976, they were put up on $40-a-day hotel rooms. Now they are kept in more cramped quarters that range from former army barracks to factory buildings with tiered bunks.

This, along with processing delays, is one of the reasons given by refugee officials for increasing despair and tension among the refugees now as they go through long waiting periods for overseas resettlement.

For two nights late in October, rioting broke out in the Jubilee Refugee Camp, leaving four persons injured. The camp is a restricted one; refugees are not allowed to leave and unauthorized visitors are not permitted.

The October incidents were sparked off by the transfer of about 850 refugees to the restricted camp from a government departure center where they had freedom of movement.

The transfer was made because the refugees' departure for the United States has been delayed following a U.S. decision to reduce refugee intake temporarily in order to clear up a backlog of processing work.

The Vietnamese complained of the loss of freedom and said there were being treated "like prisoners."

Refugee-relief officials say they fear the slow resettlement program could lead to recurrence of the disturbances among the 16,700 refugees still in this British colony awaiting permanent resettlement.

These refugees are housed in seven camps and the cramped and primitive living conditions there have further aggravated discontent among them. More than 50 percent of them have been here for two years.

Maurice Morgan, chairman of the Red Cross Board which runs a refugee center here, said: "When you are living in such crowded conditions and are uncertain of your future, almost anything will make you despondent." He added, however: "I don't think the violence is too serious."

Deputy Security Secretary John Heywood, on the other hand, said Hong Kong will have to review its policy if overseas resettlement quotas are lowered and the flow of refugees from Vietnam continues.

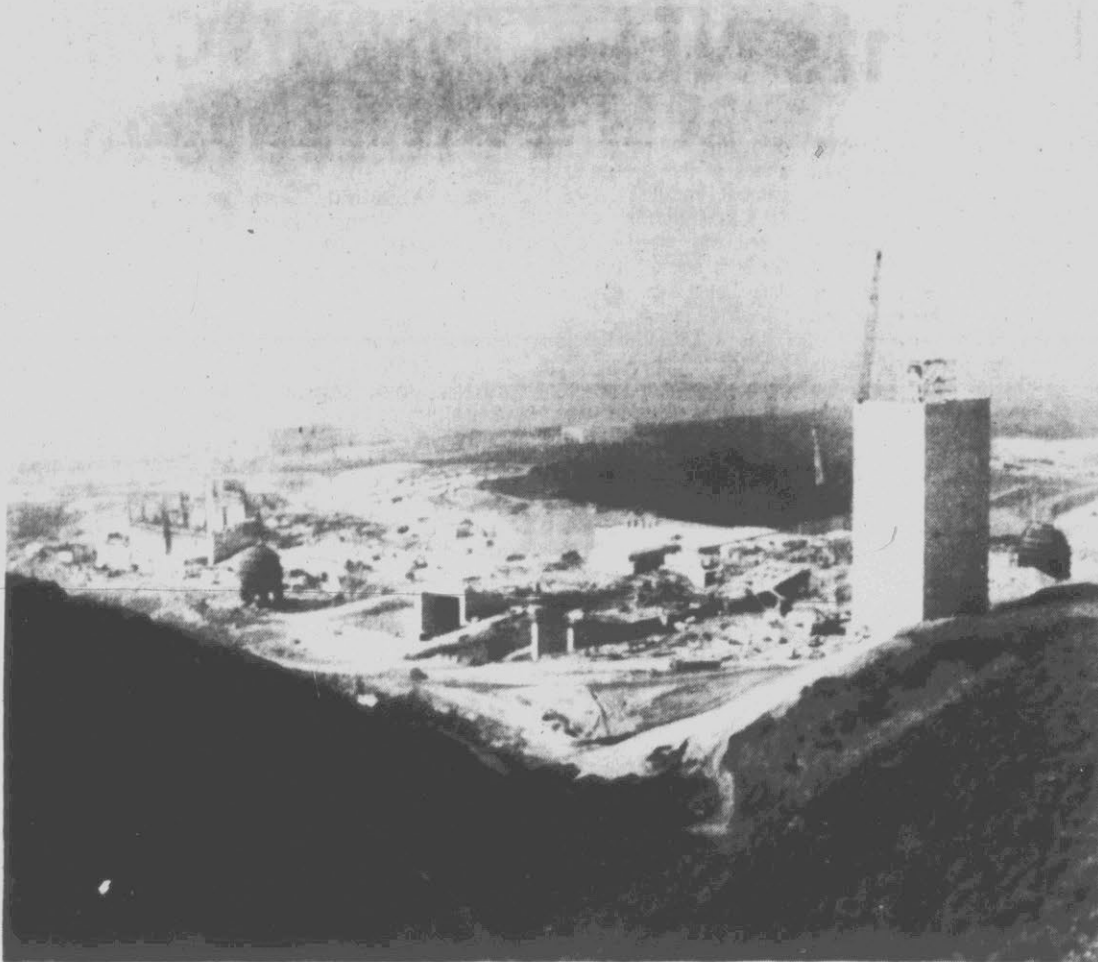

He added that the government had revised its estimates of the number of refugees who would be left in camps at the end of year to 11,000 from 9,000.

Heywood claimed the October disturbances indicated that some refugees are only "economic adventurers," who have no feeling of gratitude to Hong Kong for offering them temporary asylum. He did not elaborate.

This was not the first time that Vietnamese refugees have resorted to violence. In June, 1979, after spending five months aboard the 3,500-ton freighter Skyluck, refugees among the 2,651 Vietnamese aboard severed the anchor in an attempt to beach the ship so they could land at Hong Kong.

When marine police launches tried to stop the ship from drifting, the refugees attacked them with firebombs and bottles. Four refugees were subsequently sentenced up to 2½ years' in prison on charges of rioting.

"Desperate people do desperate things," Hong Kong's governor, Sir Murray Maclehoze, commented at the time.

West Coast Shuttle Launching Base Takes Shape In California

VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — The military's dream of an orbiting space laboratory is at last coming to life here amid scraggly clumps of desert brush in a $2 billion facility that will be the space shuttle's West Coast home.

Parts of the complex were built more than a decade ago in the arid, rolling hills along the Pacific Ocean. But now it is being remodeled and expanded as a second launch pad for the shuttle, a site from which the reusable ship could be sent off in different directions than from Cape Canaveral, Fla.

To welcome the shuttle home from those flights, the Air Force is adding 7,000 feet to its 8,000-foot runway on this sprawling space-and missile-oriented base 165 miles north of Los Angeles.

In 1985, if construction and funding go as planned, the shuttle Discovery, now in early stages of construction, will be the first orbiter to be launched here, said Lt. Col. Aubrey Sloan, deputy commander of Vandenberg's Shuttle Test Group.

Sloan said the site, though on military property and under military control, will handle both civilian flights and military ones, the latter to be known as "blue shuttle." Both types of flights will also originate from Cape Canaveral.

Vandenberg was chosen as the second shuttle site because its location allows the ship to be lofted over water and into a polar orbit. Launches from Cape Canaveral send the spacecraft into an equatorial orbit.

Because the shuttle dumps its booster rockets shortly after liftoff, a coastal launch site helps ensure the boosters don't fall on people or property. On the West Coast, Sloan said, "the solid rocket boosters will fall off about 160 miles south of us," where they will be retrieved and towed to the Navy base at Port Hueme and reused.

The Vandenberg complex will cost more than $2 billion to build and, when completed, it will handle 10 shuttle missions a year — roughly a third of the expected launches, he said.

About 400 military and government workers and 4,000 contractor employees are working at Space Launch Complex 6, known on the base as "Slick Six."

The facility was originally built for the military's Manned Orbital laboratory, a program canceled in 1969 before the site was ever used. The 30-story gantry — a metal building shaped like an upside-down "L" — stood deserted until the Air Force decided in 1975 that $100 million could be saved by remodeling rather than starting over.

Now the site is crawling with hard-hatted workers, trucks, machines and giant cranes. Great gray concrete buildings are spread in a dense cluster, with tons of concrete flowing regularly into red metal forms as service buildings, blast walls and control centers take shape.

The focus of the site is an almost empty spot where the shuttle will someday stand on its tail and, belching fire and smoke, thunder into the sky. Beneath the pad, three huge tunnel-like pits lined like bunkers with reinforced concrete will funnel the blast, flames and steam into the hillsides.

Doctor Sees Long Life For Thinner People

FRAMINGHAM, Mass. (AP) — Thin people who smoke little or not at all live longer, but it's better to risk gaining weight to quit smoking, says a doctor heading a 32-year study of the health of thousands of local residents.

"If you show me a thin person who isn't a heavy cigarette smoker, I'll show you the person who does the best of all in life — the lowest death rate, the lowest stroke rate, heart attack rate, the whole bit," said Dr. William Castelli, director of the Framingham Heart Study.

The study, which has been following the health of 5,200 Framingham residents since 1949, will be published soon, Castelli said.

The report contradicts conclusions made last spring by Dr. Reubin Andres of Johns Hopkins University, who said the healthiest people are somewhat overweight.

"All the fat people loved it," Castelli said. "We're saying that can't be right." But Castelli told the Middlesex News that the thinnest people on the charts smoke and die from cancer. And when the smokers are eliminated from the averages, the figures show that thin people actually live the longest.

Castelli said that people should not continue smoking because they fear they will gain weight.

"It looks like it's better to gain that weight and get out of that group that stays smoking," he said.

Eventually, smokers who quit lose their initial weight gain and return to the level of people who never smoked, Castelli said.

"They gain about six pounds and lose it in eight years," he added.

Both Andres' and Castelli's findings were based on statistics showing that people who weigh the most or the least are most likely to die before their time.

Church Collection Plate Gifts Reach $2.3 Million

BIG COLLECTION — Rev. Bob New stands over a portion of First Baptist Church's collection in Orlando. When the collection plate was passed last Sunday it came back with pledges of money, jewelry, property deeds, titles to antique cars, silverware, gold and even a promise of a registered Hereford bull. The total came to $2.3 million, and will go to the purchase of land. (AP Laserphoto)

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — When the First Baptist Church pleaded for $2.6 million so it could pay cash for a spread even bigger than its downtown "worship center," members gave it their Sunday best and pitched $1 million in the plate in a single day.

They gave wedding rings and property and silverware and gold. They gave antique cars and cash and checks and even a registered Hereford bull. And with the $1 million in pledges and gifts that came back on the collection plates Sunday, the First Baptist Church of Orlando church had raised a total of $2.3 million since its fund-raising drive began in September.

"The financial miracle we are witnessing is beyond human achievement," the Rev. Jim Henry wrote in a newsletter to the church's 5,500-member congregation, which includes the mayor and a number of prominent businessmen and politicians. "The 'Seventy Day Miracle'...will be something we tell our children."

The $2.6 million is just for the land, nearly 150 acres in southwest Orlando. It will take more fund-raising to finance a new 5,000-seat sanctuary, parking for 3,000 cars, a school and a high-rise retirement apartment building.

More than $1.75 million of the total was cash and the rest was in the form of gifts, said the Rev. Wayne Johnson, minister of media.

The Orlando Sentinel Star reported that a newly married woman gave up her wedding ring, a gold band with five diamonds and four emeralds. Several other people gave wedding rings from past marriages.

One family turned over the $1,069.58 they'd been saving for a boat. Another pledged $270 to be saved by fasting one day a week, giving up weekend entertainment and working overtime on Christmas and New Year's Day.

Some people gave the deeds to rental property and vacant land they owned. One person dropped in the title to a 1924 Ford Model T and someone else a 1929 Model A. A high school student cleaned out his savings account, the newspaper said.

Several checks of more than $100,000 came in, and there were pledges for more.

Donations even came from people who don't even belong to the church. An Episcopalian couple gave the equity on their house, the newspaper reported.

"The emphasis has been on sacrifice," Johnson said. "A millionaire may sit next to a blue-collar worker, so our stress was not on equal gifts, but on equal sacrifice among the members."

In addition to Orlando Mayor Bill Frederick, the congregation includes state Sen. George Stuart, state Rep. Dick Batchelor and the family of state Insurance Commissioner Bill Gunter. But there are also many young families, singles and elderly people of modest means.

By raising all $2.6 million, the church won't have to pay interest on a mortgage. The closing is set for Jan. 4.

The church's membership is rapidly outgrowing the seven-acre complex spread among several blocks in downtown Orlando, officials said. The "worship center" will be retained as a satellite church for members who wish to stay downtown.

Blew Out Most Of 85 Candles

NEW YORK (AP) — Composer Virgil Thomson, who will be 85 next Wednesday, blew out most of the candles on a birthday cake in the Carnegie Hall Cafe and said that being old has its rewards.

"I have one (birthday) every year," he said Tuesday, "and every five years they sort of make over you. They start at 65. I don't know what they do at 90, maybe forget about you. This one has been a great buildup. They play my music, publish my books, give parties. I like it."

"I think my mother and father always ran their house as if it was one continuous party, with lots of company coming and going and nice cooking. It's a good idea."

said Thomson.

He was feted at the monthly meeting of the Arts and Business Council, which was honoring Meet the Composer, an organization formed to promote the music of living American composers.

Poetry Forum

The second meeting of the ECU Poetry Forum for the month of November will be held at 8 p.m. Thursday in Room 248, Mendenhall Student Center.

Those bringing poems to be read are asked to provide eight or 10 copies to be passed out.

Poets and poetry lovers are invited to attend. There is no fee involved in attending these twice monthly meetings on the first and third Thursday evenings of each month.

Sees A Period Of High Risk

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Upcoming Congressional decisions on military spending will greatly affect the security of the United States during the next three years, a member of the Joint Chiefs of Staff said Tuesday night at Duke University.

"We believe that between now and 1985 is a very high risk period," said Admiral Thomas B. Hayward, chief of naval operations, to a crowd of about 450 in Page Auditorium. "Let's hope we get through it."

Hayward said the country is now engaged in what he labeled "the great defense debate."

He said, "I see the debate as critical. I hope to God the signal we send is that we don't want to go back to ... where we consider the world situation as a passive one."

Most critical right now, he said, are decisions Congress is expected to be making soon on military spending.

"We're now at the point where we either fish or cut bait," he said. "The issue now is in your hands. It's in the Congress' hands."

Hayward said recent reports depicting military spending as wasteful have been filled with inaccuracies and have damaged the country's defense posture.

But he said the Pentagon makes its share of errors.

"Do we make mistakes at the Pentagon? Sure we do. We're a $150 billion business. There's no way we're going to do everything perfect," he said.

Hayward said Soviet "adventurism" should reach new heights during the next three years because the military balance is leaning in their favor.

He said the Reagan administration's plan to build up U.S. supplies of nuclear and conventional weapons is sound and will make America's allies more confident.

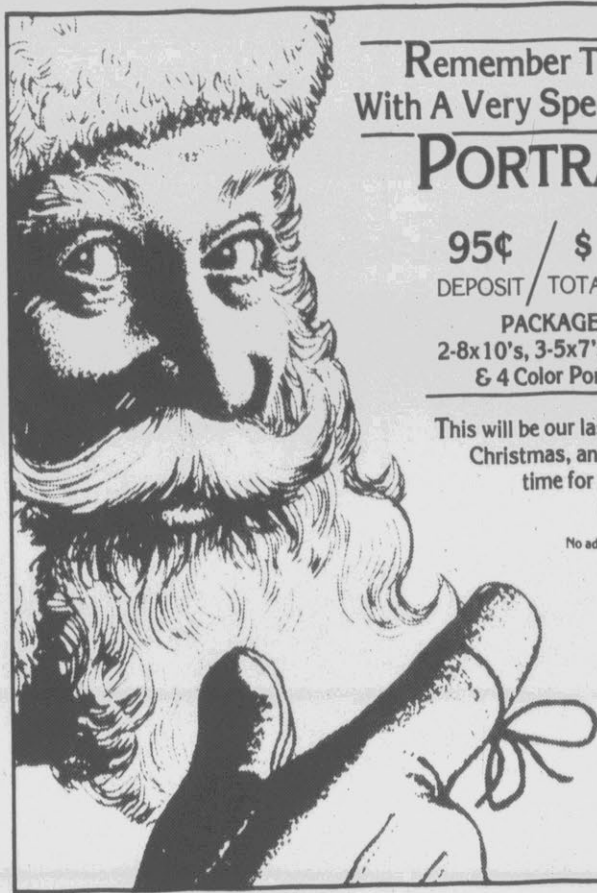

Hayward said he visited most of the country's Far East allies this summer and found them encouraged by the tougher Reagan stance.

"Those countries are so glad the U.S. is standing up for the objectives it has had in the past," Hayward said. "It will encourage them to do more."

"It's a time for optimism. It's a time to feel good about what we can accomplish. I sense an upbeat attitude among Americans about what we can accomplish."

FIRST REAL SNOW — Mike Alexander surveys the season's first measurable snow on top of Grandfather Mountain Tuesday afternoon. A little over one inch of snow and ice accumulated Monday night and early Tuesday. Alexander may look a little cold, and he has good reason to — when the photo was taken it was 29 degrees and the wind was blowing near 50 knots, giving a wind chill factor of seven degrees below zero. Tuition Tax Credits Hit

Reflector Staff Writer

"A proposal related to the Reagan administration's effort to provide tax credit to private school tuition, is, in my opinion, an extremely serious issue," Dr. Delma Blinson, superintendent of Greenville City Schools, stated in remarks to members of the Greenville Board of Education earlier this week.

Blinson cited two factors he considers primary in developments that could result from such legislation:

"First, this would provide an incentive for people to pull their children out of public school to place them into private schools.

"Secondly, it would constitute a source of lost revenue. The proposed $5 billion tax credit would be taken out of compensatory programs for public schools, such as the various federal title programs."

Following his remarks, Blinson presented board members a draft resolution designed to present a stand on the issue on the part of the school board.

The resolution was approved by the board. Primary points in the resolution are:

— "The Greenville City Board of Education is committed to the continued strength of American public education;

— "We feel that any action which will be detrimental to the public schools is not in the best interest of our nation;

— "We believe, along with many other supporters of public education, that a national policy of tax credits for private school tuition would be extremely detrimental to our public schools."

After setting forth the three points, the resolution offers two statements of resolution:

— "That the Greenville City Board of Education favors leaving the present tax laws relative to tuition tax credits as they now are written and strongly opposes any decrease in revenue resultant from the proposed plans for tax credits for private school tuition;

— "That the Greenville City Board of Education urges all citizens and elected officials to work vigorously to strengthen the public school system both by government appropriations and by fiscal policies designed to enhance the fundamental right of every child to an equitable education."

Among immediate steps urged by Blinson are those of writing letters of concern to state and national officials; and taking every opportunity possible to bring the tax credit proposals for private schools to the attention of the public.

Stand Offers Free Produce

By THERESA HUMPHREY

Associated Press Writer

GREENWOOD, Del. (AP)

— Motorists zipping past

Gerald Pearson's home

usually do a double take when they see the "free food" signs on the television tray that serves as his produce stand.

And many people who want to take advantage of the offer won't believe the fresh fruits and vegetables are free until they hear it from Pearson himself.

"They'll see the sign but they don't believe it, so they come up to the house and ask if it's really free," Pearson said.

It really is free and has been for the past two years.

Now in its third year,

Pearson's produce stand, marked by a big, blue umbrella when food is available, is in the ideal location. The stand is just east of U.S.

Route 13 on U.S. Route 16 —

a main thoroughfare for

Baltimore and Washington

residents heading for the Eastern Shore beach resorts.

"People don't seem to be hogs on this stuff," Pearson said. "I feel if they stop here and pick something up, they're gonna use it."

Delawareans don't usually stop because "they have their own" fresh fruits and vegetables, Pearson said, explaining that most of the takers are city folk with auto tags from New York,

Maryland, Pennsylvania and Washington.

Biggest Of All Cheese-Eaters

LOS ANGELES (AP) — No

other state in the union

California.

Residents of the Golden

State each year consume, on a per capita basis, 29 pounds of cheese or 11 pounds more than the national average, according to the California

Milk Advisory Board. This consumption is about the same as found in Europe, the board adds.

Even milk consumption in California exceeds the national per capita average by 15 quarts, says the report.

The state's reputation as a producer of a variety of quality cheeses was enhanced, says the board, when California won 17 of the 20 medals awarded to commercial cheese producers in the hard-cheese

cent 24th annual Dairy

Competition at the Los Angeles County Fair.

"It's just surplus I have,"

Pearson said of his free food,

"We've got enough here."

Pearson and his wife,

Florence, have 50 acres of land surrounding their home, with soybean crops lining the driveaway, all the way up to their front yard.

Their modest-looking home, complete with greenhouse and underground

two-car parking garage, was designed and built by the couple in 1938.

At the rear of the home is the garden that produces food for the couple and the produce stand.

The couple keeps their almonds because Mrs.

Pearson uses them in her cooking.

But once they've stocked up enough of the other de-lectables such as rhubarb, grapes, peanuts, lettuce, carrots, zucchini, pumpkins, tomatoes, cucumbers, beets, lima beans and anything else that happens to be in season

— the food is available for the public.

"I don't like to have people come up and take things themselves because they tear things up so bad," he said.

Pearson, a 72-year-old who retired from the Du Pont

Co.'s nylon plant in Seaford in 1955, does not, however, spend all of his time with his garden.

In fact, his main hobby is growing orchids and he could be considered an expert on the tropical flowers.

With more than 100 various flowers and plants in his yard, the first thing he does each morning is give the orchids "a little squirt" of water.

Then he tends to the fruits and vegetables for the "free food" stand.

VFW Auxiliary Adds Members

The Ladies Auxiliary of the Veterans of Foreign Wars,

Post No. 7032, held its monthly meeting last week.

President Rosa Lee Boyd

presided over the meeting.

Three new members, Rosa

Lee Phillips, Jane Harris and Margaret Speight received the membership obligation.

The LAFWV placed a

House Square for Veteran's

Day. Verna Mizzelle said that clothing, candy and fruit had been taken to O'Berry

Center for the children.

The organization has received $149.16 for the cakes and pocket calendars during the preceding month. A total of $512.40 had been donated to cancer aid and research during the quarter.

PRESERVING HERITAGE — Harvier Adams helped form the first all-Indian infantry unit of the Arizona National Guard in 1913. Now 91 and a resident of the Gila River Indian Reservation in Arizona, he talks to Pima Indian children about "the importance of preserving the Pima language and customs."

Seeks Preserve Indian Culture

 CASA BLANCA, Ariz. (AP) — At 91, Harvier Adams gives school-class talks to Pima Indian children about "the importance of preserving the Pima language and customs."
 "The children are now more curious and want to hang on to their heritage," he says.
 An accomplished storyteller, he relates legends that were passed on to him from his forebears.
 His gnarled hands are evidence of a lifetime of hard work, but he still fits into his World War I Army uniform.
 One of his proudest accomplishments was helping form in 1913 — with five now-dead friends — the first all-Indian infantry company of the Arizona National Guard.
 "I had been working on a chicken farm in Phoenix and was awfully tired of that, so the opportunity looked good to me," he said.
 When World War I was declared, the unit was discharged because at that time Indians were not subject to the draft. Adams volunteered for the Army and served overseas as a sergeant.
 He re-enlisted after the war, returning to Arizona after his tour of duty. He has lived since 1935 in the same small home near Casa Blanca, on the Gila River Indian Reservation.
 He keeps his army rifle polished and participates in the Mui-Chu-Tha parade held annually in Sacaton.
 Adams farmed 30 acres until a dwindling water supply made growing crops impossible. Lately, he said, he has barely enough water for his few fruit trees.
 "Anything I attempt, I first read up on it, then I go ahead with it," Adams said.
 He helped construct two Assembly of God churches on the reservation.
 After he began raising hogs, he taught himself how to make his own sausage, salt pork and cured hams.
 Adams said he no longer smoked or drank alcohol, and felt constant exercise had helped him to live a long life. He was never wounded while in the army but a mastoid operation while in service left him with impaired hearing.
 He said he was "not afraid of death because I have been close to it several times."

Raintree Serves As City's Hiring Hall

By HARI S. MANIAM
 Associated Press Writer
 KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — A 60-foot raintree, with shady branches spreading out more than 100 feet in diameter, overlooks today, as it has for decades, one of Kuala Lumpur's busiest labor markets.
 Every morning hundreds of men in search of work in construction, housing demolition, road-building, mining, or other manual jobs mill around the tree. Contractors come in pickup trucks and after some hard bargaining over a "cuppa coffee" at small stalls under the tree, drive them off to construction and other work sites.
 G. Muthiah, 45, balding and wizened by his long years of manual labor, said, "Workers seeking jobs have waited at this spot for years — since the time this tree was this small," indicating his own height.
 He said he had first come here about 10 years ago, and by then the tree was already big.
 The workers gather at the tree about 7 a.m. and in 30 minutes most have made contact for their day's employment.
 Muthiah is a mining worker and gets about 25 ringgits ($10.72) a day. He works 20 to 25 days a month. Some others working at construction sites and other jobs get only about 15 ringgits ($6.44) a day.
 Muthiah is married with four children and lives in a squatter house near the tree.
 Most of the workers under the tree are Indians whose fathers came before World War II from Madras state and never bothered to become citizens until it was too late.
 Since labor laws say only citizens can be hired for permanent jobs, these men hang around and make whatever money they can, since it is still better wages than they can ever get in India.
 Malaysia has what economists call "over employment" — that is, unemployment is around 4 percent of the work force of 4 million.
 There are some 300,000 Indonesian, Filipino and Thai workers in Malaysia, according to government officials, and the government closes an eye because if they are all kicked out the rubber and oil-palm plantations, construction, rice harvest and other sectors would suffer. The workers are all attracted by higher wages here.
 If you're not using your exercise equipment, sell it this winter in these columns. Call 752-6166.

Declarer decided to base his play on the odds-against chance that trumps were going to divide 4-1. If the cards lay well, he would be able to nullify East's presumed trump holding. He cashed the queen of diamonds and three high clubs. Next came the king of spades, followed by a spade ruff. Now dummy's last club was led.

A surprised East found that he could make only one trump trick. He was down to the Q-J-5 of trumps. If he ruffed low, declarer would over-ruff and cash the ace of hearts. Ruffing high would be equally unavailing. East would be left on lead with Q-5 in trumps. That would force him to lead into dummy's K-9 tenace, again limiting him to one trump trick.

One sure trait of a bridge expert is his table presence—the ability to "sniff out" the lie of the cards. South was the Israeli internationalist Shmuel Lev, and the hand was played in the European Championship. Once the 4-4 heart fit was uncovered, it became very difficult to reach three no trump—the best contract as the cards lie. As a matter of fact, four hearts was the contract at both tables of the Sweden-Israel match, and the Swedish declarer went down one—he lost two aces and two trump tricks.

Against the Israeli auction, West led a low diamond. East won the ace, cashed the ace of spades and reverted to the jack of diamonds. Declarer won the king and, when a trump to the king fetched the ten from West, he suspected that it was a singleton. He had only a slight clue to guide him—East's inordinate hurry to cash the ace of spades suggested that he thought he was looking at enough tricks to defeat the contract, and those tricks could only be in trumps.

Sees Same Fate For Stockman

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — President Carter's budget chief, who was forced to resign in 1977, says current Budget Director David Stockman is headed for the same fate.

"I think he's damaged his credibility a great deal," Bert Lance, Carter's director of the Office of Management and Budget, said Monday of the controversy surrounding Stockman, "and I think in going before Congress he's going to find that the members of Congress don't have any (faith) in the numbers being presented to them."

Stockman offered his resignation to President Reagan after a candid interview in the Atlantic Monthly magazine in which he said Reagan's program was not working and might never. The president refused the resignation offer. Lance quit as budget director after questions arose about his previous banking practices. He later was acquitted on federal bank fraud charges.

Dogfighting Sites Shift

ATLANTA (AP) — The head of the Southern States Pit Bulldog Club says club members have been going to other states to stage their dogfights since Georgia lawmakers began considering legislation to make dogfighting illegal.

Robert Swetman, a Griffin dog breeder who serves as president of the club, told a legislative panel Tuesday there have been no dogfights in Georgia since June, when the dogfighting subcommittee of the House Game, Fish and Recreation Committee held a hearing on the subject.

But Swetman, who said his club includes 150 pit bulldog owners in seven Southeastern states, told the dogfighting subcommittee Tuesday he opposes the legislation that would make it a felony punishable by a five-year jail term to stage or bet on dogfights.

"The dogs like to fight," he said. "They do it on their own initiative. That's what they were born and bred for."

Jack Jefferson, vice president of the club, said that while there is a law against cruelty to animals, the bulldog owners "don't believe that what we do is cruel to animals."

The legislation was introduced late in the 1981 session after a raid in March at a dogfight in Hephzibah resulted in 18 arrests. All 18 later were convicted on gambling charges.

The subcommittee Tuesday heard representatives of several Georgia humane societies voice support for the measure to make it a felony for anyone to stage or bet on dogfights.

Rep. Max Davis, R-DeKalb County, suggested that the measure would be more effective in stopping dogfights if it were changed to make staging or betting on dogfights a misdemeanor rather than a felony.

"I don't believe people in Cordele or Valdosta will send their neighbors to jail for fighting dogs if it's the same punishment as armed robbery," he said.

Rep. Howard Rainey, D-Cordele, said the subcommittee will meet in December to decide whether to offer any changes to the bill, which was introduced by Reps. Mike Padgett, D-Augusta, and Ben Jessup, D-Cochran.

FOCUS

Haitian Holiday

Today is Army Day in Haiti, commemorating its liberation from France in 1803. Haitians have little to celebrate, however. Since 1803 Haiti has suffered from repeated revolutions and many despotic rulers. Today it is one of this hemisphere's poorest and most repressive countries. Nearly one-half of all infants die before they reach four, life expectancy is less than 50 years, illiteracy approaches 80 percent and per capita income is $260 a year. Little wonder that nearly 12,000 Haitians fled to the U.S. in 1980. But Haiti's slave revolt 180 years ago has brought the U.S. more than refugees. Napoleon's North American armies were so weakened by the conflict that he sold us the Louisiana Purchase for only 28¢ an acre.

DO YOU KNOW — Who is the President of Haiti?

TUESDAY'S ANSWER — Boston Public Latin School, founded in 1635, is the nation's oldest public school.

Toastmasters Elect Officers

The Greenville Toastmasters Club will meet Wednesday at the Western Sizzlin' on Greenville Boulevard. Dinner is at 6:15 p.m. and the business and educational part of the program is at 7:15 p.m.

At the last meeting, officers were elected for 1982. Tom Houston was elected president; Betty Topper, educational vice president; Charlotte Flanagan, administrative vice president; Pat Flanagan, secretary; Paul Topper, treasurer; and Steve Johnston, sergeant at arms. The new officers will be installed in January.

Plans were made for a special guest night to be held Dec. 9. Guest speakers will be featured and the club seeks to have many guests in attendance.

At the Nov. 11 meeting, Betty Topper won the award for the Best Speaker and Paul Topper was voted Best Table Topics Speaker and Best Evaluator.

The Greenville Toastmasters meet regularly on the second and fourth Wednesdays of each month. Guests are welcome. The Toastmasters is an

Jackie Robinson's Story On Broadway

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Drama Critic
NEW YORK (AP) — To sum up "The First," the new Broadway musical about Jackie Robinson, who in 1947 became the first black to play major league baseball: No hit.

Not much book or score, either. Opening Tuesday, this show about Robinson's heroic, pioneering baseball battle against bigotry has about as much passion, fire and complexity as your average TV movie, maybe less.

With Broadway rookie David Alan Grier as Robinson, Lonette McKee as his always-devoted wife, Rachel, and jovial David Huddleston as Branch Rickey, the Brooklyn Dodger boss who signed Robinson and broke the race barrier in the majors, it's the kind of musical that's long on simplicity and short on most everything else.

Even Leo Durocher (Trey Wilson), said to be a fiery chap, is so often pleasant here you suspect he's managing the Dodgers of Los Angeles, that hamlet of mellow, and not the wild bunch from Brooklyn.

this from him — even though he's working with two rookies, Joel Siegel who wrote the show's book (with some Charmin aid) and composer Bob Brush, for whose tunes Charmin wrote lyrics.

But what you get are forgettable tunes and a one-dimensional outing that tries to combine a classic baseball-and-bigotry story with a sweet love story and fails on both counts.

It tells the familiar Robinson tale chronologically, from his days with the all-black Kansas City Monarchs, to his controversial signing with the Dodgers and Rickey's warning it won't be easy — he'll have to suffer the abuse of bigots on and off the field in silence.

And he suffers, despised by some of his teammates (Pee Wee Reese being a briefly cited but notable exception), his baseball opponents and the white fans.

Yes, he keeps going, always encouraged by Rickey, always comforted and supported by wife Rachel. Yes, he finally triumphs, both over prejudice and his own anger and rage at white failure to immediately and totally accept him as the best, regardless of color.

But it's all terminally predictable, with no surprises, and with Grier playing the feisty Robinson with defiant pride but not much passion, save for occasional outbursts that include a near-fight he has with a redneck Dodger pitcher.

About the only time the show really lights up is at the start of Act Two, when Robinson's pals from the Monarchs come to see him play in New York, and erupt into a rollicking jump tune, "You Do-Do-Do-It Good."

But the rest is stock good-guys against stock bad guys, with Rickey backing Robinson all the way, not only because he feels it's time to break the race barrier, but for a "venal" reason — he needs Robinson if he's to have a championship season.

Reporters drift in and out, helping propel the story. So does the bland Rachel played by Miss McKee, who has Lena Horne looks but not her voice. They all could have stayed home. This is a dramatic story made incredibly tame.

True, director Charmin keeps everyone moving on David Chapman's well-executed sets, which consist not only of baseball fields, locker rooms and bleachers, but also a New York sports restaurant, Rickey's office, a train station and a house in St. Louis.

But the sets move much more briskly than the show, in which such supporting players as Court Miller as the redneck pitcher and Bob Morrissey in a tiny role as Reese are far more interesting than the three major characters.

There's a lot of rich baseball detail on stage, up to and including the small gloves of yesteryear and the play-by-play accounts Red Barber gives for this occasion. But all that authenticity is for naught.

Fans Dazzled Over Wedding On Soap

By ANDY O'CONNELL
Associated Press Writer
Soap-opera fans ducked out of work, threw parties and crowded into appliance stores to watch the star-crossed wedding of Luke Spencer and Laura Webber Baldwin on the wildly offbeat TV soap "General Hospital." From colleges to courthouses, "GH" addicts were buzzing about Tuesday's episode in ABC's top-rated soap and wondering what would happen next. It was one of the most eagerly anticipated soap opera episodes since viewers found out at the beginning of the 1980-81 season who shot J.R. Ewing on prime-time's "Dallas."

Even movie star Elizabeth Taylor watched it — she played the mysterious Helena Cassadine in a special guest appearance and lurked in the background as Luke and Laura were wed. She had told the producers she wanted to be there for the wedding.

Despite the hullabaloo throughout the nation, the characters in the soap opera were as woebegone as ever — before the wedding was over the newlyweds had been cursed and the bridegroom had leaped over a balcony in a brawl. Luke, played by Tony Geary, left the wedding angry and Laura, Genie Francis, was in tears.

The fans ate it up.

"At first I hated to tell people that I watched (GH)," said Sandy Pfau of Defiance, Ohio, who organized a week of GH-related lectures and parties this week at her Eastern Michigan University dormitory in Ypsilanti. "But now it's become acceptable to take classes in the morning and watch your soap in the afternoon."

Monday, for instance, was Anne Logan Day, in honor of the GH nurse who has maintained her chastity. There was to be a seminar on birth control.

Holden's Death Is Attributed To A Drunken Fall In His Apartment

By YARDENA ARAR
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor William Holden hit his head on a table after a drunken fall in his apartment, then lay down and bled to death, the coroner reports.

"It may seem strange to us, but the telephone was never picked up," Coroner Thomas Noguchi said Tuesday. "It seemed that Mr. Holden was not aware of the severe injury to himself."

The 63-year-old movie actor, who won an Academy Award for the 1953 film "Stalag 17" and starred recently in "Network" and "S.O.B.," was found in a pool of blood beside his bed Monday. He had been dead four or five days, Noguchi said.

Noguchi said at a news conference that Holden tripped or slipped on a bedroom throw rug, hit the sharp corner of a night table and began bleeding heavily from a 2½-inch cut on the right side of his forehead.

Noguchi said bloodstains were found on Holden's bed, along with eight to 10 bloodied tissues, indicating that Holden lay down and tried to stem the flow of blood. The coroner estimated that Holden was conscious for five to 10 minutes after falling, and during those few minutes he apparently rolled over and fell off the bed.

He died within a half-hour, Noguchi said.

"The actual death was caused by loss of blood," Noguchi said. "There were no other injuries and at present there is no sign of foul play." Officials had said Monday that Holden appeared to have died of natural causes, but a coroner's investigator who asked not to be identified said Tuesday that officials hadn't noticed the forehead gash at first because the body was partially decomposed.

Noguchi said Holden's blood fluid contained .22 percent alcohol, a level that would have required him to drink "eight to 10 shots" of liquor at once, or more over a period of time. In California, an alcohol blood level of .10 percent is enough for a drunk driving arrest.

An empty quart bottle of vodka was found in the kitchen trash can.

"It would seem that the drinking was all done in the house," said Noguchi, who spent two hours Tuesday at the oceanfront apartment in a luxury high-rise in Santa Monica.

Holden had a history of drinking problems, and a source in the coroner's office and an acquaintance of Holden's family — both of whom asked not to be identified — said the actor had been drinking heavily recently.

Noguchi said Holden was a "very private person" and speculated that he was probably "trying to handle it by himself — not even to call on the phone for help."

Holden apparently was last seen alive by another actor, Glenn Ford, Noguchi said. He declined to comment on the nature of the meeting.

No funeral plans had been announced. Holden reportedly told friends that when he died he wanted to be cremated and his ashes scattered at sea with no memorial service.

Noguchi said foul play wasn't suspected because "there was no evidence of a forced entry, nothing had been disturbed." Holden's wallet was found in his jacket.

He is survived by two sons, Peter and Scott, from his marriage to actress Brenda Marshall, which ended in divorce. The couple also raised a daughter, Virginia, from Mrs. Holden's previous marriage.

More Sophisticated Slants Mark 'Shannon' Debut

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — As television has matured, the action-adventure genre has changed slightly from Western shoot-em-ups to urban cowboys: same heroes, same battles; different hats, different horsepower.

With about a dozen modern law-and-order types on TV today, each looks for a unique hook to hang its Stetson on. There's grimy authenticity in "Hill Street Blues," smily wheelies on "CHiPs" and slimy crimey in "Strike Force."

Kevin Dobson's cop in "Shannon" on CBS tonight has found more sophisticated slants than most of the others. It's these distinctions that allow Dobson, once Telly Savalas' whipping boy as Crocker, to be more than just the "Son of Kojak."

Jack Shannon is a recently widowed detective who leaves New York to work and live in San Francisco, ostensibly so he and his son can be closer to his wife's parents.

ABC had a long-running hit with "The Streets of San Francisco," and the city's hills and bridges do make for some creative chase scenes. But "Shannon" takes the physical layout one better by focusing on a lifestyle as well.

In New York, Shannon had just one gear, forward, but he discovers in San Francisco that they like to use neutral, too. This culture shock is an effective running theme in the pilot movie, which will be the series' third episode next Wednesday.

In the pilot, Shannon meets stiff resistance from the laid-back San Francisco cops, who aren't impressed by his fire or his ways. When he says he'll have his coffee regular, they wink. When he's not satisfied with a crime collar that he doesn't think fits right, he blinks.

Tonight's episode was not available for prescreening, but last week's opener, spending much of the time in New York City, was less interesting than the pilot because it lacked the cultural conflict.

Another unique feature of "Shannon" is that he's a homemaker of sorts, raising his son as best he can between shifts and on the weekend. Dobson, a tough-talking, swaggering actor, looks a bit awkward around these scenes but some humanity and warmth come through anyway. It's a "Courtship of Eddie's Father" without laugh tracks and bikinis.

Not that there won't be women. Dobson was recently seen in a TV movie as Mike Hammer, the James Bond of the detective set, so he's bound to someday have some action on the side. But in pilot, the show finds another novel niche: Shannon becomes the first impotent TV cop, at least for one episode.

Actually, it's a very effective, tasteful scene. Shannon, still grieving for his wife, meekly offers his regrets. His bedmate is understanding to a point. "Is there no room in the almighty male ego for a night off, for time out?" she says. "I respect faithfulness. But do you think she still wants it from you?"

Faithfulness of another sort will be tested tonight in PBS' "Return to Poland." If you can last through 60 minutes of this, you are true believer in public television and pledge week can't wait for you.

"Return to Poland" is one of those clinkers that gives public television its somewhat reputation as slow-motion television. It's a ponderous and pitiful excuse for a documentary.

Marian Marzynski, a Polish Jew who escaped the Nazis, was a TV personality in Poland until 1960, when he left because of anti-Semitism. His return 12 years later could have provided some interesting insights into today's Poland. Instead, it's a series of home movies.

He hugs everybody in sight. "Was I a good kid?" he asks one former neighbor. Only Marzynski and the real PBS freaks will want to know.

'Dallas' Builds Up Momentum

EBERLY DIES — Bob Eberly, above, the popular Swing Era singer who performed with the Dorsey brothers and helped make famous such songs as "Tangerine" and "Green Eyes," died Tuesday at his daughter's home in Glen Burnie, Md. He was 65. (AP Laserphoto)

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS' "Dallas," though sluggish in reruns through the summer, continued to build momentum as the dominant program in prime time, and in the process helped thrust the network into first place in the weekly ratings race for the first time in a month.

There had been speculation "Dallas" would slip a bit this year, unable to sustain extraordinary ratings that made the show No. 1 in the 1980-81 TV year. Though ratings have been off — the series averaged 31.1 last season — "Dallas" has been first four times in the six weeks of the new season.

"Dallas" came up short only during the two weeks of baseball's World Series, broadcast by ABC.

The rating for "Dallas" in the week ending Nov. 15, figures from the A.C. Nielsen Co. showed, was 29.1. Nielsen says that means of the nation's TV-equipped homes, 29.1 percent saw at least part of the program.

Meanwhile, CBS — with five other programs in the week's Top 10 — ended ABC's three-week run as the No. 1 network in prime time. CBS' average rating for the week was 19.4 to 18.6 for ABC and 15.5 for NBC.

The networks say that means in an average prime-time minute during the week, 19.4 percent of the country's homes with television were watching CBS.

For NBC, it was the sixth straight week in last place. ABC's top-rated show for the period was the "NFL Monday Night Football" game between Buffalo and Dallas, tied for fifth place, while NBC's best, "Real People," finished in a tie for 19th.

Two movies on TV for the first time were among the week's 10 highest-rated programs, Bo Derek's "10" on CBS, in seventh place, and "Close Encounters of the Third Kind," on ABC, in ninth.

Newly introduced series continued to struggle in the ratings. ABC's "Fall Guy" was the most successful of the lot, No. 24, with CBS' "Walt Disney" 34th and "Love, Sidney," on NBC, 37th.

NBC's acclaimed "Hill Street Blues" continued to win its time period opposite "20-20" on ABC and CBS' "Jessica Novak." The NBC show finished in a tie for 27th place.

Get Addicts Off Streets

By TOM MURPHY
Associated Press Writer
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Ernie Handy stumbled along a dirty sidewalk in San Francisco's South of Market district, his pants supported precariously by a piece of string. To the untrained eye, he looked like many of the unshaven men sipping wine nearby.

But Steve Bosshard and Joe Dutto didn't think Handy was drinking. They stopped him and discovered he was holding what police lab tests later showed was a marijuana cigarette and two balloons of heroin.

Bosshard and Dutto are two of 85 San Francisco police officers trained for a program that is drawing raves from police and cries of "sham" from critics.

The program is called 11-5-50 after section 11550 of the state Health and Safety Code which requires that anyone convicted of being under the influence of heroin spend at least 90 days in county jail.

It was started in an attempt to cut drug-related crime, like shoplifting and burglary.

Narcotics police like Bosshard and Dutto like the law because it leaves judges no discretion in sentencing heroin users. The court can't reduce the sentence or grant probation. The guilty go to jail, and off the streets, for the full 90 days.

To take advantage of the law, officers are trained to spot subtle signs of drug use they otherwise might miss: dilated pupils, well-hidden needle marks, slow reactions.

Critics complain police are wasting their time chasing small-time users. And they claim narcotics officers frequently violate the rights of those arrested.

"The whole program is a sham," says Pete Keane, chief attorney for the public defender's office. "It allows a police officer to make a clinical judgment for which he is not qualified."

Keane calls the program "an expensive bit of frill the police engage in that is meant more as public show than substantive law enforcement."

But police counter that the burglary rate fell sharply in the city's seedy Tenderloin area when six officers made 253 narcotics arrests during a six-week trial program in 1979.

However, the trained officers have made only 83 arrests since June when the program was revived.

Bosshard said other priority items keep many trained officers from participating in the program, and those who are regularly assigned often lack enthusiasm, Bosshard said.

"Out of the 85 officers, I would bet 70 of them have never done an 11550," said Bosshard.

After the 1979 roundup, public defenders challenged the little-used 1972 law in court, and lost. Keane still believes the law is unconstitutional.

"Never before in the area of criminal inquiry have police been given such a broad power to sweep ordinary citizens off the streets," he said.

Keane charges police use the program to inflate arrest figures, that investigators perjure themselves to justify arrests and that the same small-time heroin users are arrested over and over again.

Bosshard agrees that the same people often are arrested several times, but argues it is hard to find big heroin dealers without information from their customers.

Before spotting Handy, Bosshard and Dutto drove along the city's toughest streets with this reporter for almost two hours, stopping people along the way.

One man, who the two narcotics officers said was a former user of the stimulant ritalin, stood in front of a liquor store with $8 in his hand. Bosshard joked with the man, noting $8 was the price of ritalin. But Bosshard and Dutto drove off because the man showed no sign of current drug use.

A block away, Bosshard waved to a man named Richard, who had done time for pharmacy robberies and for using amphetamines. Richard ran up to the officers, voluntarily rolling up his sleeves so they could check for "tracks." Bosshard determined Richard was "clean."

The detectives saw a paroled heroin user swagging down the street. Bosshard and the parolee spoke as the search went on. The detectives ultimately found nothing more suspicious than an empty wine bottle and let the man go.

When the officers ran into Handy, the three men greeted each other like old friends. They joked about the past and caught up on news about mutual acquaintances. Bosshard noted Handy was holding something and took away the crumpled, hand-rolled cigarette.

Both officers noted Handy's pupils were "screwed down," and Bosshard told him to roll up his sleeves. Handy, 54, complained about lower back pain as Bosshard checked Handy's tattoos for fresh needle marks.

Handy denied recent use of drugs, but Bosshard pressed on, finally finding the pink and blue balloons clutched in his hands. Handy was arrested, later pleaded guilty and was sentenced to a year in prison.

Seeks Better Indian Life

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — When he was growing up on an Apache reservation in New Mexico, Javier Zertuche was deeply influenced by the poverty, alcoholism and illiteracy that surrounded him.

He decided then, as a student at the reservation school run by the Bureau of Indian Affairs, that he could do more for his people "on the outside looking in, rather than on the inside looking out."

For the past 18 years, Zertuche has traveled the United States and abroad pursuing his quest for better living conditions for native Americans, a term he prefers to American Indians.

Since settling in Annapolis in 1978, Zertuche has chanced onto a new career in the movies which he hopes will give him yet another way to help his people.

His career as an actor began in classic Hollywood fashion, except that the setting was the Baltimore Harbor, when Zertuche was approached by a young woman who wanted to take his photograph because she liked his features.

Two weeks later, he got a telephone call from New York City asking him to read for Lee Strasberg, director of Actor's Studio. The woman who had photographed him turned out to be the wife of film director Michael Wadleigh. She was on a talent search for his film, "Wolfen."

Zertuche got the part, and although he said most of his scenes were cut from the movie, he did appear in several scenes with Albert Finney, star of "Wolfen."

That experience led to his current association with a production crew trying to buy the rights for Robert Redford to make a movie about Leonard Peltier, an American Indian who is in jail on charges of killing two FBI agents on Pine Ridge Reservation in Wounded Knee, S.D.

Zertuche has accepted the position of technical adviser on Indian matters.

"I, like so many Indians, am struggling and am happy to take this new opportunity. I feel the only way we can accomplish anything is through the mass media," he said.

Zertuche and his wife, Karen Samaras, have lived in Annapolis since 1978 with their two small children, Sienna Blue Water and Autumn Wolf. He says his children are "Apachegreeks, half Apache and half Greek."

Prisons See Brotherhood

ATLANTA (AP) — The Aryan Brotherhood, a white-supremacist group which began in California prisons and spread to the federal prison system, allows only a hand-picked few to join its ranks and allows no one to leave them.

"Kill to get in and die to get out" is its motto. The public got a rare glimpse at the strange subculture of federal prisons with the murder trial of 33-year-old Barry Mills, who was convicted in U.S. District Court on Friday in the death of John Sherman Marzloff on May 20, 1979. Marzloff was hacked to death.

Federal authorities say the Aryan Brotherhood, of which Mills is a reputed leader, may have as many as 300 members in federal and state prisons and may be responsible for a number of slayings in federal penitentiaries.

Mills acted as his own attorney during the two-week trial, presenting himself as a soft-spoken, intense young man fighting serious charges. U.S. District Judge Orinda Evans complimented him several times on his knowledge of the law.

But Assistant U.S. Attorney Richard Hendrix called Mills a "cunning, calculating killer who has conducted a cunning, calculated defense." Witnesses said Mills is "the Baron," a ruthless inmate who in 1979 acted as one of three "commissioners" who decided who entered the Brotherhood, who would be killed and who would do the killing.

Killing is an integral part of gang membership, according to a federal inmate who prepared a detailed report on the Aryan Brotherhood for the government during the Mills trial.

"Membership is for life," the inmate wrote. "There is no such thing as a person who used to be in the AB unless he is dead."

Although it is no longer policy, he said, a new AB member once had to "make his bones" or kill to become a member. "They felt that by having a new member kill to get in, it would create a lasting bond to the AB and also prove that he had what it takes to be a member," the prisoner wrote.

According to the testimony, Marzloff's undoing began when he stole some heroin from another of the group's "commissioners" at the federal prison in Marion, Ill.

Although he requested and received a transfer to Atlanta because he felt his life was endangered at Marion, government witnesses said the Atlanta prison was home to as many as a dozen Brotherhood members, including Mills.

The Illinois Brotherhood commissioner sent word to Mills to kill Marzloff. And when another "commissioner" asked that Marzloff be killed, "who was the natural killer but his close friend and fellow commissioner of the brotherhood, Barry Mills?" Assistant U.S. Attorney Richard Hendrix said in his closing arguments.

During a baseball game in the prison yard, Marzloff was lured into a recreation equipment shack by the promise of heroin, according to testimony.

When he was found, witnesses said, Marzloff looked as if someone had tried to cut his head off. One stab wound in his head had fractured his skull, according to the testimony.

Marzloff's parents, from Florida, were among those who heard a doctor testify that any one of six stab wounds would have been sufficient to kill their son. But government witnesses said the killer was sending a message to other inmates — Marzloff died for a reason.

All American inmates have been transferred from the Atlanta Penitentiary to make room for the 1,800 Cubans who were held in custody by the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service after the Cuban boatlift last year.

But penitentiary spokesman Bill Noonan said prison officials were aware of the Brotherhood presence at the Atlanta institution when the institution held some of the country's most dangerous criminals.

"This is something that had been going on for a while. We got some (AB members) in Atlanta, including Mills and a couple of other people — we were aware of who they were," he said. "We just sort of kept our eye on them, knowing where they were, what they were doing."

With prison gang activity, "you deal with most of these (incidents) one case at a time," but prison officials "don't let them (the members) congregate." Instead, "move them around and keep track of them," Noonan said.

Judge Evans said she will sentence Mills next month, but a government official said the sentence will not solve the problem of prison gangs.

"Prosecutions like this one are frustrating," said the official, who asked not to be identified. "Even if we convict (Mills), all we're doing is keeping him off the streets a few more years, but he doesn't really want to get out anyway. In prison, he's a big shot. Outside, he's nobody."

Eiffel Tower Losing Weight

By JEFFREY ULBRICH
Associated Press Writer
PARIS (AP) — The Grande Dame of Paris is losing weight.

Eight months after workmen closed off the first stage of the massive, 1,052-foot Eiffel Tower and began ripping up the concrete floor, the monument appears well on its way to shedding the 1,000 tons prescribed by the experts.

The tower's new owners — a management company controlled by the City of Paris — felt that 11,000 tons was far too much to be supported by her 92-year-old steel legs, and an engineering study recommended trimming it by 10 percent.

The engineers also found that some of the tower's steel girders that had been enclosed by platform structures needed replacing or shoring up, particularly the main beams connecting the first stage to the four pillars.

To handle the weight problem, the concrete floor on the first platform is being replaced with steel plates. The old restaurant and bar was torn down and a more svelte eating establishment, an Eiffel Museum and a reception hall will be built.

Other scheduled work in the 190 million franc ($34.5 million), 2 1/2-year project includes a renovation of the second platform and replacing four hydraulic elevators with electric ones.

The second and third platforms of the tower the poet Guillaume Apollinaire described as the "shepherdess of the clouds" have remained open during the first phase of the work. When renovation begins on the second stage next year, it will be closed off one part at a time, permitting visits to continue.

Bernard Rocher, president of the Eiffel Tower management company, said the work was right on schedule. The first floor will be reopened in May and the entire project will be completed by mid-summer 1983.

One of the world's most famous tourist attractions, built for the Paris exhibition of 1889, the Eiffel Tower welcomes about 3.5 million visitors a year.

More than 52 tons of gray-brown paint, enough to cover a surface of 62 acres, is being applied in a new paint job. And the entire electrical system, including about 18.6 miles of cable, is being replaced.

No major defects have been found in the tower, though officials admit she was ready for an overhaul.

"It's a one-of-a-kind job," said Rocher, referring to the complexity of the project and the stringent safety measures being taken to protect both the workers climbing through the structure and the thousands of tourists who still flock to the site.

'Freeway Cowboy' Is Called To Round Up Strays On Highways

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Although he has his own ranch, Bill Ruehle is more at home on the highway than on the range.

The tall and lanky former rodeo performer is known as the "Freeway Cowboy" because he's called in to round up strays whenever a cattle truck takes a spill on the concrete trails of Southern California.

He was at it again last Monday on the Golden State Freeway north of Los Angeles after he was called by a meat packer.

Decked out in his Tony Lama cowboy boots, weathered straw hat and spurs, Ruehle rode his old quarterhorse Big Bad Dude down the freeway to help catch some of the 21 steers that got loose when a semi-trailer overturned.

"It was horrifying," said Ruehle, 51, who arrived three hours after the accident as California Highway Patrol officers prepared to shoot the 15 or 16 steers which had run into bushes along the road.

Animal Control District Supervisor Gary Olsen feared the animals would bolt back on the road and cause an accident. His worries were realized Sunday when a lone steer wandered onto the freeway and caused a two-vehicle accident.

No one hurt except the slaughtered steer, which officials speculate was one of those missed in last week's roundup.

Ruehle caught two steers on the freeway, put them in his trailer and was roping a third, "when a CHP officer came up and told me to get off the freeway or he would arrest me." "Then he took charge of the steer I had roped and had it shot, which wasn't necessary at all," said Ruehle, who gets $150 a head.

Ruehle, well-known for his talent among meat packing companies, said he's earned more than $1 million roping cattle and horses over the last 30 years. His business card lists his occupation as "Wild Cow Catchin'."

One of the things he likes best about freeway roping is the attention from motorists.

"People usually love to gawk," he said. "And I love it — it really gets my adrenaline pumping."

The son of a South Dakota rancher, Ruehle came to California for the rodeo circuit in the 1940s. He's since raised cattle on 34 leased ranges, rescued about

Nevertheless, he still wonders whether he chose the right occupation.

"On nights when the wind is cold, sometimes I wish I was a postman, going home every night to my wife and my little house with a white picket fence," Ruehle said.

And he bemoans what he calls the imminent death of Southern California's cattle industry due to increasing beef imports and development of grazing land.

"Everything changes," he said. "What's left of the range is always shrinking. Pretty soon, I won't be picking up any more cattle off the freeway, either, because Los Angeles slaughterhouses are going out of business."

"Who would have thought that saving WINN-DIXIE Register Tapes could be so rewarding?"

Economy Is Major Risk For Sudan

By LISETTE BALOUNY
Associated Press Writer
KHARTOUM, Sudan (AP) — President Gaafar Nimeiri has imposed severe measures to improve Sudan's faltering economy, which diplomats say poses a greater danger than Libya to his pro-Western government.

Merchants selling food above established prices can be fined or flogged after trials by price courts set up in tents in Khartoum's markets.

The vulnerability of Africa's largest nation — slightly larger in area than Western Europe — has led to increased military and economic commitments from the United States. The commitment on military aid came after the assassination Oct. 6 of President Anwar Sadat of Egypt, an ally of Sudan, and Nimeiri's contention that Libya was bracing for an attack.

"This country hurts in so many ways it is hard to know where to start," said one Western diplomat, speaking privately and asking not to be identified. "The people are warm by nature and infinitely patient, but even that is taxed when they line up for hours for bread and other necessities. Privation breeds unrest."

Among the main difficulties facing Sudan:

- Inflation estimated at 50 percent.

- A $700 million gap between imports and exports. Imports cost almost three times as much as Sudan earns from exports.

- A $1.5 billion debt to Western bankers and nations.

- A fall-off in the production of cotton, Sudan's main cash crop, from 747,000 bales in 1978-79 to 460,000 last season.

- The burden of more than 500,000 refugees from Sudan's troubled neighbors, including Ethiopia, Uganda and Chad.

- Poor food and commodity distribution because the country has only about 1,000 miles of paved roads.

Nimeiri, concerned over what he termed a "gravely deteriorating" economic situation, fired his Cabinet ministers Nov. 9, accusing them of inefficiency or allowing the budget deficit to triple over four years.

He announced a 19-point plan to redress the ills, including devaluation of the Sudanese pound, an immediate end of the government subsidy on oil imports and a gradually lifting of subsidies on basic commodities such as sugar, wheat and wheat flour. The moves were bound to be unpopular among the Sudanese who consume large quantities of heavily sweetened tea and use the wheat in many national dishes.

The International Monetary Fund, a specialized agency of the United Nations, had urged the removal of the subsidies in order for Sudan to qualify for IMF financial help.

Nimeiri, a military man who has survived about a dozen coup attempts in 12 years, has accused Libya of attempting to overthrow his regime by sending saboteurs to buy up food staples, hoping the resulting shortages will lead to anti-government riots.

This autumn, the government rounded up more than 10,000 "vagrants and illegal aliens" in the capital and after questioning them, jailed 3,000 on charges of working to destabilize the regime. About 2,260 unlicensed guns also were seized, many of them supplied by Libya, officials claimed.

In addition to the arrests, the government set up the price courts in the markets. Merchants and customers alike are fined or flogged for selling or buying above government prices. One offender, for instance, received five lashes for selling a lime at the equivalent of five cents instead of two.

"The fines and floggings have been a sharp lesson to merchants; violations have decreased," said police Maj. Awad Mustaf, who supervises Khartoum's North Market. "We have not done this before, but it is in the public interest."

Center Has Special Care For Children

By BOB MIMS
Associated Press Writer
SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — The tiny pilgrims come from Guatemala, Korea and other distant places, seeking modern-day medical miracles not available in their own countries.

For two years, Heal the Children, a non-profit network of doctors, hospitals, clinics and foster families, has provided free treatment to more than 130 of the world's neediest youngsters.

Based in Spokane, the organization calls upon 40 doctors and 27 hospitals in 15 states to donate thousands of dollars in services. Others members of the organization help contribute the $600 to $1,000 needed to fly each child to such hospitals as Children's Orthopedic in Seattle, the Deborah Heart and Lung Foundation in Brownsmill, N.J., and Primary Children's Hospital in Salt Lake City.

The program was started two years ago following the death of a young Korean girl who was the adopted daughter of Chris Embleton, now executive director of the program.

She died of a staph infection that spread to her heart. She had lived with Mrs. Embleton and her husband, Gary, for only three months.

"Loi Jo brought so much to our lives that when she died we thought we could either destroy that with our grief, or do something to preserve that by helping other children," Mrs. Embleton said.

Their chance came when Naomi Bronstein, a Canadian social worker in Guatemala, told the Embletons about a 3-year-old girl given three weeks to live unless she underwent heart surgery.

Working the telephone, the Embletons pleaded for help that could save the girl's life.

"After three days, we finally arranged it with Children's Orthopedic in Seattle. She made it. Today, she's bright and beautiful," Mrs. Embleton said.

About half the organization's referrals come from Casa Canada, a home for abandoned children run by Ms. Bronstein in Guatemala City.

Dr. Lance Olson, a Spokane eye surgeon, has been with Heal the Children almost from the beginning. He said that in the past two years, he has evaluated or treated a dozen foreign-born patients.

Normally, his work costs thousands of dollars. For example, a cornea transplant, including hospitalization, comes to $3,200, he said.

"It's a satisfying thing for me, the fact that I'm able to help," he said. "Here, most people who really need medical help can get it. But in some foreign countries, you're either blind, or you're not."

"There's no other way for a lot of these children. They don't have any other options," he said.

There is no shortage of patients for Olson and the other doctors. Heal the Children has a waiting list of 500 Korean children who need heart surgery.

Nationwide, 100 volunteer foster families give homes to the children for as long as their treatment lasts. It can be a few weeks, but more often months or even years.

Foster families run an emotional risk. Nine children have died while being helped by Heal the Children, Mrs. Embleton said.

"It's very difficult when a child dies," she said. "You've grown to love that child as your own, and it's hard to put them back on the plane."

But the risk is taken, and doors are opened.

Loren and Paula Sperry of Spokane received a severely burned 2-year-old girl from Guatemala.

"We got kind of attached to Veronica," the 35-year-old sheriff's detective said. "Her legs were really badly burned. The mother had a pit where she burned garbage, and Veronica fell in."

In three operations since March, doctors have made progress in repairing burn damage on the girl's legs. "She can walk now, where she couldn't when she came up," Sperry said.

"She's really filled our hearts. It won't be easy to let her go," he said.

WE WILL BE CLOSED THANKSGIVING DAY, THURSDAY NOV. 26TH. WE WILL OPEN REGULAR HOURS ON FRIDAY NOV. 27TH.

Labor Party Endangered

By MAUREEN JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP) — Born amid the political stirrings of labor unions at the turn of the century, Britain's Labor Party brought the nation free health care and social security, taxed the rich heavily and nationalized major industries.

Eighty years later, the flag of British socialism is in tatters.

Basic to the problem are the sharp differences between left-wingers and moderates over the direction of the party.

Moderate members say the party risks annihilation at the 1984 election because of a bid by radicals to take over the onetime movement of the working class — political home of generations of left-wing intellectuals and winner of four of the last six general elections.

Some see Labor's demoralization and disintegration since its May, 1979, defeat by Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's Conservatives as so rapid, they doubt it will survive the 1980s as a significant political force.

The centrist alliance of the eight-month-old Social Democratic Party and small Liberal Party is riding high in opinion polls, picking up a steady trickle of Labor defectors and hoping to replace Labor as the party of the left.

Michael Foot, 68, the silvery-haired intellectual who 12 months ago took over the Labor leadership, continues to blame his party's parlous state on internal fighting — which he appears incapable of stopping.

"A deeply frustrating and wasted year, and it is largely our own fault," was Foot's commentary on his first anniversary.

Labor has reaped no benefit from the increasing unpopularity of Mrs. Thatcher's right-wing administration. In October, when the SDP-Liberal alliance won its first parliamentary victory in a former Conservative district, Labor was driven into third place.

Critics accuse Foot of ineffectual leadership — a mixture of agonizing, pleading for unity, and "appeasement" of the party's hard left led by former Energy Secretary Tony Benn.

Benn narrowly lost the deputy leadership at Labor's annual conference in September but is fighting back.

Foot, fearing even worse trouble from the left, dares not intervene. Citing party unity, he blocked a moderate bid this month to oust Benn as head of Labor's home policy committee.

Physician A Diplomat

Dr. Donald C. Brown of Greenville has been named a diplomate of the American Board of Family Practice (ABFP) as a result of passing a certification examination offered by the ABFP. He is now certified in the medical specialty of family practice.

The two-day written examination is designed to prove the candidate's ability in the areas of internal medicine, surgery, obstetrics, gynecology, pediatrics, psychiatry and community medicine.

To qualify for the examination a physician must have successfully completed three years of residency training in family practice. There are some 385 such training programs in teaching hospitals and university medical centers across the United States.

ABFP diplomates also must continue to show proof of competence in the field of comprehensive, continuing care of the family by being recertified every six years.

The latest group of diplomates brings the total number to more than 26,000. Most are members of the Academy of Family Physicians, the national association of family doctors. The academy was the first national M.D. group to require members to take continuing medical study, and was chiefly responsible for securing specialty status for family practice.

Benn, back as a senior party spokesman in the House of Commons, plunged Labor into a new round of in-fighting days after the new Parliament session began. He declared Labor will seize back, without compensation, the North Sea oil and gas holdings which the Conservatives are selling off.

Some analysts see the reason for Labor's decline and the rise of the SDP-Liberal alliance as more complex than Labor's internal conflict.

They cite a breakdown of political loyalties by class, voter weariness with the failure of successive Conservative and Labor administrations to solve Britain's economic ills, and a suspicion that socialism doesn't work.

"Nowhere has nationalized fuel or transport, steel or car production, state education, medical care or pensions, council (state-subsidized) housing or refuse collection, fulfilled its promises," argues Arthur Seldon, adviser to the independently financed Institute of Economic Affairs.

Former Labor legislator David Marquand, now in the SDP, and biographer of Labor's first prime minister, Ramsey MacDonald, wrote recently:

"Socialism has fizzled out (since the 1930s). Labor still sings the old class tunes... Unfortunately the audience has disappeared."

Whatever the reasons, Labor's share of the vote has been falling for 35 years since its sweeping election win in 1945, taking 48 percent of the popular vote, to 37 percent in May 1979.

The outlook is much grimmer now. Labor defectors have formed the SDP and, in alliance with the Liberals, are consistently ahead of both Labor and the Conservatives in public opinion polls.

In the two latest surveys, the Labor vote was shown as 24 percent — its lowest post-war rating — and 31 percent.

Down to 257 members in the 635-member House of Commons, Labor has lost 21 defectors to the SDP this year, including 6 since the September party conference, compared with only one Conservative defector.

Some analysts expect that as many as a dozen more Labor legislators will quit in the next year if Foot fails to thwart the left, or if they are replaced as Labor candidates by left-wingers chosen at local party level. Party chapters are now empowered to select candidates every three years.

Three party chapters have so far chosen hardline left-wingers to run next time in place of sitting moderates.

Benn argues that the Labor left represents "a renewal of faith and belief in socialism" but to moderates it means suicide.

Labor finance spokesman Peter Shore, often mentioned as a replacement for Foot, says Labor faces a "truly formidable challenge" from the SDP.

"If we fail now to end the wretched chapter in our affairs that began in May 1979, we shall betray generations of men and women who created the Labor Party."

Second Biggest Crop In Florida

MIAMI (AP) — Next to oranges, marijuana may be the second-biggest money maker in Florida's agricultural industry, the state estimates.

At least 155 marijuana fields, some booby-trapped with buried spikes or live rattlesnakes, were found during aerial surveillance June 1, state Department of Law Enforcement officials say.

The agency seized enough plants to produce more than 144,000 pounds of marijuana, worth more than $43 million. And agents admit they probably have found only 10 percent of the marijuana in the state. Sales of oranges amount to $764 million a year.

Clothing Designed Especially For The Handicapped

By DRUSIE MENAKER
Associated Press Writer
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The delicately patterned silk velvet pants draping loosely from hip to ankle are straight from the sketchbook of a high-fashion designer. They also cover leg braces perfectly.

The scripted custom line label reads "Design Within Limits," and describes the work of Delores Quinn, a Drexel University professor who has opened a studio that designs clothes for the handicapped.

"People with handicaps go to parties, they get married... They need fancy clothes," said Ms. Quinn.

But functional clothes for the handicapped, let alone chic fashions, are scarce on department store racks, she said.

For Bernice Jordan, of Philadelphia, wearing a leg brace has meant searching for pants wide enough to accommodate the bulky metal device.

"You can buy and you can buy, but it doesn't matter, it won't fit right," Ms. Jordan said.

"Clothes should work better, then they should look terrific," said Ms. Quinn. "All of us should have choices that work for us."

So the designer has devised high-fashion patterns without the buttons that confound the arthritic, the bulk that discomforts the wheelchair-bound and the "clinical look" that she said often confronts the handicapped.

To accommodate leg braces, she designed loose fitting trousers with invisible inseam zippers. For the paralyzed, Ms. Quinn replaced buttons with Velcro strips, magnets or stylish hooks.

"I really want you to like it, and your husband, and your kids, because then the handicapped will like it," Ms. Quinn told a reporter. "They're not going to like it if it is all that different."

The designs are currently made to order for individual clients. But Bonnie Gelman, director of the Philadelphia Mayor's Office for the Handicapped, said the disabled would welcome a chance to purchase such items in stores.

"People are not aware of what a market there is now," said Ms. Gelman, who is confined to a wheelchair and finds the popular straight, tight skirts riding up past her knees.

"Those of us who were disabled were out of the mainstream," she said. "We weren't out there doing and so if you had a housedress, it did. Now we need the same kind of flexibility in clothing that (non-disabled) people need."

Ms. Quinn works in a design studio at Drexel that is funded by the National Endowment for the Arts and several foundations. The studio is staffed by her design students.

For four years she has taught a course, titled "Design Within Limits," that is intended to force novice designers to cope with the lack of time, money and best materials, she said.

Adding physical limitations to the course description was an afterthought, but one that has proved "a fantastically interesting problem" for students, Ms. Quinn said. "They were so interested in it, they saw it as a real problem."

Students simulate the dressing problems of the handicapped — binding their legs or attempting to dress with only one arm — to prove their designs work.

Among their designs is a wedding gown for wheelchair brides. It is long in the front to cover the legs but cut close in the back so it doesn't catch in the spokes.

Another design is a tissue-thin raincoat slit from the midback to the hem so it's not bulky when sitting in a wheelchair.

Traditionally placed side pants' pockets aren't accessible to the wheelchair bound, but removable ones that snap onto the waistband are better.

Pants with vertical zippers from waistband to mid-thigh give patients with surgical appliances, such as catheters, easy access with no need to undress.

Pants that convert to shorts with horizontal zippers at the thigh make fitting a prostheses easier for an amputee.

Trousers with decorative expandable slats at the knees and below the back

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Dyslexia Is a Learning Disability

Many readers write to inquire about dyslexia. Much confusion seems to exist about it in the minds of the laity.

Dyslexia is a neurological disorder which makes it difficult to acquire language skills. The word originates from the Greek and essentially means having difficulty with words.

Dyslexia is not a disease, but a disability in learning. Often it is recognized early when a child begins having problems with writing, reading and spelling. It is usually first diagnosed when a child is approaching the high school level. Usually the child is working below the potential that he or she has. Far too often the condition is unrecognized and untreated. Parents and teachers frequently overlook this condition and unfortunately accept the idea that the child is "slow and incapable."

The condition was first recognized by a British eye surgeon about 100 years ago. Its exact cause is unknown. Evidence points to the fact that it is a combination of biochemical, genetic and physiological factors. Strangely, the condition affects bright children, usually boys. It is estimated that 10 percent of all boys and three percent of all girls entering school each year have a degree of dyslexia, which interferes with their scholastic advancement and accomplishment.

Before any child is accused or even condemned to being called "a slow member of the class community," the possibility of dyslexia must be eliminated.

There now are a number of recognized tests which can eliminate other causes for learning impairment. Dyslexia can be pinpointed if once it is suspected of being responsible for a child's learning inability.

Although dyslexia cannot be cured, children can be taught to compensate for the condition and to re-establish new learning habits.

If dyslexia goes untreated, there can be disastrous effects on the learning program and the total destiny of the growing child.

Recently a group of researchers at the Johns Hopkins Medical School in Baltimore did a precise study of dyslexic students who were trained at the Gow School in South Wales, N.Y.

The Gow School, first founded in 1926, is the nation's oldest preparatory school for dyslexic boys. Because of its long history and extensive records, it provided a valuable resource for the research team at Johns Hopkins.

This team of scientific investigators found that early failures associated with dyslexia can be overcome for a substantial number of students. Many who completed their education at the Gow School were able to go to college and obtain degrees.

Many were able to hold management positions as bankers, stock brokers, real estate and insurance agents. Some became professionals in science, law and education.

It is gratifying to know that so many dyslexic boys and girls can, with proper training, be integrated into society as productive, serviceable human beings.

Spelling Has The Experts' Attention

By MIKE FEINSILBER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A group of bureaucrats sat around a conference table and debated about Libyan strongman Moammar Khadafy. Not the man, but the spelling.

And about voluntarism. Or is it volunteerism?

And about medflies. Are they med flies?

And about a school in Texas — Is it Texas A. & M.? Or, as the Aggies prefer, Texas A&M?

And about the abbreviation of fiscal year 1981. Is it F.Y., or f.y., or FY or fy. If it begins a sentence, is it F.y.?

These issues came before the seven-member Style Board of the Government Printing Office, whose job is to revise the government's style manual, telling how the government spells, abbreviates, punctuates and italicizes the English language.

Style is necessary, chairman Robert McArtor said, for "consistency, speed and economy." Most publications have stylebooks so they will speak with uniformity. The government has issued one since 1898, but the current edition is eight years old.

Khadafy is a classic case. In translating his first name from Arabic, the White House uses an apostrophe — making it Mu'ammar — but the State Department doesn't, McArtor said. The style board must hand down a ruling.

McArtor found the Libyan leader's name spelled any number of ways: Qaddafi, Qudafi, Qadoaf, Gaddafi, Gadhaifi, Kaddafi and Khadafy.

It is Gaddafi in Time magazine, but Kaddafi in Newsweek. The Associated Press spells it Khadafy.

"The only thing people agree on is that he is a colonel," said McArtor. "I'm just about convinced you can't misspell his name."

Monday's meeting was a warmup, to introduce the board to its task, a chore expected to continue into 1982.

The only decisions reached were to go with voluntarism — "Volunteerism just looks untidy," McArtor said; to grant Texas A&M its wish and drop the periods — leaving unanswered the question of what to do with other A&M's; and to spell the first name of the prime minister of Israel as Menahem — as the White House does, despite others' spelling it Menachem.

"We have a procedure," McArtor explained, "called the cooling-off period. We let some of these simmer for a while."

He brought up the people of Utah. He saw a headline in a Utah newspaper that said "Utahns Vote for Reagan."

"We use Utahans," he recalled, so he wrote the editor of the paper.

The editor replied, with some testiness, McArtor reported, that the folks there had called themselves Utahns for a long time and weren't about to let Washington dictate a change.

McArtor raised the white flag. "I'm not going to start a war about it," he told his board.

"We're not here to create change, just reflect it," he said.

He recalled the great past flap over Ms. as a form of address for all women, married and single.

The board had banned it on three grounds: It had no foreign counterpart, no established pronunciation and no plural.

Word leaked out and many a Ms. complained. The board backed down. Ms. is OK now.

Capitalization is a big problem, McArtor said, and the manual bears him out.

Great Basin, Great Beyond, Great Divide, Great Father, Great Lakes, Great Plains and Great Rebellion already have won the capitalization war.

Now, McArtor said, everybody who runs a program wants it to be a Program.

He had a call from a bureaucrat who said, "Look, the Congress just appropriated $40 million for my program. Who are you to say it shouldn't get a capital letter?"

Volunteered board member Richard Hines: "President Reagan's helping us out there. He's eliminating some of these programs."

Cameras On Watch For City Crime

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Many merchants and residents pressing the authorities to do something about a crime boom say police television cameras being installed on the streets are brotherly — not "Big Brother."

"When we were laying out locations, merchants came and said, 'Please put a camera in front of my store,'" said police Maj. Fred Woolridge, who is in charge of the $230,000 federal project.

A command post with monitors staffed by police and volunteers is being set up to watch over this resort city's business district and fight the staggering rise in crime. It is connected by phone to the police.

Miami — just across Biscayne Bay from here — is one of the six Florida cities on the FBI's latest top 10 list of high-crime cities.

Workers last week began putting 112 camera boxes atop 25-foot-high traffic signal posts. Some of the boxes will be empty. The police will not say how many operating cameras there will be.

Some merchants and residents, many of them elderly and frightened, are pleading for relief and "are demanding that they be turned on now," Woolridge said.

The cameras will stand watch around the clock on a three-mile stretch of road where tourists shoppers are preyed upon.

The setup "preys on the paranoia of the criminal," Woolridge said. "He's not really sure where he stands, whether he's being watched, or he isn't."

Woolridge said he hasn't heard one complaint and says any comparisons with George Orwell's novel "1984" don't wash.

"In '1984,' we are talking about an oppressive government watching," he said. "In this case, the public is demanding a relief from the oppression of criminals."

"Twenty years ago, I'd have been run off the Beach for trying something like this."

"In '1984,' the government used cameras to monitor people in their homes.

Bennett Brummer, public defender for the 11th Judicial Circuit, including Miami and Miami Beach, said the cameras apparently are legal but "the question is what impact it will have on the freedom that we cherish in this society."

"It may be necessary, like being searched before going on an airplane or searched before going into a federal building. That's not the kind of freedom we're used to," Brummer said.

However, Bruce Winick, a University of Miami law professor who has worked with the American Civil Liberties Union, said he does not think the project violates civil liberties.

"I suppose symbolically it might smack of '1984,' but to my mind, the offensive aspect of that was that it occurred in the home. I suppose if this is a public street, there wouldn't be anything more wrong with it than other law-enforcement tactics," he said Sunday.

The program originally was to begin last summer but was delayed when Miami Beach City Attorney John Ritter expressed fears it might be an invasion of privacy. This month, he received an opinion from state Attorney General Jim Smith that the cameras would not violate privacy laws and installation began.

"We had some strong feelings in my office," Ritter said. "We asked ourselves if we were sanctioning government intrusion into people's privacy."

Smith said the cameras would see nothing more private than would be seen by a citizen on the sidewalk. The public wants desperately to "be served by such an intrusion," Smith ruled.

Store manager Olga Perez said on that her block, "We get 10 shoplifters a day."

"We run after them, but I hope the cameras can help catch them. I really think we need something that lets thieves know someone is watching them."

Erma Shoneberg, 72, said police "can watch me all they want... what I want them to see is the kook stealing my pocketbook."

Acid Rain Affects Lakes And Rivers, But Not All Of Them

By GEORGE WEINTRAUB
National Geographic News Service

WASHINGTON — The infuriating thing about acid rain is this: nobody is sure about its effects. There are lots of ideas, but few are guaranteed to hold up.

Does acid rain affect lakes and rivers? Certainly, the scientists answer, some of them. But not all.

Does it threaten forests and cropland? Probably, the scientists say, but they aren't sure.

Fossil Fuel Product

How do the acidic substances get into the air? Most likely, from the burning of coal, oil and natural gas, which releases sulfur dioxide and nitrogen oxides into the air. There they circulate with great air masses that form our weather systems.

But scientists aren't sure what happens then to airborne acid, so it is impossible to "prove" that acid rain in New York was caused by smokestacks in Ohio.

Does it affect animals? Scientists are pretty sure it is harmful to fish and amphibians indigenous to acidified waters. But how about mammals? Maybe, some say; but they don't know, and haven't been able to prove it.

And what about mankind? Are we in any danger from acid deposition? Again, some scientists think so, others say no, and nobody has proved anything conclusively.

There are some things that scientists do know about acid rain, Anne LaBastille reports in the November National Geographic, and few of them are reassuring.

Among the certainties is the fact that 6 percent of all the ponds and lakes in the Adirondack Mountains of New York have no fish because of the high acidic content of their waters. The acidity has increased substantially in the past few decades, as burning of fossil fuels has increased.

International Problem
The problem is not unique to the eastern United States. According to one chemist in Sweden, an estimated 20,000 of the country's 100,000 lakes are either fishless or about to become so.

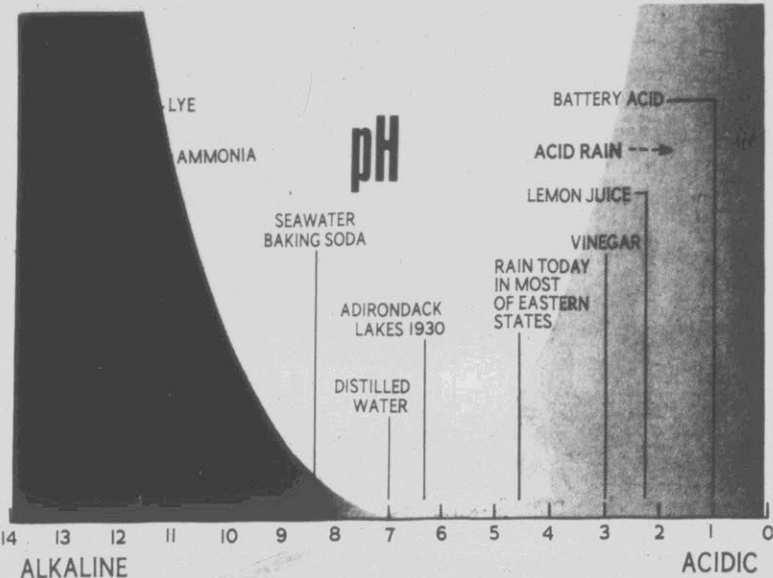

The problem is thought to be the discharge that drifts northward from Europe's industrial belt.

Scientists have been working hard to find out more about acid rain, its causes and its effects. In the late 1970s, a nationwide network of 84 monitoring stations was set up to analyze samples of rain, snow, and dry fallout from 32 states. A similar group is monitoring samples from 55 sites in Canada.

Some areas of the eastern U.S. and southeastern Canada are receiving rainfall as acidic as vinegar, the studies show.

But what this means, what its consequences are, and what should be done about it — these are questions that have not been definitely answered.

blame loose standards in some Midwestern states for permitting 10 times as much sulfur dioxide per ton of coal into the air as Eastern states allow, coal company scientists say there is no substantive proof that their smokestacks are responsible.

Standards Vary
The Clean Air Act, which is up for reauthorization by Congress this year, requires that emissions from fossil-burning facilities meet certain standards.

But each state is permitted to set its own standards, which leads some officials to blame the act for the increase in acid rain. Meanwhile, industry is reluctant to spend millions of dollars to modify existing plants unless it is proved they are responsible.

Such equipment, and others to control sulfur dioxide emissions, can make a difference, Miss LaBastille writes. She cites the case of Japan.

Japanese officials issued stringent sulfur oxide controls in 1968 and encouraged the use of low-sulfur fuels and desulfurization. By 1975, emissions had dropped by 50 percent, even though energy consumption had doubled.

Even stricter limits have been set since then, and 1,200 scrubbers to reduce emissions from smokestacks have been installed, compared to about 200 in the United States so far.

DEFORMED FISH — Severely deformed fish, such as the smallmouth bass shown in this X-ray, have been discovered in Lake Chatuge in north Georgia and may be the result of acid rain according to Georgia Chief of Fisheries Mike Gennings.

Auburn University scientists could find no genetic, nutritional or water-temperature changes that could have caused the deformities. Some rain in the acid rain range has been reported in Georgia. (AP Laserphoto)

How Tar Heel Representatives And Senators Voted

Roll Call Report Service
WASHINGTON — Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes Nov. 5-10.

HOUSE
Nuclear power — The House rejected, 90 for and 304 against, an amendment to continue the requirement that public hearings on the safety of a nuclear power plant be completed before the Nuclear Regulatory Commission can issue an operating license. The vote cleared the way for an industry-backed streamlining that will allow temporary licensing after NRC staff safety reports are turned in but before the public hearing process has run its course. The vote occurred during debate on an NRC funding bill (HR 4255) that was sent to the Senate.

Supporter Edward Markey, D-Mass., said "there is no licensing backlog ... no need to truncate the public participation process ... no crisis at hand in the delay of nuclear power plants."

Opponent James Broyhill, R-N.C., said that by 1984 as many as 11 completed plants will be awaiting operating permits. The streamlining, he said, will "get them on stream, not sitting there idle costing the consumers billions of dollars."

Members voting "yea" wanted new nuclear plants to be able to operate with temporary permits pending completion of public hearing. Reps. L.H. Fountain, D-2, Charles Whitley, D-3, Ike Andrews, D-4, Stephen Neal,

D-5, Charles Rose, D-7, W.C. Hefner, D-8, James Martin, R-9, James Broyhill, R-10, and William Hendon, R-11, voted "nay."

Reps. Walter Jones, D-1, and Eugene Johnston, R-6, did not vote.

Uranium — By a vote of 100 for and 293 against, the House rejected an amendment to prevent the export of highly enriched uranium for use by the recipient country in research reactors. The proposed ban would exclude uranium sold abroad as fuel for nuclear power plants. This was billed as a nuclear non-proliferation issue on the grounds that highly enriched uranium is potentially a nuclear bomb ingredient. The amendment was offered to HR 2330 (see preceding vote).

Supporter Richard Ottinger, D-N.Y., said the amendment "sends a very badly needed signal to the world of our seriousness here in Congress about preventing proliferation of weapons-grade material."

Opponent Marilyn Bouquard, D-Tenn., said "do not be fooled into thinking this is a vote on non-proliferation," and she called the amendment "a direct affront" to allies in Western Europe and elsewhere that buy highly enriched U.S. uranium.

Members voting "yea" wanted the U.S. to stop selling allies highly enriched uranium for use in research reactors.

Fountain, Whitley, Andrews, Neal, Rose, Hefner, Martin, Broyhill and Hendon voted "nay."

SENATE

Davis-Bacon — By a vote of 55 for and 42 against, the Senate killed a plan to exempt FY 1982 military construction from the Davis-Bacon Act. A favorite of organized labor, the act requires that workers on federally contracted jobs be paid at the area's prevailing wage rate. The vote occurred during debate on the 1982 military construction bill (HR 3455), later sent to conference with the House.

Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., a supporter of preserving Davis-Bacon, said "there is no persuasive evidence that it has been a source of inflationary pressure on the construction industry wages or in the cost of construction."

Opponent Strom Thurmond, R-SC, estimated that Davis-Bacon increases federal construction costs by 8-to-12 percent at a cost to taxpayers of $4 billion annually.

Senators voting "nay" opposed the Davis-Bacon Act.

Sens. John East, R, and Jesse Helms, R, voted "nay."

Clinch River — By a vote of 50 for and 45 against, the Senate killed a proposal to require private industry to pay half the $180 million FY 1982 cost of the government's Clinch River, Tenn., breeder reactor project. Because of investor uncertainty over the $3.2 billion demonstration project, cost-splitting would have jeopardized its future. The liquid-metal fast-breeder reactor, generating more fuel than it consumes, is seen by its supporters as a source of electricity that could ease U.S. energy shortages. The vote came during debate on HR 4144, which was headed for final passage and a House-Senate conference.

Sen. Bennett Johnston, D-La., who voted to kill the cost-sharing proposal, said "the breeder reactor is recognized by all industrial countries as being on the edge of technological development."

Opponent John Glenn, D-Ohio, said that "if we ask (private investors) to meet 50 percent of the costs of this project, it will put them on the line. If they want this reactor, they can help fund it."

Senators voting "yea" wanted the federal government to continue full funding of the Clinch River project.

East and Helms voted "yea."

Defense spending — The Senate adopted, 49 for and 43 against, an amendment increasing by $509 million the FY 1982 appropriation for Energy Department weapons programs. This is on top of $4.68 billion recommended by the Appropriations Committee for the DOE's development of nuclear warheads and other weaponry. The amendment was attached to HR 4144 (see preceding vote).

Sponsor John Tower, R-Tex., said "the question here is whether or not we want to proceed with the modernization of our strategic capability."

Opponent Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., said: "I suggest we put the same kind of demand for cost-effective military dollars that we put on the food stamp dollars."

Senators voting "yea" wanted higher outlays for DOE weapons programs.

Suggest Virus A Heart Factor

DALLAS (AP) — A study of nine patients who had heart attacks without first showing any signs of the usual risk factors for the disease indicates that virus infections may contribute to heart attacks.

Student Recitals

Three seniors of the school of music, East Carolina University, will be heard in recital on Friday. The recital will be open to the public and there is no admission charged. All three will present their recitals in the A. J. Fletcher Recital Hall on campus at:

7:30 p.m. — Richard Virgil Brazelle, percussion, and David Saleeba Albert, bassoon. Brazelle, of Charlotte, has chosen five compositions: "Suite for Timpani" by Murray Houllif; four selections from Tchaikovsky's "Album for the Young"; Larry Baker's "Music Piece"; the "Miraggi for Marimba Solo" by Richard Willis; and Saul Goodman's "Timpiana." Albert, from Elizabeth City, will be accompanied by Susie Bell, piano. Works he will perform are: Hindemith's "Sonata for Bassoon"; Jan Antonin Kozeluh's "Concerto for Bassoon and Orchestra"; Stefan de Haan's "Scherzo for Bassoon and Piano"; and Saul Goodman's "Timpiana for Timpani and Drum Set."

9 p.m. — Anne Gunn, soprano, of Durham will be accompanied by Peggy Shuping, piano and assisted by Kay Belangia, guitar. For her recital she has selected two songs by Handel; "Für funtzehn Pfennige" by Richard Strauss; two songs each by J. Marx and Gustav Mahler; Chasson's "Le temps des lilas"; two excerpts and two arias from works by Stravinsky; Debussy's "Noel des enfants qui m'ont plus de maisons"; songs by Villa-Lobos; and "El tra la la y el punteado" from "Tondillas" by Granados.

Invitation: SCW-Maintenance 1
Date: November 9, 1981

Issued By: Pitt County Drainage District Number Three

Price quotations in single copy for performing work described herein will be received until 2:30 p.m. local time December 3, 1981, at the office of Frank M. Wooten, Jr., Attorney at Law, 113 West Third Street, Greenville, North Carolina, and at that time reviewed by the Board of Commissioners. Mailing address: P.O. Box 5063, Greenville, North Carolina 27834 (Telephone: 919-752-3129).

WORK TO BE PERFORMED

Mow grass, weeds and brush on 10 miles of maintenance ways adjacent to channels in the Army Corps, section of Pitt County Drainage District Number Three. The section is located in the Coxville, Gardnersville and Clay Root area of Pitt County. Mow entire travel way up to a maximum width of eighteen feet and mow or shrub the slope of canal bank down to the waterline. Mowing is to begin on January 2, 1982, and be completed within 30 working days.

The successful contractor will be required to execute a contract. The contractor must furnish either (1) a comprehensive liability insurance policy issued by an insurance company authorized to do business in North Carolina or (2) evidence of qualification as "self insurer" which complies with the regulations of the North Carolina Insurance Department in an amount of no less than Twenty-five Thousand ($25,000) Dollars.

Persons interested in submitting price quotations may assemble at the Stokes and Lane Store at Gardnersville at 10:00 a.m., November 18, 1981, for a group showing of the work site.

Roy R. Beck Contracting Officer

Save 45% Velveteen blazers.

Your choice 29.99

Orig. $55. Save $25. Catch that holiday spirit at JCPenney. And spread the word! With great savings on our cotton velveteen blazers. These are fully constructed and lined. The fabric is this season's top quality with that special "soft" hand. These four different styles come in up to eight different holiday basic and fashion colors. In junior sizes, choose from three styles: the notched shawl collar, the new collarless style, or the traditional blazer look. In misses sizes we have the timeless traditional blazer look. Treat yourself for the holidays. And spread the spirit! Give one to a friend.

Skirts Save 40% 12.99

Orig. $22. The season's greatest skirt buy in two bodies. Choose a full pleated skirt or a front button wrap both in wool blends. The plaids were especially picked to go with these velveteen blazers. Lots of plaids to choose from - buy a bunch! Split ticket sizing.

Blouse special 12.99

To complete the look, treat yourself to something special. Our blouses! Just the thing to go with skirts and blazers. Treated to those special little touches you love. Like gentle bows and frilly ruffles. A great variety in easy-care polyester. And a rainbow of colors. Misses sizes. Not all styles at all stores.

Of course you can charge it
