Billion-Dollar Items Block Approval

Congress Stumbles On Spending Bill

By DAVID ESPO
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional negotiators struggled unsuccessfully with each other and a threatened veto Saturday in an effort to draft an emergency spending bill that could rescue the federal government from its day-old insolvency.

Despite an all-day series of public and private negotiating sessions, officials said billion-dollar disagreements persisted over spending on social programs and foreign aid.

Technically, the government ran out of money at 12:01 a.m. Saturday when existing stopgap spending legislation expired. But the White House conceded no one would notice the difference, at least for the time being.

The new measure is needed because, except for a measure covering its own operations, Congress has not yet passed any of the regular money bills for the current fiscal year, which began Oct. 1.

House Democrats, in a late-night bid to break the deadlock, submitted a revised offer that Republicans promptly turned over the administration officials for review.

"It's at the White House now," said one aide, indicating that top-level presidential aides were scrutinizing the proposal to see if it would meet President Reagan's specifications.

While full details of the Democratic proposal were sketchy, House Democratic Leader James Wright of Texas said the proposal would give Reagan the overall level of spending cuts he wanted, but spread them differently among federal programs. Democrats also offered an additional $900 million for foreign aid, he said.

The House adjourned shortly after 10 p.m. EST, and is scheduled to reconvene at 1 p.m. Sunday. Later, the Senate quit for the evening, too, and will return Sunday.

Reagan, meanwhile, was waiting at the White House to see if Congress would deliver an acceptable bill in time for him to leave Sunday as scheduled for a Thanksgiving vacation in California.

The Democrats said their proposal would give Reagan most of the domestic program cuts he wanted. "We have met your demands as far as saving money is concerned," Rep. Jamie Whitten, D-Miss., told senators facing him across the table at mid-afternoon.

Senate Republicans passed the proposal along to Budget Director David A. Stockman for review by the administration before providing a formal response, and sources said it might eventually form the basis for an agreement.

One source said, "some modification" probably would be required to make the proposal acceptable to congressional Republicans and the president.

But officials stressed that the offer was taken seriously enough for Stockman to outline it to White House Chief of Staff James Baker, who discussed it, apparently by telephone, with the president.

Basically, the Democrats offered to make cuts of two percent in domestic programs instead of the four percent the GOP-controlled Senate is demanding. But because they offered to expand the list of programs to be cut, they said the overall reduction would be about the same.

Representatives from both chambers met hour after hour around felt-covered tables in an ornate room with wood paneling and a huge chandelier.

But despite progress at sweeping away relatively minor differences, major disagreements remained.

Before the Democratic proposal, Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker, R-Tenn., had said, "I don't see any give. I'm not optimistic."

CHAIN OF MEDEALS ... Buckminister Fuller, who is recognized as one of the more original thinkers of this century, is shown during a visit to East Carolina University last week. The watch chain he is holding carries three Phi Beta Kappa keys and two other honorary medals.

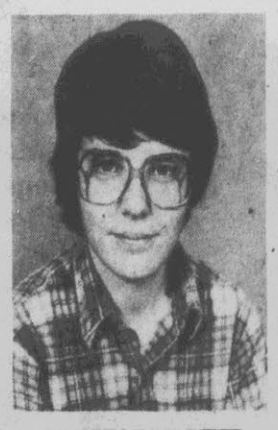
Fuller Trip Frustrating, But Helpful

By MELVIN LANG
Reflector Staff Writer

Author-inventor Buckminister Fuller's trip to Greenville last week was eventful in that he delivered a lecture to an appreciative, capacity audience at East Carolina University.

It also was noteworthy in that his motel reservation — in Kinston — was not kept, leaving him at the mercy of a long-time friend, and an autograph signing party on the ECU campus went almost unnoticed.

But Fuller's problems — which reportedly caused him to express disappointment privately — added a new dimension to the life of ECU coed Michelle Bennett of New Bern, who accidentally showed up at the signing party and wound up having lunch with Fuller.



MICHELLE BENNETT

ECU officials made the motel reservation for Fuller, who many consider to be one of the most original thinkers of the 20th century, in Kinston after learning that rooms were not available in Greenville, where the annual Tobacco Festival was in progress.

Fuller, 86, arrived in Greenville Wednesday afternoon and, after dinner, went to the ECU campus for his lecture. He then joined a friend, ECU English Professor Nellvena Eutsler, for the drive to Kinston. Arriving well after midnight, Fuller was told the motel had relinquished his reservation. He spent the night at Mrs. Eutsler's home in Kinston.

The disappointments continued on Thursday when he returned to the ECU campus for the signing party virtually void of participants. It was at that point that Ms. Bennett stumbled upon him.

"There he was sitting by himself. I saw him speaking the night before and recognized him," she said. At the request of Mrs. Eutsler, Ms. Bennett said she went to Fuller to talk to him.

"I actually got down on my knees to talk to him ... he's very deaf ... and told him how much I enjoyed his speech," she said.

Using part of a scheduled car payment, she bought one of his books, entitled "Critical Path," and another for her brother, who also is at ECU.

Ms. Bennett then told Fuller Wednesday had been her 22nd birthday. "He reached into his pocket and took out the money (for the book) and gave it me. Then he signed it. 'To Michelle on her 22nd birthday. With love, Bucky Fuller.'"

She eventually joined Fuller and others at lunch and accompanied him to the airport for a flight to Raleigh.

"He talked all the time about what it is he does," she said. "He does not claim a hometown. He says he is from earth, the 'spaceship earth" or whatever."

Ms. Bennett said Fuller told her he does all of calculations and writing in longhand, personally revising them. But, as the conversation progressed to subjects such as math and math's relationship with music, she said she realized "he was way over my head and I told him he was."

She said Fuller "is just charming. He thinks far different from any one I've ever heard."

"The things he says are really basic, but who else says them. He said there are two ways of seeing. You can see in a frame, or see in a scenario. In a frame, you can see one atom ... there is nothing in one anything that leads you to believe there might be another. If you see a still picture of a butterfly, there is nothing in that butterfly to lead you to fly. You have to see a scenairo.

Soviets Label Offer Gimmick

MOSCOW (AP) — On the eve of Leonid I. Brezhnev's first trip to the West in nearly two years, the Soviet Union declared Saturday that President Reagan's arms reduction offer was a "gimmick" that could lead to a "more dangerous spiral of the nuclear arms race."

"Resorting to pacifying cosmetics, the United States is seeking to create a situation politically favorable for the implementation of NATO's decision to deploy new medium-range missiles in Europe," said an authoritative article in Pravda, the Communist Party newspaper.

Brezhnev, the party leader and president who is making his first trip to the West since the Soviet military intervention in Afghanistan in December 1979, flies to Bonn Sunday and begins holding talks Monday with West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt.

Senior Pravda commentator Yuri Zhukov, a member of the Communist Party Central Committee, in a TV program Saturday night, praised West Germany for maintaining strong economic ties with the Soviet Union, and said Brezhnev's trip kept the door open for expansion of relations.

Schmidt is said to be awaiting Brezhnev's response to President Reagan's speech Wednesday in which Reagan offered not to deploy new U.S. nuclear-tipped missiles in Europe if the Soviets would dismantle their missiles targeted at the West.

"In reality, the United States is imposing a new, ever more dangerous spiral of the nuclear arms race, leading to the aggravation of military confrontation which is fraught with creating a crisis situation on the European continent," said the Pravda article.

The commentary was part of a stepped-up Soviet campaign to defend Russian military might before American and Soviet negotiators begin European arms limitation talks Nov. 30 in Geneva, Switzerland.

Tourist Checked Pistol At Gate

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Texas man wanting to tour the executive mansion was arrested Saturday by White House guards when he tried to check a pistol at the gate, officials said.

Assistant press secretary Mark Weinberg said Lawrence Sheldon Chess, 41, of Houston, was charged by Metropolitan Washington police with carrying a deadly weapon, carrying a concealed weapon and possession of an unregistered handgun and ammunition.

Chess was released after posting $1,600 bond. A hearing on the charges against him was scheduled for Monday in District of Columbia Superior Court.

The Secret Service interviewed Chess but determined that he did not appear to constitute a threat to President Reagan or the other family members and officials entitled to Secret Service protection, Weinberg said.

The White House spokesman said Chess approached a guard at the gate, handed him a five-shot, .22-caliber pistol and asked him to hold it while he went on a White House tour.

MICHAEL PUTZEL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — National security adviser Richard V. Allen acknowledged Saturday that he received two watches from a Japanese journalist, but called them "a personal gift for my wife from a friend of many years' standing." There were also reports that investigators are trying to determine if Allen received $10,000, not $1,000.

Journalist Fuyuko Kamisaka, who has said she gave Allen $1,000 intended for Nancy Reagan to give to charity, told The Associated Press that one of the watches was given Jan. 16, before President Reagan's inauguration, and the other on Jan. 22, two days afterward.

Allen, in his latest written response to questions presented him by the White House press office, said both watches "were received prior to Jan. 20, 1981," when Reagan was inaugurated and Allen became national security adviser.

White House officials generally are prohibited from accepting gifts from anyone the staff member "knows or has reason to believe ... has any interest which may be substantially affected by the staff member's performance of his job."

Meanwhile, it was learned that a Japanese newspaper has reported that the FBI has asked Tokyo police to try to determine if the amount of money given Allen was $10,000, not $1,000.

Tokyo police refused comment on the report by Mainichi Shinbun.

It was learned Saturday that Justice Department officials believe the possibility that the case involves $10,000 rather than $1,000 is likely to be a dead end. But they were not certain of that.

The New York Times quoted an unidentified administration official as saying the investigation is trying to determine if Allen received $10,000 or $1,000. The official said the sum $10,000 was written on both the envelope the money was in and "some kind of receipt" found in the safe, the newspaper said in its Sunday editions.

Allen called the watches a gift from a friend, which is permitted for White House officials "when the circumstances make it clear that the family or personal relationship involved is the motivating factor."

Any such gift worth more than $35 "received from any source other than a relative" must be reported on a staff

Schools Broaden Future For Handicapped

By MELVIN LANG
Reflector Staff Writer

Public schools are becoming major training centers for special children — those with emotional or physical handicaps.

More than 12.4 percent of the 11,000 students in the Pitt County system have been classified as participants in the special education program. The ratio is even higher — more than 900 of just under 5,000 students — in Greenville's city system.

Their presence in such high numbers is a result of changes in legal thinking in the late 1970s when more funding was made available, along with enforced requirements that the handicapped be given access to public education.

Some of the problems associated with the handicapped, especially the profoundly retarded, were highlighted last month when William J. Edwards of Stokes, a former high school principal and now a member of the Pitt County Board of Education, raised a question about the requirements imposed on teachers and teachers aides in providing care.

Edwards, who now says the particular problem that prompted his inquiry has been improved, noted that one teacher in the county system was having to spend much of her time with one student who was incapable of handling his bodily needs alone.

Spokesmen for the city and county school systems say such cases are rare, but do occur. Both systems have assigned a teacher's aide to a particular child because of special needs.

But Ott Alford, superintendent of the county system, pointed out that in most cases of profound need money has been allocated specifically for such a child. That money, sometimes amounting to several thousand dollars, is only for that child and would accompany him if the child changed schools.

Alford noted that the county school budget includes $1.495 million for special education this year. The county system has a supervisor, four psychologists, one physical therapist, an occupational therapist and 50 certified teachers to work with the children in the program. A similar but smaller staff is employed by the city.

Both systems "mainstream" the special child were possible, placing the student in regular classrooms. Some children also are homebound because of their disabilities, but a teacher or specialist goes to them to maintain the educational link.

Alford and Anne Harrison, director of special education for the city system, said the mainstreaming program has worked with little difficulty. Mrs. Harrison theorized that, in some cases, the presence of a handicapped child has aided personality development of the other students.

The type of handicap can vary widely. As an example, the handicapped children in the county system include 34 with a hearing disability, 105 emotionally disturbed, 530 with specific learning disabilities, 265 mentally retarded and 525 with speech impairments.

If possible, the handicapped child is subjected to the same type grade requirements as other students. But the severely retarded children are not required to meet the same academic standards imposed on the students as a whole.

Church Women Present Awards

Mrs. John W. Baverstock, Mrs. James W. Brewer and Mrs. Dick Douglas were recognized with the UMW's highest honor, the 1981 Award of Merit, during the meeting. Making the presentations were Mrs. Thomas L. Edwards, Mrs. Carrie Oakley and Mrs. William H. Taft Jr.

Others recognized for their achievements at the meeting were 16 past presidents. Mrs. Ed Clement, president, presided and gave the president's recognition. Mrs. Hope Anderson, organist, presented special music and a closing prayer was given by the Rev. Adrian Brown.

member's annual public disclosure report. The watches were valued at about $165 each.

Allen cited the regulation on gifts for which personal relationship is the motivating factor, but stressed his contention that the watches were given him before he took office.

The contradictions in the accounts by the journalist, who was grateful to Allen for arranging a Jan. 21 interview with the first lady, and by Allen were the latest in a series of discrepancies that raise new questions about the credibility of one of President Reagan's key aides.

Here, briefly, are the others:

— Miss Kamisaka has been quoted by two major Tokyo newspapers as saying she reminded Allen several times that she needed a receipt for the $1,000 she gave him for helping arrange her interview with Nancy Reagan. Allen repeatedly promised to mail her a receipt but it never arrived, said Miss Kamisaka, who wrote the story about Mrs. Reagan for a Japanese magazine.

Allen has said he took the honorarium to spare Mrs. Reagan embarrassment and put it in his office safe, where he forgot about it until the cash was discovered by someone else eight months later.

— Asked whether a Japanese journalist had ever given him an honorarium, as opposed to his intercepting one meant for someone else, Allen replied during a Nov. 13 question-and-answer session: "I don't believe I ever did accept an honorarium from a journalist for an interview, no."

Asked whether he had received one, since he maintained he received, but did not accept, the $1,000, Allen replied, "I can't recall ever having done so, no."

On Saturday, however, Miss Kamisaka told The Associated Press and the Tokyo newspapers she had given Allen a Seiko quartz watch and that she believed one of the women accompanying her gave him another one in gratitude for his getting them in to see Mrs. Reagan.

In a written statement Nov. 14, Allen said he never asked for nor expected to receive an honorarium for helping with the interview. "Nor was such a matter ever raised with me by anyone at any time."

Based on his statement Saturday, it appears Allen treated both watches as personal gifts for his wife from Chizuko Takase, the wife of a longtime business associate who helped arrange the interview, although he does not name her.

"Two ladies' watches were given and accepted as a personal gift for my wife from a friend of many years' standing, as was the case with other gifts exchanged between our families over a period of some 15 years," Allen said.

— Allen has said he received the interview request from Mrs. Takase and simply passed it on to others "for evaluation, handling and decision." He said he did not arrange it.

Miss Kamisaka has said that she and an editor of the magazine flew to Washington Jan. 15 accompanied by Mrs. Takase. Initial efforts to reach Allen, even by telephone, were unsuccessful, she said.

Then Mrs. Takase took one of the watches to Allen's private office and the trio began making progress, Miss Kamisaka said. The watch was intended for Mrs. Allen, she said, but was offered in gratitude for Allen's help in making the interview arrangements.

It still is unclear just how the session with Mrs. Reagan was set up, and the White House has refused to discuss it. Mrs. Reagan's press secretary, who normally handle such interview requests, has said she was unaware of this one until much later.

"That's a very simple concept. But did you say it, or did I say it?

"I'll never get over it ... It made one incredible impression on my life," Ms. Bennett said.

Congress ...

About an hour after congressional negotiators resumed their talks, Sen. Ted Stevens, R-Alaska, said four major areas were unresolved: spending on defense, social programs and foreign aid, and the expiration date of the legislation.

Baker summoned Stockman to the Capitol to review any proposed compromises on behalf of the administration. It was Stockman's first visit to Congress since publication earlier this month of a magazine article in which he expressed serious private doubts about the administration's economic program.

One possible compromise was shaping up on defense: an agreement to reduce spending for about three weeks, or until the regular military appropriations bill is approved.

Stevens said the proposal would have "no effect" on the military budget and presumably would satisfy the president.

On social programs, House Democrats were preparing a new, unspecified offer for Senate consideration.

Senators were demanding approval of an additional $3.3 billion in cuts in domestic and foreign programs — an average of 4 percent.

Unless the reductions were approved, warned Republican leaders, Reagan stood ready to cast the first veto of his presidency.

But initially at least, House Democrats were adamant in their opposition.

"This is a people's bill," Rep. William Natcher, D-Ky., told senators. "We're going to leave it up to you and we can't reduce it any further."

In one unusual move, the bargainers recommended a pay increase of 4.8 percent for House members — a boost of $2,911 — but no raise for senators. All members of Congress now make $60,662.

The pay raise was tacked on to a provision which would lift a two-year pay cap for top-level bureaucrats, allowing their salaries to go from $50,112 to $57,500.

Police List Heavy Damage

An estimated $14,950 in property damage resulted from five traffic accidents investigated by Greenville police this weekend.

Approximately $4,850 resulted from a four-car accident that occurred about 1 p.m. Friday on Rock Springs Road . According to police reports, three vehicles had stopped in a congested area for turning traffic when a vehicle driven by Richard Allan Miller of 2311 Deal Place collided with the rear of a car driven by Larry Danny Hudson of Route 3, Greenville.

Hudson's vehicle was forced into the rear of a car operated by Kenneth Stewart Fulghum of Goldsboro. In turn, Fulghum's car hit one operated by Sandra Kay Simpson of 1700 Treemont Drive.

Police cited Miller for failing to reduce speed to avoid an accident. Damages were estimated at $2,800 for Miller's vehicle, $1,500 for Hudson's, $500 for Fulghum's and $50 for Simpson.

An accident occurred at 12:41 p.m. Friday on East 10th Street when Catherine Lynn Perry of 3577 Tanglebrook Trail, Clemmons, turned left into the path of a vehicle driven by Johnnie Alton Smith III of 2300 Briarfield Road, Kinston. Police estimated $1,000 in damage to each vehicle.

Cars driven by Diedre Leigh Aldridge, 16, of 1415 N. Overlook Drive, and Mildred Hamm Murray, 51, of 2106 Cameron Road, Wilson, collided at 6:50 p.m. Friday on Greenville Boulevard causing $800 in damages to the Aldridge vehicle and $2,000 in damages to the Murray car. Aldridge was charged with a safe movement violation and Murray was transported to Pitt Memorial Hospital where she was treated and released

Another accident occurred on Greenville Boulevard at 4:30 p.m. when a car driven by Tammy Suzelle Caudill, 18, of King was struck by a vehicle operated by Nickolas Radeka Jr., 20, of 1036 Rock Spring. Lee Troutman, 20, of Florence, S.C., a passenger in the Radeka car, received minor injuries. Estimated damages to the Radeka car were $3,500 and $1,000 to the Caudill vehicle.

Police were investigating a hit-and-run incident reported at 2:15 p.m. Saturday by William Michael Paroli of 217-C Riverbluff Road. The car, owned by Paroli's father, was parked at the end of Riverbluff road when it was struck by an unidentified driver. Damages to the car were estimated at $800.

They're Two Young Little Old Men

Progeria Kids Find Each Other

By CYNTHIA STEVENS
Associated Press Writer

HALLSVILLE, Texas (AP) — After a lifetime of thinking he was alone, bald and wrinkled little Mickey Hays has finally found someone just like himself: the 8-year-old son of a South African gold miner.

Mickey is an old man at 9.

And next week he finally will meet someone who looks like him — bald and wrinkled Fransie Geringer from South Africa, who is coming to the United States to visit Pinocchio at Disneyland and Disney World

The boys suffer from progeria, a rare disease that can cause victims to age 10 times faster than normal. It kills even the most durable of them in their teens — usually of a heart attack or stroke.

"Meeting Fransie is a dream," says Mickey, rubbing his bent little fingers together in excitement.

"I never thought I'd find anyone who looks like me."

A few dozen children around the earth are doomed to this limbo somewhere between the world of adults and the world of kids. They can never grow up, because they've already grown old.

Mickey lives under a hat — a long-billed baseball cap for everyday, and a brown cowboy hat studded with Western pins for special occasions — so no one can see his bald head, and so his wrinkled face is partially shielded.

"I'm going to tell him (Fransie) that if he wears a cap he won't look so ugly," he says.

But the hats can't hide the growth disorder that makes him the size of a 3 year old, or the arthritic walk and bent posture that until recently attracted constant gawking and pointing in his East Texas hometown.

Researchers say that only one in 8 million children suffers from progeria; perhaps 10 in the United States. There have been fewer than 100 cases recorded in medical literature since the first was documented in England in 1886.

For a long time, Mickey resisted even going to the grocery store with her. When she went off to fill the shopping basket, other children would taunt him, saying he looked as though he "was from outer space." Grown-ups asked what was wrong with him.

"I'd rather be in heaven with my little sister, Christie, drinking milk and honey," he once told his 28-year-old mother, whose daughter died as an infant.

Then in August, Mickey saw a newspaper picture of Fransie, an Afrikaner boy from Orkney, South Africa, and learned that he was not the only living victim of the rare, incurable aging disease.

The news changed their lives. They were no longer alone.

Until he heard about Mickey, Fransie, too, thought he was the world's only progeria case. He had been sheltered at home, studying with his mother rather than risk teasing from other children at school.

Thirty-one-year-old Magda Geringer recalls that her 3-foot-8, 40-pound son once asked her why he was so ugly. "It's not nice to be the only one," he said.

Fransie, whose home is about 60 miles southwest of Johannesburg, found an identity with the storybook puppet, Pinocchio, who won his battle to become an ordinary boy. He says he loves Pinocchio because "he's beautiful."

It is his fascination with Pinocchio that is bringing Fransie and Mickey together.

When an Associated Press story of Fransie's battle with progeria appeared in U.S. newspapers, Americans raised money to enable him to see Pinocchio in both Disneyland in Anaheim, Calif., and Disney World in Orlando, Fla.

The children of U.S. servicemen in West Germany walked six miles to raise $670. A disabled Vietnam veteran raised $700 more. Letters with donations poured into Orkney from every U.S. state and Canada.

"It's too bad that it takes a story like yours to remind us all how precious life really is," one mother said in her note to Fransie. "We all take a healthy life for granted, and I hope your story has reminded people how lucky they are."

Later, when Mickey's desire to meet Fransie became known, Texans rallied to send him to California when the Geringers are there next week.

Mickey's face lights up when he talks about Fransie, which is often. He's been collecting gifts for his new friend, and thinking of questions to ask about their shared afflictions.

"I'm going to ask him how he crosses his legs," said Mickey, who can't put on his jeans without help because his knees are bowed and stiff.

Regardless of their race or sex, veins show through the naked scalps of progeria victims and they have beaked noses, little elephant ears and bent, sensitive toes that require soft-soled slippers or sneakers.

Normal intelligence allows them to understand how different they are.

The cause of progeria is unknown, and few doctors study it because it is so rare. However, researchers believe there may be victims they don't know about due to incorrect diagnoses or unreported cases.

"It's something in the DNA," said Dr. Samuel Goldstein, head of gerontology research at the University of Arkansas for Medical Science.

DNA, deoxyribonucleic acid, makes up genes that are the blueprints for heredity in all living things.

"It's likely to be a sporadic dominant mutation," he said. "Occasionally a gene undergoes a mutation (abrupt change) in the father's sperm or mother's ovum and has a dominant effect on the child," he said.

"You don't see parents with progeria because the victims don't live long enough to be child-bearing." They don't mature sexually anyway, he added.

Medical literature has recorded cases of progeria in all parts of the world, and there have been families in which more than one child has had progeria in Poland, Egypt and Canada.

"Whatever this fundamental problem is brings about changes in metabolism and cellular function so the bodies do become similar. The faces become that of an elderly man, even for girls," said Dr. Dorothy Villee, a Harvard University professor and endocrinologist at Children's Hospital in Boston.

She says the key to understanding this premature aging process is in basic research, "going back to cellular growth and the process where molecules undergo irreversible changes."

And Dr. W. Ted Brown, chairman of the Department of Human Genetics for the New York State Intitute for Basic Research in Developmental Disabilities, said progeria research is valuable for the study of a universal condition — old age.

"We think that it's a disease that has some features of the aging process ... as such it's a model for some aspects of aging," Brown said.

Mickey's skin was hard when he was only a month old, his hair was falling out before he was 2, and he stopped growing at 36 inches. He failed to gain weight after 28 pounds.

Fransie's hair started to fall out when he was 1, and he failed to develop fatty tissues. His pediatrician, Dr. Martinus van Zyl, says the case is now "static," but it is ultimately hopeless.

Like many elderly, he eventually will be affected by atherosclerosis as fatty deposits clog his arteries. A stroke or coronary will kill him.

Many progeria victims have felt the isolation shared by Fransie and Mickey. For some, news of Fransie's existence came too late.

Russell Ed Dufour, 10, died of a heart attack Nov. 5 in the midst of a fund-raising campaign launched in his hometown of Gulfport, Miss., to enable him to see Fransie and Mickey. The child, who believed he was a preacher and healer, wanted to advise the other two on how they could adjust to the disease.

Suzette Kushner, of Natick, Mass., said when her son, Aaron, died in 1977 at 14 weighing 25 lbs, his internal organs were so weak that he often had to stand leaning against the bed all night in order to breathe.

Aaron had wanted to meet someone who looked like him, but the only other family they knew of with a progeria child kept their daughter sheltered and wouldn't let anyone see her.

"We felt so very much alone," said Mrs. Kushner, who even today is moved near tears when she speaks of her son, and still feels a need to "reach out" to others in the same situation.

Her husband, Rabbi Harold Kushner, has written a book, "When Bad Things Happen to Good People," about the soul-wrenching experience of Aaron's 11-year illness, which led him to conclude that God is not perfect and does not control the tragedies that befall us in life.

Meanwhile, Linda Carney, 35, of Canisteo, N.Y., said she has been bolstered by publicity about progeria and has been trying to track down other mothers in the hope that by comparing pregnancies, they can pinpoint a cause.

Her third child, Lonnie, 2, was diagnosed as a progeria victim last April, and she cried all the way from Strong Memorial Hospital in Rochester to her trailer home.

Doctors advised the Careys to "love him from day to day," but they know there is much heartache ahead. Experts say there is "no happy ending" with progeria.

"When Lonnie goes to school we know the kids are going to pick on him. They'll call him maphead because the veins look like roads on his head," explained Neil Carey, a 43-year-old state highway maintenance worker.

Villee at Boston's Children's Hospital said the grotesque features of the illness do stir a morbid curiosity, compounding the victims' physical problems with emotional and psychological ones.

"One of my patients was teased so unmercifully that he had to leave school and be tutored at home. But the tutor stared so bad he had to be dismissed. The boy never learned to read or write before he died," she said.

Still, with publicity has come some hope for progeria victims.

Sunday Opinion

"PERSONALLY, I NEVER LOOK A TROJAN GIFT HORSE IN THE MOUTH...."

Tobacco Group Sees Changes For Program

Almost everyone agreed following the tobacco program's narrow squeak in Congress this year that changes in the program had to come.

Now, however, we come down to specific changes and some of them are bound to hurt.

The Leaf Tobacco Exporters Association has recommended its version of changes.

Changes suggested by the association included:

— Stabilization of the average support price for the 1982 crop at the 1981 level.

— The establishment of support prices for 1983 and subsequent crops to be established at 115 percent and 130 percent of the cost of production, excluding land, management and lease costs.

— Allowing the secretary of agriculture to adjust support prices for individual grades of tobacco which he determines to be in excess supply.

Changes were also suggested in the allotment program. They include:

— Allowing only active growers to take part in establishing quotas.

— Permit the sale of quotas within counties.

— Stipulate that quotas not used should be forfeited, effective with the 1984 crop.

Some of these recommended changes are not going to set well with those connected with the tobacco industry and, indeed, some of them may never be implemented.

Changes are going to come, however. It is not reasonable to assume, for instance, that certain grades of tobacco will be allowed to pile up with Stabilization without some downward adjustment of the support price.

Permitting of the sale of quotas has been talked a long time and it may soon come, if for no other reason than to allow holders who don't want the allotments to dispose of them.

Reagan Overture Is Important To U.S. And Soviets

President Reagan has made an overture to the Soviets in proposing that nuclear missiles on both sides be eliminated from Europe.

In a speech the president offered to cancel plans for intermediate-range missiles in Europe if the Soviets will dismantle their nuclear missiles.

Although the first Russian reaction was cool, the president's talk was an important one in that it stakes out the administration on a definite proposal for arms control.

Never has there been a time when such a plan was more needed.

Its implementation would free Europe of the nuclear spectre and the savings to the economies of both the United States and the Soviet Union could provide a great lift to the non-military sector.

Empire Brushes Inc. which has its offices and manufacturing facilities here, maintains sales offices in New York, Chicago and San Francisco and has representatives in major cities.

Most of its orders come in the large size, but the corporation can also listen to its smallest user.

The firm recently received a letter from Poteau, Okla.

It said:

"Dear Mr. President of Empire Brushes,

"My name is Danny J. Wynett. I am 12. I shine shoes. I bought your Empire Shoe brush (510852) (K 3559-11). I asked to buy three more brushes and nobody has anymore brushes. I need three more brushes, please sir, and will glady send to you money for them. I need three more brushes to stay in business."

An executive noted on the letter: "Send him n/c brushes."

Earl Darwin of Empire Brushes, in passing this on to us, commented, "It really shows that the spirit of free enterprise and independence is still valued by some of our young people.

"The letter is self explanatory and we have the original on file here. I thought perhaps it might make an interesting feature for your Sunday paper.

"In these days of everyone looking for government hand outs and outside help this letter is really refreshing."

The letter is refreshing, indeed ... and so, we might add, is the corporate attitute which allows Empire Brushes to find time to assist one of America's smallest businesses.

Charles Edwards, former mayor of Farmville and now with the state attorney general's office, was in the other day and brought us an autographed copy of his new book, "The Hell You Say."

We recalled the old days when Charles was Farmville's greatest booster and we couldn't image him ever leaving.

Conditions change, however, and the plant he was managing burned, leading to his accepting a position as North Carolina director of the Area Redevelopment Administration. That meant a move from his beloved Farmville.

Stories about Farmville people abound, however, in "The Hell You Say."

In those days the mayor was also judge of Municipal Court and that's where the title comes from. Like the one about the suspect being hooked up to a lie detector.

He noted the manchine was plugged into a socket in the wall.

"Is you going to turn it on?" he asked.

The operator assured him he was.

"Tain't no need to go any further," the suspect said. "Don't switch her on. I done it."

Helen Thomas — Loyalty

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former President Jimmy Carter must be sitting back and smiling, commiserating, too, perhaps, when he watches the White House rock with personnel problems.

Those were problems that never left Carter from the day he entered office until the day he left. Of all the things he was blamed for, perhaps the most telling was his loyalty to his team.

His top aide, Hamilton Jordan, who had been his campaign manager, was going into one headline-making scrape to another, adjusting to the ways of Washington. He was cleared of charges of sniffing cocaine, but only after a long and costly ordeal.

There were others, too, that caused the graying of Carter. His brother, Billy, was a lightning rod for his own critics and those who had other White House targets in mind.

Carter hung in there with his close friend, budget director Bert Lance, through a trying period under accusations of banking manipulations. "I'm proud of you, Bert," said Carter and others did not let him forget it. Lance was forced to leave government and his acquittal only came much later.

Nobody said it was easy to be president. Painful might be a better word at times when loyalty to friends and long-time aides is involved.

So far, President Reagan has been quick to cut his losses when personnel problems converge on the White House. He did not hang on to his appointment of Ernest LeFevre as head of the human rights division of the State Department when a Senate Committee turned him down cold.

He also bade farewell to Gen. Robert Schweitzer of the National Security staff when Schweitzer made a bellicose speech against the Soviet Union. He was sent hustling back to the Pentagon.

Another national security staffer, Richard Pipes, has kept a very low profile since he gave an interview indicating that the Soviets would have to change their system or face a war.

Sometimes, there is a ruthless appraisal in the White House of the harm done by retaining a staffer who is under fire.

Such undoubtedly has been the soul searching on the part of Reagan and his "Big Three" advisers when the chips were down on whether to retain budget director David Stockman in his post after Stockman gave a devastating magazine interview criticizing Reagonamics and branding the tax cut as a "Trojan Horse" favoring the rich.

Reagan gave Stockman a "second chance" for which the budget director was grateful after a public repentance.

Now comes national security adviser Richard Allen who received a $1,000 payment from a Japanese magazine for an interview with Nancy Reagan. Allen said it was all on the up and up and he took the payment in the envelope because it would have been discourteous to the Japanese who have a custom of such gratuities.

The payment was left in a safe in an office next door to the White House that Allen formerly used, and was discovered last September.

A Justice Department investigation is under way. Meantime, the rumors and the unnamed sources add fuel to the fire each day.

Bill Noblitt — Conservation Efforts Are Paying Off

RALEIGH — There's some good news, for a change, on the energy scene in North Carolina. Efforts to conserve are paying off.

Experts with the state's energy division of the Department of Commerce predict that energy consumption will continue to rise over the next four years, but at a slower rate than the late 1970s.

The forecast worked up by specialists to cover the period from 1980 to 1985 says that North Carolinians will use 11.3 percent more energy in 1985 than they did in 1980. Between 1975 and 1980, energy consumption went up more than 18 percent.

Gasoline consumption forecasts hold good news for motorists, but bad news for the state's Highway Fund. Beacause drivers are switching to small cars and deisel engines, consumption is expected to actually decline 16 percent during the five-year period.

Coal use is expected to increase slightly and, while petroleum use will continue upward, it will be at a slower rate and oil will provide an ever smaller share of the overall energy use in the state.

Natural gas is expected to peak during this five years, and begin with a slight decline of consumption falling over 2 percent.

Nuclear power generation is expected to increase 76 percent over the five-year forecast period as several plants now under construction come into use.

Prices for petroleum and coal should increase modestly at a rate just ahead of the regular inflation rate, while natural gas will likely increase more rapidly due to deregulation.

How energy is used is also changing sharply as the forecast predicts that industry will use more while transportation uses less.

Meanwhile, a state-operated training program for drivers is demonstrating methods by which you can cut your gasoline costs.

Until now, only state and local governments were able to take advantage of DRIVEC (Driver-Vehicle Energy Conservation) which energy division chief Doug Culbreth claims has improved gas mileage up to 30 percent for many of those taking the course.

The driving course is now available to private businesses and industries, especially to commercial and industrial fleet vehicle operators.

The program uses classroom instruction and behind-the-wheel training. A specially equipped vehicle which monitors driving habits and fuel consumption caps the training.

State Highway Patrol troopers are taking the course, as are many other state employees. The program comes in two sizes: a three-day course from which students can carry instruction back to groups; and a half-day course for on-road drivers.

There were 32 bicycle riders killed in collisions with motor vehicles during 1980, and every case the bike rider was at least partially at fault.

That is the conclusion of a study of fatalities done by the state's bicycle program at the Department of Transportation.

Even though motorists were also at fault in many cases, with infractions including speeding, drunk driving, improper equipment and such in 12 of the accidents, and the cause was clearly the fault of the auto driver in only four cases.

Actios such as the bike rider entering from a driveway or side road into the path of the oncoming vehicle, riding on the wrong side of the road, swerving, and not using proper lights or reflectors figured in 28 of the 32 fatal accidents.

Half the accidents occurred on high volume rural or suburban streets; 35 percent in the city; and only five occurred on country roads.

Michael Putzel — Keeping A Secret Can Cause Harm In Long Run

WASHINGTON (AP) — When a Tokyo newspaper first reported a bribery investigation involving a high White House official, there was a momentary breath of candor mixed with misjudgment by President Reagan's aides.

"I don't think it's much of a story," said Larry Speakes, the deputy White House press secretary. He quickly identified the White House official in question as Richard V. Allen, the president's national security adviser, and said it was not a case of bribery but merely one of forgetfulness.

Speakes recounted the story as he had heard it from Allen and White House counsel Fred F. Fielding. He said Allen had received $1,000 in thank-you money that had been meant for Nancy Reagan, had left the money in a safe in the Executive Office Building and had forgotten about it until the cash was found by others eight months later.

Allen said he took the money to avoid embarrassing Mrs. Reagan or the Japanese journalists who presented it in gratitude for a brief interview the day after her husband's inauguration. He meant to turn it over to the proper authorities, presumably the White House Gift Unit which handles such matters, but simply forgot about it, Allen said.

At any rate, Speakes said, the FBI had looked into the matter, found nothing amiss and closed the case; the money was being turned over to the Treasury.

Three hours later, however, the Justice Department said the matter remained under investigation.

During the afternoon, other pieces of the supposedly complete puzzle failed to fit together. White House spokesmen attempted for a while to dash around filling in the holes. But by the time Reagan left for a weekend in Texas, the White House had begun to withdraw from its cooperative stance.

"I guess we don't find this story to be as exciting as you do," chief spokesman David R. Gergen told questioning reporters.

However, what had seemed at first like a simple, straightforward "bad news" story that would go away after one good splash began to have the ripple effect that such items so often do. And when Allen and the White House announced Saturday that no further information would be forthcoming, it made just one more ripple. It didn't make the story go away.

The inevitable details and contradictions continued to drip, and Gergen raised the official lid just long enough Tuesday to correct himself and raise more questions by saying Reagan had known about the matter for perhaps two months — not since Friday morning as stated earlier.

Gergen, Speakes and the White House lawyers involved, as well as Allen himself, all served in Richard M. Nixon's White House.

Keeping the secret might have been the administration's best strategy in looking out for its own interests. But once the word was out, trying to ignore it dragged out the embarrassment and served to cloak the president and his White House in the mantle meant for Allen.

James J. Kilpatrick — A Federal Ax Grinds Away

WASHINGTON — In the Wonderland world of federal regulation some curious things have a way of happening, but you could stay up all night and not recall a more knuckleheaded case than the case of the Food and Drug Administration vs. 75 books by Pat McGrady.

The facts are not greatly in dispute. Back in 1866 a Russian scientist discovered a simple molecule that he identifed as DMSO, or dimethyl sulfoxide. In the 1940s other scientists, here and in Europe, began to experiment with DMSO as a solvent. In 1961, Dr. Stanley Wallace Jacob, an assistant professor of surgery at the University of Oregon, found that DMSO had unusual therapeutic properties also. In 1973 Pat McGrady wrote a book about DMSO, and Doubleday published it.

McGrady's book was titled, "The Persecuted Drug: The Story of DMSO." You will surmise correctly that the book sharply criticized the FDA for what McGrady perceived as the agency's wrongful handling of the drug. For the record, McGrady (who died in 1980) was among the nation's most respected science writers. He served as science editor for the American Cancer Society from 1949 until 1973 and was an editor of the quarterly journal of the National Association of Science Writers.

The FDA never accepted the claims that were made for DMSO. In the government's view, the drug had none of the miracle properties that Dr. Jacob and McGrady ascribed to it. Except for some tightly limited experimental applications, use of DMSO on human subjects remains forbidden. Nevertheless, there is no law against the manufacture or importation of DMSO for use as an industrial solvent or as a therapeutic agent in veterinary medicine.

Moving along: Back in February, agents of the FDA learned that a company in Buffalo, N.Y., was importing DMSO. On July 7, a veritable platoon of U.S. marshals and FDA inspectors raided the company's warehouse. There they found not only a drum of DMSO but — gadzooks! — 75 copies of McGrady's book. And these they seized, confiscated and took away. The idea was not exactly to burn the books, but with a court's permission, to destroy the books as contraband. The books, in the government's theory, were not really books. They were false and misleading "labels" to accompany the forbidden drug.

You may think I am making all this up, but this is precisely what happened. McGrady's widow protested strenuously, the American Civil Liberties Union got into the act, and in September someone at the FDA suffered a stroke of common sense. The FDA publicly proclaimed that it "does not intend, and has never intended, to request that books be destroyed." The FDA proposed only that the books not be sold.

Public Forum

To the editor:

Inflation, high energy cost and increased taxes have all contributed to a decline in the amount of money people have to spend on entertainment and recreation. Each person has their own form of relaxing whether it be as spectator of Pirate football, playing golf, swimming, bowling, skating, tennis hunting, fishing or what ever your's may be. Each person or family has had to adjust, and are all paying more, with one very noteable exception — the tennis players of Greenville are paying the same thing they have always paid — absolutely nothing. They are furnished tennis courts, even lighted up during the peak energy load time, causing your light bill to increase, and now, as reported in this paper on 11/6/81 your tax money is being used to hire a tennis pro to supervise Greenville's tennis programs!

This waste of our tax money must cease at once. I call on our elected officials to have lights on all tennis courts turned off until those that use them pay in full for their use and up-keep. If they must have a tennis pro let them pay the same as the golfer does. If they most have lighted courts let them pay for their play as everyone else does.

Contradictions Arise Over The Future

NEW YORK (AP) - America's small businesses, said the news release, are "overwhelmingly optimistic about the future and determined to implement expansion and improvement programs."

The report came from Doremus & Co., in its role as a public relations firm for Dun & Bradstreet, which completed its "first comprehensive survey of views, attitude and concerns of U.S. small business owners."

Almost simultaneously, the National Federation of Independent Business, a 500,000-member small-business organization, announced the results of its regular quarterly survey, begun eight years ago.

"The condition of the small business community deteriorated further in the third quarter as high interest rates continued to choke off aggregate demand," began its doleful summary of results.

The breakdown showed the federation's small business optimism index plunged, reaching its lowest level in a year-and-a-half and, in fact, its eighth lowest level in the 33 quarters since the survey was begun.

The two surveys seemed to contradict each other, and since it is known that small companies seldom are that confused about their own views, one or the other survey must be off the mark. Which one? And why?

The federation survey has a track record. It has been developed over an eight-year period. Answers to detailed questions on interest rates paid, hiring or firing experiences, inflation expectations and more are analyzed each quarter by professors William Dunkelberg of Purdue University and Jonathan Scott of Southern Methodist University, who develop ratios, charts, graphs and indexes, such as for optimism-pessimism.

This is the first such survey by D&B, the commercial credit rating and business information arm of The Dun & Bradstreet Corp.

Questionnaires were mailed to 1,500 businesses grossing $10 million or less. Responses from "nearly 500 owners" were analyzed in-house and generalities, overwhelmingly optimistic, derived from them.

"More than half the respondents felt that inflation would decrease," said the D&B press release. "Only 14 percent are pessimistic near-term, and 8 percent long-term."

At Dun & Bradstreet, Patricia Hamilton was asked some specifics of the survey. No, she said, there weren't "nearly 500 responses," as stated in the public relation firm's release. The correct total was 444.

What question, she was asked, led to the conclusion that "more than half the respondents felt that inflation would decrease?" It was a multiple-choice question, she said, reading it:

"Do you believe the rate of inflation over the next two years will 1. increase, 2. decrease, 3. remain the same?"

The actual results: Thirty-three percent said it would increase, 32.7 said it would decrease, and 23 percent said it would remain the same. Never mind the release that said respondents saw inflation decreasing.

Where did the erroneous "more than half" come from?

The response: It came from a breakdown of companies with revenues of more than $1 million. Fifty-two percent of those, she said, did say they expect a decrease in inflation.

How many companies did that response represent?

"One hundred," she replied. "One hundred of the companies were over $1 million and 344 had less than $1 million in sales."

Party

Folks who proudly identify themselves as "political independents" and who loudly proclaim that they "vote for the man and not the party" will not understand the 1930 campaign in which Josiah W. Bailey defeated Furnifold M. Simmons for the Democratic nomination to the U.S. Senate.

The one issue of that campaign was party loyalty. Ane by nominating Bailey, the voters punished Simmons and ended his Senate career after 30 years. Simmons, the long-time boss of the Democratic Party in North Carolina, was ousted for failing to practice what he had preached.

Although the New Bern man had made voting the straight Democratic ticket his creed, the party's nomination of Al Smith for the presidency in 1928 prompted him to bolt. He carried North Carolina into the Republican column for the first time since it voted for Gen. Grant.

Bailey, son of a Baptist preacher and grandson of another and a one-time leader of the Anti-Saloon League in North Carolina, worked and voted for Smith, the wet, Catholic former governor of New York.

When Simmons was up for re-election two years later, Bailey asserted that the self-respect of the Democratic Party demanded the rejection of the veteran senator. When Josephus Daniels, Raleigh editor and former Navy secretary, and former Gov. Angus W. McLean declined to make the race, Bailey said he would. He defeated Simmons in the primary, and then won the election easily over George M. Pritchard, the Republican candidate.

Ironically, after a few years in the Senate, Bailey was often accused of the same charge he had used to defeat Simmons — failure to support the party that had put him in office. Although he displayed liberal views when he became a strong supporter of Woodrow Wilson in the 1913 presidential campaign, he was classed as a conservative soon after his election to the Senate. He voted for many of the Roosevelt New Deal proposals, but fought others so vigorously he was attacked in some quarters as a "reactionary."

Bailey decried the spending policy of the federal government, and asserted in a magazine article that a balanced budget was the "foundation for getting out of the depression." In the same article, he urged that business, industry and agriculture "be freed of political meddling." That sounds much like the demands of present day conservatives to "get government off the backs of industry."

As a matter of fact, an "Address to the People of the United States" which Bailey and other senators drafted in 1937 sounds a lot like present day Reagonomics. Among other things, it called for balancing the budget, tax reduction, reliance on the profitable investment of private savings, the non-political distribution of relief funds and preservation of free enterprise.

Bailey voted for the Civilian Conservation Corps, the Tennessee Valley Authority, soil conservation, stock exchange regulation, Social Security, and the Hull reciprocal treaty program designed to boost foreign trade by lowering tariffs. But he voted against the Guffy coal control bill, government reorganization, the wage-hour law and Roosevelt's proposal to pack the U.S. Supreme Court.

A native of Warrenton, Bailey came to Raleigh with his family. After graduating from Wake Forest College, he succeeded his father as editor of the state Baptist periodical, "The Biblical Recorder." While directing the paper's vigorous editorial policies, Bailey studied law and was admitted to the bar.

Bailey's interest in politics began while he was editor of the Biblical Recorder, and he took a leading part in city and county political battles in Raleigh early in the century. As a reward for his strong support in the 1913 presidential campaign, President Wilson appointed Bailey collector of internal revenue for North Carolina. He held the job throughout the Wilson administration, but returned to his law practice in 1921.

After his unsuccessful bid for the governorship in 1924, Bailey remained out of the public spotlight until 1930 when he defeated Simmons and took his place in the Senate. He remained there until his death in 1946. And although he became more and more disenchanted with FDR's New Deal and more and more his critics accused him of doing the same thing for which he had blasted Simmons — not backing his party — Bailey continued to support Roosevelt each time FDR sought re-election.

Some Have Short Memories

ZAHLE, Lebanon (UPI) — The crowds sipping wine along the banks of the Bardowni river seem to have forgotten, like most of the rest of the world, that just five months ago the Middle East was on the brink of war because of events taking place in this gentle city of stone buildings in the heart of the Bekaa valley.

But the two countries that squared off last spring have not forgotten, and the missiles that brought about the conflict remain in place among the rich agricultural land of central Lebanon.

The Syrian-Israeli missile crisis may have fallen from the world's headlines, but Damascus's SAM-6 missiles are still here. Israel's pledge to see them removed, even if by force, has not been withdrawn.

On Nov. 3, Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin told the Knesset that his airforce could smash the Soviet-made missiles with no difficulty, but repeated his pledge to wait for further U.S. mediation efforts before acting.

Syria shrugged off his comments, and its Defense Minister Maj. Gen Mustafa Tlas responded by saying the Sams were there to stay.

Zahle, known as the "Bride of the Bekaa," is just 52 miles east of Beirut. On a recent cool autumn afternoon, the streets of the city bustled with people shopping, strolling along the crowded streets and calmly eating lunch in riverside restaurants.

The streets of Zahle, a Christian stronghold in the midst of a Syrian-controlled part of Lebanon, are now patrolled by Lebanese special forces. But Syrian troops, whose presence led to the siege of Zahle, remain in position at the foot of the city's main street.

The rightist Phalange forces that held out for three months against the onslaught of the Syrians are gone. While traces of the "siege" can be seen, it is clear that the magnitude of the attack as reported by the Phalange was greatly exaggerated.

Buildings at the junction of the city's main street and the road to the ancient town of Baalbeck show the signs of heavy shelling, but other parts of Zahle were clearly untouched by the fighting.

But just a few miles from Zahle the controversial SAM-6s are perched on mounds built in the middle of the fields of potatoes and sugarbeets.

U.S. presidential envoy Philip Habib is expected back in the Middle East later in November to take up another round of negotiation aimed at ending the Syrian-Israeli standoff.

His work during the spring and early summer defused the crisis that erupted when Israeli planes shot down two Syrian helicopters over the Bekaa supplying troops battling the Israeli-supported Phalange in Zahle.

Four months have passed since the siege of Zahle ended and, in typical Lebanese fashion, life in the city looks as if nothing ever happened.

But little else has changed and, although the people of Zahle may pretend they have, the missiles have not gone away.

George Gallup

Poll

PRINCETON, N.J. — More Americans now believe their family's financial condition will worsen rather that improve as a result of the Reagan administration's economic program. This is the first time pessimistic attitudes have outweighed optimism about "Reaganomics" in regular Gallup surveys since May.

In the latest survey — completed before publication of the magazine article detailing budget director David Stockman's misgivings about Reaganomics — 34 percent of the public believes their family's financial situation will be either "much better" (5 percent) or "somewhat better" (29 percent) because of President Reagan's economic policies while 45 percent feel their finances will be "somewhate worse" (30 percent) or "much worse" (15 percent). The 21 percent balance is divided between those who think their finances won't change (15 percent) or don't express an opinion (6 percent).

In contrast, in a May survey (shortly after announcement of the Reagan plan) 48 percent thought their finances would improve while 37 percent held the opposiet viewpoint. Since then there has been a deterioration in positive appraisals of the program and a concomitant increase in negative attitudes.

The public is slightly more sanguine about Reaganomics' effect on the country, with about equal proportions saying the nation's economic condition will get better (44 percent) and get worse (42 percent). However, in this assessment, too, there has been a decline in optimism about the administration's policies since an earlier survey.

The fact that voters are more optimistic about Reaganomics' effect on the nation than on their own financail situation suggests that the "bite-the-bullet" phenomenon noted in an earlier survey & recognition that they may have to undergo personal hardship for the greater good of the country — is still operative.

Following are the questions asked and the trends:

"Now let's talk about the Reagan administration's economic policies. What effect do you think these policies will have on your family's financial situation? Do you feel your financial situation will be much better, somewhat better, somewhat worse, or much worse as a result of the Reagan econimic policies?"

Effect of 'Reaganomics' On Personal Finances

	May	Augus'	October	LATEST
Much better	7%	5%	4%	5%

TOTAL 'BETTER'	48	48	42	34

"How about the nation? What effect do you think the Reagan administration's economic policies will have on the nation's economic situation? Do you feel the nation's economic situation will be much better, somewhat better, somewhat worse or much worse as a result of the Reagan economic policies?"

Effect of 'Reaganomics' On Nation's Economy

As shown in the following table, one person in six (17 percent of those who believe their personal financial situation will worsen nevertheless feels the nation's economy will improve as a consequence of Reaganomics:

Reaganomics' Effect On Personal Finances

	U.S.	Better	Worse	No Opinion
EFFECT ON NATION	(100)	(34)	(45)	(21)

Worse	42	9	77	21
Same/no opinion	14	6	6	45
	100	100	100	100

There are wide differences of opinion about the efficacy of the Reagan program by population groups, the most striking of which is found on the part of those who approve or disapprove of President Reagan's overall performance in office.

As shown in the following table 56 percent of those who approve of Reagan feel his econimic policies will improve their financial condition while 21 percent believe it will have the opposite effect. On the other hand, merely 8 percent of those who disapprove of Reagan are optimistic about Reaganomics while 10 times that proportion, 80 percent, feet their financial situation will worsen.

These findings tend to accent the strong link between President Reagan's popularity and perceptions of the effectiveness of his economic policies.

Names Help In Raising Funds

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Jerry Falwell, Jim Watt, Jesse Helms and Strom Thurmond — the brightest stars in the New Right firmament — are also important to liberal Democrats. The mere use of their names as bogeymen in mass mail fund raising letters has the wondrous effect of scaring up millions for chronically cash-starved Democrats.

Lately, with Republican political action committees in high gear to increase their Senate margin and take control of the House, the Democratic fund raisers are using a different set of scare images. Bayh, McGovern, Church, Culver and Nelson — their own fallen leaders — felled as much by underfunding as by the conservative tide.

A sample of recent fund-raiser letters mailed to the owner of several magazine subscriptions shows three trends at work.

One is the name-dropping of enemies as contrasted with friends, another is the endorsement of an endangered liberal by another liberal everybody supposedly esteems, and the third is the sharing of "inside" political memoranda.

A letter from Sen. Edward Kennedy's Fund for a Democratic Majority goes on for five single-spaced pages listing the issues at stake in the upcoming ideological struggle. He leaves it to the fund's executive director, Wally Chambers, to list in an enclosed memo "as you requested" a list of the fund's early beneficiaries: Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, Sen. Paul Sarbanes, D-Md.,Rep. Mo Udall, D-Ariz., Rep. Barbara Mikulski, D-Md., and Rep. Bill Clay, D-Mo.

In the recent Virginia gubernatorial campaign, both sides used fund-raising letters with attachments of supposedly "inside" political dope from one or the other's campaign managers. One such letter included a mechanically reproduced handwritten note from the candidate urging a quick infusion of money.

Chairman Charles Manatt of the Democratic National Committee writes that the worst policy proposals are emanating not from his opposites at the Republican National Committee but from the New Right bogeymen: "People like Senator Jesse Helms of North Carolina, Senator Strom Thurmond of South Carolina, Interior Secretary James Watt and Moral Majority leader Rev. Jerry Falwell. Helms, Thurmond, Watts, Falwell and their allies now have a virtual veto power over the Republican.

Other Republican mentioned by the Democratic chairman are former Defense Secretary Melvin Laird and former senators Clifford Case and Jacob Javits — as victims of the New Right.

Facing South: First Airplanes Were Strange

RICHLANDS — In the early 1900s, when the airplane took the world by surprise, there were many people living in rural areas who had not heard of its invention or flights. The news traveled very slow in these areas. I will tell some of the stories I heard my father and mother tell about the day the first airplane came over the place where they lived, which was the village of Richlands near the New River in eastern North Carolina.

It began one clear morning just after the men folk had gone into the field to begin the day's work. All of a sudden the whole countryside was filled with this strange sound. The people began to whisper together — when there was more than one person in a place — as to what the sound might be. When one was alone, he or she was trying to get where there were others.

People were running from the noise, and no matter which way they ran, the sound got closer. My own mother said that she and her three or four small children were left alone because they could not run fast enough to keep up with the neighbors. All she could do was pray.

One story was told about a lady that lived two or three houses down from my dad's house. She, too, had got caught alone as had my mother that morning. She was a lady with two boys. As the plane came into her view, she convinced herself that it was God coming for her. She would hide her sons under the doorstep one minute and take them out the next. The whole time she was talking to this strange-looking thing which she believed to be her redeemer. She would say, "Yes, Lord, I have obeyed you, you know I have." And then, "Lord, you said you were coming like a thief in the night, but here you come in the daytime!"

This went on until the airplane was out of sight, which was a prétty good while because of the slow speed of the airplane. Then she couldn't understand why she had been left behind. There were cases like this all through the countryside, which on that day was no laughing matter, as you can imagine if you had been in their shoes. But at least, most cases included lots and lots of prayer.

One more case that stands out in my mind was the one about the man that had a nice team of mules. He had started work a few minutes earlier, and now he was beginning to hear this funny sound, which sounded something like a bumblebee, but was unbearably louder. The mules began to prick up their ears and show signs of uneasiness. It got louder and louder. Finally he stopped his team and began to look.

He saw a strange object coming, and as he watched it grew larger and larger. He tried to be brave, and began to pray the best he knew. Nothing seemed to slow this terrible thing down. Finally he made up his mind that it was God and this was to be the day of judgment on the world. He told his team goodby, and stripped them of their plowing gear and set them free.

He waited. He closed his eyes; the noise was so loud it pierced at his ear drum. He whispered his last prayers and goodbys for his loved ones. Then he noticed the noise was subsiding. He opened his eyes and gazed in the direction of the sound. Lo and behold, the thing was passing him by. He was as puzzled as ever, and so weak from fear that he could hardly stand on his feet. He watched in amazement as the plane went out of sight.

It was told that it took him all week to catch up with his team.

The Wright brothers probably never knew how many people they caused to repent that day. The doctor's office was filled to running over by the end of the day, with people who had shot nerves, and people that bad been hurt by frightened teams and runaways. Wagons and carts and buggies were torn to pieces by runaway animals when the plane went by. A few people had heart failures and died.

So there was no fun in that day for anyone. Many years later it would be a cause for laughter, as the grandchildren of these people would sit and laugh at this day with them. I will never forget the nights our family sat around and listened to Dad and Mother tell of the old days, especially these stories about the first plane.

Ticket Finally Arrives

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — On Dec. 11, 1969, a teacher in Greensboro got a $1 parking ticket. He forgot all about it, but it came back to haunt him.

Almost 12 years later, the ticket has cost Wayne Gray four trips to the courthouse, legal fees and a lot of frustration.

"It was humorous at first, but then it made me mad," said Gray, 37, now an assistant school principal in Manteo.

Gray said he was going about his school duties last week when Dare County Deputy Sheriff Bob Mauldin served him with a warrant — issued Feb. 28, 1970.

Courthouse officials said they had no idea why the warrant was pulled out of the file and mailed to the sheriff.

Mauldin gave Gray a choice of posting $50 bond with the magistrate or going to jail to await being picked up by Greensboro police, who would have to travel the 260 miles to pick him up.

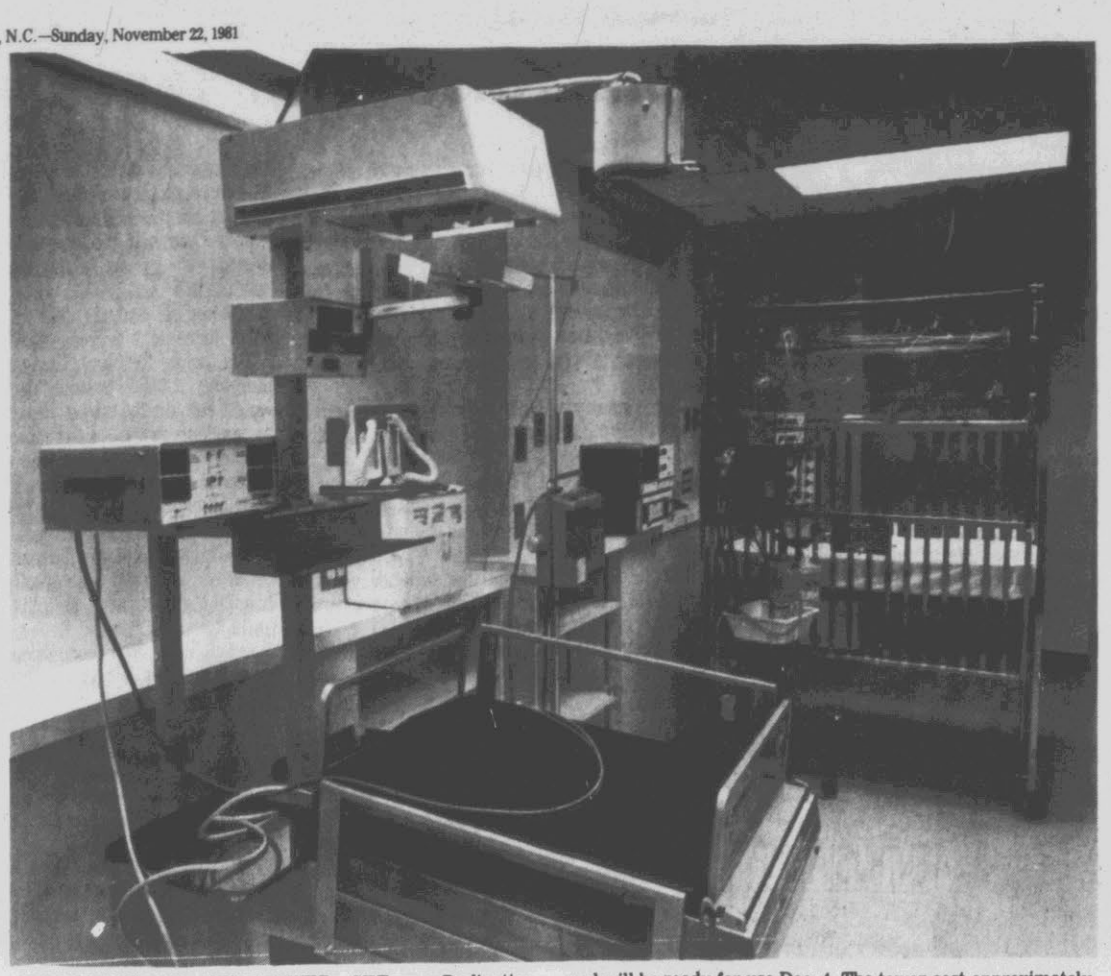
Gray went with Mauldin to the courthouse, but then realized he didn't have enough cash to post bond. He was told he couldn't be released on his own recognizance.

Gray decided it was time to get a lawyer.

After considerable negotiations, Greensboro authorities got in touch with the district attorney, who agreed to dismiss the charges.

Guilford County DA Michael Schlosser said he wasn't about to prosecute Gray's case: "It's kind of ridiculous."

Gray said he doesn't even remember getting the ticket, "But I'll tell you this, I'm glad I didn't commit a felony in Greensboro."



DEDICATION OF BED TOWER SET — Dedication ceremonies will be held Sunday at 2 p.m. for the west bedtower at Pitt Memorial hospital. Included in the new facility will be a pediatric intensive care unit shown here. The new unit contains modern equipment to meet the needs of critically ill children, and will be ready for use Dec. 4. The tower cost approximately $5.5 million and was funded through the East Carolina University Medical School, according to officials at the hospital. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

Think Tank Raps Reagan Record

WASHINGTON (AP) — A conservative think tank delivered a report card Saturday on President Reagan's first 10 months in office, giving bad marks to its personnel practices and to the Justice, Defense and Energy departments.

"The Reagan administration, although headed in the proper direction, should and could have accomplished more since the election in November 1980," the Heritage Foundation said in a draft report.

The main reason the new Republican administration has not accomplished more, the report said, is its personnel practices. Poor staff work, it added, had forced Reagan to "use his remarkable powers of persuasion."

The personnel problems were caused "in almost every case (by) delaying appointments, unqualified or misqualified appointments or the appointment of individuals who are not committed to the president's goals and policies," the foundation said.

President Reagan himself got high marks from the conservative organization, which said he "has exercised personal leadership very effectively."

"To date, (Reagan) has not been tested with major decisions, but only to carry out promises made during the campaign," it said.

The administration's actions were sized up against the more than 2,000 recommendations the Heritage Foundation recommended a year ago to make the government more conservative.

The administration has started or implemented about 60 percent of the 1,270 suggestions that could be made in a short time, foundation vice president Richard N. Holwill told reporters.

The highest marks were given to Budget Director David Stockman's office, which was praised for revising President Carter's 1981 and 1982 budgets and getting the changes to Congress within a month after Reagan took office.

Cabinet officials singled out for praise were Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige, Health and Human Services Secretary Richard Schweiker and Interior Secretary James Watt.

The Transportation Department was praised for its handling of the air traffic controllers' strike, easing auto safety and pollution control standards and writing new rules for accommodating the handicapped on mass transit.

While the State Department was praised for showing "a notable improvement over the incoherence which marked the Carter administration," the report said the personality and institutional difficulties of Reagan's foreign policy team have been a "nagging embarrassment."

This could be resolved, the foundation said, by giving a "clear and meaningful role" to national security adviser Richard Allen.

The group scolded the Justice Department as being a "major disappointment" and said it didn't see much likelihood of change.

"Top appointees are business lawyers who are ill-equipped to challenge staff attorneys well-versed in constitutional and public policy issues," the report said.

It also complained that the Pentagon has not come close to carrying out the recommendations of the foundation.

"Despite the president's pledge to 'close the window of strategic vulnerability,' the actions of (the Pentagon) will extend the period fo America's strategic vulnerability," the report said. "The administration has not attempted to address these strategic deficiencies in a timely or coherent fashion."

The conservative group said it also was troubled that the Energy Department still exists. The department's staff has shown resistance to some of the president's policies and the administration has been too slow in deregulating natural gas prices, the report said.

BOOK OF HORROR

NEW YORK (AP) — Some 1,300 titles in horror fiction, magazines, poetry and reference works are examined in "Horror Literature."

The 559-page reference book, called by its publisher R.R. Bowker Co. "the first comprehensive guide to the field," is edited by Marshall B. Tynn. Tynn says interest in horror literature has risen during the past few years "because it explores many areas of interest from the depths of the unconscious mind to those primitive, but still potent, fears of the dark."

Water Projects Bill Approved

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate on Saturday passed and sent to President Reagan a $12.5 billion bill that provides money for more than 200 energy and water projects. Sponsors say Reagan is likely to sign it even though it calls for spending more than he wants.

The bill was the first of a dozen money bills for fiscal 1982 to pass Congress and be sent to the president.

Voice vote approval came shortly after Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., criticized his colleagues for spending millions of dollars for the Tennessee-Tombigbee waterway, which has long been under construction, but no money to develop new water construction projects.

"This nation has ceased to develop its water resources," said Moynihan. "The first domestic function of this Congress was to develop its water resources. What we have here are the projects of another generation."

Sen. Mark Andrews, R-N.D., then took the floor to criticize a House vote that let stand a 1977 court order halting work on the Garrison Diversion water project, one he said is needed in his state.

"It is a tragedy for North Dakota," he told a newsman. "The money is in the bill, so what we do is lay the foundation to run it through and complete it next year."

"We've got to have Garrison Diversion or the next wildlife flock will go to nothing," he continued. "It's incomprehensible that environmentalists don't want it."

The legislation contains money for more than 200 energy and water projects around the nation, including $195 billion for the Clinch River breeder reactor in Tennessee and $189 million for the Tennessee-Tombigbee Waterway in Alabama and Tennessee.

The legislation continues most water projects at reduced or current spending levels.

Sen. Mark O. Hatfield, R-Ore., floor sponsor of the bill, said the measure contains $162 million over last year's legislation but includes $1.4 billion more for nuclear weapons.

The legislation comes with $91.3 million of President Reagan's in actual cash outlays - making it less a target for a veto than earlier, less costly versions.

Students Attend Conference

Six Greenville and Pitt County high school students are in Winston-Salem this weekend to perform and to take part in workshops of the North Carolina Music Educator's Association Conference.

The conference opened Saturday and will end Tuesday.

The six students, four from Rose High and one each from Ayden-Grifton and D. H. Conley High Schools, are attending the conference as members of the All-State Honors Orchestra.

The six are:

•Ayden-Grifton — Mary Dixon, volinist.

•D. H. Conley — Donna Beaty, violist.

They were selected in a competitive audition of members of the two North Carolina regional honors orchestra.

The All-State Honors Orchestra will perform in the Benton Convention Center Sunday night. On Monday, the orchestra's student musicians will assist in various string workshops being conducted during the conference.

Almanac Schedule

WASHINGTON — The calendar for "Almanac", WITN-TV's 6 a.m. talk show hosted by Dick Jones and Jim Mallory, for this week will be as follows:

Monday — Bill Cheek of Wayne Community College will explain the school's new law enforcement program.

Tuesday — Elizabeth Bowser, dean of special services at Roanoke Chowan College, will discuss the school's learning lab, and programs designed to help the community.

Wednesday — Stan Stallings, poultry marketing specialist from the N.C. Department of Agriculture, will review details of the state's program for promoting year-round turkey consumption and the growth of the turkey business.

Thursday — Alice Freeman, winner of the Down East Contestant Search, will recount the selection process and reflect on how she is reacting to being selected.

Friday — Tom Farmer of North Carolina Pork Producers will discuss the hog market and the effect of low pork prices on N.C. farmers.

RADIO GUESTS

City Manager Ed Wyatt announced that guests on the city's radio program, "City Hall Notes," this week will be Floyd Little, revenue collector, and Dennis Tripp, code enforcement supervisor.

Little will discuss city taxes and automobile licenses and Tripp will speak on the ordinance relative to abandoned junked vehicles.

The program is aired on WOOW Radio, each Tuesday and Thursday at 6:30 p.m.

CHORUS MEETING

The Gospel Chorus of Mount Calvary Free Will Baptist Church will meet Monday at 7:30 p.m.

Lee's Sues Firm Over Use Of Logo

H.D. Lee Inc., manufacturer of Lee's bluejeans, has filed a trademark violation suit against a Greenville business.

Silk Screens Unlimited of Greenville was named in a suit filed Nov. 12 in U.S. District Court in New Bern. The suit alleges that Silk Screens sold 3,600 T-shirts bearing the Lee's logo to Heck's Tri-State in West Virginia. Permission was not obtained, nor was payment made for the use of the symbol, the suit stated.

Robert Montaquila, spokesman for the Greenville firm, said his company was just responding to a customer request. "We just fulfilled a purchase order. I think it's a question of who's right and who's wrong," he said.

Montaquila said the company will no longer print or sell the shirt.

Rapist's Mother Is Charged In Death Plot

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — The 61-year-old mother of a convicted rapist was being held Saturday on charges of trying to hire a hitman to kill the judge and prosecutor in her son's case, officials said.

Ruth Coe was booked Friday on two counts of criminal solicitation of first-degree murder after she allegedly paid money to an undercover police officer posing as a killer-for-hire, police said.

She faced a weekend in jail because it was unlikely her bond, set at $5 00,000, could be raised, said her lawyer, Carl Maxey.

"The reaction is a profound sadness. Without making any judgment about guilt or innocence, it's sad," Maxey said after talking to Mrs. Coe.

Her arraignment was scheduled for Monday.

The targets of the alleged plot were Spokane County Prosecutor Donald C. Brockett and Spokane County Superior Court Judge George T. Shields, police said.

Mrs. Coe's 34-year-old son, Frederick Coe, was sentenced by Shields to life in prison plus 75 years on a conviction in August on four counts of first-degree rape. Brockett prosecuted the case, which drew intensive local media attention.

Across the state at the Washington Corrections Center at Shelton, Department of Corrections officials on Saturday began making checks every 30 minutes on her son. Spokesman Dick Paulson called the precaution routine for an inmate who has received distressing news.

Maxey said young Coe had been told of his mother's arrest because "I didn't want him to find out on the news."

Lawyers for her son, a former real estate salesman, have appealed his conviction and have sought to have him treated at a mental hospital, saying he had been threatened by other inmates.

In the appeals petition, the defense said a psychiatrist who examined Frederick Coe said he admitted committing one rape.

Mrs. Coe and her husband, Gordon, who retired Oct. 1 as managing editor of the Spokane Daily Chronicle, testified in their son's behalf.

More than 20 sexual assaults were reported on the city's south side over a two-year period ending early in 1981.

Mrs. Coe testified she and her son had searched for clues to the identity of the rapist in hopes of winning a cash reward and bolstering Spokane's image.

Mr. and Mrs. Coe said their son ate breakfast and dinner with them between March 1980 and February 1981. Some of the rapes during that period occurred at the breakfast and dinner hours.

Mrs. Coe was arrested in a Spokane parking lot after allegedly giving a cash down payment to an officer posing as a hitman, said police Lt. Jerry Hickman.

"Less than $5 ,000" changed hands, said Hickman, refusing to be more specific.

Hickman said the inquiry began a month ago, when police were told "through the local underworld" that someone was looking for a contract killer. An undercover detective assigned to pose as a gun-for-hire met with Mrs. Coe at least twice before the arrest, Hickman said.

Brockett declined comment on the arrest. Shields had no direct comment, but said he "had been informed that there were potential threats."

If convicted, Mrs. Coe could be sentenced to 20 years to life in prison.

She was held in a private cell in the Spokane County-City jail and was being checked every 30 to 45 minutes, sheriff's Lt. Dick Lovejoy said.

"She's being watched closely like any inmate who has just been brought in," said Doug Duncan, jail supervisor.

In a telephone interview Friday night, Gordon Coe refused to comment on the circumstances that led to his wife's arrest. He said it would be difficult to raise bail.

Texas Tent-Prison Fight Leaves 50 Hurt

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Inmates who have been housed in tents for months burned mattresses and destroyed thousands of dollars in property in a melee that left 5 0 prisoners injured, Deparment of Corrections officials said Saturday.

Two inmates were hospitalized after Friday night's free-for-all at Eastham Unit, said TDC spokesman Rick Hartley. No prison staff members were injured, but an obser/ation tower guard was pelted with rocks and other debris, he saod.

A total of 272 inmates at Eastham Unit, 13 miles west of Trinity in eastern Texas, moved into tents last summer after a federal judge ordered officials to eliminate overcrowding and to make other sweeping changes in the prison system.

Asked whether the rioting inmates would have been easier to control in cells, Hartley said, "That's certainly true."

Hartley said news of a riot earlier in the week at a prison 15 0 miles away, along with a fight among eight or nine inmates, sparked the disturbance.

About 5 00 inmates at the Darrington Unit rioted Wednesday night, injuring nine convicts and four guards and causing $200,000 worth of damage.

When Eastham inmates began fighting Friday, the observation tower guard ordered them to stop, Hartley said. When they ignored him, he alerted other officers, according to Hartley.

"When additional officers attempted to enter the area, they found the access door blocked by burning mattresses," Hartley said.

Once they got inside, the officers found "fires had been started inside tents, inmate property had been destroyed and rocks had been thrown, breaking outside windows on the main building of the unit," he said.

The inmates not participating in the fight tried to leave the tent area, "but the 5 0 instigators refused to let them out," Hartley said.

The instigators were subdued "with a minimum of force" and placed in segregation, he said. Others were housed overnight in the gymnasium.

Twenty of 35 tents were destroyed.

Florida City Helps Rape Victim

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — The traveler, alone and far from her New Zealand home, had been left for dead along the roadside — raped, robbed and battered about the head.

With her family and friends on the other side of the world, the people of Tallahassee united to help the 20-year-old woman. Their embrace was so firm her father has pledged to tell everyone in New Zealand about Southern hospitality.

Wives of Leon County sheriff's deputies gave the woman a robe and slippers. Members of a college sorority, remembering a brutal attack five years ago at a sorority house and the recent rape and killing of another college woman, bundled up spare bluejeans, sweaters, pajamas — and a teddy bear.

Hotels and restaurants offered their hospitality to the parents of the young woman. Strangers gave money to a bank account to help the plumber and his wife make the trip from from New Zealand.

"The girl had nobody," said Dick Simpson of the sheriff's office. "And everybody thought, 'Maybe I can do something.'"

Even children contributed to the well-wishes. Fourth graders at Hartsfield Elementary made cards with rainbows, sunshine and flowers drawn on the front. One boy taped $1.25 to his message:

"Dear New Zealand friend: Hi. My name is Isaac. I'm in 4th grade. I'm sorry that happened to you but everybody in America isn't like that. I hope you get well soon so you can see some of Tallahassee. This money's to help you get out of the hospital."

President Reagan sent best wishes to the young woman, who had recently graduated from nursing school in Auckland, New Zealand, and decided to tour the United States before entering the job world.

The hitchhiking trip began in Virginia about two months ago and took the woman to Panama City, a Gulf-front town in the Florida Panhandle. From there, she headed for New Orleans.

A man offered her a ride about 7 a.m. Nov. 10 — but instead of driving toward Louisiana, he drove east to Tallahassee.

On the outskirts of town, the man stopped in a wooded area, raped and tried to strangle her, then dragged her about 70 yards into the brush, slammed a cement slab on her head and left her, police said.

The woman, whose identity has not been released, struggled to the roadside, where a passer-by spotted her and called the sheriff's office.

"When I called the family that night, they had to run out and get money and clothes put together for the long trip over here," Simpson said. "At that point, I think Tallahassee had realized that this was a girl who ... was in critical condition and had a chance of losing her eye. You can imagine throwing a cement slab on someone's head."

Junior Achievers Form Four Firms

The local Junior Achievement program this year has 120 high school students and their 17 adult advisers taking an active part in the organization, operation and administration of four JA companies.

Junior Achievement is an economic education program designed to introduce students to various careers, the business community, the realities of economics and the principles of the American private enterprise system.

The students learn first hand by operating their own companies from incorporation to liquidation, by working one night a week at the JA center in the Carolina East Convenient Center.

The four companies organized by the JA participants include JAMM, Yemon Enterprises, Keaton and F.E.O.J.A. (Free Enterprise of Junior Achievement).

JAMM, advised by Procter and Gamble, will soom be selling first aid kits containing a first aid guide, bandages, steril pads, antiseptic and adhesive strips. JAMM members are working on packaging and labeling their product, setting sales, goals, holding mock sales training sessions and preparing company financial and personnel records.

Officers of the company are: president Denise Hewitt, vice presiden-marketing Kelly Gordan; vice-president production Reginal Johnson; treasurer Hope Strickland, and corporate secretary Kosetta Lawrence.

Keaton, a company advised by Eaton Corp., has begun manufacturing and marketing stained glass candle holders, according to company president Susan Blake, who noted that company members have sold shares of stock to capitalize and purchase raw materials for their product.

F.E.O.J.A., advised by Burroughs Wellcome Co., has chosen officers, revised the by-laws for their company charter, voted on salaries and wages and formulated plans to manufacture two products — a strategy game of golf and a magazine rack made of canvas and wood.

Lab Dedicated

ECU News Bureau

A social science laboratory at East Carolina University has been dedicated in honor of the late Dr. Yoon Hough Kim, an ECU professor of sociology and anthropology.

Kim was a member of the ECU faculty from the fall of 1967 until his death in April of 1975. He was a native of Korea.

The laboratory houses computer terminals and is used for instruction and statistical research.

Participating in the dedicatory ceremonies were members of the Kim family. They were: Mrs. Y.H. Kim; three daughters, Susie Kim Lee, Nam Ji, and Hih Song, and a son, Won Kim.

In delivering the dedicatory address, Dr. John R. Maiolo, chairman of the department of sociology and anthropology, noted that it was through Kim's efforts that the laboratory was established in 1973. The initial computer programs used for research were developed by Kim who encouraged graduate students and faculty in using the facility.

TEXTILES

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Some 85 carpets, blankets, shawls and other textiles from Morocco are being shown at the Elvehjem Museum of Art through Dec. 27.

The exhibition includes domestic weavings and tribal rugs from the mountains, plains and desert areas, as well as examples of the famous Rabat and Mediouna carpets.

Adopt-A-Pet

The Adopt-a-Pet of the Week is a 6-month-old part collie part doberman, male. This a gentle dog, but a good watchdog. Nice with children. Call 758-4211.

Also being sought homes by the Pitt County Humane Society are the following:

•Two male kittens, 10 weeks, one black and white and one gray tabby, litter trained.

•A 6-year-old male cat, yellow, and weighs 15 pounds. Has had all shots and has been neutered. Can be indoor or outdoor cat, very good with children. Call 756-4447.

Cup Awarded To Sanders

ECU News Bureau

CHAPEL HILL — John Sanders, director of the Institute of Government at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, is the first winner of the Hardee-Rives Cup, honoring activity in the state which best enhances the knowledge and appreciation of Victorian Age culture.

The award was presented Saturday at a dinner of the North Carolina Chapter of the Victorian Society in America, held at the Capital City Club in Raleigh.

The cup, made by an English silversmith about 1860, is the recent gift of Ralph Hardee Rives of the English faculty of East Carolina University. Dr. Rives is a member of the board of directors of the North Carolina Victorian group and a scholar of 10th-century subjects. The cup honors the memory of his parents and grandparents.

Presentation was made by W. Keats Sparrow of East Carolina University, who headed the award selection committee and is editor of the "Victorians Institute Journal" and professor of English at ECU.

The Victorian Society in America, with national headquarters in the Anenaeum in Philadelphia, was founded in 1966 and is one of the newest of the nationwide preservation organizations. The North Carolina chapter of the society was organized in 1978 and has a statewide membership of about 100. It has received recognition as the fastest-growing chapter in the nation.

Student Wins Special Award

ECU News Bureau

Mario Turi of Greenville, a second-year student at the East Carolina University School of Medicine, has received the Huffman Award for demonstrating the highest level of academic achievement and personal stature in his class.

The award was established in 1972 in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Huffman. It is restricted to help students from North Carolina with educational expenses.

Turi received his undergraduate degree from Southern Illinois University through an extension program at Camp Lejeune where he was stationed during a five-year tour with the Navy.

He is the son of Mrs. Vaike Turi, 221-39 Horace Harding Expressway, Bayside, N.Y.

Hill and Union Grove Free Will Baptist Church; Thursday, the Rev. Roger Hooks and Holly Hill Free Will Baptist Church; Friday, the Rev. W.H. Mitchell and Good Hope Free Will Baptist Church.

Board Meeting

The Greenville Utilities Commission will meet Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the board room of the Utilities Building at the intersection of Fifth and Washington streets.

Included on the agenda is the discussion of and possible action on electric and gas rate refunds, proposals for data processing equipment for the commission and the sale of surplus equipment.

CLOSED

Catholic Social Services, 2700 E. Fourth St., will be closed this week. It will reopen at 9 a.m. Dec. 1.

SERVICE THURSDAY

Thanksgiving Day worship services will be held at the Christian Science Churche, 400 S. Meade St., at 11 a.m. Thursday.

In addition to readings and presentation of the president's Thanksgiving Proclamation, the hour-long public service will include a time for prayer, hymns and expressions of gratitude.

Traffic Control Change Planned

The intersection of Evans and 14th streets will be operating under stop sign control for a period of up to one month beginning Monday to facilitate the widening of 14th Street from Charles Boulevard to the Seaboard Coast Line Railroad.

"We realize the inconvenience which may be placed on residents of the area and the public in general. However, we are soliciting the cooperation of all citizens so we may continue the necessary improvements," said Ronald R. Sewell, director of engineering-inspectations for the city.

For further information call the engineering department, 752-4137, extension 211.

Promoted

CHARLESTON, S.C. — James Monroe Campbell Jr. of Greenville has been promoted to corporal in the Corps of Cadets at The Citadel for the 1981-82 academic year. A sophomore, Campbell is a majoring in mathematics and is enrolled in the Naval-Marine ROTC program.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James M. Campbell Sr. of 208 Kent Drive, Greenville.

Nuclear Arms Issue Setting Debate Stage

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's call for sharp reductions in nuclear forces sets the stage for a prolonged propaganda debate with Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev — who climbs a key Western European pulpit Sunday in Bonn.

"This is the year of sincerity, who is more sincere than the other," said an administration official, assessing Reagan's proposal and the initial, predictably critical, response in the Soviet press. "It is a battle for Western Europe."

Behind the president's dramatic appeal Wednesday to the Kremlin to avoid "the dread threat of nuclear war" is a determination to seize the initiative from the Soviet leader. Brezhnev has been preaching arms control while Reagan was talking about limited nuclear war in Europe.

And all the world was listening.

Reagan's speech reaffirmed to the international audience his personal commitment to try to cap the nuclear arms race. He was brightening his image and trying to undercut a growing antinuclear protest movement in the West.

There were other calculations, as well, behind Reagan's four-point agenda for reducing the nuclear and conventional arsenals of both sides and for equalizing troop levels in Europe.

Pressure was building among the Europeans for an accommodation between the superpowers. Meanwhile, the Reagan program for beefing up American military strength has been hampered by U.S. economic troubles.

"It's going to be hard for us to engage the Soviets in the Cold War," said the official, who asked that his name be withheld. "The question before us is the solidarity of our alliance and how strong we look to them. They are going to continue to hope, both by natural inertia and by ideology, that we are going to be driven back to some functional equivalent of detente. They are going to try to wait us out."

Reagan's proposal may be too sweeping to succeed. Even if it stands a chance, the negotiations opening Nov. 30 in Geneva to limit nuclear missiles in Europe could stretch out over many months.

In the meantime, Reagan has eased European jitters and earned the praise of West Germany Chancellor Helmut Schmidt and British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher.

And while boosting European morale, he has reached out for a dialogue with Brezhnev — one that might be conducted mostly in public for the propaganda points both leaders seek.

Upcoming arms talks in Geneva could be the first step toward an eventual summit, although administration officials are discouraging such speculation. More should be clear after Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. meets in late January with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko.

In the meantime, Brezhnev will be working hard to persuade the NATO allies that his policies are right. He begins a visit Sunday to West Germany, a bedrock of the alliance and the focal point of anti-nuclear sentiment.

After the talks, Schmidt will go to London to tell other western leaders what he heard. The German chancellor inspired the NATO decision two years ago to deploy U.S. nuclear missiles that can reach Soviet territory. Schmidt also is concerned about West Germany's vulnerability to a steadily mounting array of Soviet SS-20 missiles.

Already, there is an obvious obstacle to any agreement with the Russians cutting back missile forces in Europe.

The United States claims the Soviets have an overwhelming 6 to 1 military edge, while the Kremlin insists the two sides are roughly equal in strength in Europe.

It would be virtually impossible to negotiate a settlement if the superpowers are unable to get their calculations much closer together. To cut back men and missiles, the starting points must be known to both sides.

Anti-War Protest Jams Amsterdam

AMSTERDAM, Netherlands (UPI) — Half a million people crushed into Amsterdam Saturday to protest nuclear weapons and the Reagan Administration's arms policies in the largest demonstration in Holland since its liberation from the Nazis in 1945.

Arriving in waves of trains, buses and cars, the demonstrators filled the city of Amsterdam to overflowing, jamming the streets so tightly a planned peace march through the center of town could not be staged.

Traffic jams extended from the center to beyond the outskirts of the city. Shops quickly closed.

Police estimated the demonstrators at about 500,000 in the city of 733,000 population. Among the protesters were about 300 uniformed Dutch army soldiers demonstrating in defiance of orders not to.

"I'll take the chance," said a junior officer who requested anonymity. "I think it is important that people see that even soldiers oppose the nuclear arms race."

When the planned peace march became impossible, the demonstrators — whose numbers more than tripled the turnout organizers had predicted — milled about, chanting anti-war and anti-Reagan slogans for most of the day. Finally, large groups began heeding police appeals to disperse in the late afternoon.

Cartoon posters depicted President Reagan smoking missile-shaped cigars. "No Reagan. Not now, not ever," read one placard. "There's no emergency exit on earth," said another. "Take the toys from the boys," said one more.

Despite a crush of people for which police were unprepared, the demonstration was orderly and no violence was reported.

"It is absolutely incredible," said a flabergasted police officer. "We have had just one minor incident."

The incident occurred when a bottle of gas accidentally exploded in a hamburger stand, slightly injuring two people. The crowd around the stand panicked briefly, fearing the explosion to be a bomb. Order was quickly restored, police said.

Skies were sunny, spirits high and the mass of people, banners, placards and balloons was easily the largest demonstration in Holland since the end of World War II. It also surpassed in size a number of recent anti-nuclear demonstrations held in London, Rome, Bonn and other West European capitals.

The march was called by a coalition of civic, student and church groups to protest NATO plans to deploy 572 nuclear missiles in Western Europe starting in 1983.

Last Wednesday, in a speech aimed primarily at the European protesters, President Reagan offered to scrap plans to deploy the missiles if the Soviet Union agreed to dismantle its SS-20 nuclear missiles.

The huge turnout in Amsterdam suggested that Reagan's speech had little immediate impact on the anti-war sentiment.

"We had hoped for 150,000 demonstrators. People tell me the actual figure is around 500,000," said Mient Jan Faber, secretary general of the Inter-Church Peace Council. "This will make the point that we dont want NATO's nuclear missiles in Europe," he said.

Schmidt Assures U.S. Of Support

BONN, West Germany (UPI) — On the eve of a summit visit by Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev, Chancellor Helmut Schmidt assured the United States Saturday West Germany was still a firm American ally despite growing opposition to the deployment of U.S. nuclear missiles in Europe.

Anti-Soviet demonstrators staged four protests Saturday and planned at least eight more during Brezhnev's four-day visit — his first to the West since Soviet troops invaded Afghanistan in Dec. 1979.

West German authorities clamped tight security on the visit, including a ban on all Afghans living near Bonn from leaving their homes until the Soviet leader returns to Moscow Wednesday.

In an interview released on the eve of Brezhnev's visit, Schmidt said he was "prepared to answer Soviet questions, to explain what the West means with this and that position."

But he stressed, "we are not brokers, we are not mediators.

College Entry Test To Undergo Changes

By CHRISTOPHER CONNELL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Scholastic Aptitude Test, the college-entrance exam taken by a million high-school students each year, may undergo major changes in the decade ahead, says the new president of the Educational Testing Service.

Gregory R. Anrig predicted the SAT will still be offered in 1990, "but it will probably be different."

The test may be altered "to measure more than just verbal and math competencies," Anrig said, or its traditional format may be maintained while ETS develops companion exams to assess student performance in other areas.

"It may imply a totally different approach to what one could call educational assessment," Anrig said in an interview here. A revamped SAT would not be geared toward "whether you passed or whether you can enter, but rather testing to see how you are doing on the next step of instruction."

Borrowing a line from New York Mayor Edward Koch, the ETS executive said he wants to offer tests that will give students and teachers an answer to the question, "How am I doing?"

A sharp drop in students' average SAT scores between 1963 and 1980 has been widely viewed as an indicator of schools' performance. The scores did not fall this year.

Although the SAT has been ETS' flagship exam for decades, Anrig said he would not be afraid to change it.

"The non-profit status of (ETS) places a special responsibility on us. We shouldn't be doing something just to stay in business. It seems to me we have an obligation to do the right thing to stay in business," he said.

"And if the right thing means something should be phased out, then it should be phased out. We ought to be imaginative enough to find other services to provide."

Anrig, a one-time history teacher and federal bureaucrat, said he intends to do just that at the Princeton, N.J., test firm, which makes exams to license plumbers and mechanics as well to help decide who gets into college and graduate schools. Its revenues exceeded $115 million in 1980-81.

"The organization has diversified and will diversify aggressively over the next few years into new areas like international services, corporate-based education, computer-software evaluation (and) defense work," he said.

Anrig assured a congressional panel Nov. 4 that ETS is committed to "openness in testing." Its trustees in October adopted as corporate policy the "public interest principles" that Anrig's predecessor, William Turnbull, promulgated in December 1979 at the height of a national debate about test disclosure.

Under those principles, ETS and test sponsors have let students see a complete sample of the tests beforehand and, if students want their own tests back, allowed them to take one that will be disclosed.

Those concessions came a week before a New York state test-disclosure law took effect. They appear to have squelched chances for a federal "truth-in-testing" bill.

On the issue of whether coaching affects SAT scores, Anrig says, "I've never told a youngstger not to practice for a test, and I never will. ... but coaching isn't going to make up for four years of not doing your work in high school.'

Anrig, a jolly, red-faced man who turned 50 last Wednesday, has challenged other test-makers to join ETS in drawing up an industry-wide "Code of Fair Testing." He also has named a student-concerns coordinator and plans to set up a uniform complaint procedure for anyone taking an ETS test.

He said he will invite such critics of standardized tests as the National Education Association and the National Parents Teachers Association to sit on a new ETS advisory committee.

Anrig, whose predecessor was paid $96,000, refused to disclose his salary.

He says he is "not a scholar of tests or measurements," but a lifelong public servant who is "good at helping organizations chart a course for the future."

He jokes that he agreed to take the ETS post "as long as they didn't make me take any tests." But for fun he did take a computerized guidance-counseling test at ETS headquarters.

"I pushed the final button on this computer, fully expecting it to come out 'ETS president' and it came out 'clergyman,'" said Anrig, adding with a laugh that an ETS colleague told him, "Of course. You're doing God's work."

The United States has become Britain's new lost-cost vacation paradise, with more than 1.5 million Britons expected to cross the Atlantic this year. Most are in search of the sun, good food and scenery which can all be found in Florida for about one-half the price found at home. More foreign tourists to the U. S. are now coming from Britain than from any other country.

Former Beatle Seeking Songs

LONDON (AP) — Former Beatle Paul McCartney is trying to buy back the rights to Beatles songs from a British broadcasting tycoon, with the help of John Lennon's widow, Yoko Ono, a McCartney aide said Saturday.

"Paul has a desire to own his earlier songs and everyone is talking," the aide, who asked not to be identified, said in a telephone interview with The Associated Press.

The rights to the Lennon-McCartney compositions, which include such Beatles standards as "Yesterday," "Yellow Submarine" and "Hey Jude," are owned by Northern Songs.

Report May Identify Shots In Kennedy's Death

By DAN CARMICHAEL

DALLAS (UPI) — Experts concluded Lee Harvey Oswald was buried in his own grave and Americans may learn next month whether scientists believe one gunman or two shot President John F. Kennedy 18 years ago Sunday.

Questions surrounding Kennedy's death have mounted since gunshots shattered the crisp, early afternoon of downtown Dallas on Nov. 22, 1963.

On Oct. 4, a dramatic question was answered. A panel of forensic medical experts examined Oswald's exhumed body and concluded it was that of the accused assassin.

It took more than two years of legal battles before Oswald's widow, Marina Oswald Porter, was able to have the grave opened to disprove a theory of British author Michael Eddowes that a Soviet imposter was buried instead of Oswald.

The National Academy of Sciences is currently completing a report on the methods used in a painstaking acoustical analysis of a tape recording made while a motorcycle policeman's microphone was left "open" as the shots rang out in Dealey Plaza.

The House Select Committee on Assassinations ruled in late 1978 there was "probable" evidence of a conspiracy to kill Kennedy because of four sound "pulses" on the tape, consistent with the firing of four shots. The NAS panel has also examined the tape itself.

Virtually every assassination expert agrees that three shots could have theoretically been fired from the Texas School Book Depository overlooking Kennedy's motorcade route, but four shots would have been physically impossible.

If the 12-member National Academy of Sciences team also concludes four shots were fired, the American public would be presented with more persuasive evidence of a second gunman.

Barbara Jorgenson, a spokeswoman for the NAS in Washington, D.C., told UPI the committee's report had been completed and was undergoing "internal review." She said the NAS hoped to release it "by the end of the year."

The report was originally due in January but she said "it was a very touchy subject and the committee wanted to make absolutely sure that its analysis was right." The draft report was approved last week but Ms. Jorgenson would not reveal how many shots the panel concluded were fired at Kennedy.

Some of the men whose lives were entwined by history because of the assassination recalled the events as if they occurred yesterday.

Paul Groody and Allen Baumgardner are the only men in the world who buried Oswald twice — on Nov. 25, 1963, and Oct. 4, 1981. Groody was the mortician who embalmed Oswald's body in 1963 and buried him; Baumgardner was his 22-year-old apprentice.

Groody has since retired, although he retains his mortician's license, and Baumgardner now owns Baumgardner Funeral Home, which was where Oswald's body was taken. In 1963, it was the Miller Funeral Home.

Groody and Baumgardner recalled the confusion among swarms of law enforcement agents at the funeral home after Oswald was shot. They told UPI two weeks after Oswald was buried that Secret Service agents returned to question them in detail about whether they had noticed scars on Oswald and that the bottom of the vault had cracked.

Groody said the seal apparently had broken because of the cracked vault. They could not explain why it was cracked.

Silent Prayer Planned

DALLAS (UPI) — The researchers whose lives are dedicated to pursuing the assassination of President John F. Kennedy plan a moment of silent prayer at 12:30 p.m. Sunday in Dealey Plaza, 18 years to the minute after the president's slaying.

A small group of assassination investigators and researchers — including Penn Jones, Gary Shaw and Gary Mack — makes an annual visit to the site of the Kennedy ambush on Nov. 22, 1963. It is located near the triple underpass at the edge of downtown.

"We'll have a moment of silent prayer," said Jones, 67. "I'll also be giving away copies of my newsletter, 'The Continuing Inquiry.'

"Sometimes I get a new subscriber and sometimes I don't. I've only got 200 subscribers but 17 of them are in foreign countries. I've been down there every year since 1963, except once."

Jones was editor of a small newspaper in Midlothian, Texas, and was in Dallas to cover Kennedy when the president was shot. He began pursuing leads within minutes of the assassination and said the evidence quickly convinced him that an official conspiracy and subsequent coverup was under way.

"Based on the evidence I think there were nine guns," said Jones from his farm in Waxahachie, Texas, outside Dallas. "My friend Gary Shaw, who wrote 'Coverup,' thinks there were seven."

Mack, a television announcer who also is investigating the assassination, said the annual Nov. 22 meeting at Dealey Plaza "has become a get-together for the researchers, the people who have studied this case and believe from the evidence there was a conspiracy."

Mack said, "There's a good, warm feeling of camaraderie and we discuss the latest evidence and new developments in the case. It's weird, because people who know little about the assassination wander into the area and take part."

Mack said he was hoping for a sunny day — such as in 1963 — "because I want to duplicate some of the amateur films. It helps to understand all the angles the pictures were taken from. Of course, the plaza has changed very little in the last 18 years. I've got my movie camera ready."

It was Mack's theory that led the House Select Committee on Asssassinations to have a Dallas motorcycle policeman's tape recording made during the assassination analyzed by an expert acoustics firm that concluded four shots were fired at Kennedy.

Most assassination experts agree three shots could theoretically have been fired by a single gun from the Texas School Book Depository Building overlooking Kennedy's motorcade, but four shots would have been physically impossible, leading to a two-gunman conclusion.

The National Academy of Sciences is expected to issue a report late this year on whether three or four shots were fired.

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — The Moslem fundamentalists accused of assassinating President Anwar Sadat shouted they acted for God as their military trial began Saturday. The 23 defendants who appeared were held in a steel restraining cage, and some of them claimed they had been tortured.

The chief judge, Gen. Samir Fadel Atteya, set the next session for Nov. 30 after reading the indictment and listening to shouted denials to some of the charges from the defendants, several of whom had undressed wounds on their shaven heads.

The two-story white-washed court building, at an army camp outside Cairo, was surrounded by armed paratroopers and military police. Floor-to-ceiling sandbags blocked the main corridors of the building, and reporters were frisked before entering the courthouse.

Before the judges entered the courtroom, the man accused of leading the assassins, army Lt. Khaled Ahmed Shawky el-Islambouly, shouted, "I am Khaled el-Islambouly and I am the one who killed the tyrant."

As the judge called out the names of the 24 defendants and asked their ages, occupations, addresses and defense lawyers, el-Islambouly said he relied only on God.

The 23 defendants who were in court — one was undergoing medical treatment — chanted that they were not part of any group or party, "We did what we did for God's cause!" they yelled. "God is great!"

The men were divided into four sections of a 40-foot-long steel cage, on the left of the bench. Microphones were placed before them to enable them to talk to the judge in the absence of their attorneys.

While most had appointed defense lawyers, 10 had chosen to speak for themselves, but the judge said the defense would be named from the rosters of the Egyptian bar association.

Six of those appointees were waiting outside the courthouse, denied entry because their names had been submitted too late to make the list supervised by security men at the gate.

A number of defendants, addressing the three-judge military tribunal, claimed they were beaten and tortured by state security personnel during their interrogation and detention in civilian prisons.

But they said once they were transferred to a military prison several days before the trial began that their military interrogators took note of their injuries, along with the dates and how they were inflicted.

Atteya said the military prosecutor's office had sent a report on the evidence of mistreatment to the prosecutor-general and asked him to investigate.

Two of the defendants, a blind Moslem preacher, Omar Ahmed Abdel Rahman, and an engineer, Mohammed Abdel Salam Farrag Atteya, asked the judge to end the solitary confinement they had all been in for over a month.

Abdel Rahman said they did not have proper toilet facilities, and wanted to be able to pray together. The judge said he would review their demands.

During a 30-minute recess, the defendants' attorneys and families were allowed to go up to them and speak to them. None of el-Istambouly's relatives were in court, and he seemed bewildered by their absence.

Lt. Col. Abud Abdel Latif el-Zomor, charged with conspiracy in the assassination, was overheard telling his lawyer he expected him to get an acquittal.

El-Zomor, and army reservist Sgt. Hussein Abbas Mohammed, one of the three men accused along with el-Islambouly of gunning down Sadat, wore their army uniforms in the prisoners' dock.

The remainder were in civilian dress, trousers, shirts and sweaters, or galabeyas, the traditional floor-length robes of Middle Eastern men.

The four men accused of shooting Sadat to death during a military parade Oct. 6 are charged with premeditated murder and the 20 others are accused of conspiracy to commit premeditated murder.

Spanish Leader Named

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Premier Leopoldo Calvo Sotelo took over as president of the badly splintered ruling center party Saturday and pledged to lead it through what he called difficult times for Spain's democracy.

"I reaffirm the need for a political center, different from the right and from the left, that can continue the necessary and possible reforms," Calvo Sotelo said after he was confirmed 181-0 by the advisory political council of the Union of the Democratic Center. Forty-four members of the council cast blank votes and two other votes were voided.

Calvo Sotelo's election to head the party came a day before a massive right-wing rally scheduled in downtown Madrid to commemorate the sixth anniversary of the Nov. 20 death of Gen. Francisco Franco, Spain's dictator for 36 years.

Sunday also marks ascension to the throne of King Juan Carlos, Franco's hand-picked successor who turned the nation from dictatorship to democracy under the premiership of Adolfo Suarez, who founded the UCD.

Calvo Sotelo called for party unity to end dissent that has threatened to wreck his ruling coalition of Christian Democrats, Liberals and Social Democrats.

The formal approval came two weeks after 15 leading Social Democrats quit the party, claiming the premier had moved the Union of the Democratic Center too far to the right since last February's foiled right-wing military coup.

Calvo Sotelo replaced party president Agustin Rodriguez Sahagun, who resigned under pressure from the premier after the Social Democrat split.

The premier said he expected to lead the party to victory again in the 1983 elections, but also said the UCD was "faced with perhaps the most difficult situation since its founding in 1977."

The party, which won Spain's first free elections in 41 years, has only 150 seats in the 350-seat lower house of Parliament because of defections.

Ceiling Falls On Weddings

JIDDA, Saudi Arabia (AP) — Forty-five people were killed and more than 90 injured when a ceiling collapsed on two wedding parties in a reception hall put up without a license, Saudi newspapers said Saturday. They said most of the victims were women but that the brides and grooms escaped unharmed.

The collapse occurred Thursday evening in Taif, not far from the Moslem holy city of Mecca. The papers said rescue teams pulled many of the 850 guests from the rubble and saved their lives by speeding them to hospitals.

The papers said both brides and both grooms escaped harm because they were in rooms away from the stage in the main reception area when the ceiling collapsed. They said an investigation has begun.

Duke Power To Increase Rates

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Duke Power Co. customers who were hit with a 9 percent rate increase in their electric bills this month will feel a second, harder pinch next month.

The company will begin collecting for the $963 million No. 1 unit of the McGuire nuclear plant, beginning Dec. 1.

That's when Duke plans to declare the unit a commercial power plant and implement a 9.8 percent rate increase in North Carolina.

Typical customers using 1,000 kilowatts a month will see an increase from $50.16 to $56.07 in their electric bills. That includes a 4-month-long fuel surcharge of $1.22, which also begins Dec. 1.

Duke spokeswoman Mary Cartwright said the McGuire plant "has been demonstrated to be operable" and already has produced 202 million kilowatt-hours of electricity through Nov. 8.

She said the plant, shut down Friday for tests, will step up to 75 percent power output next week and achieve full power in December.

State regulators must approve the commercial designation. The North Carolina Utilities Commission has scheduled a hearing at 11 a.m. Monday in Raleigh.

The hearings are part of a total 19.7 percent rate increase which would provide the company with an additional $211 million a year.

Prison Count Climbs Again

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A surge of prisoners in October nearly erased prison population cuts made earlier this year, a Department of Correction official says.

But department officials say they probably will stay within their projected population for this fiscal year and probably won't have to ask for more money.

Department spokesman Stuart Shadbolt said the system had 16,520 prisoners as of Wednesday, slightly lower than the peak early last spring.

Last spring, the department had been embarrassed in the Legislature by a prison population that outstripped the projections that department officials used to base budget requests until 1983.

After recalculations, the projection of average daily population for the 1981-82 fiscal year was 16,700, said T.S. Ryon, assistant secretary for fiscal affairs.

Shadbolt said the October influx was about 500 prisoners, but it is unclear why so many came. The population generally increases in cold weather and decreases in the spring, he said.

The big problem this year was that the population did not fall in the spring, he said.

To control the population, Shadbolt said, the department and the Parole Commission worked to find prisoners who could be released safely and legally 60 to 90 days early.

Dieters To Get Skinless Turkey

DURHAM, N.C. (UPI) — While many Americans will celebrate Thanksgiving with a big meal and stagger to the couch, patients at Duke University's Dietary Rehabilitation Clinic plan a much more frugal feast — just 400 calories.

There will be turkey, of course, but the bird will be served without skin and the gravy will come lacking fat or salt. The meal probably will be rounded out with cranberry relish, green beans, acorn squash, lettuce salad and mixed fruit, said Dr. Sigrid Nelius, director of DRC medical services.

And instead of plodding to the nearest TV set, Duke's dieters will complete their meal with a brisk two-mile walk.

"We'll be giving thanks that we're losing weight," said Linda Johnson of Long Island, N.Y., a center patient.

Because the DRC program is based heavily on behavior modification to control weight, Thanksgiving is no holiday from obesity. As with any other day, DRC this Thursday will be stressing nutritious food and plenty of exercise.

"The people we have here are really in trouble," Dr. Nelius said. "They cannot control themselves where food is concerned. Most of them already have medical complications as a result of their obesity."

The patients are trained to keep a standardized kitchen in their own homes that is similar to a m del kitchen in the DRC Learning Center. At the end of the four-to-six week stay at the center, patients are encouraged to set up the same kind of kitchen in their homes.

Patients who encounter problems sometimes return for what is dubbed "re-structuring."

Dr. Nelius said many patients go home for Christmas, so she gives them advice on how to face the groaning board that is the rule in many homes.

"I stress that the patients are better off when they plan for an increase in calories during the visit home than trying to stick to a 700-calorie diet and getting frustrated," she said. "The more deprived they feel, the more vulnerable they are to food cues (signals that make a person want to eat).

"If they plan for as much as double portions of the correctly prepared foods, little harm is done and they are more likely to succeed," she said.

Gasoline Prices Up This Year

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (UPI) — Gasoline prices across the Carolinas will average nearly 12 cents higher per gallon this Thanksgiving than they did at the same time last year, the Carolina Motor Club reported Saturday.

The club also said its survey of 184 member stations found 59 percent of the stations in North Carolina would be open Thanksgiving Day, as would 57 percent of the South Carolina stations checked.

Gasoline prices in the region have changed little since before Labor Day, the club said, although the price difference between full-service and self-service facilities increased about a cent — from 10.4 to 11.7 cents in North Carolina and from 11.5 to 12.4 cents in South Carolina.

Full-service prices in North Carolina averaged $1.448 a gallon for unleaded and $1.398 for regular, down 0.4 cents from September. Self-service gas at Tar Heel stations has dropped a full cent from the fall, to reach $1.341 a gallon for unleaded and $1.270 for regular.

In South Carolina, full-service prices inched up 0.6 cents since Labor Day to average $1.47 for unleaded and $1.414 for regular. At self-service stations, the price dropped about 0.3 cents to reach $1.352 for unleaded and $1.283 a gallon for regular.

Diesel fuel averages $1.329 per gallon in both states, about a cent below September's rate. Of the few stations surveyed that offered gasohol, full-service averaged $1.319 a gallon and self-service was $1.265 per gallon.

Overall, the average price of gas has increased 11.7 cents a gallon in North Carolina and 11.4 cents per gallon in South Carolina, the club said.,

The club also reported 16 percent more requests for travel help than it got in November 1980, an indication that out-of-state trips may be more popular this year.

Jury Convicts Trio In Temple Bomb Plot

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A federal jury Saturday convicted two Ku Klux Klan members and a Neo-Nazi of plotting to blow up a Jewish temple in what prosecutors called a "bizarre" scheme motivated by hatred and bigotry.

The jury deliberated eight hours before convicting Gladys Girgenti, 50, and Bobby Joe Norton, 32, both members of the Confederate Vigilantes of the Ku Klux Klan, and William Foutch, 48, a member of the American Nazi Party.

They were charged with conspiring to bomb The Temple, some Jewish-owned businesses and a television transmission tower in Nashville.

The jury received the case Friday and was sequestered overnight.

As the verdict was read, tears rolled down the cheeks of four jurors. Remarking on this, both Assistant U.S. Attorney Bob Washko and Foutch's attorney, Charles Ray, praised the jury for its conscientiousness.

Ray and Mrs. Girgenti's attorney said appeals would be filed by the Dec. 15 deadline for post-trial motions. Norton's attorneys had no comment.

U.S. District Judge Thomas A. Wiseman set Dec. 4 as the sentencing date. He also lowered bond for the three from $100,000 to $50,000 and allowed members of their immediate family to sign personal surety notes.

The defendants were arrested in the parking lot of The Temple on May 25.

They were implicated in the scheme by Robert Lee Vance, who was working for the federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms when he tape-recorded conversations about the plot.

Vance, who says he has been an informant for police or federal authorities for about 10 years, was with the three defendants when federal agents arrested them.

Defense lawyers argued that Vance entrapped their clients.

In closing arguments Friday, Washko attempted to show that each defendant was involved in a conspiracy to "destroy the Jewish financial backbone and destroy the Jewish people's effect on society."

"I believe the evidence shows clearly that the motive behind this rather bizarre plot was hatred, bigotry and prejudice aimed at two races — blacks and Jews," Washko said.

State Will Seek Death Sentence

GOLDSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Prosecutors said Saturday they will try to use the conviction Friday of Sally M. Holloman on first-degree murder charges in an effort to seek the death penalty in her upcoming trial in the slaying of a Selma businessman.

Johnston County District Attorney John W. Twisdale said Mrs. Holloman's conviction in the arsenic poisoning death of her second husband, Jasper Talton Weaver, would be used as a factor for the jury if she is convicted in the other case.

Mrs. Holloman was sentenced to life imprisonment Friday after a jury found her guilty of poisoning Weaver. The jury deliberated about an hour.

Weaver died in 1970 from a massive dose of arsenic.

Mrs. Holloman also is accused of killing Ashley P. Deaver, a 64-year-old pottery shop owner.

Deaver was shot five times in the back. His burned body was found May 5 near Little River, several miles from Mrs. Holloman's home.

Twisdale said he will attempt to show that Deaver's death was related to a drug deal.

Her trial in that case is scheduled to begin Dec. 7 in Johnston County.

Twisdale said he was unable to seek the death penalty in the death of Weaver because the death penalty in effect when the crime occurred was struck down by the U.S. Supreme Court.

ACCOUNTANT'S OPINION

The Greenville Utilities Commission
North Carolina 27834

Gentlemen:

We have examined the Balance Sheet of the Greenville Utilities Commission as of June 30, 1981, and the related State of Changes in Financial Position, and Statement of Income and Expenses for the year then ended. Our examination was made in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards, and accordingly included such tests of the accounting records and such other auditing procedures as we considered necessary in the circumstances.

In our opinion, the aforementioned Balance Sheet, Statement of Changes in Financial Position, and Statement of Income and Expenses present fairly the financial position of the Greenville Utilities Commission at June 30, 1981, and the results of its operations for the year then ended, in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles applied on a basis consistent with that of the preceding year.

YOUR DAILY Horoscope
from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: It's necessary for you to employ considerable self-control today if you are to avoid arguments. Be on the alert to maintain poise if adverse conditions suddenly come up.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You have to exercise tact with outsiders to gain your aims today. Visit long-time friends and enjoy the get-together.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Don't spend too much money for enjoyment today or you could regret it later. Strive for increased happiness.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Instead of causing trouble at home because you are in a bad mood, try to show more affection. Eliminate any tensions.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Try to be more enterprising and independent instead of relying so much on the help of friends. Be wise.

LEO (July 22 to Sept. 22) Make plans to save more money for the future. Look into a new interest that could add to present income. Be logical.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Show greater concern for your friends and gain more respect. Take the right treatments that will improve your health.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Concentrating on how to live more in accord with your philosophy is wise now. Make sure you assist those in need.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Come to the aid of a friend who is having a difficult time now. It is best to avoid the social tonight.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Don't be so blunt with others now and avoid trouble. Sidestep an opponent who is looking for an argument.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Study new interests carefully and make sure you avoid the pitfalls through careful analysis. Be more agreeable.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Use your best judgment instead of trusting your hunches today, which are likely to be erroneous. Be more patient.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Being more considerate of friends is important now instead of expecting too much from them. Don't neglect correspondence.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will have much ability at investigating and solving problems, so direct education along troubleshooting lines for best results. Give good religious training so that efforts are channeled in the right direction.

Ingram Urges Hunt To Show Phone Records

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State Insurance Commissioner John Ingram said Saturday he plans to deliver Insurance Department telephone records to state auditor Edward Renfrow on Monday, and called on Gov. Jim Hunt and Lieutenant Gov. Jimmy Green to do the same.

Oscar Smith, a spokesman for Ingram, said Ingram decided to deliver the records to show he had nothing to hide. He said Ingram also plans to ask other members of the Council of State to deliver their phone records to Renfrow as well.

Smith told the Associated Press Saturday that Ingram will turn over the phone records even if Hunt and Green refuse. Aides to Hunt and Green could not be reached for comment.

Renfrow said Friday he planned to conduct an audit of the North Carolina Insurance Department later this year after the co-chairman of the Legislative Study Committee, Wake County Democratic Sen. Robert Wynne, said the committee had asked for an audit.

The order for the audit was issued after the News and Observer of Raleigh ran a story last Sunday questioning a number phone calls made by Ingram's office to Ingram's vacation retreat in Myrtle Beach, S.C.

Ingram issued a statement Saturday criticizing the News and Observer, saying the paper was responsible for pressuring Renfrow into conducting the audit.

"Insurance Commissioner John Ingram has nothing to hide. But it's unfortunate that the News and Observer, (which) has constantly lied about this manufactured story in their newspaper, can direct such an audit. They have given their readers three different versions of the telephone calls that were all official business calls. The state of North Carolina is indeed troubled when a newspaper is allowed to pick out elected officials and dictate the destiny of this state with their one-sided reporting while refusing to let their readers to see the other side.

"They continue to refuse to run my letters to the editor and have even decided to change their policies so that mine or any other public spokesman for state government will no longer be allowed to offer their side of the story.

"To show that the commissioner has nothing to hide, Insurance Commissioner John Ingram will deliver the Insurance Department's records to the state auditor and ask the rest of the Council of State, which includes the governor and lieutenant governor, to join with him in delivering their telephone records. All of the Insurance Department's calls have been on official business."

The newspaper said Saturday it had no immediate comment on Ingram's statements.

Wynne said some department and former department employees had already come to the committee expressing their concern over the amount of time that Ingram had taken off from work.

The state auditor's office normally conducts a financial audit of state agencies each year, but the Insurance Department was already audited in May.

Wynne said he specifically asked Renfrow to look into telephone calls, paid for by the Insurance Department.

Group's Ads Critical Of Helms

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Progressive Political Action Committee has launched an advertising campaign aimed at North Carolina Republican Sen. Jesse Helms, criticizing his proposed "Human Life" bill designed to prohibit abortion.

The ad, running in newspapers and magazines, shows a cartoon of a shocked couple in bed, sheets pulled up to their chins, with a Keystone Kops figure labeled "Helms" shining a flashlight on them.

Under the ad is a cutline proclaiming, "If you think Jesse Helms is against big government, think again!"

The ad says Helms' Human Life bill that would define life as existing from the moment of conception would "have government dictate the most private family planning decisions of a husband and wife."

At the bottom of the ad, the caption says, "To keep government and Jesse Helms out of your bedroom, you must first get Jesse Helms out of the Senate."

The Progressive Political Action Committee is a liberal organization designed to counter conservative groups such as the National Conservative Political Action Committee and the National Congressional Club, run by Helms' supporters.

The committee said it plans to start running the ads in North Carolina papers next month. The committee said the ads will be limited to statewide distribution.

Clint Fuller, an aide to Helms, said he did not believe Helms had seen the ads and had no comment.

Harriet Matthews, PROPAC coordinator, said her group plans to run a series of negative ads against conservative senators they feel are vulnerable and can be beaten.

The group will not run ads on behalf of any candidate or consult any candidate about the ads, taking advantage of the same loophole the conservatives found to get around campaign spending limits.

The group plans similar attacks on Sens. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, S.I. Hayakawa, R-Calif., and Harrison Schmitt, R-N.M.

Matthews said that since PROPAC's formation in January, it has raised about $200,000, compared with millions of dollars raised by NCPAC and the National Congressional Club.

Burger King May Move

MIAMI (UPI) — Miami's high crime rate and a desire for a more central location may lead Burger King to move its headquarters elsewhere, officials said.

Burger King, the nation's second largest restaurant chain after McDonald's, has been located in Miami since its founding in 1954 by James McLamore and David Edgerton.

McLamore, now a board member of the parent Pillsbury Co. of Minneapolis, said that although company officials say a more central location was desired, crime was at the core of the discussion.

He said Dallas was the leading candidate as a relocation site.

FBI figures do not support a move to Dallas for the purpose of escaping crime. According to the bureau's Uniform Crime reports for 1980, Dallas reported one major crime for every 8.5 residents and Miami had one major crime for every 8.8 residents.

Housing Loss Forces Salesmen Out Of Business

By ELISSA McCRARY
Associated Press Writer

A steady decline in housing sales and a sharp drop in the number of new houses being built have combined to force realtors all over the state out of business.

The state Real Estate Licensing Board in Raleigh says thousands of real-estate salesmen have failed to renew their licenses over the past six months and realty boards across North Carolina say their memberships are down.

"The economy is to blame because of high interest rates and the fact that people just can't come up with the money to buy houses," said Lance Houston, a director of the Raleigh Board of Realtors.

"And when you're not starting any homes, you're not selling any homes. Housing starts are just so far down right now," he said.

Last month, a Charlotte economist said new-housing starts hit a six-year low during the third quarter of 1981. And while interest rates have dropped recently, most economists say they don't expect to see the economy drastically improve during the last quarter of this year and first half of 1982.

The federal Department of Commerce said this week that builders started work on new houses last month at the slowest rate since the government began such figures. In addition, the number of housing starts hit its second-lowest level since 1959 and building permits for future construction declined for the sixth straight month.

Figures in the national report showed that new houses were started in October at an annual rate of 857,000, down 6.8 percent from September and the lowest rate since the 843,000 in October 1966. Single-family houses were even lower at an annual rate of 487,000, down about 25 percent from September. Building permits sank 14.2 percent to an annual rate of 729,000, well below the 824,000 mark that was the low point last year.

In North Carolina, the Real Estate Licensing Board said more than 4,000 real estate salesmen and brokers have been dropped from membership since June because they didn't renew their licenses.

"We assume they didn't renew their licenses because they were getting out of the business," said Gloria Williams of licensing board. "And we have seen a definite drop in the number of applicants for licenses."

Ms. Williams said the number of people taking state examinations to qualify for real-estate licenses dropped from 1,872 in January to 507 in October.

The number of new homes sold has been going down steadily for the past two years but realtors say the problem has become acute this year.

In Mecklenburg County, sales of new houses fell 55.7 percent last month. Wake County realtors say new-home sales have fallen 52 percent since January and were down 43 percent in September, the latest figure available. In Winston-Salem, the board of realtors reported "very slow sales" but had no recent figures compiled.

All over the state, realty boards are reporting a loss of membership and say they expect to lose even more when dues for 1982 become payable in January.

Jean Cogburn, executive officer of the Asheville Board of Realty, said the board has lost only a handful of members so far. "But when the dues go out in January, I feel like we'll lose quite a few.

"The real estate market isn't good here, properties are just not moving, and it's really beginning to hurt," she added.

In Charlotte, realty board vice president Phillip Alexander said membership on his board has remained stable but he said he expects to lose members when $170 dues go out at the first of the year.

"Come January, I think we'll lose a significant number," he said. The board currently has a membership of 1,429.

Some realty offices have laid off employees to cut down on expenses.

"I know of some offices that have had to get rid of people because of slow sales," said Cheryl Winfrey of the Winston-Salem board. "In his business, you're always playing a guessing game. You never really know how the market will be from one month to the next. But one thing's for sure, it's very slow now."

Meanwhile, Houston says he thinks the worst may be over as far as realtors giving up sales and going into other businesses.

"I think our people can see the light at the end of tunnel. I think the folks who are with us now have made a commitment and they're going to stay, no matter what."

Business Group Balks At Longer Assembly Term

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The North Carolina Citizens Association says a questionnaire it sent out to 2,150 member businessmen shows they generally disapprove of extending state legislators' terms of office from two years to four years.

The association said 56 percent of the business leaders responding would not support a proposed constitutional amendment that would lengthen the terms of the 170 legislators.

According to the survey, 42 percent favored the amendment while 2 percent voiced no opinion.

The state's voters will be asked next May to vote on the proposed amendment, which the General Assembly passed this summer.

The citizens association, a statewide business group, sent questionnaires Aug. 27 to its 2,150 members, and 873 responded. The results were announced this week.

"We do not intend for this to be interpreted as the organization's official position on any of the issues covered," Ivie L. Clayton, president of the association, said in a statement announcing the poll results.

"But we believe that this cross-section of opinion from a substantial percentage of North Carolina's business and industrial leaders is significant and will be of interest to the state's political leaders."

On other issues, the poll found:

— Of those responding, 79 percent favored a constitutional limit on the annual growth of state spending. Fifteen percent were opposed and 6 percent had no opinion. There currently is no such limit, but the state constitution requires the Legislature to adopt a balanced budget.

— Sixty percent favored a constitutional limit on the length of legislative sessions, which now are unlimited. Thirty-five percent said they opposed limiting the sessions, while 5 percent said they had no opinion.

— Fifty-five percent were against giving the governor additional powers, while 31 percent favored the veto. Another 9 percent said the governor should be able to appoint state officials who now are elected, and 5 percent said they had no opinion.

— Seventy-one percent favored an additional 1 percent sales tax for local governments if the General Assembly abolishes all taxes on intangible personal property and inventories held by manufacturers, retailers and wholesalers. Twenty-four percent opposed the change and 5 percent voiced no opinion.

Bryant Sparks Tar Heels Past Duke, Into Gator

AP Sports Writer

DURHAM — North Carolina football coach Dick Crum says by the time the Tar Heels play in the Gator Bowl, tailback Kelvin Bryant should be at 100 percent. But to Duke on Saturday, Bryant never looked healthier.

Bryant, who missed four games because of a knee injury, carried 36 times for 247 yards and two touchdowns to lead the 12th-ranked Tar Heels to a 31-10 victory.

Bryant's performance gave him his second consecutive 1,000-yard plus season as he now has 1,015 yards and 18 touchdowns.

Although Bryant's touchdowns are an Atlantic Coast Conference high, he does not qualify for the scoring championship because he has not played in enough games.

Nonetheless, Bryant reached his career high for both rushes and yards and also established the fourth highest single-game performance in Tar Heel history.

"I thought Kelvin did an exceptional job," Crum said. "He looked a lot better today than he did last week."

Bryant said he felt he was at 90 percent and was still a bit cautious about his knee.

"I still can't go full speed. I can't really turn it on," Bryant said.

Following the North Carolina victory, the Tar Heels, 9-2 and 5-1 in the ACC, accepted the Gator Bowl bid to meet Arkansas of the Southwest Conference.

Gator Bowl spokesman Tommy Gay said the matchup would be a better one than the North Carolina-Texas game, which would have been a rematch of the 1980 Blue Bonnet Bowl.

"The boys seemed very excited," Gay said of the Tar Heel lockeroom. "We're certainly excited about having them."

Duke coach Red Wilson felt Bryant was really at full speed and made the difference.

"With Kelvin Bryant healthy, Carolina shouldn't lose to anyone," Wilson said. "When he is healthy I think that he is the greatest back in the country."

The North Carolina offense, sluggish the first 30 minutes, was aroused by a fumbled punt early in the third quarter.

Although the Tar Heels could not capitalize on that mistake, they later scored on Bryant's 9-yard run with 9:15 left in the quarter. The score increased the Tar Heel lead to 17-3 and the game away.

Quarterback Rod Elkins fired a 15-yard scoring pass to Jon Richardson late in the period to extend the lead to 24-3.

In the fourth period, Tyrone Anthony scored North Carolina's last touchdown following an interception by linebacker Chris Ward. After Bryant ran for 21 and 8 yards, the latter pushing him over the 1,000-yard mark, Anthony scored from the 1 with 6:37 remaining.

The Blue Devils got a late touchdown on quarterback Ron Sally's 10-yard pass to Cedric Jones. Duke finished its season at 6-5 and 3-2 in the conference.

Bryant's 26-yard broken-field run early in the second quarter increased the Tar Heel margin to 10-0.

The touchdown was set up on a holding call against Duke, which nullified a 14-yard quarterback sack on Elkins.

A second touchdown, a 12-yard pass from Elkins to Richardson with 42 seconds left, was called back when a Tar Heel lineman was detected too far downfield.

On the next play, Elkins' pass was intercepted by Bill Obremskey who returned it to the Duke 37.

Duke drove to the North Carolina 29-yard line in the second quarter, but a Ben Bennett pass was picked off by Bill Jackson to end that threat.

Huskies, Hawkeyes In Rose

SEATTLE (AP) — Washington's Huskies, with quarterback Steve Pelluer passing for one touchdown and tailback Ron Jackson running for another, earned their second straight Rose Bowl trip Saturday with a 23-10 victory over error-plagued Washington State.

Chuck Nelson booted three field goals and Washington came up with six Cougar turnovers, four of them by quarterback Ricky Turner. Washington linebacker Ken Driscoll recovered a Turner fumble and intercepted a Turner pass.

Washington, which will go to the Rose Bowl for the third time in five seasons, earned the right to face Iowa at Pasadena on New Year's Day.

Complete College Bowl Matchups On Page B-2

Iowa, ranked 19th in the nation, defeated Michigan State, 36-7, to earn its first trip to the Rose Bowl in 23 years.

The Iowa victory, coupled with Ohio State's 14-9 decision over Michigan, made the Hawkeyes and Buckeyes co-champion of the Big Ten.

Iowa, which had endured 19 straight non-winning seasons prior to this year, becomes the Big Ten's representative in the Rose Bowl New Year's Day because Ohio State has been there more recently, going two years ago.

As a consolation prize, Washington State, which failed to complete a rags-to-riches story against the slightly favored Huskies, accepted a Holiday Bowl invitation shortly after the game. The Cougars haven't been to a bowl since their 1931 Rose Bowl appearance.

Washington needed — and got — the help of the University of Southern California Saturday. Many in the Husky Stadium crowd of 60,234 listened on transistor radios to a local broadcast of Southern Cal's 22-21 victory over UCLA in Los Angeles. UCLA would have gone to Pasadena if it had beaten Southern Cal.

Coach Don James' Huskies won their second consecutive Pacific-10 Conference football championship. They wound up the regular season with a 6-2 Pac-10 r5cord and a 9-2 overall mark.

Washington State, which was the only team in the Pac-10 Rose Bowl picture able to determine its own destiny Saturday, finished the regular season with a 5-2-1 Pac-10 mark and an 8-2-1 overall record.

East Carolina Pirates East Carolina's Pirates play host to the Australian National Team Monday at 7:30 p.m., and open the 1981-82 regular season on Saturday against Ohio University. Members of the team are, first row, left to right: Bill McNair, coach Dave Odom, Greg Batson; second row, Herbert Gilchrist, Thom Brown, Mike Fox, Charles Green, Charles Watkins, Bruce Peartree; third row, David Reicheneker, Mark McLaurin, Jeff Best, Tony Byles, Al Mack, Michael Gibson and Morris Hargrove. ECU, Odom Set To Open Season

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

If there is reason to be optimistic over East Carolina's basketball future, then the time would appear ripe. Coach Dave Odom returns all but three members of last year's team, and brought in four newcomers who have outstanding credentials.

The players gone include center Tom Szymanski, forward David Underwood and forward/guard Barry Wright. The first graduated, the second chose not to return, and the third lost the battle with the books.

Joining the veterans are two junior college players and two freshmen. Three of that group appears set to see a lot of varsity action. The two JC transfers, both all-America selections, are 6-7 forward Charles Green and 6-9 center Al Mack, while the incoming freshmen are 6-1 guard Bruce Peartree and 6-10 center David Reicheneker.

Returning are three starters off last year's team, 6-8 center Michael Gibson, 6-7 forward Mark McLaurin and 6-3 guard Charles Watkins. Joining them is Tony Byles, a 6-4 guard who started in 1979-80 but sat out last year's season.

Other returning lettermen include Morris Hargrove, a 6-7 forward, and Bill McNair, a 6-5 forward. Non-lettermen include 6-2 guard Greg Batson, 6-9 center Jeff Best, 6-3 guard Mike Fox and 6-0 guard Herbert Gilchrist.

And with 15 players, Odom is planning a short junior varsity schedule in order to give some of those who don't see as much varsity action more of a chance to play.

Tomorrow night, the Pirates go for the first time against an opponent other than themselves, the Australian National team. That game is set for 7:30 p.m. Monday. The official opening of the season comes Saturday night when the Pirates host Ohio University also in a 7:30 p.m. game in Minges.

"I may have to eat my words, but I don't look at (the Australian game) like I did the last two against Marathon Oil," Odom said. "In those games, winning and losing was secondary. Now I don't think it's win at any costs, but I and the staff, and I hope the team will take a serious look at the game and make it more than an experiment."

If there is reason to be optimistic over East Carolina's basketball future, then the time would appear ripe. Coach Dave Odom returns all but three members of last year's team and brought in four newcomers who have outstanding credentials.

Odom said he wanted to use the game as a dress rehearsal for the season. "We will not hold anything back. I think it's important that we make a good showing. We need to impress some peopel to being to establish a following and to grow into some excitement for seeing them play."

Odom also feels that it is time for the Pirates to take the initiative in getting the fans behind them. "We have a hard-core of followers, but we need to get better and have the legions grow. We need to play unselfishly but aggressively and support each other. We have this capacity. I hope that we can create a more fans and begin to build an atmophere that will excite the players, and in turn have the player excite the fans even more."

Odom, following the Purple-Gold game Wednesday, said he felt that the Pirate did a lot of things well. "We did a lot wrong too. Our offense looks eons away, but it will come."

He noted that the Pirates haven't been together in situation units prior to Thursday's practice, and that this was done intentionally. "We're not ready to announce our starters, but we're a lot closer than we were a couple of weeks ago."

Odom said that the starters would probably come from a group including Green, Gibson, Hargrove, Watkins, Byles, Brown, McLaurin and Mack, although not necessarily in that order.

Clemson Turns Up 'Orange'

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Color Clemson orange. Not only is that the university's predominant color, but the Clemson Tigers are headed for the Orange bowl after defeating South Carolina, 29-13, Saturday and completing their first perfect regular season in 33 years.

An open telephone line to Orange Bowl headquarters in Miami awaited the Tigers' when they swarmed into their exuberant locker room and Bill Atchley, president of the university, told the Orange Bowl people, "We'll bring to you a very class team and the No. 1 team in the country."

Atchley may be looking ahead a bit. Clemson is ranked second in The Associated Press poll, although the Tigers will certainly lay claim to No. 1 if they beat Nebraska in the Orange Bowl.

And, Coach Danny Ford may be thinking along those lines. "You're not great until you meet the challenge every week and they met the challenge every week," Ford said of his 11-0 club.

"I don't especially look forward to playing Nebraska too much because they seem to be rolling, but our boys will go in there and represent the Atlantic Coast Conference. This is one of the best things to happen to Clemson in a long time."

The Tigers spotted South Carolina an early touchdown, then roared from behind thanks to a pair of big defensive plays in the first half and a strong offensive showing in the second half.

Rod McSwain blocked a punt for a first-period touchdown to trigger Clemson's rally and his older brother, Chuck, ran for a pair of second-half touchdowns.

"I think the blocked punt helped turn things around for us, especially after they went right in and scored," Ford said. "We probably didn't go at it exactly right in the first half, but we had a good drive in the second half after they scored and we should had more points except for a turnover or two."

Clemson's defense, ranked 12th in the nation, also set up an 11-yard scoring scramble by quarterback Homer Jordan for a 15-7 halftime lead after Bob Paulling made up for the first missed extra point of his career with a 23-yard field goal that put the Tigers in front to stay.

After South Carolina closed within 15-13 early in the third period on a 10-yard pass from Gordon Beckham to Horace Smith — a 2-point conversion try failed when Beckham was sacked by Jeff Suttle — Clemson wrapped up its 12th consecutive victory when Chuck McSwain leaped across from a yard out later in the third quarter and bolted 23 yards for a fourth-quarter score, breaking three tackles along the way.

Only twice before has Clemson won 11 games in a season and those years, 1948 and 1978, included bowl wins. South Carolina is 6-5 with one game left and probably could have gone to the Hall of Fame bowl by beating the Tigers.

The Gamecocks started out as though they would do just that. They drove 51 yards in eight plays on their initial possession and took a 7-0 lead with only 5:55 gone on Johnnie Wright's 1-yard plunge.

A-G To Face Williams In East Finals

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer

LITTLEFIELD — Pity poor Warren County. The Eagles probably never knew what hit 'em.

Warren County knows one thing if nothing else, however: what ever it was, it never quit.

Not after seeing the Eagles drive effortlessly down the field on their opening possession before faltering inside the 20-yard line. Not after being outplayed much of the first two quarters and being down 6-0 at halftime.

Instead, Ayden-Grifton went about its appointed task — winning a football game. But, unlike the past few weeks, it was the Charger offense that was the key.

Not that the Ayden-Grifton defense did not turn in its usual head-knocking performance. It did. Only in the second half the defense was on the field for only 10 plays. The offense, meanwhile, was running 3[illegible] plays.

Among those 31 were two particularly key plays. One was a nine-yard touchdown run by tailback Cleveland Coley midway though the third period. The other was a six-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Bernard Ricciarelli to tight end Joey Kennedy early in the final period.

Those two touchdowns — plus a two-point conversion run by fullback Greg Jackson — were all Ayden-Grifton needed as the Chargers completely dominated the Eagles in the second half to defeat Warren County, 14-6, Friday night before a crowd of about 900 in the quarterfinals of the Division I State 3-A High School Playoffs.

The Chargers, who are now 10-2-0 and have won seven straight, will play host to Burlington Williams this Friday for the Eastern 3-A Championship and the right to advance to the state finals. Warren County ends the year at 9-3-0.

Burlington Williams defeated Clinton, 27-8, Friday to advance to next Friday's contest. Williams is now 11-0-0 and has won 31 straight games.

Had the Chargers played a second 24 minutes like they did the first 24 they might have been sitting at home eating Thanksgiving turkey instead of practicing as now they will after the victory.

"You and I know that it's easy to say you're gonna do what they did, but it's hard to do it," Ayden-Grifton coach Dixon Sauls said. "But these guys came out there and did it in the second half.

"I thought our guys showed a lot of character in the third quarter after being down 6-0 at halftime. Many times in playoff games the team that scores first wins."

Not Friday night. The Eagles, who saw a seven-game winning streak come to end with the loss, took the opening kickoff and moved from their 28 to the A-G 18 before being stopped on downs.

Three series later the Eagles were on the move again — and this time they found the end zone. Following a fumble by Coley which defensive tackle John Falcon recovered at the AG 48, the Eagles took just four plays to score the game's first TD.

With first and 10 from the AG 37, quarterback Mark Ellington burst through the middle of the Charger defensive line on a quarterback sneak and lumbered the remaining yards untouched for the TD — the first score on the Chargers in 11 quarters. The run for two failed, but Warren County led, 6-0, with 3:40 to go in the half.

"It was just a well-executed play," Sauls said. "I talked to one of our players and he said he had him tackled but he went for the ball and he got away."

The Chargers — whose deepest penetration of the first half was to the Eagle 36 in a series sparked by a 34-yard pass from Ricciarelli to Chris Strickland — failed to move the ball following the Warren County score and the half ended with the Chargers trailing, 6-0.

The second half was another story, a story written mainly by an offense that allowed the Eagles only 10 offensive plays. When the offense was not on the field, the defense was.

Which was unfortunate for the Eagles, especially for senior tailback Joe Greene, who came into the game having gained 1,594 yards in 11 games this season.

Greene, who is being heavily recuited by North Carolina and other Atlantic Coast Conference schools, ran for 55 yards on 14 carries in the first half. In the second half, however, he was held to eight yards in two carries.

In the second half the Eagles managed no first downs and just four yards total offense compared to the Chargers' 10 first downs and 159 yards total offense. For the game, Warren County had six first downs and 129 yards total offense compared to Ayden-Grifton's 17 first downs and 270 yards total offense.

The second half started like the first half, only with the Chargers, not the

Pitt, Georgia In Sugar; Iowa, Huskies In Rose

By The Associated Press

Pittsburgh walloped Temple Saturday and accepted a bid to play No.3 Georgia in the Sugar Bowl, setting up classic matchup between the unbeaten, top-ranked Panthers and the defending national champion Bulldogs.

Quarterback Dan Marino fired four touchdown passes as the 10-0 Panthers strolled past overwhelmed Temple, 35-0, before making their expected date with the Bulldogs for New Year's Day in New Orleans. It was the 17th consecutive victory for Pitt, which still must face No.13 Penn State in a regular season contest.

Georgia had the day off Saturday, as did No.4 Alabama, which accepted an invitation to meet Texas in the Cotton Bowl.

"Today we knew that if we won, we had a chance to go to a great bowl," Marino said. "And that's what our players have dreamed about."

A 34-12 victory by eighth-ranked Texas over Baylor, spurred by the running of fourth-team fullback Daryl Clark and A.J. "Jam" Jones, combined with No.6 Southern Methodist's 32-18 victory over No.16 Arkansas, gave the Longhorns the Southwest Conference berth in the Cotton Bowl. Clark ran for 131 yards, and Jones ran for 146 to help the Longhorns into their 17th Cotton Bowl appearance, but first since 1977.

SMU's victory clinched the Mustangs their first SWC title in 15 years, but they are under NCAA sanction and ineligible for postseason play.

Second-ranked Clemson, at 11-0 the only other major unbeaten team in the country, blocked a punt for a first-half touchdown and went on to a 29-13 triumph over South Carolina, gaining a berth in the Orange Bowl where it will play fifth-ranked Big Eight champion Nebraska, which smashed Oklahoma 37-14.

Clemson Coach Danny Ford was overjoyed with the bowl invitation, but said, "We're just worried about beating Nebraska right now. It's going to be a tough game for Clemson to win."

Ohio State upset No.7 Michigan 14-9, opening the door for 19th-ranked Iowa, which blasted Michigan State 37-7 to earn a trip to the Rose Bowl for the first time in 23 years. A Michigan victory would have assured the Wolverines a return trip to Pasadena, but Ohio State quarterback Art Schlicter ran 6 yards for his second touchdown of the game with just 2:50, putting the Buckeyes ahead to stay.

Phil Blatcher rushed for a career-high 247 yards for Iowa and scored two touchdowns as the Hawkeyes closed out their first winning season in 20 years. Iowa and Ohio State wound up tied for the Big Ten championship, but the Hawkeyes got the Rose Bowl bid because Ohio State has gone more recently.

No.17 Washington won a return trip to the Rose Bowl by beating No.14 Washington State 23-10. That, combined with 10th-ranked Southern California's 22-21 triumph over No.15 UCLA, sent the Huskies back to Padadena, where they lost to Michigan last January 1.

Another big upset Saturday was at Louisville, where the unheralded Cardinals knocked off ninth-ranked and previously unbeaten Southern Mississippi 13-10. Louisville took advantage of repeated Southern Mississippi miscues to end a four-game losing string.

However, the Golden Eagles, now 8-1-1, still drew an invitation from the Tangerine Bowl, where they will play another Saturday loser, Missouri. The Tigers of the Big Eight were upset 19-11 by Kansas.

In other games involving ranked teams, No. 11 Miami, Fla., stopped North Carolina State 14-6; Penn State came back on quarterback Todd Blackledge's second 1-yard touchdown run, with 3:48 left, to beat Notre Dame 24-21, and No.18 Brigham Young ripped Utah 56-28 in a battle for the Western Athletic Conference championship and a berth in the Holiday Bowl against Washington State's Cougars, making their first bowl appearance in 51 years.

BYU quarterback Jim McMahon passed for 565 yards and four touchdowns, completing 35 of 54 passing attempts without an interception. He also surpassed former Purdue star Mark Herrmann as the all-time college passing leader, finishing the regular season with a career total of 9,535 yards, to 9,188 for Herrmann.

No. 20 Arizona State, ineligible for a bowl bid, played at home against Colorado State Saturday night.

Arkansas gained a berth in the Gator Bowl against No.12 North Carolina, which pounded Duke 31-10 as Kelvin Bryant rushed 36 times for 247 yards and two touchdowns.

The Libery Bowl will feature Ohio State against Navy, which was idle Saturday, while Penn State accepted a bid to the Fiesta Bowl, where the Nittany Lions will play Southern Cal.

Disappointed Micmigan and UCLA will go to the Bluebonnet Bowl, where they will meet in an uprecedented postseason non-Rose Bowl collision of teams from the Big Ten and Pacific 10. And Oklahoma, despite its devastating loss to Nebraska, accepted an invitation from the Sun Bowl to play an as yet unnamed opponent.

Oklahoma State, a 27-7 winner over Iowa State, will play Texas A&M which walloped Texas Christian 37-7, in the Independence Bowl, and Wisconsin, a 26-21 victor over Minnesota, will take on Tennessee in the Garden State Bowl. Tennessee got the invitation despite losing 21-10 to Kentucky and falling to 6-4 for the season.

Syracuse upset West Virginia 27-24 in a game involving a pair of unranked teams, but the Mountaineers received and accepted an offer to play in the Peach Bowl against the winner of next Saturday's Florida-Florida State game.

Mississippi State, a 21-17 loser to Mississippi Saturday, will play in the Hall of Fame Bowl against an opponent expected to be announced Sunday.

But there's no bowl bid for Northwestern, which closed out the season with the longest losing string in the history of major college football intact. The Wildcats dropped a 49-12 decision to Illinois for their 11th loss of the season and 31st straight defeat.

Cavs Edge BYU, 63-61

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — Virginia's Ralph Sampson says he didn't mind sitting out 13 minutes of the first half while his teammates posted a 12-point cushion that eased the Cavaliers past Brigham Young 63-61 Saturday in college basketball.

"I was glad. I have a lot of confidence in our younger guys," the 7-foot-4 junior center said of the first-half performance of his freshmen and sopohmore teammates.

The Cavaliers posted a 38-26 halftime lead which crumbled in the second half as Brigham Young outscored Virginian 35-25.

"It's nice to be able to come back in the second half and make the game interesting, but it's still a doggone loss," said BYU Coach Frank Arnold.

The Cougars' charge culminated with 61-60 lead with 46 seconds left in the game.

But Virginia's only senior, Jeff Jones scored a leftside layup and a third point on a free throw to give the lead back to the Cavaliers.

Virginia, of the Atlantic Coast Conference, was ranked No. 7 in preseason poll. The Cavaliers defeated the Western Athletic Conference Brigham Young last year, 74-60, to knock the Cougars out of the NCAA postseason playoffs.

Jones' basket and free throw came with 15 seconds left in the game after Brigham Young had overcome a 12-point halftime deficit to grab a 61-60 lead, its only lead in the game.

Same Old Story: Miami 14, 'Pack 6

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Miami's 11th-ranked Hurricanes started Saturday as if they might blow North Carolina State off the football map, but the Wolfpack nearly weathered the storm before bowing 14-6.

"After the first five minutes we never did play well enough offensively to put the game away," said Miami coach Howard Schnellenberger.

"It was obvious that we were the dominant team, but North Carolina State's seniors are to be commended on the way they hung in there. If they had been able to move the ball consistently on offense, it would have been a much different game."

For North Carolina State head coach Monte Kiffen, it was the same old story of the past six weeks — his club played close but came up short.

"It was a tough loss for us," Kiffen said, "But it's been that kind of year. But like I told the squad, this was a team that never would say die. Down 14-0 right off the bat and after five straight losses, they still didn't quit."

Miami, led by quarterback Jim Kelly, struck for two touchdowns the first five minutes of play while the Hurricane's defense shut down the Wolfpack and made the early scores stand up for the victory.

Kelly completed 21 of 30 passes for 244 yards as the Hurricanes boosted their record to 8-2. The Wolfpack dropped to 4-7, including six straight losses.

The victory did not come easy as N.C. State's defense recovered from the early aerial display by Kelly to force five Miami turnovers, four after halftime.

The Wolfpack could not crack the Hurricanes' rugged defense, which limited them to 137 total yards and prevented tailback Joe McIntosh from breaking Amos Lawrence's ACC rushing record. The freshman needed 69 yards, but was held to 48.

N.C. State got its only score early in the third quarter when quarterback Ron Laraway hit wide receiver Mike Quick on a 38-yard pass.

Quick's touchdown reception was the 10th of his career, breaking the school record.

Miami threatened to score twice in the second half, but both times Wolfpack defensive end Dann Lute recovered fumbles by Robert Neal.

The Hurricanes stormed to a 14-0 lead in the opening 4:37.

Miami's second possession took only one play as Kelly found Rush on a 60-yard bomb following a Wolfpack punt, and the Hurricanes took a 14-0 lead.

Miami threatened again on its next possession, but N.C. State's Eric Williams picked Kelly's pass off in the end zone and returned it to the 29-yard line.

The Wolfpack never mounted a serious threat in the first half with quarterbacks Laraway and reserve Tol Avery unable to complete a pass.

N.C. State was held to 40 first-half rushing yards, with McIntosh getting only 26 after coming up empty his first six carries.

Miami had two other drives stalled deep in N.C. State territory, but place kicker Dan Miller missed on two 39-yard field goal tries.

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Cecil Exum hit six of nine shots from the floor and scored 19 points to lead the White team to a 68-47 victory over the Blue squad in a University of North Carolina intrasquad game Saturday.

James Worthy backed Exum with 16 points and Chris Brust added 10. John Brownlee hauled in six rebounds.

One of the big aggravations in life is taking your car for service and not getting it fixed right — the first time.
We have a new system to change all that.
It's a new quality assurance system designed to assure that you are satisfied with our work.
It starts when you buy a new car from us.
But it works with any car you bring in for service. No matter where you bought it.
Pre-delivery inspection. Our salesman who sells you one of our new cars gives it a top to bottom, inside and out inspection to make sure everything works the way it's supposed to. If he finds any deficiencies, they are reported to service management and fixed.
Quality inspector. He is specially trained to look over the service work we agreed to perform to make sure we did it right. In effect he represents you. He checks all requested repairs and service to make sure they were performed properly.
Telephone followup. We'll give you a call within a few days after you pick up your car to make sure you're satisfied with our work. We don't have to. We want to. We care.

Louisville Shocks Southern Miss; Iowa In Rose

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Sophomore quarterback Dean May passed for two second-half touchdowns Saturday to lead Louisville to a 13-10 come-from-behind upset of No.9 Southern Mississippi, spoiling the Golden Eagles dream of an undefeated season.

Southern Mississippi, which had entered the regionally televised game with an 8-0-1 record, had taken a 3-0 halftime lead on a bitterly cold day at Fairgrounds Stadium.

However, Louisville, which snapped a four-game losing streak, finished the season at 5-6, took advantage of three critical Southern Mississippi errors to go ahead.

May's first touchdown toss of 6 yards to freshman Keith Humphries with 2:39 left in the third quarter was aided by a face-mask infraction. The penalty had moved the ball to the Southern Mississippi 11-yard line two plays earlier.

Southern Mississippi had been guilty of an offside penalty two plays earlier to give Louisville a first-and-goal situation from the 5-yard line.

That touchdown was set up when Louisville linebacker Mike Trainor intercepted Southern Mississippi quarterback Reggie Collier at the 17. It was Collier's first interception of the year.

Iowa (19) 36
Michigan St. 7

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — Phil Blatcher rushed for a career-high 247 yards and scored two touchdowns as 19th-rated Iowa defeated Michigan State 36-7 in Big Ten Conference football Saturday to earn its first trip to the Rose Bowl in 23 years.

The Iowa victory, coupled with Ohio State's 14-9 decision over Michigan, made the Hawkeyes and Buckeyes co-champion of the Big Ten.

Iowa, which had endured 19 straight non-winning seasons prior to this year, becomes the Big Ten's representative in the Rose Bowl New Year's Day because Ohio State has been there more recently, going two years ago.

Hundreds of Iowa fans poured onto the field after the game, surrounded the Hawkeye players and tore down both goal posts.

Iowa, which finished 8-3 for the regular season and 6-2 in the conference, last played in the Rose Bowl following the 1958 season. The Hawkeyes' last Big Ten championship was in 1960, which also was the last year Iowa won as many as eight games in a season.

Blatcher, a senior playing in his last home game, delighted a Kinnick Stadium crowd of 60,103, carrying 27 times for the second highest one game total in the school history. The 5-foot, 9-inch, 188-pounder scored on a 9-yard run to start a 16-point first quarter outburst and dove in from 1 yard out late in the third quarter to give the Hawkeyes a 25-7 lead and seal the victory.

Tom Nichol kicked second half field goals of 26 and 23 yards for Iowa, which led 16-7 at halftime, and No. 2 quarterback Pete Gales threw a 9-yard touchdown pass to Vince Campbell late in the game to complete the scoring.

Eddie Phillips scored on a 1-yard run for Iowa in the first quarter. That came after the Hawkeyes got a safety when linebacker James Erb blocked a punt and the ball rolled out of the end zone.

Bryan Clark tossed a 1-yard pass to James Hodo late in the first half for Michigan State's only touchdown. The Spartans finished 5-6 overall and 4-5 in the league.

SMU (6) 32
Arkansas (16) 18

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Southern Methodist University's pass-grabbing defense scored one touchdown and set up the winning score by picking off two passes as the sixth-ranked Mustangs overcame Arkansas 32-18 and sewed up their first Southwest Conference championship in 15 years.

Craig James' 10-yard run with 6:30 left in the game put the Mustangs on top 25-18. That came two plays after Eric Ferguson intercepted a poorly thrown Brad Taylor pass and returned it 7 yards to the Arkansas 14.

Two plays before Ferguson's interception, Eddie Garcia kicked his fourth field goal of the game — a 47-yarder — to tie it 18-18.

Prior to James' run, SMU's only touchdown came when defensive end Russell Washington intercepted a Tom Jones pass and ran 10 yards into the end zone. That gave the Mustangs a 12-7 lead with 4:39 left in the second quarter. An interception on the final play of the game gave SMU a nation-leading 31 for the season.

SMU, which is on NCAA probation and ineligible for a bowl game, finished the season 10-1 and 7-1 in the SWC. It was the Mustangs' best record since the 1935 team took a 12-0 record to the Rose Bowl. The 16th-ranked Razorbacks wound up 8-3 and 5-3 in the conference and were expected to accept a bid to the Gator Bowl.

The only time SMU's Craig James had to kick from punt formation all day came in the final two minutes and he shanked one out of bounds on the SMU's side of the 50. However, Arkansas had 12 men on the field, and Eric Dickerson tacked on a meaningless 31-yard touchdown run with 27 seconds left in the game.

Ohio State 14
Michigan (7) 9

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Ohio State quarterback Art Schlichter swept 6 yards for his second touchdown with 2:50 remaining in the game, giving the Buckeyes to a 14-9 Big Ten Conference football victory over seventh-ranked Michigan Saturday.

The triumph guaranteed the Buckeyes at least a share of the Big Ten championship with a 6-2 conference record and dropped Michigan to 6-3 in the Big Ten. Both teams finished the regular season with 8-3 overall records. The loss ended Michigan's chance to return to the Rose Bowl.

Schlichter, a 6-foot-3, 208-pound senior who has started every game during his four years at Ohio State, plunged 1 yard for a touchdown in the second quarter, putting the Buckeyes ahead 7-3 at the half.

Michigan's Ali Haji-Sheikh, who kicked a 19-yard field goal in the first quarter, connected on attempts of 26 and 23 yards in the third quarter, putting he Wolverines back on top 9-7.

Michigan had several chances to put the game away, but could not break the Ohio State defense.

On a third-and-goal situation at the Ohio State 8-yard line, Michigan quarterback Steve Smith tried to drill a pass to tight end Craig Dunaway, but it was tipped by Buckeyes' defensive back Shaun Gayle and intercepted by Kelvin Bell.

The ball was brought to the Ohio State 20 and Schlichter marched the Buckeyes down the field for the winning touchdown in 13 plays.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Quarterback Dan Marino passed for four touchdowns as top-ranked and undefeated Pittsburgh crushed Temple 35-0 in a sloppily played college football game Saturday.

The Panthers, 10-0, who may well face Georgia in a rematch of the 1976 Sugar Bowl that gave Pitt the national championship, were to hold a press conference following the game. Sugar and Orange Bowl representatives were present, and bids were to be offered Saturday afternoon.

Marino hooked up with flanker Barry Compton for two quick touchdowns and halfback Bryan Thomas cut back for 19 yards and a third score to give Pitt a 21-0 Pitt first-quarter lead.

Marino, a 6-foot-4 junior who holds nearly all of Pitt's passing records, went into the game ranked the nation's most efficient quarterback. He completed 20 of 34 attempts for 249 yards, but was intercepted four times, twice in the end zone, to blunt Pitt drives.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Fourth-team fullback Daryl Clark rushed for 131 yards and A.J. "Jam" Jones ground out 146 yards Saturday to power the No. 8-ranked Texas Longhorns to a 34-12 Southwest Conference victory over Baylor to earn a berth in the Cotton Bowl.

Southern Methodist, which beat Arkansas 32-18 to win the title outright, is on probation.

It will be the Longhorns' 17th Cotton Bowl appearance and its first since 1977.

The victory lifted Texas' overall record to 8-1-1 and gave the Longhorns a 5-1-1 SWC ledger.

Defending champion Baylor, seeking its first victory here in 30 years, ended its season 5-6 and 3-5 in the conference.

Late TD By Allen Lifts Trojans By UCLA, 22-21

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It wasn't a great day for Marcus Allen in one regard, as he lost three fumbles. But it was a great day for the Trojan tailback in every other regard.

"I'm proud of myself for not putting my head down; I just kept running hard," Allen said Saturday after leading the 10th-ranked Southern Cal Trojans to a dramatic 22-21 Pacific-10 victory over No. 15 UCLA.

Allen rushed for 219 yards and scored twice, the final time with 2:14 remaining, to help the Trojans to the come-from-behind victory.

"This was an extremely exciting, emotional, physical game," he added. "I'm drained."

It was the final regular-season game for both teams, but each will appear in a bowl. The Trojans will face Penn State in the Fiesta Bowl on Jan. 1, with the Bruins meeting Michigan in the Bluebonnet Bowl on New Year's Eve.

Even after he scored the late touchdown, Allen and the rest of the Trojans had to watch UCLA fail on a last-gasp field goal attempt.

"I don't think anybody thought we were going to win, that UCLA was going to kick that field goal," Allen said. "Our motto is, 'We never give up.'"

Southern Cal Coach John Robinson said: "This game showed our courage. Marcus Allen had the greatest season any player has ever had; it's impossible to refute it."

UCLA Coach Terry Donahue was disappointed, but said: "I couldn't be any prouder of our players. I thought our team played with great character. It was a great football game."

USC nose guard George Achica preserved the win when he blocked a 46-yard field goal attempt by the Bruins' Norm Johnson as time expired.

Allen, who carried 40 times, scored on 5-yard run in the contest's closing minutes and Frank Jordan kicked the extra point to give the Trojans the victory.

The defeat ended UCLA's Pac-10 title and Rose Bowl hopes, as the Bruins fell to 5-2-1 in conference play and 7-3-1 overall. The Trojans finished the regular season 9-2 and 5-2.

The Bruins led 21-12 heading into the final quarter, but Jordan hit his third field goal of the game, a 28-yarder early in the period, to cut the deficit to six points.

Allen's other touchdown came on a 7-yard burst in the second period. Jordan's earlier field goals were 38 and 44 yards.

UCLA's scoring came on an 11-yard run by Kevin Nelson that gave the Bruins a 7-3 lead after the first quarter; a 23-yard pass from Ramsey to Ricky Coffman, and a two-point conversion pass; and Johnson field goals of 32 and 28 yards.

Allen, already the NCAA's leading single-season rusher in history, increased his 1981 output to 2,342 yards. No other college runner has ever topped 2,000. It was also his eighth 200-yald game of the season.

Ramsey, providing the bulk of the Bruin offense, completed 12 of 25 for 154 yards. Nelson led the UCLA rushing game with 79 yards on 26 carries.

Fullback Todd Spencer picked up 86 yards on 12 carries for the Trojans, including three carries for a total of 21 yards in the final scoring drive.

Allen's running made up for a poor passing performance by quarterback John Mazur, who hit on nine of 22 for just 65 yards.

Wysocki Lifts Terps Past Virginia, 48-7

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) - Tailback Charlie Wysocki ran for 153 yards and four touchdowns Saturday and Boomer Esiason set a school single-season passing record as Maryland rolled to a 48-7 victory over Virginia.

Wysocki ran in two first-half touchdowns from 8 and 13 yards as Maryland took a commanding 27-10 lead at intermission. He scored two more touchdowns in the third quarter on runs of 1 and 2 yards.

Esiason completed 10 of 13 passes for 191 yards, including a 53-yard pass to Russell Davis that set up Wysocki's one-yard TD plunge in the third period.

Esiason completed his 122nd pass of the season to break the old school record of 121 comletions set in 1962 by Dick Shiner.

Virginia, 1-9, did not cross the 50-yard line until late in the second quarter. The Cavaliers got no closer than the Maryland 38 in the first half.

Virginia's defense failed to stop Maryland until Tim Whittie fumbled in the end zone late in the second half.

Early in the first quarter, the Cavaliers stopped the Terps on the Virginia 10, but were penalized for having too many players on the field. The penalty enabled the Terps to score on a one-yard run by Whittie.

Mark Sanford scored Virginia's only touchdown in the third period on an 5-yard pass from Todd Kirtling.

Vernon Carter ran 11 yards for a Maryland touchdown in the fourth quarter. Jesse Atkinson added field goals of 38 and 27 yards.

The Terps' first touchdown was set up when Mark Wilson intercepted a pass from Virginia quarterback Mike Eck on the Cavalier 22 on the second play of the game.

Three plays later, Wysocki ran into the Virginia end zone from the 8.

Kirtley's seven-yard pass to Nick Merrick at 8:15 of the second quarter marked Virginia's first completion.

Kirtey completed 13 of 28 passes for 128 yards.

Eck completed one pass in 11 attempts. Gordon Whitehead, playing with a separated shoulder, threw two incomplete passes, including an interception during his brief appearance in the second quarter.

Cornhuskers Roll Into Orange Bowl Vs. Tigers

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Quarterback Mark Mauer threw for 148 yards and one touchdown and I-back Roger Craig rushed for 102 yards as No. 5 Nebraska crushed Big Eight rival Oklahoma 37-14 Saturday, finishing the regular season with a perfect conference record and an Orange Bowl trip.

Craig eclipsed the 1,000-yard mark for the season on a 19-yard first-quarter touchdown that put Nebraska in the lead to stay. Alternate I-back Mike Rozier had 105 yards rushing. The two Cornhusker backs between them amassed a total of more than 2,000 yards for the season.

By beating Oklahoma, 5-4-1, the Cornhuskers, 9-2, ended a winless streak at Owen Field that began in 1971. This game also was the first time since 1969 that the conference title wasn't on the line when the two teams met.

Nebraska, which lost to Iowa and Penn State early in the season, started slowly Saturday by giving the unranked Sooners an easy touchdown on Oklahoma's first drive. However, Oklahoma turnovers and a strong Nebraska defense quickly turned the tide.

The Sooners, who face Oklahoma State next week in the regular season finale for both teams, got most of their offensive production from fullback Stanley Wilson, who had 164 yards on 21 carries.

Wilson also surpassed the 1,000-yard rushing mark for the season.

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Gary Anderson kicked two fourth-quarter field goals and Joe Morris rushed for 168 yards and two touchdowns in the last game of his record-spangled career Saturday as Syracuse upset bowl-bound West Virginia 27-24 in college football.

Morris bagged 3 yards for one touchdown and circled left end 30 yards for another to give the Orangemen the lead after a 17-7 intermission deficit.

Anderson's kicks were from 23 and 44 yards out — the last with just 4:13 to play. It broke a 24-24 tie that resulted from west Virginia quarterback Oliver Luck's 8-yard pass to Wayne Brown.

Syracuse completed a 4-6-1 season with two straight victories, while West Virginia dropped to 8-3.

In the first quarter, Syracuse had the ball only eight plays as Luck, the Mountaineers' superb quarterback, dominated play. Luck's uncanny passing gave West Virginia a 10-0 lead after 15 minutes on the strength of a 29-yard field goal by Paul Woodside and a 5-yard scoring pass to Mark Raugh.

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) — Tony Eason hurled three touchdown passes Saturday giving him a Big Ten season record of 20 and led Illinois to a 49-12 victory over winless Northwestern in a record-smashing aerial contest.

The triumph enabled Illinois to close the season with a 7-4 record overall and 6-3 in the Big Ten for its best showing since 1963, while Northwestern saw its major college record losing streak extended to 31 games.

The two teams threw a total of 109 passes, eclipsing the Big Ten record of 100 in one game set earlier this season by Minnesota with 67 and Ohio State with 33. Northwestern attempted 58 passes to 51 by Illinois.

Nittany Lions Rally By Fighting Irish, 24-21

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP) — Quarterback Todd Blackledge's second 1-yard touchdown run with 3:48 left rallied 13th-ranked Penn State to a 24-21 victory over Notre Dame Saturday and several hours later the Nittany Lions accepted an invitation to the New Year's Day Fiesta Bowl.

Penn State President Dr. John W. Oswald accepted the invitation for State to play in the 11th annual Fiesta Bowl in Tempe, Ariz. It will be the 14th post-season game in Coach Joe Paterno's 16 years as head coach.

Penn State trailed 21-17 with 7:45 left in the final period when tackle Greg Gattuso intercepted a Notre Dame pass at the Penn State 18. State then drove 82 yards on nine plays for the winning touchdown.

The key plays in the drive were a 20-yard pass from Blackledge to Gregg Garrity, and runs of 13, 25 and 9 by tailback Jon Williams that moved the ball to the Notre Dame 14.

Fullback Tom Barr gained 2, Blackledge 8 and Curt Warner 3 for a first down at the 1-yard line from where Blackledge scored on the next play.

The score was 7-7 only 2:15 into the game after Penn State tallied on a 4-yard run by Williams and Joe Carter smashed a yard for Notre Dame. Blackledge tallied from the 1 to give Penn State a 14-7 first quarter lead.

In the second quarter, Penn State went ahead 17-7 on a 27-yard field goal by Brian Franco and Notre Dame scored on a 17-yard pass from quarterback Blair Kiel to Tony Hunter and trailed 17-14 at halftime.

Notre Dame, now 5-5, went ahead at 1:05 of the third period 21-17, on a 4-yard pass from Kiel to fullback John Sweeney and held on until State's final drive.

BYU (18).....56
Utah.....28

PROVO, Utah (AP) — Quarterback Jim McMahon of Brigham Young University became major college football's all-time passing leader Saturday, throwing for 565 yards and four touchdowns to lead the 18th-ranked Cougars to a 56-28 victory over upstate rival Utah and an automatic berth in the Holiday Bowl.

The victory gave BYU its sixth straight shared or outright Western Athletic Conference championship and fourth consecutive trip to San Diego for the Holiday Bowl on Dec.18. A victory for Utah would have meant the title and bowl trip.

McMahon, who played his final game at home, broke the NCAA career passing mark of 9,188 yards previously held by Mark Herrmann of Purdue. McMahon, who needed 218 yards to shatter the mark, finished with 9,535 yards.

McMahon exceeded Herrman's career total offense mark two weeks ago.

The 6-foot-1 senior threw touchdown passes of 8, 6, 27 and 37 yards — two of them to tight end Gordon Hudson, who finished with 12 catches for 229 yards.

Utah's offensive attack was powered by running back Del Rodgers, who gained 173 yards in 14 carries and scored three touchdowns. On the game's first play from scrimmage, Rodgers scooted 87 yards for a TD.

Trailing 10-7 late in the first quarter, McMahon threw an 8-yard touchdown pass to Hudson and BYU never trailed after that. The Cougars held a 35-21 halftime lead.

In all, McMahon completed 35 of 54 passes with no interceptions and ended his regular-season career with 57 NCAA records, including nine in his final game.

Boston College....27
Rutgers 21

NEWTON, Mass. (AP) — Boston College turned two third-quarter fumble recoveries into a 36-yard field goal by John Cooper and a 4-yard touchdown pass from Doug Flutie to Brian Krystoforski and held on to defeat Rutgers 27-21 in college football Saturday.

The victory boosted the Eagles' record to 4-6 with one game left at Holy Cross next Saturday. Rutgers suffered its fifth straight loss and ended the season at 5-6, their first losing campaign since 1971.

Rutgers tied the game 14-14 29 seconds before halftime on a 1-yard run by Joe Burke, who scored three touchdowns.

But on Rutgers' first play of the third quarter, Bryant Moore fumbled and linebacker Jim Budness recovered at the Scarlet Knights' 26 yard line. Four plays later, Cooper kicked his field goal to give Boston College a lead it never lost.

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Quarterback John Fourcade kept one yard for a touchdown with two seconds left Saturday to earn Mississippi a 21-17 football upset of arch-rival Mississippi State only moments after it had appeared the bowl-bound Bulldogs had rescued a victory.

Dana Moore kicked a 27-yard field goal with 30 seconds left for a 17-14 Mississippi State lead but the Rebels fought back on a deperation 60-yard drive, aided a pass interference call in the end zone that put the ball on the one for Fourcade's final dash.

Moore's low line drive through the uprights had given the Bulldogs the lead after the Rebels tied it 14-14 with 3:37 left in the game on a 75-yard drive engineered by Fourcade, who got the touchdown on a 10-yard scramble.

The victory capped a big day for Fourcade, a senior playing his last game in a Rebel uniform, who hit 21 of 29 passes for 240 yards, ruining the Bulldogs' sendoff to the Hall of Fame Bowl.

The loss dropped Mississippi State to 7-4, including 4- BUST IT

Kentucky 21
Tennessee.....10

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Randy Jenkins passed for two touchdowns and Lawrence "Choo Choo" Lee dived one-yard for a third score as Kentucky whipped Tennessee 21-10 in a Southeastern Conference football Saturday.

Kentucky finished 3-8 for the second straight year and was 2-4 in the SEC. The loss Tennessee to 6-4 overall, 2-3 in league play and may have dashed the Vols' hopes for a minor-bowl bid.

Tennessee grabbed a 3-0 lead on Fuad Reveiz's 23-yard field goal as time expired in the first quarter.

Quarterback Steve Alatorre teamed with Anthony Hancock for a 65-yard touchdown pass play that put the Vols ahead 10-0 with 7:55 to go in the half.

The Wildcats bounced back on the next series, with Lee's run capping an 86-yard drive that narrowed the gap to 10-7.

Kentucky took a 14-10 lead five seconds before the break on Jenkins' 12-yard pass to Pete Venable.

Steelwheels Capture 2

FAYETTEVILLE — The Greenville Steelwheels opened their 1981 season with two easy victories over the Fayetteville Wheel-Trotters here Saturday afternoon.

In the opener, the Steelwheels defeated Fayetteville, 66-22, behind Troy People's 22 points and Joe Riley's 18. The Wheel-Trotters played the game under protest.

In the second game, Theron Moye scored 17 points and Butch Ferrell 16 as Greenville won, 79-31.

Waltrip Near First NASCAR Crown

(Lineup on page B-14)

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) — Darrell Waltrip, ever so close to winning his first Winston Cup Grand National championship, looks like a sure bet for the title after winning the pole position for Sunday's Winston Western 500 at the Riverside International Raceway.

Waltrip accomplished the feat on Friday as he set a new track record, touring the 2.62-mile Riverside road course at 114.981 mph in his Mountain Dew Buick. That broke the record of 114.752 mph he set last January.

Waltrip, of Charlotte, N.C., needs only to finish 20th or better in Sunday's race in order to clinch the title he has never won.

Bobby Allison, Waltrip's only obstacle in his quest for the 1981 Winston Cup title, qualified a disappointing fifth Friday with an average speed of 112.413 mph.

Waltrip would almost have to encounter mechanical troubles early in Sunday's race for Allison, who trails by 83 points, to have a shot at the championship.

Waltrip, with 12 Winston Cup race victories already behind him, has now won the pole position for 14 races this year, and in the last six races where he started first, he finished first.

"That (his time) was a second-plus better than we had been running," said Waltrip. "But we really hadn't tried that hard before. Starting on the pole will be a big help in our bid to win the championship.

"This way we can lead the first lap and get away from the rest of the field. After that, I'm just going to let the race pace decide what I do."

Friday's qualifying, which was delayed for nearly two hours to clean up oil spills from several blown engines, finished virtually in the dark. The final few cars made it through their two-lap runs just as the day's light was disappearing.

Terry Labonte was the second-fastest for the day with a speed of 113.597 mph, while Dale Earnhardt, the defending Winston Cup champion, was third at 113.049 mph, followed by Harry Gant at 112.573 mph and Allison.

A total of 25 drivers qualified for the race on Friday. The final 10 positions were scheduled to be filled in qualifying today, followed by the Warner Hodgdon 300 for Grand American Cars.

VMI Stops Virginia Tech, 6-0

BLACKSBURG, Va. (AP) — Anthony Agostinelli scored the game's only touchdown, set up by a fumble recovery, as Virginia Military's Keydets upset Virginia Tech 6-0 Saturday to end any slim post-season football bowl hopes the Hokies might have had.

VMI, breaking a three-game losing streak and finishing its season with a 6-3-1 record, got the lone score in the third quarter after defensive tackle Jim Rice recovered a Steve Casey fumble to give the Keydets the ball at the Hokies' 20.

After a 3-yard run by reserve tailback Stan Bass, VMI quarterback Kelly Raber completed a 15-yard pass to John Dodge to the Tech 23. Two plays later, Agostinelli scored on a 1-yard run.

Aside from Agostinelli's touchdown, the only scoring threats were 36 and 51-yard field goal attempts by VMI's Lee Wimbish and a 26-yard effort by Tech's Don Wade.

W. Carolina.....21
ASU 10

CULLOWHEE, N.C. (AP) — Quarterback Ronnie Mixon threw for two touchdowns and Western Carolina took advantage of Appalachian State turnovers to post a 21-10 victory in Southern Conference football action Saturday.

Mixon completed 14 of 26 passes for 175 yards, including scoring passes of 30 yards to Kristy Kaiser and 29 yards to Dwayne Norman. Jeff Dean, the league's leading receiver, caught 7 passes for 73 yards.

Appalachian State drew first blood when Alvin Parker crashed over from five yards in the second period.

The Catamounts bounced back quickly, with Mixon hitting on 2 of 4 passes within 35 seconds, the last to Kaiser for the score.

Melvin Dorsey capped a 63-yard, 9-play drive in the third period with a 1-yard run to give Western the lead for good.

ASU cut the lead to 14-10 on Mark French's school record 55-yard field goal before Norman's touchdown reception ended the scoring.

The Mountaineers were guilty of six turnovers, three in the final period.

Parker paced Appalachian State with 198 yards rushing in 28 carries and quarterback Randy Joyce completed 21 of 44 passes for 210 yards.

Western Carolina, which lost its first five games, finished at 4-7, 3-4 in the conference. Appalachian State, which won its first three, finished at 3-7-1, 1-5-1 in league play.

Citadel.....35
Furman 18

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — Tailback Danny Miller scored two touchdowns and fullback Wilford Alston passed for one score and ran for another here Saturday as The Citadel exploded for five touchdowns in the second half to storm past Southern Conference champion Furman, 35-18.

Trailing 10-0 in the third quarter, The Citadel got on the scoreboard on Miller's one-yard run in the third quarter. The Bulldogs took the lead, 14-10, on a 2-yard Alston pass to wide receiver Byron Walker on the first play of the final period.

Eleven seconds later, Miller scored again, this time on a 23-yard run after Furman fumbled the kickoff return. The Bulldogs added two more touchdowns on Alston's 8-yard run and quarterback Tracey Shrader's 20-yard scoring pass to end Bill White in the next seven minutes.

A Tim Tanguay field goal of 22 yards and quarterback Tim Sorrells' one-yard dive gave Furman its 10-0 first quarter lead. Fumbles by The Citadel, which had a total of six for the game, set up the Paladin scores. Stanford Jennings scored Furman's final touchdown.

The Citadel grabbed the momentum late in the third quarter when Furman punter John Johnson, trying to catch the Bulldogs napping by running for a first down, was thrown for a 7-yard loss to the Furman 35.

The Bulldogs got it by Shrader, who had suffered difficulties in the opening period as his team fumbled twice on its first two possessions, got in position to set up the Alston-to-Walker play. From there, the game belonged to the Bulldogs.

Furman had its problems with turnovers, as Sorrells was intercepted three times and the Paladins dropped five fumbles.

The Citadel victory, which lifted the Bulldogs to 7-3-1, finally allowed Coach Art Baker to win a game in this longtime intrastate rivalry. Baker's teams lost five straigt times to The Citadel when he was coaching at Furman and the Bulldogs had dropped three straight to Furman after Baker came to the military college in 1978.

The loss dropped the Paladins to 8-3.

Waltrip Named Driver Of Year

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock car racing star Darrell Waltrip nipped Indy car champion Rick Mears in the balloting for the prestigious Olsonite Driver of the Year award for 1981.

Waltrip, who needs only to finish in the top 20 at Riverside International Raceway in the NASCAR season finale Sunday to clinch his first national driving championship, already has won 10 pole positions and 12 races, garnering more than $500,000 in prize money, during the first 30 races of the Grand National season.

The driver from Franklin, Tenn., campaigning Buicks prepared by Junior Johnson and sponsored by Mountain Dew, has finished in the top three 21 times so far this season.

The balloting by 10 leading U.S. motorsports writers in each of four quarters during the year wound up with the 34-year-old Waltrip, a veteran of seven years of full-time Grand National racing, gaining his second Driver of the Year award. He also won in 1979 after driving spectacularly most of the season and finishing a close second to Richard Petty in the Grand National championship.

Waltrip compiled 22 points, while Mears, who won the second Championship Auto Racing Teams Indy car title of his career, was second with 18 points. Others finishing high in the voting included stock car drivers Bobby Allison, 16 points, and Petty, 7½; sports car driver Mrian Redman, 7, and Indy car and Formula I star Mario Andretti.

The Olsonite award carries with it a cash prize of $10,000 and a trophy, both of which will be presented to Waltrip in December at a luncheon in New York City.

Mears gained all of his points in winning the third and fourth quarter balloting.

Coley, Jackson 'Ground Out' Win Over Eagles

Cleveland Coley

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer

LITTLEFIELD — Ayden-Grifton tailback Cleveland Coley knew his team needed a lift, what with the Chargers trailing Warren County, 6-0, at halftime. And the 5-5, 145-pound senior was not about to let his team down.

So, Coley came out in the second half and on the first play from scrimmage raced around right end for 28 yards and a first down — the first of 10 second-half first downs for the Chargers.

More than that, however, the run set the tone for the entire second half as the Charger offense totally dominated the last 24 minutes to come away with a 14-6 victory over the Eagles in the quarterfinals of the Division I 3-A State High School Playoffs.

Ayden-Grifton, now 10-2-0, will play host to undefeated Burlington Williams Friday night for the Eastern 3-A Championship and the right to advance to the state finals. Williams defeated Clinton, 27-8, Friday to extend its winning streak to 31 straight.

The second-half surge by the Chargers which brought them the shot at Williams came mainly on the legs of Coley and running mate Gregory Jackson and the blocking of the Charger offensive line.

"I felt like both Gregory Jackson and Cleveland Coley ran extremely hard tonight," Ayden-Grifton coach Dixon Sauls said. "They got the blocking they were accustomed to during the regular season."

The Chargers rushed for 220 yards on the ground against a Warren County team that had shut out four of its last five opponents and had routed Tarboro, 42-6, in its playoff opener.

Jackson, a 6-0, 190-pound senior fullback, led the Charger ground assault with 105 yards on 23 carries. Jackson now has 1,208 yards this season. Coley, a 5-5, 145-pound senior, was right behind his running mate with 101 yards on 18 carries and now has 1,014 yards this year.

For Coley, it was an especially pleasing performance, coming as it did after being held to four yards by White Oak before being thrown out of the game in the third quarter of the Chargers' 8-0 victory over the Vikings.

"I've played with these guys for three years and this is my fourth year," Coley said. "I feel like the guys look up to me as the captain and a leader. When I was out last week they played some good football.

"Last week got to me, though. I lost my head. The dude hit me up side my head and the referee said it was a good shot. I didn't know, my head was hurting too much."

It was Warren County that was hurting Friday night, however. Sparked by Coley's 28-yard burst early in the third period, the Chargers drove 81 yards in nine plays for the tying touchdown — a nine-yard jaunt by Coley around left end. Jackson then put the Chargers ahead when he walked into the end zone for the two points.

"I felt like coming out in the second half we needed to get off a couple good runs and we'd be able to put it together," Coley said. "We just ran a student body left (on the touchdown run) and I kept ticking (into the end zone)."

Like all good backs, Coley was quick to praise his offensive line. "The lineman were telling me that if I cut off their blocks we'd do something and I felt very positive about it," he said. "I've got to give the credit to my line. They do the work. All I do is look and run."

It was that offensive line — center Derrick Atkinson, guards Chuck Smithwick and Donovan Arnold and tackles Matthew McCotter and Kevin Craft — that allowed the Chargers to control the ball for 31 plays in the second half and gain 159 yards to the Eagles' four.

But, as is always the case this season with Ayden-Grifton, the defense also had a lot to say about the outcome. When Warren County scored in the second quarter it ended an 11-period scoreless streak by the Chargers, which dated back to Ayden-Grifton's 27-13 win over Southern Nash.

At the outset Friday night, however, the defense was shaky. The Eagles took the opening kickoff and used the running of tailback Joe Greene to move from their 28 to the A-G 18 before being stopped on downs.

Greene, a 6-1, 194-pound senior who gained 1,594 yards this season, ran for 47 yards on the drive. For the rest of the game, Greene, who is being recruited heavily by most of the Atlantic Coast Conference schools, was held to 16 yards by the A-G defense.

"That first drive gave us cause for concern," Sauls said. "But we thought we were tackling him hard and that was our main concern, that we got enough people around him."

Coley, who plays linebacker on defense, agreed with his coach. "In the first half their lineman were getting out past our defensive lineman," he said. "They got to me early (at linebacker), but I felt the whole week we could stop Mr. Greene if we caught him."

In holding Greene to 63 yards, the Chargers were just doing what they have done the last two weeks in Littlefield, which may become known as the Graveyard of the Running Backs before long.

In their season finale two weeks ago, the Chargers held Southwest Edgecombe running back Wayne Mayo to eight yards in six carries. Mayo came into the game with nearly 1,000 yards and was the Eastern Carolina Conference's second-leading runner.

Last week Ayden-Grifton did it again. This time the Chargers held White Oak tailback Ivery Meadows to 51 yards in 18 carries. Meadows, a 5-6, 204-pounder senior, came into the game having rushed for 1,404.

Next up for the Chargers is Burlington Williams. Williams, unlike the last three teams Ayden-Grifton has faced, relies heavily on a balanced running attack.

The Bulldogs, 11-0-0 this season, run out of a wishbone and are led by halfback Gary Blackwell, who has gained nearly 900 yards this season. He was but one of five backs to gain 40 yards or more in Williams' win Friday over Clinton.

One thing that will not change come Friday night, however, is the fact the Chargers will once again be underdogs.

"The thing is that every week we play we seem to be underdogs," Coley said. "And if we are we want to go out and make you look like fools. People are down on us, but we can play with anybody in the state."

Chargers Rally...

Coley gained 101 yards in 18 carries while Jackson led the Chargers with 105 yards on 23 carries. Jackson leads A-G in rushing this season with 1,208 yards while Coley has amassed 1,013 yards.

The Chargers came out in the second half revved up and ready to go and it was Coley who led the way. On the opening play from scrimmage Coley took a pitch around the right side and then cut back across the middle for a 28-yard gain to the A-G 47.

Three plays later it was Jackson's turn. The 6-0, 190-pound senior muscled through the middle of the line on a cross-buck for a 12-yard gain and a first down at the Warren County 31.

A late hit three plays later gave Ayden-Grigton its fourth first down of the drive to the Eagle 13. Coley twisted up the middle for four yards on the next play before knifing off left end for the final nine yards one play later.

Jackson then walked into the end zone untouched on a trap for the two points and the Chargers led, 8-6, with 6:56 left in the third period.

"It (being behind at halftime) is a situation we've been in before," Sauls said. "We just told the guys they needed to come out in the third quarter and take charge.

"We decided to run more off tackle plays because they were playing their ends very loose. Our guards (Chuck Smithwick and Donovan Arnold) did an exceptional job kicking out their ends and our backs cut up behind them."

The Chargers' dominance had only begun. After the Eagles were forced to punt after gaining six yards on three plays, the Chargers started on what would be a 15-play, 65-yard drive for their second touchdown of the half.

Several key plays kept the drive alive. On third and two early in the march, Jackson took a straight dive off the right side for four yards and a first down.

A late hit — the Eagles second such penalty in the quarter — gave the Chargers a second first down at the Warren County 35. Then, on fourth and one from the 25, Ricciarelli went for three yards straight up the middle on a quarterback sneak.

Two carries by Jackson brought the Chargers another first down — their seventh of the second half. Three thrusts into the line gained six yards, giving the Chargers a fourth and four at the six.

A big play was needed. And that was just what the Chargers got. Using a quick count, Ricciarelli got the snap, took a step back, looked right and then rifled a low throw to Kennedy at the goal line.

Kennedy cradled the ball to his chest after bobbling it momentarily and, after a brief hesitation by the officials, it was ruled a touchdown. The run for two failed, but A-G led, 14-6, with 9:19 left in the game.

"It was about at my knees," Kennedy said. "It was kind of behind me and just as I caught it I got tackled from behind. I may have bobbled it and I think that may have been what the referee behind me saw.

"I didn't know if they had called it a touchdown," he said. "When they set the ball at the extra point line I didn't know what was going on."

While the Chargers were in control, they still had to repel one last Warren County threat — the only one of the second half.

On the ensuing kickoff, Greene caught the ball at the 15 and took off up the right sideline. When the Chargers finally tackled him, Greene had galloped 50 yards to the A-G 35.

Suddenly, an eight-point lead seemed small indeed. A sneak by Ellington netted three yards, but a illegal motion penalty on the next play put the ball back to the 37.

Ellington then threw a bad pass over the middle that Kennedy picked off at the AG 15 to end the threat with less than eight minutes to go in the game. "I read the tight end," Kennedy said. "He blocked down and the flanker did kind of a post. I just floated back and saw the ball and intercepted it."

The interception stopped Warren County's only threat of the second half. On their next possession, the Eagles managed minus-four yards before punting. Their final possession lasted only two plays before A-G defensive back Tyrone Gay intercepted a pass as time ran out.

"This team has fought for respect all year long," Sauls said afterwards in a crowded and happy Ayden-Grifton locker room. "We've made it to the final four in football and I think that deserves some respect. The way they came back tonight shows that we have a special group of kids."

Chargers Rated 9th In Reflector's Poll

The Daily Reflector's High School Football Rankings show some change following the second week of the State Playoffs. There is a new leader in both the 3-A and 4-A ranks, and Ayden-Grifton's Chargers make their first appearance in the poll.

Rankings are based on points scored by victories and victories by a team's victims.

Terry Sandord continues to lead the 4-A ranks, having piled up 121½ points so far. The unbeaten Fayetteville team will meet number four ranked Rocky Mount in the next round of the playoffs. Number two South Mecklenburg takes on number three T.W. Andrews for the western championship.

In the 3-A ranks, Williams of Burlington has moved into the number one spot held by Clinton with 104 points. Williams will now meet number nine ranked Ayden-Grifton for the Eastern Championship. Number four Mt. Airy takes on number eight Clyde Erwin for the western title.

In the 3-A's Division II playoffs, number five Bertie meets number six Eastern Guilford for the Eastern Championship, while unranked East Surry meets number three Brevard for the Western title.

Among the 2-A, Whiteville has moved to the top of the pack with 85½ points. Whiteville meets number six Fuquay-Varina for the eastern title, with number two Randleman taking on number four Swain in the west.

In the 2-A Division II playoffs, unranked North Duplin and Lejeune meet in the east, while number ten Catholic has won the western championship.

Belhaven and Robbinsville, tied for second place among the 1-A's meet in the finals of that division's playoffs.

No Verdict In 'Shaving' Trial

NEW YORK (AP) — A Brooklyn federal court jury failed to reach a verdict Saturday after a second day of deliberations in the Boston College point-shaving trial.

The jurors concluded deliberating charges against former BC basketball player Rick Kuhn and four others shortly after 6 p.m. and were dismissed until 10 a.m. Monday.

The eight-woman, four-man jury returned to U.S. District Judge Henry Bramwell's courtroom several times during the day to hear testimony. Parts of the judge's charge was read back to them, including a portion of the charge dealing with what constitutes a conspiracy.

Defendants Kuhn, brothers Anthony and Rocco Perla and Paul Mazzei, all of the Pittsburgh area, and James Burke of New York City, are charged with conspiracy to commit racketeering and sports bribery.

The government alleges the defendants conspired to shave points in Boston College 1978-79 season to benefit their betting syndicate and cooperating players who allegedly were paid $2,500 per game fixed.

The defense denies the point shaving scheme and says the government's key witness, an informant, lied.

Allen Wants Tobacco Allotments To Stay With Land

There is much concern about the future of the flue-cured tobacco situation and especially the tobacco program which, until the past several years, has provided a business-like arrangement for all segments of the tobacco industry.

History will show a pattern of boom and bust for the tobacco producers until the flue-cured tobacco control program was organized more than 40 years ago.

The purpose was to keep supplies in balance with demand and receive prices on a parity basis. This plan worked fine for many years but people other than the farmers made changes and our problems began to build as a result of too much tobacco in stabilization stocks. Possibly an old expression could apply: "Just too many cooks spoil the broth."

The question is—WHAT IS THE BEST SOLUTION?

Plant tobacco on the farm which has the allotment. No farm owner wants to lose the allotment for his farm. Should a tobacco farm be offered for sale, the tobacco allotment is the first item of importance mentioned. Also in case of a sale, rent, sharecrop, or lease arrangement, the tobacco allotment comes first, all of which proves the real value of tobacco to a farm. Tobacco allotments were never intended to be sold and carried around in a man's pocket.

In the beginning of our tobacco program, it was clearly understood that the allotment stayed with the land and not with the man.

Now since there have been so many changes in the past several years which have brought about problems and dissatisfaction that the very life of our program is being seriously attacked, we must put our best thoughts together and do what is necessary to save our program first, which has served all segments of tobacco reasonably well.

I say again—the one simple and fair solution is to put allotments back on the farm for at least three or four years to be planted, cultivated and harvested on that farm. We must begin at some point and this would be a basic move in the right direction. Certainly this would be disturbing to some of us as we operate today, but ask yourself this question: Shall we adjust or just simply go bust? Think it over. Washington is expecting and waiting for constructive action from us now and if farmers don't act, people in Washington will act for us. So, let us touch base again and build a business-like program that will give producers a reasonable profit and provide industry with a flue-cured product second to none in quality.

Farmers and tobacco leaders were sitting around the table when our program was organized and industry came out well provided for with a normal supply plus a two and one-half year reserve which has been provided. For many years, industry provided capital and storage for each year's production for there was no stabilization and usually supplies were kept in balance by industry moving the price up or down. When stabilization was organized, it worked well but when forced to carry unnecessarily large supplies of tobacco on hand during the past several years, it got us in trouble.

Tobacco is different from all other farm crops because there is only one place for tobacco to go—to industry.

When tobacco arrives at the warehouse door, tobacco companies do not have a nickel invested in the crop. Farmers have over a dollar per pound invested exclusive of value of land. Farmers have all the headaches, heartaches, and backaches of producing the crop besides the cost of interest, labor, fertilizer, insurance, gas, oil, machinery, curing barns, etc.

And when producers put their tobacco on the warehouse floors, there is no certainty what grade the graders will put on his product, and certainly no guarantee that buyers will even make a bid which puts tobacco farmers in a most pathetic and unbusiness-like situation, therefore it is most important that farmers join together on a production program that is fair to industry and producers. It is very difficult to understand why there is so much vicious opposition to tobacco as a product and our tobacco program in general.

Should the "antis" succeed in destroying our program, don't they realize tobacco will be produced by some people somewhere in this world and tobacco factories would continue to manufacture tobacco products for those people who enjoy smoking, chewing. This would simply mean that thousands of our people would be put on relief rolls while people in other countries would produce the tobacco required by industry. It is inconceivable that individuals elected by the people seem to be so determined on destroying our tobacco program. Surely, they just don't understand the true picture of tobacco and our tobacco program. We only ask that responsible leaders take time and get the true picture of tobacco as it is related to our economy before they take a position to simply destroy this program.

Much concern has been expressed regarding possible financial losses of stabilization stocks due to excessive stocks in stabilization's inventory and no group is more concerned and distressed than tobacco farmers who are willing to take necessary action to save the flue-cured tobacco control program which has been in trouble since farmers were forced to increase production 10-10-15% against their judgment for three years in a row. Much of that increase is held in stabilization's inventory today and is causing stabilization much undeserved criticism today.

The cost of leasing is not reflected in a cost to industry at the warehouse auction. It is simply a private transaction between two farmers.

Producers who lease in and the producers who do not lease at all deliver their tobacco to the same warehouse, it is weighed on the same scales, placed in the same rows, graded by the same government graders, and offered to all buyers without reference as to whether the tobacco was leased or not.

Buying companies receive their purchases, process and store in the same hogshead. It is manufactured, sold, smoked and enjoyed...and at no point is any reference made that the tobacco was leased or not leased.

Hopefully, these points will help to get some people out of the fog regarding the leasing of tobacco.

So, finally....producers, warehousemen, manufacturers, exporters, research people, merchants, bankers, and others.... won't you join hands with our leaders in Washington in a real effort to save our tobacco program?

It is time to act!

NEW YORK (UPI) — North Carolina, one victory shy of bestowing Coach Dean Smith with an NCAA title last year, has been named the nation's No. 1 college basketball team in preseason balloting by UPI's Board of Coaches.

The Tar Heels lost to Indiana 63-50 in the championship game but return with one of the country's toughest frontlines bolstered by an excellent freshman class.

The 42-member Board — representing seven geographical regions — gave North Carolina 20 first-place votes and 574 total points. UCLA was a close second with 11 first-place votes and 556 points followed by No. 3 Kentucky (four first-place, 521 points), No 4. Louisville (three first-place votes, 409 points) and No. 5. Georgetown (three first-place votes, 399 points).

The rest of the Top 10 is: No 6. Virginia (one first-place vote, 293 points), No. 7 Wichita State (285), No. 8. Iowa (255), No. 9 DePaul (247) and No. 10 Minnesota (191).

Smith enters his 20th season at North Carolina. One of the most innovative and respected coaches, he has won 20 or more games 11 straight years and been to the Final Four six times. But he has yet to claim an NCAA crown.

With this year's distinguished squad, however, Smith will have a good shot at the title. The Tar Heels, although losing forward Al Wood through graduation, come back with two tough big men in James Worthy and Sam Perkins and an able point guard Jimmy Black. Michael Jordan, one of the most ballyhooed freshman in the country, will strengthen an already outstanding team.

Completing the Top 20, it's: No. 11 Indiana, No. 12, Tulsa, No. 13, Georgia, No. 14. Wake Forest, No. 15 Missouri, No. 16 San Francisco, No. 17 Alabama-Birmingham, No. 18 Louisiana State, No. 19 Arkansas and No. 20 Nevada-Las Vegas.

UCLA, under new coach Larry Farmer, returns one the nation's best backcourts in Rod Foster and Michael Holton and extraordinary depth at forward. On top of which, there is now height in the middle with 7-foot recruit Stuart Gray.

Coach Joe Hall at Kentucky also has exceptional depth. Sam Bowie is recovering from a fractured leg but there is also 6-11 Melvin Turpin, Dirk Minniefield, Jim Master, Derrick Hord and Charles Hurt. Kentucky's second five would roll through most leagues.

Lousville won 19 of 20 games in one run last season. This time all five starters — led by Derrick Smith — are back and are complemented by freshmen Milt Wagner and Manuel Forrest.

Georgetown, the jewel of eastern basketball this year, landed the top freshman in 7-0 Patrick Ewing. The Hoyas also return with Eric "Sleepy" Floyd and a disciplined floor game directed by Coach John Thompson.

Virginia loses its premier shooter in Jeff Lamp but is given another life with Player of the Year Ralph Sampson vetoing the pros; Wichita State continues its basketball ascendancy with forwards Cliff Levingston and Antoine Carr; Iowa scored in the recruiting sweepstakes and returns with Ken Arnold and Kevin Boyle; DePaul is without Mark Aguirre but Terry Cummings and Skip Dillard should make Coach Ray Meyer's 40th season worthwhile; and Minnesota may come of age with 7-2 Randy Bruer and swingman Trent Tucker.

Overall, the Atlantic Coast Conference, the Southeastern Conference and the Big Ten each placed three schools in the Top 20 while the Missouri Valley Conference was next with two.

UNC In Women's Soccer Finals

The Tar Heels blanked fifth-seeded Connecticut 5-0 and UCF shut out second-seeded Missouri-St. Louis 4-0.

Arguello KOs Elizondo To Retain WBC Crown

Elizondo managed to get to his feet but was counted out at 3:07 of the round by referee Joey Curtis as he sat on the ropes.

It was the 18th successfull career title defense for Arguello, while Elizondo suffered his second loss as a professional.

The champion from Nicaragua was ahead by five points on all three cards of the ringside judges when the fight ended.

The champion dominated the first two rounds, effectively keeping Elizondo off balance with left jabs and occasionally stinging him with an overhand right.

Elizondo managed to come back somewhat in the third round by getting inside against Arguello and working to his midsection and head.

But in the fourth round, Arguello, fighting off the ropes, launched two good right hands that put Elizondo down for the first time in the fight. The challenger was up at the count of four and managed to finish the round.

Arguello, who weighed the lightweight limit of 135 pounds, defended his title for the first time Oct.3 in Atlantic City, where he went 14 tough rounds before knocking out Ray "Boom Boom" Mancini.

Arguello won the lightweight championship last June when he scored a 15-round decision over Jim Watt in London. Before that, he had held the world featherweight and the junior lightweight crowns.

Arguello raised his record to 73-4 with 59 knockouts, while Elizondo, 133¾, fell to 22-2.

Va. Union Routs NCCU For Title

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Sophmore running back Gary Mayo scored three touchdowns and rushed for 104 yards to lead undefeated Virginia Union to a 45-7 victory over North Carolina Central and the CIAA championship Saturday.

The Panthers, Northern Division winners, raised their record to 11-0, while the Southern Division champion Eagles dropped to 6-4.

Mayo scored on runs of 53, 1 and 14 yards in the first half as Virginia Union took a 24-7 lead.

In a game that featured two nationally ranked defensive teams, there were 631 yards in total offense, 335 by the Eagles.

The Panthers rushed for 231 yards and passed for 65, while the Eagles rushed for 118 and threw for 217.

Panther senior cornerback Vernon Moore scored on a blocked punt and also had a 61-yard interception.

The Panthers will play next week in the Division II playoffs against a team to be decided Sunday.

N.C. A&T 18

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Jackie Coffey rushed for 162 yards and scored two touchdowns as Tennessee State scored a 27-18 victory over North Carolina A&T Saturday.

Coffey scored on a 36-yard pass from Brian Ransom and on a 3-yard run.

His pass reception from Ransom started the Tigers' scoring and the 5-foot-10, 180-pound senior's touchdown run boosted the lead to 14-3.

The Aggies, who dropped to 3-7, rallied from a 20-3 halftime deficit behind a 1-yard run by Charlie Sutton and a 59-yard pass from Steve Lynn to Lon Harris, Harris finished with five receptions for 151 yards.

Tennessee State put the game out of reach early in the fourth quarter as the Tigers drove 80 yards for a score.

Brook Valley Country Club

The final Brook Valley Men's Golf Association tournament for the current year will be held on Saturday and Sunday.

The event will be a 36-hole tournament consisting of two man teams that play within pre-determined flights according to total team handicap. The tournament format will be split, however, with teams playing a best-ball with no handicap on Saturday and a Superball on Sunday.

Greenville Country Club

Three Greenville Country Club women placed in the Brook Valley Invitational. Harriette White finished second low gross in the Championship flight. Nancy Monroe finished low gross in the second flight, while Sue Castellow had second low gross in the first flight.

Another Ladies Day event saw a Turkey Shoot. First low gross went to Janet McGlohon with a 45. Closest to the pin was Barbara Ellis, who took the prizes on both the third and eighth hole.

An Autumn Special was held recently for women too. First low gross went to Sue Castellow, while Della Dayson was second and third was Betty Akin. All three had 45, and a card playoff determined the final standings. First low net went to Betty Kitrell with a 34, while second went to Mary Ann Barnhill with a 35, while Vertie King, also with a 35, finished third on a card playoff.

The Eastern Carolina Ladies Golf Association tournament was held at the club recently. In the A flight, first low gross went to Harriette White of Greenville, second to Linda Briggs of Macropines; first net to Nancy Parker of Rocky Mount, second to Sue Hallow of Brook Valley; and low putts to Etta Hickey of Goldsboro.

In flight B, low gross went to Vera Bernard, while second went to Maxine Hawley of Brook Valley; first net went to Sandra Morgan of Falling Creek, with second going to Nancy Monroe of Greenville; and low putts to Kate Barnes of Wilson.

In flight C, low gross went to Jane Joyner of Greenville, while second was taken by Sue Hardy of Greenville; low net went to Jackie Dale of Wilson, with second won by Mary Novicki of Kinston; and low putts won by Bernice Everett of Northgreen.

In flight D, low gross was won by Jan Kanetzke of Brook Valley, with second won by Helen Brown of Wilson; low net went to Miriam Martin of Brook Valley, with second to Alice Evans of Greenville; and low putts to Murial Rider of Kinston.

In flight E, low gross went to Janet McGlohon of Greenville, second to Ruby Earp of Rocky Mount; low net to Irene Taylor of Kinston, second to Miriam Isley; and low putts to SuSu Aldridge of Greenville.

In flight F, low gross was won by Jean Everett of Northgreen, second by Ellen Fleming of Brook Valley; low net to Ginger Llewellyn of Kinston, second to Alice Noble of Kinston; and low putts to Helen Griffith of Kinston.

The Ladies Match Play Tournament was won by Alice Evans, while Janet McGlohon was the runner-up. In the first flight, Joyce House defeated Evelyn Laupus for the championship.

Basketball Tourney 'Packs Bags'

POTSDAM, N.Y. (AP) — Basketball is famous for unexpected moves but the North County college basketball tournament may have created a first as a game moved clear across town.

Stolbawrence was leading Geneseo State 20-8 in the first quarter when a car apparently sheared off a utility pole, leaving players, fans, coaches and officials in the dark at the Potsdam State gym.

An hour later, the game resumed two miles away at the still-lighted Clarkson gym and St.Lawrence went on to down Geneseo 93-58.

In an earlier, uninterrupted game, Clarkson upset Potsdam, the defending national champion in NCAA Division III, 62-50.

Westhead Philosophical After Firing

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Paul Westhead, who said he had no idea his job with the Los Angeles Lakers was anything but secure, is trying to be philosophical. Among other things, that means looking to the future.

Westhead, an English teacher while coaching in college, often quoted lines from Shakespeare to illustrate the peaks and valleys of pro basketball.

On Friday, one day after being fired as the Lakers' head coach, Westhead chose a statement by Holden Caulfield, the main character of J.D. Salinger's 1960s novel "Catcher in the Rye," to describe his circumstances: "If you reach out for the gold ring and fall, then you get up and reach out once again."

Westhead guided the Lakers to a National Basketball Association championship in the spring of 1980 and his teams had a winning record last season. But that didn't stop owner Jerry Buss from firing him.

Buss made the announcement at a news conference Thursday and selected a pair of former Laker players, assistant coach Pat Riley and Jerry West, to coach the team.

Apparently, Riley will be the head coach with West an assistant, although Buss didn't make the situation clear in announcing his team's plans for the future.

"I thought we were a team that was in the process of becoming an excellent team, and I think they will continue to follow that line," the 42-year-old Westhead said at a news conference Friday after he arrived to clean out his desk.

"It doesn't seem so long ago that we were successful in achieving the ultimate, winning a world championship, and I had hoped to achieve that feat once again in the near future," said Westhead, whose club had won its last five games under his direction for a 7-4 record.

"In my case, I did the job to the best of my ability. I have no grudge against anyone in this organization," he added.

Westhead said he did not know whether his firing was related to a verbal outburst by Lakers star Earvin "Magic" Johnson, who had said Wednesday night after a 113-110 Laker victory at Utah that he wanted to be traded and "did not see eye to eye" with Westhead.

Asked if he felt he had seen "eye to eye" with the 22-year-old Johnson, who begins a 25-year, $1 million-a-year contract with the Lakers in 1984, Westhead did not reply to the question. He paused, and then said, "I think Magic Johnson is a great player and is a fine person."

Buss said Thursday he made the change because he wants a return to the "excitement" of a fast-break, running style all that characterized the Laker championship team of two seasons ago, but Westhead said he thought he was working in that direction.

"One important way in which I try to win is the fast-break offense," said the former coach. "I think Jerry Buss always has been very clear with me. He appreciated fast-break, running basketball. He did not indicate to me he was disappointed that we were not running as much but that was disappointing to me, too."

Buss indicated that the 36-year-old Riley would be in charge of the Laker defense and West, the all-time Laker record-holder in scoring and assists, would direct the offense. But the dynamics of the duo has been blurred by West's comments that he sees his role "as an assistant coach to Pat Riley."

"This will not be a permanent situation for me..."I'll be here until Pat can get along by himself," said the 43-year-old West, who was open about his dislike of coaching when he directed the Lakers to a 145-101 record during three seasons starting in 1976.

"I think Pat will do an excellent job. He has worked very diligently in the two years he worked with me," Westhead said of Riley, who had been his assistant since the 1979-80 season.

Westhead, reported to have a $275,000-a-year, four-year contract, said, "Jerry Buss has identified, in a verbal manner, that the agreements set down would be honored." But Westhead indicated he will not be satisfied to just collect the Lakers' money.

After 18 years in coaching, at all levels, that is his profession and he said he now prefers the professional game. He hopes to land another NBA coaching job with another opportunity to "grab the gold ring," he said.

3 Vikes Are All-League

Three D.H. Conley football players were named to the Coastal Conference All-Conference team which was announced this past week.

White Oak, conference champion this season, had eight players named to the team — most from any league school. White Oak first-year coach Tony Zvonar was named coach of the year.

Havelock had five players on the team while West Carteret had four, West Craven three and North Lenoir two.

Named to the 27-man team from D.H. Conley were offensive guard Ray Crawford, linebacker Mike Long and defensive back James Boyd.

Crawford, a 5-11, 172-pound senior, is a four-year starter at DHC. He also started this season at defensive end.

Long is a 6-1, 190-pound junior who also started at tight end this season. Long was one of only four players nominated by conference coaches to the all-east squad, which will be named later this winter.

Boyd, a 5-11, 170-pound senior, began the season as a utility offensive back and did not start at defensive back until injuries forced him into secondary duty.

The Vikings, who finished 4-6-0 overall and 3-2-0 in the league, also had six players named honorable mention: quarterback Jeff Manning, running back Jesse Maye, wide receiver Greg Toler, center Gary Adams, defensive tackle William Paramore and defensive back Wesley Smith.

Smith, Heels Looking Forward To November

One In A Series
By The Associated Press

North Carolina basketball Coach Dean Smith has put in 20 years with the Tar Heels and he still looks forward to November. That's the month when many feel he could launch the campaign that will bring the national championship back to Chapel Hill.

Last season, Smith took a group of young players and molded them into a team that finished 29-8 and came within one game of winning the national title.

The loss of All-America forward Al Wood will hurt, but Smith has the nucleus of last year's team back plus a strong crop of freshman recruits.

North Carolina is expected to place highly in the preseason polls and probably will control the Atlantic Coast Conference. Other teams in the South will vie for national honors, too.

Kentucky is loaded with talent and is expected to dominate the Southeastern Conference. Louisville has its entire starting lineup returning from a team that won 19 of its last 20 games and the Metro Conference title with ease. And Alabama-Birmingham of the Sun Belt Conference has four starters back from its Cinderella team that went 23-9 and lost to eventual national champion Indiana in the NCAA Midwest Regional.

Tar Heel forward James Worthy, the 6-foot-9 junior strongman, anchors a strong frontline. Worthy is minus a metal rod in his ankle which stabilized the bone he broke his freshman year. Worthy said the ankle is more flexible and that he can leap better.

In the middle is Sam "Plastic Man" Perkins, the 6-foot-9 wunderkind who has been playing basketball for only three years.

Six-foot-1 Jimmy Black, the only returning senior starter, will have leadership duties at point guard, and 6-foot-7 junior Matt Doherty probably will handle Wood's forward spot. At the other guard spot, there is some speculation that 6-foot-4 freshman Michael Jordan will be the man. His 42-inch leaping ability already has people making the inevitable comparison with David Thompson of the Denver Nuggets.

Smith has his first real seven-footer in Warren Martin from Virginia, plus another big man in 6-foot-10 John Brownlee from Texas.

"By the players we have returning, we should have a good team," said Smith, whose record with Tar Heel teams is 436-143. "But we can't have any false confidence. We're young. We'll learn what we have to work with early.

"I think there is a confidence that stems from the past but I'd rather start anew."

In the ACC, North Carolina will not be handed the title. Virginia won the title last year and finished 29-4 before the Tar Heels knocked them off in the semifinals of the Final Four. The Cavaliers have their "franchise" back in 7-foot-4 center Ralph Sampson, who also was national player of the year.

Wake Forest also will be heard from. The Deacons went 22-7 and ended up in the NCAA tourney. The Deacons have four seniors who have been starting since they were freshman. Clemson should be a contender but Maryland, North Carolina State and Duke are in rebuilding years.

The Wildcats of Kentucky went 22-6 last season but lost the SEC title to Louisiana State. But the Tigers lost that team to graduation, leaving Alabama and Georgia as the main challengers to Kentucky and its wealth of talent.

Kentucky Coach Joe Hall has 7-foot-1 junior Sam Bowie back, along with 6-foot-3 guard Dirk Minniefield, 6-foot-6 Derrick Hord, 6-foot-6 Charles Hurt, and the list goes on. The Wildcats lost only forward Fred Cowan.

Two years ago Louisville walked away with a national title. But the Cardinals started last season by losing — a lot.

Big Buck Big Fish

OUTDOORS With Joe Albea

Waterfowl Season Opens — the second season on waterfowl comes in Thursday, November 26. The limits are five ducks daily, one Canada goose and four Snow Geese. The season goes out November 28 and comes back in December 8 through January 20.

Waterfowl Count — the population of ducks and geese in Coastal North Carolina seems to be what it should be for this time of year. The migration is in full swing now and there is a lot of movement (the birds here one day and gone the next) which will continue until the first of December when most of the birds will have decided where to spend the winter.

The Fish and Wildlife Service flys aerial surveys every two weeks during the winter to check on waterfowl populations.

"Outdoors" will report these populations every other week to keep waterfowl hunters informed. The first report consists of some good news and some bad.

Mattamuskeet Refuge — Canada Geese approximately 10,000, a very low court for this time of year. Ducks — 90,000 — a breakdown on the bucks show good numbers of bluebills (38,000) and pintails (19,000). Swans — approximately 2,800.

Swanquarter — this area covers the Pamlico Sound. The court showed mainly sea ducks (scoters, etc.). The diving ducks which use this area usually come in a little later.

Pungo Refuge — Canada Geese — approximately 5,000 birds. Ducks — several thousand puddle ducks (mallard, pintails).

Outer Banks — (Pea Island Refuge) a good population of puddle ducks (no estimate), teal, pintails and widgeon. A few Canada Geese and Snow Geese.

The one bright spot was the court of the bluebill (scaup). The 38,000 counted at Mattamuskeet was the highest recorded there in many years.

Fishing Report — fishing on the coast has been poor due to high winds all last week. From Cape Lookout north to the Virginia Capes, high winds and high surf kept all but the most dedicated indoors. One bright spot was large bluefish — they were plentiful off the Cape Lookout shoals toward the end of the week whent he wind had subsided.

Local Notes — Byron Dickens of Greenville recently had three successful days at Hatteras. While surf-fishing at Buxton Point he landed 11 red drum weighting up to 28 pounds. Dick Littlefield of Greenville bagged a nice 8-point buck while hunting in Beaufort County a couple of weeks ago.

Tigers Win...

But the Gamecocks' kicking game has been faulty of late and it hurt them again before the first period came to an end. Rod McSwain blocked Chris Norman's punt and it rolled into the end zone, where linebacker Johnny Rembert recovered it for a touchdown.

After the field was cleared of oranges hurled by Clemson's 12,000 supporters in the crowd of 56,971, Paulling missed the conversion, snapping his school record string of 36 in a row.

But Jordan got the Tigers on track late in the period and took them from their 33 to the South Carolina 7. The key plays were an 18-yard pass from Jordan to Perry Tuttle and a 28-yard tackle-breaking run by Chuck McSwain. Paulling's field goal at 2:50 of the second period gave the Tigers a 9-7 lead and they were never headed.

Outlook Good For DePaul

CHICAGO (AP) — Mark Aguirre and Isiah Thomas are gone, leaving a void which will be hard to fill, but Midwest basketball powers are geared for another banner year.

DePaul has been ranked among the nation's top teams for most of the last two seasons only to run into first-round knockouts in the NCAA playoffs. The Blue Demons don't have the talented and gregarious Aguirre anymore, but they do have a new and good outlook.

Indiana will have trouble repeating in the Big Ten let alone successfully defending its NCAA crown without Thomas, but experience demands that the Hoosiers, led by Coach Bobby Knight, can never be counted out.

The Midwest has provided NCAA champions in four of the last six seasons, mainly because of the Big Ten, where the tremendous competition makes skilled and strong tournament representatives.

Indiana won it last year with a 26-9 mark, the worst record for a champion in NCAA history. Michigan State captured the trophy in 1979, independent Marquette in 1977 and Indiana again in 1976.

DePaul, Marquette and Notre Dame again will be among the top independents in the Midwest, although the Irish could have trouble filling in for the likes of Kelly Tripucka, Orlando Woolridge and Tracy Jackson, who have graduated to the pro leagues.

At DePaul, with Aguirre gone, Coach Ray Meyer has a strong nucleus in Terry Cummings, Teddy Grubbs, Bernard Randolph and Skip Dillard. Meyer has more victories than any other active coach in major college basketball with 650 triumphs in 39 seasons.

Marquette has outstanding talent in Glenn Rivers, Terrell Schlundt, Michael Wilson and Dean Marquardt. Notre Dame starts and stops with John Paxson. Joe Kleine transferred, and 6-10 Tim Andree will be sidelined for five weeks with an ankle injury.

The Big Ten, for the last three years, has had wide open races and another could be in the making. The conference has such balance that any one of three teams could be singled out as a favorite, and they don't include Indiana.

Minnesota could be one. Coach Jim Dutcher has everyone back from last year's 19-11 club. Trent Tucker and Gary Holmes up front, 7-3 Randy Breuer at center and Mark Hall and Darryl Mitchell at the guards. Hall, however, could run into scholastic difficulties.

Purdue has seven lettermen returning including Russell Cross who will be shifted from center to forward. The reason for the switch is Joe Gampfer, a 7-foot, 260-pounder who will be at center.

Iowa could win it all. Lute Olson has seven of his top 10 players returning from last season but the front line needs rebuilding. Gone are Steve Waite, Steve Krafcisin and Vince Brookins. Taking up some of the slack will be 6-11 Michael Payne and 6-10 Greg Stokes to go along with veteran stars Kevin Boyle, Kenny Arnold and Bobby Hansen.

Indiana, in addition to Thomas, will be without Ray Tolbert and Landon Turner who was injured in an automobile accident and paralyzed from the waist down.

Randy Wittman and Ted Kitchel are holdovers from last season along with Jimmy Thomas who proved invaluable in the playoffs. Other veterans include Steve Bouchie and Tony Brown but Knight will depend heavily on freshmen including 7-3 Uwe Blab, a West German exchange student by way of Efyingham, Ill.

The rest of the Big Ten will be strong right down the line but teams like Illinois, Michigan, Ohio State, Michigan State, Wisconsin and Northwestern might be lacking in certain areas to be contenders in the conference.

Loyola of Chicago will be a favorite in the Midwestern City Conference and could be a national power. The Ramblers, who won the NCAA back in 1963, have outstanding performers in Darius Clemons and Wayne Sappleton. Clemons averaged nearly 22 points a game last season. Sappleton averaged 19 points and 13.4 rebounds.

Loyola could get an argument in the MCC from Oklahoma City, led by Rubin Jackson and Carl Henry. Xavier and Evansville could be factors.

The rambling Missouri Valley Conference, which has one member at Indiana State, three in Illinois and stretches all the way to New Mexico, usually is blessed with outstanding coaching which produces interesting and winning basketball teams.

Wichita State figures to be the power in the MVC. Coach Gene Smithson's Shockers have four of five starters returning, including 6-9 Antoine Carr.

Smith, Heels...

They straightened themselves out and finished strong. Coach Denny Crum has that team back intact.

Leading the way is "the best unknown player in America" — 6-foot-5 forward Derek Smith — who led the team in scoring and rebounding. The McCray brothers, Rodney and Scooter, return to anchor the frontline. Crum also had a pretty fair recruiting year with 6-foot-7 Manuel Forrest and 6-foot-5 Milt Wagner, both of whom fill his need for an outside shooter.

"I think we ought to have a great year," Crum said. "We'll compete with anyone in the country."

The best known aspect of Alabama-Birmingham last season was its coach, Gene Bartow, formerly of UCLA. But this season, with the Blazers first recruit, 6-foot-4 guard Oliver Robinson, returning and leading the way, UAB is out to show last year was no fluke.

"We are optimistic," Bartow said. "And with the players we have returning, we have every reason to believe we're a top 20 team."

Elsewhere in the South, Western Carolina is expected to top the Southern Conference and Old Dominion is the No. 1 independent.

ECU...

"We pretty well know who three or four of them will be, but I don't want to get into that now."

Brown, Odom feels, could play in any one of three positions, the two forward slots and the big guard area. "Gilchrist has improved and Peartree is improving fast. We've got to have some time for Tony to rest, he's not physically a strong player, so these two will play important roles too."

The biggest surprise so far has been the play of the big man, Reicheneker. "We knew what they all could do, but I think David's a little better than we had anticipated," Odom said. He also noted that when Reicheneker is in a game, a different pattern of play will evolve.

"Right now we need to get tougher both mentally and physically. I hope we'll hurt a little more than we did last year, too. Hurt when their man scores on them, or when they throw the ball away. I don't want them to pout, but to learn from it."

Odom doesn't feel that the offense having to catch up with the defense will be any great problem. "We won't be as good as I want us to be against Ohio," he said.

"Three things will help us. We need to work on our screens and cuts; we need to work on the simple act of throwing and catching the ball: making easy passes not hard ones, and being alert to the fact that we are always a potential receiver of a pass; and completing everything we start, not getting halfway through and stopping. We will really emphasize these three things over the next week. If we do these things, the offense will straighten itself out."

The year takes on added meaning too, in that the Pirates will be in a conference for the first time in several years, competing in the ECAC-South. "I think it's going to be a real tough conference," Odom said. "But it gives us a chance to have a shot at an automatic NCAA berth, and that will do a lot for us."

L.A. Paper To Sue Rams For Access

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Herald Examiner said Friday it plans to sue the Los Angeles Rams of the National Football League over the team's refusal to allow sports columnist Diane Shah into the players' locker room for post-game interviews.

"We will file a lawsuit," said Herald Examiner Publisher Francis Dale. "We're going to fight this thing as a Neanderthal move against the 20th Century."

Jerry Wilcox, public relations director for the Anaheim-based team, said Ms. Shah would continue to be barred from post-game interviews despite a San Francisco federal court order issued earlier this month which directed the San Francisco 49ers to allow a woman writer from the Sacramento Bee access to the team's locker room.

"The timing is incredible," said Dale. "To think that a football organization headed by a woman would bar a prominent, superbly qualified woman sports columnist from doing her job, especially in the face of the court precedent just established with the San Francisco 49ers, the very team the Rams play Sunday afternoon."

Dale said the NFL and NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle also would be named as defendants in the suit.

Rec Basketball Meeting Is Set

The Greenville Recreation and Parks Department will hold its final organizational meeting for adult basketball Tuesday, Nov. 24, at the Jaycee Park.

Women will meet at 7 p.m. and the men at 8 p.m. All managers and interested players should attend. For more information call 752-4137 (ext. 248).

BASEBALL

TOKYO (AP) — Sadaharu Oh, who hit a record 868 home runs during his 22 years in Japanese professional baseball with the Yomiuri Giants, announced that he has retired even though he fell short of his goal of hitting 900 homers.

Oh compiled a lifetime batting average of .302, won his league's home run crown 15 times, captured three triple crowns, was elected Most Valuable Player nine times and paced the Giants to nine straight pennants between 1965 and 1973.

Jets, Dolphins Battle Today For First Place

By The Associated Press

It's unusual for this late in the National Football League season, but on Sunday, there will be an important game at Shea Stadium.

The Miami Dolphins and New York Jets will battle for first place in the American Conference East. Big games in late November are nothing new for the Dolphins — but the Jets?

The 6-4-1 Jets, the same team that was 4-12 last year and got off to an 0-3 start this season, can grab control of the division with a victory at home over the Dolphins.

And victories over Miami haven't been a major problem for the Jets, who won six straight against the Dolphins before playing a 28-28 tie on Oct. 4.

The big problem for New York could be at quarterback. Regular signal-caller Richard Todd will have to wear a flak jacket to protect a fractured rib on his left side. Backup Pat Ryan has a badly sprained right ankle. The only other quarterback on the roster is Kyle Grossart, who was cut in training camp and re-signed this week after both Todd and Ryan were hurt against New England.

"We're approaching the game making a regular game plan," said Joe Walton, the Jets' offensive coordinator. "If Richard is ready to play, he'll be there. If Pat is ready to play, he'll be there.

"Naturally, if we have to play Grossart, the things we'll be able to do will probably be curtailed a little bit."

The Jets have been winning thanks to a balanced offense and the best pass rush in football. The defense ranks fourth overall in the AFC and, led by linemen Joe Klecko and Mark Gastineau, has recorded a league-high 46 sacks.

"We've known about Klecko and Gastineau for a long time," said Dolphins Coach Don Shula. "We knew about them before the world knew about them."

What Shula didn't know, going into the season, was how good a team he had.

"We went into this season with a lot of question marks, a lot of young players," he said. "We've done a lot of good things to get where we are. The Jet game is the biggest test to see how much we've advanced."

With nearly every NFL team still in the hunt for the playoffs, Sunday's schedule has New England at Buffalo; Denver at Cincinnati; Detroit at Chicago; Green Bay at Tampa Bay; New Orleans at Houston; the New York Giants at Philadelphia; Pittsburgh at Cleveland; Seattle at Kansas City; St. Louis at Baltimore; San Diego at Oakland; San Francisco at Los Angeles, and Washington at Dallas.

Monday's game features the Minnesota Vikings at the Atlanta Falcons.

The Bills have a keen interest in the Dolphins-Jets outcome since they stand at 6-5 in the AFC East.

"We're flat up against the wall. We've got to come back," said Bills linebacker Phil Villapiano, whose team was blanked 24-0 in St. Louis last week. "We're in a jam. It's going to be a war."

Some of the more intriguing matchups in the 12th week of the season include the AFC West frontrunners from Denver at the AFC Central leaders, the Bengals; the Steelers at the Browns in a battle for survival in the AFC Central, and the 49ers, with a three-game lead and the only winning record in the NFC West, at the Rams, a perennial playoff club that has a disappointing 5-6 mark.

The Broncos, who like the Bengals are 8-3, have the No. 1-ranked defense in the NFL. The Bengals' defense comes off a six-sack, four-interception performance against Los Angeles.

"They're taking an awful lot of chances, and they're hurting a lot of teams right now," Denver Coach Dan Reeves said of the Cincinnati defense.

"Denver is a really good team," countered Bengals Coach Forrest Gregg. "They've been playing good defense for a long time ... Their defense is very aggressive. They pursue and tackle well."

Johnson Scores 20, Deals Out 16 Assists

Fun Returns For Lakers' 'Magic'

By The Associated Press

Until a couple of days ago, Earvin "Magic" Johnson wasn't having too much fun with the Los Angeles Lakers. But now with a change of coaches, he seems to have gotten his act together.

"I just decided to go out there and have fun," said the Los Angeles guard Friday night after scoring 20 points and handing out 16 assists in the Lakers' 136-116 National Basketball Association victory over the San Antonio Spurs.

The reason for Johnson's euphoria was obvious. Unhappy with his role on the team, he had been at odds with Lakers Coach Paul Westhead. But Westhead was fired Thursday, paving the way for a dual coaching setup with Pat Riley and Jerry West.

Riley theoretically is coaching the defense and West the offense, although the former apparently has been charged with directing the team.

Asked what he told his team before the contest, Riley grinned and replied, "I told 'em to wing it, just like I'm doing."

Riley, unlike Johnson, thought the Lakers were up for the game.

"It was an emotional game for me and the team," said the 36-year-old Riley, a former member of the Lakers who was the club's assistant coach until Thursday. "But we were definitely not tense or tight."

San Antonio Coach Stan Albeck agreed: "I think it was an emotional game for them due to all that's happened to them in the last couple of days. They wanted badly to win. They ran, they hit the open man, and on defense, they ran the ball right back at us."

A sellout crowd of 17,505 at the Los Angeles Forum, apparently blaming Johnson for the firing of Westhead, booed him during the pregame introductions. But those boos turned to cheers when the 22-year-old star went into action.

Mitch Kupchak had 25 points, making all 11 of his field goal attempts, and 17 rebounds for the Lakers as they improved their winning streak to six games. Kareem Abdul-Jabbar led Los Angeles with 30 points.

The Lakers led all the way and at one stage during the third quarter had a 30-point advantage. George Gervin led the Spurs with 30 points.

Trail Blazers 106, Nets 86

Billy Ray Bates scored 15 points to spark a second-quarter outburst that propelled Portland over New Jersey. The Blazers trailed 14-2 in the opening minutes, then outscored the Nets 27-10 to take a 29-24 advantage at the end of the first quarter.

Portland outscored the Nets 31-14 in the second quarter to turn the game into a runaway. The Blazers built their lead to as many as 26 points in the third and fourth periods.

Portland's Mychal Thompson had a game-high 27 points and 15 rebounds, while Bates added 20. Ray Williams' 19 topped the Nets.

76ers 99, Cavaliers 94

Julius Erving scored 28 points and the Philadelphia defense held Cleveland to only one field goal in the final six minutes as the 76ers defeated the Cavaliers.

Kenny Carr hit a jumper to give Cleveland an 87-85 lead midway through the final quarter. But Philadelphia then limited Cleveland to five foul shots by James Edwards until Mike Mitchell scored with five seconds left.

Andrew Toney tied the score at 87 with a jumper, and followed moments later with a foul shot to give the 76ers an 88-87 lead they never relinquished.

"They played much better than the first game," said Philadelphia's Bobby Jones in reference to the 76ers' 128-104 decision over the Cavs in the season opener.

Sonics 90, Mavericks 89

Gus Williams scored 22 points, including two field goals in the final minute, to lead Seattle over Dallas. With 43 seconds to play Dallas had a three-point lead, but Williams hit the two field goals and Mavericks center Scott Lloyd missed two free throws with three seconds left to give Seattle the victory. Mark Aguirre was Dallas' high scorer with 22 points, as the Mavericks, 1-10, suffered their ninth loss in a row.

Rockets 95, Bullets 94

Elvin Hayes scored a season-high 23 points to lead Houston past Washington. Houston trailed 77-67 with 10:04 left, but the Rockets went on a 16-4 streak to take command, 83-79. Hayes hit a turnaround jumper to put the Rockets ahead for good, 81-79.

Celtics 112, Bucks 89

Larry Bird scored 20 points and Cedric Maxwell added 17 as Boston walloped Milwaukee. Bob Lanier's shot with 4:59 gone in the game gave the Bucks their last lead at 15-14. Chris Ford then hit a jumper for the Celtics to launch a 17-6 burst that gave them a 31-21 lead after the first period.

Jazz 105, Bulls 103

Rickey Green sank a 25-foot jumper as the buzzer sounded to lift Utah over Chicago. The Jazz had been awarded the ball at midcourt with just two seconds remaining after Chicago's Reggie Theus, looking for David Greenwood under the basket, fired an in-bounds pass into the seats.

JOINS CAMPAIGN

Realty World, nationwide franchise network of independent real estate brokers, has joined the United Cerebral Palsy fund-raising activities and become a sponsor for the 1981-82 campaign, it was announced by Connally Branch, Realty World Clark-Branch Inc. Realtors here.

Branch said the major thrust of Realty World's program, which will extend through Jan. 17, will be the collection of donations during a "farm for UPC" campaign. He said associates will contact homeowners in their market area and seek their support while distributing educational material about UCP.

ELECTED CHAIRMAN

EDDIE SMITH JR.

As chairman, NMMA said, Smith becomes a chief spokesman and organizer for the American recreational boating industry, which had sales amounting to $7.3 billion last year.

He earlier held positions of chairman and treasurer of the National Association of Boat Manufacturers, one of three sub-associations which comprise the NMMA. He continues to hold a seat on the NABM board.

Smith, who resides here with his wife, Jo, and son, Chris, has been president of his family-owned boat building company for 13 years. He is a graduate of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

SALES UP

Jack Eckerd Corp. reported that corporate sales and operating revenues for the 1982 fiscal year's first quarter, which ended Oct. 31, were a record $428.6 million, up 17.2 percent from the comparable quarter in fiscal 1981.

Stewart Turley, chairman and president, said the quarter's net earnings and earnings per share, to be announced Nov. 30, should also set records.

He said Eckerd Drug Co., the corporation's largest operation, had record sales and earnings in fiscal 1981. Sales were $1.604 billion, up 13.7 percent, and net earnings were $72.5 million, a 13.8 percent increase.

CT&T PROMOTION

Charles W. Wright, business communications coordinator with Carolina Telephone in Fayetteville, has been promoted to supervisor of advertising and programs in CT&T's Tarboro administrative headquarters, the company said.

In his new post, Wright supervises company advertising activities and production of CT&T's audiovisual materials for employees and customers.

He and his wife, Patricia, have three children. Prior to moving to Greenville, he served on the Cumberland Country Arts Council.

SET RECORDS

Family Dollar Stores Inc. reported all-time record high sales and earnings for the fiscal year ended Aug. 31 and for the fourth quarter of fiscal 1981.

Fiscal year sales were $181,712,931 or some 9 percent above sales of $166,854,381 for fiscal 1980. Net income was $9,116,931 or 9 percent above net income of $8,336,746 a year ago.

Fourth quarter sales were $48,902,225, with net income of $2,459,445, compared to sales of $42,610,262 and net income of $2,206,013. The firm said the results were the highest of any fourth quarter in its 22-year history.

REGULAR DIVIDEND

Directors of Branch Corp., parent holding company of Branch Banking & Trust Co., declared a regular quarterly dividend of 27 cents per share, an increase from 26 cents paid in the third quarter.

HIGHER FIGURES

TRW Inc. reported higher sales and earnings for both the third quarter and nine months ended Sept. 30.

Sales reached $1.29 billion, up 8 percent over 1980's third quarter total of $1.19 billion. Net earnings were $83 million, resulting in fully diluted earnings per share of $2.22 and primary earnings per share of $2.42.

Nine month results showed sales climbing 9 percent to $4.01 billion from 1980's $3.68 billion, net earnings rising 11 percent to $171.5 million from $154.7 million, fully diluted earnings per share increasing to $4.60 from $4.17, and primary earnings per share jumping to $4.96 from $4.70.

INCOME GAINED

The Wachovia Corp. reported that for the 1981 third quarter, income before securities transactions was $16.982 million, an increase of 26.3 percent over the $13.442 million earned in the same period last year.

For the nine months, Wachovia's consolidated income before securities transactions was $49.090 million, up 22.9 percent from 1980's $39.957 million.

Frank Harper Gives Talk

The November program for Gamma Delta Chapter of Epsilon Sigma Alpha was given by Frank Harper, a local physical therapist, at the home of Mrs. Frances Cassick.

He discussed general conditions which would normally be treated by a therapist.

President Hester Latham conducted the business session. The chapter will furnish Thanksgiving gifts for Caswell Training School, Kinston. On Dec. 12, members will help the Lung Association trim a Christmas tree at Carolina East Mall. The money made at the yard sale will be given to Saint Judes Hospital. Five members will attend the state convention at the Civic Center, Raleigh, Dec. 5.

Plans were made for the Christmas party on Dec. 10.

Holiday Sale Is Announced

WINTERVILLE — The Winterville Jaycettes are having their annual Christmas bake and craft sale Saturday, Dec. 5, beginning at 9 a.m.

The sale will be held beside First State Bank, Winterville.

An assortment of Christmas crafts and wreaths will be sold as well as baked items.

In case of bad weather the sale will be held inside the Winterville Fire Station.

Mary Ann Blizzard Marries On Saturday

The wedding ceremony of Mary Ann Blizzard and Steven Douglas Van Cleave was solemnized Saturday at 1:30 p.m. in People's Baptist Temple. The Rev. J. M. Bragg conducted the double ring ceremony.

A program of nuptial music was rendered by Tim Sutton, organist and Teresa Ange, vocalist.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Homer A. Blizzard of Newport, the bride was given in marriage by her father. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Van Cleave of Greenwood, Ind. His father served as best man.

Julie Blizzard of Havelock was her sister's maid of honor and Pam Underwood of Martinez, Ga. was matron of honor. Joyce Evans of Greenville was bridesmaid and Tanja and Paige Bragg of Greenville were junior bridesmaids. The flower girl was Jatara Van Cleave of Greenwood, Ind., niece of the bridegroom.

John Hall of Greenville was ring bearer.

The bride wore a formal gown of white silkened organza and chantilly lace over net and peau de soie. It was fashioned with a fitted bodice of chantilly lace designed with a Queen Anne neckline accented with bridal pearls and bishop sleeves. The A-line skirt flowed chapel length and was bordered with chantilly lace. Her fingertip veil was edged in lace and she carried a bouquet of yellow roses, ivy and baby's breath tied with yellow ribbon.

MRS. STEVEN DOUGLAS VAN CLEAVE

The attendants were each dressed in a blue crepe back satin dress with a matching jacket accented with pearl buttons. They each carried a bouquet of yellow carnations, white daisies, ivy and baby's breath tied with blue ribbon.

The wedding was directed by Mrs. Edna Barber.

The couple will live in Greenville following a wedding trip to Washington, D. C.

The bride is a graduate of the ECU School of Nursing and is employed at Pitt Memorial Hospital. The bridegroom is a teacher at Greenville Christian Academy. He graduated from Purdue University and Pensacola Christian College.

A reception was held at the church and was given by the parents of the bride. Mrs. Ann Griner served cake assisted by Miss Suzanne Hill. Mrs. Pam Thatcher poured punch assisted by Miss Mary Ellen Hill. Others assisting were Miss Kim Mason, Mrs. Janice Harris and Mrs. Kris Sheppard. Presiding at the guest register was Mrs. Jean Hudson.

A rehearsal dinner was given Friday evening at the Three Steers by the parents of the bridegroom.

JOB UPGRADING

PLYMOUTH, Mass. (AP) — To encourage employees to upgrade their jobs, Pixley Richards allows any qualified employee to try out for a higher-level job when it is posted to see if they like it.

"There is no penalty for trying a new job and then deciding to go back to the previous job," said Peter Richards, president of the plastics firm.

Engagement Announced

KARRIE LYNN WALLER. . .is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David L. Sparrow of Greenville, who announce her engagement to Virgil Eugene O'Neal, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney O'Neal of Bell Arthur. The bride-elect is also the daughter of the late Mr. H. D. Waller of Charlotte. The wedding is planned for Jan. 30.

In the life of every woman's skin there comes a turning point, a time when her face begins to look older. Now there is an alternative . . . Introducing

MILLENIUM

Scientific research tells us two of the known primary characteristics of aging skin are a slowed cell renewal process and a decrease of its natural abilities to care for itself. Millenium offers alternatives to both: (1) It actually accelerates the natural skin cell renewal process to make your skin look and feel more youthful, supple, resilient. (2) Millenium recalls your skin's youthful ability to effectively conserve and use its inner moisture. Little dry lines relax, sleek out. Your skin takes on a new radiance. Now, the future of your face has just changed. Just use these four Elizabeth Arden Millenium products and your skin is on its way to a more youthful look and feeling. For outer epidermal care use Hydrating Cleanser and Revitalizing Tonic. These two preparations work on the skin's outer layers to prepare it to receive inner epidermal care, provided by Day Renewal Emulsion and Night Renewal Creme. These two preparations work within the skin's outer layers to accelerate the natural cell renewal process to a younger rate. Stop by the Elizabeth Arden beauty counter today and begin your skin care régime toward a more youthful looking face.

Miss Scarborough, Mr. Kleinert Marry

MANTEO — Janice Lynn Scarborough and James Aaron Kleinert Jr. were united in marriage here in the Mount Olivet United Methodist Church Saturday afternoon at two o'clock.

The Rev. M. W. Warren Jr. performed the double ring ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. James A. Scarborough of Nags Head and Mr. and Mrs. James A. Kleinert of Greenville.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Nancy Matthews of Nags Head was maid of honor and bridesmaids included Bonnie Code and Mrs. Cathy Meacham, both of Wrightsville Beach. Mrs. Karen Whitfield of Nags Head, sister of the bride, was honorary bridesmaid. Leigh Ann Midgett of Nags Head, cousin of the bride, was flower girl.

The father of the bridegroom served as best man while ushers included Frank Meacham, Larry Jones and Bobby Allen, all of Greenville.

The couple will be living on the Outer Banks after a cruise to the Leeward and Windward Islands in the Caribbean.

The bride is a graduate of ECU and was previously employed by the New Hanover County School System. The bridegroom is also a graduate of ECU and was employed by New Hanover Memorial Hospital.

An after-rehearsal dinner was given by the bridegroom's parents at Restaurant by George Friday evening.

MRS. JAMES AARON KLEINERT JR.

Couple Weds In Trinity Church

YEADON, Pa. — Trinity Lutheran Church here was the setting for the wedding ceremony Saturday afternoon at two o'clock of Cynthia Kay Taylor and Allen Levorn Romine. The double ring ceremony was conducted by Paul Sorcek.

The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Ray Taylor of Rt. 1, Vanceboro, N.C. Mr. and Mrs. Levorn Romine of Yeadon, Pa. are parents of the bridegroom.

Ellen Fletcher of Yeadon, Pa. was the honor attendant and Ben Simkin of Lafayette Hills, Pa. was best man. Ushers were Greg Carman of Yeadon, Pa. and Cyrus Taylor of Winterville, N. C., brother of the bride.

The bride was dressed in an ivory dress of polyester lustreglo styled with a high neckline, empire waist, yoke front bodice trimmed in Venise lace and long bishop sleeves with cut-out motifs. The circular skirt extended into a chapel train. She wore a matching derby style hat with face veiling and illusion. She carried six long-stemmed white roses with ribbon tied with love knots.

The honor attendant wore a raspberry polyester silesta knit gown styled with a high Victorian collar, natural waist, chantilly lace trimmed bodice and straight sleeves with lace cuffs. She carried six long-stemmed pink roses.

After a wedding trip to the Pocono Mountains, the couple will live in Elkton, Md.

The bride is a CRT operator for Kennard's Department Store, Wilmington, Del. She attended Chicod High School. The bridegroom is a pharmacist in quality control for Stuart Pharmaceuticals, Newark, Del. He graduated from Philadelphia College of Pharmacy and Science and attended Yeadon High School.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

A manufacturer of foods came out with a full-page ad last week bannered, "Let's get cooking again, America."

It was a pitch to start women cooking at home. The gist of the ad was if you sent in labels from all the products listed, they would send you $5 in cash.

You don't suppose you could make it $10, could you?

Like four out of five families in America, I too have succumbed to the roar of the crowds and the smell of the grease.

In fact, the last time the light on my stove was on was when I inadvertently set a bucket of chicken on it. I don't know how to get families back into the kitchen again, but I do know what killed the family meal.

Apathy. You can lead a kid to asparagus, but you can't make him swallow it. I served more meals to a squatting ovation than I care to remember. One wouldn't eat onions, one got nauseous at the sight of white sauce, one had a catsup deficiency, and the other lived by bread alone.

The I-had-it-for-lunch chant sent home cooks running out of the kitchen in packs. You could serve Chicken Necks Wellington and you could count on half of the family having it for lunch that day and the other half still sick from having it yesterday.

Getting the family together for a meal became as impossible as everyone coming down with measles on the same day. Besides, the family that ate together began to hate together. Life at the dinner table wasn't the warm, shared feast everyone thought it would be. Past sins were marched out, punishments assigned, and in general food was thrown . . . not eaten.

When economics forced a lot of women into the labor market, they saw their chance for escape and took it. And left in the wake are shelves of staples that no longer have meaning. Take baking soda. No one uses it for baking, anymore — they bathe in it.

At some time, women will return to the home, but we've learned a lesson from all this. If you don't put it in a bag with a pickle and a napkin, it doesn't stand a chance.

As for the $5 bonus for cooking at home . . . I have my price.

And that isn't it.

SOUP SARRACINO

A mild-flavored favorite of an American family originally from Northern Italy.

5 pounds (about) zucchini (peeled and seeded and diced to make 8 cups)
½ cup water
3½ cups milk
2 teaspoons salt
1 tablespoon cornstarch blended with ½ cup milk

In a 5-quart saucepot over medium heat bring the zucchini and water to a boil; cook, covered, until tender — about 15 minutes. Cool; put the undrained zucchini through a ricer; measure 4 cups and return to saucepot. Stir in the milk and salt. Over medium heat, stirring often, bring to a boil. Add the cornstarch mixture and stir constantly until thickened.

GREEK FISH

A friend copycatted this after tasting it in a Greek restaurant.

2 tablespoons olive oil
1 medium onion, quartered and thinly sliced
8 ounces fresh mushrooms, sliced (about 2¾ cups)
1 cup diced (¼ inch) fresh tomato
1 clove garlic, minced
Crushed dried oregano to taste
Salt and pepper to taste
4 flounder fillets (each about 6 ounces)
Garnish: 4 fresh tomato wedges (½-inch wide)

In a medium skillet heat the oil; add the onion, mushrooms, diced tomato, garlic, oregano and salt and pepper. Saute until tender, about 5 minutes; remove from heat. Place fish in a single layer on a greased baking pan. Spoon mushrooms mixture over fillets and top each with a tomato wedge. Broil 3 inches from the heat source until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork — 3 to 5 minutes.

Couple Unites In Marriage Saturday

MURFREESBORO — Bonnie Ann Caulkins and Charles E. Revelle III were united in marriage Saturday at 3 p.m.

Officiating at the wedding ceremony at the Murfreesboro Baptist Church were the Rev. Jeff L. Norris and the bride's father, the Rev. Thomas H. Caulkins. The bride was given in marriage by her father. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Revelle Jr.

The bride wore a candelight gown of silk organza trimmed with Venise and peau d'ange lace. The gown featured a Queen Anne neckline with Venise lace appliques on the empire bodice. Matching appliques defined the long bishop sleeves with cuffs of peau d'ange lace. The full skirt flowed into an attached chapel train and was bordered with a two-tiered flounce of peau d'ange lace. Venise lace and pearls covered the candelight capuiet with lace edging the walking length veil of imported illusion.

Charlene C. Pilson, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Margaret P. Revelle of Raleigh, sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Emily F. Revelle of Chapel Hill, sister of the bridegroom. Anne G. Briley of Greenville and Deborah M. Kiesewetter of Elkhart, Texas. They wore identical mocha and ivory gowns designed by Aria. The gowns featured an ivory silesta chiffon bodice with a Belgium lace yoke and a high neckline. Tucks enhanced the front of the bodice. Lace cuffs accented the three-quarter length sleeves. A mocha satin ribbon defined the set-in waist that held the long gathered mocha skirt.

Best men were Charles L. Revelle Jr. and Charles L. Revelle Sr. father and grandfather of the bridegroom. Groomsmen were Henry H. Revelle of Chapel Hill, brother of the bridegroom, James W. Copeland Jr. of Goldsboro, R. Oliver Crawley Jr. of Sanford, W. David Edwards Jr. of Ahoskie, Charles H. Hobgood of Durham, Robert P. Holland of Greenville and Matthew M. Person III of Raleigh.

Mistresses of the ceremony were Mrs. J. Guy Revelle Jr. and Mrs. John P. Revelle of Murfreesboro.

Wedding music was presented by Mrs. John W. Gosnell, organist, Robert W. Brown, flutist, and Alton W. Parker Jr., soloist.

The couple will make their home in Winston-Salem and Murfreesboro.

Dr. Caulkins is a 1977 graduate of Davidson College and a 1981 graduate of the ECU School of Medicine. She is currently doing a pediatric residency at North Carolina Baptist Hospital.

MRS. CHARLES E. REVELLE III

Bowman-Gray School of Medicine, Winston-Salem.

Revelle is a 1974 graduate of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and a 1977 graduate of Duke University School of Law. He is a partner in the law firm of Revelle, Burleson, Lee and Revelle, Murfreesboro.

MRS. DONALD LEONDROUS JOHNSON JR.

Wedding Vows Are Spoken

ROCKY MOUNT — Wanda Ellen Henderson and Donald Leondrous Johnson Jr. were united in marriage Saturday at 3 p.m. in the First Baptist Church here. Dr. John D. Cave officiated in the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John William Henderson of Rocky Mount. She is a graduate of Meredith College and received her M.A.Ed. at East Carolina University. Prior to marriage, she was employed by East Carolina University as lead teacher in the remedial education activity program.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Leondrous Johnson Sr. of Rocky Mount. He is a graduate of East Carolina University and is employed by Wake County Schools as a teacher at Garner Senior High School.

Wedding music was presented by Mrs. Robert Daughtridge, organist, Mrs. James Wordsworth, pianist, Charles Rose, soloist and the Chancel Choir of First Baptist Church, directed by Wilburn Walker. Mrs. Charles Harrison directed the ceremony and Mrs. Marty Winkler, cousin of the bridegroom, presided at the register.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a candlelight gown of imported Brussels lace over taffeta. The fitted bodice featured a sheer yoke and a Victorian collar and long sheer traditional sleeves. The semi-fitted full skirt extended into a chapel train. The gown was complemented by a cathedral mantilla of English net bordered in Brussels lace. The mantilla was worn over a chapel cap with cascading scattered lace motifs.

The honor attendant was Mrs. Howard Harold Strandberg III, sister of the bride of Rocky Mount. Bridesmaids were Vivian Rivers and Elmina Lawerence Johnson, sisters of the bridegroom of Rocky Mount, Mrs. Gary Bowne and Mrs. Randy Ellison of Raleigh and Mrs. Steven Jaynes of Charlotte. Honorary bridesmaids were Cathy Michele Allan of Durham, Jane Hall Coleman of Raleigh, Hilda Sue Daniel of Oxford and Judith Marie Norris of Carthage.

The bridegroom's father served as best man. Ushers were John Robert Johnson, brother of the bridegroom, Howard Harold Strandberg III, brother-in-law of the bride, and Anthony Lane Williams, cousin of the bride, all of Rocky Mount, Robert Jackson Andrews of Wilmington, Robert Thurman Hughes of Fairmont, Ronald Leonard Hughes of Fayetteville and Robert Judson Rosser of Raleigh.

Following the ceremony, a reception was given in the church fellowship hall by the parents of the bride.

A rehearsal dinner was hosted by the bridegroom's parents, grandparents, aunts and uncles Friday evening.

An after-rehearsal party was given by friends of the bride's parents.

A wedding breakfast was held at the Carlton House Saturday morning given by the bride's aunts, uncles and grandparents.

The fourth annual Southern Flue-Cured Tobacco Festival did not come and go without a sampling of Rose High talent as Jessica Murphy and Karen Forehand claimed second and third places in the art contest.

Five states — Florida, Georgia, North Carolina, South Carolina and Virginia — were represented in the contest which consisted of high school, junior high and elementary school divisions.

As second place winner, Jessica received a plaque, $75 toward the school fund and a $50 savings bond. She entered an oil crayon drawing of a tobacco barn and surrounding landscape. Karen, who did a white charcoal pencil drawing of an old country house, was awarded a plaque, $50 for the school and a $25 savings bond. The first place winner was from Tarboro.

Judges for the contest were Professors Joe Buske, Richard Laing and Edward Reep of ECU's School of Art. All entries had to be of an agricultural nature. Ribbons have been won by the school during the four years of the show.

Along the same aesthetic line, Neil Kopping recently competed in the Greensboro College Art Competition, capturing second place and winning $100. The statewide competition was open to any high school senior, graduate or college student.

Neil's winning entry was a mixed media drawing of ink and tissue paper. He attended a public reception and awards presentation yesterday at the Irene Cullis Gallery in Greensboro to formally accept his award.

Over 75 North Carolina colleges, universities and agencies were represented in the Elm Greet Gym during Post Secondary Opportunity Day Nov. 17. Seniors and juniors were allowed to leave school at 11 a.m. and noon to go and talk to representatives, collect brochures and pamphlets and gather general information concerning their futures after high school.

With college, community college and university representatives, students were able to secure information dealing with scholarships, financial aid, application processes, SAT scores and class rank. Many of the schools offered forms for students to fill out to request additional information.

With representatives from the many agencies and corporations including Burroughs Wellcome, McGraw-Edison Co., Pitt Memorial Hospital and Air Force ROTC, students inquired about job training requirements, application processes and job skills. The event is annually organized by the guidance department.

Playing in All-State Orchestra, which is North Carolina's top student orchestra, are four promising musicians from Rose. The orchestra's first performance will be held today in Winston-Salem.

Elizabeth Ellen and Carol Moore played first violin while Bill Kitrell and Tim Shank played viola and bass, respectively. Students auditioned last year for the Regional Honors Orchestra. The top half of this orchestra then went on in November for solo auditions, whereby some were selected to participate in All-State. In order to qualify, the candidates had to all belong to their school orchestra.

The panel of judges at the All-State auditions were N. C. music teachers sponsored by the N. C. Branch of the Music Educators National Conference.

Members of the French Club gathered Thursday evening at Sweet Caroline's for a French meal consisting of soup du jour, a choice of crepe royale, brocolli and ceddar crepe or quiche Lorraine, chocolate mousse and tea. Tentative plans for Christmas celebrations include caroling in French and a Christmas party with a variety of French dishes and desserts.

Miss Bennett Says Vows

MRS. MICHAEL ARTHUR SANFORD

LAKE JUNALUSKA — Karen Faye Bennett and Michael Arthur Sanford were united in matrimony at the Memorial Chapel here Saturday in an evening candlelight service. Joseph Foster Bennett, father of the bride, officiated at the service.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Duane Barrett of Allendale, S. C. and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Foster Bennett of Greenville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Edward Sanford of Clyde.

The bride wore a white gown with Venise and chantilly lace. It had a Victorian neckline and long flowing sleeves with Venetian lace at the wrists. The flowing skirt had appliques, Venetian lace and sequins which ended with a chapel train accented by a chiffon knit flounce. Her veil was half-length with a Juliet cap detailed in sequins and lace matching the gown. She carried a cascade of whiter roses.

Kelly Bennett of Greenville, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and wore a floor length blue lustreglo dress. It had a draped top with satin shoulder straps and a gathered skirt. The jacket was sheer organza trimmed with matching satin ribbon. She carried a cascade of white poms and blue carnations.

Leigh Brittain of Salisbury, Cindy Behymer of Asheville and Eve Toyer of Canton were bridesmaids. They wore dresses fashioned after the maid of honor's and carried colonial bouquets of white poms and blue carnations.

The father of the bridegroom was best man and groomsmen included Jeff Toyer of Canton, Randy Nelson of Waynesville and Jonathan Barrett of Allendale, S. C., brother of the bride.

The mother of the bride wore a dress with a bodice of cranberry chiffon accented by spaghetti straps. The mother of the bridegroom selected a blue floor length gown with a matching lace jacket.

Brent and Sue Yingling of Fletcher presented a program of wedding music. She was organist and he played a trumpet processional. Candlelighters were Julie Savage and Leslie Weaver. Barbara Rusnak presided at the guest book.

A reception followed the ceremony and was held in the Terrace Hotel lobby. Serving were Mary Vera Cruz, Martha Pierson, Teresa Love and Kim Heritage.

The couple will live in Clyde after a wedding trip to Gatlinburg, Tenn.

Fantasy And Fact Help Children Grow

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Is there a way my child can enjoy the fun of believing in Santa Claus without being lied to?

It doesn't seem fair to tell a trusting child lies, and yet I hate to deprive him of the pleasure of fantasizing about a make-believe character.

My son is still a wee baby, and I hate lying to him, knowing that one day he'll learn the truth and wonder how many other things I lied about.

DEBBIE

DEAR DEBBIE: Childhood fantasies are not only fun for children, they are also useful aids in developing healthy imaginations and creativity. It's better to tell your child from the start that Santa, the Easter Bunny (and don't forget the Tooth Fairy) are all "make-believe" characters. The mistake most parents make is to insist that these imaginary characters actually exist after the child has questioned their authenticity.

DEAR ABBY: Last week my sister-in-law had a garage sale, and right out front was displayed the gift my husband and I had given her last Christmas! It had never been used and was sold for less than half of what we paid for it. (I would have bought it, but someone else got to it first.)

My husband said it was hers to do whatever she pleased with it and I was stupid and oversensitive to give it a second thought.

What do you think?

HURT

DEAR HURT: Your husband is right when he says that the gift was hers to do with whatever she pleased. But he's wrong to label you "stupid and oversensitive" to give it a second thought. Your sister-in-law was the insensitive and stupid one for having offered your gift at a garage sale that you were apt to attend.

CRYPTOQUIP

IUTOAZS IENWXALHZ ITUMTAO SKA WLIENWSA ITUMA MZHSXKAU

Yesterday's Cryptoquip — LOVELY INDIAN WOMAN WOVE MANY VARICOLORED SCARVES.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: E equals O

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

GOREN BRIDGE

BY CHARLES H. GOREN AND OMAR SHARIF
© 1981 by Chicago Tribune

DEAR MR. GOREN

Q. — Of late, we have come across players who use the weak two-bid with an increasing frequency. As a matter of fact, my wife and I recently adopted the convention. However, we have not sorted out which bids should be forcing and which are not, and we would appreciate any advice you can give us. — R. Campbell, Indianapolis, Ind.

(This question has been awarded the weekly prize.)

A. — You have gone about developing a bidding structure in a rather unusual way. Just adopting a convention because a lot of other people are using it, without considering the consequences to your style, etc., is a sure way to court disaster at the bridge table.

The weak two-bid is indeed becoming increasingly popular. It is described in some detail in a new book "Bridge Conventions" (by William Root and Richard Pavlicek, 256 pages, hard cover, Crown Publishers, $12.95; obtainable from your local bookstore or by mail order from Bridge World Magazine, 39 W. 94th St., New York, N.Y. 10024).

We do not have the space to go into all the variations that can be adopted when using weak two-bids, so the remainder of this article will be directed only to the two simplest and most commonly used systems of rebids.

In both these methods, the only forcing response to an opening weak two-bid is two no trump. In the first of these methods, a system of responses developed by the late Harold Ogust and refined by the Italian Blue Team, opener uses five steps to describe his hand:

i) 3 ♣ — Bad hand and a bad suit;
ii) 3 ♢ — Bad hand and a good suit;
iii) 3 ♡ — Good hand and bad suit;
iv) 3 ♠ — Good hand and good suit;
v) 3 NT — Six-card suit headed by the three top honors.

Opener	Responder
2 ♡	2 NT

1) ♠ x x ♡ A J 9 x x x ♢ Q x x ♣ x x
2) ♠ x x ♡ K Q J 9 x x ♢ Q x x ♣ x x
3) ♠ x ♡ A J 9 x x x ♢ Q x x ♣ K x x
4) ♠ x ♡ K Q J x x x ♢ K J x ♣ x x x
5) ♠ x ♡ A K Q x x x ♢ x x x ♣ x x x

The second method asks opener to show a feature in response to the two no trump force. A feature is usually considered to be a side-suit ace, king or concentration of strength.

Thus, with hands (1) and (2), opener would rebid three hearts, denying a feature. With hand (3), he would rebid three clubs and with hand (4), three diamonds. Hand (5) would again bid three no trump.

Holiday Schedule

The Greenville Public Works Department will observe Thursday and Friday as Thanksgiving holidays.

Residents' backyard garbage will be collected only once by the Sanitation Division during this week, either Monday or Tuesday. Front-yard trash will be picked up on the regularly scheduled day, except for Thursday's route, which will be spread out over Tuesday and Wednesday.

Leaf vacuum will operate Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of this week and will be in neighborhoods on the same day as front-yard trash collection. Leaves should be placed out front prior to your collection day. Citizens should not place leaves, pine straw and other trash in the street curb. The edge of the yard, three to four feet from the curb, is the ideal location to pile leaves, straw and trash.

Containerized routes servicing restaurants and other businesses will operate on Friday.

The Greenville Area Transit System will only observe Thursday as a holiday and will operate Friday and Saturday.

City cemeteries will be opened and closed on their regular schedule during the holidays.

For emergency street, cemetery or traffic sign problems, citizens may call the Greenville Police Department.

FIRST LICENSING

TORONTO (AP) — Canada has become the first country to license a synthetic form of the active ingredient in marijuana for use by cancer patients to counter the nausea caused by anti-cancer drugs, the Medical Post reports.

Peru, U.S. Trying To Halt Art Sales

LIMA, Peru (AP) — Peru and the United States are joining forces to stop the smuggling of stolen art works from Peru.

The two countries signed an agreement recently providing for the recovery and return from the United States of stolen archeological, historical and cultural properties of "outstanding" artistic or historical merit.

Although Peru has prohibited the unauthorized export of its antiquities since 1929, the government estimates 40,000 to 80,000 works of pottery, sculpture, textiles and paintings worth millions of dollars are placed on the market in the United States and Europe each year.

Officials here say the foreign sale of the works, often the loot of thefts from churches and robberies from ancient grave sites, is the same as selling Peru's artistic heritage.

"Our artistic legacy is the spiritual essence of our people," said Dr. Teofilo Salazar, head of artistic conservation at the National Institute of Culture.

The agreement between Peru and the United States coincides with a new willingness demonstrated by the U.S. Customs Service to prevent stolen art from entering the United States and to seek indictments of the smugglers.

The agreement signed here followed wide publicity.

Watergate Book, New Novel Among N.C. Book Club Offerings

RALEIGH — Former Sen. Sam Ervin's book about Watergate and a major new novel from Doris Betts headline the N.C. Book Club's offering for the fall quarter of 1981.

"The Whole Truth: The Watergate Conspiracy," written by "Senator Sam" and published by Random House, is the Book Club's featured historical selection. Ms. Betts' "Heading West," published by A.A. Knopf on Oct. 23, 1981, is the featured literary selection.

On Nov. 20 at a champagne punch reception and autograph party in his honor following his address to the annual meeting of the Literary and Historical Association, Ervin will autograph copies of his book.

The Book Club's fall quarterly offering also includes general selections just released from two North Carolina presses. Richard Kelly's "The Andy Griffith Show" (John F. Blair) is a serious look at one of the most popular television series of all times which starred North Carolina's beloved Andy Griffith.

Roy Underhill's "The Woodwright's Shop," (UNC Press) is a companion to the PBS television series to be aired this fall on the UC-TV network.

In addition to these four main selections, the N.C. Book Club is featuring a list of titles appropriate for the gift-giving season. The diversity of books in this offering makes gift selection easy for every name on your list.

Among the titles are "North Carolina" by William S. Powell; "Marion Brown's Southern Cook Book", "An Artist's Catch" by Frank Stick; "Look Homeward Angel" and "Of Time and the River," both by Thomas Wolfe.

Also "The Surface of Earth" by Reynolds Price; and Blackbeard and Wright Brothers posters with accompanying pamphlets entitled "The Pirates of Colonial North Carolina" by Hugh Rankin and "The Wright Brothers and Their Development of the Airplane" by Barbara Craig.

All of the above titles, plus a backlist of more than 20 books already offered by the Book Club, can be ordered at prices substantially below the publishers' list prices. Members of the N.C. Literary and Historical Association receive a 25 percent discount and others receive a 15 percent discount on any Book Club selection.

The N.C. Book Club is a project of the N.C. Literary and Historical Association. For details and book orders contact Frances W. Kunstling, Literary and Historical Association, 109 E. Jones St., Raleigh, 27611; or telephone (919) 733-7305.

Book News

By Meredith Foltz

These new Sheppard Library books for teen-agers appeared on the American Library Association's nonficton list of 1980 Best Books for Young Adults. If the books here are checked out when you come to the library, you ean leave your name and phone number and you will be called when the books are returned.

"Selma, Lord, Selma: Girlhood Memories of the Civil-Rights Days," by Sheyann Webb and Rachel Nelson. Sheyann and Rachel were children during the drive to register black voters in Selma, Ala., in 1965. In this book they recall their feelings as they joined their families in civil rights meetings and marches. Also remembered are the beatings and murders meant to ruin the efforts of their friend, Dr. Martin Luther King.

"Endings" by Leon Prochnik. Described here are the deaths, "glorious and otherwise," of 10 famous people: Freud, Houdini, Robert Falcon Scott, Isadora Duncan, Mussolini, Zelda Fitzgerald, James Forrestal, Yukio Mishima, Dylan Thomas and Malcolm X. Their deaths — dramatic, bizarre, or pitiful — are shown to reflect the lives they had led.

"Worlds Apart" by Robert Maiorano. A soloist with the New York City Ballet, Maiorano describes his first 16 years as a dance student growing up in Brooklyn. At home, he shared with his mother and sister a poor apartment in a grim neighborhood menaced by gangs. In ballet class, he did well enough to dance in the New York City Ballet's "Nutcracker" when he was nine and become a member of the company at age fifteen.

"South Africa" by Jason and Ettagale Laure. This book offers profiles of eight South African youths who are "coming of age under apartheid." Young black and white women and men discuss their lives, jobs, expectations, and frustrations in a country where strict separation of the races is government policy.

"Laying Waste" by Michael Brown. Studied here are the dangers to humans and the environment from poisonous chemical waste disposal, such as the dumping of PCB along North Carolina roads in 1978. Especially alarming is the author's claim that very little is being done to defuse these "toxic time-bombs."

"Barlowe's Guide To Extraterrestrials" by Wayne Barlowe and Ian Summers. Fans of science fiction will not want to miss this illustrated dictionary of aliens from sci-fi classics. With each full-length color portrait is a summary of the creature's physical characteristics, habitat, and culture as well as detail pictures of unusual body parts.

Rules Listed For Memorial Literary Contest

A final date of Jan. 31 has been set for postmarking entries in the annual literary contest sponsored by the Irene Leache Memorial of Norfolk, Va.

The contest, in two categories of prose and two of poetry, is open to residents of Virginia and North Carolina, to students and members of the Armed Forces stationed in the area, and former winners now living out of state.

The four categories and prizes being offered are:

•Anna Cogswell Wood Prize — Short story, 1,000 to 3,000 words: First prize, $300; second prize $75; third prize, $25.

•Fanny Rogers Curd Prize — Non-fiction, 1,000 to 3,000 words: First prize, $200; second prize $75.

•Sallie Shepherd Prize — Traditional verse, blank verse, sonnet and other conventional forms: First prize, $75; second prize, $50; third prize, $25.

(Poets unfamiliar about the distinction between blank and free verse might consult an encyclopedia).

Applicable rules for the contest include:

— All entries must be typed on 8½ x 11" paper.

— Short story and non-fiction contestants are to send only one copy, stapled at the left corner. These are to be sent to: Mrs. Fred Martin, 1544 Cloncurry Road, Norfolk, Va., 23505. On these entries, the title alone is to be typed at the top of page one. The author's name must not appear on any page of the copy. Include a separate page on which is entered the title, category, name, address and telephone number. (This entry will be returned, along with a list of winners, if a stamped, self-addressed 9 x 12 envelope is enclosed. If an entry is submitted in each of the two prose categories, include a return envelope for each entry).

— Poetry contestants are to send two copies of each entry to: Miss Beverley Dabney, 6148 Rolfe Ave., Norfolk, Va., 23508. One is to be unsigned to be sent to the judges, the other is to include name, address and phone number. No poem is to exceed one page in length. Poets are to keep a copy, as no poems are returned.

— All work must be unpublished and not offered currently in another contest. Winners will be notified in March. Prizes will be presented and winning entries read at the Spring Festival, held at 3 p.m. on the last Friday in March at the Chrysler Museum in Norfolk. Winning entries will be published in a brochure to be distributed at the festival, and will be temporarily protected by copyright notice. After March 31, all rights will revert to the contestant.

Writers To Meet Tuesday

Poetry Reading At NCMA

RALEIGH — A poetry reading by Jonathan Williams will take place at 3 p.m. Sunday at the N.C. Museum of Art, 107 E. Morgan St., Raleigh. The reading will be open to the public and there is no admission charged.

Williams, a native of Asheville, poet and prose writer, founded The Jargon Society, a poet's press, in 1951 at Black Mountain College. He remains editor, publisher and designer of the press, now located in Highlands.

Among works he has authored are "An Ear in Bartram's Tree," "Blues and Roots/Rue and Bluets," "The Loco Logodaedalist in Situ," "Mahler," and many others. His essays have appeared in publications such as "The New York Times Book Review," "The Nation," "Foxfire," "Cultural Affairs," and "Parnassus."

Among honors and awards received by Williams are the 1977 N.C. Award in the Fine Arts, a 1960 Longview Foundation Grant and a 1957-58 Guggenheim Fellowship for Poetry. He has also received several grants from the National Endowment for the Arts.

Williams has been poet-in-residence at several universities, including Wake Forest University, the N.C. School of the Arts, Salem College and Winston-Salem State University.

Arts And The Child

RALEIGH — A new publication of interest to those in arts education has been published by the N. C. Department of Cultural Resources.

"Arts and the Child: A North Carolina Conference," contains proceedings of the major arts education conference held at the Raleigh Civic Center in March of 1980.

Illustrated with photographs, the book includes edited versions of many of the speeches, discussions and presentations. Also included are lists of resoures pertaining to each topic. A $21,500 grant from the L. Smith Reynolds Foundation of Winston-Salem supported publication of the book.

Copies are avaialable free of charge for North Carolina residents. The cost to non-North Carolina residents is $10, plus $1.50 postage. For copies, write to: "Arts and the Child," N.C. Department of Cultural Resources, 109 E. Jones St., Room 310, Raleigh, N.C., 27611.

Of Saints And Animals

Special Friends: Tales of Saints and Animals. Text and illustrations by Arlene Marguerite Graston. New York, N.Y. Bantam Press. Paper, 96 pps., $2.95 .

Older readers who have in the past delighted in stories of people who have lived in solitude — or near solitude — surrounded by beasts, birds and insects who became their steadfast friends, will welcome this beautifully illustrated book as an introduction of these beloved old tales for young readers they care about.

Ms. Graston, a Frenchwoman transplanted to New York, has abbreviated six noted legends into brief texts accompanied by 63 splendid illustrations. The multicolored drawings hearken back to the lyrical concept of book illustration that makes 19th and early 20th century book art such a visual joy. Two of these are double page illustrations, many are full page. Animals in loving attitudes and serene landscapes give this book a welcome tone of idyllic times when it was much easier to get away from it all, to find a wooded isle or secluded hill hideaway for a life style of meditation.

THE YOUNG PRIEST CIARAN ... finds his hermit's life dedicated to study cherrfully interrupted by animals, birds and insects who became his loyal companions. This is one of 63 colored illustrations by Arlene Marguerite Graston contained in a paperback Bantum-Skylark book, "Special Friends: Tales of Saints and Animals.

The six legends covered are two from Ireland, "Ciaran and the Deer"; "Coleman and the Little Animals"; one from France, "Pretty Germaine and Her Sheep;" one from Italy, "Francis and the Wild Wolf;" one from present day Jugoslavia, "Jerome and the Lion;" and a single selection from the New World, "Martin and the Dogs and Cats," the story of Peru's famed friend to men and animals, St. Martin de Porres.

Only one of the six deal with a child, the girl in "Pretty Germaine and Her Sheep." This and two other stories, "Jerome" and "Martin" embrace other people peripherally. The other three, "Cirian," "Coleman" and "Francis" deal with true loners, those who by choice became hermits either to study or to commune with God and nature in true seclusion.

One niggling observation. There's far too extensive a usage of the word "little" to describe animals and objects. Other than that, the brief text well serves the purpose of presenting the germ of the story to young readers in a way that should serve to send them seeking out fuller versions.

This Bantum Skylark Book is based on the television program "Bless the Lord, All Ye Beasts." It is a book that will likely become treasured by young readers both for its message and its striking visual beauty.

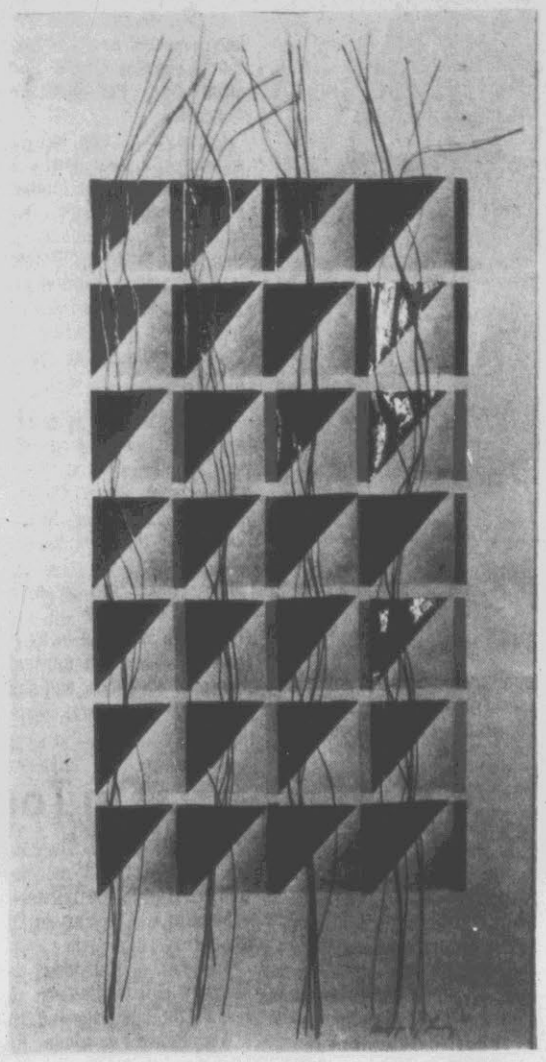
Textiles, Drawings In Laing Exhibition



FIBER FOIL NO. 3, TRIANGLES ... is one of several aluminum, paper and string collages by Penelope Laing now on view at the Greenville Museum of Art.

Textile woven wall pieces and collages incorporating paper, aluminum and thread are currently being exhibited by Penelope Laing in the South Galleries of the Greenville Museum of Art.

Echoes of nature are strongly manifested in Mrs. Laing's woven pieces, most of them in wool. She folds the woven pieces into multiple contours that bear resemblance to the natural beauty of newly furrowed fields. Colors in these pieces — a basic color subtly touched with related hues, run to rusts, orange-browns, and deep-shadow purple. These colors further add to the parallel of these pieces to nature.

The glitter of silver — cut pieces of aluminum paper — dominate her collages, mostly titled as part of a "Fiber Foil" series. These crisp, precisely designed compositions are brightened with touches of colors derived from cut pieces of colored papers. Small linen threads serve to form lines and grids and also act to tie the pattern of each collage together.

Mrs. Laing's collages are excellent examples of the way in which art, pared to essentials, can result in works that delight. There's a controlled, formal serenity in this art that is restful while at the same time providing visual pleasure.

One quartet of small wool bundles in natural colors is a playful composition. They can be viewed (in one interpretation at least) as the equivalent of cream colored larvae, enmeshed into each other during a winter's hiatus, awakening in the spring, with the more daring tentatively thrusting their bodies into the air around them. It's a simple, yet obviously time-consuming creation that is effective as textile sculpture.

Mrs. Laing's show will be up only until Wednesday. Those who have not yet seen it are urged to do so during the short time left before it ends.

Pioneer Holiday

GASTONIA — A Pioneer Thanksgiving will be reenacted at the Schiele Museum pioneer farm site between 1 and 6 p.m. Sunday. The Schiele Living History Team includes about 50 volunteers who are creating an accurate interpretation of rural life in early Carolina.

Cambodia has changed its name three times in five years and now is Kampuchea.

Ihrie Show At EEii's

BELHAVEN — An exhibition of paintings depicting Russian life by Louisburg artist Ralph Ihrie is opening Sunday at EEii's little KORNERS of the world, with a reception from 1 to 5 p.m. The public is invited to attend and to meet the artist.

Ihrie, a graduate from Louisburg College and from East Carolina University, where he received the BFA degree, is showing more than 40 paintings of Russia's people, countryside and cities. The paintings are based on sketches he made during a 1978 trip to Russia.

Ihrie maintains a studio on his family's dairy farm near Louisburg. He has exhibited his work in past years in Greenville, Louisburg and other eastern North Carolina towns, and one of his works is in the permanent collection of the Greenville Museum of Art.

The reception at EEii's is being co-sponsored by Louisburg native Don Richardson, librarian of the Hyde County School System, and Effie Raye and Julian Goff, proprietors of EEii's.

S.C. Bluegrass Festival Set

MYRTLE BEACH, S.C. — The 12th Annual S.C. State Bluegrass Festival will be held at the Convention Center in Myrtle Beach on Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Featured artists inlclude Jim and Jesse, and the Country Gentlemen on Thursday; Ralph Stanley, Don Reno, The Nashville Grass and Bill Harrell on Friday; The Osborne Brothers, Lewis Family, Mac Wiseman and many others are to perform on Saturday.

"Christmas 1981 Through the Eyes of a Child" is the theme of five British stamps issued for the 1981 Christmas season. The designs are from a competition organized by the British Broadcasting Company with the Post Office.

Original designs are by children ranging in age from five to 16, and confirm that traditional images of Christmas remain firm favorites with young people. Children whose work was chosen for the stamps are Samantha Brown, Tracy Jenkins, Lucinda Blackmore, Stephen Moore and Sophie Sharp. The multicolor stamps are printed in photogravure.

Collectors desiring information and purchase of the stamps can write to: Stangib Limited, 1325 Franklin Ave., Garden City, N.Y., 11530.

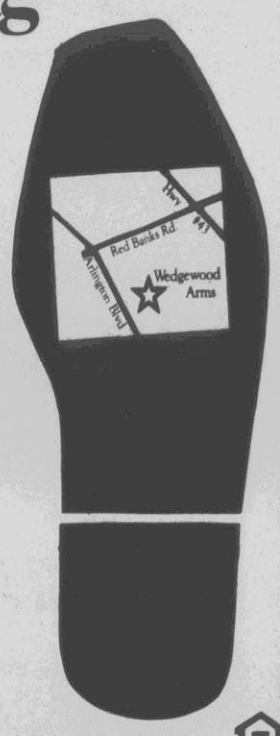
PLEASANT ATMOSPHERE AND A VARIETY OF ENTERTAINMENT FOR ALL

We put our foot down about apartments being within walking distance.



Wedgewood Arms apartments are within walking distance of three shopping centers, a nursery school, a junior high school, doctors' and dentists' offices and an athletic center.
As if that wasn't enough, three major traffic arteries; 264 Bypass, Arlington Blvd., and Charles St. are close enough to be seen and not heard.
Fact is, no apartments in town can legitimately claim to be more convenient to more things than Wedgewood Arms.
And, that's not all. Because Wedgewood Arms is not only convenient, it's different in other ways, too.
Take the floorplans: they're different from anything you've ever seen. And when you add in high energy efficiency, tennis courts, swimming pool, and the neighborhood "feeling" that these apartments will give you — well, you'll just have to see for yourself.

YOUNG MUSICIANS . . . Sixth graders, members of the elementary school bands of Greenville, perform the theme from Brahms' "Symphony No. 1" in a special concert presented to the school board recently under the direction of Mrs. Dottie Jo Knight. A contingent of 20 members are going to Winston-Salem where they will perform and take part in a workshop on Monday, November 23. (Reflector Photo by Jerry Raynor)

Soloists Chosen For Concert

Eight area musicians have been selected as soloists for the Greenville Choral Society's Dec. 13 Christmas Concert.

Carolyn Green Ipock, soprano; Bill Lear, baritone; Frederick Johnson, tenor, and Brenda Ballard, contralto, will be featured in Benjamin Britten's "Rejoice in the Lamb." Johnson and Ms. Ballard will also sing the tenor and alto areas in Bach's "Magnificat in D Major."

Other chosen for roles are Jon Ward Shaw for a solo performance in the Bach work; and Susan Coiner, Patricia Hiss and Susan Jones for the trio in the "Magnificat."

Mrs. Ipock has been a frequent performer in the Greenville area and in ECU Opera Theater and musical theater productions, and has sung with the Atlanta Symphony.

Lear is a junior vocal pedagogy major in the ECU School of Music and sang the male leads in "Iolanthe" and "Angelique", as well as the bass solo with the ECU choir's performance of Schubert's "Mass in G."

Johnson was a soloist with the Greenville Choral Society last year, and also performs with the Vocal Arts Ensemble of Greenville. He has been a featured soloist with the Hanover Opera Workshop and the New Hampshire Summer Music Festival.

Ms. Ballard, of Morehead City, has performed with numerous groups and received degrees at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music and the University of Michigan.

Ms. Coiner, of Washington, has performed solos from Handel's "Messiah" and from Puccini's "Sister Angelica."

Ms. Jones, a member of the Greenville Vocal Arts Ensemble, has performed in the ECU Opera Theater, including roles in "Die Fledermaus" and "Falstaff."

Mrs. Hiss, a frequent performer in the Greenville area, has been a soloist with the Choral Society. She is a member of the Vocal Arts Ensemble, the ECU Opera Theater, and is Director of Choirs at Rose High School.

The Christmas Concert will be presented at 3 p.m. on Dec. 13 in Immanuel Baptist Church. Tickets may be purchased in advance from Choral Society members.

To Perform At Music Meeting

They are sixth graders, and are talented young musicians. Tomorrow, November 23, they will have the honor of performing at the N. C. Music Educators' State Conference in Winston-Salem.

The 20 youthful music makers to play in Winston-Salem are students in Greenville City Schools, and are members of the Elementary Band, directed by Mrs. Dottie Jo Knight, teacher of band music.

In their 9:30 a.m. Monday concert in the Regency Room of the Hyatt House Hotel, the sixth graders will perform a program featuring two compositions — "Simple Gifts", arranged by Clark Tyler, and the theme from Brahms' "Symphony No. 1", arranged by John Kinyon.

Top Ten Tunes

1. "Private Eyes," Hall & Oates
2. "Arthur's Theme," Christopher Cross
3. "Endless Love," Ross & Richie
4. "Start Me Up," Rolling Stones
5. "For Your Eyes Only," Sheena Easton
6. "Physical," Olivia Newton-John
7. "The Night Owls," Little River Band
8. "Tryin' To Live My Life Without You," Bob Seger
9. "I've Done Everything For You," Rick Springfield
10. "When She Was My Girl," The 4 Tops

After the concert, the students will assist Mrs. Knight in presenting a workshop to demonstrate the teaching methods employed in beginning band classes in the Greenville elementary schools.

The band has presented this concert on two previous occasions — to the Greenville Band Boosters and at a meeting of the Greenville City School Board.

"THE SENATOR" — a chalk drawing by the late William Gropper (1891-1977), is among 155 national and area artists in the 17th annual Art on Paper Show. The exhibition opened Nov. 15 and will continue through Dec. 13 in Weatherspoon Art Gallery at UNC-Greensboro. Including the $17,500 for this year's exhibit, Dillard Paper Co., the show's sponsor, has contributed $224,500 to cover expenses of the 17 shows and to buy works of art for the gallery's Dillard Collection. Purchases by Dillard from the shows now number 342 pieces. (Photograph courtesy Weatherspoon Art Gallery)

WHEN THEY WERE YOUNG — Two veteran Hollywood stars, the late William Holden and Barbara Stanwyck, are shown in a scene 42 years ago from a 1939 film, Columbia's "Golden Boy." Holden, who was found dead last Monday, got his big break in films as the musically inclined boxer in "Golden Boy." (AP Laserphoto)

Train Film Monday

William Stockdale, noted film-maker and lecturer, will appear in Hendrix Theatre, Mendenhall Student Center on Monday at 8 p.m. to present his travelogue, "The Great Train Trip Across Siberia And Around The World." The film is under the sponsorship of Mendenhall Student Center and is part of the ECU Travel-Adventure Film Series.

Stockdale was born and reared in New England. He attended Yale University where he majored in English and journalism. A free-lance writer by profession, Stockdale is a frequent contributor to the travel pages of The New York Times.

It was during a "walk" that took him across the country that he became interested in photography. He became a professional motion picture producer in 1950. Stockdale has tended to specialize in filming and writing about unusual aspects of popular travel subjects.

"The Great Train Trip Across Siberia And Around The World" will afford the audience an opportunity to take a journey on one of the world's great trains, the Tran-Siberian Express. The film makes a 5,800-mile trek through the heartland of the Soviet Empire en route to many of the world's major cities.

Tickets for the program are on sale in the Central Ticket Office and are priced at $2.50.

Senior Recital

Susan Sohn of Piscataway, N. J. will present her senior piano recital at 9 p.m. Tuesday in the A.J. Fletcher Recital Hall.

For her program, Ms. Sohn has chosen an adagio by Mozart; the prelude to "Fugue in C Major" by Bach; and two compositions from "Estampes" by Debussy — "Pagodes" and "Soiree dans Grenade." The recital will be open to the public without charge.

Concert Set By 2 Sax Quartets

The ECU Saxophone Quartets, under the direction of Brad Foley, a faculty member in the instrumental department of the school of music, East Carolina University, will be in concert at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the A.J. Fletcher Recital Hall on campus. The concert is open to the public without charge.

The first part of the progam will feature a quartet composed of four music students — Rusty Rains and Charlie Carlson, alto saxophones; Mark Sutphin, tenor saxophone, and Howard McCullers, baritone saxophone.

This quartet will perform Telemann's "Overture Baroque" from the "Suite in A minor," arranged by Johnson; Voxman's arrangement of J. C. Bach's "Sinfonia No. 3;" William Presser's "Waltz and Scherzo," and an arrangement by Patrick of Edward MacDowell's "Two Woodland Sketches."

The second part of the program will be performed by Foley, soprano saxophone, with three music students — James Gilliam, alto saxophone; Gary Liebst, tenor saxophone, and Willie Morris, bariton saxophone.

This quartet has chosen five works: Alexander Glazounov's "Quartet, opus 109;" Russell S. Howland's "Quartet No. 1;" "Introduction et variations sur une ronde populaire" by Gabriel Pierne; "Improvisation I for Saxophone Quartet" by Phil Woods, and two Scott Joplin pieces, arranged by Zajac — "Heliotrope Bouquet" and "Ragtime Dance."

Graduate Recital

Baritone Clifton Harris of Tarboro will present his graduate recital at 7:30 p.m. Monday in the A. J. Fletcher Recital Hall. There is no admission charged and the recital is open to the public.

Harris will be accompanied by Patricia Foltz, piano; Joann Bath and Melodie Jones, both violin; Kathryn Jenkins, viola, and Andrea Thomas, cello.

For his recital, Harris has selected two songs by Bach; two by Schubert, selections from "Eight Early Songs" by Webern; also, "Onegin's Aria" from Tchaikovsky's "Eugene Oengin"; Hahn's "Fetes Galantes"; "Mandoline" by Dupont; Liszt's "Oh! Quand je dors"; Chabrier's "Les cigales"; and Barber's "Dover Beach."

WOOW Classics

Three full-scale compositions have been selected by hostess Karen Hause for her WOOW Classics program, airing from 10 p.m. until midnight tonight over WOOW Radio, 1340 on the radio dial.

The major work on the program is Carl Orff's "Carmina Burana." The work is subtitled "Cantiones profanae contoribus et choris" or "Secular songs for solo and chorus."

The second work is Brahms' "Concerto in A minor for Violo, Cello and Orchestra" (the Double Concerto).

A composition by a 20th century French composer, Vincent D'Indy, "Symphony on French Mountain Air", is the final selection on the program.

Ceramic Guild Exhibition

The Eighth Annual Ceramics Guild Exhibition and Sale of functional pottery and clay sculptural forms will be held on two days — Thursday and Friday, Dec. 3 and 4 from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m.

This year, the exhibition/sale will be held in the main entrance lobby of the Leo W. Jenkins Fine Arts Building on East Fifth Street.

All proceeds benefit the Ceramic Guild's programs for lectuers, workshops and symposiums. Ceramics being offered in this annual East Carolina community event are original and hand made.

Those wanting additional information can call the ECU School of Art, 757-6665 from 8 a.m. until noon and ask for Ms. Linda LeMar or Charles Chamberlain.

Students In Madrigal

ECU News Bureau

Eight student singers from the East Carolina University School of Music, along with several student instrumentalists, will be featured performers in ECU's annual Christmas Madrigal Dinner series Dec. 1-5.

Clad in Elizabethan costumes, they will perform traditional Christmas carols of the English Renaissance era. Other entertainment at the dinners will be provided by a pair of child tumblers, a strolling poet and a magician, Michael Brown of Greenville

Fanfares for the various courses of the traditional roast beef dinner, complete with boar's head, wassail and flaming dessert, will be performed by three herald trumpeters.

Lord and Lady of the Manor are James Rees, associate professor of speech, and Franceine Rees of the ECU News Bureau staff.

As Lord High Chamberlain, music student Constantine Peters of Rockville, Md., will announce the guests as they arrive.

The annual dinner series is sponsored by the ECU Student Center and the School of Music. Guests' tickets are $12 each and are available at the ECU Central Ticket Office in Mendenhall Student Center.

Dr. Charles Moore of the ECU School of Music voice faculty is director of the annual dinner series.

'81 Tobacco Festival Celebrates The Season Of The Gold Leaf

DECORATING CONTEST INSPIRES CREATIVE ENTRIES...Sunshine Toy Station, Pitt Plaza, filled their window with miniature figures and props to resemble a southern tobacco plantation. The scene earned them a first prize in the Tobacco Festival Decorating Contest. Other first-place winners were S&S Cafeteria and Belk-Tyler at Carolina East Mall, and Wachovia Bank's Meadowbrook branch.

CARS WITH CLASS...The antique car show, held for the first time during the Tobacco Festival this year, attracted car buffs from throughout eastern North Carolina. The show coincided with a sponsored tour of the Village of yesteryear at the Pitt County fairgrounds. A larger show is planned for next year.

Solar Home May Have Excess Electricity To Sell

By JOAN MOWER

CARLISLE, Mass. (UPI) — Imagine living in a house with plenty of light, heat, electricity and hot water, but never having to write another check to the utility company.

That dream could be within your reach if you can afford a $325,000 house in this suburb about 15 miles northwest of Boston.

Steven J. Strong, an engineer who specializes in solar houses, has designed a contemporary, 4-bedroom, 3½-bathroom house on a 2-acre lot that may end the future owner's utility bill headache. He'll even get a Jacuzzi.

The 3,100-square-foot house, which has an attractive wooden exterior, has 196 solar photovoltaic panels measuring 500 square feet on its slanted roof facing south.

Photovoltaic cells — 3-inch silvery wafers of silicon that absorb sunlight and emit electricity — are contained in the panels that form an eavesdrop for the house.

Solar cells, first developed to provide electrical power aboard spacecraft, are also used for remote stations in telecommunications work. Recently, some builders have been installing the panels on houses.

The peak energy-producing capacity of the Carlisle house in a 24-hour period is about 44 kilowatt hours, more than the typical family would use in a day. The excess power would be sold to Boston Edison Co., the state's largest utility.

But on cloudy days, the photovoltaics will likely generate no more than 2 kilowatt hours, requiring homeowners to buy back electricity from the power company. An automatic system switches on when demand exceeds supply from the photovoltaics.

Strong predicts the house will produce between 8,000 and 10,000 kilowatt hours per year and the average family uses about 8,500 kilowatt hours annually.

"On an annual basis, a net excess of electricity could be produced," he said. "But that would depend on the family's electricity pattern."

Dr. Edward C. Kern of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology estimated the Carlisle house will produce about 9,500 kilowatt hours of electricity each year — but predicted that would be only 86 percent of the household's needs.

Were the house a typical all-electric dwelling depending on the utility for its total energy needs, Strong estimated the homeowner's bill would run between $2,500 and $4,000 annually.

Besides photovoltaic cells, the house has many other energy-saving features. It is designed to collect thermal energy for space and water heating and has a wood stove for supplementary heat.

By facing south, the house receives the sun's warmth, storing the heat in a dark quarry tile floor. Heavy insulation and a massive brick chimney also provide a thermal core to protect the interior from outdoor temperature extremes.

Although the Carlisle house has a high pricetag, Strong said it is no more expensive than similiar dwellings on the market.

And for the purchaser of the Carlisle house, the photovoltaics came virtually free, thanks to the Department of Energy which paid for the solar system as part of a research project to test the technical performance and practicality of residential photovoltaics.

Because the photovoltaics were paid for by Uncle Sam, the cost of the house is substantially lower than it would have been had the panels been bought on the open market.

"Right now, photovoltaics are not cost-effective for the average homeowner," Strong said.

A home system may cost thousands of dollars. Put into consumer terms, photovoltaic cells now cost about $6 per peak watt of generated electricity, according to most estimates.

But government experts predict the cost will slide down to 70 cents per peak watt by 1986. That price would make photovoltaic electricity competitive with many electric utilities.

Strong said the Japanese are making particularly rapid gains in developing cost-effective photovoltaic panels.

Q. — The cabinets in our kitchen are wood. They have been there for about 30 years and are still in good condition except for a kind of stickiness that seems to have developed. Is this from the grease in the kitchen or has the finish, which I think is shellac, started to deteriorate? How do I clean them? Or must I strip them with a varnish remover?

A. — It is likely that the stickiness is from grease that has accumulated over the years. Haven't the cabinets been cleaned regularly? If not, that should be a standard procedure after they have been put back into shape. Start out with one of the conventional cleaning preparations, reading the label on the one you select to be sure it can be used on wood. It may take a considerable amount of rubbing and perhaps two applications to do the job properly. If this proves unsatisfactory, try rubbing the finish with denatured alcohol. If the finish is shellac, as you suspect, the alcohol will take it off or, at the least, make the surface suitable for refinishing. When you use the alcohol, be sure there is plenty of ventilation. Only in an extreme case will you have to use a varnish remover. Not so incidentally, do you have some kind of exhaust in the kitchen to rid the room of smoke and grease when cooking?

Q. — When the hot water is turned on in our kitchen, it takes a long time before the water gets hot. We have been told this is a waste, not only of water but of the electricity used to heat the water. What can we do about it?

A. — It isn't that it takes a long time for the water to get hot; it takes a long time for the hot water to reach you. It could even be that some of the heat in the water is dissipated while going through the cold pipes. This is a difficult problem to solve, simply because long lines of piping may be the cause. Insulating the hot-water pipes sometimes provides a solution.

(Leaky faucets, noisy pipes, balky toilet tanks and bathroom condensation are among the subjects discussed in Andy Lang's booklet, "Make Simple Plumbing Repairs," which can be obtained by sending 50 cents AND a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P. O. Box 477, Huntington, N.Y. 11743. Questions of general interest will be answered in the column, but individual correspondence cannot be undertaken.)

PLAN YOUR HOME — The Eskridge

Unusual Design Creates Comfortable Living

By Jerry Bishop

Mother Nature did a fine job in giving this world an infinity of beautiful settings. Our designers wanted to contribute to the beauty of the outdoors by designing a home which would not interfere with Mother Nature's plan. A beautiful contemporary design is just one of the features this home has to offer. Whether the setting is the great outdoors hidden among massive trees, or the paved streets of a metropolitan suburb, this home will be a delightful source of pride to you. After spending our working days on crowded freeways, in modern office buildings surrounded by endless expanses of glass, searching for non-existent parking spaces, many of us look forward to ending the day in quiet, warmth and comfort of our own home. Toward that end the Eskridge provides not only the relaxing comfort of your own home but because of its design and the way it fits so well in the surrounding scenery its a pleasure to look at as well as a delightful place to live.

The central focus of this highly pleasing three bedroom rancher is the family room, its largest most architecturally interesting space, the first room seen upon entering, this room features a prow shape, a beamed ceiling and a fireplace. Sliding glass doors all warmth and light to flood the room and gives access to the multi-leveled deck. The well designed kitchen has a center work island and a large breakfast area overlooking the deck. Sliding glass doors from the breakfast nook, to the deck makes dining outside an easy treat for the whole family. The laundry room and a lavatory are located just inside the side entrance with lots of work space yet conveniently out of the way. The master bedroom is a study in luxury, with a private bath which includes a walk-in closet. The bath overlooks a small garden area on the deck. Sliding glass doors in the bedroom open to this very private deck. Two Jr. bedrooms share a centrally located bath and both have spacious closets. The formal dining room and spacious living room completes the well designed floor plan.

Public Is More Aware Of Home Energy Savings

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

Home energy conservation isn't making headlines any more.

But, according to one energy researcher, that is a good sign. "When a subject makes news, it isn't being done; when it stops making news, it is being done," said Herbert Mertz.

Mertz is a former researcher at Princeton University's Center for Energy and Environmental Studies and is president of Princeton Energy Partners, a home energy consulting firm. He says the level of public interest, awareness and acceptance of conservation, has taken a definite upward turn since the subject first got widespread attention several years ago.

"People are doing conservation now; builders are more aware of energy problems and new housing tends to be less leaky than it used to be." Also on the upswing are a maze of new products, some of which are less than useful, he added.

The time gap between energy analysis or installation of some new device and the reality of the savings makes it easy for misinformation and unrealistic expectations to develop. Consequently Mertz suggested consumers look at product claims very carefully and ask for specifics on product tests before spending their money.

A useful question that is rarely asked is: how will this product fit into my life?

"Wood stoves are a good example. They are great for some people, but others who bought them soon discovered that chopping wood and cleaning the stove were simply too much trouble and they stopped using them," he said.

The new attitude (which research centers such as Princeton's energy center helped to shape) is that the first chore is to examine all the energy systems in the home to determine whether there are inefficiencies. Mertz enumerated these systems as the furnace or heating system, the hot-water system and the air movement or circulation system.

Sometimes, small flaws in one of these systems such as a missing batt of insulation or a slender crack where wood moulding was carefully installed or a bad faucet washer can produce a large loss in system efficiency.

Gathering accurate information about system performance — once a very difficult task — can identify these small problems as well as larger ones. It's easier now because a new array of measurement tools has been pressed into service, said Mertz.

His firm, for example, uses an infra-red scanning device to identify differences in temperature in the walls of the house. The scanner was originally developed as a military tool to accurately indicate ground targets and shows warmer areas in green and registers cooler areas as black. Using it with other tools such as a blower door makes it possible to tell how tight a house is and to pinpoint the places where energy leaks are occurring.

The blower door, a fanlike contraption that can force air in or out of the house while measuring the time and force required to produce the effect, was invented by a Princeton researcher as a measurement tool.

From industry have come such tools as smoke guns and smoke pencils.

Little Things Count In Sale

NEW YORK (AP) — The real-estate listings read "mint condition," "creampuff," "quality," "handyman special," "guaranteed great buy."

But when it comes to selling homes in today's depressed market, words are not enough, says the chief executive of a relocation company. Only if a home looks good to a prospective purchaser is he going to spend his hard-earned money buying it, adds C. William Hartge.

"The seller needs every edge he can get today," explains Hartge, of Equitable Relocation Service. "Real-estate agents exhibit greater enthusiasm and bring more prospects to homes which exhibit a high 'pride of ownership' standard.

"The little things, which don't cost much at all, can mean so much in getting more dollars for your home, especially in times such as these when mortgage rates and the downturn in the economy have made it so difficult to sell real estate," Hartge said.

The Equitable Relocation Service offers these hints for making your home more saleable.

—Discard or give away unwanted items in closets, the basement and the garage. Consider holding a garage sale.

—Keep the grass cut, weed flower beds, trim shrubs.

—Make sure rooms are neat. A cluttered appearance tends to make a room look smaller.

—Replace cracked glass.

—Polish floors and kitchen cabinets and keep counter tops clear.

—Repair areas of fallen plaster.

—Get rid of musty smells.

—If repainting is necessary, neutral and soft shades are preferable. Areas of first impression, such as the foyer, living room and kichen, are the most important rooms to have in good condition.

—Make sure the outside of the house looks trim and tidy, too.

The general rule to follow for best results, according to Hartge, is: inspect your property as if you are the potential buyer and remedy the things you find unattractive. The time and effort you take making your house look better could very well pay off in a higher sales price and a quicker sale, he points out.

Are you satisfied with where you live?

If the place is really right for you, it improves your mental outlook, helps you to live longer and increases your income.

That conclusion is the result of a nationwide study by three professors, Dr. Thomas F. Bowman, Dr. George A. Giuliani and Dr. Ronald Minge. Their findings are contained in their book, "Finding the Best Place to Live in America."

The idea is to enable you to make a self-evaluation that will tell you whether you already are living in the right place or, if you contemplate a change, the most likely new location. The premise is that the area you call home should and can be selected on the basis of accurate information.

The 80 areas analyzed by the authors are designated by cities, but they include suburban sites and many rural country places as well.

Before you can decide which might be the best place to live for someone with your likes and dislikes, you have to know what your likes and dislikes are. The professors have what they call a "prospering" test. Your mission, if you care to accept it, is to choose from each matched pair of descriptive statements the one that is most important to you as you look for the best place to prosper.

If you think it makes little difference where you live because you know you can handle people as well as changed circumstances, consider these facts:

In some areas, personal income growth is five times greater than in some others. In some places, costs for electricity are 20 times higher than in some others. In some areas, house prices average more than twice as much as in others. And in some states, property taxes are as much as six times as high as in other states.

From now until 1990, 15 times as many houses per thousand people will be built in some areas as in others. It should not surprise you to learn most of these houses will be built in the Sunbelt, with the leading cities (and their environs) being Las Vegas, Houston, Phoenix, Tucson, Orlando, Tampa, Austin and Dallas.

Where will houses cost the most?

The list shows San Francisco in first place, followed by Las Vegas, Anchorage, Charleston, S.C., Los Angeles, Honolulu, Washington, D.C., San Diego and Memphis, Tenn.

Where do state taxes hit the hardest?

Alaska leads that list, with New York second, Wyoming third, and then Massachusetts, Hawaii, Arizona, Minnesota and Vermont.

But, say Drs. Bowman, Giuliani and Minge, deciding which is the best place for you to live and moving there are two different things. The key problem, after all factors are considered, is whether a move is worth the risk. Whatever you do, be sure to visit the places you are considering. It will help you form first-hand impressions that no books or people can give you. Whatever the costs of your trips, they can save you a lot of headaches, not to mention money.

(Do-it-yourselfers will find much valuable information in Andy Lang's handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," available by sending $1.50 to this paper at Box 5, Teaneck, N.J. 07666.)

Solar Pact Signed

JERUSALEM (AP) — Three U.S. textile plants will be the beneficiaries of what is believed to be the world's largest privately financed solar-energy project.

The contracts, worth $10 million, were signed by J.P. Stevens and Bibb in Georgia and Cone Mills in North Carolina with Luz International, one of Israel's leading solar-energy companies.

The system to be used will, with the aid of giant reflectors installed besides each plant, heat the sun's rays and produce steam. This system is one of the most up-to-date in a country known for its use of solar energy — more than one third of Israeli homes use solar hot-water heaters.

Negotiations are now being conducted for similar systems with companies in Texas, Arizona and California.

Q. Are all kinds of leaves suitable for making compost? (H.W., Henderson)

A. Pine needles are slow to decay and not as suitable for making compost an hardwood leaves. However, almost any kind of organic matter can be composted. This includes leaves, grass clippings, potato peelings and other vegetable scraps.

Q. How can I retain a glossy appearance on the leaves of my rubber plant? (Mrs. J.W., Charlotte)

A. Gently wipe the leaves with a moist tissue or soft cloth. Add a small amount of hard soap to the water to remove residue. A shiny appearance can also be obtained by wiping leaves with a cloth moistened with milk.

Q. There is a white, cottony substance on the leaves and blooms of my African violets. What is it and what can I do about it? (E.S., Greensboro)

A. The white, cottony substance that you see is secreted by mealybugs, and mealybugs are difficult to control. Remove as many as possible with a cotton applicator (swab) dipped in alcohol. Then dip or spray the plant with a solution of malathion. Use the 50 to 57 percent liquid formulation at the rate of two teaspoons per gallon of warm water. Repeat in 10 days.

Q. I had several trees cut down in my front yard and would like to get rid of the stumps. How can I best do this? (L.G., Kernersville)

A. Depends upon how soon you want them removed and how much money you wish to spend. Most tree service companies have portable mechanical stump removers which actually cut out the stump to the desired level below the ground. These devices may be available from some rental outlets. A practical though slower way to remove the stump is to assist the natural decay process. To create conditions ideal for the rot fungi, sprinkle liberally with a high nitrogen fertilizer or powdered milk, mulch with grass clippings of well-rotted sawdust and keep moist. Drilling holes in the stump would expose more surface and should increase the rate of rot.

Life As It's Lived

By GAIL MICHAELS

This year I let Meg plan her own birthday party. I let her make her own cake (which looked vaguely like a Florida sinkhole). I let her choose the favors and the games we would play. I even let her make out her own guest list, with one exception. I refused to invite any little boys.

I am really not a sexist at heart. But I have come to the conclusion after years of supervising Meg's parties that, as personable as little boys can be individually, they are by nature unfit for birthday celebrations.

I cannot explain the reason for this. All I know is that at least one little boy has managed to wreak havoc at every mixed party we've ever had.

On Meg's second birthday a male toddler hosed down the cake. On her third birthday a young schoolmate dampened everyone's enthusiasm considerably by refusing to participate in any of the "stupid baby games" with which I was attempting to pass the time. He also started a fight over who was the actual winner of Pin-the-Tail-on-the-Donkey. He claimed his X-ray vision was superior to mine.

On Meg's fourth birthday one of the male guests cried for his mother whenever he was not having a private audience with Phillip and The Three Billy Goats Gruff. That left me to fend for myself among 15 other kiddies, two of which (male, of course) were racing around my living room playing Batman. While I was chasing them, I think another little fellow placed a long distance call to New Mexico.

Last year, in contrast, Meg's birthday was peaceful. I took four little girls to a play in Raleigh, and they all behaved like angels. None of them crouched behind the seats and threatened to shoot the wolf. None of them whooped salaciously over the bloomers which occasionally appeared under Little Red Riding Hood's skirt. It was when all the guests had departed and I realized that I didn't need two Excedrin and half a bottle of Blue Nun in order to calm down that I made my resolution about little boys.

"I love boys. I have one, remember? But boys are too vulnerable to crowd psychology."

"What does that mean?"

"It means they figure that when two or more persons are involved in the mischief, the odds against getting spanked are in their favor."

Meg finally accepted my decision, and the eight little girls who arrived on her big day behaved beautifully. They really enjoyed playing Pin-the-Tail-on-the-Donkey, especially when Phillip tried to pin his tail on each of them and finally taped it on the donkey's nostril. No one complained of boredom during the other activities. No one quarreled. No one attempted to spice up the party by prodding me into a nervous breakdown.

In fact, the only problem we had was with Zachary. He wanted to be in the middle of everything, to help open gifts, to push trespassers from "his" swing, to stick his fingers into his disgruntled sister's cake. But, generally, the party was a success.

"No boys — including Zachary."

High blood pressure is a major cause of stroke. Other risk factors are having brief stroke-like episodes, hardening of the arteries, diabetes, increased cholesterol and other fats in the blood, gout and a heavy smoking habit. If you have any of these, your doctor can help you control them and ward off a stroke, declares the Pitt County Heart Association.

PUBLIC NOTICES

PUBLIC NOTICE
The Division of Mental Health, Mental Retardation and Substance Abuse Service has prepared a Strategic Plan 1983-89. This plan is currently available for review and comment by interested persons.
The Strategic Plan provides an overview of service system developments which are being considered. Volume I provides a statewide perspective of the total service system. Specific information about each of the regions is provided in: Volume II for the Western Region; Volume III for the North Central Region; Volume IV for the South Central Region; and Volume V for the Eastern Region.
During the review period, from November 23, 1981 to December 23, 1981, complete copies of the Strategic Plan will be available for examination in the following locations:
Division of Mental Health, Mental Retardation and Substance Abuse Services, Quality Assurance Section, Planning Office, Suite 1109, Raleigh, NC 27611 (919) 733-7971
Western Regional Office, Western North Carolina Hospital, Black Mountain, NC 27811 (704) 669-3327
North Central Regional Office, 720 Coliseum Drive, Winston-Salem, NC 27106, (919) 761-2375
South Central Regional Office, Wachovia Bank Bldg., Suite 504, Fayetteville, NC 28301, (919) 486-1475
Eastern Regional Office, 404 St. Andrews Drive, Greenville, NC 27834, (919) 756-2295
Complete copies will also be available in all 41 area program administrative offices and at each state institution operated by the Division of MH/MR/SAS.
Interested persons are encouraged to review the document. Written comments may be submitted to the Division of Mental Health, Mental Retardation and Substance Abuse Services, Quality Assurance Section, Planning Branch, 325 North Salisbury Street, Raleigh, NC 27611. If assistance in locating a copy of the plan is needed, please call either the Planning Office or any of the Regional Offices at the numbers given above.
All comments which are received by December 23, 1981 will be considered by the Division before the plan is finalized.

TV SHOWTIME

For Week Of November 22 - November 27, 1981

'Mary Poppins': A Magical Tour

Walt Disney's ingenious musical fantasy "Mary Poppins," airing on Sunday, Nov. 22 (8-11 p.m.), opens a week of specials that includes a holiday-inspired diet of the "Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade," the "CBS All-American Thanksgiving Day Parade," "The Osmond Family Special," "A Charlie Brown Thanksgiving" and "Daffy Duck's Thanks-For-Giving Special." Other specials include "Sinatra, the Man and His Music," "Steve Martin's Best Show Ever," "The Berenstain Bears Meet Bigpaw," "Bob Hope's Stand Up and Cheer for the NFL's 60th Year" and NCAA football.

It's London circa 1910 when Mary Poppins (Julie Andrews) sweeps in on the East Wind and uses a bit of magic to become the new nanny for Jane and Michael Banks (Karen Dotrice, Matthew Garber).

Mrs. Banks (Glynis Johns) is a suffragette who has little time for her children, and Mr. Banks (David Tomlinson) is a bank executive with even less time for his family.

The children are amazed by Mary Poppins, who conjures up some more magic to tidy up their nursery. Later that day, Mary and the children meet Bert (Dick Van Dyke) a sidewalk artist, and in a flash, they pass through the picture and frolic across the chalk-drawn English countryside.

After a dose of friendly persuasion from Mary and Bert, stuffy Mr. Banks gets the inexplicable urge to blurt out a joke. His newly acquired good mood is contagious — the next day he and the kids run off to fly a kite in the park. Mary Poppins sees them go and realizes she is no longer needed to dispense joy.

Van Dyke considers "Mary Poppins" to be the high point of his 35-year career in show business. "I'm very proud to have been a part of the movie," he said. "Everybody knew from the beginning of the film's production that is was really something unique."

Van Dyke feels that "Mary Poppins" is a delight for all ages. His grandchildren viewed the Disney classic for the first time last spring. The result? "Suddenly Grandpa became very popular," he smiled.

HAVING POPPED OUT OF A CHIMNEY, Mary Poppins (Julie Andrews) floats down to the rooftop where her two young charges (Karen Dotrice and Matthew Garber) await her in Walt Disney's musical-fantasy, "Mary Poppins," airing Sunday, Nov. 22 (8-11 p.m.), on CBS-TV.

Roses For Stewart

Down To Star

Lesley-Anne Down will star as Esmeralda in "The Hunchback of Notre Dame." A Hallmark Hall of Fame production currently filming in London.

A Life Of Song And Dance

"Sinatra, the Man and His Music," an NBC special based entirely on selections from the more than 100 albums he has recorded during his 42 years in show business, will be broadcast on Sunday, Nov. 22 (10-11 p.m.).

A 50-piece orchestra, including 30 strings, will accompany Sinatra in various numbers and combinations throughout the show. Count Basie and his band will join him for two numbers.

Sinatra — known affectionately through the years as Ol' Blue Eyes, the Voice, the King of Show Business, the People's Choice, the Greatest Roman of Them All and the Chairman of the Board — recorded his first LP, "The Voice of Frank Sinatra," for Columbia Records in 1946. In 1980, Warner Bros. Records released "Trilogy." Sinatra's first album in five years. The three-record album brought six Grammy Award nominations, including three personal nominations for Sinatra. He is currently recording another album, "She Shot Me Down," to be released shortly.

FRANK SINATRA CELEBRATES his 42 years in show business in "Sinatra, the Man and His Music," an NBC special, airing on Sunday, Nov. 22 (10-11 p.m.).

On Dec. 12, Sinatra will be 66 years old. His singing career has had its highs (Sinatra became nationally famous in 1942 with his phenomenally successful engagement at the Paramount Theatre in New York) and its lows (a short retirement in 1971), and his acting career has had its highs (won the Academy Award in 1953 with "From Here to Eternity") and its lows (a series of undistinguished films in the early 1960s with friends from the "Rat Pack").

He has been married four times (Nancy Barbato, Ava Gardner, Mia Farrow and Barbara Blakely), linked romantically with dozens of others, had an ongoing fight with the press ("slobs" or "garbage collectors" as he not so affectionately calls them), taken a swipe at a paparazzo or two, and yet, in 1971, he received the Jean Hersholt Humanitarian Award for his enormous contributions to charity, many of them given anonymously. And through it all, Francis Albert Sinatra the man who calls himself "a saloon singer," did it his way.

Princess Protests

The announcement that Cheryl Ladd will be doing a telefeature biography of Grace Kelly has not been greeted with joy from Princess Grace.

In a statement released to the press, a Monaco palace spokesperson said, "The Princess wishes to make it known that this project is being done without her approval or permission and that she strongly hopes it will not come to pass since it is an unauthorized invasion of her right to privacy."

THE Rook Look AT GARMENT CARE

DICKIE ROOK

Ultrasuede

Ultrasuede is a non-woven fabric that looks and feels like genuine suede. When you see and feel the downy, soft, and napped fabric, it is hard to believe it isn't real suede. Ultrasuede is made of 60% polyester and 40% nonfibrous polyurethane. Many of the new fall fashions will be featuring this luxurious fabric. Ultrasuede is used widely for both men and ladies wear.

Garments made of ultrasuede may be either laundered or dry-cleaned. For garments with stains or spots, professional care is the best method. Your fabricare expert has a better chance of removing the stains from your garment with special spot removal agents. For the best in ultrasuede care, turn to A CLEANER WORLD GARMENT CARE CENTER.

JAMESON PARKER (l) and Gerald McRaney star as a pair of detective brothers whose latest investigation takes them south of the border, on the premiere episode of "Simon & Simon," a new adventure drama series, airing Tuesday, Nov. 24 (8-9 p.m.) on CBS-TV.

Michele Will Tell

Q: Could you please give me the address of Jan and Dean? CAMMIE CRAWLEY, FAYETTEVILLE, N.C.

A: You can write to Jan Berry and Dean Torrence in c/o EMI/TV, Roger Gimbel 4024 Radford Avenue, Studio City, California, 91604.

Q: Could you please tell me more about Lesley-Anne Warren, who starred in "Portrait of a Stripper"? LISA MILLS, GREENVILLE, N.C.

A: Lesley-Anne Warren's versatility as an actress is proved by the range of roles she has created in her career, everything from Cinderella to a call girl. Following the 'glass slipper' role, Lesley-Anne journeyed to Hollywood where she appeared in two Disney films, "Drat, The Cat" and "The Happiest Millionaire." Her marriage to hairdresser-turned-producer Jon Peters and the birth of their son, Christopher, in 1968 made Lesley-Anne disappear from the screen for awhile. Her return was as a regular on the series, "Mission: Impossible." When her marriage ended in divorce, she decided to leave her career behind for a few years and concentrate on raising her son. Finally, she returned to the screen in the role of a call girl in "79 Park Avenue." Her success in this role was quickly followed by the miniseries "Pearl," the tele-movie "Betrayal," "Portrait of a Stripper" and the miniseries "Beulah Land."

Q: Could you please tell me everything about Robert Urich, who played Dan Tanna on "Vega$? Also, where can I get a poster of him? A BOB LOVER IN HICKORY, N.C.

A: Bob Urich, who starred as the handsome, clever Las Vegas detective Dan Tanna in ABC-TV's ill-fated series "Vega$," says he always had the feeling he would make his way into the entertainment world. His athletic achievements in high school led to a full four-year football scholarship at Florida State University, where he earned a B.A. in radio and television communications. Urich played tennis pro Peter Campbell in ABC-TV's "Soap," and his murder triggered one of the most outrageous investigations and trials in TV history. He credits the role with giving him more exposure than any other series. "Everyone wanted to know who killed me," he said. Bob and his wife, actress Heather Menzies, have two adopted children. Write to him in c/o ABC-TV, 1330 Avenue of the Americas, New York, N.Y., 10019. The network should forward his mail to him.

Q: Is there a real WKRP station in Cincinnati? R.R., WASHINGTON, N.C.

A: As far as we know WKRP is a fictional radio station in Cincinnati. Several of the show's storylines, however, have been based on real-life situations.

Not The First Host

It may come as a surprise to many of his millions of fans, but the truth is that when "American Bandstand" premiered as a local program in Philadelphia in 1952, Dick Clark, host of the popular teenage dance show, was not on the show. In fact, it wasn't until July of 1956 that Clark took over "Bandstand." Previously, the program was co-hosted by Bob Horn and Lee Stewart and was called "Bob Horn's Bandstand."

It's the Truth!

THE CANARY ISLANDS ARE NOT NAMED AFTER BIRDS LIVING THERE!

answer → The islands are named after the Latin "canaria" (dogs)— because of the many large dogs native to those parts. This is verified by the Century Dictionary and the Encyclopedia Britannica.

Wherever you live, we suggest you do business with us. Performance to please. A genuine interest in YOU! May we prove this statement?

A Quick End On 'McClain's Law'

The "Requiem for a Narc" episode of "McClain's Law," airing on Friday, Nov. 27 (9-10 p.m.), begins violently. An undercover cop is double-crossed while setting up a cocaine deal, and he is shot and killed. For effect, the murder is filmed in slow motion.

This type of quick-action opening, a staple of episodic television, is known in film as a "teaser." It is used to get the ball rolling and to pique the audience's attention before they can change channels or nod off to sleep.

Slow motion is also an often used technique. Its roots lie in Russian director Sergei Eisenstein's silent film montages, and it was later developed into a grisly art form in the hands of American director Sam Peckinpah.

But when these two tried-and-true techniques are used together, as in the case of "Requiem for a Narc," the results are intriguing. The only problem is that a character usually bites the proverbial dust. In this case, the character is played by David K. Johnston.

"It didn't really bother me to be killed in the opening of the show because I knew McClain would avenge my death. After 20 years of cleaning up the streets of Dodge, James Arness is too tough to be messed with," joked Johnston.

Johnston is a relatively new kid on the block in Hollywood, but an old hand at acting. He has an impressive list of stage credits, playing the leading roles in numerous Shakespearean classics ("Macbeth," "King Lear") and yet having the versatility for more contemporary roles. He is a member of the American Theatre Arts in Los Angeles, where new and topical plays are constantly being put into production.

Saintly Distractions

Eva Marie Saint belongs to a tiny segment of Hollywood's citizenry whose marriages have lasted nearly three decades.

"I couldn't have given my whole life to the theater," said the Oscar-winning actress, married to director Jeffrey Hayden. "Some actors have to and can't be distracted. I find the distraction of a husband, and a family very enriching."

Picked Up

"Bosom Buddies," the ABC comedy, once thought to have a shaky future, has been picked up for seven more episodes for a total of 13 this season.

Kramer Leads The Viking Crew

On Nov. 23 (9-11:45 p.m.), "ABC's NFL Monday Night Football" will feature a game between the Minnesota Vikings and the Atlanta Falcons. The game will be played at Fulton County Stadium in Atlanta, Ga.

Atlanta is struggling through a difficult season that finds them trailing the NFC West leaders, the San Francisco 49ers. Despite their talent-laden roster, the Falcons have lost some important games this year. Unless they are victorious during the remainder of their schedule, their hopes for a playoff berth may be shattered.

Minnesota is involved in a tight race for the NFC Central crown. The key to the Vikings' success this year has been quarterback Tommy Kramer. Last year, behind Kramer's right arm, the Vikes finished 11th in total offense and third in the passing department. Tommy improved vastly last season, learning from his mental and physical mistakes. This year he has been instrumental in launching an extraordinary Viking aerial attack.

Kramer is in his fifth season in the NFL. He came to Minnesota from Rice in 1977 as the Vikings' first-round draft choice. Tommy holds the distinction of being the only quarterback the Vikes have ever drafted in the first round.

He became a starter in 1979, replacing a retired Fran Tarkenton. Since that time, Tommy has passed for over 3,000 yards in each of his seasons.

Kramer set club records last year for most completions (38) and passing yards (456) in a game against Cleveland.

HOLLYWOOD — The premiere of ROCK HUDSON'S new series "THE DEVLIN CONNECTION," scheduled for Nov. 27, has been postponed until early 1982. Filming has been discontinued during ROCK'S recovery period from heart by-pass surgery, which is expected to be six to eight weeks.

DEAN PAUL MARTIN and DOROTHY HAMILL have already purchased their honeymoon "cottage" they'll move into after their Jan. 8 wedding. Costing $1.7 million it comes complete with everything but a skating rink.

"DUKES OF HAZZARD" star JOHN SCHNEIDER has wrecked over a hundred cars in the series, but he'll wreck anyone who even puts a scratch on his new $48,000 Ferrari.

"DIFF'RENT STROKES" is rolling along in production, even though GARY COLEMAN has not shown up for work due to a salary dispute. Those who know say GARY wants to work — but his agent and lawyer are holding out for a better deal — meanwhile TODD BRIDGES is being starred.

Holiday Sweepstakes - Entry Blank, Instructions and Rules

HOLIDAY SWEEPSTAKES ENTRY BLANK

IMPORTANT – READ INSTRUCTIONS CAREFULLY

1. Uncover your Lucky Number and compare it with the list of numbers as directed on back page. If it's exactly the same as one of those numbers – You are a winner of one of the prizes described on that page!
2. To find out which prize you have won and claim it, go to the store listed on the last page or whichever participating Swiss Colony Store is nearest. Inside the store will be a sweepstake sign telling what each number has won and how to go about collecting each prize. Do not give your number to anyone until you have read the sign carefully.
3. Fill in your Entry Blank below now, because it gives you a second chance to win. Deposit it at the store in a box right below the sign of winning numbers and prizes. Since most people will not come to claim their prize, there will be a drawing to award all the major prizes not claimed when the sweepstakes is over.
4. Each store will award a G.E. Portable T.V. from a drawing of the Entry Blanks at that store before the drawing for all major prizes not awarded. So do deposit your Entry Blank.

SWISS COLONY OFFICIAL RULES

IMPORTANT – Please Read Rules Carefully

No Purchase Required. . .Here's all you do

1. You may have already won in the "Swiss Colony Holiday Sweepstakes". Simply clean off the mystery spot on the back of the catalog or newspaper insert with a moist tissue or your fingernail (whichever works best). If your number was received in the special newspaper insert, simply take it to the Swiss Colony Store nearest you.* (It's listed on the last page of the newspaper insert). Match it against the poster that appears in the store. Then follow directions to claim your prize. If you received your number in the Swiss Colony mail order catalog, simply complete the Entry form on the order blank (reading all instructions) and mail. It will be checked against the winning numbers and you'll be notified if you're a winner. If you would like a free copy of the winning numbers to compare your entry at home, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Swiss Colony Numbers, Box 579, Lowell, Indiana 46356. DO NOT send your lucky number to this address.
2. In the likely event that prizes are not claimed by the matching portion, random drawings will be held from all entries received to award the unclaimed prizes. Selection of winning numbers and random drawings are under the supervision of Ventura Associates, Inc., an independent judging organization whose decisions are final in all matters pertaining to this offer.
3. In order to participate in the second chance drawing be sure to hand print your name and address on the entry blank.
4. Various methods of distribution of this offer will be used. Both The Swiss Colony Stores, Inc. and The Swiss Colony, Inc. (mail order) will participate. The exact number of major prizes is indicated on the back cover of the catalog or newspaper insert. However, The Swiss Colony, reserves the right to add additional cookbook prizes in various creative presentations of this offer. At least 5000 cookbooks are guaranteed to be awarded. For a list of major prize winners send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Swiss Colony Winners, P.O. Box 582WL, Lowell, Indiana 46356. DO NOT send other correspondence to this address.
5. This Sweepstakes is open to residents of the United States, 18 years of age or older. Employees and their families of The Swiss Colony, their dealers, distributors, Ventura Associates and their respective advertising and production agencies are not eligible. Sweepstakes void where prohibited by law. All Federal, state and local regulations apply. Matching portion of this offer closes December 26, 1981 and all claims must be received by then. Entries for second chance drawing must be received January 21, 1982.
6. *If you do not wish to go to the store, send your number to The Swiss Colony Stores, Inc., c/o Sweepstakes-81, P.O. Box 480, Monroe, Wis. 53566, and we will send you a card stating which prize your number has won.

Rights for handicapped children.

FOR TERREL H. BELL, Secretary of Education

Are there plans to improve the lot of learning-disabled children? —S.P., Warren, Ohio

● Much has been done in the past few years to improve the opportunities in public schools for learning-disabled children. Public Law 94-142 — the Education for All Handicapped Children Act — establishes the rights of the handicapped by requiring states to make a "free, appropriate education" accessible to all children. The law requires that handicapped children be placed in the least restrictive environment. This does not mean that they can be dumped into the regular classroom; rather, it means that there be established a continuum of programs through the schools and/or special institutions which can meet the individual needs of their youngsters.

Beauty is as this beauty does.

FROM THE "ASK" EDITOR

● Joan Hackett wants to go on record that she does not give makeup people a hard time when she's filming. "I'd say it's the reverse," Joan offered, "because I prefer to do my own." Now starring in Only When I Laugh, she claims there is very little she doesn't know about facial beautification (she has been doing it herself from the days she began, as a model, at 17), in contrast to the studio mavens: "When I started out, they were still on the 1925-1930 stuff, using a pumpkin-colored base and curling irons on my lashes so they went up to my brows, making me look like Minnie Mouse. I didn't like the base; they put too much on, clogging my pores, so my skin could not breathe, but now they're using cosmetics with a more natural look."

FOR MAUD ADAMS, star of Tattoo

Since Bruce Dern implied your love scene in the movie was more fact than fiction, would you make another film with him? —E.D., Green Bay, Wis.

● First of all, I don't need to make love to make a love scene, any more than I would have to die to do a death scene. And I adore Bruce. He was wonderful to me through the filming, and we became friends, which is why it just floored me when he said something like that. But, yes, I would make another film with him.

FOR DR. JAMES STALLINGS, plastic surgeon, Plastic Surgery Institute, Des Moines, Iowa

How often do men seek cosmetic surgery? — L.O., Rapid City, S.D.

● Quite often. As recently as seven years ago, if I had 10 patients in my waiting room wanting a face lift, all 10 would be women. Today two would be men. Frequently they're businessmen who fear they're being passed over for promotions due to unattractiveness or premature aging.

FOR TOM LIGON, star of TV's The Young and the Restless

Since nighttime TV is more dramatic and challenging, why do you say you learned more about acting on the soaps — P.R., Grand Island, Neb.

● All I ever seemed to do on nighttime TV was handle guns and drive in reverse. I'm an expert on the quick draw and maneuvering cars. Soaps provide a wonderful training ground for actors — you run the gamut of emotions and expressions in them.

FOR LULU, recording star

Why do you say that American street violence reminds you of your childhood, since you were not born here? — N.M., Durham, N.C.

● I grew up in Glasgow, Scotland, and had to rely on my fists and feet to defend myself. Even so, I regularly got beat up. Glasgow is notorious for street brawls, especially on Friday nights when the men come home from the pubs after getting paid. Incidentally, wife-beating was a popular pastime.

PRO AND CON

Should the Gold Standard Be Returned to Strengthen the U.S. Economy?

PRO Representative Ronald E. Paul (R-Texas), Banking Committee; member, U.S. Gold Commission

Since 1977 real wages of American workers have fallen by 15 percent, and interest rates on auto loans and home mortgages have more than doubled. The cause of this inflation is our present paper money system. When the workers of this country are able to walk into a bank and demand something of real value for the dollar bills in their pockets, then we will have solved the problems of rising prices, outrageous interest rates and falling wages.

(Question submitted by George Mocol, Mankato, Mn.)

Send questions of national significance, on a postcard, to "Pro & Con," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $10 for those published.

CON Representative Henry S. Reuss (D.-Wis.), chairman, Joint Economic Committee; member, U.S. Gold Commission

A gold standard makes the dollar's value dependent on how much gold is mined and traded. If new gold is found, our money supply increases, and the U.S. economy suffers a burst of inflation. When gold dries up, panic and depression have been the result. What is really needed is to control the budget, manage the money supply responsibly and adopt a strong antiinflationary program. Gimmicks like gold will only make matters worse.

"What Thanksgiving Means to Me"

In the past 11 months she has seen her husband inaugurated as President and later survive an assassin's bullet. Here, the First Lady reflects on a year in which she has many reasons to give thanks.

By Nancy Reagan

I think I share with all Americans the special feelings of love and contentment that always come with the Thanksgiving holiday. But this Thanksgiving — and every Thanksgiving to come — will be different for me.

When I begin to count my blessings I start, as one might guess, with my wonderful husband. For him and for his love and for our family and our life together, I am very grateful.

He has been given the opportunity to lead our great country as its President. I am very grateful for that. And I also give personal thanks every day for the opportunity I have as First Lady to have an impact on the problems that concern me and the programs that excite me.

In the year since my husband's election, I have been privileged to meet world leaders, Congressional Medal of Honor winners, renowned artists and performers from all parts of the globe.

I cried tears of patriotism and relief when our people came home from Iran. I met each of the hostages and marveled at their dignity and courage — and the dignity and courage of their loved ones.

Probably our deepest concern when the hostages were released was that they not be exploited. After all they had been through it seemed imperative that they get back to normal living as quickly as possible. I've thought of them often and hope they are readjusting. To my delight, when I arrived at our embassy in London this summer, I met Richard Queen, the former hostage, who was hard at work in his new post. My husband and I will remember the hostages in our prayers this Thanksgiving holiday.

I am also grateful for my contact with extraordinary Americans from every walk of life, people who, without fame or fortune, have made a difference in their communities. I have met and been deeply affected by troubled teen-agers who have made their way back from the abyss of drug abuse. Along with my gratitude that young lives are being saved from a wasted life of drug dependency goes my deep desire to help. I'm committed to shedding as much light as possible on the terrible problem of drug and alcohol abuse among the young.

I have swelled with pride in the presence of the wise, generous and unpretentious members of the Foster Grandparents Program who devote themselves to the care of handicapped children. The quiet courage of both the elderly grandparents and their dear foster grandchildren has never ceased to move me in the 15 years I've been involved with this program. To me they are real heroes, having made this special program so successful.

Since becoming First Lady, I have been working in a number of ways to make the Foster Grandparent Program better known. I visited a wonderful institution, St. Ann's Infant Home in Maryland, this year where I was literally and figuratively "bowled over" by the children. One small boy, in his eagerness for a hug, knocked me over, and that moment was captured by the news cameras for posterity! I even spread the word about the Foster Grandparent Program during a visit to an English child-care program when I was in London for the wedding of Prince Charles and Lady Diana.

Thanksgiving is such a wonderful family holiday, and since 1973 it has taken on even more significance. Like all Americans, I sat glued to the TV that year, weeping with relief when our P.O.W.'s returned from Vietnam.

Who will ever forget that emotional moment when Jeremiah Denton stepped off the first plane in the Philippines and said, "God bless America." I remember vividly when the first group of returned prisoners of war came to our home in Sacramento. It was the first of four dinners we hosted for P.O.W.'s in California. I was determined that the dinner would be as homey and relaxed as possible — with turkey and all the trimmings. Every Thanksgiving since, I have included these heroic men in my private prayers.

Our wonderful country is full of heroic, courageous people — good, solid citizens who care. Americans, I think, want very much to be proud of our great country. During the 1980 campaign I sensed a hunger to return to traditions, to our proud heritage and meaningful institutions. In my own small way I have tried to keep faith with the American people by doing everything I can to maintain the White House as a source of national pride. The White House is special. No one who walks its halls can escape the profound sense of American history that echoes through them. The White House is truly our national symbol and, as the people's house, it ought always to reflect the greatness of our country. I am grateful to have the chance to make a contribution to the preservation of the White House.

When we sit down for our traditional Thanksgiving dinner this year, I will offer a fervent prayer of thanksgiving for my most precious blessing: I have my husband. The experience of March 30, when I might have lost him to an assassin's bullet, has had a profound effect on me.

Anyone who has experienced a violent attack on a loved one will understand my feelings. Life becomes so much more precious. Priorities are permanently rearranged. I know now — more than ever — how to distinguish the important from the trivial.

My husband and I believe that God spared him for a reason. When Cardinal Terence Cooke came from New York to visit him during his recuperation, the Cardinal remarked that God had been sitting on Ronnie's shoulder that day. Ronnie agreed and said, "Yes. And I have decided that whatever time I have left belongs to Him." Just to think of that moment still brings tears to my eyes and reminds me how much I have to be grateful for this year and from now on. Deeply, deeply grateful.

Our holiday this year (which we hope to celebrate at our ranch), will be as much like earlier Thanksgivings as possible. When the children were young we traditionally spent the holiday with my brother-in-law's family. They shared Christmas dinner at our house. More recently, we've all enjoyed a ranch Thanksgiving. Often our children are with us, and we hope their busy schedules will allow them to be with us this year.

One thing is certain. Our holiday meal will include my husband's favorites. Our turkey will be stuffed with cornbread dressing, and for dessert he'll have his two favorites — mince pie and persimmon pudding.

And when we bow our heads to give thanks, I will feel the profound gratitude that comes from knowing my husband was spared.

God bless us all.

PEOPLE QUIZ

Health and Happiness — Do They Really Go Together?

By John E. Gibson

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. People who keep physically fit differ in personality from those who don't.

2. If high blood pressure is threatening you, there's a good chance it's because you don't enjoy a fantasy life.

3. If you've recently been through a particularly stressful or traumatic experience, it's a good idea to get a medical checkup — even if you feel well and there are no symptoms of anything being wrong.

4. People who derive the greatest satisfaction out of life, and experience the most pleasure, are people who are extremely healthy.

ANSWERS

1. True. Purdue University investigators studied personality differences in subjects 21 to 60 years of age. After physical examinations, subjects were classified as physically fit or otherwise and given standard personality tests. Results: The physically fit group was "more intellectually inclined, emotionally stable, composed, self-confident, easygoing and relaxed." Members of the group were also less driven by ambition than the other group.

2. True. A team of medical scientists at the Hypertension Research Center in Paris studied a group of borderline hypertensives and compared it with a similar group of subjects whose blood pressure was normal. It was found that the borderline hypertensives differed significantly from the normals in one particular respect: a lack of fantasy life. They were shown to have aggressive tendencies engendering anxiety. And the investigators point out that because of the lack of fantasy life, these feelings were channeled into functional symptoms resulting in the borderline phase of hypertension, including "such symptoms as tachycardia, dermatographia, dyspepsia, and emotional lability [unstable in emotion or behavior]. . . ."

3. True. Research into early detection of physical illness and its prevention, conducted at Harvard Medical School, indicates that "Every person who has been through a severely stressful experience should get a medical checkup even though no immediate indication of disease is manifest. Every such person should be considered at risk for the development of physical illness until careful monitoring has ruled it out." Other studies match these findings, showing that such experiences are often reliable predictors of physical illness.

4. True. University of Washington behavioral scientists collected and analyzed extensive data from a cross-section of a "normal" healthy population, including those who enjoyed good health and those whom physical examinations showed to be extremely healthy. The two groups differed markedly in tests designed to show satisfaction with life. Specifically, extremely healthy people had more successful marriages, enjoyed sex more and were more often moderate in their habits than were those in the "normal" healthy population group. FW

© 1981 R. J. REYNOLDS TOBACCO CO.

Some tar-conscious smokers are confused about cigarettes which claim to be lowest in tar and which cigarette brand actually is lowest.

While other cigarettes may in fact be low in tar, a glance at the chart at the right should put an end to any confusion. Look for the lowest tar brand and you can easily see that no cigarette, matched length for length, has less tar than NOW.

Now that we've cleared the air over which brand is the lowest, we'd like to help you plan your time with our exclusive, NOW Monthly Desk Calendar. It's filled with helpful information...and $7.00 worth of coupons for cartons of any style NOW. For $2.00, this is the value of the year.

The Unsaintly Fate of Quarterback Archie Manning

By Mark Goodman

Wide World

Manning, who's been sacked over 300 times, avoids one more.

It can be no bed of roses being a New Orleans Saint. Through the 1980 season, for example, their 14-year record, unparalleled in the history of the N.F.L., tells the story in statistical eloquence: 55 wins, 142 losses, five ties, 334 total players, eight head coaches and seven general managers under one title or another.

What more need be said — except that their best season's record was 8-8 in 1979 or that the high point in the Saints' chronicle was the 63-yard field goal kicked by Tom Dempsey (with half a foot) back in 1970. Things reached a nadir during last year's disastrous 1-15 season when a cluster of fans, egged on by a venomous local sportscaster named Buddy Dillberto, began wearing grocery bags over their heads at home games and proclaiming their team "the Aints."

And nothing's changed this year. Despite a new coach and the arrival of Heisman-Trophy winning running back George Rogers, the Saints might just be the worst team in football. But there are still fans down in New Orleans who, like the New York Met fans of the 1960's, cling to the seemingly impossible dream. They are to be found among the bibulous diehards comprising Charlie's Saints Marching Club on Apple Street, Charlie Kertz, proprietor. As Charlie himself glumly explained it from behind his well-stained bar, "The Saints are all we have."

No one understands this marriage of desperate necessity better than Elisha Archie Manning III, 32, the brilliant, beleaguered quarterback who has toiled for a decade now in the fields of futility. Had he so chosen, Archie could now be a veteran shortstop for either the Atlanta Braves or the Chicago White Sox. But it is to his eternal credit that he politely declines to look back in sorrow. "Nope, no regrets," he says, "even through all these years and those long seasons. I've still had the opportunity to accomplish a lot of good things in pro football. I really think it's the thing I was supposed to do."

No doubting that; his gifts as a scrambling, 6-foot 3-inch, 200-pound quarterback with a rifle arm are prodigious. But is it justice that fate and the N.F.L. draft destined him to do it there? Sure, he's been to the Pro Bowl twice and was named the N.F.C.'s Most Valuable Player in 1978, when he directed the Saints to a soaring (for them) 7-9 season. But look at the price he's paid. Going into this season he had been sacked 317 times. In 1976 it took two operations to mend his throwing arm. The cartilage in his left knee was torn in 1974, his jaw fractured in 1977 and his nose broken in 1980.

Still, Archie — red hair, freckles, shy grin and all — is one tough customer underneath and has lived with the agony like a good N.F.L. quarterback is supposed to. Trouble is, there's been no compensating ecstasy. It's not so much the fans; Archie is used to that by now (though his wife, Olivia, stopped going to home games last year when the bags came out). "Nobody likes to be booed or to hear the comments," says Archie. "As for the bags — well, that was only 40 or 50 people. It bothered some of the guys, but it didn't bother me at all. I had other things to worry about. I just plain don't like to lose."

But there's the pain of sitting around with fellow passslingers Ken Stabler and Terry Bradshaw in the offseason and not really having anything to contribute to the tunes of glory replayed into the night. But Archie can still dream. "The Astrodome," he once noted wistfully, "when they play that Oilers' song. . . it gives me goose bumps. But can you imagine what our place, the Superdome, would be like if we were ever a winner, if we had a playoff game here? They'd blow the lid right off the place. Nothing could hold a candle to it."

And as a dreamer should, Archie sees, if not a silver, at least a zircon lining. For owner John Mecom Jr. brought in Bum Phillips as head coach this year after Thank Goodness for Flannel Sheets!

I Thought I'd "Freeze to Death"

When I went to England, I just knew it was going to be the trip of a lifetime. I had saved and planned for years. Then, out of the blue, I got a chance to spend a few days in an honest-to-goodness 13th Century castle on Ilkley Moor while I was in Yorkshire.

What I overlooked was the English idea of central heating. After I left London the weather suddenly turned shivering cold and wet. By the time I got to Denton Hall I was too tired and miserable to care about picturesque charm and history. All I could think of was how uncomfortable I was going to be in an old, drafty castle.

Sure enough, my room was freezing. But when I crawled into bed I was dumbfounded to discover how marvelously cozy it was despite the lack of heat.

There was a big, puffy down comforter on top. Underneath, the sheets and even the pillowcases were flannel. And not that flimsy, pilled kind we used to have at summer camp. They were luxuriously soft, thick real English cotton flannel.

I felt utterly pampered in plushy comfort. And I never slept better, because I wasn't buried under layers of heavy bedclothes.

Then and there I decided I was going to have sheets like that at home. What a great way to save on heating costs at night and still feel rich and special!

When I got back to the United States I soon learned that the flannel sheets in stores didn't feel or look the same at all. The polyester in them made such a difference.

Finally, I got so frustrated I went to Damart, a company in my home town, and suggested they sell real English flannel sheets and pillowcases. They loved the idea.

And that's how Agatha's Cozy Corner was born. We talked it over and added heavenly down comforters and some other things as well as the sheets. And now I'd be happy to send you my catalog. It's printed in color, and gives you the pictures and story of everything we sell. Just use the coupon for your free copy.

ARCHIE MANNING

Phillips made a legend of himself in Houston with his cowboy hats, hand-stitched boots and a brace of Oiler victories. "I like Bum a lot," says Archie. "He's a genuine person. There seems to be a new spirit around here, and everybody's busting their butts for him." For his part, Bum admires Archie's thoroughbred spirit, the fact that he never sits out games with minor injuries nor holds out for renewed contracts. Says Phillips, "He's a young man who was brought up good."

He surely was. Back in Drew, Miss., he had an all-American boyhood that makes John Glenn look like an anarchist. His father and two uncles had played football at Drew High School before him; his mother, known around Drew as Sis, is the sort that still keeps Archie's scrapbooks for the world to peruse. "From the time I was 6," Archie remembers, "I can't remember ever putting a ball down. I'd change with the seasons. Sports just took hold of me and never let go. I'd get butterflies just waiting for the major league games to start on television."

Lane Stewart/Sports Illustrated © Time Inc.

He was a Cub Scout, took piano and dancing lessons, won the Junior Achievement Award from the Drew Garden Club. When he was in seventh grade, he was playing second base for the high-school varsity. Indeed, baseball and basketball were his showcase sports; skinny and a mite fragile, he did finally lead Drew to a 5-5 season on the gridiron his senior year. Only three colleges offered him football scholarships. But Archie was also class president and valedictorian, and he wanted an education. He chose Ole Miss and football over handsome baseball offers from the Braves and White Sox.

In college he became a mythic figure much like Roger Staubach at Navy in the mid-60's. He led inferior Ole Miss teams onto the field against the likes of Alabama and L.S.U., once prompting a Baton Rouge attorney to file an injunction in Federal court barring Manning from "further harassment" of the Tigers. In a game against unbeaten Tennessee, Volunteer fans appeared in Jackson, Miss., wearing ARCHIE WHO? buttons. Archie filled them in by carrying the Rebels to a 38-0 rout.

One dreadful event marred Archie's collegiate career. On a summer night in 1969, he came home to find his father had committed suicide with a shotgun. "I don't really know why he did it," Archie later said. "He'd had a stroke a few years before. And maybe he was sick again and wasn't telling us."

But the Manning family (which includes Archie's older sister, Pam) survived, and 17 months later threw, with the Williams family of Philadelphia, Miss., one of the gaudiest weddings that state has witnessed since Faulkner wrote of Varner festivities. Olivia Williams was Ole Miss Homecoming Queen, and she and Archie married after he returned from 1971's Hula Bowl game. "They still talk about that wedding," says Archie's mother. "The people ran into that church like stampeding cattle."

The newlyweds' lot was cast with New Orleans courtesy of the N.F.L. draft; Archie was the draft's second selection (after Jim Plunkett). A Drew lawyer negotiated the sort of contract for him that made any thought of a holdout unnecessary; at $600,000 a year, Archie is now the N.F.L.'s second-highest paid player (behind Walter Payton of the Chicago Bears, and Archie adds about $100,000 a year to his income with various off-season business arrangements. (He is also on the boards of some half-dozen different charities.)

He and Olivia have a lovely home in New Orleans' Garden District, three handsome sons (Cooper, 7, Peyton, 5, and Eli, 10 months) — and fans with bags on their heads.

"Ever since last season ended," he has repeated, "the number-one question people ask me is, 'Why don't you leave? Why don't you get out of here?' It's kind of hard to explain. I've put in 10 years here, this team, this city. My kids are happy in school here, my wife is happy in New Orleans. Sure I want to win — but I want to win here, in this city."

So, with the patience of a Saint, Archie Manning quietly goes marching on. FW

FOOD

Day After Turkey Day In the Kitchen

Ideas to transform what is "leftover" into something great.

By Marilyn Hansen

FESTIVE TURKEY SALAD

- 1½ cups cubed cooked turkey
- 1 unpeeled apple, diced
- 1 cup chopped celery
- ½ cup diced Cheddar cheese
- ½ cup seeded grape halves
- ¼ cup chopped walnuts
- ¼ cup vegetable oil
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 1 tablespoon prepared yellow mustard
- 1 tablespoon honey
- ½ teaspoon paprika
- ½ teaspoon salt
- Few twists freshly ground black pepper
- Crisp salad greens

1. Combine turkey, apple, celery, cheese, grapes and walnuts.
2. Make dressing: In small jar or blender, combine oil, lemon juice, mustard, honey, paprika, salt and pepper. Cover and shake or process until blended.
3. Pour dressing over turkey-apple mixture; toss. Pile mixture on top of greens on serving plate.

Makes 4 servings

FLORENTINE TURKEY-NOODLE CASSEROLE

- ¼ cup corn oil margarine
- ½ cup chopped onion
- ¼ cup cornstarch
- 2 cups milk
- 1 cup chicken broth
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon ground nutmeg
- ¼ teaspoon ground black pepper
- 1 pkg. (8 ozs.) medium egg noodles, cooked, drained
- 1 pkg. (10 ozs.) frozen chopped spinach, cooked, drained
- 2 cups cubed cooked turkey
- 4 ozs. Swiss cheese, shredded (2 cups)
- Paprika

1. In 2-quart saucepan, melt margarine over medium heat. Add onion; cook 2 to 3 minutes or until tender. Remove from heat. Stir in cornstarch until blended.
2. Gradually stir in milk until smooth. Stir in bouillon, salt, nutmeg and pepper. Stirring constantly, bring to boil over medium heat and boil 1 minute.
3. In 11 × 7 × 2-inch baking dish, pour 1 cup of the sauce to cover bottom. Layer 2¼ cups of the noodles, spinach, turkey and 1 cup of the cheese in baking dish. Top with remaining noodles. Pour sauce over noodles. Sprinkle with remaining cheese and paprika. Bake in 350°F. oven 30 minutes or until heated through. Serve with rolls and a salad.

Makes 6 servings

TURKEY MANDARIN CURRY

- 2 tablespoons cornstarch
- 1½ cups orange juice
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon curry powder
- ½ teaspoon ground cinnamon
- ¼ teaspoon ground black pepper
- ¼ teaspoon dried thyme leaves
- ½ cup slivered almonds
- ½ cup raisins
- ¼ cup chopped chutney
- 2 cups cubed cooked turkey
- 1 can (11 ozs.) mandarin orange sections, undrained

1. In medium-size saucepan, stir orange juice and cornstarch until smooth. Add salt, curry powder, cinnamon, pepper and thyme; stir until mixed. Stir in almonds, raisins and chutney. Stirring constantly, bring to boil over medium heat and boil 1 minute.
2. Add turkey and orange sections with orange liquid. Cook, covered, over low heat 15 minutes or until flavors are blended. Serve over rice.

Makes 2 to 3 servings

GARDENING

Learning to Love A Cactus

By C.Z. Guest

What should you do when your summer garden is gone but your thumb is still green? Here's a bouquet of fun projects for fall.

Be Thankful for Flowers

The brisk Thanksgiving season is a happy time for our family, and to me no occasion is complete without an array of flowers. If I'm lucky, I'll have a few of last summer's roses in my garden. There are also some hardy chrysanthemums in many colors (I prefer the lovely bronze and orange ones which bloom through Christmas).

Dried flowers and foliage seem particularly appropriate at Thanksgiving. The best flowers to use are artemisia, straw flowers, yarrow or honesty. Pick them in late summer and hang them with string upside down in a dark, dry room for two weeks. You can also cut some small branches of beech, leucothoë and bayberry. Put them in a solution of one-third glycerin and two-thirds water for six days (the glycerin aids in drying them). Combined with the dried flowers, they make a lovely bouquet for the holidays.

Gourds: Decorative And Diverse

What Thanksgiving centerpiece would be complete without gourds? Next year, why not plan ahead and grow them in your garden. Gourds have many uses. You can make ladles, pipes, even sponges with them. Like cucumbers, gourds grow on tender vines, have yellow or white flowers and need a lot of sun. If you use a fence or trellis, the vines will grow better. Stuff the young fruit and bake it like squash or dry and peel the mature fruit to make sponges out of the fleshy inside which becomes absorbent when dried. For decorating, wash the fruit, dip it in alcohol and paint or shellac it. Handle all gourds carefully. Bruises cause them to soften.

Basil

Green Holiday Gifts for Growing Friendships

This holiday season, why not spice up a friend's life with a present from your garden. I love to give cuttings of my favorite plants and make evergreen and pine cone wreaths. But the most welcome present seems to be the gift of herbs. Here is how to dry and store them:

The best time for harvesting herbs is when the flowers first open and the plants have a lot of foliage. That is when the flavoring oils are most concentrated. If you don't cut too heavily you will be surprised to see a second or third harvest. Hang the herbs in a dry, warm, well-ventilated place, not in direct sunlight. If you tie them in small bunches, they will dry quickly and retain their color and fragrance. Your herbs will be dry enough to crumble in three to seven days. Store them in an airtight container in a dark place. You can bottle them for a friend's spice shelf or use them to make sachets.

A Prickly Question

Actor Gavin MacLeod recently asked me to explain the differences among Thanksgiving, Christmas and Easter cacti. Many people are confused about this group of plants. These cacti represent three distinct species, named for the seasons in which they bloom. The Thanksgiving and Christmas plants flower in fall, as the days grow shorter and the nights colder. The Thanksgiving cactus has visible flowers by the end of October, and the Christmas cactus usually blooms in December. But to insure a December flowering, refrain from watering the Christmas plants and keep them in darkness for 14 hours each day during September and October. The Easter Cactus blooms in spring. All three species are easily propagated from leaf cuttings at any time of the year. FW

BUY THE FIVE MORGAN SILVER DOLLAR COLLECTOR'S SET,

AND GET ONE FREE!

For the next 15 days only!

A collection of the finest example of U.S. coinage in solid silver, minted about 100 years ago.

Now! For the first time, Numismatic Collectors Guild will send you one solid silver Morgan Dollar FREE with each set of five ordered. Don't miss out on this incredible offer good for the next fifteen days only.

Numismatic Collectors Guild has acquired a limited supply of Morgan solid silver dollars, considered by experts to be the peak of the engraver's art. These solid silver dollars of 412.5 grains of ninety percent fine silver, three quarter ounce of pure silver, are the most sought after coins ever minted in the United States. Dated from 1878 to 1904, in very fine condition, these coins have become so popular that collectors and investors have been hoarding them for years. As a result, there are no longer any Morgan Silver Dollars in circulation. Silver Dollar coins, in general, have increased over 1,000% (that's right over 10 times) in value in preceding years. Some Morgan Silver Dollars sell for as much as $20,000 and a prime mint condition Morgan Silver Dollar recently sold for $42,500.

Now, we have assembled our limited supply into exquisite solid silver collections of five very fine Morgan Dollars. Each set is displayed on a royal blue background in a handsome presentation case. Makes a lifetime gift which can be handed down from generation to generation. To insure your complete satisfaction, each collection is accompanied by a Certificate of Authenticity. We guarantee a full refund within 15 days if not delighted.

Recently these coins were selling at $250.00 per set, but we are now able to offer them to you at our low price of $175.00 per set which we can guarantee for the next 15 days only.

Remember, we will send you absolutely free one solid silver Morgan Dollar with each exquisite five Morgan Dollar solid silver collection ordered. Order yours today.

Numismatic Collectors Guild, dealers in gold and silver bullion and rare coins for over 30 years, is a member of the Retail Coin Dealers Association and the American Numismatic Association.

FIGURES ON FIGURES

Last year two statisticians at Northern Illinois University fed information on the last 20 Miss Americas into a computer and found she averaged out to 5 feet 6 inches, 119 pounds and measurements of 35.6-23.4-35.6. By comparison, after doing research on the past 50 Playmates of the Month, loyal Playboy reader James Feehan observed that the average centerfold is 5 feet 6 inches, weighs 113 pounds and measures 35.3-23.7-36.6. All of which suggests that the typical American woman stacks up quite nicely to these celebrated beauties. According to The "Average American" Book she stands 5-4, weighs between 113 and 126 pounds and has a bust of 35 inches (cup size B).

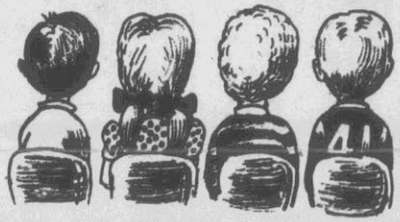
Hope For Dyslexics Hop For Dylexics Hoqe For Dylexics Hoop For Dsylecixs



Richard Bennett

Dyslexia is a commonly misdiagnosed learning disability that affects an estimated 10 percent of school-age boys and 3 percent of girls. (Thomas Edison, Albert Einstein, Nelson Rockefeller, Gen. George Patton, Woodrow Wilson and Leonardo da Vinci are known to have been victims of it.) Dyslexics have great difficulty handling words, often suffering in school because reading, writing and paying attention prove so troublesome.

But now a new study at Johns Hopkins offers hope for dyslexics who get special training. The study followed up on 579 alumni, from 1940 to 1977, of The Gow School, a facility in South Wales, N.Y., for dyslexic boys. It found that 67 percent had graduated college, with 32 percent majoring in the humanities or social sciences, significant because of the extensive reading required in these fields. More than 50 percent reported positive attitudes toward reading for pleasure, and 24 percent read more than 10 books a year.

The study also points to a familial tendency toward dyslexia — 18 percent who have siblings reported a sibling with the disability, and 34 percent of those with children of school age reported a child affected.

DON RICKLES BY MAIL

We recently received this nasty little note: "There must be a lot of good left in you — none of it has come out yet." Ready to dismiss it as just the usual fan mail, we suddenly realized this was something new — an Insult-A-Gram. For $3, a New Jersey woman will mail, anywhere in the U.S. or Canada, the irate but lighthearted message of your choice to employers, utilities, friends, etc. You can include your name or send it anonymously, and 33 categories of insults are available, for offenders ranging from gossips to screwballs. Or you can write your own brief message (no obscenity, though). For information, write TSB Publications, P.O. Box 260, Dept. FW, Englishtown, N.J. 07726.

CELEBRITY VIRGINS

Vic Cantone

Even though such lofty figures as Laurence Olivier, Salvador Dali and James Michener have stooped to do commercials, there are still big-name celebrities — the advertising game calls them "virgins" — who never have. Adweek recently asked two talent agencies to estimate what fees these stars could command if they ever decided to start plugging. Here's a sampling with the agents' comments: Mary Tyler Moore — "Starts at $1 million a year." Faye Dunaway — "$250,000 to $500,000." Marlon Brando — "I'd give a check to the American Indians for $1 million." Ann-Margret — "$250,000. She's a name, but she's slipped down on the pole." Julie Nixon Eisenhower — "$50,000 to $100,000 tops. Don't know who's going to want her." Raymond Burr — "He wants $500,000 but nobody seems to want him." Walter Cronkite — "Anything he wants. Just open the vault."

NOT ONLY THE TURKEY HAS TO WORRY

When you give thanks this Thursday, think of all these bizarre calamities you can begin worrying about for next year (from The Book of Worries by Victor Miller): The average healthy male stops breathing in his sleep for periods as long as 54 seconds....A surgeon, not realizing that his patient had had ether, began to cauterize her lungs. The patient blew up, injuring several bystanders....An ovarian tumor was once discovered weighing 362 pounds....The sun is shrinking by 0.1 percent each century....45,000 Americans are bitten by snakes every year....A man was killed and two friends severely injured when 60 tons of frozen tuna fell on them....Some 12,500 bunk-bed injuries were recorded one recent year, everything from falling off the top bunk to strangling between the guardrail and the mattress.

How to Find Your Ring Size

RING SIZES — LADIES 5—10
MENS 7—13

1. Cut a strip of paper 6 inches long and 1/4 inch wide.

2. Wrap the strip around the finger that is to wear the ring. Then place a dot on the strip where it meets the end.

3. Place the dot on the strip of paper at "A" on the ring guide. The number at the end of the strip is your ring size.

OR—if you prefer, you may take a special trial membership and receive

6 RECORDS OR TAPES 1¢ plus shipping & handling

If you are just an occasional record or tape buyer...if you prefer not to obligate yourself to purchase eight more selections...or if you cannot find 10 selections you want right now—here's a perfect opportunity to "try out" the Club on a special trial membership basis.

Just fill in the special "Trial Membership Application" at the right—and we'll send you ANY 6 records or tapes—ALL for only 1¢, plus shipping and handling. In exchange, you simply agree to buy as few as four selections (at regular Club prices) during the coming three years. Think of it—only four selections and you have three whole years in which to buy them! And that's all there is to it!

As a trial member, you'll enjoy all of the benefits of regular membership as described on the following page—but without any lengthy commitment...you may cancel at any time after buying just four more selections. So if you'd prefer to enroll now under this special "get acquainted" offer—mail the special application today, together with only $1.00 (that's 1¢ for your 6 introductory selections, plus 99¢ to cover shipping and handling). Read the advertisement for details on how the Club works.

NOTE: all applications are subject to review and Columbia House reserves the right to reject any application.

Special Start-Your-Membership-Now Offer: you may also choose your first selection right now—and we'll give it to you for at least 50% off regular Club prices (only $3.99). Enclose payment now and you'll receive it with your 6 introductory selections. This half-price purchase reduces your membership obligation immediately—you'll then be required to buy just 3 more selections (instead of 4) in the next three years. Just check box in application and fill in number you want.

To detach application, cut along dotted line.

Where else can you get this much music for only a penny? Nowhere else!—because only the Columbia Record & Tape Club makes this great offer. By joining the Club now, you may have any 10 of these records or tapes—all 10 for only 1¢, plus shipping and handling. And just look at the exciting selection of new hits and old favorites you have to choose from—music to suit any taste!

To receive your 10 albums, just mail the application, together with your check or money order for $1.86 (that's 1¢ for your first 10 selections, plus $1.85 to cover shipping and handling). In exchange, you agree to buy 8 more tapes or records (at regular Club prices) in the next three years—and you may cancel your membership at any time after doing so.

How the Club operates: every four weeks (13 times a year) you'll receive the Club's music magazine, which describes the Selection of the Month for each musical interest...plus hundreds of alternates from every field of music. In addition, up to six times a year you may receive offers of Special Selections, usually at a discount off our regular Club prices, for a total of up to 19 buying opportunities in a year.

If you wish to receive the Selection of the Month, or the Special Selection, you need do nothing—it will be shipped automatically. If you'd prefer an alternate selection, or none at all, simply fill in the response card always provided and mail it by the date specified.

You will always have at least 10 days in which to make your decision. If you ever receive any Selection without having had at least 10 days in which to decide, you may return it at our expense.

The tapes and records you order during your membership will be mailed and billed at regular Club prices, which currently are $7.98 to $9.98—plus shipping and handling. (Multiple-unit sets and Double Selections may be higher.) And if you decide to continue as a member after completing your enrollment agreement, you'll be eligible for our generous money-saving bonus plan.

10-Day Free Trial: we'll send details of the Club's operation with your introductory shipment. If you are not satisfied for any reason whatsoever, just return everything within 10 days for a full refund and you will have no further obligation. So act now!

Note: all applications are subject to review and Columbia House reserves the right to reject any application.

Special Start-Your-Membership-Now Offer: you may also choose your first selection now and we'll give it to you for at least 50% off our regular Club prices (only $3.99). Enclose payment now and you'll receive it with your 10 introductory selections. This half price purchase reduces your membership obligation immediately: you then need buy just 7 more selections (instead of 8) in the next three years. CAN YOU TRUST YOUR EYES? There are at least six differences in drawing details between top and bottom panels. How quickly can you find them? Check answers with those below.

Differences: 1. Vase is different. 2. Drawer is missing. 3. Rug is smaller. 4. Door is different. 5. Cap is different. 6. Sweater is different.

Junior Whirl®

by Hal Kaufman

● WORD PLAY! Each missing word is spelled with the same six capitalized letters rearranged: "Buy my ripe MELONS, my _____ who'll buy? Don't look so _____, but take some and try." How quickly can you answer?

1. Lemons. 2. Solemn.

● I's Have It! I took a number. I added 3, divided by 2, added 8, multiplied by 2, subtracted 2 and had twice the number, which was what?

Seventeen.

● Step lively! Grasp a foot-long wooden ruler at both ends. Bend down; try to step over the ruler between your arms. Good luck.

● Ana and Ort! Which dog is named for a tree? The palm-eranian. Which queen founded the Girl Guides? Mary, Queen of Scouts. In what period of history was jogging revived? The Run-aissance.

CONNECT NAMES —IF YOU CAN

Messrs. Small, Booth, Jackson and Rutherford arranged to meet for dinner. Their given names, but not respectively in this order, are Otis, Edgar, Allan and Ramon.

Otis arrived first and sat down.

Edgar and Allan arrived next, together.

"Hi there, Otis," said Edgar.

"Is Jackson here?" chimed in Rutherford.

"No," said Booth, "he's always late."

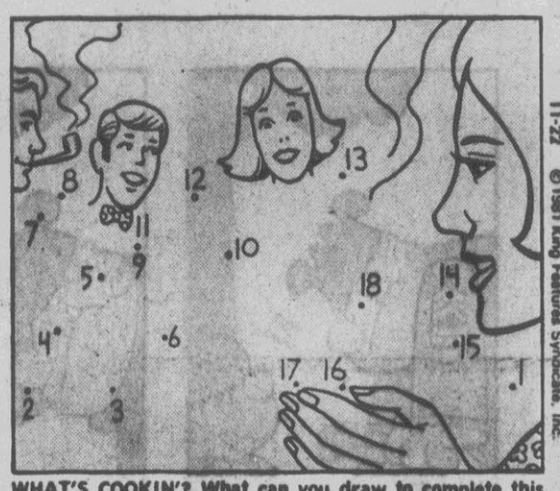
They are Edgar Small, Otis Booth, Ramon Jackson and Allan Rutherford.



WHAT'S COOKIN'? What can you draw to complete this familiar Thanksgiving scene? Connect dots to find out.

SPELLBINDER

SCORE 10 points for using all the letters in the word below to form two complete words:

PETULANT

- - - - - - - -

THEN score 2 points each for all words of four letters or more found among the letters.

Try to score at least 50 points.

CREATED BY HAL FOSTER

Our Story: IN SEARCH OF DIANA, PRINCE VALIANT VISITS THE ISLAND OF NIMROD THE ALCHEMIST. "THE GIRL YOU SPEAK OF IS NOT HERE," NIMROD SAYS INNOCENTLY. "MY MEN FOUND A BOAT CAPSIZED. I FEAR THAT IS YOUR ANSWER." VAL DOES NOT MENTION THE SLIPPER.

ALETA IS DISTRESSED BY THE NEWS. "THERE WAS ALWAYS A CLOUD OVER COUSIN NIMROD, SOMETHING MY FAMILY WOULD NEVER DISCUSS."

WHAT HAS NIMROD DONE WITH ALL THE STRAYS CAST UPON HIS ISLAND? ON A MOONLESS NIGHT VAL SLIPS ASHORE. NIMROD'S LOUTS KEEP WATCH, BUT THEY ARE AS DIM-WITTED AS THEY ARE FEARSOME. SOME WILL AWAKEN WITH HEADACHES.

THE CELLARS AT THE VILLA ARE LIT. THROUGH A GRATE PRINCE VALIANT SEES THE GIANT SCREW THAT TURNS THE ROOM ABOVE. TWENTY CHILDREN ARE CHAINED TO THEIR POSTS. VAL CHOKES DOWN HIS RAGE AND MOVES ON.

IN ANOTHER ROOM NIMROD ENTERTAINS A GUEST. THEY SPEAK THE GREEK OF LEARNED MEN. "THEN WE ARE AGREED," SAYS NIMROD. "IN RETURN, JUSTINIAN SHALL HAVE THE POWDER. THE GIRL I MUST KEEP FOR MY OWN PURPOSES." ONLY THEN DOES VAL SEE DIANA...
