

Brezhnev Urges Effort To Limit Nukes

By SUSANNE M. SCHAFER
Associated Press Writer

BONN, West Germany (AP) — The Soviet Union and the United States should make a concerted effort at the Geneva talks to reach an agreement to limit nuclear weapons in Europe "at the lowest possible level," the Soviet and West German governments declared today.

As Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev flew home after his first visit to the West in almost two years, the two governments said in a joint communique:

"Both sides again explained their position regarding the question of limiting nuclear weapons. They consider it of great importance to continue the process of limiting and reducing strategic weapons systems."

Both sides "expressed satisfaction" that talks between the United States and the Soviet Union are to start Monday in Geneva, Switzerland, and "explained their respective understandings in regard to the connected problems in which they differ."

"They are of the opinion that the establishment of a balance in the region of weapons, which will be subject of the negotiations, at the lowest possible level, will be of great importance for the intensification of stability and international security and all efforts must be made to conclude the respective agreement."

During his four sessions with Brezhnev, Chancellor Helmut Schmidt sought to explain the U.S. position to the Soviets and asked them to consider President Reagan's "zero-option" proposal to eliminate medium range nuclear weapons from Western Europe.

He said West Germany felt threatened by the growing numbers of Soviet mobile SS-20 missiles and warned his nation intended to support the 1979 NATO decision to deploy 572 nuclear-tipped Pershing II and cruise missiles in late 1983 if no progress is made in the Geneva talks.

But the Kremlin leadership showed little understanding for the American position, Schmidt told leaders of his Social Democratic Party late Tuesday.

"It is more than clear that the Soviet leadership still cannot properly evaluate the intentions of the American leadership and its leaders," Schmidt told members of his Social Democratic Party.

"We have, I repeat, tried for our part to clear away serious Soviet doubts about the credibility of the American position and of the readiness for negotiations of the American government," he said.

Schmidt's spokesman, Kurt Becker, said the chancellor "has actually taken over the function of an interpreter" of U.S. policy for the Soviets. That drew a sharp rebuke from Soviet spokesman Leonid Zamyatin who said Becker held a "false opinion" if he thought "that the Soviet leadership doesn't correctly understand the intentions of the American administration."

Reagan offered last week to forego deployment of medium-range Pershing 2 and cruise missiles in Europe if the Soviets would reciprocate by dismantling the 600 medium-range they have in place in Soviet Europe.

GUC Votes Refunds To Gas-Users

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

The Greenville Utilities Commission last night approved a three-year lease-purchase agreement for a new computer system to handle bookkeeping duties for the commission, and approved refunds totaling $360,000 to GUC's natural gas customers.

The lease-purchase agreement provides for a $2,623 per month payment for an NCR 9020 computer, which will handle payroll, accounting and other functions. The system can be expanded in the future to handle customer billing functions which are now under contract to a private computer firm.

In approving the $360,000 in refunds to customers — a refund from GUC's wholesale supplier, North Carolina Natural Gas — the board voted to credit the commission's firm natural gas customers' January, February and March bills at 11 cents per 100 cubic feet.

GUC director Charles Horne said the credit would amount to about $14.74 cents for the average residential customer.

The commission's seven large interruptible natural gas customers — customers whose service may stopped at any time by the commission — will be refunded a specific dollar amount, based on the amount of gas they have used in the past, through credits over the three-month period.

The specific refunds — one-third of the total NCNG refund — for the interruptible customers include: $25,428 for Pitt County Memorial Hospital, $12,360 for Fieldcrest Mills, $2,328 for Procter & Gamble, $55,716 for East Carolina University, $8,784 for Carolina Leaf Tobacco Co., $12,648 for Burroughs-Wellcome and $2,736 for Fred Webb Grain Co.

The board postponed action on a $4.7 million refund from Virginia Electric and Power Co. until the exact cost of the purchase of a Vepco-owned substation which the commission intends to purchase has been set.

However, board members emphasized that funds not used for the purchase of the substation will be passed on to GUC's electric customers in the form of credits on their electric bills, probably over a three-month period, beginning in January.

Commission members last night also declared as surplus, a diesel engine-generator set and approved its sale by private sale at a negotiated price.

Laying Groundwork For Harmonious Budget Vote

By CLIFF HAAS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican congressional leaders and top White House officials are trying to get everyone "singing the same song and using the same numbers" to avoid another confrontation and disruption of government operations when an interim spending measure expires Dec. 15.

At the same time, however, administration officials are emphasizing that President Reagan's veto Monday of an emergency spending bill and his orders to shut down non-essential parts of the government were an indication of his resolve to slash the budget by more than $100 billion over the next two years.

Senate Republican leader Howard H. Baker Jr. of Tennessee called a group of legislators and administration officials to his Capitol office Tuesday to "get everybody on the same sheet, singing the same song and using the same numbers," said a Senate aide who asked not to be identified.

The aide quoted Baker as telling the group, "We need to get a package that will be acceptable to the administration and get through Congress."

Congress did Reagan's bidding Monday, sending him a measure putting the government back in business for three weeks and giving both sides room for further negotiation.

The group that met in Baker's office hopes to use the time to agree on strategy and a proposed package by the end of next week, the aide said.

The interim measure providing funds for executive branch agencies and the judiciary is necessary because Congress has passed and Reagan has signed only the regular appropriations bill that provides money for congressional operations.

Part of the strategy will include getting final congressional action on some of the domestic spending bills before the Dec. 15 deadline, shrinking the size of the next interim measure.

Also, the group hopes to agree on a common set of budget numbers.

Several legislators, Republicans and Democrats alike, expressed anger over the weekend when the Office of Management and Budget told them that a compromise spending package hammered out during long negotiations between House and Senate conferees exceeded the president's targets. Congressional figures showed the agreement within Reagan's budget. That was the measure Reagan vetoed Monday.

In California, where Reagan is vacationing, deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes was asked Tuesday whether Reagan is still willing to accept about half of the $8.5 billion cuts he had proposed in September. "I don't want to be very precise" while discussions continue on Capitol Hill, he said. "I think we'll just see what evolves between now and Dec. 15."

But White House counselor Edwin Meese III said Reagan's veto makes another confrontation in December less likely. "Now that the members of Congress, particularly the Democratic leadership in the House, know that he's serious, I think we'll have a different result."

But, Meese added, Reagan stands ready to shut the government down again next month if Congress doesn't accept the president's spending ceiling in a new interim measure.

"He not only would be prepared to do it if it was necessary ... but he has a legal responsibility," Meese said.

He also said Reagan's unprecedented rejection of a measure needed to keep the government operating was "a matter of calling attention to the fact that the budget process has gotten out of control."

Farmers Backed 'Nickels' Issue

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The "Nickels for Know-How" program was given a new lease on life Tuesday, as North Carolina farmers voted overwhelmingly to continue funding it and to double the assessment that goes for agricultural research.

Agriculture officials pronounced the issue decided early this morning. With 60 percent of the ballots counted, 91.7 percent of the farmers said they wanted to pay 10 cents per ton of feed and fertilizer to support agricultural research, education and extension work in North Carolina, said state Agricultural Extension Service spokesman Bill Humphries.

"Voting for the nickels program in this referendum is one of the most important things farm and rural people will be able to do in 1981 to help themselves," said Robert J. Bowers, state referendum chairman.

"This program has had a tremendous impact on the development of agriculture in our state by providing extra funds, which have made a vital difference in agricultural research and extension programs at North Carolina State University."

The General Assembly had authorized an increase in the assessment for the 30-year program.

Humphries said the referendum passed with the necessary two-thirds majority. Preliminary returns indicated the vote was 14,303 to 1,283.

The number of farmers voting was slightly smaller this year because of bad weather, he said.

Agriculture officials said the increase is needed to offset the effects of inflation. They say that 10 cents today will buy only what 3 cents could buy when the program started in 1951. Spokesmen said they knew of no serious opposition to the increase.

In the past, between 40,000 and 50,000 farmers have cast ballots in the referendum. In eight previous votes, the program was approved by at least a 9-1 ratio.

People who use feed or fertilizer and their spouses were eligible to vote. Members of the Future Farmers of America, the Future Homemakers of America and 4-H clubs with crop or livestock projects of their own who use feed or fertilizer were eligible too.

Big Turnout For Tribute To Graham

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

About 1,000 people from Pitt and adjacent counties braved bad weather and an unheated interior to attend the $20 a plate dinner honoring North Carolina Commissioner of Agriculture Jim Graham held in Farmer's Warehouse north of the river Tuesday night.

State and local dignitaries were on hand to honor Graham, who has been Agriculture Commissioner since 1964. Among these were Congressman Walter B. Jones, Secretary of State Thad Eure, Commissioner of Insurance John Ingram, Attorney General Rufus Edmisten, State Auditor Ed Renfrow, Commissioner of Labor John Brooks, State Representatives Sam Bundy, Ed Warren and Vernon White, and Dr. Leo Jenkins, former chancellor of East Carolina University who is currently serving as a special advisor to Governor Jim Hunt.

JIM GRAHAM

Also in attendance were county commissioners, mayors and other county and city officials from nearby areas of eastern North Carolina.

Secretary of State Thad Eure, holder of that office since 1936, was the principal speaker paying tribute to Graham. Noting that he has known Graham since Graham was a child, Eure praised him for the work he has done for North Carolina farmers. "I have served under 12 governors, and am ready to serve under 12 more," Eure commented. "We've had some fine governors, and I want to say that Governor Terry Sanford was the greatest of these because he was the one who named Jim Graham to be Commissioner of Agriculture."

Dr. Jenkins said that Graham was a man "who has won the hearts of farmers, particularly the farmers of eastern North Carolina. He also has the respect and love of our governor."

Governor Hunt, who could not attend as he is in Japan working on agreements for sale of North Carolina agricultural products to that country, sent a telegram regretting he was not able to take part in the tribute to Graham.

Sam McLawhorn, an assistant to Graham, mentioned that Graham "worked hard, quietly on the outside" during the recent tobacco fight in Congress. "Beyond a doubt he turned around seven or eight congressional votes on the issue. He worked closely with Walter Jones and with the secretaries of agriculture in all the states," McLawhorn concluded his praise of Graham by saying "he's a man with a heart as big as his feet."

In his brief comments, Graham expressed delight in the turn-out of "my farmer and political friends" and added "this should really be a Walter Jones night. He's the one who has done a lot of hard work on the tobacco program." Graham ended his platform appearance by performing his well known act of imitating a mule in braying and kicking.

In remarks made after the official ending of the program, Mrs. Ann Evans, president of Pitt County Democratic Women commented, "The turn-out to honor Jim Graham is fantastic. Perhaps the Reagan administration will get wind of gatherings such as we've seen here tonight and see that people are really serious about the future of agriculture in America. All of us must be concerned about the direction that agriculture is taking, and realize that the current administration's policies are resulting in distress for small farms and the future of farm families."

Students from A.G. Cox School in Winterville presented a check for $700 to Dr. Jenkins as a contribution in the statewide program to help save Cape Hatteras Lighthouse. Dr. Jenkins told the students he was proud of their hard work and concern in helping to save the historic North Carolina landmark.

Entertainment in country music was provided by The New Dixie Grass Band, a group led by Bobby Cherry and composed of musicians from several areas of eastern North Carolina.

Parade Plans

The Greenville Jaycees are completing plans for the annual Christmas parade on Dec. 12.

The parade will begin at 10:30 a.m. on Reade Street and will continue to Reade Circle and turn right on Dickinson Avenue. It will continue on Dickinson Avenue and turn left on Washington Street and end on Washington and First Street.

The parade will contain eight floats to be judged in homemade competition, six professionally built floats, five bands and other entries including Santa Claus.

Anyone interested in participating in the parade should contact one of the following Jaycees as soon as possible: Bobby James, 756-7124 or 758-1512; Matthew Ward, 758-4748 or 752-1100; Jim Allgood, 757-3444 or 758-3471 ext. 278.

CHESS PLAYERS

I'm relatively new to the city. Is there a chess club in Greenville? If so, where and when does it meet? W.W.

Yes, there is a chess club. According to the city Recreation and Parks Department, the club meets on Mondays at 7:30 p.m. at the community center at the intersection of Fourth and Greene streets. All chess players are welcome and there is no charge for the program.

Robert Johnson at the South Greenville Recreation Center (752-4137, ext. 253) can give you additional information about the club.

Pat's Pointers

By Pat Trexler

Four easy but fascinating pattern stitches are combined in this newest "Learn-a-Stitch" creation — a fashion tote, designed for the beginning needlepointer.

It's worked on quick-stitch plastic canvas with acrylic yarns for easy care. With this canvas, no blocking is needed and finishing techniques are simple.

To obtain directions for making the Learn-a-Stitch Tote, send your request for Leaflet No. NP-543 with $1 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Pat Trexler, The Daily Reflector, P.O. Box 810, North Myrtle Beach, S.C. 29582.

Or you may order Kit No. KNP-543 by sending a check or money order for $13.50 to Pat Trexler at the same address. The kit price includes instruction leaflet, seven-mesh plastic canvas, acrylic needlepoint yarn, needle and shipping charges. Please specify your choice of coral with brown; natural with gold and brown; Bermuda sea tones; gray tones; or blue tones.

When learning most needlecrafts, the beginner must first master the basic stitches before progressing to fancy pattern stitchery, but this is not true with needlepoint.

In the past few years, whenever I have taught anyone who has never done any needlepoint, I always start them on pattern stitches. Only after they have mastered three or four of these do I introduce the basic tent stitch.

I find that the beginner gets tremendous satisfaction from working seemingly difficult stitches with such ease and many, who may have had the feeling that needlepoint is repetitious and dull, are bubbly with enthusiasm over their new skills.

If you would like to try your hand at pattern stitchery, get a small square of canvas — plastic canvas is particularly good for the beginner — a few strands of yarn, scissors and a tapestry needle.

Before you start, you need to know what to do with the loose ends of yarn you will have whenever you finish with one strand and start with another. These loose ends are always run under a few previously worked stitches on the wrong side of your canvas, with the "tails" snipped away immediately.

When you are starting with blank canvas, there are no previously worked stitches so you must do something a little different here. There are several ways of securing that first strand of yarn but the method I teach and use is called the "waste-knot" method. I have covered this in previous columns but am repeating it for any new readers.

First, knot the end of your yarn after threading the needle. Then, pass the needle through the canvas from the right side to the wrong side so that the knot appears on the right side. Position the knot so that it is 2 or 3 inches away from the point where your first stitch is to be taken in the direction you will be stitching. In other words, if you will be working from left to right, have the knot to the right of your first stitch.

As you work, you will be covering the yarn between the knot and the first stitch. When you reach the place where the knot is, just snip the knot off. From this point on, do not use any knots at all.

Let's start with Mosaic stitches, which are used in the center portion of the tote bag featured today. Position your waste knot so that it is about 3 inches in from the top left corner of your canvas. Starting at the upper left, count down to the third hole and then move over one hole to the left. Bring the needle up in that hole.

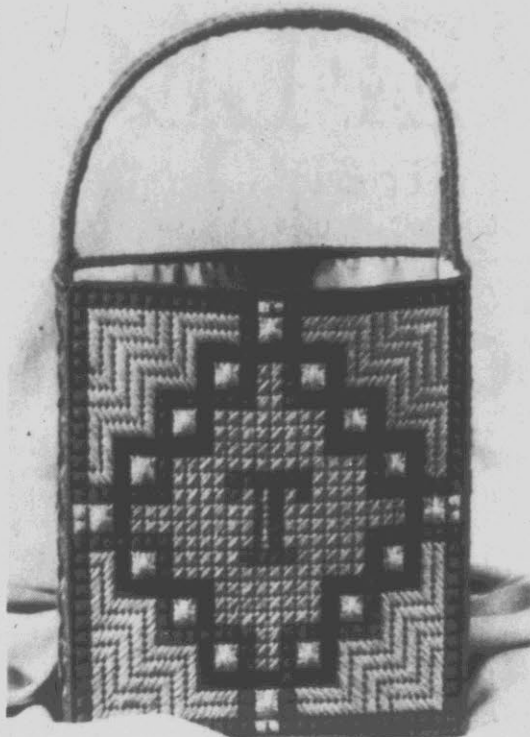

This hole corresponds with the square marked "1" on the Mosaic Stitch Chart. Now, take the needle down in the hole marked "2" on the chart. You will see that this makes a small diagonal stitch over one mesh of the canvas.

SMYRNA

MOSAIC

FASHION TOTE. . . is designed for beginning needlepointer.

Next, bring the needle up in hole "3," which you will see is just to the left of the hole where the first stitch was started. Take the needle down in hole "4," which is just above the point where the first stitch ended.

Continue following the chart, always bringing the needle up in odd-numbered holes and taking the needle down in even-numbered holes. In following the Mosaic chart, when you have taken the needle down in hole "6," you have completed one complete Mosaic Stitch. Steps 7 through 12 are used in the second complete Mosaic Stitch. Continue across the row and then make another row below and you are now a "Mosaic Expert."

The Smyrna Stitch is used for all borders and the interlaced design on the tote bag. Use the same principle in following this stitch chart by bringing the needle up at odd numbers and taking it down in even numbers. You will see that this stitch is simply a large diagonal cross stitch covered with an upright cross stitch.

I hope this has whetted your appetite for pattern stitchery and that you will soon be able to spend many happy hours using these and others to create beautiful designs.

Dear Abby Are Teachers Professionals?

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: A 30-year-old male teacher asked you, "What makes schoolteachers get crushes on their students?" (He confessed to having a crush on a 15-year-old girl in his class.)

Your reply: "Teachers have crushes on students for the same reason students have crushes on teachers: immaturity." Abby, I was a 15-year-old high school girl who had a crush on my 27-year-old teacher. We dated for three months with only my parents knowing. They loved him. I loved him, and I still do. We've been married 25 years and have four gorgeous kids!

Please reconsider your answer. It sounded as though you assumed that all older men who were attracted to younger girls were simply "dirty old men" trying to take advantage of naive young children.

Not so. In our case it was the real thing.
GEORGE'S ADORING WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Consider my shallow answer reconsidered. Ten whacks on the posterior with a biology book for Abby. You were only one of many who wrote to tell me I was wrong. And I was.

DEAR ABBY: My husband of many years had an affair, and his secretary (I'll call her Doris) was a party to it. She was very friendly with the "other woman" — talking to her on the phone often, giving her messages, letting her know where my husband could be reached, etc.

The affair is over now, but every time I see Doris or talk to her on the phone, I am reminded of my husband's unfaithfulness, which is very painful. I told my husband this and asked him to fire her. He refused.

Abby, don't you think my husband should fire his secretary when he knows it would make me feel so much better?

WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: Although it would make you feel better, it would be unfair to the secretary who was only following her boss's orders.

DEAR ABBY: "Concerned Agent, Seattle" had some good suggestions as to the recovery of stolen goods. However, there are further measures which should be taken.

Most states have a crime prevention program. If people will call their local police, they may receive the information needed, be loaned engravers and get window and door stickers that warn a burglar the property is identified, or be referred to local groups that will provide these services.

In many areas, police are working with the Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP), whereby the senior volunteers will do the engraving, listing the items and/or serial numbers, affix the stickers, conduct a security check of the premises, help organize "Neighborhood Watch" groups and install safety devices. This service is provided in our area with no cost to the householder.

PATRICIA A. MCGUIRE, LEWISTON, IDAHO

DEAR MS. MCGUIRE: Terrific! Too bad every community doesn't have a RSVP program.

DEAR ABBY: Will you please settle an argument? I say that schoolteachers are considered "professionals." Am I correct? My friend says that teaching school is a "job" — not a profession. She says that people who practice law and medicine are professionals, but schoolteachers are not.

What do you say?
MILWAUKEE MISUNDERSTANDING

DEAR MILWAUKEE: A professional is anyone who receives remuneration for a job — as opposed to an amateur, who does what he does without pay.

Couple Weds In Warsaw Church

WARSAW — Debra Yvonne Scott and Carl Ronald Beasley pledged their wedding vows in a double ring ceremony Saturday, Nov. 14, at 4 p.m. in the Carlton Methodist Church here. The Rev. Richard Lewis conducted the ceremony.

A program of wedding music was presented by Barry Fountain. Soloist was Dawn Fountain.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. James A. Scott of Greenville and Mr. and Mrs. MacDonald Beasley of Warsaw.

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride chose a formal gown of white chantilly lace over taffeta. The bodice was designed with a peau and sequined Queen Anne neckline. The bell, bishop sleeves were enhanced with sequined and pearl cuffs. The natural waistline of cascading chantilly ruffles swept into a cathedral length train. Her matching hat, trimmed with chantilly lace, had a bow with fingertip streamers. She carried a cascade of pompons and daisies accented with mother of pearl, seed pearls and tied with white lace brocade ribbon.

The honor attendant was Mrs. Paul Phillips, sister of the bridegroom. Amy Stone

State Vice Regent Visits

Mrs. Albert J. Potter of Asheville, state vice regent, NSDAR of North Carolina, was speaker at the meeting of the Susanna Countess Evans Chapter DAR held Thursday.

In her talk entitled "1776 D Street," she explained the NSDAR buildings owned in Washington, D. C., which encompass a city block. She emphasized the need to support the president general's project of restoring and preserving the historic headquarters buildings. The National Board of Management is composed of 12 officers, 21 vice president generals and 54 state regents.

Mrs. Donald McLane Jr. introduced the speaker. The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. J. B. Surles III.

Mrs. Keats Sparrow read the national defense message and Mrs. Clara Jordan Weathers read the president general's message. Three members attended the Yorktown Bicentennial Oct. 19 and gave a report.

Mrs. J. P. Bullock will be a page at the Continental Congress. DAR Americanism Manuals will be given to several local libraries.

A dinner party for chapter officers and Mrs. Potter was given by Mrs. McLane.

Guests attending were Jane Baskerville of the Richard Dobbs Speight Chapter, New Bern, and Mrs. Gilmer Hulsey.

Orientation Held Thursday

New members to be inducted at the December meeting of the NCFWC Junior Woman's Club of Greenville were invited to an orientation Thursday night at the home of Mary Shearin.

Guests present were Jackie Carson, Holly Edwards, Nancy Lee, Phyllis Lewis, Kathy Kazior, Beth Murphy and Becky Taylor.

Ms. Shearin, past president, conducted the orientation assisted by President Kathy Hunnings. It familiarized guests with the General Federation and North Carolina Federation of Woman's Clubs.

Personal

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Padley of Ayden spent the weekend in Wendell visiting Mr. and Mrs. Don Batten, Jamie and Josh.

Get On With Budget

President Reagan was not known as the most powerful Hollywood actor in his days on the silver screen, but he may yet be a candidate for an Academy Award, and perhaps rightfully so.

The president played his role to the hilt in backing down Congress with a veto after that body sent him a stop-gap spending bill which the president considered too large. In vetoing the bill the president began sending so-called non-essential government workers home for the day. The Washington Monument was closed, as was the White House telephone answering service. Of course the military, law enforcement, air controllers and other services considered essential continued to operate.

By day's end an irate Congress had passed a resolution to continue government spending at its previous levels, and President Reagan had the appearance of another major victory over Congress. Actually, of course, little had changed. The government workers enjoyed a partial holiday at taxpayers expense since it was concluded that they would return to work today without any loss of pay.

The president had made a point worth making, however, and that is that there is no excuse for the budget making process dragging on as it has. Congress had also made a major point, which is that there is indeed confusion at the White House over what the administration really wants. The symptoms of that are emerging daily.

Now it is time for both Congress and the administration to get on with completing an already horribly delayed budget. And while they are at it, perhaps all concerned can concentrate on getting next year's budget ready on time.

Reduce Missiles In Interim

It is difficult to get excited about Soviet Leader Leonid I Brezhnev's suggestion that there be a moratorium on new mid-range nuclear missiles in Europe.

The suggestion was in response to President Reagan's proposal to make Europe a nuclear free zone. The catch is the Soviet missiles are already there, the United States' are not.

Brezhnev doesn't need any response from President Reagan, however. If he wishes to show sincerity, he can freeze and reduce Soviet missile placement while talks are underway. It would demonstrate to Europe and the world that reducing the nuclear threat is a real Soviet aim.

THIS AFTERNOON

A Real Revolution

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — You can't see the difference, driving along country highways, but a revolution has gripped North Carolina farms.

Farming is big business these days. Sprawling acres are owned by big corporations. Machinery owned by processing companies trundle from one farm to another doing the work on a hire basis.

Machinery is replacing hired hands at an astounding rate, and the capital investment in purchasing the heavy equipment makes it more economical to hire specialists to do the work.

Researchers at North Carolina State University find that the average annual number of farm workers last year was 147,000. That's down 65 percent from the number of people who worked on farms in this state in 1960. More than half of those who once worked on the farm were family members; not employees. Today, more and more hired workers are needed to keep the farms going.

Impact
This change has produced two seasonal situations which capture brief public notice through various news reports: when the busy planting and harvest seasons end, a lot of farm workers are out of work and the unemployment figures reflect that; and, more and more migrant farm workers are employed in the state, giving rise to periodical reports of abuses and problems.

North Carolina government from time to time publishes a big, technical research book called "Statistical Abstract" which on close study reveals the hidden revolution.

In 1950 there were 301,000 farms using a total of 19.9 million acres. The average farm was family-owned and operated, covering just 66 acres.

By 1970 the number of farms had been cut in half, down to 150,000. Total farmland had fallen to 15.2 million acres. And the average farm size had grown to 101 acres.

With corporate ownership, leased equipment, hired hands and farming as big business, today's average farm size in North Carolina is more than 114 acres. Total farm acreage has dropped even more; down to 13 million acres. The total number of farms is now less than 115,000.

Corporate farming is squeezing the family farm out of existence, and machinery is eliminating jobs. Nearly 600,000 people worked on farms in 1960. Today, the number is just 147,000.

Yet the farms produce more than ever, and fewer hands are needed to provide food for a growing population. Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham says he has no fears of impending shortages, and foresees the farm revolution continuing to produce bountiful supplies.

Technology
Specialists at N.C. State University say the revolution has produced another subtle change. Rather than spending their time doing menial work in the fields, today's farm employee spends time operating, repairing, maintaining or monitoring more sophisticated farm machinery and equipment.

A different kind of farm labor is required as a result. Hiring farm employees is now much the same as hiring in an office or factory: wages must be competitive and

Checkbook Journalism

A Japanese newspaperman came into my office the other day, bowed deeply, and said, "Forgive me for this awkward intrusion, but I am doing a story for newspaper in Tokyo about Richard Allen and the Nancy Reagan interview."

"Ah so," I said, "I would be most honored to answer any of your questions."

"What do you personally think of this situation?" "I would prefer not to comment on it," I replied, "until the Justice Department finishes its investigation."

He smiled and gave me a white envelope containing $100 in cash.

"Ah so," I said, smiling back. "But I cannot accept a bribe for granting you an interview."

"It is not a bribe," he said indignantly. "It is a tradition in my country to give a small gift of appreciation when someone grants an interview."

"Why didn't you say that in the first place?" I said. I called in my secretary and told her to put the envelope in the safe.

"Do you feel," he continued, "that someone in high position in office should accept a gift from newspaperman for arranging an interview with the First Lady of the land?"

"Mr. Allen expected nothing but he has great respect for your traditions nothing about the arrangement?"

"Mrs. Reagan doesn't even remember being interviewed by the Japanese magazine."

"That means she must be very unhappy with Mr. Allen?"

"Well, she's not working on a needlepoint pillow for him for Christmas this year." The Japanese newspaperman was writing furiously.

"I don't want to offend you," I said, "but you forgot to give me another white envelope."

"Ah so," he said. "A thousand pardons."

"It's okay. But we Americans aren't used to answering questions for nothing."

"One final question. Is it your opinion that Secretary of State Al Haig is happy or unhappy about the way things are going for Mr. Allen?"

"He looked very disturbed the last time I saw him on television and I couldn't tell whether it was because of Mr. Allen or Nicaragua."

The Tokyo newspaperman handed me my last envelope.

As soon as he left I called Tom Brokaw and said, "The next time you want me to do the 'Today' show it's going to cost you 10 big ones."

"But that's checkbook journalism," he cried.

"Ah so." (c) 1981, Los Angeles Times Syndicate and would do anything not to insult you. When Mr. Reagan took office the first thing he said to his foreign policy advisers was, 'Under no conditions do I want anyone in my administration to offend the Japanese.'"

The newspaperman smiled and handed me another white envelope. He looked at his notes. "What do you think Mr. Allen intended to do with the $1,000?"

"He says he intended to give it to charity."

"Why didn't he?"

"Because he forgot about it. You must understand, Mr. Allen is the President's National Security Adviser and he forgets very easily. One day he says a certain country is a threat to the United States and then he forgets all about it."

"Am I taking up too much of your time?" he asked.

"Heck no," I said. "Not as long as you keep passing over white envelopes."

"Mrs. Reagan knew

Dropped As 'Successor'

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON

Republican tax-cutters who had been urging quick removal of Budget Director David Stockman as an apostate held their tongues after they heard his successor might be the fastest-rising White House aide: Deputy Chief of Staff Richard Darman.

Darman, never identified with either Ronald Reagan's political campaigns or philosophical viewpoints until he became a senior White House staffer, had been skeptical of the Reagan tax cut all year. He urged Stockman to pursue his ill-fated "fall offensive" of tax increases and additional budget cuts. Authoritative reports emerged from the White House last week that Darman was under serious consideration to be the Office of Management and Budget's (OMB) new director.

Fearing that tax increases, seemingly dead if the discredited Stockman stays at OMB, would be revived if he is replaced by Darman, conservative political operatives went to Sen. Paul Laxalt for help. Laxalt, President Reagan's close friend and counselor, told them their fears seemed unsubstantiated but added he considers Darman unqualified for the Budget post.

Allen's Alibi

One reason why the Justice Department showed little interest in pressing the investigation of Richard V. Allen for receiving $1,000 from a Japanese magazine was corroboration of his explanation from a senior Reagan administration official not on the White House staff.

This official, according to Reagan aides, just happened to be at the White House the day Nancy Reagan was interviewed briefly by the Japanese magazine and heard Allen declare he had intercepted $1,000 intended for the first lady. Such corroboration could save Allen's job as the president's national security assistant.

A footnote: White House insiders mention Lt. Gen. Brent Scowcroft, who held the post under President Ford, as the best bet to succeed Allen. But anti-Soviet Republican senators and Pentagon officials consider Scowcroft too staunch a champion of detente and would try to head off his appointment should Allen leave.

Rickover's Loyalists

Although President Reagan's lightning speed in forcibly retiring Adm. Hyman Rickover at age 81 won general applause in the defense community, it left Sen. Henry M. Jackson and other defense-oriented Democrats in a dangerously angry mood.

Jackson, Rep. Mel Price of Illinois, Rep. Sam Stratton of New York and other Democrats who normally vote for high defense spending were plotting ways to generate support for Rickover when Reagan's axe fell. They are angry that they were not consulted or even notified about the summary dismissal of the father of the nuclear Navy; that anger is dangerous for Reagan because of the necessity of such Democratic support for his defense budget.

Otherwise, Rickover's departure leaves few wet eyes. Among those delighted to see him go are his many antagonists of long standing: defense contractors, federal budget officials and especially his brother naval officers who first tried to force his retirement 25 years ago.

Al Haig, Diplomat

That diplomatic sensitivity is not one of Secretary of State Alexander Haig's more obvious virtues was shown at a recent U.S.-Italian bipartisan conference in Rome.

In pointing up the unspeakable behavior of Libya's Col. Muammar Qaddafi, Haig revealed that Libyan hit men had executed political opponents on U.S. soil. Anybody who had been dozing at the conference table was next brought up sharply with this comment by the secretary of state: It's one thing for the Mafia to do this sort of thing, but it's going too far for the Libyans.

"I can't believe I'm hearing this," whispered one U.S. diplomat to a colleague. If Haig was attempting humor, it was lost on the Italians. Neither Foreign Minister Emilio Colombo nor any of his compatriots cracked a smile.

GOP Non-Politics

Republican failure to take full advantage of new-found Senate control was pointed up twice last week when two Senate committees, each chaired by a conservative Republican, acted in ways that can help liberal Democratic Sen. Howard Metzenbaum's campaign for re-election in Ohio.

First, the Judiciary Committee, headed by South Carolina's Strom Thurmond, permitted consideration of order (quickly followed by approval) of Metzenbaum's bill to divorce gasoline etions from oil company ownership. Then, the Energy Committee, headed by Idaho's James McClure, honored Metzenbaum's demand to delay shale oil legislation pressed by western Republican governors. Both triumphs can be used in the campaign by Metzenbaum to show his clout in a Republican Senate.

A footnote: Gov. James A. Rhodes, who on a recent visit to Washington seemed eager to challenge Metzenbaum, was back in Ohio last week indicating little interest in such a venture. Old friends say Rhodes' ups and downs over the past year reflect his changing measurement of Ronald Reagan's popularity. When the governor says he probably won't run (as he does right now), he's also saying the president is in trouble.

Differences On IRA Accounts

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — A victory for the public, said Llewellyn Jenkins, representing commercial bankers. "Arrogant and irresponsible," said William O'Connell, speaking for savings and loan associations.

Despite their differences, the two gentlemen say they are thinking of your interests, which of course is the way one builds support for his cause. But in this instance the rhetoric really does involve you.

A bit of background: The comments followed a decision to eliminate interest rate ceilings on individual retirement savings accounts opened after Nov. 30. Banks had sought a free market; S&Ls wanted limitations. The S&Ls are fuming. They say the Depository Institutions Regulatory Committee is biased toward banks that it imposed the mortgage needs of homebuyers, that the decision chops another leg from under the S&Ls, already in trouble because of high interest rates and bank competition.

Thriffs have a particular interest in home mortgage loans, such loans having made up the bulk of their business in years gone by.

Because the nation had a commitment to housing, and because thriffs were chartered to lend to homebuyers, regulators limited the interest they paid on small savings accounts. In turn, this allowed them to make home mortgage loans at correspondingly low interest rates.

Deregulation has been removing those protections. Now the S&Ls see themselves being pitched into an unfair battle for savings with the commercial banks, which generally are far bigger and more powerful.

Leonard Shane, vice chairman of the U.S. League and president of Mercury Savings & Loan Association, Huntington Beach, Calif., presented the case in an interview prior to the latest decision.

"During the past four or five years this country has not assumed its commitment to housing," he said. "It used to be a national priority, a socio-economic priority, but lately we've slipped into assuming it remains when it really doesn't. It has been eroded by neglect."

"There is no way we can have housing and a level economic playing field, that is, total deregulation in the credit markets. We didn't get to where we are in housing by competing with steels, cosmetics and the U.S. government. We had de facto credit regulation."

Housing was the beneficiary of regulation, which allowed S&Ls, which made most of the home mortgage loans, to pay one-quarter of one percent more than commercial banks on passbook savings. That differential is disappearing. Increasingly, thriffs must compete with others for money.

"They (deregulators) sincerely believe it is more important to deregulate for the sake of deregulation than it is to retain any form of regulation to obtain national goals," said Shane.

"I'm suggesting that housing is a unique issue, not just another credit use. They miss understanding the social issues, the impact on life styles, the uniqueness of it. ... Every other use of credit can pass the cost along as inflation or high prices or taxes or deficits. The homeowner cannot."

DISTURBING DOCTRINE

The Bible is a book of great comfort, but it is also true that the Bible can make us more uncomfortable than all the other books in the world put together.

We see purity reflected on the pages of the Word of God, and realize our own impurity. We observe the Biblical standards of honesty and are conscious of our own evasions. We hear the divine demand that we have faith, and realize that most of the time we have only fear and misgiving. We listen to the which comes to us out of the pages of the Bible, and we reflect upon our cowardice. The Bible is a disturbing book.

But the Bible also is a book of promises. The very word "testament" means promise. In spite of what we are, God's promise is gracious. The Bible makes perfectly plain in its "Old" promises and "New" promises that we have the power to change. "If we confess our sins, God is faithful and just to forgive our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness." — Ephesians 1:7

Former Tass Editor Joins Panel Peace Talks

By LEE CREEK
Associated Press Writer
DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Olga Cheketkina is not shy about correcting what she considers misconceptions about her native Soviet Union or about expressing her opinion on the world's more important issues.

Ms. Cheketkina, 72, is a former editor of the Soviet newspaper Pravda and is now Vice President of the Soviet Womens Committee, one of many women's groups world-wide devoted to peace.

Ms. Cheketkina was at North Carolina Central University Tuesday to participate in a panel discussion on peace and disarmament. She appeared as the guest of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, which along with the Soviet Womens Committee, attended a recent Bryn Mawr College Peace Conference.

"Your President Roosevelt said after World War II that we didn't have time to know each other during the war and then afterward there was the cold war," Ms. Cheketkina said. "The 1970s, that was time to know each other. From our point of view, that was the road to go, a time to come to military detente."

Ms. Cheketkina said there is still time for world peace, and how soon that peace is reached isn't solely up to the men.

"We believe if all women raise their voice, it would be heard," she said. "We support the idea of a moratorium — a time to talk."

As editor of Pravda, Ms. Cheketkina said she spoke up many times and did so freely.

"I never experienced any kind of pressure," she said. "There were cases when I was proposed to publish an article, but I didn't either because I didn't know the subject or had a different view. Sometimes because the timing wasn't right."

Her Pravda duties took her to many parts of the world and she made many friends with members of the American press.

"I had many American journalist friends I met in my work," Ms. Cheketkina said. "We had very good, friendly relations even though we had different ideological views."

Although she retired 10 years ago, Ms. Cheketkina stills writes on a free-lance basis. And she has her own opinion of American journalism.

"Some of your newspapers are more objective and some are not," she said. "The responsibility of the media is very high nowadays when there is such a tense situation in the world. We have to be very careful of the image we create of each other because people trust us."

Ms. Cheketkina also commented on the following topics:

Human rights: "Such rights are very important. Among them is the right to work. The U.S. talks about right to free speech, right to have equality. These things we have. But everyone must have the right to work."

Use of chemical warfare: "Yes, we will deny it. Again, it was the U.S. press. It was printed because your press is free to publish anything even if it is not true. It printed information provided by the U.S. government."

Soviet-China relations: "I am in favor of friendly relations with China. In 1950, the Chinese people were full of enthusiasm and wanted to reconstruct their country. In 1966, there was cultural revolution. Now, nobody knows what to expect from China."

Soviet social system: "Every country is in development. Some people abroad think we're coming back in the sense of social system. That is wrong. They say we have a new Constitution, but it is the old Constitution. The main ideas and main conceptions have been further developed."

New Book Clues One In On Smart Car Buys

By ELISSA MCCRARY
Associated Press Writer
CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Lou Glanzman thinks he has some advice that will save the average car buyer thousands of dollars.

Glanzman has packaged his car-buying guidelines into a book, called "Cars for Less Money." In the book, he tells how to buy a new or used car, how to finance the purchase, how to make warranties really work and how to put clout into car complaints.

Glanzman, who owns a carport and outdoor building business in Charlotte, says he has picked up the hundreds of tips he offers in the book through trial-and-error car buying.

He says in 1973, he needed a new car but didn't have the time to go car dealers. He sent out letters to several car dealers telling them what he wanted. He got back a list of cars, options and prices.

"The brainstorm not only shaved hours off car hunting, it uncovered fabulous bargains," he said. "I was frankly astonished at the $1,200 price spread between one dealer's price and another."

Seeing the big price differences led Glanzman to begin investigating other aspects of car sales such as warranties and financing. He spent hours in local libraries poring over consumer books and magazines and he read all of Ralph Nader's consumer-oriented material on automobile dealers. He also paid visits to several banks and loan institutions to find out about financing a car.

"I found that so much of what you are told when you go to buy a car is totally confusing," Glanzman said. "It really isn't simple to buy a car. For instance, I found out that with one model of car with 33 possible options, there are 8½ billion combinations. Just trying to decide on options is a huge task. Most buyers get so confused they let the dealer talk them into anything." Glanzman says his book contains several innovative tips for car buyers, including how to finance a car with no down payment. What he ac-

Awarded Damages Of $1.75 Million

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — In one of the largest malpractice verdicts in state history, a Cumberland County Superior Court jury awarded $1.75 million in damages Tuesday to a Fayetteville woman whose son died as a result of cleft palate surgery at Duke Medical Center.

The jury found that plastic surgeon Kenneth R. Pickrell and anesthesiologist John N. Miller contributed to the death of Larry Downs, 34, of Fayetteville.

Pickrell and Miller have 10 days to appeal the verdict.

Downs suffered brain death during the May 1977 surgery and remained in a coma until his death last June, said William L. Thorp of Raleigh, who filed the suit on behalf of Down's mother, Margaret Fields.

During a month of testimony, witnesses testified that Pickrell and Miller knew it would be dangerous to administer a paralyzing muscle relaxant to Downs during the operation at the Durham hospital, but did it anyway.

The witnesses said two nurse-anesthesiologists had objected to use of the drug, but that Pickrell and Miller used it while inserting a tube into Downs' throat after the surgery.

The drug temporarily prevented Downs from breathing and shut off the oxygen supply to his brain. But the damage resulted because the procedure took longer than normal, lawyers argued.

October N.C. Unemployment Rate Up

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Layoffs of 6,800 workers in manufacturing industries helped boost North Carolina's monthly unemployment rate to 5.6 percent in October, the first increase in four months. But a state Employment Security Commission official said the situation in North Carolina still is better than in most other states and said he expects it to stay that way.

"Our unemployment rate is considerably better than the national rate, and we anticipate staying significantly below national figures," said Floyd Outland, analyst in the ESC's Labor and Market Information Division.

Outland said the national jobless rate for October was 7.5 percent, up slightly from 7.3 percent in September.

The North Carolina rate jumped .2 percent over September's rate of 5.4 percent. But that was better than the 6.4 percent rate of October 1980.

According to Outland, small layoffs at a number of plants combined to reduce manufacturing employment by 0.8 percent, or 6,800 workers.

The drop in manufacturing employment was due to decreases in nondurable goods, such as rubber and plastic products, the ESC said. Jobs outside of manufacturing increased very slightly in October, due mainly to government workers returning to school jobs, the commission reported. The total civilian labor force in October statewide was 2,795,200 while 156,000 people were unemployed. Manufacturing industries employed 825,100 workers in October, including: 243,500 in textiles, down 2,000 from September and 2,500 from October 1980; 88,000 in apparel, down 600 from September and 400 from October 1980; and 25,800 in rubber and plastic products, down 2,200 from September and 1,800 from October 1980.

WEATHER FORECAST — Cold weather is expected until Thursday for most of the West and Plains. Mild weather is forecast for the Southeast. Rain is due in New Mexico and snow in the western and central Plains. Rain and snow are forecast for the Pacific Northwest coastal areas. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press
The low pressure that brought snow and rain to North Carolina on Tuesday was centered well east of Cape Hatteras this morning. The storm was expected to continue to move east today as high pressure centered over the Midwest builds along the eastern seaboard.

Although there were some breaks in the cloudiness in the west Tuesday afternoon, cloudiness and some light rain and drizzle continued in the east. Afternoon temperatures ranged in the mid-40s to mid-50s with the exception of the northern mountains... Where highs were in the 30s.

The rain and drizzle ended in the east early last night. Cloudiness decreased during the night with variable amounts of cloudiness prevailing during the predawn hours. Overnight temperatures dipped into the 30s for the most part.

Rainfall averaged less than half an inch Monday and Tuesday. The northern mountains received 3 to 7 inches of snow. Recreational weather outlook: Some cloudiness will linger across the mountains today. Otherwise, after some early cloudiness mostly sunny skies will be the rule. Afternoon temperatures will warm into the upper 40s to mid-50s. Fair skies will prevail tonight. Lows will be in the 30s.

The outlook for Thanksgiving day is for partly cloudy and breezy weather. Temperatures will be rather mild with highs in the upper 50s and 60s. A cold front moving into Kentucky and Tennessee late Thursday will bring a chance of showers to western North Carolina Thursday night and Friday.

On the coast, gale warnings are in effect along the Outer Banks, or from Cape Lookout north to the Virginia border. Small craft advisories are in effect south of Cape Lookout and on the sounds. The gale warning will most likely be changed to a small craft advisory for the afternoon. Coastal winds will diminish to 10 knots or less during tonight.

Solar Fraction

Greenville's solar fraction calculated by the Department of Physics of East Carolina University was 0 yesterday, which means that a solar water heater could have provided 0 percent of your hot water yesterday.

Suit Challenges Redistricting

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A second lawsuit challenging North Carolina's legislative redistricting plan was expected to be filed today in a state Superior Court, state Republican Party sources said.

Several party leaders who asked not to be identified said the suit would be filed in Iredell County Superior Court by several individual plaintiffs who would not claim any ties to the GOP.

But the suit has the full backing of the state Republican Party, as state GOP activists have done legal and technical groundwork for the suit. The state party's executive committee voted earlier this month to support legal efforts to achieve single-member districts for state House and Senate seats.

The lawsuit seeks to have the reapportionment plans that were approved by the General Assembly this year struck down. It seeks new plans that subdivide large counties and draw individual districts for each of the 120 House and 50 Senate seats. State Republican Chairman David Flaherty has said for several weeks that the party planned to challenge the redistricting plans in court, and last week said the party had left the suit with its lawyers. "It's now in the hands of legal counsel as to whatever action they choose to take," he said. "We may not be as a party involved in a suit, but we are going to be supportive of any effort anyone makes to bring government closer to the people."

The suit cites the U.S. Supreme Court's one-person one-vote mandate for equal population in districts and also charges that the plans approved this year dilute minority voting strength, a GOP official said. It also charges that the plans drawn up this year contain too large a variation in district populations.

All the plaintiffs of the suit are Republican and one of them is black, sources said.

Earlier this year the reapportionment plans were challenged in U.S. District Court in Raleigh by the NAACP Legal and Education Defense Fund, on grounds they violate the one-person one-vote rule and diluted black voting.

The General Assembly held a special session in October to reconsider its legislative redistricting plans after lawyers for the state Justice Department said the plans were likely to be struck down in court.

The legislature enacted a new House plan that has a greater population balance than the earlier one, but the Senate left its earlier plan unchanged.

The GOP decided to go into state court rather than federal court for several reasons, GOP leaders said. They said they hoped the state court would provide a speedier hearing for the case than the federal court, which is not expected to hold hearings until early next year.

In addition, Arthur Donaldson of Salisbury, chairman of the state Republican Attorneys Association, said last week that the party was considering filing suit in state court because it philosophically supports states' rights.

Turkey Glut Cuts Prices

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A glut of Thanksgiving turkeys has resulted in record low prices, good news to consumers but a holiday spoiler for turkey growers and producers.

"We can't afford another year like this," said Dennis Beasley, turkey production manager at Johnson Farms in Rose Hill, which raises 4 million turkeys a year.

"It means cheap prices for right now, but it's hurting all producers. What it's doing is causing them to cut back."

A total of 530 million pounds of frozen turkey were on hand Oct. 1 — 125 million pounds more than last year at the same time, officials said.

Taking inflation into account, growers are losing between $1 and $1.40 for each turkey they sell. The loss is heightened in North Carolina, which emerged this year as the nation's top turkey producer after increasing its annual production by 9 percent.

In order to avoid a repeat performance next year, experts say the state's turkey production probably will change very little. That will end several years of steady growth in production.

"There is no recourse but to cut production," said Lewis Walts, executive vice president of the National Turkey Federation in Reston, Va. "Obviously, when you've lost money, you're going to cut back on your production."

But Charles Brewer, turkey specialists with the N.C. State University Agricultural Extension Service, said the cutback in North Carolina probably would be slight.

"Our people are in business to stay, they have the facilities, and our processing plants are geared to run 52 weeks a year," he said.

Indictments Hit Crime Family

NEW YORK (AP) — The indictments of six men on conspiracy charges "deal a very serious blow" to the Bonanno crime family, says the New York FBI's assistant director, Lee F. Laster.

The alleged racketeering conspiracy involved three murders, gambling and drug peddling.

Charged with conspiracy by a federal grand jury in Manhattan on Tuesday were Dominick "Sonny Black" Napolitano, a reputed captain in the Bonanno family, and five alleged underlings: Benjamin "Lefty" Ruggiero, 55, John "Boobie" Cerasani, 43, Nicholas "Nicky" Santora, 39, Antonio "Boots" Tomasulo, 56, and James "Jimmy Legs" Episcopia, 43.

Five Injured In Series Of Accidents

Five people were injured and an estimated $7,300 property damage resulted from three traffic collisions investigated by Greenville Police yesterday.

Heaviest damage, officers said, resulted from a 7:34 p.m. collision on Tenth Street, 20 feet west of the Verdant Street intersection involving cars driven by Larry Dean Webb of Route 1, Wilson, and Wanda Clark Manning of Route 2, Robersonville.

Police, who reported both drivers and a passenger in the Webb car were injured, estimated damage at $800 to the Webb car and $3,500 to the Manning auto.

Ms. Manning was charged with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of the collision.

Cars driven by Craig Alan Poindexter of Winston-Salem, and Timothy Francis Loftin of Route 2, Ayden, collided about 3:54 p.m. at the intersection of Fifth and Pitt Streets, causing an estimated $1,000 damage to the Poindexter car and $900 damage to the Loftin car.

Investigators, who said Poindexter and a passenger in his car were injured, charged Loftin with failing to stop for a stop light.

A 6:49 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Myrtle Avenue and Skinner Street involved cars driven by William Earl House of 403 West Village Dr. and Louis Artist Smith of 603 Roosevelt Ave.

Damage from the mishap was estimated at $600 to the House car and $500 to the Smith auto.

Carl Whitfield Has Retired

Carl E. Whitfield, field representative for the Governor's Highway Safety Program for the past 12 years, has retired with 33 years service with the state. He was a member of the North Carolina Highway Patrol for 21 years before joining the GHS program.

A Greenville native, Whitfield joined the Highway Patrol in 1942 and served most of his tour of duty in the Eastern part of the state. He was an instructor at the Highway Patrol's basic school for several years and was commandant of the school for one session.

Upon his retirement, Whitfield was honored at a banquet held by officials of the N.C. Department of Transportation and the N.C. Department of Motor Vehicles.

He was presented a plaque for 33 years service by Col. Edwin C. Guy, coordinator of the GHSP, and a certificate of service from Motor Vehicles Commissioner Elbert L. Peters.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government is spending an estimated $25,000 per year to detain each of the approximately 3,200 Cubans and Haitians being held at federal facilities until their immigration status is resolved, according to Reagan administration sources.

The total cost of detaining the refugees from the time President Reagan took office until January 1983 is estimated at $150 million, the sources said Tuesday.

"It would be cheaper to give each of these people $50,000 and send them back," said an Immigration and Naturalization Service official who asked not to be identified.

Included in the two-year bill are the costs of opening and operating two temporary detention centers and the planned construction of another facility the administration hopes will be permanent.

The administration is hoping the permanent facility, with a construction cost of about $30 million, will be ready in 18 months.

Justice Department spokesman Art Brill said the most likely site now appears to be McAlester, Okla., although other sites, including Fort Allen in Puerto Rico, remain options. Further use or expansion of Fort Allen would require a new agreement with the government of the U.S. territory.

The plans for a permanent facility may have been set back even further this week, however, when Congress eliminated the funds for it in the scramble to pare the federal budget. Officials said the administration may ask for a supplemental appropriation later this year.

Political pressure on Reagan over the refugee situation, the sources said, led to hasty decisions to use stopgap facilities that cost more than they should have.

When the administration took office, Reagan promised Arkansas Gov. Frank White, a fellow Republican, that he would close down the detention center set up by the Carter administration at Fort Chaffee after the 1980 boat lift from Cuban that brought more than 125,000 refugees to the United States.

Most of the Cubans then remaining at the Arkansas facility were those afflicted with mental problems.

But almost immediately Florida — which bore the brunt of the Cuban influx — put the administration under more political pressure. Adding to the state's refugee problem was a new influx of Haitians fleeing their impoverished Caribbean homeland.

The Haitians were being crowded into an overloaded INS detention center west of Miami that quickly became plagued by sanitation problems. So the administration promised Florida officials to relieve that situation, too.

The answer, administration officials decided, was to build a permanent national facility for up to 5,000 refugees and illegal aliens. But that ran into strong local opposition whenever news leaked out that a particular federal facility was under consideration as the site. No site yet has been chosen.

The first stopgap measure was Puerto Rico's Fort Allen. Local opposition there forced the administration to compromise with Puerto Rican officials. They signed an agreement that allows the fort to be used for no more than a year to house no more than 800 Haitians.

Meanwhile, the administration was still looking for both a permanent site and a place to send the Fort Chaffee Cubans the president had promised to move.

The second stopgap measure, announced last month, was to renovate and reopen a section of Fort Drum in upstate New York, for no more than 18 months at an estimated cost of $58 million for construction and operation. Fort Drum has buildings that can provide the expensive, hospital-type care need by the remaining Cubans.

But, according to Justice Department spokesman Brill, it is not suitable for the permanent national site because it is on a military base, it has a severe climate and the buildings are old and wooden.

Nonetheless, the stopgap was necessary, Brill said, to hold the 500 Cubans from Fort Chaffee and the 2,700 Haitians who are now scattered among Fort Allen, the Miami facility and 15 other sites around the country, mostly federal prisons.

Served As Consultant

ECU News Bureau
Lorraine Graff of the East Carolina University physical education faculty recently served as consultant to an innovative elementary school in Louisiana as part of a national program to integrate the arts within the classroom.

Through a three-day, in-service training program for teachers, involving children at Polk Elementary School, Fort Polk, La., Miss Graff used creative dance movement as an approach to language arts education.

Also during her visit, she met with representatives of the local news media, Vernon Parish school officials and members of the Fort Polk commanding general's staff.

The in-service training was sponsored by the National Humanities Faculty's Program for the development of humanities disciplines within the schools.

Miss Graff was the third of four artist-educators scheduled for on-site consultancies at Polk Elementary, one of 14 affiliates of the NHF program.

ATTENDED SEMINAR
Dr. Steven I. Cohen, a chiropractor in Winterville, attended a seminar in Greensboro on correcting difficult neck and back injuries.

Research also was presented on whiplash injuries and the severity of spinal injury after even low-speed car collisions. The North Carolina Chiropractic Association sponsored the seminar.

forewarning national security adviser Richard V. Allen about a news story on a secret investigation into his handling of $1,000 from Japanese journalists, administration sources say.

The disclosure came after Senate Democrats, breaking their silence on the case, said Smith has violated the law by not appointing a special prosecutor to review Allen's conduct.

In a letter circulated Tuesday, 18 senators said handling of the Allen matter, including "possible improper contacts between the White House and the FBI and the Justice Department," indicates why a special prosecutor is necessary.

By law, Smith has 90 days from the start of the preliminary investigation, or until mid-December, to decide whether a special prosecutor is warranted.

The Allen inquiry began in mid-September but was not made public until a Tokyo newspaper reported Nov. 13 that a high White House official, later identified as Allen, was being investigated on bribery charges.

Administration sources said Tuesday night that Smith, aware that the story would be printed, approved FBI Director William H. Webster's suggestion that Allen be alerted.

Smith acted out of courtesy, the sources said.

because the special prosecutor law provides that preliminary investigations not be made public until completed.

Some government officials also questioned whether Webster showed good judgment in telling Allen in the same telephone call that the Japanese authorities had corroborated his story that he had received only $1,000, not $10,000, the sources said.

Both Justice and FBI spokesmen refused to discuss the matter.

Under administration policy, all contact between the White House and the Justice Department on pending investigations is to be channeled through White House counsel Fred Fielding and either Smith or Deputy Attorney General Edward Schmults. The rules, however, do not forbid them from authorizing contacts by other officials.

The Senate Democrats said Smith already has gone beyond the preliminary investigation required for determining whether to appoint an independent prosecutor.

Smith was quoted over the weekend as promising an "extensive investigation" by the Justice Department, but the Democrats said that "would be a clear and flagrant violation of the special prosecutor law."

They said that receiving cash payments in the White House for whatever reason raises serious questions, that the administration has handled the case badly and that a prolonged preliminary probe "is positively harmful to Mr. Allen," serving only to cloud his status that much longer.

The Democrats, led by Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton of Missouri, said the Justice Department's only job is to determine whether allegations are too frivolous for appointing a special prosecutor.

"We urge you to recognize that the Justice Department's handling of this matter will not erase the cloud over Mr. Allen and the White House," the letter said.

The Democrats said they have refrained from commenting until now to give Smith time to complete his preliminary investigation.

Deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes, with vacationing President Reagan in California, said the purpose of Smith's review is to determine whether a special prosecutor should be appointed and "I would assume at the appropriate time he will make that determination."

Allen has said he intercepted a $1,000 payment from a Japanese magazine after helping arrange an interview with first lady Nancy Reagan. He said he planned to find out how to handle the payment, intended as an honorarium for Mrs. Reagan, but put it in a safe and forgot about it for eight months.

The writer whose interview with Mrs. Reagan triggered the controversy, meanwhile, is quoted in a newly published account of the episode as saying she is positive the amount was $1,000 and that she was told it would go to charity.

Fuyuko Kamisaka, in the latest issue of the Japanese weekly Shukan Asahi, said that on Oct. 31 two officers from the Tokyo police department "asked me if the sum paid to Allen was $10,000, like in a double envelope."

"I laughed ... because a well-established magazine like Shufu-no-tomo (Housewife's Friend, for which she interviewed Mrs. Reagan) will never behave in that manner."

Ms. Kamisaka also said that Allen promised her the $1,000 would be given to charity because "since he had now officially assumed a post in the White House he could not personally receive the money." She said Allen told her he would send a receipt, but that a receipt never was delivered.

"The circumstances surrounding the $1,000 payment could be as innocuous as Mr. Allen describes," the Democrats' letter said. "However, receiving cash payments in the White House — for any reason — raises serious questions which must be resolved completely."

They said "it is certainly possible to envision circumstances" in which the $1,000 could have been a bribe or a violation of a law against supplementing federal officials' salaries.

The Democrats said White House and Justice Department handling of the Allen matter has demonstrated why Congress enacted the law to have allegations against administration officials investigated by an independent special prosecutor.

HOSPITALIZED — Rose Kennedy, 91, matriarch of the family that produced a president and two U.S. senators, suffering from severe chest pains, was admitted to a West Palm Beach, Fla. hospital Tuesday. She was reported to be in stable condition and resting comfortably. (AP Laserphoto)

Chilling Day

A lot more cold than rain descended on Pitt County Tuesday as high temperatures in the low 40's coupled with chilly rain to produce a frosty day.

Only .2 inch of precipitation fell yesterday, bringing the total rainfall measured by Greenville Utilities since July 1 to 17.27 inches, compared to the 17.3 inch figure for the same period of 1980.

Rainfall for the year stands at 34.05 inches, according to Greenville Utilities, considerably less precipitation than the area normally receives in a year.

Low temperatures Tuesday hovered around the freezing mark at 34 degrees Fahrenheit with the high temperature for the day reaching 42 degrees. The low dipped to 23 degrees on Monday and highs crept to 50 degrees. At 8 a.m. today, the GUC water plant recorded a cool 36 degrees.

Rainfall records kept by Greenville Utilities indicated that the last six months of 1980 and the first six months of 1981 were dry ones. From July, 1979 through June, 1980, 53 inches of rain fell, an amount considered normal for the area. In comparison, from July, 1980 through June, 1981, only 38 inches of rain were measured.

Site Is Opened

WINTERVILLE — The Pitt County solid waste container site for the Winterville area opened today.

The site is located off of Secondary Road 1131, behind the Town of Winterville cemetery.

Assistant county manager Don Davenport said construction of the site, which cost about $30,000, began November 1, and containers were placed at the site this morning.

Jubilee Set

Votes Of Record In Congress

Roll Call Report Service
WASHINGTON — Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes Nov. 12-18.

HOUSE

Spending — By a vote of 189 for and 201 against, the House rejected an administration-backed proposal to cut a $440 billion stopgap appropriations bill by five percent. This was the Democrat's first major fiscal victory on the House floor this year. Republicans argued $440 billion was $10.4 billion above the economy goal sought by the president in his second round of FY 1982 budget-cutting. The vote occurred during debate on a measure (HJ Res 357) to fund the government this year until regular 1982 appropriations bills are enacted.

Supporter Robert Michel, R-Ill., said "the president is providing the nation with a consistent economic policy ... Congress has not offered the American people anything like it for the past 20 years."

Opponent Thomas O'Neill, D-Mass., said the House should reject the cut "and force this administration to face the facts. The economics of Reagan is not working. It is time to come up with a new plan."

Members voting "nay" opposed a 5 percent cut in the FY 1982 stopgap appropriations bill.

Reps. Eugene Johnston, R-6, James Martin, R-9, James Broyhill, R-10, and William Hendon, R-11, voted "yea."

Reps. Walter Jones, D-1, L.H. Fountain, D-2, Charles Whitley, D-3, Ike Andrews, D-4, and Stephen Neal, D-5, voted "nay."

Reps. Charles Rose, D-7, and W.C. Hefner, D-8, did not vote.

Cuts — On a 199-199 tie vote, the House defeated an attempt to require House-Senate conferees to cut more money from the FY 1982 appropriations bill for the Interior Department and other agencies. Supporters said the $7.5 billion measure was $1 billion too expensive. The House then adopted the conference report on HR 4035 and sent it to the White House where a veto loomed.

Supporter Dan Lungren, R-Calif., said, "We do not have the money to pay our bills right now. We do not have (money) to pay our bills next year. We do not have the money to pay our bills the year after that."

Opponent Sidney Yates, D-Ill., said he regarded Budget Director David Stockman's projections to be "unrealistic," and he added: "As our good friend Dave Stockman said yesterday, 'None of us understands what's going on with all these numbers.'"

Members voting "yea" wanted further cuts in the appropriations bill.

Johnston, Martin, Broyhill and Hendon voted "yea."

Jones, Fountain, Whitley, Andrews, Rose and Hefner voted "nay."

Neal did not vote.

B-1 — The House rejected, 142 for and 263 against, an amendment to delete $1.9 billion for the B-1 bomber from the FY 1982 defense appropriations bill (HR 4995). The administration wants the B-1 built to replace the B-52 as the nation's premier missile-equipped bomber. Although the administration says 100 B-1s would cost about $20 billion, critics say the cost could be $30 billion or higher. The bill was sent to the Senate.

Rep. Ronald Dellums, D-Calif., a supporter of killing B-1 funding, said the choice to build the B-1 "is expensive, unnecessary, wasteful, and it is a political decision rather than a military decision."

Opponent of the amendment Samuel Stratton, D-NY, said "it will cost as much money to keep the B-52 going into the early 1990s as it will to build the 100 B-1 bombers, about $20 billion."

Members voting "yea" opposed plans to build the B-1.

Fountain, Whitley, Andrews, Neal, Rose, Hefner, Martin, Broyhill and Hendon voted "nay."

Jones and Johnston did not vote.

SENATE

Prayer — The Senate voted, 51 for and 34 against, in favor of returning voluntary prayer to the public schools. The vote affirmed language in a FY 1982 appropriations bill (HR 4169) that prevents Justice Department action to uphold the 1962 Supreme Court decision that school prayer violates the separation of church and state.

Supporter Strom Thurmond, R-SC, said, "I cannot be convinced that the framers of the U.S. Constitution meant to ban religion from public schools and eliminate voluntary prayer."

Opponent Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., said: "There has to be a final arbiter of the Constitution of the U.S. I do not want that to be the political winds and the philosophical winds that blow on the Senate floor ..."

Senators voting "yea" wanted to block Justice Department suits upholding the Supreme Court ban on school prayers.

Sens. John East, R, and Jesse Helms, R, voted "yea."

De. Koop — The Senate confirmed, 68 for and 24 against, the nomination of Dr. C. Edward Koop of Philadelphia to be surgeon general of the U.S. At issue were the 64-year-old surgeon's conservative views on abortion and population control, and his lack of experience in public health.

Supporter Arlen Specter, R-Pa., said "the abortion issue is not relevant to the issue of Dr. Koop's confirmation. The duties of the surgeon general ... do not affect the administration of the laws relating to that subject."

Opponent Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, said: "The law explicitly provides that the surgeon general must have 'training or significant experience in public health.' And regrettably, Dr. Koop has no experience — none whatsoever — in the public health field."

Senators voting "yea" wanted Koop to become surgeon general.

East and Helms voted "yea."

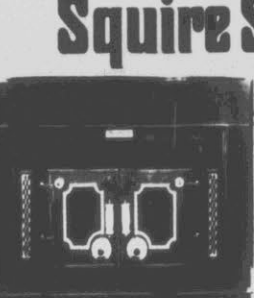

Legal Services — By a vote of 21 for and 61 against, the Senate rejected an amendment to put the Legal Services Corp. out of business by killing its $241 million appropriation for FY 1982. The quasigovernment agency provides legal aid to the poor. The vote occurred during debate on HR 4169, an appropriations bill later passed and sent to conference with the House.

Sponsor Jeremiah Denton, R-Ala., said the Legal Services Corp. "has immersed itself in social activism ... has no real accountability imposed upon itself."

Opponent Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., said the agency "has insured that millions of people who would be denied access to the legal process have an opportunity to present their concerns ... to the courts of this country ..."

Senators voting "yes" wanted to terminate the Legal Services Corp. Helms voted "yea." East did not vote.

Found Jumping Is Good For Patients

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — People afflicted with asthma, bronchitis and emphysema are rebounding here and jumping for joy about a novel treatment for their diseases.

Lansing General Hospital has patients jumping up and down on what it calls "rebounders" — a piece of plastic 40 inches across and 19 inches off the ground. The effect is similar to jumping on a trampoline.

"Unlike stationary bikes or treadmills, rebounding conditions the body for activities of daily living" and uses every bit of muscle and tissue, said Dr. John Morelock, who helps run the program.

"Some patients can pedal a stationary bike for seven miles but can't walk a block," he said.

Bouncing also exercises the skin and is considered safe, protecting the spine and joints from damage associated with jogging and more rigorous sports, he said.

Rehabilitation instructor Phoebe Dotterer put the program together nine months ago and it reduced the length and frequency of hospital stays for a trial group of 12 patients.

"They used to be in every two or three months," Morelock said. "Now, it's about once every nine months and they're out in days instead of weeks."

Although it is not a cure, the exercise can keep lung diseases from getting worse, Ms. Dotterer said.

Morelock got the idea on a visit to his parents last year when he discovered "a lady in their neighborhood was doing it ... I started thinking about the physiology behind it and thought it might help some of my patients."

REVIVAL

BETHEL — Revival will be held here at the Bethel Church of God tonight through Sunday. The speaker will be the Rev. Kenneth Lytle. The public is invited, according to the Rev. Ernest Bateman, pastor.

Fingers Adds Honors: Is AL's MVP

NEW YORK (AP) — Milwaukee Brewers reliever Rollie Fingers, who earlier this month won the Cy Young Award as the American League's best pitcher, added the league's Most Valuable Player honors today.

Fingers, 35, became the first relief pitcher — and the first pitcher since Oakland's Vida Blue in 1971 — to sweep both honors.

His margin over A's outfielder Rickey Henderson was just four points, one of the closest races ever in the voting by the Professional Baseball Writers of America.

Fingers collected 15 first-place votes, nine for second, two for third, one for fourth and one for sixth, giving him 312 points. Henderson collected 12 first-place votes, 13 for second, two for third and one for fourth for 308 points.

Fingers and Henderson were the only players named on all 28 ballots.

Baltimore first baseman

Eddie Murray was third with 144 points, followed by Boston outfielder Dwight Evans and Oakland outfielder Tony Armas.

Ironically, it was the one first-place vote given to Armas that might have cost his teammate, Henderson, the MVP honors.

Fingers was 6-3 with a 1.04 earned run average and 28 saves in 47 appearances for the Brewers, who won the second-half title in the American League East. In his 78 innings, he struck out 61 and walked only 13.

"I feel this was my best season ever," Fingers said after he won the Cy Young. "Very few guys get a chance to have a year like I had."

"I gave up 10 runs all year and every one of them was earned."

Fingers came to the Brewers from San Diego by way of St. Louis last winter. He was dealt to the Cardinals at the winter meetings, then went to Milwaukee, which never had a solid reliever, two days later.

Fingers is used to winning. He was the A's bullpen ace in each of their World Championship seasons, 1972-74. He was the World Series MVP in

Chris McLawhorn

1974 against Los Angeles, winning one game and saving two with a 1.93 ERA.

Following the 1976 season, Fingers signed with San Diego as a free agent. He spent four seasons as a Padre, setting National League records with 35 saves in 1977 and 37 saves the next year. He also holds two World Series marks: relief appearances, 16, and career saves, 6. He was named National League Fireman of the Year in 1977, '78 and '80.

"Awards at the end of the season are fine," said Fingers, "but it's playoff wins and the World Series that really matter. We were shooting for a World Series and I sure would have liked to have gotten there."

"I guess it just wasn't to be, but we'll do it next year. We just missed it this time," he added, referring to Milwaukee defeat by the New York Yankees in five games in the divisional playoffs. "I just want to get into another World Series."

Oakland's Henderson came a bit closer to the Series, with his A's losing to the Yankees in the AL Championship playoffs.

The classy left fielder who stole 100 bases in 1980 hit .319 with 56 steals in 1981. He had 135 hits and scored 89 runs.

Murray, who had a sensational second half of the season, wound up tied for the AL lead in homers with 22 and was tops in runs batted in with 78, while hitting .304.

Evans hit .296 for the Red Sox, with 22 homers and 71 RBI. Armas also had 22 homers and knocked in 76 runs, hitting .261.

AL batting champion Carney Lansford of Boston placed sixth.

McLawhorn Is Selected For Shrine Bowl Game

From Staff and Wire Reports
Rose High School's Chris McLawhorn, an Associated Press All-State selection at receiver, has been selected to the North Carolina Shrine Bowl team.

McLawhorn, who caught 28 passes for 605 yards and seven touchdowns this past season was the outstanding player on this year's Rampant team which posted an 8-3 record, losing in the first round of the state 4-A playoffs.

"I feel great about the selection," McLawhorn said. "It's quite an honor and I look forward to playing and giving 100 per cent."

Oddly enough, McLawhorn was not picked as an end on the team, but as a kick return specialist. As a punt returner for the Rampants, he was also a star, returning one punt for a touchdown and having another, of 95 yards called back because of an illegal block behind the play.

"Even though they picked me as a return specialist, I feel that I can impress the coaches as an end," McLawhorn said.

He reports on December 5 for the first practices.

High school football players from North Carolina and South Carolina competing in the 45th Shrine Bowl will have new uniforms for the first time since 1970, said Dave Harris, the game's athletic director.

Shrine Bowl officials displayed the outfits at a press conference to announce rosters for the 1981 games, scheduled for Dec. 12 at Charlotte's Memorial Stadium.

The Sandpiper squad will wear red and white, the Tar Heel squad green and yellow. The game uniforms are reused from year to year, but players are permitted to keep special practice jerseys which include the players' names on the back.

Proceeds from the game — which amounted to more than $1 million last year — benefit the Shriners Hospital for Crippled Children in Greenville, S.C.

The players were selected by the game's coaches. Head coaches are Statesville's C.A. Frye for North Carolina and Clinton's Keith Richardson for South Carolina. But the coaches conducted extensive surveying of their counterparts in both states.

Here are the rosters for the 45th high school football Shrine Bowl:

North Carolina

Quarterbacks — Richard Moore (Burlington Williams), Eric Streeter (Sylvia-Webster).

Backs — Ray Williams (Fayetteville Ross), Dwight Richardson (Fayetteville Sanford), Steve Griffin (South Mecklenburg), Tony Baker (High Point Andrews), Michael Ramsey (South Rowan), Vic Wilkins (Statesville), Dino Hackett (Southern Guilford), Ken Grantham (Pikeville Aycock), Anthony Flack (Greensboro Smith), Marvin Young (Hickory).

Centers — Paul Kiser (East Burke), Murray Youmans (Eastern Guilford).

Tackles — Marty Regan (Robbinsville), Ron Singleton (Pisgah), Mark Mullinax (Kannapolis Brown), Chuck Sanford (Enka), Bill Viggers (East Burke), William Stevenson (Statesville).

Ends — Tim Morrison (Fayetteville Sanford), Shelton Boyer (West Charlotte), Jim Riggs (Scotland), Raymond Phillips (North Mecklenburg).

Linebackers — Henry Walls (Central Davidson), Rondo Boney (Wilmington New Hanover), Kelvin Crooms (South Mecklenburg), Donald Beard (Burlington Williams).

Kicker — Lee Giamis (Wilson Fike).

Specialist — CHRIS MCLAWHORN (GREENVILLE ROSE).

SOUTH CAROLINA

Quarterbacks — Todd Hall (Richland Northeast), Terry Mack (Winnabow), Eric Poole (Spartanburg).

Backs — Arthur Jenkins (Strom Thurmond), David Barnett (Berkeley), Thomas Denny (Simpsonville Hillcrest), Bobby Clair (Hartsville), David Goshorn (Summerville), Jeffrey Collier (Spartanburg Dorman), Anthony Johnson (Seneca), Grady Owens (Greenville Hampton), John Coates (Irmo).

Centers — Wes Arrowood (Spartanburg Broome), William Boroff (Simpsonville Hillcrest), Denny Moore (Greenwood).

Guards — James Gattling (Myrtle Beach), April Pou (Columbia Kenan), Gene Reeder (Woodruff), Hector Ballard (Darlington Mayo), Darryl Suber (Clinton), Randy Keitt (Orangeburg-Wilkinson).

Wilson: Football Must Get Plenty Of Support

By WOODY PEELE

Reflector Sports Editor

It takes full support from the community and supports for a college athletic program to be successful these days, Duke Football Coach Red Wilson told the Greenville Sports Club yesterday.

Wilson, who has just guided the Duke team to its first winning season in his three-year tenure, said that Duke, especially, has to have a lot of financial support to survive in the athletic world.

"We have an academic tradition at Duke, and we have to continue that," Wilson pointed out. "And we cater to a student body that is about 88 per cent from outside North Carolina. So we don't have a lot of alumni from North Carolina."

"And our scholarship situation is different too. Right now a scholarship at Duke costs about $9,600 a year, so you can understand that big bucks are important to us. That's the reason we have to schedule teams like Ohio State and Tennessee. We have to get the big guarantee. Now that might put us in a losing situation to start with, but if we manage to beat some of these people it's a feather in our hats."

Wilson said that football is "big business." "We bused to South Carolina this year, but we saved $11,000 over what it would have cost us to fly. We bused to Maryland too, and saved a lot of money. The cost of athletics is steadily rising and people have to understand this and rally behind the program."

The Duke coach said that there are probably not over 30-40 teams in the country that will make money this year in the football program. "But what's so bad about that?" he asked.

"Have you ever seen an English class that made money, or a library? I'm not putting that part of the university system down, but you get people to support a school because of its athletic program, not its English program. Who ever reads about schools like Chicago University or New York University, or Fordham. Their athletic programs have disappeared and you just don't hear about them anymore. The athletic program gives the supporters and the community something to rally around. So if it doesn't make money, that's no reason to abandon it."

Wilson praised the CFA (Collegiate Football Association) as at least trying to do something for the sport. "They're doing something for the larger schools, like East Carolina and the ACC schools by trying to get them television money support. Without that support, I don't believe college athletics can last. I don't think the pros would last with the television money. This is the one salvation of our schools."

Wilson also cut down negative press articles as not helping athletic programs. "Take Dick Bestwick at Virginia. He's one of the best coaches around, but everyone is crying for his job. I don't believe there is a better coach in the ACC."

Who are they (Virginia) going to get that's any better?"

Wilson, in referring to his team's turnaround this year, said he could see it coming in spring drills. "We had a new attitude. When I took over the program was not in a very good situation. The team was divided in about every way it could have been. We had to reunite the team and had to get them to believe in themselves."

Wilson noted that three of the five teams which beat Duke this year are in the Top 20 and are to play in bowl games: North Carolina, Clemson and Ohio State.

Asked about the future possibility of dates with East Carolina, Wilson said that there are no games on the schedule at this time, referring to the fact that Duke was scheduled up for the next eight or so years.

"I would like to see the day when we could play to a sellout crowd, and I do think that East Carolina will come back on our schedule," he said.

The next meeting of the Sports Club will be held on December 8, with East Carolina basketball coach Dave Odom as the speaker.

Bryant Goes For Record On Saturday

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

EDITOR'S NOTE — Herschel Nissenson, the AP college football editor, has followed Paul "Bear" Bryant and his Alabama team for nine years. In a two-part series, the Bear talks about his background and others talk about the kind of teacher, coach and man he is. The second part appears on Page 16.

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) — The growl, the mumble and the drawl are trademarks. Like the houndstooth hat atop his head, they're part of his image, part of the mask he uses to keep you on guard.

Bear Bryant has been on a special stage this year. This year writers have wanted to talk to him about his pursuit of Amos Alonzo Stagg's record of 314 coaching victories.

But Bryant deflects talk of Stagg and the record. He does it by talking about his childhood days, his early career, the next game, anything but the record he is soon to break.

Bryant tied Stagg's record when Alabama beat Penn State 31-16 on Nov. 14. He could break it against Auburn in Birmingham Saturday. And now that record-breaking time is just around the corner, Bryant is even less inclined to talk about it than he was back in September, as he started his 37th year as a head coach and 24th at Alabama.

"I want to talk about Fordyce, Ark.," he said firmly. There was no argument. When the 68-year-old Bryant wants to reminisce — about his boyhood in the Arkansas bottomland, about football, about his coaching career, about anything — there are few things more pleasurable than listening.

"Fordyce is one of the greatest towns in the world. The greatest football players I ever saw lived there — the Jordan twins. They were the greatest leaders, but I didn't know it. I didn't know what leadership was then. I followed them around like a little puppy. I did everything they told me. ...

"It was seven miles by foot from Moro Bottom, where I lived, to Fordyce. I walked it many a time. There was a one-room schoolhouse in Moro Bottom with a stage and a big pot-bellied stove. If you walked through the fields and the woods it was about a mile and a half."

Bryant's father, a farmer, became ill and the Bear — he didn't have the legendary nickname yet — and his mother sold vegetables from a mule-drawn wagon.

"The thing I used to dislike so much — and I wouldn't take anything for it now — was living out on that farm. My mother had more class than anybody I know, and I wouldn't have known that if I'd lived in some city, running here, running there."

Paul William Bryant became "Bear" Bryant at the age of 12 when he wrestled a bear in a carnival to make a dollar or two. The bear's owner skipped town without paying him.

It wasn't often you could try to make a buck by wrestling a bear, and there wasn't much else to do in Fordyce. Like most strapping young men — Bryant stands in the neighborhood of 6-foot-4 — he eventually turned to football. A cobbler put cleats on his only pair of street shoes, turning them into football boots.

In those days, a prospective "student-athlete" didn't take trips all over the country visiting campuses. The first and last Alabama recruiter to visit Bryant was Hank Crisp, a famed assistant coach.

"Coach Hank came by and said, 'Let's go, boy.'" That was how the Bear wound up at Alabama.

After his playing days, Bryant served as an Alabama assistant under Coach Frank Thomas from 1936-39. Then he went to Vanderbilt for two years. After three years in the Navy, he got his first head coaching job at Maryland in 1945. Then it was on to Kentucky from 1947-53 and Texas A&M from 1954-57 before Alabama summoned him "home" in 1958.

Bryant is self-conscious about his background and his education. But he knows what he is doing every minute.

"I'm certainly not an educated man, but I got a pretty good street education. I'm not smart, not bright, but you can't live as long as I have without learning something. I used to be embarrassed when people started talking about education, but I think I'm a pretty good teacher."

Ayden-Grifton's Guards Have Done Job In Charger Victories

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer

Ayden-Grifton head coach Dixon Sauls does not mince words when discussing offensive guards Chuck Smithwick and Donovan Arnold.

"We feel like that they are as good a pair of all-around guards as there is on a high school football team," Sauls said. "Both are capable blockers and they are extremely dedicated."

"They set an example daily with their work habits, both in practice and in ball games. Put that together with their intelligence and experience and that makes for an excellent combination."

Sauls will be counting heavily on that combination come Friday night when the Chargers play host to undefeated and top-ranked Burlington Williams in the semifinals of the Division I 3-A State High School Playoffs.

Ayden-Grifton comes into the game having won seven straight, including playoff wins over White Oak (8-0) and Warren County (14-6). The Chargers, who were felt to have no more than an even shot at winning their two previous playoff games, will be a decided underdog against the Bulldogs.

Burlington Williams, which won the 3-A title last season and has been ranked No. 1 in the state by the AP all season, comes into the game having won 31 straight games, including a 22-10 win over Ragsdale and a 28-7 victory over Clinton in the first two rounds of the playoffs.

"I don't know that much about them yet," Arnold said in a phone interview. "But they have got a 31-game winning streak and they've got to be pretty good."

Both Chargers, however, said the team will not be awed when they take the field Friday for the 8 p.m. contest. "We know they're gonna be strong and bigger than us, but that's nothing new," Smithwick said. "Everybody we've played this year has been."

Despite being outmanned — both in size and number — Sauls has molded his Chargers into an aggressive assault group on defense and a controlled ground squad on offense.

In both cases, Smithwick and Donovan are at the hub.

Donovan Arnold

Chuck Smithwick

Arnold, a 5-8, 185-pound senior, and Smithwick, a 5-11, 178-pound junior, team with tackles Matthew McCotter (5-10, 194 senior) and Kevin Craft (6-1, 190 junior) and center Derrick Atkinson (5-9, 162 junior) to form the nucleus of the A-G offense.

On defense, Smithwick and Doug Coley (6-0, 152 sophomore) are at the ends, Arnold (the defensive signal caller) and McCotter at the tackles and Craft and Gregory Jackson (6-1, 190 senior) at the guards.

There have been problems because of a lack of depth. For one, it is hard for Sauls to talk with his players on the sidelines during a game because the ones he most needs to talk with are always on the field.

Still, the lack of depth has also not been all bad. It has helped to bring the team together — the key to the Chargers' 1981 season, according to both Smithwick and Arnold.

"We're closer on this team than any team I've ever been on," said Arnold, a three-year starter at Ayden-Grifton. "There's no jealousy and there's not a bunch of people fussing with each other."

"Coach Sauls told us before the season that we had a chance to go somewhere if we played together and we have," added Smithwick who, like Smithwick said the Chargers knew what kind of team they had after their opening game against Roanoke. Ayden-Grifton had six turnovers and lost to the Redskins, 20-14.

"I feel like that game showed us we could come from behind and afterwards Coach Sauls said he really thought we could do something this season," Smithwick said.

Arnold, on the other hand, believes the key point in the season came four weeks ago against Southern Nash. The Firebirds jumped out to a 13-7 lead before the Chargers roared back for a 27-13 victory.

"It was a gradual change (in learning how to win)," Arnold said. "But I think when we came back against Southern Nash we really knew that we had a good team and had a chance to win (the conference title)."

Now, nearly a month after that win, the Chargers are one game away from the state championship game.

"I think we all wanted it real bad before the season began and now we're here," Arnold said. "This is great. It's the greatest thing that's ever happened. This is what we've all wanted."

Smithwick agreed. "This was our goal. I think the players thought we could do it," he said. "It was just a matter of going out and doing it."

"We're gonna play hard. We're not gonna take Burlington Williams lightly. They're a strong team. But I really feel we can beat 'em if we play our kind of game."

Carraway's Buzzer Shot Allows Jaguars To Nip Warriors 53-51

FARMVILLE — Farmville Central's Bobby Carraway came off the bench less than a minute into the game and turned out to be the hero when he tossed in a buzzer shot in overtime to give the Jaguars a 53-51 victory over Eastern Wayne last night. It was the opening game of the year for the Jaguars.

Earlier, the Eastern Wayne girls had downed the Lady Jaguars, 47-33.

Carraway entered the game only about 30 seconds into the contest when starting point guard Tony Barnes injured an ankle. And it wasn't long before he began his heroics.

Eastern Wayne inched out into an 8-6 lead after one period of play, then extended that to a 24-18 margin at the half. Farmville chopped away at it in the third period, trimming it back to 41-36.

Then in the final frame, the Jaguars fought back to tie it up on a Carraway layup inside the final minute. Carraway then had two free throws with no time left on the clock but missed both, sending the game into overtime.

In the extra period, Eastern Wayne controlled the ball and held for one shot. After suffering a turnover, the Warriors fouled Farmville, but the free throw was again missed and Eastern got it back. A traveling call late in the period gave Farmville one more chance, and Carraway hit as the horn sounded, giving the Jags the victory.

Andrew Edwards led the Farmville scoring with 18 points, while Carraway and Melvin Sutton each had 10. Eastern Wayne was led by Tony Davis with 13 and Frankie Simmons with 12.

In the girls' game, Eastern took advantage of Farmville's inexperience to roll up an 18-4 margin in the first quarter. After that, Farmville was able to stay even, as the two teams matched points the rest of the way.

Conley Rolls To Opening Win

HOLLYWOOD — D.H. Conley's Keith Gatlin paved the way with 24 points as the Vikings opened the 1981-82 basketball season last night with a 48-38 victory over Washington High School.

In the girls' contest, Conley also came away with a victory, taking a 69-31 rout.

Conley and Washington were both slow starting with the Vikes inching out into a 6-4 lead after the first eight minutes.

But the Vikings took command after that, outscoring the Pam Pack, 20-15 in the second period for a 26-19 halftime lead. Conley again outthit Washington, 12-9, in the third period, and the two matched points in the final frame.

In addition to Gatlin's 24, Sammy Tyson added 12 points, hitting each of his six field goal attempts. He also led the Vikes in rebounding with seven and blocked five shots. Conley hit 53 per cent of its field goal tries.

Washington's effort was led by William Guilford with 15.

In the girls' game, Washington was able to inch ahead, 12-11 in the first quarter, but Conley came back with a 16-6 blitz in the second frame for a 35-18 halftime lead. The Valkyries outthit the Lady Pack, 16-10 in the third frame and 18-3 in the last to wrap up the victory.

Karen Barrett led Conley with 17 points, while Helena Barnhill had 14 and Irish Barnhill had 12. Washington was led by Kim Guilford with 18 points.

Conley returns to action tonight, visiting Rose High School.

Roanoke In Second Win

ROBERSONVILLE — Roanoke High School won its second straight game in as many night Tuesday, topping North Pitt, 48-38.

The Roanoke girls also came away with their second straight, beating North Pitt, 40-26.

In the girls' contest, Roanoke inched out into a 9-6 lead after one period. The pace continued slow through the second quarter, as Roanoke boosted its lead to 16-9. In the third quarter, it picked up somewhat, and the Squaws boosted their lead to 29-12. Roanoke outthit North Pitt, 11-9, in the final quarter to sew up the victory.

Sylvia Parker led Roanoke with 19 points, while Evelyn Martin added 10. Linda Harrell paced North Pitt with 13.

Roanoke's boys managed to squeeze out into an 11-8 lead after one period of their game. Then, in the second period, the Redskins upped that to a 29-18 margin by intermission. North Pitt was able to cut two points off that lead in the third period, but still trailed 37-28, as the final period began. In that, Roanoke held off North Pitt, 11-10, to take the win.

Mike Wilson led the Redskins with 15 points, while Vince Parker had 10 for the Panthers.

Roanoke opens its Northeastern Conference schedule against Roanoke Rapids on Tuesday, while North Pitt is host to Williamson tonight.

Landry Says Dallas Can

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas coach Tom Landry says the Cowboys can recapture the National Football Conference East title from Philadelphia, but he tempers that comment with caution and with praise for the Cowboys' next opponent, Chicago.

"We're in the stretch run now," he said at his weekly press conference Tuesday. "We'd like to play steady, consistently good the last four weeks to prepare for the playoffs."

"But you can't think that far ahead. We've got a short week and Chicago can be tough."

The Bears, who come to Dallas for a Thanksgiving Day game Thursday, have upset San Diego and Minnesota this season. Chicago is 3-9 in the NFC Central.

The Cowboys bounced back with a 24-10 win over Washington after losing to Detroit on a last-second field goal. That win, combined with a Philadelphia loss to New York, puts the NFC East title at Dallas' fingertips.

Things Haven't Changed For Dallas

By The Associated Press
Things haven't changed all that much for the Dallas Mavericks.

Last season, their first in the National Basketball Association, the Mavericks had losing streaks of 12 and 15 games.

The Mavericks current losing streak has reached serious proportions ... they are seriously challenging last season's marks of ineptitude. The Los Angeles Lakers 125-110 victory in Dallas was their eighth straight Tuesday night, but the loss was the 11th straight for Dallas.

While the Mavs continue to have all sorts of problems, the Lakers are red-hot. Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 25 points in just 26 minutes and Jamaal Wilkes added 19 points in 21 minutes as seven Lakers were in double figures.

In other games, the Indiana Pacers beat the New York Knicks 127-112; the Washington Bullets defeated the Golden State Warriors 107-88; the Atlanta Hawks nipped the Cleveland Cavaliers 94-92 in overtime; the Milwaukee Bucks beat the Detroit Pistons 103-95; the New Jersey Nets stopped the Houston Rockets 102-84 and the Chicago Bulls beat the San Diego Clippers 109-102.

Pacers 127, Knicks 112
Johnny Davis, recently re-inserted into the starting lineup, scored 34 points and Louis Orr had a career-high 23, including seven in the final 1:35 after the struggling Knicks cut an 11-point deficit to three. New York, losers of five of six, was led by Maurice Lucas with 22 points and 20 rebounds.

Bucks 103, Pistons 95
Bob Lanier scored 14 of his season-high 24 points in the second half while Quinn Buckner added 24 and Sidney Moncrief 23. Detroit was led by John Long with 21 points. Piston rookie Isiah Thomas, who had been scoring 21.8 points a game, was held to 17 points.

Bullets 107, Bulls 88
Former Warrior John Lucas scored 24 points and had 10 assists and rookie Jeff Ruland had 23 points to lead Washington. Obtained from the Warriors in October, Lucas enjoyed his best scoring night of the season.

Hawks 94, Cavaliers 92
John Drew, Eddie Johnson and Dan Roundfield scored as the Hawks, on a four-game winning streak, outscored the Cavs 6-4 in overtime. Cleveland lost a chance to win in regulation when $700,000-a-year center James Edwards missed a five-foot jumper with one second left. Rory Sparrow led Atlanta with 18 points and Mike Mitchell had 17 for the Cavaliers.

Nets 102, Rockets 84
Otis Birdsong scored 21 points to help the Nets break a three-game losing streak with their first road victory of the season. New Jersey had lost 11 straight on the road dating back to March. The Nets opened up a nine-point lead in the second quarter and stayed in control despite Moses Malone's 24 points.

Yugoslavia Downs Duke

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Center Predrag Bogoslavjevic scored 32 points Tuesday night to lead Red Star of Yugoslavia to a 96-89 exhibition basketball victory over Duke.

Bogoslavjevic hit 12 of 16 shots from the floor and 8 of 9 from the free throw line for his 32 points, 19 of which came in the second half. Teammate Stevan Karabzic added 23 points on 11 of 19 shooting.

Yugoslavia, which held a 42-33 halftime advantage, held off a late Duke challenge to record its third victory in nine games on its current U.S. tour. The team has also beaten Notre Dame and Illinois-Edwardsville, but lost to N.C. State.

Duke still trailed 72-63 with 6:04 remaining when its tight man-to-man defense began forcing turnovers and helped cut into its deficit. Duke got within 2 at 85-83 when Vince Taylor knocked in two free throws with 1:29 remaining.

But Yugoslavia threw in the next 6 points to rebuild an 8-point advantage and coasted to victory.

Taylor, Duke's lone senior, led the Blue Devils with 20 points. Junior guards Chip Engelland and Tom Emma had 19 and 12 points, respectively, and combined for 10 assists. Freshman Todd Anderson added 12 points on 4 of 4 shooting from the floor and 4 of 5 from the line.

Bear Grass Girls Seek Improvement In 1981-82

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
BEAR GRASS — With four starters back from last year's team, things may be looking up for the Bear Grass High School Lady Bears.

But after a ninth-place finish in the 11-member Tobacco Belt Conference race last year, just how far up may be the question.

Coach Joanie Vandiford has plenty of experience in the four returning players, but the rest generally lack experience. Those four are the only letter winners back.

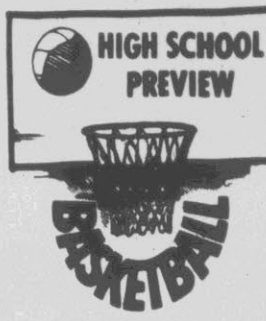

The four include 5-6 junior forward Angie Mizelle, who carried the scoring load most of the time last year; 5-1 junior guard Mary Rawls, 5-1 senior guard Sharon Cratt, and 5-5 junior forward Cindy Harrison. They hope to improve on last year's overall 6-20 mark.

"I think we'll be better," Vandiford said. "We have more height than we've had in a long time with one freshman and a senior."

Those two include 5-10½ freshman Mary Rodgers and 5-8 senior Casanthra Andrews. The two are both slated to see a lot of action in the center position.

There are six others on the team, all underclassmen. They are 5-3 sophomore Lynn Whitehurst, 5-6 sophomore Robin Knox, 5-7 freshman Amy Lilley, 5-3 freshman Laurie Cowen, 5-7 freshman Lisa Taylor and 4-9 freshman Sharon Land.

"As you can see, we have a young team, with just two seniors," Vandiford said.

situation is like," she said.

Vandiford picks Belhaven to dominate this year's Tobacco Belt play, with Bath and Matamoras both having strong teams also. This year, too, the conference is missing two members from last year. Manteo moved up to the 2-A ranks, while Pantego merged with Belhaven.

"I hope we'll be up near the top, getting into the top four will give us a good shot at making the district tournament."

"The key is going to be how our rebounding and outside shooting come around. I think we can do better in these areas, and also in our free throw shooting."

One thing that does bother Vandiford is the late start the Lady Bears get on the season. The team doesn't open until next Tuesday and goes straight into the conference race.

"We just weren't able to get any non-conference games except with Cape Hatteras," she said. "That's going to hurt us. Our first game is with Jamesville, and they'll have played something like three games by then."

Chargers Glad Winslow Found His Way Back

SAN DIEGO (AP) — In high school, Kellen Winslow preferred chess to football, a sport he quit after three days "because I didn't think it was leading me anywhere."

Fortunately for the San Diego Chargers, he found his way back.

Winslow, who passed up football until his senior year in high school, tied the all-time National Football League record with five touchdown catches in San Diego's 55-21 rout of Oakland last Sunday.

But more importantly, says Winslow, the overdue explosion re-ignited the struggling Chargers.

"That game is going to do a lot for this club," said the fleet 6-foot-5 tight end who often operates as a wide receiver when the Chargers deploy three wide receivers.

"Because we've got a lot of new people in the lineup, we've had a tough time forming a personality. This could help form that personality. It's got to give our defense confidence," added Winslow, who also tied Lance Alworth's single-game club reception mark of 13 against the Raiders.

With the effort, Winslow vaulted into the AFC lead with 68 receptions, two behind NFL leader Ted Brown of Minnesota. A year ago, Winslow led the NFL with 89 catches, breaking Mike Ditka's all-time total for tight ends.

By averaging eight receptions in the remaining four games, Winslow could become only the third player to catch 100 passes in a season. Houston's Charley Hennigan had 101 in 1964 and Denver's Lionel Taylor caught 100 in 1961.

"The only statistic that matters now is our record," said Winslow, the Chargers' No. 1 draft pick out of Missouri two years ago.

The Chargers, 7-5, could regain a share of AFC West lead with a victory over Denver, 8-4, Sunday at San Diego Stadium.

Ironically, the Chargers' slide started two months ago when they were routed 42-24 at Denver. Starting the season as odds-on Super Bowl favorites, San Diego went 3-0 before dropping five of its last nine games.

Asked to characterize the season, Winslow replied, "General Hospital ... a soap opera."

Losing all-pro wide receiver John Jefferson was a devastating loss psychologically, Winslow said. Jefferson was dealt to Green Bay after a bitter contract dispute.

"I'm speaking for myself now, but that took a lot of heart out of me. It's been a season of distractions for the whole club," he said.

But, on the positive side, "I'm a firm believer that once something good happens, it triggers something else. I think we've got our share of bad luck out of our system."

Chiefs, Lions In Key Matchup

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — It's only November on the National Football League calendar, but it's already playoff time as far as the Detroit Lions and Kansas City Chiefs are concerned.

Both clubs feel they need a victory in Thursday's nationally televised game in the Silverdome.

The Chiefs, 8-4, are tied with Denver for first in the AFC West and bidding for their first playoff berth since 1971.

"Every week is important now," Chiefs Coach Marv Levy said. "You can't let down in this league."

The Lions, who have not been in the playoffs since 1970, trail Minnesota in the NFC Central with a 6-6 record, but feel they still have a chance to qualify as a wild card.

"This is the important time to play well," Detroit Coach Monte Clark said. "This is when you have to have it for the final drive. We've got an opportunity for ourselves. There's no cushion or margin for error."

Bryant: Motivation Is The Difference

Second in a Series
An AP Sports Analysis
By HERSHEL NISSENSEN
AP Sports Writer
(Editor's Note: Part I of this two-part series appears on Page 14.)

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) — Coaches motivate in different ways. Lee Corso at Indiana, Mr. Motivation himself, does it with exuberance. Knute

Rockne did it at Notre Dame many years ago with memorable locker room talks.

Bear Bryant says motivating people is "the ingredient that separates winners from losers." He once did it through fear. The awe and respect for Bryant is still visible in the faces of his players and associates, past and present, but the fear for the most part has disappeared.

"Once you've been associated with Coach Bryant, you want him to approve of everything you do," says Tom Harper, an assistant coach at Clemson who played for Bryant at Kentucky. "If you change jobs, you want him to approve. If you buy a house or a car, you want him to approve. If you get married, you want him to approve of your wife. I'm 49 years old and that ain't right, but that's the way it is."

Harper, once the head coach at Wake Forest, is one of 44 of Bryant's former players and assistants who have gone on to become head coaches in the college and professional ranks.

They include the head men of the teams currently ranked No. 1 and 2 in the nation, Jackie Sherrill of Pitt and Danny Ford of Clemson. Bryant and Alabama are ranked fourth; Howard Schnellenberger, a former aide, has the Miami Hurricanes rated No. 9.

To a man, Bear's Boys tell you that his greatness extends far beyond the football field.

"He's great because you don't know how many people he's ever hurt and you know how many he's helped," says Ford. "Outside of football, he helps you prepare for life. He helps you if you need any help."

Larry Lacewell needed help. Lacewell's father played football with Bryant at Fordyce, Ark., High School. In 1959 he was fresh out of college and job-hunting. Bryant was there. He made Lacewell a graduate assistant on his Alabama staff, then got him his first fulltime coaching job at Arkansas State a year later.

Lacewell needed help again three years ago when personal problems forced him to leave one of the sport's most prestigious coaching jobs, defensive coordinator at the University of Oklahoma. Again Bryant was there.

"There was no reason in the world for him to help me," Lacewell says. "He didn't have to. Nobody from Fordyce made him. But he has the ability to worry about other people."

Curci Fired

Kentucky football coach Fran Curci was fired Tuesday by the university's athletic board. Curci was coach at Kentucky for nine seasons, the longest tenure in school history and finished with a record of 47-52-1. (AP Laserphoto)

Kentucky Fires Curci; Hunts For A Successor

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — The University of Kentucky should find a new football coach "as soon as possible, but we don't feel rushed by any means," says Athletic Director Cliff Hagan.

High school players cannot be signed to grants-in-aid before Feb. 18 and Kentucky's assistant football coaches will be expected to recruit despite the firing of Fran Curci as head coach, Hagan said Tuesday.

He made the statement after the UK Athletics Board voted 15-1 to buy up the three remaining years of Curci's contract.

Curci was unavailable for comment and said last Saturday he was imposing a "communications blackout" until today.

Curci will continue to draw his $46,725 salary until Dec. 31, 1984. His assistants "will be retained as employees until March 31 and we certainly expect them to perform their recruiting duties until that time," Hagan said.

University officials are "anxious to get on about our business" of finding a coach, "but we feel like we've done the proper thing by waiting until after the season, which is what we said we'd do," Hagan said. "We haven't talked to a single coach. No one has talked to a coach on our behalf."

Hagan said Curci's firing after four straight losing seasons was "in the best interests of the university and its football program, but former Gov. Albert B. 'Happy' Chandler said it set the football program back "at least five years."

Chandler, who cast the only vote against the motion to fire Curci, said he would be "sorry for the fellow that comes in" to replace him.

"I wouldn't undertake it (the job)," Chandler said. "I used to be a football coach, but this job I wouldn't take."

If Curci's prospective replacement asked his advice, "I'd say to try to go someplace else," Chandler said. "This (university) established itself in times past as the graveyard of coaches and they just made another demonstration of it today."

Ironically, Curci's nine-year tenure was the longest in UK football history, but Chandler recited a list of former Wildcat coaches and assistants who gained success in the National Football League after being fired here. They included Blanton Collier, Don Shula and Chuck Knox.

"It's attitude," Chandler said. "None of these so-called experts here, these professors on this (athletics board), they didn't help this man (Curci). They didn't go to practice. They didn't help him recruit. They didn't help him at all."

Curci's final Kentucky club posted a 3-8 record. His nine-year mark was 47-51-2, including the last four seasons on the losing side of the ledger.

New Name For Race

MARTINSVILLE, Va. (AP) — The 27th annual Virginia 500 Winston Cup Grand National stock car race at Martinsville Speedway next spring will have a new name — the Virginia National 500.

In a joint announcement Tuesday, a bank official and Martinsville Speedway President H. Clay Earles said Virginia National Bank would sponsor the 500-lap, 262.5-mile race next April 25.

Earles and Franklin P. Earles, senior vice president in charge of Virginia National Bank's Henry County office, said the race will be the richest of its distance in NASCAR history.

"We recognize the fact that auto racing is the premier part of the sport. At the same time, our bank's commitment to the auto industry in Virginia makes this association both logical and important to us," Earles said.

Earles, who opened the speedway in 1947, said "we can think of no better way to begin our 35th year of racing than with Virginia National Bank as the sponsor of our first Winston Cup event of the season."

Although financial details of the sponsorship were not announced, Earles said the posted awards for the race would be the largest for any race in the history of the .525-mile track.

Sampson Garner's Top Honors In Balloting

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Virginia's Ralph Sampson, who stands head and shoulders above most Atlantic Coast Conference players on the court, did the same in voting for pre-season honors by sports writers and sportscasters.

Sampson was chosen on 91 of 117 ballots cast at last week's Operation Basketball. The only other players to receive votes were North Carolina's Sam Perkins and James Worthy. Perkins was chosen on 14 ballots and Worthy 12.

Duke's Vince Taylor and North Carolina State's Sidney Lowe rounded out the pre-season top five. Sampson averaged 17.7 points and 11.5 rebounds in 33 games a year ago while leading the Cavaliers to a third-place finish in the National Collegiate Athletic Association tournament.

Sampson was named ACC Player of the Year for 1981, and was a consensus All-America selection and National Player of the Year.

If Sampson matches last year's performance, he would become the first ACC player to win back-to-back league Player of the Year honors since North Carolina State's David Thompson did it three straight years beginning in 1973.

North Carolina freshman Michael Jordan was chosen as the favorite for Rookie of the Year honors. Jordan, a 6-5 forward, averaged 27.8 points and 12.2 rebounds for Wilmington, N.C., Laney as a senior. He was chosen on 63 ballots.

Maryland's Adrian Branch was runnerup in the rookie voting with 26 votes while Clemson's Joe Ward was third with nine. Eleven other first-year players received votes.

Landmark Smoker Study:

Merit Takes Taste Honors.

Former higher tar smokers acclaim MERIT “Best-tasting low tar I’ve tried.”

The most rigorous MERIT research to date has just been completed.

Result: MERIT smokers confirm taste a major factor in completing their successful switch from higher tar cigarettes.

MERIT Taste Sparks Switch.

Nationwide survey reveals over 90% of MERIT smokers are glad they switched from higher tar cigarettes. In fact, 94% don’t even miss their former brands.

Further Evidence: 9 out of 10 former higher tar smokers report MERIT an easy switch, that they didn’t give up taste in switching, and that MERIT is the best-tasting low tar they’ve ever tried.

MERIT Beats Toughest Competitors.

In the second part of this study, new tests confirm that MERIT delivers a winning combination of taste and low tar when compared with higher tar leaders.

Confirmed: The overwhelming majority of smokers reported MERIT taste equal to—or better than—leading higher tar brands.

Confirmed: When tar levels were revealed, 2 out of 3 chose the MERIT combination of low tar and good taste.

Year after year, in study after study, MERIT remains unbeaten. The proven taste alternative to higher tar smoking—is MERIT.

Blood Tests Can Control Cretinism Retardation

By DANIEL Q. HANEY
Associated Press Writer

BOSTON (AP) — A drop of blood from the heel can show whether a newborn baby suffers from a retardation-causing disease known as cretinism, and the illness can be largely prevented if doctors act on the blood-test results, a study says.

"It certainly can be controlled," Dr. Robert Klein of Dartmouth Medical School said of the affliction, which causes deformity as well as retardation. "Whether it will be depends on how conscientiously humans use these tests."

Blood tests for the disease have become widespread in the past five years for newborns in the United States.

The new study says the tests give doctors enough warning to start drug therapy before the children become irreversibly damaged.

For four years, Klein watched the progress of 63 youngsters whose disease was spotted early by the New England Regional Hypothyroidism Screening Program. Klein, who coordinated the study, published the findings in the Nov. 14 issue of the British medical journal Lancet.

Cretinism, or hypothyroidism, is an inherited disease that occurs when a child's thyroid glands do not produce enough of a hormone called thyroxine. It strikes one in every 4,000 children.

The 63 youngsters' disorders were spotted within three weeks of their births, and they were given daily oral doses of thyroxine. By age 3 or 4, their IQs averaged 106, which is normal. Without the treatment, Klein said their IQs would have been about 80.

However, he said the medical treatment does not prevent retardation in children who are born with obvious signs of cretinism, such as thick lips and a protruding tongue. These youngsters account for about 4 percent of all victims of the disease.

The New England program was started in 1976 and was among the first in the country to screen children for cretinism. Since then it has identified 167 infants who risk retardation.

Klein spoke Monday at a news conference at the Massachusetts State Laboratory Institute, where the New England tests are performed.

Among the 63 babies who were part of the screening study was Devon Cooney of Westfield, now an alert 3½ year old. The boy chattered happily throughout the news conference.

"Granted I watched him like a hawk," said his mother, Suzanne. "I kept asking, 'Is he doing everything normally?' I can't see anything unusual. He roller skates and rides a bike."

Besides retardation and physical deformities, children with cretinism suffer coordination problems and have difficulty understanding mathematics. Klein said it is too soon to say whether early diagnosis and treatment will prevent these more subtle effects of the disease.

Virtually all children born in hospitals have the test. Doctors take a drop of blood from the child's heel and send it to a lab for analysis.

Klein urged women who have babies at home to take their children to doctors within a few days to have the test performed.

The New England program has provided screening for 800,000 newborns in Massachusetts, Maine, New Hampshire, Rhode Island and Connecticut.

Thanksgiving Today Unlike Pilgrims'

By STEVE WILSON
Associated Press Writer
PLYMOUTH, Mass. (AP) — The Pilgrims and Indians who celebrated the first Thanksgiving 360 years ago might be shocked to see how the holiday is celebrated in modern America.

For one thing, the original event likely took place in October — not November. And the main dish was probably venison, not turkey.

"The Pilgrims would have been horrified to hear it called Thanksgiving," said

Jim Baker, research librarian for Plimoth Plantation, an exhibit depicting Pilgrim life in the 1600s.

"A Thanksgiving was one of three allowable church holidays in the calendar, a very specifically defined event. It was a declared holiday to go to church all day. It was like a sabbath, with no games or recreation.

"The whole thing (today) would have struck them as kind of odd," Baker said. "First you can't have a harvest in New England in late November. Second, it's a secular event."

Laurence Pizer, director of the Pilgrim Society here, says the first celebration apparently took place in mid-October of 1621.

When 102 weary passengers of the British ship Mayflower landed in Plymouth — originally spelled Plimoth — on Dec. 21, 1620, they didn't realize how tough it would be to establish the first successful colony in the New World.

Half of them died during the first terrible winter, but in the spring they met Squanto, the last surviving member of the Patuxet Indian tribe, which had been wiped out by a plague. They learned to plant corn, catch herring for fertilizer and tap maple trees for sap.

The colony thrived during the first summer. Grateful for a plentiful harvest, Gov. William Bradford called for a celebration.

"Our harvest being gotten in, our governor sent four men on fowling, that so we might after a special manner, rejoice together after we had gathered the fruits of our labors," Edward Winslow, assistant governor for the colony, wrote to a friend in England.

He said the 50 Pilgrims invited the Wampanoag Indians to join them, and Chief Massasoit brought 90 Braves and five deer with him. The festival lasted until the food ran out — at least three days.

Besides venison, they feasted on turkey, cod, sea bass, wild fowl, pumpkin, squash, Jerusalem artichoke, beach plums, beans and corn.

Despite the success of the first festival, the Pilgrims and Indians were not back for a harvest bash the next year.

"The next year they had a flop, a bad harvest," Baker said. "The Fortune, the second ship, arrived next year without adequate provisions. People had to be a lot more careful for a couple of years."

An argument can be made that the first Thanksgiving observance in America was held in Virginia, where 39 English settlers arrived at Berkeley Plantation on the James River on Dec. 4, 1619. But their celebration was entirely religious and did not involve feasting.

The Thanksgiving custom spread from Plymouth to other New England colonies, but for many years there was no regular national Thanksgiving Day in the United States. President Lincoln proclaimed the last Thursday in November 1863 as a Thanksgiving day.

Plymouth will be the site of Thanksgiving observances Thursday, but the modern-day Pilgrims and Indians will not be celebrating together.

Townfolk and visitors will gather at Plymouth Rock for a re-enactment of the Pilgrims' procession to worship, then attend an ecumenical service and a public turkey dinner at Memorial Hall.

But the Wampanoag tribe, which for many years considered Thanksgiving a day of mourning, will for the second year in a row observe a "Day of Awakening," said John Peters, head of the Massachusetts Commission on Indian Affairs.

The Indians will gather on a hill across from Plymouth Rock under a statue of Massasoit for speeches, prayers, native songs and dances.

TOT IS BENEFICIARY — Researcher Dr. Robert Klein, right, with Devon Cooney, as he discusses a blood test to diagnose cretinism. Devon was diagnosed as a victim, but medication has increased his IQ. (AP Laserphoto)

Proffer View Of USDA Program

Persons interested in the U.S. Department of Agriculture's proposed soil and water conservation program may examine the plan at the SCS and ASCS offices in the Federal Building, Greenville. Comments are encouraged.

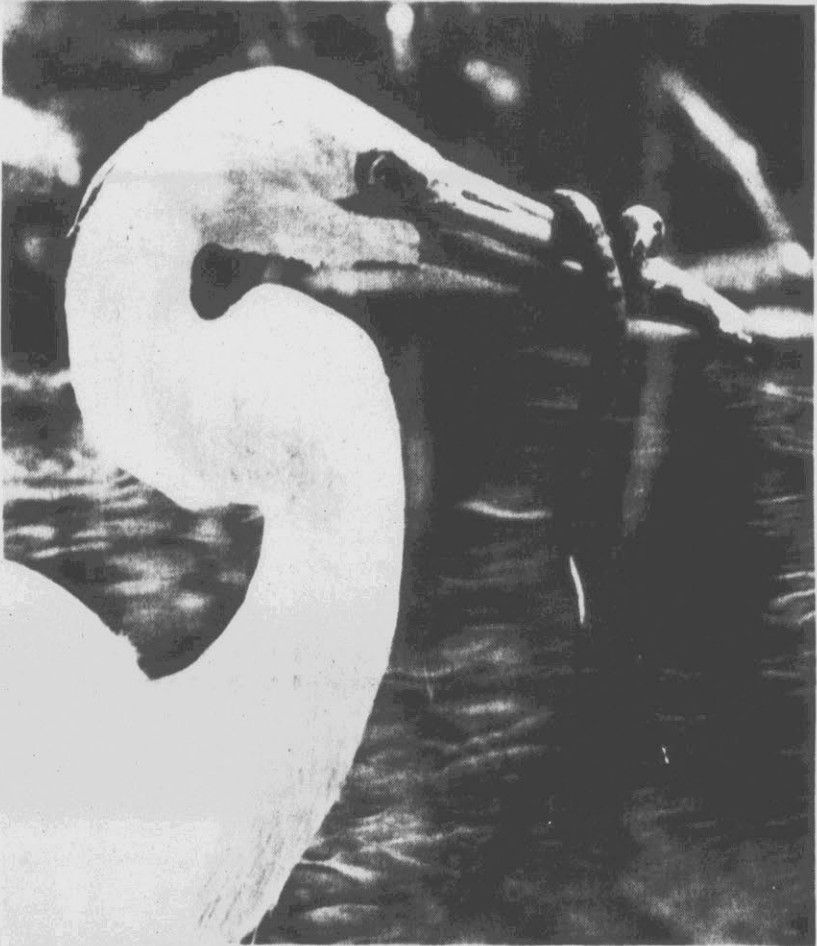

Responses will be accepted through Jan. 15, 1982, and may be mailed to the State Conservationist, Soil Conservation Service, (SCS), P.O. Box 27307, Raleigh, N.C. 27611.

The proposed program would concentrate more USDA assistance in areas where soil erosion and other problems threaten to reduce agricultural capacity and to increase agricultural production costs, according to Coy A. Garrett, state SCS conservationist. Basic USDA technical and financial assistance would continue in all areas.

The program would use local and state conservation coordinating boards to identify critical problem areas, set priorities and develop programs for local and state action to solve problems. These boards would be based on existing organizations — conservation district boards, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation committees, extension advisory boards and other groups.

Based on the recommendation from these local and state boards and national priorities, more USDA assistance would be aimed at reducing the most serious soil erosion and related problems.

ALL WRAPPED UP FOR LUNCH — This White Heron pauses in his attempt to eat a water snake in the Everglades National Park near Homestead, Fla. The reason for the pause might be apparent in that his meal isn't quite ready to be eaten yet as he curls around the large wading bird's beak. Herons can be seen almost statue-like as they creep through water looking for their prey — which includes fish, frogs, lizards, and almost anything else that swims or crawls and is small enough for its long beak to grab or spear. (AP Laserphoto)

Allot Endowment To ECU Journal

ECU News Bureau

"Teaching English in the Two-Year College," an academic journal published by East Carolina University, has received a 10-year endowment for the purpose of offering an annual "Best Article of the Year" award.

The first award has been presented to Michael E. Adelstein, professor of English at the University of Kentucky, for his article, "Reader Take All: The Theory and Practice of Teaching Composition," which appeared in the spring issue.

A jury of nationally recognized scholars selected the article for its excellence in content, form, style and contribution to scholarship.

FUND-RAISING

Bethel Elementary School has recently completed a series of fund-raising activities sponsored by the parent-teacher organization. The funds will assist the school in underwriting instructional, equipment and athletic expenses.

The award carries with it $250 plus a certificate of recognition, both provided by the award's initiator, Dr. Nell Ann Pickett, professor of English at Hinds Junior College, Raymond, Miss.

"Teaching English in the Two-Year College," edited by Bertie Fearing of East Carolina University and John Hutchens of Pitt Community College, is published by the ECU Department of English.

Artist Working In Bethel School

Photographer Ann Ehringhaus will work at Bethel School until Christmas under the "artist in schools program" sponsored by the North Carolina Arts Council and Pitt County Schools. This program places a professional artist in a school to work with students and teachers.

Ms. Ehringhaus has previously worked at A.G. Cox, Farmville Middle School, Wellcome Jr. High and Ayden Middle School.

CRYPTOQUIP 11-25
NACC-PFDEFY MALKBFKNLDE MAJBQ
YFLY JP CLQB MALKBFK

Yesterday's Cryptoquip — CORNY MEDICINE MAN REAL-LY MADE MONEY.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: N equals B

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, NOV. 26, 1981

YOUR DAILY Horoscope from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day and evening when you need to be direct in showing your appreciation for the blessings which are yours and which this day is designated to observe. Express your thanks.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) While happily observing this day, try to think of how you can improve the quality of your life in the future.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) A good day to show gratitude to those who have been kind and loyal in the past. Make this a great day of Thanksgiving.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Make plans that could give you greater success in the future. A situation arises where you can be of real service to others.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Be sure to handle early morning chores before engaging in holiday activities. Enjoy a Thanksgiving dinner.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Allow for delays when making plans for this day. Don't stay away from home too long (you need to rest for bigger things ahead).

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Attend to duties that have to be done early in the day and then later you can enjoy the holiday. Express happiness.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Make arrangements that can make this a most enjoyable day. Show that you are grateful for your blessings.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Fine day to contact friends and engage in holiday celebration. Think about having a greater income in the future.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Attend to routine duties early and then enjoy the holiday to the fullest. Be with friends who are congenial.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Make this a most enjoyable day and show others that you are appreciative. Strive for increased happiness.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) A grand day to be not only with family ties but to enjoy friends as well and have a delightful time together.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) A time when you can express your thanks to others. Be alert to new contacts with whom you want an alliance in the future.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will quickly comprehend a difficult problem, be it in personal or business life. Direct the education along lines of business for best results. Because of a great desire to succeed much money can be made early in life.
- "The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

See Reversal On Former Depot

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress, which decided to turn Washington's Union Station into a National Visitors Center in 1968, may reverse that action and make the 74-year-old depot a railroad station once again. A bill passed by the Senate Monday would provide $1 million for a study, $40 million for a parking garage and ramps and $29 million for restoration of the 765-foot-long Beaux Arts-style depot, which has been closed since February because of a leaky roof. The measure was sent to the House following a voice vote. The center was designed to serve as a tourist gateway to Washington.

Good Pope John

"Why must the resources of human ingenuity be turned more and more to the preparation of arms — pernicious instruments of death and destruction — instead of improving the welfare of all classes, particularly the poorer classes?" With these words, Pope John XXIII began his brief five-year tenure as Pope in 1958. Although nearly 80 years old, he invigorated the entire Catholic Church with his energy. Less a Supreme Pontiff than parish priest to the world, he visited sick, poor, and hungry around the world, and convened the Vatican II — a landmark in ecumenical history. Today, on the 100th anniversary of his birth, people around the world will remember one of the most beloved leaders of our age.

DO YOU KNOW — Which Pope's reign lasted only 34 days?

TUESDAY'S ANSWER — The Soviet Union is the world's leading petroleum producer.

Correction

A list of cases disposed of during the August 20 term of District Court in Pitt County, published in the September 17 edition of "The Daily Reflector," incorrectly identified Lillian Joyce Tyson of Bell Arthur as having been convicted of driving under the influence.

Actually, the charge should have read "no operators license," which was dismissed.

The Reflector regrets the error.
