

U.S. Nuclear Negotiator Now In Geneva

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — Veteran U.S. Arms negotiator Paul H. Nitze, vowing to be "reasonable and tough," arrived in Geneva today for talks with the Soviet Union on limiting nuclear arsenals in Europe.

"The present state of anxiety and the imperatives of establishing peace give the United States and the Soviet Union every reason to be sincere in their efforts to reach agreement on the reduction of nuclear weapons," Nitze said in a brief arrival statement.

"I feel that there are prospects for reaching a fair, equitable and verifiable agreement which could be the blueprint for a new era of East-West relations."

The two sides are to sit down Monday for the opening round of deliberations that are widely expected to last for months. Nitze, 74, who has the rank of ambassador, heads the U.S. delegation to the talks on theater nuclear forces, the weaponry trained on targets in Europe.

The negotiations will be the first on nuclear arms for the Reagan administration.

Nitze's Soviet counterpart, Yuli Kvitsinsky, a 45-year-old diplomat, is due here Saturday.

Nitze, who has earned a reputation as a hardliner in years as an arms-control negotiator, is expected lead off for the U.S. side with a formal presentation of the so-called "zero-option" proposal, outlined by President Reagan last week.

The proposal calls for the United States to scrap plans to deploy in Western Europe 108 Pershing II missiles and 464 cruise missiles. The Soviets, in turn, would dismantle their intermediate-range SS-series missiles, which include the formidable, triple-warhead SS-20.

"We think it's an ambitious project, and a correct project," Nitze said, "to get rid of all the intermediate-range weapons. If we could do that, that would be a great success."

Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev, during a visit this week to Bonn, West Germany, rejected the Reagan proposal. Instead, Brezhnev renewed proposals for a moratorium on deploying medium-range Soviet missile systems in Europe and said the Kremlin might then make a unilateral cut in its medium-range arsenal, "as a gesture of our good will."

Washington balked at the Brezhnev proposal.

Nitze said he will go to Hamburg, West Germany Saturday to confer with West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt on his talks with Brezhnev.

"We should set deadlines for progress," Nitze said about the talks, "but neither should we tolerate unnecessary delays. We must be careful to shun both euphoria and discouragement as we proceed, keeping in clear view our objectives: peace, balance and stability."

Rescues Effected Ships Face Stormy Seas

HAMILTON, Bermuda (AP) — A rescue plane spotted two men clinging to an overturned lifeboat today in the Atlantic Ocean east of here, members of a 24-man crew that abandoned a West German cargo ship reported sinking in stormy seas.

The American tanker Chancellorsville, which was in the area, was expected to pick up the men and then continue searching for the 22 others, the Coast Guard said in New York.

Coast Guard spokesman Lt. John Frost said the planes noticed a large oil slick in the area. He said three Coast Guard aircraft and a U.S. Navy plane would continue searching for survivors.

The Coast Guard received an urgent radio message Thursday saying the 450-foot, 7,500-ton vessel was sinking about 215 miles east of Bermuda and that the 24 people aboard were getting into life rafts. There was no further communication with the ship, officials said.

While one plane on Thursday reported sighting a flare in the vicinity, there have been "no sightings at all" since then, Coast Guard spokesman Lt. John Frost said this morning.

In another sea drama, two Canadian military helicopters battled gales and rescued 26 people from a freighter foundering off Nova Scotia on Thursday night.

Coast Guard Senior Chief Petty Officer Donald Severy said Thursday night a Navy search plane had seen a flare earlier in the day off Bermuda where the freighter Elma Tres had been reported sinking in "storm conditions."

Waves in the area were running 12 to 15 feet with wind gusting to nearly 80 mph, Severy said.

A spokesman for Bermuda Harbor Radio said it was not clear why the Elma Tres began to sink, although the radio message received from the ship said its cargo was shifting.

"We have currently engaged or about to be engaged in the search three merchant vessels, two Coast Guard aircraft and later in the day a Coast Guard helicopter," a harbor radio spokesman said today. "They will be searching 200 miles east of Bermuda where the 24 men abandoned the vessel early yesterday afternoon and conditions for a search are quite favorable. But we have no reports of any sightings so far."

Off Nova Scotia, meanwhile, a Canadian Coast Guard helicopter lifted 13 of the crew of the grain freighter Euro

Princess from the stricken vessel's heaving stern section just before midnight Thursday, nearly nine hours after the 570-foot, 15,800-ton ship grounded on a sandbar off the eastern tip of Sable Island, 180 miles east of Halifax.

A second helicopter rescued the rest of the crew early today.

Mobil Oil Canada Ltd. said 44 of 62 crew members had been removed from the 7,220-ton oil drilling rig Rowan Juneau. Mobil said the move was taken as a precaution should the wreck of the Euro Princess break free and drift toward the rig, a half mile from where the ship foundered.

Reg Towers, a spokesman for the government agency Transport Canada, said the freighter's lifeboats were washed overboard by the waves.

The Canadian coast guard ship Alert was expected to reach the Euro Princess early today. The freighter, registered in Liberia, was en route to the Black Sea after calling at Montreal.

Sable Island, 28 miles long and one mile wide, was one of the most notorious navigational hazards on the North American East Coast from the first days of European exploration of the continent.

More than 500 ships wrecked on the sandspit, better known recently for the oil and natural gas potential of the ocean floor around it. The cold Labrador Current and the warm Gulf Stream converge near the island, brewing a thick blanket of fog that covers it most of the year.

Costs Up, But Social Welfare Outlay Declines

By CHRISTOPHER CONNELL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — While the cost of all government social welfare programs rose 8.6 percent in fiscal 1979, actual per capita spending declined for the first time since record-keeping began, a new federal study says.

A report in the monthly Social Security Bulletin said social-program spending by federal, state and local government reached $428.3 billion in the year ending Sept. 30, 1979 — an increase of $34 billion over fiscal 1978.

But taking inflation into account, per capita spending fell for the first time since the government began keeping these statistics in 1950, according to Ann Kallman Bixby, a Social Security policy analyst.

In "real" terms, expenditures dropped from $1,932 per person in 1978 to $1,912 per person in fiscal 1979, she said in the report.

"Rather than increasing by $34 billion, 1979 expenditures declined $908 million in 'real' terms," the report said. "Although the decrease is less than 1 percent of total social welfare expenditures, this is the first time ... that a decline has appeared."

In actual dollars, the social welfare bill has jumped from $290 billion in 1975 to $428.3 billion in 1979. But as a percentage of the gross national product, these expenditures have declined from a peak of 20.4 percent in 1976 to 18.5 percent in 1979.

Noting the sharp increase in spending from 1975 to 1979, the report said: "The extremely high rate of inflation that prevailed in those years exaggerated both the amount and the rate of growth in social welfare spending, as compared with previous years. When the data are reviewed in constant 1979 dollars, a quite different picture emerges."

The federal government provided 62 percent of the funds for social welfare programs in fiscal 1979, with the state and local share at 38 percent.

Social insurance programs such as Social Security, public pensions, unemployment insurance and workmen's compensation cost $193 billion, or 45 percent of the total; education cost governments $108 billion, or 25 percent; welfare cost $65 billion, or 15 percent; health and medical programs cost $24.5 billion, or 6 percent; veterans programs cost $20.4 billion, or 5 percent, and 4 percent went for various other purposes.

Social insurance programs cost 8.4 percent of the gross national product, welfare 2.8 percent, health and medical programs 1.1 percent, veterans 0.9 percent, education 4.7 percent and all other social welfare 0.4 percent.

Copper Pennies Scarce

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)

— The federal government's decision to abandon the copper penny in favor of a mostly-zinc substitute has led to hoarding — and occasional shortages — of copper one-cent pieces and North Carolina merchants and bankers say.

"People (think) that when we go to these zinc pennies, the price of copper will skyrocket," said Bill Morrison, manager of a Hardee's restaurant in Charlotte.

He and other businessmen say hoarders are hoping that the copper's metallic value will outstrip the penny's face value.

Thus, signs reading: "We need your pennies. Please exchange them here," and "We need your pennies, please," are appearing on windows of stores, restaurants and other businesses throughout the state.

"We've run completely out of pennies a few times," said Fast Fare clerk Sandra Potter. "The bank puts limits on how many we can have. So we've had to ask customers, 'Have you got any pennies in your pocket?'"

Morrison said the bank with which he does business gives his restaurant an allowance of 1,000 pennies — $10 worth — to last from Thursday through Monday.

"That's normally just about a fifth of what's needed to operate with," he said. "We normally need $50 to $70 worth."

Morrison said he scrounges one-centers from supermarkets and other stores needing fewer pennies. And, he said, he stockpiles for tighter times when possible.

North Carolina National Bank in Morganton has had to cut off pennies to "non-corporate customers" and ration the supply to its regular heavy users during the last couple of months, said A.T. Barbee, assistant vice president.

But Barbee said not all banks have penny shortages because the government supplies them according to a formula based on the bank's past volume.

The supply can depend on local variables as well, he said. For example, a bank with several bubble-gum machine vendors for customers might take in more of the copper coins than another bank.

One possible solution, Barbee said, is to coordinate better movement of pennies between banks with surpluses and those with shortages. NCNB has been studying that situation, he said.

Americans Gave Varied 'Thanks'

By The Associated Press
Henry Fonda's daughter carried a plate of turkey to the hospitalized actor. In South Carolina, a man separated from his family since he was 6 shared a Thanksgiving dinner with them for the first time in 20 years.

There were parades and presidential proclamations, football and food. But mostly, Thursday was a day for America's families to gather and count their blessings.

Broadway was filled with giant cartoon characters in New York's Macy's Thanksgiving Day parade. "Everyone smiles when the balloons go by," said 7-year-old John Dennison of Brooklyn.

An estimated 80 million people watched the New York and Detroit parades on television. Braving freezing temperatures to be there in person were an estimated 3 million people in Manhattan and half a million in Detroit. About 200,000 watched marchers in Philadelphia.

Jane Fonda visited her father and said he is "doing better each day." Fonda, 76, was hospitalized in Hollywood 10 days ago for a heart ailment. His wife Shirlee had a flu-like illness and could not visit him.

William Beaker, 27, said he had "never known what to do" to find the family he had not seen since his parents' divorce in Walhalla, S.C. His sister, Ellen Score, 47, who scarcely had known her little brother, decided four months ago that the only way to find him was to call telephone operators at random and ask for his name.

The third city she tried was Louisville, Ky. She had guessed correctly. "It was just like a miracle," she said, and Thursday Beaker sat down at a table with his mother, sisters and brother in Walhalla, dined and gave thanks.

"I'm just glad they found me and I'll not let them go," he said.

Way down yonder at the South Pole, where it is summertime, sailors, calling their team the Penguins, defeated the civilian Skuas, named for a bird, 19-7 in the Penguin Bowl at the McMurdo Naval Air Station. It was a pleasant 12 below zero. The field was a sheet of ice.

In more temperate climes, professional football games were held on artificial turf in Detroit and Dallas, and college fans turned out in College Station, Texas and Richmond, Va.

Former first lady Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis rode horseback through the hills of Somerset County, N.J. on a fox hunt and her son John and daughter Caroline cheered her on as spectators.

President Reagan and his wife Nancy dined with family members at their mountaintop ranch in Santa Barbara, Calif. Guests included Reagan's brother Neil and daughters Maureen and Patti Davis. The president's two sons, Ron and Michael, were unable to attend.

But Reagan was scored in Washington during his holiday absence.

"Welcome to Reaganville — Reaganomics at Work," read the sign in front of 10 tents set up opposite the White House by a group opposing cuts in social programs. The tents were supposed to house the homeless, but reporters and TV crews often outnumbered the participants.

In a holiday proclamation, the president asked Americans to help each other. Thousands did just that, and a show of neighborliness turned into drama in Salt Lake City.

Boyd Thackeray, 51, saved a family from dying of carbon monoxide poisoning when he stopped by to see if they had enough to eat, firefighters said.

He climbed through a window Thanksgiving morning to find Michael and Linda Hitchcock and their four children unconscious from fumes that had backed up from a clogged furnace, officials said. He roused them, opened the windows and called for help and they were saved. They plan to dine together in thanks today.

At a restaurant in Santa Ana, Calif., Greek immigrant George Smyrniotis provided a free holiday dinner to about 2,000 people, most of them elderly, ushering in scores at a time to the 100-seat establishment.

Boy Is Given Loving Heart

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — A 12-year-old Birmingham boy who doesn't know he got the heart of another teen-ager in transplant surgery is "sore, but in good spirits."

"So far, everyone's encouraged," University of Alabama Hospitals spokesman John Wright said Thursday. "It's kind of a day-by-day thing."

Eric Boyd underwent a three-hour operation Tuesday after doctors determined he had a life-threatening heart disease — a form of heart muscle damage — for which there was no therapy, and after a donor heart was made available.

The heart came from Todd Massey, 14, of Columbus, Ga., who died Monday following a motorcycle accident.

Eric's mother, Dorothy Wann, said her son is doing "fine now, physically and emotionally. He is handling this well."

The youth has not been told he has a transplanted heart.

"A heart transplant is very scary for a 12-year-old," she said. "For now, we just told him that his pumping chambers have been replaced. Later on, when he can deal with it, we'll tell him exactly what happened."

Massey's parents said their son had been "so full of love," that they had to donate their dead son's heart to Eric Boyd.

"When the doctor asked us if we would consider this, I didn't even hesitate," said Jimmy Massey. The youth's body was flown to Birmingham Tuesday.

The identity of the donor and the interview with the boy's family was published Thursday in The Birmingham News.

Todd Massey died at at Columbus Medical Center of massive head injuries he received Sunday in a motorcycle accident at an abandoned skateboard park near his home.

Todd's father said the boy "loved everybody and everybody loved him. The spirit (of his son) still lives on."

Eric was sitting up and eating solid food Thursday for the first time since the operation. His hospital stay is expected to last several weeks, but Wright said the first week is the most critical.

SECURITY

What kind of security does Pitt County Memorial Hospital provide? I've been concerned since an employee was taken from a parking lot there some time ago and assaulted. B.T.

Hospital director Jack Richardson said the medical facility has a contract with a private firm to provide security, and "the contract has been increased in an effort to provide an even safer environment ... higher visibility of the security force and more controls on access and egress to the hospital property." Cost of security for the current fiscal year, Richardson added, is in excess of $175,000.

"We've added more money for lights and for patrol vehicles to accomplish the maximum security possible," Richardson said, explaining that parking lots at the hospital are patrolled on foot and with vehicles "during shift changes and throughout the day and night."

Small-Suggs Wedding Performed Sunday

FARMVILLE — Kathy Colene Suggs and Lee Augustus Small Jr. were married Sunday at 3 p.m. in the First Baptist Church here. The Rev. Ronald L. Davis officiated at the double ring ceremony.

A program of nuptial music was presented by Dan Sellars of Greenville, organist. Mike Barnette of Farmville sang "There Is Love" and "The Wedding Prayer."

The bride and bridegroom were united marriage by affirmation of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bobbie G. Suggs Sr. of Farmville and Mr. and Mrs. Lee A. Small Sr. of Edenton.

The bride wore a formal gown of white organza over white peau de soie designed with a high neckline outlined in silk Venise lace. The bodice was enhanced by a sheer yoke of English net with beaded Brussels and silk Venise lace, bordered in silk Venise lace. The full bishop sleeves were accented with a silk Venise applique and lace trimmed cuffs. The modified A-line skirt and attached cathedral train featured scalloped silk Venise lace and was edged in miniature floral silk Venise lace. She wore a bridal hat of organza, silk Venise and Brussels lace fashioned with a fingertip veil of illusion forming an illusion bow at the center back. The hat was accented with seed pearls encircling the crown. She carried a bouquet of white and pink carnations accented with red roses.

June H. Highland of Farmville was matron of honor for her sister. Bridesmaids included Becky Small of Boone, sister of the bridegroom, Wanda J. Hodges of Murfreesboro and Ervina C. Bunch of Edenton. Their dresses were of burgundy knit with knife pleated skirt with an empire waist and spaghetti straps. The dresses were complemented by an empire length chiffon cape and gathers at the shoulders. They carried pink sprayed mums adorned with ribbon.

The father of the bridegroom was best man and ushers included Shack F. Small of New Bern, brother of the bridegroom, Morris Small Jr. of Edenton, cousin of the bridegroom and B. Garland Suggs Jr. of Farmville, brother of the bride.

The mother of the bride wore a blue knit formal gown with a lace top complemented with a blue lace jacket. The mother of the bridegroom selected a dusty rose formal gown accented with pearls. They were remembered with white carnations. Mrs. R. H. Byrum, grandmother of the bridegroom, was honored with a white carnation.

The bride is a graduate of Farmville Central High School and ECU. She is employed by Burroughs Wellcome, Greenville. The bridegroom graduated from John A. Holmes High School, Edenton. He works with Parker Evans Hardware parttime and is engaged in farming.

The couple will live in Williamston.

The wedding was directed by Mrs. Howard T. Holloman and Ms. Lisa Ashley presided at the register.

Following the ceremony, the bride's parents entertained at a reception in the fellowship hall of the church.

Following the rehearsal, the bridegroom's parents entertained at a dinner party at the Ramada Inn, Greenville.

The bride and her attendants were honored at a luncheon Saturday given by Mrs. Howard Holloman, Mrs. David May, Ms. Betsy Stanley, Mrs. Glenn Price and Mrs. B. Garland Suggs Jr.

Engagement Announced

TERESA JUDY ANGE, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jules L. Ange of Niobe, N. Y., who announce her engagement to Robert Lee Everett II, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Everett of Robersonville. The wedding will take place Dec. 19.

COOKING IS FUN!

By CECILY BROWNSTONE Associated Press Food Editor

Before inflation, many of us regularly roasted prime ribs of beef for a family-plus-company dinner. On occasion, I reminded cooks of a great snack that could be made by deviling the leftover bones. Carved as usual with a little meat left on them, the bones were heated in a devil sauce. This sauce comes from British cookery and there are various versions of it. All versions have one feature in common — spicy ingredients.

Recently a friend suggested deviling beef short ribs as a way of serving a fairly economical main dish and still having the savory goodness of the spicy sauce. Between us, we worked out the following rule. We hope these deviled short ribs, should you try the recipe for them, are as well received at your house as they were at ours.

DEVILED BEEF SHORT RIBS
3 pounds beef short ribs (6 pieces each 4 inches long)
1½ cups water
3 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
1¼ teaspoons dry mustard
1 teaspoon curry powder
1 to 2 tablespoons ketchup
In a large wide, ovenproof saucepot with an ovenproof cover, arrange the short ribs, bone side down, in a single layer. Add the water. Bake, covered, until almost tender — about 1½ hours. In a cup stir together the Worcestershire sauce, mustard and curry powder; brush the ribs with some of the mixture. Leave uncovered and continue to bake, brushing midway with the remaining Worcestershire mixture, until the pieces of meat are very tender and all, or most of them, have separated from the bones — about 45 minutes.

With a slotted spoon, remove the meat and the bones; cut away any pieces of meat still attached to bones. Discard all bones. Slice each piece of meat in half crosswise.

Pour the liquid in the saucepot into a measure — there should be about 2 cups; skim off the fat. Return the liquid to the saucepot; stir in the ketchup. Add the meat and reheat. Serve at once. Makes 4 servings.

Albert Coffey Shows Slides

The Greenville Garden Club held its November meeting at the home of Mrs. J. C. Galloway. Albert Coffey, district agent of the U. S. Soil Conservation Service, Department of Agriculture, was guest speaker.

He showed a slide set entitled "Limits" on the soil and water conservation through the years. He also discussed the non-til method now being used on some crops. Mrs. Robert Little introduced the speaker.

Mrs. R. M. Helms has been appointed bird representative for this district. A program on bluebirds was given by Mrs. Helms and Mrs. Little to two garden clubs.

Mrs. H.C. Klingenschmitt gave the garden therapy report. The club has worked with 65 pre-vocational students at Aycock Junior High School.

The horticulture exhibit, made by Maude Moore, included four different sizes and stages of fruit from her calamondin and a lemon from her ponderosa lemon. Mrs. Galloway showed her bird of paradise flower arrangement.

Assisting meeting hostesses were Mrs. John Coughlan and Mrs. Little.

Mrs. Patsy Haley and Mrs. Rose Marie Hobbs were welcomed as guests by President Mrs. R. A. Davis.

The dinner is scheduled to begin at 6:30 p.m.

Dear Abby

Mother's Little Love Goes A Long Way

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: You frequently fill your column with a lot of sanctimonious garbage about how much we owe our mothers, and how we ought to write, telephone or visit them as often as possible.

In my case, my mother is 88, mentally alert and in reasonably good health, but she is more than I can take, except in very small doses. For the last six years she has lived in a nursing home 600 miles away. She hasn't traveled more than 10 miles from her home in the last 35 years. The last time I visited her (last summer) she talked steadily for 45 minutes about people I had never heard of. When she wasn't talking about people I didn't know, she was complaining about the other people in the home, the food, the care, her aches and pains, and the high cost of everything. (She lacks for nothing, and the home she's in is one of the most expensive.)

What really makes me want to run screaming from her room is the way she always dredges up some incident from my childhood that she thinks is "amusing." It's invariably something that was painful, degrading and humiliating to me. She loves to talk about it, but it's like a knife in my gut!

I write to her often so I won't feel guilty about visiting her so seldom. Thanks for letting me get this off my chest. No name, please. I don't want to start any family wars.

INFREQUENT VISITOR

DEAR VISITOR: The next time you feel like running from your mother's room, pause a moment and take a long, hard look at her. You may see your future self.

Do you hate to write letters because you don't know what to say? Thank-you notes, sympathy letters, congratulations, how to decline and accept invitations and how to write an interesting letter are included in Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Seychelles Govm't Says Invasion Force 'Repelled'

By DENIS ROSE
Associated Press Writer
VICTORIA, Seychelles
(AP) — The leftist

Seychelles government says it crushed an attempt to overthrow it by a planeload of mercenaries from southern Africa. About half the invaders fled the airport battlefield in a hijacked jetliner and were arrested when they landed in South Africa.

The government of the Indian ocean archipelago said the invasion was over by Thursday night, some 24 hours after 100 armed men landed on the main island of Mahe and tried to take over the Pointe Larue airport.

Government troops repulsed the invaders, killing some and capturing others, while a handful escaped into hiding, officials said.

So far, nobody was saying who organized the plot. In London, the exiled former president of the Seychelles, James R. Mancham, said he had been asked to join but refused.

Officials said the mercenaries arrived about 5:30 p.m. Wednesday aboard a regularly scheduled Royal Swazi Airlines flight, from the tiny black African state of Swaziland, on South Africa's northeastern border.

Gilbert Confait, editor of the government newspaper The Nation, said government troops surrounded the airport by 7 p.m. but held off their counterattack until just before dawn Thursday.

During the fighting, the mercenaries took some hostages, said Confait. "There is a possibility that among the dead there may be some hostages," he said.

About five hours later, as the mercenaries fought a losing battle for control of the airport, an Air India Boeing 707 landed with 79 passengers and crew members. It was on a flight from Salisbury, Zimbabwe, to Bombay, India, and was making a scheduled stop.

Passenger Colin Walker said mortar fire and tracers whizzed over the runway as the plane touched down.

"After 10 minutes, three guys came aboard and said we had landed at an unfortunate time," Walker said. "They were armed to the teeth."

Passengers said about 40 men — Americans, Britons, South Africans and former Rhodesians — boarded the plane ordered the pilot to fly them to South Africa. Then they put away their guns and drank with the passengers, said British traveler David Benning.

After being turned away from Johannesburg, the hijacked plane landed at Durban, on the Indian Ocean coast. A security policeman there said 38 men, all South Africans and most of them former members of an elite South African commando unit, were detained, and unconfirmed reports said the plane also carried one dead mercenary and at least one who was wounded. But the South African Press Association said there were 44 hijackers.

After their arrest, the men were flown from Durban to the Waterkloof air base near Pretoria. Reporters there said they were handcuffed in pairs, taken to police vehicles and driven away. There was no clarification from the South African government of the conflicting reports of numbers and nationalities. Nor did it announce immediately what would be done with the men.

Ex-President Mancham, who was deposed in 1977 by Prime Minister France Albert Rene, said a member of a group calling itself "Le Mouvement Pour La Resistance" called him and told him rebels were "on the march" in his homeland. Mancham told reporters he had never heard of the group and refused to join them until he knew "more about who they were and what they were doing."

Since seizing the presidency, Rene has charted a leftist course for the chain of 87 lush little Indian Ocean islands, but he rejected Soviet overtures to set up a base here.

The islands, whose chief exports are copra and cinnamon, were settled by the French in the 18th century but passed to the British in 1814 after the French lost the Napoleonic wars. They got their independence in 1976, and the population is now estimated at 63,000, most of them of French-African descent.

In Chicago, Capt. David Dalbert of the Salvation Army said that in years past he would notice the same people coming off the streets for Thanksgiving dinner, but this year "there were many new faces, even whole families coming together." He counted many young men with strong backs but no available place to work for a living.

"I've been 9½ years on the streets ministering and have seen hard times, but never like this," said the Rev. Dan Toby, who runs the Someone Cares Mission in St. Louis.

Since 1970, Barb Olson-Aslesan, Bill Foussard and their friends have prepared and delivered Thanksgiving dinner for thousands of people in St. Paul, Minn. This year, they delivered 4,000 meals to the hungry, and the deliveries were finished by noon.

The cashier at Kap's Coffee Shop in Albuquerque, N.M., said the 400 adults and children treated to a meal didn't have to pay, but could sign their bills if they wished. One of the handwritten messages on the backs of the checks said to owner Nick Kapnison and his staff: "God bless you. Thank you."

Pledges Stress On Spirituality

CLEVELAND (AP) — The newly elected president of the National Council of Churches, United Methodist Bishop James Armstrong of Indiana, says he will emphasize an "authentic spirituality" as head of the nation's largest ecumenical organization, as well as action on critical social issues.

He says the stress on spiritual matters is being undertaken not as "a ploy to meet criticism but as a response to human need" in the modern atmosphere. As for social issues, he cited the need for attention to the nuclear arms race, a resurgence of racism, revitalizing family life and the "growing disparity between rich and poor."

Armstrong was elected for a three-year term to head the cooperative organization of most major Protestant and Eastern Orthodox denominations. He is the fourth Methodist to hold the post in the organization's 30 years. He succeeds the Rev. William Howard Jr., an American Baptist, on Jan. 1.

Seek Joint St. Francis Salute

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lutheran and Roman Catholic bishops, who last year joined in mutual observances of the 450th anniversary of the Augsburg Confession, have now acted to encourage joint participation in the 800th anniversary celebration of the birth of St. Francis of Assisi.

He is a Roman Catholic saint who lived long before the split between Catholicism and Protestantism and is also honored by many Protestants. The Augsburg Confession, although a key-stone document of the Protestant Reformation, reflects an ecumenical spirit of basic Christian unity.

Anniversary

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Jewish community leaders from across the country joined in celebrating the 50th anniversary of their national association — the Council of Jewish Federations.

It serves the more than 200 local Jewish federations, aiding them in seeking joint solutions to community problems that can't be resolved separately, such as dealing with cults, anti-Semitism, strengthening Jewish family life, U.S.-Israel relations, education and leadership development.

Space A Career Field

One becomes sharply aware the United States is in the "space shuttle business" to stay, on reading details of construction at Vandenberg Air Force Base, in California.

A second launch pad for the shuttle is being constructed there, an advantage in that flights can be lofted into a polar orbit as contrasted with the orbit pattern at Cape Canaveral.

If construction and funding go as planned, the first shuttle will be launched at Vandenberg in 1985, where it is planned to handle 10 shuttle missions a year — roughly a third of expected launches.

But there's more:

The longtime dream of an orbiting space laboratory may become a reality with the addition of the Vandenberg space port. That is something the future is bound to hold in store, and a project that would be difficult to insert into the planned flight schedules from Canaveral.

No more lunar flights are contemplated, and science is still trying to digest results of deep space probes launched literally two years ago. All of which makes an orbiting laboratory a prime prospect for the future.

Present plans and future aspirations make the space field an exciting career field open to the select many, rather than the select few who have been the pioneers.

Get Budget Work Moving

After the fiasco earlier this week which saw the President and Congress battling over the budget, it still comes down to the fact that a workable budget must be approved.

Republican leaders and White House representatives say they are trying to reach some accord on budget proposals and avoid another Congressional-White House confrontation.

There won't be long to do it. The measure finally passed keeps the government running for only three weeks.

Thus Congress will have to work furiously to prepare a budget bill.

We hope there will be coordination between the Senate, House and the White House in preparing new measures. We don't need another cliff hanger and certainly the budgetary process needs to move smoothly.

THIS AFTERNOON

Investments Field

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — Local governments across North Carolina are beginning to realize the same benefits from money investments that the state treasury has developed in recent years.

Money management is helping governments gain revenue, and that means less tax money is needed so that the ultimate winner is the taxpayer.

Electronic communications and banking procedures now gaining dominance in the financial world will mean that such investments can gain even more returns.

The amounts are impressive. Last fiscal year the State of North Carolina realized more than $137 million in interest earned on short-term investments.

Money in hand which won't be needed to pay bills for even a day or two is quickly deposited in interest-paying accounts. Longer term cash assets are put into high-yield certificates of deposit or commercial paper investments.

Big Bucks

The return to state government is the biggest source of non-tax revenue for state government. This is why so many local governments are looking for ways to get cash in hand earlier such as giving a few points reduction in property taxes to those who pay earlier, and making the penalty for late payment stiffer. No figures are currently available on how much interest is being earned by local governments, but as the system develops and more use of state computer capabilities is made by local governments, that information will become available.

The State Treasury has, in reality, been carefully reformed into a full-service bank. To make a payment for something bought or to an employee, the state issues a "warrant" which is just a check like that processed through any commercial bank.

BILL NOBLITT

Where various agencies and branches of government once drew their money on a schedule and spent it as they chose under the rules; and where all the money coming into state government from tax collections, license sales, fines and such once dribbled along through the channels, the instant communication and transfer capabilities of electronic banking has made a central state bank possible.

Outstanding debts can be tallied at the end of the day; daily deposits anywhere can be totaled; and any extra money can be invested at once.

In a year's time, the state processes more than 13 million warrants worth nearly $12 billion.

Flexible

The state explores numerous ways to invest the state money to get the most return. This activity is coordinated with the state's long-term investment program which deals in securities and treasury notes. A private dealer in securities might need some at a particular time for a client making a deal. The state will rent him some state-owned securities for a set fee for a set time after which the securities return to North Carolina. Short-term money for construction projects, selling securities options, shopping for certificates and commercial paper breaks are all part of the cash management business.

Instant communication and transfer also means that interest can be earned for the two or three days which it once took for transactions to

Other Editors Say Less Ego, Please

(The Raleigh Times)

You do not have to live on the Outer Banks to identify with the frustration coastal residents are expressing over the re-naming of the "Sealevel" ferry.

It is that same frustration the public anywhere feels when some landmark is stripped of a meaningful name in order that homage can be paid to the ego of a politician or other public person.

The "Sealevel" was re-dubbed "Lauch Faircloth" at the September meeting of the State Board of Transportation to honor D.M. "Lauch" Faircloth, longtime political power and current head of the state's Department of Commerce. Amid considerable levity, the only Republican member of the board made the motion to restore the name because during the administration of Governor Jim Holshouser, the GOP-dominated transportation board had switched the ferry name from "Faircloth" back to "Sealevel."

All this fun and games doesn't set well with the more serious Outer Bankers, who set a lot of store by and prefer the name "Sealevel" given the Ocracoke-Cedar Island ferry when it was built in 1960. As one citizen wrote, "Most of the people who will use the ferry don't know who Faircloth is."

Apparently the ferry's name isn't nearly as important to Faircloth as it is to Outer Banks residents. He already has the "Faircloth Freeway" near his hometown of Clinton named for him. In fact the secretary, whose strong suit has never been humility, said not long ago that he wasn't sure how much of an honor it was to have a ferryboat bear his name.

So here is a golden chance for Faircloth, who is reported to have higher political aspirations, to rise above petty partisan politics. He can win Outer Banks respect as well as the general public's favor by insisting that the Board of Transportation permanently name the ferry "Sealevel" and be done with it.

By doing this, Faircloth might even serve his state's interests more than he realizes by beginning a sensible trend against naming any public structure for any living politician unless he actually gives the facility or the funds with which to build it.

Strength For Today

RELIGION'S POWER TO TRANSFORM

There are multitudes of Christian believers for whom religion is little more than going to church, paying their dues, uttering a brief but earnest prayer when in deep trouble, and hoping that death will not end all.

How different is such a concept from the stirring faith set forth in the New Testament! How anemic such a variety of religion really is! Jesus Christ did not come into the world to improve human life but to transform it. When people really get religion, all things become new for them.

As the evangelist of a previous generation, Stanley Jones, wrote of his conversion, "When I walked out into the world the morning after I made myself surrender, I thought I had never before seen the world; the trees clapped their hands and all nature was atingle with joy and beauty. For the first time I knew the earth was mine. I had inherited it. The gospel begins with a demand for self-renunciation and ends in a self-affirmation and in a world affirmation." — Elisha Douglass

NOT A BIRD--NOT A PLANE--IT'S--

BY ART BUCHWALD

Thanksgiving, In Brief

Cher Monsieur, I am a little French girl named Virginie. My assignment is to explain your Thanksgiving Day to my quatrieme class. Au secours, s'il vous plait!

One of our most important holidays is Thanksgiving Day, known in France as le Jour de Merci Donnant.

Le Jour de Merci Donnant was first started by a group of Pilgrims (Pelerins) who fled from l'Angleterre before the McCarran Act to found a colony in the New world (le Nouvea Monde), where they could shoot Indians (les Peaux-Rouges) and eat turkey (dinde) to their hearts' content.

They landed at place called Plymouth (now a famous voiture Americaine) in a wooden sailing ship called the Mayflower or Fleur de Mai in 1620. But while the Pelerins were killing the dindes, the Peaux-Rouges were killing the Pelerins, and there were several hard winters ahead for both of them. The only way the Peaux-Rouges helped the Pelerins was when they taught them to grow corn (maïs). The reason they did this was that they liked corn with their Pelerins.

In 1623, after another harsh year, the Pelerins' crops were so good that they decided to have a celebration and give thanks because more maïs was raised by the Pelerins than the Peaux-Rouges were killed by Peaux-Rouges.

Plymouth. Say that blunt old captain, a man not of words but of action (un vieux Fanfan la Tulipe), offers his hand and his heart, the hand and heart of a soldier. Not in these words, you know, but this, in short, is my meaning.

"I am a make of war (je suis un fabrint de la guerre) and not a maker of phrases. You, bred as a scholar (vous, qui etes pain comme un etudiant), can say it in elegant language, such as you read in your books of the pleadings and wooings of lovers, such as you think best adapted to win the heart of the maiden."

Although Jean was fit to be tied (convenable a etre emballe), friendship prevailed over love and he went to his duty. But instead of using elegant language, he blurted out his mission. Priscilla was muted with amazement and sorrow (rendue muette par l'etonnement et la tristesse).

At length she exclaimed, interrupting the ominous silence: "If the great captain of Plymouth is so very eager to wed me, why does he not come himself and take the trouble to woo me?" (Ou est-il, le vieux Kilometres? Pourquoi ne vient-il pas aupres de moi pour tenter sa chance?)

Jean said that Kilometres Debutish was very busy and didn't have time for those things. He staggered on, telling her what a wonderful husband Kilometres would make. Finally Priscilla arched her eyebrows and said in a tremulous voice: "Why don't you speak for yourself, Jean?" (Cun a son gout.)

And so, on the fourth Thursday in November, American families sit down at a large table brimming with tasty dishes, and for the only time during the year eat better than the French do.

No one can deny that le (Please turn to Page 5)

Some Blessings Shine Forth

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — After reading economic forecasts made just two months ago you would almost have to believe that this recession rode into our economy like an errant and undetected comet from outer space.

Lights flashed wildly back then, but a good many of the forecasters, including the esteemed econometrists who paint their economic pictures by the numbers, viewed the warnings as mere bugs in the system.

Perhaps they were overwhelmed by White House rhetoric or blinded by the brilliance of their analyses, but they missed the forecast. Weren't things supposed to be getting better? Well, maybe they're not.

The pronounced sag in activity has once again caught the forecasting community by surprise," the Morgan Guaranty Survey conceded this week.

Alice Rivlin, director of the Congressional Budget Office, noted the same phenomenon, observing that the economy is sinking faster than most forecasters, presumably including those at the White House, foresaw.

Murray L. Weidenbaum, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, warns that several more months of poor economic statistics are before us, and advises us — in words delivered at an October business conference — "it is extremely important to recognize that we have anticipated for some time that this situation could arise."

That admission might surprise a lot of people who until the last few weeks had heard so many White House people from the President on down assure the populace that talk of recession was ill-informed.

Even the Federal Reserve, it seems, failed to spot the errant comet from outer space, although critics say the Fed and its high interest rate policy probably did as much as anything else to attract it.

Minutes from the early October meeting of the Fed's

Second Boat To Plymouth

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent
PLYMOUTH, Mass. (AP) — If your forebears didn't come over on the Mayflower, maybe they caught the second boat.

The 55-ton Fortune arrived in Plymouth on Nov. 11, 1621, shortly after the first Thanksgiving, with "35 persons to remain and live in ye plantation." Under command of Thomas Barton, master, she had left London in July.

The Pilgrim Fathers and Mothers were settling in for another long, cold winter and were not expecting another boat until spring. When the Fortune's tall white mainsail was seen off Cape Cod, beating toward Plymouth, the nervous colonists thought it was a French raiding party come down from Canada to make mischief.

Gov. William Bradford convened a council of war. Defense chief Miles Standish, "the little chimney easily fired," mustered "every man, yea boy, that could handle a gun" and ordered the 1,500-pound cannon on Fort Hill to thunder out a warning shot. As the Fortune tacked into Plymouth Harbor, the settlers were surprised and relieved to see her run up the red cross of England, this being in the days before Scotland's cross of Andrew was added to the Union Jack.

Plymouth's sturdy little shallop, a tiny fishing vessel, brought ashore 35 new settlers, all in good health, "which did not a little rejoice them."

The welcome mat frayed a bit when it was learned that the penny-pinching Merchant Adventurers, who underwrote the colony from London, had sent them out with no provisions, "not so much as biscuit-cake or any victuals," little bedding beyond "some sorry things" in their cabins and neither "pot nor pan to dresse any meate in."

Like those who crossed on the Mayflower, not all on the Fortune had come to the New World seeking religious freedom. In fact, only 12 were listed in Plymouth's company of "saints," separatist followers of Robert "Trouble-Church" Browne, a famous and feisty dissenter from the Church of England. The "saints" on the second boatload included such names as William Bassett, Jonathan Brewster, William Wright, Thomas Morton, Austin Nicholas and 14-year-old Thomas Cushman, who was adopted by Gov. Bradford and grew up to become Plymouth's ruling elder.

The rest were "strangers," artisans and craftsmen sent over by the sponsoring adventurers to make the colony viable enough to send fur and timber back to England as profits. Included among them were Stephen Deane, a miller; vintner William Hilton, Robert Hicks, a dealer in hides; armorer William Pitt, carriage maker Thomas Prence, who later became governor and "fellmonger" Clement Briggs, which is also a dealer in skins.

The new colonists from the Fortune were on hand for the second Thanksgiving feast at Plymouth in 1622. The celebration, usually in October, was repeated almost every year thereafter in the colony and soon became a tradition throughout New England. Thanksgiving moved west with the wagons and became a national holiday in 1863, when a war-weary President Lincoln set aside the last Thursday in November as a time for public thanksgiving.

There was also a John Adams, a family name that was to leave an indelible mark on the new continent, and William Conner, who might have been Irish and either died or left the colony a few years later without organizing the first St. Patrick's Day parade in these parts.

Besides the "lusty yonge men, and many of them wild enough," the Fortune also carried four women, among them Martha "Goodwife" Ford, who the journals report, was "delivered of a sonne the first night she landed, and both are doing very well."

The newcomers found a tidy, tiny town rising along "a very sweete brooke under a hillside." There were 11 buildings along Leyden Street, seven private dwellings and four common houses for stores, arms and bachelors. Plymouth had made peace with a half dozen neighboring Indian tribes, had celebrated its first harvest and its first marriage, between Susanna (Fuller) White, a widow of three months, and Edward Winslow, a widower of less than two. The colony had also witnessed its first and last duel, between Edward Dotey and Edward Leister. The little cornfield on the hill behind the meeting house hid the graves of more than half the 104 passengers who alighted from the Mayflower.

After surviving that first bitter winter and a spring epidemic of scurvy and pneumonia, "when they were but six of seven sound persons" to work the fields and put up the buildings, the Plymouth settlers were shocked to learn that Robert Cushman arrived on the Fortune with an insulting letter from Thomas Weston, speaking for the adventurers, berating them for keeping the Mayflower too long, sending her back empty, and accusing them of "weaknes" and squandering their time in "discoursing, arguing and consulting."

They swallowed the insults and loaded the Fortune with beaver and otter pelts, bartered from the Indians for cheap trinkets, and as much hardwood timber, wainscoting and "good clapboard" as they could stuff into the hold.

The Fortune set sail on Dec. 13, just over a month after arriving, only to fall into the hands of French pirates, who hijacked the cargo and stripped her of everything of value on board, even her sheet anchor. They left the passengers like Cushman, who had left his son behind in Plymouth, with not a "hat to their heads or a shoe to their feet."

The new colonists from the Fortune were on hand for the second Thanksgiving feast at Plymouth in 1622. The celebration, usually in October, was repeated almost every year thereafter in the colony and soon became a tradition throughout New England. Thanksgiving moved west with the wagons and became a national holiday in 1863, when a war-weary President Lincoln set aside the last Thursday in November as a time for public thanksgiving.

to being wiped out as they have been at any time since the Great Depression. Unemployment seems headed toward 9 percent. And only the most optimistic or unrealistic retailers are looking forward to a very busy holiday selling season.

But in the gray debris there are indeed some glistening jewels. They are real, not just said to be there by the forecasters. Shining through the gloom are lower inflation rates and lower interest rates, and with them all the possibilities they suggest. An affordable house, perhaps, and maybe an opportunity to own a car with payments you can meet.

Small blessings, perhaps, but if you can consider them that way you have the best protection obtainable. You can, with that attitude, safely believe in Santa Claus.

And you can ignore those economic Indian givers who forecast good times and then take them away with no apologies, who promise you the world and then let your world be walloped by a comet from outer space.

Assassination Tips Taken Very Seriously In U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. government security officers take "very, very seriously" reports that Libyan or other extremist "hit teams" might attempt to assassinate President Reagan or other top U.S. officials, sources said today.

The sources, declining to be identified, said reports were received last week that one or more assassination teams might infiltrate the United States from Canada or by other means. There were indications that these warnings, originating in the Middle East, mentioned some six would-be killers and listed their names. Accordingly, security measures are said to have been tightened by the Secret are due to travel abroad soon and security officials are especially concerned that these two high Cabinet officers might be exposed to danger from other possible assassination teams abroad, although there did not appear to be any intelligence on specific threats overseas.

ABC News reported Thursday that Libyan agents had been assigned to assassinate Reagan and other top officials and, the network said, were believed to have already entered the United States through Canada. Quoting unidentified sources, ABC said monitoring of the Canadian border, especially in the Detroit area, had been increased as part of a special investigation under the direction of FBI Director William H. Webster.

The FBI had no comment today on the network report. The ABC report said FBI agents had been pulled off other cases and formed into a counterintelligence group to concentrate on finding Libyan agents. Robert Wagus, assistant district director for investigations for the Immigration and Naturalization Service in Detroit, said today he was aware of the report regarding increased monitoring of the Canadian border. Wagus said the INS does not have the manpower to increase the number of agents on duty at the border. He would not comment on whether those who are on duty are on a heightened state of alert. The Libyan government has denied previous reports that Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy has sent "hit men" to the United States in an effort to kill Reagan and other officials.

Program To Aid 'Third World'

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina State University will administer a $16.6 million research and training program designed to increase food production in the Third World, officials say.

"This is the most important international program NCSU has ever been involved in," acting chancellor Nash N. Winstead said Wednesday.

An outgrowth of 10 years of NCSU soil research in Peru and other countries, the new five-year program is designed to increase productivity of tropical soils.

Seniors' Club Held Luncheon

Town and Country Senior Citizens Club held its Thanksgiving luncheon recently with 115 members and guests attending.

Gifts for Operation Santa Claus were collected and delivered to the Mental Health Association. The club donated $100 to the Foster Children's Christmas Fund.

The World's Fair trip arrangements are final for Oct. 14-17, 1982. Eighty members and guests plan to make the trip.

Members are needed to work in the gift-wrapping booth at Carolina East Mall, scheduled to open at 10 a.m. Saturday. Call 752-2912 for more information.

Officers for 1982 will be elected Dec. 10 and installed in January 1982.

The Christmas luncheon will be held Dec. 10 at 11:30 a.m. at the Greenville Country Club. Reservations must be made by Thursday 3 with Sarah Ashton, 7852-2912.

No Evidence Of Illegal Intent

GRAHAM, N.C. (AP) — The Alamance County district attorney's office has decided not to prosecute technical violations of the state Campaign Reporting Act that marked Burlington's controversial mayoral election.

Assistant District Attorney Bart Mensar said Wednesday he found no evidence of intent to violate the law in an ad placed in a Burlington newspaper by local real estate agent Walter Anderson in support of Mayor-elect K.L. Ketchum. The ad did not identify the purchaser as the law requires.

Mensar said the omission was apparently an unintentional error of the local newspaper.

SPY SWAP — Joerg Meyer, an East German convicted of espionage in 1979 in Denmark, was handed over to West German authorities Thursday as part of a major East-West spy swap that began two months ago. Danish Minister of Justice Ole Espersen said he understood the exchange involves, among others, up to 70 West German citizens serving prison terms in various East Bloc countries, chiefly East Germany. Reagan Says Defense Buildup Convinced Russians

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — President Reagan says his defense buildup has convinced the Soviets that they're not the only ones in the arms race, heightening hopes that the Kremlin is ready to talk seriously about reducing nuclear weapons.

"Now they've got an interest in and a stake in legitimate negotiations, and we're going to pursue them as far as we can," Reagan told ABC's Barbara Walters in an interview broadcast Thursday evening.

"There's a cartoon that tells it all ... and that was (Soviet President Leonid) Brezhnev saying to a Russian general, 'I liked the arms race better when we were the only ones in it.'"

Deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes said Thursday the president had received a call from West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt to report on Brezhnev's visit to Bonn.

According to Speakes, Reagan also telephoned Paul Nitze, who will head the U.S. team in Geneva for talks beginning Monday with the Soviet Union on nuclear arms in Europe, to discuss "the seriousness of the U.S. proposal, our commitment to negotiate in good faith and the firm support which we have from our allies."

In the interview, Reagan noted that Brezhnev had rejected Reagan's public proposal to forgo deployment of new missiles in Europe if the Russians would dismantle their latest models aimed at Western Europe, and had offered a reduction in deployments.

"Well, you start bargaining from there, Reagan said. 'We'll negotiate in good faith, but we'll do everything we can to get it to zero ...'"

"I think one of the things going for us in these negotiations is that this is the first time that we have sat at the table opposite them in which they've got some interest in coming together in the negotiation because we're not busily disarming ourselves," Reagan said.

On his responsibility for nuclear weapons, he said, "It is awesome. I don't have nightmares about it."

Miss Walters said she understood that Reagan has about 17 minutes to react to an attack by Soviet-based missiles. "Seventeen minutes is generous," replied the president, adding that Soviet missile subs in the Atlantic reduce reaction time to "only a very few minutes."

Asked what letter grade he would assign himself as president, Reagan said he would resist self-grading "because most of my high school and college career, a C average was eligibility for sports, and I figured that that was the standard to shoot at to remain eligible, but I want a little better than that in this job."

He said "yes" when asked if he was doing "much better than a C," but when offered B-plus as a possibility, replied, "No, I wouldn't know how to."

The broadcast, taped Tuesday, contained the first televised scenes of Reagan's California ranch overlooking the Pacific. Features included his collections of guns, belt buckles and hats and the president driving the interviewer in what she called "the scroungiest Jeep."

Reagan's daughter Patti, among friends and family also interviewed for the show, said that since the March 30 attempt on his life, there is "something in his eyes now that I never have seen before ... when I see it then I have to confront his mortality, and I don't want to do that."

Reagan himself, asked what adjectives he would apply to himself, echoed his daughter's phrase, "soft touch," adding, "Sometimes I'm stubborn."

"There's a terrible fight goes on inside of you between vanity and modesty," he said.

Members of the Reagan family gathered at the ranch for the holiday enjoyed a traditional Thanksgiving dinner. On hand were Reagan's brother, Neil "Moon" Reagan and his wife, Bess; the president's daughter, Maureen, and her husband, Dennis Revell; and the Reagans' youngest daughter, Patti Davis. Reagan's sons, Michael and Ron, said they were unable to attend.

On other topics, Reagan said:

—His biggest disappointment has been the inability to plug leaks to reporters in a city of "one giant ear."

—His hardest decision probably was the veto of the stopgap spending resolution on Monday.

—David A. Stockman, the budget director, "was not the sinner. He was sinned against" in the magazine article in which Stockman expressed doubts about the administration's economic program.

—On Richard V. Allen, the national security adviser who received $1,000 and two watches in connection with an interview with Nancy Reagan, "all that we hear is that the Japanese who sent the envelope in the first place have corroborated everything that's been said. But I can't comment further because the investigation is going on, and we'll wait for the end of it."

—His real concern about safety since the attempt on his life "is the knowledge now that I could be a threat to others because of what happened to others when this started." Press secretary James S. Brady, one of three other people wounded during the attack, was released from the hospital only this week.

New Confrontation Is Building Up In Poland

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — A new labor-government confrontation over alleged police brutality appeared to be building up today in Poland's southern coal fields.

The new threat to the nation's chief earner of foreign exchange developed as West European nations said they were nearing the limit of their ability to send aid to shortage-wracked Poland.

It also coincided with today's opening of a meeting of the Polish Communist Party's 200-member Central Committee, convened to discuss ways of easing the nation's economic woes and implementing reforms proposed at the party congress last July. Some observers expected the meeting to be a forum for fresh attacks on the Solidarity labor movement.

Officials of the Solidarity labor federation in the Silesian town of Chorzow accused the local police of beating up and arresting about 20 union militants on Wednesday to stop them putting up union signs around the town. The officials claimed one of the men was hospitalized with a concussion.

Chorzow union leaders called a local factory strike alert and demanded punishment of those responsible for the police action. They said if the demand was not met, "we will gradually intensify the action up to a general strike in the region," which includes the coal mines that produce Poland's principal export.

The government television service reported all those arrested had been released. But there was no word of any action against the police.

The last Solidarity-government crisis over police brutality occurred eight months ago after police on March 19 beat up three union leaders who refused to leave a government-union meeting in the northwest town of Bydgoszcz. After a nationwide four-hour warning strike eight days later, the government took disciplinary action against the police to avert a general strike.

Elsewhere in Poland, about 1,500 drillers were on strike in the southern oil fields, farmers were occupying public buildings in three towns, and 100,000 students were striking at 91 colleges and universities.

The leading hardliner on the Communist Party Politburo, Stefan Olszowski, accused the strikers of wanting to destroy Polish communism.

"Political reactionaries and counter-revolutionaries may start provocations aimed at bloodshed," he wrote in the party newspaper Trybuna Ludu.

Bird-Lovers Save Some Geese; Fight Not Over

THOMASVILLE, N.C. (AP) — The president of a Randolph County country club says he's lost a battle but not the war after some club members thwarted plans to shoot a group of Canada geese that live around the club's golf course.

"I'm trying to do what 15 board members and 250 golfers have decided, and I don't intend to let 30 homeowners dictate what is best for Colonial Country Club," said J.C. McLain.

Wildlife officials ordered the hunt cancelled Thursday after private property owners with waterfront lots baited the area with corn and posted "no trespassing" signs on their property.

Regulations prohibit hunting within 300 yards of the bait, making a legal hunt almost impossible, wildlife officers said. All bait would have to be gone before the hunt could be rescheduled, they added.

The club's board of directors contends the geese have become overpopulated and damage to the golf course greens, necessitating expensive repairs. The board invited members and their guests to one or more hunts to thin out the goose population.

McLain said that between 84 and 150 geese have been counted each day in the past two weeks around the lakes and ponds that surround the private, 18-hole golf course, which lies just east of Thomasville in Randolph County.

Around 14 cars entered the front gate to Colonial during the hour before the hunt was to begin a 6:30 a.m. Thursday, but left shortly after being informed the hunt had been called off.

Kathy Bosken, a spokesman for about 30 homeowners opposed to the hunt, admitted that private property around the lake had been baited on Tuesday and Wednesday night in an attempt to block the hunt. But she said hearing that the hunt actually had been called off was a surprise.

"We were greatly relieved that the safety of our homes was not jeopardized this morning, and we have greatly appreciated the support members of the community have shown during this ordeal," she said.

Life As It's Lived

Greatest Deterrent To Hearing Future Is Fear

By GAIL MICHAELS

Whether it's the hot pink paint of Madame Lurane's trailer or the monster hand beckoning from the front of Madame Anita's rather dilapidated frame house, I can never pass by a palmist's advertisement without experiencing a faint twinge of regret.

I'd like nothing better than to step in and hear what these dear ladies have to tell me, for even the vaguest possibility of prophesying the future with some accuracy holds an intense attraction for me.

But I'll probably never yield to impulse, partly because budgetary considerations prevent my wasting money on something which, according to conventional wisdom, is a hoax. On the other hand, the possibility that the fortune teller might only be slightly off-base is also discouraging. I don't think I could bear the disappointment of hearing that a tall, dark stranger would bring adventure and intrigue into my life only to find that this meant the postman would mistakenly leave me my neighbor's copy of The National Enquirer.

The greatest deterrent, however, to my seeking out a seer is fear. As alluring as the prospect of foreseeing the future is, I find that it is also terrifying. Perhaps this is because my own intimations of the future tend to be cataclysmic in nature. I don't need a palmist to tell me that the suspicion, envy and prejudice so prevalent in the world today can only be leading toward disaster.

Thank goodness my daughter has not yet been infected by such pessimism. Her innocence promises her a future filled with delight. So it was with no trepidation whatsoever that she marched into the fortune teller's booth at the local Halloween carnival and heard the prophecies which made her eyes dance with joy.

What's more, she did not take them lightly. Last week when a young salesman asked her what Santa was bringing her, she responded, "I don't really know, but it's sure to be something wonderful because a fortune teller told me so."

"She did?" the salesman said. "What else did she tell you?"

"She told me something good was going to happen at school and I guess that was today because it was my teacher's birthday and she brought us all cupcakes, and," she continued, pausing only for air, "that fortune teller told me that someday I was going to be rich!"

The salesman opened his eyes wide with wonder. "Really?"

Meg was delighted to have such an attentive listener. "Yes, and do you know that she could tell all that just by looking at my hand?" Isn't that amazing?"

Meg gave his hand a thorough perusal. "Well," she finally answered with great solemnity, "I can tell that one day you'll be a nice old man."

Now I don't have to worry about consulting an outside psychic. With vision like Meg's, I definitely can't go wrong.

Uncertainty In Poisoning

REIDSVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Rockingham County officials say they're still uncertain about the what made 26 elementary-school pupils ill this week after eating a Thanksgiving dinner in a school cafeteria.

Officials said early evidence pointed to food poisoning, but sanitarians have not completely ruled out the possibility of virus.

Samples of turkey served to the Lawsonville Avenue Elementary School students on Tuesday have been sent to the state department laboratory in Raleigh for testing, said Vince Thompson, director of the Rockingham County Health Department.

Thompson said health department officials have interviewed the children to determine what the students had eaten. Although the meal included dressing, gravy, cranberry sauce, green beans and candied yams, the turkey was the only food left from the dinner, he said.

Children began arriving at Annie Penn Memorial Hospital after eating the school's annual Thanksgiving fare. None was seriously ill and all were treated and released. Hospital officials said most of the victims were suffering from stomach upsets, diarrhea and vomiting and were put on liquid diets.

School Principal Bob Moore said 380 people ate the lunch.

The students affected were in grades kindergarten to the fifth grade and most were back in school Wednesday. Reidsville School Superintendent Jim Hardy said. According to Hardy, it was the first time an incident involving possible food poisoning at the school had occurred.

Inmate Suffers Fatal Stabbing

ELIZABETH CITY, N.C. (AP) — Two inmates at the Currituck County Correctional Facility are suspects in the stabbing death of another inmate, a prison spokesman said.

State correction department spokesman Stuart Shadbolt said Percy Black of Goldsboro, 27, was stabbed Thursday afternoon, he died at an Elizabeth City hospital at about 3:45 p.m., Shadbolt said.

Black was serving a 10-year sentence for murder and manslaughter.

The State Bureau of Investigation and the Currituck County Sheriff's Department are investigating.

Celebration

The Barnes Sisters in Christ Gospel Singers will celebrate their second annual Musicians Appreciation Anniversary at Mount Calvary Free Will Baptist Church at 7:30 p.m. Sunday.

Predicts Downfall Of Conservative-Labor Politics

By MAUREEN JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer

CROSBY, England (AP) — Shirley Williams, co-founder of Britain's new Social Democratic Party, said her victory in a special parliamentary election is the beginning of the end of Conservative-Labor domination of British politics.

"The election of the first Social Democratic Party candidate ever in this country is the beginning of a great moment of history — an idea that has found its time," the former Labor cabinet minister told wildly cheering supporters after she won the Crosby seat in the House of Commons that the Conservatives had held for 63 years.

"The mold of British politics has been totally broken. It will never, ever be the same again."

"This is not for us a party but a crusade. It is an attempt to find a democratic alternative to ... the growing extremism of politics in Britain."

Mrs. Williams, 51, becomes the new party's 24th member of Commons and the 35th member of the centrist alliance of Social Democrats and Liberals. All the other Social Democrats were elected as Laborites or Conservatives and defected after Mrs. Williams and three others formed the new party last March.

Mrs. Williams defeated Conservative candidate John Butcher, 39, by 5,289 votes in a district outside Liverpool that elected a Conservative in 1979 by a 19,272-vote margin. It was the largest reversal in a special election since World War II.

The left-wing Labor candidate, John Backhouse, 28, got only 9.5 percent of the vote.

Voters deserted both the Conservatives and Labor in favor of the new centrist movement. Mrs. Williams captured 25.5 percent of the Conservative vote and 24.9 percent of the Labor vote.

The election result did not threaten Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's safe, 37-seat majority in the House of Commons. But it was a serious psychological blow to Mrs. Thatcher, whose government and party trail far behind the Social Democratic-Liberal alliance and the Laborites in public opinion polls because of the unemployment and business failures generated by her tight-money policies.

Mrs. Thatcher congratulated Mrs. Williams on a "great personal victory." But she said she still believes her policies are best for Britain's future, and that this will be apparent before the next general election, which must be held by 1984.

Alliance leaders were overjoyed at the victory, saying the movement was now optimistic it could win the general election and form Britain's first postwar government controlled by neither Labor nor the Conservatives.

Other analysts said there were big swings to the Liberals in special elections before the advent of the Social Democrats, but the voters returned to the major parties in the general elections.

Labor Party leader Michael Foot conceded Crosby was a "serious defeat" and blamed it on the fighting between the left and right wings of his party.

Shoots Self In Standoff

HAZEL GREEN, Ala. (AP) — A 47-year-old Florida man who killed himself after holding six people at gunpoint during a stand-off with police had been arrested previously for involvement in a hostage situation, police said.

Phillip Gordon Ardzone, 47, held police at bay into the early hours of Thanksgiving in this north Alabama community, while holding his former wife and five others hostage in a house trailer, police said.

Ardzone, armed with a homemade bomb, a pistol and a sawed-off shotgun, shot himself after authorities threatened to take the trailer by force, police said.

The hostages were released unharmed.

Authorities said Ardzone abducted Mrs. Ardzone and her boyfriend, John Marsh Minter, Wednesday as the couple left Minter's place of employment in Huntsville. Ardzone forced the couple to drive to Mrs. Ardzone's house trailer where other family members had gathered for the Thanksgiving holidays.

Madison County Sheriff Joe Patterson said Ardzone released a 14-year-old niece of Mrs. Ardzone around 9 p.m. and later released his former wife's sister, who alerted authorities.

Police talked with Ardzone by phone until 2:30 a.m. Thursday, when Patterson said he told the gunman to release the hostages within 30 minutes or deputies and a state SWAT team would storm the trailer.

The sheriff said Minter and Mrs. Ardzone's sons were released shortly after, and that as Mrs. Ardzone left the trailer, a shot was heard from inside the home.

Patterson said Ardzone's body was found near a metal tool box packed with 20 pounds of black powder and armed with three switches.

Consumers In Russia Enjoy 'Modest Gains

WASHINGTON (AP) — Efforts by the Soviet Union to upgrade consumer living standards have made only "modest progress" and are likely to "slow to a crawl" in coming years, according to a study commissioned by the CIA.

"Shoddy goods and services, queues and shortages have become characteristic features of everyday (Soviet) life, along with endemic black markets and corruption," said the study released Thursday by the congressional Joint Economic Committee.

The study said that Soviet priorities favoring heavy industry and defense and a "rigid and cumbersome" economic system "have combined to produce a consumer sector that not only lags badly behind both the West and Eastern Europe, but also is in many respects primitive, grossly unbalanced."

Soviet per capita consumption of consumer goods and services is less than a third of that in the United States, according to the study, which said that during the 1970s the gap between U.S. and Soviet living standards widened after narrowing somewhat in the 1960s.

"Over the past 20 years, the Soviets have made the most progress in 'catching up' in food, soft goods and durables, but have retrogressed relative to the United States in housing, recreation, education and health," the study said.

The report was based on a detailed analysis of economic data from 1976, along with estimates of expected trends since then.

It said that in 1976, food, beverages and tobacco accounted for 46 percent of total household spending in the Soviet Union — compared with 17 percent in the United States, 23 percent in France, 27 percent in West Germany, 29 percent in Japan and 35 percent in Spain.

The overall pattern of Soviet consumer spending "in many respects conforms to that in the less developed countries, and remarkably little progress toward a more modern pattern has been made in recent decades," the study said.

An "extraordinarily large share" — 17 percent — of Soviet household outlays went for hard liquor, compared with 1 percent to 6 percent in the United States and other Western countries, the report said.

"The data do not include production of home brew, which adds substantially to Soviet consumption, making the U.S.S.R. a leader in the world hard-liquor-drinking league and creating serious social and economic problems," the report said.

Gertrude E. Schroeder, an economics professor at the University of Virginia, was commissioned by the CIA's Office of Economic Research to direct the study, which was released as part of a series of Joint Economic Committee reviews of the Soviet economy.

Drinks-Server Can Be Liable

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Drinkers with an "exceptional mental or physical condition" are an exception to a state law designed to protect tavern owners and social hosts in law suits stemming from injuries the drinker may cause, an appellate court has ruled.

A three-judge state Court of Appeal ruled Wednesday in the case of Doris Cantor, owner of a home for the mentally disabled in Sacramento County. Ms. Cantor said she was injured in an attack by a resident of the home after some neighbors served him drinks.

The 1978 law involved said servers of alcohol cannot be sued for injuries caused by adults who drink the alcohol, even if the servers have reason to know the drinkers are already drunk and plan to drive.

Ms. Cantor's suit, which had been dismissed by a lower court, said the attacker, identified as Edward M., had been served alcohol by neighbors, Michael and Laureen Anderson, who allegedly knew of his disability.

After drinking, she said, Edward fell into a seizure, lost consciousness and later became violent, attacking her when she tried to help him, Ms. Cantor alleged. She sued the Andersons for her injuries.

The appellate ruling revived her suit, but the panel held she must prove the Andersons not only knew of Edward's disability but also knew or should have known the effect that liquor would have on him because of his disability.

The 1978 law involved declares neither businesses nor social hosts liable for injuries caused by drinkers. But Justice Coleman Blease cited another part of the law saying the Legislature was returning to "prior judicial interpretation," before state Supreme Court decisions in the 1970s that found drink-servers liable.

Those prior rulings the Legislature has revived made the drinker alone liable for the injuries.

He said the decision does not mean that drink-servers are automatically liable for injuries caused by drinkers who are retarded, or that retarded persons are "necessarily incapable of handling alcohol."

Blease added that a social host is not protected by the 1978 law if he knew that his guest because of some physical or mental condition shouldn't be served drink, and if the host was, or should have been, aware of the risks in providing such people with alcohol.

Raid Homes Of 4 Clergy

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Security police today searched the homes of at least four prominent religious leaders and detained several anti-apartheid activists, the South African Press Association reported.

The domestic news agency said reporters, lawyers and friends were prevented from entering the homes while the searches were conducted.

Among those searched were the homes of Dr. Wolfram Kistner, a senior official of the South African Council of Churches, the Rev. Geoff Davies, an Anglican minister, and Dr. Beyers Naude, the former director of the Christian Institute, SAPA said reported.

The white-minority government has been increasingly critical in recent months of clergymen and the multi-racial Council of Churches for pressing for reforms in apartheid, the government's official policy of racial segregation.

A council spokesman confirmed the police search. He also reported the detention of a prominent black trade union official, Emma Mashinini.

SAPA reported earlier that six other people, including a student leader and a former president of the National Union of South African Students, had been picked up by police and were being held under security laws that allow detention without charge and without access to lawyers.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

AND AGAIN I SAY UNTO YOU, IT IS EASIER FOR A CAMEL TO GO THROUGH THE EYE OF A NEEDLE, THAN FOR A RICH MAN TO ENTER INTO THE KINGDOM OF GOD. MATT. 19:24

ROPE OR CAMEL—WHICH DID JESUS REALLY SAY?

IF YOU HEARD SOMEBODY SAY, "I TORE A LEAF..." YOU COULDN'T BE TOO SURE WHAT WAS MEANT UNTIL THEY FINISHED THE SENTENCE. "I TORE A LEAF...OFF THE TREE!" NOW YOU'D KNOW WHAT WAS MEANT! "I TORE A LEAF...OUT OF THE BOOK!" AGAIN YOU'D KNOW EXACTLY WHAT WAS MEANT—THE SAME WORD BUT WITH TWO ENTIRELY DIFFERENT MEANINGS: ONE, THE FOLIAGE THAT GROWS ON A TREE; TWO, A PIECE OF PAPER THAT'S BOUND IN A BOOK.

IN JUST THE SAME MANNER DOES THE ARAMAIC WORD "GAMLA" MEAN CAMEL; OR A ROPE; OR A BEAM. WHEN JESUS, SPEAKING IN THE ONLY LANGUAGE HE KNEW, ARAMAIC, SAID, "DADLIL LGAMLA LMEAL BAKHRORA DAMGATA AU ATIRA DNEAOL LMACOOTH DALAHA," HE ACTUALLY SAID "IT IS EASIER FOR A ROPE TO GO THROUGH THE EYE OF A NEEDLE THAN FOR A RICH MAN TO ENTER INTO THE KINGDOM OF GOD." IN FACT, HE WAS ONLY USING A VERY POPULAR EXPRESSION OF THE DAY. EASTERN WOMEN, WHEN SHOPPING FOR THREAD WOULD OFTEN SAY, IF THE THREAD WAS TOO THICK, "IT IS A ROPE, IT WILL NOT GO THROUGH THE EYE OF MY NEEDLE!"

BUT WHEN THE EARLY GREEKS TRANSLATED THE NEW TESTAMENT BOOKS, FROM ARAMAIC INTO GREEK, THEY DIDN'T REALIZE THAT, IN ARAMAIC CUSTOM, NEEDLE AND ROPE HAD ANY CONNECTION. ONE OF THEM, OBVIOUSLY, DID KNOW THAT "GAMLA" MEANT CAMEL AND SO TRANSLATED IT THAT WAY—AND, FROM THAT DAY ON, THOUSANDS UPON THOUSANDS OF PRIESTS, MINISTERS, AND PREACHERS HAVE MISQUOTED JESUS WITHOUT KNOWING THEY WERE DOING SO! THIS DISCREPANCY WAS FINALLY BROUGHT TO LIGHT IN THE 1920'S, IN A SERIES OF LECTURES BY PROF. GEORGE M. LAMSA, EMINENT ETHNOLOGIST AND ARAMAIC LANGUAGE EXPERT—WHICH HAPPENED TO BE HIS OWN MOTHER-TONGUE!

If You Have a Habit Of Following The Crowd, We Suggest, The Best Crowd to Follow is the Crowd Going To Church

Leave Church Only To Return

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - A major sociological study, hailed as useful both to Protestants and Roman Catholics, finds that most of those who drop out of church do so because they consider the teachings dull and lacking relevance to life.

One of the most striking, practical findings was that the invitation of a friend, associate, relative or neighbor is the main reason unchurched people return to church life - in 83 percent of the cases.

Overall, among young and older people, the main reason given for dropping out of church - for 42 percent - was dissatisfaction with church practices and teachings, complaints of inadequate Bible study, lack of application to life, boredom and overemphasis on money.

The second biggest portion of returnees - 41 percent - sensed a void of meaninglessness and emotional depression outside church life and sought to fill that spiritual gap. Also about 30 percent came back because they felt guilt and a need for church worship.

Most "returnees" go into updated, post-Vatican Council type parishes "with a variety of liturgical forms and participatory leadership" with which members can identify, the report says.

It cites several main types of dropouts, including: "Family tension dropouts" who experience home tensions, quitting church when free from the pressure of it; "lifestyle dropouts" objecting to church moral teachings, some divorced, and "spiritual-need dropouts" often gravitating to other religious groups.

The First Sunday of Advent

Prayer for the Sick, unsaved, etc.
Bible Study - Every Wed. 7:30 p.m. Before the 3rd and 5th Sunday.
Consecration and Dedication Service - 7:30 p.m. Mon. Fri. Every Week before the 1st Sunday in each month.
Quarterly Meeting - Every 1st Sun. in March, June, Sept. and Dec. 6th 1981
Holy Communion - 7:30 p.m. Every 1st Sun. High in March, June, Sept. and December 6th.

The findings were among those in a three-year study involving extensive interviews with 590 persons - 210 converts to Roman Catholicism, 182 "dropouts" and 198 "returnees" to that church.

A "milestone work," filling the need for "facts about why people move in and out of the church," says Archbishop Edward O'Meara of Indianapolis, head of the Catholic bishops' committee on evangelization.

Paradoxically, intermarriage was found to be the main reason both for conversions to Roman Catholicism and for breaking off identification with that church, a two-way traffic in and out, generally among young couples.

Their departure comes at a period "characterized by doubt, critical judgment of tradition and desire for experimentation with other lifestyles and commitments," the report says, adding: "The church should recognize this natural stage and not try to extinguish it."

CONCERT
Minnie Edwards and the Gospel Starlights will be in concert at the White Oak Baptist Church, Grimesland, on Dec. 6, at 7:30 p.m.

The program will be sponsored by the Sycamore Chapel Young Adult Ushers. The Rev. Hue Walston, pastor, invites the public.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market resumed its pre-Thanksgiving rally with a moderate advance today.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up 26.35 Tuesday and Wednesday, rose 4.47 to 882.61 by noon-time today.

Gainers held a 7.5 lead over losers in the mid-day tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Trading was quiet, as expected, with many investors taking a long holiday weekend.

International Business Machines led the active list, up 1 to 53 1/2.

Merck, also active, rose 2 1/2 to 86 1/4. The company received approval Wednesday from the Food and Drug Administration for its drug timolol, developed to reduce the risk of recurrence of heart attacks.

The NYSE's composite index gained .24 to 72.39. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 5.40 to 328.76.

Volume on the Big Board totaled 13.88 million shares at noontime, against 28.99 million at the same point Wednesday.

2 Accidents On Thursday

An estimated $2,100 property damage resulted from two separate but related traffic mishaps that occurred about 5:30 p.m. Thursday on Memorial Drive, 4,000 feet north of the Third Street intersection.

Police reported a car driven by Joseph Earl Highsmith of Route 6, Greenville, struck a deer which darted across the roadway, causing an estimated $500 damage to the Highsmith vehicle.

Officers said after car struck the deer, Highsmith stopped his car in the roadway, and a car driven by Angela Dale Simmons, seeing the Highsmith car stopped, swerved to keep from hitting the vehicle.

However, the Simmons car and a vehicle driven by Sam Blue of Route 1, Winterville, collided, causing an estimated $1,300 damage to the Simmons vehicle and $300 damage to the Blue vehicle.

Police charged Blue with driving without a license.

Spoke To Class

Don Walter, sales representative for J.P. Stevens & Co., talked to Betty Langston's advanced housing class at North Pitt High School recently, discussing the different types of rugs and carpeting available to today's consumers.

Walter explained the advantages of each type of rug and carpet. Different fibers used were shown for students to compare as well as hints for choosing carpeting for the home. He also gave tips on the best way to clean carpet.

The class has been studying different backgrounds used in home decorating.

ANNIVERSARY
The English Chapel Free Will Baptist Church on Greenville Boulevard will celebrate the 10th anniversary of its pastor, Bishop W.L. Phillips, on Sunday at 7:30 p.m. The service will be open to the public.

Ross Honored

Charles Ross, director of instruction for the Greenville City Schools, was recently honored by the North Carolina Elementary Committee of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools.

Ross was presented a "certificate of appreciation" by Dr. Madeline Tripp, consultant to the N.C. Elementary Committee, at the fall meeting held in Kinston. The certificate is in recognition of outstanding services to the committee, which is a part of the Commission on Elementary Schools.

Ross coordinated the unit-wide self-study and the Southern Association Visitation Committees to the Greenville City Schools when all the elementary schools in Greenville received initial accreditation by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools in 1979.

He has also assisted the commission by serving on a number of Southern Association Accreditation teams for other units as well as acting as chairman for some of the visitation teams.

Ross was one of only three educators statewide to receive the committee's "certificate of appreciation."

Pirates Open '81 Season Saturday Against Ohio

A Staff Report

East Carolina's Pirates, who lost in a tight exhibition game to the Australian National team on Monday, 72-71, open the season for real Saturday night, playing host to Ohio University.

The game is set for 7:30 p.m. in Minges Coliseum.

For East Carolina, it is the beginning of its 50th year of basketball — and observers hope, the start of a "Golden Age."

The meeting of the two teams is the second. They opened the season against each other last year, with the Pirates coming out on top in Athens, Ohio, 67-65.

And East Carolina coach Dave Odom is looking for a game that will be just as close. "They'll be a mirror of our team," Odom said of the Bearcats. "Much like last year, I look at the game as a toss-up, and I'll be surprised if it's any different this year. Both teams are improved, at least I hope we are. I know they are."

Odom said he expects a "cleaner" game from the standpoint of having fewer turnovers and fouls.

Ohio is picked by most to finished in the middle part of the Mid-America Conference race. "Even that's an improvement for them," Odom said. "Usually they're picked at the bottom. Their program is a lot like ours in that they have a relatively new coach and are trying to overcome a series of losing years."

Still, Odom doesn't feel that it's a make-or-break game for either team. "Both of us have impossible December schedules, with a lot of road games. It is an important game for us in that it's a home game, and I don't want us to lose at home this year. With the rough road schedule we need to win here.

"It's also important to us in the way of confidence. We want to improve our competitive nature. Let's face it — this is our home, our castle and we've got to rule it."

Ohio is expected to start 6-0 senior Kirk Lehman (12 points per game last year) and Eric Hilton, a 6-2 junior (9.4 ppg) at the guard positions. The forwards will probably be Tim Woodson, a 6-4 junior (13.4 ppg, 6.4 rebounds), and Nate Cole, a 6-7 sophomore (6.4 ppg, 5.2 rpg). At center will be 6-8 John Devereaux, 6-8, who averaged 8.4 points and 6.7 rebounds a game last year.

"Lehman is the best of their veterans, and Devereaux and Woodson are both good players. They have some good newcomers too."

"I think the team that controls the inside may have a slight advantage in the game," Odom said. "Otherwise it's a dead-even game."

The Pirates are expected to start 6-4 senior Tony Byles at the point, with 6-3 junior Charles Watkins at the other guard slot. Charles Green, a 6-7 junior and Morris Hargrove, a 6-7 sophomore, will be the forwards with 6-8 senior Michael Gibson at the center spot.

Hargrove scored 23 points and had nine rebounds against the Australians, while Green had 16 points, Watkins had 12 and Gibson had nine.

Senior forward Mark McLaurin, who sat out the Australian game with a hand injury is expected to be able to play Saturday, but Odom said he was not sure how effective he would be because of the injury.

A-G Battles 'Dogs Tonight

LITTLEFIELD — Ayden-Grifton will be out to end Burlington Williams' trek toward a second straight state 3-A championship tonight when the Chargers play host to the Bulldogs in the semifinals of the Division I State High School Playoffs.

The Bulldogs, 12-0-0 this season, come into the game riding a 31-game winning streak and having been ranked #1 in the state since early in this season. Burlington Williams won the 3-A title last year, defeating Lexington, 19-14.

The Chargers, 10-2-0 this season, are riding a streak of their own. They have won seven straight games and have not lost at home in seven games, dating back to last Oct. 17 when North Lenoir beat A-G, 20-6.

Burlington Williams defeated Ragsdale, 22-10, and Clinton, 28-7, to advance to tonight's game — its first road game in the playoffs. Ayden-Grifton shut out White Oak, 8-0, and rallied past Warren County, 14-6, to move into tonight's contest.

Williams is led by a pair of all-state performers, quarterback Pete Moore and linebacker Donald Beard. Both were named to the Shrine Bowl team earlier this week.

Moore has completed nearly 51% of his passes this season for 900 yards out of Williams' wishbone attack. Gary Blackwell leads the Bulldogs in rushing with nearly 900 yards and 10 touchdowns.

Beard leads the Bulldog wide-tackle six defense which has held opponents to 95 points in 12 games this season.

Ayden-Grifton will counter with the running of fullback Gregory Jackson and tailback Cleveland Coley and defensive lineman Chuck Smithwick, Donovan Arnold, Kevin Craft and Matthew McCotter.

Jackson, a 6-1, 190-pound senior, has rushed for 1,208 yards this season. Coley, a 5-5, 145-pound senior, is close behind with 1,014 yards. Jackson also plays guard on defense while Coley mans one of the linebacker slots.

Smithwick, Arnold, Craft and McCotter lead one of the quickest defenses in the 3-A ranks, a defense that has shut out four opponents and given up only 102 points this season.

Game time is 8 p.m. at Littlefield.

N.Y. Clubs Still In Playoff Picture

Lions Whip Chiefs; Cowboys Edge Bears In 'Turkey' Contests

By The Associated Press

The fourth weekend in November is coming up — and guess what? Both of New York's teams are still in the running for the National Football League playoffs.

The Giants and Jets, perennial losers through the '70s, both are experiencing their best seasons in years and have the chance Sunday to move closer to a playoff position.

The Giants travel to San Francisco for a game with the 49ers while the Jets play host to the Baltimore Colts.

Giants linebacker Brad van Pelt, for one, feels the attitude in New York. "This is the first time this late in the season that we haven't been out of the playoff picture," he says. "It has made it pretty exciting."

The Giants, 6-6 in the National Conference East, are shooting for a Wild Card berth. They'll face a tough 49er team that is riding high in the NFC West. If the 49ers win Sunday, they will be the first team to clinch a division title this season.

The Jets, having won four straight games, can take sole possession of first place in the American Conference East by sending the hapless Colts down to their 12th consecutive loss. Richard Todd, who played last Sunday against Miami with a fractured rib, has a sprained left ankle to go along with it.

He suffered the ankle injury when one of his linemen stepped on it in the second quarter against the Dolphins.

Sunday's other games are Denver at San Diego, Cincinnati at Cleveland, Green Bay at Minnesota, Atlanta at Houston, Washington at Buffalo, Los Angeles at Pittsburgh, Oakland at Seattle, Tampa Bay at New Orleans and St. Louis at New England. On Monday night, Philadelphia visits Miami.

In Thursday's games, the Dallas Cowboys edged the Chicago Bears 10-9 and the Detroit Lions walloped the Kansas City Chiefs 27-10.

The Broncos are battling to win the AFC West and trying to stave off a charge by the suddenly revived Chargers. Craig Morton, the Denver quarterback ranked No. 1 among NFL passers, sat out the Broncos' loss in Cincinnati with a sprained right shoulder and is a questionable starter against San Diego.

The Bengals can kill Cleveland's playoff hopes and retain their two-game AFC Central lead — or widen it. The Vikings are trying to retain their hold on the NFC's Central Division lead. The 5-7 Packers, who have won five games each of the past two seasons, are coming off their worst loss of the year, a 37-3 rout by Tampa Bay.

The Falcons, their faint playoff hopes still alive, begin a three-game road trip in Houston. Buffalo moved within one-half game of first place in the AFC East with a victory last week over New England. The Redskins hope to start a new winning streak after losing last Sunday for the first time in five games.

The Rams and Steelers are meeting for the first time since Pittsburgh's 31-19 victory in Super Bowl XIV. Both teams are having off seasons, though, and will probably spend the 1981 playoffs on the sidelines.

Similarly, the Raiders don't appear to have much of a chance to defend the Super Bowl title they won last Jan. 25, but they hope to beat the Seahawks for the fourth straight time.

New Orleans has beaten Tampa Bay two in a row. The Bucs will be trying to stop George Rogers, whose 142 yards in Houston last Sunday gave him 1,279 for the year.

The Patriots are the NFL's most luckless team this year. The last-play loss to Buffalo was the fifth of their 10 defeats that has been by a margin of four points or less.

In Thursday's action, Dallas fullback Ron Springs circled left end on a 5-yard touchdown run with 5:09 to play, and Rafael Septien added the extra point that gave the Cowboys victory over the Bears.

Playing without starting quarterback Danny White, who left the game midway through the second quarter with bruised ribs, the Cowboys rallied behind backup quarterback Glenn Carano for the game-winning touchdown.

Dallas survived a brilliant performance by Chicago running back Walter Payton, who rushed for 179 yards on 38 carries.

Quarterback Eric Hipple threw two touchdown passes and the Detroit defense contained Kansas City's defense as the Lions whipped the Chiefs.

The Lions' defense came up with five quarterback sacks that cost the Chiefs 40 yards and intercepted two Kansas City passes.

Linebacker Stan White, the Detroit defensive captain, said

ECU's Charles Green 'Bowling' Them Over

Don't be surprised if you walk into East Carolina University's Mendenhall Student Center bowling lanes and find a hulking 6-7, 200-pound giant of a figure having fun rolling a few frames.

Not your typical bowler stereotype, the lean-framed Charles Green, a junior college transfer forward in his first year on the Pirate basketball squad, did not take up bowling until last summer when he took a physical education course in it.

"I like bowling," says the shy and quiet Green, "but I only go when I can find a ball to fit my fingers. I use a 15-pound ball. It was something I had never done before and it turns out I liked it."

But watch out because Green seems adept at most anything he tries for the first time.

It turns out that Green also likes basketball, something he didn't play competitively until his 10th grade year in high school. Green had been a football player, a 6-4, 200-pound tight end with a possible future catching passes.

"If it weren't for my junior high school coach moving up as the high school coach," admits Green, "I would have never played basketball. He gave me a tryout and I've been playing every since."

Green, who played on the junior varsity that year and on the varsity at Spingarn High School after transferring the following year, didn't star in the team. In fact, he wasn't even recruited as a prepster.

"While growing up in Washington, D.C., I watched the older players and that helped me," offers Green. "I used that to my advantage. It was at the last minute that I decided to attend Catonsville Community College in Baltimore, Md."

Watching D.C. natives Albert King (former University of Maryland star), Larry Spriggs (a 1981 second-round draft choice of the Houston Rockets) and Terry Henderson (now playing with George Mason University) certainly helped the talented-yet-untapped Green. But it still wasn't easy.

"I was going for the education and I was really excited about it," explains Green. "I

Charles Green

I didn't see any films and I didn't even know any won-loss records. The coaches were just honest."

For an individual who didn't play basketball until he was 16, an individual who had no confidence in his basketball ability, Green had matured.

"I didn't have confidence on the court as a kid," says Green. "I really liked football. In 10th grade I never thought I'd be playing college basketball. And I thought my junior college career would be the end. I just hope it keeps rolling. People ask me about the pros. I don't think about that. It's slim to none for anyone to make it. If the opportunity presents itself, I'd take it."

Like previous opportunities with basketball, a college education and bowling, the opportunistic kid was Washington, D.C., just might make it.

missed the basketball tryouts, but coach Joe Johnson let me try out anyway. I was one of the last forwards to be considered for a spot on the team. I hustled and took advantage of the opportunity."

Take advantage he did! During his freshman season Green averaged 17 points and 10 rebounds per game, was named all-region first team, all-Junior College first team, Catonsville Male Athlete of the Year, team MVP and had the eighth-best field goal percentage in the nation at 66 percent. As a sophomore he again received first team all-region and all-Junior College accolades. He averaged 18.9 points, 12 boards and three assists per contest and as a consequence was named to the all-Junior College all-star team.

"Not bad for a kid relatively new to the sport."

"I read in the school newspaper that I was a candidate for all-America," quips Green. "Needless to say it surprised me!"

Not so surprising was the attention Green commanded when college recruiters soon came calling. Hounded by James Madison, West Virginia, Villanova, Richmond and 75-80 others, Green chose East Carolina and head coach Dave Odom.

"I liked the coaches," says Green. "It's as simple as that."

Panthers Put No. 1 Ranking On Line

By The Associated Press
 "This is the easiest game to coach, as far as I'm concerned," says Joe Paterno. "You don't have to worry about motivating the kids."
 The Penn State coach is talking about the Pitt game, of course. That's coming up Saturday — and, as usual, has some importance attached to it.
 "Every year this game has grown bigger and bigger," points out Pitt Coach Jackie Sherrill. "The intensity has really increased."

 As so often has happened in the past, the Pitt-Penn State game has national implications. It marks the third time since 1976 that one or the other enters the contest with the No. 1 ranking. This time, Pitt is top-ranked with a 10-0 record and shooting for another national championship, while Penn State is No. 11 at 8-2.
 Penn State leads one of college football's most bitter rivalries 39-38-3.
 "The win over Notre Dame puts us in a more positive frame of mind," said Penn State guard Sean Farrell of last week's victory over the Irish. "We also have the added challenge of going against the No. 1 team."

 Pitt has been invited to play in the Sugar Bowl against third-ranked Georgia on New Year's Day, while Penn State will play in the Fiesta Bowl the same day against Southern Cal.
 Alabama, the nation's fourth-ranked team, will play

Auburn in another of the country's traditional rivalries Saturday. Alabama's Bear Bryant is shooting for his 315th career victory, which would put him all alone at the top of the college football list.
 "I haven't mentioned the record to them," said Bryant of his team, "and I won't. I hope they'll try to win the game for themselves."
 The Crimson Tide, which will play in the Cotton Bowl on New Year's Day against Texas, is heavily favored in this game over their intra-state opponent.

 Other games Saturday include Lamar at No. 17 Southern Mississippi; Arizona at No. 18 Arizona State; Florida State vs. Florida; Boston College against Holy Cross; Oklahoma vs. Oklahoma State; Houston vs. Rice; Tennessee against Vanderbilt and LSU vs. Tulane.
 In a game today, Notre Dame took on Miami of Florida.
 In action Thursday, quarterback Robert Brewer guided seventh-ranked Texas on an 80-yard scoring drive to rally the Longhorns past Texas A&M 21-13. Brewer capped the drive himself with a one-yard sneak.

 Barry Redden rushed for a school record 280 yards and scored two touchdowns as Richmond struggled to an 18-12 victory over Penn. The Spiders overcame a 12-10 halftime deficit with Redden's three-yard touchdown plunge in the third quarter, then staved off a Penn rally.

'Bear' Low-Key About Legendary Win Record

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — It is hard to be low-key about a legend, but Bear Bryant, a legend, is doing his best.
 While everyone else seems to be talking about Bryant's next victory, which will be his 315th and put him all alone at the top of the college football list, the Bear and his Alabama players have other things on their minds — like a victory over intrastate rival Auburn Saturday, a share of the Southeastern Conference crown, perhaps even their third national championship in three years.
 "I haven't mentioned the record to them, and I won't," Bryant insists. "I hope they'll try to win the game for themselves, for their families, for the conference, for the Cotton Bowl (Alabama meets Texas on New Year's Day). And we still have a chance to win the national championship."

East Carolina University's men's and women's basketball teams open their 1981-82 regular season this weekend. The men play Saturday night, hosting Ohio University at 7:30 p.m., while the women are host to Appalachian State on Sunday at 3 p.m.

With the student body gone for Thanksgiving vacation, there will be only a small number of students in the stands and both coaches are hoping for a good turnout of supporters from the community.

East Carolina's men showed Monday in their game against the Australian National team that they are a much improved unit. That they lost a close game to the visitors and had the chance to win it should not take away from the performance the team made. They worked the boards well, shot fairly well — except at the free throw line — and played outstanding defense.

That might be argued in light of Ian Davies' 41 points, but from reports we have received, he's been doing that all along. He was, one might remember, the leading individual scorer in the 1980 Olympics. Most of his points came on long outside bombs when he was heavily guarded.

At any rate, no one could fault the Pirates for their hustle in the game or their defensive efforts.

There were a few lapses, of course, but one must remember that it was also the first game against someone other than themselves. Judgement should be reserved until a few more games have been played at least.

Unfortunately for the Pirates, the month of December will be a tough one. Only two of the first nine games are in Minges Coliseum. After Saturday's game with Ohio, the Pirates travel to Columbia, Mo., for the Missouri Show-Me Classic, facing nationally ranked Missouri in the first round. Then, after hosting Campbell on Monday, December 7, the Bucs are off again, to the Mountaineer Classic, then to single games at Duke, ECAC-South foe George Mason and Baptist College, before finally meeting William & Mary in another ECAC game on January 6 in Minges.

The Lady Pirates meanwhile will be breaking in a lot of new talent on Sunday against Appalachian, and coach Cathy Andruzzi is hopeful that a good start could carry over to Tuesday, when the team travels to Raleigh to face strong N.C. State.

The Lady Pirates beat State twice last year in outstanding overtime games, but this year's team is very, very young and a repeat of those wins would be an even greater upset.

After that, Druz takes her charges to the Dial Classic at Montclair State, returns home to face UNC-Wilmington on December 12, and then is off for six straight on the road. She faces Northwestern, Georgia State, Miami of Florida and Miami of Ohio in a swing through Florida, then goes to Kentucky and Louisiana State before coming home to face Virginia on January 10.

Both coaches would probably be happy to come off these trips with .500 records. Anything above that might easily be counted as gravy for both teams.

It's a rough beginning, but hopefully the lessons learned on these long road trips will pay off down the schedule.

4 Starters Back For Lady 'Skins

By WOODY PEELE
 Reflector Sports Editor
 ROBERSONVILLE — Last year, the Roanoke Lady Redskins posted a fine 20-6 record before losing to eventual State 3-A champ Southwest Edgecombe in the District semifinals.

This year, with four starters back, Coach Phil Griffin is hopeful that the Squaws will be improved — but whether they'll have a record like last year is questionable.

"You know, every girl selected to the all-conference team last year is back this year, so I look for everyone in the league to be improved," Griffin said. "Plymouth won the (Northeastern Conference) title and they should be good again. I think Tarboro has a good club from what I've heard, and I expect Williamston to be strong too."

But where will the Redskins fit in? "I'd like to think that we would be in the top three or four, but some questions are going to have to be answered first."

Griffin's returning starters include 5-10 senior center Anna Moore, 5-8 senior forward Sylvia Parker, 5-7 junior forward/guard Dezella Jones and 5-3 senior guard Evelyn Martin. Joining them is sometime starter 5-8 junior center/forward Mary Bland.

"So far I've been using Sheila Howell (5-5 junior) at the other guard position as a starter, with Bland as my first sub in the front court," Griffin said.

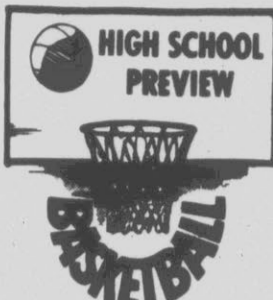

In the backcourt, Griffin looks to Virginia transfer Ginya Smith, a 5-4 sophomore, to provide a lot of help.

Others on the team include 5-10 junior center Paula Reppes, 5-3 junior guard Mary Ann Morning, 5-9 sophomore forward/center Theresa Brown, 5-5 sophomore forward/guard Wanda Williams, 5-11 freshman center Cheryl Randolph, 5-5 freshman forward Patricia Alexander, and 5-2 freshman guard Ursula Belle.

"Randolph is a real promising player and Alexander is a very good leaper," Griffin noted.

Another player, T.J. Jones, a transfer from another Virginia school, has not yet met eligibility requirements, but Griffin is hopeful that she'll be able to play soon.

"We look strong in the forward position and we have experience at center. Our guards are questionable right now. It depends on how our Virginia connection works out as to how good our guards will be. We have more experience than we've had in a long time, but with only three seniors, we're still relatively young," the coach said.

Exhibition Loss Could Help Deacs Get Ready

One In A Series
 WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — If it takes one loss — an exhibition defeat at the hands of Athletes in Action — to turn a season around, then Wake Forest basketball coach Carl Tacy has seen his club turn the corner.

The Demon Deacons, ranked 13th in the Associated Press college basketball poll, dropped a 63-62 decision in their only game before the start of the regular season. But Tacy says after that game, things changed for the better.

"Since the exhibition game, the players have made a lot of progress in practice and have turned in the three best practice sessions that we've had all season," Tacy said during a news conference Monday.

"The exhibition was good in that respect and we seem to be coming together as a team. Physically, we're getting in much better condition and hopefully better prepared to start the season," he added.

Some of the players who are coming together have been in the Gold and Black for the past three seasons and are expected to lead the way in the 1981-82 campaign.

Forwards Guy Morgan and Alvis Rogers return, as do center Jay Johnstone and guard Mike Helms.

Morgan and Rogers are potentially two of the best frontcourt men in the Atlantic Coast Conference. But their play was inconsistent last season and Wake Forest's success will depend to an extent on how well they play.

Johnstone gained experience in the World University Games last summer and is considered vital to a return the NCAA championships.

"There's no question Jim was our most improved player during the course of the season," Tacy says. "He played a lot and gave us a lot."

The fifth player is sophomore guard Danny Young. In taking over the role held last year by Frank Johnson, Tacy says he would like to see Young improve in several areas.

"He sets up the offense well," Tacy says of the 6-foot-3 Raleigh, N.C., native. "I would like to see his shooting come along. We need for him to average in double figures, around 12 points per game, to keep the defense honest."

Added scoring punch is expected from a trio of backup performers. Anthony Teachey, 6-9, is one of those players, and Tacy feels his reserve forward will get plenty of chances to score.

"I don't know any big men in our league that pass the ball or run the court any better than Anthony Teachey. He should easily get 20 minutes a game," Tacy said.

The front line may even be stronger than last year, Tacy adds, with the addition of freshman Sylvester Charles and junior college transfer John Toms.

"Sylvester Charles' quickness will be an asset to him running the court and getting off the shot. John Toms' experience in junior college will be a big plus," he says.

With Young, Scott Davis and freshman Delaney Rudd at the point guard, Wake Forest appears to have adequate depth.

Spiders Down Penn Behind Redden

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Senior Barry Redden rushed for a school record 280 yards and scored two touchdowns Thursday as Richmond's Spiders struggled to an 18-12 victory over Pennsylvania's Quakers in the 1981 football finale for both teams.

Richmond overcame a 12-10 halftime deficit with Redden's 3-yard touchdown plunge in the third quarter, then staved off a Penn rally that saw the Quakers drive to a first down at the Richmond 21 before being halted late in the final period.

The Spiders finished at 4-7 while Penn absorbed its ninth consecutive loss to wind up 1-9.

Redden gave Richmond a 7-0 lead with a 17-yard sprint early in the second quarter.

Penn, sparked by John Shirk's 48-yard return of the ensuing kickoff, struck right back as quarterback Doug Marzonie threw a 7-yard touchdown pass to Chuck Nolan. The kick for the extra point failed.

Following a 42-yard field goal by Richmond's Scott Schramme, Marzonie connected with Shirk on a 19-yard scoring aerial to put the Quakers up at intermission for the first time this season. However, Penn once again failed to convert the point after as a pass fell incomplete.

The Spiders failed to capitalize on three good scoring opportunities in the first half as they fumbled away the ball at the Penn 29 on their first possession, and Schramme missed field goal attempts of 22 and 30 yards.

Smith Insisting Heels Behind

By TOM FOREMAN Jr.
AP Sports Writer

CHARLOTTE — For a man about to start his 21st season as coach of a highly-successful college basketball program, North Carolina's coach Dean Smith sounds as though he'd rather spend Saturday afternoon in bed.

The top-ranked Tar Heels open the 1981-82 season against Kansas in the Charlotte Coliseum Saturday afternoon. But Smith isn't so sure his team is up to the task.

"We're behind where we should be at this point of the season," Smith said. "With five freshmen on the team, we've had to go slowly in pre-season work. We haven't accomplished all I would have liked."

About all the Tar Heels have accomplished this fall is a pre-season in which they've been chosen as the nation's best college basketball team. But Smith doesn't even like that aspect, noting that the ranking is based on the accomplishments of the 1980-81 team.

"That ranking should be a compliment to the players on last year's team because it's based on what they accomplished," he said. "This team hasn't done anything yet. I think we will be a very good team, but we have a lot of work to do."

Three starters return from the team that lost a 63-50 decision to Indiana in the NCAA championship game in Philadelphia last March. Many feel those three hold the key to any chances of North Carolina traveling to New Orleans for a return engagement in the Final Four.

The frontcourt will be anchored by 6-foot-9 junior forward James Worthy and 6-9 sophomore center Sam Perkins. Jimmy Black, a 6-2 senior guard from Bronx, N.Y., will also start against the Jayhawks, as will sophomore Matt Doherty, a 6-8 New Yorker who played a key role in the Tar Heel rush to the championship round.

One spot remains to be filled and Smith hasn't decided who will occupy it. His choices are junior guard Jim Braddock and freshman Michael Jordan. The edge goes to Jordan because of his height, but the 6-5 native of Wilmington, N.C., has missed practice time because of a sprained ankle.

But Smith is certain that Worthy and Perkins will more than hold up their end of the attack.

"They're two great basketball players, two of the best in the country and both are improved from last year," Smith said. "With Perkins and Worthy, you have to be good."

Five people are gone from the Jayhawk team that finished 24-8 last season. But coach Ted Owens has told his team they must overcome the losses and prepare for a tough schedule. "There is no way we can replace those abilities, but that doesn't mean we can't win," Owens said. "We'll just have to find other ways of winning basketball games."

Searching for those other ways will be returning starters David Magley, a 6-7 forward and Tony Guy, a 6-8 guard Owens thinks is the best in the nation.

"I cannot see that there is a better big guard in the nation, so we would prefer playing him there," Owens said.

Center Kelly Knight returns to the team after a knee injury kept him on the sidelines last season. Two other starting berths are undecided.

UCLA Set To Begin Farmer Era

By The Associated Press

Larry Farmer was a player at UCLA when John Wooden was coaching the Bruins to one national basketball title after another. Now, Farmer is in Wooden's old seat at Pauley Pavilion, and many feel dynasty again is at hand.

Farmer makes his regular-season debut as coach tonight when UCLA, ranked No. 2 in The Associated Press pre-season poll, opens its campaign at home against Brigham Young.

All five of last season's starters are back on the Bruins' roster, but the key player could be a new one: Stuart Gray, a 7-foot freshman center.

Gray is among several towering youngsters who will be in the spotlight in the first weekend of the season.

Georgetown, No. 5 in the preseason Top Twenty, has 7-foot freshman Patrick Ewing as it opens tonight, playing Southwest Louisiana in the first round of the Great Alaska Shootout in Anchorage.

Wichita State, ranked sixth, has 7-foot-1 Greg Drelling, a hometown product, at center for its season opener against Abilene Christian.

And the best big man of last season — in fact, the Player of the Year — is also on the court tonight. Ralph Sampson, Virginia's 7-foot-4 center, leads the seventh-ranked Cavaliers into the Virginia Tipoff Tournament against Fairfield.

Two other Top Twenty members also open tonight at home. No. 14 Alabama-Birmingham hosts Benedictine and No. 20 Alabama takes on New Hampshire.

North Carolina, the No. 1 team in the preseason balloting of sports writers and broadcasters, opens its season Saturday against Kansas in Charlotte, N.C.

Coach Dean Smith, in his 21st year at the Tar Heels' helm, still is looking for his first national championship after losing to Indiana in the NCAA finals last March.

The Tar Heels, 29-8 last season, have three starters returning. Forward James Worthy and center Sam Perkins will rejoin guard Jimmy Black in the starting lineup, while Matt Doherty will move up from his reserve forward role. The other guard spot will be filled by either Jim Braddock or freshman Michael Jordan.

UCLA is back in action Saturday night, hosting Pepperdine, and No. 3 Kentucky is home against Akron.

Iowa, No. 9, hosts Northern Illinois. Defending NCAA champion Indiana, ranked No. 12 in the preseason poll, takes on Miami of Ohio. Eleventh-ranked Tulsa, National Invitation Tournament champion, opens at home against U.S. International, and No. 19 Notre Dame plays host to St. Joseph's, Ind.

No. 13 Wake Forest is at Richmond; Alabama-Birmingham plays its second game against Pittsburgh, and No. 17 Louisiana State, which lost to Indiana in the Final Four semifinals last spring, is at Nevada-Las Vegas Saturday night.

No. 16 Georgia opens at San Francisco Saturday.

Cremins Just Wants To Survive

ATLANTA (AP) — Coach Bobby Cremins, who has taken on the monumental task of rebuilding Georgia Tech's faltering basketball program, has only set only one goal for his first year — survival in the tough Atlantic Coast Conference.

"It's going to be a real, real test for the coaches and the players. It will be tough for us to compete," said the 33-year-old Cremins late this week as the Yellow Jackets prepare for their opener Saturday night against Presbyterian.

"Each of the players has to play to their potential and the coaches have to coach to their potential in order for us to survive," he said.

"If we don't coach well or the players don't play well, it will be a long, long season," said Cremins, who came to Tech from Appalachian State where he won three Southern Conference titles in six years there.

Cremins took over from Dwayne Morrison after Tech managed successive 4-23 seasons, winning only one game in the ACC in 26 attempts and going 0-13 a year ago.

As for setting a goal for victories this year, Cremins would rather "stay away from numbers."

"I'd like to win an ACC contest but we can't do that right now. If we stay together and improve, maybe by midseason we'll be capable of pulling off an upset," he said. "I'd hate to have to play an ACC team now."

Right now, Cremins said Presbyterian is the only game on his mind.

"It's a real big game, a big game for us because I don't know what to expect. It's going to be interesting. I just don't know what will happen," he said.

"Presbyterian, that's our first test. Others are saying our first major game will be against Georgia (Dec. 4) but all I'm thinking of is Presbyterian. We can't afford to look past anybody," said Cremins.

He said his starting lineup for the opener would include guards Stu Lyon, a 6-foot-4 senior and 6-foot-3 junior George Thomas, both of whom started a year ago. Greg Wilson, a 6-foot-9 sophomore, who saw extensive action last year at center along with a pair of 6-foot-5 forwards, Brook Steppe and Maurice Bradford.

Bradford is a junior college transfer from Amarillo, Tex., while Steppe, a senior, missed last season because of academic problems, but was the fourth leading scorer in the ACC with an 18.9 average two years ago.

Cremins said he expects eight or nine players will see plenty of action, including Anthony Byrd, a junior college transfer from South Carolina, freshman guard Brian Howard and senior centers Steve Neal and Lee Goza.

The 6-foot-9 Goza led the team in rebounding last season, was cut from the team, but restored recently because of Tech's lack of height, said Cremins, who also cut forward Fred Hall, the team's leading scorer in 1980-81.

"Everytime I go to practice, I look at the front line, and I say, 'Where are the big people?' It scares me," said Cremins.

To The Editor:
I thought you would be interested in the response I have received from my letter to you last week on the "I Would Pull For Hitler Against Carolina Club." (For those of you who did not see the letter it said that this would be the biggest club in town if it were organized and attempted to point out why Carolina should not be hated.)

First, let me say that you have a lot of readers and they responded. Most of them wanted to know where they could get an application to join the Hitler Club. Several volunteered to be President. One ECU supporter said, "I'm not interested in the Hitler club; he's dead. I want to join the Russia Club."

But the best gesture came when I attended the Greenville Sports Club Tuesday. When I was leaving the meeting several members snapped to attention in unison, gave the sign, and said, "Heil Hitler!"

I said in the letter that sports talk should be fun and this is. I should mention that several people agreed with the letter — all UNC graduates.

Lions Down K.C.; Cowboys Win...

the Lions appear to be a reflection of their opponents. Detroit has played well, recording victories against top-notch foes like San Francisco, Oakland and Dallas while narrowly missing against San Diego, Los Angeles and Minnesota.

Thursday it happened again. Hipple threw two touchdown passes and Detroit's aggressive defense shut down Kansas City's offense.

Chiefs quarterback Bill Kenney was benched in favor of Steve Fuller at the start of the second half, but it didn't seem to make much difference.

The Lions ran the ball 41 times — compared with 28 rushing plays for the Chiefs — but Hipple still completed 10 of 22 passes for 132 yards. Hipple, who has guided the Lions to a 5-2 record since taking over for the injured Gary Danielson, threw a 10-yard scoring strike to tight end David Hill in the first quarter and fired a 40-yard bomb in the second quarter on which Freddie Scott made a leaping catch for a TD behind Chiefs cornerback Gary Green.

The Chiefs' lone touchdown came on a 4-yard run by rookie Billy Jackson which capped a 69-yard drive the first time Kansas City had the ball.

The victory left Detroit in second place in the NFC Central with a 7-6 record, half a game behind the Minnesota Vikings. The Chiefs dropped to second in the AFC West at 8-5, half a game behind Denver.

Islanders Drill St. Louis 'Blue' By 9-2

By The Associated Press

Maybe it was the holiday spirit. Or the competition. Or the fact that it was their last home game for almost three weeks.

Whatever the cause, the New York Islanders were at their Stanley Cup championship best Thanksgiving night as they drilled the St. Louis Blues 9-2 behind the five-point efforts of Bryan Trottier and Anders Kallur and four points by Mike Bossy.

A five-goal second period by the defending NHL titlists broke open the game against the team which finished second in the overall standings last season. Now, the Islanders take to the road for seven games, comforted by the knowledge that they're playing up to par.

The Islanders and Blues were tied 2-2 until Kallur scored his second goal of the game with merely 20 seconds left in the first period. Then, the rout was on, with Bossy — who is in his fifth NHL season — scoring the 100th power-play goal of his career. He has 260 goals overall.

Flyers 3, Bruins 1
Philadelphia got goals from Tim Kerr in the first period and Brian Propp in the second. The Bruins, losers of three straight, with just one goal in each of the losses, got their offense from Brad McCrimmon on a long slapshot with 6:22 remaining.

Flames 7, Kings 1
Kevin Lavallee had a goal and two assists and Ken Houston scored twice to up the Flames' unbeaten streak to five games, 4-0-1. Los Angeles, which has been outscored 31-9 in four straight losses, saw right wing Dave Taylor's consecutive game scoring streak end at 21.

Plans Temporary Appointment

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — University of North Carolina Board of Governors Chairman John Jordan says he will make a temporary appointment to the board after growing impatient with the General Assembly's delay in naming a permanent member.

The board remains one member shy of its 32-member capacity six months after the death of member Grace S. Epps of Lumberton.

"The reason I had not done anything until now was that I wanted to give the General Assembly full opportunity to act," Jordan said.

"But the General Assembly has met twice now and done nothing. I plan to meet with the chairman of the House nominating committee and discuss that right away."

Senate Majority Leader Kenneth C. Royall, D-Durham, expressed regret that the vacancy had not been filled.

"It should have been filled (by the legislature)," he said. "When we come back, probably in January for redistricting, I think we should take action at that time."

Earlier this year, Royall publicly complained when Jordan named Martha F. MacNair of Winston-Salem temporarily to fill a seat on the UNC board while the Legislature was in session.

Royall said the seat should have remained vacant until the Legislature could fill it.

The Legislature later made Mrs. MacNair's appointment permanent.

Under state law, the chairman of the UNC board appoints a person to fill a vacancy. The appointee serves "until a successor is named by the next regular session of the General Assembly."

The House University Board of Governors Committee, chaired by Rep. Horace Locklear, D-Robeson, is responsible for screening nominees selected by the House for board seats. The slot held by Mrs. Epps was a House-appointed seat.

Royall originally said he wanted the Legislature to elect Mrs. Epps' successor during the summer session, which ended July 12. But Locklear said there wasn't enough time to screen nominees properly and suggested postponing that duty until the fall short session.

However, lawmakers failed to act during two mini-sessions in October.

Organization Fears Trimming Bushes To Scalp Scenic Route

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — A new state policy allowing businesses to trim bushes that block views of highway billboards, if unchanged, will lead to "scalping" of scenic routes, a Winston-Salem organization warns.

The Winston-Salem-Forsyth County Historic Properties Commission is one of several environmental and conservation groups and garden clubs asking the state to reconsider its new policy.

Hamilton C. Horton, a commission member, is urging sympathizers to flood the transportation department with protests.

Backers of the new policy, however, say it would simply permit businesses to do what the state has done in the past.

In July, the 1981 Legislature passed a joint resolution requiring the state Department of Transportation to draw up a regulation permitting the trimming of trees and shrubs, under certain conditions, along public highways.

"Up until the highway department had to start economizing last spring, they were cutting back the bushes that grew up in front of the signs," said state Rep. Allen C. Barbee of Spring Hope, who sponsored the legislative resolution. "This is exactly the same thing. The (business) people just wanted the right to do it themselves."

The Department of Transportation sharply curtailed maintenance of highway rights-of-way because of budget cuts.

DOT is required by law to consider public opinion before putting the new regulation into effect. DOT officials placed advertisements in the state's major newspapers Oct. 27 and Nov. 17 inviting comments from interested parties.

Overman said he has heard from garden clubs, sign companies, environmental groups and individuals. But he said no clear consensus can be drawn from the mixed bag of letters so far.

Horton, a conservative Republican, businessman and former state senator, said the state's highways have become more beautiful since DOT began letting shrubs and vegetation grow along the highways.

'Sambo' Restaurant Chain Still Sees Crisis After Big Cutbacks

CARPINTERIA, Calif. (AP) — The closing of 447 Sambo's restaurants in 43 states and the resultant layoff of up to 10,000 employees in an attempt to ease the chain's financial crisis has left it with 667 facilities still operating, company officials said.

Arthur Dowd, Sambo's vice president, told The Associated Press Thursday that the closings were unrelated to a company decision Wednesday to consider declaring bankruptcy if lenders refuse to restructure the company's debt.

The November closing of 447 restaurants has laid off up to 10,000 employees, based on an average of 20 to 25 employees per restaurant, Dowd said.

Sambo's posted losses of $77.8 million in 1979, $11.6 million in 1980 and $29 million in the first nine months of this year. Last month, the chain announced that it had failed to pay a $4.8 million first installment on a $100 million restructured loan.

The chain has sold 12 restaurants as part of its plan to raise cash during its financial emergency. On Wednesday, the company asked the New York Stock Exchange to stop trading in its stock "because of the prevalence of rumors currently circulating in the financial community and attendant publicity being afforded them."

Sambo's submitted a new debt-restructuring proposal to its lenders Tuesday. If it is rejected and the lenders serve a notice of default on the company, "serious consideration will have to be given to the filing of a bankruptcy petition," Dowd said.

On Tuesday, Richard W. Starr, executive vice president of Los Angeles-based First Interstate Bank, indicated lenders might reject debt restructuring.

Two former top Sambo's officials and three other businessmen were named in a federal indictment in Amarillo, Texas, on Tuesday. They were accused of defrauding Sambo's in a complex cattle-feeding scheme.

Sambo's had an $8 million lawsuit pending against two of those indicted — Karl V. Willig, the chain's former president, and William L. Wagner, its former executive vice president and chief executive officer. The suit claims that the men profited from the alleged cattle fraud at the expense of Sambo's.

Sambo's had operated 1,114 restaurants in 47 states, including the "No Place Like Sam's" outlets in New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, New Hampshire, Maine, Vermont and Connecticut.

When the chain expanded to the northeast 21 years after it was founded in California in 1957, some people protested the name because the word was once an insulting name for blacks.

The chain changed the name of some of its outlets to the "Jolly Tiger," but said it was reluctant to do so because of the great amount of national advertising of the Sambo's name.

Company officials say the name did not come from the children's story about a boy who watched tigers turn to butter, but from combining the first and last names of the founders, Sam Battistone and Newell Bohnett.

However, signs at its older restaurants showed a little black boy and a tiger. Murals from the book decorated the walls.

Appeal Charge On Bank Cards

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — The state attorney general's office is appealing a federal judge's ruling that North Carolina banks can charge a user's fee to customers who use MasterCard and Visa charge cards.

"It was and is the attorney general's opinion that MasterCard and Visa and other credit cards may not have a user fee associated with them," said Alan Hirsch, assistant attorney general with the consumer protection division of the state attorney general's office.

"The banks make their money from the interest they charge on their cards," said Hirsch, who filed an appeal this week.

Hirsch said the court ruling Nov. 13 in U.S. District Court in Raleigh could have a large impact in the state, possibly leading to annual user fees on non-bank charge cards as well — such as department store and gasoline station credit cards.

A decision in the banks' favor will probably cost North Carolina's 1.5 million bank card holders $15 million to $30 million a year. User fees on the cards are between $10 and $20 in states that allow them.

Officials of North Carolina National Bank in Charlotte, the state's largest bank, say those card holders will charge $1.2 billion worth of goods and services this year, up from $1 billion in 1980.

Bankers say that state law allows them to charge 18 percent interest annually on card account allowances, or 1.5 percent a month. Until about two years ago, that interest level was enough to cover costs and provide a profit.

But now, with the cost of attracting funds so steep, many bankers say they are losing money on their credit card operations.

Four Facing Drug Counts

SMITHFIELD, N.C. (AP) — Three brothers and a 19-year-old woman face drug possession charges after state agents seized guns, 400 pounds of marijuana and other drugs, agents said.

Arrested were Debra Lynn Godfrey, 19, and Larry Wendell Parham, 34, both of Franklin; and Terry W. Parham, 30, and Danny Gerald Parham, 35, both of Delray Beach, Fla.

State Alcohol Law Enforcement agents and one State Bureau of Investigation agent made the arrests after pulling two cars off Highway 96 about 5 miles from Zebulon, said ALE agent J. Michael Chapin.

Chapin said the marijuana seized had a street value of about $350,000. Police also seized about $2,000 worth of handguns and semi-automatic guns.

Agents also seized about one ounce of cocaine worth about $3,000, a small quantity of LSD and a small quantity of methaqualones, he said.

Ms. Parham was being held on $90,000 bond, Larry Parham was being held on $105,000 bond, Terry Parham was being held on $85,000 bond and Danny Parham was being held on $70,500 bond, authorities said.

FOCUS

The Gerrymander

As a result of the 1980 census most states are currently reapportioning their congressional districts. Clever re-mapping can result in one party controlling many districts with small majorities, while the weaker party has large majorities but only in a few districts. Perhaps the most contorted geographical configuration to result from such partisan struggles was in Massachusetts in 1812. Governor Elbridge Gerry and his fellow Democratic-Republicans created one district that twisted like a serpentine monster or, as some said, a salamander. His Federalist opponents quickly dubbed it a "gerrymander," a term which has survived to this day to describe unfair apportionment of voting districts.

Sunday's Choice: Good Steinbeck Or Good Spelling

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The choice Sunday night is clear. You can watch great John Steinbeck or good Aaron Spelling.

Steinbeck's heart-breaking classic "Of Mice and Men" is poignant drama, captured with keen sensitivity by the NBC production. While over on ABC, Spelling, creator of "Charlie's Angels," offers Loni Anderson in "Sizzle," typical television, only glossed and polished to an even brighter sparkle.

"Sizzle," a lavish 1920s period piece set in Chicago, is entertaining, but, ultimately, two forgettable hours in front of the tube. It won't involve viewers, challenge them or trigger emotional reactions. NBC's "Of Mice and Men," true to the raw, pathetic humanity drawn by Steinbeck, will touch viewers, and it won't be a tap on the shoulder.

George (Robert Blake) and Lenny (Randy Quaid) are migrant ranchers in the South who are dealt a bad hand by life. Lenny is a mentally retarded hulk of a man; George is his life-long friend and protector. George's friendship and compassion come from the heart, but also from a need to feel important.

Although George is tugged by whiskey and cards, he knows he can't abandon the helpless Lenny, a gentle giant whose feeble mind can't control his physical strength. This odd couple has dreams — everybody has dreams — that a better life exists, where they can own land, raise rabbits and keep the outside world from dumping on them.

They find work bailing grain and building their stake, and it's hard not to be affected by the child-like Lenny's frequent pleas: "Tell me about the rabbits, George; tell me about the rabbits." George's wistful look reveals that the two men share the same dream.

The opening scene, in which they're on the run because Lenny apparently has accidentally killed a woman, is beautiful to watch. The dramatic music is an asking the city to erect a statue of the foursome in center city and reopen the Cavern Club, where they were discovered. It is now filled with rubble below a derelict site turned into a temporary parking lot.

effective punctuation, another indication that this will be a first-class production of a powerful story.

Blake, well known as the unorthodox detective on "Baretta," is also the movie's executive producer. He dedicated the film to Lewis Milestone, director of the original movie version that starred Burgess Meredith and Lon Chaney Jr. Milestone also was instrumental in helping Blake get started in show business.

Blake gives a remarkably restrained and caring performance, but the movie's dramatic strength flows from Lenny, who is played to perfection by Quaid. It's a role that could become clownish in less talented hands, but Quaid's stellar performance distills every drop of dignity, with which Steinbeck embodied his feeble-minded character.

This is a 2½-hour movie, so even if you do watch "Sizzle," try to catch the last 30 minutes on NBC. The final scene, George's ultimate act of compassion toward his friend, is a special blend of acting, writing and direction.

"Sizzle," beautifully costumed, will probably get higher ratings because Miss

Anderson is a sex symbol and Spelling has found a splashy vehicle for her. She plays Julie Davis, a small town Nebraska beauty who comes to Chicago with a big city wardrobe and her fiancé, Danny (Michael Goodwin.)

Danny gets involved in an underworld struggle and is framed on a murder charge by his own mob boss, Mike Callahan (John Forsythe). But Julie takes the rap and lands in prison, where the female inmates are pretty and well-coiffed.

As Danny is about to implicate Callahan, he's gunned down. Julie then schemes to avenge Danny's murder, singing and sleeping her way to her goal. Miss Anderson has a sweet singing voice, but her acting lacks depth. Same with "Sizzle," which would be recommended escapism, but not Sunday night.

Flower Shower In Farewell Role

LONDON (AP) — Dame Janet Baker, considered the greatest English mezzo soprano for 25 years, was showered with flowers after singing her farewell role at London's Royal Opera House in a production of Christoph Willibald von Gluck's opera "Alceste."

Dame Janet, who made her debut in 1956, says she will appear in two more productions — at Glyndebourne and at the English National Opera — before retiring from opera.

Made a dame of the British Empire — the equivalent of knighthood — by Queen Elizabeth II in 1976, she plans to continue her distinguished international career as a concert singer.

The opening for Alceste on Thursday night was marred when the tenor, Robert Tear, lost his voice after the second act and had to mime the third act to the voice of an understudy from the orchestra pit.

IT'S TRUE LOVE — Country music singer Merle Haggard says that when he lost his heart to Dolly Parton he fell in love with an "exceptional human being," not just her star image. (AP Laserphoto)

Liverpool Names Beatle Streets

LIVERPOOL, England (AP) — John Lennon Drive, Paul McCartney Way, George Harrison Close and Ringo Starr Drive will be the main streets of a housing development opening today in the Beatles' hometown.

"They put Liverpool on the map," said Pat Laeocok, spokesman for Wimpey and Co., which is building the development. "Wherever you go, when you mention the Beatles you think of Liverpool."

The 120-dwelling development, Kensington Fields, is to be opened by Britain's environment secretary, Michael Heseltine.

CRYPTOQUIP 11-27

TOH KHGIYUGS KAIYUGN STC'I
 EAFG EOVACTION JOVJFACN

Yesterday's Cryptoquip — PICTURE PUZZLE LURE CLAIMS MATURE CITIZEN'S INTEREST.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: K equals W

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

The bidding:
 North East South West
 1 ♦ Pass 1 ♥ Pass
 4 ♦ Pass Pass Pass
 Opening lead: Six of ♣.

For both declarer and the defenders, the time to study the hand and prepare your campaign is before you follow to the first trick. You never know how soon the moment of truth might arrive! On today's hand, East was alert and ready.

Despite the fact that he had a balanced hand and a weak suit, we approve of South's decision to respond one heart rather than one trump. Experience shows that four of a major suit is usually a more desirable contract than three no trump, and to bypass the heart suit could result in a 4-4 fit in that suit going by the boards. Having said that, let us hasten to add that on this particular hand three no trump would have been a superior contract. But no blame attaches to North for his jump to game.

In an effort to build tricks, West elected to lead from his club honor rather than from nothing in spades. East took time to analyze the position. Since it was most unlikely that his partner was leading away from the ace against a suit contract, the hand became virtually an open book.

Dummy was an ominous sight. There were no tricks to be had in the minor suits, and at most one in spades. If the contract were going to be defeated, the tricks would have to come from the trump suit. Having worked that out, East was prepared.

Dummy's ten of clubs won the first trick, and declarer led a trump. East rushed in with the king of trumps! When that won, the rest of the defense was easy. East returned a diamond. Declarer won and continued trumps. West won the ace and gave his partner a diamond ruff for a one-trick set.

Didn't East take a wild risk by rising with the king of trumps? Not really. If South held the ace of hearts, or if West held the singleton ace, all the play could cost was an overtrick or two—a small price for a chance to defeat a game contract.

'Activated Sitting' Said Fitness Aid

CHICAGO (AP) — Sitting in a chair can help keep you fit — or make you tired, according to a Chicago chair manufacturer and a pair of physiologists. "It's all because adults still practice what their parents and teachers preached when they were children: don't squirm and sit still," explains chairmaker Manfred Steinfeld, who has spent more than 25 years studying sitting habits and developing seating designs to improve them. "We spend more than half of our waking hours sitting. It really structures our lives," Steinfeld says. "We sit at meals, to commute to work, during coffee breaks and then go home and spend an evening with TV, family or friends — still sitting." America has become a truly sedentary nation, Steinfeld adds, citing U.S.

Census statistics that show there are now 20 million more white-collar workers, the majority of them on-the-job sitters, than there are blue-collar workers.

Chair-sitting can help contribute body conditioning similar to the benefits of jogging, tennis and other fitness pursuits, Steinfeld contends, adding:

"But we need to reprogram what was drummed into us as children and develop a habit to seldom — if ever — sit still for long."

Steinfeld is president of Shelby Williams Industries, a chairmaking firm he started in 1954 with $10,000. The company now produces more than 1 million chairs annually at plants in Morristown, Tenn., and Canton, Miss.

The company produces office chairs that have dual action tilt mechanisms which move backs and seats to the proper angle when sitters lean back or sit up.

However, he says, "no chairs can activate sitters. That kind of motivation must come from within, a habit that needs to be established by people."

According to physiologists, people who sit all week more or less immobile in their chairs need to move around.

Dr. Eugene J. Rogers, professor and chairman of Rehabilitation Medicine at Chicago Medical School, explains that moving different muscles while sitting "improves the metabolic exchange between the blood and cells and circulation."

The body, he says, "needs activity to keep up the pumping action of the blood." Otherwise the body slows up.

Steinfeld and physical fitness experts recommend activated sitting patterned after what children do naturally — squirm, twist, reach up and swing legs up, down, back and forth.

Exercise physiologist Mark Neubauer asserts that "children are natural workout experts, and virtually all their sitting movements help body conditioning." Neubauer is with Chicago's Institute for Stress Management, specialists in dealing with executive stress.

"Chair exercises are very good for loosening up muscles and joints, and achieving a general feeling of well-being," he says. "It is lack of movement that drains energy and results in stress and fatigue."

Steinfeld suggests that grownups adapt these exercises from children's natural movements:

—For flexibility of leg and arm muscles and the prevention of aches and stiffness, lift one leg up against the chest and clasp with both hands and hug. Lift the other leg and clasp. Children do this often while sitting.

—Sit back, reach up with one hand and then with the other and swing your legs up one at a time, to limber up arm and leg muscles.

—While sitting, hold your feet out in front of you and inscribe circles at the ankles, rotating clock and counter-clockwise. Physical therapists say exercising joints in arms, legs and neck is important when sitting for extended periods of time. Roll your head slowly in big circles.

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, NOV. 28, 1981

YOUR DAILY Horoscope
 from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The daytime is fine for improving your environment. The evening finds you with fascinating ideas that could prove fruitful in the future. Strive for increased harmony at home.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Study your immediate surroundings and know what should be done to make it more comfortable. Handle a business matter wisely.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Make sure you keep any appointments you have made. Visit good friends later in the day. Make plans for the days ahead.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Be sure to handle monetary affairs with wisdom. Listen to what a clever adviser has to suggest for the future.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) A good day to visit friends you haven't seen in a long time. Improve your appearance before venturing forth.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Study the path ahead well and be sure to get rid of whatever is troubling you. Evening is fine for the social side of life.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You can easily gain a personal goal by making proper plans. Be more astute in handling a private matter.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Practice up on any special talent you have and then you can command monetary benefits from it later. Be wise.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Study those ideas that will help you become more successful in your line of endeavor. Consult an expert for advice.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Make sure you are conscientious in handling a personal obligation. Show increased affection for the one you love.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Meet with congenials and discuss plans for the future. This is the right time to engage in important civic work.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Handle duties that are impossible to do during busy work week. Study your environment and make plans for improvement.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Put your skill to work early in the day and get the results you want. Later engage in favorite hobby with congenials.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will understand early in life the importance of having a secure foundation on which to build, so be sure to teach how to be practical. Give the best education you can afford. There is much organizational ability in this chart.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Clinic Teaches People To Deal With Headaches

By PETER COY
Associated Press Writer

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Tom Tracy, a computer technician, has had migraine headaches since he was 13. He knows pain.

Promises Only PCB For Site

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Toxic substances other than PCB-laden dirt will not be stored at a landfill planned for Warren County while Jim Hunt is governor, a Hunt administration official has pledged.

And Burley B. Mitchell Jr., secretary of crime control and public safety, said that any such efforts by future administrations would require a separate approval procedure.

"The administration has made a commitment that nothing will be put in except PCB," Mitchell said. "As early as 1979 we spelled that out in some documents that were submitted to Warren County."

"I think the trend would be away from ever using this site again and going toward regional sites for waste management."

A spokesman for Hunt said Thursday that the state would begin letting bids Monday for construction of the Warren County landfill.

The way was cleared late Wednesday when U.S. District Judge Earl W. Britt dismissed a suit filed by Warren County and several of its residents. They were trying to block construction of the landfill, claiming it would be a public nuisance and would threaten the county's growth.

In ruling against the suit, Britt said he sympathized with the plaintiffs and understood their concerns, but said that the state had taken

"It runs from the eye socket, across the top of the eyeball, around one side of the head and ends in the neck," he said. "At times it's so bad that just to walk drives you wild." Until a year ago, Tracy, 36, missed two weeks of work every year because of migraines. He would hole up in a dark room for days at a time, popping aspirin-and-barbiturate pills every hour or two and just hanging on.

"The pupils of my eyes would get really small and my boss would tell me, 'Get out of here. Go home. You're not doing us any good staying here like that,'" he said.

Tracy still gets migraines, but they aren't as frequent or nearly as severe. He takes far less medication and has missed just two days of work in the last year.

Tracy is one of the star pupils at the Headache Clinic of the State University of New York at Albany, a program that uses relaxation training and biofeedback to treat headaches without medication.

Edward Blanchard, the psychology professor who opened the clinic with a federal grant two years ago, says the therapy has worked for three-quarters of its tension-headache patients and a little more than half of its migraine sufferers. "These methods have been around for 10 or 15 years," Blanchard said. "We're doing research to see if we can make them more effective and more accessible."

Similar headache clinics operate in Boston, Cleveland, Chicago, New York, Houston, Kansas City, San Diego and Los Angeles, Blanchard said. Most of them, like Albany's, conduct research.

Albany State — with a three-year grant of $240,000 from the National Institutes of Health — has one of the few clinics that does not charge its patients. It is treating about 120 at an average cost of $2,000 per patient.

Volunteers begin with a neurological examination that rules out causes of headaches like brain injuries, tumors and high blood pressure. A battery of psychological tests helps determine what kind of headaches they suffer and what treatment would help.

Christina Stroud, 28, an elementary school teacher, had tension headaches. She was connected to an electromyograph that measured the electrical activity, or tension, in her facial muscles.

"When the buzzer was ringing I knew the tension was up. You have to work on finding the place where the tension is coming from and get it down — keep the buzzer off," she said. "I went to a lot of doctors. They would just tell me I was a tense person — there was no medical reason for my headaches, so they couldn't help me," she said. "Well, you can't tell a tense person just to relax."

Using some of the same techniques as Zen masters,

Headache Clinic patients learn to relax, first by tensing and then relaxing their muscles group by group — fingers, toes, shoulders, neck, forehead — until their entire bodies are relaxed. The method is called "progressive relaxation."

Migraine patients are tougher to treat, but many seem to benefit from learning to increase the supply of blood to their skin and extremities.

"They told me to warm my hands," Tracy recalled. "I said, 'Aw, come on.' And it worked. I was flabbergasted."

Doctors believe that headache sufferers, by warming their hands, counteract the "fight or flight" syndrome, in which the body draws blood away from the extremities and sends an extra supply to vital organs — including the brain.

The clinic's patients learn to detect headache pain at a lower threshold and prevent it from worsening. Most have retained or even improved their skills a year after completion of their training, preliminary results indicate.

Tracy, Ms. Stroud and others have sharply reduced their reliance on drugs — a matter of pride for Blanchard.

Under their current grant, Blanchard, fellow professor Frank Andrasik and a team of graduate students have studied whether it is possible to predict from a patient's physical characteristics whether he could benefit from non-drug therapy.

That study is nearly complete, though results are not yet tabulated, and Blanchard has applied for a $250,000 federal grant to see if headache sufferers can learn the relaxation techniques at home, using tape-recorded lessons mailed weekly in cassette form.

every possible measure to ensure their safety. PCB has been found to cause cancer and birth defects in laboratory animals.

Although the plaintiffs could take their suit to the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, Hunt press secretary Gary Pearce said the state would move ahead with preparations to let the necessary contracts.

"The court's decision was a reaffirmation to start carrying out our plan," Pearce said. "That's what we plan to do."

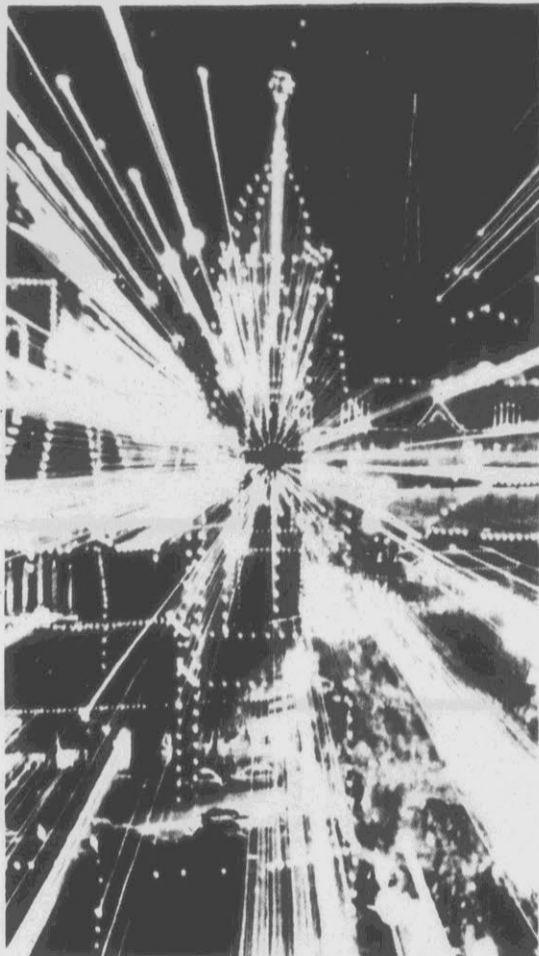

Attorneys for Warren County and the residents who filed the suit said they would not decide immediately whether to appeal.

The state's plan to store PCB — polychlorinated biphenyls — in Warren County stems from an episode in 1978, when trucks spewed it along 210 miles of state roads under cover of darkness.

In addition to Warren County, the PCB was dumped in Halifax, Franklin, Nash, Wake, Johnston, Wilson, Edgecombe, Harnett, Person, Granville, Lee, Chatham, Alamance and Cumberland counties.

Officials of Ward Transformer Co. in Raleigh, which produced the PCB, and three New York men who agreed to haul it away for their own use later were convicted in federal or state courts of environmental crimes.

The state acquired land for the dump site two years ago but has not been able to proceed with the clean-up and storage plan because of lawsuits. Britt's ruling was on the last of them.

LIGHTING THE PLAZA — Christmas lights outlining the buildings of Kansas City's Plaza shopping center are thrown into an array of beams Thursday night by the use of a zoom lens during a time exposure. More than 152,000 Christmas bulbs along 46 miles of wiring were turned on during the annual Thanksgiving evening ceremony. (AP Laserphoto)

Airport Plan

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — The mayor of Raleigh says he supports the hiring of a public relations firm to inform the public about a new jet runway planned for Raleigh-Durham Airport and a proposed $50 million bond issue.

Mayor Smedes York was chairman of a special committee that recommended Carmichael McKneely Inc. of Durham for the promotional campaign.

York said he didn't think the cost of the program was too high "when you think of the importance and weight" of the airport expansion program and the "impact and total benefits."

He said the firm would do much more than produce slides and brochures. He said it had a "depth of personnel" that would be needed in a two-county campaign.

Carmichael McKneely Inc.'s services will cost the airport authority $59,607. Because the firm is being paid with public money, it must be an educational campaign, rather than promotion to encourage votes for the bond issue.

The bond referendum for the new runway is scheduled for Feb. 23.

The firm will prepare a slide presentation and brochures, set up a speakers' bureau, schedule speaking engagements, coordinate the campaign and provide personnel to assist in all facets of the campaign.

A separate promotional campaign, urging approval of the bond issue, is to be conducted by the Durham Chamber of Commerce and the Raleigh Chamber of Commerce.

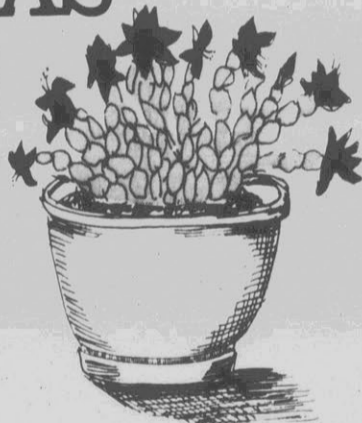

Recover Body In Sampson Pond

CLINTON, N.C. (AP) — Sampson County deputies and rescue personnel recovered the body of a man in a county pond Thursday morning, said Sheriff Cranford Fann.

Fann said the body, which was discovered by hunters, appears to have been in the water for two or three months. The body was nude and probably was that of a middle-aged man, he said.
