23 INCHES OF SNOW IN ARIZONA — For those who think of Arizona as a totally arid, dry desert, guess again. A weekend storm dumped 23.8 inches of snow in northern Arizona. Travel in the area during the storm resulted in several minor accidents due weather conditions. As of Monday the storm had passed and weather returning to normal with roads reported dry and clear by noon. (AP Laserphoto)

Blizzard Chills Nebraska And Neighboring States

By The Associated Press

A blizzard with winds gusting to 50 mph swept from Nebraska to neighboring states today, blocking highways with impassable drifts and bringing snowplows to a halt.

At least two people died and another was missing. Highways were strewn with jackknifed trucks and many motorists sought refuge in motels, farm houses and emergency shelters.

In South Dakota, where 10 inches of snow fell in places, a 50-year-old man collapsed and died while running a snowblower Monday at his home in Brookings.

One man was killed when the winds toppled an oil rig in Nebraska, which also got up to 10 inches of snow, and an elderly trapper was missing in Iowa, where 7 inches was on the ground in places.

The National Weather Service said the massive winter storm was producing blizzard conditions in parts of Nebraska and South Dakota with the blowing snow building high drifts and reducing visibility to near zero.

A winter storm warning remained in effect for northeastern South Dakota, northwestern Iowa, the southern half of Minnesota and the northwestern half of Wisconsin.

More than 100 miles of Interstate 90 and parts of state highways in central South Dakota were barricaded as state police searched for people stranded in cars and trucks.

"There's people in the ditches and more people trying to get on the road," said Gov. Bill Janklow, who ordered the closings. "It's a real hazard for people trying to drive on it, and they're going to kill somebody ... It's legally closed and it's illegal to drive on it." I-90 was closed from Murdo, just south of Pierre, the capital, to Mitchell in the southeastern corner.

The snowstorm that charged out of the Rockies on Monday spread into Iowa and Wisconsin today.

In Iowa, blowing snow forced state snowplows to stop plowing Interstate 35 between the Minnesota border and Macon City.

Fierce winds in the hilly, western part of Nebraska Monday created a blizzard from snow already covering the ground and icy roads. In the more populous eastern section of the state, the winds came first, claiming one life, and were followed in rapid succession by the rain and the snow.

The high winds caused the death of Brian Dittmer, 23, of Lincoln, when the 100-foot-high oil rig he was working on near Potter buckled and collapsed in wind gusts of more than 30 mph, Cheyenne County Sheriff Darrell Johnson said.

Snow-coated ice created dangerous highways near state's biggest cities, Grand Island, Lincoln and Omaha. The mayor of Grand Island, Bob Kriz, declared a snow emergency.

As much as 10 inches of snow fell on Nebraska on Monday and the National Weather Service recorded wind gusts of up to 60 mph, blowing snow into drifts of 3 to 4 feet.

Roads and highways in the state were barely passable. "If you creep along at about 5 mph, you might be all right. It's pretty bad," said Hooker County Sheriff Mike Okinn.

Conference On Aging Assured No Social Security Disaster

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Social Security Commissioner Robert M. Ball told a White House Conference on Aging panel today that "there's no great big disaster hovering over this (Social Security) system."

Ball told the conference's Economic Well-Being Committee, which is grappling with Social Security's problems, "We should be celebrating Social Security. This is a fantastic accomplishment in one short generation."

"Social Security has created a revolution in the way older people are treated in this society," said Ball, who was a key adviser to House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill in his fight against the massive cuts in Social Security that President Reagan proposed last May and later withdrew.

Ball said that apart from the possibility of short-term deficits from 1986 to 1989, the system actually will be on strong financial ground until 2025. He branded as "absolute nonsense and 100 percent poppycock" the notion that the short-term financing crisis requires long-term cuts.

He urged the delegates to let the program borrow from general revenues, and he said "nobody really knows" how many workers will be supporting Social Security beneficiaries in the next century.

Ball's presentation echoed similar arguments made Monday to the panel by the AFL-CIO's Social Security expert, Bert Seidman.

"Social Security is not facing bankruptcy. ... The short-term problems are easily manageable," said Seidman.

Seidman on Monday accused the Reagan administration of trying "to balance the federal budget at the expense of Social Security recipients."

Michael J. Boskin, a Stanford University economics professor and leading advocate of major Social Security reforms, agreed that the short-term crisis in its "petty cash reserve" was not going to drive the system under.

But Boskin said that in the long run, the system faces a deficit exceeding $1 trillion, and he urged the delegates to press for gradual reforms now or risk stiff payroll tax hikes in the next century that will "undermine public support for the basic benefits."

The debate took place at the Committee on Economic Well-Being, the forum for discussing Social Security and other pension issues and "the hot spot in the conference," according to the committee chairman, former congressman Robert H. Steele of Norwich, Conn.

Seidman, 62, said Social Security "is under its most intensive assault" in history, with "the voices of those in high places in our government" seeking to make workers believe it is a "bad buy."

"They seek today to perpetuate the myth that Social Security teeters on the brink of bankruptcy, and that the only way to rescue the system is to make sweeping changes in the benefits."

Geneva Negotiators Silent Over Session

By ROBERT H. REID
Associated Press Writer

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — U.S. and Soviet arms negotiators held their first full bargaining session today in talks aimed at checking the growth of medium-range nuclear missiles in Europe.

"Everything is OK," Soviet delegation chief Yuri A. Kvitsinsky said as he left the two-hour and 40-minute meeting at the offices of the U.S. Arms Control Agency. "We meet again Friday" at the Soviet mission.

Deputy U.S. delegation chief Maynard W. Glitman said only, "We've finished for this day. I'm not going to tell you any more."

He also declined comment on the atmosphere of the talks, held where the second U.S.-Soviet strategic arms limitation treaty, SALT II, was negotiated. That treaty was never ratified by the U.S. Senate and was withdrawn from the ratification process after the Soviets sent troops into Afghanistan two years ago.

Today's meeting was the first by the full delegations from each side. On Monday, Kvitsinsky and U.S. delegation chief Paul H. Nitze held a 90-minute introductory session.

Nitze told reporters their first meeting was "cordial and businesslike."

He said he and Kvitsinsky agreed to keep the discussions secret because "it's only by mutual respect for the confidentiality of these proceedings that we can hope to look at the hard issues which divide us and to search for solutions that will assure security and reduced tensions."

He said the public would probably be told the date and place of meetings "and little else."

"We want these talks to succeed," he added. "This arrangement will help us work toward this goal."

A U.S. official who asked not to be named said adherence to the blackout might mean the negotiations were going well, while leaks might be a sign that the talks had hit a snag and the leaking side was trying to put the blame on the other.

County's Decision Upheld By State Election Board

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

The State Board of Elections has upheld a decision by the Pitt County board in denying a request by Ed Carter, unsuccessful City Council candidate, for a recount of the votes from the Nov. 3 municipal elections, a spokesman in the Raleigh office said this morning.

The decision by the state board, the spokesman said, followed a hearing on the Carter appeal Monday afternoon by the five-member body.

The state elections board, in its ruling, said the "findings of fact and conclusion of law issued by the Pitt County Board of Elections following a public hearing, in the matter regarding protest and request for recount filed by...Carter, along with the decision relative to subject matter, are affirmed by this board."

Carter, who fell 20 votes short of a sixth-place finish in the council balloting and 30 votes behind the fifth-place candidate, requested a recount by the county elections board. The board, following a hearing, denied the request, citing an "insufficiency of evidence" to warrant a recount.

Carter appealed his case to the state board, contending the county body "was in error in denying" his recount petition.

Reached this morning, Carter said he had not yet been notified of the decision by the state board and had made no decision as to whether he would take his appeal further.

"I don't know the (state board's) rationale for upholding the decision or the rationale of the local board in deciding what they did," Carter said.

He said if the state board has indeed denied his appeal, "it makes me feel there are some irregularities somewhere along the line we need to deal with."

Carter said he is "a fighter by nature" and "very much disappointed" in the state ruling. He said he will consult "some of my supporters and friends and see how they feel" regarding his appeal.

Carter's next appeal option would be to the Wake County Superior Court.

Joint Defense Exercises For Israel, U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) —

The United States and Israel will conduct joint naval and air exercises in the eastern Mediterranean as part of their first formal agreement to cooperate militarily against Soviet-directed threats in the Middle East.

The maneuvers and other aspects of the new "strategic cooperation" between the two countries were outlined Monday in a "Memorandum of Understanding" released by Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger and Israeli Defense Minister Ariel Sharon.

The memorandum described the agreement in general terms, noting that most of the details would be hammered out by new U.S.-Israeli panels, including a "Coordinating Council" and "Joint Working Groups," starting in January.

The agreement calls for "joint military exercises, including naval and air exercises in the eastern Mediterranean." But it apparently will be left to the U.S.-Israeli panels to decide such issues as the stockpiling of equipment in Israel for possible use by U.S. forces.

Bank Robber Is Still At Large

GRIMESLAND — Pitt County Sheriff's Department members and agents of the FBI and SBI continued their search today for a lone gunman who robbed the branch office of First Citizens Bank & Trust Co. here Monday.

Sheriff Ralph Tyson said authorities have determined that some $6,300 was taken in the mid-morning robbery. Some of the money, he said, was recovered after a dye-filled device placed in a money bag by a bank teller blew up as the robber fled, ripping open the bag and spraying red dye.

The bank teller told authorities a black male carrying a small handgun entered the bank around 10:15 a.m. and told her to fill a money bag. She slipped the dye device in the bag and it went off as the robber left the building, it was pointed out.

Annual Farmville Parade

CLOWNS ... and dozens of other paraders brought the Christmas spirit to Farmville Monday during the town's annual Christmas parade, said to be the largest ever. The 77-unit parade, coordinated by the Farmville Area Chamber of Commerce, featured eight bands, several other marching units, 15 professionally built floats, 20 locally built floats and numerous old cars and other conveyances, some transporting dignitaries of the town, county and state. Farmville police estimated the parade viewers at 16,000-17,000. (Reflector Photo By Carol Tyer)

Supreme Court Studies Illegal Aliens' Rights

By KEVIN COSTELLOE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a case that could spell out the rights of millions of illegal aliens, the Supreme Court is considering whether Texas must provide free public education to illegal alien children.

The justices today are considering a 1975 Texas law restricting free elementary, junior high and high school education to U.S. citizens and foreigners legally in the country.

Lower courts struck down the law, and a related Tyler, Texas, school district policy of charging $1,000 annual tuition for each illegal alien child in public schools.

Many of the illegal aliens living in the United States come from Mexico.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled in October 1980 that "all aliens — even those illegally within the territorial boundaries of the United States — are entitled to equal protection of the laws."

Richard L. Arnett, an assistant Texas attorney general, contends that illegal aliens only are entitled to proper immigration procedures and "due process to ensure that their lives, liberty and property are not unfairly taken."

Arnett suggests that if illegal aliens are entitled to constitutional "equal protection" they could become eligible for food stamps, welfare, Medicare, Medicaid and other federal benefits.

Peter D. Roos, a lawyer for the children, maintains that if illegal aliens are not entitled to equal protection, a state could "treat undocumented persons within its jurisdiction arbitrarily and irrationally, free from any need to justify such treatment."

Roos, noting that the children generally had no say about coming to the United States, contends that Texas cannot enact a law "that visits the 'wrongs' of parents on their innocent children in such a drastic manner."

The case has attracted considerable attention, particularly because of its potential impact on the 1 million to 6 million illegal aliens the Census Bureau has estimated are in "United States."

Justice Lewis F. Powell, considering an emergency m. earlier in the dispute, wrote on Sept. 4, 1980 that controversy "involves a pressing national problem" because of the growing number of illegal aliens in the United States.

Last September, the Justice Department retreated from its Carter administration position by saying the federal government would no longer take a stand on whether the children are entitled to free public education.

During the Carter administration, the Justice Department told lower federal courts that the Texas law is unconstitutional.

MIGs For Nicaragua?

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP) — A deserter from the Nicaraguan air force says Soviet-made MiG fighters have been sent to Nicaragua from Cuba. But the director of the Nicaraguan opposition newspaper La Prensa said the report is false.

The claim of MiGs in leftist-ruled Nicaragua was made by Francisco Emilio Miranda Mongalo, who was given asylum in Costa Rica Oct. 23, the San Jose newspaper La Nacion reported.

The paper said the pilot told it in an interview:

Thirty-two Cuban, Soviet, Libyan and Palestinian pilots are flying the MiGs while Nicaraguan pilots are being trained in the Soviet Union and Czechoslovakia to fly them.

The planes are based at secret airstrips on the Caribbean coast near Puerto Cabezas, on the Pacific coast near the Gulf of Fonseca and at Montelimar, 21 miles southwest of Managua.

Miranda Mongalo said he saw four MiGs flying in formation over Nicaraguan territory before he left the country in October.

The pilot's story was challenged by Joaquin Chamorro Barrios, the director of the Nicaraguan newspaper La Prensa, which was in the forefront of the revolution that overthrew dictator Anastasio Somoza De-bayle.

Chamorro, visiting San Jose for a speaking engagement, told reporters: "I haven't seen any of those planes in my country, and I don't believe there are any. If there were, I would have seen them."

He added, however, that there has been a marked increase in the Nicaraguan government's military strength because of Soviet and Czechoslovak arms it has received. He did not specify what weapons had been delivered.

Speculation about Soviet-made jet fighters in Nicaragua was touched off a week ago when Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. told reporters accompanying him on a visit to Mexico that Nicaragua had sent pilots to Eastern Europe to be trained to fly MiGs. He said the U.S. government had evidence that MiGs destined for Nicaragua had been sent to Cuba.

Okla. Fallout

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Cotton County lost all three of its commissioners as a result of the FBI's inquiry into kickback schemes.

So far, 74 county commissioners in Oklahoma have resigned; 13 counties have lost all three commissioners.

In announcing the resignation of the three Cotton County commissioners Monday, Gov. George Nigh named interim county commissioners and said he would set a special election date.

Federal officials say some 250 commissioners, former commissioners and material suppliers eventually will be implicated in the schemes, in which kickbacks were paid on purchases by commissioners of road-and-bridge building equipment.

Best Mark To Worst Answers In Bar Exam

MONTPELIER, Vt. (AP) — A confused examiner correcting the Vermont bar exam for the state's latest crop of lawyers gave the highest mark to the worst answers and the lowest mark to the best answers, officials have discovered.

"We've never run into this problem before," Charles Gibson, vice-chairman of the Vermont Board of Bar Examiners, said Monday. "I just haven't the slightest idea what's going to happen."

Only 36 of the 78 applicants who took the test in July passed it, the lowest pass-fail ratio in at least two decades. The Board of Bar Examiners, a seven-lawyer panel, lowered the passing score because of the poor showing.

Lawyers have to pass the exam to practice in Vermont. The board, which writes and grades the test, plans to meet later this week to discuss the situation.

Gibson said Monday the mistake was discovered when an applicant who had flunked asked to have an essay reviewed.

The essays, which make up half the test, are graded on a scale of 1 to 5, with 5 the highest possible score.

The unsuccessful applicant found that one of the answers matched the perfect model for the question, but the examiner had given the essay a 1.

The board checked and discovered that one examiner had misunderstood the grading system and had given a score of 1 to the best answers.

It wasn't clear how many questions had been corrected by the confused examiner. It also wasn't clear whether the July test was the only time the mistake had been made.

The seven men who sit on the board are veteran lawyers. Charles Tetzlaff, the newest member, has graded exams the last three times it has been given.

"I suppose it could have been done before, but I don't think it was," said Gibson.

Thomas Debevoise, the dean of the Vermont Law School, said he hoped the mixup would prompt the state Supreme Court to revise the testing and grading system.

"This is a real mess," he said. "And who knows how many years it's gone on? It should make the Supreme Court take a real look, something it has failed to do in the past."

Supreme Court Chief Justice Albert Barney said he doubted the court would revoke the license of anyone who had been admitted to the bar based on the results.

"Ordinarily if someone has been admitted to the bar, unless there is fraud, they remain as members," he said.

Airliner With 178 Aboard Hits Corsican Mountain; All Killed

AJACCIO, Corsica (AP) — A chartered DC-9 airliner carrying 172 Yugoslav tourists and six crew members slammed into fog-shrouded mountains 30 miles from the airport here today and Ajaccio police said all aboard were killed.

They said the wreckage of the Yugoslavian Inex-Adria Airways craft was found by search parties on the slopes above Casa Casalabriva, about 30 miles south of Ajaccio airport nearly four hours after radio and radar contact with the plane was lost.

High winds and fog had hampered efforts to locate the downed plane, police said.

Ajaccio police said the DC-9 crashed on the west face of Mount San Pietro. Bodies were scattered on the sides of the mountain among the debris of the aircraft, they said.

Civil defense workers were taken to the scene by police helicopter.

Earlier police reported spotting metallic debris near Serra-di-Ferro, about 12 miles south of Ajaccio near the west coast of this Mediterranean island. A helicopter was sent to the scene. It was not immediately clear if this was part of the wreckage.

Villagers reported seeing an aircraft apparently in trouble and others said they heard one or more explosions, possibly as the aircraft crashed into Mount San Pietro.

The number of people aboard the airliner was announced in Yugoslavia, where the one-day excursion to Corsica was organized by the KOMPAS tourist company in Ljubljana. Tour organizers and the airliner had earlier said there were 168 passengers and a crew of six, but later revised this to say there were 172 passengers, including three infants, and six crew members, all apparently Yugoslavian.

The aircraft sent a distress message shortly before it was due to land at Ajaccio airport, control tower officials said. The plane was on final approach to landing when the tower lost radio and radar contact with the craft, they said.

The worst previous crash this year occurred in August when a Taiwanese jetliner exploded above Taiwan and plunged to earth, killing all 110 people aboard.

The worst single airplane crash in history occurred in France on March 3, 1974, when a Turkish Airlines DC-10 crashed 26 miles northeast of Paris, killing 346 people.

In July, 1973, a Boeing 707 belonging to the Brazilian airline Varig crashed in flames near Orly Airport outside Paris, killing 122 people.

A month earlier, during the 1973 Paris Air Show, a Soviet supersonic Tupolev 144 crashed while attempting an emergency landing during a demonstration flight. Eight crew members and nine people on the ground were killed.

The worst aviation disaster in history occurred on March 27, 1977 when Pan American and KLM Boeing 747s collided on a runway on Santa Cruz de Tenerife, Canary Islands, killing 582 people.

Dear Abby

Some Christmas Gifts Won't Keep on Giving

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Last year you devoted an entire column to what and what not to give for Christmas gifts. I thought it was one of the most helpful columns you ever wrote. Please run it again.

OVER 80

DEAR OVER 80: That column was so well-received I've updated it. Here it is:

DEAR READERS: Can you believe it's time to prepare for the holidays again? Well, it is, so do yourselves a favor and do your Christmas (or Hanukkah) shopping early.

If you're wondering what to give Aunt Bessie or Grandpa, who don't get out much, let me tell you what not to give them:

No dusting powder, after-shave or cologne. (They probably have several unopened boxes gathering dust on their closet shelves.)

Grandpa doesn't need another necktie, and Aunt Bessie doesn't really want any more brooches, necklaces or bracelets.

With the price of groceries so high, folks who live alone on a fixed income probably would be delighted to receive a basket of goodies. Include small cans of salmon, chicken, ham, tuna, vegetables, fruit, instant coffee, tea bags, crackers, cookies and instant soup mixes.

Older people who live in confined quarters do not need more "things" that are ornamental only. Don't send music boxes, statuettes or other bric-a-brac.

Another thoughtful gift is lined stationery with envelopes and a generous supply of postage stamps. (Enclose some felt-tip pens, too.)

The homebound will appreciate a box of greeting cards for all occasions so that they too can send birthday, anniversary, graduation, get-well and condolence cards to others. (Be a sport! Stamp some envelopes.)

Don't give anyone a gift of clothing unless you're absolutely sure the size is right. That goes for the color and style, too.

If you're tempted to pass along a scarf, purse, wallet or some other useless little doodad you received for Christmas three years ago, please don't. It's a pretty fair bet the recipient will find it just as useless as you did. (Besides, you might get it back the year after next.)

If someone on your gift list is living on a pension, a check for any amount would be much more appreciated than a frivolous little trinket. Or give someone who's counting pennies a year's subscription to a newspaper or magazine you know he or she will enjoy.

Please, don't ever send a gift in a box bearing the name of a store unless you bought it there. Should the recipient want to exchange it, he will be embarrassed, the store clerks will look bewildered, and it won't make you look too good.

If you buy a gift on sale, be sure it's appropriate, since if the recipient tries to take it back he will be told, "Sorry, sale merchandise is not returnable."

Don't give anyone a pet unless you're absolutely sure it's wanted and will be properly cared for. And if you want to delight someone who considers his pet a "member of the family," include a tin of cat or dog food for the pet.

Don't give wine or liquor unless you're sure the recipients imbibe. Candy, nuts and fruitcake make wonderful gifts for those who aren't counting calories, but please have compassion for those who are, and lead them not into temptation.

Resist giving toddlers stuffed animals and dolls that are bigger than they are. And parents will thank you for not sending their children horns, drums, sirens or whistles. If you give a child a game or book, be sure it's in the appropriate age range.

Instead of giving someone a gift with permission to "exchange it if it's not what you want," save yourself (and him) much time and effort and give him a gift certificate in the first place.

Holiday time can be very depressing for people who are alone, so if you know someone who might be alone and lonely, give him (or her) the best gift of all — an invitation to spend the holiday with you and your family. Loneliness is the ultimate poverty.

Love, ABBY

BARRING UPHELD BY COURT ... Karen O'Connor, a 12-year-old suburban Chicago girl, was barred Monday from playing on the boys' basketball team of her junior high school in Prospect Heights, Ill. The United States Supreme Court let stand a federal appeals court ruling that she is not automatically entitled to try out for the boys' team. O'Connor maintained the girls' team did not play to her level of competition. (AP Lasephoto)

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

Did you ever get the feeling the "inflation fighters" are talking down to you?

They keep saying they're "holding the line." Candy bars are the same price as they were 20 years ago. Oh, sure, there's just less candy. Roller coaster rides still cost the same. Uh-huh ... the ride's just shorter. A cup of coffee is etatus quo. Right, the cup just gets smaller.

Who are they kidding? You know how long it took me to figure out I could no longer afford a car? when they started to print the price of the gasoline by the half gallon.

There isn't a day goes by that people don't speculate where the bloated economy will take us.

If things continue, I can foresee a lot of changes in people's lives. When they're sick instead of checking into a hospital, they might just as well check into the Plaza and get room service. The prices are nearly the same, and besides TV in the Plaza comes with the room instead of being an "extra."

If airline rates continue to go down and mail ... continues to go up, I see a lot of people hand-delivering their own letters and maybe staying on a week to see if there's a reply.

Shrimp in salad bars will become even more elusive and will be placed even farther under the glass so that only the adventurous diner will risk severing his arm to get at it.

Detroit will eventually come out with transportation the American people have been waiting on all their lives: a car that outlasts the payments. It will be of rigid steel construction, go five miles an hour, run on treads and contain two drivers ... one in the belly of the tank and the other in the turret.

Remember when talk used to be cheap? It will never be again. I see teachers charging you for a conference on your child, policemen charging for directions, newspaper boys charging for house calls and doctors charging for listening to your complaints.

The high cost of having children will be reflected in Rent-a-Kid for status-seekers who want to add warmth to their Christmas newsletter and bring meaning to Mother's Day or drama to their family picnics.

There isn't a day goes by that our children don't accuse us of living in the past. They don't understand. It's cheaper.

Projections Are Difficult

Prognosticators are very much a part of our modern world.

They project the number of future births so we will know the population that will have to be provided for. They foresee future interest rates, inflation rates, gross national product figures and many other things on which we plan the nation's economy.

It would be difficult for any company or government to plan without such figures — but we can't stake our lives on them.

Duke Power Co. purchased the Greenwood County (S.C.) Electric Power Commission 15 years ago with a promise that rates would not increase. Now Duke has gone to court in an attempt to break that promise.

"We had every reason to believe that the price of electricity was going down," a Duke official said. As everyone knows, it didn't and now Greenwood residents are paying an average monthly bill of $16. That could jump to $48 if the Duke request is granted.

The Greenwood situation is but a small part of the vast Duke Power complex, but the dilemma is a good example of how difficult it is to project business expenses very far into the future in today's economic climate.

Lindbergh Case Still With Us

One of the nation's most sensational crimes won't go away ... even after a conviction and execution almost 50 years ago.

Involved was the kidnapping and death of the infant son of Charles A. Lindbergh, who was, perhaps the nation's most popular hero of the time following his solo flight to Europe.

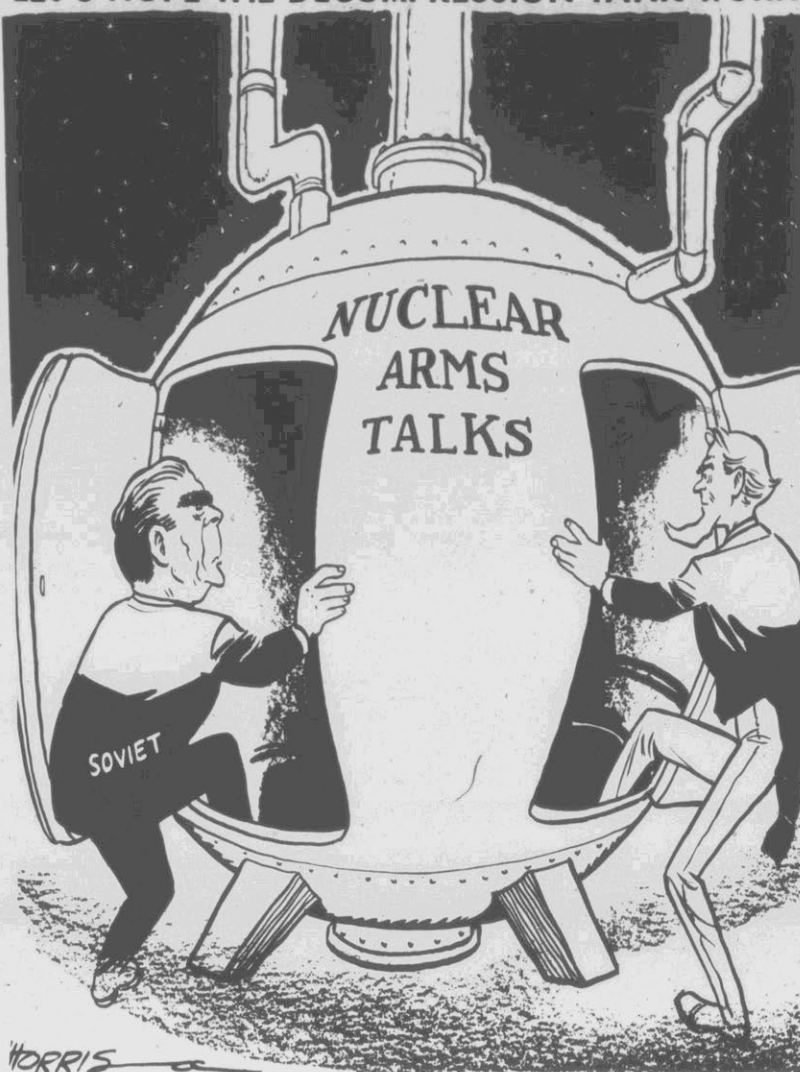

The kidnapping occurred on March 1, 1932, and ransom money was paid. Following discovery of the child's body Bruno Richard Hauptmann was tried and executed for the crime.

An attorney continues to work on the case, however, and Hauptmann's 83-year-old widow wishes to see his name cleared.

It is difficult to imagine how the kidnapping rocked the nation at a time when heroes were few. It was also at the very depths of the depression and $50,000 was unimaginable wealth to a poverty ridden people.

It was another time ... another world from today's, but still the event draws public attention and the courts still wrestle with the legal questions.

LET'S HOPE THE DECOMPRESSION TANK WORKS!

BY JAMES J. KILPATRICK

The Textbook Example

WASHINGTON — In the midst of the hullabaloo on Capitol Hill 10 days ago, the House took one vote that was worse than all the rest. Once again, the House killed a pay raise for senior executives in the federal civil service.

It was an act of pure, unadulterated folly. The vote provided a textbook example of how not to run a government.

Since March of 1977, almost five years ago, the top career people in federal service have received one raise of 5.5 percent. Because of the "cap" fixed by Congress on executive salaries, 46,000 key administrators at eight levels of responsibility find themselves frozen at $50,112. The freeze has had a devastating effect upon morale and upon the hiring of executives to replace those who retire.

One of the most maddening aspects of this wretched situation is that the congressional penny-pinching hasn't saved the taxpayers a dime. On the contrary, the cap has cost us millions in early retirement annuities. There is no good way to estimate what it has cost us in executive talent.

Consider a few examples. The Office of Naval Research is losing a senior electrical engineer, now frozen at $50,112, solely because of the cap. He is charged with running the Navy's multimillion-dollar program of basic research in electronic warfare. He enjoys his work and has been selected for promotion to the Senior Executive Service (SES). But he has been offered a salary of more than $60,000 in private employment, and off he goes — taking his experience with him.

The Naval Research Laboratory in October lost an SES superintendent who left to take a university position at a 50 percent increase in pay. He had concluded that government employment held no future for him.

Jerome A. Smith, technical director of the Office of Naval Research, says his agency service Grades 15 through 18. If the House had agreed, these career servants would have received increases ranging from $4,600 to $7,900 a year.

But the House would not agree. House conferees insisted that a pay raise for the executives be linked to a pay raise for members of Congress. Otherwise, a bureaucrat might be paid more than a senator or a representative, and that would never do. With congressional primaries only a few months away, members of the House were unwilling to vote themselves a raise. On a voice vote, they shouted down the Stevens amendment. There were the old ball game.

It is ridiculous. The General Accounting Office estimated that the 11 percent raises proposed by Senator Stevens actually would reduce the government's expenses for the next three years. The higher salaries would provide a sufficient incentive for many senior executives to remain on the job, thus avoiding outlays for retirement and for replacement personnel.

Such arguments did not prevail. We remain locked into the kind of absurdity by which a senior research psychologist at the Pentagon gets the same salary paid to the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. This isn't penny-wise. It's penny-stupid.

JAMES J. KILPATRICK

has lost a fourth of its top executives in the past two years. Half of them, in his view, "represent major losses to the Navy."

In any rational scheme of things, Congress would provide incentives to keep these top executives in the federal service. But when Congress gets around to executive pay scales, rational thinking disappears. The present situation positively encourages early retirement. The executive who stays on the job gets no raise, but the executive who retires gets annual cost-of-living adjustments in his annuity. As a consequence, 3,137 career people retired in 1980, compared to 508 in 1977.

Alaska's Sen. Ted Stevens attempted valiantly to relieve the lunacy. On Nov. 19, by a vote of 54-41, the Senate agreed to modest increases for members of the SES and for other executives in civil

Real Test In Quickness

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
SALALAH, Oman — The test of American strategy for safeguarding Mideast oil supplies is whether the U.S. can mount quick force against Soviet moves "on warning" with sufficient power to convince Moscow to back down or risk major warfare.

That doctrine, which takes into account the overwhelming Soviet power in its Southwest-Asia backyard, is being applied here at the most conspicuous collision point between western and Soviet interests in the entire Mideast: the lonely, mountainous border between western-allied Oman and Marxist South Yemen. South Yemen is the only Moscow controlled state in the Arab world.

The vital element in the western defense plan first devised by the Carter administration and now being carried out by President Reagan is air defense over the vast Persian Gulf area. Without radar early-warning and immediately available local air power, preliminary Soviet moves could not be discovered and countered. Without discovery, rapid Soviet aggression, as occurred two years ago in Afghanistan, would go unchallenged for too long.

The five AWACS radar plans that the Senate narrowly approved for sale to Saudi Arabia are the most dramatic evidence of this new American strategy. Slightly lower on the value scale, but no less essential if the American plan is to work at vulnerable points around the gulf, is a complete air-warning radar system in Oman. Two-thirds of that system is now in place; the last portion is ready to be installed.

When completed, this third radar leg will give Sultan Qaboos' country an air warning for the highly-vulnerable Omani approaches to the Strait of Hormuz at the entrance to the Persian Gulf down to the border of communist South Yemen a few miles south of this southern Omani city. Oman's wild, rugged terrain, from towering cliffs along the Arabian Gulf coastline to vast expanses of desert inland, is two-thirds the size of California.

The Dhofar rebellion, a dangerous period of guerrilla warfare between Oman and Yemen-backed guerrillas in the spectacular mountains near here, ended six years ago in the sultan's victory. But he needed help from the shah of Iran at a time when the shah provided the West's basic security against Soviet penetration of the Persian Gulf.

On this side, the Oman-Yemen border is defended by a series of small mountain-top positions armed with infantry, mortar and medium artillery. Close to the coast on the island of Masirah, an old British airstrip is being enlarged and modernized by American contractors under Omani supervision. When finished, it will be able to handle latest model U.S. aircraft. Three other airfields, two here in the south and the third near the capital at Muscat, are also being modernized for quick-time reaction.

On the long, wide beaches near here 1,000 U.S. Marines will land on Dec. 2 as part of Operation Bright Star. This is the only territory made available by any Arab state other than Egypt for this first test of Reagan's Rapid Deployment Force.

The core of Reagan's strategy is quick response if and when Soviet power starts to penetrate the Persian Gulf region. That could well come first along the Oman-Yemen border. Moving by helicopter along the 600-foot high escarpments hugging the coastlines, we inspected the Omani defense positions. They face three Yemeni brigades armed with Soviet weapons.

The weapons are numerous and growing: surface-to-air missiles, surface-to-surface missiles called Scuds and Frogs with ranges up to 200 miles and Soviet MiG-17s and 19s. A major new airfield is now being built by the Soviets less than 100 miles from the border.

The defense strategy is simple and direct: If radar or U.S. spy satellites detect clear signals of imminent Yemeni attack — or even of the transfer of those Soviet MiGs toward the new airfield — Oman will react. "We would not be likely to allow any lodgment of power near the border that might presage imminent attack," one Omani air force officer told us.

Today the border is quiet, with no hint of trouble. It could stay that way into the foreseeable future, giving the U.S., Saudi Arabia and other Persian Gulf states the time needed to perfect overall defense strategy. That strategy is now moving from a gleam in the eye of the Carter administration to a solid defense plan and nowhere will it have greater importance than in the domain of the sultan of Oman.

Strength For Today

TRAGIC DECISIONS

There is such a thing as shutting the door against life. People shut doors when they say "No" to love. They shut doors when they reject what is right and accept what is evil. They shut the door when they set themselves to hating someone and go on with their hating through the years. They shut the door when they give way to their passions with abandon and thrust God and his demands for righteousness aside.

Jesus said "I am the door;

by me, if any man enter in, he shall be saved." In the parable of the Wise and Foolish Virgins we have the picture of the door being shut. But Christianity is the religion of the open door. It is an inviting religion. In it we see God extending his hands. Through the words of Jesus we hear a gracious invitation to enter — into the larger life, into deeper faithfulness, into the heavenly type of life here on earth, and into heaven itself after death. —

The Class Of '72

By BILL NOBLITT
(First of Two Articles)

RALEIGH — Personal happiness and raising a successful family increasingly occupy the time and energy of the "Class of '72," a nationwide sampling of high school grads from that year being tracked by specialists from North Carolina's Research Triangle Institute.

Making lots of money, the world's social and economic problems, and political activism take a back seat to building their own success for these young people.

About 23,500 individuals are involved in this unique survey which, over the years, has kept track of the Class of '72 through mail questionnaires, follow-up telephone conversations to iron out any problems in responses, and personal search and interview efforts when responses fail to come in.

An elaborate tracking system is maintained by the RTI National Longitudinal Study staff to keep tabs on forwarding addresses and telephone changes as the highly mobile participants go about their after-high school lives.

Techniques

Not only does the long-term survey provide valuable information on changing educational and work goals and ambitions of the group, but researchers have used the experience to develop important computer and follow-up techniques which can be implemented in other studies.

Don King of the RTI Survey Operations Center credits the Class of '72 continuing survey with inspiring much of the success in computer programming of data entry and analysis. The size of the survey and complexity of responses made analysts develop valuable programs to design and edit such surveys by computer.

A variety of techniques to improve survey response, such as questions keyed to trigger follow-up telephone calls, use of newsletters sharing information with participants, identification cards providing status and recognition to the young people, and a small cash incentive are put into play when the time rolls around for another follow-up.

More than 300 research projects in a host of governmental and university organizations have drawn upon the Class of '72 information to cover topics such as changing patterns of college attendance, performance in post-secondary education, and the effect of high school experiences on later life.

Written reports and computer tapes stored at the sponsoring National Center for Education Statistics serve as a resource for educators, legislators, social scientists and government officials concerned with educational policy and factors which affect early adult development.

The purpose is to record over a period of time the educational and work experiences, career progress, family life and community participation, and to show how education influences the choices young people make at key times in their lives and careers.

Work

Reports on the latest follow-up survey were prepared by Graham J. Burkheimer and Thomas P. Novak of the RTI Center for Educational Research and Evaluation, and summarized in the November edition of "Hypotenuse," a periodical published by the institute.

The work experience of the group demonstrates that a high school education pays off. Only four percent of the young people were hunting a job or laid off at the time of the most recent survey. That compares to a national unemployment rate of close to seven percent, which includes individuals without a high school education.

The survey also shows that work takes a decreasing position of importance in the lives of young people. At the time of graduation, 84 percent felt that a very important life goal was "being successful in my line of work."

In the latest follow-up, the number putting such emphasis on career success had dropped to 75 percent. Meanwhile, personal goals were receiving increasing emphasis.

Other Editors Say Help Needed

(The Durham Sun)

The strange reluctance of most states, including North Carolina, to treat drunken-driving with convincing seriousness is beginning to make federal legislation an attractive alternative.

Among the proposals now under study by a Senate subcommittee are establishing national minimum jail terms or community service for persons convicted of driving under the influence of alcohol and cutting off federal highway safety money to states that fail to crack down on drunken driving. The latter threat already hangs over the heads of states that fail to enforce the national 55 mph speed limit.

Officials of the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration admit that drunken driving has become a national epidemic killing 26,000 persons a year. But they maintain that the problem can only be solved at the state and local level — chiefly through consistent enforcement of current laws and certain punishment for persons convicted.

In one sense they are correct. Too many drunk drivers are never caught. Too many others get off scot-free or with wrist-slapping penalties. Consistency in enforcement and punishment would serve notice on people who drive while intoxicated.

But experience has proved that many state and local governments aren't willing to be stern or that they are susceptible to pressure not to enforce drunken driving laws strictly.

North Carolina and other states are using mandatory sentences to deter some violent crimes, such as armed robbery. We see no reason why the federal government — in the absence of tough action at the state and local level — should not use mandatory sentences and cutting federal highway safety money to curb drunken driving.

Surely the lives of 26,000 Americans a year are worth it.

AT&T Reorganization Ready

By NORMAN BLACK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — It took more than a year, but the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. is finally issuing a birth announcement — "Baby Bell" should be operating by next summer.

Baby Bell is the telephone industry nickname for the new AT&T subsidiary that will carry the company into the world of unregulated competition for the first time.

Following the mandate of the Federal Communications Commission, AT&T announced Monday that it had filed a plan for financing the new subsidiary. The FCC now has 180 days, or until May 31, to review that plan.

The capitalization plan calls for $627 million in cash advances, equipment and stock equity over the next four years to set up and operate the subsidiary, as well as the transfer of 850 employees. It is much more modest than expected because it covers the initial offering of only one new service.

AT&T spokesman Pic Wagner said Monday that the new subsidiary, for the moment dubbed "XYZ Inc." in the FCC filing, would eventually offer a full range of unregulated services. It is beginning its life, however, with the limited goal of offering Advanced Communications Service, or ACS.

ACS will mark AT&T's first full-scale venture into data processing, since it allows different types of computers to "talk" to each other long-distance. The computerized service also will allow customers to manage their own data communication networks and to process, store and transmit data through the subsidiary's facilities.

If AT&T eventually realizes its goal of entering all the areas of the industry that are being deregulated, particularly the sale of telephones, switchboards and other terminal equipment, Baby Bell is expected to use $15 billion or more of AT&T's assets and more than 100,000 of its more than 1 million employees.

Monday's announcement marks the formal start of what AT&T has called the "largest corporate reorganization in history." By the time the process is completed, AT&T will have divided itself into two parts: the parent firm offering regulated, basic telephone service; and a new subsidiary offering unregulated services.

That structure, approved by the FCC in April 1980 is designed to allow the giant telephone company to compete in new areas without breaking up the existing Bell System. The FCC expects its requirement of a "fully separate subsidiary" to prevent

AT&T from improperly using revenues from its regulated telephone services to subsidize unregulated activities.

The filing of the initial capitalization plan came despite House and Senate debate on legislation that would supercede the FCC ruling and an antitrust suit pending in U.S. District Court.

The Senate already has passed a bill on the matter, accepting the major points of the FCC's approach but imposing additional safeguards. The House, however, is not expected to consider the legislation before next spring at the earliest.

In addition to the antitrust suit, the Justice Department is appealing a federal judge's ruling that swept aside a 1956 consent decree restricting AT&T to regulated activities, and the FCC order allowing AT&T to enter unregulated fields has been challenged in court.

Interest Rate Decline Expected Continue Into '82

Plan Layoffs

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors Corp. plans to eliminate the jobs of 13,000 of its 190,000 salaried workers worldwide in the next few weeks, the Detroit Free Press reported today.

The newspaper quoted unidentified GM officials as saying the reductions would be based on job performance.

A GM official told the newspaper Monday that the cuts would be made through layoffs, transfers of salaried workers to hourly status, retirements and attrition. He said he was not sure whether the jobs would be eliminated permanently.

GM spokesman Clifford Merriot said a companywide review of salaried positions was being conducted, and GM was considering cutting its workforce because of recent reductions in planned auto production. However, he would not comment further on the automaker's plans.

GM had said earlier that December production would be 17 percent lower than in the same period a year ago.

Officials told the newspaper the depth of the cuts would vary among GM's divisions.

Robert Jones, personnel director for the Fisher Body division plant in Pontiac, Mich. said 5 percent of the division's white-collar workforce would be cut.

"I'm just putting the numbers together right now for our plant," he said Monday.

A GM plant manager, who asked not to be identified, told the newspaper he expected to receive orders on the number of workers to cut within a week.

"I can't tell yet how it will affect us, because I haven't received a guideline on the cuts," he said.

The world's biggest carmaker has about 140,000 salaried employees in the United States.

On Monday, rates in the nation's credit markets and on bank reserves rose, and that usually pulls up interest rates in general. And, the government announced that the money supply was rising, but not enough to guarantee that interest rates will continue going down.

Despite those trends, Wall Street analysts said they did not expect interest rates to begin rising again soon. Backing up that assessment was the government's announcement Monday that the index of leading economic indicators was off 1.8 percent in October, indicating that the end of the recession isn't in sight.

Crocker National Bank of Los Angeles and Continental Illinois National Bank & Trust Co. of Chicago on Monday lowered their prime interest rates to 15.5 percent, the lowest level since early November 1980. Most banks were expected to continue quoting a 16 percent prime, the rate charged to banks' best corporate customers.

The fall in the index of leading indicators was led by a dropoff in factory orders for manufactured goods and building permits. The expected consequence is lower interest rates at the expense of increased unemployment.

In other economic news Monday:

— A federal judge in Cleveland issued a preliminary injunction barring Mobil Oil Corp. from buying any more stock in Marathon Oil Co. Marathon has been fighting a takeover bid from Mobil and courting an offer from U.S. Steel Corp., which promises to allow Marathon to continue running its own affairs and keep its headquarters in Findlay, Ohio. The ruling gave the oil industry the first clear indication that courts may frown on giant U.S. oil companies going after smaller ones.

Mobil is the nation's No. 2 oil company. Marathon ranks 17th and has huge reserves in Texas which Mobil would like to have. U.S. District Judge John Manos ruled that Marathon could probably prove easily that a Mobil takeover would lessen competition at the gasoline pump in Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin and Tennessee.

— The Agriculture Department said prices paid farmers for raw products dropped 0.8 percent in November and for the fourth consecutive month averaged below year-earlier levels. Department economists said the 1982 outlook also is grim.

— The Commerce Department, in a report illustrating the weakness of U.S. exports, said the foreign trade deficit widened in October to $5.27 billion from $2.58 billion the previous month. For the first 10 months of the year, the deficit was $4.4 billion compared with $31.3 billion in the same period last year.

— In the government's auction of 3- and 6-month Treasury bills, yields fell for the sixth straight week. The results mean banks and savings institutions starting today may pay as much as 11.274 percent interest on $10,000 6-month savings certificates, which are tied to the 6-month bill rate. The previous week's rate was 11.779 percent and as recently as late August it was almost 16 percent.

DETAINED — Legendary Congo mercenary Col. Michael "Mad Mike" Hoare was detained at a prison outside Pretoria, South Africa, with 43 other mercenaries who allegedly hijacked an Air India jet after an abortive coup attempt in the Seychelles Island, a South African newspaper reports from Johannesburg. Hoare led a group of mercenaries known as 5th Commando that helped rescue nearly 2,000 white hostages in an 18-month campaign in the then Congo, in 1964-65. (AP Laserphoto)

Gave Testimony Before Hearing

Dr. James H. Young, director of Institutional Development at Pitt Community College, recently presented testimony on the position of the nation's junior and community colleges before the U.S. House of Representatives Subcommittee on Postsecondary Education in Washington.

The testimony concerned an attempt by the colleges to get the department of education to change or rescind portions of the proposed regulations to implement Title III of the education amendments of 1980.

Dr. Young told the House that various portions of the proposed rules would severely penalize the nation's community colleges. According to the results of a research study conducted by Young, which he presented to members of the House, the suggested changes in program eligibility requirements would eliminate nearly 80 percent of the previously eligible public two-year colleges, including all 58 of North Carolina's community colleges, from further participation.

Currently, North Carolina institutions receive $3.4 million annually from the program for such purposes as faculty development, management improvement, student services, improved computer systems and curriculum development.

Pitt Community College has been awarded Title III funds for the past four years and currently operates a Title III grant for $211,000, which provides improvements in the areas of faculty and staff development, student services and management information systems.

Dr. Young was also asked to remain in Washington to serve on a task force to prepare a compromise position paper.

Dr. Young provided briefings to the staffs of Congressman Walter B. Jones, Congressman Ike Andrews and Senator John East.

Aycock Item Is Purchased

A large Gothic-style bookcase which belonged to Governor Charles B. Aycock has been purchased by the N.C. Museum of History Associates, according to Mrs. Michael D. Weaver of Greenville, Pitt County Chairman for Associates.

Aycock was the turn-of-the-century "education governor" during whose term an average of one new school was built or staffed per day. The bookcase has been placed at the Aycock Birthplace state historic site in Wayne County.

The Museum Associates is a 4,000-member statewide support group for the State History Museum and 23 state historic sites. Membership monies are used to purchase North Carolina artifacts and antiques.

Pitt County citizens may join the Associates by contacting Mrs. Weaver; Mrs. Ross Shuping, co-chairman; Mrs. James M. Galloway Jr.; Mrs. Clifton W. Everette Jr. or Mrs. Larry G. Vacek. Memberships begin at $15.

City Counts 4 Accidents

An estimated $5,100 property damage resulted from four traffic collisions investigated by Greenville police Monday.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from a 5:05 p.m. collision at the intersection of Memorial and View Drives involving cars driven by Charles Robert Ambrose of Plymouth and Carlton Earl Smith of Hobgood.

Damage from the mishap was estimated at $1,000 to the Ambrose car and $800 to the Smith vehicle.

A truck driven by Lewis Allen Stocks of Route 3, Greenville, and a car operated by Cynthia Loretta Wright of 1515 Cooper Lane collided about 12:15 p.m. on Memorial Drive, 300 feet north of the Trade Street intersection, causing $1,600 damage to the truck and $150 damage to the car.

A 6:19 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Charles and 10th streets involved a car driven by Francis Gail Branch of Winterville and a truck operated by Christine Clark Joyce of 213A Stencil Drive.

Police estimated damages at $600 to the Joyce vehicle and $500 to the Branch car.

Officers reported cars driven by Yvonne Smith Drake of Route 1, Gritton, and Olive Kopola of 307 Eastbrook Drive collided about 5:15 p.m. at the intersection of Greenville Boulevard and Hooker Road, resulting in an estimated $250 damage to the Drake car and $200 damage to the Kopola vehicle.

Low Level For Strike Action

WASHINGTON (AP) — Approximately 83,000 people were involved in strikes across the nation in October, a level that was the lowest for that month in nearly two decades and about one-third that of the previous October, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

"The low levels of strike activity partly reflect the light bargaining schedule in 1981 and also the lack of major stoppages in railroads, longshoring and maritime, and in the Postal Service," the bureau reported Monday.

ONE THING'S FOR SURE. WITH AN IRA FROM BB&T, YOU'LL AGE WELL.

Your age is going to increase with time, of course. There's no getting around that. But, with an IRA, so is your fortune.

You could retire a millionaire.

If you start your IRA (Individual Retirement Account) when you're in your early thirties and interest rates stay about the same as they are now, a $2,000-a-year investment will make you a millionaire by the time you retire! And even if you can't start that early, you can still build a whopping retirement fund.

You'll pay lower income taxes.

As long as you're a wage earner, whether or not you have a retirement plan where you work, you're eligible for BB&T's IRA. And you can open your account after January 1st with as little as $500. You're allowed to sock away up to $2,000 each year ($2,250 if you're married and only one of you is a wage earner, $4,000 if both of you are). And whatever your annual investment is, you can deduct every penny of it from that year's gross income. Which means real tax savings.

Your interest is tax-deferred.

The interest you earn, which is tied to money market rates, is compounded daily at BB&T, not monthly or annually as may be the case at some banks and savings and loans. This can add up to a difference of thousands and thousands of dollars by the time you reach retirement age.

And all your interest is tax-deferred. You pay no tax on it until you begin withdrawing funds at retirement, when you'll almost certainly be in a lower tax bracket and, therefore, required to pay less.

Your money piles up until you're 59½.

If you withdraw any money from your IRA before you reach the age of 59½, Federal regulations require you to pay a 10% IRS penalty on that money and perhaps a substantial interest penalty as well.

But once you hit 59½, nothing can stop you. You may take your money in a lump sum, receive it in monthly, quarterly or annual installments, or even wait until you're 70½—but no later—to begin withdrawing funds.

Call or visit any BB&T office today and ask us about this extraordinary opportunity to save for your future. Then plan to open your IRA after January 1st and get started along the road to prosperity.

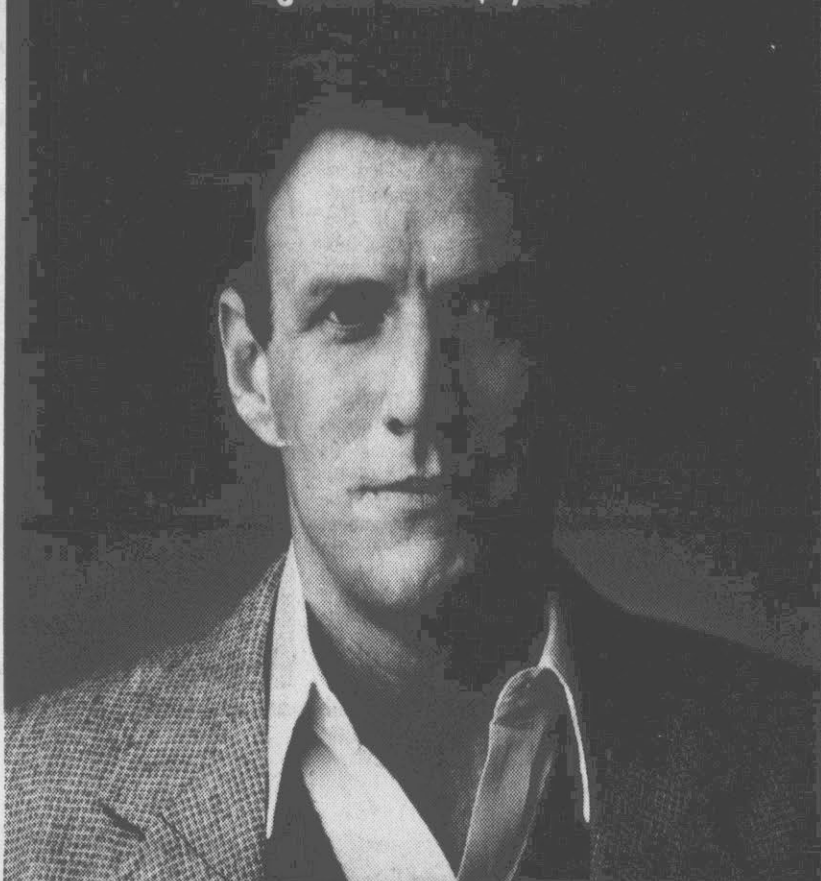

When you're ready to retire, you won't look old. You'll look like a million bucks.

Nobody works harder for your money.

Projected growth shown is based on 12% interest compounded daily on an annual contribution of $2,000 deposited on the first day of each year for 35 years.

Age: 30 IRA: $2,000

Age: 37 IRA: $23,454

Age: 44 IRA: $78,425

Age: 51 IRA: $207,200

Age: 58 IRA: $509,020

Age: 65 IRA: $1,216,038

Wholistic Center Offers Help To The Frustrated

By MARY ANNE RHYNE
Associated Press Writer
CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Jane White spent years of visiting physicians and suffering through batteries of medical tests to find the source of her back pain.

Her patience and money spent, Ms. White recently turned to an emerging group of health-care providers — wholistic health practitioners — for help.

She began undergoing massage and stress-reduction therapy at the Community Wholistic Health Center in Chapel Hill and has found the pain is beginning to subside.

Stewart Walker, one of the center's founders and a resident massage therapist, says the composite character Jane White is typical of the people who turn to the center's seven-member staff for help.

"A lot of the people (who come here) have been the full gamut of medical therapies and they've run into dead ends," Walker said.

In contrast to the antiseptic smells of neighboring ultra-modern medical facilities at the University of North Carolina and Duke University, the non-profit center is a house filled with over-stuffed chairs and couches. Members of the staff use plant-filled rooms upstairs as offices.

The outward appearance of the center, the only one of its kind in North Carolina, reflects much of the philosophy of its staff. "We really believe there's a place for the technological and scientific approach, but that in itself is not enough," Walker said. "We represent a humanistic approach that sometimes is not included (in traditional health care)."

Wholistic health, according to a brochure printed by the center, is a belief that self-awareness plays an important role in the healing process and in maintaining good health. It is based on the premise that all states of health closely involve both the mind and body.

To help people establish a wholistic lifestyle that's conducive to good health, the center offers classes on topics including nutrition, beekeeping, stress management, self-hypnosis, massage, acupuncture, interpersonal communication and parenting.

Walker says 1,500 people have attended the classes since the center opened about four years ago with a $1,000 gift from an interested resident. In addition to providing individual health care, the center holds an annual health fair in Chapel Hill to give people the opportunity to explore the topics in one-day workshops.

Soon, Walker said, the center hopes to add three more staff members and begin offering wholistic health examinations that include a traditional physical exam, nutrition counseling and a personal mental health interview. But he says the center never will be the primary health care provider.

"All doctors, particularly family doctors, have some (variation of a) wholistic orientation. But increasingly our medical establishment is specialized and isolated. There are gaps we want to fill in," Walker said.

Dr. Edward Shahady, chairman of the UNC Department of Family Medicine, sees the center's goals as being "complimentary to our objectives. Their approach is to look at more natural ways to handle problems. Much of it is looking at prevention."

The center's staff and board of directors, Walker says, consists of people from many different disciplines, both traditional and non-traditional.

It includes a physician from the UNC Department of Family Medicine, a psychotherapist from the Duke University Medical Center and a psychotherapy teacher at Duke. It also includes practitioners of less traditional disciplines, such as acupuncture, massage and Bates natural vision improvement, a method based on the premise that unnecessary tension and bad reading habits can result in bad vision.

Because there is no formal degree training from some of the newer disciplines, Walker said the center tries to be flexible enough to accept qualified people regardless of their formal education.

Walker says area physicians have had mixed reactions to the center.

"Some doctors feel threatened by what we do and they call it phoney baloney," he said. "Some come themselves to check it out and some endorse our work."

But he said an increasing number of area physicians are referring patients to the center "because we provide resources they don't. We don't strictly serve an alternative community anymore."

Shahady said the center often refers patients to the family medicine clinic at UNC also. He said he considers the relationship one of cooperation that benefits the patient.

Walker says it has taken some time to build a reputation with the community. "We represent something new and unknown, something unorthodox that maybe their own physician won't recommend," Walker acknowledged.

Massage in particular has a bad reputation, he said.

"In North Carolina massage is classified as adult entertainment. We have an uphill climb to prove it is valuable and therapeutic," Walker said. "But we're careful not to give false promises."

He said he believes more and more people will demand wholistic approaches because "they're willing to take more responsibility for their health. Going to the doctor's now is like going to a garage — you only take your body when it's broken down. This (wholistic) approach looks ahead."

Walker said insurance companies don't recognize most of the center's services as reimbursable but he hopes that will change. He said most of the services are offered at relatively low prices — $25 for a massage and $35 for a counseling session.

But finances remain a "month-to-month" struggle for the center, which depends on contributions and course fees to keep operating.

"This community is famous for its alternative efforts that are sporadic," Walker said. "We were determined to build the kind of foundation that would keep us solvent."

Cardinal Taking Hospital Tests

CHICAGO (AP) — Cardinal John P. Cody, head of the 2.4 million-member Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Chicago, has been hospitalized for routine tests, an archdiocesan spokesman says.

Spokesman Bernard Hanley quoted the 73-year-old cardinal as saying he feels fine and expects to return home later this week when the tests are completed.

The tests are being conducted at Northwestern Memorial Hospital, where Cody was hospitalized Monday. Cody, who has a history of heart disease and diabetes, was being treated by a cardiologist, a hospital spokesman said.

Hanley said Cody decided to take the tests now because of a break in his schedule before a series of events beginning Saturday marking the 50th anniversary of his ordination.

Cody has been the target of a federal grand jury investigation of allegations that he diverted up to $1 million in church funds to a relative. He has denied wrongdoing.

Criticizes Report On Training Of Teachers

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State Superintendent of Public Instruction Craig Phillips has criticized a report which indicates that many North Carolina teachers aren't adequately trained in the courses they teach.

The North Carolina Center for Public Policy Research said in a report Monday that "out-of-field teaching," or teaching a subject for which a teacher has no certificate, occurs in nearly all of the state's 144 public school districts.

"We think that the state Board of Education ought to tighten up the state's policies in this area," said Ron Coble, executive director of the center, a private, nonprofit research group based in Raleigh.

Phillips, in an interview, said out-of-field teaching was a problem in some school districts and one that the state board was concerned about. But he said many teachers are qualified to teach a second subject even though they may not have a certificate in that field.

"I think the center in a way did a disservice by just using statistics without clearly stating what those statistics meant," Phillips said.

He said in many cases, a teacher may teach four courses in his or her certified field, then teach one course in a second field in which he or she has had some training.

He said the reading certificate is a particularly high-level degree requiring more than the usual amount of course study. He said most of the reading taught in grades 7 through 12 is remedial work, and that it is often taught by elementary teachers who may not have the certificate but have experience teaching reading.

"The vast majority of people who are teaching kids across North Carolina, although a number of them are technically out of their field in terms of their certificates, are still more qualified than one would assume from reading this report," he said.

The center's report was a follow-up on an August study of "out-of-field teaching," which said a large percentage of teachers were teaching a subject for which he or she did not hold a teaching certificate. The findings were for grades 7 through 12 during the 1980-1981 school year.

The latest report provided a district-by-district breakdown. The center said it found that:

— 15 local school units had no reading teacher who was certified to teach reading.

— Nine local school units had more than half their social studies teachers without certificates in social studies.

— 32 units had more than half their math teachers without proper certification.

Arrests Made

FARMVILLE — Four arrests have been made following investigation by the Farmville Police Department of two breakings and enterings here.

Arrested and charged with breaking and entering, larceny and forging and uttering checks was Raymond Earl Ellis, 28, of 906 S. Main Street. Ellis' arrest was in connection with the Nov. 20 breaking and entering and larceny of six checks from Pitt County Transportation Company here. The checks later forged and cashed amounted to about $1,100, the arresting officer, Capt. W.G. Barber said.

Charged with breaking and entering and larceny at Heath's Grocery and Seafood Market here Nov. 11 were Carlton Vines, 27, of S. Main Street, Joe Scott, 31, of 308 Acton Place, and Richard Eugene Evans, 27, of 508 S. George Street. The three are believed to have taken a .38-caliber revolver, four cartons of cigarettes, a box of sausage and a quantity of wine from the store located on South Main Street here.

Ellis is being held on $3,500 bond; the other three on $2,500 bond each. All four are in Pitt County Jail, Barber said.

Barber said investigation is continuing on other recent breakings and enterings here.

All Savers at BB&T. Better than money market rates.

What makes our All Savers rate such a good deal—and, for many people, a better deal even than the money market certificate—is one simple fact: you'll get the first $1000 in interest free of all federal tax. In fact, if you file a joint return, you can get up to $2000 in tax-free interest.

With an initial deposit of $500 or more, you can lock this rate in for a whole year now with our one-year All Savers certificates. But hurry. The All Savers rate will change at the beginning of next month.

The yield of 8.34% is based on an annual rate of 8.037% compounded monthly with interest left on deposit until maturity. You will lose tax benefits if you withdraw your money early or use your certificate as security for a loan. There is a substantial interest penalty for early withdrawal.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices were mostly lower in midday trading today as the market found itself divided between higher short-term interest rates and more major banks lowering their prime lending rates.

Selling also came from some investors taking advantage of the market's recent gains, analysts said. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials had gained 37.19 points in the four previous sessions.

Today the Dow Jones industrials were off 2.09 to 886.89 after two hours of trading. Its transportation and utility measures also fell a fraction.

Declines led advances by more than 7 to 5 on the New York Stock Exchange.

Big Board volume totaled 23.82 million shares at noon EDT, against 19.18 million in same period Monday.

Marathon Oil opened late and fell 3½ to 101½. A federal judge today denied Mobil's request to stay an injunction blocking Mobil's bid for Marathon, which wants to merge with U.S. Steel. Mobil rose ¾ to 26½ and U.S. Steel gained ¼ to 29½.

The NYSE's composite index fell 0.22 to 73.15.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off 1.85 at 331.00.

NEW YORK (AP) — Black nationalist Fulani Sunni-Ali says officials have given her a week to reconsider her refusal to cooperate with a federal grand jury investigating the $1.6 million Brink's robbery attempt that left three people dead.

Mrs. Sunni-Ali, also known as Cynthia Boston, emerged Monday from a closed session of the grand jury and said she had refused to answer questions because the lawyer of her choice, Chokwe Lumumba, was barred from representing her. Lumumba and Mrs. Sunni-Ali are members of the separatist Republic of New Africa.

Mrs. Sunni-Ali said she was told to come before the grand jury again next Monday. Mrs. Sunni-Ali was arrested in the wake of the Oct. 20 robbery, but charges were dropped.

Tar Heels Trip Trojans, 73-62

By TOM FOREMAN Jr.
AP Sports Writer
GREENSBORO — North Carolina's top-ranked Tar Heels, lacking one big knockout punch all night, jabbed away at Southern California Monday night before taking a 73-62 college basketball victory.

On several occasions, North

Carolina had an opportunity to put the visiting Trojans out of reach by gaining several eight-point leads in the first half. But the Trojans' physical front line denied the Tar Heels an opportunity to get the ball in to James Worthy and Sam Perkins for high-percentage shots.

Nonetheless, Worthy and

Perkins scored 18 points apiece to help the Tar Heels defend their No. 1 ranking.

The Trojans enjoyed a 33-31 edge in rebounding as a result of their physical play. Tar Heel coach Dean Smith noted the rough-and-tumble play as a factor in his team's inability to break away.

"I'm disappointed they got so many rebounds," Smith said. "They outmuscled us on the boards."

Smith was also concerned about his team's spotty performance which hindered them from turning the intersectional battle into a rout.

"We've played some excellent basketball at times, but we haven't been consistently good," he said.

Southern California coach Stan Morrison said his team should have learned a lesson from the loss in preparation for its Pac-10 schedule.

"I'm disappointed but not discouraged. I'm really anxious to practice Wednesday and I'd give anything to practice tonight," Morrison said. "I think we'll really grow from this."

Freshman Michael Jordan's jumper with 8:32 to go gave the Tar Heels a 62-52 lead, their biggest up to that point. However, the Trojans continued to peck away and whittled the lead to six on a tap-in by Ken Johnson.

But the Tar Heels, aided by four Jimmy Black free throws in the final two minutes, stretched the lead back to 11 at 69-58 with 1:46 left, ending the Trojan threat for good.

North Carolina took a 16-8 lead early, with Worthy scoring eight of those points. A combination of full-court pressure and a man-to-man defense rattled the Trojans and kept them at a distance throughout the first half.

The closest the Trojans came to a tie was 35-32 on a driving layup by Dwight Anderson late in the period. But a follow-up shot by Perkins with 32 seconds in the half gave the North Carolina a 37-32 halftime lead.

The undefeated Tar Heels placed their other starters in double figures. Black scored 15, while Jordan added 12 and Matt Doherty had 10.

Southern California, now 1-1, got 14 points each from Anderson, Johnson and Maurice Williams.

Bailey Leads Pack Victory

DAVIDSON, N.C. (AP) — Thurl Bailey scored 22 points and pulled down 9 rebounds to spark North Carolina State to a 76-55 college basketball victory over Davidson Monday.

Bailey, a 6-foot-11 junior, hit 10 of 15 shots from the floor as the Wolfpack rolled to its second victory in as many starts.

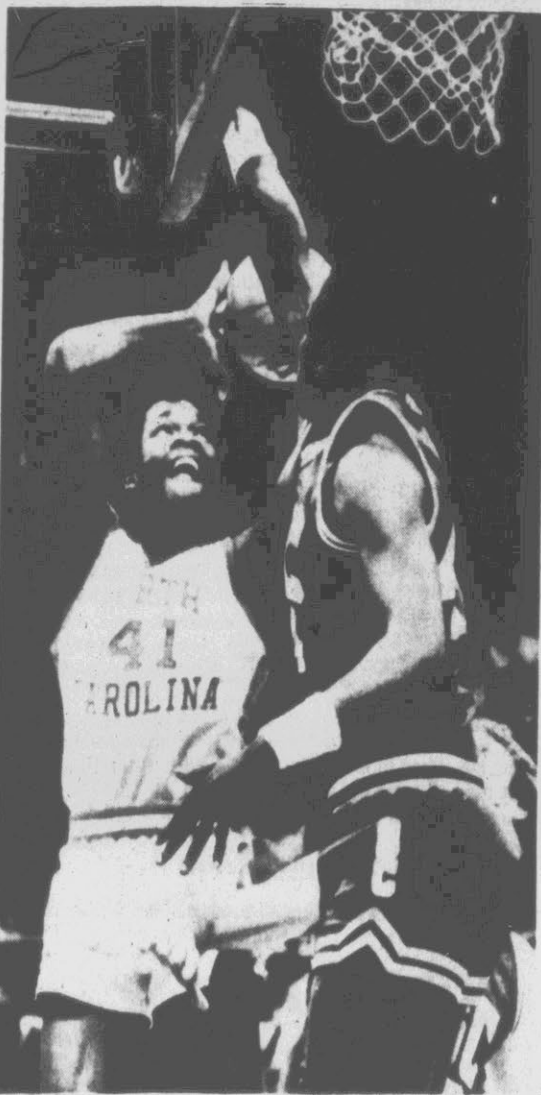

N.C. State took a 38-18 halftime margin on 53.6 percent field goal shooting and raised that to 59.3 percent the final 20 minutes.

Coach Jim Valvano's club took charge when it outscored Davidson 16-4 during a nine-minute stretch in the first half. That ballooned an 8-6 lead to 24-10 with 7:08 remaining. Scott Parzych, Cozell McQueen and Derrick Whittenburg had four points each in the surge.

Jamie Hall led Davidson with 20 points and 7 rebounds while Kenny Wilson contributed 15 points in the season-opening loss for the Wildcats.

Guess Who's New No. One? Clemson Now In The Jinx Spot

By The Associated Press
For the first time in the 46-year history of The Associated Press college football poll, the Clemson Tigers are No. 1.

Clemson today became the seventh team this season — the old record was five — to take over the No. 1 position. Michigan, Notre Dame, Southern California, Texas, Penn State and Pitt all failed to hold it.

Pitt was the latest victim of 1981's No. 1 jinx. After four weeks at the top, the previously unbeaten Panthers plummeted to 10th place when they were destroyed by Penn State 48-14.

That left Clemson (11-0) as the only undefeated club among the NCAA's 137 Division I-A teams. The Tigers received 63 of 68 first-place votes and 1,351 of a possible 1,360 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and sportscasters in the last regular-season poll of the season.

The national champion will be announced in the final AP poll following the bowl games. That poll will be released on Sunday, Jan. 3, 1981, at 6:30 p.m., EST. Clemson will meet fourth-ranked Nebraska in the Orange Bowl on New Year's Night.

"The only thing I'd like to do," Clemson Coach Danny Ford said, "is what six other folks ain't done, and that's figure out how to stay there."

The five other first-place votes went to Georgia, Nebraska, Southern Methodist, Penn State and Miami, Fla.

Georgia, the defending national champion, received 1,255 points and moved up from third place to second. The Bulldogs, who will meet Pitt in the Sugar Bowl, are 9-1 and wind up the regular season against Georgia Tech on Saturday.

Alabama, which tied Georgia for the Southeastern Conference crown, defeated Auburn 28-17 and finished 9-1-1 overall, received 1,188 points in climbing from fourth to third.

Nebraska jumped from fifth to fourth with 1,104 points, followed by Southern Methodist, up from sixth to fifth with 1,050. The Mustangs, who won the Southwest Conference title, are ineligible for a bowl game.

Texas, which will oppose Alabama in the Cotton Bowl, rose from seventh to sixth with 959 points after defeating Texas A&M 21-13. Penn State vaulted from 11th to seventh with 918 points following its rout of Pitt. Southern Cal and Miami held onto the eighth and ninth spots with 844 and 827 points, respectively. Miami, also on probation, wound up 9-2 by demolishing Notre Dame 37-15. Pitt rounded out the Top Ten with 796 points.

That dropped North Carolina from 10th to 11th. The rest of the Second Ten consists of Washington, Iowa, Brigham Young, Ohio State, Michigan, Arizona State, Southern Mississippi, UCLA and Washington State.

Last week, it was Penn State, Washington, Iowa, BYU, Ohio State, Michigan, Southern Mississippi, Arizona State, UCLA and Washington State.

Although there were some changes in the order, the Top Twenty teams were the same as last week.

Surprise: No Upsets In Monday Night Games

By The Associated Press

Dean Smith was unhappy with the way Southern California beat up his North Carolina basketball team physically. As it turned out, Southern Cal won the battle, but lost the war.

Though holding a 33-31 advantage in rebounds and generally outmuscling the Tar Heels under the boards Monday night, the Trojans finished on the short end of a 73-62 score to the nation's top-ranked team.

"I'm disappointed they got so many rebounds," said Smith. "They outmuscled us on the boards."

Smith was also bothered by inconsistent play that prevented the Tar Heels from routing the Pac-10 team. Several times, North Carolina was unable to open big leads because Southern Cal's tall front line prevented the Tar Heels from getting the ball into James Worthy and Sam Perkins.

"We've played some excellent basketball at times, but we haven't been consistently good," said Smith.

Southern Cal Coach Stan Morrison said he was "disappointed but not discouraged" by the loss at Greensboro, N.C. "I'm really anxious to practice Wednesday," said Morrison, "and I'd give anything to practice tonight. I think we'll really grow from this."

In other games involving the nation's ranked teams, No. 6 Iowa beat Nebraska-Omaha 71-58; No. 10 Minnesota trimmed San Francisco State 88-69 and No. 13 Arkansas routed Texas-San Antonio 71-42.

Worthy and Perkins wound up with 18 points apiece to lead the Tar Heel offense. Michael Jordan's jumper with 8:32 left gave the Tar Heels a 62-52 lead, their biggest up to that point. The Trojans continued to peck away, however, and whittled the lead to six on a tap-in by Ken Johnson.

But North Carolina, aided by Jimmy Black's four free throws in the final two minutes, stretched the margin back to 11 at 69-58 with 1:46 left, ending the Trojan threat for good. USC got 14 points each from Johnson, Dwight Anderson and Maurice Williams.

Bob Hansen scored 17 points and Kevin Boyle contributed 16 as Iowa defeated Nebraska-Omaha. Randy Brewer and Gary Holmes combined for 22 points in the second half to rally Minnesota past San Francisco State. Darrell Walker and Carey Kelly scored 14 points each as Arkansas thumped Texas-San Antonio in that school's debut.

Elsewhere, All-American Kevin Magee scored 39 points to lead Cal-Irvine to a 118-79 victory over Chico State; Charles Jones scored 15 points to lead Oklahoma over Southwest Texas State 64-58; Jeff Zatkoff poured in 23 and Eastern Michigan held off a late rally to post a 67-65 victory over Michigan; Thurl Bailey scored 22 points and pulled down nine rebounds to lead North Carolina State past Davidson 76-55; Tyke Peacock tipped in an errant shot by Kelly Knight at the buzzer to lift Kansas over Arizona State 63-62; Michael Young's 25 points paced Houston over West Texas State 84-73 and Syracuse stopped Colgate 98-71 as Erich Santifer and Leo Rautins teamed for 45 points.

Righetti Is AL's Top Rookie

NEW YORK (AP) — Dave Righetti, the flame-throwing left-hander of the New York Yankees, earned the American League Rookie of the Year Award with an impressive season. He had an 8-4 record and was the winning pitcher in the Yankees' pennant-clincher against Oakland.

But the game he remembers best was the one he liked least — the third game of the World Series when he was knocked out early by the Los Angeles Dodgers.

"It's the last game you pitched and you think about that," Righetti said. "I lost my last game."

Well, not really. Righetti was not the loser but the five hits, two walks and three runs he surrendered in two-plus innings was hardly characteristic of his season.

"I hope the other numbers were impressive enough that people don't harp on that game," he said. "But I've heard a lot of 'What happened against the Dodgers?'"

Righetti isn't sure how to answer the question.

"It was weird," he said. "We didn't play good baseball. We gave up leads in all three games and they were all one-run games. That was hard to take."

The Series loss was the only valley in a season of peaks for Righetti, who beat out Rick Gedman and Bob Ojeda, both of the Boston Red Sox, for the rookie award in balloting by the Baseball Writers Association of America Monday.

Righetti received 23 of the 28 first place votes from a BBWAA panel consisting of two writers in each of the 14 American League cities. He finished with 127 points, easily beating Gedman, who received the other five first place votes and had 64 points. Ojeda was third with 36 points.

Seven other rookies received votes but no player was named on all 28 ballots.

Righetti, called up in May from Columbus of the International League, had a 2.06 earned run average in 15 games and struck out 89 batters in 105 innings. He credited Columbus pitching coach Sammy Ellis with helping him make it to the majors.

"The talent was there," he said. "It was just a matter of applying it. I had to learn how to get the ball over, get ahead of the hitters and then work from there."

"I had to learn to go right at hitters, use my strength against theirs. There was no wizardry or anything like that. It was a matter of staying within myself, pitching to my own abilities."

Righetti, 23, thinks he can get better.

"This was just my fourth year pitching," he said. "There's still room for me to learn."

The Yankees acquired Righetti from Texas in a 10-player trade following the 1978 season and he had struggled with control problems in the minors before blossoming in 1981.

He is the seventh Yankee to win the rookie award since the BBWAA introduced it in 1947. The last New York player to capture it was the late Thurman Munson, who took it in 1970.

Trailing Righetti, Gedman and Ojeda in the voting were pitcher Mike Jones of Kansas City (8), outfielder Dave Engle of Minnesota (4½), pitcher Mike Witt of California (4), infielder Shooty Babitt of Oakland (4), outfielder Jorge Bell of Toronto (2), outfielder Gary Ward of Minnesota (1½), and pitcher Brad Havens of Minnesota (1).

The National League Rookie of the Year will be announced Wednesday.

O'Neal Seen As Tops Among Rose Swimmers

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Rose High School's swimming hopes are being pinned this year on the strong arms and legs of Kevin O'Neal, whom coach Greg Richardson feels just might be one of the best in the nation.

"We really anticipate that he will be a double winner in the state this year, and could do more if the rules allowed it," Richardson said. "We could swim him in any of four events during the year, but he can only enter two individual events in the state meet."

More than likely, those two events will be the 50 and 100-meter freestyle races. "We could enter him in any of the freestyles up to about 200, and also in the butterfly, but Kevin is probably strongest in the other two, and the way a meet is scheduled makes these two best for him."

Richardson said he is looking for a time in the low 21's from O'Neal in the 50, and notes that the current state record is 22.2 seconds. "He's already broken the state records in both the 50 and the 100. The 100 record is the oldest in the state, some 15 years old, and he should be able to easily beat that."

State records, however, can only be set during a state meet, and to get there, O'Neal will first have to go through the regionals to qualify. "The regionals are a little strange. It used to be that you had to meet a qualifying time to get to the state, and a lot of coaches used to fudge a bit on these. People would show up who wouldn't come close to these cut-off times, so the state changed things to a regional. The top four from each of three regionals qualify for the state now."

"The only trouble is that we left home people last year who had better times than qualifiers in other regionals, so we (the state's coaches) are trying to get things changed. We'd like to go to a system where the top 18 go, or maybe to one where the top 12 or 18 times in each event go. All of the regionals are electronically timed now, so there shouldn't be any trouble with the timing."

While O'Neal appears the class of the team, he's not the lone member. Seven boys return who swam last year, along with five other newcomers to the Rampant team.

Jim Hamilton will probably swim in the short freestyles, while Kelly Barnhill, a freshman, could swim in the 100 free, the individual medley, the back and the freestyle. Hamilton could also go on out to the 200 freestyle.

Shawn Wallace is strong in the breaststroke, IM and freestyle, while Will Monroe is strongest in the breaststroke, and Richardson looks to him to qualify for the state meet.

John Thomas is a freestyler who could swim anywhere from the 100 to the 500.

Shannon Stanforth, a transfer, should also give good support in the freestyle. Keith Schellenberger has a good stroke, Richardson notes, but hadn't swum in a couple of years. "He could go anywhere," the coach notes.

Alex Laughter, Michael Browning and James Bright are all newcomers to competitive swimming and are good athletes, the coach said. "They'll probably back up in the freestyle until we see what they can do."

The boys finished seventh in the state last year, and Richardson sees some improvement over that this season.

"There are three people currently swimming AAU who haven't decided whether they will swim for us or not," Richardson said. "If they do decide to come out for the Rose team, it might give us what we need to challenge for the title this year. Otherwise, I see us somewhere around fifth to seventh."

There are eight girls out for this year's Rampette team, including two who swam last year.

The two veterans are Laura Scharf, who broke the school record for the breaststroke as a freshman, and Suzanne Wille. Scharf is also strong in the freestyle and IM, while Wille is strong in the IM and the 200 freestyle.

Two newcomers who are expected to provide a lot of help are Maria Kelly, a freshman, and Carol Moore, a sophomore. "Maria is strong in all the strokes," Richardson said, "but will probably wind up in the freestyle and butterfly. Moore is also good in all of the strokes, and we're not sure now where she'll end up."

Mary Pinkston, Stephanie Quinn and Danny Radele are all newcomers who will contribute. "All three of them are moving up fast in their abilities, and we really look for a lot of help from them. Stephanie is good in the breaststroke and freestyle. Mary is a good breaststroke and Danny will probably go into the freestyle, or possibly the butterfly."

Rounding out the team is Carol Perea who is new to swimming, but "could be the best athlete on the team. We'll just have to see where she fits in."

Last year, the girls failed to qualify anyone into the state meet, finishing eighth in the district. This year, Richardson feels that several could qualify for the state.

"Our problem is that we have the strongest region of the three. That's why some of the better swimmers in the state stayed home last year. And that's why we're hoping to get things changed as far as qualifying is concerned."

Rose does not open its schedule until after the first of the year.

Writer Wasn't This Weaver

The letter to Sportline, published on November 29, and signed by William B. Weaver, was not sent by William B. Weaver of 203 N. Oak St., Apartment 7, in the Tar River Estates.

To The Editor:

Jack Edwards has written a couple of letters to the editor recently concerning the ECU athletic program; more specifically as it applies to loyalty to schools. I have known this young man for many years. He is a former student of mine, both on a high school and university level. I feel, therefore, that I am partially responsible for his success. He may not agree with that statement, however.

Jack is a graduate of UNC (Chapel Hill) and is a highly successful businessman here in Greenville. If he has an enemy I have yet to meet him. Incidentally, he used to write a daily column for this newspaper. About the only time I see Jack is at an athletic either here or at Chapel Hill. Jack supports athletics wholeheartedly both financially and otherwise in no small way to UNC-CH AND to ECU.

My wife and I (we have season tickets and "Rat Caps") attended the opening game of the Lady Pirates in Minges Sunday afternoon and I missed my nap. JACK was here too! That speaks for itself.

Incidentally, for you who were not there the Lady Pirates and their coach Kathy Andruzzi put on a real show. They won and you missed a good one!

May Restrict Hand Rakers

By ROBIN PATER
Associated Press Writer

North Carolina fishing officials are considering a first-ever restriction on the use of hand rakers when digging for clams, said Connell Purvis, director of the state Division of Marine Fisheries.

Purvis said the fisheries division will encourage the General Assembly to invest more management in the industry to begin clam hatcheries and relocate clams in poor growing areas to high producing areas.

"In the past, we have simply harvested," said Purvis. He said the focus now is on improving management in order to increase clam production for bigger profits.

Purvis said clam and bay scallop harvesting, which with clam hunting began Monday, both help to balance the industry by continuing through the spring until shrimping begins.

"This (clam harvesting) is a pretty big industry here," Purvis said.

North Carolina is the third biggest producer of clams along the Atlantic coast, just behind New York and Rhode Island, he said. Last year, the state's clam catch totaled about $5 million in dockside value.

Clam kicking, only one of the three methods of clam harvesting, takes place on a kicking boat. The engine's prop wash fans away the sand exposing the clams, Purvis said, and nets secured to the boat pulled closely behind make the catch.

He said the boats go in waters of about 4 to 8 feet deep to depths of about 16 feet. During the process, fishermen retrieve the nets about every 30 minutes or hour.

Compared with another method — hand raking — clam kicking is a more efficient method, Purvis said.

Hand raking is the basic method in which fishermen feel for the clams in knee-deep waters either by hand or with hand rakes. This method — the least efficient — is not hindered by restrictions.

But because of its potential, clam kicking is regulated by a limited season and areas where the harvesting may take place.

Clam kicking is confined to areas with hard, white sandy bottoms, Purvis said, and it's primarily done in Carteret County. The method is prohibited in the fragile shoreline areas.

A third method, hydraulic clam dredging, is the most productive way to harvest clams. Hydraulic dredges are self-propelled vessels that use a conveyor system of bringing up clams from deep waters onto the boat.

This method, however, is even more restricted. Only 18 of the vessels are given permits each season, which is much shorter than that of clam kicking. Purvis said the season for dredging will probably open in January.

Dick Bestwick Fired By Virginia After One One Victory In 1981

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) — Dick Bestwick, who compiled a 16-49-1 record in six years as head football coach at the University of Virginia, was fired Monday when he declined to accept "certain established performance guidelines" if he remained, Athletic Director Dick Schultz announced.

Schultz said Bestwick, who has three years remaining on his contract, was given the opportunity to coach next year under the guidelines. But Schultz said the native of Grove City, Pa., declined to accept the offer.

The 51-year-old Bestwick, who came to Virginia from an assistant's job at Georgia Tech, will have 30 days to decide whether he will remain at the university as an associate athletic director, a job he also holds.

Bestwick was not immediately available for comment.

"This was a very, very difficult decision for me, as I have a great deal of respect for Dick Bestwick as a man," said Schultz, who took over as athletic director last July 1 after serving in a similar position at Cornell.

"Without a doubt the Virginia football program is much better today than it was six years ago," Schultz said.

But he added that "at some point in time, the bottom line is performance. With one win in the last 14 games, I felt there needed to be some performance guidelines for the 1982 football season.

"I'm sorry that Coach Bestwick did not want to accept this provision, but I felt that this left no recourse to make a coaching change."

Schultz said the university will take immediate steps to begin a search for a successor.

Hit by an unprecedented series of injuries, the Cavaliers won only one of 11 games this fall after going 4-7-0 the previous year.

Virginia has had only two winning seasons in the last 29 years, one of them a 6-5-0 record compiled by Bestwick in 1979. As a result of that accomplishment, Bestwick's original contract was extended.

Bestwick was extremely popular with his players and the faculty, but there had been pressure from the alumni to buy up his contract.

A 1952 graduate of the University of North Carolina, Bestwick began his coaching career in 1953 as an assistant under Rip Engle at Penn State. He served as head coach of Montoursville, Pa., High School from 1953-55, then spent a year at Norwin, Pa., High School.

From 1957 to 1961 he was coach at Grove City, Pa., High School, where he compiled a 33-9-3 record.

Between 1962 and 1967 he served as an assistant coach at Oberlin College, Westminster, Pa., College, the University of South Carolina and the University of Virginia.

In 1967 he went to Georgia Tech, where he served as an assistant varsity coach and head coach of the freshman team until he was tapped for the Virginia job.

Coach's Woe: Has No Broom

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

It's an old joke, the one about the guy in the circus, the guy with the broom who follows the elephants, who complains about the job day after day.

"Why not quit?" someone asks.

"What?" he replies. "And leave show business?"

Day after day, Mike McCormack deals with the reality of being the head coach of the Baltimore Colts. The problem is, he hasn't got a broom.

After last Sunday's 25-0 embarrassment administered by the Jets in New York, McCormack stood disconsolately in the corner of the visiting team's lavatory, trying to sort out in his mind and explain for the 12th straight week what went wrong.

His face was a bewildering amalgam of expressions. His mouth was trap-door tight. It was as though by opening it he would let loose a stream of invective that would blow the nearby Colts away from their hairblowers. But his eyes were limp, bloodshot, as though he could at any moment burst into tears (or had just finished a good cry).

After the usual questions about why quarterback Bert Jones was so ineffective ("His protection played like a bunch of amateurs") and what it might take to turn the team around ("What do you suggest?"), McCormack gave an almost awesome sigh.

"It hurts," he said with a bitter cackle. "It really hurts inside. I've punched out a wall. I punched out a blackboard at halftime. I'd like to start screaming. If I thought that would do any good, I would do it. But all I do is carry it round for the day, then go home and talk it out."

"I'm not about to quit. Not yet." Then his eyes glazed over for a moment. It was as though he was talking to himself. "I've got to keep trying, keep trying, keep trying...I still think that what I'm — we're doing is right. I just think that you've got to believe in what you're trying to do and do the best you can and hope that over a period of time, it'll work out."

Over period of time. McCormack may not have much time left. The likelihood is that three games, the rest of the season, is his outside limit.

Bob Irsay, the owner of the Colts, has already expressed his displeasure by donning a headset and calling the team's plays and by telling McCormack that he doesn't like his assistant coaches.

McCormack shrugged at the tenuousness of his situation. "If it happens, it happens," he said. "If I'm fired, I'm gone. But until then, I'm going to keep coaching like I'm going to be here for 20 years. That's the only way I know how to do it."

The volatile Irsay could consider cleaning what's left of his house after what's left of this season. Jones, who used to be called "The Franchise," is in the option year of his contract. And he is, as one Colts' executive put it, "still a very marketable commodity."

Baltimore could very likely draft Jim McMahon from Brigham Young or another potential pro quarterback and trade Jones for a combination of defensive help and draft choices.

"I guess he's been written off, too, hasn't he?" McCormack said of Jones. The coach didn't speculate about his quarterback's future any more than he had about his own. But he did say pointedly, "There's no longer a 'Franchise' as such. I think you need 45 people working together."

Jones, who has publicly blasted a few teammates for the quality of their play, insists he wants to remain in Baltimore and that he is still trying as hard now as he was when the Colts started the season with their only victory.

His eyes, too, had that filmy "I'd rather be anywhere but here" look in the lockerroom last Sunday. But when someone mentioned that he'd just run out the final minute of the game with handoffs rather than throwing bombs and trying for a score, his eyes and voice got steely.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Not a good day to launch a new project. Make present plans more detailed and all goes well. Use more logic in your dealings.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You are most alert to new business systems now and can make big headway into the future. Use common sense.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Handle regular duties early in the day so that you'll have more time for recreation later. Take time to improve your talents.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Make sure you don't become involved in activities that give you nothing but trouble. Take needed health treatments.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Don't make decisions of importance early in the day. Improve your appearance and gain more confidence.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Do nothing that could alienate your good friends today because the planetary conditions are not favorable. Be calm.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Be sure you do nothing that could irk a higher-up today or you could regret it later. Take steps to improve your credit.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be a great problem solver if the home conditions are right. Teach that adversity is tests for the mind to challenge. Give the right religious training. A foreign language will be most helpful to career.

The largest swing in the 1981 World Team Championship occurred on this deal from the final of the Venice Trophy between the women's teams of the United States and Great Britain.

The auction shown is from the room where the British ladies sat North-South. In a natural auction, they bid (or were pushed) to a slam, and East doubled. A double of a slam is usually a request for a lead of the suit first bid by dummy. As it happens, a club lead would have given East a ruff but would have made life simple for declarer. The spade lead removed the only entry to the clubs, but declarer made her contract by trusting her opponents' bidding!

Declarer won the opening lead in dummy and drew four rounds of trumps, ending in her hand. Then she led a club and, relying on East to be void for her double of six diamonds, South finessed dummy's jack despite the fact that she held ten cards in the suit. When that held, twelve tricks rolled home.

In the other room, the U.S. pair were using the Precision System. North had to open two clubs. East overcalled two hearts and South made a negative double. West bid a psychic four clubs and North exposed the psyche by bidding five clubs. But now the diamond suit was lost, and when West emerged from the bushes with five hearts, South elected to double. The defenders, however, could take no more than their aces of spades and diamonds.

So the British made a doubled slam in one room and a doubled game in the other for a total of 1740 points, or 17 IMPs.

Coroner Finds Natalie Victim Accidental Drowning

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Tipsy and evidently wanting to get away from the yacht where her husband and another actor were arguing, Natalie Wood tried to step into a rubber dinghy but fell into the water and drowned, officials say. The 43-year-old actress had been drinking champagne and wine, and "this was one of the factors involved in her not being able to respond in case of emergency," County Coroner Thomas Noguchi said Monday after certifying the death as accidental drowning.

There was a scratch on her cheek when her body was found Sunday morning, such as might have come from hitting her head on the yacht or some part of the dinghy, Noguchi said.

Miss Wood's husband, actor Robert Wagner, and actor Christopher Walken had been arguing aboard the yacht, but not over Miss Wood, Assistant Coroner Richard Wilson said Monday at a news conference after an autopsy.

"They were arguing about things in general. There was no physical altercation," Wilson said. He said Walker and Wagner both had been examined, and "there were no marks upon them."

Noguchi said the argument "apparently...was the reason she (Miss Wood) separated herself from the group." Walken, a guest aboard Miss Wood's and Wagners' 60-foot yacht, Splendour, is the co-star of Miss Wood's latest film, "Brainstorm."

The yacht was anchored off Santa Catalina Island when Miss Wood, wearing a blue nightgown, knee-high socks and a red down jacket, disappeared early Sunday at the remote northern end of the island 26 miles from Los Angeles, officials said.

The Wagners, Walken and the captain of the yacht ate dinner on the island — which is 26 miles offshore from Los Angeles — and had returned to the Splendour around midnight Saturday.

Noguchi said Miss Wood's blood-alcohol level was 0.14 percent. In California, 0.10 percent is the legal criterion for drunk-driving.

"I would not consider her drunk," Noguchi said. "She had wine and champagne, perhaps seven or eight glasses of wine."

Miss Wood's body was found just beneath the surface of the water a half-mile away from where she disappeared. The body was about 200 yards from the 13-foot outboard dinghy. The dinghy's ignition was in the "off" position. The Coast Guard said the clothing would have made it hard for her to swim, and Noguchi said the actress might have swallowed water, preventing her from crying out.

Wilson said investigators would still look into why Miss Wood, who was not a good swimmer, would try to board the dinghy while dressed in her nightgown. Miss Wood told a newspaper interviewer recently that she was afraid of water, especially in the dark.

"It is important to find out what thoughts she had to separate herself from the others," Wilson said.

Sheriff's homicide investigators were continuing to collect information on the death, but had little to say on the argument.

"I don't know that it had anything to do with what eventually happened," said Sgt. Frank Salerno, who is heading the investigation. "We are still classifying it as an accidental drowning."

Meanwhile, a friend of the family who asked not to be named said Miss Wood's funeral probably would be held Wednesday with only a few family members and friends invited. The location was being kept secret. Wagner remained in seclusion.

"I would say the chances of him discussing the incident are totally zero. He's just totally devastated by this," said Warren Cowan, whose firm, Rogers and Cowan, served as Miss Wood's agent.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio officials were trying to decide what to do with "Brainstorm," a thriller in which Miss Wood plays an industrial scientist married to Walken. The film was being shot on Catalina. MGM spokesman Al Newman said the production on the picture had been suspended. Two weeks remained of its 12-week shooting schedule.

Damage Suit

By Streisand

NEW YORK (AP) — Barbra Streisand is asking more than $11 million in damages in a lawsuit that claims there was an illegal conspiracy to sell unauthorized video recordings of her performances.

The copyright and trademark infringement action was filed Monday in U.S. District Court against All Star Video Corp. of Levittown; Electric Video Inc. of Hicksville; Left and Beatrice Rubinowitz, a Farmingdale couple; and Steven Friedman of Manhattan.

The actress and singer claimed in court papers that the defendants were part of a joint venture advertising and selling video recordings entitled "The Barbra Streisand Story" in two volumes.

Viewers Have Choice Of Bret Maverick Or 'Marva Collins'

By FRED ROTHENBERG

AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A maverick teacher from the Midwest or a maverick cardsharp from the Old West? These are the major choices tonight in a ratings duel of aces and dunces.

"The Marva Collins Story" on CBS is an emotional TV movie about a devoutly devoted teacher who won't take illiteracy for an answer. Played with exceptional strength and compassion by Cicely Tyson, "Marva Collins" is based on the Chicago teacher who gained national attention in 1979 on "60 Minutes."

Mrs. Collins abandoned the apathetic and bureaucratic inner-city school system and opened the Westside Preparatory School, proving that old-fashioned teaching techniques, love and personal attention can reach children labeled unteachable by others.

Getting learning disabled kids to read the classics and beg for more is easy compared to her battles with red tape and rigid parents. And then there's the lack of money, which affect the school and her home life with three children and a very supportive husband, Clarence, played nicely by Morgan Freeman of the "Electric Company."

It's a heart-warming film, although the idealized screenplay seems unnecessary since Mrs. Collins' real story is so compelling. In fact, her success so impressed President Reagan that he invited Mrs. Collins to be his administration's education secretary, an offer she rejected.

But if the president were inclined to relax from his budget battles tonight, would he opt for the warmth of "Marva Collins" or the nostalgia of a TV contemporary, James Garner in "Bret Maverick?" It's a tough call.

Garner, paunchier around the jowls, recreates his westerner with the hip, big city slant on life who was so popular in the late 1950s. NBC, which updated the irreverent Maverick with "Rockford Files," has put Garner back on horseback.

He rides into Sweetwater, Ariz., for the world's poker championships, intent on winning a stake for possible retirement from the rigors of gambling and gunslinging. Sizing him up after all these years, one rival hustler says: "He looks a little bit short of breath to me."

And that's the flaw in "Bret Maverick." Westerns were never fully appreciated in this corner — although "Maverick" was always fun — and, now, this genre seems more outdated than ever. With today's technical TV wizardry and fast-paced car chases, it's hard to handle posesses on horseback.

Tonight's story is a little slow developing and two hours is much too long for a western. In search of filler, director Stuart Margolin (the wheeling-dealing Angel from "Rockford") also plays a bogus Indian scout who comes off as silly whenever he's on the screen.

But for those fans of yesteryear and Garner, "Bret Maverick" is entertaining and will be well-received.

Garner and his bemused outlook holds tonight's movie together. He plays the same character he did 20 years ago (and in "Rockford"), spouting his pappy's philosophy and preferring guile to guns and finesse to fighting, but that doesn't mean he'll leave himself unprotected.

"I hate violence," he tells the sheriff who forces the poker players to leave their hardware at the door. The frisk on Maverick uncovers at least 10 guns the sheriff read about from various newspaper accounts.

"Damn newspapers," Garner says, a running theme throughout tonight's episode, and beyond, since reporter-photographer Mary Lou Springer (Darleen Carr) will be a series regular. This allows Maverick (and Garner?) to rail against the press constantly stirring up stories to sell papers and never letting go of a reputation.

But look at it this way. Without the reputation, Maverick would only be a memory and not a regular Tuesday night series.

Aging Comes of Age

The White House Conferences on Aging in 1961 and 1971 were instrumental in promoting legislation and destroying myths about the elderly. The 11% of Americans over 65 are no longer regarded as people whose usefulness to society is over. Senility is recognized as a treatable disease, not an inevitability. Only 5% of the aging are institutionalized — most are still physically and mentally active. Mandatory retirement is now often seen as discriminatory. The Third Conference on Aging will be held this week and it promises to be just as controversial and important — for the elderly and for all of us who hope someday to become members of this growing minority.

Tank Engines To S. Africa

TORONTO (AP) — A Canadian company exported American tank engines to South Africa in violation of the U.N. embargo on military sales to that nation, the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. says.

A CBC Radio program said Levy Auto Parts Co. of Toronto, which rebuilds tank engines and transmissions for Canada's NATO allies, exported more than one of the 12-cylinder, 750-horsepower diesel engines to South Africa.

Benjamin Levy, the president of the company, said the engines were used in South Africa for commercial purposes, in trucks to haul coal across the desert. However, the CBC said South Africa's coal fields are not near desert areas, and Canadian mining experts were quoted as saying they hadn't heard of such coal-hauling vehicles.

A spokesman for Teledyne Continental Motors of Michigan, the U.S. manufacturer of the engines, said their only use is military, in the conversion of old Centurion tanks into modern fighting machines.

The Teledyne spokesman said the company used to sell the engines directly to South Africa until the U.S. government stopped this in 1974 because of the UN embargo. The CBC quoted a former Levy employee as saying the company modified the engines for South Africa in the spring of 1980. The engines were then broken down and marked as truck parts for export.

The former employee reportedly said a special code was developed so only a few people would know exactly what was being exported to South Africa.

After the engines were crated, the former employee told the CBC, they were taken to the Toronto harbor where records show a 3,590-pound package from Levy, listed as an auto transmission, was shipped to South Africa.

Some Foods Cause Migraines

Can attacks of migraine be caused by food? — Mr. R.G., Texas.

Dear Mr. G.:

There is no doubt that a relationship can exist between some foods and migraine and vascular headaches.

Years ago, Dr. Donald J. Dalessio of the Scripps Clinic in La Jolla, Calif., made some valuable suggestions about this problem. "Patients with migraine should eat three well-balanced meals a day and avoid an overabundance of carbohydrates at any single sitting."

If by past experience it is possible for you to establish a relationship between a particular food and your migraine headache, you must of course eliminate it.

Dr. Dalessio makes the following suggestions:

1. No alcohol, particularly red wines and champagnes.
2. No aged or strong cheese, particularly cheddar cheese.
3. Avoid chicken livers, pickled herring, canned figs, pods, broad beans and chocolate.
4. Avoid monosodium glutamate. This is a substance very frequently used in Chinese cooking.
5. Avoid cured meats — such as hot dogs, bacon, ham and salami — especially if there is the slightest suggestion that your migraine is provoked by them.

Trial-and-error is a difficult and often arduous task, yet it is a worthwhile approach to this and other allergic problems.

Our daughter is a professional model. In order to keep her weight down, she is on a constant diet. She and her model friends give themselves injections of vitamin B twice a week. Isn't this a dangerous thing to do? — Mrs. S.P., N.Y.

Dear Mrs. P.:

Giving vitamin B injections is a strange game that is played by people in many occupations. Some people in the theater are sure that they cannot survive from one week to the next without a "rejuvenation shot" of vitamin B. Many give the injections to themselves. Others put pressure on their doctors to do it.

These injections have no scientific validity, except in those cases where it has been definitely shown by blood examination that a vitamin B deficiency actually exists.

A well-balanced, nutritious diet can contain enough vitamins and minerals to make routinely repeated vitamin B injections unnecessary.

In reality, a vitamin B supplement taken by mouth is just as effective and lasts longer. It is the immediate flush and "boost" that accompany the injection that make people like your daughter prey to this silly business.

Dr. Coleman welcomes questions from readers. Please write to him in care of this newspaper.

Truck Driver On A Rampage

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — A truck driver who went on a rampage behind the wheel, ramming his tractor-trailer into 11 cars and injuring six people, apparently was anguished over the death of his baby, police say.

"He said he had just lost his child this weekend and that's what made him go berserk," police spokeswoman Pauline Ory said. "That would be the best estimate; he went berserk."

Lloyd E. West, 23, of Baton Rouge, was identified by police as the driver. He was examined by psychiatrists and booked on charges of hit and run, failure to maintain control of a vehicle, marijuana possession and resisting arrest in addition to two counts of negligent injury, police said.

West allegedly rammed three cars on Florida Boulevard, a major city artery, after 9 a.m. Monday and slammed his rig into eight more autos at a bustling intersection on Airline Highway, Mrs. Ory said. He resisted arrest and had to be subdued, she said.

Two drivers had to be removed from their cars by emergency crews, Mrs. Ory said, and the other four injured people were treated and released from hospitals.

Leslie Mears was hospitalized in fair condition with possible head injuries and Irene Davis of St. Francisville was listed in stable condition.

West was taken to Long Hospital's psychiatric unit for observation and questioning, Mrs. Ory said.

The circumstances about the man's baby were not immediately available from police.

"One of the investigating officers said to me, 'Pauline, it's the strangest thing. He just ran into the back of a Mustang and kept on going, and he ran into a pickup truck and kept on going,'" Mrs. Ory said.

The tractor-trailer is owned by Stevens Truck Line Inc. of Bossier City, she said.

Expulsion Debate Is Set For '82

By SKIP WOLLENBERG
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate leaders have agreed to delay until next year a debate on whether to expel New Jersey Democrat Harrison A. Williams Jr. for his conduct in the Abscam case, congressional sources say.

A formal announcement of the decision could come today, the sources said, after key senators are notified of it.

But the decision was made, the sources said, after Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., and Minority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., met Monday afternoon with Sen. Daniel Inouye, D-Hawaii, acting on behalf of Williams.

The 61-year-old Williams had been seeking a delay in the debate, which had been scheduled to begin Thursday.

Sources said Inouye told Baker and Byrd that he would like to assist in Williams' defense, but that it would take time for him to prepare adequately.

The delay was a "courtesy" to Inouye, the sources said.

A postponement of the debate could have political ramifications in New Jersey, where Republican Thomas Kean will succeed Democrat Brendan Byrne as governor next month. State law gives the governor the opportunity to appoint a replacement should a Senate seat become vacant.

If Williams' seat became vacant next year, Kean could appoint a Republican to replace him and increase the GOP majority in the Senate to 45 members from 53.

Baker, anxious to avoid claims that his party engineered the delay for partisan purposes, agreed to it on the condition that Democrats make the request, the sources said.

A federal jury found Williams guilty May 1 on bribery and conspiracy charges, and the Senate ethics committee voted unanimously Aug. 24 to recommend that Williams be expelled.

Williams, completing his 23rd year in the Senate, has insisted he is innocent of any wrongdoing and has accused the government of improper tactics in its investigation and prosecution of his case.

Couldn't Sleep, Took Pictures

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Astronauts Joe Engle and Richard Truly said they took pictures when they were supposed to have been asleep during their two-day flight aboard the space shuttle Columbia.

The two astronauts showed reporters slides of Iran, Libya, Afghanistan, Pakistan and the snow-capped Himalayas during a news conference Monday.

"One of the problems with sleeping was anytime you'd wake up in the middle of the night and look out the window, that was it for the next hour because it was such a beautiful view," said Truly. "We were supposed to have been sleeping, but on a two-day flight we figured we could sleep when we got home."

New Merit Research Released:

“Extra Taste”

Overwhelming majority of MERIT smokers report taste bonus at low tar.

The most rigorous MERIT research to date has just been completed.

Result: MERIT smokers confirm taste a major factor in completing their successful switch from higher tar cigarettes.

MERIT Takes Taste Honors.

Nationwide survey reveals over 90% of MERIT smokers are glad they switched from higher tar cigarettes. In fact, 94% don't even miss their former brands.

Further Evidence: 9 out of 10 former higher tar smokers report MERIT an easy switch, that they didn't give up taste in switching, and that MERIT is the best-tasting low tar they've ever tried.

MERIT Beats Toughest Competitors.

In the second part of this study, new tests confirm that MERIT delivers a winning combination of taste and low tar when compared with higher tar leaders.

Confirmed: The overwhelming majority reported MERIT taste equal to—or better than—leading higher tar brands.

Confirmed: When tar levels were revealed, 2 out of 3 chose the MERIT combination of low tar and good taste.

Year after year, in study after study, MERIT remains unbeaten. The proven taste alternative to higher tar smoking—is MERIT.
