Transfer From Vepco To Occur Dec. 31

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Greenville Utilities Commission board members were told Tuesday night that the actual transfer from Virginia Electric and Power Co. to N.C. Municipal Power Agency No. 3 as the city's wholesale supplier of electricity will occur on Dec. 31.

The power agency, composed of municipalities which own their own electric distribution system, will purchase portions of Carolina Power & Light Co. generating facilities.

The sale of revenue bonds in February 1982 will allow the agency to "close" the first purchase of CP&L facilities, GUC director Charles Horne said. Other closings will follow in the fall of 1982 and in early 1983.

A memo from the power agency given to board members said the power agency board will meet Dec. 16 to set the wholesale power rate for municipalities that are now being served by Vepco. The memo noted that the rate for Vepco-served cities and CP&L-served cities will differ for about two years, until the agency completes the closing of its purchase.

Horne, a member of the power agency team that negotiated the CP&L purchase and a member of the power agency rate-making board, said there would be relatively no difference in the wholesale cost of power to Greenville until after the first closing. He added that the wholesale cost of power to Greenville should decrease more following the second closing, and still more following the final purchase by the power agency in 1983.

Horne also noted that after the switch to the power agency, the fossil fuel charge — that now changes monthly and is shown as a separate item on GUC customer bills — will be adjusted every three months by the power agency and will not appear as a separate item on consumer bills.

Board members voted to begin refunding a portion of the $4.7 million refund from the Vepco rate settlement case to GUC customers beginning in January.

As approved Tuesday night, Winterville, as a wholesale customer, will receive an immediate refund, based on its usage from October 1978 to the settlement date, of $92,465, while Ayden, a GUC wholesale customer until May 1980, will receive a refund of $121,350.

The city of Greenville will receive a total of $6,305, based on its usage for street light service.

GUC retail customers, beginning Jan. 1, will receive a credit of $5 per 1,000 kilowatt-hours on their bills, which will amount to approximately $250,000 per month.

Commissioners indicated that the refund rate might be increased when the cost of purchase of the Vepco substation is determined.

Board members emphasized that the full $4.7 million will be refunded to customers, either as a credit on bills or as future savings through the purchase of the Vepco substation facilities.

Horne told the board that the GUC ownership of the substation will save an estimated $2.1 million a year in wheeling charges that Vepco would make if the Virginia utility retained ownership of the facility.

Commission customers will also receive a break on their utility bills this month in the form of a negative fossil fuel charge. The fuel charge of a minus $10 per 1,000 kilowatt-hours was set because of a negative fuel charge from Vepco.

New Mayor Plans 1st Floor Office

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Members of the new Greenville City Council — which will be installed Thursday night — gave tentative approval Tuesday to a proposal that would move the mayor's office from the second floor of the municipal building to the first floor.

The incoming council and Mayor-elect Percy Cox met Tuesday to review the agenda for Thursday's meeting and to assign seats for future council sessions.

Council-elect members Janice Buck, Judy Greene, Stuart Shinn, Louis Clark, and George Pugh attended the session. William Hadden was unable to attend.

Following the review of the Thursday proceedings, Cox asked the new council members to support his plan for moving the mayor's office.

Cox explained that, shortly after the Nov. 3 election, "I went to the city manager" and asked that the mayor's office be moved downstairs. Outgoing Mayor Don McGlohn and City Manager Ed Wyatt now have neighboring offices on the second floor of the municipal building.

Cox said Wyatt "agreed to it ... (to) put the mayor's office back downstairs."

"The city manager informed me today that he had talked with several council members" who told him "to keep the office on the second floor," Cox said. "I'm asking the council members ... (to) move the office back downstairs. Its operated for years and years that way ...

"I'm a conscientious mayor and want to be accessible to the public. I don't think it's healthy," Cox continued, for the administrative head and the political head of the city "to share offices."

"I want to provide the best leadership I can, and I can't do it the way it is now," Cox emphasized. "It's not healthy to have the city manager's office and the mayor's office mixed like it is now."

Following some discussion, council members generally agreed to the office move and suggested that the city manager return with a recommendation of how the move can be accomplished.

Wholesale Prices Continue Advance

By SALLY JACOBSEN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Food prices tumbled but energy costs climbed last month as wholesale prices rose at an annual rate of 6.3 percent, slightly off from the already-moderate pace of October, the government said today.

With only one month left, inflation for the year is certain to be under the 11.8 percent wholesale average for 1980. Through November, inflation at the wholesale level stood at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 7.4 percent, Labor Department officials said.

The department's new report said its measure of wholesale prices for finished goods — the Producer Price Index — was up 0.5 percent last month after seasonal adjustment.

If November's rate held for 12 straight months, the increase would be 6.3 percent, the department said. Officials compute the annual rate by compounding a monthly figure that is more precise than the rounded-off 0.5 percent that is published.

The November increase was better than the 0.6 percent advance of October, but more than the 0.1 percent of August and the 0.2 percent of September, the government said.

The acceleration in November was attributed to a 0.9 percent increase in energy prices, the sharpest rise since April. Those prices had fallen 0.4 percent in October.

The increase in November was due to rises in prices of gasoline and natural gas, the report said. Home heating oil costs, however, continued falling.

Food prices were down 0.5 percent in November, more than the 0.2 percent of October and the biggest fall since the 0.6 percent drop of February, the report said.

Prices for meats and fresh vegetables continued falling. Egg prices fell after rising in October while milled rice prices were off more than 9 percent for the second straight month.

Prices were up more than 18 percent for fresh fruit, while the cost of soft drinks, roasted coffee and refined sugar also advanced considerably.

Prices for goods other than food and energy climbed 0.8 percent after a 1 percent rise in October.

Those increases were attributed to higher new car prices, which advanced 0.9 percent in November, down from the 4.2 percent gain of October.

Capital equipment prices rose 0.8 percent, following a 0.9 percent increase in October.

All the increases are adjusted for seasonal variations. In all, the unadjusted Producer Price Index stood at 274.5 in November.

Confirms Two Officers Resign

Greenville Police Chief Glenn Cannon confirmed today that two officers suspended in early November have resigned.

The chief said that officers Jerry R. Lee and Thomas M. Bowen submitted their resignations Monday "for personal reasons," but declined to comment further.

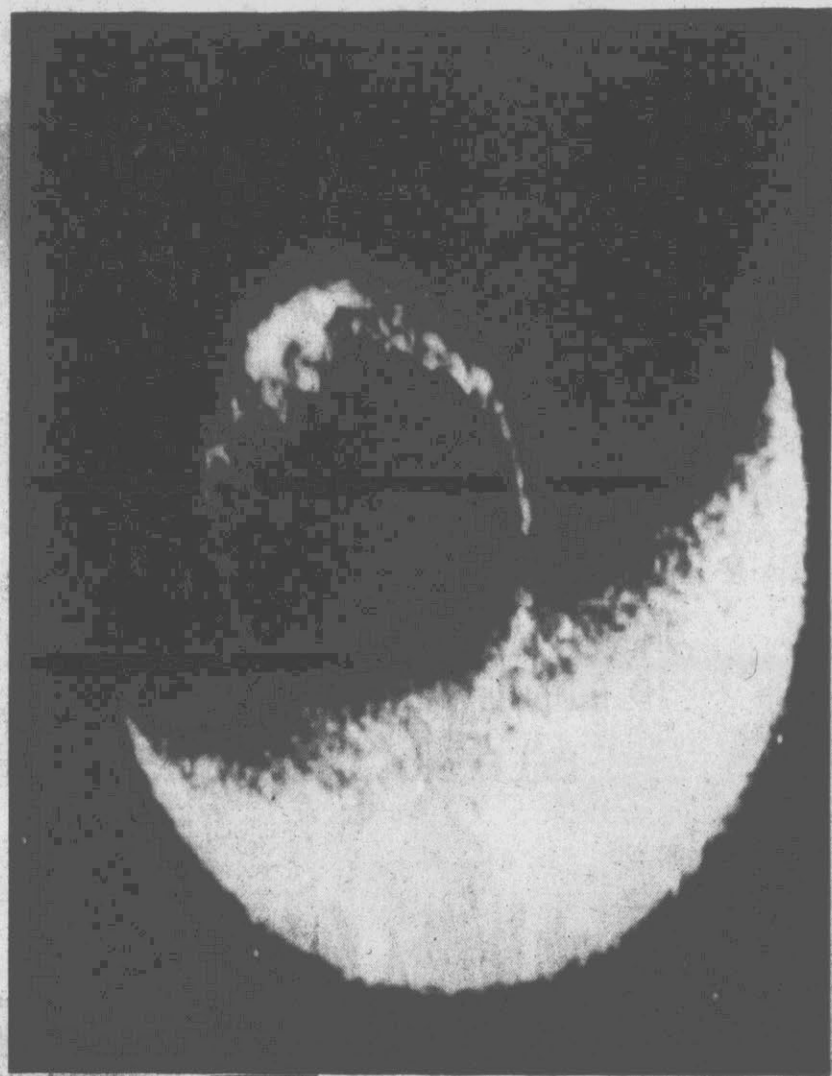

Reliable sources close to the department said Bowen and Lee were suspended after it was learned that their report of the events leading to a chase in July in which Kirby Mills of 102 Gardenia St. was shot and wounded, differed substantially from additional information received last week.

Mills was shot by an East Carolina University police officer at the end of an 85-minute chase and exchange of gunfire that began about 1:15 a.m. on July 23.

Greenville police, Sheriff's Department deputies and ECU officers took part in the chase, which ended near the intersection of the Alpine Road and SR 1416 when Mills allegedly jumped out of the vehicle he was driving with a rifle in his hands, aimed it at Lee, and was shot by an ECU officer.

U.S. Warns Khadafy Drop Purported Plot

WASHINGTON (AP) — is warning Libyan strongman Moammar

Khadafy to drop a purported plot to kill U.S. government leaders or be prepared to suffer consequences, according to an authoritative source.

The United States contacted the Libyan regime through a third country and spelled out at least some of the evidence the administration has obtained about the alleged plot, the source said Tuesday.

Khadafy, in an interview last Sunday, had challenged the administration to reveal its proof. A day later, President Reagan declared, "We have the evidence and he knows it."

Along with detailing some of the evidence it has, the private U.S. message contained a warning that the United States would take action against Libya if it refused to cancel the alleged plot, said the source, who refused to be identified.

ABC News reported Tuesday that the message was given to Belgium, which has been handling U.S. contacts with Libya since the administration ordered Libyan diplomats out of Washington.

SHARE YOUR HOLIDAYS

With dormitories on campus closing from Dec. 18 to Jan. 5 for the Christmas and New Year's holidays, several foreign students at East Carolina University who will not be going home for Christmas need places to stay. Mrs. Lucy Wright says. If you would like to have someone from another country share the holidays with you and your family, please contact Mrs. Wright, ECU foreign student adviser, 757-6882, as soon as possible.

MOLASSES FEEDBACK

In response to yesterday's Hotline item on where to find homemade molasses, two Hotline readers called to say they buy delicious homemade molasses at the A.W. Ange Store, 116 W. Main St., Winterville. Durwood Harris said molasses made in the mountains of North Carolina is available at all Harris Supermarkets in the area. Harvey Wooten says homemade molasses is sold at Harvey's Country Corner, Kinston, for $2.50 a quart and $1.25 a pint, less if you take your own container. And Nancy Nahouse, 756-1166, says she has quarts and pints made by her father who grows his own sugar cane in Piedmont North Carolina.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bonuses of $7,500 are being paid to three federal officials cited for their "perseverance and resourcefulness" in calling attention to waste, fraud and abuse in the federal government.

The bonuses were announced Tuesday by Gerald P. Carmen, head of the General Services Administration. The three officials are William A. Clinkscales Jr., director of oversight for the GSA; Howard R. Davis, the agency's regional administrator in Chicago; and Bertrand G. Berube, acting regional administrator for the Washington area.

They fell into disfavor during the Carter administration when they publicly asserted that GSA officials were not doing enough to eliminate waste and corruption at the huge agency, which is in charge of building, supplies and housekeeping for most of the government.

Carmen, saying he was fulfilling President Reagan's campaign pledge to "put the corruption fighters back in charge of GSA," named the three to high-level posts in October.

"Through perseverance and resourcefulness, they made a major contribution to the public service by continuing to force public attention on the need to eliminate fraud, waste and abuse in government," Carmen said.

Clinkscales was ousted as GSA's top investigator in January 1980 after he helped launch a corruption probe that led to more than 100 convictions of GSA employees and contractors.

Clinkscales was then put in what he described as a "do-nothing job." He charged in congressional testimony that the Carter administration was apparently trying to play down the corruption investigation.

Davis, who had been GSA's top auditor, joined Clinkscales in charging that the Carter administration had failed to work aggressively to eliminate corruption and waste at the agency.

Parade Saturday

Greenville Jaycees will sponsor the city's annual Christmas parade Saturday at 10:30 a.m.

The parade will begin on Reade Street, continue to Reade Circle, turn right on Dickinson Avenue, turn left on Washington Street and disband on First Street.

This year's parade, Jaycee Jim Allgood said, will have an added dimension in that several participants are building their own floats to enter into competition. There will also be beauty queens, clowns, bands and distinguished guests, he added.

Taft Named Serve Board

W. H. TAFT JR.

William H. Taft Jr. has been elected to serve on the board of directors of Home Federal Savings and Loan Association, the firm announced.

A Greenville native, Taft graduated from Greenville High School in 1954 and received a degree in business administration from Duke University in 1958.

Taft served six years in the Army Reserve and attended the Army Finance School at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind.

The son of William H. and Mamie Ruth Taft, the new board member became a partner in Taft Furniture Co. in 1958.

He is a member of the Greenville Utilities Commission board, a member of the Rotary Club, and serves on the administrative board of Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church. Taft was a Greenville Jaycee from 1960 until 1970, served as president of the Downtown Greenville Association, and has been chairman of the city Parking Authority.

He is a board member of the Greenville Art Center and the N.C. Museum of History Associates. Taft is married to the former Mary Hannah Finch of Thomasville and they have three children, Hannah, Ruth and Bill.

SORORITY

Members of the Greenville Alumnae Chapter of Delta Sigma Sorority Inc., met recently at the home of Soror Bettye James to exchange Christmas gifts and to pool gifts for Operation Santa Claus.

The sorority is planning its area Founder's Day on Jan. 9, 1982, in Roanoke Rapids.

Joint Jail For Martin, Bertie

WILLIAMSTON — Martin County Commissioners have approved an agreement between Martin and Bertie counties for the establishment and operation of a joint jail facility.

The agreement details the operation and ownership of the jail, and is being presented to the Bertie Board of Commissioners for its consideration and approval.

The Martin Commissioners also approved a resolution appointing a six-member jail commission which will govern and control the jail. A. C. Bailey, vice chairman of the Martin board, will represent the board on the jail commission.

The jail is to be located on the Bertie County Farm south of Windsor and about 10 miles from the Martin County Courthouse. Half of the property is to be deeded to Martin County, providing a joint two-county ownership of the facility.

Discussions were held on the Certified Development Company Program which the Mid-East Commission is attempting to get under way. The program is designed basically to help provide loans for small businesses for long periods of time to promote business growth in that sector of the economy.

Commissioners agreed to consider the matter but informed the Mid-East director it would need to contact officials of the Committee of 100 before making a final decision. The Committee of 100 is dedicated to bringing economic growth to the county. A motion to accept $4,113 from the state for a crisis intervention program to deal with winter heating bills assistance for qualified residents was approved.

Dear Abby

Off-The-Record Citizen Wants To Get Back On

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: When you read this, you will know why I've been too embarrassed to ask anyone else. Abby, I haven't voted for so long, I'm not even sure if I'm eligible or not. (I'm not even sure I'm registered.) There must be others with the same problem, so you may want to answer this letter in the column. If you print this, please don't use my name.

RED, WHITE, BLUE AND BLUSHING

DEAR BLUSHING: Yours is an excellent question. One of our cherished rights is the right to vote, and unfortunately, the number of people who exercise that right in this country is a national scandal. (Only 53.9 percent of the voting-age population voted in the last presidential election.)

For information about voting, look in your telephone book under the name of your state, city or county board of elections or county clerk. Or call the local chapter of the League of Women Voters. (There are 1400 chapters in the U.S.A.) If there is no chapter where you live, write to the national headquarters: League of Women Voters, 1730 M St. N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036.

The league is one of the few places where people can get impartial, thoroughly researched and documented information. It doesn't try to "sell" an issue, or "package" a candidate.

If a candidate is running for re-election, find out how he (or she) voted on the various bills. Also examine attendance records.

Those who do not vote have no right to complain about their government, their representatives or the state of the nation.

DEAR ABBY: I may be old-fashioned, but I think it's in very poor taste to give a child money for Christmas. My mother-in-law sends my child a check every Christmas, and I get furious with her. I have been tempted to send it back or to send her a check in the same amount.

I feel if she can't take the time (of which she has plenty) to shop for her grandchild, she can keep her money. My child would be more impressed with a sack of jelly beans than he is with grandma's check. Should I tell her to forget it next year?

FURIOUS

DEAR FURIOUS: No. I think giving a child a check makes more sense than giving him a gift he feels he must keep (or worse yet, wear) because it's grandma's Christmas gift. You can't go wrong with money; the color is always right, and you don't have to worry about "fit" — it fits into any pocketbook.

DEAR ABBY: You have stated many times in your column that the unwed mother who gave up her child for adoption showed the ultimate in unselfishness. Well, it's time you heard from one of the "selfish" mothers who kept her child over the objections of her parents and many well-meaning friends.

It took more than unselfishness for me to keep my baby. It took courage, determination, confidence and a lot of guts! I was 17 at the time and had to drop out of school in my senior year. I had my baby, went to work, borrowed money and paid it back. I finished my education and didn't go on welfare, either. I made a choice that was right for me and I never regretted it.

I am now married to a fine man and we have two other children. I thank God that I kept my firstborn. I will never have to wonder how she is, what she looks like, what her interests are or how she will turn out.

"SELFISH" IN WISCONSIN

DEAR SELFISH: Your case is very rare, and I commend you. The most recent statistics show that last year in this country there were 1.1 million pregnancies among teen-agers, and that 96 percent of those girls kept their babies. About two-thirds of this number will go on welfare, resulting in the cost of about $8.3 billion a year to taxpayers. (P.S. More than 90 percent of the teen-aged boys who fathered these children took no responsibility for the baby or the teen-aged mother.)

Provisionals Named By Service League

The singing of Christmas carols by children of several Greenville Service League members opened the group's December meeting.

Mrs. Edward Smith, program chairman, introduced the program.

Mrs. Frank Layne, first vice president, introduced and welcomed new provisional members including Mrs. Dan K. Wooten, Mrs. Robert J. Collins, Mrs. Mark Tipton, Mrs. J. Larkin Little, Mrs. Harroll David Weaver, Miss Mary Wesley Harvey, Mrs. Edward J. Supara, Mrs. Stephen W. Perry, Mrs. Albert Blanton, Mrs. Richard J. McKee and Mrs. J. H. Harrell.

Mrs. Frank Steinbeck Jr. reported collections of 431 units of blood during the month of November. The next Bloodmobile visit will be held Dec. 30 at the Moose Lodge. Mrs. Charles Wilkerson Jr. reported 424 Thanksgiving place cards prepared and a fruit basket was placed on One South for Pitt County Memorial Hospital patients. League members were asked to help decorate the hospital Dec. 11.

Mrs. Eugene Furth, emergency chairman, asked for volunteers to deliver Christmas baskets to needy families. She also reported receiving a call during November. Mrs. Howard Dawkins received two calls for layettes.

Laughinghouse Fund Chairman Mrs. J. Bryan Brown answered three calls for assistance and Lending Chest Chairman Mrs. John Guy received a call.

Hospital volunteers were reminded of the Christmas holidays from Dec. 21 through Jan. 3.

Provisional members were honored at a Christmas social following the meeting.

Mrs. Robert VanVeld, president, conducted the meeting which was held at the Jaycee Park Administrative Building.

COOKING IS FUN

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
AP Food Editor

Way back in the 1950s a Kansas cook was a prizewinner in a national bake-off. Her recipe? A sweet yeast bread dough rolled out, filled with a sugar mixture and sliced into swirls.

Here's a recipe based on that prizewinner's, but this one is more nutritious and less rich: The dough now has oats in it; and the filling, less sugar. It's a cross between a cookie and a roll. Good fare for snacking.

CINNAMON SWIRLS
1 package dry yeast
1-3rd cup sugar
¼ cup warm water (110 to 115 degrees)

2¼ to 2½ cups all-purpose flour
¾ teaspoon salt
2-3rds cup milk
1-3rds cup butter
1 large egg
¾ cup quick or regular oats

¼ cup butter, melted
Cinnamon Pecan Mixture, recipe follows

In a 1-cup glass liquid measure, dissolve the yeast and 1 teaspoon of the sugar in the warm water; let stand until double in volume — about 10 minutes.

In the large bowl of an electric mixer, stir together 1 cup of the flour, the remaining sugar and the salt.

In a small saucepan heat the milk and the 1-3rd cup butter until warm (105 to 115 degrees) — butter does not need to melt; add to the flour mixture with the yeast. At medium speed, scraping bowl a few times, beat for 2 minutes. Add the egg and the oats; at the high speed, scraping bowl a few times, beat for 2 minutes. With a wooden spoon, work at enough of the remaining flour to make a soft dough. Turn out the dough on a prepared pastry cloth or a lightly floured surface. Knead until smooth and elastic — 5 to 10 minutes. Form into a ball; place in a buttered bowl, turning to coat top. Cover bowl; let rise in a draft-free warm place (about 80 degrees) until doubled — about 1½ hours. Punch down dough; let rest 10 minutes. On the pastry cloth or other surface, roll out to an 18 by 12-inch rectangle.

Brush dough with one-half of the melted butter; sprinkle with one-half of the Cinnamon Pecan Mixture. Starting at an 18-inch edge, tightly roll up to form an 18-inch roll. Cut into ½-inch wide slices. Place several inches apart on buttered cookie sheets. Let stand uncovered in a draft-free warm place (about 80 degrees) to rise slightly — 30 minutes. Cover with wax paper; with your fingers press each slice into a round that is 3 inches in diameter. Brush with the remaining melted butter; sprinkle with the remaining Cinnamon Pecan Mixture. Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven until golden brown — 10 to 15 minutes. With a wide spatula, remove to a wire rack to cool. Makes 3 dozen.

Cinnamon Pecan Mixture: In a small bowl, stir together ½ cup sugar, 2 teaspoons ground cinnamon and 1 cup chopped pecans (about the size of large peas).

Selling Job Is Needed

Gov. Hunt upon his return from an industry hunting mission to Japan, was enthusiastic about potential results last week.

In a news conference, the governor said the mission helped make our state a leading contender for Japanese investments.

He said he expected a large Japanese plant to be located in the state with the announcement to come within a few weeks.

Some other industrial prospects were favorably impressed, he said.

He said North Carolina has begun a long term partnership with the Far East.

"I intend to continue devoting much of my time to that because I am convinced that it will pay off in a significant number of new jobs and investment in North Carolina," the governor said.

He cited commitments by South Korea and Taiwan to purchase more North Carolina grown tobacco.

It, of course, remains to be seen the results that may come from the governor's economic mission. It is known, however, that Japanese industrialists are interested in investing in plants to be constructed in the United States. North Carolina has much to offer any sound industrial prospects. We must sell ourselves to those who wish to locate industry where ever they may be.

Social Security Problems

If you don't know, Social Security taxes will rise again on Jan. 1.

The maximum tax will go to $2,170.80, an increase of $195.75. The tax rate will go from 6.65 percent to 6.7 percent on employees' pay, with employers paying an equal amount. The maximum taxable earnings will go from $29,700 to $32,400.

Don't expect the increase to bail the Social Security system out of financial trouble, however. The increases were already built in and they have been considered in any projects which show where Social Security will be in the future.

Social Security is popular with the American public and the system is certain to be with us in the future. It does have problems, however, and there will have to be some fine tuning of benefits and taxes to keep it operating.

Condos Moving In

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — All across North Carolina, even in small towns and partially rural areas, there is increasing conflict between single-family homeowners and that new breed of dweller — the condominium owner.

Naturally, those who develop the multifamily dwelling units with their concentrations of buildings which mean more people, more cars and traffic, more noise and congestion, and those who live in them want them located in nice surroundings.

That means golf courses and parks, churches and schools. It means separation from the commercial and office areas to which multifamily housing has traditionally been assigned by planners and zoners.

And, that also means confrontation with the developed neighborhoods which must adjoin the condos, and through which the new traffic must often pass.

Costly
The forces creating this change in lifestyles and the inevitable clash between traditional single-family dwelling concepts and the condo concept are clear: higher land and building costs coupled with out-of-reach interest rates are forcing those who would buy rather than rent to seek an alternative to the separate house and lot. The condo has become the popular answer.

In the first six months of 1977 building permits issued for new dwelling units in cities and towns of more than 10,000 population were largely for single family units: 3,213 for houses against 1,830 for multifamily units.

The next year, single family units continued ahead:

3,577 to 2,758. Then condo developments began to catch on. In 1979 the permits issued for single and multifamily units drew close to even:

BILL NOBLITT

3,152 to 2,939. Last year for the first time construction of multifamily housing moved ahead of single family construction, and for the first six months of this year, the trend continues. None of those figures take into account the conversion of existing rental multifamily housing developments into for-sale condos; another phenomenon which is taking the state by storm.

So it is that in hearing halls in courthouses and city halls across the state, those who would build and sell the condos and making their pitches to planning boards and local government leaders to allow the zoning needed for such construction. Nearby, homeowners invariably protest the intrusion.

Professional planners are caught in the middle, as are the elected officials who must ultimately make the decisions.

Growth

It is fairly certain that the spread of a developed area's tax base and population through traditional suburban building patterns is slowed considerably if not near an end. If a city is to grow, it will have to face the unpopular notion that large tracts of land once thought set aside for expensive homes and nice lawns will almost certainly have to be used instead for the concentrated housing patterns of condo development.

The trend is already apparent in many resort communities of the mountains, coast and Sandhills where condos line lake or seashore, mountain peaks and exclusive golf courses. Despite the denser population, such developments demonstrate that natural terrain and attractiveness can be maintained and are giving a boost to the spread of multifamily housing concepts elsewhere in the state.

But the big question which remains unanswered is whether the condo rush is a lasting change in lifestyles. (Please Turn To Page 5)

TALKING TO EACH OTHER--TOO!

The Tablecloth Crisis

I walked into the house the other night and found my wife at her sewing machine.

"What on earth are you doing?" I asked her.

"I'm making tablecloths," she said.

"What for?"

"Haven't you heard of the tablecloth crisis at the White House?"

"I've heard about the Stockman crisis, the Allen crisis, the budget crisis and the European missile crisis. But no one mentioned anything about tablecloths."

"It's in all the papers," my wife said. "The White House has only six sets of tablecloths for all its luncheons and dinners, and no money to buy new ones."

"You can't be serious."

"It's even worse than that. They sent out one set of tablecloths to the dry cleaners, and they came back shrunk."

"Only in America," I said.

"It may be funny to you," she said, "but it isn't funny to Mrs. Reagan or her staff. How would you like to give a state dinner with shrunken tablecloths?"

"Why can't they cut them up and make them into place mats?" I suggested.

"How would you feel if you were the Crown Prince of Saudi Arabia, and the President of the United States made you eat off a place mat?"

"I don't think it would bother me as long as I knew I was getting AWACS."

"I'm glad you're not the First Lady of the land," she said, in disgust.

ART BUCHWALD

"Why doesn't the White House make the dry cleaners replace the tablecloths that were shrunk?" I asked.

"Because the cleaner's insurance company is claiming the tablecloths were shrunk before they cleaned them, and there is no way the White House can prove they weren't."

"Well then, why doesn't Mrs. Reagan buy smaller tables so the shrunken tablecloths will fit?"

"She's spent the $822,000 donated to refurbish the White House, and she doesn't have any money left to buy smaller tables."

"I guess you're right. This is a crisis. Let's see, according to you the White House has six sets of tablecloths, and one is inoperable. Couldn't they make do with five sets until the recession is over?"

"Not if you are giving luncheons and dinners. You have no idea of the wear and tear on household linens these days. Some of the sets have patches in them. The more patches you have on tablecloths, the more flowers you have to put on the tables to cover them."

"What's wrong with that?" I asked.

"Flowers cost more money these days than tablecloths." "Well the Reagans are just going to have to cut down on state dinners then. I'm sure if Margaret Thatcher came to the White House and knew the situation, she would settle for a nice tea with watercress sandwiches."

"The United States is the most powerful country in the world, and you don't win over heads of state of the Free World by serving them watercress sandwiches."

"Maybe the Japanese would give us tablecloths in exchange for a magazine interview with Richard Allen," I said.

"Mrs. Reagan's staff has issued instructions not to let a Japanese reporter within two blocks of the White House."

"So your solution is for American women to go to their sewing machines and make up for the tablecloth gap at 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue?"

"It's no big deal," she said.

Civilization At Tailgates

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent
NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP)

Man, as Rudyard Kipling shrewdly observed, is basically a barracks room animal.

His primitive instinct is NOT to go back to nature and rough it, but to feather his nest, increase his creature comforts, hang up a hammock and mosquito net to sleep out under the stars and, like Field Marshal Montgomery, put on a dinner jacket for sundowners in the desert. Civilization requires its veneer of civility.

Nowhere is this instinctive urge to survive in comfort, in rigorous splendor, more dramatically demonstrated than in the elegant art of tailgating, an exotic brand of picnicking practiced in stadium parking lots across the land on football weekends. Here is outdoor domesticity raised to the luxurious standards of the deluxe hotel with all the accompanying fuss and pretension.

"What's cooking?" I asked a tailgate chef basting an animal about the size of a German shepherd dog slowly turning on an electric spit attached to his automobile battery.

"Baron of lamb," answered Bill DeCossy, Yale '57, a New Haven architect who last year did a roast sucking pig with an apple in its mouth.

Of course, it was the weekend of "The Game," Harvard vs. Yale, and here we were in a gourmet's paradise, the parking lot of the Yale Bowl, the birthplace of tailgating, the Mecca of preppiness, the mother house of George Bush multiplied to the nth degree ad infinitum.

"Happy Hour" flags emblazoned with little cocktail glasses flew from car radio antennas. Bottles of imported champagne protruded their chilly necks from silver ice buckets. The crisp November air was laden with the aroma of sizzling steaks, spicy sausages, barbecuing shrimps, steaming quiches just released from a field oven, even the rare perfume of lobster thermidor.

Everyone seemed to be named Bruce, Biff, Muffy, Tuffy, Craig or Keith. The women wore enormous yellow chrysanthemums on their tweediest of tweed suits and were garlanded about the neck with long striped collegiate mufflers. Their barracks mates seemed to favor garish plaid slacks, Irish fishermen sweaters, deerstalker caps right out of Sherlock Holmes and meerschaum pipes emitting a sweetish, aromatic odor. The dogs wore the appropriate school blanket.

The picnic tables were set with care and elegance, fresh cut flowers in lovely vases (in one case, cloisonne), the best family silver and china — nothing paper or plastic — and gleaming crystal stemware on a field of crisp white linen tastefully interrupted with colored napkins in Harvard crimson or Yale blue, according to the gridiron preference of the Maitre D'.

Margaret Conran of Fort Walton Beach, Fla., mother of Yale's first string corner back, had graced her table with a pair of shining silver five bracket candleabra but doubted that she would get them lit in the stiff breeze raking the parking lot.

The DeCossys, past masters at the tailgating art, had their candles flickering inside huge hurricane glasses. Beside the baron of lamb, their menu included a steaming pot of soupe au pistou, which is the life blood of Provence, Polish kielbasa in a blanket and three chocolate mousses successively lettered in confectioner's cream "E," "L" and "I."

Tailgaters began to arrive about 9 a.m. A few had spent the night in the parking lot. Many would not leave the groaning board and ever flowing bar until long after dark, hours after the goal posts had been torn down and the scoreboard cleansed of

Strength For Today

GOD IN OUR LIVES

From the smallest cell of our body to the greatest enterprise of our lives, God is present and working. We cannot assume a neutral attitude about this great reality. Either we work with God and help Him or we work against God and impede Him.

The happy life, the full life, the achieving life, the truly rich life — this flowering takes place when the sluices are opened and the refreshing water of life, straight from the throne of God, refreshes our lives and makes them fruitful.

Some people never have God's favor because they have never cared to have it, at least not sufficiently to impel them to seek after it. Then there are others, sometimes very humble, ordinary people who have God's refreshment flowing through their lives like a mighty stream.

This happy situation is sometimes known as divine sanction. Fullness of life cannot be achieved without it. — Elisha Douglass

Given A Rationale For Firing

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP)

As the unemployment rate reaches 8.4 percent of the civilian labor force, with more than 9 million people out of work, Robert Theobald, economist and futurist, says he isn't surprised.

This is unusual, because if you look at the government, academic and business forecasts of a few months ago you'll find that most economists were indeed surprised by the economic plunge already developing.

But Robert Theobald, controversial, original — and according to one story, perhaps dangerous, too — says the entire unemployment scenario is clear to be seen, if you have the political detachment and intellectual honesty to recognize the currents of modern economic development.

"It (unemployment rate) will rise to 10 percent at least," said Theobald the other day by phone from his home in Wickenburg, Ariz., a desert community where the physically towering, Indian-born, British-educated lecturer, writer and consultant does much of his thinking.

In his quest for productivity, said Theobald, President Reagan has given industry and government a rationale for firing, a willingness to fire that wasn't part of our thinking before. Now, he suggested, cutting jobs is equated with raising economic productivity.

Who is Theobald? He's a man in motion, forever speaking and listening to university, business, and governmental groups. He is an adviser to Dallas, Spokane, and Portland. He is a scholar; he is an author: "Free Men and Free Markets," "Economic Abundance," and "Beyond Despair."

Attempting to categorize him as liberal or conservative is futile. He is on fair terms with labor, management and government leaders. But, since he does his own thinking, he can irritate any or all of them.

Supreme Court Justice Arthur Goldberg is said to have been overheard at a cocktail party telling Theobald — whether in anger or jest isn't clear — that "There is nothing more dangerous than a man who's too far ahead of his time." He was speaking at the time to Robert Theobald.

Theobald is seldom daunted. He observes that if economists can be so wrong, as in failing to see the magnitude of unemployment, "we have to be disturbed about the academic discipline." He adds: "That we have no economic model is clear. We cannot predict, let alone control."

The nation is seeking a return to a maximum growth economy while ignoring signs that to do so is impossible, says Theobald, restating an assertion that has been damned and praised but never put to rest.

"Reagan assumes that the priorities are in raising incomes and the quality of life," Theobald continues. "But if we go back to maximum economic growth we are committing ourselves to dependence on the rest of the world for energy and raw materials. And if we try to obtain energy in the Rocky Mountains we would have a water crisis in the 1990s."

Complicating this, says Theobald, is that if we obtain maximum growth it will be in work that is capital-intensive, not labor-intensive. "Growth won't be in steel but in robots and computers. The paradox is that the faster we invest, the more people we throw out of work."

His conclusion: "Only fundamental refiguring of work patterns and life cycles can resolve short-run and long-run unemployment." With words of that sort, many see in Theobald a vague threat to security. He is accustomed to it. In

"Beyond Despair," which suggests a good future is there to be claimed; Theobald recalls that leaders of mid-19th century England deplored the decline of yeoman farmers, who were believed to be the nation's backbone.

"Today," he reminds us, "America mourns the loss of its heavy industry, which is believed to be the backbone of the country. All sorts of efforts are being made to stem the tide."

Forget it, he says. Restructure instead. He foresees life styles that would include periods of work, more education, then work again in repeated waves. People would recreate and educate all life long.

In that way, he says, we'll do more than simply share fewer jobs. "That suggests something is lost," says Theobald. To his mind, the opposite is true. He deplores the 19th century notion of toil to keep people occupied and out of harm's way. He promotes "meaningful" work.

The pattern of work-recreation-reeducation would be a productive one, he says, one that would utilize the best in people, that would "insure that the important work of society gets done."

its Yale 28, Harvard 0" verdict. Some would not see the game at all.

"We hate football, but we love tailgating," exclaimed Mike Piecak, who had arrived with 40 of his friends and four kegs of beer in a rented moving van from Bronxville, N.Y. When the lasagna verde, baked in an oven fashioned from half an oil drum, was pronounced ready, he herded the diners to a table from their spirited Frisbee game with a police bullhorn.

In an adjoining field, another tailgate host summoned his guests by playing Army mess call on a battered trombone. Still another cried out in accent unmistakably preppie, "Come and get your Pimm's cup and Scotch eggs, darlings."

Football only seemed to provide the excuse for serving coq au vin out of a Dutch oven imbedded in glowing coals or spinach pie au truffle from a double boiler over a Coleman stove or, most ingenious among my investigations, rock Cornish hen wrapped in aluminum foil and taped to the engine block so it would roast en route. Several of the tailgate gourmets I visited had purchased only one ticket to the game for the entire group, and they would take turns going inside the arena to catch a few plays.

"Witnessing an actual touchdown entitles you to another Bloody Mary," a girl named Mopsy told me. Or was it Topsy? Anyhow, she was so preppie she might have been cloned by the Yale Co-op and listed in the catalogue.

Tailgate traditionalists still favor the buckboard of a station wagon for these al fresco lucullan repasts, while scorning the humble pickup truck, the camper and the van. Coming in a bus is equivalent to bringing sandwiches. There is a growing vogue, however, to emulate the British aristocracy at Ascot and toss a damask cloth across the bonnet of a Rolls-Royce, a Caddie or a Lincoln Continental while perching on a shooting stick beneath a tribly or gray topper. Volkswagens are decidedly "non-U," which translates to "yeeech."

Last year at Harvard, I am told, one of the more pretentious preppie tailgaters if you'll forgive the redundancy, even hired a butler in full fig to butle a five-course outdoor banquet that began with buluga caviar and finnan haddie and wound up with sherry trifle.

Meanwhile, has anyone seen the hot dog vendor? Football Saturdays make me ravenous.

(c) 1981, Los Angeles Times Syndicate

By MARY ANNE RHYNE
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Former state AFL-CIO president Wilbur Hobby resorted to fraud in an effort to acquire equipment for his new company in 1979, a federal prosecutor alleged Tuesday.

The former state president of the AFL-CIO is on trial on charges of fraud and conspiracy related to the use of Comprehensive Employment and Training Act funds.

Two witnesses for the prosecution testified late Tuesday after jury selection was completed and attorneys made opening arguments.

U.S. Attorney Sam Currin said in his opening remarks that in early 1979, Hobby began taking steps to implement a plan he had devised for acquiring a new computer for his newly formed company called Precision Data.

"There was only one problem with Precision Data as far as acquiring a computer went — Precisoj Data had no assets, had no capital, had no building, didn't have anything," Currin said.

Currin said Hobby decided to try to get a grant under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act to train computer operators and when the government refused to give Precision Data a grant he successfully obtained one for Precision Graphics, a company he had helped start four or five years before.

Under the plan, Currin charged, Hobby successfully obtained the money to buy a computer for his private business and successfully transferred CETA money from the graphics company to his computer company.

Currin said the government would present evidence showing that the other defendant in the case, Mort Levi, signed up ineligible students to participate in the CETA program and that Hobby and Levi assigned political and union work to the students. Levi was program director for Precision Graphics.

Meanwhile, attorneys for Hobby and Levi said the state knew about and approved their clients' acts and didn't question them until newspapers began attacking the contracts.

Defense attorney Donald Beskind said Hobby spent only $89,000 of a $130,000 contract approved by the state.

"The state knew exactly how much these (CETA) charges would be. With that knowledge, the state approved and signed these contracts," Beskind said.

Tom Manning, an attorney representing Levi, said students who may be called to testify that Levi urged them to falsify applications for the CETA program are biased against Levi.

Arthur M. White of Raleigh, president of International Travel Groups and Arts Advertising, testified about business dealings he had with Hobby. He said he was involved in the establishment of Precision Graphics and was an original investor.

He said he sold out in 1977 and found in 1978 that he had been listed as secretary treasurer of the company, which he said he had not authorized.

A second witness, James

Children Sickened By Poison In Punch

CHICAGO (AP) — A kitchen container used to mix the fruit punch that sent 79 schoolchildren to the hospital with cramps and vomiting apparently had been used by janitors to mix rat and roach poison, police say.

Eight students were kept at the hospital after drinking the punch during lunch Tuesday at Julian High School, which is in a poor section of the South Side. Two were in serious condition, three were reported fair and three were in good condition, hospital officials said.

More than 100 students drank the mixture and all suffered some degree of sickness, said Principal Edward Oliver.

"I was sitting in class about an hour later and my stomach got upset," said student Carl Davis, 15. "I was feeling dizzy like I had to vomit."

"It didn't taste right — like it was a little sour," said Anthony Hargrave, 15, who said he drank two glasses of the punch. "After a while, while I was sitting in class, the teacher said I looked a little pale. She sent me to the bathroom and I threw up."

An official at Roseland Hospital said many of the 36 students treated there were "pale and drawn" and the breath of some students bore the smell of the poison's chemical base.

"Inadvertently, the kitchen help came across this container and used it this morning to scoop powdered fruit drink out of a larger container," Sgt. Jerry Selke said. "The rim of the container apparently still contained the residue of the insecticide."

The Chicago Sun-Times said in today's editions that officials of Christ Hospital in Oak Lawn were told by school officials that a cafeteria worker mistook a leftover bottle of insecticide for a bottle of water and mixed it with punch.

Use Forgery To Undercut U.S. Policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union and other anti-American elements are trying to disrupt U.S. foreign policy with forged documents that purport to expose such U.S. secrets as a plan to blast Western Europe with nuclear weapons if war breaks out, the State Department says.

The forged document intended to reveal a U.S. plan to blow up Western Europe first surfaced two decades ago, and appeared again in 1979, State Department officials said Tuesday.

During the past year and a half it has appeared in Great Britain, the Netherlands, Spain, Norway, Belgium, Denmark, Malta and Greece, said the officials, who talked with reporters Tuesday on the condition they not be identified.

The State Department comments were in response to press inquiries prompted by an official U.S. report two months ago on Soviet "disinformation" activities.

The officials said the Soviet Union clearly was behind some of the forgeries, but said the origins of others are not known.

The "Holocaust" forgery has appeared in magazine and newspaper articles and has been cited by anti-nuclear groups, the officials said.

They said it is based in part on documents stolen in the United States in the 1960s by Sgt. Robert Johnson, a Soviet agent who was killed in prison in 1972 while serving a 25-year term.

When the forgery resurfaced in 1979, the United States' European allies were debating a NATO proposal to deploy medium-range nuclear forces in Europe to counter the Soviet installation of SS-20 missiles.

The Soviets have waged an intense campaign in Western Europe against the NATO plan. The first NATO missiles are scheduled to be installed in 1983.

The officials said the forgery is believed to be of Soviet origin because it contains some of the same military jargon and phrases as the documents Johnson passed on to the Soviets.

Other examples of forgeries cited by the officials included:

—A story from Vienna appearing in the Soviet press in October which alluded to "U.S. document 7707-10-70," declaring Austria to be in the sphere of U.S. interests and targeting a number of Austrian cities and nuclear facilities for nuclear destruction.

—A letter supposedly written by President Reagan to King Juan Carlos of Spain in which Reagan encourages the monarch to destroy his left-wing opposition and says the United States will support Spain in its dispute with Great Britain over Gibraltar. The officials said the Spanish press immediately recognized the letter as a forgery.

—An attempt to portray, through a bogus document, the U.S. government as intent on sabotaging relations between U.S. black groups and black African nations.

Police Report Two Accidents

An estimated $4,950 damage resulted from two traffic collisions investigated by Greenville police early today.

Heaviest damage resulted from a 1:35 a.m. mishap on Reade Street, 188 feet east of the Cotanche Street intersection, involving cars driven by Tomi Lynn Schumacher of 102 S. Eastern St. and Gregory Warren Dail of 1722 Knollwood Drive.

Police, who charged Ms. Schumacher with careless and reckless driving, estimated damage at $2,000 to the Schumacher car, $450 to the Dail vehicle and $1,000 to a utility pole.

Cars driven by Gregory Turner Clarke of 418 Jones Dorm and Lynne Marie Alexander of Springfield, Va., collided about 1:10 a.m. at the intersection of Fourth and Summit streets, causing $500 damage to the Clarke vehicle and $1,000 damage to the Alexander car.

Life-Giving Gift Could Be In Order

WASHINGTON (AP) — A thoughtful selection of a "life-giving" gift can put meaning back into the tradition of holiday giving, a nursing professor at the Catholic University of America believes.

Mary Walsh, professor in the university's School of Nursing, suggests that concerned shoppers consider a "gift of health" for their loved ones. For example, she says, why not give an enrollment in a CPR (cardiac pulmonary resuscitation) course, in a health spa or exercise clinic, a subscription to a nutrition or health magazine, or even a basket of assorted health foods?

"I would suggest a very careful selection based on your feeling of the person as a friend and associate," says Mrs. Walsh. "If someone has been talking about joining a stop-smoking clinic, or a weight-control program, the gift of enrollment or the initial fee might be the motivating factor for a person who's on the fence."

"However, some people might also be offended if you gave them such a gift," she warns. "Your decision should be based on how well you know them and how you think they would accept the gift."

A jogging suit, tennis shoes, lessons for a sport, barbells, a bicycle or exercise equipment are all gifts that would be good for many people, says the nursing professor, adding that the price range of such items is usually wide enough to fit most budgets.

"Select your gift with the needs of the person in mind," she advises. For instance, if the recipient is elderly or physically unable to undergo strenuous exercise, then sports lessons or jogging clothes would be inappropriate, but maybe a certificate for green fees at a local golf course would be appreciated.

Gifts of health foods or even a certificate for a health-food store would not be enjoyed by everyone. However, almost anyone would relish a fruit basket or enrollment in a "fruit of the month" program. "With the price of food today, most people are grateful to get a gift like this," says Mrs. Walsh.

For people on a salt-restricted diet — who must use herbs to season their food — pots, seeds and instructions on how to make an herb garden would be a gift that could be enjoyed year-round.

Another gift, perhaps for a person with high blood pressure, might be a kit with a blood-pressure gauge, sold specifically for at-home use. Those allergic to insect stings would appreciate a first-aid kit containing materials to self-administer the proper antidote.

Another idea is a general first-aid kit, either bought or "handmade," especially for families with children. Also, enrollment in a first-aid course would be a gift that could be of enormous benefit. For expectant parents, a book on baby care would be welcome.

There are also other types of "health" gifts that are less directly related to one's physical health, adds Mrs. Walsh. These would be gifts that help a person fight stress and meet what she describes as the "human needs" — psychological-spiritual-recreational needs.

For example, she recommends such gifts as "relaxation" tapes or books which explain, in lay terms, how to reduce stress. "In this day of 'burnout,' the psychological health of a person is important and can affect one's physical health," explains the nursing professor.

The relaxation tapes are played under one's pillow at night to help teach a person to relax. Mrs. Walsh suggests contacting your community health clinic or a local nursing clinic for information on where to purchase such tapes.

Another gift she recommends for fighting stress and meeting the human needs is simply a gift of time. The person who daily cares for an elderly person in the home, a sick spouse, a new baby or even a household of children might appreciate a day alone, perhaps for shopping, a movie, or just to sleep uninterrupted and unworried.

Home Federal Reports Record Earnings By Savers

The executive vice president of Home Federal Savings and Loan Association reported to shareholders here Tuesday that savers at Home Federal earned a record $6,441,000 in interest during the year.

Reporting at Home Federal's 76th annual shareholders meeting, Larkin Little said that "high interest rates plagued virtually all sectors of the American economy last year, but the government's inability to bring the interest rate problem under control is especially frustrating to the savings and loan business and the housing industry."

Little said he is hopeful the decline in interest rates which "appeared to be under way in late 1981" will "make the new year a time when both the financial and housing markets begin a return to normalcy."

He said he is "cautiously optimistic" about 1982.

Little pointed to several factors that he said combine to create a "hopeful mood" about the new year. Those factors include declining interest rates; the ability of Home Federal to make flexible mortgage loans which will allow the institution to better match its mortgage portfolio earnings and savings costs; the popularity of the new all savers certificate; and the expected popularity of expanded Individual Retirement Accounts.

According to Little, Home Federal ends 1981 with $63,800,000 in deposits and $72,900,000 in assets.

In his year-end statement to shareholders, he said, "Like most businesses, Home Federal's earnings were squeezed last year. He pointed out, however, that "financial institutions are unique in that they are required to set aside a portion of their earnings to provide a cushion for those tight periods."

He said reserves at Home Federal total $3,133,000.

The board of directors elected at the meeting for 1982 are Kenneth K. Dews Sr., David J. Whichard II, Howard L. Hodges Jr., Clifton W. Everett Sr., James S. Ficklen Jr., Billy B. Laughinghouse, Dr. Allen Taylor, Larkin Little and newly elected member William H. Taft Jr. Charles

S. Wilkerson Sr. was elected director emeritus.

Officers of the association are Dews, chairman of the board; Whichard, president; Little, executive vice president and managing officer; Hodges, vice president; Burney S. Warren III, vice president and treasurer; Faye G. Adams, vice president and secretary, and Carolyn B. Rollins, vice president and assistant secretary.

Also elected were Jerry A. Carson, assistant vice president; Carlyle Hall, assistant vice president; C. Hal Knox, assistant vice president, and Donna C. Bell, assistant secretary.

Whichard presided at the annual meeting.

Rules Hospital Discriminated

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP). — A U.S. District judge has ruled that Charlotte Memorial Hospital discriminated against black employees.

Judge James McMillan issued a memorandum last week that found there were promotions, transfers, assignments to low-paid jobs and retaliation against blacks who sought advancement.

The ruling followed a trial in October on a suit filed by nine individuals who McMillan ruled had been discriminated against since 1972.

McMillan ordered the two sides to try to settle their claims.

Teacher Of Year Chosen

FARMVILLE — Lois J. Parker has been selected "Teacher of the Year" at Sam D. Bundy Elementary School.

A native of Pitt County and a graduate of Belvoir-Falkland High School, she is the daughter of Mrs. Lucille S. James.

She received her B.S. degree in intermediate education from East Carolina University with concentrations in math and social studies. She holds her master's degree from ECU in learning disabilities for exceptional children.

Ms. Parker organized the LD program for Tarboro city schools and at present teaches the learning disabled, the educable handicapped and emotionally handicapped children in grades 1-5 at Bundy school.

Ms. Parker is a member of the NEA, the North Carolina Association of Educators and the N.C. Association of Classroom Teachers. She is a member of Kappa Delta Pi, an honor society in education.

She belongs to the Greenville Church of God and is active in youth programs. She directs the youth choir, is Sunday school teacher for the teen-age class and is secretary-treasurer of the family training hour.

Ms. Parker will go on to the county "Teacher of the Year" competition.

Will Not Meet

House Considers Alaska Pipeline Price Concession

By WILLIAM KRONHOLM
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) —
Pricing concessions intended to ease financing of the $43 billion Alaska natural gas pipeline are being considered by the House despite objections that the package is unfair to consumers.

The financing package, scheduled for House consideration today, would shift some of the huge financial risk for the project from financiers to gas consumers in more than 40 states, who could end up paying for parts of the pipeline without receiving any gas.

But supporters of the pipeline — including the speaker of the House, its majority leader and the chairmen of its Interior and Energy committees — argued that with all its drawbacks, the financing package was essential if the United States hopes to tap Alaska's vast gas reserves.

Today's House vote was the last hurdle for the financing package which President Reagan was sent to Congress on Oct. 15. The Senate approved it earlier.

Passage would clear the way for the pipeline's sponsors to seek financial commitments from world money markets to support the project.

Senate Majority Whip Ted Stevens, R-Alaska, has said project sponsors will need to line up $30 billion in loan commitments before getting the go-ahead for construction from the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission. That could take a year.

The proposed 4,800-mile pipeline — six times longer than the trans-Alaska oil pipeline — would be the largest privately financed construction project in the world.

It would run from the North Slope south through Alaska, then southeastward through Canada to near Calgary, Alberta. There, the pipeline would fork, with two legs carrying gas to existing pipeline connections near San Francisco and Chicago.

Opponents said the goal of tapping Alaska gas reserves is worthy. But the risk should be borne by those who will profit by it, they argued, not by consumers who have no choice in the matter.

Led by Rep. Tom Corcoran, R-Ill., opponents said the financing concessions could burden consumers with billions of dollars in debt with no assurance they will ever receive any benefit.

"If we tried to put this bill through the Baltimore City Council, the proponents of this bill would be run out of town on a rail," said Rep. Parren Mitchell, D-Md.

Corcoran has called the package "potentially the greatest consumer rip-off in the history of the United States" and said public utilities commissions of Illinois, New York, California, Colorado, Iowa and West Virginia had urged Congress to oppose the package.

Corcoran said that when the billing section takes effect, probably in 1987, consumers in 42 states could end up paying $72 to more than $150 a year for gas they are not receiving. The pipeline's supporters say, however, that the potential cost was more like $11 to $18 a year, and even that was unlikely.

The House leadership argued for the package, saying that with all its faults, it was the only way to get the pipeline without spending government money.

And the potential energy rewards may be enormous, they said. Proven reserves on the North Slope total 26 trillion cubic feet. Geologists say 100 trillion cubic feet or more may yet be awaiting discovery.

"Sometimes I'm amazed at how short our memories can be," said House Democratic Leader Jim Wright of Texas, citing the energy shortages of the past. "We said we were going to do whatever was necessary to make America energy independent. Where has that resolve gone?"

Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., chairman of the House Energy Committee, said the arguments against the package had been thoroughly explored by his panel and found to be "compelling — but not sufficiently compelling."

Rep. Phil Sharp, D-Ind., chairman of the Energy Committee's subcommittee on fossil fuels, said he concluded "that the flaws and risks of the waivers do not outweigh the almost certain result of their rejection — that is, failure to build the pipeline and bring Alaska gas to the consumers."

Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz., chairman of the House Interior Committee, reminded congressmen that the United States has made a firm commitment to Canada to support the pipeline. As a result, Canada already has completed part of its section.

Church Honors Pugh Family

Mr. and Mrs. George L. Pugh were honored at a surprise appreciation party held at the Greenville Church of God fellowship hall given by church members.

Recognition was given for the achievements made by the Pugh family over the past several years for the church, members of the church and community. The opening devotion was given by the Rev. A.S. Yorkman, church pastor.

Pugh is a Greenville councilman-elect. Mayor-elect Perry R. Cox and his wife participated in presenting highlights in Pugh's life. Other speakers included members of the Pugh family, the pastor and various members of the church. Pugh was given an engraved plaque by Yorkman.

The refreshment table was covered with a white linen cloth and candelabrum centerpiece of daisies. Cake was served by Janet McLawhorn and Della Evans poured punch. Mrs. Magalene Waters also assisted. The closing devotion was given by Melvin Boyd.

Food Service Panel Named

The Pitt County-Greenville City Schools Food Service Association chapter has elected Margaret Barnhill president for the coming year.

Mrs. Barnhill has worked in school food services for the past 28 years. She now works at South Greenville School cafeteria.

MARGARET BARNHILL

Other officers are Nellie Dunn, president-elect; Elsie Wynne, secretary; and Betsy Mills, treasurer.

The group held its Christmas meeting Monday at Parker's Barbecue. There were 101 county and city school food service employees present. Special guests were County Schools Supt. Ott Alford, County Schools Associate Supt. Thomas Craft and Mrs. Craft, and City Schools Associate Supt. Robert Stewart and Mrs. Stewart.

Williamston Officials Sworn

WILLIAMSTON — Robert Cowen has been sworn in for a fourth consecutive term as mayor of Williamston. At a ceremony held Monday night, Cowen, four incumbent town commissioners and a new commissioner took the oath of office.

Commissioner William Honeyblue, also beginning a fourth term, was unanimously voted mayor pro tem. Other incumbents returning are John Swain, Grey Griffin and George Griffin. The newcomer to the board is Jerry Manning, a Williamston native and a retired officer of the Chicago Police Department.

Prior to the swearing in ceremony, the old board acted on authorizing the Williamston Housing Authority to sell a substandard lot to Mr. and Mrs. Joe Purvis. Authority was also given for the sale of five pieces of used machinery owned by the town.

Computer Club Being Planned

A new club is being formed for people interested in computers, especially microcomputers. The East Carolina Microcomputer Users Group will represent people interested in all types of microcomputers rather than representing a single manufacturer.

The organizational meeting will be held at 7 p.m. Thursday in Room 218 of Ragsdale Hall on the East Carolina University campus — just off Fifth Street at Harding. People from the university, faculty and students, as well as people in Greenville in surrounding areas are invited by the sponsors to attend.

Members will be able to look at different equipment, evaluate software packages and share software written by members or in the public domain.

For further information on the club, contact Rick Athey at 756-8793 during evening hours.

No Saturday Paper

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — The publisher of The Charlotte News and the Charlotte Observer said Tuesday that the Saturday edition of The News will be discontinued during the first quarter of 1982.

Rolfe Neill said the cutback was due to operating losses on the News. Both The News and the Observer are owned by Knight-Ridder Newspapers Inc.

"There have been continuing operating losses on The News," Neill said in a front-page statement in Tuesday's editions of The News. "We believe we can do best by our commitment to an editorially independent afternoon newspaper if we concentrate our staff and resources on five days instead of six."

Neill said most of the features and special editions would be shifted into expanded Friday editions. He said The News also would add other features during the rest of the week.

Neill cited continuing problems that have plagued the nation's afternoon newspapers in recent years. Several large afternoon newspapers, including the Washington Star, have had to shut down because of losses.

attended a surplus vehicle and equipment auction on Nov. 28. The equipment, which included seven vehicles, ranging in age from 1968 to 1973 models, as well as other items, sold for a total of $5,415.

Carl Abbe, supervisor of billing for the commission, was recognized by the board. Abbe is retiring Dec. 31 with 40 years service.

Abbe began his service with the commission in 1941 as a switchboard operator at the old generating plant at $60 per month. He later transferred to the Stores Department and the cashier section before joining the billing department as a billing clerk. He has been supervisor of billing since 1962.

In 1941 when Abbe began his employment, the commission had 5,500 accounts and was billing 11.83 million kilowatt-hours, while today, there are some 27,000 accounts billing some 594.55 kilowatt-hours.

Creation-Science Said Absurd

By BILL SIMMONS
Associated Press Writer
LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — The creation-science which Arkansas law says should be taught alongside evolution in its public schools is as absurd as the theory that the Earth is flat, according to a geologist.

G. Brent Dalrymple of the U.S. Geological Survey was one of four witnesses called Tuesday by American Civil Liberties Union lawyers as they attacked the state law as an unconstitutional establishment of religion.

Dalrymple, who was in charge of analysis of moon rocks from several Apollo missions, said there were errors in creationist writings about the Earth's magnetic field decay, the sun's diameter, the cooling of the Earth and the accumulation of various materials in the ocean.

"I put that in the same category as the flat-earth theory and the theory that the sun goes around the Earth," Dalrymple said of creation-science. "It is a completely absurd hypothesis."

The Arkansas law, scheduled to take effect next fall, says if the schools teach evolution they must teach creation-science, a theory which says the universe was suddenly created from nothing no more than 6,000 years ago, and that men and apes developed separately.

The theory of evolution states the Earth is several billion years old and that men and apes evolved from a common ancestor.

The state says creation-science is scientific and evolution is at least as religious as the creation view. The ACLU says evolution is the only scientifically valid view.

State Sen. James Holsted of North Little Rock, who sponsored the creation law, testified Tuesday he believes in a literal interpretation of the Bible, that fundamentalists are the law's most ardent supporters, and that the law favors a literalistic interpretation of the Book of Genesis.

"I'm not going to stand before the (state) Senate and try to pass something I don't believe in," Holsted testified to U.S. District Judge William Overton.

Holsted said the First Amendment prohibition against laws that establish religion is not violated because the law bans religious writings and "doesn't mention any particular god."

The ACLU lawsuit was filed for 23 plaintiffs, including a dozen clergymen. The ACLU says the Balanced Treatment for Creation-Science and Evolution-Science Act is a move by fundamentalists to force their literal interpretation of Genesis into the schools.

The ACLU also has filed suit against a similar law in Louisiana.

The ACLU's other two witnesses Tuesday included a philosophy professor, who said creationist writings are dishonest and illogical, and a geneticist who said creation theory isn't science.

Geneticist Francisco Ayala of the University of California at Davis said he has demonstrated evolution with a two-year study of 25 generations of fruit flies. Some of the things that creationist probability figures say are impossible can be reproduced in a laboratory, he said.

The creation-science law is dangerous because it pretends only two alternatives exist and misrepresents the theory of evolution, Ayala added.

A history and philosophy professor, Michael Ruse of the University of Guelph, Ontario, said creationists quote evolutionists out of context to allege disagreement over whether evolution happened.

"That strikes me as a rather sleazy practice," Ruse said. Scientists disagree only as to how evolution happened, he said.

Ruse, author of the book "Darwinism Defended," called creation-science "the thin edge of a very large wedge" that could lead to Bible-based pressures against women, homosexuals and races.

Jail Penalty Is Set Aside

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Entertainer Freddy Fender had a 60-day jail term set aside and a new hearing scheduled on allegations he violated a court order in a divorce squabble he contends is "killing the goose with the golden egg."

An arrest warrant was issued for the 43-year-old singer — whose real name is Baldemar Huerta — after he failed to appear at a Nov. 24 hearing. Fender, who surrendered to authorities Tuesday, said he was on tour in Florida and California last month and was not notified about the hearing.

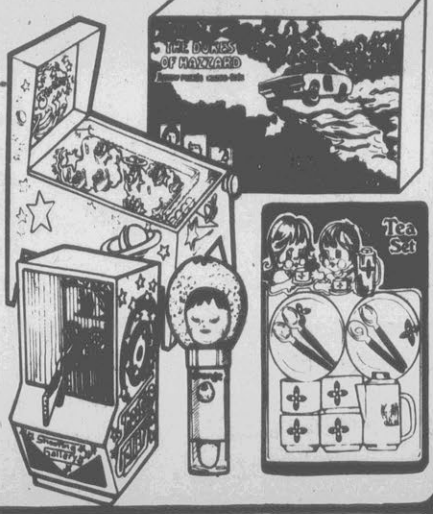

State District Judge Jack Blackmon set aside the jail sentence Tuesday and scheduled a Dec. 21 hearing on allegations by Fender's estranged wife, Evangelina Huerta, that the singer violated terms of a peace bond and missed child support payments totaling $1,300.

She alleges he violated the terms of the court order June 16 by showing up drunk at her home and refusing to leave.

"People think I'm in jail already and I've had three cancellations, which will cost me at least $20,000. Promoters are scared. People get the wrong idea and put me down at the bottom of the list of entertainers so she (Mrs. Huerta) is killing the goose with the golden egg."

Canadian Constitution Going To London Today

OTTAWA (AP) — Canada's request to take control of its constitution was hand-carried to London today after the Senate approved the compromise reform plan.

Two hours after Parliament's upper house voted 59-23 Tuesday night, large parchment copies of the resolution were presented to Governor General Ed Schreyer in a brief ceremony at his official residence.

"I accept for transmission to the Queen these historic documents," Schreyer told more than 100 guests before turning the leather-covered documents over to his secretary, Esmond Butler.

The dignitaries broke into a chorus of "O Canada," the national anthem, just as the Senate had a few hours earlier and the House of Commons did when it passed the resolution Dec. 2.

Butler and Justice Minister Jean Chretien boarded a late-night flight to London where Chretien was to meet with government and opposition politicians to explain the contents of the resolution calling for severance of Britain's last colonial ties to Canada.

Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher has indicated the legislation to amend the British North America Act of 1867, the Canadian constitution, and "patriate" it to Canada could receive first reading in the British Parliament by Christmas and final passage in February.

The new constitution would then be proclaimed in Canada, although some sections would not take effect for two to three years.

Senate approval of the resolution, guaranteed by the overwhelming Liberal majority in the upper chamber, came minutes after a last-ditch Progressive Conservative bid to make the proposed bill of rights more acceptable to Quebec, the lone holdout to the federal-provincial agreement on constitutional changes reached Nov. 5.

Opposition Leader Jacques Flynn pressed for modification of the guarantee of minority language rights and a provision allowing a province to withdraw from a federally-funded program and still collect the funds. Such compensation now is limited to cultural or educational matters.

Meanwhile, in Quebec the National Assembly adopted a bill authorizing the provincial government to challenge the new constitution in the Supreme Court of Canada. An official of the provincial Justice Department said proceedings probably would be initiated today in the Quebec Court of Appeal in Montreal.

St. Francis of Assisi

Poor, kind and simple, St. Francis epitomizes much of what is best in the Christian tradition. Catholics and non-Catholics alike revere the man who was a friend to the birds of the air and the beasts of the field. Supposedly swallows, rabbits, even wolves gathered around him and heeded his words. This love of animals is alien to much of Western thought, which regards animals as inferior to man — to be exploited at whim. Yet Hinduism, many folk religions and even Christ's sermons treat animals as special creatures to be loved and respected. Perhaps the best way to celebrate St. Francis' 800th birthday this year, is by adopting his spirit of charity towards all creatures.

Panel Considering Military Divorces

WASHINGTON (AP) — Military personnel should be required to share their pensions and medical benefits with their former spouses, says the president of a women's rights group.

Carol B. Grossman, of the Women's Equity Action League, told a House hearing Tuesday that a former spouse should be entitled to a pro-rata share of a military pension in a marriage lasting 10 years or more.

But officials of the Retired Officers Association, Fleet Reserve Association, Air Force Sergeants Association, Veterans of Foreign Wars and National Association of Uniformed Services said Congress should stay out of divorce courts.

"Only a proper court can weigh the characteristics of the many facets in a divorce settlement and make an equitable and reasoned settlement," said Fleet Reserve spokesman Robert W. Nolan.

The House Armed Services personnel subcommittee is considering several bills that would extend benefits to former spouses. The proposals have gained popularity since a June 26 Supreme Court ruling that military retirement pay is not community property and need not be divided equally in divorce proceedings in the eight community property states.

Grossman said the decision "put military wives into a subordinate class; although they have responsibilities at least equal to those of civilian wives, they do not have equal rights at least as far as benefits are concerned."

But Henry S. Palou, a lobbyist for the retired officers, said that "there are adequate laws in existence to provide alimony and child support with provision for garnishment of federal pay when the service person fails to comply."

ONE OF THREE GREENVILLE GROUPS ... to be performing during the 18th century Christmas celebrations at Tryon Palace in New Bern is the J. H. Rose High School

Advanced Ensemble, which will perform Dec. 15. The other two groups are the Bath Family, Saturday, and the Vocal Arts Ensemble, Dec. 17. Tickets are available in advance.

Local Groups To Sing At The Tyron Palace

Three Greenville groups will perform at Christmas celebrations scheduled at New Bern's historic Tryon Palace during the holiday season.

The first of the three groups to perform at the palace will be Dr. and Mrs. Charles Bath and their daughters in a program of violin and piano music. The Baths will perform Saturday.

The J. H. Rose High School Advanced Ensemble will perform Dec. 15 in the palace's West Colonnade. Members of the ensemble are Carolyn Hooks, Gwen Mitchell, Cathy Harper, Joanne Perkins, Alesia Clifton, Veronica Jenkins, Venetia Pruitt, Cynthia Minch, Angela Lindsey, Gloria Adams, Monique Kilpatrick, Cheryl Baker, Betty Vines and Juanita Gray.

On Dec. 17, the Vocal Arts Ensemble of Greenville will perform in the Great Stairs Hall of the palace. Members of this group are vocalists Clyde Hiss, Patricia Hiss, and Susan Jones. Barbara Caspar is pianist for the group. The Ensemble specializes in vocal duets, trios and quartets representing all periods of music.

Each performance will be given between 5 p.m. and 8 p.m.

REQUESTS APPROVED
Police Chief Glenn Cannon announced the approval of two requests for solicitation permits in Greenville.

Cannon said the requests were submitted by the Greenville Host Lions Club to conduct a merchant solicitation during December to sell advertisements for a club bulletin; and by G. R. Whitfield School Band Boosters Club to conduct a sidewalk and merchant solicitation Dec. 4-18 to raise money for band uniforms, travel expenses, and additional band instruments.

Admission to the decorated rooms at Tryon Palace for the 18th century Christmas programs, which include a tour of five houses, music and refreshment, is $4 for adults and $1 for students. Children under 6 will be admitted free.

For advance Candlelight Tour tickets or group reservation information, interested people may write: Tryon Palace, Box 1007, New Bern, N. C., 28560, or call 638-5109.

PLEDGES TALLIED
The North Carolina School of the Arts Foundation has received $845,000 in gifts and pledges, just $5,000 short of the $850,000 the school needs to be eligible for the $50,000 grant from the Kresge Foundation for NCSA's "Vision in Motion" project.

The Kresge grant will insure completion of the VIM project, which includes a complete theater renovation.

Seek Save Custer Battlefield

By DENNIS E. CURRAN
Associated Press Writer
CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) — A group of amateur historians is trying to raise $1 million to buy and set aside Crow Indian lands that lie between the two battlefields where Custer and his 7th Cavalry fell at the Battle of the Little Bighorn.

"There's a lot of important lands we're trying to preserve for future generations, for future historians," says Robert Lawrence, a Fall River, Mass., psychologist and secretary-treasurer of Little Bighorn Associates Inc.

The unprotected sections of the historic battlefields are in the rolling hills of southern Montana where Lt. Col. George Armstrong Custer was killed in an encounter with thousands of Sioux and Cheyenne Indians on June 24, 1876.

The National Park Service administers the grassy land where Custer made his last stand, as well as the battlefield about five miles to the south where Maj. Marcus Reno and Capt. Frederick Benteen survived the battle with the Sioux and Cheyenne. But the 800 acres in between, including Medicine Tail Coulee, where Custer probably first encountered the Indians, is owned by individual Crows.

It is used for grazing, but the Crows want to sell and the Park Service said an Interior Department moratorium on land purchases means the government can't buy it. Battlefield enthusiasts fear it will be sold to a developer.

Jim Court, superintendent of the Custer Battlefield National Monument about 60 miles east of Billings, said he approached Little Bighorn Associates about the project and they agreed in late October to try to raise the money.

Little Bighorn Associates, which is tax-exempt and based at Lawrence's home in Adamsville, R.I., already was raising money to replace 100 markers at the battlefield when it agreed to Court's request. The group has about 450 members in 50 states, England, Australia and Norway.

Lawrence hopes to tap not only history buffs but charitable organizations, foundations and corporations eager to reap tax benefits available for contributions made before the year is out.

Donations would be presented to the Interior Department, which could buy the land from the individual Indians and turn it over to the Crow tribe, subject to provisos it be left in its natural state forever.

The arrangement, Court said, would be strictly "willing buyer, willing seller. We want to make sure we don't have any sore losers, so to speak ... we're trying to preserve a battlefield where the Indians won a victory and Custer was immortalized."

"Most people don't realize there was more than one battle," said Neil Mangum, chief historian at the battlefield. Custer split his troops and sent Reno and Benteen to attack the south end of the village while he apparently attacked from the north.

'Following Orders' In Dumping Of Acid

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — A New Hanover District Court Judge ruled Tuesday that a truck driver who dumped hazardous wastes into the Cape Fear River should only receive light punishment because the driver was merely following orders.

Edwin M. Davis, a truck driver for Northeast Chemical Co., was convicted of one charge of dumping acid Nov. 7 and fined $25 and court costs.

But Judge John M. Walker found the vice president of Northeast Chemical Co. guilty Tuesday of six misdemeanor charges of dumping sulfuric acid into the river, and fined Allie C. Palmer $1,000.

The fine was for only one of the six charges. Walker deferred sentence on five other charges of acid dumpings in August and September, conditional on Palmer's good behavior for two years.

The maximum criminal penalty for dumping hazardous substances is a $10,000 fine and six months imprisonment for each charge.

Noting that Davis "is a working man," Walker gave him minimal punishment. Although Davis was caught dumping acid directly into the river, the judge said "It went the same place it would have gone if he had put it where he was supposed to."

Palmer's testimony, Walker said, showed company drivers were supposed to put waste acid into a cooling tower that drains directly into the river.

The company also routinely dumped water used to wash acid from its trucks into the river, Palmer said.

Small Firms Say Uncle Sam Is Too Slow In Paying

By GENE GRABOWSKI
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) —
Complaining the federal government is a deadbeat, thousands of small companies, from a Virginia coleslaw supplier to a Connecticut dry cleaning firm, say they will refuse future federal contracts unless there is a law guaranteeing prompt payment.

"It's the high interest rates," said Kenton Pattie, of the Slow Pay Coalition, a lobbying association fighting for a prompt payment measure. "Already, some of the companies we represent have quit doing business with the government and many are reducing their involvement with federal contracts."

In response to mounting criticism and intense lobbying from the business community, Congress appears ready to approve a bill designed to reduce tardy payments to private vendors. The Senate, which approved a speedy payment bill last year, is expected to OK a similar measure before the Christmas recess. Meanwhile, 150 House members are sponsoring a bill moving through the Government Operations Committee that would force an agency to pay interest for each day it is late paying a bill.

Such legislation would delight businessmen who pay in advance for goods they deliver to government agencies, only to be left holding the bag for up to six months while Uncle Sam studies the bill.

"The government wastes a lot of time examining invoices. I once followed a vendor's bill to the Environmental Protection Agency through eight different offices before it was approved," said Pattie.

The proposed prompt payment bill would compel federal agencies to pay interest on all bills unpaid within 30 days of the due date. The interest would be compiled daily based on current short-term interest rates.

In addition, interest payments would be drawn from existing agency budgets rather than general revenues to prevent national budget increases.

"The government is still doing its billing and invoicing on paper, relying on numerous people to check bills while almost all private businesses are using computers," Pattie said in an interview.

Spokesmen at the General Services Administration and the Pentagon say the examination process is necessary to prevent fraud. Careful, deliberate methods insure against wasting millions of federal tax dollars, they insist.

The General Accounting Office found in 1979 that 39 percent of the government's bills are paid an average of 74 days late. The GAO study also said that 92 percent of the government contractors are small businesses that can be ruined by lengthy disruptions in cash flow.

Take the case of the Virginia food supplier who delivered tons of creamy coleslaw, worth $90,000, to military bases at Norfolk and Newport News. The purveyor paid cash for the necessary produce, spices and mayonnaise at markets along the East coast and trucked his slaw on time to the government installations.

The government paid the angry and desperate supplier 90 days late and only after the intervention of Rep. Joseph McDade, ranking Republican on the House Small Business Committee.

Then there is the recent case of a Connecticut dry cleaner who quickly cleaned and repaired Navy uniforms under a strict contract but had to doggedly pursue the government for five months to collect his $10,000 fee.

Many of the late payment cases amount to relatively minor irritations. When the Justice Department received $500 worth of dictating equipment for its Kansas City office in March 1980, it waited until March 1981 to pay the bill.

"Some of the delays can ruin small businesses because they don't have access to large capital markets or large cash reserves," said McDade, R-Pa., a backer of the prompt payment bill proposed by Government Operations Chairman Jack Brooks.

"More and more of these businessmen are forced to turn to Congress for an end to the routine practice of late payment," McDade added.

Paying late isn't the government's only sin, say vendors who complain to congressmen. Sometimes federal agencies audaciously subtract an early payment discount from their overdue bills as if they were settling accounts before final due dates.

"The government tells a businessman to drop dead if he asks for an interest penalty, yet it tries to take advantage of something it's not entitled to," Pattie told Brooks' committee last week.

"Certainly, every American citizen faces a monthly gauntlet of interest penalties on credit cards, utility bills and car loans. It's become the American way, except where the U.S. government is late."

Fuel Supplies Are An Implied Threat

WASHINGTON (AP) —
The Soviet Union apparently is using an implied threat to withhold fuel supplies from Poland as a weapon to keep the Poles from moving too far out of line, according to U.S. intelligence sources.

Soviet officials have agreed to supply specified amounts of fuel to Poland for only a three-month period rather than the one-year normally covered by such deals between the two countries, the sources said.

The result is to leave a chilly economic sword dangling over the Poles during a winter in which the Kremlin is concerned about liberalizing tendencies in Poland, the sources said.

Assistant Defense Secretary Richard N. Perle alluded to the development in recent testimony to Congress in which he spoke of "the manipulation of energy supplies to Poland as the temperature drops ... and Polish industry must plan its winter production."

He said the Soviets "are bringing political pressure to bear on Poland through a combination of political, economic, and military means."

Although Perle did not elaborate, the intelligence sources, who asked not to be identified, said he was referring to the Soviet gambit on future fuel shipments to the Poles.

Poland fields produce only a little more than 10 percent of the 17 million tons of crude oil the country needs each year. The Warsaw government recently increased gasoline prices from $2.64 a gallon to $4.03 a gallon.

U.S. analysts say Poland's economic problems are compounded by a severe drop in coal output. Their figures indicate Poland's coal mines produced about 20 percent less than normal in the first half of this year.

These analysts suggest the Poles probably will suffer a 2,200-megawatt shortage of power during the winter period of peak demand.

ComputerCrime Now Profiled

BRIARCLIFF MANOR, N.Y. (AP) — The typical computer criminal is a 35-year-old male, employed by a company for three years, earns an income in the top 40 percent bracket and lives with his wife and two children in a respectable neighborhood, according to an international security firm.

The computer criminal, who might be found at any rung of the corporate hierarchy, steals the equivalent of 120 percent of his salary.

The profile was compiled by Burns International Security Services, Inc., which also reports that computer crime accounts for an estimated $100 million in corporate balance-sheet losses annually.

Sadat's Faded Popularity Explains Little Grief

By STEVEN K. HINDY
Associated Press Writer
CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Two months after the assassination of President Anwar Sadat, a clearer picture is emerging of why the Egyptian people failed to mourn him as his admirers in the West and Israel did.

Many Egyptians in random interviews in recent weeks cited reasons similar to those given immediately after the Oct. 6 assassination: the shock of the assassination itself and a fear that it was part of a larger plot.

But they also said — privately with anonymity — that the popularity of the man eulogized as "the hero of war and peace" had dropped sharply in the six months before the assassination, mainly because of his domestic policies. The fact that he brought peace to Egypt after 30 years of off-on war with Israel is, however, fondly remembered, and the courage and daring it needed is highly praised.

Yet, though deeply grieved by his death, they admit a new leader makes them hopeful the economic disparity between the classes may be narrowed.

Some Egyptians said they believe Sadat had become increasingly isolated from the masses. His crackdown on political opponents last September and his bitter attacks on his critics were unpopular with many.

Others complained that peace had not brought the prosperity he promised, and his angry personal attacks on Arab critics of his peace with Israel had needlessly alienated Egypt's former benefactors.

Sadat began bitterly assailing domestic political opponents by name in a speech last May 14. His mass arrests of mainstream political critics and religious extremists in September — on the blanket charge of contributing to Moslem-Christian strife — was seen by many as an end to his "experiment with democracy."

"Sadat alienated virtually every class of society in the past year," said an Egyptian university professor. "The intellectuals didn't like the crackdown. The Moslem fundamentalists didn't like the repression he used against them. The Copts (Christians) resented his action against their pope. The new rich class didn't like the new controls on currency. The lot of the poor is not getting any better."

Well-informed Egyptian sources also said Sadat increasingly surrounded himself with advisers who never contradicted him. They say he may never have known the extent of opposition to his moves. The advisers had "their antenna directed to him and not to the society, as should have been," one Socialist said.

Sadat's three to four-hour speeches, directed at "my sons and daughters," irritated many Egyptians because they seldom addressed the problems of the domestic economy, instead focusing mainly on foreign affairs.

An Egyptian journalist said his wife laughed when Sadat cited food prices in his speeches, since the prices invariably were wrong.

"He kept telling us things are getting better, but we all know we are being paid the same and prices are increasing," said an Egyptian office worker. "Next year, he always said next year."

Sadat also lived royally, moving from one to another of Egypt's 12 lavish guest houses. He was renovating King Farouk's once-lavish Montazah Palace on the shore of the Mediterranean in Alexandria.

"He was always making fun of the 'effendis,'" said the journalist, referring to the Arabic word for "snobs." "But he seemed blind to the fact that he himself was living the life of an 'effendi', the biggest 'effendi'."

Some Egyptians, mainly businessmen, expressed the belief that the conservative Persian Gulf states would have contributed to the Arab boycott of Egypt over the Israeli peace treaty to the extent they did if Sadat had not viciously attacked their weak points.

Confiscated By Ethiopia

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — The World Council of Churches and the Lutheran World Federation have voiced dismay at the Ethiopian government's abrupt confiscation of headquarters of the Ethiopian Evangelical Church Mekane Jesus.

The denomination, a Lutheran body of more than 500,000 members, is the largest Protestant group in Ethiopia and had headquarters in an eight-story building in the center of the capital at Addis Ababa.

No explanation was given for the recent confiscation. Fourteen other denominational buildings housing various church operations have been seized since Ethiopia's socialist regime came to power in a 1974 revolution.

The denomination's general secretary, the Rev. Gyuina Tumsa, was arrested in 1979, and church colleagues have not seen him since, although he is presumed to be in prison, as is his wife.

The church's news service editor, Duro Burje, was reported arrested while trying to take pictures of the government's takeover of church headquarters.

About the same time, church reports said the government confiscated a center of the Emmanuel Baptist Church.

SYMPOSIUM TO FOCUS ON WOMEN AND WORK
NEW YORK (AP) — Representatives from women's organizations, corporations, universities and social-service agencies will attend a one-day symposium on "Women, Work and Family," to be held at Hunter College here Feb. 4, 1982.

The Association of Junior Leagues Inc. is sponsoring the conference as part of its 60th anniversary observance.

CLOWNIN' — It's been a long hard season behind the grease paint, oversized suspenders and elephant-like shoes for Choo-Choo the clown. "Three hours of clownin' is like 10 hours of regular work," says Gerry Herdegen of Grand Rapids (Mich.) before dozing. In a sort of family act, Gerry, his wife, three sons and a niece, known collectively as "The Herdegen Clowns" are busy doing their stuff to put across the Christmas spirit. (AP Laserphoto)

"He was crazy to do this," said a businessman in Alexandria. "He forced them to anger. There was no reason to attack them the way he did, or to alienate the Soviet Union for that matter."

Some of those interviewed said Israel's policies toward the lands it took from the Arabs in 1967, its air attacks on Iraq's nuclear reactor and Lebanon greatly undercut Sadat's credibility at home and in the Arab world.

Egyptian opponents of Sadat's peace initiative had claimed from the start that the peace treaty would free the Israelis to attack its militant neighbors.

One of these opponents, former Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy, who resigned over Sadat's Nov. 19, 1977, trip to Jerusalem, said in an interview: "Little by little the people, while overwhelmingly in favor of peace, realized that it was not a fair peace, but a one-sided peace tilted to Israel."

CAROLINA TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH COMPANY
NOTICE OF HEARING
DOCKET NO. P-7, SUB 662
BEFORE THE NORTH CAROLINA UTILITIES COMMISSION

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Company, Tarboro, North Carolina, has made application to the North Carolina Utilities Commission for authority to adjust its rates and charges for telephone service to its North Carolina subscribers. Carolina proposes in its application to increase its gross annual revenues approximately $47.2 million. The proposed changes in rates, charges and regulations would affect virtually all local services provided by the Applicant.

LOCAL EXCHANGE SERVICE

The present and proposed line rates for residence and business 1-party service are shown below along with the amounts of the requested increases. The rates for 2- and 4-party service are not shown but the percentage increases proposed for these customers are approximately the same as for 1-party customers. An additional rate would apply for each telephone set provided by Carolina Telephone Company. Only the line rate would apply if the customer chooses to furnish his own telephone set.

OTHER CHANGES

The application also includes changes in rates for PBX trunks, key trunks and other services such as

Service Connection (Installation)	Station Line and Tie Line
Special Equipment and Service Arrangements	Mileage Services
Directory Listings	Miscellaneous and Auxiliary Equipment and Services
Telephone Answering Service Facilities	Interface Equipment
Foreign Central Office Service	Local Private Line Service
Key, Private Branch Exchange and Centrex Systems

In addition, the Company proposes to increase the charge for a local coin telephone call from 20¢ to 25¢.

The Company is also proposing new tariff regulations which would permit periodic adjustments outside of a general rate case to exchange rate groups, service connection charges and the Tier B portion of two-tier payment plans. Any rate adjustments filed under this tariff proposal would require notice to subscribers and be subject to hearings and approval by the Commission.

FURTHER DETAILS

The details of the proposed adjustments can be obtained at the business offices of Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Company or at the office of the Chief Clerk of the Commission, Dobbs Building, 430 North Salisbury Street, Raleigh, North Carolina, where a copy of the proposed application is available for review by any interested person. THE COMMISSION WILL CONSIDER ADDITIONAL OR ALTERNATIVE RATE PROPOSALS WHICH WERE NOT INCLUDED IN THE ORIGINAL APPLICATIONS AND MAY ORDER RATE INCREASES OR DECREASES WHICH DIFFER FROM THOSE PROPOSED BY THE COMPANY. Upon request the Commission will place copies of all trial documents in centrally located public libraries. The material may be copied without prohibition at the library.

HEARING SCHEDULE

The Commission has suspended the proposed rate adjustments, has set the application for investigation and hearing and has required Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Company to comply with all provisions of law and Commission Rules in support of its application to show that the proposed increases are just and reasonable.

Hearings on the matter have been scheduled for the following dates and locations:

- January 26, 1982, at 7:00 p.m. — Knob Creek Recreation Center, 200 Ward Street, Elizabeth City, North Carolina.
- January 27, 1982, at 11:00 a.m. — Auditorium, Administration Building, 200 St. Patrick Street, Tarboro, North Carolina.
- January 27, 1982, at 7:30 p.m. — Courtroom, City Hall, Corner of Pollock and Craven Streets, New Bern, North Carolina.

- January 28, 1982, at 7:00 p.m. — City Council Room, City Hall, Corner of Green and Bow Streets, Fayetteville, North Carolina.
- February 2, 1982, at 10:00 a.m. — Commission Hearing Room, Dobbs Building, 430 North Salisbury Street, Raleigh, North Carolina.

The hearings at Elizabeth City, Tarboro, New Bern, and Fayetteville, are for the purpose of receiving the testimony of public witnesses. The hearings will resume in Raleigh on February 2, 1982, with any further testimony of public witnesses and testimony and cross-examination of the Applicant, the Public Staff and intervenors.

COMMENTS, APPEARANCES, INTERVENTION

The Commission requires that Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Company inform its customers of the following procedures by which comments regarding the rate application can be made part of the record of the case upon which the Commission must base its decision. Persons desiring to intervene in the matter as formal parties of record should file a motion under North Carolina Utilities Commission Rules R1-6 and R1-19. Persons desiring to present testimony for the record should appear at the public hearing. Persons desiring to send written statements to the Commission should submit their statements prior to the hearing and should include any information which those persons wish to be considered by the Commission in its investigation of the matter.

The contents of letters and petitions will be received in the official file as statements of position. Specific facts, however, will be considered on the basis of testimony presented at the public hearing. Interventions or statements should be addressed to the Chief Clerk, North Carolina Utilities Commission, P.O. Box 991, Raleigh, North Carolina 27602.

The Public Staff of the Utilities Commission through the Executive Director is required by statute to represent the using and consuming public in proceedings before the Commission. Statements to the Executive Director should

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today, steadying after the decline of the past two sessions.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, down 10.94 in the last two trading days, recovered 2.86 to 884.61 in the first half hour today.

But losers held a 4-3 edge on gainers in the early rally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The government reported this morning that producer prices of finished goods rose 0.5 percent in November — equivalent to a 6.0 percent annual rate before compounding.

The figure came in about even with, or slightly higher than, advance estimates on Wall Street.

But it nevertheless was taken as further positive evidence of a lessening of inflationary expectations.

Time Inc. led the active list in early trading, down 1/4 at 35. A 195,000-share block changed hands at that price in the over-the-counter market.

On Tuesday the Dow Jones industrial average dropped 5.24 to 881.75.

Declines outnumbered advances by more than a 2-1 ratio on the NYSE.

Big Board volume totaled 45.14 million shares, against 45.72 million in the previous session.

The NYSE's composite index fell .29 to 72.36.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off 3.99 at 321.99.

Juveniles Arrested

Two 15-year-old juveniles have been arrested by Pitt County deputies and charged in connection with two recent residential break-ins that resulted in the theft of over $8,800 in money and personal property.

Sheriff Ralph Tyson said the juveniles were charged with a Nov. 23 break-in at the residence of Dr. Bryon Burlingham and a Dec. 2 break-in at the home of Kevin O'Brian. Both residences are located on the Old River Road.

Sheriff Tyson said money and property valued at $7,883 were taken in the Burlingham incident, including a number shotguns and rifles, various gold and silver jewelry items, and $250 in silver dollars. Approximately $1,800 worth of property was recovered, he said.

Some $1,175 in money and other property, including jewelry, a camera, and a suitcase, were reported stolen in the O'Brian robbery. Sheriff Tyson said all of the missing items have been recovered.

He said the juveniles, who reside in the Homestead Estates area, have been referred to juvenile court for hearings.

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Students who received federal loans to attend the School of Medicine at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill have a better loan repayment rate than the national average, the school says.

As of June 30, 479 of the medical school's former students were in the process of repaying funds borrowed under the Health Professions Student Loan Program.

Mills was charged with four counts of assault with a deadly weapon on an officer (two on Lee and two on Bowen), failing to stop for a blue light and siren and careless and reckless driving in connection with the incident.

Records in the Pitt County Clerk of Court's office show that the charges against Mills were dismissed by the district attorney's office Monday.

Notice to Telephone Customers

WE ARE PROPOSING CHANGES IN THE RATES FOR INTERSTATE SERVICES.

The American Telephone and Telegraph Company has filed with the Federal Communications Commission a plan, to be effective March 3, 1982, to restructure and increase rates for interstate Message Telecommunications Service (MTS) and to increase rates for most interstate Wide Area Telecommunications Service (WATS) and Private Line Services.

HERE ARE THE PROPOSED CHANGES

Message Telecommunications Service (MTS):

- Establish a 1-minute minimum charge for all calls. (At present there is a 1-minute minimum for customer-dialed calls and a 3-minute minimum for operator-assisted calls.) Rates for this initial minute will vary by mileage and will range from 32¢ (1-10 miles) to 79¢ (4251-5750 miles).

- Increase the evening discount (5-11 p.m., Sunday-Friday) from 35% to 40%. The night and weekend discount (11 p.m.-8 a.m., all day Saturday, and Sunday until 5 p.m.) will still be 60%.

- Create a new class of service: the customer-dialed "Calling Card" (formerly called "Telephone Credit Card"). Currently billed the same as operator station-to-station calls, the new "Calling Card" service will now have a lower rate (see Operator Service Charges).

- Apply time-of-day discounts to the initial 1-minute period for operator-handled calls. (Currently, discounts apply only to the additional minutes on such calls.)

- Establish a single usage rate schedule for all types of calls. Initial and additional minute charges vary by distance.

- Increase rates for most calls. Initial minute rates will range from 32¢ to 79¢ (depending on distance) with increases ranging from zero to 12¢. Additional minute rates will range from 16¢ to 53¢, with changes varying from a 2¢ reduction to a 7¢ increase over current rates.

- Separate operator service charges from basic usage rates. There will be a uniform charge for operator service (regardless of the rate period) based on the type of call.

Operator Service Charges*
Customer-dialed Calling Card	$.50
Operator Station-to-Station (1-10 miles)	.60
(11-22 miles)	1.00
(23-55 miles)	1.40
(56-5750 miles)	1.85
Operator Person-to-Person (regardless of distance)	3.00

*Evening and night/weekend discounts apply to all usage rates, but do not apply to Operator Service Charges.

The appropriate operator service charge will be added to the usage rate and is the same regardless of the length of conversation.

- Simplify rates for conference calls by introducing a uniform service charge of $3.00 for each conference leg, to cover connection and operator handling, with usage billed on each leg from the originating point at normal usage rates.

- Discontinue the present 35% discount now provided between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. on the Friday or Monday designated as an additional holiday when Christmas, New Year's Day, or Independence Day fall on a Saturday or Sunday.

Wide Area Telecommunications Service (WATS):

- Increase most WATS rates 4.1%.

Private Line Services:

- Increase most Private Line Service rates 1.6%.

Rate Period Specific Billing

On December 31, 1981, AT&T will file with the Federal Communications Commission a change in the way MTS and WATS messages are billed when a call originates during one rate period and continues into another period. Under the proposed change, to be effective in early April, 1982, usage within each rate period will be recorded and billed at the rates applicable to that period. Currently such calls are billed at the rates in effect at the time the call originates.

UCLA Basketball Program Placed On Probation

LOS ANGELES (AP) — UCLA's talented basketball team, considered among the nation's best before this season began, won't get a chance to prove it in the postseason national collegiate championship tournament.

That's because the NCAA, citing numerous violations, slapped a two-year probation on the Bruins' basketball program Tuesday. It also ordered the university to return its second-place trophy from the 1980 tournament.

UCLA, which won 10 national basketball championships under Coach John Wooden from 1964 through 1975, also will be barred from next spring's NCAA tournament. The Bruins, however, will be eligible for the 1983 tournament.

There had been speculation that UCLA might be able to play in the National Invitation Tournament next March, but the NCAA ruling also wiped out that possibility.

UCLA Athletic Director Bob Fischer wouldn't comment on the NCAA's action.

"Tomorrow we have a press conference. I have nothing to say until that time," said Fischer Tuesday night.

It had been announced earlier that a press conference would be held today, starting at 10 a.m., PST.

Coach Larry Farmer was unavailable for comment, but a member of the UCLA athletic department said he was certain that nobody involved with the school would say anything until the press conference.

Wooden also was unavailable for comment. The Associated Press was told that he was out of town and wouldn't return until sometime today.

In addition to the probation, the university has been told to "disassociate one representative of its athletic interests from participating in any recruiting activities on behalf of the university in the future," the NCAA said in a prepared news release.

The NCAA said UCLA already has taken such action against a second representative.

The earliest basketball violation cited by the NCAA occurred in 1977, two years after Wooden retired and was replaced by Gene Bartow. Bartow coached for two years, then was replaced by Gary Cunningham, who coached the next two seasons. Larry Brown was the Bruin coach for two years after that and Farmer was named head coach prior to this season.

The violations include allowing basketball players to sell game tickets in excess of their face value, free use of cars, cash payments to basketball players, lodging and meals for recruits' relatives, and providing reduced apartment rentals, the NCAA said.

"The violations primarily involved two enrolled student-athletes and two prospective student-athletes," the NCAA said. In accordance with policy, the identities of athletes, boosters and university employees involved in the investigation were not disclosed.

"Certain violations in this case affected the eligibility of two student-athletes at the time they participated in the 1980 NCAA Division I Basketball Championship," the NCAA said. "Therefore, the university's performance records in the championship will be deleted, the team's second-place finish in the final standings will be vacated and the university will be required to return the team's trophy and the ineligible student-athletes' awards to the Association."

"NCAA investigators did develop information concerning serious violations of NCAA regulations occurring in the university's intercollegiate men's basketball program that involved two representatives of the university's athletic interests," Charles Alan Wright, chairman of the Infractions Committee, said in the news release. "Based primarily on those findings, the committee believed that a significant penalty in basketball was appropriate and that institutional action should be taken against the involved representatives."

UCLA announced Tuesday, prior to the NCAA's announcement, that senior forward Tony Anderson was being reinstated to the basketball team as the result of a hearing before the NCAA Subcommittee on Eligibility appeals. Anderson had been declared ineligible by the school for intercollegiate competition on Nov. 27.

It was reported earlier that a Bruins' alumnus allegedly subsidized an apartment for Anderson, a reserve on this season's club.

The Bruins, No. 17 in this week's AP Top Twenty poll, hold national records with 10 NCAA championships and 60 NCAA tournament victories. They lost to Louisville 59-54 in the 1980 championship game.

Under Farmer, the current team is off to a slow start this season, splitting its first four games.

The NCAA announcement also said earlier penalties imposed by the Pacific-10 Conference on the UCLA football program had been accepted by the NCAA Infractions Committee and no additional sanctions will be applied.

The conference penalty was related to violations of academic standards and forced UCLA to forfeit six 1977 football victories and barred the Bruins from bowl games following the 1980 season.

The UCLA football team will face Michigan in the Bluebonnet Bowl at the Houston Astrodome on Dec. 31.

Cavs May Face Duke Without Hurt Sampson

By The Associated Press
Duke will have its hands full when it visits Virginia tonight for an ACC basketball clash, but it appears that All-America center Ralph Sampson will be one less headache for the Blue Devils.

Sampson was listed as "very doubtful" for tonight's game by Cavalier head coach Terry Holland after the 7-4 junior reinjured a finger Monday during practice. The finger was broken during the Virginia-George Mason game Nov. 29.

"It got hit a few times in practice and it hurt," said Sampson, who insisted the injury was not serious. "I'm going to give it another try and see how it feels, and I'm going to see how it feels Wednesday."

"I could play protecting the right hand and use my left hand, but I couldn't catch the ball as well or do things like that. I'm frustrated and I wanted to get out there and play."

Holland, however, said the long-range interests of the team suggest that Sampson should sit out rather than risk serious injury. "My gut reaction is that he should not be playing, and unless I change my mind before Wednesday, he will not play," Holland said.

Regardless of whether Sampson is judged fit for action, Virginia will be favored to take the opening conference game for both squads.

In other action for tonight, N.C. State hosts Appalachian

State and Maryland is home to Towson State.

Duke suffered a 75-70 loss to Appalachian State Saturday on the Blue Devils' home floor, and coach Mike Krzyzewski says his team must develop consistency.

"If you're not that talented, it's imperative that you play hard all the time," he said. "I'm asking (my players) to do something that is hard to do."

N.C. State coach Jim

Valvano says he's concerned about having to face an Appalachian squad that's riding high after its upset of Duke.

Freddy Cherry, playing his best game of the year, sparked a third period rally from six points down, and William Battle took over in the final quarter to pace Rose High School to a 57-48 victory over North Pitt last night.

The win gained revenge for a 53-41 licking handed the Rampants by the Panthers on the North Pitt court last Friday night.

Earlier, Rose's girls won their first game of the year also, taking a 54-51 overtime win over the Pant-HERS.

"Rose played a great deal better tonight," North Pitt coach Cobby Deans said afterwards of the difference between the two meetings. "And we didn't play as well."

"We were outbounded and outthrustled."

Rose High School's Jim Brewington felt that rebounding was the big difference. "We also made some shots we are supposed to make tonight," he added.

Brewington praised Cherry, who scored four of eight points as Rose charged from six down to two ahead before North Pitt countered with a single free throw. He also singled out the play of Tyrone Andrews, who went into the game early, after starter Tim Harris picked up two fouls in the first minute of the game.

"We played better team ball than we've been playing."

North Pitt grabbed the initial lead and moved out by three quickly as Rose found itself prone to foul in the early going. In the first period, North Pitt made only three field goals, but connected on 11 of 15 at the line to lead by as many as five points, 14-9. Rose tied it up only twice, at 2-2 and 9-9 before Vince Parker made one free throw, and Dennis Bradley followed with two more and a driving layup with 3:01 showing for the five-point spread.

Rose, however, outscored the Panthers, 6-3, the rest of the way and cut the lead to two, 17-15, at the end of the period.

The Rampants, displaying better board power in the second period, also outshot the Panthers all night long. After the Panthers hit their first shot of the second period, they missed seven straight and Rose took advantage of that to charge into a 25-19 lead, scoring on five consecutive shots, all by different players. It was Barry Smith's jumper that tied it up, and Battle's drive that put Rose up for the first time, 21-19. The two exchanged points the rest of the quarter after Rose led, 25-19, until Toby Crandall hit on a fast break with 25 seconds left to tie it at 29-all.

While Rose was missing two layups and suffering four turnovers in the early going of the third period, Bradley, Parker and Greg Hines each scored baskets to put the Panthers into the lead again, 35-29. But again, the cold shooting returned as the Panthers missed their next five and Rose charged back. Cherry hit a jumper and threw back a missed shot around a baseline jumper by Andrews to put the Rampants back ahead, 37-35, and they never trailed again.

In the final five minutes of the third period, North Pitt got only a single free throw from Richard Heller, while Rose scored 12 points, moving out to a 41-36 lead.

A slam dunk by Battle opened the final period, giving Rose its biggest lead until the closing minutes, 43-36. North Pitt fought back within three, but was impatient and costly turnovers and missed shots hurt them down the stretch.

Finally, up by three, 49-46 with just over a minute to go, the Rampants blitzed the Panthers down to the wire, hitting eight in a row to go out by 11, 57-46 before a last-second shot by Parker cut it to the final margin. Battle scored five of the final eight, including his second dunk of the night.

Of the Panther impatience, Deans felt that the team lacked leadership in its guard play (Please turn to page 23)

Playoff Picture In AFC Still A Puzzle

By The Associated Press
The Oakland Raiders cannot win their division title. That is about the simplest part of the American Football Conference playoff puzzle.

By beating the Pittsburgh Steelers Monday night, the Raiders remained alive in the playoff chase. They would have to settle for a wild-card berth, but that should not be too much of a hardship. Oakland won the Super Bowl last season after starting the playoffs as a wild-card entry.

The Steelers' loss helped just about everyone but themselves in the AFC scramble. With a victory, Pittsburgh would have raised its record to 9-5 and would have trailed the first-place Cincinnati Bengals by one game in the AFC Central Division, setting up a showdown for the division lead next Sunday at Pittsburgh.

But the 30-27 defeat to Oakland:

•Enabled the Bengals, 10-4, to remain two games ahead of Pittsburgh. One more victory by Cincinnati (or one more loss by Pittsburgh) will give the Bengals the division title, their first since 1973, and their first playoff berth since their wild-card season of 1975.

•Left the Steelers with an 8-6 record, tied in the conference standings with the Kansas City Chiefs and San Diego Chargers. They are one game behind the 9-5 Denver Broncos in the AFC West; one-half game behind the 8-5-1 New York Jets; one game behind the 9-5 Buffalo Bills, and 1½ games behind the 9-4-1 Miami Dolphins in the AFC East.

•Kept alive the Raiders' slender hopes of reaching the playoffs. Oakland is 7-7.

Here is a look at what each AFC team has to do (and what help each needs) to win a division title (remaining games in parentheses):

Oakland (Chicago: at San Diego) could finish tied at 9-7 with any of the other three teams but would lose out either on head-to-head competition (having been swept by both Denver and Kansas City) or by virtue of a poorer division record, no better than 3-5 against the Chargers' no worse than 5-3.

Miami (at Kansas City; Buffalo) clinches by sweeping its final two or winning one, while the Jets and Bills lose one apiece.

Buffalo (at New England; at Miami) clinches by sweeping its final two games.

New York Jets (at Cleveland; Green Bay) clinch if they win their remaining games and Miami and Buffalo lose one apiece. If they win their remaining two, they're assured of at least a wild-card spot.

Cincinnati (at Pittsburgh; at Atlanta) clinches with a victory of its own or a loss by the Steelers.

Pittsburgh (Cincinnati; at Houston) clinches only if it wins its two games and the Bengals lose their two. The teams would finish tied at 10-6 and the Steelers would get the title based on a better division record, 5-1 to Cincinnati's 3-3.

Denver (Seattle; at Chicago) clinches by sweeping its final two games.

Kansas City (Miami; at Minnesota) clinches by sweeping its two games, while Denver and San Diego lose one apiece. If Kansas City and Denver finish tied at 10-6, the Chiefs win the title based on a better conference record, 8-4.

San Diego (at Tampa Bay; Oakland) clinches if it wins its two games and Denver loses one. If San Diego and Denver finish tied at 10-6, the Chargers get the title based on a better division record.

NFC Playoff Race Could Clear Sunday

By The Associated Press
There are only three teams mathematically eliminated thus far from the National Football Conference playoff race. By the time Sunday's schedule is completed, the field could be narrowed considerably.

Both the Dallas Cowboys and the Tampa Bay Buccaneers can clinch division titles in the NFC with victories Sunday. They would join San Francisco as division champions in the conference, the 49ers having locked up the West title Nov. 29.

The Cowboys, 11-3 and already assured of at least a wild-card spot, are two games ahead of Philadelphia, whom they beat 17-14 Nov. 1. On Sunday, they face the visiting Eagles, who can still win the East title.

The three other teams in the division—the New York Giants, St. Louis Cardinals (each 7-7) and Washington Redskins (6-8)—are only in wild-card contention.

In the NFC Central, Tampa Bay is 8-6 and one game ahead of the Minnesota Vikings. Detroit Lions and Green Bay Packers.

In the West, Atlanta is 7-7 and clinging to wild-card hopes.

Last weekend's action eliminated only one team from playoff contention—the Los Angeles Rams. They lost to the Giants and fell to 5-9, out of the playoffs for the first time since 1972. That also was the last time they finished below .500.

The Rams joined the Chicago Bears and the New Orleans Saints, each 4-10, as the only NFC teams out of the running.

Here is a look at what each NFC team has to do (and what help each needs) to win a division title (remaining games in parentheses):

Dallas (Philadelphia; at New York Giants) clinches with a victory or a loss by Philadelphia.

Philadelphia (at Dallas; St. Louis) clinches by winning its remaining games, while Dallas loses its two. The Eagles and Cowboys would end up tied at 11-5 overall and 5-3 in division games and the Eagles would finish with a better conference record, 8-4 to Dallas' 7-5.

A-G Whips North Lenoir

LITTLEFIELD — Thomas Anderson scored 16 points and Bernard Cannon added 14 to lead Ayden-Grifton past North Lenoir, 64-42, Tuesday night in a nonconference basketball game.

Earlier, in the girls' game, North Lenoir put three players in double figures as the Lady Hawks demolished Ayden-Grifton, 69-27.

Ayden-Grifton, now 2-2 this season, led, 12-11, after the opening period of the boys game.

In the second quarter, the Chargers, using a pressing defense to force a number of turnovers which they converted into easy baskets, outscored the Hawks 20 to 5 to take a 32-16 halftime lead.

"Our guards dominated theirs," Ayden-Grifton coach Bob Murphrey said. "We forced a lot of turnovers and got some easy baskets off them. I thought our defense played real well."

Ayden-Grifton outscored the Hawks 18 to 12 in the third period to go up 50-28 before coasting home with the 18-point victory.

North Lenoir was led by Maurice Thorbes with 14 points.

In the girls' game, North

Lenoir jumped out to a 23-3 first-period lead and then upped it to 41-11 halftime advantage. North Lenoir outscored Ayden-Grifton 14 to 6 and 14 to 9 in the final two periods.

Susan Smith led North Lenoir with 15 points followed by Mary Harris with 12 and Debra Pope with 10. Ayden-Grifton, now 0-4, was led by Anita McCotter with 10 points.

Ayden-Grifton travels to D.H. Conley Friday.

Odom: College Game 'Insane'

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

"College basketball is insane, and about everyone in it is insane, too," East Carolina head basketball coach Dave Odom jokingly told the Greenville Sports Club yesterday.

Odom read a list of scores of improbable upsets which occurred last year and already in this year's short season. "This is fun for the fans, a great time for the media and headaches for the players and coaches. You've always heard the statement, and I never thought it was true, but I'm beginning to wonder: anyone can be beaten on a given night."

"Basketball is in a great flux," Odom said. "The balance of power is shifting. But the Dean Smiths, the Joe Halls and the Bobby Knights are showing that they know more than the rest of us. You won't find them scheduling (some of the lesser known teams that have pulled upsets). They play teams that are of the like caliber. Then, if they lose, the fans understand."

"But part of East Carolina's problem is that we are in the in-between situation, so no matter which way we go we have the chance to get burned. If we play Missouri and get beaten by 30, people say what kind of team have you got anyway?, or if we play Baptist and lose, people jump off the apple cart—they can't believe it."

Odom said that East Carolina has to try and schedule to its level and try to move up one step at a time. "You can try to jump a couple of steps, but most of those who do end up falling back down somewhere along the line."

The Pirate coach reviewed the season so far and said that he was fairly satisfied with the 2-2 record. "It's not really particularly pleasant, but it's not real disappointing either. Possible we should be 3-1, but by and large we've played well. There have been spots when we haven't played well."

The coach pointed out that he felt that the game was won "in the painted area"—the part of the court that represents the foul lane and the area about two steps away.

He noted that ECU keeps records of how it and its opponent does in these areas. "Generally, the team that controls that area is the one that wins. These are stats that are not generally available to the public and the media." He pointed out that ECU controlled these areas to a large extent in its two wins, but failed to do so against Missouri and Canisius.

"There are major college basketball teams and there are the rest of us," he said. "Missouri (ECU's first round opponent in the Show-Me Classic) is a major basketball power. They're in great shape in everything in their program."

Wyoming (the other Show-Me finalist) is also a major team. But East Carolina and Canisius are among the others."

Odom noted that the Pirates played well for about 30 minutes against Missouri, but got into foul trouble, losing its whole front line early in the second half. "At that point, we were only eight points down, so you can see what happened after that." The coach said he didn't bench those players because he felt they had to be in the game for the Pirates to have any chance to win.

Against Canisius, he said the Pirates didn't play well in the first half, and that cost them that game.

Odom said he is excited about the prospect of ECU playing in the ECAC-South Conference this year.

"I say this with no apology to anyone: the ECAC-South may be the most balanced and best league from top to bottom on the East Coast. Now that may not set well with the ACC fans, but that league isn't that well balanced."

"Look at who's in the league: James Madison is undefeated, Old Dominion is undefeated, William & Mary is undefeated and no one has come close to them yet; Richmond has lost but once, by two points at the buzzer to Virginia Tech; George Mason lost twice to ACC teams and I thought they acquitted themselves well in both games; Navy has only been beaten once, by three points."

"And you'll get to see all of them here, with the exception of Navy," he pointed out.

As far as recruiting for next year is concerned, Odom said the 1981-82 crop of high school players is not as good as last year's, but that there are some good ones around. He prophesied that the 1982-83 crop might be the best in years.

"We expect to bring in about three players. We're looking for a big man, a swing man and a point guard."

The next meeting of the club will be held on January 12, when former official Lou Ballo will be the speaker.

Former Champ Battles Berbick Friday

Is Ali Near Road's End?

NASSAU, Bahamas (AP) — "I love people," said Muhammad Ali, leaning back in his limousine, a smile on his face.

The man, who often called himself "the people's champion," had just signed autographs and talked and joked with people at a fish market.

The brief public appearance Tuesday was to allow film to be shot for part of the pre-fight telecast Friday night when Ali will return to the ring in a scheduled 10-round bout against Trevor Berbick on the Caribbean island.

Ali obviously enjoyed the by-play with the people. There's no question he remains a popular figure who has lost none of his winning ways with people.

But has the former three-time world heavyweight champion lost his winning ways in the ring? Will Friday night finally be the last boxing hurrah for this fighting legend who will be 40 Jan. 17 and who was embarrassed in a bid for the World Boxing Council heavyweight title against Larry Holmes Oct. 2, 1980?

Ali trimmed down from the 250s to 217½ pounds for the Holmes fight, calling it his first miracle. The second would be a victory over Holmes. Ali didn't answer the bell for the 11th round.

"I didn't win a round against Holmes," Ali said Friday. "Trying to make a certain weight got me in trouble with Holmes."

Ali probably will weight about 230 pounds for Berbick, a fight which he doesn't view as his last even if he wins.

"I should beat Berbick easy just moving and sticking," said Ali, who was a tired, slow, old fighter against Holmes.

"Then I'll beat Weaver, and then I'll probably quit. To beat Weaver at age 40 and be champion a fourth time and then retire would be all right."

Mike Weaver is recognized as champion by the World Boxing Association.

"I think the WBA has more recognition than the WBC because that's the one I had—the WBA," said Ali, who held the WBA title, which he regained from Leon Spinks before retiring in 1979.

Ali will take a 56-4 record into Friday night's fight at the 17,000-seat Queen Elizabeth Sports Centre, which will be seen live in the United States on pay cable and subscriber television.

The 27-year-old Berbick, training in Freeport, Bahamas, has an 18-2-1 record. One of the victories by the Jamaica native who lives in Nova Scotia was a ninth-round knockout of former WBA champion John Tate in 1980. One of the losses came on a 15-round decision in a title bid against Holmes last April 11 at Las Vegas.

"I'm giving the man a chance to prove himself," Berbick once said of Ali, who in his heyday claimed he gave many fighters chances to prove themselves.

Also featured on the card will be Thomas Hearns, who was beaten by Sugar Ray Leonard for the undisputed welterweight title, and unbeaten heavyweight contender Greg Page, who comes from Ali's hometown of Louisville, Ky.

In his first fight since the loss to Leonard, Hearns will debut as a middleweight against Ernie Singletary. Page will fight a 12-rounder against Scott LeDoux.

In another 10-round heavyweight match, Earnie Shavers will meet Jeff Sims. Shavers lost a decision to Ali in a title match in 1977.

Bullet Boys, Girls Beaten

BELHAVEN — Belhaven handed Jamesville a double defeat in Tobacco Belt Conference basketball last night. The boys gained a 55-34 win, while the girls came away with a 45-40 victory.

In the girls' contest, Belhaven inched into a 12-9 lead after one period, then extended that to 22-16 at the half. Belhaven continued to pull away in the third period, building a 31-24 lead. The Lady Bullets managed a 16-14 rally in the final quarter.

T. Hudson led Belhaven's scoring with 14 points, while Kim Floyd had 15 and Kelly Hardison had 13 for Jamesville.

In the boys' game, things got no better for Jamesville. Belhaven built a 17-14 lead after one period then outshot the Bullets, 12-4, in the second quarter. That allowed Belhaven to take a 29-18 lead into halftime.

In the third period, the Bullets were again outthit, 13-8, as the Belhaven lead climbed to 42-26. Belhaven finished off Jamesville with another 13-8 final period advantage.

H. Burroughs led the Belhaven scoring with 22 points. Keith Waters led Jamesville with 10.

The Bullets are now 1-2 with a 2-3 overall record. The Lady Bullets are 2-1 in league play and 2-3 overall. Jamesville plays host to Chocowinity on Friday.

FARMVILLE — Jerry Straythorne and Charles Phillips sparked Wilson Hunt High School to an 82-58 victory over Farmville Central last night. Farmville Central's girls, however, won their first game of the season, downing Hunt, 48-41.

Farmville stayed close to Hunt in the boys' game until late in the first period when the Warriors broke open a 10-10 deadlock and shot out to a 20-10 lead by the end of the frame. Hunt began to run with the ball and Farmville was just unable to keep pace with them after that.

Straythorne, who scored 24 points, posted 11 of them in the second period as the Warriors again outthit the Jaguars, 21-12. That gave Hunt a 41-22 lead to carry into intermission.

Both teams scored 18 points in the third period, but in the final frame, Phillips, with 11 of his 23 points, sparked Hunt to a 23-18 margin that led to the final 24-point bulge.

Anthony Brown, Hunt's 6-7 senior, added ten points and pulled away 17 rebounds. Hunt shot 54 percent from the floor for the game, including a hot 61 percent in the first half. Farmville could only manage 39 percent for the evening.

The Jaguar scoring was led by Bobby Caraway with 14, with Andrew Edwards added ten.

In the girls' game, Hunt eased ahead, 13-10 after one period, but Farmville came back with a 12-8 margin to take a slim 22-21 halftime lead. In the third period, Farmville pulled away, 13-8, to run its lead to 35-29. The Jaguars then held off Hunt, 13-12, in the final quarter to post the win.

Rose Lang led Farmville with 17 points, while Stephanie Newton added 13. Angela Anthony paced Hunt with 15, with Rhonda Bynum adding 13.

Farmville's boys are now 2-2 on the year, while the girls climb to 1-3. Hunt's boys are to Eastern Carolina Conference rival Greene Central on Friday.

W. Craven Downs Rams

VANCEBORO — West Craven High School gained its second win of the year over Greene Central last night, taking a 70-61 decision. The Greene Central girls downed the Lady Eagles, 62-30.

Greene Central, which improved its shooting percentage, but still hit only a cool 38 percent, trailed at the end of the first period, 11-9. Helped along by control of the boards in the second frame, West Craven outthit the Rams, 16-12, to establish a 27-21 halftime lead.

In the third period, the Eagles continued to pull away, 19-13, and took a 46-34 lead into the last quarter. In that, the Rams managed a 27-24 advantage, but were too far back.

Wayne Becton scored 22 points and Linwood Harris had 21 to lead West Craven while Norman Becton added 12 and Ronnie Bellamy hit 11. Greene Central was led by Roderick Lane with 19, John Ray with 13 and Theodore Edwards with 12.

"They beat us on the free throw line," Ram coach Lewis Godwin said, noting the 20-of-29 performance by the Eagles as compared to the 13-of-24 shooting of the Rams. "They're big and tough, but we played our best game. We outrebounded them 30-23, despite the fact that they killed us on the boards in the second quarter."

Greene Central's girls rolled out to a 14-6 lead in the first quarter of their game and were never in trouble. After an 18-6 margin in the second period boosted the lead to 32-12 at the half, the Lady Rams allowed West Craven a 14-12 comeback in the third period. That left GC up, 44-26 going into the final period. In that, Greene Central outshot the Lady Eagles, 18-4, to wrap up the win.

Letha Taylor led Greene Central with 13 points, while Sharon Suggs added 12. No one had double figure scoring for West Craven.

Greene Central's boys are now 1-4 on the year, while the girls are 4-1. West Craven's boys are 5-0.

Second-Ranked Wildcats Thrash No. 10 Indiana

By The Associated Press
Tell a college basketball team it will be without its 7-foot center for at least the first month of the season, including a game against an archrival who happens to be the defending national champion, and most squads likely would start to think about what might have been.

Not Kentucky. With towering junior Sam Bowie out with a broken leg, the second-ranked Wildcats are still unbeaten, including a 85-69 thrashing of 10th-ranked Indiana, last season's NCAA title-holder, Tuesday night.

A 29-11 spurt led to guards Dirk Minnifield and Jim Master helped the Wildcats build a 47-25 halftime lead.

"The first half was absolutely super," said Kentucky Coach Joe B. Hall. "It was about as good a half as we could have played."

Minnifield scored 12 of his 22 points and Master 11 of his 17 during the first-half run.

"Master and Minnifield," said Bobby Knight, whose team fell to 2-1. "They shot well and their guard play was great. We just got beaten badly in the first half by a team that's a hell of a lot better than we are."

In other games Tuesday involving teams in The Associated Press Top Twenty, it was No. 4 Wichita State 94, Long Beach State 71; No. 6 Iowa 79, Iowa State 68; No. 8 Minnesota 80, Drake 55; No. 13 Missouri 78, Illinois 68 in overtime; No. 14 Tulsa 93, Oklahoma State 82, and No. 18 Southwest Louisiana 91, Louisiana College 59.

The Top Ten
After No. 2 Kentucky pulled away in the first half at Lexington, Indiana closed in during the second half as, in Hall's words, "we showed a lack of a killer instinct and we just went native."

Kentucky also was helped by two quick technical fouls against Knight, who argued with an official over what he believed was an offensive goaltending violation by Kentucky. Master hit three of the four technical free throws to give Kentucky a 25-13 lead.

Ted Kitchel led No. 10 Indiana with 17 points and Randy Wittman added 14.

Fourth-ranked Wichita State had a tough time shaking Long Beach State, trailing 49-48 early in the second half before scoring 22 of the next 30 points. Cliff Livingston scored 25 points and grabbed 19 rebounds, leading the undefeated Shockers to their fourth victory. Guard Tony Martin and forward Antoine Carr added 19 and 16 points, respectively, for the Shockers.

Dino Gregory paced Long Beach State, 2-2, with 25 points and eight rebounds.

Freshman Michael Payne scored 17 points and Bob Hansen added 16 as sixth-ranked Iowa defeated Iowa State.

The Hawkeyes, 4-0, led by 11 at the half and by as many as 15 before Iowa State closed to within seven points, 61-54, with 8:10 remaining. But Kevin Boyle then hit a short jumper and fed Steve Carfino for a 17-footer to increase the lead to 65-54 with 6:01 left, and the Hawkeyes hit 12 of 13 free throws down the stretch.

"Iowa State made a good run at us in the second half. They should thank us," said Iowa Coach Lute Olson. "We used very poor judgment when we were up by 15 points. We were impatient. Once we got patience, we made them play defense for a while."

Freshman Barry Stevens had 18 points for Iowa State, 2-2.

Twenty points from guard Darryl Mitchell and 17 from 7-foot-3 Randy Breuer led eighth-ranked Minnesota past Drake.

The Gophers, 4-0, held a 14-4 lead after the first 6½ minutes, maintained that advantage through the first half and pulled away after halftime, with Breuer going to the bench midway through the second half.

Drake, 1-3, was paced by 13 points by Stephon Butler and 12 by Leon Van Hook.

The Second Ten
Ricky Frazier scored 28 points, including a basket with 2:22 left in overtime to put 13th-ranked Missouri ahead for good in its game against Illinois.

John Sundvold added 24 points for Missouri, now 4-0. Craig Tucker, whose three points in the final seconds of regulation time sent the game into overtime, led the Illini with 23 points.

David Brown, Paul Pressey and Greg Stewart, Tulsa's big front line, combined for 67 points as the 14th-ranked Hurricane defeated Oklahoma State, which lost for the first time in five starts.

Southwestern Louisiana improved its record to 6-0 by crushing Louisiana College behind the scoring of Alfred Turner, Dion Brown, Graylin Warner and Dan Gay.

Unranked Teams
Elsewhere Tuesday night, Rob Williams scored 28 points in 13 minutes of play to lead the Cougars to a 145-78 victory over Texas Lutheran.

Brigham Young beat Utah State 51-43. Scott Sinek's free throws preserved BYU's third victory against three defeats,

Lady Knights Working Hard

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer

If adhering to the work ethic in practice translates into victories on the court, Greenville Christian first-year coach Gene Lewis is sure his girls should be favored to win the conference title when they open their season Friday night.

"I don't know if we should be the favorite. I don't know that much about the other teams," Lewis said. "But, I do know this: if hard work has anything to do with it we should be the favorite."

"We've been working out since September, working on fundamentals and running our patterns. Now it's just a matter of whether we can execute the offense on Friday."

The Lady Knights open their 1981 season Friday with Falls Road — a team Lewis figures will be among the best in the North Carolina Christian Athletic Conference.

"They will probably be our toughest opponent this year in the conference," Lewis said. "They'll also have played a game, which I think is to their advantage."

"We've tried to get a scrimmage game, but we haven't been able to. So, this will be our first game against an opponent other than ourselves. We'll probably have some first game jitters, but I still think we'll be all right because we worked so hard."

Greenville Christian returns five players — including four starters — from last year's team. The two top returnees are guard Kathy Vernelson, a 5-7 sophomore, and forward Stephanie Brown, a 5-8 junior.

"Vernelson will probably be our high-point producer," Lewis said. "And Brown is a good shooter."

Other starters back are guard Valerie Laney, a 5-7 senior, and forward Brenda Anita Lang (5-8, junior).

"We're deep to eight," Lewis said. "But we've got six girls that this is the first time playing organized basketball."

During the early part of the season, Lewis said his club would run a more patterned, disciplined offensive attack.

"We'll start out pretty conservative before Christmas," Lewis said. "We could run, but from what I've seen in practice we get careless and reckless with the ball when we run."

As for the season itself, Lewis said: "We expect to win three-quarters of our games. I'm going on what we had last year and the teams we are playing."

He is also going on the fact the Lady Knights have worked hard and long in preparing for the season, a fact that will surely be to their favor.

"I noticed last year that the second half of the girls' games was totally different game from the first," Lewis said. "A lot of the girls were not in good condition and it showed in the second half. I think that could be an advantage for us and could help us win some games."

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Wake Forest held Davidson to one field goal for 8½ minutes midway through the first half and, behind Mike Helms' 14 points, rolled to an 82-63 college basketball victory over the Wildcats Tuesday night.

With five players scoring in double figures, the Demon Deacons led by as many as 29 points in running their record to 3-1. Davidson fell to 1-3.

After Helms, freshman Sylvester Charles scored 12 points and Lee Garber, another freshman, added 10.

R. Rapids Bops Trinity

ROANOKE RAPIDS — Roanoke Rapids Christian School rolled to a 51-39 victory over Trinity Christian School of Greenville yesterday. It was the first loss for Trinity.

Both teams pushed through ten first half points, and each added eight in the second quarter for an 18-18 deadlock at the half.

But in the third period, Roanoke Rapids managed to squeeze out into the lead, 33-30, and then they blitzed Trinity, 18-9, in the final period to win going away.

Dunlaw and Gommer each had 14 points to lead Roanoke Rapids. Trinity was paced by John Moran with 14.

Trinity, now 2-1, travels to Ruth's Chapel School of Jasper for its next game on Monday.

Edenton Nips Williamston

WILLIAMSTON — Edenton High School got double figure scoring from three players and squeezed out a 48-44 Northeastern Conference basketball victory over Williamston last night.

Williamston's girls continued to roll along unbeaten in league play with a 42-39 win over the Lady Aces although it took a double overtime to do it.

Williamston's boys fell behind early as the Aces pulled out to a 9-6 lead after one period. The Tigers did stay close, however, as both teams pushed in 11 second quarter points. That left Edenton up, 20-17, at the half.

Williamston again stayed close in the third quarter, outscoring Edenton, 16-14, to trail by only one, 34-33, going into the last period. But in that, Edenton held off the Tigers, 14-11, to gain the win.

Frank Hardy led the Aces with 13 points, while Thomas White and Donelon White each had 10. James Maye led Williamston with 14, while Vincent Washington had 12 and Johnny Speller had 10.

In the girls' game, Edenton took a 9-6 lead after one period, and continued to pull away in the second period, 14-8, holding a 23-14 halftime advantage.

But Williamston rallied in the third period, 14-7, cutting the lead to 30-28. In the final period, Williamston tied it at 35-35, forcing the overtime. Both teams scored two points in the first overtime, but Williamston outthit Edenton, 5-2, in the second to pull out the win.

Theresa Duffy, playing in her first game after missing play with an ankle injury, scored 14 points to lead Williamston. Kathy Blount had 14 and Wanda Liverman had 10 to lead Edenton.

Mattamuskeet Sweeps Bears

BEAR GRASS — Mattamuskeet High School swept a pair of Tobacco Belt basketball games from Bear Grass last night. The Laker boys won their game, 56-41, while the girls took a 45-42 victory.

Mattamuskeet inched ahead, 10-9, in the first period, then eased a little more away for a 24-21 lead at halftime.

The Lakers did their worst damage to the Bears in the third period when they outscored their foe, 18-4. That ran the lead out to 42-25. The Bears managed a 16-14 margin in the final quarter.

Maurice Collins led Mattamuskeet with 18 points, while William Slade added 16 and Ike Gibbs had 11. Ray Biggs led Bear Grass with 10.

In the girls' game, Mattamuskeet took an 8-5 lead after one period. Bear Grass came back with an 10-9 margin in the second frame, cutting the lead to 17-15 at the half.

The Lady Lakers outscored the Bears, 14-13, in the third and held only a 31-28 lead going into the final period. In that, both teams scored 14 points as the Bears were unable to catch up.

Joanne Whitaker led the Lakers with 16 points, while Doris Harris and Lisa Jones each had 13. Angie Mizelle led the Bears with 24 points.

Bear Grass is now 0-3 on the year, while the girls are 1-2. Aurora visits Bear Grass on Friday.

DHC Wrestlers Bounce Rose

HOLLYWOOD — D.H. Conley's Vikings took every match but one and destroyed the Rose High School wrestling team last night, 65-3.

The Vikings lost only at the 132-pound level, where Jay Holly of Rose took a 9-7 decision over Shawn Hardy. Otherwise it was all Conley as the Vikings won two matches by forfeit, one by injury default, and six by pins. One of the remaining three decisions was a superior one.

The win boosted the Conley record to 3-0 on the year, while Rose fell to 0-3.

"We get one of our toughest challenges on Friday," Coach Milt Sherman of Conley said, "when we go down to New Bern. They are ranked in the top 20 and are unbeaten."

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A good day to make some changes and new arrangements that could improve your surroundings. Make plans to put your personal affairs on a more solid foundation.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Take advantage of an opportunity to advance in your line of endeavor and gain more benefits. Be active and cheerful.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You are able to change your surroundings and gain more comfort. Come to a better understanding with a co-worker.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Take time for recreation that will relieve tensions you are under. Avoid group meetings today. Use care in motion.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Take care of routine chores before thinking about recreation. Establish more order around you.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Ideal day to gain the cooperation of allies for any new and practical ideas you may have. Avoid investing too heavily.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You find it much easier now to handle monetary matters intelligently and get good results. Relax tonight.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You can pursue personal aims in a positive way and get good results now. Think more and you need not work so hard.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You are able to garner that information that has been elusive in the past. Take steps to improve health and appearance.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Good day to visit friends you truly like, so plan time for this. Adopt a more logical outlook on life.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Do something that will improve your position in the community. An uplift in career affairs is possible at this time.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Let your influence be felt far and wide and gain added prestige. Do nothing that could harm your reputation.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Study your contracts and agreements and know the best way of handling them in the future. Show that you have poise.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one who can understand the practical phases of any situation, so be sure to give a good religious and ethical foundation early in life for best results. An outstanding sports leader in this chart.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Do not reveal more of your assets than is necessary. You will be surprised how often a touch of confusion can lead your opponents astray.

South was somewhat unhappy that neither opponent doubled his four spade bid. That indicated that he was not running into a bad break in his trump suit, so quite possibly he was taking a phantom sacrifice—if his side could take two spade tricks, four hearts was unlikely to succeed.

West started with the king and ace of hearts. Declarer was not too sanguine at his prospects—he apparently had three red suit losers and a trump, and it looked as if the opponents would have had to lose at least four tricks as well. The only hope was that the defenders would misread the situation. Therefore, it would be fatal to allow either defender to signal to his partner where his strength lay.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip - CHAGRINED BETTOR IS BUSTED BECAUSE WRONG HORSE WON RACE.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: C equals K

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Yuletide Holidays Mean Play, Sleep

By SUSAN RIES
Reflector Staff Writer

The yuletide season is upon us, and to the students of East Carolina University that means plenty of parties and lots of sleep.

"I'll be working and generally relaxing; I'll probably do a little partying," said David Sawyer of Washington.

Robert Mallard's one ambition is to finish exams, get home from school and relax for a while. Dawn Dale, of Hugo N.C., is leaving Dec. 19 for Florida.

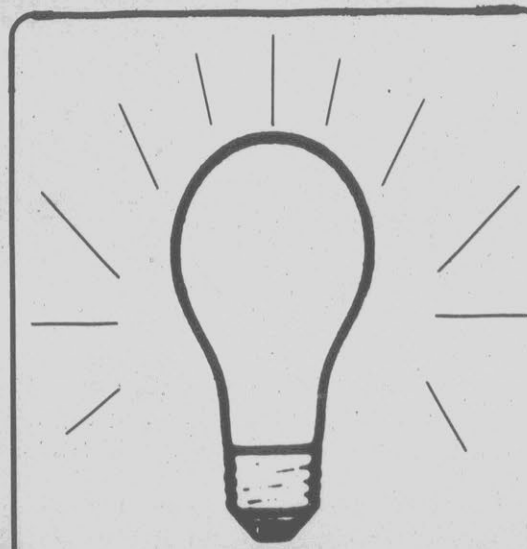

"Me, my mama, and my daddy are giving that to each other as our Christmas presents," Dawn said.

Still, the stay-at-home instinct is high. A student from Peachland said his one Christmas plan was "just to get home."

"I'm going to visit my parents in Whiteville. I'm not going to look for work, I'm going to do a lot of sleeping, a lot of recuperating," said Chad Buffkin, a December graduate of ECU.

"I'll see my folks, maybe go skiing in Wintergreen, mostly get drunk," said Bob Shaut of Raleigh.

One student from Burlington is looking forward to the family reunion his family will be involved in. The event is usually staged by "the older generation. One hundred people will probably show up," he said.

Energy Tip of the Day

Next to your heating and cooling equipment, the water heater is the costliest appliance to operate in your home. Immediate savings can be realized by lowering the water heater thermostats to provide adequate hot water for the family and eliminate needless energy waste.

For further information on determining the proper water heater setting for your family's needs, contact the Greenville Utilities' Energy Office at 752-7166.

Given Voice In Grant Program

WINSTON-SALEM — Employees are being given an increased role in determining where corporate contributions are directed through an expansion of R.J. Reynolds Industries Incorporated's educational matching grant program, the company announced recently.

Under the expanded program, employee contributions up to $10,000 a year to eligible colleges and universities, as well as primary and secondary schools, will be matched by the corporation on a "two-for-one" basis. Previously, the two-for-one matching grants were available for only $100 in employee contributions each year.

"Our company has a long tradition of support for educational institutions," said J. Paul Sticht, chairman of R.J. Reynolds Industries. "By expanding our matching grants program, and through increased employee involvement, we will be improving support to the institutions which have benefited our employees and their families," Sticht said.

In the first 11 months of 1981, more than 1,000 R.J. Reynolds employees participated in the educational matching grants program, contributing almost $350,000. The corporation matched those gifts with contributions of more than $420,000. "With the expanded program, we anticipate increased employee participation," Sticht said, "and the R.J. Reynolds' contributions that result will increase significantly."

Both full-time employees of participating RJR subsidiaries and former employees retired under a company retirement plan are eligible to participate in the plan, Sticht said.

Educational institution qualified to receive the matching grants include graduate or professional schools, colleges, universities, two-year junior or community colleges and pre-college secondary or primary schools that are accredited by a regional or professional accrediting association or a state department of education.

TRIPLE THE DIFFERENCE

Kroger Sav-on promises to pay you Triple the Difference in cash if you can do your normal weekly food shopping for less at any other supermarket in town. Kroger Sav-on can make this promise because we have thousands of low Cost Cutter prices throughout our stores. Just purchase not less than 25 nor more than 50 items* totalling $20 or more at Kroger Sav-on. (Excluding items prohibited by law and meat items). Compare these prices with any other supermarket in town. If the total amount for the identical items is less at any other supermarket in town this week, we'll Triple the Difference in cash. Bring your Kroger Sav-on register tape plus the other store's prices to your Kroger Sav-on store. See for yourself who really has low prices.

*Only one of each item purchased may be used in the comparison.

Mexico's New-Rich Do Their Shopping With Cash

By MACK SISK
Associated Press Writer
SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Wealthy Mexican tourists — enriched by that country's oil boom — are coming in increasing numbers to San Antonio to buy condominiums, luxury cars, high-priced clothing and jewelry.

"They sometimes buy on credit, but mostly it's done for cash, and I mean real cash — not checks or anything like that," said Tom Wallendorf, general sales manager at a Chevrolet dealership.

Wallendorf said he has seen customers from Mexico buy $13,000 Chevrolets and pay the tab in cash, all in $20 or $100 bills.

This city, visited by more than 500,000 Mexican tourists last year, is second only to Los Angeles as their favorite U.S. shopping center. It benefits from Mexican trade by at least $750 million a year, including $350 million in exports and $400 million in tourism, says Morrison Woods of the local Chamber of Commerce.

Joe Condello, advertising and marketing director of North Star Mall, a recently renovated center of luxury stores, estimates 20 percent of the mall's $175 million in sales last year were made to Mexicans.

Customers from Mexico fly or drive in, particularly on weekends and holidays, to stock up on clothing and other items not readily available, or more expensive, in Mexico, Condello said.

He said most of the customers are from Mexico City and Monterrey, which have an increasing number of young professionals involved in the burgeoning Mexican oil industry.

"They pay even better than on our side of the border, and all of a sudden you have this nouveau rich over there," Condello said. "It's more of the building of a good upper middle class."

He said many Mexican tourists are carrying empty suitcases, so they can fill them with new clothing, wear their new jewelry and not have to pay any duties on the American products when they return to Mexico.

Real estate agent Pat Ehler said many rich Mexicans purchase $150,000 to $200,000 condominiums in posh Mission Trace and hire interior decorators to furnish them.

"They like the security of Mission Trace because most of them go out and buy all new furniture, all new everything," she said. "It's incredible. They come with briefcases full of cash. A few of them have gotten loans. Savings and loans generally want a higher down payment from Mexican nationals and usually higher interest rates because they are part-time homes."

Bill Sawyer, general merchandising manager for Dianne Flack Interiors, said an important part of his company's business is done with Mexican customers buying part-time residences in San Antonio.

"We've had clients who are buying for retirement, some for vacation homes," Sawyer said.

Chamber of Commerce figures indicate that in 1980, every Mexican tourist spent $812.50 here, more than any other group of foreign tourists, Woods said.

In all, Woods said, 3.2 million Mexicans came to the United States last year and spent $2.6 billion.

Los Angeles leads the nation by hosting 30 percent of the Mexican tourists, San Antonio is second with 16 percent, followed by Houston, 15 percent, and San Francisco, 10 percent, according to the U.S. Travel Service, Department of Commerce.

Fred Lepick, president of Frost National Bank, the city's largest financial institution, confirmed "a large business with Mexico and the Mexican people," but he declined to release figures.

"I think Mexico is a great deal more prosperous than it was two or three years ago," Lepick said.

Sawyer said fear of a major devaluation of the peso, which has floated since a major devaluation in 1976, was one reason Mexicans are spending, investing, and depositing more money in the United States.

Local hotels and businesses have also started advertising south of the border to attract Mexicans to San Antonio. One local magazine, the Spanish-language Ventana USA, circulates 235,000 copies inside El Heraldo, a national Mexican newspaper, and El Norte de Monterrey, another newspaper, is full of advertising to lure Mexicans to U.S. stores.

"There is a rising middle class in Mexico coming here spending a lot of money and there wasn't one before," said Julia Rosenfeld, the magazine's managing editor. "Four years ago there were the very rich and the very poor and that isn't true now."

Production there can't keep up with the demand so Mexicans are having to come across the border to buy.

Aging Bridges Become A Risk

WASHINGTON (AP) — Between San Francisco's Golden Gate Bridge and New York's Brooklyn Bridge, more than 500,000 spans cross rivers, valleys and highways to link America.

But nearly 40 percent of these bridges have deteriorated to the point where they're classified as too old or too weak to adequately handle today's traffic, according to The Road Information Program.

The Washington-based highway research agency points out that none of the nation's 223,000 "structurally deficient" or "functionally obsolete" bridges is in danger of immediate collapse. On-going inspection by state and local officials results in the closing of dangerously deteriorated bridges when they become severe safety hazards.

"The problem is old age," says TRIP executive director Donald S. Kight. "The average life of a bridge is about 50 years, and a large part of America's bridge network is nearing the end of its service life. Some 75 percent of the nation's bridges were built before 1935; while about 25,000 bridges still in use today were built before 1900."

How Tar Heel Senators, Representatives Voted

Roll Call Report Service
WASHINGTON — Here's how area senators were recorded on major votes Nov. 30-Dec. 2. There were no House Votes.

The USS Iowa — The

See Effect From Drug

EVANSTON, Ill. (UPI) — The first evidence that a frequently abused drug known as PCP or "angel dust" can transfer from a pregnant mother to her fetus has been reported in the current issue of Pediatrics, the journal of the American Academy of Pediatrics.

The journal reported on a study conducted by Dr. Arthur A. Strauss at Miller Children's Hospital of Long Beach, University of California, Irvine, Calif.

Subject of the study was the drug phencyclidine, which originally was developed as an anesthetic for humans but is now restricted to veterinary use because it produced psychotic side effects in humans. PCP is relatively easy to make and thus has become a popular "street drug."

Dr. Strauss' team reported finding traces of the drug in the urine of two newborns whose mothers were PCP users. One mother had used the drug "15 or 20 times" during her pregnancy; the other used it on weekends, the last time on the night before she delivered.

One of the newborns had an abnormally small head, the other was normally formed. Both exhibited the same behavior as adult addicts do when withdrawn from drugs — jittery, irritable, tremors, etc. Both had digestive problems with frequent vomiting and diarrhea. One had respiratory and heart problems.

Brackish Salt Water Adapted

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israeli scientists are reporting considerable progress in using brackish salt water for irrigation.

Already in use on about 6,500 acres of cotton farms, the technique is now being adopted by other farmers as well in a country where arable land is far more plentiful than fresh water.

In the past, a problem in using salt water for irrigation had been that large amounts of salt accumulated, interfered with plant growth and harmed the soil structure. For example, salt water acts as a sealing agent and prevents fresh water from soaking to the plant's roots.

By spreading gypsum on fields at the end of the agricultural season, brackish water can be used, since gypsum, which is highly soluble, displaces salt already in the soil and permits the plants to use the water effectively.

Offer A Class For Shoplifters

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — For $35 shoplifters in Kansas City can attend a class on how to stop committing the compulsive offense.

That's cheaper than getting caught shoplifting, because the minimum fine for the offense is $50, plus probation, which gives the offender a criminal record.

The program, which is run by professionally trained counselors, is sponsored by the office of city prosecutor Jack Shrimsher. Shrimsher says most shoplifters "are not people with bad records, or poor people," that many do not know why they stole and finding out why is a big relief for them.

STORM VICTIMS
KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — Nineteen Vietnamese refugees drowned after their boat capsized in the stormy South China Sea 200 miles northeast of here, police report.

Senate adopted, 51 for and 29 against, an amendment to appropriate $91 million for upgrading the USS Iowa, a World War II battleship, into a modern Navy vessel equipped with cruise missiles and capable of carrying 1,500 troops. The $407 million overhaul might be done at a Philadelphia naval shipyard. The vote occurred during debate on the $208 billion defense appropriations bill (HR 4995) that was headed for final passage.

Sponsor John Heinz, R-Pa., said: "The Iowa will be tougher than any ship in anyone's navy, our's or the Soviet's."

Opponent Dale Bumpers, D-Ark., said the retrofitted Iowa would have a life of only 15 years and that its 32 cruise missiles "will be in a very vulnerable position, in a vertical position, with a deck that is made of wood."

Senators voting "yea" wanted to bring the USS Iowa out of mothballs.

Report — By a vote of 56 for and 36 against, the Senate killed a Democrat-sponsored amendment to the defense spending bill requiring President Reagan to give Congress a detailed study of the relationship between defense outlays and the performance of the economy. By next Feb. 1, the administration would have had to provide, for example, a strategy for funding its military buildup program in the event the economy fails to live up to the assumptions upon which current spending requests are based.

Supporters of killing the amendment considered it a partisan attempt to undercut public support of the president.

Sen. Bill Bradley, D-N.J., who sponsored the amendment, said "had the administration's economic forecasts been correct, there would probably be no need for this amendment."

Senators voting "nay" wanted President Reagan to give Congress a report showing, among other projections, how it might trim its defense program in the

East and Helms voted "yea."

Defense — By a vote of 37 for and 56 against, the Senate rejected an amendment adding $60 million to the FY 1982 defense appropriations bill. The addition would have raised from $916 million to $976 million the outlay for "force modernization" — the quick transportation of new weapons such as tanks and artillery systems from the assembly line into the field.

The amendment to HR 4995 (see preceding votes) was supported mostly by Democrats. It fit their strategy of depicting the administration as, obsessed with high-visibility systems — such as the B-1 bomber and MX missile — at the expense of less glamorous but essential military functions.

Sponsor James Exon, D-Nebr., asked: "What good are the billions (for) new equipment if we do not provide the funds necessary to fully utilize the equipment once it comes off the production line?"

Opponent Ted Stevens, R-Alaska, said the $916 million figure was adequate because production of new weapons such as the MX 1 tank is lagging behind projections.

Senators voting "yea" wanted the Pentagon to spend more on logistical functions aimed at quickly equipping conventional fighting forces for battle.

East and Helms voted "nay."

MX Missile — The Senate killed, 57 for and 35 against, a non-binding resolution advising the administration against locating the MX missile at existing Titan missile sites or other locations near densely populated areas. The vote occurred during debate on HR 4995 (see preceding votes.)

Sen. Ted Stevens, R-Alaska, who favored shelving the resolution, said the defense appropriations bill was "not a proper place" for it. He argued also against Senate action to limit the president's MX basing options.

Sen. Dennis DeConcini,

D-Ariz., said that placing the MX near population centers would increase chances that, if nuclear war broke out, it would quickly escalate from the "limited" concept to total destruction.

Senators voting "nay" wanted the Senate on record as opposing deployment of the MX near urban areas.

East and Helms voted "yea."

MX — By a vote of 90 for and four against, the Senate adopted an amendment to HR 4995 that goes a long way toward prohibiting the administration from placing MX missiles in hardened silos at permanent sites. This was a major rebuff to the administration and a victory for advocates of moving the MX from site to site to make it less vulnerable.

rather than permanent siting of the MX missile.

Sens. Hart of Colorado, Hatfield of Oregon, Metzenbaum of Ohio and Roth of Delaware voted "nay."

Sens. Cannon of Nevada, D'Amato of New York, DeConcini of Arizona, Glenn of Ohio, Goldwater of Arizona and Moynihan of New York did not vote.

Challenging Socialists Of Malta

By SUSAN LINNIE
Associated Press Writer
VALLETTA, Malta (AP)

The conservative Nationalist Party is mounting an election challenge this month to Prime Minister Dom Mintoff and his Labor Party on this strategic Mediterranean island.

Mintoff, 65, has led the Maltese Labor Party for the past 33 years and has headed the government since 1971.

He has ranged widely across the political spectrum — from favoring complete union with Britain before independence in 1964, to advocating a socialist society in his tiny nation 60 miles south of Sicily.

Both sides expect a close race in the Dec. 12 balloting. Labor currently has a narrow, three-seat majority in the 65-member House of Representatives.

During his years in office, Mintoff established, then abandoned, a lucrative relationship with Malta with the Libyan government of Col. Moammar Khadafy. He signed one neutrality agreement with Italy and another with the Soviet Union in September.

The agreements are part of what Mintoff calls his policy of "equidistance" from the big powers.

Nationalist Party leader Eddie Fenech-Adami objects, however, to what he calls Mintoff's coziness with the Soviet Union and his "brinkmanship tactics." In a recent interview here, Fenech-Adami claimed the elections will be a "do-or-die" test of Malta's commitment to democracy.

"There is a gradual erosion of democratic principles," he added. "The rule of law has broken down time and again."

He argued that commercial and diplomatic agreements with the Soviet Union may turn out to be albatrosses for the island's 320,000 people, whose main sources of revenue are a dry-dock facilities, several blue-jeans factories and hordes of British tourists.

Mintoff's friendship with Khadafy lasted until the summer of 1980, when the Libyans sent a gunboat to prevent a Maltese-authorized oil-drilling rig from exploring on the south side of the island. The Maltese and Libyans disagreed over who owned the waters, and the matter is to be sent to international arbitration. Meanwhile, all exploration has stopped.

Government spokesman Paul Mifsud characterized relations between the two countries as "very cool." But he added that this did not stop Fenech-Adami from visiting Libya earlier this year.

The opposition leader said he went to Tripoli to talk with Khadafy in March about a Libyan boycott of Maltese exports that was affecting the jobs of 3,000 people on the island.

"Malta has always had a favorable balance of trade with Libya," the opposition leader said. "It is obvious we would want to keep friendly relations." He denied Labor Party suggestions that the Nationalists now are benefitting from Khadafy's largesse.

Although spokesmen for both parties say foreign policy is not an electoral issue, a recent series of commercial and diplomatic agreements with the Soviet Union has caused concern in Western Europe and the United States.

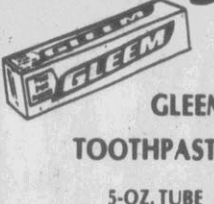

In January, Mintoff signed a bunkering agreement with the Soviet Union allowing their merchant navy to store oil for refueling in Maltese facilities. Critics fear the oil may fuel the Soviet navy instead, and claim the agreement violates the neutrality agreement signed with Italy in September 1980.

Although Malta has maintained diplomatic relations with the Soviet Union since independence from Britain, the Soviets did not open an embassy here until last October. Mintoff said growing commercial links between the two countries were the reason.

Fenech-Adami said a Nationalist government would "probably not" renew the bunkering agreement with the Soviets, adding that he finds terms of the Soviet neutrality agreement "completely unacceptable."

Energy Still Vital Topic For Boone

By ELISSA MCCRARY
Associated Press Writer
Two years ago, energy programs in Watauga County gained national attention when the world's largest windmill began operating atop Howard's Knob.

The $6 million machine represented the innovative character of energy-research projects being carried out at Appalachian State University in Boone. Hundreds of Watauga citizens participated in energy-conservation programs of their own. Boone was named a national energy conservation and development center.

The huge wind turbine seemed doomed from the start. Plagued by mechanical failures and complaints from nearby residents that it made too much noise, the longest run it ever had was eight straight hours. Earlier this year, the windmill was shut down permanently and plans were announced to sell it to the highest bidder.

But despite setbacks, energy is still a main concern in the Boone area. Even sharp federal cutbacks in energy funding haven't halted energy research in the county and at the university.

"There are programs across the country that have died completely from the funding cuts this year, but so far we've managed to survive," said county energy coordinator Mike Epley. "In fact, we've even managed to expand some of our projects."

Epley said the projects received funds for a second year from the Tennessee Valley Authority. Two weeks ago, the Z. Smith Reynolds Foundation in Winston-Salem donated $10,000 — considerably less than the $334,000 the program was seeking.

"We had to scale down our request because so many other programs are on the list for funds, too," Epley said. "We're just happy to have gotten what we did."

Epley said he didn't bother to ask the federal or state departments of energy for more money this year "because they are out of money, period."

Epley said the aim of the county's energy program is to create a self-sufficient energy model.

Projects listed with the energy office include the university's earth studies program which operates a windmill, a solar greenhouse and other projects on a farm near Boone, a water power research project, several solar-energy experiments, a project to run county vehicles on alcohol fuel and a myriad of projects operated by county residents.

Meanwhile, NASA says it is trying to sell the giant windmill to a Hawaiian utility company. The windmill was a joint project of NASA and the federal Department of Energy.

So far, Hawaiian Electric Co. is thinking over the proposition and no money has changed hands in the deal.

"We're still trying to find a situation where it can be put into operation," said Bob Bumgarner of Blue Ridge Electric Membership Corp., which was in charge of operating the windmill.

"I've heard it said that the windmill would do well on one of the Hawaiian Islands, but right now it's just sitting here. We're just waiting," he added.

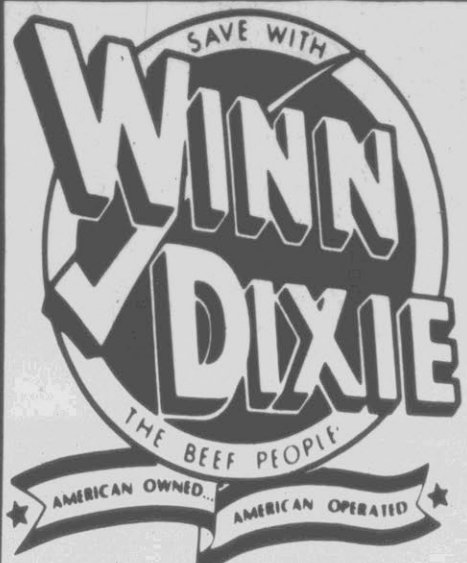

Epley said the county still has five smaller windmills in operation.

Dental Braces Use Magnets

NEW YORK (UPI) — Two university orthodontists say a new device will cut by 50 percent the amount of time youngsters wear braces.

The inventors, Drs. Abraham Blechman and Harry Smiley, say the new braces use magnets instead of traditional rubber bands to move teeth. This eliminates the problem of relying on patient cooperation, they say.

The force field generated by the magnets also stimulates new bone growth as the teeth move, the dentists say. The bone growth stabilizes newly-positioned teeth more rapidly than traditional braces, they add.

Chance Has Affected Tom Wolfe

By PHIL THOMAS
AP Books Editor
NEW YORK (AP) — In writer Tom Wolfe's world, things always fall into place — even if they do so by accident.

For example, Wolfe might be a teacher now rather than a writer with 10 books behind him, among them several best sellers such as "The Right Stuff."

Looking back, the soft-spoken Wolfe recalls that "I'd always been interested in writing, but I also figured I had to make a living, so I decided to become a teacher. But while I was working on my doctorate it came to me that I'd been too long in graduate school and needed a break."

"I went out and got a job on a newspaper. And that was it. I loved it. I stayed, and I never looked back."

During his newspapering days, usually working as a general assignment reporter — "the best job on a paper" — Wolfe also wrote pieces on the side for magazines.

"About that time," says the 50-year-old Wolfe, "there was a fad among some magazines to do features on people who either were on their way up or were 'pop.' Somehow these magazines noticed my work and it wasn't long before I was being called 'a pop journalist on the way up.'"

"All this came about on the eve of the publication in 1965 of my first book, 'The Kandy-Kolored Tangerine-Flake Streamline Baby.' Usually collections by unknown writers don't do well, but, thanks to the attention I'd been getting, mine was a best seller. And, since I wasn't married then and didn't need much, that gave me the money to become a full-time free-lance writer."

Wolfe, now married and living with his wife and their daughter in New York City, notes that his new book, "From Bauhaus To Our House," had an accidental sort of birth. He traces it back to an earlier book of his, "The Painted Word."

"In 'The Painted Word,'" says Wolfe, "which, by the way, started out as a one-page feature and expanded into a book, my theme was that much contemporary painting exists only to illustrate theories."

"That caused some controversy, and I began to get letters from architects and those in the music field to take a look at their fields. I dropped the idea for a book about music because I found that much contemporary music is so abstract, so dry, so removed from emotional life that it just kills audiences and it bored me."

"So I looked into architecture and found that like much modern painting a lot of contemporary architecture exists only to illustrate theories and has substantially nothing to do with life in America. I expanded on this and what was going to be an article became a book."

Wolfe, a native of Richmond, Va., and holder of a doctorate in American Studies from Yale, says he is continually surprised by the success of his books since "people keep telling me that the things I write about have no commercial possibilities. And, yet, they seem to sell."

"Perhaps it's because I write about what interests me. Everything I write about comes out of an immediate journalistic interest. And, often, what I'm writing about expands from a small interest into a larger one. 'The Right Stuff' started out as a look at the history of rockets and grew into a look at physical courage. I've never sat down and said 'where can I find a big topic to explore?' The topics find me."

Wolfe's books to date are non-fiction "in which I tried to bring whatever I was writing about alive through the use of scenes and dialogue and other techniques that you ordinarily expect to find in a novel."

Plans For 'Big Muddy'

By ERIC NEWHOUSE
Associated Press Writer
ST. LOUIS (AP) — French explorers Jacques Marquette and Louis Joliet wouldn't recognize the "Big Muddy" today, and still more changes are in store for the Missouri River now that South Dakota has decided to sell water from the nation's longest river.

For centuries, the Missouri flowed freely for 2,546 miles from Three Forks, Mont., to the Mississippi, draining surplus water from 10 states east of the Rocky Mountains — an area roughly one-sixth of the continental United States.

It changed its channel at will, flooded frequently, and dwindled to a stream in dry times.

During the past 90 years, man and nature cut off 230 miles of the river by removing some of its natural loops.

And the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers built levees along the river banks, stabilizing the channel. It has also harnessed the mighty river with six huge dams since World War II. The dams created reservoirs, which ended the flooding.

"Those six big bathtubs can store more than three times the annual flow of the river," says Harry Dolphin of Omaha, Neb., a spokesman for the corps.

The river provides power and drinking water for cities along its route, as well as irrigating 50,000 acres of cropland. In the planning stages or under construction are irrigation projects to irrigate an additional 600,000 acres.

And more ambitious projects are being developed for the river's water.

One such plan, worked out by South Dakota Gov. Bill Janklow, and approved by the state Legislature in a special September session, involves selling 16.3 billion gallons of water a year to Energy Transportation Systems Inc. for a coal slurry pipeline.

ETSI, a company set up by five large corporations, would mix water with Wyoming coal to produce a soot-colored milkshake which will creep south through 40-inch pipes to power plants in Arkansas, Oklahoma and Louisiana. The 1,300-mile trip would take about 12 days.

Janklow has defended the deal — which could net South Dakota $1.4 billion over the next 50 years — saying it would take only an inch of water per year from the top of the 100-foot-deep Oahe Reservoir, located near Pierre, S.D.

More water is lost through evaporation alone on the reservoir, said the governor, noting that 7.16 trillion gallons of Missouri River water flow out of South Dakota and into Iowa each year.

"The river hasn't been completely developed yet," agreed Carroll Hamon, executive director of the Missouri Basin States Association.

"According to a 1975 study, as much as a million acre feet (about 325.8 billion gallons) could be sold from the river before full in-basin development occurs in the year 2035," he said.

But at least four downstream states are considering lawsuits to block the project, calling it a dangerous precedent.

"If large quantities of water were removed, it could threaten navigation on the river," Hamon said. "And every gallon of water you remove above the main-stem dams reduces electrical power generation."

Officials believe other industrial projects are waiting to see how the ETSI deal fares.

Two other companies have indicated an interest in an additional 16.3 billion gallons of water for coal slurry pipelines, while Exxon says 651 billion gallons of Missouri River water could be available in South Dakota for its synthetic fuel operations.

"There are many programs with their eyes on the river," says Roy Downing of the Iowa Conservation Commission staff. "If they're all approved, the river could be dry by the time it gets to Iowa."

Perhaps the most ambitious project so far is a plan under consideration by the interstate High Plains Study Council to siphon off more than 3 trillion gallons of Missouri River water to irrigate farmland in Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma and the Texas Panhandle.

"That's about what our winter flow is," says Donald Boyd, director of the Kansas City Water and Pollution Control Department. "The Missouri River could run dry here in Kansas City."

No federal agency oversees allocation of river water — and the Reagan administration apparently opposes such regulation.

Missouri Attorney General John Ashcroft has asked Interior Secretary James Watt to block the ETSI deal, but the secretary is on record as supporting the project.

"I think the governor (Janklow) pulled off a brilliant and creative suggestion," Watt said Oct. 15 in South Dakota. "I support it 100 percent. I think that's the way states ought to do it."

"As long as there was enough water to go around, there was no attempt to allocate it," said Hamon. "But now that one state has said there's enough water to sell and get some benefit from, the sisters states are beginning to get serious about dividing the water so they don't lose."

'Acupressure' Is For Boaters

NEW YORK (UPI) — A New York doctor who is a recreational sailor claims in an article in the current issue of Motor Boating and Sailing magazine that use of "acupressure", which is related to acupuncture but uses pressure instead of needles, can alleviate seasickness.

Dr. Daniel Shu Jen Choy said he developed a strap which put pressure on a spot on the underside of the wrist which in traditional acupuncture is the point responsible for controlling nausea.

Dr. Choy said the strap also has proven successful with cancer patients who are suffering nausea from chemotherapy treatments and 60 percent effective in preventing the nausea which accompanies pregnancy.

GREENVILLE UTILITIES COMMISSION

PUBLIC NOTICE

Effective December 31, 1981, the Greenville Utilities Commission will no longer install gas piping beyond the gas meter. Gas appliance dealers should notify their customers of this change in appliance piping policy and they should provide or assist their customers in securing proper installation of gas appliances by qualified installers.

Permits to install gas heating plants must be secured from the City of Greenville Inspection Department, telephone 752-4137, ext. 221.

If there are any questions concerning gas piping responsibilities, please call our Gas Service Department at 752-7166.

U.S. Anti-Nuclear Movement Aims At Grassroots

By MIKE FEINSILBER
Associated Press Writer
Spurred by fear that nuclear war somehow has become an acceptable option in Washington, an anti-nuclear movement is developing grassroots strength across America. With arms talks now under way in Geneva, activists are gearing up for a spring offensive of quiet persuasion.

Unlike recent mass European demonstrations protesting deployment of U.S. missiles in other countries, the American disarmament drive is focusing on a freeze in atomic weapons production.

Already the movement has scored some victories:

— Twenty-four New England towns voted for a nuclear freeze.

— A Roman Catholic archbishop, Raymond G. Hunthausen of Seattle, advocates tax withholding, advising Christians that they should refuse to pay half their federal taxes "to the nuclear idol."

— Physicians attend seminars on "the ultimate epidemic;" 5,000 have participated in New York, Boston, Chicago, San Francisco, Seattle, Los Angeles, and Albuquerque, N.M. "We're saying the threat of nuclear war is the biggest medical problem facing the world today," says Abram Claude of Physicians for Social Responsibility.

— Even the staid Journal of the American Medical Association carried a plea that the world's doctors "join our scientific colleagues who have insistently, with an increasing sense of despair and urgency, attempted to alert humanity" to the dangers of nuclear war.

— A band of 40 is traveling from Bangor, Wash., to Moscow to stir interest in nuclear disarmament.

— Roger Molander, a National Security Council aide in the last three administrations, has organized a group known as Ground Zero. In early April, Ground Zero plans to sponsor discussions, at service club luncheons, in churches, schools and public meetings, of all sides of the nuclear question.

The National Freeze Clearinghouse in St. Louis says its campaign for a halt to the arms buildup has been endorsed by 46 national organizations, including the National Council of Churches, SANE, the Roman Catholic Pax Christi, and the Young Women's Christian Association.

Ben Wattenberg, a senior fellow at the American Enterprise Institute, a conservative-oriented think tank, says he finds no fault with the goals of the disarmament movement "as long as it isn't directed at the United States alone and doesn't give the Soviets a free pass."

A disarmament movement has long existed in the United States and in Europe, but it gained impetus when the Reagan administration laid plans to increase the U.S. nuclear arsenal and openly discussed the possibility of limited nuclear war.

President Reagan alarmed many on both sides of the Atlantic by saying last September that a limited nuclear war in Europe need not escalate into a superpower showdown. Meanwhile, he has been seen

Label Name Is Contested

DRYTOWN, Calif. (AP) — The anger of local winemakers trying to put a cork on the use of their name has turned from sour grapes to wrath.

Drytown is in California's Shenandoah Valley, where the $15 million-a-year industry boasts 50 wineries and is fighting to retain "Shenandoah Valley" as its exclusive title on labels.

But commercial grapevines have taken root now in Virginia, in the Shenandoah Valley to be precise, and winemakers there want to use the name, too.

California's century-old industry "is firmly imbedded in the minds of consumers," says Terrence Moore, a local land owner, and bank official Richard Schuler says about 1,200 acres are under cultivation.

Oh, but Virginia's valley is much bigger, at 2.4 million acres, and Gov. John Dalton, in a letter to the government months ago, called the California valley "a depression between two ridges in Amador County."

The final say in all this rests with the federal Bureau of Alcohol, Firearms and Tobacco, which has set a hearing for Monday near Drytown and will hold one in Virginia too.

The ATF tries to restrict label names so customers don't get confused. The agency was considering granting the Californians the use of "Shenandoah Valley" when the Virginians protested.

'Credibility' In Newspaper Ads

CHICAGO (UPI) — Newspaper advertisements have greater credibility with consumers than ads in any of the four other leading media, a study shows.

In the Opinion Research Corp. survey, 42 percent said newspapers had the most believable advertising, versus 26 percent for television commercials, 11 each for magazines and radio and 5 percent for direct mail. Questions for the study were developed by the Newspaper Advertising Bureau's research staff.

pushing for deployment of the new MX missile system, building 100 B1 bombers and developing a new Trident nuclear submarine as well as a submarine-launched cruise missile.

Eric Van Loon, director of the Union of Concerned Scientists, says that "without any question," statements by various administration members about the use of nuclear weapons has sparked disarmament sentiment.

"When you have the president saying we could have a limited nuclear war and the secretary of state saying we might have a demonstration nuclear explosion — that sends a message to the people that the firm line between conventional and nuclear weapons which has been emphasized by every president since Eisenhower appears to be blurring," he said.

"In small doses, those who make policy are adapting us to the idea that there can be a nuclear war," says June Jackson Christmas, a professor of behavioral science at City University of New York.

The disarmament activists aren't the kids in Army field jackets who marched against the war in Vietnam. The kids are back, but so are people who stood on the sidelines in the '60s and '70s. Many of them wear professorial tweeds, doctor's whites, clerical collars.

This campaign is less strident, less gaudy, less chic, quieter — and, so far, smaller. Now the battlefield is in the town meeting and the lecture hall, not the streets. More than 150 somber campus teach-ins on the consequences of a nuclear war drew 100,000 participants on Nov. 11.

This spring, disarmament activists will circulate petitions calling for an American-Soviet nuclear weapons freeze. The argument is that putting the arms race on hold is an achievable first step; already, 300,000 people have signed on the dotted line.

Half a dozen groups, in loose coordination, are laying out other plans to engage the American public in the spring campaign. They warn that politicians and military men can not be trusted to prevent a nuclear holocaust.

Some observers, recalling how the ban-the-bomb drive of the 1960s faded away after the test ban treaty was signed, believe an aroused public opinion cannot be sustained on so abstract an issue as nuclear disarmament.

Moreover, leaders of the movement know they are vulnerable to being called naive or dupes of the Soviet Union. They acknowledge they can bring pressure only on the American side of the nuclear duet.

But they argue that a democracy must make the first move, and they are crafting their tactics to focus pressure on Moscow, too.

The signature-seeking "Call to Halt the Nuclear Arms Race" — addressed to both superpowers — advocates "an immediate, mutual freeze on all further testing, production and deployment of nuclear weapons and of missiles and new aircraft designed primarily to deliver nuclear weapons."

The petition drive is to be made public April 26 at a splishy national news conference. The crusade is to be endorsed by "dozens of famous people — actors, musicians, sports stars, scientists, doctors, elected officials, religious leaders, business persons," according to a publication called "The Freeze Newsletter."

Future Of Kentucky's Black University Is In Doubt

By HERBERT SPARROW
Associated Press Writer
FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — When the federal government ordered Kentucky to develop a plan to desegregate its public colleges, did it want to turn Kentucky State University, the state's only traditionally black school, into a two-year community college?

A decision this week on the school's status by Kentucky's Council on Higher Education could lead to a legal battle between the state on one side and civil rights groups and the federal government on the other.

The central issue is what to do with Kentucky State, a small (2,300 enrollment) four-year school where a majority of its full-time, day students are black.

Several proposals have been made since January when the U.S. Department of Education's Office of Civil Rights ordered the state to develop a plan to fully desegregate its public university system.

All phases of the plan have been submitted to the OCR except the portion dealing with Kentucky State.

The Council on Higher Education, which oversees Kentucky's university and college system, meets Thursday to consider a recommendation from a special committee formed to study the problem of Kentucky State.

That committee, by a 3-2 vote, has recommended that Kentucky State be turned into a two-year community college within the University of Kentucky system. Proponents believe a community college would attract more white students by offering evening classes and part-time curriculum.

Such a move would be a radical departure from what other Southern states have done in response to similar desegregation orders. Most have spent millions of dollars on improving the traditionally black schools in order to attract white students.

"Kentucky is the only state even considering closing a black school," said Galen Martin, executive director of the Kentucky Commission on Human Rights.

And supporters of Kentucky State say a community college was not what the federal government had in mind when it directed Kentucky to "enhance" the university.

"If anybody considers the downgrading of a university to a community college as an enhancement, then their dictionary definition of enhancement is different from mine," said Louisville attorney Raymond Burse, the only black member of the higher education council.

Some members of the black community have even stronger words for the proposal. The Rev. K.L. Moore of Frankfort called it "unfair, ungodly and not right" to close KSU.

"This is a racial issue, no matter how some council members perceive it," said Martin.

"We will not sit in silence and let it be closed," said Moore.

Supporters of Kentucky State, including students, plan a rally Thursday outside the building where the council will meet and have started a letter-writing campaign to members of the council.

"We hope to have thousands on hand," said the Rev. Richard Wilson of Louisville, executive director of the Kentucky Southern Christian Leadership Conference.

If the council approves the community college concept, it would still have to be approved by Gov. John Y. Brown Jr., OCR and the state Legislature.

The Human Rights Commission, the state chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and others have vowed to fight any efforts to close Kentucky State in the courts.

"We're going to fight this. We'll fight it to the very end," said Zachary Royal, the student member of the KSU Board of Regents.

Robert Bell, an Ashland Oil Inc. executive and former state natural resources secretary who formulated the community college proposal, said he didn't believe the specific criteria used for other states were valid for Kentucky.

He said only 10 percent of Kentucky's black high school graduates attend KSU. He also cited the high per-pupil cost at KSU, which is $2,700 per pupil more than the next most costly state university.

Bell's proposal also calls for establishing a center at the Kentucky State campus to train state and local government employees. It also would use $5 million of the funds now allocated Kentucky State to upgrade services and programs for blacks at the other state universities.

But Burse, council chairman William McCann and Donna Moloney, another council member, announced an alternative proposal Monday that would keep the school as a four-year institution but require it to make major improvements in academic programs and in reducing costs over the next five years.

The plan calls for immediate evaluation of existing academic programs, with faculty and staff reductions, and a strengthening of its master's program in public affairs.

Among the cost reduction measures recommended are elimination of the school's intercollegiate football program and sale of its East Campus — a motel used as a dormitory.

The plan also recommends turning a closed dormitory into a federally funded research facility and demolition of a second closed dormitory.

"My plan doesn't say

Kentucky State would be continued forever," Burse said. "But to close it down closes an opportunity for some students to get a quality education that they may never get at any other institution."

'Mad Dog' Detectives On Old Beat

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — "Basically, we're street cops," says Ed Duvall Jr. "That's what we were and what we still are."

Duvall and partner Helmut Klemm — nicknamed the "Mad Dogs" of the Akron Police Department for their persistence in a secret investigation that led to jail, fines or suspended sentences for seven public officials — are back on their old beat.

They had spent nearly three years on special assignment, looking into public corruption and reporting directly to Police Chief Robert Prease.

Then in October, they returned at their own request to regular jobs in the detective bureau.

"For one thing, it's kind of hard to justify two men working on cases that right now don't require full-time attention," Duvall said.

So he and Klemm say it's "business as usual" for them again, back to the routine detective work that started them on the trail of Summit County Judge James V. Barbuto.

Last year, Barbuto was convicted on felony charges of intimidation and gross sexual imposition and misdemeanor charges of mishandling confiscated guns.

Barbuto, a prosecutor before becoming judge in 1971, was sentenced to one to 10 years in prison. After 79 days behind bars, he was released on probation.

Duvall, 33, and Klemm, 38, teamed up 10 years ago as uniformed officers patrolling South Akron. They said that even then, there was a lot of "street talk" alleging that Barbuto was dishonest.

They said they'd occasionally arrest prostitutes who thought they were crazy, saying, "You can't touch me. I know Barbuto."

But that was talk, not evidence, and there was nothing the officers could do.

"We'd just tell each other to forget it," said Duvall. "But we also told each other that some day a door was going to open, and when it did, we weren't going to say 'forget it' again."

The door opened in January 1979.

While checking guns at a pawnshop, Klemm found one that police records listed as having been destroyed after use as evidence at a trial. Further checking eventually led to Barbuto's courtroom.

The police pressed for grand jury action, asking that a special prosecutor be brought into the case. To focus more attention on it, Klemm and Duvall invited network television coverage of their investigation. It was featured on the ABC show "20-20."

In January of last year, Summit County prosecutor Stephan Gabalac said Klemm and Duvall "were like a bunch of dogs let off a leash, running around attacking everyone, including judges, this office, the coroner's office, the sheriff and private citizens, with no real restraint."

"We loved it," responded Duvall.

"After we got over the shock of the hostility he showed, we realized he had given us a launching pad, somewhere we could stand and hurl back a few spears of our own," Klemm said.

The dispute between Gabalac and the police soon led to the appointment of a special prosecutor.

In April 1980, Judge Barbuto was secretly indicted on 26 charges, most involving sexual misconduct. In June, he was convicted of intimidating two sheriff's detectives and of sexual imposition against a female courthouse employee, then pleaded guilty to the misdemeanor gun charges.

Besides Barbuto, a sheriff, an auditor, a coroner's investigator, a police captain and a suburban police chief also were convicted or charged that included obstruction of official business, dereliction of duty, mail fraud and theft.

Etna People Defy Risks Of Eruption

By SAMUEL KOO

Associated Press Writer
CATANIA, Sicily (AP) — Attracted by majestic beauty and fertile land, Italians by the thousands are defying official warnings and settling on the slopes of Mount Etna, Europe's largest and most active volcano. Scientists believe it can erupt at any time.

Up to the 4,000-foot level around the snow-capped 10,959-foot summit, villas, apartment houses and commercial buildings are sprouting along the winding roads and bulldozers are clearing construction sites for shopping centers and farm lands.

"We cannot say this is a desirable trend; it just increases the magnitude of a potential disaster," said Professor Renato Cristofolini, director of the Institute of Vulcanology at the University of Catania, which monitors the volcano's seismic activities.

He estimates that nearly a million people now live in the area around the volcano. The area includes Catania with 400,000 inhabitants, the second largest city in Sicily after Palermo.

"Depending on the direction (of a lava flow), it could affect as many as 500,000 people," Cristofolini said.

Etna's eruptions destroyed Catania several times in the past, the last in 1669 when the flow of lava reached the sea, devastating the city as it passed.

Cristofolini's warnings obviously mean very little to thousands of Etnians taken by the volcano's beauty — a huge, black, distorted cone rising out of the Ionian Sea — and the fertile land around it.

"Danger from the volcano makes the life more exciting," said Massimo Provenza, 62, owner of a tobacco shop in the village of Fornazzo which was almost overrun by a 1979 eruption.

Asked why he likes the place, he replied: "Mountain air, the panorama and the tourists." More than 800,000 tourists visited Mount Etna this year, a 10 percent increase over 1980.

On its lower highly fertile slopes, orange, lemon, olive and pear trees flourish, as well as tropical plants like banana, palm and eucalyptus. Higher up, oak, beech, birch, umbrella pine and chestnut trees grow. There are also grapevines that produce robust Sicilian wines.

Professor Giuseppe Patana, another member of the institute, said authorities must change their "fatalistic attitudes" about volcanic eruptions, which has led to uncontrolled development on a build-at-your-own-risk proposition. He called for strict zoning and contingency planning to deal with emergencies.

In 1910, 23 new craters appeared and seven years later a jet of lava squirted up to 2,500 feet. A lava flow wiped out the town of Mascali in 1928. Other large-scale stirrings this century occurred in 1947, 1950, 1951, 1954, 1964, 1971 and 1979.

The 1979 blast killed nine people, injured scores of others and destroyed a vast agricultural zone on the eastern side of the mountain. The damage along the four-mile lava stream was put at millions of dollars.

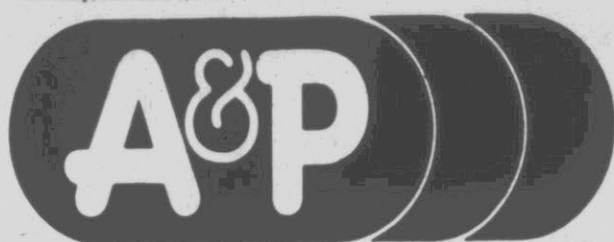

Cristofolini said in an interview that a new crater may open up anywhere above 1,320 feet.

"While we exclude a cataclysmic explosion, a big bang from the top, because the main volcano has an open vent which does not allow pressures to build inside to any great level, a sudden rupture is possible from any of the lateral cones on the slopes below, some only a 100 or 200 meters (328 or 656 feet) high," he said.

One crater near the top is almost constantly smoking or spewing ash. Cristofolini said there are three other craters which may blow up at any time.

With eight seismographs placed in different places, the institute monitors the volcanic activities. Cristofolini said it was able to give a 20-hour advance warning before a minor eruption last year.

Pyramid Will Test Fabled 'Powers'

GURNEE, Ill. (AP) — A six-story pyramid rising out of the plains near Gurnee is being gilded, the better to resemble the Great Pyramid of Cheops in Egypt, its owner says.

Artisans have begun applying paper-thin, 23-karat strips of gold leaf to the Pyramid House of Gold, which when complete will be a wood-framed, five-bedroom, suburban home for contractor James Onan and his family.

If the test strips withstand winter weather, the entire 15,000-square-foot surface will be double-gilded next year.

Onan began building the one-ninth-scale reproduction of the Cheops pyramid in 1978 because he's been fascinated by the ancient shape for years.

Having previously built several models, the highest of which was 14 feet tall, he decided to test the mysteries of so-called "pyramid power" by using himself, his wife and five children as the subjects of pyramid experiments.

The gold, which alone will cost $500,000, supposedly will intensify "by 10 times" the purported powers of pyramids, the 44-year-old Onan said in a telephone interview.

The interview was cut short because after some minutes Onan's voice could barely be heard. That fadeout is just one of the mysterious things which Onan said had happened since the pyramid was built.

"I have 10 lines coming in here and the phone company has checked, but there's nothing wrong. I can hear callers but after a while my voice fades off and they can't hear me any more."

"Believers" say that pyramids can prevent food spoilage, sharpen razor blades, speed healing, improve wine and take the bitterness from coffee, as well as deepen meditation, Onan said.

So when the pyramid is finished next year, Onan and his family will undergo a battery of medical tests and move into the four upstairs floors of residential space.

They'll be able to conduct pyramid research under controlled conditions "for the first time," Onan said. Plants and laboratory animals also will be subject of experiments.

Strict security, and water, surround the pyramid, which measures 85 feet per side at its base and is 54 feet tall. Guard dogs patrol the island on which it sits. An electrified fence and a burglar-alarm system complete the picture of impenetrability.

"I'm not really qualified to explain or interpret what's happening. We'd like to see a university that has the know-how come in and do these experiments."

Onan added, "Some people walk inside and say they can feel an energy. I don't feel it, myself."

Other mysterious happenings inside the appearance inside the pyramid of a natural mineral spring. Water tanks burst at the seams far below normal pressure levels and plywood de-laminated. "You can't prove those things are caused by the pyramid, but it sure is curious," Onan said.

Creepy Critters Also Insured

SAN FRANCISCO — The reptiles and insects in "Raiders of the Lost Ark" were considered almost as valuable as the stars of the movie.

The actors emerged unscathed, and so did all of the creepy creatures, to the relief of Fireman's Fund Insurance Companies here, which provided Paramount Pictures with a "creepers-and-crawlers" policy on some 2,000 snakes, 150 tarantulas and 36 beetles.

The snakes and bugs were insured as props against loss or damage, according to Edward E. Hamby, in charge of the companies' entertainment industry division, which also provided cast insurance protecting against delays in production caused by illness or injury to key actors and production personnel. There were none.

LOWE'S PRICING POLICY

Many items in this tabloid carry a reference retail price. The reference is intended to provide a guide to the range of retail selling prices in our area and may be useful in identifying different units of the same manufacturer. An item's reference retail price is either the manufacturer's suggested retail price or our determination of its full retail price based on prices at which it or similar merchandise is offered by principal retailers (department stores, specialty shops and other non-discount sellers) in our selling area. While we believe our reference retail prices do not appreciably exceed the highest retail prices at which sales are made in our selling area, we cannot assure you that our reference retail prices, as described above, represent the prices in every community on any given day. Some items in this advertisement are listed at "regular" selling prices. The merchandise is offered at this price except during a special sale. The purpose of showing a reference retail price (or a regular price) is to assist you, our customer, in making a knowledgeable and better informed buying decision. We suggest that you also do comparative shopping and compare our prices. (Prices in this tabloid do not include delivery charges. Ask us about delivery rates.) Lowe's Raincheck Policy: If we sell out of an advertised item, we'll issue you a raincheck. When we restock, you'll be notified so you can buy at the previously advertised price (except for products marked "Limited Quantities"). Our smaller stores may not stock all advertised items. But every item shown here can be ordered for you.
