Work Stoppages In Poland Defy Troops

By THOMAS W. NETTER
Associated Press Writer

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Workers at two of Warsaw's biggest factories went on strike today, Solidarity sources said, but a threatened general strike to protest the crackdown on the independent labor movement failed to materialize.

The day-old martial-law regime, which put the military in charge of power plants and coal mines Sunday, militarized still more factories today. The Soviet Union, in an apparent warning to the West, declared that the actions by Poland's Communist leadership were an "internal affair."

Members of the temporarily suspended Solidarity union distributed leaflets in Warsaw Sunday calling for a nationwide walkout in defiance of the government's proclamation of martial law and its suspension of the right to strike.

Spokesmen for the temporarily outlawed Solidarity labor union told reporters of work stoppages by thousands in the giant Ursus tractor factory and the Warsaw steel mill. The reports could not be independently verified.

Initial checks of other large factories in some districts of the capital found no strikes or protests by members of Solidarity, many of whose leaders were seized Sunday when the government imposed martial law.

Western reporters who were turned back as they tried to enter Poland by ferry through the Baltic seaport of Swinoujscie today reported that harbor business appeared normal and there were no signs of strikes or demonstrations.

Employees on the first shift at the Warsaw steel plant began work at 6 a.m. but put down their tools after a mid-morning break, the sources said.

"Nothing is going on, as you can see for yourself," said a steelworker outside the giant steel works. But there were no outward signs of a strike, such as banners or flags.

Conflicting reports emerged from the Ursus factory, in a Warsaw suburb. Some workers said employees were on the job, but other sources said work had stopped in several departments.

Earlier today a Solidarity member at the steel mill said authorities had "fished out the most important (union) men. But there are others to take their place, so some time will have to elapse before they arrive at some decision."

Government officials said arrests would be an "ongoing process," but Solidarity sources said some detainees had already been released.

Solidarity sources said as many as 3,000 members of the union may have been rounded up in the capital alone. Earlier estimates put the total number interned in the entire country at about 1,000.

Government leaders had been conferring with Solidarity chief Lech Walesa in an attempt to avert a general strike. But Warsaw Radio carried no word from him today.

There was no information immediately available on the strike situation outside the Warsaw area.

Warsaw Radio said coal mines, power stations and heating plants had been militarized Sunday and failure to obey orders at such plants could result in penalties ranging from prison terms to death. Today, authorities also militarized oil refineries, factories producing explosives and toxic materials, and textile plants producing uniforms and military equipment.

The Soviet news agency Tass today gave the Kremlin's blessing to the Polish crackdown.

"It is no secret to anyone that the enemies of socialism in Poland aiming to overthrow the existing social system and deliberately deepening the crisis in the country and disorganizing its economy have jeopardized the independence of the Polish People's Republic," Tass said.

It said "certain external circles in the West" were supporting the internal "enemies of independent socialist Poland."

U.S. officials in Washington and in Europe said there was no word of threatening Soviet troop movements in and around Poland.

In addition to Solidarity members, the government also detained a number of officials of past governments blamed for Poland's current economic crisis, including former Communist Party chief Edward Gierek.

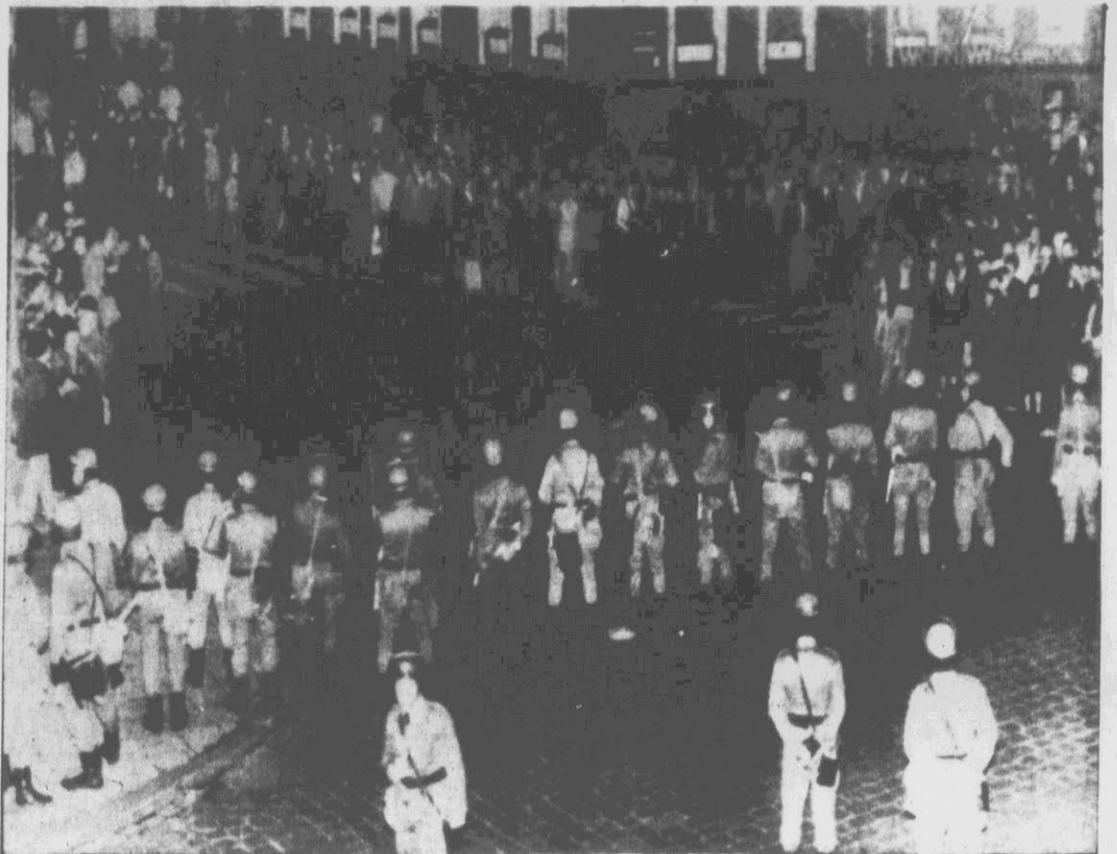

Poland's Roman Catholic primate, Archbishop Josef Glomp, appealed to the workers in a broadcast sermon Sunday: "Do not start a fight between Poles. Do not give your lives away."

Warsaw Radio broadcast a recording of the sermon four times during the night in an apparent attempt to use it to head off strikes.

Pope John Paul II also appealed for restraint, saying: "Polish blood cannot be shed, because too much was spilled in the last war."

Walesa was flown to Warsaw from Gdansk, the Baltic port where Solidarity's national leaders were meeting when Premier Wojciech Jaruzelski imposed military rule. Government spokesman Jerzy Urban told foreign reporters Walesa was not among those arrested and was "being treated with all due respect. He is considered the head of Solidarity, and Solidarity's activities have only been suspended."

Jaruzelski, a general who is also head of the Communist Party and defense minister, cracked down on Solidarity after 17 months of general unrest, strikes, a steadily worsening economy and tension that saw the legalization of the Soviet bloc's first independent labor union and its increasing insistence on major economic and political reforms to rebuild ernment has detained leaders of the union and seized their headquarters in Warsaw. (Photo from BlackStar via AP Laserphoto)

the near-bankrupt economy.

Although it gave in repeatedly to Solidarity's demands, the government had hinted repeatedly that it would order the army to take action if the union continued to challenge it. There also had been recurrent fears of Soviet military intervention.

The last straw for Jaruzelski apparently came Saturday when the union leaders at their meeting in Gdansk called for a nationwide referendum to retain or reject communism unless the government met their demands for economic and political reforms before the end of the year.

The premier announced a military council was taking control of the government. The council banned all meetings but religious services, suspended the right to strike and to protest and prohibited the sale of gasoline and the unofficial distribution of information.

Israel Decides Annex Golan Heights

JERUSALEM (AP) — The government decided today to apply Israeli law to the Golan Heights, in effect annexing the territory captured from Syria in the 1967 Middle East war, a parliament official said.

Dalia Goren, secretary of the opposition Labor Party faction in the Knesset (parliament), told The Associated Press the government had informed the party of its intention to propose the legislation to the house this morning.

With government backing and the likelihood of considerable support from members of the Labor Party, the bill was thought sure to be accepted.

Applying Israeli law to the Golan would make the territory a part of Israel. Until now it has been under military law.

Israel Radio said the leftist Mapam faction of Labor, former Foreign Minister Abba Eban and the Shinui (Change) faction had announced they would oppose the bill.

The decision was certain to provoke outrage in Syria, which has been embroiled in a dispute with Israel since last spring over Syrian anti-aircraft missiles in Lebanon. Israel has threatened military action to force the removal of the missiles, and the Reagan administration sent special envoy Philip C. Habib on four diplomatic missions to the Mideast trying without success to resolve the missile crisis.

A strong "Golan Lobby" has been pressuring the government to annex the Golan by applying Israeli law to it, in view of Syria's refusal to negotiate peace with Israel.

The government has refrained from such a move, fearing strong American protest. Last March it defeated a bid by a small right-wing party in Parliament to pass such legislation.

Israel Radio said the government reached the decision at a special morning Cabinet meeting chaired by Prime Minister Menachem Begin right after he came out of hospital, where he had been treated for a hip fracture.

The immediate reason for the move appeared to be to win favor with Israeli nationalists and soften their opposition to Israel's withdrawal from the occupied Sinai next April. The nationalists have vowed to block the withdrawal.

The government's decision may have been timed to take advantage of international preoccupation with the Polish crisis, and by the notion that if Jerusalem acts before the Sinai withdrawal, Egypt will mute its opposition to avoid fouling up prospects for a smooth Sinai pullout.

Israel Radio reported earlier that an official tourism delegation toured the Golan Heights today — the first Egyptian visit to the territory since the March 1979 Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty was signed.

The bleak, volcanic plateau, 458 square miles in size, is populated by about 15,000 Arabs and several thousand Jews who have built farm settlements there since 1967.

Begin's government tried earlier this year to encourage Druse Arabs living on the Golan Heights to take Israeli citizenship, but the effort failed when the Druse who did so were ostracized in their villages.

A side effect was an increase in Syrian nationalism among the Druse, who for years had put up little opposition to Israeli rule on the plateau. The offer of Israeli citizenship was followed by the appearance of Syrian flags in some Golan villages and demonstrations against the teaching of Hebrew in Golan schools.

In 1979 Begin said in a policy speech to Parliament that Israel would consider a territorial compromise with Syria on the Golan Heights. "In negotiations with Syria, if they ever open, we will demand changes in the international line. We will not come down from the Golan Heights," he said.

Agent Orange Case: No Review

By KEVIN COSTELLOE
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) —

The Supreme Court, in a setback for hundreds of thousands of Vietnam veterans, today refused to reinstate a test case against the manufacturers of the defoliant Agent Orange.

The court, by a 7-2 vote, let stand a ruling dismissing the lawsuit.

Only Justices Thurgood Marshall and Sandra Day O'Connor voted to hear arguments in the case, but four votes are needed to grant such review.

As a result of today's action, more than 600,000 veterans in 20 states could have difficulties if they try to collect money from the manufacturers for injuries linked to the use of the herbicide in Vietnam.

The controversial defoliant has been suspected of causing severe health problems, including higher incidences of cancer in servicemen and multiple birth defects in their children. It contains the highly toxic substance dioxin.

Today's case was aimed at breaking new legal ground for all 2.4 million American servicemen who served in Southeast Asia when Agent Orange was used by the U.S. military there between 1962 and 1971.

The veterans who filed the suit had hoped the Supreme Court would agree that the federal government had a direct interest in the case and that it therefore should be heard in the federal, rather than state, courts.

The five companies involved in today's suit are Dow Chemical Co., Monsanto Co., Diamond Shamrock Corp., Thompson-Hayward Chemical Co., and Hercules Inc.

The test case had been taken to the court by several hundred veterans who claimed to represent the interests of all servicemen who served in Southeast Asia during the period.

The veterans, who once said they were seeking between $4 billion and $40 billion in today's case, claim the manufacturers were negligent and breached their warranties in supplying the defoliant.

A majority of Vietnam veterans and their families are allowed to pursue their actions against the manufacturers on traditional legal grounds.

But more than 600,000 of them live in the 20 states where a variety of laws, mostly imposing time limits on filing suits, could preclude any court action by the veterans.

The veterans' lawyers said an appeals court ruling dismissing the case, which the Supreme Court refused today to review, will "close and lock the doors to the courthouses for all time to more than 600,000 veterans and perhaps even to their widows and deformed children."

DAY CARE INQUIRIES?

I read recently about a day care operator in California accused of killing one child and abusing 20 others. How can a parent find out about whether local nurseries and day care centers are really good? S.M.

Check first with the local Department of Social Services to learn whether the center you're concerned about is a certified one. If so, local social services can help you. If it's not a certified one, then contact the state day care licensing office. It should be listed with this office, since all day care operators keeping five or more children four or more hours a day have to be licensed. That phone number is 733-4801.

A day care consultant will be dispatched to help you, if need be. These consultants operate regionally. They no longer work out of regional offices as they once did, but report directly to the state office, number listed above.

"VERY SUCCESSFUL"

The Rev. E.B. Williams said the recent Hotline appeal for the Johnny Jenkins family, whose home burned Thanksgiving Day, was "very successful." We're still receiving help from the community for the Jenkinses, he said. "We can't thank everyone enough."

Sunday Fire

By TOMMY FORREST
Reflector Staff Writer

A Sunday afternoon fire caused medium damage to Beddingfield Pharmacy at Fifth and Evans Streets and sent one Greenville firefighter to the hospital with a sprained ankle.

According to Greenville Fire/Rescue officials, the call was received at 1:26 p.m. Firemen arriving at the building, which is only two blocks from the city's main fire station, found smoke coming from the upper floors, roof and downstairs rear of the building, they said.

Fireman Jeff Walker received a sprained ankle as he pulled a fire hose from one of the fire engines. He was treated at and released from Pitt County Memorial Hospital.

Firemen using the department's snorkel unit poured water into the second floor of the old downtown building while black smoke billowed out. Firemen entered the building at a rear entrance and found the ceiling and the northeast corner of the store in flames. Officials said the flames made their way into the second story of the structure and were beginning to spread into the ceiling of the second story when the fire was contained.

Heavy smoke and water damages resulted to the pharmacy and slight smoke damage was caused to the Bill Williams Real Estate Agency located next door. A vacant store also located in the building received slight smoke damage.

Officials said the fire may have started in or around a television set in the rear of the store. The set, according to reports, was completely consumed and the fire apparently crept up the wall.

According to reports, the owner of the pharmacy, Brooks Beddingfield, said he was in the building about 12:30 p.m. and he saw no evidence of fire.

Fire units remained on the scene until about 4 p.m. checking the building.

Damage estimates were not available, but Pitt County tax records listed the value of the building at $35,310.

First Large Group To Leave Libya On Evacuation Orders

By ROBERT MCCARTNEY

Associated Press Writer
TRIPOLI, Libya (AP) — Sixty-seven employees of the Mobil Corp. and their families, carrying flowers given by the Libyan government, departed on a chartered jetliner today in line with President Reagan's evacuation orders.

It was the first large group of Americans to leave Libya since the White House last Thursday invalidated U.S. passports for travel to Libya and warned it would take further legal steps if necessary to force the estimated 1,500 Americans here to pull out. A handful of Americans trickled out this past weekend.

President Reagan said their safety was imperiled because of what he called increasing Libyan hostility toward the United States.

"We are complying with the U.S. executive order in a safe and orderly manner," said Doyle Marrs, 51, president of Mobil's Libyan subsidiary.

Mobil had announced last month it was considering ending its operations in Libya, although no decision has been made yet. Exxon Corp. last month shut down its operations here.

The chartered Lufthansa 737 jet was scheduled to fly from Tripoli to Frankfurt, West Germany, and London. The Americans were then going to fly to their U.S. hometowns, or wherever else they liked, for Christmas vacations.

The evacuees were divided on whether they were happy to leave. Some said they were tired of increasing shortages of consumer goods in Libya, while others said they liked the extra pay they received for a hardship post, and the career advantages of working for an oil company in such an important oil-producing country.

"I'll miss all my friends at school," said 14-year-old Karina Verbrugghen, a native of St. Paul, Minn. She was flying out with her mother, Hanny, and her 8-year-old brother, Sandor. The father, Mobil airplane pilot Henry Verbrugghen, and 30 other key American Mobil employees were staying in Libya for an indefinite period.

The Libyan government gave the Americans bunches of red, white and pink carnations wrapped in cellophane as farewell presents before they entered customs at Tripoli's modern international airport.

"We are civilized people," said Salim Farkash, the top Libyan executive at Mobil, who saw them off at the airport.

Paraders Drew Large Turnout

The crowd attending the Greenville Christmas parade in freezing weather Saturday was estimated at 15,000, parade chairman Jim Allgood said.

The parade lasted over an hour and a half with more than 80 units and 1,500 participants, he said. Pitt County Memorial Hospital took first place in the novice float division; Greenville Villa Nursing Home, second; and Simpson Village, third. Float judges were Allgood, Bobby James, Matthew Ward and Mike Messick.

West Craven High School Band went home with the trophy for the best band. Band judges were Janice Buck, Charles Entzinger, and Stuart Aronson.

Allgood said the Greenville Jaycees, sponsors of the parade, would like to thank the merchants, the police department, the recreation department and the citizens of Greenville for their help and support.

Libya has expedited exit visas and generally cooperated with the Americans here in an apparent effort to show its good will and possibly persuade them to stay. Libya does not want to lose the skills of the U.S. community, and does not want the world to think foreigners are not welcome here, according to Libyan government officials.

The U.S. government called on Americans to leave because it claimed they were not safe here, but Americans insist they felt secure.

"It's far safer here than in the States. There's a lot more crime and rapes there," Mrs. Verbrugghen said.

Many Americans here said they believed Reagan may want to evacuate U.S. citizens because the United States is planning some stiffer action against Libyan leader Col. Moammar Khadafi and fears Americans may come under later threat here.

"We're wondering if the United States is planning some new provocation," said Cecil Kersting, 52, a Mobil geological adviser from Muskegon, Mich.

His wife Laura, 51, criticized both Reagan and Khadafi: "They're like two kids standing on the street and saying, 'My father is bigger than yours,'" she said.

The oil companies are negotiating with the U.S. government to obtain the maximum possible amount of time to prepare for the departures.

A Review

Excitement At Choral Concert

From the opening note of Benjamin Britten's festival cantata, "Rejoice in the Lamb," the audience was instantly alerted to the excitement which was to follow as the Greenville Choral Society presented its Christmas Concert at Immanuel Baptist Church Sunday afternoon, Dec. 13.

The main theme of the cantata, the worship of God by each individual being in its own unique fashion, was itself uniquely stated by soloists Carolyn Greene Ipock, Brenda Ballard, Frederick Johnson and William Lear.

Mezzo-soprano Ipock showed great stage presence and warmth of personality; contralto Ballard, both richness and control. Though as different as the cat and mouse about which each sang, they complemented each other perfectly. Johnson's solo defining flowers as blessings was indescribably delicate and beautiful, and Lear's clearly articulated bass solo echoes the qualities of the musical instruments which the words described.

Throughout the entire work, the words and the music were impeccably well-matched; the word "trumpets" sounded like trumpets playing; the words "serenity of soul" were expressed through notes conveying exactly that.

The second work on the program, "Magnificat in D Major," was unmistakably Bach. For it, the 90-voice chorus was joined by an 18-piece orchestra. In addition to solos by Ipock, Lear, Johnson, and Ballard, a fifth solo by soprano Jon Ward Shaw was featured, as well as a duet between Ballard and Johnson, and a trio consisting of contralto Susan Jones, soprano Patricia Hiss, and mezzo-soprano Susan Coiner. All were first rate.

The contrast between these quiet interludes and the vigor and power of the entire chorus and orchestra continuously intensified the interest of the work. Dynamics were consistently excellent throughout, and the brilliant organ work of Charlie Currin skillfully integrated the group.

Under Rhonda Fleming's inspired and inspiring direction, the superb performance of the Greenville Choral Society was a revelation. The Britten cantata was utterly magnificent, and the joyous "Gloria Patri" of Bach's "Magnificat" was the perfect culmination of the totally outstanding program. The full-house audience obviously appreciated the accomplished performance.

Wedding Vows Are Spoken

Linda Sue Whitley and Paul Dalton Sutton Jr. were united in marriage Sunday at the home of the bridegroom. The Rev. Curtis Whitehurst officiated at the 2 p.m. double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Danyl H. Whitley of Stokes. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Dalton Sutton Sr. of Greenville.

The bride, given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father, wore a formal gown of white organza over peau de soie, designed with a Queen Anne neckline. The empire bodice was overlaid in French chantilly lace which extended over the shepherdess sleeves. The modified A-line skirt was enhanced by patches of chantilly lace that extended around the attached chapel length train. The bride chose a walking length tiered illusion veil held in place by a Juliet cap overlaid in re-embroidered alencon lace. She carried a bouquet of carnations, white and yellow cushion poms and baby's breath. White satin ribbons and streamers adorned the bouquet.

The honor attendant was Peggy Whitley of Stokes, sister of the bride. She wore a formal gown of floral gold crepe de chine with an empire waistline and short sleeves. She carried a nosegay similar to that of the bride.

The father of the bridegroom served as best man.

The mother of the bride wore a street length dress of floral pink magic knit with short sleeves. The mother of the bridegroom chose a street length dress of aqua qiana knit. The dress featured a Victorian neckline trimmed in lace, long fitted sleeves and a blouson waistline. Both wore corsages of carnations.

Following the ceremony, the bridegroom's parents entertained at a reception held at their home.

Mrs. Frances Briley served the wedding cake after the couple cut the first slice. Louella Pollard poured punch. Assisting in serving were Leona Pollard and Betty Brock. Good-byes were said by Mr. and Mrs. Larry Sutton.

The bride is a senior at North Pitt High School. The bridegroom is a 1979 graduate of North Pitt High School and is employed by Greenville Utilities Commission.

After a wedding trip to unannounced points the couple will live in Greenville.

Dear Abby

The Right To Know Isn't Always Claimed

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: A 23-year-old unwed mother, signed "Raising a Child Alone," asked you to ask your readers, "Wouldn't the parents of the baby's father want to know that they had a grandchild, even though their son refused to assume any responsibility for it?"

I cast my vote in favor of informing the paternal grandparents. Perhaps they are people of moral excellence who would react in a positive way, offering love to a fatherless child who will need every bit of love and concern he can get.

It is unfair to ignore an innocent child because of the circumstances of his birth. A child is a person — not an embarrassment to be hidden away. I would want to be told.

LOVES CHILDREN

DEAR LOVES: Yours is indeed a compassionate and generous attitude. But my mail from grandparents has been running 2-to-1 against "wanting to know." Read on for an opposing point of view:

DEAR ABBY: As the grandfather of eight legitimate grandchildren, I would not want to be informed that I was the paternal grandfather of an illegitimate child!

If my daughter had a baby, I would know for sure that it was my grandchild, but the child of my son's latest conquest could be anybody's baby. Sign me.

EIGHT IS ENOUGH

DEAR ABBY: Our only grandchild is nearly 5 years old and he still believes in Santa Claus. His grandfather and I have bought him some wonderful Christmas presents and we want the boy to know that they came from us, but his mother insists that he be told that all the gifts he finds under the tree on Christmas morning are from "Santa."

I don't think this is fair to us. What should we do? Our daughter-in-law doesn't accept criticism very well.

GRANDMA

DEAR GRANDMA: Take the Christmas gifts to your grandchild and present them in person.

DEAR ABBY: For many years I've been married to a fine man. We have lovely children, and things are still very good with one exception. I'm in love with my husband's brother. (I love my husband, but I am in love with my brother-in-law.)

I don't know how to get over this feeling, which I've had for several years. It gets worse every time our family gets together (about twice a year — we live far apart).

There has never been anything the least bit improper in our relationship. I don't even know for sure if he feels similarly toward me, but I suspect he does by the way he looks at me. He's in his 30s, a few years younger than I. He's still single. My husband says his brother never married because he sees all his married friends divorcing, and he's still looking for a relationship as close and loyal as ours!

It's agony to feel this way about someone so close — and so taboo. I could never hurt my husband, whom I love and respect. It's no consolation to realize how hopeless this situation is. This is the first time I have ever allowed myself to admit it.

How can I handle these unholy feelings? Are they normal? I clearly need someone's help.

DISTURBED AND GUILTY

DEAR DISTURBED: We are not responsible for our feelings, only our actions — so stop punishing yourself with all the unearned guilt. You need more help than I can give you in a letter. Please seek counseling from a professional with whom you can be candid and completely comfortable.

Everybody needs friends. For some practical tips on how to be popular, get Abby's Popularity booklet. Send $1 plus a long, self-addressed stamped (37 cents) envelope to Abby, Popularity, 12060 Hawthorne Blvd., Suite 5000, Hawthorne, Calif. 90250.

Did you ever think you could crochet or knit with fur? Well, that day hasn't quite arrived, but a new yarn called "Furriere" brings it close! Made of a blend of wool, acrylic and cotton, this yarn does have the look and feel of fur.

If you want to try this exciting yarn, here's a striking jacket and hat, which can be dressed down for sportswear or dressed up for more formal occasions. The jacket is crocheted in Danish Bulky Yarn with the Furriere collar trim while the hat can be knitted or crocheted. Jacket directions are for small (8-10), medium (12-14) or large (16-18) sizes.

To obtain directions for making the jacket and hat, send your request for Leaflet BC-2675 with $1 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Pat Trexler, ("The Daily Reflector") P.O. Box 810, North Myrtle Beach, S.C. 29582.

Or you may order a kit by sending a check or money order to Pat Trexler at the same address. Kit No. 2675-H, with yarn for the hat alone, is $22.50; Kit No. 2675-J for the jacket is $68 for small, $73 for medium or $77 for large. The kit prices include instructions, yarn and shipping charges. Please specify your choice of birch white with light gray, beige with mink or flagstone (a gray-brown combination) with dark gray "fur." If you would like to see a sample of the yarn colors before ordering a kit, send $1 and a self-addressed, stamped envelope requesting Sample 2675.

When the joyous Christmas season is over — as it will be all too soon — many needlecrafters experience a let-down after months of creating beautiful gifts and decorations.

The best cure for these post-Christmas "blues" is a new project. This time why not make something for yourself for a change? As my own little Christmas present to you, here are directions for making either a knitted or crocheted scarf using pattern stitches that may be new to you.

The directions are based on the use of knitting worsted weight yarn but you can really use any weight or type of yarn you desire, just change the number of stitches and the size of the hook or needle if you choose another weight.

For the knitted scarf, cast on 32 stitches (or any multiple of 4 stitches, depending on the width you desire). I suggest a size 10 needle for the knitting worsted weight yarn, which should give you a gauge, in pattern, of approximately 4 stitches per inch. Make a sample swatch with the pattern stitch given below and see what your gauge is.

To determine the proper number of stitches, multiply your stitch gauge by the desired width. For example, with my gauge of 4 stitches per inch and a desired width of 8 inches, the correct number of stitches is 32.

The pattern stitch is worked as follows: knit the first stitch, (yarnover, purl 2 together, knit 2). Repeat the steps within parentheses to the end of the row, ending the last repeat with knit 1, instead of knit 2. Repeat this row over and over for pattern. An alternate pattern that some might find easier is worked on the same number of stitches working as follows: (knit 2, yarnover, knit 2 together), repeating the steps in the parentheses across the row and repeating the same row over and over for desired length.

To make a yarnover before a knit stitch, simply bring the yarn forward to the knit position and knit the next stitch with the yarn in this position. To make a yarnover before a purl stitch, bring the yarn forward and take it to the back over the top of the needle and then bring it forward again from under the needle. Purl the next stitch or stitches with the yarn in this position.

With a size J hook, work an uneven number of chain stitches until the chain measures about an inch more than the desired width of the scarf.

For Row 1: Draw up a loop in the front strand of the second chain from hook, then draw up a loop in the back strand of the same chain, draw up a loop in each of the next 3 stitches, yarnover and draw through all 6 loops, chain 1. Now work in the same manner as given in parentheses in Row 1, except that you will be working into the half-double crochet stitches of the previous row instead of into chain stitches. End the row by working one half-double crochet in the side of the same stitch as the last loop of the star. Chain 1, turn.

Repeat these two rows for desired length.

Here's hoping that you will have a very merry Christmas!

The Public Will Lose

A potential for conflict between legislative and administrative branches of government over control of federal 'block grants' distribution in North Carolina arose very soon after it became clear the block grant plan would be applied.

It is probable the same dispute will be appearing in each of the 50 states.

The amount of money involved for individual states has not been disclosed. Congress has yet to vote on the national budget; but the distribution of hundreds of millions of dollars in North Carolina, alone, is at stake.

Those grants represent a consolidated total of varied sums previously allocated for specific fields by Washington. The theory is, today, that each state knows best where and how the "windfall" would be used. The concept is also rooted in the theory that by-passing federal agencies will also mean real economies by eliminating some "middle men" in government whose administrative expenses whittle down the initially allocated sums.

In theory, it sounds great. How it works in practice is the real test.

The Joint Legislative Committee to review Federal Block Grant Funds was given authority of prior approval (by the General Assembly) over any changes North Carolina agencies make in spending money from the federal block grants. The outcome is very "iffy".

Determination of where and how those millions of dollars are used represents a tremendous responsibility as well as a lot of political power...and there's the rub. When we recall how our legislators handled their "overtime" chore of redistricting it evokes some uneasiness over leaving such responsibility wholly in their hands.

If the burden should rest with the administrative branch we have one person at whom to point the finger of blame if the process proves to be a bummer. If the legislators fumble the ball, who can be held accountable?

Just as in the redistricting entanglement, each is entitled to an air of baffled innocence and no harm done to re-election prospects.

It's the public who loses.

LET'S RESEARCH A CURE FOR THIS ONE

BY ART BUCHWALD

Some Call It An Art

The large doses of economic news we are all getting are not educating most Americans, but only confusing them.

Very few people understand them. Fortunately I know someone who does. He is an economist named Alfred Daffy, and he endeared himself to the Reagan people with his economic theory that you can solve any problem if you throw enough Trojan horses at it.

When I first met Daffy he had constructed an economic model for unbelievable prosperity, full employment and a surplus in the Treasury. It was a work of art, done in smooth clay without a line out of place. People from all over the country came to admire it; there was talk Alfred might wind up with a Nobel Prize. I went to see Daffy at his studio the other day, and he had the model all torn apart.

"What are you doing?" I asked. "I have to rework it," he said. "There are few things I hadn't counted on." He took an enormous glob of clay and threw it at the side of the model.

"What's that?" "The recession. On my original model I only allowed a little clay for a mild recession."

ART BUCHWALD

Now we're in a real one and that puts my whole model out of kilter." He took another large glob and put it on the other side. "There that should balance it."

"What does that glob represent?"

"Unemployment. You can't have a large recession without large unemployment." He studied his model for a few moments, and then took some clay from the bottom and put it on the top.

"In my original model I had interest rates down here. I never figured on them being up here."

"But they're falling," I said. "Not for long," he said, grabbing a glob of clay in both hands and dumping it on the top of the model. He took another glob and dumped that on top of the first one.

"What are you doing?" I cried.

Daffy said, "I'm adding a $100-million deficit that wasn't in the original model."

"Why wasn't it there?" "Because in my original model, everyone was going to get a tax cut which would spur the economy, and with more people working there would be more money going into the Treasury than the government was paying out, and we would have a surplus."

"What went wrong?" Daffy kept throwing clay at his model indiscriminately. "The savings in government-spending weren't there, the military budget jumped to over $200 billion, and they wouldn't let us give school kids ketchup for lunch."

"That model is starting to look a mess," I said.

"I'm not through with it yet. Consumer spending is nil, our balance of payments is way out of whack, and the Gross National Product is down to zero."

"Are you sure you have enough clay?" I asked him.

There were tears in his eyes. "I created a masterpiece. Everything in the model was supposed to work. They were going to put it up in Rockefeller Center in place of the Christmas tree."

I tried to console him. "Alfred, you're being too hard on yourself. Economists aren't scientists — they're dreamers. And they translate their dreams into beautiful works of art such as your original model. President Reagan may not know much about art, but he knows what he likes. And he wouldn't have bought the other model (Please Turn To Page 5)

'Tis The Season...For Caution

A timely warning appeared from Chief of Police Glenn Cannon to shoppers to be careful of their packages at this time of the year.

Households should also be careful to lock doors and windows to avoid theft of Christmas gifts left in the house.

This is the season of Good Will Toward Men. It is the time when we think of others rather than ourselves. That is not true of everyone, however. For the thief it is a time to reward himself at the expense of others. That is done through stealing packages, shop lifting and other ways. Caution on the part of honest people can forestall some of this.

THIS AFTERNOON

Hidden Lawmaking

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — Open meeting laws which make public and press observation of the legislative process possible are beside the point in the North Carolina General Assembly of late.

Hidden lawmaking has become an increasing threat. Weeks and even months after the General Assembly has finally adjourned and members have returned to their homes, surprises are being found buried deep inside the special provisions of the state government budget law.

Savvy and experienced lawmakers have found they can legislate in the dark rather than in the sunshine by simply hiding an obscure line or two which makes almost sense deep within the legislative gobbledygook which makes up the Appropriations Bill.

In some states — particularly where citizens can take the initiative to make reforms — constitutions have been amended to outlaw use of the budget bill for anything other than money matters.

Background
A brief history of the bypass phenomena is in order, before a detailed example is offered.

The General Assembly used to meet only every two years, and do all of its business in a few months. Then came the recession of 1974-75, and the Legislature had to convene in special session to adjust the budget. Trying to restrict the business coming before the body, the rules said only matters pertaining to spending could the argument will cause the fragile document to collapse and force weeks or months of further legislative debate.

And so have developed horse show arenas, tunnel proposals, a block grant review committee, line-item transfer restrictions and other known and unknown (Please Turn To Page 5) been taken up.

Naturally, a few "emergency" things needed to be handled which were either very loosely related to spending, or not at all. So, those were put into the special revisions. Then some shrewd observers noted that the special provisions did not receive careful study by public or fellow legislators.

The usual committee scrutiny was bypassed, and even if somebody happened to find the obscure reference and find out what it meant, there was little chance it would be challenged since it is traditional to pass the budget appropriation bill intact, without challenge, for fear

Other Editors Say If It Be True

(Washington Daily News)

We have believed and felt over the years that in North Carolina, in secondary education, we were second to none when it came to the abilities, preparation and expertise of our teachers.

In fact, putting it in plain simple language, we have believed that we had outstanding teachers who were well qualified.

Now along comes the report from the North Carolina Center for Public Policy Research and that report says that in our state — in many school districts — a high percentage of teachers in secondary schools are teaching courses for which they are not certified.

We take this to mean that in a high percentage of our secondary schools in this state many of our teachers are really not qualified to be teaching the courses to which they are assigned.

If this report be true, then the responsibility belongs in the hands of boards of education, superintendents, and principals for allowing this to exist. If the report is untrue, then a great disservice has been done. People too often tend to believe the worst, and when such critical reports are offered, people believe what is said because they really want to believe it.

Craig Phillips, North Carolina Superintendent of Public Instruction, feels the report is misleading and he has challenged it.

So what the public needs immediately is truth — not propaganda. If we have many teachers teaching out of their fields, then why is it so? Why has not this picture been changed over the past few years? We have more teachers available today than we have vacancies, and it just seems that our secondary schools, if they are out of focus, ought to get back on the main highway.

Frankly, we are inclined to feel that this report overstates the situation. Admittedly we do have some teachers teaching out of their field, but we shall not and cannot reach absolute perfection. In smaller schools particularly, we have more limited curricula and it is just necessary on occasion to have some history teacher doubling up and teaching a course in math. But generally speaking, from what we read about it, it seems that we might be talking about a rule and not an exception.

If the report be true, action is needed to correct it. If the report be untrue, then the people need to be told about it now.

Strength For Today

DECAY AT THE TOP

Trees usually begin to die at the top, and society usually begins to die at the top also. The nobles of France abused their privileges, and the day came when an injured people kept the guillotine going with tragic regularity. The nobles of Russia let their governmental and social life decay, and the empire was succeeded by the tyranny of communism. Centuries before all this, the privileged classes of Rome had misbehaved themselves, and ruin overtook them.

Unfortunately, today there is increasing evidence that many of those in what we might call our leading classes are engaged in a selfish pursuit of pleasure which bodes ill for the future of our culture.

Privilege involves responsibility, and when that responsibility is shunned, privilege turns to poison, and individuals and nations begin a slow decline into oblivion and death. — Elisha Douglass

Kirkpatrick To Fill Post?

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Sentiment is rising in the White House to replace Richard V. Allen with U.S. Ambassador Jeane Kirkpatrick, aimed at filling the dangerous vacuum in President Reagan's policymaking apparatus by upgrading the post of national security assistant — if Ed Meese agrees.

Kirkpatrick's name surfaced at middle White House levels when Allen's return began to look highly improbable. The first woman ambassador to the United Nations and the only Democrat in his Cabinet has become a personal favorite of Ronald Reagan. Her neo-conservative foreign policy ideology is responsible for shaping Reagan's campaign rhetoric on human rights and the Third World. But she is chafing under run-of-the-mill diplomacy at the U.N. and would welcome workaholic duties at the White House.

She passes most tests to be Allen's successor. Despite her past as a Hubert Humphrey Democrat, she is acceptable to the Republican right. Her relationship with Secretary of State Alexander Haig looks good, certainly far better than Allen's. Fears that she is compromised in the Mideast by a pro-Israel bias seem exaggerated. One problem remains: How would presidential counselor Edwin Meese III react to this vigorous, opinionated, ambitious woman diluting his authority?

"Ed Meese is the problem," says one senior official who wants Kirkpatrick to run the National Security Council (NSC) staff. If Allen does not return, Reagan and Meese sometime soon must sit down together and ponder these alternatives: upgrade the denatured NSC job to its former glory as the focus of national security policy; or continue an Allen-style operation which, through no fault of Allen's, enthroned Meese as de facto security adviser to the president.

Kirkpatrick is certain to insist not only on restoration of the NSC staff but also on guaranteed access to the Oval Office. Suspicion lurks at the White House that Meese is reluctant to so reduce his own power.

Meese informed the demoralized NSC staff Nov. 30 that he was assigning an aide to study the entire operation. That hinted Reagan and Meese have finally realized that Reagan's pre-election insistence on downgrading his national security apparatus was a mistake.

But James E. Jenkins, the Meese aide assigned that task, has had time for only a cursory investigation. He told us he had not yet questioned any former NSC directors or even all the senior specialists on Allen's staff. Nor does Jenkins claim special experience in national security. That suggests Meese is vacillating, possibly wanting to cling to the proven inadequacies of the old system with a pliant replacement, thereby preserving his power.

There seems less problem with Haig, who has kept his views on the Allen succession strictly private. High officials who have observed Haig and Kirkpatrick the past 10 months profess to see more than surface compatibility.

On Dec. 8, the NSC, summoned to meet in the Cabinet Room on the Libyan affair, had to cool it heels for 15 minutes in the Roosevelt Room waiting for Reagan to finish a budget session. Haig and Kirkpatrick were conspicuous in a corner, talking animatedly. "That would never have happened with Haig and Allen," one participant told us.

Nor does she appear to have disqualified herself on the Israeli question by contradicting the president, as might be inferred from her remarkable article in the Nov. 11 New Republic. Kirkpatrick excoriated the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) and said it was "shocking" that some "influential Americans" would suggest "negotiating with the deadliest enemies of peace in the area."

Two weeks earlier, Reagan had told Trude Feldman, a Washington reporter who specializes on the Mideast, that the U.S. would eventually talk with the PLO "providing they are willing to recognize Israel's right to exist." Kirkpatrick thus seemed to contradict her president.

In fact, however, Kirkpatrick was aiming at Jimmy Carter and Gerald Ford. Her article went unchallenged in the Reagan White House.

Behind the scenes at the U.N. she has spent long hours studying the Palestinian problem and other Arab-Israeli issues directly with Arab representatives (including Ghassan Tuani, Lebanon's astute chief delegate). "Jeane is willing to listen and learn," one of the Arab diplomats told us. "Her mind is not closed, but she has a long way to go."

On larger questions of Soviet penetration into Central America, Africa and the Mideast and on the U.S.-Soviet confrontation, Kirkpatrick poses no obvious differences with Haig. The problem is neither Haig nor the Republican right nor probably even Ronald Reagan.

It is Ed Meese. He must decide whether to oppose a strong-willed, independent-minded national security adviser in the White House. If he does, Reagan can count on grave future consequences. Copyright 1981 Field Enterprises, Inc.

Seeking Remedy For No-Shows

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

The airline industry is trying to find a cure for a nagging headache that is getting worse: No-show passengers.

The walkout by the air traffic controllers in August intensified the problem. Schedules were restricted. Worried travelers made two and three reservations for flights to the same place at the same time. The extra reservations went unused — and uncanceled. The airlines wound up with empty seats.

The Civil Aeronautics Board gave the carriers permission to discuss the situation among themselves and industry representatives are meeting in Washington on Tuesday to try to come up with a plan to reduce the number of no-shows. (CAB permission was required because there are legal restrictions on what companies can do in concert.)

Two carriers — New York Air and Air Florida — already have acted. People who hold reservations on certain New York Air flights to Florida and don't use or cancel those reservations will be charged a $20 penalty. Air Florida offers a 20 percent discount for non-refundable tickets on flights between the Northeast and Florida.

Eli Timoner, the head of Air Florida, said earlier this year that the airline industry was "losing a fortune in wasted expense for unsold product" because of no-show passengers.

So far, none of the major national carriers has taken similar steps. Chuck Novak, a spokesman for United Airlines, said the industry tried penalizing no-show passengers in the 1950s with a $3 fee. It didn't work. Reservation systems were not sophisticated enough to guarantee that when someone did cancel, the cancellation would be recorded. And the airlines had to spend $5 to collect each $3 fee.

Today, Novak said, the airlines rely on "what is euphemistically called 'space planning.'" Based on experience, the airlines try to predict how many people will show up for a given flight and they overbook, selling more tickets than they have seats.

"You do space plan over and above ... because you know there's going to be a no-show," Novak said. "What we want to do is utilize the seats that we have."

Novak said the controllers dispute — and the resulting reduction in flights, particularly by smaller carriers — had not prompted any substantial increase in the number of no-shows, but other industry officials disagreed.

Sally McElwreath, director of public affairs for Trans World Airlines, said no-shows were "a greater problem than usual because of abbreviated schedules. The public is nervous about being able to get on a flight."

Ms. McElwreath said TWA tries to "overbook scientifically" to compensate for passengers who are "double and triple-booking."

She said an average of 20 percent of the people who hold reservations don't use them, and the number doubles at holiday times.

"You always get no-shows at the holiday season," agreed Novak. "No-shows at the holiday are as traditional as turkey."

He said the no-show rate is particularly high in dense markets like Cleveland or Los Angeles where passengers have a lot of flights to choose from. Novak also said that double-booking travelers aren't the only ones who turn into no-shows. A business meeting may end ahead of schedule, for example. The traveler catches an earlier flight — and doesn't cancel his or her original reservation.

Overbooking, meanwhile, can backfire against the airlines. The Civil Aeronautics Board requires the carriers to compensate "bumped" passengers — people who hold confirmed reservations and are denied a seat because of overbooking by the airlines.

67th Birthday Of Raggedy Ann

By DIANE M. BALK
Associated Press Writer
INDIANAPOLIS (AP) —
Raggedy Ann, who overcame her origins as a faceless attic rag and went on to become a carrot-topped confidante to generations of children, turns a well-preserved 67 years old today.

The doll has made a movie, promoted books, changed the color of her hair and acquired a male friend, but she's never lost her appeal since the day she was created by John Gruelle and his wife for their disconsolate daughter.

In fact, some people who should know say her following has become more fanatical in recent years.

"There's a mystique about Raggedy Ann that there wasn't 10 years ago," says John Noble, curator of toys at the Museum of the City of New York. He says that a "cult of Raggedy Ann, like the teddy bear, became important in the last few years."

Gruelle's 8-year-old daughter, Marcella, came to her father in 1914 with a rag doll she'd found in their attic. But she was sad, she said, because the doll had no face.

Gruelle, then a political cartoonist for The Indianapolis Star, drew a face, and his wife washed and restuffed the doll, putting a heart-shaped piece of candy that said "I love you" on it.

Gruelle made up Raggedy Ann stories to entertain his daughter, and after Marcella died in 1916, Gruelle began writing the tales "as a memorial to her," Noble says.

Noble says Gruelle "called her Raggedy Ann because she was so shabby." Raggedy Andy was created when a neighbor gave Gruelle a doll, and in 1918 a Chicago publishing house printed the first Raggedy Ann book.

The dolls were first marketed as a promotion for the book, but they didn't have hearts and Gruelle had the dolls called back because of it, Noble said. The hearts were then added, hidden under the doll's clothes, and children still delight in finding them.

Gruelle, who later drew the comic strip "Mr. Tweedle Deedle" in the New York Herald, wrote and illustrated about 40 Raggedy Ann books which sold more than 3 million copies before he died in 1938.

Marian Israel, assistant sales manager for Bobbs-Merrill, the Indianapolis-based firm that holds the publishing rights, says the books are still "fairly popular," but she said sales tallies were unavailable.

Knickerbocker Toys now holds the rights to making Raggedy Ann and Raggedy Andy dolls.

Noble says he hopes "some enterprising person will reproduce the original," which had brown hair and a printed dress.

In 1977, Raggedy Ann became a movie star when a feature-length animated movie about her premiered in Indianapolis.

Noble and his Raggedy Ann — a doll dating from 1919 — were flown to Indianapolis from New York and presented with a key to the city as a birthday present.

Noble said the doll has even been interviewed on television.

"She's terribly shy," he said. "She wouldn't say anything."

if he didn't like it."

"Yeh, but what is he going to think of this one?"

"Well, to be honest, it may not be to his taste. But he paid for it, so he's going to have to live with it."

actions.
The latest hidden law which has come to light is one sentence buried deep within the long and rambling legislative dissertation on territorial jurisdiction of special law enforcement officers of Durham and Granville counties.

Suddenly
You are reading along about articles and authority and GS this and GS that when suddenly it says: "All law enforcement, fire fighting, public safety and other emergency vehicles of the Department of Crime Control and Public Safety shall be maintained and controlled by the State Highway Patrol Division of that Department."

Then, it goes on to talk about "Any civil or criminal process to be served..." as the boring law on special officers is resumed.

The hidden law has removed all the vehicles of the Crime Control Department from the jurisdiction of the new state motor pool setup run by the Department of Administration which is supposed to cut down on excessive travel, limit those who get a car on permanent assignment, and charge those who use their cars to travel back and forth from home to work.

The question is whether the vehicles in Crime Control should or shouldn't be in the motor pool. It may well be they should be separate. Or maybe some should be in the pool, and some should not. Or maybe there is a better way.

The point is that when State Rep. Billy Watkins inserted that hidden law, he effectively destroyed any exploration and debate over what should be done. And that is the threat of hidden lawmaking in the North Carolina General Assembly.

Jackrabbit Roundup Failed To End Plague; More To Follow

By KIM N. PRICE
Associated Press Writer
MUD LAKE, Idaho (AP) — A farmers' group that slaughtered thousands of jackrabbits over the weekend says not enough of the crop-destroying animals were killed, and promised more roundups.

"Now we are going to have some rabbit drives," said Orville Twitchell, the spokesman for farmers trying to kill as many of the large hares as they can. The first roundup "was for the news media," he said. "The next one is for us."

The 800 men and boys gathered in a line about 2 miles wide Saturday, whooping and hollering as they herded about 3,000 jackrabbits into a pen, then moved in, swinging their weapons. Blood covered the snow.

No date for a second roundup was set.

The recruits had agreed, under pressure from the Idaho Humane Society, not to beat the rabbits to death but rather to stun them and slit their throats.

But the animals at one point tried to escape and the killing got out of hand, Max Finch, the leader of the Humane Society, said Sunday.

The clubbing got more fierce, he said, and scores of half-conscious rabbits, their skulls split, lay kicking and shrieking in puddles of blood.

Farmers slit the throats of some rabbits, others died slowly.

Blood splattered the clothing of herders and dozens of reporters who witnessed the bludgeoning.

Twitchell said the change in plans was necessary because "they turned back on us and we had to stop them."

A small boy with a baseball bat longer than himself swung at a rabbit and missed. He swung again, hitting another, and smiled as blood dripped from his weapon.

A young man identifying himself as a student at Ricks College in Rexburg said he brought with him the baseball bat he had used to hit two home runs last year in a high school tournament. "I'm going to hit more home runs," he said as he prepared to stalk the rabbits.

In the slaughter pen, thousands of clubbed rabbits, some still and others twitching, were heaped in great piles to await skinning.

Finch called the outcome "a mess" and said he would meet with the Mud Lake Farmers' Rabbit Committee, which Twitchell chairs, to seek a more humane way to rid the desolate prairie of the rabbits.

"I'm not going home and forget it," Finch said. "I'll work with the groups we started out with. Maybe we can come up with a solution to this mess. I think there is a solution, but I don't know if a lot of them want it."

Twitchell said he was not concerned that children joined the kill.

"I and three-fourths of the people in the West had rather see those kids in that sagebrush, even if they are beating jackrabbits, than have them in front of a boob tube watching sex movies or in Idaho Falls drinking beer and smoking pot," he said.

The farmers' goal was to slaughter 15,000 rabbits and Twitchell at first called the killing of one-fifth that many "a flop." But on Sunday, he said he was "really happy with it" because "there were no citations issued."

Law officers had warned that rabbit herders they could be found guilty of misdemeanors for being cruel to animals. However, no citations were issued and deputies said they did not expect any.

Two students from California State University-Dominguez Hills had planned on having 15,000 carcasses for sale to Nigeria, their protein-starved homeland. Twitchell said Sunday the students would go ahead and ship the 3,000 carcasses.

Argue Over An Old Will

ATLANTA (AP) — A descendant of a British officer who thinks a relative may have stolen the officer's colonial-era will has embarrassed Georgia archives officials by saying the document was taken from them.

Norma Delegal of Oakland Park, Fla., placed an advertisement in the Nov. 21 editions of The Atlanta Journal and The Atlanta Constitution that read: "Missing from the Georgia Archives: Will of Lt. Gen. Philip Delegal. This 1792 will belongs in Georgia history."

Mrs. Delegal claims she saw the original document at the archives five years ago but found it missing when she went back to get a copy several weeks ago.

"I think one of my relatives took it, and I wish to embarrass whoever it was," she said of her decision to place the ad.

But Georgia Department of Archives officials, smarting over the ad's implication they lost the will, say they can't prove the original document was ever in their possession.

Ed Bridges, assistant director of the archives, said the department had an official copy of the will — not the original — dated 1762, not 1792 as the ad stated.

"I think some people who read that (ad) might understand it as meaning we had it and don't know where it is," he said. The advertisement "might create the impression we're incredibly sloppy around here."

Elected To Bank Board

The board of directors of Branch Banking & Trust Co., meeting in Wilson, elected Jack Shelton Warren Sr. to the bank's Greenville city board, according to Carl E. Brown Jr., vice president and city executive here.

Warren is owner and operator of Warren's Farms and Warren's Farm Supply, both located in the Stokes area. He is also co-owner of New Independent Warehouse in Greenville.

The new board member is president of the Stokes Ruritan Club and a member of the board of directors of the Eastern Carolina Vocational Center. He also serves on the Pitt County Development Commission.

Warren is a member of the executive committee of the Southern Flue-Cured Tobacco Festival and serves on the board of the Pitt County Farm Bureau.

He is married to the former Julia Etheridge of Robersonville and they have two sons. Warren is a deacon at Stokes Baptist Church.

Arizona Going Ahead Double Execution Plans

By LARRY LOPEZ
Associated Press Writer
PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — The state of Arizona is going ahead with plans to kill two death-row inmates in the gas chamber Tuesday, saying a moratorium on executions imposed by a federal judge does not cover the pair.

Gary Nelson, the Arizona Supreme Court's chief staff lawyer, said inmates Edward Schad Jr. and Robert Vickers are not covered by the stay because they were sentenced after the Legislature passed a new death-penalty law.

A plea for a halt to the executions has been taken under advisement by U.S. District Judge Carl Muecke. There was no indication when he would rule on the request.

Schad, 39, was convicted of strangling an old man and stealing the victim's car while on parole for a second-degree murder conviction.

Vickers was convicted of killing a cellmate and carving his nickname into the convict's back.

They are in the Arizona State Prison in Phoenix, where the state's gas chamber is housed.

Shad's lawyer, Tony Shaw, said he also is asking the state Board of Pardons and Paroles to stop the executions. Vickers has asked that all appeals on his behalf be dropped.

In May 1980, Muecke stayed the executions of all inmates sentenced to death before May 1, 1979, when the Legislature passed the new death law to conform to state Supreme Court guidelines. Schad and Vickers were sentenced to the gas chamber after that date.

Defense lawyers contend the stay covers crimes committed before May 1, 1979, regardless of the sentencing date.

John Frank, who has helped bring a class-action suit against executions on behalf of all 38 inmates now on death row, said he is confident Muecke will rule in the inmates' favor.

"This is going to blow over as quickly as it blew up," Frank said Sunday. "It's just a mistake."

Frank long has represented the American Civil Liberties Union and the NAACP Legal Defense Fund in death-penalty litigation.

Haig Sees No Early Polish Flashpoint

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. is deeply concerned about events in Poland but believes the flashpoint at which the Soviet Union might intervene is not yet at hand.

Haig, in Europe for the NATO winter meeting last week, cancelled a trip to the Middle East to return to Washington today. Asked about the Polish situation as he left for the airport, Haig issued a two-word reply: "No change."

Other than that, Haig would only say the United States is "watching the situation closely."

Earlier, he said he was "encouraged" by Polish government assurances to the U.S. Embassy in Warsaw that it did not plan to crush the reform movement that has been under way in Poland for the past 16 months.

The secretary cited this as an apparently positive development in the situation, although he said the United States was "seriously concerned" about the imposition of martial law.

One senior U.S. official, who did not want to be identified, said America also was encouraged that Soviet military units in and around Poland had not been mobilized. He said he interpreted this as evidence the Soviets did not want to become involved militarily. However, "we do not underestimate the fluidity of the situation," he cautioned.

The official said that while the Polish government apparently hoped to stop short of internal repression in acting against dissidents, no one could predict the outcome once "the first blow fell."

One apparent restraint on both the Soviet and Polish governments is Poland's need for financial help from the West. Poland owes Western governments and banks about $27 billion that it is not in a position to repay.

Haig told reporters Sunday that the United States might have to reconsider its previous commitments to provide food and other economic aid to Poland if the government crackdown erupts into turmoil.

Haig also said that in the event of Soviet intervention, the United States would cut off all trade with the Soviets, including an embargo on grain that the Soviets need to make up for last year's bad harvest.

Soviet intervention also would cause a new freeze in U.S.-Soviet relations, reversing the slight thaw that started recently.

Certain to be doomed by such a move would be the U.S.-Soviet talks in Geneva on reducing the number of medium-range nuclear missiles in Europe as well as plans to resume strategic arms limitation talks next spring.

If the Soviets intervene in Poland, "the consequences would be very severe and long-lasting," Haig said.

He claimed the North Atlantic Alliance would present a solid front to the Soviets and said it has contingency plans for punitive action if the Soviets intervene. But it is not clear what impact Polish government repression, with indirect Soviet support, would have on the alliance.

Haig said there are things the United States would do. But there is no assurance the other NATO nations would go along as a group since the Europeans appear to consider good relations with the Soviet Union more important than the United States does.

Told To Depart By December 21

MOSCOW (AP) — The daughter-in-law of Nobel laureate Andrei Sakharov was issued a foreign passport by Soviet authorities today and told she must leave the country by Dec. 21.

"I'm very happy," Liza Alexeyeva beamed as she talked to reporters waiting inside the front door of the visa office in south Moscow.

She said she would decide later on this week when and how she would leave the Soviet Union.

"I'm very happy to go out to join my husband," she said in halting English. United States consular officials said they have Miss Alexeyeva's entry visa prepared and are waiting for her to contact them.

Miss Alexeyeva said Sakharov and his wife were weak and pale after their 17-day hunger strike which won her the right to leave the Soviet Union and be with her husband. She visited the Sakharovs over the weekend in Gorky, and later told reporters their spirits were good and that they were on the road to recovery.

She saw Sakharov and Yelena Bonner in a two-room hospital suite in the city where they are living in exile. "They looked very weak and very pale," said Miss Alexeyeva after returning to Moscow.

"They both have circles around their eyes, and their noses are sticking out. His teeth look blue, and both their faces look shrunken," Miss Alexeyeva said. She said the hunger strike appeared to affect Mrs. Bonner, 58, more than her 60-year-old husband, despite his heart condition.

The strike ended last Wednesday when authorities agreed to let her leave the country.

Mrs. Bonner's son, Alexei Semyonov, is a graduate student at Brandeis University near Boston. He and Miss Alexeyeva were married in a proxy ceremony earlier this year, but the Soviets did not recognize the wedding. They claimed Semyonov was not properly divorced from another Soviet woman.

After they were forcibly taken from their apartment by plainclothes police officers on Dec. 4, the Sakharovs were admitted to Semashko Hospital under assumed names and separated. They only saw each other once during the final five days of the fast. Both were told the other was dying, and both were threatened with force-feeding, Miss Alexeyeva said.

Sakharov lost 24.2 pounds and Mrs. Bonner 15.4 pounds during the fast.

Sakharov, winner of the 1975 Nobel Peace Prize for his work on behalf of human rights, was banished to the Volga River city of Gorky 250 miles east of Moscow in January 1980. He had criticized Soviet military intervention in Afghanistan.

Miss Alexeyeva was allowed to spend three hours with the Sakharovs in their guarded hospital suite.

Deny Misusing Govm't Funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige did not misuse government funds by spending more than $11,000 to charter a jet for a flight to Arizona to meet with a business group, says Commerce Department Inspector General Sherman Funk.

Funk said on Sunday that a report he has prepared on the incident concluded that in view of Baldrige's tight schedule for the Feb. 19-20 trip to Tucson, chartering the jet was "the only realistic option."

But Funk said the report also found that Baldrige technically had violated federal regulations by failing to state on his travel voucher the reason for the expense.

Mary Nimmo, a spokesman for Baldrige, described omission of the travel reason on the voucher as "a paperwork error."

Democrats Filing Suit Over 'Guards' At Polls

NEW YORK (AP) — The Democratic National Committee will file a $10 million suit today charging that polling-place guards sponsored by the Republican Party harassed blacks and Hispanics during the Nov. 3 vote for the governorship of New Jersey, the New York Times reported today.

The GOP candidate, Thomas Kean, was declared governor-elect a month after the vote, having squeaked by Democrat James Florio by 0.07 percent of the 2.3 million votes cast, the state's closest governor's race.

The damage suit will be filed in Trenton, N.J., the capital, the Times said. Eugene Eidenberg, executive director of the Democratic committee, said it had affidavits from more than 80 voters charging harassment by the National Ballot Security Task Force, which the GOP has sponsored in the past in other states.

Kean won by 1,677 votes. Eidenberg said the affidavits and photographs of task force members — some of whom were armed, off-duty law officers — would be submitted during the proceedings at the U.S. District Court in Trenton.

William Greener III, the director of communications for the Republican National Committee, said the GOP has "done nothing wrong. We have nothing to fear."

One of the affidavits contends a voter "was physically pulled out of a polling place" by one of the workers, Democratic Party lawyer Kenneth Guido Jr. said.

The task force operated mostly in big-city precincts. They posted signs warning against voter fraud and wore armbands, but their connection with the GOP was not made apparent.

Eidenberg said some affidavits assert that task force members asked voters for registration cards and turned them away if they could not produce them. Voters were not required to carry registration cards for the election.

The suit is not designed to challenge Kean's victory and "we have no evidence that Mr. Kean or his campaign workers made any policy decisions on this operation," Eidenberg said. He said the Democrats want to stop the GOP from using the task force again.

The suit names the GOP national and New Jersey state committees; John Kelly, the task force organizer; and two national committee workers. The GOP suspended Kelly after learning he falsely claimed to be a lawyer

Boy Helps Rescue Two From A Well

MURPHYSBORO, Ill. (AP) — An 8-year-old boy helped rescue his mother and 4-year-old brother from the bottom of a 40-foot well.

"I was really scared, but I just kept cool and listened to what my mom told me," said Timothy Reagan Jr.

The boy, whose family calls him "T.J.," was standing just a few feet away when his brother, Charlie, fell through a rotted wooden well cover at the family farm Saturday.

He ran to tell his mother, who was at home while the children's father was at work in a coal mine 22 miles away.

"T.J. came hollering, and I looked out and saw T.J. but no Charlie," said Becky Reagan. "I just ran down the well. I didn't think twice — my baby was down there."

Mrs. Reagan clung to a pipe for 45 minutes, struggling to keep her son's head above the 12 feet of water in the bottom of the well while shouting directions to T.J.

She said her son threw two life preservers into the well, called the telephone operator for help, and then ran three-fourths of a mile to a neighbor's house.

On his return, T.J. flagged down a police car that had taken a wrong road to the Reagan house. He then assisted two deputies in pulling his mother and Charlie to safety.

An ambulance took them to a hospital five miles away in Murphysboro, where they were treated for minor injuries and allowed to return home Sunday.

"I guess God was just 100 percent with us," Mrs. Reagan said. "I'm just so happy that everything turned out all right."

See Confrontation On Costume At Ball

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Beset with internal dissension, members of Louisiana's congressional delegation are trying to head off a confrontation on a politically sensitive issue: what to wear to this year's Mardi Gras Ball in Washington.

The instigator of the conflict is Democratic Sen. Russell Long, the state's senior senator, who wants to upgrade the traditional black tie and dinner jacket affair to white tie and tails.

"It gives it more class ...

makes it a more formal party and a more impressive party," Long said. "The more exclusive you make it, the more they want to come."

Rep. Gillis Long, another Democrat, also has committed himself to the white tie and tails camp. Most of the rest of Louisiana's Capitol Hill lawmakers, however, disagree. Sen. Bennett Johnston, a Democrat, has refused to take sides on the issue.

Rep. Bob Livingston, this year's chairman of the ball — which will be held Feb. 6, 17 days before Mardi Gras — is with the black ties.

"I ran for Congress as a man of the people," said Livingston, a Republican.

For Rep. Henson Moore, the ball and three or four days of parties, dinners, and receptions leading up to it are things he'd prefer to live without.

"Let's turn this thing over to the debutantes and I'll go drink beer with my constituents," the Republican said. "I'd much rather have a shrimp boil and a barbecue that fool around with this stuff."

Rep. Buddy Roemer, a 4th District Democrat, said he's not going to get excited over the controversy. But he says his wife always tells him what to wear to parties, anyway.

Closing Road December 15

The replacement of a drainage pipe will force the closing of Sam Whitehurst Road (Secondary Road 1126) in Pitt County for about two days beginning Dec. 15, according to the N.C. Department of Transportation.

NCDOT workmen will replace the pipe with a larger one better able to handle the flow of water under the road, it was pointed out.

"This is another example of the department's continuing effort to try to keep up with the maintenance needs of the state's highway system," said C.W. Snell Jr., division engineer of the department's second division in Greenville.

NARFE MEETING
Pitt County Chapter 1530 of the National Association of Retired Federal Employees (NARFE) will meet Wednesday at the Three Steers at noon.

All civil service retirees, their spouses and present employees over 50 years of age with at least five years of service are invited.

Uncle Sam's made a big change in First Federal's tax-deferring IRA: Starting January 1, 1982, everyone is eligible!

Even if you are already involved in a pension or retirement plan, beginning Jan. 1, you qualify for an IRA at First Federal.

And that means you can contribute up to $2000 ($2250 spousal IRA) to your IRA, and write it off your income taxes.

You don't have to pay one cent of taxes on either your funds deposited in an IRA, or on the high rate of interest it earns either, until you withdraw it.

And since your income (and your tax bracket) will probably be lower after you retire, the net amount you pay the government will almost certainly be lower. In other words, an IRA helps you keep more of the money you earn.

So, put yourself first. Open up an IRA at First Federal, and pay the government less and yourself more.

NEW YORK (AP)—Stock prices tumbled along a broad range today as heightened tensions in Poland and the Middle East surprised investors already concerned over a resurgence in interest rates.

A selling spree led to a sharp drop in stock prices in the first hour of trading, but analysts said that following the initial flurry of activity, prices stabilized as investors appeared to be waiting for further international developments.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, which fell 6.18 points last week, dropped 8.94 points to 877.57 at noon.

Stocks falling in price outnumbered gainers 5-1 in the mid-day tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stock fell .83 to 71.60. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off 4.24 at 318.77.

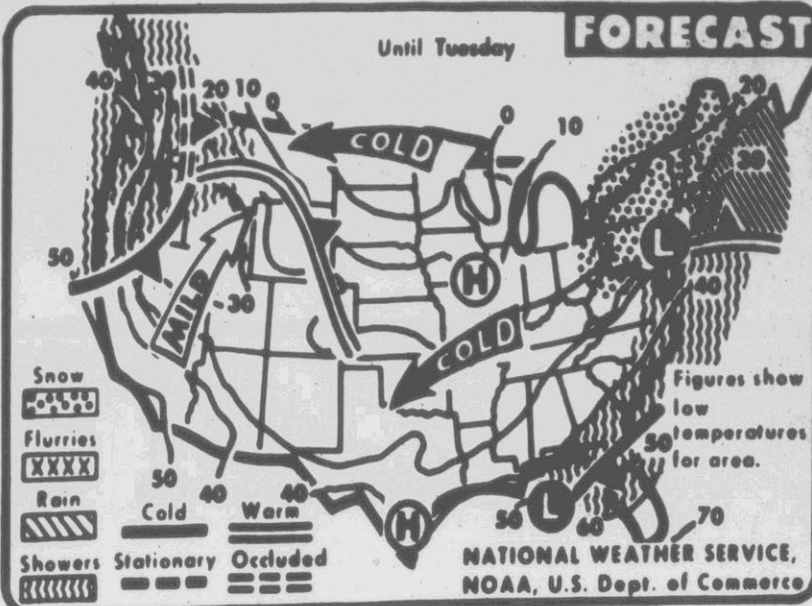

Volume on the Big Board reached 20.41 million shares over the first two hours, compared with 20.24 million in the comparable period Friday.

Phillips Petroleum topped the most active list at noon, up 3/4 at 44 1/2, in trading that included a block of 124,000 shares changing hands at 43 1/2 a share.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST—Showers are expected in the forecast period, Monday until Tuesday morning, for the Atlantic coast and for the Pacific Northwest. Snow is forecast for inland areas of the Northeast. Most areas will be colder. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press
A mixture of rain, freezing rain, sleet and snow greeted the North Carolina mountains this morning, heralding rainy conditions expected to cover the state, the National Weather Service reported.

Charge Man In Burglary

Phillip Earl Johnson, 23, of Route 11, Greenville with second degree burglary following the weekend investigation of a break-in at a rural residence, according to Sheriff Ralph Tyson.

Sheriff Tyson said Johnson is charged with the Friday night break-in at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Paul Harris of Route, 11, Box 39, Greenville. He said Harris was in Pitt Memorial Hospital and Mrs. Harris was visiting her husband at the time of the break-in.

Sheriff Tyson said Mrs. Harris reported the theft of approximately $7,000 in jewelry items from her home, which is located on the Pactolus Highway east of Greenville. All of the missing items have been recovered, the sheriff reported.

Johnson was placed in Pitt County Jail under $1,000 bond. A hearing has been scheduled for Tuesday in District Court here.

Armed Man Robs Bank In Raleigh

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—An armed man robbed the South Street branch of North Carolina National Bank about 9:23 a.m. today, Raleigh police reported.

Police said no one was injured in the robbery. They said the lone man escaped with an undisclosed amount of money.

Officers said they had no suspects and still were investigating. Bank officials declined to comment on the incident.

and into the northwest Piedmont where some icy spots were expected to develop. But conditions should improve by afternoon.

The rain stems from a low-pressure system moving in from the north-central Gulf of Mexico this morning. The low was expected to be over western North Carolina by evening.

The center will then shift to the coast and begin moving northeast by Tuesday. On Sunday, sunny skies were reported across the state, with some increase in high cloudiness over the western counties in the afternoon. High temperatures ranged from the mid 40s across much of the Piedmont to the low 50s over some of the southeastern counties. The highest temperature was 53 at Fayetteville and Jacksonville. The coolest location was 43 at Cape

Greenville's solar fraction calculated by the Department of Physics of East Carolina University was 48 yesterday, which means that a solar water heater could have provided 48 percent of your hot water yesterday.

Holiday Dinner Held By Club

A holiday dinner was held for the Davenport Street Community Club Friday in the Christmas-decorated home of Mr. and Mrs. James Hopkins.

Special recognition was given to Mrs. Mary Gardner, who had worked 30 years at Pitt County Memorial Hospital; Mrs. Mildred Williams, a retiree from the Pitt County Department of Social Services; and Mrs. Mable Lang, Mrs. Pauline Anderson and Mrs. Beatrice C. Maye of the Pitt County and Greenville school systems. Christmas souvenirs were shared with those present.

Hatteras. Clouds increased across the state during the night, keeping temperatures in the mid and upper 30s except for some 20s in the higher mountains.

The recreational weather outlook called for rain spreading across North Carolina today and tonight, ending in stages Tuesday from west to east. Windy conditions were expected Tuesday, with some snow flurries reaching the mountains by evening.

Temperatures today and Tuesday should be in the upper 30s over northwestern sections, with 40s inland and 50s along the coast.

Along the coast, northeast winds will become southeast and increase somewhat later today. A small craft advisory may be needed through Tuesday.

Programs On Safety Tips For Children

"Safety in the Homes" is being promoted in Greenville schools during December and January.

The Safety Committee, of which Charles Ross is chairman, has secured the help of Mrs. Cynthia Cox, Fire Marshal, and Santa Claus in visits to elementary schools this week. Tips will be given for safety, with special emphasis on the holiday season when children are home and are inside much of the time. Santa will give children "red ball" stickers to place in bedroom windows.

The schedule of appearances in city schools for the team of Mrs. Cox and Santa is:

- Today—Eastern School.
- Tuesday—Elmhurst School.
- Wednesday—Sadie Saulter.
- Thursday—Third Street.

All Savers at BB&T.

Better than money market rates.

What makes our All Savers rate such a good deal—and, for many people, a better deal even than the money market certificate—is one simple fact: you'll get the first $1000 in interest free of all federal tax. In fact, if you file a joint return, you can get up to $2000 in tax-free interest.

With an initial deposit of $500 or more, you can lock this rate in for a whole year now with our one-year All Savers certificates. But hurry. The All Savers rate will change at the beginning of next month.

The yield of 8.34% is based on an annual rate of 8.037% compounded monthly with interest left on deposit until maturity. You will lose tax benefits if you withdraw your money early or use your certificate as security for a loan. There is a substantial interest penalty for early withdrawal.

Nobody works harder for your money. BB&T

Eagles On The Move

By The Associated Press
It's five down, five to go in the race for the National Football League playoffs, and it could go right down to the final game of the regular season before the field is completed.

Eleven clubs are still in contention for the five berths remaining after the weekend's games, in which two teams clinched division titles and two others assured themselves of at least wild-card spots.

Things are so tight that only one of the 13 games played Saturday and Sunday — Chicago's 23-6 victory over Oakland — had no bearing whatsoever on the postseason picture. And tonight's nationally televised game between Atlanta and Los Angeles will help determine the Falcons' and other teams' fates.

On Sunday, the Cincinnati Bengals won the American Conference Central title for the first time in eight years, beating Pittsburgh 17-10. The Dallas Cowboys, meanwhile, reclaimed the National Conference East crown, downing last year's division champions, the Philadelphia Eagles, 21-10.

Both the Miami Dolphins and the Buffalo Bills clinched spots in the AFC playoffs. The Dolphins beat the Kansas City Chiefs 17-7 to remain atop the East, a half-game ahead of the Bills, who beat New England 19-10.

Miami and Buffalo play in the Orange Bowl next Saturday, with the winner becoming division champ and the loser taking a wild card.

In other games Sunday, Washington beat Baltimore 38-14; Green Bay defeated New Orleans 35-7; the Giants downed St. Louis 20-10; San Diego edged Tampa Bay 24-23; Denver topped Seattle 23-13; San Francisco, already the winner of the NFC West, beat Houston 28-6.

On Saturday, the New York Jets nipped Cleveland 14-13, while Detroit defeated Minnesota 45-7.

Eliminated from playoff contention during weekend play were four clubs — the Steelers, the Chiefs, the St. Louis Cardinals and the Oakland Raiders.

Those still in the chase for the five remaining slots are the Jets, the Broncos and the Chargers in the AFC, and the Eagles, Giants, Redskins, Buccaneers, Lions, Packers, Vikings and Falcons in the NFC.

So the AFC's playoff possibilities look like this:

• In the East, the Miami-Buffalo loser gets a wild card. The Jets can clinch the other wild card from the conference by beating Green Bay, or if San Diego loses to Oakland next Monday night.

• In the Central, only division-winner Cincinnati makes the playoffs.

• Denver takes the West if it beats Chicago or if San Diego loses. If the Chargers win so both they and Denver finish 10-6, San Diego wins the title through a better intradivision mark (6-2 vs. 5-3). Either West team can win a wild card only if the Jets lose.

The NFC is much more complicated, and took conference officials until late Sunday to figure out. Here's how it looks:

• In the East, Philadelphia can clinch a wild card if Atlanta loses to Los Angeles tonight or if the Eagles beat St. Louis next Sunday. The Giants can gain a wild card with a win over Dallas if Philadelphia loses or, if the Eagles also win, if Green Bay loses. Washington can win a wild card only if 8-8 teams are involved in the final decision, and would be eliminated if Atlanta wins tonight.

• In the Central, the Tampa Bay-Detroit winner takes the division title, even if Green Bay also wins; the Packers can take the title only if they beat the Jets and the Bucs and Lions tie. Green Bay takes a wild card with a win over the Jets or a loss by the Giants, and at least one loss by the Falcons. The Bucs-Lions loser takes a wild card only if 8-8 teams are involved. And Minnesota was still alive, although just barely. It will take a Falcon loss to the Rams and having 8-8 teams involved in the second wild-card determination; then, the Vikings make it on the basis of net points within the conference, the fifth tie-breaking level.

• In the West, an Atlanta win tonight would eliminate both the Vikings and the Redskins. Atlanta can take a wild card with two wins plus a loss by the Giants. The Falcons would also take a wild card if a three-way tie developed with Philadelphia and Green Bay or if a four-way tie developed with the Giants, Philadelphia and Green Bay.

Bengals 17, Steelers 10

The victory gave the Bengals their first division title in eight years and eliminated the Steelers, 8-7, from the playoffs for the second year in a row. Ken Anderson passed for two touchdowns, and the Bengals' defense intercepted Pittsburgh quarterback Mark Malone twice.

Cowboys 20, Eagles 10

Since the first day of training camp, the Cowboys, 12-3, had aimed to take the NFC East title away from Philadelphia.

Danny White passed for two touchdowns, including an 8-yarder to Tony Hill that was set up when Eagles kick returner John Scarra bobbled a punt late in the second quarter.

Dolphins 17, Chiefs 7

Touchdowns by Tony Nathan and Andra Franklin, and Uwe von Schamann's 39-yard field goal lifted the Dolphins to 10-4-1. Kansas City, 8-7, losing for the third straight week and the fifth time in seven games, was eliminated from the playoff race.

Bills 19, Patriots 10

Joe Cribbs caught a scoring pass from Joe Ferguson and rushed for 153 yards to increase his season total to 1,003 mark for Buffalo. Roosevelt Leaks also scored a TD for the Bills, 10-5, and defensive end Ben Williams tackled Pats quarterback Matt Cavanaugh in the end zone for a safety.

Chargers 24, Buccaneers 23

Rolf Benirschke kicked a 29-yard field goal with 45 seconds left to play to lift the Chargers, 9-6, over Tampa Bay, preventing the Bucs, 8-7, from clinching the NFC Central title. Bucs running back James Wilder scored touchdowns for a 23-21 lead with 8:06 left, but Bill Capece missed the extra point after the Bucs' final TD.

Broncos 23, Seahawks 13

The Broncos stayed a game in front of San Diego in the AFC West as Craig Morton threw for one touchdown and Rick Parros ran for another. Denver, 10-5, won for the eighth time at home this season without a loss. Seattle is 5-10.

Jets 14, Browns 13

The Jets, 9-5-1, aiming for their first playoff appearance in 12 years, got a two-touchdown-pass game from quarterback Richard Todd. Quarterback Brian Sipe rallied the Browns, 5-10, in the second half with a TD pass to Calvin Hill. The Jets victory eliminated the defending Super Bowl-champion Raiders from the playoff field.

Lions 8, Vikings 7

The Lions, 8-7, beat the Vikings, 7-8, behind quarterback Eric Hipple, who threw for a pair of TDs. Billy Sims scored on a 14-yard run and Robbie Martin returned a punt 45 yards for a TD for Detroit.

Packers 35, Saints 7

Lynn Dickey threw for a club-record-tying five touchdowns to move the Packers into a three-way tie with Detroit and Tampa Bay for the NFC Central lead at 8-7. George Rogers scored for New Orleans, 4-11, on a 1-yard run.

Giants 20, Cardinals 10

Defensive end George Martin's 20-yard touchdown return with a recovered fumble keyed the victory for the Giants, 8-7, who eliminated the Cardinals, 7-8. The Giants sacked rookie quarterback Neil Lomax three times.

Redskins 38, Colts 14

Joe Theisman passed for top touchdowns and ran for a third to lead Washington, 7-8. Bert

US Captures Davis Cup Crown

CINCINNATI (AP) — With the Davis Cup safe in American hands, U.S. team captain Arthur Ashe had one unfulfilled wish — that he could have made it a little easier for John McEnroe.

McEnroe, expected to carry the U.S. squad in the three-day finals, came through in the clutch again Sunday by knocking off Jose Luis Clerc in five sets to hand the United States its 27th Davis Cup title with a 3-1 edge in matches over Argentina.

McEnroe's 7-5, 5-7, 6-3, 3-6, 6-3 victory over Clerc capped a weekend in which the 22-year-old New Yorker won both of his singles matches and teamed with Peter Fleming to defeat Clerc and Guillermo Vilas in doubles.

Ashe would have liked Jimmy Connors, the United States' No. 2-ranked player, to team with the younger McEnroe in singles. But Connors elected to take a vacation instead of playing in the finals.

McEnroe's match against Clerc assumed a do-or-die aura for the 13,327 fans at Riverfront Coliseum, the largest crowd to watch a tennis match in Cincinnati.

"I felt really pumped up," McEnroe said. "The crowd was getting into it. I wanted to win it. I didn't want to put the pressure on Roscoe (Tanner)."

Tanner, who lost his singles match Friday to Clerc, was to play Vilas in the fifth match. But with the U.S. clinching the cup on McEnroe's victory, the Tanner-Vilas match was stopped during the first set by mutual agreement. It was only the second time since 1900 that a Davis Cup final match was called off.

McEnroe generally was on good behavior Sunday, coming off a doubles match Saturday that erupted in shouting matches between the quick-tempered McEnroe and the Argentinians, mainly Clerc.

There were no official reprimands handed out in the grueling doubles match won by McEnroe and Fleming 6-3, 4-6, 6-4, 4-6, 11-9. But referee Kurt Nielsen sent a court-side position following the heated fourth set to cool tempers.

Ashe, winning his first Davis Cup championship as a coach, said little to his players during the three-day finals matches, except when McEnroe exploded during the doubles match. Ashe got into a heated court-side argument with McEnroe that he later compared to a family quarrel.

"I'm not a cheerleader type of captain," Ashe said Saturday. McEnroe agreed that the Davis Cup captain's job is difficult. He noted that Ashe earned a reputation as a gentleman on the court, while McEnroe is known for his outbursts.

"We both wanted to win. We always had different ways of going about it," McEnroe said.

Face Los Angeles Tonight

Falcons Fighting For Playoffs

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — The Atlanta Falcons and Los Angeles Rams, their 1981 National Football League campaigns gone sour, will each be trying to salvage something when they meet tonight.

The Falcons, pre-season favorites to win the NFC West title, will be fighting to enhance their place in the playoff picture. With a 7-7 record, Atlanta would win a wild card berth with victories over the Rams then the Cincinnati Bengals next Sunday if the New York Giants lose to the Dallas Cowboys next Sunday.

A loss tonight would not necessarily eliminate Atlanta.

The Rams, 5-9 and out of the playoffs for the first time in nine years, will be attempting to snap a five-game losing streak and build some momentum for next year in the nationally televised game.

Atlanta Coach Leeman Bennett acknowledges that shooting for a playoff berth gives his team plenty of incentive, but he's worried that the Rams might be inspired to unleash some of their frustration.

"We feel Los Angeles will be ready because the national television appearance will give the Rams an opportunity to erase some of the disappointment of the season," said Bennett.

"Obviously this season has been frustrating because of the closeness of so many defeats," he added, "but dwelling on the past does us no good whatsoever."

Rams' Coach Ray Malavasi isn't dwelling on the past, either.

"Everytime I've stepped onto the field in my life I've wanted to win," said Malavasi. "Our guys would like to finish up the season that way and give us something to carry over to next year."

The Rams will close out the season next Sunday against Washington in Anaheim, and the Falcons will face the Bengals in Atlanta.

Los Angeles' Dan Pastorini

While the news this weekend that a number of the College Football Association (CFA) schools are having second thoughts about thumbing their noses at the NCAA and going ahead with the NBC television contract, anything can still happen. It will be sometime later this week, however, before we finally get the word.

At first it was said if ten CFA schools elect to go with the contract, it would be okayed. But, one source has it, those ten had better be the right ten. As of Saturday evening, the only schools which had said "yes" were Texas, Oklahoma, Clemson, Florida, Penn State and Georgia.

A number of other schools had indicated that they would not go against the NCAA and agree to the contract. Others are still undecided. Nebraska, for one, said Saturday the school was still trying to make up its mind.

Unless the six schools named above are joined by Nebraska, Notre Dame, and one or two of the other "biggies" the contract will go down the drain.

We are a little surprised at the outcome. There had been the feeling that the CFA schools, intent on getting control of their own television destiny would go ahead and force the NCAA to take some sort of a stand. It seemed that perhaps the NCAA was in a catch-22 situation. Should the CFA go ahead and make its move to take up the NBC control, the NCAA had few options. It could have penalized the schools taking part, or it could have ignored it.

By penalizing those school, they could have forced them to bolt from the NCAA and form their own athletic organization. Doing so would have reduced the NCAA to a group of schools with less attraction to the big money TV markets — thereby pulling the teeth of the organization. Ignoring a CFA separate contract would have, in effect done the same thing. It seemed to be a damned if you do, damned if you don't situation for the NCAA.

However, some cooler thoughts seemed to have prevailed, at least for the moment, and the NCAA seems to be back in control. Perhaps some of the other CFA schools feared that eventually, the biggest fish would gobble up the rest, and that there was some safety in the numbers with the NCAA.

The battle may have been won, but we would be surprised if the war was over.

One of the more surprising moves of the weekend was the firing of Jim Carlen as football coach and athletic director at the University of South Carolina.

Just a year ago, Carlen was the hero of the state, having carried the team to another bowl game, and produced a Heisman Trophy winner.

But going 6-6 this year was too much.

The question will arise quickly as to whether it might not be a signal to the Atlantic Coast Conference. When basketball coach Bill Foster was in Greenville a few months back to speak at the Sports Club, he noted that there were several camps of thought in the South Carolina school as to which way the school might go.

One group, he related, wanted to join the SEC, another wanted to stay independent, and a third wanted back into the ACC.

There's no question that South Carolina has not fared as well outside the ACC as it did inside, especially in basketball.

Could it be that the camp that wants back in is the one that secured the firing of Carlen, believed to be the leader of the camp that wanted nothing to do with ACC membership?

Only time will tell.

Bucks Capture Eighth Straight

By The Associated Press
Milwaukee forward Mickey Johnson never has been one of Coach Don Nelson's favorite game savers.

"He doesn't play down the stretch a lot because he tries to take over by himself," Nelson says.

Sunday night, though, Nelson let Johnson take over, and he scored 16 points in the fourth quarter to help the Bucks beat Philadelphia 127-108. It was the eighth straight National Basketball Association victory for Milwaukee, snapping a four-game '76er winning streak.

Johnson said a poor play early in the game may have helped him down the stretch.

"I hadn't done much the first three quarters," he said. "I had made about four turnovers, and I wanted to do something before the game was over."

Johnson wound up with 22 points. Sidney Moncrief topped the Bucks with 24, but perhaps more important was his defensive work against the 76ers' Julius Erving.

Lakers 122, Warriors 118
Kareem Abdul Jabbar scored 33 points, and Los Angeles took control with nine-point run in the final four minutes of the game to take a 10-point lead, 122-112.

The victory was Los Angeles' fifth in a row and snapped a five-game Golden State winning streak.

Sonics 98, Clippers 74
Seattle held San Diego to just 11 points in the fourth quarter and set a team record for fewest points allowed in a game. The SuperSonics' previous mark was 76 against New Orleans in 1977.

Gus Williams was high scorer for the Sonics with 18, and Jack Sikma scored 16

"A lot of people remember the last Monday night game you played," he said. "They don't remember the rest of the season. My first year we were 12-4 but we lost on Monday night (15-7 to Atlanta). When I went back home, all my friends told me how bad we looked."

will start at quarterback since Pat Haden is out with a knee injury. Quarterback Steve Bartkowski and wide receiver Alfred Jenkins head the Falcon offense. The Falcons have never beaten the Rams outside of Atlanta. Los Angeles holds a commanding 23-5-2 in the series.

Although their last meeting was a 37-35 offensive show won by Los Angeles, both clubs have good defenses. The Falcons have allowed an average of just 97.9 yards rushing per game, while the Rams' pass defense has given up only 166.9 yards per outing.

Malavasi figures that, while a victory won't salvage the Rams' season, it could help dim some of the bad memories.

49ers 28, Oilers 6
San Francisco, 12-3 and striving for the home-field advantage in the playoffs, blew out the Oilers, 6-9, with a 21-point third quarter, including a touchdown pass by Joe Montana. Earl Campbell scored for Houston.

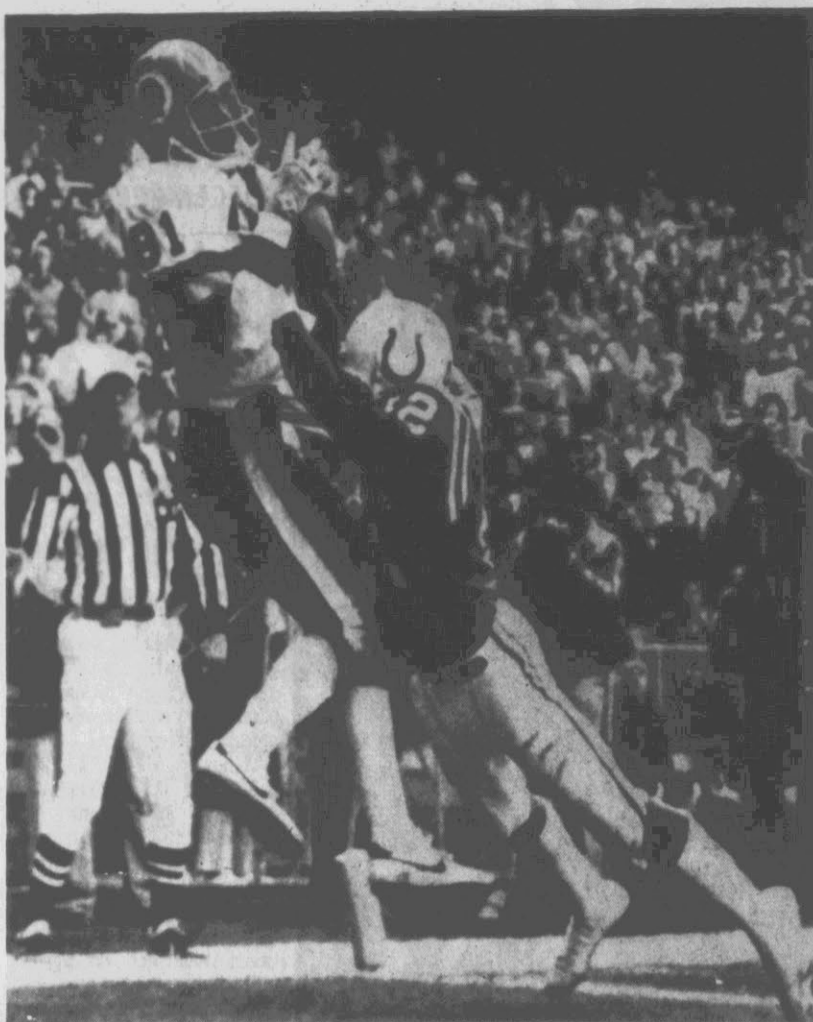

Bears 23, Raiders 6
Three touchdown passes by Vince Evans led the Bears, 5-10, past the Raiders, 7-8. Oakland quarterback Marc Wilson threw a 27-yard TD pass to Bob Chandler.

Crenshaw Wins Mexican Open

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Ben Crenshaw came in four strokes ahead of his closest opponent to win the 31st Mexican Open golf tournament.

Crenshaw, who fired three rounds of 4-under-par 68, carded a four-day total of 273, four strokes ahead of Ray Floyd.

Floyd carded the best single score of the tournament with a record nine-under-par in Thursday's Pro-AM event, but he lost ground with a par 72 in the final round. Dan Pohl took third with a 278 total.

So Long, Ali—It's Been Fun

NASSAU, Bahamas (AP) — So long, Ali. We'll be seeing you. But it can never be the same.

You gave us 21 years of high excitement, bombast and poetry, controversy and drama, a lot of laughs and tons of entertainment.

"Float like a butterfly, sting like a bee" — that's the way your sidekick, Bundini Brown put it.

And you showed us the world — from Rome, where as a timid, fat-faced light-heavyweight you won the Olympic gold medal to all those exotic places such as Zaire, Kuala Lumpur and Manila.

No ocean was too wide to cross, no continent too remote to reach. You saw them all, hobnobbed with their presidents and potentates, and made the little people of the world feel like kings.

"Ali! Ali! Ali!"

That should be your epitaph — many, many years hence — when you've completed the last journey. That should be chiseled on your tombstone.

No more, you say humbly. Now, a month from you're 40th birthday, you've fallen before a raw young heavyweight 11 years your junior, Trevor Berbick, in a comeback that failed.

Your millions of friends all around the globe won't fault you so much for seeking one more miracle, but all of them will grieve the stage and circumstances you chose for your final ring farewell.

A man of your stature deserved a better sendoff.

It would have been fitting if the great and near great were in the gallery — statesmen, business tycoons, show business stars and ordinary people to whom you once were truly "The Greatest."

But, no, the setting was the lazy string of islands off the Florida coast — the Bahamas — population 200,000, and your orchestrators proved to be amateurs who almost botched the whole show.

Because of a contract squabble, the extravaganza was almost cancelled 40 minutes before the first bell.

The site was an old ballfield. The card was delayed 2 hours, 20 minutes. Somebody forgot the boxing gloves. There were no water pails or ringside bell.

So somebody came up with a cowbell from somewhere and the timer signalled each round by banging it with a hammer. They forgot the signs designating the rounds until midway through the show.

You took your lumps and swallowed the defeat like a man. You didn't whine or alibi. You said young Berbick simply gave you a licking and you wished him well.

Your kids cried because they saw their pop get whipped. You dried their tears and told them, "It could have been worse." You made your momma proud.

You were more than a fighter. You were a personality, part Muslim preacher, part actor, a lot of ham, a puckish kid at times.

Destroyer and clown, you bowed out with a quip on the lip. You left us smiling.

Arkansas QBs 'Critical'

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — The Arkansas Razorbacks suffered a setback at their quarterback spot Sunday when freshman Brad Taylor hurt his Achilles tendon during a weekend workout.

With junior Tom Jones already doubtful for Arkansas' Gator Bowl game against North Carolina, Taylor's injury left the Razorbacks in a critical situation, a UA athletic spokesman said. Jones suffered a knee injury during the Razorbacks' regular season.

"We put a yellow shirt on Taylor during practice so he wouldn't have any contact," Coach Lou Holtz said. "He suffered the injury on the third play from the end of practice. It's not torn, but an injury like that scares me to death."

Trainer Dean Weber said Taylor's status would be clearer by Monday, but he didn't think the injury was serious enough to prevent Taylor from playing in the Gator Bowl.

"Before he was injured, Taylor was putting on a passing exhibition I would have paid to see," Holtz said. "In fact, our offense had a tremendous practice. It was one of our best offensive practices in a long time."

Fullback Jessie Clark returned to practice Sunday after missing four workouts because of a toe injury. Linebacker Bruce Sutherland, nose guard George Hall and defensive tackle Phillip Boren returned to practice after missing a session with minor injuries.

All-American defensive end Billy Ray Smith practiced for the first time since Arkansas resumed workouts following the completion of the regular season. Smith has been absent for several awards appearances.

Rose Match Changed

WILSON — Greenville Rose's Big East wrestling match with Wilson Fike, originally set for Tuesday, has been changed to today.

Rose, 1-3 overall and 1-0 in the conference, is coming off a 44-21 victory over Rocky Mount Friday.

Majors: Win Proves Vols Not 'Dregs'

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Tennessee's Garden State Bowl victory over Wisconsin proves the Volunteers "are not the dregs of football," says Coach Johnny Majors.

"This is terrific," said Majors after the Vols had posted their 28-21 victory Sunday. "We had a chance to be 8-4. The way I feel about it is that as long as there are bowls, and you have a chance to build on your season and improve, and as long as there is a worthwhile trip in it, well, daburn it, we are glad to go."

Bouyed by calm winds, Tennessee capitalized on its air attack and superior speed.

Quarterback Steve Alatorre completed 24 passes for 315 yards including one touchdown. Alatorre, who was voted most valuable player, also ran six yards for the Vols' decisive fourth-period touchdown.

The Badgers also watched Tennessee's sprinting on the Vols' first kickoff return, when track star Willie Gault raced 87 yards in 11 seconds for a touchdown.

"I knew as soon as he broke through, we were in real, real trouble," Wisconsin Coach Dave McClain said. "We've never seen speed like that in the Big 10. That's awesome speed."

Wisconsin, 7-5, dropped its fourth bowl in as many tries, while Tennessee evened its post-season mark at 12-12.

In other college football action over the weekend, Texas A&M whipped Oklahoma State 33-16 in the Independence Bowl at Shreveport, La., as quarterback Gary Kubiak fired first-half touchdown passes of 50 and 38 yards to flanker Jimmy Williams.

Idaho State beat South Carolina State 41-12 and Eastern Kentucky stopped Boise State 23-17 to advance to the finals in the Pioneer Bowl at Wichita Falls, Texas, next Saturday.

Boise State Coach Jim Criner said his team's mistakes "gave them (Eastern Kentucky) too much momentum and gave them a lead, and we just had a heck of a time coming back."

In NAIA Division I action, Elon (N.C.) College routed Hillsdale (Mich.) College 41-13 and advanced to the finals against Pittsburg (Kan.) State. Pittsburg moved into the championship game when its opponent, Cameron (Okla.) was disqualified for using two ineligible players.

Roanoke Wrestling

Coach Fighting Misconception By Parents

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer
ROBERSONVILLE — Roanoke coach Frank Mobley knows first hand the power of television and as a result of that power the Redskins' burgeoning wrestling program is suffering.

Mobley lists 20 wrestlers on his 1981 roster — an impressive total considering that a year ago the Redskins were at times unable to fill from three to six weight classes.

That growth, however, is being challenged by television. More precisely, by Championship Wrestling — a sport that resembles high school wrestling in name only.

"My main problem is getting the guys to practice," Mobley said. "The parents don't want their kids coming to practice because they have a concept that wrestling is like what they see on tv."

"I had four parents call this week who said they didn't want their kids wrestling because they might get hurt," Mobley said. "That's my main problem: the parents aren't letting the kids come to practice."

Mobley is trying to solve his problem the best way he knows how: through education. He is hoping to persuade parents to attend a high school wrestling match, to see what the sport is all about.

"I just hope I can get them out," he said. If he can, Mobley believes his problem will be solved and he can return to his main task: trying to further strengthen his growing wrestling program.

The Redskins, 1-2 overall and 1-1 in the Northeastern Conference after a 51-42 loss to Edenton Friday night, return three wrestlers off last year's team.

The leading returnee is conference champ Lee Briley at 155 pounds. Back also are Edward Bunch, who finished second in the conference a year ago at 167 pounds, and Dwayne Morning, who wrestles at 138 pounds.

Others on the team are: (98) Ernest Adams; (105) Ervin Spruill and Curtis Richardson; (112) Casey Carlton and David Council; (119) Willie Bell; (126) Joey Perry; (138) Donald Lindsey; (145) James Williams, Alvin Sessoms and Mitchell Modlin; (155) Eddie Cournoyer; (167) Victor Long.

Kim Chavis, Bryan Strange; (185 & 195) Gregory White and Joey Early.

Only one weight class has gone unfilled consistently this season for Roanoke — heavyweight, a pleasant change for Mobley.

"It's not like in the past when we giving up from 18 to 36 points before a match started," Mobley said. "We're only unable to fill one weight class and that gives us a better chance at the start."

As a result, Mobley feels his Redskins have a better chance at if not winning the conference title at least challenging some of the teams that eventually will end up winning it.

"We're gonna do fair in the conference," Mobley said. "We're not forfeiting as many now and that will definitely help us."

Still, Mobley is not picking his team to win the conference title. Instead, he figures Plymouth, Washington and Tarboro should be the strongest teams in the league.

Warriors Nip Jags, 69-68

GOLDSBORO — With Travis Perry scoring 14 of his 18 points in the fourth period, Eastern Wayne rallied from a 15-point third-quarter deficit to defeat Farmville Central, 69-68, Saturday night in a nonconference high school basketball game.

Earlier, in the girls' game, Rose Lang scored 26 points to lead Farmville Central to a 48-47 overtime victory over Eastern Wayne.

Farmville Central, now 2-4 this season, led, 49-34, at the end of the third quarter. The Jaguars, with three starters on the bench having fouled out, failed to hold the lead.

Led by Perry, who hit for three field goals and eight of nine free throws in the final period, Eastern Wayne rallied to take a 67-66 lead with less than two minutes left.

Darren Buckham's bucket pushed the lead to 69-66 with 40 seconds to play before Farmville closed it to one on a bucket with three seconds left in the game.

Farmville jumped out to a 16-11 lead at the end of the first period and increased its advantage to 32-24 at intermission. A 17-10 third period gave the Jaguars a 49-34 lead going into the final period, a lead the Jaguars were unable to hold.

In that final period, Eastern Wayne hit 15 of 17 free throws, the Jaguars seven of 13, as the Warriors outscored the Jaguars, 35-19, in the fourth quarter. The Jaguars were without both Terrance Pettaway, who scored 22 points, including 10 of 15 shots from the field, and Melvin Sutton, who had fouled out.

Eastern Wayne, meanwhile, played much of the final quarter without Tony Davis, who fouled out after scoring a game-high 27 points.

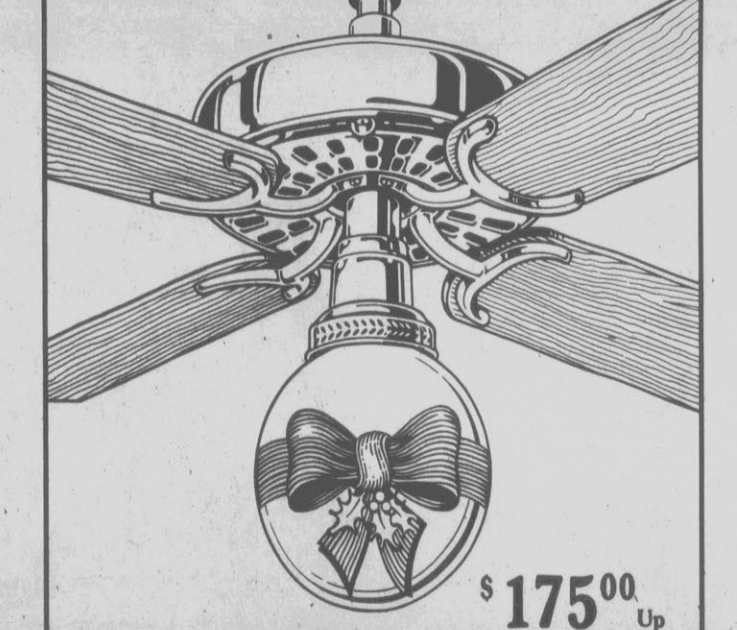

Buckham scored 12 points to give Eastern Wayne three players in double figures.

In the girls' game, Rhoda Harris hit two of five free throws in overtime to lead Farmville past the Lady Warriors.

Farmville led Eastern Wayne, 35-18, after three periods, but the Lady Warriors outscored the Lady Jaguars, 28-11, in the last quarter to send the game into overtime. Robin Grant led the Eastern Wayne rally, hitting 13 of her team-high 16 points in the period.

In the overtime, Harris hit the second of two free throws to give Farmville a 47-46 lead. A free throw by Leanne

Sampson Heads List For Naismith

ATLANTA (AP) — Virginia's Ralph Sampson, winner of the Naismith Award last season, heads a list of 10 candidates in early balloting for this year's trophy, to be given at season's end to the nation's best college basketball player.

The award is given by the Atlanta Tip-Off Club, and is determined through balloting by a nationwide panel of electors.

Along with Sampson on the season's first checklist are Sam Bowie of Kentucky, Quinton Dailey of San Francisco, Terry Cummings of DePaul, Kevin Magee of California-Irvine, John Paxson of Notre Dame, Fred Roberts of Brigham Young, Dominique Wilkins of Georgia and the North Carolina duo of Sam Perkins and James Worthy.

Lagging In Mortgage Payments

MET BY THE PRESS — Javier Perez de Cuellar, center, of Peru, is met by reporters at Kennedy airport in New York Sunday on his arrival from Peru. Perez has been selected by the United Nations Security Council to succeed Kurt Waldheim as Secretary-General of the U.N. The U.N. General Assembly is expected to formally elect Perez on Tuesday. Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Homeowners are falling behind on their mortgage payments at a record rate in what the Mortgage Bankers Association cites as "convincing evidence of the severity of the current recession."

The association's survey for the third quarter of this year found that 5.33 percent of the 7.5 million mortgage loans covered were past due. That means approximately 400,000 homeowners were at least 30 days late with their payment.

The high rate of past-due payments was linked to the high level of unemployment by Dr. Thomas H. Harter, chief economist for the association.

In the latest survey, for the three months ending Sept. 30, increases in the number of delinquent loans were reported in all regions of the country, with the highest rate — 7.78 percent — in the Midwest.

Included in that region are Michigan — where the nation's hard-hit automobile industry is based — Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and Wisconsin. Harter noted that higher mortgage delinquency rates have followed layoffs of autoworkers over the past two years.

The highest overdue payment rate in the nation, 9.14 percent, was recorded in Illinois, apparently reflecting the near-shutdown of the construction equipment industry centered there.

The lowest regional rate, 4.1 percent, was in New England.

The third quarter delinquency rate was the second record set this year in the association survey, which has been taken quarterly since 1953. The 5.31 percent delinquency rate for the first quarter of this year was the previous record, the association announced over the weekend.

Because of the recession and its high jobless rates, the outlook for the next several months is not good, "especially in those regions with large numbers of laid-off workers," the association's economics department said in a release.

"The nationwide scope of the economic downturn is apparent in the substantial increases in short-term delinquencies shown in all regions," said the report.

Although it noted that mortgage foreclosure rates have moderated, "it will take a stronger economy and improved family incomes to bring down delinquency rates substantially," the report said.

Harter noted that the third-quarter decline in foreclosures "may signal forbearance on the part of the lender. Lenders do not want to foreclose and take possession of houses in today's depressed housing market.

"Instead, they may be working harder with (borrowers) to keep them in their homes," Harter said.

The most disturbing trend indicated by the survey, said Harter, was a sharp rise in delinquency rates for conventional loans. In that category the past-due rate was 3.48 percent for the third quarter, compared to a 3.22 percent rate the previous quarter. "Homeowners with conventional mortgages have larger downpayments, and therefore more of an equity stake in their property than other mortgage holders," Harter explained.

"The increase in conventional delinquency rates is convincing evidence of the severity of the current recession," he said.

Increased delinquency rates for conventional loans are often viewed as bellwethers for the general economy, added the report by the MBA, a Washington, D.C.-based national real estate finance trade association representing more than 1,900 firms in the mortgage lending field.

History Meeting

All citizens interested in the history of Pitt County or in family histories, church and community histories or genealogy are invited to attend a second informational meeting on the plans to publish a county history, "The Chronicles of Pitt County."

The meeting will be held from 2-3:30 p.m. on Dec. 15 in the county Board of Commissioners meeting room at the Pitt County Office Building (the old hospital) in Greenville.

The purpose of the meeting is to answer questions citizens may have on various aspects of collecting information for this history volume, to be published in 1982.

The cooperation of each family in Pitt County will be needed to make this volume as complete as possible, it was noted.

Questions may be directed to each of the following in Grifton: Mrs. Jean Williams, Mrs. Murle Nelson, Miss Inez May, Mrs. Janet Haseley.

NO P&Z MEETING
The Greenville Planning & Zoning Commission will not meet during December. No items have been submitted requiring recommendations, the Planning Department reported.

Possible Solution To Nuisance Suits Flood

By LARRY MARGASAK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Court of Appeals, in a step aimed at unlogging the overburdened federal court system, may have found a way to dam the flood of nuisance suits filed by non-lawyers.

The possible solution comes in a decision by the court in the case of the Rev. Clovis Carl Green Jr., the founder — and only clergyman — of the Human Awareness Universal Life Church.

Most of the 600 to 700 suits Green has filed over the past decade were determined to be frivolous. The issue before the court, however, was serious.

The judges needed to find a way to put a stop to the frivolous suits without trampling on Green's constitutional right to sue. Their decision would affect other non-lawyers who, like Green, declare themselves too poor to pay the $10 court fee and proceed to file thousands of suits each year.

The appellate court gave Green the right to sue, but said he must first certify that the claims he wishes to present are new and have not already been disposed of by a federal court.

If he fails to do this, or provides false certification, he may be found in contempt of court. In fact, Green now is serving time at the Federal Correctional Institution in Latuna, Texas, for criminal contempt. He failed to obey previous court orders to stop filing legal papers.

"Faced with just one litigant who has a fanatical desire to flood the courts — a litigant armed with materials paid for by the state, an "in forma pauperis" statute (a pauper's law that waives the $10 filing fee) and the United States Constitution," federal courts have been struggling to deal with Green, the appeals court said.

The U.S. District Court in Washington and other federal courts had ordered Green to stop filing more lawsuits without paying the $10 fee.

The appeals court said, however, that this was unconstitutional, because it "erects a potentially prohibitive financial barrier" and leaves no room to decide on a case-by-case basis whether the suits are frivolous. A judge who determines a suit is frivolous can dismiss the action without a hearing.

If the appeals court has indeed found the constitutional way to deal with nuisance suits, it would be a relief to court clerks and judges who handled 27,711 suits filed without the help of a lawyer in U.S. courts in the year ended June 30, 1981.

By comparison, according to figures from the administrative office for the U.S. courts, the total number of cases filed in that period in federal courthouses was 299,307.

While some of the suits filed by non-lawyers are legitimate and come to trial, most are dismissed as frivolous.

An example of the kind of burden the appeals court hopes its decision in the Green case will relieve is provided by a man named Isiah Washington Jr., who has 125 suits on file in federal court in Washington.

In one he says, "The need for this lawsuit has generated from the outcries of men who have protested the successful innovation of strunket football games in organized league."

Court clerks and judges, who couldn't find the word "strunket" in the dictionary, have been unable to question Washington because his suits are sent by mail.

In the latest survey, for the three months ending Sept. 30, increases in the number of delinquent loans were reported in all regions of the country, with the highest rate — 7.78 percent — in the Midwest.

Included in that region are Michigan — where the nation's hard-hit automobile industry is based — Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and Wisconsin. Harter noted that higher mortgage delinquency rates

Tobacco Growers Seeking A More Stable Staple

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — With tobacco support programs under fire in Congress, agriculture officials in North Carolina are seeking an alternative to the product, which accounts for one third of state farm sales.

But the outlook for such a crop is pessimistic.

"It's just virtually impossible to come up with any combination of crops that will totally replace tobacco," said Dewey G. Harwood Jr.,

assistant director of the state Agricultural Extension Service. "For any alternative crop which would yield the same return per acre, you could saturate the market quickly or else you would find an unstable market."

But Harwood this month asked farm commodity department heads at North Carolina State University to study the potential of other crops and commodities to replace tobacco.

Vegetables and fruits, including berries, are among suggested options.

Mark J. Epp, training and outreach coordinator at the Frank Porter Graham Center, which educates farmers in the latest agriculture trends, said farmers find it difficult to leave the price and marketing security of tobacco.

"The major constraint to their switching over is they have to do a lot of hustling on their own, and even if they find the market, they don't see it as guaranteed," Epp said. "I would like to see some program developed where vegetable production and marketing are given as much attention as tobacco."

Congress narrowly rejected efforts in October to dismantle the federal tobacco program. The price supports and production controls emerged intact after the closest vote in the program's 43-year history. But farmers are skeptical about how long supporters can fight off increasingly powerful opposition.

U.S. Rep. Henry S. Reuss, D-Wis., considers the millions of dollars the federal government spends to wean poppy and coca growers from their narcotics-producing crops and has asked federal budget director David Stockman why the same thing, isn't being done for American tobacco farmers.

Dr. Nancy Millio, a Chapel Hill public health professor, looks at the 320,000 deaths and millions of dollars in health costs attributed to cigarette smoking each year and asks in her recently published book "Promoting Health through Public Policy" why the government is not helping tobacco farmers find alternative crops.

North Carolina farmers netted almost $1,300 an acre after production costs for the 371,000 acres of leaf they planted this year. A few crops frequently bring a higher return per acre — trellis tomatoes at $3,545 an acre, strawberries at $3,008, apples at $1,974 and peaches at $1,960 — but farmers and agriculture officials say none of these commodities has the price security and guaranteed market outlets assured by the federal tobacco program and auction warehouse.

"I want something besides tobacco," said W. Harold Coor of Selma. "I like to grow tobacco, but I don't think it's going to be here forever — or it may be here, but there'll be a lot of changes."

Pitt Planning Board To Meet

U.S. Has Few Cards To Play To Protect Poland

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration has very few cards to play in trying to deter the Soviet Union from crushing the Solidarity movement in Poland.

Grain and high technology sales could be suspended, hurting the Soviets in two vital areas. But economic sanctions, particularly cutbacks in food shipments, require the strong support of allied and friendly governments.

Business being business, it is very hard to arrange an effective boycott. The Carter administration found that out twice during its last year in office — when it tried to punish the Soviet Union for its military move into Afghanistan and again when it tried to isolate Iran economically for taking Americans hostage.

Other countries, some of them long-standing U.S. allies, stepped in to sell food to the Soviet Union and to trade with the revolutionary regime in Tehran.

Beyond economic sanctions, another possibility would be to break off the just-started arms limitation talks in Geneva.

The Soviets would like to keep the United States from deploying new nuclear missiles in Western Europe beginning in 1983. But with the negotiations just underway, there is no agreement for the United States to threaten to tear up if the Soviets clamp down on Poland.

For the moment, then, the administration is concentrating on warnings — rather than action — in hopes of discouraging the Soviets from intervening.

"Several times, along with the whole free world, we've made it plain how seriously we would view any interference," President Reagan said Sunday.

"The Polish people should find a solution to their current difficulties through a process of negotiation and compromise among the parties involved," Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. said. "Above all, they should be permitted to do so without outside interference."

Beyond these kind of warnings, tight-lipped U.S. officials will say only that the Polish government's crackdown on Solidarity is under study.

U.S. analysts view the immediate potential problem not as one of an imminent Soviet invasion, but use of the Polish government to try to break the back of the reform movement.

Zbigniew Brzezinski, who was President Carter's national security adviser, says the suppression is "clearly being done at the Soviets' behest" and that U.S. policymakers should keep that in mind as they make their decisions.

"If this action is designed to uproot it (Solidarity), wipe it out, arrest thousands of people, it brings into play the question of East-West relations," he said.

Former Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, in a separate interview Sunday, called the events in Poland "tragic."

"I cannot imagine this is not going to end without the attempted suppression of Solidarity," he said.

Farm Scene

By ROGER COBB
Agri. Ext. Agent

Premature flowering of tobacco was a problem on several farms in Pitt County in 1981. The exact causes of premature flowering are not known. It is thought that sensitive varieties are stressed in plantbeds and fields causing premature flowering. These stresses interfere with nitrogen uptake and utilization. Soil moisture and temperature are two things that ultimately stress plants.

Premature flowering is usually worse when the plants are stressed first in the plantbed and then in the field. It is not usually as bad when the plants are stressed only in one instance.

The unusually cold nights in mid-March and the first of April probably triggered premature flowering last year. This was compounded by the cold nights in May after most of the tobacco was set out.

Good plantbed management to reduce stress is important. The following practices are believed to be useful in reducing but not completely eliminating premature flowering:

- Locate plant beds on warm soils with a good service and internal drainage and with wind protection to the north and west. This may be the single most important factor in reducing early flowering.

- Maintain soil pH in the plant bed and field near 6.0 as suggested by the soil test.

- Seed beds about two weeks later than normal so that plants are not as likely to undergo low temperature stress in the plant bed. This will also delay transplanting which will help plants miss low temperatures early in the field.

- Avoid using bunched plants.

- Be sure to cover beds at night when there is a danger of late season frost or low temperatures. The effect of low temperature on early flowering is worse when plants are about transplant size.

- Avoid overuse of any soil-incorporated chemicals.

- Use only water in transplanter barrel.

- Use suggested rates of nutrients and apply them in a manner that reduces the probability of fertilizer salts injury and nitrogen stress.

Early flowering usually looks worse than it really is. Unless 10 percent of the crop flowers early, do nothing but follow normal practices because yields will not be reduced substantially. If it does occur topping and turning out a sucker is usually the most practical option, but be sure to follow the practices to reduce the spread of mosaic.

PTC MEETING

The Public Transportation Commission will meet Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in the progress room of the Public Works facility on Beatty Street.

ONE THING'S FOR SURE. WITH AN IRA FROM BB&T, YOU'LL AGE WELL.

Your age is going to increase with time, of course. There's no getting around that. But, with an IRA, so is your fortune.

You could retire a millionaire.

If you start your IRA (Individual Retirement Account) when you're in your early thirties and interest rates stay about the same as they are now, a $2,000-a-year investment will make you a millionaire by the time you retire! And even if you can't start that early, you can still build a whopping retirement fund.

You'll pay lower income taxes.

As long as you're a wage earner, whether or not you have a retirement plan where you work, you're eligible for BB&T's IRA. And you can open your account after January 1st with as little as $500. You're allowed to sock away up to $2,000 each year ($2,250 if you're married and only one of you is a wage earner, $4,000 if both of you are). And whatever your annual investment is, you can deduct every penny of it from that year's gross income. Which means real tax savings.

Your interest is tax-deferred.

The interest you earn, which is tied to money market rates, is compounded daily at BB&T, not monthly or annually as may be the case at some banks and savings and loans. This can add up to a difference of thousands and thousands of dollars by the time you reach retirement age.

And all your interest is tax-deferred. You pay no tax on it until you begin withdrawing funds at retirement, when you'll almost certainly be in a lower tax bracket and, therefore, required to pay less.

Your money piles up until you're 59½.

If you withdraw any money from your IRA before you reach the age of 59½, Federal regulations require you to pay a 10% IRS penalty on that money and perhaps a substantial interest penalty as well.

But once you hit 59½, nothing can stop you. You may take your money in a lump sum, receive it in monthly, quarterly or annual installments, or even wait until you're 70½ — but no later — to begin withdrawing funds.

Call or visit any BB&T office today and ask us about this extraordinary opportunity to save for your future. Then plan to open your IRA after January 1st and get started along the road to prosperity.

When you're ready to retire, you won't look old. You'll look like a million bucks.

Nobody works harder for your money.

Projected growth shown is based on 12% interest compounded daily on an annual contribution of $2,000 deposited on the first day of each year for 35 years.

Paycheck Faces Morals Charge

By BRAD CAIN
 Associated Press Writer
 JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Country music singer Johnny Paycheck goes before a judge today to answer charges of sexual assault of a minor, police say.

Paycheck had just finished giving a free concert to prison inmates Sunday night when he was arrested at his motel. Patrolman Bob Riebold said. He was held overnight at the Cole County Jail.

Burt Guetz, the prosecutor for Natrona County, Wyo., said in a telephone interview Sunday night that a warrant was issued Friday charging Paycheck with having sex with a 12-year-old girl after a concert in Casper, Wyo. in April or May.

Guetz said the charges "had just now come to the attention of law-enforcement authorities." He declined to elaborate.

Riebold said Paycheck and his band were "very cooperative" and offered no resistance as the singer was apprehended.

Paycheck is to answer the charges before a Cole County Circuit Court judge. He could volunteer to go to Wyoming to face the charges or fight them here, which could lead to extradition proceedings, authorities said.

Jefferson City police knew about the charges before the concert for the 1,500 inmates at the Missouri State Penitentiary but "waited to make the arrest until he was away from the prison so we wouldn't cause any confusion," Riebold said.

"Can't you imagine the riot it might have caused (at the prison) if we had arrested him before the concert?" he asked.

Paycheck's most widely known recent song is "Take This Job and Shove It." Inmates had written him letters asking for the concert.

 NEW YORK (AP) — By either yardstick, ratings or quality, the bulk of the networks' new programs have failed or are failing.

Of the 30 programs introduced by the networks this fall, only six are in the top 40, as compiled by the A.C. Nielsen Co. Is there any other profession that would tolerate a 20 percent success rate?

For much of the season, only four shows were tinkering with success. ABC's "Fall Guy" and NBC's "Love, Sidney" are in the top 30; ABC's "Today's FBI" and NBC's "Father Murphy" are in the top 40. But in the last two weeks, premieres of "Bret Maverick" on NBC and "Falcon Crest" on CBS cracked the top 10, indicating the public will tune in to new shows when it's interested.

Even though CBS' new shows have fared poorly, it continues as No. 1 on the strength of its Sunday night lineup, including "60 Minutes," and Friday night, with "Dallas," which now builds an audience for "Falcon Crest." The top shows last year are basically the top shows this year.

To be sure, it takes time for the public to become devotees of a show and the writers' strike did force the networks to stagger debut episodes, lessening some of their impact. But there are other reasons why this year's new programs are suffering.

Cable television, with its well-known theatrical movies and sports events, has become a greater alternative to the commercial networks, making viewers more selective about accepting what ABC, CBS and NBC are offering. The Ted Bates advertising agency conducted a survey for the first six weeks of the season and found that 86 percent of the average viewing audience was watching the networks compared to 88 percent last year, a slippage from the year before.

Cable's inroads help explain why the networks' theatrical and TV movies are not doing as well. Last season, ABC's "Sunday Night Movie" ranked 17th. This season, no network movie night is in the top 25.

There's also a possibility that cable has picked up audiences because the networks have reduced the visual sex and violence on TV. Except for "Dallas" and the other prime-time soap operas, sexual content is camouflaged in talk but rarely shown in any explicit way. And the made-for-TV movies have not been overly sexual, except during the key ratings measuring month of November.

The networks say subtler programming represents the mood of the country, not a response to the Coalition for Better Television, which threatened a sponsor boycott of highly sexual programming.

ABC's "Three's Company," the third most popular series behind "Dallas" and "60 Minutes," is still the most pandering show on TV, with its weekly jiggles and sexual hijinks. Michael Ross, producer of "Three's Company," says the show hasn't been affected by pressure groups:

"Not a bit. Do you know why? 'Cause we're a hit show. We do very well. We do very well for the network. I'm thinking of the new shows coming on. I think they will be affected."

The networks also said the slew of new law-and-order programs reflected the country's conservative shift, but it appears they misread the public because almost all of them have been disasters, including ABC's "Strike Force," NBC's "McClain's Law," and "Shannon," yanked off CBS' schedule after several weeks.

"Hill Street Blues" with eight Emmy Awards, has been the exception, one of third-rated NBC's few hits.

Another slipping proposition is reality programming: NBC's "Real People" and ABC's "That's Incredible" have both dropped in popularity.

If the networks are running out of freaks, at least there's no shortage of unpopular programs.

Honored For Roles In 'On Golden Pond'

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Henry Fonda and Katharine Hepburn, who starred together in the movie "On Golden Pond," enjoyed the fruits of victory by being named male and female stars of the year at the Hollywood Women's Press Club's Golden Apple Awards.

Both, however, were unable to attend Sunday's ceremony. Fonda remained hospitalized in good condition at Cedars-Sinai Medical Center, where doctors are monitoring his new heart medication.

And Miss Hepburn was in New York City, where she is appearing in her new Broadway play, "The West Side Waltz."

Named as female and male discoveries of the year were Elizabeth McGovern, for her role in the movie, "Ragtime," and Tom Selleck, star of the "Magnum P.I." television series.

Cary Grant received the Louella Parsons Award as the person who presents the best image of Hollywood to the world.

Another no-show was Ryan O'Neal, but he had good reason not to be present. He was named recipient of the Sour Apple award, which is given to "the person who most believes in his or her own publicity."

Applause and laughter greeted the annual surprise

Santa Claus, who doffed his beard to reveal himself as Erik Estrada. The star of TV's "CHiPs" had made Golden Apple history last year when he won the Sour Apple and became the first recipient to show up to collect it.

Brenda Lee Eyes Slowing Down

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Brenda Lee, who's been singing professionally since she was 7, says she would like to cut back on her career in about five years.

"I would hope to slow down almost to a halt — not complete retirement — in about five years," said Miss Lee, who turned 37 on Friday.

"Most of the time I've had a good time," she said. "However, I do get weary of the traveling that is necessary to sustain a career. The older the body gets, the older traveling gets. Ask any traveling salesman."

Miss Lee, who lives in Nashville, became nationally known as a child singer in the 1950s with hits like "I'm Sorry," "All Alone Am I," and "As Usual." She also had a big Christmas hit, "Rockin' Around the Christmas Tree."

Familiar Faces In Star Trek II

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — There will be more familiar faces in "Star Trek II" than in the first movie adaptation of the cult TV show, "Star Trek," which features the television cast in the film versions.

Joining William Shatner as Admiral James T. Kirk and Leonard Nimoy as Mr. Spock will be Ricardo Montalban as Khan, a role he created in a 1976 episode of the TV series, and Paul Winfield as Capt. Clark Terrell, a Starfleet commander.

Montalban stars in his own weekly anthology series, "Fantasy Island." Winfield received an Oscar nomination for his starring role in "Sounder."

Q.1—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠K865 ♥4 ♠A984 ♠7643
 The bidding has proceeded:
 North East South West
 1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ Pass
 2 ♥ Pass 3 ♠ Pass
 3 ♥ Pass ?
 What do you bid now?

ner must bid six no trump if he has a balanced minimum (22 points), but he may bid seven no trump with a maximum or probe for a grand slam by introducing a four-card suit at the six-level.

Q.3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠J965 ♥KJ8 ♠KJ1073 ♠5
 The bidding has proceeded:
 East South West North
 Pass Pass 1 ♠ Dble
 Pass 2 ♠ Pass 3 ♠
 Pass ?
 What action do you take?
 A.—By introducing a new suit after making a takeout double when you might have a bust, partner must have a pretty good hand. Since you were almost strong enough for a jump response originally, it would be cowardly indeed if you did not bid three no trump now.

Q.4—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠A9652 ♥K10872 ♠7 ♠83
 The bidding has proceeded:
 North East South West
 1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ Pass
 3 ♠ Pass 3 ♥ Pass
 4 ♠ Pass ?
 What action do you take?
 A.—The auction is forcing to game, so you cannot pass—much as you might like to. Since partner has shown 10 or 11 cards in the minor suits, there is no point to your rebidding your hearts. The only sensible course is to raise to five clubs.

Q.5—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠AQ ♥K107 ♠QJ82 ♠J952
 The bidding has proceeded:
 South West North East
 1 ♠ Pass 1 ♥ Pass
 What do you bid now?

A.—Though you have adequate support to raise hearts, you have a balanced hand with stoppers in all suits and a fair amount of your strength is concentrated in your short suit. Rebid one no trump because that is a more descriptive rebid than a raise to two hearts.

Q.6—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠AK8763 ♥K6 ♠J6 ♠K98
 The bidding has proceeded:
 South West North East
 1 ♠ Pass 2 ♥ Pass
 2 ♠ Pass 2 NT Pass ?
 What do you bid now?
 A.—You have honors in every suit, more than a minimum opening and no distinctive distributional feature, so why not make the most descriptive bid of three no trump? Three spades would be an underbid; four spades would be too unilateral. At no trump, your side might be able to run either major suit for nine tricks.

A Glance Back Into The Future

Nostradamus, one of the most renowned psychics in history, was born on this date 480 years ago. A skilled physician, he saved many of his fellow Frenchmen from a plague. But it was his special prophetic powers that led to his appointment as royal physician. Some believe he cast accurate horoscopes for the sons of Queen Catherine de Medici and predicted her husband's death. His most famous prophecies are preserved in poetic verse, called the Centuries. Some interpreters of these mysterious poems claim he predicted the French Revolution and Hitler's horrors. His most disquieting prophecy, at least for us, is that in 1999 "the great terror will descend from the sky." A hydrogen bomb? An invasion from Mars? Or just another inaccurate forecast of doom?

DO YOU KNOW — Which prophetic in Greek mythology was always prophesying doom?
FRIDAY'S ANSWER — Edward's brother, George the VI, succeeded him as king.

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, DEC. 15, 1981

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A wonderful day for you to extend your influence beyond present boundaries. Make constructive plans to gain your aims. Be more alert to what's going on around you.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Don't wait until the last minute to do your Christmas shopping. Be more cooperative with others. Be more optimistic.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You are able to handle your duties in a positive manner now. Find a different kind of amusement to enjoy.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Handle your correspondence and communications better and you can be more successful in the future. Be logical.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You are able to handle your work more efficiently now and can cooperate more with allies.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Take advantage of an opportunity and profit from a special talent you have. Enjoy good friends during spare time.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Seize an opportunity to make the situation at home more harmonious. A new plan needs more study to be successful.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) If you tell your associates what you expect of them, this will lead to a better understanding. Strive for happiness.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Discuss your ambitions with higher-ups and they will help you get ahead. Not a good day for taking risks.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Seek the aid of others in activities that mean much to you. Postpone handling an uncertain business matter.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Get your biggest ideas whittled down to practical size and then seek the support you need. Maintain your poise.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Good day to get together with friends and be of mutual help to one another. Relax at home tonight.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) An important business matter could cause worry early in the day but by evening all is okay. Express happiness.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will do well in any profession that requires much talking, such as sales, the law, teaching and the like. The field of imports and exports would also be good. Don't neglect ethical training early in life.

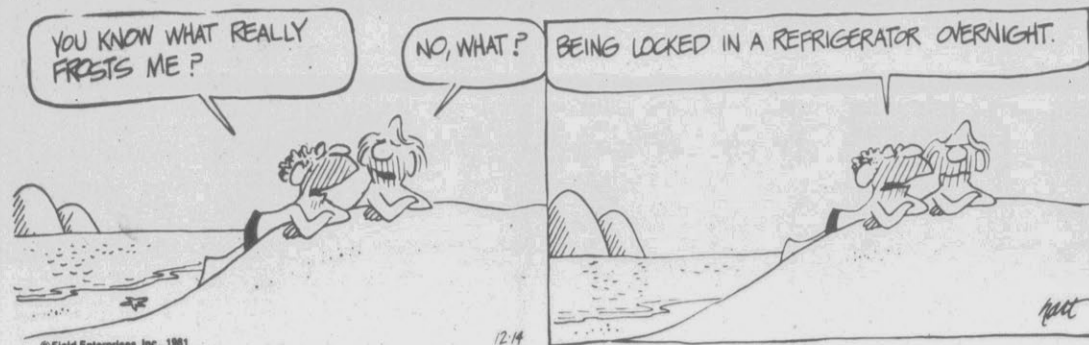

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

High Speed Chase Ends In Car Crash

CARNESVILLE, Ga. (AP) — An hour-long high speed chase through north Georgia and South Carolina ended when a man later charged with armed robbery lost control of his car at a police roadblock and crashed, the Georgia State Patrol said.

The man, who was not immediately identified, was charged Sunday night with the armed robbery of a service station in Franklin County, said a deputy sheriff who asked not to be identified. The deputy said Sheriff Joe Foster would release the man's identity today.

The man also is suspected in the robbery of a service station in Banks County earlier Sunday, said Georgia State Patrol Sgt. M.G. Dukes, one of the officers involved in the chase. Banks County authorities had not completed their investigation or charged the man early today.

The man was captured when he ran his stolen car off Georgia 17 at a police roadblock in Franklin County, Dukes said. No one was injured in the incident.

Dukes said the car was chased through Hart and Stephens counties in Georgia and Oconee County, S.C., at speeds between 80 mph and 100 mph before it wrecked in Franklin County.

Dukes said a state trooper spotted the car after county police reported it had been involved in robberies at service stations in Banks and Franklin counties earlier Sunday.

The car apparently had been stolen on Saturday, said Viola Wilson, a dispatcher at the Toccoa state patrol post.

Hunt Leads Chorus Of Gloom Over N.C. Highways

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt has been leading a chorus of state officials predicting gloom for the state's highway system.

Money shortages, even with the gasoline tax increase Hunt pushed through the Legislature last summer, are forcing the state to scale down its plans for building new highways and improving old ones, he says.

The state Board of Transportation, a political group whose members traditionally seek projects for their areas, will come face to face with that financial reality this week.

It plans to release a revised version of the Transportation Department's seven-year plan for new highway construction, and Hunt has been trying to brace people for the worst.

"There will be a lot of anguish. People need to be prepared for a lot of changes in the plan," Hunt warned last week. "A lot of projects are going to be dropped, and almost every project is going to be moved back and stretched out."

His new Transportation secretary, William Roberson, has been taking the same message on the stump.

"Unfortunately, highway revenues are still declining and inflation continues to erode the purchasing power of the highway dollars we do have," Roberson says in the speech he's repeated across the state.

"The money just isn't available — and there are no signs or signals that it will become available — for the big majority of highway construction projects needed and scheduled."

One reason they've been stressing the gloomy outlook is the nature of highways in North Carolina. State officials like to call highways the lifeblood of the state's economy, but it's also true those highways long have been a vital element of state politics, too.

There is certain to be political fallout, transportation officials warn, when people find the highway they've been counting on isn't coming through.

"There's going to be a lot of weeping and wailing from Board of Transportation members who have some projects near and dear to their hearts that ain't going to get funded," observed Dave Bumgardner, a state representative from Belmont and board member.

"Let's face it — they are political animals too, and a lot of them have projects they've promised people they'll look out for, and now they're going to be put off."

Hunt has put an emphasis on east-west highways, so many expect the schedule to keep plans for the missing I-40 link to Wilmington and U.S. 64 and 264 in the East. But urban areas may be in for a disappointment, Hunt said, and board members say Charlotte's hopes for a belt-loop expressway are in trouble.

The twin devils behind the money woes are inflation and the dwindling consumption of gasoline. Since the gas tax is based on the number of gallons sold, not the price, revenues fall as drivers use less.

Hunt's 3-cents a gallon increase provided about a $120 million boost. But a new emphasis on road maintenance, ordered by the Legislature, has combined with the money crunch to leave only $56 million in state money for highway construction this year.

Last year there was $160 million, Transportation officials say, and after the last of the 1977 highway bond money runs out in July of 1983, the projections show no money for new construction.

There's also a certain amount of "I told you so" in the dire predictions, however.

Hunt has been quick to point out that the General Assembly didn't pass the full highway-finance package he sent them in the spring. It passed the gas-tax hike but balked at higher liquor and beer taxes, providing only about two-thirds of what Hunt said was needed for a bare-minimum highway program.

Hunt says not only is the alcohol-tax money needed, but still more highway revenues will have to be found in a few years.

"There's one answer to it down the road — that is to go to the members of the Legislature and ask them to vote for more money for roads," Hunt said. "That's where you go. Don't call the governor. Go to the Legislature."

MUGGED FOR $15 — Little Randy Scott Aldrich laughs with his mother, Vivian, in New York. The 4-year-old, in Brooklyn from St. Petersburg, Fla. visiting his grandmother, was robbed of his $15 savings by a knife-wielding 12-year-old, police said. The boy was on his way to buy a Mickey Mouse toy. Police said they had taken the pre-teen bandit into custody. (AP Laserphoto)

Windfall Due Oil Leases

WILKESBORO, N.C. (AP) — A Mobil Oil Co. leasing arrangement for oil and gas rights in North Carolina's northwest mountains could provide a windfall for a Wilkes County timber company.

R.B. Johnston and Sons Inc. of North Wilkesboro will receive between $180,000 to $305,000 over the next three years for about 41,684 acres in the agreement. The 10-year lease includes a $180,000 bonus provision, with rent of $1 an acre each year.

If natural gas is found in quantities sufficient for commercial production, Johnston and Sons would be entitled to one-eighth the profits. And regardless of the productivity, an additional $375,162.48 would be paid as long as the lease continues.

The lease, covering land in Ashe, Caldwell, Watauga and Wilkes counties, is the largest filed in the northwest mountains since oil companies began buying leases in the area about a year ago.

"This is a pioneer area for exploration and everybody's looking up there," said Fred Luce, vice president for land acquisition for Mobil's explorations division, referring to the Blue Ridge Mountains of Virginia, North Carolina and Tennessee.

Mobil and other oil company officials have said they don't expect to find oil in the area. They hope fields of natural gas lie beneath the mountains in a recently discovered geological formation called the Eastern Overthrust Belt.

If the gas is there, experts say, it lies more than 10,000 feet below the surface.

Luce said seismic exploration — a process using cables and sound waves — has started in the region. In addition, American Oil Co. and Atlantic Richfield Co. have drilled deep wells nearby in Tennessee and Virginia.

Mobil and a new Denver-based company called KEWA Explorations Inc. were the first to seek leases in the mountains. Gulf Oil Corp. joined them during the summer.

Amoco has asked the federal government for permission to lease 219,000 acres of U.S. Forestry Service land in Buncombe, Cherokee, Clay, Haywood, Henderson, Graham and Transylvania counties. But the U.S. Department of Land Management has not yet issued the leases.
