

$4 Million In December

Property Tax Collections Up

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

The Board of County Commissioners was told this morning that property tax collections for the month of December totaled more than $4 million.

Tax collector Bill Smith reported the $4 million collected in December put the county more than $100,000 ahead of collections during the same period a year ago, while reminding the board that collections through the month of November were more than a half-million dollars behind.

Collections from July 1, 1981, through December 31, amounted to more than $6 million, or more than half the taxes billed.

County finance officer Margaret Roberts noted that more than $2 million in taxes was collected between Christmas and New Years, with more than $1 million collected in one day during that period. She noted that the money has been invested in order to earn interest for the county.

Tax supervisor Jimmy Hardee said tax listing, which began this morning, is moving well, with property owners having to standing in line to list.

Ralph Hall, director of the physical plant at Pitt Memorial Hospital reported the new bed tower has been completed and all three floors are occupied.

He noted that the final cost of the facility, paid for by the State of North Carolina, as part of the East Carolina University School of Medicine, was more than $5.56 million, and $115 less than the funds available.

In other business this morning, the board named the county tax collector as the person authorized to issue "going out of business" licenses for firms located outside municipal limits in the county, and approved road petitions for SR 1541 in Pactolus Township and SR 1768 in Grimesland Township.

Commissioners have scheduled a meeting with the Greenville City Council for 6:30 p.m. January 26 at the Greenville Country Club.

Fire Districts

The city has adopted a new fire district with primary and secondary sections designated and certain local areas placed in one of these districts.

The primary fire district includes areas in which buildings are located in close proximity and have high potential of fire spreading from one structure to another. In the primary district, the general statutes prohibit wooden structures from being erected, rehabilitated or altered.

The secondary district includes less congested areas of the city in which wooden structures might become business operations. Wooden structures may be repaired or altered in the secondary district once authorization is obtained from the Engineering and Inspections Department.

Ron Sewell, director of Engineering and Inspections, called the change in the fire district regulations a positive step in providing for the orderly growth and development of the city. He said people seeking more information on the new fire district should contact his office at 752-4137.

North Hit By Storms

By MASHA HAMILTON
Associated Press Writer

A blizzard surged into the Colorado Rockies today with 85-mph winds, while a Midwestern snowstorm clobbered Milwaukee and other cities with foot-deep snow and a dozen Southern tornadoes brought the weekend weather death toll to 30.

Most schools and scores of industries were shut down across the southern half of Wisconsin as a near-blizzard closed roads as fast as snowplows could open them. Milwaukee officials said city buses would remain parked until further notice.

Heavy snow also spread across northern Missouri and Iowa.

Still another blizzard hit the Colorado Rockies, where heavy snow since late December has built 6½ feet deep in places and touched off hundreds of avalanches. Residents were told to brace for winds gusting to 100 mph. Boulder registered 85-mph gusts.

In eastern Maine, 20,000 people spent the weekend in 10-degree weather without electricity after a raging snowstorm. Power was restored to all but the most isolated homes late Sunday and early today, utility officials said.

Snow was coming down at the rate of 2 inches an hour today in Columbia, Mo. Kansas City and Kirksville, Mo., got 8 inches of snow Sunday and Topeka, Kans., received 6 inches.

Thousands of Idaho schoolchildren were told to stay home today as many roads were snowpacked and treacherous. Boise struggled out from under a foot of snow — its heaviest in 33 years.

A line of storms stretching from the Missouri's Bootheel to Kansas City dumped a foot of snow in the northeastern town of Kirksville.

Polish Leader Urges U.S. Allies Oppose Sanctions

By The Associated Press
Polish Premier Wjciech Jaruzelski, meeting today with Western European diplomats in Warsaw, was expected to argue against the Western allies joining the United States in an economic squeeze on his martial law regime.

In Brussels, Italian Foreign Minister Emilio Colombo today told his nine Common Market counterparts that they should be unified and end all but direct food assistance to the Polish people until Jaruzelski produces guarantees the "repression" of Poland's martial law will be lifted.

"Without this (unity) we will confirm two very grave facts," Colombo said, "the indirect acceptance of the Polish repression and the division of the West." A text of his statement, for delivery at the closed door meeting, was released to the press.

Jaruzelski, head of the military council now ruling Poland, ordered martial law Dec. 13 in what he called an alternative to civil war. The regime moved swiftly to establish order in the workplaces, plagued by strikes since the independent trade union Solidarity was established in August 1980 and began demanding liberalization and reforms.

Radio Warsaw said all factories, administrative offices and public transport in the capital were operating normally today, the first work day of the new year. Broadcasts monitored in London also said most schools reopened "after 20 days' holiday."

Uncensored reports from Poland said 20 closed factories and industrial plants were to reopen today following attempts to purge unionists who led strikes in defiance of martial law.

There were no immediate reports on labor conditions outside the capital today.

Among plants the government hoped to get working again were the big Lenin shipyard in Gdansk, where Solidarity was born in the summer of 1980, and the Pafawag railroad car factory in Wroclaw, a center of labor unrest. It was the third attempt to reopen the shipyard.

Western response to Reagan's trade sanctions against Poland and the Soviets has been cool, although the allies have protested the military crackdown and suspension of civil liberties. Reagan claims the Soviets were the chief instigators behind the declaration of martial law and must be punished.

The allies have expressed concern that suspending officially sponsored aid to Poland and imposing other sanctions would jeopardize East-West relations and make Poland more reliant on the Soviet Union. NATO's foreign ministers plan to meet in Brussels next week, an official at the military alliance's headquarters announced today. Word that Jaruzelski wanted to meet the Common Market members' envoys in Warsaw was released by the West German Foreign Ministry.

New Electronic Mail Service Begins Today

By JEFFREY MILLS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Postal Service, ignoring Justice Department opposition, today began a new electronic mail service businesses can use to have their computerized bills and messages delivered with regular mail.

The Electronic Computer

Originated Mail service will allow large-volume mailers to bypass traditional handling methods in which a letter is sorted by various postal clerks before being delivered.

Under the service, a company's computer will send a message via a communications common carrier — such as long-distance telephone — to one of 25 specially equipped post offices around the country.

There, the message will be printed on paper, put in a distinctive blue-and-white E-COM envelope and delivered with regular mail.

Postmaster General William F. Bolger, announcing the new service today, called it "the latest step in a progression of technologies we have used to transport the mail" and said the result would be more efficient handling of computer-generated messages.

The service is for companies that send 200 or more computer-originated messages at one time. The Postal Service promises delivery within two business days.

The Justice Department had asked for a restraining order to block the service New Year's Eve, but a federal court refused. The department contended the E-COM service threatens to divert taxpayers' money to subsidize the new service.

Bolger said he was pleased that the court had refused to approve the delay. "We welcome a full hearing on the merits of our case. We believe we have proceeded fully within the law in obtaining approval to start this service," he said.

E-COM is the Postal Service's largest effort to harness computer technology to move the mail.

Pitt Collections Increase In Nov.

Net sales and use tax collections in Pitt County in November amounted to $307,600, according to Mark Lynch, Secretary of the N.C. Department of Revenue.

The November figure compared with $274,589 recorded in Pitt in October, Lynch said.

Neighboring county totals for November and October included: Beaufort, $146,574, $147,611; Carteret, $167,556, $169,800; Craven, $206,723, $229,104; Edgecombe, $156,779, $152,701;

Greene, $19,433, $20,394; Lenoir, $192,234, $210,835; Martin, $76,387, $67,680; Nash, $289,091, $280,000; Wayne, $279,249, $268,984; and Wilson, $224,215, $232,024.

Lynch said total distributions in the 99 participating counties for November amounted to $19,359,624, compared with $19,318,193 in October.

HOSPITAL CHAPLAIN?

Why doesn't a hospital the size of Pitt County Memorial Hospital have a full-time chaplain on duty? L.M.

According to Rick Gilstrap, hospital associate director, having a chaplain is not one of the services that the hospital has provided in the past because of a ruling from the attorney general which precluded it. The hospital budget allowed it, but state law did not. Gilstrap says the hospital is appealing the ruling and hopefully Pitt Memorial will have a chaplain by late spring.

Reagan Has Busy Week Of Decisions In Store

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, back home in the White House after a week-long vacation in California, has a full work menu for the week ahead. Not all of it is tasty.

There is lunch with West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt, with whom Reagan has differed over the Soviet role in the Polish crisis.

There are some final decisions to be made on the 1983 fiscal budget.

There is a National Security Council meeting on Poland.

There is a likely meeting to discuss a proposal to return certain federal tax revenues to the states.

And there is a meeting with Richard V. Allen, who has shown no public sign of willingly giving up his job as national security adviser despite signals from White House aides that he is on the way out.

"He's got a lot to do when he gets back," deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes said Sunday as the president flew home from his sixth vacation in California since taking office a little over 11 months ago.

The top priority items, Speakes said, are to "finish up the budget" that will be delivered to Congress soon and to keep abreast of developments in Poland.

But White House officials have made clear that overhauling White House foreign policy operations — with whatever that portends for Allen — also will be high on the list.

They have said the national security adviser, whoever fills the post, will be given increased authority and daily access to the president, something Allen has not had.

The aides also have said Deputy Secretary of State William P. Clark is the unanimous choice of Reagan's inner circle to replace Allen if he steps aside voluntarily upon completion of an internal White House investigation of possible ethics violations or is removed by Reagan.

While in California, Reagan met with Clark, Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr., Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger and deputy White House chief of staff Michael K. Deaver to review preparations for Schmidt's visit Tuesday.

The West German chancellor has expressed disagreement with Reagan's assessment that the Kremlin bears responsibility for the imposition of martial law in Poland.

But that Saturday afternoon meeting came amid a flurry of news leaks about Allen from well-placed administration sources who asked anonymity. Each new leak added validity to reports that Allen would be ousted.

It was after that meeting that White House aides let it be known that if Allen were cleared by the internal White House ethics inquiry and stepped aside, there would be no reason why he would not be offered another administration job.

Vice President George Bush said on NBC's "Today" program today that he would like to see Allen remain in the administration.

"He's been cleared by the Justice Department; he's an able man," Bush said, refusing to comment further on Allen's status.

Haigwood In Bid For DA

Thomas D. Haigwood, chief assistant district attorney for this district, filed today for election as district attorney for Prosecutorial District 3-A — Pitt County.

Haigwood, who has been employed by the District Attorney's office for approximately nine years, is seeking the post now held by District Attorney Eli Bloom.

Bloom, who has been a solicitor, prosecutor and district attorney for 48 years, will not seek re-election to the post.

Haigwood is a native of Pitt County, attended public schools in Greenville, and both undergraduate and law school at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, where he received his law degree in 1970.

He served from 1970 until 1971 as law clerk to U.S. District Court Judge John D. Larkins Jr., and was a partner in the Greenville and Farmville law firm of Owens, Browning and Haigwood, before joining the District Attorney's for the old District 3, which included Pitt, Craven, Pamlico and Carteret Counties.

Haigwood is married to the former Sarah Walton of Wilmington, and they are members of the First Presbyterian Church of Greenville, where he serves as youth advisor to the Senior High Fellowship and is on the scouting committee.

He has served as an adjunct assistant professor in the Department of Corrections at East Carolina University, is a Kiwanian, and is past president of the Greenville Breakfast Kiwanis Club. He is a member of the Greenville Masonic Lodge where he serves on the Greenville Masonic Temple Board, a Scottish Rite Mason, and a Noble of the Mystic Shrine. Haigwood is also a member of the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce and both the Greenville Elks and Moose Lodges.

He also holds memberships in the N.C. State and American Bar Associations, the North Carolina Bar Association where he is a counselor to the Criminal Law Section, the N.C. District Attorneys Association and the Pitt County Bar Association.

Haigwood has been admitted to practice law before all the Courts of the State of North Carolina, the Federal District Courts for the Eastern District of North Carolina, and the United States Supreme Court.

Listed in both the 1979 and 1980 editions of "Who's Who In Law," Haigwood is also a member of the N.C. State Employees Association where he has been elected a delegate for District 5.

Re-Election Bid By Court Clerk

Miss Sandra Gaskins, Pitt County Clerk of Superior Court, filed at noon today for re-election to the post she has held since 1978.

Miss Gaskins was appointed Clerk of Superior Court in May 1978 to fill the unexpired term of the late H. L. Lewis Jr., and was elected for a four-year term later that year.

Prior to her appointment as Clerk of Superior Court, she served as a deputy clerk and assistant clerk from 1969 to 1978. She worked for the Pitt County Department of Social Services for five years (Please turn to Page 8)

Unemployment In Pitt Rises To 6.2 Percent

Jim Hannan, manager of the Employment Security Commission (ESC) office in Greenville, reports that the unemployment rate in Pitt County for the month of November, paralleling statewide trends, has risen.

The Pitt County unemployment rate for November was 6.2 percent, more than half a percent higher than the 5.6 percent rate for October. Pitt's percentage level is identical to the statewide percentage level. Nationally, the November unadjusted unemployment rate was 7.9 percent, up slightly from the 7.5 percent in October.

From the beginning of October through the end of November, unemployment figures registered in Pitt County went from 2,400 to 2,790, a gain of 390 unemployed over the two-month period.

Hannan notes that though unemployment claims are only one of the factors used in total unemployment, changes in the number of persons filing for unemployment insurance are reflective of the local economy.

Bob Harrington, supervisor of the local ESC unemployment insurance program, says activity in filing unemployment claims was on the rise during the month of November. Layoffs in the tobacco industry typically increase in November and temporary layoffs in the apparel industry for Thanksgiving week, also typical for this time of year, upped the local claims load. Harrington observes that the rise in unemployment claims was particularly noticeable in the last two weeks in November and the first two weeks in December. This increase, he says, is not traceable to any particular industrial sector.

Hannan adds that Pitt County and North Carolina are feeling the effects of the slow down in the national economy, but are still in a better position than many other parts of the nation. An important factor in the local picture, Hannan says, is the industrial diversity in the Greenville area.

Hannan reports that in conjunction with the unemployment rise, there is also an increase in the number of job seekers in the Greenville ESC office. During October and November alone, 300 more individuals have come to ESC in 1981 than during the same two months in 1980. He adds, however, that many of those seeking jobs are already employed, but are feeling the bite of inflation and other economic woes and are seeking second jobs to make ends meet.

Fireplace Heat Can Be Saved

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer
A roaring fire doesn't have to mean a soaring heating bill. You can enjoy the benefits of a fireplace without wasting energy if you take a few simple steps to save. A consumer guide from the Department of Energy notes that under normal circumstances, a good-sized fire will burn from 10 to 12 pounds of wood an hour, giving off about the same amount of heat as the average furnace. The problem is that 95 percent of the heat from the fireplace is lost; it doesn't warm the house. Here's why: Heat travels in three ways — by radiation, conduction and convection. Radiant heat from the fire warms the surfaces of a room like the walls and the furniture. It does not heat the air. Nearly all of the useful heat from an open fire comes in the form of radiant energy and warms only those objects in direct view of the fire.

when you do not have a fire going. If your fireplace does not have a damper — or if it is broken — you can simply crumple up some newspaper and stuff it in the chimney opening. You must, however, remember to remove the newspaper before you use the fireplace again. Chimney-top dampers are another alternative. The damper is attached to the top of the chimney and is controlled by a chain that runs down into the fireplace. They are easier to install than conventional dampers and are available for under $100.

Conduction is the transfer of heat through a material or from one material to another. Through conduction, the fire will warm the wall behind the fireplace; the heat will be transferred through the wall to the outside.

Convection is the transfer of heat by air movement. Since warm air rises, most of the heat from the fire will move, by convection, up the chimney. The upward draft of air in the chimney draws air from the room where the fireplace is located. If you leave the doors open, air from the rest of the house will be drawn towards the fireplace as well. Most of the heat the fire produces will be used to warm the cold air it is drawing towards it.

If you must leave the damper open overnight — because of a dying fire, for example — put a metal shield in front of the fireplace. Use your fireplace in relatively mild weather only. If you use it in very cold weather, the fire will draw so much cold air into the house that you will have a negative heating effect; the house will actually get cooler instead of warmer.

There are several ways to make a fireplace more energy efficient.

Glass doors, with air intakes at the bottom, control the flow of air from the room into the fireplace. The doors also will block much of the radiant energy produced by the fire, but they make up for the loss by preventing warm room air from going up the chimney.

Convective grates — sometimes sold in combination with glass doors — are designed to send the air heated by the fire back into the room instead of letting it escape up the chimney. The grates may rely on natural convection or may include fans to circulate the air.

When the fireplace is not in use, it should be sealed off. Most fireplaces include a damper to prevent air loss. Make sure the damper is not cracked, warped or chipped and always keep it closed

To decide whether you can save money by using your fireplace, you will have to take into account factors like the price of conventional fuel versus firewood and the cost of fireplace improvements. A fireplace information guide issued by the Department of Energy explains how to make the calculations and includes worksheets and charts you can use. The pamphlet, "What About Fireplaces?" costs $2.25 and is available from the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 172K, Pueblo, Colo., 81009.

Summarized Evidence With Rhyming Verse

WHITEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — When District Attorney Lee J. Greer retires after his present term ends, court observers say another of a vanishing breed will be lost. "He's one of those who believe in making a powerful argument to the jury," said Franklin Freeman, director of the state Administrative Office of the Courts. The 72-year-old Greer, known as the "silver fox" with a silver tongue, often summarizes the state's evidence in rhymed verse. His poetry — along with other courtroom dramatics — attracts attention from judges, jurors and defense attorneys, as well as spectators who make a point of being in the courtroom for final arguments.

"They know he's going to quote some poetry or the Bible and that he's probably going to make up some poetry," said Michael Easley, assistant district attorney.

After 10 years as prosecutor, Greer says he will not seek re-election this year because administrative matters were taking up too much of his time and keeping him out of court.

As chief prosecutor for Columbus, Brunswick and Bladen counties, he supervises five assistant prosecutors and two other staffers. He was elected in 1970 after serving as Columbus County's clerk of court for 22 years.

Greer said he developed his distinctive courtroom style to get the attention of jurors and saw nothing wrong with making poetry that some people might consider corny.

"As long as you're reciting the facts, you can make it rhyme," he said.

The poetic style is "entirely acceptable procedure," said Giles R. Clark of Elizabethtown, resident Superior Court judge for the 13th Judicial District.

Clark said Greer had adapted his extensive reading in classical literature and poetry to his profession.

"We're going to miss him," he said, adding that the courtroom "is certainly going to be different." Greer maintains his fun-loving outlook despite the necessity of dealing with some of the more sordid aspects of society. Here is one of his poems, summarizing the state's evidence in a murder trial:

The state contends:
That if Bobby didn't go there with evil in his mind
He should have left his pistol behind.

No, he didn't go there to join in the fun
Because he went there with a loaded gun.

When you use your reason and common sense
You can see there was no self-defense.

And one can also readily see
That David was at a place he had a right to be.

Bobby didn't want to make a slip
And shot David in the face, right through the lip.

So after all is said and done,
David is dead, killed by Bobby's gun.

The state contends you should see as a fact
That there was no excuse for this act.

This is what this case is all about
And you should find so beyond a reasonable doubt.

The jury returned a guilty verdict.

Millionaire Is Hunting A Job

By MARCIA DUNN
Associated Press Writer
PITTSBURGH (AP) — Like many other unemployed people trying to track down work, Paul Smolak resolved on New Year's Eve to find a job — even though he's a millionaire, set to receive $50,000 every July for the next 20 years courtesy of the Pennsylvania Lottery.

"I've been looking everywhere. But you know things are off when some places will take applications for one hour once a week," said Smolak, 31, who was laid off indefinitely in August from his job delivering beer.

"I'm not a brain surgeon or anything, but I've had two years of college," he said in an interview Sunday. "All I want is to make a living and be in a retirement fund."

Smolak, who lives with his parents in Creighton, just northeast of Pittsburgh, was laid off six weeks after coming up a big winner in the lottery. Although he had worked at the distributor for about five years, he had the least seniority.

"I felt bad about it (the layoff)," he said. "I've been laid off at all the companies I've been with. I've always been the last in and the first out."

The lottery payoff was a stroke of good luck, Smolak admits, but it occasionally worked against him during job interviews.

"Some of them know (about the winnings), and some of them don't," he said. "Some of the places I've gone, people look at me kind of funny." Smolak, who is single, never considered an early retirement, even after he won last July 10.

"Hey, I'm 31, what was I going to do?" he asked.

Since his first payoff, Smolak has traveled to eastern Pennsylvania and Washington, D.C., taking along his parents and older sister. He's also bought some new clothes and is considering buying a house. But that's been the extent of his spending.

Smolak, who receives unemployment benefits, said he spends most of his time knocking on doors in search of work in southwestern Pennsylvania, an area reeling from numerous steel industry-related layoffs.

"I'm not going to lose anything or starve," he said. "But inactivity isn't any good for you, either."

Despite his more than four-month hiatus from work, Smolak realizes he's better off than the next unemployed fellow down the line.

"I'm thankful. There's a lot of basic pressures that people have, and a lot of that is off," he said. "But I've got new pressures — taxes, investments, people waiting for me to do something stupid, in investments or in my personal life."

Fatalities Pass 300

By The Associated Press
The holiday's traffic death toll climbed above 300 today as the New Year's weekend ended and many homebound travelers faced slick roads and snowy weather.

Motorists faced storms that lashed the nation from the Pacific Northwest to the Southeast to Maine on Sunday. Heavy snow and slush were reported on roads in Washington state, across the Rocky Mountain states and into the Midwest. Freezing rain fell along the Atlantic Coast, while rain and tornadoes were reported in the South.

As the holiday period ended, 312 deaths were reported nationwide. The counting period lasted from 6 p.m. local time Thursday to midnight Sunday. The National Safety Council estimated that between 300 and 400 traffic deaths might be recorded for the three-day weekend. The council said that on a non-holiday weekend at this time of year, about 360 deaths could be expected.

Last year, in a four-day period, 460 people were killed in traffic accidents. This weekend is the first three-day New Year's holiday since 1978, when 355 people were killed.

The highest three-day New Year's toll was 564 in 1965. The worst toll for any holiday period was 764 in the four-day, 1968 Thanksgiving weekend.

Women Eat 'Smarter' Than Men, Says Study

By F. ALA BOYCE
Associated Press Writer
CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — A study coordinated by the University of North Carolina shows that women tend to be smarter than men when it comes to choosing healthy foods.

But when it comes to alcohol, the study shows the more educated a woman is, the more she is likely to drink, while more educated men tend to imbibe less.

"The higher educated group tended to be eating a better diet in terms of the current recommendations than the lower educated folks," said Dr. Suzanne Haynes, an assistant professor of epidemiology, who co-authored a recent paper on the study. "The difference between the sexes may indicate that more educated women tend to change their diets more rapidly than a man."

The study, begun in 1972, compares data from nearly 10,000 subjects under funding by the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute. Scientists are studying the influence of education, social class and diet on blood cholesterol and heart disease.

Ms. Haynes said social factors may have resulted in the sex differences when it came to alcohol use.

"The trend in cigarette smoking in ages past started with upper class men, then it went to lower class men. Then it went to upper class women, and finally to lower class women," Ms. Haynes said. A similar pattern was present in alcohol use, she said, and educated women may increasingly find jobs where drinking is acceptable.

While the study shows that higher educated people have healthier cholesterol levels, Ms. Haynes said the lowest class provided some surprising results.

"Those with less than seven years of education were eating what we would call a very beneficial diet," she said. "Their carbohydrates were low, their sucrose (sugar) was low. Their alcohol consumption was high, but besides that everything else appeared to be the ideal diet."

"About half of them were migrants," Ms. Haynes added. "They were eating the Mediterranean diet, which is high in salads and things of that type, while you would normally expect people in that class to be eating a lot of junk food."

The Lipid Research Clinics Program Prevalence Study sampled people from Chapel Hill and nine other North American sites as well as sites in the Soviet Union. Participants were given blood tests, cardiovascular examinations and 24-hour dietary profiles.

Epidemiologists will study data from the study through 1985, while researchers have put subjects with high cholesterol levels on fat-restricted diets and drug therapy to see if their eating habits are to blame.

Alternative Plans Eyed

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The development director of Child Watch Inc. says his child care agency this year will promote alternatives to confining juvenile offenders in jail.

Fred G. Morrison, development director for Child Watch Inc., said better use of juvenile facilities would ease the burden on the prison system.

U.S. Justice Department figures show that North Carolina had 256 state prison inmates per 100,000 people, compared with the national average of 140.

"Locking children up in jails is not in the best interest of them or the people of North Carolina," Morrison said.

Morrison said court and law enforcement officials should rely more on the eight existing regional juvenile detention centers and build new ones in the state's northeast and northwest sections.

Morrison also recommends the creation of a specialized foster care or emergency care shelters.

According to Child Watch statistics, the state's regional detention centers were used only 61 percent of their capacity during the first six months of 1981. That rate was determined by comparing the average daily population of the centers with the number of beds at all the centers.

Store Break-In Investigated

Greenville police are investigating a break-in at Lautares Jewelers at 414 Evans St. early Saturday morning.

Chief Glenn Cannon said thieves broke a front window with a brick and removed several items of silver in the 12:10 a.m. incident.

Police recovered a silver biscuit warmer on the Evans Mall near the store. However, a punch bowl, 12 cups, two trays and a ladle, valued at $735 are still missing.

Household Items Can Help In Emergencies

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — A special emergency car care kit made from common household items can be used temporarily until proper repairs are made, according to a manufacturer of automotive parts.

"Used correctly, they can provide emergency solutions to roadside breakdowns," says Dave Bowman, technical services manager for Fram Corp.

"While you would not be able to drive long distances with these tools, they will be enough to get you off the road and to the nearest service station. Just remember that these are temporary solutions," he adds.

Bowman suggests keeping these items in the trunk to help get your car from the road to the garage or out of a "sticky" situation:

—Scarf or handkerchief. If a leaky or broken hose causes your cooling system to overheat, a scarf or handkerchief can remedy the problem long enough to get you to a station. Wrap the cloth tightly around the hose where it is cut or leaking. Then secure it with a belt. This will slow the leak down.

—Coat hanger. If your tail pipe or any part of your exhaust system drops, a coat hanger can help. Unravel the hanger and wrap one end around the tail pipe. Fasten the other end to the underside of your rear bumper. This will prevent the muffler from falling off and avoid leaving a shower of sparks as your exhaust system drags.

—Pantyhose. A broken fan belt can be temporarily replaced with a pair of pantyhose. Wrap them tightly around the pulleys where the belt was located and tie them in a knot. This will keep the engine going until you get to a garage.

—Shower curtain. If your car breaks down and you have to get under the vehicle to work, use a shower curtain as a ground cloth to spread under your car so you won't get dirty.

—Litter box filler. This is helpful when you are stuck on snow or ice. Spread the litter under the spinning tire for additional traction. Also, the extra weight of a sack of litter box filler in your trunk can prevent the rear end of your car from skidding on slippery surfaces.

—Newspapers or burlap sacks. When you are stuck in sand or mud, slide newspapers or a burlap sack under the stuck tire for traction.

—Funnel. Keep a funnel in your trunk in case you need to add fluids to the engine.

—Rags. When your defroster isn't working, use the rags to wipe the inside of your windshield clean.

"Also, some standard items that should always be in an emergency car care kit," adds Bowman, "are a screwdriver, pliers, a fire extinguisher; an address book containing emergency phone numbers; old gloves to protect your hands while working under the hood; a white handkerchief to use as a distress signal, small change for emergency calls and a pencil and paper for taking down important information."

PACKAGING LEFTOVERS

As with all frozen food, wrapping leftover meat for freezing is important to maintaining quality, says marjorie Donnelly, extension foods and nutrition specialist at North Carolina State University.

"Use moisture and vapor-proof wraps and containers and make up packages a variety of ways depending on how you plan to use the food," she suggests. It is more convenient and less wasteful to make some packages for one meal; some meat in slices for sandwiches, some cubed for casseroles and salads and some "TV dinners" to serve some busy day in the future.

Found: A main-dish, on the thirty side, that four friends can enjoy for Sunday night supper. It's a fish and potato stew, that cooks without tending, in the oven. A little Parmesan cheese, scallions and some bacon help make it savory. To complete the menu, all you need is a salad and a substantial dessert.

You can get the ingredients for the stew ready ahead of time: fish on hand, potatoes cooked and sliced, Parmesan grated, scallions chopped, bacon partly cooked. Then the only last-minute job is assembling the dish and putting it in the oven. Don't try to bake this stew ahead and reheat it; serve it as soon as it is cooked so the fish will be moist and tender.

FISH AND POTATO OVEN STEW

- 4 medium potatoes (about 1 1/4 pounds)
- 6 slices bacon
- 1 1/2 tablespoons flour
- 3 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese
- 3 small scallions, thinly sliced (about 1-3rd cup)
- 3/4 cup milk
- 1/2 to 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 1 pound skinless white-flesh fish fillets (if frozen, thawed enough to separate)
- Paprika
- 1/4 cup parsley sprigs, minced (about 2 tablespoons)

Peel the potatoes; cover with cold water and boil until tender; slice 1/8-inch thick. Meanwhile, cook the bacon until almost crisp; drain on brown paper and break each slice in half.

Toss the potatoes with the flour and Parmesan; mix in the scallions. Arrange in a

Dear Abby

Affected By Moon Madness

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1982 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Please don't think this plea for help is crazy. This problem is very real to me. No matter what the experts say, I really believe that the moon in its full phase adversely affects me. I've read about "moon madness" — and the theory is that a full moon affects one's mind. I believe it is true because whenever a full moon approaches, while it's at its peak and immediately after, I can't seem to control my temper, and I really get crazy!

Abby, I am convinced that a full moon affects my mind. I wonder if other people have had this experience.

LOONY IN L.A.

DEAR LOONY: "Loony" is slang for "lunatic," which translates into "made crazy by the moon." For centuries man has theorized that the phases of the moon affect one's mind, moods and behavior.

Although there is no scientific evidence to support this age-old theory, those who are convinced that it's true can be physically affected to the point of looniness.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 20-year-old college student who is currently seeing a girl about twice a week. (I'll call her Cindy.)

However, Cindy has a close friend, Amy, whom I would like to date. Amy's been sending me subtle messages that lead me to believe that she would like to go out with me.

My question is this: If I were to ask Amy out, do you think she'd keep her mouth shut, or do you think she'd tell Cindy? Cindy is very possessive. If she knew I saw Amy she would drop me, and I really don't want to stop seeing Cindy.

How much do girlfriends tell each other? I would really like to see both of them, but I don't want to start in with Amy if there's a chance she'd tell Cindy. Please advise. DON'T USE MY NAME

DEAR DON'T: From what you tell me about your relationship with Cindy, you've led her to believe that you are far more loyal than you really are. Don't play around with Amy. If you're out to get something from each, you're apt to end up with nothing from both.

DEAR ABBY: A woman wrote that her fiance refused to have sex with her until after they were married. You told her how "lucky" she was. I have been thinking about that ever since, and want to tell you my experience.

I was a divorcee making plans to marry. I thought I was lucky because he didn't persist when I said I wanted to wait until marriage.

After we were married I understood why he could be so "patient." Once or twice a year was enough for him. I was 36 when we were married, and it was a terrible shock and disappointment to me.

Now that we are in our 50s there is nothing at all. We have spent much time and money on therapy and counseling, but to no avail. I feel cheated. My personality has changed, and I feel like a vegetable. Nothing could be worse than living this way.

CONFIDENTIAL TO SHARON IN BLOOMINGTON, IND.: Everyone has genes. Some people wear them better than others.

DEAR ABBY: I can't remember if it's you or your sister (I get both papers), but it doesn't matter because you are both equally guilty of this offense and I doubt that you will print this anyway. The point isn't whether you cop a day off by running some golden oldies, but rather the annoying way in which you do it. Example: "A reader from Schlepville has requested a rerun of that marvelous letter I ran last year, signed 'Tired of Living,' so here it is."

Abby, everyone takes vacations and days off. What they don't do is take a lot of bows while doing so. Just because readers pay their money for a newspaper doesn't mean they're not going to be cheated once in a while, but please don't insult us by pretending that you are accommodating one of your millions of daily readers by rerunning his favorite letter.

If you decide to become honest about this, just ask that reader to enclose a self-addressed envelope and send him a copy of his favorite column, and please spare the rest of us the boredom of rerun city!

D. FROM BIG D

DEAR D.: Sorry the reruns bore you. I'm told those "golden oldies" are appreciated by many. Readers?

DEAR ABBY: I'm 70 and have been a widow for two years. My husband owned a tavern and we both worked there. Lou, a regular tavern customer, started coming around to see me right after my husband died, and we really got stuck on each other. Lou is 55 and knows my real age, but says he doesn't care about the age difference — he loves me anyway.

Now the problem. I fix him supper every night, but this love affair doesn't seem to be going anywhere because Lou has to be home every night by midnight. He says he lives with his sister, who's 62, and his mother, 83, and they need a man in the house. I've never been to his house or met his mother and his sister. He says they're kind of weird and not very sociable.

Abby, I just sold my tavern and I want to get married and travel some. Lou doesn't want me to go with any other men. What should I do? Lou says I should give him more time. How much time should I give him?

TIRED OF WAITING

DEAR TIRED: Until tomorrow. Tell him you don't care how "weird" his mother and sister are, you want to meet them anyway. And if he doesn't arrange a meeting pronto, kiss him goodbye.

Tuberculosis: Still Exists

Tuberculosis is one of mankind's oldest scourges . . . and it is still with us, although far from as fearful as the disease once was.

Health authorities report that North Carolina ranks third among the states in the number of reported cases of TB.

Pitt and Martin Counties both report the number of cases up for 1981.

The final Pitt figures for 1981 are not in but there were 36 cases in 1980 and 36 in 1979. Martin County had 14 cases in 1981 compared to nine the previous year.

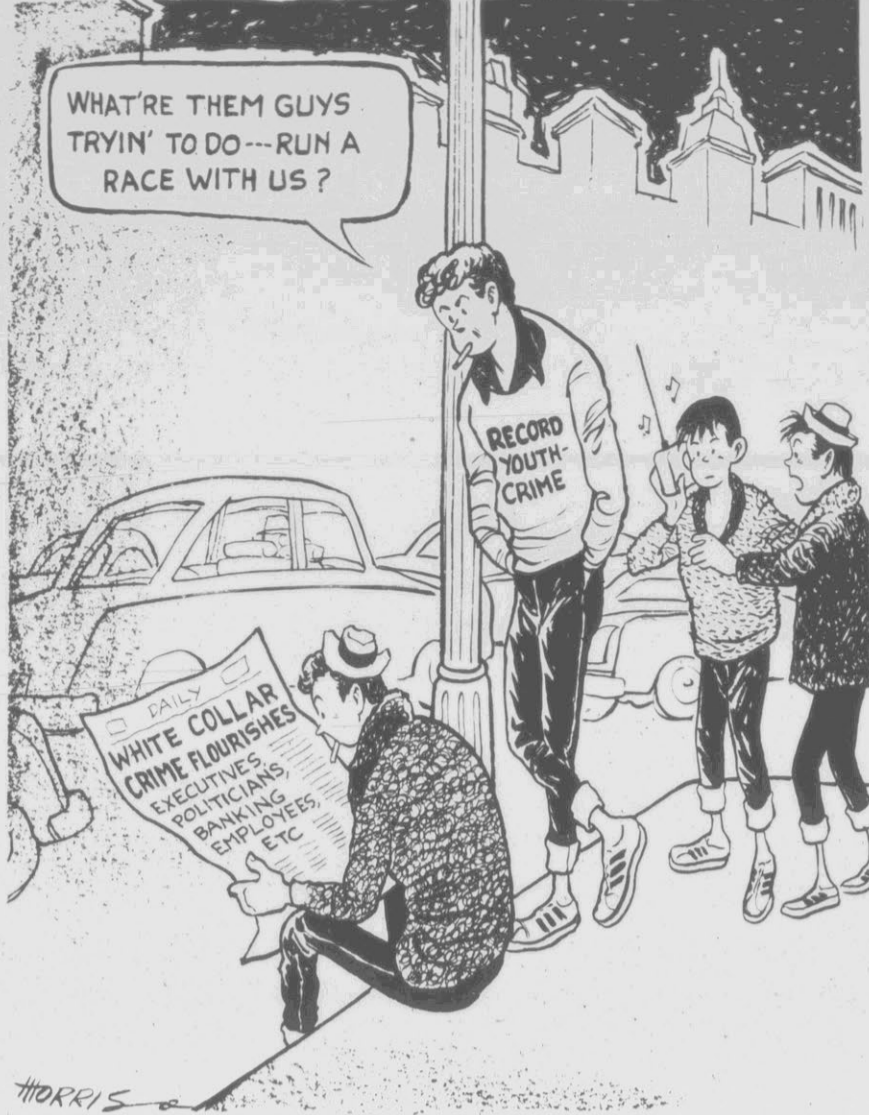

There were 69 deaths in North Carolina in 1980 due to TB. That, however, is far below the 2,488 deaths reported in 1930. The disease is now treated with antibiotics, isolation in local hospitals and treatment at home, rather than sending patients off to sanitoriums. Now only McCain Hospital in Hoke County is used for tuberculosis patients.

Health authorities speculate that an increase in the number of cases may be due to better diagnosis and reporting, although that is not certain. They also worry that cut-backs in benefits to the poor could result in increases of the disease, although again no one can be certain of that.

Eastern North Carolina has historically been an area of high incidence of tuberculosis. While the disease is not now the widespread one it once was, it is not one that we can ignore.

SEEMS SO MANY ARE GETTING INTO THE ACT!

By ART BUCHWALD

And What Did You Say?

Once again 1981 was a year during which many people said things they wish they hadn't.

For example, how would you like to have been the person in the White House Situation Room who said to Al Haig, "Mr. Secretary, I think you better go upstairs and tell the American people who's in charge?"

Or the official in the Department of Agriculture, who told his superiors, "I think we better stock up on cheese. My people are predicting a shortage."

Or the press aide to David Stockman who said, "Dave, do you have a few minutes to speak to a writer from the Atlantic Monthly?"

What about the reporter who rushed into the office of the editors of the Washington Post and shouted, "Guess what the Carters did, while the Reagans were living in Blair House?"

Or the aide who told Tip O'Neil, "The Republicans control the Senate, but don't forget, you control the House."

Let's not forget the poor chap who told Senator John Warner, "Your wife called, and she has something exciting to tell you."

Or the television executive who said to his wife, "Freddie Silverman, the head of NBC, got me to quit my job and go over to his shop to be his assistant." And the President's economic adviser who said to Mr. Reagan, "You can announce we're going to balance the budget by 1984."

And the friend of Richard Nixon who said, "John Ehrlichman has written a book about his years in the White House and you come out smelling like a rose."

Then there was the fellow who said, "Congressman, I would like you to meet Paula Parkinson. She's a very buying a hideaway house in Florida?"

Or the friend of Governor Carey's new wife who told her, "Tell him you've been married twice. He'll never find out about the third one."

Not to mention the Japanese friend of Richard Allen who said to him on Inauguration Day, "Dick, can you do me a small favor?"

And the Middle East expert in the State Department who told the President, "If we sign a defense pact with Israel, Begin can't do anything without first consulting us."

Or the chairman of the Mobil Oil Company who called on the chairman of the Marathon Oil Company and said, "Howdy, partner."

Lest we forget — the Russian submarine captain in Swedish waters who said to his helmsman, as he peered through his periscope, "Hard right, rudder. Now, steady as she goes."

Or the person who said to Nancy Reagan, "We've run out of tablecloths."

We almost forgot the agricultural expert who told Governor Jerry Brown, "I can get you a good buy on sterile Mediterranean fruit flies."

And the toy manufacturer who said to Erno Rubik, "Whoever heard of anyone paying money for a colored plastic cube?"

As well as Giscard d'Estaing's political adviser: "The French will never vote for a Socialist supported by the Communists. The best way to beat Mitterrand is to ignore him."

Strength For Today

YOU CAN BELIEVE IN GOD'S LOVE

It is very hard for many people to believe that God loves them. They can believe in the existence of God and in God's hopes for mankind, but they cannot achieve the peace and confidence which comes from the conviction that God loves them personally.

Many of the greatest saints were at times afflicted by this doubt of God's love. As the great religious reformer John Bunyan wrote: "Under many fears I went to seek the

Amendment Is A Bad Idea

Three former governors may join in opposing the proposed constitutional amendment which would establish four-year terms for state legislators.

We say bravo for them.

Terry Sanford, Bob Scott and Jim Holshouser, representing both Democrats and Republicans, it has been reported, will assist the Keep the Two-Year Term Committee in opposing the amendment.

It would be more convenient for the legislators to run every four years, but the two-year terms keep them closer to the public. As to any argument that legislative life is becoming more time consuming, we answer that the legislators are spending too much time in Raleigh. They need to streamline their sessions, rather than seek longer terms.

THIS AFTERNOON

Assembly Actions

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — The most important development in state government for North Carolina during the last year isn't likely to be found at the top of any of the currently popular lists of "accomplishments."

The reason is that there was no single, straightforward event on which an observer can put his finger and say, Here is what the General Assembly did.

But what the General Assembly did was to take a number of definite actions which, if followed to their logical conclusions, will produce an infinitely different governmental structure for the state in years to come.

The net result will be a vastly stronger legislative branch of government where seniority plays an important role in gaining and keeping power, and where each passing year will see legislators spending more time in Raleigh both in and out of session keeping almost constant tabs on agency activities, budget matters, personal performance, policy and regulation matters handled by a variety of boards and commissions, and reviewing the routine performance of the numerous state departments.

Power

Two particular areas of concern are at stake in this new direction for the General Assembly:

—The power of government agencies and the bureaucrats who run them to interpret and administer the laws passed by the Legislature; and —The power of the governor to produce the state's budget.

The leadership of the General Assembly has been working at this project for years, now. Since Republican Gov. Jim Holshouser was in office, that group has proposed, changed, and pushed in various ways to secure the result — a fulltime, powerful legislative body in which certain key individuals have almost absolute control. The key leaders are House Speaker Liston Ramsey and his key aide, State Rep. Billy Watkins; and on the Senate

—A legislative commission will review and approve all rules and regulations issuing from state agencies.

—A legislative committee will hold power over transfer of budget items within agencies rather than letting administrators of the governor decide if fewer paper clips are needed so the money can be used for desks instead.

Money

—A legislative committee has taken over the review and approval of federal block grant distribution as the dollars in that category increase tremendously as the Reagan administration trims categorical grants in favor of block grants.

—The General Assembly established its right to call itself into session at any time without waiting on the governor to do so during nonsession periods.

—The legislators took over almost an entire new building and started the process of expanding staff and computer capacity so that soon legislators will be able to compile independent information on state agency spending requests which comprise the budget made by the governor.

—Kenneth Royall became chairman of the governor's Advisory Budget Commission which makes up the budget, signalling that the powerful legislative leadership is winning its goal.

BILL NOBLITT side, Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green, and State senators Kenneth Royall, Harold Hardison, and Graig Laving.

Here is a brief overview of some of the various hidden or overt actions during the past year which, on balance, moved the plan for a power shift several steps ahead:

—A challenge to membership on various policy-making boards and commissions by members of the General Assembly was beat down so that legislators will continue to sit on the policy boards which interpret and administer numerous projects.

Other Editors Say Propaganda?

(Greensboro Daily News)

The Voice of America beams news and commentary to millions of people behind the Iron Curtain. It is not a raspy propaganda machine like Radio Moscow or World War II's "Tokyo Rose". Instead, VOA strives for accuracy and objectivity in reporting the news, knowing that biased reporting falls on skeptical ears. Whether VOA will continue to be a beacon of objective reporting is now being tested by the Reagan administration.

Last week Bernard H. Kamenske, the director of VOA's news division, bade an emotional farewell to the agency. Kamenske is a highly respected newsman who is credited with drafting a 1976 charter that forbids government's tampering with news independence. The charter's intent was to keep the news "accurate, objective and comprehensive" and to keep presidential administrations at arm's length.

Kamenske resigned over alleged violations of this charter. He accuses the Reagan administration of trying to turn VOA's reporting into a propaganda mill. The charge is a serious one.

Under VOA regulations, the White House already gets a say. VOA rules allow for news "commentary" to be broadcast. This means that editorial opinion — the official government position on an issue — can be aired without hindrance. But Kamenske is suggesting that the Reagan administration would like news reportage to editorialize a bit, too.

Such a prospect would undermine the integrity of the VOA. Like the British Broadcasting Corporation which also beams news and commentary around the world, the VOA has a respected reputation for accuracy and objectivity. If these attributes are compromised, the government agency is in danger. By resigning from VOA after a distinguished career, Kamenske has sounded the alarm. The VOA should be carefully monitored. Propaganda and objective news are entirely separate functions. They should be kept separate.

Lighthouse Drive Lags

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Sen. Jesse Helms and Gov. Jim Hunt made a political odd couple when they joined forces last summer in a campaign to raise $1 million to save the historic lighthouse at Cape Hatteras.

But for all the potent, multi-million dollar money-raising ability of their political machinery, they haven't been able to keep the Save the Cape Hatteras Lighthouse Committee from running a little behind its end-of-the-year target.

About $980,000 behind, says Hugh Morton, the Grandfather Mountain developer who organized the lighthouse campaign.

Morton set the goal of $1 million by the end of 1981 back in August, when the committee was getting off the ground, and September, when Hunt and Helms got together to officially kick it off.

But when 1981 came to a close, Morton said, they had raised only about $20,000.

"As far as our being confident of success, we are," he said. "As far as achieving it to date, no, we haven't. But we've certainly gotten well organized."

The committee was formed to raise part of the expenses involved in any of several steps being considered for protecting the 111-year-old lighthouse, tallest in the country, from the encroaching Atlantic.

A decision on how to save it, which could mean building more barriers or even moving the lighthouse further inland from its perch now less than 100 feet from the ocean, is up to the National Park Service and Army Corps of Engineers.

Although the committee hasn't raised much money so far, Morton said the group is now in position to begin a real fund-raising push.

The original goal wasn't met because it took longer than expected to name all the county chairmen. In fact, there are still seven of the state's 100 counties where no chairmen have been named, he said.

The original idea was to have half the chairmen named from Hunt's list of Democratic political supporters and half from the Republican Helms' list.

Morton, a Hunt supporter, said his side came up with their 50 "pretty quickly," but that the Helms side was a little slower.

"We've been helping them get theirs for quite a while, but they've been getting theirs too," he said. "We've actually gotten several of theirs for them."

Tom Ellis, chairman of the Congressional Club and Helms' political strategist, acknowledged that the lighthouse campaign has been "slow getting started" and that the club had some help in naming its chairmen.

"I think that's very true — and we may have helped him out too," Ellis said. "But who cares who got who?"

There have been other delays. An order of 50,000 bumper stickers promoting the cause didn't arrive before Christmas, as hoped.

Television stations have promised to provide free air time for the committee's commercials. One station, WRAL in Raleigh, has run a commercial it produced, but Morton said three or four more commercials are still in production and have yet to be sent out to TV stations around the state.

The direct-mail solicitations, a technique used with great success by Helms' National Congressional Club political organization, are still in the beginning stages.

The club plans to send out a small, 2,000-piece sample mailing in January, to test various mailing lists — such as Helms' own list and those provided by conservation groups and other organizations. The idea is to see if direct mail will harvest donations for the lighthouse, and if so, which list will reap the most.

The chairmen now established include names from the top ranks of North Carolina's largest corporations. Morton says that, plus the enthusiasm he sees elsewhere for the lighthouse campaign, is encouraging.

"It's really been all you could ask for, and more," he said. "There's very strong public sentiment in favor of saving that lighthouse."

But now that the committee has passed its target date for raising the money, Morton said the goal is to raise it as soon as possible. Ellis said he believed the money could be raised in the next six months.

"The lighthouse is going to wait just so long to be saved," Morton said. "We don't have a lot of time to waste."

Late Rush Prevents A Disaster

By LORRAINE CICHOWSKI
AP Business Writer

Although some analysts had given up hope, consumers discovered their Christmas spirit at the last minute and saved the 1981 holiday shopping season from disaster.

The same pattern has been repeated for the past several years — shoppers waiting as long as possible to buy Christmas presents to see what goes on sale. They waited so long this year, however, with its rising unemployment and deepening recession, that industry watchers were getting nervous.

But business during Christmas week and the days immediately after the holiday was even better than some of the retailers had been hoping for.

Federated Department Stores, for instance, posted a 25 percent sales gain for the week ended Dec. 26 compared with the same 1980 period, according to preliminary reports compiled by Monroe Greenstein, a retail analyst with the New York securities firm of Bear, Stearns & Co.

Cincinnati-based Federated, the nation's largest department store chain, owns Bloomingdale's in New York and Abraham & Straus — both of which have an upper- to upper-middle-class clientele.

John Hoving, senior vice president at Federated, was pleased with the end-of-the-month sales increase. Federated showed an 8 percent sales gain for the preceding three-week period compared with the 1980 weeks.

But Hoving acknowledged the crowded stores would not do much for retailers' fourth-quarter profits because of the way shoppers were enticed to buy.

Stores have been marking down items by 40 percent or more since early November because of slow sales — much earlier and much steeper than in the past, retailers and analysts have said.

"Our sales in December were . . . better than November, which tells us absolutely nothing about profits," he said. "There did seem to be considerable markdown and promotional activity, probably more than in the past. All stores seemed to be starting earlier."

Hoving said that even in the upper-line stores, "shoppers were looking for value."

The fourth quarter and the fiscal year does not end for most of the retailers until the end of January, and final profit reports likely will not be available until March. But Greenstein and other analysts have said they expect retail profits to be flat or down for the fourth quarter.

The reason the fourth-quarter results are so important is that many retailers do 40 percent or more of their business during that three-month period.

Final sales reports for December 1981 will be released Thursday.

Greenstein said preliminary reports from other retailers for the week ended Dec. 26 show that Sears, Roebuck & Co. had a 17 percent sales gain over the comparable 1980 period; K mart Corp. sales were up 16 percent; J.C. Penney Co. was up 20 percent; Dayton Hudson Corp. had a 35 percent to 40 percent sales increase; and May Department Stores Co. sales increased 9 percent.

Spokeswomen for Sears, the nation's largest general-merchandise retail chain, and No. 2 K mart said the day after Christmas — a Saturday — was "outstanding" in terms of business.

K mart's Susan McKelvey said preliminary reports indicate that the day before Christmas may have been the chain's largest-volume day of the year. She said that in the past, the busiest day generally was the Saturday before Christmas. This year many retailers were just seeing their first pickup in sales for the season that Saturday.

ONE THING'S FOR SURE. WITH AN IRA FROM BB&T, YOU'LL AGE WELL.

Your age is going to increase with time, of course. There's no getting around that. But, with an IRA, so is your fortune.

You could retire a millionaire.

If you start your IRA (Individual Retirement Account) when you're in your early thirties and interest rates stay about the same as they are now, a $2,000-a-year investment will make you a millionaire by the time you retire! And even if you can't start that early, you can still build a whopping retirement fund.

You'll pay lower income taxes.

As long as you're a wage earner, whether or not you have a retirement plan where you work, you're eligible for BB&T's IRA. And you can open your account right now.

You're allowed to sock away up to $2,000 each year ($2,250 if you're married and only one of you is a wage earner, $4,000 if both of you are). And whatever your annual investment is, you can deduct every penny of it from that year's gross income. Which means real tax savings.

Your interest is tax-deferred.

The interest you earn, which is tied to money market rates, is compounded daily at BB&T, not monthly or annually as may be the case at some banks and savings and loans. This can add up to a difference of thousands and thousands of dollars by the time you reach retirement age.

And all your interest is tax-deferred. You pay no tax on it until you begin withdrawing funds at retirement, when you'll almost certainly be in a lower tax bracket and, therefore, required to pay less.

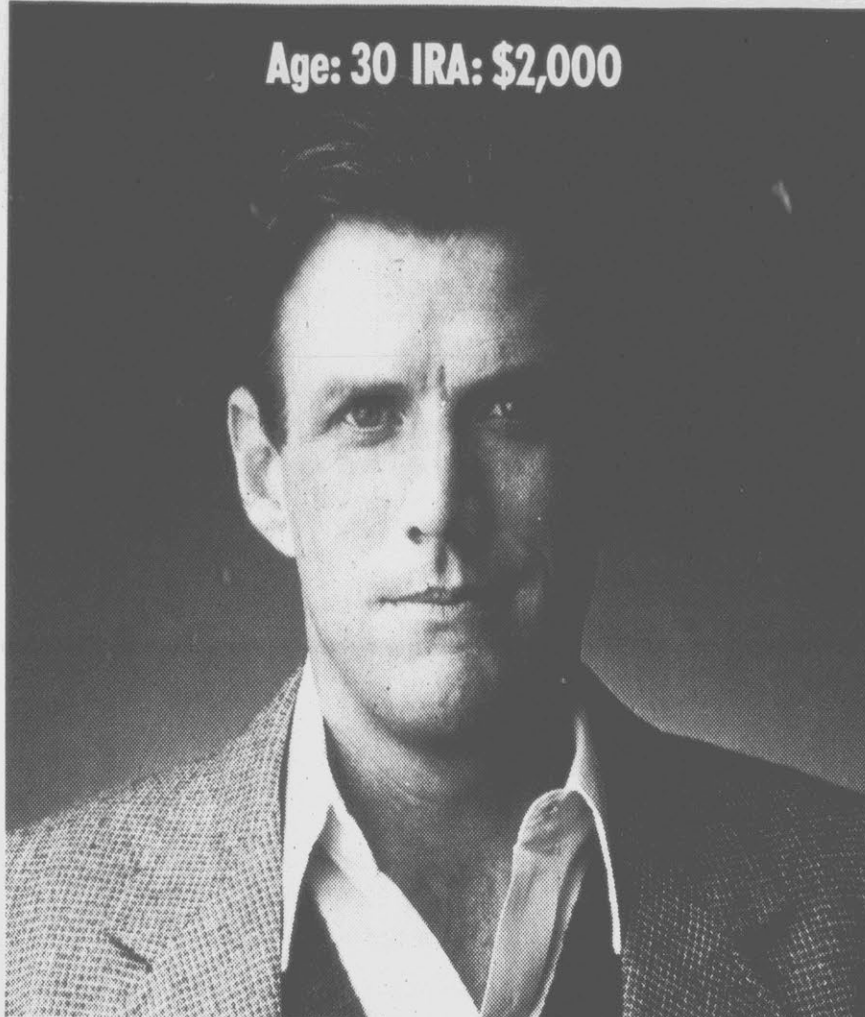

Your money piles up until you're 59½.

If you withdraw any money from your IRA before you reach the age of 59½, Federal regulations require you to pay a 10% IRS penalty on that money and perhaps a substantial interest penalty as well.

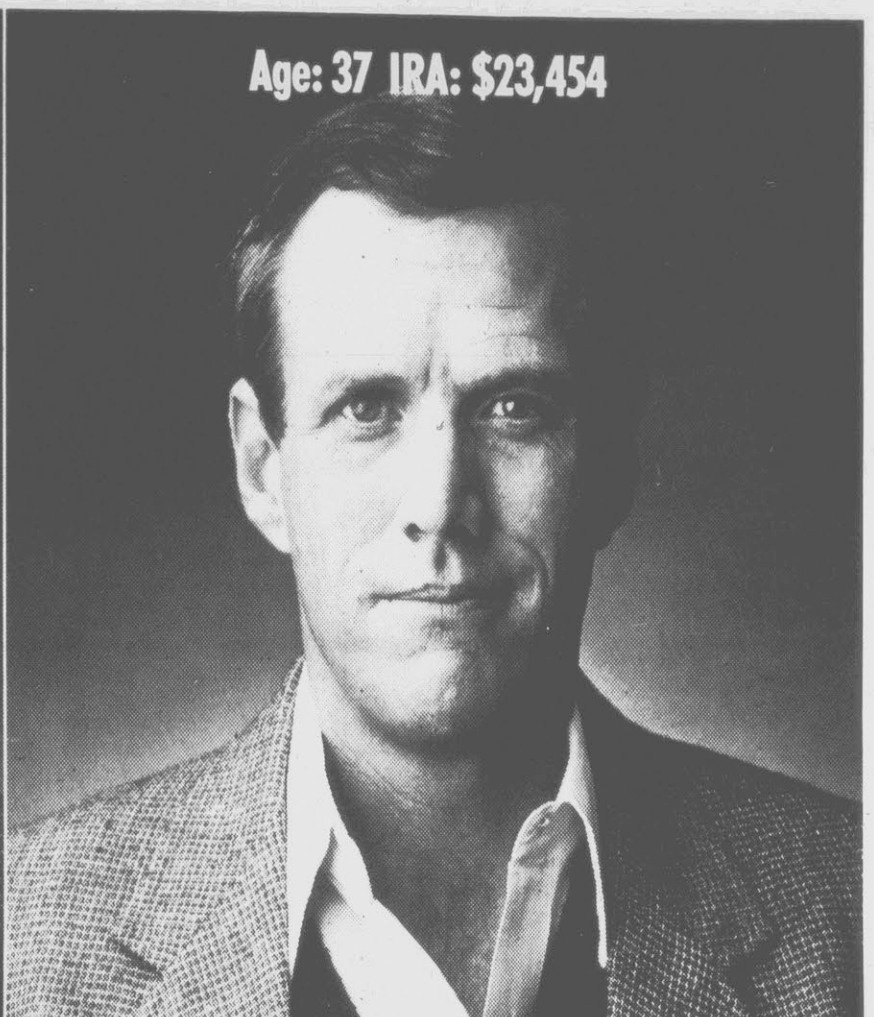

But once you hit 59½, nothing can stop you. You may take your money in a lump sum, receive it in monthly, quarterly or annual installments, or even wait until you're 70½ — but no later — to begin withdrawing funds.

Call or visit any BB&T office today and ask us about this extraordinary opportunity to save for your future. Then open your IRA and get started along the road to prosperity.

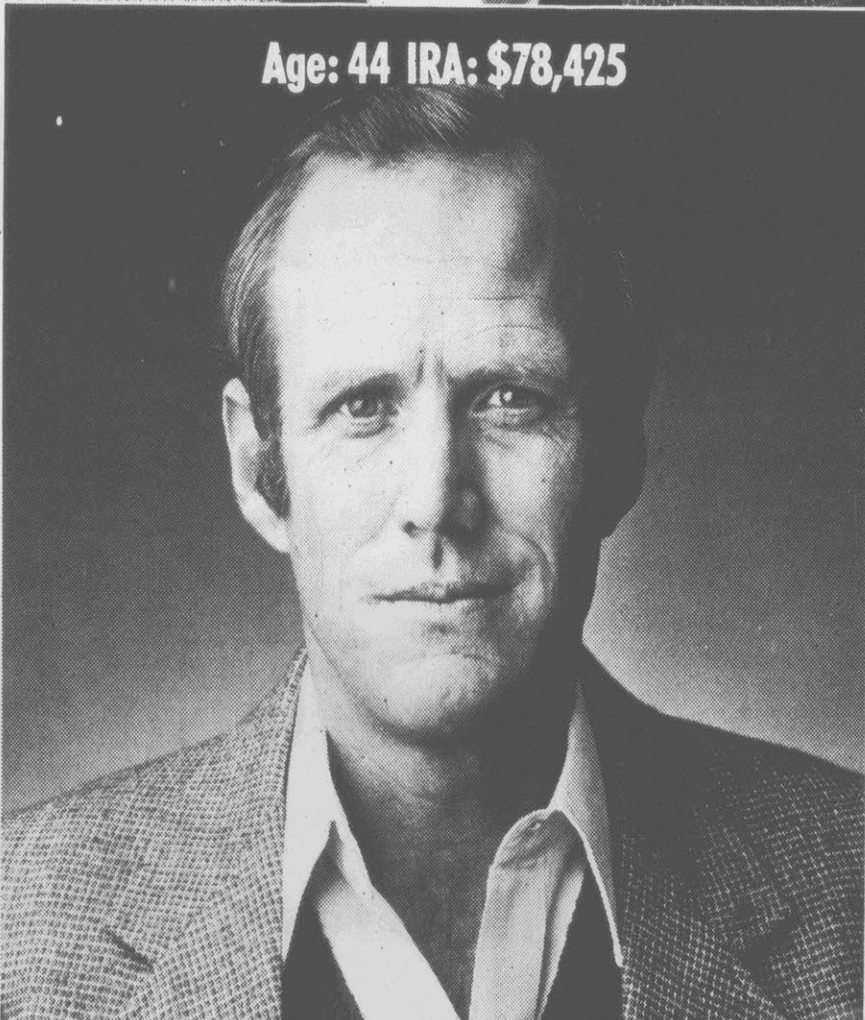

When you're ready to retire, you won't look old. You'll look like a million bucks.

EOC Studies Sanction Step

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Foreign Ministers of the 10 European Common Market countries convened in special session today to discuss possible sanctions against Poland and the Soviet Union. The ministers declined any comment as they entered the meeting hall in the ornate Palais d'Egmont near the center of Brussels. They are discussing whether to join the United States in suspending aid and trade agreements to pressure the Polish and Soviet regimes to end martial law in Poland. However, it appeared unlikely they will follow the Reagan administration's lead. West European governments have condemned the imposition of martial law in Poland but have expressed doubts about whether economic sanctions would have much chance of changing the Polish situation.

The ministers were meeting on the same day that Polish leader Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski briefed the ambassadors of the Common Market nations on events in Poland in an apparent effort to discourage Western Europe from following the United States. The Reagan administration imposed sanctions against Poland on Dec. 23 and followed up with sanctions against the Soviet Union on Dec. 29, claiming the Soviets instigated the Dec. 13 imposition of martial law in Poland. The sanctions against Poland included halting the U.S. line of credit insurance to the Polish government, suspension of Polish civil aviation privileges in the United States and barring the Polish fishing fleet from U.S. waters. Sanctions against the Soviet Union include a ban on Soviet civil aviation to the United States, the closing of the Soviet purchasing commission, and a ban on exports of U.S. high-technology gear and oil and gas equipment.

Merry Christmas & Happy New Year

By The Associated Press
Another stormy and rainy day was predicted for today, but the sun was expected to break through Tuesday. A very large and dangerous storm centered over the Ohio Valley this morning is moving rapidly into the Great Lakes. Its trailing cold front will be passing through the Carolinas by this evening. Ahead of this weather feature, showers and thunderstorms were affecting a good portion of the state. In fact, a flash flood watch continued most of the morning for the mountains and foothills of the state. Rainfall over the past 24 hours has been rather heavy with amounts between 1 and 3 inches common over a good many areas. Rises in streams and tributaries are likely with the ground already saturated and more rain expected today. The Tuckasee river had gone out of its banks in the Bryson City area in the mountains this morning. Winds will be quite strong today from a south and southwest direction. A small craft advisory was in effect for the coastal waters and sounds with a gale warning likely. Temperatures today were expected to be almost springlike, but Sunday a wedge of cooler air over the interior counties kept the Piedmont and mountains in the 30s and 40s while eastward warmer air pushed mercury levels into the 50s and 60s. Maximums in the 70s will be noted near the coast today as the southerly breezes increase.

The recreational weather outlook for North Carolina today will be poor, since winds will be strong and showers with thunderstorms will be part of the weather picture. In fact, some of the thunderheads could reach severe limits over eastern counties by late afternoon. By tonight fair skies along with colder temperatures will return. Lowest will be in the 20s and 30s over the western counties ranging to the 40s along the coast. By Tuesday mostly sunny skies will see temperatures in the 50s east of the mountains with the 40s over the higher elevations.

'Happy New Year'

Greenville police are looking for a lone gunman who robbed B&B Foodland at 1006 Bancroft Ave. about 10:30 p.m. Friday, then extended New Year greetings to the clerk and customers in the store. Chief Glenn Cannon said the robber, armed with a pistol, entered the store and ordered the clerk to give him all the money in the cash register. After receiving the money, Cannon said the robber told the people in the store "have a Happy New Year," and left.

Farm Scene

By ROGER COBB
Agri. Ext. Agent

Tobacco diseases caused destruction on some farms in Pitt County last year. Granville wilt and mosaic were the two most prevalent diseases. Granville wilt and mosaic have been on the increase in recent years. Black shank did not cause as much loss as it has in the past but was still a problem on a few farms.

Control of tobacco diseases depends on several aspects of disease control. Stalk and root destruction (R-9-P), crop rotation, resistant varieties and chemicals can all be combined to provide adequate protection.

Stalk and root destruction can be highly effective if it is done properly. This destroys the overwintering sites of several disease organisms. Destroying overwintering sites in turn helps to lower disease levels. Mosaic can be very effectively controlled by a complete job of R-9-P because it must overwinter in old crop debris.

A poor job of stalk and root destruction may actually favor disease causal agents. Doing a poor job will not promote rapid death and decay of old tobacco stalks but may actually prolong it.

Crop rotation can be a very important tool in disease control. Rotation will take away a host plant that is needed for disease organisms to remain alive. Organisms which cause diseases of tobacco have become adapted to utilize tobacco plants as their source of food. When you take away tobacco or another suitable host, the tobacco disease level is lowered.

The length of rotation is dependent on many factors such as available land and alternative crops. A three-year rotation is better than a two-year rotation, but a two-year is far better than continuous culture. Continuous culture provides the place for possible severe disease problems in the future.

Resistant varieties are very important in planning a disease control program. They are very important where Granville wilt and black shank are a problem. Resistant varieties are not immune to the diseases but have different degrees of resistance. Some diseases may be expected even with highly resistant varieties, especially where rotation is not practiced along with stalk and root destruction.

Chemicals have been used successfully to control diseases. They may be even more successful if used in combination with other control practices. Be sure the correct chemical is used on the correct disease. Chemicals must be used correctly to obtain the best results. Soil moisture must not be too wet or too dry. Chemicals work correctly when they are able to move freely in the soil.

Controlling disease is a fight that must be faced every tobacco year. Use all methods of disease control to combat disease on your farm. Don't let diseases ruin your top quality crop.

Three Serve As Pages

RALEIGH — Three Pitt County high school students served as pages in the offices of Governor Jim Hunt recently.

Veveca Adele Pulliam, a sophomore at North Pitt High School, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald W. Pulliam, Route 5, Box 536.

Vonda Stokes, a freshman at D.H. Conley High School, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne K. Stokes, Route 3, Box 580.

Elizabeth Michelle Kittrell, a sophomore at D.H. Conley High School, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William B. Kittrell, Box 216-B.

RADIO GUESTS

City Manager Ed Wyatt said that guests on the city's radio program, "City Hall Notes," this week will be Nancy Harrington and Ernest Harris of the Public Works Department.

Ms. Harrington will discuss the role of the Public Transportation Commission and Harris will talk on the functions of the Signs and Paint Division.

The program is aired on WOOW Radio each Tuesday and Thursday at 6:30 p.m.

SERVES AS PAGE

Pamela Laughinghouse, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Laughinghouse of 1007 Colonial Ave., served as a page in Gov. Jim Hunt's office in Raleigh during the week of December 28-31.

Miss Laughinghouse is a senior at J. H. Rose High School.

YOUTH REVIVAL

A "youth revival for all ages" will be held at Mount Pleasant Christian Church on Rt. 6, Greenville Friday through Sunday at 7 p.m.

The revival will be conducted by the youth minister, Mars Ray "Moose" Robinson. Puppetry and special singing will be included each evening. The public is invited.

No Problem In Lack Of A Code

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Although some North Carolina counties don't inspect new buildings for compliance with the state's building code, no major problems have resulted, officials say.

S. Ray Moore, chairman of the North Carolina Building Code Council, says it's unlikely that a large building would be built in an area without inspections, since such counties generally are sparsely populated.

"If there's not that much going on, there's not that much need for a (big) building," he said, adding that he didn't know of any large buildings in the state that hadn't been inspected.

Philip P. Green, assistant director of the Institute of Government at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, said some rural churches that had never been inspected occasionally collapsed under heavy snow loads in the 1950s and 1960s.

Under the state's 1977 building code law, low population counties have until 1985 to establish inspection programs. Theoretically, large buildings in those counties could be erected without being checked by an inspector.

Before 1977, only incorporated areas had been required to have inspectors.

But the absence of an inspection program does not free a builder from adhering to the state's building code, Moore said. Compliance is required, even in a building is never inspected.

Under the 1977 law, counties with more than 75,000 residents were required to have inspection programs as of July 1, 1979; 50,000 to 75,000 residents, as of July 1 of this year; 25,000 to 50,000 residents, as of July 1, 1983; and fewer than 25,000 residents, as of July 1, 1984.

Moore said the requirement was phased in to give small counties, which probably could least afford inspection programs, more time to comply.

Once a county falls under the requirement, all incorporated and unincorporated areas must have an inspection program or contract for inspection service, Moore said.

The state building code was set as a minimum statewide requirement for building standards in 1936, according to Moore. Until 1957, communities were free to enact stricter codes than the state code, he said.

But in 1957, the General Assembly made the code uniform made the code uniform throughout the state and wiped out local variations, Moore said. Now, communities that want to enact stricter code requirements must have the approval of the building code council, which Moore heads, to do so.

I.B. Hudson, an assistant state attorney general, said that under state law the Insurance Commissioner enforces the building code throughout the state. Hudson represents both the Department of Insurance and the Building Code Council.

Thus, the Insurance Department is technically responsible for enforcement of the code in areas without inspection programs, he said.

"As a practical matter, if the county doesn't have an inspection system, the (building code) doesn't get enforced," said Hudson, adding that the Insurance Department didn't have enough staff members to enforce codes in areas without inspection programs.

Many Idled By Watauga Fire

BOONE, N.C. (AP) — One hundred fifty employees of the American Wicker Incorporated plant will be out of work temporarily after the plant was gutted by fire Saturday, an official.

Owner Bob Capps said the company will set up offices at its outlet store in Boone until the plant can be relocated or rebuilt.

A spokesman for volunteer firefighters said that by the time firefighters arrived, the building was engulfed in flames.

A Watauga County Sheriff's Department spokesman said it took several hours to bring the fire under control and the remains are still smoldering. An investigation is underway to determine the cause.

The company, which is located near N.C. 105, manufactures wicker furniture and baskets.

There are two big changes in the IRA (Individual Retirement Account) at First Federal.

First everyone is eligible. Even if you've already got a pension or retirement fund and you've never been eligible for an IRA before. Now you are.

Second, the maximum contribution to your IRA will be $2000 instead of $1500 ($2250 spousal IRA). We don't have to tell you what an extra $500 deduction can mean at tax time.

With an IRA at First Federal, you can write off the full amount of your contribution (up to $2000).

You won't have to pay a penny in taxes on the amount of your contribution or the high rate of interest it earns, until you withdraw it when you retire. (You must be at least 59½ to withdraw from your IRA to avoid stiff IRS (Internal Revenue Service) penalties).

But what's important is that when you retire, your income and tax bracket will most likely be lower than it is now.

And that adds up to less taxes now, and less taxes later.

So put yourself first. Open an IRA at First Federal and start paying less taxes.

Your IRA funds are, of course, available to you at any time. However, there is a stiff IRS tax penalty if you withdraw from this account before age 59. You must receive at least $2000 a year in compensation to be eligible for an IRA.

NEW YORK (AP) - Stock prices opened the new year mostly higher today as the market tried to reverse its broad decline in 1981.

Auto, steel, retail, chemical and forest product stocks were among those groups gaining, while some drug and oil service issues turned lower.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which closed Thursday with a gain of 1.90 points but with a 1981 loss of 88.99 points, was up 3.71 to 878.71 after two hours of trading.

Advances held a 7-5 edge over declines on the New York Stock Exchange.

Big Board volume totaled 15.51 million shares at noon EST, compared with 16.89 million at the same hour Thursday.

New Drug For Heart Okayed

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Food and Drug Administration today approved a new drug for treating angina, the chest pains which occur when the heart muscle receives too little oxygen-bearing blood.

FDA Commissioner Arthur Hull Hayes Jr. said the drug, nifedipine, is "a significant medical advance for patients who cannot tolerate or are not helped by other drugs."

Nifedipine is the second calcium blocker FDA has approved for this use and the first available in oral form. Another calcium blocker, verapamil, was approved last year for use as an injectable treatment in emergency rooms.

Nifedipine will be marketed under the trade name Procardia by the Pfizer pharmaceutical company. Dr. Hayes said it will not be available in drug stores for several weeks.

Several hundred thousand Americans suffer from angina but it is not clear how many of them would be helped by nifedipine.

Hayes said nifedipine may be particularly useful for angina caused by a sudden contraction or spasm of the heart that may strike resting or sleeping people. It also may be effective in more common angina cases when the heart muscle cannot get enough blood through clogged arteries.

Calcium blockers like nifedipine join nitrate drugs and nitroglycerine and another new category of drugs, beta blockers, as available treatment for angina. Hayes said nitrate drugs and beta blockers are intended for common cases of angina when the arteries are clogged.

The calcium blockers work differently and may not be more effective than the other types of drugs, Hayes said. It may be possible to use the drug types in combination, but great care must be taken if they are, he said.

Nifedipine's side effects include dizziness, light-headedness, flushing or heat sensation and headaches. Those symptoms are generally not considered serious and rarely require a discontinuation of therapy, Hayes said.

Fee Increase

Effective Jan. 1, the fee charged for annual vehicle safety inspections increased from $4 to $4.25, the N.C. Department of Transportation's Motor Vehicles Division (DMV) announced.

The division said the 1981 General Assembly authorized the 25 cents increase to cover rising costs to administer the program.

The statewide inspection program was initially authorized by the 1965 General Assembly for implementation by DMV in 1966.

Face Club In Beating Death

WILKESBORO, N.C. (AP) - Two men charged in connection with the beating death of an 81-year-old man face initial court appearances Tuesday, a Wilkes County Sheriff's Department spokesman said.

Capt. Gary Phillips said Dennis Ray Hayes, 22, of North Wilkesboro, and Wendell Flowers, 25, of Statesville, are being held without bond in the Wilkes County jail.

Phillips said a third man is being sought in the Dec. 14 incident. Police said Hayes and Flowers are charged with murder, first-degree burglary, breaking and entering, larceny and assault.

The charges stem from the beating of Thomas Greer and his wife, Clara Greer, 76, of the Boomer community. Authorities said three men entered the Greer home in the night, beat Greer with an iron pipe and assaulted Mrs. Greer.

Greer died Friday night from injuries at Baptist Hospital in Winston-Salem, where he had been since the incident. Mrs. Greer was treated and released.

Body Found In Swimming Pool

MONROE, N.C. (AP) - Police in Vero Beach, Fla., are investigating the death of a Union County man whose body was found in a motel swimming pool Thursday.

The victim was identified as Larry Timothy Griffin, 19, of Monroe. He was found, fully clothed, lying on the bottom of the pool at the Citrus Motel. He was not registered at the motel, but his car was found nearby.

Det. Sgt. Timothy Burke of the Vero Beach Police Department said an autopsy showed that the cause of death was drowning. Burke would not say whether it was accidental or if police suspected foul play, saying only that "the case is still under investigation."

Winning Roll In Mud Puts 49ers In NFC Title Game

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The San Francisco 49ers, after another winning roll in their Candlestick Park mud, are one step away from the National Football League's gaudiest bash — the Super Bowl.

They got by the New York Giants 38-24 Sunday, following a pattern which seems standard in this season's playoffs.

"We knew other teams had blown big leads, and we didn't want to let that happen to us. We've been in a lot of pressure games this year," said quarterback Joe Montana, who had the first 300-yard passing day of his three-year NFL career but settled for 28 yards in the second half.

The Dallas Cowboys, 45-14 losers on Candlestick's slow turf early in the season, will be back next Sunday to face the 49ers in the National Conference championship game. The winner goes on to play the AFC champ, the Cincinnati Bengals or San Diego Chargers, in Super Bowl XVI on Jan. 24.

"Dallas has a lot of respect for our club," said San Francisco Coach Bill Walsh. He added, "The homefield advantage is a distinct advantage for us."

However, Giants Coach Ray Perkins said, "Dallas will win. They are a better football team. That's nothing against the 49ers, but the Cowboys have been in this situation before and they are a more experienced team."

San Francisco, 13-3 in the regular season, had its highest-scoring day since the victory over Dallas in eliminating the Giants, an NFC wild-card playoff team. The 49ers' defense, ranked second in the NFL this season, had a generally rough time and allowed three touchdown passes by young Scott Brunner.

The 49ers held a 24-7 lead after scoring three times early in the second period, but New York came back to within a touchdown, 24-17, and was stopped at San Francisco's 4-yard line on a third-period drive which could have tied the score.

"Defensively, we had breakdowns several times," said rookie cornerback Ronnie Lott, but he contributed two interceptions, one for a late, game-clinching touchdown.

The 49ers also recovered two New York fumbles and held Rob Carpenter, coming off a 161-yard effort in the playoff victory over Philadelphia, to 61 yards rushing.

"When we played the 49ers earlier this year, we made a lot of mistakes. We tried not to today, and we still made too many," said Johnny Perkins, who caught two of Brunner's touchdown passes.

The 49ers will be forced onto a neutral, artificial surface field and an indoor one, the Pontiac, Mich., Silverdome, if the team wins its first conference title and goes to the Super Bowl.

"We're starting to love that sloppy mess that everybody's been knocking. It's been pretty good to us," said San Francisco offensive tackle Keith Fahnhorst.

The Candlestick footing was better than expected Sunday, and rain amounted to only light sprinkles until late in the second half when the Bay Area was hit by its latest strong storm. Both teams' offenses came up with big plays frequently.

"I thought it was going to be a defensive struggle," admitted Fahnhorst.

Montana passed for 276 yards in the first half, hitting tight end Charlie Young on an early 8-yard touchdown pass and later connecting with Freddie Solomon on a 58-yard scoring play. Another long Montana pass, 39 yards to Dwight Clark, set up a touchdown as the 49ers scored three times in the opening 4½ minutes of the second quarter.

"We had to get respect from their defensive backs, and that's why we went long. They were playing a lot of zone defense, and we were guessing right," said Montana.

"Montana did some things people didn't expect. He threw deep, and some people had said he can't throw deep," said New York's Brunner, who delivered the two longest touchdown passes of his budding NFL career, 72 yards to Earnest Gray and 59 to Johnny Perkins, in the playoff loss.

The 38 points was the most scored against the Giants this season, and receiver Perkins disagreed with his coach about the Cowboys-49ers title matchup.

"The 49ers have a helluva ballclub. I think we'll be watching them in the Super Bowl," he said.

Lady Pirates Shoot Down 'Skins, 80-61

CORAL GABLES, Fla. — East Carolina got 29 points and nine rebounds from Mary Denkler and a career-high 18 points from Lillian Barnes to upset Miami of Ohio, 80-61, Sunday afternoon in the Miami (Fla.) New Year's Classic.

The Lady Pirates outscored Miami, 18 to 6, in the first 10 minutes of the game and then never allowed the Redskins closer than five points en route to their fourth win in nine outings this season.

"We couldn't be more pleased to beat a very good Miami of Ohio team after a tough loss (Saturday night) to Miami (Fla.)," East Carolina coach Cathy Andruzzi said. "The key to the win was that we improved our transition game in the second half."

ECU was also helped by a superb shooting performance and an impressive effort on the boards. The Lady Pirates hit 60% (34 of 57) of their shots from the floor for the afternoon — their best effort this season.

On the boards, meanwhile, ECU was put on one of its best performances of the season as well as the Lady Pirates out-rebounded the taller Redskins, 40-24, led by Denkler and Loletha Harrison, both of whom had nine rebounds. Sam Jones pulled down eight rebounds.

For Denkler, it was the second straight day she went the entire 40 minutes and the second straight day she scored over 20 points. She had 22 in a 60-56 loss to Miami of Florida Saturday night.

"I put a lot of pressure on Mary Denkler," Andruzzi said. "She's a great athlete, but she must be exhausted. She went 40 minutes today and 40 minutes yesterday. Everybody is keying on her, but she still gets her points."

Miami, now 9-3, was led by 6-2 center Cindy Gibson, who scored 21 points — including her team's first eight points of the game and pulled down five rebounds. Forward Linda Mallender and guard Mary Ann Myer each had 10 points for the Redskins.

ECU moved steadily ahead in the early going and mounted a 12-point lead with 10 minutes to go in the first half. From there, the Lady Pirates maintained their advantage over the

Miller Wins Biggest Check Ever In Golf

SUN CITY, Bophuthatswana (AP) — Johnny Miller took a look at the biggest prize in the history of golf, a $500,000 check, and offered a weary smile.

"Doing it this way is pretty close to earning it," Miller said after he'd struggled over seven hours and 27 holes Sunday — the last nine a sudden death playoff with Seve Ballesteros — before winning the Sun City Golf Challenge, the game's first $1-million event.

"I've got a little confession to make," he said. "When we were coming up to that last hole, I was hoping they'd come out and call it all even and spit the money."

"Nobody deserved to lose that playoff."

But Ballesteros, a Spaniard who had led or shared the lead all the way, eventually lost it, 3-putting for a bogey from 50 feet while Miller made a routine par.

Ballesteros missed a four-foot second putt which would have extended the playoff to another hole, and another day.

With darkness creeping over the green hills ringing the Gary Player Country Club course, officials had decided that if the outcome were not determined on the ninth playoff hole, play would be called for the day.

But Ballesteros' miss from 48 inches settled it, and cost him $340,000, the difference between the winner's check and the $160,000 he received for second place.

"I congratulate Johnny on his excellent golf," Ballesteros said.

"But next time I beat him."

They shared the lead most of the way and finished the regular 72 holes at 277, 11-under-par on the 7,693-yard course at a sprawling resort some 100 miles from Johannesburg. Each had a closing 71.

Then they went to the playoff, beginning on the par-3 16th hole. And it very nearly ended there. Miller hit it about four feet but faced a difficult, breaking putt. Ballesteros responded with a magnificent shot that missed being an ace by six inches. Both made birdies.

Then they reeled off a string of seven consecutive pars in one of the game's great shootouts before Ballesteros finally made the mistake that let Miller claim the half-million dollar prize.

Jack Nicklaus just missed making it a three-man playoff. After making birdie on four of five holes on the back, he came to the 72nd hole needing only a par to join them. But he missed the green, chipped three-four feet past the hole and missed the comeback putt as an astonished gasp rose from the massed, mixed-race gallery.

Nicklaus finished with a 69 on the bright, sunny day and a 278 total. He won $130,000.

Lee Trevino and host Gary Player, the only others in the invitational five-man field, weren't in the chase after the second round. Trevino had a closing 70 and a 289 total and won $110,000. "It was the most excruciating pressure I've ever known," Miller said.

Fans Cheer On 'Dawgs, Tigers

ANDERSON (AP) — You can safely say that all God's children, or at least those who live in this area, probably were divided into three groups New Year's Day:

On one side are the Clemson University faithful, their favorite color orange emblazoned on everything from ash trays to overalls, towels to checks.

Then, you have the folks who support the University of Georgia. They call their team the Bulldogs and have a tendency to entice a near-riot by hollerin' "How 'Bout Them 'Dawgs!" That rubs against the grain of the first group.

And then, there is a third group. One impervious to all around them. They see no orange, no red and black. They are the ones who don't care.

But you can safely say that on New Year's Day 1982, the last group was significantly smaller than the other two, for Friday was a day of reckoning for that band of Tigers and that pack of 'Dawgs, one in the Orange Bowl, the other in the Sugar Bowl.

If you didn't see anyone wandering the streets Friday night, they probably were glued to the TV set, watching one of the football games. Some watched both.

On two TV sets. In the same room. The sound turned up on one, turned down on the other.

In case you were in the third group that tried to avoid all the televised mayhem, here's what this story is all about:

Clemson University's undefeated football team was ranked No. 1 in the country and played for their first national championship against a bunch of Cornhuskers from the University of Nebraska.

Eight-hundred miles away in New Orleans, the University of Georgia, ranked second, went indoors at the Superdome to play the University of Pittsburgh.

Both Clemson and Georgia had a shot at the national championship, depending on how the bowl games came out.

Get the picture? Care at all now?

At all points here and between were hordes of Clemson or Georgia fans, huddled en masse in front of their wide-screen or living room televi-

Dallas at San Fran, 4:30 p.m.

Buffalo Coach Chuck Knox wasn't sure of the reason for the penalty, but he downplayed its importance.

"That didn't cost us the football game," Knox said. "They moved the football on us. They broke on top 14-0. We came back, made a run at them and tied it up. But we were behind the whole game."

Cincinnati scored on its first two possessions, driving 42 and 48 yards. Charles Alexander bolted 4 yards for the first touchdown and fullback Pete Johnson crashed 1 yard into the end zone for the other.

Ferguson, who failed to complete a pass in the first quarter, connected with wide receiver Jerry Butler on a 54-yard pass play to set up Joe Cribbs' 1-yard touchdown run just before the half and narrow the gap.

The teams traded touchdowns in the second half. Buffalo lost Cribbs to a knee injury on a 44-yard touchdown burst that tied the game 14-14.

Alexander's 20-yard run put Cincinnati ahead 21-14, but Butler grabbed a 21-yard touchdown pass to tie the score just eight seconds into the fourth quarter.

Anderson found Collinsworth alone down the middle on Cincinnati's next possession for the go-ahead touchdown.

toward a tying touchdown with three minutes to play when a delay of game penalty nullified an apparent first down inside the Bengals' 20-yard line.

Joe Ferguson's fourth-down pass to wide receiver Lou Piccone was wiped out by the penalty, and Ferguson overthrew Roland Hooks in the end zone to kill the Bills' last serious threat.

"It's hard to accept because it was a mistake that shouldn't have happened," Ferguson said of the delay penalty that put the ball back on the Bengals' 25-yard line.

Anderson found Collinsworth alone down the middle on Cincinnati's next possession for the go-ahead touchdown.

"I'm having a ball up here listening to all of this," she said, adding that her father had sponsored some sort of New Year's bash for the past five years. Georgia's football success made it even better.

"I like to see the Clemson people pick on the Georgia people, and the Georgia people pick on the Clemson people. But it's all in good fun, you know? Nobody gets hurt and nobody hurts nobody."

Later, the Clemson fans gathered in an upstairs room of the accounting office, yelling so loudly when a Nebraska player fumbled the ball those below expected a few ceiling tiles to drop in the beer.

Rosemary Lindley had her orange-and-white pompons, the

Dallas Out To Give 49ers A Payback

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys figured they would be going back to Candlestick Park, the site of a 45-14 humiliation Oct. 11.

The San Francisco 49ers assured themselves of the homefield advantage in the National Conference title game Sunday with a workmanlike 38-24 thumping of the New York Giants.

"You had to figure the 49ers would win playing at home and all," said Dallas linebacker D.D. Lewis. "Now, we've got to go back to California and that bad field."

"That's OK. We seem to play our best when we owe a team something and we certainly owe the 49ers a payback."

Dallas qualified for its 10th NFC title game Saturday with a 38-0 rout of Tampa Bay in Texas Stadium.

The Cowboys had hoped for a Giant upset so they would get the homefield in the championship game.

"It would have been sweet," said Lewis.

"The field is treacherous but we've just got to get it out of our minds," said Lewis. "The field didn't beat us the last time. We just flat weren't ready to play."

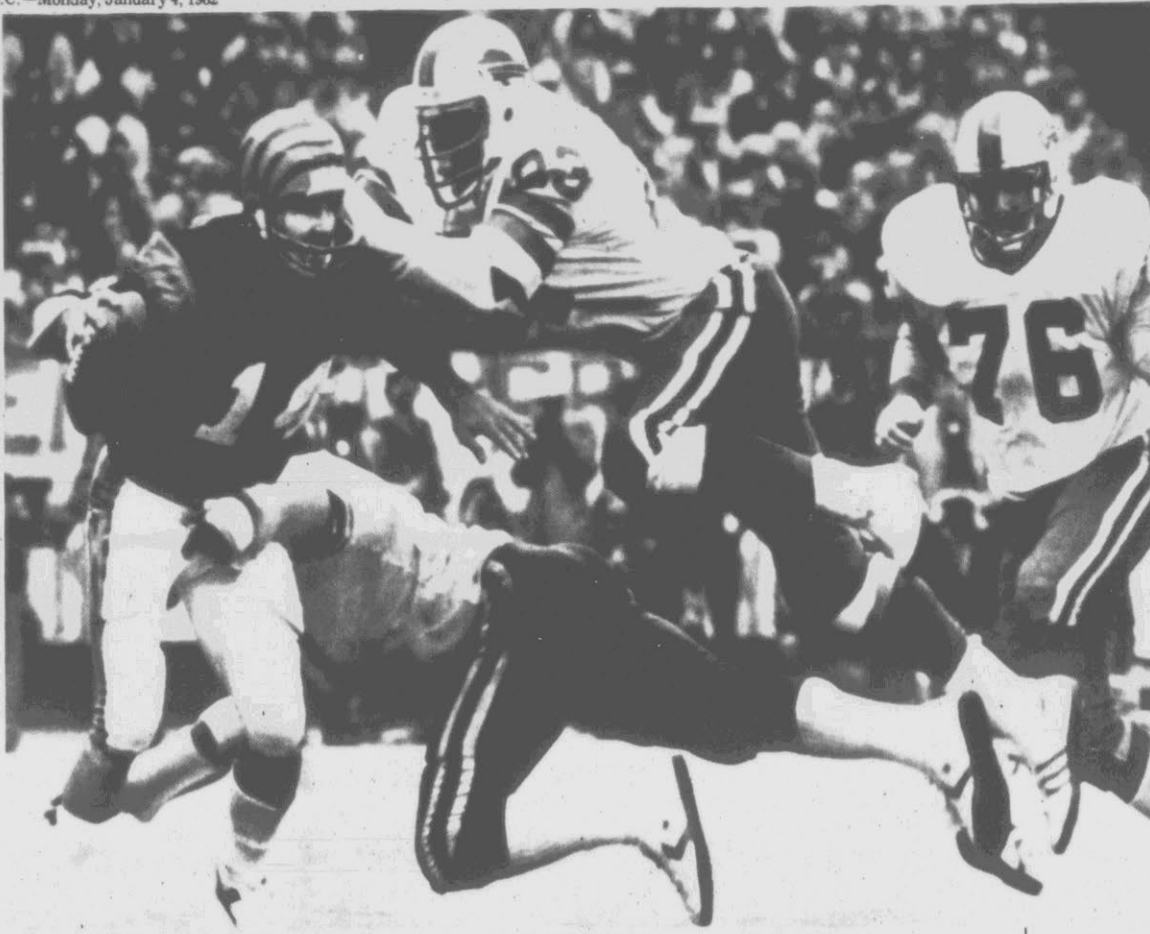

The Cowboys came on strong in the second half of the season after the 49er thrashing.

"The 49ers humiliated us earlier in the year and we owe them one," said tailback Tony Dorsett.

Dallas' defense devastated Buccaneer quarterback Doug Williams, who suffered four interceptions and four sacks.

Twice he grounded the ball and completed only 10 of 29 passes for 187 yards.

"San Francisco has changed a lot since we played them so we really don't know that much about them," said Cowboy Coach Tom Landry. "I think we've improved lot since that day."

Fouts: Greatest Game I Have Ever Played In

MIAMI (AP) — San Diego quarterback Dan Fouts slowly shook his head, almost as in disbelief, as he talked about the Chargers' American Football Conference semifinal playoff victory over the Miami Dolphins.

"I don't know how it looked to the people in the stands, but this sure was the greatest game I've ever played in," said Fouts, whose devastating passing led the Chargers to a 41-38 overtime triumph and spoiled what would have been the greatest comeback in National Football League playoff history.

"As a participant I guess I can't say it's the best game I've ever seen. But it is the best I've ever played in ... This is what the playoffs are all about. You saw two great teams play a great football game."

The victory, which came on Rolf Benirschke's 29-yard field goal 13:52 into the sudden-death period, sends San Diego into next week's AFC championship game against Cincinnati. The Bengals were a 28-21 semifinal winner over Buffalo Sunday.

Fouts completed 33 of 53 passes for 433 yards, all NFL playoff records, and hit 7 of 8 attempts for 75 yards during a 10-play, 82-yard drive that produced a game-tying touchdown in the final minute of regulation.

His 9-yard flip to James Brooks with 58 seconds remaining wiped out a 38-31 lead Miami had fashioned after trailing 24-0 in the first quarter.

Veteran reserve quarterback Don Strock replaced David Woodley early in the second period and went on to hit 28 of 42 passes for 397 yards and carry the Dolphins to the brink of winning their first playoff game since Super Bowl VIII.

But two blocked field goals — one on the final play of regulation and the other less than six minutes after Benirschke missed a 27-yard try early in overtime — denied the Dolphins the points needed for a victory.

"I'm heartbroken, but I'll feel worse tomorrow and even worse next week when I see San Diego still playing," said Miami guard Bob Kuechenberg, one of the final links to the Dolphins' Super Bowl years.

"This is the first time since our championship years that I had a feeling this team was for real. This year, we were as good as anyone. We were a legitimate Super Bowl team," he added.

Kellen Winslow, playing on the Chargers' field goal defense for only the third time this season, tipped Uwe von Schamann's 43-yard attempt as time expired in regulation and said he almost got a hand on a 34-yard try that Leroy Jones blocked in overtime.

"I'm only put in on do-or-die situations. I'm tall and I have jumping ability," said the tight end, who also caught a playoff-record 13 passes for 166 yards and one touchdown. "Actually I thought I jumped higher on the second attempt and thought I had it (again) but Leroy got it first."

Fouts, who said he tried to comfort Benirschke after the missed 27-yarder by telling him he'd get a chance to redeem himself, set up the game-winning field goal by teaming with Charlie Joiner on a 39-yard pass play.

"You play this game until it's over. I just told him he was going to get one more chance," said Fouts. "He's too good to get down on himself."

Benirschke said he hurried the 27-yard attempt but that his confidence wasn't damaged. "Everybody misses some but you don't always get another chance. I never thought about missing the second one," he said.

von Schamann, who made a 34-yard field goal in the second quarter, had hit 10 straight and 18 of his last 20 before the fateful final kicks.

"I think it's very hard to explain to people how you feel after missing one like that. Right off, you're in shock, after you've done it successfully repeatedly," he said. "The immediate thing that comes to you is, 'Why did it happen?' I'm sure I'll find the answer."

Strock moved the Dolphins back into contention with a 17-point second quarter highlighted by a bit of razzle-dazzle of the final play of the half.

Strock, operating from the Chargers 40 with six seconds remaining, threw 15 yards to Durriel Harris and the wide receiver lateraled the ball to Tony Nathan who ran for a touchdown to complete a 40-yard play.

"I just thought it was the time to use it," said Miami Coach Don Shula. "We've used it before. It's one of those where you have to keep the ball alive because you know that's the only way you're going to get it into the end zone."

Shula, whose team bowed out with a 11-5 record, said the loss would be "a tough one to live with."

Solomon Typical Of The 49ers

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Freddie Solomon sat slumped miserably over the trainer's table in the San Francisco 49ers' dressing room.

He had played a major role in the 38-24 victory Sunday over the New York Giants but now he was sweating from his 101-degree fever and feeling as sick in his stomach as he had all game.

"I've had the flu for a few days but this is no time to be taking off," Solomon said. "I'll be back at work tomorrow getting ready for Dallas."

Solomon, a veteran wide receiver and punt return specialist, played the kind of intensity against the Giants that has helped the 49ers achieve the best record in the National Football League this season. As much as the well-publicized talents of quarterback Joe Montana or the collective efforts of the 49ers' defensive backs, Solomon's professionalism has been a catalyst for the club in its finest season.

Solomon seemed to be all over the field Sunday, although twice his exuberance proved costly. On the fourth play of the game, he was called for a clipping penalty that nullified a 64-yard touchdown pass to running back Ricky Patton. Later in the first period, he set the 49ers back with another clipping penalty.

Solomon felt he wasn't guilty of either clip but he didn't let them bother him the way he said they would have when he was a less-experienced player. He dug in and atoned for his mistakes early in the second period when he easily outran Giants cornerback Terry Jackson to catch a perfect pass

CINCINNATI (AP) — Buffalo running back Joe Cribbs spoke softly, calmly about the sprained left knee that had forced him to sit out most of the second half of the Bills' 28-21 National Football League playoff loss to the Cincinnati Bengals.

"The doctors say it will be fine in a couple of weeks," he said Sunday, knowing that there would have been plenty of time to get ready for the Super Bowl — but the Bills won't be going this year.

"It was very difficult to sit there on the sidelines, because I knew that we needed some offense," Cribbs said. "I tried to come back in, but my knee was just too weak and wobbly."

Cribbs had provided much of the Bills' offense, carrying 15 times for 90 yards and two touchdowns. His second TD was a 44-yard burst that from Montana for a 58-yard touchdown.

Solomon finished with 107 yards receiving, 12 yards rushing and a 22-yard punt return in the fourth quarter. That led to a touchdown, gave the 49ers a 31-17 lead and crushed a comeback bid by the Giants.

Wide receiver Dwight Clark had 104 yards for San Francisco as Montana passed for a career high 304 yards.

"Montana's a better-than-average quarterback but a lot has to be said about the receivers," said Giants linebacker Byron Hunt. "They run a lot of good patterns, they have great hands, and they drew Buffalo even at 14-14, but on the play Bengal linebacker Louis Breeden caught up with Cribbs at the goal line and tackled him, and Cribbs wrenched the knee.

"Sure, losing him hurt," said Buffalo Coach Chuck Knox. "Of course it hurts to lose your best guy, your big-play guy."

Buffalo gave up a touchdown, then drew even again on a 21-yard pass from Joe Ferguson to Jerry Butler. But the Bills were playing catch-up again with three minutes left when a delay-of-game penalty took them out of a fourth-and-three situation on the should get more credit than they do."

Giants cornerback Mark Haynes, a victim of the swift 49er receivers, agreed completely. "Montana just hit on some short passes and the receivers did the rest," he said. "They executed well and it's that simple."

"Execution" was a word much in vogue in both dressing rooms after the game.

"Our offensive execution was as good as its ever been since I've been with the team," said 49ers Coach Bill Walsh.

And sitting by his locker, blood on the bridge of his nose, Montana echoed the same thoughts. "Execution was the Cincinnati 20-yard line and forced a desperation pass that fell in the end zone.

Buffalo got the ball once more, on a punt that kick return specialist Robb Riddick wished later that he had fielded.

"The coaches don't like us to field the ball inside the 10-yard line, and I thought the ball might go into the end zone," Riddick said. "But it hit the turf and just died, and there I was, just standing there. I thought to myself, 'If that ball is downed on the one-yard line, I couldn't have done any worse than that.'"

The ball barely touched the end zone stripe before being key," he said, as if all the 49ers did was carry out the game plans set out by the coaches. But then he admitted, "we were also guessing right a lot of the time."

Montana guessed right quite a bit in the first half when he found his receivers in wide open spaces and rolled up 276 yards passing while completing 15 of 22 throws.

The 49ers' defensive players were less enthusiastic about the 20. But Riddick had missed his chance to shift the momentum to Buffalo.

"I wish I would have caught it now. I'd like to go back and do it," Riddick said. "A runback there and we could have been right back in the game."

Instead, Buffalo passed four times — all of them incomplete — and time ran out.

"Somehow, I knew we were going to win this game," said veteran Bengal cornerback Ken Riley.

"You just feel real comfortable playing with these guys. Things are more relaxed than on my college or high school teams," said rookie wide receiver Cris Collinsworth, whose fourth-quarter touchdown reception provided the winning margin.

the quality of their play, several of them suggesting that a similar performance against Dallas next week in the NFC title game would spell the end of their season.

"We made a lot of mental mistakes that hurt us," said cornerback Ronnie Lott. "When we play Dallas, we'll have to eliminate those mistakes or they'll eliminate us. We can't play the way we did today."

same ones she's held in her hand since the first of Clemson's winning season. They are, she said, her good luck charms.

She hoped by the time this final, all-important game rolled around, she hadn't worn out their potency.

Her husband, Charles, wouldn't sell Georgia short, though. He's Clemson all the way from his orange corduroy slacks to his orange-striped shirt to his Clemson hat.

"If Clemson wins, we'll be tickled to death if Georgia wins," Lindley said.

But the mere fact that Clemson entered the game an underdog didn't deter Carol Cochran.

"We were underdogs when we played North Carolina, we were underdogs when we played Georgia. It'll depend on if the Tigers come out in their orange pants."

There's something strange about those orange pants. Everytime they've worn them, the Tigers have won.

And Rosemary Lindley has waved her pompons.

Hoisting a brew at the Plankhouse South nightclub,

Mac McCall figured he was the lone ranger in the room, so he'd be happy to watch the game on a namby-pamby black-and-white set, while the Clemson fans watch their game in living color.

Mac's a Georgia fan. A die-hard. One who doesn't mind saying loud enough for Clemson fans to hear:

"I think Georgia will win, Clemson will lose, and Georgia will win the national championship."

But he's at a disadvantage, he believes.

"When you live around here, you're in Clemson territory."

Jabbar's Return No Rousing Success

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Kareem Abdul-Jabbar's return to the Los Angeles Lakers was hardly a rousing success. Rather, it was a disaster. But it wouldn't be fair to blame the All-Pro center.

Abdul-Jabbar missed six games because of a strained tendon in his right ankle. The Lakers won all six games, but their streak came to a resounding end Sunday night.

Abdul-Jabbar scored 26 points, grabbed 16 rebounds, had four assists and blocked three shots in his first action since Dec. 17, but the Lakers started horribly and finished even worse in suffering a 110-90 setback to the Seattle SuperSonics.

"Maybe it's an adjustment with Kareem coming back, but whatever it is, I don't think it will take them long to get it all back together," said Seattle guard Gus Williams, who scored 10 of his game-high 27 points in the fourth quarter. "I am glad they weren't at their best tonight."

Los Angeles appeared sluggish as the Sonics scored the game's first seven points and extended their advantage to 36-20 after one quarter. It was 58-45 late in the first half when the Lakers got hot.

Los Angeles scored the final four points of the first half to make it 58-49, and the first eight points of the second half to draw to within one point of Seattle. Shortly thereafter, the Lakers led 71-64 and appeared on their way to a seventh straight victory.

However, the Sonics, 19-11, dominated the rest of the game, outscoring the Lakers 46-19 in the final 18 minutes of play. Seattle led by only one point, 78-77, entering the fourth quarter, but tallied 13 of the period's first 17 points for a 10-point lead. The rest was easy.

Lionel Shelton added 25 points and 12 rebounds and Jack Sikma had 19 points and 20 rebounds for the Sonics, who outrebounced the Lakers 56-49.

Jamaal Wilkes and Norm Nixon added 24 and 18 points, respectively, for the Lakers. Magic Johnson was held to nine points, but he had a game-high 14 assists and nine rebounds.

"It was just a matter of Seattle playing as well as they've played in a long time," said Los Angeles Coach Pat Riley. "They took us out of anything we wanted to do with their size. We can't win 'em all, but we tried."

Riley reacted strongly when asked about his club winning six in a row without Abdul-Jabbar but losing upon the six-time NBA Most Valuable Player's return.

"People who've been around the game a long time and understand what's ahead are insane to say we are better without him," said Riley. "We were on an emotional high for six games. We all know that we have to have Kareem to make it to the playoffs."

Nuggets 128, Bucks 122

Alex English scored 38 points and Kiki Vandeweghe added 25 as Denver snapped Milwaukee's five-game winning streak.

The Nuggets trailed 67-65 at halftime, but Dan Issel scored 10 points in the third quarter when Denver outscored the Bucks 41-25 to take a 106-92 lead. The Nuggets shot at a 68-percent clip in the third quarter.

English hit 14 of 21 shots from the field and was 10-for-10 at the free throw line for the Nuggets.

Marques Johnson led the Bucks with 21 points.

Blazers 127, Kings 116

Two three-point goals by Kelvin Ransey and one by Jim Paxson in the final minute of regulation sent Portland into overtime against Kansas City, then the Trail Blazers blitzed the Kings 16-5 in the extra period.

Calvin Natt scored 28 points to lead Portland, but it was the second three-pointer by Ransey that overcame a 111-108 Kansas City deficit with six seconds to go.

Rookie Steve Johnson scored 33 points and had 18 rebounds for the Kings.

Vikes' Brown Recuperating From Wound

HIGH POINT, N.C. (AP) — Ted Brown, leading ground-gainer for the Minnesota Vikings of the National Football League, is recuperating in High Point Memorial Hospital from an accidental shooting.

The 24-year-old former North Carolina State All-American running back was admitted to the hospital after the accident at his parents' home in High Point Dec. 27. His football career should not be affected by the wound, Brown said Sunday night.

According to police reports, Brown was moving a revolver to a safe place when it fell out of the holster, hit the floor and discharged. The bullet hit him in the back of the right thigh.

A hospital spokesperson said Brown was listed in "satisfactory" condition. When contacted Sunday, Brown initially declined to discuss the reason he was admitted.

"I am here for a rest," Brown said. "The doctor ordered me to take a vacation. I took quite a beating this season and now I'm here for a rest."

Brown later discussed the incident, saying he was able to walk into the emergency room under his own power. The loud noise accompanying the discharge startled him, but he did not originally think he had been hit by a bullet.

"It more or less felt like a pulled muscle," Brown said. "But I knew there was no reason I would have one because I wasn't running."

According to Brown, surgery was not necessary because the bullet was not totally imbedded in his leg. He has remained in the hospital for the past week so doctors could watch for signs of infection.

"They didn't operate to get the bullet out and it didn't go out by itself," Brown said. "I pulled it out myself. It didn't actually penetrate the leg."

Minnesota Viking officials learned of the accident Thursday. General Manager Mike Lynn said the Vikings want Brown to return to Minnesota in a few weeks for a routine checkup by team doctors.

Brown was ninth in National Football Conference rushing this year with 1,063 yards on 274 carries and second in receiving with 83 catches for 694 yards.

"I'm alive and that's one good thing," he said. "I'll wait and see about next year. I just don't want to talk about it right now. I am fortunate to be alive and well. Accidents do happen."

'Gridiron TVitis' Strikes Again

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

Millions of people returned to the drudgery of every day existence Monday — countenances glazed, eyes looking like a road map, all mumbling in tongues of the devils, spewing strange words such as "blitz," "shotgun," "power 1" and "Oh, them Dawgs."

Don't be alarmed. They haven't been mesmerized by an invasion from outer space. They're suffering a common American malady for this time of year — "gridiron TVitis."

It's contagious, and can be catastrophic. It's been known to break up happy households, send distraught mothers to institutions, make kids run away from home and otherwise turn normal, peace-loving individuals into raving, storming maniacs.

Mostly, and fortunately, though, it goes away after about 24 hours even without taking two aspirin and going to bed.

It so happens that this year, because New Year's Day fell on a Friday, we got such a heavy exposure to the infection in such a short space of time that recovery in most cases did not come so easily.

Look at what we were subjected to:

New Year's Eve: Three college bowl games, the Hall of Fame at Birmingham; the Peach at Atlanta; the Bluebonnet at Houston.

New Year's Day: Five more college bowls, all of major significance, the Fiesta at Tempe, Ariz.; the Orange at Miami, the Sugar at New Orleans, the Cotton at Dallas and the Rose at Pasadena.

This was followed by two National Football League games on Saturday and two more on Sunday.

Thus, an almost non-stop run on the big tube from late Thursday through Sunday afternoon — 72 hours of almost solid plunging, passing, kicking and body bumping, not to mention second-guessing — with hardly time for more than quick snacks in a paper plate washed down by handy six-packs of beer.

The most beautiful words in the English language — "Dinner's On" — went crassly unheeded. Poor mom, could you blame her for going out of her head?

Now it's Monday and things have moderated somewhat.

Mom can tune in on "The Guiding Light," "Search for Tomorrow," "General Hospital" or whatever happens to be her favorite soap opera. The kids can go back to their potato chips and cartoon favorites, "Bugs Bunny," "Tom and Jerry," "Popeye," or you name it.

But poor pop. He'll hardly get the glassiness removed from his eyes before he's back in his favorite chair again, cheering for his favorite team in the NFL league championship games Sunday and girding for the piece de resistance two weeks later — the Super Bowl.

He has one consolation. All the hoopla of the college bowls is over, so now he can devote himself entirely to the equally passionate but less frenzied pursuit of an accepted national pro champion.

The colleges, which generate more enthusiasm than the pros, haven't worked out a scheme to do likewise. Some think this is good. Others think it is bad. We think it's good.

Let the pros do it their way. Let the colleges continue in the aged bowl tradition.

next several minutes before the Redskins finally managed to cut the deficit to five, 33-28, at the half.

Miami got no closer, however. The Lady Pirates stretched their lead to as many as 19 in the second half and never allowed the Redskins closer than five as ECU outscored Miami, 47-33, in the final half.

"It (80-61) looks like we blew them out, but we never really had control," Andruzzi said. "Mary Denkler had some critical rebounds at the free throw line late in the game to help us keep the lead."

Joining Denkler and Barnes, a senior guard, in double figures for the Lady Pirates were Jones with 12 and Harrison with 11. Jones also handed out eight assists.

The win gave ECU a 2-2 record at the tournament. While the record is not what Andruzzi might have wanted, the ECU coach was pleased for the most part with the play of her team.

"We're improving a lot," Andruzzi said. "When you come back from a loss like we did and win the next day it shows you've got a lot of character and guts. They've proved they're not a 'give-up' team."

The Lady Pirates continue on the road this week when they travel to Kentucky to face the nationally-ranked Lady Wildcats Tuesday night. Kentucky is led by all-American center Valerie Still, who is averaging 25.5 points and 15.5 rebounds per game.

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Jay Haas opened the 1982 golf year by winning the $150,000 Spalding Invitational Pro-Am golf tournament with a 22-under-par 337 total.

Haas, a two-time winner on the tour last year, carded a final round 3-under-par 69 on the par-72 Pebble Beach course to hold off a late challenge by second-place finisher Bobby Clampett, who closed with a 70 for a 341 total. The third-place finisher was touring pro Greg Powers, who closed with a 70 for a 347 total.

GOLF TOUR TOUGH
NORWALK, Conn. (AP) — Bobby Nichols, a former PGA winner, has three children but he's not at all sure he wants them to play competitive golf.

"Golf is there if they want it," Nichols said. "But I honestly hope they don't. Playing the tour is an unnatural way to live and it's ruined a lot of lives. And you'd be surprised how few people really make a living at it."

National Talk Show Is Being Tried By PBS

By TOM JORY
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — "PBS Latenight with Dennis Wholey," public TV's first nationally broadcast talk and viewer phone-in program, premieres at midnight tonight, and one good thing about the show is that it comes from Detroit.

For several reasons, most of them economic, too many Public Broadcasting Service programs are produced in New York, Washington, Boston, Los Angeles. Any original that broadens the programming base — "Nightly Business Report" from Miami, WPBT and "John Callaway Interviews" from WTTW in Chicago are two recent examples — is good for the struggling system.

It spreads around the high cost of filling air time, and there's more: "There is an identity with PBS that tends to overtly or covertly or subliminally keep people away, because they think it isn't for them," says Wholey, host of the pioneering weeknightly series produced by WTVS, the public television station in Detroit.

"Maybe we can attract a new audience to PBS with the 'Latenight' show," Wholey says. "And I'm convinced if people want what I call 'informational entertainment,' they'll find us."

About 40 stations are committed to the initial 13-week run of "PBS Latenight," notably those in Denver, Dallas, New Orleans, Houston, Milwaukee and Minneapolis-St. Paul. The program will be fed live, midnight-1 a.m. EST.

One primary objective has to be the enlistment of the system's larger stations — New York's WNET, WGBH in Boston, KCET in Los Angeles, Washington's WETA.

"PBS Latenight" will be closer in format and composition to "The Larry King Show," Mutual Broadcasting's midnight-5:30 a.m. interview and call-in radio program, than to the network TV competition, Wholey says.

"Viewers looking for comedy," he says, "can go to Johnny Carson or David Letterman, when his show comes on in February. PI think we're coming in appealing to a larger segment of the audience — the second-shift people who aren't ready to fold up and go to bed at midnight."

Wholey resists too precise comparison with King's popular radio program, saying, "So much is dependent on the person doing the show. 'Latenight' will be much more reflective of my interests and tastes and my outlook on life, which can be a little crazy."

Wholey's guests for the premiere program are Alexei Semyonov, stepson of dissident Soviet physicist Andrei Sakharov, and Semyonov's wife, Lisa Alexeyeva. Wholey also will talk with writer Albert Goldman, whose most recent book, "Elvis," has created something of a stir.

Wholey is well-known locally — he was host for more than four years of "AM Detroit," produced by ABC's WXYZ-TV — but he has had some national exposure. He was host of "The Dennis Wholey Show," syndicated by Taft Broadcasting in about 25 cities in the early '70s, and was the star of a short-lived ABC game show, "The Generation Gap," in mid-1969.

Until July of this year, he anchored WTVS' "Dennis Wholey's Journal." He sold Jack Caldwell, the station's president and GM, on the idea for a nightly talk show, but he says it's Caldwell who's really out on a limb, having committed at least $50,000 of the station's money to the project.

Wholey says he's working with a budget of $100,000 for the 13-week season, including $25,000 from Volkswagen of America — which is interesting in itself.

Even Wholey isn't sure how "PBS Latenight" will look at the start. He knows there will be at least two guests each night, with ample opportunity for viewers to join the conversation by telephone.

"I think a show like this has to grow, and we'll set the dimensions as we go," he says. "Everyone has a style — King interviews for an hour, then goes to the phone and really bangs through the callers. He stresses fact, and maybe we can find a way to trigger people's feelings."

Q.1—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠85 ♠AQ875 ♣Q952 ♢63

The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 ♣ Pass Pass ?

What action do you take?

A.—We are not inclined to sell out cheaply, but here there are strong indications that partner might not have very much. Despite the fact that he is probably short in diamonds, he could not make a takeout double or even overall. It looks as if West has a very powerful hand, so don't give him a chance to show it. Pass.

Q.2—East West vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠965 ♣KQ72 ♢AJ104 ♣Q6

The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
Pass Pass Pass 1 ♣
Pass Pass Dble Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—We seldom recommend converting a one-level takeout double to penalties when holding only four trumps, but this looks like the exception to the rule. You rate to make three tricks in the enemy trump suit and have other goodies besides. Dummy should be well-nigh useless. Pass. This decision is based solely on the vulnerability. Were East West not vulnerable, it would be silly to play for a small penalty when you could pick up a valuable part score.

Q.3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠862 ♠AJ85 ♣J6 ♢AQ107

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♣ Pass 1 ♣ Pass
3 NT Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—If partner is an aggressive bidder, you should be satisfied with raising to four no trump—he won't refuse the invitation on any hand that would offer play for slam. However, if partner is the kind who wears a belt and suspenders, you should just up and bid the small slam in no trump.

Q.4—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠10974 ♠Q9832 ♢A6 ♣K8

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♣ Pass 1 ♣ 1 ♣
2 ♣ 2 ♣ ?

What do you bid now?
A.—The opponents' bidding marks partner with a singleton spade, so the high cards in your two hands should all be working. This is not the time to put partner, who might have already strained to raise to two hearts, under pressure. Don't make a namby-pamby bid of three hearts—four hearts gets our vote.

Q.5—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠J865 ♠A9843 ♣J6 ♢Q6

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South
1 ♣ Dble ?

What action do you take?

A.—There is no reason not to make the bid you would have had there been no interference. Bid one heart. If you pass, you might have no safe way of showing your scattered values on the next round, and your side might get frozen out of the auction when the hand belongs to you.

Q.6—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠A1062 ♠85 ♣KQJ7 ♢A94

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♣ Pass 1 ♣ Pass
2 NT Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—Simple addition should lead you to the right bid—six no trump. You have a balanced 14 points. You possess a partner who has shown a balanced 19-20. But we don't mind if you stop off to bid three diamonds en route. If partner has four-card diamond support, six diamonds might be a better contract than six no trump.

Arsonist Again At Large In Las Vegas

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Sixteen small fires were set in two Strip hotels and an apartment building Saturday evening, forcing evacuation of some guests but causing little damage, a Las Vegas fire department spokesman said.

The first fires occurred in elevator lobbies on the second and third floors of the Barbary Coast Hotel, said fire department spokesman Jim Martin.

Automatic fire extinguishers put out the fires but not before they caused $8,000 in smoke damage to both floors.

Less than an hour later eight fires occurred at a nearby apartment building. Six occurred in storage rooms. Two occurred in warehouses. All were put out by firefighters. Damage had not been calculated.

A few minutes later five fires were set next door at the Flamingo Hilton Hotel, he said. Firefighters extinguished two fires on the first floor of the hotel's "Colorado Building." Three fires were put out on the third floor of the complex. It was not immediately known if there were evacuations there. Damage was estimated at $500.

"There were 16 separate fires," Martin said. "No accidental causes have been found for any of the fires. All were started by an open flame."

All are under investigation.

Team Dudley, Steenburgen

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Mary Steenburgen, who won the Oscar for best supporting actress in "Melvin and Howard," has been signed by United Artists to star with Dudley Moore in "Romantic Comedy."

The Mirisch Company is producing the film version of the Broadway hit play with the script adapted by the play's author, Bernard Slade.

Steenburgen currently may be seen starring in "Ragtime."

Snakes Returned

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Ten of 11 reptiles stolen from the Fort Worth Zoo were returned by a letter-writer who said, basically, that he felt like a snake.

"The letterwriter wrote that he was sorry he stole the snakes," said zoo herpetologist Dave Blody, who found the snakes in a box at his front door.

A man called Blody's house Saturday afternoon to say the snakes had been returned to the house. Then he called again "to make sure that all the snakes had been returned to the zoo," Blody said.

"I was so taken aback that this guy called that before I realized it he had hung up."

The snakes, all non-poisonous, were stolen from the zoo Wednesday. Officials said the thief slithered down a rope from the skylight in the building to snatch the creatures.

A $500 reward had been offered by the Fort Worth Zoological Association for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the thief.

Blody said the caller sounded like "a teen-age man between 17 and 19 years old."

"He probably knew something about snakes because he took the creme de la creme of our collection," he added.

Kinski, Nuryev In Intrigue Film

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Nastassia Kinski, Rudolf Nureyev and Harvey Keitel will star in "Exposed," a drama of international terrorism set against the world of high fashion modeling in New York and Paris.

The trio of stars will be directed by James Toback who is also producing the story of intrigue for United Artists from his own screenplay.

Nureyev, who made his movie debut in "Valentino" in 1977, and Kinski, who gained fame in Roman Polanski's "Tess," will play the romantic leads.

Saturday's Cryptiquip: THE ONCE-PRETTY, SLIM PRIMA DONNA HAS BECOME A VERY OBESE OLD DIVA.

Today's Cryptiquip clue: F equals Y

The Cryptiquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Kluxers March To The Capitol

By MARY ANNE RHYNE

Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — About 20 Ku Klux Klansmen, robed and carrying signs, marched to the Capitol Sunday calling for the release of a man serving a life prison sentence for firebombing a black-owned newspaper.

An equal number of reporters and spectators, including several black children, braved the chilly rain to watch the Klansmen. Uninformed police and undercover agents stood by, but no trouble was reported.

Virgil Griffin, a Gastonia man who said he is Grand Dragon of the Invisible Empire of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, led marchers two blocks down Edenton and Salisbury streets to the Capitol. He said the group had gathered because "a white Christian brother is in jail" and to ask the governor why "he is prejudiced against white people."

Griffin, wearing a green and purple satin robe with a large dragon embroidered on the front, said Gov. Jim Hunt had allowed Lawrence Little to remain in jail while releasing the Wilmington 10, nine black men and a white woman convicted of a similar crime.

Little, 29, convicted of firebombing the Wilmington Journal in 1973, is serving a life sentence at the prison unit in Whiteville. Little is the self-proclaimed "pro-ganda minister" of the Rights of White People organization.

The Wilmington 10 were convicted in 1972 of firebombing a grocery store during racial disturbances the year before. In 1978, Hunt commuted their sentences, which ranged up to 29 years. All were freed by 1979.

Charles L. White, deputy legal counsel for Hunt, said the governor denied a request to commute Little's sentence last year.

"They were both charged with the same crime, but the Wilmington 10 are free and Lawrence is still in jail," Griffin charged.

Griffin said the Klan has obtained more than 2,000 signatures calling for Little's release and the group will send representatives to Washington to seek help from North Carolina's Republican senators John East and Jesse Helms.

He also said the Klan will seek a Congressional investigation of FBI and police informants "who led the Klan into a death trap" at an anti-Klan rally in Greensboro in November 1979.

Five Communist Workers Party members were shot to death at that rally. Six Klansmen were charged with their deaths but were later acquitted. One of the men, David Wayne Matthews, attended the rally Sunday but was not wearing a Klan robe and refused to comment about his relationship with the group.

The 20-minute rally was much shorter than the originally planned two-hour demonstration and attendance fell short of the 150 people expected by Klan leaders. Griffin said the rain had discouraged some supporters.

Members of the Klan Guard, in gray uniforms and white helmets, flanked the procession. Klansmen leading the group carried Confederate and American flags while some of the teenagers, women and men carried signs reading, "The whites have been discriminated against," and "Equal justice for Lawrence."

FOCUS

News Word: Assassin

The trial of John Hinckley, accused of trying to assassinate President Reagan, was scheduled to begin today. Two other assassination attempts in 1981 — the shootings of Pope John Paul II and Anwar Sadat — horrified the world. The dread word "assassin" originated with a small, violent Moslem sect in Persia in the 11th century. Rigorous discipline and unquestioning obedience was demanded of the younger members whose sacred duty was to murder their enemies. They were called "hashashin" because they ate hashish before their murderous missions as a taste of the heavenly reward that awaited them. The cult has disappeared, but its violence lives on in the acts of modern assassins.

DO YOU KNOW — Which four American Presidents did assassins kill?

Pilot Dead In Plane's Crash

SOUTHERN PINES, N.C. (AP) — The Federal Aviation Administration is trying to determine why a small plane crashed on its approach to the Moore County Airport, killing the Georgia pilot, investigators said.

Moore County Coroner A.B. Parker said Alfred B. Von Schlegel of Atlanta died of multiple injuries when the plane crashed at 5:15 a.m. Sunday in a wooded area near the Pinehurst No. 6 golf course, about 1½ miles west of the airport.

"It appeared to have hit a treetop and fell into the trees," said Capt. Ricky Whitaker, spokesman for the Moore County Sheriff's Department. "There was no damage to the golf course."

"The rain was extremely heavy," he added. "It was cold. It's possible something could have frozen up in the air."

Authorities said Von Schlegel, between 38 and 40 years old, was the only person aboard the airplane.

Parker said Von Schlegel also owned a house in Pinehurst and that his wife was there when the crash occurred.

FAA officials said the plane was on its way from Fulton County-Brown Field near Atlanta to the Moore County Airport when the pilot lost contact with the Washington Flight Center at Leesburg, Va.

FAA spokesman Roger Myers in Atlanta said the plane had missed one attempt to land at the Pinehurst airport and was on its second approach when it crashed.

Rescue personnel found the wreckage at about 6:30 a.m. Sunday, Whitaker said. There was no fire, they said.

Other eyewitnesses said the airplane was destroyed beyond recognition and that wreckage was strewn across the ground.

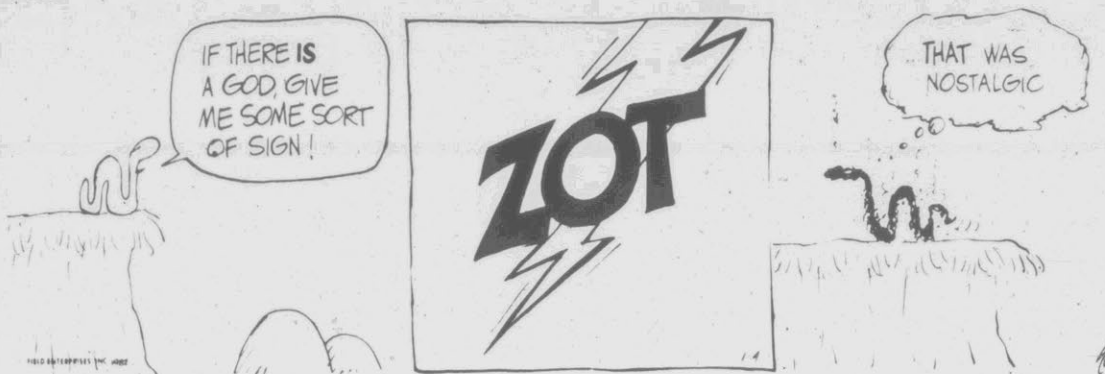

The crash site was "a mess," said Sgt. A.W. Caviness of the Moore County Sheriff's Department. "There was wreckage thrown 50 feet out in front of the plane."

Pileups Due Fog And Ice

WAYNESBORO, Va. (AP) — While fog and icy roads triggered the pileup of 37 cars in accident in which about two dozen people were hurt on Afton Mountain, a state trooper attributes the absence of serious injury to the fog.

"The fact that it was very foggy and people were going slower meant that there were fewer injuries," State Trooper B. J. Good said Sunday night a few hours after the series of crashes.

State police said there was a 29-car pileup in the eastbound lanes of Interstate 64 near the Augusta County-Albemarle County line between here and Charlottesville. Another eight cars were involved in accidents in the westbound lanes.

There were no fatalities or serious injuries, Goode said, but State Trooper R.W. Jordan said "most of the cars were totaled."

Good said he believed the most serious injury was a fractured nose. He estimated the damage at $150,000.

The victims were treated for jammed wrists, lacerations, nosebleeds and other minor injuries at the Waynesboro Community Hospital in Waynesboro, King's Daughters Hospital in Staunton and the University of Virginia Hospital in Charlottesville.

Police said 11 people were admitted to the Waynesboro hospital, four to the Charlottesville hospital and several members of a family to the Staunton hospital.

Jordan said the accidents began about 5 p.m. when two cars hit a bridge that had iced over.

"It was quite foggy. They hit each other and ended up in the middle of the interstate. Then it was just a chain reaction. Most of them didn't know who or what hit them," Jordan said.

Still another trooper, J.B. Watson, said some cars began to lose control or stop because of the ice and other vehicles came up on them in the fog.

Gary Nelson, an employee of the Afton Mountain Gulf Service Station near I-64, said he could see the pileup from the station.

"I just couldn't believe it. They just kept piling up, one after the other. I'd say 15 or 20. All I was thinking was, can't someone stop it? They just kept coming, one right after the other. boom, boom, boom," Nelson said.

One of the vehicles involved in the eastbound chain of collisions was an ambulance en route from Rockingham Memorial Hospital to the University of Virginia Hospital.

The patient being transported, Wade Kariocofe, 75, of Dayton, did not receive serious additional injuries in the pileup, University of Virginia Hospital officials said.

Officials said Kariocofe's wife, Mildred, 68, and Judith Reimer, 23, of the Harrisonburg Rescue Squad, were released after treatment at the hospital.

Dennis Gunson, a journalism major at Radford University, was outside a Holiday Inn off the Waynesboro-Afton exit within sight of where the chain collision occurred.

He said he and a friend with whom he had been returning to school ran down the shoulder of the eastbound lane, screaming at people to slow down.

Policy Makers Say Science Is Facing A Period Of Austerity

By WARREN E. LEARY
AP Science Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Science, although still a cornerstone of future U.S. growth and prosperity, is facing a period of austerity and redirection as decades of increasing support come to an end, say policymakers.

Experts from government, academia and private organizations told thousands of somber scientists on Sunday choices on how to spend the money that remains, the experts said. Speaking at the opening of the week-long annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science (AAAS), science policy specialists hammered at the themes of streamlining research and developing new priorities.

"We must now face up to the difficult choices because we know federal expenditures for science cannot and will not continue to grow in the way they have in the previous three decades," said Dr. George Keyworth, science adviser to President Reagan.

Virginia's Forests Are Continuing To Dwindle

By CHARLOTTE, Va. (AP) — Although their tree nurseries are producing more than 60 million seedlings annually to replenish the state's dwindling forests, Virginia forestry officials say that isn't enough.

With demand for timber expected to spiral in coming years and despite a slumping house construction industry now, officials said the push is on to plant more trees and to better manage the state's current timber resources.

The division's New Kent nursery already is producing above designed capacity and the division is seeking a 100-acre site for another nursery to fulfill a demand it knows must be met. The nursery produced 54 million loblolly pines last year.

The state has another smaller nursery in Augusta County, which produced about 7 million white pine and hardwood seedlings last year.

Virginia Division of Forestry officials, based here, said they would like to plant an additional 19,000 acres each year to ensure against future demand.

"We have to step up reforestation in Virginia," said Tom Dierauf, who is in charge of research for the division. "From requests and estimates in the field, we could sell a couple million more (seedlings) this year," he said.

But even now there is more land cleared for planting than there are seedlings to plant.

Although timber demand is barely being met now, forestry officials estimated that the demand will double within 40 years.

One of the key programs to meet the projected demand is reforestation of public, private and industrial land.

In 1980, 80,000 acres were reforested with the tiny seedlings, most of them loblolly pines used for timber. In 1981, 83,000 acres were reforested.

Virginia Division of Forestry officials, based here, said they would like to plant

Speaking of Your Health...

Ulcer Won't Withstand Abuse

My husband has had a stomach ulcer for many years. He says it began when he was 24 (he is now 54). Almost every year or two, it would flair up. Sometimes he even bled from his ulcer. He has been taking a new medicine which works wonders. He feels so much better that he is going back to smoking. He drinks beer and hard liquor in moderation. I can't believe that the medicine will protect him forever against abusing his stomach. Am I right? — Mrs. H.G., N.J.

Dear Mrs. G:
I am certain that the drug your husband is taking is cimetidine. This is the generic term for Tagamet, which is the most popular of the prescription forms of the drug.

It is well documented that cimetidine has been remarkably effective in the treatment, control, and even cure of stomach ulcers and duodenal ulcers. It certainly can be considered to be one of the wonder drugs that have revolutionized the treatment of ulcers.

The basic problem of peptic ulcers in the stomach and duodenum (small intestine) is that there is an excess production of hydrochloric acid. This acid, along with enzymes and other digestive juices, can produce the ulcers and can prevent them from healing. Cimetidine undoubtedly performs its wonders by interfering with the production of hydrochloric acid. The drug, coupled with a sensible diet, can prevent the onset and recurrence of peptic ulcers.

most benign, can have adverse side effects when taken indiscriminately.

Your husband need only recall the episodes of abdominal pain, the discomfort, the enervation, and the bouts of bleeding, and he will, sensibly, stop taxing the stomach that has responded so well to this great drug.

Is karate too dangerous a sport for a 14-year-old boy? — Mr. H.S., Wyo.
Dear Mr. S.:
Karate and many of its variations are known as the martial arts. All are excellent forms of exercise. When youngsters are taught the discipline of this art, the dangers are minimized. There are some hazards when the sport is not completely supervised and the training is inadequate. Responsible teaching programs can markedly reduce accidents from karate.

Dr. Coleman welcomes questions from readers. Please write to him in care of this newspaper.

Yet it is decidedly unfair to expect that cimetidine will compensate for the outrageous demands your husband is now making on his "partly recovered" stomach and intestines. I am certain that if he continues to burden his stomach with tobacco, beer and hard liquor, even the guardian angel cimetidine may be unable to protect him from trouble.

Another significant factor is that even this excellent drug, when used for a long period of time without supervision, may have some potential disadvantages. All drugs, even the

Need House Calls

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The director of the Columbus Zoo is looking for an elephant doctor who makes house calls.

Jack Hanna has been saying since April that one of the zoo's female Asian elephants, Bomba, could give birth "any day now."

But since no little elephant has arrived, he admits it's possible the pachyderm might not even be pregnant.

A blood test came back positive, and 10-year-old Bomba has gained about 700 pounds in the last 25 months.

The elephant's figure also seems to indicate a 200-pound baby pachyderm is on the way, but Hanna says he can't be sure. The elephant's skin — thickest of any animal — doesn't help.

"It's just that we don't know that much about elephants," he said. "There have only been about three zoos in country with baby elephants born — Washington state, New York and Knoxville."

"Obviously there are no elephant doctors in Columbus. And we don't have many gynecologists volunteering to go up and check," he said. "I'm going to meet with my staff this week and I'm going to look for the elephant specialist somewhere in the world. I'll fly him in if I have to."

Hanna said he asked the zoo's veterinarian, Harrison Gardner if Bomba was pregnant.

"All he said was, 'It'll come when it comes, and that's all I know.'"

Hunt A Suspect In Shooting At Party

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Although witnesses have provided little help, Charlotte police say they're seeking a suspect in connection with the shootings of three people Saturday night.

The shootings took place at a birthday party for a man believed to be a former motorcycle gang member.

Police said the man they seek was seen at the party carrying an AR15, a lightweight semiautomatic rifle, before shots were fired.

Three people, including Robert Winecoff, 29, vice president of the Outlaws' Charlotte chapter, were shot during a birthday party for 26-year-old Gregory Lindaman, police said. Winecoff had gunshot wounds in both legs and the groin area.

Edward Shalkowski, 22, was struck in both feet, the left thigh and the right hip. Shalkowski listed his address on a police report as 5420 Howard St., the Outlaws motorcycle gang clubhouse in Derita.

Winecoff and Shalkowski were in satisfactory condition at Charlotte Memorial Hospital and were expected to remain there at least several days, a hospital spokesman said Sunday.

The third shooting victim, Monica Oglisby, 19, of Derita, was struck in the upper chest and leg. She was treated at Presbyterian Hospital and released.
