

Rep. Jones To Seek 9th Term In House

By MELVIN LANG
Reflector Staff Writer

Rep. Walter Jones, saying his health has "turned a corner" upward, will seek a ninth two-year term in Congress from North Carolina's 1st District.

The 68-year-old Democrat said he is fully recovered from abdominal surgery that slowed him last fall and will begin campaigning next week.

"I'm very definitely going to run," Jones said. "The seniority I've accumulated will stand in good stead and as for my health, I've turned the corner."

Jones, chairman of the House Merchant Marine Committee, ranks third in length of congressional service among the 11-man delegation from North Carolina. Only Republican Rep. James T. Broyhill of Lenoir, with 10 terms, and Democratic Rep. L.H. Fountain of Tarboro, with nine terms, out-distance him.

As of today there are no indications that Jones will be opposed, either in the Democratic primary or in the general election.

"I'm happy to say that as of this moment I have no evidence that there will be Democratic opposition," Jones said.

George Saleeby of Grifton, Democratic chairman in the 1st District, agreed with Jones' assessment. "I haven't heard of anybody," he said, adding: "Walter would be hard to beat."

The same feeling apparently carries over to the Republican Party.

Greenville attorney Malcolm Howard, GOP chairman for the 1st District, said recently that, "right now, there's no one around or rumored" to be interested in running against Jones.

"I don't know who we will have, or if we will have one," Howard said. "Right now, there's no one around."

Howard said a meeting would be held later to determine if the party will field a candidate for the 1st District seat.

Jones entered the House in February 1966 after beating now-U.S. Sen. John East, a Greenville Republican, in a special election to fill the unexpired term of the late Rep. Herbert Bonner, also a Democrat. Jones defeated East again that fall in the general election and has won re-election to each subsequent Congress.

The 1980 election was his first without opposition, which has prompted him to quip that "I'm probably the most run-against candidate of any."

Jones has scheduled brief visits to several of the 21 counties in the 1st District next week for breakfast meetings and public appearances. He will be in Carteret, Craven and Lenoir counties Monday, in Williamston and Plymouth Tuesday and in Edenton and Ahoskie Wednesday.

Jones said that, if he has opposition, he will make "my usual campaign... low key and on my record."

He noted that North Carolina's congressional districts are up in the air now as a result of the Justice Department's rejection of redistricting efforts last year by the General Assembly. The Legislature is expected to meet in late January or early February to make another effort to draw new district lines.

Jones said Alex Brock, the state elections director, advised him Tuesday that the State Board of Elections has barred candidate filing until the Legislature produces a boundary plan acceptable to the Justice Department.

Schmidt Avers He Backs U.S. Sanctions Effort

WASHINGTON (AP) — West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt, attempting to squelch speculation of serious differences with President Reagan over the Polish crisis, says he supports the U.S. economic sanctions against the Soviet Union.

At the same time, Schmidt predicted Tuesday that the reprisals will pack little economic punch and made clear that his country has no plans for similar steps although he concurs with Reagan that the Soviets bear heavy responsibility for the military crackdown in Poland.

Schmidt and Reagan issued a joint communique at the end of their talks Tuesday blaming the Soviet Union for inspiring the crackdown and denouncing it as a "serious violation" of the Helsinki human rights accords.

"It is obvious that the action would not have taken place without strong Soviet pressure," Schmidt told reporters.

The West German leader complained that the U.S. media had misrepresented his view by reporting that he did not share Reagan's assessment that the Soviets were largely to blame for the imposition of martial law in Poland.

Schmidt was leaving

Washington today after a working breakfast with Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr.

Bidding farewell to Schmidt outside the White House on Tuesday afternoon, Reagan said: "I emphasized my belief that a tangible alliance response to the Polish crisis must be made now. Should we fail to insist that the Soviet Union stop pressuring Poland directly and indirectly, the gravest consequences for international relations could ensue."

Schmidt said his government would not undermine the U.S. sanctions and the two leaders pledged that their governments would continue discussions on the Polish situation next week in Brussels at a meeting of the NATO foreign ministers.

But the West German leader did not announce any punitive measures his government might take to parallel the U.S. sanctions that Reagan has directed against Moscow.

Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, reported that Schmidt complained to members of the Foreign Relations Committee that his government and other European allies were "expected to fall in" with the American sanctions even though they were not consulted in advance.

Campus Desegregation Said To Be As Ordered

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Officials say the University of North Carolina is in compliance thus far with a consent decree binding the university to desegregate its 16 campuses.

A progress report submitted by the university to federal court shows a slight increase in minority enrollment throughout the university system between 1980 and 1981. But the report says fewer minority students attended six of the campuses during the period.

Raymond A. Dawson, senior vice president of the UNC system, said he thought the annual report showed "very good progress in the enrollment picture considering the decree didn't come in until July."

At East Carolina University in Greenville, the percentage of black enrollment remained about the same between the fall of 1980 and 1981, because the increase in the number of black students was proportional to the increase in total enrollment.

In 1980, total enrollment at ECU for the fall semester was 13,165, with 10.09 percent, or 1,329 students, being black. In the fall of 1981, total enrollment was 13,264, including 1,334 or 10.06 percent black.

Pembroke State University had the highest percentage of black students of any predominantly white school with 12.3 percent in 1980 and 12.44 percent in 1981, while Appalachian State had the lowest percentage with 2.48 in both years.

The University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill had 7.78 percent black in 1980, compared to 8.33 in 1981, while N.C. State University in Raleigh reported 6.4 percent and 6.8 percent for the two years.

Western Carolina University reported 4.85 percent in 1980, and 5.03 percent in 1981, while UNC-Wilmington was 6.35 percent and 6.27 percent.

Fayetteville State University had 15.38 percent white students in 1980 and 19.12 percent in 1981 to lead the field of predominantly black institutions, while N.C. A&T had the lowest percentage with 8.01 percent in 1980 and 6.68 percent in 1981.

The accreditation action was taken during the association's 86th annual meeting.

Accreditation is based on evaluation of a school system's success in meeting minimum standards established by the association.

Sum Approved For Building Two Classrooms By Carpentry Class

By MARY SCHULKEN
Reflector Staff Writer
The Pitt County Board of Education has approved monies for construction of two classrooms by the D.H. Conley carpentry class.

No specific amount was budgeted Tuesday for the project, but according to Carl Toot, vocational director for the county, the price tag could be as high as $12,500.

The funds, requested by Conley principal James Carraway at the board's December meeting, would provide the Conley carpentry classes with what Carraway described as a "hands-on" project as well as more classroom space which he said was "vitally needed."

Carraway noted that the need for additional space at his school was "critical now" and pointed to skyrocketing enrollment at W.H. Robinson and A.G. Cox, feeder schools for Conley, as an indication of future needs.

The floor plan for the classrooms calls for a 25 X 70 building with approximately 1,700 square feet per classroom. The floor plan must still be approved by a state board.

Money for the project will come from capital outlay funds.

Also on the agenda at Tuesday's monthly board meeting: Assistant superintendent Thomas Craft reported electrical bills for the county schools were down in December of 1981 from the year before. December '81 fuel usage totaled $29,457.91, he noted, compared to $35,012.64 in December '80. Craft said he expected high bills for January, however.

U. S. Foreign Aid Declined By Five

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (AP) — A U.S.-backed plan for a $20-billion economic aid program for Central American and Caribbean countries has been rejected by at least five of the Central American nations it would benefit, Economy Minister Ruben Mondragon reports.

Mondragon said Tuesday that Costa Rica, El Salvador, Guatemala, Honduras and Nicaragua refused to assume "goals and commitments that might have been injurious to our economies and our peoples." He did not explain.

Mondragon said representatives of the five countries, including economy ministers and bank presidents, will meet Monday in Tegucigalpa to discuss a scaled-down version of the plan.

There was no immediate confirmation from the governments of the other four countries.

The aid plan was approved tentatively at a regional conference of foreign ministers in the Honduran capital last August. At that meeting, the U.N. Economic Commission for Latin America reported the region would need at least $15 billion over the next 15 years to cope with growing economic and social problems and to help meet payments on a foreign debt estimated at $8.5 billion.

The aid plan for the Caribbean basin was first proposed by Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo during a visit to Washington last June. It later received the backing of the United States, Canada, Mexico and Venezuela.

Bethel Police Chief Stepping Down

BETHEL — Bethel's veteran Police Chief Walter Gray has submitted his resignation, to be effective April 8. Gray has served the town of Bethel in various positions with the Police Department for 40 years. The announcement of his resignation was made to members of the Bethel Town Board at its January meeting Tuesday night. The board, in a multiple action approval, voted to accept Gray's resignation, and also to: commission an oil portrait of Gray to be hung in the Bethel Police Office; to proceed with organizing a testimonial dinner honoring him for his 40 years of faithful service, and to employ Gray in the capacity of utility consultant effective on April 8. In other actions, the board voted to set a special meeting at 7 p.m. on Jan. 19 to consider three items — hospital insurance, a personnel policy and a purchasing policy. Two new members were appointed to two town boards. Eugene McLawhorn and Robert Young were appointed to the Planning and Zoning Board; and Joe Rawls and Danny Norris were appointed to the Recreation Board. Commissioners approved a motion to join the Pitt Safety Council, and agreed to payment of the $10 annual fee.

Mayor Frank Hemingway directed that action be taken to raze a building behind the Gentry McLawhorn home. Authorization to demolish the building was given at an earlier meeting, but the action has not yet been accomplished. Two representatives from Rivers and Associates in Greenville, Mark Gardner and Bob Pittman, met with the board to discuss a water-sewer project for the town. Vital To Area

WASHINGTON — The development of a three-county area will suffer if the Seaboard Coast Line Railroad Co. is allowed to abandon a 25-mile branch line between Parmele and Washington, Transportation Secretary William R. Roeberson Jr. told a federal hearing here Tuesday.

Roeberson said the rail line, running through portions of Martin, Pitt and Beaufort counties — along with planned highway projects — is vital to development in the area. Railroad officials, who said trucking companies and another railroads could provide adequate service to the area, pointed out that the line has been losing about $9,000 a year and prospects do not justify maintaining the tracks.

The hearing was held by Edward H. McGrail, an administrative law judge for the Interstate Commerce Commission, who is expected to hand down a ruling on the railroad's application to abandon the line in about two months.

Blue Law Out

KINSTON — Kinston's Sunday ban on the sale of non-food items has been lifted by the City Council, but retailers publicly are expressing doubt that many merchants will take advantage of the new-found freedom to expand their business hours.

The council abolished the so-called Blue Law during discussion Monday of proposals to annex several areas adjoining the existing city boundary. Council members did not identify the 14 areas subject to annexation, but they indicated some of the areas have businesses that now operate on Sunday.

"I don't feel we can impose the Sunday Blue Law on people we need to annex and hurt their business," Councilman Andy Culpepper explained.

The motion to abolish the sales ban was approved by a 3-2 vote.

Six Arrested For Hunting Violations

Six people have been arrested in three separate incidents since Christmas on charges of firelighting deer in Pitt County, according to Wildlife Protector Kay Dunn.

Dunn said Bobby Lee Avery Jr. of Grifton and Michael R. Nichols of Bell Arthur, were arrested about 6:30 p.m. Dec. 28 after allegedly shooting from a boat on Contentnea Creek in the Jolly O'Field section near Grifton.

The second incident, he said, occurred about 9 p.m. Dec. 29 on the Whitfield Road near Bethel.

Dunn said John Ralph Nichols of Winterville and Ricky Earl Dunn of Ayden were charged with possession of marijuana, possession of whiskey with the seal broken and possession and transportation of a doe deer, as well as firelighting, in connection with the incident.

According to Dunn, the doe deer, as well as a pick-up truck and three guns, were confiscated.

The third firelighting incident, the officer said, occurred about 4 a.m. on Jan. 2, near the Charles Alfred Forbes farm near Stokes and involved a man and his wife.

Dunn said Sidney Ross Hawkins and his wife, Kay C. Hawkins of Route 11, Greenville were arrested and a .22 rifle and two spotlights were confiscated in connection with the case.

An estimated $5,900 property damage resulted from two traffic collisions investigated by Greenville police Tuesday.

Officers said cars driven by Calvin Earl Daniels of 403B Roundtree Drive and Richard Stanly Farris Jr. of 106 Cambridge Road collided about 3:55 p.m. at the intersection of 16th and Pitt streets, causing $2,000 damage to the Daniels car and $3,000 damage to the Farris auto.

Police, who charged Daniels with failing to stop for a stop sign, said both drivers and a passenger in the Daniels car were injured.

Cars driven by Henry Milton Edmondson Jr. of 124 N. Eastern St. and Edith Kirby Lancaster of Riverview Trailer Park collided about 4:55 p.m. at the intersection of Fifth Street and Greene Springs Park Road, causing $200 damage to the Edmondson car and $700 damage to the Lancaster auto.

Dear Abby

Tell Truth About Loaning

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1982 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I've run into a situation that requires your help. When a friend or neighbor asks to borrow kitchenware she knows I have, and I do not want to lend it to her, what should I tell her without hurting her feelings or telling a falsehood, which I don't want to do?
HOUSTON POST READER

DEAR READER: Tell her the truth: "I don't want to lend my kitchenware out." And don't be surprised if your candid refusal puts a slight crimp in your friendship, because it probably will.

DEAR ABBY: I'm writing to thank you for printing the ALMA (Adoptee's Liberty Movement Association) address in your column. After getting in touch with the organization, I've been reunited with my natural mother after 31 years!

She and I are both thrilled to have found each other. I never would have known about ALMA had I not read it in your column.

Words are inadequate to express my appreciation to you and ALMA.

ROBERTA IN FLORIDA

Now, please stay tuned for a word from Roberta's mother:

DEAR ABBY: I want to thank you for publishing the details about ALMA in your column. It has made possible a contact with a child I had given up for adoption 31 years ago. I read about ALMA in a news story in 1974 and registered with it under my maiden name. In 1981 my daughter read about ALMA in your column, and she wrote to register her name.

We found each other, and a Thanksgiving reunion was planned! I never dreamed this could happen. Thank you!
ROBERTA'S MOTHER, WASHINGTON STATE

DEAR MOTHER: I am glad that I was able to play a part in this wonderful reunion. Yours is only one of many.

Readers: ALMA's address is: P.O. Box 154, Washington Bridge Station, New York, N.Y. 10033.

Parents and their children can be "matched" only if both parties are agreeable.

This is not an agency that locates the natural parents of adoptees, or searches for children who have been adopted.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been happily married for six years. (I'm 27 and he's 29.) We both work and love to travel, and we've decided that we don't want children.

Our problem is his parents. My husband is their only child and they want grandchildren. My parents already have four grandchildren so we don't get as much pressure from them, although they have told us often enough that one day we will be "sorry" if we don't have a family.

I am so tired of having to make excuses for choosing to remain childless. Every time we see my in-laws, they start in on us, telling us how "selfish" we are. Abby, we love our freedom and have decided that we neither want nor need children.

Do you think we're wrong?
CHILDLESS AND HAPPY

DEAR HAPPY: No. Of all the reasons to have a family, pressure from others who think you should is the worst.

Flaming Plum Pudding Tips

NEW YORK (UPI) — Plum Pudding served flaming commemorates a pre-Christian tradition, when sun worshippers built great bonfires to warm the winter sun.

To flame pudding safely, the Cognac Bureau of Information suggests:

- Warm the cognac brandy in a small metal container such as a measuring cup by setting it over low heat — a pilot light or a candle. Or pour it into a well-heated ladle.
- Light it with wooden matches or long fireplace matches — never small book matches.
- Hold the lighted match over the beverage to ignite the vapors. If you touch it directly to the liquid, it will go out.
- Pour the flaming brandy slowly over the food.
- To keep flames going longer and burn off the maximum amount of alcohol, sprinkle a little sugar on the food before flaming it.
- Never pour spirits or wine directly from the bottle into the pan or dish or onto already flaming food. The blaze can travel up to the bottle.
- Stand back when flaming, and keep clothing and long hair tied back.

Pour sour cream over baked apples for a piquant taste.

Reader Request: Polish Pierogi

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
AP Food Editor

DEAR CECILY: My grandmother used to fix pierogi for us. But we never thought of getting her recipe and no one I know here in the South has even heard of them. I believe pierogi were originally a Polish dish, although my grandmother was Ukrainian. We grandchildren really miss this treat and wonder whether you can help us out with a recipe. — KENTUCKY COOK.

DEAR KENTUCKY COOK: There's a great recipe for pierogi in "Christmas Helps," a soft-cover publication put out by Family Circle and available now in supermarkets through Dec. 26. The recipe was contributed by Jen Borkoski, a restaurateur and caterer in Southampton, N.Y. Jen uses her mother's Polish recipe so her pierogi (cheese-filled dumplings) are authentic. I, for one, love them — just as I love such starchy goodies as homemade ravioli. One bit of advice: The dough is elastic and, like that for pizza, constantly springs back when you are rolling it out. It takes a lot of perseverance to roll this dough as thin as it should be — but the results are worth it. — C.B.

JEN BORKOSKI'S PIEROGI

3½ cups all-purpose flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
2 eggs, beaten
1 cup warm water
1 package (1 pound) farmer's cheese

2 eggs, beaten
1 teaspoon salt

1 tablespoon chopped chives (optional)
2 cups heavy cream
½ cup (1 stick) butter or margarine

Sift flour, baking powder and salt into a large bowl; make a well. Add 2 beaten eggs and water and stir to make a soft dough.

Turn out onto lightly floured surface and knead until quite elastic. Cover with bowl and allow to rest 10 minutes.

Break farmer's cheese into a medium bowl; blend in 2 beaten eggs, salt and chives, if used, to make a smooth mixture.

Roll out dough to a 1-16th inch thickness on a lightly floured surface; cut into 4-inch squares. Place a rounded tablespoonful of cheese mixture in center of squares; fold over to form a triangle; turn edges under to seal.

Bring a kettle of salted water to boiling; add pastries, part at a time; cook until pastries rise to the top; remove with slotted spoon to 10-cup shallow casserole. (This much can be done ahead of time. Cover and chill.)

One hour before serving, remove casserole from refrigerator and let stand at room temperature 30 minutes. Pour cream over pastries and dot with butter or margarine. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) 30 minutes or until pastries are golden. Makes 12 servings.

PIEROGI — They are a Polish specialty, often made for holiday Polish-American feasts.

Energy Diversification

North Carolina has taken a leading role among the 50 states in seeking out alternative energy sources with the creation of a utility-funded not-for-profit corporation. The agency is headed by Jon Veigel, who is attempting to make it plain that new sources of energy may not be the cheapest energy.

Veigel's explanation for the role undertaken by the North Carolina Alternative Energy Corp. is simple: To provide people an opportunity to become more responsible for their own energy future and less dependent on central sources of power such as nuclear plants.

is we will choose that form of energy that meets our needs and simultaneously is economically most energy efficient. It may or may not be the lowest cost in the strict sense of the word," he envisions.

Those forms of energy may include such sources as wood or peat — typical substitutions for oil, gas and electricity — but the type recommended by Veigel's corporation will be based on assessment of individual needs. It's a commendable program, and one that deserves a fair shake by all concerned.

Just as in farming, diversification in energy is a practical necessity.

Those Kind Of Times

Pitt County's sales and use tax collections for November looked pretty good.

The figure is a barometer of retail sales for the area.

The figure for Pitt in November was $307,600. That compared with $274,589 in October.

It was a mixed bag for neighboring counties with Beaufort, Carteret, Craven, Greene, Lenoir and Wilson Counties showing decreases for November as compared to October. Edgecombe, Martin, Nash and Wayne showed increases for the same comparative months.

As much as anything it indicates that business is spotty for Eastern North Carolina. No doubt the recession is taking its toll in disposable income and local conditions dictate how much individuals have to spend. One county may be affected this month and another the next. It is those kind of times.

Neighbors' Value

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Experts in crime are beginning to recognize that a good neighbor is worth more than a good lock in helping to prevent burglaries. Success in crime prevention and community watch programs are demonstrating that.

But a good neighborhood is even more important. In fact, studies are beginning to pinpoint certain neighborhood conditions which actually attract criminals.

Those conditions have more to do with land use than with income levels. Where shopping centers, busy thoroughfares, strip development of shops and restaurants invite outsiders to a community and make it easy and fast to get in and out, crime shows an increase.

Where a neighborhood is relatively isolated by "safe" boundaries and occupied by more settled, single-family houses, the crime rate is lower.

Land Use

A team of researchers from the Research Triangle Institute took a close look at crime in several city areas in Atlanta to determine which land use characteristics develop a pattern of high crime versus low crime living conditions.

"Our study suggests that it would be wise for neighborhood crime control groups to take a look at their physical environment and assess the degree to which their neighborhood is accessible to outsiders," says Stephanie Greenberg, project leader for the study which was conducted for the Community Crime Prevention Division of the National Institute of Justice.

Mixed land uses such as shopping and service centers adjacent to residential areas have grown in popularity as they make inner city living more comfortable, and save on gas. But those commercial areas draw outsiders and can be a factor in increased crime.

Maintaining residential atmosphere by confining commercial use to a few localized areas might be a safer approach.

"Neighborhoods should try to make sure the streets aren't widened into thoroughfares, and individual blocks which were residential rather than having a mix of land uses," Dr. Greenberg reports.

Boundaries

High crime areas had fewer residences, fewer single-family homes, more major roads, more mixed land uses, and more vacant land and commercial activity.

Small streets, railway tracks, industrial districts and such tend to form boundaries which discourage visitors intent crime. Even low income neighborhoods in which largely residential development is buffered by "safe" boundaries can exist with a low crime rate as an island in a surrounding high crime rate district.

The extent to which people challenge outsiders and practice community crime watch actions seem to have less effect on the crime rate than does the setting itself. The crime watch pattern is actually a response to a high crime rate, and while it may prove useful in deterring criminal activity, the activity itself is invited by other conditions.

Outside traffic seems to be the key to a high crime condition. Outsiders gain a chance to study the area, pinpoint likely targets, map escape routes, and carry out the act unobserved in the midst of a lot of coming and going.

"We found, for example, that low crime neighborhoods were characterized by a higher percentage of residential properties, more single-family homes, smaller streets rather than major

Pity The Cheese-Keeper

Pity the poor chap in the Department of Agriculture who is charged with unloading 530 million pounds of cheddar cheese that seems to be rotting in government warehouses.

"Froman, the Big Cheese wants to see you immediately."

"Very funny, Altschuler. I can't wait until it's your turn to get rid of 868 million pounds of dried milk."

"Froman, get your tail in here. Give me a situation report on the cheddar."

"Well, sir, here is the menu for the department's cafeteria. I've ordered them to serve cheese souffle, cheese omelettes, macaroni and cheese, and no one can take a coffee break without eating a dozen cheese and crackers. I should be able to get rid of 200 pounds by next Friday."

"It's not enough. Have you offered the other government cafeterias free cheese?"

"Yes, sir, but they don't seem to have the same incentive to eat it as our employees."

"What about the Armed Forces?"

"We're getting some resistance there. The first month the sailors consumed 3,000 pounds, but they almost had a mutiny on the nuclear carrier 'Nimitz' when they served cheese sandwiches for Christmas."

"How about the Air Force?" "They won't even use it for bombing practice, and as soon as the Army started serving it, re-enlistments declined by 30 percent."

"How about the school lunch programs?" "That worked for a couple of weeks, particularly when we declared cheese a second vegetable. But now the kids are insisting on catsup again."

"Have you been in touch with any foreign governments?"

"I almost had a deal with Israel to take 5,000 pounds, but Begin said we had to throw in the West Bank with it."

"The British like cheddar cheese. Why don't we give a ton of it to Prince Charles and Lady Di as a wedding present?"

"Don't you remember, we gave them two tons of butter this summer?"

"What about the French?" "They're up to their necks in cheese. They tried to smuggle 20 tons of Camembert into Florida last month."

"Dammit, Froman, we've got to get rid of the old cheese so we have room for the new cheese coming into the warehouses this year."

"Sir, we're storing two pounds of processed cheese for every man woman and child in the United States. Perhaps if Nancy Reagan did a TV cooking program with Barbara Walters, showing the different dishes you can make with cheddar, it would inspire the American housewife to use up her family's share."

"I have specific orders from the President not to get the First Lady involved in this country's cheese problems. You're going to have to come up with something better than that."

"Maybe Secretary of the Interior James Watt would let us dump it in the Grand Canyon?"

"Even Watt has more respect for the environment than that. Any other bright ideas, Froman?"

"There's one last hope. Our research people are experimenting with a sterile Mediterranean Cheese Fly that thrives on processed cheese. If we can breed them, we could have our problem licked."

"What's the hangup?" "The mold sticks to their gums."

To the editor:

The Greenville's Baha'i community had reports that eight national leaders of the persecuted Baha'i religion in Iran were executed in secret Sunday night, Dec. 27, by government authorities.

These members of the Baha'i National Assembly in Iran had been arrested Dec. 13 as they met in a private home in Tehran holding a session of the national Baha'i governing body.

Local Baha'is reported that the assembly members had been held without charge in a Tehran prison; no trials were announced; no official statements about the executions were made; none of the victims' families were notified, and five of the bodies were buried in the "infidels" section of a Muslim graveyard.

There appears to be no official intention of revealing the executions of the Baha'i leadership. The information about the nighttime executions was leaked through a reliable source.

This was the second group of National Assembly members to have been seized within a year and a half. The entire first assembly of nine members disappeared along with two other Baha'i officials Aug. 20, 1980. They have not been seen or heard from since.

The tragic news just received suggests the first group of National Assembly members may have suffered the same fate. It removes any doubt as to the determination of the fanatics in Iran to eliminate the leadership and thus destroy the Baha'i community in that country.

During December the Iranian government also confiscated more Baha'i properties and destroyed another Baha'i shrine in Iran. Authorities expropriated the Baha'i cemetery in Tehran, destroyed the house of the religion's prophet-founder in Takur, and offered the land and gardens surrounding the shrine for sale.

Iranian authorities fail to realize that their assaults on the Baha'i leadership have not produced the intended result of demoralizing the Baha'i community. In every instance, Baha'is have elected new leaders to replace those executed or incarcerated. Baha'is believe in the common foundation of the world's religions, the oneness of all races of humankind, the equality of men and women, and the necessity of establishing a world government for the maintenance of a lasting peace stir the violent opposition of the fundamentalist elements in Iran.

Thorn In The Peace Corps

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The collection of campaign funds for a Democratic politician in Ohio by the African regional affairs director at his going-away party has added fuel to the ideological struggle within the Reagan administration that goes well beyond one relatively small agency.

The departing William G. Sykes raised money at that party for what he described a few days later in gleeful letters to Peace Corps colleagues as "my favorite charity" — Carter administration Peace Corps director Richard Celeste's second-try candidacy to become governor of Ohio. The audacity of Sykes' caper is less important, however, than this question: What in the world was so passionately liberal a Democrat as Bill Sykes still doing in an important appointive position a year after Ronald Reagan's election?

The answer is the presence at the Peace Corps as Reagan's appointed director of Loret Ruppe, who kept Sykes on all year against White House wishes and sacked him only after the president's men insisted. Indeed, her stewardship at the Peace Corps has become a symbol of deepening frustration to the Republican right over the Reagan administration's failure to truly clean house in Washington.

No agency ranked higher on the house-cleaning list than the Peace Corps. To conservatives, it was not carrying the American Dream to the world and instead had become a repository, within the U.S. government, of Third World animosity. That was the view of Tom Pauken, an ardent Reaganite (and defeated Republican candidate for Congress from Dallas) who was named head of ACTION, the agency with jurisdiction over the Peace Corps.

But typical of Reagan administration ambivalence, the Peace Corps itself was headed by no Reaganite but a liberal Republican. While Pauken intended to reshape the image of Peace Corps volunteers as unashamedly American, Ruppe saw no such need. When we asked her in a recent interview whether any changes were needed among Peace Corps volunteers, she could come up with only one: more minority-group representation.

What's more, Pauken was badly outgunned. The wife of ex-Rep. Phil Ruppe (a likely Republican Senate candidate in Michigan this year), she is well known and well liked in influential Republican social circles. A friend and longtime supporter of George Bush, Mrs. Ruppe was sworn in by the vice president and, unlike Pauken, has ready access to power at the White House and on Capitol Hill.

Pauken was blind-sided by Ruppe March 18 when she wrote a letter to the Senate, helping arguments that Pauken should not be confirmed by the Senate as ACTION director because of past service as an Army intelligence officer in Vietnam. That did not prevent Pauken's confirmation but created irresistible momentum for separating the Peace Corps from ACTION and, therefore, from Pauken.

Co-signing that letter was Sykes, Peace Corps deputy director under Celeste, who had stayed on as acting director as the Reagan administration began. Resisting White House pressures that Sykes must go, Ruppe kept him in charge of African affairs until November — leading to his "charity" contributions for candidate Celeste.

In a Nov. 25 letter on official Peace Corps stationery revealing this caper to friends on the Peace Corps staff, Sykes demonstrated what bothers conservatives about Ruppe's lack of housecleaning: "I am confident that the Peace Corps can survive this dark period of attacks from the right-wing ideologues inside and outside the agency...."

Sykes' behavior buttresses the conservative claim that the Peace Corps, headquarters and volunteers alike, is a liberal redoubt serving as a safe haven until liberals return to power. But instead of cleaning house, Ruppe has used her considerable in-

REAL FRIENDS

Many friends, or a few good ones?

Well, of course, everyone would say that even one good friend capable of being relied upon, always stimulating others to good cheer, and being careful to guard his tongue against harsh judgments, would be better for any person than half a hundred lukewarm acquaintances eager for nothing but to advance their own ends and selfish interests.

When the mind relaxes, the pleasant memories of good friends begin to flow in. We recollect their gracious manner, their continual service, their unflinching consideration, their fidelity upon which one can build with confidence. These are the blessed ones, the real companions, the angels without wings. They are gold in our banks, pleasant memories in our minds, joy in our hearts, laughter in our homes, confidence in the day of stress and grief.

Good friends! Jesus said to his disciples at the very last, "No longer do I call you servants... but I have called you friends." — Elisha Douglass

Unions To Use 'Pension Power'

By JOHN CUNNIFF

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Labor unions may find it more difficult than before to sign up new members and obtain new benefits for them, but in the investment power of pension funds they still hold a trump card.

They intend to play it too, says A.H. Raskin, a long-time authority on labor unions. Raskin predicts unions will concentrate much of their energy on deciding what stocks and bonds will be bought by the funds.

"Success for labor in this effort to penetrate the most resolutely guarded of capitalism's holy places could fundamentally alter a power balance that has been shifting heavily against unions," he predicts.

His analysis of "Pension Power" was written for The Journal of the Institute for Socioeconomic Studies, a research organization based in White Plains, N.Y.

Deciding what corporate securities will be bought with the multi-billion dollar assets of funds is a responsibility now exercised almost solely by management in the vast majority of fields, says Raskin, who for years served on the editorial board of the New York Times.

But the assets are too great, and the need to offset power losses in other areas of union-management relations is too compelling, to allow unions to forego having a greater say in investments, suggests Raskin.

The stakes are enormous. Assets of single-employer funds, which cover workers in one company, total $285 billion. Multi-employer funds add $50 billion to the total, and state-county-municipal retirement funds another $203 billion. They are growing rapidly too.

Raskin cites Department of Labor estimates that the assets total of private funds alone will "cross the trillion-dollar mark in five years and be just short of $3 trillion by 1995."

One union thrust is expected to be a quest for greater commitments to areas of social concern, including a greater stake in low-cost housing and prohibitions against investments in companies that engage in

"anti-union activities," says Raskin in a 22-page analysis.

The insistence on social goals has already begun. Chrysler Corp., for example, has agreed with the United Auto Workers to end investments in companies that condone apartheid in their South African operations.

Some indications of the power such policies can exert was shown late in 1980 when the Amalgamated Clothing and Textile Workers Union sought to organized J.P. Stevens & Co., the textile company. According to Raskin the union sought "to discourage investment in Stevens and make it a pariah in the financial community," and workers "imposed pension and other money pressures on banks, insurance companies and other pillars of Wall Street all aiming to isolate Stevens."

The battle spread beyond Stevens, with union pressure being exerted against Manufacturers Hanover Trust, Avon Products, New York Life, Goldman Sachs & Co., Sperry Corporation and Metropolitan Life, linked to Stevens by interlocking directorates or loan arrangements.

Union power in that situation involved threats to withdraw hundreds of millions of dollars in pension accounts from Manufacturers Hanover; entry of union-backed candidates in costly election challenges to normally unopposed directors of the two insurers; and blacklisting of companies from consideration for pension fund investments.

It was effective, according to Raskin. "Executives of organizations on the hit list were furious at being dragged into a dispute in which they considered themselves innocent bystanders," he wrote.

"Nevertheless, speed with which one after another began cutting its ties with Stevens is judged to have been the critical factor in ending the company's diehard resistance to signing with the Amalgamated."

It takes at least two to make a battle, and Raskin says he expects management to resist "fiercely" union efforts to share pension fund management.

Predict Fuel Costs Will Rise In 1982

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The price of gasoline will rise 6 cents a gallon and homeowners who heat with natural gas will see their annual bills rise by $110 during 1982, according to the latest government predictions.

The Energy Department also says foreign oil imports, which have fallen sharply the last two years, will resume their upward climb in 1982.

Natural gas customers, who have enjoyed a substantial price break over their neighbors with oil furnaces, will see that advantage eroded somewhat in 1982, the DOE said.

The government predicted natural gas prices for residential customers will increase 22 percent in 1982. Natural gas, which cost $4.58 per thousand cubic feet in 1981, will cost $5.57 in 1982, the DOE predicted.

For the average residential customer buying 111,000 cubic feet annually, that will mean a total increase of approximately $110.

Price controls on natural gas are being lifted gradually under a 1978 law, which the Reagan administration has attacked for working too slowly. Energy Secretary James Edwards has said the administration will ask Congress next month to speed up the decontrol process.

Homeowners with fuel oil furnaces also are likely to see their bills rise in 1982, but only slightly. The DOE estimates that fuel oil, which averaged $1.21 per gallon in 1981 will sell for $1.23 in 1982. Gasoline prices will rise by 6 cents a gallon during the year, the DOE said, from a $1.36 average for all grades in 1981 to $1.42 this year.

However, the department estimates this increase actually will trail the country's overall inflation rate by 3 percent.

DOE predicted U.S. petroleum consumption will decline by about 1 percent this year, continuing a trend that started after the 1979 Iranian revolution.

However, it predicted that despite the drop, the nation's appetite for foreign oil will rise by 2 percent in 1982 to 6.21 million barrels a day. This would come on the heels of 19 percent and 11 percent declines in oil imports in 1980 and 1981, respectively.

The projected increase is being blamed, in part, on a move by oil companies to stop drawing from their inventories and place greater reliance on foreign supplies.

Domestic oil production is expected to drop by 2 percent in 1982 to a level of 8.4 million barrels a day, continuing a decline which set in a decade ago.

Ed Rothschild, director of Energy Action, a consumer group, said the sharp increases predicted for natural gas prices show that acceleration of the current decontrol program would be unfair since consumers already are seeing their bills increase by more than 20 percent a year.

He said the projected increases are so high because the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, charged with monitoring the decontrol law, is allowing larger price increases than Congress intended.

The commission announced Monday that it is considering establishing a new category of natural gas and allowing it to be priced 50 percent higher than now permitted. This new category would cover gas found in wells between 10,000 and 15,000 feet deep, where it is more expensive to recover than more shallow wells.

Rothschild said if the commission adds the new category, it could add between $11 billion and $19 billion to consumers' bills over the next three years.

The commission said it will take public comments for the next month before making a decision.

fluence to increase Peace Corps appropriations above the president's request.

More important, while the administration opposed the separation of the Peace Corps from ACTION, Ruppe was making clear to her Republican pals in Congress that her "conscience" dictated a move in the opposite direction. They went along with Loret, instead of the president. Thus, congressional action saved the Peace Corps from Reorganization under Tom Pauken.

Pauken had been pressing Ruppe to put into effect, for the first time in 12 years, Section 8(c) of the Peace Corps act that requires indoctrination of volunteers on the communist threat to freedom. When we asked her about Section 8(c), she expressed ignorance and, when prompted by an aide, said plans had been started — some 11 months into the Reagan administration.

Loret Ruppe, a determined and effective woman, does not include Reorganization among her dreams for her agency. To morose Reaganites, that is all too typical of the entire administration after one year.

Farmville Bd. Tables Interim Utility Rate Boost

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer
FARMVILLE — Farmville Commissioners voted Tuesday night to table a proposed interim electric utility rate increase until the town's utilities committee can study it in the light of new developments.

Town Administrator Robert Morgan said it was understood that Carolina Power and Light will increase its charges to the town 18 percent on Jan. 12 and that Power Agency No. 3 will not be ready to provide power to the town until Feb. 24. The extra percentage of charges will have to be billed in February, Morgan said, or the town will lose thousands of dollars during this interval.

Peter Anderson, president of the Farmville Senior Council, presented a letter from the senior council requesting space for the council and its nutrition program in the proposed community center to be built with Community Development Funds. The commissioners said they would take the request under advisement and share it with the proper committees.

The commissioners approved the Community Development Commercial Rehabilitation Program, which will allow CD Block Grant funds to be used to help relocate small businesses whose buildings are deemed unworthy of rehabilitation, and to rehabilitate those that can be in regard to "improvement of structural and aesthetic quality, energy efficiency and creation of a more attractive shopping environment for the area in which it is located." Total CDBG assistance will not exceed $7,000 per building.

A public hearing on the town's proposed new zoning ordinance was set for the first Tuesday in March, giving the commissioners two months to familiarize themselves with the lengthy document. The work of the Planning Board members, John Downs, Pete Avery and H.P. Norman, was noted.

Appointed by Mayor Rusty Duke to the Planning Board were Danny Griffin, Jim Craft Jr. and Myles Cartrette. R.E. Deans Jr., who served one month of an unexpired term on the planning board last year, was reappointed. Minnie Lee Winborn was appointed to the Library Board, and Bobby Evans and Dan Thomas were reappointed to the Firemen's Relief Fund Board of Trustees. The appointments were confirmed by the commissioners.

The low bid of Herring Rivenbark Inc. ($39,379) was accepted by the town for construction of the 258 North Water Main Extension. Award of the bid is pending the approval by the state of a Clean Water Bond Grant.

The proposal of Branch Banking and Trust Co. for the town's banking service for the coming year was accepted. The commissioners noted the cooperative participation in submission of proposals by BB&T, Bank of North Carolina and First Union National Bank. They also noted the work done by Town Clerk Margie Tripp in preparing a comparison chart of the services offered by each of the three banks.

Mayor Rusty Duke, long a member and a former chairman of the Planning Board, would be to change the role of extraterritorial residents from voting members to advisory board members with no votes. Duke said he believes this measure would relieve extraterritorial representatives from attending meetings in which no issues dealing with their areas are discussed and enable a quorum to be easily obtained for each meeting of the two boards.

Several tax releases were routinely approved, but one involving interest owed on property owned by Bobby Gene Williams was tabled. Mrs. Margie Williams said she willingly paid the 1972 taxes shown this year to be owed by her on this property, but resisted paying the interest accrued because it was the town's error that she was not billed at the proper time, but nine years later. The amount being contested is $32.10. The commissioners expressed the views that Mrs. Williams was right and should not be charged the tax, but the town administrator said state law does not give the town authority to release legally assessed taxes and that interest owed becomes a part of the tax owed. The commissioners said they would investigate further before making a decision.

Commissioner Oliver Murphrey was vocal in his support of Mrs. Williams' contention and said he has had the same thing happen to him concerning county taxes and that he believed that the interest was waived at the time.

Newly instituted practices of having an invocation and pledging allegiance to the American Flag were carried out at the beginning of the meeting. The Rev. Myles Cartrette gave the opening prayer.

Clark Is Named Builder Of Year

William H. (Bill) Clark, president and owner of Bill Clark Construction Co. Inc. and secretary-treasurer of Clark-Branch Realtors Inc., was named "Builder of the Year" Tuesday night by the Greenville Home Builders Association.

Clark received the award during the association's recognition meeting held at the Casablanca.

Bob Dail, contractor sales manager with Home Builders Supply Co. here, was named "Associate of the Year" by the GHBA during the meeting.

Both awards were announced and presented by Merle Bowser, association president.

Clark's construction firm, it was pointed out, builds approximately 50 houses per year while Clark-Branch Realtors is a residential-commercial brokerage agency that also handles some management of rental properties.

Clark served as vice president of Cherry Oaks Inc. and Lanco Inc. of Greenville from 1972 until March of 1977. Prior to his involvement with Cherry Oaks, he was assistant vice president of Wachovia Mortgage Co., Winston-Salem. He served as mortgage loan officer in Winston-Salem, Greenville and Raleigh.

Clark was a member of the board of directors of the GHBA for 1977, 1978, 1980 and 1981 and is second vice president for 1982. He served on the Industrial Development Committee of the Chamber of Commerce for 1979, 1980 and 1981.

He attended East Carolina University and received an AB degree and master's in business administration. Clark is married to the former Gloria Jean Elias and they have three children, Hunter, Heath and Lance.

Dail has been a member of the GHBA board of directors for five years. He served as secretary-treasurer and was instrumental in setting up the Better Homes Fair for the association. Dail was chairman of the event for two years.

A graduate of East Carolina University, Dail resides with his wife, Jerri, and their son, Christopher, at 118 Greenwood Drive.

Electric Co-Op Mailing Checks

TARBORO — Members of Edgecombe-Martin County Electric Membership Corp. have been mailed checks totaling $42,977.51 representing capital credits earned by the members for 1958, according to Rudolph Sexton, general manager.

Sexton said the money, plus an additional $19,912.76 paid to estates of deceased members, represents the difference between what it actually cost the cooperative to provide electric service and the amount its members paid the co-op in 1958.

He said the corporation already has retired $855,662.18 in capital credits, representing margins earned through 1957 and payments to estates of deceased members.

Sexton said people who received service in 1958 as a bona fide member, and not under someone else's name or membership, who do not receive their checks by Friday, should get in touch with the cooperative office.

Birds Of Prey Are Rehabilitated At N.C. Center

By ELISSA McCRARY
Associated Press Writer
CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Dr. Richard Brown says he tells visitors to the raptor rehabilitation center at the University of North Carolina at Charlotte not to be alarmed if they're greeted by a huge hawk flying down the hall.

"We tell them not to be frightened, it's just Joseph the hawk getting his daily exercise," says Brown, director of the center.

Joseph, a Harris hawk, is one of about 30 birds of prey being cared for and studied at the Carolina Raptor Rehabilitation and Research Center. The center is the only one of its kind located on a college campus in the Carolinas and is one of only a few such programs in the country.

Most of the birds of prey at the center, which include owls, hawks, vultures and a bald eagle, have been injured and are unable to fly.

According to Brown, birds of prey, known as raptors, are fully protected by federal and state laws. But every year, many are shot, hit by cars or orphaned when their nests are destroyed.

"A lot of people just don't know what they're shooting when they shoot a hawk or an owl. Some people just don't care," Brown said. "A lot of the birds we are working with here aren't releasable. That is, they will never be able to fly again or feed themselves in the wild."

Brown points to Edelweiss, a snowy owl, who has an injured wing and won't fly again. Brown and his assistants are trying to get Edelweiss to feel comfortable around people since the bird will have to spend the rest of its life in captivity.

"Birds like Edelweiss, we can use for educational purposes, in museums, science centers and such. We can show people what these birds look like and hopefully teach them not to hurt them," Brown said.

The university's work with birds of prey began when Brown came to the school in 1975. The center was set up a year ago in the basement of the biology department. Most of the work is carried on in a 25 by 30 room, crowded with bird cages and research equipment. The center has a few large wire cages outdoors that hold a crippled bald eagle and a few vultures and owls.

The center's work has been endorsed by the Audubon Society and the Wildlife Federation.

"This is a fairly new area of study but we have gained quite a bit of expertise in the past few years," Brown said.

The center's work is not funded by the university. All money for equipment, veterinarians' bills and food for the birds is paid for out of donations to the center.

About 15 students help take care of the birds.

"When a student first comes in here and sees the birds eating a live mouse, it's, 'Ooh, how awful,'" said sophomore Sue White. "But when they really get into this program and find out how much it costs to feed the birds, they say, 'Quick, there's a mouse, get it.'"

Meanwhile, Brown has sketched a tentative plan for a 10,000-square foot raptor-center complex, which he hopes can be built at UNCC. It includes a museum, x-ray laboratory, research offices, rodent breeding room to feed the birds and a treatment lab.

He admits his dream may be a long time coming true.

"I don't know if this can ever be built but I'm a dreamer and I think the work we do here is worthwhile. What we have to do now is convince a lot of other people," he said.

Justice Lewis Powell: Major Decision-Maker

By RICHARD CARELLI and KEVIN COSTELLOE
Associated Press Writers
WASHINGTON (AP) — For most of his decade on the Supreme Court, Justice Lewis F. Powell has been the man in the middle, a majority-maker.

Powell, who joined the court Jan. 7, 1972, is so close to its center that he is hard-pressed to recall dissenting from any highly publicized decisions. The sole exception: during his first year on the bench, the court struck down capital punishment as then practiced. Powell went with the minority.

"I try very hard to reconcile views I may have to help put a court (majority) together," Powell has told people at the court.

More than any other justice in the past three terms, he has been part of the court majority shaping American law. But almost always in headline-winning cases, it has been some other justice who has written for the majority.

Thus many of Powell's strongest judicial views are contained in his concurring opinions, which are not binding but which often influence later cases.

A decade ago, Powell was a reluctant appointee, considering himself too old — at 64 years of age — to start a career on the bench. But President Nixon insisted that the nation would benefit from "10 years of Justice Powell."

It now appears the nation is going to get more than 10 years. At 74, Powell has no plans to retire, saying only that he hopes to leave his job while still in good health.

Powell was no stranger to the legal community when he was appointed. A member of Virginia's largest law firm, he had been president of the American Bar Association from 1964 to 1965.

Upon joining the nine-member court, Powell became identified with its growing conservatism. But although he calls himself a conservative, Powell has solidified his position among the so-called "centrists."

He has avoided the rigid ideological views that sometimes isolate conservative Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justice William H. Rehnquist and liberal

JUSTICE POWELL

Justices William J. Brennan and Thurgood Marshall. Joining Powell as the court's swing votes have been Justices Byron R. White, Harry A. Blackmun and John Paul Stevens.

Justice Sandra Day O'Connor, who became the court's newest member last Sept. 25, thus far has not shown any sign of becoming a consistent member of the court's conservative or liberal wings.

Powell believes that one of the highlights of his court term was his controlling opinion in the much-heralded 1978 Bakke case, in which the court upheld for the first time the concept of affirmative action.

He also wrote for the court in 1976 when it trimmed the rights of state prison inmates to have their convictions overturned in federal court, and he authored a series of opinions expanding the rights of illegitimate children.

Powell's opinions gave qualified resident aliens a right to practice law in the United States and gave corporations the "free speech" right to spend corporate money to promote political issues.

Powell's latest opinion for the court said state colleges must let student groups conduct religious worship and religious study in campus buildings if other student activities are allowed such access.

The decision gave rise to reports that the court may be considering a change in its 19-year ban on organized prayer in public elementary and secondary schools. Powell is known to have called that "wholly unjustified speculation."

As do all federal judges, Powell is entitled to hold his job for life. The court's richest member, he now can retire at full pay.

When he eventually retires, Powell intends to leave the nation's capital as well. His ties to Richmond and his native Virginia, where his first ancestor settled in 1632, remain strong. He and his wife maintain a legal residence in Richmond.

"I miss a good many things. I miss our Richmond friends," Powell has told others.

New Scans Called 'Revolution'

By PAUL RAEBURN
AP Science Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A new device that uses magnetism instead of harmful radiation to diagnose ailments could "cause a revolution in medical diagnostics," a researcher says.

David Hoult, a scientist with the National Institutes of Health, said the new scanner already can out-perform CAT scanners in some situations.

Because the device does not use any form of radiation — unlike CAT scans, which use X-rays — it is believed to be completely safe, Hoult said Tuesday.

The device — called an NMR scanner — uses magnetic fields to produce pictures of internal organs similar to the pictures made by CAT scanners.

Both types of machines produce television images of a cross section through the body, or through a specific organ.

Hoult compared CAT scans of the brain and the liver with NMR scans, and said the NMR scans are often better able to pinpoint details in tumors.

The Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston is the only U.S. hospital with a commercially produced NMR scanner, Hoult said, but a number of institutions are doing research with experimental NMR devices.

Hoult's remarks were made during an NMR symposium at the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

The NMR scanners are named for the phenomenon on which they are based — nuclear magnetic resonance.

What that means is that different substances behave differently when placed near a magnet. An NMR scanner consists of a very large electromagnet and measuring devices to watch what happens inside the body when the magnet is turned on.

Blood behaves differently from spinal fluid, for example, and tumors behave differently from healthy tissue.

A computer is used to analyze the output of the machine and produce the television image of the inside of the body.

In one case described by Hoult, a woman with a tumor inside her skull was examined with a CAT scanner, but her doctor could not tell whether the tumor had yet invaded the brain.

An NMR scan showed that the tumor had not entered the brain, and the doctor was able to remove it safely. The woman recovered.

Although X-rays pose little risk in small doses, they have a cumulative effect. Repeated X-ray exams can increase a patient's risk of developing cancer.

But since the NMR device uses no radiation whatsoever, it is "almost certainly safe," Hoult said.

"You can use it on babies, and hopefully permission will be given soon for it to be used on pregnant women," he said.

He said NMR machines should ultimately give better pictures of the fetus than the ultrasound exams that are now given to many pregnant women.

The cost of the first commercial machines now being made varies from $800,000 to $1.5 million, Hoult said. He predicted that the cost would drop to about $400,000 within five years.

That would make the device comparable in cost to CAT scanners.

While there seem to be no theoretical hazards associated with NMR scans, Hoult said he was concerned with "practical details" in the use of the machines.

Because they contain a large, powerful magnet, metal objects left in the examination room could be sucked into the devices.

A set of car keys could become a dangerous projectile that could harm or even kill a patient, he said.

Considerably more research must be done before NMR scanners can be put into widespread use, Hoult said.

Doctors must also learn to interpret NMR scans, which are quite different from X-rays.

No Escape Try In Prison Fire

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — No inmates attempted to escape during a fire at Central Prison on Tuesday although nearly 100 prisoners, guards and staff members were evacuated, a spokesman said.

"It was totally without incident," Correction Department spokesman Stuart Shadbolt said. "There was no inmate who attempted to take advantage of the conflagration." Officials said no one was injured in the blaze, which city firefighters extinguished 35 minutes after it began in the prison shop where state road signs are printed. Three fire trucks responded to the blaze, he said.

No one was injured, and the inmates were evacuated to a prison yard without incident, Shadbolt said.

Prison officials said they did not know the cause of the blaze. Shadbolt said it would be several days before an estimate of the damage could be made.

The fire started on the second floor in the southeastern corner of the three-story Industrial Building, which is inside the thick stone walls of the state's century-old prison.

Forty-two inmates work on the second floor, and some had begun leaving for lunch when the fire broke out, Shadbolt said. Those who remained were evacuated, as were 55 inmates still on the third floor and 22 guards and prison staff workers in the building, he said.

Shadbolt said 55 inmates who work on the first floor, where license plates are manufactured, had already left the building to go to lunch.

He said smoke filled the entire floor, but that fire damage was confined to a corner 30 feet by 30 feet.

Jackrabbits Not Answer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Importing jackrabbits from Idaho, where they are being slaughtered by farmers, would not replenish North Carolina's diminishing cottontail rabbit population, state Wildlife Resources Commission officials say.

"Several people who have read about or seen TV clips of the roundup of an estimated 15,000 jackrabbits in Idaho have questioned us about getting permits to bring these rabbits to North Carolina and stock them, but we have not issued any permits and have no plans to do so," said Vernon Beville, executive director of the state Wildlife Commission.

"The importation of jackrabbits will not help bolster our native rabbit populations, and, in fact, would probably hurt them and cause other problems as well."

Carl Betsill, small game project leader for the state, said the jackrabbit is not closely related to the cottontail and has different habitat and climatic requirements. He said jackrabbits probably would not survive in North Carolina.

Farmers are destroying the jackrabbits in Idaho because the animals have ruined thousands of dollars' worth of crops.

Betsill said the jackrabbits could cause the same problem if brought to North Carolina and could bring diseases as well.

Arrest Two On Damage Charges

Greenville police arrested two men Monday night on charges of damage to personal property following investigation of an incident at Brown-Wood Inc. at 1205 Dickinson Ave.

Chief Glenn Cannon, who identified the men as Jimmie Lee Hollaway Jr. and Michael Anthony Howard, said the two allegedly broke headlights out of several cars on the Brown-Wood lot. In all, an estimated $650 damage resulted to seven cars, the chief noted.

The incident occurred about 10:20 p.m.

Lessons In 'Bundy Case' Evaluated

By MATT BOKOR
Associated Press Writer
TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — A sheriff who guarded Theodore Bundy before he was convicted for killing two Florida State University coeds and a schoolgirl says the tragedy hasn't been forgotten but its lessons have been ignored.

"Every night, girls that were here at that time are going out, probably meeting guys that they've never seen before, or maybe casually have seen, and are acting as if they're good friends," said Sheriff Ken Katsaris.

Bundy, 32, spent 26 months in Katsaris' Leon County Jail before his conviction.

The handsome former Utah law student is on Florida's death row following his convictions in trials in Orlando and Miami for the 1978 slayings of the two college students and a 12-year-old schoolgirl from Lake City. Before the Florida murders, he had been convicted of kidnapping a suburban Salt Lake City woman and was charged in the murder of a Detroit woman vacationing in Colorado.

He escaped from jail in Colorado, where he was awaiting trial, shortly before the January 1978 slayings of the two Florida State students. He was arrested later in spring of 1978 for the slaying of the schoolgirl, Kimberly Leach.

"It's a natural phenomenon of life for boy to meet girl," Katsaris said. "It's not unusual for a girl to dance with a guy she's never known before, or to go out and have a drink with him and even get closer."

But Katsaris said the Bundy case proved that it's impossible in that first acquaintance to tell if someone could be a killer.

Bundy was an excellent conversationalist, the sheriff said, and apparently was at a bar next to the sorority house when he met the two Chi Omega sorority sisters he later killed.

Katsaris says students in Tallahassee still believe something like that couldn't happen to them.

"Life is just that way, for whatever reason," Katsaris said. "We simply live and shelter ourselves from the things that are brutal."

Katsaris doesn't advise caution to the point of locking oneself in a room.

Instead, he suggests women ask a few extra questions of a potential friend.

"You've got to be wary, not to the point that you get paranoia sickness but at least a degree of paranoia until you've proven to yourself that the association is all right."

"Check out people. Ask friends ... and just knowing that he's a student doesn't mean much," Katsaris said.

"If you're interested in going out with him tonight, and you just met him, I guess you'll have to take your chances."

Slight Rise In Building Outlay

WASHINGTON (AP) — New construction spending increased 0.2 percent in November, according to the Commerce Department, but after adjustment for inflation was down 0.1 percent for the 10th consecutive monthly decline.

The value of construction put in place through last November was $217.5 billion, 3.3 percent above the level for the same period of 1980, the department said Monday.

Economists disagreed on whether the figures indicated the economy is pulling out of the recession. The construction industry has been in a slump since early in 1981.

The November report showed that the spending to build new private homes fell 0.8 percent to an annual rate of $77.6 billion.

WILD CAMELS PEKING (AP) — Wild camels, which are on the verge of extinction, have been found in northwest China, the official Xinhua news agency reports.

Creationists Vow To Press Schools 'Offensive'

By BILL SIMMONS
Associated Press Writer

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Creationists vowed to "take the offensive" after a judge overturned a state law requiring schools to teach creationism if they teach evolution, and the Mississippi Senate struck the first blow, passing a similar statute.

"If anything, creation-scientists' efforts will be intensified," Duane Gish, associate director of the Institute for Creation Research in El Cajon, Calif., said after the ruling. A challenge of Louisiana's new creationism law is expected to be heard this spring.

U.S. District Judge William Overton ruled Tuesday in Little Rock that the Arkansas law violated First Amendment guarantees of separation of church and state.

"It was simply and purely an effort to introduce the biblical version of creation into the public school curricula," Overton, the Methodist son of a biology teacher, said in his 40-page ruling.

"I believe that this case will deal creation-science a fatal blow," said Robert Cearley Jr., who represented the American Civil Liberties Union in the suit against the law.

Steve Clark, the Arkansas attorney general who defended the law in court, said he has not made up his mind on an appeal.

The law, which would have gone into effect in autumn, said public schools teaching evolution must also teach creation-science.

Evolutionists believe the Earth is billions of years old and life forms began developing gradually several million years ago. Creationists generally hold that the Earth and most life came into existence suddenly about 6,000 years ago.

The ruling, based on a nine-day trial last month, is "a very serious blow to academic and religious freedom," Gish said in a telephone interview.

Gish said he had greater confidence in Louisiana's defense of its new creationism law, also being challenged by the ACLU.

Louisiana Sen. Bill Keith, the author of Louisiana's creationism law, said his confidence was unshaken by the ruling.

Arkansas was "outgunned and outmaneuvered," Keith said. "I'm confident that with the proper defense, proper testimony, we'll win in Louisiana."

Last year, Arkansas became the first state to adopt such a bill, based on a premise that public schools can be required to teach creation from a scientific standpoint without religious materials.

Creationists have circulated the bill in most states and have offered it to Congress for national action.

The ACLU filed suit in May for 23 plaintiffs, including 12 clergymen, challenging the Arkansas statute and saying creation-science was religion in disguise.

The ACLU asked that the law be stricken on the religious issue and on grounds it is too vague and infringes on academic freedom. Overton ruled only on the religion issue.

Although Cearley said he hoped the ruling would "put an end to attempts to get creation-science introduced in the schools in the guise of science," the Mississippi Senate passed a similar measure 48-4 after Overton's ruling.

"If we're going to have a nation that says 'In God We Trust,' let's go all the way or not at all," said Sen. Cecil Mills of Clara.

The bill goes to the House. Mississippi Sen. Emerson Stringer was told of the Arkansas ruling minutes before he guided the bill to victory on the opening day of the 1982 legislative session.

"My philosophy is that the judicial branch of government has its responsibility and I work for my people and I have my responsibility," he said.

Overton said most of the elements of the law's definition of creation-science were not subject to explanation under natural law, but could be understood only as supernatural events. Science deals with the natural law, not supernatural matters, he said.

William Carey, executive officer of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, said "the AAAS welcomes" the decision, and National Education Association, representing 1.7 million teachers, also said it was pleased by the ruling.

Cites Benefits In Bank Merger

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — The First National Bank of Albermarle's merger with First Union National Bank will benefit all communities served by the bank, First Union president C.C. Cameron said.

"The merger has expanded the area of the state served by First Union, thereby enabling the bank to more fully serve the statewide banking needs of North Carolina," he said in a recent news release.

The merger was effective Dec. 31.

None Of Crew Tried Defect

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP)

— No crew members of the Polish freighter General Wladyslaw Sikorski attempted to defect while the ship was in port, although the ship's captain claimed they were free to go ashore if they wished.

The vessel steamed out of the port at Tuesday 6 p.m. with its crew intact.

Capt. Zdzislaw Dula met with reporters aboard his ship Tuesday afternoon to dispute statements by an agent for Polish Ocean Lines that some crewmen might try to defect if they were allowed to go ashore.

Dula said about 80 to 85 percent of the ship's 40 crewmen were members of Solidarity, the Polish union which prompted the imposition of martial law in Poland. Asked if he expected all of the crewmen to come back if they were allowed to go ashore, Dula replied, "Of course."

Terry Edwards of Harrington and Co. Inc. said the crewmen might be restricted to the ship because several Polish crew members from other ships sought political asylum in other countries following the military crackdown in their homeland.

Dula said he does not believe that the Soviet Union was behind the move to martial law by the Polish military, and he criticized President Reagan's sanctions against his country. He said the president should negotiate with the Polish regime on ways to help Poland recover.

He said he supported the move to martial law in his country because it was necessary in order to end the strikes and get the company back on its feet.

Club Manager Is Charged In Probe

FORT BRAGG, N.C. (AP) — The FBI says an investigation into a Fort Bragg soldiers' club should be completed in a few weeks, following the arrest of the former club manager.

Robert Pence said agents are continuing their investigation into civilian club employees.

Sgt. 1st Class Cleveland Washington, 46, of Headquarters and Headquarters Co., 82nd Airborne Division, is charged with conspiracy, larceny and preparing and using false government documents, according to post officials.

Col. Melvin Byrd, commander of the 82nd Airborne's Division Support Command, is due to decide within a week whether Washington will face a court-martial or receive administrative punishment, said Capt. Bill Maddox, a post spokesman.

Maddox said Washington is the only active duty soldier

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Researchers predict that only about half of the people charged with drunk driving in 1982 will lose their drivers licenses because of the prevalence of plea bargaining.

"There is nothing whatsoever wrong with the DUI law," said Ben F. Loeb Jr., professor of public law and government at the Institute of Government in Chapel Hill. "It is clear, concise and as simple to enforce as a speed limit. The General Assembly has done its part, now it is up to the criminal justice system."

Loeb conducted a study showing that the number of DUI arrests leading to a loss of license declined from 75.6 percent in 1975 to 68.4 percent in 1979.

"A lot of these people were convicted of a lesser offense," Loeb said. "Just about anybody will plead guilty to careless and reckless driving to keep their license. But letting someone plead guilty to a lesser offense doesn't take them off the road."

Loeb's study and state records indicate that if recent trends continue, more than 83,000 people will be arrested for drunk driving in North Carolina in 1982 and only about half of them will lose their licenses.

Those same patterns indicate that about half of the state's traffic fatalities in the future will be alcohol-related.

Data released by the North Carolina Department of Crime Control and Safety shows that drunk driving arrests in the state increased by 15 percent between 1977 and 1980. The report stated that 82,980 people were arrested in 1980, placing the state behind only California and Texas.

The same report indicates the number of people who lost their licenses for that same period declined by 7 percent to 35,929.

In North Carolina, drivers convicted for the first time of driving under the influence or for driving with a blood alcohol content of .10 percent lose their license for six months to a year. A second or third DUI conviction brings a stiffer penalty.

Loeb's study also shows that the chances of losing a driver's license for DUI varies from county to county. Buncombe County is the toughest on drunk drivers as 95 percent of those arrested there for DUI in 1979 lost their license.

Yancey County is the most lenient for DUI's with only 41.5 percent losing their license, according to Loeb's study.

Loeb said the reason for the high rate in Buncombe County is that the district attorney there refuses to plea bargain the cases. He said other counties could have the same kind of results as Buncombe County if they would put the same emphasis on it.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices opened mostly lower today following a broad slump in the previous session sparked by fears of higher interest rates.

However, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which posted its worst decline in fourth months Tuesday, edged up 0.19 to 865.49 after 30 minutes of trading today.

But the Dow Jones transportation, utility and 65-stocks measures all were off a fraction, and losers led gainers 2 to 1 on the New York Stock Exchange.

The market's slide Tuesday was attributed mainly to an unexpected rise in the nation's money supply and a leading economist's forecast that some interest rates could again near record-high levels later this year.

But some analysts were encouraged that the bond market rallied late Tuesday to closed nearly unchanged, which they said might influence stocks today.

Early NYSE losers included General Electric 1/8 to 57 1/4, Baker International 1/4 to 36 1/4 and Marathon Oil 3/8 to 79 1/4.

On the upside were American Airlines 1/8 to 10 3/4, Pan American World Airways 1/8 to 3 and Republic Steel 1/4 to 24 1/2.

On Tuesday, the Dow Jones industrial average plunged 17.22 points to 865.30. It was the measure's worst decline since Sept. 3 when it also fell 17.22.

Three NYSE stocks fell for each one rising, with nearly 1,200 issues losing ground, and the NYSE's composite index skidded 1.48 to 69.72.

Big Board volume totaled 47.51 million shares, compared with 36.76 million in the previous session.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index tumbled 6.82 to 314.59.

Phillips said, "Greenville has an excellent school system that could be still better. It will take a long-term commitment from school board members, school administrators, classroom teachers, children and, most of all, parents. I'd like to quote the N.C. School Board Association slogan, 'Education Is Our First Line of Defense.'"

Safety Tree

Is Taken Down

The Pilot Club of Greenville's holiday "Safety Tree" had one red bulb — signifying a single traffic fatality in the county — when it was taken down this week, according to Margaret Register, the club's safety committee chairman.

Miss Register said the one fatality recorded in Greenville and Pitt County during the Dec. 19 through Jan. 5 "high risk period" occurred on the morning of Dec. 21.

While the club regretted the one fatality, Miss Register said "we feel fortunate not to have had more during the holiday period when there was so much traffic."

The Pilot Club has utilized the "Safety Tree" for the past 15 years as a reminder to area motorists to exercise driving caution during the holiday period.

Montana To Ride Shotgun Vs. Cowboys

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
Joe Montana. The name has the ring of a gunslinger in one of oldtime movie Westerns. Quick on the draw. Bold. Fearless. Cool as an iccube. Shoots from the hip. Can remove the eyebrow mif a housefly from 40 yards away.

The image fits the name. Montana will ride shotgun for the swashbuckling San Francisco 49ers in the National Football League's NFC championship game Sunday.

Danny White. Could as well be Billy Bob White. The All-American boy. Short hair. Clean-cut. Serious. Does his homework. Minds his parents. Nice to old ladies crossing the street. He should always wear a white helmet.

The image fits the name. Danny will be on the other side of the line, leading the disciplined, machine-like, Super Bowl-hardened Dallas Cowboys against Montana's brash and brassy interlopers from Out West.

They call Dallas "America's Team." You can almost smell the apple pie. The rival quarterbacks are mere microcosms of the two teams and the cities they represent who will battle it out in San Francisco's rugged Candlestick Park for a spot in the Super Bowl.

The 49ers get their name from hardy pioneers who went west to grub for gold — tough, rowdy, devil-may-care. Heaven-help-the-hindmost. Their old city, sitting on a hill, has survived earthquakes and riots. The football team came from 2-14 in 1979 to 13-3 this season, best record in the whole NFL. It knows what disaster is.

One of its players, Jack "Hacksaw" Reynolds, once got so mad when he lost he sawed his car in half.

Dallas. The "Big D." Once a boisterous Western frontier itself, it now swims in liquid gold — oil. People wear $500 boots, $100 wide-brimmed hats, velvet-trimmed topcoats and pick their teeth with 14-karat toothpicks.

It is only fitting that the Cowboys' coach, Tom Landry, should extend the marked contrast. Landry strides the sidelines, dapper in a felt hat, immaculately pressed suit and spit'n'polish shoes — utterly unflappable, looking like a Baptist deacon going to church.

His San Francisco counterpart, Bill Walsh, craggy, silver-haired, intense, disheveled, stomps up and down the field enmeshed in wires that connect him with assistants in the upper stands. He is wholly involved.

But he must remain aware: Everything is bigger and better in Texas, especially Dallas — even the football teams.

Which brings to mind the incident of the barfly who got tired of listening to a Texan at his elbow, bragging on how big and rich everything in his native state was.

"Listen, friend," said the barfly. "I'm sick and tired of hearing that stuff about Texas. Let me tell you, down in my state of Kentucky there's a place called Fort Knox where we got enough gold buried to build a fence all around the state of Texas, 6-feet high, 6-feet wide, 6-feet deep, nothing but solid gold."

The unimpressed Texan rubbed his chin.

"Well, I'll tell you, bud," he replied. "You go ahead and build that fence and, if I like it, I'll buy it."

The Cincinnati Bengals, who like the 49ers bounded back from a losing season, have the best passer in pro football, by 1981 gauges. Ken Anderson led all quarterbacks with 300 completions in 479 attempts for 3,757 yards, 29 touchdowns and only 10 interceptions. He had an NFL rating of 98.5, which is strictly Phi Beta Kappa.

His rival signal-caller, Dan Fouts of San Diego, may not have been as consistent but was even more prolific, tossing the ball 609 times, completing 360 for 5,802 yards, a league record, and 33 touchdowns. He had 17 intercepted for a 90.55 rating — only salutatorian stuff.

LEXINGTON, Ky. — All-America Valerie Still pumped in 25 points to lead the University of Kentucky to a come-from-behind 78-67 victory over East Carolina University last night.

Still, a 6-3 junior center, scored 12 straight points for Kentucky midway the second half to erase a four-point East Carolina lead and give the Lady Kats a 52-48 lead, which they never lost.

Still scored a game-high 25 points, including 19 in the second half, and pulled down 11 rebounds, also a game high in leading the Kats to their eighth win in 10 starts.

The 14th-ranked Lady Kats had their hands full with the Lady Pirates, who now have a 4-6 record. East Carolina shot 44 percent for the game from the floor, and had its inside game shut down by the taller Kentucky team, but surprisingly the Kats won the rebound battle by only five, 40-35.

In the second half, East Carolina outscored Kentucky, 12-2, in the first seven and a half minutes, with Lillian Barnes contributing six of those points to work to a 44-40 lead. East Carolina had been down by six at the half, 38-32.

At that point, Still started her bit of work and rallied the Kats by scoring 12 points in the next three minutes to give Kentucky a six-point edge. Down the stretch, it was Still's inside play and free throws which kept Kentucky ahead by seven points or more.

In the first half, Sam Jones, who had a season high 23 points and Mary Denkler, who finished with 18, each scored 14 to account for all but four of ECU's first half total.

After ECU took an initial 8-2 lead, Kentucky roared back with a balanced attack to take a 24-14 lead with 9:33 remaining. But ECU, behind the scoring of Jones and Denkler rallied to tie the score at 30-all with 3:33 left as Denkler hit two free throws.

Kentucky then ran off eight straight points before Denkler answered with a ten-foot jumper with two seconds left to make it 38-32.

"You can't get disappointed with a loss like this," ECU Coach Cathy Andruzzi said. "We really surprised Kentucky and our play ought to be an incentive for the games ahead."

"The score was not indicative of the final outcome and neither team had control of the game until the final minute," Andruzzi added. "I was proud of the way the girls played, especially near the end of a long road trip, and with Kentucky having just knocked off UCLA and Georgia."

"Rebounding wise, we did well, but there's not much you can do with Valerie Still," she added. "We did get two fouls on her in the first half, and got her to the bench, but after she got back in, things got tough inside."

Andruzzi said that the team showed patience on offense and played good defense. "The key for Kentucky was their balance. You can't afford to double team still because they can score with anybody from inside or the perimeter."

"Sam, Mary and Lillian played very well and our 44 percent from the field was good considering our lack of height."

Kentucky's scoring, in addition to Still, saw Lori Edgington score 13, Lea Wise hit 12, Tayna Fogle hit 11 and Patty Hedges, 10. Barnes contributed 11 to add to the scoring of Jones and Denkler for ECU.

East Carolina winds up its long six-game, 11-day road trip Thursday at Louisiana State University, then returns home on Sunday for a 7:30 p.m. meeting with the University of Virginia in Minges Coliseum.

ECU Battles W&M Tonight

East Carolina University's Pirates host William & Mary tonight at 7:30 p.m. in Minges Coliseum, looking for their second straight win in the ECAC-South and their third in a row overall.

The Indians, who will be playing their first ECAC-South game, bring a 6-2 record into the game. Their only losses came at the hands of Virginia Tech, and North Carolina, the latter on Monday by a 64-40 score.

In that game, the Indians shot only 31 percent from the floor. "I felt we played better than the score indicated," W&M coach Bruce Parkhill said. "We missed a lot of shots that were not due to defensive pressure. I liked the development of the game, but the shots just didn't fall for us."

"I hope we're hungry as heck for East Carolina."

The Indians use a patient offense and are tenacious on defense, but will run if they get the opportunity. Their 6-2 start, which includes the championship of the Iron Duke Tournament, is the best since 1977-78, when they opened with a 9-1 record, including an upset of North Carolina. Ironically, it was ECU that handed them a second loss that year.

Freshman guard Keith Cieplicki, 6-4, leads the Indians in scoring with a 11.6 average, while backcourt companion Bill Barnes, 6-4, is the only other player in double figures with a 10.8 average. He's also the leading rebounder with a 5.6 mark.

One forward will be 6-6 sophomore Bary Bland, averaging 6.8, while the other will be either 6-7 sophomore

Rocky Mt. Whips Rampants, 63-50

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer
ROCKY MOUNT — Greenville Rose stood tall against Rocky Mount Tuesday evening, but it fell pitifully short where it counted most — from the floor.

The Rampants out rebounded the the Gryphons, 40 to 23, but negated that effort by shooting just 32.7% from the field. Rocky Mount, on the other hand, hit 55% of its shots — including 73% in the second half — to defeat the Rose, 63-50, last night in a Big East Conference basketball game.

Earlier, in the girls' game, Kim Taylor poured in 31 points to lead Rocky Mount past Greenville Rose, 64-50.

"We just couldn't shoot the ball tonight," Rose coach Jim Brewington said. "If we had had any kind of offense in the first half we would have had the lead."

Rose, now 5-4 overall and 0-2 in the conference, trailed at the half, 29-22, despite holding an amazing 25-10 rebounding bulge. The difference was two-fold. First, the Rampants had 11 turnovers to Rocky Mount's six and, second, Rose hit 33% of their shots while the Gryphons connected on 43.5%.

Both the turnovers and the poor shooting was at least partially the result of Rocky Mount's relentless, game-long full-court zone press. "Evidently it hurt us," Brewington said. "I think the kids were trying to get it up court too fast."

"When we did get it up court and got it inside, we scored," Brewington added. "But we also missed a lot of shots."

The Gryphons, picked by many during the preseason as the team to beat in the Big East, extended their lead to as many as 13 in the second half. The Rampants managed to rally to within three with 4½ minutes left, but a 16-4 surge by the Gryphons sealed the victory.

The Rampants were led in scoring by center Tim Harris with 13 points and reserve guard Donnell Lee with 11. Center Derwin Little and reserve swingman Freddie Cherry each chipped in eight

Roanoke Slips By Williamston For 9th Straight

WILLIAMSTON — Roanoke's unbeaten Redskins came off their holiday imposed peace treaty with opposing basketball teams last night, only to find their war whoops a little hoarse, their aim a little rusty and their arrows not quite as sharp as when they were last off the reservation. However, there was enough there to allow the 'Skins to take a 39-35 victory over winless Williamston. Earlier, in the girls' game, Roanoke downed Williamston, 37-25.

Roanoke, now 9-0 overall and 6-0 in the Northeastern Conference, eased out into an 8-5 lead after one period of play, but Williamston hung close and trailed only 16-15 at intermission.

The Redskins found it impossible to shake the pesky Tigers in the third quarter, which ended with Roanoke still ahead by one, 26-25. In the final quarter, however, the Redskins were able to remain unbeaten by outscoring the Tigers, 13-10.

Mike Wilson led the Roanoke scoring with 13 points. No one scored in double figures for Williamston, now 0-8 overall and 0-7 in the Northeastern.

Roanoke's girls edged ahead early, too, taking a 10-7 lead after one period. They continued to pull away, however, in the second quarter, running the lead out to 19-9 at the half.

Williamston rallied in the third period, 8-2, and cut the lead to 21-17, but a 16-8 Roanoke edge in the last quarter allowed the Squaws to put it away.

Sylvia Parker led Roanoke with 16 points, while no one scored in double figures for Williamston.

Roanoke travels to Ahoskie on Friday, while Williamston visits Tarboro.

Panthers Now 3-0 In ECC North Pitt Nips Rams

SNOW HILL — Mitchell Cox scored six points in the final quarter, including two fateful free throws as North Pitt nipped Greene Central, 37-36, last night in an Eastern Carolina Conference basketball game.

North Pitt's girls also upset Greene Central's lassies, 36-32, in the opener.

Greene Central jumped out into the lead early, taking a 16-10 margin at the end of the first quarter of the boys' game. North Pitt, which came into the game unbeaten in the league, was unable to dent that lead, and settled for a 26-20 deficit at the half.

Neither team was able to gain much headway in the third, which saw the Panthers finally outscore the Rams, 5-4, but they still trailed, 30-25.

But in the final quarter, Cox scored six of the Panthers' 12 points while the North Pitt defense held Greene Central to only six points. Holding a one-point lead, 35-34 late in the contest, the Panthers padded that with the two free throws by Cox, giving them at 37-34 lead. The Rams pulled it back to one with a buzzer shot.

Greg Hines led the North Pitt scoring with 14 points, while Cox added ten. John Ray led the Ram scoring with 11.

"We didn't go to the line once in the final half," a disappointed Greene Central coach Lewis Godwin said. "North Pitt only committed two fouls during the last two periods."

North Pitt made 13 of 21 free throws in the game, while Greene Central hit on just six of nine, outscoring the Panthers by six points from the floor.

Greene Central's girls fell behind in the opening period, 7-6, but hung close and trailed by one at the half, 12-11. But North Pitt pulled away in the third quarter, outscoring the Lady Rams, 11-6, for a 23-17 lead. Greene Central tried for a rally, 15-13, but fell short.

Gladys Roberson led the Pant-HERS with 10 points, while Letha Taylor paced Greene Central with 20.

The Panther boys are now 7-4 overall and 3-0 in ECC play, while the Rams drop to 4-7 overall and 1-1 in the league. The Lady Rams are now 7-4, 1-1.

Greene Central returns to action on Friday, hosting Ayden-Grifton, while North Pitt visits Farmville Central.

Jags Give DHC 6th Loss In Row

FARMVILLE — A little over a week ago, Farmville Central's Jaguars used D.H. Conley's tailspinning Vikings to help them snap a losing skid of their own in the consolation of the Pitt Holiday Tournament.

Last night, the two met again — their first action since the tournament — and the outcome was just the same as the Jaguars again clawed past the Vikings, 50-45.

The win was the second straight for the Jaguars, who, after two initial wins had lost seven in a row. Conley now, after five opening wins, has dropped its last six.

Conley's girls, snapping back from their first loss of the year in their own invitational tournament last week, downed Farmville, 54-44.

Farmville's boys opened up a seven-point lead in the first period, 16-9, then saw Conley come marching back in the second frame, 17-12. That allowed the Vikings to close the gap to 28-26 at intermission.

Robinson To Coach Pats?

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — John Robinson has been invited to leave powerful Southern California, where he lost just 11 games in six years, to become coach of the New England Patriots, who lost 14 games this season.

The National Football League team offered the USC head coach the job Tuesday and expected his response today.

If he accepted, the 46-year-old Robinson would become the eighth coach in the 22-year history of the Patriots, replacing Ron Erhardt, who was fired Dec. 22, two days after New England ended its worst season ever. Its 2-14 record tied Baltimore for the worst NFL mark this season.

Patriots General Manager Bucko Kilroy said Robinson, who had a 59-11-2 record at USC, was offered the position for many reasons.

"When you're looking at a coach of this caliber you're looking at his track record. He's always been successful as an assistant and head coach," Kilroy said Tuesday. "He's an extraordinary guy in teaching skills. He's a very highly organized individual as a person and a coach."

"One of his top traits is leadership on and off the field. He's not a real tough guy but he is great in instilling the winning atmosphere."

In firing Erhardt, Patriots' owner Billy Sullivan said the coach was "too nice a guy." He also said he wanted the next coach to be more of a disciplinarian.

Kilroy said the team received permission Monday night from Dr. James Zumbege, USC president, to talk with Robinson.

Asked if the team had considered Robinson before Erhardt was fired, Kilroy said, "In this trade, everybody knows what's going on."

"A lot of people in this business, I know, had feelers

John Robinson
 out for individuals (before the season ended) and then the (NFL) teams had good seasons and they forgot about it."

Kilroy noted that before the Fiesta Bowl, in which Penn State beat USC 26-10 on New Year's Day, Robinson had said publicly he was interested in the Patriots' job.

But Kilroy denied a Boston Globe report of last week that Robinson already had been offered the position. Robinson has four years left on his USC contract, and Kilroy said the Patriots didn't want to offer him the job without the school's permission.

Kilroy said he expected Robinson to come here this week to look over the stadium and front office.

"You never know anything," he said when asked if he was confident Robinson would become the Patriots' eighth head coach.

Robinson's .833 winning percentage is second among major college active coaches with at least five years experience.

6-10 N.C. Center Set To Attend Clemson

ICARD, N.C. (AP) — Ed Bleynat, a 6-foot-10 basketball center from East Burke High School, has given a verbal commitment to attend Clemson, the school announced Tuesday.

Bleynat is averaging 20 points and 11 rebounds per game for the Cavaliers, who are 4-5. Last season, he was named to the Western 4-A All-Conference team.

"From the word go, Clemson was my first choice," Bleynat said. "I feel like Clemson has a terrific basketball program, facilities and educational possibilities. I'm really looking forward to the challenge."

East Burke coach Rob Bliss said he felt Bleynat's decision was a great opportunity to continue his basketball at the Atlantic Coast Conference school.

Herb Harris (3.8) or Mike Strayhorn, a 6-5 junior (9.5). Strayhorn is coming off an injury.

The center will be 6-9 junior Brant Weidner (6.0) or Kenny Brown, a 6-9 senior (4.4).

The Indians are hitting 49.3 percent of their field goals and averaging 66.0 points per game, while allowing 52.0 per game. They hold a 44 to 26 rebounding edge.

Odom said the situation did not involve basketball.

Taylor Makes AP All-Pro Team

By The Associated Press

George Rogers of the New Orleans Saints and Tony Dorsett of the Dallas Cowboys, who finished 1-2 in rushing, and Cincinnati quarterback Ken Anderson, the passing champion, are among the players on the Associated Press All-Pro team for the National Football League's 1981 season.

Two rookies also are on the first team — cornerback Ronnie Lott of the San Francisco 49ers and linebacker Lawrence Taylor of the New York Giants.

The Cowboys and 49ers, who play Sunday for the National Conference championship, placed 11 players on The AP's first and second teams announced Tuesday and selected by a nationwide panel of 84 sports writers and broadcasters.

The Dallas players joining Dorsett on the first team are guard Herbert Scott, defensive tackle Randy White and place-kicker Rafael Septien. Tackle Pat Donovan and defensive end Ed "Too Tall" Jones are on the second team.

San Francisco's other first-team representative isn't even on the 49ers' first team. He's defensive end Fred Dean, the pass-rushing specialist. On the second team for the 49ers are quarterback Joe Montana, free safety Dwight Hicks and guard Randy Cross.

The Bengals and San Diego Chargers, competing Sunday for the American Conference crown, have seven players on the All-Pro team.

Along with Anderson, Cincinnati has tackle Anthony Munoz and punter Pat McInally on the first team and rookie Kris Collinsworth on the second team.

For San Diego, the first-team members are tight end Kellen Winslow and defensive tackle

Gary "Big Hands" Johnson, while the second-team representative is defensive tackle Louie Kelcher.

The rest of the first-team players are wide receivers James Lofton of Green Bay and Alfred Jenkins of Atlanta, tackle Marvin Powell of the New York Jets, guard John Hannah of New England, center Mike Webster of Pittsburgh, defensive end Joe Klecko of the Jets; nose tackle Charlie Johnson of Philadelphia, linebackers Bob Swenson of Denver and Jack Lambert of the Steelers, and safeties Gary Fencik of

Lawrence Taylor
Chicago and Nolan Cromwell of Los Angeles, cornerback Mel Blount of Pittsburgh and kick-returner LeRoy Irvin of Los Angeles.

Wisconsin Put On Probation, To Be Watched Closely

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — The University of Wisconsin faces a year of "close scrutiny" after being placed on probation by the National Collegiate Athletic Association for football recruiting violations and improper use of funds and entertainment, a UW spokesman says.

The UW "will be under close scrutiny" during the one-year probation ordered by the NCAA, said Bob Leu, spokesman for the UW athletic department. "As one faculty member described it to me, 'It's like strike one. It's not bad, but we've got to watch our act.'"

The probation, effective immediately, includes a public reprimand and censure but does not affect the football team's eligibility for postseason competition or television appearances. The penalty calls for an NCAA review of athletic policies and practices at the end of the year.

The NCAA Committee on Infractions said the probation stemmed from at least 10 violations by Wisconsin's football program.

Violations included illegal payment of airline tickets for a recruit and his family, setting up a two-day stay at a fishing lodge for the family, and illegally buying meals for recruits.

"The violations in this case related primarily to the recruitment of one prospective student-athlete by one athletic booster during the 1979-80 academic year," said

Charles Alan Wright, chairman of the infractions committee.

"Although the significant recruiting violations in the case were isolated to the recruitment of only one prospect, the committee also was concerned that members of the university's coaching staff failed to exercise sufficient control over the institution's booster to avoid the violations."

The NCAA also cited the Wisconsin athletic staff for improperly allowing athletes to use personal automobiles and giving recruits souvenirs on trips to campus, and the university's football coaches for entertaining high school coaches with food and beverages.

"The university considers the penalty imposed to be appropriate to the circumstances and has taken steps to assure that similar recruiting violations will not occur in the future," UW Chancellor Irving Shain said.

The NCAA did not mention names of individuals, but the "significant" violations mentioned by Wright were believed to involve the recruitment of Carlton Walker, an offensive lineman from Tampa, Fla.

The NCAA had investigated reports that Walker spent two days at a Florida fishing resort with UW alumnus and former athletic board member Fran Hoffman of Madison prior to the national signing date in February 1980.

Cape Hatteras Defeats Bullets

JAMESVILLE — Keith Gray scored 14 points to lead Cape Hatteras past Jamesville, 42-34, Tuesday night in a nonconference basketball game.

Earlier, in the girls' game, Jamesville used 17 points from Kim Floyd to rout Cape Hatteras, 47-17.

Although both schools are in the Tobacco Belt Conference, the games were not counted toward their conference record. The two schools will meet again on Feb. 2 at Cape Hatteras. That game will count in the conference.

In the boys' game, Cape Hatteras opened up a 13-6 lead at the end of the first period and extended its lead to 23-13 at the half. A 10-6 third period gave the visitors a 33-19 lead after three quarters.

Jamesville closed to within eight in the final period, but it was too little, too late as the Bullets dropped their sixth game in nine outings this year.

Jamesville was led by Rex Bell with 11 points. No one else had more than six points for the Bullets.

In the girls' game, Jamesville stretched a two-point first-quarter lead to 16 at the half and then rolled home to a 30-point victory. The Lady Bullets, now 6-3 overall, started slowly, moving out to only an 8-6 lead at the end of the opening period. But a 17-3 second quarter gave Jamesville a 25-9 lead at intermission.

It never got closer. The Lady Bullets outscored Cape Hatteras 15-6 and 7-2 in the final two periods for the victory.

While Floyd was the only player in double figures for the Lady Bullets, Kelly Hardison and Lorie Hardison each had nine points.

Jamesville travels to Matamuskeet Friday.

Chargers Fall To Firebirds, 78-63

LITTLEFIELD — Southern Nash High School handed Ayden-Grifton's Chargers their fifth loss in the last seven games Tuesday night, rolling to a 78-63 decision.

Ayden-Grifton's girls, however, won their first Eastern Carolina Conference game, downing Southern Nash, 61-51, behind a 30-point effort by Cora Faison.

Southern Nash's boys streaked out to a 19-11 lead in the first quarter of the game and were never headed after that. The Firebirds outscored A-G, 23-14, in the second quarter, and ran the lead out to 42-25 at intermission.

Ayden-Grifton rallied in the third period, 18-12, cutting the lead back to 54-43, but a 24-20 margin by the Firebirds in the final quarter put the game away.

Ricky Battle led the Firebirds with 20 points, while Terry Battle added 15, as did Jeffrey Lucas. Chris Strickland led Ayden-Grifton with 14, while Jeff Dixon had 12 and Jonathan Ward and Tyrone Gay each had ten.

The loss left Ayden-Grifton with a 4-7 overall record and a 1-2 ECC mark.

The Ayden-Grifton girls found themselves behind at the end of the first period, 10-6, but quickly took command in the second frame. Led by Faison, Ayden-Grifton outscored Southern, 18-9 and took a 24-19 halftime lead.

In the third period, the Lady Chargers outscored Southern, 22-9, and ran their lead out to 46-28. Southern tried for a rally, 23-15, in the last quarter, but fell far short of catching up.

Linda Brown added 14 to Faison's 30 points for A-G. Southern was led by Melissa Morgan with 24, while Cynthia Brown added 12.

The win boosted the A-G record to 3-8 overall and 1-2 in the league.

Ayden-Grifton travels to Greene Central on Friday.

Knights Return To Court With Easy 68-43 Victory

Greenville Christian Academy returned to action after the long holiday break and rolled to a 68-43 victory over Ridgcroft Academy last night.

The GCA girls didn't fare as well, falling, 42-24.

"I wasn't sure how the long break would affect us," Coach Dale Thatcher said of the boys' contest. "but we played pretty good. We had good rebounding and a balanced attack."

Placing four players in double figures, the Knights built up a 13-6 lead in the first period and extended that to 28-16 by the end of the first half. Greenville outthrew Ridgcroft, 20-10, in the third period, running its lead out to 48-26. They again outscored the Rams, 20-17, in the final quarter to wrap up the victory.

David Hollingsworth led the Knights with 15 points, while Jerry Butts had 12 and Jerry Simpson and John Parnell each had 10. Chris Williams led Ridgcroft with 21, while Jeff Lewis added 10.

In the girls' game, Ridgcroft jumped out to a 14-5 lead in the first quarter. The Lady Rams pushed that out to a 24-10 lead by halftime, and moved further out, 30-13, going into the final quarter of the game. In that, Ridgcroft outscored Greenville, 12-11.

Suzanne Williams led Ridgcroft with 12 points, while Kathy Vernelson led Greenville, also with 12.

Greenville's boys are now 5-1 overall, while the girls are 1-1.

The Knights return to action on Friday, playing host to Faith Christian Academy.

Rocky Mt. Whips Rose...

Little led Rose off the boards with seven rebounds followed by Cherry and guard Barry Smith, both of whom pulled down six rebounds, and Harris with five.

Rocky Mount, now 10-1 overall and 2-0 in the league, was led by all-state candidate George McClain with 17 points and Alton Phillips with 15. Reserve Brian Hunter added 11 points. Hunter also had a team-high seven rebounds — five of which came in the final period.

The game started with the Rampants missing their first seven shots. Rose did not get on the scoreboard until the 5:13 mark when Harris followed two Rampant misses with a short jumper.

Another follow shot by Little pulled Rose even at 4-4 with 4:50 to go in the opening quarter. The score was tied four more times over the next four minutes before the Gryphons took a 14-12 lead at the end of the period on a 22-foot jumper by Phillips.

Smith's jumper from the top of the key following the second quarter tap tied the game at 14-14, but the Gryphons then outscored Rose 15-8 over the next seven minutes to take a 29-22 lead at halftime.

Rocky Mount scored the first six points of the second half thanks to six Rose misses from the floor and three turnovers to go up, 35-22, with 5:42 left. A Rampant time out followed.

After the time out, the Rampants managed to match baskets with the Gryphons, but could not get closer than 11 the rest of the period and trailed, 43-32, going into the final eight minutes.

Midway through the third period the Rampants changed from their 3-2 zone to a man-to-man and also began employing a man-to-man full-court press. Both began to take their toll on Rocky Mount in the final period.

The Gryphons turned the ball over four times in the first four minutes of the fourth period as they saw a lead that had reached as many as 13 narrowed to three.

Sparked by Lee, Rose took advantage of the Rocky Mount errors to cut the deficit to 47-44 with 4:20 left in the game. Lee, who accounted for seven of Rose's first 10 points in the period, hit a driving jumper down the lane and followed that with two free throws. After a Rocky Mount timeout, Jim Whitehurst grabbed a rebound and hit a short turn-around jumper to bring Rose within three (47-44). The Rampants never got closer, however.

Rocky Mount used two steals and a missed one-and-one opportunity by Rose to outscore the Rampants 16-4 over the next four minutes to regain command of the game.

Down 49-44, Rose had trouble against the Rocky Mount press and McClain converted his steal into a layup. Another steal turned in to a bucket by Hunter and when McClain hit a running jumper at the foul line the game was all but over as Rocky Mount led, 55-44, with 2:46 left.

The loss was only Rose's second in the last seven games, but it left the Rampants with two losses in the league. Still, Brewington said he was encouraged by his team's play.

"At the beginning (of the season) I told 'em that the Rocky Mount game would not make 'em or break 'em," Brewington said as he walked along the school's hallway. "But I thought if we could play well against Rocky Mount we could play against anybody. And I think we can."

In the girls' game, Rocky Mount led by 10 at the half (28-18) and Rose never got closer than nine in the second half.

Asked afterward about the game, Rose coach Dennis Gibson said: "Two things got us: the big layoff during the holidays and Kim."

Kim is Kim Taylor, the Gryphons' 6-0 center. All Taylor did was sink 10 field goals — all within five feet of the bucket — and 11 of 12 free throws to score a game high 31 points.

"We knew she'd be tough and we knew she'd get a lot of shots inside and garbage shots," Gibson said. "But next time we play them our girls will know how to box her out."

Rocky Mount, now 4-4 overall and 2-0 in the league, jumped out to an 8-2 lead on a jumper by Shoni Jenkins and led at the end of the first period, 14-8. With Taylor scoring seven straight points, the Gryphons put together a 9-0 surge in the first two minutes of the second period to go up, 23-8.

Rocky Mount extended its lead to 16 (28-12) before Rose scored six straight points to make it 28-18 at the half.

In the second half, Rose could get no closer than nine (32-23) and saw the Gryphons led by as many as 16. Rocky Mount led, 42-31, at the end of the third period before coasting home with a 14-point win.

Joining Taylor in double figures for the Gryphons was forward Sabrina Lewis with 12.

Rose, now 3-4 overall and 1-1 in the league, was led by Alma Atkinson, who had 17 points, and Linda Winstead and Frances Barnhill, both of whom added 10 points.

"This was one of our worst games of the year offensively and I think that's because we were rusty," Gibson said. "Shots we normally make didn't all for us tonight."

Rose plays host to Wilson Beddingfield Friday night.

JV Game — Rocky Mount 62, Rose 29.

Murder Rates Up For Many Cities

MURDER — Ambulance attendants carry the body of a woman, identified as Veronica Zuraw, 52, who was killed in her Brooklyn home Monday night when a reputed organized crime hood and his son sought refuge in the house. (AP Laserphoto)

By TIMOTHY HARPER
 Associated Press Writer
 Jostling aboard a crowded bus on New Year's Eve, a San Antonio, Texas college student and another rider argued briefly over whether the student should say "Excuse me."

Moments later the student lay dead, shot to death. The homicide was a grim and fitting final statement of the growing violence in 1981 in San Antonio — where the 182 murders last year were the most ever.

According to an informal Associated Press survey, murder totals in many major American cities are the same or higher in 1981 compared with 1980.

Officials in most of those cities blame murder on drugs, liquor, prostitution, family arguments and handguns, but grope for explanations of why homicide rates go up or down from year to year.

"I don't think there's a trend," police Capt. E.H. Watson said in Greenville, S.C., where the murder rate nearly doubled last year — from seven to 13. "These people just happened to get together in a pool room or liquor house and got mad," he said.

Final FBI statistics will indicate there were 25,000 murders across the country last year if the trend toward increased violent crime continues.

In 1980, there were more than 23,000 murders in the United States — one every 23 minutes — and the FBI said the nation's murder rate increased by 4 percent during the first six months of 1981.

Dade County, Fla. remained "Murder Capital, USA," with 621 homicides during 1981. The total was an increase of 48 murders over 1980, when the Miami area led the nation with 33 murders for every 100,000 people.

Nationally, the FBI says, there are about 10 murders per 100,000 population.

FBI statistics say that three of four murder victims are male, more than 40 percent are black, and more than 60 percent of all murders are committed with guns, usually handguns.

More than one-third of the people convicted of murder are between the ages of 18 and 24.

Murder totals for 1981 were up in New York; Boston; Chicago; San Francisco; St. Louis; Baltimore; Las Vegas, Nev.; Jacksonville, Fla.; Baton Rouge, La.; Norfolk, Va.; Columbus, Ohio; Providence, R.I.; and Greenville, S.C.

New York City's 1,833 murders, the highest total in the country, included 21 cab drivers, most of them slain in robbery attempts.

Murder figures remained about the same in Denver; Pittsburgh; New Orleans; Jackson, Miss.; Topeka, Kan.; and Mobile, Ala.

But homicide totals dropped in Los Angeles; Detroit; Atlanta; Philadelphia; Salt Lake City; Indianapolis; Nashville, Tenn.; Little Rock, Ark.; Omaha, Neb.; Portland, Ore.; and Oklahoma City.

Totals were up in Houston but down in Dallas; up in Columbus but down in Dayton, Toledo and Cincinnati; up in Syracuse but down in Buffalo, N.Y.

"There's no answer, any more than a couple of years ago when it went up," said Joseph McCarthy, a homicide officer in Buffalo, where the murder rate dropped by nearly half.

In Miami, authorities said the increase in crime — blamed last year largely on the influx of Cuban refugees — has been heightened by economic conditions.

"With the unemployment, there's a lot of robberies — armed robberies — and a lot of people are killed in robbery attempts," John Jones, a Dade County spokesman, said.

In Houston, another fast-growing city which last year was second only to Miami in per capita murder rate, Police Chief B.K. Johnson said the 10 percent increase in homicides in 1981 "is a reflection of the society we live in. The more people you have conglomerate in an area, the more violence you will have."

Even in New Hampshire, where the murder total for the whole state was 25 in 1981 compared with 20 in 1980, authorities blamed the increase on population growth.

But in Los Angeles, where the 898 homicides last year represented an 8.5 percent drop from 1980, authorities said the decrease was due to better assignment of police officers.

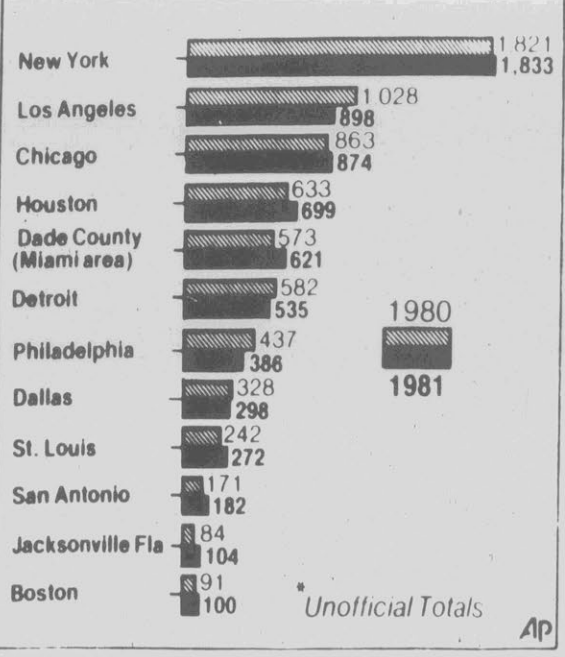

William Booth, spokesman for Los Angeles' police, said the department had increased the number of officers assigned to a program aimed at controlling street gangs which were responsible for one of five homicides in the city in 1979 and 1980.

In Cincinnati, police Detective Tom Burke said the city's 1981 murder decline was due to a new emphasis on suppression of drug trade, prostitution and liquor-law violations.

Murderers and their victims are relatives more than half the time, but Larry Gray, head of the San Francisco police homicide detail, said there is a growing trend toward violence in casual meetings involving prostitution, drugs — or a shove on a crowded bus.

TRAFFIC-BLOCKERS PEKING (AP) — Contortionists, magicians, minstrels and other street performers have been banned in Peking because they attract large crowds that block traffic, police say.

'Big Car' Sales Are Bucking Sales Slump Trend

By STEPHEN JONES
Associated Press Writer
DETROIT (AP) — Despite years of talk about the auto industry's move toward smaller cars, the only Ford Motor Co. factory building cars this week is turning out full-sized, luxury models.

While Ford's 18 other assembly plants in North America are closed to reduce inventories spawned by a sales slump, the plant in suburban Wixom keeps building Continentals, Lincolns and Mark VIs to meet a strengthening consumer demand for big cars.

"We have seen a strong surge in the large and luxury car segments" of the car market, J.E. Cappy, general marketing manager of Ford's Lincoln-Mercury division, said Monday.

"Those cars have reflected a great strength right through the model year."

It's happening at other automakers, too. At the end of November, full-sized and luxury models generally were in shortest supply while the manufacturers had huge backlogs of many compacts and subcompacts.

Ward's Automotive Reports, an industry journal, listed 24 compact and subcompact models, of which 15 had inventories of 90 days or more on Nov. 30. Only three were in shorter than 60-days' supply. Automakers generally prefer to keep a 60-day supply of cars on hand.

Of 18 full-sized and luxury car lines, only three had backlogs of more than 90 days and eight had inventories of fewer than 60 days.

"One theory is only the affluent can buy cars right now," said David Healy, an analyst for Drexel Burnham Lambert in New York.

But another reason may be that the gap in prices between big and little cars is shrinking. At the same time, gasoline prices are holding steady and the manufacturers have been able to improve the mileage on the larger models, making them more attractive.

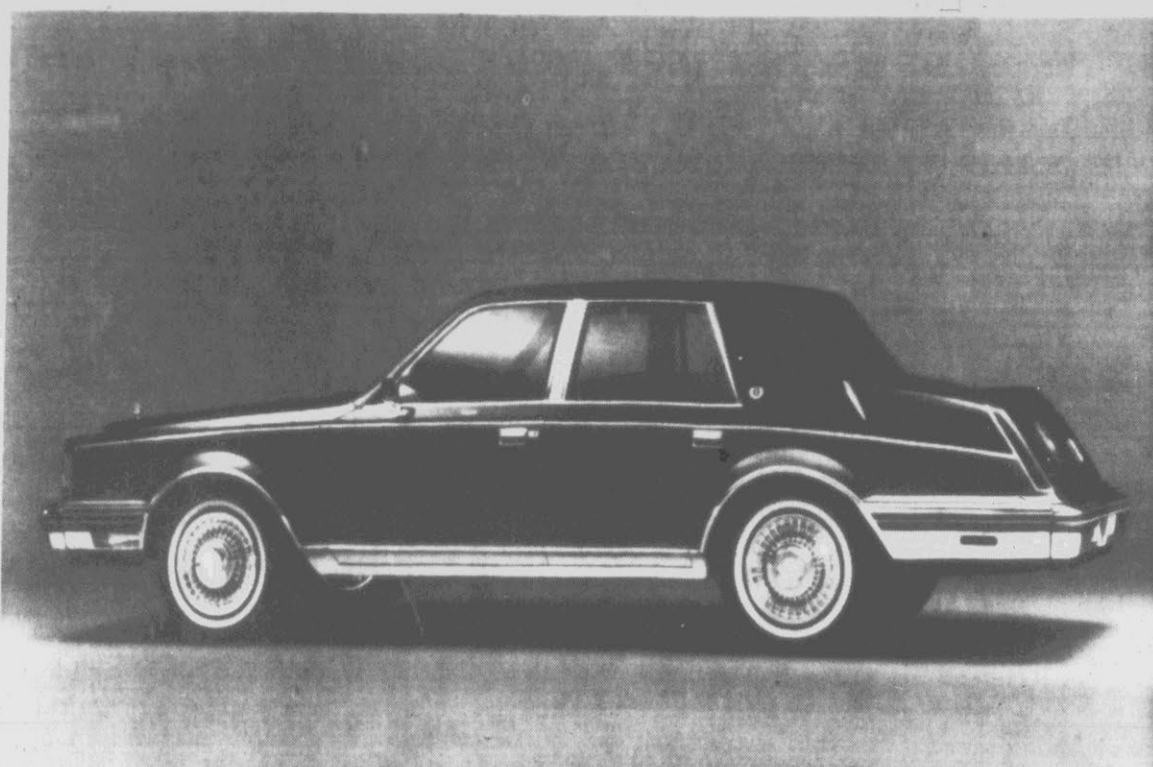

At General Motors Corp., only two of five divisions — Cadillac and Oldsmobile — sold more cars in the Jan. 1-Dec. 20 period of 1981 than they did in the same period a year earlier. For comparison, sales of Cadillacs increased 9.6 percent in 1981, while sales of compact Chevrolet Citations dropped 19.7.

At Oldsmobile, sales of Olds 98 and Olds 88 models rose 13.9 percent and 6.7 percent respectively, while compact Pontiac Phoenix and subcompact Chevrolet Chevette models slumped 16.7 percent and 7.1 percent.

At Ford, sales for full-sized models did fall from 1980 figures, but still fared better than their compact and subcompact counterparts.

Industrywide, 1981 car sales are off 4.9 percent through Dec. 20.

"There was always more demand (for big cars) than the sales showed," said John Stewart, GM marketing director. "When the initial panic (of 1973-74) was over, you got some of that reflected. The same is true now."

NOT A DINOSAUR — Large U.S. automobiles such as the 1982 Continental may be remnants of a past era, but as 1982 begins, big cars are showing more sales strength than smaller classes, automakers say. (AP Laserphoto)

Prices for new compacts and subcompacts have gone up more than the prices for the traditional larger models. Part of that increase is due to expensive new technology developed for the smaller cars, but automakers also have tried to squeeze more profit out of smaller cars, which now account for more than 60 percent of the total new car market. The result has been that the price gap has narrowed.

"You can buy a Chevy Caprice (full-sized) for about the same price as a Cavalier (subcompact)," Healy said. "Gasoline prices have really been flat for a year now and the prices of the new subcompacts are really pretty high."

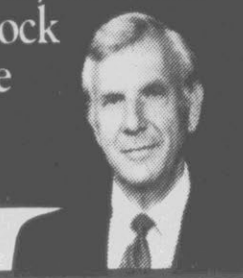

Gas guzzlers that used to get 10-12 miles per gallon now get 15-18 miles in the city and 24-26 in highway driving, Cappy said.

Arvid Jouppi, a Detroit-based analyst for Colin, Hochstin Co. of New York, says gasoline prices are sure to rise further, and it would be wrong to interpret the current trend as a return to large cars.

Cappy said automakers are unlikely to overemphasize large cars because they know the long-term trend is toward smaller ones.

"I don't think we'll be taken for the roller coaster ride that happened previously," he said.

Set Up An IRA At Planters And You Could Be Set For Life.

An Individual Retirement Account at Planters National Bank could be the financial opportunity of a lifetime. It lets you build an impressive fund for retirement. And it's an effective way to reduce your taxable income throughout your working years.

Write $4000 Right Off Your 1982 Taxable Income.

The money you deposit can be deducted right off the top of your taxable income. Individuals can contribute and write off up to $2000 a year. For working couples, the limit is $4000. And couples with a single income may contribute $2250 annually. Whatever your tax bracket, that adds up to a substantial tax savings over the course of your working life.

Write your IRA deposits right off the top of your taxable income.

Make Yourself A Millionaire By The Time You Retire.

Deposits to your IRA at Planters do more than reduce your tax burden right now. They earn daily compounded interest at Money Market rates. And, believe it or not, that can give you a retirement fund of more than a million dollars.

You can start with an initial deposit as small as $100. And make even smaller periodic deposits, if you choose.

For example, if you started investing $1200 a year ($100 each month) in an IRA at age 25, your account balance at age 65 would be $1,278,037. With that much money, you could withdraw $13,576 a month forever and never touch your million. (These figures are based on an estimated rate of 12%, compounded daily. This rate cannot be guaranteed.)

EXPLOSION AND FIRE — A propane explosion touched off a fire at Isaac Gradman Company's warehouse in Asheville, N.C. Tuesday afternoon, injuring the owner and sending three firefighters to the hospital for treatment of smoke inhalation. The fire broke out about 4 p.m. when a leaking propane tank exploded, giving owner Barney Gradman second-degree burns to the hands and face. The blaze was not extinguished until 9:30 p.m. (AP Laserphoto)

'Taps' Sure To Grip Audiences

Movies as well as any good art form should leave questions unanswered. In that light, "Taps" (now playing at Buccanier II in Greenville) is a good movie. Probably the question most often on the lips of those leaving the theater begins with "Why didn't they...?"

"Taps" is the story of a stand-off between a civilian government and the cadets of a military academy.

Brian Moreland, an Army brat who entered Bunker Hill Academy at the age of 12, has one year left before he graduates. He is promoted to cadet commander. At a dinner honoring Moreland and the officer he is replacing, Brian listens awestruck to Bunker Hill's Gen. Bache (George C. Scott) as he recalls a lifetime of military experiences that also began at age 12.

On graduation day, Gen. Bache announces the demise of the academy (victim of the condo craze), with only one year's reprieve. He vows to fight.

An accidental shooting puts Gen. Bache in the hospital and separates him from his charges. Meanwhile, a threat to close the academy immediately pits the summer school cadets against those decision makers. Without an adult leader Moreland takes charge.

How the situation escalates beyond their control tells us how most wars begin and asks us to consider how concepts of loyalty, honor and duty differ in the youthful vs. the seasoned military mind.

While talking to a delegation of parents, Brian is confronted by his father, a professional soldier. The father refers to the other parents as feather merchants, a World War II term that characterizes civilians as "chicken."

The role of the fanatical military mind is also examined. How volatile individuals who win accolades in battle are simply murderers in times that call for caution.

Is the unanswered question "Why didn't the two merely talk before shooting?" a political statement? In today's world shouldn't we cuss and discuss before act and react before there is no one left to play "Taps"?

George C. Scott is once again at his best as a slightly demented old soldier. His presence is felt even though he leaves the story early on.

Timothy Hutton gives a fine performance. He has a knack for letting you see what he is thinking. The young man was born to act.

Without a hint of love-interest, the movie holds your attention throughout and I think, one worth seeing.

Series Given Impressive Start

By TOM JORY
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — There are two positively chilling scenes in "A Portrait of Maya Angelou," the premiere installment Friday evening in Bill Moyers' new 17-part public TV series, "Creativity."

"I used to have to walk over here," the writer tells Moyers as the two stroll toward the railroad tracks that separate "the black part" of her hometown, Stamps, Ark., from the side where the white folks live. "I hated it. ... I had no protection there. ... There I would be all alone. I hated it, crossing those railroad tracks."

The two approach the tracks, Miss Angelou — pained, almost pleading — falling further and further behind her white companion. "Bill, I tell you, to show how much things don't change, I'm not even going to cross with you now. I'm not doing it for any reason other than I don't want to go across there, I really don't."

from a rack attached to his wheelchair. He's chatting with Miss Angelou, who is on her first visit to Stamps in 30 years.

"As they were demolishing ... changing the store around," he says, the general store that was Miss Angelou's home until she was 13 in the background, "I saw it ... some of your work."

"Oh, darling, God bless you," the now renowned poet and novelist says, clearly touched by the gesture. "I thought everything from my childhood was gone."

It's an impressive start to a remarkable series, which will continue with half-hour programs — after the 60-minute premiere — on a weekly basis through May 21. The last show in the series also is an hour long.

"Creativity" is a tough subject for TV to tackle, even for a man like Moyers, one of the medium's true clear-thinkers. He concedes up front there are "millions of words and hundreds of theories" on the subject, and that his effort encompasses only "17 programs and few theories."

"Creativity," in Moyers' concept, exemplifies rather than defines the process, in people — playwright Samson Raphaelson, filmmaker John Huston — and concept — the tomato, garbage, atmospheric research, absurd art.

As for the people, he says, "All of them try very hard, they find patterns where none seem to exist, they challenge assumptions, they take risks, they seize upon chance, and often collaborate with other creative people."

And there is something else about the people, Moyers says: "Some are extraordinary — but none so extraordinary" — and this is particularly important to the series — "that we might not see ourselves in them."

Moyers, who has since joined CBS News and a correspondent and commentator, convinced Miss Angelou to return to Stamps though, he says, "she didn't want to go back ... too many ghosts."

"The truth is," the writer says, once they are there, "you never can leave home ... you take it everywhere you go."

Later, she says, "I was terribly hurt in this town ... and vastly loved."

Miss Angelou tells Moyers she read every book in the town's public library. And there was Mrs. Flowers, she says, "the lady of Stamps," who read to the 8-year-old child who, at the time, could not speak. "I had had a ... difficulty ... in St. Louis when I was 7 and a half," she says.

"For the inner life to flourish," Moyers concludes — and it may be the most significant point to come from the first show — "everyone needs to be touched by someone. With Maya Angelou, it was a grandmother who loved her vastly, and a radiant black angel who read Dickens to a little girl not quite 8."

"They turned her suffering rage upward and brought the poet to life."

'Old Country' Auditions Here

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. — Greenville, N.C. is the first of 14 East Coast American cities where auditions will be held by talent scouts from "The Old Country," Busch Gardens, who will be looking for entertainment talent to fill more than 200 positions at the European-themed park during the 1982 season.

From 2 to 6 p.m. Jan. 13, talent scouts will be on hand at the A. J. Fletcher Recital Hall on the East Carolina University campus to conduct auditions.

Joseph Peczi, director of entertainment, and his staff will be searching for singers, dancers, musicians, variety artists and technicians to fill roles in Old Country's diverse live entertainment lineup. Talent is needed for Broadway-style shows, a new magic show and the park's Festhaus show. Instrumentalists are needed, as are variety artists for street shows, including costumed characters. In the technical area, people are needed as technicians, stage managers and supervisors.

In addition to performing at the park, The Old Country entertainers also make television appearances, perform at special events and appear in parades and shows. A select group is chosen to tour Europe and Iceland for the USO in the autumn months.

Another benefit for those chosen is that they can take advantage of free classes in all forms of dance, vocal instruction and instrumental arranging, as well as take part in a fully staged theatrical production produced by the employees.

Performers auditioning are to be at least 18 and available for full-time seasonal employment. Audition presentations should be limited to three minutes; however, performers should be prepared to present additional material on request.

Those auditioning will be served on a first-come, first-served basis in all the cities on the itinerary.

In addition to Greenville, auditions will be held at later dates. The schedule is: Jan. 14, Greensboro; Jan. 16, Williamsburg; Jan. 19, Blacksburg, Va.; Jan. 20, Harrisonburg, Va.; Jan. 21, Winchester, Va.; Jan. 23-24, Washington, D.C.; Jan. 25, Baltimore; Jan. 26-27, Philadelphia; Jan. 30, New York City; Feb. 1-2, Boston; Feb. 5, Pittsburgh; Feb. 7, Cincinnati; Feb. 9, Bloomington, Ind.; and Feb. 13-14, Williamsburg. Costume character auditions will be held at Busch Gardens on Feb. 20.

Offer Reward In

Consul's Death

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt announced a reward of up to $5,000 Tuesday for information leading to the arrest and conviction of persons responsible for the slaying of an honorary Finnish consul last Monday.

Kauno Lehto, 70, owner of the Wilmington Bonded Warehouse, was found beaten and robbed outside his business. Lehto died the next day at New Hanover Memorial Hospital.

Lehto was a native of Finland and served as honorary consul from Finland for both North Carolina and South Carolina.

Friends and relatives of Lehto have set up a fund to pay for the police investigation, but police said Tuesday they have no leads in the slaying.

Twelfth Night

What could be better than Christmas? Twelve days of Christmas, or so the people of the Middle Ages thought. As in the famous song, festivities and gift-giving began on December 25 and lasted almost two weeks, culminating on January 6 with the feast of the Epiphany or the Twelfth Night. Epiphany celebrated the adoration of the Three Wise Men. The festival often included "miracle" or "mystery" plays about religious subjects. Our modern theater eventually evolved from these early dramas. One descendent of these religious plays was probably first performed on this date in 1601. Aptly enough, William Shakespeare's comedy Twelfth Night depicted the revelry and merriment of festivities on that holiday.

DO YOU KNOW — Which English monarch is said to have attended the first show of Twelfth Night?
TUESDAY'S ANSWER — August is named after Caesar Augustus, the second emperor of Rome.

Retail Sales Up In October

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Retail sales rose 6.2 percent during October compared to the previous year, according to recent figures from the North Carolina Department of Revenue. The figures also show a 7.9 percent sales decline from September to October. October retail sales rose since last year because consumers held off buying towards the end of 1980, retailers said. This year, they said, buying was more constant all the way through the fourth quarter.

Declarer sluffed a diamond from his hand. He drew two rounds of trumps, then cashed the ace and king of diamonds. Next came a diamond ruff, and when both defenders followed, dummy's last diamond was established. Declarer crossed back to the table with a trump and discarded a club on the thirteenth diamond. He was happy to concede a club trick to the defenders.

Declarer lost only two heart tricks and a club. The combination of a holdup and an avoidance play allowed him to bring home his contract.

strength. He eventually settled for a cue-bid of the enemy suit—a slight exaggeration, but the least of evils. When South rebid his suit, North decided that his excellent trump holding made up for his square shape, so he went on to game.

West led the top of his heart sequence, and declarer was not thrilled with his chances. He had only nine sure winners, and the hope of finding East with the ace of clubs was slight because of West's overall. The diamond suit could be developed for an extra trick if the suit broke evenly, but that ran the risk of allowing East to gain the lead for a shift through the king of clubs and disaster.

Declarer found an ingenious way to keep East off lead. He allowed West to hold the king of hearts, and noted with interest that East followed with the two. West continued with a heart honor (no shift would have helped) and declarer ducked again! The third round of hearts was taken by the ace, as

Small City Buses Face Funds Loss

By H. JOSEF HEBERT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — While the largest cities expect to weather President Reagan's proposed elimination of mass transit operating funds, bus operators in many smaller metropolitan areas say they may be forced out of business within four years.

Reagan wants to end federal operating subsidies by the end of 1984, with phased reductions each year to then. Federal assistance, which totaled $1.1 billion last year, varies widely from city to city, with the smaller communities relying the most on help from Washington.

The transit industry says the average federal subsidy is 39 percent.

A new survey shows transit operators in 27 smaller cities, where the federal reliance is generally greater, believe there is a good chance they will be forced to halt services by 1985 if federal operating subsidies are phased out as Reagan proposes.

Two out of three other cities say they will have to cut operations each year because local funds would not be available and large fare increases will only drive customers away.

The survey by the American Public Transit Association covered 116 of the group's 300 members.

While saying responses show "a very bleak picture for public transit" overall, the study shows that transit officials in the nation's largest cities expect to survive by increasing fares and seeking additional local taxes.

But for communities of less than 500,000 people, the cuts could well mean an end to public transit, the study indicates. Transit officials in three communities — Huntington, W. Va.; St. Joseph, Mo.; and Moorehead, Minn. — said they believe they will have to end service without federal money.

The 24 communities that said they would have to seriously consider getting out of the mass transit system if federal operating funds are eliminated are:

Kent and Lima, Ohio; Allentown, Lancaster, Harrisburg and Scranton, Pa.; Bay City, Kalamazoo, Monroe and Jackson, Mich.; Waco, El Paso and Lubbock, Texas; Chattanooga and Knoxville, Tenn.; Owensboro, Ky.; Lowell, Mass.; Fond Du Lac, Wis.; Lafayette, Ind.; Stockton, Calif.; Little Rock, Ark.; Shreveport, La.; Peoria, Ill.; and a private system in the Jamaica section of New York City.

Despite pressures to increase fares and seek assistance from local and state governments, transit officials in smaller and medium-sized communities may have little choice but to halt operation, the industry survey concludes.

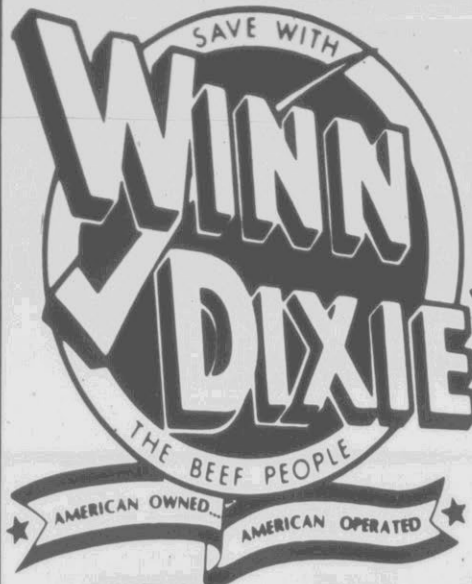

"The largest urbanized areas, over 1 million population, have a 4 percent possibility of ceasing operations, while the under 200,000 population urbanized areas, have the largest possibility at 39 percent," the study said.

The small communities are unable to keep passengers if fares are increased substantially because they rely heavily on poor and elderly customers, the survey says. Furthermore, "in an era of fiscal constraints and austerity, other fund sources cannot be relied upon."

Nevertheless, the survey discovered 89 percent of the transit officials said they expect to impose annual fare increases. 77 percent will push for additional local or state taxes and 67 percent conclude that despite such attempts service will have to be reduced each year.

More than half the transit systems queried said they are examining new forms of income they possibly could tap. At the top of the list were additional property taxes (considered by 25 percent), a gasoline tax (24 percent), payroll or earnings tax (21 percent), or some form of sales tax (20 percent).

Larger transit systems, such as those in Chicago and New York, do not contemplate a severe reduction in service because they normally rely least on federal help, their size gives them greater fare flexibility.

Mission Inn Has Found Varied Use

By DEBORAH BELGUM
Associated Press Writer
RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP)

When Madeline Lee comes up from the laundry room, it's not unusual for her to see a bride and groom running hand in hand down the corridor, or to see an actor come crashing through a hallway window.

It's all just part of the activity at the Mission Inn, a national historic monument that was on the threshold of extinction nearly five years ago, before a group of city officials banded together and paid $2 million for the monstrous edifice built in the early 1900s. Now it is part apartment complex, hotel, wedding sanctuary and movie location.

The Inn's guest register reads like a Who's Who. It lists Presidents McKinley, Theodore Roosevelt, Taft and Hoover, Richard Nixon and his bride Pat were married in the Presidential Suite, and President Reagan and second wife Nancy spent their first night there. Actor Humphrey Bogart was married in the St. Francis Chapel, as was Bette Davis.

The Mission Inn, while one of California's architectural gems, also is one of its architectural oddities. Its arches, belltowers, domes, secret passages and turrets ramble lazily over an entire city block. Sometimes referred to as California's other castle—the first being William Randolph Hearst's San Simeon up the coast—it looks like a sudden fit of madness overtook its owner while designing the Spanish-style structure.

After years of decline following World War II, the Riverside Redevelopment Agency has practically returned the Mission Inn to its former glory.

Currently, 48 hotel rooms are being refurbished, said acting manager Doug Shackleton. To keep revenues up, the management converted 135 hotel rooms or suites to apartments.

Playwright Neil Simon, known for his humorous plays that often take place in hotels, would have an abundance of material to work with if he visited the south wing, where the apartments are located.

"It's a real bohemian neat community," said Mrs. Lee, a real estate agent who decided to move to the inn five years ago after her children left home. "The age group is like 18 to 90 years old. We have every lifestyle, every color, every nationality, every occupation from unemployed to a doctor to a school teacher."

The apartments overlook an enormous garden crowded with large palm trees.

Mrs. Lee said apartment life at the inn is full of surprises. "They shoot movies here and it's hysterical."

A few years ago, in fact, a low-budget film took over the place for a week. "It was fun," she said. "They were filming at night. And they did some crazy things. They did a sword fight on the balcony. They put up a breakaway window and this guy jumped through it."

The most recent movie filmed at the Inn was "Buddy, Buddy" starring Jack Lemmon and Walter Matthau.

The residents have become inured to the number of weddings throughout the Mission Inn's gardens, patios and two chapels.

"You'll be going downstairs and somebody is bringing up a four-tier cake. You just open the door for them," said Mrs. Lee. "You'll be carrying your laundry and there's a bride and groom running down the hall. You'll be in your curlers and grubbies and everybody is dressed up in white tuxes as you're getting in the elevator from the grocery store."

The man responsible for the Inn was Frank Miller, whose father, a civil engineer who moved from Wisconsin to California in 1874. A year later, the family built a two-story adobe home, and later began taking in guests. Soon, they were adding wings to the building for more rooms.

Syria Takes Precautions For Terror

By NICOLAS B. TATRO
Associated Press Writer
DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) Barbed-wire barricades have sealed off streets near government buildings and the homes of top officials here, while security police guard most major intersections.

The unprecedented security measures were introduced to prevent fresh acts of terror in the wake of a car-bomb blast Nov. 29 which killed as many as 200 people in a residential area of Damascus.

President Hafez Assad has accused the underground Moslem Brotherhood of carrying out the bombing as part of its 2½-year campaign to oust the Socialist Baath Party leadership and create an Islamic republic.

Hundreds of government supporters and even larger numbers of urban guerrillas have been killed in terror attacks and government reprisals.

Information Minister Ahmed Iskandar Ahmed claimed in a talk with reporters in Damascus recently that the underground organization had been wiped out in Syria but that individuals continued to operate with the help of neighboring Jordan and Israel.

"The Moslem Brotherhood as an organization is finished in Syria," Iskandar said.

"But this does not stop instances of individuals coming from outside or even hiding inside Syria to make explosions or sabotage and our security measures are addressed to this problem."

The wave of bombings began last Aug. 17 when a truck with electric company markings was parked outside the Prime Ministry building and then exploded at the time the Cabinet had been scheduled to hold its weekly meeting. Other targets included a barracks of Soviet advisers and the Syrian air force building. More than 25 people were killed in the blasts.

These bombings coincided with a similar wave of explosions in Lebanon where Syria's army has a peacekeeping mandate from the Arab League. More than 200 people, including some Syrian soldiers, have been killed since last September in Lebanon.

Iskandar claimed Jordan was allowing Moslem Brotherhood members to "infiltrate" into Syria and that Israel also had a hand in helping the fundamentalists try to destabilize the Syrian regime.

"We firmly believe that the trail of killing that has taken place in Syria has a close relationship with our enemy. Nobody has an interest in weakening Syria except Israel and its allies," Iskandar added.

A Western diplomat, who declined to be identified, said, "Nobody thinks this will be the end of the bombings and it is certainly likely that there will be more." But he said it was doubtful that car bombs alone could bring down Assad's government.

A Palestinian official, who declined to be named, suggested, however, that if underground opponents continued to challenge the government by carrying out terror attacks "Syria might be forced to try and focus attention outside" its border.

If sufficiently threatened from within, he said, Syria might challenge the Israelis with military moves in South Lebanon especially in view of the tensions that arose over Israel's annexation last month of Syria's Golan Heights.

The Brotherhood itself remains inaccessible, with most of its better-known leaders in exile in Europe and its operations shrouded in secrecy since Syria's government last year made membership in the organization punishable by death.

Expect Rise In Leaf Exports

RÁLEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Increased production of flue-cured and burley tobacco in 1981 is expected to boost export sales in fiscal 1982, which began Oct. 1, officials say.

The U.S. burley crop was the largest since 1963 and is in strong demand because of short supplies worldwide.

Panic Among Turks Over Savings

BY MITHAT SIRMAN
Associated Press Writer
ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — The collapse of a group of lending and investment offices has touched off a panic among savers in Turkey. Police have arrested 14 financiers and are seeking others involved.

While more than 30 investment bureau owners are reported by newspapers to have fled the country and one has committed suicide, long lines of desperate savers have been forming outside other companies' offices as investors hope to withdraw their money.

Recently an angry crowd rushed the Ankara office of financier Yalcin Dogan demanding their money back. Failing to find him, they tore his office apart while some tried to set fire to the building.

Financier Servet Acar jumped from the bridge into the Bosphorus Strait in Istanbul in November, police reported. His body was found two weeks later near a coastal town on the Marmara Sea.

His friends said Acar owed more than 300 million Turkish liras ($2.5 million) to his clients and to trading companies. His secretary told reporters he was terribly depressed and desperate.

Following a law setting free interest rates in June, 1980, three months before the military takeover of Turkey, investment bureaus — money lending and borrowing institutions under private or corporate ownership — flourished. Many of them were not properly licensed.

"A hundred percent interest gives you a lifelong rest," said one slogan in an extensive advertising campaign.

Although early in 1981 major Turkish banks signed a gentlemen's agreement setting a ceiling of 50 percent interest on time deposits, thousands of middle-class investors were attracted by less scrupulous financiers offering 50 percent to 120 percent.

"A large number of them were not reliable financiers," said a high-level official from the Finance Ministry who asked not to be identified. "They were usurers and inflicted great damage to serious finance organizations."

"I gave nearly all my savings, around 600,000 Turkish liras ($4,600), to a financier," said retired schoolteacher Cevdet Soydan. "Now he has vanished without paying me anything."

"Financier" is a new word in the Turkish monetary system. In the Turkish sense it describes an investment adviser who funnels clients' deposits into high-profit companies.

After the military took power in September 1980, Turkey appeared headed for an economic recovery. Inflation was slashed to 38 percent from more than 100 percent a year earlier, productivity jumped dramatically and the value of exports in 1981 was nearly double the 1980 level.

But wages did not keep pace with inflation. With both husband and wife working, the average 1... family of four has a monthly spendable income the equivalent of about $300.

This was a major factor in the success of the financiers. By official estimate, 130 billion Turkish liras ($1 billion) had been deposited by mid-December. Some families ever sold their family gold pieces, traditionally given to newlyweds, in the hope of adding the investment interest to their salaries.

Finance Minister Kaya Erdem said in an interview, "People gambled and unfortunately lost." Countering criticism of the government, he noted he had warned people earlier in the year not to deposit their savings in "adventurous" financing organizations.

The Turkish government has since issued new regulations including tough measures for control of investment advisers.
