Second Thoughts

By OWEN ULLMANN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - Facing opposition from business and some congressional Republicans, President Reagan is re-considering plans to raise excise taxes on consumer goods but still is expected to seek some kind of higher taxes in his 1983 budget plan, administration officials say.

Reagan expressed "second thoughts" Thursday about an earlier decision to press for higher excise taxes after a delegation from the U.S. Chamber of Commerce told him it would oppose such a plan, White House aides said.

One administration official said Reagan postponed a final decision on taxes until next Tuesday, when he is to deliver his State of the Union message to Congress. In the interim, the president will mull over whether to include higher excise taxes in his budget proposals.

Another official, however, said Reagan appeared "to totally reject any new excise taxes." The officials requested anonymity.

On Wednesday, several officials said Reagan had agreed tentatively to seek higher excise taxes on cigarettes, liquor, wine and some luxury goods, but rejected a tax increase on beer and was undecided about raising taxes on gasoline. House Republican Leader Bob Michel of Illinois had strongly opposed raising beer taxes, saying the move would hit the average "working man."

Reagan also agreed Wednesday to propose a narrowing of several tax "loopholes," aides said. Altogether, the tax proposals would have raised about $15 billion and enabled the president to hold the projected deficit for fiscal 1983 to about $75 billion, they said.

Officials said Thursday that Reagan still was expected to seek a number of loophole closings when he submits his budget to Congress Feb. 8.

The officials declined to estimate how much the final tax package might be worth in added revenues.

Reagan remains the "lone holdout" in the White House against higher taxes, even though all his senior economic advisers say additional revenues are needed to hold the deficit under $100 billion, one official said.

Aides said Reagan has been reluctant to propose tax increases only months after pushing the largest tax cut in history through Congress. His reluctance has been hardened by steady pressure from some congressional Republicans and business groups to reject higher taxes in any form.

Reagan is said to fear that any move to seek higher taxes would be interpreted as a sign his economic program of spending and tax cuts was not working.

"There are so many pressures and conflicts involved," one official said. "There are particularly a lot of political problems with excise taxes, which makes things very, very dicey."

"There are some ideas he is very reluctant to yield on - namely his abhorrence of taxes and the negative way they affect the economy."

Gov. Hunt Seeks High Court Ruling

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) - Gov. Jim Hunt and legislative leaders have agreed to let the state Supreme Court resolve a disagreement between them involving authority over budgetary matters.

Hunt said the decisions would have historical importance in clarifying the separation of powers but no significant impact as a practical matter. "I think this will sort of be a blip on the screen," Hunt said.

"I think it will be seen as a major point at which the separation of powers doctrine was made clear," he added later. "Maybe we haven't focused on those as much as perhaps we should have."

On other topics at his news conference, Hunt said state officials are searching for ways to soften the blow of office closings forced on the Employment Security Commission by federal budget cuts.

branches, but Hunt said in a news conference Thursday he did not view the issues as part of a move by legislators to erode his power.

Charles Asbell Jr., 32-year-old certified public accountant here, is the 1981 recipient of the Greenville Jaycees' Distinguished Service Award, the chapter's highest honor.

Asbell, a partner in the CPA firm of Farley, Prescott, Mizelle & Co. Inc., received the service award Thursday night during the Jaycees' 36th annual DSA and Bosses Night banquet. This year's event was held at the Casablanca.

C. Frank Dail, president of Tadlock Insurance Agency on Evans Mall, was honored as the recipient of the 1981 Boss of the Year Award, given annually to a Jaycee employer who has supported the work of the organization through his employee. Dail was nominated by Doug Hill of the Tadlock Agency.

Guest speaker for the dinner gathering was Dr. John Howell, who was named recently as interim chancellor at East Carolina University.

Asbell, a Chowan County native, received a bachelor's in business administration in 1971 from ECU and served as president of the Accounting Society at the university for 1970-71. He was a member of Phi Sigma Pi honor fraternity.

The recipient, it was pointed out Thursday night, serves on the executive board of the Coastal Plains Chapter of the March of Dimes, has done volunteer solicitation work for the Pitt County United Way, and for several years has volunteered his services monthly to aid the Bonner's Lane Day Care Center in budget and financial matters.

Asbell has been a member of the Jaycees since 1971, serving terms as director, treasurer, assistant state chairman for the Boys' Home Game, and chaplain, his current post. He was selected Jaycee of the Month last August.

He is a member of the N.C. Association of Certified Public Accountants and the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants. He is also a member of the University-City Kiwanis Club and the Greenville Moose Lodge.

Asbell and his wife, Linda, have two children, Joey and Anna, and attend Immanuel Baptist Church.

In nominating his boss, Hill pointed out that Dail "has spent the last 35 years in the

Candidate For School Board

George E. Williams, a faculty member at East Carolina University, filed Thursday as a candidate for the city Board of Education.

Williams will seek one of three seats on the board that will be filled in the May 4 elections.

A Camden County native, Williams graduated from Camden County High School and received a B.S. undergraduate degree, a Master of Arts and Education graduate degree, and E.D.S. specialist degree in school administration, all from East Carolina University. He received the latter degree this past summer.

The candidate is a member of the faculty in the department of Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Safety at ECU, having served at the university since moving to Greenville in 1966.

He was on the university's baseball coaching staff for 10 years, including three years as head coach.

Williams, who is seeking his first elected office, is married to the former Alice Chaffin of Camden County and they have two sons, Mike, a student at ECU, and Roger, a senior at Rose High School. Both sons attended city schools.

Williams is a member of Immanuel Baptist Church.

Resigned Over Split Districts

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) - Legislative leaders were to discuss North Carolina's redistricting dilemma with federal officials in Washington today in the wake of the Justice Department's rejection of a plan for state House seat district realignment.

Meanwhile, a special General Assembly session on redistricting was scheduled for Feb. 9 and some lawmakers admitted that dividing some counties might be the only way to resolve the issue.

"We probably will be crossing county lines. We will be drawing single-member districts," said Rep. Dan Lilley, house redistricting committee chairman. "We're not surprised at all (by the rejection). But we'll get our act together now."

The federal government rejected North Carolina's reapportionment plan for state House seats Thursday, saying the use of large, multiple-member districts reduced black voting strength in some areas.

The decision marked the third time Justice Department officials have rejected a North Carolina plan under the 1965 voting rights act, which covers 40 of the state's 100 counties. In December the department rejected maps for congressional and state Senate districts.

Lilley said House and Senate leaders planned to meet again next week to set a timetable for committee meetings - to draw up new redistricting plans for House, Senate and congressional seats - before the session.

Legislators were also expected to delay the May 4 primary and reschedule the filing period for legislative and congressional candidates, now set to open Feb. 15.

Officers Installed By Mental Health Ass'n

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

Individuals and organizations were honored and new officers installed Thursday night at the annual dinner meeting of the Mental Health Association in Pitt County held at the Casablanca Restaurant.

Charles Ross, director of education, Greenville City Schools, was installed as the 1982 president of the association, succeeding Mrs. Terry Shank, a staff member at Pitt Community College.

"I ask you to share with me the commitment to share, to care," Ross said after accepting the gavel as new president. "Life is beautiful when you live it for others." Ross asked all those present to continue their dedication to the association's role so that the Pitt County association might continue to be the state leader in efforts to help all who have problems when sharing and caring are vital.

Other officers installed at the annual meeting were: Lauretta Lewis, president elect; Mrs. Jack Dail, secretary; Mrs. Michael Kachmer, treasurer; Dr. Frank G. Fuller, assistant treasurer; and Mrs. Richard Stallings, chapter delegate. As outgoing president, Mrs. Shank is serving this year as member-at-large.

Guest speaker at the event was Dr. Austin Connors of the Governor's Office of Citizen Affairs. Connors focused on the attributes characteristic of all those in Pitt County who serve as volunteers in the association's work. "You are a confident group, ready to help people in need, to help them solve their problems because you've solved your own."

"You are people who can listen, hear the sounds of pain, anger, hurt, frustration that come from people with their complex problems," Connors said.

"The bottom line is that you are volunteers, people who do things because you care. You recreate yourselves and create a new balance in your own lives as you help others."

Connors noted that people working in the Mental Health Association follow in the tradition of American volunteerism. "From our earliest pioneers down to today, volunteers have founded schools, hospitals, led causes. They have been and continue to be the people who know and share the problems of youth, of age, who are aware of pain, of joy, of confidence and of liberation."

Congratulating the Pitt County chapter as the one named in 1981 as the outstanding chapter in North Carolina, Connors concluded his remarks by saying "you have demonstrated that you are willing to work with people, to make a difference in their lives. I can tell you have a deep joy in what you're doing, that you are concerned about what is right, fair and just."

In brief remarks summing up her year as president, Mrs. Shank said, "It has been a rewarding year, one that I shall always treasure. I leave you having received enrichment from you."

A number of awards were presented. Nancy Smith, native of Jacksonville and a graduate student at East Carolina University majoring in psychology, received the David W. Hardee Scholarship.

Cooking Is Fun
By CECILY BROWNSTONE
AP Food Editor
In summer discriminating cooks are apt to use fresh fruit sauces for ice cream. In winter, sauces for ice cream usually change. Then many of us favor chocolate or fudge, butterscotch or caramel, maple syrup with toasted walnuts. But recently, leafing through a dessert cookbook published in 1923, I discovered a recipe for a winter-style ice cream

Card Senders Should Be Identified

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1982 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: You could do a lot of people a favor if you would remind those who send Christmas cards to include their first and last names, or some other kind of identification, so the recipient will know who sent it. Believe it or not, most cards don't have a return address!

Instead of bringing joyous greetings, a card signed "Helen and Jim" or "John and Cathy" brings only frustration when the recipient can't figure out who these people are.

In days gone by, one might puzzle out the identities by looking at the postmark, but with our high-priced, super Postal Service, there is either no postmark or an unfamiliar postmark of a central sorting system, which sheds no light on where it was mailed.

Frankly, I'd rather get no card than get one from an unidentifiable sender.

JOHN W. IN ATTLEBORO, MASS.

DEAR JOHN: Hear, hear! And especially these days when it costs a dollar to say Merry Christmas to five friends.

DEAR ABBY: There is a tremendous need to educate the public, and I can think of no better way than through your column.

Most Americans think cirrhosis of the liver is a disease of alcoholics and hepatitis is a disease of drug addicts. Not true!

Abby, please inform your readers that even infants and children can develop cirrhosis. Everything we eat, breathe and absorb through our skin is refined in the liver, the most overworked and least understood organ in our body.

Fifty-thousand infants, children and adults die every year from liver diseases. Even babies die of cirrhosis, and half of the hepatitis cases are among children and teen-agers.

The American Liver Foundation is launching a national campaign to help prevent liver diseases — the fourth-leading cause of death up to the age of 65.

We will be glad to send, free of charge, the latest information about liver diseases to anyone who sends a self-addressed, stamped envelope to: The American Liver Foundation, 30 Sunrise Terrace, Cedar Grove, N.J. 07009.

Thank you, Abby, for the concern you have shown for the health of our nation.

THELMA K. THIEL, EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

DEAR MS. THIEL: You have done my readers a service by writing to me. I'm happy to help.

DEAR ABBY: This is to commend "Mom" for forcing her 9-year-old son to return the candy bar he had stolen from the market, apologize to the manager and promise never to do it again. However, I think Mom should have reported the manager's behavior to his or her superior. (The manager said to the young shoplifter, "Oh, that's OK; it's no big deal. We have people carry out about $100 worth of stuff every day.")

Given the attitude of a large percentage of today's employees, which is to soak the employer at every opportunity, it seems reasonable to believe that a lot of losses attributed to shoplifters are actually "inside jobs" — that is, merchandise going out the back door with employees.

In any event, that store manager should have been censured for minimizing the crime of stealing.

F.G.T., WALLA WALLA, WASH.

DEAR F.G.T.: I agree. One of the reasons stealing has become epidemic in our society is the "no big deal" attitude that prevails.

DEAR ABBY: In regard to the letter from "D. in Big D": I think the "D." in his or her name must stand for "Dummy."

Many times I have clipped out the reprints rather than the original article because I felt that the article was more relevant to my life when it appeared as a reprint than as a first-run article. Keep running the reprints, Abby. I may be only 13, but I appreciate them more than some adults. And they say the nation's youth is going down the drain. Ha!

YOUNGER AND WISER

sauce I had never before come upon. It was called, amusingly enough, "Chop Suey Sauce." Why the name? After trying the recipe, the light dawned. The raisins, figs and nuts in the sauce make it an attractive brown color similar to light soy sauce. When then did chop suey come into its own? When did it first appear in Fannie Farmer? After going through the first few editions of that estimable Boston cookbook, I found the recipe for chop suey was included for the first time in the 1923 printing. Cooks must indeed have taken chop suey to their hearts in the 1920s. Now I'm thinking of reviving the nomenclature. How about a Chop Suey Cake?

CHOP SUEY SAUCE
1/2 cup chopped (medium-fine) raisins
1/2 cup chopped (medium-fine) dried figs
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 cup water
Your choice of nuts: cashews, macadamias, toasted slivered almonds or toasted walnuts

In a 1-quart saucepan over low heat stir together the raisins, figs, sugar and water until the sugar dissolves. Simmer without stirring for about 10 minutes.

Makes about 1 1/4 cups. Chill. Just before serving, stir in 1/2 cup finely cut nuts; or pass a bowl of the nuts.

Inflation Rate Increase Is Lowest In Four Years

WASHINGTON (AP) — Inflation rose 8.9 percent last year, the smallest increase in four years, the government said today. Analysts said the recession was largely responsible for the tumble from 1980's 12.4 percent.

Inflation ended 1981 with a 0.4 percent increase in December, about the same as in the previous two months, the Labor Department said.

Mortgage interest rates declined in December for the first time since September 1980, but housing prices picked up slightly after falling in November.

The overall improvement in inflation also was reflected in the Labor Department's report last week that inflation, as measured at the wholesale level, rose 7 percent last year, also the slowest rise since 1977.

The Consumer Price Index released today checks costs for a broader range of items than does the wholesale survey.

The 8.9 percent climb in the CPI for 1981 was also well below the 13.3 percent of 1979. The index rose 9 percent in 1978 and 6.8 percent in 1977.

"All major categories of consumer spending except medical care registered smaller increases in 1981 than in 1980," the department's report said.

A sharp fall in food price increases and moderating transportation and housing price increases "were largely responsible for the slowdown in the overall CPI," the department said.

For the year, food prices rose 4.3 percent, off from the 10.1 percent jump of 1980; transportation prices rose 11 percent, down from 14.7 percent in the preceding year; housing prices rose 10.2 percent, down from the 13.7 percent rise of 1980.

But medical care costs climbed 12.5 percent, up from the 10 percent jump of the previous year. Entertainment costs were up 7.2 percent.

The overall improvement for 1981 was helped by the seasonally adjusted 0.4 advance in December, which would be 5.2 percent if the rate persisted for 12 straight months, department officials said.

The department calculates its annual extrapolation of the monthly rate from a more precise monthly calculation than the number it releases.

For December, the department reported these consumer price trends:

—Food prices, including the costs of dining out and supermarket buying, were up 0.5 percent after rising 0.2 percent in each of the two previous months. Grocery costs were up 0.5 percent, up from the unchanged figure for November. Meats, poultry, fish and eggs were up after falling in November.

—Overall housing costs were up 0.4 percent, the same as in November. Mortgage interest rates fell 0.1 percent, offsetting a similar rise in house sale prices, which had fallen 0.8 percent in November. Fuel oil prices rose 0.9 percent last month, following a moderate rise in November and declines in the preceding seven months. Gas and electricity costs were up 0.4 percent.

—Transportation costs gained 0.4 percent, below the 0.8 percent advance in November. New car prices were up 0.7 percent after a smaller increase in November and a decline in October. Prices for used cars rose sharply, while gasoline prices were unchanged.

—Medical care costs rose 0.8 percent, the smallest rise since the 0.6 percent of December 1980. Hospital room charges rose 0.9 percent in December, much less than the 2.5 percent advance of the previous month.

—Apparel costs were up 0.1 percent, after a 0.2 percent fall in November.

—Entertainment costs rose 0.1 percent, the smallest change in more than three years.

All the CPI figures are adjusted for seasonal variations.

The report said the unadjusted consumer price index rose to 281.5 in December, meaning that goods and services costing $10 in 1967 would have cost $28.15 last month.

Rainy Day Is Brightest

So far January has been cold, wet and miserable for the most part. Only a couple of weeks back, however, we were talking about drought conditions in Pitt County.

Then Hugh Wilder, assistant district chief of the water resources division of the U. S. Geological survey, said Pitt County needed some 10 inches of rain before the first of April.

Ground water was about 2-3 feet below normal for January. That was a 500 to 100 million gallon per square miles deficit.

Things are changing due to the snow, ice and rainfall of recent days. Now Wilder says he is more optimistic than he has been in 18 months.

"For the first time, I think I see us in a position that a normal amount of precipitation over the next few months will restore us very nearly to normal conditions."

Water levels have risen about six inches in the Piedmont and in the Coastal Plains they are moving rapidly to normal levels. The state is not out of the woods yet in its water needs. We will need average or above average rainfall for a continuing period of time.

It is difficult to think of drought conditions when regular rainfalls are coming, but it was a dry summer and fall for our area and we were steadily falling behind in needed precipitation. In fact precipitation has been below normal for two years. If the rains don't come during the winter months, the crops take up the rain that falls once planting begins.

It may seem like a dreary and wet winter as one low pressure follows another, but we are making up for lack of rainfall in the past. It could be that a dreary, rainy day is the brightest kind of day we can possibly have at this time.

Jaycees Are Appreciated

It is altogether fitting the U.S. Jaycees should celebrate a week of their own. It isn't exactly a birthday party, it isn't exactly a week of thanksgiving for the blessings of the past year or a case of letting off steam before buckling down to another year of serving their hometowns; one might call it just a nice "mix".

If some horn-tooting is involved, so be it. We've all heard the saying "he who tooteth not his own horn will not have it tooted"; and everybody is familiar with "all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy"...they are not a dull crowd.

They do comprise the cream of the crop; and in Greenville the Jaycee members represent future leadership in our business and professional community. They are individually building toward the future in their careers with a very solid foundation of community service which will shape their lives in the years to come. More importantly, their attitudes toward a personal role in the civic life of a community constitute citizenship on an ideal scale.

We join in congratulating the Jaycees of yesterday, today and tomorrow.

THIS AFTERNOON

It's Nothing New

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — The Supreme Court of North Carolina has not told members of the General Assembly anything new. The legislators have heard it before, time and again.

Extending the legislative grasp for power and decision making into the numerous boards and commissions of state government which make policy and oversee day-to-day routines of the agencies treads upon the constitutional doctrine of keeping the legislative and executive branches of the government separate and apart.

The question is whether the General Assembly will move with dispatch to correct the situation. The answer which most insiders predict is that the action will come grudgingly and slowly, if at all.

It is not as if legislators are surprised by the ruling. They have been told by numbers of newspaper columns and reports. They have been told by the Sunset Commission, which they decided to kill off. They have been told by research reports from several different independent sources.

No Reform

They have even been told by members of the General Assembly itself, even to the point that legislation was introduced which would have barred members of the General Assembly from sitting on the policy boards. The board failed. The practice has become standard to set up a board or commission to run a specific program, and to require that membership on the policy full knowledge and prior agreement of those who will make the appointments so that they wind up serving on the policy board.

Forewarned from numerous places that this practice did not appear proper, it continued apace.

Until a citizen brought a lawsuit, nothing happened. Now, the Supreme Court has ruled, only in the particular case involving the Environmental Management Commission. To bring about change involuntarily would require a series of lawsuits

Other Editors Say Second Opinion

(Greensboro Record)

We're glad Dayne H. Brown, North Carolina's chief of Radioactive Services, wants to know more about the Navy's plan to scuttle some radioactive nuclear submarines off the Tar Heel coast.

Finding out more about plans like that is his job, we would think. And in this instance we hope he quickly finds out all he can and shares it with us. After all, his fellow North Carolinians are pretty interested, too.

The Navy wants to sink five decommissioned nuclear submarines in the ocean off the coasts of North Carolina and California. The dumping ground off the North Carolina coast would be off Cape Hatteras some 200 miles at sea.

The California legislature already is said to be considering a resolution asking President Reagan to ban all radioactive dumping in the Pacific. Perhaps the North Carolina legislature ought to do the same for the Atlantic. Maybe it will when Mr. Brown finds out the answers to some questions.

Although our knowledge of radioactivity is limited, there are some basic questions Mr. Brown might ask: How many subs would be dumped now and how many more ships would be dumped later?

What is the concentration of radioactivity? How long will it take for the radioactive substances aboard these ships to decay? What will be the exact location of the dumping site? Is there a better location? Why not further out into the ocean? How would this radioactivity affect sea life in the area? Would it affect seafood that people will be eating?

The questions could — and should — go on and on. After all, considering that Uranium-235, the fissionable isotope used for creating atomic energy, has a half-life of 0.7 billion years, this radioactivity could be with us for awhile.

Strength For Today

GAMBLING

Gambling has sometimes been described as getting something for nothing. In the long run it is precisely the opposite; it consists in getting nothing for something.

Someone has called gambling the child of avarice and the parent of prodigality. Old Ben Franklin urged his readers as they would keep flax from the fire, so they should keep youth from gambling. And the observation has sometimes been made that the best throw of the dice is to throw them away.

It is inconceivable that although everyone knows that the odds at the great gambling casinos are rigged against the players, still people by the thousands keep on throwing their money away in the delicious hope that some day they will strike the jackpot. Now and again a person wins big on a sweepstakes ticket; but where one wins, thousands lose.

Gambling, like so many other vices, can become a compulsive, destructive habit. There's only one way to win: avoid it. — Elisha Douglass

DOESN'T EVERYTHING?

Ronnie Rated Just A C

The Los Angeles Times and Cable News TV have just held a nationwide poll and asked 1,500 people to give Ronald Reagan a report card on his first year as President. They gave him a C-plus.

In a similar report card in April, after his first 100 days, Reagan got a B.

As one of Ronnie's proud parents, I was very upset that he was falling back in his grades, so I went to see his teacher.

She told me that despite the C-plus, Ronnie was still one of her favorite pupils, and got along well with all the students, and was well liked by 70 percent of his class.

"I'm sure he did get a C-plus," I asked angrily.

"His mind seems to wander lately. Frankly I think he's in a recession."

"Is he doing all right in his required subjects?" I asked.

"He communicates very well, but his big weakness is mathematics and that's bringing down his grade average. He doesn't seem to know the difference between 6 percent and 9 percent unemployment."

"That's funny," I said. "Last year he seemed excellent in quoting statistics, and what he intended to do with them."

"That may have been last year. But now his figures never seem to add up. We had a simple test last week. We asked all the students to put down what the government was going to spend in 1983 and how much it expected to collect in taxes to balance that figure and Ronnie was off by $50 billion."

"Adding and subtracting was never Ronnie's strong suit," I said. "That's why we sent him to the Kemp-Roth Supply Side School of Economics."

"That may explain it," the teacher said. "The Kemp-Roth Supply Side School of Economics isn't even an accredited institution. It's made up of a bunch of radical dreamers who believe the less money people pay in taxes, the more money they will have to spend, which will create jobs, which will eventually balance the budget. They ignore such things as interest rates, inflation and defense spending. But the worst thing of all is they let the pupils make up their own figures. No matter what numbers they come up with no professor ever checks them."

"Ronnie was very happy at the Supply Side School," I said. "He even won his Trojan Horse Letter for football there."

From the Jan. 15 HOTLINE, it would appear that there are local citizens concerned about how to strengthen the public's defense against drunk drivers.

The Pitt County Council on Alcoholism represents one way lay citizens might become involved in many of the issues of alcoholism at the local level.

Meetings of the council are held at the Red Oak Christian Church at 7:30 p.m. on the last Monday of each month. Those interested are cordially invited to attend our next meeting on Jan. 25.

Updating Of Old Rhymes

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent
RIDGEFIELD, Conn.

(AP) — A gaggle of matronly Geese has flocked to the AP mail room since we called on readers to update the old nursery rhymes in tune to the mad music of these parlous times.

The originals, we pointed out, were political satires on royal and religious personages, so an update of the material was quite in order to deal contemptuously with contemporary issues.

More than 700 poets at large set about rehashing Mother Goose, letting the feathers fly over crime, welfare, Reaganomics, drug abuse, acid rain, inflation, the environment, prayers in school, AWACs for the Saudis and whatever else was bugging them.

Take a gander at this sampling:

"James Watt could bid no lot
Of trees nor canyon scene.
Along with big EXXON,
He swept the planet clean."
Jim Lafky, Hokah, Minn.

"President Ronald Reagan
Runs through the town,
Looking for Senators
To help him win a round.
Peering in the cloakroom,
Pleading with the flacks.
'Won't somebody help me
Give the Saudis their AWACs?'"
Lynn Foltz, Wilmington, Del.

"Once there was a little boy
Who wouldn't say his prayers.
So I took him off to public school
Where the courts upheld the rule
That God should be thrown out by O'Hare."
—Gloria Heidorf, Sheboygan, Wis.

"Sing song of six packs,
Your teen-aged kids are high;
Pour and 20 grams of smack
Packed in a pie.
When the vice squad samples
The pie that's on that plate,
Won't that be a dandy dish
To show the magistrate?"
—Roderick Moore, Milton, Pa.

"Hey diddle, diddle! The cat and the fiddle.
The cow jumped over the moon.
Now mind,
That's one small leap for a cow,
'tis true,
But a giant leap for cow-kind."
—George R. Bauer, University of Wisconsin (Green Bay) Library

cube today."
—Jeannine Jelinek

"Sing a song of sixpence,
Congress has gone awry,
Four and 20 AWAC's,
Ready to fly.
When the votes were taken,
The hawks had won the day.
Wasn't it too bad that
Ronnie Reagan got his way?
Reagan was in the Oval
Office, counting up the votes,
Nancy was in the dining room, writing china notes."
—Rebecca Steps.

The appeal of Mother Goose is everywhere and to all ages.

From Juneau, Alaska, N. Keown offers:
"Mary had a little lamb
Its fleece was white as snow.
No need to clip its wool this year,
Synthetics steal the show."
And from Ogden, Utah, 83-year-old Merriam Romander revisits the nursery and comes up with:
"Jack Spratt
Could eat no fat.
His wife could eat no lean
They nicknamed her Chol-Esterol
And called him Old String Bean."

A number of readers saw no rhyme or reason to the way the courts handled crime and vented their indignation in verse. Among them, Phyllis Gears of Wilmington, Del.:

"Peter White will ne'er go right;
Would you know the reason why?
The courts are too slow,
The punishment's low
He's got a good lawyer
And now you know."
Jean McKown, of Malta, Ohio, a winner in our first "Do It Yourself With A Bare Bodkin" contest to render Shakespeare more trendy, proved equally adept at skewering Mother Goose, although she pleads that the following "does not necessarily reflect the writer's political views":

"Little Ronald Reagan
Sat upon a rail.
Niggle-Naggle was his speech,
Wishy-Washy was his tale."

Among hundreds of others deserving of the fragile fame that "Mulligan's Stew" confers, we regret we can only find room for two more:

"As I was going to St. Ives,
I met a man with seven wives.
Each wife had seven kids,
They said,
Begged welfare checks for board and bed.
Kept scads of cats with many kits,
Such tender hearts sure strained my wits.
Wives and kids, cats and kits,
How many asked for hand-outs?
Not I, Oh, my!
—Ella Halfman, Liberal, Kan.

"Hey, diddle, diddle,
The cat with the fiddle
Was booked into Carnegie Hall.
He played rock and jazz
With so much pizzazz
He was held over till fall."
—Frances Trunk, Easton, Pa.

Problems A Result Of Success

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Can success in one area cause problems in another? It might, if you're talking about President Reagan's economic program.

One of his obvious successes has been in spreading the word about the dangers of overspending. People listened, and have been cutting back on purchases and raising their savings rate over the past few months.

High interest rates also have played a big role in discouraging people from buying, but there seems little doubt either that Reagan's ideas on government budgets have been applied by to household budgets too.

And perhaps to corporate matters as well. Recent government reports indicate no surge in capital spending this year in spite of tax incentives aimed at stimulating such investments. And that means of course a setback of Reagan's hopes to make industry more productive.

As seen by Richard Nenneman, investment strategist for the Girard Bank trust department, Reagan's goals individually and eventually are achievable. But, he observes, "it seems fairly clear that ... the pieces do not add up to a coherent whole within the same time frame."

In view of Washington's resolve to turn over responsibilities to the private sector while simultaneously cutting assistance to it, there seems to be a message of hope in this financial presentation.

"The total return on our investment in 1980-1981 and over the past five years significantly outperformed the market and outpaced inflation," announced the president of a private sector enterprise.

The organization, he said, realized an 87 percent return on its common stocks during the five fiscal years 1977 to 1981, far above the 61 percent return reported for the Standard & Poor's 500-stock index, and double the 44 percent inflation of the total economy in the period.

In the 1980-1981 year alone, he said, a 25 percent return was made, well above the S&P index of 21 percent and the inflation rate of about 9 percent. The results, he said, were "gratifying" and reflected the organization's "productive management of its investments."

Fixed-income instruments, "while widely affected by adverse capital markets," outperformed he widely employed Salomon Bros. bond index by a wide margin, he said. "Our mortgage financing took advantage of the scarcity of funds for real estate development to produce high yields, and our short-term investments also did well."

That, in part, is the financial report made here this week by Michael I. Sovern, president of Columbia University.

Sovern proudly announced that "despite difficult economic conditions and severe federal cutbacks, Columbia University finished 1981 with a balanced budget again and expects another this year."

Despite a widely publicized tax cut, taxes might still be rising, says Martin Lefkowitz of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce. Lefkowitz is a fellow who doesn't listen to the rhetoric as closely as he examines the data.

"Individuals worried about federal tax revenues falling after the 1981 tax cut need not fear," he says. By his reckoning, "Federal tax revenues for the first two months following the 5 percent tax reduction are running 15 percent above the levels a year earlier."

He explains: "October's personal income tax cut was not great enough to wipe out the 'inflation profit' that the federal government 'earns' as inflation pushes individuals into higher tax brackets."

"But the school never prepared him for the real world," the teacher replied. "It was just one of those California Country Clubs where everyone goes to have a good time."
"How is Ronnie doing in other subjects?"
"He's not doing very well in international relations."
"Why not?"
"His mind keeps wandering in class. One day he's studying El Salvador, the next day Nicaragua, the next day Poland, and when you ask him about China he gives you an answer about the Middle East. Frankly, I don't think he does enough homework."
"That's because we insist he go to bed early. His mother and I would rather have him rested than burn the oil to all hours of the night."
"Do you let him watch television?"
"As much as he wants to. He loves old movies."
"Perhaps if you cut down his television he could do better than a C-plus."
"I'd hate to do that. It's the only fun he has. Don't you have any other suggestions?"

"Well, he could take a course in remedial arithmetic. He wouldn't be the first President who had to do it."
"When do you teach it?"
"On Wednesday afternoons."
"But that's when Ronnie takes horseback riding."
"It's your decision," the teacher said. "If you're satisfied with a C-plus then I'd let things go along as they are. But if he doesn't improve his addition and subtraction I should warn you the next time his report card comes out he could get a D."

addressed to each of some 50 boards or commissions. Not only would that be time consuming and costly, there aren't that many citizens willing to follow a suit through the legal maze to the top.

Voluntary

Will the legislative leadership grasp the opportunity to recognize the Constitution's demand for branches of government "forever separate and distinct from each other?"
Not when the recent history of the General Assembly has been strong on extending that legislative body's grasp instead of shortening it. As House Speaker Liston Ramsey signals: it will take consultation with lawyers and such. And anyway, the General Assembly is still in control of the purse strings, he says.

There was no argument about that. That is a legislative function. The questionable function is whether legislators should draw up a law, finance a program, set up an agency, and then put on the hat of an administrator and help run the program on a day-to-day basis.

The more dangerous result of this dilemma is that legislators in powerful positions and with special interests can not only control the program from the commission seat, but boost the program from the legislative seat as his colleagues turn to him as the resident expert in a given field.

Conference

James Free Will Baptist Church will observe its first quarterly meeting this weekend.

Friday night there will be a quarterly conference. There will be a communion service with the Rev. Davidson and Simpson Chapel in charge of the service Saturday night. The Sunday morning service will be delivered by the Rev. C.R. Parker and the senior choir. At 3 p.m., the Rev. Blake Phillip and Zion Hill of Winterville will be in charge of the services.

A 'FAIR CHANCE' BERN, SWITZERLAND (AP) — Most Swiss believe their civil defense precautions give them a fair chance to survive even a nuclear holocaust, according to an independent poll released Tuesday.

Communicable Disease Cut By Immunization

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Most communicable diseases declined in North Carolina last year, but sexually transmitted diseases for which no vaccines have been developed increased, state health officials said.

Reported cases of red measles, mumps and whooping cough set record lows in the state last year, according to Dr. John M. McCormack, head of the state communicable disease control branch of N.C. Department of Human Resources.

Only three cases of red measles, the lowest number ever, were recorded across the state last year and all were in Onslow County, McCormack said. The figure compares with 130 reported cases in 1980 and 115 in 1979.

The reported incidence of mumps dropped to 23 cases in 1981 from 101 cases in 1980. And only 12 cases of whooping cough, were recorded, compared with 35 in 1980.

Also, reported cases in the state of German measles (rubella) fell to five last year from 48 cases the year before. State and local health officials say the improvements are the result of a state immunization law phased in during 1979 and 1980 which dictates that all children, from licensed day care centers to senior high school, were vaccinated against six communicable diseases — red measles, rubella, whooping cough, diphtheria, tetanus and polio.

Parents and students had to show proof that vaccinations had been completed by the start of school or face suspension and prosecution for failing to abide by the law.

School officials throughout the state plowed through old records to determine how many junior and senior high students still needed shots.

Dozens of students were temporarily suspended and sent to local health departments for vaccinations.

Although the state law does not require immunization against mumps, McCormack said a mumps vaccine automatically is included with inoculations against measles and rubella.

Internments To Continue Under Martial Law

By THOMAS W. NETTER
Associated Press Writer
WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Poland's martial law government said today that internment of people the authorities believe endanger the state will continue in "specially justified cases."

The statement came as the nation's bishops strongly urged an end to internment and other regime pressures they said were fueling "hatred and revenge" and the danger of civil war.

Deputy Interior Minister Boguslaw Stachura said in an interview with the morning daily Zycie Warszawy that about 4,900 people out of about 5,500 originally interned were still being held.

"In specially justified cases, there can be further internment of persons endangering the state or public order," Stachura said.

Stachura also said the 13,401 warning talks were held with Poles, and that only 746, or 5.5 percent, had refused to sign declarations on halting activities deemed contrary to martial law.

The interview indicated the authorities were still concerned about possible resistance, or organizing by some activists of the now-suspended independent union Solidarity.

Union sources say that Solidarity activists have launched an underground movement and newspaper in at least one major factory, the Huta Warszawa steel mill, and Polish authorities have said they seized underground Solidarity presses and subversive leaflets in Wroclaw.

The bishop's statement, drafted at a meeting of the Roman Catholic episcopate Tuesday and signed by Archbishop Jozef Glemp, Poland's primate, came in the form of a pastoral letter to be read in church pulpits next week. It called for resumption of dialogue with the Communist authorities.

"We the bishops appeal for this dialogue," the letter said. "We have to overcome the growing wave of hatred and revenge. The actions violating human nobility and confining civil rights are preventing a national agreement.

"Violation of the right of freedom, we want to emphasize it, is the way of protest and mutiny, and can even lead to a fratricidal war.

"We appeal to everybody on whom it depends to respect freedom, especially freedom of conscience and thinking of every man.

"The result of this respect for freedom should be restoring of the normal functioning of our country, releasing all the internees soon, stopping all kinds of ideological pressures and firings from work of believers or for the firings from work for beliefs or for the trade union membership."

The letter also calls for return of the right of workers to "organize themselves in the independent, self-government trade unions and youth in unions convenient for young people."

The letter was separate from another sent to Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski, Poland's prime minister, defense minister and Communist Party chief. But it could be assumed that it was similar to the pastoral letter.

The bishops' letter came after Glemp spoke out against internment of Solidarity union activists and others in the wake of imposition of martial law Dec. 13.

Poland's official PAP news agency, monitored in Vienna, reported that at least four Solidarity activists were sentenced to 3½ years in jail Thursday for trying to organize a strike at Warsaw's Ursus tractor factory immediately after martial law was imposed in Poland.

Radio Warsaw said a conference of the party Central Committee's cultural department Thursday discussed what to do about "the problems facing creative workers in the film industry." Poland's most prominent director, Andrzej Wajda, has already been singled out for criticism by martial law authorities, but he was not mentioned by name in this report.

The radio report said while measures to keep a lid on Poland's movie industry were being discussed, other Communist Party panels were discussing music, theater and the visual arts. The theater group, it said, "discussed the question of shaping the repertoire to the conditions of martial law."

An article last week in the party newspaper Trybuna Ludu said: "It is extremely unpleasant for us that an artist of the caliber of Andrzej Wajda turned out to be the most zealous advocate of extremist tendencies."

Wajda's film "Man of Iron," about the nationwide workers' upheaval in 1980 that produced the independent trade union Solidarity, betterment of his community and his work in his chosen field." Hill said that as a Jaycee, Dail served as director, vice president and president (1954). Dail was president of the Greenville Lions Club in 1963.

"Frank has worked hard in his church. First-Christians here in Greenville," Hill said. "His posts there include deacon, elder, treasurer and chairman of the board." Dail has been active in the professional association, "Carolinas' Association of Professional Insurance Agents" and was voted "Boss of the Year" in 1981 by the Pitt County Association of Insurance Women. He was honored by the National Association of Professional Insurance Agents for his community service.

Howell told the gathering, "I can report to you that the university is in good order." He said, "I know the organization of the university. All parts of the organization are operating harmoniously and I intend to work with this structure during the interim. They will continue without personnel changes and that is why the work of the university will go uninterrupted."

Howell, who said he was attending his first "public relations meeting" since being named interim chancellor, observed, "To say there is harmony is not to say that all these people are placid and settled. That is not the nature of a university. Professors profess, they argue heatedly with each other. Faculty and students enjoy tweaking the administration. The administration actually enjoys a certain portion of that interchange."

Howell said, "We have no fundamental split in our constituencies," but he added, "When I make this assessment of the good mood of the university, I do not mean that we will have an interim in which nothing will be done. I do not intend to initiate personally any major project that I cannot finish. But all projects are not initiated at the top. Most come from the segments of the university that have been in place for a long time and have not changed."

"The segments of a university are always in ferment," Howell continued. "They will propose changes and they will proceed. By promising not to initiate my own pet projects, I emphatically do not declare a moratorium on the university's development."

Howell said he will "spend a great deal of my time dealing with external affairs" of ECU. He promised to "pay attention to the deficit" in the school's athletic budget.

"I will work to continue the good relationship between the campus and the external community," he said. "I will go out, as I am going out now, to nurture that relationship."

Three members were inducted Thursday night by Jerry Creech, 1979 president of the local chapter and JCI senator. Receiving their oaths were Richard Tucker, Tony Lewis and Scott Hill.

A number of past DSA and Boss of the Year recipients, as well as several chapter presidents, were on hand for the meeting.

Jerry Cox is president of the Greenville chapter.

Interest Rates Rise On Sunday

WASHINGTON (AP) — Unless they want to lose money, people planning to buy tax-exempt "all-savers" certificates this week should wait until next week.

Treasury Department officials said Thursday that the interest rate on the one-year certificate will rise to 10.76 percent on Sunday and remain there through Feb. 20.

The current rate is 10.16 percent. The rate is set at 70 percent of the average annual yield on one-year Treasury bills, which are auctioned about every four weeks.

Set Up An IRA At Planters And You Could Be Set For Life.

An Individual Retirement Account at Planters National Bank could be the financial opportunity of a lifetime. It lets you build an impressive fund for retirement. And it's an effective way to reduce your taxable income throughout your working years.

Write $4000 Right Off Your 1982 Taxable Income.

The money you deposit can be deducted right off the top of your taxable income. Individuals can contribute and write off up to $2000 a year. For working couples, the limit is $4000. And couples with a single income may contribute $2250 annually. Whatever your tax bracket, that adds up to a substantial tax savings over the course of your working life.

25	Payments to an IRA (enter code from page 10)	25	$4000 00
26	Payments to a Keogh (H.R. 10) retirement plan	26

28	Alimony paid	28

Write your IRA deposits right off the top of your taxable income.

Make Yourself A Millionaire By The Time You Retire.

Deposits to your IRA at Planters do more than reduce your tax burden right now. They earn daily compounded interest at Money Market rates. And, believe it or not, that can give you a retirement fund of more than a million dollars.

You can start with an initial deposit as small as $100. And make even smaller periodic deposits, if you choose.

For example, if you started investing $1200 a year ($100 each month) in an IRA at age 25, your account balance at age 65 would be $1,278,037. With that much money, you could withdraw $13,576 a month forever and never touch your million. (These figures are based on an estimated rate of 12%, compounded daily. This rate cannot be guaranteed.)

Arabs Donating To UN News Agency

ACAPULCO, Mexico (AP) — A new aid organization made up of oil-rich Arab states in the Persian Gulf donated $2 million to a United Nations program to aid Third World communications, but the controversial project is still far short of the more than $60 million it needs.

The Arab contribution is to be used for African regional projects and to bolster African national news agencies.

An American contribution of $650,000 over the next two years will be spent on bilateral projects in cooperation with U.N. International Program for the Development of Communications. The United States has refused to contribute directly to IPDC, an agency within the United Nations Education, Scientific and Cultural Organization, claiming that among other things, it does not give proper weight to the role of the private sector.

There is also the fear that American funds would be spent on programs that could actually hamper the free flow of information instead of promoting it.

The IPDC is looking at 54 communications projects valued at more than $60 million, but has only about $8 million in pledges so far.

The United States is over-ruled Thursday in an attempt to block aspects of a project setting up an Asia-Pacific news network.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

FOOD, SHELTER, AND CLOTHING—ALL FROM THE GOAT!

IN BIBLICAL TIMES, THE GOAT WAS PROBABLY THE MOST PRIZED ANIMAL OF ALL CATTLE, ESPECIALLY IN THE ROCKY HILLS OF JUDEA, WHERE VEGETATION WAS SCARCE—THE GOAT COULD THRIVE IN SPARSE AREAS LIKE THIS, WHERE OTHER ANIMALS WOULD FAIL! AS A VERY IMPORTANT ITEM IN THE PEOPLE'S ECONOMY, THE GOATS HAIR WAS SPUN INTO FABRICS FOR CLOTHING AND WOVEN INTO STURDY STRIPS TO MAKE TENTS IN WHICH THEY LIVED. THE DURABLE GOATSKIN MADE A FINE LEATHER, INDEED, THE FAMED LEATHER OF MOROCCO, TO THIS DAY, IS MADE FROM GOATSKIN! AND FOR FOOD—GOAT'S MILK, SOURED AND COOL, WAS ALWAYS THE KIND OF LUXURY ONE OFFERED TO HONORED GUESTS, IN FACT, IT STILL IS! MILKING A GOAT WAS ALWAYS DONE DIRECTLY FROM THE REAR AND THIS METHOD IS STILL USED IN ASIA MINOR AND NORTH AFRICA TODAY.....

.... WHEN THE PATRIARCHS, SUCH AS ABRAHAM AND JACOB, SPOKE OF THE FATNESS OF THEIR HERDS, ALTHOUGH THEY ALSO HAD SHEEP, CAMELS, AND ASSES, YOU CAN BE SURE THEIR HERDS NUMBERED MANY MORE GOATS THAN ANY OTHER ANIMAL!

If You Have a Habit Of Following The Crowd, We Suggest, The Best Crowd To Follow is the Crowd Going To Church

Annual Theme Set By Africans

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Christians around the world are focusing on a theme suggested by churches of Kenya in Africa, area of the faith's most dynamic growth, for this week's annual period of prayer for Christian unity.

"May all find their home in you, O God," goes the 1982 theme, based on Psalms 84, expressing the yearning of the Israelites on return from exile.

The observance, once competitive between Roman Catholics and Protestants and held at separate times, is now — on its 75th anniversary — a mutual affair in objectives, timing, suggested prayers and Scripture readings and often in worshipping together.

May they "all be one," Jesus prayed in John 17:20-26, among the readings, "... so the world may believe..."

A "major stumbling block" to the church's mission of projecting Christ to humanity is that of being "fragmented and broken," says a joint Roman Catholic-Episcopal statement.

It was issued by Catholic Bishop James A. Hickey and Episcopal Bishop John T. Walker of Washington, D.C., who this week were switching pulpits on alternate Sundays. They pledged increasing collaboration.

Such exchanges and compacts along with combined Protestant-Catholic services have become common practices, magnified in the special week of prayers for unity.

"Behold, how good and pleasant it is when brothers dwell in unity," says another jointly recommended reading from Psalms 133.

With the anniversary theme provided by churches in Africa, where Christianity is showing its greatest growth and also unifying advances, the Rev. Thaddeus Horgan of Washington, D.C., says African churches "are giving us a message as well as a theme."

He says "Goliath churches" of the West need to listen to the young "David churches" of Africa. Noting that 40 percent of sub-Saharan Africa's 450 million are Christians, with nearly 6 million new converts added annually, he says:

"God's ways have always surprised his people." Projections indicate Africa will replace Europe and the Americas as the population axis of Christianity by the turn of the century.

The week's theme, as well as suggested readings and sermon hints, were issued by joint groups of the Vatican and World Council of Churches on an international basis and of the U.S. Catholic bishops and National Council of Churches in this country.

"...for you are all one in Christ Jesus," goes a reading from Galatians 3:23-29. The ecumenical movement "has had its ups and downs," says the Rev. Luke J. Fisher of Saranac Lake, N.Y. He adds that because gains toward reunion are often unnoticed, people tend to "become discouraged and bored."

But just as God brought the Israelites back from exile, "God will bring us to the home of Christian unity eventually," says Fisher, a member of the Franciscan Friars of the Atonement.

The Atonement Friars, with headquarters in Graymoor, N.Y., have long been a catalyst to unity efforts. They began as an Episcopal Church order, founded by an Episcopal priest, the Rev. Paul Watson, who started the annual week of prayer for unity in 1908.

He subsequently switched to Roman Catholicism, as did the order, and those early unity prayers were much different than now, seeking "return" of Protestants to Roman Catholicism.

That one-way approach was abandoned in 1966 after the Second Vatican Council with the rise of jointly sponsored Catholic-Protestant prayers for coming together in whatever way God wills it.

Protestants, who earlier had held a separate unity prayer week in late spring, shifted it to coincide Jan. 18-25 in joint intercessions.

"Let each of you look not only to his own interests, but also to the interests of others," goes a reading this time from Philippians 2:1-5.

The churches have "moved further on the road to unity" in the last two decades than in the previous 100 years, says the joint Hickey-Walker assessment of the situation.

Since the mid-1960's, theological dialogues have gone on between Catholicism and various Protestant branches, reaching unexpected accords in many cases on doctrine, the ministry and Holy Communion.

The scholarly work shows "remarkable convergences of attitudes, practices and beliefs," Hickey and Walker say. Looking to the turn of the century, they foresee "tangible signs of unity" by that time.

GOSPELING

A gospel sing will be held at the Shelmerdine Pentecostal Holiness Church Sunday night featuring the Heaven Bounds from Kinston. The service will begin at 7 p.m. The Rev. Roy O. Williams said the public is invited.

Across the country, several hundred local Catholic and Protestant parishes have formed "covenants" for cooperative work and worship. Yet the separate denominational structures still stand.

"There is no doubt that we have come a long way and that a great deal has been accomplished," says Atonement Friar Robert Mercer. "But we still have much to do."

Losers took a 5-4 lead over gainers in the over-all tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Before the opening, the government reported that the consumer price index rose 0.4 per cent in December, following increases of 0.4 and 0.5 percent in the two previous months.

That brought the rise of the index for all of 1981 to 8.9 percent — the smallest in four years.

But brokers said traders remained uneasy about the interest rate outlook and uncertain prospects for an early recovery from the recession.

Standard Oil of Indiana led the active list, down 1/2 at 45 1/4. A 465,000-share block changed hands at 45 3/4.

Among other actively traded blue chips, International Business Machines was down 3/4 at 61 3/4, while Exxon was unchanged at 29 3/4 and American Telephone & Telegraph rose 1/8 to 59 3/4.

The NYSE's composite index lost .20 to 66.80. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off 1.71 at 285.84.

Volume on the Big Board came to 19.38 million shares at noon, against 20.41 million at the same point Thursday.

Hit Man Said Likely Victim

SAN MATEO, Calif. (AP) — Max Kurschner boasted of exploits as a mob hit man, saying he was careful and could "stay in circulation." Now police believe he is the man they found dead in a motel parking lot with a shotgun blast in his back.

To Consider Textile Aid

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina's textile industry is seeking sums for research and development equal to what the state has appropriated for microelectronics, but elected officials say prospects for that are dim at best.

Charles Dunn, executive director of the state Textile Manufacturers Association, called on the General Assembly to appropriate $25 million to establish a research and development facility for textiles.

A spokesman for Gov. Jim Hunt said Wednesday that Dunn's ideas have merit, "particularly in view of the tremendous modernization going on now in the textile industry."

"Whether that kind of money would be available is another question altogether," said Brent Hackney, Hunt's deputy press secretary. "I'm sure the governor would be glad to listen to these proposals."

However, when asked if $25 million would be available in the 1983-1985 budget for a textile research center, State Sen. Kenneth C. Royall Jr., D-Durham, chairman of the Senate Ways and Means Committee, said: "No sir."

The state Legislature in 1981 appropriated $24.4 million to build a microelectronics research facility at Research Triangle Park associated with the university system.

Dunn, in a speech to the Charlotte Textile Club Jan. 11, presented a long list of aid he said the state should give to the textile industry, the state's largest manufacturing employer with more than 240,000 workers.

Tax Office Will Aid On Returns

The North Carolina Department of Revenue will provide assistance in filling out state income and intangibles tax returns each Monday through April 15 at its offices at 300 W. First St., the State Employees Credit Union Building.

Assistance will be available from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. If you want help, bring your pre-addressed state tax form.

If you're doing your own return this year, the department advises that returns which indicate a refund is due should be sent to the N.C. Department of Revenue, P.O. Box R, Raleigh, N.C. 27634. Any other returns should be sent to the N.C. Department of Revenue, P.O. Box 25000, Raleigh, N.C. 27640.

SUNDAY SERVICE
 Perry's Temple Free Will Baptist Church, located one-half mile west of Saratoga on U.S. 264, will hold a worship service Sunday at 11 a.m. The sermon will be delivered by Elder J.N. Perry Jr., pastor. A program of music will be presented by the senior choir.

SERVICE PLANNED
 Regular workshop services will be held Sunday at Elm Grove Free Will Baptist Church, Ayden. The pastor, the Rev. Elmer Jackson, invited the public to attend.

CORRECTION
 In the story on a report of the Juvenile Services Retstitution appearing in Wednesday's paper, quotes in the early portion of the article were attributed to Ms. Rodgers (Clothilde Rodgers). The quotes should have been attributed to Ms. Rogers (Eve Rogers). Attribution of quotes to Ms. Rodgers in the latter part of the article are correct.

UNION MEETING
 Union meeting will be held Jan. 29-31 at Live Oak Church, Grifton. The pastor, the Rev. Nathan Darden, invited the public to attend.

The San Mateo County Coroner's office said Thursday that a man they identified as Max Kurschner, 49, was shot as he headed towards his Cadillac. Police said they believe it was the same Kurschner who wrote books about his alleged experiences as a hit man for the Mafia.

Kurschner, alias Johnny Black or Joey Black or simply Joey, was arrested in 1976 by Internal Revenue Service agents and boasted to them that he killed 53 people on Mafia "contracts."

He pleaded guilty in December 1976 to evading tax payments on nearly $90,000 in royalties from his three books, "Hit No. 29," "Killer, Autobiography of a Mafia Hit Man" and "Joey Kills." He was given an eight-month jail term and a $5,000 fine.

Police said they were investigating the Wednesday shooting but had no suspects. Employees at the Los Prados Motel in San Mateo, about 20 miles south of San Francisco, were tight-lipped about the shooting.

In "Hit No. 29," published in 1974, author "Joey" described how a hired killer becomes inured to his job. "The toughest moment in any hit man's career is pulling the trigger on number one... There are simply not many people in the world who will do that."

Shad Festival Meeting

GRIFTON — A Shad Festival planning meeting will be held Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at the Grifton Historical Museum.

Final decisions will be made about schedules and events for the festival, according to publicity chairperson Janet Haseley, since the souvenir brochure is scheduled for printing this month. Once the brochure is printed, she said, no changes can be made.

All area businesses that have not specified whether they want to be included in the booklet should contact Ms. Haseley at 524-4356, or Box 928, Grifton.

The theme of the 1982 festival is "Shad Trek," emphasizing the current interest in space travel and video games.

Persons wanting further information about the 1982 festival may contact Ms. Haseley.

Solar Fraction

Greenville's solar fraction calculated by the department of physics of East Carolina University was zero Thursday, which means that a solar water heater could have provided zero percent of your hot water.

Deacs Do It Again: Upset Carolina

By TOM FOREMAN Jr.

CHAPEL HILL — Wake Forest, one of the few college basketball teams unfazed by the hostile environment of impregnable Carmichael Auditorium, has taken another trophy from top-ranked North Carolina's home court.

That trophy was a 55-48 victory over the previously unbeaten Tar Heels and was earned on the strength of a zone defense originally designed to stop two players which eventually shut down just one. The triumph was Wake Forest's third in Chapel Hill in five years.

Opponents of North Carolina have tried to pack zone defenses tightly along the baseline to attempt to shut down the Tar Heel tandem of James Worthy and Sam Perkins. But Perkins never showed for the game.

Prior to warmups, Perkins was admitted to North Carolina's infirmary, suffering a fever of 103 degrees. A team physician said Perkins came down with a virus at the pre-game meal.

With Worthy alone on the baseline, North Carolina raced to a 22-9 lead, 13 of those points coming from the junior forward. Then came Coach Carl Tacy's decision to implement a 2-3 zone to deny Worthy the ball.

"We dug a hole for ourselves early that I wasn't sure we could get out of," Tacy said. "After changing defenses, we played with a lot greater intensity."

Worthy's binge came in the first 11 minutes. He scored no more in the first half and, thanks to a five-minute Tar Heel drought, Wake Forest narrowed the gap to 30-25 at halftime.

"Worthy was unstoppable early. We knew we couldn't stop him one-on-one," Tacy said. "We had to play good team defense to stop him. We had planned to use more man-to-man, but the zone worked so well we decided to stick with it."

North Carolina stretched its lead to 32-25 at the start of the second half on a layup by senior Cris Brust, Perkins' replacement. That was as big a lead as the Tar Heels would claim for the remainder of the contest.

The Demon Deacons whittled away until, with 8:40 left, a Danny Young jumper put them in front 41-40. A Worthy free throw tied the game and two Jimmy Black jump shots later produced a tie at 45.

Mike Helms broke the deadlock at the 2:11 mark with a jumper from the left of the key. Matt Doherty brought the Tar Heels to within 47-46 when he hit the back end of a two-shot foul with 1:48 to play.

Following a blocking foul on Black, freshman Michael Jordan stripped John Toms of the basketball and headed up court for what appeared to be an easy basket. Instead, Jordan passed to Jim Bradlock, who attempted to return the ball to Jordan. The freshman lost the handle and Wake Forest center Jim Johnstone scooped up the loose ball to keep the Tar Heels at bay.

Four free throws by Anthony Teachey and two each by Helms and Young ended the North Carolina unbeaten streak at 13. Wake Forest is 12-3.

"We don't let the noise affect us like other clubs," a jubilant Helms said in the Wake Forest locker room. "We just want to play a good game."

North Carolina coach Dean Smith acknowledged that the Demon Deacons rose to the occasion in the second half, when they shot 62.5 percent while the Tar Heels shot a dismal 37.5 percent.

"They played an excellent second half," Smith said. "They really did a good job of getting the ball inside to Johnstone. Plus, Helms hit some big shots."

The outcome of the game threw the Atlantic Coast Conference race into a three-way tie. Wake Forest, North Carolina and Virginia are all 4-1. Johnstone couldn't be happier.

"It's going to give us a big boost," he said. "We needed to have that confidence playing with big teams."

Meanwhile, Smith summed up the defeat in terms of the entire league.

"The regular-season race is sure for grabs," he said. "I'm sure there are some happy people in Charlottesville and other parts of the ACC tonight. This is a very disappointing loss for us."

Pirates Try To Regroup Against Hungry 'Pack

East Carolina University's men's basketball team, after suffering two tough losses, take to the road again Saturday to face nationally ranked N.C. State at 7:30 p.m. in Raleigh's Reynolds Coliseum.

The Pirates, who have dropped back to back games to UNC-Wilmington (58-49) and Campbell (62-60), must face a Wolfpack team that was upset by Duke University, 49-48, Wednesday night in Durham. The Pack is ranked 14th in the Associated Press poll and 15th on the UPI list. State fell to 13-3 with the loss.

East Carolina meanwhile, is struggling to regroup after its two losses, plus the loss for two to four weeks of point guard and team leader Tony Byles. The senior guard suffered a broken left wrist during practice last Sunday, but it wasn't until Tuesday following practice that it was confirmed that the bone was broken. Herbert Gilchrist started in his place against Campbell, with both freshman Bruce Peartree and junior Charles Watkins also seeing playing time at the position. Watkins, who had been switched to the number two guard slot, played at the point last year.

Against Campbell, the Pirates got away to another slow start, scoring only four points in the first ten minutes of play, while Campbell was running out to a 17-4 lead. The Camels eventually led by as many as 18 points in the game before two technical fouls against Coach Dave Odom — his first ever at East Carolina — ignited a 25-6 rally that briefly put the Pirates ahead before Harvey Smith's jumper with ten seconds left gave Campbell the victory.

In that game, Campbell went to the free throw line 37 times, as compared to just 20 times for the Pirates, scoring 12 more points than did ECU at the stripe. East Carolina enjoyed a ten-point lead in field goal shooting, but had no chance as Campbell enjoyed a 30-19 foul advantage.

State will be led by two double figure scorers, Derek Whittenburg, hitting 15.4 points a game and Thurl Bailey, scoring 14.0. Two other Wolfpackers are just off the ten-point pace. Scott Parzyck holds down a 9.7 average, while Sidney Lowe is scoring at a 9.0 mark. Stats do not include the Duke game.

Seven-five center Chuck Nevett rounds out the starting five, scoring 6.4 points a game. Overall, State is scoring at a 62.5 clip, while holding opponents to 49.3. State also enjoys a 28.9 to 24.3 rebounding edge.

The Wolfpack is hitting 52.3 percent of its field goals, while holding opponents to only 40.4.

In contrast, the Pirates, hitting 50.6 percent prior to the Campbell game. But for the third time in the last four games, they shot poorly against the Camels, hitting just 36 percent. Opponents have scored on 50.7 percent of their shots against the Bucs.

East Carolina scoring is led by Charles Green at 11.8, while Hargrove is at 10.8. Byles had been second on the team with an 11.7 mark.

"This is not the best time to be playing a team like State," Odom said. "You need a great deal of confidence in a game like this, confidence in the offense and defense and in your ability to perform under defensive pressure."

"And that's not exactly the situation we're in right now," he added. "The best thing we can do is concentrate on executing as fundamentally sound as we can. Make the basic plays and perhaps lull them to sleep."

Odom, who had to shake up his lineup following Byles' injury, hinted that more changes in the lineup could be forthcoming. "I'm still not sure how it will work out, but the ones who are deserving will be the ones who play."

"For instance, we have to get Green inside. He's more comfortable inside. And we're not getting enough scoring inside."

"Our outside shooting also leaves a lot to be desired. But I was pleased with the play of Mike Fox against Campbell, and he deserves more playing time."

Odom said that while he had ideas on how to play a team like State, it is difficult to change patterns for one game. "I just don't know if we can do it in a short period of time."

While he is disappointed in his team's performance over the past two games, he was pleased by the comeback the Pirates made against Campbell, rallying from 18 down to take the lead on several occasions before finally bowing. "We hadn't shown that we were a come-from-behind team. And we did it with a strange lineup that we kind of worked ourselves into. We were awfully small at the time."

East Carolina returns home for its next outing, against UNC Charlotte on Wednesday at 9 p.m.

Townes Takes ECAC Honors

James Madison's Linton Townes, a senior forward, has been named the ECAC-South Player of the Week for games through January 16.

Townes paced the Dukes to a 2-1 week, scoring 16 points in a loss to Richmond, 19 points against Towson State, and 21 in a victory over William & Mary. Townes also grabbed off seven rebounds in the Towson victory.

Richmond's John Schweitz, a senior guard, scored 35 points in two games, hitting 15 of 28 field goals, with ten rebounds in the two, to make the ECAC Honor Roll.

Schweitz has moved into first place in the ECAC-South scoring race with a 17.6 average.

Lady Pirates Face Tech, Wake In Road Contests

East Carolina's Lady Pirates hit the road to face a pair of Atlantic Coast Conference foes Sunday and Monday, Georgia Tech and Wake Forest.

The Lady Pirates will be in Atlanta on Sunday to meet the Lady Jackets in a 2 p.m. game, then will travel to Winston-Salem to face the Lady Deacons Monday night at 7:30 p.m.

One more road game, Friday at Appalachian State will wind up the road trip before the Lady Pirates play host to East Tennessee State on February 3 in Minges Coliseum.

The Lady Pirates take a four-game winning streak onto the road, having boosted their record to 8-7 with the string. Included in the streak are wins over two other ACC teams, Virginia and North Carolina.

Mary Denkler leads the Pirate scoring with a 20.3 average, but Sam Jones has been making up a lot of ground lately, and has boosted her mark to 15.7 on the season. No other Pirates are in double figures.

East Carolina's last outing, in the ECU-Duke Doubleheader in Minges, saw the Lady Pirates score their high for the year in a 90-60 victory over James Madison. Overall, the Pirates are scoring 68.7 points a game while holding foes to 64.1.

Georgia Tech brings a 5-8 record into the game, but recently gained a 57-55 victory over a strong Georgia State team.

"I look for a strong game from them. They are very fundamental and patient," Coach Cathy Andruzzi said. "They play good defense."

The Lady Jackets are led by guard Kate Brandt, with a 16.0 average, while Lynn Woodhull is hitting 12.0 at center, and Cindy Cochran, a forward has an 11.0 average. Cochran is also pulling down nine rebounds a game, while Woodhull has a 6.0 average on the boards.

Georgia Tech is coached by former North Carolina star Bernie McGlade, in her first year with the team.

Wake Forest, meanwhile, is

Vikings Roll Past Havelock

HAVELOCK — D.H. Conley won seven weight classes, two of them on pins, and eased past Havelock, 32-17, in a Coastal Conference wrestling match last night.

The victory was the tenth straight dual match victory for the eighth-ranked Vikings, and their fifth in Coastal competition.

"Our lightweights did a better job than in the first meeting with Havelock," Coach Milt Sherman said. "Andy Majette, who had tied Jeff Peay, won this time, and Shawn Hardy, who had lost, managed a draw."

The first meeting of the two saw Conley take a 42-22 victory. The biggest difference in the two matches was the pin total. Havelock didn't win any of their four by a pin, and Conley got only two. There were seven pins between the

Just as it did following the special meeting of the NCAA in December, January's NCAA convention led to supposed "lists" of those who would be dropped from the NCAA's Division I-A ranks in football.

But, according to ECU athletic director Dr. Ken Karr, there are no such lists as yet.

"There was very little said at the convention about reorganization," Karr said. "It was said that they hoped to have some sort of idea which teams would be where around February 1st."

However, that is not a firm date, and knowing how the NCAA sometimes operates, it might come later. At this time no schools have definitely been lowered to Division I-AA status, although several conferences, such as the Southern and Ivy League are expected to drop.

The only other thing about reorganization which did come up at the convention was a request of waiver for several schools, to allow them to remain in Division I-A, although they do not, at this time, meet qualifications. Those requests came from Richmond, William & Mary, Virginia Military Institute (currently a member of the Southern Conference), and several others outside this area. How those requests will be disposed of remains to be seen.

"As far as we're concerned, I don't see any problem," Karr said. "We'll still be in Division I-A."

In another move, the NCAA backed off on a proposed move to do away with automatic qualifying for the organization's basketball tournament. Currently, over half of the field automatically qualifies by being a certified conference.

Among those, of course, is the ECAC-South, of which East Carolina is a member this year.

Most observers feel that this will clear the way for the NCAA tournament to expand from its current 48 teams to 64, thereby totally filling the bracket. A team would have to win five games to win the championship should the field be totally filled — after qualifying. Under the current format of 48 teams, some teams could win after playing only four games.

Coupled with the 32 team field for the National Invitational Tournament, this could lead to 96 teams qualifying for post-season play — virtually all those who have any sort of decent record.

Of course, there is still some talk of having everyone play. Two more games could advance the field to 256 teams — nearly all those who currently claim Division I membership in basketball.

The NCAA's computer rankings could then really be put to use, sending #1 up against #256, #2 against #255, etc. Now that would really be wild.

While East Carolina's basketball Pirates are still in the battle for the ECAC-South championship — to actually be decided March 4-6 at Norfolk in a post-season tournament, baseball is beginning to prepare for its coming season as an ECAC member also.

There is some confusion right now, however, as to just what form the conference will take. When contacted during scheduling, some members felt that a round robin was necessary for play — others said no. As a result, ECU plays all but Navy this spring.

Then, according to further reports, the four best teams in the ECAC's South and North Division will meet in a playoff for the championship, with the winner getting the league's automatic berth in the NCAA field. But whether this means the two top teams in each division, or the four best overall is questionable.

And to round that off, no one really seems to know whether these four teams will be determined by their conference winning percentage, or their overall winning percentage.

"We hope to have some sort of answer to these questions soon," Coach Hal Baird said, "but right now, we really don't know what the standards are."

East Carolina, meanwhile, will be playing everyone in the league except for the Naval Academy, and is planning a 49-game slate, including 36 at Harrington Field.

Cox Lifts Panthers By Southern In Overtime

STANHOPE — North Pitt's winning streak was placed in jeopardy last night, but thanks to a basket and a couple of free throws by Mitchell Cox, the Panthers held off Southern Nash for a 55-54 overtime victory.

The North Pitt girls also came away with a victory, topping Southern, 39-32.

The Panthers, who have now won nine of their last ten games, had to struggle to come up with the victory. North Pitt eased out into a 14-12 lead after one period, but saw the Firebirds stick close and tie it up at the half, 24-24. The game continued to be nip-and-tuck through the third period, which ended with the Panthers in a slim 45-44 lead.

In the final quarter, however, Southern inched ahead, before Cox hit with about two minutes left for a 50-50 tie. In the remaining seconds, Southern missed a scoring attempt with North Pitt rebounding. The Panthers went for one final shot, and Cox missed that at the horn.

In the overtime, it again went right down to the wire.

with Cox throwing in two free throws with 13 seconds left to give the Panthers the win.

Dennis Bradley led the North Pitt scoring with 16 points, while Vince Parker added 14. Ricky Battle led Southern with 11, while both Jeffrey Lucas and Terry Battle each had 10.

Toby Crandol suffered back spasms and is expected to miss about three games, Coach Cobby Deans said. He also noted that Greg Briley performed well in coming off the bench in the game.

In the girls' contest, Southern managed an 8-6 lead after the first period. North Pitt hung close and trailed by one at intermission, 19-18.

In the third period, the Pant-HERS took command of the game, outscoring Southern, 13-7, to take a 31-26 lead. North Pitt then outscored Southern, 8-6, in the final period to wrap it up.

Gladys Roberson led North Pitt with 14 and Linda Harrell added 11. Melissa Morgan and Cynthia Brown each had 12 for Southern.

North Pitt is now 7-0 in Eastern Carolina Conference play and 11-4 overall. Southern's boys fall to 4-2 in the league and 9-7 overall. The Pant-HERS climb to 5-2 in the league and 7-6 overall, while Southern is now 0-6 and 2-12.

Iowa And Tulsa Avoid Fate Of North Carolina

Noise? What noise? There may have been some during the game, but there certainly wasn't much afterward from the home crowd at Carmichael Auditorium in Chapel Hill, N.C. "We don't let the noise affect us like other clubs," Wake Forest guard Mike Helms said of the usual roar from the sea of North Carolina blue. "We just want to play a good game."

After falling behind 22-9 midway through the first half Thursday night, the Demon Deacons of Wake Forest did just that. And when all the shooting and the shouting was over, they owned a 55-48 Atlantic Coast Conference victory over the previously unbeaten, No.1-ranked North Carolina Tar Heels.

For the Deacons, it was the second time in as many years that they returned home from Carmichael with a victory. Wake Forest accomplished that feat by shooting 62.5 percent in the second half.

"We dug a hole for ourselves early that I wasn't sure we could get out of," said Coach Carl Tacy. "After changing defenses, we played with a lot greater intensity. I was very pleased with the job we did on defense."

North Carolina center Sam Perkins was out with a virus and the change in strategy effectively shut down forward James Worthy. He scored 13 points in the first 11 minutes but only managed seven more the rest of the way.

"They went to a (2-3) zone and cut down the passing lanes, making it difficult to pass the ball cross-court," Worthy said.

North Carolina Coach Dean Smith said he "thought about pulling them out of the zone with 13 minutes to play, but they probably wouldn't have chased much and it would have gone down to the final three minutes. In retrospect, maybe that wouldn't have been a bad idea."

Trailing 30-25 at intermission, Wake Forest took a 41-40 lead on Danny Young's jumper with 8:40 remaining. Worthy tied the score when he hit the first of two free throws with 8:19 to go.

The Demon Deacons seized control when Jim Johnstone scored on a drive past Worthy with 6:23 left. A little more than one minute later, Young scored on a layup to extend the lead to 45-41. A pair of jumpers by North Carolina's Jimmy Black tied the game again at 45, but Helms' jumper gave Wake Forest a lead it never relinquished.

Four free throws by Anthony Teachey and combined with two each by Young and Helms iced the upset and raised Wake Forest's record to 12-3, while snapping North Carolina's 13-game winning streak. Johnstone led Wake Forest with 16 points and a game-high 10 rebounds.

The outcome left both clubs tied with Virginia for the ACC lead with 4-1 records.

Three other members of The Associated Press Top Twenty were in action and two of them almost suffered North Carolina's fate.

break and threaten on the inside game."

Minnesota, 12-2 overall, is tied for the Big Ten lead at 4-1 with Iowa and Purdue, which got four points apiece in overtime from Kevin Stallings, Dan Palombizio and Keith Edmondson and defeated Ohio State 66-60.

Iowa was fortunate to nip Northwestern and Coach Lute Olson knew it.

"To say we were lucky is the understatement of the night," he said after the Hawkeyes came from behind. They gained control of the ball with 42 seconds remaining and worked it around until Arnold's winning basket.

"We weren't playing it down for one shot or any one player to take the shot," said Olson. "We were just waiting for the got in a spot like that, it's good to have a senior do it. Northwestern deserved to win. This is one we shouldn't have had, but we'll take it."

The winning basket gave Iowa its only lead of the game. The Hawkeyes trailed throughout and were once down by 10 points because of the shooting of Northwestern's center Bob Grady, who poured in 24 points.

Although Tulsa led from the start against Southern Illinois, the Golden Hurricane blew a 65-50 lead over the final 11 minutes of regulation time. SIU tied it at 68 on Ron Camp's basket with 47 seconds left to play.

Johnny Payne of Southern Illinois led all scorers with 18 points, while Bruce Vanley had 16 for Tulsa and Paul Pressey, who fed Anderson for the winning basket, added 14.

Unranked Teams
Coach Gene Keady called Purdue's triumph over Ohio State the biggest road victory in his two years at Purdue.

"This is the biggest because of the importance of the timing in the league," he said. "We played with great poise. It's the happiest I've seen our dressing room in a long time."

The loss knocked Ohio State from a share of the lead with a 3-2 record. Coach Eldon Miller said he didn't view the loss as a key one this early in the race.

"It's about as important as you want to make it," he said. "It was the best game we've played in our last four, but it wasn't good enough."

Defending state 4A boys' champion Chapel Hill is top-ranked in the first weekly Associated Press high school basketball poll of the 1981-1982 season.

The Tigers top their class in voting by a statewide panel of sportswriters, getting six of 13 first-place votes and 119 of a possible 130 points. Wilmington New Hanover is ranked second.

The state's other No. 1 teams in voting this week are Cary (4A girls), Roanoke (3A boys), Southwest Edgecombe (3A girls), Wake Forest-Rolesville (2A-1A boys) and Sampson Union (2A-1A girls).

Southwest Edgecombe won last year's state 3A girls' championship and was ranked second in the final Associated Press poll a year ago. The other poll division leaders this week were not in last year's state finals.

The biggest lead belongs to Cary, which piled up 118 points on nine first-place votes — easily outdistancing runnerup West Charlotte's 84 points. Southwest Edgecombe also had a big lead, 104-78, over

- nerup Davie County.
- The closest voting was in the boys' 2A-1A ranks, where Wake Forest-Rolesville had a 103-100 edge over Bandys. Wake Forest had two first-place votes to eight for Bandys, but had more overall support.
- Here is how a statewide panel of sportswriters rated North Carolina high school basketball teams this week for The Associated Press. First-place votes are in parentheses, followed by records and point totals. Points are assigned on a basis of 10 for a first-place vote, then nine for second, eight for third, etc.

Tar Heel Swimmers Roll To Wins Over Pirates

The University of North Carolina had little difficulty in swimming past East Carolina's men and women in a dual meet last night in Minges Natatorium.

The Tar Heels swam past the ECU men by an 81-32 score and took a 71-33 victory over the Lady Pirates.

The Pirates did manage to win three events, as Gregor Wray took the 1,000-yard freestyle, Scott Eagle won the 1-meter diving, and Stan Williams took the 100-yard freestyle. Newcomer Jokim Svensson set a new freshman record in a second place finish in the 200-yard backstroke with a time of 1:57.84.

The women took just two firsts. Nan George won the 50-yard freestyle, while the 200-yard freestyle relay team of Nancy James, Jennifer Jayes, Moria McHugh and George won that event in varsity record time of 1:40.34.

Sally Reinhardt also set a new varsity mark with a second place finish in the 1,000-yard freestyle in 10:37.28.

49ers Worry Over New Injury

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Storm clouds have started forming on the National Football League labor front but that's nothing compared to the full-scale storm that hit the San Francisco 49ers three days before Super Bowl XVI.

Representatives of the NFL Players Association and the league's Management Council rattled sabres at separate press conferences Thursday while the 49ers were shaken by a sprained left knee suffered in practice by wide receiver Freddie Solomon.

ficially listed as questionable for Sunday's title game against the Cincinnati Bengals. In the NFL lexicon, questionable status means a player has a 50-50 chance of playing.

Solomon, San Francisco's second leading receiver, was injured when he collided with cornerback Ronnie Lott on a sideline pass pattern during a workout Thursday. He was treated in the locker room and Coach Bill Walsh said his status would be reviewed today.

If Solomon, who caught 59 passes during the regular season, is unable to play, he will be replaced by Mike Wilson, a free agent rookie who signed with the 49ers after being released by Dallas. Wilson caught nine passes during the regular season.

The loss of Solomon could seriously alter the 49ers game plan against the Bengals. Walsh was refining his team's approach to Sunday's game as kickoff neared and indicated that he thought on defense San Francisco's major problem might be containing the running of Cincinnati's Pete Johnson.

"My suspicion is he'll be their primary weapon," Walsh said of the bulldozing fullback.

Forrest Gregg, Cincinnati's coach, shrugged off Walsh's suggestion.

"He may be encouraging me as far as my game plan is concerned," Gregg said. "I won't stand here and say we won't give the ball to Pete. But we got here by throwing the ball. We scored a lot of points throwing. Pete is one of our weapons. We don't put all our eggs in one basket."

Gregg also was involved in a brief war of words with CBS television producer Terry O'Neil. The coach was annoyed over remarks printed in a local newspaper and attributed to O'Neil which he interpreted as being a putdown of the Bengals.

"I'd like to apologize to CBS for Cincinnati being here instead of Pittsburgh or San Diego or Buffalo," he said. "But we like it and we're gonna stay."

O'Neil denied any insult was intended when he originally refused to comment on the matchups, causing the flap. He met for 15 minutes with Gregg to work out the misunderstanding.

"I love the matchup," O'Neil said in a statement issued after Gregg made his remarks. "These are two of the most sophisticated pass offenses in pro football history."

Ed Garvey, executive director of the NFLPA, said negotiations for a new collective bargaining agreement with the league would begin Feb. 16 in Miami. Garvey repeated the union demand for 55 percent of gross revenues, a position the league has already strongly rejected.

Garvey said a survey of NFL players showed that 92 percent supported the percentage of gross as the No. 1 priority in a new contract and that 95 percent of the players were willing to strike over that demand.

He cited NFL revenue figures produced as a result of the Oakland Raiders suit against the league and said that estimates are the new television contract will be worth between $11 and $12 million per team.

"We are faced with an industry so healthy it's embarrassing," he said.

"We are unified on the issue," said Gene Upshaw of the Raiders, president of the union. "For once, we have the right issue. We know there is a struggle ahead with an industry of infinite power. We will deal with it and we will win it."

Garvey said a settlement is possible.

"I don't want to give the impression we want a strike," he said. But he made it clear that the union stands prepared to take such action if it becomes necessary.

Jack Donlan, executive director of the NFL Management Council, bargaining arm for the owners, said the league would not accept the concept of surrendering a percentage of its gross to the players.

Compensation Angers Miller

NEW YORK (AP) — Marvin Miller, head of the Major League Baseball Players Association, strongly objected Thursday to a statement by the California Angels that they would compensate the New York Yankees with a player if they sign free agent Reggie Jackson.

Miller said the Players Association would consider any compensation as a form of collusion and a violation of baseball's new rules concerning free agents.

The remarks that drew Miller's ire were made by Buzzie Bavasi, executive vice president of the Angels, who has said that his club would not trade the free agent market this winter. Following his return from Phoenix, Ariz., where he met with Gary Walker, Jackson's agent, Bavasi said that "as a matter of conscience, we would compensate the Yankees by sending them one of our players. If I send the Yankees a player, it's the same as trading for Jackson."

"There's nothing wrong with this. Where is there any collusion in it? I've already told Reggie and Walker about it and they don't object. There's nothing to stop them from talking to the Yankees. And nobody can tell me I can't compensate the Yankees."

Bavasi said he was "optimistic" about signing the 35-year-old slugger. "He wants very much to play in California," Bavasi said. "It's a matter of money. We're not quite together on it, not too far apart, but we've gone as far as we can."

However, Miller replied that Jackson "doesn't belong to the Yankees. He is a free agent. It can't be a trade. Consider what Bavasi is saying. He's saying to the Angel fans that he intends to weaken his team by giving up a player he doesn't have to give up. And he's giving up the player to the American League champions."

Rain Delays Phoenix; Fall Hurts Steve Melnyk

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — The Phoenix Open lost a half-day and got its schedule knocked out of kilter while veteran pro golfer Steve Melnyk lost much more, a half-year certainly; probably more; possibly a career.

Melnik, a former U.S. and British Amateur champion just getting started on his 12th season as a touring pro, was the first victim of the rain-plagued Phoenix Open Thursday. His golf spikes slipped on a wet, paved walkway as he was leaving the practice green. Melnyk fell heavily and fractured his right elbow.

"The doctor says I'm out for six months to a year," he said after the arm had been put in a cast. The injury, in a critical area for a pro golfer, almost certainly will cost him any chance he has of retaining his playing rights on the all-emptor tour next season and possibly will force him to make another attempt at the tour's qualifying school.

A few hours after his injury, a torrential rainstorm swept over the 6,726-yard Phoenix

Country Club course, flooded tees, greens and bunkers on the flat layout, forcing officials to postpone first round play and juggle the tournament's schedule, setting back the projected finish by a full day.

The schedule now calls for the 72 players stranded on the course by the storm to complete play Friday. The second round will be played Saturday, and the last two rounds Sunday and Monday. The original format called for a Sunday wrap-up.

Larry Nelson led the early finishers with the best round of the young season, an 8-under-par 63. His score, along with the 71 others who completed play before the rain, will stand. All of the afternoon starters were stranded on the course. They marked their positions and were scheduled to resume play from that point today.

Nelson, the current PGA champion, bogeyed his first hole after snap-hooking his second shot, three-putted another green but also recorded 10 birdies. Four of them came after he hit irons inside of four feet. He holed 25-30 foot putts for two more, drove the green on a short par-4 and two-putted for birdie and reached one par-5 in two.

David Soul Can Say, There's Life After Starsky

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Reporter
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Young actors leaving TV series frequently disappear without a trace to become trivia questions in the "what happened to?" category.

Such was the case with the entire cast of "The Mod Squad." Whatever happened to Michael Cole, Peggy Lipton and Clarence Williams III?

Want to try for "The Monkees" with David Jones, Peter Tork, Micky Dolenz and Mike Nesmith? Or how about "My Three Sons" with Tim Considine, Don Grady and Stanley Livingston?

Three years ago "Starsky and Hutch" ended its four-year run. The show's popular stars, David Soul and Paul Michael Glaser, moved on to other pastures.

Glaser has managed to keep something of a low profile.

Soul, on the other hand, has been active, although patiently choosing television movies that bear little or no resemblance to Hutch, the very physical plainclothes cop, he played in the series.

Since the demise of "Starsky and Hutch," Soul has starred in several TV movies and mini-series, playing a professional skier in "Swan Song," a convicted rapist in "Rage," a lawyer in "The Manions of America," a period piece.

He also played a novelist in "Salem's Lot" and a slick advertising agency executive in "Homeward Bound."

Perhaps Soul's most impressive role post "Starsky and Hutch" is that of an ambitious Army colonel in "World War III," a two-part, four-hour NBC miniseries to be telecast on Jan. 31 and Feb. 1.

"The story is taken from today's headlines," Soul said. "It's about the United States grain embargo against the eastern bloc countries and a desperate Soviet Union determined to retaliate."

"Russia's KGB sends a paratroop mission to Alaska to sever the oil pipeline to cut our domestic oil flow by 30 percent. This is, of course, an act of war. And as the colonel in charge of that sector, my character goes into action."

"It's a very tense drama with some wild twists and a surprise ending."

"You ask me if there's life after 'Starsky and Hutch' and I have to say yes — a very interesting, very diversified life. All my roles have been very different from Hutch and I think that's important."

"Not that I'm trying to show any ingratitude to what the character and series did for my career. If it weren't for 'Starsky and Hutch,' nothing that's happened since would have been possible."

All that experience and public exposure gave me lessons in what I didn't want to do once the series was over. I've made a very conscious effort to broaden my career by not playing another cop.

"It hasn't all gone my way, by a long shot. I wanted to play the leads in 'Shogun' and 'The Bunker.' And I wanted very much to play the priest in 'The Thorn Birds.' But those parts went to other actors."

"I go along one step at a time. I'm not interested in deals and sequels and I'm not awed by the thought of doing another series. I may do another series if it measures up, but I'm looking for properties that reflect life and people.

"I'd like to take some chances and try something new."

The project closest to Soul is "Wounded Knee," an account of the 1973 disturbances on the Dakota Indian reservation. He would play a reporter intimately involved in the drama.

Soul, who gives the appearance of quiet composure, is passionately involved in the rights of Indians and their ancestral territorial battles.

Soul's private life has changed as drastically as his professional career since leaving the hit series, which many believed was cancelled because of excessive violence.

Soul was married in October 1980 to the former Patricia Carnel Sherman. They each have two sons from previous marriages.

He has formed his own production company, Topanga Services, and is constantly on the alert for new properties.

"People in this business know I'm a professional. They respect what I do and they're aware my taste is pretty good. There aren't that many young leading men with as much visibility as I have and the ability to handle almost any role."

"You hear a lot of people say, well, then the next step is feature movies."

"I'm not so sure how I feel about that. I have mixed reactions. I'm in the business of communicating, and television, it seems to me, is really the unlimited field for communication today."

"I'd much prefer to do a good television movie or a miniseries than a mediocre movie. I don't want to do a film just for the sake of being able to say I'm starring in a movie."

More people will see "World War III" on the tube in two nights it's on the air than will ever see the movie that wins the Oscar this year for best film.

One of Soul's most interesting projects is a possible reunion with Glaser in a modern adaptation of "Beckett" for a cable TV outfit.

"Paul and I have been real friends and we'd like to work together again," Soul said. "He's a very good guy and a very fine actor."

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — CBS News is engaging in "an extreme case of irresponsible journalism" in an upcoming television program about the 1968 Tet offensive during the Vietnam War, according to retired Gen. William Westmoreland.

Westmoreland, former commander of U.S. forces in Vietnam, was interviewed for the documentary, which contends the public was misinformed about the true strength of the Viet Cong during the Tet offensive.

Westmoreland told The Charleston Evening Post on Thursday that anchorman Mike Wallace "has picked up bits and pieces in order to support a thesis that he and possibly his producer have concocted. It has no substance."

"The report leaves out a great deal of what I said during the interview," Westmoreland continued. "This is a vicious thing and I am both upset and disillusioned."

The "CBS Reports" special, titled "The Uncounted Enemy: A Vietnam Deception," will be aired Saturday.

BIT BAT? — Rock star Ozzy Osbourne is shown in this undated file photo. Osbourne allegedly bit the head off a bat during his concert at Veterans Memorial Auditorium in Des Moines, Iowa Wednesday night. Police said it may have been a publicity stunt; but Osbourne sought medical attention at two area hospitals for possible rabies. A Des Moines Animal Control unit looked for the bat's body after the concert but couldn't find it. (AP Laserphoto)

DATE CHANGED

The Best Choir Union at Simpson Chapel has been rescheduled for the fourth Sunday in February at 7:30 p.m. instead of the first Sunday. The change was made because Sister Mary Joyner will preach her first sermon at Sweet Hope FWB Church on the first Sunday in February.

ATLANTA (AP) — Defense lawyers are suggesting an expert did not do enough legwork before deciding it was "highly unlikely" that fibers found on the bodies of two slain young blacks came from anywhere but the home and car of defendant Wayne Williams.

Larry Peterson, a microanalyst for the Georgia State Crime Laboratory, on Thursday provided the first evidence at the trial that linked Williams to the carpet, blanket and other fibers found on the two victims. The prosecution has said that fiber matchups are a cornerstone of their case.

The 23-year-old black free-lance photographer is charged with the murders of Nathaniel Cater, 27, and Jimmy Ray Payne, 21, two of 28 young blacks whose deaths during a 22-month period have been under investigation by a special police task force. There have been no arrests in the 26 other killings.

Peterson, the 50th witness called by the prosecution, said more than 70 fibers of five different types found on Payne's body were microscopically "consistent" with fibers taken from five different materials found in Williams' home and car. Similarly, he said six fibers of five different types found on Cater's body were "consistent" microscopically with fibers taken from five sources in the Williams' home and car.

Peterson also said five animal hairs found on Payne and seven found on Cater exhibited no significant microscopic differences when compared with hairs plucked from Williams' German shepherd.

Peterson said he thought the only environment that could account for "the combination of fibers and hairs" found on the two victims was "that present in Wayne Williams' home and car."

Under questioning by defense attorney Alvin Binder, however, Peterson acknowledged that there is "no scientific means to draw conclusions from fiber evidence." And he said he could not "eliminate other possible sources" for the fibers found on Payne and Cater.

Binder contended while questioning Peterson that investigators were able to find the fiber connections between Williams and the victims because they looked solely at him and sought no other explanation for the discovery of the fibers on the two bodies.

Binder also asked Peterson, who had testified he personally searched Williams' home twice in June, if he had conducted similar searches of Cater's and Payne's residences for the source of the fibers found on their bodies.

While conceding that he had not, Peterson said police gave him carpet samples from the victims' homes and samples of their clothing and he found no fibers to match those on their bodies.

Binder noted that four of the 10 fiber matchups between the victims and Williams were based on single fibers found on the bodies. And he reminded Peterson about an FBI fiber expert's testimony that single fiber comparisons can be made only if the analyst is assured there has been no contamination of the fiber.

"Have you tested the extent of contamination caused by the Chattahoochee River?" Binder asked.

Peterson said he tested a sample of water from the river, but not until four months after Cater's body was found May 24. Peterson said he found no fibers. He also said he tested a sheet found in the river near Cater's body and found no fibers consistent with those on the two bodies.

Defense is a cooperative venture. Partners must help each other to obtain best results.

South felt that a response of one no trump, showing 9-11 HCP's in his methods, was more descriptive than one diamond. Since North was only a point short of a one no trump opening, he invited game and South, with a good hand and a reasonable five-card suit, accepted.

West led his fourth-best heart. East correctly played the jack and declarer won the king. South led a diamond to the ace and returned the suit. East discarded the queen of spades. Declarer ducked and West won.

It is obvious that a heart continuation would have defeated the contract. But West was worried about the possibility that South had concealed the queen of hearts at trick one. In that case, it would be vital to reach East so that he could lead a heart through the queen. West, therefore, shifted to a spade and declarer gratefully wrapped up nine tricks.

While West was correct in assuming that declarer might hide the queen of hearts, he should not play East for the ace of spades—the discard of the queen denies the ace and merely shows a sequence headed by the lady. If declarer has the ace of spades and the two red kings, he cannot have the queen of hearts as well. Thus, a heart continuation was fairly clear.

But East could have made the matter even easier for partner. The Rule of Eleven makes it obvious that declarer holds only one heart higher than the five. So, West was marked with the ace of hearts, and East could have made the situation crystal clear by discarding the queen of hearts on the second diamond!

Life As It's Lived

Unprepared For All The Household Happenings

By GAIL MICHAELS

I have long theorized that children are like alien beings who, through some mysterious physiological process, increase their own energy by feeding off the energy of their parents. I know that's what happens at my house. The more energy Meg and Zachary have, the less I have. Only when they're asleep do I regain even a semblance of animation.

For years the drain on my energy seemed enough to fortify them, but lately they've begun to draw from other household energy sources as well. I'm not talking about the normal childhood trappings: the nightlights, the humidifiers, or the battery-operated toys. I was prepared for those.

What I wasn't prepared for was a baby who gets his kicks from pulling chairs under the light switches so that he can climb high enough to transform the overhead lights into strobes. He also likes to reset the thermostat to 87. He rolls out the windows when I'm not watching, and I never seem to be watching on the coldest days. I walked onto the nursery during the last snowstorm to find that we had our very own snow flurry over his bed. It took me five minutes just to dig out his stuffed animals.

Then there's the dishwasher. Whenever I start to sweat each time I walk by the kitchen door, I know that Zachary has switched the buttons on the dishwasher from "cool dry" to "sauna."

And Meg is worse than Zachary. She's responsible for the record player which keeps playing four hours after the record stops. She's responsible for the almost perpetual light in the storeroom. "The cats need a nightlight," she wails each time I extinguish the glow. "They'll have bad dreams!"

I, for one do not care if the cats have bad dreams or not. Anything that wades in my chicken broth deserves to have nightmares. I have other things to worry about, such as the inordinate amount of time my refrigerator door spends swaying in the wind nowadays. Unfortunately, Meg is learning late in life that she can actually look for her own snacks.

Until recently I managed to discourage this kind of unwarranted action by keeping little but molded leftovers refrigerated. But the choice of food doesn't seem to matter much any more. I think she just likes to feel the cool breeze on her face. With my very own wattle waster and cold-air crook on hand, I knew ahead of time that our utility bill would do little to warm the cockles of my heart. But receiving it was still a shock. "Your father is going to go through the roof," I groaned. "I hope not," Meg said.

"Then it'll be colder than ever in here." As Phillip stared with a stricken face at the bill before him, I told him that I had come to a realization. "There is only one way to beat the energy crunch." "What's that?" "Stay childless."

Memorial Service For 4 Thunderbirds

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — More than 3,000 friends and relatives of four Air Force Thunderbirds pilots killed in a training maneuver gathered in a cold, wind-swept hangar at Nellis Air Force Base for memorial services.

As the services moved outside to a runway apron Thursday, an honor guard fired a three-shot volley and "Taps" was played.

Then, four F-4 Phantom jets attached to the Nellis Fighter Weapons School streaked over Sunrise Mountain on the southeast side of the base. They pulled up toward the cloud-laden sky and one jet peeled away, leaving the dramatic "missing man" formation symbolizing a lost pilot.

Included in the audience were government and civic leaders from throughout Nevada, many of the 140 former Thunderbirds and members of the Snowbirds, the Canadian Air Force precision flying team.

FOCUS
Forever Young?
Recent discoveries may bring the age-old search for perpetual youth closer to a possible dream. Super-oxide dismutase, or SOD — an enzyme found in organisms from common mold to humans — may hold the key to the secret of aging. Aging occurs when cells cannot repair or reproduce themselves properly. This happens particularly when the DNA in cells is damaged so it cannot give proper "maintenance instructions." SOD protects cells from such damage by destroying certain harmful molecules. Organisms deficient in SOD seem to age more rapidly. But scientists warn that taking SOD pills will not keep you young. If the chemical ever works to slow aging, it will have to come in a form that your digestive system won't break down.

DO YOU KNOW — What Spanish explorer searched for the Fountain of Youth?
THURSDAY'S ANSWER — "Common Law" is based on court decisions instead of legislative statutes.
