MISLEADING — A sign reading "snow emergency route" offered a misleading direction in Minneapolis Saturday after the Minnesota city was hit by a fresh 20-inch snowfall. Lonnie Durham of Minneapolis took it all in stride as he began shoveling out his driveway. Combined with the carryover from a storm on Wednesday, Minneapolis had more than three feet of snow on the ground. (AP Laserphoto)

Peanut Growers Decide On Quotas This Week

By MARY SCHULKEN
Reflector Staff Writer

Peanut producers in North Carolina this week may say nuts to the 1982-85 poundage quotas — quotas that could reduce North Carolina and Pitt County's peanut production by 17 percent.

"Nationally, the peanut legislation being voted on would reduce poundage from 1,440,000 tons to 1,200,000 tons," said Stacy Evans of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service in Greenville. "This is a reduction of around 17 percent and I think this figure would be accurate for Pitt County."

With the reduction, however, producers are guaranteed a price support.

The proposal will be voted on by growers in a referendum running from Monday through Friday, and if the legislation is not approved — as some officials and farmers expect — producers can plant all they want. There will, however, be no peanut program and no price supports.

"It will be a free buyer's market," noted Evans, "and it's a big possibility that the majority of peanuts will be grown under some type of contract."

Under the proposed program, acreages that have been leased out for two of the last three years will be eliminated, along with quotas assigned where there are no tillable acres. In Pitt County, most of these reductions, say officials, will hit small farms.

Many growers say the vote forces them into a "no-win" situation but agriculture officials worry that a negative vote in next week's referendum would put the tobacco program in a precarious position.

"If they (the quotas) are voted down, it might be better or it might be worse," said Sam Uzzell, Pitt extension agent. "A defeat might work right into the hands of those fighting against the farm bill and it might take strength away from the tobacco program."

Watch the peanut program, farmers say, and that's what will happen to the tobacco program.

"This is true," said Evans. "Time after time the peanut program has ridden shotgun for the tobacco program. You can watch what changes are made in peanuts and predict the same in tobacco."

Evans called the referendum one of the "most vital" for agriculture. "We have lots of enemies," he said. "Legislation is hard to get and having this defeated would make it harder."

Ballots have been mailed, said Evans, but eligible voters who have not received their ballots or persons having questions about eligibility should contact the ASCS office in Greenville, 752-6112.

Airliner Skids On Icy Runway In Boston

All Safe After Jet Hits Water

By STEVE WILSON
Associated Press Writer

BOSTON (AP) — A World Airways DC-10 carrying at least 208 people skidded off the end of an icy runway and plunged its nose into Boston Harbor Saturday night as it landed at Logan International Airport, authorities said. No one was seriously hurt.

Police said all the passengers were rescued from the plane, which came to rest partially submerged in the freezing sea water at about 7:30 p.m.

"God certainly has been good to us," said one woman clutching a baby.

At least 11 people were taken to hospitals in Boston and nearby Winthrop. But Jo Ryan, a spokeswoman for the Massachusetts Port Authority, said none of the injuries appeared to be serious.

World Airways Flight 30 had originated in Honolulu, stopped in Oakland, Calif., and Newark, N.J., before landing at Boston, its final destination.

Only the rear of the plane was visible in the water at the end of the runway, but most people on board slid down chutes from the rear of the craft and waded ashore through knee-deep water.

Many passengers, shaken but unhurt, were taken away from the accident scene on buses and vans. Some were still wearing inflatable life vests.

"The plane slid off the end of the runway," said one snowplow operator. "When I got there, there were people there getting passengers out of the water."

The accident occurred as the plane landed in light rain and fog on an ice-glazed runway at the harborside airport. The National Weather Service said the visibility was 1 1/2 miles.

Flight attendant Bobbie Sue Griffey said the runway "was very icy."

Carolyn Walden, another port authority spokeswoman, said the plane carried 196 passengers and 12 crew members. A spokesman for the National Transportation Safety Board in Washington gave the same figures.

Logan International Airport was closed after the accident.

Witnesses said one of the aircraft's engines continued to run as the plane rested in the water.

The U.S. Coast Guard dispatched six boats to aid the rescue.

A National Transportation Safety Board team was being dispatched from Washington to investigate the accident.

On Jan. 13, an Air Florida Boeing 737 bound for Fort Lauderdale and Tampa, Fla., crashed on takeoff in a snowstorm from National Airport in Washington, D.C.

The plane hit the 14th Street Bridge spanning the Potomac River and cartwheeled into the water. Seventy-four people aboard the plane and four on the bridge were killed. Five people aboard the plane survived.

It was the first fatal crash at National since 1949 and only the third since the airport opened in 1940. National, like Logan, is a close-in airport, 10-15 minutes away from downtown and controversial because of noise and congestion.

In July 1973, a Delta Airlines DC-9 crashed in fog on landing at Logan Airport, with a death toll of 88.

A fire broke out in the landing gear of an Atlanta-bound Delta Airlines DC-8 as it rolled out for takeoff at Logan in May 1980 and the 87 passengers aboard were evacuated via emergency chutes without injury.

A Trans World Airlines L-1011 with 118 passengers and an 11-person crew made an emergency landing at the airport in March 1980 after its pilot reported smoke in the plane. There were no injuries.

In February 1980, a British Britannia turboprop cargo plane crashed minutes after taking off from Logan, killing seven people and leaving one injured.

A DC-10 was involved in the worst crash in U.S. history in May 1979, when 273 people were killed when an American Airlines plane lost an engine and crash after taking off from Chicago.

The worst single-plane crash in history also involved a DC-10, when a plane crashed outside Paris in March 1974, killing 346 people.

A Western Airlines DC-10 crashed at Mexico City on Oct. 31, 1979, killing 73 people when the jetliner landed on a runway that had been closed.

Arab Tensions Rise

By The Associated Press

King Hussein of Jordan cut short a Persian Gulf tour at Bahrain, his first stop, and made plans to fly home Sunday, officials said. The Bahrain government gave no reason for the decision, but officials said privately it was related to increasing border tensions between Jordan and Syria.

Hussein also was to visit the United Arab Emirates, Qatar and Oman.

In Tunis, Tunisia, the Arab League postponed until Feb. 7 an emergency foreign ministers meeting scheduled for Sunday. League sources said Syria requested the postponement to avoid conflict with a U.N. Security Council meeting Thursday that is to schedule a special General Assembly session.

Syria asked for the Arab League and General Assembly sessions after the United States vetoed a Security Council resolution Wednesday approving voluntary sanctions against Israel. Syria wants the international community to force Israel to rescind its Dec. 14 annexation of the occupied Syrian Golan Heights.

Diplomatic observers said the strained relations between pro-Soviet Syria and pro-Western Jordan lessen the chances of a productive Arab League session.

On Friday Syria charged that that gunmen protected by covering fire from the Jordanian army slipped into southern Syria and raided an army patrol, killing a Syrian officer and a soldier.

Jordan issued a formal denial Saturday. It quoted "travelers and eyewitnesses" as saying the gunbattle near the southern Syrian city of Deraa involved renegade Syrian soldiers fighting Syrian security troops.

Hussein's government earlier this month accused Syrian intelligence agents of planting a string of bombs that exploded in the Jordanian capital, injuring six people.

Syria and Jordan made warlike moves 15 months ago. (Please turn to A-2)

Brink's Guard Killed In Holdup

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Two armed robbers held up a Brink's truck Saturday and fatally shot one of its guards, police said.

An undetermined amount of cash and receipts was taken in the robbery outside a St. Petersburg shopping mall, said St. Petersburg communications supervisor Sharon Osborn.

Police said guard Joe Lewis Warner, 44, was wounded during a gunfire exchange as he returned with a money bag to the armored truck. He was taken to St.

Petersburg General Hospital, where he died, said Sgt. Tom Gavin, a police spokesman.

The second guard, who was not identified, was unhurt, police said.

The heist was the first Brink's robbery in Florida in at least 10 years, said Brink's spokesman Earl Lister.

Police described the two suspects as white males in their late 20s or early 30s. Their van reportedly had license tags stolen from a vehicle taken three days ago from the Jacksonville area.

"We just love our mailman," the church secretary said, "but ..."

But what? It seems that every time one turns there is a complaint about the U.S. Postal Service. But is it really that bad?

Postmaster Lloyd Mills certainly doesn't think so.

"This office doesn't get that many very serious complaints," Mills said.

Mills said the main post office "won't average one" complaint a day, and that most of the gripes received are "frivolous."

Most of the complaints actually recorded, he said, have to do with such matters as coin-operated machines that don't work to the postal patron's satisfaction. In many cases, he said, "That is the result of customers not taking the time to read them."

A sampling of Greenville business and office personnel showed an equal split in opinion over postal service. For each respondent who, when asked his or her opinion of the service, burst into giggles or snorts of exasperation there was one who came back with praise.

Some samples of that sampling:

"Most of the time, whenever we've asked for things to be sent in by fast-mail, it's been here. On a day-to-day basis, service is good," said John Langley, who helps coordinate mail services at Pitt County Memorial Hospital.

Langley said the hospital uses the Postal Service for some of its shipments involving emergency supplies, but also uses other types of carriers.

But there was a legal secretary, who asked that her name not be used, still seething over a lapse in mail processing last spring.

"It seems to me they're putting up the price to make the service worse," the secretary said. "We've had mail dropped off at the wrong place ... We've had several things that must have been misplaced because they never arrived."

"Back in the first quarter when I was sending out reports, I mailed them on the 30th of April. When they arrived I got a note saying they were 28 days late. They never left Greenville until May 28!" she said.

"Just fine, the service is good," said Sadie Ray Allen of Parker and Allen Construction Co.

"I think it's absolutely horrible," one businessman replied before deciding he didn't want to say more, noting: "I know a lot of people up there at the post office."

"We've been getting our mail delivered the next day. I think that overall it's excellent service, although we're slow some time on packages," said Roger Mann of Rivers & Associates.

Bob Pinkson of Nationwide Insurance Company's Greenville district office expressed a mild complaint.

"Our problem is we work on assignments out of Raleigh. Mail is supposed to be up in the boxes at 8:30 (a.m. in the 10th Street post office). It's usually 9:15 or so before it gets there, and we have five or six people sitting here waiting for their assignments," Pinkson said.

None of those contacted had filed formal complaints with the Postal Service, although a couple said they had discussed problems with postal representatives.

Why no complaint? Pinkson responded, "People say, 'What's the use?'"

In general, those contacted expressed a preference for the 10th Street post office over the main unit downtown.

But, regardless of their personal assessments of service, almost all of those contacted who have local deliveries agreed with the church secretary's opinion of her letter carrier: "We love our mailman. He is really super nice."

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Federal officials have opened an inquiry into charges of grade-rigging at the Federal Aviation Administration's air controller academy here, according to a report published Sunday.
The probe was requested by U.S. Rep. William Ford, D-Mich., after a preliminary review by his Post Office and Civil Service Committee found indications that grades of 14 student controllers were altered.
The Ford report concludes the grades were changed from failing to passing by a high FAA academy official and condoned by others to save embarrassment and to bolster the agency's "sagging public image."
Dick Schoenfeld, a spokesman for the Transportation Department Inspector General Joseph Welsch, said the investigation by the department would be "wide-ranging" and "will probably take at least two months," the Sunday Oklahoman said.
The newspaper said investigators from the inspector general's Washington D.C. office will arrive in Oklahoma City within two weeks to conduct interviews and to review test materials.
Academy spokesman Mark Weaver declined comment on the inquiry or the congressional committee's report until the federal probe is completed.
The FAA has maintained that seven grades were changed through a faulty reading by a computer's "optical scanner" and that seven lab test scores were changed because of "questionable" answers.
After an internal probe, FAA Administrator J. Lynn Helms announced late last year that "there was no manipulation of scores and no intent to manipulate those scores."

Ford investigators rejected the FAA findings, citing departures from standard procedure by FAA officials, the fact the grading computer "worked flawlessly," and that seven students' scores were changed a second time after grade-rigging charges sparked a controversy.
A letter from Ford to the inspector general also concluded that "an additional 12 computer answer sheets were altered after it became apparent that the grades and grading procedures would be reviewed independently."
The Ford committee said officials were motivated to increase the passing ratio because of "significant pressure" to graduate a large class of students to fill gaps left by striking air traffic controllers.

ago, rolling tanks and truckloads of troops to their common border, but Saudi Arabian diplomats persuaded both sides to pull back.
Syrian President Hafez Assad has accused Hussein of allowing fundamentalist Moslem Brotherhood opponents of Assad's regime to operate from Jordan.
The Arab League's previous meeting last November was called off several hours after it opened in Fez, Morocco because Syria and four other Arab nations refused to send heads of state to discuss a Saudi Arabian Middle East peace plan.
League sources say the situation is likely to be reversed this time, with Saudi Arabia the chief stumbling block to a unanimous action by the 21-member Arab League.

Freezing Rain Coats Highways

By United Press International
A freezing rain that covered some areas of North Carolina with up to half an inch of ice Saturday created hazardous driving conditions in the state's mountains and Piedmont and caused at least one death.
Temperatures in the Piedmont remained in the mid to high 30s Saturday afternoon and the National Weather Service said a traveler's advisory was still in effect for the northwest Piedmont and northern foothills. The advisory was discontinued in the mountains, coastal plain, northeast and southern Piedmont areas where temperatures ranged from the low 40s to the mid 50s.
A wedge of cold air associated with high pressure from New England caused the icy conditions, the weather service said. Drier air was expected to bring some clearing to the state Saturday night. The weather service predicted temperatures Sunday would range from the 20s in the northern mountains, where a chance of snow flurries existed, to the 50s in the southeast.
The freezing rain began falling Friday night and continued into Saturday with hundreds of traffic accidents reported, including two fatalities.

The Highway Patrol said 2-year-old April Daron Lanford of Walnut Cove was killed Friday night in an auto accident on U.S. 311 in Stokes County. Authorities said the wreck occurred when a car skidded on ice and collided headon with the auto in which the child was a passenger.
Linda K. Stamper, 25, of Lexington, Ky., died Friday night in a similar accident on ice-covered Interstate 85 near Hillsborough, but patrol officials did not attribute the incident to the poor weather conditions.
An accident near the Orange County fatality involved Trooper Wayne Moore. The patrolman was not seriously injured, but the ambulance transporting him to Durham County General Hospital collided with a truck on I-85 in Durham. No one was hurt and the ambulance continued to the hospital.

Park Charged In Break-In
Two men have been charged with one count each of breaking and entering in connection with a Dec. 30 incident at Rose's Department store in Pitt Plaza.
Patrolman K.R. Evans identified the two men as Mack Ray Little, 17, of 700-A Imperial St. and Tony Alonza Edwards, 18, of 1907-A Norcott Circle. Evans said the store's display window was broken by a cinder block.
Bond for Edwards was set at $1,000 and for Little $5,000. Both will be tried Feb. 1.

Accidents Investigated

Two traffic accidents caused minor damage to vehicles Friday.
Richard S. Rahm, 23, of 1202 Fairfield Ave. was charged with failure to reduce speed after his car collided with one belonging to Charles H. Buck, 49, of 120 Greenwood St. Police estimated damage to the Buck car was $50, while damage to the Rahm vehicle was $1,000.
Police charged Richard J. Scoppe, 24, of 209 N. Oak St. with failure to yield the right of way after a collision at the intersection of Second and Reade streets.
According to police, Scoppe's car entered the intersection after stopping for a stop sign and struck a car belonging to Gerard H. Alberts, 22, of 100 N. Jarvis St., causing $500 damage to the Alberts vehicle and $400 damage to the Scoppe car.

Jones Wants Coast Guard Units Saved

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. Rep. Walter B. Jones, D-N.C., says he plans to introduce legislation this week to keep open a number of Coast Guard installations that are to be closed in a cost-cutting move.

The Coast Guard is faced with a 1982 budget that is $42 million less than it requested. It announced those cutbacks on Thursday.

Several North Carolina installations, including the search and rescue station at Swansboro, are on the list.

Jones, chairman of the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee, said his bill would seek to add sufficient funds to the Coast Guard budget to keep operations at current levels.

The Coast Guard said it planned to close two district offices, 15 search and rescue stations and 105 vessel documentation offices, and decommission 11 cutters. Also, budgets for 16 other stations would be reduced.

Molly Dominick, press secretary for Jones' committee, said North Carolina installations on the shutdown list, in addition to the Swansboro station, are commercial vessel safety documentation offices in Elizabeth City, Washington, Wilmington and Beaufort-Morehead City.

Also on the list in the state are the Merchant Marine licensing certification office in Wilmington and the boating safety detachment office at Fort Macon.

Also, the Aid to Navigation Team at Fort Macon would be disassembled, and Coast Guard recruiting offices at Charlotte, Asheville, Wilmington and Elizabeth City would be closed, Dominick said.

FIRE DAMAGE — The Yamaha of Greenville Dealership, 1506 N. Greene St., sustained heavy fire, smoke and water damage in a Saturday night fire. The Greenville Fire Department dispatched two trucks at 6:47 p.m. to answer the call. Firefighters arriving at the scene found the front of the building engulfed in heavy smoke and quickly extinguished the blaze. The owner of the building was not available for a damage estimate. The investigation of the cause of the fire was continuing. (Reflector photo by Tommy Forrest.)

Food, Heavy Industry Yield Less Than Expected

Soviets Fall Short Of Targets

By BRYAN BRUMLEY
Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet economy failed dismally to meet key production targets for food and heavy industry last year, portending a leaner than expected 1982 for already strapped consumers, statistics released Saturday showed.

Agricultural production fell by 2 percent in 1981, the Central Statistical Board announced in the government newspaper Izvestia. The paper notably failed to report grain production, signaling another disastrous harvest.

President Leonid I. Brezhnev has already said that last year's grain harvest was "poor," virtually guaranteeing continuing shortages of meat, milk and eggs. The poor harvest also will force Moscow to continue spending hard currency reserves on imported grain.

Western agronomists in Moscow estimated that the Kremlin will have to import at least $6 billion worth of grain, $2.5 billion in sugar and $1 billion in meat this year.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture has estimated the Soviet grain harvest at 175 million tons, well short of the target of 239-243 million tons.

Instead of releasing a grain harvest figure, Izvestia said, "Government reserves of grain are fully adequate to guarantee delivery to the population of the country an adequate supply of bread products."

Historically Soviet farmers have produced enough grain for bread but not enough to feed livestock.

Overall, the Soviet economy continued to grow but more slowly than planned. National income rose by 3.2 percent over 1980, compared to the targeted 3.4 percent. Industrial production rose by 3.4 percent, compared to the goal of 4.1 percent.

The bleak overall economic figures come as the Kremlin pumped more of its own badly needed food and raw materials into neighboring Poland's failing economy.

Production of milk — along with bread, a mainstay in the Soviet diet — fell to 88.5 million tons from 90.9 million tons the year before. The 1981 production of meat, while up marginally from the year before, was well below the planned average yield of 97-99 million tons for the five-year plan, which runs from 1981 to 1985.

At the end of 1981, even in relatively well-stocked Moscow, butter and eggs were missing from grocery shelves for weeks on end. Egg production missed the target and was even short of the goal the state set for its farmers in 1980.

The harvests of sugar beets, potatoes, fruits, and other farm products were also below target, promising to add to the woes of Moscow shoppers who already grumble about the poor quality of the produce available.

On many days even fatty sausage is not available in food stores and when it is long lines form outside the shops.

Western diplomats were not surprised by the poor performance, which they said continued a six-year slowdown in Soviet economic growth.

Particularly significant, they said, were the agricultural picture, the sluggish growth in the Soviet energy industry, and the disappointing productivity of the Soviet worker.

The official Soviet news agency Tass reported that 80 percent of Soviet industrial growth last year resulted from a rise in labor productivity, up by 2.7 percent but well below the goal of 3.6 percent.

In addition to lagging harvest figures, farm productivity also fell by 2 percent.

A key to Soviet heavy industrial output, the generation of electricity, rose from 1.295 billion kilowatt-hours in 1980 to 1.325 billion kilowatt-hours last year, also short of the planned goal.

Of the Soviet fossil fuels, only natural gas exceeded expectations. Oil production rose to 609 million metric tons — 12.18 million barrels a day — last year, a record, but fell marginally below the target of 610 million metric tons — 12.06 million barrels a day.

Coal production slipped dramatically from 716 million tons in 1980 to 704 million tons last year, far short of the 738 million-ton target.

Steel production was also below target, 149 million tons, a slight rise over 148 million tons in 1980.

School Where Six Died To Close

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla. (AP) — An elementary school where an explosion killed five students and a teacher has bitter memories for the community and probably will stay closed, school officials said Saturday.

School board member Dr. Delbert Hamm said reopening Star Elementary School in Spencer is "definitely the last alternative."

Phil George, a spokesman for the Oklahoma City public school system, said Saturday that School Superintendent Tom Payzant decided to move the 270 students from Star to portable buildings at the Rogers Middle School two miles away in northeastern Oklahoma.

Classes for the students would begin at the new location Thursday, George said, and probably would continue there for the rest of the school year.

School board vice president Betty Hill said the move was necessary because, "It would take an awful lot to get it (Star) ready."

"And there are a lot of painful, bitter memories there," she said.

"I think the parents have expressed the sentiments of the rest of the board members," Hamm said. "We were hoping to close that school and we don't want our kids going back there."

Lawsuits totaling more than $6.5 million already have been filed in connection with the explosion. The site of the water heater explosion in the cafeteria kitchen was opened Saturday to plaintiffs, prospective plaintiffs and their lawyers.

An Oklahoma City district judge dismissed a petition Friday filed by the parents of Paul Motes, 9, who died in the explosion. James and Margaret Motes had asked to monitor the investigation of the cause of the noontime blast.

The parents of two injured students, Christine Murphy, 10, and Ricky Reagan, 9, filed two lawsuits Friday, seeking damages against the city.

Social Program Could Result In Efficiency

If government sources quoted by the Associated Press are correct, President Reagan may this week recommend major changes in social financing which would involve the federal government taking over all financing of the huge Medicaid program.

In exchange for that the states would take full responsibility for welfare programs including food stamps.

If the reports are correct, the proposals would be presented by the president in his State of the Union address on Tuesday. Of course, changes could be made before the address is made, depending on the feedback the White House gets.

There is also reported to be a plan to give the states lump sums of federal funds in exchange for taking over up to 40 social programs in health, education and elsewhere. The sources say this would be financed through excise tax increases on tobacco, alcohol, long-distance telephone service and possibly on luxury items.

As preliminary as all that is at this point, it doesn't sound bad to us. The states, and their county and city governmental units, have been responsible for basic welfare programs since the beginnings of the nation. It stands to reason that these programs can be conducted better and more efficiently by the states. On the other hand the concept of publicly financed medical care has received more focus at the federal level. If the federal government is going to operate Medicare, through Social Security, then it makes sense that it handle Medicaid rather than splitting the responsibility with the states.

There are those who argue that the states, particularly Southern states, won't act responsibly in administering social programs unless the federal government is looking over their shoulders. We don't believe that at all. If the money is available, we believe the state governments, which are closest to the problems, will do what has to be done.

Closed Auto Plant Gives No Security

It is incredible to us that the talks between the United Auto Workers and General Motors have collapsed.

UAW President Douglas Fraser announced last week that talks had ended and said they were deadlocked over economic and job security issues.

The hope was that the talks would lead to union concessions which would allow the auto manufacturers to become more competitive in auto sales. General Motors had hoped to reduce prices by $1,000 to $1,200.

Surely the auto workers must realize that U.S. auto manufacturers are in severe trouble. They are not able to sell their product in face of foreign made cars which cost less.

Labor concessions are going to have to come if the auto manufacturers are to stay in business. There is no economic or job security in a closed auto assembly plant.

Sunday Morning Notes

Moving is always a hassle. There are few of us who haven't been through it and fewer still who enjoy the process. Everything has to be packed up. Then when you need something it can't be found. The process of moving can upset one's life for days on end.

Moving doesn't always mean from one house to another, across town or across the country. It can be a shift right in the same building. Such was the case for your columnist last weekend. The plan was to install new carpet in my office at the newspaper building. That seems simple enough ... except everything had to be packed up and desks cleared so the furniture could be moved out of the office.

All that went as planned. The furniture was moved out and the new carpet was installed during the weekend. Then the furniture was moved back in place so that when I came in Monday morning I could admire the carpet and go to work. The only problem was everything that I needed was packed in boxes.

Nevertheless I did the best I could. Then Pat Wilkins from the front office stuck her head in the door to announce that I had my first call of the day. She went back to the front switchboard to transfer the call and I waited ... and waited ... and waited. Nothing happened. Then it occurred to me what was wrong. In this age of modular phone jacks I had stuffed the phone, cord and all, in a desk drawer.

Frantically I yanked the phone from the drawer, plugged in the jack and, lo and behold, it rang. I picked it up. It was the boss. "Boy, it takes you a long time to get to the phone," he commented.

It wasn't so much me getting to the phone as it was getting the phone to me.

A Help Wanted ad appeared in Monday's edition. It read:

"PITT COUNTY Schools need an experienced certified emotionally handicapped teacher."

Tuesday a different version showed up:

"PITT COUNTY Schools need an experienced certified teacher for emotionally handicapped children."

One of the things that went wrong with the carpet installation process was the door to my office. It needed to be shortened to make way for the higher carpet so it was left off the hinges for a few days.

"Is this your new open door policy?" a visitor asked.

Well, doors are not necessary when one wants to hide. It is, after all, easy enough to crawl under the desk.

Havelock Is State's Fastest Growing City

RALEIGH — What do pleasant bodies of water, mountains, golf and government jobs have in common?

They attract people. The fastest growing areas of North Carolina during the decade of the '70s offered one or another of those attractions.

The fastest growing city was Havelock, way down on the Neuse River in Craven County. Population of that area occupied a mere spot on the map in 1970. Total population was 3,012. The 1980 census reported a population of 17,718. That is growth of nearly 500 percent, and makes Havelock one of the state's major small cities along with such better known and long-established places as Shelby, Statesville, Concord, Hickory, Lexington, etc.

The second fastest growing city was Cary, a bedroom community for government and university employees in the Raleigh area. Once a crossroads on the route from Raleigh to Chapel Hill, Cary grew from 7,640 people in 1970 to 21,612 in 1980. That's growth of 183 percent.

Several other coastal counties reported tremendous growth as resort and retirement living beckoned. Currituck was up 59 percent with a population of 11,000. Dare grew by 91 percent to a population of 13,377. Brunswick leaped nearly 50 percent to a population of 35,767.

Meanwhile, in the western mountains, other resort and retirement attractions drew strong growth, but not so spectacular as that on the coast.

Henderson County reached nearly 60,000 people while growing at a 37 percent rate. Watauga County grew by 35 percent to a total of 31,678. Stokes and Macon both enjoyed steady growth, too.

Back in the state's mid-section, Moore County with its many golf courses and horse ranches climbed nearly 30 percent to a total of more than 50,000 people.

Orange County grew 34 percent to a total of 77,055 with a combination of retirement attractions and university jobs.

Figures from the North Carolina Data Center analyzing the 1980 census show some Tar Heel communities actually lost population at a time when growth was a common thing.

Policy analysts will spend a lot of time mulling the loss factors, especially in light of overall growth which saw the state turn around on the past when overall population loss was the rule to show steady gains at the rate of 15 percent, the highest in 50 years.

The most obvious situation is that certain cities lost population even while the county in which they are located gained population. Dispersal of population and job opportunities to rural locations can account for some of that.

But another likely conclusion is that some cities have allowed their city limits to stagnate and efforts to expand in area and population have fallen behind.

Asheville dropped nearly 8 percent, losing some 4,500 residents to a present population of 53,281. Concord lost 8.2 percent to a population of 16,942.

Lenoir dropped about 1,000 people, down 6.5 percent to a population of 13,748. Shelby also lost 1,000, down 6.2 percent to a population of 15,310.

Lexington dropped nearly 9 percent, losing 1,500 people to a population of 15,711. Statesville lost nearly 7 percent, down to 18,622. Henderson lost some 300 people to fall 2.7 percent to a total of 13,522.

Running-Wild Interest Rates Haunt Reagan

WASHINGTON — A spectre is haunting Ronald Reagan's White House — a spectre of interest rates once again running away and choking off economic recovery, insuring a Republican debacle in the mid-term elections and suffocating the Reagan revolution.

The same advisers who have encircled President Reagan and — apparently but not absolutely — forced him into a politically masochistic tax-increase program are not at all sure their program will work. That could be the beginning of wisdom for them at least to entertain the possibility that $50 billion budget increments are meaningless in a $3 trillion economy and that the problem lies elsewhere.

"Elsewhere" is an unfathomable morass: monetary policy. Ignorant though they are of the nuances, the president's men have slowly come to appreciate that there is something wrong with the Federal Reserve Board's spectacularly-unsuccessful efforts to regulate an ephemeral "money supply." In short, it is asked at the White House whether the Fed may be the problem, not the solution.

Yet, in the long, hard hours on the economy spent at the White House since the first of the year, monetary policy is not mentioned. "We don't have time," a senior aide told us, pointing to the Feb. 8 budget deadline. Thus, policymakers have been buried in trivia: Shall we tax all alcoholic beverages or exempt beer? Shall we put a minimum tax on corporations? Shall we resurrect those "loophole closers" ignored by Congress last September?

They also have been engaged in surrounding Ronald Reagan so that he appears the only rebel against increasing taxes. The encirclement was completed when Treasury Secretary Donald

T. Regan, the last holdout, agreed to a 5 billion package of consumer taxes. Even so, the White House inner circle has fingers crossed that the president will follow his advisers and not his instincts.

Assuming Reagan does succumb, it connotes a triumph for one of the administration's most influential, least publicized figures: Dr. Lawrence A. Kudlow, associate director at the Office of Management and Budget (OMB). His six-month struggle to blame high interest rates not on the Fed but on budget deficits is on the brink of yielding a Reagan tax increase.

Kudlow's remarkable success may be attributed to past refusal of nearly everybody else, including many economic policymakers, to discuss monetary policy. "I don't do windows," has been their reaction when that arcane subject is introduced.

But on the eve of Reagan's expected debut as a tax-increaser, the monetary spectre has been sighted at the White House. Confidence has faded in Kudlow's claims that tax increases will suppress interest rates. Nor is there much hope (except perhaps for Reagan himself) in Treasury claims that the forthcoming income tax cuts voted last year will perk up the economy.

Rather, the renewed climb of interest rates has planted fears among the president's men: that Wall Street gloom merchant Henry Kaufman may be right in predicting 20 percent interest rates this year; that there may be no real 1982 economic recovery; that there is no certainty budget deficits have much to do with it.

But no clear monetary path is marked out for the Reagan aides. Having ruled out dollar convertibility to gold as the means of monetary stabilization, they fear the only alternative to the Fed's present policies in an inflationary expansion of money.

Why?

WASHINGTON (AP) — All the administration had to do was nothing and the issue of tax exemptions for racially segregated private schools would have remained a matter for the Supreme Court, with the politicians safely on the sidelines.

Instead, that issue has been added to the list of troublesome social questions to be confronted by Congress in an election year — and this one is likely to be particularly troublesome for President Reagan's own Republicans.

An election-time debate on the civil rights sensitivities of a Republican administration is not going to help the GOP. It is no problem for the members of Congress whose positions are frozen — for Southern conservatives who had been pressing for the tax exemptions or for liberals who argue that to grant them is to subsidize segregation.

The more difficult spot is that of the centrist senators and representatives, who are going to make some constituents angry no matter which side they choose. It is a debate, and a vote, the Republicans didn't have to face, at least not now, and not as a controversy generated by their administration.

The episode stems from the deregulation drive of an administration pledged and determined to cut away at the rule-making power wielded by federal agencies. That was a Reagan campaign promise and the administration boasts of progress toward fulfilling it. But in the case of the school tax exemptions, that political goal obscured the greater political peril of reversing an 11-year-old federal policy.

The Republican campaign platform included a pledge to end "the unconstitutional regulatory vendetta" against independent schools, blaming it all on the Carter administration. But the Internal Revenue Service policy that denied tax exemptions to private schools and colleges that discriminate on the basis of race was instituted during the presidency of Republican Richard M. Nixon.

As recently as September, the Justice Department had described the IRS position as legally sound. Two Southern schools with admittedly discriminatory policies challenged the IRS rule, and the Supreme Court agreed to hear their appeals. A ruling was expected by next summer.

But the administration stepped in Jan. 8, advising the court it was revoking the IRS regulation that was under appeal. The rule had been upheld by lower federal courts, but the Justice Department said those rulings were moot because the policy was being rescinded.

Deputy Secretary of the Treasury Robert McNamara said the policy was reversed because "this kind of judgment — which may mean life or death for certain organizations — is fundamentally a question for Congress."

Four days later, Reagan announced that he would propose and push legislation to deny tax-exempt status to discriminatory schools. That amounted to a request that Congress undo what the administration had just done.

In keeping with the policy of deregulation, that makes some sense; the administration has held all along that rules should be made by law and not by appointed officials.

The whole exercise raised an issue neither the administration nor Congress needs, and left an impression of disarray and miscalculation at the White House.

Nader Keeps An Eye On Deregulation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Since he took office, President Reagan has been trying to wipe out what he calls "over regulation" by the federal government and red tape that hamstring business.

He has placed Vice President George Bush in overall charge of the watchdog operation to rid the government of excess regulations, waste, abuse and fraud.

But consumer advocate Ralph Nader has written Reagan that his administration is displaying "a brand of anti-consumer extremism that would make the people of Nixon and Ford administrations blush with shame."

In his letter to Reagan, Nader said that in the name of "regulatory reform" there will be "more American casualties from dangerous products, more ripoffs, and more anti-competitive price rises for hard-pressed American consumers to suffer from."

But Reagan has contended he has a "mandate" to eliminate excessive government regulations. It has been a burning issue with him to free the economy from most governmental restraints to permit a wider play of competitive forces.

Every few weeks, he issues a report on the strides his appointees are making in cutting down the paperwork involved in carrying out the regulations that have become a part of the system for some 40 years.

Assistant White House press secretary Mark Weinberg said, "The president believes that much federal regulation is wasteful and unnecessary and that the consumer's best protection is not a growing federal bureaucracy but a free and competitive economy."

Weinberg said the administration will not hesitate to issue and enforce regulations where there is a real evidence of need.

One case in point, Nader said, is the requirement that American consumers "be exposed to the costs and risks of $50 billion Alaskan Natural Gas Pipeline, while the corporate owners of the pipeline reap the profits."

"Throughout our country, helpless people, children, the elderly, the disabled and millions of other innocent consumers are being denied the protection of their national government," he said.

"In the name of government intrusion, your administration has launched an unprecedented assault on regulations designed to protect consumers against unsafe automobiles, hazardous consumer products, shoddy merchandise and deceptive or unfair business practices," Nader charged.

He said that protective regulations in the automobile field have been dropped along with many proposals to increase air safety, including reducing the number of hours pilots can fly from 70 hours a week to 40 hours a week.

Nader said that the Consumer Product Safety Commission has been severely affected by a 30 percent reduction in its staff. In terms of regulation, he said, the commission has eased rules governing safety on power lawnmowers, and shelved plans for fire safety regulations on upholstered furniture.

In the nutrition and food safety area, Nader said the administration had derailed proposals that would have improved nutritional labeling, approved a sweetener about which numerous questions remain, slashed the woman-infant children feeding program for low income pregnant women, and cut back on school lunch programs.

Nader commended the administration for blocking further increases in milk price supports, but criticized the administration for approving sugar price supports which he said will raise sugar prices by 25 percent in the stores.

"Catering to the demands of the drug industry, the administration has proposed to eliminate the patient package insert program which would provide consumers with information about the attributes and potential hazards of frequently prescribed drugs," Nader said.

To the editor:

I want to express a special "thank you" to The Daily Reflector for your concern in the placement of homeless animals by the publication of the "Adopt-a-Pet" column.

I recently experienced the success of the column when I advertised a stray dog that was residing at my house. Two ads brought five calls and a home for the dog.

I want to urge all people to take advantage of this publication offered as a public service by your newspaper. Before you take an animal to the shelter, give it a chance at a loving home. I think you will be surprised at the results this column brings.

I would also like to give special recognition to a person who devotes her time to the Pitt County Humane Society — Barbara Haddock.

A lot of people don't realize that this society is comprised of volunteers like her who are concerned over the care of our dependent creatures. There are no paid positions. The rewards come in the form of personal satisfaction from defending the defenseless.

Thanks again to Barbara and The Daily Reflector for showing they care!

Good Samaritans are alive and well, despite today's stories to the contrary!

Here's proof:

On Jan. 13, we were returning to Raleigh after a meeting in Manteo when our car skidded on icy pavement on the Neuse River Bridge on Highway 64 just east of Raleigh, and stopped in the adjacent ditch off the highway.

Three cars stopped immediately and four very welcome good Samaritans emerged to offer their help.

We did not get the addresses of the two from Greenville and Williamston, but would like them and everyone to know of our appreciation for their kindness and concern. Despite the fact they were hurrying to the State-Carolina basketball game, they risked possible difficulty themselves to offer whatever help was needed.

We would like to thank them very, very much for their help. We are deeply grateful.

On Jan. 18, at approximately 1:45 p.m., I drove up in front of Fashion Fabrics. I pulled the emergency brake up in my car and went into the store. The next minute a man ran into the store and asked who owned a Chevette.

My car had rolled back out of the parking lot and half-way onto the highway, when a gentleman jumped out of his car and threw his weight against my car to stop it. I ran out and unlocked my car to hold the brake down.

I was unable to thank this man who graciously took the time to stop my car from causing an accident.

Please publish this so that he will know I greatly appreciate what he did.

To the editor:

Coleman McCarthy related in his Sunday, January 17th, Washington Post column the story of an American student who witnessed brutalities by the Salvadorian Army against its own civilian population.

Philippe Bourgois (a young anthropologist from New York City) traveled with a group of 700 peasants who fled their country while being pursued by machine-gun helicopters supplied by our government as well as by U.S. trained Salvadorian troops.

Once again it seems we hear conflicting reports about U.S. involvement in a far away country most of us know little about. Our government tells us we are supporting defenders of freedom. But reports from various news agencies tell a grisly story of a government exterminating its own people.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — At the end of the year, there is a temptation for reporters to list things — best movies, best dressed, top news events. A favorite year-round game among congressional reporters is listing the best and worst senators.

That is a tricky, and often unfair, undertaking since it depends entirely on the definition of best and worst. Usually it follows the ideological lines of the author.

There are 100 senators, from Abdor to Zorinsky, and although those two, for instance, are not considered well known or particularly effective, members are the supreme commanders of their own offices and usually generals in their state's political hierarchy.

A senator who shuns the limelight and introduces few bills less often is far more effective than one who sponsors a lot of bills, makes a lot of floor speeches and has a position on every issue from abortion to zip codes.

The first type often is an expert on a few areas who fashions legislation through quiet compromise. The second often is someone who couldn't get approval for a resolution honoring motherhood. It is the proverbial difference between a workhorse and a showhorse.

Their public images aside, senators most often are considered successful or not by how much attention they pay to constituent services — finding lost checks or arranging White House tours — and

It's No Longer A Question Of 'Taking Over'

SAN DIEGO — The 7,000 farmers who attended the annual American Farm Bureau convention this month didn't seem oppressed. Between a videotaped greeting from President Reagan and a personal appearance by Interior Secretary James Watt, most of the delegates spent their time here sunning — not griping.

But the mood changed after dark, when many of the successful, predominantly middle-aged farmers would huddle around hotel bars and admit that the deck was stacked against their children.

Fears of another Soviet grain embargo dominated jawboning, and there were plenty of complaints about high interest rates and low farm prices. The farmers, however, were most grateful that they weren't entering the business today. And, of course, less-well-off farmers who couldn't attend the convention agreed only more adamantly.

"I inherited my place from my daddy," said Richard Christianson, 61, who raises hogs and cattle on a medium-sized farm near Maxwell, Neb. "It's been in the family for three generations. My boys were going to take it over, but with conditions like they are, they've had to get work elsewhere."

Indeed, the old farming adage that "You either marry it or inherit it," has gone with the wind. Instead of "taking over" the family spread, today's young farmers work as hired hands from five to 10 years before moving up to the position of "farm manager" for someone else. The opportunity to buy or rent a farm of one's own by age 30 is no longer possible for most.

The reason is prices: Nearly everyone here says 1981 and 1982 could go down as the worst two years in recent farming history. Wholesale prices for Great Plains agricultural products, for example, have dropped between 35 and 40 percent since last year while overhead — farm equipment, seed, fertilizers, energy and land — has skyrocketed. "I haven't seen anything like this since the Depression," remarked Park Rinard, administrative assistant to Rep. Neal Smith (D-Iowa).

When a tractor retails for $50,000, eats up to $350 in fuel on a harvest or planting day, and represents only a fraction of a farmer's incredible annual investment, it's easy to see why young farmers are — more than ever — a dying breed.

To make matters worse, the Farm Home Administration (FmHA), which has traditionally offered affordable start-up loans to young farmers, has told thousands of those who are in trouble by letter recently to consider folding while they still have some equity left. Obviously this move has chilled relations with the younger generation.

"The young farmers that I've been meeting during state farm forums this month are furious," said Rep. Byron Dorgan (D-N.D.). "They feel abandoned by the Farm Home Administration. Last year, that agency encouraged them to expand their operations, and now it's telling them to 'get out of farming.'"

Any farmer who got his start in the last 50 years will tell you that the FmHA has always been willing to "go the extra mile" for farmers and grant reprieves before foreclosing. Yet the agency's budget this year is a third of what it was in 1981. In North Dakota alone, 300 farmers have already received the FmHA letter.

Rep. Dorgan and groups such as the Iowa Farmers Union have asked FmHA to impose a one-year moratorium on foreclosures "in instances where management has been responsible but low prices and high interest rates have combined into a nearly impossible situation." Yet the Department of Agriculture has done little to help struggling farmers.

Downplaying farmers' complaints, officials in Washington point to a new 10-state, 81-country project known as "The New Full-Time Family Farmer and Rancher Development Program," which they say will help rescue young farmers from their plight.

According to the new plan, the USDA intends to encourage informal partnerships between young and retired farmers in an effort to make the former more attractive as loan prospects in the private sector. Presumably, the advice of old pros will make their proteges better agri-businessmen.

Whatever the government's intentions, grandfatherly advice isn't what young farmers need. Those who spoke with here have grown up on farms and live and breathe farming methods. They have taken vocational agriculture courses since they were 15, know what to plant, when to plant and how to buy and sell.

What young farmers need is financial aid, and the government seems reluctant to meet their needs. The implications of Uncle Sam's weak response should be clear to even the most rarefied urbanite: Unless opportunities for aspiring farmers increase, small family farms will continue to be gobbled up by larger agri-businesses. Corporate control of our nation's breadbasket would inevitably lead to less competition and higher prices.

No one should doubt which party deserves government support more. Young farmers comprise one of our nation's most vital resources and are a worthy investment.

"I don't know if I'm going to make it," admitted Doug Schwartz, 21, of Washington, Kan., who's in debt $300,000. "But I'm young and I got years to work and that's my biggest asset."

'Best Student I Ever Had'

Eunice Martin Pearson, who taught piano in Raleigh for many years, liked to tell the story of how she "discovered" Hunter Johnson, a North Carolina composer whose works brought him international recognition as well as the Prix de Rome, two Guggenheim Fellowships and an award from the National Institute of Arts and Letters.

"I taught music in Benson before coming to Raleigh," Mrs. Pearson recalled years later. "And one noon, on returning from lunch, I heard the most beautiful minor chords coming from the chapel piano, and went in to see who could be producing them."

She said the boy told her his name, that he was 14 years old, that he had had a half a dozen correspondence course music lessons, and that he had struck the chords she heard while trying to set Poe's Raven to music.

"A few days later his older brother came in from the country to ask me if I would give Hunter lessons for a few months and let the family know whether he had any music promise," she related. "In less than three months, I could tell that he was gifted; and never have I had a pupil who loved his work as much, and he was so thorough and so eager. Of course, I expected him to be a concert pianist and he could be if he so desired."

Although Johnson, who grew up on a Johnston County farm, recalled that Mrs. Pearson "believed in me and encouraged me greatly," he credited Leslie McLamb, a country school principal, with giving him his first piano lessons.

He said he became interested in the piano through listening to his sister, Eva, play.

"The summer I was 11, my parents got Miss Lessee to spend the whole summer with us for the purpose of giving Eva and me lessons. They were my first formal lessons," Johnson said. He later took a correspondence course in music before he responded to Benson High School where Mrs. Pearson taught him and described him as "the best student I ever had."

Asked later if Mrs. Pearson's top student ever had any occasion to revolt, he promptly replied that he had refused to use a metronome, the upside down pendulum gadget that tells a musician when his tempo is off.

"If you ain't got rhythm without a metronome, you won't have it with one," he explained.

"My boyhood was like that of most boys in Johnston County," he said. "I fished, did the usual amount of playing with the neighborhood kids and had farm chores to do. From the moment I learned to read, though, I was a bookworm and by the time I was 10, I'd read literally hundreds of books. About then I began writing poems. It was like a fever. I wrote dozens of them."

Johnson enrolled at the University of North Carolina in 1924. He registered in the English department at the insistence of his father, a country school teacher and farmer who thought his son should get a general education even though music was a top elective.

After finally deciding to devote himself to music, Johnson transferred to the Eastman School of Music at Rochester, N.Y., where he graduated in 1929. Going to the University of Michigan as an instructor, he composed two pieces which were major factors in his winning the important Prix de Rome in 1933 which financed two happy years of study in the Italian capital.

After his return to the United States, Johnson composed in rapid succession: "Sonata for Piano;" "Concerto for Piano and Chamber Orchestra;" "Serenade for Flute and Clarinet;" "For an Unknown Soldier," a composition for a flute and string orchestra; "Yankee Bluebirds," a dance for Erick Hawkins; and "In Time of Armament," a ballet for Hawkins.

In 1940, when Martha Graham was planning a ballet based on the legends that surround Emily Dickinson, she heard some of Johnson's compositions at a concert in Town Hall in New York. She commissioned the North Carolinian to do the score for her ballet, "Letter to the World." Later she commissioned him to score for another ballet, "Deaths and Entrances."

Poll

PRINCETON, N.J. — While better-educated Americans tend to be more tolerant than are those with less education about persons of different nationalities, races and lifestyles, they are less tolerant when it comes to religious fundamentalists.

The college-trained, for example, are more willing than their less-educated counterparts to have Cuban and Vietnamese refugees and Hispanics as neighbors, but less likely to welcome persons belonging to fundamentalist religions.

The latest nationwide Gallup survey, which sought to gain insights into patterns of intolerance in the U.S., asked a scientific cross-section of the public this question: "On this list are various groups of people. (Survey respondents were handed a list of nine groups.) Could you please sort out any that you would NOT like to have as neighbors?" (The list included: Vietnamese refugees, unmarried single people living together, Hispanics, members of minority religious sects or cults, religious fundamentalists, Catholics, Jews, Protestants and Cuban refugees.)

The public would be least hospitable to "members of minority religious sects or cults," with three in 10 saying they would not like to have these groups as neighbors. Next least desired as neighbors, in order, are: Cuban refugees (25 percent), Hispanics (Mexicans, Puerto Ricans, Cubans) (18 percent), Vietnamese refugees (17 percent), single people living together (14 percent), religious fundamentalists (11 percent), Jews (2 percent), Catholics (1 percent) and Protestants (1 percent).

Marked Differences Seen On Basis Of Education

While persons with a college background tend to hold attitudes similar to those with less formal education in regard to members of sects and cults, they reveal considerably more tolerance toward other groups tested in the survey.

The college-trained are also less inclined than the noncollege groups to reject singles as neighbors, although differences in attitudes toward this group appear to be largely a function of age.

Differences By Region, Age, Religion

In general, Southerners are more inclined than are persons living outside the South to say they would not welcome the various groups tested. Young adults tend to be more tolerant than their elders.

Protestants and Catholics hold similar views in regard to most of the nine groups, but Protestants tend to be considerably less tolerant than Catholics of single people living together. The following table shows the results in tabular form for the nation as a whole and by level of formal education:

Groups Not Wanted As Neighbors
Education Level	NATIONAL	High school	Grade school
Cults, sects	30%	30%	22%
Cuban refugees	25	27	23
Hispanics	18	19	24
Vietnamese refugees	17	13	23
Singles living together	14	9	21
Religious fundamentalists	11	15	8
Jews	2	1	2
Catholics	1	1	1
Protestants	1	1	1

*Less than 1 percent

And here are the results by age group:

Groups Not Wanted As Neighbors
Age	NATIONAL	18-29	30-49	50 & older
Cults, sects	30%	27%	32%	31%
Cuban refugees	25	25	23	26
Hispanics	18	15	12	24
Vietnamese refugees	17	16	16	18
Singles living together	14	5	13	22
Religious fundamentalists	11	8	9	13
Jews	2	2	2	2
Protestants	1	1	1	1

The results reported today are based on in-person interviews with 1,483 adults, 18 and older, interviewed in person in more than 300 scientifically-elected localities across the nation during the period Dec. 11-14. For results based on a sample of this size, one can say with 95 percent confidence that the error attributable to sampling and other random effects could be three percentage points in either direction.

You Could Blame It All On John Tyler

WASHINGTON (UPI) — While similarities between the current recession and the Vietnam War may not be readily apparent to the untrained eye, a parallel does exist.

In each case, one must look back into history to find the points of origin.

Richard Nixon, you'll recall, used to assert that he inherited the war from Lyndon Johnson, who claimed he caught it from John Kennedy, whose associates blamed events during the Eisenhower administration. And so it went.

Pursuing that line of reasoning, I once traced the genesis of the war all the way back to Millard Fillmore.

So it is now, to some degree, with the recession. When it is suggested that his economic policies brought on the slump, President Reagan is quick to affirm that the conditions that produced the downturn already were locked in place when he got here.

On one occasion, Reagan blamed "several decades" of misguided actions for creating the situation he is now trying to correct. On another occasion, he said the ill-advised course had been followed "30-odd years or so."

Thirty years would take us back to the start of the Eisenhower administration. However, it can be argued with sound logical that the seeds of the recession were planted long before that.

Striving to repeat the service I performed so ably during Vietnam, I have been searching the archives to see if I could determine exactly when the recession's antecedents were born.

My research points at least a circumstantial finger of guilt at our 10th president, John Tyler.

Theodore Roosevelt once said that to describe Tyler as "mediocre" was to indulge in "unwarranted flattery." Maybe so, but it was during Tyler's administration (1841-45) that the government separated the fiscal year from the calendar year.

Prior to 1882, the years had run concurrently. Then, during Tyler's term, Fiscal New Year's Eve was changed to June 30.

Although other analysts may disagree, I am convinced this switch precipitated the dissolute practices Reagan contends are responsible for the recession.

To those of us who live by the calendar, Jan. 1 is the time for resolution. That is when we get a grip on our wanton tendencies and steel ourselves for the year ahead.

Who among us has any will power left on July 1? By that time, we have lost momentum and are flowing with the tide. Thus there is little or no pressure on the government to straighten up and fly right.

If Reagan wants maximum public support for tough budgetary policies, he should move the fiscal New Year, which has now veered all the way to Oct. 1, back to conjoin with the calendar.

So much for you, John Tyler. If it weren't for you, we wouldn't be in this mess.

Furnace Burns Used Oil

A furnace that burns used motor oil and was engineered and installed by a Pitt Community College employee is expected to save the college $8,000 in winter fuel costs, say PCC officials.

Clifton Moss, equipment inventory control officer for the college, recently outfitted the furnace for the White Building to burn used motor oil — a move that he says can cut heating costs for that building by 80 percent.

"The college now pays 20 cents per gallon for the used oil," said Moss, "compared to a cost of $1.05 per gallon for new oil purchased on the North Carolina contract." Moss estimated a saving of at least $8,000 this winter, but said this figure could rise as high as $24,000 if the winter is a hard one.

The conversion was researched and directed by PCC President William E. Fulford Jr.

"It takes special preparation before the used motor oil can be burned in the furnaces," explained Moss. "First, it goes through a strainer basket filter with magnetic inserts which removes any metal particles or other foreign materials."

Then, said Moss, a circulating pump was installed in each tank to keep the various weights of used oil blended. An anti-sludging fuel oil conditioner and a fire-inducing chemical is added to the waste oil at the rate of two quarts per thousand gallons.

"The oil is filtered again before it moves into a pre-heater and is then fed through the nozzle and vaporizes into the burning chamber where electrodes ignite the vapor, resulting in combustion," added Moss.

The price tag for the conversion was around $5,000.

Moss noted that persons wanting to sell used oil may contact him at 756-3130, ext. 230.

Jay-C-Ettes Ask State Affiliation

Greenville Jay-C-Ettes have voted to seek affiliation with the state Jaycette organization, marking the first time in the local group's 29-year history that it has sought a link with the state unit.

Approval of the affiliation plan came at the Jay-C-Ettes' meeting this week.

The Jay-C-Ettes will hold a baby contest May 7-8 at Carolina East Mall to help support the March of Dimes. The next general membership meeting will be held March 10.

LEGION MEETING

Pasico Norfleet Jr., Post 160, The American Legion, will hold its annual anniversary and awards program at 8 p.m. Tuesday at the Bachelor Benedict Club, 707 Wyatt St. Guest speaker will be attorney Richard Powell. Remarks will be given by Dr. Andrew A. Best.

The session will be open to the public.

president of PCC. Both Moss and Fulford were instrumental in bringing the project to a successful conclusion.

State's Counties Submit Bids For Surplus Cheese

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Ninety of the state's 100 counties have submitted requests for 1,352,805 pounds of surplus U.S. government cheese — almost twice the amount to be allocated to North Carolina.

Thursday was the deadline for the counties to deliver their requests for the processed American cheese to the state Department of Human Resources.

Lillian L. Gaskill, the department's assistant director for regional administration, said only one county — Chatham — did not want any cheese.

The state has been allocated 777,600 pounds of cheese as part of the federal government's 30-million-pound giveaway. State officials say they're optimistic that after distribution begins, North Carolina may be able to get more than its share of the 5-pound blocks.

"We're going to ask for it," said Jay P. Davis Jr., director of the state Department of Agriculture's food distribution division. "The government hasn't assured me we're going to get it, but we've asked for the full amount we need to serve the needy people in this state."

Although nine counties did not make requests by the Thursday deadline, Mrs. Gaskill said their requests would be considered.

The cheese will be available to anyone eligible for food stamps. Families with one to three people will get 5 pounds; those with up to six people will get 10 pounds; those with up to eight people will get 15 pounds; and families with more than nine people will get 20 pounds.

The largest request in the state came from Robeson County, which said it needed 81,000 pounds. Next was Guilford County with 75,000 pounds; Wake County with 30,000 pounds and Wilson County with 40,000 pounds.

The smallest requests came from Dare and Washington counties, who asked for 1,500 pounds each.

Once the cheese arrives in late February and early March, the big problem will be storing and distributing it. Most county social service departments across the state have lined up volunteers to store and help distribute the food, but at least one county says it may not be able to accomplish that.

"It's a horrible problem of logistics," said Robert E. Hall, Chatham County director of social services.

School Lunchrooms Show Decline

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Public school officials say they're puzzled about why 137,000 students in North Carolina and South Carolina have stopped eating school lunches this year.

And they say they don't know whether the decrease means children are going without lunch or if they're choosing to bring bag lunches from home. In addition, nutrition directors say they're concerned that the meals children are bringing from home may not be very healthy ones.

"We're getting more and more kids coming to school without any lunch," said Anne Smith, child nutrition director for North Carolina schools. "And I have had several calls from principals and teachers concerned about the kind of things kids were bringing from home."

Vivian Pilant, South Carolina food service director, is asking cafeteria directors to check students' bag lunches to see if they're getting a balanced diet.

"You can't always tell but usually it's a fruit drink or punch instead of milk," she said. "And they have a snack food — potato chips, corn chips — that the major contribution is calories, but no nutritive value....I think there is a concern with the bag lunches."

The drop in the number of children eating school lunches, which are designed to give them one-third of their daily nutritional needs, follows a move by President Reagan cutting $1 billion from the national school lunch program last year.

As a result, meal prices rose an average of 17 cents in North Carolina and 15 cents in South Carolina. Full-price meals in North Carolina now range from 55 cents in a few elementary schools to $1.25 at Elkin City Schools. In South Carolina, the average price is about 65 cents in elementary schools and 75 cents in secondary grades.

There are three kinds of school-prepared lunches under the federal child nutrition program — free, reduced-price and full-price.

About 44 percent of the meals in North Carolina and 49 percent of those in South Carolina are served free to students from low-income families. For example, children from a family of four with an income of less than $10,990 would qualify.

Officials say they have seen no change in the number of children eating the free meals.

Children buying lunches at a reduced price have been hardest hit by the federal budget cuts. The price of the lunches has climbed as much as 300 percent from 10 cents a meal in fall 1980 to 40 cents in most schools last fall.

The program includes about 8 percent of all lunches. It serves students from families with a slightly higher income. A child from a family of four with an income between $10,990 and $15,630 per year would be eligible.

In South Carolina, 83 percent of those eligible were buying reduced-price lunches in fall 1980. This year, the number of students participating fell to 75 percent.

Slightly less than half the 725,819 North Carolina students and 426,473 South Carolina students eating school lunches buy the full-price meal. Last year, 62 percent of those eligible in South Carolina participated, compared to 55 percent this year.

No North Carolina figures were available.

Some students also buy dishes separately instead of purchasing the whole lunch.

Hunt Has Named Large Share Of State's Judges

By GENE WANG
 RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — No one in state government has an exact count, but Gov. James B. Hunt Jr. has appointed a substantial percentage of the state's trial and appellate judges during the five years he has been in office.

Information obtained from the Administrative Office of the Courts indicates 35 of the state's 68 superior court judges have taken office while Hunt has been governor.

Of the 142 district court judges, 67 have taken their seats during Hunt's tenure.

But, the records only show when those judges were first sworn in — not whether they were first appointed by Hunt or elected to their seats. The court office does not keep track of that information and Hunt's staff has not kept a tally.

Aides to the governor know he has named three of the seven justices on the state Supreme Court and six of the 12 judges on the state Court of Appeals, but they don't know exactly how many lower court judges he has appointed.

Jack Cozort, Hunt's legal counsel, estimates the governor has named 32 superior court judges — a count that is probably accurate — and 65 district court judges. His staff is preparing an accurate count as time permits.

All judges are elected in North Carolina, but the majority first take office through gubernatorial appointment to a vacancy — giving them an edge at election time.

In filling district court vacancies, state law requires the governor to choose from a list of three nominees submitted by the bar association in the judicial district involved.

There are no restrictions on appointments to the other courts, but Hunt has created a special merit selection committee to recommend names for each superior court vacancy.

The governor has not used the merit selection system in choosing his appointees to the two appellate courts.

As the first governor ever elected to two straight four-year terms under the 1977 succession amendment to the state Constitution, Hunt could be responsible for the initial appointment of a majority of the judiciary by the time he leaves office.

"This may very well be the most important imprint Jim Hunt will leave on North Carolina," said Rep. Parks Helms, D-Mecklenburg. "We simply will have to wait and let the next generation be the judge of how good his appointments really were."

As chairman of the state Courts Commission, Helms said he has paid closer attention to the appointments Hunt has made than he might normally and he has generally been pleased.

"My personal view is the governor has done a good job, in making his selections, in trying to reflect the interests of the people of North Carolina," he said.

A spokesman for the governor, Brent Hackney, said Hunt has considered philosophy in his selections.

"Obviously no two people he's appointed have exactly the same philosophy on everything," Hackney said. "But it's safe to say probably most, if not all his appointees, share his philosophy when it comes to certain basic concepts such as their approach to crime, fair sentencing and speedy trials."

Since he has been governor, Hunt has named the first blacks to the Court of Appeals — Richard Erwin, who has since taken a federal judgeship, and Charles L. Becton.

Hackney said he feels the governor would like to name a black and a woman to the Supreme Court before he leaves office.

The impact of Hunt's selections may be long-lasting, Hackney said, because the governor has tended to name "rather young people."

IRS Tape Now At Libraries

Information on how to fill out a federal tax return, prepared by the Internal Revenue Service on an audio cassette tape, is now available at the main library and East and Carver branches of Sheppard Memorial Library, the IRS said.

The tape is available at no cost and may be played on any standard cassette player.

The tape explains step-by-step the preparation of both IRS short Form 1040A and the longer Form 1040, along with instructions for completing schedules A and B, used to report itemized deductions and income from interest.

To make the best use of the tape, users should have their tax forms and instructions available. If needed, forms and instructions can be obtained by calling the IRS toll-free number listed in the telephone directory. Sheppard Memorial Library also has forms which may be photocopied.

IF THERE'S something you want to rent, buy, trade or sell, check the classified columns. Call 752-6166 to place your ad.

Adult Classes Are Scheduled

Adult high school classes will begin Tuesday at the Fountain Community Building at 6 p.m., at the Farmville Adult Center at 7 p.m. and at the Kearney Park Housing Authority Building in Greenville at 7:45 p.m. All classes are free.

Anyone who is 18 years old, has dropped out of school and is interested in getting his General Equivalency Diploma (GED) may enroll in one of these classes.

PCC also will sponsor a 12-hour basic firefighting class beginning Monday at the Bell Arthur Volunteer Fire Department. Classes will meet from 7-10 Monday through Thursday.

A course in interior decorating will begin on Tuesday on the PCC campus. Class will begin at 7 p.m. and end at 10 p.m.

The course will cover the basic areas of interior decorating such as color, fabric, furniture, flooring and lighting. The registration fee is $8, and the class is offered free to senior citizens. For more information, call 756-3130.

THAI QUANG MINH

THAI QUANG TRUNG

THAI THUY THANH

Report Brings Renewed Hope For Lost Refugees

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

If the three are still alive, the oldest brother, Thai Quang Minh, was 23 on Jan. 14; the second oldest brother, Thai Quang Trung, will be 22 on Wednesday, and the youngest, their sister, Thai Thuy Thanh, will be 21 on April 16.

On Oct. 2, 1978, the three and their close friend, a girl named Le Thi Han, then 19, boarded a refugee boat at the harbor city of Vung Tau on the coast of Vietnam, not far from Saigon.

They were leaving behind everything familiar to them — their homeland of Vietnam, their parents, friends, their way of life.

Like many Vietnamese who have made the painful decision to leave the country of their birth, they looked forward to a chance to begin a new life in a new land.

The three Thai youngsters and their friend, on the day they said goodbye to their loved ones, had more to hope for than many who made the desperate decision to leave.

The Thais have an aunt, Thai Thi Huynh Hoa and her husband, U.S. Army Sgt. Trung Raynor, living in Monterey, Calif., and another aunt, Mrs. Peter Dillner, living in New Jersey. Both aunts and their husbands agreed to sponsor the three and their friend. (Sgt. and Mrs. Raynor were formerly residents of Greenville, where Trung graduated from Rose High School).

Time passed. Christmas 1978. The Tet New Year in early 1979. But no word came that the four had reached a safe haven in Hong Kong, Singapore or Malaya, the Philippines or any of the other usual refugee destinations.

When four months passed without communication from the young people, the anxious parents began making inquiries through refugee agencies and United Nations offices. More months went by. Effort after effort on the part of official agencies failed to unearth clues to their whereabouts, or their fate.

After a year had slipped away without a single bit of evidence on whether their children had survived or perished, friends urged the parents to accept the bitter inevitability that the boat their children embarked on had sunk, that there could no longer be hope that they still lived. After all, this had been the known fate of several unseaworthy vessels, overcrowded far beyond a safe capacity.

But the parents and younger sisters of the three missing Thai family members have steadfastly refused to give up hope. Devout Buddhists, they continue to supplicate their deity, offering prayers and lighting candles at the family altar. And they have continued to widen the scope of search efforts, contacting American, French, British friends and officials who have in turn traced out every conceivable source of possible information.

One ray of hope developed last year when they received a report that a boat leaving Vietnam about the same time as the one their children had departed on had floundered near a small island, and that most of the boat's occupants had managed to swim to shore, had been seen collecting wood and were reportedly making preparations to depart again. Exact details were nebulous.

Although the report was never verified, it served as a straw to keep the flame of faith alive.

Then, a few weeks ago, a dramatic, disturbing report filtered through to them. The parents of the Thai children received unconfirmed information that a group of young Vietnamese, conceivably including their three children and the friend, might be among a group that is reportedly being held hostage by sea pirates on a remote Southeastern Asian island.

Rare instances of refugees held in bondage by unscrupulous sea pirates in a bid to extract a ransom for their freedom have been reported.

The likelihood is slim that the recent report may have substance. However, for the parents of these children missing for well over three years, this is another spark of hope to be explored.

They have once more set themselves to the expensive, time-consuming task of patiently following the tangled threads of a complicated process in a search for facts.

Undeniably, chances for success are meager. Yet it is a faint hope, something tangible to cling to in their unwavering faith that their children will be found. And this year as before, they will offer prayers and light candles at the household altar on the Vietnamese New Year which begins at midnight tonight.

Tar Heel Community Tries Taking Up The Slack

TROY, N.C. (AP) — Community leaders in heavily Democratic Montgomery County are taking President Reagan at his word.

The leaders have organized a non-profit corporation and raised $6,000 to help their poorer neighbors in the wae of aid in federal aid to the poor. Reagan has said that private aid and charity should make up for the cuts.

The Montgomery Crisis Fund has a slogan — "Working Together to Take Care of Our Own." The corporation pays fuel bills, helps those evicted or burned out to find new homes, buys groceries for those without food and helps defray medical expenses.

In Montgomery County, 40 miles south of Greensboro, seven of every 10 of the 10,000 registered voters are Democrats.

The Democrats believed that Reagan's budget cuts made the private emergency fund a necessity, said William C. Crawford, director of the county's social service programs and the only government employee involved in the program.

The money the county usually gives his department to handle emergencies was cut from $8,450 to $4,000 this year. The savings have gone to other aid programs jeopardized by the federal budget cuts, Crawford said.

The cuts came at a bad time, he said, when the number of families receiving food stamps in the county has climbed by about 200 this winter. About 12 of every 100 families in the county receive food stamps, compared to the state average of 10 out of 100 families.

Unemployment in Montgomery County was just higher than 6 percent at the end of November, but many employees are working reduced weeks, employment officials say. January snows also have forced many businesses to close at a time when employees need their paychecks the most.

The Rev. Eddie Brackett, who has been with the First Baptist Church of Troy for one year, is chairman of the aid program.

"I have had more people on my doorstep here in one year than I had in Winston-Salem in six years," he said.

The number of people seeking help brackett and others to form the Montgomery Crisis Group. It has a 27-member board and two people who serve as contacts in each of the county's five towns.

With its resources limited, the group set $125 as the maximum amount it will give to help in any one case.

To make sure the money isn't wasted, the Crisis Fund goes directly to the supplier of whatever the applicant needs.

"Ronald agreed to make one statement I agree with," Crawford said. "The private sector will have to do more because the government will do less. This is a good example of private sector initiative and little Montgomery County is taking the lead."

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — U.S. Education Secretary Terrel Bell warned educators Saturday that federal funds for education are going to be cut next year although overall spending will rise at least 6 percent.

Bell, speaking to about 200 educators at North Carolina State University, also said the government's settlement with the University Of North Carolina over desegregation is being used as a model by other states in programs to aid minorities.

When the budget proposals are announced, Bell said, they will require program consolidation, deregulation and common sense on the part of educators.

"The 1983 budget isn't going to be as high as 1982's, but not as low as speculation has it," he said, noting that he expects spending to rise in other areas, particularly defense.

President Reagan is to make his budget recommendations Tuesday and send them to Congress on Wednesday.

Elementary and secondary education cuts in the budget will not be as steep as anticipated, Bell said. But the states will have more responsibility for financing elementary and secondary education under the proposed block-grant program, he said.

Money in the forthcoming budget for educating handicapped students also will fall short of the level requested by educators, Bell said, adding that he believes rules for such education have been overthrown and deregulation is needed.

"Two hundred billion dollars is now being spent on increasing the size of the rule books — a lot of which gets into the area that I think is just foolish," he said.

Bell said he still advocates phasing out the Department of Education and replacing it with a national education foundation. He predicted the president will make a step in that direction and allocate education money in the 1983 budget to such a foundation, which would report directly to Reagan.

Bell also praised the UNC desegregation settlement signed last July 17. The federal government had contended that UNC was not doing enough to integrate its 11 white campuses and five black campuses. The agreement calls for UNC to set goals to increase minority enrollment at the white schools, but does not set out means for enforcing those goals.

"I am proud of the fact that we worked out after an 11-year struggle the UNC desegregation suit within the context of reasonable interpretation of the laws," Bell said.

Some critics and black educators have complained that the settlement does not force UNC to do enough to increase minority enrollment. But Bell said the agreement was marked by common sense.

"You can hurt the cause of civil rights by getting out on the lunatic fringe of interpretation," he said.

The UNC settlement was a "difficult challenge, but will be beneficial to minority students in North Carolina," Bell said.

The education secretary also announced a new effort to collect unpaid federal student loans.

"I'm announcing here that we are going after loan defaulters — we've just completed contracts with private companies to do that collection," Bell said.

The $3 billion program has to be controlled, but plans do not call for "killing the loan program," he said.

"We're are trying to make it possible for the needy to have federally subsidized loans," Bell said. He said the program's growth has allowed people to get low-interest loans from the government and keep their own money in higher interest accounts.

Slavery Trial Offers Glimpse At Migrants' Lives

By MARY ANNE RHYNE
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Joseph Simes' life as a North Carolina migrant worker was an endless cycle of waking at dawn for a meal of grits, digging potatoes until a noon sandwich break, working until dark and falling asleep without supper.

The seven-day routine was punctuated every two weeks by payday and a ride to a rural store to buy cigarettes, beer and whatever he could afford to supplement his diet.

Federal court testimony last week by Simes and other migrant workers offered an inside view of migrant life. The weeklong trial resulted Friday in the slavery conviction of three migrant crew leaders.

Dennis Warren, 19, of Orlando, Fla., and John Lester Harris, 39, of Bullock County, Ala. were convicted of conspiring to hold unnamed workers as slaves at a Nash County camp, resulting in the death of laborer Robert Anderson; and aiding and abetting to hold workers Craig Connors and Harvey Rutherford as slaves.

Harris also was convicted of kidnapping Simes from a Raleigh street and taking him to the labor camp to be held as a slave.

Warren's brother Richard, 22, also of Orlando, was convicted of conspiring to hold unnamed workers as slaves and aiding and abetting to hold Rutherford as a slave.

Federal prosecutor Richard Roberts, said though other slavery cases have been tried, this was the first he could remember involving a death.

The case focused on Dennis Warren's labor camp near Rainbow Farms in Nash County between Aug. 26 and Sept. 25 when FBI agents said they entered the camp and "liberated" several workers.

Farm owner Cecil Williams said he hired Warren, whom he met the previous summer at a labor camp, to organize the harvest of cucumbers, sweet potatoes and tobacco. He paid Warren $72,000 for his work. The laborers' salaries, food and transportation costs were taken from the amount.

The basic camp rule was that everybody had to work, witnesses said. That included Anderson, who they said woke Sept. 13 spitting up blood. Anderson later collapsed in a field and was taken to a hot, enclosed crew bus where he died that afternoon. Medical authorities said heat stroke caused the death.

Witnesses said Harris and others used tree limbs to whip the slower workers. Pickers had to meet quotas to eat. Simes and others said Dennis Warren carried a piece of rubber hose as a threat of punishment if they didn't work.

Laborer Howard Johnson said he tried to help the slow workers meet their quotas. "If they didn't pick the quota, he (Harris) would beat you in the field," Johnson said.

The Warrens, Harris or another crew leader constantly watched the workers. One of the men drove along the road to make sure no one sneaked away, one of the migrants said.

Meanwhile, food and drink at the camp was expensive. Some of the witnesses testified that instead of earning a salary, they fell into debt because Dennis Warren charged them $1.25 for a pack of cigarettes, $3 for a pint of wine and $1.50 for a can of beer in addition to the $35 a week for meals.

Laborers said they often would not be given anything to drink after work except the expensive beer or wine.

Simes and others said they supplemented their diet by carrying sweet potatoes home, picking wild greens or catching fish in the nearby Tar River. The men cooked the food on a piece of tin over open coals.

Though many workers testified that they got $5 every two weeks, their leaders said pay was based on the number of buckets of potatoes or cucumbers picked. The bucket tallies were privileged information and never shown to workers, witnesses said.

Many of the migrants had been lured to the camp by promises of higher wages. Rutherford said he accepted a job moving furniture at $4.25 an hour, but instead ended up at the Nash County farm.

For others, the bait was alcohol. Some witnesses said Richard Warren or Harris saw them standing at a street corner or near a poolroom or rescue mission and offered them some wine and a job.

Simes said after being kidnapped from Raleigh and taken to Nash County, he was placed in the "jailhouse," a stark room where he could be guarded.

"They bring new people down there. If somebody leaves (the camp) ... they put them in that room," Simes said.

Some of the workers chose migrant labor because they had criminal records or disliked steady jobs. For at least one man, Hayes Case, migrant work had become a way of life.

Case, a 58-year-old man who has been a migrant laborer for more than 30 years, said he learned to survive by minding his own business and telling the FBI agents nothing.

"I've worked quite a bit around migrant camps. The law comes, asks a big bunch of questions then walks out of the field and nothing's done about it," Case said.

Prosecutor Susan King summed up the workers' life, saying:

"This is not a case where people were held in chains, where people were locked in cells. The defendants didn't need fences to keep those people there. They had fear to keep them there. Those people knew if they left that camp, somebody would come and get them. The best they could hope for was survival."

Choral Society Needs Members

The Greenville Choral Society is still accepting new members for the spring. Director Rhonda Fleming announced that men's voices are needed to balance the group — especially tenors.

Rehearsals are held weekly on Tuesday evenings, from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m., at Immanuel Baptist Church. Works to be prepared for the spring program include the Faure "Requiem" and Randall Thompson's "Peaceable Kingdom." Music is available for purchase at any rehearsal for $8.50. Membership dues are $10.

Those interested in participating should come to the rehearsal at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday. For more information call 757-6331 or 756-6979.

Fire Damages FDR Home At Hyde Park

HYDE PARK, N.Y. (AP) — Fire badly damaged the gracious old home of Franklin D. Roosevelt on Saturday, exactly a week before the centennial of his birth, and restoration experts moved in to shore up walls and ceilings that threatened to collapse.

Dozens of National Park Service staff and volunteers plunged into the burning building to save paintings, furniture and other priceless artifacts in the lifelong home of the only U.S. president elected to four terms.

"We knew they were going to throw us out any minute. The fire was still going strong and the ceiling was about to collapse," said curator Emily Wright. "They told us not to go in there, but we had to."

She said another rescuer moaned, "Oh my God, this would kill Sara Roosevelt if she could see this." The president's mother owned the 35-room house until her death in 1941.

Fire officials traced the blaze to outmoded electrical wiring in the third-floor nursery and attic, which electricians had been replacing on Friday. Ms. Wright described the wiring as "just ghastly."

Damage was worst in the central part of the home, built in 1826. The wings added in 1915, including the library and bedrooms of Roosevelt, his wife, Eleanor, and Sara Roosevelt, were largely spared.

The fire broke out shortly before midnight in the third floor. Most fire damage was confined to that floor, and the first and second floors were damaged by water.

About 250 firefighters from nearby communities, including many volunteers, fought the blaze. Firefighters were forced to chop through walls and ceilings to reach burning insulation, which continued to flare up long after the fire was brought under control about 4 a.m., Ms. Wright said.

Small holes were drilled into the floors to allow water to drain into the basement, where it was pumped out.

A team of National Park Service restoration experts arrived shortly before noon to brace walls and ceilings and to secure the house so repairs could begin.

The house is expected to be fully restored. Ms. Wright said. "These experts can work miracles — and this will take a miracle," she added.

Roosevelt was born in the house in 1882 and lived there when he wasn't in Washington or Albany.

Dignitaries from all over the world have visited the house. Winston Churchill and the Duke of Windsor conferred there with FDR during World War II.

Workers moved valuable objects like a famous Dresden chandelier into outbuildings and placed tarpaulins over some items, such as a baby grand piano and a credenza.

Cubans Leave Fort Chaffee

FORT CHAFFEE, Ark. (AP) — Sixty Cubans were loaded onto buses and shipped out of Fort Chaffee before dawn Saturday as federal officials moved to close a relocation center that once burgeoned with refugees.

For the past year, Fort Chaffee was the only home for Cuban refugees who didn't have criminal records but lacked people willing to sponsor their entry into U.S. life.

The 328 refugees remaining after Saturday's transfer will be moved beginning Monday to Justice Department facilities, said Mac Coffman, director of the Cuban-Haitian Task Force at the relocation center.

He said fewer than 50 would be left at the western Arkansas military reservation in a week, and those were headed for special projects.

Some of the refugees are frustrated and anxious about the move, Coffman said, and he declined to say where the 60 who left Saturday were going.

But Gunther Wagner, deputy director of the task force at Chaffee, said later Saturday the refugees were going to Memphis, Tenn. Scott Dorrill, a spokesman for the Federal Correctional Institute at Memphis, said by telephone Saturday the warden's office would issue a news release Monday morning. He declined further comment.

The Justice Department said Friday that some would go to a federal prison hospital in Springfield, Mo., and the remainder would be sent to an old federal prison in Atlanta.

Gov. Frank White, a Republican, campaigned against the presence of the Cubans in Arkansas in the 1980 elections. White said former Gov. Bill Clinton, a Democrat, should have been more forceful and persuaded then-President Carter to move the refugees elsewhere.

More than 25,000 refugees who arrived in the "Freedom Flotilla" boatlift between Cuba and Florida lived at Fort Chaffee while sponsors were found for them. The center housed 19,000 at its peak.

The first wave of Cubans came to Arkansas in May 1980, and all the Cubans who had not found sponsors were consolidated at the center in the fall of 1980. Cubans with prison records were detained in Atlanta.

In June 1980, more than 200 refugees spilled out of the compound and pelted officers with rocks. When state police troopers opened fire, the refugees retreated and set fires within the compound. Five refugees and more than a dozen officers were injured.

Residents of the neighboring community of Barling, population 3,145, armed themselves after the melee.

The attitude of Chaffee's neighbors has changed since then. A group of Fort Chaffee employees, mostly from the nearby Fort Smith area, began circulating petitions last month calling for the continued operation of the relocation center.

U.S. Sen. Dale Bumpers, D-Ark., lives at Charleston, a few miles from Fort Chaffee. He says people are no longer as concerned as they once were about getting the Cubans out. He said Friday, however, that he was pleased the government was shutting Chaffee down.

"That makes it less likely it will be used as a relocation center in the future," he said. Fort Chaffee was a relocation center for Vietnamese refugees in 1975.

Art Brill, a Justice Department spokesman, said the federal prison facilities would be cheaper to run than Chaffee. He said it would cost $23 million a year to keep Fort Chaffee open, and $8.5 million to house the refugees at the Justice Department facilities.

Brill said the department would try to rehabilitate as many Cubans as possible and find sponsors for them. He said the task would be difficult.

Tar Heels Lead Nation's City And County Lobbies

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Ferd Harrison is mayor of a town of 2,963 people. Richard Conder chairs a county commission representing 46,000 people.

But together, they represent nearly every local government in the United States.

Harrison, 55, is mayor of Scotland Neck and president of the National League of Cities. Conder, 51, is chairman of the Richmond County Board of Commissioners and president of the National Association of Counties.

It's the first time either organization has been led by people with such small political bases and the first time North Carolinians have simultaneously led two of the nation's most powerful lobbying groups.

"I think there are a lot of people out there saying where ... did this guy come from," Harrison said. "I think a lot of people are going to sit back and see if I fall on my face. If I make strides, they'll be supportive. If I fail, they'll stand back and say, 'I told you so.'"

"I think I'm going to carry my weight," he said. "I'm not going to be a wallflower."

Both Harrison and Conder are Democrats and were presidents of their state organizations in 1970-71. Each became president of his national organizations this year because a vice president ahead of him dropped out.

Both are on President Reagan's newly appointed 41-member advisory committee on federalism to recommend ways to transfer federal programs to the states and how to finance them.

Harrison and Conder have met with Reagan and several directors of federal agencies. They have appeared before congressional subcommittees, traveled the country to address state conventions and met with national business leaders.

Both agree it is hard to measure the benefits that North Carolina and their constituents will get from their national positions. But they agree that they have opportunities normally closed to town and county politicians.

"It gives me an opportunity to meet a lot of people in the state I would not have access to on an ongoing basis," Harrison said. "I have access to the White House. I've developed a rapport with some of the White House staff. I head a transportation subcommittee on a federalism commission.

"There are a lot of ways it can bring results for our cities and towns," he said. "I can't sit here and tell you in dollars and cents how this thing affected this particular town. But when you have access, you certainly can look after your own people as well as a national level."

Conder said he also meets business people and can lobby for development in Richmond County. He said he has made one proposal to a major firm to build a plant near Rockingham, although he declined to identify the company.

Harrison, mayor of the Halifax County town since 1958, operates an appliance store. He assumed national office Dec. 2.

Conder, chairman of the Richmond County commissioners for 18 years, is a vice president of First Union National Bank Inc. He assumed office July 15.

Conder said he told Reagan that "we were for him in the first phase of his budget cuts."

ABA Panel Backs 'Preventive Detention' Concept

Lawyers Say Jail Is Preferred

By ROBERT SANGEORGE

CHICAGO (UPI) — A crime task force of the American Bar Association offered a potpourri of crime-prevention proposals Saturday that both support and oppose the Reagan administration's position on solving U.S. crime problems.

The ABA panel is recommending that the nation's largest lawyers group back the use of controversial "preventive detention" programs aimed at keeping violent criminal defendants in jail while they await trial.

Preventive detention — blasted by civil liberties groups as a violation of a suspect's constitutional right to be presumed innocent until proven guilty — also is supported by the Reagan administration.

But the ABA Task Force on Crime strongly differs with the administration's proposals for a launching a massive prison construction program and for abandoning the "exclusionary rule" — an important legal standard that generally forbids courts to accept evidence that has been illegally seized by police.

The panel was created by the ABA in the wake of Chief Justice Warren Burger's much-discussed speech to the group last year, in which he called for a major overhaul of the criminal justice system in order to stem the rising tide of crime and violence.

The task force report was set for discussion Saturday by delegates to the ABA mid-year convention.

"The task force does not present these as a solution to crime; instead, they should be considered as a means of controlling crime," the panel cautioned at the start of its 66-pages of recommendations to the 280,000-member organization. The ABA has not yet approved the report.

Discussing preventive detention, the committee stressed it should be employed "only after a hearing at which clear and convincing evidence is used to prove the need for the detention."

And it should only be considered for suspects who have "been convicted of a crime of violence within the preceding 10 years and no condition or combination of conditions will reasonably assure the safety of the community," it stated.

The exclusionary rule — a little understood but important standard of American criminal justice — provided the ABA panel with a point of major departure from the Reagan administration's ideas about crime.

Law enforcement officials have long been highly critical of the rule for allowing some criminals to escape convictions on technicalities. Supreme Court Justice William Rehnquist also has frequently spoken out against it.

But the ABA group argued the rule "has contributed greatly to law enforcement professionalism at the local, state and federal levels."

It cited a government report that showed in only 1.3 percent of some 2,800 cases studied did judges exclude evidence because of the exclusionary rule.

The task force also blasted proposals for drastically expanding prisons, saying it cannot agree with the administration's own crime task force recommendation "that construction of prison facilities is the preferred approach to dealing either with violent crime or with the crisis in our state and local prisons and jails."

Crash Study Indicates Problems Showed Early

By PATRICIA KOZA

WASHINGTON (UPI) — It may be months before investigators determine the chain of events that caused Air Florida Flight 90 to crash into the Potomac River, but a few pieces of the puzzle are beginning to fit together.

Testimony of witnesses and findings of the investigative teams studying weather and runway conditions paint a picture of a jet in trouble from the moment it began its takeoff roll, until its plunge into the icy Potomac River approximately 12 seconds after it rotated or lifted off the runway in a snowstorm.

"Palm 90," as Air Florida was known in communications with the control tower, was due to leave National Airport at 2:15 p.m. Jan. 13 for Tampa, Fla.

But a heavy snowstorm was backing up operations at National, and the airport shut down for about an hour to clear the main runway.

Palm 90 was being de-iced with a solution of 25 percent ethylene glycol and 75 percent water when its crew learned the runway was closed. The de-icing procedure was stopped after one wing was completed.

When the runway reopened, the jet went through a second, complete de-icing, with a stronger 60-40 solution of water and glycol. This may have been completed around 3:15 p.m., although investigators have said it may have been as long as 49 minutes from the jet's last de-icing treatment and its fatal takeoff.

De-icing is important. Ice can significantly change the aerodynamic characteristics of the wing, disrupting the airflow and reducing lift produced by the movement of air over the wing's surfaces. A loss of lift, in turn, can cause a stall, and the presence of ice can significantly raise the stalling speed.

The thunderous shaking of the twin-jet described by some of the five survivors just before the plane crashed is one indication of a stall.

Capt. Larry Wheaton, 35, pushed off from the gate at 3:23 p.m. and began taxiing the Boeing 737 to the runway. There, he waited for more than half an hour before being given tower clearance to take off at 3:59 p.m.

At least two of the five survivors said the plane seemed to take a long time to pick up speed; once off the runway, it started vibrating fiercely.

Three witnesses said the plane lifted off about 5,200 runway. The normal point should have been closer to 3,900 feet. Any farther down, the jet could no longer abort without going into the river.

As it gathered speed, a watching Braniff pilot commented on the amount of ice on the plane's wings.

After liftoff, tower radar apparently picked up "Palm 90" three times: once at about 75 feet above the runway, once at approximately 350 feet, and once at approximately 450 feet as it was in a gradual left bank and nearing a railroad bridge, the first of several spans on the Potomac.

The jet cleared the railroad bridge but then clipped a bridge clogged with commuter traffic and plunged, nose still up, into the river.

Haig Will Try For Concessions From Soviet Union

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. flies to a Geneva meeting with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko prepared to use Soviet interest in strategic arms control as a lever to try to wrest concessions on Poland from the Kremlin.

The meeting on Tuesday will be the second between the two in four months and takes place at perhaps the lowest point in U.S.-Soviet relations since President Reagan took office a year ago.

The Haig-Gromyko meeting in Switzerland immediately follows the Reagan administration's decision to downgrade the talks by cutting back their length from two days to one and by shifting the focus from arms control to Poland.

This new assertion of U.S. determination to link arms control talks to Soviet behavior in the world was underscored late last week by State Department spokesman Dean Fischer.

Fischer said that although President Reagan remains committed to "meaningful" arms control, the strategic arms reduction talks (START), "cannot be insulated from events."

The talk between the top Soviet and American diplomats is likely to be the highlight of Haig's trip, which also takes him to the Middle East.

He is to meet in Jerusalem with Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin and in Cairo with Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak to explore possibilities of making progress in the stalled autonomy talks between Israel and Egypt.

There is no public sign Haig is bringing with him any concrete suggestions to break the deadlock in the talks, which affect the future of the 1.3 million Palestinians living in the West Bank and Gaza Strip territories occupied by Israel since the 1967 Arab-Israeli war.

In explaining the U.S. position as Haig prepares to enter the meeting with Gromyko, Fischer noted Haig repeatedly has emphasized "that the continuing repression of the Polish people, for which Soviet responsibility is clear, obviously constitutes a major setback to the prospects for constructive East-West relations."

"There can be no question that the climate of East-West relations in turn has a serious effect upon the prospects for moving forward in arms control," Fischer said.

Several knowledgeable U.S. officials make clear that the administration is divided on the issue and that there is continuing pressure from U.S. allies in Europe to get on with the arms control process.

Britain Rages Over Handling Of Rape Cases

By JEFF BRADLEY
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — Violent crimes such as rape are statistically rare in Britain, where most bobbies still patrol the streets unarmed. For every rape investigated in this country, three are reported in New York City.

Yet for the past three weeks, the news media, the courts and Parliament have riveted the public's attention on what Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher called the "violent, detestable and odious crime" of rape.

The government's solicitor-general for Scotland, Nicholas Fairbairn, resigned Thursday at Mrs. Thatcher's request. He told reporters why charges were dropped against three Glasgow teen-agers arrested in a rape case before he explained the matter to Parliament.

The victim of the rape, a 30-year-old woman, was slashed with a razor and required 168 stitches.

The case is at the center of the uproar because police reportedly had a confession, an eyewitness and technical evidence, but the prosecution dropped the charges because the victim was thought to be suicidal and unfit to take the witness stand.

Recently, lenient judges have been chastised publicly for their handling of rape cases.

Under the headline "Let's Castrate These Rapists," the 4-million-circulation tabloid Sun on Friday published an opinion poll which said 30 percent of women and 20 percent of men surveyed think rape offenders should be castrated.

Newspapers asked rape victims to write first-person accounts describing the attacks, and at the Rape Crisis Center in North London the number of calls from women reporting sexual assaults has doubled. Only a fourth of the callers say they will tell police.

The public outcry began with a rape trial at Ipswich Crown Court on Jan. 4 when Judge Bertrand Richards freed a confessed rapist after giving him a $3,800 fine. Richards ruled that the 17-year-old victim showed "contributory negligence" by hitching a ride home after a late-night dance.

"It was a bit of luck for me," 33-year-old defendant John William Allen, the father of two children, told reporters.

Nearly 50 outraged members of Parliament called on Lord Hailsham, England's Lord Chancellor, to ask Richards to resign.

Hailsham did not do so, but within days Lord Lane, the Lord Chief Justice, issued guidelines to judges saying that convicted rapists should always be jailed "other than in wholly extraordinary circumstances," which he did not define.

The Lord Justice-Clerk in Scotland, Lord Wheatley, gave the same advice to judges:

"There seems to be a feeling at the present time among the male community that any female, young or old, is fair game for their sexual activities whether the unfortunate woman is a willing participant or not.

"The sooner it becomes realized that people who indulge in this form of criminal activity will be faced with long and severe sentences, perhaps the sooner the streets and houses will be safer to live in."

Home Secretary William Whitelaw pledged the government would act to make jail sentences compulsory for most convicted rapists, and Mrs. Thatcher welcomed the move.

"It is absolutely vital that women should have confidence in the ability of the law to protect them against this violent, detestable and odious crime, and to see that persons are found guilty should they commit it," Mrs. Thatcher told the House of Commons.

The British Broadcasting Corp. added to the storm with a vivid Jan. 18 television documentary in which Thames Valley police were seen browbeating a woman who reported she was raped. After intense and very personal questioning, she dropped her complaint.

"Must women face this brutal ordeal by the police?" commented the London Daily Mail. The assistant chief constable of the Thames Valley police, John Reddington, publicly rebuked his detectives for their harsh methods.

"It indicates why so few cases are reported," said a spokeswoman at the London Rape Crisis Center which counseled 881 women last year.

Official Home Office statistics for 1980, the last year available, listed 1,225 rape cases investigated by police leading to 433 convictions. Despite the recent uproar over sentencing, almost all of those found guilty were jailed. In New York City last year, police investigated 3,325 rapes.

Condos Change Once-Quiet Fishing Town's Life

By BILL KACZOR
Associated Press Writer
DESTIN, Fla. (AP) — When Delbert Marler visited Miami Beach years ago, he'd complain that he couldn't even see the beach because of high-rise hotels and condominiums.

He couldn't wait to get back home to the picturesque fishing village here about 50 miles east of Pensacola. "Uncle Billy" Marler named it after New Englander Leonard Destin when they founded the town in the mid-1800s.

Delbert's mother, Stella, would know when his father, Captain Lave, was coming home because she could see his fishing boat in the blue-green Gulf of Mexico across the harbor and the white sands of a low-lying barrier island.

But now, when his mother and neighbors look across the harbor from their homes above the docks, what they see looks more like the Miami Beach he used to scoff at than the Destin of his youth or even the Destin of 10 years ago.
"Now all they can see is concrete," said Marler. "It's like putting a concrete wall around your house 200 feet high."
"We had a paradise and didn't know it," said the 56-year-old captain of the New Florida Girl, the largest "party boat" in Destin's thriving sports-fishing fleet.

Jutting into the sky from the island, which didn't have a name until developers dubbed it Holiday Isle in the 1960s, is a wall of condominiums.
Until 1972 Destin didn't have a single condominium. Now there are 3,370 condominium units and the town is flooded with construction workers building 1,105 more units.

"We don't know there is a recession going on," said Anita Kroha, executive director of the Destin Chamber of Commerce. "It gives you a false sense of security living here."

Destin's population jumped from 1,600 in 1970 — mostly Marlers, Destinians and descendants of other pioneering families — to 6,000 permanent residents in 1980. Another 7,500 part-time residents add to Destin's population each summer.
Destin's main street, U.S. 98, once dotted by a few fish and bait shops, is lined now with real estate offices, restaurants and other businesses.

Here's the Answer

Q — We live in an old house. A steam-heating pipe runs up from the basement through the kitchen. Lately, when my husband works in the basement and uses wood-finishing materials, an odor seeps up through the place where the pipe passes through the kitchen floor. I could put tape or something around the pipe at the floor, but it seems this would only be a temporary solution. Do you have any suggestion?

A — There should be a metal collar around the pipe where it comes up through the floor. If there isn't, which seems to be the case, get one. They are sold in hardware stores. Get a size that fits around the pipe fairly securely, but not too tightly. Before attaching it (there is an opening in the metal so this procedure is easy), put some insulating material around the edges of the hole. When the collar is in place, see if there is any opening. If so, stuff in more insulation. One other thing. The fact that odors come upstairs indicates your husband may be working with finishing materials in an area where there is no ventilation. With some finishing products, this can be dangerous.

Q — We have ceramic tiles in our main bathroom. My wife wants to change the color of them to fit in with new decorations. Can these tiles be painted?

A — Yes, but certain precautions must be observed. The first step is to clean the tiles of any dirt or grime. Next, see that every tile is soundly attached. To determine this, tap each tile with the handle of a screwdriver. If one is loose, remove it carefully, scrape the old adhesive from the back of it and reinsert it in place. As a last step, the tiles must be gone over a bit with steel wool or sandpaper to remove the gloss, otherwise the paint will not adhere.

Q — I read somewhere about a "wet look" on painted walls but didn't pay too much attention to it. Now I would like to get that kind of look on the walls of a room I soon will paint. Do you know how this can be done?

A — I am not sure I know what a "wet look" is, but it sounds very much like the glistening finish a sealer produces when used on paint. After you have painted the walls, wait about a week to allow the paint time to harden properly. Apply a clear sealer over the newly painted surfaces.

Q — We have a varnished bureau that used to be in our bedroom. We now need it in a child's room. Is it possible to paint over the varnish or does the old finish have to be removed?

A — You can paint over the varnish. First, though, you must sand or steel wool the old finish to remove any gloss, which would interfere with the adhesion of the paint.

Q. My success in getting balled and burlapped shrubs to live and grow well in the first year is not to good. Any suggestions? (R.S., Greenville)

A. Try these tips. Dig the planting hole one-and-a-half times larger than the root ball. Add leaf mold, compost or other forms of organic matter, especially if the soil is tight and clayey. Set your shrubs slightly above the original soil surface.

This is especially important for azaleas, rhododendrons, camellias and dogwoods. Mulch the shrubs well and soak at least once a week during dry periods. Do not put large concentrations of fertilizer in the planting hole. Surface feed with a complete fertilizer, such as 10-10-10, in early spring.

Q. My three pecan trees produced a bumper crop in 1981 which has gotten me excited about doing a better job of looking after them. How much fertilizer should I give them and when?

A. Apply a complete fertilizer, such as 10-10-10, in January or February. Apply four pounds of fertilizer for every inch of trunk diameter, as it is measured just below the first limb. For example, if your tree is 20 inches in diameter, apply 80 pounds of 10-10-10.

Spread the fertilizer in a circle under the drip line of the tree. If this amount of fertilizer doesn't produce six inches or more of new terminal twig growth on the tree, apply nitrogen. Start with about 10 pounds of actual nitrogen for a 20 inch tree.

Q. What varieties of strawberries do you most frequently recommend for home planting in Piedmont, North Carolina? (T.E., Asheville)

A. Most homeowners in the Piedmont prefer to grow the large, attractive Titan and Atlas varieties. Titan is one of the best freezing varieties, while Atlas is better suited for fresh use. Both varieties are self-pollinating and do not have to be interplanted with other varieties for pollination. Another popular variety for homeowners is Earlibelle. This is a good choice for marginal soils that are low in organic matter.

PLAN YOUR HOME The Trentholm

Sunken Family Room Part Of Plan's Appeal

By Jerry Bishop

Walls of glass admit natural light and add to the airy atmosphere of the family room, an important element in the floor plan of the Trentholm, a three-bedroom contemporary.

Likewise, glass is used liberally throughout the plan in sliding glass doors, often opening to a patio, and the overall effect is one of limitless space.

Entry is through double doors into a gracious foyer, totally open to the sunken family room at left. With its wood-burning fireplace, patio access, and location that prevents cross-traffic, the family room is as adaptable to entertaining as it is to everyday use. A formal dining room adjoins.

At rear, the country kitchen is equipped with pantry and ample counter space and opens to the rear patio via sliding glass doors. Neighboring utility room connects garage and kitchen.

Bedrooms fill the right half of the floor plan and include an impressive 17-ft. master bedroom with private bath and dressing area. Situating the master closet off the bath frees bedroom wall

Few wood finishes can compare with shellac when it comes to versatility. It can be used strictly as a sealer, as an undercoat or as a final finish.

Despite this, a precaution that was unnecessary years ago must now be taken. When shellac is used under another finishing product, a check must be made to determine whether it is compatible with that other product. This is because of the large variety of new, synthetic finishes now on the market. The label will tell you whether shellac is a no-no as an undercoat. Most of the time, shellac works very well with other finishes.

The popularity of shellac has remained high over the years because of its versatility, clarity, ease of application, attractive appearance and quick-drying ability. Its disadvantages are that it is not heat- or water-proof and has a relatively short shelf life. For the last reason, it should never be bought in large quantities unless it will be used in six months.

Shellac is best used when diluted with denatured alcohol. Wood finishers have favorite mixtures. When becoming acquainted with shellac, use it in a 50-50 mixture with the alcohol. Later on, as you get familiar with its many uses, you will determine how much alcohol to use for different purposes.

Most people like the natural gloss of shellac, but if you don't, the gloss can be cut down with steel wool or by rubbing with pumice and rottenstone in the powdered form. If the powdered abrasive is used, apply it gently with water or oil. When it is desired to retain the natural gloss, rub on a coat of paste wax or a liquid polisher which has some of the ingredients of paste wax.

Because shellac dries so quickly, several coats can be applied in one day. When wood has been sanded just before the application of the first coat, it should be wiped with a little denatured alcohol before starting that coat. Between coats, a light sanding to remove any imperfections is recommended although it isn't always necessary. Use a dry brush to rid the surface of grit residue.

There are two kinds of shellac sold in most stores, although some other varieties are available at dealers who deal with professionals. They are white and orange. The white actually is not white, but clear and is the most widely used. The orange is good when you want a slightly darker color that does not hide the grain.

If you apply shellac and wind up with a finish that is cloudy or sticky, the shellac was probably applied under high humidity conditions. It should be used in a dry room with a temperature of about 70 degrees Fahrenheit. If it's a damp, wet day, be sure the windows are closed.

Best From Past Will Dominate Year's Fashions

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

Fads are always with us. But, decoratively speaking, 1982 is shaping up as a year in which long-lived styles — country furniture, traditional reproductions and quiet good taste — will predominate.

"These days, everything costs so much. Furnishing a home is too serious a business to do it according to short-term fads," explained Joann Barwick, editor of House Beautiful magazine.

"We can't in good conscience urge readers to decorate their homes with objects that will be dated before the rooms have even been completed."

The editor said high costs, a mood of conservatism, and an increasing number of products reproducing the best of the past would combine to make 1982 a year in which what she calls "investment decorating" will predominate. Of necessity, consumers now view their furnishings purchases as investments to be cherished over many years, she said.

Country-style decorating, already among the most popular, will continue to be the look most of her magazine's readers will select. According to Ms. Barwick, products to bring this decorative style to fruition are definitely on the increase.

"We have been suggesting that manufacturers produce authentic country pieces in light woods with scrubbed finishes for several years."

At the most recent national furniture market, she said she had been pleased to see new scrubbed-pine pieces from several sources. One of the great appeals of country-style decorating is that it mixes the old and the new and is appropriate in both city and country, unlike other styles which are more suitable in one place or the other.

No matter how appealing it is, however, one style cannot suit everyone. Those individuals who don't opt for rustic country interiors may well choose to reproduce the 18th century in some rooms in the home. A growing number of museum-reproduction collections of 18th-century furniture, fabric and accessories is expected to be available in 1982.

One such museum collection will debut this spring, when reproductions of selected items from the Winterthur Museum in Delaware are introduced.

Along with a growth of interest in traditional and period decoration, there is now a corresponding higher valuation being put on traditional architectural detailing.

"Where they have a choice, people are gravitating towards older apartments and homes with architectural details, interesting moldings, unusually shaped rooms and windows — rooms with character, in other words," said Ms. Barwick.

A primary reason for the appeal of the past is simply that it was a time when objects were chosen for the home because they were pretty.

Interest in pretty rooms and pretty objects to put in them has probably never been higher. "Soft pastel colors, especially lavender and the various shades of blue, are popular now and show no signs of dimminging," she said.

Floral-pattern fabrics, polished English chintz, small figured prints and luxurious-feeling fabrics also are part of the emphasis on the pretty.

There are other indications that the trend to the pretty will continue.

U.S. Panel Says Poland Will Ask Payment Delays

By CARL HARTMAN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A U.S. government panel has predicted Poland will seek further delays in paying off loans from the West, but is recommending against a default judgment for the financially strapped country.

Poland," it said, "lies in its making sufficient reforms domestically to enable it to regain a position in which sources of hard-currency financing will again have confidence in the country."

The report said increased Polish exports are "crucial," but pointed out that production of coal — Poland's biggest export to the West — was cut by more than half in the first six months of 1981. Between January and June Poland mined 8.5 million tons, compared with 19.5 million during the same period of 1980.

The study of Poland's long-term problems was part of a quarterly report the USITC makes on U.S. trade relations with Communist countries. Dated December 1981, the report became available late this week.

"Even sanguine observers of the Polish economic situation realize that the phenomenon of debt rescheduling is only beginning, and can realistically be expected to repeat itself again and again over the next several years," the USITC said.

Felix Rohatyn, the investment banker credited with putting together the plan that saved New York City from bankruptcy, and others, have suggested that Poland be formally declared in default on its debts. That would leave the Soviet Union to pick up the pieces, they say.

But the USITC said declaring Poland in default would not be in the interest of the Western banks to which Poland owes much of its debt.

"Such action would only rule out whatever long-term aspirations Western commercial interests have of Poland's becoming a more valuable trading partner," the report said.

Other critics of the idea have pointed out that declaring a default would also deprive the banks and western government of a threat that can be used to influence Polish — and Soviet — actions.

The USITC found encouraging the recent application of Poland to rejoin the International Monetary Fund and the World Bank.

These bodies, it pointed out, traditionally monitor member countries' economies and place conditions on the loans they make. Poland's situation "could only be improved" by these practices, the report said.

"Western commercial creditors would, no doubt, be reassured by the possibility of Poland's tapping a new source of desperately needed financing," the report added.

Right now, Western commercial creditors — 460 banks — are waiting to see if Poland will complete payment on an estimated $300 million in interest it owes them for 1981.

NATO Allies Are Closer On Sanctions

By HENRY GOTTLIEB
Associated Press Writer

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — America's NAT allies said Saturday the Polish situation has worsened and that they may announce sanctions "in the immediate future."

A senior U.S. official said some of the sanctions may be announced next week and could range from travel restrictions on Soviet and Polish diplomats to withholding of financial credits to both countries — steps the United States has urged its allies to take since martial law was imposed Dec. 13.

The NATO representatives said in a declaration, "The allies agreed that the situation in Poland has worsened since Jan. 11," when Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. and 14 other NATO foreign ministers demanded an end to martial law in Poland.

The allies said Polish martial law chief Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski reneged on promises to maintain civil rights in Poland.

"On the contrary, the Polish authorities supported by the Soviet Union continue to ignore the true aspirations of the overwhelming majority of the Polish people," NATO declared.

"This being the case and with the aim of exerting steady and graduated pressure on those responsible for events in Poland, allied representatives indicated a range of steps that their governments have taken now and others they are considering for implementation in the immediate future," the statement said.

No sanctions by any country were announced at the five-hour meeting, described by the declaration as a chance to "review the situation in Poland, the role of the Soviet Union and the measures that allied government can apply to both countries."

"The U.S. official, who requested anonymity, said some of the sanctions may be finalized at a meeting of foreign ministers of the 10-nation Common Market on Monday and Tuesday.

"By and large you'll have different governments on different days coming to decisions," he said. "We never felt you could have a unanimous thing on an issue as complicated as this and they'll have to take their own decisions."

Walesa's Wife Makes Appeal

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Lech Walesa's wife appealed to the courts to clarify her husband's legal status and a leading intellectual urged authorities to resume talks with Solidarity, but security forces were fortifying checkpoints indicating a tightening of martial law, informed sources said Saturday.

(The NATO allies said the situation in Poland had worsened in the last two weeks and they moved closer to diplomatic and economic measures against Poland and the Soviet Union. But they announced no sanctions after a meeting Saturday in Brussels, Belgium.)

Meanwhile, Stefan Bratkowski, chairman of the Polish journalists' association said in an open letter circulating in Warsaw that the authorities should quickly open talks to solve "conflicts in our country," informed sources said.

Bratkowski, expelled from the Communist Party in October for his liberal views and support of Solidarity, said talks should center on: — Establishment of a social council for the national economy with the acceptance of democratically-elected representatives of society including Walesa.

The London Times correspondent in Warsaw said Walesa's wife Danuta appealed to the regional prosecutor in Gdansk, where the Walesas live, to set her husband free, and that her letter was the "spearhead of a gathering campaign to demonstrate the fundamental illegality of internment."

— Establishment of a mass media social council which would take over one television channel and two radio programs and part of the press to provide a variety of opinions.

(The report, published in London, said she demanded to know on what charges her husband is being held because he was not formally arrested or "temporarily detained," as provided for in the Polish legal code, and that if he had been he should have been released within 48 hours.)

According to the sources, the letter said the current political, economic, social and cultural life of the nation was "paralyzed," and the economy had been ruined.

Travelers entering and leaving Warsaw said police checkpoints at the city's boundaries had been fortified recently, and temporary roadblocks were replaced with metal gateposts.

Bratkowski also called for an "armistice" between the authorities and society based on release of "political prisoners" or clarification of their status.

Instead of a wooden barricade across the highways, the authorities have now constructed metal gateposts that are raised and lowered again after cars and trucks pass through.

More than 120 other Polish intellectuals recently sent a letter protesting martial law to Parliament and Poland's powerful Roman Catholic Church has called for restoration of freedom to head off possible civil war.

But the martial law regime, which admits about 5,000 people have been seized, warned Friday that "in specially justified cases, there can be further internment of persons endangering the state or public order."

Tough Election Year Issues To Confront Congress

By TOM RAUM
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The 97th Congress, with Republicans ruling the Senate and Democrats in shaky control of the House, is returning for an election-year session that will be dominated by economic issues and attempts to tackle thorny social measures.

Ending a six-week winter recess, lawmakers will be back on the job at noon Monday, with President Reagan's State of the Union address to a joint House-Senate session set for 9 p.m. EST on Tuesday.

The president's efforts to revive the nation's economy will again be the No. 1 agenda item, despite the earlier hopes of congressional leaders to get the bulk of his economic package behind them in 1981.

However, a number of "social issues" dear to conservatives also will be debated, after being largely postponed in 1981 to make way for the economic legislation.

Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, said the Senate would spend time on issues like abortion, the federal death penalty, school prayer and busing.

On abortion, Thurmond said he supports a constitutional amendment — which his committee will probably act on in February — to permit state legislatures to enact tougher abortion rules than the federal government's.

Republican leaders say Reagan will have a harder time getting further budget cuts through Congress this year — cuts bound to slash into a number of so-called "entitlement" programs, automatic federal payments to citizens, like health and welfare benefits.

Many influential Republicans, especially those from urban states, are expressing reservations about deep cuts in such programs.

Leaders of both parties are in general agreement that some tax increases will be needed in 1982 — or perhaps at least a delay in the tax cut scheduled to take effect on July 1 — to help whittle away a U.S. deficit that could rise to $100 billion or more in fiscal 1983.

But few want to be in the forefront of any move for higher taxes in an election year that puts all 435 House seats and 33 Senate seats up for grabs.

The picture is complicated by mixed signals from the White House, with Reagan clearly reluctant to endorse major tax hikes after leading the charge last year for the largest single tax break in history.

After first advocating higher excise taxes on consumer goods like gasoline, cigarettes and liquor, Reagan last week expressed second thoughts after he met with business leaders. However, administration officials suggest some form of tax increase will be included in Reagan's 1983 budget plan.

That plan will be formally submitted to Congress on Feb. 8, touching off still another round of budget showdowns — with Democrats again expecting to offer alternatives at each major stage along the way.

"We have to revive the economy from the doldrums. We're developing constructive alternatives," said House Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Texas.

But neither Wright nor other Democratic leaders can say at this point just what those alternatives will entail.

In 1981, even though Democrats retained majority control of the House, the Democratic chiefs lost to Reagan's forces on all key economic votes because of tight GOP unity and because many southern Democrats — the so-called "boll weevils" — voted along with the president.

This year, the split between southern conservatives and urban liberals remains, but Democrats should do better in offering alternatives "because of the mainfest failure" of Reagan's economic program, Wright said.

He said that, while southern Democrats may still defect, urban Republicans in 1982 will be more prone to side with Democrats.

Little legislative action is planned for either chamber until after Reagan's budget is submitted, although the Senate is scheduled to begin debating whether to expell Sen. Harrison Williams, D-N.J., convicted in the FBI's Abscam-bribery investigation, on Feb. 2.

The Senate is also expected to consider early in the session a proposal by Majority Leader Howard Baker, R-Tenn., to allow Senate sessions to be televised, as House session have been for the past three years.

While Democrats seem unlikely to lose the House or regain the Senate in 1981, they are counting on historical trends to help them gain seats in November's mid-presidential-term congressional election. House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill is forecasting a Democratic gain of 25-50 seats.

Republicans, while mindful that the party out of the White House traditionally picks up congressional seats in off years, hopes an upturn in the economy and the continued popularity of Reagan will help them counter this trend.

Democrats hold a 242-192 majority in the House. Republicans control the Senate 53-47. Since only 12 Senate Republicans are up for reelection this year — of the 33 seats on the ballot — it seems unlikely that Republicans will lose control.

While some leaders want an overhaul of the financially ailing Social Security system this session, it seems doubtful that any action will be taken until a newly formed presidential commission on the subject reports its findings — after the November elections.

Before leaving for its Christmas vacation, Congress enacted legislation saving the minimum Social Security benefit of $122 a month for 3 million current recipients. Other major pieces of legislation likely to be debated in Congress this year include:

—Revisions in the Clean Air Act, including an easing of auto emission standards, sought by the U.S. auto industry. Legislation is now before the Senate Environment Committee.

—A rewriting of the nation's basic federal criminal code.

No. 14 N.C. State Squeezes East Carolina

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

RALEIGH — East Carolina's Pirates were coming off two of their worst performances in a long, long time and they were facing the N.C. State Wolfpack, nationally ranked in the Top Twenty last week.

State, too, was coming off a 49-48 upset at the hands of ACC rival Duke, and it seemed like it could be time for a blood-letting.

But instead, it ended up with State squeezing out a 63-53 victory over the stubborn Pirates, who hung with State much of the way, and although losing, proved to be a little better than expected.

Led by a gutsy performance by Al Mack, who had to go up against 7-5 Chuck Nevitt in the middle - and State's "Hose Squad" on the sidelines, Mack dumped in a game high 18 points, and drew praises from both fans and coaches.

"The chemist killed us," State's Jim Valvano said of Mack, referring to his studious looks.

It was no surprise for Dave Odom, however. "They tell you you get a junior college transfer for two years, but really it's only a year and a half. It takes a half-year for him to get adjusted. Mack's done that now. We knew that he shoots well, but he rebounds well too. His per minute rebounding average leads the team."

Odom, whose Pirates slip to 6-9 with the loss, felt that the team followed the game plan as well as they could. "We wanted to be more concerned about our shot selections, but things were going in the first half, so you can't really complain about it. We found some holes in their zone and made it pay off for us."

The coach also felt that the Pirates played well on defense. "State got only 15 shots off their half-court offense in the first half, and when you hold a team to that, you've done a good job. They got nine points off the break, and six of that came on three-pointers. I was a little disappointed in that."

Mack, who made 8 of 11 shots from the floor and both of his two free throws, said that the razzing from the State fans didn't faze him at all. "Heck, it was great," he said. "That's the most people that's ever cheered for me."

He also accepted the job of guarding the giant Nevitt in stride. "It was a difficult accomplishment," he said. "I had to go out and prove myself early that I could go against him. I really expected it to be a long night. I only reach half-way up his arm when he extends it."

The Pirates never led in the game, and tied it only once at 2-2. But they hung ever with the Wolfpack, now 14-3, and refused to allow them to turn the game into a runaway.

Early on it was the play of 6-11 Thurl Bailey that got State going, as he hit the first six points for the Wolfpack, helping them out to a 7-2 lead. Five straight by Scott Parzych ran it out to 14-6, before the Pirates rallied on two baskets by Morris Hargrove and one by Mark McLaurin to cut the margin back to two, 20-18. The two teams traded baskets for several minutes before Sidney Lowe popped through two quick baskets in only two seconds, stealing an in-bounds pass, and Derek Whittenburg added a fast-break basket for a 34-24 lead. Cozell McQueen hit a three-pointer with 1:45 left to up it to 11, 39-28, but Mack and Bruce Peartree both hit before the half to cut it back to 39-32. Both scored again to open the second half, cutting the lead back to three, 39-36, before Whittenburg scored three points and Nevitt added a basket to run the margin back out to eight.

East Carolina stayed within striking distance, however, until Max Perry hit a jumper and Walter Proctor scored, followe by two free throws by Bailey to make it 57-43, the largest lead of the night with 8:19 left.

But State made only one more basket in the time remaining, while the Pirates put on a rally that finally cut it back to the final ten. State made four of nine free throws over the final two minutes to hold most of the lead.

"I think we were overly conservative during those last four minutes," Odom said. "We really didn't give ourselves a chance to win."

"But I think our players wanted to win and expected to win, and so did I."

The big differences in the game came in the field goal shooting and the rebounding. State scored on 60.5 percent of its shots, while the Pirates made just 42.6 percent — including an icy seven of 25 in the second half — when they were needed the most.

On the boards, State held a 32-22 advantage, led by Bailey's 11 and Parzych's nine. Hargrove led ECU with six.

Hargrove was also the only other Pirate besides Mack in double figures with 13. State was led by Whittenburg with 13, Bailey with 12 and Nevitt with 10.

East Carolina returns home on Wednesday to host UNC Charlotte in a 9 p.m. game in Minges Coliseum.

"We're facing the toughest week of the season in facing Charlotte and Richmond, two teams who've beaten nationally ranked teams," Odom said.

Deacons Roll To 92-56 Win

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Seniors Guy Morgan, Mike Helms and Jim Johnstone combined for 43 points Saturday night as Wake Forest rolled to a 92-56 victory over Rider in a non-conference college basketball clash.

Hitting all eight of their shots from the field in the first half, Morgan and Johnstone hit 20 points as Wake Forest, now 13-3, ran up a 53-24 intermission lead. The Demon Deacons hit 79.3 percent from the field in the period and 60.3 percent overall.

Morgan finished with 16 points, while Helms and Johnstone added 14 and 13, respectively.

Guard Danny Young scored 14 points for Wake Forest and added eight assists.

Rider, now 4-11, got a game-high 24 points from Tom O'Hara and 12 from reserve forward Jeff Brown.

The Demon Deacons broke the game open when they scored 20 unanswered points, inflating a 4-point cushion to a 30-6 lead in a six-minute binge midway through the half. Morgan and Young scored six points each in the outburst.

Wake Forest led by at least 30 points in the final 15 minutes and led by as much as 90-52 with 56 seconds left.

Ten of 11 Wake Forest players scored as the Demon Deacons hit 38 of 63 shots from the floor.

The Broncos hit a dismal 26 of 85 for 30.6 percent, including 10 of 45 in the first period.

Blue Devils Upend Cold Clemson

CLEMSON, S.C. (AP) — Clemson head basketball coach Bill Foster said Saturday he had no excuses for his Tigers' 26 percent shooting in a 50-44 Atlantic Coast Conference loss to Duke.

"We couldn't throw it in the ocean if we were standing on the beach," said Foster, whose team outrebounded Duke 46-32 but hit only 19 of 73 shots from the floor.

The victory marked only the second time in 10 years that the Blue Devils, who are 6-9 overall and 2-4 in the ACC, have beaten Clemson in Littlejohn Coliseum.

"We had a lot of effort, and we have nothing to apologize for," Foster said. "We played hard, but the lid just wouldn't come off. To say we didn't shoot well would be the supreme understatement."

He credited his players for playing defense "like maniacs," although they were unable to shut off Vince Taylor, who scored 15 of his 19 points after intermission.

Duke coach Mike Krzyzewski said, "Clemson's best six shooters all had a bad day. Coach Foster must be very frustrated."

However, Krzyzewski credited the Blue Devil defense with causing many of the missed Clemson shots.

"Our defense played good throughout the game. Clemson is a very good offensive rebounding team — (Fred) Gilliam, (Horace) Wyatt and (Vince) Hamilton were constantly on the boards," he said.

But in the first half Clemson failed 10 straight times to put offensive rebounds in for points.

Clemson, 9-6 overall and 2-4 in the conference, missed 25 of its first 28 shots to allow Duke to go up by 10 points, 16-6, with 4:32 left in the first half. Only a scoring burst highlighted by two long-range jumpers by Clemson's Clarke Bynum kept the halftime score close at 20-13.

After halftime the Tigers heated up, penetrating the Duke defense for a Horace Wyatt layup and two jumpers from the lane that made it 22-19 with 17:26 left.

Taylor hit a three-point play, but Clemson scored six of the game's next eight points to close to within two points, 27-25.

Clemson blew three straight chances at tying the score, and Chip Engelland, who had 16 points, hit two straight jumpers from the lane to put Duke ahead 31-25.

Clemson never got closer than four points from then on, and Duke led by 12 points with two minutes remaining.

Doug McNeely scored 10 points for Duke. Clemson, which had no players in double figures, was led by freshman David Shaffer and sophomore Vince Hamilton with eight points each.

Wyatt had 12 rebounds, and his teammates Shaffer and Fred Gilliam added 10 each.

SUPER BOWL XVII

The Final Round:
Cincinnati Battles
49ers In Super Bowl

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP)

The Super Bowl was becoming too predictable. The same faces. The same places. So, a year ago, from New Orleans, the National Football League looked west, looked east — then headed due north.

This, of course, is the first Super Bowl to be played in the nation's snowbelt. The snow's effect will be limited to the 80,000 or so fans driving to and from the Fibreglas-enclosed Silverdome.

This technological wonder with its cross-hatched, air-pressured roof stands upon what used to be the burial ground for worn-out, rusting automobiles.

This Super Bowl presents a plethora of such contrasts.

In this struggle for survival between the Cincinnati Bengals and the San Francisco 49ers, we have a group of highly paid athletes on center stage in an annual event which is the very essence of opulence.

Yet this is Michigan, the most economically hard-hit state in the nation. Just down the road from Pontiac lies Detroit, the hub of the nation's auto manufacturers, where officials say recession has long since given way to depression, where a once-awesome all-American industry is gridlocked by inflation, by stalled labor negotiations, by the influx of cheaper foreign-made cars.

Just outside the Silverdome, beyond the $40 seats, beyond the vacuum of a green-carpeted world where skill, luck, hard work and clean living are almost inevitably paid off with success, there lies another world... another struggle for survival.

In the state of Michigan, 627,000 people are looking for work. That's more than the entire population of Alaska (440,000) or Wyoming (471,000) or Vermont (511,000).

But for those few hours encompassing Super Sunday, the world — or at least that part of it which cares what happens in Commissioner Pete Rozelle's domain — will forget matters such as economic yardsticks. It will be more concerned with the yardsticks that measure the inches between success and failure, between victory and defeat.

And after the sun has set, Rozelle will crown a new champion to replace the The

Blue Demons Edge UAB

CHICAGO (AP) — Terry Cummings was tired, but it didn't keep him from turning in a brilliant performance Saturday in leading fourth-ranked DePaul to a 79-68 victory over Alabama-Birmingham in a nationally televised college basketball game.

"I did as much as I could," said Cummings, who scored 24 points and grabbed 19 rebounds. "I was tired, I got to bed early last night but tossed all night long. I felt a little fatigued when the game started."

DePaul Coach Ray Meyer said, "I'm not too proud. We didn't play well, not for national television. Too many turnovers. I was discouraged over our free throw shooting."

However, the veteran coach had some words of praise for his outstanding junior forward. "Cummings did an excellent job, especially in rebounding," Meyer said.

Alabama-Birmingham Coach Gene Bartow called DePaul "one of the best five teams in America. Missouri and DePaul would have a phenomenal game if they played. DePaul shot well, rebounded well and played emotionally."

"I don't think Ray Meyer will like this because I don't want to put a hex on him, but I think this is the best DePaul team we've played in the last five years," added Bartow. "It's a very well coached team."

The Blue Demons raced to their 11th straight triumph and boosted their record to 16-1, while snapping Alabama-Birmingham's five-game winning streak and leaving the Blazers with a 13-5 record.

The game was fairly close, with DePaul leading 39-35 early in the second half. The Blue Demons then outscored the Blazers 12-3 in the next three minutes and took a 51-38 lead.

Led by Oliver Robinson, who finished with 25 points, Alabama-Birmingham managed closed within six points with 3:05 left in the game, but four free throws by Cummings and Tyrone Corbin lifted DePaul back into a 10-point lead with a little more than two minutes to play.

Alabama-Birmingham's only lead came in the first half at 6-4, but a free throw by Ken Patterson and a spinning turnaround jumper by Corbin put the Demons ahead to stay 7-6. Two baskets by Patterson and one by Cummings made it 13-6.

The Blazers, getting balanced scoring, tied the score 26-26 on a basket and a pair of free throws by Robinson with 3:49 left in the half.

But Alabama-Birmingham was unable to score again in the first half and Bernard Randolph broke the tie, Cummings added a basket and Teddy Grubbs scored the final three points, giving the Blue Demons a 33-26 halftime lead. It might have been bigger, but DePaul was only 3-of-10 from the free throw line.

Patterson, a freshman, scored a career-high 18 points for DePaul and Skip Dillard added 15.

Va. Tech Upsets Louisville

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Senior guard Jeff Schneider hit a 16-foot shot with five seconds left, giving Virginia Tech a 78-76 upset victory over No. 17 Louisville in a Metro Conference basketball game Saturday.

Schneider's heroics were set up when Louisville's Scooter McCray stepped out of bounds with 48 seconds left in the game. The Hokies methodically worked the ball around the perimeter until Schneider got open for the winning basket.

Schneider, who finished with 14 points, tied the score with 1:47 left when he picked off a pass by Derek Smith in Louisville's front court and drove in for the basket that made it 76-76.

The victory lifted Virginia Tech's record to 12-3 overall and 3-2 in the conference. The Cardinals slipped to 11-5 and 4-2.

Schneider's performance overshadowed that of Smith and Lancaster Gordon. Smith finished with 29 points and Gordon 25, both season highs for the two Cardinals.

Virginia Tech was led by Dale Soloman with 26 points. Gordy Brian had 10 points for the winners.

West's senior season, with a win Monday at Massachusetts. West Virginia scored five straight points to break a 50-50 tie and take a 55-50 lead in the final minutes, but the Rams, who lost their fifth game in a row, rebounded to take a 56-55 lead.

A West Virginia field goal and a Rhode Island foul shot tied the score at 57-57 and the Mountaineers began working the clock down after taking a timeout with 53 seconds remaining to set their strategy.

With the clock winding down, Collins was apparently tied up at the top of the key by two Rhode Island players. But he spotted Jones slicing down the key, and hit him with a perfect pass for a layup that regained the lead for the Mountaineers.

Pappy Owens missed a 24-foot shot just before the final buzzer that would have tied the game for the Rams.

Wyoming.....27

BYU.....25

PROVO, Utah (AP) — Greg Thesenvitz tipped in a shot with one second to play Saturday to give Wyoming a 27-25 victory over Brigham Young in a record-setting Western Athletic Conference basketball game.

Wyoming is 6-0 in the WAC and 14-4 overall, while BYU now is 4-3 in the league and 12-7 overall.

The Cowboys' Mike Jackson, missed a 20-foot jump shot with three seconds left and the score tied 25-25. But Thesenvitz tipped in the shot in the regionally televised game.

The game broke the conference record for fewest points scored in a game. The old record for combined points was 52 set in 1979, when Wyoming beat Texas El-Paso 28-27.

BYU's Fred Roberts, who finished with a game-high 14 points, hit a short shot with 24 seconds remaining to even the score at 25, giving Wyoming the opportunity for the last shot.

Marquette.....75

IONA.....67

NEW YORK (AP) — Michael Wilson scored 25 points, including five of Marquette's final seven, and the Warriors blunted an Iona rally late in the game to score a 75-67 college basketball victory Saturday over the Gaels.

Glenn "Doc" Rivers helped Marquette open a seven-point lead early in the second half, and the Warriors led by as many as 12, at 64-52, on a jump shot by Terrell Schlundt with 5:18 left.

Indiana.....77

Purdue.....55

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Ted Kitchel and Jim Thomas scored 18 points apiece Saturday as Indiana, holding Purdue to a single field goal over the final 10 minutes of the first half, built a 12-point lead at the intermission and coasted to a 77-55 Big Ten Conference basketball victory.

The Hoosiers, winning their fourth straight game, raised their conference record to 4-2 and their overall mark to 10-5. Purdue fell to 4-2 in league play and 7-8 for all games.

After trailing 37-25 at halftime, Purdue never came closer than 10 points in the final period. The Hoosiers then ran off 11 straight points, 9 of them by Kitchel, and iced the game by hitting 18 of their final 30 points from the free throw line.

Ohio St.....59

NORTHWESTERN.....57

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Granville Waiters' short jump shot at the buzzer gave Ohio State a 59-57 double overtime victory over Northwestern Saturday in a regionally televised Big Ten basketball game.

The Buckeyes, who blew a 14-point lead early in the second half, battled back from a 56-53 deficit at the start of the

Auburn.....82

Georgia.....74

AUBURN, Ala. (AP) — Alvin Mumphord and Odell Mosteller each scored 19 points and the freshman Charles Barkley added 18 points and snared 17 rebounds as Auburn downed Georgia 82-74 in a Southeastern Conference basketball game Saturday.

Auburn, 10-6 overall and 4-4 in the conference, never trailed in the game, building a lead of 16 points in the second half before a late Georgia rally cut the margin to five with 1:38 to go.

After that, Auburn hit seven consecutive free throws to preserve its lead. The Tigers hit 26 of 29 free throws in the game, including 14 in a row during one stretch of the second half.

It was the third loss in a row for the Bulldogs, who fell to 9-6 overall and 3-5 in the SEC.

Dominique Wilkins led the Bulldogs with 16 points, 11 in the second half, and Terry Fair added 14. Freshman Gerald Crosby came off the bench and contributed 10 points.

Nevada LV.....91

Seton Hall.....81

NEW YORK (AP) — Richie Adams led Nevada-Las Vegas on a 13-5 burst midway in the second half, and the Runnin' Rebels held to beat undermanned Seton Hall 91-81 in the first game of a college basketball doubleheader Saturday at Madison Square Garden.

Marquette and Iona met in the second game.

Adams scored five points in Nevada-Las Vegas' decisive spurt, which began with the teams tied 60-60 and 11:37 to play. Adams hit a three-point play to start the run, and the Rebels led 73-65 at the 7:55 mark.

West Virginia.....59

Rhode Island.....57

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Junior guard Greg Jones scored on a backdoor layup following a pass by center Phil Collins with seven seconds to go to lift streaking West Virginia to a 59-57 victory over Rhode Island in an Eastern Eight basketball game Saturday.

The Mountaineers, scoring their 13th consecutive victory, gained first half leads of as many as 11 points, then had to rally late in the game to raise their record to 14-1. West Virginia, which is 5-0 in the Eastern Eight, can tie the school consecutive victory record, set in 1960 during Jerry

Nelson Retains Lead At Open

PHOENIX (AP) — Larry Nelson retained the lead with a struggling 1-under-par 70 in the second round of the $300,000 Phoenix Open golf tournament and looked ahead to "a grinding weekend."

The soft-spoken Nelson, the current PGA champion, put together a 36-hole total of 133, nine shots under par for two trips over the 6,726-yard Phoenix Country Club course.

"I just wasn't very sharp," Nelson said. "I don't know if the layoff had anything to do with it."

Nelson, who completed his first round before rain delayed play Thursday, had a day off Friday. The rain delay threw the tournament a full day off schedule. It's now set to end Monday.

Morris Hatafsky, who last season won his first event in a six-year career, and tour sophomore Fred Couples moved into a tie for second at 134, 8 under par at the tournament's halfway point.

Couples, one of the longest hitters on the tour, matched the best round of the chilly, sunny day with a 65. Hatafsky had a 67 despite a last-hole bogey that cost him a share of the lead.

"It was a gamble, and I paid for it," Hatafsky said with a shrug after boldly going for the green with his second shot on the par-5 finishing hole. He found the water instead.

The group at 135, only 2 shots back with two rounds to go, included defending title-holder David Graham, hometown boy Tom Purtzer, former PGA champ Lanny Wadkins and Lon Nielsen. Graham, the U.S. Open champ, had a 68. Wadkins shot 70, Purtzer 69 and Nielsen 66.

Some of the game's bigger guns also remained in position for a shot at the title. Tom Kite, last year's leading money winner, had a 67 and was at 138. Johnny Miller, winner of a $500,000 first prize in South Africa earlier this month, was 69-139. And 1981 Player of the Year Bill Rogers was at 140 after another 70.

Lee Trevino, 73-146, and Arnold Palmer, 73-147, failed to make the cut for the final two rounds.

Nelson, who had opened with a spectacular 63, had a 2-shot lead when play began Saturday after a one-hour delay because of frozen greens.

"I knew what I had to do when I started off," he said. "I figured no one else would be better than 8 under par and whatever I shot, the number under par I was today, that would be my lead."

"Unfortunately, 1-under was the best I could do. It was just not a very good round of golf."

"I really don't know how well I'm playing, whether I'm playing well enough to win. I won't know until tomorrow."

"I'm kind of expecting the scores to bunch up. I'd like to be far enough in front going to the last few holes that it doesn't matter."

"But I don't think that's gonna happen. I'm looking forward to a grinding weekend."

"I just hope I can stay in it, stay close enough to be in the golf tournament going into the last round."

Nelson, winner of two titles last season, opened with birdies on his first two holes, then had to work hard to keep it going.

NCSU Nips UVa Women

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (UPI) — Ginger Rouse scored 17 points and Angie Armstrong added 13 Saturday night as North Carolina State recorded a 69-64 victory over Virginia in women's basketball.

Freshmen Cathy Grimes and Debbie Young led the Cavaliers, 14-5, with 17 and 14 points, respectively. Lyn Anastasio added 12 points.

N.C. State's record stands at 16-2.

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Freshman guard Ron Rowan scored 14 points Saturday night as Notre Dame, building a 12-point lead early in the second half, withstood a late Maryland rally and beat the Terrapins 55-51 in a non-conference college basketball game.

The Irish broke from a 23-23 tie early in the final period with eight straight points, including two baskets by Rowan. Maryland's Jeff Adkins scored, but the Irish ran off six in a row for a commanding 37-25 lead.

Notre Dame, now 4-10 for the season, managed one more 12-point lead at 42-30 before freshman Adrian Branch and senior Charles Pittman scored two baskets apiece to bring the Terrapins back into contention. Maryland still trailed by four points before the 6-foot-5

Rowan clinched the game with a pair of free throws with eight seconds left. Branch added the final basket at the buzzer.

Bill Varner added 11 points and John Paxson and Tim Andree chipped in nine apiece for the Irish. Maryland, falling to 10-6, was led by Branch with 16 points, Pittman with 15 and Adkins with 12.

Six points by Rowan in the first half helped the Irish to a two-point lead at the intermission at 23-21.

The Terrapins' biggest lead was five points at 13-8, but consecutive baskets by Cecil Rucker, Andree and Rowan put the Irish ahead by one point. The two teams exchanged baskets and then a free throw by Branch tied the game at 16-16. Back-to-back goals by Rowan and Barry Spencer then gave Notre Dame its biggest lead of the first half at 20-16.

Maryland rallied to a 21-21 tie, but Rowan's third basket five seconds ahead of the halftime buzzer put the Irish back on top. A basket by Pittman tied the game at the start of the second period, but consecutive baskets by Spencer, Rowan, Andree and Rowan put Notre Dame ahead to stay.

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Otis Thorpe scored 14 points and collected 14 rebounds as Providence held off a late Georgetown rally to upset the 13th-ranked Hoyas 50-49 in college basketball Saturday night.

The Friars led 43-32 with 9:59 remaining, but the Hoyas outscored them 10-3 over the next three minutes behind freshman Anthony Jones and Pat Ewing to get back into the game.

Keith Lomax's layup with 6:01 remaining gave the Friars a 48-42 advantage before Eric Floyd converted a free throw at 5:02 for Georgetown.

Richie Tucker's free throw with 4:24 left gave Providence a 49-43 lead before Eric Smith hit a jumper to cut the advantage to 49-45. There was no scoring until 1:50 remaining in the game, when Ron Jackson's free throw provided the Friars with a 50-45 lead and their winning point.

Floyd hit two free throws and a field goal in the final 1:20 for Georgetown to wrap up the scoring.

Floyd led the Hoyas, 14-5, with 12 points. The loss was the third straight for the Hoyas on the heels of a 13-game winning streak. Their record now is 3-3 in the Big East Conference.

Providence, 9-8, is 1-5 in league play.

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — Kenny Arnold scored 15 points and helped fuel a second-half surge that broke the game open as sixth-ranked Iowa defeated Michigan 56-38 in Big Ten Conference basketball Saturday.

Iowa overcame Michigan's slow-down tactics and remained tied for first place in the conference at 5-1. The Hawkeyes raised their overall record to 13-2 and administered the 11th straight defeat to Michigan, which is 1-13 on the year and 0-6 in the Big Ten.

During one stretch in the second half, Michigan went 8-34 without scoring a point and 11:45 without making a field goal.

Iowa took a 26-16 halftime lead as Michigan was content to hold the ball against the Hawkeyes' zone defense and took only 19 shots.

Alabama ..... 82
Florida ..... 71
TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) — Eddie Phillips scored 20 points to lead 16th-ranked Alabama to a 82-71 Southeastern Conference college basketball victory over Florida in a regionally televised game Saturday.

The victory improved Alabama's overall record to 14-2 and 6-2 in SEC play, while Florida fell to 4-12 and 1-7. It was Florida's 11th loss in a row.

The Crimson Tide started out strong from the field, but experienced some defensive problems, allowing the Gators a two-point lead early in the first half. Alabama, which was shooting well from the line, went ahead for good with 15:30 left and pulled to a 22-13 lead, its biggest of the first half, with 10:30 to go.

Florida whittled that lead by hitting outside shots against a tough zone defense. Alabama held only a four-point lead with four seconds left, but Ennis Whately sank a shot to give the Tide a six-point halftime advantage, 46-40.

Indiana St. Stuns Tulsa; Kentucky Downs Vandy

TERRE HAUTE, Ind. (AP) — Lester Wright sank a 15-foot jumper with one second left, lifting Indiana State to a 60-59 upset victory over No. 10 Tulsa Saturday night in Missouri Valley Conference college basketball.

Indiana State, which led the entire first half, went up by seven points, 23-16, with 4:46 left in the second quarter on a Scott Mugg jumper. But Tulsa whittled the lead to two points, 28-26, at halftime.

In the second half, the Sycamores led 36-32 after a Reggie Golden jumper with 17:10 left.

During the next 17 minutes, the lead changed six times. Tulsa took a one-point lead, 59-58, after Greg Stewart hit two free throws with 2:55 left.

With seven seconds left, Golden missed a shot that was tipped three times before Wright grabbed it and sank his jumper from the right side of the basket.

Tulsa's Paul Pressey led all scorers with 21 points, while teammate Steve Harris had 10.

Wright had 18 points for Indiana State, while Ken Banister and Reggie Golden had 14 apiece.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Virdell Howland and LaSalle Thompson combined for 42 points Saturday night as No. 7 Texas defeated South Carolina 88-71 and extended its college basketball record to 14-0.

Texas, off to its best start in 47 years, won the regionally televised game with scoring spurts at the beginning of the contest and the start of the second half.

Howland, tossing in long jumpers, scored 22 points and Thompson — despite sitting out nine minutes with foul trouble — had 20.

South Carolina, dropping to 6-11, played without leading scorer Jimmy Foster, who had averaged 15.9 points per game. Foster reinjured an ankle.

Mike Wacker scored 16 points for the Longhorns and Denard Holmes had 10.

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Arkansas center Scott Hastings hit a 20-foot shot with six seconds remaining, giving the 15th-ranked Razorbacks a comeback 67-66 victory over No. 19 Houston in a Southwest Conference basketball game Saturday.

The Cougars led by as many as 11 points midway through the second half but only scored four points in the final seven minutes. They had a one-point lead when Keith Peterson knocked the ball away from Clyde Drexler with 33 seconds remaining. The Razorbacks worked the clock until the six-foot-10 Hastings hit the winning shot. ## Pedroza To Defend Crown Vs. LaPorte

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Eusebio Pedroza, the World Boxing Association featherweight champion from Panama, will defend his crown Sunday against Juan LaPorte in a scheduled 15-round fight.

Pedroza and LaPorte, the 22-year-old, top-ranked challenger from New York City, have had one common opponent — Rocky Lockridge of Paterson, N.J. They account for Lockridge's only two defeats.

Pedroza won a close decision over Lockridge in October 1980, when he last defended his title in this country. Nine months later, LaPorte earned a shot at Pedroza's title with a second-round knockout of Lockridge in Las Vegas, Nev.

Pedroza, 32-3 including 23 knockouts, said he is not concerned that LaPorte dispatched Lockridge so quickly.

"They were two different fights," Pedroza said through an interpreter before Saturday night's weigh-in at the Sands Casino.

14th defense of the crown he won from Cecilio Lastra in April 1978. Undeclared since July 1976, Pedroza said his desire to keep the title stay strong as long as national television networks are willing to pay him to fight in the United States.

"As long as there is good money, he wants to stay on top of the featherweight division," said Pedroza's manager, Santiago Del Rio.

Pedroza is expected to be paid more than $150,000 for Sunday's fight.

The scheduled 15-round contest is LaPorte's second world title fight. LaPorte, rated No. 2 by the WBA and No. 1 by the World Boxing Council, lost a decision to WBC featherweight champion, Salvador Sanchez of Mexico in December 1980.

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Derrick Hord pumped in 12 points during a 12-minute stretch of the second half in which Kentucky out-scored Vanderbilt 26-8 on the way to a 67-58 Southeastern Conference basketball victory Saturday.

Dirk Minnifield added 10 points to the streak, which brought No. 9 Kentucky from a 39-35 deficit to a 61-47 lead with 5:19 remaining.

The victory boosted the Wildcats to 12-3 overall and 5-2 in the SEC. Vandy fell to 10-6 overall and 3-5 in league play.

Hord finished with 22 points, while Vanderbilt's Willie Jones led all scorers with 24. Minnifield totaled 16 points for Kentucky before fouling out with 2:14 to go. Freshman Phil Cox scored 13 points for Vanderbilt.

The Commodores, who trailed 34-33 at halftime, forged the 39-35 lead with a 20-footer by Jimmy Lenz and two straight baskets from close range by Jones.

Minnifield then started Kentucky's decisive charge with a jumper in the key. He followed with a layup that tied the game 39-39 and Hord banged in an eight-footer to push the Wildcats ahead.

A basket by Al Miller brought Vanderbilt even again. Hord and Jones traded baskets, but Jim Master's 24-footer put Kentucky ahead for good, 45-43, with 13:41 remaining.

Walsh, Gregg Say It Will Take At Least 4 TDs To Win Super Bowl

Coaches: Game To Be High Scoring

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — On the eve of Super Bowl XVI, coaches Bill Walsh of the San Francisco 49ers and Forrest Gregg of the Cincinnati Bengals have found at least one thing on which they can agree.

Both figure it will take four touchdowns to win Sunday's big game. "I don't think 21 points will be enough to win," Gregg said. "I think it will take 28 or more points."

Walsh wasn't quarreling with that assessment. He had predicted that four TDs would be required to win the National Football Conference championship game against Dallas, and the final score was 28-27. He sees the same kind of wide-open contest for the Super Bowl.

"I expect one or the other to score four touchdowns," Walsh said. "It won't be a bitter defensive struggle with Ken Anderson and Joe Montana on the field."

Cincinnati's Anderson and San Francisco's Montana, who led their conferences in passing during the regular season, will oppose each other in the Pro Bowl next week.

"I suspect both of us will be going for the big play," Walsh continued. "We will go with our usual style and I think the Bengals will do the same. As long as the issue is in doubt, I expect a wide-open game."

Walsh got some good news at the 49er workout Friday when wide receiver Freddie Solomon was able to practice.

"Freddie was running a Cincinnati pass pattern against our defense," Walsh said. "They collided and both went down. Freddie didn't get up. He twisted his knee as he fell. It was a routine play, something that's done nonchalantly."

After he was hurt, Solomon had been designated as "questionable" for the game. In the NFL injury lexicon, a player listed as "questionable" has only a 50-50 chance of playing.

Dr. Fred Behling examined Solomon's knee before the workout and said it was sore but that there was no evidence of any swelling. After he practiced, the 49ers upgraded the receiver's status to "probable," which means his availability for Sunday is 75-25.

Solomon's injury has not changed Cincinnati's preparations for the 49ers.

"Solomon didn't play against us the first time and they beat us 21-3," said Gregg. "He's a good football player, but I don't know how much of a difference his absence would make if he doesn't play. During the regular season, when a player is listed as questionable, he usually plays 90 percent of the time."

And that was before the 49ers upgraded Solomon's status to probable.

Meanwhile, visitors continued pouring into the Detroit metropolitan area for the first Super Bowl ever held in a northern city. Hotel space was at a premium and the party atmosphere so prevalent at every Super Bowl was taking hold.

The NFL's annual pre-game bash for 3,000 friends of football was held Friday night with the theme of "America on Wheels," saluting the auto industry.

Eight tennis courts at the post Fairlane Club were transformed into a replica of an automobile assembly plant and entertainment was provided by the Up With People ensemble, who will perform at halftime of the game, as well as Lionel Hampton, Bob Crosby, Peter D'Uch, Carmen Cavallero and their respective orchestras.

Both teams were avoiding the party atmosphere, preferring to concentrate on the business of winning the football game. Each tapered off with brief workouts at the Silverdome today.

"I think a big (one-sided) win is unlikely," Walsh said. "Neither team will come apart after the other makes a big play. We are very well matched."

Gregg becomes the first man to both play in and coach in the Super Bowl. A Hall of Fame offensive lineman, he was in Super Bowls I and II with Green Bay and Super Bowl VI with Dallas.

"The big difference between coaching and playing in the Super Bowl is that as a player I only had to get myself ready," he said. "As a coach, I have to get 45 players ready."

Super Bowl: Then And Now

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — The Bengals' franchise ever played a football game. Sunday, he becomes the first man to participate in the Super Bowl as both a player and head coach, when the Bengals meet the San Francisco 49ers.

Gregg has changed noticeably in appearance since 1967. So has the Super Bowl. For instance:

•The name Super Bowl was used right from the beginning by the press but was not adopted by pro football until 1969. In 1967, the tickets read: World Championship Game AFL-NFL The "Super Bowl" name was coined by Lamar Hunt, owner of the Chiefs, when he came upon one of his 7-year-old daughter Sharon's toys, a Super Ball. It took three years for the NFL to officially accept what had long since become the game's unofficial moniker.

•A total of 770 credentials were issued to members of the media for Super Bowl I. This year, about 2,000 print, television, radio and photo journalists are expected to descend upon the Pontiac Silverdome.

•For those who pay their way into the stadium for Super Bowl XVI without the aid of scalpers, the ducats are priced at $40 each. At Super Bowl I, they ranged from $6 to $12.

•Network television documented Super Bowl I with the care and attention to detail generally reserved for presidential inaugurations and political assassinations. The game was shown on both pro football networks, CBS and NBC, with each employing its own announcers and CBS providing the production crew for both. That was the only sports event ever televised live by more than one network. This year, as in the previous 14 Super Bowls, the telecast will be carried on one network. CBS has the honor this time, as it had for Super Bowl II in 1968. Next year is NBC's turn.

•The rights to televise the event in 1967 cost each network $1 million; this year's tab for CBS will be $6 million. Commercial time in 1967 cost $85,000 per minute on CBS, $70,000 per minute on NBC (CBS, which telecast NFL games while NBC had the younger AFL, had bigger ratings, hence the higher price).

Now it requires $600,000 to buy an advertiser one minute of network air time on the Super Bowl telecast.

•Eleven cameras were inside the stadium relaying the pictures at the first Super Bowl. For Super Bowl XVI, the network will have 23 cameras — one flown above the domed stadium in a helicopter to capture the landscape of this winter wonderland.

•The television pregame show, a tight 30-minute package in 1967, will be 90 minutes this time.

•The trophy took on a new look after Super Bowl IV because of the AFL-NFL merger. It's still a sterling silver football mounted on a three-sided base, but it no longer displays the logos of both the AFL and NFL on the front with "World Professional Football Championship" emblazoned beneath. Now, only the NFL symbol remains, with "Vince Lombardi Trophy" and the number of the Super Bowl on the front.

•The ball changed, too. The one used by San Francisco and Cincinnati will be a standard Wilson NFL football. For the first four Super Bowl games, the AFL and NFL teams each used its own league's ball on offense. That's because the balls were geometrically different and the quarterbacks insisted on gripping their own league's version.

The Wilson NFL product, which had laces 4 1/4 inches long, was more rounded at the ogive (the area from the laces to the nose of the ball) and had a naturally tanned-in tack. Spalding's AFL model No. J5-V, a college-type ball with a more tapered ogive and 4 1/4-inch lacing, was sprayed with a tacky substance after its manufacture.

•The first winning and losing shares were $15,000 and $7,500. The winners of Super Bowl XVI will take home $18,000. The losers will get $9,000.

•The only unbroken, untied individual record left standing from 1967 is Jerrel Wilson's 61-yard punt for Kansas City, the longest ever in a Super Bowl game. Two other statistical marks from Super Bowl I also are still in the books — fewest rushing attempts by both teams (Kansas City 19, Green Bay 33), and most points by a team in the third quarter (Green Bay 14).

•This is the 15th consecutive Super Bowl sellout. In the first Super Bowl, the attendance at the 93,000-seat Los Angeles Coliseum fell more than 30,000 short of capacity, with a turnstile count of 61,946. Those fans in the Coliseum were the only ones in the country's second-largest market to have witnessed the history-making spectacle live. The game was blacked out on local television, as were Super Bowl games II through VI.

•The betting establishments in Nevada couldn't elicit much action on the Green Bay-Kansas City contest. But now, watching the Super Bowl and betting it go hand-in-hand for many.

Bengals Have Score To Settle

TROY, Mich. (AP) — The Cincinnati Bengals' players have been gracious in their comments about the San Francisco 49ers this week. But several of them think there's a score to settle, and something to prove, when they meet Sunday in Super Bowl XVI.

Although Coach Forrest Gregg insists that revenge won't be a factor in the Silverdome, several players said they're still smarting from a 21-3 defeat inflicted by the 49ers in Cincinnati last month.

"Our team is having great practices. We're healthy. We're excited about the challenge of meeting a team that's beat us once before, and beat us soundly. We're also preparing to play a physical, physical football game," linebacker Reggie Williams said.

The defeat was the Bengals' most lopsided of a 124 regular season. It also marked the only time they were held without a touchdown.

Most comments traded by the two teams this week were complimentary, with neither side wanting to rile the other. But Williams and Bengals rookie wide receiver Cris Collinsworth hinted that there's unspoken motivation for Cincinnati.

Williams is still smoldering over an end-zone spike by 49ers quarterback Joe Montana in the Dec. 6 game between the two clubs. Williams accused Montana of arrogantly spiking the ball, and he has additional reason for wanting to get to Montana on Sunday.

Rose Rally Powers Past Northeastern

ELIZABETH CITY — Rose High School, down seven points with two minutes left in the first half, scored the final eight points of the half and the first ten of the second and went on to roll to a 74-56 win over Northeastern High School Friday night.

It marked the first Big East Conference victory for the Rampants, who had lost their first four league contests.

The Rampette girls, however, playing one of their worst games of the season, bowed 42-30 to Northeastern.

Paced by the scoring of guard Donnell Lee and Russell Perkins and the inside scoring of William Battle, the Rampants overcame poor shooting and rebounding in the early minutes of the game to come back for the victory.

Rose, which did not play a game last week due to exams and poor weather, hit only four of 18 shots in the first quarter, and followed that up with a warmer ten of 22 in the second frame. While that was going on, Northeastern was canning 11 of 20 and eight of 15 at the stripe to jump into a seven-point lead on several occasions.

But in the second half, the Rampants, who had also trailed in rebounding, 23-21 at the half, rallied to take complete control of the game. For the second half, Rose made good on 19 of 34 shots, well over 50 percent. At the same time, they held Northeastern to only 10 of 26. And Rose ruled the boards, 20-15.

Turnovers were also a big factor in the game. The Eagles, plagued by them all evening, committed 24 during the game, while Rose had just 16, and several of them came late when the reserves were in the game.

Early on, however, it was Rose that was having problems as Northeastern went out to an early 7-2 lead. But a three-point play by Freddie Cherry and a jumper by Barry Smith pulled Rose even at 9-9. Two free throws by Lee put Rose up for the first time, 11-9, but Michael Barcliff hit two straight baskets and one of two free throws to push the Eagles out to a 14-11 lead.

Jamie Turner followed with the throw-back of a missed shot and Barcliff added two more free throws for an 18-11 lead at the end of the quarter.

Lee sparked the Rampants to pull back within one in the early minutes of the second period as Rose closed the gap to that on three occasions, the last at 24-23.

The Eagles, however, ran off six straight o push back out by seven, 30-23 with two minutes left in the quarter.

But baskets by Perkins, Derwin Little and Freddie Cherry cut it back to one, and another by Little with four seconds left gave Rose a 31-30 halftime lead.

The Rampants picked up right where they left off in the second half, scoring the first ten of the period — all five baskets by different players.

Northeastern, led by four points from Barcliff, cut it back to 41-36 after that, but Rose maintained the lead and held a 49-41 margin at the end of the quarter.

Two early baskets by Perkins ran the lead out to 12, 53-41, and it eventually climbed to as many as 19, 70-51 on a three-point play by Battle with 1:41 left.

Coach Jim Brewington explained afterwards that a change in the lineup helped the Rampants overcome the Eagles. "We went from big to little," he said. "Donnell Lee came off the bench and scored 12 points in the first half. And we weren't getting the defensive movement we needed from one of our big guys, so we made the change."

"The defense brought us back and Perkins helped out a lot in that. Battle came on in the fourth period to help us out a lot too," he added. Brewington also noted that while the man-to-man defense brought the Rampants back, their switch back into a zone seemed to confuse Northeastern in the second half. "They took quite a while to adjust to it, and that allowed us to make some steals."

"This was a big win for us. We've been playing well, but we haven't been winning. We needed this win."

Battle led the final scoring figures with 17 points, while Lee had 16 and Perkins had 14. Northeastern was led by Barcliff with 23 and Turner with 13.

Rose's girls scored the first four points of the evening, but Northeastern came back to tie it up, then take a 7-5 lead on a basket by Teresa Tyler. The Lady Eagles led, 9-7, at the end of the first period.

Rose again got the lead, 11-9, on two early second period baskets, but a fast break bucket by Kim Eason and a free throw by Stephanie Hoyt returned the lead to the Eagles, 12-11, and they never lost it again.

From there, it was a steady pullaway for Northeastern, which held a 17-13 lead at halftime, thanks to the play of Eason, who scored the final five points of the half for the Eagles.

Northeastern then ran off the first eight points of the second half to up its lead to 25-13, before Rose got a basket. It was the only one the Rampettes got during the period, and Northeastern scored twice more for a 29-15 lead going into the final quarter.

During the first half of the final period, Northeastern ran its lead out to as many as 23 points, 40-17, before Rose managed a late comeback to the final 12-point margin.

"I knew it was cold outside," coach Dennis Gibson said, "but it was colder in here. It seemed like we had a lid on our basket. Nothing would go in. We blew a lot of inside shots — neither team had to take many from outside though."

"This is only the third game we've played since December 19, and that's got a lot to do with it. You have to play to stay sharp."

Gibson said that Northeastern was a little quicker than he expected them to be, but still "shouldn't have given us that much problem. We just failed on connect on some things. Turnovers hurt us a lot. We made too many mental mistakes."

Eason finished the game with 19 points and was the only player for either team in double figures.

Rose's boys are now 6-6 overall and 1-1 in league play, while Northeastern falls to 5-11 and 0-7. The Rampettes drop to 2-3 in the league and 4-6 overall. Northeastern is 3-4 in conference play and 6-7 overall.

The Rampants go outside the conference on Tuesday, traveling to Washington to face the Pam Pack.

Bengals Battle 49ers Today...

Not since Joe Namath engineered the most startling upset in the history of the pro game a dozen years ago have two first-timers met in the Super Bowl. And never before has a team (in this case, both teams) arising from the ashes of a losing season one year to reach this climactic event the next.

Yet, despite the occasional asides that something's lacking here — namely a so-called championship-type team like the Dallas Cowboys or maybe the Pittsburgh Steelers or San Diego Chargers — what we have here are the National and American conferences' two best teams.

A year ago, Forrest Gregg and Bill Walsh had inherited teams that had become community embarrassments, and they were just getting comfortable in their jobs.

Gregg was finishing up his first season as the Bengals' coach. And they knew he was boss. The Bill Johnson-Homer Rice era, when laxity was a byword, had ended with the suddenness of a slap in the face.

Gregg was schooled by the ultimate taskmaster, Vince Lombardi, during his days as an offensive tackle with the Green Bay Packers' Super Bowl teams of the 1960s. He whipped the Bengals back into shape in one big hurry.

But if there were turning points, they came last April and again last September.

First, the Bengals gave quarterback Ken Anderson Cris Collinsworth, a pass receiver who would turn defensive backs' eyes saucer-wide. He was their No. 2 draft choice, and he was No. 2 in receptions and No. 1 in yardage on the team.

Then, when Anderson stumbled badly on opening day, throwing two interceptions and getting yanked out of the game before it was one-quarter old, Gregg gave him another chance, starting him in Game 2 against the Jets. If the game hadn't been in New York, Ken's wife has said, and if he had not started out well, he might not have survived the fans' wrath.

But he won, completing 21 of 33 passes for 246 yards and three touchdowns along the way. And with what turned out to be a fiercely protective front line, he and the Bengals kept on winning.

The last-place team at 6-10 in 1980 became 1981's first-place team at 12-4. And Anderson, a two-time passing champion in the 1970s, was that again and much more, earning Most Valuable Player and Offensive Player of the Year honors, too.

That, too, makes this a unique Super Bowl. For it is not so much Gregg's patience in 1981 that made Anderson what he is today so much as it was Bill Walsh's patience in 1971.

Walsh was an assistant under Bengals boss Paul Brown for nine years. It was Walsh who convinced Brown to draft Anderson, a little-known quarterback out of a lesser-known school, tiny Augustana College in Illinois in 1971. By mid-1972 Walsh had painstakingly molded him into a starting quarterback. By 1974 (and again a year later), Anderson was the league's premier passer.

Yet when Brown chose to relinquish his coaching duties after the 1975 season, the job went not to Walsh but to Johnson, "one of the boys." The disappointed Walsh left the Bengals, spent a year in San Diego (where he began the conversion of Dan Fouts from a disillusioned young man into the NFL's most awesome thrower), then headed into the college coaching ranks at Stanford, just outside San Francisco.

It was there, in 1979, that Edward J. DeBartolo Jr., the young owner of the 49ers, went when he needed a savior.

In 1978, the 49ers had staggered through a 2-14 season. They did so again in 1979, Walsh's first year. For one thing, Walsh had little in the way of youth to work with. The previous regime had dealt away baskets of draft choices in trades such as the one that brought temporary box-office star (but by then ineffective runner) O.J. Simpson to town.

But also in 1979, Walsh had his own draft to work with. And among the gems he picked up were a Notre Dame quarterback named Joe Montana in the third round and a Clemson wide receiver named Dwight Clark seven rounds later.

What he had done with Anderson, Fouts and a few other pro and college quarterbacks along the way, he did with Montana. He nurtured him along and made him a winner, passing champion of the National Conference.

When Clark made his soaring end-zone catch to beat Dallas in the NFC title game two weeks ago, it was the end result of Walsh's game philosophy that somehow, somewhere, someone is open downfield.

But that was only half the story of the 49ers' turnaround from 2-14 to 6-10 and then to 13-3 and the winningest team in the league. In 1979 and 1980 the 49ers had thrown and caught the ball more than any team in the history of the league, had rolled up an inordinate amount of yards and points and yet had lost 24 of 32 games. There was the small matter of a defense, too.

In the 1981 draft, Walsh went straight for the jugular, the 49ers' dismal secondary. No way was he going to dabble in a little bit of this, a touch of that, a patchwork solution.

First round: cornerback Ronnie Lott. Second round:

cornerback Eric Wright. Third round: safety Carlton Williamson. He made them instant starters in a backfield where Dwight Hicks was a veteran of just three years.

At the start of the season, they played occasional games of Alphonse and Gaston, of "who's my man?" By year's end, the triumvirate of rookies and the rest of the defense, strengthened by the canny decision to whisk pass-rushing defensive end Fred Dean away from San Diego, had balanced the team's ability to strike with or without the ball.

This is a game of imponderables. Even the stars — Anderson, Montana, Pete Johnson, Freddie Solomon, Isaac Curtis, Dwight Clark and the rest — are all but anonymous beyond the Ohio River and San Francisco Bay.

There are no Pittsburgh Steelers and Terry Bradshaws with a history of Super Bowl heroics. No Minnesota Vikings and Fran Tarkentons with a history of Super Bowl failures. No John Matuszaks and Oakland Raiders with a history of bizarre behavior.

No history, period. Not in the building. Not even in the city. But they valiantly tried to instill this event with instant history.

Downtown Pontiac was designated for Super Bowl week "Bourbon Street North," a pitch to draw the tourists who, in five of the previous 15 Super Bowl games, snaked their way through the streets of New Orleans.

The tourists spent their money more than enough to defray the money spent to dress up Detroit and its suburbs.

On Sunday, two teams will play a football game.

On Monday, Super Bowl XVI will be history. The NFL will, for this season, close down the road show and quietly leave town. It will leave behind $60 million ... and the most economically depressed city in the most economically depressed state in the nation.

GCA Girls Whip Grace

Only two girls scored for Greenville Christian Academy, but it was more than enough as the Lady Knights whipped Grace Christian Academy, 32-21, Saturday afternoon in a girls' basketball game.

There was no boys or junior varsity game.

GCA's Kathy Vernelson led all scorers with 20 points and teammate Stephanie Brown added 12 to lead the Lady Knights to their fourth victory in five outings.

The Lady Knights trailed at the end of the first period, 5-4, but outscored Grace, 14-4, in the second quarter to post an 18-9 lead at the half. Grace closed to 22-15 at the end of the third period, but a 10-6 advantage in the final eight minutes sealed the win for GCA.

Grace was led in scoring by Sharon Braxton with 14 points.

GCA plays host to Wilson Christian Academy Friday.

Solomon To Play

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — With wide receiver Freddie Solomon expected to play, all was well with the San Francisco 49ers as they finished preparations for Super Bowl XVI.

Solomon, who suffered a twisted knee in practice on Thursday, had no swelling in the joint on Friday and was upgraded from questionable to probable for Sunday's game.

"It's been a good week," said 49ers Coach Bill Walsh, who said his team was "as well prepared as we could be for any game."

The 49ers are slight favorites to beat the Cincinnati Bengals for the National Football League championship because the only other time they met this season, the 49ers won 21-3.

Talk was that the Bengals took the 49ers too lightly in their regular-season confrontation at Cincinnati. The 49ers do not expect that to happen again Sunday.

Dwight Clark, the 49ers' talented wide receiver, figures that first game was "a good indication of the strength of our team, but I don't think it was a good indication of Cincinnati's caliber of play."

North Pitt Takes 8th Straight In League As CBA Falls, 69-43

PIKEVILLE — North Pitt's Panthers continued to roll along in the Eastern Carolina Conference, winning their eighth straight league game Friday night, crushing Charles B. Aycock, 69-43.

Aycock's girls won their game, downing North Pitt, 44-34.

The Panthers, who have now won ten of their last 11 games, ran their overall record to 12-4 with the win, as they are now 8-0 in the league.

The Panthers inched out into a 11-0 lead in the first quarter, but then sped away from the Falcons, 19-9, in the second quarter. That powered North Pitt to a 32-20 halftime lead.

North Pitt continued to pull away in the third period, 18-10, running the lead out to 50-30. They finished off the Falcons with a 19-13 margin in the final quarter.

Dennis Bradley led the Panthers scoring with 23 points, while Vince Parker added 12. Anthony Green led Aycock with 10.

In the girls' game, Aycock jumped out to an 11-2 lead and were never in trouble. Despite a 12-8 comeback by the Panthers, Aycock held a 19-14 lead at the half.

In the third period, the Falconettes again shot away, 14-3, to run the lead to 33-19. North Pitt was allowed a 15-11 comeback in the final quarter.

Sharon Lancaster led Aycock with 18 points, while Zina Jones had 16. Gladys Roberson led North Pitt with 12.

North Pitt's girls are now 6-3

Rose Tops Eagles

Rose High School had little trouble with Northeastern High School Friday night, as the Rampants rolled to an easy 69-11 wrestling victory.

Rose lost only one actual match, at 121, where Northeastern's Freddie Boyd took a superior decision over Mark Brewington. The other six points scored by the Eagles came in a double forfeit at 190 pounds.

The Rampants won the remaining 11 matches, winning six on pins and four more on forfeits.

The Rampants climb to 6-4 overall and to 6-1 in the Big East with the win. Following a Saturday make-up match with Hunt, Rose is to host Wilson Fike on Wednesday.

Boyer Said To Have Lung Cancer

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Ken Boyer, the former all-star third baseman with the St. Louis Cardinals, has been stricken with lung cancer, according to a copyright story.

Boyer was scheduled to appear with Cardinals' officials at a media luncheon in Louisville Thursday, but was reportedly taking treatment in St. Louis, the Louisville Courier-Journal reported Friday.

Boyer has been named to manage the Louisville's American Association baseball team next season. St. Louis is the parent team of the Louisville Redbirds.

A Cardinals' spokesman explained Boyer's absence from the meeting as "personal."

But A. Ray Smith, owner of the Louisville Redbirds, said that Boyer has lung cancer. "In my judgment, I think he'll manage here, but I'm guessing I'm sure he was taking treatment today (in St. Louis)."

Members of the St. Louis contingent were not willing to be quoted about Boyer's illness at the luncheon.

Joe McDonald, executive assistant to St. Louis general manager Whitey Herzog, said "We expect Ken Boyer to be our manager in Louisville next season."

Smith said that he would asked Herzog to name an experienced man to manage the Redbirds if Boyer isn't able to start the season.

"I'll go along with Boyer as long as he can manage," he said.

"The doctor says that with medical science, he could whip it, and I'm going to pray for him. The doctor says that he is a little better."

Jags Fall To Vikings

PLYMOUTH — Plymouth used its superior talent and experience in the light and middle weight classes to defeat Farmville Central, 41-19, Friday night in a high school wrestling match.

Plymouth, ranked 11th in the state by Mat News, won seven of the first nine weight classes and drew in another to take a big early lead and send the Jaguars to their fifth loss in six matches.

Farmville takes Tuesday off and returns to action Friday when the Jaguars play host to Eastern Wayne.

St. Louis . . . . . 73

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Guard Mitchell Wiggins tossed in a game-high 27 points and snatched 14 rebounds to lead Florida State to an 89-73 Metro conference college basketball victory over St. Louis Saturday.

Wiggins led the Seminoles in their fourth straight win as Florida State even ed its record at 8-8, the first time since December the Seminoles have been at the .500 mark.

St. Louis, meanwhile, dropped to 5-10, its seventh straight loss.

Harris Wins Sprint

LExINGTON, Va. — East Carolina sprinter Clint Harris

finished first in the 55-meter dash but the team title went to Virginia Military Institute here Saturday at the VMI Invitational Track Meet.

VMI captured 10 first places en route to ringing up 125 points to easily outdistance second place James Madison at 60. Campbell was third with 34 points followed by ECU with 23 while Bridgewater (Va.) College was last with 10 points.

Harris' finish in the 55-meter dash was ECU's only first place. Harris ran a 6.44 to nip teammate Micheal Goins, who finished with a 6.56.

ECU's Tim Cephus was second in the 400-meter run with a time of 50.15. ECU's Keith Clark was fifth with a time of 51.05.

The only other top-five finish for ECU was in the 1,600-meter relay where the Pirates finished second.

West Craven Rips Vikings

VANCEBORO — Ronnie Bellamy pumped in 25 points and three other players reached double figures as West Craven defeated D.H. Conley, 73-57, Friday evening in a Coastal Conference basketball game.

Earlier, in the girls' game, D.H. Conley whipped West Craven, 67-43.

"We shot poorly and they beat us on the boards," D.H. Conley coach Shelley Marsh said after seeing his team's record drop to 2-2 in the league and 7-8 overall. "That was the story of the game."

The Eagles, now 10-1 overall and 2-1 in the conference, raced to a 20-13 lead at the end of the first period and increased its advantage to 38-27 at the break.

The Vikings managed to battle back to within seven (52-45) at the end of the third quarter, but a 21-12 run by West Craven in the final eight minutes sealed the win for the Eagles.

Joining Bellamy in double figures for West Craven were Wayne Becton with 12 and Linwood Harris and Clifton Blount with 10 each.

Conley was led by guard Keith Gatlin with 14 points and center Sammy Tyson with 13 points. Dixon Page added 10 points for DHC.

In the girls' game, Mechio Kornegay, Helena Barnhill and Karen Barrett combined for 47 points to spark D.H. Conley past West Craven.

Kornegay scored a game-high 18 points and Barnhill added 15 and Barrett 14 as the Valkyries won their 13th game in 15 outings. DHC is 3-1 in the conference. West Craven drops to 1-2 in the league and 3-7 overall.

Conley led at the end of the first period, 18-8, and surged to a 37-16, lead at the half. From there, the Valkyries outscored the Lady Eagles, 16-14, and 14-13, in the final two periods for the win.

West Craven was led by Eunice Hargett with 16 points and Ernestine Brown with 13.

Conley Wrestlers Flex Muscles In Win

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer
HOLLYWOOD — The D.H. Conley wrestling team flexed its muscles while barely breaking a sweat Friday evening against West Craven as the unbeaten Vikings prepared for a conference showdown with West Carteret.

The eighth-ranked Vikings used eight forfeits and five pins — including the fastest of the season by Andy Majette — to wallop the Eagles, 78-0, in a Coastal Conference wrestling match.

The win leaves Conley at 11-0 overall and 6-0 in the Coastal Conference. The Eagles are 0-8 overall and 0-6 in the league.

The victory also sets up a showdown with West Carteret. The Vikings, who are in their first year in the Coastal Conference, could clinch the league crown this Friday with a victory over the Patriots in Morehead City.

The Vikings close out their conference slate Saturday when they travel to Jacksonville to battle White Oak.

"We should be favored in both matches," D.H. Conley wrestling coach Milt Sherman said. "We beat (West Carteret) last time, but they're a good, well-coached team."

So, too, are the Vikings. But, because of the forfeits, the Vikings had only limited chances to display the form that has enabled them to win 27 straight dual matches.

"West Craven, of course, is just going through a rebuilding year," Sherman said. "We knew we would be strongly favored going into the match tonight, but we were not trying to run up the score."

In seasons past, Sherman would have allowed his reserves to replace some of his starters. This year, however, with only 14 wrestlers on the team, Sherman does not have that luxury.

Instead, Sherman was forced to use all but one starter — although because of the forfeits only four actually wrestled. The result was a mismatch from the opening whistle.

Todd Cochran, a freshman who wrestles at 100 pounds, opened the match by pinning Ira Smith at the 1:17 mark of the first period. Cochran is 7-8 this season.

Sophomore Reginald Moore, wrestling at 107 pounds, then pinned Billy Flake with 1:39 gone in the opening period. Moore, one of two unbeaten Vikings, is now 14-0 and leads the team in pins with 10.

Heavyweight Paul Menichelli, who won by forfeit Friday, is also 14-0.

After three forfeits, DHC's Andy Majette, a junior who wrestles at 134 pounds, squared off against Swoboda Chaplin. Only 18 seconds later, Majette pinned Chaplin — the fastest pin of the year for the Vikings.

Majette, who had the fastest pin a year ago at 15 seconds, is now 9-7-1 this season. Before Majette's pin Friday, Mike Long had the fastest pin this year, 23 seconds.

Another forfeit followed before Scott Boyle, wrestling his first varsity match, pinned Carl Canady at 3:13. Boyle, who is unbeaten in five matches on the junior varsity, led, 11-0, at the end of the first two-minute period and nearly had Canady for the fall at the buzzer before getting the pin in the second period.

Boyle was wrestling for Lorenzo Strong, who is 12-2, with nine of those victories coming on pins.

The Vikings final victory on the mat came at 169 pounds where Willie Greene pinned Paul Dawson with 34 seconds left in the second period. Greene, who is now 12-2-1, led, 7-1, before pinning Dawson late in the second period.

The 78 points scored by Conley are the most a wrestling team can score in a match. It was not the best way, however, to tune up for Friday's match with West Carteret, especially since this is exam week and under Pitt County rules teams cannot practice during exam week.

"We'll only get in one practice (on Thursday) and then we'll have to wrestle West Carteret Friday," Sherman said. "Right now, we've got two dual matches and we want to win the conference championship."

After next weekend's action, the Vikings will begin preparing for the Coastal Conference tournament set for Feb. 6 at West Carteret. The sectionals follow the next weekend and will be held at Conley.

Lane Sparks Rams To Win

SNOW HILL — Roderick Lane scored 22 points and grabbed 16 rebounds to lead Greene Central to a 60-52 victory over Farmville Central Friday night in an Eastern Carolina Conference basketball game.

Earlier, in the girls' game, Greene Central slipped past Farmville Central, 50-43.

Of Lane's 22 points, 10 came at the free throw line where he was 10 of 11. Lane also blocked four shots and dished out five assists. Cepado Albritton and John Ray each added 12 points for Greene Central.

The Rams, now 5-1 in the league and 8-7 overall, slipped out to a 13-12 lead at the end of the first period and then outscored the Jaguars, 20-12, in the second quarter to take a 33-24 lead at intermission.

Greene Central's lead reached 10 at the end of the third period, 45-35, and in the final eight minutes the Rams hit only two field goals but hit 11 of 14 from the foul line to seal the victory.

For the game, the Rams were 22 of 27 at the foul line. Farmville hit four of seven free throws.

Farmville Central, now 6-10 overall and 1-5 in the conference, was led by Terrence Pettaway with 16 points. Andrew Edwards added 13 points and Melvin Sutton 10.

In the girls' game, the game was tied at the end of the first period, 9-9. The Lady Rams then managed to move out to a 20-16 lead at halftime and stretch its lead to 36-28 after three periods before coasting home with the win.

Greene Central, now 8-7 overall and 2-4 in the ECC, was led by Leatha Taylor's 16 points. Sharon Suggs added 15 points for the Lady Rams.

Farmville Central, now 3-11 overall and 1-5 in the conference, was led by Rose Lang's 25 points. Cynthia Hart added 10 points for the Lady Jaguars.

Greene Central travels to South Lenoir Monday night.

Chargers Fall To Southwest

PINETOPS — Southwest Edgecombe handed Ayden-Grifton a pair of Eastern Carolina Conference basketball losses Friday night. The Cougars trimmed the Charger boys, 72-64, while the number one ranked Lady Cougars rushed to an 81-40 win.

Southwest's girls, who haven't lost in a season and a half, ran their record to 17-0 with the win. They are 7-0 in league play. Ayden-Grifton's girls drop to 3-4 in the conference and 6-10 overall.

Southwest romped out to a 27-6 lead in the first period of the contest, and was never in trouble. By the half, the Lady Cougars held a 51-12 lead. They outthrew A-G, 20-18 in the third period and allowed the Chargers to tie them 10-10 in the final quarter.

Thomas Anderson with 22, Jesse Anderson with 14 and Jonathan Woods with 11.

Ayden-Grifton drops to 1-5 in league play and 4-11 overall. Southwest is now 4-3 in the conference and 4-15 overall.

Ayden-Grifton returns to action on Thursday, traveling to Charles B. Aycock.

Ayden-Grifton's girls are now 3-4 in the league and 6-10 overall.

In the boys' contest, Southwest powered out into a 17-11 lead in the first period and again outscored the Chargers, 21-16, in the second quarter. That left the Chargers trailing, 38-27, at the half.

Ayden-Grifton put on a rally in the third period, 22-16, to cut the Cougar lead back to 54-49, but an 18-15 margin by Southwest in the final period wrapped it up for them.

Lamont Johnson led Southwest with 20 points, while Hilton Cobb hit 16, Daryl Best added 12 and Jesse Forbes had 10. Ayden-Grifton was led by

OUTDOORS

With
Joe Albea

With the hunting season coming to an end for many sportsmen, the wait for warmer weather begins. The next two months will be a partial hibernation period for many with thoughts of fishing and boating swirling in their minds.

For the die-hard cold weather hunter though, there still remains another month of rabbit and quail season. During this "hibernation period," Outdoors will cover interesting information on popular outdoor pastimes, as well as up-to-date information from the North Carolina Wildlife Resource Commission.

This week one of this country's most popular outdoor pastimes, Bird-Feeding.

Bird Feeding Do's and Don'ts — How much do Americans spend on bird feed every year? The total is about $340 million, making bird-feeding one of the nation's most popular hobbies. Ornithologists feel that widespread feeding has altered the habits of some birds. Cardinals, mockingbirds and tufted titmice, for example, now winter in New England which is far north of their natural range.

While bird feeding may ultimately change the ranges and migration habits of some birds, it does little harm when practiced properly. Here are some do's and don'ts for proper bird feeding.

The most important part of any bird-feeding program is to continue the feeding throughout the winter. If birds are fed in late fall and choose to remain near the feeder through the winter instead of migrating south, they will probably die if the feeding isn't continued until spring.

Using high-quality bird feed is also important. Many bird feeds contain high concentrations of cracked corn, milo and wheat. These ingredients look appetizing to people, but are not preferred by birds. In some cases, these feeds may even be harmful. When these grains spoil, they can expose birds to poisoning from aflatoxin — a powerful carcinogen second only to plutonium in its ability to damage living tissue. This problem can be avoided by using feeds that lack these ingredients, using small amounts of feed to eliminate spoilage, or using feed that have been tested for aflatoxin by the manufacturer.

Birds prefer feeds containing millet, sunflower seeds and niger — a small, grey thistle seed imported from India and Ethiopia. Avoid feeds with large, striped sunflower seeds. These seeds can be opened only by birds with strong, heavy beaks while smaller songbirds prefer smaller black, oily sunflower seeds. Compared to the larger seeds, these small sunflower seeds contain four times as much "meat" per unit weight and only appear to be more expensive than the larger seeds because they are more compact.

However, using high-quality feeds doesn't mean bird feeding has to be expensive. Costs can be reduced considerably by buying bird seed in bulk — 50 and 100 pound sacks of feed are available — and store these feeds through the winter in dry, rodent-proof containers (garbage cans with tight-fitting lids work well). Using well-designed feeders that eliminate waste also helps reduce costs, and commercial feeds can often be supplemented with kitchen scraps.

Feeding is not the only way to improve bird-watching near your home — improving the habitat is another option. All birds need food, cover, water and nesting sites; and varied plantings can turn your yard into a small wildlife refuge. Plan to vary the plantings so that something is always in bloom, and include evergreens which offer food and shelter in winter. Trees and shrubs which offer excellent cover and feed include bayberry, blueberry, burning bush, chokeberry, dogwoods, autumn olive, shadbush, elderberry, mountain ash, red cedar, cherries, hawthorn and holly.

Flowers are important sources of food for birds in early spring and summer. Tulips, marigolds, nasturtiums, sweet Williams, snapdragons, zinnias and sunflowers are all good choices. Beneficial ground covers and vines include Virginia creepers, wild grapes, honeysuckle, mistletoe, smilax, bitternsweet and wisteria.

More information on backyard bird-feeding and wildlife plantings is available from the National Wildlife Federation, 1412 16th Street, NW, Washington, D.C. 20036.

Roanoke Rally Nips Tarboro

TARBORO — Roanoke High School, ranked number one among 3-A teams by the Associated Press last week, rallied in the final quarter to take a 51-45 victory over Tarboro in a Northeastern Conference game Friday night.

Roanoke's girls, however, were upset by Tarboro, 38-23, bowing for only the third time this year.

Roanoke, now 13-0 overall and 10-0 in league play, managed to ease into a 13-11 lead after one quarter, but Tarboro stuck with them, trailing by just two at the half, 23-21.

In the third period, the Vikings gained control of the game, pumping in 18 points to just 12 for the Redskins. That pushed Tarboro ahead, 39-35. But Roanoke rallied in the final quarter for a 16-6 margin, pulling out the victory and remaining unbeaten.

Ronnie Broadie led Roanoke with 16 points, while Michael Wilson added 15 and Angelo Spruill had 10. Carlton Bridges led Tarboro with 12 while Sterrod Reynolds had 10.

Tarboro is now 5-5 in the league and 8-9 overall. In the girls' game, Roanoke inched ahead, 6-5 in the first period, but scored only two points in the second as Tarboro knocked in 12. That pushed the Valkyries into a 17-8 halftime lead.

Roanoke came back with an 8-6 margin in the third period but still trailed, 23-16. Tarboro polished off the Squaws, 15-7, in the final period. Mona Jackson led Tarboro with 14 points. No one else scored in double figures.

Roanoke is now 11-3 overall while Tarboro is 10-6. Both teams are 7-3 in the conference.

Roanoke returns to action on Tuesday, hosting Edenton.

Lloyd Wants Private Life To Stay Private

BOSTON (AP) — Ever since she turned professional on her 18th birthday in 1972, Chris Evert Lloyd has been one of tennis' most visible personalities. But she prefers not to be too visible.

"I've always regarded my private life as being sacred," she said Friday with her husband, tennis pro John Lloyd, at her side. "I don't think any of the tennis players, including myself, are perfect. I've done things in my life that I don't want the whole world to know."

She didn't reveal them at a news conference called to promote the Boston stop on the Avon tennis tour. But she did address questions about tennis great Billie Jean King's female ex-lover, and becoming a mother.

"It was just very unfortunate that it had to come out in the open," Evert said of King's relationship. "That's a problem with being a celebrity."

She also said it would be extremely difficult for her to combine motherhood and competitive tennis.

"I devote myself to one thing at a time and if I had a child, that would be it," she said. "I would have to give too much support emotionally and physically to a child to continue playing tennis."

But, after one of her finest years on the court, she is not about to give up the game.

In 1981, she won 73 matches and lost only six, captured nine major tournament championships and reached the semifinals of every event in which she played. On Friday, she was named world champion by the International Tennis Federation for the third time in four years.

"Sometimes I ask myself why I'm still playing," Lloyd said. "I think more than winning one title, one more Wimbledon, the U.S. Open, I don't feel I've reached my peak yet."

"I don't think I'm the best player I can be. If I was perfect, I'd retire," she added. "I don't want to retire and look back and regret that I was only 70 percent of what I could have been."

Lloyd plans to defend her title in the Avon tournament here from March 15-21. The only other Avon event she plans to play in will be in Oakland from Feb. 22-28.

Reggie To Wear Halo

GCA Downs Bethel

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — George won't have Reggie to kick around anymore. And vice versa.

Flamboyant Reggie Jackson, who has experienced the best and worst of times in his five seasons with the New York Yankees, will be a member of the California Angels this year, giving that club four former American League most valuable players.

And it doesn't figure he'll have the problems with the Singing Cowboy, Angels Chairman of the Board Gene Autry, that he had with Yankees owner George Steinbrenner.

After some two months of negotiations, the Angels announced late Friday afternoon that they had reached an agreement with "Mr. October," the nickname Jackson earned with his World Series exploits for the Yankees in 1977 and 1978.

"I'm very happy to join a club that really seemed to pursue and wanted me," the Angels quoted Jackson as saying in a prepared statement. "With the Angels, I get a chance to play.

"I guess everything being equal, the most difficult decision for me was whether to go to Baltimore or California. Both clubs have really fine people. I guess the overriding factor for me was it was just time to come home."

Jackson lives in Carmel, Calif., near San Francisco.

Jackson's decision to join the Angels followed several days of lengthy talks, many of which were conducted by telephone since Jackson was in Key Biscayne, Fla., for ABC-TV's "Superstars" competition this weekend.

Arthur E. "Red" Patterson, assistant to Autry, said the signing of Jackson "has taken a lot of negotiation — a five-hour conference on Wednesday, we talked almost all day yesterday (Thursday) by telephone and we still had a lot of conversation until about 3 (PST) this afternoon, tightening up all the terms of the contract."

Patterson said the Angels wouldn't divulge terms of the agreement but he did say the contract was a multi-year deal and contains a clause based on attendance. Earlier reports said Jackson had agreed to a contract calling for $900,000 a year over three years.

Patterson declined to comment, however, on which player the Angels might send to the Yankees as compensation. Buzzie Bavasi, the club's executive vice president, said earlier in the week that the California club would compensate the Yankees if it signed Jackson.

His statement drew an angry reply from Marvin Miller, executive director of the Major League Baseball Players Association, who pointed out that signing Jackson did not require compensation since he is a free agent for the second time in his career.

In their prepared statement, the Angels said that Jackson would be present at a press conference at the Anaheim Stadium Club next Tuesday. The club said the veteran outfielder-designated hitter, who turns 36 in May, will join Fred Lynn, Rod Carew and Don Baylor as former AL MVPs on the California roster.

The Baylors, (Bobby) Grichs, Carews, (Rick) Burlesons and Lynns certainly entered into my thinking and all added to the incentive to return home," Jackson was quoted by the Angels as saying.

"I've known Buzzie (Bavasi) since I was in college. I was extremely impressed meeting Gene Autry. The area...the people...the stadium...all are excellent. When you meet a guy like Gene Autry, it's easy to understand how you can get back into the saddle again.

"One thing, before I forget it...really made an impression on me. That was when Gene's wife, Jackie, expressed to Gary (Walker, Jackson's agent) that she hoped I'd join the Angels."

Autry said he was "delighted that Jackson has become an Angel...he's an exciting ballplayer and one of the most colorful stars in the history of the American League."

Shortly before the Angels confirmed the signing of Jackson, the Yankees said they were pulling out of the bidding.

A statement by the club said that after a lengthy phone conversation between Steinbrenner and Walker, who is in Phoenix, Ariz., "it was agreed that it was in the best interests of all parties concerned that negotiations be discontinued."

"Reggie had expressed a desire to finish his career on the West Coast, which is his home," the statement said.

"More importantly, one of the big points made by Walker was Reggie's desire to play the outfield every day, which the Yankees could not commit to at this time, since that is the responsibility of Manager Bob Lemon. The Angels offer is an extremely lucrative one and Reggie evidently could not turn it down."

"Mr. Steinbrenner expressed his appreciation to Gary Walker and Reggie's lawyer, Steve Kaye, who he said had conducted the negotiations on the very highest possible level and who he said was considerate of the Yankees' interest in Reggie in every way. He also wished Jackson the best of luck, except when he plays the Yankees.

"Mr. Steinbrenner said that Reggie contributed greatly to the success of the Yankees during his time in New York — especially in the winning of two world's championships in 1977 and 1978. Despite occasional differences, which were magnified, he said that there were far more good points to their relationship which unfortunately never were publicized.

"The entire Yankee organization wishes him the best. He truly is a great player who is a certain candidate for the Hall of Fame when that time comes for him."

Jackson chose the Angels over the Yankees, the Orioles, for whom he played in 1976 before signing a free agent contract with New York, and the Atlanta Braves.

batter had an off-year with the Yankees in 1981, hitting only .237 with 15 homers and 54 runs batted in. He has 425 lifetime homers.

Jackson established himself in the major leagues in 1968, his first full season with the Oakland A's, hitting .250 with 29 homers and 74 RBI. He played eight seasons with the A's and was the AL and World Series MVP in 1973.

He was a member of the first free-agent class in 1976, signing with the Yankees after a year with the Orioles. Steinbrenner signed Jackson to a five-year, $3 million pact — the biggest contract in baseball at the time.

"I am the straw that stirs the drink," Jackson said, and he quickly proved his worth by leading the Yankees to the World Series championship in 1977, a Series highlighted by Jackson's three home runs in the final game.

But he also brought controversy. His attitude of instantly being the Yankees' No. 1 player upset many of his new teammates, most notably the late catcher, Thurman Munson.

In the seasons that followed, Jackson's feuds with teammates, managers and Steinbrenner made headlines. His on-field conduct and clubhouse statements were involved in Billy Martin's firing as manager of the Yanks in 1978. Martin was later rehired, but he and Jackson never patched up their differences.

David Hollingsworth scored 20 points to lead four players in double figures for Greenville Christian as the Knights thumped Bethel Christian, 79-49, Friday evening in an East Carolina Christian Conference basketball game.

Earlier, in the girls' game, Greenville Christian used 17 points from Kathy Vernelson to defeat Bethel, 40-23.

"We had a layoff — I guess everybody did because of the weather — and I wasn't sure how we'd play," GCA coach Dale Thatcher said. "We're trying to up-step everything and we're trying to push the guys because we've got some formidable opponents coming up."

The Knights jumped out to a 15-8 lead in the opening eight minutes and never were headed en route to winning their eighth game in nine outings.

GCA led, 34-20, at the half and pushed its lead to 57-34 at the end of three quarters before coasting in with a 30-point victory.

Joining Hollingsworth in double figures for GCA were Jerry Butts with 15 points, John Parnell with 14 and Troy Hudson with 11. Bethel was led by Chris Gray with 13 points.

In the girls' game, GCA inched out to a 7-6 lead at the end of the opening period, but then outscored Bethel, 11-4, in the second period to take a 18-10 lead at intermission.

The Lady Knights then outscored Bethel, 11-6, in the third period and 11-7 in the final quarter to win by 17.

Joining Vernelson in double figures for GCA was Stephanie Brown with 12 points. Bethel did not have anyone score over seven points.

Greenville Christian travels to Goldsboro Tuesday night to play Faith Christian.

Louisiana Tech Tops ORU For New Women's Win Streak Mark

RUSTON, La. (AP) — Coach Sonja Hogg can start concentrating on a second straight national championship now that her Louisiana Tech team owns the collegiate record of 52 consecutive women's basketball victories.

"It's a great relief, breaking the record," Hogg said after being rewarded with her 200th career coaching victory in Friday night's 94-53 blowout of Oral Roberts. The Lady Techsters are now 18-0 this season.

On Tuesday night, Louisiana Tech tied the record of 51 in a row set between 1974-76 by Delta (Miss.) State teams coached by Margaret Wade. Wade, now a classroom teacher, was Hogg's court-side guest for the Oral Roberts game.

"On Tuesday night, I was so uptight and tense, and today I was strung out. Now, the win is history. We can settle down and go on the road and relax without this on our minds," Hogg said.

In a quest for Hogg's second straight national title, the Techsters go on the road for the next two weeks against five dangerous teams, including consecutive games against nationally ranked Georgia, Old Dominion and Maryland.

"Fifty-two is just another stepping stone toward another national championship," Hogg said. "We're happy to tie the record and break it, but it's what happens in Norfolk that really counts."

The women's national collegiate basketball championships — the equivalent of the NCAA men's Final Four — will be held March 26-28 at Norfolk, Va.

The Lady Techsters are aiming at a fourth straight appearance in the championship finals. In fact, they last lost 77-69 in the 1979-80 consolation game against South Carolina.

On Friday night, Oral Roberts had its name etched for the second time on the list of teams beaten by Louisiana Tech en route to the consecutive victory record. The Lady Techsters beat Oral Roberts 94-67 last season.

Pam Kelly's 19 points and 12 rebounds led Tech this time. The 6-foot senior center started in each of the 52 consecutive wins.

"I'm very happy to be part of winning all those games, but I hope we don't stop and celebrate. I want to go on winning," said Kelly.

All 14 of Hogg's players saw action and all but two scored. Four others joined Kelly in double figures — sophomore center Janice Lawrence with 14 points; freshman guard Pam Gant with 11 points and forward Lori Scott and senior guard Angela Turner with 10 points apiece.

Since 1974-75, Hogg's teams have gone 13-9, 19-10, 22-9, 20-8, 34-4, 40-5, 34-0 and 18-0 thus far this season.

Tarboro In Mat Win

ROBERSONVILLE — Tarboro High School romped to a 57-11 wrestling victory over Roanoke High School in a Northeastern Conference match Friday night.

Roanoke won only two weights, the 157-pound class, where Lee Briley won by a superior decision, and at 187, where Brian Strange took a pin.

Tarboro took the remaining 11 weights, winning five by forfeits and two by pins.

Roanoke, now 1-9 on the year, travels to Edenton on Tuesday.

Knowing Fans Very Important

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The secret to drawing crowds to athletic events is mostly knowing your fans, according to North Carolina State Athletic Director Willis Casey.

"People say they want you to play outstanding teams," Casey said in a speech Friday before the Raleigh Sports Club. "But what they mean is that they want you to beat outstanding teams. Someone wrote that one of our football coach's biggest advantage this year was playing an easy schedule. We played the Nos. 1, 3, 8 and 9 teams in the country. Played, not beat."

Casey has watched the budget for sports at N.C. State soar from $900,000 in 1973 to more than $5 million this year.

But he says winning is more important to the financial situation than who a team plays.

"The same fans who say they want to see us play an outstanding schedule are the ones who petition to get the coach fired," Casey said.

Casey said an athletic department is run on the same concept as most businesses.

"It's supply and demand," he said. "Our basketball tickets are the least expensive in the conference. We'll raise the prices next year because we think we're going to have a better team."

Casey, who built N.C. State's swimming program into one of the best in the country, doesn't believe coaches should be placed on pedestals either.

"There are no coaching geniuses," he said. "That applies to Everett Case, Dean Smith and everybody else. When we had David Thompson, Monte Towe and Tommy Burleson, we beat Carolina 10 straight times. Nobody in this room thinks (former Wolfpack coach) Norm Sloan is 10 times smarter than Dean Smith."

It is in the area of administration that Casey comes to bat. He is considered to be one of the shrewdest sports executives in the business. And the colorful athletic director shoots straight from the hip.

Asked about the possibility of an NCAA football playoff, Casey said, "The people who have conference tie-ins with the bowls are smart. They're making money. Sure, they'd go along with a playoff, if you take four bowl winners and let them play. A 16-team playoff starting in December is feasible, but you won't see one within 20 years."

And he didn't hesitate to give his opinion on the NCAA's new basketball playoff system.

"I'm against it. There shouldn't be any automatic berths. You should have to earn your way in. The best thing to do the way it is set up now is to expand to 64 teams."

Baseball Clinic Set Saturday

East Carolina University will hold its annual Eastern North Carolina Baseball Clinic on Saturday, January 30, with special sessions for both coaches and players.

The activities will get underway at 9:25 a.m. with opening remarks, followed by a session on pitching. ECU coach Hal Baird and Ferrum College coach Rich Jones will handle that session.

That will be followed at 10:15 a.m. by a session on baserunning, led by N.C. State assistant coach Francis Combs.

Mike Roberts, head coach at the University of North Carolina, will lead a session on hitting at 10:45 a.m., with lunch following from 11:30 to 1 p.m. Lunch will be "on your own."

From 1 p.m. until 2:15, a coaches' corner will be held, led by the clinic staff. This is open to coaches only.

From 1 to 1:45 p.m., players will be in a session on strength training led by ECU strength coach Jeff Johnson. From 1:45 to 2:15 p.m., players will be led in a session on prevention of injuries by Craig Baker, ECU assistant trainer.

Jerry Narron of the Seattle Mariners will lead a session on catching at 2:15 p.m., while Billy Best of the Kansas City Royals will lead one on outfield play at the same time.

Infield play will be covered by Tony Guzzo, head coach at N.C. Wesleyan at 2:45, and Gary Overton, ECU assistant will handle a session on bunting at 3:15.

The clinic is scheduled to end at 3:45 p.m., however, all those attending will receive tickets for the ECU-Richmond basketball that evening at 7:30 p.m. in Minges Coliseum.

Cost of the clinic is $4 per person, or $50 per team, regardless of the number of players.

While no pre-registration is being held, Baird said he would appreciate those planning to attend to let him know how many to expect.

East Carolina's Pirates are scheduled to open the season on March 3, hosting Virginia Wesleyan at Harrington Field.

Vandals Survive Slowdown For Victory

By The Associated Press
Whether speeding it up or slowing it down, the Idaho Vandals are a tough team to keep up with this year.

Friday night was slowdown time. "I'm sure there was not as much offense as people would like, but on the road it was a good win," said Idaho Coach Don Monson after a relatively low-scoring 49-38 victory over Montana State. "You don't win 16 games by playing racehorse every time or by playing patient every game."

Commenting on the low-key victory, Monson said, "We just wanted to take some time off the clock." He also said the delay had the effect of "letting MSU know the Vandals were controlling the game." The victory, incidentally, improved the eighth-ranked Vandals' record to a 15-16. Along with Missouri and Texas, they are one of only three Division I college basketball teams left undefeated in the country.

Although he wasn't the high scorer, Phil Hopsom keyed the Idaho drive in the second half with nine of his 13 points and scored the go-ahead basket with 16:57 to play — putting Idaho up 25-24. He also figured in Idaho's burst midway through the second half that allowed the Vandals to move to a 37-30 lead that was never threatened. Kelvin Smith, one of the bright new additions on what many consider the best Idaho team in history, led the Vandals with 14 points. John Maclin had 15 points for Montana State in the Big Sky game. In other action involving the nation's ranked teams Friday night, 11th-ranked San Francisco defeated Gonzaga 80-65 and No. 12 Oregon State stopped Washington State 64-48.

The Top Twenty
Quintin Dailey scored 18 points and Ken McAlister 17 to pace San Francisco over

Gonzaga. The Dons led 36-28 at the half and never were threatened by Gonzaga thereafter. Charlie Siltton's 15 points led Oregon State past Washington State. The Beavers jumped to a 24-14 halftime lead and held off the Cougars in the second half. Oregon State Coach Ralph Miller said the second half was tighter than he would have liked.

"We'd make a mistake or two and they would score," Miller said of the second half. "We won by 16 but that 10 points at halftime was the difference."

Others
Elsewhere, Nevada-Reno's Billy Allen scored 27 points, including two from the foul line with no time remaining, as UNR beat Weber State 67-66; Mike Hackett had 27 points and 12 rebounds to lead Jacksonville to a 95-91 overtime victory over South Alabama; Tim Daaleman scored 22 points and Yale scored a school-record 37 points from the foul line, including 31 consecutive shots, to defeat Fairfield 71-62; Clarence Dickerson hit two free throws in the closing minute as Hawaii beat Colorado State 56-53 and Kenny Fields scored 18 points to lead UCLA to a 42-34 victory over Stanford.

Aurora Tops Bears, 58-44

AURORA — Only four players scored but it was enough as Aurora whipped Bear Grass, 58-44, Friday evening in a Tobacco Belt Conference basketball game.

Earlier, in the girls' game, Bear Grass used 31 points from Angie Mizelle to whip Aurora, 56-45.

James Clark poured in 27 points, Richard Coffee added 13 and Tim Bragg 10 to put three of the four players who scored for the Trojans in double figures for the night.

Aurora, now 4-6 in the conference and 5-8 overall, slipped out to a 9-6 lead at the end of the first quarter and then outscored Bear Grass, 23-10, in the second period to take a 32-16 lead at intermission.

and Bernedett Simpson with 14 points. Mary Rawls had 11 points for Bear Grass, which is now 7-4 and 8-4. Bear Grass plays host to Bath Tuesday night.

JV Game — Bear Grass lost (no score available).

Bear Grass 6 10 18 10-44
Aurora 9 23 12 14-58

The Bears edged back to within 10 (44-34) at the close of the third quarter but could get no closer as the Trojans went on to win by 14.

Bear Grass, now 2-9 in the league and 2-10 overall, was led by Phil Peele with 14 points. No one else had more than eight points for the Bears.

In the girls' game, Mizelle, a junior forward, connected on 10 field goals and hit 11 of 15 from the foul line for her game-high 31 points to spark the Lady Bears past Aurora.

Bear Grass managed an 11-10 lead at the end of the first period and stretched its lead to 22-18 at the half. A 20-15 surge in the third period put the Lady Bears up, 42-33.

Aurora, now 1-9 in the league and 2-11 overall, was led by Janice Griffin with 15 points

ESC Delaying State Cutbacks

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State Employment Security Commission officials are putting off until Thursday a decision about how many local ESC offices will close because of federal budget cuts.

A decision had been expected Monday but state ESC Chairman Glenn Jernigan announced the delay Saturday, after meeting with Gov. Jim Hunt and other state and local officials to discuss the problem.

The ESC, which is funded entirely from federal funds, has been forced to cut its budget by 12 percent, retroactive to Oct. 1. The funding cut comes after an earlier 17 percent cut, and could force the ESC to close up to 48 local and branch offices in North Carolina.

Polar Weather Had U.S. Shaking In Its Boots

By DAVID L. LANGFORD
Associated Press Writer

It was the King Kong of cold waves, a monster from the top of the world that held the eastern United States in a deadly bear hug for days.

Two weeks ago Friday, 70-year-old Walter J. Hockmuth lost his keys in the deep snow outside his home in Merton, Wis. He tried open a window and started climbing in.

Before dawn the following morning, in Embarrass, Minn., to the northwest, Paul Lehman went out into the frigid darkness to check his thermometer for the National Weather Service, as he had done each day for 17 years. It was 46 degrees below zero, not unheard of in that hamlet in the northeastern corner of Minnesota, but blustery winds made it feel like 70 below.

Lehman's oil stove had gone out, the fuel congealed in the lines. He stoked up a fire in a wood stove to keep warm.

After daybreak, they found Walter Hockmuth stuck in the window of his house. He had frozen to death.

The polar monster they called the Siberian Express had arrived, southbound on a 10-day run that would take it deep into the orange groves and vegetable fields of Florida and across the country into New England.

"Prepare for the worst," was the warning that day from Jack May, a weather service forecaster in Cleveland.

By the following weekend, Lehman's thermometer would go haywire, bouncing crazily to 12 above when the temperature was more like 52 below.

"It is one of the most severe outbreaks of cold weather mid-America has seen since the 1800s," reported weather service meteorologist Nolan Duke in Kansas City, Mo., whose job is to keep track of what is going on nationwide.

On Jan. 20, 1954, the mercury sank to 70 degrees below zero at Rogers Pass, Mont., the coldest reading ever in the contiguous United States. That record still stands.

But as the Siberian Express moved in, millions of people would suffer the sting of the coldest weather ever known in cities such as Chicago, Milwaukee and Akron, Ohio. The Gulf Coast would be glazed with ice and Southern cities such as Atlanta would be frozen to a standstill at temperatures far below zero.

Much of the nation's winter produce and fruit would be wiped out. It was the furious winds gusting to 50 mph that made the Siberian Express so dangerous, creating a wind chill of 100 degrees below zero in places.

More than 300 people were killed, mostly old people found huddled in homes with little or no heat and men who suffered heart attacks while shoveling snow. Thousands escaped to emergency shelters to keep warm as utility crews and snowplows worked around the clock in a losing battle against blizzards in the Midwest.

While no one knows exactly what caused the crash of an Air Florida jetliner that hit a bridge on the Potomac River during a snowstorm in Washington, killing 78 people, many suspect ice on the wings was a factor.

The cost of the freeze in dollars is yet to be counted, but consumers are already feeling the pinch.

Prices are soaring for orange juice and some vegetables in the supermarket meant higher heating bills and extra auto repair bills for some, and many involved in the thousands of accidents on slick highways may see their insurance rates go up.

Some cities already have overspent their budgets for keeping the streets clear of snow and ice.

"It's a consumer's nightmare," Michael Pflueger, a spokesman for the Hunts Point produce center in New York City, said last week.

The freeze in Florida, plus heavy rains in California, Pflueger said, "have put most fresh fruits and vegetables out of reach."

The average price of a 12 ounce can of frozen orange juice concentrate increased to $1.42 in the New York area last week, compared with $1.12 at this time last year. Prices also were climbing for such items as celery, peppers, eggplant, squash and greens such as escarole, romaine and Boston lettuce.

In Boston, the price of tomatoes was quoted to retailers last Monday at $23 per 25 pounds, more than twice as much as the $10 asked the previous Thursday.

Federal officials estimated that half of southern Florida's vast winter vegetable crops were lost, along with about 25 percent of the billion dollars worth of citrus.

Florida Citrus Mutual estimated Friday that the freeze cost about 51 million gallons of frozen orange juice as compared with 65 million gallons lost in last year's freeze. As a consequence, about 20,000 citrus workers will soon be out of work, along with 10,000 workers in the vegetable fields.

But Florida's loss was Texas' gain. Citrus farmers in the Rio Grande Valley started charging more for their produce. For example, farmers were getting $9 for a 50-pound carton of cabbage last week, triple the price before the Florida freeze.

In Virginia, dairy farmers last week were dumping milk because trucks were unable to reach farms on the icy back roads. Rodney Phillips of Dairymen Inc. explained that federal regulations require that milk for human consumption be picked up within 52 hours.

The cold also has ruined produce such as apples, pears, celery and lettuce which froze when placed close to the floors of trucks during shipment.

Cattlemen in Virginia reported newborn calves freezing to death.

"One of my neighbors had two calves, I know, that were frozen," said Lewis Chisholm, a Louisa County beef producer. "Before they could get up and get something into their stomachs, they froze."

But the winter storms brought good news to the farmers in most of the West, who had been facing dwindling water supplies.

Norman Berg of the U.S. Forest Service said at mid-week that heavy early winter snowfalls had left "generally good" levels of water in western reservoirs and that most rivers in the region would get normal to above-normal runoff when the spring thaw begins.

The frigid weather also has brought record demand for natural gas, fuel oil and electricity for heating homes.

In Chicago, where the mercury dropped to 25 degrees below zero Jan. 9 for an all-time record, People's Energy Co. broke its 24-hour record for gas delivery and said it was supplying 30 percent more than normal each day.

In Atlanta, where temperatures dropped to minus 5 and thousands of cars were abandoned in a snowstorm, residents were warned to expect to pay much more to stay warm.

"Higher fuel costs plus colder weather this year will result in very high bills during January and February," said Ross Willis, a spokesman for Atlanta Gas Light Co. "This will be true regardless of the energy source used — natural gas, propane, fuel oil, electricity, even wood, if it is purchased." Georgia Comptroller General Johnnie Caldwell, pointing out that the local governments in that part of the South are not equipped to clear ice and snow from highways, urged insurance companies not to increase the premiums of Georgians filing claims for damages from the rare winter storm.

"The citizens of this state are not experienced in driving under these conditions, and many homes are not constructed to prevent freeze damage," Caldwell said.

On the plus side, the Siberian Express was a bonanza for service stations, plumbers, fuel oil dealers, sporting goods stores, auto parts dealers and tow truck operators.

"If I told you 20 times the amount, would you believe me?" responded Ray Tartaglione of RJT Towing in White Plains, N.Y., when asked if his business had picked up. He had been averaging 20 calls a day, but last week was answering 150 to 200.

Many Americans, meanwhile, were beginning to suffer "cabin fever."

"I feel like I'm being held hostage," said Peggy Cattie, a mother of four boys ages 5 to 9 in Chesterfield County, Va. "But the kids cheer every night when they hear the news that schools are closed again."

ary," said Ross Willis, a spokesman for Atlanta Gas Light Co. "This will be true regardless of the energy source used — natural gas,

High-Risk Pregnancy Result: Kimberly Nicole

Kimberly Nicole Rouse is more than special to her parents. She is the result of a high-risk pregnancy.

Her mother, Brenda, was admitted to Pitt County Memorial Hospital Sept. 27, 1981, and Kimberly was delivered Jan. 14. This was Mrs. Rouse's fourth pregnancy. The other babies were born prematurely (during the 27- to 28-week period) and didn't survive.

"When I arrived here in September, I was impressed with the emergency room care and accuracy. Since I had been here in August, the paperwork had already been done. Therefore, we didn't have to wait," Mrs. Rouse said.

"The residents under the supervision of Dr. (Jarlath) MacKenna, the social worker, Betty Ward, nurse Judy Tucker and nutritionist Karen Warren, were all instrumental in seeing to my daily care. I was also very comfortable with the first floor-south hospital staff. Since being here so long, it was like I was one of them.

"My spirits were lifted emotionally by a weekly ride in a wheelchair (after my 30th week of pregnancy) around the first floor area under the supervision of a staff member. On the Friday before my Caesarean section, Judy, Betty and Karen treated me to a chocolate nut sundae in the hospital cafeteria.

"There's a lot I can say about Dr. MacKenna. He was really dedicated to my care and trying to ensure a full-term pregnancy. From the first he worked with my husband and me. He let us know that it was going to take some dedication on our part. It has been remarkable, the care provided by Dr. MacKenna, and I really appreciate it. I don't really care about the cost because of my healthy little girl. I felt very comfortable under Dr. MacKenna's care because I knew he was the best," remarked Mrs. Rouse.

The Rouses were referred to Dr. MacKenna by a neonatal doctor two years ago. "She felt I needed medical care from a high-risk pregnancy specialist," added Mrs. Rouse.

Brenda and Marvin Rouse, who live in Fayetteville, have been married six years. She is a claims representative with the Social Security Administration. He is a full-time graduate student at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill in social work.

"There was an emotional strain after each of the three previous unsuccessful pregnancies but my husband, by profession as a social worker, helped me psychologically. After my second failure, it was determined there was nothing medically wrong with the fetus and we were told we did have a chance of having a healthy baby. We were willing to take that chance," Mrs. Rouse said.

"The ending of my pregnancies prematurely were each traumatic. My husband and I kept our grief private. We didn't want sympathy each time it happened. We wanted encouragement to try again. Getting back into the routine, going back to work and looking ahead to future possibilities helped me emotionally. I would like to encourage other women who have had problem pregnancies to seek the best medical attention and to try again," she said.

"During my stay, I was always encouraged that my pregnancy was going to be full term. The staff always talked on the positive side, never anything negative. I liked this. We were never able to do that before — to look ahead to a full-term pregnancy and this time we did.

"After being admitted on Sept. 27, I counted the weeks off on my calendar. Once in a while I was depressed, but still I looked forward to working and cooperating with the staff for a successful pregnancy. The time was all worth it after seeing the baby. It takes a lot of support for someone who has been through this from family and friends, which I had," Mrs. Rouse said.

"While I was working, I didn't watch the soap operas but I made the time in the hospital go by through reading, watching some game shows and the soaps on television. I also did some needlework and looked forward to family calls and visits and occasional letters.

"I would love to have another little girl. I have one sister, who is my best friend. I would like my baby to have such a relationship with a sister," said Mrs. Rouse.

A SPECIAL VISITOR ... is Kimberly Nicole to her mother, Brenda Rouse. Nursery technician Mary

Quality Care, Encouragement Provided

Dr. Jarlath MacKenna was Brenda Rouse's primary obstetrician. However, other members of the ECU School of Medicine's Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology also participated in her care as did the resident physicians of the medical school.

"I emphasize, without the encouragement and participation of other members of the department of OB-GYN, I do not believe that it would have been possible to provide Mrs. Rouse with this sort of quality care," said Dr. MacKenna.

"Mrs. Rouse lost three babies prematurely at 27-28 weeks. Obviously, it was very traumatic emotionally for her ... We recognize that women who lose premature infants go through some grieving process as they do when they lose any other child or relative.

"A fact that is not often recognized is that husbands go through the same emotional trauma and sense of loss. Because of that in this particular case, the parents and I discussed the possibility of attempting another pregnancy and the emotional impact on both of them.

"All three of us agreed that if she became pregnant, that we would make every effort to preserve the pregnancy up to and including prolonged hospitalization. When she became pregnant, we brought her into the hospital at about 15 weeks of pregnancy and inserted a Shirodkar suture (a special surgical procedure designed to keep the cervix closed during pregnancy). We also placed her on some drugs which are designed to keep the uterus from contracting," said Dr. MacKenna.

"That worked well for about six to seven weeks. She experienced some bleeding and cramping and we readmitted her to the hospital and started her on some intravenous drugs, which were successful. Because of the uncertainty and the fact that she lives more than three hours away by car, we decided to keep her in the hospital on complete bed rest.

"The danger was that if she went into premature labor, the suture could tear through the cervix and cause significant damage. Because of Mrs. Rouse's dedication and cooperation, it was possible to maintain her on strict bed rest with weekly injections of drugs to stop labor. After three and a half months of continuous hospitalization, she was delivered by C-section (Caesarean section) and now has a healthy little girl," Dr. MacKenna added.

"While I have no idea of what the final hospital bill might be — it may well be in excess of $15,000 to $18,000 — a baby born prematurely and requiring sophisticated intensive care can often generate costs in excess of $80,000 to $90,000 with no guarantee of survival. Hence, ... this still is a relative bargain," Dr. MacKenna said.

A LOT OF ENCOURAGEMENT ... was provided by Dr. Jarlath MacKenna, right, to his patient,

Motor Home Owners Have Condo Lots

By CRAIG ALLSOPP
KISSIMMEE, Fla. (UPI) — Six years ago Ed and Jackie Newton put their house on the market, bought a motor home and took a chance on a new way of American life — the condominium campground.

The Newtons haven't regretted it as their investment grew and the trend of camper-owned campgrounds started sweeping the south from Tennessee to Texas.

"I think it's great," says Mrs. Newton, 54. "I've thoroughly enjoyed it from the start."

The Newtons, who call square dances for a living, now own two campsites. They spend the winter at Captain Kidd RV Resort near Walt Disney World and summer on Lake Tansi in the Cumberland Mountains of Tennessee.

"We find it cheaper and easier than maintaining a home," said Newton, 60. "We have a 32-foot motor home we travel in and use in Tennessee, and keep our 35-footer trailer here."

Outdoor Resorts is the company that pioneered the condominium campground concept back in 1968 when most campsites had little more than spigots and picnic tables in the middle of a field.

"We just figured there was certainly a market for better accommodations for these expensive motor homes," says Grady Looney, Outdoor Resorts vice president for marketing.

The company's first project was a 400-space campground near Gatlinburg, Tenn. The company has since developed seven other camper-owned facilities around the "RV lifestyle" in Florida, South Carolina and Texas. Altogether Outdoor Resorts has sold about 6,000 lots.

"The concept is first-class accommodations," says Looney, ticking off amenities like paved roads, water and sewer service, swimming pools, tennis courts, club houses, boat slips and cable television and telephone hookups.

"In a condominium campground you're more likely to find a microwave oven than mosquito netting."

Buying a campsite is like buying a condominium apartment. The investor buys a lot and then pays his property taxes and maintenance fees through a condo or co-op association.

When they aren't using their sites, many owners rent them out complete with motor home or large pull trailer.

David Brewster, president of Bryn Mawr Camp Resorts Inc. which has developed three Florida campgrounds as cooperatives, sees the ownership concept dominating the camping scene in the 1980s.

"The only parks that are going to be rental parks are going to be purely one-night stands," Brewster says, predicting that "85 percent of all resort campgrounds will be camper-owned within ten years."

A bold proclamation perhaps, but Brewster points out the customer demand is heavy and that facilities with water or oceanfront property are selling rapidly.

He says high gasoline prices and the evolution of the "RV lifestyle" into more than a two-week vacation trek were responsible for the trend. And there is also the high cost of Florida real estate.

"A lot of people want ocean front property, but who can afford $150,000 for a condominium apartment?" asks Brewster. "For a little more than $50,000 one of our customers can have a place on the ocean."

Prices at Bryn Mawr's camper-owned parks in Key Largo, Fort Pierce and St. Augustine start at about $17,000 for an 1,800-square foot lot with ocean access and $32,000 for a spot overlooking the beach. Waterfront spaces with boat slips and ocean access are $40,000.

So far 350 of the 400 sites at Bryn Mawr's Fort Pierce campground have sold since Jan. 1980. Only 11 of 284 sites remain at Key Largo. The St. Augustine park just went camper-owned and Brewster says he's received 50 deposits on 250 sites.

While many of the campsite buyers are retirees, Brewster and Looney of Outdoor Resorts say more families with children are choosing campgrounds over vacation or second homes. Both recommend, however, people purchase sites only if they have plenty of spare time.

"If people are only going to use it a couple of weeks a

Fairy Tale Cassettes Made

By MARCELLAS KREITER

SKOKIE, Ill. (UPI) — Bobbie Sweetow, dedicated to revival of the fairy tale, will read the stories to children, if their parents don't have the time for it.

Mrs. Sweetow, 47, mother of two grown children, is producing personalized, 60-minute cassettes of four fairy tales each and selling them to people who want their children and grandchildren to realize there's more to life than television.

"It's done almost like old radio," said Mrs. Sweetow, who lives just north of Chicago. "It's not Walt Disneyish or anything, I do all the voices."

"I used to love to listen to 'Let's Pretend' when I was a kid. I'm a radio fan and I read the 'Oz' books and Grimm and Anderson fairy tales as a little girl. As a big girl I'm still reading them."

Mrs. Sweetow began producing her "Storytime" cassettes last June. At the beginning of each tape is a blank half-minute, which is filled with a personal message to the child for whom the tape was purchased.

"I usually say something like, 'Hi so-and-so. Your grandmother wanted me to read you these stories for your birthday.' That way the children know the stories are just for them."

Many of the children who receive her tapes have never heard any fairy tales, Mrs. Sweetow said. She thinks that's a shame.

"Fairy tales are not very popular now," she said. "One woman was telling me her child had never heard a story before that was not on TV. It took a while for him to understand what was happening, he was so used to having the audio and visual together."

"Now he plays the tape all the time. I think these tapes help a child use his imagination."

"Fairy tales have always been a healthy outlet for children. There is always a happy ending and the good guys always win."

Mrs. Sweetow has found her best customers are grandparents in their 40s and 50s.

"Seniors don't know what a cassette is for the most part," Mrs. Sweetow said.

"And many parents in the 30-year-old age bracket haven't heard fairy tales themselves. They grew up on the Mouseketeers and Dr. Seuss."

Mrs. Sweetow's favorite tale is the "Devil and the Three Golden Hairs" because the king "gets it in the end." That story and "Rapunzel," "The Tinder Box" and "Hansel and Gretel" make up her first tape.

"I rewrite the stories to some extent," Mrs. Sweetow admitted. "I've taken out most of the violence. Like in the 'Tinder Box' when the soldier cuts off the witch's head to get rid of her, I cut that out. I say she got so angry, she turned round-and-round until there was nothing left."

"I also take out all the stuff about wicked stepmothers. Especially today, with all the second marriages around, we don't need that."

Mrs. Sweetow said she has plans to expand her mail order library to include ethnic stories.

"Chicago has such an ethnic population," she said. "I would like to tell old Polish stories, Oriental, Jewish, maybe African — things that would appeal to people living in big cities."

Mrs. Sweetow has no plans to market her tapes in stores. "I want to do it strictly mail order," she said. "Personalizing the tapes makes this unique. If I left them in a store, they'd have to come back to me anyway to be personalized."

Mrs. Sweetow said she is not sure exactly what gave her the "Storytime" idea.

"The only thing I can think of is that I do volunteer work for the blind. I read newspapers on tape and that started me thinking."

So far, Mrs. Sweetow estimates she has sold 100 tapes, mostly to friends and family.

year, they are better off renting," says Looney.

One of the biggest boosters of the camper-owned sites is the recreational vehicle industry.

Newton Kindlund, owner of Holiday of Orlando Inc., one of the country's largest RV stores, is so encouraged by the sales prospects he's set up demonstration trailers and motor homes at the Captain Kidd park.

"It's changing the complexion of camping," says Kindlund, who estimates there probably are 150 to 200 camper owned parks nationwide. "It's a positive trend for our industry and has brought many people into the RV lifestyle."

Most camper-owned facilities have "zoning" and restrict occupancy to larger trailers and motor homes to deter weekenders who travel in vans, pickups, or pop-top campers.

Kindlund says the average travel trailer in these parks is a 32-footer that costs anywhere from $12,000 to $20,000. Motor homes cost more; a 30-footer is roughly $40,000 to $50,000.

"There's an amazing cross-section of buyers," notes Brewster. "You get some blue collar people and you get some people who are really loaded who just happen to like RVs."

If all this sounds like a good deal, a word of caution from James Kearny, director of the Florida Division of Land Sales and Condominiums. Get a lawyer to review the purchase agreement before signing.

"We haven't had any real problems in RV parks, but it's a very large purchase and people need to make sure they understand the documents," Kearny says.

Packaging costs are the third largest part of the U.S. consumer food bill.

Students welcomed the chance to take a break from school during the teachers' workdays Thursday and Friday and to recuperate from mid-term exams, which were administered Tuesday and Wednesday. Six-weeks and semester grades will have been averaged by Friday, Jan. 29, when report cards will be distributed.

With half the year behind them, students in Mrs. Beth Richardson's study skills classes will spend second semester classtime tutoring in the reading program at Elmhurst Elementary School. Using skills acquired from the course, they will remain one period each day working on a one-to-one basis with elementary students who need additional help.

Mrs. Jean Creech, guidance counselor, and Mrs. Richardson will be coordinating the program with Mrs. Leslie Washburn, principal at Elmhurst. She will assign the 33 tutors from the two study skills classes to teachers there, who will in turn assign them to students.

This is the second year that the course has been offered at Rose. Mrs. Richardson will be teaching it again second semester and it is open to sophomores, juniors and seniors.

Senior Club has organized a trip to UNC-Chapel Hill Jan. 28 for interested juniors and seniors wishing to get a glimpse of the campus, classes and dorms. A Trailways bus has been chartered at $13 per person. Tours have been planned and arranged by UNC officials for this whole-day affair.

A Financial Aid Workshop will be conducted tomorrow by representatives from the East Carolina University Financial Aid Office. The one-hour session will be held in the media center from 9 a.m. until 2:30, with a half-hour lunch break at 1 p.m. Seniors are to report directly to the library during their English 12 classes and parents are invited and encouraged to attend.

General financial aid for all post-secondary schools will be discussed, including scholarships, grants, Pell (BEOG) grant, work-study and loans. The workshop is coordinated by Mrs. Rosalind Britt, senior guidance counselor.

Engagement Announced

Women Still In Prison In West Virginia

By STRAT DOUTHAT
Associated Press Writer
ALDERSON, W. Va. (AP) — Ginette Marcellin is a tiny woman who left her home in Haiti last summer and boarded a cramped, leaky boat bound for Florida and, she thought, for freedom. Instead, she ended up in West Virginia where the promised land is beyond the chain-link fence of a federal prison.

Mrs. Marcellin has no idea when she will be released from jail, or if she will be allowed to stay in the United States. She says she never dreamed when she risked her life to come to America that she would be treated like a criminal.

"There were 35 of us on that boat, including my husband and myself. We were on the boat for a month," she says.

Even though the refugees were fleeing harsh conditions in Haiti, she said, the trip to Florida in that small, open boat was worse than anything she had experienced in her 23 years.

"We ran out of food and water, and the boat was so crowded that you couldn't lie down or stretch your legs. If you wanted to relieve yourself, you had to change places with somebody sitting on the outer edge."

When they finally got to Florida, the Marcellins were badly dehydrated and nearly starved. But they were hopeful; hopeful that things would be different now that they had reached their goal.

"My husband and I were hoping that we could get work," she said through an interpreter. "We wanted to help our families back in Haiti, and send for our little boy."

Instead, Mrs. Marcellin was separated from her husband. He was jailed in Miami, while his wife, under an administrative order that all the women should go to women's prisons, was sent to the Federal Correctional Institution at Alderson, a remote, rural community in southern West Virginia. She and nearly 70 other Haitian women have been held at the prison since Oct. 30 when they arrived on a charter flight from Miami.

Officials at Alderson, the nation's only federal prison for women, said some of the Haitians were in poor condition when they arrived.

"All they had were the clothes on their backs," recalled Kay Davis, who is in charge of the cottage where the Haitians are kept.

During the ensuing weeks the women slowly regained their strength. They received donations of clothing and money from many of the 500 other prisoners at Alderson and from local churches.

"The Haitians are segregated from the general inmate population," said Dave Helman, executive assistant to Warden Gwynne Sizer. "We don't call them prisoners because they haven't committed any crime, although technically they're charged with violating U.S. immigration laws. We refer to them as detainees."

Helman said the Haitian women have been no trouble during the 10 weeks they have been at Alderson.

For their part, the Haitians feel well-fed but forgotten.

"It's true we have enough to eat here, but the food is beginning to stick in our throats," said Noelzina Pierre, who left three children behind in Haiti. "We are afraid and worried about what's going to happen."

Like Mrs. Pierre, all of the women interviewed said they were lonely, confused and resentful that they had been separated from their families and locked up seemingly in the middle of nowhere. They also worried that they would be punished or even executed if returned to the custody of the dictatorial regime in their homeland.

Duke Austin of the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service said 2,100 Haitians are being detained. Most are being held at Fort Allen, Puerto Rico, and at Miami, but other groups are in federal prisons in Kentucky, New York and Texas.

Austin said there is no way to tell how long they will remain locked up. He said the Reagan administration began jailing Haitian refugees last summer, marking a departure from past government policy.

"Under the Carter administration they were usually given temporary paroles and work permits and were released out into the community pending their hearings," Austin said.

Austin said no hearings were scheduled for any of the refugees now in custody.

"These people have no legal counsel and no money for legal counsel even if there were enough attorneys who were familiar with immigration law," he said.

In addition, Austin said, a class-action suit filed on their behalf "has frozen everything."

As things now stand, a hearing is scheduled Feb. 1 in federal court at Miami on the class action suit, filed by the Haitian Refugee Center and other Haitian support groups.

"The question of detainment will be taken up at that time," said Vera Wise, an attorney for the refugee center.

As the legal and political maneuvering continues, the women at Alderson spend their days learning English and sewing.

Ginette Marcellin knows all about sewing.

"I went to work in a garment factory when I was 16," she said. "I worked from 6 a.m. until 8 p.m., six days a week. I earned about $50 a month, and I was lucky; my husband had been unemployed for years."

Many of the women said they had friends and relatives in the United States who are willing to sponsor them. They said they couldn't understand why Haitians are treated differently than other refugee groups, unless it is because they are black.

"We always thought of the United States as a place that would help refugees, but once we got here we were locked up like criminals," said Mrs. Pierre. "At least it would be more bearable if we knew what was going to happen to us."

Dear Abby

Some Children Have Manners, Others Don't

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: When my nephew graduated from high school last June, I sent him a check for $100. Not too shabby for an uncle on a fixed and somewhat limited income. I have yet to receive an acknowledgment of my gift. The lad is now away at college.

I saw the father of this nephew recently, and I asked if his son ever received my graduation gift. The father said, "Yes, didn't you hear from him?" I told him I had not, whereupon he just shrugged his shoulders and replied, "Well, you know how kids are!"

Abby, I'm not sure I know "how kids are." Maybe you can tell me.

UNENLIGHTENED UNCLE

DEAR UNCLE: Some kids are well-mannered, appreciative and prompt with their thank-yous. Other are ill-mannered, unappreciative, lazy and procrastinating. Your nephew obviously belongs to the latter group.

DEAR ABBY: Some time ago, a 19-year-old college boy, signed "Never Been Kissed," was embarrassed because of his lack of experience with the opposite sex. He was a virgin and getting close to a sexual relationship with his girlfriend and didn't know how to handle it. You advised him to act as though he knew what he was doing, follow his natural instincts and bluff his way through.

Would you give the same advice to a man more than twice his age with the same problem? I am 40, normal and healthy in all respects, reasonably attractive and I am still a virgin. How do you suggest I handle a social situation with a woman in my age bracket who is sexually experienced and probably assumes that I am too?

This is no joke, Abby. Believe me, I wish it were.

NEVER BEEN KISSED OR ANYTHING ELSE

DEAR NEVER: I wouldn't advise a 40-year-old male virgin to bluff his way with a sexually sophisticated woman.

If you are "healthy, normal and reasonably attractive" and desirous of a sexual relationship, I am wondering why you are still totally inexperienced. If you don't know either, you should see a competent sex therapist.

DEAR ABBY: Ever since reading the letter from "Longtime Pastor" regarding his refusal to allow an "obviously pregnant bride" to have "I'm Having His Baby" sung at her wedding, I have been on a slow simmer. He states, "I think it makes a mockery of the sacred vows when people say 'I do' after they have already done it."

I would like to ask the "Longtime Pastor" why he allowed an "obviously pregnant bride" to have anything but a very private, family-only wedding ceremony, sans soloist, fanfare, etc. I believe that anything else makes a mockery of the sacred vows and that it is the responsibility of not-so-open-minded pastors to maintain sacred standards for the sacred ceremonies they perform in their churches.

Thanks, Abby, I feel better. Sign me,

LUTHERAN MOTHER OF FOUR DAUGHTERS

DEAR MOTHER: A pregnant bride is also entitled to a church wedding with a "soloist, fanfare, etc.," if that's what she wants. It is not the pastor's function to judge her. That's the Lord's job.

Resource Group Meeting Set

Mother's Resource will meet Tuesday at 10 a.m. Estelle Morin, from the Eastern Area Health Education Center, will be speaking on "The Second Six Months of Life."

The topic will include parent-child relationships, safety and development of the six to 12 month old child.

The meetings are held at Doctors Park Apartments, F-4. For further information call Beverly Huff, 757-3606.

Mothers resource is a support group for mothers which meets twice monthly for mutual encouragement and information. Children are welcome.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

I haven't read it yet, but I just heard there's a new book coming out, 401 ways to Get Your Kids to Work at Home," by Bonnie McCullough and Susan Monson.

Offhand, I can only think of two. Perpetual cruelty and their own Swiss bank account.

Most mothers entering the labor market outside the home are naive. They stagger home each evening, holding the mail in their teeth, the cleaning over their arm, a lamb chop defrosting under each armpit, balancing two gallons of frozen milk between their knees, and expect one of the kids to get the door.

Grow up, mothers! Kids don't breathe in, and out unless they're paid scale. Their contention is, "Who asked you to work? It's not our fault you're not fulfilled shrinking jeans and fighting stubborn stains."

You're not going to believe this, but I originally went to work in 1965, to buy a Barbie doll a wardrobe to go to the Ohio State football game with Ken in a cardboard car. I year later I couldn't have a doll languishing in dust balls under the bed dressed better than I, so I worked a few more years to buy a few things for myself. The rest is history.

As you can imagine, I tried every trick in the book to get the children to pitch in with household chores. From shouting, I got varicose veins of the neck. Nothing more. I progressed to "Dirty Looks" and "Martyrdom," which also got me nothing.

Festival Tickets Ready Conserving N.C. Flags

WILMINGTON — With the prospect of a heavy demand for tickets to its headline attractions, the North Carolina Azalea Festival at Wilmington has begun an advanced ticket sale by mail order only from now through Feb. 28.

On March 1, and afterward, tickets will be available at the Azalea Festival office in Wilmington, as well as by mail. The dates for this year's Azalea Festival are April 15-18.

Edward L. Ward Jr., 1982 festival president, outlines instructions for ordering tickets by mail, by reminding that payment must accompany the order, and must be by check or money order, made payable to N.C. Azalea Festival, P.O. Box 51, Wilmington, N.C. 28402. Also, a stamped, self-addressed envelope must accompany the order.

Applicants should specify whether bleacher seats are preferred. All performances will be "in the round" at Trask Coliseum on the campus of UNC-Wilmington.

Ticket prices for the Four Tops in concert on opening night, April 15, are $9 each; for Roy Clark on April 16, $14 each; and for Paul Anka and the Queen Azalea Coronation and Pageant on April 17, $15 each.

Tickets may not be exchanged, but may be redeemed for cash at the Azalea Festival office on, or before, March 19 for tour groups, and March 31 for individuals. Tickets will be delivered to applicants within four to six weeks.

The North Carolina Museum of History has received a $12,500 grant from the Institute of Museum

Services. This grant will allow the museum to continue conservation of the museum's collection of 350 flags, some dating as far back as the American Revolution. The one-year grant will be matched by the Museum of History Associates, a support group.

Ann Tyrrell, a textile conservator, was recently hired to begin Phase II of the conservation. She completed Phase I in May 1981, an effort she termed "a condition survey. We redesigned storage and completed an up-to-date inventory."

Ms. Tyrrell points out "this is really an important collection." She explained it is among the largest in the country and one of the most diverse and significant. "Through these flags we can trace the history of some of the local areas."

"It is important that we continue conservation, and soon," she emphasized. "Many are already too far gone."

Most of the flags are from the Civil War era, varying widely in appearance and construction.

"We don't want to sew up the bullet holes or tears where the flags were ripped off their staffs," Ms. Tyrrell said. "In such cases we just try to stitch around the tears enough to support the fabric, and thus preserve the flags' history."

Conservation is a time-consuming process, and Ms. Tyrrell hopes eventually to receive volunteer assistance. At this time she is continuing her search for materials and equipment, and says she "is looking forward to a year of persevering still a little more of North Carolina's history for others to see and study."

RECORD YEAR FOR BILTMORE — Visits to Biltmore House and Gardens in Asheville reached a record high in 1981. Over 522,000 visits were made to the George Vanderbilt mansion during the year. This exceeds the previous attendance record set in 1978. Factors which helped increase attendance included the issue of the Biltmore House commemorative postage stamp which resulted in national media coverage; coverage on national television programs and in newspapers; and the appearance of articles on the house and gardens in magazines such as "Town and Country," and "Architectural Digest." The close proximity of Biltmore to the 1982 World's Fair in Knoxville, Tenn., is expected to create a banner year for the Asheville attraction in 1982.

Two Tickets To Timbuctoo Film At ECU On Tuesday

"Two Tickets to Timbuctoo" became a gleam in Ken Richter's eye at a Sunday afternoon tea in New York City's Explorer's Club. Now, thanks to Richter, the public can get a vivid and brilliantly colorful look at this wondrous land.

The show, set for 8 p.m. Jan. 26, is the result of Ken and Shirley Richter's trip across the Sahara Desert, from Algiers to the Congo River basin. They traveled in a station wagon and their assignment was to produce an educational film in Morocco and another in the Congo. Ken thought it would be cheaper to drive their ton of photographic equipment across the Sahara than fly it across. This proved to be the most spectacular and interesting mistake he ever made. "Two Tickets to Timbuctoo" is the story of that trip.

This safari was made made before political unrest and wars closed the Sahara trails. Some of the places the Richters visited are reachable now only by plane; residents of the Zaire mission station and travelers to Timbuctoo say "They haven't changed."

"This is a most unusual and appealing story. Two young people start out in a station wagon to make an 11,000 mile trip from Algiers across the often roadless Sahara Desert into the Congo and back. It's the kind of trip most of us dream about and never get a chance to make," said George Pierrot, director of World Adventure Series.

Tickets are on sale in the Central Ticket Office for $2.50.

HIGH POINT — The North Carolina Shakespeare Festival has received a Certificate of Recognition from the G. Lynn Nisbet Awards Committee. The prestigious awards are given annually to businesses headquartered in North Carolina which have helped stimulate travel and tourism in the state.

The non-profit theater company was cited for its special contribution to the state travel industry for its efforts in attracting both North Carolinians and tourists from throughout the country to its productions.

State Skate Benefit Slated In Greenville

The Cystic Fibrosis "State Skate" will be held Feb. 6 at Sportsworld in Greenville, according to Glenda Averette, project chairman. The event will begin at 2 p.m.

Sponsor sheets, required for all participants, will be available at the skating center. Skaters will be seeking donations to cystic fibrosis prior to entering the State Skate, Mrs. Averette explained. She urged all interested participants to obtain their sponsor sheets early. All donations will be turned in during the event at the skating center.

Skaters turning in at least $30 in donations will be awarded a special prize. Also, prizes will be awarded to skaters who raise the most money for the cystic fibrosis fund drive.

Cystic fibrosis is an inherited and fatal lung disease. Through fund raising drive, the North Carolina CFF chapter is able to help support research, care and education programs in North Carolina and across the country.

For further information on the CF State Skate, contact Mrs. Averette at 756-5976.

The 1982 ECU Faculty Show Is An Impressive Exhibition

Faculty members of the School of Art, East Carolina University, are obviously well, alive, and alert, finding time to create as well as teach. The fruit of their creative efforts is a show that contains some outstanding individual efforts. As a collective venture the exhibit is impressive.

The 1982 Faculty show, on view at Gray Gallery through February 14, is a rewarding exhibition well served by being handsomely mounted. Gallery Director Randy Osman notes the acquisition of several new, portable display units "has given me increased flexibility in mounting shows." The acquisitions have been made possible by funds from the National Endowment for the Arts.

Those who may observe trends manifested by local artists will note some changes or variations on the part of some of the faculty artists — i.e., the inclusion of smaller-scale works by Paul Hartley, Mel Stanforth and Robert Dick; the departure from allegorical-infused subjects on the part of printmaker Don Sexauer, at least in one striking black and white series of landscapes, the "Scotia Series;" and the extension of Tran Gordley's subject range to include a male nude in addition to his fruit and vegetable studies of recent years.

Because of the number of artists involved, and the size of the show, it's not possible for me to comment, even briefly, on the full range of favorable responses I experienced in viewing this show. Some impressions that linger with me include:

- The cracking energy and spartan beauty of several works by Betty Petteway. Ms. Petteway reveals an uncommon sense of just the right balance in structuring shapes and color against areas of pure white or light backgrounds.

- The pleasure afforded by Terry Smith's handling of wood. He retains the integrity of the natural grain while shaping his material into objects that are both visually striking and utilitarian. His pieces, whether small innovative containers or large pieces such as a desk or porch swing, are fine sculptural works of art.

- Clarence Morgan continues to display his particular talent in creating works vibrantly alive in richness of color and texture, in small and very large paintings.

- Michael Ehbeck challenges the viewer to attempt to unravel the subtle mysteries he offers in intriguing works such as one with a large fish and a repeated motif of film negative portraits of the artist.

- In five new paintings not shown before (if memory serves me correctly), Edward Reep has taken his formal concept of repeated patterns one step further with splendid results. One of these, "Ice Storms," composed of five similar horizontally placed patterns, is a painting of astonishing beauty that transcends the basic formality of the work. The design is suggestive of ice, as well as echoing half-forgotten memories of Scandinavian architectural motifs and elongated carvings and paintings of primitive Pacific islands artists.

This year's faculty show is full of familiar and new viewing pleasures. Area people who enjoy an opportunity to view at one place an extensive cross section of contemporary art will find this exhibit fully satisfying.

Hours at Gray Gallery, in the Jenkins Fine Arts Center, located on Fifth Street are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Mondays through Fridays, and from 1 to 4 p.m. on Sundays. Admission is free, and the public is invited to attend this and all shows at the gallery.

Jerry Raynor

TRUCKING FABLE... by ECU faculty artist Betty Petteway, is one of a large number of art works currently on view in Gray Gallery, Jenkins Fine Arts Center. Paintings, prints, jewelry, photographs, sculpture, ceramics, textiles and other media are represented in this annual show, which will be up through February 14. Admission is free and the public is invited to attend.

New Spring Series Of Art Lectures

The Communication Arts Department of the East Carolina University School of Art will play host to seven well known illustrators and designers during the 1982 spring semester.

Each will be holding critiques with ECU students majoring in illustration. In addition, they will give Monday evening presentations of their own work in the auditorium at Jenkins Fine Arts Center.

Alan Cober is the first of the artists to appear in this series. He will give a slide presentation Monday evening, Jan. 25, with a reception to follow in Gray Gallery. This event is open to the public without charge.

Cober, a native of New York City, attended the Visual Arts School of Arts.

In 1965 he was one of the youngest recipients ever to receive the "Artist of the Year" award from the Artists Guild of New York. He has also been awarded five gold medals from the Society of Illustrators since 1968. His drawings have been exhibited in many museums throughout the U.S. Totally, awards he has received for his art and illustration work number more than 200.

One of his most recent achievements is the completion of a mural for the Smithsonian Museum of American History which will open Feb. 22.

NCSA Events

WINSTON-SALEM — Two events are on tap during the coming week at the North Carolina School of the Arts in Winston-Salem. Both are free and open to the public.

At 7:30 p.m. Monday, visiting artist Mary Ann Unger, a New York sculptor, will present a slide lecture in the Visual Arts Gallery, 4th floor workplace.

A guest concert will be at 8:15 p.m. in Crawford Hall. The group performing is the American Chamber Trio — June DeForest, violin, Daniel Morganster, cello, and Peter Basquin, piano.

Writers To Meet Jan. 26

The second meeting of the Greenville Writers Club for the month of January will be held at 8 p.m. Tuesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Raynor, 2106 Pendleton St.

Anyone interested in any form of creative writing may attend.

INNER-TUBED — David Gadlage, 17, a student at Louisville, Ky., Central High School is shown as he struggled to get a pair of over-sized innertubes from the trunk of his car at a city park. The tubes were to be used for snow sledding. (AP Laserphoto)

NO FAN OF URBAN COWBOY — Country superstar Marty Robbins says the "urban cowboy" trappings have not had a major effect on country music. But, he says, young people have been drawn to the music by such things as mechanical bulls and Western clothing. Robbins, shown in his Nashville, Tenn., dressing room, believes in fancy clothes for country performers. The crowds expect this kind of dress. (AP Laserphoto)

400th Anniversary Plans

By CHANCY KAPP
N.C. Department Of Cultural Resources

RALEIGH — Planning is under way for the celebration of the 400th anniversary of the first English settlements in North America, with the next step to be meetings in Raleigh by two groups on Friday and Saturday.

At 9 a.m. Friday, America's Four Hundredth Anniversary Committee will meet in Room 211 of the Archives-State Library Building, 109 E. Jones St.

The American Quadricentennial Corp., a fund-raising group associated with AFHAC, will meet at the same place at 9 a.m. on Saturday.

Both meetings are open to the public without charge.

AFHAC has coordinated activities designed to highlight the history of Roanoke Voyages undertaken by English explorers between 1584 and 1587. "The Lost Colony" 1587 expedition is probably the most famous, but several earlier expeditions also reached the North Carolina coast.

"We're interested in focusing on North Carolina's link to the exciting England of the Elizabethan age," said Lindsay C. Warren Jr. of Goldsboro, AFHAC's chairman. "But we also want people to understand and enjoy the 400 years of history that have happened since then."

The first official project will be a visit on April 27, 1984, by an American delegation to Plymouth, England, from which Philip Amadas' Roanoke expedition set sail 400 years earlier. An English delegation is due in Manteo on July 13, 1984, the quadricentennial of the landing of that expedition.

That date is also suggested for the christening of a sailing ship built in the style of the 16th century, a project already approved by AFHAC and directed by the American Quadricentennial Corp.

In progress are proposals for a commemorative stamp from the U.S. Postal Service, joint exhibits involving the British Museum and North Carolina's museums of art, history and natural history, a symposium on Sir Walter Raleigh and a national essay contest for school children.

Private citizens and organizations have suggested several other projects, including an Elizabethan Festival at Roanoke Island's Elizabethan Gardens, a special Friendship Force exchange between the people of North Carolina and England and an arts festival in Manteo.

The town of Manteo has already moved ahead with plans for massive renovation of its waterfront in anticipation of increased tourism.

RECORD NEWS

FROM SHEPPARD MEMORIAL LIBRARY

By MEREDITH FOLTZ

These popular phonograph records will soon be available for check-out at Sheppard's main library.

Among the new rock music albums are two by female vocalists Pat Benatar — "Crimes of Passion" — and Sheena Easton, "Sheena Easton."

Recent rock classics being added to the library's collection are "Against the Wind" by Bob Seger, Bruce Springsteen's "Born to Run," "Double Fantasy" by John Lennon and Yoko Ono, "Long Distance Voyager" from the Moody Blues, and Pink Floyd's "The Wall."

New copies of Blondie's "Parallel Lines" and the Beatles' 1962-1966 anthology album will replace the library's first copies.

For soul music enthusiasts are "Black & White" by the Pointer Sisters, "Heroes" by the Commodores, and "What Cha' Gonna Do For Me" by Chaka Khan. "Jah Malla" by Jah Malla is a well reviewed reggae album.

"Mahalia Jackson's Greatest Hits" will delight those who enjoy gospel music.

In the country and western category are "Nine to Five" and "Odd Jobs" by Dolly Parton, Conway Twitty's "Mr. T," "Out Where the Bright Lights are Glowing" from Ronnie Milsap, and "Kenny Roger's Greatest Hits." The bluegrass music of Larry Sparks and the Lonesome Ramblers is showcased in their album, "It's Never Too Late."

New sound tracks include those from Broadway musicals — "Sophisticated Ladies" and "A Chorus Line." The library's new copy of the ever-popular "Oklahoma!" features John Raitt and Florence Henderson. From the motion pictures come the sound tracks of "Fame," "All That Jazz," "Coal Miner's Daughter" and "Grease."

Some of the library's new records offer more than just music. Exercise instruction is given on "Dance Exercise" and Good Housekeeping's "Musical Plan for Reducing." A three-record set provides 133 "Authentic Sound Effects."

Lecture At NCMA

RALEIGH — "Discovering Gold in the Art Museum" is the title of a gallery talk to be given at 2:15 p.m. Sunday in the N.C. Museum of Art, 107 E. Morgan St., downtown Raleigh. Docent Dida Tukrner will discuss "Woman Weighing Gold," by 17th century artist Willem de Poorter, among other paintings relating to gold.

The lecture and the various exhibitions on view are all open to the public without charge.

London's Pall Mall became the first street to be lit by gas in 1807.

We put our foot down about apartments being within walking distance.

Wedgewood Arms apartments are within walking distance of three shopping centers, a nursery school, a junior high school, doctors and dentists' offices and an athletic center.

As if that wasn't enough, three major traffic arteries, 264 Bypass, Arlington Blvd., and Charles St. are close enough to be seen and not heard.

Fact is, no apartments in town can legitimately claim to be more convenient to more things than Wedgewood Arms.

And, that's not all. Because Wedgewood Arms is not only convenient, it's different in other ways, too.

Take the floorplans: they're different from anything you've ever seen. And when you add in high energy efficiency, tennis courts, swimming pool, and the neighborhood "feeling" that these apartments will give you — well, you'll just have to see for yourself.

Big WOOW Classics

Karen Hause's Big WOOW Classics program for Sunday night is a variety show of classical music which she refers to as "Something For Everyone." The program airs from 10 p.m. to midnight Sundays over WOOW Radio, 1340 on the radio dial.

For the opener, a recording by the Boston Symphony under Charles Munch of Mendelssohn's "Italian Symphony" will be played, to be followed by the Prelude to Wagner's "Die Meistersinger" performed by Steinberg and the Pittsburgh Symphony.

The next selection features cello soloist Lynn Harrell with James Levin conducting the London Symphony in Dvorak's "Cello Concerto." Mrs. Hause notes "this is a beautiful but seldom heard piece. His (Harrell's) cello work is outstanding."

Two Handel "Organ Concertos," Opus 4, No. 4 and Opus 7, No. 3 are the next works on the program. "Both are written in F Major," Mrs. Hause comments, "but they're entirely different." The final selection for tonight's program is a piece she's playing again by audience request, Pezel's "Suite for Brass."

'Tannhaeuser' To Be Broadcast

New York's Crystal Palace was destroyed by fire in 1858.

WASHINGTON — "Tannhaeuser," Richard Wagner's drama of man's attempt to come to grips with the duality of his spiritual and sensual nature, will be broadcast from the Metropolitan Opera House on Jan. 30.

Locally, the broadcast can be heard on WITN radio, Washington, 930 on the radio dial, beginning at 1 p.m.

The cast for "Tannhaeuser" includes Leonie Rysaneck as Elisabeth, Mignon Dunn as Venus, Richard Cassilly as Tannhaeuser, Bern Weiki as Wolfram, John Macurdy as the Landgrave and Kathleen Battle as the shepherd. James Levine conducts the Metropolitan Opera Orchestra.

The weekly radio broadcasts, now in its 42nd year, is sponsored by Texaco.

ECU Men's Glee Club To Tour Three N.C. Cities

The East Carolina University Men's Glee Club will tour three North Carolina cities this month and will present public performances of classical and popular choral selections.

The Glee Club, directed by Edward Glenn of the ECU School of Music faculty, will appear in Roanoke Rapids Jan. 28, in Henderson Jan. 29, and in Durham Jan. 30-31.

Percussion Concert Monday

The concert by the ECU Percussion Ensemble, originally scheduled for presentation on Jan. 14 and canceled due to inclement weather, has been re-scheduled for 8:15 p.m. Monday at the A.J. Fletcher Recital Hall. The concert is free and is open to the public.

Faculty musician Harold Jones will conduct, assisted by graduate teaching assistants William Freeman, Timothy Haley and Mark Shelton.

The Percussion Ensemble program will feature six works — Robert Schetman's "Three Dithramboi," Robert Kelly's "Toccata for Marimba and Percussion Ensemble" with soloist Bill Congdon on marimba; "Ionization" by Edgar Varese; the J.S. Bach "Bouree" arranged by Barrier; and two Frank Zappa compositions arranged by Barrier — "Peaches En Regalia" and "Echidnas Arf."

The Jan. 28 concert at the First Methodist Church in Roanoke Rapids is set for 8 p.m. and is sponsored by the Roanoke Valley Performing Arts Society.

The Vance County Arts Council is sponsoring the Glee Club's Jan. 29 appearances in Henderson at 2:30 p.m. at Vance Senior High School and 8 p.m. at Rollins Elementary School.

Completing the tour is a 7:30 p.m. concert at the First Baptist Church of Durham Jan. 30 and an 11 a.m. performance at the church's worship service on the following day.

The Glee Club's program will feature two sacred works by 16th century composer Palestrina, three choral settings of Schubert songs, Bartok's "Four Old Hungarian Folk Songs", selections by contemporary composer Robert Washburn and several traditional and popular selections for men's voices.

The ECU Men's Glee Club has represented the campus on earlier tours in North Carolina and Virginia as well as in an appearance for the American Choral Directors Association. In addition to its regular performances for schools, churches and civic groups, the group presents two major concerts on campus each year and joins other choruses at ECU in the performance of major choral/orchestral works.

Footlight Schedules 'Mousetrap'

RECITAL TODAY — Dr. Charles Moore, (above), tenor, and Dr. Everett Pittman, pianist, will be in recital today at 8:15 p.m. in the A.J. Fletcher Recital Hall. The two, both faculty members, will perform works by Schumann, Britten and Schutz. (ECU News Bureau Photo by Mariane Baines)

NEW BERN — Footlight Theater is presenting Agatha Christie's "The Mousetrap" at the Ramada Inn in New Bern. The dinner theater production runs two consecutive weekends, January 29-30 and Feb. 4-6. Buffet will begin at 7 p.m. with an 8:15 p.m. curtain time.

The setting for the Christie mystery is a decaying English inn, with eight interesting and bazaar characters. One becomes a murder victim, and the murderer is among the remaining seven. Christie's tale is woven with strong characterizations and a definite puzzle to be unraveled by the climatic final scene.

Laura Courter directs and cast members are Lesa Harris, Leslie John Lee, Dennis Delamar, Lynn Wall, Johnny West, Diana Jenkins, Bill Rivenbark, and Peter Norton. Set and technical direction is by Sven van Baars.

For further information and reservations call 633-0272 or 638-3205.

Benefit Jam Set

Beginning at 9:30 p.m. Wednesday, a benefit concert featuring Bill Sheppard and Friends will be held at the Rathskellar on Fifth Street.

Admission is $1.50 per person. Proceeds from the concert will go to two charitable programs. One is a Haitian Hot Lunch program for St. Joseph's School in the town of Pas de Taix, Haiti; the other is the Pitt County Emergency Food Fund.

The featured musician on the concert will be Sleepy King, a Greenville soul music singer who records for Awake Records.

Other musicians scheduled to perform, all from the Greenville area, are: Bill Sheppard and Chick Chandler, both formerly of the Buford T Band, Sue Ludeke, Buddy Alcorn, Big Mike Holland, a former member of the Tulsa Blues Band, Mike Hamer, formerly of the Gillespie-Hamer Band, and LaMont Wells.

$150,000 Award To Houston Ballet

HOUSTON, TEXAS — The Houston Ballet Foundation has received an award of $150,000 from The Ford Foundation. The award has been made specifically to increase Houston Ballet's Cash Reserve Fund over a period of four years.

The award is subject to several conditions, including one that the Houston Ballet must complete each fiscal year in the four year period with current assets at least equal to current liabilities.

Local Theater Gets An Official Name

Producer-director Stephen B. Finnan has announced that his developing theater organization has been officially named the Greenville Little Theater.

Finnan is rehearsing GLT's second production, Neil Simon's comedy, "Barefoot in the Park," to be presented for five performance beginning Feb. 22.

Future plans include a third production in the spring, a children's theater production based on the works of Shakespeare and a summer series of plays.

Participants are invited to join an acting class, to be taught as an introductory course by Finnan. The class is being offered at the Methodist Student Center, East Fifth and Holly streets. It will be on Saturdays from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. beginning Feb. 6, offered through the continuing education division of Pitt Community College. Cost is $8 for a session of eight weeks.

GLT will also soon be involved in local and statewide fund raising.

For more information or to register for the class, interested people may contact Finnan at 757-3546 or the Methodist Student Center, 758-2030.

Music Festival Events Listed

Two Festival '81-82 events have been announced by the school of music, East Carolina University. These two and all festival events are free and open to the public.

•On Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Chloe Owen, soprano and master teacher, will conduct masterclasses in the Alexander Technique for singers and instrumentalists. These are scheduled at 2 p.m. Thursday; at 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. Friday, and at 10 a.m. on Saturday.

Ms. Owen, a native of Chattanooga, Tenn., received her early music training from her parents, then studied in Baltimore and New York. She had her debut in Town Hall. In Europe she studied with Hans Hotter, Germain Lubin and Guiseppa Pais.

In Bern, Switzerland, Ms. Owen was leading soprano at the Stadt-Theater, and performed in Italy, Switzerland, Germany and Austria. She has sung with such conductors as Ansermet, Szell, Ackermann and Richter.

Ms. Owen is a professor of music at Boston University and has written for "The Opera Journal" and other publications.

•Pianist Robert Weirich is a festival performer to be at ECU Feb. 1-2. He will be in concert at 8:15 p.m. Feb. 1 and on Feb. 2 at 10 a.m. he will give a piano masterclass. Weirich is appearing in the ECU Festival program through the generosity of the Rockefeller Foundation.

A young pianist, Weirich was a prize winner in the first Kennedy Center-Rockefeller Foundation International Competition. He has been highly acclaimed for recitals given in New York, Atlanta, Kansas City, in New England and in Southern states. Weirich has been frequently cited by critics for his sensitive artistry and extraordinary musicianship.

Currently, Robert Weirich is on the faculty of the school of music at Northwestern University.

CHLOE OWEN ... soprano and master teacher, will be on campus at ECU on Jan. 28-30 as one of two performers appearing in the school of music's Festival '81-82. Robert Weirich, pianist, will be here on Feb. 1 and 2. All events to be presented by the two are free and open to the public.

Makes First Record

CHARLOTTE — The Charlotte Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Leo Driehuis, has made its first LP stereo recording in celebration of the orchestra's 50th birthday.

The two-record set is a performance of two Beethoven symphonies, the Fifth and Ninth. The Ninth, also known as the Choral Symphony, features soloists Richard Kennedy, Joy Heinbaugh, Donna Dease and Joseph Bias.

The recording is available from: The Charlotte Symphony Office, Spirit Square, 110 E. Seventh St., Charlotte, N.C., 28202 or by calling in an order to 704-332-6136.

Give Classics A Chance

By FREDERICK M. WINSHIP
UPI Senior Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Three college musicians from Ohio are bringing chamber music to America's youth along with the message, "Rock's okay, but give the classics a chance."

The Music from Oberlin Trio have bookings for 75 concerts in 10 states from coast to coast this season, carefully fitted into weekends and their vacation schedule at the Oberlin College Conservatory of Music. They are spending most of their between-semester vacation in January concerting in California, Oregon, Washington, Arizona and Nevada, generally in public schools and on college and university campuses.

Pausing for an interview between concerts on Long Island and at New York's Lincoln Center Library auditorium, Eugene Carr, Calvin Wiersma, and Charles Floyd agreed that the most important aspect of their musical mission is "showing young people that there's nothing wrong about being a musician." The words were those of Carr, a 22-year-old cellist from Rockville Centre, N. Y., who manages the trio.

"When you are in elementary school and junior high school, peer pressure not to play an instrument is very strong," Carr explained. "After all, it's not football, is it? It isn't the normal thing to do, is it? This happened to all three of us."

Floyd, a 22-year-old pianist from Chicago, added: "Parents of young musicians can be very supportive, saying 'continue, continue, continue,' but students need to see someone their own age or a little older who takes being a musician seriously to tell them it's okay."

Wiersma, 22, of Grand Rapids, Mich., who plays intramural football at Oberlin as well as the violin, pointed out that their performances for student audiences tend to be "more contemporary" than performances they give occasionally for adult community groups. The trio often includes a medley of Beatles' melodies, Scott Joplin's "Maple Leaf Rag," and some modern music brought back from China by Carr.

"That's about as far out as we've gone," Wiersma said. "Our repertoire is mainly Haydn, Brahms, Schubert, and Beethoven, usually single movements from chamber works, and short duo pieces for piano-violin and piano-cello or piano solos. We almost never stick to the printed program, preferring to remain flexible. Our message is, 'Rock's okay, but give the classics a chance.'"

The musicians first played together in the orchestra which accompanies the Oberlin Choir, a well-known touring group. They began giving pre-concert mini-recitals of chamber music and finally decided, "We didn't need the chorus," according to Carr.

In 1980, they formed the Music from Oberlin Trio and gave more than 30 performances in 16 Midwest and Eastern states in the first season. Carr, who had worked as an assistant manager of the Long Island Youth Orchestra for three summers, makes the bookings for their fee-less concerts. He solicits donations from the communities where they concertize to cover travel expenses and locates Oberlin alumni in these communities who will provide lodging.

Asked what the average donation for a concert might be, Floyd volunteered that "If the Guarneri Quartet is paid $3,500 for a concert, we'd be lucky to get about one-tenth that much."

Oberlin picks up such overhead expenses as office space, phone, typewriters, mailing and use of duplicating equipment. In return, the trio talks to its audiences about the attractions of Oberlin, one of the nation's outstanding medium-size liberal arts colleges whose music conservatory is second to none in the nation.

"We introduce ourselves and explain the music a little," said Wiersma. "We tell them that although as musicians we have given our lives to classic music, we do other things, too, and that at times the last thing we wanted to do was practice an instrument."

Carr and Wiersma will be graduated from Oberlin in June. Floyd, who graduated last year and returned on an internship, also will be ending his Oberlin experience then. All three plan to go to graduate school, possibly New York's Juilliard, in the fall, taking a leave of absence from their concertizing for a few months.

"We're hoping to get together again in the early winter," Floyd said. "We don't want to pass up the opportunities that have opened to us as the result of these past two seasons."

"What we are doing is out of the ordinary for a chamber ensemble," said Carr. "We'd like to get a corporate sponsor and tour parts of the world that are not well acquainted with chamber music. I went to Southeast Asia, China and Japan on two tours with the Long Island Youth Orchestra and I have this dream."

Hospitality House Returns To The Air

WASHINGTON — "Hospitality House" returns to WITN-TV after a brief absence of several weeks. TV Hostess-Producer Kay Currie announces she has a wide range of programming scheduled for the new season — ranging from the World's Fair in Knoxville, to adding zest and challenges to life, to cults and terrorism.

The program will air at its regular time from noon to 12:30 p.m. on Sundays. This year marks the 12th year that Kay Currie will host and produce the talk-variety program.

In previous years, the shows have featured locations and events in France, England, Germany and Switzerland; specials on heart, cancer, lung diseases and alcoholism; and historic places taped on location, such as Hope Plantation, Tryon Palace, and old Bath, along with an hour-long program on "The Lost Colony."

Personalities including Andy Griffith, Ginger Rogers, Jerome Hines, Art Linkletter, Norman Vincent Peale and Joyce Brothers have been seen on the program.

Sunday's "Hospitality House," the first appearance in the 1982 season, will be aired beginning at noon. Kay will be in the kitchen with Frank D'Aiello, culinary science teacher at Creswell Prison. He will prepare golden chicken with steamed rice. Other guests on the show will be Jeanne Perry, wrap technician of "Body Reflections" in Rocky Mount and a model working with her, Valerie King; and Fred Pierce from Pikeville, who will do impersonations through his dummy dolls, "Richard D. Waldorf II and Homer J. Bird."

The program is aired over WITN-TV, Channel 7, Washington.

MAKING MUSIC
HAWTHORNE, Calif. (AP) — Engineers routinely decide whether a metal or a plastic is best for a particular product — frequently on the basis of cost or ease of processing.

A product engineer at a toy company here selected one plastic for an unusual reason: its musical qualities.

He heard the metallic ring made by a piece of plastic falling on his desk. That set in motion his decision to re-design the music-making part of the company's Jack-in-the-Box, a toy produced by Mattel.

Each music-producing "comb" has 12 tones, enough to play several tunes.

RIVER ATTRACTION
MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Mud Island, off Memphis, will become an attraction devoted to telling the story of a river, the Mississippi.

The City of Memphis is turning Mud Island into a national tourist attraction — a $63-million, 50-acre education and entertainment center, which is scheduled to open in July.

Among Mud Island's features will be a five-block-long River Walk beside a flowing scale model of the Mississippi, exhibits devoted to the river's folklore, geography, biology, hydrology and culture, and river boat rides.

CRT Tour Production

RALEIGH — Carolina Regional Theater is opening its newest touring production, Neil Simon's "The Good Doctor," this week.

The tour begins Thursday with a performance at 8 p.m. at Gerrard Hall on the University of North Carolina campus, Chapel Hill.

Following this initial performance, Carolina Regional Theater will tour the play in some 20 communities throughout North Carolina until late March.

Tickets to the Chapel Hill production are $5; $4 for students and senior citizens. Tickets will be available at the door, however, reservations are recommended and can be made by calling 933-5300.

Cast members for the play are William Shawn Smith of Greensboro in the role of the writer-narrator; Alice Mooney of Salisbury; Nicholas Searcy of Sylvia; John E. Goodnow of North Wilkesboro, and Dolly Hall. The touring production is directed by Norman E. Ussery. Kenneth Craig has designed the lighting, and Frank Holyfield created the sets.

The Carolina Regional Theater's touring productions are subsidized by the Theater Arts Section of the N.C. Department of Cultural Resources, the National Endowment for the Arts, Burlington Industries Foundation and the Z. Smith Reynolds Foundation.

Those interested in details on future performances or for scheduling the production may write to: CRT, P.O. Drawer 1169, Chapel Hill, N.C., 27514, or telephone the office at 933-5300.

Hollywood Notes

Burstyn play
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Award-winning actress Ellen Burstyn will star in William Gibson's new play, "Monday After The Miracle," scheduled for Broadway in late March.

The drama is a continuation of the story of the relationship between Helen Keller and her teacher, Annie Sullivan, some 20 years after the events depicted in playwright Gibson's "The Miracle Worker."

Miss Burstyn, who won the Oscar in 1975 for "Alice Doesn't Live Here Anymore" and the Tony for "Same Time Next Year," will play Annie while Karen Allen will co-star in the role of Helen Keller.

Stars' reunion
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — "Night Shift," a new movie, marks the reunion of Henry Winkler and Ron Howard, who first got together a decade ago to co-star in the TV series "Happy Days."

Winkler stars in "Night Shift," along with Michael Keaton and Shelly Long, with Howard directing for the Ladd Company at Warner Bros.

The movie is Howard's first feature film directorial stint. He previously directed three television movies including "The Magic Pyramid." Winkler has starred in two previous features, "Heroes" and "The One And Only."

Film decline
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The Hollywood Reporter, a movieland trade paper, announced that 11 percent fewer films earned $10 million or more during 1981 than in 1980. All the same, some films managed to set box-office turnstiles spinning.

"Raiders of the Lost Ark" was 1981's champion with $90.4 million raked in at the box office, followed by "Superman II" which earned $65 million.

Other top box office films of 1981 were "9 to 5," $60 million; "Stripes" and "Any Which Way You Can," $40 million each; "Cannonball Run," $37 million; "Arthur," $34 million; "Four Seasons," $26.8 million; "Four Your Eyes Only," $25.4 million; "The Fox And The Hound," $18 million and "Cheech & Chong's Night Dreams" $17.5 million.

TV record
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The three major television networks set a record for cancelled prime-time series during 1981 as 44 shows crashed and burned.

NBC led the way with 17 failures while CBS had 15 and ABC 12. In 1980 there were 38 cancelled prime-timers.

Among the fallen shows were 24 dramatic series and 12 sitcoms. TV series based on successful movies fared poorly, too, with the axing of "Walking Tall," "Freebie & The Bean," "Foul Play" and "Breaking Away."

Pregnant delay
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Columbia Pictures and Rastar have pushed back production of "Deep Ellum" with the announcement that the film's star, Cissy Spacek, is pregnant.

A spokesman for Rastar said "Ellum," which relates to the name of a Texas street, will now go into production late next summer with Jack Fisk directing from William Wittliff's script.

Spacek, Fisk and Wittliff last collaborated in Universal's "Raggy Man."

Exhibit Opens In Salisbury

SALISBURY — The fifth annual North Carolina Artists Invitational opens Sunday at the Rowan Art Guild Gallery, 310 W. Kerr St., Salisbury.

The opening reception begins at 2 p.m. with a half-hour concert by Franklin DeGroot, guitarist and lutenist, to be followed from 2:30 to 5 p.m. by a reception to be held in the gallery. Both are open to the public and there is no admission charge.

Artists invited to exhibit in this year's show are: David Loren Bass and Ben Berns, both of Greensboro; Richard Fennell of Whitsett; Boyce Kendrick, Charlotte; Mel Kester, Concord; Sallie Middleton, Asheville; Philip Moose, Blowing Rock; Ed Rihacek of High Point; Della Roberts, Winston-Salem; and Bob Timberlake, Lexington.

Winter's A Good Time As Any For Taking Photographs

AIRBORNE ROBOT ... is actually a lifting mechanism used by loggers.

Easier access to areas that were weed-ridden in summer, and the absence of mosquitoes and ticks are some of the blessings of winter photography

WOVEN RUBBER ... Discarded tires form a weave-like pattern.

A friend of mine, an excellent photographer, surprised me recently by saying he put his camera away every year along with his swim trunks and tennis shoes.

It's true there are few, if any, lovely sun-tanned lassies in shorts to be seen around town, no green trees and bright flowers to photograph in the gray months of winter, but there's more than enough interesting subjects to photograph any time of the year to justify taking a camera along — even on the coldest of winter days.

In winter months, trees are especially fascinating to photograph. Bare of leaves, the intricacy of the structure of branches reveal a tremendous variation in limb patterns in the many different species in our area.

Landscapes in winter, sharpened by crisp winter sun or suffused by somber light qualities on cloudy days, can be a real challenge in attempts to capture winter moods. When there's mist or snow, picture possibilities are exciting, whether you're photographing in color or in black and white.

Winter is also the ideal time to make close-ups of natural or man-made objects. During the colder months, access to places that were weed grown in summer is much simpler, and the absence of annoying mosquitos or ticks is a welcome situation.

If, like my friend, you're one who puts his camera on the shelf until beach weather rolls around again, reconsider. Taking photographs on cold days can be just as rewarding as summertime photo jaunts.

DARK AND LIGHT ... A single dark seed cluster bends over light, silky textured grass.

GOREN BRIDGE

BY CHARLES H. GOREN AND OMAR SHARIF
1982 Tribune Company Syndicate, Inc.

DEAR MR. GOREN

Q.—We have a player in our game who persistently false cards. When it works, he rubs it in. What is your opinion of the tactical value of consistently false-carding?—R. Daniels, New Rochelle, N.Y.

(This question has been awarded the weekly prize.)
A.—Partnership defense at bridge is a difficult task. If your partner pulls cards from his hand at random, it makes the job even harder. You can never get a true count of the hand; you never know whether partner or declarer has the missing high cards; you are seldom sure when to win a trick or when to duck.

There is an even bigger drawback to persistent false-carding. While it keeps partner in the dark, it actually helps declarer. He knows what he is missing, and if he is aware of the falsecarder's proclivities, he can often place the cards accurately while the other defender is still in the dark.

However, that does not mean that I am completely against false-carding. There are times when a falsecard is obligatory because it may be the only way to give declarer an option to go wrong. Usually, it is made in those cases where partner can't misread the situation but where declarer might.

If I had to choose between a partner who never falsecards and one who always does, I would choose the former. There are many, many more situations where a falsecard can hurt the defense than where it might gain, so I'll go with the odds.

Q.—What is your best percentage play for two tricks from the following holding?
Dummy
AKQ9
Declarer xx

There is no shortage of entries to either hand.—R. Robinson, Detroit, Mich.
A.—There are only two lines of play: one is to cash the three top cards in the suit. That will succeed whenever either opponent holds J-10-x in the suit.

The other line is to lead low from the closed hand toward dummy, the next hand produces an honor, win in dummy, return to the closed hand and lead low again, intending to finesse the nine in the second round. That will yield four tricks whenever the hand on your left has both the jack and ten of the suit.

Since the chances of the player on your left holding both missing honors is greater than either defender holding specifically J-10-x, the latter line is your best bet.

Send any questions for this column to: Charles Goren and Omar Sharif, care of this newspaper. Each week a prize of a copy of the new "Goren's Bridge Complete," a $9.95 value, will be awarded for the question judged the best received.

Charles Goren and Omar Sharif personally cannot undertake to answer all questions submitted.

GENTLY, PLEASE

PARIS (AP)—The 248-mile route from Paris south to Lyon can be traversed by a train that operates at a cruising speed of 156 miles per hour.

The high-speed rail line was designed with gentle curves so that the train would "avoid plastering passengers against the walls," as one engineering journal described it recently after the inauguration.

SAFETY PROGRAM

Dr. Jack E. Brinn and Don Walter recently presented a program encouraging motorcycle safety to students at North Pitt High School.

Brinn and Walter brought their motorcycles into the school's media center as part of their presentation. Brinn stressed the need for proper clothing, equipment and a respectful attitude when riding a motorcycle.

Four ECU Students Earn Scholarships

ECU News Bureau
Four East Carolina University students have been chosen on the basis of academic achievement and other factors to receive the first N.C. Sheriff's Association Undergraduate Criminal Justice scholarships in the department of social work and correctional science.

Students chosen to share in the annual scholarship are:
Jay Yeager, 3105 Sherwood Drive, Greenville, a senior majoring in corrections specializing in law enforcement.

Michael Chet Jernigan, Route 3, Box 598, Dudley, a senior majoring in corrections with an area of specialization in law enforcement.

Laurie Ann Austen, 7000 Robbie Drive, Raleigh, a senior majoring in corrections with an area of specialization in law enforcement.

Phillip B. Gurley, 101 W. G St., Kannapolis, a senior majoring in corrections specializing in law enforcement.

Each student received a stipend of $375 presented by Dr. John R. Ball, chairman of the ECU department, and Sheriff Ralph Tyson of Pitt County, representing the N.C. Sheriff's Association.

When the scholarship was established it was specified that first preference be given the son or daughter of any law enforcement officer in North Carolina killed in the line of duty and second preference to children of any sheriff of deputy who is deceased, retired or currently active in North Carolina law enforcement. However, there were no applicants in this category, Ball said.

Yeager, has been involved with the Greenville Volunteer Juvenile Counselor (Big Brother) Program for which he received the governor's certificate of appreciation. He is a member of Alpha Phi Sigma, the national criminal justice honor society, and is on the national dean's list.

ELECTIONS

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You have excellent judgment today and can easily organize a plan to gain your most cherished aims. Study the philosophy of life you would like to follow in the future.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) A good time to study ways to become more successful in your line of endeavor. Take time for recreation later in the day.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Get in touch with wise persons and discuss mutual interests. Make constructive plans for the new week. Be logical.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Your intuitive perceptions are working accurately now, so follow them and you can solve many problems.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) A good day to talk over mutual affairs with family members. Don't neglect philosophical studies.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Show a sincere and loyal friend the depth of your appreciation. Take time to improve your health. Relax tonight.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Taking part in recreational activities now can help keep you in a better frame of mind. Make sure you spend your money wisely.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Concentrating on home affairs can make this a most productive day. Make plans to improve your surroundings. Relax tonight.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Attend the services that can help you think along more idealistic concepts. Later engage in favorite hobby with congenials.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Plan how to have more income in the future. Use good judgment where budgeting is concerned. Be more practical.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Concentrate on how to have more abundance in the future. Avoid persons who like to waste your valuable time.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Make concrete plans that could give you more security and happiness in the future. Show more devotion to loved one.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Be more active in social activities and get more out of life. Accept invitations instead of turning them down.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one who will quickly comprehend anything of a modern nature, so be sure to give as fine an education as you can afford for best results. Give religious and ethical training early in life and success is assured.

Yesterday's Cryptquip — MODEST BALLERINA PERFORMED WELL IN PREMIERE OF TWO NEW BALLETS.
Today's Cryptquip clue: Q equals U

The Cryptquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Life As It's Lived

By GAIL MICHAELS

Nothing seems to aggravate a father as much as the sight of a loose tooth wobbling with gay abandon in his youngster's mouth. Phillip and I haven't had much experience with this. Meg has tended to knock out her teeth before they ever have a chance to exit of their own accord. But she has a tooth now which is lying half prone on her bottom gum, and Phillip's fingers are itching to get at it.

Not that she will let him. Any time she perceives an adult hand wandering nonchalantly in the direction of her mouth, she clenches the remainder of her teeth in an excellent imitation of lock-jaw.

"Don't touch it!" she hisses through the two-year old gap created when she fell from the height of two chairs onto her bedroom floor. "I'm going to let it come out all by itself."

This statement doesn't really bother me. I'm far too concerned about the long-term prognosis for her teeth to worry much about what happens to them in the short run. I will admit that there is something unsightly about a tooth which just sort of hangs over the bottom lip. Then again, there's something unsightly about the hole it will leave when it goes. I'm tired of having to tell Meg to close her mouth for the camera. I'm longing for the day when she stops looking like a regular on Hee-Haw. And as the months pass without even a calcium deposit to mark them, I'm increasingly haunted by the possibility that the teeth which are disappearing now may never reappear.

Phillip doesn't see it that way. He just wants to get that tooth out of her mouth. I don't think he really knows why, but it's there tempting him like a hangnail or the crinkly edge of dead skin on a sunburned back.

His mission is complicated both by Meg's fear of the pain and by the high status conferred by her peers on a loose tooth. Once it's out, it's a conversation piece for only a day. But as long as it's in, it continues to provoke inspection and speculation.

I'm certain she was weighing all this in her mind as her father argued his case.

"It needs to come out. It's an eyesore."

Meg squared her shoulders. "I like it."

"But if you pull it out now, the Tooth Fairy will come this very night."

"I can wait."

"What if you wait too long, and the tooth falls out in your sleep and you swallow it?"

As Meg considered this, a shrewd gleam came to her eyes. "What do you think the Tooth Fairy will leave me if I let you pull it?"

Phillip looked doubtful. "Well, I don't know . . ."

As both the Tooth Fairy's accountant and a vigilant opponent of inflation, I did. "She'll probably leave the same thing she always leaves—a quarter."

"Well, then," Meg said, moving deftly away from Phillip's reach, "it's not worth it."

'Beauty' Rush On In Peking

PEKING (AP) — Curious comings and goings are reported at No. 65 Sookchow sidestreet. Young men and women tiptoe in with a bandage on one eye and tiptoe out smiling with a bandage on the other.

Sleek, chauffeur-driven cars deliver stealthy, bandaged passengers. On the door is an old bronze plaque: Dr. Fu Hong Yu.

Dr. Fu is the only private plastic surgeon in Peking who performs "eye jobs" — cosmetic surgery to create folded or "double" eyelids, considered a mark of wide-eyed beauty. He operates on one eye at a time so the patient can still bicycle home. The operation takes about an hour.

Most northern Chinese are born without double eyelids and Fu takes a few stitches to remove the epicanthal fold in the upper eyelid that is typical of Asians.

"The eyes are the windows of the soul and I am not afraid any more to admit I want to look more beautiful," says Jia Xiaogu, a bus conductor proudly batting her double eyelids. Her operation was so successful that she took two of her girlfriends to have their eyes widened.

"All my neighbors say my eyes look larger and I am prettier now," she says with a giggle. "And my boyfriend also approves."

Cosmetic surgery was once prohibited and condemned as bourgeois Western decadence. Today, however, the simple operations are increasingly popular and are part of a renaissance of vanity and self-expression in once dreary, uniform China.

In a recent 10-month period, Fu performed more than 150 double-eyelid operations, costing the equivalent of $18 each.

His clientele includes factory workers, actors, actresses, sons and daughters of high party, government and army officials, and some bureaucrats themselves.

Fu, 58, a graduate of Sichuan Medical College, lives and works in a single 6-by-14-foot room with his wife-assistant who wears a long, black traditional Chinese dress.

He works under new regulations that permit private medical practice and private enterprise, once banned as capitalist.

Fu paid about $1.20 for a 10-year license from the city health department. He earns the equivalent of $200 a month, tax free, a salary matched only by the highest Communist officials.

He shows his new patients an album of before-and-after pictures of satisfied patients, many good looking but born with the single eyelid and narrower eyes.

He also displays a glossy color photograph of actress Sophia Loren with large, seductive eyes.

"But I generally don't recommend those European-American eyelids for Oriental faces," Fu says. He recommends a simple double eyelid which enlarges the eye with a few stitches.

A few patients, especially party and government cadres, also want the esthetically pleasing double eyelids. But they want their eyes narrowed to appear more mysterious or inconspicuous.

49ers & Bengals Will Dig And Claw

Neither the San Francisco 49ers nor the Cincinnati Bengals have ever been to the Super Bowl — except maybe in the stands or in their dreams — but these two Cinderella teams, who finished miserably last season, will meet in Super Bowl XVI, airing Sunday, Jan. 24 (4 p.m. to conclusion) on CBS-TV. What a difference a year makes.

Last year, San Francisco finished with a 6-10 record, a slight improvement over their 1979-1980 record of 2-14. Even so, the team was never considered much of a threat. After all, they were young and inexperienced, and it would take years for Coach Bill Walsh to whip them into shape. Famous last words.

At the start of this season, Walsh waved a magic wand over the 49ers, and they responded, pounding out a 13-3 record (the best in the NFL), garnering their first playoff berth in nearly 10 years, and earning Walsh the honor of being selected the NFC Coach of the Year.

San Francisco is now synonymous with more than the Golden Gate Bridge and Rice-A-Roni; San Francisco is also a football team, and for the 60,000 fans in Candlestick Park who watched them slip past the Dallas Cowboys for the NFC championship title, the 49ers are being welcomed with open arms.

San Francisco's opponent for the big event will be the Cincinnati Bengals, who overcame a weak 6-10 record last year (the worst in the AFC Central) to solidify for a 12-4 regular season record this year (which won the AFC Central).

The Bengals earned their Super Bowl berth by pulling the plug on the feckless San Diego Chargers in the conference championship game. It was the first time this season that the Chargers had been held to less than 17 points in a game. The Bengals accomplished this 27-7 thrashing despite absurdly cold temperatures — 11 degrees below zero with a wind-chill factor of almost minus 60.

Not even the devastating weather could keep the over 6,000 fans from Riverfront Stadium to watch quarterback Ken Anderson, the NFL's passing champion, Most Valuable Player and Offensive Player of the Year, complete 14 of 22 passes for 161 yards and two touchdowns. With Anderson working the air and 60-pound fullback Pete Johnson mauling through the line for 80 on the ground.

NBC NEWS examines Franklin Delano Roosevelt and his New Deal in "Nothing to Fear — the legacy of FDR," airing on Sunday, Jan. 24 (10-11 p.m.). Pictured is a young Roosevelt and his wife, Eleanor.

"Nothing to Fear — the Legacy of FDR," presents a reflective analysis of Franklin Delano Roosevelt and his impact on this nation. The NBC News special will be broadcast on Sunday, Jan. 24 (10-11 p.m.).

The broadcast, which commemorates the 100th birthday of Roosevelt, explores his legacy by combining present-day interviews with extensive historical material. It will examine the Roosevelt years during the Great Depression and the radical change in the role of the Federal government under his leadership and his program, known as the New Deal. The program will also show what life in America was like before his election, and how his presidency affected the lives of the people of this country.

The documentary will present film footage of the late President in his private and political lives, as well as interviews with a wide range of people — from farmers, labor leaders, artists, to well-known politicians and legislators who helped shape the New Deal. There will also be a unique blend of historical and contemporary film — revisiting locations with eye-witnesses telling the story of this remarkable period.

"This program on Roosevelt will be far more than nostalgic," said NBC correspondent John Hart. "It will remind us of who we were, who we became, and define the characteristics of the nation and the leader who responded to change in a humane, courageous and peculiarly American way."

The broadcast will show how Roosevelt, with the country immersed in the Great Depression, embarked on the New Deal, which would affect the lives of all Americans. It will also examine the impact of World War II on New Deal programs, especially how it changed the roles of women and blacks in American society.

Many Roosevelt innovations not only remain in effect today, but some have far exceeded their original intentions — such as the growth of the Federal bureaucracy and Federal regulation. The Roosevelt legacy includes Social Security, collective bargaining, unemployment compensation and control of financial institutions.

THE Rook Look AT GARMENT CARE

Make Clothes-Buying Cheaper

In these years of high inflation, you wonder what value you're getting for your money. It would help to know, as you pay rising prices for clothes, how long a garment can be expected to last.

The International Fabricare Institute, a worldwide association of drycleaners and laundriers, has published with the Better Business Bureau a list of textile life expectancies. These standards take into account changes in fashion, fabric characteristics and normal amount of wear and tear.

5 Years: formal wear, leather coats, tablecloths
 4 Years: jackets, sport coats, wool slacks
 3 Years: sweaters, robes, raincoats, sport shirts, dresses
 2 Years: cotton or synthetic suits, dress shirts, children's wear

Older garments are still useful, but the fabrics are not as sturdy or the colors sharp, and they will soil more easily.

Taking good care of your clothes will add years to their service. Regular cleaning will prevent a build-up of soil, which weakens fabrics. Drycleaning is gentler on fabric finishes and colors than washing. Steam pressing helps fabrics retain their luster and feel. Stop in at A CLEANER WORLD GARMENT CARE CENTER and make buying clothes a little cheaper!

Rich Fantasy Life

Lisa Brown, the young actress who plays colorful Nola Reardon on "Guiding Light," has been having a ball on the series lately, playing out a very unusual story line. "It's sort of a cross between 'I Love Lucy' and 'Dark Shadows,'" says the popular actress of the story of Nola's new life with mysterious bachelor Quint McCord (played by Michael Tylo) in his gloomy mansion (complete with secret passages and howling dogs). In addition, Nola has begun having movie-oriented fantasies — versions of "Rebecca," "Jane Eyre," "Dracula" and "Now Voyager" starring Nola and Quint have already aired, with more planned for the near future. Miss Brown is particularly looking forward to one upcoming fantasy of Nola's: "We're going to do a real Busby Berkeley-style musical number soon. And I can't wait," says Miss Brown, who has sung and danced on Broadway.

Actors Sign

Two of the industry's most serious and respected actors, Hector Elizondo and Harry Dean Stanton, have been signed for offbeat roles in ABC's movie — "Young Doctors in Love." Hector will star as the surly son of a crime syndicate chieftain and Harry as the hospital's alcoholic pathology director.

Michele Will Tell

DEAR FANS,

To all of you who have written to us concerning the death of Mrs. Dorothy Jo Barker, our sources tell us that she passed away in October from cancer. The popular host of "The Price Is Right," Bob Barker, met Dorothy in high school. They remained sweethearts through college and married in January of 1945. There are no children.

Q: Why can't I pick up "The John Davidson Show" in my area? I enjoy it very much. N. SMITH, FAYETTEVILLE, N.C.

A: "The John Davidson Show," is a syndicated show, and as far as we can ascertain it is not shown in your viewing area.

Q: My mother and I have an argument going. I say that in "The Jeffersons" theme song it says "we're movin' on up, to the top," and she insists it says "to the east side." Who's correct? MIKE JONES, FAYETTEVILLE, N.C.

A: "Well we're movin' on up, to the east side, to a deluxe apartment in the sky — well we're movin' on up to the east side, we've finally got a piece of the pie," etc. Hope this settles the argument.

Q: What was the name of the series in which Lloyd Bridges played a police officer, and his girlfriend was Pat Crowley? Also, are Pat Crowley and Stefanie Powers related? REBECCA CAIN, STEDMAN, N.C.

A: The 1975 NBC-TV series starring Lloyd Bridges in the role of a police officer was "Joe Forrester." Patricia Crowley starred as his love interest, Georgia Cameron. No, Miss Crowley and Stefanie Powers are not related.

Q: In the 1920 era I saw a picture with Barbara Stanwyck called "Night Nurse." Can you tell me when this picture was made and if it was her first picture? ROWLAND L. PIERCE, WILSON, N.C.

A: "Night Nurse," starring the legendary Miss Barbara Stanwyck was released in 1931. It was 'not' her first motion picture. Barbara began her film career in New York, appearing opposite Rod La Rouge in "The Locked Door," 1929. She then took off for Hollywood for a role in "Ladies of Leisure," (1930), directed by Frank Capra. This picture made her a star.

Q: Could you tell me the name of the town that is shown at the beginning of the show "Carter Country"? It looks very familiar. DEE BRYD, HALIFAX, N.C.

A: The town may look familiar, but that's the magic that is known as 'Hollywood.' "Carter Country" was taped in Hollywood before an audience.

- Scores As Actor
- After college, actor David Canary, of "Another World," passed up a chance others dream about — to play pro football. The Denver Broncos drafted the sturdy six-footer after he won Pop Warner All-American honors at the University of Cincinnati, where he studied music.
- But Canary, known to daytime fans as Stephen Frame, was "sick" of the gridiron after 10 years of football in junior high, high school and college. Instead, the Elwood, Ind., native "raced" to New York to pursue an acting career. He's been a hit ever since.

The Life And Times Of FDR

President Reagan, former Presidents Carter, Ford and Nixon, and three experts on the life and legacy of Franklin Delano Roosevelt will be contributors to "FDR," a retrospective documentary on Roosevelt's career, airing on Friday, Jan. 29 (8-11 p.m.) on ABC.

the structure of American society and the values of American life. Before Roosevelt, there was no Social Security, no unemployment insurance, no farm price supports, no labor relations act, no minimum wage. Today each of these programs is undergoing a reexamination to determine if government has gone too far."

The four Presidents will discuss the impact Roosevelt had on the scope of the American Presidency and the conduct of U.S. foreign and domestic policy. The consultants for the report are Arthur M. Schlesinger Jr., Pulitzer Prize-winning historian and noted Roosevelt scholar; political scientist James MacGregor Burns and diplomatic historian Robert Dalleck.

The program will combine historical film footage of the Roosevelt era with interviews of former Roosevelt associates and of current political and governmental leaders here and abroad. Boone Arledge, President of ABC News, said the intent of "FDR" is to examine how Roosevelt changed the course of history, the role of government and the nature of the Presidency.

"Franklin Roosevelt began a political and social revolution in the United States," Arledge said. "And no one better understands what that revolution meant to Roosevelt's times and ours than Arthur Schlesinger."

ABC NEWS commemorates the 100th anniversary of the birth of Franklin Delano Roosevelt, in "FDR," airing Friday, Jan. 29 (8-11 p.m.). Roosevelt is pictured with two of his sons, Franklin Jr. (left), who is interviewed for the ABC documentary, and John.

ABC News Correspondents Peter Jennings, Robert Trout and James Wooten. Richard Threlkeld, who joins ABC News in January, will also contribute. Arthur M. Schlesinger, Jr., Pulitzer Prize-winning historian and noted Roosevelt scholar, will act as principal consultant for this retrospective on FDR. Also acting as consultants to ABC News for the broadcast are political scientist and Pulitzer Prize-winning historian James MacGregor Burns and diplomatic historian Robert Dalleck. The program will combine historical film footage of the Roosevelt era with interviews of former Roosevelt associates and of current political and governmental leaders here and abroad. (3 hrs)

The Life And Times Of FDR

President Reagan, former Presidents Carter, Ford and Nixon, and three experts on the life and legacy of Franklin Delano Roosevelt will be contributors to "FDR," a retrospective documentary on Roosevelt's career, airing on Friday, Jan. 29 (8-11 p.m.) on ABC.

the structure of American society and the values of American life. Before Roosevelt, there was no Social Security, no unemployment insurance, no farm price supports, no labor relations act, no minimum wage. Today each of these programs is undergoing a reexamination to determine if government has gone too far."

The four Presidents will discuss the impact Roosevelt had on the scope of the American Presidency and the conduct of U.S. foreign and domestic policy. The consultants for the report are Arthur M. Schlesinger Jr., Pulitzer Prize-winning historian and noted Roosevelt scholar; political scientist James MacGregor Burns and diplomatic historian Robert Dalleck.

The program will combine historical film footage of the Roosevelt era with interviews of former Roosevelt associates and of current political and governmental leaders here and abroad. ### Comes Naturally

It's been four years since actress Jane Badler, of "The Doctors," has belted out a song for an audience, but now she's getting her musical act back together. The New York City native, who plays Natalie Bell, had weekend singing gigs during college, but later opted for acting. A versatile singer, Jane calls her upcoming act "funky soul." Meanwhile, she's also rehearsing for an Off-Off-Broadway play, "Fashion."

"I've been singing since I could walk, so I do it naturally, like brushing my teeth. But acting takes work."

Foster Joins Daly

Meg Foster has been signed to join Tyne Daly to star in the one-hour CBS series, "Cagney & Lacy." Meg replaces Loretta Swit — who was unable to star in the series because of her "M*A*S*H," commitment.

Cooper Leads Offense

By beating the Dallas Cowboys for the NFC title, the San Francisco 49ers proved that their 13-3 record this year was no fluke. For doubters who expected the 49ers to fold as the season progressed — after all, their record for the three previous years was 10-38 — believe it; San Francisco has arrived and things are looking up in the Bay Area like never before. The 49ers will try to add a perfect ending to their near-perfect season when they clash with the Cincinnati Bengals in Super Bowl XVI. The game will be aired on CBS, Sunday, Jan. 24 (4 p.m. to conclusion). San Francisco beat Cincinnati 21-3 earlier this season, but that was nearly two months ago and under less stressful conditions. Super Bowl XVI is up for grabs. Quarterback Joe Montana will be at the helm of the 49er offense, and he will be relying on fullback Earl Cooper to get the attack in gear. Cooper had a solid post-season game against the Cowboys two weeks ago when he ground out 35 yards rushing, 11 more in the air and threw in numerable key blocks.

HOLLYWOOD — And they said it wouldn't last: MARTIN SHEEN and his lovely wife, JANET celebrated their 20th wedding anniversary in Jupiter, Fla., where MARTIN is rehearsing "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest" at the BURT REYNOLDS THEATRE. The SHEENS repeated their marriage vows at Jude's Catholic Church as part of the celebration.

No one can say JOHN RITTER wasn't color coordinated for the holidays — while dancing with JOYCE DeWITT at the Christmas party that he, JOYCE and PRISCILLA BARNES arranged for the cast and crew of their "Three's Company" series — he split his pants while reviving "the dip." JOHN was wearing a holly green silk shirt, and his underpants turned out to be Santa Claus red.

A grieving ROBERT WAGNER couldn't have had a nicer Christmas present than the amicable gesture by producer RICHARD GREGSON, the late NATALIE'S ex-husband. And anticipated court battle for WAGNER to keep 11-year-old stepdaughter NATASHA as his ward was averted when GREGSON decided it is in the best interest of his daughter NATASHA to stay with WAGNER and his 7-year-old daughter, COURTNEY. The half sisters are very close.

Word has been received that BARBARA MANDRELL will not be back with her NBC variety series next season. She has informed NBC that she will finish her series this season, but will not be back because she finds "the work too hard and confining," she intends to spend more time on her singing career. This is a particularly hard blow for NBC as the MANDRELL show is one of the few hits currently on the network.

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN will have her first book in 19 years published in the fall of '82. Titled "The Best of Dear Abby," it will include "not fit to print" chapters that, before this enlightened age, she didn't dare print.

Struck by star's chivalry.

FOR DON GREGORY, Broadway producer

Do you find big-name stars hard to work with? —J.G., Salisbury, Md.

● When it comes to stars, the bigger they are, the humbler they are. At the start of the Camelot tour, Richard Burton was a little rusty and not so good. Two nights after the Canadian opening, I asked him, "Are you getting all you need?" figuring it was a classy way to see what was wrong. "I know you're nervous about my performance," he replied, "but it took me three weeks to get into Hamlet and also Equus. It will be the same with this — I'll get better." I was amazed. Here I was, this star-struck kid from the Bronx listening to one of the world's great actors apologize to me. Incredible — didn't he know there was no production without him?

FOR DICK BUTTON, Olympic skating champion

In what way has skating changed in the last three decades? —H.S., Huntington, W.Va.

● There has been a decline in emphasis on the blurring of spins — spinning as fast and as rapidly as possible so that the body appears blurred. Although certain skaters have done wonderful spins, nobody has been able to spin faster than Ronnie Robertson in the 1950's.

FOR HILDEGARDE, supper-club performer

What do you remember of your debut? How have audiences changed since then? —F.O., Wellsboro, Pa.

● My 1933 debut was a flop. The manager suggested I get a different dress, so I did, a white satin one — for $27. It was elegant, and instead of getting fired, my one-week engagement was extended to four. Club audiences aren't what they used to be. They want everything to end before it starts.

FOR ANTHONY ANDREWS, star of PBS TV's Brideshead Revisited

Your series brings to mind the famous British class system. Does it still exist? —V.N., Columbia, Mo.

● The class system has no real influence in England now: Everyone works, socializes and complains alongside everyone else. It appears, however, that the so-called "working class" is trying to keep the class system alive in order that the unions may survive.

FROM THE "ASK" EDITOR

Rudolph Nureyev never trusts his baggage to bellhops or porters. He always does his own toting. . . . A set of ruby-studded buttons, which once belonged to the late Clark Gable, were auctioned in Geneva and changed hands for $25,000. . . . James Stewart received a $500,000 advance for his autobiography, and ex-fugitive Patty Hearst, around a third of the actor's age, got a $600,000 advance for hers. So there's a $100,000 bonus for getting kidnapped by terrorists. . . . Robert Mitchum, known for his disdain of actors and movies, says what he seeks in a good script is "days off." . . . Comedian Morty Gunty recently did a show at Caesars Palace, Las Vegas, for an audience that was half Japanese. His fears about communication dissolved when an interpreter joined him on stage. American and Japanese guffaws came at the same time, and Morty was delighted he was coming across so well and managing to bridge the language gap. He later thanked the interpreter for his wonderful help, and was surprised when those thanks brought a look of acute embarrassment. "Mr. Gunty," said the interpreter with a bright red face, "I must tell the truth. I didn't understand your jokes. But Japanese people are very polite. So when I told them 'joke over, LAUGH,' they did as they were told." . . . Because he used to model for knitting patterns in England, Roger Moore is known there by the rather unflattering title of "The Great Knit" . . . "It's always nice to adapt the work of someone you admire," remarks Neil Simon, who wrote the movie Only When I Laugh from his own play The Gingerbread Lady. . . . Top model Jeffrey Aquilon has taken grooming matters into his own hands. "I don't use a comb," he confesses. "I prefer to arrange my hair with my fingers." . . . Robert De Niro's marriage to actress Diahne Abbott was in serious trouble (they were unofficially split) until the couple started working together on King of Comedy, a movie now in production. . . . Carpentry, it seems, has a new cachet. First Viscount Linley (Princess Margaret's son) took an interest in the craft. Now, Michael Sellers, son of the late Peter Sellers, has taken it up and is busy-redecorating former stepmom Britt Ekland's home.

PRO AND CON

Does the Low Voter Turnout Typical of Elections Today Mean Democracy Is in Danger?

Send questions of national significance, on a postcard, to "Pro & Con," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $10 for those published.

PRO Curtis Gans, columnist, director, Committee for the Study of the American Electorate

Democracy depends for its health on the consent of the governed and for its vitality on their active involvement. When nearly 100 million voting-age Americans fail to vote, American democracy is in trouble. The fewer voters there are, the more likely it is that highly motivated voters espousing narrow special interests will dominate our politics, and our democracy will become government of the few, by the few and for the few.

CON Richard M. Scammon, director, Elections Research Center

It's true Presidential voter turnout is lower than a decade ago, but not by much. Voter turnout is like a roller coaster — sometimes up, sometimes down — but it's a mistake to assume that low turnout equals bad government and high turnout equals good government.

More than 99 percent of the Soviets vote and they have the greatest tyranny in the modern world. The democracy with the lowest turnout is Switzerland and the Swiss may have today's best-governed society.

Multi-Millionaire Ted Bartmann Reveals the Secret of His Success

You and I don't know each other. But I'd like to share something with you that has changed my life. Totally. And I believe it could change yours, too.

First, let's set the record straight. I'm not an advertising writer. I'm a 35 year old business man living in Dubuque, Iowa. And, I'm not a genius. In fact, I'm a 9th grade dropout.

But I am a self-made multimillionaire. And, surprisingly, I've made most of it during the current "hard times."

Another thing. What I'm going to show you isn't some kind of "get-rich-quick" scheme. I didn't make my money by putting ads in magazines or giving people financial advice. No way.

I can just about read your mind right now . . . "Okay, if he's so well heeled why should he share his secrets with me?"

My response is, "Why not?" First of all, I've already made enough money to retire for the rest of my life.

Secondly, my method is so unique and "local" in nature that I won't be competing with you . . . nor you with me.

Thirdly, I'm growing weary of reading advertisements telling me "how to get rich" written by people who . . .

- a. never really earned a million dollars themselves, or . . .
- b. had a lot of money in the first place.

So, what would you do if you were in my shoes? Chances are, you'd probably do just what I'm doing. Wait until you had complete financial security—then share your method with others. That's why I've printed this message here and in other magazines.

To demonstrate how my method works, I'm going to give you some very embarrassing facts about my background. It's important that you have them.

When I was eight years old my father became ill and could not work. We were living in Dubuque on government surplus food. By the time I entered 9th grade I was going to school during the day and working nights. One afternoon I fell asleep during class. The teacher demanded that I copy the Declaration of Independence 100 times. I felt the punishment unfair so I refused. I was expelled from school in the ninth grade.

I found work as an apprentice in a local furniture factory at $1.86 per hour. Within the next few years I was married, divorced, depressed, and flat broke. That was the fall of 1973. But during the next 18 months—with the help of my brother, Bill, and another friend—my life was changed. Utterly.

Today—eight years later—I have total assets in excess of six million dollars. And a personal net worth of over two million dollars.

I have the usual trappings—a beautiful estate, cars, property . . . and time. Lots of time. I love to go to my office on Monday, wrap things up by Monday evening and then hop the commuter flight to O'Hare on Tuesday morning. From there I sometimes fly to the Bahamas or Acapulco or any one of a dozen places for the rest of the week.

My method is perfectly legal and moral. It's not complicated.

But most importantly, it actually works. It's brought me as much as $100,000.00 in one day. My bank or accountant will verify this.

My unique method has even amazed the press. The Muskogee Sunday Phoenix and Times-Democrat said, "It's crazy that a high school dropout would make this much money!"

The Des Moines Sunday Register said, "His story is remarkable...he's worth two million in cash and his income approaches $200,000.00 annually."

Consider these facts:

- You don't have to work long hours to succeed. I rarely spend over 15 hours a week at my office.
- You don't need "money" to begin. Remember, I started when I was dead broke.
- My method doesn't require "good times." I made the bulk of my income during the current shaky economic conditions.
- It doesn't require living in a large city such as New York or Chicago. I still live in Dubuque, Iowa.
- You don't need a formal education or special training. I left school in the 9th grade. And I never went back.
- You don't need to be old or experienced. I started when I was 27.

Perhaps you think your current debts or low salary will hold you back. Not at all. I can show you how to overcome that problem, too.

What I'll send you isn't textbook theory. I'm going to send you a step-by-step plan. Facts and methods you can use. I'll show you precisely how to begin. I guarantee it.

Here are some actual notarized statements from some of the friends and neighbors that I've already helped. Please remember, these are sworn affidavits in my attorney's office . . . not theory, but fact.

"... I've used Ted's methods. And I increased my net worth by $45,000 in four months."

Ralph Rolling, Manchester, Iowa

"Ted netted $100,000.00 for him and me in just one day."

Gene Sullivan, Muskogee, Oklahoma

"With Ted's advice we purchased $200,000 in real estate in three years without using one dime of my own money. Also, thanks to Ted I've been able to avoid (legally) paying any income tax for the last three years."

Rick Glanz, Dubuque, Iowa

To prove that I'm right, I'm not even asking you to send me money. Instead, postdate a check 45 days in advance—a full month and a half. Obviously, it's not money because it's not negotiable. You can easily stop payment on it any time in the next month and a half. But it is a token of your sincerity. An act of faith, not in me—but in yourself . . . and in your future.

I'll send you all of my starting materials immediately. Keep them for 30 days. If you decide to return my materials, I'll send you back your check . . . your original uncashed check. And I'll send it within three working days . . . no conditions . . . no delays . . . no hassles. I guarantee it. My bank and business references are listed on this page.

- Here's just a sample of what you'll learn.
- How to eliminate completely your Federal and State income tax liability.
- How to purchase income producing properties with absolutely NO DOWN PAYMENT.
- How to buy duplexes and triplexes without any cash—not a cent.
- How to buy properties and have the previous owner pay you for them.
- How to find properties you can purchase—again with no cash—for only one-third their normal market value.
- And much more.

Again I promise and guarantee not to deposit your check for 45 days. This gives you plenty of time to examine my program AT NO RISK TO YOU.

To order, simply send your name, address and postdated check for ten dollars to me, Ted Bartmann, at the printing/publishing house handling my materials: Green Tree Press, Inc., 10577 Temple Road, Dept. 349 Dunkirk, New York 14048.

FIGHTING TERRORISM IN AMERICA

Raenne Rubenstein

The 60's are long past, but angry bombers and silent stalkers are still murderously among us.

By Ernest Volkman

In October of last year, two guards aboard an armored truck pulled up to a bank stop in Nyack, N.Y., and began to load $1.6 million. Suddenly, three armed men in ski masks appeared, and, without warning, gunned down the guards, killing one of them. Down the road, the robbers, with all six bags of money, picked up two vehicles and several accomplices. While stopped at a police roadblock, they gunned down two police officers.

When it all finally ended, authorities discovered that this was no ordinary armored-car holdup — the robbers were, in fact, revolutionaries from the Weather Underground and the Black Liberation Army, two radical groups formed during the turbulent 1960's. For the past several years, they appeared to be virtually dormant, but as police and F.B.I. agents began following up leads, they discovered that the dormancy was illusory.

Uncovered in the investigation thus far have been a network of hide-outs, caches of weapons and explosives and, most ominously, diagrams of several New York City police stations. Authorities now believe that both groups probably were involved in two other armored-car holdups in which guards were killed, plus the cold-blooded killing of a policeman last year.

If that terrorist incident wasn't enough for the F.B.I., in December the U.S. Government received reports that hit teams had been dispatched by Libyan leader Muammar Qaddafi to assassinate President Ronald Reagan and other top officials.

All of which raises some important questions: Does the sudden resurgence of two notorious revolutionary groups mean that a new wave of terrorism is about to break out in this country? Is more and more international terrorism spreading to our shores?

There is some disagreement on the answers. F.B.I. officials, for example, say that it is unclear whether any such resurgence is about to take place, but add that the bloody events in Nyack represent, probably, the "last gasp" of the revolutionary movement in this country. Other experts, however, disagree. Edward Miller, former chief of the F.B.I. counterintelligence division (which has direct responsibility for keeping tabs on radical and terrorist groups in this country) says, "The important fact to keep in mind is this: Ask yourself why these people [the Weather Underground and the Black Liberation Army] would rob an armored truck. What did they want $1 million for? These are not the kind of people who buy yachts." This opinion is also held by Larry Gratwohl, an F.B.I. undercover operative who infiltrated several radical American groups for the Bureau some years ago.

Only time will tell whether the events in Nyack are in fact the "last gasp," but one fact is clear: Even without these two groups, there is more than enough terrorism in this country to be concerned about.

Today, terrorism is an international fact of life. According to U.S. State Department figures, from 1968 to the present, there have been nearly 7,500 international terrorist incidents, ranging from shootings to sky-jackings to bombings. Much of the violence has been random, with nearly 3,000 people killed simply because they were in the way of a bomb blast or shoot-out. Of this number, at least 173 of those killed and 290 of those wounded were Americans.

The continental United States has not been immune from international terrorism, and we can divide terrorists in this country into two categories: 1) foreign terrorists seeking to extend their violent political argument to this country; and 2) domestic terrorists seeking to carry out violence in the United States.

The latter category is the easiest to understand since it is relatively uncomplicated. At the head of the list of about a dozen domestic terrorism groups is the Weathermen organization. A radical faction of the Students for a Democratic Society, which was formed in 1969 to organize student demonstrations against the Vietnam War, the Weathermen advocated a violent campaign against the Establishment — defined as big business and Government — to bring it down with a crash. The group set off several bombs around the country but virtually collapsed in 1970 when its bomb factory in a New York City town house exploded, killing three of the group's leaders and sending the others into a decade of hiding. (One of those who fled, Kathy Boudin, was among those arrested in connection with the Nyack shooting.)

The Weather Underground and Black Liberation Army represent the gravest dangers of radicalism on the political left, but the growing terrorism on the far right may be even greater cause for worry. The key development has been the joining of the Ku Klux Klan with the American Nazi movement, a fusion underscored violently in 1979 when Klan and Nazi members shot and killed five members of the Communist Workers Party who were demonstrating in Greensboro, N.C. The Klan, now undergoing something of a resurgence, has become increasingly violent, and some Klan groups sound openly fascist. In the past year, according to Justice Department figures, incidents involving violence by Klan or Nazi groups increased about 200 percent.

This is all cause for some worry, but F.B.I. officials note that the most important category of terrorists in this country continues to be those outsiders who use the United States as a battleground. Foremost among them is the Cuban-exile radical movement. The militant wing of this movement is in fact a creation of the United States — this country armed, supplied and trained several hundred Cuban-exile volunteers, who participated in a series of hit-and-run raids against Castro's Cuba (and the abortive Bay of Pigs invasion).

But in 1967, the operation was closed down. Some of the exiles laid down their arms, but others drifted to a number of radical anti-Castro groups that eventually turned to terrorist action. The most significant of these is Omega 7, a violent offshoot of a leading Cuban-exile group, the Cuban Nationalist Movement. Based sible for the attacks on a Cuban travel agent who arranged for tour groups to visit Cuba. Omega 7 has been extremely difficult for the F.B.I. to crack.

Another organization that seeks to use this country as a battleground is a much less-publicized group known as O.T.P.O.R., initials for "Croatian National Resistance." The group, which advocates violent action to create an independent Croatian state (Croatia is a province of Yugoslavia), first began in Europe, where it carried out violent attacks against Yugoslavian installations. The group first came to official notice here several years ago when the Croatian community in the United States was wracked by a series of extortion attempts against community leaders. O.T.P.O.R. has been severely hampered due to an extensive crackdown that took place last year by a joint strike force of police and F.B.I. agents.

There is disagreement over how best to combat domestic terrorism. During recent hearings by Congressional committees, conservative Congressmen and senators argued that American intelligence agencies need new, broadened powers to combat terrorism and that guidelines approved during the Carter Administration restricting intelligence collection in this country on radical groups need to be loosened. (The Reagan Administration is also in favor of softening these restrictions.) Civil liberties groups argued, however, that the threat of domestic terrorism is not severe enough to warrant such things as wiretaps and spying on dissident groups.

This argument is critical, because terrorism experts have long held that anti-terrorism is fundamentally a matter of good intelligence. It is not enough, they claim, to be prepared for a terrorism attack; the essence of combating terrorism is to prevent it from starting. Both the F.B.I. and local police forces for years have been prepared to combat terrorist assaults, mainly through the use of special SWAT and assault task forces. Most major cities have long-established procedures for dealing with terrorist assaults, including the famed hostage-negotiating force in New York City (which is being copied elsewhere).

There is some question, however, of how well local and Federal forces are prepared in the intelligence area. Certainly, no one was prepared for Nyack. Some Congressional critics argue that with greater intelligence, authorities would have known of the impending assault and might have been able to stop it.

Perhaps, but as F.B.I. officials note, intelligence on domestic terrorism is not an easy proposition. "First," says one F.B.I. official, "you have to determine whether any particular group is in fact a real threat to carry out terrorist acts. Then you're talking about infiltration of the group by undercover operatives or informants, and this is no simple job. It can take years to build up such an operation. In some of the more radical groups, the organization is small and very tightly-controlled, making infiltration and monitoring very difficult. And you can't arrest anybody just on the suspicion they might be about to commit a terrorist act; you have to present concrete evidence of a conspiracy. These are not easy cases to prove."

The events in Nyack have not settled the argument, for no one is quite sure yet what they portend. As one F.B.I. official puts it, "The question is whether the fuse on the bomb is a foot long or only an inch long. Whatever, it's still a bomb ticking away." FW

Understanding the New Mortgage Loans

By Kate Kelly

For almost 50 years, American homeowners have largely relied on fixed-interest rate mortgages to finance their homes. The interest rate that exists at the time the loan is arranged is the interest rate throughout, and the homeowner pays off the mortgage (generally over 25 to 30 years) in predictable, equal monthly installments.

Now all that is changing. Though banks still offer fixed-rate loans, many are pushing the Adjustable Mortgage Loan (A.M.L.) and variations of it. If interest rates go down, a decrease in the rate charged on these new loans would be mandatory, but when interest rates are high, the cost to the homeowner can increase.

In effect, some of the nation's financial uncertainty can now be passed on to the borrower. And while consumer groups are wary about the changes, they also feel that the new mortgages are here to stay.

"How best to adjust to the new terms' is the question we're asking," says John Brown, staff attorney for Ralph Nader's Public Interest Research Group, an organization that is currently lobbying for regulations of these new mortgages so that the consumer is protected.

Here are guidelines for the potential home buyer.

Initial Interest Rate

"The initial interest rate offered on an adjustable-rate loan will probably be lower

This bag of ALPO® dry has as much meat protein as 10 lbs. of sirloin. Woof!

© 1982 ALLEN PRODUCTS COMPANY, INC.

than that on the fixed-rate loan," says Jerry Hartzog, a senior economist with the Federal Home Loan Bank Board. "The consumer is going to want — and should get — some benefit in return for accepting part of this financial uncertainty."

Interest-Rate Adjustment

Of course, the adjustment of interest rates can't be left to the whim of the lender. Instead, interest rates for adjustable-rate loans are tied to a statistical index that determines how much the rate will change. Possible indexes used by a bank might be the national average mortgage rate (usually viewed as a fair and relatively non-volatile one), the national average cost of funds for savings and loan institutions or perhaps the Treasury-Bill rate.

"Ask for a five- or 10-year history of the index each bank is offering," recommends Brown. "You need to observe how the index has performed over a period of time, rather than just one year."

Monthly Payments

Part of accepting an adjustable-mortgage loan is acknowledging that at some point your monthly payment will be adjusted up or down in order to compensate for the changes in interest rate. However, there are two areas you'll want to watch carefully.

How often might the payment change? Every six months? Every three years? You will want some sort of regular schedule of payment adjustment. In addition, the lender must give you 30 days notice of a change in payment.

Also, ask if there are limits as to how much your payments can fluctuate. Some lenders may voluntarily "cap" (place limits on) the loan adjustments. If what they have "capped" is the fluctuation in the interest rate, then this limits the risk you assume, but the trade-off is likely to mean a higher initial interest rate and monthly payment.

However, if all they have capped is the monthly payment, then this could mean an unlimited buildup of the principal you owe.

Disclosure

At the time you apply for this type of mortgage, the Government requires that you be given a Standard Disclosure form explaining the terms of the loan.

"You should also ask for a chart showing the possible increase in monthly payments and loan amounts over the next 10 to 15 years," says attorney Brown. "And if the lending institution has set limits on the variation of payments or of the interest rate, then it should also be able to provide you with a very helpful best-case/worst-case scenario."

Most important, ask for a personal explanation of anything that is still unclear. No question should be considered unimportant when it comes to understanding your mortgage loan. FW

Canada's Last Silver Dollar

January 1982, Philadelphia. IMM announced today that it is releasing for sale a small cache of recently discovered Canadian "Flying Goose" legal tender silver coins. Silver dollars today happen to be the most collected type of coin in the world. However, due to the unstable price of silver bullion, one government after another has discontinued their minting. This historic Canadian "Flying Goose" silver dollar—struck in .800 fine silver and measuring a large 36mm—was issued for just one year. Its design is therefore extremely rare. Moreover, it is Canada's last silver dollar struck for circulation.

International Monetary Mint is offering these brilliant uncirculated "Flying Goose" silver dollars at the special investor opportunity price of only $25 each. You may never have a better opportunity to own rare Canadian silver dollars. Investors who respond from this publication may purchase from 1 to 10 individual coins at this price. Because of the extremely limited number available, orders will be filled on a first-come, first-served basis with a strict limit of 10 coins per customer.

Important: Collectors are just now beginning to realize that upwards of 80 percent of Canadian silver dollars have been melted down for bullion during the last few years. And since they are vastly more scarce and yet, surprisingly, more economical than comparable U.S. issues, Canadian silver dollars have begun to experience marked rises in value. According to one numismatic expert "Canadian silver dollars are at the stage U.S. silver dollars were a decade ago—but many, many, times rarer, the best grades are going fast."

All 1967 "Flying Goose" silver dollars from this cache are Brilliant Uncirculated and are accompanied by a certificate of authenticity to that effect. Coins classified "Brilliant Uncirculated" have never been placed in general circulation and are still in mint state condition. To qualify for this offering, call Lee Collins toll free at 1-800-345-8502, (in Pennsylvania call our Special operator at 1-800-662-5180) Dept. CD 6001 for credit card orders, or send check or money order in the full amount to: International Monetary Mint, Dept. CD 6001, 390 Pike Road, Huntingdon Valley, PA 19006. An additional $2.75 is requested to cover insurance, postage and special handling per order. If not satisfied, you may return your Canadian silver dollars in the original condition within 14 days for a full refund. This offer expires February 14, 1982.

New Arthritis Treatments: Which Work, Which Don't

Bard Wisley

Doctors hope greater knowledge about arthritis will result in new drug treatments.

struct new joints that are almost as good as the original ones." The treatment works especially well with hip replacement, but it is also being done with knees, hands, shoulders, elbows and ankles, Dr. McDuffie adds.

Dr. Lockshin concurs. "What can be done with surgery is astounding," he says. "It has turned bedridden people into fully ambulatory people."

Breakthroughs with Medication

Rheumatoid arthritis seems to respond best to any of a variety of "remitive drugs," which, according to Dr. McDuffie, can stop the disease right in its tracks. Aspirin in large daily doses has been an effective agent in the lessening of inflammation and the relief of pain. Such large doses, however, can cause side effects such as stomach irritation and ringing in the ears in some individuals. "But now, much is being done with so-called 'NSAID's,' nonsteroidal anti-inflammatory drugs, that can do the job of aspirin without side effects," McDuffie states.

Another remedy, injections of a gold compound into the body, has been effective in halting inflammation and lessening arthritis symptoms. "But gold given by injection can be toxic," Dr. McDuffie says. Now there is optimism about a new oral gold medication, which will probably be released within the year. Since it contains less gold than the injection does,

A doctor examines a child for possible juvenile arthritis, an affliction that can strike even infants.

For every legitimate treatment being offered today for arthritis, there is a useless, "quack" one. It's essential that every sufferer be able to spot the difference.

By Lesly Berger

Over 31 million people in the United States suffer from arthritis. But not all are victims of the same disease. "The term 'arthritis' simply means 'inflammation of the joints,'" says Dr. Michael Lockshin, a rheumatologist and associate professor of medicine at Cornell University Medical College in New York City. "There are over 100 different types of diseases that it encompasses."

Osteoarthritis, the most common type, is a degenerative disease that comes from wear-and-tear on the joints. It is relatively nondisabling and afflicts elderly people and those in physically demanding occupations.

Rheumatoid arthritis is the most disabling and the most dangerous. In this type of arthritis (as in all other types except osteoarthritis), the immune system, which normally fights disease, apparently goes haywire and attacks the joints instead. The result is inflammation, pain, stiffness and sometimes crippling. Rheumatoid arthritis affects people of any age but predominantly those in the middle years. If untreated, it can cripple.

Other common arthritic diseases are gout, lupus, spondylitis (arthritis of the spine) and juvenile arthritis (which can strike even infants).

While there are still no cures for arthritis, tremendous advances are now being made in treating it. Unfortunately, many arthritis sufferers continue to squander their money on unproven and possibly hazardous remedies. In this special health section, we offer information on the hopeful new developments in the treatment of arthritis, as well as suggestions on how quack treatments can be recognized and avoided.

Reconstructive Surgery

"Overall, the biggest advances have been made in the treatment of osteoarthritis, through reconstructive surgery," says Dr. Frederic C. McDuffie, senior vice president for medical affairs at The Arthritis Foundation in Atlanta, Ga. "Surgeons can now con-

The Arthritis Foundation

doctors believe it will have reduced side effects.

"Penicillamine, a medication that is a relative of penicillin and is taken orally, can also be effective for people with rheumatoid arthritis," Dr. McDuffie points out. "And the Food and Drug Administration is presently trying at least 70 other drugs, including some that attack the disease by altering the reactions of the body's immune system."

Experimental Treatments

Other experimental treatments that suppress the body's immune system have recently received a great deal of attention. In trial experiments at Stanford and Harvard Universities, exposure to radiation has been found to alleviate some of the symptoms of severe, crippling rheumatoid arthritis. According to Dr. Richard Hoppe, assistant professor of radiation therapy at Stanford University Medical Center, doctors observed that patients being treated for Hodgkin's disease (cancer of the lymph nodes) with radiation, had the abnormalities of their immune system suppressed.

Believing that such exposure to X-rays would be beneficial to rheumatoid arthritis sufferers, doctors selected patients who had already undergone extensive unsuccessful treatments with gold and penicillamine and treated them with low doses of radiation. The results were quite encouraging.

"We don't claim to have cured them, but two years later the patients are much improved," Dr. Hoppe says. "Right now, we are enthusiastic but cautious. We want to emphasize that this treatment is still in the experimental stages. We are continuing to study its effect, and it will take easily five years to provide convincing proof."

"Because of the potential dangers of radiation, this treatment can only be used for those patients at the worst end of the spectrum," Dr. Lockshin adds.

Apheresis, a blood-filtering technique, has also been found to improve the condition of those with rheumatoid arthritis and lupus. "However, the treatment is terribly expensive (an estimated $40,000 a year for the first year), so it is being used only in desperate situations and is not widely available," Dr. McDuffie says.

While the development of new treatments is doubtless of great importance, Dr. Lockshin believes that the most important work being done right now in the fight against arthritis deals with "pathenogenesis," discovering how a disease evolves and develops. "Without this understanding, treatment can hide the basic problem. It's like putting a Band-Aid on an abscess," Dr. Lockshin says. "By the turn of the century this new knowledge will be translated into pharmaceuticals, so that we should start seeing major changes in treatment."

Meanwhile, Dr. McDuffie stresses, "Treatment is a lot more than drugs. It involves training people with exercise programs, rest and physical therapy. People must be helped to live with the disease, even when we can't wave a magic wand and come up with a cure."

Avoiding Quackery

But too many arthritis sufferers continue to seek the magic wand. "Quackery is a $1-billion-a-year business," Dr. McDuffie says. According to Dr. Lockshin, remedies range from the "just plain silly, such as copper bracelets and acudots (little dots one pastes on the skin to relieve pain), to the bizarre, such as cobra venom, green-lipped mussel extract, and cocaine." Why do people turn to them? "Because pain, especially chronic pain, makes people do lots of things," Dr. Lockshin says.

Mass publicity also plays a part, particularly in the case of DMSO (dimethyl sulfoxide), a substance which has been widely touted on television and in the news media, even though it has not been approved by the Food and Drug Administration (F.D.A.) for anything other than a rare bladder disease. "DMSO seems to have a mild analgesic [pain relieving] effect, but it's just a temporary pain killer," Dr. McDuffie points out.

"We're underwhelmed with its usefulness in anything," Dr. Lockshin says. "And it's by no means a benign substance. It has had serious side effects, such as large skin burns in some people, and it can also interfere with the medication a patient is already taking. Its principal proponents have failed for over a decade to present adequate data about its effectiveness."

According to Dr. Lockshin, other advertised treatments not only do not

Arthritis

Doctors replace a hip: "What can be done with surgery is astounding."

cure arthritis, but can also be very harmful. One example is the Mexican clinics which promise "miracle cures" but actually use dangerously high doses of cortisone and other medication outlawed in the United States. Other potentially dangerous products are liefcort, a cortisone preparation containing male and female hormones, and chuihong toukuwan, a Chinese herb preparation containing toxic substances.

Fad diets, such as the one that eliminates "nightshades" (tomato, eggplant, asparagus), or the one that prohibits processed food, are also ineffectual against arthritis. "These diets are based on ideas with no relevance to the disease," Dr. McDuffie says.

When dealing with the dizzying array of remedies for fighting arthritis, The Arthritis Foundation advises that you remember the adage, "Anything that sounds too good to be true probably is."

Additionally, Dr. McDuffie recommends that you see how a substance is promoted. "Be suspicious if it's advertised solely by testimonials, like the football player who says DMSO helps his sore arm," he warns. "Human-interest stories are not good enough, since there's always the chance that a substance worked due to coincidence, the placebo effect (mere belief in a cure may help a person feel better) or that the person doing the testimonial never had arthritis in the first place." Dr. McDuffie emphasizes that a good cure will always show evidence supported by valid scientific results.

"Always know what you're taking," says Dr. Lockshin. "Be sure you get full disclosure of a product's risks and benefits. Ideally, you should discuss the product's pros and cons with your physician."

Dr. McDuffie cautions arthritis sufferers against searching for an easy way out. "People should follow their doctors' advice on treatment and exercise," he says. "Even if it isn't 100 percent effective, it still can be good. If an individual stops the treatment just to try some quack remedy he could end up losing quite a bit in the long run."

THERE IS ONLY ONE DR. SEUSS.

Here's how he turns a child on to reading.

When it comes to helping children discover the joy of reading, nobody does it like Dr. Seuss. His marvelous stories, appealing characters, and colorful illustrations are so full of fun, kids return to them again and again.

The words are just right for young readers, too. They're in large, clear type. They often tell the story in rhyme. And they're so closely related to the pictures that, with a little help from Mom or Dad, even pre-schoolers can start reading all by themselves. And the best part is that when a child is turned on to reading by Dr. Seuss and his friends, he generally stays turned on to reading for life.

A HAPPY START FROM THE ONLY BOOK CLUB WITH DR. SEUSS.

This is a wonderful time to introduce your child to Dr. Seuss and his friends, and these three books are ideal "starters": The Cat in the Hat by Dr. Seuss, Green Eggs and Ham by Dr. Seuss, and The Bike Lesson featuring the famous Berenstain Bears. We'll send your child all three, which cost $11.85 at the regular price, and bill you for only $1.00 plus delivery.

PLUS BIG SAVINGS, A FREE GIFT.

So send now. And along with three introductory books for less than the price of one, we'll include, free, The Cat in the Hat Bookrack, shown on this page, a $3.50 retail value. It's a gift your child will love and it's yours to keep free even if you should decide to return the three books and tear up the bill. Please read full details in the order form, then fill it out and mail it today.

BOOKS AND COOKS

Now that the holiday season has passed you'll have time to indulge in leisurely reading. Here are a few new cookbooks to add to your collection.

By Marilyn Hansen

For those active gardeners who even now are planning next season's crop, All About Tomatoes (Ortho Books, $5.95), should prove of interest. This bright, beautiful book includes a guide to new and old varieties of tomatoes, tips on growing, regional planting charts to help you plan for your particular climate and a varied collection of recipes.

Here are two recipes from the book:

FRESH TOMATO PIZZA

The pizza topping consists of fresh sliced tomatoes, anchovy fillets and cheese. However, it can be varied by adding toppings of your own choice — thinly sliced salami, minced ham, shrimp, olives, ground beef or sausage.

Dough

- ¼ teaspoon sugar
- ¼ cup warm water (105-115°F)
- 1½ teaspoons active dry yeast
- 1½ cups all-purpose flour
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 tablespoon butter

1. Dissolve sugar in warm water and sprinkle yeast on top. Set aside for 10 minutes or until foamy.
2. Sift flour and salt into a bowl. With pastry blender, cut in butter until well blended.
3. Add yeast mixture to flour and mix to a dough. Add more flour if dough is sticky.
4. Turn out onto floured surface and knead until smooth and elastic, about 10 minutes.
5. Put into oiled bowl; turn once to coat all sides. Cover and let rise in a warm place (80°F) until doubled in bulk.
6. Punch down; turn out onto floured board and knead slightly to remove air bubbles.
7. Roll into a circle ¼-inch thick and 12 inches in diameter. Place on oiled baking sheet.

Topping

- Olive oil
- Salt and pepper
- 4 ozs. mozzarella cheese, thinly sliced or shredded
- 4 medium-size tomatoes, peeled and sliced

12 anchovy fillets
Oregano

1. Brush top of dough base lightly with olive oil. Sprinkle with salt and pepper.
2. Arrange cheese and tomato slices over dough. Lay anchovy fillets between tomato slices. Sprinkle generously with oregano.

3. Bake in 450°F oven about 20 minutes until crust is golden brown. Cut into 6 wedges and serve immediately.

Makes 6 servings

WINE-GLAZED TOMATOES

- 4 large tomatoes
- 4 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 2 tablespoons brown sugar
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ½ cup white or rose wine

Pepper
Chopped fresh basil or parsley

1. Slice tomatoes into ¼-inch rounds.
2. In large skillet, combine butter and brown sugar and stir until melted. Add salt.
3. Add tomato slices and cook quickly on both sides. Add wine and simmer 1 to 2 minutes or until tomatoes are heated through, basting with the wine sauce.
4. Sprinkle with pepper and chopped basil. Serve in small dishes. Makes 6 to 8 servings

For armchair travelers, Joan and Joe Foley's The Chesapeake Bay Fish & Fowl Cookbook (Macmillan, $14.95), illustrated by Richard Sommers, is a pleasant trip indeed. You'll find this homey collection of recipes and lore easy to follow. How-to illustrations are a welcome addition.

Here is a recipe from the book:

WATERMEN'S COFFEE-CAN BREAD

- 4 cups unsifted all-purpose flour
- 1 package active dry yeast
- ½ cup half-and-half or milk
- ½ cup water
- ½ cup corn oil
- ¼ cup sugar
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 2 eggs, beaten
- 2 tablespoons butter (for coffee cans)

1. Preheat oven to 375°F.
2. Combine 2 cups flour and yeast in a large bowl. Heat half-and-half (or milk), water, corn oil, sugar and salt in a small, heavy saucepan until just warm. Pour liquid into bowl with flour and yeast. Beat well, until batter is smooth.
3. Blend in eggs. Add remaining 2 cups of flour gradually and continue beating well until batter is smooth and elastic. Add a little more flour if necessary.
4. Divide batter between 2 well-buttered 1-lb. coffee cans with plastic snap-on lids. Cover cans with lids and set aside in a warm place for dough to rise 1 hour. When dough has risen almost to the top of cans, remove plastic lids.
5. Bake in preheated oven 30 to 35 minutes until bread is puffed up and nicely browned. Remove cans from oven and set aside to cool for approximately 15 minutes. Turn bread out of can and set on rack to finish cooling. Makes 2 loaves

Joe Namath's Secret and VI Other Super Bowl Tales

By Vic Ziegel

For the past two weeks, you've no doubt been bombarded with more pre-Super Bowl minutiae than anyone could hope — or care — to remember. But what really goes on during Super Bowl week? We asked veteran sportswriter Vic Ziegel to share some of his locker-room and bar-stool revelations from the past XV "ultimate games." Here's his report.

The first few Super Bowls were called Super Sunday. Headline writers get credit for that. The rival pro football leagues were willing to describe it as merely the world championship.

From that first game, in January 1967, the Super Bowl with the identifying roman numeral was still III or IV years away. I was on the way to a friend's apartment. A 30-inch TV screen and the promise of enough beer for double overtime. Running a little late. Crossing streets on red lights. Trying to figure out how Kansas City could possibly beat Green Bay and Vince Lombardi. A veteran sportswriter actually excited about a game.

Slowly, I began to notice other people in the street. People in no particular hurry. Walking into stores, probably to buy things, certainly taking their own sweet time. Why weren't they at home, I wondered, watching the game? I almost shouted, "Go home, it's Super Sunday!"

What I remember about the game itself is that the Chiefs stayed close for most of three quarters but, because of several unexpected guests, our beer was gone by halftime. That was awful. I know Vince would have understood. After all, he's famous for saying, "Beer isn't everything; it's the only thing."

The first Super Bowl victory by an American Football League team came in 1969, when the New York Jets, 17-point underdogs, stunned the Baltimore Colts. Beat them, too. Joe Namath was a splendid quarterback during that game. Even better for the week the Jets spent in Miami. "We're going to win," Namath said. "I guarantee it." He spent most of his waking hours guaranteeing it.

Vic Ziegel, contributing editor to New York magazine, attended or bet on every Super Bowl.

His first night, though, he was at a Fort Lauderdale bar buying drinks, the $400,000 quarterback having a high old time. Who should drop into the same bar but Lou Michaels, the great Baltimore defensive tackle and place-kicker. There were words. "Rich guys buying drinks," Michaels grumbled. "We're going to kick your butts," Namath shot back. Eyewitnesses report that Michaels went for Namath and was restrained. We were told that Namath finally bought a drink for Michaels.

Reporters tried to check out that story the next morning at the Jets' press conference, but Namath wasn't there. The closest we came to the quarterback was his roommate, safety Jim Hudson. "Joe couldn't make it here," Hudson tried to explain. "If the press conference was at 4 P.M., Joe would be here. Come to think of it, if it was 6 A.M. he'd have been here. But not at 11 A.M."

While Jets' coach Weeb Ewbank kept his players loose by telling dirty jokes, Johnny Rauch, Oakland's coach in the preceding Super Bowl, was the worst of talkers. He must have majored in clichés. With a minor in evasive answers. Midway through a frustrating question-and-no-answer session, columnist Jimmy Cannon phrased his query this way: "Coach, there's a gun at your head and you have to answer this question. Will you pass or run more in this game?"

Namath (#12) backed up his pregame bravado by leading the underdog Jets over the Colts in Super Bowl III.

Remember, there's a gun at your head." Rauch responded, "I'd have to say I'd balance the offense." Four sportswriters shouted, "Bang!"

In Super Bowl VII (1973) Miami beat Washington, 14-7, but the game was hardly as close as the final score. With seven minutes left, Miami kicker Garo Yepremian was attempting a field goal. When the snap from center was mishandled, Garo made the mistake of trying to pass. His pathetic effort was picked off by a Washington player and run back 49 yards for a touchdown.

The Dolphins were back in the Super Bowl the next year and Yepremian was asked if he'd been working on his passing: "I used to play catch on the sidelines with Coach Shula's son," Garo said. "Now the coach won't even let me do that."

Because there are hundreds of press representatives for each Super Bowl, and the N.F.L. prides itself on its logistics, writers spend most of

“Extra Taste.”

Overwhelming majority of MERIT smokers report taste bonus at low tar.

The most rigorous MERIT research to date has just been completed. Result: MERIT smokers confirm taste a major factor in completing their successful switch from higher tar cigarettes.

MERIT Takes Taste Honors.

Nationwide survey reveals over 90% of MERIT smokers are glad they switched from higher tar cigarettes. In fact, 94% don't even miss their former brands.

Further Evidence: 9 out of 10 former higher tar smokers report MERIT an easy switch, that they didn't give up taste in switching, and that MERIT is the best-tasting low tar they've ever tried.

MERIT Beats Toughest Competitors.

In the second part of this study, new tests confirm that MERIT delivers a winning combination of taste and low tar when compared with higher tar leaders.

Confirmed: The overwhelming majority reported MERIT taste equal to—or better than—leading higher tar brands.

Confirmed: When tar levels were revealed, 2 out of 3 chose the MERIT combination of low tar and good taste.

Year after year, in study after study, MERIT remains unbeaten. The proven taste alternative to higher tar smoking—is MERIT.

Would you give away $15,000?

Asking anyone if he would give away $15,000 may sound like a foolish question, because the answer is obviously "NO!" Yet, if you plan to build on your property and finance your new home, paying this amount and more in extra financing charges is very, very easy to do.

of nearly $15,000 over the life of a 20-year mortgage. That's a difference of $62.00 more in your monthly payment, each month for 20 years. If you increase the cash price just slightly, to $35,000, you will end up paying a total in excess of $17,000 MORE. Would you give away that much money?

10% ANNUAL PERCENTAGE RATE FINANCING FOR OUR CUSTOMERS

Check these facts: If the cash price of building your new home is $30,000 and you finance with a 20-year, 13% mortgage, you will pay back approximately $14,872 MORE than if Jim Walter built a home, having this same cash price, and financed it at our standard 10% annual percentage rate.

Think of that. Just 3% more makes a difference

Rate 20-year financing of our homes, with no down payment, compared to a similar mortgage at 13%.

When you shop around for a builder, be sure of your total costs. Find out how much interest you would pay. Then ask your Jim Walter representative to show you our comparison figures. You'll see a big difference between most other financing and Jim Walter's time price charge. We believe you'll choose the Jim Walter way.

Super Bowl week on buses or eating breakfast. For the Pittsburgh-Dallas game in 1979, the Steelers were in a hotel near the Miami airport while Dallas stayed at a more attractive locale in Fort Lauderdale. Here's how to spot an experienced sportswriter: He holds off on breakfast until the second stop, Lauderdale, where the Cowboys offer quiche, cream-of-chicken crepes and popovers. The one food category dominated by the Steelers was their impressive collection of single-serving cold-cereal boxes.

The biggest mouth of that Super Bowl belonged to Thomas "Hollywood" Henderson, the Dallas linebacker. Here's Hollywood on Pittsburgh quarterback Terry Bradshaw: "He couldn't spell cat if you spotted him the c-a-."

Henderson admitted that he used his mouth on the field as well. "Say I'm playing against somebody who's not too good looking," he told us. "I'll say, 'Hey, man, I'll bet if I follow you home somebody ugly answers the door.'"

The find of Super Bowl XIV was Pittsburgh's cheerful Cliff Stoudt, the quarterback behind the quarterback behind Terry Bradshaw. In his three pro seasons, Stoudt hadn't thrown a pass, nor gained a yard. Not a foot. He wasn't the holder for extra points or field-goal attempts, and he wasn't brought in during the last few seconds to fall on the ball. Let's face it, Cliff Stoudt had never been in a game. "I don't think they wash my uniform," he said. "It's still got the inspection tag."

Stoudt knew he wouldn't be working in the 1980 Super Bowl. "I doubt if both of our quarterbacks will get hurt. My best chance would be a kidnapping."

This season, Cliff moved up a notch and, when Bradshaw was hurt, filled in splendidly. Until he injured himself — breaking a bone in his hand while slugging a punching bag in a bar. Someday, I know, Cliff will find a way to joke about that.

John Matuszak, the raunchy 6-foot 8-inch, 280-pound defensive end of the Oakland Raiders, turned in the most impressive performance at last year's Super Bowl. He entered a New Orleans bar at 4 A.M., four days before the game, football the last thing on his mind. The Raiders fined Matuszak $1,000. Other than that, they took his curfew-breaking very much in stride.

Oakland coach Tom Flores was asked if Matuszak would start in the game despite that incident. "What incident?" Flores asked.

"Matuszak, staying out on Bourbon Street till after 4 in the morning, getting drunk, missing curfew, you fining him $1,000."

"Oh," Flores said, and now he was smiling, "that incident."

The Philadelphia coach, Dick Vermeil, a gung-ho type, had a different answer. If that were one of his players, "he'd be home by now," Vermeil said flatly.

I'm delighted to report that Matuszak started the game. And Oakland won, 27-10. Didn't somebody once say that winning is the only thing? FW

QUIZ

Keys, Clues and Character Codes

By John E. Gibson

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. The time of day you feel at your best provides a clue to your personality, specifically whether you are a "thinking" or a "feeling" type.
2. People who keep up with current events differ in personality from those who don't.
3. How you feel about the future tells a lot about your personality.
4. Blood donors share specific character traits.
5. How you answer the question "who are you?" provides a key to your personality.
6. People who frequently get traffic tickets have distinctive personality traits.

ANSWERS

1. True. "Thinking" types rely more heavily on their brains in deciding what action to take (their heads tend to rule their hearts) while "feeling" types are motivated more by their emotions and intuitive promptings and frequently act on impulse. In studies conducted by a team of behavior specialists at Eastern Michigan University, "thinking" types reported feeling least happy around noon. They also reported that they felt more "pulled-together" in the evening, and more sociable as the hour neared midnight. "Thinking" types also reported being able to concentrate best at the start of the day — whereas "feeling" types reported the opposite.
2. True. Studies at C.W. Post College of personality and awareness of current events showed that persons who score high on knowledge of world affairs tend to be capable, successful, achievement-minded and motivated to do their best. Persons who are least aware of what is going on in the world tend to score high on aggression. They like to tell others off, get revenge for insults, blame others when things go wrong and read accounts of violence. They become angry with little provocation.
3. True. Psychological studies at New Mexico State University showed that as feelings about the future become negative, contact with others and the exchange of positive feelings with

- others decreases. A pessimistic outlook on life can lead not only to interpersonal detachment, passivity and emotional insulation (a tendency to withdraw from relationships), but also to a desire to be controlled by others. ("Things just aren't going to work out right, so let somebody else take the blame for what happens.")
4. True. A study at Texas Tech University attempted to determine how blood donors differ from others. A random sample of 400 names was drawn from a master mailing list provided by the community blood services organization and 400 names were also randomly selected from the local city directory. Results indicated that donors tend to be male, married and parents. They tend to have low self-esteem (often they have more ability than they give themselves credit for and are modest and unassuming in the extreme). They also seem, in general, to be low risk-takers, very concerned with health, well-educated, religious and quite conservative.
  5. True. How you answer the question "who are you?" — psychologists call this the W-A-Y test — reveals much about your personality and ego. Results of W-A-Y tests on hundreds of subjects showed that the manner in which a person answers this question provides insight into how someone regards himself. If, for example, you answer, "I'm me" or "I'm Paul Jones" or "I'm myself," this suggests that you have a high degree of self-awareness. But if you answer, "I'm a doctor" or "I'm an attorney" or "I'm a housewife," there is a strong possibility that your personality is being submerged by your vocation. People whose marital status assumes priority over all else may answer, "I'm married." If a person refuses to answer the question, this indicates that he is unhappy with his self-image and doesn't want to think about himself.
  6. True. A study conducted at Wichita State University found that high-frequency traffic violators differ from others in that they are "less intelligent, more unsocialized, more aggressive and more impulsive." It was also found that the personality of the frequent violator has much in common with that of the accident-prone individual.

Jim Reeves

His Exclusive New TV Album That's Sweeping America

No singer who ever lived has so touched the hearts of people all over the world. Jim Reeves' popularity just grows and grows. It's so great today that a new Jim Reeves Museum has been opened in Nashville. And to celebrate the opening, this fantastic new Jim Reeves treasury is being offered on TV. Mrs. Jim Reeves proudly presents it to TV viewers.

Here is your chance to get it. We believe it is the most beautiful Jim Reeves Treasury ever put together. These are NOT the Jim Reeves songs everyone already has... but 20 all time favorites that have never been in any Jim Reeves TV treasury. See the list on the left. And how Jim sings them! As Mrs. Reeves says, "There'll never be another voice like his!"

OFFER WILL NOT BE REPEATED

If you don't play this beautiful album more than any you've ever owned... and enjoy it more... it won't cost you a penny. But please order yours now. It's not sold in stores at any price and we do not plan to repeat this advertisement in this publication. Mail the no-risk coupon today.

BEATING THE BLUES

If you feel a little down in the dumps these days, it's not unusual. Blame the post-holiday blues. After a six-week binge, from Thanksgiving to New Year's, of family, friends and food, it's no wonder a let-down occurs.

"The onset of winter also contributes to depression," notes Charles Rotman, professor of psychology at Babson College. "And you may have lingering disappointment over the gifts or attention you received. Also, New Year's is a time of reflection. After comparing your life with those you haven't seen in a while, you may feel like things haven't worked out."

Your spirits should pick up as we move further from the holidays, says Rotman, who advises staying as active as possible despite the weather and discussing your feelings so discontentment doesn't simmer inside you.

FEAR 'RAIDERS' WOULD BOMB

It seems hard to believe now, but the marketers of last year's biggest box-office hit, Raiders of the Lost Ark, were so afraid the film would be a flop, they purposely avoided any prerelease publicity.

Raiders popped into the crowded summer movie season practically unannounced because movie execs felt the film's star (Harrison Ford), title and concept weren't promotable, Sidney Ganis, senior vp of Lucasfilm Ltd., the company that made the movie, said in Advertising Age recently. It was also feared that a media blitz might cause critics to "take off after" producer George Lucas because of his previous successes (American Graffiti, Star Wars, The Empire Strikes Back) and director Steven Spielberg because of his megabuck megabomb, 1941.

Who's had the last laugh? Well, Raiders has only grossed $160 million since its release last June.

MORE ON DYSLEXIA

We recently ran an item here about dyslexia, the puzzling learning disability affecting millions. Soon after, several readers told us about a doctor who says he's found a cause and treatment for the ailment.

After noticing that balance and coordination problems were common in the 8,000 dyslexics he's examined, Dr. Harold Levinson, a psychiatrist/neurologist, theorized that dyslexia is caused by a disruption in the inner-ear system. "The inner ear and, behind that, the cerebellum section of the brain, act much like horizontal and vertical controls on a TV," Levinson says. "In dyslexics, something goes haywire, and images come into the thinking brain distorted."

There seems to be a genetic tendency to dyslexia, but Levinson found that an ear infection in early childhood can trigger it. He's been treating his patients with a combination of antihistamines and antidepressants, and reports significant improvement in a large percentage of cases.

Levinson has also devised a simple test that can help diagnose dyslexics before they begin school and fall hopelessly behind.

Dr. Levinson's address is 61-34 188th St., Fresh Meadows, N.Y. 11365.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

Up on charges of selling heroin, a New York City defendant wants to temporarily change his name because he feels it may prejudice a jury against him.

Thirty-four-year-old Archie Outlaw recently requested that for the duration of his trial he be referred to by one of the following monikers: Archie Inlaw, Archie Lawabiding, Robert Haft (the name of the judge in the case), Andrew Young, Reggie Jackson, Eleanor Roosevelt.

Last we heard, Judge Haft was mulling it over.

HOW TO DO IT

From the book How to Hold a Crocodile (very carefully, of course), here's advice, practical and otherwise.

How to tell how long until the sun sets: Face the setting sun. Hold both arms at full length in front of you. Bend your fingers inward, parallel to the horizon, and fill the space between the horizon and the sun with your fingers. For each finger count 15 minutes. Add it up, and that's how long till sunset.

How to take nasty medicine: Eat a strong peppermint or suck on an ice cube before downing it. Either will numb the taste buds and you'll be able to stomach even the dreaded cod-liver oil.

How to vanquish a vampire: (Just in case.) Wear a rosary or crucifix around your neck to protect yourself, or hang garlic and wolfsbane in windows and doorways to keep old fang-breath away from your house. A circle of holy water sprinkled around you will also do the trick.

Dan Nevins

HOCUS-FOCUS

CAN YOU TRUST YOUR EYES? There are at least six differences in drawing details between top and bottom panels. How quickly can you find them? Check answers with those below.

Differences: 1. Drapes are different. 2. Bow is different. 3. Skirt is smaller. 4. Umbrella is missing. 5. Head is tilted. 6. Jacket is different.

Junior Whirl

by Hal Kaufman

● JOB ACTION! Complete this poem: "Committees of twenty deliberate plenty, but more jobs are done by committees of _____." See if you can discover what three-letter rhyming word is missing.

● Fish Fry! Find a fish in each sentence: 1. The cash added up. 2. The ship had docked. 3. The ice mass melted. 4. The car passed the test.

● Saw Spot! George the Carpenter sawed the four corners off a square piece of wood. How many corners did the piece have then? Answer in 30 sec.

● Riddle-Me-This! Why is a leaky faucet like an eager racehorse? Because it's off and running. What do India-rubber men do between jobs? They bounce around.

VERSE MAKES YOU WONDER!

The answer to this vintage charade is plainly evident. Can you make it out?
My FIRST is won and never lost; reversed 'tis now before you.
My NEXT reversed is red as blood in veins of any hero.
My WHOLE so wondrous strange that I must candidly confess it,
Though you're ingenious, it will be a wonder if you guess it.
Just what am I?
ANSWER: THE WORD WONDER (WON-der)

SHIP AHOY! What can you draw to complete the picture above? To find out, draw lines from 1 to 2, 3, etc.

NOSED OUT! Add colors neatly to this wintry scene: 1-Red. 2-Lt. blue. 3-Yellow. 4-Lt. brown. 5-Flesh. 6-Lt. green. 7-Black. 8-Dk. green. 9-Dk. blue. 10-Orange. 11-Dk. gray.

SPELLBINDER

SCORE 10 points for using all the letters in the word below to form two complete words:

NUMERATE

THEN score 2 points each for all words of four letters or more found among the letters.

Try to score at least 50 points.

Prince Valiant

IN THE DAYS OF KING ARTHUR
CREATED BY VAL FOSTER

Our Story: BELISARIUS HAS GATHERED THE ARMIES OF THE EASTERN EMPIRE FROM THE FRONTIER. NOW, IN SEARCH OF WATER, HE HEADS FOR JAWA, LOST CITY OF THE BLACK DESERT. BUT VAL AND GAWAIN HAVE BEAT HIM THERE. THEIR STRATEGY: DELAY, DELAY, AND DELAY, UNTIL THEY KNOW WHAT BELISARIUS IS UP TO.

THEY TREAD THE SCRAMBLED STONES OF THE ONCE GREAT CITY. "I DON'T SEE MUCH WATER," GAWAIN GRUMBLES. BUT VAL WORKS INTENTLY.

THOUSANDS OF YEARS BEFORE MAN HAD MADE A CITY COME ALIVE IN THE BASALT WASTE THE NOMADS CALLED "LAND OF THE DEVIL." IN THE LOW SUN VAL SURVEYS THE GREAT GASHES THAT ONCE COLLECTED THE WINTER RAINS. WHERE THE CANALS CONVERGE, VAL ROLLS ROCKS AWAY.

IT IS MANY HOURS BEFORE THE GROUND UNDER HIM SUDDENLY GIVES WAY. "VAL!" CRIES GAWAIN. HE IS ANSWERED BY A SPLASH IN THE DARKNESS BELOW. "FOUND IT!" PRINCE VALIANT GASPS. A VAST CISTERN LIES BENEATH THE CITY.

GAWAIN HAULS HIS FRIEND OUT. "NOW ALL WE HAVE TO DO IS EMPTY IT," SAYS VAL. "ANY IDEAS?"

JOHN CULLEN MURPHY

THE DEBONAIR KNIGHT TWIRLS HIS MOUSTACHE. "THEY MUST HAVE HAD SOME WAY TO GET THE WATER TO THE FIELDS. THERE MAY BE A PLUG OF SOME KIND." ONCE AGAIN PRINCE VALIANT ENTERS THE CISTERN, A TORCH OF SCRUB ABOVE PROVIDING LIGHT. ON HIS THIRD DIVE HE FINDS WHAT HE IS LOOKING FOR.

NEXT WEEK: Flash Flood

FLASH GORDON

by Dan Barry

GOOD LORD! AN ARMY! ARMED ROBOTS!

WHERE DID THEY COME FROM?

HEAVEN HELP US!

WE'RE UNARMED! HELPLESS!

?! WAIT...!

ARE THEY WHO I THINK THEY ARE, ZARKOV?

SURE LOOKS LIKE THEM, FLASH!

METAL MEN OF MEKKANE! WE ARE YOUR FRIENDS!

YOU KNOW US, MAN OF FLESH? HOW?

WE HAVE BEEN TO MEKKANE... THE METAL WORLD!

YOU? A HUMAN?

YOU STILL HAVE THE MEDALLION NEKOR GAVE US?

STILL IN MY SURVIVAL BELT, FLASH! HERE...

THE IMPERIAL ORDER OF MEKKANE HEROES!

YOU MUST BE FLASH GORDON AND DR. ZARKOV! YOUR NAMES ARE LEGEND!

BUT WHAT ARE YOU AND THESE OTHER FLESH MEN DOING HERE? ON A MEKKANE DEPOT?

I BELIEVE YOU CAN ANSWER THAT BETTER THAN WE CAN!

THEY SAVED OUR RACE ONCE!
