Warsaw Calm As Price Levels Soar

By THOMAS W. NETTER
Associated Press Writer

WARSAW, Poland (AP) - Warsaw streets were calm today as the martial law regime imposed the largest price hikes in Poland's post-war history.

zloties, or 36 cents. There are 80 zloties to the dollar on the official exchange rate.
'Six-fifty to 29 zloties,' she said. 'Who will buy it?'

Witnesses reported groups of special police moved into several Warsaw hotels. Travelers said the main north-south highway between Warsaw and Katowice was closed to civilian traffic, possibly to clear the way for troop movements.

But observers said the martial-law crackdown Dec. 13 was likely to enable the regime to impose the price hikes without major immediate protests.

Rumors circulated that workers would try to stage some sort of 'non-political' protest in Warsaw today, but there were no outward signs of preparations.

(British newspapers quoted Solidarity sources as saying a smuggled message from union chief Lech Walesa urged his colleagues to encourage protests against the price increases but to take care that they did not lead to the total destruction of the union.

The demonstration that police broke up Saturday in Gdansk, the Baltic coast birthplace of Solidarity, apparently was unrelated to the sweeping price hikes for food and other goods, the sharpest increases in 37 years of Communist rule in Poland.

PAP, the official news agency, said it was 'no coincidence' that the demonstration occurred on the same day as U.S.-inspired pro-Solidarity demonstrations in America and Western Europe.

Radio Warsaw said groups of young people outside the V.I. Lenin Shipyards tried to provoke passing workers into a demonstration, but the workers ignored them.

Radio Warsaw reported the nightly curfew was moved forward to 8 p.m. in Gdansk, private telephone service within the city was suspended and private vehicular traffic and public gatherings were banned.

Food Stamp Posts Win Pitt Funding

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

The Board of County Commissioners this morning approved funding three new positions for the Department of Social Services food stamp program.

DDS director Ed Garrison told commissioners that an additional supervisor to 'tighten up internal performance,' a fraud investigator, and an additional eligibility specialist to reduce the food stamp case load, would 'hopefully solve the problems.'

Several weeks ago Dr. Sarah Morrow, secretary of the N.C. Department of Human Resources, charged that Pitt was among several counties in the state which had a higher than acceptable error rate in the food stamp program.

Garrison, who took exception to Dr. Morrow's figures, told commissioners that most of the errors were caused by clients supplying the wrong information on their applications.

He added that the food stamp manual all but requires workers to accept the information without question.

'I personally accept responsibility for everything under my jurisdiction,' Garrison told the board this morning. 'The problem will be solved. If I can't solve it, the Board of Social Service should look for another director.'

Pitt County Manager Reginald Gray told commissioners that Dr. Morrow, last week in a news release, committed herself to assisting county social service agencies in seeking more state funds to provide eligibility workers for food stamp, Medicaid and AFDC programs.

The news release also said her department and representatives of county agencies have agreed on a plan of correction to be submitted to the federal government.

The plan provides that a uniform training package be made available to all 100 county social services departments, that regulatory changes should be submitted to counties on a quarterly basis, and that county workers be provided with expert assistance to call in case of questions on the state and regional level.

Gray noted that Garrison was the prime author of the plan. East Carolina University acting chancellor, Dr. John Howell, appeared at the meeting today. 'I want to tell you I'm pleased to be here to get to know you a little better,' Howell said.

In other business today, commissioners approved a one-time appropriation of $2,000 for the Pitt County Education Work Council. The money will be used to help fund a full-time director for the agency.

Salvadorans Aver Army Massacre During Search

By EDUARDO VAZQUEZ BECKER
Associated Press Writer

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) - El Salvador's U.S.-supported army killed 20 or more people during house searches for rebels in a San Salvador neighborhood, but relatives of the victims denied they were leftist guerrillas.

'It was a horrible massacre,' said one woman who reported her son and daughter were shot after soldiers dragged them from her house.

Another woman said her three daughters were raped before they were shot.

About 200 government troops raided homes before dawn Sunday in the working class district of San Antonio Abad. Residents said as many as 27 men and women, most of them in their teens and early 20s, were killed.

'The soldiers said I had nothing to worry about as they took my daughter away,' said Miriam Villanueva, the mother of another victim. 'A short time later we started hearing gunfire.'

A Defense Ministry communique said 20 people were killed and five soldiers were wounded in 'confrontations' during a search of rebel hideouts. It said the dead were members of the Farabundo Marti Liberation Front, a coalition of leftist guerrilla groups fighting to overthrow the U.S.-backed junta.

Families of the victims, who came to a courthouse where judicial authorities were identifying the dead, said they were workers or students.

Full Slate Of Candidates Await Setting Date Of Primary Votes

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

While the actual date for county and state primaries remains unsettled pending the reapportionment of state House and Senate districts, a full slate of candidates for various offices will be on the eventual primary ballots.

The filing period for candidates for a number of county offices and for district attorney from District 3-A, Pitt County, closed at noon today.

Thomas D. Haigwood, chief assistant district attorney for this district, and Robert L. Shoffner Jr., a public defender, filed with the State Board of Elections as candidates for the district attorney post now held by Eli Bloom. Bloom, who has been a solicitor, prosecutor and district attorney for 48 years, will not seek re-election.

Incumbent Sheriff Ralph Tyson will be opposed in his re-election bid by Farmville Police Chief Ron Cooper. Sandra Gaskins, incumbent Pitt County Clerk of Superior Court, will be unopposed as she seeks a new four-year term.

Candidate For District Atty.

Robert L. 'Bob' Shoffner Jr., presently a public defender, filed last week as a candidate for district attorney for Pitt County (District 3A).

A Burlington native, Shoffner has practiced law in Greenville for a number of years.

He received a degree in business administration and his law degree from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. Shoffner, a member of Beta Gamma Sigma, a national honor society for business administration students, taught business at Lenoir Community College in Kinston, for three years after receiving his law degree in 1967.

He then entered the private practice of law, and was hired as an assistant public defender when that office opened here in January 1981.

As an assistant public defender, Shoffner's job has been to defend indigent defendants in criminal cases - a job he describes as both 'challenging and rewarding.'

'While I firmly believe in every defendant's right to vigorous legal representation, the people are entitled to no less from their elected district attorney,' Shoffner emphasized. 'An effective district attorney must stand ready to prosecute those who wilfully violate our criminal laws as well as be able to show that degree of compassion which the facts and circumstances of the case dictate.'

'My experience as a criminal defense attorney for the past 10 years makes me no stranger to the courtroom, and I feel I am qualified for the job.'

Shoffner is a member of the North Carolina and Pitt County Bar Associations as well as the N.C. Academy of Trial Lawyers. He has also been listed in 'Who's Who in American Law.'

He and his wife, the former Linda Baldwin, live at 103 Evanswood Dr. They have one son and are expecting their second child in April.

Redistricting Meet Tonight

A public meeting has been scheduled here tonight to discuss the redistricting proposal approved last week by a House subcommittee that has created a wave of opposition among residents of Pitt, Martin and adjoining counties.

A county Democratic Party spokesman said the session will be held at 7:30 p.m. in the second floor meeting room of the county office building (old hospital facility) on W. Fifth Street.

The spokesman said that officials from the counties and townships involved in the redistricting proposal, as well as at least one member from the House Redistricting Committee and several state representatives are expected to attend the meeting.

The proposal would trim Bethel and Carolina townships from the northern section of Pitt County and place them in a new single-member district that would stretch across eastern Martin County into Bertie and on to Ahoskie township in Hertford County. The remaining portion of Pitt would join Greene County for a two-seat district in the House.

The remainder of Martin County, according to the plan, would be placed in a single-member district stretching from Robersonville to the edge of Vance County, encompassing parts of Halifax and Warren Counties.

The proposal is scheduled to go before the House Redistricting Committee on Tuesday. Public hearings on the House plan and a similar redistricting effort by the State Senate are scheduled in Raleigh Thursday.

VEPCO REFUND TO WINTERVILLE

The Greenville Utilities Commission is in the process of refunding money to its retail customers which it received from Vepco as a settlement of a rate case. The December 9 edition of The Daily Reflector said, 'Winterville, as a wholesale customer (of GUC), will receive an immediate refund ... of $92,465.'

I'm a Winterville resident. Why hasn't the Town of Winterville given the same refund to their utilities customers? What happened to this money? N.A.

Town clerk Elwood Nobles said, 'We still have the money (in the bank). Nothing's been done with it yet.'

However, he suggested that the town board is considering using part of the money to construct a two-mile long section of power line. That, he said, is estimated to cost $50,000. Nobles added that he thinks the board will refund the remaining portion to Winterville's retail customers.

Walter Dail Honored By Citizens Of Winterville

WINTERVILLE — Walter A. Dail, long-time mayor of Winterville, was honored Saturday night by the community at a dinner at A.G. Cox School.

The dinner climaxed a day designated as "Walter Dail Appreciation Day" by the Town Board of Aldermen in a recent board meeting.

Presentations were made to Dail commemorating his 32 years of service to the community. A replica of a larger bronze plaque that will hang in the town hall was given to the former mayor, along with a plaque engraved with the resolution of appreciation passed by the board.

Dail spent 20 years as mayor of Winterville, and before that served as alderman for 12 years. At the time he took the office of mayor, the town had a budget of $81,000, town officials told those attending the dinner. When he retired in 1981, the budget had reached $2 million. The town population rose from 800 to 2,500, noted Town Clerk Elwood Nobles.

Over 200 persons attended the dinner but, according to Sparky McCaskill of the Kiwanis Club, many more had a part in the appreciation day. All the civic and service organizations in the community participated, he added, along with most businesses.

"We wanted to honor this man who has done so much for us in the past 32 years," said McCaskill. "The committees from the various

Would Speed Asylum Claims

WASHINGTON (AP) — Alan C. Nelson, President Reagan's nominee as head of the Immigration and Naturalization Service, says the administration will continue pressing Congress for legislation that will speed up the handling of asylum claims.

The changes the administration is proposing would make asylum claims a matter for administrative decision rather than court procedures. Claims would be processed and decided within 30 days, Nelson said in an interview.

Nelson said the administration's "basic fairness can't be questioned," in refugee and political asylum cases. But he conceded he "isn't very knowledgeable" yet about international conditions.

No opposition to Nelson, a California lawyer with long ties to Reagan, developed during a hearing by the Senate Judiciary Committee, but the full Senate has yet to vote on the nomination.

organizations that worked on this event thank Walter Dail for each and every one of the things he did to make our community better. We also thank all those citizens, organizations, corporate citizens and businesses that contributed to this day. We had many generous contributions."

Hearings Set On Allegations

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Intelligence Committee hearings are to begin Tuesday on allegations of CIA dealings with two fugitive ex-agents accused of selling arms and military services to Libya, according to a committee source.

The closed-door hearings will focus on the CIA's own investigation into whether agency employees aided former agents Edwin Wilson and Frank Terpil in helping supply arms and terrorist training for Libyan leader Moammar Khadafi, the source, who asked not to be identified, said Sunday night.

Wilson and Terpil were indicted by a federal grand jury in Washington in 1980 on charges of illegally supplying Libya with explosive timers, setting up a terrorist training school in Libya and conspiring to commit a political assassination for Khadafi.

The CIA issued a statement in November in which it "categorically denied all allegations involving it in illegal acts allegedly committed by" Terpil and Wilson.

Sentencing Set In Slavery Case

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — U.S. District Judge W. Earl Britt on Tuesday will sentence a migrant crewleader and two assistants convicted of conspiring to enslave farm workers.

The case is Britt's second involving migrant slavery. In an August 1980 case he sentenced crewleader Tony Booker to double the prison term sought by the U.S. Justice Department.

The case to be decided in federal court in New Bern is even more serious because it involves what attorneys believe to be the first conviction of its kind involving the death of a migrant.

Britt is scheduled to sentence Dennis Warren, 19, Richard Wayne Warren, 22, and Richard Lester Harris, 39, in federal court.

Crewleader Dennis Warren and Harris could be sentenced to life in prison after being found guilty of a slavery conspiracy resulting in the death of Robert Lee Anderson, a 40-year-old laborer from Philadelphia who collapsed Sept. 13 in a Nash County field.

Dennis Warren and Harris also face convictions for aiding and abetting the holding of three migrants in involuntary servitude, while Harris faces another conviction for kidnapping a migrant laborer. Each charge carries a five-year term and a possible $5,000 fine, according to Samuel T. Currin, U.S. attorney for North Carolina's eastern district.

Richard Warren, Dennis' brother, was absolved of responsibility in Anderson's death but was convicted of a lesser charge of conspiring to enslave, which carries a maximum 10-year prison term with up to a $10,000 fine. He also was convicted of one count of involuntary servitude.

While defense attorneys were expected to argue for a lenient sentence for the Warren brothers in view of their age, there are indications that Dennis Warren had other warnings in his first year as a crewleader.

Richard D. Robinette, assistant regional administrator of the Wage and Hour Division of the U.S. Department of Labor in Atlanta, said a $2,525 fine was assessed against him in Nash County for violations of the 1963 Farm Labor Contractors Act. Robinette said the violations included excessive deductions from workers' pay, failure to register to house and transport workers and threatening a worker against calling the labor department.

Meanwhile, sentencing was scheduled for today in yet another North Carolina slavery case.

Joel Darrell Gadsden, who pleaded guilty to conspiracy to enslave in January with his son, Donnell, will be sentenced in Raleigh. A second son is scheduled for arraignment later this month in that case.

Sees Approval Of Revising Supports

WASHINGTON (AP) — Tobacco leaders are likely to endorse a plan to give the U.S. agriculture secretary authority to lower price-support levels on some grades of tobacco, Rep. Charles Rose, D-N.C. says.

His comments came last week as the House tobacco and Peanut Subcommittee prepared for a hearing today at Fairmont Middle School on the tobacco program.

"Substantial fine-tuning" of the tobacco program is essential if the farm program is to survive congressional attacks, Rose said. "I think these very well could be the most important tobacco hearings that have ever been held."

Rose said he favors phasing out the ownership of tobacco allotments by non-growers, adding that the financial interests of farm widows and retired growers must be protected.

He said the non-grower allotments might be eliminated by government purchase.

"I believe that within the span of one or two generations, we must move to tobacco allotments being owned by growers," Rose said.

The congressman also said Congress should consider moving to a self-supporting system of financing tobacco price supports, possibly by instituting grower fees and an excise tax on cigarettes.

"I think we are at a real crossroads in the tobacco price-support program," Rose said. "We are either going to take this opportunity seriously and make long-term changes, or we are going to be asking for some long-range trouble that I don't believe we could fix again very easily."

The tobacco program barely survived last fall during congressional debate on the 1981 Farm Bill. To win support for the program, tobacco-state legislators agreed to conduct an in-depth study of ways to free the program from costs to the taxpayers.

Rose plans to hold as many as 10 hearings in February throughout the flue-cured and burley tobacco belts in the Southeast. Several other congressmen are planning smaller hearings in their districts.

David Lee Heath of Walstonburg was charged with driving too fast for existing conditions following investigation of a 1:20 a.m. collision today on Dickinson Avenue, 800 feet west of the Westwood Drive intersection.

Heath and a passenger in the car were reported injured in the crash.

Ext. Service Case Nears End

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Attorneys are tentatively scheduled to make their final arguments the second week of February in the lawsuit against the state Agriculture Extension Service.

Testimony ended this past week in the suit filed in 1971 by 52 black extension service employees who said they were denied equal pay and promotional opportunities.

The plaintiffs also charged the extension service is responsible for the fact that many community 4-H programs are either all black or all white.

Sales, Use Tax

Net sales and use tax collections in Pitt County in December totaled $324,594, according to Mark Lynch, Secretary of the N.C. Department of Revenue.

The December figure compared with $307,600 recorded in November in Pitt County and $274,589 reported for October.

Neighboring county totals for October, November and December included: Beaufort, $147,611, $146,574, $132,930; Carteret, $169,800, $167,556, $163,042; Craven, $229,104, $206,723, $230,041; Edgecombe, $152,701, $156,779, $133,196; Greene, $20,394, $19,433, $18,849;

Lenoir, $210,835, $192,234, $200,672; Martin, $67,680, $76,387, $70,745; Nash, $280,000, $289,091, $274,529; Wayne, $268,984, $279,249, $270,391; and Wilson, $232,024, $224,215, $206,190.

Lynch said total distributions in the 99 participating counties for December amounted to $19,711,485, compared with $19,359,624 for November and $19,318,193 for October.

Dear Abby

Son Makes Mom Fall Apart

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: It's another usual day. Broken stereo, broken toys, spilled milk, shouting matches, temper tantrums, tears — his and mine. I am at my wit's end. He's not quite 4 — how can I have these problems already? Everyone else has the answer except me. Spank him? Make him sit on a chair? Take away his favorite toy? Make him stay in his room? Ignore him? Give him extra love? Make him eat only natural foods?

My head is spinning and my stomach is in a knot. Nothing seems to work.

His father says, "There's nothing wrong with him — you're looking for a problem!" Grandparents say, "He's just a boy." One sitter says, "I never had a problem with him." Another sitter says, "I can't handle him either."

Is it me, Abby? I keep saying I won't yell at him any more — a promise soon broken. He sees me crying, then he cries too, and says, "I love you, Mom."

I feel so bad. Am I his problem, or am I cracking up? BAD MOM, NOT BAD BOY

DEAR MOM: First, have your pediatrician examine the boy to rule out the possibility of some physical irregularity that may be affecting the boy's behavior. Then describe your frustrations to the doctor just as you did to me. Ask for his recommendation. Professional counseling for you? For the child? Or both?

A physical checkup for you might be a good idea, too, Mom. Nobody said motherhood was a piece of cake. But it shouldn't turn your noodle to strudel either.

DEAR ABBY: My wife, who is nearly 50, is as trim and beautiful today as she was 30 years ago when she was a professional model.

Recently while looking around in our attic, I came across two full-page newspaper ads in which my wife was featured. I had them framed and hung on the wall of my office where I enjoy looking at them.

A few months ago we had our garage made into a lovely finished playroom. I would like to hang these "ads" on the wall in that room because I'm very proud of them and very few people see them in my office.

My wife thinks it would be in bad taste and look like she was bragging. I disagree. Among other things, we display her bowling trophies, my "Man of the Year" plaque from the local Kiwanis Club, and a tremendous mounted fish my wife caught.

Pilot Club of Greenville. She is community schools director with Greenville City Schools.

She explained the Adopt-a-School Program and described ways in which individuals and groups may participate in the program.

Named to the nominating committee were Dot Johnson, Irene Prewett and Sue Howell. They will present candidates at the February meeting.

This Is A Flawed Plan

Lest there be any question about our feelings concerning the most recent redistricting plan for the North Carolina Legislature, let it be known we don't like it.

To be more specific we don't like half of it. The plan, voted on by Legislative committees last week creates a new senatorial district which includes Pitt and Martin Counties to be known as District 9. It would have one senator and, as far as Pitt is concerned, would replace the old four-county district that was represented by two senators. We are happy with the new arrangement insofar as the Senate redistricting is concerned.

Not so with the House redistricting. Most of Pitt would remain with Greene County to form a district electing two representatives.

However the northeastern portion of the county, and we understand including Bethel, would be split off to join part of Martin and Bertie Counties to form a District 6 with one representative. A portion of Martin County would form a district with Halifax.

The plans were approved by a subcommittee of the House Legislative Redistricting Committee and the Senate Legislative Redistricting Committee to meet U.S. Justice Department requirements. They may meet the requirements but they play havoc with the historic voting patterns of Eastern North Carolina citizens.

Voters have been naturally drawn to their county organizations since parties and election procedures were first organized by counties at the beginnings of our state. Now we are expected to split on some imaginary line as we decide our representation. The confusion during campaigns and on election days will be monumental.

Protection of voting rights for any groups or individuals is fine. At the same time we believe all citizens have the right to the least confusing process of choosing our leadership. The citizens of Pitt and Martin, and all the other counties which would be arbitrarily split by this redistricting plan are not getting that. This plan is flawed and should be corrected.

Good Advice For All Of Us

Dr. James (Jim) Fowler, vice-president of Lions International, told Lions Club members here last Friday night that "Lionism must do more in future years."

He cited the organization's fine record in scholarships, Little League, work with the sightless and other areas, but he chided those who say mankind has achieved all it capable of.

Such thinking fails to take into account "the quality of the Lion's dream of what the future can hold for mankind, the faith in mankind's ability and knowledge to see this vision and to act on it."

It is good advice for this active organization, and come to think of it, it is the kind of thinking that all of us would do well to consider.

Handling Wastes

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH—When it finally comes time for North Carolina to start building some disposal sites for hazardous and low-level radioactive wastes under the new law enacted by the General Assembly last year, there will be some high-powered politics at work.

Despite the appeal of more exotic ways to dispose of waste, such as burning it or converting it to a useful product, such techniques are long ways down the road.

Trucking it and burying it will, for a long while yet, be the only reasonable way to get rid of the dangerous materials.

Priority attention to the dilemma by Gov. Jim Hunt and the North Carolina Legislature came when it was made clear that waste disposal is a critical part of the industrial development and economic growth program in the state.

North Carolina is a national leader in production of low-level radioactive wastes, thanks to the numerous medical research and other production and development activities in the state. Keeping those important businesses running, and attracting more, means that waste disposal is important.

Essential State Commerce Department specialists in economic development say that waste management and disposal has taken a place near the top of concerns for firms looking about for a location, or seeking to expand industrial operations.

It is easy to convince the state's political power structure both in Raleigh and locally, that waste management is an integral part of future economic growth. Growth means more jobs, paying better money. That means more tax income without the onerous chore of raising taxes. And it means less need for costly social programs in health, welfare and so on because better paid, better educated citizens can better look after their own needs.

It clearly follows, then, that political decision makers will be able to make tough decisions on waste disposal sites with the conviction that what they are doing will ultimately help the entire community involved, whether the people who live there are certain of that at the time, or not.

Other Editors Say Deflation Pangs

(The Wilson Times)

The decline in the inflation rate is good news for Americans who considered it the top economic problem at one time. But there is much more to the picture than the drop in the rate of inflation. As employers are working to cut costs, thousands of employees have lost their jobs and many have suffered wage cuts. Businesses are absorbing losses and some farmers and businessmen are facing bankruptcy.

A good example of the current problem is investors who hedged against inflation by buying gold, diamonds and other tangibles. They have suffered big losses in the past year. The prices of gold and silver have dropped drastically. Some people who took out big mortgages two years ago to buy expensive homes are hurting because the houses are now worth less than they paid for them.

The nation's farmers are feeling the bite. The price of corn is down approximately 95 cents per bushel from a year ago. Some cattle farmers are getting less for choice steers than it costs to raise them.

For all food products, producer prices rose only 1.5 per cent in 1981 which helped to slow the rise in living costs, but pinched many food producers and processors.

Some farm suppliers have had to cut prices to make sales. In some places farm machinery is being sold at big discounts, resulting in losses for some machinery businesses.

Lumber prices have tumbled as a result of the collapse in home building. Two-by-fours used to frame housing are priced 15 percent lower than a year ago and plywood is priced 16 percent lower. Many lumber mills are running at a loss at those prices.

A sluggish economy weakens demand and prices fall first on products for which producers have little influence on supply. Thus suppliers lose because their costs are still rising while their prices are flat or declining.

The problem is that inflation doesn't recede smoothly and evenly across the country. So the decline in the rate of inflation doesn't mean that the economy is any better over-all than it was when inflation was in double-digit figures. Deflation also results in problems.

Strength For Today

A GREAT DISCOVERY "Get your shine here, get your shine here," the shoeshine boy kept calling out.

We might think that shining someone else's shoes month after month, year after year, would constitute a dreary life indeed. Where would it get him?

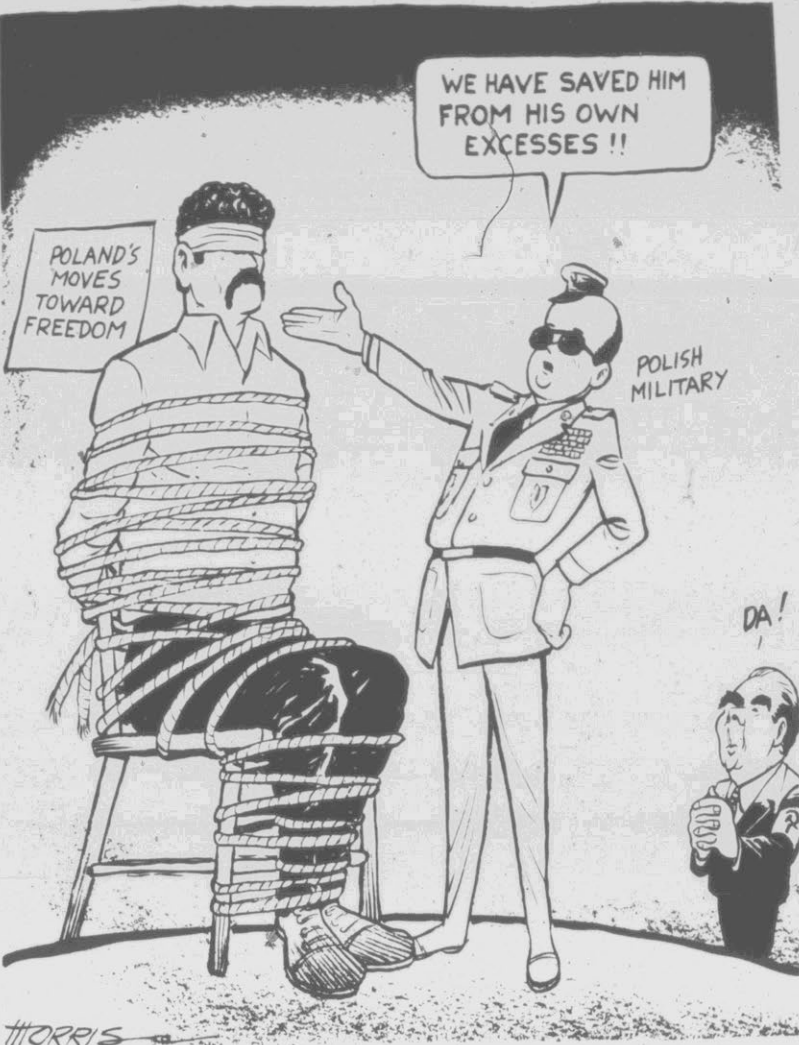

But just then he looked up and cheerfully greeted a friend who passed his chair. He inquired about the friend's family. Was the Missus well? How about the children? And had he seen the fight on TV last night?

Sunday? After church, a picnic.

There was much laughter. There was bantering back and forth between the boot-black and his friend. And gradually the significance of it all became evident. It was a lesson in the little things which make people happy.

And furthermore, it showed something about the nature of a happy person. He doesn't have to be wealthy or powerful. Most important is a capacity to be interested in other people — Elisha Douglass

Era Of 'Super Trash'

Everyone keeps asking when George Orwell's 1984 will arrive. For all intents and purposes, it's already here. You want evidence: This week the city of Washington, D.C., where I reside, informed me that I was going to be assigned, absolutely free, a "Supercan," which is a garbage container on wheels.

The bad news was that garbage collections would be cut down to one time a week, and in the future, the Department of Sanitation would only accept your trash if it was placed in their assigned 85-gallon "Supercan."

The notice also informed me that one "Supercan" would be provided per household, but if you filled your can, you would be permitted to place a closed container or garbage bag on top.

"If after six weeks," my notice read, "you always have more refuse than the Supercan will hold, call to determine if a second is required." (Note — It doesn't

Some weeks I don't have enough trash to fill an 85-gallon Supercan, and other weeks, particularly when all the kids are home, I need six Supercans, plus heaven knows how many garbage bags, to clean out the house.

The one thing that I've always been grateful for in this country is that a person was free to collect or throw out as much trash as he wanted to.

One person's trash or garbage could be considered another person's heirlooms.

The option of when to throw out trash was always left up to the homeowner. Now the city has set a limit on how much you can set out every week.

When the 85-gallon Supercan is filled, you have used up your trash allowance and you're stuck with the rest for another seven days.

So we come to the city's way of dealing with the problem: "If you have more refuse than Supercan will hold, call to determine if a second is required."

Having dealt with D.C. officials on other matters, I am paranoid enough to believe the conversation will go something like this:

After waiting an hour to get through on the "Supercan" line, a voice will say, "Yes."

"I'm calling to request a second Supercan because I find one is not sufficient."

"What have you been eating?"

"I don't think that's any of your business."

"It is if we are to determine whether or not you're entitled to a second trash barrel."

An economist for the American Medical Association suggested there may be more demand for services in a weak economy. Newly laid off workers will get medical care before their insurance expires, said the analyst who asked not to be named.

He also suggested that doctors may be trying to catch up with inflation, noting that their costs rose less than the rate of inflation in the three previous years.

But Sidney Wolfe, director of the Public Citizen Health Research Group, offered: "There are too many people making too much money in the health care industry to expect anything other than this."

The system, he said, "is totally out of control."

Analysts outside the industry attributed much of the soaring medical costs in 1981 to widespread insurance coverage — both by private companies and the government.

Because of insurance, medical care is "perceived as a free good," said Thomas D. Thomson, chief economist at San Francisco's Crocker National Bank.

Haig's Turf Threatened

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — President Reagan picked up his White House telephone early last week for a long and friendly discussion of his administration's foreign policy, a call remarkable only for the fact that the man he telephoned across the continent in California was Henry A. Kissinger.

Coupled with the rise in the White House of William Patrick Clark, the renewed Reagan-Kissinger contact contains the seed of new competition for Secretary of State Alexander Haig's unquestioned policy dominance in the wake of Richard V. Allen's dismissal as National Security Council (NSC) assistant.

Reagan had just finished reading Kissinger's sharp criticism of U.S. foreign policy in two New York Times articles Jan. 17 and 18. What struck him was Kissinger's warning that the "disarray of the Western alliance" and "indecision" in Washington following the Dec. 13 crackdown in Poland threatened "a decisive turning point in Western history."

Far from taking offense, President Reagan wanted to know more. What Kissinger had written reflected his own growing concern. The president's concern has been the topic of intimate Oval Office strategy talks arranged for Reagan with increasing intensity by Clark. Allen's successor as the president's NSC assistant.

At work here is no planned cabal to cut down Al Haig. Haig's sensitivity to intrusion on his turf is well known in the White House, first felt there way back on Inauguration Day. Nevertheless, the substitution for Allen by Judge Clark is a portent of utmost significance for Reagan, Haig and U.S. foreign policy.

Moving slowly and conferring frequently with Kissinger and other outsiders, Clark is combining his amiable personality and iron loyalty to Reagan to push the president into the center of national security policy.

That conflicts with the fashionable view of Haig's new dominance. With Clark, his former State Department deputy, in control of machinery in the White House and non-political professionals installed at the top of his State Department, Haig's dominance is said to be complete.

The contrary is closer to the truth: Clark's insistence that policy will now follow the instincts and ideological convictions of his old California friend may weaken, not strengthen, Al Haig.

Clark's move to the White House coincided with the deluge of Reaganite and neo-conservative attacks on the administration's post-Poland reactions. These have centered on what Kissinger (no Reaganite or neo-conservative) called "sanctions of marginal significance" against Moscow and "eagerness to continue all negotiations" with the Soviets.

Even before Kissinger wrote those words, Reagan had privately decided (with no dissent from Haig) to cancel the second day of the Haig-Andrei Gromyko Geneva talks and ignore strategic arms talks. Clark knows that Reagan has been at least one step ahead of the State Department on wanting punitive actions against Moscow. White House insiders say he is quietly pushing the president to assert his own will with greater force, well aware that if post-Poland policy follows Reagan's instincts the hue and cry from the right wing will diminish.

Clark is not alone in wanting to convert hard-line Reaganites from enemies of administration foreign policy to active allies. White House chief of staff James Baker III, closely tuned in to conservatives on Capitol Hill, had a hand in vetoing Haig's choice of Robert D. Hormats to succeed Myer Rashish, fired for unknown reasons by Haig as under secretary of state for economic affairs. An ideological neuter, Hormats has long been on the right-wing hate list.

With the Hormats veto apparently siled, Clark is eyeing Dr. William Schneider Jr., a tested Reaganite hardliner and now associate director for national security in the Office of Management and Budget, for Rashish's job. Schneider's move to State's key economic policy post would give Reaganites what they have lacked since Clark's departure: eyes and ears in Haig's State Department.

Without intending any affront to Haig, Clark's effort to Reaganize administration foreign policy to the point that precisely fits Reagan's convictions is transforming the NSC apparatus. In his early-morning intelligence briefings for the president, Clark brings along a varying menu: Haig one day, Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger the next, Central Intelligence Director William Casey on another, sometimes NSC senior staffers.

Clark is engaged in opening Reagan's eyes to a wide spectrum of opinion — all the way to Henry A. Kissinger. His purpose is to encourage Reagan's own tendencies, not to subvert Haig. But in six months Al Haig may look to the Dick Allen regime with nostalgia.

Medical Care Costs Still Soar

By SALLY JACOBSEN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The cost of medical care in the United States rose faster in 1981 than in any other year since World War II, according to government figures.

Analysts disagree on the reasons for the 12.5 percent jump in medical costs in a year when over-all inflation was held to 8.9 percent. But few think the situation is likely to improve soon.

The health care system "is a poorly functioning market," said Robert Ortner, chief economist for the Commerce Department. "The incentives aren't there for moderation."

Some analysts contend there's not enough competition among the limited number of hospitals and doctors to keep costs down, and consumers don't — and often can't — shop around for the best prices.

Others cite widespread health insurance coverage, a shortage of nurses, expensive technology and a growing number of elderly patients.

"There's no real good answer," said one industry source.

interest to save on medical care," Thomson said. "It won't get better until the recipients pay more of the costs directly out of their pockets."

However, Edward Yardeni, chief economist at E.F. Hutton & Co., notes that, "When people are sick, they don't start haggling over the price."

"I suspect it will continue to be one of the sore spots on inflation," Yardeni adds.

Labor Department figures show that, except for medical care, all major categories of consumer spending had smaller increases last year than in 1980, when medical costs rose only 10 percent compared with over-all inflation of 12.4 percent.

A breakdown of the 1981 medical costs figures shows that physicians' fees rose 11.7 percent, up from 11 percent in 1980, while dentists' charges climbed 10.2 percent last year, compared with 10.7 percent in 1980.

Costs of prescription and non-prescription drugs and other medical supplies climbed 11.3 percent last year, compared with 10 percent in 1980.

The big jump was in hospital room charges — up 17 percent in 1981 on top of a 13.9 percent increase the previous year.

But Joseph Martin, economics director of the American Hospital Association, contends the government's measure of hospital room rates does not tell the full story of hospital cost trends.

He said the government's checks may not reflect the changing nature of care provided by hospitals. For instance, he said, the proportion of elderly getting hospital care has risen, and those patients tend to need more care.

Hospital association studies also show a lag between improvements in inflation in the economy as a whole and in hospital costs, he said. That may be due to long-term purchasing contracts and annual wage adjustments for employees, he said.

Other analysts said the nursing shortage is forcing hospitals and doctors to pay more to attract and retain nurses, and that the greater demand for sophisticated equipment — operated by specialized personnel — kicks up costs.

See Reagan-Volcker Collision

By OWEN ULLMANN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The relatively little-known Paul Volcker and the well-known Ronald Reagan appear to be on a collision course over how to straighten out the American economy and it's not at all clear the better-known player would win.

Volcker, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, says the economy will be gradually strangled by ever higher interest rates unless Reagan reduces gigantic federal budget deficits.

Reagan, president of the United States, says his economic recovery program — deficits and all — will be thwarted by rising interest rates unless the nation's central bank does a better job of managing the amount of money it allows to circulate in the economy.

Private economists, meanwhile, say the nation may be headed for far worse times unless Volcker eases the Fed's tight-credit stance or Reagan finds a way to cut those deficits.

Without a policy change by one or both sides, "the U.S. economy runs the risk of a major collapse, unprecedented in the postwar period," economist Allen Sinal of the forecasting firm Data Resources Inc., warned in a recent interview.

Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker, R-Tenn., urged Reagan and Volcker to "sit down and get away from this business of acting like they are so independent they never communicate."

"We've got to get this economy going again, we've got to synchronize," Baker said.

But so far, Volcker and Reagan are refusing to budge.

Some veteran Fed watchers say the independent bank is merely pursuing the tight-credit policy the president has been advocating to fight inflation.

"The Fed is always the scapegoat, the easy out," observed one banking official, who did not want his name used. "But there seems to be more pressure being put on the Fed today than ever before."

Reagan and his economic advisers deny they are in any fundamental conflict with the Fed's tight-money policy or looking for someone to blame for an economy far worse off than the president had predicted.

Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan said Sunday on CBS's "Face the Nation" that the administration is not trying to make the Fed a scapegoat and "will take the blame or the credit" for what happens to the economy.

And budget director David A. Stockman, interviewed on ABC's "This Week With David Brinkley," said that "despite some recent administration discomfort" over Fed policies, "No one in the administration believes the course is wrong."

Nonetheless, there has been an increasing pattern of criticism from the president and his aides in recent weeks about the way the bank has been managing the nation's money supply. Instead of pursuing a slow and steady course, the Fed has swung wildly over the past year between extreme clampdowns on credit and enormous increases, the administration argues.

Volcker, who may have more say about the course of the U.S. economy than any other individual, has stated repeatedly that he has no intention of backing off the Fed's anti-inflation course despite the economic pain it is causing the nation and the political discomfort it may cause Reagan.

Volcker also contends the Fed is doing its best to regulate the money supply but that the economy is too complex to achieve the week-to-week precision the administration seems to be demanding.

If that doesn't satisfy Reagan, there's not much he can do until the Fed chairman's term expires in August 1983.

By design, the Fed was established by Congress in 1913 to be relatively free of political pressures from the White House. Thus, while the president appoints members to the bank, he cannot fire them. And Volcker has given no indication he would consider resigning before his 4-year term ends.

Volcker, who was appointed by former President Carter, has expressed grave concerns that a combination of the Fed's tight credit policy and Reagan's big-borrowing budget policy will drive up interest rates again as private borrowers vie for what little credit is left after the government finances its deficits. The result, he warns, will be a gradual strangulation of economic activity.

The record tax cuts and military budget increases Reagan won from Congress are expected to produce deficits totaling at least $250 billion through 1984 — a prospect Fed officials find appalling.

"It is mindboggling that a conservative president can tolerate deficits of this magnitude," said one senior Fed official, who did not want his name used. "I do not believe he understands the consequences, but maybe Congress will."

"The Fed is just going to stick to its policies. It's not going to change if the administration sticks to its high-deficit, high-consumption and low productivity course," said the official.

and the citizens who remain unconvinced that a disposal site is for their own good is one of the key reasons the new law gives the state power to override local objections and maneuverings to block a hazardous waste project.

Given the history of Tar Heels who fight to the bitter end to block such projects, there is no reason to believe that the new law and its accompanying procedures will escape assault.

Simply put, the new law sets up a Waste Management Board of 15 members. Five board members are cabinet officers in state government. Eight are named by the governor from outside state government. Two are legislators appointed by the lieutenant governor and speaker.

Warn Of End To Neutralism

MOSCOW (AP) — The Kremlin warned today that growing cooperation between Swedish arms manufacturers and the Pentagon could "shatter trust" in Sweden's neutralism.

"The existence of rather extensive ties between Swedish industrialists and the U.S. military-industrial complex has never been a particular secret," said a story in Pravda, the Soviet Communist Party newspaper.

It claimed cooperation between the two countries was being increased, but did not elaborate.

"What matters is not only a considerable limitation of the independence of Swedish defense enterprises, but also the fact that such cooperation may shatter trust in the policy of neutrality and Sweden's non-participation in alliances in peace time."

"Washington would like very much to involve that country, like its Scandinavian neighbors — Norway and Denmark (both NATO members) in the plans and practice of American military preparations in Europe," Pravda said.

The United States has shown an increasing interest in the Nordic region.

U.S. Navy Secretary John Lehman in September announced a new naval strategy to keep the Soviets out of the northern part of Norway and enable U.S. forces in a conflict to attack the Soviet Union's Kola Peninsula and its chief city, Murmansk, headquarters since the 1960s of the Soviet northern fleet.

The Kola Peninsula, situated between the Berents and White seas, has SS-20 tactical missiles, and is a base for about 200 Soviet submarines, some 200 naval surface craft, 300 aircraft, two motorized rifle divisions and a 10,000-man border force.

Kremlin ties with Sweden have cooled since a Soviet submarine which apparently carried nuclear weapons ran aground in a restricted military area deep in Swedish waters last October.

The chill deepened in December when the Soviet Foreign Ministry accused Moscow-based Swedish correspondent Steffan Teste of espionage. His newspaper, the "Dagens Nyheter," decided to end Teste's Moscow assignment when Soviet diplomats refused to guarantee that he would not be charged formally with spying.

"What other trash?"

"Old telephone books, a shredded baby mattress, an old Rembrandt. How the hell do I know what we threw out? Am I supposed to keep an inventory?"

"It would help when you're asked to appear in front of the Supercan Refuse Commission."

"You mean my request has to go through a commission?"

"A second Supercan is a privilege, not a right. People requesting two have to prove there is an extraordinary need for it. If we issued you another Supercan, everyone on your block would be demanding two, and the city doesn't have that kind of money to throw around on garbage."

"So what am I supposed to do?"

"We'll send you a form to fill out in which you must list all the trash you throw out in a week. Then we'll decide if you must cut down on what you are disposing, or whether you can have another can."

"When will I know?"

"The commission meets once a week. You should get a notice to make your case personally no later than November."

Growth

The Waste Management Commission obviously will tilt in favor of allowing disposal site development. Indeed, that is its purpose. The state can buy the land and lease it to an operator. It can give numerous incentives to an operator. It can reward communities which agree to take a disposal operation with extra money for health and protection programs. It can condemn the land needed for a site, and can override local ordinances or zoning restrictions.

Already the signals are strong that those things won't happen often without a long and bitter fight. Just before the new law was passed, a number of counties slipped into the law books local laws saying that waste from one county can't be disposed of in another and that one local government can't buy disposal land in another local government's jurisdiction without permission. Whether those maneuvers will hold up remains questionable. In Warren County, residents have blocked state efforts to dispose of roadside soil laden with PCBs for years. Elsewhere, people are fighting in every way to block hazardous waste disposal projects.

Before it can accomplish what the state's political leadership hopes, the state's new Waste Management Law will be the subject of numerous lengthy and imaginative legal challenges.

Winter Launches Another Snowstorm At Midwest

By ERIC KRAMER
Associated Press Writer

Six-foot snowdrifts stranded thousands of motorists in the Midwest, while ice jam breaks sent six feet of water rolling through parts of Oil City, Pa., and inundated Marlinton, W.Va.

Sunday's snowstorm gave students and government workers a holiday today, while residents waited for snowplows and the National Guard to tackle the high drifts and up to 22 inches of new snow. At least five people died in the storm.

Ten families near Oil City were evacuated and downtown businesses were flooded when an ice jam broke on Oil Creek, a tributary of the Allegheny River, said police Lt. Greg Dauberger.

"The main intersection in town is flooded... Water surrounds some homes six feet deep," said Frank Stacy of radio station WOYL. "The water is moving fast. It's got a lot of icebergs in it."

Dauberger said the homes might get washed away and police abandoned their station when it was flooded with 1½ feet of water.

In Marlinton, a city of 1,300 in a valley between ridges of the Allegheny mountains, an ice jam on Knapp Creek gave say, sending 3½ feet of water through parts of the town. Police and fire officials said four of families were evacuated.

In the winter-weary Midwest, the deepest snow was reported at Greenville, in south-central Illinois, where 22 inches fell. Chuck Jones of the Illinois Emergency Services and Disaster agency said 2,000 motorists were stranded in temporary shelters Sunday night.

"I've never seen the snow so deep," said David Denbow, driver of a snow plow stuck for more than an hour Sunday on Interstate 44 in St. Louis. "We'll get this cleared out eventually but I don't know when."

The surprise storm developed when warm, moist air from the Gulf of Mexico suddenly moved up and collided with cold air from Canada, which kept temperatures in the northern Midwest as low as 36 degrees below zero in Detroit Lakes, Minn. The storm moved toward the Northeast today, and new snow was headed for the upper Mississippi Valley off the northern Great Plains.

An accident on Interstate 55 near Pontiac in central Illinois involved 17 to 20 vehicles. Four people were taken to a nearby hospital with minor injuries.

Ground transportation was at a standstill in central Illinois, with the Chicago-to-New Orleans Interstate 55 and Philadelphia-to-Denver Interstate 70 both closed.

Indiana was also hard hit with Interstate 65 nearly shut down between Indianapolis and Louisville and Interstate 69 closed between Indianapolis and Fort Wayne. That city had 29.7 inches of snow in January, breaking the 1918 record of 25.4 inches. Kokomo received 20 inches of snow Sunday.

The National Guard started shuttling nurses and doctors to hospitals, and 300 people were stranded at 13 armories in central and northern Indiana.

Leonard Graves Sr., 72, died of a heart attack outside his home in Indianapolis after cleaning snow and ice off his car. His body was found Sunday.

Near Conway, Ark., four people died and four others were injured Sunday when a car on U.S. 64 slipped in wet snow and slid into oncoming traffic.

Nearly 75,000 Indiana students got the day off when Purdue, Ball State, Indiana State, Butler and Indiana Central universities canceled classes for today.

In Ohio, workers dynamited an ice jam on the Chagrin River in the Cleveland suburb of Eastlake after the threat of flooding forced 30 families to flee their homes. The Great Miami River also threatened to flood.

National Guard troops were called out to battle the sleet, snow and freezing rain in Ohio.

"There's a little bit of everything going on," said Daron Boyce, a meteorologist with the National Weather Service. "A whole variety of weather. You name it and we've got it somewhere in the state."

An additional 6.5 inches of snow in Cleveland on Sunday brought the year-to-date total to 62.1 inches, nearly double the 33.9 inches that fell in all of last winter.

In southern Michigan, "red alerts" ordered motorists to stay home as winds gusting to 35 mph choked highways with snow faster than they could be cleared. More than 1,000 cars and trucks were strapped on freeways and service drives in southeastern lower Michigan.

People sought shelter where they could find it, including in a stuck bus in downtown St. Louis.

"People have been coming up and asking me if they could come in and keep warm," said the driver, Wanda Anderson. "And that's fine with me because I've been blocking traffic all day long. I've been sideways, crossways, and all kinds of ways."

Another storm whipped several inches of new snow over southern Idaho and northern Utah, reducing visibility to zero and closing Interstate 15 at Malad Pass, south of Pocatello. No one was injured seriously in 30 to 40 accidents, the Idaho State Police said, but the road was closed for five hours.

HIDDEN HOARD — New York City detectives count bags of cocaine found in Queens apartment where police investigating the fatal shooting of two adults and two infants Saturday turned up more than $10 million in cocaine, an arsenal of weapons, and a roomful of cash. Investigators traced the apartment from the Mercedes-Benz car in which the four were found shot dead on the Grand Central Parkway. (AP Laserphoto)

Reagan Sparking N.C. Civil Rights Interest

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Fears that civil rights victories in the 1960s might fall victim to conservatism in the 1980s have prompted black leaders in North Carolina to awaken activism from a fitful slumber.

"We can credit Ronald Reagan with the change," said Kelly M. Alexander, state head of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. "He got our act together."

Floyd B. McKissick of Oxford, former national director of the Congress of Racial Equality, said changing political and public attitudes were resulting in losses where gains had once been envisioned.

"With the onset of Reaganism, many who thought that things have progressively gotten better have been shocked into the realization that many gains may disappear overnight," added E. Lavonia Allison of Durham, director of the state's Black Leadership Caucus.

A meeting by the caucus next month to address the new conservatism appears to be only the beginning of an upheaval in activism.

NAACP leaders say they will meet in a leadership conference Feb. 20 to discuss President Reagan's budget cuts and the increased number of legal cases dealing with racial discrimination. Meanwhile, state membership increased by 3,000 last year to about 35,000.

Civil rights, educational and political groups have already renewed their support of the 1965 Voting Rights Act, which guarantees voting rights to minorities. Congress has shown signs that the act itself may not be renewed.

Meanwhile, the Rev. Leon White, state director of the United Church of Christ's Commission on Racial Justice, has called for rallies across North Carolina to denounce an increase in Ku Klux Klan activity.

Blacks point to Reagan's stance against busing to reduce racial imbalance in the schools and reduced social programs as a sign of the conservative times. But their complaints are becoming more widespread.

"Nowadays, the main load is directed at things like job discrimination, decent housing, unfair treatment by courts and police departments and racism within the school system," said Daniel A. Houston, president of the Raleigh chapter of the Black United Front.

J. Jake Phelps, director of the Duke University Union and an activist of the 1960s, said the reaction against the Reagan administration could blossom with further budget cuts.

"I don't know whether it will come after the unemployment of the summer or the elections of the fall," he said.

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Two men were arrested Saturday in connection with an alleged robbery attempt of a drug store that was thwarted by an off-duty security guard and public safety officers.

Frankie Eugene Johnson, 28, and Fred Atlas Johnson, 20, both of Durham, were charged in connection with the alleged crime.

Michael R. Harris, the off-duty security guard who works for a Raleigh firm, was in another part of the store when the alleged robbery attempt began.

Farm Scene

By LEROY JAMES
 Cnty. Ext. Chairman
 Improved export demand coupled with strong holding action by farmers in the corn belt state will cause soybean prices to strengthen 10-20 cents per bushel in the weeks ahead.
 The long bearish trend appears to be over and soybean prices are expected to average between 5.40 and $6.70 per bushel in central North Carolina by the last of January. Dr. T. Everett Nichols Jr., N.C. extension economist, states that total exports since Sept. 1 are 37 percent above a year ago. However, the domestic crush is about one million bushels below last year's quarterly crush of 278 million bushels.

Strong U.S. soybean exports in the September-November period are due to the minimum level of Brazilian exports during this period. The southern hemisphere soybean crop is currently about three-fourths planted and growing conditions appear favorable. Acreage planted in Brazil will be two to three percent less than in 1981 but a 14-15 million metric ton crop is expected.

Corn prices should average around $2.80 in central North Carolina markets over the next few weeks.

Life-of-contract lows have been reached on March corn futures following the release of all the bearish news about abundant supplies and weak demand. Recovery in cash prices is expected to be slow and will depend on general economic conditions and the rapidity with which corn is used during the first half of the marketing year.

Four Collisions In Greenville Sunday

An estimated $9,900 property damage resulted from a series of four traffic collisions investigated by Greenville Police Sunday.

Officers said the Peaden car collided with a utility pole, causing $3,000 damage to the vehicle and $1,000 damage to the pole.

Police charged Peaden with failing to reduce his speed enough to avoid an accident.

Thomas Case of Bethel, collided about 4:30 p.m. at the intersection of Greenville and Arlington Boulevards, causing an estimated $1,500 damage to the Turnage car and $900 damage to the Case auto.

First Lady Contributes Her Clothes

By MAUREEN SANTINI
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Nancy Reagan has passed on to museums a dozen of the haute couture ensembles given her by designers but the fancy clothes probably won't be on routine public display.

The outfits generally will be kept in museum closets and brought out only when students of fashion design come to study them, says the woman in charge of distributing them.

The 12 outfits Mrs. Reagan selected for the first shipment were worn once or twice. No one will say how much they are worth.

A White House official, who did not wish to be identified, acknowledged that one reason for the no-price-tag policy is to avoid letting the public know the total cost of the free clothes Mrs. Reagan received.

The outfits, undoubtedly worth thousands of dollars, include six evening gowns, two home entertaining gowns, three suits and a dress, according to Ann Keagy, head of the fashion design department of the Parsons School of Design.

Mrs. Keagy, who is handling the distribution project for Mrs. Reagan, said each of 12 museums received one item.

President Reagan, in a recent interview with CBS, defended his wife's free clothes. "Why not distribute these to museums throughout the country?" he asked. "I think it has been distorted."

Reagan added that he sometimes kids his wife for keeping in her personal wardrobe clothes she wore in college. "In fact, she not too long ago at an affair here in the White House wore a 12-year old dress. Now, how many women do that?"

The outfits were provided to the first lady by her favorite designers: Bill Blass, Adolfo, James Galanos and David Hayes of Los Angeles. Mrs. Reagan is calling some of them loans, rather than gifts, because she is passing them on to museums.

Adolfo and Blass both said they began donating clothes to the first lady last year, but refused to say how many clothes they have provided or their value.

Asked how the arrangement came about, Blass said, "It was Mrs. Reagan's decision."

The White House is wrestling with the problem of how to report the clothing on a financial disclosure form due May 15.

Gifts must be reported as such, with the value listed. But the reporting requirement for loaned clothing is less clear. White House counsel Fred Fielding has said the dresses will be reported in some manner, though he has not yet decided how to value them.

In addition, the Reagans may have to declare the value of the clothes as income on their tax returns if the Internal Revenue Service so decides.

Forgot To Turn Off The Water
 FEDERAL WAY, Wash. (AP) — A woman who forgot to turn off the water while filling her waterbed called for help from firefighters after the bed expanded into a giant balloon, authorities said.

The waterbed "seems to have gotten three times the size they normally are," said Joe Suver, dispatcher for the fire department in Federal Way, south of Seattle.

Fire officials did not identify the woman. "When she discovered it, it had pretty much taken up the full room. She decided to run to the phone to call us. She wasn't too thrilled about the whole thing."

One engine company responded to the call at 9:58 p.m. Saturday from the woman's home. Firefighters shut off the water and drained the bed, said Roy Brewer, a fire dispatcher.

The operation is designed to see that patients at Cherry Hospital in Goldsboro and Caswell Center in Kinston are remembered at Christmas and that patients without families have spending money throughout the year.

More than 6,000 new gifts and 2,000 used gifts were donated. Approximately $7,000 in money for Operation

Zula Rouse, Operation Santa chairperson and board member, joined Mrs. Spilman in expressing appreciation to all chairpersons from Pitt County for their dedication as volunteers, and also extended thanks to all area citizens who contributed to this cause.

In addition to assistance given to Cherry and Caswell, staff members from the Mental Health Center, the Walter B. Jones ARC, Eastern Carolina Vocational Center, EARTH, the Flynn Christian Home, ADAP, the Women's Correction Home and the Psychiatric Unit at Pitt Memorial Hospital selected appropriate gifts for individual clients in their areas.

Wachovia Bank provided the store on Evans Street Mall for the central collection point for the county. The primary aim of Pitt County's Operation Santa Claus is recognition of and assistance to the mentally ill. Another primary aim is to foster volunteer growth among citizens.

Former Border Guard Escapes
 MUNICH, West Germany (AP) — A former East German border guard safely crossed the "death strip" minefield into West Germany, Bavarian border troopers said today.

The West Germans speculated that the 22-year-old former guard was well acquainted with the communist border fortifications, facilitating his dash to freedom Sunday. They said he crossed undetected by East German patrols.

Gilbert Denies Allegations Made By Newspaper

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sam Gilbert, a booster of UCLA's talent-rich basketball team since the mid-1960s, has been quoted as denying allegations by the Los Angeles Times which included his paying for abortions for players' girlfriends.

The Times, in its Sunday editions, called Gilbert, a wealthy contractor in nearby Encino, a "one-man clearing house who has enabled players and their families to receive goods and services usually at big discounts and sometimes at no cost."

Gilbert, 69, was quoted Sunday night by KNXT, the local CBS affiliate, as saying the story was "dreadful, outrageous and not true...the story is rubbish." The Times also said Gilbert helped players get automobiles in exchange for their season tickets.

The newspaper reported it had conducted interviews with more than 45 people connected with the UCLA basketball program during the past 15 years, many of them former Bruin players and coaches.

Players who helped UCLA to seven of its NCAA-record 10 NCAA championships said they got cars, stereos, clothes, airline tickets and scalpers' prices for their basketball season tickets, the Times said. Receiving any of those items at a discount or for free are violations of NCAA rules.

Some players got money to purchase cars their freshman year by selling four-years' worth of season tickets through Gilbert for as much as $1,000 a year, the Times quoted a former UCLA head coach, whom it did not identify, as saying. Gilbert then guided the players to good car deals, the newspaper said.

The Times also said that Gilbert arranged for and paid for abortions for their girlfriends and negotiated contracts for players before their college eligibility had expired, an NCAA violation.

"He knows what the rules are and he thinks they're rubbish," the Times quoted Keith Erickson, a star on UCLA's first championship teams in the mid-60s, as saying. "So he does what he believes is right, with full knowledge that something was going to come down the pike like this."

Lucius Allen, an All-American guard in the late 1960s, was quoted as saying, "UCLA wouldn't have won any championships without athletes. And without Sam Gilbert, they wouldn't have had the athletes."

"It (the players getting women pregnant) happened often," Allen was also quoted as saying. "If a ballplayer impregnated someone, there was always a hospital available. I never paid for it and it was my case."

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, known as Lew Alcindor as a standout at UCLA in the late 1960s, admitted selling tickets to Gilbert in his senior and possibly junior year, the Times said, adding that Gilbert arranged for Abdul-Jabbar to live in an Encino guest house at little or no cost during his junior year.

A few years later, the Times said, current UCLA Coach Larry Farmer lived in the guest house. Farmer said he paid $150 a month rent. The newspaper said that attorney Brad Marcus owned the house and wouldn't confirm that the rent was paid.

John Wooden, who coached UCLA to its 10 NCAA crowns before retiring in 1975, was quoted as saying: "Maybe I had tunnel vision. I still don't think he had any great impact on the basketball program... Maybe I trusted too much."

"I think he (Wooden) knew that things were going on," Erickson was quoted as saying. "And he just didn't want to know."

Farmer, in his first season as UCLA's head coach, has been quoted as saying Gilbert "is like a member of my family."

The Times said that Farmer ruled Gilbert's home off limits to Bruin players last August.

Celtics Pilot East To All-Star Triumph

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Coach Bill Fitch relied on three of his Boston Celtics players and well-rehearsed patterns to pilot the East to a 120-118 victory over the West in the National Basketball Association All-Star Game. "We had three Cel'cs out there and they know what this means and that means," Fitch said, pulling his right ear and waving his arms to simulate the coded gestures he made to Boston's Larry Bird, Robert Parish and Nate "Tiny" Archibald during Sunday's game at the Meadowlands Arena.

"Three Celtics were out there in the end, because it was a close game and that's the thing to do — just like Pat had three of his Seattle kids out there at one point," said Fitch. West Coach Pat Riley played SuperSonics Jack Sikma, Gus Williams and Lonnie Shelton together in the closing minutes. "We ran a play down the stretch that the Celtics use throughout the year," said Bird, who was named Most Valuable Player after scoring 19 points, including 12 in the final quarter, and pulling down 12 rebounds.

Bird said his ability to complement Parish, who scored 9 of his 21 points in the final period, "was definitely the key" to the East's victory.

"You play with somebody for two years, and you kind of know what they're going to do in certain situations," said Bird, a 6-foot-9 forward.

With 1:15 remaining, Norm Nixon of the Los Angeles Lakers narrowed the East's 120-116 lead with a left side

Pearlree Wins Rookie Honor

CENTERVILLE, Ma. — East Carolina freshman guard Bruce Pearlree has been named the ECAC-South Rookie-of-the-Week, league offices here announced Monday morning.

Pearlree, who has seen more playing time of late after point guard Tony Byles went down with a broken wrist, scored 30 points and grabbed six rebounds in two games last week.

Pearlree, a 6-1, 165-pounder from Pantego High School, scored 10 points, pulled off three rebounds and dished out two assists in ECU's 71-68 upset victory over UNC-Charlotte Wednesday night.

Then, in the Pirates' 81-71 loss to Richmond Saturday night, Pearlree scored 20 points, connecting on eight of 13 from the field and four of four from the free throw line, grabbed two rebounds and had two assists.

Wake Forest Holds On To Defeat Razorbacks

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Led by senior guard Mike Helms' 14 points, the 18th-ranked Wake Forest Deacons defeated No. 12 Arkansas 49-48 in a non-conference basketball game Sunday.

Wake Forest trailed until sophomore guard Danny Young tied the game at 36 at 14:52 in the second half. The Deacons went ahead a minute later on a 17-foot jumper by Helms. Wake Forest didn't trail for the remainder of the game.

Arkansas' comeback attempt fell short in the final seconds. With five seconds to go, Arkansas' senior center Scott Hastings bounced a shot off the rim, giving Wake Forest the victory.

Neither team scored in the last two minutes and 25 seconds as the Deacons' stiff defense prevented the Razorbacks from getting to the inside for a shot. Twice in Arkansas' past three games, the Razorbacks have won last-second jumpers.

Wake Forest, now 14-4, are undefeated against the Razorbacks, having beaten Arkansas in the only other meeting between the two teams, 86-80 in 1977.

Senior center Jim Johnstone scored 14 points for the Deacons. The 6-foot-11 Johnstone controlled the inside, limiting Hastings to six points. For the Razorbacks, Darrell Walker had 24 points and eight rebounds, and Keith Peterson added 12 points.

Arkansas started the game strong, running up a six-point lead in the first half and leading 30-24 at halftime. Wake Forest came out shooting in the second, however, closing to within two points less than four minutes into the period.

AFC Nips NFC On Late FG

HONOLULU (AP) — Miami Dolphins Coach Don Shula may have cringed the last time he saw Dan Fouts and Kellen Winslow in action, but this time he was cheering them.

When the American Football Conference all-stars, coached by Shula, needed a late score to take a 16-13 victory in Sunday's Pro Bowl, the San Diego Chargers' Fouts-to-Winslow combination helped get it.

Fouts took the AFC 69 yards, with the big gainer a 23-yard pass to Winslow, to set up the deciding 23-yard field goal by Kansas City's Nick Lowery with three seconds remaining.

"It was anything but a dull game," said Shula, who recently had watched Fouts and Winslow help the Chargers knock the Dolphins out of the NFL playoffs.

"On the final drive, our offensive line dominated play," said Fouts, who completed eight of 16 passes for 143 yards on the day. "The pass to Winslow down the middle (putting the ball at the NFC 5-yard line) broke their back."

Winslow, the NFL's top receiver for the past two seasons, had six catches for 86 yards and shared Pro Bowl Most Valuable Player honors with NFC defensive end Lee Roy Selmon of Tampa Bay.

"It's a real honor to be named co-MVP and an honor to be on the field with the finest players in the game," said Winslow.

"There was more intensity this year," added the two-time Pro Bowler. "Pride was a factor."

Selmon, in his third Pro Bowl, recorded four quarterback sacks for losses totaling 35 yards, and was in on eight tackles.

"I was just running around trying to do what we practiced"

Dorney, Adams Lead Rosettes

RALEIGH — Diane Dorney finished first on the balance beam and ninth all-around and Nicole Adams was seventh all-around to lead the Rosettes of Greenville at the Class IV State Gymnastic Championship here this past weekend.

Dorney, one of 22 girls in the eight-and-under age group, scored a 7.6 on the beam to capture first. She was also fifth on the uneven bars with a 7.55 score and finished with an all-around total of 26.5.

Adams, one of 50 girls in the 12-14 age group, scored 32.1 points to finish seventh all-around. She was fifth on the bars (8.5), sixth on the beam (8.05) and ninth on floor exercise (8.55).

Other Rosette results:

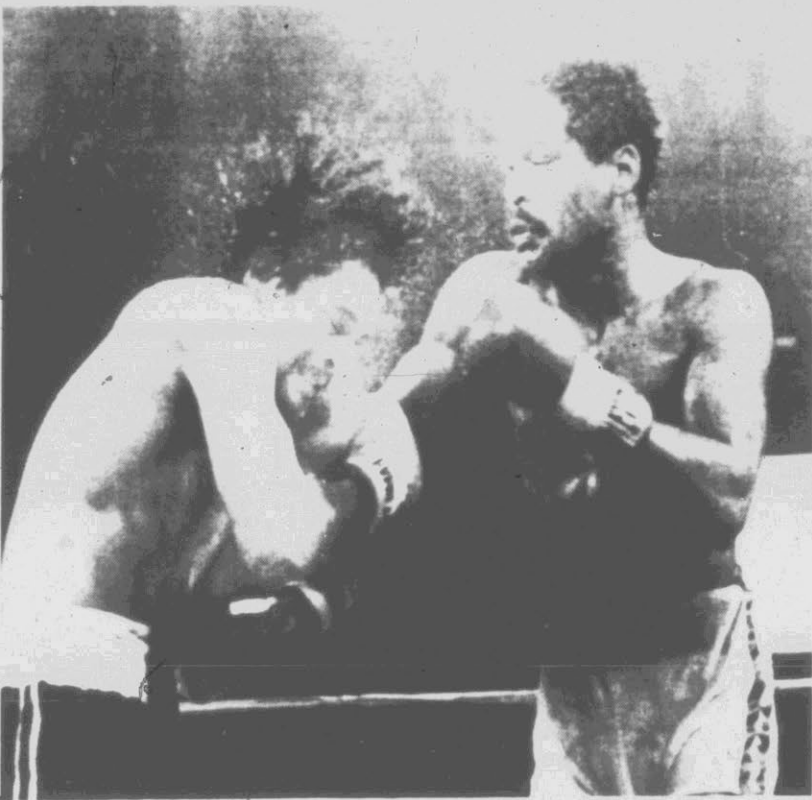

In the 12-14 age group, Betsy Barnhill was third on the floor exercise (8.8) and seventh on the bars (8.4). Terri Jarvis was fifth on the beam (8.15) and Danielle Adams was 10th on the beam (7.8).

In the 9-11 age group, Susan Grimsley was seventh on the beam (8.45).

In the 8-and-under group, Kristin Duff was fourth on the floor exercise (7.95), sixth on the beam (6.8) and 10th on the vault (5.3) and Jeremy Dilworth was 10th on the beam (6.25).

Benitez Connects

Duran's Career Appears Over After Defeat

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — "I lost but I don't feel bad. I lost and I lost good," said Roberto Duran.

Duran lost a unanimous decision Saturday night to Wilfred Benitez in a bid for the World Boxing Council super welterweight title.

The 30-year-old Panamanian had hoped to ride the fight to a third bout against Sugar Ray Leonard. Duran lost the WBC welterweight title to Leonard when hequit in the eighth round Nov. 25, 1980.

Duran contended he had stomach cramps, Leonard claimed it was frustration. Whatever caused it, the move cast a shadow over an otherwise illustrious career.

It is a career that has ended, according to Carlos Eleta, Duran's manager. Another fight with Leonard no longer possible, there is no purpose for Duran to continue.

It ended for Duran with 74 victories, three defeats and undisputed lightweight and WBC welterweight championships.

It goes on for the 23-year-old Benitez, only one of six men to hold three titles — he previously was the World Boxing Association junior welterweight and WBC welterweight champion.

Before fighting Duran, Benitez had said, "This is going to be my last fight in the weight." The super welterweight class has a 154-pound limit.

The champion from Puerto Rico wants to fight as a middleweight (160-pound limit) in a bid to become the first man ever to win four championships.

"The world wants that fight," Benitez said of a match between him and Marvin Hagler, the undisputed middleweight champion.

Negotiations reportedly are being held for fight between Hagler and Thomas Hearns, who lost the WBC welterweight title to Leonard, as did Benitez for his only loss against 43 wins and a draw.

"Wilfred says a lot of things," manager Jimmy Jacobs said Sunday. "He will fight as a middleweight if I can negotiate the right fight. If I can't, he will continue as a super welterweight."

The right fight is one against Hagler.

The one thing that surprised Jacobs and most members of the media about the fight was the closeness of the scoring, even though the decisions was unanimous.

Judge Hal Miller scored it 143-142 (eight rounds to seven), Dave Moretti 144-141 (9-6) and Lou Tabat 145-141 (9-5-1). Most writers gave Benitez more than 10-rounds.

It was a clinical performance by the Benitez. He had a reach advantage and he was faster and stronger...and he hit harder.

Benitez, who weighed 152 1/4, one-quarter pound less than Duran, scored often with right leads and left hooks and he mixed his attack well to the head and body. The only times Duran could get Benitez on the ropes was when Benitez wanted to go to the ropes. Then, Benitez often outpunched Duran, making him back off.

"I think he won a good fight," said Duran. "I wanted to put a little more pressure on him, but my body wouldn't let me."

"He is one of the greater boxers I have ever fought," said Benitez, who could become the first four-weightclass champion.

Miller Holds Off Charging Nicklaus

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Johnny Miller had a little talk with himself after playing poorly in the Phoenix Open a week ago.

"Boy, don't tell me," Miller said, recalling the one-way conversation, "I'm going to have a bad year after a $500,000 start."

He put those doubts to rest Sunday with a one-stroke victory over on-rushing Jack Nicklaus in the Wickes-Andy Williams-San Diego Open Golf Tournament.

"It was important to turn it around," Miller said. "I'm happy to get that off my back. There was a lot of pressure on me. Jack really put it to me."

But it wasn't quite enough.

"I'd figured, the night before, that a 64 ought to be enough to win the golf tournament," Nicklaus said. "But it wasn't."

He got that target score, 8-under-par and a record on the 7,002-yard South course at the Torrey Pines Golf Club. The effort included eagle-3s on the ninth and 18th.

It put Miller's back to the wall. But he nursed home the diminishing lead with a 2-under-par 70 and a 270 total, 18 shots under par.

Nicklaus was one back at 271.

The victory was the 21st on the American tour for Miller, tying him with South African Gary Player for 16th place on the American winning list. It also provided Miller with the successful attainment of a couple of goals.

"I've now won all the Western tournaments except Hawaii, and I don't play there. It's a nice little accomplishment," Miller said. Perhaps more importantly, it again puts him in the field for the Tournament of Champions in April. "I really wanted that. I just love that tournament," Miller said.

The victory was worth $54,000 from the total purse of $300,000. That compares with the $500,000 first prize Miller won in an unofficial $1 million tournament in southern Africa the first week of the year.

"I guess I felt like I could retire for the season after that," Miller said. "It was important for me to turn it around here."

His front-running effort was just good enough. He was never caught, but Tom Kite and Nicklaus each got to within one.

Kite, the 1981 leading money-winner who lost a playoff at the Bob Hope only two weeks ago, rolled in a 12-foot birdie putt on the 15th hole to pull to within one shot. But Miller dropped a 10-footer on top of it, and had his margin again.

Nehemiah: Hit It Perfect

DALLAS (AP) — The biggest surprise at the Dallas Times Herald Invitational track meet was not another world record by hurdler Renaldo Nehemiah.

The stunner was supplied by Baylor's Bruce Davis, a 5-8, 160-pound sophomore wide receiver from Dallas who plays on Grant Teaff's football team and runs track for Clyde Hart.

Davis won the 60-yard dash Saturday night against the likes of Harvey Galance, the Auburn-ex, and Herschel Walker, the Georgia football All-American.

World record holder Stanley Floyd had to scratch from the finals because of back problems. Davis ran a time, 6.11 seconds, that Floyd did not beat in the qualifying trials. Floyd, the record holder at 6.04, ran 6.13.

"I was shocked when Stanley didn't show up but it gave me more confidence because I had already beaten Jeff Phillips (of Athletics West) in the trials.

"The surface was fast... this is certainly the biggest meet I have been in besides the nationals... my goal is to make the 1984 Olympic team."

But Davis said if it came down to the Olympics or football he would choose football.

Davis repeated his 6.11 clocking in the 60-yard final. Texas Christian's Phillip Epps finished second in 6.14 with Walker third in 6.15 and Phillips fourth in 6.21.

Nehemiah broke the world indoor record in the 50-yard hurdles at Toronto Friday night, then traveled to Dallas to do it again at the 60-yard distance.

At Dallas, Nehemiah posted a time of 6.82 seconds to eclipse his old standard by seven one-hundredths of a second, set in New York in 1979.

"I hit it perfect," said Nehemiah, who ran the record although his top foe, Greg Foster withdrew.

"I really didn't anticipate a record because I was tired from Toronto," he said. "Foster had made the comment that I couldn't set a world record without him in the race."

"I will be in peak form by the 1984 Olympic Games," said Nehemiah. "I am looking forward to the 1984 Olympics... I want that one chance to win the gold medal."

Olympian Jeanette Bolden broke the world record in the women's 60-yard dash.

McEnroe Easily Beats Connors

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — John McEnroe said he wasn't surprised that he beat Jimmy Connors so easily in the $300,000 U.S. Pro Indoor Tennis Championships.

"I'm now expected to be the favorite when we play," said McEnroe after demolishing Connors, 6-3, 6-3, 6-1 Sunday to earn the $60,000 first prize. McEnroe said he lost six of his first seven matches against Connors after the two began competing in 1977. Now, McEnroe has won five of the last seven.

The 22-year-old McEnroe said he is proud to be the top-ranked tennis player in the world. "It's harder to stay No. 1, because the depth is good in men's tennis. It is difficult to get to the top and play consistently to stay there in the face of great players like (Bjorn) Borg, Connors and (Ivan) Lendl," McEnroe said.

McEnroe, U.S. Open and Wimbledon champion, demonstrated that consistency Sunday. He served 13 aces, and kept Connors moving with a variety of shots. It took McEnroe less than two hours to complete the rout.

"I was all over him," McEnroe said of his straight-set triumph. "I concentrated more on each ball and I kept him working to earn his points. I played solidly and kept him off balance."

McEnroe was the picture of propriety during the week-long tournament.

In fact, Connors received the only penalty, a $1,000 fine and 21-day suspension for obscene gestures during a semifinal match against Chip Hooper.

The top-seeded McEnroe wasted little time in the match, breaking Connors' service in the second game of the opening set. Connors, the No. 2 seed and ranked third in the world, broke back in game five, but McEnroe broke again in a love eighth game and held service to win the set, 6-3.

In the second set, McEnroe had three service breaks — to Connors' one — in winning 6-3. McEnroe built a 5-0 lead in the third set, before losing a game. He made up for that by breaking Connors in the final game on a fourth match point with an overhead smash.

Connors said of his opponent, "if he is serving well it's difficult to play against him."

McEnroe, who won this tournament for the first time in four appearances, reached the final with victories over Tracy Delatte, Rolf Gehring, Sandy Mayer and Vitas Gerulaitis.

Connors advanced with triumphs against Thierry Tulasne, Jeff Borowiak, Andres Gomez and Hooper. He earned $30,000 for second place in the tournament he had won four times.

The day continued to get richer for McEnroe after he beat Connors. McEnroe and Peter Fleming won the doubles championship and split $18,000 and Ferdie Taygan 7-6, 6-4.

Lendl, who is seeded second in the world behind McEnroe, captured to his eighth straight tournament title with a 6-4, 4-6, 6-4, 7-5 triumph over Peter McNamara of Australia in the final of the $300,000 WCT Gold Coast Cup Classic in Delray Beach, Fla.

The 21-year-old Czechoslovakian collected $100,000 and gave Lendl $530,000 in winnings since mid-January. He collected $430,000 at the Grand Prix Masters — $300,000 for finishing first in the Grand Prix standings, $30,000 for winning his round-robin group in the Masters and $100,000 for winning the Masters title.

"I played big points good. I didn't think he (McNamara) played the big points as well as he could have," Lendl said.

McNamara earned $40,000 for second place.

jump shot. Julius Erving of the Philadelphia 76ers missed an inside layup and fouled Sikma with 17 seconds to play, and the ball returned to the West.

The West found time for two more shots. Seattle guard Gus Williams' three-point attempt fell short, and Laker guard Earvin "Magic" Johnson missed a layup. Parish rebounded Johnson's shot in the final second, assuring the East its third consecutive victory and a 21-11 lead in the All-Star series.

"With Parish and Bird flying on the wings — and Parish is a great running center — it was a great move for them," Riley said of Fitch's fourth-quarter squad.

Eleven players scored in double figures, but Kareem Abdul-Jabbar of Los Angeles, the second most prolific scorer in NBA history, finished with just two points for the West.

Abdul-Jabbar blamed his lackluster performance on fatigue.

"The game started at 10 a.m. Los Angeles time, and I wasn't all here," Abdul-Jabbar said.

Stacy Wins In Playoff

DEERFIELD BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Hollis Stacy started the round with a two-stroke lead and upped it to four, but says she ended up feeling as if she were playing match golf before finally winning the $125,000 LPGA Whirlpool of Deer Creek Championship on the fifth playoff hole.

It took a 7-foot birdie putt on the fifth extra hole Sunday to put away JoAnne Carner and net Stacy the $18,750 top prize in the first stop of the 1982 Ladies Professional Golf Association tour. The players fought strong winds all day.

"It was like match play out there. I didn't play the greatest, but I played very efficient golf," said Stacy. "I didn't blow up when I had chances. I worked very hard and winning was very fulfilling."

She started the day two strokes ahead of Carner and moved out by four on the first two holes. After she faltered midway through the round, the two-time U.S. Women's Open champion had to scramble to climb back into a tie at 6-under-par 282 over the 6,079-yard Deer Creek Country Club course.

"I made a mid-course correction," said Stacy. "I usually get a little quick when I'm under pressure. I just moved the ball back in my stance a little and tried to slow it down."

Carner matched par with Stacy on the first four playoff holes — the 312-yard 10th, 161-yard 11th, the 397-yard 18th and the 10th again — but bogied the fifth extra hole, the 11th.

"No, I'm not disappointed," said Carner. "I played well and I didn't let her big lead early get to me. But it was very hard playing in the wind. It took all of our concentration."

Nancy Lopez-Melton closed with a 5-under-par 67 to finish two shots behind the leaders at 284. Lynn Adams was three shots further back at 287 and Cindy Hill finished at 288.

Germans Win Challenge

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (A) — John Paul pulled rank and it very nearly cost him the biggest race victory of his life.

The senior Paul combined with his son, John Paul Jr., and German road racing veteran Rolf Stommelen over the weekend to run away with the 20th edition of the Daytona 24-Hour Pepsi Challenge.

Sharing a powerful Porsche Turbo 935s, the trio took the lead on lap 60, just two hours into the race, and stayed on top the rest of the way. Driving conservatively for most of the daytime hours Sunday, they still were more than 11 laps ahead of the second-place 935 of Bob Akin, Craig Siebert and Englishman Derek Bell when the race ended at 3:30 p.m. EST.

But the elder Paul got into the distinctive light blue and yellow car with just 18 minutes left in the race and had the closest call of the 24 hours just two laps from the end.

"I tried to be a hero, getting in the car for the finish. John (Junior) has lots of races left in his career and I figured I'd better get one of these (24-hour victories) while I can," said the 43-year-old, Dutch-born driver with a sheepish smile.

"That was the only moment in the race when I was really in any trouble. And I was hoping nobody would see it."

"We were running for the (speed) record and I really was going faster than I should have been. I just cranked her up to see how much life was left in the old girl and she ran just as good as ever — but when I went into the first turn, there was a slower car and he just ran right up on me. That wasn't where I expected him to be and I wound up with about one foot on each side of the car."

"I just held my breath and kept driving," the elder Paul added. "I figured I'd really hear about it from these guys (his and Stommelen) if I messed it up."

The Porsche ran a virtually flawless race in making it six straight years in which the squat German-built 935s have won this race.

As those of you know who attended Saturday night's game in Minges Coliseum, a new scoreboard — actually a set of scoreboards has been installed — replacing the old scoreboard, installed when Minges was first built.

The new scoreboard consists of one over the center court, plus wall-mounted boards at each end of the coliseum. This makes it easier for the players to see what the game conditions are, as well as those who sit closer to the floor. They don't have to crane up to look at the scoreboard.

The end zone boards give the time, the score, whether the teams are in bonus or not, and which team will receive possession should a jump ball situation arise.

The center board tells the same information, and also gives the player who commits each foul, how many he's committed and how many team fouls have been called in the half.

There has been talk for several years of replacing the old scoreboard, which gave only the score and time and bonus indications. On at least two occasions last year, and any number of times in the past, the old scoreboard failed to function and caused many players, coaches and fans to mutter under their breath. Twice last season, time had to be kept with a stop watch at the scorer's table when the clock failed to work.

Athletic Director Ken Karr said last year he hoped to have a new scoreboard installed during the coming season, and his plans came to fruition Saturday night.

Actually, it was all quite a surprise for most of us. We knew that the boards were coming — sometime — but the actual arrival date was unknown. There was a certain amount of red tape that had to be cut in order for the boards to be installed, and athletic officials didn't want the boards here until they could be put up.

The boards, however, arrived on Friday, and were quickly assembled and installed in time to put them to use for the Saturday game.

They will be a welcome addition to Minges by both the athlete and fan alike.

And, for those of you who might wonder about the safety factor, there is little change of an accident. Some of you may remember that several years ago, the cable holding up the old scoreboard slipped, allowing the board to crash down on the gym floor — not long after the area had been vacated by the women's basketball team. At that time, the board, after being re-raised, was chained into place.

The new scoreboard, while open in the middle — unlike the old board — also can be raised and lowered by cable, but has two security chains to hold it in place, barring the chances of an accident.

As the month of February arrives, with it will come the signings of high school prepsters to football grants-in-aid. The NCAA's new rule, barring the so-called "conference letters of intent" sets only one signing date for gridgers, in February each year. That signing is nationally recognized, while the conference letters were only recognized within specific conferences.

East Carolina, while signing a number of junior college players — so-called instant help — will be hoping to sign a goodly number of incoming freshmen also. Fans await announcements of these signings over the new few weeks.

AFC Wins Pro Bowl...

(Continued from page 9) all week," he said. "They were picking up Randy White (of Dallas) a lot and I waited for him to clear out and then I rushed."

Lowery, a second-year pro out of Dartmouth who was turned down by eight NFL teams before catching on with the Chiefs, said he wasn't nervous before his game-winning kick.

"I thought before the kick, I've done it before and here it is again," he said.

He had missed a PAT attempt on the AFC's first touchdown when the snap from center was off, and also missed wide on a 52-yard field goal attempt earlier in the contest.

"I figured it would be a low-scoring game," said NFC Coach John McKay of Tampa Bay. "There was just too much defense. It takes longer than a week to get an offense coordinated."

The NFC, trailing 13-6 late in the final quarter, tied the game on a 4-yard touchdown run by Dallas' Tony Dorsett with 2:43 left.

The American Conference took a 6-0 halftime lead on a 4-yard scoring pass from San Francisco quarterback Joe Montana to Tampa Bay tight end Jimmie Giles just before the intermission. The score came after Dallas rookie Everson Walls made the first of his two interceptions of Fouts, returning the ball 12 yards to the AFC 4-yard line.

The PAT kick by Dallas' Rafael Septien was blocked by Kansas City's Gary Green.

The AFC bounced back with two third-period touchdowns, the first a 2-yard dash by San Diego's Chuck Muncie and the other a 1-yard spurt by Houston's Earl Campbell. The second score was set up when the New York Jets' Mark Gastineau plucked a Montana fumble out of the air and returned it 21 yards to the NFC 1-yard line.

Pittsburgh's Donnie Shell and Jack Lambert, and Denver's Randy Gradishar turned in fine defensive performances

U.S. Skaters Look To Win World Title

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Scott Hamilton and Rosalynn Summers, judged the best in U.S. figure skating for 1982, have gone home with a gold medal and hopes of winning another at the World Championship next month in Denmark.

"I'm going to add two more trophies to my program for the Worlds," said Hamilton, who was first in the men's event for the second straight year at the U.S. Figure Skating Championships, which ended Saturday.

"I've defended my national title, but that doesn't mean anything once we start world competition," said Hamilton, 23, of Denver, who was first in world competition last year at Hartford, Conn.

"By then, I hope, my hip will be OK and I can just go out and show what I can do," said Summers, 17, who, despite a hip injury, skated a graceful program that included difficult jumps and earned near-perfect marks from judges at Market Square Arena.

"I'm looking forward to the Worlds so I can show what I can do," said the Edmonds, Wash., resident, who won the women's program at the National Sports Festival last summer.

Also going to the World Championships in Copenhagen are the silver and bronze medalists in both the men's and women's categories, as well as the top three medalists in both the pairs and dance competition.

Rob-rt Wagenhoffer, 21, of Fontana, Calif., finished second for the men, followed by David Santee, 24, of Park Ridge, Ill. Santee, runnerup to Hamilton last year, finished second in world competition in 1981.

Vikki de Vries, 17, of Colorado Springs, Colo., was second for the women.

Fonda Delighted By His Award Last Of The Old-Time Musicians Dead At 69

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Henry Fonda, who matured playing Tom Joad, Mister Roberts, Abe Lincoln and Clarence Darrow, has won a Golden Globe Award for his portrayal of a bitter-old man in "On Golden Pond."

The 76-year-old actor, who was unable to attend the awards ceremony, watched the event in a delayed telecast at home with his daughter, Jane, and wife, Shirlee. Fonda, who was hospitalized for weeks with a heart ailment and recently returned home, was named Saturday by the Hollywood Foreign Press Association as best actor in a dramatic motion picture.

The award was accepted by Fonda's daughter and wife.

Ms. Fonda went to the stage and said: "My dad doesn't believe in competing, but still, I'm so happy for him. And if he's home and if he's painting and if he's figuring out what to do next, it's only partly because he's got such spirit and courage and determination. It's also a whole lot because of a woman named Shirlee."

She asked her stepmother to come on stage to accept the award.

Mrs. Fonda made an exuberant speech, reporting of her husband: "He's getting well, he's painting, he's walking with a cane, he's making great improvement, and it's all because of your love and your prayers."

"On Golden Pond" also won awards as best dramatic motion picture and for Ernest Thompson's screenplay.

"He was so pleased and so happy as he watched the awards," said Mrs. Fonda. "He never talks about awards and never likes to think about them, but I know he was delighted. His nurse said she had never seen him grinning so broadly."

Otherwise, the 39th Golden Globes was dominated by Dudley Moore and Alan Alda. Moore, the permanently bombed millionaire of "Arthur," claimed the award for best actor in a comedy or musical and also accepted for John Gielgud, who won as best supporting actor for his portrayal of Moore's dutiful butler.

The film was named best comedy or musical and also for best song, "Best That You Can Do."

Alda collected the Golden Globe as best actor in a TV comedy series and for "MASH" as best comedy series. However, his movie, "The Four Seasons," failed to win in three categories in which it was nominated.

Other major film awards: Meryl Streep, "The French Lieutenant's Woman," actress in a drama; Warren

Beatty, "Reds," director; Bernadette Peters, "Pennies From Heaven," actress in a comedy or musical; Joan Hackett, "Only When I Laugh," supporting actress; "Chariots of Fire," foreign film.

Confusing Him With His Roles

NEW YORK (AP) — Timothy Hutton, gaining a reputation as a box office draw at 21, says some people confuse him with the roles he plays in his movies.

In "Urinary People" he played Conrad Jarrett, a suicidal high schooler. That's where his trouble began with his fans, he says in the current issue of People magazine.

"They'd come up in restaurants and say, 'Are you OK? Are you better now?'"

Now it's the movie "Taps" that is causing trouble. In it, he plays the leader of a group of military academy cadets who break out their weapons to stop authorities from closing the school.

He says students whose schools face closing have contracted him.

"They now see me as kind of army. I could be a sort of consultant. You want to save your school? OK, I have M-16s, I have artillery."

HOUSTON (A) — Sam "Lightnin'" Hopkins, a self-taught guitarist and songwriter whose old-time, country-blues style influenced rock musicians of the 1960s and 1970s, is dead at age 69.

Hopkins, one of the most extensively recorded blues artists in the 1940s and 1950s, died Saturday morning from pneumonia brought on by cancer, said Dr. Cecil G. Harold, his physician and manager for the past 12 years.

Hopkins underwent surgery for cancer of the esophagus in July. He was admitted to the hospital Thursday for additional treatment, said hospital spokeswoman Betty White.

"He was very cheerful, and even tried to sing for the nurses. He was just in the last stages of his cancer," Ms. White said.

A contemporary of Muddy Waters, B.B. King and John Lee Hooker, Hopkins entertained audiences worldwide for more than 50 years with his loose guitar playing, his high-pitched voice and the extremely personal songs that reflected his social background.

He was born March 15, 1912, in the rural east Texas town of Centerville.

At age 7, Hopkins taught himself to play guitar on a makeshift instrument fashioned from a cigar box and chicken wire. He started performing at church events when he was 8. But he sang only one gospel song, "When the Saints Go Marching In," which he played while performing.

"It was his mother's favorite," Harold said.

Hopkins strummed for farmers at the Saturday night dances as a teen-ager. In the 1930s, he moved to Houston, where he performed at the bars and night spots in the city's black community.

In 1946, he traveled to Los Angeles to cut his first record, but later returned to his tiny apartment here. He seldom socialized and never had a telephone until he became ill last July, Harold said.

Hopkins cut more than 100 records on a dozen different labels and wrote more than 600 songs during his career. Among them were "Rocky Mountain," "Mr. Charlie," "Coffee Blues," "Short Haired Woman," and "Annie Mae."

He entertained on college campuses, at Greenwich Village folk clubs and at Carnegie Hall. He also toured Europe and played before Britain's Queen Elizabeth.

Despite his age, he was a favorite with folk and blues audiences in recent years, and his style was imitated by various rock musicians of the late 1960s and early 1970s.

Hopkins curtailed his touring after he was injured in a January 1970 automobile accident. He wore a neck brace except when playing and accepted few engagements outside the Houston area.

His last performance was a two-night stand last October at Tramps in New York. Both were sellouts.

Hopkins is survived by his wife, two daughters, one son and a half-sister.

A public memorial service was set for Tuesday night. Private family services were scheduled for Wednesday morning.

Wagner Resumes Appearances

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Actor Robert Wagner made his first two public appearances this weekend since his wife, Natalie Wood, drowned two months ago.

Wagner played softball and chatted with reporters Sunday to help kick off the American Heart Association's National Heart Month, which begins today.

On Saturday night, Wagner attended the 39th annual Golden Globe Awards with his daughter Kate.

The softball game, called "Play Ball for Hart to Heart," was designed to make everyone acutely aware of the nation's No. 1 killer — heart disease. The slogan was a play on the title of Wagner's TV series "Hart to Hart," in which he co-stars with Stephanie Powers.

About 3,000 people showed up to watch Wagner and Ms. Powers and other celebrities such as John Forsythe and Linda Evans — both of television's "Dynasty" — actor Lloyd Bridges, and former heavyweight champion Ken Norton.

Miss Wood drowned off Santa Catalina Island early on Nov. 30 when she fell from the yacht she and her husband owned.

PLAN CANDIDATES DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — The Irish Republican Army's Provisional wing says it will run at least six candidates for the Dail, the lower house of the Irish parliament, in the general election Feb. 18.

FOCUS

Literary Master

This Irish exile struggled most of his life against poverty, blindness and rejection of his work. His books were often difficult to read, full of obscure puns, songs and literary references, culled from his rich and wide-ranging interests in music, languages, theater, film and poetry. Joyce's writings were so candid that his own publisher in Ireland burned one edition. In the U.S., one book was banned 11 years for its sexual details. Despite these protests against his work, his imaginative use of language and free-flowing thoughts profoundly influenced the direction of modern literature. Tomorrow, on the centennial of his birth, many will agree that James Joyce was one of the greatest masters of English literature.

 What action do you take?
 A.—You could easily have a game. However, you might also have a dreadful misfit. What you do know is that you are looking at three sure defensive tricks and a singleton in partner's suit. A penalty double might yield a bonanza if partner has the right hand, and won't cost much if, by some chance, the opponents make their contract. Besides, partner can always pull the double if his hand is unsuited to defense.

 1 Pass 1NT Pass ?
 What action do you take?
 A.—Now that you know that partner has at least two hearts in his hand, it is time to tell him of your strength. Jump to three hearts. This is invitational, not forcing. In the light of your initial pass, you could hardly have more for this action.

Q.3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

 The bidding has proceeded:

 1♦ 4♦ ?
 What do you bid now?
 A.—East's preempt has achieved its purpose—you do not now have the room to explore scientifically the potential of the hand. We favor a jump to six hearts, but we would not fault you if you Blackwooded and bid seven hearts if you found an adequate number of aces and kings in partner's hand. However, a grand slam could be a risky venture because East has warned you that the suits won't be breaking well.

Illinois Used Car Lot Is Among Highest Priced

VOLO, Ill. (AP) — The sputtering economy that has deflated new car sales across the country is pumping up the antique car market, says Greg Grams, co-owner of the world's most expensive used car lot.

He and his brother, Bill, keep an 80-car, $3-million inventory at their Volo Antique Auto Museum and Village, 35 miles northwest of Chicago.

The Grams take classic and antique cars on consignment from collectors and investors, and sell them to others on a percentage basis, much like a real estate agent selling a home.

Between Nov. 1 and mid-January, the brothers had sold 11 cars, several for well over $100,000. Some of their listings are as high as $250,000.

"It's the biggest run we've had in that short period of time for cars in that price range, and it comes in winter weather that usually turns buyers off," says Grams, 31. "Buyers are going for the big stuff, not the toys which are bought for fun."

"Most of the owners are businessmen strapped for cash and reluctantly put their prime cars on the market. Other collectors know what is happening and are picking them up, some under the appraised value. When the economy improves, it will tighten up again," he says.

Old cars, kept in mint condition and perhaps driven only in parades, are like jewels to their owners, who ship them in special transports to classic auto club shows throughout the country. Most of the pampered machines are pre-World War II models.

Grams works from a "value book" in pricing the gleaming cars, which are kept in heated exhibition rooms. Buyers probably will keep them a few years before trying to sell. Like vintage wine, they get better, and more valuable, with age, Grams says.

"It's a buyers' market now and it's big business," says Grams. "We listed five cars, ranging from $89,000 to $135,000, as 'Santa Specials' and sold three of them. It was a shock. We never expected them to be snapped up like that."

Among the five were three 100-point cars, rated perfect in grand classic car club judging.

"It is very unusual for anyone in the business to have three 100-pointers at the same time," says Grams. "Last summer there were only 24 'perfect cars' at Classic Car Club of America's grand national shows."

Two of the Grams' 100-pointers were sold:
 —A 1939 Packard V-12 convertible with rumble seat. It was the last V-12 Packard produced and one of only 16 made with a rumble seat; gun metal gray with red leather upholstery and black canvas top with red piping. Priced at just $135,000.
 —A 1931 16-cylinder Cadillac Fleetwood touring car in emerald green with gray interior, black-chrome accents and super size whitewalls. Features included twin side mirrors, twin spare tires, double horns, triple headlights, and pilot ray lights that turn with the front wheels. Priced at $125,000.

The third 100-pointer still for sale is a Lincoln KB convertible seating seven, in

EXPENSIVE USED-CAR LOT — Greg Grams stands beside a Lincoln KB convertible in Volo, Ill. The car seats seven, is red with beige leather interior. Ford made only 1,800 of these 12-cylinder models. The price of this used car? $165,000. (AP Laserphoto)

Handgun Ban Starts In Chicago Suburb Today

MORTON GROVE, Ill. (AP) — Residents in this Chicago suburb were ordered to drop their guns starting today, but city officials say no one will have to come out with their hands in the air.

Enforcement of the nation's first local ordinance prohibiting the sale and possession of handguns takes effect today while a federal appeals court considers whether it is constitutional. The law previously survived state and federal court challenges.

Bob Dyslin, a member of the Morton Grove American Legion gun club, said the new law resulted from "a conspiracy to move the country toward socialism," adding gun owners would "wisely hide them."

But authorities in this suburb of 26,500 northwest of Chicago dismiss predictions of a mini police state, saying they do not plan to raid private homes in a bid to root out handguns.

Such weapons will be confiscated if found in the open, like on the seat of a car on a routine traffic stop, police chief Larry Schey said. "We haven't some kind of quota to fill," he said. "We won't be kicking down doors to get handguns."

And the ordinance's author is confident that life in the community will go on almost as if nothing happened.

"When Monday comes, we think it will be the biggest non-story around," village attorney Martin Ashman said. "Nothing is going to happen, unless someone tries to bait police into search and seizure for a test case. And I don't look for people with handguns to be trooping to the police station to turn them in."

"Morton Grove won't look any different Feb. 1 than it did the day before," said Ashman.

Dyslin, a 51-year-old Korean War veteran, accused the news media of presenting gun proponents as "right-wing bigots" when, in fact, they are patriots.

But other residents are convinced the time has come for gun control.

"Something needs to be done about enforcing handgun control," advertising executive Robert J. Berns said. "I think everyone agrees that some type of handgun control is needed." Berns said he has never owned a gun, but if he did he would turn it in.

The village board passed the handgun ordinance in June, and national attention that focused on Morton Grove was expected to continue as enforcement of the new law begins today.

Under the ordinance, handguns cannot be sold within town limits and only law enforcement officials and licensed collectors can own the weapons.

last of its model to be built and only 15 are known to be in existence. It was listed at $125,000.

The other is a 99½-point 1937 Packard Victorian convertible with custom body in delectable cream color. "It runs silently now, but lost a half point because of a 'noisy' generator at the judging," says Grams. It's priced at $89,000.

Two of the other "Santa Specials" were listed under the heading, "Not All of Us Are Perfect."

The one sold was a 97-point, slate blue 1931 Packard roadster. It was the

Many Urging Repeal Of Recent Tax Deduction

By JIM LUTHER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The headlines are about 9 million Americans unemployed, interest rates stuck in the 15-percent range, record budget deficits looming on the horizon and freedom under attack in Poland.

So what's keeping lawmakers awake at night?

If the Congressional Record for the first week of the 1982 session of Congress is any indication, one of the biggest immediate worries is the tax deduction members of the House and Senate voted themselves last year.

More than 100 members, including the House Democratic and Republican leaders and the Senate Democratic leader, have signed nearly 20 bills to repeal or reduce the new deduction. Numerous speeches have complained about how bad it makes Congress look.

But Rep. Paul Findley, R-Ill., apparently is alone in his form of protest: He announced he will not claim the deduction when he files his tax return this year.

The protesters are upset at the size of the deduction — coming as it does when government programs are being slashed — and at the way it was enacted.

The deduction probably will save the typical lawmaker about $10,000 a year in taxes; in a few cases, a member might be able to avoid any tax at all on the $60,662 congressional salary.

The higher deduction was approved by the Senate by a two-vote margin last December as an amendment to a bill raising the tax on coal. That package was then accepted by the House under procedures barring any amendment.

There was some protest at the time, but nothing like that being heard now.

"Two hundred years ago, American patriots rose up in revolution against the basic evil of taxation without representation," Sen. Howell Heflin, D-Ala., said last week. "But now that most members of Congress have taken their own names off the taxpayer rolls, there very well could be another revolution in this country — against what is being widely perceived as representation without taxation."

Congress voted last October to end the 27-year-old $3,000 limit on the amount of Washington living expenses a member could deduct. Then in December, the House and Senate made sure part of the cost of buying and maintaining a Washington home could be deducted.

As a final step, to avoid keeping records of expenses, Congress ordered the Internal Revenue Service to allow Senate and House members to claim a flat deduction for Washington expenses without having to show any proof.

Members now have three options: They may claim $75 a day — even when they're not in Washington — to cover all their Washington expenses; or $50 per day, plus the interest and property taxes they pay on their Washington home; or they may deduct whatever they can substantiate.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., gave this example of how the daily deduction would work:

"We actually will on a given day — say next Saturday — have the federal government pick up my tab for a motel in Milwaukee, Wis. It will pay for three meals in Kenosha, Racine and Beloit, Wis. I will spend every minute of that 24 hours away from Washington — out in my state — but I will have $75 deducted from my income in computing my income tax for Washington expenses which I did not incur, because I am not here."

Rep. Marge Roukema, R-N.J., said if members of Congress have legitimate deductions, "we can take them but we should have to itemize just like everyone else."

"While we talk of closing (tax) loopholes, we have created an enormous one for ourselves," said Sen. Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M.

Mail from constituents may be behind Congress' concern about what it has done for itself.

Rep. Gary A. Lee, R-N.Y., received this letter from two elderly constituents in Painted Post, N.Y.: "How do you think people of your district feel? Especially when the elderly (80-year bracket) have their taxes raised and ... you in Congress keep lowering our benefits. Think about us."

N.C. Gets Taxes Back

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A study of North Carolina's return for tax dollars sent to the federal government differs from previous studies which said the state either broke even or lost money on such exchanges.

According to the 1980 Tax Foundation report, North Carolina received $1 in federal grants and aid for each 92 cents in federal taxes. Interest in rates of return to states has increased since President Ronald Reagan made his "new federalism" proposals last week.

"I've seen those studies over the years, and basically we get back about what we put in," said Charles D. Liner, associate professor at the North Carolina Institute of Government in Chapel Hill.

The studies differ because they include varying programs as part of their formulas.

According to the Tax Foundation study, North Carolina sent $1.77 billion in taxes to Washington and received $1.93 billion in federal aid through 100 programs, including most of those the president is considering returning to the states.

The study does not include such items as payrolls for federal employees in the state or Social Security checks, which presumably won't be affected by Reagan's proposals.

CHANCELLOR'S LIST
CHARLOTTE — Pitt County native Timothy G. Manning of 1409 E. 14th Street, Greenville, is among the University of North Carolina at Charlotte students making the chancellor's list for the 1981 fall semester.

To qualify for the chancellor's list, a student must maintain a "B" average with no grade lower than a "C".
