11.5 FEET AND STILL RISING ... In contrast to the almost-dry riverbed that was a familiar sight last summer and fall, rain early this year has filled the Tar River to a level that Greenville Utilities' Water Plant officials term "unusual" for this time of year. The river, measured on the National Weather Service Gauge pictured above, stood at 11.5 feet this morning and, according to GUC's Water Plant, was "still rising." A normal reading is between 4 and 4½ feet. This gauge measures the river depth from the bottom of the river to the top of the water. (Reflector Photo By Tommy Forrest)

Haig Raps Helsinki Violations

MADRID (AP) — Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. accused the Soviet Union and the Polish military government today of "a willful violation of solemn international accords" because of the martial law crackdown in Poland.

In a blistering attack on the two countries, Haig objected to talking in Madrid about improved relations between East and West when past agreements have been violated.

"We cannot pretend to build up the structure of peace and security here in Madrid while the foundation for that structure is being undermined in Poland," he told the 35-nation Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe.

Haig accused the Soviets of seven specific violations of the 1975 Helsinki accords, which committed the 35 nations meeting here to respect human rights and national sovereignty in Europe.

The meeting here is a followup session to the 1975 Helsinki accords designed to promote security and cooperation in Europe. The conference involves Western European countries, East bloc countries, the United States and Canada. The Madrid meeting has been at work on extending the pact to ease East-West tensions in Europe.

"We would be threatening the future peace of Europe if we ignored this dramatic attack on international principles," Haig said of the Polish crackdown.

Both the Soviet and Polish delegations were in the audience as Haig spoke. The meeting was closed to the press. Haig's remarks were distributed to the press by aides.

Speeches by the Poles and Soviets were not made public, but a conference official said both delegations said events in Poland were not a proper subject for the conference.

Leonid Ilychev, the Soviet delegate, denied the Soviets were responsible for events in Poland, which he characterized as an internal affair. He also accused the United States of violating the Helsinki accords on human rights because of its support for the government of El Salvador in the bloody fight against guerrillas, the conference official said.

Haig said a "forcible suppression" of freedom and self-determination is underway in Poland, where martial law was declared Dec. 13 and the independent union Solidarity suspended.

"The generals of this war against the Polish people are none other than the Polish regime itself, acting under the instigation and coercion of the Soviet Union," he declared.

But referring to events in Poland, Haig said, "Nothing endangers security and cooperation in Europe more than the threat and the use of force to deny internationally recognized rights."

Haig said "business-as-usual here at Madrid would simply condone the massive violations" of the Helsinki accords and urged that the focus of the conference henceforth be on Poland until the crackdown ends.

Last-minute negotiations were necessary to make sure Haig was allowed time to speak at the conference. A compromise with the Polish chairman resulted in Haig speaking fifth, after originally being 13th on the list of speakers. As part of the compromise, the Polish delegate spoke ahead of Haig and the Soviet Union spoke afterward.

West Germany's foreign minister, Hans-Dietrich Genscher, said, meanwhile, that the allies had put off a decision on how long to allow the conference to continue.

Redistricting Again Goal

Assembly's Special Session Is Begun

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — After failing in two earlier sessions, the General Assembly met again today in hopes of finding successful redistricting formulas for state House, Senate and congressional seats.

Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green and House Speaker Liston Ramsey opened the special session at 10 a.m., and with the cost to taxpayers running $25,000 for every day legislators are in Raleigh, there were calls for a speedy adjournment.

"We have but one important task before us, and that is to properly redistrict the state to reflect the 1980 census," Green said. "We elected officials owe it to all North Carolinians, whatever their race and whatever their political affiliation, to resolve this problem as quickly and fairly as possible."

The session, called by Gov. Jim Hunt at the request of legislative leaders, is the third special session since last October and the second special session to deal with redistricting. The reapportionment puzzle also preoccupied legislators during last year's six-month long regular session.

Ramsey said he hoped the latest meeting could be wrapped up by Friday and that few changes would be made in plans offered by committees.

"They've tried to do the least damage to incumbents of either party," he said. "But somebody's going to get hurt politically. It has to happen any time you have population shifts."

There are three fronts to the legislative reapportionment fight, and as the session opened there appeared to be sharp disagreements among legislative leaders on what course to take on one of them: congressional districts.

Led by House Speaker Pro Tem Rep. Allen Barbee, D-Nash, allies of 2nd District U.S. Rep. L.H. Fountain laid plans to propose a resolution that the legislature toss out a new congressional map recommended by its committees and call on state attorneys to begin legal defenses of the 1981 plan already rejected by the U.S. Justice Department.

Barbee said no firm decision had been made on whether to introduce the resolution, but his side appeared to be gaining some encouragement from state attorneys.

"There is some hope for the 1981 plan," said Jim Wallace, deputy state attorney general. "If they want to stick with it, we'll do everything we can."

On the Senate side, Majority Leader Kenneth Royall, D-Durham, said he believed sentiment was growing for a full defense of the earlier congressional map, particularly since all 11 congressmen have said they prefer it.

Wallace said lawyers were prepared to ask the U.S. Justice Department, which rejected all three plans passed last year, to reconsider its rejection of the congressional plan under the federal Voting Rights Act — and if that failed, to appeal it into federal court. But he said they were awaiting a signal from legislators.

But Rep. J.P. Huskins, D-Iredell, chairman of the House Committee on Congressional Redistricting, called the idea of defending the 1981 plan a "dying gasp" of Barbee and his allies.

"I don't believe the House would pass it," he said of the resolution.

Power Agency Officials Taking Final Look At Purchase Proposal

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Representatives of North Carolina Power Agency No. 3 met today in Raleigh with officials of Carolina Power and Light Co. to take a final look at a proposal to purchase generating facilities from CP&L.

The first stage of the $1.2 billion deal — selling $400 million in bonds — has been postponed. However, power agency spokesman Jack Aulis said, "I don't have any doubt the deal will go through. I just don't know when."

"The whole point of this is to save money on the cost of power the cities will buy, and we have to make sure we have all the information."

Greenville and 10 other power agency members formerly served by Virginia Electric & Power Co. began receiving agency power Dec. 30. In effect, the agency, purchasing electricity from both Vepco and CP&L, then became the wholesale supplier for the municipalities, rather than Vepco.

The other 21 cities — now CP&L customers — will begin receiving agency power at the time of the initial closing, which had been set for this month.

GUC spokesman Malcolm Green said this morning that the postponement of the first closing resulted from a decision by CP&L that two units at the Harris nuclear plant in Wake County would not be built, and construction of one coal-fired unit at the Mayo station near Roxboro, would be postponed for 12 months.

"It's not a re-evaluation of the feasibility of the plan at all," Green said of the delay in selling the bonds. Since the two Harris units are not going to be built, the agency is "recalculating the figures ... (to) know exactly what the savings will be. We just want to take a final look at it (the figures) before we commit."

Green theorized that when the "complete reanalysis" of the figures is finished the projected savings will be "cut sharply." However, he emphasized that along with the cut in projected savings will be a corresponding reduction in the amount of bonds to be sold to finance the buy-in.

As an example, Green said, "There are still savings. But you spend half the money" to close the deal and "get half the savings" that were predicted.

"None of us know yet how the figures will fall out. We'll know more after today's meeting," Green explained.

'Horror Stories'

Reagan Attacking Critics

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP)

— President Reagan, going on the attack against his critics, says Democratic demagogues are preparing "horror stories" about his 1983 budget but offer no reasonable alternative.

Reagan was taking his sharpened sales pitch to the Republican-controlled Iowa legislature today, where he was expected to continue the ad-libbed slashes he began Monday in Minneapolis at the start of a two-day, Midwestern trip.

The president was wrapping up the promotional tour at Indianapolis later today. Similar outings through the West and Deep South are planned for next month.

"You have to get about 50 miles at least from the Potomac River and the District of Columbia to get back to the real world," Reagan told an approving crowd in Minneapolis.

"In the days ahead you are going to be submerged in demagoguery about the '83 budget," Reagan continued. "You're hearing all kinds of horror stories about the people who are going to be thrown out in the snow to hunger and die of cold and so forth."

Reagan fired his impromptu remarks at a rally for Sen. David Durenberger, R-Minn. Deputy press secretary Larry Speakes said some of the barbs were written on the flight from Washington but that Reagan thought of most of them as he spoke.

"They came from the heart," Speakes said, thumping himself on the chest for emphasis.

Reagan said Democrats are accusing him of cruel budget cutting when he actually has not reduced the budget at all. He said total spending in 1983 will be higher than in 1982 and that this year's total is higher than 1981 because of automatic escalation created by Democrats.

"We have been reducing the rate of increase that has been built in," Reagan said.

The president complained that while Democrats criticize his budget because of the $91.5 billion deficit it projects, they have nothing to offer themselves except higher taxes.

"They're horrified by the thought of a deficit," he said. "And so, therefore, they say that we must increase the taxes, forget this business of the tax cuts that we put into effect, and that we must do this because we must not have that unbalanced budget."

"We've only balanced one budget in the last 20 years, and their party has been in power almost uninterrupted in both houses of the legislature for the last 40 years," Reagan said.

Reagan said he will not back down on his plans for greatly expanded defense spending despite suggestions that Congress, especially the Democrats there, will insist on some cuts.

"It will take us into the middle of the 1980s before we can even begin to come close to what the Soviet Union has built up to threaten us with," he said.

Outside, an estimated 1,200 protesters marched in opposition to administration policies.

Some of the demonstrators, who came from labor, religious, women's, elderly and civil rights groups, carried signs reading "Reaganomics: Robs the Poor and Gives to the Rich."

Winterville's Electric Refund To Be Used On New Power Line

By TOMMY FORREST
Reflector Staff Writer

WINTERVILLE — Town officials say $92,465 returned to Winterville in the form of an electric refund will be used to construct a two-mile power line from the Greenville Utilities Commission substation on the edge of the town.

Alderman Bobby Crawford, responding to citizens' questions at Monday night's board meeting, said that by using power from the GUC substation the town could reduce its wheeling cost (the cost of moving power from one point to another) and save more money. Any of the refund left over after constructing the line would be passed on to consumers, Crawford said.

The refund represents Winterville's share of electric payments returned by Virginia Electric and Power Co. to its wholesale customers.

Crawford noted that, if the town were to refund the full amount to consumers, the refund would be so small it would hardly be noticed.

Town Clerk Elwood Nobles said Dibble and Associates of Washington, N.C., have been employed to determine the exact cost of the transmission line. An estimate of that cost is expected to be available at the board's next meeting.

In other action by the board, prices were set for plots at the North Winterville Cemetery. Nobles reported that the cost will be the same as the present cemetery, with a 5- by 10-foot plot costing $100 for intown residents and $200 for out-of-town residents.

A public hearing was also held to change organization of a fire department ordinance. The wording was changed to read "members must maintain the number of training hours required by the state or be dropped by the department."

Nobles also reported the town dog warden picked up 12 dogs during January.

Approximately 146 tons of rock were placed on the dirt streets in the town during January because of bad weather.

Heating Cost Relief For 2,946 Pitt Households

RALEIGH — A total of 2,946 households in Pitt County will be receiving $346,901 this week to help pay for winter heating bills.

The North Carolina Department of Human Resources has announced that Low-Income Energy Assistance checks amounting to $20.9 million are going out this week to 142,200 low-income households across the state for assistance in payment of winter heating bills.

The statewide breakdown county by county reveals the following number of households and amount of funds being allocated to

- Beaufort County, 1,341 households, $135,548.
  - Craven County, 2,369 households, $250,699.
  - Edgecombe County, 2,158 households, $273,015.
  - Greene County, 848 households, $121,300.
  - Lenoir County, 2,216 households, $270,779.
  - Martin County, 1,096 households, $144,200.
  - Wilson County, 2,280 households, $299,513.
- George Flemming, assistant director of the department's Division of Social Services, says the one-time payments vary from $60 to $514 per household in private living arrangements. The average payment is approximately $147.

"The amount of payment each household will receive depends on the number of people in the household, their income, the climatic region of the state where they live, and the type fuel used for heating," Flemming commented.

Eligibility for the federal Low-Income Energy Assistance payments was determined by county social services department during November and December based on eligibility standards established by the state. Additionally, another 1,000 low-income households will receive payment later in the month totalling about $147,000. These are households whose applications required further processing for various reasons.

North Carolina was originally authorized to receive $35.5 million in these funds for 1982, according to Flemming. He noted that Congress has not taken final action on the 1981-82 budget, but thus far, North Carolina has received an amount that totals $26.4 million.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Snow is expected in the forecast period until Wednesday morning for areas of the northern Plains and New York and New England. Showers and snow flurries are forecast for the southwest. Mild weather is expected for the Pacific coast and across the southern half of the nation. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press
Most of North Carolina was expected to have a rainy day today, as a cold front approached that should bring clearing skies and colder temperatures by Wednesday.

The cold front extended from Kentucky to the Louisiana Gulf Coast this morning. It was expected to move into the North Carolina mountains late today and across the state tonight.

The cold front triggered some thunderstorms through the Mississippi Valley Monday night. It may also cause a few thunderstorms across North Carolina this afternoon and early tonight.

Behind the cold front, skies will clear tonight and colder air will move back into the state. Temperatures will be rather mild today with highs in the 50s and 60s for the most part. Lows tonight will range from the teens and low 20s in the mountains to the 30s in the east.

Highs Wednesday will be in the upper 20s across the northern mountains, and in the upper 30s and 40s across the rest of the state.

Cloudiness increased last night. Overnight lows were in the upper 30s and 40s for the most part.

Under partly cloudy skies Monday afternoon, temperatures warmed into the 50s across much of the state.

There were a few readings in the lower 60s in the southeast.

Recreational weather outlook: Developing rain will hamper outdoor activities today. No rain is expected Wednesday but temperatures will be rather cold. On the coast southerly winds will increase to 15 to 25 knots today and shift to northwest tonight. Small craft advisories may be needed this afternoon.

The rain will change to light snow or snow flurries across the northern mountains late today. A travelers advisory may be needed for the northern mountains late today or early tonight.

Green Beret Volunteering Test Vaccine

FORT BRAGG, N.C. (AP) — Government researchers are using Green Berets at Fort Bragg to test a new way of administering rabies vaccines researchers say could reduce the cost of the shots by 90 percent.

Maj. Bob Rippe, operations officer in the surgeon's office of the John F. Kennedy Center for Military Assistance at Fort Bragg, said the method uses an air-injection gun to get the syrum into the skin. Traditionally, a syringe has been used to inject the medicine into the muscle.

In addition, the new method calls for a dosage one-tenth the size of the old vaccine.

Doctors from the Walter Reed Army Hospital and the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta are conducting the experiment, Rippe said. The CDC already has done some tests with the smaller dosage.

He said the vaccines often are given to veterinarians or laboratory workers who handle animals to build their immunity to the disease.

Rabies is an infectious virus disease of the central nervous system that is transmitted through the bite of infected animals, usually dogs. It is characterized by choking or convulsions.

Once the symptoms become apparent, Rippe said, the disease usually is fatal. Before the symptoms appear, victims are treated with injections of the syrum, which is taken from human cell cultures.

The new vaccination method would be less painful and less expensive than the traditional method, Rippe said. He noted that it costs $120 to get the required three doses of the existing vaccine compared to $12 for the new, lower-dosage vaccine.

"I have heard the old vaccine was quite painful," Rippe said. "But I have had the vaccine they're administering now and it was not painful at all."

Ingram Ordered Not To Suppress Newsletter

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A federal judge has ordered North Carolina Insurance Commissioner John Ingram to stop suppressing distribution of an insurance industry newsletter.

The editor of the newsletter hailed the decision, while a spokesman for Ingram repeated Ingram's denials that the insurance department had ever formally tried to suppress the newsletter.

The newsletter, The Insurance Forum, was critical of the A.L. Williams Co., a fast-growing company which reportedly sells most of its policies by persuading people to drop their policies with other companies.

U.S. District Judge Franklin T. Dupree directed Ingram to retract an October letter written by a department attorney that had characterized the April issue of The Insurance Forum, based in Indiana, as a "misrepresentation" of the Williams company.

Joseph M. Belth, editor of the newsletter, said of the ruling: "We're pleased. We felt that we should prevail in this matter, and we did."

But Oscar S. Smith, Ingram's press secretary, said: "Our intent has never been to suppress (the newsletter)." Smith declined to comment on Dupree's ruling Monday, saying he hadn't seen it yet.

The issue arose when Belth, in last April's issue of The Insurance Forum, criticized the Williams firm's sales tactics and its product. He compared the sales activities with "churning," a practice in which stock brokers buy and sell a client's holdings for the sole purpose of creating commissions.

A.L. Williams contends the "churning" reference misrepresents the company.

Belth filed suit against Ingram in late December, contending that the insurance department had called the article misleading and that some agents of competing companies had been reprimanded for showing the article to their customers.

"In the absence of a determination that the Belth article is misleading, it cannot be suppressed," Dupree wrote in his ruling.

Dupree also directed Ingram to instruct A.L. Williams not to circulate the department letter, written by attorney Ronald Raxter. Dupree ordered Ingram to remove from department files any reference to actions "taken or to be taken" by the department, based on an agent's or company's distribution of the newsletter.

"If It Doesn't Tick, Tock to Us"

Dear Abby

Offer To Make Reservations

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I were transferred to Tucson, Ariz., with the Air Force, and we love it here. All of a sudden we get a call from an old Air Force buddy of my husband saying that he and his wife are coming to Tucson "sometime in March" and they'd love to stay with us!

This all took place on the phone, Abby, and I was so shocked I can't even remember what I said.

They are nice people and we have nothing against them, but we don't feel comfortable with anyone else in our home. I suppose it sounds terrible, but when we go out of town we never stay with friends, and we don't want anyone staying with us. They know we have a two-bedroom house, so we can't say we don't have room. If we say we aren't going to be in town, they'll ask when we will be in town and arrange to come when we're home.

We've been stalling because we don't know what to tell them. One thing is certain, we don't want them staying with us! Help!

TRAPPED IN TUCSON

DEAR TRAPPED: Either call or write and tell them you will be glad to make reservations for them at a convenient motel or hotel. You are not obligated to tell them why they can't stay with you. And don't feel guilty. It's your home and you don't have to cave in to guests who invite themselves.

DEAR ABBY: I work as a shampoo girl. I get only $1.75 an hour, which is practically peanuts.

Please let people know they should tip their shampoo girls. Unless, of course, I'm wrong.

DISH-HEAD HANDS

DEAR DISH-HEAD: Nobody should tip anyone unless he or she wants to show appreciation for a job well done. An extra-special shampoo usually delights the customer into tipping well and cheerfully. If you are not trying to satisfy each customer by determining what kind of shampoo she wants (heavy? light?), try it.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

I'm a worrier. Especially when the weather is bad and I'm housebound.

Like, where are the Nielsen families and why do they watch all the shows I turn off? They're the most well-kept secret since Judge Crater. Not only have I never seen a Nielsen family, I have never known anyone who has ever seen a Nielsen family or even gotten a Christmas newsletter from them.

In my mind, I visualize them as a family of pale, hollow-eyed TV junkies where the "Daddy" carries the TV knob around in his pocket. "Daddy" likes women with good posture, a good car chase, and has seen more Bowls than the latrine officer at Ft. Dix.

My ultimate aim in life is to be offered a television series called "The Nielsen Family" so I could turn them off.

And where is Mrs. Tucker's Inn? My husband and I have been looking for a whipped cream experience in some little lodge off a country road for a long time. It has to be the only restaurant in the world with an unlisted phone number.

And what in the world do all those anchorpersons do with those papers they shuffle around all the time? Dan Rather slides his one at a time to a faceless person off camera. Jessica Savitch marks things on hers. John Chancellor straightens his like he's putting them back in a ream, and Roger Mudd folds his and takes them with him when he goes.

The news is on a teleprompter, so how come they fiddle with all those sheets of paper?

And what's going to happen to the test-tube babies when they grow up and ask the time-honored question, "Where did I come from?" Have you any idea how that is going to confuse the answer of sex-education experts like myself who said, "You come from Ohio?"

I suppose I'm borrowing trouble, but where is our vice president, George Whatshisname? I haven't seen him nor hair of the man since he attended a wedding... or was it a funeral? No, I remember now, it was the inauguration. Some say he's keeping a low profile. Sandra Dee keeps a low profile.

He was a nice-looking man, as I remember him, and spoke well of his job. I certainly hope he's all right.

I'll be glad when spring comes. I worry less in the spring.

Which System Is Best?

Is the semester system better than the quarter system for institutions of higher learning?

Evidently the state's universities feel that it is but the community colleges prefer the quarter system.

East Carolina University switched from the quarter system to semesters five years ago. Those who were enrolled at the time recall it as a traumatic time but university officials say the transition went smoothly. Basically the regular school year is now broken up into two terms rather than three as it was in the past.

A major advantage seems to be that less time is spent by students and staff undergoing the registration process since one of these is eliminated for the school year. In East Carolina's case the semester break comes before the Christmas holidays. Under the old quarter system the winter quarter was broken by the holidays.

Regardless, the quarter system still serves Pitt Community College, as well as other community colleges. They say the system better serves their technical courses.

In any debate about the two systems, those who fear flunking a course point out that less time is lost in failing a course for a quarter than for a semester, but then college is not supposed to be geared to failure.

At any rate, either system demands that a certain number of courses be passed and a certain grade average be maintained for graduation. Thus you might say the semester-quarter system debate is academic.

Protection Is Justified

Last week there was a loud report as Vice President George Bush was motoring to work.

The vehicle sped off and soon an armada of police, helicopters and riot squads had converged on the area.

A careful investigation finally determined that the vice presidential limousine hadn't been attacked. Rather it had been hit by a piece of what appeared to be concrete.

Was there an overreaction? Hardly. We have had the president shot and a general captured in the past few months. We can't take too much precaution in protecting our leadership. We ask them to do a job for us and they deserve what protection we can give them.

Profound Changes

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH—Winds of change in matters of government are approaching gale force in North Carolina and Washington, D.C. Students of government and politics must wonder what history books will record of this revolution.

Peaceful though it is, the change is revolutionary. Call it what you will — New Federalism, or retreat, or a return to the basic tenets of democracy espoused by the Founders — when some final order emerges from the upheaval, it will be seen that longstanding traditions and philosophies have tumbled.

Complicating the matter in North Carolina is the subtlety of change taking place almost out of sight of the average citizen.

Few headlines and hardly any television reports can capture the far-reaching consequences of political and power and money struggles now taking place backstage at the Legislative Building and the Governor's Mansion.

Civics Lesson

With the changes already in the works at the federal level, and those yet to come from the Reagan Administration and a sympathetic Congress, little wonder that Bill Finger, editor of N.C. Insight, takes pause to wonder: "High school civics teachers must be a frustrated group these days. Their only sources of explaining the changes now taking place in government are daily news reports."

"Standard textbooks discuss the familiar concepts of checks and balances, of federal/state/local interaction, and of taxing and spending patterns in these 50 United States.

"But the political events of 1981 have altered the way in which every level of government works." Finger works with the N.C. Center for Public Policy Research, a non-profit organization which attempts to keep track of change and trends and the impact likely to result.

The current issue is devoted to the profound change in government, providing a running review of things to date in matters of federal budget cuts, gubernatorial powers and how succession has affected things, the power growth of the General Assembly, how money problems are affecting spending and taxing decisions, the ways in which block grants will affect programs and relationships at the federal, state and local levels, and, social impacts of the spending and administrative shifts.

All of which the editorial pages of the state's newspapers continue heavy with, and which any number of serious students of government keep tabs on.

But for the average taxpayer and citizen, it's all too much trouble to comprehend.

Opportunity

Fact is, however, that unless those civics teachers whom Finger mentions do grasp the opportunity to abandon the textbooks and turn to the current events publications such as newspapers, publications from the Institute of Government at Chapel Hill, and those from the Center for Public Policy Research, youngsters will miss out on a grand exercise in how revolutionary change can occur in a peaceable and democratic society. And they will little understand what structure government has taken when the process is further along.

This is equally true for people all across the state who, without the leadership and expertise of a civics teacher to help them, must also come to grips with the change.

The biggest danger facing taxpayers today in the midst of all this upheaval is that power-grasping politicians at

Other Editors Say Governor's Office

(Rocky Mount Evening Telegram)

There are many political observers in North Carolina who believe the General Assembly is becoming dangerously powerful, and those observers resent it. One example of its expanding power is the practice of naming its own members to committees and commissions that really should not have such legislative influence.

But of course this is only one example. What many people are concerned about is that the executive branch has not kept pace in its authority. While the office has been strengthened by a constitutional amendment allowing succession, North Carolina's governorship remains one of the weakest in the nation, according to one report.

An analysis by the North Carolina Center for Public Policy Research Inc., says the 1976 amendment backed by Gov. Jim Hunt allowing governors to succeed themselves and the control that the state's governors have over appointments were strong points for the office.

But the article, entitled "How Powerful is the North Carolina Governor?" found the office is weakened in a number of ways.

According to the survey: —The Tar Heel governor is the only one in the United States without some type of veto power.

—The existence of the Advisory Budget Commission significantly dilutes the budget powers of North Carolina governors.

—North Carolina provides for the separate election of a lieutenant governor, which the study said weakens governors.

In addition, the state has seven other separately elected positions that affect the amount of power the governor wields.

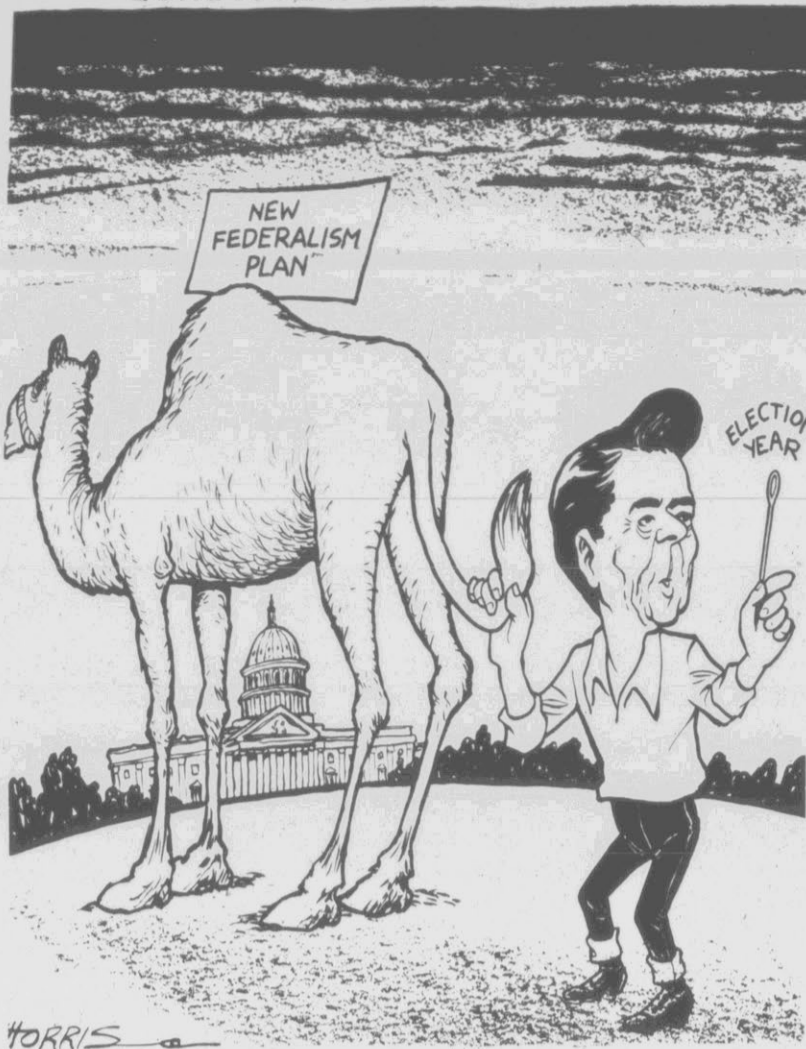

Thad Beyle, a Univ. of N.C. at Chapel Hill professor of political science who compiled the survey, said results showed that Southern governors do not generally have as much formal power as do non-Southern governors. Moreover, N.C. has not kept pace with its neighbors in enhancing the governor's powers.

He said the wide range of informal powers available to the North Carolina governor tends to balance out structural weaknesses in tenure, appointment, budget, organization and veto.

As a result, the degree of power that the governor has depends upon the person in the position, how well he uses the powers available and how long he occupies the position.

We believe Gov. Hunt is as strong a chief executive as we have had in some time, and he makes full use of his office; but the weaknesses cited by the report point up the need for a realignment of the balance of powers between the executive and legislative branches.

QUITE A FEAT IF HE CAN DO IT!

By JAMES KILPATRICK

But, It Will Never Fly

WASHINGTON — President Reagan's proposed flight back to federalism is so sound in principle that it seems a pity to venture a melancholy prediction: It won't get off the ground.

In order to pull off his bold plan, the president would have to persuade Congress to repeal scores of statutes and to rescind hundreds of rules and regulations. But provisions of the United States Code and the Federal Register are the least of his problems. Mr. Reagan will have to rescind some of the laws of human nature, and these lie well beyond the reach of parliamentary years and nays.

The president's idea, to be phased into operation over the next decade, has two main elements. The first calls for a $20 billion swap: The federal government would take over the entire cost of Medicaid, and the states would take over the entire cost of food stamps and Aid to Families with Dependent Children. The second element proposes to turn back to the states 40 major grant-in-aid programs.

The biggest difficulty lies in the turnback plan. Mr. Reagan would create a Federalism Trust Fund of roughly $28 billion a year. The fund would be financed by revenues from existing federal taxes on alcohol, tobacco and telephones, plus 2 cents of the gasoline tax and a portion of the tax on windfall profits of the oil companies. In 10 years the fund would go out of existence, and it would then be up to the states — if they wanted to continue the programs — to impose these same taxes or equivalent calls it the "new federalism," but in fact it echoes the oldest political traditions of our republic. The Constitution of 1787 envisioned a national government with extensive powers but not unlimited powers. The key to the house of our fathers lies in the 10th Amendment. "The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the states, are reserved to the states respectively, or to the people."

This was the grand design. The states were to function as laboratories of political experiment. They were to fill their own potholes, run their own schools, finance their own sewer systems, tend to their own social programs. None of these functions was seen as a national responsibility. The idea was to encourage diversity and to keep local programs in local hands.

Little by little this good clean structure began to fall apart. By treating the Constitution's general welfare clause as an open-ended grant of unfettered authority, Congress gradually reduced the 10th Amendment to a nullity. The states agreeably went along. They fretted at the red tape and they clamored for more "decision-making power," but it was wonderfully pleasant to see the money rolling in. More than 500 grant-in-aid programs are now in operation.

These programs demand a vast bureaucracy; they support an immense constituency; and they impose un-taxes on their own.

There's the rub. For the past 20 or 30 years, as a general proposition, the states have had all the pleasure of spending the money without the pain of raising it. Human nature dearly loves a free lunch. Human nature has a way of saying, "Let George do it. Only an incurable optimist can envision the 50 states rising to meet the prospective responsibilities."

Yet when that has been said, it remains to be said that the president's plan is fundamentally sound. He

Credibility Is Also At Stake

By JOHN CUNIFF

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The rationale for budget cuts is that federal services have become a waste and a burden on the people, and that people would be better served if they relied on a highly productive private sector.

It assumes that cutbacks in federal activity will be accompanied by greater strength at the local level and in private industry, and that such activity will more than offset Washington's lessened presence.

Few signs, however, have appeared in the economy, the sky or anywhere else to indicate that the program is on target, and that might turn out to be the greatest challenge so far to the Reagan administration.

At this point it's an unfair challenge because only four months have passed since his first tax cuts when into effect, and that isn't time for them to have an impact on the family let alone the national scene.

But fairness in politics is measured by standards applied nowhere else, and it wouldn't be the first time an economic program was unfairly denounced by politicians seeking to regain power and prestige.

The administration is vulnerable. Its projections have been so far off the mark that credibility is now at stake. A year ago it forecast 4.2 percent growth of gross national product in calendar 1982; now it foresees very little growth. A year ago it projected unemployment of 7.2 percent for this year. Now it is expecting a rate almost two points higher.

The biggest miscalculation of all, of course, was in the size of the budget gap. No longer is there talk about budget balancing; instead, the deficit in the current fiscal year, which ends this September 30, is estimated at just under $100 billion, and that may be conservative.

Has there been a lessening of federal government involvement in the economy? No, according to a study for the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, a strong defender of the president's goals and policies.

According to Richard Rahn, the chamber's chief economist, tax cuts and budget cuts haven't yet begun to narrow the government's deficit. In the first three months of fiscal 1982 it continued to grow, he says.

In the October-November-December quarter, Rahn's analysis shows, gov-

Cost Dooms A Coalition

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Despite the Reagan administration's empty larder for serious new job-building programs, White House aides have rewritten Rep. Jack Kemp's intriguing proposal to build "enterprise zones" in impoverished inner-city areas in a way that threatens the Republican-Democratic coalition that originated the idea.

President Reagan's domestic advisers are insisting that the present $3.35 hourly minimum wage be scrapped, along with clean-air and job-safety regulations. They think that will make the job-creations program more attractive to employers.

But the political cost would likely doom the coalition between Republican Kemp and Democratic Rep. Robert Garcia of New York, William Gray of Pennsylvania, the black congressional caucus and front-line minority pressure groups like the NAACP. With unemployment reaching toward the politically-explosive point of 10 percent, the White House seems oblivious to political reality. Garcia and other Democratic backers of the "enterprise zones" — and Kemp himself — would turn their backs on any bill that diluted the minimum wage or downgraded job-safety and environmental protections.

Vain Rescue Attempt

In a vain effort to save the political fortunes of Dr. William Van Cleve, Ronald Reagan's earliest and most forceful defense adviser, Arms Control and Disarmament Agency (ACDA) director Eugene Rostow appealed to one of Van Cleve's most outspoken critics: Sen. Charles Percy.

"Let me repeat what I said to you," Rostow wrote the chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. "I consider him to be one of the two or three outstanding scholars in the world today on the relationship between political and military affairs."

Van Cleve's nomination as chairman of ACDA's prestigious General Advisory Committee was killed not by Percy but by White House counselor Edwin Meese III. The reason: He publicly questioned the administration's widely-criticized new plan for basing the new MX missile in existing ground silos and scrapping an earlier mobile basing system. The Van Cleve veto was another bitter blow to Reaganites who have watched one after another of their hardline buddies leave or be ousted from the administration while budget director David Stockman, whose interview in the Atlantic Monthly last fall was considered treasonous by Reaganites, remains in office.

Watt's Political Wattle Interior Secretary Jim Watt, of all people, delivered a stinging rebuke, though couched in understanding terms, of Reaganite "conservatives who are carping, criticizing and demeaning" the administration on grounds the president is not delivering on his whole program fast enough.

What whetted Watt's ire is public pressure from social-issue conservatives demanding quick action on such legislative issues as abortion, school prayer, forced busing and others. "Let's lower our egos," Watt told a Jan. 22 luncheon meeting of the Conservative Forum. "Recognize that some of our issues have to take a back seat until we can man all the battlefronts."

Watt received a standing ovation. Then he sent a letter to President Reagan saying that his (Watt's) "conservative credentials are sufficiently strong" to entitle him to rebuke his fellow conservatives in the name of harmony within the administration. He added this handwritten footnote: "Thanks for not asking for a tax increase."

Strength For Today

ANATIONAL HERO

As Bishop Bergrav, primate of Norway, was being dragged to a concentration camp by the Nazis because he had defied the invader by his face, a young clergyman called after the bishop: "Read 1 Peter 3."

Verses 13-17 of this chapter tell us how we should steel ourselves against the rigors of persecution. Who can harm us, the writer inquires, "if we be followers of that which is good." Do not be afraid to suffer for righteousness sake. If the will of God be so, it is a good thing to suffer for a righteous cause.

The bishop followed the young clergyman's advice, and when the war ended, he and the heroic king were heroes of the people.

Most of us have never been called upon to suffer persecution. But as the world becomes more chaotic in the latter 20th century, who can tell what will happen? Like the bishop, we can prepare ourselves by reading 1 Peter 3. — Elisha Douglass

Advise Maintaining Genetic Research Guidelines

By WARREN E. LEARY
AP Science Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Even though genetic research appears relatively safe, some guidelines should be maintained because the field is so new, a government advisory group says.

The Recombinant DNA Advisory Committee, reconsidering an earlier vote to make most genetic research guidelines voluntary, thus recommended Monday that mandatory restrictions be relaxed but not abandoned.

Members of the committee, which advises the National Institutes of Health director about genetic engineering research, said they decided to reconsider last year's vote after receiving comments from scientists and the public.

"Reactions to the proposal indicate scientists and other people want changes in the guidelines, but not setting aside the mandatory nature of the guidelines," said Dr. Elena Nightingale of the National Academy of Sciences.

Ms. Nightingale also said there is concern that making the guidelines voluntary would stimulate different and confusing local regulations around the country.

Committee members stressed that most evidence to date indicates past concerns about the safety of the research were overstated. But they said there still are enough unanswered questions to keep some restrictions.

Recombinant DNA, or gene-splitting, research involves taking the genetic material of one organism and adding it to another to give it characteristics it would not normally have.

Most of the work has been with bacteria, giving scientists the ability to produce large quantities of rare compounds, such as drugs, hormones and vaccines.

Initially, a major concern was of the possibility of creating virulent disease organisms from which man, animals and plants had no natural defense.

That concern subsided as scientists performed subsequent tests and gained more experience.

Dr. Susan Gottesman of the National Cancer Institute, who proposed the changes the committee adopted, said, "There are kinds of experiments we still have questions about or very little experience with."

"We want methods to bring these experiments to NIH and to be looked at by expert groups beforehand," she continued.

Dr. James O. Mason of the Utah State Department of Health predicted guidelines will eventually become voluntary, but he said the public still has doubts about the research.

"The public is not yet ready," Mason said. "We need to gain more experience in some areas first."

Dr. David Baltimore of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, who backed all-voluntary guidelines, said most scientists know gene-splitting is no more hazardous than most conventional work with disease organisms.

Calling the NIH guidelines "a mockery," Baltimore said it was intellectually dishonest for scientists to favor restrictions when they know most of the evidence indicates the research poses no greater risk than other similar work.

NIH established tight safety guidelines about six years ago when scientists and others raised questions about the safety of genetic engineering research.

The rules became mandatory for all government-sponsored research, and industry agreed to follow them voluntarily.

The guidelines have been scaled down several times since they were initiated, and almost 90 percent of recombinant DNA work has been exempted.

Under the new proposal, which goes to the NIH director for study, more work would be excluded from prior NIH consideration and could proceed only with the approval of the biohazards committee at the institution doing the research.

Local Group Attends Clinic

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. — The Evangelism Explosion III International Leadership Clinic being held here ended last week.

Attending from Greenville were Dr. James Bailey, Mrs. Joseph M. Taft Jr., Mrs. Charles Kavanaugh, Miss Vertie O'Connor and Bill Talton, all of Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church. The Rev. Gerald Anders and John D. Grier, of the First Presbyterian Church, were also participants.

They were part of a group of 150 ministers and laypeople attending the clinic.

Police To Enforce Controlled Parking

Greenville Police Chief Glenn Cannon said today that officers will begin enforcing the residential controlled parking area on the east side of West Rock Springs Road from 14th Street to Edgewood Circle, beginning Monday.

The Greenville City Council, at its Jan. 29 meeting, established the residential controlled parking area.

Under the city code, residents of the area purchase a residential parking sticker. Other vehicles parked within the controlled area are subject to have their vehicles ticketed and towed, the chief noted.

manageable burdens on the Congress. They positively invite waste and fraud. They make a mockery of such old ideas as diversity and local responsibility. But even those programs of recent development, such as food stamps, have become deeply entrenched. They will not be dislodged easily.

I may be overly pessimistic. Mr. Reagan's program will have great appeal to many Americans who share his alarm at the overweening power of the federal bureaucracy. After they get over their first trepidations, many governors and mayors may discover advantages not now perceived. It would be gratifying to see the old principle of federalism restored in even this modest degree, but an honest estimate says it won't happen soon.

Mishaps Cause Heavy Damage

An estimated $4,900 damage resulted from two traffic collisions investigated by Greenville police Monday.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from a 4:50 p.m. collision at the intersection of Greenville Boulevard and Rural Paved Road 1135, involving cars driven by Glenda Miller Jackson of 105 Wedgewood Drive and Murray Edwards Bronstein of Goldsboro.

Police, who charged Ms. Jackson with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety, estimated damage at $1,400 to the Jackson car and $2,800 to the Bronstein vehicle.

Vehicles driven by Stephen Cashwell Hall Jr. of 100 Cherrywood Lane and Michael Anthony Bell of Route 3, Greenville, collided about 4:50 p.m. at the intersection of 10th and Washington streets, causing an estimated $500 damage to the Hall truck and $200 damage to the Bell car.

Honor Roll

GREENSBORO — The following Pitt County students have made the honor roll for the fall 1981 semester at North Carolina A&T University:

Michael R. Daniels of Winterville; Annette Moore of Farmville; Theodore Younger of Ayden; Michael L. Pearsall, Sylvia L. Taylor, Teresa A. Taylor, Jamie D. Valentine and Gregory B. Whitener, all of Greenville.

PARTICIPATED

William Gordon Douglas of 204 Hampton Circle, Greenville, participated in the Presidential Classroom for Young Americans program in Washington, D.C., last week. Douglas is a student at Rose High School.

The program is designed to introduce students to the national and international functions of the U.S. Government.

cutting by Congress in this year of record-high deficit spending.

Never a member of the defense-oriented bloc on Capitol Hill, Aspin nevertheless warns that if Congress goes after "big-ticket" items like the MX missile, the B-1 bomber or new aircraft carriers, the maximum savings for the new fiscal year starting Oct. 1 would be only $3 billion — yet the cost of that savings in terms of future budget authority would be weapons worth $30 billion.

Thus, in these big-ticket accounts, small savings for fiscal 1983 would cut the heart out of the long-range defense program aimed at rebuilding military strength. The only alternative is to cut military readiness: operations and maintenance, research, testing or personnel. But cutting military readiness reduces war-fighting capability. Either way, says Aspin, defense cuts pose dangers for national security. Copyright 1982 F. Eld Enterprises, Inc.

$4,000 a year for 35 years.

Now, we'd like for everyone in the neighborhood to retire well-off. And our new IRA can help you do just that. The new tax laws allow even people with a retirement plan where they work to also have one where they bank.

And, you can now make much bigger deposits than before.

For example, a married couple, both age 30, can each put away up to $2,000 a year of earned income in their own IRA at NCNB. At age 65, before income tax, they'll have over $2.4 million.*

Or, looking at it another way, depending on your age, marital situation and income, just a little bit every week now means a very big payoff later on.

Just look over the chart, think over the amount that you can afford every year, and see how big your NCNB IRA can grow over the years.

Then come see us. And, the sooner, the better.

The New NCNB IRA.

*Based on a working couple's $4000 (or single person's $2000) annual deposit made on the first of each year, earning interest at an annual rate of 12%, compounded daily on a 365/360 basis. Working individuals can contribute as much as 100% of their salary or wages, up to a maximum of $2,000. Substantial interest penalty required for early withdrawal. All depositors insured to $100,000 by FDIC.

Jazz Pianist Said In Coma

ENGLEWOOD, N.J. (AP) — Jazz pianist Thelonius Sphere Monk was reported in critical condition in a coma early today after suffering a stroke, officials said.

Monk, 61, considered one of the most important figures in modern jazz, was rushed to Englewood Hospital Friday night, said a nursing supervisor, who declined to give her name.

"His condition is unchanged, and he is in intensive care," the supervisor said.

Monk had been in retirement, having last played publicly in 1978, according to James Browne, a disc jockey at WBGO-FM, a National Public Radio station in Newark.

Monk's health had been failing in recent years, Browne added.

Monk, a composer and arranger, was born in Rocky Mount, N.C.

Among his best-known compositions is "Round Midnight."

He also is known for "Monk's Mood," "Straight No Chaser," and "Crepuscule with Nellie."

Two Ambitious TV Offerings

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Tonight's two TV questions are: Can a convict change his stripes, and can a con man change his tune?

"Dangerous Company," a CBS movie starring Beau Bridges, is based on the true story of Ray Johnson's struggle to go straight after 27 years of crime and punishment. Johnson is a remarkable man and he does eventually learn to live in the legal lane, but this weakly constructed movie doesn't fully capture his achievements, moving instead in too many directions.

Over on public television, "Any Friend of Nicholas Nickleby Is a Friend of Mine," is the latest of PBS' "American Playhouse" series. It's adapted from science fiction writer Ray Bradbury's short story about a dreamer who comes to a very sleepy town and masquerades as Charles Dickens. He never can stop coming himself, and the play, billed as a comedy, is never the least bit amusing.

The story revolves around Ralph Spaulding, a 12-year-old living with his grandparents in Green Town, Ill., in the 1940s. Ralph's life is shaken up by the appearance of the mysterious man (Fred Gwynne).

Ralph, played by Brian Svrusis, is drawn to the stranger and helps him record his latest work, "A Tale of Two Cities." The relationship works for Ralph, since it brings some excitement to his life and some appreciation for the classic "A Tale of Two Cities."

Ralph needs to dream; every young boy does. But this Dickens fellow is past 50 and supposedly past fooling himself.

Even though Dickens is not trying to hurt others by his masquerade, he meets some resentment. The local barber, a lonely man who sees his companionship with Ralph being undermined by the new arrival in town, tells Dickens he's a fraud. Ralph's grandmother doesn't realize who he's supposed to be and calls him Mr. Dickson.

Only Ralph's grandfather is accepting: "Any friend of Nicholas Nickleby is a friend of mine."

Gwynne's character finally explains to Ralph the need to maintain the charade since he's a miserably failed writer and that's the only thing he's ever wanted to do. Impersonating Dickens is what he must do to survive. "We make do," he says.

It's valid to make the point that people can construct whatever it takes to cope with life, but there's a difference between dreaming and hallucinating. After all, there is a real world out there.

Ray Johnson discovers this in "Dangerous Company." When he's finally paroled from prison, a guard advises him that, in most states, ex-cons can't vote, they can't become barbers, undertakers or architects, and they can't even drive cabs.

Today, Johnson is a successful security consultant to national corporations, but the movie doesn't adequately explore this evolution. The building of his new professional and personal life would seem to be unique enough to build a movie around, and "Dangerous Company" could have examined whether there is life after prison.

Instead, the movie dwells more on his life in prison, trumpeting the fact that Johnson and a friend were the only two men to escape from Folsom Prison in Alabama. As a prison movie, the drama isn't sustained.

That's partially because Johnson, a hardened criminal, is depicted as happy-go-lucky and played too sweetly by Bridges.

Here's a man who began his deviant behavior as a young boy and eventually was given three life terms for armed robbery. Then, in 4½ years of solitary confinement, he finds fulfillment in the books of Gandhi. This is supposed to be a factual story, but it never rings true because of some poor presentation.

Charlie Daniels Just Overcome

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Country singer and fiddle player Charlie Daniels, given a standing ovation by the Tennessee Senate and House, broke into tears when he was honored with a legislative resolution.

"I think that tonight for just about the first time in my life that I've got caught without anything to say," Daniels said Monday, his voice breaking. "This is the finest honor in my life."

A lawmaker from the rear of the chamber yelled: "Sing it, fella."

The resolution called Daniels "a shining inspiration to the citizens of this state and nation."

"I never thought that some of these people that love Tennessee as much as I do would present me such an honor," Daniels said. "I've got to say that it's good to be in Tennessee."

Daniels recently received another state honor when Gov. Lamar Alexander proclaimed Charlie Daniels Day.

Daniel, whose hits include "In America," and "The Devil Went Down to Georgia,"

Chubby Checker Is Home Again

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Singer Chubby Checker will resume his tour later this week after being hospitalized for five days for treatment of pneumonia, officials said.

Checker, 40, was released Sunday, Patsy Moore, a spokeswoman at Boone Hospital Center, said Monday.

Checker's manager said earlier that the singer who made "The Twist" famous in the early 1960s planned to resume his tour with an appearance Friday in Denver.

Checker was preparing for two concerts in Columbia Feb. 2 when he became too ill to perform and was hospitalized.

His manager attributed the illness to the change in weather from the southern states he had been touring.

Arrested

Gregory Gene Bazemore, 25, of 131 Rosewood Drive was arrested Sunday night on charges of possession of marijuana, Greenville Police reported today.

Chief Glenn Cannon said Bazemore was charged after officers found an estimated $30 worth of marijuana in his possession in a car parked in a lot at the intersection of Fourth and Cotanche streets about 11:20 p.m.

Ayden Churches Get A Break On Electric Billings

Installation By Toastmasters

Tom Houston has been elected president of Greenville Toastmasters for 1982.

Houston and other 1982 officers were installed at a recent meeting of the organization, at which Joe Sherwood served as toastmaster of the evening and Betty Topper as table topic master.

TOM HOUSTON

Other officers include Pat Flanagan, educational vice president; Charlotte Flanagan, administrative vice president; Joe Sherwood, secretary; Paul Topper, treasurer and Steve Johnson, sergeant-at-arms.

Bill Sanders was awarded the best table topics speaker and best evaluator awards at the meeting and Paul Topper won the best speaker award.

An officers training workshop will be held Saturday at the Palace Motel in New Bern, beginning at 9:30 a.m. and ending at 2 p.m. It will be conducted by district and division officers.

Toastmasters meets on the second and fourth Wednesdays of each month at the AYDEN — Churches here will no longer have to pay for the electrical demand they use, only for the number of kilowatts, the Town Board of Commissioners has said.

Prior to the action taken at Monday night's monthly meeting of the board, churches who used a large number of kilowatts were billed for the demand they created. The new policy still bills churches at the higher small general services rate, but eliminates the charge for demand, which according to local ministers, "was penalizing the churches, which are non-profit organizations."

The town has two rates, explained Town Manager Don Russell, residential and the higher commercial small general services rate. In January, Wayland McGlohon requested that the board consider giving churches a special lower rate.

Tag Stickers' Deadline Near

Greenville vehicle owners are required to display 1982 city registration stickers on their tags after midnight Feb. 15.

Chief Glenn Cannon, who said the validation stickers are available at City Hall, noted that officers will begin enforcing the city ordinance at midnight Monday.

The chief noted that the simple purchase of the 1982 validation sticker is not enough. He emphasized that in order to comply with the law, the stickers must be affixed to the city license plate.

Cannon noted that in the case of motorcycles, the validation sticker may be placed on the front fork near the North Carolina safety inspection sticker.

"CP&L does have a special rate for churches and schools, but it is phasing these rates out," said Russell. "No new customers have been allowed to go on this rate. Greenville Utilities has no special rate for churches."

Russell said he does not know why churches were charged for demand. Some meters, he noted, record demand and others do not. A few years ago, he added, the town decided that all new meters installed must record demand.

In other business, the board:

•Scheduled the tax lien sale on May 10, 1982, with the advertisement appearing in April.

•Voted against 15-minute parking in front of Stancill's Taxidermy

•Approved the town's re-application for the Community of Excellence program.

•Annexed Pine Forest Road.

•Appointed Commissioners J.J. Brown and Robert Harris to a committee that will assist the housing authority director in screening applicants.

Snow-Thrower Sales Booming

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Severe weather this winter has unexpectedly not boosted snow thrower sales for Homelite, the Charlotte-based division of Textron Inc.

However, Webb Maddux, Homelite president, says retail sales have sufficiently depleted dealer inventories enough that they will have to boost their stocks if it snows heavily again.

Maddux, whose company sells snow throwers under the Jacobsen label, disputed reports of widespread price-cutting by dealers on snow throwers.

Association Holds Banquet

The American Saddlebred Association of the Carolinas held an awards banquet Jan. 29-31 at Fort Mill, S.C. Janna Weir of Greenville received two high point awards.

Ms. Weir, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Donald Weir, was also winner of the American Horse Shows Association Saddleseat Equitation Medal class which qualifies her to compete at the national finals held in Kansas City.

Ms. Weir also won the Saddleseat Equitation division and placed first in the Three-Gaited Stake division of the Coastal Plain Horse Show Circuit, which held its high point dinner here recently.

Most Able-Bodied Inmates Not Idle

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Over 80 percent of the state's able-bodied prison inmates are either working or involved in some type of educational or counseling program, says state Corrections Secretary James C. Woodard.

"Recent public commentary may be leaving a false impression about the nature and scope of idleness among those in North Carolina's prisons," Woodard said in a letter mailed to newspaper editorial writers this week.

Woodard said that as of Jan. 25, there were 11,741 inmates in North Carolina prisons who were working or in-involved in some type of program. There was a total inmate population of 16,123 people, but 1,912 were unable to work because they were new and unassigned, were being disciplined, were in protective custody or were in poor health.

That meant there were 2,470 inmates able to work but not working, "thus giving the Department of Correction a 17.4 percent 'unemployment' rate which, considering we're dealing with convicted offenders, is not bad," Woodard said.

"Looked at another way... 82.6 percent of the available population were assigned to work or program activities," he added.

Scouts Guests Of Optimists

Brett Haley of Cub Scout Pack 385 and James Thomas of Troop 30 of Greenville were guests of the Optimist Club here Monday night.

The visit by the local Scouts was in conjunction with the celebration of the "birthday" of Scouting in America, which dates back to Feb. 8, 1910.

The visitors told the club members of their activities in Scouting and discussed some of their plans for rank advancement. Haley is a Webelo and Thomas holds the life rank.

Also present for the meeting was George Attmore, Pitt District Scouting chairman, who explained the program and the opportunities open for volunteer service.

Stuard Shadbolt, public information officer for the department, said the letter was issued because a number of recent newspaper stories and editorials had cited inmate idleness as a problem.

He said the letter wasn't a suggested editorial but an attempt to inform editorial writers of the other side of the story.

REVIVAL

Revival services will begin tonight at Holy Mission Church, 905 Dickinson Ave., with the Rev. James Corbett as the evangelist.

The four-night services will begin at 7:30 p.m. The public is invited, according to the pastor, Eldress Shirley Atkinson.

Judging Night For Hot Dogs

NEW YORK (AP) — These dogs are well-heeled. And there's not a mutt among 'em.

There are 2,654 wagging tails at Madison Square Garden, waiting for the big prize they've worked their paws to the bones for.

Tonight is the judging for the 106-year-old Westminster Dog Show, the hotsy-totsy top of the world for the canine class.

Among the seven rings are nearly 12 dozen breeds of dogs — shih tzus, papillions, affenpinschers and others.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market opened lower, but turned mixed by midday, following Monday's broad declines.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, which plunged 17.60 points Monday, inched up 1.04 points to 834.47 at noon.

But the number of stocks falling in price held a 2-1 lead over gainers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks fell .24 to 66.08. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off 2.22 at 275.03.

Investors have become wary because of the prospect of huge budget deficits and lingering high levels of interest rates.

Three-month Treasury bills, which fell below 10 percent in early December, traded above 14 percent today.

Volume on the Big Board reached 22.76 million shares over the first two hours, up from 20.45 million in the same period Monday.

American Electric Power topped the NYSE active list, unchanged at 16 1/2, in trading that included a block of 129,000 shares changing hands at 16 1/2 a share and a block of 175,000 shares crossing at 16 1/2.

Energy issues were mixed. Although international oil prices are falling, Saudi Arabia's oil minister, Sheikh Ahmed Zaki Yamani, was quoted by the Saudi Gazette as saying the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries would stick to its plan to maintain a $34-a-barrel benchmark price through this year.

Mobil was unchanged at 21 3/4; Exxon rose 1/2 to 28 1/2;

Standard Oil of Indiana was unchanged at 40, Phillips Petroleum fell 1/4 to 34 1/2, and Cities Service rose 1/2 to 33 1/2.

Japan Jetliner Lands In Drink

SHORT OF THE RUNWAY — Photo taken from helicopter shows how Japan Airlines DC-8 jetliner crashed in Tokyo Bay Tuesday morning just short of Haneda Runway 33-Right. (AP Laserphoto)

TOKYO (AP) — A Japan Air Lines DC-8 with 174 people aboard hit a series of light poles as it came down for a landing and slammed into shallow water at the edge of Tokyo Bay today, killing 24 Japanese passengers.

After a day of changing casualty figures, a police spokesman said the other 150 passengers and crew members were rescued, but 78 were hospitalized in serious condition, and the rest were slightly injured.

The only foreigner aboard was a South Korean, who was slightly injured.

Seventeen minutes before the crash, Capt. Seiji Katagiri reported he was entering normal descent patterns as he neared the end of a domestic flight from Fukuoka, in southwest Japan. The sky was cloudless and head winds were moderate. But the jetliner clipped several stanchions extending out into the bay with landing approach lights and pancaked into the water at 8:47 a.m.

The nose section of the jetliner broke off and was partially submerged under the fuselage, which came to rest, comparatively undamaged, in the muddy water.

"There was a great shock and the front part of the plane was gone," said a surviving passenger.

Eight hours later, the last person aboard, a crew member who was not immediately identified, was rescued from the crumpled cockpit. Although all eight crew members survived, the pilot and co-pilot were seriously injured.

Although the plane was apparently too low as it came in to land, officials said the reason was not known. They speculated it could have been due to malfunction in the steering gear or the airport's instrument landing system, a sudden turbulence or pilot error.

About 500 rescue workers using vehicles, helicopters and boats converged on the plane and the debris around it. Rescue operations were hampered until 3,000 gallons of fuel were pumped from the plane to minimize the danger of explosion.

Most of the seriously injured apparently were in the front of the plane. Many were covered with mud and sludge when they reached rescue stations.

Surviving passengers said there was nothing unusual about the approach and no warning of trouble until there was a "sudden jolt" and the plane hit the water.

Nobuchika Shikada, 20, of Fukuoka, said people screamed but the stewardesses immediately took charge and told people to remain in the cabin.

"I was afraid it was going to sink, but it stayed level for an hour until I was rescued," he said. "I never want to fly again."

Haneda Airport, built on reclaimed land about 15 miles from central Tokyo, has been used primarily for domestic flights since the new Tokyo International Airport opened in 1978 at Narita, 45 miles to the northeast.

ECU Hosts ODU In Key League Match

In what can only be called a key ECAC-South matchup, East Carolina University plays host to Old Dominion University Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in Minges Coliseum.

The contest will be televised back to the Tidewater area, live, and will also be shown on tape to a nationwide audience over cable television's CBN channel, seen locally on cable channel 2. That broadcast will begin at 12 midnight.

The two teams bring in identical 2-2 ECAC-South records. East Carolina has beaten George Mason and William & Mary, while losing to James Madison and Richmond. Old Dominion's wins have come over Mason and Richmond, while they lost to Madison and William & Mary.

It has been a strange year for the Monarchs, usually one of the independent powerhouses in the mid-east. This year's team has only an 11-9 record coming into the game, and they are just 3-6 on opponent courts.

East Carolina, which has also been an up-and-down team comes into the game with an 8-10 mark, following an 88-62 win over Baptist College last Thursday night.

Old Dominion's latest outing was Saturday night, when they were beaten by St. Joseph's, 69-63.

The Monarchs feature the conference's leading scorer and rebounder in 6-10 junior center Mark West. He's averaging 17.4 points a game and pulling down 10.4 rebounds. Front-court teammate Ronnie McAdoo, a 6-6 senior, isn't far being with a 14.8 average and an 8.6 rebound mark.

They are joined by 6-4 senior guard Billy Mann with an 11.6 average. Other starters are expected to be 6-3 freshman guard Charlie Smith (9.7) and 6-7 sophomore Tim Southerland (3.0).

The Monarchs are averaging 70.2 points a game and allowing 64.6.

East Carolina hasn't beaten Old Dominion since the 1978-79 season, when it took a 99-84 win in Norfolk over the Monarchs. Coach Dave Odom, in his third season at the helm of the Pirates, has yet to claim a win over them.

The Pirates have won but five of 20 previous games, and record books do not show whether the Pirates have ever won in Greenville. At least three of the five wins did come in Norfolk.

"Old Dominion is playing at the top of its game." Coach Dave Odom said. "Their losses have come against quality teams. This is the toughest schedule of any Old Dominion team ever."

"They play a power game and have the personnel to do it. McAdoo and West are excellent post players. The perimeter players do a good job of getting the ball to the post-men and also staying involved in the offense. They have good depth and are well coached."

East Carolina will be led by Charles Green, who is now averaging 11.5 points a game. Two other Pirates are in double figures, Morris Hargrove, 10.9 and Tony Byles, 10.6.

Byles, who played for the first time in five games last Thursday after suffering a broken left wrist, is expected to see more playing time, but again will not return to the starting lineup.

Instead, Bruce Peartree, who has been in double figures four of the last five games, will be at the point, while Al Mack, who has also scored well in recent games, will fill out the starting line, along with Charles Watkins, who has returned to his old form.

Watkins was the team's leading scorer last year, but had not performed to that level until recently.

The game's winner will move into second place in the ECAC-South standings behind league-leading James Madison. Those two teams will be the only ones with two or fewer losses in league play.

Improved Vikings Entertain Eagles; First Place At Stake

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer

D.H. Conley has come a long way since losing seven straight games midway through the 1981-82 season. The maturation process gets its stiffest test tonight when the Vikings entertain West Craven with the leadership of the Coastal Conference on the line.

D.H. Conley and West Craven are tied for the conference lead going into tonight's contest with 6-2 records. The Eagles, who are 14-2 overall and considered by many one of the best teams in the east, routed the Vikings, 73-57, nearly three weeks ago.

Since then, however, Conley has won five straight games. Moreover, since defeating White Oak, 73-50, to halt their seven-game losing streak, the Vikings have won seven of their last eight games.

When asked about the turnaround, Conley coach Shelley Marsh said: "Our younger guys are exerting themselves now. The youngsters guys now have the confidence that they can contribute."

With the added contributions of the Vikings' younger players has come a lessening of the load upon junior guard Keith Gatlin. "Since these other players have gotten into the offense more," Marsh explained, "what's happening is Keith is taking less shots but hitting a higher percentage of them."

"He doesn't have to feel like he's the one that's got to take the shots all the time." Which is what happened during the early part of the when Gatlin scored over 20 points in his first five games — all of which Conley won.

"Teams were playing us straight up at the beginning of the season and that enabled Gatlin to keep us in the game and help us win," Marsh said. "Then all of a sudden teams found out that if they could stop him they could literally stop us."

Not anymore. Gatlin continues to lead the team in scoring, averaging about 21 points a game. But, no longer is he the Vikings' only offensive threat. Center Sammy Tyson, a 6-7 senior, is second in scoring with a 12.0 average. He is also leading the team in rebounding (eight per game) and blocked shots (four per outing).

The three other DHC starters — sophomore guard Michael Wilson, junior forward Leon Cox and senior forward Dixon Page — are all averaging under 10 points a game, but combined give Marsh anywhere from 15 to 30 points a game.

Wilson had 12 points and Cox 10 Friday night in the Vikings' 58-44 win over North Lenoir. That win, and Conley's 50-41 nonconference victory over North Pitt Saturday night, sends the Vikings into tonight's battle with the Eagles playing as well as they have all year.

"This is a big game, but they've all been big for us in that we've had to win them to get where we are," said Marsh, whose team is now 11-8 overall. "At this point we're where I thought we'd have to be to have a chance (at the title)."

"I knew we'd have to split with West Carteret and West Craven and beat the rest of the teams. We've split with West Carteret and now if we can beat West Craven..."

It won't be easy, something Marsh readily admits. The Eagles, ranked ninth in the state in the latest AP poll, are a quick, aggressive team that have lost just twice — a one-point decision to North Lenoir and a double-overtime loss to West Carteret.

"The talent they have is better than any I've seen this year — and that includes several 4-A teams," Marsh said.

Defensively, West Craven relies normally on a 1-3-1 zone, though recently the Eagles have experimented with 3-2. The Eagles also employ a full-court zone press.

On offense, Marsh said the Eagles like an up-tempo game. When they do set up they usually run out of a 1-3-1 offense.

Leading West Craven in scoring is 6-5 forward Ronnie Bellamy with a 15.5 average. Bellamy scored 25 points in the Eagles' victory over the Vikings on Jan. 22.

The Eagles' other forward is 6-3 Linwood Harris, who is coming a 30-point game against West Carteret Friday. Norman Becton, a 6-3 junior, starts at center while 6-0 Wayne Becton and 6-2 Clifton Blount man the guard positions.

Harris, Blount and Wayne Becton are all scoring in double digits at around 12 points a game.

Marsh said the Eagles are "10-deep" and are very physical, something that concerns the DHC coach.

"The thing that concerns me most is the physical aspect of the game," Marsh said. "They're very physical and we're not. I know that it's going to be a physical game."

Panthers, Rams Go To Wire In ECC Race

A Staff Report

North Pitt and Greene Central enter the final week of the regular season tied for the lead in the Eastern Carolina Conference and a loss by either team this week could open the door for the other to win the league championship.

The Panthers and Rams are tied atop the ECC with 9-1 marks and have split their two regular season games. The Panthers won the first game, 37-36, and the Rams captured the second, 48-45.

If the two teams complete the season tied for the title Greene Central would be awarded first place and the high seed in the conference tournament because of the point differential in the two games.

The Panthers, 14-6 overall, have lost two out of their last three going into this week, but since Nov. 11 have won 12 out of 15 games.

The Rams, meantime, are 12-8 and are riding a three-game winning streak. Since winning their fourth straight Tri-County Championship in late December the Rams have nine out of 11 games.

North Pitt appears to have the more difficult schedule this week. The Panthers travel to Southwest Edgecombe tonight and then journey to Ayden-Grifton Friday for their season finale.

The Panthers defeated the Cougars, 68-51, and the Chargers, 52-39, earlier this season.

Meanwhile, Greene Central travels to Southern Nash tonight and then ends its season at home against Southwest Edgecombe. The Rams defeated the Firebirds last week in a makeup game, 68-64, and earlier this season nipped Southwest Edgecombe, 65-62.

In other games tonight, Greenville Rose travels to co-Big East Conference leader Kinston, West Craven and D.H. Conley battle it out for the lead in the Coastal Conference in Hollywood and Charles B. Aycock goes to Farmville Central.

Also tonight, Roanoke is at Plymouth, Williamston at Bertie, Bear Grass at Creswell and Bath is at Jamesville. Greenville Christian travels to Wilson Christian tonight as well.

Ayden-Grifton travels to Roanoke Wednesday.

On Friday, Wilson Fike travels to Rose, Farmville Central is at Southern Nash, Williamston is at Edenton, Bear Grass is at Jamesville and D.H. Conley is at Havelock.

On Friday and Saturday D.H. Conley hosts the wrestling sectionals.

EC Grid Staff Is Reshuffled

East Carolina head football coach Ed Emory announced this morning a reshuffling of his staff's duties for the 1982 season with the addition of new offensive coordinator Larry Beckish.

Emory announced the changes as the Pirate staff prepares for spring drills, which open on March 18.

In a major switch, Beckish will assume quarterback coaching duties, while returning assistant Jim Bengala will move from quarterbacks to defensive backs. Beckish will install the I formation and a variation of the shotgun as the 1982 Pirate offense. He joined the Pirate staff last week from Wichita State, where he guided the Shocker offense to a ninth place finish in total offense in the NCAA last fall.

Under Beckish, on offense will be running back coach Spencer Prescott, wide receiver coach Ricky Bustle (switched from defensive back coach), and new offensive line coach John Zernelt, who joined the staff this week from Marshall University.

Third-year Pirate veteran defensive coordinator Norm Parker will direct Bengala, linebacker coach Bob Saunders (switched from defensive line coach), defensive line coach Jim Holland (switched from defensive end coach), and nose guard coach Gary Weiler (switched from wide receiver coach).

Parker will handle defensive ends.

In addition, graduate assistant Gary Nelson and volunteer coach Charles Elmquist will assist Zernelt with the offensive line, and graduate assistant Garry Fast will coach tight ends.

The Pirates open the 1982 season September 11 traveling to N.C. State.

Ex-BC Player's Help Is Sought

NEW YORK (AP) — Federal prosecutors are hoping former basketball player Rick Kuhn, sentenced to 10 years in prison, will aid them in a continuing probe into the Boston College point-shaving conspiracy. The New York Times said in Tuesday's editions.

The newspaper quoted sources as saying cooperation by the former Boston College forward could result in a reduced sentence.

Sources, which were not named, were quoted as saying that Kuhn had been subpoenaed, only minutes before being sentenced last Friday, to appear before a federal Grand Jury looking into the conspiracy which developed during the 1978-79 season.

Kuhn, convicted for participating in a conspiracy to manipulate the points of Boston College games in an effort to beat the bookmakers' point spreads, was given what is believed to be the stiffest punishment ever meted out to a college athlete involved in a gambling scheme. He is free on $50,000 bail pending the out-

Baby Bucs Nip Louisburg

LOUISBURG — East Carolina's Junior Varsity basketball team, came up late, but was on time at the end as it pulled off a 60-56 victory over Louisburg Junior College last night.

The Baby Bucs had their problems in getting to the game. Traveling in a locally-owned motor home, they ran into alternator trouble at Wilson, and became stranded. Fortunately, the problem was corrected in about an hour, and the team changed clothes and was taped for the game in the vehicle, arriving for the 7:30 p.m. game at 8 p.m.

The Pirates then went straight into the game with only a brief warmup.

It was enough.

The contest turned out to be close all the way. With 1:18 left, James Cooke of Louisburg tipped in a missed shot and was fouled by David Reicheneker of ECU. It was the big man's fifth foul, and the ensuing shot tied it at 53-53.

With 48 seconds to go, Butch Hobson, an ECU freshman walkon, got free at the free throw line for a jumper and was fouled on the shot, making it 55-53. He missed the free throw, however, and although Bill McNair rebounded for the Pirates, the ball was turned over.

Two seconds later, Marcus Keith hit a foul shot and made it 55-54, and with 33 seconds left, Herb Gilchrist was fouled by Keith — his fifth. The two

Sixth Overtime Finally Decides Game

By The Associated Press
Colgate was playing for a tie. Mississippi Valley State was playing for anything but.

Colgate, playing a slowdown game against Northeastern Monday night, fell behind 36-34 when forward Mark Halsel scored on a 10-foot jump shot with 4:05 to play. The Red Raiders held the ball for the next four minutes, hoping for a last-gasp basket that would force an overtime. But one shot missed, the next was blocked at the buzzer and the Huskies' two-point edge held up.

Mississippi Valley State managed one overtime against Southern University. And another... and another... and another... and another... and another. It wasn't until senior center Bryant Johnson, the Delta Devils' scoring leader with 29 points, sank three free throws in that sixth extra period that Mississippi Valley trudged off the court with a 73-72 victory.

It matched two 1950s games as the second-longest in National Collegiate Athletic Association Division I history. Last Dec. 21, Cincinnati needed a record seven overtimes to defeat Bradley 75-73.

"We were looking to send the game into overtime," Colgate Coach Mike Griffin said after his strategy failed and the Red Raiders dropped to 7-14. "Northeastern is a very strong team... We were not going to run with them. We were going to work for the kind of shots we could make."

Griffin's last-shot strategy succeeded last Jan. 26 when Colgate, trailing Princeton by a point, held the ball... and held it... and held it... before Eric Jones' jumper with seven seconds to play beat the Tigers 25-24.

This time, though, Paul Hoogenboom, the game's high scorer with 15 points, missed a shot with four seconds left. And when teammate Kevin Halloran grabbed the rebound, Northeastern's Dave Leitao blocked his shot at the buzzer. Halsel shared scoring honors for the winners, 21-5, with 10 points.

Mississippi Valley State led 40-24 at halftime, but Southern rallied a 60-60 tie after regulation play. Neither team scored in the first five-minute extra period, they managed to remain deadlocked through the next three — and neither scored in the fifth overtime.

With 3:10 gone in the sixth, one Johnson free throw put MVS ahead 71-70. Anthony Bryant's 12-foot jumper gave Southern a 72-71 lead before Johnson hit his decisive foul shot.

Overtime hasn't been the friendliest of places for South Alabama this season. Dan McLaughlin's 15 points led Jacksonville past the Jaguars 75-72 — the fourth time this season they've been beaten in overtime.

The Top Twenty Oregon State, ranked sixth, moved into a first-place tie with Washington in the Pacific 10 Conference as the Beavers rode Lester Conner's 20 points to a 57-50 victory over California. OSU is 10-1 in the Pac-10 and 17-3 overall.

Oregon State held a 32-20 halftime lead, but Cal's Mark

McNamara, who had 23 points and 17 rebounds, led a charge as the Golden Bears closed within four points with 2:46 to play.

No. 9 Arkansas got 20 points from senior guard Tony Brown and 27 from its reserves, including 10 from sophomore guard Ricky Norton and nine from senior forward Greg Skulman. The Razorbacks, 17-3 overall, used a pair of hot shooting sprees to turn back Texas Christian 79-69 in the Southwest Conference.

The Razorbacks turned a 20-11 deficit into a 28-23 lead before halftime and a 40-36 deficit into a 57-46 lead after it.

No. 14 Memphis State grabbed the lead at the start, widened it to as many as 16 points in the closing minutes and held off persistent Ball State 75-64.

Keith Lee has 24 points, 18 rebounds and three steals for the winners, 16-3. Ray McCallum led Ball State with 23 points.

Georgetown, No. 20, trailed 39-34 before catching fire. The Hoyas, 19-5, stayed hot after the intermission, taking a 71-51 lead en route to their 96-79 pounding of Syracuse.

Eric Floyd and Pat Ewing combined for 23 of Georgetown's 49 points in that stretch, when the winners outscored the Orangemen 37-12. Floyd finished with 27 points and Ewing added a career-high 22 plus 13 rebounds.

Unranked Teams
Rob Williams' 29 points led Houston past Texas 77-63, while Terry Teagle's 23 helped Baylor beat Southern Methodist 70-59 in a pair of Southwest Conference games.

Marshall lost an early 19-point lead and had to rally to beat East Tennessee State 98-96 in the Southern Conference on LaVerne Evans' 7-foot jumper with 1:10 remaining.

Junior guard Anthony Hicks' 26 points led Xavier University, the Midwestern City Conference's defending champion, to its first conference victory this season, 72-53 over Butler. Xavier is 1-7 in the MCC and 6-15 overall.

Guards Brian Kellybrew and Terry Long had 14 points apiece as Lamar University beat Louisiana Tech to record its 53rd consecutive home victory. And Sedale Threatt scored 40 points as West Virginia Tech rolled to its 22nd consecutive home-court victory, 111-93 over Bluefield State.

Virginia Moves To Top Of Heap; Heels Now Second, DePaul Next

By The Associated Press
Virginia Coach Terry Holland, his team now No. 1 in the Associated Press weekly college basketball poll, believes there is virtually nothing separating his Cavaliers, or other teams in the top five, from a lot of other teams.

"I think you've got right now in this country probably 15 or 20 teams playing well enough to win a national championship. There may even be some others out there that are playing that well that we just haven't heard about right now," Holland said Monday.

A 74-58 victory last Wednesday night over second-ranked North Carolina, coupled with then-No. 1 Missouri's 67-51 defeat Saturday night by Nebraska, vaulted the 22-1 Cavaliers from third to first. Virginia received 57 of the 60 first-place votes from a panel sports writers and sportscasters.

Virginia received 1,197 of a possible 1,200 votes. North Carolina, 18-2, held the No. 2 spot with 1,090 votes, just eight more than DePaul, 20-1, which got two first-place votes.

The other first-place vote went to Missouri, 19-1, which got 1,004 points to 990 for Iowa, 17-2, which remained in the fifth spot.

Others in the top 10 were

Oregon State, 17-3; Tulsa, 16-3; Arkansas, 17-3; Minnesota, 15-4; and Alabama, 17-3. Both Oregon State and Tulsa moved up four spots from last week, while Arkansas gained six spots. Minnesota fell from sixth and Alabama from eighth.

"I think it's flattering, but... this is not the end of the season, and the end of the season is when you would like to be the No. 1 team in the country," Holland said.

Virginia moved to the No. 1 spot for a while last season, winning its first 23 games and running a two-year winning streak to 28 before bowing to Notre Dame 57-56. The Cavaliers wound up 29-4 and finished third in the NCAA tournament.

Holland conceded he would vote Virginia No. 1 if he had a vote.

"I think I probably would right now because we have played a tough schedule and we've played well against that schedule. Certainly that could change within the next week, so I think you'll see teams bouncing around all through the spots for the rest of the season," Holland said.

As for Virginia, he said "I think our team is playing well. I do think we're a young team, and I do think that we can play better than we're playing. Of course, that's also true of the people that we play against. They're capable of playing much better."

Holland sees nothing negative about being ranked No. 1.

"I just don't think there's that much difference between being 3 or 4 like we were last week and being ranked No. 1."

"I know every opponent we play from here on out will be ranked below us, unless of course, our bracket changes very drastically in the next few weeks, which means all those opponents will have a psychological edge in terms of knocking off Virginia and having a chance to make a name nationally."

Making up the second 10 were West Virginia, Kentucky, Idaho, Memphis State, Kansas State, Wake Forest, San Francisco, Fresno State, Washington and Georgetown.

San Francisco fell from seventh last week and Texas and Tennessee dropped out of the Top 20. The newcomers were Washington, for the first time, and Georgetown.

Last week's second 10 consisted of Tulsa, Texas, Wake Forest, Arkansas, Idaho, Tennessee, Fresno State, West Virginia, Kansas State and Memphis State. The last two tied for the 19th spot.

Duke Finally Tops Seahawks

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Chip Engelland scored 7 of his game-high 24 points in overtime to lead Duke to a 67-57 non-conference college basketball victory over University of North Carolina at Wilmington Monday night.

Duke scored the first 11 points in overtime en route to its 9th victory in 20 starts. The Seahawks fell to 11-11.

Vince Taylor, who added 17 points for the Blue Devils, sent the game into the extra session when he hit an 8-footer from the baseline with seven seconds remaining.

Engelland opened the overtime a three point play. Taylor hit a layup, Engelland added two free throws and Taylor another to make it 58-53 with 3:46 left.

Engelland tacked on two more free throws, Taylor and Tom Emma added one each and Engelland scored on a reverse layup with 1:13 left to make it 64-53.

Leand Is Recognized

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — She may be only 18 and a college freshman, but Andrea Leand is starting to get some recognition on the women's professional tennis tour — and she hasn't even turned pro.

"She's the hardest hitter I know of except for myself," said Martina Navratilova, the world's second-ranked player and the top seed in the third annual Avon Championships of Kansas City.

Leand used a powerful forehand to eliminate 19th-ranked Sandy Collins in the tournament's opening round Monday 6-0, 6-2. The former National Junior champion from Brooklandville, Md., took just 20 minutes to beat Collins in the first set and won the last three games of the final set.

Also Monday, Mary Lou Piatek twice battled from behind to defeat Brazil's Pat Medrado 6-1, 6-4, and West German Claudia Kohde beat Eva Pfaff, also of West Germany, 6-1, 6-1.

Leand, who attends Princeton, will meet the winner of today's match between Mima Jausovec of Yugoslavia and Lesli Allen.

Leand has played in Avon tournaments in Chicago and Detroit, where she was defeated in the first round by Navratilova.

Because she is an amateur, Leand's winnings are returned to the Women's Tennis Association.

"I've been debating a decision to turn pro for three weeks," Leand said. "While I haven't reached a decision, I think it might be in my best interests to join the pro circuit now."

Piatek will meet the winner of today's match between fourth-seeded Virginia Ruzici of Romania and Britain's Sue Barker.

Kohde overwhelmed her former doubles partner, rolling up 12 straight points in the opening set and another seven in the second set.

She will face Navratilova, whom she defeated in the first round of the Avon Championships of Oakland, Thursday night.

Redskins Tumble To 5th After Pair Of Losses

By The Associated Press
The lead has changed hands in three of six divisions this week in The Associated Press high school basketball poll, after a week full of upsets.

The new leaders are Fayetteville Terry Sanford in 4A girls, Southern Durham in 3A boys and Bandys in 2A-1A boys. The other leaders this week are Chapel Hill (4A boys), Southwest Edgecombe (3A girls) and Sampson Union (2A-1A girls).

Terry Sanford replaces Cary, which lost one of its three games last week and slips to fourth this week. Terry Sanford captured seven of 16 first-place votes and 143 of a possible 160 points from a statewide panel of sportswriters. A close second is Chapel Hill, with the Tigers gaining six first-place votes and 140 points.

It puts Chapel Hill within range of sweeping the top spots in 4A. The Tigers' boys' team has 11 first-place votes and 149 points, easily leading runnerup Wilmington New Hanover's 131 points.

In 3A, last week's leader, Robersonville Roanoke, drops to fifth place after a loss to Washington. That has enabled Southern Durham, second all season, to take the lead with seven first-place votes and 132 points. North Stokes, with four top votes and 124 points, is second. Each has moved up one spot, as have third-place Kings Mountain and fourth-ranked Swannanoa Owen.

Southwest Edgecombe's girls keep the lead with 10 first-place votes and 134 points - 14 points ahead of second-ranked Kannapolis Brown. Davie County is third.

Bandys moves to the top in 2A-1A boys ahead of West Montgomery, 132-130 in points. Each is undefeated, and the two schools have provided the closest race for first place in a poll division this season. West Montgomery was first a week ago.

Another close race is in 2A-1A girls, where Sampson Union leads Orrum 120-166.

Each of those schools is unbeaten.

Newcomers to the Top Ten this week are Greensboro Grimsley (10th in 4A boys), Graham (eighth in 3A girls) and Edneyville (10th in 2A-1A boys).

Here is how a statewide panel of sportswriters rates North Carolina high school basketball teams this week for The Associated Press. First place votes are in parentheses, followed by records and point totals. Points are assigned on a basis of 10 for a first-place vote, then nine for second, eight for third, etc.

Mystique Still Surrounds Foyt

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The mystique still surrounds A.J. Foyt Jr., a man who truly can be called a legend in his own time.

He hasn't won a major stock car race since 1972 at Ontario, Calif., and the last of his unprecedented four victories in the Indianapolis 500 was in 1977.

The 47-year-old Texan has driven in races only sporadically the past two years, and in his last outing — in July at Michigan International Speedway — he was badly injured in a grinding crash during the Norton Michigan 500 Indy car race.

But Foyt, round-faced, bandy-legged as ever and carrying a middle-aged spread around his middle, still is treated with the deference due a man who has won Indy, the Daytona 500, LeMans, seven Indy car national championships and nearly $4 million during his 30-year career.

The crowds still cheer him, the fans crowd around seeking autographs or a friendly word, and the writers and broadcasters continue to hang on his every word — when he allows them to approach.

Foyt, a man who has gotten into his share of physical confrontations, still can be a menacing presence and does not like to be disturbed when he is working on his car. In fact, it takes a subtle knowledge of Foyt's moods for the experienced newsmen to know when to approach the man called "Super Tex" by his fans, and just plain "Tex" by his friends.

However, since arriving at the Daytona International Speedway last Thursday, Foyt has been one of the real Good Ol' Boys, smiling easily and talking about virtually any subject to anyone who asks.

He has said all along that this is his comeback season, the year he is going to again concentrate on racing and let his burgeoning interests in horse racing and his other outside businesses play second fiddle to the cars.

"The accident (last July) made me realize how much I still wanted to be racing," he said last fall.

Now he is back in harness, wearing his driving uniform and again charging onto the track in that well-known Foyt "Get outta my way or I'll go over ya" style.

Foyt was the ninth fastest qualifier during pole position time trials for next Sunday's Daytona 500. He turned a fast lap of 193.648 mph in his Oldsmobile Cutlass, then roared back into the garage area and made a deal with Hoss Ellington to buy a Buick Regal, the model that dominated the 1981 NASCAR Grand National season and was driven by five of the eight men who qualified faster than Foyt did Sunday.

"The Oldsmobile is pretty good, but maybe it's a couple of miles an hour short," Foyt said Monday as his crew worked on the new acquisition. "I'll probably wind up driving the Oldsmobile in the race, because we've been working on it since we got here and it's pretty near all set up, but we'll try out the Buick this week, too."

Foyt, who has been a semi-regular on NASCAR top stock car circuit for years, decided this was the place to start his comeback and find out about his physical condition because of the prestige of the race and the demands of the stocks cars and the 2.5-mile, high-banked track.

"There's a lot of difference in the way you drive these cars and the way you drive the Indy cars," Foyt explained. "Indy cars actually run a little easier these days."

"The stock cars are like the old (Indy front-engine) roadsters. You have to work 'em out real good. You don't wrasse anything anymore like these stock cars. And this'll show me how much I can work my arm out."

Foyt's right arm was badly damaged in the crash at Michigan. He has steel pins in the elbow, a snakelike scar from elbow to wrist and still does not have full movement in the arm nor can grip the wheel tightly with his right hand.

"But I'm feelin' good," he said. "I'm handling the car okay and I don't think I'll have any trouble comin' back."

Foyt had two new Cosworth-powered March Indy cars built in England, but he says he still doesn't know whether his next race will be the Winston 500 stock car event at Talladega, Ala., on May 2, or one of the two Indy car races preceding the opening of practice May 8 at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

"We haven't done any real testing in five or six years, but we're gonna do a lot of it with these new cars. We'll see how they're runnin' and how I'm feelin', then decide where we're gonna run next."

There are practice sessions and time trials scheduled here each day through Wednesday, with a pair of 125-mile qualifying races Thursday to determine positions three through 30 for the race.

Qualifying times from Sunday, when only the two top spots were locked up — by Benny Parsons and Harry Gant — and Monday, today and Wednesday will be used to fill the final 10 spots in the regular field. The Speedway also has a promoter's option to add two more cars, raising the possible starting field to 42 cars.

No Apologies For Sonic Play During This Season

SEATTLE (AP) — Sam Schulman, longtime owner of the Seattle SuperSonics, was apologizing for his National Basketball Association club just last season.

Now, he's effusively talking about the possibility of a consummate Sonics' turnaround — from the Pacific Division cellar to their second NBA championship in four years.

"I don't mind saying it because I think our record speaks for itself," Schulman said Monday. "I definitely think we're a contender for the championship this season."

"There's every reason to believe we have the opportunity to be right in the midst of the fight for the title."

After the Sonics beat, on successive nights, Golden State, Utah and San Diego during the weekend, they — Had the NBA's second best record at 33-13, a .717 winning percentage that was second only to defending champion Boston's 34-12 mark.

— Led the Pacific Division, one-half game in front of Los Angeles, after finishing dead last in the division last season with a 34-48, 23 games behind division winner Phoenix.

— Had a six-game winning streak with 14 wins in their last 16 starts, including big road victories in Boston and Los Angeles in January.

— Had a 19-4 home record, including eight home victories in a row.

— Were 30-8 after getting off to a rocky 3-5 start.

Before going on a four-game road trip to Houston, Dallas, San Antonio and Los Angeles, the Sonics can equal their entire 1980-81 victory total with a win in the Kingdome tonight against the New York Knicks.

"Quite frankly," Schulman said in a telephone interview from his Los Angeles office, "I really didn't expect us to be this good. I expected us to be good but not this good."

"Lenny Wilkens (the Sonics' head coach) and Les Habegger (Wilkins' assistant) have done an exceptional job. The team has improved and is improving."

"Of course, there are a lot of highs and lows in this business. So I'm keeping my fingers crossed."

At this time a year ago, Schulman was an unpopular man in Seattle. That's because the Sonics were at a low

In 1978-79, the Sonics won their first NBA title and Schulman was extremely popular here then. But sports fans can be fickle.

Last season, Schulman was criticized strongly locally because he had failed to sign guard Gus Williams, the club's No. 1 scorer for three straight seasons.

But Seattle's collapse last season also came as a result of key injuries — to power forward Lonnie Shelton and guard Paul Westphal. A wrist injury that required surgery limited Shelton to 14 games.

Westphal, acquired after the 1979-80 season in a trade with Phoenix for Dennis Johnson, suffered a stress fracture in his right foot last season and played in only 36 contests.

Williams and Shelton, two-fifths of Seattle's starters in 1978-79, are back playing as good or better than ever.

Williams, the man who makes Seattle's offense go, surprised everybody and signed a new five-year contract — at a reported $700,000 a year.

In addition, Schulman signed his young and valuable center, 26-year-old Jack Sikma, to a new three-year contract at an estimated $1 million a season when the 6-foot-11 Sikma's original five-year contract is up at the end of this season.

After 46 games this season, Williams was averaging 23.8 points, Sikma 19.3 and Shelton 16.3. In addition, Sikma is the league's No. 2 rebounder with 13 per game, runnerup only to the 14 of Houston's Moses Malone.

Williams ranked in the top 10 in the NBA among three categories. He was seventh in the league in scoring, fifth in steals with a per game average of 2.39 and 10th in assists with 6.9 per contest.

The club is leading the NBA in attendance for the fourth straight season — with an average of 15,609 — and also is making money by showing all its exhibition and regular season games via cable television. The Sonics report they have 16,000 cable TV subscriptions on their own cable network.

"I've said all along," declared Schulman, "that there isn't another franchise like it in the entire country. I really mean that. The sports fans of Seattle should be proud of themselves."

"The Sonics' owner, who lives in Beverly Hills, Calif., was asked why he was successful at spending money to make money in the 1980s while some of the other NBA owners are reported to be in serious financial trouble.

"I guess it's mostly luck," he replied. "Plus I've been fortunate to have a Lenny Wilkens on my side."

"Lenny has made sure we've spent our money on the right players. I'm talking about players with heads on their shoulders with good character. I'm talking about team players."

One player the Sonics haven't spent their money on this season is Westphal, a free agent who is a five-time NBA All-Star and a nine-year professional.

Westphal underwent surgery Sept. 3 to have a screw placed in his right foot. He says he's completely healthy and ready to play.

The Sonics say they offered him a contract and he turned it down.

Davey Lopes Traded By Dodgers To A's

OAKLAND (AP) — Second baseman Davey Lopes was hopeful about the future following his trade from the Los Angeles Dodgers to the Oakland A's for minor league infielder Lance Hudson.

"I had said one time during the course of my career that it was inevitable that I would be traded someday," said Lopes, a four-time National League All-Star who has played all his nine years in the majors with the Dodgers.

"My main concern was once

I was rejected...that someone else wanted me," he added after the trade was formally announced Monday. "Oakland showed a tremendous amount of interest in me, and I'm extremely thankful for that. I will pay them (back) for wanting me here in Oakland, believe me."

Lopes, 35, is the first member to leave a Dodger infield that has played together for a record nine years, an infield that includes himself, Steve Garvey, Bill Russell and

Ron Cey. Referring to a recent dinner with Russell, Cey and Steve Yeager, Lopes said, "That was a very difficult situation...at the dinner it got quite emotional and we had to cut it kind of short."

He said he would miss playing for the world champions, "but I'm looking forward to establishing new relationships here in Oakland and doing whatever I can to help this team win a world championship...that's my concern right now."

Steve Sax had been expected to vie for second base this year with Lopes, who hit only .206 with five home runs, 17 runs batted in and 20 stolen bases in 58 games last year. Lopes said he had three years on his contract, reportedly worth $325,000 this season, $350,000 in 1983 and $425,000 in 1984.

Sax, 22, led the Texas League in hitting last year with a .346 average before being recalled by the Dodgers. In the Texas League, he had eight home runs, 53 RBI and 37 stolen bases. After Lopes was injured, Sax hit .277 with the Dodgers with two home runs, nine RBI and five stolen bases in 31 games. After the season, he was named the most valuable player in the Texas League.

Minimal Minimum: $300.

If you're tying up more than $300 to earn interest on checking, you ought to move to First Federal.

First Federal's interest-bearing Prestige Checking Account gives you 5 1/2% interest, no fees with a $300 or more balance and no other features of our Prestige Checking Account.

Like a 24 hour banking machine, no fee travelers checks and convenient locations all over Pitt County. Altogether, it's the most attractive interest-bearing checking account anywhere.

Absolutely no minimum balance if you're 55 or over.

What's more, if you're 55 or over, you don't even need the $300 minimum to earn interest on checking and all the other features of our Prestige Checking Account.

So get the most for your money

Publisher Again Threatens Close London Times

LONDON (AP) — Publisher Rupert Murdoch is threatening to close the failing Times of London and Sunday Times unless the unions agree to the firing of nearly a fourth of the 2,600 employees.

Murdoch set a Feb. 19 deadline for laying off 600 full-time employees and said he wanted to dismiss "several hundred" of the 2,950 part-time workers, most of whom are printers employed on both papers.

"The Times is not for sale," Murdoch told reporters as he left for New York, where he publishes the New York Post. "We will just close it if we don't reach agreement. Without the help of the unions it dies."

In a personal letter to the full-time staffs, he said both prestigious publications are in "desperate" financial straits and will close unless drastic staff cuts are made "within days."

They are "literally bleeding to death," he said.

Initial reaction from officials of the printing, clerical and journalists' unions varied.

Barry Fitzpatrick, whose clerical workers' union reportedly would be hit hardest, said the dismissals Murdoch wants "are not acceptable."

Opposition also was expected from the printers' union, which has borne the brunt of the 600 dismissals since Murdoch bought the papers a year ago. But Paul Routledge of the journalists' union said his group was "ready to talk."

Union sources said Murdoch wants to ax 390 clerical workers, 175 printers and 35 journalists from the two papers.

Closure of the 197-year-old Times, flagship of Britain's press, and its Sunday stablemate, first published in 1822, would be a severe psychological blow to Britain's shaky newspaper industry. However, it would probably help rival newspapers by allowing them to pick up tens of thousands of readers.

In his letter to staff members, Murdoch said the papers were expected to lose $28 million this year, wiping out the profits his News International group earns from two other national British papers and endangering the group.

Murdoch's racy Sun tabloid daily sells 4 million copies a day and the News of the World 4.7 million every Sunday.

He blamed the losses on excess personnel, soaring newsprint costs, the economic recession and the fall in the pound sterling.

The Times had a daily circulation of 297,800 in the last half of 1981, a slight rise from the equivalent period the year before. The Sunday Times had a July-December circulation of 1.43 million, 6 percent less than in the same period in 1980.

Murdoch's ultimatum was the third such he has made since buying the Times, the Sunday Times and three specialized weekly supplements for $22.44 million last February from Lord Thomson of Fleet. Thomson said the papers lost 70 million pounds — $131 million at the current exchange rate — in the 14 years he and his father owned them.

Odd Cargoes For Air Carriers

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Flying Tigers air cargo company has had its share of unusual passengers recently.

A 3,500-pound diesel engine was flown from Douglas Municipal Airport in Charlotte to Lagos, Nigeria, and two dolphins were flown

from Galveston, Texas, to a training area in Lincoln

Last month, the Charlotte-based airline handled slightly more than 2 million pounds of cargo, about 25 percent more than during a similar period a year ago.

Leo Jenkins To Keynote Annual ECU Symposium

ECU News Bureau

Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, chancellor emeritus, will keynote the seventh annual East Carolina University Phi Kappa Pi symposium Feb. 16-17 on a theme tied to celebration of the university's 75th anniversary.

Jenkins, president and chancellor of ECU for 18 years, will address the symposium on Tuesday evening Feb. 16, in Hendrix Theater at Mendenhall Student Center. The event is open to the public.

His address will be on the symposium theme: "ECU — Seventy-Five Years of Service and Commitment to the Future."

Dr. Jerry V. Tester, program coordinator for the symposium said Jenkins would talk about "what ECU was, is and is going to be — with a few stories thrown in."

A reception to honor Jenkins as the symposium keynote and for his years of service to ECU is also planned by the symposium committee.

Tester announced a program of papers to be presented during the symposium on Feb. 17 in the auditorium of the ECU School of Nursing. The program will include:

"East Carolina's First Founder's Day and the Men Who Made It Possible," by Dr. Mary Jo Bratton, associate professor of History.

"International Investment in the United States: Changing the Composition of the Area Served by East Carolina University," by Dr. Joseph A. Hill, professor of marketing and management, School of Business.

"Business Schools — Problems, Promises and Priorities," by Dr. John D. Longhill, associate professor, marketing and management, School of Business.

"Television's Challenge to Future Academic Excellence at East Carolina University," by Dr. William Stephenson, professor of English.

"Research at East Carolina University: Its Past and Future Contributions to Eastern North Carolina," by Dr. Eugenia A. Zallen, Dean of the School of Home Economics.

"Psychology: Serving the Future," by Dr. John G. Cope and John S. Childers, assistant professors of Psychology.

"The Quantitation of Medicine — The Maturation of a Science," by Dr. Allen F. Bowyer, Cardiology Section Head, School of Medicine.

"School of Education: Heritage and Promise," by Ms. Parmalee P. Hawk, assistant to the dean for research, School of Education; Dr. Joseph Congleton, professor, department of Secondary Education and Dr. Richard W. Warner Jr., dean of the School of Education.

"The Role of East Carolina University in Public Service: A Continuing Commitment," by Mack Simpson and S. Richard Brockett, development specialists, Regional Development Institute.

"The Role of Music at East Carolina University During the First 75 Years," by Dr. Charles F. Schwartz, dean, and Professor Herbert Carter, chairman of Instrumental Faculty, School of Music.

East Carolina University, founded in 1907, is celebrating its diamond anniversary this year. A campus-wide 75th anniversary committee is coordinating a year-long series of events and programs to mark the 75th year.

N. C. Symphony Still Precarious

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Although the situation is better than it has been in months, the North Carolina Symphony remains in precarious financial straits, says symphony board chairman Nancy Faircloth.

"It will take a lot of effort on everybody's part" to reach the end of the season in good financial shape, she said. "I'm not sure we could survive another shocker."

The symphony has been surviving one "shocker" after another since 1979, when conductor and artistic director John Gosling quit because of the symphony's unstable financial base.

The ensuing 18 months saw a three-week strike by musicians wanting higher pay and other considerations, budget deficits that necessitated canceling the last 24 concerts of the 1981 season, a threatened strike over the board's hiring of Patrick Flynn as artistic director and conductor, and deep budget cuts that eventually cost half the administrative staff their jobs.

But now, symphony officials say revenues are up, bills are paid and concert audiences are growing. In addition, the labor-management feud has faded and the musicians appear to have accepted Flynn for the present.

"People have got faith in the symphony again," Flynn said.

Mrs. Faircloth said the symphony has been forced to focus on essentials and set priorities.

Ronald Weddle, a 13-year veteran with the symphony, says "there's a good feeling about the effort being made" to streamline operations. Weddle, an oboist and chairman of the orchestra committee, said he feels "money isn't being lost by not trying — as has been the case in the past."

Weddle and others point to financial records as proof of the efforts. For the first half of the season, the symphony was $98,000 under budget. As of the end of 1981, revenues were up $356,000 over the previous year while expenditures were down $66,000.

Membership in the North Carolina Symphony Society was 14,079, compared to 13,360 the previous year. Single concert ticket sales were up from 3,870 to 7,078.

Mrs. Faircloth said the symphony is taking two major steps toward financial stability — rebuilding its now depleted endowment and reorganizing the symphony's chapter system.

Members of the local chapters sell season tickets for concerts in their areas.

Mrs. Faircloth said the symphony wants to get chapters more involved in soliciting gifts.

Marcos' Unwanted Son-In-Law Rescued From Guerrillas' Camp

By RUBEN G. ALABASTRO

Associated Press Writer

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — President Ferdinand Marcos' unwanted son-in-law, sportsman Tommy Manotoc, said today he was held for 41 days by Communist guerrillas. He said there was "no truth" to his family's suspicions that Marcos was involved.

"My spirits are high, but physically I am weakened," the 32-year-old basketball coach and former amateur golf champion told a televised news conference a day after his rescue by government troops.

Media Affairs Minister

Gregorio Cendana said Manotoc was found in a mountain camp 66 miles east of Manila and was freed after a battle Monday afternoon.

Manotoc, whose family accused the president and his wife, Imelda, of being involved in the kidnapping, read a letter addressed to Marcos "to set the record straight for everyone to know the truth."

"I understand that many names have been maligned and that your honor has been questioned," he said. "This I would want to rectify for the sake of the country and the Filipino people which you lead."

He declined to discuss his marriage, saying, "There are very few things left personal as far as my life is concerned. I would like to request this be one of them."

Marcos and his wife opposed Manotoc's romance with their 26-year-old daughter Imee but denied they had any part in his disappearance. Mrs. Marcos blamed it on a Communist splinter group.

Manotoc and the president's daughter were married secretly Dec. 8 in Arlington, Va. Her parents claimed the marriage was not valid because his divorce in the Dominican Republic in October from a former beauty queen, Aurora Pijuan, was not recognized in the predominantly Roman Catholic Philippines.

Manotoc's family said he disappeared Dec. 29 after having dinner with his bride at a restaurant in a Manila suburb. Since then she has been living with her parents in the presidential palace.

The missing man's family reported it received two ransom notes, one of which demanded $2.5 million, freedom for four jailed Communist leaders and amnesty for the kidnappers. The family and the military said they were fakes, but Manotoc today said he had written them.

Marcos' office announced last month that he ordered the military and police to "utilize all underground contacts to contact the kidnappers and secure (Manotoc's) safe return."

Manotoc said he was driving home after dinner with his wife when his car was blocked by one vehicle and another rammed it from behind. He said he was hit on both sides of the head with a gun and thrown into the back of a car.

Cendana's office said specially trained government forces "successfully penetrated the encampment of the kidnappers" in the Sierra Madre mountains and met with "fierce resistance from the kidnappers, who are apparently criminals supported and protected by the New People's Army," a Communist rebel group.

Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile said Manotoc was rescued in a 10-minute clash. He said one unidentified kidnapper was killed and the other four fled in the dark, leaving a bound man who was "trembling and in intense fear, badly shaken and haggard."

Enrile said the troops didn't know they had found Manotoc until he identified himself.

TV Forecaster Speaks To Club

Meteorologist Greg Fishel of WRAL-TV in Raleigh was the guest speaker at the monthly meeting of the Brightleaf Amateur Radio Club Monday night.

Fishel, who was employed by a television station in Salisbury, Md., before moving to the Raleigh station last June, spoke on the procedures of forecasting weather patterns and explained types of fronts and conditions.

After the program, the club celebrated its 15th anniversary with refreshments. The club has about 80 members.

The Great Gretzky
The world's greatest hockey players will take the ice tonight at the National Hockey League All-Star Game in Meadowlands, New Jersey. And some say the greatest of these is the Great Gretzky. Wayne Gretzky is an unlikely hockey superstar. This charming and articulate 21-year-old was considered too small and slow to make it in the professional leagues. But he was WHA Rookie of the Year his first season, NHL Most Valuable Player his second, and last year broke two long-standing records — for assists with 109 and for total points with 164. Experts expect that the Great Gretzky — with a new million-dollar a year contract in his pocket — will break many more records before he's through.

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day to be more thoughtful of the future. Try to enter into new agreements which could give you and associates an opportunity to express your talents. Be optimistic.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Using spare time for being with persons you enjoy can add much to your happiness at this time. Use your skills.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Taking time to improve conditions at home is wise. Do some entertaining, but don't invite a troublemaker.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Talk with associates about new ways to improve mutual projects. Don't overlook important correspondence.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) A good day for expansion, so put your mind to work on projects that could add to your income in the future.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You are magnetic today and can achieve a great deal if you contact the right persons. Strive for increased happiness.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Make long-range plans for the days ahead and be sure to talk them over with trusted allies. Obtain the data you need.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) State your aims to a loyal friend and you will get good suggestions on ways to add to your income. Become more popular.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Study your position in your line of endeavor and know what should be done in order to become more successful.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Stop wasting time and put those new ideas you have to work instead of procrastinating. Outsiders can be helpful.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Come to a true understanding with those you do business with and much can be gained. Become more efficient.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Clarifying with associates what each of you expects from the other is the best way to proceed at this time.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You hardly know where to begin with all the work you have to do, but if you control your temper, all will be fine.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will have to be taught early to smile more and gain the goodwill of others. Don't let pride get in the way of progress. Direct the education along lines of governmental work for best results. A good family member in this chart.

Rescued Student's Condition Critical

LINVILLE, N.C. (AP) — An Appalachian State student who stopped breathing while camping in Linville Gorge Sunday remained hospitalized in critical condition Monday.

An estimated 100 rescue workers, paramedics and National Guardsmen helped rescue Steven Hicks, 20, of Charlotte. He was taken by helicopter to Glenn R. Frye Hospital in Hickory, where spokeswoman Phyllis Grant said he underwent four hours of neurosurgery.

About seven other students had accompanied Hicks on the camping trip. Rescue workers quoted them as saying they found Hicks unconscious and were unable to revive him. The workers said two of the hikers walked to a main road and telephoned for help about 10 a.m. Sunday.

Ms. Grant said doctors were unable to determine the cause of Hicks' problems.

"He did have a blood clot but we're not sure of all the details," she said. "We want to try to get him over the acute phase and get him stable and on the road to recovery. Then perhaps we will do some further investigation."

ASU spokesman Gay Clyburn said Hicks, a sophomore, wand the other students were enrolled in a wilderness program. Ms. Clyburn said the group goes on weekend excursions such as river rafting, hiking and rock climbing.

Roy Smith of the Avery Central Rescue Squad said Hicks apparently had stopped breathing and one of his companions administered cardiopulmonary resuscitation until rescue workers arrived.

Rescue units from Avery, Burke and McDowell counties joined National Park Service workers to take turns carrying Hicks out of the steep gorge. Smith said there is a 2,000 foot rise along the two-mile trail out of the gorge.

A National Guard helicopter from Salisbury met the rescuers.

"It's unusual that the visibility and winds in the mountains will allow you to go to in and get someone out," Smith said.

3. All creditors are required, pursuant to N. C. G. S. 23-9 to file with the Clerk of Superior Court of Pitt County a statement under oath that the amount claimed by the creditor is justly due after allowing all credits and offsets to the best of the creditor's knowledge and belief.

This 22 day of January, 1982.
CLERK OF SUPERIOR COURT OF PITT COUNTY
January 26, Feb. 2, 9, 1982

NOTICE OF STREET NAME CHANGE PROPOSAL OF HOWELL OR 16TH STREET
The Planning and Zoning Commission of the City of Greenville has scheduled a public hearing on February 16, 1982 at 8 p.m. on the 3rd floor of the Municipal Building, located at the corner of 5th and Washington Streets.

The purpose of this meeting is to consider changing the street name with the 100 block of 16th Street to Howell Street or changing the 100-900 block of Howell Street to 16th Street.

During this public hearing, objections or suggestions will be duly considered by the Planning and Zoning Commission, and the general public is invited to attend.

The maps and block numbers of Howell and 16th Street are on file in the Planning Director's office, located on the third floor of the Community Building at the corner of 5th and Greene Streets. They are available for public inspection during normal working hours Monday through Friday.
