Re-Appportioning Plans To Justice Dept.

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Three new reapportionment plans, including a congressional map opposed by friends of 2d District Democratic Rep. L.H. Fountain, will be turned over to U.S. Justice Department officials for review next week, state officials say.

Alex Brock, state elections director, said the plans for state House, Senate and congressional seats probably won't be ready to send to federal officials until Tuesday or Wednesday at the earliest.

The delay is caused by the need to send extensive statistical documentation and transcripts of the legislative committee deliberations along with the plans themselves, he said.

The plans, approved by the General Assembly before it concluded a three-day special session Thursday, are to be hand-delivered by the state's Washington attorneys, Brock said.

Justice officials will then have 60 days to review the plans under the 1965 federal Voting Rights Act, and state officials as well as legislative leaders are optimistic about the chances for approval.

"From everything I can glean from them, they appear to me to have an excellent chance of receiving approval from the Department of Justice," said Brock.

"There's hope for all those plans," said James Wallace, deputy state attorney general, whose office had urged lawmakers to improve earlier plans. "We're ready to go forward with everything we've got this time."

The legislature adjourned after the House voted 80-23 to approve the new congressional plan, which moves Durham County from the 4th to the 2nd District and returns Alamance County to the 6th District.

Fountain's allies fought the plan bitterly through Thursday morning and nearly succeeded in winning an amendment that would have had the state appeal the Justice Department's rejection of the 1981 plan.

The House initially voted to approve that amendment but reversed itself after Rep. Al Adams, a highly partisan Raleigh Democrat, told the House, "it would help the Republicans."

Fountain could not be reached for comment and his press aide, Ted Daniel, said he had no reaction to the major change in his district.

Justice Department officials have rejected earlier re-districting plans, ruling under the voting rights law that each weakened black voting strength.

Approval this time, however, probably would not end legal tests.

Leslie Winner, attorney for the NAACP Legal and Education Defense Fund, said that group will probably continue its federal suit seeking single-member districting plans for all Senate and House seats.

"I think it's safe to assume we'll pursue the lawsuit as to state legislative plans," Ms. Winner said.

She said the NAACP group probably would not renew its suit against the congressional plan.

City Council Again Puts Off 2 Rezoning Hearings

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

The absence of two City Council members from Thursday night's meeting necessitated again the continuation of public hearings on two requests for rezoning where protest petitions have been received.

With Janice Buck and George Pugh out of town, the council was faced with a situation of all four remaining members having to vote in favor of a request in order for an item to receive approval. In fairness to the petitioners and any who might have opposed the rezoning actions, the council voted not to consider the requests until the March 11 meeting when the full board is expected.

Continued were requests by: Thomas Taft to rezone approximately 15.61 acres at the northwest corner of Stantonsburg Road and Allen Road from RA-20 (residential-agricultural) to Highway Commercial; and by J. T. Manning to rezone, from RA-20 to R-9 (residential) some 4.51 acres located adjacent to the Tucker Farm development and Shenandoah Subdivision.

Petitions have been received opposing both rezoning requests, according to City Manager Ed Wyatt. The council had continued the requests at the Jan. 29 special call meeting.

In other business during the brief meeting, approval was given following a public hearing to a request by Leroy Cherry to rezone, from RA-20 to R-15 and R-6, approximately 30 acres located west of Memorial Drive and south of Greenville Country Club. Greenway Apartments form the eastern boundary.

Approval was also given following a public hearing to a request by James H. Hudson to rezone, from RA-20 to Industrial, of approximately 2.6 acres on the eastern side of Greenville Boulevard some 716 feet from the right-of-way line of the boulevard and at the rear of the lot requested for rezoning by Eaton Corp. No opposition was expressed during the public hearing.

The council continued action until March on a recommendation by the Traffic Commission that a request by Jim Veeder of 212 Greenwood Drive to reduce the speed limit from 35 mph to 25 mph on Belvedere Drive, Club Pines drive, Crestline Boulevard and Greenwood Drive be denied.

Veeder, who identified himself as the community watch chairman for his neighborhood, said that during a survey by the Traffic Commission, speeds as high as 55 mph were recorded in the petition area. He said residents of the four streets have been surveyed and they are in favor of reducing the speed limits. He added that no child has been hit yet in the area but "numerous close calls" have occurred.

Councilman William Hadden said that 35 mph was "excessive in my own mind" and he suggested that, if limits on Fourth and Fifth streets were 35 instead of 25 mph, the potential for accidents would be greater.

Councilman Stuart Shinn noted that the streets involved in the request are much wider than Fourth and Fifth streets.

Mayor Percy Cox said that, in continuing the matter, the city will have a chance to improve enforcement of the existing limits on the four streets.

No Retreat On Defense

By CLIFF HAAS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan says he's willing to give Congress "running room" to pare the record deficits in his 1983 budget plan, but not by reducing defense spending or increasing taxes.

Top congressional Republicans told the president face-to-face Thursday that his $75.6 billion budget plan for fiscal 1983 won't get far on Capitol Hill as long as it projects a deficit approaching $100 billion.

House Republican leader Robert H. Michel of Illinois emerged from the White House meeting saying many conservatives — who had hoped Reagan would produce on his earlier promises to balance the budget — feel "pole-axed" by forecasts of a record flow of red ink for years to come.

Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr. of Tennessee and Sen. Paul Laxalt, R-Nev., joined Michel in telling Reagan and key administration officials that, as Laxalt put it, "the name of the game is getting that interest rate down, and the way to get it down very frankly ... is to reduce the size of the deficits."

Laxalt, Reagan's closest friend in the Senate and former chairman of his presidential campaign, said he asked Reagan for the "running room ... to come up with some better results."

The president responded later in the day.

"I've sent a budget up that I believe in very much," he told reporters. "On the other hand there's been a suggestion now that even further cuts could be made, and I feel the Congress should have the running room to be able to talk about those and see what they're talking about."

White House spokesman David Gergen said it was too early to talk about compromise on details of the administration's program. "There is no plan here to compromise. We're not sending those kind of signals. That was not the spirit of the meeting here today."

Reagan, meanwhile, said he was not worried by the early adverse reaction to his budget "because I know they're (members of Congress) going home in a few days, and when they get home they're going to find out how much the people want what we have proposed."

Emergency Guideposts

NEW SIGNS INSTALLED — New emergency entrance signs have been installed at Pitt County Memorial Hospital. According to Ralph Hall, associate director in charge of the physical plant, the new lighted signs cost approximately $11,000, and part of the funding was provided by the Independent Insurance Agents of Pitt County. The three signs are located off N.C. 43, Stantonsburg highway and in the middle of the hospital property, directing the way to the emergency room. The old, smaller sign is in the background. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

Soaring Food Prices Set Pace At Wholesale Level

By ROBERT FURLOW
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The biggest one-month food price increase since the summer of 1980 pushed overall inflation at the wholesale level higher at an annual rate of 5.3 percent last month, the government reported today.

Analysts said sharp reductions in hog-breeding herds had cut the supply of pork, contributing to a big increase in meat prices and to a 1.1 percent rise in food prices at the pre-retail level.

In addition, prices turned up sharply for eggs and accelerated somewhat for refined sugar, dairy products, fish, roasted coffee and a variety of other foods, the new report said.

It said the Labor Department's Producer Price Index for finished goods rose 0.4 percent in January alone, up slightly from December's 0.3 percent, but generally in line with figures for the past year which have been much improved over 1980.

White House spokesman Barry Speakes called the report "good news" and said that "we're encouraged this is a continued sign of progress in getting inflation down."

Inflation for all of 1981 totaled 7 percent at the wholesale level, compared with 11.8 percent the previous year.

January's 5.3 percent annual rate means that if prices rose at the same 0.4 percent pace for 12 consecutive months, the overall increase would total 5.3 percent.

Wholesale prices climbed just 6.3 percent in the past 12 months, the lowest total since the 6.2 percent for the 12 months ended in April 1977.

The food price increase in January was the biggest since the 2.6 percent of August 1980, when the nation was suffering from a severe drought, Labor Department officials said.

However, the food rise was partly offset by a 0.9 percent decline in energy costs. That decline followed increases of more than 1 percent in both November and December.

Gasoline and natural gas prices decreased somewhat in January, but prices for home heating oil showed a small increase.

THERMOSTAT REFUND

On Dec. 29, I purchased a thermostat for an electric heater from General Electric Supply Co. When I got home, I found the heater already had a thermostat and sent my daughter to return the one I just bought. Although it was not in a box when I bought it, the clerk told my daughter that since it was not in a box when returned, he'd have to charge a 25 percent restocking fee.

He also said he could not give the refund in cash. He said the refund would have to be handled by GE Supply's Charlotte office, by check.

It's February now and I've called Charlotte two times and talked with the people here several times and still don't have my refund. J.S.

You should by this time.

GE Supply manager Jerry Martintold HOTLINE that he's sorry about the misunderstanding and delay, and said your problems began when your daughter talked to a new employee about the refund — one who didn't fully understand what he was supposed to do.

Martin said he called Bridgeport, Conn., where your refund check was being processed this week, and told them to hold the check. He said if you'd come by, your full $13.50 would be refunded in cash — with no 25 percent deducted.

Phoenix Outlines Steps On Future Service

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

Recruitment of working volunteers, enlarging membership and making decisions to adopt specific programs to support were the principal points of concern expressed at the February meeting of the local Phoenix organization meeting held Thursday night at the Bachelor Benedict Club.

Among projects discussed as ones to be considered for possible adoption by the organization are:

•A suggestion by Jayne Silliman, representing the League of Women Voters, to look into a service program for juveniles at times they are held in custody in the Pitt County jail. Ms. Silliman cited the crowded conditions, lack of reading material and exercise area as being circumstances faced by these young offenders. Although young offenders as a rule do not remain for a long period of time in the county jail, Ms. Silliman said she feels efforts are needed to provide them assurance while they are in custody.

•Attorney Robert Shoffner, a public defender in the local court system, offered the suggestion that Phoenix look into the possibility of working with the courts in an evaluation program for persons unable to provide bail. In many instances, Shoffner reported, persons incarcerated for comparatively minor offenses remain in custody for relatively extended periods of time because they or their families cannot raise the required bail. He added that judges and district attorneys are understandably reluctant to take the risks involved in releasing a charged person on his own cognizance — an action that is permitted by law under certain conditions.

Citing a program that has proved workable and successful in New York state, Shoffner said that an organization such as Phoenix could be the instrument to investigate the background of someone charged and to make an evaluation on whether such a person was a good risk in being released under certain circumstances without bail.

Pope John Paul Begins An 8-Day Tour Of Africa

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — To the blare of colonial bands and the throb of tribal drums, Pope John Paul II arrived in Nigeria today on his first foreign trip since an assassin tried to kill him last May.

The papal jet, an Alitalia Airbus, touched down at Lagos' Murtala Muhammed Airport at 4:15 p.m. (10:15 a.m. EST) after a six-hour flight from Rome.

Nigerian President Shehu Shagari, who is a Moslem, and other dignitaries of Africa's most populous country greeted the white-robed, smiling pontiff. A half-dozen groups of tribal dancers wearing cloth skirts, beads and feathers shook to the sound of pulsating drumbeats. The Nigerian army fired a 21-gun salute, a holdover from the country's days as a British colony, and marching bands in bright-colored uniforms played martial music.

All day, the national Radio Nigeria had been broadcasting a rock tune composed especially to publicize John Paul's five-day visit to black Africa's most populous nation.

"The pope is coming, let's congregate," it said. "The pope is coming. Good tidings for men of good will."

An announcer added the visit was an "occasion for everyone, Christian and Moslem alike, to rejoice."

The pope's eight-day tour of Africa, a continent he once called "ripe for the harvest" because of its fast-growing Roman Catholic church, includes shorter stops in Gabon, Benin and Equatorial Guinea.

A motorcade waited to take John Paul along a seven-mile route to the 100,000-seat national stadium, which opened its gates to the crowds 12 hours ahead of the scheduled Mass the pope was to celebrate.

Despite his wounding by a Turkish terrorist during a general audience in St. Peter's Square last May, he was expected to have as much personal contact as possible with the vast crowds awaiting him.

The 61-year-old pontiff has rebuffed efforts to increase protective measures for him. He has stressed repeatedly that he will risk his life to spread the Gospel, and feels it is important to maintain personal contacts with the faithful.

"We can tell him it's dangerous to get out there with the people, but we can't do anything except obey and pray after the pope says he is going some place," said one of the Vatican's Swiss Guards.

Donna Grady White Marries On Saturday

ATLANTA, Ga. — Donna Grady White of Atlanta and Leonard Wannbacher Willis III of Macon were united in marriage in the First Presbyterian Church here at noon Saturday.

The double ring ceremony was performed by Dr. William Forbes.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Don Franklin White Sr. of Greenville, N.C. and Dr. and Mrs. Leonard Wannbacher Willis Jr. of Bainbridge, Ga.

Music for the ceremony was presented by Dr. Herbert Archer, organist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of ivory satin and French alencon lace highlighted with seed pearls. The fitted bodice was fashioned of lace and featured a Queen Ann neckline, long tapered sleeves and a natural waistline. The lace was petaled onto the skirt at the waist. A band of matching alencon was applied around the hemline with medallions floating above. The gown had a full chapel train. A bandeaux of alencon lace with seed pearls held the bride's full length veil of ivory illusion. French silk flowers held the veil on either side of the lace. She wore a pearl necklace and carried a bouquet of gardenias, sonya roses and stephanotis.

Lynn White Hadwin of Mount Airy, N.C. attended her sister as matron of honor. Other attendants were Mary Jane Simmons, Donna Pulliam Lentz, Catherine Marie Gazala and Susan Elizabeth Jones of Atlanta, Deborah Willis Holt, Olivia Frankie Willis of Atlanta and Mary Eugenia Willis of Bainbridge, Ga., sisters of the bridegroom.

They wore full length gowns of ivory moire. A waist length jacket with self-ruffled at the neck and wrists covered the sheath dress. They each carried an arm bouquet of tulips, water lilies and baby's breath tied with auburn ribbon.

The father of the bridegroom served as best man and groomsmen included Robert Carlisle Young and Michael Pierce Holt of Atlanta, Robert Lloyd Rich III, Leonard Reese Rollins and Bill Knight Reynolds Jr. of Bainbridge, Ga., cousins of the bridegroom, Gary Lyn Hadwin of Mount Airy, N.C. and Don Franklin White Jr. of Spartanburg, S.C., brother of the bride.

The chancel contained arrangements of candelabra and greenery.

The parents of the bride entertained at a reception at the Capital City Club after the ceremony. A dinner at the Capital City Club followed the rehearsal Friday given by parents of the bridegroom.

The bride is a graduate of Vardell Hall, Red Springs, N.C. and Converse College, Spartanburg, S.C. She has been employed as business manager for Niles Bolton and Associates of Atlanta.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Presbyterian College, Clinton, S.C. and received a M.B.A. from Georgia College. He is president of Bo Willis Pontiac, Inc., Macon, Ga.

The couple will live in Macon, Ga.

Dear Abby

Well-Meaning Parents Lack Objectivity

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1982 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been divorced for a year. When we started having problems, we went to a marriage counselor in an effort to save our marriage for the sake of our children.

During this time I told my parents what was going on, and I told my husband to tell his parents. He refused to tell them, so they heard it from strangers and now they are blaming me.

His parents say that had they known we were considering divorce and needed counseling, they could have talked some sense into our heads and saved our marriage. I don't happen to agree with them, do you?

I still think it was my husband's place to tell his parents, and under no circumstances should we have turned to them for counseling. I would appreciate your views.

IRRECONCILABLE DIFFERENCES

DEAR DIFFERENCES: I agree. It was your husband's place to tell his parents. And regardless of how well-meaning parents are, they lack the objectivity required to mediate the domestic differences of their children.

DEAR ABBY: My son at age 21 got a young girl pregnant and wanted no part of marriage. A baby boy was born (I'll call him Andy). Because I myself had been an abandoned child, I didn't want Andy going through life looking for a father as I had done, so since I was a widower I took the young unmarried girl and Andy into my home to live with me.

Although the girl was only 18 and I was 42, our love grew, and we have lived together as a family ever since. She has been a wonderful mother to my grandchild, who is 9 now and thinks I am his father. The girl has been as faithful as a wife to me although we never married.

My son is very irresponsible and has no interest in Andy, who thinks his father is his "brother." Abby, should I tell Andy the truth about who he is? His mother doesn't want him to know because she's afraid it might upset him. I'm thinking about marrying Andy's mother and adopting the boy so he will be my legitimate son even though a marriage now would be awkward because everybody (friends and neighbors) thinks we're married. Thank you for any advice you can give me.

WITHHOLD MY NAME

DEAR WITHHOLD: If you and Andy's mother love each other, a quiet wedding would seem appropriate. Adopt Andy, and at a later date when he can handle the story of "who he is," tell him.

DEAR ABBY: Most people, upon being introduced to someone, will say, "I am very pleased to meet you," or words to that effect. When parting, these same individuals will probably say, "I hope we meet again."

I realize these statements are merely a part of our social ritual and make us feel more comfortable than enduring total silence.

However, these statements are usually phony, hypocritical and even downright lies.

Do you have some recommended replacements?

A MEETER OF PEOPLE

DEAR MEETER: If your commitment to total integrity does not permit you to utter anything that is not absolutely sincere, upon being introduced to someone whom you are not particularly pleased to meet, simply say "Hello."

And when you depart, with no desire to see that person again, say "Goodbye."

COOKING IS FUN!

By CECILY BROWNSTONE

AP Food Editor

Sachiko Komoto, who lives in the United States, writes and illustrates children's books published in Japan.

Mrs. Komoto specializes in animal stories. In her Japanese ABC book ("Ieuno No Yta"), for example, the pages devoted to the letter "T" are illustrated by a mother pig serving a platter of Tempura (deep-fried seafood and vegetables) to her family of three piglets.

When we saw Mrs. Komoto's delightful illustration, we asked her whether she ever served tempura to her family. Indeed she does, and here is an adaptation of the recipe she uses. Tried in our kitchen, we found it absolutely delicious.

SACHIKO'S TEMPURA

1/2 pound skinless fish fillets, such as flounder or sole, cut in 2-inch pieces

1/2 pound sea scallops, cut in half if large

1/4 pound (4 large) shrimp, shelled and deveined with tails left on

1 sweet potato (1/2 pound), peeled and cut in 1/4-inch-wide slices

1 Spanish onion (about 3/4 pound), cut in 1/4-inch-wide slices without separating into rings

1 large green pepper, cut in 1/2-inch wide strips

Batter, recipe follows

1 quart (about) corn oil

Bottled Tempura Sauce

With paper toweling dry seafood and vegetables thoroughly.

Make Batter.

Pour corn oil into a heavy 3-quart saucepan or deep fryer, filling no more than 1-3rd full. Over medium heat, heat to 375 degrees (or use an electric deep-fat fryer).

Dip seafood pieces, one at a time, into Batter and fry a few at a time, turning once, until pale gold — 2 to 3 minutes. Drain on brown paper or paper towels. Dip vegetables, one at a time, into batter and fry a few at a time, turning once, until golden — 1 to 2 minutes. Drain on brown paper or paper towels. Serve with Tempura Sauce. Makes 4 servings.

Batter: In a medium bowl stir together 2-3rds cup all-purpose flour, 3 tablespoons cornstarch and 1/2 teaspoon salt. In a small bowl beat together 2 large eggs and 3/4 cup cold water until blended; add to flour mixture and stir just until moistened — batter will be lumpy. Do not stir batter again.

Chapter business included making a donation to Pitt County Hospice Services. Final details were discussed concerning the Valentine covered-dish dinner planned for members and husbands at the Cherry Oaks clubhouse Friday evening.

Life As It's Lived

Science Has Yet To Do An Off-Button On Kids

By GAIL MICHAELS
Now that scientists have invented artificial hearts and computerized limbs, they should start working on something really practical; and off-on button for children's vocal cords.

My children never talk when they're supposed to. When I want Zachary to make the day of that sweet lady in the grocery store by responding to her overtures, he stares at her as if she just sprouted facial hair and antennae. I really don't believe his grandparents think him capable of speech.

Only when he has no important audience does he utter his views on life. He is especially fond of uttering them at 3 a.m. "Good boy like cars!" he will announce. "Brrmmmm, brrmmmm, brrmmmm."

Meg was always fond of that hour of the morning, too. But I'm not as patient as I was in my younger years. The last time Zachary began his early bird monologue, I was not even slightly amused.

"Book read. Book read. Throw the ball, that's a boy, throw the ball. Mooooo. Cow say mooooo ooooo. Yea-a-a-a-a-a-a!"

After 10 minutes of this, I marched into his room, threw him down on his stomach in the crib, and yelled, "That's enough! It's night-time and if you don't stop talking, Mama is going to be very angry!"

His only response was a surprised whimper. Phillip, however, was sitting straight up in bed upon my return with his eyes half-popped out of their sockets. "Weren't you a bit harsh? Aren't you afraid you'll traumatize him?"

He can say that; he sleeps through it all. But if Zachary's verbal habits don't bother him, Meg's send him up a wall — or through a windshield, depending on the location of the current interminable monologue. I have learned through years of practice to elevate my consciousness to another level when Meg's mouth goes into gear. Phillip, on the other hand, begins to hyperventilate after 30 or 40 minutes of constant chatter.

She was 20 minutes into a talking binge on the way back from Raleigh the other night before Phillip started getting the strained look that always indicates he's had just about as much as he can take. She had seen a barn, which immediately brought to mind the subject of farms. She told us how much she would like to live on a farm, described in detail the routine she would establish, and named her chicken Chicken, her cow Milky, her pig Snort and her Irish Setter Dog-Dog.

"And I would have a horse," she continued. "Yes, if I lived on a farm, I would definitely have a horse, a big horse with a long mane and big loving eyes and I would let Zachary ride him, and I would name him Horsie. Don't you think that's a good name for a horse, don't you, Daddy?"

Having been consulted on all the other names, Phillip was ready with his answer. "Yes. Now be quiet. You've talked enough, and I'd like to talk to Mommy for awhile."

"But don't you want to hear about my horse?"

"Will you be quiet!?" Phillip roared.

There was total silence in the back seat.

"Did you hear me, young lady?"

More silence.

"What do you say when I speak to you Meg?" he roared again.

"I say I can't win."

Phillip gave me a rueful look and shrugged his shoulders. "Neither can I."

Two staff members have joined East Carolina University's Mendenhall Student Center.

They are Jonathan Curtis, who has been appointed assistant program director, and Linda Barkand, named crafts and recreation director.

Curtis will work as assistant to Mendenhall Program Director Kenneth Hammond in the operation of the various series and special events sponsored by the Center and the ECU Student Union.

These include musical performances, theatrical productions, films and other programs.

Ms. Barkand is a Pittsburgh native who received the bachelor's degree in health, physical education and recreation from Slippery Rock State College in Pennsylvania.

As director of Mendenhall's Crafts and Recreation Center, she will administer a variety of mini-courses each semester in physical conditioning, arts and crafts and dance. The crafts center programs are open to ECU students, faculty and staff and their guests.

YPHA SERVICE
A YPHA service will be held Sunday at 3 p.m. at Morning Star Holiness Church. The pastor, Roxanna Brown, invites the public to attend.

GUEST SPEAKER
Rev. Leathers of Fayetteville will be guest speaker Sunday at the 11 a.m. service at Cedar Grove Missionary Baptist Church. Deacon Leon Evans invites the public to attend.

An Unqualified Applicant?

"I do not think myself fit for the Presidency. I certainly am flattered, and grateful that some partial friends think of me in that connection." When Abraham Lincoln wrote these words in 1859 he was not just being modest. With only one year of schooling, this ex-saloonkeeper and failed businessman hardly seemed Presidential timber. He had been defeated twice as a Senate candidate and once in a Vice-Presidential bid. His total elected experience was two years in the Illinois Assembly and two years in the U.S. House. In 1860 many voters also questioned his fitness — only 40% voted for him. But today on his 173rd birthday, we remember him as one of this country's greatest and most beloved Presidents.

HAIR SPRAY
BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Sprayed hair doesn't have to look that way, says Patrick Moreton, a hair stylist.

"I like to use an aerosol spray on hair, then run my fingers through the hair. This

"Like anything in excess, too much spray is bad," he added.

Install Captain Of Coast Guard Unit

ROPER, N.C. — William M. Tetterton of Williamston has been installed as captain of the Division XVI of the U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary.

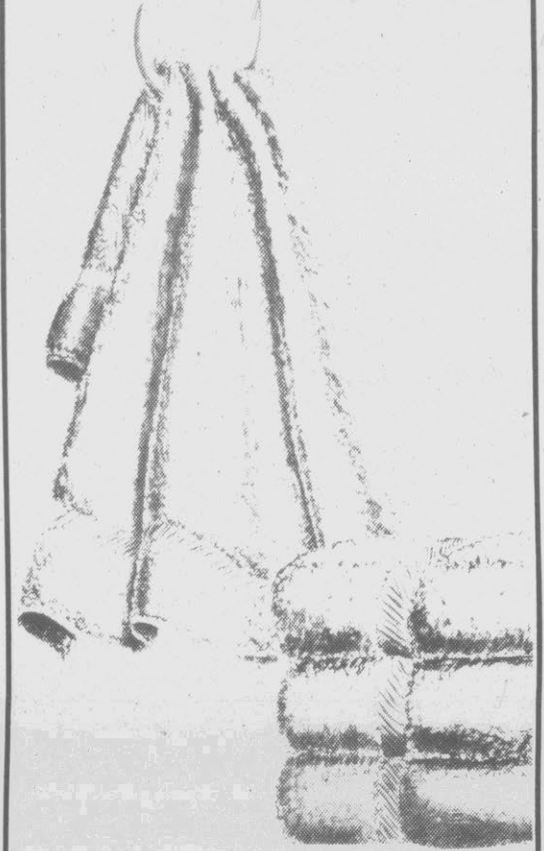

Tetterton's installation took place at a change of watch ceremony held recently in Roper. ## Action May Be Needed

The Legislative House of Representatives redistricting plan has been approved by the State Legislature despite strenuous objections by Eastern legislators who feel their section has borne the brunt of the county splitting efforts.

Certainly it is a matter of grave concern for our area.

"It reminds me of the man holding a fish in one hand and a knife in the other," Rep. Sam Bundy said. "As the fish squirmed the man said, 'stay still; I am just going to gut you.' So it is with the east and the northeast, for we are being gutted."

Somehow we get the same feeling. Understandably the Legislature had a difficult job with the U.S. Justice Department demanding redistricting that reflected more minority districts.

Nevertheless the new redistricting plan has made for some strange situations, and with the east bearing a large part of the county-splitting. A part of Northeastern Pitt County was placed in another district, for instance, and Martin County is badly carved up.

There is consideration of legal action to determine if this is a proper redistricting considering the historic patterns of the state. Certainly this idea should be pursued.

Jobs Only If Qualified

A few weeks ago President Reagan, in response to a reporter's question on unemployment, replied that he had picked up the Sunday Washington Post and read 24 pages of "Help wanted" Ads. He said "What we need to do is make more people qualified to go and apply for these jobs."

I happened to remember this when Frederico, a chauffeur, who had been laid off by the government, came to see me to complain he couldn't find a job.

"Why don't you look in the 'Help wanted' pages of the Washington Post?" I said angrily.

"I can't afford to buy the Post."

"Here," I said, throwing the 'Help wanted' section at him. "Now you have no excuse."

Frederico started studying the pages. "This sounds good," he said. "Some company wants a cellular immunologist."

"Well, there you are," I told him. "Why don't you apply for it?"

"What's a cellular immunologist?"

"I don't have the slightest idea. But I'm sure you can fake it until you learn the ropes."

He circled it, and kept reading. "Do you know what a psychiatric nurse is supposed to do?"

"I would assume he or she must take care of mentally sick people, counsel them, provide them with drugs, and look after their physical needs."

"I did that when I was a chauffeur in the government," Frederico said brightly. "Most of the people I drove were crazy or they wouldn't be entitled to a chauffeured car."

ART BUCHWALD

I encouraged him. "All it takes to be a psychiatric nurse is common sense. You'd be perfect for the job."

Frederico circled that one.

"Here's one that sounds interesting," he said. "Nuclear Energy Safety Inspector for Breeder Reactor Facility. I wonder what would be required of me."

"It's a snap. All you have to do is walk around the plant and if you see a water pipe leaking or a red light blinking, report it to the janitor."

"Is it safe?"

"Of course it's safe. They give you a white badge to wear, and if it turns a motley green, that means the reactor is giving off more radioactivity than the human body can absorb."

"What do I do then?"

"You clear everyone out of the building until the public relations people announce it's safe to go back in again."

"Well, it's a job," Frederico said, circling it.

"Listen to this one. 'If you are unhappy in your present Data Systems Position, we are looking for you. The position we have open requires a Computer Programmer who can evaluate stress factors on aerospace high-tension materials, and devise new methods of factoring mathematical blueprint formulae with heat intensities of 8,000 degrees Fahrenheit. Starting salary $40,000 a year and medical benefits.' That's more money than I can make as a psychiatric nurse."

"And the work is probably more fulfilling too," I said. "I wouldn't be surprised if you were put to work on the B-1 bomber."

"The ad says people will be interviewed tomorrow at the Holiday Inn in Bethesda."

"You can stop off there after your interview with the Breeder Reactor plant," I said.

Frederico said "Hey, look, Saudi Arabia is advertising for a neurosurgeon, and they provide housing and servants with the job. What do you think?"

"Better talk it over with your wife. You'll be busy operating all day long, but she might get bored there with nothing to do. Do you see

A Centenary Of Legends

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent
NEW YORK (AP) — John Barrymore once played "Julius Caesar" in two grain elevator tank towns where the penurious stage manager sought to flesh out the Roman scene by signing on a quartet of local hookers as vestal virgins.

When they failed to meet the Great Profile's lofty Shakespearian standards at the dress rehearsal, he grandiloquently imprompted them, "Ladies, a little more virginity, if you please."

Then there was the winter night on Broadway when a hacking, sneezing, coughing audience intruded upon his "Hamlet," regarded by the critics as the greatest of its time. Barrymore suddenly reached inside his cloak and tossed a dead fish into the balcony, with the injunction, "Here, chew on this, you damned walruses!"

Another night, another town, another "Hamlet," he capriciously broke into a nimble soft shoe after the "What a piece of work is a man, how noble in reason!" soliloquy and Rosencrantz and Guildenstern, who had been to the well in his dressing room, joined in.

These anecdotes rush to mind because Monday, Feb. 15, is the centenary of John Barrymore's birth, and careful perusal of the theater listings and movie ads in the morning paper convinces me that there is no one around in his class today, nor has there been in many moons and many rising curtains.

Greta Garbo said he had "that divine madness without which an artist cannot work or live."

Tragically, John Barrymore's madness was part genius and part gin. When he died in Los Angeles in 1942 at age 60, one medical report sadly noted that from age 14 he was "more or less a chronic drinker."

His classic profile, deep resonant voice and ability to immerse himself in any part — Hamlet, Don Juan, Sherlock Holmes, Svengali, Beau Brummel, Bulldog Drummond, Dr. Jekyll, Richard III. Raffles, his range was as enormous as Hollywood was ridiculous — made him the highest paid star of his day. But the more the public and critics acclaimed his talents, the more he squandered them.

"Acting," he once said, "comes easy and pays well. There's the narcotic."

His life style made Broadway and Hollywood legend.

John Barrymore came to terms with prohibition by setting up a still in his dressing room. He was always great box office, whether the SRO signs went up for "Dinner at Eight," "Bill of Divorcement" or "Counselor at Law," or whether the crowds came merely to see if the star would appear drunk again.

His blazing, brawling marriages to Katherine Harris, Blanche Oelrichs (better known as poetess Michael Strange), Dolores Costello and Elaine Barrie established the malicious milieu of the Hollywood gossip column and, as one critic observed, received better coverage than the Ethiopian war. "They all lasted seven years," Barrymore said of his wives, "Like some kind of skin rash."

His love for animals bordered on the manic. Early risers in Hollywood sometimes were treated to the spectacle of a $50,000 a week star rooting through their garbage cans. Barrymore, faultlessly attired in opera cape and pearl gray fedora, was after breakfast for Maloney, his pet king vulture, another fixture in his dressing room. The one animal he loathed was "that great hulking monster with 4,000 eyes and 40,000 teeth known as the audience."

John Barrymore never wanted to be an actor. He wanted to be a newspaperman and actually began as a $50 a week cartoonist on the New York Journal before turning to acting at age 21. But he could not escape the heritage of being born into America's first royal family of the theater in that 3-story frame house on North 12th Street in Philadelphia, where he and older sister Ethel and older brother Lionel cut their eye teeth on iambic pentameters, and were sent to

Positive Action is Taken

In our concern with the budget cutting in Washington which is affecting the poor and the unemployed, we should note that some action is being taken to alleviate some of the conditions caused by the budget squeeze.

The Senate this week approved emergency funds to assist low-income Americans with heating costs and to make price support loans to farmers.

Also approved was an administration requested bill to appropriate $2.3 billion for jobless pay and services. The background on that is that many Employment Security Commission offices were threatened by lack of funds.

If cutbacks in programs are inevitable, it would be a serious mistake for our government to ignore the direst needs of the poor and unemployed who are worst hit by the recession.

THIS AFTERNOON

Misinformation?

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — County officials are fired up with Gov. Jim Hunt and his administration about the handling of public announcements concerning food stamp error rates.

The heart of the argument has to do with the public statements by high state officials that blame must be placed on county officials.

One particular comment by Hunt sums up the matter. "If they were state employees, we could just fire them," he said as he took the position that the state is not responsible.

County officials are disturbed not only with the alleged errors which are causing millions of dollars to be passed out to ineligible people, or in excess amounts, but with the way in which Hunt and Sarah Morrow, secretary of the Department of Human Resources, called press conferences to reveal the problems and attack local governments in the process.

Analysis
Patrice Roesler, intergovernmental coordinator for the N.C. Association of County Commissioners, wrote a lengthy analysis of the situation for publication on the front page of the periodical published by the association and distributed to county commissioners and other local government officials.

Ms. Roesler maintains that the news conferences to reveal the figures were "hastily called" and that county managers and chairmen of boards of county commissioners were not notified in advance.

State officials stated that such notification had been given, and that the facts and figures were provided before going public with them in Raleigh.

Staff with the Association of County Commissioners conducted a telephone survey and found that "not only were the county commissioners and managers not informed in advance of the intentions to announce the 19 'worst' counties with 'unacceptable' individual error rates, but the statistics handed out to the media at the news conferences were unreliable in presenting a true picture of the counties' individual error rates and indeed were not even considered 'true' rates by Department of Human Resources Division of Social Services which prepared them," Ms. Roesler maintains.

BILL NOBLITT

Ms. Roesler also reports that a study of the problems with errors has been conducted over the past several months by social services directors from around the state, and that the final report of that committee was supposed to have been presented to Dr. Morrow by Dan Hudgins of Durham County, president of the directors' association, "on the very day of the news conference."

Insidious
Ms. Roesler insists that "the most insidious part of the entire food stamp error situation has been the wealth of misinformation created in the media at the expense of county government in general."

The analyst says error rates are typically not as high as state figures make them appear, that the impression has been given that county commissioners don't care about the error in food stamps because it is federal money, and that state officials have no role to play in administering the program and accepting responsibility for the error rates.

Actually, Ms. Roesler reports, local social services people are hired from a state roster with state approval. There is county money in the food stamps program, and top state officials have admitted that the figures are not actual error rates, but "county indicator of error" statistics.

County commissioners, managers and social services directors will be trying to come up with answers to the problem. Efforts can only succeed if state officials "acknowledge that in North Carolina there is a county-administered and state-supervised human services system. The only way to improve it is to work together," Ms. Roesler concludes.

Other Editors Say On The Record

(The Raleigh Times)

In the tight and clubby little world of North Carolina's legislature, accountability to the home folks is hard to come by. Many a telling fact about what legislators do in Raleigh gets lost in transit between Capitol Square and their hometowns.

On matters crucial to a district, local media and the honorables themselves make sure word gets back. On major statewide issues, bigger newspapers and other media try with varying energy and success to keep score.

But information is scarce and chancy on other specifics. Few outside their own circles know which lawmakers spend time in which lobbyists' pockets. Few know how the hometown representative votes when the home folks aren't looking.

Getting answers has been hard and time-consuming. With exceptions like the League of Women Voters, groups who take the trouble to do it usually have some strong, special stake. And they keep vote scores only on a few chosen issues.

Now, for the first time ever, a record of all roll-call votes has been published. The non-profit N.C. Center for Public Policy Research wisely started on a small scale, with votes from last October's special sessions. But listing, name by name, all the votes just from those two short sessions took 66 legal-size pages.

As an accountability device, this record is still difficult to use. Without knowing a bill's number you're out of luck. And the initial format has no index, either by bill number or by subject matter, though the Center hopes to add one in later editions.

The record also can only show electronically recorded votes, usually taken on second readings. Sometimes an important bill meets death before that, on a non-recorded committee vote, or gets major changes later, on a voice vote — while big bills like Appropriations, with their many amendments and rewrites, may have 20 or more recorded votes to trace.

When the Center compiles votes for a long session, it may have to exclude the hundreds of local bills if the record's size is to be kept manageable. And timely publication is essential. Such records won't be worth their printing paper unless they can be issued very soon after a session ends.

But the Center deserves a statewide round of applause for starting the Voting Report Service, which it wants to make available via subscriptions. We hope public interest will make this venture in accountability succeed.

Strength For Today

VARIETIES OF ANGER

Are you capable of being angry? "Of course," you say.

The Bible speaks often of our Lord's anger; but never once was he angry because of what anyone did to him.

When they nailed him to a cross, he said, "Father forgive them, for they know not what they do." His anger was always directed against men's cruel narrowness and the heartlessness with which they treated each other.

If we are Christians, we should ask ourselves, what is the nature of our anger? The capacity for anger such as that shown by Jesus is a gift of God. Hostility, resentment, and the uninhibited manner in which we often lunge at other people's throats is something quite different — the result of our frustrations, our selfishness, and our lack of love.

The Christian answer to this problem is, "Be angry, and sin not." — Elisha Douglass

Blunt And Not So Remarkable

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) —

Years ago, a businessman joined the Cabinet and stirred an uproar by saying he'd always thought what was good for the country was good for General Motors Corp. and vice versa.

That remains the best-known utterance of Charles E. Wilson, the General Motors boss who became secretary of defense in 1953, although he often is misquoted as having put the corporation first.

It was blunt, it was quotable and it was not so remarkable as Wilson's critics made it seem at the time.

After all, when business prospers so does the economy in general, although corporate and national interests are not always so identical as Wilson's shorthand suggested.

President Reagan's economic advisers are more cautious, more scholarly and considerably less colorful in describing the philosophy behind administration economic programs. Boiled down, it is that individuals and businesses, left alone by government in most areas of life and commerce, will, collectively, make decisions that are good for the country.

In an effective free market, the President's Council of Economic Advisers suggests, self-interest will lead consumers and producers to decisions that will serve the national interest.

That is broader and more refined than the remark Wilson tossed off in Senate testimony 29 years ago. But the principle is similar, and Reagan's advisers say it will work.

In its annual report to Congress, the Council of Economic Advisers cites government regulation of the marketplace as a case in point.

"The best solution is to respect the judgment of the private market whenever it is available," they say.

"If we can stimulate an effective market, we can rely on self-interest to achieve the desired goals," the council says. "This will reduce the cost of achieving the regulatory goal and also increase the extent to which the goal will be achieved."

For example, Reagan's economists say, private insurance could prove more effective in promoting job safety than government regulations.

Their reasoning: "In the case of government regulations, violators are punished, commonly with a fine, which may create incentives for the regulated firms to conceal possible violations and to avoid cooperation with safety inspectors. If, on the other hand, a firm which is insured can make its operations safer, it will usually benefit by having its insurance premium reduced. Thus such firms have an incentive to cooperate...."

They argue a similar case on the decisions involved in government benefits for the needy. "Many government programs, such as detailed safety regulations or the provision of specific goods to the poor are best described as paternalistic," the council report says. "This administration rejects paternalism as a basis for policy. There is no reason to think that commands from government can do a better job of increasing an individual's economic welfare than the individual can by making choices himself."

The council says the most efficient form of transferring resources to the poor is in cash, rather than in food stamps, housing or medical care.

"Poor people given money can best determine for themselves what goods to buy," the report says. "If they are given goods or services instead, their ability to learn to make their own choices is limited."

The council says that a major objective of the Reagan administration is to reduce the federal role in economic decision-making and strengthen that of individuals, private enterprise and state and local governments. The Reagan advisers say that will be more efficient — and suggest that the stakes go beyond economics.

"Expansion of the economic role of the government tends to reduce both the level of agreement on government policies and the inclination to engage in political dissent," the council says. "The link between political and economic freedom is important. Increasing economic freedom will also provide greater assurance of our political freedom."

bed with the Shakespearean injunction: "Stand you not upon the order of your going but go at once." John called their home, which was more like a theatrical boarding house. "The Tomb of the Capulets."
Actually, the royal blood was all on his mother's side of the family. His father was born Herbert Blyth in colonial India, the son of a British army officer. He turned to acting after studying law at Oxford and took the name Maurice Barrymore from a fading playbill in the foyer of London's Haymarket Theater, where son John later became the first American to triumph in "Hamlet" on Shakespeare's own turf.

Playing Philadelphia with Edwin Booth, Maurice met and married Georgianna Drew, whose mother and grandmother were British music hall stars and whose father was John Drew, the famous Irish actor who toured with Joseph Jefferson in "The Rivals" and attained the American dream of lending his name to a good five-cent cigar. Barns across the road were painted, "John Drew Cigar — 5 cents — Within Reach Of All."

John Barrymore often said the only people "worth talking to are priests, prize fighters and reporters." Poppa Maurice, a crony of Gentleman Jim Corbett, set the tone by traveling with a pet raccoon, a parrot and a monkey, and making headlines in a post-theater brawl that included a defrocked priest, Lillie Langtry and an entire Canadian hockey team.

"Both my brothers and I," wrote Ethel Barrymore, "were born under a dark star so there was no such thing for us as enduring happiness. Perhaps it was an inheritance." Their father died in a Long Island mental hospital. John's dark-eyed daughter Diana died at 38 from drugs and alcohol.

After creating dozens of memorable stage roles and starring in more than 60 films, the Great Profile begged his final bread in a piteous radio caricature of himself, reading his lines from predecessors of TV idiot cards because his hands shook too much to be entrusted with the script.

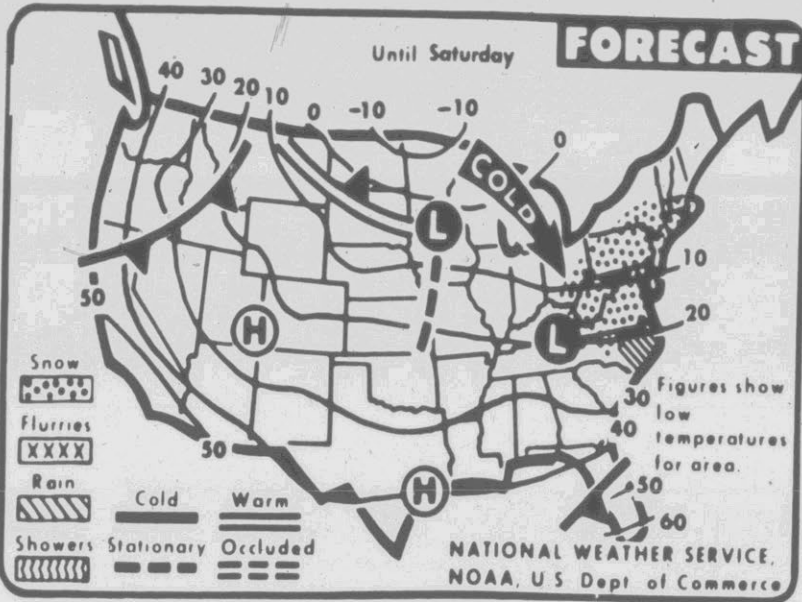

"There's a divinity that shaped our ends, rough-hew them how we will," the doomed Hamlet tells Horatio.

Whatever dark days the divinity shaped for John Barrymore, we in the audience saw only glorious light. Even watching him now, late, late at night in "Svengali," early Hollywood at its most primitive, those tortured limpid eyes, that fine bearing, those grand gestures, bespeak a style and a splendor sadly missing in our sex and sensation obsessed modern theater and film.

Happy centenary, John Barrymore. May the great gold curtain up there rise on endless ovations.

WEATHER FORECAST — Snow is expected in the forecast period until Saturday morning, from New England to the mid-Atlantic states, changing to rain over the Carolinas. Cloudy and mild conditions are expected for the western half of the country. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press
North Carolina will get another dose of winter weather this weekend, as a low-pressure center laden with snow and rain is headed toward the state.

The low pressure center was to move from Texas and Oklahoma into to Gulf Coast states today and into the southeastern states tonight. It will be located just off the coast of the Carolinas Saturday morning.

Snow was expected to develop across the mountains this afternoon and tonight. The snow may be mixed with rain across central and southern sections of the mountains.

East of the mountains, the precipitation is expected to develop by late today or early tonight. Across the northwest Piedmont and northern foothills, snow will be mixed with rain at times late today and tonight.

Across the northeast Piedmont and northern coastal plain, rain is expected to develop late today or early tonight and be mixed with snow tonight. For the remainder of the state the precipitation is expected to be all rain. But the rain could become mixed with or change to snow before ending Saturday morning.

High temperatures today will be in the 30s and 40s. Lows tonight will be in the 30s with some 20s in the mountains.

As the low pressure moves northeast away from the North Carolina coast Saturday, the precipitation will end and skies will become partly cloudy. Highs Saturday will range from the 30s in the northern mountains to near 50 in the south.

Skies were sunny Thursday afternoon. Temperatures warmed into the mid 40s to mid-50s. Skies remained fair last night, with overnight lows in the 20s and 30s.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Carter administration defense officials have endorsed President Reagan's increased military budget but say it contains too much for new weapons and not enough to improve the readiness of present forces.

"We all agree that higher spending...is reasonable," Graham Clayton, a former deputy defense secretary, said Thursday.

Saturday night a pre-appreciation service will be held for Eldress Martha Tyson. The service will feature three speakers and choirs.

Faircloth Denies Any Personal Phone Calls

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State Commerce Secretary D.M. "Lauch" Faircloth has denied making personal telephone calls at state expense and said he doesn't spend too much time out of his office.

In an interview with WRAL-TV Thursday, Faircloth said he did not make private telephone calls from his Raleigh office to his linton businesses on state telephones.

"Calls to those businesses — the vast majority one or two minutes long — were made by my secretary and other staff members on one of the nine other telephones in our offices with the same number as my telephone," Faircloth said in a news release after the interview.

"They leave messages because they know wherever I am I will eventually call my office — at my expense — to see if there are any messages."

Faircloth also said his credit card calls from Clinton to Raleigh were strictly business. WRAL has said the calls show that Faircloth may have been away from his office on 140 business days.

But Faircloth said his job requires him to be outside of his office for much of the time, adding that his performance should be judged on the record of the department, not on how much time he spends behind his desk.

"Gov. (Jim) Hunt didn't ask me to be secretary so I could have a nine-to-five job," he said. "He wanted me to recruit industry, promote tourism, administer the ports and other Commerce Department agencies. "We've set records for industrial recruitment and tourism," Faircloth said. "The state ports have had their best years ever."

Plans Party And A Shot At A Record

Randy Scherr of Heart's Delight ice cream shop says he is combining a "Valentine's Day party for the entire city" with an attempt at a Guinness world record for the "largest Valentine party of all time."

Scherr said the party is scheduled for Sunday from 2-5 p.m. in the parking lot behind Heart's Delight and H.L. Hodges & Co., located on East Fifth Street.

The spokesman said Sunday's event will ultimately benefit the American Heart Association as everyone attending is asked to bring a heart-shaped object of some type to receive free ice cream and other party items. The hearts collected Sunday will be sent to the Heart Association for use in its fund-raising traveling exhibit, "Show of Heart," that will tour the United States.

Scherr said he is expecting further information regarding the Guinness record but he has been informed by Guinness representatives that he must keep an accurate account of the number of party participants by giving out numbers.

Some 60 gallons of ice cream and other refreshments and favors will be available, Scherr said, adding that Carolina Dairies and Pepsi Cola are also sponsoring the party.

ANNIVERSARY

The Deacon Board of Burneys Chapel Church will celebrate its sixth anniversary Sunday at 7 p.m. The pastor, the Rev. J. H. Wilkes, invited all deacons to be present.

BUSINESS MEET

New Alpha Chapter of Omega Psi Phi Fraternity Inc., Greenville area, will have a called business meeting Saturday at 3 p.m. at the home of Willie L. Morris Sr., 801 W. Fourth St.

SUNDAY SERVICE

Moderator Matthew Best and the Best Chapel Senior Choir and Ushers will present services at 11 a.m. Sunday at Best Chapel Free Will Baptist Church.

OES MEETING

Sunbeam Chapter No. 49, Order of Eastern Star, will have a communication at its regular meeting Saturday at 2 p.m.

MUSICAL PROGRAM

STOKES — Johnny Ray Daniels and the Vines Sisters will render a musical program at St. John Baptist Church here at 7 p.m. Sunday.

On Program

Thalmus Rasulala will appear here Sunday at 3 p.m. at Phillippi Church of Christ in a program being held in celebration of Black History Month.

Rasulala has appeared in "Roots," "Good Times," "What's Happening," "Sanford and Son" and "Saturday Night Live" on television.

Also featured on the program will be the Shaw University United Gospel Heritage Choir, Raleigh. The program will be open to the public and there is no admission charge.

Holiday Set At Post Office

The downtown and ECU Station post offices will close Monday to observe Washington's Birthday. The following schedule of services will be followed:

- No deliveries will be made by rural and city carriers.
- No window service will be provided.
- Mail will be delivered to post office boxes.
- Special delivery mail will be delivered within the city.

•A special 3 p.m. holiday collection will be made from all collection boxes that have any time specified on the side. This collection will be dispatched at 5:30 p.m. The self-service postal unit located in the lobby of the main post office will supply customers with most postal supplies and permit them to mail parcels.

Phoenix...

Care Center headquartered in Greenville, said his department would assist in training volunteers to work in programs that Phoenix might adopt. Higgins also said he would like to see judges and representatives from the police and sheriff's departments attend Phoenix meetings to provide suggestions and guidance. He noted these people have been extended invitations to attend monthly meetings, but have not responded.

•Jim Byrum, a programs director in the division of prisons, pointed out the problems that can evolve if volunteer work is not fitted into existing court and prison structures. He added there is a need for informed, trained volunteers to work with the prison system, but that it is essential that such efforts assist rather than hamper the work of administrators and staff.

Herman G. (Gus) Moeller of the ECU Department of Allied Health and Social Professions, and state president last year of the Phoenix organization, reported the state annual meeting held in late January. Making reference to tight funding, Moeller said that the work of Phoenix had been possible to continue due to assistance from the Governor's Crime Commission, and the Babcock and Haynes Foundations. Currently, the Raleigh office has been cut to two staff members.

"It's touch and go, but Phoenix is very much alive," Moeller commented. "Our main goal is to create a solid base of volunteer service and to create community support for work with the criminal justice system."

New officers for the local Phoenix chapter for 1982 are: Brenda Teel, president; Matt Brewington, vice president; Yvonne Pierce, secretary, and Tony Gray, treasurer.

ANSWERING EMERGENCY calls from three locations is only part of the services offered by the Greenville Fire-Rescue Department. For details, call 752-4137.

City Council...

A $12,783.25 bid submitted by Phelps Chevrolet of Greenville for a 14-foot step van for the fire-rescue department was approved. The only other bid, for $12,706 and amounting to $77.25 less than the Phelps offer, was tendered by Paul Berry Chevrolet of Wilson and concern was expressed by Shinn that the council did not award the low bid. Shinn said he felt the city should not solicit bids from areas outside Greenville if the council is not going to award the low offer in all cases.

Other action taken by the council included:

— Appointment of Jimmy Doyle Little to the Greenville Energy Commission;

— Adoption of an amendment to the personnel policies ordinance recognizing that while it is desirable that all city employees reside within the city, employees may reside outside the city limits and within the boundaries of Pitt County (the city manager, all department heads, and specified key administrative personnel will be required to live within the city limits but may be exempted if they lived outside the city prior to June 1, 1980);

— Adoption of a resolution establishing a city policy on filling vacant positions;

— Adoption of a resolution supporting a new formula for allocation of state aid to public libraries (state law has established a fund to be used to promote, aid, and equalize public library service and Sheppard Memorial here could receive up to 20 percent in additional funding under the proposed formula);

— Adoption of a resolution authorizing the execution of an agreement with Seaboard Coast Line Railroad for an easement for electric lines to be constructed on railroad right-of-way between the new Winterville Substation and the Winterville city limits;

— Approval of a contract with Argonne National Laboratory for the second phase of the city's comprehensive energy management program;

— Approval of applications by Joe F. A. Jolly for a permit to place a mobile home on the corner of North Greene Street and N.C. 33 for use as residential quarters for a resident manager, and by Burroughs Wellcome for one-year renewal of a permit for a mobile home located at the plant and used as an office;

— Scheduling of a public hearing for March 11 on a request by James H. Hudson to rezone, from Shopping Center to Office and Institutional, approximately 6 acres at the corner of Luci Drive and Eastbrook Drive;

— Approval of applications by Plaza Gardens at Pitt Plaza for an on-premise beer and wine privilege license, by T and G Foods, doing business as Abrams Barbecue at 710 N. Greene St., for an on-premise beer and wine privilege license, and by Viola's at 1117 W. 3rd St. for an off-premise beer and wine privilege license; and — Approval of a modified lease with the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce Inc. for the Fleming House on Greene Street, providing for six additional parking spaces. The spaces were needed in order for the chamber to secure a building permit for improvements to the facility.

Retiring Employees Honored By Council

The City Council honored four employees Thursday night who retired recently after long service tours with the city.

Receiving service plaques were: Ernest Harris, signs and paint supervisor, over 31 years; Gentry N. Mills, public works operations manager, over 27 years; Mrs. Della M. Stubbs, police traffic fines clerk, over 25 years; and Clifton Wooten, refuse collector, over 16 years of service.

Mayor Percy Cox said that Harris, who joined the city in 1950, attended Winterville High School and had extensive training in various aspects of traffic control and pedestrian and traffic safety. He was appointed last September to serve as the employees' representative on the city group benefit plant trust.

He and his wife, Lillian, have three sons and attend People's Baptist Temple Church.

YOUTH SERVICE

New Deliverance Free Will Baptist Church of Ayden, presently worshipping at Grifton Chapel F.W.B. Church of Grifton, will have regular youth workshop services Sunday at 11 a.m. with the pastor, Elder J. L. Wilson, and the junior choir and ushers in charge.

At 3 p.m., Elder Elmer Jackson and his choir, ushers and congregation from Elm Grove F.W.B. Church of Ayden will be in charge of the pre-anniversary service.

Mills, according to Cox, attended Chicod High School and was employed by the city in 1954. In 1955, he was promoted to street superintendent, a position he held until last July when he was promoted to operations manager.

He and his wife, Charlotte, have one son and are members of Unity Free Will Baptist Church.

Mrs. Stubbs, who joined the city in 1956, attended Chocowinity High School and had training in law enforcement, public relations, laws of arrest, search and seizure, and defensive tactics, Cox said.

Mrs. Stubbs, whose husband, Clyde, worked with the city as a police lieutenant until his death several years ago, has three children.

Wooten served his tenure with the Public Works Department, the mayor pointed out. The retiring employee and his wife, Margaret, reside on West Third Street.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

THE WORK-HORSE OF THE NILE!

THESE BROAD-BEAMED VESSELS, CALLED NAGGARS, CAN STILL BE SEEN ON THE RIVER NILE, JUST AS THEY WERE WHEN THE BABY MOSES WAS SENT DRIFTING DOWN THE RIVER, IN AN ARK WOVEN OUT OF BULLRUSHES, THOUSANDS OF YEARS AGO. THESE STURDY BOATS ARE LOADED WITH CARGO UNTIL THEY ARE NEARLY AWASH IN THE WATER AND SLOWLY MAKE THEIR WAY TO MARKET—IF THERE IS NO WIND, THE MEN LINE UP ON SHORE WITH ROPES AND PULL THE VESSELS ALONG—AS IN SO MANY OF THE "BIBLE" LANDS, THE OLD WAYS ARE STILL CARRIED ON IN THE FACE OF MODERN PROGRESS!

Now Playing A Numbers Game

By LISE STONE
Associated Press Writer
HARTFORD, Conn. (AP)
Their simple lifestyle was reflected in the way they recently celebrated 150 years of helping the poor and needy. The Sisters of Mercy joined together in a meal of bread and soup and prayed they can continue.

The Mercy sisters, who through their history have withstood anti-Catholic attacks, crossed oceans and braved the American frontier, now are facing what may be a more complex struggle for survival. It is a numbers game.

"The commitment is just as strong. In fact, I think with the changes in Vatican II... it has deepened awareness and commitment," says Sister Margaret Crowley, the head of the Connecticut group.

But in terms of numbers, she adds, the direction is down.

Although there are 20,000 Mercy sisters in the world, the number in Connecticut has been nearly halved in the past 50 years to about 440.

Nationally, the number of U.S. nuns has shrunk by more than a third in the last 15 years to about 122,000. About 9,000 of them are Mercy sisters, their ranks similarly reduced by the downward trend.

They've changed their methods and dress over their century and a half, particularly since the reforming 1962-65 Second Vatican Council, but their purpose remains the same.

In addition to the three standard vows taken by followers of a Roman Catholic order — chastity, poverty and obedience — the Sisters of Mercy take a fourth, unique vow.

They pledge their lives to service, to care for the poor, the sick, the alienated in society and for those whose "life potential has in any way not been realized."

"The needs are there and they are crying out," Sister Margaret says.

Over the years, the fourth vow has meant everything from caring for cholera victims to helping handicapped children adapt to a public school classroom.

Sister Patricia Gould who works for the Hartford Archdiocese's Office of Radio and Television, exemplifies the community's modern adaptation to the needs of society.

Twenty years ago, she says, the sisters had no choice but to become teachers in parochial schools.

Today, although she cherishes the past teaching experience, she helps produce educational television shows and makes public service announcements for radio.

"You're going after the unchurched through the 30-second spots, the 60-second spots," she says.

Another of the sisters' innovations, intended to expand their community, is their introduction of associate members. The program allows women who have not taken vows to pray and work with them. Married women are now allowed to join and men someday may be permitted, Sister

Margaret says.

The nuns also have shed their habits over the years, no longer requiring the black veils or stiff collars that once identified them. Now the sisters wear only a silver ring while other jewelry and a habit are optional.

They've now started living in apartments or other houses instead of convents. Sister Patricia says it allows the sisters to understand people's concerns such as crime, taxes, "even parking."

"In a convent, you'd never touch that. It's like a castle," she says.

But they still have a heavy responsibility, not only to their vows but to their community. The average age of the Connecticut sisters is over 65, and each of the working sisters must support herself as well as the older members.

Sister Patricia McKeon works in a more conventional role for the nuns, dishing out dinners to the poor at the St. Vincent dePaul Soup Kitchen in Middletown. She said her job seems identical to the mission set forth by the sisters' founder in 1831, Catherine McAuley.

Maintaining their tradition of education, the sisters still teach in many parochial schools and colleges.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices were modestly higher today in light trading as many market participants stayed home to begin a four-day holiday weekend.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 2.56 to 837.23 after two hours of trading today, unchanged from an hour earlier. The transportation index also rose but the utility measure was off a fraction.

Advances led declines nearly 7 to 4 on the New York Stock Exchange.

Big Board volume totaled 18.66 million shares at noon EST, against 19.77 million at that hour Thursday.

The NYSE's composite index rose 0.16 to 66.27.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off 0.01 at 275.90.

Bethel Committees Lauded At Session

BETHEL — Bob Bowers, chairman of the Bethel Council of the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce, singled out the council's committees and their chairmen for praise during the council's February meeting Thursday night.

Ed Walker, Pat Bernett, Becky Ball, Francis Saust and Barbara Woods from the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce joined the council to review programs of work and to reassess objectives for the coming year.

Ramon Latham reported that progress is being made on the downtown renewal plan with acquisition and renovation of some business property.

Winter recreation classes are being well attended, according to Danny Norris. He also said plans are under way for the Fourth of July celebration.

Ferrell Blunt reported that the Political Affairs Committee is exploring the possibility of organizing a political action committee to help promote the needs of northern Pitt County. The committee would include members from the Stokes, Bethel, Belvoir and Pactolus areas.

A drive for new membership will be launched in March, according to Toby Timberlake.

Billy Peardon, sponsored by Oliva Bradshaw, was voted into the Bethel Council.

Winter Reduces Traffic Deaths

BISMARCK, N.D. (AP) — North Dakota's long stretch of freezing weather has contributed to the lowest number of highway deaths since the state began keeping records, an official says.

Only four people had been killed on North Dakota highways this year as of Wednesday, compared with 17 for the same period in 1981.

Highway Patrol Superintendent Norm Evans, who has monthly records going back to 1953, says, "It's the lowest it's ever been."

January traffic death tolls are normally low, even in a mild winter.

But this winter, when temperatures in Bismarck have been below zero for 46 consecutive days, it seems that even more people are staying home — except drunk drivers, he said.

Acquitted In Killing Error

BEL AIR, Md. (AP) — A man who shot at a suspected intruder, leaving a bystander paralyzed, was found innocent by a Harford County Circuit Court jury of assault and handgun violation charges.

Clair L. Keyes, 41, a pipefitter, was cleared Thursday of two counts of assault with intent to murder, two counts of assault and one handgun violation. The trial began Monday.

Keyes told the jury his home had been burglarized twice before he decided to wait in the dark with a pistol the night of Oct. 17.

He shot at Robert Lee Carrier, 16, his nephew, who is charged with breaking into Keyes' home three times. The bullet did not hit Carrier, but struck and paralyzed John B. Hatfield Jr., who said he was waiting for Carrier in a nearby field.

WEEKEND SERVICES

The following weekend services have been scheduled for Elm Grove Free Will Baptist Church:

Saturday, 7:30 p.m., the Rev. J.L. Wilson will speak, sponsored by the Pastor's Aid Club; Sunday, 9:30 p.m., Sunday school, 11 a.m., regular Sunday worship with the pastor, the Rev. Elmer Jackson, 3 p.m., the church family will go to New Deliverance Church in Grifton and the Rev. Elmer Jackson will render services there.

Planning Board Sets Meeting

The Pitt County Planning Board will meet Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at the county office building at 1717 W. Fifth St.

Included for consideration on the agenda is: Hazelwood Subdivision in Pactolus Township, a revision of the subdivision ordinance, and the city of Greenville's extraterritorial jurisdiction.

EDMISTEN TO SPEAK

Attorney General Rufus Edmisten will address the monthly meeting of the East Carolina University Law Society Wednesday.

Dr. John M. Howell, ECU acting chancellor, will introduce Edmisten. The meeting, which will be open to the public, will begin at 7 p.m. in Room C103, Brewster Building, on the main campus.

ODU Rallies To Top Lady Pirates

NORFOLK, Va. — Nationally third-ranked Old Dominion followed the inside scoring of 6-5 Janet Davis for a come-from-behind 72-63 win over East Carolina Thursday night.

With ODU trailing 46-39 with 14½ minutes remaining, Davis, who finished with 28 points and seven rebounds, led a Monarch rally that reversed the lead to 57-50 with 7:14 left.

But, Darlene Chaney and Mary Denkler led an ECU rally that trimmed the ODU lead to one (58-57) with 4:53 remaining. A Beth Wilkerson layup and a Davis basket inside moved the ODU lead back to five and ECU got no closer than three in the remaining 4½ minutes.

Helen Malone and Suzanne

Woolston connected on six one-and-one free throws in the closing minutes to insure the Monarch victory, their 19th in 23 games this season.

ECU rallied from an 11-point deficit midway the first half to take a 35-31 halftime lead. The Lady Pirates, now 13-8, trailed until Chaney hit a layup with 3:31 left in the first half to knot the score at 29-29.

Two Denkler jumpers sandwiched around a Loraine Foster basket in the final three minutes of the half gave the Lady Pirates their four-point halftime cushion.

In the second half, ECU was in control until Davis began to operate inside effectively against a much smaller ECU frontline to help the Monarchs rally for the win.

"I'm not trying to take anything away from Old Dominion. Janet Davis is a fine player and so is Ann Donovan and they've got a very strong basketball team," she added. "It was their height and the lack of consistent officiating that beat us."

"Our kids did an extremely good job doing what we wanted them to do in the game. But, the lack of officiating took our defense away."

Denkler, who celebrated her 21st birthday Thursday, led ECU with 28 points and 11 rebounds. Sam Jones added 16 points and six assists and three steals, but only five Lady Pirates scored in the game.

Malone, a 5-10 guard, chipped in 15 points and five rebounds as she and Donovan helped ODU to a 46-34 rebound edge.

The Monarchs shot 50% from the floor to ECU's 40% and hit 12 of 16 free throws compared to ECU's five for seven.

The loss snapped a nine-game winning streak for the Pirates, who play host to Duke University on Tuesday in Minges Coliseum in Greenville.

In The Fast Lane

Maryland's Adrian Branch (24) tries to speed past North Carolina's Michael Jordan (23) during Thursday night's ACC game played at Chapel Hill. Branch had a game high 20 points but the Terrapins lost to the number two ranked Tar Heels, 59-56. (AP Laserphoto)

Terps Feel Like Winner Despite The Scoreboard

*CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Only the scoreboard indicated that Maryland dropped a 59-56 college basketball decision to second-ranked North Carolina. The Terrapins considered themselves anything but losers.

"We have nothing to be ashamed of," said freshman Adrian Branch, whose 20 points kept Maryland in the game until the closing seconds. "We came into their back yard and had them on the ropes."

Indeed, the Terrapins were on their way to becoming the second team this season to visit Carmichael Auditorium and upset the Tar Heels.

At the 13:17 mark, Maryland held their biggest lead, 35-31. They kept the Tar Heels at bay for the next six minutes and at the 7:16 mark still led, 48-45. However, that was the last time the Terrapins would look back at the Tar Heels.

Sam Perkins connected on both ends of a one-and-one to cut the deficit to one. Jimmy Black then intercepted a pass and sank a layup to give North Carolina a 49-48 lead with 4:58 left. The lead grew to three after a Matt Doherty steal and two free throws by Black more than one minute later.

The lead seasawed between one and three points for the remainder, with four free throws by James Worthy and two more by Doherty preserving the victory.

"We had to hit the clutch free throws down the stretch and we did," said North Carolina coach Dean Smith, whose team hit all 10 of its free throw attempts in the final 6:10. "I'm sure they saw the percentages and picked out Worthy to foul. But he's about a 98 percent foul shooter in the clutch."

North Carolina needed all of its free throws in the second half because Maryland hit a sizzling 71 percent from the field, including a 6-for-7 performance by Branch.

"They ran the delay game well in the first half and hit all their shots in the second half," Smith added.

Doherty finished with 18 points, while Worthy and freshman Michael Jordan added 12 points apiece. The Tar Heels raised their record to 19-2, 8-2 in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

Branch finished with 20, while Herman Veal came off the bench to add 12 points. And, although Maryland dropped to 14-8 and 4-6, the fact that it was within striking distance of the Tar Heels apparently more than made up for the defeat.

"The number two team in the country didn't know they had us beat until the last minute," said Maryland sophomore forward Mark Fothergill. "They were happy as hell to get out with a win."

Clampett Defies Wind For Lead

HONOLULU (AP) — Bobby Clampett disdained the use of a tee in the howling winds. Tom Watson used a 4-iron from 160 yards. Bob Proben used a 5-iron from 120.

"It was a monsoon," said Clampett, who compiled a brilliant, no-bogey, 5-under-par 67 in incredibly difficult conditions for the lead Thursday in the uncompleted first round of the $325,000 Hawaiian Open Golf Tournament.

All the afternoon starters, 72 golfers — half the starting field — were stranded by rain and darkness on the 6,881 yards of pools and puddles that make up the storm-lashed Waialae Country Club course. They marked their positions on the course and were scheduled to finish their rounds today, then move immediately into second round play.

The conditions were the worst of the year on the pro golf tour. Heavy rains delayed the start of play by 1½ hours. And the squalls continued to sweep in from the Pacific. The series of storms was so severe the Honolulu airport was closed briefly. Flash flood warnings were issued.

And the touring pros played in those conditions, huddling under any shelter they could find, dodging palm fronds ripped loose by 40-plus mile per hour winds, chilled and dampened by lashing rains.

"The conditions were really bad," said Masters champ Watson. "Sometimes, playing a shot was like trying to skip a rock off water."

He managed a 2-under-par 70 and called it, "under the conditions, a good, solid round; 67 was a terrific round."

Clampett, 21, a four-time runnerup last year, helped himself to that spectacular effort by keeping his shots as low as possible. He abandoned the use of a tee, placed the ball on the ground and kept his drives to a maximum height of 30 feet.

"You had to battle the winds," he said. "Not only did you have to worry about accuracy, you had to consider trajectory."

Proben, a longshot who has won only $6,136 in three years on the tour, and Watson both went several clubs higher than usual to punch their approaches low along the ground and run the ball into the soggy greens.

With 72 men still to finish first round play, Proben was second alone at 68. The group at 69 included Ed Sneed, Andy North, Tommy Valentine and Mark Lye.

At least three men who were unable to complete play have a shot at Clampett's lead. Ben Crenshaw and Dave Barr each were 3 under par — two out of the lead — after 12 holes. John Schroeder was three under after nine.

A number of other leading lights, however, were having their difficulties. Bill Rogers, the 1981 Player of the Year, Ray Floyd and Andy Bean, all made the turn with fat 39s.

than ever in a single season — $206,648.

Last week she won the Elizabeth Arden Classic at the difficult Turnberry Isle Country Club in Miami. Two weeks earlier, she finished second in the 1982 LPGA opener, the Whirlpool Championship at Deer Creek, Fla., after a grueling five-hole playoff with Hollis Stacy.

"I used to start very slow," she said. "I'd never win until we passed the Mason-Dixon Line. Then, three years ago, I started to win down here."

Among the determined challengers is Nancy Lopez-Melton who said this year she is hoping for a comeback.

Carner Defends Pasadena Title

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Defending champion JoAnne Carner was among 123 players set to tee off in the $125,000 S&H Classic, a 54-hole LPGA tournament at Pasadena Golf Club.

All but three of the top 25 money-winners on the women's tour have entered the three-day event being played, starting today, over the 6,214-yard course. Among those missing were Jan Stephenson, Beth Daniels and Sally Little.

Last year Carner, 42, was named LPGA Player of the Year, won the Vare Trophy for the lowest scoring average (71.75) and won more money than ever in a single season — $206,648.

Pirates Seek To Atonement For Loss To Seahawks

East Carolina's Pirates travel to Wilmington Saturday for a 7:30 p.m. meeting with the UNC-W Seahawks with one thing in mind — revenge.

But the Seahawks, who upset the Pirates, 58-49, in an earlier meeting in Greenville, will be after something too — a two-game sweep over the Pirates, something they've never accomplished.

The two schools have met twice yearly since 1977-78, competing for the bragging rights in Eastern North Carolina. East Carolina leads the series, 5-4, including three wins in four games in Wilmington. Last year, ECU took a 72-64 victory.

Both teams come into the game fighting to keep their hopes of a winning season alive. East Carolina is currently 8-11 after falling to Old Dominion, 80-73, on Wednesday night. Wilmington brings in an 11-11 mark. The two have played a number of common opponents, among them Ohio University, Baptist College of Charleston, N.C. State, James Madison, George Mason, Campbell and Duke.

East Carolina beat Ohio,

72-54, took two from Baptist, 70-56 and 88-62, downed George Mason, 66-64, and split with Campbell, winning 66-61 at home and losing 62-60 on the road. State, James Madison and Duke all beat the Pirates.

In contrast, Wilmington beat Baptist, 70-67, and beat Campbell at home, 69-63. They lost in all of the other encounters.

Wilmington is led by former Washington High School star Shawn Williams, with a 15.5 average. He is the only Seahawk in double figures.

Other starters are likely to be 6-5 Carlos Kelly (8.8), joining the 6-4 Williams at forward, 6-7 Scott Prudhoe (4.6) at center, and 6-1 Frankie Dickens (8.0) and 6-3 Edwards Timmons (8.6) at guards.

The Pirates are expected to counter with Al Mack (6.7) at center, Charles Green (11.5) and Morris Hargrove (10.9) at forwards and Charles Watkins (6.7) and Bruce Peartree (6.2) at guards. Tony Byles, hitting 10.6 is also to see a lot of action as he continues to come off the bench following a broken wrist.

Wilmington comes into the game following an outstanding performance against Duke University, losing in overtime to the Blue Devils, 67-57.

"Right now, I feel we are playing as well as we have this season," UNC-W coach Mel Gibson said, "and we certainly need to continue to perform with the same efficiency and attitude this Saturday."

"This is a big game for us, because of the opponent and because of what a win would mean at this point in our season. I know that ECU was disappointed in the way they played in our first meeting and Coach (Dave) Odom will have his team well-prepared.

"We've never beaten them twice in one season. That would be quite an accomplishment," Gibson added.

Odom, rather than thinking about bragging rights, feels the Pirates have some atoning to do.

"I was sorely disappointed with our first effort (against Wilmington), and I'm sure our players feel like I do. We want to atone for very inept effort in that first game."

"I know Wilmington is playing much better than they did earlier in the season, but I think we are too," Odom continued. "It should be fine game. They've designated the game as Homecoming so that shows the significance they place on the game, and I hope our players realize this. We've got to pick up our offensive efficiency. We have to play 40 minutes of good basketball, something we haven't been doing."

The Pirates return home on Monday to face Eastern Illinois.

Williams To UNC

Rose High School baseball star Roger Williams has given a verbal commitment to the University of North Carolina, he announced this morning.

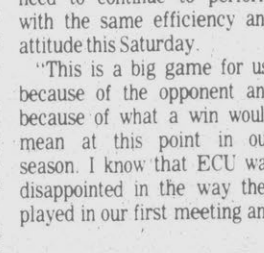

Williams, a senior right-hander, is one of the top pitching stars of the state, and in his two years at Rose, has fashioned a 20-2 record.

As a sophomore, Williams recorded an 8-2 year, and was 12-0 last season in helping Rose to the championship of Division I (now the Big East Conference).

As the Rampants prepare for Williams' senior year, Coach Ronald Vincent is hoping for another repeat performance and another trip to the State 4-A Playoffs.

An all-State selection as a junior, Williams would play his college ball under UNC's Bobby Roberts.

Mountaineers Press On To Title

By The Associated Press

West Virginia pressed — and cleaned — Duquesne Thursday night while Tulsa and Baylor faced overtime pressure, with opposite results.

The 11th-ranked Mountaineers found themselves in the unaccustomed position of trailing in the first half, down by seven points, when Coach Gale Catlett ordered a full-court press. It flattened the Dukes' offense as West Virginia outscored them 32-10 and cruised to a 90-75 victory and the Eastern Eight Conference championship.

Phil Spradling's 20 points — six in overtime — helped seventh-ranked Tulsa turn back Illinois State 78-67 in the Missouri Valley Conference, while Terry Teagle's 36 points — four in overtime — and James Stern's block of a Ricky Norton shot with three seconds to go in the extra period gave Baylor a 56-55 Southwest Conference upset of eighth-ranked Arkansas.

In other games involving ranked teams, No.2 North Carolina edged Maryland 59-56, fifth-ranked Iowa whipped Northwestern 62-49, ninth-ranked Minnesota downed Wisconsin 71-60, No.17 San Francisco nipped St. Mary's 78-77, and 18th-ranked Fresno State beat Long Beach State 54-45.

"I think the key to our game was our full-court press. After we got it going, things really went our way," Catlett said after the Mountaineers, 20-1 with 18 consecutive victories, gave their coach his 200th career win.

The press clearly gave the Dukes fits. They turned the ball over 27 times. "They got some steals and the momentum went with them," said Duquesne Coach Mike Rice. "They were able to change the complexion of the game completely with the press. They're good enough to change, to do what's needed to win. That's what makes a great team."

Greg Jones scored 14 of his 19 points in the first half. Russel Todd, Lester Rowe and Michael King each scored 15. Bruce Atkins had 18 for Duquesne.

The Top Ten

North Carolina's Matt Doherty scored a team-high 18 points, the final two on foul shots with three seconds to play that short-circuited Maryland's bid for an Atlantic Coast Conference upset of the Tar Heels.

James Worthy had four points — the first two thanks to a goaltending call against the Terrapins with 34 seconds remaining, the next two on free throws with 13 seconds left — to keep the Tar Heels in front of Maryland.

And after Terrapin scoring leader Adrian Branch got the final two of his 20 points with seven seconds left, Doherty wrapped up the victory that put North Carolina's record at 19-2.

Kenny Arnold, whose layup in the closing seconds beat Northwestern three weeks ago, halted a Northwestern rally with six points — a field goal and four free throws — midway in the second half and sparked Iowa to its victory. Arnold and Michael Payne scored 14 points each for the Hawkeyes, 18-2.

After Tulsa and Illinois State wound up regulation play at 60-60, Spradling's two long-range baskets gave the Hurricane an overtime lead they never relinquished. Greg Stewart, who had 17 points, hit four straight free throws and Tulsa, 17-3, scored 10 points in the final minute to win.

No player had ever scored 36 points against an Eddie Sutton-coached Arkansas team until Teagle did it. "It was a sensational performance ... just unbelievable," said Sutton. "We tried to deny him the ball but we just couldn't do it. He's a money player. He hit everything." Darrell Walker led Arkansas with 15 points, but Razorbacks failed to win when he missed a short jumper with two seconds to go in regulation.

Trent Tucker's 20 points and 19 by Randy Breuer led Minnesota as the Gophers, fending off stubborn Wisconsin, handed the Badgers their 10th consecutive loss. Wisconsin cut the Gophers' lead to three points with 2½ minutes to play. But when they tried to foul in order to get the ball back, the strategy backfired as Minnesota pulled away.

Three More To Pirates

East Carolina University has added at least three more recruits to its stable of incoming high school freshmen, it has been learned.

Rose High School split end Chris McLawhorn signed a national letter with the Pirates yesterday afternoon. An AP All-State selection, McLawhorn, a 6-0, 160-pounder, was the leading receiver on the Big East runner-up team, also serving as a kick return specialist.

Other reported signings, in addition to those listed yesterday, included Larry Berry, a 6-0, 195-pound fullback from New Bern High School, and David Plum, a 6-3½, 240-pound lineman from Raleigh Millbrook.

Plum is the son of former NFL great Milt Plum, a quarterback for the Detroit Lions.

East Carolina has not officially released its list of signees.

Cards Trade Templeton To Padres; Sets Goals

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Putting his problems at St. Louis behind him, Garry Templeton has set three goals for his first season with the San Diego Padres.

"I'm looking forward to winning the batting title and to stealing 60 bases. I also want to make the All-Star team," Templeton said Thursday when introduced to the San Diego media.

Templeton, 25, said he welcomed the trade that sent Ozzie Smith, a slick-fielding, but light-hitting shortstop, to St. Louis.

"It's like starting over," said Templeton, who was strapped with personal and on-the-field problems in recent years at St. Louis.

In response to questioning, Templeton blamed his erratic behavior with the Cardinals on a chemical imbalance that has been corrected by medical treatment.

"All of that is behind me, I'm looking to some great years in San Diego," he said.

With a clean start, he's confident he can form a new following in San Diego.

"The Cardinals are getting a hell of a player in Ozzie. I know how popular he was here. I don't expect people to jump on my bandwagon immediately. But once they see my brand of baseball, I hope they'll be satisfied with what I can do. I'm a better hitter than Ozzie and I take a lot of pride in my fielding," said Templeton, who already owns two major league records.

Padres' owner Ray Kroc labeled the deal "the best trade we've ever made."

General Manager Jack McKeon agreed, praising Templeton as "one of the top 10 players in baseball."

"As I see the deal," Manager Dick Williams added, "we are trading one exceptional defensive shortstop for another exceptional defensive shortstop, who also has a lifetime batting average of .305."

In contrast, Smith hit .222 last season, averaging .231 for his four seasons in San Diego. Now 27, he is eligible for free agency in two years.

Templeton, who demanded to be traded by the Cardinals after his play was criticized by teammates and team officials, said he looks forward to working with Williams.

"I've always gotten along with Dick, he's a magical manager who always finds a way to win," said Templeton.

Williams said that Templeton will be installed in the No.3 spot in the batting order, a move that appeals to Templeton because it "will give me an opportunity to drive in a lot of runs."

"Basically, I'll do anything they want me to," he said.

Playing on natural grass will add years to his career and bigger numbers to his statistics, Templeton said.

"It will help my hitting and I'll be able to get to ground balls I couldn't get to on Astro turf," he added.

Reuschel Joins John In Dispute

First it was southpaw Tommy John, now it's right-hander Rick Reuschel.

Like John before him, Reuschel remained home Thursday while the Yankees continued their voluntary training camp here.

John's dispute involves an option year offer and a guarantee against injury while his case is in arbitration. The 32-year-old Reuschel's dispute deals with the deferred payments on his contract, which extend to the year 2030.

The dispute began when Reuschel, whom the Yankees acquired from the Chicago Cubs last July, wanted to negotiate an extension to his contract, which has two years remaining.

"We don't understand why Rick isn't here," said Bill Bergesch, the Yankees' vice president for baseball operation. "He's not doing anything wrong by not being here because it's strictly voluntary. But everybody else is here, and we wish he was here, too."

Jim Bronner, Reuschel's agent, said the pitcher was asked to come to camp, but refused.

"We don't feel right now Rick is a New York Yankee," said Bronner. "He's not accepting payments from the Yankees. Rick feels quite strongly that we ought to be pursuing this. Of course, he'd prefer to get back in the baseball business. We could accelerate the grievance procedure, but I don't want to do that until I talk to George (Steinbrenner, the Yankee owner). And he hasn't called."

GRIMESLAND — Snow Hill downed G.R. Whitfield, 32-26, yesterday in a junior high school basketball game. Snow Hill was led by Steve Harrison and Curtis Foreman, with eight points each.

In the girls' game, Whitfield took a 21-14 win. Wendy Ruffin led Whitfield's scoring with 12 points.

Farmville ..... 37

Ayden ..... 35

AYDEN — Farmville Middle School gained a 37-35 victory over Ayden Middle School yesterday to gain the championship of the Pitt-Lenoir-Greene Junior High School League.

Farmville was led by Bill Blount and Bryan Cobb with eight each, while Ayden was paced by Levi Thompson with 14.

In the girls' game, Farmville took a 30-27 victory. Farmville was led by Christy Smith with eight. Kim Barfield had 11 to lead Ayden.

Farmville is now 11-0 while Ayden drops to 9-1.

Decker Out To Set Two Marks

NEW YORK (AP) — Most track and field athletes in tonight's 75th Wanamaker Millrose Games at Madison Square Garden will be shooting to break one record. Mary Decker will be trying for two — in the same race.

The 23-year-old Decker burst into world-class prominence nine years ago as a pig-tailed 14-year-old by winning a 1,000-yard race with a world indoor best time at Los Angeles after being told by a meet official she was too young to compete.

Now, she holds most women's indoor distance records, including three she has set this season — 4 minutes, 24.6 seconds for the mile, 5:53.4 for 2,000 meters and 8:47.3 for 3,000 meters.

Tonight, she is entered in the women's mile, a race in which she also will be timed for 1,500 meters.

In 1980, Decker, cheered by a capacity crowd of about 18,000, set the world indoor best of 4:00.8 for the 1,500 in the Millrose Games.

"The crowd support throughout the race and the reaction to the record proved to me that it was not impossible for a women's race to be taken seriously," said Decker, a strong proponent of women's athletics.

"Friday, I expect the crowd will react just as well or better."

The 1,500 has been changed to the mile strictly because of Decker.

"She asked for it (the switch) early," explained meet director Howard Schmertz.

Schmertz also said, when he was asked if the 1982 Millrose Games would be better than last year's meet, "Yes, because Mary Decker will be back."

Decker missed last year's meet because of shin splints, which required surgery. This year, she has been healthy, and "chasing what I did in 1980, chasing the times I ran then."

"I'm looking toward the Millrose Games as one of my best meets of the year," she said. "I think it is possible to break the 1,500 and the mile records."

Decker will be racing in a field that includes a pair of two-time Millrose 1,500-meter champions, Francie Larrieu and Jan Merrill.

Meanwhile, the men's mile, which has featured Eamonn Coghlan in recent years — he won the past three Wanamaker Miles and four of the last five — is considered a wide-open race because the injured Irishman will not be at Stting.

Baker, Cale Have Different Strategies

Baker Gets The Flag

Buddy Baker gets the checkered flag as he crosses the finish line at the Daytona International Speedway Thursday during the twin 125-mile qualifying races. The races continue this week and will conclude with the running of the Daytona 500 Sunday. (AP Laserphoto)

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — If Buddy Baker has his way in Sunday's Daytona 500, he'll be sitting in second position taking dead aim at the leader in the final lap of stock car racing's premier event.

And if Cale Yarborough has his way, he'll be three laps in front when he sees the white flag that indicates one lap to go. But neither driver would really argue with any strategy that results in victory in the 24th running of the $927,000 event.

"I wanted to come from second," Baker said Thursday after winning the second of two 125-mile qualifying races that determined most of the field for Sunday's race.

Yarborough, who used precisely that strategy in winning the first of the 50-lap UNO Twin 125s, wasn't so sure.

"With competition as keen as it is out there these days, you've got to use your head as much as your foot," he said. "Nobody caught Bobby (Allison) in the Busch Clash (last Sunday) when he got to the front."

Baker, who will start outside Yarborough in the second row when the 42-car field takes the green flag Sunday, led for all but one of the final 12 laps Thursday. He won without a battle, collecting $18,700, after a tangle involving Neil Bonnett and Ron Bouchard and a drizzle caused the final eight laps to be run under caution.

"But I think I would have won the race anyway," said Baker, the 1980 Daytona 500 winner. "My car (a Buick Regal) was a lot quicker in the corners than the cars I was running with."

Yarborough, himself a two-time winner of stock car racing's most coveted prize, won by using a slingshot maneuver midway through the final lap on the 2.5-mile, high-banked Daytona International Speedway oval.

Riding second behind Allison, Yarborough linked up with Terry Labonte. The speed generated by the Buicks running closely in a single-file draft permitted both to pass Allison on the inside of the track.

"There wasn't much Bobby could do," said Baker in making his point about last-lap positioning. "He got left out there alone."

"I wanted him (Labonte) to come with me because I knew he wanted to move," said Yarborough, who issued a quick signal once he began his run at Allison. "But Labonte's a pretty smart fellow, and you don't have to give him much direction."

Yarborough then blocked enough of the track to keep Labonte behind him and won the race by about two car-lengths. Allison finished third, about a foot in front of pole-sitter Benny Parsons.

Parsons and Harry Gant, who finished sixth in the second qualifier, ran for money only in the $150,000 qualifiers. As the fastest in earlier qualifying sessions, they already had locked up the first-row spots for Sunday. Parsons, driving a Pontiac LeMans, will start on the inside, while Gant has the outside spot in his Regal.

Despite differing opinions on how the big race might be won, both Yarborough and Baker know it won't be easy.

Baker, who once opened up a 15-length lead over Bonnet, was asked if he had his car going as fast as it could go at that point. He replied: "If you mean can I break the draft, the answer is no. It's going to be a 15-car race three-fourths of the way through the 500."

And he considers himself one of the favorites. "I have a dominant car, and I think I can make it stick anywhere on the track."

Yarborough, a three-time NASCAR Grand National driving champion, predicts Sunday's race will be among the best in history.

"I think it's going to be the most competitive race we've seen anywhere," he said.

Baker agreed with that assessment, saying the experience gained by younger drivers in Thursday's races would allow them to set up their cars to run a safer race.

"When they're not running right, you just don't want to ride anywhere near them," he explained.

The race marked the return of A.J. Foyt, who was seriously injured last July in a crash during an Indy race at Michigan International Speedway. Foyt ran well in the first qualifier, finishing fifth, and will start ninth Sunday.

Veteran Donnie Allison also made his first Grand National appearance since being badly injured in the World 600 last May at Charlotte, N.C., finishing 15th in the first qualifier.

"This was the most fun I had since one of my cows had a set of twin calves," said Allison in some homespun Alabama humor.

Defending Grand National champion Darrell Waltrip finished second to Baker in the second qualifier, locking up the fifth starting position Sunday. Labonte will start sixth.

Allison will be seventh. Rounding out the top 10 will be Joe Ruttman, who finished third in the second race, and Dale Earnhardt, who was fourth. Ruttman will start eighth and Earnhardt 10th.

Seven-time Daytona 500 winner Richard Petty, who is the defending champion here, finished 11th in the first race and will start 21st Sunday. His 21-year-old son, Kyle, was fifth in the other qualifier and will start the 500 in the 12th position.

Malone Doing The Job Again

By The Associated Press
Moses Malone, who almost singlehandedly took the Houston Rockets to the National Basketball Association championship series last year, is at it again.

Playing against a Seattle frontline that includes All-Stars Jack Sikma and Lonnie Shelton Thursday night, Malone gave the Houston fans a game to remember.

The 6-foot-10 center set an NBA record with 21 offensive rebounds and finished with 32 overall to go with his 38 points as the Rockets defeated Seattle 117-100 for their sixth straight victory.

His offensive rebound total alone equaled the number the whole Seattle team had on both ends of the floor as Houston outbounded the Sonics 69-21. Sikma was asked if he had even seen an opponent dominate the boards, and he said, "I hope I can't remember a game where we were outbounded 61-29."

"I can never remember a game in my career where one team outbounded another 33-11 on the offensive boards," added Houston forward Elvin Hayes, who scored 22 points.

Malone's performance continued a recent streak during which he was named NBA player of the week for averaging 48 points in three games. He has hit 59.7 percent of his field goals in his last four games and has scored 31 points or more in eight of his last nine appearances.

As usual, Malone was soft-spoken about his play. "Back in high school I played like this but never in the pros," said Malone, who never played in college after a high school career in Virginia. "I feel good out there and the team is playing good basketball."

Malone's 21 offensive rebounds broke its own record of 19 he had established against New Orleans three seasons ago.

"Moses was really controlling the boards," said Seattle Coach Lenny Wilkens. "Bob Pettit and Bill Russell were two of the best (rebounders) that I ever saw. Moses compares very favorably."

While the Rockets extended their winning streak and improved their record to 26-22, they snapped Seattle's run of consecutive victories at seven.

However, the Sonics, 34-14, retained a half-game lead over Los Angeles in the Western Division.

Seattle, which got 16 points apiece from Sikma, Gus Williams and James Donaldson, was never in the game. The Rockets jumped ahead 8-0 and had a 17-point lead at halftime, 66-49.

Bucks 116, Blazers 105
Milwaukee won its seventh straight game as Brian Winters scored 20 points and Marques Johnson 19.

Portland trailed only 83-79 after three quarters although Mychal Thompson, who scored 25 points, was in foul trouble. But with Thompson out of the lineup, the Bucks went to a big-guard lineup, with Johnson and Sidney Moncrief at guard, and outscored the Blazers 10-4 for a 93-85 lead with eight minutes to play.

Knicks 120, Warriors 117
Maurice Lucas scored a season-high 35 points and pulled down 16 rebounds to lead New York over Golden State despite 40 points by the Warriors' Bernard King.

Lucas, who had 25 points in the second half, scored 13 straight Knicks' points in the last four minutes of the third quarter and the first minute of the fourth to give the Knicks a 90-87 lead. But King scored Golden State's next 11 points to keep the Warriors in the game.

Lucas tied the score 114-114 with his final basket with 1:38 to go before two free throws and a basket by Mike Newlin, who had 21 points, gave the Knicks a 118-114 edge the Warriors couldn't overcome. The game was close throughout, with 23 ties and 12 lead changes.

Pistons 123, Cavaliers 113
John Long scored 35 points and Kelly Tripucka added 30 to pace Detroit over Cleveland.

Long hit 10 points in each of the first two quarters to give the Pistons a commanding 77-55 lead at halftime, but the Cavaliers steadily cut the deficit to 100-98 with 9:40 left in the game.

But two baskets by Phil Hubbard and one by Ron Lee made it 106-98, and the Pistons went on to post their 22nd victory, one more than they had all last season.

James Edwards led Cleveland scorers with 31 points.

Oscar Nominations Announced

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences is holding out second, third and even fifth chances this year to performers who have never won an Oscar, though they've come close. Warren Beatty produced, directed, co-authored and starred in "Reds," the movie that headed the list of 1981 Academy Award hopefuls with a dozen nominations Thursday.

Beatty, whose latest role is an American journalist in revolutionary Russia, was nominated in the same four categories for the 1979 film "Heaven Can Wait." He won nothing that year.

Henry Fonda, the 76-year-old star of another best-picture nominee, "On Golden Pond," fell short of triumph in 1940 when he was nominated as best actor in "The Grapes of Wrath." The Academy gave Fonda a special award last year for his 45-year Hollywood tenure.

Paul Newman's best-actor nomination for "Absence of Malice," in which he portrays a businessman victimized by the media, gives him his fifth chance for an acting Oscar. A best-picture award eluded him in 1968, when he produced "Rachel, Rachel."

Some nominees could be bolstering a collection of Oscars during the March 29 presentations at Los Angeles' Music Center—most notably Katharine Hepburn. She was recommended for best-actress honors as Fonda's wife in "On Golden Pond," which tallied 10 nominations.

The veteran actress, 74, won for acting with "Morning Glory" (1933); "Guess Who's Coming to Dinner?" (1967) and "The Lion in Winter" (1968). None of the other best-actress nominees was alive when Miss Hepburn won her first Academy Award.

Also in the best actress category are Diane Keaton for "Reds," Marsha Mason for "Only When I Laugh," Susan Sarandon for "Atlantic City" and Meryl Streep for "The French Lieutenant's Woman."

Ms. Keaton won in 1977 for "Annie Hall," while Ms. Streep took supporting actress honors for 1980's "Kramer vs. Kramer." Ms. Mason, meanwhile, is hoping her fourth nomination will be the winning one.

The other best picture nominees were "Atlantic City," in which Burt Lancaster is up for his second acting award as an aging small-time gangster, "Chariots of Fire" and "Raiders of the Lost Ark."

Another veteran, Sir John Gielgud, was nominated as best supporting actor for "Arthur," in which he played the fatherly butler to Dudley Moore's likeable if spoiled rich kid. Moore rounded out the best actor nominations.

Besides Gielgud, the supporting actor nominees are Jack Nicholson for "Reds"; James Coco, "Only When I Laugh"; Ian Holm, "Chariots of Fire"; and Howard Rollins, "Ragtime."

The supporting-actress nominees: Melinda Dillon, "Absence of Malice"; Jane Fonda, "On Golden Pond"; Joan Hackett, "Only When I Laugh"; Elizabeth McGovern, "Ragtime"; Maureen Stapleton, "Reds."

The directing nominees were drawn from the best picture list, with Beatty cited for "Reds," Hugh Hudson for "Chariots of Fire," Louis Malle for "Atlantic City," Mark Rydell for "On Golden Pond" and Steven Spielberg, "Raiders of the Lost Ark."

Dancing Star Eleanor Powell Dies In Sleep

By BOB THOMAS

Associated Press Writer BEVERLY HILLS (AP)—Eleanor Powell, the long-limbed beauty whose brief movie career provided some of the most electrifying dancing in musical history, is dead of cancer at age 69.

Friends said she had been ill since July and died in her sleep Thursday at her Beverly Hills home.

Miss Powell, once billed as "the world's greatest female tap dancer," made her last appearance April 10, 1981 at the American Film Institute's tribute to her old dancing partner, Fred Astaire.

Gray-haired but still vital, she told the television audience that she wondered how she and Astaire ever got through their tap challenge-dance in "Broadway Melody of 1940."

The number, done to an accelerated "Begin the Beguine," appeared on the screen in its kinetic precision and drew cheers from the Beverly Hilton ballroom audience.

In his 1959 autobiography, Astaire paid tribute to Miss Powell as "one of the all-time great dancing girls. Her tap work was individual. She put 'em down like a man, no rickety-ticky sissy stuff with Ellie. She really knocked out a tap dance in a class by herself."

Although her impression on the musical film was indelible, she made only 13 movies and guest-starred in two of those: "Thousands Cheer," in 1943, and "The Duchess of Idaho," in 1950.

Her heyday was in the late

DIES—Eleanor Powell, who was known as the world's greatest female tap dancer, shown in a 1936 in a musical film, died Thursday of cancer at age 69. (AP Laserphoto)

1930s when she starred in "Born to Dance" (1936) with James Stewart, "Broadway Melody" (1938) with George Murphy and Buddy Ebsen, "Rosalie" (1937) with Nelson Eddy, and "Honolulu" (1939) with Robert Young and the comedy team of George Burns and Gracie Allen.

She was born Eleanor Torrey Powell on Nov. 21, 1912 — although some records say 1910 — in Springfield, Mass. Her parents had her take dancing lessons to cure her shyness.

She was discovered by producer Gus Edwards, who starred her in his children's acts. Soon she was dancing in New York nightclubs, making her Broadway debut in 1929 with "Follow Through."

"I studied ballet for 13 years," she later recalled. "To me ballet was everything, but then I tried out on Broadway before such producers as George White, Flo Ziegfeld, and Earl Carroll. 'Very nice,' they said, 'but can she tap?' So I invested $35 in 10 tap lessons. Those were the only lessons I ever had and I've been tapping ever since."

Miss Powell starred for Ziegfeld in "Hot Cha," and in White's "Scandals," and was dubbed by the Tap Dancing Masters of America as "the world's greatest female tap dancer."

In 1935, she made her film debut in "Scandals," at Fox, then moved to MGM to become one of the studio's top stars.

In the early 1940s, she starred in "Lady Be Good," "Ship Ahoy," and "I Dood It," retiring in 1943 to become the wife of a rising young actor, Glenn Ford.

The Fords' son, Peter, was born in 1945 and except for brief appearances, Miss Powell remained retired. She divorced Ford in 1959, declaring, "I sued on grounds of extreme mental cruelty, and that's exactly what I mean."

At her son's behest, she returned to dancing and opened triumphantly in Las Vegas on Feb. 28, 1961.

She toured for three years, then retired once more, devoting herself to a religious television series, "Faith of Our Children." The show won five Emmys and an award from the National Conference of Christians and Jews.

Miss Powell once analyzed: "The Eleanor Powell" dance style got to be the slam-bang sort of thing. I had to come on and sock, sock, sock — in every number. I would start out with a fast number, follow that with a faster one and keep punching harder until at the end of a picture, they shot me out of a cannon."

Building Is Still Lagging

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—Construction of houses in North Carolina in November 1981 lagged behind the same month the previous year, the state Labor Department reported.

It was the fifth consecutive month that the state's homebuilding industry reported a double-digit decline in activity when compared to the same period in 1980, said Labor Secretary John C. Brooks.

The number of homebuilding permits issued in North Carolina last November was 34.7 percent lower than the number issued in November 1980.

Only 396 permits for single-family homes were issued in the state's 44 largest cities in November 1981, compared with 606 in November 1980, Brooks said.

The estimated value of the permits — $15,893,644 — fell 29.9 percent from November 1980, he said.

Oasis Of Laughs On Saturday Night

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Saturday night in prime time hasn't been much of a laughing matter, unless you consider Rona Barrett kissing Rock Hudson's hand in her late — but not lamented — series "Television: Inside and Out." But "The Billy Crystal Comedy Hour" has been an oasis in the desert of Saturday night.

Before NBC gave Miss Barrett a five-week forum at 10 p.m. EST, the network carried the worst show of the season, the Smothers Brothers' "Fitz and Bones." This laughable TV newsroom series made one realize that any Tom or Dick can get into television.

ABC is much more popular at 10 p.m., but not much better. Its "Fantasy Island" is mindless television, featuring a midget, a Chrysler pitchman and any old actor or young starlet in need of a quick buck. CBS offers its second-string movie lineup, saving its adult and special films for weeknights.

night prime time is not priority time. The audience levels are at their lowest and so are the quality standards.

But temporary help is here with Crystal's new show, which has its third — and next to last — broadcast Saturday night. Crystal is an energetic comedian and a much better stand-up comic than Miss Barrett. He has a soulful bag of characters, and, although they carry on too long, they are very inventive. He has a future, even though NBC announced Thursday the show was being canceled before its scheduled five-week run.

His sketches are also creative. Anybody who can get legitimate laughs out of fat jokes has to be funny. On opening week, he played Ralph Kramden to Robin Williams' Ed Norton in the "Punk Honeymooners." Last week, he got laughs out of an African jungle routine, in which the sound of scrunching potato chips captured the noise of the brush under foot.

Like most comedy shows, Crystal starts off with a monologue, a combination of personal stories and hip, topical humor, poking fun at the culture and lifestyles of California and New York, which may be one reason why "The Billy Crystal Comedy Hour" has not caught on with the rest of the nation. Last week, it was the lowest rated show in prime time.

But ratings often reflect what's familiar to the audience, not what's best. Bob Hope still gets high ratings, although his humor is so predictable it could have been made in Taiwan. (Did he say that?)

Dave Thomas of "SCTV" did a hilarious takeoff of Hope on Crystal's show last week, picking up Hope's timing, mannerisms and typical promotion and joke content.

With Crystal, the new "David Letterman Show," a revitalized "Saturday Night Live" and "SCTV," NBC is developing a contemporary sense of humor. But before we get too carried away with NBC's laugh track, Steve Martin's "Twilight Theatre" Saturday night misses the mark.

There were high hopes for this show, following Martin's sensational live special last fall. But that one was pro-

DEPRIVED — Actress Sophia Loren, saying she wants "another kind of life," is turning away from the security of a marriage that left her feeling deprived, according to a copyright interview in McCall's magazine. (AP Laserphoto) duced by Lorne Michaels, the creative genius behind the original "Saturday Night Live." Unfortunately, he wasn't involved with this project.

Billed as a late-night, comedy-variety development project, "Twilight Theatre" will begin at 11:30 p.m. EST, while "Saturday Night Live" is taking its one-week break. The ideas for the sketches are fine, but they never pan out, turning into one-joke affairs with an emphasis on easy, sexual humor.

In one sense, NBC's new Friday night series, "Cassie & Co.," starring Angie Dickinson, is an easy, sexual joke. Its opening showcases various shots of Miss Dickinson's legs, setting the tone that this series doesn't need to be creative because its star is a shapely woman.

continue the role of Pepper from "Police Woman," but NBC wanted her to be a private detective. She and her legs should be sued for non-support. There's nothing worthwhile here. "Cassie & Co." is poorly written, has trite characters and no action or suspense.

The first two episodes were about kids trying to clear their fathers of crimes they didn't commit. At least tonight's script has a different plot line, although it may stretch this show's imagination quota past the breaking point.

"Cassie & Co.," the second lowest rated program last week, will be yanked from the air after next week's show. NBC announced Thursday it's supposed to return in the spring. Sounds like a perfect show for Saturday night.

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day to stress care and caution in business matters. Showing a diplomatic attitude with others brings fine results at this time. Keep in a cheerful frame of mind.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Attend to those accumulated duties now instead of becoming involved in something new. Make plans for the coming week.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You may want to contact friends who can assist you but this is not the right day for such. Control your temper at all times today.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Ideal day to engage in civic affairs and gain prestige. New duties crop up which could give you added income.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Fine day for studying new ideas that could lead to more abundance in the future. Think constructively.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Use your own good judgment today and get excellent results. Make a greater effort to please loved one at this time.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Meet with associates and thresh out any misunderstandings and make the future brighter and more profitable.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You have many duties to perform and you should attend to them instead of spending time on less important matters.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You have creative ideas that could be profitable in the future. A good time to engage in your favorite hobby.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Give more time and thought to improving your surroundings. Follow your hunches which are accurate now.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Using sarcasm with others to prove a point is not wise. A good time to express your true talents.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Give more attention to personal financial matters now so that you can pay important bills. Consult an expert for advice.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Take time to engage in recreational activity with congenials. Take health treatments and improve your appearance.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be a compassionate person who could be a great help to society. The education should be directed along philosophical lines for best results. Give ethical training and much affection early in life.

Decline In Gasoline Prices Stirs Fear

By BILL OUTLAW
Associated Press Writer
Falling gasoline prices in most of North Carolina may please drivers, but some independent service station owners fear the lower prices will squeeze them out of the market.

"If things don't improve, it'll put a lot of us out of business," said Bill Barker, president of the North Carolina Service Station Association.

"There's very intense competition among gas retailers for motorists' dollars," said Quentin Anderson of the Carolina Motor Club in Charlotte.

A random check showed that prices of self-service regular gasoline had dropped at least 2 cents per gallon during the past week in Raleigh, Greensboro, Durham, Charlotte and Roanoke Rapids. In Cary, prices were down 5 cents per gallon.

Barker called the price slump "drastic," although he stopped short of calling it a price war.

One independent dealer, Al Dorsett of Greensboro, said the gas price decreases were attempts by major oil dealers and distributors to put independent service station operators out of business.

Dorsett said many gas stations are owned by large corporations, including the major oil companies. He said those companies sell gas cheaper to their stations than to independent stations.

"It's a classic example of big businesses putting little businesses out of business," Dorsett said.

Anderson said prices for regular and unleaded gas in North Carolina have dropped by an average of 4½ cents since last April as of Feb. 4. He predicted gasoline prices will continue to drop in the coming months, including the tourist season.

The latest prices compiled by the club Feb. 4 showed average prices in the state of $1.246 for self service regular and $1.327 for unleaded. Prices for full service stations averaged $1.384 and $1.434 for unleaded.

"It's dropping rapidly, at a more accelerated rate than it's reflecting," he said.

Anderson said the price drops may be attributed to the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, which he said hurt itself by creating an oversupply.

"It's a classic example of killing the goose that laid the golden egg," he said.

Dean Rusk Will Center Urges Assembly Act In Wake Of Ruling By Court

ECU News Bureau
Dean Rusk, former United States secretary of state, will visit the campus of East Carolina University for one week in March to participate in a lecture-seminar series. Dr. John D. Ebbs, professor of English and chairman of the Planning Committee for the Rusk visit, said that plans for the week are nearly complete.

The lecture-seminar will explore the topic of "War, Peace, Diplomacy — Retrospects and Prospects" and will extend from March 22-26. During the week Rusk will give two evening lectures, and a total of three seminars will be conducted to discuss the points made by Rusk in his lectures. Generally, the seminar participants will consist of professors from the University disciplines.

Dr. Ebbs and the other members of the Planning Committee — Dr. Angeo A. Volpe, dean of the college of arts and sciences, and Dr. W. Keats Sparrow, special assistant to the vice chancellor for academic affairs — have announced that both the lectures and the seminars are open to the public. Dr.

DEAN RUSK

Robert H. Maier, vice chancellor for academic affairs, has expressed the hope that this event may mark the inauguration of an annual spring lecture series.

Dean Rusk holds the position of Samuel H. Sibley Professor of International Law at the University of Georgia at Athens. As an undergraduate he attended Davidson College, where he was initiated into Phi Beta Kappa and where he was awarded a Rhodes scholarship. Prior to his service as secretary of state, he held the position of president of the Rockefeller Foundation. His experience in both national and international affairs has been extensive.

The Rusk visit is being planned in conjunction with the ECU 75th anniversary celebration.

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A study group has urged the General Assembly to take action in light of a recent Supreme Court ruling the group says could affect the makeup of at least 36 state boards and commissions.

The state's highest court ruled that having legislators on the state Environmental Management Commission violates part of the North Carolina Constitution requiring that legislative, executive and judicial powers remain separate. Some observers have said the ruling could be applied to other state boards and commissions with legislators as members.

The North Carolina Center for Public Policy Research released a study Thursday saying that 90 of the state's 400 commissions or boards have legislators as members. But the study found that only 36 of those groups perform administrative or executive duties and clearly could be affected by the court ruling.

"We recommend that the General Assembly deal with this problem in its June 1982 session because of the extent of the problem and because decisions by these commissions may be challenged in additional lawsuits," said Ran Coble, director of the center, a private, non-profit corporation that studies state government policies and practices.

"Few people realized how extensive the practice was, but we found 90 groups in 15 executive departments with legislative members," Coble added.

A group of farmers filed suit last week against the Board of Transportation charging that legislative membership invalidates the board's recent decision to run Interstate 95 through their land.

"We think the best solution is to remove legislators from all 90 of these boards, commissions and councils and replace that practice with strong legislative oversight committees," the center report said.

The list of boards with legislative members includes the prestigious Advisory Budget Commission, the Board of Transportation and the Governor's Waste Management Board with 203 legislative members.

Center staff members said they discovered that Gov. Jim Hunt voluntarily contributed to legislative involvement in the executive branch by appointing lawmakers to fill 45 positions on 32 boards or commissions. Usually the House speaker and lieutenant governor make the legislative appointments.

In deciding whether a group carried out administrative or executive functions, the center considered whether the group is authorized to make contracts, sue or be sued, issue rules, establish program standards, buy and sell land, allocate funds, hire staff, issue permits or hear and decide appeals on decisions by executive agencies.

The list of criteria was drawn with the help of the state attorney general's staff, the Institute of Government, the legislative staff, executive departments and court decisions.

The center found 54 groups with advisory, investigative, advocacy or review powers that include lawmakers. The center staff said legislative membership on such groups probably was not unconstitutional.

Host Groups Of Ambassadors

WASHINGTON (AP) — For the first time since the Eisenhower administration, ambassadors to Washington are being honored as a group at White House dinners.

About 160 guests, representing half the diplomatic corps, dined on supreme of smoked trout en gelée and tenderloin of veal Thursday night. The other half is due Feb. 18.

Ashraf Ghorbal of Egypt, the senior ambassador present Thursday, thanked President Reagan for resuming "a beautiful tradition. We appreciate this wonderful gesture.... You have our commitment to see you next year, same time."

SQUEEZABLE SOAP

MILFORD SQUARE, Pa. (AP) — "While some soap manufacturers dismiss liquid soaps as a fad, sales totals are showing quite the opposite," says sales consultant Paul D. Mann.

He predicts final 1981 figures will show $100 million in retail sales.

LEAVES ARE collected by the Greenville Public Works Department from curbside once a week provided they are placed in bags or cans. During the leaf season (November 1 through March 31), vacuum machines collect loose piles of leaves at curbs. For more information, call 752-4137.

No Comment On Hit Team

By TERENCE HUNT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Whatever happened to the Libyan hit team, variously reported to have slipped into the United States, to be hiding in Mexico, or to have flown to Paris en route to Boston?

Was the plot called off? And was there one hit team or two? Or was there any?

It was late last year — high drama at the White House — a team of assassins trained in Libya was said to be stalking President Reagan. Security was tightened. Presidential appearances were curtailed. U.S. borders were watched. Sketches of potential assassins were distributed.

And nothing happened. No attacks. No arrests. Nothing. More than 2½ months after the fears first surfaced, publicity about the purported plot has faded. Yet, the vigilance around Reagan and top government officials has not been relaxed.

So what's happened? With rare exceptions, government officials refuse to speak on the record about the sensitive subject.

"We consider the threat as active as it once was," said a senior administration official, who refused to be identified. "We haven't let down our guard."

Indeed, a high-ranking law enforcement official said Libyan strongman Moammar Khadafy might have planted stories the plot had been canceled. "That's what you would do if you were still planning to make an attempt."

As the story slipped off the front pages, there were fewer tips for law enforcement officials to follow.

"There is much less information coming into the bureau than there was a month ago," said FBI spokesman Roger Young. "Thus far we haven't established the presence in the United States of a Libyan hit team. It's been a lot of extra work without finding a Libyan hit team."

"As the leads dwindle," Young added, "there will be less manpower spent on it." He said the investigation remains a high priority — part of an across-the-board effort against terrorism.

The continued high state of security around Reagan is obvious.

Reagan's motorcade frequently uses two limousines now — one for the president and a decoy car to confuse any attacker. A counter-assault team rides behind the armored presidential limousine in a van, with agents holding the doors ajar in case they have to spring out.

Reagan wasn't even in the motorcade when it pulled away from the White House Jan. 26 en route to Capitol Hill for his State of the Union address. His limousine left the White House by another gate, joined the motorcade in progress, and the entourage took an indirect route to the Capitol.

Flight paths have been altered for Reagan's helicopter trips to the presidential retreat at Camp David. The president's helicopter and Air Force One now carry missile defense systems.

Some CIA and Justice Department officials privately expressed serious doubts about the soundness of intelligence reports about the alleged team, or whether it really existed. Yet a law enforcement official said tips came from various sources, and that the person considered the best source submitted to a lie detector test and passed.

Opinions vary. "We believed at one time there was (a hit team)," said one administration official, speaking anonymously. "Maybe it's disbanded." The official said he never saw anything that pinpointed the location of any team.

Another administration official, who also refused to be identified, said, "I have an idea the United States still thinks they're somewhere on the North American continent."

On Capitol Hill, the purported plot once was the subject of briefings for the congressional leadership and members of the House and Senate intelligence committees. No more, though. There haven't been any briefings since before Christmas.

Senate Republican Leader Howard Baker retains the round-the-clock protection he was assigned when the threat against Reagan became public. Overall security in the Capitol also remains at a higher level.

Reagan's top three White House aides — James A. Baker III, Edwin Meese and Michael K. Deaver — also remain under Secret Service protection that began in early December.

A review is planned soon about whether Sen. Baker still needs protection, according to a congressional source. A recent review of the need for security around Meese, Deaver and James Baker concluded that it should continue, according to the source.

Sen. Baker has said the threat to Reagan has diminished. Likewise, Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, ranking Democrat on the Senate intelligence committee, said as far back as December that, "Now that their cover is blown, the action is known... you will probably see the disappearance of the group involved."

White House aides speculate that interest in the hit team was diverted by the military crackdown in Poland and the Christmas holidays.

Reagan helped fuel the story by publicly denouncing Khadafy. But White House officials insist the story first leaked from the FBI and Secret Service.

The leaks triggered suspicions the White House was laying the groundwork to retaliate against Khadafy — a charge denied by chief of staff Baker.

As the leaks turned into a torrent, Reagan became upset, a White House source said, "and let his anger be known. He mentioned it at Cabinet meetings. It stopped the wholesale leaking."

Most officials won't talk about it on the record, either. White House deputy press secretary Larry Speakes had no comment on the matter. Chris Ross, a State Department spokesman, said, "Nobody who is dealing with Libya these days feels able to speak to the press."

Much Improved

Commissioners

ATLANTA (AP) — Lupus was once considered a fatal disease, but advances in diagnosis and treatment have almost doubled the life expectancy of its victims, according to the Arthritis Foundation.

"The reason lupus was fatal in four out of five cases was the difficulty in diagnosing the disease at an early stage — its symptoms imitated those of other diseases," says Dr. Frederick C. McDuffie of the foundation. "Now with better diagnostic techniques, treatment can be started at its most advantageous time."

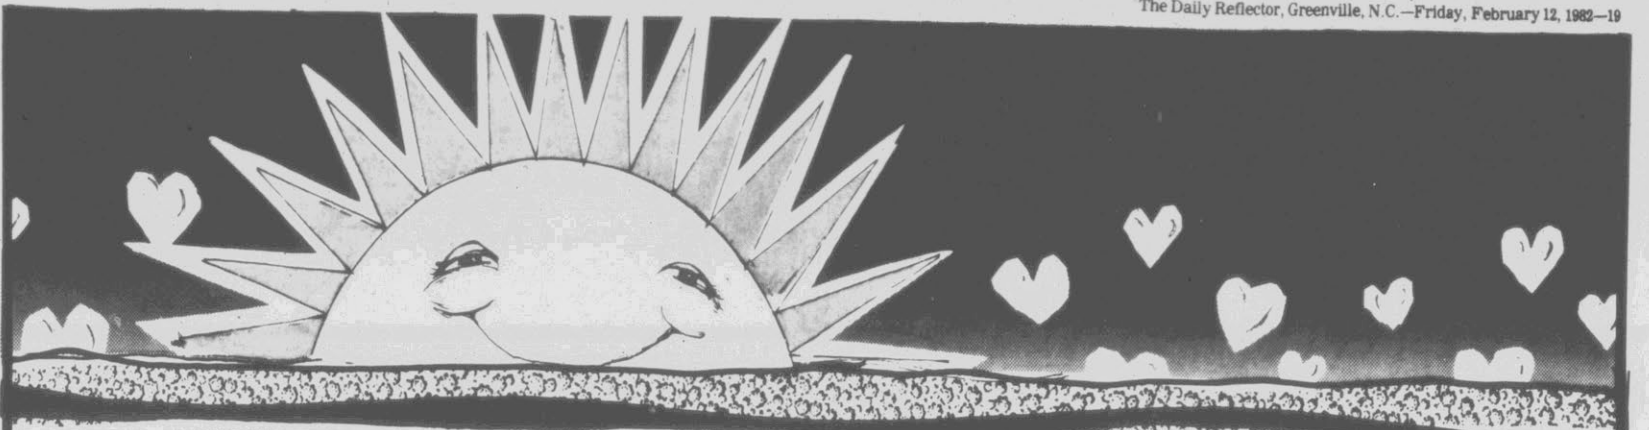

The sometimes confusing symptoms are pain, fever, fatigue, rash, joint pain and inflammation. Lupus, one of more than 100 forms of arthritis, can affect the skin,

Meet Monday

The Pitt County Board of Commissioners will meet Monday at 10 a.m. at the county office building at 1717 W. Fifth St.

Included on the agenda is the receiving of bids for an ambulance cab and chassis for Pitt Memorial Hospital, a report on the county-owned Tucker Building at the intersection of Third and Greene streets, a report on redistricting, a report on workmen's compensation for rescue squad members and volunteer firemen, and a report on emergency medical services.

At 2 p.m., commissioners have scheduled a session to set budget guidelines for the 1982-83 budget.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip — WORRIED WOMAN PLACED
 HER RICH MANTLE ON THE MANTELPIECE.
 Today's Cryptoquip clue: R equals D

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

move ahead in the game—he had developed an extra chance for himself.

Declarer ruffed another spade in dummy, and now had to find a quick entry to his hand. He led a club to his nine and hoped for the best.
 Matters looked up when West followed suit. On the ace and king of spades declarer discarded two of dummy's diamonds, and when both opponents followed to these two tricks, the slam was home.

Since the fifth spade was now established, declarer used it as a parking place for dummy's remaining diamond.
 Whether West ruffed this trick or not was im-material—the queen of trumps was the only trick for the defense.

'Sour' Crude Is High In Sulfur

Should you lead an ace against a slam? That question has been debated for years. If the choice were only between always and never,
 we would probably choose the former.

Because of his void in partner's suit, North devalued his hand. He opted for a two club response to provide himself with the option of showing hearts cheaply should opener have a secondary diamond suit. When South rebid two hearts, North jumped to game and South contracted for slam on the strength of his double fit and wealth of controls.

Since West was looking at a possible trump trick, we can make a good case for ar.
 opening lead of the ace of diamonds. But West feared that that might tip declarer off to his trump holding, so he settled for a club lead—and lived to regret it.

Declarer played low from dummy and captured East's jack with the ace. Then came a key play—he ruffed a spade in dummy! The king and ace of trumps brought the bad news that there was a trump loser, but declarer was a

BARTLESVILLE, Okla.
 (AP) — In the petroleum industry, "sour" crude refers to petroleum with a high sulfur content, which is an impurity.

To "sweeten" the crude means to purify the petroleum and remove the sulfur during the refining process, according to Phillips Petroleum.

Refining removes corrosive components and results in a higher grade petroleum.

Hair Separated By New Sprays

WASHINGTON (AP) —
 Today's aerosol hair sprays contain very fine solutions which actually hold hairs apart from each other but help them stay in place.
 "This gives your hair more body, but doesn't make it stiff," says Patrik Moreton, a hair stylist for Broadway theater personalities.
