

Israel Govm't Again Fights U.S. Policy

JERUSALEM (AP) — The Israeli government is challenging the Reagan administration to another all-out fight like the battle Israel lost over sale of American AWACS planes to Saudi Arabia.

This time the issue is mobile Hawk missiles and F-16 fighters for Jordan.

"We must not postpone even for a single day the registering of our position in the face of this grave threat to the security of our people," Prime Minister Menachem Begin told the Knesset on Monday.

By a vote of 88-3, the parliament adopted a resolution expressing "deep concern" over the proposed sale of the advanced American weapons to Israel's Arab neighbor to the east. It asked President Reagan and Congress "to refrain from a danger so grave to Israel's security."

Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger, interviewed on the NBC-TV "Today" show this morning, called the Knesset vote "a little preemptive, perhaps, because there's no pending sale to Jordan. There have been discussions... as to what their military needs were."

He said the Jordanians "have no request pending. If a request comes in, it will be considered by the president and the (National) Security Council. It would then, if favorably approved, have to go to the Congress."

A spokesman for Begin said Israel's new ambassador to the United States, Moshe Arens, would deliver a personal letter to Reagan from the prime minister when he presents his credentials this evening in Washington.

Foreign Ministry officials said Arens also was expected to raise the subject in a brief talk with Reagan after the credentials ceremony.

Weinberger proposed the sale of the American anti-aircraft missiles and jets to Jordan during a visit to King Hussein last week to bolster the king against Syria and to keep him from buying more arms from the Soviet Union. But Hussein has said he will not cancel an agreement to buy mobile SAM-6 anti-aircraft missiles from the Soviet Union no matter what the United States offers him.

Jordan already has Hawk missiles but Congress stipulated that they had to be put in fixed positions so they could not be used against Israel's air space.

The Reagan administration regards Jordan as a moderate Arab state and a potential partner in the Camp David peace process. But Begin said Jordan and its ally Iraq form a "single, united anti-Israel front."

City School Bd. Votes Adopt Graphics Program

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

A proposal by Kay Whitehurst and Don McLane, recommending a move ahead with plans to include a graphics program in next year's school curriculum, was approved by the Greenville Board of Education at its action meeting Monday night.

Funds to purchase initial equipment for a graphics program within the vocational education division will come from $16,000 in non-matching funds. These are funds that have been set aside for current expense operations in the vocational education program, and can legally be converted to use for capital outlay to purchase equipment.

In connection with this decision, the school administration will take steps to look at the feasibility of relocating the auto mechanics course at Rose High in order to save the annual rental of $8,000 being paid for use of an off-campus site. This would place auto mechanics at Rose High along with other vocational programs. Mrs. Whitehurst said that County Manager Reginald Gray was concerned about money spent for a rental situation and hoped that the school could get out of that arrangement.

Following an extended discussion, board members concurred in endorsing the addition of soccer as part of the junior-senior high athletic program. Two members, Ernest Brown and Donovan Phillips, abstained.

Superintendent Delma Blinson explained that the Booster's Club had given assurance it would support a soccer program, and that a sizeable number of parents had also expressed willingness to give support. The only monetary obligation to come from the school budget will be that of a coaching supplement of about $350 to $500 annually.

The initial annual cost involved in implementing a soccer program is estimated to be $2,500, with a continuing cost of about $1,200 annually. A soccer program will involve about 35 to 40 participants, including ninth graders.

Approval was given to Budget Amendment No. 10 in the current expense fund. The amendment, in the amount of $30,145.36, represents $12,359.19 in funds appropriated from the fund balance and $17,786.17 from the community schools fund balance. The $30,145.36 has been assigned to increases for: regular instructional funds, $12,503.68; other instructional, $1,965.83; administrative support, $750; and regular community service, $15,919.32. Also, the amendment represents fund decreases of $844.10 in special instructional funds and $149.37 in other community funds.

Ten people in the Greenville community have accepted appointment as members of a Greenville City Schools Business Affairs Advisory Committee. The 10 are: Wilson Rhodes, electrical contractor; George Shoe, architect; Phil Dixon, attorney; Jim Hicks, banker; Derek Dunn, construction contractor; Roger Mann, engineer; Larry Sadler, educator; Ken Butler, engineer; Doug Caldwell, ECU maintenance; and Joe Goodson, insurance.

The purpose of establishing this board, Blinson notes, is to have available for assistance a cross section of local people willing to provide expertise to the school staff in various fields of planning. He added that having knowledgeable community volunteers to call on will represent a substantial savings in not having to employ consultants.

Approval was given to use students in grades kindergarten through six to help distribute information relative to celebration of Year 2000. The request for student participation in this program came from Governor Hunt.

Dr. Blinson informed the board of a letter from State Treasurer Harlan E. Boyles expressing appreciation for the support given by the board in its resolution of favoring a one cent sales tax increase. Blinson said the treasurer had further commended the board for being the first in the state to take an official stand on the issue.

Inching To Next Launch

By IKE FLORES

Associated Press Writer
CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla.

(AP) — The space shuttle Columbia began inching along a 3½-mile journey to its launch pad early today as officials scanned the skies for signs of rain or lightning.

Under the glare of floodlights and perched aboard a steel crawler the size of a baseball infield, the shuttle began moving from the Vehicle Assembly Building at 4:21 a.m. EST for the four-to five-hour trip to Launch Complex 39.

Officials moved up the rollout time by almost 40 minutes because of the possibility of a storm front reaching Kennedy Space Center before the shuttle was fastened securely to the launch pad where it is to make its third voyage into space on March 22 with astronauts Jack Lousma and Gordon Fullerton aboard.

Skies over Cape Canaveral were clear before dawn today when the rollout began, but there was fear of rain and lightning during Columbia's slow journey.

"We can take the rain if we have to, but we can't have lightning," said Mark Hess, a Kennedy Space Center spokesman. "Once it gets to the pad, it's OK. There's lightning protection there."

The 184-foot-tall "stack" of the orbiter, its mustard-colored external fuel tank and twin rocket boosters went out the door of the huge VAB at 4:50 a.m. EST.

The shuttle and its launch platform, weighing more than 11.8 million pounds, moved at less than 1 mph toward the launch site.

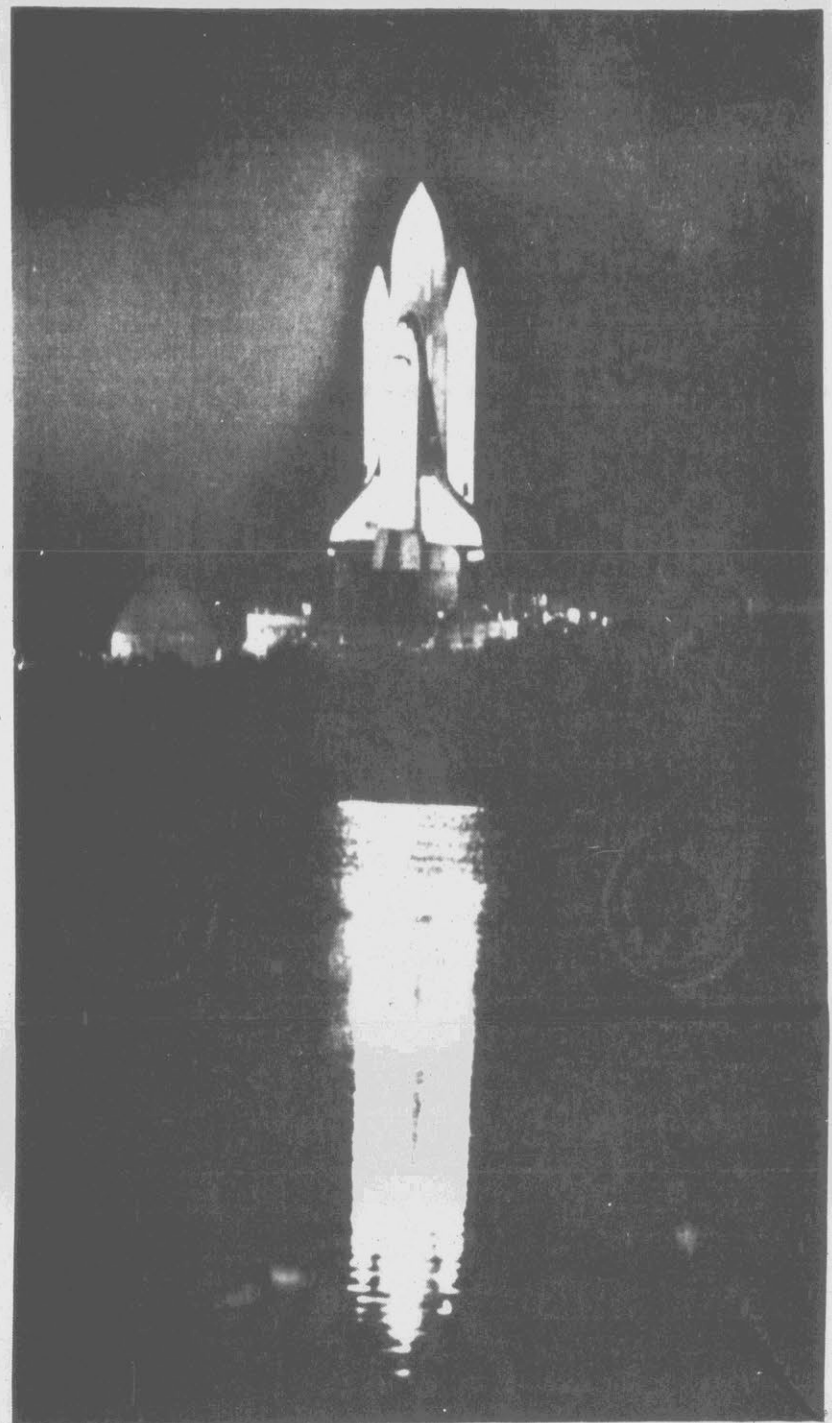

"It takes a while to move those things — they're not light," Hess said.

Officials said they hoped to make all connections of the shuttle and its mobile launcher platform to the launch pad about eight hours after rollout began.

Lousma and Fullerton awaited the placement of the shuttle on its launch pad, where they will rehearse countdown procedures for 33 hours this week.

Once at the pad, the Columbia will rest on the platform so it "touches metal to metal," Hess said. A rotating platform will move around the spacecraft so technicians can link fuel, electrical and communications lines from the Columbia to the ground.

The hookups will continue until Thursday, when Lousma and Fullerton will begin the simulated launch, Hess said.

Charleston EMS Director To Be Studying Services In Pitt

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

The Board of County Commissioners were told Monday that the director of the Charleston, S.C., emergency medical services operation will visit the county later this month to study EMS service in Pitt.

County Manager Reginald Gray told commissioners that the Charleston EMS official will visit rescue squads throughout the county Feb. 26-27, and report his finding to the board at a 2 p.m. session March 1.

Gray also said arrangements have been made for members of the board to visit Guilford County to look over EMS operations there on Feb. 24. Guilford, Gray noted, has one of the best county EMS operations in North Carolina.

The county manager said also that some city of Greenville officials may also make the trip to Greensboro with the commissioners, and said city officials have been notified of the March 1 meeting.

The board's action in studying EMS operations in the county was prompted, in part, by a joint meeting with the Greenville City Council last month at which city officials indicated a desire to improve rescue service provided by the city's Fire-Rescue Department and expressed a desire for more county financial support.

Commissioners have emphasized that they have no desire to replace volunteer rescue squads in the county with paid personnel. Rather, they have indicated an interest in providing support for the squads.

At an afternoon session to set budget guidelines for the 1982-83 fiscal year, commissioners told Gray they wanted to begin their study of the proposed budget earlier this year than in the past.

Board members also indicated they will take a hard look at the proposed budget in an effort to hold the line in county spending, and Commissioner Charles Gaskins said the 1982-83 budget will be "austere."

The board Monday also approved the purchase of an ambulance cab and chassis from Phelps Chevrolet for $13,316. The unit will be used to replace an old cab and chassis of a modular ambulance at Pitt Memorial Hospital.

Indict 17 Men On Drug Counts

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — A Brunswick County grand jury Monday indicted 17 men on charges stemming from two major drug seizures in 1980.

Authorities seized 33½ tons of marijuana when they seized shrimp boats in March and December of 1980.

The people indicted included 10 from Brunswick County, three from Florida and four from Columbia, South America.

District Attorney Mike Easley said the indictments have broken up a major organization of drug dealers.

City School Board Seeing Budget-Cut Crisis

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

Deep concern over proposed federal budget cuts to education has been expressed by Dr. Delma Blinson, superintendent of Greenville City Schools, and members of the city Board of Education.

In unofficial comments made Monday night, Blinson said budget extracts prepared last Friday by the State Department of Public Instruction cite figures that indicate "one of the most serious crises education has faced."

"The information provided in the extract shows that budget proposals are for increasing the defense budget by 22 percent, while at the same time decreasing federal assistance to education by 23 percent in secondary and elementary school levels.

"It's safe to say," Dr. Blinson added, "that if enacted, the budget proposals would virtually stop federal programs now being operated under Title I.

"If this happens, the result will be that we will have to ask regular classroom teachers to find some way to provide remedial instruction now provided by federal funding."

Blinson named the fields of food service, vocational education, instructional service for exceptional children and remedial reading as the programs that would be hit hardest by the proposed federal budget cuts.

"If this loss occurs, we have to somehow find state and local funds to provide these services, or do without them," Blinson said. "However, there are two laws on the book in North Carolina that direct public schools to provide these services so, in effect, it's a mandatory requirement.

"This is one of the most serious crises education has faced since I've been in the education business," Blinson commented. "I really don't know what we ought to do except to be aware of the situation."

Freighter Also Lost In Stormy North Atlantic

HALIFAX, Nova Scotia (AP) — A Soviet freighter sank in 50-foot waves in the storm-tossed North Atlantic today, and officials said four or five people were rescued but about 15 drowned and 18 were missing.

The freighter sank between 2 a.m. and 3 a.m. some 240 nautical miles east of Newfoundland in an area 5 miles east of where the world's biggest oil rig capsized, leaving 84 workers missing and believed dead.

The 4,262-ton Soviet freighter, Mekhnik Tarasov, went down as two vessels tried for several hours to assist the container ship when it ran into trouble in heavy seas. Officials said about 15 bodies had been recovered.

A spokesman for the Halifax Search and Rescue center said two life rafts had been spotted and a third was missing.

"We don't know where it (the third raft) is...It could be on the sunken ship," the spokesman said. The Mekhnik Tarasov had developed a 45-degree list overnight in 40 knot winds, heavy seas and freezing spray.

The 2,500-ton Tolbachik, a Soviet factory ship, and the 444-ton trawler Sigurdarid from the Faroe Islands were on the scene picking up bodies and searching for more survivors.

A Canadian army Buffalo aircraft also was flying over the area and a Canadian Coast Guard vessel, the Sir Humphrey Gilbert, was on the way.

In Moscow, the ministry in charge of the Soviet commercial fleet said it had no information on the ship.

The area is east of the drilling site in the Hibernia field where the storm's huge waves capsized the $120 million oil rig Ocean Ranger Monday morning.

School board members expressed concurrence that the board should take positive action to convey its concern to congressional delegations and to other officials.

"Our children are the ones who are getting the bad end of the deal," Dr. Jon Tingelstad, chairman of the board, remarked. "It's time to talk about this, to see what can be done."

Donovan Phillips said "We've got to take a stand, to get some kind of action going."

Terry Shank suggested that Blinson contact officials in the National School Board Association to determine what stand or what action they are considering. All board members suggested that Blinson take immediate action to write legislators outlining his and the board's concern, asking that serious consideration be given to at least maintaining the same level of funding now being provided through federal funds.

Persian Gulf Threat 'Eased'

By FREDS. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lt. Gen. Robert C. Kingston, commander of the U.S. Rapid Deployment Force, said today any threat of direct Soviet military action in the Persian Gulf area has diminished — at least for the time being — because the Soviets are "tied down" in Afghanistan and Poland.

"An overt Soviet invasion is least likely to occur at this time," Kingston told a group of newsmen.

"I think that they are tied up in Afghanistan and I think they are tied up in Poland."

"I think they have a pretty full plate." At another point, Kingston said, "I feel strongly the Soviets do not want a direct military confrontation with the United States at this time in Southwest Asia or anywhere else."

The main purpose of Kingston's force, now being developed, is to project major U.S. military power into the Southwest Asian area

January's Cold Proved Costly

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans spent $1.4 billion more than normal to keep warm in January, the government's Center for Environmental Assessment Services reported today.

The study also attributed more than 300 deaths to last month's severe weather, with "many of the fatalities ... the result of exposure to cold, generally in homes without heat or in stalled cars."

In addition, the agency, a division of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, estimated damage to the Florida citrus crop at $1 billion.

"Land, water and air transportation was delayed or canceled. Urban and rural residents lost power, water and heat — in many cases resulting in death. Energy consumption, necessary to combat the cold, exceeded record demand in most major Northern cities and in the South," the report said.

In addition to Florida citrus damage, the report noted crop damage in Louisiana, Georgia, Illinois and Texas.

At one point during the month, snow cover was reported in at least parts of all 50 states, and heavy snowfall caused severe disruptions in some areas.

Snow may have contributed to two airplane crashes, the report stated, one in Washington that claimed 78 lives and another in Boston where two died. Millions of dollars in highway funds were spent cleaning roads across the country, according to the assessment.

California, not significantly affected by the snow, had its own bad weather in January, with rainstorms and mudslides causing an estimated $150 million in damages to 6,000 homes and businesses.

Royal Couple On Secret Holiday

NASSAU, Bahamas (AP) — A certain "Mr. and Mrs. Hardy" are flying here for from abroad, but airline officials say they won't be showing their faces in public and they'll be changing planes quickly to fly off to an undisclosed locale.

Why all the secrecy? The couple is really Britain's Prince Charles, 33, and Princess Diana, 20. The prince and princess of Wales, who is pregnant with the couple's first child, are scheduled to arrive aboard a British Airways flight tonight.

The couple booked five seats under the name Hardy and were to arrive at Nassau about 6 p.m. EST. Airline officials said the pair would stay aboard their jet and wait for a private plane.

The couple planned to change planes quickly and take off for an undisclosed locale on the resort island of Eleuthra.

and parts of the Middle East to prevent any Soviet thrust at oil-producing countries.

The force, which potentially could number as many as 200,000 men, was created following the overthrow of the shah of Iran, which denied the United States a major military ally there, and then by the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan in late 1979.

While playing down the likelihood of any direct Soviet military move, Kingston said the "most likely" possibility of armed conflict aimed at pro-Western oil states would come from what he called Soviet "surrogates" such as South Yemen, Libya and Ethiopia.

"There's a lot of potential for stirring the pot," Kingston said in referring to Cuban troops in Ethiopia, recent Libyan threats to Chad and continuing tension between Marxist South Yemen and Saudi Arabia.

There have been reports that Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger has told the RDF staff to widen its planning for possible action in the event of attempts to overthrow established Persian Gulf-area nations by the Soviet Union or radical Arab states from the outside.

Asked about this, Kingston said he has not received any "direct orders" to deal with subversive threats to pro-Western countries, but indicated that his command would be ready to provide support, if asked, by any country that asked for it, perhaps in the form of transport planes to move forces of such countries, communications help and other aid of that nature.

Asked if RDF combat forces might be sent in to prop up a friendly country under pressure from subversive or revolutionary movements, Kingston said, "I don't envision (the RDF) being used that way."

He noted, in talking about what he referred to as "surrogates," a recent attempt to overthrow the government of the Persian Gulf state of Bahrain and said the insurgents "had outside help" from Iraq.

The United States has won agreement for the use of air and naval bases in Oman, Somalia, Kenya and Egypt in crises, and the Reagan administration has set in motion a construction program to improve facilities in those countries. Weinberger recently told Congress that such military construction over the next five years may total nearly $1.4 billion.

In his annual report, Weinberger said the United States is "pursuing negotiations with others for access to regional facilities during crises or for other routine training exercises during peacetime."

Asked whether any other countries have indicated a willingness to extend base access to the United States in that region, Kingston said, "Not to my knowledge."

KALAMA, Wash. (AP) — A blazing freighter as long as two football fields was left to burn today on the Columbia River after someone cut it loose from a pier and it drifted out of reach of hoses, officials said.

Three men were injured and three others suffered smoke inhalation during the spectacular blaze, which fire crews reckoned left the grain freighter "probably a total loss" after burning for two days, the Coast Guard said. The fire on the 600-foot-long Protector Alpha began Sunday night.

A North Pacific Grain Growers employee said the freighter was cut loose by a worker who was scared and "very excited." According to the Coast Guard, the unauthorized decision to set the freighter adrift may have hampered efforts to control the fire or prevent an explosion aboard the wheat-carrying ship.

About 25 firefighters were stranded aboard the burning ship after it was set adrift, but were quickly rescued by tugs and fireboats.

"We weren't aware what was happening until we looked down and saw the gap widening between the ship and the dock," said Bob Mesneak, assistant chief of the Longview Fire Department. "It was a little spooky."

The freighter was cut loose about an hour after the fire started in the engine room because workers feared the fire would spread to a nearby grain elevator.

"The probability was that the fire could have been contained," Coast Guard Capt. Kirk Greiner said Monday night. "A number of firefighters said the same thing."

The fire broke out as the Protector Alpha took on fuel oil at the Kalama terminal, about 30 miles north of the port of Portland, Ore.

The 30 Filipino crewmen and two Greek agents aboard were ordered to abandon ship after the blaze began.

An explosion early Monday that injured three firefighters "would have been less likely to have occurred had the vessel remained at the dock where firefighting capabilities were readily at hand," said Greiner, the Coast Guard's captain of port for the Columbia River.

Coast Guardsmen Alan E. Carbaugh, 22, of Tumalo, Ore., was in "very critical" condition Monday night with head injuries at a Portland hospital. Coast Guard Chief Warrant Officer Joseph Hoffman, 41, of Vancouver, was in serious but stable condition suffering from a skull fracture at a Vancouver hospital.

Seattle Fire Capt. Ron Coulter, also injured in the explosion, was treated and released for multiple cuts at a Longview hospital, and three crewmen from the vessel were treated for smoke inhalation.

After the vessel was set free, it was impossible to use water or foam lines from shore, Greiner said. Salvage crews hired by the vessel's Greek owner planned to contain the blaze to the engine room and one of the seven cargo holds, where it probably will burn "for several days," Greiner said.

"The vessel was probably a total loss for insurance purposes. Therefore there was no point in risking any further injuries by trying to extinguish the fire," he said.

Curt LaRoy, a grain handler and former firefighter, the ship was cut loose by another employee who got "very scared and very excited."

LaRoy said his boss, whom he refused to identify, "came in and started jumping around" and either cut the ship loose himself or ordered it set adrift.

Frank Eklund, manager of elevator operations for North Pacific, could not determine the validity of LaRoy's comments Monday night but promised to investigate "everything that happened."

Greiner said the ship was built in West Germany 13 years ago, is Greek-owned and sails under a Cypriot flag. The Merchant's Exchange of Portland said the vessel had come to Kalama from the Far East, with a stop in Astoria, Ore., and was to take the wheat to Indonesia.

The ship was towed up-river from Kalama and beached out of the way of other ships on the Oregon side of the river.

Greiner and grain terminal officials said the ship was not fully loaded, and carried only 2,000 tons of wheat.

The fire probably started when fuel spilled into a generator room beneath the fuel tanks and the generators ignited the fuel, said Dan Baxter, chief of Rural Fire District 2.

Football Spoiled Their Dinner

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1982 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: You recently published a letter from a housewife complaining because they had guests for Thanksgiving and her husband spent the day watching football, which spoiled their Thanksgiving dinner. You advised her to ask him either to sacrifice his football watching or to refrain from inviting guests on a holiday.

Why didn't you get with the times and advise that poor woman and thousands of football widows like her that life would be a lot less complicated if she or her husband would simply buy a videotape recorder and record the (stupid) game while the entire family enjoys a lovely meal together? Then afterward, the football "nuts" can see the entire game together.

WINNIE IN S.F.

DEAR WINNIE: It wouldn't work. Football "nuts" aren't content to wait until after the game is over to watch it on tape. They prefer the excitement of "seeing" history while it's being made.

***

DEAR ABBY: "Fed Up With Football" gets no sympathy from me. So her man watches football all weekend — so what? She's lucky. He's there, she's there, and he's all hers. What more could she ask for?

And a little lovin' at halftime helps even the score and makes the afternoon more fun!

P.M.M. IN SEATTLE

DEAR ABBY: I read in the newspaper that a 50-year-old grandmother of eight just gave birth to twin boys in Michigan. I'm sure it wasn't planned, and now I'm worried because I'm also 50 and a grandmother, and if it could happen to her it could happen to me.

Abby, I have a fairly active sex life and I thought my childbearing years were over, but how can I be sure? I haven't used any birth control for the last five years. I thought I didn't have to. At what age is a woman safe?

NERVOUS IN NEVADA

DEAR NERVOUS: Don't go by age. Ask your gynecologist and take no chances. Medical records show that a baby was born to a woman in her 54th year. And biblical history (Genesis 21) reveals that Abraham's wife, Sarah, laughed when she learned that at age 90 she was pregnant, which today would be no laughing matter.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I were talking about what we would do if the other one died first. My husband said if I died first, he would never marry again. Then I said if he died first I wouldn't marry again either. That's when he got a piece of paper and a pen and asked me to put it in writing! At first I thought he was kidding, but he was serious, so I put it in writing and signed it.

We're not old, Abby. He's 43 and I'm 42. What I want to know is this: Can he hold me to it?

WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: After he's dead, he can't "hold you" to anything.

Pat's Pointers

By Pat Trexler

Stretch your imagination just a bit and you can visualize this Bargello needlepoint pattern picturing neat rows of little trees or bushes. But even if your imagination doesn't stretch that far, you're sure to agree that the design makes a stunning purse. This simplest form of needlepoint consists of long, straight stitches worked over several holes of canvas with each stitch.

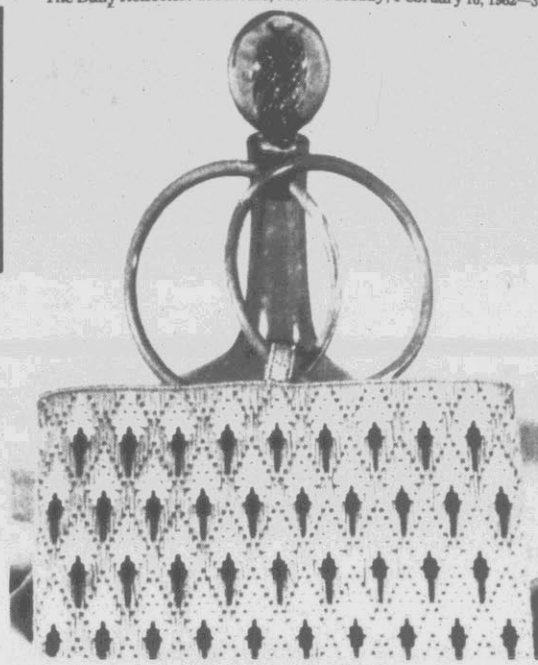

The construction is easy, too, with two rectangular pieces whipped together at the sides and the bottom and finished off with ring handles. The leaflet gives you a choice of beginner or intermediate level stitches.

To obtain directions for making the Bargello Pocketbook, send your request for Leaflet No. NP 6291 with $1 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Pat Trexler ("The Daily Reflector"), P.O. Box 810, North Myrtle Beach, S.C. 29582.

Or you may order Kit No. KD-6291 by sending a check or money order for $17.50 to Pat Trexler at the same address. Each kit contains full instructions plus ring handles, plastic canvas, needle and pure wool Persian yarns in luscious colors (optional lining is not included). Each color combination consists of four coordinated colors. Please specify your choice of the following color groups: lime tree, blueberry, American beauty rose, grape hyacinth, daffodil, coffee bean or papaya.

There are many myths and legends about the origins of Bargello (also known as Florentine) stitch patterns. We most often hear that they were first worked by political prisoners in the old Bargello Prison in Florence, Italy, centuries ago. Serious students doubt the authenticity of such reports but it is nice to think that, even if they did not originate the stitches, doomed men brought a little sunshine into that dank and dismal setting with striking stitch patterns.

Examples of this type of

needlework abound in ancient European castles and palaces and in museums. It was commonly used as fabric for upholstery, bed coverings and draperies.

In spite of this long history, many people think of it as a "new" type of needlepoint — probably because little of it was done in this country until recent years.

What about Bargello stitches on plastic canvas, which is so popular with many self-taught needlepointers? With certain limitations, it works just fine.

I prefer the 10-mesh canvas for Bargello, although I have successfully used the seven-mesh when I wanted a particularly bold design. Until recently, all of the 10-mesh plastic had an uneven count. By that I mean that the holes were not the same size horizontally and vertically.

With the uneven mesh count, you had to be certain to cut all adjoining pieces in the same direction. This canvas also had very definite ridges and you had to be sure to work the stitches over the ridges. If you worked "with" the ridges, the yarn would nestle down between them leaving exposed canvas. This type of canvas was usually sold by the yard.

The newer 10-mesh is available in 10 1/2-inch-by-13-inch sheets with an even mesh count so that you need not be concerned with either of the cautions listed above. My personal preference is Darice canvas, available in clear and colored sheets.

For best coverage, you will probably need to use a yarn a little thicker than the yarn you would use for shorter, slanting stitches. For this kind of stitching, I prefer Persian-type yarns, primarily because you can easily control the thickness by separating the strands and

Tea, Coffee Program Held

Harriet and Bob Wisse presented the program at the meeting of the Welcome Wagon Club held Wednesday at Western Sizzlin'. Their topic was "Teas and Coffees."

They discussed the history of tea and coffee, tea processing, varieties of teas, how to brew and fortune telling with tea leaves. A variety of beverages prepared by Mrs. Wisse were available after the program. The couple is associated with Second Cup, Carolina East Mall.

Noreen James, Helen Singletary and Donna Green, prospective members, were introduced. A report on the club's card party was given by Bonnie Martin. An upcoming pig pickin' and square dance was discussed.

President Dee Schaff announced the club will sponsor with Pitt Community College, a one-day job finding workshop March 17.

The next board meeting will be held at the home of Lillian McCurdy Feb. 24. The club's next meeting will be March 10 at 11:30 a.m. at Western Sizzlin'. The guest speaker will be from Shepard Memorial Library.

Film Shown ADK Chapter

The Alpha Nu Chapter of Alpha Delta Kappa heard a St. Jude Children's Research Hospital message at a meeting held at the Ramada Inn. A film "Half Sung Songs," which tells the story of the hospital was shown.

It was founded in 1962 by Danny Thomas. Alpha Nu sponsors the hospital.

A special Valentin's Day recognition was given to Alpha Nu sweethearts, Lee Brickhouse, Cotton Smith, Alya Rae Taylor, Barbara Tyson and Thelma Switzer. They helped found the chapter 19 years ago. They were presented candy by President Barbara Parker.

Faye Dempsey attended the executive board meeting on "Officer Qualifications." She reported six members from this district are candidates for state office.

A district workshop was held at the Goldsboro Country Club Saturday.

Provided Major Service

Black colleges and universities have always had to struggle to provide higher education to minorities.

Now inflation and federal budget cuts could make things worse.

Dr. John T. Fey, chairman of the board of The Equitable Life Assurance Society, said that in 1950 half the nation's students were in private institutions. By 1980 only 20 percent of the college level students were in private institutions. This he blamed on the impact of inflation and the increasing cost of education.

"Black schools are the ones suffering the most," he said.

He was speaking to St. Augustine College's 115th anniversary banquet and helping to launch a $35 million fund raising drive. He said it was particularly schools like St.

Augustine's where "so many of the students come from lower and middle economic brackets."

"It's essential that we maintain the system of black colleges in the United States," Dr. Fey said. "These colleges are a bridge between the culture students grow up in at home and the mainstream of American life. . . They're important to the entire nation."

The importance of the black colleges and universities cannot be overemphasized. They help preserve the unique cultural heritage of a large segment of our population. Equally important they are uniquely equipped to handle the special needs of many people from disadvantaged backgrounds. Black colleges and universities deserve the support of all parts of our society.

SO ALLURING AFTER THE NIGHTLY NEWS!

By JAMES KILPATRICK

Abdicate Power To Tax?

WASHINGTON — We are witnessing a disgraceful spectacle these days on Capitol Hill. What is proposed quite simply is that Congress abdicate its primary responsibility, which is to exercise its power to enact the laws of the land.

A brief chronology may be helpful. Back in 1894, as part of a tariff act, Congress provided certain tax exemptions for charitable, religious or educational institutions. The provision, virtually unchanged, is embodied today in Section 501 (c) (3) of the Tax Code.

In 1964 Congress passed the Civil Rights Act. The act contained not one word dealing with tax exemptions. In Title VI the act provided, among other things, that "federal financial assistance" would be denied any institution practicing racial discrimination, but the act expressly defined "federal financial assistance" in terms of grants, loans and contracts.

Nevertheless, in 1970 the Internal Revenue Service, without a shred of statutory authority, issued a regulation to this effect: The Civil Rights Act created a public policy against racial discrimination; no institution violating this policy should be granted financial assistance; tax exemption is a form of financial assistance;

therefore, any school that practices racial discrimination must be denied such exemption.

In 1971 a three-judge court here in Washington, by a 2-1 vote, performed a feat of judicial legerdemain. Section 501 (c) (3) is phrased clearly in the disjunctive: It deals with charitable, religious "or" educational institutions. But hocus-pocus-dominicus, the court changed "or" to read "and," thus requiring that the Mississippi schools involved in the case must be both charitable and also educational in order to qualify. As a matter of federal policy, discrimination is uncharitable. Tax laws must be construed so as not to frustrate federal policy. Therefore the exemptions that tax laws afford only to charitable organizations could be denied to these schools.

The U.S. Supreme Court summarily affirmed this decision, but in 1975, in an entirely different case involving Bob Jones University, the court took pains to make clear that its earlier affirmation had been largely procedural. "The question of whether a segregative private school qualifies under 501 (c) (3) has not received plenary review in this Court, and we do not reach that question today." Further, the court's affirmation in the Mississippi case "lacks the weight of a case involving a truly adversary controversy."

That brings us to the events of last month, when the Reagan administration first directed the IRS to revoke its 1970 regulation, and then introduced a bill that would effectively write the regulation into statutory law. Now at least 29 senators, almost all of them credentialed liberals, have united in a declaration that the bill is unnecessary. They are perfectly willing to transfer their own legislative responsibility to the unelected bureaucrats of the IRS. They have sponsored a "sense of the Congress" resolution to that effect.

The parent sponsors of this Artful Dodger resolution ought to look beyond their noses. Federal law now prohibits the payment of Medicaid bills for abortion. This is "public policy." What will they say when the IRS revokes the tax exemption of half the hospitals in the land? The same Title VI of the Civil Rights Act that prohibits discrimination on account of race also prohibits discrimination on account of sex, religion and national origin. Shall the IRS rule that the Girl Scouts are "uncharitable," that no business may deduct dues paid to the all-male Junior Chamber of Commerce, that exemptions for the B'nai B'rith and the Knights of Columbus must be denied?

These are not frivolous questions. They go to the very heart and soul of our constitutional system of government, under which "all legislative powers" are vested in the Congress. The immediately

Holidays Without Pay Ahead

The Federal Aviation Administration has ordered 36,000 employees to take a day off without pay every two weeks from April through September. The agency's air traffic controllers are exempted.

Two other agencies have taken similar moves as budget cuts are felt.

It means some loss of pay for the federal workers affected. At the same time the plan means that a certain number of workers will continue at their jobs rather than facing layoffs.

These are difficult times and the workers affected by this order are having it no worse than thousands of industrial workers around the nation.

Abused With Love

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Add another element to child abuse, according to a professor at East Carolina University — misdirected love.

Misuse of love when discipline and disapproval are called for instead can be "as harmful as physical brutality," says Nash Love, Jr. of the School of Home Economics.

Writing in a recent issue of the publication "Marriage and Family Living", the child psychologist and educator says children abused with love can grow into "demanding tyrants who will bring much unhappiness to himself and others."

Parents who can't bear to disappoint their children will not establish firm guidelines. They overprotect children from unpleasant experiences such as fear, disappointment or failure.

When a touch of reality is what is called for, those parents provide instead the administering of love and expressions of approval. The result quite often is need for special counseling of both the love abused child and the frustrated parents.

Examples
In the article written by Love and by Joseph H. McVoy of Virginia Polytechnic Institute, several examples are given of children who get love instead of learning:

A four-year-old spills his drink despite warnings, and cries for more. The anxious mother gives a refill instead of punishing by withholding the drink.

Another youngster demands gum during grocery shopping and to forestall a screaming scene, the mother gives in.

Those examples of children manipulating their parents and of well-meaning parents giving in through love can lead to serious problems for both, Love believes.

Spoiled in this fashion, the children will grow up into demanding, self-centered individuals, crippled by lazy, complaining and manipulative behavior that leads to failure.

The culprit most likely is

parental misunderstanding of just what love is, and how to give it.

"Love is neither something you can see or touch nor a particular behavior that you perform. The hugs, kisses, smiles, food and money parents use to communicate loving feelings is not withholding the love itself.

"Rewards given to a child who is being good are good rewards as well as acts of love. Praise for a child doing his best at a particular project or playing a game is a stimulus for his growth as well as an act of love.

"When you give this same attention to your child when he disturbs you or let him have a cookie so he will stop bothering you or give him love and understanding when he is throwing a temper tantrum, be aware that your loving response can be harmful", the specialists say.

Wounded

Acts of love which encourage undesirable behavior can encourage the child to develop and retain traits such as nagging, complaining, whining, displaying temper and such which will remain through life.

To start resolving the dilemma, the authors suggest that parents calmly remove themselves from the unpleasant scene when children nag or cry or throw fits. Let the youngster come

Other Editors Say Worth More?

(Waynesville Mountaineer)

What's the worth of a well-placed word? Considerable, if you measure it by the state government payroll.

The people of North Carolina paid Jim Hunt $55,104 last year to serve as governor. Twenty-four hours a day, 365 days, colds and tummyaches notwithstanding.

The same people paid Waynesville attorney Zeb Alley $62,319 to be the governor's lobbyist in the North Carolina General Assembly. And that was for 10 months. Salary only.

The state paid Alley another $15,925 in expenses, bringing his compensation to a grand total of $78,244.

If you want a common denominator, Hunt's monthly salary came to $4,592; Alley's to $6,232.

Alley says GOP criticism of his pay check is "just politics." Perhaps, because Democrats are "in" and Republicans are "out" of the governor's mansion. But come to think of it, isn't politics exactly what Alley's job is — politicking with state senators and representatives on the governor's behalf?

Alley's monthly salary, incidentally, is roughly equivalent to the annual pay check for a senator or representative in Washington.

As Hunt's man in the General Assembly, Alley's job is to persuade senators and representatives that what Hunt wants done is best for the state and they should reflect that when it comes time to vote on legislation. That's where the action is, of course...the point where the wheel hits the road.

Until it becomes law, what the governor wants is so much talk. But doesn't it strike you a bit strange that the lobbyist is worth more to taxpayers than the governor himself? The high cost of marketing the governor's thoughts could substantially alter the state's political scene.

Given the difference in pay, kids may soon dream no more of becoming governor. And when that happens, for whom will the mouthpiece speak?

Strength For Today

THE PARTIAL AND THE PERFECT

Our age is in danger of being anesthetized by its scientific achievements. Because we have learned so much in the last 150 years, we have fallen into the error of believing that we know almost everything that is worth finding out. All of which is absurd; for what we know is an infinitesimal portion of what there is to know.

The great Sir Isaac Newton — one of history's outstanding sages — said on one occasion: "I do not know what I may appear to the world, but to myself I seem to have been only like a boy, playing on the seashore, and now and then finding a smoother pebble or a prettier shell than ordinary, while the great ocean of truth lay all undiscovered before me."

The best we can do is to take our thimblefuls of truth from the sea of truth. We shall know all we need to know; and we are assured out of the Word of God that when that which is perfect is come, that which is in part will be done away. — Elisha Douglass

Extra Risks In Readiness

By MAXWELL GLEN and CODY SHEARER

WASHINGTON — Two young American soldiers were killed last month, the first among many expected to die this year in combat exercise accidents.

Pvt. Theodore Ricketson, 18, of Warrensburg, N.Y., choked to death after becoming tangled in his lines during a parachute exercise near Fayetteville, N.C. An additional 41 soldiers suffered injuries during the jump, which was made in dangerously-high winds.

Almost three weeks later, Pvt. Robert G. Solonika, 20, of Salem, Ore., was shot to death during combat exercises at the National Training Center at Fort Irwin, Calif. Four other recruits were wounded by small-arms bullet fragments.

According to the Pentagon, more than 1,000 armed forces personnel die accidentally on and off duty each year. (Each branch of the armed services collects its own accident figures).

Since the arrival of the all-volunteer force, the Pentagon has taken added steps to ensure the safety of its recruits. "Human engineering" has become an integral factor in operational decisions. Negligence and accountability have been taken more seriously.

But today's added emphasis on military readiness and training is likely to make safety even more of an issue. Though military spending plans are always subject to change, President Reagan's proposed five-year, $1.6 trillion defense plan assures that recruits will be training under more stressful war-like conditions.

"In the old days, Vietnam would have provided a recruit's first encounter with live ammunition," observed a staff member for the House Armed Services Committee. "But training is now as close as you can come to live combat situations. Until the services get used to handling it, you're likely to see more accidents."

Safety is, of course, also subject to the use of ever more sophisticated weaponry. As the armed services play with new toys and do it more often, the chances for accidents increase. An American jet, for example, inadvertently launched a Sidewinder missile in west Germany last week.

The added risks of a peacetime buildup should be evident to all. The Pentagon should assure us that it's doing as much as possible to reduce training accidents.

After his first year in office, President Herbert Hoover proposed that states and localities assume a greater responsibility for public services, and that voluntarism serve to fill the gaps.

To the skeptics, he vowed, "This is not an issue as to whether people shall go hungry and cold in the United States. It is solely a question of the best method by which hunger and cold shall be prevented. It is a question as to whether the American people, on one hand, will maintain the spirit of charity and mutual self-help through voluntary giving and the responsibility of local government, as distinguished, on the other hand, from appropriations out of the federal Treasury for such purposes."

Reagan's New Federalism may come from an old bottle.

In 1979, the average female college graduate earned less income than the average male high school dropout, according to economist Barbara R. Bergman of the University of Maryland.

In recent testimony before the Joint Economic Committee, Ms. Bergan cited "occupational segregation" as the principle reason for the difference in earnings.

Whether binary chemical weapons production is "essential to the national interest," as President Reagan believes, is hotly disputed. Yet Reagan's $30 million proposal to build the "safe storage" weapon is wrought with both practical and political dangers, a leading expert reminds us.

Matthew Messelson of Harvard University notes that binary weapons may increase the threat of proliferation and that, under wartime conditions, they might require too much time to ship assemble and take apart. The entire chemical weapons program, he adds, is "riddled with technological incompetence."

During 1980, 20,786 Americans refused to file returns with the Internal Revenue Service. But after the first nine months of 1981, the number was already more than 23,000.

1982 is the first year since 1978 that the minimum wage has not increased. It's holding steady at $3.35 an hour.

Whether the extra revenue from the new 20-cent postage stamp? No doubt the U.S. Postal Service Board of Governors discussed that matter at its recent meeting in Hawaii.

Today In History

By The Associated Press
Today is Tuesday, Feb. 16, the 47th day of 1982. There are 318 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Feb. 16, 1959, Fidel Castro became Premier of Cuba.

On this date:
In 1871, the Franco-Prussian War ended in defeat for France.

In 1873, a republic was proclaimed in Spain.

In 1918, England's port of Dover was bombed by German submarines in World War I.

In 1945, massive U.S. air raids on Tokyo began during World War II.

Ten years ago, Mrs. Clifford Irving was arrested as a fugitive from Swiss justice, in the case of her husband's disputed biography of Howard Hughes.

Five years ago, the Anglican archbishop of Uganda and two government ministers were arrested in an alleged plot to overthrow the government of President Idi Amin.

Auto Sales Continue To Slump

By ANN JOB WOOLLEY
Associated Press Writer

DETROIT (AP) — The five major U.S. automakers reported a 7 percent sales decline in the first 10 days of February from the comparable period a year ago. It was the worst sales showing in the period since 1961.

Rebates, however, greatly improved General Motors Corp.'s sales from the level of the last 10 days of January.

Total car sales from Feb. 1-10 were 142,273, compared with 136,034 in early February 1981, the industry said Monday.

Because the Feb. 1-10 period had one more selling day this year than in 1981, however, the daily rate was only 15,808 cars, compared with 17,004 in the comparable period in 1981.

In the same period in 1961, only 13,187 cars were sold each day.

GM was down just 0.4 percent from a year ago, Ford Motor Co. was off 14.8 percent, and Chrysler Corp. declined 4.5 percent.

Volkswagen of America was off 56.5 percent, and American Motors Corp. sales dropped an estimated 41.1 percent from the 1981 period.

"GM was up because the dealers and customers reacted favorably to the rebates (initiated after concession talks the United Auto Workers and GM broke off)," said Arvid Jouppi, analyst at Colin Hochstin Co. in Detroit.

Many consumers stayed away from showrooms in late January, hoping that worker concessions would lower car prices, he said. As a result, GM's sales were off 31.6 percent in the last 10 days of January.

The automaker's UAW talks collapsed Jan. 28 and shortly afterward GM announced the rebates offering up to $2,000 on some models.

"GM has recovered and should show continued improvement," Jouppi said.

In the Feb. 1-10 period, GM's sales amounted to 88,131 cars, up from 78,674 last year. Ford sold 33,824 vehicles compared with 35,294 in 1981. The automaker began a rebate program Feb. 2 offering up to $2,000 off on some cars.

Chrysler reported 16,384 vehicles sold Feb. 1-10 compared with 15,241 in 1981. The automaker began a rebate program Feb. 8 matching Ford's and GM's.

AMC does not report 10-day sales, but they were estimated at 2,300, down from 3,480 in 1981. AMC's rebates range up to $1,000 and began Feb. 1.

VW, which did not offer a promotion until Feb. 11, showed a sales decline from 3,345 vehicles in the 1981 period to 1,634 this year.

For all of 1982, the five automakers have delivered 510,411 cars, down 15.8 percent from 605,866 in the period in 1981.

GM sales were 310,675 for the year so far, down 16.5 percent from 371,893 in the comparable period last year.

Ford's sales stand at 122,630, down 8 percent from the 133,263 delivered by this time last year.

She Gets The Job Done Though Open To Stares

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — When computer consulting firm Broadway & Seymour Inc. decided to open an office in downtown Charlotte, its owners told their architect they wanted to be a visible part of the downtown area.

Architect Bob Rash responded with an idea that has made the firm's receptionist, Denise Carter, one of the most looked-at people in the city.

Ms. Carter works just inside a storefront window only a few feet from the sidewalk and a constant stream of passersby.

Most can't resist peering inside. But, says Ms. Carter, it doesn't bother her in the least.

"I really don't even notice that," she insists. "I think most of them are just looking at their reflection in the glass anyway. I'm not sure they even see me."

Ms. Carter might be a bit too modest.

"People will see her out somewhere and say, 'Oh, I know you. You're the girl who works in the window,'" said William G. "Bill" Seymour, one of Ms. Carter's bosses at Broadway & Seymour Inc.

"Denise is a secretary-bookkeeper-receptionist combined, and she has gotten used to it," he said. "She does an excellent job of not being distracted."

To passersby, however, it must seem a little odd to gaze up from the sidewalk and see a secretary hard at work in a street-level display window. And, says Ms. Carter, some can't resist stopping in to see what's going on.

Seymour doesn't mind the drop-in traffic, though there's very little for browsers to see inside.

The firm, which was founded in December 1980 and opened on Tryon Street about a year ago, is engaged in computer consulting and developing computer software systems primarily for banks, savings and loans and other financial institutions.

The storefront office didn't occur by accident.

"We wanted to be in the center of the city's financial district, and we wanted visibility on Tryon Street," Seymour said. "This location does afford us a great deal of exposure."

The exposure apparently is paying off.

Seymour, president of the firm, and chairman Olin Broadway have 23 employees, a branch office in Raleigh and a Tulsa, Okla., oil company client, who plans to spend $2 billion on computers through 1985.

Congress. The immediately pending controversy was provoked by denial of exemption to a religious institution. Are the runaway senators truly willing to leave so delicate a question of the First Amendment to bureaucrats or to judges?

In the waves of emotion that are churned by charges of racial discrimination, profound questions have been swept away. These unsettled issues demand better consideration than they have received so far.

Club Plans

Ladies Night

WINTERVILLE — Winterville Ruritans will hold Ladies Night for members and their wives at 7 p.m. March 20 at D.H. Conley High School.

Club reporter Elwood Nobles said members planning to attend should make reservations. Details for the special night were worked out at a recent club meeting.

A report on Walter Dail Appreciation Day also was made at the meeting. The club collected $1,372 dollars for the event honoring the former Mayor and have paid out $641. The remainder, explained Nobles, will pay for the plaques presented Dail. Any cash that is left will be used to buy gift certificates for Dail.

The club recognized members Donald Boyle, Linwood Rouse, Tony Moye and Nobles for their contributions to the Dail tribute.

It was reported that the Vernon Cox building, formerly the Boy Scout building, has been turned over to the Winterville Historical Society. The society has a three-year lease on the property.

A report on the National Ruritan Convention in Orlando, Fla., which was attended by 10 members of the Goldsboro-Greenville District Ruritans, was presented by Buck Weaver. The convention was "the largest ever," he said, representing the 1,600 Ruritan clubs in the nation.

Leck Keeter reported that the fund-raising project for purchase of a piano for D.H. Conley High School was progressing well.

Boggs' Daughter, Wife In Politics

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — One of the last things House Majority Leader Hale Boggs told his daughter before he vanished in 1972 was to get into politics.

Both his daughter, Barbara Sigmund, and his wife, Lindy Boggs, took the advice. Now they may become the first mother-daughter congressional team in history.

Accompanied by her mother, a Democrat who has represented southern Louisiana since shortly after her husband disappeared in a small plane in Alaska, Mrs. Sigmund, 42, announced Monday her candidacy in the Democratic primary in the newly created 7th District in central New Jersey.

Mrs. Sigmund said she will draw heavily on the Boggs legacy in what is expected to be a close race. That legacy includes a stunning House victory by her father when he was 25 years old and her mother's election as Louisiana's first woman representative.

Farmers Favor Changing Leaf Allotment System

CLINTON, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina tobacco farmers say tobacco allotment ownership by non-farming corporations should end but that retired farmers and the elderly should be allowed to sell or continue leasing theirs.

The farmers put forth those and other suggestions Monday during a congressional hearing on the federal tobacco program.

The hearing, in the Sampson Middle School auditorium, was the third in a series of hearings to consider changes in the federal tobacco program, which barely survived an unprecedented attack last year in Congress. Another hearing was scheduled for today in Kingston.

"A man ought to be in control of his allotment like he is his money in the bank — because he worked for it," said Sampson County farmer J.C. Pridgen.

"It's not fair to take it (the allotment) from the widow," said Marie Barfield of Northampton County. "But those corporations that own them, why can't those allotments be given back to the government?"

Among the chief concerns raised by congressional opponents of the tobacco program has been ownership of tobacco allotments — by the right to grow tobacco — by non-farmers and corporations.

North Carolina farms and have about 116,000 tobacco allotments, but only about 58 percent of the allotments are planted by their holders. The rest are leased to growers at a yearly average of $1,000 an acre.

Several farmers suggested that allotments owned by corporations — most of which were acquired when they purchased land that had an allotment tied to it — should be redistributed to growers through a pool.

Jimmy Hill of Kingston went a step further, suggesting that anyone with an allotment should be required to grow a crop every year, allow someone else to grow it on the property or sell the allotment.

The meeting was chaired by U.S. Rep. Charles Rose, D-N.C., who said it was the best so far for receiving comments from farmers.

Farm organizations had dominated testimony in previous hearings, which drew complaints from some farmers.

At the beginning of Monday's hearing, U.S. Rep. Charles Whitley, D-N.C., promised farmers that the panel would give "first priority to tobacco owners, growers and holders of allotments."

About 15 farmers spoke. Other panel members included John Napier, R-S.C., William Wampler, R-Va.

About 400 farmers from Sampson and surrounding counties attended the morning session, but that number dwindled to 200 in the afternoon.

Suggestions on how to improve the tobacco allotment system varied widely, but most of the growers agreed on the need to maintain the federal tobacco program, even at the growers' expense.

After the hearing, Whitley told farmers that the panel has not reached a decision on any of the issues.

"We don't have hard opinions right now, so we can approach the problems with an open mind," he said.

Blame Fatigue In Steam Leak

SENECA, S.C. (AP) — A steam generator tube leak at the Oconee Nuclear Station's reactor Unit 1 was caused by "high-cycle fatigue," not corrosion of the steel tubes that has plagued many plants, says a Duke Power Co. spokesman.

The leaking tube that prompted the Feb. 9 shutdown of Unit 1 was plugged Monday, Mary Cartwright of the Charlotte-based utility said Monday.

Repair work on Unit 1 will soon be completed, and it will return to service later this month, she said.

The steam generator is a heat exchanger between the primary, or reactor, system and the secondary, or turbine, system in a pressurized water reactor. Heat is passed through a bundle of steel tubes in the generator.

The latest tube leak at Oconee was blamed on fatigue: rapid tube movement that causes the metal to become brittle and eventually fracture.

using any number of strands at a time as needed.

Another advantage is that the Persian-type will lay flat after the separate strands are threaded in the needle, which is the desired effect for Bargello.

This yarn is sold mostly by needlepoint specialty shops and may not be as readily available as the knitting yarns that most of you are accustomed to using with plastic canvas. If you can't find the Persian-type yarn near you, four-ply knitting worsted weight yarn may be substituted on 10-mesh canvas. You will probably need to use a bulkier yarn for Bargello on seven-mesh. For the few projects I have done on seven-mesh, I used a rug yarn.

In addition to being harder to find, the Persian yarns, particularly in wool, are fairly expensive, but I feel that they are worth the extra cost when you consider the time you put into a project.

Indians Protest 'Concentration Camp'

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Nicaragua's leftist government says it resettled 8,500 English-speaking Indians to "protect them," but a tribal group says the junta sent Indians to concentration camp where they were used as forced labor. The Sandinista junta denied charges by the Misurata Organization, representing the Miskito Indians and two other coastal tribes, that it put at least 10,000 Indians into two concentration camps after burning 31 communities last month in Zelaya province.

The government also denied a charge by the State Department that it was oppressing the tribes but put Zelaya, Nicaragua's largest province, off limits to travelers. On Feb. 3, the Defense Ministry said it arrested more than 100 members of a "counter-revolutionary" separatist movement in the province.

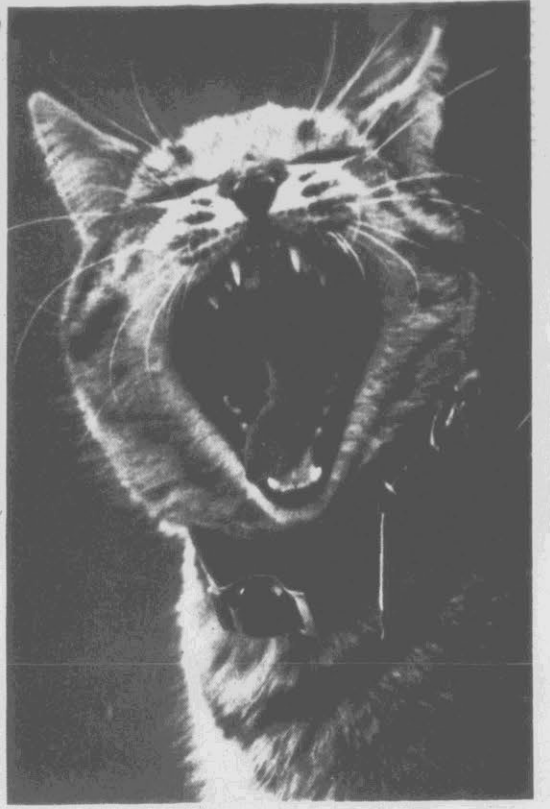

The Miskitos and other Indian tribes in Zelaya have been described as conservative, church-going Protestants who are having difficulty adjusting to the leftists who overthrew the Somoza dictatorship in 1979. The rest of the Nicaraguan people are almost all Roman Catholics.

The junta in a communique Sunday said 8,500 Miskitos were resettled from their ancient homelands on the Caribbean coast to a better location "deep inland" but did not say where. It said the resettlement was to "protect them from anti-revolutionary armed gangs" and "will permit carrying out important projects for these communities to achieve levels of development they never attained in the past."

Claiming the Indians had been subjected to "armed aggressions by counter-revolutionary bands," the communique said 60 Miskitos were killed in November and December. In a communique issued in Tegucigalpa, the capital of neighboring Honduras, the Misurata Organization urged the United Nations and the International Red Cross to investigate conditions in Zelaya.

Charging the Nicaraguan government with genocide, it claimed that 31 villages in which more than 31,000 Indians lived were burned between Jan. 5 and Jan. 18. It said many of the Indians fled to Honduras, but at least 10,000 were herded into two concentration camps where they were being used as forced laborers.

The junta accused the Indian organization of a "misleading campaign." It invited foreign journalists and religious and labor organizations to visit Zelaya and observe conditions there.

Scholarship For Student

The coastal section of the Professional Contractors Estimating Association of America, meeting here recently, presented a one-year tuition scholarship to Doug Wofford, a second year student in architectural drafting technology at Pitt Community College.

Wofford is president of the PCC Student Council.

Wofford has been accepted as a junior at the University of North Carolina at Charlotte and will work for a degree in engineering technology. He is a Wilmington native.

Patrick A. Gordon, coastal section president, and Steve Nichols, treasurer and past graduate of the architectural program, presented the award. Recipients must be in their second year in architectural drafting technology and have a "B" minimum average. Purpose of the award is to promote scholarship within the architectural curriculum.

Gordon said the purpose of the association is to develop professionalism among estimators, promote community interest in the construction industry, and to provide avenues for development and sharing information as a non-profit organization. Approximately 50 estimators and contractors attended the meeting.

Coast Guards Expects Rough Sailing Ahead

By R.D. GERSH
Associated Press Writer
The Coast Guard is grimly preparing for what could be a tough summer, as it will have to handle ever-bigger crowds with smaller numbers of personnel, stations and less equipment, officials say.

"We'll just tough it out," said Capt. Joe Blackett, chief of search and rescue operations in 5th District headquarters in Portsmouth, Va.

The 5th District, covering Virginia, North Carolina and Maryland, will lose three small boat stations, the Portsmouth-based cutter Ingham and about 100 enlisted men and women as the Coast Guard tries to meet its slimmed-down $1.357 billion budget, which is $46 million short of what it requested.

Translating the cut-costs directive has taken reams of computer printouts, uncounted man-hours and an acceptance that "we're not going to do business as usual," Blackett said.

When a search and rescue station closes, the two adjacent stations will have to take over responsibility for all its waters but will get only 20 percent of its personnel.

"So we'll be 80 percent short," Blackett said. The transferred personnel "also have to fill in for the RIP's (personnel discharged under the reduction in force)."

For example, when the Parramore Beach station on the Eastern Shore is closed and its 18 crew members transferred, two will go to the Chincoteague station to the north and two to Cape Charles to the south.

Of the 50 people at the stations at Parramore, Dahlgren on the Potomac River and Swansboro, N.C., the district will keep 11 in other search and rescue billets, Blackett said.

The Coast Guard won't be able to transfer all the equipment or boats from the closed stations to the adjacent ones either, since there won't be enough people to take care of them all.

"There's no point in giving them more boats than they can do anything with," Blackett said.

The Coast Guard is trying to keep the people who have to be transferred in the same geographical area.

The toll, physical and mental, may come this summer, the busiest season for the search and rescue stations, when fewer people are trying to do more work, when the men and women whose mission is to protect life and property on the seas may have to start making choices.

"We are still going to respond to every case as best we can, but there are going to be times when we can't respond as well," Blackett said. "It is certainly going to put an additional strain on our people. It's going to take a toll."

Blackett is aiming for the latter part of March to start closing down the stations, before the busy summer season starts. For the last two weeks, the stations will be staffed but won't take any cases.

Blackett said he can only hope the public might respond by being a warier on the water. "If I were a boater," he said, "I'd be a little more careful."

Extra Day For Story-Teller

Jackie Torrence, a professional storyteller who is appearing in the city schools this week, will spend an extra day in the school system, according to Carolyn Ferebee, community schools director.

She said Ms. Torrence will do two 45-minute performances Friday at South Greenville (8:30-9:15 a.m. and 9:30-10:15 a.m.) and at Wahl-Coates (11-11:45 a.m. and 1-1:45 p.m.) elementary schools. Each session will be open to senior citizens, parents and friends of the school community.

Ms. Ferebee said people seeking more information should call Dr. Rexford Piner, principal at Wahl-Coates, and J. B. Smith, South Greenville principal.

Plan A Two-Day Symposium

The East Carolina University chapter of the National Student Speech, Language and Hearing Association will sponsor the 12th annual Speech, Language and Hearing Symposium Thursday and Friday in the Belk Building on the East Carolina University campus.

Guest speakers are Kathleen Holmes, education director at Central North Carolina School for the Deaf in Greensboro, and Dr. Howard C. Shane, director of speech pathology and audiology at Children's Hospital Medical Center in Boston. Mrs. Holmes will conduct the Thursday session on "The Use of Normal Language Acquisition as a Model for Initial Stimulation for Deaf Children." Dr. Shane will lead the Friday session titled, "Assessment and Intervention for the Person Who Is Non-speaking."

Infrared Camera For Dentists

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Like soldiers using a sensor on a battlefield, dentists may someday use infrared cameras to detect cavities in the mouth, a professor says.

Steven Batterman, a professor of bioengineering at the University of Pennsylvania, says cavities give off heat. He said infrared sensors can find cavities that are hidden beneath fillings, which X-rays can't do. But he said the techniques he has been able to develop thus far do not detect small cavities and refined machinery made especially for dentistry would have to be developed.

Cigarettes Are Break-In Loot

Twenty-four cartons of cigarettes valued at $94.50 were reported taken from the Fast Fare on Hooker Road during a break-in early this morning.

Chief Glenn Cannon said officers discovered the break-in about 1:50 a.m., 20 minutes after the store closed.

Entrance was gained, Cannon said, by breaking the glass from a front door. Investigation of the case was continuing.

John Paul Shows Strain Of His Trip

By DENNIS REDMONT
Associated Press Writer

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — After four crowded days in tropical African heat, Pope John Paul II has a bruise on his chest, lines around his eyes and about a pound less on his waistline.

But the 61-year-old Roman Catholic pontiff appears to be getting the same boost from this foreign trip that he got from the nine he made before the attempt on his life nine months ago.

"He's trying to prove to me he can do it all the same as before," said Archbishop Paul Marcinkus of Cicero, Ill., who plans the pope's trips.

Speaking to a group of Nigerian workers today at the Holy Cross Cathedral, the pope said strikes are "extraordinary measures for the defense of human rights."

In an apparent reference to the martial law and the suspended union Solidarity in his native Poland, the pontiff said, "Workers have the right to form unions and to ask for proper working conditions, but they also have the obligation to render loyal service, and employers have the (right) to receive the services for which they pay."

"Workers should not too readily have recourse to strikes, which generally cause much suffering to many."

Nigeria's labor movement is still in its infancy, but recently a strike disrupted Nigerian Airways and other transport services. The strikes were settled by negotiation and the government did not intervene.

The pope chatted with members of the Polish community, church members and diplomats before departing from the cathedral.

Papal aides say that the pope's gait is heavier, he jokes less frequently and he is more aware of security precautions since a Turkish terrorist shot him in St. Peter's Square last May 13. But even before his departure from Rome, he astounded his doctors.

They were reluctant to inoculate him against typhus and cholera, fearing toxic residues of the anesthetics administered when he was operated on six months ago would produce a dangerous reaction in combination with the shots. But there were no adverse effects.

John Paul is trailed as he goes about by his two doctors, Renato Buzzonetti, director of Vatican health services, and Stanislaw Wizlocky, a Polish physician of long acquaintance. An ambulance also is usually in every papal motorcade.

But the pope's only injury so far is a chest bruise suffered when his jeep braked suddenly to avoid a surging crowd in the northern city of Kaduna and jolted him against the crossbar.

John Paul appeared to be pacing himself at the start of his visit, but the pace has picked up. After humid 100-degree mornings, he rebounds after lunch to joke with nuns and laymen and engage in the extemporaneous banter that has endeared him to crowds around the world.

If he has a pet peeve, it appears to be the security precautions that were increased Monday after reports that a man tried to bring a pistol and ammunition into the stadium where the pope celebrated Mass in Lagos on Friday and that three Nigerians from Lagos were arrested at the airport in Kaduna with a pistol after the pope left there Sunday.

When the pope opened the sliding sunroof of his limousine Monday to wave, the Nigerian soldiers surrounding the car slammed it shut.

CONCERT

Mary Streeter and the Interdenominational Choir of Farmville will be in concert at 3 p.m. Sunday at Haddock Chapel Free Will Baptist Church, Route 1, Winterville.

The concert, sponsored by the Haddock Chapel Young Adult Choir, will be part of the congregation's observance of Black History Month.

Brothers Held In Burglaries

WESTMINSTER, S.C. (AP) — Two Westminster brothers are accused of operating a three-state burglary ring that netted "several thousand dollars" worth of merchandise from Georgia, South Carolina and North Carolina break-ins, authorities say.

The men were extradited from Oconee County Monday to face burglary charges in both Rabun and Habersham counties in Georgia.

Bruce Williams, 19, and David Williams, 21, face two counts of burglary each in Rabun County, according to Oconee County Sheriff Earl Holcombe.

Both men have also been charged with one count each of housebreaking, larceny and possession of stolen goods in Oconee County.

The brothers were arrested when Oconee County sheriff's deputies and Westminster police raided a home Friday. The pair were also accused of staging burglaries in Jackson and Macon counties in North Carolina.

About 10 officers from the sheriff's office and the Westminster Police Department raided the Williams' home and found "virtually every item in the house was stolen," Holcombe said.

The sheriff said the brothers were arrested and "four truckloads" of property were hauled away from the home.

The brothers also face one count each of breaking and entering and larceny in Macon County and one count each of breaking and entering and larceny in Jackson County, according to North Carolina authorities.

Holcombe said the task of identifying property discovered at the home resulted in a 10-page property list completed Saturday evening.

The sheriff estimated that the brothers "have been operating about a month."

Planning-Zoning Meet Tonight

RADIO GUESTS

City Manager Ed Wyatt said that guests this week on the city's radio program, "City Hall Notes," will be Henry Hostetler of the Recreation and Parks Department, and Meredith Foltz of Sheppard Memorial Library.

Hostetler will discuss the city's tennis program and Ms. Foltz will talk on the Quiz Bowl. The program is aired each Tuesday and Thursday at 6:30 p.m. on WOOW Radio.

RAIN VICTIMS

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — Eleven teenagers were killed when a house, used as a religious school, collapsed because of heavy rains, police said today.

Arrest Man On Burglary Count

Greenville police arrested John Joseph Burger, 19, of 400A-2 Verdant St. Monday night on first-degree burglary charges following an incident at 204 N. Elm St.

Chief Glenn Cannon said a man allegedly forced his way into the Elm Street dwelling about 10:49 p.m. The occupant, Pattie Malone, ran out the back door as the man entered the front door and called police from a neighbor's house.

Officers found Burger sitting in a chair in the dining room of the home when they arrived, Cannon said.

Two Collisions Here Monday

An estimated $3,000 property damage resulted from two traffic collisions investigated by Greenville police Monday.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from a 4:30 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Beasley Drive and Arlington Boulevard.

They said cars driven by Earl Hampton Crumpler Jr. of Goldsboro and Joseph Thomas Thompson of 105 Ripley Drive collided, causing $1,200 damage to the Crumpler car and $500 to the Thompson vehicle.

Cars driven by Ruby McArthur Cannon of 315 Queen Anne's Road and Frank Trotta of 200 Granville Drive collided about 4:40 p.m. on the Pitt Plaza Shopping Center lot, causing $1,000 damage to the Cannon car and $300 damage to the Trotta auto.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stocks were broadly lower in heavy trading today on renewed interest-rate fears, although prices steadied by midday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial issues was down 9.99 points to 823.82 after two hours of trading. It had slumped more than 13 points in the first half hour.

The transportation and utility measures also were lower.

Losers led gainers 5 to 1 on the New York Stock Exchange, with more than 1,000 issues giving ground.

Big Board volume totaled 21.88 million shares at noon EST, against 18.66 million at that hour in pre-holiday trading Friday.

The NYSE's composite index fell 0.77 to 65.32.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off 3.82 at 271.18.

Concern that interest rates will move higher was renewed by a surprising $2.3 billion surge in the basic money supply reported last Friday at a time when many analysts hoped to see a decline.

The Federal Reserve wants to slow money growth to fight inflation, so money's recent steep growth could force the central bank to further tighten credit conditions despite the recession, sending rates higher, many analysts believe.

When rates rise, they not only endanger corporate earnings but also send up yields of bonds and other financial instruments, putting stocks at a competitive disadvantage.

The NYSE's 15 most-active stocks all were lower, including Eastman Kodak 1 to 68 3/4, Halliburton 1 1/4 to 40 3/4, General Motors 1/2 to 35 1/2 and Superior Oil 1/2 to 29 3/4.

Among the few gainers were Del Webb 1/4 to 5 1/4 and Eastern Airlines 1/4 to 5 1/4.

Defending U.S. ECU Struggle Rightist Links Is Discussed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States, in its efforts to defend freedom and democracy, must at times ally itself "with some governments that don't share those values," says Jeane J. Kirkpatrick, U.S. ambassador to the United Nations.

"Sometimes we are going to have to support and associate with governments that do not meet our standards," she told about 225 leaders of the American Legion on Monday.

The comments were in response to a Legion member who asked whether the United States is getting into "a losing posture" in backing corrupt regimes in Latin America as it did in South Vietnam.

"The truth is that most of the governments of the world are by our standards bad governments...corrupt, inefficient," Mrs. Kirkpatrick said.

But it is sometimes necessary "to make common cause with some governments that don't share" the values held by the United States, she said.

The former college professor appointed to the U.N. post last year by President Reagan repeated sharp criticisms she has made in the past of the organization.

Some U.N. agencies, such as the refugee commission, the World Health Organization and the meteorological service, do "very positive things which we would all be happy to contribute to," she said.

But she added, "If we look at what happens in New York out in the Security Council and in the General Assembly, then I guess I believe it is a very dismal show. And what is worse, its effect, I think, is almost precisely the opposite of the intentions of the founders of the United Nations...above all to assist in conflict resolution."

"What we find instead is that conflicts, rather than being resolved there are in fact polarized, extended and exacerbated. They are much harder to solve rather than easier to solve, generally speaking," she said.

In a speech to the American Legion's Foreign Relations and National Security Commissions, Mrs. Kirkpatrick sharply criticized the Sandinista regime in Nicaragua and defended U.S. support of right-wing regimes.

"From the perspective of the United States, the most significant difference between the dictatorship (in Nicaragua) of Anastasio Somoza and the dictatorship of the Sandinistas is that one was friendly toward the United States and one has a line in its national anthem that we, the United States, are the enemies of mankind."

She said the left-wing Sandinista government since overthrowing Somoza in July 1979 has stifled freedom and made "a great many moves" to join "the global Soviet military machine."

She also said she believes the government in El Salvador is "doing the best it can" to protect human rights.

"I am trying to come out of my hole. Then they (the jury) put a padlock on it and a sign that says 'Do not open for 99 years.'"

Martin, who said he never has physically hurt anyone in the crimes he has committed, said such a conviction normally means a one-year sentence in the county jail.

Phillips said the recommendation for such a long prison term might be attributed to the fact that nine of the 12 jurors were women.

"I really don't know, but maybe the sentence wouldn't have been so harsh if more men had been on the jury since it involved a crime against a woman," Phillips said. "They just wanted to get him off the streets."

By comparison, the judge cited two recent murder cases in the county that resulted in recommended sentences of about 50 years each.

The prosecutor and the judge said Martin's defense, technically based on insanity, brought out Martin's 11 former convictions on burglary charges and indecent exposure complaints.

Jury Recommends 99-Year Sentence

DURANT, Okla. (AP) — A 44-year-old man convicted of indecent exposure says he is having a tough time understanding why a jury recommended that he serve a 99-year sentence.

Associate District Judge John Phillips, who described the sentence as harsh, said formal sentencing will be March 8 for Jackson Monroe Martin, 44, of Durant.

Martin was charged after a Durant woman complained she saw a man expose himself in her front yard Sept. 23.

In a telephone interview Monday from the Bryan County Jail, Martin said he has "a messed-up mind" but ECU historian Dr. Mary Jo Bratton told those attending the opening session of the East Carolina University and Phi Kappa Phi symposium this morning that ECU has struggled with what she termed "opposition from the Piedmont, particularly the triangle area" from the university's beginning.

"This conflict has been a part of our history," noted Dr. Bratton. She cited the early debate over whether the state should build a normal school.

Opponents of the plan, noted the historian, said a normal school in the east would be in competition with the "great normal school in Greensboro."

"Their fear" said Bratton, "is having to cut the pie into smaller pieces."

The symposium, entitled "ECU: A Past to Build Upon — A Promise To Fulfill," began with an address by Dr. John Howell, interim chancellor, who praised Phi Kappa Phi for its efforts in sponsoring the event.

"I think it is exciting that we can see a demonstration of how a university that is very diverse can come together on one topic and deal with it from various points of view," he said.

The symposium is the seventh annual one and is part of the university's 75th anniversary celebration.

Tonight's session begins at 8 p.m. in Mendenhall Student Center and features Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, chancellor emeritus. His topic will be "ECU: Past, Present and Future."

Wednesday's session begins at 9 a.m. in room 101 of the Nursing Building. The public is invited.

Forty-six county finance officers and finance office employees from 20 eastern North Carolina counties attended a two-day workshop here last week on accounting and fiscal control, sponsored by the North Carolina County Finance Officers' Association in cooperation with the Local Government Commission and the Institute of Government.

The course covered such topics as the statutory requirements of the state fiscal control act, purchasing, accounting systems and procedures, managing cash flow and investments, internal control, computer technology and its applications in county finance, and general accounting principles for counties.

Pitt County Finance Officer Margaret Roberts and Pitt's data processing director, Gene Windham, taught the purchasing and computer sections of the course, while certified public accountant Lloyd Moody, with offices in Greenville and Kinston, spoke on internal control and was the banquet speaker Thursday.

Other instructors for the course included Wallace Harding and Millie Riddle of the Local Government Commission, and Jack Vogt, assistant director of the Institute of Government.

Pirates Explode Past Eastern Illinois

By WOODY PEELE
 Reflector Sports Editor
 Charles Green led a 20-point explosion by the East Carolina Pirates last night to spark the Bucs to a 78-54 victory over Eastern Illinois.

Trailing by one point, 44-43, East Carolina put up 20 unanswered points over a seven-minute period, and ended up by outscoring the Panthers, 35-10, over the final 13½ minutes of the game.

The string was keyed by a technical foul — only the third against Coach Dave Odom in his three-year tenure — that sent Eastern into the lead for the last time. With 13:31 left,

Jim Williams knocked in the two technicals for the Panther lead.

Then, with 13:05 showing, Al Mack canned two free throws to put the Pirates back up, and the race was on. Charles Watkins slammed through a dunk off a fast break, Green was giving a basket on goaltending, Tony Byles followed with two layups, and EISU called a time-out to try and stop it.

It all worked perfectly for Odom.

"You may remember that in the last couple of losses, to Richmond and Old Dominion, we had a nine-point lead and squandered it away (and lost). So I planned to call a time-out if we got the lead out to nine and just point this out to them," Odom said.

Ironically, Eastern Illinois called the time out with ECU leading, 53-44 — nine points.

"We switched defenses, going from a straight man to a combination. That kept them off balance. I had said before that when you're eight or nine points up, the defense needs to do things to create offense. Tonight we did that."

And from there, the Pirates knocked in ten more points before Eastern finally broke the ice. Green hit six of those points, while Mark McLaurin and Herb Gilchrist accounted for two each. By then, the Pirates were in full command, 63-44, with 6:06 left in the contest.

"I'm very happy with the win," Odom said. "It feels much better to be in double digits wins." The victory brought the Pirates to 10-11 in the year, while Eastern falls to 10-13.

"Tonight's performance was spotty at best early. And that was more the fault of the defense than the offense. They (EIU) run their patterns hard, and we were prepared for them. But we were not prepared for the crispness they had. They lulled us to sleep with their back doors, but I think that we adjusted well at the half to cut them off."

During the first half, the game was a nip-and-tuck affair. East Carolina moved out as much as an eight-point lead, 16-8, but Eastern fought back and took as much as a four-point lead late in the half, 29-25 and 31-27. But a 15-footer by Peartree, followed by a jumper by Green off a Peartree assist tied it up. Then, Green hit a dunk and Watkins canned a shot with three seconds left for a 35-31 halftime lead for the Pirates.

"I've never seen a team go as cold as they did for so long," Odom said of the long drought by the Panthers, who had fought back to lead three times during the first six and a half minutes of the game — never by more than one point, however.

"I think our combination defense unnerved them," Odom said of the second half strategy. "They called a time out and we shifted back to straight man. I think it kept them off balance."

In the early minutes of the first half, however, neither team seemed to be able to buy a basket as East Carolina didn't score for the first three and a half minutes. During that time, Eastern Illinois scored two baskets and a free throw, and the first basket didn't come until nearly three minutes had gone by.

It combined to give the Panthers a 36-35 lead before Green finally broke the ice again for the Pirates. R. v. Robinson, who scored 14 first half points, hit — his only points of the second half — to return the lead to Eastern, 38-37.

East Carolina went back up by three, but Eastern came back to take the lead one last time on the two technical fouls.

After that, it was a slaughter.

The lead reached as much as 28 points, 78-50, before it was over.

"I was glad to see our guys who had played in the junior varsity game come in and play well," Odom said of the reserves. "Most of them really played better than they did in the preliminary."

The Pirates ended up hitting 54.1 percent of their shots, as compared to an icy 34.3 percent (28.1% in the second half) for Eastern Illinois. East Carolina dominated the boards, 47-38, led by Thom Brown's nine, six of them in the second half to key several of the fast breaks during the 20-point spree. Green added eight rebounds. Leigh Hankins led EIU's rebounding with 10, five in each half.

Green, hitting on 10 of 14 shots from the floor, had 20 points — his second straight game of 20 or more — to lead the Pirates, while Peartree added 11. Eastern Illinois was led by Robinson with 16, while Hankins had 12.

North Pitt Tests Out Defenses As Panthers Romp Past Aycock

By RICK SCOPPE
 Reflector Sports Writer
 FARMVILLE — Charles B. Aycock proved both a willing and harmless specimen for an 32-minute experiment by North Pitt coach Cobbie Deans in the opening round of the Eastern Carolina Conference tournament.

With Deans directing and evaluating, North Pitt employed nearly every defense in its arsenal. Some worked well; some did not. The ones that did Deans shelved for later use.

The ones that did not, however, Deans made his team continue to run, hoping to in a game situation iron out the kinks in preparation for not only the rest of the ECC tournament but the district playoffs.

All of which helps explain why the second-seeded Panthers did not exactly run away with the seventh-seeded Falcons, but instead managed to come away with a 61-46 victory Monday night.

North Pitt, now 16-7, will meet the winner of tonight's Ayden-Grifton-Southern Nash game Thursday night (6:30) in the tournament semifinals. C.B. Aycock ends its season at 5-18.

"I thought Aycock handled us pretty well. They made a good run at us, but I never felt like they were in control. I knew I could put the press back on if I had to and it would work."

While Deans was experimenting on defense, it was an old hand — forward Greg Hines — that took charge on offense. Hines pumped in 25 points to lead all scorers. Hines had 10 field goals and hit five of six from the foul line. He also pulled down five rebounds.

Muscular Dennis Bradley added 13 points and grabbed off five rebounds. North Pitt outrebounded the Falcons, 28-21. Toby Crandol led all rebounders with 11. He also scored nine points.

C.B. Aycock was led in scoring by Anthony Green and Bobby Artis, both of whom had 13 points. Greene also had eight rebounds and Artis six.

The Falcons hit just 18 of 43 shots (41.9%) from the floor while the Panthers did even worse, connecting on 22 of 53 (41.5%) — another factor in keeping the game from becoming a blowout.

The game began with North Pitt scoring on its first six possessions to open up an 11-2 lead. However, after a layup by Hines made it 13-4, with 4:10 left, the Panthers did not score again.

Aycock, which had six turnovers in the period, did little better, managing just four points to close to 13-8 as the quarter ended. The five-point deficit was as close as the Falcons would get.

Forcing the Falcons into three turnovers in their first five possessions of the second period, North Pitt stretched its lead to 21-12 with 5:09 left in the half. Hines had six points during the run.

The bulge grew to 27-14 — the biggest lead for the Panthers in the first half — on a jumper by Crandol and the Panthers led at the half, 27-15.

Four straight turnovers midway through the third period by Aycock helped the Panthers expand their lead to 18 (39-21). The quarter ended with the Panthers up, 43-29.

With Deans substituting freely in the final eight minutes, the Falcons closed to within nine (51-42) on a jumper by Steve Hicks, but that was as close as they could get.

Farmville C. Outlasts Cougars To Capture 48-46 Tourney Win

By RICK SCOPPE
 Reflector Sports Writer
 FARMVILLE — Farmville Central is no stranger to close ECC games. During the regular season, eight of Farmville's 12 conference games were decided in the last minute.

The Jaguars lost six of those games. Only twice was Farmville able to win an Eastern Carolina Conference game in the final 60 seconds.

Make that three wins now after the Jaguars rallied from three points down in the final period to edge Southwest Edgecombe, 48-46, Monday night in the first round of the ECC tournament.

Farmville, now 10-13, will face top-seeded Greene Central Wednesday night in the tournament semifinals. The Jaguars, who finished fifth in the ECC with a 4-8 record, must defeat the Rams and hope Southern Nash beats Ayden-Grifton tonight to land a district berth.

"This was a good one," Farmville Central coach Mike Terrell said as his players handed him their uniforms to pile in a laundry cart. "I thought we played a good game both offensively and defensively."

"We had seven boys contribute tonight and they all played well offensively and defensively."

Farmville never trailed in the first half and led by as many as eight before taking a 24-19 lead at the half. The Jaguars maintained their lead the first six minutes of the third period and led, 36-29, when suddenly the Cougars scored eight straight points to go up, 37-36, as the period ended.

Hilton Cobb, who hit two buckets to spark the eight-point surge, canned a jumper from the left corner as the fourth period began to send the Cougars up, 39-36 — SW Edgecombe's biggest lead of the game.

Farmville forward Melvin Sutton took a looping pass inside from Gary Hobgood and muscled inside for a bucket to cut the deficit to 39-38. Then, after SWE's Darryl Bess missed the front end of a one-and-one, Sutton battled inside for the go-ahead bucket with 3:30 left.

Tony Barnes jumper at the foul line after the second of two straight SWE turnovers and a bucket by center Andrew Edwards on a pass inside from Bobby Carraway extended the Jaguar lead to 44-39 with 2:21 to go.

SWE's LeMonte Johnson hit one free throw and Bess grabbed the rebound on the miss and put it in and suddenly the Cougars were within two, 44-42, with 1:09 remaining.

The Jaguars then ran 39 seconds off the clock in their stall before Carraway hit a wide-open Tony Hargrove underneath the basket for an easy layup to give Farmville a 46-42 lead.

Cobb swished a jumper from the right corner to cut the gap back to two with 22 seconds left, but Edwards worked free for a layup on a pass from Sutton to send the Jaguars up, 48-44, with 10 seconds left to seal the win.

"One critical point in the game was when they went up by three," Terrell said. "We had a drought there in the fourth quarter, but we kept our poise. We could very well have sunk right there, but we played good instinctive basketball and won it."

Sutton led the Jaguars in scoring with 14 points and grabbed six rebounds. Edwards added 12 points and a game-high 12 rebounds to help Farmville rebound the Cougars, 26-21.

Cobb and Bess both scored 15 points to lead Southwest. Johnson led the Cougars off the boards with nine rebounds.

The Jaguars canned 23 of 50 (46%) shots from the floor while the Cougars connected on 17 of 50 (34%). Southwest relied almost exclusively on its outside shooting and had just two buckets inside of five feet, both coming on the fast break.

The game started with Hobgood hitting a pair of free throws and a jumper to give Farmville an 8-0 lead.

Johnson's three-point play pulled the Cougars within two late in the period, but Farmville led at the end of the quarter, 12-8.

Despite having Edward on the bench the entire second quarter with two fouls, the Jaguars opened up an 18-10 lead in the first two minutes of the second quarter.

The two teams played even from there until Bess hit five points in the final 2½ minutes to pull the Cougars within five (24-19) at the half.

With Edwards working inside for three buckets and Sutton for two, the Jaguars stretched their lead to 36-29, with 2:10 to go. Farmville did not score again in the period as the Cougars ran off an 8-0 streak to take their first lead of the game, 37-36, going into the final quarter.

"We worked on a lot of things tonight," Deans said afterwards. "We looked good in some of them and not so good in some. We were trying to get them to play hard but not run up the score."

"I think we were pretty much in control, but we really weren't trying to put them away," Deans said. "We had some things we wanted to work on — especially on defense."

Deans was particularly pleased with his team's man-to-man defense and his full-court zone press. Both helped North Pitt force the Falcons into 26 turnovers and give the Panthers numerous fast break opportunities.

"We looked real good in our zone press and I thought our man looked good," Deans said. "That's why I didn't use them longer. I knew we looked good in both and I felt we needed to try some other (defenses)."

Virginia Struggles Post Clemson, 56-52

By The Associated Press
Push came to shove for top-ranked Virginia in more ways than one, and it wasn't until Othell Wilson shoved in four points in the final 1:19 that the Cavaliers pushed their way to victory.

Wilson's jumper in the lane and two free throws lifted coach Terry Holland's club to a 56-52 Atlantic Coast Conference basketball come-from-behind verdict over Georgia Tech in Atlanta Monday night.

In the only other game involving an ACC team, Vincent Hamilton came up with 20 points and six assists as homesteading Clemson handled Furman 79-62 in a non-conference game.

Georgia Tech's Brooke Steppe hit 10 of 11 field goal attempts and scored 20 of his game-high 26 points to give the underdog Yellow Jackets a 33-22 halftime lead.

"Brooke Steppe played a fantastic game," Tech coach

Bobby Cremins said afterward. "I hope the pro scouts were here. Brooke should be a first-round pick."

Another pro prospect, 7-foot-4 Ralph Sampson, helped spark a 12-4 Virginia run to tie it at 42:29 remaining and the Cavaliers built its lead to 49-46. George Thomas' layup put Tech ahead 50-49 with 2:01 left.

After Thomas and Steve Neal missed the front end of a bonus free throw opportunities, Wilson put Virginia ahead to stay with 2 of his team-high 15 points.

It was a roughly played battle with Sampson and Tech's Lee Goza constantly pushing and shoving each other.

Once, following a Jim Miller layup for Virginia, Goza, Sampson and Steppe came out of a pileup in a shoving match that brought both coaches on the floor to pull their players away.

Later, Sampson fouled Goza on a rebound and Sampson plunged to the floor, grabbing his eye and lay there for a minute or so before being removed. Goza turned, smiled and ran back down the floor.

"I played rough," Goza said. "He didn't seem to like it, but I hope he gets used to it. He's a great player, he deserves to be player of the year."

Sampson, who fouled out after playing only 29 minutes, scoring 14 points and grabbing only 4 rebounds, refused to comment.

"I can say without question they don't like each other, but it's both of them," Steppe said of Goza and Sampson. "It's just not one of them out there. I think if the officials had whistled some fouls early and called some technicals, they might have got control of it."

Both coaches agreed the clubs had done a lot of things right.

"The first half Georgia Tech really came at us and played excellent basketball," Holland said. "The second half, regardless of what the final score might have been, I was very proud of our kids."

"Sampson came through when he had to," said Tech coach Bobby Cremins. "Virginia played a great game, we played an exceptional game."

Virginia's 13th consecutive victory raised its record to 25-1, 10-1 in the ACC, and Tech fell to 8-14 overall and 2-10 in the conference.

Clemson, which lost a two-point decision to Virginia two days earlier, improved its record to 12-10 while Furman dropped to 8-14.

Clemson struggled to a 31-24 halftime lead, but used a tight zone to gain second-half breathing room.

Clemson coach Bill Foster said his team "didn't pass sharply or shoot well."

"But there was nothing in the world we needed more than a win," Foster said. "We've gone through eight or nine games in a row where the team just kept reaching down and playing, reaching down and playing."

The adrenalin had to run out sometime.

Bill Ross had 11 points and Horace Wyatt 10 for the Tigers, while guard Mel Daniel led the Paladins with 20 points.

Roanoke Fives Advance

WILLIAMSTON — The Roanoke girls and boys' basketball teams opened play in the Northeastern Conference tournament Monday evening and both came away with victories.

Ricky Highsmith scored 16 points to spark the top-seeded Redskin boys to a 42-33 win over Williamston while Sylvia Parker poured in 17 points to lead the girls to a 41-27 win over Roanoke Rapids.

Roanoke's boys, now 18-3, will play the winner of Wednesday night's Edenton vs. Plymouth battle Thursday night in the conference semifinals. Williamston ends the season at 3-17.

The Lady Redskins, now 17-4, will play the winner of tonight's Williamston vs. Washington game Friday for the right to advance to Saturday night's finals. Roanoke Rapids ends the year at 4-15.

In the boys' game, Roanoke led, 10-6, at the end of the first period and was up, 20-15, at the half. The Redskins continued to inch its lead up in the second half, but never was able to take total command.

Roanoke outscored the Tigers, 10-8, in the third period and 12-10 in the final quarter for its nine-point win.

Highsmith, who hit seven field goals and two of three from the foul line, was the only player on either team in double figures.

In the girls' game, Roanoke raced to a 15-4 lead at the end of the first eight minutes and never looked back. The Lady Redskins led at the half, 19-8, and coasted home in the second half for the win.

Parker, who canned five field goals and seven of 10 free throws, was the only player on either team in double figures.

In the other game last night, top-seeded Plymouth gained a victory over number eight Ahsokie. The score was unavailable.

Byles May Have Surgery

East Carolina senior point guard Tony Byles was to undergo examination of his right hand today and may have to undergo surgery — thus missing the last part of his final year with the Pirates.

Byles, who already missed five games due to a broken left wrist, returned to action several games back and last night played for the first time without a strong wrapping on the wrist.

However, in Saturday night's game against UNC-Wilmington, Byles apparently tore ligaments in his right hand. A preliminary check okayed his participation in last night's game, but he was to undergo further tests and x-rays today.

After those, it will be decided whether he can play the rest of the season without further damage to the area — or whether surgery should be done immediately.

"Whatever the decision, it will be that of Sports Medicine, Dr. (James) Bowman (team physician) and Tony," Coach Dave Odum said. "There will be no pressure from me either way. We want whatever is best for Tony."

Byles is the third-leading scorer on the team, but has not started since leaving the starting lineup with his broken wrist.

Baby Pirates Top Louisburg

East Carolina's junior varsity basketball team had little trouble in rolling to a 75-61 victory over Louisburg Junior College last night. It was the second victory in a row for the Baby Bucs over the Hurricanes.

Bill McNair led the Pirates to the victory pouring through 25 points on nine of 18 field goals and seven of 15 free throw attempts. He also pulled down 11 rebounds.

The rebounding honors, however, went to Jeff Best, who jerked down 17, while added 15 points to the scoring. David Reicheneker, who had seven rebounds, and Mike Fox each scored 12 points for Pirates.

Louisburg was led by Marcus Keith, who scored 19 points, while James Cooke added 12.

East Carolina shot only 41.8 percent for the evening, as it led most of the way, holding a 29-25 halftime lead. Louisburg, however made just 38.3 percent of its shots. The Hurricanes were also outrebounded, 48-35.

In the girls' contest, Havelock gained a 61-57 upset victory. West Craven, now 6-14, was seeded fourth, while Havelock, now 5-14, was seeded fifth.

Chapel Hill Is Tops In 4-A's

By The Associated Press
Chapel Hill is becoming known as more than a college basketball town.

The home of the University of North Carolina also is the center of 4A high school basketball in the state this week, as Chapel Hill High's boys and girls teams top their respective divisions of the Associated Press high school poll.

The boys were 4A leaders last week, and the Tiger girls moved atop their division this week after last week's pacesetter, Fayetteville Terry Sanford, lost.

The Chapel Hill boys received 11 of 15 first-place votes and 142 of a possible 150 points from a statewide panel of sportswriters. Second is Wilmington New Hanover, with 131 points. Each team is unbeaten.

The Chapel Hill girls have a bigger lead, with nine first-place votes and 137 points to second-ranked Cary's two top votes and 116 points. Terry Sanford fell to third place.

The other spotlight race is among the 2A-1A boys, where West Montgomery has regained the lead from Bandys. West Montgomery led two weeks ago, fell two points behind Bandys last week, but has a two-point edge again this week. Each team is unbeaten.

The other division leaders are the same as last week: Southern Durham (3A boys), Southwest Edgecombe (3A girls) and Sampson Union (2A-1A girls).

Here is how a statewide panel of sportswriters rates North Carolina high school basketball teams this week for The Associated Press. First-place votes are in parentheses, followed by records and point totals. Points are assigned on a basis of 10 for a first-place vote, then nine for second, eight for third, etc.

Greene Central Girls Slip By North Pitt

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer
FARMVILLE — North Pitt's Pant-HERS saved one of their worst efforts of the season for when most it counted — the opening round of the Eastern Carolina Conference tournament.

The Pant-HERS committed 30 turnovers and were outplayed on both ends of the court by Greene Central, but it was not until Sylvia Swinson canned a jumper with just under three minutes remaining that the Lady Rams took the lead for good.

From there, Swinson hit three free throws in the final 35 seconds to clinch the 31-27 win over North Pitt Tuesday night and advance to the semifinals of the ECC tournament.

The Lady Rams, now 14-9, will face unbeaten and defending state champion Southwest Edgecombe Wednesday night (6:30).

"We just got beat every way a team can get beat," North Pitt coach Randy Avery said. "I felt we were bigger than they were, but we even got beat physically."

What makes the loss all the more disheartening for the Pant-HERS is the fact the Lady Rams' top player, Leatha Taylor, did not play, having been ruled academically ineligible this semester.

Without Taylor, the Lady Rams were forced to rely heavily on Swinson and she came through, scoring 20 points on seven field goals and six of 11 at the free throw line.

"Sometimes something like that (losing Taylor) turns a team around," Avery said. "I think that's what happened. I think losing her makes 'em more balanced."

Perhaps, but on this night at least it was Swinson who did most of scoring for the Lady Rams — especially near the end.

Greene Central, which never led during the first three quarters, trailed at the end of the third period, 23-21, but used a free throw and a field goal by Swinson to take a 24-23 lead with 6½ minutes remaining.

After the lead changed hands twice over the next two minutes, the Lady Rams went ahead for good when Swinson canned a jumper from the left corner to give Greene Central a 28-27 lead with 2:45 left.

Twice in the next minute the Pant-HERS had chances to regain the lead, but Gladys Roberson and Joycelene Brown both missed front ends of one-and-ones. Wanda Atkinson also missed a one-and-one opportunity during that stretch that could have stretched the lead to three.

Finally, Swinson swished two free throws to put the Lady Rams up, 30-27, with 35 seconds left. After a Pant-HER miss, Swinson was fouled again. This time she hit one of two from the line for a 31-27 lead with 20 seconds left to seal the victory.

Swinson was the only Lady Ram in double figures. Freshman center Sudi Sharpe led North Pitt with 10 points despite having eight stitches in her upper lip from an injury she suffered last week.

The game got off to a slow start. North Pitt led after the first period, 8-5. Sharpe had six points in the period. The Pant-HERS stretched their lead to 12-7 early in the second period taking 13-10 lead into the dressing room at the half.

Greene Central cut the gap to one early in the third quarter, but North Pitt used two buckets by Sharpe and a driving layup by Linda Harrell to go up, 21-15, with 3:50 left.

Two jumpers by Swinson sandwiched around a bucket by Sharon Suggs rallied the Lady Rams to within two once more, 23-21, at the end of the period, a rally that carried over into the final quarter.

The loss drops the Pant-HERS to 10-11 and severely dampens their chances of gaining a district playoff berth. North Pitt needs Southern

Chilly Leonard Torrid In Knockout Win

RENO, NV. (AP) — Sugar Ray Leonard said he was cold in the first round against Bruce Finch after the fight was delayed 10 minutes due to television technical problems.

But once Leonard warmed up, he was torrid, knocking down the outclassed Finch three times before the fight was stopped at 1:50 of the third round.

"I came out a little cold, it took me about a round or two to warm up," said Leonard after he retained the undisputed welterweight boxing championship of the world. "I warmed up for 20 minutes before the fight, but then I had to settle down when it was delayed."

Leonard, in his first fight since winning the combined title last September against Thomas Hearns, lost the first round of Monday's bout on the cards of the three judges.

But he took command midway through the second round when he unleashed three savage hooks to the body followed by a right that sent Finch reeling.

Following Finch across the ring, Leonard threw a right that put Finch down for the first time, but the challenger struggled to his feet. Another flurry of punches put Finch down for the second time, but he managed to get to his feet and last the final few seconds of the round.

Finch came out swinging in the third round and landed perhaps his best punch of the brief fight, a right to the champion's head. But Leonard hit Finch with a flurry of punches followed by a left hook that buckled the challenger's knees. Two left-right combinations later, Finch was on the canvas for the third and final time of the night.

"Once I hurt an opponent the rest is history," Leonard said. "When he had me in the corner in the second round, he made me realize he was serious. I had to get serious and take over."

Leonard said referee Mills Lane had no choice but to stop the bout after the third knockdown, adding he thought Lane should have stopped it after Finch went down for the second time in the second round.

But Lane said Finch was still in control of his senses until the third knockdown.

"He was able to take a punch without his head flying around," said Lane. "His eyes were clear. He deserved a chance to go on."

Leonard, who received a minimum of $1 million for the fight against the World Boxing Council's fourth-ranked contender, said his next title defense probably will be against Roger Stafford, ranked third by the WBC.

Leonard's attorney, Mike Trainer, said the fight probably would take place in May or June, but first Stafford has to beat David Madrid on March 2 in Atlantic City.

The 25-year-old champion, who previously has said he would eventually like to meet middleweight champion

Marvin Hagler, said he has no plans now to move out of the welterweight division.

"I'll stay a welterweight," he said. "I feel very strong and effective in this weight category."

A tearful Finch said after the fight he had planned to go inside against Leonard and keep the pressure on throughout the scheduled 15-round bout.

"My plan was to stay as close as possible to Sugar Ray," he said. "I didn't follow up on him in the corner. That was my big mistake. I guess I learn from my mistakes."

Finch, 145½, received about $100,000 for the fight, which attracted a sellout crowd to Reno's 6,500-seat Centennial Coliseum. The fight was the first title bout in Reno since Jack Johnson stopped Jim Jeffries in a heavyweight bout in 1910.

Leonard, 146, said he noticed early in the fight that Finch was dropping his hands and planned his attack to take full advantage of the situation.

"I knew he was vulnerable to the left hook and I set him up for it," he said. "He was dropping his hands and leaving himself open."

Leonard said Finch never hurt him, even when he took several shots while on the ropes early in the second round.

"He didn't sting me at all, but I felt his punches. They were not really powerful shots, but he makes you feel them. You know he's there."

The fight was televised live by Home Box Office.

Cavs, Tar Heels Still Atop Poll

By The Associated Press

Virginia retained the No. 1 position in The Associated Press college basketball poll and Bobby Knight's Indiana Hoosiers took over the No. 20 slot in what could shape up as a second straight late season run toward the national title.

Virginia, which beat North Carolina State and Clemson by a total of just five points last week, collected 57-of-60 first-place votes. The Cavaliers, 25-1 following Monday's night win over Georgia Tech, also received 1,197 of a possible 1,200 points from the nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters, who voted before Monday's games.

North Carolina, DePaul and Missouri once again held down the Nos. 2, 4 and 5 positions, respectively. Oregon State and Tulsa each inched up a slot, occupying the fifth and sixth positions, while Iowa, blasted by Indiana last Saturday, dropped two notches to No. 7 and was followed by Minnesota, West Virginia and Kentucky.

But the Top 20 news was Indiana, which is making its first appearance in the poll in six weeks. The Hoosiers stunned the college basketball world last season losing nine games during the regular season before putting it all together to win the national title.

Knight, one of the game's most controversial coaches, isn't making any predictions about this season.

"We're in the throes of development," Knight said last week. "If you remember last year at the Final Four, that team was in the throes of development. You always hope, no matter how well your team is playing, that it can become better."

Despite a 14-7 record this season, the Hoosiers appear ready to roll following their recent victories over Minnesota and Iowa.

"We haven't been consistent game, after game, after game," Knight said. "But by and large, we have played more good basketball than bad."

North Carolina, impressive in beating highly-regarded Georgia Sunday, received one first-place vote and 1,115 points in holding down the No. 2 position. Ray Meyer's DePaul Blue Demons were tabbed No. 1 on the other two ballots and collected 1,075 points.

Once beaten Missouri got 1,031 points, Oregon State, winners over California and Oregon last week, picked up 920 points, while Tulsa, upset by Drake Monday night after the poll was counted, got 846.

Seventh-ranked Iowa had 747 points — 13 more than Big Ten rival Minnesota. West Virginia, currently riding a 20-game winning streak, had 661 points — 22 more than No. 10 Kentucky.

Idaho headed the Second 10 and was followed by Memphis State, Georgetown, Wake Forest, San Francisco State, San Francisco, Arkansas, Kansas State, Alabama and Indiana.

Last week, the Second 10 was West Virginia, Kentucky, Idaho, Memphis State, Kansas State, Wake Forest, San Francisco, Fresno State, Washington and Georgetown.

Washington, ranked 19th when surprised by California last week, fell from the Top 20. Arkansas and Alabama, ranked eighth and 10th last week, both tumbled nine positions after dropping two games apiece.

Terps Confident

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — Coach Lefty Driesell feels his Maryland basketball team is a lot more confident following a three-point loss to second-ranked North Carolina, but it may not provide an edge for Wednesday night's game at Clemson.

Less than 48 hours after the Tar Heels a scare, Clemson battled top-rated Virginia down the wire Saturday before losing a two-point on a shot at the buzzer.

"If North Carolina is No. 2, then we're not that far behind," Driesell mused at his weekly news conference Monday. "But I'm sure Clemson feels the same way after playing the No. 1 team that close. We're both good teams."

The latest effort by the Terps, who are only 4-6 in Atlantic Coast Conference play, came without the services of senior center Charles Pittman, the team's second-leading scorer and rebounder who is out with a broken bone in his left foot.

"Pittman is to go back to the doctor on Friday for a walking cast," Driesell said. "I hope he can get back soon and do situps and shoot around. He's got to stay in shape if he's going to play again."

A screw was inserted into Pittman's fifth metatarsal bone to facilitate healing, and he possibly could be ready for the Atlantic Coast Conference Tournament at Greensboro, N.C., March 5-7.

Driesell said it was too early to worry about the ACC playoffs, but then he went one step beyond and talked about a possible bid to the NCAA tournament.

If the Terps can whip Clemson and Wake Forest on the road this week, Driesell said, giving them two victories over each ACC rival, "we should have an NCAA bid almost sewed up."

"This is a big week for us," Driesell said. "I hope we respond and come up with a couple of wins. But the games are on the road and we've beaten both teams at home."

As for Clemson, which lost 62-57 at Maryland, Driesell said, "we've got to control the tempo and get them to play our game. They like to run, so we've got to stop their transition game and be able to go inside. I think that's the way to beat them."

Driesell noted that Clemson Coach Bill Foster, whose team is 3-8 in the ACC, has said the Tigers "are going to ring somebody's bell before the year's over."

Noting that the Terps could be the "bell," Driesell added: "We'll see what we're made of."

To The Editor:

If it is any consolation to Coach Cathy and her fighting Lady Pirates, who fought their hearts out against Old Dominion last Thursday night in Norfolk, I would comment thusly:

It is extremely difficult to come up against a 30-foot team of all-Americans on their home court and with officials who had already made up their minds as to the winners. It's extremely hard to call offensive charging against all-Americans!

We know, Louis Singleton and I drove 300 miles to witness what should have been a win for the Lady Pirates. Stick in there and fight 'em.

A Midas Touch On Golden Pond

An old man faces his wife after being lost in the woods: "You want to know why I came back so fast? I got to the end of our land and couldn't remember where the old town road was... scared me half to death. That's why I came running back here to you... to your pretty face, so I could feel I'm still safe... I'm still me." And she, embracing him, replies: "You're my knight in shining armor, and you're going to get back on that horse, and I'll be right there by you."

This poignant scene reveals the essential theme running through "On Golden Pond." Norman Thayer, Jr. (Henry Fonda), turning 80, is trying to come to terms with the betrayals of his aging body and the approaching end of his life. His wife, Ethel (Katherine Hepburn), tries to help him, while at the same time serving as tortured peacemaker between Norman and their alienated daughter, Chelsea (Jane Fonda). Heartrending, depressing, one might think. Not so.

For "On Golden Pond" is one of those very special films: heartwarming and uplifting, with an enlightening glimpse of truth. Far from descending into pathos and morbidity, it portrays life with all its humanity, humor and valor. It is entertainment with a plus.

It also proves that the whole can be greater than the sum of its parts, for film is a collaborative medium and nowhere is that better illustrated than here. From the stunning, symbolic cinematography by Billy Williams and the haunting music by Dave Grusin to the skillful direction of Mark Rydell and the exceptional performances of a sensitive and revealing script by Ernest Thompson, this film is an extraordinary combination of talents. "On Golden Pond" has already won three Golden Globes and ten nominations for the Academy Awards.

It offers us, at the peak of their respective careers, Katherine Hepburn and Henry Fonda, together with a strong supporting cast. Doug McKean as Billy, the boy who finds personal identity through Norman, is excellent. Dabney Coleman as Chelsea's future husband skillfully brings off a modern day version of "meeting the parents".

Jane Fonda's performance is at times uneven, as if she had not quite decided how Chelsea would behave. The resulting lack of empathy for Chelsea dilutes the impact of the reconciliation scene with her father.

Katherine Hepburn plays his wife—devoted, scolding, encouraging—with an endearing softness. Her Ethel to Fonda's Norman is an equal match in a relationship warm in mutual caring, enriched by the familiar gestures of the long-married. Her characterization is so very real, she—or Ethel—should win an Academy Award.

But by far, this is Henry Fonda's film: the piece de resistance of an illustrious career. As Norman Thayer, he raises curmudgeonry to a high art. Forgetful, frightened, irritable, in Norman—this dying old man—brings to life every scene in which he appears. Determined, it would seem, to live up to the image of the "old poop" Ethel calls him, he challenges, complains, grumps his way through the film, mocking himself and his condition to the delight of the audience. Choosing to read "Treasure Island," he remarks he's read it before. "But my mind is going, so it'll all be new to me." But

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—"The Wall" on CBS tonight is a movie in search of a documentary. The story of a band of Jewish resistors fighting the Nazis in the Warsaw Ghetto in the 1940s is unfailingly authentic in its look but dismally lacking in the dramatic aspects of story line and character relationships.

Filed in Poland in 1980, the sets of "The Wall" are so starkly real that viewers will almost experience the claustrophobia of being locked in.

The mass herding scenes, depicting Jews being rounded up and transported by cattle cars for "resettlement," are moving and painful. In fact, montages of Jews being mowed down by machine guns are interspersed too often, perhaps to compensate for the individual dramatic stories having so little impact.

The battle scenes on cobble streets and in tattered tenements are equally genuine and include World War II tanks, courtesy of the Polish government. But this reality of texture is not enough to capture the full flavor of John Hersey's novel about the 1943 uprising because the soul of that rebellion—its people—doesn't arouse much passion or emotional involvement.

Part of the problem is the movie's obtuse approach to the characters, throwing them together without enough identification to help viewers sort things out.

The common core is that the major characters live in the same building. Tom Conti, Tony Award winner for his role in "Whose Life Is It Anyway?," stars as Dolek Berson, a profiteer who sells black market goods to his fellow Jews, while denying the growing devastation around him.

Berson is intent only on survival, then develops a social conscience when he escapes from the ghetto to see firsthand that Jews supposedly being resettled are going directly to mass incineration camps.

His conversion is one main story line, but some holes in the plot and minimal explanations weaken its focus. For example, it's never clear how he manages to leave and return to the ghetto so easily.

He also has a sick wife, Symka, who is eventually handed over to the Nazis by a Jewish ghetto policeman trying to save his own neck. Berson takes this much too easily in stride. "Love isn't holy; it isn't bread. You don't need it to live," he said.

Lisa Eichhorn (Rachel Apt), the other central character, is a militant in the Jewish underground who recognizes the growing Nazi danger while the elders in the defense league counsel for moderation. She becomes an inspiration to Berson, and eventually his love interest.

In contrast to this dedication is Rachel's father, Mauritz, played by Eli Wallach. A successful jeweler whose business is taken away by the Nazis, he abandons his family by buying forged identification papers and tries to escape.

Ethel knows him for what he is. To young Billy she explains, "He was yelling at life. Like an old lion, he has to remind himself he can still roar."

Norman Thayer will not go gently into that good night, but will stand his own ground, raging and roaring all the way. And as Norman, Henry Fonda brings a Midas touch that is sheer alchemy. His performance should result in his winning that long-denied, long-deserved golden Oscar.

My one regret is the liberal—sometimes gratuitous—use of profanity. It has already earned the film a PG rating, and some viewers will hear only the words and miss what the film has to say. And that's a loss—for "On Golden Pond" is essentially about humanity, grace, love and compassion between and within the generations. Understanding these things can only enlighten the darkness of our own limited views.

"On Golden Pond" is currently playing at the Plitt Theater, with a special admission price for senior citizens with I.D.

Shirley Bassey Has Operation

LOS ANGELES (AP)—British singer Shirley Bassey, best known for her rendition of the theme song to the James Bond movie "Goldfinger," was listed in fair condition after undergoing exploratory surgery last week, hospital officials said.

Miss Bassey, 45, was admitted to Cedars-Sinai Hospital Thursday and underwent surgery a day later, Tess Griffin, a spokeswoman for the hospital, said Monday.

Although Ms. Griffin couldn't say when Miss Bassey would be released from the hospital, she said: "I'm sure it won't be much before the end of the week. She is improving, though."

Hospital officials would not say what kind of exploratory surgery the singer underwent.

A Movie In Search Of A Documentary

Wallach and Rachel Roberts, who has one flimsy scene, are billed as stars, but don't be fooled. They have less airtime than "CBS Newsbreak."

"The Wall" lacks a consolidating context, making the whole much weaker than the sum of its parts. Yet it does have some enduring moments. In one understated scene, Berson comes to the realization that Jews are leaving to be slaughtered, not resettled.

Another powerful scene illustrates how the lust for survival can dehumanize mere mortals. Stefan, the Jewish policeman who needs scalps to save himself from the Nazis, asks his father to die instead of him. When he refuses, Stefan then takes Symka away against her will.

Unfortunately, there aren't enough of these quality scenes, so the story of survival becomes a mere historical footnote, when it should have been a compelling human drama.

N.C. Beach Business Has Early Start

By MARY ANNE RHYNE
Associated Press Writer

The temperatures are in the 70s, the daffodils are blooming and the tourists are sunning on the beaches. That's usually the scene along North Carolina's Outer Banks on Easter weekend. But coastal tourism officials say unusually good weather and successful advertising promotions seem to be bringing the tourists earlier than ever this year.

"I think quite a few people have spring fever because we had a good bit of activity on the beach this weekend," said Melanie Ply, executive vice president of the Nags Head Chamber of Commerce. "For February, business is real good."

"Business overall has been excellent," said Scott Gurley, manager of Bert's Surf Shop at Emerald Isle. "There has been a lot more traffic this year than last year at this time. Everybody's got spring fever."

The weather contributed to the beach business by blowing in warm air and pushing out frigid temperatures. Highs were expected to remain in the mid 50s to upper 60s until the end of this week, when forecasters warn that winter weather may return.

"Don't be fooled by what you see outside," said Dan Salgado of the National Weather Service station in Raleigh. "March can be a rough month. It's unfortunate a lot of times because the plants can start to bloom during this time. And then a good snow comes along."

In Wilmington, Joe Augustine said the flowers were blooming this weekend and the weather was just right for crabbing or walking along the beach.

Augustine, executive vice president of the Greater Wilmington Chamber of Commerce, said conditions were great for Canadian Days, a state promotion that began Monday and continues through March. The promotion is aimed at drawing Canadians to the Tar Heel state.

"Our sister states to the south have been promoting their states as destinations for spring vacations for Canadians for many years," said Charles Heatherly, state director of travel and tourism.

Although it's cool at the North Carolina beaches compared to summer temperatures, Heatherly said the weather seems balmy to Canadians.

"By now he's (the Canadian) got a very bad case of cabin fever and what might seem cold to us is a delightful reprieve for him," he said.

Augustine said only 40 Canadians signed up for golf or sightseeing tours to North Carolina when the promotion began several years ago. That number has swelled to about 1,000 people who are expected to spend an average of eight days and eight nights at the coast this year, he said.

"They come at a time when we're not really cranked up," Augustine said. "It takes up the slack."

Tourists from eight major Canadian cities are recruited by 15 cities in North Carolina. Heatherly said most of the North Carolina cities involved are located along Interstate 95. The major cities — Raleigh, Greensboro, Winston-Salem, Charlotte and Asheville — also are involved.

"This is timed around spring break for secondary schools and colleges. That's the time a lot of Canadian families travel," he said.

Tourist season in the Wilmington area really gets underway with the Azalea Festival, April 15-18 this year. But like other coastal areas, Wilmington is trying to lengthen the tourist season, using promotions like Canadian Days.

"May through September

we're pretty well booked. But to me, the prettiest times in this area are spring and fall," Augustine said. "We have some regular people from the Northeast — Ohio, Pennsylvania and New Jersey — who make two treks down here a year. We want to get to a year-round business."

February is the peak of the advertising season for tourist officials. They say that's the time most families, who have grown weary of winter, begin looking forward to summer vacations and making their reservations.

"Most families ... do their vacation planning in early to middle spring," Heatherly said. "Almost all of our advertising budget is spent at this time of year. This is the very peak."

"A good winter pastime is planning your spring and summer vacation," said Ms. Ply, who noted that she's getting more inquiries than usual, especially from New England and the Midwest.

"The advance reservations are coming in real well, which is a good omen for later on when things begin in earnest," she said.

The tourism officials speculate that their promotions, coupled with severe winters and hard times economically, are bringing people to the beach early.

"I think frustration has got a lot to do with it," Gurley said. "People want to get away because the economy is so bad."

"We have had pretty severe winters for the past couple years and I think that has something to do with it," Ms. Ply said. "It's the whole vacation mentality. I think people need that. When the economy is having problems, as it is now, people particularly need to relax and try not to worry for awhile."

"The ocean, I've heard people say, is very therapeutic," she said. "I suppose scientists would say that is garbage. But when you get down on the beach and walk, that puts everything in perspective for you."

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Rain and showers are expected in the forecast period until Wednesday morning, from the Midwest to the mid-Atlantic and over most of the Southeast. Showers and snow flurries are forecast for the Northwest. Sunny skies are indicated for the central states. Mild weather is in store for much of the nation. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press

A weak upper level disturbance moved across North Carolina during the night, spreading rain from the mountains to the coastal plain. A more vigorous system moved out of Texas this morning and spread precipitation back across the state today.

As this area of low pressure draws nearer to North Carolina tonight, rainfall could become heavy across the western sections of the state. Potential heavy rains across western North Carolina could cause some rapid rises on streams and creeks in that area.

Scattered showers and thunderstorms are expected to continue across the state. Wednesday as the low pressure area moves across the state.

Around North Carolina Monday, skies were mostly cloudy but temperatures climbed well up into the 60s and even into the 70s east of the mountains. In the mountains, afternoon readings ranged from the middle 40s to the mid-50s.

Fayetteville with a high of 76 degrees was the warmest in the state. Cherry Point followed closely with a high of 74 degrees.

By early this morning, dense fog covered most of western North Carolina, lowering visibilities to near zero in many areas. As rain spread northeast across western North Carolina early this morning, visibility improved.

Recreational weather outlook: A rather wet two days is on tap for North Carolina. Western North Carolina will have occasional rain today with thunderstorms by late this afternoon and tonight. Over eastern North Carolina it will be showery with possible thunderstorms today. High temperatures today will be in the 60s except for 50s in the mountains.

On Wednesday we will see showers and some thunderstorms across the state. Highs Wednesday will generally be in the 50s over the west and along the north coast with 60s again from the coastal plain to the south coast.

Winds along the coast will be southwesterly today at 10 to 20 knots with scattered showers and possible thunderstorms.

Termed 'Stable' After Shooting

WADESBORO, N.C. (AP) — A Wadesboro police dispatcher was in stable condition early today after he was wounded by a gunshot and his wife was shot to death Monday, authorities said.

Anson County Sheriff Tommy Allen said dispatcher Purvis Edsel Walters, 51, a 19-year veteran dispatcher, was shot in the lower chest in his suburban home just south of Wadesboro, where his wife was killed.

His wife, Linda Maner Walters, 33, was shot two or three times with a .410-gauge, double-barreled shotgun and pronounced dead at the scene, Allen said. She had gunshot wounds in the stomach, arm and leg, Allen said.

Allen said one of the couple's sons saw the shootings and called police.

Purvis Walters was taken to Anson County Hospital and immediately transferred to Charlotte Memorial Hospital in critical condition. He was in stable condition following surgery Monday night.

Wadesboro Police Chief Freddie Kendall said Walters left duty at 2 p.m. Monday — his regular quitting time. He said Walters had talked briefly with some officers and told one, "See you tomorrow."

"I tell you he'll be missed around here," Kendall said. "He knew the PIN (statewide Police Information Network) like nobody else did."

Allen said the call to Wadesboro police came at 3:44 p.m., and officers rushed to the scene to find Linda Walters dead on the living room floor and her husband lying nearby.

Allen said the couple had three sons. The youngest, who witnessed the shooting, was so upset he had to be taken to Anson County Hospital.

Police said the youth told what happened, but they would not release his statement. Allen said the investigation is continuing with assistance from the State Bureau of Investigation and Wadesboro police.

Eagle Award Made To Youth

Michael Brown Mizelle, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Mizelle of Raleigh and grandson of Mrs. W. M. Mizelle and Mr. and Mrs. Russell James, all of Bethel, received his Eagle Scout award recently in Raleigh.

Mizelle received the scouting honor during services at Highland United Methodist Church with Jim Partington, scoutmaster, making the presentation.

The Eagle recipient began his scouting activities as a cub in Troop 357 and later served as assistant patrol leader, patrol leader, scribe and instructor. He completed his Eagle project at Rex Hospital.

A junior at Broughton High School, Mizelle plays in the school band and is involved in UMYF and youth choir activities at Highland. His brother, Rusty, and brother-in-law, Edward Harris III, are also Eagle Scouts.

Business Sees Fitness Craze

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The fitness craze has found its place in the business community, say some North Carolina company officials who think healthier employees will do better work.

A number of companies have started programs designed to bolster their workers' mental and physical fitness. Participants include:

- Burroughs Wellcome & Co., where workers take a meditation break instead of a coffee break.
- Lufkin-Rule, where workers literally are told to take a walk — around the company's hiking trail.
- Blue Cross and Blue Shield of North Carolina, where workers spend five minutes twisting, bending and stretching at their desks each day.

"It truly makes good sense for employers to encourage employees to be healthy. Each year, American businesses lose untold amounts of money because of low productivity, absenteeism and, at the extreme, employees dying early," said a spokeswoman for Blue Cross and Blue Shield.

Tom Spector, who teaches transcendental meditation to fellow employees at Burroughs Wellcome, said the idea for the program came from a biochemist who believed that corporate stress is inevitable.

"You can't make it not happen, but you can learn to deal with situations as easily as possible without causing internal problems," Spector said.

Len Sellett, personnel director at the company, said reaction has been positive and employees feel they are being helped in coping with their problems.

Mary Wilburn, occupational health nurse at Lufkin-Rule, said the main focus of that company's program is a one-mile walking trail. Bill Stone, a fabrication worker who walked 273 miles in three months, won a $100 prize for walking more miles than any other employee.

Other health-oriented programs offered by companies include exercise rooms, health screening, nutrition workshops, non-smoking clinics, cardiopulmonary instruction, stress management seminars, jogging and recreational sports.

Accountants Meeting Set

The Eastern Carolina chapter of the National Association of Accountants will meet Wednesday at 6:15 p.m. at the King and Queen Restaurant here, with Mickey Zarra as keynote speaker.

Zarra is in the tax department of the auditing firm, A.M. Pullen and Company, in Raleigh. He will speak on "The Economic Recovery Act of 1981."

For further information about the association, call Paul Seltiff, 752-4126.

Enforcement Is Underway

WINTERVILLE — Monday, Feb. 15 was the deadline for residents to purchase and display town tags, and according to police chief Ed Cox, the police department is now enforcing the ordinance.

"We are on the road checking for the tags," he said, "and those who don't have them will be written citations."

Tags are still available at the town hall, according to Town Clerk Elwood Nobles, at a cost of $1.

Gov. Will Host UNC Footballers

The Coldest Town in the World
Five thousand miles east of Moscow and 50 miles north of the Arctic Circle lies Verkhoyansk, "the world's coldest town." Temperatures there reach as low as 90° below zero (F). At only -60° metal cables snap, steel tools splinter and grease in machinery freezes. Cows must stay indoors there 270 days of the year. But the cold doesn't seem to bother the town's 2,000 human residents — mostly Asiatic Yakuts. Perhaps because Verkhoyansk, nestled in the Siberian mountains, gets no wind and therefore has no wind chill factor. In fact, the main problem is the 90° summer weather, that melts 10 feet of permafrost into oozing muck — swallowing roads and even houses.

Study the club suit in this hand. It is a position that occurs frequently. What you are about to learn will earn you rich rewards over the years.

North's bidding is the sort that drives partners to commit mayhem. He had nowhere near the values for a free bid at the two-level in a suit higher ranking than his partner's. He should have simply responded two diamonds and waited to see whether his partner could move over that. We attach no blame to South for leaping to game.

West led his fourth-best spade against three no trump. Declarer made the technically correct play of holding up for one round, then won the spade continuation. By developing three diamond tricks, declarer could count seven top tricks. Obviously, he would not have time to set up two heart tricks, so he would have to count on the club suit for four tricks.

A cursory glance at the diagram might make it look as if declarer needs a finesse to collect those tricks and that he can play either defender for the queen. Not so!

To make four tricks in clubs, declarer must find a favorable division in the suit. His problem is that he is missing all the intermediate spots. If East has the queen of clubs, declarer can never make more than three tricks in the suit — all East has to do is cover the ten of clubs when it is led from dummy, and declarer will inevitably have to concede the fourth round of the suit to one of the defenders no matter how the club suit is split.

The only way to score four club tricks from this combination is to hope that West holds the queen of clubs guarded no more than twice. So at trick three declarer led a low club to dummy's ten. He then cashed the king of clubs. When the queen dropped, declarer had time to knock out the ace of diamonds to bring home a well-played game.

Guerrillas Dispute Claim On Big Military Sweep

By EDUARDO VAZQUEZ BECKER
Associated Press Writer

SAN SALVADOR (AP) — At least 400 leftist guerrillas were killed — without any government casualties — during a five-day military sweep in the southeast of this Central American nation, a military source says.

Leftist guerrillas, however, said the operation was not as successful as the government claimed.

The military source, who requested anonymity, said Monday night that up to 200 guerrillas managed to escape the army operation in Usulután province, 105 miles from San Salvador. Other military sources said 4,000 troops with heavy artillery and air support were active in the operation.

The military source said seven guerrilla camps with a large quantity of arms and medicine were located and destroyed before the operation ended earlier in the day. Two soldiers suffered slight wounds during the sweep, he added.

The army sweep in Usulután province followed heavy guerrilla activity in the area during the first week of February, including attacks on the provincial capital of Usulután City. The source said without elaboration that a second army operation in Morazan province was a routine search and clean-up mission. He did not say whether it was continuing. Other sources said 1,500 troops were involved.

Earlier Monday, a clandestine rebel radio station, Radio Venceremos, said the government troops had "failed in their intent."

The broadcast also said a government operation in northern Morazan province did not exist. "And there is an offensive in Morazan all right, but it is an offensive of the revolutionary forces against the common imperialist enemy," Radio Venceremos said.

Independent reports from Morazan said two soldiers were killed before noon Monday in a guerrilla attack on army positions in Osicala.

The radio claimed guerrillas had mounted attacks during the previous 72 hours near the towns of Perquin, Joateca and Arambala, 107 miles northeast of San Salvador.

Guerrilla activity also was reported Monday in Apopa, just outside of San Salvador, where an early morning raid apparently was intended to acquire medicine from the local hospital. A military post also was attacked and the town hall set on fire, but there were no reports of casualties.

Guerrillas in San Salvador are fighting to oust the U.S.-supported military-civilian junta that has been in power since an October 1979 coup.

A United Nations human rights official in Washington said Monday that political murders in El Salvador last year were about double the number the Reagan administration cited in telling Congress the Salvadoran junta has improved its human rights record.

Jose Antonio Pastor-Ridrujo, the U.N. Human Rights Commission's special representative on El Salvador, said there were 11,000 deaths for the first 11 months of 1981.

Meanwhile, U.S. Sens. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., and Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., met with Salvador Zamora, a representative of Salvador's leftists, while in Mexico City on Monday. The senators, returning from a trip to Salvador, declined to discuss the meeting.

Ask Legally Dead Ruling

ASHEBORO, N.C. (AP) — Legal proceedings are underway to declare dead a Denton woman who vanished from a Charlotte apartment complex seven years ago and hasn't been heard from since.

But even if the ruling — which isn't expected for at least six months — is allowed, people who were close to Denise Newsom Porch say it won't completely erase their hopes that she'll be found.

Joyce Newsom, Denise's mother, said the legal action won't bring peace of mind. "It'll just clear up some legal matters," she said.

Charlotte Police Capt. Wade Stroud says police believe there was foul play involved in the disappearance of Denise Newsom Porch in July 1975, but they can't prove it. She was 21 years old at the time of her disappearance.

"I haven't any doubt that she's dead and I haven't for a long time," said Stroud.

Stroud said police have ruled out the possibility that she ran off and left her husband. He said she routinely called her mother and they were very close.

Police said the woman was last seen showing an apartment to a prospective tenant at the apartment complex where she worked.

A bank account containing more than $5,000 in reward money still stands.

The long proceeding that could lead to the declaration of Mrs. Porch as legally dead follows a state law about a missing person's estate.

A complaint has been filed including a request that Mrs. Porch be declared legally dead, "killed at the hands of a person or persons unknown on July 31, 1975."

The complaint also requests proceeds from four insurance policies on her life be paid as in the case of an accidental death. The money, according to court files, would total at least $13,000.

"We waited a long time to do this, hoping against hope something would happen," said Lexington attorney Bob W. Bowers, who represents the family in the legal action.
