

Stockman 'Conciliatory' In Budget Talk

By CLIFF HAAS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Democrats say President Reagan must back up budget director David A. Stockman's conciliatory comments if there is to be any bipartisan revision of Reagan's fiscal 1983 budget.

In an appearance before the House Budget Committee, Stockman indicated Wednesday that the president may be willing to reconsider his previous refusal to raise taxes or cut the 18 percent buildup in defense spending called for in the administration's deficit-ridden $73.6 billion spending plan.

Stockman told the panel: "I believe this administration and I think this president will look very carefully at a good-faith, sincere effort on the part of the responsible leadership of Congress... to propose something different."

Rep. James R. Jones, D-Okla., the committee's chairman, welcomed Stockman's statements as "progress — progress and hope."

"I thought his testimony by itself did give running room to allow a compromise to emerge," Jones said after the hearing. But, he added, "It certainly has quite a way to go yet."

Democrat after Democrat — and even some Republicans — let Stockman know how unpalatable they found Reagan's recommendations.

Rep. Leon E. Panetta, D-Calif., told Stockman: "I don't think there's any question up here that this budget isn't going to fly as presented to the Congress. I think anybody who thinks that's the case is nuts."

Later, Panetta said in an interview that the clear message he got from Stockman's remarks "is one of conciliation. He certainly is not shutting the door."

But Panetta added: "There's no question that unless the White House is willing to back up Stockman's statements on conciliation, the budget process isn't going to go very far this year. ... The signals have to be much clearer from the White House... if we're going to get some real movement."

Stockman told the panel that Reagan feels the tax code "isn't chiseled in stone."

He pointed to the billions of dollars in tax breaks Congress added to the basic Reagan plan last year and invited Congress to "take a look" at revenues. But he warned against trying "to reverse the important and fundamental changes we've made" in personal and business tax reductions.

As for defense, Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., asked whether the president would accept a cut of $10 billion from the $221.1 billion he requested for the Pentagon. Stockman didn't reject the idea outright. Instead he said, "There may be room for savings which we haven't found or that you may want to propose."

But deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes sought today to play down any suggestions that Reagan would compromise on the Pentagon's budget, saying, "it's bedrock. We want the increase in defense spending."

Asked about a report that Stockman had not properly cleared his testimony with other White House officials, the spokesman said "his testimony was cleared. Everybody looked at it — everybody that needed to."

A House Republican source, who asked not to be identified, questioned whether Stockman's testimony was "a clear signal that the gates are open."

The source noted that a letter Reagan sent to Republican legislators over the weekend urged them to continue to support his program while simultaneously reminding them "there will always be room for improvement in any budget and any economic policy."

"What the president was trying to get across with the letter and what he's (Stockman) supposed to be trying to get across... especially to our people (Republicans) is: 'For God's sake, don't go running off the reservation, there's room to talk and there's room to change and we're going to try to accommodate you.'"

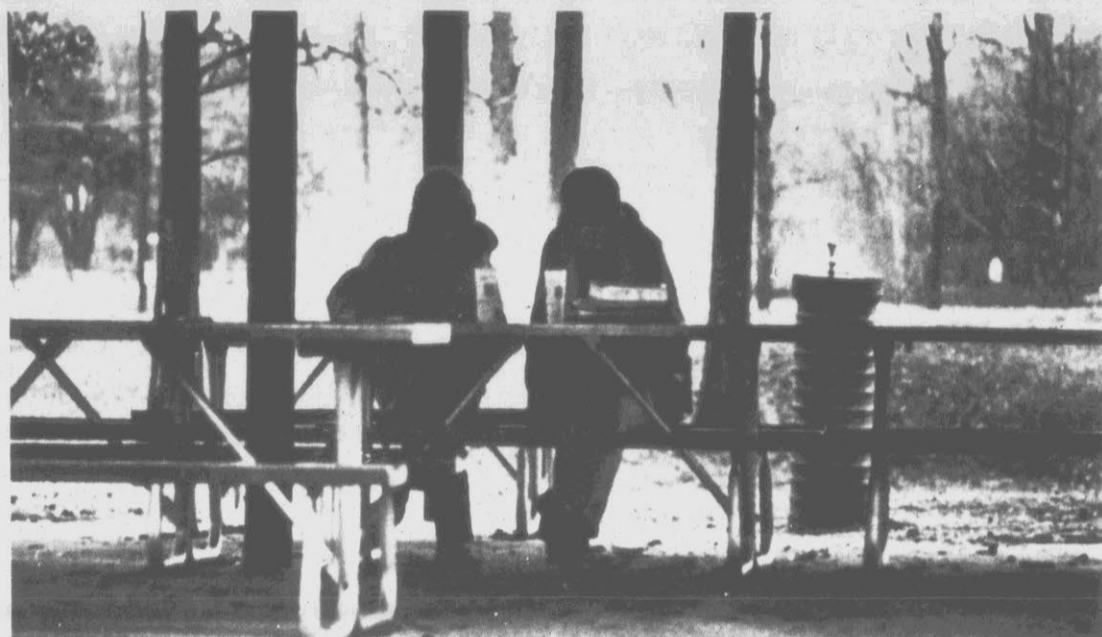

House Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Texas, while also appealing for compromise, did not let pass an opportunity to assail Reagan for what he called a non-ending cycle of "high interest rates, high unemployment rates, high deficits."

Stockman denied charges that Reagan's economic program is to blame for the record deficits forecast in the administration's budget — $98.6 billion this year and $91 billion in 1983.

He insisted that if Congress had rejected Reagan's budget plan a year ago and passed the alternative developed by Democrats, the deficit would be a few billion dollars higher for 1983.

In a related development, a staff analysis by a subcommittee of the congressional Joint Economic Committee concluded that worsening federal deficits, inflation and industrial bottlenecks will develop over the next several years unless the president's proposed defense buildup is trimmed.

If the real rate of growth in defense spending could be reduced to 5 percent per year, the report said, the budgetary savings would be about $7 billion in fiscal 1983 and about $90 billion from 1983 to 1987.

They're Serious

A PLACE OUT OF THE RAIN... Karen Emerson and Jerry Bellis found the picnic shelter at Green Springs Park a good refuge from the mist and fog Wednesday as the two Pitt Community College students settled down to do some serious studying. Temperatures plunged back down into the 40s and 30s

Wednesday and today as clouds and misty rain shrouded the area. Relief from the damp, nippy conditions is on the way, though, with partly cloudy skies forecast for Friday and sunshine with milder temperatures predicted for the weekend. (Reflector Photo By Mary Schulken)

Mid-Atlantic Coast Hit By Rain, Sleet And Snow

By The Associated Press

Rain, sleet and snow pelted the mid-Atlantic Coast today, dumping up to 5 inches of snow on eastern Maryland and 7 inches on central Pennsylvania. Two people died on icy roads.

Public schools were closed in at least nine Maryland counties and classes were delayed as much as two hours in five others. The National Weather Service posted travelers' advisories throughout most of Maryland and Delaware, and police reported a rash of minor accidents.

In Pennsylvania, where ice and snow glazed highways, police reported that a 45-year-old Jamestown man died of head injuries today when his car skidded off a road and struck a tree.

A truck driver from Tonawanda, N.Y., died Wednesday evening after his tractor-trailer rig skidded on Interstate 79 in Muddy Creek Township, Pa., police said. Police said the driver was thrown from the cab and pinned under the truck.

Philadelphia and surrounding counties received 1 to 3 inches of snow, forecasters said.

In Virginia, two cars of an Amtrak train hit a mudslide and derailed south of Charlottesville at 6:40 a.m., but there were no injuries to the 149 people aboard.

Meanwhile, rain and drizzle blanketed the Carolinas. Fog and drizzle covered the Tennessee and Ohio valleys while showers hit the eastern central Plains and western mid-Mississippi Valley.

Freezing drizzle and light snow were reported over the upper Mississippi Valley. Showers and a few thundershowers fell over Arkansas and northern Louisiana.

Rain was forecast along the Washington state coast and a few showers were expected over the upper Rockies. Light snow was expected over the northern Great Lakes and the north central Atlantic Coast.

Sunny skies were forecast over the Great Basin, California, the Southwest deserts, the lower two-thirds of the Plains and northern New England.

Temperatures in the 80s were expected today in southern Florida and the Southwest deserts with 60s and 70s from the south Atlantic Coast through the lower Mississippi Valley and the southern Plains to the far Southwest. Thirties were forecast in the northern Plains, the upper Mississippi Valley, the Great Lakes and the north central Atlantic Coast. Teens and 20s were expected over northern New England with 40s and 50s elsewhere.

Temperatures around the nation at 2 a.m. EST ranged from 12 below in Houlton, Maine to 76 in Key West, Fla.

Here are the latest weather reports from some key cities around the nation:

Eastern — Atlanta 54 fair, Boston 28 fair, Buffalo 26 cloudy, Caribou, Maine not available, Charleston, S.C., 54 cloudy, Cincinnati 32 foggy, Cleveland 34 cloudy, Detroit 28 freezing drizzle, Miami 68 partly cloudy, New York 30 windy, Philadelphia 28 snow, Pittsburgh 31 freezing drizzle, Washington 30 snow.

Central — Bismarck 46 foggy, Chicago 32 cloudy, Dallas-Fort Worth 47 fair, Denver 32 fair, Des Moines 33 rain, Indianapolis 31 foggy, Kansas City 33 rain, Minneapolis-St. Paul 32 foggy, Nashville 46 foggy, New Orleans 58 fair, St. Louis 33 foggy.

Western — Albuquerque 42 fair, Anchorage 2 cloudy, Las Vegas 50 fair, Los Angeles not available, Phoenix 61 thunderstorms, Salt Lake City 38 partly cloudy, San Diego 58 foggy, San Francisco 53 fair, Seattle 43 partly cloudy.

Canada — Montreal 7 fair, Toronto 23 partly cloudy.

Promote Ennis To Police Sgt.

Greenville Police Chief Glenn Cannon has announced the promotion of John Ennis to the rank of police sergeant, effective Feb. 11.

Ennis, a member of the department for 9½ years, was promoted to the rank of corporal in September 1980.

He is a graduate of Winterville High School and Pitt Community College where he received an associate in applied science degree in police science. He has also received three certificates — basic, intermediate and advanced — from the state's criminal justice standards division in recognition of achieving certain levels of competence.

Ennis, who was recognized as the department's outstanding young law officer in 1978, has attended a number of other police schools covering a variety of subjects including criminal investigation, community relations, narcotics investigation and law enforcement supervision. He is also a certified breathalyzer operator and Police Information Network operator.

The new sergeant has also been instrumental in establishing the department's "Shoot — Don't

HOTLINE APPEAL

Greenville police are looking for a man dressed in a business suit who came to the aid of a 9-year-old girl about 3 p.m. Monday in the parking lot at Overton's Supermarket on Jarvis Street.

Investigators, who said the man intervened when three young men and a young woman in a small foreign car accosted the child, said they'd like to talk to him in an effort to get more information about the incident.

The man, or anyone knowing about the incident, is asked to call detective George Albertine at 752-3342.

Greenville Planning and Zoning commissioners declined to give their approval Tuesday night to a final plat submitted for a mobile home park near the fairgrounds, citing failure by the developers to comply with city and utility requirements.

Commissioners voted unanimously to deny the plat for Section 1 of the Clara H. Bland Mobile Home Park, located off N.C. 33 adjacent to the Pitt County Fairgrounds and Floral Park Subdivision.

Buzz Smart of the Greenville Utilities Commission said the planning board approved the initial development of the park's first section in 1976 and water lines subsequently installed were not in compliance with what GUC requested and required.

It was pointed out that the developers also agreed to improve streets in the mobile park development and that requirement has not been met.

Planning Director Bobby Roberson said the developers have indicated that the water line situation will be improved but no plans have been made to develop the streets.

Commissioner Bill Mitchum said he felt the board was "wasting our time on this." He said he could not see helping someone "who won't help himself."

Commissioners voted to recommend that the section of 16th Street from Evans to Pitt Street be renamed Howell Street in order to make Howell continuous, in the interest of "public safety and general public information."

Public Works Director Mayo Allen said he feels the corridor should have one name and he cited possible confusion on the part of motorists who are unfamiliar with the area when they are driving on 16th Street and then discover they are on a section of Howell Street.

Changing the Howell Street segment to 16th would affect 38 addresses, while only six addresses would be affected by a change from 16th to Howell. Two of those affected, Dr. Hazel Brown and Dr. Isaac Artis Jr., urged the board to retain the 16th Street name. Both of the doctors have offices on West 16th Street near Evans.

In other business, commissioners voted to recommend that the council approve a request by James M. Williamson to rezone, from Highway Commercial to R-6 (residential), 6.508 acres on the west side of N.C. 11-903 and U.S. 13.

The rezoning, according to staff planner Skip Browder, would result in a reduction of highway commercial frontage from a 400-foot to 200-foot depth. Williamson said he felt the property would be more usable under a residential zone.

Commissioners heard an "executive summary" of an

Polish Regime Again Hits Clergy; New Detentions

By THOMAS W. NETTER
Associated Press Writer

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — The martial law regime renewed its attack today on Poland's Roman Catholic clergy, accusing some priests of reviving "old sources of conflict."

The attack followed the detention of 3,500 Poles in the most sweeping dragnet since martial law was imposed Dec. 13. The attack coincided with a West German report that the regime would begin arresting priests shortly.

Church sources said Poland's primate, Archbishop Jozef Glemp, will deliver a sermon Feb. 26, and it is expected to outline the church's policy toward martial law.

Glemp has spoken out in the past against military rule, but has remained silent since his return from the Vatican last week where he met with Polish-born Pope John Paul II.

The Polish Roman Catholic Church has more authority in Poland than the churches of any other Communist-ruled Soviet bloc country and about 90 percent of Poland's 36 million people are Roman Catholics.

The latest attack on the clergy came in a Radio Warsaw commentary that was broadcast first on Wednesday night then rebroadcast today. It accused some "lower Catholic clergy" of reviving "old sources of conflict."

The commentator identified these as "the issue of religion and religious symbols in public places, state institutions and schools — conflicts resolved by law over 20 years ago after much public discussion."

"Yet it appears that attempts have again emerged to revive these old conflicts," the radio said. "Sometimes, this is being done in an underhanded manner. Thus a priest in northern Poland appealed to parents to oppose efforts to remove crosses from schools even if they were fired on in the process."

He noted that since 1961 crosses have not been permitted on the walls of Polish public schools.

The radio also criticized the church for speaking out against the internment of Solidarity leaders.

The commentator said there had been cases of priests "seeking to criticize the policy of the authorities towards extremists in the Solidarity leadership."

"One listener wrote in to say: 'I have a complaint against priests who never saw any fault in the Solidarity leadership and who today fulminate from the pulpit against the wrong done to these leaders in placing some into isolation,'" the commentator said.

He concluded that anyone anxious to see Poland emerge from the crisis should not succumb to emotion. "Let's keep a dignified reserve in the face of all manner of provocations," he added.

Demo Senator Calls For Rights In El-Salvador

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Claiborne Pell, ranking Democrat on the Foreign Relations Committee, says the United States should cut off aid to El Salvador's regime unless it cracks down on human rights abuses.

But Pell, just back from a trip to El Salvador, said the United States should not "rock the boat" before the March 28 elections called by the centrist government of President Jose Napoleon Duarte.

If Duarte's government is victorious at the polls, Pell said, "Any continued aid is contingent on real progress toward human rights, which there has not been so far, and movement toward general negotiations."

The United States also should insist that the Salvadoran regime agree to unconditional negotiations with left-wing guerrillas after the elections, the Rhode Island lawmaker said in an interview Wednesday.

"There must be general negotiations between all parties without preconditions right after the elections," he said. "If the extreme right wins, then I think we should just withdraw, knock off aid and get the dickens out because we know then the left will take over in a week, a month, a year or two years."

Duarte's Christian Democratic party and five rightist parties are fielding candidates in the balloting to choose a 60-seat constituent assembly. Leftist parties are boycotting the election.

Regardless of the outcome of the elections, Pell said, "I don't think Congress would permit it to become another Vietnam."

Dear Abby

Teen-Ager Craves An End to Overeating

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1982 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I'm 18 years old and don't know where else to turn. For the last two years I've been stuffing myself with food and forcing myself to throw up every day — sometimes several times a day. I just can't stop. God knows I've tried. My parents are disgusted with me and wouldn't spend a dime to get me cured.

I really can't blame them since I got myself into this. I saw a doctor just once, and he said it was a matter of self-control. Abby, if I could control myself I wouldn't be writing to you.

I'm not fat, I'm normal, but I eat enormous amounts and keep eating and eating like there's no tomorrow. You wouldn't believe what I can down in 15 minutes. (A whole frosted chocolate cake, big enough to serve 16, plus six apple turnovers and a dozen glazed doughnuts.) Then I put my finger down my throat and get rid of it all. I am so disgusted with myself I want to die!

I feel fine physically, but mentally I'm a wreck. I feel guilty all the time. I'm a friendly, well-adjusted person, go to church every week and have many friends. Why am I doing this to myself?

Thank God I have you, Abby. Just writing this has taken a load off my mind. Please help me.
DESPERATE IN INDIANA

DEAR DESPERATE: You have a disorder known as "bulimarexia" or "bulimia" — an uncontrollable compulsion to consume enormous amounts of food and get rid of it by taking laxatives or by self-induced vomiting.

There is a wonderful organization that will send you information (free) about this condition and direct you to the treatment center nearest you. Write to: ANAD, Box 271, Highland Park, Ill. 60035.

Please enclose a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope, as this is a non-profit organization.

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of someone who would give a gift to a good friend, admitting that she had worn it once herself? At least she was honest, but she couldn't very well have denied it because her fragrance was still on it. Of course, I said it was lovely, and even tried to reassure her by saying it meant even more to me because she had chosen it first for herself.

Now I am having second thoughts and I feel hurt. I think she gave it to me because after wearing it, she decided she didn't like it very much, so instead of buying me a new gift, she gave me a castoff.

Something bought especially for me, regardless of the cost, would have left me with a better feeling. Or am I nitpicking?
HURT

DEAR HURT: Yes. It's not the gift but the spirit of giving that counts.

March Insurance Said Required

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — A group planning to protest the training of Salvadoran soldiers at Fort Bragg has been told by city officials that it must pay for insurance before holding a protest march.

The North Carolina Civil Liberties Union says, however, that it may intervene to seek a waiver for the Fort Bragg Coalition, which wants to conduct a protest march at Pope Park on Feb. 27.

A city ordinance requires $50,000 worth of liability insurance per individual in the protest and $10,000 insurance on property damage. The NCCLU got Durham officials to waive a similar ordinance for a protest last year and prevented the Greensboro City Council from adding such an amendment to an existing parade ordinance in 1980 before a protest over the Greensboro massacre in 1979.

Fayetteville city attorney Robert Cogswell said Wednesday the group will need to get a court injunction to hold the protest without insurance.

Former Oil Rig Commander Says 'OceanRanger' Flaws Long Known

OTTAWA (AP) — A man who said he commanded the Ocean Ranger until nearly a month before it sank in a North Atlantic gale claims a U.S. Coast Guard inspector found 200 design, maintenance and structural problems on the oil rig months ago but nothing was done.

In an interview broadcast Wednesday by the Canadian Broadcasting Corp., Capt. Carl Nehring said the problems included insufficient maintenance of remote control valves on 32 tanks of liquid that controlled the stability of the rig.

"Any one of those valves could have gone bad because there's not enough maintenance on them ... and a failure of one valve could have resulted in that overturning," Nehring said in a telephone interview from San Jose, Costa Rica.

Nehring, who said he gave up command of the Ocean Ranger in January, claimed a Coast Guard inspector, who he did not name, found the deficiencies during a month-long stay on the rig. He said the official returned to the United States and wrote an article for the Coast Guard magazine about how well-organized and well-maintained the Ocean Ranger was.

Nehring indicated in the CBC interview that he thought the inspector's findings may have been covered up.

"The oil companies are so overpowered that they can ride the United States Coast Guard. That's my opinion," Nehring said.

Lt. Cmdr. Ronald Edmiston, chief of the Coast Guard Marine Safety Office at Providence, R.I., said he had "no word of any officer that's been aboard the Ocean Ranger other than people from my office in April of 1980," but he admitted guardsmen from another base may have visited the rig.

The Associated Press was unable to reach Nehring in Costa Rica nor was it able to get comment from Mobil Oil of Canada.

Keith Nicol, the U.S. Bureau of Shipping's senior surveyor in Halifax, Nova Scotia, said the Ocean Ranger passed a full inspection last June and the two other Mobil rigs operating in the Hibernia field were inspected last fall.

The Bureau of Shipping is an international agency charged with certifying the seaworthiness of rigs registered in the United States.

The supply ship Balder Cabot was to set sail today from St. John's, Newfoundland, for the Hibernia field carrying two diving bells to search for the sunken rig and clues to the cause of the disaster.

The same storm that sent the Ocean Ranger to the bottom on Monday sank a Soviet freighter Tuesday, causing a total of at least 116 fatalities.

Meanwhile, the Canadian government ordered two North Atlantic oil rigs towed to shore for inspection.

Energy Minister Marc Lalonde said the Zapata Uglan and Sedco-706 would be towed to shore from the Hibernia field once a fierce storm recedes. All three rigs are operated by Mobil Oil of Canada.

Neither of the two remaining rigs reported any difficulty in the storm. But Mobil officials said non-essential personnel aboard them were evacuated Wednesday night. They did not say how many members of the 76-man crews were taken off the rigs.

Ships and aircraft continued to search the stormy

Leadership Conference Is Announced

RALEIGH — The Governor's Conference on Leadership Development for Women will be held here March 11-12.

Actress-singer Polly Bergen, television newswoman Jessica Savitch, Congresswoman Shirley Chisholm and Nancy Stevenson, South Carolina's lieutenant governor, will join Governor James B. Hunt Jr. on the program.

Approximately 1,000 women from throughout the state are expected to attend the conference in the Raleigh Civic Center. The conference, entitled "The Future Agenda," is a follow-up to the previous statewide conference held in 1978, to nine regional conferences, and to 100 county conferences which are to be completed by the March conference.

The conferences, convened by Gov. Hunt to provide leadership development opportunities for N.C. women, have attracted more than 15,000 participants.

Gov. Hunt will open the conference at 10 a.m. March 11 and will be followed by Ms. Savitch at the 1 p.m. luncheon and Congresswoman Chisholm at the 7 p.m. banquet. "Tamsen Donner," a drama presentation by the Carolina Regional Theater, will be performed at the banquet in observance of Women's History Week.

Lt. Gov. Stevenson is scheduled to speak at 11 a.m. Friday and Ms. Bergen at the 12:15 p.m. luncheon.

Mrs. Juanita Bryant is executive director of the leadership program in the Council on the Status of Women in the N.C. Department of Administration and is conference coordinator.

"This conference marks an end and a beginning," Mrs. Bryant said. "It celebrates the successful conclusion of local leadership conferences in each county and region in the state. It focuses attention on the 'future agenda' and on further political, personal and economic development of women."

The conference is open to all women. The $45 registration fee includes all sessions, workshops, materials and three meals. For information, contact Mrs. Bryant, 526 N. Wilmington, Raleigh, 27604, or North Carolina Council on the Status of Women, Robersonville, 28771.

Helen Simpson of Robersonville, field coordinator, will appear on "Carolina Today," WNCT-TV Tuesday, Feb. 23 at 6:45 a.m. to discuss the Raleigh conference.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

You probably know my nephew. Everyone does. He's the only sixth-grader in North America who does not have an alligator on the pocket of his shirt. The kid stands out like a sore thumb . . . on the days he has the courage to go to school.

It's a shame, too. The only thing that stands between him and unlimited success and popularity is that lousy alligator symbol on his shirt pocket.

His mother says $36 is too much to spend for a shirt for a boy who is growing. He has offered to stop growing.

I tried to explain to him the other day that when his mother and I went to school, there was no peer pressure to wear designer labels. Everyone wore white shirts and plain slacks. This fascinated him.

"You mean there were no labels on them?" he asked.

I told him, "once I found a piece of paper sewn in the seams of my slacks that read, 'Inspected by No. 57.'"

"Was Inspector 57 someone important?"

"Only if the legs of the slacks didn't match," I said.

"Why did people hide behind seams? What were they ashamed of?"

"They weren't ashamed of anything. People just didn't go public."

"Are you telling me kids showed up for class without so much as a polo player on their shirts?"

I nodded.

"The next thing you'll tell me," he said, "is that your license plates didn't spell anything."

"They didn't spell anything," I said.

"I don't understand you people," he said. "Why would you wear clothes that no one knew how much you paid for them?"

His mother interrupted. "We didn't need to go around looking like walking billboards for designers. Clothes with other people's names on them are a sign of insecurity. When you wear them it means you do not have enough faith in yourself to be accepted, so you flaunt names on your clothes to impress people. Do you see an alligator going around with your face on his chest? Of course not! It's babyish and it's immature."

I said to his mother, "What does G mean on your handbag?"

"It means, 'Get out of here or cough up $36!'"

Teaching kids a lesson is always a big mistake.

An Historic Agreement

Ford Motor Co. and the United Auto Workers union reached a tentative agreement over the weekend on a contract which could reduce the costs of autos and save the jobs of many Ford workers.

The tentative agreement was hammered out after days of emergency negotiations against a backdrop of the American auto industry facing disaster.

The agreement provides for job security with wage and benefit concessions over a 31-month period. At the same time there will be a freeze on wage and cost-of-living raises and some holiday pay will be eliminated during the period.

Ford agreed to guarantee income for workers with seniority. There also will be restrictions on subcontracting of work.

It is projected that the settlement will mean a savings of some $1 billion for Ford. It is a savings which is sorely needed since Ford has reported losses of about $1 billion. Far more important, the agreement could spur the sales of cars, thus putting most Ford workers back on the job and restoring profitability to the corporation.

The agreement still has to be approved by the rank and file workers of Ford Motor Co. We have every confidence that it will be. This agreement is historic in labor-management relations. It can ultimately mean more to the prosperity of the workers than any single contract previously negotiated.

Missile Sale Is Major Issue

It is easy to understand Israel's discomfort with the potential sale of Hawk missiles and F-16 fighters to Jordan.

The Israeli Knesset voted Monday to express deep concern over the potential sale. It follows the protest over the sale of AWAC planes to Saudi Arabia.

Israel has won its Middle Eastern wars with lightning strikes which included strong reliance on air power. If this air power is neutralized, a future war could be quickly lost.

U.S. Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger was quick to point out that no agreement for sale of the missiles has been made, and it would have to face the president, the National Security Council and finally Congress.

If the matter is to be considered we should discuss the problems it brings on with Israel's leaders. The Middle East is a seething area, but Israel gives it a stability which would be sorely missed by the United States if Israel were ever to be overrun.

Indeed, It Is Spinach!

WASHINGTON — The papers on Jan. 30 were full of General Dozier's release and Franklin Roosevelt's centennial, with the result that no one paid much attention to a lamentable announcement from the White House. The announcement was to this effect: The United States will resume its participation in negotiating a treaty on the Law of the Sea.

The president made it clear — as clear as the opaque amenities of diplomacy will permit — that we probably will not be participating much longer. Ambassador James L. Malone will go to the United Nations on March 8 for sessions that are scheduled to run through April 30, but unless the principal sponsors of this long-winded lunacy are prepared to accept drastic revisions, Mr. Malone might as well catch the next shuttle home.

Maybe Mr. Reagan should be commended for his patience and praised for his restraint. It is hard to say. Hemight better have cleared the air with a thunderclap appraisal of the pending draft convention: I say it's spinach, the president might have said, and I say the hell with it.

The draft convention is indeed spinach. It is the indigestible product of 19 years of cud-chewing by the bovine idealists and predatory beasts that roam the pastures of Geneva and New York. Their proposed treaty, as one commentator has observed, contemplates the greatest territorial grab since Genghis Khan set loose his Tatar hordes. The U.S. Senate would agree to universal abortion before it would ratify this treaty in its present form. Have a look. The draft is composed of 17 parts, 320 articles and eight annexes. The text runs to 175 pages of single-spaced typescript. A preamble echoes the plattitudes of the old World Federalists. The sponsors want only to benefit mankind. They would contribute to the realization of "a just and equitable international economic order."

Just? Equitable? Come now. The treaty would create an International Sea-Bed Authority, based in Jamaica, with title to all the sea-beds of the planet Earth. The Authority would have an Assembly, a Council and a Secretariat; there also would be a new International Tribunal on Law of the Sea.

Every nation would have one vote. The United States of America would have the same voice accorded Qatar, Sri Lanka and the Solomon Islands. The Assembly would be the "supreme organ" of the Authority, but for everyday purposes the Council would be running the store.

Curious thing about the Council. It would have 36 members. The Soviet bloc would be guaranteed at least three of these seats. Can you guess how many would be guaranteed to the United States? Try to guess. Close your eyes. Think hard. Right! The answer is that no seat would be guaranteed to the U.S. But who would pay the largest share of the costs? Right again! Uncle Chump! Contributions would be "based upon the scale used for the regular budget of the United Nations."

Under this treaty, an "Enterprise" would be created. Like everything else, the Enterprise would benefit all mankind, but it would especially benefit all mankind of the Third World nations. It would benefit them in this fashion: An American mining consortium would raise millions of dollars in capital, ply for permission to explore a couple of likely sites, and perhaps eventually get the word to go ahead. If the exploration proved fruitful, the Enterprise would appropriate the better of the two sites, along with all the technology the consortium had developed.

Weinberger Is Real Risk

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The worst threat to President Reagan's 1983 defense budget lies not in its size but in the Pentagon itself, particularly in the office of Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, where a credibility gap with Congress is quickly opening.

The gap widened with Weinberger's sudden decision to cancel his own Oct. 2 order to put new MX missiles in hardened silos of less-powerful existing missiles. Condemned by most strategic specialists, the Weinberger option was first altered in December — and then, last week, radically changed once again.

The reversal raises doubts about Weinberger's management of the world's largest business. Perhaps unfairly, it poses a question now widely asked on Capitol Hill: Does Cap Weinberger know where he wants to go? That question concerns the congressional defense bloc. More important, it is ammunition for anti-defense liberals and even pro-defense moderates who oppose record peacetime defense spending while social programs are axed.

Because of Weinberger's on-again, off-again handling of America's most dread strategic weapon, the MX is now referred to by pro-defense stalwarts as "that billion dollar Band-Aid." The MX is an orphan, still without a home or a mission. But Weinberger's handling of the B-1 bomber — the second big-ticket weapon approved in the October strategic program — is equally vulnerable.

Before the Oct. 2 announcement of the administration's new strategic blueprint, Weinberger was known to be against resurrecting the B-1, canceled by Jimmy Carter in 1977. The Air Force, refusing to give up, produced B-1 cost estimates for Weinberger that grossly underestimated actual costs. When Weinberger finally agreed to include the B-1 as part of the strategic package, he used Air Force cost estimates that have now "slipped" so that the actual 1983 cost will be $600 million over the estimate.

For anti-defense legislators looking for vulnerable places in the military budget, Weinberger's admission to Congress that the cost of the B-1 has escalated, so fast so soon, assures a new debate over whether to build it at all. The B-1 bomber, questioned in 1981 even by some defense-oriented congressmen, is now a little less than a 50-50 proposition to survive the attack on military spending in 1982.

Undermining Weinberger's ability to hold his new 1983 budget against the budget-cutters is the 1982 supplemental money bill he must first defend: a $2.6 billion spending bill described by one of the president's defense allies in the House as "a disaster." Once again, the bill shows a defense secretary seemingly unaware of political pitfalls of the Pentagon's own making.

A couple of examples define "disaster." They show that when Weinberger's men make their case for the supplemental, they will be strengthening the case against them for the big new defense bill.

Example No. 1: The supplemental includes $110 million to buy extra oil even though the price of a delivered barrel of oil has dropped from $55 to $50. That decline alone gave the Pentagon a windfall oil surplus far over the 188 million barrels it asked for — and got — in the current fiscal test congressional generosity with projects clearly not essential: The bill contains $460 million for "urgent" military construction projects. They are so "urgent" that none of it will be spent until September, the final month of the current fiscal year.

Such Pentagon game-playing is well-known to Capitol Hill defense experts, but it is deeply resented at a time when the long-overdue military buildup pressed by the Reagan administration enters its most critical period. Weinberger is held

Pressures Set In

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — A combination of pressures are being brought to bear on community mental health programs in North Carolina which place those at-home treatment efforts in jeopardy.

Established on the proven philosophy that individuals with mental problems fare best when kept closer to familiar surroundings and in contact with the pressures and lifestyles which likely contributed to the problem initially, North Carolina has been among the national leaders in community mental health programs.

For the budget conscious observer, community programs offer another major benefit — deinstitutionalization. That means simply providing services at home instead of an expensive state mental hospital.

The state's Mental Health Study Commission is preparing now to launch a series of public hearings and discussion meetings to probe in detail the problems besetting the system. State Sen. Kenneth Royall of Durham is chairman.

Findings One thing which the commission will find early in its work is that the expensive effort of providing community mental health programs in 41 locations around the state has not worked to reduce the cost to taxpayers of operating mental hospitals.

Instead, supporters of the hospitals have successfully argued that a reduced caseload brought about by keeping many patients at home has enabled the specialists to do a better job. Meanwhile, the hospital budgets have continued to run at 90 percent of the funds spent by the state on mental health programs, rising steadily right along with the newer community programs which have only come into being in the last 20 years.

There has been a lot of discussion over the years about whether institutions or community centers should get priority attention. So far, the traditionalists who favor the hospitals are winning.

Another problem commission members will learn about first hand is the mish-mash of local, state and federal funds which make up a community mental health center budget. Typically, each center serves several counties, and that leads to some tricky political and bureaucratic maneuvering to keep participating governments committed.

Federal funding cuts are a serious threat, and state funds have not increased as rapidly as community center proponents would like, due both to fund restrictions and to the competition between community treatment programs and the state hospitals.

Financial situations are made even more precarious by the change from categorical grants to block grants from the federal government, and the current uncertainty over who will split the money to local units — the governor, the Legislature or a committee — and how much of it will be siphoned away in the process. The money loss this year is expected to be more than 10 percent — nearly $12 million.

Problems Accompanying the funds from various sources are the usual forms and reports which take considerable staff time away from direct patient care. Various mandates and restrictions also come with the state and federal funds so that local mental health specialists may spend more time caring for specific problems which are not nearly so pressing as others which may not fall under certain grant or program categories. Prevention, as one example, ranks high on the list of concerns for

Other Editors Say State Of Things

(Carteret News-Times)

On Christmas Eve just before midnight, a Morehead City woman was struck from behind and her purse stolen outside a church filled with 800 persons. No one came from any of the nearby homes to help, probably because they were asleep, but someone did call police.

Last month a young Raleigh woman was stranded for a night on Interstate 40 outside Raleigh. Her unheated car had stalled. Terrified, she waited for help. None came until 7:15 a.m., nine hours later. Her help was a woman who had been stranded a week before.

And last month in Chicago an 18-year-old woman was savagely raped, brutally beaten and robbed. The attack took place at a rhythm and blues concert attended by thousands. The woman was attacked in the aisle, five rows from the front by 15 to 20 men. No one helped, not even a security guard who was summoned. Charges were lodged against eight young men, and other suspects were being sought.

Friday night, about 30 women marched on the Duke University campus in a chilling rain to protest recent rapes and sexual assaults of Duke students. Two rapes and more than a dozen sexual assaults have been reported on the Duke campus since the end of November.

Why is the public so reluctant to help, to become involved? Have we become hard-hearted? Are we afraid of what might happen if we try to help?

How was a passing motorist on Interstate 40 to know that someone was really in danger? It could have been a trap.

What might have happened to someone attempting to aid the Chicago woman? Her date threw himself on top of her, hoping to act as a shield. The gang stripped him, leaving only the elastic band of his underwear, and threw him aside.

The marchers at Duke Friday drew heckling from several men as they paraded past fraternities on the main campus. Why?

Society has evidently regressed to a point that people must be able to be individuals, to take care of themselves. Pray this changes.

The Multibillion Dollar Myth

By JOHN CUNNINGH

AP Business Analyst NEW YORK (AP) — You might call this the story of a multibillion dollar myth, because there is certainly that much involved if you add up all the claims that have been made by various parties over the years.

It involves municipalities, and corporations to a lesser extent, and Professor Lee Wakeman, a finance scholar and economist at the University of Rochester, a man who knows much about bonds and market efficiency.

It involves bond rating services too, those independent agencies that for a fee rate the financial condition of institutional borrowers on a scale from triple A, which pays the least for money, down to Cor D.

The assumption and the myth according to Wakeman, is that when an agency lowers a borrower's bond rating it forces the borrower to pay higher interest costs to borrow funds.

Wakeman says it isn't so, even if it might appear to be that way, and despite outraged protests from elected officials over the years.

A former Delaware governor, for example, sought to prevent raters from lowering his state's letters, contending it was an unfair penalty. New York City officials had a different complaint; they said in 1972 that tardiness in raising the city's rating may have cost it $40 million.

Corporate officials sometimes react in the same manner. A Pacific Telephone executive estimated in 1978 that a downgrading of its rating by Moody's Investors Service raised its interest costs by $35 million.

Wakeman studied the evidence, and now he has come up with what he says is the fact: a change in an organization's bond rating has no impact on interest rates. To believe so, he says, is to mix cause and effect.

A borrower's financial condition, not its rating, determines its creditworthiness, he says. A rating, he declares, is merely the after-the-fact report card.

"A rating change does not affect but merely reflects the market's altered estimation of a bond's value," says Wakeman flatly.

That is, by the time a rating is changed the market already has decided on the value of an issuer's credit. "Bond rating changes convey information that has long been reflected in bond prices," he says.

If Wakeman is correct, and his credentials, research and professional acceptance indicates he is, many elected officials are accused of being windbags. Wakeman doesn't use such words but the suggestion is similar.

He says that much of the fury of elected officials when bond ratings are lowered arises from the issuance, in effect, of that report card. It is anger, says Wakeman, that an esteemed agency has detected that poor management has put the city into a poorer financial situation.

Corporate officers react with less of a demonstration, he says, because they are rated all the time. They are rated by quarterly reports, by annual reports, by analysts from the big securities firms.

They are, in fact, rated constantly by the securities markets. If anything good or bad occurs to a company, he says, the market moves within minutes. But there is no such rating of municipalities.

After saying all this, Wakeman still believes the rating services — the biggest of which are Standard & Poor's, Moody's, Fitch, White's — perform a necessary service, and perform it exceedingly well.

When new bonds are issued, he explains, someone must seek information who is familiar with the bond's debt covenants and who is familiar also with the company's general. They serve as auditors, and audited figures, says Wakeman, generally make any securities more saleable.

Because of this, most municipalities and corporations seek ratings even when they disagree with them. But when they disagree, Wakeman suggests again, they are often criticizing their own management.

"It's like me and insurance," he says. "If I've been on a brand-new regimen of running and cutting out tobacco, my friends will know about it quickly. They'll know that I look better and feel better."

But it won't, he says, get him a lower rate on his insurance. That, he observes, "would require an examination by a recognized medical expert who could verify the good health that might lead to a new policy."

The myth, he says, is to credit or blame the examiner. That poor fellow, he suggests, is only turning into numbers the evidence you, or a municipality, supplied him with. He is just documenting a condition.

May Ask Appointees To Leave Boards

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Legislative appointees to over 40 state boards and commissions might be asked to resign in the wake of a state Supreme Court ruling that could render their appointments unconstitutional.

A deputy to state Attorney General Rufus Edmisten said Edmisten will send a letter Friday to Gov. Jim Hunt and General Assembly leaders advising that they ask legislative appointees to the boards and commissions identified as executive and administrative to step down.

Senior Deputy Attorney General Andrew Vanore Jr. said the letter stemmed from a ruling from the state Supreme Court last month that the Legislature's appointment of its own members to the Environmental Management Commission violated the state constitution's separation of powers doctrine.

The ruling addressed itself solely to the Environmental Management Commission, but observers have said it could set a legal precedent that could apply to other boards and commissions if their membership is challenged.

Vanore said Edmisten's letter would be sent to Hunt, Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green, who presides over the Senate, and House Speaker Liston Ramsey.

Vanore said the letter would ask the 10 legislative members of the 12-member Advisory Budget Commission — the most powerful of the 40 panels — to sharply curtail the scope of their activities instead of stepping down.

Ramsey said he would not personally ask any legislator to resign. But he added, "It will be my guess that a lot of them will."

He said he would mail a copy of the letter to all House members.

Ramsey said he would ask the attorney general to look into whether legislative leaders would be able to keep their power to fill disputed seats if they appointed laymen rather than lawmakers.

Green, speaking through his press secretary, said he wouldn't comment until he receives the letter.

R. Brent Hackney, spokesman for Hunt, said he was sure it had "occurred" to the governor that "this sort of thing could come up. We'll just have to look at the letter and see."

Ramsey also confirmed that Edmisten, in a separate opinion, rejected the possibility of the lawmakers' retaining their seats on the panels if they become non-voting members.

"Where the board or commission exercises a part of the administrative or executive sovereign power of the state, a legislator may not serve in any capacity," Edmisten's opinion said. "The court unequivocally stated that the separation of powers principle must be strictly followed."

An official who asked not to be named said the Advisory Budget Commission would still have the authority to conduct budget hearings and make recommendations to the governor.

Last week, the state Transportation Board's two legislative members, Sen. James Garrison, D-Stanly, and Rep. David W. Bumgardner, D-Gaston, were asked by Senior Deputy Attorney General Eugene Smith not to attend a board meeting.

Smith said state attorneys were concerned that any decision the legislators participated in could have been challenged in court.

Investigating Burglar Case

Greenville police were continuing their investigation of a 1:15 a.m. first degree burglary at Q4 Wilson Acres today.

Chief Glenn Cannon said a man forced his way into the apartment through the rear door and, apparently when he realized that there were two women upstairs, fled.

The chief noted that one of the women heard someone at her bedroom door, and thinking it was her roommate, told the person to come in. She then heard a male voice say "no", and footsteps running down the stairs.

Further complications will come to the attention of the study group, such as local mental health programs which serve such widely scattered and rural areas as one seven-county mountain region making regular visits and access difficult for clients; need for community surveys to determine services most required; generating community understanding and support for the effort, and keeping staff in some of the more isolated centers.

That was necessary advice from John Tower in the test of cases. But the widening credibility gap between Congress and Weinberger has devalued the president's selling job measurably more difficult, perhaps even beyond the capability of the great communicator.

Voting Rights Marchers Vow To Disobey Council

FUTURE RADAR — Grumman Aerospace is testing a section of a phased-array antenna in its anechoic chamber with special walls to absorb the radar signals. If the new umbrella-like antenna were based in space, the radar beam would be steered electronically without moving the antenna as in conventional radars. (AP Laserphoto)

By MARIE PRAT
Associated Press Writer
MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — The organizer of a 13-day voting rights march across Alabama vowed to end the demonstration along the same "sacred route" to the state Capitol taken by marchers led by the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. in 1965.

"We ain't playing with that route. ... Our history is wrapped up there," Joseph Lowery told a rally of nearly 1,000 people Wednesday night at the Lilly Baptist Church here.

The marchers said they would defy a City Council order preventing them from walking the full length of Dexter Avenue, a bustling downtown street used by King in the 1965 protest, to a rally at the Capitol at noon today.

Among those who planned to march today were Atlanta

Mayor Andrew Young, Birmingham Mayor Richard Arrington, Martin Luther King III and his grandfather, Martin Luther King Sr., Lowery said.

The march and motorcade set out from Carrollton in west-central Alabama on Feb. 6. For the last 50 miles demonstrators followed the path of the historic Selma-to-Montgomery trek.

"This is a sacred march," Lowery, president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, told the mostly black crowd Wednesday. "We're not going to come to Montgomery to have some racist mayor and some corrupt City Council send us on backstreets."

In a racially split 5-4 vote Tuesday, the council refused to reconsider the route it had ordered the marchers to use. The route includes only three blocks of Dexter Avenue. It would pass the church where King preached in the 1950s and '60s.

The 1965 march, led by the slain civil rights leader, pressured Congress to pass the Voting Rights Act. The act is up for congressional renewal this year and the current march supports saving and strengthening the law.

"That route (the council's) ignores our history and denies the promise of our future. It violates the integrity of this pilgrimage. It intimidates the pilgrims," said Lowery, who has walked most of the 150 miles with his wife, Evelyn.

Meanwhile, Don Black, grand dragon of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, said Wednesday a "couple of dozen" klansmen would show up at a counter-rally to oppose any renewal of the 1965 Voting Rights Act.

A federal judge refused

Wednesday to act on two petitions — one filed by marchers to overturn the council's decision, the other filed by the city to prevent Ku Klux Klan interference and to require marchers to stick to the prescribed route.

U.S. District Judge Robert Varner said he could not rule on either petition because they were state matters, not federal.

If marchers don't follow the council's route, "They obviously will be breaking the law," Montgomery Mayor Emory Folmar said. "I pray to God they won't. I hope they will respect the views of the council and proceed in an orderly fashion."

Police and other law enforcement officers planned to escort the march, Folmar said.

Civil rights veteran John Lewis, an Atlanta city councilman who was beaten by state troopers in the 1965 march, said he would march the full length of Dexter to the Capitol and if necessary go to jail.

"If it means going to jail again, I'm prepared to go to jail again," said Lewis, who was taken into custody in 1965. "I will march again."

The march began after two black Pickens County women, Maggie Bozeman, 51, and Julia Wilder, 70, were convicted by all-white juries of illegally helping 39 elderly black cast absentee ballots. Both women, who were active civil rights workers, are on work-release in Macon County.

March organizers said Lowery and black state representatives planned to meet with Gov. Fob James to ask that the woman be cleared of the charges and set free.

NASCAR Drivers Face Grand Jury Drug Charge

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — The FBI said 66 people have been indicted by a federal grand jury in Miami and four men have been indicted in Charlotte, including several NASCAR drivers, on charges of the sale and interstate transportation of narcotics.

Robert Pence, head of the FBI North Carolina office, said two of the men charged in North Carolina were arrested early today and that about 45 of the people indicted in Florida have been arrested.

Pence said charges against the 70 people include interstate transportation of narcotics, possession with intent to distribute narcotics, conducting a criminal enterprise, and conspiracy to sell narcotics. The indictments culminated a 2½-year investigation into narcotics activity in South Florida and North Carolina, he said.

Pence said evidence showed that several of the NASCAR drivers used their cars to transport narcotics from Florida to other states. Pence said the cars, along with other property, would be confiscated by federal authorities.

"This is a massive drug operation that has been going on for at least two and a half years and has brought in hundreds of millions of dollars," Pence said.

Pence said some of the people arrested in Florida include NASCAR drivers and associates, including driver Gary Balough of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., a finisher in Sunday's Daytona 500. According to FBI agents in Florida, NASCAR driver William Harvey of Rome, Ga., also was indicted. He also was a finisher in the Daytona 500.

The men charged in North Carolina include NASCAR driver Peter Thomas Pistone, 34, of Cabarrus County, Ronald Ciro Grana, 37, an associate of Pistone's who now lives Travers City, Mich., John L. Trester, 33, of Charlotte, Pistone's brother-in-law, and Edward J. Hayes, 57, of Charlotte, Pistone's father-in-law.

Hayes and Trester were arrested at their homes about 6 a.m. Pence would not say where the men are being held. Thursday, Pence said FBI agents in Detroit are searching for Grana and that agents also are seeking Pistone.

Court Will Hear Firm Is Fined In Bid-Rigging

ATLANTA (AP) — Although the Georgia Court of Appeals declined to review the case, the state Supreme Court says it will hear a white woman's arguments for custody of her white son, who was taken from her after she gave birth to an illegitimate, racially mixed daughter.

As soon as Kathy Blackburn's attorneys file a formal appeal, oral arguments will be scheduled before the state's highest court, which agreed to hear the case Wednesday.

Mrs. Blackburn, 26, was granted custody of her son, Nickolas, after her divorce in 1979. After she gave birth to Jennifer, the racially mixed daughter, the Superior Court gave custody of the son to Mrs. Blackburn's former mother-in-law. Mrs. Blackburn claims the court's action was discriminatory since it made no finding as to the woman's fitness as a mother to Jennifer.

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A Rutherfordton paving company has been fined $175,000 and its president sentenced to 30 days in federal prison after pleading guilty to bid-rigging charges.

Thompson Contractors Inc. and its president, Lawrence Thompson, were sentenced Tuesday in federal court in Raleigh after pleading guilty to violating the U.S. Sherman Antitrust Act.

The charges involved bids on an 11.8-mile resurfacing project in Henderson and Polk Counties. The company was awarded a $320,131.24 contract for the project in 1977 and completed the resurfacing in May 1978.

The indictments charged the firm and co-conspirators it didn't identify with discussing prospective bids and submitting intentionally high bids, as well as bids that contained false, fictitious and fraudulent statements and entries.

Claim Ozone Pollution Robbing U.S. Farmers

By BOB FICK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Ozone pollution is robbing American farmers and consumers of grain worth billions of dollars, a new government study says.

"It's food that just vanishes into thin air — or bad air — every year," Rep. George Brown, D-Calif., said Wednesday in releasing the most comprehensive report to date on ozone damage to American agriculture. He's called it a "quiet theft of food and fiber."

"Our best estimate is $3.1 billion a year (in ozone damage to corn, wheat, soybeans and peanuts), about 10 percent of the total value of the four crops harvested," said the study by the National Crop Loss Assessment Network.

That loss, based on the 1978 crop year, equals 650 million bushels of grain and soybeans and more than a billion pounds of peanuts, according to the study requested by the congressional Office of Technology Assessment.

Those four crops account for 62 percent of the land harvested and 63.5 percent of overall crop values.

The network, established by the Environmental Protection Agency and the Energy and Agriculture departments, said the losses could run as high as $4.5 billion. That figure does not include losses caused by other pollutants or losses to other crops, which, while still being analyzed, are generally believed to add several billion dollars more to the bill.

Just last summer, a pricetag of $1 billion was placed on crop damage due to ozone, a pollutant formed when hydrocarbons from spent fuels react with the sun's rays.

The new, higher loss estimates are probably still understated, said Thomas Crocker of the University of Wyoming. He said this is because they don't take into account changes in crop patterns farmers have been making to cope with air pollution. In many cases, he says, farmers substitute less valuable but more pollution resistant crops.

Crocker said his own regional study of 14 crops on the West Coast showed the impact of pollution doubling when that factor is taken into account. He estimates that a third of the losses were underwritten by consumers and the rest by farmers.

"It is extremely unsettling to see rich soil and ample irrigation unable to produce a crop because the air cannot support the growth of healthy plants," said Brown, chairman of the House Agriculture subcommittee on research and a member of the Science and Technology Committee.

SERVICES
Services will be held at Corey's Chapel Free Will Baptist Church Friday through Sunday with the following services:

Friday 7:30 p.m., the Rev. C. Parker and the Cherry Lane FWB Church; 9:30 a.m. Sunday, Sunday school; 10:30 a.m., devotion; 11 a.m., morning worship with the pastor, Vice Bishop J.B. Taylor.

Brown expressed concern that while more intense study of the pollution problem is showing it to be worse than previously thought, there is an effort to relax air pollution standards and cut back funds for crop loss research.

F-4 Sale Said At 'Wrong Time'

WASHINGTON (AP) — According to the General Accounting Office, the United States has approved sales of the wrong aircraft to Egypt at the wrong time for the wrong reasons.

A GAO report issued Wednesday said 35 F-4 fighters and 15 CH-47 helicopters were sold to the Egyptians, "more for political reasons than for military value."

In a report to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, the GAO said Egypt does not have the trained personnel or the supply system to keep up the F-4s, which are so difficult to maintain that even the U.S. Air Force is able to keep only 65 percent of them in flying condition at one time.

The GAO said the $505 million F-4 sale reportedly was agreed upon by former President Carter and the late Egyptian President Anwar Sadat as "an important factor" in the Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty of 1979.

N.C. Baptists Fight Shrinkage

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The Baptist State Convention, which officials say has emphasized social ministry at the expense of evangelism during the past two decades, is preparing an advertising campaign to bolster its sagging membership.

The state's largest denomination has reported a decline in membership for the first time in its 151-year history. Baptist rolls dropped by 2,981 members in 1981 — from 1,129,735 in 1980 to 1,126,754.

The announcement came Wednesday as the convention prepared a $500,000 publicity drive to attract new members to Baptist churches across the state.

"This (membership decline) can't be taken lightly," said the Rev. Roy J. Smith, convention associate general secretary. "It is a red flag that we need to give special attention to this."

Smith said inattention to attracting new members finally had caught up with the Baptists.

"I'm sensing a renewed concern for reaching people and enlisting new members," he said. "It sure will give us more incentive to make 'Here's Hope' a successful campaign."

"Here's Hope" is the evangelism crusade the convention is co-sponsoring with its predominantly black counterpart, the General Baptist Convention.

The two groups, representing about 1.5 million of the state's Baptists, have called for each of their 5,000 churches to hold revivals in March and April. Two thousand to 2,500 of the churches are expected to participate.

The crusade also will include an advertising blitz for new members on television, radio, billboards and in newspapers.

The Baptists are not alone in their declining membership. All of the state's Protestant denominations have experienced a leveling off in members over recent years.

For example, between 1970 and 1980, membership in the state's second-largest denomination, the United Methodists, increased 1.3 percent. The Presbyterian Church of the United States increased 3.1 percent.

The Roman Catholic Church, meanwhile, has grown 32.9 percent from 1970 to 1980.

Church To Offer Public Program

The Phillip Church of Christ will present an "Afro Today" public program at 7 p.m. Friday as part of its observance of Afro-American History Month.

Barbara Fenner and Daisy Morris will speak on their travels in Africa. Their presentation will include a slide showing of Ghana, Kenya, Gambia and Senegal. Articles from the countries and posters will be displayed. A fashion show will also be held.

Musical selections will be presented by Faye White, Cathy Braxton and Harden Perry, accompanied by Lee N. Parker and Onession Brooks.

African students of East Carolina University and African residents of Greenville will be special guests.

'Missing Car' Alert In Mass Murders

By RON DZWONKOWSKI
Associated Press Writer

FARWELL, Mich. (AP) — Police have issued a nationwide alert for a car that vanished from a farm where a shotgun massacre killed seven members of a family, sparing only a year-old infant who was shielded by her mother's body.

Authorities had a "possible suspect" Wednesday in the killings of 53-year-old mailman George W. Post, his wife, two daughters and three grandchildren. But Clare County Sheriff Ghazey Aleck refused to identify the suspect.

Aleck also said police in the state were told to "be on the lookout" for the husband of one of the victims.

Authorities said they had no solid motive in the Tuesday night killings.

They said it appeared one of the victims, a young mother, had tried to flee the central Michigan farm in a pickup truck, but was pursued and died with three of the four children she had with her.

Police awaited the results of autopsies today, but said each victim appeared to have been shot once.

People in this town of 1,000 residents were stunned by the killings.

"Why would anyone?" asked Robert Van Buskirk, who knew Post from the Veterans of Foreign Wars local chapter, where Post was a past commander. "I can't imagine why it had to be kids especially."

The dead children ranged in age from 7 to 10.

Aleck said authorities "would very much like to have" a 1980 Buick LeSabre that belonged to the Posts. It may have been stolen by the killer from the one-story, red-and-white house, police said.

Police were told to be on the lookout for Robert Haggart, whose wife Garnetta was among the seven dead, Aleck said.

Officials in Clare County Circuit Court in Harrison said Haggart did not appear Wednesday morning for a divorce hearing scheduled for him and his wife.

Court Clerk Kathleen Dent said Haggart had not retained a lawyer for the divorce proceeding, and Aleck said he was told by Mrs. Haggart's attorney it was not certain whether the husband was ever personally notified of the hearing.

Aleck said Mrs. Haggart had returned to Michigan from Florida this week for the hearing.

Aleck also said there was an unrelated felony warrant outstanding for Haggart, issued by authorities in Lenawee County, 150 miles away. The warrant charges Haggart with passing bad checks, Aleck said.

In addition to Post and Mrs. Haggart, 23, the victims of the shootings were Post's wife, Vaudrey, 42; another of Post's daughters, Helen Gaffney, 29, and her three children, Angela, 10, Tom, 8, and Amy, 7. The Gaffneys lived in a neighboring county.

Mrs. Gaffney's youngest child, Mandi, suffered a bump on the head, evidently when she was thrown to the floor of the family's pickup and shielded by her mother's body, Aleck said.

Post was "a real worker, and a little religious," Van Buskirk said. "You can't believe this would happen."

Post's body was found in the basement of the house on the family's 60-acre farm, which stands on an ice-covered dirt road 3½ miles west of Farwell. Mrs. Post and Mrs. Haggart were found in the dining area at the rear of the home.

Mrs. Gaffney and her children apparently tried to flee in the truck but were pursued and fired on, Aleck said.

Deputy Dan Duma, among the first to arrive at the scene, heard the infant crying and found her in the cab, Aleck said.

The shooting "appeared to be erratic and was done in a short time," the sheriff said. "There were some misses."

There was no sign of robbery or forced entry to the home, he added.

"A coffee pot was on the stove and it was about burned dry," Aleck said.

Another of the Posts' daughters, Alice Russell, and her husband, Mark Russell, went to visit the family Tuesday evening because Mrs. Haggart was in town, and after going to the home went to a close family friend, Ronald Pelch, in hysterics, Pelch said.

Pelch said he called police and then went to the Post home where he found the bodies. He said he ran outside and spotted the pickup, looked inside "and I saw all I wanted to see."

Pelch said Post's oldest son by his first marriage is a lieutenant in the Navy, stationed at Guam, and that funeral arrangements would await his return.

The killings were Michigan's worst multiple murder since June 1971, when eight people were slain in Detroit.

Actor Lee Majors Will Give House To Farrah

By LINDA DEUTSCH
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANELES (AP) — After a four-day court fight between actor Lee Majors and actress Farrah Fawcett over who should get the $2.5 million house they shared during their marriage, the couple resolved the dispute on their own, the presiding judge says.

With some loving words, Majors said he told his ex-wife she may remain in the Hollywood Hills mansion she has been living in since they separated.

The judge who presided over the court hearings said he was delighted the couple had buried the hatchet.

"I figured that if I gave them enough time, these two nice people would settle it themselves," Superior Court Judge Harry Shafer said Wednesday. "That was my strategy and it worked."

Shafer, who was contacted by Majors about the settlement, said Miss Fawcett would be allowed to buy out her ex-husband's share.

"She will still have to pay him for her share of the house. But he's going to let her stay there," Shafer said.

The judge immediately canceled his plan to visit the home himself in an effort to decide who should get it.

After a four-day hearing, Shafer granted Majors and Miss Fawcett a divorce Tuesday on grounds of irreconcilable differences and ruled the house was community property. But he said he couldn't decide who should live in it.

That night, Majors and Miss Fawcett went to dinner to discuss the situation.

"We met. We had a nice couple of hours' talk, reviewed 14 years of a nice relationship," Majors, 41-year-old star of ABC-TV's "The Fall Guy," said after the dinner with Miss Fawcett at La Serre restaurant in suburban Studio City. "It came about that maybe I took some pressure off the judge because I made the decision to give her the house."

"She deserves it," Majors said. "She's a nice lady, and I still love her very much."

Miss Fawcett, 35, who starred in TV shows "Charlie's Angels" and "Murder in Texas," had no comment.

Majors, who also starred in "The Six Million Dollar Man," bought the house for $198,000 on May 1, 1973 before the couple married. Majors claimed in the court action it was his property.

However, after their marriage July 28, 1973, the couple doubled the floor space from 5,000 to 10,000 square feet at an estimated cost of $1.5 million.

Shafer called it "not just an improvement, or even a massive overhaul. That's a new house." He said Majors was entitled to the $57,000 down payment he made on the house, but all equity paid into the house since their 1973 marriage was community property.

Hunt To Meet Local Officials

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt will meet with city, county and state leaders from throughout North Carolina on Friday to discuss the impact of President Reagan's "New Federalism" on local and state government.

Hunt said he asked for the meeting to help prepare him for the annual meeting of the National Governors Association, which begins Sunday in Washington. He said the meeting in Washington is expected to focus on the issue of New Federalism, which calls for many programs now handled by the federal government to be handed over to the states.

He said he plans to hold a public meeting with officers of the North Carolina Association of County Commissioners and the League of Municipalities at 11 a.m.

Special Factory For Famous Long Gray Line

ONE OF 4,000 UNIFORMS — John Murphy, who retired in January as head of 70 civilians who make the 4,000 uniforms for the U.S.

Military Academy, inspects the full dress coat being made by tailor John Leggio, left. (AP Laserphoto)

By PAT FERGUS
Associated Press Writer
WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP) — For more than 150 years, cadets at the U.S. Military Academy have studied, paraded, drilled and dined in what has become known as "cadet gray."

For nearly a long, tailors and seamstresses have stitched and snipped away in a factory on the academy grounds, turning stacks of gray cloth into the uniforms that give the cadets' famous "long gray line" its hue.

Today some 70 civilian federal employees keep that tradition going, producing about 4,000 uniforms a year for each incoming class of cadets.

"I don't think the cadets always appreciate how much work goes into their uniforms," said Gene Zarzycki, the factory manager.

Of the three U.S. armed forces academies, West Point is the only one to have either a uniform factory or a distinctive uniform just for undergraduates. Undergraduates at the Naval and Air Force academies wear variations of the regular Navy and Air Force uniforms, manufactured by private companies.

Gray was chosen as the color for cadets in 1816 to honor the gallantry of Gen. Winfield Scott, who led his gray-clad troops to a victory over the British two years earlier, during the War of 1812.

Not much of the design has changed over the years, said John Murphy, a 35-year factory employee who recently retired as its manager.

Even after women were admitted to the academy in 1976, the basic uniform design has remained the same, although it had to be adapted slightly, Murphy said.

Skirts were added for some occasions, but the only other changes were in size and shape, said Murphy. Women, like men, wear stacks when on parade.

In the old days, he said, cadet uniforms were much heavier — and the heavy wool uniforms were required attire summer or winter, even for gym class.

Today, Murphy said, the uniforms are a lighter weight wool and summer dress uniforms are cotton or a light polyester-wool blend. Cadets may now wear a black sweater instead of a gray jacket at some informal situations, such as classes or study sessions. In the 1950s, a black, hooded winter parka was added for winter.

New cadets, called fourth classmen or "plebes," are fitted in the summer for a wardrobe to last four years. The wardrobe consists of a long overcoat, a short overcoat, a full-dress coat, a winter parka, two dress coats, three pairs of heavyweight gray trousers, five pairs of lightweight gray trousers and six pairs of white trousers for warm weather.

All but the cadets' shirts, shoes, hats and accessories are manufactured at the academy uniform factory, and the considerable cost of proper cadet attire is covered by the cadets' annual stipend.

The short coat of the cadet's full-dress uniform — the most expensive item in the wardrobe — costs a cadet about $250. A long dress overcoat costs about $200.

Prices are "adjusted" as expenses rise, meaning they have gone up most years, said Zarzycki, although they are considerably below what non-military tailors would charge.

New cadets are fitted for their uniforms on "R-day," the day they arrive at the academy to register. It's also the day they have their hair cut to academy specifications and learn some basic drills.

That afternoon, they line up on the parade ground for the first time — shaven, shorn and in uniform.

"By 4:30 that day we have some kind of uniform on them," said Lt. Col. Stephen Seffins, the officer in charge of the academy store and the clothing factory. "They come

Slavery Suspect Pleads Innocent

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — A man accused of conspiring with three others to enslave migrant workers, causing one laborer to die, has pleaded innocent to charges against him.

Attorneys for Halsey Jose Norwood, 34, entered the plea during arraignment proceedings Tuesday before U.S. Magistrate F. Stuart Clarke in Fayetteville.

Norwood is charged with conspiracy to enslave workers resulting in the death of one laborer and with kidnaping a Raleigh man and taking him to a Nash County camp to work as a slave.

Norwood was arrested recently in Telfair County, Ga., by FBI agents and a local deputy. He had been sought to stand trial in January with three other migrant crew bosses.

Two of the three were convicted by a federal court jury in Raleigh of conspiring to hold workers as slaves at a Nash County farm, resulting in the death of one laborer. The third was found guilty of a lesser charge of conspiring to hold workers as slaves.

No trial date has been set for Norwood but a spokesman for the U.S. District Court clerk's office in Raleigh said the trial probably would be in April.

U.S. District Judge W. Earl Britt sentenced John Lester Harris, 39, of Bullock County, Ala., to life and three five-year terms to run consecutively. Harris was found guilty of conspiracy resulting in death, three counts of involuntary servitude and kidnaping a man to work as a slave.

Britt sentenced Dennis Warren, 19, to 20 years and two five-year terms to run concurrently. He was found guilty of conspiracy resulting in death and three counts of involuntary servitude.

Richard Wayne Warren, 22, brother of Dennis Warren, was sentenced to a split sentence, with six months to be served in prison and five years on probation for conviction on a lesser charge of conspiring to enslave workers. He also was convicted of one count of involuntary servitude.

The Warren brothers are from Orlando, Fla.

Housing Starts Dip In January

WASHINGTON (AP) — Housing starts in January dropped 0.6 percent after having risen slightly in December, says the Commerce Department.

Builders began work on new homes at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 894,000 in January, down 44 percent from the same month one year earlier, just before the industry fell into one of its worst years ever.

Wednesday's report revised December's increase to 4.5 percent from the 13.3 percent first reported. But the smaller figure was still a great improvement over big declines common earlier in 1981.

No Bond For Student In Possible Deportation

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A Salvadoran orphan who faces deportation because he didn't report changing high schools is not required to post any bond while he fights to stay here, a judge has ruled.

Marcos Flores-Handal, 18, had been arrested after he changed high schools with approval of school officials but without notifying the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service.

The $5,000 bond posted by the teen-ager's social studies teacher to free the youth must be returned, Administrative Law Judge Bernard Hornbeck ruled Wednesday.

Because the student's older brother is a U.S. citizen who lives on the San Francisco Peninsula, Flores-Handal should be free on his own recognizance until a deportation hearing March 17, Hornbeck said.

The teen-ager came to the United States on a student visa nearly two years ago, after his father was killed in El Salvador and his mother died a week later during cancer surgery.

He moved in with his brother, Rick, a security guard in Mountain View, about 65 miles south of San Francisco.

Flores-Handal attended Los Altos High School, where he starred on the school's soccer team and earned grades of "B-plus and A-minus despite the language barrier," said Paul Sakamoto, superintendent of Mountain View-Los Altos Union High School District.

Last fall, Flores-Handal moved in with a friend and transferred to a high school in Burlingame, about 15 miles north of Los Altos High.

Because he didn't report his transfer to the INS, the federal agency says he must be deported.

"It seems incredible" that he would be deported when his only violation is failure to inform the INS, Sakamoto said. Until the youth was arrested Feb. 8, school officials who had approved his transfer did not know it had to be reported, he said.

Sakamoto said Wednesday that a "reprimand or something of that sort to remind him (Flores-Handal)" of his obligation to report the transfer would be more appropriate.

Flores-Handal, who has since moved back to his brother's and has returned to Los Altos High School, hopes to graduate this June, go to college to study engineering and then return to El Salvador.

David Ilchert, district director of the INS in San Francisco, said the agency has been strictly enforcing all regulations of student visas for the past year and a half. Immigration officials are worried Flores-Handal might not return to El Salvador — as stipulated in his visa — because his parents are dead.

Sirens' Test Went Awry

LOUISA, Va. (AP) — State officials say tests of sirens at Virginia Electric & Power Co.'s North Anna nuclear power station are made by Vepco and county officials twice a month. This time, they went awry.

"It wasn't silent, and all 44 sirens were activated for the full three minutes. I don't know what happened," said Michael J. LaCivita, a spokesman for the state Office of Emergency and Energy Services.

The Emergency Broadcast System was activated when the 11 a.m. alarm went off Wednesday. WRVA Radio in Richmond, primary station in the EBS, alerted others that a message was coming.

At 11:15 a.m., the stations carried an announcement that there was no emergency, after all.

What was supposed to be a "silent" test of emergency warning sirens surrounding the nuclear power station turned out to be everything but silent.

When the 44 sirens in four counties within a 10-mile radius of the plant were cut on, they did what sirens normally do — loudly.

Not only was the state's EBS activated, but the noisy misfire frightened residents of the area.

The sirens are in Spotsylvania, Louisa, Orange and Hanover counties.

This wasn't the first problem Vepco has had with the North Anna warning system, completed last December.

Last month, a "silent" test resulted in noise at Vepco's Surry nuclear plant. And in the North Anna area, nine of the 44 sirens didn't go off in what was supposed to be a full-decibel test.

The contempt order Wednesday by the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals was aimed at Troxler Hosiery Co. of Greensboro, N.C., which acknowledged the shipment but said it was legal. The federal Consumer Products Safety Commission had labeled TRIS a hazardous substance because of laboratory tests showing it caused cancer in animals.

The company had no immediate comment on the order.

Apparently A Heart Victim

A 20-year-old East Carolina University student was dead on arrival at Pitt County Memorial Hospital's emergency room Wednesday night after suffering an apparent heart attack at Minges Coliseum just before the ECU-James Madison basketball game.

A hospital spokesman identified the student as Randy Earl Griffin of Tarboro, a resident of Scott Dorm on campus. Other officials said Griffin, under the care of a Tarboro physician, was known to have a congenital heart defect and had undergone surgery for the problem two times.

Basketball team trainers were called to the coliseum lobby to aid Griffin as players were being introduced before the 7:30 p.m. game. He was transported to the hospital by the Greenville Fire-Rescue Department.

James Madison Pounds Pirates, 61-43

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Just over five weeks ago, East Carolina's Pirates traveled up to Harrisonburg, Va., to face James Madison in what was then a key ECAC-South game.

It turned into a disaster for the Pirates, who were never able to get things together against the Dukes, losing 72-50. In that game, the Pirates shot their worst field goal percentage of the season to that point, 31.5.

Last night, the two teams met again, and the result wasn't much different. The Madison defense swarmed over the Pirates, forcing poor shot after poor shot and the result was another 18-point win for the Dukes, 61-43.

And the key fault of the Pirates was a new low in shooting percentage — 29 percent.

"I don't think that you can travel the 50 states and see a better coached team than James Madison," ECU Coach Dave Odom said afterwards. "They've got great talent, but their coaching and the way they play together is a great tribute to them."

"They were prepared in every way to take us out of everything we wanted to do. The way they play, you have to shoot a blazing percentage to stay with them, and obviously, we didn't shoot a blazing percentage."

The Pirates got off nearly twice as many shots, 62 to Madison's 32. But Madison hit on two more from the floor, 20 to ECU's 18, and that was one of the biggest differences. Madison's 20 of 32 gave them a red-hot 55.6 percent, which included a 12 for 15 second half — 80 percent.

Madison, too, made great strides at the foul line, hitting 21 of 25, while East Carolina, which didn't shoot a free throw until nearly five minutes into the second half, was only seven of 14.

It was a night in which none of the Pirates could seem to do right. A glance at the scoring would emphasize this. The leading scorers for the Pirates were Charles Green and Mike Fox — and Fox played only four minutes. Both hit eight points.

"We went into the game with the idea that we had to rebound well and shoot well," Odom said. "We rebounded well early, but we never did shoot decently."

East Carolina outbounded Madison, 17-16, in the first half, but Madison came back to control the boards overall, 35-32, led by eight by David Dupont — a guard. East Carolina was led by Morris Hargrove with six.

If there was any statistical category that Odom might have found solace in, it was turnovers, where the Pirates had only 11 and Madison collected 21.

"The fact that our players never quit is a tribute to them," Odom added. "But it's obvious that we need better communication between our players when we are playing against a team like Madison that changes defenses every time down the court. And that communication can't come from the bench — and it shouldn't at this point of the season."

"We didn't get good shots and our shot selection was poor," Odom continued. "Our ball handling was inadequate, but the worst thing was our decision making. Madison forces you to make decisions and we didn't make good ones."

In the first meeting of the two schools, East Carolina got off to a slow start, not scoring for some minutes.

This time, the Pirates did score early, but ended up scoring one less point in the first half than they did before. Madison was four short of its first game total in taking a 25-14 lead at intermission.

Big Dan Ruland, the 6-8, 240-pound Madison center put in two free throws (Madison was nine-for-nine in the first half at the line) to get things started after just 15 seconds.

East Carolina tied it up on a Green jumper 11 seconds later, but it was nearly three minutes later before Hargrove scored on a 20-footer, and another minute later before he hit a 20-footer for a 6-2 East Carolina lead.

But Ruland scored again and a three-point play by Charles Fisher with 13:54 left returned the lead to Madison, 7-6, and the Pirates never caught up again.

After moving out to an 11-6 lead, the Dukes saw the Pirates cut it back to three at 9:33 on a short jumper by Green, but that was followed by two free throws by Fisher and a short jumper by Linton Townes for a 15-8 margin. The Pirates thrice cut it back to five after that, but Dupont and Ruland each hit two free throws and Derek Steele maddened a 20-footer at the horn for the 11-point halftime spread.

It got no better in the second half, as Townes hit three quick baseline jumpers to run the margin out to 31-14 before Green finally broke the ice for the Pirates.

But East Carolina was never able to put anything together, and Madison slowly but surely pulled out to as much as a 26-point lead at 52-26 with 7:21 left on two more free throws by Dupont.

After that, both teams began to substitute, and the Pirates were able to trim eight off that lead before the final horn.

Townes, JMU's All-America candidate, led the scoring with 18 points, hitting nine of 12 from the floor. Ruland and Dupont each added ten points.

"We have to put this game behind us," Odom said, "and quickly get ready for Navy. Right now that's the biggest game of the year for us."

"We have improved, but we didn't show it tonight. I feel confident that for the remainder of the year the players will continue to hustle and improve," he concluded.

Greene Central Nips Jags In Four Overtimes

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer

FARMVILLE — The heads were down in the Farmville Central locker room Wednesday evening. No need. The Jaguars had no reason to apologize. Nor, obviously, did Greene Central.

Not after the two arch-rivals slugged it out for four quarters and then went at it for an exhausting four overtimes in the semifinals of the Eastern Carolina Conference tournament. It was a game whose intensity was obvious for all to see.

In the end Greene Central was the survivor, 73-71, but not before watching the Jaguars miss four shots in the final three seconds, any one of which would have forced the game into a fifth overtime.

The victory sends the top-seeded Rams into the tournament finals Friday night (9 p.m.) against the winner of tonight's North Pitt-Southern Nash semifinal clash.

Farmville Central, which needed a win over the Rams to gain a district berth, ends the season at 10-14.

"We gave it all we could," Farmville Central coach Mike Terrell said as he sat in his team's locker room afterwards. "In my 16 years of coaching this is one of the most courageous performances by a group of athletes I have ever seen."

"It seemed like to me — and maybe this is biased viewpoint — that they kept getting the breaks in the overtime. But we never quit," Terrell said. "I thought both teams gave all they possibly could give."

Greene Central coach Lewis Godwin did not totally agree. "I don't think we played all that well," he said. "We escaped. We had so many opportunities to win it and we didn't."

"We missed a lot of free throws that could have won it for us. I don't like taking a lot of credit when we miss free throws like that," he added. "We should never have been in that (overtime) situation."

"It just seems like we've got get behind by eight or nine points before we start playing. I don't know why."

Even with the lead Greene Central was shaky. The Rams, who never led in the first three quarters, went up by four points late in regulation only to watch the Jaguars tie the game at the buzzer on a tap-in by Farmville center Andrew Edwards.

Greene Central had a chance to win the game in the first and third overtimes, but failed to hit the front end of a one-and-one in the first overtime and hit only one of two foul shots in the third extra period and went into the fourth OT tied at 67-67.

A three-point play by guard James Thompson, who scored 20 of his team-high 24 points in the second half and the four overtimes, gave Greene Central a 70-67 lead 49 seconds into the fourth overtime.

Farmville cut the lead to one on a jumper by forward Melvin Sutton, but GC forward Roderick Lane countered with a baseline drive to put the Rams back up by three, 72-69, with 1:24 left.

Sutton followed his own miss to again cut the gap to one with a minute left. Both teams then missed jumpers before Lane was fouled by Bobby Carraway with eight seconds left.

Lane hit the first free throw but missed the second and forward Gary Hobgood pulled off the rebound and raced up court. Hobgood put up a jumper from about the foul line that missed. Two missed taps followed before Tony Hargrove laid the ball up for what proved the final time.

The ball rolled around the rim and seemed for an instant ready to go in before falling off to give the Rams the win and send the Farmville's starting five sprawling onto the floor in disappointment.

ECU Announces Signing Of 29 Football Recruits

East Carolina University football coach Ed Emory announced today the signing of 29 recruits to grants-in-aid, including 12 junior college players.

Leading the list from the in-state prep ranks are Greenville Rose all-America wide receiver Chris McLawhorn and Fayetteville Terry Sanford's running duo of Dwight Richardson and Pat Bowens.

Out-of-state, Emory and his staff brought in prep All-America Robert Alexander, a 6-4, 260-pound lineman of Fountain Springs, Pa., and blue chipper Randall Watts, a 6-7, 240-pound lineman out of Washington County High School in Sandersville, Ga.

From the junior college ranks, the Pirates plucked highly sought-after all-Americans Sam Norris, a 6-4, 220-pound free safety, and Barry Smith, a 6-7, 270-pound offensive tackle, both from San Francisco City College.

"It might look like we don't stack up because we recruited 12 junior college players. We're not worried about how anybody rates us as recruiters. We're just concerned about filling out depth requirements. We got great help at linebacker (four junior college transfers and Tarboro All-Stater Gerald Reynolds). That's probably the strength of our recruiting effort."

"I've said before that I felt we had a successful recruiting year before we even signed one high school recruit because of the 12 junior college kids we got. But the freshmen we got are outstanding."

Other area players include Larry Berry of New Bern High School, William Jennette of Belhaven Wilkinson, Reynolds and McLawhorn.

The recruits:

Offensive linemen: Mac Powers, 6-4, 260, junior, Ferrum Junior College; Barry Smith, 6-7, 270, junior, San Francisco City College; Robert Alexander, 6-4, 260, freshman, Cardinal Brendon High School, Fountain Springs, Pa.; Tim Dumas, 6-6, 260, freshman, East Guilford High School, Greensboro.

Tight ends: Richie Autry, 6-4, 230, freshman, Newton County (Ga.) High School; Bruce Shoemaker, 6-7, 215, freshman, Avery County High School, Newland.

Wide receivers: Amos Adams, 6-2, 200, freshman, Southwest Guilford High School; Stuart Ramirez, 6-1, 200, sophomore, San Francisco City College; Chris McLawhorn, 6-4, 180, Rose High School.

Quarterback: Brian Herndon, 6-2, 190, freshman, Greensboro Grimsley.

Running backs: Larry Berry, 6-0, 205, freshman, New Bern High School; Tony Baker, 5-10, 175, freshman, High Point Andrews; Mark Franklin, 6-0, 205, junior, San Francisco City College; Pat Bowens, 5-10, 190, freshman, Fayetteville Terry Sanford, Dwight Richardson, 6-0, 185, freshman, Fayetteville Terry Sanford.

Defensive linemen: Darryl Ramsey, 6-3, 250, freshman, McKinley High School, Washington, D.C.; David Plum, 6-3, 235, freshman, Raleigh Millbrook High School; William Jennette, 6-6, 255, freshman, Belhaven Wilkinson; Randall Watts, 6-7, 240, freshman, Washington County (Ga.) High School.

Defensive ends: Curtis Wyatt, 6-1, 220, junior, Long Beach State; Robert Pittman, 6-3, 225, sophomore, San Francisco City College.

Defensive backs: Sam Norris, 6-4, 220, junior, San Francisco City College; Adrian Waters, 5-10, 170, junior, San Francisco City College.

Linebackers: Chris Santa Cruz, 6-5, 225, junior, Hines Junior College, Mississippi; Marty Carlson, 6-2, 240, junior, Ferrum Junior College; John Columbia, 6-3, 235, sophomore, Nassau Junior College; Dwayne Anderson, 6-2, 235, junior, Southwest Los Angeles Junior College; Gerald Reynolds, 6-1, 205, freshman, Tarboro High School.

Kicker: Jeff Heath, 6-0, 190, freshman, First Colonial High School, Virginia Beach, Va.

Heels Get Revenge Over Wake, 69-51

By The Associated Press
North Carolina's feared frontcourt tandem of James Worthy and Sam Perkins was red-hot Wednesday night. That issue settled, the second-ranked Tar Heels' 69-51 Atlantic Coast Conference victory over Wake Forest was almost a foregone conclusion. Worthy scored 23 points, hitting 10 of 15 from the floor and 3 of 4 free throws, and grabbed nine rebounds while Perkins hit 17 points and had a game-high 10 rebounds. Their performances, combined with the usual stifling North Carolina defense and a slow Demon Deacon start, helped the Tar Heels stay one game behind Virginia in the ACC regular-season race. In the only other ACC game

Wednesday, Clemson won its second straight game after losing three straight, topping Maryland 75-66.

"We had great play out of James Worthy, all our ballplayers," North Carolina coach Dean Smith said. "Worthy was fantastic. He is coming on like gangbusters."

"Worthy played an extremely good game," echoed Wake Forest coach Carl Tacy, whose team was in trouble from the outset thanks largely to Worthy. The 6-foot-9 junior forward started the game with a 12-foot jump shot and quickly hit three more as the Tar Heels took a 13-8 lead which stretched to 31-22 at halftime.

"We knew they would get out of the blocks fast," Tacy said. "We wanted to do the same thing. Fortunately for them, their plan worked a lot better than our game plan did for us."

combined for 53 points and scored 28 of the Tigers' first-half points.

"Give Clemson credit — they beat us," Terrapin coach Lefty Driesell said. "There's not a whole lot left to say."

"Clemson controlled the game from the tip and made us do things we don't do very well. We didn't play with poise, and we never really got in the ball game."

Southwest Rips Greene Central

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer
FARMVILLE — Southwest Edgecombe began its march toward what it hopes will be a second straight 3-A state championship Wednesday evening with its 55th straight victory.

Mabry had eight points in the first half while Bridget Jenkins and Melody Jenkins had seven each. Bridget finished with 13 points while Melody and Janice Draughn ended up with 10 points each.

The second half was only a formality. The Lady Rams, without leading scorer Leatha Taylor, ruled academically ineligible last month, were no match for the talented Lady Cougars.

Southwest scored 39 points in the final two periods — 23 in the third period — while Greene Central managed just 13 points. So thorough was the defeat no Lady Ram scored more than seven points.

"They're just a good team," Greene Central coach Brenda Dail said. "We were hoping we could go out and get some good movement on offense early and score and maybe hold the ball."

"But we had trouble handling the ball and couldn't do it. I don't think our girls gave up, though. I'm glad about that."

Turnovers: N. Carolina 13, Wake Forest 14.
Officials: Nichols, Tytus, Brown.

North Carolina played well from start to finish, hitting 60 percent of its shots in both halves. The Tar Heels didn't falter a bit when they abruptly changed the tempo with 10 minutes left, running a delay offense that brought them several back-door layups.

The Deacons, harassed by man-to-man pressure defense which gave way to a 1-3-1 zone midway through the first half, shot only 38.8 percent from the floor.

The victory, which upped North Carolina's record to 21-2 and 9-2 in the ACC, avenged a 55-48 loss to Wake Forest in Chapel Hill earlier this year.

"Forget that game," said Worthy, who added, "But that gave us a little added incentive. We wanted to get back at them."

The lone bright spot for the Deacons, who fell to 17-6 and 7-4 in the ACC, was Guy Morgan, who had 23 points and 8 rebounds.

"Guy Morgan ... continued to play well," Tacy said. "If we can get Helms and Johnstone back to their normal games, we'll play much better basketball."

Clemson raced to an early lead over Maryland, led by Fred Gilliam, Horace Wyatt and Vincent Hamilton, who combined for 53 points and scored 28 of the Tigers' first-half points.

"Give Clemson credit — they beat us," Terrapin coach Lefty Driesell said. "There's not a whole lot left to say."

"Clemson controlled the game from the tip and made us do things we don't do very well. We didn't play with poise, and we never really got in the ball game."

Much of the second-half shooting took place at the foul line, as Maryland was called for 27 fouls and the Tigers hit 21 of 23 free throws. Many of the fouls came after Clemson coach Bill Foster ordered his team into a spread offense.

"We went into it with about four minutes to go and didn't give up a turnover, and we got either baskets or free throws out of it," he said. "We didn't hit all our free throws but we hit enough of them."

Gilliam had 19 points while Wyatt and Hamilton added 17 apiece. Maryland's Adrian Branch led all scorers with 21 points.

Clemson is 13-10 and 4-8 in the ACC, while Maryland dropped to 14-9 and 4-7 in the conference.

Baby Bucs Win Third

East Carolina's junior varsity basketball team won its third straight game last night, gaining a 74-59 victory over Mt. Olive Junior College.

Bill McNair led the Pirate scoring with 26 points as East Carolina pulled away in the second half after leading only 35-33 at intermission.

The big difference in the game was the rebounding and floor play of the Pirates. East Carolina, paced by McNair's 16 boards, led in that department, 42-34. The Pirates also had only ten turnovers as compared to 18 by the Trojans.

In addition to the scoring of McNair, Herb Gilchrist dumped in 17 points, while Jeff Best had 14 (plus nine rebounds) and Mike Fox had 13.

Mt. Olive's scoring was led by Tony Anderson with 18, while Victor Graham had 11.

The victory moved the ECU record to 3-1, while Mt. Olive dropped to 15-8.

Reinhard Leads In Freestyle

East Carolina's Lady Pirate swimming team, led by Sally Reinhard's number one ranking in the 200-yard freestyle, has posted a number of nationally ranked Division II times, according to Swimming World.

The ratings include times recorded through February 8, 1982.

GCA Hosts ECCC Event

Greenville Christian Academy will play host to the Eastern Carolina Christian Conference tournament on Friday and Saturday. Three games will be held each night, starting at 5 p.m.

Friday night, Greenville Christian's girls will face Mt. Calvary in the 5 p.m. game. The winner then meets Falls Road, the regular season winner, in the championship game at 5 p.m. Saturday. Falls Road received a bye into the championship game.

In the second game of the evening Friday, at 6:30 p.m., Faith Christian's boys will meet Falls Road. That will be followed at 8 p.m. by the other boys game between regular season champ Greenville Christian and Goldsboro Christian.

The two losers will meet for the consolation title at 6:30 p.m. Saturday, while the winners meet for the title at 8 p.m.

Greenville Christian rolled to an 8-0 record in conference games, and is currently 15-1 on the season.

The tournament winner does not automatically advance to the district tournament, but individual teams attend by invitation, based on record.

Reinhard has a 1:56.60 time in the 200-freestyle, ranking tops in the country. She is also third in the 500-freestyle in 5:10.50; and second in the 1,000-freestyle in 10:37.28.

The Lady Pirates also have three relay teams that are ranked number one in the country. Nan George, Jennifer Hayes, Moria McHugh and Nancy James team up to lead the country in the 200-freestyle in 1:39.74. George, Nancy Rogers, McHugh and James are also first in the 400 freestyle in 3:38.12, while Reinhard, Sally Collins, Rogers and James have teamed up in the 800-freestyle for a 7:54.27 time.

George is currently third in Division II in the 50-freestyle in 24.75, while McHugh ranks fifth in 24.87.

McHugh is fourth in the 100-freestyle in 54.21, while Rogers is eighth (54.47); George is 11th (54.71) and James is 12th (54.73).

Joining Reinhard in the 200-freestyle rankings is Collins, 11th in 1:58.81, and Rogers, 12th in 1:59.90.

Jays is third in the 50-backstroke in 28.30, while Luanne Peura is tied for 11th in 29.30.

Jays is fourth in the 100-backstroke in 1:01.40, while James is fifth in the 50-butterfly in 27.46. Collins ranks ninth in the 200-individual medley in 2:16.20.

The 200-medley relay team of Jays, Hannelore Koehler, James and George is eighth in 1:53.90, while the 400-medley team of Jays, Koehler, James and George is fifth in 4:09.79.

East Carolina's women are currently 5-4 in dual meets and are competing in the UNC-Wilmington Seahawk Invitational this weekend.

Rams Nip Jaguars In Overtime...

games like this," Terrell said. "Either team could have won. This has got to be one of our best games of the year. I can't remember a better one."

Greene Central hit 30 of 59 (50.8%) from the floor but won it at the foul line where the Rams hit 13 of 22. Farmville was 34 of 72 (47.2%) and three of eight from the foul line. The Jaguars shot only two free throws in the second half and never were in the one-and-one.

Sutton led Farmville in scoring with a game-high 25 points. Edwards added 20 points and Hobgood 14 for the Jaguars. Joining Thompson in double figures for Greene Central was Lane with 22. Lane also had 10 rebounds, five assists, three steals and four blocked shots. Thompson also had seven rebounds.

Edwards pulled down a game-high 11 rebounds to help the Jaguars rebound Greene Central, 37-27. Sutton had nine rebounds and Hobgood six.

For three periods the Jaguars controlled the game. With Sutton scoring five points and Hobgood four, Farmville led, 15-9, at the end of the first eight minutes.

Greene Central closed to within one (17-16) on five straight points by Lane midway through the second period but two buckets by Sutton helped lift the Jaguars to a 29-24 lead the half.

The Rams again closed to within one (31-30) early in the third period but three jumpers by Hobgood left the Jaguars on top, 43-40, at the end of the quarter.

It was not until center Cepado Albritton hit a short jumper to give the Rams a 46-45 lead with 4:53 left in regulation. The Jaguars regained the lead at 51-50 on a bucket by Edwards with 1:24 left. After the score, Edwards started up court only to fall to the floor with an injury.

With Terrell and assistant coach Stewart Miller screaming for the officials to stop play, the Rams proceeded to score on a follow shot by forward John Ray and regain the lead, 52-51.

Back up court, meanwhile, Miller was whistled for a technical. "Our player was on the court in pain and coach Miller threw the towel down — not at the official but at Andrew," Terrell said. "I tried to tell the official that, but he said he couldn't let him get away with it."

"That was a crucial point," Terrell said. "We had a one point lead and they scored and went ahead. If there was one crucial point in the game that may have been it."

Lane hit one of the two technical free throws and then Ray worked inside for a bucket and suddenly the Rams led, 55-51, with 1:03 left. Hobgood's jumper from just beyond the foul line cut the deficit to 55-53 and when Ray missed the front end of a one-and-one with 35 seconds left the Jaguars had the ball with a chance to tie.

Four shots went up on the glass — two by Edwards — but none fell. When the final shot fell off a jump ball between Lane and Sutton was called.

Lane got the tap, but GC guard Boneree Johnson lost the ball out of bounds with eight seconds left.

After a Farmville time out, Carraway put up a twisting jumper from the foul line that missed. But Edwards tapped the miss through the net as the buzzer sounded to send the game into overtime tied at 55-55.

Edwards gave the Jaguars the lead five seconds into the overtime with a layup off the tap, but Thompson hit a jumper to knot the score at 57-57 with 1:39 to go.

Neither team scored again in the overtime. The Rams had a chance to end the game when Edwards was called for his fifth foul with two seconds left, but Albritton missed the front end of a one-and-one.

After the foul Lane went to the line. He was removed, however, and only after Ray too was taken off the line did Albritton step up to the foul line. Later, an official admitted Lane should have shot the free throws.

The Rams got the tap to begin the second overtime but it was the Jaguars who took the initial lead when Hobgood feed Sutton inside for a bucket with two minutes left.

Thompson countered with a jumper from the left and the Rams took the lead at 61-59 10 seconds later two free throws by Albritton with 1:27 to go in the second three-minute overtime.

Again, however, the Jaguars tied it up by working the ball inside. This time Carraway looped the ball inside to Tony Hargrove, who replaced Edwards, for a bucket to tie the game at 61-61 with 1:05 left.

Which is where the overtime period ended. In the third overtime, Thompson hit one free throw and Lane put in the missed second shot to give the Rams a 64-61 lead 29 seconds into the third overtime.

However, Sutton canned two straight jumpers to pull the Jaguars within one (66-65) with 53 seconds to go. Carraway then hit a jumper from the right baseline to put Farmville up, 67-66, with 14 seconds left.

Carraway was called for a blocking foul on Lane as the Rams rushed back up court. Lane hit the first to tie it up with nine seconds left, but missed the second and the game headed into its fourth and final overtime.

"I've never been in a four overtime game and I hope I never am in another one," Godwin said. "I felt like after the first tap-in (by Edwards) there wasn't any way we could win."

"Then, when we had (the first) three-point lead in overtime I thought we were gonna win and we didn't," he added. "We had a lot of opportunities and it never should have gone into overtime."

Farmville Central (71) — Sutton 12 1-3 25; Gordon 1 0-0 2; Barnes 0 0-0 0; Edwards 10 0-2 20; Carraway 3 0-1 6; Hobgood 7 0-0 14; Hargrove 12 2-4; Totals 34 3-7 71.

Boston College Surprises Georgetown

By The Associated Press
The North Carolina Tar Heels can put a team to sleep with their slowdown, four-corner offense.

Wednesday night they didn't stand around too often.

"We played an almost perfect game," said forward James Worthy after the nation's second-ranked college basketball team got off to a quick start and rolled past No. 14 Wake Forest, 69-51.

"We knew they would get out of the blocks very fast," said Wake Forest Coach Carl Tacy. "We wanted to do the same thing. Unfortunately it worked a lot better for them than our game plan did."

Worthy led the fast-paced North Carolina attack with 23 points while Sam Perkins put in 17 to help the Tar Heels avenge an earlier defeat by the Demon Deacons.

"They got us once and it gave us a little extra incentive," said Worthy.

The Tar Heels' nine-point halftime lead was threatened briefly when a Scott Davis jumper pulled the Demon Deacons to within 42-34 at the 11:17 mark. But the Tar Heels then instituted a variation of their four-corner offense and broke away.

Worthy slammed home two successive baskets to expand the Tar Heel edge to 46-35. Matt Doherty then got behind the Deacon defense for another basket, while Jimmy Black also scored. Perkins added two layouts and the Tar Heels found themselves in command 54-41 with 3:34 to play.

Guy Morgan provided the main offense for Wake Forest with 23 points before fouling out with 2:21 left.

Meanwhile, Boston College upset No. 13 Georgetown 80-71 and Oklahoma State surprised No. 18 Kansas State 72-62. In other games involving the nation's ranked teams, it was No. 3 DePaul 74, Detroit 70; No. 10 Kentucky 84, Florida 78 and No. 19 Alabama 99, Georgia 85.

The Top Twenty

Terry Cummings scored 22 points to lead DePaul over Detroit. The triumph improved DePaul's record to 24-1 and extended the Blue Demons' winning streak to 19 games.

Detroit's best shot at an upset came in the first half, when the Titans led by as many as five points, 29-24, with 5:31 remaining. But DePaul chipped away behind the steady front-line work of Cummings and guard Skip Dillard, moved into a 38-35 lead at the half and never relinquished it.

Derrick Hord scored 10 of his 17 points in the first half as Kentucky built a 16-point lead at intermission and held off Florida.

"Thank goodness for the 44-28 halftime lead," said Kentucky Coach Joe B. Hall. "We needed it. The second half, we were a different ballclub. That could be partly my fault. I kept them in the same aggressive frame of mind and they tired."

John Bagley's 26 points led a torrid Boston College attack as the Eagles held off a furious

Georgetown rally and upset the Hoyas. The Eagles, shooting 71 per cent from the field for the game, took an 11-10 lead six minutes into the contest and never trailed again.

Georgetown rallied behind freshman sensation Pat Ewing, who scored a career-high 23 points, but never could catch up with its Big East opponent.

Matt Clark scored all of his 17 points in the second half as Oklahoma State surprised Kansas State. The Cowboys hit 24 of 28 free throws and shot 61 percent from the field in the second half. The Cowboys also outrebounded Kansas State 20-5 after intermission.

"We started moving around more in the second half, which freed me for more shots," Clark said. "I guess overall, the second half was my best ball game."

Mike Davis scored 18 of his 20 points in the second half, including 11 during one three-minute stretch, as Alabama crushed Georgia. The Crimson Tide, snapping a three-game losing streak, took control with less than 12 minutes remaining when it got six points off a technical foul on the Georgia bench to stretch a 56-53 lead to 62-53 with 11:11 left in the game.

"We played well, better than we have in a while," said Alabama Coach Wimp Sanderson. "It's easy to lose three in a row in this league, though. When you play away from home and you don't play well, you'll lose."

Unranked Teams

Elswhere, John Williams scored 21 points as Tulane overwhelmed Southern Mississippi 74-62; an 18-point performance by Linton Townes paced James Madison over East Carolina 61-42; Mel Daniel and George Singleton each scored 19 points to lead Furman over Davidson 62-44; Jeff Pehl's 19 points paced Richmond over George Mason 68-59 and Old Dominion whipped William & Mary 66-45 as Mark West scored 14 points and blocked 10 shots.

Also, Michael Brooks hit two free throws with 14 seconds left to lift Tennessee past Mississippi State 50-48; John Pinone's 23 points led Villanova over Syracuse 81-69; Rory White scored 25 points and South Alabama dominated the backboards to beat North Carolina-Charlotte 73-68; Randy Coker scored 21 points and Monty Knight added 20 as Virginia Commonwealth defeated Jacksonville 81-73 and Odell Mosteller scored 22 points as Auburn whipped LSU 82-72.

Fred Gilliam scored 19 points as Clemson coasted to a 75-66 victory over Maryland; Riley Claria scored 19 points and ignited Long Island University on a 14-point run late in the game that powered the Blackbirds to an 80-66 victory over South Florida; Bryan Warrick scored six straight points to give St. Joseph's (Pa.) a nine-point lead late in the game and the Hawks held on to beat Fordham 65-54 and Lafayette Adams hit a layup with two seconds remaining in the fifth overtime period to lift Georgia Southern to a 62-60 victory over Augusta College.

Conley Teams Romp Into Finals

VANCEBORO — Keith Gatlin poured in 31 points to pace D.H. Conley's Vikings to a 61-36 romp over fourth-seeded North Lenoir in the semifinal round of the Coastal Conference tournament being played at West Craven High School.

Conley's girls, like the boys, seeded first in the tournament, also had an easy time, rolling over fourth-seeded Havelock, 64-44.

Tonight, in the conclusion of the semifinal bracket, West Carteret's girls face North Lenoir, while West Craven's boys face West Carteret. The two winners advance into Friday's finals against the Vikings and Valkyries.

Conley's boys wasted little time in setting themselves up for the victory, rolling out to a 16-6 lead in the first period of the contest. North Lenoir put on a mini-rally in the second period, outshooting the Vikings, 12-10, but still trailed, 26-18, at halftime.

The Vikings continued their pace in the third period with another big frame, 16-6, and that ran their lead out to 42-24. They finished off the Hawks, 19-12, to wrap up the victory.

"We had a good shooting night," Coach Shelly Marsh said. "We played a good defensive game too. The real difference in the game was that our reserves came in and did a real good job. We kept them out of the middle in the second half very well. They got only seven field goals in the second half."

In addition to the 31 points of Gatlin, which came on 14 of 22 field goals and three of four free throws, Sammy Tyson dumped in 11 and had 13 rebounds, while Gatlin had seven rebounds. North Lenoir was led by Maurice Thorbes with 11 points.

Conley's girls took a little longer to shake loose Havelock. The score was knotted at 12-12 after one period, and Conley managed only a 17-15 margin in the second quarter. That left the Valkyries up, 29-27, at intermission.

In the third quarter, however, Conley began to pull away, outscoring Havelock, 13-8. That made it 42-35. Then, in the final quarter, the Valkyries blitzed Havelock, 22-9, turning it into a romp.

Mechko Kornegay led Conley's scoring with 18 points, while Darlene Cannon and Karen Barrett each had 12 and Cheryl Thompson had 10. Havelock was led by Jenny Dail and Susan Childers with 13 each and Monica Johnson with ten.

The top four teams in the tournament advance to the district next week at Ayden-Grifton.

Valkyries, Aces Win

WILLIAMSTON — Tarboro's girls and Edenton's boys advanced into the semifinals of the Northeastern Conference tournament, with victories last night in Williamston.

Tarboro's girls, seeded fifth, upset Edenton, seeded fourth, 47-31. Tarboro will now face Plymouth in tonight's girls' semifinal contest.

In the boys' game, Edenton, the number four seed, downed fifth seed Plymouth, 56-53. Edenton meets Roanoke tonight in the other semifinal game.

The semifinals continue on Friday, and Bertie and Tarboro meeting in boys' action, and Williamston and Roanoke colliding in the girls' division.

The championship games are Saturday night.

Seeds In Victories

WASHINGTON — The field was reduced to four last night in the first round of the Tobacco Belt Conference tournament, as Chocowinity, Columbia, Mattamuskeet and Belhaven, the top seeded teams, all won.

Number one Chocowinity downed Jamesville, 86-53, while number four Columbia topped Bath, 67-55. The two winners meet on Thursday night in Washington for the right to advance to the finals on Saturday night.

In the other bracket, number three Mattamuskeet topped Aurora, 84-58, while Belhaven, number two, downed Creswell, 54-35. Those two meet Friday for the other finalists' berth.

Play tonight also includes a girls' matchup between Belhaven and Bear Grass, while Chocowinity and Jamesville meet in a Friday girls' game.

FSU Troubles Growing

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Florida State's troubled basketball program has come under new fire, this time from a former cheerleader who says she was sent on a recruiting trip paid for by the university.

The allegations came to light Wednesday when a taped interview with the woman was made public at a meeting of an ad hoc university committee investigating charges leveled by former guard James Bozeman, a senior who quit in December.

On a tape that contains numerous allegations, the young woman said she accompanied part-time assistant coach Frank Gilmore on a university-funded recruiting trip to Chicago in 1979.

Before the tape was played, Gilmore told the panel under questioning that he had seen the young woman at a high school basketball game in the Chicago area, but he did not know how she got there.

Gilmore, the brother of Chicago Bulls' star Artis Gilmore and FSU basketball player Oren Gilmore, said he had met the woman once at a basketball practice.

In response to questioning, Gilmore said he saw her only at the Bloom Township High School game and did not meet her later at a restaurant with the recruit, as she alleges.

The recruit and the woman met in late 1978 when he made a trip to campus as a prospective player and they continued to communicate by telephone, according to the tape.

Gilmore also said he had never paid for an airline ticket for the woman and had no knowledge of any woman being used by the basketball program for recruiting purposes.

Coach Joe Williams said he called the recruit, who did not attend FSU, about the incident and was told the young woman went to Chicago.

"She visited him up there but it was his understanding that she paid her way up," he said.

Williams, in his fourth season with the Seminoles, has denied previous appearances before the panel that women were used to recruit players.

Among the charges made by the female student on tape was the allegation that Williams asked her to go to Chicago after she was invited by the recruit.

"And he (Williams) told me I wouldn't have to pay for anything. He would pay for it all," the tape said.

"Me and Frank Gilmore walked into the airport. He did the transaction with the lady at the desk," she said on the tape, which was a remake of the original to protect the woman's identity.

"The whole thing was really innocent and naive because I didn't know I was being used for Coach Williams' recruiting purposes," said the woman, who added she felt she was being used after arriving in Chicago.

"We both (she and the recruit) felt we were being used by Coach Williams," the tape said. "I regret doing what I did because I was so naive at the time."

An air of secrecy surrounded the taped interview. Bob Leach, committee chairman and FSU vice president for student affairs, said the original tape wasn't made with the committee's knowledge.

But he refused to say who conducted the interview with the woman or whether she had

Next Century Social Security Benefits Will Soar

By CHRISTOPHER CONNELL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Social Security study projects that the average working man who retires in the middle of the next century could get benefits ranging from $119,000 to $403,000 a year.

At the same time, the average woman is expected to get from $77,000 to $268,000, or about two-thirds of what men receive. That is the same disparity that exists today.

For both sexes, the lower amounts could be the better deal. They are based on optimistic assumptions used by Social Security's trustees that assume long-range inflation of only 2 percent a year and workers' wages growing 4.5 percent annually.

That means prices in the middle of the next century would be only 4.5 times higher than today, but wages would be nearly 25 times higher.

The trustee's pessimistic forecast of 5 percent inflation and 6 percent wage growth would yield the $403,000 average benefit for men and $268,000 for women. Under those assumptions, prices would be 45.9 times higher and wages 80.5 times higher than today's levels.

Steven F. McKay, a Social Security actuary, prepared the long-range projections of average benefits under the various economic and demographic scenarios used by the system's trustees in their 1981 report to Congress.

McKay took actual work histories of 1,378 beneficiaries in 1977 and projected what they might draw from the system in the future.

The projections were published in the January issue of the Social Security Bulletin, a monthly magazine.

McKay said in an interview Wednesday, "A lot of people were expecting (the gap between benefits for men and women) to close somewhat. They didn't really do that."

The average male who retired last year got $5,595 in annual benefits, while the average woman got $3,629, or 65 percent of the man's benefits.

Under the trustee's so-called "II-B" intermediate assumptions, the average male retiring in 2050 will get $231,895 and the average female $153,503, or 66 percent.

McKay said that in the future, a higher proportion of women will get benefits in their own right, instead of as wives or widows. Some will draw top benefits, but the average benefit will be held down by "more women coming in at the bottom with low benefits," said McKay, who emphasized the uncertainty that any of his projections will hold up.

Rep. Mary Rose Oskar, D-Ohio, who heads a House aging committee task force on Social Security and women, said, "For women, it's not going to get any better. There's no current commitment to correct the problems."

She said most old people living in poverty are women, and they "will be even poorer in the year 2050."

More than half of all women work outside the home today, compared with 27 percent in 1940.

The trustees used four sets of long-range assumptions last year: Alternative I, or the optimistic set; intermediate II-A and II-B, which shared the same demographic assumptions, but II-A assumed a more robust economic performance, and III, the pessimistic assumptions.

Under Alternative I, McKay's study projects the following gaps between benefits paid to newly retired male and female workers:

— 1990 $8,521 for men, $5,236 for women; 2000 $13,022, $7,954; 2020 $31,640, $20,550; 2050, $118,999, $77,302.

Under Alternative II-A:
— 1990 $8,813 for men, $5,408 for women; 2000 $14,257, $8,717; 2020 $38,141, $24,801; 2050, $165,547, $108,629.

Under Alternative II-B:
— 1990 $9,562 for men, $5,919 for women; 2000 $15,776, $9,735; 2020 $46,431, $30,398; 2050, $231,895, $153,503.

Under Alternative III:
— 1990 $11,687 for men, $7,283 for women; 2000 $21,596, $13,403; 2020 $70,016, $45,996; 2050, $403,218, $267,706.

The II-B intermediate assumptions are based on inflation rising only 4 percent a year while workers' wages rise 5.5 percent. If that holds true, workers' wages in 2050 will be 47.5 times higher than now, but prices only 19.1 times higher.

Under those assumptions, "low" income workers would be earning $431,723 a year by 2050, "average" workers $856,601 and those who pay the maximum Social Security tax $2,000,100. Social Security would award a maximum annual benefit of nearly $536,000 that year.

Hopscotch Spree

NEW YORK (AP) — A pinnacle of playground performance was achieved by a San Francisco father and son who hopped their way into the record books with an 87-hour hopscotch spree.

Joey Bavaresco, a 46-year-old radio and television personality, and his 15-year-old son, Shawn, started their assault on the old record of 72 hours on Valentine's Day in a hallway near the Guinness Book of World Records museum in the Empire State Building.

The two took turns on brightly colored hopscotch boards. They napped in turns on cots in the hallway, and they were fortified by sandwiches and cakes brought by well-wishers.

They called it quits at 3 p.m. Wednesday.

"We wanted to get so far ahead of 72 hours that nobody could touch us," said the elder Bavaresco.

Bavaresco, who suffered a heart attack about two years ago, said he started playing hopscotch in 1980 after actor Walter Matthau appeared on his television show to promote the movie "Hopscotch."

Soon after, Bavaresco hopped for 72 hours in a benefit for cerebral palsy. But that feat didn't make it into the record book because it requires that hopscotch be played by one or more pairs.

The old record was held by five couples who participated in a hopscotch marathon in New South Wales, Australia in 1981.

Starting Young

CHALFONT ST. GILES, England (AP) — Three girls ran away from authorities after being picked up for allegedly stealing $4,500 from a pub, police said.

A police spokesman said Wednesday that the girls, one age 6 and the others both 8, were picked up after the money was stolen Tuesday from a safe in a pub in this Buckinghamshire village west of London. The money was later found under some rocks, he said.

The girls, who were not identified, were held overnight in the local police station before being turned over to the county Social Services Department, which reported them missing Wednesday.

Irish Prisoners Won't Wear Prison Uniforms

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — In a demand for the chance to be released on bail, five Irish nationalists accused of trying to enter the United States illegally are refusing to wear jailhouse clothing — and one of them has launched a hunger strike.

Edward Howell, 34, of Belfast, Northern Ireland, refused to eat three meals delivered to his cell Wednesday, said Frank Festa, superintendent of the Erie County Correctional Facility in nearby Alden.

In addition, Howell and the four others have discarded their prison uniforms and are covering themselves only with bedsheets and towels, Festa said.

"They are in the buff," he said.

Festa denied allegations by the five — Howell, an Irish citizen and three former Northern Ireland residents now living in Canada — that they were kept in solitary confinement 15 to 20 hours a day. "They are housed in cells in the same area and are free to talk to each other," he said.

After the men were arrested at the U.S.-Canadian border Feb. 6, Benedict J. Ferro, head of the Buffalo office of the Immigration and Naturalization Service, said investigators had evidence the five were trying to enter the United States to buy arms and ammunition for the outlawed Irish Republican Army.

A federal grand jury indicted the men on criminal charges Tuesday. The men also face civil charges. They have been held without bail.

Arrestment on the criminal charges was scheduled for today before U.S. Magistrate Edmund Maxwell.

In a nine-page handwritten statement Tuesday, the five defendants said Howell would begin the hunger strike and every fifth day another prisoner would join the strike "until our just and reasonable demands ... are met."

The prisoners complained of being required to wear prison uniforms although "we have not been convicted of any criminal offense."

The five charged that the "delaying tactics" of immigration officials "are being dictated by the State Department in its policy of slavish cooperation with the British government in an attempt to deter other Irish nationalists from entering the country."

INDUCTED

RALEIGH — Marvin Bruce Owen Jr. was inducted recently into the N.C. State chapter of Alpha Gamma Rho, a socio-professional agriculture fraternity. Owen is the son of Ms. Carol Smith and attended J.H. Rose High School.

in Northern Ireland died last year during a hunger strike that sought, unsuccessfully, to win them political prisoner status.

In the federal indictment, Howell and Desmond Ellis, 29, of Dublin, were charged with making false statements. Ellis was also indicted on a charge of presenting false documents.

The other three — William O'Neill, 29, James Kelly, 41, and William Gilroy, 36, all formerly of Belfast but now living in Saint Catharines, Ontario — were indicted on two counts each of smuggling aliens.

City Counts 3 Accidents

An estimated $2,700 property damage resulted from three traffic mishaps investigated by Greenville police Wednesday.

Officers said an estimated $500 damage resulted to each of two cars involved in a 3:26 p.m. collision on Memorial Drive, 54 feet south of the Greenville Boulevard intersection. Drivers of the vehicles were identified as Dwayne Eric Tomlinson of 205B Eastbrook Drive and Barbara Schults Smyth of 104 Hawthorn Drive.

About the same time, cars driven by Rena McLawhorn Prayer of 100F Lakeview Terrace and Elizabeth Taft Grimes of Winterville collided on Memorial Drive, 1,000 feet south of the Greenville Boulevard intersection, causing an estimated $400 damage to the Prayer car and $300 damage to the Grimes car.

Police said cars driven by Charles Haymore Larkin III of Kinston and Dorothy Taylor Yost of 1202 Franklin Drive collided about 5:32 p.m. at the intersection of Emergency Room Road and Beasley Drive, causing an estimated $400 damage to the Larkin car and $600 damage to the Yost vehicle.

Workshop To Be Held March 18

"Reading and Writing: The Connection," a workshop program for teachers, will be sponsored by the East Carolina University School of Education and Division of Continuing Education March 18.

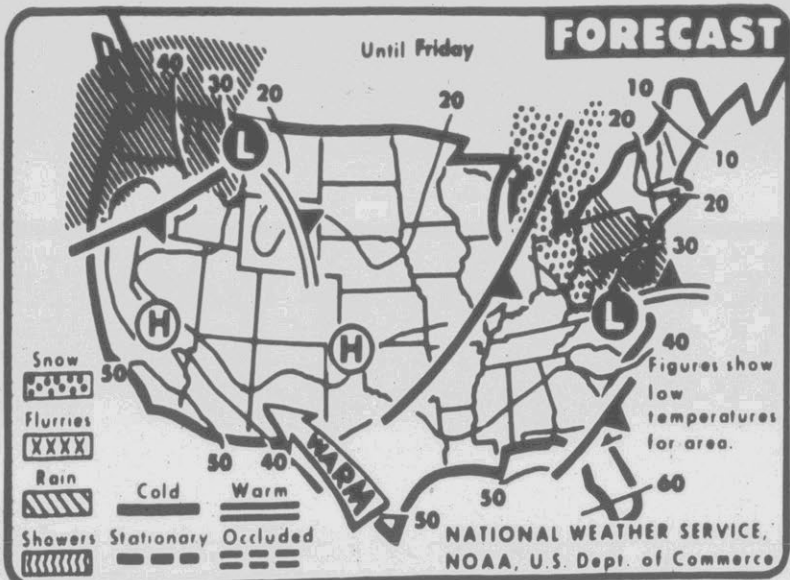

Featured speaker for the workshop is Donald Graves, professor of education at the University of New Hampshire and research editor of "Language Arts," the journal of the National Council of Teachers of English. Graves directs the New Hampshire campus Writing Process Laboratory.

Following Graves's presentation, participants will be involved in their choice of afternoon workshops. Topics of these will depend upon registrants' preferences.

Further information and registration materials are available from "Reading and Writing: The Connection," Division of Continuing Education, ECU, Greenville, N.C. 27834.

How's The Weather?

Ingram Asks Restored Powers

WEATHER FORECAST — Snow and rain are expected in the forecast period, Thursday until Friday morning, into southern New York and the mid-Atlantic. Rain is forecast for the Northwest. Warm, sunny weather is due across the southern tier. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press
Dreary weather was forecast for North Carolina today, but the picture was expected to improve by Friday as the weekend shapes up as sunny but chilly.

A thick cloud cover and chilly northeast winds were the major weather features early this morning. Some patchy light rain and drizzle dampened a few areas. Temperatures were generally in the 30s across the northern and western counties while 40s prevailed in the southeast.

Only light rainfall amounts were noted overnight but precipitation totals for the 24 hour period ending at 1 a.m. were more substantial. Nearly three-quarters of an inch fell at Fort Bragg while over half an inch dampened Greensboro. Other stations reported generally less than a third of an inch.

A large high pressure system centered over eastern Canada pushed southward along the east coast, resulting in a rather strong northeast wind flow that brought the cooler air into the region. Adding to the unsettled conditions were weak low pressure systems over east Tennessee and Kentucky and over the lower Mississippi Valley.

The high pressure system will remain firmly entrenched over the eastern seaboard into tonight. As a result, the chilly northeast winds in combination with the cloudy skies will not allow much warming during the daylight hours.

Late tonight and early Friday, the cool high pressure system will begin to lose its grip as a weak cold front moves through the central states. Tomorrow, the front will advance across the state followed by a drier westerly wind flow.

This will mean the gloomy weather of today is going to give way to partly cloudy skies and a decreasing chance of rain. The air that will filter into the state after the frontal passage is not very cold. Thus, the weekend should bring cool nights and mild days along with some sunshine.

Recreational weather outlook: The weather today will not be good for most outdoor activities but improving conditions are on tap for Friday. Cloudy and cool weather will be the rule into tonight with some light rain or drizzle continuing.

Highs will be mostly in the 40s although some low 50s are possible in the southeast while the extreme southwest may even see 60. Lows tonight are going to be in the 30s and 40s. Skies will become partly cloudy Friday with highs climbing into the 50s in most areas.

A small craft advisory is in effect on the North Carolina coastal waters and on Albemarle and Pamlico sounds due to brisk northeast winds. The winds will diminish late tonight then shift to the west tomorrow.

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Insurance industry lobbyists, calling North Carolina's regulatory system antiquated, want the General Assembly to deregulate automobile insurance to allow free competition.

The lobbyists argued their case Wednesday before the Legislature's joint Insurance Laws Study Committee. In the same hearing, Insurance Commissioner John Ingram urged legislators to restore his rate-making powers and change a 1981 law banning surcharges on automobile policies for drivers with clean records.

Several insurance company executives and lobbyists appeared before the panel and set free competition on saying automobile policy rates was producing better service and prices in other states.

"In some companies there would probably be a substantial increase (in rates), and some companies would decrease rates," said Benjamin F. Seagle III, lobbyist for Aetna Life and Casualty.

Seagle also said the state should also repeal the 25-year-old law requiring all drivers to have liability insurance. He said motorists could then purchase uninsured-motorists policies to protect themselves against drivers that have no liability coverage.

Ingram gave legislators a list of more than a dozen changes he said should be made in the state's insurance regulatory laws, chief among them restoration of his prior-approval powers.

That power — the authority to block automobile insurance rate increases before insurance companies can put them into effect — was eliminated by the General Assembly after a tumultuous battle in 1977. Insurance companies still must file their rate-increase requests with the commissioner, but if the commissioner rejects the increases companies can put them into effect anyway while they appeal in the courts.

"For too many years this industry's powerful lobbyists have put on the books law after law favorable to this special interest," Ingram said.

Ingram asked for immediate action in the General Assembly's short budget session scheduled for June on a bill further restricting auto-rate surcharges, which a 1981 law banned in cases of drivers with clean records. Ingram backed the law enacted last year but said he now wants surcharges eliminated not only for those with clean records but for drivers who have only one or two points — representing traffic violations — on their records.

Sen. Donald Kincaid, R-Caldwell, an insurance agent, pressed Ingram on that proposal. He said the effect of the 1981 law — which Ingram described as a "monumental victory for the people" — had been to penalize drivers with only slight traffic violations.

"Insurance is supposed to be a sharing of risk, not punishment," Kincaid said. "The law we have passed has made insurance a punishment."

One of the committee's two co-chairmen, Sen. Robert Wynne, D-Wake, accused Ingram in an interview after the meeting of using "theatrics" in presenting two boxes of documents that Ingram said represented his study on credit life insurance. And Wynne said Ingram had failed to fully respond to legislators' questioning.

"He's a master at avoiding answering questions directly," Wynne said. "That was apparent through all of this."

W. Va. Sheriff Probes Jail Pregnancy Affair

By STEVE LE VINE
Associated Press Writer
CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — Logan County Sheriff Vernon Dingess says he's going to sit down and have a talk with some of his prisoners about how an 18-year-old woman who has been jail for the last 1 1/2 years became pregnant.

Dingess said Teresa Helms, of Monroe, N.C., apparently became pregnant in the Logan County Jail during the past three months. Ms. Helms is charged with murder and robbery, authorities said.

"We're investigating it now. I have contacted the prosecutor and the chief deputy, and we're going to talk with her and with the other prisoners," Dingess said.

Ms. Helms was taken to a hospital Feb. 2 because "she was bleeding quite a bit," officials said. The woman had just been moved to the Kanawha County Jail from Logan so "she could be closer to her attorney in Charleston," said David Parks, Kanawha County's assistant chief jailer.

Doctors at Charleston Area Medical Center examined Ms. Helms and concluded that she was pregnant, Parks said.

Authorities then asked Ms. Helms if it was possible that she was pregnant.

"She came out with the statement that she would have been about six weeks pregnant," Parks said.

Ms. Helms was in the Logan County Jail from Nov. 17 to Jan. 27, according to a county official who declined to be identified.

Ms. Helms still is being held in the Kanawha jail and will be transferred to a medical clinic "later on," Parks said.

Lincoln County Assistant Prosecutor Joe Stevens, who is handling the prosecution of Ms. Helms, said he could not comment on the pregnancy because her trial is pending.

Several attempts to contact Ms. Helms' lawyers, Andy Nason of Charleston and Peter Hendricks of Madison, were unsuccessful. Neither returned telephone calls to his office Wednesday.

Ms. Helms is charged with the Sept. 19, 1980, shooting death of Ernie B. Neal, 74, of Myra. She also is charged with aggravated robbery in connection with the death, Stevens said.

The state Supreme Court has approved a motion for her to be tried as an adult, although she was a juvenile when the shooting occurred.

Two men have been convicted in Neal's death. Freddie Marion Rakes, 23, of Chester, S.C., was found guilty of first-degree murder, and Bobby Adkins, 19, of West Hamlin, pleaded guilty to second-degree murder, Stevens said.

Ms. Helms' Lincoln County Circuit Court trial is set for April 6.

Surplus Cheese Issued To Johnston Countians

SMITHFIELD, N.C. (AP) — More than 14,000 pounds of surplus American cheese has been distributed in Johnston County, the first county in North Carolina to give away the food as part of the federal government's program for the needy.

More than 2,000 low-income Johnston County residents lined up at a tobacco warehouse Tuesday and walked away with the cheese. Johnston County is one of eight North Carolina counties to receive its share of cheese.

Milton B. Lewis, 51, of Smithfield, said he waited more than two hours to get his share.

"Many of us have no work, nothing to do and no income, so this cheese comes at a good time."

Annette Pearson, a student at Johnston County Technical College, said she already has plans for her allotment — "grits and cheese, macaroni and cheese, cheese omeletes, cheese casseroles and grilled-cheese sandwiches."

"Folks really have come after this stuff. We're very pleased because the cheese is top quality ... and people like it," said Benjamin Niblock, director of the Johnston County Department of Social Services.

The state's formula for distributing the cheese calls for each eligible family to receive a minimum of five pounds. The cheese is given to people who receive food stamps, or who are eligible for food stamps.

More cheese will be shipped by the state to 92 other counties in the next few weeks. All 100 counties of North Carolina are participating, although one county has delegated distribution to another agency.

The cheese is part of 30 million surplus pounds the government is giving away. North Carolina is scheduled to get 1.5 million pounds.

Jay Davis, director of food distribution at the North Carolina Department of Agriculture, said he has been told that the Reagan administration is considering giving an additional 70 million tons to the states.

Niblock said he will ask for more cheese because of the program's success. He said he wants another eight tons.

Niblock said some cheese was given to people who weren't eligible.

Orientation

The Pitt County Red Cross will sponsor an orientation here Saturday for all water safety instructors in the county.

The session on new materials will be held from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. at the Memorial Gym pool on 10th Street under the direction of Jim Parker, Red Cross water safety chairman for Pitt County.

All participants are asked to bring swim suits and towels.

Solar Fraction

Greenville's solar fraction calculated by the department of physics of East Carolina University was zero Wednesday, which means that a solar water heater could have provided none of your hot water.

Seek Trip Candidates

Rotary Club District 773, southeastern North Carolina, is seeking candidates from a 21-county area for a five-week trip to southern England to depart on Sept. 5.

Transportation will be paid by Rotary International and the team will be hosted by Rotary families while in England. The team consists of five non-Rotarian business or professional men between the ages of 25 and 35 and one Rotarian team captain of any age. Close relatives of Rotarians are not eligible.

Applicants must reside in the following North Carolina counties — Pitt, Greene, Beaufort, Pamlico, Lenoir, Wayne, Craven, Roberson, Cumberland, Sampson, Columbus, Bladen, Duplin, Jones, Brunswick, Pender, New Hanover, Onslow, Harnett, Hoke or Scotland.

Group study exchange is a cultural exchange arrangement that has been part of the Rotary International program since 1965. The purpose is to exchange young men from different parts of the world in order to promote international understanding. The groups observe industry, small business, education, religion, and recreation in the countries they visit.

Those interested in applying should request forms from the District GSE chairman by writing to: Jack Edwards, 208 Windsor Road, Greenville, N.C., 27834 or by calling 756-5024 (evening hours) or 758-2616 (daytime hours).

HONORED — Hugh J. Benson, left, who recently retired as a police sergeant and juvenile officer with the Greenville Police Department, has been honored for his service to Explorer Post 33. With Benson are Sgt. Doug Jackson, center, and Detective Peter E. Lavin. Lavin, the new adviser for Post 33, presents a plaque of appreciation to Benson. Benson founded the post in 1973 and was post adviser until his retirement on Feb. 9.

Princess Nadine de Lichtenstein organizes some of Europe's most prestigious bridge tournaments. One tends to forget that, as Mme. Nadine Alexander, she was a pillar of women's teams in France. At a recent tournament in Tunis, she showed that she had lost little of her skill.

The popular contract was six spades, which was usually defeated when declarer was unable to handle the bad trump break. The Princess and her partner reached six no trump after a Stayman inquiry and a quantitative raise in no trump.

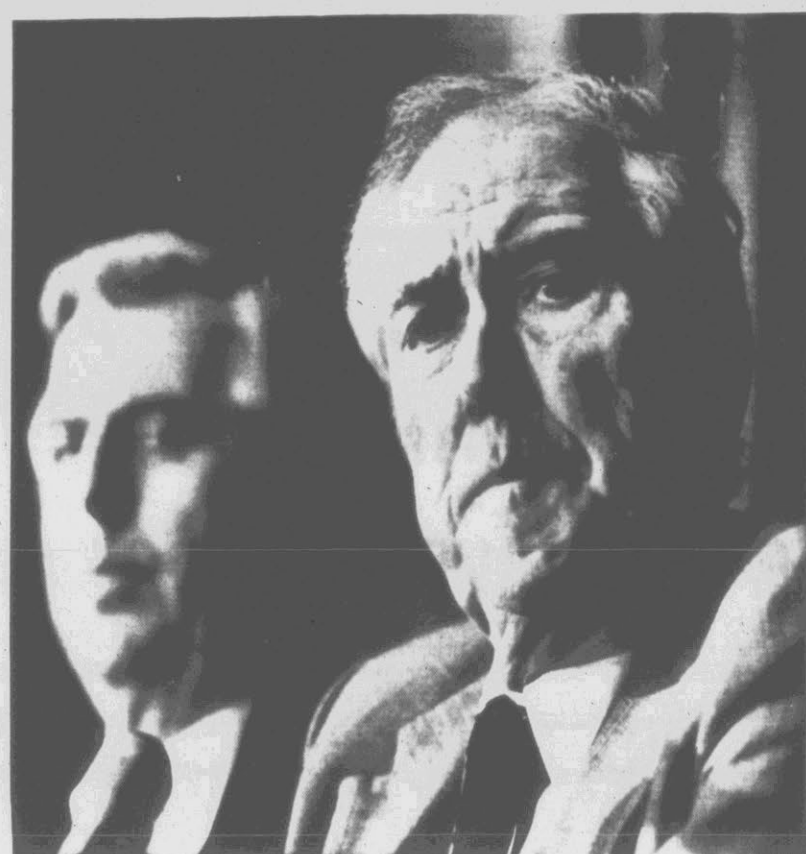

West led a heart, won in dummy. Declarer realized that, before tackling spades, she needed to know how many tricks the club suit would yield, so at trick two she led a club to the queen. When that held, she assumed that she had three club tricks and, therefore, would need only four tricks from the spade suit to bring her total to twelve. At trick three, therefore, she continued with the king of spades, noting the fall of the ten at her right. Now was the time for a safety play. Declarer led the jack of spades and, when West covered with the queen, he was allowed to win the trick. Declarer was now assured of four spade tricks and, with careful timing, she was able to unblock the nine of spades and cross to dummy's high heart to cash the spades and finesse again in clubs to make her slam.

It is easy to go wrong in the play of the hand. To illustrate: some declarers won the first trick in dummy and immediately led a spade to the jack. They could now make four spade tricks, but because of the 4-1 break in that suit there was only one entry to the table, so the club finesse could not be taken twice. Therefore, those declarers ended up with only eleven tricks. Or, if declarer wins the second spade, she can set up but can't enjoy a fourth spade trick.

UAW Council Backs Ford-Union Pact

APPROVES CONTRACT — United Auto Workers' President Douglas A. Fraser announces in Chicago that the union has approved a tentative concessions contract that would help save Ford Motor Co. up to $1 billion. (AP Laserphoto)

Consumer Unlikely To Share In Ford Savings

DETROIT (AP) — The $1 billion Ford Motor Co. might save in labor costs if United Auto Workers union members approve a new concession contract probably will not affect car sales, according to auto industry analysts.

"It would be in Ford's interest to retain it all, and I think they will," David Eisenberg of the New York firm of Sanford Bernstein and Co. predicted Wednesday.

He said that Ford immediately would save about $1 an hour in labor costs and more than $2 an hour at the end of the 31-month agreement.

Eisenberg and other analysts predict the $1 billion savings through the life of the 31-month contract. He calculated the savings will amount to about $160 per vehicle, but said that would be "hardly enough to get car sales turned around."

The UAW's Ford council voted overwhelmingly in Chicago Wednesday to recommend that the company's 170,000 autoworkers approve the tentative contract. Rank-and-file voting was expected to be completed by Feb. 28.

Two other analysts — Donald DeScenza of Donaldson, Lufkin & Jenrette, and Harvey Heineback of Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith — agreed Ford would use the concession savings to reduce operating losses, which the No. 2 U.S. automaker said reached $1 billion in 1981.

DeScenza said Ford would be "foolish" to pass savings along to consumers in an attempt to get a competitive edge.

"There's no way Ford could cut prices enough to do that," he said, noting General Motors Corp. "has inherently lower manufacturing costs" in North America that would not be changed by the UAW concessions.

Ford has estimated its hourly labor costs under the existing union contract at $21.50 per hour, but Eisenberg said the carmaker's costs have been running at $20.55 under the contract that expires in September.

If the concession contract is passed, he said the cost would drop immediately to $19.50 an hour, then to $19.08 hourly by the end of the year before reaching $21 an hour in 1984. Without the concessions, Ford's hourly cost would reach $22.75 by December, 1984, Eisenberg said.

By ANN JOB WOOLLEY
 Associated Press Writer
 CHICAGO (AP) — Ford Motor Co. is a step closer to gaining $1 billion in givebacks after leaders of the United Auto Workers' Ford locals approved a new contract, but a union dissident says he hopes to convince rank-and-filers to kill the pact.

The UAW's Ford council voted overwhelmingly Wednesday to recommend that Ford's 170,000 union workers ratify the concessions agreement, Donald Ephlin, UAW vice president and head of the Ford department, said.

Only 12 delegates at the Ford council meeting voted against rank-and-file ratification of the pact, with 132 in favor, Ephlin said. He noted only 144 of the council's 225 members, all leaders of Ford locals around the country, attended the three-hour conclave.

One of the 12 voting against the pact was Al Gardner, president of Local 600 at a Ford tool-and-die plant in Dearborn, Mich.

"These concessions are not going to save jobs or lower car prices for the consumer," Gardner said Wednesday.

"We're just giving the corporation a billion dollars ... It's ludicrous," Gardner said. "I think I have a better chance with the membership" than with the UAW's Ford council.

Ephlin, however, said he was confident the Ford workers would "vote in relatively the same measure as their leadership did in favor of this agreement," echoing a prediction he made Sunday after the union's 26-member executive board unanimously approved the tentative pact.

"I think the agreement is in the best interest of the Ford workers and I think the leadership recognized that," UAW President Douglas Fraser said at a news conference after the Ford council vote.

Union rank-and-file voting was to be scheduled immediately and should be completed by 6 p.m. on Feb. 28, Ephlin said. He said sessions would be held to inform workers of contract details.

Gardner objected to language in the contract that he said relies on the No. 2 automaker's "trust" where plant closings are concerned.

"Saying (company officials) will cooperate is nothing," he said. "This is a corporation and they're here to make money. You have to tell them they will do it or must do it."

The company would save $1 billion in labor costs, but the savings probably will not affect car sales, auto industry analysts predict.

David Eisenberg of the New York firm Sanford Bernstein and Co. said Wednesday that Ford would save about $160 per vehicle but that would be "hardly enough to get car sales turned around."

Eisenberg is among several analysts who agreed Ford would use concessions savings to reduce operating losses, rather than pass them along to consumers.

Ford has said it lost $1 billion in 1981.

The tentative agreement, reached Saturday, asks Ford workers to give up eight annual paid personal holidays, defer cost-of-living allowances for nine months and forfeit annual 3 percent wage increases.

In return, Ford offers guaranteed income of at least 50 percent of base pay to laid-off workers with 15 or more years' seniority, longer drawing time for supplemental unemployment benefits and a two-year moratorium on plant closings caused by subcontracting work to non-union and overseas facilities.

The bargaining, which began Jan. 11 amid the worst sales slump in the U.S. auto industry since the Depression, was put on hold as the UAW focused on similar negotiations at General Motors Corp. When GM's talks collapsed Jan. 28, bargaining resumed at Ford.

Planning-Zoning . .

 economic base analysis of the Greenville area, prepared by Dr. Mulatu Wubneh of the department of geography and planning at East Carolina University.

In his study, Wubneh said he analyzed the development of the major economic activities of the city, including agriculture, manufacturing, retail trade, wholesale trade, selected services and public employment.

His study results suggested that "Greenville's effort to diversify its economic base is not accompanied by a shift in the allocation of resources." He said a pool of skilled labor should be created, with ECU and Pitt Community College possibly playing major training roles, as the local economy shifts from an agricultural to an industrial, service-oriented economy.

Wubneh suggested that the city's "economic system is adversely affected by the seasonality of its agricultural base." He said that "competition for skilled labor, investment sources, new industries and other resources from surrounding major urban areas will affect future development of Greenville."

The city's "remoteness from a major interstate highway system, the lack of a direct commercial air service or passenger rail service, has undermined the city's potential to become a regional center," he said. Wubneh said a major interstate corridor that would link Interstate 64 from Norfolk south to Interstate 20 and through it to Atlanta is needed to open up north-south avenues.

He also suggested an evaluation of the local transit system and possible merger of the city and university transit operations.

According to Wubneh, while some specific recommendations are necessary, "The study concludes that Greenville has the potential and the resources to become an economically viable regional center."

Other business conducted by the board included:

— Recommended council approval of the proposed off-street parking and loading requirements;

— Approval of the preliminary plat of Senior Village Rest Home on N.C. 43 (contains 10.01 acres), with a provision allowing for a proposed cul-de-sac in the development to be extended; and — Endorsement of an amendment to the Zoning Ordinance that would require an applicant (or his representative) for a special use permit for a nightclub or beer hall to be in attendance when the matter is considered by the board.

TV Airing Provocative Clavell Tale

LEE STRASBERG

Knew Strasberg As An 'Inspirer'

NEW YORK (AP) — Lee Strasberg, stage director, film actor, leading master of "method acting" in America and artistic director of the Actors Studio, was remembered as an inspiration by many of the stars he taught.

"I'm not sure I even would have become an actress were it not for him," Jane Fonda said. "He will be missed, but he leaves behind a great legacy."

Strasberg suffered a heart attack Wednesday morning at his Manhattan apartment and was pronounced dead at St. Luke's-Roosevelt Hospital. He was 80 years old.

He taught several generations of actors and in doing so profoundly influenced acting in the American stage and in movies. His students included Marlon Brando, James Dean, Marilyn Monroe, Al Pacino and Robert DeNiro.

A memorial service was planned today at the Shubert Theater, and the list of speakers included Pacino and DeNiro, with whom Strasberg starred in the film "Godfather II," Elyse Burstyn and Geraldine Fitzgerald. Burial will be at Westchester Hills Cemetery.

"It was so unexpected," Pacino said Wednesday. "What stood out was how youthful he was. He never seemed as old as his years. He was an inspiration."

Strasberg had danced in a chorus line Sunday at the "Night of 100 Stars" benefit at Radio City Music Hall in New York.

George Burns, with whom Strasberg appeared in the movie "Going in Style," recalled Wednesday in Los Angeles that at the Music Hall Strasberg "said he wasn't feeling very well."

"His wife, who was sitting with him, said, 'Why don't you cancel the class tomorrow?'" Burns said. "And he said, 'No, I can't do that.' Then he just went to bed and passed away. It's too bad."

Strasberg's wife of 14 years, Anna, was at the hospital Wednesday with their sons, David, 11, and Adam, 12. They were joined by his grown son, John, and actress-daughter, Susan, children of his 32-year marriage to Paula Miller.

Ms. Miller, Strasberg's second wife, was an actress who was a coach with her husband at the studio until her death in 1966.

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — It's 9 a.m. Do you know where your children's minds are?

That's the essential question raised tonight in "The Children's Story," a 30-minute program written, produced and directed by author James Clavell, about our children's values and how firmly rooted they are against assault.

Host Peter Ustinov introduces the piece, which will be seen in most of the country on the syndicated Mobil Showcase Network, by saying the setting may be as close as your neighborhood." The time? "They've just conquered us." From there, Clavell spins a provocative tale, showing how easily such American values as country, religion and family can be erased from our children's minds.

A class of second graders anxiously awaits the bell on the first school day of the new order. At precisely 9 a.m., the new teacher (Michaela Ross, Clavell's actress daughter) enters. The unnamed teacher is dressed in an olive uniform with a red pin.

Miss Ross's character speaks sweetly, but there's an intimidating edge in her voice. She wins a measure of the students' confidence by already knowing their names, then systematically sets out to separate them from every value they thought was valuable.

Through nefarious twisting of words, she undercuts their former teachers for never having explained the meaning behind the Pledge of Allegiance. Continuing her indoctrination, she says it's not right that flags are placed above people and cuts it up for everyone to have a piece. Enthusiastically, the kids then toss the flagpole out the window.

Behind the guise of full disclosure, she solicits all questions, but answers none. "We're all one world now," she says, adding that school is for erasing wrong thoughts.

By emphasizing weakness or short-run mistakes of parents and old teachers, she manipulates the kids' belief in God, prayer and, even, their parents. It's now 9:25. Total brain-washing time: 25 minutes.

"The Children's Story" wonders if impressionable second graders could readily relinquish the values of their parents and society. It strikes at the heart of our values, examining the strength of their foundations.

Is there real understanding behind our convictions and prayers? Can our educational institutions do more to maintain the next generation's beliefs? Should they? Who controls our children's minds?

The idea for "The Children's Story" came to Clavell 20 years ago, during the height of the East-West tension over the Berlin Wall, the Bay of Pigs and the Cuban missile crisis. Clavell's then 6-year-old daughter (Miss Ross) was mindlessly repeating the flag pledge, without any understanding, when he realized how vulnerable her mind was. He then wrote his original "Children's Story," which appeared in the "Ladies Home Journal" in 1963.

Is Clavell, the author of "Shogun," advocating more fundamentalist teaching in the schools? "I'm just a storyteller," he says. "It's not up to me to tell you what you see out of this work."

Herb Schmetz, Mobil's vice president for public affairs, is backing the project because "this is a piece of television that's not passive." He adds that it advocates no "particular ideology."

"The Children's Story" will be seen in 38 of the top 50 markets. Normally, Mobil Showcase gets better clearance. But this is Mobil's first 30-minute broadcast, and it's harder to sell short-form programming. Mobil says no station objected to the show's content.

Mobil Showcase will be televised without commercials for the first time. Schmetz says the content is too important for interruptions.

Sure, but an oil sponsor's subtle message next to a program about mind control might have allowed viewers to make an unflattering connection.

Jazz Great Sings Appreciative Song

CABRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Ella Fitzgerald said she couldn't express in words how she felt after accepting Harvard's Hasty Pudding Theatricals' Woman-of-the-Year award, so the jazz great used a method that's more her style.

"I got a crush on you," Miss Fitzgerald sang from the stage Wednesday. "I've got a crush on you my sweethearts. Yes, I've got a crush on you... all of you."

Hasty Pudding, which bills itself as the oldest dramatic organization in the United States, gave Miss Fitzgerald a parade through Harvard Square. A pudding pot — its emblem — and a dozen roses were presented to her by Jim Goldstein, a senior, who is vice president of the cast.

She also received a huge "green and yellow" basket — symbolizing lyrics from her first gold record, "A-Tisket, A-Tasket," which she recorded in 1938.

"This year... we're giving it to someone who's of every year," Goldstein said. "Ella Fitzgerald is timeless."

Earlier winners include Katharine Hepburn, Jane Fonda, Mary Tyler Moore, Elizabeth Taylor, and the first, in 1951, Gertrude Lawrence.

Miss Fitzgerald watched a few scenes from Hasty Pudding's 134th annual, original musical comedy, "Sealed With A Quiche." The show is written, produced and performed by Harvard undergraduates, and all roles are played by men.

The show opens officially on Feb. 24, and actor James Cagney will be honored as "man of the year" on opening night.

Miss Fitzgerald's jazz career covers more than 40 years and includes more than 150 albums, which have sold more than 40 million copies.

We put our foot down about apartments being within walking distance.

Wedgewood Arms apartments are within walking distance of three shopping centers, a nursery school, a junior high school, doctors' and dentists' offices and an athletic center.

As if that wasn't enough, three major traffic arteries, 264 Bypass, Arlington Blvd., and Charles St. are close enough to be seen and not heard.

Fact is, no apartments in town can legitimately claim to be more convenient to more things than Wedgewood Arms. And, that's not all. Because Wedgewood Arms is not only convenient, it's different in other ways, too.

Take the floorplans: they're different from anything you've ever seen. And when you add in high energy efficiency, tennis courts, swimming pool, and the neighborhood "feeling" that these apartments will give you — well, you'll just have to see for yourself.

They're Still 'Taking The Waters' At Old Springs

By J.L. SCHMIDT
Associated Press Writer
OKAWVILLE, Ill. (AP) —
A weekend at the Original Mineral Springs Hotel in this quiet southern Illinois community has been curing "overwork and illness" for more than a century now.

"It's the water," says Ab Krohne, owner of the hotel and bathhouse.

The mineral waters flowing beneath a portion of this town of 1,200 residents have attracted visitors from all over the country for more than a century, according to Krohne.

Krohne, a local farmer who bought the mammoth white frame hotel in 1962, says business is as alive today as when the mineral springs were discovered in 1867.

"The springs are still flowing and the chemical content remains unchanged," Krohne says of the bathhouse, the mainstay of the business. Customers often wait in line to bathe in the water which is heated to 120 degrees in a boiler room behind the structure.

Water from the springs, which flow underneath the bathhouse, is pumped into the boiler and then piped into two tiled rooms — one for each sex — containing old-fashioned tubs with cast-iron legs. Bathers usually soak for about an hour at a time, but also can relax on couches and just enjoy the steam.

The Original is the only one of five bathing establishments which has survived in this era of motel chains with fancy restaurants and heated pools. Krohne now has 40 rooms, an indoor pool and a basement restaurant — appropriately named the Boiler Room because it is built in the former boiler room.

A plain room "with the toilet down the hall" rents for $9.50. The best room in the house goes for $30, reservations preferred.

That goes for the restaurant, too, with a fried chicken dinner that is almost as popular as the baths. Live organ music is featured on weekends and the call of bingo numbers in the adjacent ballroom breaks the concentration of diners one night a week.

Krohne seats the guests, takes an occasional food or drink order, and rambles on nightly about the beautiful fixtures and the establishment's history.

"It gets crowded on weekends in the bathhouse. On Saturdays we have 60 to 80 people who drive in for just the baths and then go on their way." That drive can be up to several hundred miles for people who come from Chicago, St. Louis, or Evansville, Ind.

The mineral springs were discovered in 1871 by harness maker Rudolph Plegge who lived on the ground now occupied by the hotel. Plegge noticed his water differed from that of his neighbors.

Samples were analyzed in St. Louis where traces of magnesia and sulphuric acid were discovered. Later tests identified at least 14 minerals in the water.

Plegge and a local farmer, C.H. Kelle, who had worked in the famous baths at Baden-Baden, Germany, teamed up to build a bath house.

The business thrived and changed hands several times until the buildings burned in 1892, but were quickly rebuilt.

The hotel is listed in the National Register of Historic Sites, and tales of famous visitors are on the tongues of many who remember when there were four other bathhouse-hotels in town. Krohne grew up in Okawville and remembers the long lines of people waiting to take the baths and fill their drinking jugs with the waters.

Henry Ford and his family are said to have stayed at one of the two original bathhouses, and the Shelton Gang — notorious southern Illinois bootleggers — are said to have visited on occasion. One member of the gang stood guard while the others bathed, Krohne said.

The mineral water was bottled and shipped nationwide for a time. The local Lions Club sent a bottle to President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

By the 1950s, America's vacation habits were changing. People demanded more luxury. The old hotels gradually became boarding houses. One became a nursing home, another was demolished. Only the Original survived.

And it survives with the flavor of the first hotel: high tin ceilings, doors with transoms, cuspidors, wash basins and water pitchers and antique furniture.

For entertainment there's a rare pigeon hole pool table. The large walnut table, similar to a long bed with a headboard with holes in one end, was a fixture in a tavern in nearby Venedy. Krohne said the 125-year-old table has baffled many a pool shark since no one seems sure how the game is played with all the holes in one end.

Nostalgia seems to be a real attraction now.

"We're finding people who really appreciate things the way they used to be," Krohne said. "Of course, the mineral springs and the fried chicken help."

Fire Report

During January the rural fire departments of Pitt County answered 84 alarms with 72 fires, Fire Marshal Bobby Joyner said.

There were 20 house fires, eight in house trailers, one in a building, nine in motor vehicles, 18 in grasslands and woods, 16 "others" and 12 mutual aids.

There was $338,500 in property involved in fires, $579,000 exposed, $40,500 lost, and $887,000 saved by the rural fire departments, Joyner said. The Winterville and Falkland departments had the most fires, he added — 11 each.

HONORED GREENSBORO — Maria Streeter and Adrienne R. Mooring, both of Greenville, were honored for their academic achievement at the annual spring honors convocation at Bennett College held recently.

Ms. Streeter is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Connie Streeter of Route 4. Ms. Mooring is the daughter of Charlie Mooring of 506 Manhattan Ave.
