

Legislators Critical Of Board Removals

By MARY ANNE RHYNE
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Removal of legislators from 41 state boards and commissions with administrative powers could lead to a full-time, professional legislature, said some lawmakers Tuesday.

But others welcomed the change brought on by a recent court ruling as a return to the functions of the legislature as set forth in the state constitution.

"It will accelerate what has been a gradual increase in the length of legislative sessions," warned Rep. Al Adams, D-Wake, a member of two commissions affected by the ruling. "It will take us much quicker to the time of having a full-time, professional legislature."

But Rep. Parks Helms, D-Mecklenburg, said the action is a reminder that the legislature's job is to appropriate money and set policy.

"I think we have been a little derelict in both because we have drifted into this situation where we had legislators on the Advisory Budget Commission, for example," Helms said.

"We felt somebody would be there to make sure the legislature's intent was followed."

Over the weekend, state Attorney General Rufus Edmisten mailed a five-page letter to all 170 members of the General Assembly. It advised lawmakers on 41 specific panels to resign immediately to comply with a recent state Supreme Court ruling.

Most of those interviewed Tuesday said they already had mailed letters of resignation from panels affected by the ruling.

Edmisten also cautioned 10 legislators serving on the powerful 12-member Advisory Budget Commission to limit themselves to advisory roles. He warned them not to carry out any of the statutory powers they have been given in recent years.

The state Supreme Court ruled last month that a North Carolina law putting members of the General Assembly on the Environmental Management Commission violated the state Constitution's separation of powers provision because the EMC performs administrative and executive duties.

The ruling has been taken to affect other boards with administrative powers that have legislative members. Among those panels are the state Board of Transportation, the State Ports Authority, the Coastal Resources Commission, the Governor's Crime Commission and the Governor's Waste Management Board.

Adams said the ruling could lengthen legislative sessions by forcing lawmakers to more closely monitor departments and agencies because they no longer sit on boards with administrative powers.

In particular, Adams said, the ruling could affect the Advisory Budget Commission. He said that in the past, the governor has written a budget, submitted it to the ABC for adjustments and then presented the budget to the legislature.

"In practice, the executive has a built-in lobby of the most influential legislators," Adams said, noting that the chairmen of the legislative budget committees are on the ABC. "This (court ruling) will make the legislature tend to take a more independent view of the budget."

And that independent view will lead to more in-depth committee investigations, additional staff members and longer legislative sessions, he predicted.

"I think we need to objectively and carefully review every budget request from every state agency, board or commission," Helms said.

Rep. Roger Bone, D-Nash, said the ruling also might spread power more evenly in the legislature by "giving the individual committees more power which would give the individual legislator more power."

In telephone interviews, legislators suggested several solutions to maintain the current balance of power:

- A constitutional amendment giving legislators administrative authority and a limited percentage of seats on boards and commissions with such powers.
- Rewriting laws to more narrowly restrict the rule-making authority of boards and commissions.
- Give all administrative boards advisory roles instead.

Radioactive Food? Fear Deliberate Contamination

By HAL SPENCER
Associated Press Writer

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP)

— The discovery that two Brown University scientists ate food tainted with radioactive phosphorus suggests that the contamination was deliberate, and law enforcement and health authorities are investigating, officials say.

Dr. Lynn D. Hudson, 28, a genetic researcher at Brown's J. Walter Wilson chemistry building, ate a piece of bread Feb. 5 that was contaminated with an isotope used in the laboratory to identify DNA molecules.

Last week, similar contamination was found in a second lab worker, who had eaten candy from Mrs. Hudson's desk, also on Feb. 5.

The levels of contamination were not considered a threat to either researchers' health, Robert A. Reichley, vice president in charge of university affairs at the Ivy League college, said Tuesday.

"There is no evidence at the moment to suggest that either of these two cases occurred because of carelessness or through an accident," he said.

The contamination of the second researcher became known only last week following medical tests.

"The discovery of a second case suggests the contamination of both workers was intentional," he said. He declined to name the second researcher, saying Mrs. Hudson's name "got out without our knowledge."

"We don't want to speculate beyond that except to say that the lab itself has a remarkably good safety record" in the handling of radioactive materials, making the prospect that the contaminations were accidental highly unlikely, he said.

Reichley declined to say whether other employees at the lab are under investigation by university and Providence police and state health officials.

Campus Security Chief John Kuprevich said it would be "nearly impossible" for anyone outside the laboratory to have obtained the radioactive material and to have placed it in Mrs. Hudson's lunch.

Mrs. Hudson said she was looking for another job elsewhere, but declined further comment.

The two researchers were contaminated with a radioactive form of phosphorus known as P-32.

Mrs. Hudson discovered she had been contaminated after a measuring instrument picked up radiation on her body when she walked out of her office after stopping for lunch.

Officials checked further and found more P-32, a substance used as a "tracer" in research, on another slice of bread she hadn't eaten.

The second researcher was found to have been contaminated after the researcher's urine was tested last week along with the urine of other lab workers, Reichley said.

Jaruzelski Urges Communist Unity On Martial Law Order

By THOMAS W. NETTER
Associated Press Writer

WARSAW, Poland (AP)

— Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski, Poland's Communist Party chief and military ruler, today opened the party's first Central Committee meeting under martial law.

He sought party unity and public support, the official PAP news agency said.

The two-day meeting, convened shortly after noon, was regarded as significant if the party is to regain control of the government. Poland has been run by a military council since martial law was decreed Dec. 13 after months of labor unrest and political challenges by the now-suspended Solidarity union.

Arguments and sharp debates were expected because of sympathies for Solidarity within the 200-member

Central Committee, which was elected during last July's emergency party congress under pressure for reforms from the union.

"The agenda includes the Polish United Workers' (Communist) Party's tasks for the struggle for party unity, consolidation of people's power and for full social approval of socialism," PAP said.

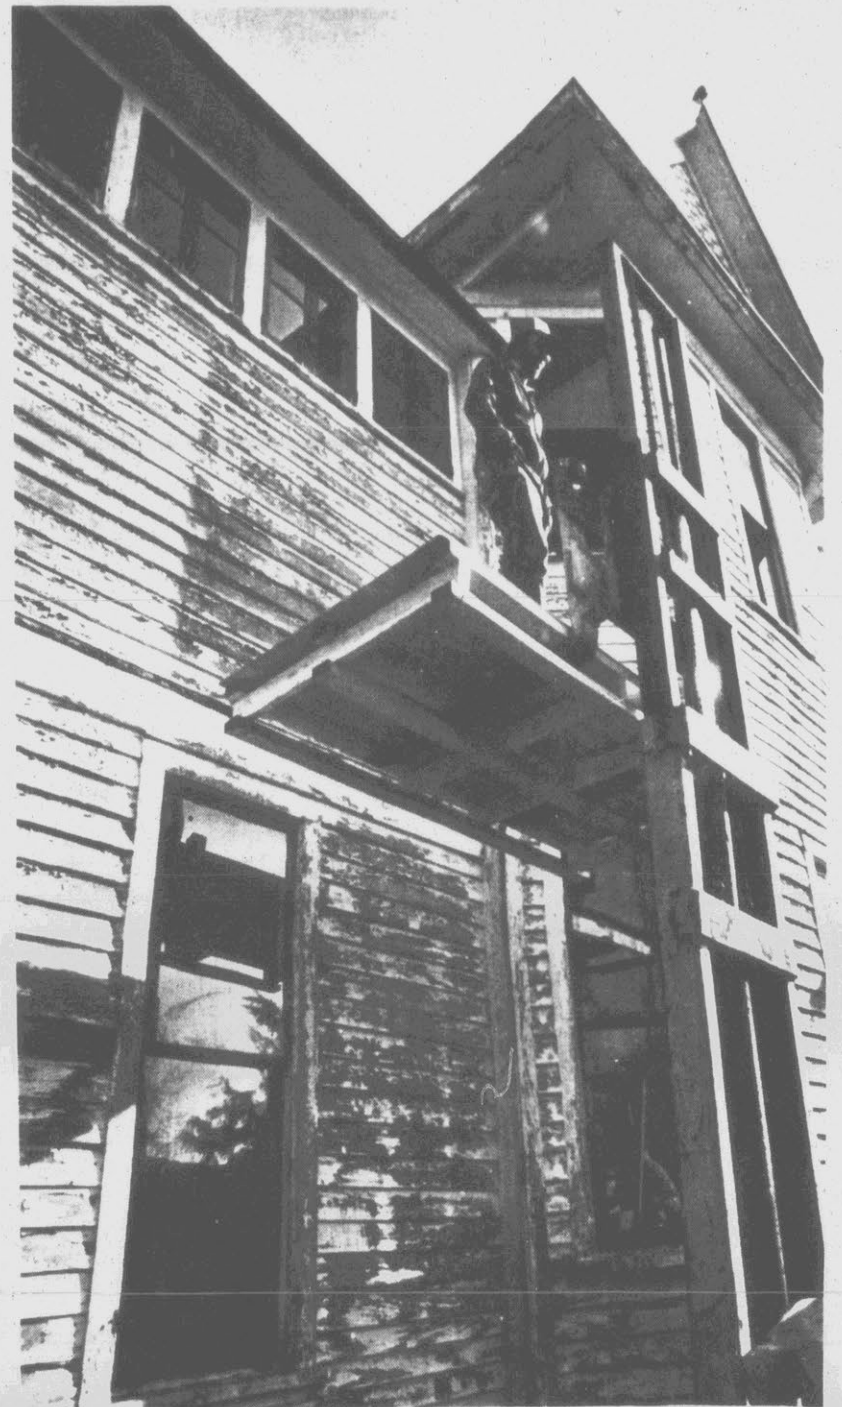

Official government sources said Jaruzelski, who is also premier and military council chairman, opened the meeting with a 70-page report from the Politburo, the nation's 14-member ruling body. It was believed to be one of the longest speeches heard by the committee in years.

The sources said the speech concentrated on the need for party unity after months of conflicting statements by top officials. He also said steps were needed to cementing political policy and economic reform during martial law, the sources said.

As party leaders sat at long tables at party headquarters in central Warsaw, government officials announced more than 200 managers and office administrators had been fired this month under Jaruzelski's orders.

Jaruzelski is expected to retain his posts and to enhance his position with the appointment of more military colleagues to the Politburo or other high-ranking position.

FRESH LOOK FOR AN OLD FACE

FLEMING HOUSE RESTORATION UNDER WAY... Carpenter Jimmy Woolard waits for his ride down after removing gutters from the old Fleming house, Third and Greene streets, soon to be the new headquarters for the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce. The facelift on the building began last week and is expected to be complete by October, according to chamber officials. So far, say workmen, most of the restoration has involved replacing rotten woodwork, tearing out plaster and parts that are no longer functional. (Reflector Photo By Mary Schulken)

MORE IF YOU CHARGE

Recently I stopped at a local Texaco service station for gas. One pump has a sign "Texaco and other charge customers use this pump." Then I noticed that the pump for charge customers was priced three cents a gallon higher than the other self service pump. There is no notice posted about this higher price for charge customers and I received no notice from Texaco before this went into effect. Is this legal? B.J.

It would not have been legal before April 1, 1981, but it could be now, a spokesman for the N.C. Attorney General's office said. The attorney said the 1981 law gives merchants the right to give customers discounts if they pay cash.

As for the legality of your particular case, the attorney said it depends on what the "regular" price of the gas is. It would be legal to give a discount of three cents per gallon to those who pay cash. However, he suggested that to charge three cents a gallon more than the regular price for charge customers would not be legal. The question, he said, would be "What's the regular price."

The local Texaco distributor said the higher price is considered the "regular" price, pointing out that the large price signs advertising the price of gas at the stations (for regular self-service pumps) say "with cash discount." He added that it would be much more simple and less confusing if they could tell charge customers they have to pay more. But he acknowledged that that's illegal.

A sampling indicates other oil dealers in Greenville do not differentiate at the pump between cash and charge customers.

Check-Up Given Shuttle's Tile

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Workers examining heat-resistant silicon tiles to see that they are properly installed on the skin of the space shuttle Columbia are expected to finish their checks this week, a Kennedy Space Center spokesman says.

"While the tile replacement was completed before the shuttle was rolled onto the pad, there is some work that still needs to be done," space center spokesman Mark Hess said Tuesday.

The reusable spacecraft is scheduled to be launched March 22 for its third space flight.

The checks include making sure the tiles are flush with one another on the space plane's surface and that replaced tiles are correctly glued on, Hess said.

After the shuttle's first flight, 1,872 tiles were damaged during re-entry into the Earth's atmosphere and had to be replaced. The second flight was dramatically better, and technicians only needed to replace 449 tiles, Hess said. The tiles protect Columbia's underside from high temperatures during re-entry.

Meanwhile, workers geared up Tuesday for the next major test of the shuttle's subsystems — the trial loading of more than 500,000 gallons of supercold liquid hydrogen and oxygen into the 154-foot-tall external fuel tank. The test, which is scheduled for Friday, will be carried out during a simulated countdown that will start on Thursday.

During the test, the huge tank will be loaded and then drained with each of the two fuels going into separate storage tanks near the pad, Hess said.

On Tuesday, technicians tested a replaced steering mechanism on the shuttle's left booster rocket. The device, a gyroscope designed to provide steering guidance after liftoff, was replaced during the weekend after failing during a dress rehearsal Friday. NASA spokesmen said the replacement "tested out well" Tuesday.

Technicians hadn't determined what to do about a broken switch on the instrument panel in Columbia's cockpit, Hess said. The switch was somehow broken during a mock countdown Friday, but is not considered a major problem, he said.

Mardi Gras Proved Successful And Excessive, But Also Safe

By BILL CRIDER
Associated Press Writer

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Flushed with success but still faced with excess, the city began to clean-up today after what is being called the safest Mardi Gras in recent years.

"It was a lot more organized, there was a lot less crime and the French Quarter was easier than ever to work," said Floyd Webb, who drove city buses for 13 years before becoming a cab driver eight years ago.

Crowds estimated by police at nearly a million drank and screamed and shouted and jostled for cheap necklaces, specialty doubloons and other gaudy "throws" along the routes for New Orleans' big parades — Zulu, Rex and Comus — or from the spinoff neighborhood truck parades.

Many awoke before dawn to review elaborate plans for celebrating Mardi Gras, which translates from the French into Fat Tuesday — the eve of Ash Wednesday, which begins the holy season of Lent.

Thousands wore outrageous costumes, many homemade. They masqueraded as Ronald Reagans, Rubik's Cubes, Pac-Men and Q-Tips; drag queens, clowns, grim reapers and mosquitoes.

"I never saw so many people drink that much that early in my life," said Patrolman Rick Cassanova, who helped jazzman Pete Fountain's Half-Fast Marching Band down fashionable St. Charles Avenue at 5 a.m. Tuesday.

In the French Quarter, bare bottoms seemed more prevalent than exposed bosoms this year. It was a holiday — no mail was delivered or other government work done — and the celebration was held in sunny, record-tying 81-degree weather.

The fashionable masked balls since January and the nearly nightly parades since Feb. 13 ended at 11:30 p.m. when Rex, King of Carnival, toasted the king of the Krewe of Comus, at 125 years the oldest of the Carnival gods, amid formal surroundings.

Extraordinary safety precautions had been taken — and apparently were successful — because two children were crushed by parade vehicles last year and because of other trouble.

This year, the parading clubs, called krewe, worked up safety checklists. 150 state troopers moved in to free more Carnival-wise city police for potential trouble, and almost all private vehicles had been barred from the French Quarter since last weekend.

No parade casualties or major injuries were reported. Today, the gathering begins of the gee-whiz statistics that many use to gauge the success of Mardi Gras — the tons of garbage collected and number of people arrested.

It will take days to learn the garbage statistics. The work is done with military precision with city trash gangs from fashionable Uptown slashing through narrow Vieux Carre streets with the French Quarter veterans, and then it's on to other neighborhoods.

Police said it would not take quite so long to tally up the arrests. Before Tuesday, they reported 3,194 arrests since Carnival began — an increase from 2,398 for the same period a year ago.

The safety campaign's apparent success drew this exchange when Rex stopped his float to toast Mayor Ernest Morial at midday:

"Through its (Rex's) efforts, this year we have produced one of the safest Mardi Gras in the history of the city," said Morial.

"We are delighted to return to a happy, sunny and safe Mardi Gras. Hail, New Orleans!" replied Rex, portrayed this year by William Boatner Reily III of Metairie.

'Laws That Affect Women' Seminar Set For March 8

The second seminar in a series prepared by the Women's Seminar Advisory Council for Pitt Community College has been scheduled for March 8 at the Casablanca here. Entitled "Laws That Affect Women," the event will feature dinner, a keynote speaker and four workshops. Meyressa H. Schoonmaker, a Winston-Salem attorney, will be the speaker. She is founder and president for The North Carolina Center for Laws Affecting Women Inc., a non-profit research center concerned with the role of women, children and family in society.

A native of Winston-Salem, she is a Phi Beta Kappa graduate of Wake Forest University and Wake Forest University School of Law. She was honored as the outstanding young woman of the year for North Carolina in 1972. She has served as arbitrator for the Better Business Bureau of Winston-Salem and adjunct professor of law at Wake Forest.

Speakers for the group sessions and their topics include: Nancy Barnhill Aycock, assistant district attorney, Greenville, "Criminal Laws," which will include spouse abuse, rape evidence laws, domestic violence act and neglected and abused juveniles, and Ann Heffelfinger of the law firm of Williamson, Herrin, Stokes and Heffelfinger, Greenville, "Domestic Relations and Property Laws." She will discuss such items as equitable distribution, alimony, child support and divorce.

Other speakers will be Mary Ann Rose, assistant to the chancellor for special assignments and director of the Equal Opportunity Programs at East Carolina University, and Elizabeth Warren of the McLawhorn and Mitchell law firm, Greenville.

Ms. Rose will talk about "Health Law Issues," including reproductive rights, abortion, family planning, sterilization and access to medical records. Ms. Warren will discuss laws that affect senior citizens, including wills, inheritance laws, insurance, tax exemptions and exclusions, and age discrimination.

Registration will be held from 5:30-9:30 p.m. at the Casablanca followed by dinner. Ms. Schoonmaker is to speak from 6:15-7:15 p.m. followed by group sessions from 7:30-9:30 p.m. The cost for the seminar will be $16 and will include both the registration fee and dinner. There will be a discount for senior citizens interested in attending.

Interested persons may pre-register before March 3 by sending a check (made payable to the Pilot Club of Greenville) to Louise B. Downing, Pitt Community College, P.O. Drawer 7007, Greenville, 27834.

The seminar is being sponsored by Pitt Community College, Pilot Club of Greenville, Pitt County Council on the Status of Women, League of Women Voters of Greenville-Pitt County, Greenville National Organization of Women and Women's Political Caucus.

Acting members of the Women's Seminar Advisory Council for PCC are Mrs. Aycock, Pat Burnette, Mrs. Downing, Tina Drye, Rhea Markello, Anne McGaughey, Terry Shank, Rosalie Trotman, Joanne Verburg and Gail Wallace.

Dr. Ferrell Is DAR Speaker

Dr. Henry Ferrell, professor of history, East Carolina University, was guest speaker at the meeting of Susanna Coutanch Evans Chapter DAR held last week at the home of Mrs. Frank Thompson.

The subject "The American Revolutionary Tradition in the 20th Century," he explained why the Revolutionary War was the American War and cited examples of revolutionary traditions from that war to the present day.

Local winners of the DAR American History Essay contest read their papers. Jon Heeter wrote on "Abraham Lincoln, our 16th President" and Leslie Ray wrote on "Thomas Edison."

Each was presented a certificate of award and both are students at A.G. Cox School, Winterville, and reside in Greenville. Contest judges were Dr. and Mrs. Keats Sparrow, Mrs. Larry Whitlow and Mrs. Garland M. Waters.

Remembering the 250th anniversary of the birth of George Washington, Chaplain Dorothy Johnson read passages by John Adams, Daniel Webster and others about him.

Members of the nominating committee are Mrs. James Briley, chairman, Dr. Mildred Southwick and Mrs. Thompson.

Regent Mrs. E.M. Ballengee conducted the meeting. Mrs. Leslie Brinson assisted. Mrs. Ferrell was a guest.

Charter Members Reconized

Silver Stream Council No. 48 Degree of Pocahontas of Winterville met in the Red Men Hall, with Ms. Lillian McDaniel presiding.

Ms. Betty Mae Nobles, P.G.P., Mother of the Council, was recognized as the person who helped organize Silver Stream Council in April, 1935. Two charter members, Ms. Roxie Stocks and Ms. Reppie Buck were present. Pennie Dunn was welcomed as a visitor.

Linda Ann Stox was given the obligations and introduced to the council. Eleven members from Greenville Withla Council No. 42 have transferred to Winterville — Douglas Ross, Mrs. Marja Ross, Ms. Sallie Vainright, Ms. Marie Stocks, Ms. Louise Cox, Ms. Louise Hardy, Ms. Elizabeth Moore, Mrs. Pauline Ross, Ms. Juanita McGowan, Ms. Velma Weeks and Mrs. Bessie Nobles.

Ms. Almata Harris, Great COPD committee of the Great Council of North Carolina, was present. Members were encouraging to make reservations for the Great Council of the United States meeting to be held Sept. 27-Oct. 1 in Lexington, Ky.

For good of the order, Ms. Lillie McLawhorn has composed an individual poem for each new member and Ms. Betty Nobles, PGP. Each member present was presented a small gift.

A social hour followed the meeting.

New Officers Installed

The Iota Kappa Omega Chapter of Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, Inc. held its meeting Saturday afternoon at the home of the Rev. and Mrs. Kenneth Hammond.

New officers were installed. Gloria Hines is the new basileus. Other officers are: Jean Carter, anti-basileus; Joyce Pettis, grammateus; Peggy Brown, anti-grammateus; Helen Harrell, epitoleus; Maxine Whitener, tamio uchos; Jacqui Hawkins, graduate advisor, ECU; Evelyn Hammond, Ivy Leaf reporter; Lilla Holsey, parliamentarian; Charlotte Smith, hodegus; and Ella Harris, historian.

A welcome was extended to Sorors Ethel Thomas and Virginia Hagans.

Plans were made for Founders Day-Rededication Service to be held Sunday at Cornerstone Missionary Baptist Church and pledging ceremony with Theta Alpha Chapter, ECU, at 6 p.m. Sunday.

Soror Hammond was meeting hostess.

Dear Abby

Man Behind Bars Wants Grandpa To Bend Them

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am a 24-year-old male, in jail, facing charges of first-degree murder. I was my grandfather's favorite grandchild. In fact I was named for him. He is 97 years old, and he doesn't know where I am because my mother and her brothers do not want to tell him. They say it would break his heart.

I think he should be told. For one thing, I could use his help financially. My lawyer plans to have me out in seven years, but by that time my grandfather will probably be dead. I think the real reason my mother and her brothers don't want to tell Grandpa is because they're afraid he will sell some of his land to help me, which will mean less for them after he dies. I feel very bitter about this.

Don't you think my grandfather should be told? BITTER

DEAR BITTER: I can understand your mother's and her brothers' desire to protect their elderly father from heartbreaking news, but I have strong feelings against withholding information from a competent adult in order to "protect" him. However, until I know the facts concerning your family's motivation and Grandpa's condition, it's not possible to make a valid judgment.

DEAR ABBY: I am going crazy with this problem. I have two kids, 7 and 1 1/2. Both of them were breast-fed and given lots of love, but we ended up with a couple of thumb-suckers. Where have we failed? Is it hereditary, or what? The older one has outgrown the habit, but I still find her with her thumb in her mouth when she sleeps. It's the younger one I'm worried about.

He keeps his thumb in his mouth all the time, except when he eats or cries. It is really maddening to see him with his thumb constantly in his mouth. I tried applying bitter-tasting medicine on his thumb, but he got accustomed to it and sucks his thumb anyway. I even made a pair of gloves, but his hands are so small and flexible, it's only a matter of time before he frees his thumb and sucks it.

If I scold him, he goes and hides so he can suck his thumb. I am sick and tired of this tug-of-war with him. My pediatrician is no help. He says leave him alone. I have no one to turn to but you, Abby. If you can't find a solution, ask your readers if they know of a foolproof, tamperproof device to keep a child's thumb out of his mouth. GOING CRAZY

DEAR GOING: Most little ones suck their thumbs because it comforts them when they're lonely, bored, hungry or tired. My experts tell me that it is harmless — unless they suck so vigorously that they create a malformation of the mouth which later causes crooked teeth. Your tug-of-war battles with the boy could do him more harm than his thumb-sucking. Your pediatrician gave you good advice. Leave him alone. But check regularly with a dentist for his advice.

DEAR ABBY: Please, please, put this valuable warning in your widely read column: If you (man or woman — but especially a woman) come home to find your door unlocked, don't just assume that you forgot to lock it and enter the house alone. Get someone (a police officer) to escort you into the house to be sure nobody is inside.

I foolishly entered my unlocked home, thinking I had forgotten to lock the door, and I surprised a burglar inside. I was badly beaten and would have been raped had it not been for a neighbor who innocently rang my doorbell and scared the man out the back door.

STILL IN SHOCK
DEAR STILL: Thank you for a tip that could benefit many.

Clothes Lengths Can Be Long Or Short

The fashion-conscious woman can go long or short this spring, say Harriet Tutterow and Judith Mock, extension clothing specialists at North Carolina State University.

"You can even opt for a combination," says Miss Tutterow. "Your choice depends upon your lifestyle and what you want your clothes to do for you."

But whatever length you choose, be sure to select styles with pristine lines, immaculate detailing and clear cut colors.

If you choose the short look, says Miss Mock, look for high-rising dresses, skirts and blouses in slim silhouettes and pant shapes in bright colors.

Short skirts range from knees to mid-thigh and pants from mid-calf cropped trousers to pedal pushers and knickers.

Bermudas and short shorts will also return, Miss Mock adds.

The longer look features skirts and culottes in gently falling pleats between ankle and knee.

The jacket choice also reflects the long-short option, says Miss Tutterow. Unconstructed jackets sliding to mid-thigh or proportion jackets, cropped short, top to narrow, shorter skirts.

With the longer skirts, jackets skim the body with unconstructed ease and stretch to fingertip length.

Select "featherweight" fabrics, the specialists advise, such as linens, silks, cottons and ultra-thin wools and gabardines.

N·C· Unemployment Is Growing

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The unemployment rate in North Carolina, spurred by layoffs in the textile and construction industries, leaped to its highest point since April 1975 in January, the Employment Security Commission says.

The 9.1 percent jobless rate for January represents 263,000 unemployed workers. The unemployment rate for April 1975 was 9.6 percent, ESC officials said.

In December, the rate was 6.8 percent and in January 1981, the rate was 7.3 percent.

About 9,800 jobs were lost in textile mills between January 1981 and January 1982, a drop of 4.1 percent, the commission said. Meanwhile, construction was down 8,800 jobs, a drop of 8.1 percent.

"Our rate is still below the national unadjusted rate," said Floyd Outland of ESC's Labor Market Information Division. "This gap may become somewhat closer, unfortunately."

The national unadjusted unemployment rate in January was 9.4 percent, up from 8.3 percent in December.

Nonagricultural wage and salary unemployment witnessed a sharp decline of 51,800 workers in North Carolina, Outland said in a news release. "Only transportation equipment and the category of other nondurable goods showed very slight increases."

Outland said employment fell in all other manufacturing categories, except chemicals, which was unchanged. He said all non-manufacturing segments showed significant decreases except finance, insurance, mining and real estate.

which were unchanged.

The total civilian work force in January was 2,901,500, above December's 2,793,200 and January 1981's 2,695,600.

There were 189,000 unemployed people in December and 195,900 in January 1981, Outland said.

A comparison of employment figures for January 1982 and the same month a year earlier shows some decline in nonmanufacturing, but more decline in manufacturing, which fell 2.7 percent.

The average hourly earnings of production workers in North Carolina's manufacturing industries were $6.36 in January 1982, up 16 cents from the previous month and up 61 cents from a year earlier.

The average weekly hours worked by production workers in manufacturing industries in January were 30.5, down from December's 30.5 and down from 38.9 in January 1981.

Professor Visited Rose High

Dr. Josette Hollenbach, professor of literature, culture and language at Appalachian State University in Boone, visited Rose High School Monday. Dr. Hollenbach was the special guest of Nell Williams, Rose High School French teacher.

Dr. Hollenbach presented a program of French music and poetry to an audience of students of French and to a number of other classes at Rose. The program included a variety of themes in literature.

Among special guests in attendance were Dr. Martin Schwarz, chairman of the department of foreign languages at East Carolina University, and Dr. Brame Resnik, German professor at ECU.

Dr. Hollenbach has contributed reviews and articles to numerous language publications and is the author of "Elements Baroques dans les Romans de Claude Simon," edited by La Pensée Universelle in Paris. She has now in preparation a book of "Pensees Enregistrees" and a book of essays.

Dr. Hollenbach's students who participate annually in the language competition held at Clemson University have won outstanding awards and recognitions including best actor, best actress and other awards.

OPERATIC PREP — Philip Dean Brown of Rockingham, a sophomore in the East Carolina University School of Music, is known among his fellow students for his "preppy" style of dress as well as his singing voice, most recently heard in the chorus of ECU's production of "Cosi fan tutte." Fortunately for Brown's image, even his costume was adorned with the familiar alligator, symbol of preppy-dom. The alligator was stitched onto Brown's coat by ECU Opera Theater costumer Patti Hiss, as a 20th century touch quite in keeping with the lighthearted spirit of Mozart's comic opera. (ECU News Bureau Photo by Marianne Baines).

Collapse Kills 2 Coal Miners

HANNA, Wyo. (AP) — Two coal miners died Tuesday in a roof collapse at an underground coal mine six miles west of this mining town in southeastern Wyoming, officials said.

A statement released by Energy Development Co. said the cave-in happened at the company's Vanguard No. 2 mine while a continuous mining machine was being withdrawn from a section of the mine at 2:45 a.m.

Different Tax Collector

The newspaper headline read "Report N.C. Ill-Prepared to Lose Federal Money."

The story had to deal with the withdrawal of over $300 million in federal funds from state programs if President Reagan's fiscal 1983 budget cuts are approved.

More than that, the story said Gov. Jim Hunt and the General Assembly made no attempt to replace any of the budget losses from the first round of cuts with state funds. That will come, in due course.

North Carolinians knew big cut-backs were coming. During the national campaign of 1980 and the national election it was hammered home that a change in the national administration would mean a lot of changes were in store...reducing Washington's role and returning many of the responsibilities Washington had assumed back to the states.

Implicitly understood was the lowering of federal income taxes and reducing federal social services—not eliminating them altogether.

So these days as the meaning of federalism is being driven home, we are also getting a lot of glum forecasts of how North Carolina cannot keep this and that, or will have to cut back on services regarded for the past dozen or score of years as indispensable.

What we are not getting, is the reminder that federal taxes have been reduced, and that individual states are going to have to raise their taxes to bear their responsibilities.

North Carolinians and most of the other states voted for the change, and now they have to live up to all it entails...including decisions as to priorities, what is dispensable and indispensable, how and where state revenues are going to be raised to cope with the assumed obligations.

It cannot be done wringing hands and lamenting Washington's "hard heart" and indifference.

Washington's largesse has been returned to the role of states. This is what the voters wanted. Remember? We remember North Carolina's money that went to the federal government as being virtually returned in full as grants, aid to different programs, etc. So our future tax burden should not so terribly unreasonable; it's just a matter of paying more taxes to one collector and less to another. We hope.

Stockman On The Stand

When I saw David Stockman being grilled by the House Budget Committee on TV news last week, I couldn't help being reminded of the way they interrogate suspects on the police show I watch every night.

"All right, David, come clean with me. What did you do with the money?"

"I don't know anything about any money."

"Don't play cute with us, David. Your budget happens to be short $91 billion. You told us last year you'd only be short $41 billion. What did you do with the other $50 billion?"

"I didn't do anything with the $50 billion. It just happens after I added up the figures I realized I had made a mistake. We have a much larger deficit than we thought."

"Do you see what I'm holding in my hand?"

"A copy of the 'Atlantic Monthly'."

"We like to refer to it as a smoking gun. You confessed in this magazine that Reaganomics was a Trojan horse, and it wouldn't work. You lied last year when you testified it would. Why should we believe you now?"

"I was talking off the record then. Now I'm telling the truth. Every single dollar in the $91 billion deficit is accounted for."

"What if we told you that

"David, we're your friends. We're trying to help you. But nothing in your budget makes sense. If you would just try to explain to us why the figures don't add up, we'll let you go. It's no crime to have made a mistake, but the economic predictions you've just given us are criminal. You've cut out all social programs, perjured yourself as to how much money you were going to give back to the states and cities in block funds, and with it all, you still won't tell us where the money is."

"It's all in the budget. Can I have a glass of water?"

"Give him a glass of water. Now, David, it seems you've given the military $250 billion to spend as they see fit."

"I did that on President Reagan's orders."

"How do we know you haven't laundered the $91 billion in the Pentagon?"

"They had to have the money to beef up the military. They need every dollar of it. There is no hidden money in the Pentagon."

"In the 'Atlantic Monthly' article you said Reaganomics wouldn't work unless you also cut the military programs. Now you're telling us something entirely different. What are we to believe?"

"I only said that then because the reporter was torturing me. Now I'm telling the truth."

"Chief, let me just work him over a little. We ain't getting nowhere with this stonewalling."

"No rough stuff, Kowowski. I'm sure if we let David sit in his chair long enough he'll start singing a different tune."

"If I don't stick to my story the White House will kill me."

"You should have thought about that when you had a chance to resign as Budget Director."

Peace Move And Volcker

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The prelude to President Reagan's public embrace of Federal Reserve Chairman Paul Volcker was the private White House rejection of an alternative monetary policy pressed on him the past two months by supply-siders.

Without dissent from the president himself, his economic advisers rejected out of hand in as few words as possible a plan that would junk the Fed's two-and-one-half-year-old attempt, so far futile, to control the money supply. Instead, it was decided that Reagan make peace with Volcker. That led to their Feb. 15 White House meeting and the president's public endorsement of the chairman four days later (headlined as support for "tight money").

This fateful decision reflects the fear of political laymen to confront central banker Volcker and the pervasive influence on Reagan policy of Dr. Milton Friedman. But there is uneasiness in middle levels of the White House that the wrong decision may have been made, posing this question: If interest rates now sharply rise, aborting economic recovery, will there be time and will to end the Volcker embrace and avert political calamity for Ronald Reagan?

The consensus inside the White House for some time has been that Chairman Volcker and his fellow governors on the Federal Reserve Board are what's wrong with the economy. The disagreement is whether the Fed has been doing a bad job of following the right policy, or is pursuing the wrong policy.

The latter view is taken by the supply-siders. They blame the October 1979 policy change by the Fed that attempts to control the money supply in line with Nobel laureate Friedman's monetarist doctrines. Since then, the nation has suffered through two rapid-fire recessions and two upward interest-rate spirals, with more of the same ahead.

The classical economic solution of the supply-siders is the Gold standard, removing the Fed governors from finetuning the American dollar. Reagan himself may be a closet goldie, but gold last year was eliminated within the administration as a viable option (in no small part because of the influential Friedman's anti-gold stance).

Accordingly, the supply-siders developed a non-gold alternative. It was presented to Reagan in slightly different forms by Rep. Jack Kemp, who has called for Volcker's resignation; Jeffrey Bell, a New Jersey Republican Senate hopeful with excellent White House connections, and Lewis Lehrman, the conservative expert on monetary policy running for governor in New York.

Strength For Today

THE OTHER HALF

One-half of the human race is continually hungry. Two-thirds of the human race has no adequate medical care. A very large percentage of the human race cannot read or write. Although it is hard to believe, there are many people living in Asia and Africa who have never heard of the United States and Canada. A multitude of people have never heard of atomic weapons. There are millions who have no more idea of what the term "democracy"

They wanted Reagan to call on Volcker to end overt Fed efforts to control the money supply, curtail Fed purchases of government bonds and dust off the discount rate as the principal instrument to maintain an adequate supply of credit. The plan was intended to lower interest rates without threatening an inflated currency. If it worked, gold convertibility of the dollar would be next.

But when this was presented to the administration's economic team in Reagan's presence, nobody had a good word for it. Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan and budget director David Stockman claimed it would rekindle inflation and, contrary to intention, send interest rates soaring again. Shortly thereafter, presidential counselor Edwin Meese was assigned the task of looking into monetary policy for the president.

Among the first contacted by Meese for advice was, not surprisingly, Professor Friedman. His counsel has been abundantly available in his recent newspaper and magazine articles: The Fed has failed to control the money supply not because monetarist policy is wrong but because of the Fed's erratic pursuit of it. That, indeed, has been the substance of widely-publicized complaints from Stockman and Don Regan.

The political strategy worked out at the White House was to make political peace with Volcker. A no-aides-present meeting between the president and the chairman was followed by Reagan's public praise for the Fed in a carefully-drafted statement signed by all senior officials concerned. It is hoped at the White House that this will encourage the markets, induce the Fed to follow more carefully Milton Friedman's admonitions and muzzle Democrat Volcker's acid criticism of the Reagan budget deficit.

But what if the supply-siders are right? What if Volcker cannot control the money supply because it is an impossible task? What if interest rates soar and the seeds of another recession are planted before the previous one is fully harvested? Presidential aides reply that would be a signal to review monetary policy, perhaps even taking another look at what the supply-siders want.

It might be too late, however. On Capitol Hill, Democrats and a good many Republicans will blame the budget deficits and the Reagan tax cuts for all this misfortune. To blame Volcker and his policies at that point would be labeled scapegoating. If so, Ronald Reagan's embrace of Paul Volcker could have been a fateful decision with profound implications for this nation's political and economic future.

Intervention Is Not Likely

Do you like the picture of unarmed Polish workers rising against their military rulers...perhaps even fighting the Soviet war machine?

The very thought is horrifying.

Yet, a correspondent for the London Daily Telegraph reports "deep, terrifying, almost childish conviction" that the West would never stand by as an idle spectator to a longed-for "Polish spring".

Somehow, the United States and Great Britain must convince Poland's rank-and-file workers that outside help is out of the question; and courage, or desperation alone, is not enough. This is no time to dream of miracles.

A Stigma Needed

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Is it all right to drive drunk?

Judging from some worrisome figures, there are a lot of people who think it is.

In 1980 the number of people 18 years old or younger arrested on charges of driving under the influence of alcohol or drugs increased by 33 percent over the previous year.

That same year there were more arrests (nearly 50,000) for driving under the influence in North Carolina than in any other state in the nation except Texas and California. Texas has a population twice that of North Carolina. California is four times as populous.

Despite intensified arrest efforts by the State Highway Patrol and local law enforcement officials, only about half of those arrested are convicted of the charge.

Too Many In 1980, there were 1,516 traffic fatalities in North Carolina. Drunken drivers were the direct cause in 414 of those deaths. Drunk driving was a contributing factor in another 367 deaths.

When Gov. Jim Hunt named his Task Force on Drunken Drivers recently and asked that it report back to him in time for recommendations for action to the 1983 General Assembly, he made the point that "this carnage is not due to lack of enforcement."

A number of people concerned with the problem have pointedly suggested

"If we are to make a change, it has got to be one which the people believe in and are committed to," the Governor said.

How, he wondered, can we attach a stigma to drunk driving?

That suggests that the public presently does not look with great distaste upon the drunk driver, and the figures cited above tend to that the courts are to blame. Too many drunk driving charges are reduced or dismissed as judges and district attorneys take lesser pleas to avoid long and expensive delays.

The evidence is abundant that one charged with drunk driving will spare no expense or effort to beat the rap and protect that license to drive.

Hunt's task force will hold public hearings to seek ideas from as many people as possible on how to tackle the dilemma.

Specific suggestions on the law will emerge. But Hunt cautions that just changing the law; making it tougher — will not resolve the issue.

We at the Greenville office of the North Carolina Employment Security Commission would like to express our sincere appreciation for the support given to our agency in general and the Greenville office in particular during the recent federal funding crisis. Mayor Cox, city officials, county officials, The Daily Reflector, the Chamber of Commerce, Development Commission and many private businesses, corporations, and private citizens wrote letters and used other means of correspondence to our federal officials in our behalf. We lost some staff members; however, we at the Greenville Employment Office have rededicated ourselves to serving the public and businesses of Pitt County. We thank you all. To the editor:

There is a discrimination problem in the Greenville area which has nothing to do with race, color or religion. It pertains to students of Pitt Community College.

It is common knowledge that East Carolina University has created a much greater flow of cash in this area. What I would like to know is why don't the merchants and businesses in the area realize that not everyone has the funds or the desire to attend a university? Many of the businesses in the Greenville give discounts and other fringe benefits to East Carolina students and exclude Pitt Community College students. A very good example of this is Carolina Telephone and Telegraph. This business exempts the university students from paying a deposit for phone installation.

The majority of Pitt Community College students are local residents who are themselves (or have) parents who are taxpayers and voting citizens. Why must we be penalized for choosing to attend a community college? In this time of inflation and questionable economic situations, we need every advantage available. Is there no feeling of unity among our fellow citizens? If there is, I would sure like to be made aware of it.

I would appreciate any help anyone might give in resolving this problem.

Editor's note: Carolina Telephone Area Manager Dick Flye says deposits are determined individually based on a person's credit record, not according to what school he or she attends or if he or she attends any. He said ECU dormitory students are not charged installation fees because telephone service is kept in each dorm room and the fee has, thus, already been paid by the university.

Says U.S. Public Must Adjust

By JOHN CUNNIFF

AP Business Analyst NEW YORK (AP) — During a recession, the President's chief economic adviser told the Joint Economic Committee last week, "the borrowing requirements of business and consumers tend to be relatively small."

While perplexed readers puzzled over that thought, expressed by Murray L. Weidenbaum, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisors, Paul Volcker, Federal Reserve Board chairman, gave them more to consider. Testifying on Tuesday before the House Ways and Means Committee, Volcker suggested something of the same — that until the economy begins to recover business investment may remain at a less than desired rate.

Neither observation lessens the mystery, the confusion, the suspicion of economics, in which one of the more difficult tasks is to separate cause and effect, or to put it more colloquially, determining whether it was the chicken that made the egg or the egg that made the chicken.

To be more precise, some people are wondering today if it's the recession that discourages business and consumers from borrowing or whether it is the lack of borrowing that prolongs the deep recession.

And they ponder, in regard to the Volcker testimony, if perhaps the low rate of business investment and the depressed economy might not be one and the same thing, that is, both chicken and egg.

Fortunately, Weidenbaum usually presents the administration program in clear language, which probably is one of the reasons why it retains so much support during a recession marked by extreme unemployment.

Still, the presentation made by Weidenbaum shows how tenuous and probably unprovable are assumptions made in guiding economic policy.

When the public adjusts to the realization that the President will maintain his commitments on taxes, spending, regulation and monetary policy, Weidenbaum says, higher growth and less inflation will follow.

Voice Of America Plans To Raise Its Radio Voice

By MIKE FEINSILBER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — In the propaganda battle for the world's hearts and minds, the United States is planning to raise its voice.

Officials say over the next few years the Voice of America intends to step up the power of its shortwave transmissions in an attempt to reach more people. And, to keep them listening, this show business-conscious administration intends to give its message a more "contemporary" sound. Particularly, it wants to sound more youthful, to appeal to the young. These attempts to play a bigger role in the ideological struggle with the Soviet Union have Ronald Reagan's devoted backing.

The president installed a friend of 25 years' standing, Charles Z. Wick, as top man at the International Communication Agency, parent agency of the VOA. Wick, a prosperous businessman, was once the arranger for Tommy Dorsey's band.

Today, when the Voice celebrates 40 years on the air, Reagan is expected to visit the VOA to participate in a ceremony.

The Voice spoke German, to Germany, on Feb. 24, 1942. The first broadcast said: "Daily at this time, we shall speak to you about America and the war. The news may be good or bad, we shall tell you the truth."

VOA officials say they've adhered to that pledge ever since, but in recent years they've been out-shouted by others, especially the Soviets.

The VOA beams its signals at a strength of 100,000 to 250,000 watts. It intends, over the next two to five years, to step up to 500,000 watts — a power already used by the Soviet Union, and even by Libya and Gabon.

Terry Catherman, deputy director and a 32-year veteran of U.S. information and cultural programs, says the VOA signals reach Eastern Europe and the European part of the Soviet Union. But getting heard in the Asian part of the USSR, east of the Urals, is a chancy thing.

"We intend to increase the quality of our broadcasts, too," Catherman said in an interview. "VOA is solid. VOA is truthful and, to tell you the truth, VOA is a little staid sounding."

He estimates that the Voice has a global audience of 103 million, who tune in at least once a week. That doesn't include the Chinese audience, which can't be estimated.

A stronger signal could increase the audience by 50 percent or more, Catherman said.

VOA is on the air 900 hours a week, in 39 languages. It carries 280 newscasts a day as well as music and sports and programs intended to tell about life in America and to give a variety of competing American views on U.S. policies.

There have been recent reports of internal unease among some VOA employees over what they see as efforts to tailor the agency's newscasts to cast a favorable light on U.S. foreign policy.

VOA's mission is to explain America to the world. Independently, two other U.S. government stations — Radio Free Europe, beamed to Eastern Europe, and Radio Liberty, aimed at the Soviet Union — seek to operate as though they were internal organs of the countries they address. They employ emigre broadcasters from those countries.

The Voice of America stepped up its broadcasts to Poland from 2 1/2 to 7 hours a day in the aftermath of the military takeover.

The Soviet Union started jamming Western broadcasts to Poland 15 days after martial law was declared Dec. 13. Despite the jamming, Catherman says, perhaps 40 percent of the signals get through.

A number of frequencies are used, he said, and if the Poles are intent on hearing a Voice broadcast, they'll find a way.

"We are one of the main sources of information for the Poles right now," he adds. "Shortwave always becomes more significant during periods of crisis."

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Snow is expected in the forecast period, Wednesday until Thursday morning, from the Great Lakes and Ohio Valley into the Northeast. Showers are forecast for the Southeast and Southwest. Rain is expected for the Pacific Northwest. North-central states will be colder. (AP Laserphoto Map)

An erratic weather pattern is shaping up for North Carolina over the next few days, the National Weather Service says.

Above-normal temperatures over the Gulf States Tuesday will be moving over a good portion of the Carolinas today, brought in by a brisk southwest wind. But by Thursday, colder air currently over the northern and central plains will fan east and southeast in the wake of today's warmth.

reinforce that conclusion. The drunk driver may be your friendly doctor, a favorite uncle, even your very own representative in the General Assembly.

Does that make driving drunk all right? Judging from the attitudes of jurors and court officials, it does.

Public Job
Courts don't exist in a vacuum. The ultimate change in how drunk drivers are treated at the bar of justice must be public opinion strongly expressed so that judges and prosecutors alike clearly understand that they have a job to do in regards to drunken driving.

The Governor's Task Force on Drunken Driving can accomplish that most significant goal, however, only if there is indeed a public outcry.

Elsewhere in the nation, notably in California, citizens were required finally to organize and demonstrate before lawmakers got the message and slammed the door on drunk driving loopholes.

Before there can be a stigma — public rejection of the drunk driver — there must be a public which says clearly, No, it is not all right to drive drunk.

The frontal zone which will bring in the winter weather again for the end of the week was located over northern Virginia stretching back into northern Texas this morning. It should pass North Carolina tonight.

Moisture is limited; thus some clouds will be evident and even a few snow flurries by tonight and Thursday for the higher mountains. But elsewhere only isolated showers are expected.

Tuesday was a pleasant day for most of the state although the outer banks and sections of the northeast were in the cool 40s. Yet the western counties warmed nicely into the 70s in some locations as was the case at Asheville where a record 76 degrees was reached Tuesday afternoon.

The old record there was 74 degrees set in 1980. Other records should be broken this afternoon. The range in temperatures Tuesday afternoon went from 77 degrees at Murphy to 46 at Cape Hatteras.

look: A surge of warm air today will make for a pleasant Wednesday but by Thursday more cold air will invade the state. It will be breezy today with high in the 70s except for some milder 60s over the higher mountains and northeastern counties.

By Thursday colder air and wind will bring winter feeling back with high in the 30s over the higher mountains and in the 40s eastward to the low and mid 50s southeastern areas. A small craft advisory will probably be necessary by late today as winds are expected to pick up from the north by tonight.

At Stake: Philosophical Control Of Actors Union

AT ODDS — Actor Charlton Heston, left, is critical of current Screen Actors Guild president Ed Asner, right, saying the actors union has drifted deeper into political waters than the members want to go. (AP Laserphoto)

By JAY ARNOLD
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — It's the stuff that motion picture and television dramas are made of — Ben-Hur vs. Lou Grant — but the battle is not Hollywood make-believe.

Since January, a fight for philosophical control of the Screen Actors Guild, the powerful 50,000-member actors union, has divided the entertainment industry and led to a death threat and a recall movement against its president, Ed Asner, star of television's "Lou Grant."

"This whole thing has gotten out of hand," said one SAG official who asked not to be identified.

The drama began in January when SAG first awarded its annual award to Ronald Reagan, a six-time president of the union, and then retracted it.

That move, ostensibly over the president's handling of the air controllers strike last summer, was bitterly criticized by actor and former SAG president Charlton Heston as "a gross blunder" and an "example of the radicalization of the Guild."

The White House had no comment on the award's withdrawal.

Heston, star of such movie hits as "The Ten Commandments" and "Ben-Hur," said that SAG, with Asner as president, has drifted deeper into political waters. He pointed to a movement to merge three actors unions, plus the Guild's donation of money last summer to the striking air traffic controllers and a board resolution in December that the union speak out more on political issues — including endorsement of candidates.

"Actors are very touchy about having people speak for them," Heston said in an interview. "What they want from their union is attention to the jobs problem," in an industry where, he said, 76 percent of the SAG members earned less than $2,500 last year.

The death threat against Asner surfaced last Wednesday when a man called SAG headquarters and told his secretary a group was "out to get" the actor for his aid to rebels in El Salvador.

The caller referred to a Washington news conference Asner and several other prominent actors held Feb. 15 to announce a $1 million fund-raising drive to send medical supplies into violence-torn El Salvador through left-wing guerrillas. Bodyguards have been assigned to Asner, security guards were posted at the entrance to the "Lou Grant" set, security was increased at the studio gates and Asner has temporarily stopped giving interviews, said his spokesman Mike Mamakos.

Also on Wednesday, SAG member Tony Cecere began a drive to unseat Asner and claimed he had already gathered 300 signatures. A petition campaign would require valid signatures from 10 percent of SAG's 50,000 members before the union's board would consider action. Two-thirds of SAG's members must approve a recall in a written ballot.

Heston, who does not favor the recall, said he was "appalled" by the death threats but added, "It is certainly true that he (Asner) was carelessly derelict in his responsibility."

"Without even hearing his comments, I am positive he did not give Guild money. What he did do was fail to make clear he was not speaking on behalf of the Guild," said Heston, claiming he had received "at least a hundred" calls from SAG members criticizing Asner's stance on El Salvador.

"I would suggest that the serious professionals in the Screen Actors Guild would not want the Guild to take positions on El Salvador or solar energy ... but on acting," he said.

"I think that it's not only a right but an obligation for every responsible citizen to speak out when our government is acting in ways we believe are wrong," Asner wrote in a bylined essay that appeared on the Op Ed Page of Saturday's New York Times. "That's why I went to our nation's capital ... because the situation in El Salvador is rapidly becoming another Vietnam War, and I want to prevent that from happening."

Before Asner stopped giving interviews, he said his goal was to strengthen SAG, not radicalize it.

"I have yet to make one political act, to call for one political act," Asner said, adding that Heston's attacks may be "at the behest of the White House because of the SAG award embarrassment."

"I can't believe he was serious," Heston said. "I cannot believe the president of the United States has nothing better to do than concern himself with the inner politics of the Screen Actors Guild."

Asner charged that Heston has been engaged in "a great deal of nitpicking and street confrontation the past six weeks — the same charge Heston leveled at Asner regarding recent negotiations between SAG and producers of radio and television commercials."

Asner termed it "a bald-faced lie" that he had advocated confrontation tactics during talks on the commercials industry contract. A tentative commercial agreement has been reached and awaits board and member approval.

As for the proposed merger of SAG with the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists and the Screen Extras Guild — a move Heston thinks was "designed to increase the power" of Asner and other Guild leaders, Asner has said. "The bigger the union, the stronger it has to be. Merger ... can only help the individual."

Opponents of the merger contend it would prevent union actors from working on non-union productions and would result in prohibitive labor costs for low-budget and independent producers.

Asner has accused Heston of defecting from the labor movement. He said Heston, who last year chaired a special presidential task force on private funding for the arts, should spend his time seeking more jobs for actors.

"Out of one side of his mouth he talks of jobs for actors; out of the other side, he rubber stamps job cuts in the arts," Asner said.

Credited With Saving Driver

KINSTON, N.C. (AP) — A Dudley woman who witnessed a spectacular collision of a tanker truck and passenger car may have saved the life of the truck driver, a state highway patrolman said.

The tanker truck, carrying 8,000 gallons of gasoline, burst into flame after slamming into the rear of the car around 6:30 a.m. Tuesday at the intersection of N.C. 258 and U.S. 70 two miles east of Kinston, said patrolman J.D. Robinson.

Roosevelt Gray, 27, a driver for Cowell Oil Co. of Bayboro, stumbled from the truck and ran screaming for help, his body engulfed in flames.

Mrs. Kathy Watson, who was halfway through her sandwich-delivery route when she came upon the accident, stopped her truck and ran toward Gray with a coat.

With the help of another witness, Jerry Miller of Mocksville, she wrestled Gray to the ground and extinguished the flames — but not before Gray had suffered third-degree burns over 65 percent of his body.

Mrs. Watson then noticed that the flames were inching toward her truck and barely reached it in time to drive the vehicle away. The 32-year-old mother of two returned to Gray and stayed until rescue personnel arrived.

Gray was taken to Lenoir Memorial Hospital and later transferred to the Jaycee Burn Center at North Carolina Memorial Hospital in Chapel Hill. He was listed in critical condition Tuesday night.

According to Robinson, Gray might have died at the accident scene had Mrs. Watson not acted. "I won't say it's all in a day's work," Mrs. Watson responded. "I just did what any person would have done. I just don't know if I did enough."

Charlie H. Hodges, 52, of Lewiston, driver of the car, was treated at a local hospital. A passenger in the car, Allen B. Harrison, 48, of Greensboro, suffered minor injuries. Hodges was charged with an unsafe movement violation after he allegedly turned in front of Gray's truck.

Williams 'Keeps His Cool' In Intense Questioning

By DAVID PACE
Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — Keeping his cool as a prosecutor accused him of "choking the life out of" young blacks, Wayne B. Williams said he might easily have become another victim in the string of killings that terrified Atlanta.

Williams testified Tuesday during his second day on the witness stand that he was not a killer, and he said he wasn't sure the killings of young blacks had ended.

The 23-year-old black free-lance photographer and aspiring talent promoter underwent three hours of intense questioning by prosecutors Tuesday, proclaiming his innocence throughout and denying repeatedly that he had any part in the slayings of 12 young blacks.

"Are you saying that all of these witnesses that came in here and the points you've contradicted, they've all lied against you?" Assistant District Attorney Jack Mallard asked Williams.

"I didn't say all of them," he replied. "I say some of them have lied, some of them have told half-truths. Some of them have been mistaken, and, of course, some of them have outright lied."

Williams, who was to return to the witness stand today, is charged with the murders of Nathaniel Cater, 27, and Jimmy Ray Payne, 21, two of 28 young blacks whose deaths during a 22-month period were investigated by a special police task force.

No arrests have been made in the 26 other killings, but prosecutors contend that the deaths of Cater and Payne are part of a pattern of killings that includes the slayings of 10 other young blacks.

In a classic confrontation between prosecutor and murder defendant, Mallard focused on the scratches prosecution witnesses had testified they saw on Williams' face and arms during the period when the killings were occurring.

"You heard the witnesses testify, didn't you now? My question is, did any of those victims scratch you as you were choking the life out of them?" Mallard asked.

"Absolutely not," Williams replied.

"Isn't it true that while you were choking them to death, with the last breath, they were scratching your arms and face?" he asked.

"No," Williams answered, staring directly at Mallard.

"Did you experience any panic at any point there?" Mallard asked.

"During what?" Williams said.

"At any point during the time that you were killing these victims?" Mallard replied.

"Sir, I haven't killed anybody," Williams responded.

"Isn't it true that you killed them?" Mallard shot back.

"Sir, I'm about as guilty as you are," Williams replied.

Williams maintained his composure throughout Tuesday's cross-examination, raising his voice only infrequently and addressing Mallard as "sir" during much of his testimony.

He insisted that his testimony Monday and Tuesday about his involvement in the case was the truth, and he denied making earlier statements to authorities that were inconsistent with his testimony.

At one point, Williams said, "I'm 23 years old and, who knows, I could have been one of those persons ending up dead out there."

"Heck, anybody in Atlanta could have during that time, and I'm not sure that it's over, to be honest with you."

Williams first came to police attention in the pre-dawn hours of May 22 when he was stopped near a Chattahoochee River bridge after a police stakeout officer reported hearing a loud splash in the river and spotting Williams' car on the bridge.

Cater's body was found in the river two days later, about 1 1/4 miles downstream from the bridge. Prosecutors contend Williams had just dumped Cater's body in the river when he was stopped.

Williams testified Tuesday he was in the area of the bridge around 3 a.m. because he was trying to locate the address of a Cheryl Johnson, with whom he had an appointment the next day for a talent audition.

He denied stopping on the bridge, denied throwing anything off the bridge and denied telling an associate shortly after the incident that he would confess if enough evidence were gathered against him.

Williams was questioned by police when he was stopped, he was questioned later the same day by two FBI agents at his home, and he was interrogated for nearly 12 hours at FBI headquarters during the evening and early morning hours of June 3 and 4.

When asked about statements he made to authorities that contradicted details in his testimony Tuesday, Williams said he never was allowed to make a formal statement to police, even though he asked.

He said Mallard was using notes from the officers who interviewed him in an attempt to bring out inconsistencies in his testimony, but "what they say on that sheet of paper ... is what they compiled. That may not have been what I said."

Mallard asked Williams why he said at his news conference that he decided to look for Miss Johnson's address because he "was out in the area anyway making some pickups" if, as he testified earlier, he had decided before leaving home to find the address.

Williams said he found no inconsistency in those statements, but Mallard said they indicated "you just decided after you were out to make the trip up to Cobb County."

Williams also said at the news conference he was stopped by police just after "I was leaving the scene." Mallard asked him if he meant "the scene of the crime" and if he was "about to slip there in your news conference."

"Sir, I wasn't about to slip anywhere because I've told you what happened," Williams replied.

Mallard shot back in a sarcastic tone. "Because you always have control of a situation, don't you?"

Williams' attorneys objected and he was not allowed to answer.

Hundreds Wanted To Hear Testimony

ATLANTA (AP) — More than 400 people, some waiting since 4:30 a.m., tried to crowd into the Fulton County courtroom where murder defendant Wayne B. Williams has spent two days testifying in his own defense.

The crowd Tuesday was the biggest since the trial began Dec. 28, said Jo Carny, one of the Fulton County deputies in charge of controlling spectators at the trial.

Only 85 spectators were allowed in. The spectators let in for the morning session were cleared from the courtroom after the noon recess to make way for others in the afternoon.

Two women, who asked not be identified, said they played hooky from work to listen to Tuesday's testimony. "We're supposed to be on our jobs — can't let the boss know we were here," one of them said. "We came to hear Wayne Williams talk."

Brian Costello, a Georgia State University student who has followed the trial closely, did not gain entrance to Tuesday's testimony. But he said, "I was here for opening statements and the fiber evidence."

"I thought this would be the best part," 22-year-old Georgia Tech student Jameela Moinuddin said while waiting to get inside the courtroom. "I even tried to get a press pass."

No-Till Farm Meeting Set

A no-till meeting will be held Thursday at Abram's Barbeque from 10 a.m.-1 p.m. All aspects of no-till farming will be discussed, including herbicides, pest management, costs, conservation aspects and equipment.

On the program are David Young, Charlie Womble and John Anderson, extension corn specialist, as well as Albert Coffey, district soil conservationist.

An informal panel discussion featuring experienced no-till farmers in the county will be held. County extension agent Sam Uzzell said the meeting will be open to the public.

Seized At Sea

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — A 60-foot lobster boat carrying seven tons of marijuana has been seized north of Haiti, the U.S. Coast Guard said.

Spokesman Allen Faust said the U.S.-registered Susan was captured Monday night 17 miles north of Haiti, and was being escorted to San Juan. It was expected to arrive Thursday.

Faust said the number of people on board, their nationality, and where the boat was registered, were not available.

POWER FOR THE LONG RUN

U.S. Warship Said Monitoring El Salvador Coast

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is stationing a destroyer near the strife-torn Central American nation of El Salvador. Pentagon sources confirm, but defense officials say it is not intended to be a show of force.

The Pentagon sources said Tuesday night that the purpose of having a vessel there is to monitor radio communications in the area.

The defense officials, who requested anonymity, dismissed suggestions that the warship was stationed there as a show of U.S. might, noting that a single destroyer does not have enough combat power to do that.

The revelation about the destroyer came less than 24 hours before President Reagan's scheduled speech today to the Organization of American States on his administration's "Caribbean basin initiative" of economic measures to boost economies of the area and combat subversion.

While details of U.S. intelligence gathering methods generally are kept secret, it is known that some destroyers of the Spruance class are fitted with the most advanced equipment for what is known as communications intelligence.

The Deyo, which sources said was on station in the Pacific off El Salvador starting some time in January, and the Caron, which they said recently relieved it, both are of the Spruance class — one of the most modern U.S. warship designs.

One source passed on a report that said the Deyo had been hailed by a gunboat from an unspecified navy, believed to be Nicaraguan, which asked to send an officer aboard, but the request was refused.

A Navy spokesman refused to discuss any details of the Deyo's mission, but he did say "at no time did any ship from any foreign navy try to stop" the 7,000-ton U.S. vessel.

According to the report, however, the gunboat moved alongside the Deyo and an officer asked to board the U.S. ship, claiming it was in territorial waters. However, it was reported that the Deyo's skipper denied permission to board and insisted his ship was in international waters.

The account did not make clear whose territorial water it was supposed to be in.

It could not be determined whose radio traffic was being monitored, but from that area communications among guerrilla units in El Salvador and between those units and supporters in neighboring Nicaragua could be overheard.

The United States is supporting the Salvadoran civilian-military government of Jose Napoleon Duarte with military advisers and technicians and growing amounts of equipment, but has not engaged in overt military action.

The Reagan administration has accused Cuba of supporting leftist Salvadoran rebels with arms shipments funneled through Nicaraguan and Honduras.

The sources said that the Deyo having been relieved by another ship indicates the intelligence-gathering mission will continue for the indefinite future.

Navy spokesman Cmdr. Tom Jurkowski declined to confirm that the Deyo had been relieved.

But he acknowledged that the Deyo was returning to its home port at Charleston, S.C., after a two-month deployment, and a Navy source said later that the destroyer arrived at Charleston on Tuesday.

Jurkowski said the destroyer made two port calls, at Rodman near the Panama Canal and at Nassau in the Bahamas, and that the ship "conducted operations at sea in international waters."

U.S. warships long have carried intelligence gathering equipment and are known to have operated on such missions in the Far East and elsewhere.

The most well-known of such missions took place in the Gulf of Tonkin in 1964, when the destroyers Maddox and C. Turner Joy engaged North Vietnamese patrol boats. That incident led to the passage of the Tonkin Gulf resolution by Congress, which gave the president broad powers to conduct the war in Vietnam.

Police List

2 Accidents

An estimated $3,050 property damage resulted from two traffic mishaps investigated by Greenville police Tuesday.

Officers said heaviest damage resulted from a 9:25 a.m. collision in the outpatient parking lot at Pitt County Memorial Hospital involving a car driven by Sophia Taylor Pritchard of Bethel and three parked cars.

Police said the Pritchard car collided with cars owned by Patrick Michael Oneill of 211 N. Elm St., Michelle Toney of Bethel and Dalton Troy Jones Jr. of Route 11, Greenville, causing $400 damage to the Pritchard car, $1,000 damage to the Oneill vehicle, $900 damage to the Toney car and $200 damage to the Jones auto.

Cars driven by Cedrick Guy Roberts III of 909 College View Apartments and Mark Daniel Schmidt of 609 S. Elm St. collided about 5:15 p.m. at the intersection of 10th Street and Rocksprings Road, resulting in an estimated $250 damage to the Roberts car and $300 damage to the Schmidt vehicle.

Kissinger Will Leave Hospital

BOSTON (AP) — Henry Kissinger has lost seven pounds since his open-heart surgery, but his doctors say he'll be kept on a special diet after he leaves the hospital in order to prevent heart and blood-vessel disease.

The 58-year-old former secretary of state was to be discharged at noon today from Massachusetts General Hospital, where he underwent triple-bypass surgery two weeks ago. Kissinger will continue his recovery at a cardiac rehabilitation center in New York.

The former diplomat will remain on a modest-salt diet low in cholesterol and fat. He is scheduled to begin a structured exercise program within six weeks, involving mostly walking at first.

"Prevention of heart and blood vessel disease is as important in the future as before the problem developed," said Dr. Roman DeSanctis, chief of cardiac services at the hospital and chief consultant on Kissinger's case.

The doctor said Kissinger was a "cooperative and compliant patient, and a very good-humored one."

Doctors say Kissinger has been taking short strolls in the hospital corridor during the past week, looking in on fellow heart surgery patients in other rooms. He has also sent other patients the overflow of flowers that have poured into his room.

DeSanctis said Kissinger has been deluged with mail and telephone calls from around the world, but "we had to limit his visitors so that he could get some rest." He has been spending about an hour a day reading reports and business documents.

Three areas of the coronary arteries that feed the heart were blocked or narrowed in Kissinger's case, according to DeSanctis. To restore adequate blood flow and ward off a heart attack, three sections of vein were taken from his leg to form detours around the blocked segments during the Feb. 10 operation.

To work on the heart, the breast bone was split with a surgical saw and then wired back together.

Distribution For RIF Held

FARMVILLE — The mayor, administrators and commissioners of Farmville were on hand for the annual "Reading Is Fundamental" distribution at Sam Bundy School, held recently by the town's Junior Women's Club.

Mayor Rusty Duke, Administrator Robert Morgan and Commissioners Mike Dixon and Joe Kue attended the event, which also included guest speakers ranging from dental assistants and rescue squad members to bankers and policemen.

"When I Grow up..." was the theme for the week. Each child was encouraged to choose a book they wanted and the book then was given to them.

RIF distributions are funded through a federal program with matching monies provided by local organizations.

Set Conference On English

WINSTON-SALEM — The Southeastern Conference on English in the Two-Year College will hold its annual meeting Thursday through Saturday at the Hyatt House, hosted by Pitt Community College and East Carolina University.

More than 500 persons from nine southeastern U.S. states are expected to participate in the programs which have been designed to meet virtually any phase of written or oral communication. Reynolds Price, Duke University professor and novelist, will be one of the speakers.

Special sessions will include workshops on technical writing, journalism, composition, oral communications and linguistics-dialects. A tour of Western Electric's technical writing and graphics center is also planned.

For more information regarding registration contact John Hutchens, PCC, P.O. Drawer 7007, Greenville.

Police Checking Exposure Report

Greenville police today were investigating an incident Tuesday on a dirt path behind Darryl's Restaurant, used by East Carolina University students to travel between 10th and 14th streets, in which a man attempted to expose himself to a co-ed.

Chief Glenn Cannon said Donna Diane Watson of Umstead Dorm told investigators she was walking along the old railroad roadbed when she looked behind her and saw a man following her with his pants pulled down.

The incident occurred about 12:05 p.m. the chief said.

Solar Fraction

Greenville's solar fraction calculated by the department of physics of East Carolina University was 76 Tuesday, which means that a solar water heater could have provided 76 percent of your hot water.

EMPLOYEES REUNION

Employees of the former Formica Corp., Farmville, will have a dinner reunion at Parkers Restaurant, Memorial Drive, Greenville, Friday at 7 p.m.

A spokesman for the group said the gathering has been held for the past five years and anyone that was employed by the corporation at anytime is welcome. The dinner will be Dutch.

Waste, Fraud Strike Force Report Is Questioned

By TOM SEPPY
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's "junkyard dogs" may have more bark than the bite the administration has attributed to them.

In his State of the Union address, President Reagan proudly tol the country that his administration had created an effective federal strike force of inspectors general to combat waste and fraud in government. The team has saved taxpayers more than $2 billion in just six months, he said.

Not so, says a House Government Operations subcommittee. The committee today on failure of federal agencies to collect millions of dollars owed to the government.

In its report to Reagan, the President's Council on Integrity and Efficiency said its 18 inspectors general had saved $388 million in "audit recoveries" and $1.7 billion in "costs avoided" because of IG recommendations.

However, the House legislation and national security subcommittee has questioned the auditing of the federal agencies, particularly the General Services Administration and Transportation Department.

The efficiency report showed "audit recoveries" at the GSA accounted for $92.2 million of the total $388 million, and the Transportation Department accounted for $190 million.

In addition, some House members said they do not believe costs avoided in future years should be considered a saving.

"There are real battles to be won in the war on waste, and I don't think it helps anyone to engage in these make-believe figures," said Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Texas.

"I hope the projected savings in the president's new budget expected to come from eliminating fraud and waste are not based on the same kind of figures as those reported by the Council on Integrity and Efficiency," he said.

Reagan's budget for the current year estimates $18 billion in revenues as a result of management improvements, including $1 billion from fraud, waste and abuse.

The General Accounting Office, which carries out studies requested by Congress, submitted a report to the committee in which it said federal agencies do a poor job of managing and collecting audit-related debts owed by contractors and grantees such as state and local governments.

"Most agencies do not know the total amount owed to them, nor do they collect debts promptly or charge the required interest when payments are late," the GAO said.

"When they are paid, agencies usually do not know whether the amounts received have been taken from their own or other federal programs. Also, some federal agencies avoid collecting some of their debts altogether," the GAO said.

Brooks charged that some agencies "don't know how much is owed them," and they don't collect interest when payment is late. "And some of them just write the debts off rather than try to collect them," he said.

As an example, Brooks said the GAO found that the Education Department had to stop action to collect $2.4 million in debts established as a result of six audits of state education agencies because the statute of limitations had expired.

OPEN WIDE — Daisy's adopted mother feeds the 4-month-old orangutan a mushy mixture of vegetables and cereal. Later, Daisy will start eating solid fruits and vegetables. The tiny orangutan had to be taken from her mother shortly after birth when "Mom" developed a habit of punching her daughter and tossing her around the cage at the Birmingham (Ala.) Zoo. Dr. Georganna Hanglack, staff veterinarian at the zoo, ended up adopting Daisy because baby orangutans require constant attention. (AP Laserphoto)

School Taught Women Crime

PARAMUS, N.J. (AP) — Fifteen arrests have been made in connection with what police say is a school for crime that gave lessons on stolen credit card scams. Investigators hadn't found the New York City-based school and the women who taught there, Police Chief Joseph Delaney said Tuesday.

The arrests were made in the last three weeks, but Delaney said police did not realize the suspects studied credit card schemes at a school until finding a defendant's notebook last Friday. Delaney said a notebook owned by Linda Johnson, 26, of New York City, contained what appeared to be classroom notes on the easiest stores to hit, what to wear and telephone numbers to find out credit lines on stolen cards.

"She literally said she has to go back for a refresher course because she didn't do too well, getting busted," Delaney said.

The 15 people were charged with possession of stolen property. The "school" also provided a fencing operation for the stolen goods, Delaney said.

Delaney said the school taught 10 students in each two- to three-hour seminar, charging a $100 fee.

Students completing the cram course would be given three stolen credit cards and blank drivers' licenses, Social Security cards and blank birth certificates to contrive phony identification, Delaney said.

The chief said students were able to learn private credit card codes, so they could find out how large a sale had to be before store personnel would check the credit line. The chief said five men and seven women had been arrested before the notebook was found last Friday. The men were "wheel men" who drove cars where the women bought goods purchased with stolen credit cards, Delaney said.

The seven women all had arrest records for prostitution, Delaney said.

Delaney said the suspects had a total of 50 stolen credits cards, most taken in purse-snatchings. One card with unlimited credit was used 99 times in one day, he said.

Delaney said Ms. Johnson responded to questions about the school, but refused to tell investigators where it is.

Delaney said it was difficult to estimate how large the school was, or how much was stolen.

Officials at First Jersey Bank said it appeared graduates of the school had used its cards to make $60,000 in illegal purchases since November, the chief said.

Ponder Regulations For A PCB Plant

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Greensboro and Guilford County officials are wondering how to regulate a plant that handles a suspected cancer-causing substance and recently began operating at a temporary location near Regional Airport.

The plant recycles oils and equipment containing polychlorinated biphenyls. It is located in the watershed that supplies Greensboro's water, which has city and county officials worried.

City Manager Tom Osborne said he thinks state authorities have the power to outlaw such a plant in the city's watershed. He said the city has asked them to consider doing so.

But Ray E. Shaw, city water and sewer director who has been corresponding with state officials about the plant, said he doesn't know whether they have that authority. "The situation apparently is unique," he said. "It's new to the state, too. There's been no firm decision yet."

State officials called into consultation said they don't regulate facilities dealing with PCBs. That is up to the federal Environmental Protection Agency, they said.

Calls Tuesday to the EPA offices in the Research Triangle Park, Atlanta and Washington didn't produce an EPA official who could say for sure what power the EPA has over the plant. Some couldn't be reached, and some didn't know.

Meanwhile, controversy has arisen over officials' understanding of what would go on at the temporary facility.

City officials thought that SED, Inc., the Wisconsin-based company operating the plant, would only store the PCB material at the temporary location, which they've been doing for about a month.

Osborne said Tuesday he thought processing wouldn't begin until SED moved to a permanent location.

But company spokesman John H. Olmsted said Tuesday that he had always intended to recycle materials at the temporary location.

When he was informed late Tuesday that city officials thought differently, he said there's been a misunderstanding and that he would confer with them before making any further decisions on how the plant will function.

"As of right now, I have no plans," he said after leaving of the misunderstanding.

Olmsted said the company for some time has been looking for permanent headquarters in Guilford County and will move when it finds land to buy.

The company has leased about 12,000 square feet of warehouse and office space from The Bissell Companies, Inc. It now stores, classifies and ships PCB-laced fluids from there, Olmsted and state officials said.

The company will buy from industry materials contaminated with PCB's, including electrical equipment, cooling oil from that equipment, and hydraulic fluids. PCB's, suspected of causing cancer and other health problems, are used to make the oil and fluids fire resistant and to make electrical equipment more efficient.

Olmsted said SED will recover usable oil or metal, sell it, and send the remaining material still contaminated with PCB's elsewhere for disposal. He said the company won't attempt to establish any PCB disposal facility in North Carolina.

Advices Review

WILSON, N.C. (AP) — State Elections Board Chairman Alex Brock has recommended that Wilson County submit its system for electing county commissioners to the U.S. Department of Justice for approval.

Brock's recommendation came after the Justice Department sent a letter to Wilson County commissioners saying the county's system for electing commissioners was not submitted when instituted, and therefore violates federal law.

The county's voters approved the system of staggered terms for commissioners in March 1976.

Wilson County is one of 40 North Carolina counties covered by the Voting Rights Act of 1965, and any changes in its election procedures or laws must be submitted to the Justice Department's Civil Rights Division.

In a Feb. 17 letter, William Bradford Reynolds, assistant attorney general of the Civil Rights Division, told county manager Garry Mercer that his office had no record of the change being submitted for clearance.

The letter said the county can either submit the system for review by the department or reinstate the previous system of electing all seven board members every two years.

Under the staggered system, which has operated during the past three elections, four commissioners are up for re-election every two years. The three candidates receiving the most votes are elected to four-year terms and the candidate receiving the next highest number of votes is elected to a two-year term.

Two years later, the number four finisher in the previous year's election and the remaining three commissioners are up for re-election.

Ed McMahon Is Brig. General

LOS ANGELES (AP) — He may always be second in command to Johnny Carson, but in the California Air National Guard, announcer Ed McMahon is one of the brass.

McMahon, best known for his nearly 20-year stint on "The Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson," was named a brigadier general Tuesday and honored for "his continuous support and commitment to this nation's armed forces," said spokesman Steve Miller.

The 58-year-old announcer was commissioned by Maj. Gen. Frank J. Schober, commanding general of California state military forces, in a ceremony attended by state and national military figures.

McMahon, a retired U.S. Marine Corps colonel who was a fighter pilot in World War II and in Korea, said he was "extremely proud" of the honor, Miller said.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stocks opened slightly higher today, continuing a modest rally late in the previous session that helped erase some early losses.

Oil stocks, under pressure lately because of slumping oil prices, opened mixed.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial issues, hovering near a 21-month low, was up 4.75 to 817.73 after 30 minutes of trading today. The utility index also opened higher but the transportation measure fell a fraction.

Gainers jumped out to a 3-2 lead over losers on the New York Stock Exchange.

Despite lower interest rates — including a drop in major banks' prime lending rate to 16.5 percent Tuesday

Ready For A Cease-Fire

MEDICINE PARK, Okla. (AP) — When the sound of artillery fire began booming around Glen Johnson's house, the retired Army major was ready to arrange a cease-fire.

Johnson's yard east of this community of 800 was the unintended target of a 105mm howitzer shell that strayed 600 feet to a Fort Sill firing range Tuesday, leaving a crater 3 feet wide and about a foot deep.

Johnson, who retired about 20 years ago after 22 years in the Army, said he recognized the sound of the shell when it exploded while he stood outside his home, talking with his neighbors.

"My first thought was to get on the phone and call the range and tell them to cease fire," Johnson said.

"My first concern was that the gun crew which fired the round might adjust their weapon and send a shell into my restaurant," Glen's Country Inn, located about 150 yards from the home. The restaurant was closed at the time.

Jon Long, a Fort Sill public information spokesman, said the shell went off course when a howitzer crew used a larger powder charge than had been directed.

Members of A Battery, 2nd Battalion, 2nd Field Artillery were taking part in a four-round practice when the shell overshoot its target.

Fort Sill is the home of the Army's Field Artillery School.

Will Accept Applications

The Pitt County Community Schools program will accept applications through Monday regarding capital outlay projects dealing with the development of recreational facilities at local schools, according to Alice Keene, director of the program.

Groups or individuals interested in development of recreational facilities in their area may contact the Community Schools office (752-6106, ext. 248 or 249).

The Pitt County Community Schools program is designed to develop after-school use of school facilities. These programs are designed to increase community involvement in local schools, Ms. Keene said.

MOUNTAIN BATTLE BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Fourteen government soldiers were killed and 50 wounded in a five-day assault on a mountain stronghold of Communist forces in southern Thailand, a military spokesman said Tuesday.

Discover Large Drug Laboratory

SHEPHERD'S CROSSROADS, N.C. (AP) — A large drug laboratory was found early Tuesday when a small frame house in eastern Wilkes County caught fire. Police said they found no finished drug products, but did find several chemicals used to make narcotics.

The chemicals appeared to be the same type found in a Surry County drug operation that resulted in six arrests last week, authorities said. Officers had suspected that a lab had been operating in Wilkes County for several months and had produced about 4 million methaqualone tablets worth about 13 million dollars.

Firemen have not said whether the origin of the fire was related to the laboratory.

Hamill
FALKLAND — Mr. Thomas Lee Hamill Jr., 56, died Wednesday at his home near Dupree's Crossroads. His funeral service will be conducted at 3:30 p.m. Thursday in the Wilkerson Funeral Home Chapel by the Rev. Stewart LaNeave, his pastor. Burial will be in Crestlawn Memorial Gardens.

Mr. Hamill had spent most of his life in this community. He was a farmer and a member of the Falkland Presbyterian Church and the Woodmen of the World.

Surviving him are his wife, Mrs. Joyce Merritt Hamill of the home; two sons, Timothy Hamill of Dupree's Crossroads and Ronnie Hamill of the home; two daughters, Mrs. Connie H. Adams and Miss Vickie L. Hamill, both of Greenville; his mother, Mrs. Sadie Parker Hamill of Farmville; three brothers, J.C. Hamill and G.W. Hamill, both of Greenville, and Autry Hamill of Rt. 1, Fountain; and two sisters, Mrs. Edward Windham of Greenville and Mrs. Donnie Merritt of Farmville.

The family will receive friends at the funeral home from 7-9 p.m. tonight.

Panthers Nip Hawks In 3 Overtimes

LITTLEFIELD — Down by four points with about two minutes left, North Pitt rallied to tie the score, then missed several shots before Vince Parker hit off a rebound with one second left in a third overtime to give the Panthers a 34-32 victory over North Lenoir last night.

In the other games in the District II 3-A Tournament, the West Craven boys topped Southern Nash, 58-52, and the West Carteret girls downed Greene Central, 55-30.

The game was a nip-and-tuck affair throughout. Neither team was able to get very far in front along the way. North Lenoir held an 8-6 lead after one period and was able to cling to that for an 18-16 halftime lead. Again in the third period, neither team could move away, and the Hawks held to the edge, 26-24, as the final eight minutes got underway.

With about two minutes left to play, the Hawks had inched out to a 32-28 lead, but Vince Parker scored to cut it back to a two-point margin. The Panthers then took the ball away with the press and Greg Hines scored to tie it up.

The Panthers later got it back and missed a final shot that could have won it then.

In the first overtime, the Panthers controlled the tap, and held the ball until the end, missing on an outside shot. In the second overtime, it was the same story, although North Pitt got it inside for the final shot, and also missed on several rebound attempts.

North Pitt again controlled the tap in the third overtime but turned the ball over with about 1:30 left. North Lenoir, also holding, got caught on a five-second count as Hines and Toby Crandol trapped the ball. Then, in the final seconds, Mitchell Cox missed a shot, but Parker was able to snare the rebound and throw it back in with one second left to give the Panthers the 34-32 win.

"I really expected it to be that tight," Coach Cobby Deans of North Pitt said. "We could never get control of the tempo of the game, and that was one of the reasons it was like it was."

Deans explained his reasoning in holding the ball through the overtimes. "They were already in the bonus, and had committed only two fouls against us. I've never lost many games where we had the ball, and so we decided to hold it. With them with the ball any hand check and they're on the line. But we were in the driver's seat as long as we had the ball."

Deans said the fact that the Panthers had watched West Craven down Southern Nash in the game right before their game with North Lenoir might have had them looking ahead a little. "But North Lenoir played well, too, and we didn't play that well until we had to. We shot only about 30 percent and we didn't control their guards like I expected us to."

Hines led the North Pitt scoring with 12 points, while Cox had 10. Danny Wooten paced North Lenoir with 15.

In the first game of the evening, West Carteret's girls eliminated Greene Central, 55-30.

West Carteret inched into a 12-10 lead after one period, but were able to expand on that by only two points in the second frame, 13-11. That made it 25-21 at halftime.

In the third period, however, the Lady Pats held Greene Central scoreless while pumping in 14 points of their own. That ran the West Carteret lead out to 39-21. The Lady Pats then outthrew the Lady Rams, 16-9, in the final quarter to wrap up the win.

Mindy Ballou led the Patriot scoring with 21 points, while Rita Roy had 17 and Shelly Helms had 10. Sylvia Swinson led Greene Central with 15, while Sharon Suggs had 10.

First round play will come to an end on Thursday — there are no games tonight — as C.B. Aycock's girls face North Lenoir at 5:30 p.m. for the right to meet West Carteret on Friday. In boys' play, Greene Central faces West Carteret at 7 p.m., followed by the SouthWest Edgecombe girls against D.H. Conley at 8:30 in the first semifinal game.

Pirates Visit Spiders Tonight

East Carolina travels to Richmond, Va., tonight to meet the University of Richmond in an ECAC-South game. Tipoff is set for 7:30 p.m. in the Robbins Center.

The Pirates, fighting to escape a last-place berth in next week's tournament, need a victory to get back on track for the tournament.

Richmond, meanwhile, is fighting to maintain an upper-bracket ranking and a seeded position in the tournament. The Spiders are currently in third place with a 5-4 record in the league, while East Carolina is 2-6, and must win at least one of its final two games to escape a last place finish.

Richmond won the earlier meeting between the two in Greenville, taking an 81-71 victory, rallying from ten points down in the final 16 minutes of play. Six players scored in double figures in the game, led by John Schweitz '16.

Recently, the Spiders have been on an every-other-game win-lose situation, but they snapped that Monday night with a 63-62 win over Old Dominion. They had beaten George Mason, 68-59, in their previous game.

Starters for Richmond include Schweitz, a 6-6 senior forward, averaging 16.8 points, 6-6 Bill Dooley, a junior averaging 5.2 points a game; center Jeff Peoh, a 6-10 junior, hitting 10.2; guard Kelvin Johnson, a 6-2 freshman, 5.8; and Tom Bethea, a 6-4 junior guard, hitting 9.4.

The Pirates, meanwhile, are riding a three-game losing streak, all three against ECAC-South foes. They have one game left after the Richmond contest, as they travel to Williamsburg, Va., on Saturday to face William & Mary.

Kinston Ousts Rampette Five

KINSTON — Kinston's Valkyries rolled to a 55-47 victory over the Rose High School Rampettes in the first round of the Big East tournament last night.

In other games around the league in the first round girls' play, Rocky Mount downed Northern Nash, 82-70; Wilson Fike topped Northeastern, 42-39; and Beddingfield tripped Hunt, 71-36.

Play resumes tonight with Rocky Mount meeting Kinston at 7 p.m. in Rocky Mount, while Fike and Beddingfield collide Thursday night at 7, also in Rocky Mount.

Kinston zoomed out to a 13-4 lead in the first period of the contest with the Rampettes, and was never caught. The Valkyries outscored Rose, 20-13, in the second quarter, running the lead out to 33-17.

Things got no better for the Rampettes in the third period, as Kinston outscored them, 15-11, to run the margin to 48-28. Rose managed a 19-7 rally in the final quarter.

Val Fields led Kinston's effort with 20 points, while Terry Sims added 11 and Terri Sutton hit 10. Rose was led by Alma Atkinson with 16, while Francis

Knights Top Wake Christian

Greenville Christian Academy warmed up for the district independent tournament, to be held at the school this weekend, with a 41-36 victory over strong Wake Christian Academy last night.

Earlier in the evening, Wake's girls romped to a 60-26 victory over the GCA girls.

Greenville Christian inched out to an 8-6 lead in the first period of the boys' game, and was able to hold off Wake in the second frame with a 10-8 advantage. That gave the Knights an 18-14 lead to carry into intermission.

In the third period, Wake rallied, 10-6, and pulled back into a deadlock as the frame ended, 24-24. In the final quarter, however, the Knights outshot their guests, 17-12, to pull out the victory.

"This was a super victory for us," Coach Dale Thatcher said. "Wake has one of the best Christian teams in the state. They are taller than we are, but we managed to hold our own on the boards and the foul line helped us a lot."

At the foul line, GCA made 19 of 27 shots, having scored seven less field goals than did Wake, which failed to hit on its only four tries.

John Parnell led GCA with 12 points, ten of them at the line. David Hollingsworth and Troy Hudson each added ten. Dail Wall led Wake with 16 points, while John Jordan had ten.

Roanoke Upset In Overtime

WELDON — Northampton, seeded fourth among the Roanoke River Conference teams in the District I 3-A Tournament, pulled off a 57-52 upset of Northeastern Conference champ Roanoke in overtime last night.

In the other game, Warren County's girls downed Plymouth, 38-37, to make it a Roanoke River sweep.

Tonight, Northwest Halifax's girls face Edenton at 6:30 p.m., while Warren County's boys also face Edenton at 8 p.m. as the first round play continues.

Northampton hit six less field goals than did the Redskins, but they went to the foul line in a parade — making the difference in the game. Roanoke shot only 10 free throws, hitting just two, while Northampton pushed through 19 of 33 attempts — more than enough to win.

Northampton inched up in the first period, 13-12, and managed to outthrust the Redskins, 14-12, in the second frame. That gave the Roanoke River entry a 27-24 halftime lead.

In the third period, however, the Redskins rallied, outscoring Northampton, 15-9, to take a 39-36 lead. Northampton again came back, however, and took a late lead, 51-49. Roanoke, with the ball under its own basket out of bounds with three seconds left, got the ball in to Mike Wilson, who canned a shot from the corner to force the overtime.

In that, however, Calvin Moses hit on three of four free throws to more than accomplish the upset victory.

Alphonso Kee led Northampton with 18 points, while Moses added 13 and Cary Long had 11. Wilson led Roanoke with 13, while Ricky Highsmith added 10.

The loss closes out the season for Roanoke, now 20-4.

Fordham Routs Notre Dame By 65-50

By The Associated Press
Except for John Paxson, there wasn't much fight in the Irish.

"With the exception of Paxson, it seemed like no one else could get on track offensively," Fordham Coach Tommy Penders said after his Rams routed Notre Dame 65-50 Tuesday night. "It certainly would have helped Notre Dame if (Bill) Varner or (Mike) Mitchell could have hit some of their shots."

Paxson scored a game-high 21 points, but Varner and Mitchell had only two apiece as the Irish, a national power only a year ago, suffered their 15th loss in 23 games this season.

Dud Tongal led the visiting Rams with 18 points and his cousin, Edward Bona, added 12.

"Paxson played well tonight, but we have to have consistency from the other four starters," said Notre Dame Coach Digger Phelps. "That's our problem... The other guys didn't contribute enough. We just can't do it with Paxson."

There were no Associated Press Top Twenty teams in action Tuesday night.

Fordham, 17-8, took a 31-19 halftime lead, then withstood a brief charge by the Irish, who scored the first six points of the second half. But Notre Dame never got closer than five points the rest of the way. "I felt the key to the game was our composure in the second half," Penders said. "Especially when Notre Dame made that nice run at us. At the beginning of the second half, Notre Dame became more aggressive and got the crowd aroused. We were fortunate to get a couple of easy hoops that quieted them down."

In Houston, Rob Williams' 30 points propelled the Cougars to a 75-69 victory over Rice. "We're lean, we're mean and we're disciplined," he said. "They executed well and just lined up and whipped us," said Rice Coach Tommy Suits. "I was disappointed in our defense in the first half (when Houston took a 42-29 lead). We played people instead of as a team."

The Owls got within eight points early in the second half, but Williams and Clyde Drexler led a Cougar scoring surge that put the game out of reach. Ricky Pierce led Rice with 29 points. Houston is 10-5 in the Southwest Conference and 19-6 overall.

Senior Gerald Byrnes rebounded his own missed shot and slammed in the winning basket with one second remaining as visiting Long Island University rallied from an early 24-9 deficit and edged Northeastern 70-69.

Junior Robert Cole scored 12 of his 16 points on long shots in the second half to rally LIU from a 38-32 halftime deficit. Perry Moss of Northeastern scored a game-high 26 points.

Freshman Karl Racine's two free throws with five seconds remaining clinched Penn's 46-43 victory over Princeton. The Quakers, winning their 10th in a row, didn't score a field goal in the final 12:53, getting all their points from the foul line.

A pair of free throws by Jacksonville's Mike Hackett with 1:48 to play gave the Dolphins a 60-59 victory over visiting Stetson, which squandered a 51-45 lead with 4:40 to play. Hackett all scorers with 22 points.

Lonnie McFarlan's two free throws with 15 seconds left gave St. Joseph's, Pa., a 51-49 East Coast Conference victory over American University, ending the Eagles' 14-game winning streak.

McFarlan, who scored 11 of his 13 points in the second half, put the Hawks ahead 49-47 with 1:54 left on a jump shot. After American failed to score on four straight possessions, McFarlan sank his decisive foul shot, offsetting a basket by American's Mark Nickens at the buzzer.

Antoine Carr's 23 points led six Shockers in double figures as Wichita State routed West Texas State 106-89 in the Missouri Valley Conference. Cliff Livingston added 20 points for the Shockers, 22-6 overall and 11-4 in the conference.

Elsewhere, William Brown's 17 points help St. Peter's, N.J., earn a 44-36 victory over Manhattan and at least a tie for the Metro Atlantic Athletic Conference title; Roy Jones scored 27 points as Houston Baptist topped Northeast Louisiana 83-78 in the Trans America Conference; Arturo Brown had 22 points in Boston University's 86-57 romp over

C.W. Post; Darren Maloney scored 20 points for the second consecutive game as Holy Cross battered Massachusetts

80-62; Steve Colter's 19 points led New Mexico State past Drake 68-55 in the Missouri Valley Conference, and center

Roland Houston's game-high 21 points and 18 rebounds paced Rhode Island to a 91-63 romp over Brown.

Gaylord Perry Is Still Waiting For Contract

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Gaylord Perry says he's playing a waiting game; but thanks to his family, he doesn't have to wait alone.

Perry, 43, is waiting for an acceptable offer from a major league baseball team, an offer which would give him the chance to get the three victories he needs to become the majors' 15th 300-game winner. His record is now 297-239.

Although he refused to identify the teams bidding for his talent, he said there were "about four" including teams from the American and National leagues.

He finished 8-9 for the Atlanta Braves during last year's strike-shortened season, but he said that was not one of the clubs being considered.

"We'll just have to wait and see in the next few days," Perry said in a telephone interview from his Williamston home.

Although he's anxious to continue his career, Perry isn't sitting by the telephone at his 650-acre farm waiting for it to ring.

"Can you call back some other time?" Perry asked. "My daughter's got a basketball game down in your neck of the woods and I've got to get going."

Perry said there are similarities between his daughter's basketball and his baseball.

"She does good some nights, and some nights she doesn't," he said. "I had the same problems."

Last year's strike and Perry's love of family are two things which have possibly kept him already having his 300th victory.

In 1979, he walked away from the San Diego Padres, asking to be traded so he could be closer to his home and family.

Perry has had to answer many questions about his age and his abilities in recent years. Too many times, it's been written or said that he was at the end of the line.

"They told me I was too old 10 years ago," Perry said.

His productivity was questioned before he joined the San Francisco Giants in 1966, but he finished 21-8. There were doubts before he pitched the 1972 season for the Cleveland Indians, but he posted a 24-16 record and won the league's Cy Young Award. There were more doubts in 1978, but he finished 21-6 for the Padres and became the first man to win the Cy Young Award in each league.

"That was when I knew I had a shot at 300," Perry had earlier said.

Given the chance, he thinks he can win more than three games, too.

"I think I can win 12-15 games," Perry said. "I'd like to keep going. It depends on how you feel. If you're helping the club, you keep going."

Wake Football Must Avoid Power Of Past

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Wake Forest University, and schools like it — those without a winning football tradition — must avoid the "power of the past," Deacon coach Al Groh told the Greenville Sports Club yesterday.

Groh, who arrived nearly a half-hour late due to car trouble, said that he is continuing the building program started by John Mackovic, who brought the new coach to the school as defensive coordinator two years ago. Groh was upped to head coach when Mackovic left to join the staff of the Dallas Cowboys.

"In any program that hasn't been rolling for years, you have to overcome the power of the past," Groh said. "Too often it can take over and dictate the future. It's important that (the Wake staff) looks to the potential of what football can be at Wake Forest, not at the past."

Groh pointed out that nearly everyone today thinks of Pittsburgh as one of the powers of college football. "Yet, ten years ago, Pittsburgh had a 1-10 record and had only won 14 games in the previous five seasons."

"But Johnny Majors believed that he could build a national championship there and he did. He convinced the good local players to stay there and play. Baylor did it a couple of years ago in the Southwest Conference, and the San Francisco 49ers did it this year in the NFL."

Groh said that Wake must follow the same pattern, showing what can be accomplished to the players, yet still being realistic.

"We have put renewed emphasis on local recruiting, and it paid off this year. We have signed 27 players for next year, and 18 of them are from North Carolina." He added that one each comes from South Carolina and Maryland and five from Virginia, giving 25 of the 27 inside the ACC area. "And I think our group is very representative of ACC recruits, too," he added.

Groh said that the Deacons will continue to emphasize the passing attack. "Our offense is much like the pro style now. We're not worried about getting open, but only about throwing and catching the ball."

Groh said he ranks the ACC as among the top three or four football conferences in the country. "This level of competition is due to the ACC adopting the national standards for admissions, allowing it to recruit a lot of local players who had been leaving the area. Then, too, there has been a great rise in the level of football in the area, building up the number of quality players available."

He added that he also likes the uniqueness of the area. "If I were speaking in Nebraska right now, everyone in the room would have on red socks and a red tie. But in North Carolina, we have Duke, State, Wake fans, and the like on every block. This helps to make it very interesting."

Prior to Groh's arrival, East Carolina Coach Ed Emory filled in, giving a rundown of his recruiting for the season.

He also noted that at least two veteran players have been switched to new positions. Roy Wiley will be moved from fullback to tight end, and quarterback Carlton Nelson has been moved to a flanker position for the coming spring drills, which start in a couple of weeks.

Emory's new offensive coordinator, Larry Beckish, will be the club's next speaker, on March 9.

Clemson Fan Suing School

GREENVILLE, S.C. (AP) — A card-carrying Clemson University booster says he is suing his alma mater for mistakenly accusing him of stealing football tickets and ejecting him from the stadium last fall.

David H. Kinard of Newberry named Clemson its athletic director and an Anderson security company in his $200,000 lawsuit.

Kinard, a season ticket holder, and his brother were escorted from Death Valley during the Oct. 24 Clemson game against North Carolina State, according to the suit filed in the Richland County Court of Common Pleas in Columbia.

The suit charges the university, Athletic Director H.C. "Bill" McLellan and Crowe's Inc. of Anderson with false arrest, reckless disregard for civil rights and breach of contract.

Kinard claims he had purchased two season tickets to home games for the past two years, and has been a five-year member of the IPTAY Club, an alumni group which raises money for sports scholarships.

The suit alleges that, minutes into the game, the two were approached by a security guard employed by Crowe's, which was in charge of security at Clemson's home games last year. According to the suit, the guard accused Kinard of not being the legal owner of the ticket, although the plaintiff claims he produced his IPTAY membership card and his ticket stubs.

Several spectators also testified that Kinard had occupied the same seats during previous games.

The guard then threatened to take further action and left, the suit says.

After the second quarter was under way, the guard returned with a State Law Enforcement Division agent and other security officers.

The suit charges the SLED agent told the two men they would have to leave their seats because the tickets had been reported stolen "by Athletic Director Bill McLellan."

They then were escorted from their seats by four security officers and "forced to leave the game."

Kinard claims he was "held up for ridicule and scorn," and his honesty and integrity were impeached.

He is seeking actual and punitive damages for the "indefinite, mental pain, anguish, anxiety and uncertainty" he suffered and for being deprived of "the peaceful enjoyment of the Clemson football game."

Bear Grass Falls To Bath

BATH — Bath High School, upset by Bear Grass in the first round of the Tobacco Belt Conference Tournament, made sure the same thing didn't happen again last night in the first round of the District I-1A Tournament, gaining a 33-24 victory over the Lady Bears.

In other games last night, the Jamesville girls downed Creswell, 38-28, while the Chocowinity boys beat Cape Hatteras, 82-41, and the Matamoras boys took Aurora, 77-46.

Tonight, Belhaven's girls face Aurora at 8:30 p.m., just after a 7 p.m. game between Chocowinity and Matamoras' girls. Those games are at Bath. Meanwhile, at Mattamuskeet High School, boys' play pits Belhaven against Jamesville at 7 p.m. and Columbia against Bath at 8:30 p.m.

Semifinals and finals will be played at Bath.

Bath eased out into a 6-4 lead in the first period of the game. Bear Grass came back in the second period of the contest, 7-4, and gained an 11-10 half time lead.

Bath rallied in the third period, outscoring Bear Grass, 9-5. That put Bath back into the lead with a 19-16 advantage. Bath then pulled away in the final quarter, 14-8, to record the victory.

Barbara Satchel led Bath with 13 points, while Angie Mizelle paced Bear Grass with nine.

Bear Grass (24) — Mizelle 3 3-5 9, Rawls 2 0-4 4, Cratt 3 0-6 6, Lilley 0 5-10 5, Andrews 0 0-0 0, Harrison 0 0-0 0. Totals 88-15 24.

Spinks In Comeback

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Carlos "Sugar" De Leon defends the little-known cruiserweight title tonight while Leon Spinks, the former heavyweight champion, fights for a shot at that title.

De Leon, a 22-year-old Puerto Rican, fights 30-year-old Marvin Camel of Missoula, Mont., in the fourth title bout in the history of the World Boxing Council cruiserweight division, which has had its weight limit switched from 190 pounds to 195 pounds.

The corresponding division of the World Boxing Association, which has a 190-pound limit and is called junior heavyweight, recently got its first champion when Ossie Occasio of Puerto Rico beat Robbie Williams of South Africa.

Spinks, of Detroit, who at about 200 pounds found himself battling much bigger men as a heavyweight, will fight Ivy Brown of Houston in his first bout since he was stopped in the third round by Larry Holmes in a bid for the WBC heavyweight title last June 12.

The winner is expected to get a title bid against De Leon or Camel.

The 28-year-old Spinks, who has a 10-3-2 record, with eight knockouts, won the universal heavyweight title in his eighth pro-fight when he scored a split decision over Muhammad Ali Sept. 15, 1978. He had title recognition withdrawn from the WBC for failing to sign for a defense against Ken Norton, then later lost the WBA share of the championship on a unanimous decision to

Knicks Snap Milwaukee Win Streak

By The Associated Press
The New York Knicks have been too preoccupied with their own problems to be concerned with other teams' winning streaks.

So when they beat Milwaukee 113-110 Tuesday night, the Bucks' first loss in 13 games, some of the Knicks were surprised when someone suggested the winning streak had provided an incentive.

"We don't have the luxury to wait until someone comes in here with a winning streak before we start winning," said Mike Newlin, who had 23 points to lead the Knicks, who are in last place in the Atlantic Division with a 25-31 record.

"We're at the point where our main concern is victory, period," Newlin added. "I wasn't even aware the Bucks had a winning streak."

"I knew they were playing well, but I didn't know they had a streak," Knicks Coach Red Holzman said of the Bucks. "But it really doesn't matter. Players always get a lift whenever they beat a good team."

Holzman said the Knicks, who beat Houston Sunday for only the Rockets' second loss in 12 games, are "getting a very positive feeling."

The Knicks, despite their record, are one game behind Atlanta, which would have the final spot in the Eastern Conference playoffs if they started today.

In other NBA games Tuesday night, Atlanta beat Kansas City 103-94, Utah downed Washington 113-106, San Antonio outscored Golden State 143-123, Chicago edged Portland 123-122, Houston beat Dallas 105-95, Los Angeles outlasted Denver 145-129 and Philadelphia defeated San Diego 115-101.

Michael Ray Richardson scored 15 points, had 12 rebounds and 12 assists for the Knicks. He also put in seven points and made two steals in the final 2:43 to almost singlehandedly lead New York down the stretch.

"I was having a bad shooting game; it was just one of those nights," said Richardson, who was only five of 15 from the field. "But I was passing and rebounding well, so it shows I can play all parts of the game."

Richardson broke a 104-104 deadlock, the 13th tie of the game, with a free throw with 2:43 left to put the Knicks ahead for good. He had three more baskets before the game ended, including a steal from all-star Sidney Moncrief that led to a dunk and a 107-104 New York lead with 2:20 remaining.

In addition to Newlin's 23 points Maurice Lucas had 21 and Sly Williams 18 for New York. Marques Johnson scored 22 and Moncrief 18 for Milwaukee.

Rockets 105, Mavericks 95
Moses Malone had 34 points and pulled down 21 rebounds and Elvin Hayes added 28 points as Houston beat Dallas.

Sports at the end of the first two quarters helped the Rockets take a 50-45 halftime lead. They scored the final six points of the first period and blanked the Mavericks 10-0 just before halftime.

Jay Vincent led Dallas with 23 points.

Bulls 123, Blazers 122
Reggie Theus scored 28 points, while Artis Gilmore added 24 and an important defensive play in the final seconds to keep Chicago ahead of Portland.

Mychal Thompson, who led the Trail Blazers with 22 points, hit a three-point play with 36 seconds remaining to make the score 123-122.

After an offensive foul by the Bulls, Thompson drove the baseline with seven seconds left, but Gilmore knocked the ball out of bounds. A last-second shot by Bob Gross missed.

Jazz 113, Bullets 106
Adrian Dantley scored 39 points as Utah ended a four-game losing streak by beating Washington for the first time in the last 15 tries.

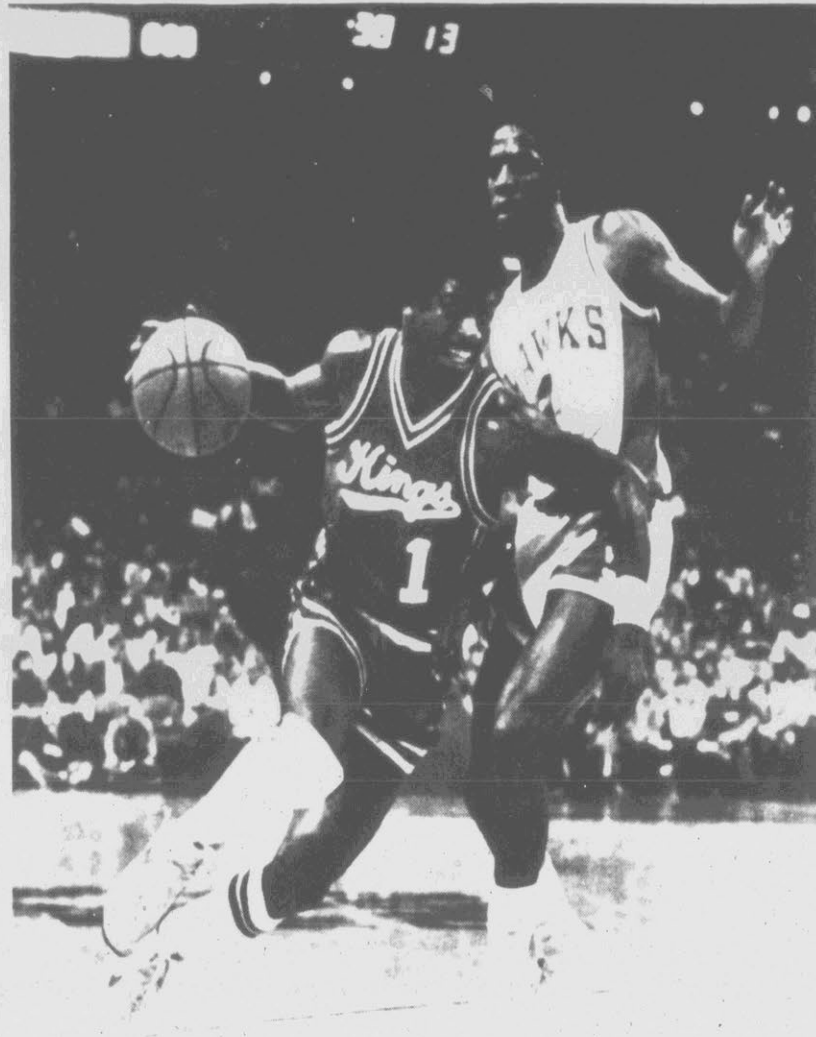

Dantley had 14 points in the third quarter, rallying Utah to an 86-83 lead after the Jazz had blown a 13-point second-quarter advantage.

Frank Johnson was the leading scorer for the Bullets with 27 points.

Hawks 103, Kings 94
Eddie Johnson scored 27 points to lead Atlanta to its fifth straight victory after eight losses in a row.

Kansas City outscored the Johnson tip-in.

The Kings still led 88-87 with 5:23 to go, but Atlanta responded with a 16-6 streak the rest of the way, including five points in a row by Tom McMillen, who scored 22 overall.

Westphal, Knicks Come To Terms; Now Waiting

NEW YORK (AP) — Paul Westphal and the New York Knicks have agreed to terms for the rest of the National Basketball Association season, but they may have to wait two weeks for the Seattle SuperSonics to decide whether to let the agreement stand.

Westphal, a five-time all-star guard who played out his option with Seattle last season, signed an offer sheet Tuesday night that would pay him an estimated $150,000 for the remainder of the season.

Whether he dons a Knicks uniform, however, depends on whether the Sonics exercise their right to match the Knicks' offer to Westphal, a free agent. If they do, Westphal, who has not played in more than a year, will resume his career with Seattle.

Seattle has 15 days in which to match the offer, and if it does, Westphal said, "At least I would start playing and wouldn't have to move my family out of Seattle. That would be some silver lining, but I've signed with the Knicks and I hope to be playing with them soon."

Sonics General Manager Zollie Volchok said the team would not comment on the Knicks-Westphal offer sheet until they have a chance to study it.

If Seattle waits until the deadline, the Knicks would have only 18 regular-season games left before Westphal could play. He has not seen any action since last season when he suffered a stress fracture to his right foot after 36 games for the Sonics.

Westphal, 31, said that similar foot injuries in recent years to NBA stars Bill Walton and Doug Collins "certainly retarded the speed of my return" to playing.

"I think I'm in pretty good shape," said Westphal, who has averaged 17.1 points per game in his nine-year NBA career with Boston, Phoenix and Seattle. "I've been playing in the gym with college guys. Of course, it's not the same as NBA competition, but I think I'm in as good a shape as I can be. When I come back, it will be like the first day of training camp for me."

Before signing the offer sheet with the Knicks, Westphal, an All-Star from 1977 through 1981, was examined by Dr. Norman Scott, the Knicks' physician.

Westphal, referring to statements made a few years ago by former New York Yankees outfielder Reggie Jackson, said, "I'm not a savior or the straw that stirs the drink. I haven't played in a while, so we'll have to see how well I can do."

Howard Slusher, Westphal's agent, said in Los Angeles that he believed his client would become a member of the Knicks.

"I don't expect the Sonics to match this offer," Slusher said. "Of course, it's difficult to predict what Mr. Schulman (Sonics owner Sam Schulman) will ever do."

Schulman could not be reached for comment.

Among his club's options besides matching New York's offer would be to waive that right in exchange for compensation.

Lakers 145, Nuggets 129
Jamaal Wilkes scored 31 points as Los Angeles posted its highest point total of the season in the victory over Denver.

The Lakers led 42-23 after the first period, and the Nuggets never got closer than 12 points thereafter.

Spurs 143, Warriors 123
George Gervin scored 35 points and San Antonio overcame 50 free throw attempts by Golden State to beat the Warriors.

The Spurs never led by fewer than 10 in the second half after taking a 78-67 lead at intermission.

World Free had 25 points for Golden State.

A's Welcome Joe Rudi Back

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Joe Rudi, back with the Oakland A's after a five-year free agent sojourn, says there's "no way" he would have returned to the American League team if Charlie Finley were still its owner.

"Not a chance," Rudi said Tuesday after his first spring training workout here. "This would not be a winning organization or ballclub right now if he was running things."

"I had no problems with Charlie personally — just his philosophy of running the ballclub. But there's no reason to kill a dead horse. It's over. He's gone. And I'm back."

Rudi, a standout with Oakland in most of his nine seasons from 1968-76, was resigned by the defending Western Division champions over the winter as a free agent. The 35-year-old veteran first baseman-left fielder had spent four injury-plagued years with the California Angels before riding the bench in Boston last season.

"I'm ecstatic about being back with the A's. It's super," said Rudi. "I even got my old number (26) again. All I need now is a pair of white cleats and it'll really be like old times."

When he opted for free agency after the 1977 season, however, Rudi said he "had no desire at all" to return to Oakland's organization.

"I sold everything I owned in the Bay Area, moved out and figured 'That's that.' I never even thought about coming back until this winter. The A's drafted me and I was really surprised. When the opportunity came, I was 100 percent for it."

Oakland Manager Billy Martin said he plans to use Rudi "at first base some but mostly as a back-up outfielder" and at DH. "We'll probably platooned him against left-handed pitching."

"Whatever Billy wants me to play or wants me to do — chief bottle-washer or whatever — that's fine with me," Rudi said. "I just want to help this team. That's all I care about."

"Billy seems like a hell of a manager. I'm looking forward to playing for him. I've always enjoyed playing against him."

Martin said, "I think I can get a couple more good years out of Joe."

Rudi was one of the key players on the Oakland team owned by Finley that won three consecutive World Series from 1972 to 1974. Finley sold the team in 1980.

To The Editor:
ECC Girls' Basketball Coaches must feel a sense of pride this morning after casting their votes for the All Conference and All Tournament Teams for 81-82 season.

These coaches have shown the young people of our conference that adults, who set the examples for the young to follow, have no sense of fair play. This was exhibited last night by the coaches in the 1981-82 playing season of the ECC. Evidently they were so envious of a team and their coach with four (4) starters from a State Championship that they neglected to vote Mrs. Langley "Coach of the Year," but even worse voted only two (2) of her starters to All Conference and All Tournament Teams. We mold the lives of our young people, and this show of jealousy displayed towards them has demonstrated that you obtain awards not by doing, but through petty conference politics. This does not say that those who received these awards did not play their hearts out, for I myself have played the game, but there were some who stood by in bewilderment that should have received these awards. It is inconceivable that adult coaches could feel this way when they are the ones that are training our children.

Under Coach Langley's direction the SouthWest Edgecombe Girls' Basketball Team has compiled records of 26-5, 30-1, 31-0, culminating in a State Championship, and thus far this season 24-0, while presently maintaining a 56 game winning streak.

All SouthWest Edgecombe Fans hope that the coaches in the ECC will remember that their decisions make lasting impressions on our young people for many years to come.

'Thick' File On Tiger Football

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) - Wayne Duke, former chairman of the tournament's selection committee, believes the National College Athletic Association's postseason playoff again will not have as good a field as it could have.

same will bethe case this year. The committee doesn't have the flexibility it should have."

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) - Clemson football coach Danny Ford says that an NCAA investigator had advised him there is a "thick" file of recruiting complaints against Clemson.

His disclosure came Monday during an informal session with several sports writers, after he had said earlier in a formal discussion that he was in a situation "where I can't comment," the policy he has followed for almost a year.

But he told a huddle of nearly a dozen writers before lunch, "You don't get investigated until you get turned in by so many people, and your file gets so thick," indicating a couple of inches.

In a separate discussion with telephone cited the new NCAA regulation, advanced by the Transamerica Conference, that increases the number of automatic qualifiers to 28, up two from 1981.

several different writers Monday afternoon. Ford said his players weren't worried about the charges.

"What are we worried about? We don't have a charge against us, except by a newspaper guy. I promise you I read one paper where they said there were 150 violations. I read another where they said there were 110 violations.

"This is guys reporting in newspapers and all it is strictly rumors. I don't know. Is there something other people know that I don't know?"

Referring to the information that the NCAA had a thick file on Clemson, Ford asked, "What if your file gets only thick (an inch)? Are you not guilty or are you guilty? How much is cheating? If you cheat, you cheat, don't you?"

"They've got only eight investigators to cover the whole United States," he added.

"They're doing us now," so I know a lot more about it than I used to. There just aren't enough of them (NCAA investigators).

going to face a difficult problem because you might have teams with lesser records," Duke said.

In the small sessions, after the coaches had separated and talked to smaller groups of the press, Ford said he would like for the NCAA to send investigators to every school regularly.

"You go in there and watch practice every year, visit every one of them every year, and you'll clean some of it up," he said of recruiting violations.

"You'll scare the hell out of some people. ... Why can't they do that? The NCAA is a money-making organization."

who participated in a three-day meeting here between coaches and writers from all over the country.

He was invited after winning numerous coaching awards following Clemson's national championship football season.

Walter Byers, executive secretary of the NCAA, appeared on a panel with all nine Monday afternoon, when they fielded questions from both writers and coaches.

Byers said later that he felt the NCAA had been too slow in its investigative procedures, and that he felt the authorized additional people, up to 10 full-time and 40 part-time investigators, would alleviate that problem to some degree.

Evansville, 20-4 for all games, already had clinched the Midwestern City Conference title, Peppering, 18-6, was two games in front of San Francisco in the West Coast Athletic Conference and Fresno State, 22-2, was two games up on Cal-Irvine in the Pacific Coast Athletic Conference.

Nicklaus Considering Rare Four Weeks Of Play As Coral Opens

MIAMI (AP) - The TPA pro golf tour moves to the East this week with Jack Nicklaus considering the possibility of - for him - a rare, four consecutive weeks of competition.

one, but is leaning in that direction. There are two reasons for the possibility of this unusual departure from his normal schedule. Nicklaus has played four weeks in a row only once since his rookie season of 1962.

Other leading lights in the 144-man field include PGA champion Larry Nelson, Lee Trevino, Jerry Pate, Andy Bean, Hubert Green, Tom Weiskopf, and 1982 title-winner Ed Frieri.

"If you look at the current conference races, some of the teams have good leads. If, for example, some of those leaders are upset in their league tournaments, the committee is

More Than A Scorer

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) - His Edmonton Oilers teammates don't measure the value of Wayne Gretzky merely by the phenomenal statistics he compiles. To them, he is much more than a scoring machine.

"Everyone else expects things of him, like scoring goals every night and getting all those points," said left wing Mark Messier prior to tonight's National Hockey League game between the Oilers and Buffalo Sabres - a game in which Gretzky will be out break the single season goal-scoring record of 76.

Gretzky, the 21-year-old Oilers center who already holds the NHL record for most points and assists in a season, scored his 76th goal of the campaign last Sunday in Detroit. That tied him with Phil Esposito, who scored 76 times in 78 games for Boston in 1970-71.

"We're never really surprised by what he does because he does something extraordinary every night," added Messier, who is having his finest professional season and was a starter in the NHL All-Star Game. "We knew he was going to get the records but the way he lifts the team is what is most important to us."

Messier feels the rest of the Oilers have been trying to lift Gretzky past Esposito and it has hurt the club's overall performance. And he said that as the Oilers carried a seven-game unbeaten streak into the contest with Buffalo, which they beat in their only previous meeting this season, 3-1 in Edmonton.

"In the last couple of games, all we've tried to do is get him the puck," said Messier. "It's always wise to feed a player like Gretzky but, according to Messier and Glenn Anderson, there are times not to pass to No. 99."

"In one game," said Anderson, "Paul Coffey had a breakaway and he passed it." "We're all so conscious of it," added Messier. "We know we'll loosen up after he breaks the record, and get the flow going again."

Bonds Voted

By The Associated Press

Residents from Durham and Wake counties have voted to approve a $50 million bond issue for a new runway at Raleigh-Durham Airport, while in Alamance County voters have rejected proposed bond issues totaling $4,875,000 for a new jail and new court building.

Election officials in Durham and Wake counties proved accurate in their predictions of a light voter turnout for the runway referendum. They said 208,750 voters were qualified to vote — 65,745 in Durham County and 143,005 in Wake County.

A total of 17.4 percent of Durham County's eligible voters cast their ballots while in Wake County 13.8 percent voted.

The issue passed by a 17,582-13,586 count. Wake voters passed it by an 11,345-8,384 margin while the issue slipped past in Durham by a 6,237-5,202 count.

The issue was decided by a majority of the total votes cast in the two-county district, meaning it could have passed even if the voters in one of the counties turned it down.

The total cost of the runway project is estimated at $58.6 million. The bonds would be repaid through airport revenue.

In Alamance County, about 17,500 of an eligible 44,500 voters defeated two issues — one for $925,000 to help pay for the new jail and a second for $3.95 million for the court building.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Know what your personal goals are and go after them in a positive manner. Enjoy the company of good friends tonight.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Be sure to observe every rule and regulation that applies to you today, otherwise you could get into a lot of trouble.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Handle any pressing affairs early in the day so that you have more time for pleasant activities later. Be logical.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Make sure you finish regular duties before seeking entertainment. Show more enthusiasm when handling duties.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Don't argue with a pompous individual in the morning and then later you can come to a fine understanding.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Handle an irksome duty early in the day and then you can engage in new interests that will perk up your spirit.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be so dynamic that a firm restraint may have to be used, while showing affection at the same time. Be sure to compliment when good work is done. Don't neglect ethical training. Sports are a must here.

John Quincy Adams In Race

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — When a 32-year-old local pharmacist filed as a candidate for the Nevada state Assembly, the name had a certain ring to it.

John Quincy Adams, direct descendant of two American presidents, said he picked Tuesday to file because it marks the date in 1848 that a more famous John Quincy Adams died of a stroke in the House of Representatives, where he served for 17 years after his term as president.

But the Assembly candidate said he didn't want to play up the historic angle too much. "I'm running as John Quincy Adams of Carson City and I'm running on my own," he said.

Record-Breaking Patents

Since Edison's first phonograph patent in 1878, the number of record players in the U.S. alone has grown to 75 million. Over a half billion dollars a year are dropped into America's 500,000 jukeboxes. Tonight the Grammy Awards will honor some of the artists who have kept those quarters clinking in the past year. But the all-time record-breaking record sellers are now disbanded or deceased. The most successful group was the Beatles, with 100 million singles and 100 million albums sold. Elvis had the most gold records — 35. But the most popular single record is still Bill Crosby's White Christmas, with over 300 million sales.

Bell, School Bds Exchange Charges

By CHRISTOPHER CONNELL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Education Secretary T.H. Bell's sharp criticism of the nation's school boards is really an attempt to "spread around a little of the blame" for what the Reagan administration is doing to education, a school board leader charges.

"When the secretary flails away at school boards, he should look at his own house, because he is presiding over the dismantling of the federal role in education," Thomas Shannon, executive director of the National School Boards Association, said Tuesday.

"I think (Bell) wants to take a little of the heat off the administration," Shannon said in an interview. "I think he wants to spread around a little of the blame."

Bell summoned reporters to his office Tuesday and blamed the nation's 95,000 school-board members in 16,000 districts for young adults' poor scores on a national test commissioned by the Pentagon.

"I think if the school boards would come on stronger there, we could raise the whole level of American education," Bell said. "Until they do that ... we're going to continue to hurt."

Bell said school board policy manuals do "a good job outlining the administrative routine and the management procedures of school buses and attendance areas and how to fix people's salaries and ... all of that. But the policy manual is devoid of a commitment to high standards."

Shannon replied, "School board policy manuals invariably have statements which are aimed at promoting or fostering excellence in education."

The Pentagon's test of "developed abilities" in math and reading was given to 11,914 adults 18 to 23. On average, whites got 56 percent of the questions correct, Hispanics 31 percent and blacks 24 percent.

Shannon said the Pentagon test results "show how important schooling is to our national defense."

He said President Reagan's proposed $1 billion cut in remedial aid for disadvantaged children and deep cuts in child nutrition and vocational education ultimately will hurt both the nation's economy and its defense.

Bell defended the cuts, saying, "we've gotten ourselves into such a (fiscal) mess that we've got to do this."

Bell, a lifelong educator, said tests were his "hobby." "I'm convinced that there's no difference in the innate intelligence among the races or ethnic groups," he said. "I don't think any more smarts were passed out to one race or group than another."

"I think we have to face the fact, painful as it is, that we're failing to meet the needs of these population groups," Bell said.

"I've worked for school boards all my life," he said. "They're just great people. They serve without pay. They take a lot of abuse."

But until school boards stiffen standards, "we're not going to get down to what the nub of the problem is," Bell said.

"If you let school out for parent and teacher conferences and you let them out a half-day a week for teacher preparation days, pretty soon ... your actual classroom time is compromised down considerably," he said.

He decried the case of former Greensville County, Va., school superintendent Sam A. Owen who, Bell said, "lost his job because he insisted on the social promotion standards and tougher standards."

Bell said he was looking for someone like Owen to replace Vincent Reed, the outgoing assistant secretary for elementary and secondary education who once quit the school superintendent's job in the District of Columbia after battling with some school board members for tough standards.

"I think we'll be getting in touch with (Owen)," Bell said. "I would like someone with that kind of commitment."

Flamingo Is Finally Hers

MIAMI (AP) — When Sandra Morgan spotted the 17-foot-tall pink flamingo in 1961, it was love at first sight.

It took two decades, but finally the concrete-and-steel flamingo was given a home in front of the persistent woman's Miami business.

"It's so tacky, it's wonderful," she says of the big bird adorning her store entrance.

She saw it for the first time 21 years ago in front of an Everglades tourist shop.

"I just had to have it," she said.

She offered Jack Fiscus, the owner of the Everglades shop and the artist who built the bird, $300 for it. But he refused.

Last July, Fiscus leased his store to Jim Brown, who turned it into a shell shop. Brown was not fond of the funny fowl.

"I wanted to change the image to get it away from that 1950s look," said Brown, who added that he thinks 17-foot flamingos are "a bit tacky."

Brown was about to destroy the sculpture. But a friend of Ms. Morgan, who knew of her passion for the bird, warned her in time. And Ms. Morgan got the bird for free.

"That bird was fated for me," she said at a Saturday celebration at her store. The celebration featured pink beer and pink snacks to match "Rosie," whose pink legs are now planted firmly in front of her shop.

But see what a bit of legerdemain can accomplish over the green baize.

Declarer won the ace of hearts, cashed the ace and king of clubs and led the queen. Since declarer would discard his heart loser if East did not ruff, or if East ruffed high, he ruffed with the five of trumps. Declarer overruffed, cashed the ace of spades, crossed to dummy with a spade ruff and ruffed a club as East sluffed a heart. Dummy's last club was now high.

Declarer got back to the dummy with a spade ruff and played the established club. Obviously, it would not help East to ruff with the ace of trumps, so he discarded another heart. Declarer pitched his heart loser and West ruffed with his low trump.

It made no difference what West did. He chose to return a heart. Declarer ruffed and led a trump, and the ace and king came tumbling down on the same trick. Thus, declarer managed to lose only one top trump trick and a club ruff to bring home his contract.

How clever of East-West not to double!

How do you choose the best opening lead? Charles Goren has the answer. For a copy of "Winning Opening Leads," send $1.85 to "Goren-Leads," care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 259, Norwood, N.J. 07648. Make checks payable to Newspaperbooks.

Neither vulnerable. West deals.

The best and most prolific of French bridge writers is Jose le Dentu, who is also a very good friend. His new book, just published in France, contains many interesting deals. We particularly liked the section recalling favorite hands of yesteryear. Here's an example.

This hand occurred in a match in Denmark. North used the "Unusual Two No Trump," a convention of which we are not especially fond. It showed a minor two-suiter, and South judged that his diamond fit and wealth of aces should come close to producing a game, so he went ahead and bid it.

West led the king of hearts, and when dummy appeared it seemed certain that declarer would have to lose two diamonds and a heart.

NOTICE OF LEASING
 Farmers are invited to submit sealed bids for cash rent leases for the Whitehurst Farm and the B. W. James Homeplace Farm in Bethel Township, Pitt County, North Carolina, for the year 1982, and the tobacco poundage allotment of each farm to be grown off the farms in 1982, said farms to be tended in a good, careful, husbandlike manner and to be left in as good condition as the same are now. Each farm will be rented separately, and the tobacco allotment for each farm will be rented separately. Both farms and tobacco allotment will be leased for cash to be paid on Friday, February 26, 1982, when sealed bids for such leasing will be opened in the law offices of James, Hite, Cavendish & Blount, First Street, Greenville, North Carolina. To be leased at that time will be the following:

1. Whitehurst farm, ASCS #E 921, 3.3 acres of peanuts to be planted on the farm and 48.4 acres total cropland.
2. B. W. James homeplace with 4.2 acres of peanuts to be planted on the farm and 63.1 acres of total cropland.
3. Whitehurst farm tobacco allotment of 11,597 pounds of tobacco.
4. B. W. James homeplace tobacco allotment of 15,118 pounds.

The sealed bids marked "James Farms rental proposals", should be delivered to the law offices of Underwood & Leech, 201 Evans Street, Greenville, North Carolina or to the law offices of James, Hite, Cavendish & Blount, First Street, Greenville, North Carolina prior to 12:00 o'clock noon on Friday, February 26, 1982. Bids will be opened at that time and leases for each farm and for the appropriate allotments of tobacco pounds will be awarded to the highest bidder for each category at that time.

Inquiries may be directed to the undersigned.

Sampling Is By Preview

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Invitations to preview television shows generally come from official press releases or sweet-sounding network types. This time, the proposition was from a man in a CBS blazer on the corner of Fifth Avenue and 50th Street.

It wasn't the typical sidewalk come-on for hot watches, porno parlors or assorted opportunities for indigestion. This guy was offering anybody a free ticket to screen a new show. It was a chance for a little show biz, and to become the first person on the block to see CBS' "Baker's Dozen."

It's not as if there isn't enough television to watch in this job. But this would be different. No special treatment from back-slapping TV people, hoping that a contented critic might mean a favorable review.

There would be no overflowing table of hors d'oeuvres, no press kit with explanations (in case the critic fell asleep) and no movie-size screen to make it all look bigger, and better, than it actually was.

No sir. This screening was going to be with the masses, ultimately, the most influential and important critics. This was a chance to be a real TV Taste-Tester.

Preparation for the role included stopping at Burger King, buying an overpriced sidewalk pretzel, and bringing a copy of TV Guide to CBS. But, alas, the first screening was filled. With no public relations official to run interference, there was no preferential treatment, either.

An hour later, and a little wiser to the ways of overbooking, things were going much smoother at the front of the line. Fellow guinea pigs began filtering in. The Simmons family from the Bronx couldn't get matinee tickets for "Barnum," so when the CBS Blazer waved tickets at them, they jumped.

The Simmons considered themselves mainstream TV watchers. Madeline liked "Dynasty" and "Quincy," her daughter Maria enjoyed the soaps and father Nathan was a "Hart to Hart" fan. "I don't like to watch real life on TV," he said.

Shawn Kristy, an actress from New York and a veteran of Clearasil commercials, said she auditioned for a network series in the morning and was here in the afternoon to keep abreast "of what's going on in TV."

In the screening room, there was a regular-sized TV set and vinyl chairs. It all resembled a boardroom. Press screenings stressed comfort; this one stressed reality.

Robert Brilliant, CBS' director of program analysis, said public samplings help programmers choose which pilots will get to series and, once in series, what changes might be incorporated into future episodes.

Brilliant said sampling is done in New York and Los Angeles, and the test results for each show come from the same scientific combination of people, "roughly approximating the total viewing audience."

The testing resembles an arcade shooting game. Press the green button if you like what you're seeing. Fire away with the red if you don't. But keep the buttons on your lap to keep others from cheating.

Sunday February 28. The ladies with Bob are Dolores Reade Hope, Bob's wife, left; on her left is Lucille Ball, Bob Hope and Marie Osmond. The taping was Sunday night at NBC's Burbank studios. (AP Laserphoto)

MANDATORY COURSE — SOUL, South Korea (AP) — The Seoul National University, guarding against a trend to the left, announced today it was making mandatory a course to study communism.

MANTEO — Auditions for cast members of the 1982 production of Paul Green's "The Lost Colony" will be held in Manteo Saturday beginning at 2 p.m.

Auditions will be in "The Lost Colony" activity building adjunct to the Elizabethan Gardens on the Fort Raleigh National Historic Site. Auditions will be held for all parts with the exception of those that are already filled by commitments from returning cast members.

Persons auditioning are required to bring a photograph and a resume. Potential acting cast members should prepare two minutes of memorized dialogue of their choice. Singing auditions should prepare two minutes of singing of their choice. Potential dancers will be included in a dance movement class led by an instructor from "The Lost Colony" production staff. No prepared material for dancers is necessary.

Auditions For Ballet Dancers

CHARLOTTE — An open audition for the Charlotte Ballet will be held Sunday at 1:30 p.m. in the Dance Charlotte Studio at Spirit Square. Artistic Director Katharyn Horne will conduct the auditions.

Auditions are open to males and females 15 years of age and above. Females must be no shorter than 5-foot-1 and no taller than 5-foot-7. Shorter or taller female dancers will not be allowed in the audition class. Those auditioning must wear practice clothes and be prepared to take class. Females must bring their pointe shoes.

For more information, call 704/374-1619.

'Commercials' In Stage Play

LONDON (AP) — When the stage play "Wyre's Cross," described by its authors as a 'soap opera in four parts,' opens in May, it will feature a new concept in stagecraft: live commercials.

"We hit on the idea of live advertising to add to the soap-opera authenticity," says co-author Geraldine Griffiths.

"And to allow the large cast to be paid," adds her partner, Peta Masters. The two are members of the women's drama group called Mrs. Worthington's Daughters. It is performing the comedy over four weeks — one episode per week — in London's West End.

For about $1,100, an advertiser can sponsor a complete scene through all four episodes. The sponsorship, as in the early days of radio soap operas, includes both a 30-second commercial and a mention of the product in the script for the scene.

"It will remind you of every soap opera you've ever heard — including the commercial breaks," says advertising manager Georgina Downes.

CHAPEL HILL — Corporations from across North Carolina and members of the North Carolina congressional delegation will participate in a fund-raising dinner Friday in support of The University of North Carolina College for Public Television.

The benefit, to be held at the Hotel Europa in Chapel Hill, has been billed as "An Evening of European Elegance and American Wit." Tickets to the black tie event are priced at $500 per couple — $250 per person. The climax of the program is to be a "roasting" of North Carolina members of Congress by political humorist Mark Russell.

Reservations may be made by phoning 962-8191.

Honorary chairmen of the UNC-TV gala are former North Carolina Govs. Jim Holshouser, Dan K. Moore, Terry Sanford and Bob Scott.

Grace Rohrer, director of development for The Center, said in early February that 15 private corporations would have people attending the event, with indications from others that they will have people attending.

The UNC event is designed to help raise funds to replace dwindling support from federal fund sources.

Shah's Widow May Wed Again

KUWAIT (AP) — Reports have circulated in the Egyptian press that Farah Diba, widow of the former Shah of Iran, planned to be wed again, this time to one of the late monarch's top air force men.

But sources close to her were quoted Tuesday as denying the reports.

Merit "Easy Switch."

National Smoker Study confirms MERIT taste sparks switch from higher tar brands.

The bottom line: taste.

That's the result of the latest wave of research with smokers who have switched from higher tar cigarettes to 'Enriched Flavor,' MERIT.

MERIT Earns Taste Trophy.

Nationwide survey reveals over 90% of MERIT smokers who switched from higher tar are glad they did. In fact, 94% don't even miss their former brands.

Further Evidence: 9 out of 10 former higher tar smokers report MERIT an easy switch, that they didn't give up taste in switching, and that MERIT is the best-tasting low tar they've ever tried.

MERIT By Wide Margin.

In addition, extensive unmarked pack tests confirm that MERIT delivers a winning combination of taste and low tar when compared with higher tar leaders.

Confirmed: The overwhelming majority of smokers reported MERIT taste equal to—or better than—leading higher tar brands.

Confirmed: When tar levels were revealed, 2 out of 3 chose the MERIT combination of low tar and good taste.

Year after year, in study after study, MERIT remains unbeaten. The proven taste alternative to higher tar smoking—is MERIT.

Israel Uses A Sentence For Service

By JONATHAN IMMANUEL
Associated Press Writer
JERUSALEM (AP) — A musician convicted of shoplifting was sentenced to give free violin lessons to poor children. A burglar who likes fast cars was ordered by a court to serve nine months as an ambulance driver.

They are two of an estimated 270 criminal offenders in Israel who are working in public institutions instead of going to jail, getting suspended sentences or paying stiff fines.

Their crimes range from assault and causing death through negligence down to fraud, tax evasion or receiving stolen goods.

Although community service is open only to petty criminals who would have spent no more than a year in jail, probation officers at first had a hard time finding employers ready to accept them.

Now that the law providing for the "Service for the Benefit of the Community" is 2 years old, employers are more responsive and judges who once thought it a soft option to jail are recommending more offenders for the program.

Jerusalem's senior probation officer, Shalom Ben-Pazi, says the program has been a success so far partly because candidates are selected carefully.

The lucky ones work as gardeners, hospital porters, mental hospital orderlies, "big brothers" to needy youngsters. They also work with the blind, the crippled and the bereaved.

The seriousness of the offense along with the offender's personality, skills and motivation determine what work he will do.

"Community service works because it helps to restore an offender's self-respect," says Hedva Freud, a Jerusalem probation officer, adding that she believes self-contempt motivates many petty criminals to repeat crimes.

Success has often exceeded expectation. The hospital that got the burglar as an ambulance driver was so impressed by his work that it offered him a permanent position upon completion of his term.

One of the most serious crimes so far in the program was a case of attempted rape by a young Arab who assaulted a bikini-clad Scandinavian tourist on a beach. The judges felt that the youth, who had never left his village before, simply mistook a care-free Western attitude for an invitation. They put him to work in a first aid station near his northern Galilee village.

The emphasis is on rehabilitation. To help rebuild the offender's self-respect, the reasons for his "voluntary" service are hidden from fellow workers. His name is removed from court records and the news media are asked not to report personal details of the cases. Only the employer knows the offender's background.

Community service is a once-only opportunity to prevent an anti-social act from turning an offender into a permanent burden on society.

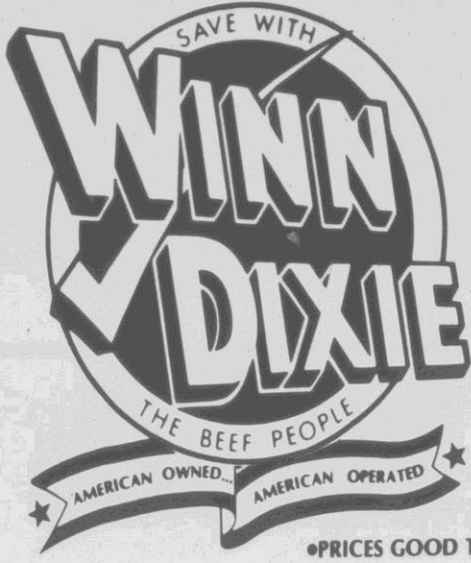

Offenders assigned to community service live at home, continue their regular jobs and work at it for up to five hours a week for as long as nine months.

Ben-Pazi says it is essential that those selected have steady jobs. Community service must not take the place of regular employment in order to emphasize that it is voluntary, additional labor.

The Social Welfare Ministry says it wants to expand community service because it costs the government 15 times more to keep a man in jail than to put him to work in the community.

So far the number of offenders on community service is no more than four percent of the number in jail. But Haim Cohn, a former Supreme Court judge and prime mover of the program, believes that in time 30 percent of all convicted offenders will do community work.

It's nearing the end of summer making this a good time to shop for a good buy in boats and marine equipment. Find them in Classified.

Peru Trying To Improve Its Prisons

By KERNAN TURNER
Associated Press Writer
LIMA, Peru (AP) — Not long ago Justice Minister Enrique Elias Laroza was visiting a Lima prison when an inmate stuck a revolver in his face and tried to squeeze off three quick rounds.

The gun failed to fire, but the assassination attempt sounded an alarm about conditions in this South American country's overcrowded and crumbling penitentiaries.

Prison conditions are bad in most South American countries, but few governments are so willing to admit it as the administration of President Fernando Belaunde Terry, who was inaugurated July 28, 1980.

"Peruvian prisons aren't bad, they're horrible," Justice Minister Elias said in a recent interview with The Associated Press.

His assessment is supported by Belaunde, who says the prisons are "infernos" which serve as "criminal factories" instead of rehabilitation centers.

"The penitentiary problem is horrible in Peru for two basic reasons," Elias said in the interview. "First of all, the inmates are heaped together like cordwood and secondly, extremely dangerous criminals are mixed indiscriminately with those who committed relatively mild crimes."

He accused the military dictatorship which governed Peru for 12 years before Belaunde was elected of "violating human rights" by abandoning the penitentiary and judicial systems.

"Not one penal institution was built during that time," Elias said.

"This is a terrible problem which cannot be resolved in one or two years, but we are embarking on an enormously expensive program to better conditions," he said.

Elias said Peru would invest the equivalent of $100 million in 50 prison-construction projects this year, including 20 to 25 new penitentiaries.

"We will separate the inmates, putting the most dangerous in special institutions, and we will reduce the overcrowding," Elias said. "Later we will initiate a rehabilitation system based on work programs and we will improve food services, health care and the training of staff, which also was abandoned by the military government."

Foreign inmates at the Lurigancho Federal Penitentiary here attracted more attention to prison conditions Christmas Day by going on a hunger strike in an effort to enforce their demands to be freed or transferred to institutions in their own countries.

Elias said Lurigancho, a bleak row of concrete dormitories surrounded by a high wall in the desert outside Lima, was opened in 1976 with space for only 1,500 inmates.

"Today there are 5,000 prisoners at Lurigancho," he said. "We will reduce that to 2,000 at the most."

Elias said the inmates are thrown into prison and left to their own devices for obtaining food, clothing and housing.

Inmates say they are robbed and beaten, both by guards and fellow inmates and need money to purchase the most basic necessities. Prostitutes and drugs, and even sometimes freedom, are available for a price.

In Lurigancho the foreigners are kept in a building resembling an empty gymnasium, with cellblocks along the walls. The inmates have built their own rooms out of wood framing covered with cardboard and blankets.

At night they are locked in 2,000-square-foot cellblocks where 70 prisoners must share a single hole in the ground as a toilet.

The situation at Lurigancho was revealed by a recent census which showed 93 inmates were missing, 1,895 did not have lawyers and 70 percent had not yet been tried.

Jon Lee Anderson, 24, an American from Gainesville, Fla., spent 18 months in Lurigancho on a cocaine trafficking charge until he was found innocent and freed Thanksgiving Day. He said police tortured him to force a signed confession which was used against him in court.

Coffee Fills Yugoslavia Parcel Mail

By NESHÁ STARCEVIC
Associated Press Writer
BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — A year-long shortage of coffee is causing unprecedented problems for the post office here. Black marketeers have found they can get around a new customs law by having coffee sent from abroad by registered mail.

Until December, Yugoslavs could import large quantities of coffee duty-free. But this was stopped because, the government says, there is a shortage of hard currency to pay for the imports.

"We have never had such a huge number of registered parcels from abroad as in the past two months," says Dragan Ilic, deputy chief of the post office handling fourth-class mail near Belgrade's main railway station.

"Their number is bigger than ever since the end of World War II," he added. Post office officials said they could not cope the flood of parcels.

They said some 103,000 parcels recently were waiting to be delivered, while the backlog at the same time last year was less than half that figure.

The post office had to ask for a nine-man staff increase, and 38 people are working full time just to sort and deliver the parcels.

The rush started in December, after the new customs law went into effect. The law was designed to prevent smuggling and reduce the spending abroad by Yugoslavs traveling to neighboring Italy or Austria for weekend buying sprees.

The law also sharply reduced the amount of money Yugoslavs can take out of the country.

It stipulated that only one kilogram (2.2 pounds) of coffee can be imported duty-free. Anything above that is subject to a tax of 650 dinars ($15) a kilogram.

In the weeks following the new regulations, customs officers were reported to have seized huge amounts of coffee from the luggage of returning Yugoslav travelers.

But black-market operators quickly adjusted to the new situation when they discovered that the new law also includes a provision that two kilograms (4.4 pounds) of coffee can be received duty-free by registered mail.

"When one person gets 70 or 80 parcels, each containing the legally permitted two kilos of coffee, it is obvious that he is active on the lucrative black market," one post official said.

Meanwhile, police have taken an interest in the coffee-by-mail business and have started checking addresses on the packages.

Parcels from abroad — apparently sent by relatives or friends or by the addressees themselves — also contain butter, washing detergent and cooking oil which are also getting scarce in local shops.

A kilo of coffee on the black market in Belgrade now costs about 1,200 dinars ($27), more than twice the price charged in shops when it is available.

Extend Curbs On Clothespins

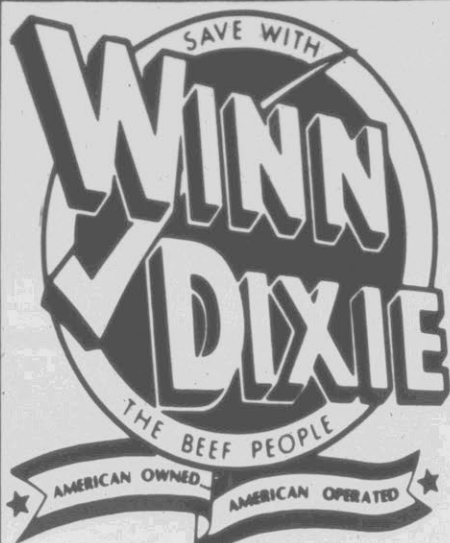

WASHINGTON (AP) — A limit on clothespin imports is being extended for another two years by President Reagan, according to government sources.

Although the White House would not confirm that the extension had been signed, government sources who asked to remain anonymous said an official announcement was forthcoming.

The limit was set at 288 million clothespins. Most of the imports to this country are from Taiwan, Poland, West Germany and Poland.

The extension would prevent a surge of imports that would hurt U.S. manufacturers — three small companies in Maine and two in Vermont. Last June they employed 427 people. It would also give the American companies additional time to adjust to the foreign competition.

Abandoned Woodland Is Claimed

By MARTIN J. WATERS
Associated Press Writer
HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Even in densely populated Connecticut, there remains what one expert calls "a lot of lost land," and Lawrence Buck claims he has found a piece of it.

The 39-year-old audio engineer discovered 26 acres of woodland in Middletown 10 years ago while "driving around looking for someplace to cut wood" for his wood stove. When he checked land records to identify the owner so he could ask permission to cut wood, Buck couldn't find the answer.

During the past decade, he has begun taking possession of the two parcels — one 17 acres and the other nine acres — for free under an obscure provision of state real-estate law called "adverse possession."

The concept of the law is that someone can establish a claim by using land "openly, notoriously and continuously" for 15 years, in a manner adverse to the interests of the owner, and the owner does not appear to object.

Buck, who lives in New Britain, has kept up his search for the owners and is now convinced the last known owners either had no descendants — for one reason or another — will never claim the land. Last year he filed a formal claim on one parcel.

"I'm confident," he says, "I've researched land records at the City Hall, at the state library in Hartford. I've looked at all the records and tried to locate the people. I haven't found the real owner, and I've gone back 150 years in the land records."

To strengthen his claim on the land, Buck filed a deed claiming title to the land and paid $800 in property taxes last May on the smaller parcel whose last known owner died in 1907. The payment covered taxes on the nine acres for the previous 10 years.

He intends to pay back taxes on the 17-acre parcel later this year — as soon as Middletown's tax assessor takes care of the paperwork restoring it to the tax rolls.

"They'd lost track of it altogether," said Buck. "Didn't know who to send the tax bill to, so they took it off the list years ago."

The last record of an owner of the larger parcel is in 1877, Buck said.

Buck believes that if no one successfully disputes his claim for another five years, the land will be his. It may not, however, be that clear-cut.

"You're talking another six years in the courts to establish real title. No one has actually obtained title in less than 21 years," said Lou Grossi, an examiner at the State Real Estate Commission.

Cases like Buck's are rare, but not unprecedented, Grossi said.

Buck — who owns a house and yard in New Britain that he got the conventional way — has done all his own title and legal research on the Middletown land, which is about 10 miles from his home in central Connecticut.

"I wouldn't recommend this for someone who wants to put up a house. The original owner could come along and you'd lose everything," said Buck, who works with audio equipment at Central Connecticut State College in New Britain.

He now has some plans for the Middletown land that go beyond chopping wood.

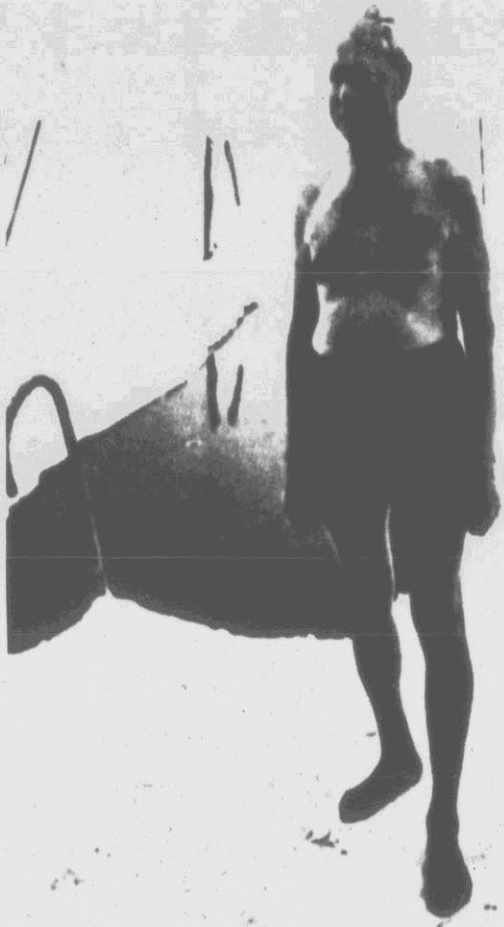

"I'm going to be putting fruit trees down there. I have 250 Christmas trees coming that I will put in there. I may put a little camp there for the summer, eventually."

Diet Helps In Liver Disease

FORT COLLINS, Colo. (AP) — A liver disease similar to cirrhosis can be successfully managed through diet, tests with a dog demonstrate.

A bulldog pup was suffering from "portacaval shunt," a disease in which toxins usually removed by the liver are allowed to accumulate in the body, says Judith L. Weissing, a Colorado State University pharmacology professor.

Plunge Into Cold Water

POLAR BEAR — Pyotr Myagkov, 84-year-old doyen of 70 men who regularly swim at a hole cut into the ice at a pond in Moscow, is a member of one of Moscow's 25 winter swimming clubs. (AP Laserphoto)

By VERONIKA MINTHORN
Associated Press Writer
MOSCOW (AP) — Every winter day, a group of Soviet citizens gathers at a frozen pond near Moscow's television studios. One by one they enter a small dressing room, strip to bathing suits, walk to a ladder leading to a large hole cut in the ice — and ease into the water.

Swimming a lap and back to the ladder takes each man about 25 seconds. Some brave the water for about one minute before climbing out, their bodies glowing red from the bitter cold. The next swimmer is already waiting at the ladder for his turn.

These hearty men are known as "seals," members of one of Moscow's 25 winter swimming clubs. One of them is Pyotr Myagkov, at age 84, the doyen of 70 men who regularly swim at the pond underneath the Ostankino TV tower in northern Moscow.

"It's healthy. I do it every day, and I have never been ill," Myagkov asserted.

An engineer who still works in a toy factory, though well beyond pension age, Myagkov proudly showed his passport to prove his age. "Here, look, I was born on June 6, 1897," he said.

On a recent Saturday morning, the temperature was 14, but the wind chill factor made conditions even more frigid. It didn't faze the seals. They swim even in blizzards.

They take their swimming very seriously, and there is no shrieking, horseplay or complaints about the water temperature. Their motto appears to be "the colder the better."

"We swim, no matter what weather, no matter what temperature," said a middle-aged enthusiast. "Our club is really democratic — there are drivers and engineers, workers and mathematicians."

There are about 300,000 people in the Soviet Union who indulge in open-air winter swimming, according to the commission for health conditioning and winter bathing. Many bathers form "seals' clubs" like Myagkov and his friends.

The seals clubs have no regular dues, but money is sometimes collected among the members for purchases of samovars, tea and sugar.

"In Moscow alone there are 25 of these clubs with about 2,500 members," says 42-year-old Lev Kovalski, executive secretary of the commission. Kovalski has been a regular winter bather for 14 years.

Many seals in the Soviet capital swim in the Moscow River, others prefer to dive into little holes they cut in lakes or ponds around the city. There are also a number of women among the winter bathers, but usually more men are seen around the ice-holes.

The tradition of winter bathing in Russia goes back hundreds of years, but in the late 1940s and early '50s, it was officially discouraged in Moscow. In 1954, when a man was barred from participating in the sport, and it took four years and the certification of 12 doctors before he was able to swim again.

It was not until the 1960s that Soviet authorities started encouraging it as a sport for everybody. Sports officials say club members are required to provide a doctor's written statement that they are fit to take it up.

Some similar clubs exist in the United States, and their members also tout the health benefits of the icy plunge.

The daily Sovetski Sport and other newspapers often publish pictures of winter bathers from all over the Soviet Union, with accompanying articles or captions stressing the "health conditioning" aspect of swimming in sub-zero conditions.

The official news agency Tass also carries reports on winter bathing to popularize the sport.

A physical training instructor in a Siberian village was quoted as saying that "cold is a powerful stimulus for good health."

Georgy Kasatonov takes his six sons, aged three to 10, out in winter for swimming at Lake Arei and for a rub down with snow, Tass said, adding that the children are "immune against the common cold."

"We don't need doctors or any pills," boasts one member of the Moscow Seal Club.

And they all point to Mayagkov, who looks 20 years younger than 84 and is not considering retirement. "I'm healthy, I never fall ill," he says.

Big Importer Of French Cognac

NEW YORK (AP) — For the second consecutive year, the United States has retained its position as the world's largest importer of French cognac.

For the year ended Aug. 31, 1981, 23.5 million bottles of cognac were sold in this country, up 48 percent from the previous year, according to the Cognac Information Bureau.

Until that time, the No. 1 customer had been the British since the 16th century.

The second fastest growing market was reported to be Hong Kong, where sales rose 46 percent from a year earlier.

Reunited At The End Of Long Search

By GORDON HANSON
Associated Press Writer
BISMARCK, N.D. (AP) —
Bill Sharpe's words came nervously over the telephone: "Billie Rae, is this you, honey?" Indeed, it was Billie Rae, and with that call, Sharpe's 19-year search for his daughter was over.

And 23-year-old Billie Rae Krueger, who at first thought the call was a prank, was so overcome she cried.

Billie Rae and her 44-year-old policeman-father were reunited recently at her farm home near Mercer, N.D.

"When I first saw her, I just grabbed her and held her. I didn't want to let loose of her. I just stood there holding her," Sharpe said in a telephone interview.

Billie Rae was 3½ when her parents were divorced in Cincinnati. Sharpe moved to Chicago where, as a musician, he formed a band.

A short time later, in 1962, his former wife, Shelby, remarried and moved with Billie Rae to California. Sharpe didn't know of the move.

He tried to find Billie Rae. "All those years, at first I didn't know what to do."

Quitting his music, Sharpe became a police patrolman at Wheeling, Ill., in 1970 and continued looking for Billie Rae.

He'd return to Cincinnati about twice a year, checking with old friends, police records, telephone directories. Nothing. He went to the home of his ex-wife's parents. "The house had been torn down," he said. "Everything came to a dead end."

Bill Sharpe is nothing if not stubborn. He had finished two years of high school, earned a college degree and gained more than 40 pounds to meet the minimum weight requirement to be a policeman.

He also remarried. He and his wife, Arvilla, now have three teen-age daughters.

"I had three beautiful girls at home," Sharpe said. "But I had a lost sheep out there someplace. I had to keep searching until I found her."

Sharpe contacted police agencies "in every state in the union" via a law-enforcement computer system.

He knew Billie Rae had turned 16. He thought she'd apply somewhere for a driver's license, and it would be on record. Billie Rae got her license when she was 17, and that's when she married Ernest Krueger in California.

Then Sharpe got the break he needed: a noisy spat between Billie Rae and Krueger during a brief time they lived in Cincinnati. The argument resulted in police being called, and her name went on file.

Then, in yet another computer check by Sharpe, Cincinnati police turned up Billie Rae's name — maiden and married — because of that argument.

Sharpe learned he had a son-in-law. He got the couple's Cincinnati address and dove there.

But they'd moved May 4, 1981, to Washburn, N.D., Krueger's home area. They left no forwarding address.

Stymied again, Sharpe went to a Cincinnati company where police records now said Krueger, 37, had once worked. Krueger wasn't there, but Billie Rae's uncle, Paul Saunders, was. At last, Sharpe had found a relative.

"After two hours of grilling to make sure who I was," Sharpe said, Saunders gave him the phone number of Krueger's mother, Rose, in Garrison, N.D.

And that set up Sharpe's phone call to Billie Rae at the Jim Schilling farm near Mercer, where Krueger is employed.

Two days later, Sharpe, his wife and three daughters — Billie Rae's half-sisters — drove into the farm yard for a four-day visit.

"I think I just went blank," said the blonde, hazel-eyed Billie Rae. "Later, it was hard for me to realize he was sitting right there."

"I had often wondered when I was younger if I'd ever see my dad, if he ever thought of me, if I had seen him and he didn't know me."

Said Sharpe, "I'm glad it's over, and to have my girl back. When you want something, you can do it."

Sleepy Fla. Town Once Busy Resort

By WALTER PUTNAM
Associated Press Writer
GREEN COVE SPRINGS, Fla. (AP) — Before the railroad came, when the riverboat reigned and southern Florida was populated mainly by alligators and mosquitoes, this sleepy little town was a booming resort that drew tourists from thousands of miles to its treasured natural spring.

Regular steamboat service from Jacksonville brought elite 19th century visitors on the 25-mile trip down the St. Johns River to Green Cove, which boasted a half-dozen or more major hotels, and was known as "The Parlor City of the South."

It is said President Grover Cleveland once stayed at the Magnolia Hotel, which had rooms for 100 guests, and none other than P.T. Barnum helped enhance the town's image as "a watering hole for the rich."

The mineral spring, which even today bubbles clear, sulfurous water at a constant temperature of 78 degrees, was said to have remarkable curative powers. It fed several pools that were surrounded by wooden platforms and fences.

"This spring was supposed to cure just about anything that was wrong with you. People came from all over the country and from Europe for the baths," said Myrtice Truett, incoming chairman of the local history museum.

The Clarendon Hotel, another facility with accommodations for 100, had an exclusive contract to have spring water piped into its rooms, while the Alcazar in St. Augustine had bottled water shipped in and featured on its wine list, said Randy Rowell, another local history buff.

"Then the railroad came and the tourists went further south," Rowell said. "The hotels fell into decline. Some of them burned."

The railroad was the brainchild of Henry M. Flagler, a former Rockefeller partner who is credited with opening the rest of Florida's east coast to development.

In 1890, Flagler opened a steel bridge across the St. Johns at Jacksonville that enabled contemporary rail traffic to extend to St. Augustine and beyond.

With it waned an era of romance in Green Cove Springs.

The Clarendon burned around the turn of the century. It was replaced seven years later by the Qui-Si-Sana, whose developers constructed a spa beside the spring with a glass roof which a brochure at the time said was "100 feet square and covering 10 bathing pools

"My first job in my life was playing (piano) in that hotel," said Belle Lazette, who at 86 is one of the few who remember Green Cove in its glory.

As a young girl, Mrs. Lazette took the riverboat to Jacksonville for music lessons.

"I used to get up at 6:30 every Saturday and take the first boat. I would return at 6:30 that evening. It took four hours to go to Jacksonville," she said. "The trip was just very relaxing. The boat would go back and forth across the river to deliver the mail. And they would stop at some points to take on wood for the boat."

It was an age of romance and sweethearts in a town of charming inns and houses, boardwalks, gardens, grassy parks and beautiful trees, she said.

"My name was carved on so many of those trees," she sighed.

The Depression marked the end of the resort trade for good. The building housing the Qui-Si-Sana still stands as an inn and antique store. But the spa was demolished when the Works Progress Administration built a new town hall on the edge of Spring Park.

Today, a municipal pool sits in the basin of the park, with moss-draped live oaks adorning the grassy banks. The pool is fed from the spring, which gushes 3,000 gallons a minute and has a visible depth of 28 feet.

Don Sewell has created exciting home fashions for you and your home!

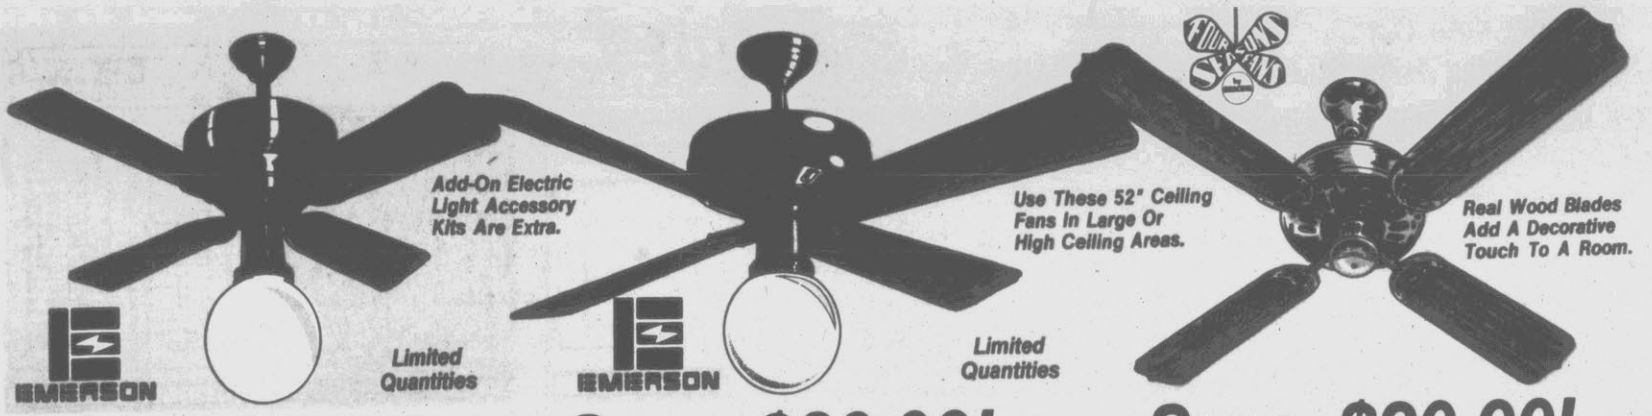

You Can Have Your Home Decorated By A Nationally-Known Interior Designer!

Creative Interior Designs: The services of an interior designer like Sewell are expensive, but through Lowe's it costs you nothing. Don Sewell has taken Lowe's quality brand-name home products—wallcovering, carpet, vinyl flooring, paint, kitchen cabinetry and countertops—and coordinated them into different interior designs. To make it easy for you to picture your redecorated room, all the coordinates of each design are mounted on a panel like the one pictured above. Use a different design in each room or use one design for your home.

Lowe's is Co-Sponsor of Better Homes & Gardens' 1982 Home Improvement Contest. For details . . . See the February issue of Better Homes & Gardens for rules & prizes.

Lowe's Pricing Policy
Many items in this tabloid carry a reference retail price. The reference is intended to provide a guide to the range of retail selling prices in our area and may be useful in identifying different units of the same manufacturer. An item's reference retail price is either the manufacturer's suggested retail price or our determination of its full retail price based on prices at which it or similar merchandise is offered by principal retailers (department stores, specialty shops and other non-discount sellers) in our selling area. While we believe our reference retail price does not appreciably exceed the highest retail prices at which sales are made in our selling area, we cannot assure you that our reference retail prices, as described above, represent the prices in every community on any given day. Some items in this advertisement are listed at "regular" selling prices. The merchandise is offered at this price except during a special sale. The purpose of showing a reference retail price (or a regular price) is to assist you, our customer, in making a knowledgeable and better informed buying decision. We suggest that you also do comparative shopping and compare our prices. (Prices in this tabloid do not include delivery charges. Ask us about delivery rates.)
Lowe's Raincheck Policy: If we sell out of an advertised item, we'll issue you a raincheck. When we restock, you'll be notified so you can buy at the previously advertised price (except for prices marked "Limited Quantities"). Our smaller stores may not stock all advertised items. But every item shown here can be ordered for you.
