Officer Says Use Of Illegal Drugs Is Widespread

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

"The use of illegal drugs is widespread in all segments of the community," a Greenville Police Department drug-law enforcement specialist said last week.

Marijuana (pot), cocaine, Quaaludes, LSD (acid), heroin and other drugs, are all available in Greenville and Pitt County, the officer noted. "Anywhere you go you can find some. It may be nothing but pot, but you can find some."

The officer, who works "undercover" much of the time and therefore can't be identified, said while the use of pot "stays about the same," the use of cocaine, Quaaludes and acid are "probably increasing."

"There's always drugs at the university — both use and dealing," while at the high school level, according to the officer, there's primarily a use problem. However, he acknowledged that "nickel bags ... half-ounces ... joints (individual marijuana cigarettes)" can be bought at Rose High School.

Drugs are being used from "junior high school age up," he noted. There's not as much drug use in the junior high school but you can find it. "I don't care where you go now, you're going to have a drug problem."

Most of the heroin, the officer explained, is found in black neighborhoods in Greenville, while the use of other drugs is spread all over the city.

"There are a lot of Quaaludes on the street," he said, adding that recently, "synthetic" or fake Quaaludes, "containing caffeine or diazapan (Valium), have been sold to customers as the real thing.

While use of illegal drugs is widespread, enforcement of the drug laws has been focused on the supplier or dealer, rather than the user.

"We don't have the money or the personnel to combat it," Chief Glenn Cannon said of the drug problem.

"Last year, (1980-81 fiscal year) we spent $10,000, and that's not a drop in the bucket," the chief said. This year (1981-82) the budget was $12,000. "We have about $1,000 left."

Without the State Bureau of Investigation and the federal Drug Enforcement Administration, which supplies money and manpower, "we'd be up the creek," the chief added.

An investigation by local officers and the SBI, which led to the arrest of seven persons in September 1981, on cocaine charges, the chief said, cost $9,200, not including the officers' salaries.

What does the drug enforcement money go for? "To purchase drugs and pay informers," Cannon explained. "Drug investigations can't be handled like other cases," the chief explained. "You have to pay out money for drugs and for information."

Informed sources said that the state earmarked $100,000 in July 1981 for drug case investigations. That money was spent by the end of September and another $100,000 was authorized. Now only about $20,000 of the second $100,000 is left.

"This is a college town and it's centrally located" in Eastern North Carolina, the officer explained. Therefore, he said, Greenville is used a lot in smuggling operations.

"The users are relatively easy to find. It's the dealers that give us the problem. The bigger the operation, the more time and money it takes to make a case."

In 1980, 169 persons were arrested in Greenville on drug abuse violation charges. Of that number 130 (including six under 18 years old) were charged with possession (including 93 for marijuana and 27 for cocaine), while 39 were charged with sale or manufacturing of illegal drugs.

Last year, 1981, 124 persons over 18-years of age were arrested on drug-law charges by Greenville officers, including 89 men and 14 women charged with possession of drugs and 17 men and 4 women on sale or manufacturing charges. Eight persons under 18 were also charged with possession — all of marijuana.

In January of this year, local officers arrested six persons — three men and one woman on possession charges and three men and a woman on charges of sale or manufacturing of drugs.

"It's a lot easier and generally a lot less expensive to arrest the users," Cannon noted. "But it's the people selling drugs that we want to stop. If we can dry up the supply, we won't have any problem with users."

While enforcement of drug laws is an expensive business, so too is the use of drugs.

According to the enforcement officer, marijuana sells for between $265 and $290 a pound in quantity ... up to $330 to $375 a pound in small lots.

Will Be Eligible For Parole Review In Seven Years

Jury Says Williams Is Guilty

By LAWRENCE KILMAN
Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — A jury found Wayne B. Williams guilty with surprising speed Saturday of murdering two young black men, ending a sensational trial stemming from the string of 28 slayings that terrorized this southern capital for nearly two years.

A "heartsick" Williams, still insisting he was innocent, was immediately sentenced by Superior Court Judge Clarence Cooper to two consecutive life prison terms. He will be eligible for parole review in seven years. The defense said an appeal was likely.

"We the jury find the defendant Wayne Williams guilty on count No. 1 and guilty on count No. 2," District Attorney Lewis Slaton said, reading from the verdict handed him by jury forewoman Sandra Laney in the packed fourth-floor courtroom in the Fulton County Superior courthouse.

The 23-year-old defendant, dressed in a brown suit, remained seated at the defense table, surrounded by deputies and out of sight of reporters, as the verdict was read. Then, accompanied by his lawyers and his father, Homer Williams, he strode to the podium and said in a steady voice:

"I maintained all along through this trial my innocence and I still say so today."

"I hold no malice against the jury, the prosecutors or the court," he said. "I hope the person or persons who committed these crimes can be brought to justice. I did not do this."

He then was hurried out by deputies to be driven back to the county jail where he has been held since his arrest last June.

Alvin Binder, his attorney, described Williams as "fairly calm, very disappointed, sort of heartsick."

The jury of eight blacks and four whites deliberated only 12½ hours after nine weeks of testimony before deciding that the black freelance photographer had murdered both Nathaniel Cater, 27, and Jimmy Ray Payne, 21.

Jurors declined to discuss the case with reporters as they left the hotel where they were sequestered throughout the trial.

"We were there for eight weeks and you don't explain that in a few seconds," said Edward Derum, a former Detroit policeman who is now a salesman in nearby Roswell.

Asked if he felt confident of the decision, he shook his head indicating yes. Asked how he felt, he said, "I'm tired."

Although Williams was charged in only two deaths, prosecutors presented evidence in 10 additional slayings of young blacks in an attempt to show a pattern of killings that included the Payne and Cater deaths.

Binder said he thought Cooper's decision to allow that evidence would be the main basis for an expected appeal.

Helms Criticizes Reagan's Policy For El Salvador

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
AP Political Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., chastized the Reagan administration Saturday for failing to act strongly enough in Central America and called on the president to withdraw U.S. support for El Salvadoran President Jose Napoleon Duarte.

"When the Reagan administration took over, there was a forthright recognition that the arms supply for the revolutionary movement was coming through Nicaragua and Cuba," Helms said in a speech to the Conservative Political Action Conference.

"Recognition of the problem almost stopped there," added the senator, who is chairman of the Western Hemisphere subcommittee of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. "Much of the Carter policy apparatus on Central America stayed in place."

Helms said that was why he attempted to block action on many of President Reagan's appointments to State Department posts.

Citing examples of what he considers policy mistakes, Helms said, "In El Salvador, the administration continues to support the land reform as the foundation of its policy.

"And we continue to support Duarte," he said. "Now, Mr. Duarte, let's face it is far to the left of George McGovern."

McGovern, the former senator from South Dakota and 1972 Democratic candidate for president, epitomizes to conservative activists the most liberal wing of American politics.

Helms described Duarte as "our standard bearer" in El Salvador and said the U.S. government has made him "the only game in town."

He asked, "Was there any alternative in El Salvador?

"The answer is, yes. We didn't have to embrace land reform. We could have pointed out that the land reform is a vast failure. ...

"And, yes, we might have withdrawn our political support for Mr. Duarte and let the natural political life of El Salvador take over," Helms continued. "There are many honest and attractive politicians in El Salvador, men who are for the free enterprise system, who are

Board Seeks Funds To Fight House Plan

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

The Pitt County Board of Commissioners Friday sponsored a meeting to raise funds supporting research designed to determine if anything can be done to block the removal of Bethel and Carolina townships from the rest of the county in the N.C. House redistricting plan approved by the General Assembly earlier this month.

"This is a very important meeting for us," Ed Walker, president of the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce told the 40 persons attending the session. "We've been talking about togetherness for a long time. We find ourselves in a position today of possibly losing a part of the county."

Walker, who presided at the noon session, emphasized the redistricting issue "affects all of us in Pitt County."

Rep. Sam Bundy, a member of the House Redistricting Committee, explained redistricting is required every 10 years, and pointed out that for the last 10 years, Pitt has been joined with Greene County in a district represented by two legislators.

The first redistricting plan approved by the General Assembly in mid-summer, according to Bundy, retained the Pitt-Greene district. However, suits were filled by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and by the Republican Party, challenging that plan.

So in October, the General Assembly met and approved a second plan which reduced the deviation (the number of persons represented by each House member), from 23 percent to 15 percent. (Bundy explained that based on the state population of 5.8 million, each House member should represent 49,015 residents, while each senator should represent 115,000 persons.)

In January, the U.S. Justice Department rejected the second plan, which followed county lines as the N.C. Constitution requires.

In rejecting the new plan, according to Bundy, and considering the "one-man, one-vote doctrine" and the 1965 Voting Rights Act, the Justice Department said the North Carolina redistricting plan "can't go over 5 percent deviation (2,400 persons)."

Bundy added that the Justice Department said in "Eastern North Carolina you 'must' set up two districts" that are predominately (60 percent) black.

The Justice Department, Bundy explained, also said that Guilford and Cumberland Counties must be split "in order to give the

Keeps Health Care Professionals Informed

Library Stresses Aid To Patrons

By MELVIN LANG
Reflector Staff Writer

Jo Ann Bell isn't a physician or a nurse, but she very much is a necessary part of the growing medical community that is arising around Pitt County Memorial Hospital and East Carolina University's School of Medicine.

It is Dr. Bell, who holds a Ph.D, and her colleagues in the ECU Health Sciences Library that keep the doctors, nurses, technicians and other health care professionals abreast of current trends and developments.

Her prime job as director of the library, she says, is to provide the best "delivery of information" available in the field of health care.

Working from a developing home in the Brody Medical Building — the library was the first occupant of the still-incomplete structure — with a staff of 30 or so, Dr. Bell is attempting to do just that: to deliver information.

The library's services are aimed at professionals in health care and allied fields, but are open to the general public throughout eastern North Carolina and, through a computer network, the rest of the nation. Telephone calls for references and bibliographies, or mailed copies, are welcomed, she said.

"And if you walk through the door you will be met by our staff, who will ask, 'what can we do to help you?' That is what we are here for, to help," Dr. Bell said.

Helping isn't all that difficult now as the library begins settling in to what will be a 32,000-square-foot home spread over two floors of the Brody Building. That has not always been the case in the 12 years Dr. Bell has served as ECU's librarian for health affairs.

She began work in 1969 with a staff of one — herself — and a 5-foot-square office in the library on the ECU main campus. There were no funds, no books, no other quarters.

Donations solved the lack of books and journals but there was a drawback, as she noted: "Soon I had the perfect collection — perfect for 1920, that is."

From there the medical library, such as it was, moved to a partially deserted cafeteria — "I had a serving line, steam tables with steam still connected and an ice cream machine without ice cream" and then to a what had been a reading room in the Science Complex, now the biochemistry department.

For the last nine years, the library has been housed in the Belk Building, near the main ECU campus. Modular units attached to the building and space at ECU's Joyner Library provided additional storage space.

The new home in the Brody Building has at least solved the storage problem, with room for expansion as the library's collections grow.

Dr. Bell said the facility is adding about 9,000 items a year, including books, films, microfilms and journals. She predicted steady growth in usage as a result of the new structural facility and its growing use of computers to assist in obtaining and delivering information about health care.

The HSL is part of a nationwide computer network of more than 300 medical lirbaries with an estimated 3 million files available to draw on. Items can be borrowed or loaned, bibliographies are available in minutes on any subject, library file cards can be printed or copied — all by computer.

All of that expands the services available, Dr. Bell said, although the ECU library has on hand more than 86,000 volumes and about 2,000 journals. It also owns more than 11,000 reels of microfilm.

"Those 11,000 microfilm reels equal about 47,000 volumes, and they really mean that we have a collection of more than 133,000 volumes," Dr. Bell said. "If they were all in hard copies, we would need to add another floor to the library."

Journals are especially important, she said, because they provide updated information faster than hard-bound books.

"We tend to have a lot more journals than books, possibly 65 to 70 percent. The emphasis is on currency," she said, "the 'now' information. You have to keep coming back to us to keep current."

Statistics are not yet available on customer use of the Brody-based library, but during its stay at the Belk Building, HSL serviced about 10,000 persons a month with about 1,800 taking advantage of its services monthly at a branch library based at PCMH.

The HSL staff has been photocopying about 1,300 articles monthly for faculty members and delivering 5,000 items each month to campus departments.

There are about 400 requests for service monthly from outside Pitt County, and that number is growing, Dr. Bell said.

She expects all of the usage statistics to grow, and has aimed her staff in that direction. "You come here," Dr. Bell emphasised, "and it's our job to help you find what you need."

Salvation Army Holds Meeting

The Salvation Army of Greenville held its annual report and civic dinner Friday night at the Masonic Temple.

Maj. David Holz, divisional commander of North and South Carolina, was the guest speaker. Maj. Ronald Davis, commander of the Greenville office, introduced Holz.

Awards were presented by Les Garner to Kettle Workers, first trophy, University Kiwanis Club; Kettle Workers, second trophy, Golden Kiwanis; and Kettle Workers, third trophy, Kiwanis Club of Greenville. A special award was presented to Garner for his contributions and services.

Two Students Are Arrested

Two Farmville Central High School students were arrested Friday by Pitt County deputies on marijuana charges, according to Sheriff Ralph Tyson.

He said Jeffrey Dean Harrell, 16, of Falkland was charged with three counts of selling marijuana, while Marty Scott Fulford, 17, of Farmville was charged with possession of marijuana.

Bond for Harrell was set at $500, while Fulford's bond was set at $400, the sheriff said. First appearance hearings will be held in District Court in Greenville.

Both students were arrested at the school, Tyson said.

The Star Spangled Banner was made the official anthem of the United States in 1931.

Cocaine, on the other hand, sells for between $80 and $150 per gram (it takes 28.35 grams to make one ounce), with an ounce of cocaine selling for between $1,700 and $2,200. A pound of cocaine goes for between $25,000 and $35,000.

Quaaludes, on the street, sell for $1.75 to $3 each, while by the thousand, the price is $1,700 to $2,000, and LSD sells for $3 per "hit" or $225 to $275 per 100.

Heroin is the expensive drug. It sells for $20 to $30 per "bag". A bag of heroin on the street is about 2 to 3 percent pure, and it takes five or six bags to make one gram.

In bulk, an ounce of 50 percent-pure heroin sells for between $15,000 and $16,000.

minority race a chance to elect representatives."

So a third plan was drawn up by a subcommittee which crossed county lines. Efforts by Pitt's representatives and House members from other affected counties, in the full committee and on the floor of the House, failed to materially change the plan, which was finally approved by a vote of 80 to 29.

It is the third plan which is now being considered by the Justice Department. "They have 60 days to approve it."

In all, Bundy explained, "29 counties have been split one way or another," by the latest redistricting proposal, which meets the 5 percent deviation guideline.

Defending Bundy and Rep Ed Warren, county commissioner Charles Gaskins said "the counties that were satisfied ... you know what they're going to do. Vote for the bill.

"When you split townships off from a county, you're not represented as well."

Gaskins then explained that Pitt is one of eight counties in the Northeast — split under the plan — that have joined forces to retain a legal researcher to "tell us what to do ... if any further action can be taken."

The research will cost $5,000, Gaskins said. Pitt's share, "prorated ... by way of population," is $1,710.

"That gets us right down to what you are here for," Gaskins emphasized. "It's not legal to use county funds for this purpose. We've got to go to the folks in some manner. We need to get $1,710 in some way. We just can't sit back and let the county be cut," without doing anything.

Warren, who said legislators from counties split by the redistricting plan "didn't have the voting power" to make changes in the proposal, voiced support for raising the money and "taking our chances in the court system," after Bethel attorney Clifton Everett said "I have no idea what the results of a court fight might be, but I have an idea" the possibility of success would be "rather chancy."

Pitt Democratic Party chairman George Saleeby, suggesting any challenge to the plan should "involve more people," said he would see if the Democratic executive comittee would be willing to go to to the Democratic precincts to help raise the needed money.

Walker, after PGCC board chairman Larkin Little said the chamber's board of directors has "endorsed" the move by the Board of Commissioners on the redistricting question, noted contributions to the legal fund should be sent to the chamber of commerce, marked "for county redistricting."

Williams. . .

Binder also said he believed "it was the fibers" the convicted his client — a reference to the textile strands the prosecution said linked Williams to his victims.

Slaton said he was confident the case would hold up under appeal and refused to rule out the possibility that Williams would be charged in some of the other slayings.

"I believe the closing of the task force (investigating the 28 slayings) is going to be for someone else to decide at a later date," Slaton told reporters.

Before court recessed, Williams' father told the judge: "I feel that this is an error in justice. I don't see how anybody anywhere could find my son guilty of anything. It's unjust, and I will say that anywhere in the world."

Williams' mother, Faye, whose emotional appeal for acquittal had closed the defense case, was not in the courtroom, but she told reporters at her home later the verdict was the "most frightening news I've heard" since her son was arrested last June.

"I feel like my life is over," she said.

Atlanta Mayor Andrew Young called the trial "eminently fair," and Dr. Joseph Lowery, president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, said "there's no reason not to believe that they delivered what they believed was a justifiable verdict."

Payne's mother, Ruby Jones, said she felt "satisfied they finally came up with something to explain my son's death," but parents of some of the other victims expressed doubt the whole case had been solved.

"The prosecutors' job was to prove he was guilty and they did not," said Camille Bell, whose 9-year-old son, Yusef, was slain in November 1979. Mrs. Bell's son was not one of the 10 additional deaths brought into the trial.

"For those families like mine, it will mean they will never know who killed their children," she said.

Russell Baltazar, whose slain son Patrick was one of those mentioned at the trial, said, "I'm not satisfied with that (the verdict). I still have to find out what killed my boy."

Ken Boswell, a court spokesman, said Cooper dissolved all contempt citations he had issued during the trial for people who had disobeyed his gag order by talking to the media, including Williams' parents, two of his attorneys and a defense pathologist.

The prosecution had said it would not seek the death penalty, and Georgia law allows for no lesser sentence than life imprisonment on a murder conviction. Williams will be eligible for parole review in seven years under a state law which says prisoners must come up for such review after serving a third of their sentences up to a maximum of 20 years.

Deputy Sheriff T.H. Connally said any defendant sentenced to more than five years in prison is entitled to appeal his sentence to a review panel, but must give 30 days notice he will do so.

The jury had sent a note to Cooper at 4:15 p.m. saying they had a verdict in one case. He told them they must reach verdicts in both counts before their decision could be annouced, and sent the panel back to deliberations, Boswell said.

The jury deliberated for 2½ hours Friday and resumed deliberations at 9 a.m. Saturday. They worked through their lunch break Saturday, having food brought in, and asked to be allowed to deliberateee River bridge — would not have to be moved.

The prosecution and defense tables were pushed together and 12 chairs were placed arou.1 them.

Cooper had told the jurors, who were sequestered in a motel during the trial, that they could find Williams guilty of both murders, guilty of one murder or innocent. He said they were not allowed to consider lesser charges.

He also advised the jurors not to make a hasty decision because they might regret it later.

The final week of testimony brought the most dramatic confrontation of the trial, as Williams testified and faced sharp questions from Mallard.

Williams was on the stand for seven hours, and the intense grilling took its toll. The defendant became angry during his final day of testimony, calling Mallard a "fool" and two FBI agents "goons."

Prosecutors capitalized on the outbursts during their closing arguments, telling the jury that Williams has a violent temper and may have enjoyed challenging authorities.

"Let me tell you about the type of person we're talking about," Slaton said. "He's cunning. He's evil. I did like the last day he testified when he said, 'You want the real Wayne Williams? You've got him.' That was classic."

Mallard told jurors that his questioning of Williams — during which he jumped quickly from one subject to another — was designed to show Williams' "Jekyll and Hyde" personality.

"He let the curtain down on the second day, and I knew sooner or later you would see that other personality come out," Mallard said.

Relief, Concern Follow Atlanta Jury's Verdict

By CAROL WOODFORD
Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — Civic leaders expressed hope Saturday that the conviction of Wayne B. Williams would put Atlanta's ordeal in the past, but some parents whose children were victims of the killings said there were still unanswered questions.

"A jury of Wayne's peers has analyzed, dissected, bisected and digested the evidence," said Dr. Joseph Lowery, president of the Atlanta-based Southern Christian Leadership Conference.

"There's no reason not to believe that they delivered what they believed was a justifiable verdict," he added.

"I would think that 12 persons who sat on that jury ... have exercised their best judgment in light of the evidence. Let's pray to God it's behind us."

Atlanta Mayor Andrew Young, who took office after Williams had been arrested and the killings had stopped, said he believed no one could "say this was not an eminently fair trial."

Williams, 23, was convicted of two counts of murder in the deaths of Nathaniel Cater, 27, and Jimmy Ray Payne, 21, two of 28 young blacks whose slayings over a 22-month period were investigated by a special police task force.

Ruby Jones, Payne's mother, expressed relief at the verdict, saying she agreed with the jury's decision. "I feel satisfied that they finally came up with something" to explain her son's death, she added.

"I just hope they got the right person — I don't know. I don't believe he could have done it himself," said Catherine Turner, Payne's girlfriend.

Businessman Dan Sweat, president of Central Atlanta Progress, an organization dedicated to the economic health of downtown, said he believes the city will experience "a feeling of relief that the ordeal is seemingly over."

"I think the city is ready to get back to normal business," said Sweat, who is white.

In the trial, prosecutors offered evidence linking Williams, a black, self-styled music promoter, to the deaths of 10 other black youths, including nine listed by the special police task force that investigated the 22-month killing spree.

Russell Baltazar, whose slain son Patrick was one of those mentioned at the trial, said he was not satisfied with the verdict.

"I still have to find out what killed my boy," he said.

Lois Evans, mother of victim Alfred Evans, said she did not believe Williams was involved in her son's death. Evans also was among those cited at the trial. Mrs. Evans had testified she did not believe the body police identified as her son's was actually her child.

George Hood, foster father of Larry Rogers, another of the victims mentioned in the trial, said the killer "should be punished, and I do hope they got the right one."

For those whose children were not even mentioned, there were also questions.

"The prosecutors' job was to prove he was guilty and they did not," said Camille Bell, whose 9-year-old son, Yusef, was slain in November 1979. Her son's case was not one of the 10 used as evidence at the trial to show a pattern of killings.

The jurors "concluded they could not bear the responsibility of letting him go just in case he was guilty," said Mrs. Bell, who has been a leader in organizations formed by families of the victims.

"For those families like mine, it will mean they will never know who killed their children," she added, "... because the task force is virtually gone."

Court Redraws Texas Districts

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A three-judge panel handed down a congressional reapportionment plan for Texas on Saturday after one judge called the state Legislature's proposal an "insidious" bid to dilute minority voting strength.

The plan by U.S. District Judges Sam Johnson of Austin, William Wayne Justice of Tyler and Robert Parker of Beaumont went far beyond the changes sought by the U.S. Justice Department when it rejected the Legislature's plan Jan. 29.

Texas gains three congressmen because of population growth shown by the 1980 census, boosting its delegation from 24 to 27.

The congressional districts as approved by the Legislature in August were expected to eliminate at least one Democratic congressman and carve a new district expected to elect a Republican.

But minority organizations filed suit challenging the plan as unfair to blacks and Hispanics.

absolutely faithful to the United States, who are for human dignity, who are for traditional values.

"But by our support, by our unquestioning support for Duarte, these potential candidates are prevented from assuming their normal role."

Helms referred to the government headed by Duarte as "left-wing socialist."

The senator also drew loud applause when he attacked news coverage of the conflict in El Salvador.

"The major media of this country are trying to do to El Salvador in six months what they did to Vietnam in six years," he said. "They are trying to convince us that a negotiated settlement with Marxist terrorists can bring peace and security.

"What kind of nonsense is that?"

Helms spoke shortly before Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. addressed the conference. President Reagan spoke to the conference Friday night.

A number of conservative activists have urged the president to fire Haig.

Helms said that since Reagan took office "there's been an improvement in foreign policy implementation, but we've got a long way to go."

At their awards banquet, the consevratives gave a special citation to Zdzislaw Rurarz, the former Polish ambassador to Japan, who defected to the United States after martial law was imposed in Poland.

Other awards went to four Republican and two Democrat members of Congress — Sen. William Armstrong, R-Colo., Republican Reps. Delbert Latta of Ohio and Barber Conable and John LeBoutillier, both of New York and Democratic Reps. Phil Gramm and Kent Hance, both from Texas. Gramm and Hance were key members of the group of conservative Democrats who supported the Reagan economic program.

Receiving an award for academic work was Jude Wanniski and for activism was Karen McKay of the Committee for a Free Afghanistan.

Marchers Protest Troops' Training

By TOM MINEHART
Associated Press Writer

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Carrying banners reading "Blessed Are the Peacemakers" and "Victory to the People of El Salvador," about 400 protesters gathered Saturday to protest the Reagan administration's policies in that Central American country.

After a three-hour rally in Pope Park, protesters formed a 100-car motorcade to go to nearby Fort Bragg, where more than 1,000 Salvadoran soldiers are undergoing infantry training.

"We are here to protest the use of North Carolina soil as a proving ground for oppression," said the Rev. W.W. Finlator, of Raleigh's Pullen Memorial Baptist church.

"Our license plates say 'First in Freedom,'" he said, "but North Carolina is at the bottom in literacy, income and in aid to the poor."

Former Maryknoll nun Gail Pharis told the crowd, "If it were not for the work you're doing, there would be U.S. Marines in El Salvador."

Ms. Pharis called on Reagan to let "internal forces" decide the future of El Salvador, where 26,000 civilians have been killed in the two years of civil war between leftist guerillas and government forces, according to the Roman Catholic Church and human rights organizations.

Laying the blame for civilian deaths on the junta and the Reagan adminstration, Ms. Pharis said, "Social reform does not equal communism. The revolution in El Salvador is no threat to our national security."

"The revolution is a historical necessity, not the work of a small group of communists," he said.

Phillip Wheaton, director of the Ecumenical Program for Inter-American Communication and Action, said, "The guerrillas are succeeding not because they have munitions, but because the people are on their side."

Guerillas Wound Rightist Leader

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Guerrillas on Saturday ambushed and seriously wounded retired army Maj. Roberto D'Abuisson, the leader of an extreme right-wing party that is running in next month's election.

D'Abuisson was rushed to the capital's Polyclinic Hospital where doctors treated him for about an hour. Bodyguards then took him by car to an undisclosed destination.

Doctors at the hospital, who asked not to be named, said a bullet entered D'Abuisson's upper right chest and came out through his back. They said he was out of danger but refused to give other details.

A spokesman for D'Abuisson's National Republican Alliance said D'Abuisson was driving past Ilopango Airport in an armored van on his way to a party rally when guerrillas hiding in ambush opened fire at about 3:15 p.m. EST. The airport, which is used by the armed forces, is about 7 miles east of San Salvador. Witnesses said D'Abuisson's bodyguards returned the fire.

The attack came a day after gunmen in two pickup trucks lobbed grenades and fired automatic weapons at D'Abuisson's party headquarters in San Salvador, wounding four people.

In another attack apparently aimed at disrupting the planned election, a caravan of vehicles carrying campaigners for the Christian Democratic Party was ambushed in southeastern Usulutan province. A party spokesman said there were no casualties.

He said an assembly candidate, Alejandro Herrera, was riding in one car that was hit when the guerrillas opened fire and the campaign party included Labor Minister Julio Alfredo Samayoa. Most of the vehicles in the caravan were armored jeeps, the spokesman said. He gave no further details.

Leftists opposed to the U.S.-backed civilian-military junta are boycotting the election that has been entered by the centrist Christian Democrats and five right-wing parties.

Human rights groups have claimed that some of D'Abuisson's supporters are linked with rightist death squads operating here.

D'Abuisson is campaigning for a seat from San Salvador province in the elections March 28 for a 60-member constituent assembly. He frequently makes campaign trips into the countryside.

Like many other candidates, D'Abuisson usually travels with a half-dozen guards. They are armed with shotguns, submachine guns and pistols.

D'Abuisson retired from the armed forces in October 1979, two weeks after a coup overthrew the conservative regime of Gen. Carlos Humberto Romero.

Congress Has Its Work To Do On The Budget

The Reagan administration budget for 1983 is in bad shape ... so bad, in fact, that members of his own party in Congress see the need to step in and make major changes.

What has occurred in the euphoria following the Reagan victory in 1980 is that the administration gave too much to too many — not in the old sense of promising new government programs, but rather in handing out tax cuts to all kinds of special interest groups. Just as in the days of new government programs the bills have come in and the government doesn't have enough revenue. The government has consistently run deficits, of course, but now the situation is threatening to get completely out of hand. There are projections of $100 billion deficits and even that might be conservative. And it could get even worse in the future.

Washington-wise Republican leaders in Congress see the handwriting on the wall and they are casting about for a solution to what is rapidly becoming a monumental liability. One plan is a surtax to be added to each taxpayers' bill which could raise up to $37 billion next year. This may or not be the plan that will survive. It is attractive in that it would apply on the same percentage to all taxpayers. Those that pay more taxes would have a large surcharge.

The soundest thought, however, is that a real bipartisan effort will be needed to salvage this budget. There will have to be some trimming of the defense budget and additional revenues will have to be found somewhere.

Congress has had a perhaps undeserved reputation of not being able to get the job done. Now it can show the American people that it can put partisan differences aside and develop a responsible budget in a difficult time.

No Simple Answer Can Be Advanced For Health Trouble

U.S. Surgeon General C. Everett Koop has issued a new cigarette warning calling smoking "the most important public health issue of our time."

In a report to Congress, Dr. Koop contended that cigarette smoking is a contributing factor in 30 percent of all cancer deaths. He urged non-smokers to stay out of smoke-filled rooms, although there have been studies which cast doubt on the idea that second-hand smoke is harmful.

We hope the surgeon general has solid evidence to back up his contentions. We hope he has not ignored the effects of vehicle exhausts and other pollutants in the environment which might have had more effect on public health. Making tobacco the sole villian in the problems of cancer might be convenient. If, however, that contention causes us to ignore other possible causes of cancer then we will have made a tragic mistake, indeed.

Sunday Morning Notes

The announcement that B-52 bombers will be phased out at Seymour Johnson Air Force Base at Goldsboro brings back memories for many former Air Force flyers.

Joe Clark, manager of the ECU Student Supply Store, is one. He didn't fly the B-52 but, rather, its predecessor — the B-47 — from its home base at Lincoln, Neb.

The B-47 was being phased out and the awesome new B-52s were coming in when Clark got out of the U.S. Air Force in 1958, and he never was to fly one.

"I'm still fascinated when I see one (at Seymour Johnson)," he says.

The B-47, however, performed a similar mission for the Strategic Air Command; that is to deliver a nuclear warhead to a pre-determined target in the event the order ever came from the White House.

The six-engine jet B-47 had a crew of three — an aircraft commander, a pilot and a bombadier-navigator. As with the B-52 there were always a certain number in the air and on the run-way. The crews, however, were never off and they had to report where they would be at any time.

Clark recalls taking his wife, Patty, to the Lincoln hospital when their first child was due. A call came to report to base, this time for a real alert.

"I said a little of everything about getting out on the way back to the base," Clark chuckles now. When he arrived he found that some unidentified aircraft had been spotted on the West Coast, but by then they had been identified and the alert was over.

Clark entered the Air Force through ROTC at East Carolina. He signed up for flight training and was sent to Stallings at Kinston for training in PA-18s and T-6s. By coincidence the day of his solo flight, training was scheduled at Pitt-Greenville Airport.

He then trained in B-25s, the same type plane used by Gen. Doolittle in the World War II bombing of Tokyo. Then there was a course in nuclear weapons delivery and finally a survival course which ended with the participants being dropped in the mountains near Reno and having to find their way back. Finally there was a test for combat readiness before assignment to a B-47 crew.

The B-47s are gone and now their successor, the B-52, is to be phased out. Nuclear readiness will rely on upgrading of nuclear-tipped missiles and on the possible development of the B-1 bomber which some say will be obsolete before it is built.

All the systems depend on well disciplined personnel who operate them, however, and Joe Clark was one of the early ones.

Optimist

WASHINGTON (AP) — As a handicapper of congressional politics, President Reagan is the Republican Party's optimist in chief. Or maybe it's his computer.

Prospective Republican contributors are being told that Reagan is convinced the GOP can capture control of the House of Representatives this year if it can only raise enough money. That's the message of a mass-mailed fund-raising letter send out over Reagan's signature, or a facsimile of it.

Reagan's assistant for political affairs doesn't believe Republicans can win the House. Neither does his White House chief of staff.

Edward Rollins, the political adviser, says that if Republicans break even in the 1982 House elections, it will be a victory. James A. Baker III, the chief of staff, says Republicans will be winners if they can hold their losses below the average off-year election loss of the president's president's party.

"If we do anything better than a 38-seat loss, by history and tradition, that ought to be a win," Baker said in a CBS-TV interview. "We are not claiming that we're going to take control of the House of Representatives, we're not making major claims of victory. It's going to be very tough and all we're saying is we'd like to keep the losses below what they historically have been."

Somebody had better tell the boss that, or the ghost writers who turn out letters to be sent in the president's name. The latest of those mass-produced, computer-addressed "personal" messages from the president says that "our No. 1 priority is to elect a Republican majority in the House this November ... If you can give your support today, I am convinced we can elect a Republican majority."

Democrats outnumber Republicans in the House, 243 to 192. To gain a majority, the Republicans would have to take 26 seats in the November elections.

The odds would be heavily against that kind of a GOP gain even in the best of economic times, which these are not. Reagan insists that his economic program, enacted with the help of a Democratic House, will succeed, but acknowledges there still are some hard times ahead.

Rollins says Republican members of Congress are jittery because their constituents are "very upset with deficits, very upset with the economy." But he said that doesn't mean wholesale defeats for GOP candidates.

"If we do very, very well in the House, I think that the loss would probably be somewhere between 5 seats to a maximum of probably 5 in a win column," Rollins said.

A Republican gain of five House seats — or any, for that matter — would be the first off-year pickup by the party in control of the White House since 1934. That year, midway through Franklin D. Roosevelt's first term as president, the Democrats gained nine House seats.

The Reagan fund-raising message describes Democratic control as a threat to his program. "They have used their majority power to oppose our reversing the disastrous Democratic policies of the past," the letter says.

They did not use that majority very successfully during the last session of Congress. Conservative Democrats helped Reagan win his first round of budget restraints, and his three-year tax cut.

Rhetoric aside, Reagan has some political debts to the Democrats who supported him. Rollins said the president has a commitment that he will not campaign against any of the 20 Democrats who voted with him on major issues last year. But he said it doesn't make any difference because the Democrats involved can't be unseated anyhow.

Prevention May Be The Best Cure

RALEIGH — The state's top law enforcement officer is among those who are convinced that prevention is the best cure for the worsening crime rate disease in North Carolina.

Haywood Starling, director of the State Bureau of Investigation, believes that a number of different approaches are critical to regaining the upper hand over criminals. Qualified law enforcement officers, prosecutors and judges are important.

Churches, schools and homes "have a role and responsibility in the solution," he says.

"Both the problem and the solution are many times found in the home. The early home life of a child has a strong influence on the behavior of that child throught out life," Starling writes in a message printed in the monthly publication of the N.C. Motor Carriers Association, "Tar Heel Wheels."

"Love, affection and proper and andequate discipline in the home life of the child are essential and are directly related to whether the child becomes a law abiding citizen," Starling writes.

Starling then turns to crime prevention: "While swift apprehension, conviction, and adequate punishment for the criminal violator is the most effective deterrent to crime, preventing crime before it occurs is a more desirable approach."

Can individual citizens do anything? Yes — set an example of obedience to law, seek facts about crime, take steps to avoid becoming a victim of crime, and support good law enforcement, Starling says.

"Only when all segments of our society, including the home, churches, schools and the lawmaking bodies begin a concentrated effort will we have found the real answer to the crime problem," he concludes.

Not that it likely means anything significant, but some court observers are wondering if Gov. Jim Hunt is packing North Carolina's highest court with fellow easterners.

When Supreme Court Justice J. Frank Huskins left the bench earlier this year, he was the last member of the highest tribunal born and reared west of Raleigh. Huskins was from Yancey County.

His replacement, Burley B. Mitchell Jr., is a native of Raleigh. Chief Justice Joe Branch is from Halifax and William Copeland is a native of Hertford. David Britt was born in Robeson County and Phil Carlton is a native of Edgecome living now in Pine Level in Johnston County. Louis Meyer is from Wilson, and James G. Exum Jr. hails from Snow HIll in Greene County although he lived in Greensboro in his adult years.

War Games Could Be A Con Job

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Secret preparations for Warsaw Pact maneuvers in and around Poland tentatively set for mid-March are being made in Moscow not with the aim of intimidating Poland, but as part of this overriding communist strategy: Frighten the West out of applying economic pressures against Warsaw's military dictatorship.

The maneuvers are designed to carry one step further the con job against the U.S. and its western allies. The disinformative message warns the west that if it fails to send economic help, Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski's "moderate" communist regime will be taken over by pro-Soviet "hardliners."

Herein lies the last great hope of Jaruzelski and the Kremlin to persuade the West that Prime Minister Jaruzelski's declaration of martial law last Dec. 13 was strictly a Polish decision to avoid outright Soviet military intervention. Another round of Warsaw Pact maneuvers will send a new shock of fear throughout Western Europe, building sentiment to save Jaruzelski with massive economic aid.

The con job on the West is reaching extravagant proportions. The "moderate" faction in the Polish Politburo has secretly given Western reporters in Poland the "manifesto" of the hard-line faction of the Politburo. The message of the "moderates": If the west abandons us, a return to Stalinism is certain.

As usual, the tone was set by Warsaw's "moderate" front man facing westward: Deputy Prime Minister Mieczyslaw Rakowski, who protested emotionally in his interview with Oriana Fallaci. "It isn't true that we had been preparing the martial law operations for months," Rakowski exclaimed. His perfervid protests to Fallaci ("Believe me, please believe me, on the internal matters we are more free than you think.") had one purpose: Convince the west that Jaruzelski is truly a Polish patriot, not a Soviet stooge.

Yet documents now available here tell a different story. One such document, decisively giving the lie to Rakowski's denial of long preparation, is an unpublished account of an incident last Sept. 30, witnessed by a clandestine Solidarity leader who held an official position in the Communist Party.

He reported that a secret six-man committee of "national salvation" headed by Jaruzelski and Czeslaw Kiszczak, who runs the internal security forces, had been formed to suppress "popular resistance." The undercover Solidarity man reported that "the leadership of the party and government would wait another two months before using special units of the army and militia" to impose martial law. That pinpointed precisely the Dec. 13 declaration of martial law.

The imposition of martial law has failed to bring the revival of Polano's economy that Jaruzelski promised. Despite the running commentary from Jaruzelski that strikes have virtually ended and production is reaching new heights, only coal production is on or ahead of schedule. The reason is twofold: industrial sabotage and lack of credit to buy spare parts, raw materials and energy sources. The first large shipment of Polish-built tractors since Dec. 13 recently arrived in Sweden. Although Sweden has said nothing publicly, none of the tractors worked right.

All this makes the case for Western credits to do a job neither the Soviet Union nor any of its Eastern European allies can come close to doing.

Sometimes, Bubbles Can Be Stimulating

WASHINGTON — Constitutional pots are bubbling again on Capitol Hill. The balance-the-budget amendment will be served up in the Senate toward the end of March. Amendments dealing with abortion and school prayer are waiting in committee pantries. Talk is heard of a highly improbable constitutional convention.

All this is stimulating stuff — stimulating, that is, if one loves to drink at the fountains of constitutional debate. My own hope is that most of the current argument will go the way of bubbles of champagne.

S.J.R. 58, proposing an amendment to the Constitution "altering federal budget procedures," came out of the Senate Judiciary Committee last summer with only a single dissenting vote. Max Baucus of Montana thought the Constitution should not be amended simply to resolve problems that really require "only a modicum of discipline by the Congress." Arlen Specter of Pennsylvania went along with the crowd, but he made murmuring noises. He had "very serious reservations about the approach and substance of this proposal."

Baucus and Specter are better cooks than their collegial chefs who compounded this indigestible stew. The pending resolution has an admirable purpose. After all, who could oppose the goal of a balanced federal budget? The principle of "pay as we go" has been a leading political principle for nearly 200 years. Nearly everyone gives at least lip service to it.

But ends are one thing and means quite another. This amendment is in trouble from its very first sentence: "Prior to each fiscal year, the Congress shall adopt a statement of receipts and outlays for that year in which total outlays are no greater than totol receipts." The sentence is disarmingly simple.

Note what we are talking about. We are talking about a "statement." Statements of prospective receipts and outlays may be endlessly amended; indeed, up to the moment of adoption, such statements ought to be constantly amended, the better to adjust budgetary predictions to economic realities. The budget that Mr. Reagan sent to the Hill three weeks ago attempts to fix revenues and expenditures through Sept. 30, 1983. This is guesswork; it is guesswork in the mold of the butter with which the March Hare oiled the Mad Hatter's watch — the best butter and the best guesswork, but some crumbs get in.

The amendment attempts to remove some of the elements of guesswork. Receipts in this magical statement "shall not increase by a rate greater than the rate of increase in national income in the last calendar year ending before such fiscal year." What is this talisman of "national income"? It is a figment of statistical imagination, a popover index, crisp on the outside, hollow within.

Semantics to one side, the proposed amendment has even more serious flaws. The precious "statement" may be waived by a three-fifths vote of both houses. If the amendment were operative today, the Congress would be compelled to adopt such a waiver. There is no way under moon or sun that a balanced budget could be adopted for 1983 without ruinous taxation or intolerable reductions in outlays for defense and for social programs. The amendment would erect paper barricades, creating a false sense of fiscal responsibility.

Finally, the amendment contains no mechanisms for enforcement. "The Congress and the President shall ensure that outlays do not exceed the outlays set forth in such statement." Can anyone tell us how this process of ensuring is to be assured? By court order? By a helter-skelter rush to vote overnight tax increases whenever receipts lag behind outlays?

The pending amendment has impressive support. Nearly half the senators have lined up behind it. Such respected figures in the private sector as economist Milton Friedman have endorsed it. The National Tax-Limitation Committee has just launched a high-powered lobbying campaign in the amendment's behalf. These voices notwithstanding, Senator Baucus's quiet objection still makes greater sense. A cumbersome amendment, easily evaded, will not get us out of the pits of deficit spending. Only self-discipline will.

To the editor:

Everyone has an inner desire and need for love — affection and high regard of at least one other human being. There are many unfortunate people who feel the sting of lack of affection from early childhood on. Much of what in older people appears to be degenerative disease is in fact functional disease, resulting from lonesomeness, futility, despair and sadness that have become the closest companions of their nights and days. Freud said man wants most of all to be loved; Adler, to be significant; Jung, security. All are valid. Man is complex and needs many things.

Another basic need of mankind is creative expression, whether it's the child building with blocks, the housewife making curtains, the financier planning a new hold corporation, the girl writing poetry, the carpenter building a house. All have the satisfying feeling that, out of raw materials, they are creating something new. But more importantly, there is in everyone the need to feel that he and his efforts are being appreciated — appreciated by those for whom we strive. Often a man may leave a perfectly good position because he feels his efforts are not properly appreciated. Consider the unthanked homemaker, the unthanked oldster. Appreciate your child, but don't spoil him.

The need for new experiences is important. Dull, monotonous routine develops unpleasant emotions and functional disease. Take that trip, if it's no more than to the market. So many people lose every vestige of self-esteem. They look upon themselves as failures in every respect. There is nothing more to do, no worth, no importance, no ability, no judgment, no future, no past except guilt and failure. What can we do? 1. Receive love of others. 2. Have security. 3. Exercise creative expression in work, hobbies. 4. Receive recognition of any of your fellow men. 5. Have new experiences. 5. Have self-esteem. Remember — "You are just as good as I am, and we are just as good as they are, God bless them!

To the editor;

I am concerned about the effects of some proposed federal funding cuts in President Reagan's 1983 budget on the quality of education in the Greenville City Schools. Two federally subsidized programs affecting many Greenville students are authorized under PL 94-192, the law requiring education of handicapped children, and Title I of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act, the title and law providing remedial reading and mathematics instruction for 1,200 of Greenville's 4,900 students.

Currently, there is a federal allotment of $205 per handicapped child provided to public schools to help defray the cost of federally required special education services. Two years ago, the per-handicapped-child federal allotment was over $300. The proposed federal cut in overall PL 94-142 funds is from $900 million to $846 million.

If the $205 allotment per handicapped child is cut, the funding loss to Greenville will be significant since the number and percentage of handicapped children in Greenville is rising at a rate greater than the number of students lost annually due to a declining enrollment. Last year, in order to continue to meet PL 94-142 requirements as well as to serve all children, The Greenville School administrators eliminated three professional and eight aide positions from Greenville's program for exceptional children.

The ESEA Title I funds serve over one-fifth of Greenville's students through remedial reading and mathematics instruction. The remedial reading program for first graders was eliminated last year because of Title I cuts. Projected Title I cuts are 23 percent to 50 percent, depending on which budget line item one attempts to interpret in terms of direct aid to children.

Citizens who share my concerns about the effects of these proposed federal funding cuts on all Greenville City School children should contact Senators Jesee Helms and John East and Congressman Walter Jones in Washington immediately.

In reference to the letter concerning people who hit animals and fail to stop to find the owner. I realize, also, that a person should try to find the owner of any animal that he might run over; however, the owners of these animals should attempt to keep their pets off the streets. In March 1981, my girlfriend and I were nearly killed when our car overturned while trying to avoid hitting someone's "beloved pet." If someone sees an animal run down on purpose, please notify the authorities at once. Also, if someone sees an animal wandering on the streets, please call the animal control officers. The roads are made for cars, not animals. Your call might save the animal's life and also the life of some compassionate soul who might otherwise die while trying to avoid someone's "beloved pet."

To the editor:

Oh, say can you see ...? Wait! The "star-spangled banner" is missing! Yes, I proudly hailed it (and many others) until an unexpected "visitor," perhaps in the "terror of the night," no longer wanted it to catch "the gleam of the morning's first beam" at our home. I hope that star-spangled banner yet waves, nevertheless, "O'er the land of the free (my sweet America), and the home of the brave," which is sometimes daring.

Thank you, just the same, Congressman Walter Jones, for arranging three years ago to get me "the broad stripes and bright stars" which had flown over the capital city! Just before Christmas, I proudly displayed it to replace the the faded one I had flown too long!

"Praise the Pow'r that hath made" the person who took it and in God may we both trust, forever and ever!

Unity?

By MAXWELL GLEN and CODY SHEARER

WASHINGTON — It's been over a year since 52 eager young Republicans arrived here to act as Ronald Reagan's guerrillas in his revolution against government excesses.

Dominated by "true believers," the GOP House freshmen (average age, 42) were Reagan's biggest boosters during congressiol battles over the president's tax and budget proposals.

"We pressured senior members to make the hard decisions'" recalled Rep. Judd Gregg, a 35-year-old former lawyer from New Hampshire. "It wasn't going to be business as usual."

But paranoia has beset Reagan's robots. To their dismay, the national economy hasn't lived up to the president's promises; meanwhile, Reagan now proposes both higher budget deficits and deeper cuts in social programs.

For many of the freshmen, it's as if their fleet-footed quarterback is running toward the wrong goal. Accordingly, they are finding it sensible to line up as far away from Reagan as possible, if only to avoid serious injury. The GOP's unity has been shattered.

On one side of the disjointed field are such frosh as Rep. Lawrence J. DeNardis, a "gypsy moth" from Connecticut. Like other Republicans from Northern and urban districts, he's seeing his House membership jeopardized by damage from the economic program he endorsed last summer. Now DeNardis wants to cut into Reagan's defense proposals, add more money to certain social programs and repeal some of last year's tax giveaways to business.

"We can't support the president's budget as proposed," DeNardis recently told the Baltimore Sun. "If he puts it in terms of 'take it or leave it,' about 25 of us are going to leave it."

Lurking on the other side of the field are the true believers, who are most horrified by the size of the projected 1983 federal deficit. How can balanced-budget advocates look anything but foolish when their inspirational guru doesn't seem to take budget deficits seriously anymore?

Rep. Denny Smith, a newspaper publisher from Oregon, has so far provided the purists with an alternative. He's prompted 11 other House Republicans (not all of whom are first-termers) to sign a Feb. 5 letter urging Reagan to freeze spending levels for all federal programs — including defense — at 1982 levels. "Such a proposal is simplistic," Smith conceded, "but you need to keep it that way to pass Congress.

Smith won't deny the political expediency of such an alternative. When he could be one of the estimated 40 House Republicans unseated in November, Smith knows that loyalty to the president is a sometime thing. Smith's constituents sent him to Washington to do something about interest rates, and he, at least, aims to keep his promises.

According to Rep. Gregg, many GOP freshmen have no choice but to strike out on their own. "We went to the wall and didn't ask for anything in return," he said. Then, "we saw that the administration took us for granted. Now we're being put on a limb, and the limb is being cut." The White House's lack of sympathy is leaving them embittered: A meeting with Reagan's staff two weeks ago turned into a shouting match, said Gregg.

Had Gregg and the gang not swallowed Reagan's program so readily last summer, we might sympathize with their disillusionment. Yet they might have expected such blinded me-tooism in 1981 to catch up with them eventually. By wiping their hands of yesterday's simplemindedness today, they only risk appearing opportunistic or spineless, or both.

We won't underestimate the difficulty Republicans had in challenging Reagan wisdom last year. Yet it may be too much to maintain political consistency when it might mean giving up, among other congressional perks, subsidized parking, meals and haircuts, athletic facilities, foreign junkets and a listing in the "Green Book" of Washington's most eligible partygoers. In their first term, freshmen have also won themselves a $10,000 automatic tax deduction on their $60,662.50 salary as well as higher limits on earnings from outside speeches and awards.

Perhaps it just takes time for the realities of congressional life to impress a rookie. But a year after their arrival, the simpleminded guerrillas are proving to be just another motley crop of self-serving politicians.

Interesting People

Noel Yancey

Looking back on nearly half a century of news reporting, one of the highlights has to be the five days I spent at Nags Head in December 1953 covering the 50th anniversary of the Wright Brothers' first flight.

One of the cliches about newspapering is the saying that "You meet such interesting people." That was certainly true of the group which assembled at a Nags Head hotel for the airplane's 50th birthday party.

These ranged from Leontine Wright Jameson, a neice of the two Dayton, Ohio, bicycle mechanics who taught the world to fly, to Brig. Gen. Frank P. Lahm (Ret.), who became the nation's first military pilot after taking lessons from the Wrights.

Mrs. Jameson told of flying with her uncle Orville Wright in 1911 after she had written him saying her ambition was to be the first little girl in the world to fly.

She told reporters that the Wright family had so much faith in the abilities of their kinsmen and was so certain they would succeed that the family members "were not even particularly excited" when the word came on Dec. 17, 1903, that Orville Wright had flown their flimsy cloth and wooden craft with its primitive gasoline engine a distance of 120 feet in 12 seconds.

Mrs. Jameson firmly squelched the claim of a Dayton citizen that the Wrights' first powered flight occured near Dayton some time before the 1903 flight at Kill Devil Hills, near Kitty Hawk. The man told reporters he had seen the brothers fly near Dayton at an earlier date.

"I think he was confused," she said. "He may have seen one of the later flights and became mixed up about the dates."

One of the tidbits of news that I learned at the celebration and duly reported was that Wilbur Wright had actually flown the Kitty Hawk the first time on Dec. 14, 1903 — three days before they claimed to have made the epochal first flight. Wilbur, who had won a toss for the honor of making the first flight, actually got the Kitty Hawk off the ground for 3½ seconds that day. But that was not good enough for the Wrights.

"You can put an engine on a barn door and make it go into the air. The real problem, the real achievement, is to keep it there, under control," he explained afterward. The Kitty Hawk was slightly damaged in that first try, and the brothers did not complete the repairs until Dec. 17 when they made four flights. First Orville took the Kitty Hawk aloft for 12 seconds, and finally Wilbur flew it 852 feet in 59 seconds.

None of the participants or witnesses to the first flight lived to attend that 50th anniversary celebration, but the widows of two coastguardsmen, who assisted the Wrights at times and were present for the first flight, did attend. Mrs. Adam Ethridge Swindell, widow of Adam Etheridge, told reporters of watching the brothers in their earlier flight attempts and glider experiments from her home nearby.

"We all thought how foolish they were," she said.

Although generals and admirals, U.S. senators and congressmen and state officials joined airmen for the celebration, the thing that thrilled the crowd of 5,000 that braved the frigid weather to attend, was an awe-inspiring air show that might easily have drawn a crowd of 50,000 if it had been staged in a metropolitan area on a summer day.

The notables definitely played second fiddle to the myriads of aircraft and the men who flew them. From helicopters to sleek supersonic fighters, from a 1912 model open cockpit pusher type plane to a B-47 Stratojet bomber, to a 60-passenger airliner which had just set a new coast-to-coast speed record, the planes roared over the 60-foot granite pylon erected on Kill Devil Hill to honor the Wrights.

A high spot of the show came at 12:15 p.m. when a British Canberra jet photo-reconnaissance plane dipped its wings over the Wright Memorial. Its crew members had breakfast in Ireland. But the most spectacular show of the day was staged by the "Thunderbirds," the Air Force's precision fliying team. The four pilots put on a nerve-tingling act with their 550-mph Thunderjets executing hair-raising maneuvers with the planes flying only five feet apart in a diamond formation.

The sleek new planes did not completely steal the show, however. They had to share the spotlight with Billy Parker of Bartlesville, Okla. Parker, cold and red-cheeked and chomping on an unlighted cigar, took off in the bitter wind in his 1912 homemade pusher plane—the nearest thing to the Wrights' plane then flying — and did a re-enactment of the first flight. He circled his craft around the markers which show where Orville and Wilbur made their flights.

At a luncheon which followed the airshow, Fred C. Kelly, a biographer of the Wrights, posed a tantalizing "if." He recalled that he had once asked Orville Wright if he and Wilbur had ever become discouraged during their aviation experiments. Orville replied that they had. It was in 1901, but it was not related to problems in aerodynamics.

"It was the mosquitoes," Orville told Kelly. He explained that mosquitoes were so bad that year that he and Wilbur nearly decided, more than once, to return home.

"What if they had gone home?" Kelly asked. "What would it have meant to the future course of aviation?" He left the question unanswered.

John Cunniff

NEW YORK (AP) — Cheer up. In case you may have lost sight of it in the tumult, the economic goal of the Reagan administration is to return the economy to a motivated, innovative, productive private sector ...

... A sector that produces the goods and provides the services that will enable you to enjoy more health and wealth at relatively less cost, and with little need to cut into your neighbor's share.

A big ambition. Indeed a vast ideal in view of the economic drift of 50 years, an ideal that occasionally elicits cynicism from those who view themselves as adrift in a small lifeboat in a big and stormy sea.

But, yes, there may be some small signs on the horizon. William Dunkelberg, a Purdue University economist and small-business consultant, thinks he has spotted a little speck out there, and he thinks it will grow.

Dunkelberg believes that a leaner, more efficient and more competitive economy could be developing, one in which people are more alert, more attentive to business, less wasteful, more willing to do more with less.

The professor, who interprets responses to quarterly surveys by the Federation of Independent Business, a 500,000-member organization, says he has found revealing figures in first-quarter 1982 results.

Two records were set: The greatest number of respondents who said they had lowered prices from the previous quarter, and the lowest number who said they had posted higher prices. And something of the same sort was found in the January consumer price index, which rose only 3.5 percent.

Obviously, said Dunkelberg, "there is more downward flexibility than we might have thought." Despite complaints that it couldn't be done, he said, businesses have managed to cut some more. Efficiency is up.

The consequences of it are intriquing, as Dunkelberg explained.

"A lot of people said that growth projections for 1982 couldn't be realized," he said, alluding to the widespread belief that the big federal deficit would sop up capital needed for expansion by business. But, he said, this might be offset by business and labor learning to do more with less. In other words, by being more productive.

Productivity is almost a synonym for efficiency. If business costs fall, for example, production is obtained at lower per unit costs. And already, Dunkelberg notes, production prices have been falling.

The mood of both business and labor will help. "Business is leaner and meaner," he observes. "Business people are much more careful." On top of this, he continues, there have been major changes in work rules and compensation. Labor, he notes, has made major concessions.

And then there is the tax cut, the impact of which has not been fully felt and which would seem to have growing impact later in the year. That too should help make the private sector stronger and productive.

Finally, Dunkelberg points out, "if you look at a typical recovery it is almost aways accompanied by increased productivity." Greater productivity, he suggests, is in the very nature of economic recovery.

George Gallup POLL

PRINCETON, N.J. — Despite the deepening recession, President Reagan's popularity has leveled off, with 47 percent in the latest survey approving of his job performance, not significantly changed from his approval ratings since early December.

Three key factors may have helped stabilize the president's overall popularity rating in recent weeks from the much higher levels of last summer.

(1) There is continuing high public regard for President Reagan as a person: 70 percent of Americans now approve of Reagan, the man, close to the 73 percent recorded in November and not far below the 78 percent favorable assessment in the first Gallup test, last July.

(2) Reagan gets relatively high marks for his handling of national defense and our relations with the Soviet Union: 55 percent now approve of the president's handling of national defense, while 49 percent approve of his conduct of our relations with the Soviets.

(3) Although Reagan's ratings for dealing with the nation's economy, inflation and unemployment are far below his earlier scores, the precipitous declines suffered since last summer have leveled out.

Ratings Below Most Of Predecessors

Although the president's overall approval rating has held steady in recent weeks, it is close to the score given Carter at a similar period and below those of three other elected predecessors, Richard Nixon, John Kennedy and Dwight Eisenhower.

Here are the ratings given the five most recent elected presidents in February of their second year in office:

Presidental Approval Ratings
(February, Second Year)

Reagan	47%
Carter	49
Nixon	60
Kennedy	78
Eisenhower	69
AVERAGE	61

Following is the question asked to measure public attitudes toward the president's overall performance:

"Do you approve or disapprove of the way Ronald Reagan is handling his job as president?"

Here is a selected trend:

Reagan Approval Ratings — Overall

	Approve	Disapprove	No opinion
LATEST (Feb. 5-8)	47%	43%	10%

A comparison of the public's early 1981 ratings of Reagan's handling of specific problems with those accorded him in the latest survey shows much greater losses on economic issues than on those associated with national defense and foreign affairs, as shown below:

Snow Leaves Four Dead In Sweep Across Dixie

By DAVID L. LANGFORD
Associated Press Writer

A Dixie storm smothered a hint of spring with foot-deep snow, sleet and crippling ice that left thousands without power, four dead and many injured Saturday in a sweep from Arkansas to Virginia.

"People are hurt all over the place," said Jeanne Hutchins, a police dispatcher in Greenville, S.C., where roads had iced over by rush hour Friday evening, making driving chaotic. "We have ambulances going everywhere. It's just bumper-to-bumper traffic."

The storm in the Southeast dumped 10 inches of snow in the Ouachita Mountains of Arkansas, 12 inches in Maggie Valley in western North Carolina, 9 inches of sleet and snow in the mountains of northern Georgia and 10 inches of snow in the Roanoke and Salem areas of southern Virginia.

As the storm moved across the southern Appalachians, other accumulations included 7 inches at Lynchburg, Va.; 6 inches at Danville, Va.; 5 inches at Asheville, N.C., and Bluefield, W.Va., and 3 inches at Greensboro, N.C., and Beckley, W.Va.

"It was a typical snow situation for the Southeast," said Dick Mitchell, a meteorologist at the Greenville-Spartanburg Airport in South Carolina. "We had a low-pressure system forming in the Gulf of Mexico, throwing moisture into the cold, high-pressure system moving down from Canada. That's a bad combination."

In Atlanta, where forecasters had predicted a coating of ice an inch thick, about 30,000 homes went dark as trees limbs weighted with ice fell on power lines. Another 1,500 to 3,000 homes were without power in Rome, Lawrenceville, Dacula, Jonesboro and LaGrange.

Kathy Harber, spokeswoman for Georgia Power Co., said she could not estimate when power would be restored to all the homes. A force of 1,600 utility employees worked on the problem.

In Alabama, rain that had brought relief from wildfires that had claimed more than 25,000 acres of timber froze during the night in the northeastern part of the state. It felled trees and ripped down utility lines, blacking out 8,000 homes in the Fort Payne area of Lookout Mountain and blocking most secondary roads.

"The boys who are working out there on Lookout Mountain are having to saw trees to get in," said Bill Dobbs, operations superintendent for the Sand Mountain Electric Cooperative.

"It's kind of like a cat eating at a grindstone. It could take us three or four days to get everybody hooked back up."

Icy roads were blamed from three fatal traffic accidents in South Carolina and one in Georgia on Friday and Saturday.

The South Carolina Highway Patrol reported several hundred traffic accidents from a combination of ice and up to 4 inches of snow.

A bus carrying nine members of a Hilton Head Island girls' high school basketball team slid off an icy bridge into a ravine on S.C. Highway 278 near Allandale about 9:30 p.m. Friday, injuring the girls and their coach.

Highway Patrolman C.H. Ellis said Interstate 85, which runs through the western corner of the state, was "covered in wrecks."

A Greenville County Emergency Medical Service ambulance wrecked while responding to a rush-hour call but there were no injuries.

Henrietta Brandt, the National Weather Service observer in Walhalla, S.C., said temperatures in her town dropped from 78 degrees on Wednesday to 28 degrees on Friday.

"We all thought it was springtime," she said.

In northeastern Illinois, floodwaters from the Kankakee River at Wilmington had receded almost two feet but the threat of ice damage forced officials to shut down three river bridges. Wilmington olice Sgt. Howard Young reported "little change" in the flood situation.

Ice chucks up to 20 inches thick on the Illinois River north of Peoria threatened pilings that support houses on the river bank and disrupted river traffic. Water was up to the levees in Peoria, but authorities said only a few basements had been flooded.

Hope For Early Spring Exits

By United Press International

North Carolinians wishing for an early spring saw their hopes buried Saturday under up to 12 inches of snow, sleet and freezing rain that blanketed the state.

The National Weather Service posted winter storm warnings for the mountains, but later downgraded them to travelers advisories in the Piedmont and mountains because of ice-slickened roads.

Conditions were expected to worsen before they got better. The NWS said colder air being brought in after the storm front passes could trigger snowfalls of six or more inches across the central and southern mountains and four or more inches in the northern mountains.

Forecasters said conditions will improve on Sunday, when skies would gradully crear and temperatures would climb into the forties.

The storm slid across the state from the southern mountains Friday and then headed east, dumping 12 inches of snow in Maggie Valley, 7 inches in Alleghany County, 5 to 6 inches in Stokes and Surry counties, and four inches across the foothills in Burke County.

Accumulations in the Charlotte area ranged from one to four inches. Wilmington and Greensboro reported traces of snow, while Raleigh suffered with a combination of rain and sleet mixed with a few snowflakes.

Several thousand Fayetteville residents shivered without electricity for nearly three hours early Saturday as temperatures dipped into the 20s. Officials said a power failure that began at 12:30 a.m. was caused by a static line burning in half.

Officials said the line fell on top of a power station, knocking out several other units. Power was restored about 3:15 a.m.

The snow prompted western North Carolina authorities to recommend driving only if vehicles have snow tires or chains.

The storm was especially disheartening in that it came just a few days after temperatures soared to record highs across much of the state. Fayetteville, which enjoyed a high of 86 Wednesday, was one of the first areas in the state to see snowflakes Friday.

The storm forced the cancelation of Saturday's sportsman's race at North Carolina Motor Speedway in Rockingham. Meanwhile, owners of at least one ski resort opened their slopes after having closed for the season.

Utilities Win Rate Increases

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — Despite questions by the chairman of the state Utilities Commission about a law allowing fuel adjustments, the panel granted increases for the state's two major utilities and allowed a reduction for a third.

The increases granted Friday will take effect April 1. They will make a typical residential bill for a customer of Carolina Power & Light Co. the highest among the state's three major untilities.

The commission granted Carolina Power and Light Co. an increase of $2.32 per 1,000 kilowatt hours. Spokesman Mac Harris said the adjustment will increase the typical consumer's April bill to $63.60 cents from $61.28.

The commission ordered Vepco, which has traditionally had the highest utility rates of those serving North Carolina, to roll back its rates $4.86 per 1,000 kilowatt hours.

The rollback would decrease the typical customer's bill from $66.82 to $61.96 for the billing period from April through July.

Nick Parham, a spokesman for Vepco in Roanoke Rapids, said the company requested the reduction because "increased generation from our nuclear plants and improved performance from our coal-fired plants had enabled us to lower fuel costs."

The commission granted Duke Power Co. an increase of $2.49 per 1,000 kilowatt hours. Spokesman Alex Coffin said that will increase the typical customer's bill to $56.68 per 1,000 kilowatt hours for the April to July period, up from $54.19.

Commission chairman Dr. Leigh H. Hammond, in a statement attached to the unanimous ruling, said he had questions about the fuel adjustment law similar to those raised by the commission's consumer-advocate Public Staff and the North Carolina Textile Manfacturers Association.

The two had asked the commmission to dismiss rate increases proposed by CP&L and Duke Power Co., arguing the rate adjustments were needed because of poor nuclear plant performance instead of fuel cost changes.

Hijackers, Police In Stalemate

STANSTED, England (AP) — Four armed hijackers of a Tanzanian jetliner issued a threat Saturday to blow up the plane with about 90 hostages aboard if security forces approached. Police officials announced they would not let the plane take off.

Essex Chief Constable Robert Bunyard told a news conference the gunmen "indicated they intend to blow up the airplane if there is any activity around it. For that reason we have stopped people going near the plane."

He said a demand from the hijackers that the Boeing 737 be refueled had been refused and added, "It is my intention to sit this out. It is not my intention to allow this airplane to leave this airport."

Police said firetrucks were blocking the runway.

Tanzania's high commissioner to London, Amon J. Nsekela, arrived at the airport in Stansted, 30 miles northeast of London, to talk with the gunmen and Bunyard said "this took things very little further forward." He said police were negotiating to get food on board for the passengers and crew.

A pregnant woman and a child were freed earlier in the day by the hijackers, who are demanding the removal of Tanzania's socialist leader, President Julius Nyerere.

Armed police remained near the the blue and gold Air Tanzania jet that was moved twice after landing here Saturday afternoon.

The hijackers, reportedly armed with pistols, submachine guns and hand grenades, had commandeered the plane Friday while it was on a domestic flight over Tanzania. They forced it to make refueling stops in Nairobi, Kenya; Jidda, Saudi Arabia, and Athens, Greece, before it arrived here.

It was first parked at an isolated end of the runway but then taxied near the terminal building, at the hijackers' demand, and late Saturday moved farther away from the terminal.

Bunyard said the atmosphere was "relatively calm, and we shall do nothing to change that."

Police ordered reporters from the terminal just before Nsekela arrived.

A Defense Ministry spokesman said "there are contingency plans involving military units. We will react to these plans if we are asked to."

Press Association, Britain's domestic news agency, said about six members of the Special Air Service regiment were "standing by." SAS commandos stormed the Iranian Embassy in London in 1980 to end a six-day occupation by gunmen.

Police said they could not confirm a report in the early edition of the London Sunday Telegraph that the hijackers warned officials there were bombs at every door of the jet.

When the plane landed from Athens, the hijackers demanded to see British Foreign Secretary Lord Carrington; Nsekela, Tanzania's top diplomat here, and a dissident Tanzanian exile. Carrington was in Kenya, however.

The hijackers had released eight other hostages on previous stops before freeing the pregnant woman and child here.

The British Broadcasting Corp. reported that an ambulance carrying two attendants drove up to the aircraft and removed the woman after the hijackers said she was very ill and crying.

She and the child were taken to a hospital where a spokesman said both were "satisfactory and cheerful."

Airport officials said it was believed all remaining passengers were Tanzanians.

There were conflicting reports about whether any hostages had been injured since the hijacking began.

Aide Says Reagan Willing To Delay Welfare Shifts

By DON McLEOD
AP Political Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan is willing to postpone making the states take over the country's basic welfare programs under his "new federalism" plan, his top aide on the issue says.

But Richard Williamson also said in a interview that state and local leaders must be willing at least to discuss the welfare component if there is to be any agreement on federalism legislation that would turn other functions over to the states.

The nation's governors said last week they like Reagan's suggestion that Washington take over Medicaid, the program of health care for the needy which is now jointly funded by federal, state and county governments.

But they asked him to defer giving states the responsibility for food stamps and Aid to Families with Dependent Children.

"The president has a very heavy presumption toward this swap that he outlined," said Williamson, the president's adviser on intergovernmental affairs. "But politics is a moveable feast. He isn't shutting the door."

"There are going to be some tough decisions at the end, and maybe the program will be altered dramatically from what the president had ...," he said.

Williamson told reporters in a session in his office last week that general agreement on other tradeoff programs such as transportation, education and job training could provide the basis for a compromise.

"The president has not drawn a line in the sand on any given component of his package, and neither have the governors, the legislators, the mayors or county officials, township officials," he said. "The first stage in getting an accord for enabling legislation is to deal with those issues of common ground. So, we will work on those first."

The governors have said that if Reagan agrees to move forward on federal assumption of Medcaid, they would accept responsibility for current federal programs of comparable cost.

The White House and the National Governors Association have named negotiating teams to come up with a formula to present to Congress. Their first bargaining session is expected later this week.

Speedy agreement on a beginning for the "new federalism" is considered essential. Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker, R-Tenn., went so far as to predict last week that the massive swap of programs would not occur if nothing is enacted this year.

But despite concessions from both sides in a week jammed with meetings between the administration and state and local officials, the welfare part of the formula remains the main sticking point.

Reagan has long believed that welfare should go to the local level, where it can best be targeted to the "truly needy."

The governors, however, have a long-standing official policy opposing any move to push welfare off on the states. They want Washington to take over all income security programs, contending that unemployment and poverty created by national economic trends are a national responsibility.

Bomb Kills 8 In Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A Volkswagen packed with about 110 pounds of TNT rigged to a timer blew up Saturday near a Syrian army checkpoint in Moslem West Beirut, killing eight civilians and wounding 35, police said.

It was the second car bombing in the area in five days and was claimed by the same group, the Front for the Liberation of Lebanon from Foreigners. A double car-bomb blast Tuesday killed 12 people and wounded more than 30.

Saturday's bombing erupted outside a lumber warehouse and not far from a Moslem orphanage and crowded sandwich shop. The warehouse was devastated but no casualties were reported in the orphanage or sandwich shop.

Police also said a dozen Syrian sentries manning the checkpoint near the scene of the explosion, on the Mediterranean highway linking Beirut to southern Lebanon, escaped injury.

"Most of the victims were from passing cars and workers in the warehouse. Among the eight dead, four were burned beyond recognition," a police spokesman said.

An Arabic-speaking telephone caller told the Beirut office of a Western news agency that the Front for the Liberation of Lebanon from Foreigners was responsible for the bombing.

The caller said the bombing attacks will continue until April 28. He did not explain the date but it would be several days after Israel withdraws from the last portion of the Sinai Desert it took from Egypt in the 1967 war.

The anonymous caller also said the Front's bombings would include "the liberated areas" of Lebanon where, he said, "the Sri Lankans are continuing their advance."

He did not elaborate. The reference to the Sri Lankans appeared to be to an influx of housemaids and workers from that Indian Ocean nation to Christian-populated areas controlled by the Christian Phalange Party.

The Front, which claims the 22,000-man Syrian peacekeeping force in Lebanon as well as Yasser Arafat's Palestinian guerrillas are occupation armies, took responsibility for car bombings last year that killed more than 200 people in Lebanon.

Israel Seals Off Sinai, Gaza

YAD MORDECHAI, Israel (AP) — Israeli troops and police sealed ff the Sinai Peninsula and Gaza Strip on Saturday to prevent opponents of Israel's Sinai withdrawal from reinforcing stubborn settlers.

Long lines of cars and trucks backed up outside Kibbutz Yad Mordechai, 40 miles south of Tel Aviv, despite repeated announcements on Israel Radio that Gaza and Sinai were closed to all except legitimate residents.

Israelis who had planned to do Sabbath shopping or business in Gaza mingled in the roadway with Palestinian Arabs from the occupied West Bank who also were blocked from entering Gaza. Eventually most turned back from the barriers, which were patrolled by police and armed Israeli soldiers.

The military command in Tel Aviv said outsiders were being kept out of the Sinai "as a result of a government decision to prevent an additional influx of people whose purpose is to disrupt law and order including clashes with Israeli soldiers."

CBO Says Reagan Program Hits Poor

By BARTON REPPERT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Families with incomes below $20,000 will suffer almost two-thirds of the social program cutbacks while getting only 15 percent of the tax savings under President Reagan's economic plan, the Congressional Budget Office said Saturday.

In a detailed analysis of the administration's economic program, the CBO said about 85 percent of estimated tax savings for individuals in calendar year 1983 would go to households with incomes over $20,000.

The analysis also estimated that during fiscal years 1982-84, "about 60 percent of the savings from reductions in grants to state and local governments will come from programs targeted toward low-income individuals or those receiving public assistance."

The findings provide fresh ammunition for congressional Democrats and some Republican "Gypsy Moths" from the economically hard-hit Northeast and Midwest who charge that Reagan's approach is unfairly skewed to aid higher-income families.

Over-all, the CBO said, the administration's program would mean an average net loss of $240 for households with income less than $10,000 in 1983 and an average net gain of $15,130 for the 1.2 percent of U.S. households with incomes of $80,000 or more.

The nonpartisan congressional agency said net gains were expected to average $220 next year for households earning $10,000 to $20,000; $810 for those in the $20,000 to $40,000 range, and $1,700 for households with incomes of $40,000 to $80,000.

About 22.5 percent of all American households have incomes of less than $10,000 and another 24.8 percent are in the $10,000 to $20,000 range, the report said. It estimated that 35.2 percent are in the $20,000 to $40,000 income range while 16.3 percent are in the $40,000 to $80,000 range.

The report, however, cautioned that "the analysis does not include any assumed macroeconomic impact of the tax and benefit reductions."

Administration officials, adopting the views of "supply side" economists, have contended their program of slashing both taxes and non-defense spending will spur investment and a sizable upturn in economic growth.

"If the program changes taken together should significantly raise the rate of economic growth and reduce unemployment, then they would provide higher incomes (beyond the tax cuts) that would offset the reductions in benefits," the CBO said.

The study was released by Rep. James R. Jones, D-Okla., chairman of the House Budget Committee, and Sen. Ernest F. Hollings, D-S.C., ranking Democrat on the Senate Budget Committee.

"A critical element in any budget had to be its fairness," Jones and Hollings said in a joint statement. "The CBO study speaks clearly on the fairness of the Reagan program as enacted in the first session of the 97th Congress."

The CBO said it did not include Reagan's planned increases in defense spending in its analysis "since the benefits arising from these expenditures are not directly allocable to specific households."

Reagan has been pushing for a major defense buildup to counter a similar buildup by the Soviet Union. Higher Pentagon spending means more jobs for scientists, engineers and production-line workers at aerospace plants and other defense industries.

The congressional agency also excluded any data on business tax reductions, taking into account only the major individual income tax cuts enacted last year.

"The tax cuts for businesses are not included because it is not known whether the tax savings will be passed on to shareholders, and because data regarding the ownership of corporate stock are not available," the report said.

Pitt Rate Lower Than State Average

State's Unemployment Climbs

RALEIGH — Unemployment rose in 95 of North Carolin's 100 counties from December 1981 to January 1982, as the broad-based rise in unemployment reflected a soaring increase in statewide jobless rates — from 6.8 in December to 9.1 percent in January.

Nationally, the unadjusted rate in January was 9.40 percent, well above the 8.3 percent in December.

A report released by the North Carolina Employment Security Commission, based on data compiled through the end of January, shows that 54 of the state's 100 counties had double-digit unemployment rates in January.

Pitt County's unemployment rate for January of 8.4 percent places the county a full percentage point below the statewide scale of 9.4 percent for the first month of 1982. Only 19 of the state's 100 counties have a rate lower than Pitt's, including two adjacent counties, Craven at 7.9 percent and Greene at 7.3 percent. One other county, Davidson, has the same 8.4 percent rate that Pitt has.

Coastal Dare County, which depends largely on fishing, tourism and some farming, had the highest rate in the state, at 22.1 percent. Other counties with a high unemployment rate of 15 percent and higher were: SWain County, 22 percent; Tyrrell County, 21.7 percent; Surry County, 19.1 percent; Yancey County, 17.3 percent; Graham County, 17.1 percent; Person County, 17 percent; Robeson County, 16.4 percent; Montgomery County, 15.7 percent; Clay County, 15.5 percent; and Cherokee County, 15 percent.

Counties in which the unemployment rate has reached percentages of between 10 and 15 percent include: Edgecombe, 13.1; Johnston, 12.1; Martin, 11.6, and Beaufort, 10.9.

The largest increase in unemploymnent occurred in Dare County which registered an increase in a one-month period of 10.5 percentage points. The largest decrease in unemployment was registered in Cherokee County, down 1.3 percentage points.

Generally, the unemployment rate in North Carolina's seven metropolitan statistical areas is not as high as for the rural or less heavily populated areas, although unemployment in these population centers is on the rise. The Raleigh-Durham area rose form 4.4 percent to 4.5 percent; Asheville went from 6.8 to 8.6 percent; Charlotte-Gastonia from 4.8 to 6.5 percent; the tri-city area of Greensboro, Winston-Salem and High Point rose from 5.4 to 7.3 percent; and Wilmington from 7.9 to 9.6 percent.

Burlington was the hardest hit of the metropolitan areas, increasing from 7.2 percent in December to 10.1 percent in January. In the Fayetteville area, unemployment decreased from 9.2 percent to 9 percent.

First State Gives Report

First State Bank, Pitt County's only locally owned bank, measured its 1981 success with "significant progress," it was reported by C. D. Langston, president, at the bank's 76th annual stockholders meeting Friday night.

Langston told shareholders of the state's second oldest state-chartered bank that "growth and progress were achieved and a new record was again established in per share earnings, despite a narrowing rate spread situation which persisted for most of the year."

He said per share earnings for the year amounted to $9.13, up from the previous record earnings of $7.46 per share, established in 1980. Total resources as of Dec. 31 amounted to $37,270,514, the president said.

Langston said that, "Looking forward, with a cautious eye on the economy, we hope to continue our growth and to expand our service facilities in the near future. We believe that the basic soundness and liquid condition of your bank will permit us to take advantange of such opportunities."

He listed First State's involvement in the community as "one of the reasons for the bank's success during 1981."

Langston told shareholders that, "Significant contributions have been made to the community in interest paid to depositors, in salaries and employee benefits, and in other expenditures made within the community during 1981 totaling over $3.7 million."

The bank's original office is in Winterville and three other offices are located in Greenville, at Memorial Drive and Trade Street, at Memorial Drive and Farmville Boulevard, and on Evans Mall. Langston said an additional location is planned to serve the eastern area of the city.

In other business, stockholders received a printed 1981 annual report and elected the board of directors for 1982. Elected were Langston, Syd W. Dunn, William C. Glidewell Jr., Vernon E. White, Kenneth K. Dews Sr., Jerry W. Powell, John F. Minges, W. M. Scales Jr., J. Milton May and W. A. Weathington Sr.

COVENANT PLAYERS

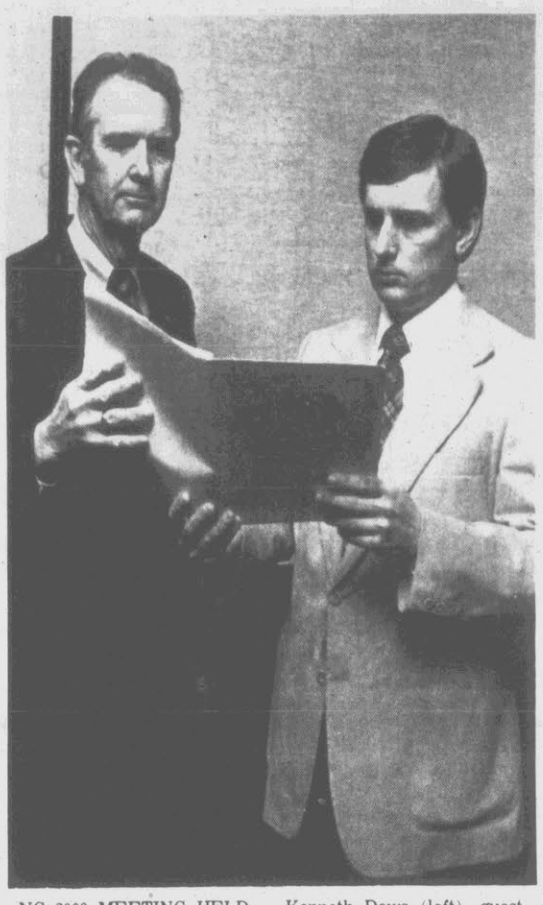
Covenant Players, based in Los Angeles, is an international repertory drama company of 68 touring groups performing a repertoire of more than 800 plays from light comedy to science fiction to Biblical characterizations. They present the gospel in compelling drama, according to Mar Robinson, church youth minister, who invites the public.



NC 2000 MEETING HELD — Kenneth Dews (left), guest speaker for the Pitt County NC 2000 Steering Committee Saturday morning, talks with Chairman Tommy Edwards prior to the meeting. Edwards said the meeting was held to get a braod-based group of leaders thinking about the long-term future of the county and state and to get leaders to involve every citizen in the NC 2000 program. Sitter Arrested

A 24-year-old woman who reported that someone broke into the Route 7, Greenville, home where she was babysitting on Feb. 22 has been charged by the Pitt County Sheriff's Department with filing a false report in connection with the incident.

Sheriff Ralph Tyson said Barbara Waring Dudley of Route 7, Box 233 Fairway Drive, Greenville, was charged with filing a false report, causing it to be broadcast over police radio, and with damage to real property.

Tyson said bond for Ms. Dudley was set at $500 with a probable cause hearing scheduled for March 9 in District Court.

He pointed out that Ms. Dudley told deputies someone cut a screen on the rear door of the Sammy Roberson home and entered the residence. He said Ms. Dudley ran from the house with the small Roberson child to a neighboring residence where she reported the alleged break-in. The neighbors notified the sheriff's department.

The babysitter, he said, appeared to be upset by the alleged incident and the local rescue unit transported Ms. Dudley to Pitt Memorial Hospital. She spent two days in the hospital following the incident, Tyson said.

According to Tyson, Ms. Dudley had been scheduled to appear in court on Feb. 23 on 23 counts of food stamp fraud.

City School Board To Meet On Monday

The March information meeting of the Greenville Board of Education will be held at 8 p.m. Monday at Eastern Elementary School.

Among agenda items to be disucssed are the 1982-83 calendar, a budget cut resolution, affirmative action, letters referring to dividers in Eastern Elementary school, follow up letters of the soccer program and budget amendments.

Liz Taylor Is Now 50

LONDON (AP) — A trail of husbands and headlines behind her, actress Elizabeth Taylor celebrated her 50th birthday Saturday, surrounded by friends, flowers and celebrities — but no ex-husbands.

Richard Burton, groom at the fifth and sixth of her seven marriages, flew into London from Italy Saturday hours before a star-studded birthday was being held at a London nightclub, amid speculation the couple might try a third reunion.

But the British actor's name was conspicuously absent from the 120-member guest list for Miss Taylor — back in the capital where she was born. She is to star in the West End production of her Broadwy hit, "The Little Foxes."

Burton flew in to appear in a Sunday production of Dylan Thomas' "Under Milk Wood" to raise funds for a memorial plaque to the Welsh poet in Westminster Abbey's Poets' Corner. He went straight to London's Dorchester Hotel.

Miss Taylor's two daughters, Liza Todd and Maria Burton, were among the guests at the party, thrown by "Little Foxes" producer Zev Bufman — the actress' frequent recent escort. She announced recently that her seventh marriage, to Sen. John Warner, R-Va., was over.

Warner's daughters, Mary and Virginia, were, however, attending the party.

Cards and presents poured in Saturday to the house in London's fashionable Chelsea district where Miss Taylor is staying with friends, her London spokesman Tony Wells said.

He said party guests also included former Beatle Ringo Starr, Soviet exile ballet star Rudolph Nureyev, British actors Frankie Howard and Edward Fox, and the cast of "Little Foxes."

Earlier this week, the violet-eyed star at a news conference here gave her advice to women turning 50: "Enjoy."

Noted Donald Zec, showbiz columnist in the mass circulation Daily Mirror, in a birthday tribute to the Hollywood star:

"If life is a caberet, hers has stopped the show. But what, Elizabeth, will you do for an encore?"

And Zec discounted a recent Taylor pronouncement that she's all through with marriage.

"The lady is fueled by love," wrote Zec. "Somewhere out there must be a strong, kindly, earthy, shock-proof, child-cat-and-dog-lover, who can recognize a great 50-year-old when he sees one."

The mass circulation Sun had a dating agency, Dating International, feed details of Miss Taylor and Burton into its computer, without identifying them.

It decided they were two perfectly matched people, looking for "special people and long-lasting relationships."

Researcher Says Water May Affect Dust Levels

By MARY ANNE RHYNE
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Particles from water that is used to humidify the air in cotton mills artificially may be raising levels of cotton dust detected in the ills, says a North Carolina State University researcher.

"In certain situations a lot of the dust measured by the cotton dust samplers does arise from the humidifying systems that are necessary," said Solomon P. Hersh of the N.C. State School of Textiles.

He said the Occupational Safety and Health Administration, charged with administering current cotton dust standards, now is gathering information on the research to see what action it should take. The water particles are not believed to be hazardous, Hersh said.

There has been lengthy debate about whether cotton dust, cigarette smoking or both contribute to byssinosis, or brown lung. The illness is a crippling condition of the air passages.

The federal government estimates that about 18,000 mill workers in North Carolina and South Carolina have byssinosis.

To properly process cotton fibers, Hersh said, the textile industry must regulate temperature and humidity in the plant. One method of doing that is to spray tiny droplets of water into the atmosphere.

"The water evaporates and the solids (dissolved minerals in the water) are left in the atmosphere," Hersh said. "They are sampled and counted as cotton dust itself. You get a false elevation of dust in the air."

One way to reduce the level of water particles is to use demineralized water, he said, noting that, "It's a lot cheaper than taking out the cotton dust itself."

"We were the first to actually publish and note that a considerable amount of dust measured arose from this source," Hersh said. "Since then some others have shown that the water can put in four times as much dust as the permissible (cotton dust) limit."

This month, Hersh said OSHA has called for comment on the problem in preparation to review its cotton dust standards. Hersh said it could be six months before any decision on the regulations is made.

"This is one of the things recognized as causing problems in compliance under current rules," he said. The problem could be addressed by redefining what is cotton dust or by altering ways of sampling, he said.

Hersh said he and several other professors and graduate students first noted the phenomenon while testing methods for cleaning cotton before it reaches the mill and looking at cleaning processes inside the mills.

He said the group still is trying to analyze the chemical nature of particles in the air of textile mills.

A new device which allows measurement of dust concentrations within seconds led to the discovery. The standard sampler used by OSHA takes three to five hours to take a sampling.

"We noticed the dust concentrations went up and went down because the humidifier went on and off. This was the thing that started us into looking into that in more detail," Hersh said.

Also participating in the study were professors Subhash K. Batra, Raymond E. Fornes and Richard D. Gilbert.

N.C. State, with 650 students, is one of the largest textile schools in the nation.

Polish Catholic Bishops Urge Martial Law's End

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Poland's Roman Catholic bishops, in their strongest statement yet, urged the nation's Communist leaders Saturday to end martial law and begin a dialogue with Solidarity to avoid "catastrophe."

Archbishop Jozef Glemp supported their stand in a separate sermon, and the highest-ranking Solidarity leader still at large urged unionists to resist the regime and "struggle for restoring Solidarity activities."

The bishops' statement, drafted at a two-day meeting that ended Friday, was the church's most forceful plea to date for reviving the only indpendent union in the Communist bloc, ending martial law and freeing some 4,000 people interned under military regulations.

"The situation in which the country and nation finds itself bears all the markings of a true moral, social and economic catastrophe," said the communique, which was distributed to Western correspondents.

"The bishops and all of society expect at the very earliest the lifting of martial law, the release of interned persons and the amnesty for those convicted of martial law offenses...

"Those now in hiding should be allowed to come out safely and no one should be fired for membership in trade unions," the statement said.

The 60 bishops from across Poland, where some 80 to 90 percent of the 36 million people are Catholic, strongly endorsed renewed efforts by the authorities to talk to Solidarity officials.

"Parties of the social covenant are the ruling authorities and reliable representatives of organized social groups," the bishops said. "Representatives of the temporarily suspended trade unions cannot be absent, including Solidarity, which enjoys wide public approval."

The bishops also called for a reactivation of youth organizations and suspended Catholic groups.

"The episcopate considers it its mission at this moment to call for the creation of a social covenant for the good of the entire nation," the statement said. "It must be based on truth, justice, freedom and love."

Archbishop Glemp, Poland's primate and a frequent critic of martial law, said in a sermon Saturday night at a Warsaw church that "we should discuss and think together how to overcome the present catastrophe. We should do that by calm, reasonable talks."

He compared the Polish crisis to a bus jammed with passengers that had run into a ditch, saying, "People hit each other, some get injured, but no one gets killed. Then instead of hugging each other, we should think together how to open the windows and get out. Then we may be able to start the bus again and it may go on."

The statement by the bishops was their first since Glemp returned two weeks ago from the Vatican where he met with Polish-born Pope John Paul II to discuss martial law.

The Polish authorities so far have failed to hold negotiations with Solidarity or its sequestered chief, Lech Walesa, and have served notice they intend to keep any future unions under strict control.

A Justice Ministry official bolstered this view Saturday, saying failure of unionists to follow the law could result in a court suspension of their activity and that any strikes would have to be preceded by a seven-day notice.

But fugitive Warsaw Solidarity leader Zbigniew Bujak said in a statement circulated here that "both the government-proposed shape of trade unions and social commissions is unacceptable. The only way left for us is to struggle for restoring Solidarity activities."

The Bujak statement was in response to last week's government proposals for reactivating Solidarity but with strict limits on the right to strike and political activity, and for creating "social commissions" that in effect would usurp some union functions.

The statement said the social commissions are a way to divide society by "distributing articles in short supply to punish those who are disobedient and buy those who show humility." It urged unionists to renew union activities, write letters to Parliament, and "demand restoration of solidarity."

Democrats Back Hunt's Suggestions

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Democratic Party has moved amid bitter debate toward changing the way it selects presidential candidates — a move suggested by a committee led by North Carolina Gov. Jim Hunt.

The executive committee of the Democratic National Committee approved a nonbinding resolution Friday calling on its full committee to approve the Hunt commission's recommendations when it meets March 24-26.

But women, representatives of Eastern states and state party chairmen on the executive committee challenged the plan and Hunt acknowledged that the vote was not a unaminous endorsement.

The Hunt commission worked from last July to this February on new rules governing the way the Democratic Party selects presidential nominees. The recommendations discussed Friday were the result of a series of regional and Washington meetings.

Hunt went into Friday's meeting with an enthusiastic endorsement from the Democratic governors, as well as a letter of endorsement from the two members of Congress who head Democratic election efforts in the House and Senate.

Nonetheless, several of the recommendations drew fire Friday.

The commission had recommended adding about 550 delegates to some 3,000 who now attend party conventions in presidential election years and suggested that as many as two-thirds of the Democratic members of Congress be eligible to attend the convention as delegates.

But women's groups argued that most members of Congress are men and allowing two-thirds of the current congressional Democratic to attend a convention would make it difficult to ensure that half a state's delegates would be women, as other party rules require.

That also upset the state party chairmen, who will have to sort it all out. Marjorie Thurman, head of an association of Democratic Party state chairmen, abstained with four others from voting on the commission's recommendations.

Joseph Crangle, a committee member from New York, said many party chairmen would be put in the position of saying, "Mr. county leader, you can't be a delegate. We have to go with a female."

"What you will do is correct the problem of (a lack of) congressmen, but you will create other problems for the party, which is very, very unfair," he said.

Hunt had argued earlier that the presence of elected and party officials, who are closely attuned to political trends, would make the 1984 convention more representative of the rank-and-file voter.

Another commission goal was to shorten the primary election season by holding all primaries and state caucuses between March 1 and June 30. But the commission made exceptions for Iowa and New Hampshire.

That drew criticism from Crangle, who said Iowa and New Hampshire are being granted exceptions although they vote for the Democratic presidential candidate less often than eastern states that are not being granted exceptions.

Hunt said party officials in Iowa and New Hampshire had lobbied strongly for an earlier start, saying it would help strengthen their state Democratic parties.

Old Plant Will Sell Its Power

PITTSBORO, N.C. (UPI) — A 56-year-old Raleigh engineer who bought an abandoned hydroelectric plant from Carolina Power & Light Co. says he hopes to be selling power generated by the facility to the utility by May.

"By May 1st, I hope to be selling power to CP&L," said Joe R. Ellen Jr., president of Raleigh-based Elk Electric Co. "In about 10 years, I hope the plant will be contributing to my retirement fund."

A CP&L official said the hydroelectric plant on the Rocky River in eastern Chatham County was shut down in the 1950s because the "economics at that time didn't justify continuing operation."

Three years ago Ellen decided to buy the power plant, repair it and reopen it. He believes today's higher power costs will make the plant profitable for him.

The plant is expected to produce about 800,000 kilowatt-hours of electricity per year, or enough to supply about 60 residential customers. Automatic equipment will allow the plant to run unmanned 80 to 90 percent of the time.

Bobby Montague, a CP&L vice president, said the utility is interested in the plant returning to service because it "will aid in achieving company load-management and conservation goals.

Montague said the Rocky River plant was the first old hydroelectric site to be restored "under a program where we provide assistance to small hydroelectric developments as part of our comprehensive conservation and load-management program."

About $100,000 will be invested by Ellen in the restoration of the old plant, which along with a dam, was built from 1922 to 1925. Routine maintenance will be needed periodically after the plant is running, but Ellen said he expects it to operate 20 to 30 years without major overhauls.

Getting the hydroelectric plant in operative shape has been no easy task for Ellen. Three of his employees have been working since December, making repairs and helping prepare the electric generator.

Vital parts for the repairs had to be rounded up from power plants throughout the Southeast. Vandals had damaged the building and had thrown parts from the orginial generating equipment into the river.

Genetic Traits Affect Alcoholism

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Genetic traits appear to play a large part in the development of alcoholism, Dr. John A. Ewing of the Center for Alcohol Studies at the University of North Carolina School of Medicine says.

"People with a family history of alcoholism are four to nine times more likely to develop problems with alcohol," even if they are raised in a non-drinking environment, Ewing said.

Though social and psychological factors also are tied to drinking problems, the inborn factor is 60 percent to 70 percent responsible for a person becoming an alcoholic, Ewing's research shows.

He points to a study conducted in Denmark of twins born to alcoholic mothers or fathers as evidence.

Pairs of twins with identical genetic composition were separated at birth and raised in non-alcoholic families. When one was found to be alcoholic, there was a 50 percent to 60 percent chance the other would be alcoholic as well, researcher Dr. Don Goodwin of Kansas University found.

If the twins were fraternal, meaning they did not have identical genes, there was a 20 percent likelihood that both would be alcoholic.

A study involving Oriental and non-Oriental drinkers shows further that genes affect a tendency toward alcoholism, Ewing said.

In that research, Orientals were more likely to report feelings of dizziness, pounding in the head, muscle weakness and tingling sensations, viewed as unpleasantness, after drinking. The non-Orientals were more likely to report relaxation, happiness, confidence and alertness.

The research correlates with lower rates for alcoholism in Oriental countries compared to the United States and Europe.

The Orientals' susceptibility to the unpleasant effects of alcohol has been linked to higher levels of the chemical acetaldehyde in their blood. This is produced as a person metabolizes alcohol, Ewing said.

Between 5 percent and 10 percent of English and no more than 20 percent of the Swiss population carry this trait, while 85 percent to 90 percent of all Orientals do, Ewing said. Furthermore, women are more likely to carry this trait than men, he said.

Ewing also has done a study on the effects of alcohol on people with varying levels of dopaminebetahydroxylase in their blood. Those with high levels reported a general sense of euphoria after drinking and less drunk or sick. Those will lower levels did not feel as well.

Ewing is now planning a five-year experiment to examine healthy non-alcoholic men from families with alcoholism. They will be compared with young men from families without the disease.

"We want to see if there is a difference in the chemical make-up of the body," Ewing said. "Will they feel intoxicated when they have the same levels of alcohol in the blood? Will they sway to the same extent when standing?"

The center where Ewing does his research deals mostly with the primary alcoholic, the one with alcoholic relatives.

"Our mission is to try to understand the origins of alcoholism and why people like to drink," he said.

Six Players Hurt In Bus Wreck

ALLENDALE, S.C. (AP) — Six members of the girls' basketball teams from a Hilton Head Island private school remained hospitalized Saturday after their bus slid off an icy Allendale County bridge, the state Highway Patrol reported.

The wreck was one of literally hundreds that occurred Friday as South Carolina was caught napping by a surprise winter storm that layered the state with snow, sleet and freezing rain.

The bus was carrying the varsity and junior varsity girls' teams of Sea Pines Academy home from games in Allendale against Calhoun Academy when it slid off a viaduct on S.C. 278 and plunged 30 feet down an embankment, landing on its side.

Cpl. Clyde Kinard of the Highway Patrol said the accident occurred about 9:30 p.m., six miles from Allendale.

Nine players and the varsity coach, Tony Knapp, were taken to an Allendale hospital and were transferred to Hilton Head Hospital, officials said.

Three players and Knapp were treated and released from Hilton Head Hospital.

Six others remained hospitalized.

A 15-year-old girl was in satisfactory condition Saturday afternoon after undergoing surgery for internal injuries and multiple fractures.

Five others suffered concussions and fractures and were reported in stable condition.

Kinard said the driver of the chartered bus, Edward Jenkins of Ridgeland, was charged with driving too fast for conditions.

At least four people died in other traffic accidents, the patrol said.

A 24-year-old Lancaster woman, identified as Carma Parkman Starnes, died after the car she was riding in collided with another car in Lancaster Friday afternoon.

Other accidents claimed the lives of Marie Johnson, 62, of Startex, Teresa Adams, 13, of Spartanburg, and Michael Selepes, 31, of Union.

Grace Period For Draft Registration Ends Today

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger described it as just "a little card" needing an address and a telephone number. But failure to fill out that little card, and thereby register for the draft, carries the big penalty of up to five years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Any of the more than 8 million American men born in the years 1960 to early 1964 who have not put pen to the card at post offices around the country by this weekend are in trouble with the Selective Service System.

The draft ended in 1973 when the Nixon administration instituted the All Volunteer Force. It would take an act of Congress to return to the draft.

But the Carter administration launched draft registration in July 1980 so that, if the need for a callup arose, it would be speedy. President Reagan, with some reluctance, decided to keep registration in force.

The Selective Service said 927,504 men had not signed up by mid-week. Failure to do so by Sunday, the end of a grace period set by Reagan, puts them in technical violation of the law, but officials said they probably won't be in any trouble until after the first week of March at the earliest.

The registration cards will be recorded on safely stored Selective Service computer tapes by the first week of April, spokeswoman Joan Lamb said. If everyone registers, the tapes should have 8,054,000 names on them.

Those who are not recorded, she said, will be sent warnings. The first one will come from Selective Service and the follow-up will be sent by the Justice Department, which has the authority to prosecute them.

The Justice Department already has the names of 183 men who will be called to court if they do not register within the coming days, Ms. Lamb said.

Even so, draft resisters expect thousands of men not to register.

"I think there will be hundreds of thousands who will fail to comply in spite of the threats of the last week," Barry Lynn of Draft Action said. He said there is a "hard core of people" who simply will not be "frightened into registering."

David Landau, an attorney with the American Civil Liberties Union, said a small army of lawyers is studying the law in preparation for defending non-registrants.

"The Justice Department is going to find these cases will go to trial (and they) will not be easy prosecutions," Landau said. "There are a number of legal questions raised by the whole program that the courts are going to have to resolve."

Six solid reasons why Wachovia is the best choice for your IRA

Your Individual Retirement Account is one of the most important investments you'll ever make. So you'll want to think carefully about where you choose to make that investment. Consider these six advantages of choosing Wachovia.

1. Wachovia pays top money market rates
The interest rates Wachovia pays you are based on current money market rates, assuring you top interest rates for the life of your IRA. Compare them with the rates being paid anywhere.

Example: Current Rate and Yield on Wachovia IRA's Invested in a 30-Month Fixed Rate Deposit.

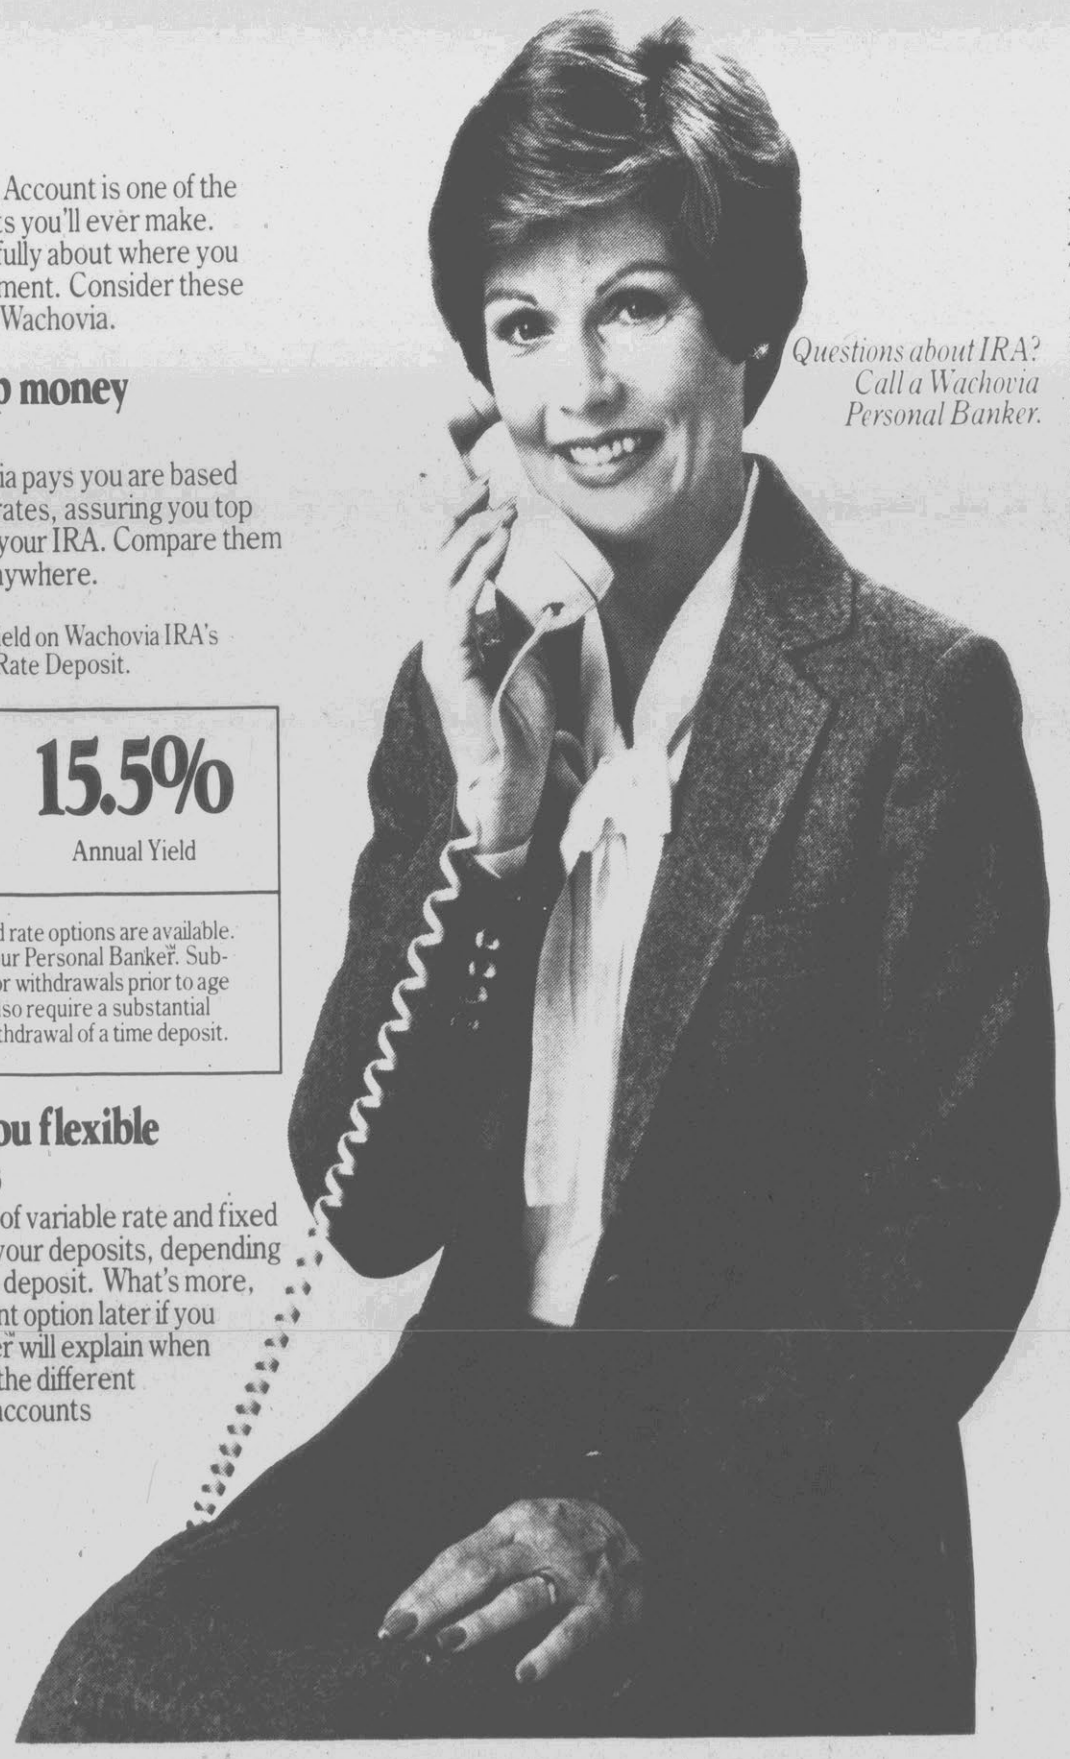
Annual Percentage Rate	Annual Yield

Other variable rate and fixed rate options are available. For the current rate, call your Personal Banker®. Substantial penalties required for withdrawals prior to age 59½. Federal regulations also require a substantial interest penalty for early withdrawal of a time deposit.

2. Wachovia gives you flexible investment options
You choose from a variety of variable rate and fixed rate options for investing your deposits, depending on the amount you wish to deposit. What's more, you can change to a different option later if you wish. Your Personal Banker® will explain when and how, and also explain the different options available for new accounts and rollover accounts.



Questions about IRA? Call a Wachovia Personal Banker.

3. Wachovia lets you open your IRA with any amount
There's no minimum for opening a Wachovia IRA. And no minimum for additional deposits. There's no fixed schedule for additional deposits, either. If you wish to skip an entire year or more, you can. You add as much as you like, when you like, up to the legal limit of $2,000 per year in each account. A married couple may have two IRA's, if both work, and invest up to $4,000. If one spouse is not employed, the limit is $2,250 for the couple.

4. Wachovia charges no investment fees
Unlike many other companies, Wachovia makes no charge for opening your IRA, and no annual charge for managing it. All your funds are put to work earning interest for your retirement.

5. Wachovia won't retire before you do
Wachovia's record of financial stability goes back more than a century. You know we'll be there managing your IRA properly whether you need us for 10 years, 20 years, or 50. And to add to your peace of mind, each Wachovia depositor's funds are insured up to $100,000 by the F.D.I.C.

6. You have a Personal Banker® at Wachovia
At Wachovia, you don't deal with an institution, you deal with an individual; your own Personal Banker. That way, you know the name and telephone number to call with any question regarding your account. You don't end up talking to everybody at the bank before you get the answers you need.

Think about it. At Wachovia, you get top money market rates, flexibility of investment, no opening minimum, no management fee, security for now and the future and your own Personal Banker. Compare all that with any other source. Then come in and talk with a Personal Banker at Wachovia this week.

Deacons 'Steal' By Wolfpack

AP Sports Writer

RALEIGH — For the second time this season, Wake Forest committed highway robbery by walking into enemy territory and stealing a victory.

The 18th-ranked Demon Deacons took a 50-46 Atlantic Coast Conference victory Saturday afternoon over North Carolina State on the Wolfpack's home court. Earlier, Wake Forest traveled to Chapel Hill and knocked off then top-ranked North Carolina.

Saturday's triumph was the first time Coach Carl Tacy has walked off the Reynolds Coliseum floor a winner, and he said the victory couldn't have come at a better time.

THE DAILY REFLECTOR
SUNDAY MORNING
FEBRUARY 28, 1982

"We feel good about our chances right now of making the NCAA's," Tacy said. "I feel we've secured our chance to play in the tournament, or at least we should have."

First comes the ACC tournament in Greensboro this week. The Demon Deacons, who finished third in the conference with the victory, will meet either Duke, Maryland or Clemson Friday night at 9 p.m.

Jim Johnstone's three-point play with 45 seconds left highlighted a 9-0 run Saturday, giving Wake Forest its first lead of the second half and opening the way for the victory.

N.C. State Coach Jim Valvano thinks his Wolfpack should be in the NCAA title chase too. But the defeat may have cast some doubt.

"If we're not in the NCAA tournament, what can I say?" Valvano said. 'I think four ACC teams belong in the tournament. It's a very close situation. I am disappointed, but will let the committee decide that."

The Wolfpack could also face Duke, Maryland or Clemson, depending on the outcome of Saturday's conference action.

N.C. State expanded a five-point halftime lead to a 34-26 advantage at the 16:10 mark on a three-point play by Thurl Bailey. But the Demon Deacons fought their way back and, on four straight points by Guy Morgan, trailed 46-45 with 4:16 left to play.

After a timeout at the 3:07 mark, Wake Forest held the ball for the last shot. But Mike Helms took the shot from the baseline with 50 seconds left. He missed and Johnstone grabbed the rebound, dropped in the shot and hit his free throw, giving Wake Forest a 48-46 lead with 45 seconds left.

N.C. State's Scott Parzych missed a jumper from the corner with 19 seconds to play. Wake Forest retrieved the ball and Helms was fouled. He then converted the two insurance free throws.

The Wolfpack, now 21-8 overall and 7-7 in the league, rushed to a 16-7 lead before Wake Forest tied the game 16-all on a Danny Young steal and layup. A couple of four-point spurts regained the advantage and N.C. State took a 27-22 edge at hallftime.

Get That Outta Here

Terps Stun No. 1 Cavs

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (UPI) — Maryland freshman Adrian Branch has played uninhibited basketball all season, but Saturday he put that style to the best possible use for the Terrapins.

Branch scored 29 points, including a 12-foot jumper in the final second, for a 47-46 upset of No. 1-ranked Virginia in overtime.

The loss left Virginia, 27-2 overall and 12-2 in the Atlantic Coast Conference, tied for the ACC lead with North Carolina.

The Terrapins' game plan involved only getting the ball to Branch and staying out of his way. He responded with his best collegiate day.

Branch missed a shot that might have given the Terrapins the win in regulation. But teammate Herman Veal hit with no time on the clock to send the game into overtime, tied at 44-44.

"I was still confident on the last shot even though the first one was pretty bad," said Branch. "(Virginia's Jeff) Jones surprised me by being right in my face with some good defense, so I had to adjust to get off the shot.

"I knew if I went to my left Ralph (Virginia's 7-4 center, Ralph Sampson) would be waiting to knock it into the stands. So I went to my right and got it off."

Virginia tried to call time out and game official John Moreau signaled that one second remained. Referee Lenny Wirtz, after checking with the official timer, said no time remained.

"Lenny first said the game wasn't over," said Virginia coach Terry Holland. "Then he came back and said it was over.

"I told him he couldn't do that again. He did that against Notre Dame (a 57-56 loss to the Irish last year in Chicago) with three seconds left. But he did."

Branch scored his 29 points as the Terrapin's slow-down offense knocked off the Cavaliers after losing 45-40 in overtime at Virginia earlier this month.

After the game went into overtime, Steve Adkins hit one of two freethrowns for a 45-44 Maryland lead. Sampson, held to just seven points, gave the Cavaliers a 46-45 lead with two freethrows at 4:10.

Maryland held the ball and ran the clock down to 13 seconds to set up Branch's winning shot.

The Cavaliers, who fell for just the second time in 29 games, were led by Craig Robinson with 11 points. Robinson and Branch were the only two players to score in double figures.

Neither team led by more than four points. Maryland held a two point 23-21 halftime edge but the Cavaliers went on

Lady Gamecocks Edge ECU, 86-81

Forwards Evelyn Johnson and Brantley Southers and center Shelia Foster combined for 71 points to spark 13th-ranked South Carolina to an 86-81 victory over East Carolina's Lady Pirates Saturday evening before a crowd of 1,500 at Minges Coliseum.

Johnson, sister of Los Angeles Laker star Ervin 'Magic' Johnson, scored 26 points, Southers added 23 and Foster 20 as USC rolled to a 51-38 halftime advantage.

The Lady Pirates closed within five in the second half when Darlene Chaney hit both ends of a one-and-one with 53 seconds left to make it 86-81. Neither team scored again, however, as USC ran its record to 21-7.

The loss was the Lady Pirates' first of the season at home after 10 straight victories. ECU, which had won 12 of its last 13 before Saturday night, falls to 16-9.

Senior forward Sam Jones led ECU with 26 points on 12 of 33 shots from the floor. She also had eight rebounds and five assists, which moves Jones into second place on the school's all-time assist list with 246. Laurie Sikes leads with 413.

Junior center Mary Denkler added 20 points and a game-high 13 rebounds. With her 20 points, which came on nine of 23 field goal attempts, Denkler moves to fourth on the ECU all-time scoring list with 1,168 points.

Loraine Foster had 14 points and Chaney added 12 points and 11 rebounds as ECU outrebounded USC, 43-42.

The Lady Pirates, however, faired poorly from the field where they hit 39.1% (34 of 87) while USC canned an impressive 60.3% (38 of 63).

"We played exceptionally well in the first half, shooting over 60 percent from the floor," USC coach Terry Kelly said. "But East Carolina proved they were a very good team with an excellent comeback at the end."

"The ball just wasn't going through the hoop," ECU coach Cathy Andruzzi said. "We were down by 18 in the second half, but we came back. We used our pressure defense and got the lead down to five.

"We had two chances to score, but the

Indians Scalp Pirates, 80-61

WILLIAMBURG, Va. — When things go wrong, they tend to continue that way — or at least so it would seem with East Carolina's basketball team.

Last night, in the final game of the regular season, the Pirates bowed before William & Mary's hot-shooting Indians, 80-61. It was the fifth straight loss for the Pirates, and would seemingly doom them for seventh seeding in the ECAC-South tournament which starts Thursday in Norfolk.

The Pirates, 2-8 in the league and 10-16 overall, have the worst record in the conference. Seedings are to be determined at a meeting in Norfolk today, along with the game times for the first round of the tournament.

The Indians, shooting 70.6 percent in the first half, finished up with 68.3 percent, while East Carolina, after a 37.5 percentage in the first half, ended up with a 41.6 mark — thanks mainly to some late shooting that brought the Indians down from a 26-point spread to the final 19-point one.

William & Mary placed five players in double figures, led by senior Dale Moats' 14.

East Carolina, in contrast, had just two in double figures, Morris Hargrove with 17 and Bill McNair with 14. Most of McNair's came in the late stages of the contest.

"This is about as tough a stretch of time as I've ever had to endure," a subdued Dave Odom said outside the ECU lockerroom. "In no way, shape or form have I ever experienced the feelings of frustration that I have now."

Odom said that the feeling were not necessarily just for himself, but for the university and its people and for his staff and players "who've worked so hard and it doesn't seem like whatever we do is the answer."

Odom said that he was particularly disapointed in fan treatment of the Pirates. "I hope our players never fotget the remarks that have been made about them, the laughter and snickering. Those things have no place in athletics.

"I know things have a way of changing. Time has a way of healing all wounds, and the worm will eventually turn."

Unfortunately for the Pirates it didn't turn last night.

The poor play of the last four games followed the Pirates into this fifth one in the first half. The Bucs turned the ball over four of their first five possessions, and missed a shot on the other. In the meanwhile, William & Mary was putting through three baskets, two of them by Mike Strayhorn.

Hargrove finally got the Pirates on the scoreboard after just over three minute, but they were unable to dent the Indian lead, which grew to eight on a baseline jumper by Strayhorn at 14-6 with 12:24 left.

The Indians steadily pulled away during the remaining minutes of the half, inching out by 12 at 24-12 on a layup by Kevin Richardson with 8:42 showing. Then, four free throws, two each by Keith Cieplicki and Richardson and a basket by Herb Harris upped the lead to 16 at 30-14. A three-point play a minute later ran it to 17, 33-16, and after McNair hit a free throw for ECU, two more by Billy Barnes ran it to 18, 35-17. The Tribe held a 37-21 advantage at the half.

In the first half, the Indians canned 12 of 17 shots, 70.6 percent, while ECU made just 9 of 24, 37.5 percent. The Pirates also were cold on the foul line, hitting just

Heels Gain Share Of ACC Title As UVa Falls

UNC Turns Lights Out On Duke

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — James Worthy scored 20 points, many on the receiving end of Jimmy Black passes as second-ranked North Carolina grabbed a share of the Atlantic Coast Conference title with an 84-66 romp over Duke.

It was a strange day for the Tar Heels, with the oddities beginning at the 18:26 mark. That's when the electrical power went out and darkness brought the game to a 45-minute halt.

The other oddity was Maryland's 47-46 overtime upset victory over Virginia which enabled the Tar Heels to tie the Cavaliers for first in the ACC at 12-2.

League officials will conduct a drawing Sunday to determine which team will be seeded No. 1 in the ACC tournament, which begins Friday. The drawing will be held at 10:30 a.m. at the league's Greensboro office.

The power outage struck the south portion of the University of North Carolina campus. A spokesman for the UNC police department said an explosion of an underground circuit caused the outage.

"I was shocked more than anything else," Black said of the outage. "I didn't know what to think."

"It was definitely a first for me, too," said Chris Brust, who along with Black and Jeb Barlow made their final appearance in Carmichael Auditorium.

Worthy scored 16 of his points as the 24-2 Tar Heels rushed to a 42-17 halftime lead. Matt Doherty, who was 4-for-4 from the floor, and Brust each added 8 first-half points.

The Tar Heels led by as much as 40-12 after Worthy slammed a dunk over Duke's Jay Bryan and added the free throw.

"It was an avalanche for us in the first half," Duke coach Mike Krzyzewski said. "We made a couple of mistakes and our young kids just got rattled. I don't think there was much we could do.

"They would have had to have a complete collapse in the second half for us to win," he added.

That collapse never came, although the Blue Devils did outscore North Carolina 49-42 in the second half.

"I thought we played an impressive first half," Tar Heel coach Dean Msith said. "We also played well in the second half, but Duke also played much better than it did in the first half.

Worthy was supported by Sam Perkins with 12 points, Doherty and Michael Jordan with 11 each and Brust and Jimmy Black, who contributed 10 each.

Black also handed off 9 assists, most to Worthy and Brust in the first half.

"Jimmy Black was outstanding," Smith said. "He should have shot more. He did a great job on Taylor. Black

D.H. Conley's Long Wins State Wrestling Crown

WINSTON-SALEM — D.H. Conley's Mike Long used four pins in the first period to capture the state wrestling championship at 188 pounds Saturday evening at the state meet at Parkland High School.

Long, who becomes D.H Conley coach Milt Sherman's seventh wrestler to win a state crown, was also voted the tournament's most outstanding wrestler. It was the second time a Conley wrestler has been so honored. Gary Harris won the award in 1980.

With Long's victory and Lorenzo Strong's fourth-place finish, the Vikings ended up seventh as a team.

Ragsdale won the team title with 55 points. Fayetteville 71st was second with 45½ points followed by Sanderson with 44½, Cary with 44 and Brevard with 43. West Carteret, like Conley a member of the Coastal Conference, was sixth with 40½ points and the Vikings were next with 38½.

The tournament was the final stage in a weeding-out process that started with 210 teams vying for the state championship in sectional and regional tournament action.

Of the 13 state titlists, four came from the D.H. Conley sectional. They were Long, Tarboro's Mike Stokes at 108 pounds, Wilson Beddingfield's Paul Smith at 135 pounds and Wilson Hunt's Johnny Coleman at 170 pounds.

Only Long of five area wrestlers came away with the state championship. Long, a junior, qualified for the state meet as a freshman but did not place. Last year he was beaten in the sectionals.

This year, however, was another story. He opened Saturday's match by pinning Gary Mingo of Charlotte Olympic in 1:25

Hearns Wins With Opening-Round KO

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Thomas Hearns stunned Marcos Geraldo early with two right hands and followed with a left to knock him out in the first round of their scheduled 10-round middleweight bout Saturday.

Hearns, in his second fight as a middleweight, wasted no time in disposing of the veteran Geraldo.

Hearns, the former World Boxing Association welterweight champion, measured Geraldo early in the round and stalked him across the ring.

Hearns was backing Geraldo into a corner when he suddenly unleashed two overhand rights that started him on his way down.

Hearns, who lost his WBA title when he was knocked out last September by Sugar Ray Leonard in the 14th round, weighed 153¼ pounds, giving away more than six pounds to Geraldo, who scaled 159½.

But the weight made little difference, as Hearns showed the power that gave him 30 knockouts and a 32-1 record as a welterweight.

Hearns' first fight as a middleweight came against Ernie Singletary last December in The Bahamas, where he scored a 10-round unanimous decision.

Hearns' manager, Emanuel Steward, said before the fight that he wanted Hearns to go at least eight or nine rounds against Geraldo to futher test his endurance as a middleweight.

One Of Few Drivers From Outside South

Ruttman - A NASCAR Oddity

ROCKINGHAM, N.C. (AP) — Joe Ruttman is an oddity on NASCAR's Grand National stock car circuit.

He has solid racing credentials, but happens to make his home outside the southern United States.

Even though NASCAR and the people who participate in its 30-race schedule are doing their best to change its image as a regional body, the fact is the circuit still is dominated by men and women from below the Mason-Dixon line.

"I was critical of NASCAR and the way they treat newcomers," said Ruttman as he prepared for Sunday's Warner W. Hodgdon Carolina 500 at North Carolina Motor Speedway. "Maybe I truly felt an outsider couldn't come in here and be a success. But people down here have been great and so far they've proved me wrong. I hope they continue to do so."

Ruttman, 37, who makes his home in Upland, Calif., is the brother of 1952 Indy 500 champion Troy Ruttman. He's 14 years younger than Troy, but obviously has the family bent for auto racing.

Ruttman, who made his racing reputation driving on the less prestigious U.S. Auto Club stock car circuit — which races almost exclusively in the Midwest — drove in one NASCAR race in 1963 and 1974, and did the same in 1977 and 1980.

But, last year, he decided to take a real shot at NASCAR racing, running in 17 races and finishing in the top 10 seven times. His best finish was second place in the season-finale on the road course at Riverside, Calif.

What finally got Ruttman running NASCAR regularly was the interest of J.D. Stacy, the Kentucky coal magnate who now owns and-or sponsors seven Grand National cars.

Shortly after Stacy bought out the team previously owned by Rod Osterlund, 1980 NASCAR champion Dale Earnhardt moved on to run for another team. Stacy called on Ruttman for the remainder of the 1981 season, and the partnership continues.

Ruttman, who will start on the outside of the first row Sunday, next to polesitter Benny Parsons, finished second in the Daytona 500 and had an eight-second lead in last week's Richmond 400 when a tire blew and sent him careening into the guardrail and out of the race.

"Mr. Stacy has put absolutely no pressure on me," Ruttman said. "He knows I want to win as much as he does. So I only do my best."

Ruttman inherited Dale Inman as his crew chief. Inman held that same position for years with his cousin Richard Petty, but left early last season to become team manager for Osterlund.

"I think the major difference (this year) in our team is the communication between Dale Inman and myself," Ruttman explained. "He's had to deal with my interpretations against those of Richard Petty, with whom he dealt for years. Now he understands much better what I'm saying about the car.

"We have the best piece of equipment and the best crew, so that leaves it pretty much up to me. If we don't do good, it's obviously my fault."

Ruttman simply practiced and watched the periodic snow flurries and rain Friday, but Rockingham's 1.017-mile, high-banked track saw plenty of activity.

Morgan Shepherd was the fastest of the 10 second-day qualifiers, turning in a quick lap of 140.756 to gain the 21st spot on Sunday's 36-car grid.

Shepherd, who crashed his Buick Regal during practice Thursday on the slick asphalt oval and was unable to take part in the first session of time trials, came up with the fifth fastest lap of the weekend, although quite a bit slower than Parsons' pole-winning 141.577.

There were several more crashes Friday. No one was injured, but at least one of the wrecks was very costly.

Mark Martin, who had qualified his car 15th Thursday, hit the wall in turn two during a practice session. He damaged his car badly enough that his team withdrew it, moving those who qualified 16th through 20th Thursday up one place.

ECU Golfers Fall To 12th

TALLAHASSEE — East Carolina's golf team fell into a tie for 12th place Saturday afternoon here after the second day of the Seminole Intercollegiate Classic.

The Pirates, who were eighth after Friday's first day, nine strokes off the lead, shot a 301 Saturday for a two-day total of 602.

Jerry Lee, who shot a 70 Friday and was once stroke out of first, shot a 76 Saturday for a total of 146 — six strokes behind leader Bill Plyer of UNC. Plyer is at 140. Four players are tied for second at 141.

Don Gafner has a two-day score of 150 for ECU followed by teammates Don Sweeting at 153 and Mike Moye at 156.

GCA Wins District Title

David Hollingsworth, John Parnell and Troy Hudson combined for 42 points to lead Greenville Christian to the District IV championship with a 58-49 win over Wilson Christian Saturday night.

Earlier, in the girls' game, Wake Christian pounded GCA, 62-25.

Hollingsworth scored 16 points, Parnell 14 and Hudson 12 as the Knights upped their record to 20-1 and captured the automatic berth in the state playoffs that goes with the district title.

"I was real impressed with our defense tonight," GCA coach Dale Thatcher said afterward. "Our defense overwhelmed them. We played defense like I know we can."

The Knights inched out to a 14-10 lead at the end of the first period and stretched that lead to 22-14 at the half. Wilson Christian cut the deficit to 33-28 at the end of the third period, but the Knights outscored the visitors, 25 to 21, in the final period to win.

Wilson, which lost to GCA in three overtimes earlier this season, was led by Dale Hill with 14 points and Steve Renfrow with 12.

In the girls' contest, Wake Christian played like the defending state champs it is. Wake led, 11-6, at the end of the first period and then outscored the Lady Knights, 16-6, in the second period to take a 27-12 lead at the half.

Wake coasted home for the victory in the second half, when the visitors outscored GCA, 16-4, and 19-9, to win by 37 points.

Kathy Vernelson led GCA with 12 points — all on free throws. Wake was led by Susan Bowden with 22 points and Pam Wilder with 17.

Clemson Whips Hawks, 91-70

CLEMSON, S.C. (AP) — Clemson basketball coach Bill Foster says he has seen too many nailbiters this year, and Saturday's easy 91-70 win over Maryland Eastern Shore was a welcome change.

The Tigers jumped to an early 12-0 lead and never trailed the entire game in the nonconference contest.

"It was good to have a big win," said Foster. "There have been too many nailbiters for us this year."

Foster's 14-12 Tigers head to Greensboro, N.C., next week for the Atlantic Coast Conference Tournament.

"If there is any justice, maybe ours will come next week," he said. "I've been telling the team there is a light at the end of the tunnel and next week will be the last chance. If we play well and get some breaks we can beat anybody at the tournament."

Maryland Eastern Shore Coach Kirkland Hall said his team was awed by Clemson.

"We knew they were good when we came in," he said. "We just don't have the size to be a Division I contender."

Hall had praise for Clemson point guard Chris Dodds.

"There was nothing we could do to defend against him," Hall said.

Tiger senior Bill Ross, an inconsistent performer in his four years at Clemson, led all scorers with 19 points. Senior Horace Wyatt had 13 and freshman Joe Ward hit for 11.

The Hawks had four players in double figures, with guard Marlow Barkley leading the way with 18. Gerald Best and James Wimbush had 14 apiece and Allen Davenport logged 10 as the team fell to 6-19 overall.

The Tigers jumped to an early 12-0 lead and extended the margin as many as 20 points before going to the locker room ahead 46-30.

Maryland-Eastern Shore twice cut the lead to 15 points in the second half but could come no closer.

The Tigers had 30 assists, eight by Dodds, and had a 41-31 rebounding edge over the Hawks.

St. Andrews 90
Va. Wesleyan 58

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Will Peterson fired in 32 points as St. Andrews' Knights, the nation's No. 1-ranked Division III team, led all the way in a 90-58 romp Saturday night over Virginia Wesleyan's Blue Marlins in th title game of the Dixie Conference basketball tournament.

The Knights, 25-2 with one of the defeats at the hands of Virginia Wesleyan earlier in the season, scored the game's first four points and never looked back in avenging the earlier setback on the Marlins' home court.

Georgia 64
Mississippi 58

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — Dominique Wilkins scored a season-high 33 points and led Georgia to a 64-58 Southeastern Conference basketball victory ove Mississippi Saturday night.

The Rebels, who had a four-game winning streak snapped, held a 38-28 lead with 19:30 left in the game, but Wilkins scored 10 points during a 17-6 Bulldog spurt that gave Georgia a 45-44 advantage with 10:51 to go on a jumper by Wilkins.

Wilkins hit 13 of 19 shots from the field. James Banks contributed 18 points for the Bulldogs, 11 in the second half.

Carlos Clark paced the Rebels with 21 points and Eric Laird added 13.

Both teams will move into the SEC tournament at Lexington, Ky., next week, with Georgia facing Alabama and Ole Miss taking on arch-rival Louisiana State

Nebraska 50

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP) — Les Craft poured in 16 points and Ed Nealy added 14 points and 10 rebounds as Kansas State turned back outmanned Nebraska 67-50 in Big Eight conference basketball Saturday.

The Wildcats, 10-4 in the conference and 20-6 overall for the regular season, outrebounded cold-shooting Nebraska 21-11 in the first half while bolting to a 28-14 lead.

State Atop Wrestling

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Defending champion North Carolina State holds a slim lead over North Carolina entering Sunday's finals of the 27th annual Atlantic Coast Conference wrestling tournament.

In Saturday's semifinals, N.C. State rolled up 24 points and North Carolina 20½. They were followed by Maryland with 11, Clemson 9, Virginia 5½, and Duke 3½. Georgia Tech failed to score.

N.C. State qualified seven wrestlers for the finals and North Carolina six as all top seeds advanced.

Defending champions Dave Cooke of North Carolina and Tab Thacker of N. C. State each pinned opponents in winning semifinal matches.

Ga. Tech Nips Ga. State, 74-73

ATLANTA (AP) — Anthony Byrd sank two free throws with 12 seconds remaining to give Georgia Tech a 74-73 college basketball victory over crosstown rival Georgia State Saturday night.

State's ChaveloHolmes put up a 10-foot shot from the left baseline that appeared to be going in, but the basket was nullified and GSU's Archie Booker was called for offensive basket interference as the buzzer sounded.

The victory enabled Tech to close its regular season with a 10-15 record going into next week's Atlantic Coast Conference tournament where the Jackets will face either top-ranked Virginia or No. 2 North Carolina in the opening round. Georgia State fell to 4-22 for the year.

Maurice Bradford led Tech in scoring with 18 points and Lee Goza and Brian Howard each had 13. State held Tech's leading scorer, Brook Steppe, to only 10 points.

Randy Tucker of State took game honors with 28 points, Joe Brown added 17 and Holmes 16.

Coach Bobby Cremins of Tech raised State's defense, saying it frustrated his Jackets.

"They did an excellent job on Steppe playing a box and one and that hurt us early in the game," Cremins said. "I have to give Anthony Byrd the game MVP for this one. He came off the bench and hit several key jumpers, not to mention the all-important final two free throws. It was a very gutty performance."

"I thought we played well enough to win this one," said Coach Jim Jerrett of Georgia State. "The shot appeared as if it was going in, but I'm not sure that it was our player who touched it. It's a shame that our guys didn't come out on top in this one. It would have really helped our program."

LSU Pounds Kentucky; Mountaineer Streak Ends

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Freshmen Derrick Taylor and Steffond Johnson, and Howard Carter combined for 72 points and Louisiana State ran off 21 unanswered points in the first half of a regionally televised basketball game Saturday to jolt Kentucky 94-78, knocking the Wildcats out of co-leadership in the Southeastern Conference race.

Kentucky went into the game tied with Tennessee for the SEC lead and needed its seventh straight victory to gain a share or the outright title.

Kentucky led 23-20 with 8:43 to play in the first half when LSU went on a 21-point scoring binge. Taylor scored seven, Taylor six, and Johnson a pair of three-point plays in the run, as LSU boosted its lead to 41-23 with 2:45 left in the half.

LSU boosted its lead to 35 in the first eight minutes of the second half and Kentucky never came closer than the final margin.

Carter finished with 29, Taylor 24, and Johnson a career-high 19 plus 10 rebounds in a reserve role. In ending the five-game losing streak, LSU built its record to 11-7 in the SEC and 14-12 overall.

Derrick Hord led Kentucky with 24, Chuck Verderber chipped in with 14, and Jime Master added 11. Kentucky fell to 13-5 in the SEC and 20-6 overall as it lost for the first time in seven games.

Bradley 82
Tulsa 79

PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — Bradley used clutch free throws in overtime to edge past eighth-ranked Tulsa 82-79 Saturday and win its second Missouri Valley Conference basketball championship in three years.

The victory boosted the Braves' season record to 20-9 with 13-3 in the conference. The Golden Hurricane bowed out with 21-5 and 12-4.

The Braves played the final three minutes of the extra period without three starters. Willie Scott and Donald Rees fouled out, and David Thirdkill went out with a sprained ankle.

Bradley took a 37-31 halftime lead as Winters got 10 points.

Tulsa stormed to a 59-55 lead with 8:16 left. But Bradley rallied and Thirdkill's 20-foot jump shot in the final 39 seconds knotted the score 67-67 and sent the game into overtime.

Rutgers 74
W. Virginia 64

PISCATAWAY, N.J. (AP) — Kevin Black scored a team-high 18 points Saturday to lead Rutgers to a 74-64 upset victory over West Virginia, ending the Mountaineers' 23-game winning streak, the longest in the nation.

A crowd of 9,000, the largest ever at Rutgers Athletic Center, saw the home team improve its overall record to 18-8 and 9-5 in the Eastern Eight. The sixth-ranked Mountaineers dropped to 24-2 overall and 13-1 in the league.

Joining Black in double figures for the Knights were Clarence Tillman with 15 points, Brian Ellerbe with 13, and Chris Nieberlein with 10. Reserve Darius Griffin came off the bench to add nine.

With 4:57 left in the game, the Mountaineers closed within 52-50 on a Greg Jones jumper. Rutgers then took over, scoring 10 of the next 12 points to grab a 62-52 lead with 2:18 remaining. Five different Rutgers players tallied in the streak.

Rutgers sealed the win by running off 10 of the next 16 points to take a commanding 72-58 lead with 46 seconds remaining.

Both teams came out hot in the second half as West Virginia tried to reduce a 26-20 Rutgers half-time lead. Nieberlein gave Rutgers an 8-point lead on a 3-point play, 34-26, with 16:55 left in the game. Jones, who scored 15 points, and Phil Collins, who scored 12 points, answered for the Mountaineers, making the score 34-30 with 16:19 left.

Iowa 55

The Gophers, who moved into a tie with Iowa for first place in the league, got possession when Iowa's Bob Hansen missed a shot with eight seconds to play. Mitchell missed a 25-footer at the buzzer but was fouled by Mark Gannon. Mitchell then stepped to the line and calmly sank both shots.

The game close throughout, and the score was tied 53-53 at the end of regulation play. Mitchell and Hansen each scored in the first overtime, but Iowa's Steve Carfino slipped and fell to the floor when he tried a shot at the buzzer.

The Hawkeyes held the ball most of the second overtime until Hansen turned it over with three seconds to play. A desperation shot by Minnesota's Trent Tucker failed and the score remained tied at 55 at the end of the second overtime.

Georgetown 60
Connecticut 42

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Seven-foot center Pat Ewing scored 22 points to lead 12th-ranked Georgetown from a nine-point deficit in the first half to a 60-42 victory over Connecticut n a Big East Conference game Saturday.

The victory avenged a 63-52 Georgetown loss to Connecticut Jan. 20.

Connecticut ran off eight straight points — six by swingman Mike McKay — to take a 19-10 lead midway the first half. But Georgetown outscored Connecticut 8-2 in the last four minutes of the half. Georgetown then trailed by just two points, 24-22.

The Hoyas scored 10 straight points to open the second half, took a 32-26 lead and held it for the rest of the game.

Georgetown now is 10-4 in the Big East and 23-6 overall. Connecticut is 7-7 in the conference and 17-8 for the season.

Indiana 78
Michigan 70

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Indiana's Ted Kitchell poured in 28 points to lead the Hoosiers to 78-70 Big Ten basketball victory over Michigan Saturday.

Indiana, which raised its record to 16-9 on the year and 10-6 in the Big Ten, jumped out to an 10-7 lead at the 2½-minute mark, as Kitchell fired in six of those points.

Michigan, however, trailing 18-17 midway through the half, went on to outscore the Hoosiers 12-2 over a 5-minute stretch to take a 29-20 advantage with 5:45 remaining in the half.

After freshman guard Leslie Rockymore hit a free throw to cap off a three-point play, Michigan's lead was 10, at 32-22.

Kitchell and teammate Jim Thomas dominated the scoring in the second half as they combined for 32 points. Indiana finally regained the lead with 12:23 remaining when Thomas hit on a 15-footer to put the Hoosier up 55-54. The lead changed hands seven times over the next seven minutes as Michigan's Eric Turner pumped in four straight shots, including a jumper from the top of the key, that gave Michigan the lead for the last time, 64-63, with 7:56 left in the game.

Kitchell, the Big Ten's leading scorer, converted a three-point play and hit a short jumper to put Indiana in the lead, 68-64.

Oregon 66

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Rod Foster riddled the Oregon defense for a career-high 35 points Saturday to lead 20th-ranked UCLA to an 88-66 Pacific 10 Conference basketball victory over the Ducks.

Foster sank 11 of 12 field goal attempts and 13 of 14 free throws for the Bruins, who rebounded from Saturday night's 72-58 loss to Oregon State.

UCLA led throughout the game, building a 47-35 halftime margin. The Ducks, who have lost nine of their last 10 games, rallied to pull within 66-61 on a dunk rebound by Jerome Williams with 6:20 left.

Williams was called for a technical foul for hanging on the rim on his stuff shot and Foster sank the free throw. From there, UCLA went on a 10-4 spurt to move back in control at 77-65.

Auburn 56
Tennessee 54

AUBURN, Ala. (AP) — Alvin Mumphord sank two free throws with one second left to give Auburn a 56-54 victory over No.19 Tennessee Saturday night, denying the Vols an outright Southeastern Conference basketball championship.

Willie Burton lofted a last-gasp shot from midcourt as the final buzzer sounded, leaving Tennessee in a deadlock with seventh-ranked Kentucky for the conference title and marking the first time a champion had ever lost five league contests.

Alabama, which met Vanderbilt later Saturday night, could have made it a three-way title with a victory over the Commodores.

Tennessee fell to 18-8 overall and 13-5 in the SEC, while Auburn lifted its record to 13-13 and 7-11.

SEC officials apparently were told the wrong starting time and the game was delayed 3½ hours, an Auburn spokesman said.

The game was to start at 2 p.m., CST, but instead began at 5:30 p.m.

Vanderbilt 80
Alabama 63

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Willie "Hutch" Jones scored a career-high 37 points and hauled down 14 rebounds Saturday night to lead Vanderbilt past 17th-ranked Alabama, 80-63, spoiling the Crimson Tide's bid for a share of the Southeastern Conference basketball crown.

Jones, a 6-foot-8 senior center playing his final home game, was red hot in the second half, hitting all 11 shots from the floor. He tallied 25 of his game-high total in the second half when the Commodores erased a 35-33 Alabama halftime lead.

Jones scored six straight points at the beginning of the second half to put Vanderbilt ahead, 39-36, with 16:42 to play. The Commodores, now 7-11 in the conference and 14-12 on the season, never trailed from that point.

An Alabama victory would have given the Crimson Tide an unprecedented three-way share of first place in the conference with Tennessee and Kentucky, who finished the season with identical 13-5 records. That marks the first time a team has won the SEC title with five losses in the regular season.

The defeat dropped Alabama to 12-6 in the conference, 20-6 on the year.

Texas Tech 61

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Senior center Scott Hastings scored 17 points and Keith Peterson thwarted the offense of Clarence Swannegan as 15th-ranked Arkansas won the Southwest Conference basketball title Saturday night with a 67-61 victory over Texas Tech.

Hastings, plagued by foul problems in the first half, scored 11 points after intermission. Meanwhile Peterson, a senior forward, limited Swannegan to one shot in the first 17 minutes of the second half. Swannegan, a senior center, finished with 18 points on the night, 15 of those in the first half.

Fresno St. 73
Utah St. 61

LOGAN, Utah (AP) — Guard Donald Mason's 22 points paced 14th-ranked Fresno State to a 73-61 Pacific Coast Athletic Association basketball victory over Utah State on Saturday night in the final league game for both teams.

Mason hit 10 of 12 field goal attempts for 20 points in the first half as the Bulldogs took a 39-24 lead. Rod Higgins added 15 points for Fresno, now 24-2 overall.

The Bulldogs won the PCAA with a 13-1 record and will have the top-seed and a first-round bye in the league's post-season tournament starting Wednesday.

Utah State, 2-12 in the league and 4-22 entering the tournament, was led by Haakon Austefjord with 16 points and Leo Cunningham with 12 points.

Maryland Downs Lady 'Pack

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Marcia Richardson's 23 points sparked 11th-ranked Maryland to a 79-64 victory over 9th-ranked North Carolina State in the semifinals of the Women's Atlantic Coast Conference basketball tournament Saturday night.

The 3rd-seeded Terrapins, 21-6, will take on 4th-seeded Clemson, which defeated North Carolina 84-76, in the championship Sunday at 4 p.m.

After Karen Brabson's free throw with 10:36 remaining put the Wolfpack up 53-52, Maryland scored 14 unanswered points.

Maryland's biggest cushion was at 1:01 when Myra Waters connected on a foul shot to make it 79-59.

The lead changed hands 19 times in the first half before Maryland pulled away to a 37-31 advantage at 4:04 on a bonus shot by Waters. The Terrapins led 41-36 at halftime.

Jasmina Perazic and Waters scored 15 points each for Maryland, while Belinda Pearman chipped in 10. Connie Rogers had 12 for N.C. State and Angie Armstrong added 11.

Coca Cola 200 Is Postponed

ROCKINGHAM, N.C. (AP) — Rain on Saturday, following a night of snow and sleet, forced postponement of the Coca Cola 200-mile late model sportsman ace at North Carolina Motor Speedway.

The sportsman race was rescheduled for Sunday, June 27.

The cold, wet weather also canceled the scheduled third and final session of time trials for Sunday's Carolina 500 Grand National stock car race.

The race is scheduled to start at 12:05 p.m. EST Sunday, with the National Weather Service forecasting clearing by Sunday morning, with cloudy skies and temperatures in the low 40s during the day.

Stadler Salvages Doral Lead

Keeping An Eye On Ball?
Craig Stadler fires out of a sand trap on the front nine during Saturday's third-round of the Doral-Eastern Open. Stadler leads going into today's final round. (AP Laserphoto)

MIAMI (AP) — Craig Stadler opened the gates to a host of challengers with a string of early bogeys. He then slammed it in their faces with a pair of magnificent closing putts that salvaged sole control of the led Saturday in the third round of the $300,000 Doral-Eastern Open Golf Tournament.

"With that start — four over after six holes — I could have gone for a very high number," said Stadler, who had to make a remarkable turnaround of his erratic effort to shoot a 73 on the windswept Blue Monster course at the Doral Country Club.

It was just enough to give the winner of the Tucson Open earlier this year a one-shot lead going into Sunday's final 18 holes.

"When you get a day like today and don't take advantage of it, well, that's not the way to win golf tournaments," said Jack Nicklaus, one of five men who either led or shared the lead during the day's play.

"With Craig getting off to that bad start, he set it up for a bunch of fellows to make a move, but nobody could take advantage of it. Nobody among the leaders could shoot a good score and take control.

"The result is that we're all in a jam and somebody is going to have to shoot a good round tomorrow to win it."

There were numerous opportunities for a variety of players to take control. No one was able to do it.

And Stadler reasserted himself with a birdie putt of some 80-90 feet on the 17th hole then salvaged a bogey — and sole control of the top spot — with a 40-foot putt on the extremely difficult 18th.

Stadler, who also led the first and second days, finished three rounds at 208, eight shots under par.

A single stroke back at 209 were Jerry Pate, Andy Bean and Mike Nicolette. Pate had a 69, ean 72 and the long-shot Nicolette, who said he's "only looking to finish in the top 20," managed a 71.

Nicklaus, Cal Peete and Scott Hoch were another stroke back at 210. Peete had a 70, Hoch 71 and Nicklaus matched par 72 after a birdie-birdie start had given him a share of the lead.

"It was very erratic," Nicklaus said. "I just didn't play well at all. I guess you could say my golf game was on vacation."

Ray Floyd, winner of this event the last two years, had a 75 and was at par 216. Lee Trevino had 75-221.

The chunky Stadler, a two-stroke leader when play started, immediately encountered difficulties, going 4-over par after six holes. And that opened the gates for a flock of challengers.

Bean, Nicklaus, Nicolette and Pate all shared the lead at one time or another. But, one by one, they began dropping back and Stadler regained his composure.

He got back to even par for the day with a mamouth, 80-90 foot birdie putt on the 17th hole.

Then he faced the pivotal 18th, a water-guarded, 437-yard par-4 that Stadler called "the toughest finishing hole on the tour."

His assessment proved correct. Of the seven men atop the standings, only Peete and Nicolette were able to make par. The other five — Nicklaus, Bean, Pate, Stadler and Hoch — all made bogey. Pate dumped his third in a bunker. Nicklaus made a remarkable recovery from shallow water then blew a 5-6 foot par-saving putt. Bean 3-putted. It was a golfing horror show.

And Stadler had the toughest row of them all.

It took him four to reach te green and he was staring straight into the face of a disastrous double bogey-6 which would have cost him sole control of the lead. But he made the 40-foot bogey putt — the fifth time in three days he's scored from that distance or more — and salvaged the top spot.

"I could have gone for a very high number after that start," Stadler said. "Those two putts at the end, 80 or 90 feet for birdie on the 17th and the 40-footer for bogey on the last, three of eight, while the Indians canned 13 of 15. The Indians had two less turnovers, 10 to 8 — and three of those by the Tribe came in the final three minutes.

Things didn't improve at all in the second half, as the Indians continued to pull away from the Pirates. W&M scored the first six points of the half, running the lead out to 43-21 before Charles Green ended the drought.

But the Indians kept plugging away and the lead eventually reached as much as 26 at 67-41 on a dunk by Moats with 5:40 left to play.

Indian coach Bruce Parkhill went to his bench shortly after that, and the Pirates were able to mount a small comeback in the remaining time.

The Indians held a small rebounding edge, 35-33, led by nine by Ken Bowen. Hargrove had as many for the Pirates.

The Indians, now 6-5 in the conference and 15-11 overall, saw Strayhorn (13), Barnes (12), Richardson (11) and Keith Cieplicki (10) join Moats in double figures.

And Odom admits that defense is the primary problem. "I don't know if we can go back in two days and pick up what we did right for two months," he said. "We have to clear our minds, get the right techniques and intensity by Thursday."

Odom said he really had no answer as to what has happened to the defense. "Ten days ago, we were holding our opponents to 48 percent from the floor. But we haven't stopped anybody for ten days."

Unless the Pirates find the answer, their stay in Norfolk would seem to be destined to be a short one.

Long Wins Title...

of the first period. It was a hint of things to come.

Long followed that by pinning Jon Bullins of Madison-Mayodan in 54 seconds in the quarterfinals and Pat Tucker of Statesville in 1:49 in the semifinals. In the championship match, he then pinned Ronnie Grinton of Starmount at around the two minute mark to win the title.

"To win all four matches by pin is just unheard of," Sherman said. "It's been done, but usually in the heavyweight division.

"Mike just seemed to peak for the tournament," Sherman added. "He's done his best wrestling the last two weeks in the (sectional and regional) tournaments."

Long was not the only Viking wrestler in the tournament. Teammate Lorenzo Strong ended up fourth at 141 pounds. Strong decisioned Reggie Deberry of Greensboro Page, 13-2, but then lost to Randy Lowery of Brevard.

Strong decisioned Darrell Fair of East Gaston and then won by forfeit over Mike Chesson of Plymouth to make it into the consolation finals. There he dropped a decision to Greg Raleigh of Western Guilford to finish fourth.

Three other area wrestlers also competed in the state meet. Williamston's John Corey defeated Todd Seaford of Central Cabarrus but lost to Ronnie Peoples of East Forsyth and did not place.

Brian Purvis, also of Williamston, lost to Marshall Black of A.C. Reynolds in the first round. Farmville Central's Charles Sutton also lost in the opening round, dropping a decision to Aron Cloniger of North Gaston.

ECU took an eight-point lead on three different occasions in the first half, the last time at 20-12 on Jones' eight-foot jumper with 12:39 left in the first 20 minutes.

The Lady Gamecocks, however, rallied behind Foster and Johnson as they tied it at 24-24 on a 10-foot jumper by Johnson with 9:15 left. USC then outscored the Lady Pirates, 27 to 14, over the last nine minutes to take a 13-point lead at intermission.

USC stretched its lead to 18 at 73-55 on an 18-foot set shot by Johnson with 11:34 to go in the game. Only minutes earlier, ECU had cut the lead to eight, 61-53, when Chaney hit a five-foot turnaround. But the Lady Gamecocks worked the ball inside over the next four minutes to go up by 18.

With the score 78-61, ECU began to rally. Chaney hit a pair of jumpers to cut it to 78-65 and then Jones hit a 18-footer to make 83-73 with 3:48 left in the contest.

Two minutes later ECU scored six straight points on a shot by Jones, a bucket inside by Chaney and a 10-footer by Foster to cut the lead to 86-79. Chaney then hit her two free throws to cut it to five with just under a minute remaining, but the Lady Pirates could get no closer.

"I think South Carolina played one hell of a game," Andruzzi said. "We had eight turnovers in the first half and only five in the second half. We didn't play as well as we could, but South Carolina is one of the finest teams in the country."

ECU plays host to North Carolina Wednesday night in its season-finale.

Rocky Mount Rolls Past Rose, 70-53

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

ROCKY MOUNT — George McClain poured through 27 points and led Rocky Mount's regular season champs to a 70-53 victory over Greenville Rose in the finals of the Big East tournament Friday night.

The win gives Rocky Mount possession of the top seed for the league in the state playoffs which begins Tuesday. The Gryphons will play host to the runner-up in the Mid-South Conference. Rose, as the league's runner-up, will travel to meet the Cap-Eight winner, Smithfield-Selma, which won its tournament over Raleigh Enloe, 44-43, Friday night.

Rocky Mount also won the girls' championship, downing Wilson Beddingfield, 67-56.

With McClain leading the way, the Rocky Mount club overpowered the Rampants in the third period, running a six-point halftime advantage out to as many as 15 before the quarter was over. The Rampants, which had stuck with the Gryphons faily well in the first half, were unable to keep up in the second half, as their shot selection dropped off after the first period and never recovered.

The Rampants were also plagued by turnovers after the first quarter, but it was really in the second half before either the turnover situation or the shooting really began to tell.

"There's no doubt in my mind that Rocky Mount is the best team in the conference," Rose Coach Jim Brewington said. "I thought we stuck with them well for a while, but we just ran out of steam."

Brewington admitted that the Rampants made too many mistakes, took too many bad shots and turned the ball over too often. "When you're playing a good team like Rocky Mount, you can't make that kind of mistakes and hope to win.

"We had the chance there in the second half to build up a lead, but we missed too many easy shots under the basket. That took away our opportunity to win it. But I think we were playing a team that has a great chance to win the state championship.

"And there's no better player in the league than McClain."

Brewington, whose Rampants have now fallen three times this season to the Gryphons, would like another shot at them, but would have to make it into the regionals in two weeks to have a chance at them again.

But if the Rampants do get that chance, they'll have to cut down on turnovers and improve their shooting.

Rose ended up with 21 turnovers, ten more than the Gryphons committed. And from the floor, Rose shot only 36.2 percent, hitting just 21 of 58 shots. Rocky Mount, in contrast, pushed in 29 of 53 for 54.9 percent.

Rose was especially hurt in the second period when, after taking a three-point lead, they fell behind by six. In that period, Rose shot only 30 percent (3 of 10) and had eight turnovers to just two for the Gryphons.

The shooting didn't improve in the third period, when Rose made just four of 13 and added six more turnovers. And in the final frame, the Rampants hit just five of 17 shots, although cutting their turnovers to only three.

The game was tight throughout the first period. Rose got the intial lead, but Rocky Mount came back on baskets by McClain and Alton Phillips to take a 4-2 lead. Rose regained in on baskets by William Battle and Barry Smith, 6-4, but lost it again on a three-point play by Chuck Robbins, 7-6.

After that, the two teams swapped baskets five times before Jerome Garrett hit a jumper from the lane with 3:31 left for a 13-12 Rocky Mount lead. McClain added another from almost the same spot just over a minute later to make it 15-12, and the Gryphons held the lead the rest of the period, taking a 20-18 margin at the horn.

Tim Harris scored from underneath 15 seconds into the second quarter, and was fouled on the play. He knocked in the free throw to put Rose back up, 21-20. Single free throws by Garrett and Mike Williams returned the lead to Rocky Mount, but Donnell Lee and Freddy Cherry both scored on drives to give Rose a 25-22 lead with 6:25 left.

But over the remaining six minutes of the period, Rocky Mount took control. One factor in that was that Harris, who had dominated inside play through the first 10 minutes of play, was sidelined briefly by a foot injury. Before he could return, Rocky Mount had taken control of the game — control it never lost.

During the final six minutes, the Gryphons, led by eight points by McClain, outhit the Rampants, 12-3. That powered them out into as much as a six-point lead, 32-26, before settling for a 34-28 lead at the half.

Phillips scored off the tap to get the second half underway, and after another three-point play by Harris, the two teams swapped shots once more. But then, the Gryphons ran off nine straight points, all but two by Williams, to run away to a 47-33 lead. Rose cut it back to nine, but three more Gryphon baskets, including two by McClain ran it out to 53-38 before Rose scored to close out the quarter.

Things got no better in the final minutes as Rose tried too hard to catch up, forcing shots even more, with Rocky Mount controlling the boards early. That helped the Gryphons to steadily inch away, building up as much as a 21-point lead with just under a minute left. That came on two McClain free throws at 70-49.

In addition to McClain's 27, Williams added 14 and Phillips hit 13.

Rose was led by Harris with 12 points, while Cherry and Battle each added 10.

The Rampants, now 14-11, travel to Smithfield-Selma High School on Tuesday for the first round of the 4-A state playoffs. A win would move them into the Eastern Regionals, set March 12 and 13 at Wilson Hunt High School. A loss ends the season.

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — A jumper by Frankie Dickens with 14 seconds left topped a second-half rally and gave North Carolina-Wilmington a 50-49 victory over Baptist in a college basketball game Saturday afternoon.

The Buccaneers led for the entire first half and most of the second half until Dickens and Randy McMillan led a Seahawk rally which brought them from a 39-34 deficit to the victory.

The Seahawks, who finished at 13-14 in their first losing season in six years, were led by McMillan with 13 points and 12 rebounds. Junior Shawn Williams added 11, including the 1,000th point of his career midway in the second half.

Baptist, which closed at 13-13, its best record since 1973, was led by Reggie Walker and Jack Avent, each with 12 points.

Lady Tigers Dumped By Weldon Club, 47-42

WELDON — The Roanoke River Conference completed a near-sweep of the Northeastern Conference Friday night, eliminating the Williamston girls and the Washington boys from the District I 3-A Tournament.

Williamston's girls were downed by Weldon, 47-42, while Washington's boys fell before Southeast Halifax, 77-65.

That set up semifinal action for Saturday and Monday night, with the finals scheduled for Wednesday. Saturday night, in the girls' game, Warren County was to meet Weldon, with Northampton facing Southeast Halifax in the boys' game.

Weldon's girls slipped into a 14-10 lead in the first period of the game with Williamston and held to the lead after that. They outscored the Lady Tigers, 12-9, in the second quarter and build the lead out to 26-20. In the third period, Weldon, which won the Roanoke River title, again outhit the Tigers, 12-8, running the lead out to 38-28. Williamston managed a rally in the final period, 14-9, but failed to catch up.

Kennan Menefee led the Weldon scoring with 14 points, while Lisa Turner added 12 and Carol Hughes had 10. Williamston's scoring was paced by Theresa Duffy with 18 while Gail Smith had 11.

Williamston finishes the season with a 13-8 record.

Williamston (42) — Smith 5 1-2 11, Duffy 9 0-0 18, Oglesby 2 1-2 5, Mills 2 0-1 4, Sanders 0 0-0 0, Speller 2 0-0 4. Totals 20 2-5 42.

Panthers Down Eagles In OT, 47-31

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer

LITTLEFIELD — North Pitt coach Cobby Deans was only too aware of the talent West Craven possessed. "On paper," Dean said, "they are the most talented team we've seen all year."

Seen — and conquered.

With junior forward Dennis Bradley scoring seven of his game-high 20 points, the Panthers outscored West Craven, 16 to 0, in overtime en route to a 47-31 victory Friday evening in the District II 3-A semifinals before an estimated crowd of over 2,000.

North Pitt, now 20-7, will meet D.H. Conley Tuesday evening at 8:30 for the district championship. The Vikings rolled past Greene Central, 71-53, Friday night in the other semifinal game.

Also Friday, Charles B. Aycock's girls beat West Carteret, 61-44, to advance to the finals. Aycock will face unbeaten and defending state champion SouthWest Edgecombe Tuesday night (7:00) for title.

"We knew we'd have to play a super game and we didn't," Deans said after watching his team advance to the district finals for the second consecutive year. "They're talented, but I'd rather have heart than talent."

The Panthers displayed both in the last three minutes of the fourth period when they overcame their own ineptness at the foul line to rally from three points down before West Craven sent the contest into overtime with a 17-foot jumper by junior guard Wayne Becton at the buzzer.

North Pitt, which lost to Roanoke, 63-52, a year ago in the district finals, cut an eight-point halftime deficit to one at the end of the third period. Three times early in the final period the Panthers saw chances to take the lead end in turnovers — the third of which Lynwood Harris converted into a baseline jumper to give the Eagles a 29-26 lead with 3:12 left.

Vince Parker's jumper from the right baseline pulled the Panthers within one and Bradley then canned two foul shots after rebounding a West Craven miss to give North Pitt a 30-29 lead with 2:41 to go.

After another Eagle miss, Mitch Cox grabbed the rebound and was fouled — the first of four one-and-one opportunites North Pitt failed to take advantage of in the final two minutes of regulation.

Cox missed the free throw but West Craven forward Norman Becton bounced the rebound off his knee out of bounds. Three seconds and one North Pitt timeout later Greg Hines was fouled.

Hines, who hit 66% from the line during the season, failed to connect on his foul shot opportunity, but an Eagle turnover with 30 seconds left gave North Pitt the ball once more.

The Eagles appeared to have Cox trapped in the backcourt when the Panthers' point guard slipped to the floor, but Harris was called for a foul. Cox again missed the free throw and the Panthers continued to cling to their one-point lead.

Bradley was called for a blocking foul against Wayne Becton with 19 seconds left, but Becton — like his opponents before him — missed the foul shot and Hines was fouled as he grabbed the rebound.

Hines hit the front end of the one-and-one but missed the second and with 17 seconds left North Pitt led, 31-29. After a West Craven time out, the Eagles quickly worked the ball to 6-6 reserve center Sam Nelson.

Nelson, who replaced starting center Ronnie Bellamy after Bellamy fouled out with 2:41 left in regulation, missed a jumper from the right baseline. Tap follows by both Clifton Blount and Nelson also rolled off before the ball bounced outside to Wayne Becton.

Overtime was no contest. The Panthers put together one of their best three minutes this season. A jumper by Bradley and two free throws by Hines gave North Pitt a 35-31 lead.

Then, after an Eagle turnover, North Pitt went to its stall and when Bradley took a pass from Parker and drove the lane for a layup the Panthers led, 37-31 and on their way to the district finals.

"The big play in the game was when Vince Parker had the ball in the corner and hit Bradley," Deans said. "It was a super play. We had a chance to hold the ball, but I told the guys if Dennis had a chance for a layup give him the ball."

For much of the night that's exactly what the Panthers did. Bradley hit eight of 16 shots from the floor and four of eight from the foul line for his 20 points. He also grabbed 14 rebounds.

"Dennis Bradley is playing exceptionally well," Deans said. "He's really providing us with some leadership in the last half of the season."

West Craven, which ends the season at 16-5, was led in scoring by Harris with 11 points and Bellamy with 10.

The Eagles other three starters scored just five points as West Craven's outside shooting, particularly that of Wayne Becton and Clifton Blount, was shut down by the Panthers' 1-3-1 zone.

West Craven outrebounded the Panthers, 29-22, led by Harris with nine and Nelson eight, but the Panthers did not fare nearly as badly as Deans feared they might.

"We worked on rebounding last week," Deans said. "And I thought we held our own, especially in the second half. It wasn't like the nightmare I thought it might be."

The first half while not a nightmare was neither a stoll. After a slow first quarter that ended with the Eagles up, 6-5, Bellamy hit two jumpers to erase the Panthers' only lead of the first half (11-9) and go up, 15-11, with 2:46 left.

Nelson then hit one foul shot and Harris tapped in the second to send the Eagles into the dressing room ahead, 20-12.

Harris' dunk off the second-half tap gave West Craven a 22-12 lead — its biggest of the night. But three consecutive jumpers — two by Parker — pulled the Panthers back within four (22-18).

Bradley worked inside late in the period for a bucket when Harris was called for goaltending. Bradley was fouled on the play, but missed the free throw and the Panthers trailed, 25-24, at the end of the quarter.

Trinity Falls To Grace, 65-59

ROCKY MOUNT — Gene Lamb scored 23 points and Grace Christian held off Trinity Christian in the second half en route to a 65-59 victory Friday night in a high school basketball game.

Trinity, now 12-2 overall and 7-1 in conference play, trailed at the end of the first period, 11-6, and fell further behind in the second quarter and trailed at the half, 26-14.

Trinity edged within 10 at the end of the third period, 44-34, and cut the gap to six in the final quarter but could get no closer.

Joining Lamb in double figures for Grace was Ron Winstead with 17 points, John Hamilton with 13 and Al Brooks with 10.

John Moran led Trinity in scoring with 28 points. Greg Jones added 14 points for Trinity.

Trinity travels to Rocky Mount Friday for its league tournament. Tournament pairings have yet to be set.

District 1-A

BATH — Belhaven's girls and Chocowinity's boys advanced to the finals of the District I, 1-A Tournament Friday night.

Belhaven topped Bath, 34-30, and will face Chocowinity in the girls' finals on Tuesday at 7 p.m.

In the boys' contest, Chocowinity defeated Mattamuskeet, 60-53, and moves into the finals against Belhaven. That game will be played Tuesday at 8:30 p.m.

Gatlin, Tyson Pace Vikings By Rams

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer

LITTLEFIELD — D.H. Conley used the one-two punch of guard Keith Gatlin and center Sammy Tyson to KO Greene Central and storm into the District II 3-A finals.

Gatlin pumped in 28 points and pulled down 11 rebounds and Tyson scored 25 points and grabbed 12 rebounds to spark the Vikings to a 71-53 win over the Rams Friday night before an estimated crowd of over 2,000.

Conley, which has now won 11 straight games, will square off against North Pitt Tuesday night (8:30) for the district title. The Panthers defeated West Craven, 47-31, in overtime Friday in the other, semifinal game.

Also Friday evening, Charles B. Aycock's girls whipped West Carteret, 61-44, to advance to the finals. The Lady Falcons will meet unbeaten and defending state champion SouthWest Edgecombe Tuesday night (7:00) for title.

"I felt good about the game all day," D.H. Conley coach Shelley Marsh said after the win. "The guys were in the right frame of mind coming in. I have to feel good right now."

Greene Central coach Lewis Godwin was feeling anything but good after the season-ending loss.

"The best team won tonight," Godwin said. "I told the kids at halftime when we were down by eight the only way we'd come back was to go out and get them. We took a gamble and tried to go to the man-to-man but they were just too much for us."

Indeed. The Vikings, now 18-8, took advantage of the Rams' gamble to score 12 straight points in the first 2½ minutes of the third quarter and leave Godwin clearing his bench early.

"I thought the game done had been settled by then," Godwin said. The Rams, who finish up 17-9, closed to within 11 with two minutes left in the game but could get no closer.

"We got them out of their offensive patterns," Marsh said about the 12-0 run. "A couple of their players started standing around. I told my players that if we kept taking it to them they'd quit and they did."

After two foul shots by both Tyson and Leon Cox gave the Vikings a 12-8 lead at the end of the first quarter, Gatlin canned two jumpers early in the second period to extend the lead to 18-10.

The Rams cut the deficit to four (20-16) on a jumper by Darius Warren, but Tyson sliced inside for a bucket and followed up a miss by Gatlin to push the lead back to eight (26-18) with 1:53 left.

Back-to-back three point plays by Greene Central forward Roderick Lane cut the deficit in half (26-22), but Tyson hit two free throws and drove the middle for a bucket to give Conley a 30-22 lead at the half.

The lead quickly grew to 20 in the third quarter. Of the Rams first eight trips down court, five ended with missed shots and three in turnovers. The Vikings, meanwhile, were scoring on 12 straight points.

Two jumpers by Gatlin got the streak started. Four free throws by Tyson and two layups by Gatlin and the Vikings led, 42-22, with 5:20 to go in the third quarter.

A disgusted Godwin pulled his starters at that point and Greene Central never recovered. The Vikings led at the end of the third period, 52-30. The Rams did cut it to 11 on a three-point play by Warren, but Tyson's three-point cut short any thoughts of a Ram rally.

"I thought we really got it going in the third quarter," Marsh said. "We didn't get complacent (with an eight-point halftime lead). Sometimes that's real hard not to do."

Gatlin hit on 10 field goals and was eight of eight from the line for his game-high 28 points. He also had five assists. Tyson connected on seven field goals and was 11 of 12 from the line.

The Vikings were 25 of 28 from the line, the Rams five of five. Conley hit 23 of 53 (43.4%) from the floor while Greene Central was 24 of 61 (39.3%) against DHC's active 2-3 zone. The Vikings outrebounded the Rams, 29-22.

Greene Central was led in scoring by Lane with 16 points, half of which came in the second half after the game was decided. Warren added 13 points and guard James Thompson with 10.

"Defensively, we put emphasis on Lane and Thompson," Marsh said. "Lane is good on the offensive boards and we made sure we were blocking him out." Lane, who was the ECC's top rebounder with a 9.1 average, finished with only five rebounds.

"They did a good job on Roderick," Godwin said. "But we just didn't get a lot of rebounds out there tonight. And when you don't do that against a team like that it's hard to win.

"And James just wasn't hitting tonight. He hit 70% last night (in a 59-56 win over West Carteret). He can't do that every night," Godwin added. "The only thing that really disappoints me is that we weren't patient in looking for the good shots."

Knight Teams Make Finals

Greenville Christian Academy swept a pair of games from Falls Road Academy Friday night and gained the finals of the District IV tournament, which was to be played Saturday night.

The Knights downed Falls Road, 68-55, in the boys game, and added a 24-18 victory in the girls game.

Saturday night's finals were to pit the GCA girls against Wake Christian, a 75-25 victor over Wilson Christian, while the GCA boys faced Wilson Christian, which nipped Wake Christian, 67-59, in overtime.

Greenville Christian, now 19-1, eased ahead, 10-8, in the first period of the boys' game, and then increased that with an 18-15 margin in the second quarter. That made it 28-23 for the Knights at halftime.

The Knights did the most damage in the third period, outscoring Falls Road, 17-10, to run the lead out to 45-33. Then, in the final quarter, Greenville enjoyed a 23-22 margin to wrap it up.

Troy Hudson led GCA in scoring with 22 points, while John Parnell added 11 and David Hollingsworth had 10. Falls Road was led by Bubba Hemrick with 21, while Phillip Winstead had 12 and Mendel Byrd added 10.

In the girls' game, Falls Road managed a 4-2 lead after one period, but GCA came back with a 6-4 margin in the second to tie it up at halftime, 8-8.

In the third period, Greenville outscored Falls Road, 7-4, to move into a 15-12 lead. GCA then finished off Falls Road, 9-6, to capture the win.

LOVE OF ANIMALS

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Tampa Bay defensive lineman David Logan likes animals.

"I like to visit zoos and pet stores," he said. "I like animals because everyone else is afraid of them but they won't hurt you. I gave a guy a ticket to a game and he said he would give me a boa constrictor but I didn't take it. I almost purchased a lion but I didn't have the space to keep him. I knew he'd grow up to be a 500-pounder, and that would be unfair."

Pacers Run Past San Antonio, 108-100

By The Associated Press

The Indiana coach put the theory into practice Friday night and the Pacers ran off with a 108-100 victory over San Antonio, their sixth victory in eight games and their fifth in a row over the Spurs.

In Friday night's other National Basketball Association games it was Los Angeles 116, Philadelphia 114 in two overtimes; Chicago 116, Atlanta 110 in one overtime; Boston 122, San Diego 110; New Jersey 110, Portland 106; Washington 100, Kansas City 98; Houston 111, Golden State 95; Seattle 98, Utah 97, and Phoenix 131, Denver 122.

"We've changed our offensive theory and our offensive ideas. Our entire offense is based on the running game. It picks us up. We're not slowing down in any area," McKinney said after guard Don Buse scored a season-high 23 points, handed out 10 assists and limited George Gervin, the NBA's scoring leader, to 24 points, nine below the Iceman's average.

Even Stan Albeck, the Spurs' coach, had to hand it to Buse. "His direction of their offense was the key," Albeck said. "Certainly his shooting had a direct effect on the overall game." Buse hit 11 of 14 shots from the field, including one three-pointer.

Lakers 116, 76ers 114

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored five of his season-high 41 points in the second overtime period as the Lakers ran their winning streak to six in a row and snapped the 76ers' streak at 10 victories.

Andrew Toney, who led Philadelphia with 27 points, put the 76ers up 99-97 on a jumper with 10 seconds to go. But Abdul-Jabbar sent the game into overtime with a pair of free throws. He hit on 17 of 27 shots from the field. He also had 19 rebounds and five blocked shots.

"He carried us tonight," said Lakers Coach Pat Riley. "... The guy's got just about everything he's always had."

Bulls 116, Hawks 110

Reggie Theus of Chicago sent his game into overtime by sinking a rebound at the buzzer to tie it 100-100. And in the fifth period, Artis Gilmore's hook shot with 25 seconds remaining broke a 110-110 tie, then Ricky Sobers added four points to snap the Hawks' five-game winning streak.

Celtics 122, Clippers 110

The Celtics saw a 21-point lead shrivel to 109-99 with 3:57 to play before Kevin McHale's two baskets got Boston untracked and halted the threat.

"Being a young club, we're not prone to have patience at that time," said Clippers Coach Paul Silas. "Then Boston came back and scored a few times and we couldn't come back after that." Michael Brooks had 24 points for San Diego.

Nets 110, Blazers 106

Ray Williams scored 22 points and Buck Williams had 21 for the Nets, who rallied from 14 points down in the fourth quarter. But it was Darwin Cook's steal and basket that knocked off the Trail Blazers.

With the score tied 106-106, Cook swiped the ball from Portland's Bob Gross and put in the layup that gave New Jersey a lead it never relinquished. The Trail Blazers missed their next shot and rookie Albert King sealed the victory with a jumper 14 seconds from the buzzer.

Bullets 100, Kings 98

Spencer Haywood scored a season-high 27 points, then rookie Frank Johnson scored six of Washington's final seven points as the Bullets snapped a three-game tailspin and handed the Kings their fourth consecutive loss and their 14th in a row on the road.

Kansas City, led by Mike Woodson's 16 points, had a final chance to win it after Jim Chones sank a free throw for Washington with three seconds left. But Phil Ford missed a three-pointer at the buzzer.

Rockets 111, Warriors 95

Moses Malone pumped in 43 points and hauled down 23 rebounds and Elvin Hayes added 25 points and 13 rebounds as Houston buried the Warriors.

Golden State, which trailed by as many as 18 points, got within five with 3½ minutes to go, then the Rockets scored 12 of the remaining 13 points. Purvis Short had 24 points to lead the Warriors.

Sonics 98, Jazz 97

Utah built a 15-point lead in the second period, then Seattle began pecking away. The Sonics caught up at the end of the third quarter, the two teams played virtually evenly the rest of the way, then Jack Sikma's two free throws with eight seconds remaining gave Seattle the victory.

Sikma led the Sonics with 24 points. Adrian Dantley had 36 for the Jazz.

Wally Walker, one of Seattle's starting forwards, missed the game and will be out of action for an undetermined length of time because of a broken right index finger apparently sustained Thursday night in a loss to Los Angeles.

Suns 131, Nuggets 122

Len "Truck" Robinson scored 32 points and guards Dennis Johnson and Walter Davis teamed for 44 more as the Suns handed Denver its fifth straight loss and moved into third place in the Pacific Division, one-half game ahead of the Warriors.

Dan Issel had 35 points for the Nuggets. Their coach, Doug Moe, was thrown out of the game, drawing two technical fouls for protesting a call too vehemently.

NFL Players Group Accuses Owners Of Trying To Hide Pact

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Football League Players Association has accused NFL owners of trying to hide a new $2 billion television contract until a new collective bargaining agreement can be ironed out.

The league and officials for all three major networks, meanwhile, deny that such a TV contract exists.

The new deal, as described by NFLPA executive director Ed Garvey on Friday, would give the league $400 million a year for the next five years. Garvey said the TV package called for CBS to pay $800 million, NBC $700 million and ABC $500 million for the rights to broadcast NFL games.

Garvey charged that the NFL owners knew of the television package during last week's contract talks with the union in Miami, but had remained silent.

"The owners knew about the deal but said nothing," said Garvey. "They never put any money on the table and ended the talks quickly to set up a meeting among themselves."

In New York, NFL information director Joe Browne denied Garvey's statements.

"It is not true," Browne said. "The TV contracts are still being negotiated.

However, Garvey predicted that leaking word of the television contract would "pressure" the owners into reaching a settlement quicker than expected.

In the opening of the contract talks last week, the players' union made its chief demand 55 per cent of the team's gross profits. At the time, Garvey estimated each team's gross profits at $11.6 million, a figure Garvey placed Friday at $15.6 million.

"We seriously underestimated their revenues," Garvey claimed looking at a new set of figures the union says it has gathered from recent court cases, public hearings and player contracts.

The union's demand for 55 percent of the teams' gross profits would result in a windfall for the players. According to the union, the league's average salary last year was $83,000.

The league's current minimum wage is $32,000 for a five-year veteran and $22,000 for a rookie.

The league's 28 teams grossed $438 million in 1981, ranging from a low of $14.15 million for the Cincinnati Bengals to a high of $19.81 million for the Los Angeles Rams, according to Garvey.

Largess proved no guarantee of success in 1981 with five of the six largest payrolls — Denver, Pittsburgh, Oakland, Chicago and New England — belonging to teams who failed to make the playoffs.

In New York, the NFL Management Council, which represents the owners, announced it would file a grievance early next week with the National Labor Relations Board charging the union with violating the confidentiality provisions of an earlier agreement by releasing information concerning the players' salaries.

Garvey, meanwhile, spent Friday afternoon with NLRB general counsel William A. Lubbers asking the board to uphold an unfair labor practices charge filed last year by the union against the management council for failing to release financial data the union says it needs to conduct contract talks.

Youth Wildlife-Forestry Camp Set — Youths who are interested in the outdoors may want to attend the 28th 4-H Forestry-Wildlife Camp from July 12-17 at the Sertoma 4-H Camp located adjacent to Hanging Rock State Park about 30 miles north of Winston-Salem.

The camp will include classes in forestry, wildlife, hunter safety, archery, aquatic biology, the use of maps and compass, and other items. Those in Scouting programs may receive full-credit for completion of appropriate merit badges or ranks at the camp. The camp is sponsored by the Southern Bell Telephone Company and Federal Cartridge Company in cooperation with the N.C. Agricultural Extension Service and the N.C. Wildlife Resources Commission.

Enrollment is open to all youths age 14 and up, and will be on a first-come, first-served basis. The cost is $65 per camper, and a $20 registration fee is required by May 1. For more information, contact your local 4-H agent at the N.C. Agricultural Extension Service.

Dixie Deer Classic Slated — The second annual Dixie Deer Classic will be held on Saturday, March 6 from 9 a.m. until 6 p.m. at the Kerr Scott Building at the North Carolina State Fairgrounds in Raleigh, North Carolina. The event is sponsored by the Wake County Wildlife Club, and features exhibits of deer heads, hunting supplies, and displays of white-tailed deer management by the N.C. Wildlife Resources Commission.

There will also be an awards program for the best deer taken in North Carolina — and last year, over 200 deer heads were on display. Prominent speakers, including John Wooters, a well-known Texas deer hunter and outdoor writer, will deliver presentations.

For more information, contact the Wake County Wildlife Club, P.O. Box 12202, Raleigh, N.C. 27605.

Wildlife Club Trap Shoot-out — The annual Junior Trap Shoot-out was held February 19 at the Pitt County Wildlife Club. The event was open to all junior members and guests of the Wildlife Club and was a rousing success according to Tom Gardner, shoot-out coordinator.

The overall winner was Greg Buck followed by the next four finalists, Howard Collins, Thomas Gardner, Kent Lee Jr., and Gil Gardner. Trophies were presented to all finalists.

The Pitt County Wildlife Club continues to offer enjoyable outdoor events. Located eight miles west of Greenville, the club offers a lighted trap range, rifle and pistol range and a nice club house. Yearly memberships dues are $25. For additional information contact Tom Gardner at (919) 756-0608.

Lady Pack, Terps Advance In Tourney

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Two nationally ranked women's basketball teams squared off Saturday and the nation's leading scorer was to be showcased as the Atlantic Coast Conference tournament resumes.

Ninth-ranked North Carolina State breezed by Duke 69-55 and No. 11 Maryland eased to a 72-63 victory over Virginia in the first round on Friday. Barbara Kennedy fell shy of her nation-leading 28-point average as Clemson defeated Georgia Tech 62-54 to set up a meeting with top-seeded North Carolina, which crushed Wake Forest 90-65.

The Wolfpack relied on Angie Armstrong's 13 points and an early second-half scoring spree to pull away from the Blue Devils, which entered the tournament seeded sixth and fell to 12-14 with the loss.

Connie Rogers and Ronda Falkena added 10 points apiece for the N.C. State, which takes a 23-4 record into its confrontation with 20-6 Maryland.

The Terrapins were led by Debbie Lytle's 22 points and Belinda Pearman's 20 in ousting Virginia.

Maryland was helped to its largest advantage at 46-38 when Jasmina Perazic hit an 18-footer for 2 of her 16 points.

While Clemson's Kennedy became the first ACC women's player to score 3,000 points in the victory over Georgia Tech, Mary Anne Cubelic took up the scoring responsibilities and poured in 26 points.

The victory gave the fourth-seeded Tigers a 19-10 record heading into the match against top-seeded North Carolina.

The Tar Heels can be counted on to counter Clemson's double scoring threat with a fast-paced offense led by Teresa Brown, who scored 21 points against Duke.

Henrietta Walls added 16 for North Carolina and Ranti Killian had 13 as the Tar Heels improved to 17-10.

CIAA Finals Come Down To Two Who Have Never Been A Champ

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Both division champions and both nationally ranked teams are gone, leaving the Central Intercollegiate Athletic Association basketball tournament with a championship between two teams which have not won the title in the affair's 36 years.

Playing for the title Saturday night were Hampton Institute's Pirates, 20-7, who tied for second in the Northern Division race, and St. Augustine's Falcons, 15-14, who had to win a playoff to get the fourth Southern Division berth.

The Pirates, who have played in the title game only twice before, completed the rout of the tourney's favored teams with a 61-56 victory in Friday night's second semifinal over Johnson C. Smith's Golden Bulls, 21-7.

Earlier, the Falcons — who on Thursday had knocked out Northern Division champion Virginia State, No. 14 in Division II — rolled to an 85-74 triumph over Fayetteville State's Broncos, 20-7, the No. 2 Southern Division team. The Broncos had sidelined Virginia Union, No. 19 in Division II, on Thursday.

This will be the fifth championship game for St. Augustine's, but — like Hampton — the Falcons never have come out a winner.

Johnson C. Smith, which had been favored to win it all, contributed to its own downfall by shooting just 36.8 percent from the floor and losing the battle of the boards, 39-34, to the shorter Pirates.

Greg Hines and Tony Washington led a Hampton comeback from a 30-28 deficit at intermission. The Pirates shot only 29 percent in the first 20 minutes but hit 13 of 19, 68.4 percent, in the last half.

A jumper by Hines gave Hampton the lead for good at 33-32 with 17:39 left in the game. The Pirates went up by five, but the Golden Bulls three times cut the margin to one, the last at 47-46 with 8:39 remaining.

Hines, who had 20 points and a game-high 13 rebounds, hit a dunk and Larry Garrick converted a three-point play that started with a dunk to put the Pirates up by 52-46, and that finished Johnson C. Smith. Washington added 20 points and Gerald Moore had 12 rebounds for Hampton.

The Golden Bulls were led by Bleu Oliver with 21 points and Billy Tibbs with 11.

St. Augustine's won the opening semifinal by keeping Fayetteville State from slowing down the tempo.

Midget Champions

Publicity Is Lacking

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina State and Clemson matched up for a women's college basketball game recently, and while the atmosphere was tense, there was little indication from the stands that Reynolds Coliseum that a big game was taking place.

There were only 350 people in the stand to watch the nation's No. 9 women's team on their home court. Senior forward Ginger Rouse said no one should expect a packed house when they take the floor.

"We don't get any publicity, so how do they (N.C. State athletic administration) expect us to get anybody to come to our games?" Rouse said.

This weekend, the Atlantic Coast Conference women's tournament got underway on the N.C. State campus, and the scene was the same. The winner of the tournament advances to the first round of the National Collegiate Athletic Association East Regional, also to be held in Raleigh.

A decade has passed since Congress passed landmark legislation prohibiting sex discrimination in intercollegiate athletics. Yet equality in men's and women's sports remains "an ideal that doesn't work in the marketplace," said Jim Valvano, N.C. State men's basketball coach.

Athletic officials at N.C. State acknowledge that men's and women's basketball are treated differently. The men's program receives $344,006 for travel, recruiting and promotion. The women's basketball program gets $151,063.

Willis Casey, director of athletics at N.C. State, says quite simply the difference is money.

"The men's team will earn $1 million for the athletic department this year, the women not a dime," Casey said.

Valvano agrees, saying college basketball is a business.

"Ideally, there should be equality in everything, but realistically, they (women's basketball) are one of 24 of 26 sports here that don't pay their bills," Valvano said.

N.C. State women's coach Kay Yow says that with proper promotion, the school can attract paying customers to see a women's basketball game.

Other differences between the programs include practice facilities, media coverage and medical expenditures.

While WPTF-AM in Raleigh broadcasts the men's games, it does not broadcast the women's games. Meanwhile, at East Carolina University in Greenville, Lady Pirate games are broadcast locally by two radio stations and coach Cathy Andruzzi has a 15-minute radio show and a 30-minute television highlight show.

Yow has compiled a 164-43 record in her seven previous years and has remained a nationally-top ranked team for most of that time. Casey feels, however, that the best way for the women to draw crowds is to win.

"You can't fool people," he said. "If you could, you wouldn't have empty stadiums."

Lee Paces EC Golfers

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. — East Carolina, behind Jerry Lee's opening-round 70, was eighth — nine strokes off first — after the first day of play Friday at the Seminole Intercollegiate Classic.

Lee's 70 put him one stroke behind first-round leader Georgia Southern's Jody Mudd, who shot a 69. Lee saw a chance to tie Mudd for the first-round lead get away when he bogeyed the final hole.

North Carolina leads the 24-team tournament with a 291. Host Florida State is second at 296 followed by Louisiana State with a 298 and Georgia Southern with a 299.

ECU is tied for eighth with a team score of 300. After the opening day, ECU coach Bob Helmick was understandably pleased, particularly with Lee. "Jerry Lee played exceptionally well," Helmick said.

Jags Make Sun Semis

By The Associated Press

The South Alabama basketball team spent all season following the leaders in the Sun Belt Conference race.

But the Jaguars are making up for lost time in the postseason playoffs.

After finishing last in the regular season, Cach Cliff Ellis' team had a fresh outlook Saturday as the result of Friday night's 77-75 overtime victory over Jacksonville in a Sun Belt quarterfinal playoff game.

The victory earned the Jaguars a berth in Saturday night's semifinals against Virginia Commonwealth, which finished runner-up during the season. South Florida, 66-59 conquerer of North Carolina-Charlotte, was to face league champion Alabama-Birmingham in the other semifinal contest. The winners play today for a bid to the NCAA playoffs next month.

South Alabama was down by 13 points early in the second half Friday night, but fought back with a 14-2 run to get within striking distance of Jacksonville. The Jaguars managed to put the game into overtime tied at 69.

"Defense was the biggest key that brought us back from the deficit," Ellis said.

Phil Green, a 5-foot-9 guard who scored the winning field goal with five seconds left — his only points of the game — commented, "It felt great coming from a 13-point deficit. The team decided that we weren't going to lose after losing to Jacksonville twice this year in overtime."

Tony Hafley scored 21 points and Rory White 16 to lead South Alabama's offense.

Meanwhile, Willie Redden scored 20 points to pace South Florida's victory. South Florida iced the game with five free throws in the final 30 seconds.

"When the team hits the free throws, we win," said South Florida Coach Lee Rose. "When they miss the free throws, we lose."

In the only games involving ranked teams, No. 4 Oregon State walloped No. 20 UCLA 72-58 and No. 16 San Francisco defeated Loyola (Calif.) 96-73.

The Top Twenty

Danny Evans scored a career-high 26 points as Oregon State rolled past UCLA to clinch at least a tie for the Pacific-10 Conference basketball title. The Beavers, 14-1 in the conference and 21-3 overall, can wrap up their third consecutive Pac-10 crown with a victory over Southern California today.

Oregon State never trailed in the contest, jumping to a 24-12 lead with 7:52 remaining in the first half. Evans, a 6-foot-5 junior who played sparingly before this season, hit 11 of 15 field goal tries, most of them from long range.

"It is a great accomplishment on the part of this team," said Oregon State Coach Ralph Miller, who had to replace his main three starters from last year's squad.

"We did what we had to do," Miller added. "We shut down their forwards and took care of the ball."

Center Wallace Bryant scored 20 points and freshman John Martens added a collegiate-high 19 as San Francisco, playing without star Quintin Dailey, beat Loyola.

Dailey, sixth leading scorer in the nation, decided to "remain in his room rather than play in the basketball game," but plans to play in tonight's game against West Coast Athletic Conference leader Pepperdine, said Dailey's lawyer, George Walker.

Unranked Teams

In other action, Paul Little scored 16 points and David Lardner added 12 as Ivy League-leading Penn swept to its 11th straight victory, 65-56 over Dartmouth; Craig Robinson scored 17 points and grabbed eight rebounds to lead Princeton to an easy 66-50 victory over Harvard; Bob Coleman's 10-foot jump shot with 5:57 left put Iona ahead to stay in the Gaels' 45-41 win over Fordham and Eric Clarke's 20-foot jump shot with seven seconds left halted a late Brown comeback bid and gave Columbia a 67-65 victory over the Bruins.

Also, Lafayette Lever sparked a second-half comeback with three straight baskets to lead Arizona State to a 70-69 win over Stanford; Dwight Anderson and Maurice Williams combined for 38 points to lead Southern California to an 80-68 victory over Oregon.

Business Notes

BOARD MEMBER

Ms. April Burleson, local hair designer, was recently elected to the board of directors of the N.C. Hairdressers and Cosmetologist Association following her nomination by members of local associations throughout the state.

Ms. Burleson, who is employed as manager of the Belk Hair Salon at Carolina East Mall, has been a member of the NCHCA for 11 years and a past member of the association's official hairstyling team.

The purpose of the state association, she said, is to promote education and professionalism in the cosmetology field.

SALES UP

Winn-Dixie Stores Inc. reported sales of $514,424,000 during the four weeks ended Feb. 3, up 4.7 percent from $491,515,000 reported last year.

For the 32 weeks ended Feb. 3, total sales were $3,990,202,000 compared with $3,749,349,000 a year ago, an increase of 6.4 percent.

The company said it had 1,222 stores in operation on Feb. 3, compared with 1,216 last year.

FIGURES REPORTED

Lee Thomas, president and chief executive officer of Vermont American Corp., said that in the fourth quarter ended Dec. 31 company sales were $47,435,000, down from $53,694,000 a year earlier. Net income was $3,476,000 compared with $3,489,000 the previous year.

Sales in the year ended Dec. 31 were $203,940,000 compared with $185,967,000 in 1980. Net income for 1981 was $12,565,000 compared with $9,221,000 in 1980.

Job Service Advisers Meet

The Job Service Employer Advisory Committee will meet at Eaton Corp. Thursday at 2 p.m.

Topics will include "Federal Spending Cutbacks and Support of ESC" and "Documentation and Preparation for Unemployment Insurance Claims Appeals." Guest speakers will be John Fleming, employment service director, and Lawrence Emma, chief appeals referee.

The committee encourages a employers to attend. Any inquiries should be directed to Darnell Sharpless, chairman, at Fieldcrest Mills, 752-4126, or Doris Williford, Job Service, 756-2686.

First Federal Picks Directors

First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Pitt County announced that William H. Clark and Edward Earl Dennis were recently appointed directors of the association.

Clark, a native of Warrenton, is president and owner of Bill Clark Construction Compancy Inc. and secretary-treasurer of Clark-Branch Realtors Inc., both in Greenville.

Clark is a member of St. Peter's Catholic Church. He and his wife, Gloria, have three children.

A native of Grifton, Dennis has lived in Bethel since 1954 where he is president of F & D Motors Co. Inc. Dennis also has farming interests in the Bethel area.

Dennis, a member of Bethel United Methodist Church, is married to the former Edna Ray Sutton of LaGrange and they have four children.

Livestock, Meat Prices Fall

By KEITH E. LEIGHTY
Associated Press Writer

Livestock and meat prices fell sharply in moderate trading Friday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange amid continued reports of an increased slaughter and redced demand.

Chuck Levitt, senior livestock analyst in Chicago with Shearson American Express, said retailers have reduced purchases because of less demand and an increase in price at the wholesale level last week. Coupled with a 7 percent in-crease in the slaughter over the previous week, the reduced demand caused lower prices on the futures market Friday, he said.

Pork prices showed similar behavior, he added. However, pork futures were further depressed because traders had expected retailers to respond to higher beef prices at the wholesale level by offering specials on pork products. Instead, he said, fish and poultry have been the specials in the grocers' refrigerators.

Pork bellies in the two nearest delivery months fell the 2-cent daily limit set by the exchange. Prices also were depressed by milder weather, which will allow livestock to gain weight, Levitt said.

Grain and soybean futures prices closed higher on the Chicago Board of Trade with a late rally that sent prices past levels at which previous orders to buy had been placed, touching off further buying, sources said.

Mike Hinebaugh, a grains analyst with Conti-Commodity Services, said prices had reached the bottom of their range this week as traders were liquidating contracts in anticipation of the first day for delivery notices on the matur-ing March contract.

The number of notices, issued prior to the start of trading Friday, were greater than had been expected and prices fell at the opening. But sources said a turnaround is common after delivery notices are issued and traders began buying contracts to cover their short positions in anticipation of higher prices.

Corn prices rose slightly with traders concerned about abundant supplies available for delivery, analysts said.

Sugar prices fell slightly on the Coffee, Sugar & Cocoa Exchange in New York as the contract for March delivery expired.

There was continued talk on the floor of a Chinese sugar purchase, which boosted prices after an early decline, said Kim Sutton, senior coffee, sugar and cocoa analyst in New York with Merrill Lynch.

Delivery orders were less than expected and the price decline probably will carry forward into the next delivery month, noted George Hirai, vice president for the coffee, sugar and cocoa divison of Marshall, French & Lucas Inc. in New York.

Cocoa also fell on the exchange, with traders concerned about weakening demand amid plentiful supply, said Phil Spinelli, cocoa analyst in New York with Drexel Burnham Lambert Inc.

Precious metals prices also declined with traders continuing to be responding to the recessionary economy, said Jack Boyd, vice president of research with Drexel Burnham Lambert.

Providing further downward pressure on prices was a report released by the U.S. Commerce Department that the nation's trade deficit in Jauary was $5.14 billion, the third highest monthly deficit on record, Boyd added.

Interest rate futures, which move inversely to interest rates, fell on the Chicago Board of Trade, registering their second decline in two days.

The contract for March delivery Treasury Bonds fell 17 ticks and March delivery Ginnie Maes fell 20 ticks. A tick is 1-32nd of a percentage point and represents a movement of $16.25 on a contract with a face value of $100,000.

Vietnam Gives No Sign Of Yielding To Pressures

By DENIS D. GRAY
Associated Press Writer

HANOI, Vietnam (AP) — Vietnam appears to be slowly emerging from its political isolation and economic quagmire — problems that China, the United States and non-communist Southeast Asia had hoped would force it into compromises at the conference table.

"I can say that the Vietnamese nation will never give into any pressure. If anybody harbors the illusion of bringing it to its knees, they are just harboring an illusion." Vice Foreign Minister Dinh Nho Liem told The Associated Press in a recent interview.

While Hanoi's war-hardened leaders always talk tough, recent events have formed a sharp contrast to the last three years when Vietnam fought a border war with China, suffered a series of disastrous harvests and was shunned by most of the non-communist world following its invasion of Cambodia in late 1978.

Some governments opposed to Vietnam had theorized that such problems, including the ongoing guerrilla war inside Cambodia, would weaken the Vietnamese to the point where they would be willing to withdraw their forces from Cambodia and allow a coalition government in Phnom Penh.

Today, Vietnamese officials point to certain "favorable conditions."

They note with glee the bickering among the various Cambodian resistance groups trying to form a coalition against the Vietnamese and differences within the Association of Southeast Asian Nations — which includes Thailand, Singapore, Indonesia, Malaysia and the Philippines — on how to deal with Hanoi on the Cambodian issue. They also perceive a thaw toward Vietnam in certain quarters of the non-communist world.

"I can say that the Vietnamese nation will never give into any pressure. If anybody harbors the illusion of bringing it to its knees, they are just harboring an illusion." — Vice Foreign Minister Dinh Nho Liem.

France, with a socialist government in power, has decided to restart aid to Vietnam and the Norwegians are to revive an aid program that had been phased out. Private business deals with non-communist nations, including Japan, West Germany, Britain and Italy, have been stepped up. U.N. agencies, including the world food program and UNICEF, are making more frequent visits to Vietnam.

The Soviet Union, Vietnam's top backer and donor, shows no signs of slackening its economic and military support and Hanoi is optimistic that with Soviet aid it can begin to tap offshore oil reserves by 1983.

Buffeted by poor weather, mismanagement and rigid policies, Vietnam was forced to import about 2 million tons of basic grains in 1979. The imports fell to about 300,000 tons last year and food self-sufficiency — although at a meager level — may be attained in 1982, according to Western diplomatic sources here.

There have also been improvements in coal production, maritime products and handicrafts.

But the Vietnamese economy is still rife with problems, its overseers admitting to poor management, corruption, lack of raw materials and spare parts. Knowledgeable Western sources say the Vietnamese are having trouble making payments on foreign loans and estimate that the country's convertible currency reserves may have dropped to as low as $30 million late last year.

The average worker receives the equivalent of about $22 a month in wages. A bicycle tire, an essential commodity for many Vietnamese, costs about $12 and a simple sweater will eat up a month's wages.

More consumer goods have been appearing on Hanoi's shelves, apparently due to a shift in economic policy which goes back to Communist Party decisions in the fall of 1979. These policies include more emphasis on light industry and consumer goods rather than the past obsession with building up heavy industry and provisions for more private enterprise in both rural and urban areas.

The government has been more flexible in allowing private plots on state-run communes and factory workers can engage in a variety of free enterprise efforts after they have put in their eight hours a day at state factories.

Some Indochina watchers expect this pragmatic line to be "cautiously endorsed" at the fifth congress of Vietnam's Communist Party scheduled for the end of March. When asked about this, Liem said the congress would probably support "individual freedom within the framework of central planning."

The congress is not expected to announce any dramatic changes in foreign policy. Although Vietnam clearly would like to expand its relations with the West, including the United States, close ties with Moscow are still the cornerstone of Hanoi's policy, in part through fear of its giant neighbor — China.

SUNDAY SERVICES

The New Deliverance Free Will Baptist Church of Ayden, currently meeting at Grifton Chapel FWB Church in Grifton, will have its regular worship service, Sunday at 11 a.m. Pastor J.L. Wilson will preside.

Massachusetts Towns To Vote On Override

BOSTON (AP) — Sixteen months after Proposition 2½ radically altered the state's tax structure, voters in several Massachusetts communities go to the polls Monday to consider proposals that would increase local revenues.

The ballot questions in Braintree, Stow, Wakefield, Canton and Randolph offer voters their first chance to make changes under the controversial law approved in November 1980. Other communities are planning similar votes later in the spring.

Proposition 2½, modeled on California's Proposition 13, limited property taxes to 2½ percent of fair market value, slashed the auto excise tax and capped local spending increases at 2½ percent a year. The changes cut local taxes by $500 million this year, forcing the Legislature to provide $260 million in additional local aid to cities.

One of the major changes being considered Monday would allow some communities currently under the 2½ percent tax rate to raise taxes up to that limit. The other would allow cities and towns to exempt their bonded indebtedness from local budgets, which should give them more money to spend.

But some of the municipal officials who put the proposals on the ballot now say they may have made a mistake. Because of a recent state ruling, they are urging taxpayers to vote against one of the changes, fearing it could backfire and leave the towns with less money to spend next year.

"Our school committee spent two or three weeks telling voters to vote yes on exempting our bonded indebtedness," said Braintree Town Clerk Robert Bruynell. "Now, because of a new rule from those people in Boston, they've spent the last week and a half telling people to vote no."

Reciting Dunbar's Mrs. Tyson's Lifelong Joy

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

Gossie Harold Hudson, in an article in the February 1976 issue of "Negro History Bulletin," said of poet Paul Laurence Dunbar: "On the platform, Dunbar was an excellent reader, unfailingly pleasing. He read with expression and taste. People who listened to the man were slow to forget the tender notes of his rich musical voice and the artistic rendering of his choice selections. What made him most effective were his facial expressions and his knowledge of the actor's art. He had a natural style of delivery, and his rich musical voice served to bring out all the better the pathetic and humorous selections he gave.'

Dunbar, skilled as he was at sharing with writings with audiences, would no doubt be moved and delighted by the by-memory recitation of his works by a Greenville resident, Joanna Tyson. Dunbar died in 1906, before Mrs. Tyson was born, but he has had in her a lifelong ardent admirer. She even named her firstborn son Paul Laurence in his honor and she now also has a grandson, Paul Laurence Jr., who bears his name.

Mrs. Tyson, who has been confined to a wheelchair since her right leg was amputated between knee and ankle in mid-1980, wheels her chair back and forth in rhythm to her recitation of the poetry of slave days and reconstruction and her eyes dance and her hands participate in her expressiveness. She is an actress. In former years, she could propel herself all over a room to convey the joy and pathos of her favorite writer's poetry and prose. Now her body movement is limited, but her melodic voice and the emotion she brings to her recitation are not.

Mama Recited, Too

"My mama, Laura Williams McClinton, introduced me to Paul Laurence Dunbar," she said. "She loved reading and acting just as I do and we amused ourselves at home by reciting. And Mama was always reciting to help raise money for some church or club. And I've done the same over the years."

Mrs. Tyson has had two recent recitals — one before the Greenville Rotary Club, a second before the Pitt County Medical Society.

"We think she's just amazing," said Dr. Charles Gilbert, who attended both presentations. "I'm impressed both by her brilliant mind and her personable, pleasing ways."

Mrs. Tyson was born in New Bern and spent her early childhood in Portsmouth, Va., where her father, Abram McClinton, worked in the shipyards, but she's lived in Greenville since shortly before she started to school. Her father brought her and her mother, originally from Williamston, to Greenville and built the family the West Fifth Street house in which Mrs. Tyson and her husband, Sylvester Tyson Sr., still live.

"Once he had us settled in, Papa went back up north to work" she said. "He was a boilermaker and there was no work for him here. He could make plenty of money up there. But we never felt he was any less a part of the family because he had to work away from home to make a good living. He was always home Christmases and for other visits through the year. When he was here, he was always building onto and improving our house. Mama and my sister, Adelaide, and I knew he'd have been with us all the time if he could have.

"There was a teacherage on either side of our house and mama cooked for teachers, and part of the time teachers roomed as well as boarded at our house. Adelaide, who was six years older than I am, became right soon a dressmaker, work she carried on all her life."

Attended Fayetteville State

Mrs. Tyson attended Fifth Street School, Fleming Street School and the Greenville Industrial School (renamed C.M. Eppes) and, after graduation, she went away to study to be a teacher at Fayetteville State College. "While I was at Fayetteville State, Mama suffered a stroke," she said, "and I had to come home and take care of her. Papa came home, too, to be with her, but he was sick, too — with lung trouble. I tended to them both for about six years and he preceded her to the grave by only three months — he in the fall of 1945; she in January 1946.

During the time her parents were ill, Mrs. Tyson, as yet unmarried, did some substitute teaching at the Calico, Falkland and Post Oak rural schools. "The children loved to hear me recite," she said. "And they loved to have me play the piano for them to sing and dance and march. I grew up playing anything I decided to by ear and at Fayetteville State, they taught me to read notes and improved my playing."

Mrs. Tyson still has the piano her father bought in her living room, but it's in need of repairs and tuning now and there's no money for this purpose, she said.

Did Domestic Work

Most of her life, she's been a domestic worker. "I've cooked dinner for a hundred folks and then come out of the kitchen to entertain the guests by playing the piano," she said. "I've stayed nights and weekends with sick folks and then had my day employers pick me up from their houses to go and fix their breakfasts. I've left my babies with someone early in the morning and not got home till after I've finished my employer's supper dishes, washed our clothes and fixed formula at night, and then got up to go again the next morning. It was hard, but it wasn't all bad. Most of the people I've worked for have been wonderful people who've remained good friends till now."

She says she does not feel cheated by having done what some would consider menial work most of her life, even though she knows that her abilities would have allowed her to do more seemingly noteworthy things, had she been born in a different time and circumstance. "I've done what I had to do to the best of my ability and always had plenty of self-respect," she said, "and I've taught my children to do the same."

Her oldest son, Paul Laurence "Boot" McClinton, works in a mental health program in Philadelphia. Her son, Sylvester Bo Tyson Jr., is in the maintenance department of Graystone Hospital in New Jersey. And her daughter, Laura Tyson, named for her grandmother, is a secretary in the renal transplant center of Duke University Medical Center.

Long an active member of Cornerstone Missionary Baptist Church, Mrs. Tyson has served her church as a member of the choir, the Choir Club, the Pastor's Aid Club, the Missionary Circle and the Dollar Club. She also belongs to the United Order of Tent, Chapter 458. She's missed church a lot in recent months because of illness, she says, but hopes to be back in the choir loft soon.

Always A Talker

Mrs. Tyson describes herself as "somebody who could talk a wild turkey tame." and her friend, Lillie Reid, former librarian at Third Street School, agrees. "We know she's okay as long as she's talking," she said. "In 1980, she had two major illnesses, one that called for the amputation of a toe after advanced diabetes was discovered; the latter for a seven-month stay in Duke University medical and rehabilitation centers during which part of her right leg was amputated. Through it all, she never stopped talking."

"She's right," Mrs. Tyson said, "Up at Duke I got to where I couldn't eat, couldn't even raise my head, much less my body, but my mind stayed clear and I was so thankful I could still express myself. And while my family and friends thought I might not make it, I never gave up, never did anything but keep on planning on living."

"My son, Boot, called me last week so excited after he received a clipping about my recital before the Medical Society. He'd thought, I guess, that my reciting days were over. But they're not. I know Paul Laurence Dunbar just as well as I ever did. And I love to share him with anyone who wants to hear."

1872-1906

Poet Laureate Of His People

Paul Laurence Dunbar was, in his time and for all time, one of America's most well-known and best-loved poets in America. He rode in the inauguration parade of President William McKinley and packed concert halls throughout the United States and England wherever he gave readings.

In his short life of 33 years, he published six volumes of poetry, four novels, seven illustrated poetry gift books, four books of short stories and some 40 articles and essays. More than 40 of his poems became popular songs.

Born in Dayton, Ohio, in 1872, the son of former slaves, he was the only black in his 43-member class at Dayton Central High School. He graduated from Central during a time when a high school degree meant much more than a college degree today, when virtually no working class people even attended high school. Orville Wright was a classmate and his partner in a short-lived youthful newspaper enterprise. Dunbar's poetry was used for the class song and he was editor of the school newspaper. Yet, once graduated as an already published poet, he was unable to find a public job better than elevator operator and library attendant all his life. So, during the early years, he ran an elevator, helped his mother buy a house, and wrote every spare minute.

The notice of some famous individuals like Negro rights fighter Frederick Douglass and literary critic William Dean Howells helped him to fame (publishings in "Century," "Harper's Weekly" and other prestigious literary publications) and fortune (financial security enough to marry Alice Moore, the young woman with whom he'd fallen in love when he'd seen her picture and whom he'd courted through correspondence.)

Most of his writing is in the standard English that he spoke. But some of his best loved works are written in the Southern country speech (English with the structure and speech patterns of West African languages) that he learned from listening with a poet's ear all his life.

"Noddin' By De Fire" is an example of Dunbar's dialect verse that Joanna Tyson recites so well:

Some folks t'inks hit's right an p'opah,
Soon ez bedtime come erroun',
Fu' to scramble to de kiver,
Lak dey'd hyeahed de trumpet soun'.
But dese people dey all misses
Whut I mos'ly does desiah;
Dat's de settin' round' an' dozin',
An' a noddin' by de fiah.

When you's tiahed out a hoein',
Er a followin' de plough,
Whut's de use of des a fallin'
On yo' pallet lak a cow?
W'y, de fun is all in waitin'
In de face of all de tiah,
An' a-dozin' an' a drowsin'
By a good ol' hick'ry fiah.

Oh, you grunts an' groans an' mumbles
Case yo' bones is full o' col',
Dough you feels de joy a tricklin';
Roun' de co'nahs of yo' soul.
An' you 'low anothah minute
'S sho to git you wam'm and dryah,
W'en you set up pas' yo' bedtime,
Case you hate to leave de fiah.

Whut's the use o' downright sleepin'?
You can't feel it while it las',
An' you git up feelin' sorry
W'en de time fu' it is pas'.
Seem to me dat time too precious,
An' de houahs too short entiah,
Fu' to sleep, w'en you could spen' 'em
Des a-noddin' by de fiah.

MRS. CHARLES EUGENE TUCKER

Wedding Vows Said Friday

Mary Wendolyn McLawhorn and Charles Eugene Tucker were united in marriage Friday at 7 p.m. at Mt. Pleasant Christian Church. The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. John C. Simpson.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry McLawhorn of Greenville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Tucker also from here.

The bride wore a formal length gown of white qiana designed with a Queen Anne neckline outlined in silk Venise lace. The empire bodice was also encircled with silk Venise lace. Matching lace inserts accented the full bishop sleeves. The gown was complemented with a flared skirt. She wore a halo of white silk baby's breath enhanced with white miniature bows of double faced satin ribbon and matching streamers. She carried a colonial bouquet of white daisies, miniature carnations and baby's breath interspersed with pink carnations. The bouquet was tied with white and pink lace ribbons.

The mother of the bride chose a rose beige street length jacket-dress ensemble. The mother of the bridegroom chose a mauve colored dress fashioned in a shirtwaist style with a pleated skirt.

Ushers included Paul Tucker, brother of the bridegroom, Eddy James and Steve Scott, all of Greenville.

A program of wedding music was presented by Greg Dixon, pianist, and soloist Paul Tucker. Songs were "If" and "The Wedding Song." Patricia McLawhorn, sister of the bride, presided at the guest register.

A reception was held in the fellowship hall of the church following the ceremony. The table was centered with an arrangement of candelabra and silk flowers. Mrs. Frances Dupree, aunt of the bridegroom, poured the punch. Mrs. Enes Hathaway, aunt of the bride, served cake.

An after-rehearsal party, given by the bridegroom's parents and friends, was held at Ramada Inn.

The bridegroom, who attended North Carolina State University, is now engaged in farming. The bride is presently employed by Greenville Eye Clinic, Inc.

FASHION TRENDS

Although Chinese trends will remain strong in fashion styling and fabrics this spring, South American inspiration will be evident, too, says Extension Clothing Specialist Harriet Tutterow at North Carolina State University.

"Attention-getters feature lots of tiers, ruffles and flounces. Midriff and off-the-shoulder tops join culottes, shorts or sweeping long skirts," she says.

Also look for the return of the nautical look, complete with crop tops and jackets with braid and blouses with middy collars.

King-Little Vows Solemnized Saturday

HICKORY — Lois Kimberly Little and David Roscoe King were united in marriage Saturday at 4 p.m. in the Holy Trinity Lutheran Church here. The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. James Stephenson.

The bride, of Winston-Salem, is the daughter of Arthur H. Little and Christine Little, both from here. The bridegroom, of Kernersville, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe L. King of Greenville.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore her mother's wedding dress. The gown was of handclipped chantilly lace and pleated nylon tulle. The bodice, scooped neckline and sleeves were embellished with sequins and tiny seed pearls. The bouffant skirt, of the same lace, featured wide pleated flounces and a tiered cathedral train of lace and tulle. Her veil fell from a lace plateau and was edged with pleated illusion and seed pearls. She wore a strand of pearls belonging to her paternal grandmother. She carried a juliet bouquet of white roses and white orchids.

The matron of honor, Cindy Lawler of Winston Salem, wore a burgundy floor-length gown of polyknit. It featured spaghetti straps, high waist,mushroon pleats, and was accented with a bolero jacket. She carried a nosegay of pink miniature carnations, red roses and white gypsophilia and wore a matching headpiece.

The bridesmaids included Mrs. John Schenk from here, Mrs. Vick King of Linwood, Mrs. Craig Lasting of Virginia Beach, Va., Mrs. Doug Bushby of Charlotte, and Carol Schenk of Columbia, S.C. They wore dresses and carried bouquets identical to that of the matron of honor. The flower girl was Elizabeth Sarah King, niece of the bridegroom of Greenville. She wore a burgundy floor-length silk dress and carried a nosegay similar to that of the bridesmaids.

The mother of the bride chose a formal gown of mauve chiffon and wore a white orchid corsage. The mother of the bridegroom wore a formal gown of aqua chiffon and she also wore a white orchid corsage.

The best man was the father of the bridegroom and ushers included Vick L. King, brother of the bridegroom of Linwood; Scott and Curtis Little, brothers of the bride from here; Randy Whitehurst of Chattanooga, Tenn.; Tommy Joe Payne of Greenville; and Brian Lacklen of Charleston, S.C.

Alice Lee directed the wedding and a program of wedding music was presented by David Gentry, organist, and Mrs. Brian Achor, soloist. Songs included were "Evergreen" and "The Wedding Song."

A reception, given by the parents of the bride, was held at Mull's Convention Center immediately following the wedding. Mrs. and Mrs. Raymond Lane greeted guests. Teresa Little presided at the guest register and Mrs. Ernie Hargett poured punch. Joan Matthis and Mrs. William Matthis served the cake.

An after-rehearsal dinner, given by the parents of the bridegroom, was held Friday night at Mull's Convention Center for the wedding party and out-of-town guests.

The bride, a 1975 graduate of Hickory High School, is a graduate of Appalachian State University. She is employed with Davis Insurance Agency. The bridegroom, a 1975 graduate of J.H. Rose High School, is also a graduate of Appalachain State University. He is employed at First American Federal in Greensboro.

On The Young Side

By Lisa Wang

Once again, Rose High's mighty Quiz Bowl Team not only endured but prevailed over rival county schools at the Pitt County Quiz Bowl Competition held at the East Branch Library/Recreation Center Feb. 20.

Quiz Bowl Coordinator Meredith Foltz welcomed the audience, which was large and supportive, briefly explained rules and procedures and introduced the officials. The process of "double elimination" was again used this year, whereby all teams competed in the first half to attain a winner. Those teams that lost in the first half could have a second shot at the title by competing against each other in the second half and getting a winner. The two winners from each half would then meet in the final match to determine a champion.

In the first half, Rose's initial opponent was the team from Farmville Central, which was defeated by a score of 245 to 40. Team members Elizabeth Ellen, Vince Hankins, Jeffrey Prescott and Shannon Stanforth then went on to face the Ayden-Grifton team, which posed a bit of a challenge. The normal three rounds ended with a tie score of 195 to 195. Teams then struggled through five grueling tie-breakers, which kept audience members on the edge of their seats. Finally, Rose was able to break the tie and rest for a while as losing teams battled it out.

After defeating the other teams in the second half, North Pitt remained on stage to face Rose in the final match. Round one ended with a slight lead for the opponent; however, Rose overcame the margin in the second round and went on to win the match and the competition with a score of 215 to 160.

As usual, Quiz Bowl questions covered sundry topics ranging from sports to current events to French literature. Samples of the questions asked are "How many pecks are there in a bushel?," "What was the name of Don Quixote's companion?" and "What is the minimum age to serve as U.S. President?"

Judges for the competition were Kenneth Hilton of Pitt Community College Library, Dr. Moses Sheppard of the ECU department of science education and Willie Nelms of Sheppard Memorial Library. Ken Tyndall and Harold Williams, both of WNCT-TV, served as moderators.

As Pitt County champions, the Quiz Bowl team will now advance to the regional competition which will be held at the same place March 20.

The week of Feb. 20-24 was filled with special activities and events as students and teachers observed Foreign Language Week. Organized by Mrs. Betty Beacham, Mrs. Laura Shivar and Mrs. Nell Williams of the foreign language department, some of the festivities highlighting the week included: a Mexican dance presented by Mrs. Dolly Hathaway; Flamengo music presented by classical Spanish guitarist Elliott Franks, visiting artist at Pitt Community College; French instructor at Appalachain State University; talks on "The Importance of Studying a Foreign Language," given by Dr. Resnik, professor in the department of foreign language at ECU; presentations by American exchange students to Mexico, Elizabeth Ito and to Germany, Paul Farley and Catherine Bayou, exchange student at ECU from France; a reception for teachers with French and Spanish foods and desserts; and film presentations.

In accordance with Foreign Language Week, Mrs. Elaine Tschetter's food services classes prepared Spanish and French meals which they served during lunch. Menus included paella, rollos de continente, torta de Manzana, Quiche Lorraine, French onion soup and strawberry crepes.

Insurance Women Meet

The Pitt County Association of Insurance Women held its meeting Wednesday at the Ramada Inn. The program topic was "The New Tax Law and IRA's."

Kenneth Sawyer of Lowrimore, Warwick and Co. was guest speaker.

President Joyce Mills, CPIW, said the regional conference will be held in Bethesda, Md. March 26-28.

Named to the nominating committee were Evelyn Stroud, Debbie Keating and Sarah Jenkins.

Dear Abby

Makeup Won't Cover Baldness

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1982 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I'll bet you never heard a problem like this before. I've been married for 26 years. I am 45 and my husband is 55. We have three grown children. I was a model and still do some modeling in addition to holding down a part-time secretarial job.

A few years ago, my husband started to go bald, so he used some of my dark-brown eye makeup to cover the bald spot. The balder he got, the more makeup he used to cover it up. It became more and more obvious until people began to look at him and snicker. It's terribly embarrassing to me, but he thinks it looks better than a bald spot.

I hate to go anywhere with him because he looks so foolish. Last year he started to lose his teeth! Now he has only one tooth left in his mouth! Abby, can you imagine a man going around like that in this day and age? He has insurance where he works, but he won't go to a dentist. With no teeth, he looks like an old man.

Our son announced last week that he is getting married later this summer and he asked his father to fix himself up for the wedding. (Quit painting his head and get some teeth.) My husband flatly refused, saying, "I'm happy. Why should I?"

I love my husband, but I can't go on this way. Please give me some suggestions.

NOWHERE TO TURN

DEAR NOWHERE: Let your husband know that you love him and want to be proud of him, and if he wants to hide his baldness, there are some wonderful hairpieces available. Also tell him that going toothless is bad for his general health and makes him look old and unattractive. Beg, plead, bargain, do whatever you can to convince him. If he turns a deaf ear, please get him to a doctor for a complete physical checkup.

DEAR ABBY: "Sleeping with Sidney" wrote to ask if there was anything wrong with a grown woman sleeping with a baby blanket she had had since day one.

That letter reminded me of my own situation. I'm nearly 30, have been married for 10 years, and I still sleep with my tattered little baby blanket.

A few years ago I asked a therapist if there was anything wrong with this habit, and she asked me a few simple questions: Is it hurting anyone? Is it harming you? Do you enjoy it?

The conclusion: If it isn't hurting anyone, isn't harming you and you enjoy it, it's OK.

NUFF SAID IN BREMERTON, WASH.

DEAR NUFF: And well said. Those three questions could be applied to any activity about which one has doubts. And one more should be added: Is it legal?

DEAR ABBY: Several years ago, a woman in Jonesboro, Ill., wrote: "Dear Abby: I gave birth to three babies in 25 months and one week. Dates of birth are July 19, 1956; June 21, 1957; and Aug. 26, 1958. I was wondering if I'd broken a record. — Busy Mom"

Your response was: "Dear Mom: Perhaps a mother who has delivered twins or triplets may have topped you, but for individual births, I'd say you were out in front again."

Well, Abby, I have that lady beat. Is there a prize? I gave birth to three babies in 23 months and one week. Dates of birth are: Aug. 23, 1959; June 25, 1960; and Aug. 15, 1961. My real name is Nina Beckman, but you can sign me ...

EXHAUSTED IN PLATTSMOUTH, NEB.

DEAR EXHAUSTED: Unless someone else writes in to top your record, you win. There's no prize, but if I were to offer one, it would be a two-week vacation at your local Holiday Inn. Alone!

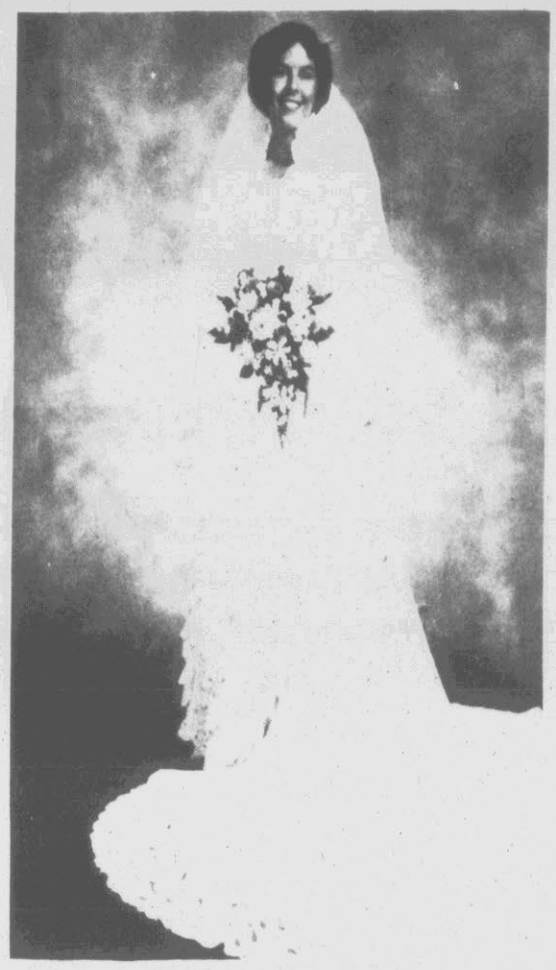
Couple Speaks Vows In Private Ceremony



MRS. DONALD EDWARD LEE

In a private ceremony Friday at 7:30 p.m. Marian Marie Langley and Donald Edward Lee pledged their wedding vows in a candlelight ceremony held at the home of the bride's parents. The Rev. Willis Wilson, uncle of the bride, officiated at the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Daniel Langley of Greenville. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Doris C. Lee and Mr. Robert Edward Lee Sr. of New Bern.

An arrangement of white chrysanthemums, yellow cushion poms and greenery, flanked by seven brass candelabras on either side of the mantel served as the altar. Two Boston ferns in white wicker baskets completed the setting.

Escorted by her father and given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a formal gown of white silkened organza over peau de soie designed with an open U-neckline outlined in scalloped French clipped chantilly lace that also overlaid the empire bodice on an English net background and beaded with pearls. The full long bishop sleeves were styled with rows of lace and the cuffs had beaded lace and pearl button closures. The modified A-line skirt and attached cathedral length train were enhanced by a ruffle flounce of lace topped by tiers of ruffled French chantilly.

She wore a double tiered illusion veil edged in matching lace attached to a Camelot cap overlaid in silk Venise lace beaded with pearls. She carried a silk cascade bouquet of white roses, tiger lilies, baby's breath and miniature yellow sweetheart roses.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was given by the bride's parents in their home. The reception table was covered with a white Irish work cut cloth. The table was centered with a five branch candelabra with an arrangement of bridal flowers.

Mrs. C.S. Hanchey, sister of the bride, and Mrs. John Langley, sister-in-law of the bride, assisted in serving.

The bride received her undergraduate degree in early childhood. She is presently employed by the Pitt County School System. The bridegroom received his undergraduate degree in business administration. He is currently working on his master's degree in education.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

There are two kinds of grocery shoppers in this world. There are those who shop in the daytime and those who shop at night. The differences between them are vast.

Daytime shoppers try two or three carts until they get one with the wheels that go in the same direction.

Nighttime shoppers grab the first one by the door even if it has a brown piece of lettuce caught in the seat.

Daytime shoppers enter the store and ask, "Where's the sale detergent?"

Nighttime shoppers enter the store and ask, "What time do you close?"

Daytime shoppers have lists and when they buy an item, they mark it off with a sharpened pencil.

Nighttime shoppers come in for a quart of milk and will leave 15 minutes and $73 later.

Daytime shoppers put on their glasses and pick up cans and boxes to examine them carefully for content.

Daytime shoppers usually shop alone and regard it as a pleasurable social experience.

Nighttime shoppers usually have a child or two in the cart and regard shopping as a punishment from God.

Daytime shoppers buy tofu and plain yogurt.

Daytime shoppers will ask the manager if the produce is fresh.

Nighttime shoppers will ask the manager if the beer is cold.

Daytime shoppers have a handful of coupons and don't seem to be in any particular hurry.

Nighttime shoppers are double-parked and will give you a blank check to let them out.

Daytime shoppers squeeze the fruit.

Engagement Announced

LORA ANN ARRINGTON...is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Arrington of Greenville, who announce her engagement to Rondy Galton Fleming, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Fleming of Greenville. A May 8 wedding is being planned.

Bridal Policy

2 teaspoons sugar, or to taste
2 cups tomato juice

Pour the milk into a 2-quart saucepan and reserve. In a 1½-quart saucepan melt the butter. Add the onion and cook gently until yellowed; stir in the flour, salt, pepper and sugar. Off heat, gradually stir in the tomato juice, keeping smooth. Over moderately low heat, stirring constantly, cook until thickened and boiling. Gradually whisk into the reserved cold or room temperature milk. Heat, stirring often; do not boil. Serve at once. Makes 1 quart.

Senegal, Gambia Confederated As Senegambia

By Saundra Alexander
1982 National Geographic Society

A Gambian woman carries all her necessities in a pot on her head, rather than in a purse. More than 85 percent of the population of the Gambia, a tiny West African nation, live in rural areas not far from the Gambia River.

By BORIS WEINTRAUB
National Geographic News Service

WASHINGTON — The West African nation of the Gambia probably should not exist. In fact, when it gained its independence in 1965, few thought it would survive.

It is tiny — about four-fifths the size of Connecticut. It has only 601,000 people. It is poor. And it has boundaries that made sense only in the colonial era, when the British administered the narrow strip of land on either side of the Gambia River inland from the Atlantic Ocean.

The Gambia, known to Americans as the place to which "Roots" author Alex Haley traced his ancestors, looks like a finger probing some 200 miles into the heart of Senegal, which surrounds it on three sides. Senegal is much larger, in size and population; its capital, Dakar, alone has a population of 800,000.

French Next Door

But Senegal is a former French colony, with French as its official language and with cultural and economic ties with France. The Gambia uses English as its official language, and is culturally and economically linked to Great Britain.

This "colonial overlay," as one American expert calls it, has been enough to keep the Gambia independent for 17 years. Earlier attempts to merge the two countries, in which many of the same tribal groups appear, foundered because of it.

But now, as a result of a coup attempt in the Gambia last summer, a confederation called "Senegambia" has been formed.

Gambian leaders had asked for Senegalese troops to put down the rebellion. Afterward the two nations decided to move ahead with the confederation, in which each will retain a seperate identity, but share some powers.

There are Gambians, however, who fear that confederation will mean the end of their nation. These Gambians, particularly in the educated elite, fear that the larger country in such a merger inevitably swallows up the smaller partner.

On a continent where instability and anti-Western feelings have been the norm, Senegal and the Gambia — "the" distinguishes the nation from Zambia — have been exceptions.

Friendly to West

Though predominantly Moslem, both have been pro-Western democracies that have ejected Libyans suspected of fomenting discontent. Both have tolerated legal opposition and have held free elections. Neither has seen a successful coup.

Both are poor. The per capita annual income in Senegal is $430, and in the Gambia in $260. Life expectancy is barely over 40 years.

In both countries there is heavy reliance on a single crop, peanuts, known locally as groundnuts, though Senegal has made some progress in introducing other industries. Dependence on the nut crop subjects the economy to the vagaries of the weather. Severe draught has been common in recent years in the Sahel region, though the 1981 rainy season was excellent, promising an improved harvest.

A bad harvest led to a sharp drop in Gambian exports, from $58 million in 1979 to $31.5 million in 1980. Imports turned upward from almost $141 million in 1979 to $163.6 million in the following year.

Meanwhile, there was a decline in the number of tourists, many from Sweden and others lured by "Roots." Many Gambians fear that tourism, by bringing in outsiders with different values, will destroy traditional Gambian values. Those values are based on religion, a village structure led by an elder, and a communal system in which women in colorful garb help with farming and prepare meals of rice, goat, fish, palm oil, and groundnuts.

The difficult economic situation, plus a perception of corruption and a lack of dynamism in the government of President Dawda Kairaba Jawara, the nation's leader since independence, brought support for the coup that began July 30.

"People wanted a change," said Galandou Gorre-Ndiaye, first secretary of the Gambia Embassy in Washington in explaining the attitude of many Gambians. "Sixteen years of independence didn't prove useful to them. The government had imposed a tax on essential commodities, which made life harder. So people were disenchanted."

Second Thoughts

But, observers agree, the coup leaders quickly alienated ordinary Gambians. They released convicts and armed them, enabling freed prisoners to kill enemies; estimates of the death toll range from 500 to 800. Rebels also took hostages, including Jawara's wife and children, and broadcast anti-religious, left-wing slogans.

When Jawara invoked a 1965 defense treaty and asked Senegal to aid his outmanned "field force," Senegalese soldiers quickly restored order and put Jawara back in control.

Saundra Alexander, an American graduate student at Howard University in Washington, D.C., was in the Gambia at the time, helping build a village community center in a project sponsored by Operations Crossroads Africa.

"The leftists had already taken over the radio station the first morning," she said. "By then, they had already let the prisoners out. We dido't go to work that day.

"The next morning the local police took us to a more protected compound. We stayed there, 18 of us in a two-bedroom house, for six days. We listened to Senegal radio, Radio Gambia, and the BBC, and all had different stories.

"Finally, Gambian field force major came through, and when he learned there were Americans there, he came in. By then, the area had been cleared. They put us on a truck the next morning, and we traveled north. The road was lined with military vehicles, all Senegalese . People were so different, so silent."

The troops remained, including those in the capital city of Banjul. But the coup attempt led to talks between Jawara and Abdou Diouf, Senegal's president.

Confederation Born

Within weeks, a move toward confederation was announced. A communique issued after Diouf's visit to the Gambia in November said the confederation would be "based on" integration of the armed forces, economic and monetary union, a coordinated foreign policy, and cooperation in other areas.

"The Senegalese are worried about the kind of security problems an unfriendly Gambia could pose," said Walter C. Carrington, U.S. ambassador to Senegal in 1980-81 and now director of the Department of International Affairs at Howard University.

"There are miles of border where things could happen. There is smuggling. The Senegalese were worried when the Libyans were in Gambia. Senegal feels that if he has to bail out the Gambia, it wants a say in how security forces are organized.

The Gambians feel that though they are a smaller partner, they bring something of value to the confederation.

"Our civil servants are competent and experienced," said Gorre-Ndiaye. "We have a river, which can be used for irrigation and hydroelectric pruposes. There is a tourist infrastructure to complement that of Senegal. There is a lot of virgin land, a port that could be beneficial, and an international airport."

Some details remain to be worked out for the confederation, which became official Feb. 1, 1982. President Diouf of Senegal will be president of Senegambia, and Gambia's Jawara will be vice president.

Some U.S. Aid

The direct American stake in the area is not large. There is little U.S. investment in Senegal, virtually none in tha Gambia. The United States gave nearly $35 million in economic aid to Senegal in the last fiscal year, about $8.5 million to the Gambians.

State Department officials, while emphasizing that details should be settled without outside involvment, say that the merger could help stabilize the area.

Former Ambassador Carrington believes a successful confederation is in the American interest.

"Here you have two democratic, pro-Western states friendly to the U.S.," Carrington said. "Both are in the vanguard of trying to contain the Libyans, and both have long had an anti-Soviet cast in their policies.

"The most important question to be solved is their economic problem. As the U.S. looks at aid programs, I'd hope and expect that this is one place where the U.S. will focus."

Gorre-Ndiaye agrees.

"We are well-endowed naturally; what we lack is financial support," he said. "But we are looking for investment to help Gambians mangage the business later. We don't want someone just to come in and take out our resources."

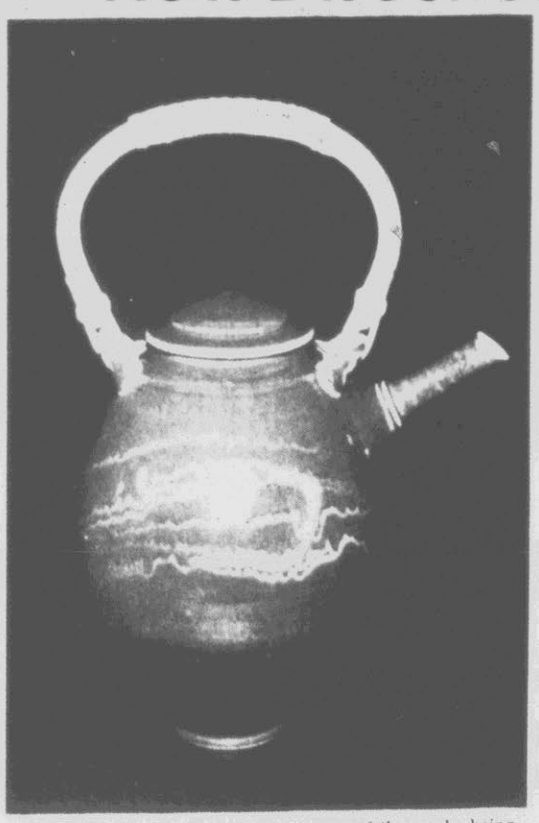
New Directions In Clay And Fiber On View At Gray Gallery



A TEAPOT . . . by Tom Turner is one of the works being shown in "New Directions: Clay and Fiber, 1982" now on view at Gray Galiery, Jenkins Fine Arts Center, ECU. A tour of the show is being given by Margo Hughto, one of the participating artists, at 2 p.m. today with the public invited.

There are several interesting revelations of the best kind manifest in "New Directions: Clay and Fiber 1982" show currently on view at Gray Art Gallery, East Carolina University Museum of Art, Jenkins Fine Arts Center.

One of these is the degree of technical virtuosity displayed in the work of the artists exhibiting in this invitational show.

A typical example of the virtuosity displayed in this show is the work of Rina Peleg. A native of Israel now living and working in New York City, Ms. Peleg shows three examples of ceramic structures in intricately woven plaited clay. These resemble baskets of finely woven wood strips, down to the astonishing details of wood grain in the clay. It doesn't require a first-hand knowledge of working with clay to appreciate the technical difficulties involved in fashioning these pieces.

By the same token, the three large textile wall pieces — two are 14 feet long by four feet — exhibited by Sherri Smith bespeak painstaking technical skill coupled with an eye for form in the creation of pieces using cotton webbing. She has applied color tints that range from lemon and lime to cherry, raspberry and plum in a manner that provides a visually pleasing shift of color spectrum when viewed at various distances and angles.

Granted that technical virtuosity alone does not necessarily result in good art, it can be emphatically stated that in the case of the artists with work in this show that they have achieved a successful merger of skill with talent to create valid works of art that extends one step further the possibilities of materials — often industrial ones — not traditionally associated with fine arts.

In this well mounted exhibit, there are numerous instances that confirm the aptness of the "new directions" title for the show. In fact, each of the 12 artists working in clay and the 15 artists working in fiber in one or another way reveal intriguing new possibilities applicable to clay and fiber. This adds excitement to work that is based both on older techniques and new experimental approaches.

Bennet Bean's pitfired white earthenware pieces, in contemporary informal shapes, with their exquisite decorations in color applied on a creamy-white background contrasted with areas of solid black, are pieces that can only be adequately described by that old phrase of praise, "breathtakingly beautiful."

In Nancy Halpern's hands, quilting is raised to new heights in that time-consuming art form. Two vertical panels and two full quilts comprised of contrasting figured and plain pieces of material result in striking compositions in cloth. The panels are like narrow bright hued stained glass windows — the larger pieces become handsome landscapes.

In the introduction to the attractive exhibition catalogue, Gray Gallery director Randolph Osman provides a clear, comprehensive summation of various developments in American art that have conceivably influenced the work of the artists in this show. Osman's notes are helpful in tracing the directions of past and present work in clay and fiber.

"New Directions: Clay and Fiber 1982" is supported in part from a grant from The National Endowment for the Arts.

One of the participating artists, ceramist Margo Hughto, is conducting a gallery tour of the exhibition at 2 p.m. today. The public is invited to attend.

Jerry Raynor

SUBMERGED REPOSE . . . is the title given by fiber artist Layne Goldsmith to this wall piece of felted wool and silk. A total of 27 artists from all areas of the nation are represented in the "New Directions: Clay and Fiber, 1982" invitational exhibition.

Exhibition Of Turner's Art

ATHENS, GA. — An exhibition of watercolors by J.M.W. Turner from the British Museum are to be shown at the Georgia Museum of Art, University of Georgia, Athens, from March 7 to May 12.

The exhibition will include 88 watercolors selected from the more than 19,000 drawings and watercolors Turner bequeathed to Great Britain.

Turner, 1775-1851, has been called the greatest of British artists and a master of the watercolor medium.

Admission to the exhibition is free.

The Art Of Exhibiting

By BRENDA W. ROTZOLL

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Somewhere in Europe a man carefully packs foam around a rare object, lowers it into a wooden box and silently carries it from an old palace.

Mrs. Burkhart oversees packing, shipping, storage, inventory, customs, fine arts insurance, and the organization and maintenance of files and retrieval systems for objects owned by or loaned to the museum.

"The museum brings over a thousand objects a year into its permanent collection," Mrs. Burkhart said. "We have to be concerned about how they're stored here in the museum, and how they are moved from site to site as they are installed. Each object has to be carefully documented with a photograph and a number and a file. The object is placed in a special storage area or bin, and has its own little niche. Its climate and its condition are carefully monitored."

The same care, and a lot more paperwork, is required for items loaned to the museum for special exhibits.

Contracts are signed between the museum and the person or institution loaning an art work. The registrar must make sure all stipulations of the contract are met, such as maintaining a certain environment of temperature and humidity for the object, or sending a courier to accompany it during shipment.

"Recently we've had instances where works of art were carried in hand by the representative of the museum," Mrs. Burkhart said.

Some of the worst problems concern installations involving large sculptures. An item 12 or 14 feet high might have to be disassembled and hauled in on a flatbed truck as an overwide load.

"Although outdoor sculptures are intended to meet all the conditions of the weather, you sometimes are concerned as to exactly what the object's going to encounter on its trip out here," Mrs. Burkhart said.

"Everything has to be beautifully timed. If the weather is bad, not only do you have difficulties working with the sculpture, but what about the staff who have to work with the equipment? With snow, ice and rain, often you have to cancel because it's just too risky," she said.

Mrs. Burkhart said the Indianapolis Museum of Art pioneered the use of video and audio taping to document the condition of art objects.

"One of the most difficult things in doing a condition report on an incoming object is making it understandable," she said. The museum used photographs to help, and in 1977 started videotaping objects.

"With the video on something, you could see the whole object. You could look inside it and underneath it. You can describe it while you're looking," she said.

Video-taping also helps keep track of an item's condition. "You can look at the tape later to see if there are changes," she said.

The Old North State Song, Prankster Shocco Jones Part Of N.C. Heritage

By IRIS J. VINEGAR
N.C. Department
Of Cultural Resources

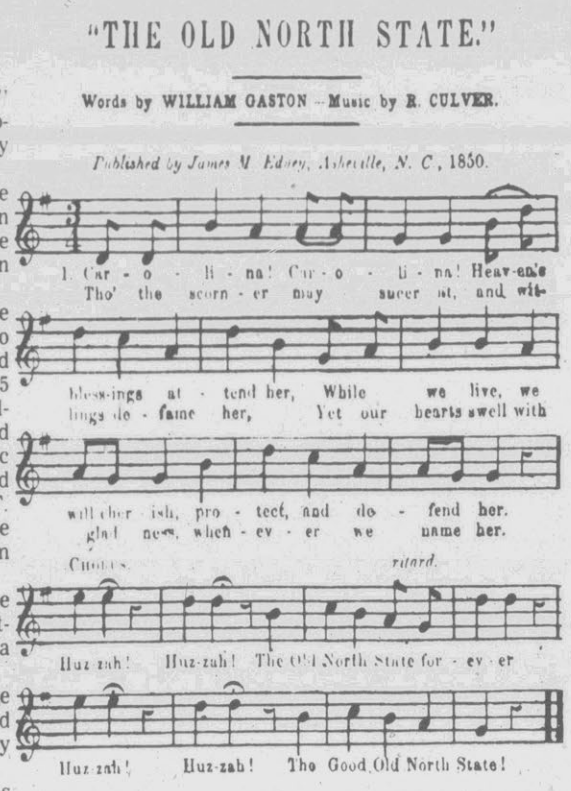
Although the lyrics of the stirring anthem were written by a North Carolinian, the melody was taken from on old German folk song.

According to legend, some North Carolina girls were so enchanted with a tune played at a Raleigh concert in 1835 by a group of Swiss bell-ringers, that they requested a copy of the sheet music from the musicians and brought it to Mrs. James F. Taylor, niece of Supreme Court Justice William Gaston.

Mrs. Taylor played the tune for her uncle, suggesting it was appropriate for a national hymn.

A short time later, Judge Gaston wrote the lyrics and had the music arranged by R. Culver.

"The Old North State" was officially odopted as the state song by the N.C. State Legistature on Feb. 18, 1927.



"THE OLD NORTH STATE."

Published by James M. Edney, Asheville, N. C., 1850.

EARLIEST KNOWN . . . The above print is the earliest known copy of the words and music of "The Old North State" extant. It was printed in Asheville in 1850.

A Tar Heel Character

This is the month for North Carolinians to remember Shocco Jones — historian, defender of his state's honor and prankster of the first magnitude. Jones died on Feb 20, 1855.

Joseph Seawell Jones, who got his nickname from Shocco Springs near his birthplace in Warrenton, took on the great Thomas Jefferson in a book entitled "Defence of the Revolutionary History of the State of North Carolina from the Aspersions of Mr. Jefferson," published in 1834.

It seems that Jefferson, in a letter to John Adams published after Jefferson's death, charged that the 1775 Mecklenburg Declaration was fraud, and he impugned the loyalty of North Carolina representatives in the Continental Congress.

Jefferson said there was "not a greater Tory in Congress than (William) Hooper," co-signer of the Declaration of Independence.

North Carolinians were furious. Shocco Jones proved that Mr. Jefferson was a plagiarist — that a copy of the the Resolutions of Mecklenburg County was on Jefferson's desk when he wrote the declaration. But although "Defence" contained some innaccuracies, the book made Jones a hero, a knight defending his state's honor.

Jones reportedly dueled with a New Yorker who had made slurs about Southern integrity. Dueling is a criminal act.

Jones was supposed to have killed his antagonist, going so far as to produce a blood-soaked handkerchief as proof. A nearby resident said he saw what appeared to be "a dead body in a sack" being carried from the scene of the shooting.

However, although local residents and law officers made a thorough serarch of the area where the bloody deed was supposed to have been done, a body could not be found.

Finally, a man who had assisted Jones in his flight from the authorities went back to the scene of the crime to quiet his own suspicions and discovered that the bloody corpse was nothing more than a pig.

Shortly after this hoax, Jones went to Mississippi. The state was still in precarious financial condition from the Panic of 1837.

Shocco brought with him some ostentatious-looking parcels labeled "Cape Fear Money" and "Public Documents," which he deposited in a local bank.

He spread rumors throughout the financial community that he was in the state in two capacities — as an agent of the Bank of Cape Fear of Wilmington seeking investment opportunities in Mississippi, and as representative of the U.S. Treasury Department with instructions to compel the Agricultrual and Planters' Banks of Natchez to repay the government deposits entrusted to those banks before the Panic.

Understandably, he became the most respected and feared man in Mississippi, and was constantly wooed by applicants for loans.

Jones managed to stall the negotiations as he traveled across the state, placing his "special" deposits in the banks of each town he visited. Meanwhile, the managers of the Agricultural and Planters' Banks of Natchez hoped to solicit funds from Shocco in his capacity as representative of the Bank of Cape Fear to repay Jones, the Treasury agent.

Jones got away with the hoax for four months before a U.S. marshal exposed him as a phony, and by the time it was revealed that the "Cape Fear" parcel contained blank pieces of paper and the "Public Documents" were merely old newspapers, he had slipped out of the state.

APRIL PREVIEW — Remember the very warm for February days that swept into Greenville last week? Experience Is Focus Of Disabled Children Book

— The Learning Disabled Child: Ways that Parents Can Help. By Suzanne H. Stevens. Winston-Salem. John F. Blair, Publisher. Clothbound, 196 pages. $8.95.

Parents of children with learning disabilities need to assert their rights as well as provide support and understanding of the children's learning problems. These youngsters have been said to "march to a different drummer"' and frequently, they appear to be in a different parade altogether. Working and living with them can be a frustrating, frantic and fantastic experience. Rarely is the task of remediation simple. Rarely is the world willing to adjust its tempo or ways just to accommodate their needs. These seem to be the major points of the Stevens publication.

The author's stated purpose is to "help parents raise their learning disabled children so that they, too, can grow up to be okay." Had Ms. Stevens written only the anecdotes with which the book is liberally sprinkled, her aim would have been well-achieved. There is comfort in knowing that others have survived their difficulties and have succeeded academically with remedial support.

Read as a collection of anecdotes, the book reflects the anger, frustration, concern and joy of anyone who has lived or worked with children who have learning problems: anger at a system which prevents the specialist from accomplishing the best for a child because of overloaded classes, red tape, scheduling problems and people who see this child as lazy, stubborn or lacking in intelligence ... frustration with thwarted attempts to change the system ... concern that the child may be lost in the mainstream where his needs are not easily understood ... and the joy of seeing a child succeed where once he failed. Read this way, the book is the story of everyone who knows and cares for the children who have learning problems.

Read as a source of information, the contents provide adequate help in understanding the problems of learning disabled children. The question-and-answer format used in some chapters is easy to follow, albeit, many of the answers come from author experience and opinion, rather than research.

The point of chapter four escapes this reviewer. It has a catchy title, "Isn't Anybody Watching? Why Public Schools Don't Recognize LD Children." The chapter condemns the LD expert on one hand for having a pet theory of remediation, and on the other, for being eclectic. In fact, that chapter condemns almost everyone — the reading supervisor for being an old experienced classroom teacher, the Ph.D. for lack of classroom experience, the placement committee for not including an LD specialist, and the LD specialist for being from out of town.

Also appearing in chapter four is a set of criteria by which a class for learning disabled children should be judged. The author claims that if any one of the four factors is missing, Public Law 94-142 is being violated. This is misleading, for there is nothing in the Specific Learning Disabilities section of PL 94-142 which states that those four items — a specially trained teacher, special methods of instruction, special books and materials, or a small number of students (six to 10) — constitutes the least restrictive alternative, or the only appropriate educational setting for children with learning disabilities.

The chapter on testing emphasizes the amount of time a diagnostic evaluation should take, the minimum cost, and a discussion of absolute scores on the individual tests of intelligence. No mention is made of the multidisciplinary team approach to diagnosis, the need to compare performance with potential, or the limitations of the Stanford-Binet Scales. Also omitted are the seven specific learning disabilities defined under Public Law 94-142 and the mandated procedures for evaluation and placement.

The book is well-intended, although based primarily on opinion and experience, rather than research. Obviously, the author has great concern for LD children, and has been very successful in working with them. Although the contents fall short of expectations, the author's dedication and commitment to the cause of learning disabled children is a model for us all.

Something We Should Remember

— Goodbye Darkness. By William Manchester. New York. The Dell Publishing To., Inc. 454 pages, paperback, $3.95.

The ghost of the young Marine sergeant that was William Manchester haunts the aging man that is now William Manchester, asking questions that demand the author's return to the Pacific battleground for answers.

The author in turn leads the reader through events we want to forget, but shouldn't; or never knew but should.

Flashbacks are beautifully woven into the author's modern day odyssey through the islands of the Pacific where the Japanese tide rose and fell in the days following Pearl Harbor.

A pattern of these events takes shape politically and emotionally as well as geographically as Manchester brilliantly orchestrates the many facets of his memory and of his research into the fabric of the book.

"Goodbye Darkness" is a must for those of us old enough to remember those times, wherever we were; doubly so for all others who might not remember the price that was paid for us.

Don't overlook the map inside the back cover; you may find, as I did, that many of us know so little, really, of the locations of names familiar in the recent history of that part of the world.

Georgia Press To Publish Rivers' Poems

J.W. Rivers of Hardee Acres, Greenville, has received word that he is the winner of a national poetry competition for his manuscript of a collection of poems, "Proud On My Feet." The collection is to be published in November 1982 by the University of Georgia Press, Athens, Ga.

Rivers, who formerly lived in various Asian and Latin American countries before moving to Greenville, is also the author of a previous collection of poems, "From The Chicago Notebook," published in 1979 by the Spoon River Poetry Press, Bradley University, Peoria, Ill.

Rivers, a native of Chicago, has had poems and stories in English and Spanish published by approximately 80 journals. He is a member of the Greenville Writers Club.

FROM SHEPPARD MEMORIAL LIBRARY

By Willie Mae Gibbs

In addition to the cassette tapes explaining how to fill out a tax form, the library now has available several new tax books that can aid taxpayers who have not yet prepared their 1981 returns.

One of the most widely used tax guides is J.K. Lasser's "Your Income Tax." Unlike other tax publications, this book not only provides a guide to preparing tax returns, but also gives tax and other financial information on planning financial security.

Aids in this direct and easy-to-read book include complete information on tax-reducing deductions, creditis and elections; checklists itemizing what you report and don't report, what you may not deduct, a guide to averaging your income, and guides to investment tax planning.

The expanded coverage of the 1982 edition of "Your Income Tax" calls attention to decisions favoring taxpayers not presented in IRS publications and reflects the current IRS regulations and rulings and recent court decisions that could mean saving tax dollars.

The editors of "Consumer Guide" have put together a tax guide called "Pay Less Tax." The information contained in this publication is the result of in-depth research and is designed to help the taxpayer come out ahead of the IRS by using the all-new, tax-saving strategies it recommends.

Included in the book are more that 300 money-saving tax deductions and tips that are general statements based on President Reagan's new tax laws. Even those who plan to have their returns professionally prepared will benefit from the complete and up-to-date information this publication offers.

A Review

Folk Dancing Survey

— International Folk Dancing U.S.A. By Betty Casey. New York. Doubleday & Co. 1982. Large format. 448 pages. Illustrated. $22.50.

In this interesting and thought-provoking book, Betty Csey allows us to see the world from the unique perspective of those voyeurs of past and passing ethnic cultures, the American international folk dancers. Mrs. Casey has manifested her years abroad as a foreign service wife and "some twenty thousand research miles" in a book which blends expression-through-gesture (dance) with expression-through-identity (nationalism). In this sense, she comes close to documenting the experimental.

"International Folk Dancing U.S.A." is one of those encyclopedic books you can peruse, close, and reopen to another tidbit; like many other reference books, it is an enjoyable read mail order catalogue style: as need and fancy dictate. You can discover why the bodices of peasant women lace in front, how sumptuary decrees influenced embroidery, and which way to turn in the Hora.

In the large section (214 pages) called "Selected Folk Dances From Many Lands", Mrs. Casey has compiled an alphabetically arranged description of dances from Armenia to Yugoslavia. Because each nationality section is written about by a different authority, however, the style and information covered varies greatly from none at all to richly detailed cultural analyses. In a representative sample, the dance is named and pronounced, we learn who taught the author the dance, perhaps an explanation of its ritual meaning, the phonograph record intended to accompany the dance, and, finally and consistently, a cookbook-style description of how to dance the dance.

157 good photographs, several line drawings, and a lexicon of folk dance definitions help to illustrate what sometimes is esoterica and highly technical dance information. Peppered throughout are Mrs. Casey's essays, frequenlty relating her personal expereiences in various countries.

The book brings insights into cultural structures lost in a society like ours, where etiquette tends to the amorphous. In Lithuania, for instance, there is a special dance for leave taking, performed in gratitude for a lovely party. This brief description of the Jaunimelis dance tells us much about a country and its people.

In a book which involves both human emotion celebrated in the ritual of dance as well as an expression of identity via structured movement, and does this by panning the various countries our melting pot's ancestors came from, it is a disappointment to find that "American" folk dances are apparently of only two types: Square Dancing, and Israeli. A token essay explaining the omission of the uniquely American dances of African origin would have at least avoided this glaring absence. Perhaps it was omitted because it is still alive, growing: the need which a developing folk dance fulfills may still exist, and the Afro American culture as represented in dance may not yet have been reduced to a formula.

"International Folk Dancing USA" is nevertheless an excellent reference book for folk and other dance enthusiasts everywhere. To the layperson, it leaves the impression that somewhere in our midst is a veritable subculture whose common gaol is the study of the dead and dying: ethnic groups in America as manifested in dance. They meet in gymnasiums and follow someone else's rules. It is, as one of Mrs. Casey's authorities said, a wholesome activity.

Do they wonder whether dance-as-ritual and dance-as-social-interaction (as expressed in introductory essays by Curt Sachs and Agnes de Mille) are the same as as dance-as-cookbook?

That it cannot be haunts each page of the book like the echo of thumping soles in an empty gymnasium.

Christine Rusch

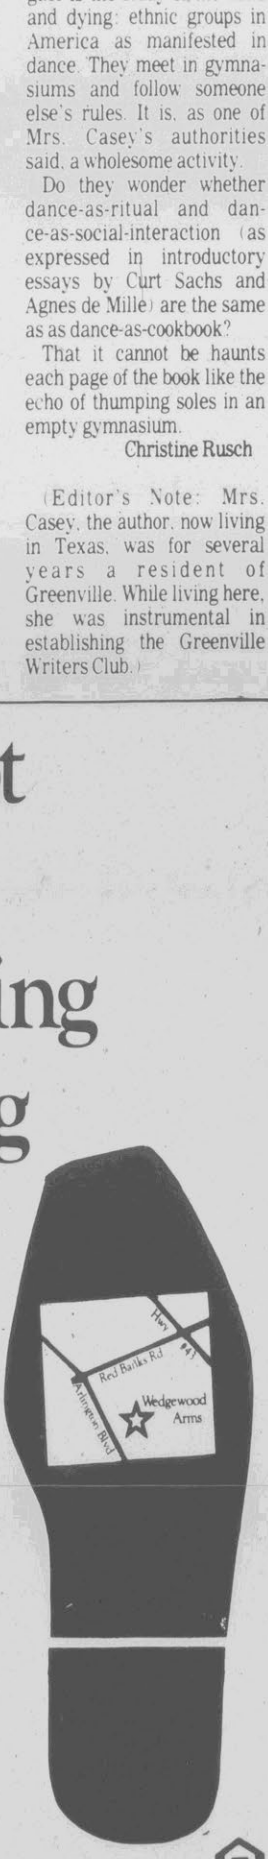
We put our foot down about apartments being within walking distance.



Wedgewood Arms apartments are within walking distance of three shopping centers, a nursery school, a junior high school, doctors' and dentists' offices and an athletic center.

As if that wasn't enough, three major traffic arteries, 264 Bypass, Arlington Blvd., and Charles St. are close enough to be seen and not heard.

Fact is, no apartments in town can legitimately claim to be more convenient to more things than Wedgewood Arms.

And, that's not all. Because Wedgewood Arms is not only convenient, it's different in other ways, too.

Take the floorplans, they're different from anything you've ever seen. And when you add in high energy efficiency, tennis courts, swimming pool, and the neighborhood "feeling" that these apartments will give you—well, you'll just have to see for yourself.

Paul Hume Is Festival Guest

Since the beginning of 1946 Paul Hume has been music editor of The Washington Post, perhaps one of the longest-run music critics of all time. Hume specializes in the history, performance, and the conducting of classical music.

Hume is a special guest as one of well known personalities appearing in the the East Carolina University School of Music's Festival '81-'82. He will be here Monday and Tuesday, March 1 and 2. The public is invited to attend the lectures to be given by Hume, and there is no charge involved. All events listed will be in the A.J. Fletcher Music Center.

His first appearance will be at 10 a.m. Monday, when he will lecture on the topic "The 1982 National Symphony Orchestra European Tour: Recollections and Reflections," in the Recital Hall.

At 2 p.m. Monday, in Room 105, Hume will give a performance critique of a program to be presented by five groups from the ECU School of Music.

Participants in the program being performed for Hume's critique are:

• The ECU Percussion Ensemble under the direction of Mark Shelton will perform Robert Schetman's "Three Dithramboi."

• Four students — Tracy Daly and Valerie Crim, violin; Joli Jones, viola; and Jeff Tuthill, violoncello, will play the allegro from Haydn's "String Quartet in D Major (The Lark)."

• Five players, members of the ECU Student Woodwind Quintet — Ellen Kaner, flute; Beth Shelton, oboe; Kevin Bagby, clarinet; Sherry Jones, horn; and Matt Morris, bassoon, will play the adagio and allegro from Beethoven's "Quintet in E-flat Major;" and;

• Brett Watson will conduct the Concert Choir in Josquin des Prez's "Salve Regina."

At the first general meeting of the Friends of the School of Music, East Carolina University, to be held at 7:30 p.m. Monday in the Recital Hall, Hume will be guest speaker. He will be introduced by Charles F. Schwartz, Dean of the School of Music. Friends will be welcomed by John M. Howell, acting chancellor, ECU. Entertainment will be provided by the ECU Student Woodwind Quintet performing Barthe's "Passacaille."

Hume will give two lectures on Tuesday, March 2. The first will be at 10 a.m. and will be a lecture/discussion on contemporary music. The second lecture will be at 2 p.m., and the subject is "Music Criticism: A Survey." Both the Tuesday lectures will be given in Room 105 of the Music Center.

UNC TV Festival Days

CHAPEL HILL — March 5 is the beginning date of Festival, public television's annual fund-raising fortnight. This year the UNC Center for Public Televison is offering a collection of old and new shows — designed to convince North Carolinians that now is the the time for all Tar Heels to come to the aid of public television.

•Saturday — A showing of the "As Time Goes By" movie, "Casablanca," starring Bogart, Bergman, Rains and Lorre in the 1943 classic movie of war-engendered intrigue.

•March 10 — A two-hour special, "The Marx Brothers in a Nutshell," a documentary look at the brothers from early days of vaudeville, on to films and television.

•March 17 — "Down Home Country Music" on St. Patrick's Day features Glen Campbell hosting country singers Larry Gatlin, Mel Tellis, the Texas Playboys, Steve Goodman, Tammy Wynette, Charlie Pride and many others.

•March 18 — Another nostalgia trip, this one with "The Kingston Trio and Friends: Reunion," with the original trio together for the first time in 20 years as well as the current Trio, Mary Travers and host Tommy Smothers. Songs include "Where Have all the Flowers Gone," "Tom Dooley" and "MTA."

•March 19 — A look at TV's sister medium, radio, in "Great Radio Comedians." Originally broadcast in 1972, now a classic, the show stars George Burns and Gracie Allen, Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy, Jack Benny, and others.

•March 20 — Dinah Shore hosts the three-hour special, "The Alltime American Songbook." The lineup of singers include Judy Collins, Sergio Franchi, Melba Moore, Kenny Rankin and Bobby Short, performing songs like "Just One of Those Things," "All the Things You Are," and "Night and Day."

•March 21 — The grand finale of Festival Days is a "Gala of Stars 1982" with Beverly Sills hosting greats from the worlds of chamber music, dance, opera, the stage and symphonic music.

Asked To Create New Pas De Deux

HOUSTON — Ben Stevenson, artistic director of the Houston Ballet, has been asked by Peter Wright, director of Sadler's Wells Royal Ballet, to choreograph a new Pas de Deux to be performed by Houston ballet dancers Janie Parker and Li Cunxin at a gala performance in London on May 20.

On the same program Sir Frederick Ashton will choreograph a new Pas de Deux for Anthony Dowell and Antoinette Sibley.

Also, later in the year, principal dancer Janie Parker of the Houston Ballet will return to London to dance "Giselle" with the Royal Ballet.

Symphonic Band Concert Today

The East Carolina University Symphonic Band will present its annual Winter Concert tonight at 8:15 p.m. in Memorial Gym. The 60-member band will be conducted by Tom Goolsby, assistant director of bands.

The program opens with an original band work, "Suite No. 2 in F," by Gustav Holst which includes "March, Song Without Words," "Song of the Blacksmith," and "Fantasia on the Dargason."

Two short pieces by Percy Grainger will follow — "Australian Up-Country Tune" and "The Sussex Mummers' Christmas Carol." These are presented to honor the 100th anniversary of Grainger's birth.

Appearing at this point in the program will be th Phi Mu Alpha brass quintet. This group is comprised of outstanding brass players who are active brothers of the national music society Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia. The group will perform Victor Ewald's "Quintet No. 3."

The band will resume its program with "Savannah River Holiday" by Ron Nelson. This piece utilizes melodies and harmonies as typically American as its name.

In keeping with truly American music, the program will conclude with the "Free Lance March" by John Philip Sousa.

Ameling Concert

Elly Ameling, noted Dutch soprano, will be in concert at 8 p.m. Tuesday at Hendrix Theater, Mendenhall Student Center, East Carolina University.

Ms. Ameling was originally scheduled to sing Sunday but had to cancel the engagement due to illness.

Tickets are priced at $5 and will be available at the door.

Stern Film Next Music Festival Event

The fifth event in this year's Festival '82-'82 sponsored by the School of Music, East Carolina University, will be the film that won the Academy Award in 1980 as the year's best documentary.

"From Mao to Moazrt: Isaac Stern in China will be shown at 8:15 p.m. Thursday, March 4 in Hendrix Theater, Mendenhall Student Center.

Like other music festival events, there is no charge for admission and the public is invited to attend.

Critics had high praise for the film. Gene Shalit, on The Today Show on NBC-TV, called it "a delightful film, beautifully made." A film critic in The New York Times commented: "Please see this movie! It won one Oscar. It deserved two — the second for making yhou feel just wonderful about being a human being."

Cynthia Cook Recital Tuesday

Cynthia Ann Cook of Greensboro, soprano, will present her senior recital at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at the A.J. Fletcher Recital Hall.

She will be accompanied by Angela Coats, pianist. Ms. Cook will sing songs by Schubert, Wolf, Brahms, Debussy, Puccini and Ives.

There is no admission fee charged for the public recital.

Williamston Auditions Set

WILLIAMSTON — Auditions for the forthcoming production of "The Music Man," to be staged by the Martin Community Players, will be held Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday in the Martin County Auditorium. The county auditorium is located in Williamston High School, off U.S. 17 south of Holiday Inn.

Auditions begin at 7:30 p.m. Those who wish to audition for a singing role are to come prepared to sing a short selection. An accompanist will be provided. In addition to singers and actors, the Players is seeking persons to work in technical slots.

Leonard Rose To Perform March 3

CHARLOTTE — Cellist Leonard Rose will appear with the Charlotte Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Leo Driehuys at 8:15 p.m. Wednesday.

Rose will be soloist for "Variations on a Rococo Theme" by Tchaikovsky. Other selections on the program are Sir Edwar Elgar's overture, "In The South," and Shostakovich's "Symphony No. 5."

Tickets are priced at $10, $9, $8 and $5.50, and $4.50 for students. For reservations call 704/332-6136.

Big WOOW Classics

A Musical Menu for the Heartiest Musical Appetites is the tenor of Karen Hause's "WOOW Classics" program tonight. The two-hour feed of classical music is being served from 10 p.m. to midnight tonight over WOOW Radio, 1340 on the radio dial.

The substantial feast opens with a festive dish from a favorite Italian, Vivaldi, with a performance of his "Concerto for Horns, Winds and Strings." The main entree comes from Russia, the "Violin Concerto in D" prepared by Tchaikovsky and presented by violinist Isaac Stern and the Philadelphia Orchestra under Eugene Ormandy.

The next dish is a baroque oldie from Germany, Telemann's "Trio Sonata," actually composed as "table music" for people to listen to while feasting in the grand manner of the early 18th century. This will be supplemented by another German offering, Richard Strauss' "Til Eulinspiegal."

The British composer Ralph Vaughn-Williams supplies a Far West European note to the musical meal with his happy concoction, "English Folk Song Suite."

Hospitality House

WASHINGTON — Older people are in the spotlight today on Kay Currie's "Hospitality House" airing from noon until 12:30 p.m. over WITN-TV, Channel 7, Washington.

"Not Getting Older — Getting Better" is the theme of guest Margo Raynor, a fitness specialist with the North Carolina Division on Aging. She explains the AHOY (Add Health To Our Years) program, one that stresses physical health among older adults, emphasizing that those "who don't use it, lose it."

Another guest on the getting older theme is Ernest Messer, assistant secretary of the Division of Aging. Messer explains that many diseases that affect elderly people do not have to necessarily develop, that they can be stalled off for some years. He also touches on his personal philosophy about aging.

Lively entertainment is provided by The Red Oak Cracker Jacks of Red Oak, a performing group of people between the ages of 65 and 85. On today's show there is also a live audience.

N.C. Book Club Lists New, Old Offerings

Spring selections in the N.C. Book Club's offering include four recently-published titles covering literary, historical and general areas, as well as prize winning works by several well-known North Carolina authors.

The book club offers quarterly lists of significant books on various subjects at substantial discounts to members and the public.

For spring 1982, dual literary selections are "Cakewalk," an amusing collection of short stories by Lee Smith and "Midquest: a Poem," a "verse-novel" by Fred Chappell. The work brings together four award-winning poems entitled "River,", "Bloodfire," "Wind Mountain" and "Earthsleep."

Both "Cakewalk" (G.P. Putnam's Sons) and "Midquest" (Louisiana State University Press) were published in November, 1981.

"Poor Carolina: Politics and Society in Colonial North Carolina 1729-1776" by A. Roger Ekirch is the book clubs's featured historical selection. Published by the University of North Carolina Press in October, 1981, "Poor Carolina" is the first thorough treatment of politics and its relation to society in the royal province of North Carolina.

The N.C. Book Club's featured general selection is the "Guide to the Private Maunuscript Collections in the N.C. State Archives.," compiled and edited by Barbara T. Cain, Ellen Z. McGrew and Charles E. Morris. Published by the N.C. Division of Archives and History, an agency of the department of Cultural Resources, this work is fully indexed, making it especially useful for historians, geneologists and other researchers.

In addition to these four main selections, the N.C. Book Club is making available books which won four of North Carolina's most prestigious literary awards in 1981: "John Dos Passos: A 20th Century Odyssey" by Townsend Ludington, winner of the Mayflower Cup for nonfiction; "The Source of Light" by Reynolds Price, winner of the Sir Walter Raleigh Award for fiction; "Following Gravity" by James Applewhite, winner of the Roanoke Chowan Award for poetry; and "Earthsleep" by Fred Chappell, winner of the Zoe Kincaid Brockman Award for poetry.

All of the above titles, plus a backlist of more than 30 books previously offered by the N.C. Book Club can be ordered at prices substantially below the publisher's list prices. Members of the N.C. Literary and Historical Association receive a 25 percent discount, while others receive a 15 percent discount on any selection.

Mrs. Prashker had been associate publisher and vice-president for Doubleday.

Tribute To Carpenter

WILMINGTON — A "Tribute to Frederick Sadgwar Sr. — Black Master Carpenter, Cabinetmaker and Buildier of Wilmington," is to be given by Louise Worthy and members of the Chestnut Street Presbyterian Church Sunday at 2 p.m.

The program will be held at the New Hanover County Museum, 814 Market St., and will be open to the public at no charge.

Sadgwar was educated at Lincoln University in Pennsylvania shortly after the Civil War. He returned to Wilmington and began a long career of building, not only homes and business buildings, but fine cabinetwork as well.

He was born in 1843 and died in 1925. It was in 1868 that Sadgwar established the first school for freedmen in southeastern North Carolina. The school was located in Whiteville, in Columbus County.

Dr. Charles Laughinghouse Spearheaded A Long Struggle Before The Doors Opened In 1924

History Of Greenville's First Hospital Recalled

Text By Maury York, Joyner Library, ECU

Greenville's Dr. Charles O'Hagan Laughinghouse wouldn't take "no" for an answer. Motivated by genuine concern for the health of Pitt County's rural population, Laughinghouse worked for over two decades after the turn of the century to arouse interest in a modern, fully equipped hospital. In 1924 he and three other local physicians made the dream come true.

The culmination of Laughinghouse's dedication — Pitt Community Hospital — brought Greenville and Pitt County into the mainstream of a new American movement for adequate rural health care.

Leadership, Interest

Persons familiar with Dr. Laughinhouse's background would not have been surprised by his leadership ability and interest in serving others. His father, Joseph John Laughinghouse, served the people of North Carolina from 1909 to 1913 as superintendent of the state prison in Raleigh and during the sessions of 1905, 1907-1908 and 1915 as a representative from Pitt County in the North Carolina House of Representatives. Dr. Charles James O'Hagan, Charles' grandfather, ministered to the sick of Pitt County for nearly 50 years and achieved widespread recognition as an active member of the Medical Society of the State of North Carolina.

But Charles Laughinghouse didn't stand in the shadow of these men. After he was graduated from the University of Pennsylvania medical school in 1893, Laughinghouse threw his powerful frame and seemingly boundless energy into a successful medical practice. Active in the state medical society, he led it as president in 1916 and 1917.

Helped Shape Policies

Laughinghouse helped shape state health policies from 1911 to 1926 as a member of the North Carolina State Board of Health. The board named him state health officer in 1926, and he held the position until his death in 1930.

Laughinghouse stayed abreast of new developments in the field of medicine by reading professional journals and by corresponding with colleagues. Thus, in 1909 he learned of an exciting new approach to providing health care for rural communities.

Support for rural hospitals emerged in Iowa. Dr. Elbert Erwin Munger, of Spencer, knew that Iowa's farmers possessed no immunity to the diseases that effected city dwellers with access to hospitals. Furthermore, he attributed Iowa's high mortality rate of mothers and children during childbirth to the dearth of hospitals. Munger produced statistics that revealed the economic superiority of hospital care to physicians' costly house calls.

As a remedy, Munger prescribed modern healthcare facilities with ambulance service, training schools for nurses, and pathological, bacteriological and X-ray laboratories. In 1909 he took his case to the Iowa Legislature.

Bill Becomes Law

Munger's county hospital bill cleared the Legislature on March 31, 1909, and became law in September. The novel legislation provided for county elections to authorize taxation for the construction and maintenance of public hospitals to be governed by a board of seven trustees, including women. Washington County voters immediately took advantage of the law. Within three years America's first tax-supported county hospital rose as a challenge to progessive communities everywhere.

The movement spread rapidly. Soon the Legislatures of Indiana, Kansas, Texas and North Carolina followed Iowa's example. Probably because of agitation by Dr. H.O. Hyatt of Kinston, Lenoir County Rep. E.R. Wooten introduced in the 1913 North Carolina General Assembly a bill patterned after Munger's legislation. The assembly ratified the bill, which included a provision that authorized county commissioners to contract with the county hospital for the care of tubercular patients.

Charles Laughinghouse welcomed the new law as an alternative to the unsuccessful approach he and other interested persons had tried in 1902. That year prominent politicians, including former Gov. Thomas Jordon Jarvis and U.S. Rep. Harry Skinner, joined several doctors on behalf of a non-profit hospital to be supported partly by the taxpayers of Greenville and Pitt County. Laughinghouse explained the issue to the Greenville town board in May, and the board appropriated funds for the project. County officials and local philanthropists also provided money.

The North Carolina Secretary of State incorporated Pitt County Hospital that summer, but failure to raise adequate funds prevented its construction.

Problems Cause Failure

The next serious campaign emerged in 1916 in response to the 1913 state law. Laughinghouse formed a partnership with Karl Busbee Pace, a recent graduate of Jefferson Medical College, so he could devote much of his time to securing passage of a county bond issue. He tried to persuade doctors, ministers teachers and businessmen to support the referendum, but a large majority of the county's voters in an election held on Dec. 5, 1916, opposed the measure.

Several problems contributed to the failure. The voters had already supported considerable bonded indebtedness for utilities, streets, highways, schools and public buildings. They were reluctant to increase taxes. Furthermore, only seven of Pitt County's 30 physicians resided in Greenville, the proposed site of the hospital.

Prayed, Fooled Around

Laughinghouse cynically reported to Dr. Munger in February 1917 that, "The physicians outside of Greenville Township, in the face of their statement that they favored the hospital, either worked against it during the campaign or damned it by faint praise." County businessmen opposed the measure, contending that Greenville's citizens should pay for the hospital. "The ministers," wrote Laughinghouse, "did as ministers usually do, prayed around and fooled around and left the rest to God."

Since only Greenville Township supported the referendum, Laughinghouse worked to amend the 1913 act to allow townships and munincipalities to operate tax-supported hospitals. With the assistance of Dr. Hyatt, he successfully lobbied legislators. The 1917 General Assembly enacted Laughinghouse's proposal, but Greenville did not take advantage of the amendment, possibly because Laughinghouse and other local doctors left town in 1917 for service in the United States Army Medical Corps.

Another successful effort emerged after the war. The county commissioners offered to provide an annual hospital maintenance fund of 6 percent of any amount raised for the construction of a hospital. Enthusiastic citizens pledged over $100,000 for the project, but the commissioners later withdrew their offer. Frustrated by failures in the public domain, Laughinghouse and three other physicians risked their assets to build a private hospital.

Struggle Ends

In 1923 the struggle ended. Interested persons met in Greenville in June to formulate tentative plans and to distribute shares of stock at $100 each. Eventually, Elijah Thomas Dickinson, Karl Busbee Pace and William I. Wooten joined Laughinghouse in purchasing the approximately $85,000 of stock necessary to build and equip a hospital for white patients. While the structure rose from the fields of Frank Johnston (now the corner of Johnston and Woodlawn streets) the directors opened a temporary facility above H.L. Hodges Co. on Fifth Street. The first patient received treatment in September.

Doors Opened In 1924

Six months later, on April 24, 1924, Pitt Community Hospital opened its doors. Patients discovered an institution dedicated to the needs of the community.

"We were just one big family," remembers Mrs. Jake Dixon, who in 1927 enrolled in the hospital's three-year nursing program (at that time, prior to her marriage, she was Sallie Walston). Patients enjoyed the friendly, personal service. And, though they had to pay for hospital services, many poor patients received medical care from their doctors.

Laughinghouse envisioned Pitt Community Hospital as an excellent facility in which to train the area's young doctors. He told a friend in December 1924 that these and other of the hospital's advantages should convince the county to accept responsibility for operating it: "... I have an ambition to see it give such service as will enable it to prove to every one, the fools included, the shortest-sighted fools even, the politicians (,) that it is an asset to any community and an essentially necessary institution."

AFTER 57 YEARS, THE END . . . The familiar landmark brick building that was the Pitt County Hospital at the corner of Johnston and Woodlawn Streets was demolished in May 1981, after service as a hospital and later as office spaces. (Photograph by Boice Daugherty)

Three-Story Structure

The hospital's up-to-date equipment and facilities did, indeed, make it an asset. In addition to basics such as the heating plant, hot water system, refrigeration equipment, kitchen and laundry, Pitt Community Hospital contained two operating rooms and X-ray, chemical, microscopic, pathological and bacteriological laboratories. The staff used a silent call system and adequate equipment for sterilizing utensils, instruments and dressings. Patients paid $5 dollars a day for one of the 22 private rooms, all of which had windows for light and ventilation.

The three-story structure even contained a room for storing records and case histories. With such a fine institution in Greenville, local physicians no longer sent seriously ill patients to Richmond or Norfolk as a matter of course.

Two Roles For Dickinson

Instead, they entrusted many of them to the local staff. Dr. E. T. Dickinson, formerly associated with Wilson Sanitorium, served the hospital as superintendent and surgeon. Initially he was assisted by an intern, Sellers Mark Crisp, who performed laboratory work and prepared dressings. Later, when Crisp resigned and Dr. Dickinson damaged his own health by working too hard, the hospital's director hired Malcolm Thompson to serve as superintendent and surgeon. Thompson remained after Dickinson returned.

An experienced head nurse, Virginia Ives, assisted by a trained nurse who worked during evening hours, directed the nurse "corps." Student nurses attended daily lectures that prepared them for work in class "A" hospitals. Visiting physicians provided care in specialized fields such as obstetrics and pediatrics. Mrs. W. M. Miller managed the dining room and kitchen even though she had no formal training in dietetics.

Additional staff contributed to the hospital's smooth operation — most of the time. Sallie Dixon remembers Nathan Woodard, the orderly, with affection. He carried out his duties regularly and dependably, except when someone died. When a patient became a corpse, Nathan disappeared

Dresses Dummy

Once a practical joke disrupted the work of the hospital's cook, Jonah Hagan. Someone dressed Mary Chase, the dummy used for practice by the doctors, and put her in the supply room. Jonah entered the room with a load of dishes. When he saw the dummy, the dishes crashed to the floor.

Usually, though, the hospital functioned smoothly — Faye Barnes saw to that. Miss Barnes, a niece of Dr. Dickinson, joined the staff as bookkeeper in September 1923. She intended to stay two weeks until a replacement could be found, but remained 16 years. And according to Sallie Dixon, "she ran the place."

Many Responsibilities

Miss Barnes had many responsibilities. As bookkeeper she insisted that patients pay their bills as services were rendered. Occasionally she offended patients, but usually they paid their bills. One man who experienced Miss Barnes's persistence told her, "I wouldn't marry you if you were the last person on earth, because I know you would carry the purse." Miss Barnes also assisted Jonah Hagan in the vegetable garden, fought angry bees when she extracted honey from the hospital's hives, dispensed supplies, oversaw the supply of narcotics and drove the ambulance — a converted Cadillac.

Partly because of her competence, the hospital at the end of the first year paid an 8 percent dividend after all obligations, including Dr. Dickinson's salary, had been settled.

When Dr. Laughinghouse left Greenville for Raleigh in 1926 to administer the programs of the State Board of Health, he knew that the fledgling hospital would survive, but he was unsure that it would evolve into a county-run institution that would serve blacks as well as whites. The county eventually accepted the responsibility of caring for Pitt County's sick, but not at Pitt Community Hospital.

Ward For Blacks

Important changes in local health care, including the construction of a county hospital, occurred after Laughinghouse's departure. The hospital added wards for blacks and children, and in the 1930s a non-profit corporation rented most of the building, renaming it Pitt General Hospital. After a 1947 county bond referendum passed and the federal and state governments provided funds, the county constructed Pitt Memorial Hospital on the west side of Greenville to honor county men who had fought in both world wars.

The county commissioners acquired Pitt General Hospital to ensure that it would close when the new institution opened in February 1951.

Until shortly after the present medical center accepted its first patients in 1977, the county used the old hospital for offices; then it was abandoned. By May 1981, Pitt Community Hospital's boarded-up, vandalized facade loomed gloomily above Johnson Street, casting a depressing pall over the neighborhood. That month a local developer who had purchased the building at auction in 1980 demolished it to make room for an apartment building. Demolition work began on May 20, 1981. Within a week, bulldozers and dump trucks removed every vestige of a structure that had taken years to build.

HOSPITAL FOUNDER . . . Dr. Charles O'Hagan Laughinghouse worked for more than two decades to arouse interest in a hospital to serve people in Greenville and Pitt County. He finally achieved his goal in 1924, the year that the Pitt County Hospital opened its doors. The Keltingham

Tudor Styling Crafts Two Story Traditional

By Jerry Bishop

Traditional English Tudor styling accented by diamond-light windows and stone chimneys flash in an enticing facade for the Keltingham, a spacious two-story plan. The design must be carried inside as well, and rustic exposed beams add interest to ceilings in the family room and kitchen.

In the multiple activities of a large family the design presents a series of large rooms including a unique kitchen complex, three full baths, three bedrooms, and a first floor laundry room.

Bordering the living room is the contrasting family room with studio informality. The room is capped by exposed beams and spotlights, and a wood burning fireplace. Two pairs of sliding glass doors open the area to the terrace.

Certainly the most successful room of the home is the remarkable kitchen, which merits attention from the garage, foyer, living and family rooms and terrace. The kitchen displays an expansive L-arrangement with dining area and pantry and is trimmed with exposed ceiling beams for charm. A full bath with shower and a handy laundry center are steps from the kitchen.

Comprised of two bedrooms, full bath and two-entrance attic the upper level also boasts a 24' deck, private and easily reached from either bedroom. The deck promises a spot for sunbathing or for relaxing under the exciting stars.

Storage space is plentiful and each floor merits a storage area. Besides the upper level storage rooms, the plan provides storage space in the carport and full basement.

Choose Coffee Table Carefully

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

Home furniture essentials change from era to era.

Today's informal way of life has made what formerly were rarely used or unknown articles of furniture more important than they once were.

A case in point is the coffee or cocktail table. There was little need for one when meals were served in the dining room which figured in almost all households.

The tea table may have played a role in 18th and 19th century homes, but cocktails and between-meal snacks in the living room did not.

Today, no one can do without a coffee table, as designer Richard Neas noted recently. Where would you put your drink, your ashtray, coffee-table book and fresh flower arrangement? — he asked in mock amazement.

In response to the need, there is a greater variety of coffee tables today than used to be the case, and guidelines for making a good choice have been worked out. The correct proportions are more important than matching periods or wood tone.

Rectangular coffee tables, for example, are attractive placed between two facing sofas or in rooms in which a sofa and several easy chairs face one another.

Several small bunching tables work well in place of one larger one in rooms where modular seating is used or where space is severely limited.

These easily moved pieces are highly useful in front of a sleep sofa and in small rooms where the slight tables are in proper scale.

Oval and round coffee tables — less popular than rectangular and square shapes, according to one manufacturer — are a fortunate choice in front of curved and kidney-shaped sofas and with curved modular seating.

The proper height for a coffee table depends both on looks and what seems comfortable. There are no definite rules. Formal traditional sofas that tend to sit high usually look well with a higher table, and squashy sofas that sit low look well with lower tables.

Most contempoary coffee tables are about 15 inches high, while traditional coffee tables are often about 16 inches from the floor. However, Roger Rogers, merchandising vice president for Peters-Revington Furniture, a table producer, notes that table height can vary up to about 18 inches.

According to Rogers, consumers are showing a preference for coffee tables which provide flexibility in terms of extra storage or serving space or both.

This means drop leaves and pull-out shelves are popular features as are butler-tray tables with sides that fold down. Double-decker tables with a second shelf for magazines, and tables with drawers or lift-off tops that open to reveal bar storage also are available.

A trend is to offer a greater variety of sizes — often smaller sizes in keeping with today's smaller spaces — but with expandability, said Rogers.

One option consumers oftendon't consider but should, in his opinion, is the tea table. There are a variety of tea tables on the market, particularly in 18th-century reproduction styles. Tea tables are higher than coffee tables, often up to 24 inches. One attractive version has two pull-out shelves, one at either end, said Rogers.

If you haven't been shopping lately, you may wonder about cost. "From $100 to $1,000 is the range," said Rogers. However, typical prices might be in the range of $200 to $400.

There is no rule that says you must buy something called a coffee table to go in front of a sofa, however. Necessity and ingenuity have resulted in many attractive substitutes.

Designer Neas, for example, likes using a large flat tray in the middle of a long sofa. "If the tray is large enough and flat, it won't tip over. I have a red lacquer tray in the middle of my own 9-foot-long brown velvet sofa," he said. He has also placed two small tables at either end of the sofa.

"An idea I used in a client's fishing lodge was to place two sections of a tree that was felled on the property in front of the sofa," he said. Each section is about 18 inches high by 24 inches in diameter. Nothing was done to the logs. They were simply cut and brought in.

Other possibilities include fragments of old buildings such as columns and capitals, recycled store signs laid flat and set on legs, and old and new trunks and chests.

An ornate picture frame around a mirror or a piece of clear glass set on legs can be assembled from thrift-shop finds, and a large brass tray on legs is another effective idea.

Try looking for a low pallet, such as moving and storage companies use. Sand it and paint it or simply wash it and coat with several layers of polyurethane for an extremely low-cost coffee table.

Garden Clinic

Q. I saw some broccoli plants in a garden store with small heads already formed in them. Will these plants do well if set out into the garden? (H.G., Raleigh)

A. No! These plants were probably grown in some southern state and obviously were planted real early. For best performance you need young and relatively small broccoli plants. You're probably better off to grow your own to avoid getting plants too large or too old.

Q. Whiteflies have almost ruined my fuschia hanging basket. What can I do? (O.G., Thomasville)

A. Several houseplant sprays and aerosols on the market are very effective for whitefly control. Use a spray or aerosol which contains resmethrin (SBP 1382) or methoprene (Altosid) or kinoprene (Enstar). You may have to treat three or four times, waiting about a week between applications.

Q. After the last snow, I found a lot of branch tips lying under my Norway Spruce. They were three to six inches long, and all over the snow. Could something be wrong with my tree? (T.P., Winston-Salem)

A. I suspect the twigs were clipped by squirrels or birds. Do you have a bird feeder nearby? Birds will occasionally clip branches to get a substance in a branch or to get exercises. Squirrels will cut them to start a nest. Neither animal is likely to harm the tree, so enjoy your backyard wildlife.

Q. Will there be any new tomato varieties available in 1982 that you would suggest a homeowner try? (F.S., Clayton)

A. Yes. Cherokee and Mountain Pride are two new varieties that were recently released by the North Carolina Agricultural Research Service. Both varieties have been bred for disease resistance. If you prefer small tomato fruit, I would suggest you try the new varieties called Basket King and Sweetie. Keep in mind that it is always best to try new varieties on a small scale the first year. Some of the proven standbys like Whopper, Marion and Better Boy are a

Dollhouse Collection Is Now 'Strictly For Adults'

By BETTY A. LUMAN

DALLAS (UPI) — Collectors of dollhouses are beginning to "come out of the closet" and admit their often expensive obsession with creating their fantasies in miniature, industry spokesmen say.

At the same time, the activity has moved from child's play to an adult collector hobby.

"It's strictly for adults," said Michael T. Genter, national sales manager for One of a Kind Wood Shop of Visalia, Calif. "I don't think I've ever sold one for a child. It's a hobby — like collecting model trains."

Dollhouse kits sold by Genter's firm start at $325. The kits include only the pieces for the plywood shell. The builder must add windows, doors, shingles, siding and the interior finishing touches.

At the 41st annual Hobby Industry of America trade show in Dallas, Genter displayed a nine-room, two-story house with an eight-sided turret. Distinguishing the turret was an amber stained glass window with purple, pink and green highlights.

Genter spent his first 500 hours with the company building the house and turned down a $6,900 offer at the show.

The home — which had grapefruit-color siding with tangerine trim and natural cedar shingles — was complete with dark mahogany floors, working Austrian lead-crystal chandeliers and an oval etched glass front door. The wallpaper varied from a tan, blue and brown leaf and rose pattern in the dining room to a Bonnie-rose print in the foyer and stairway.

"We also offer them as a custom model, but because of the cost we don't do that many — maybe three a year," he said.

The custom built homes — in which the buyer picks the wallpaper, paint and lighting accessories — start at $5,000. A collector wanting to finish the kit by himself could do so with $400, Genter said.

Smaller kits from other companies start as low as $12.50. However, a $30,000 dollhouse created by 50 designers currently is being shown in California by Glendale Federal Savings Bank.

The dollhouse miniatures business has boomed in the last 10 years, dealers said.

"In the 1940s there was not the availability and variety in miniatures and dollhouses that you have today because of the war," said John Javna of Real Good Toys of Montpelier, Vt. "Before that it was the Depression. These people had an unfulfilled desire to have a dollhouse."

An HIA survey of manufacturers determined dollhouse miniatures was a $90 million wholesale business in 1980. A spokeswoman said that represented $180 million in retail sales.

"We've had a lot of people come out of the closet, so to speak," said Margaret M. Leonard of Illinois Hobbycraft Inc. of Aurora, Ill.

"There were all these little old ladies who wanted a dollhouse when they were younger and still wanted one. But it wasn't until the shops started putting in miniatures that they realized, 'Hey it's okay.'"

ON THE HOUSE

What's new on the market?

THE PRODUCT — A hauler for moving large and small items.

Manufacturer's claim — That the hauler is an all-purpose workhorse that offers three distinct modes of operation, converting from a hand truck to a hauler to a yard cart in minutes ... that, as a hand truck, it has a 5-inch spoon that slips under the edge of the object being moved, including furniture, cement bags, fertilizer sacks, appliances and dozens of other items ... that, as a hauler, it will accommodate trash cans, shrubs, small trees, storage containers, bundled newspapers and the like ... that, as a cart, it is excellent for loads that require stabilization, a good example being the hauling and storing of logs.

The manufacturer's claim — That the flat wire design of this product enables the user to strip paint, varnish, rust, etc., from virtually any surface ... That there is less mess and easier cleanup than with conventional liquid strippers ... that it does not gouge wood or other surfaces ... that you can replace the stripper's wires and select the right type and size of wires for each job ... that wire breakage is virtually eliminated by the use of tempered spring steel and valve spring steel wire ... and that it is especially good for the preparation of concrete prior to painting.

THE PRODUCT — A mini hacksaw.

Manufacturer's claim — That it is excellent for cutting in hard-to-reach places not accessible to large, conventional hacksaws ... that it provides the strength and compactness needed for tough jobs, such as cutting frozen nuts and bolts ... that it is constructed of heavy-duty, rigid steel ... that a serrated thumb grip has been designed for extra holding power ... and that its high-impact, molded handle has been ultrasonically welded to make it unbreakable.

THE PRODUCT — A solar heat conditioner.

Manufacturer's claim — That this is a window unit which utilizes an electric fan and an exterior collector, a kind of solar heating device on a small-scale ... that it will heat one room, as large as 200 square feet, up to 72 degrees Fahrenheit, permitting the rest of the house to be controlled by a thermostat set at 60 ... that it is easy to install, weighs 47 pounds and is about the size of a room air conditioner ... and that the unit utilizes a solar panel that hangs outside the window, collecting sunlight while the fan pulls the captured heat into the room.

(Do-it-yourselfers will find much valuable information in Andy Lang's handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," which can be obtained by sending $1.50 to this newspaper at Box 5, Teaneck, NJ 07666.)

(The hauler is manufactured by Black & Decker, 515 Glebe Road, Easton, MD 21601; the rotary stripper by International Hardware, 1488 Route 22 East, Bridgewater, NJ 08807; the hacksaw by the Stanley Works, 195 Lake St., New Britain, CT 06050; and the solar heat conditioner by Solar Heat Conditioner, Inc., 65 South Service Road, Plainview, NY 11803.)

Here's the Answer

Q. — The concrete floor in our basement was painted many years ago. We now want to repaint it. Must we take off all the old paint? It still is solidly attached except for one area where it is a little flaky. We're repainting because we want a change of color.

A. — Scrape off any loose paint, but be sure the remainder is not likely to develop the same condition, otherwise all yourwork will be for nothing. In any case, the floor should be cleaned thoroughly because of the dirt and grease that have adhered to it. Use trisodium phosphate for the cleaning. You can buy it in that form or in one of the brand-name cleaners that are composed principally of trisodium phosphate. Read the label to determine what the ingredients are.

Q. — We want to clean the gutters around our ranch house, but have been told that we also must cut down two trees whose branches hang partly over the house, otherwise the gutters will get filled with leaves again. We do not want to destroy the trees. Have you any solution?

A. — You may be able to keep leaves out of the gutters by cutting the overhanging branches rather than taking down the trees. Another solution is to cover the gutters with one of the metal or plastic mesh guards made especially for that purpose.

Q. — Our kitchen has linoleum that probably was put down 20 or 30 years ago before we bought the house. Now we have decided to rip up the linoleum and install vinyl asbestos tiles. I pulled up one corner of the linoleum and found that hardboard is under it. If I take up the old linoleum, will I be able to install the tiles right over the hardboard? If not, what should I do?

A. — You can install the tiles on the hardboard, which presumably was put down specifically to keep the surface smooth for the linoleum. When the linoleum is up, scrape off any signs of cement, then check the hardboard to be certain it is still solidly attached. Remove any loose or protruding nails and replace them.

Q. — I have to remove some resilient floor tiles. Many years ago I read that this could be done with dry ice. Is this so and how can it be done?

A. — Yes, it is so, but handling dry ice must be done with great care. One method is to make a wooden frame, about 27 inches by 27 inches and fill it with dry ice. Place the ice-filled frame on the tile and leave it there 3 or 4 minutes. Chip out the tile, then move the frame and repeat as many times as needed to complete the operation. When you buy the dry ice, have the dealer explain to you how to handle the material.

(For a copy of Andy Lang's booklet, "Installing Resilient Floor Tiles," send 50 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P. O. Box 477, Huntington, NY 11743. Questions of general interest will be answered in the column, but individual correspondence cannot be undertaken.)

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, FEB. 28, 1982

YOUR DAILY Horoscope
from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day when you will be able to gain the goodwill of others by adopting a more cooperative attitude. Be sure to let family members know of your true devotion to them.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) A good day to meditate so your mind becomes free of trouble. Later discuss the future with close friends.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Engage in more cultural activities and gain excellent results. Strive for increased harmony with family members.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Taking part in light activities with congenials brings excellent results now. Your creativity is high at this time.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You can make home life happier with those you love and enjoy. Control your temper at all times today.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Once you have kept promises you've made, visit congenials and exchange future plans. Don't neglect an important communication.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Study your assets and liabilities and know how to coordinate your efforts so that success is assured in the future.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Look over your surroundings and make plans for improvement. Take time to visit friends of long standing.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) A good day to study those things that have puzzled you in the past and come up with the right answers.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) The right time is now to get together with good friends and discuss future plans. You need more social life.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You can now make a good impression on others. Start by attending the services of your choice. Strive for real happiness.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Be alert to new methods for expanding in the future. A new contact can be most helpful to you. Show your thanks.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Listen to the voice of your conscience before making any important decisions concerning the future. Take health treatments.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she could easily be spoiled if life's values aren't taught early. Otherwise your progeny could take the wrong path and the fine promise in this chart will be lost. Be sure to give the best education you can afford.

GOREN BRIDGE

BY CHARLES H. GOREN AND OMAR SHARIF
©1982 Tribune Company Syndicate, Inc

DEAR MR. GOREN

Q.—I have a problem about a bidding sequence that seems to occur frequently. Suppose that you have a balanced minimum opening bid, about 13 HCP, and a five-card major suit. But your partner opens one of a minor in front of you and, over your one of a major response, he rebids one no trump. How do you go about showing your hand? A jump in your five-card suit, which may not be overly robust, is unthinkable; a simple rebid of your suit or a rebid of a lower-ranking suit, is unforgivable because neither action is forcing and more than likely will be passed; and a jump in no trump is disagreeable since you might not have a stopper in one of the suits. What do you suggest? — P. Hill, Seattle, Wash.

(This question has been awarded the weekly prize.)

A.—I can understand why you have problems—there is no single rule to cover all situations, so each hand has to be treated on its own merits. You could shoot out three no trump and hope for the best—with an opening bid facing an opening bid, three no trump is unlikely to be disastrous and is almost sure to have some play. But there are many hands that might play better in the 5-3 major fit if it exists, or in partner's suit if you have a fit there. So you should try to find out as much as you can about partner's hand.

Let's consider a possible hand. Suppose that you are South and you hold:

♠KJx ♡AQxxx ◇Kxx ♣xx

The bidding:

North	South
1 ◇	1 ♡
1 NT	?

North might or might not have a club stopper. If he doesn't, three no trump might have no play while four hearts or five diamonds could be laydown. You cannot rebid two diamonds or two hearts, because both are nonforcing; a jump to three diamonds would promise better diamonds and a more unbalanced hand; and your heart suit is too weak for you to even consider a jump to three hearts.

However, it is not impossible to find a forcing bid on this hand that will enable you to learn what partner has. You simply rebid two spades—a bid in a new suit higher ranking than your first is forcing. Don't worrry about the possibility of partner raising to three spades — he denied four spades when he bid one no trump over your one heart response. But now partner can give preference to three hearts if he has three cards in the suit, or rebid his own five-card diamond suit with a shaky club stopper, or bid no trump with clubs well stopped. No matter what, you will be much better placed to decide which game you want to play.

Now switch the black suits round, giving you a doubleton spade and three clubs to the king-jack. You can't rebid two clubs because that would not be forcing. And a jump to three clubs could land you in trouble. You probably just have to gamble out three no trump and hope that partner has spades stopped.

You do have a margin of security. If partner held three hearts and nothing in spades, he might have opted to raise hearts rather than bid one no trump. After all, he must be aware that the defenders like to lead the unbid major against no trump contracts.

Street To Close For Three Weeks

The stretch of 14th Street from Dickinson Avenue to Washington Street will be closed to through traffic for up to three weeks beginning March 15 to facilitate the reconstruction of the railroad crossings at Beatty Street and Pitt Street, City Engineer Ron Sewell said.

The street will be open for access to residences and businesses in the area. However, the railroad crossings will be completely impassable and alternative routes should be planned.

"We realize the inconvenience that is being placed on the residents and businesspersons in the area, and the public in general," he said, "and assure you the route of the detour will a well-marked fastest possible way around the construction."

Anyone having questions about this action may contact the City Engineering Department, 752-4137, Ext. 222.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING ON THE GREENVILLE UTILITIES COMMISSION MUNICIPAL PRETREATMENT PROGRAM
The Greenville Utilities Commission will hold the above public hearing on March 23, 1982 at 7:30 P.M. in the Board Room (Third Floor) of the Greenville Utilities Building in Greenville, North Carolina.
The general Pretreatment Regulation (40 CFR, Part 403) was promulgated by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency in the June 26, 1978 Federal Register and became effective on August 25, 1978. This regulation, mandated by the Clean Water Act of 1977 (Public Law 95-217), governs the control of wastewaters discharged by all nonresidential users into Publicly Owned Treatment Works (POTW's). The objectives of the Pretreatment Regulation are to: (1) prevent introduction of pollutants into POTW's which interfere with plant operations and/or disposal or use of municipal sludges; (2) prevent introduction of pollutants into POTW's which will pass through treatment works into receiving waters or the atmosphere or otherwise be incompatible with POTW; and (3) improve opportunitites to recycle and reclaim wastewaters and the sludges resulting from wastewater treatment.
The Greenville Utilities Commission has been required to develop a Pretreatment Program. Copies of the draft Program Report together with a fact sheet are available for public review at the City Clerk's office, City Hall; at Sheppard Memorial Library; and at the office of the Superintendent of Water and Sewer, Greenville Utilities Building, Greenville North Carolina.
The public hearing will be open to those present for any statements, questions, comments and/or submittal of material pertinent to the Commission's Pretreatment Program.

PITT COUNTY
NOTICE OF RESALE OF LAND UNDER DEED OF TRUST
Under and by virtue of the power and authority contained in that certain deed of trust dated June 8, 1973, executed by Mary Bess Atkins and duly recorded in the Office of the Register of Deeds of Pitt County, North Carolina, in Book T-41, page 780, in which W. W. Speight was named Trustee (Edward J. Harper, II, having been duly substituted as successor trustee by instrument recorded in Book R-48, page 543, Pitt County Registry), the undersigned Substituted Trustee offered the within described property for sale and filed report of such sale on December 29, 1981, but the Clerk of Superior Court of Pitt County having entered an order on February 9, 1982, requiring such Substituted Trustee to resell said property, the undersigned Substituted Trustee will, at 12:00 Noon on March 8, 1982, at the front door of the Pitt County Courthouse in Greenville, North Carolina, offer for sale to the highest bidder for cash, at public auction, that certain parcel of real property and the improvements located thereon described as follows:
"BEING all of Lots Numbers 7 and 8 of Block "A" Addition No. 1, Section B of Lincoln Park Subdivision. This being the same property as shown in Map Book 11, page 16 of the Pitt County Public Registry."
The improvements on said property are included in the sale. Said sale will be made subject to all ad valorem taxes and any outstanding governmental assessments; building restrictions and easements of record, and further subject to all the terms and conditions of the orders of the Court entered on January 28, 1982, and February 9, 1982.
The last and highest bidder at the sale will be required to make a cash deposit of ten percent (10%) of the first one thousand dollars of the bid price and five percent (5%) of the balance of the bid price at said sale, pending confirmation by the Court.
This the ninth day of February, 1982.

Joe Cullipher Chrysler-Plymouth Congratulates

Elmer Britt
Performance Leader

Joe Cullipher, President of Joe Cullipher Chrysler-Plymouth is proud to announce that Elmer Britt has been named by Heritage Insurance Group, Los Angeles, Ca. as the top performance leader for Group III in the United States.

This is the second consecutive award won by Elmer, having led the nation in 1980 and 1981.

Elmer has been a member of the staff at Joe Cullipher's for the past four years and for 5½ years prior to joining Joe Cullipher Chrysler-Plymouth, he was employed by Planters National Bank in the Greenville office.

Elmer, his wife Marie and daughter Jennifer make their home at 1203 Franklin Drive, Greenville. He was educated in the Princeton, N.C. school system and East Carolina University. He and his family are members of the First Church of Christ in Greenville where he serves as treasurer.

Elmer invites everyone to come by or call to discuss their automotive finance or insurance needs.

IN PANTEGO North Carolina. Elengant country home built in 1793 offers the convenience of the 1980s. Sixteen spacious rooms including five complete baths enclosed within a natural fence of magnolia, pecan, maple and pine trees. Located three miles from the Pamlico River, this magnificent home offers water recreation in the form of swimming and boating. The estate named Beldan was the home of NC governor Clyde Hooey's daughter and served as a retreat for NC's first family during the 40s. This home is on the sales market because the present owners are relocating. It would make an excellent home for a growing family or for a retiring couple desiring a home in a friendly Southern community. Assumable loan. Life As It's Lived

By GAIL MICHAELS

Nothing lifts the spirits like a pair of new shoes. At least that's what Meg tells me. I wouldn't know myself. I've been wearing the same pair of shoes ever since the prince of these spiritual lifts started competing with the cost of a face-lift.

But I trust her opinion in this case. I can tell just by observing both her and her brother that the fascination with shoes goes far beyond the pleasure associated with a new dress or even a pair of Batgirl Underoos. The shoes don't always have to be new in the sense of never having been worn. Zachary, for instance, is often satisfied if the shoes are merely new to his own feet.

No closet in the house is safe from his incursions when he's under the influence of his footwear feltish. The blue nylon jogging shoes are the ones most frequently pilfered from Phillip's closet, but Zachary's real preference is for red. My red high heels (the ones I wore on my honeymoon) rank near the top of his list, although his absolute favorites are a pair of well worn red tennis shoes from Meg's closet. He is the picture of sartorial splendor when he wears these shoes over the feet of his red flannel spleepers.

Meg is more particular. She, too, goes rooting through my closet from time to time, but naturally, she prefers the kind of new shoe which requires the expenditure of cash. For the first few days after such a purchase her feet become the focus of her existence. She was so delighted with the black patent leather Mary Janes with "high heels" that she wore in my sister-in-law's wedding that she had to stop and examine the heels after each step down the aisle.

The Mary Janes were a disappointment in only one respect; my mother didn't take Meg along when she bought them. Meg likes to be in on the shoe selection. In fact, she would almost rather go shopping for shoes than trick-or-treating.

Her sense of self-importance is so evident during these shopping expeditions that I had to remind her before our most recent tennis shoe purchase that I was the final authority on the choice of shoes.

"We may not find what we want in Smithfield," I told her. "And if we don't, we'll have to wait and go somewhere else. I want you to understand this because if I don't like the shoes or the price, I'm not going to buy them, no matter how much you beg."

She listened sloberly, and at the first store she exhibited great self control. The only tennis shoe the store stocked was Nike. The ieda of paying $22 for a pair of white tennis shoes made me shudder. "We'll have to try another store."

She nodded, but the urgency of the quest soon overcame her best intentions. Although the next store had a wider variety, her attention was arrested immediately by a pair of Strawberry Shortcake Stride Rites. They were white.

"I promise I'll be careful to keep them clean," she begged. "Please, please, please, Mommy. Kristie and Sarah both have these shoes. I jsut want them so bad I can't tell you."

I shook my head. "But Meg, white shoes?"

"I only walk on the bottoms of them, and besides even if they get dirty, they can't look much worse that the ones I've got."

I looked at the blue tennis shoes she was currently wearing. She had a point.

In the end I conceded because the shoes she wanted were on sale. She was ecstatic, "Heather will just have a fit," she sniffed. "Her mother won't let her wear nothing but leather shoes in winter."

She also wanted to pay. "This is not my money so I have to give my mother the change, but I just like the responsibility of paying," she said to the saleslady.

Finally, she was handed the bag with the coveted shoes. "Now I'm going to take good care of these," she reassured me, "but it occurs to me that it would be a good idea for me to have two pairs of shoes, one to wash and one to wear."

It occurs to me that, whether she gets a second pair or not, she's two steps ahead of me already.

Shoeshine Man Inspires Teens

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill. (AP) — "Do right and live right and things will come your way," the blind shoeshine man tells his teen-age helpers every weekend.

Kermit Haynes, 70, has been handing out that advice since he opened his shoeshine stand on the east side of town more than 35 years ago and became a friend to generations of teen-agers.

"They come in around high school and stay until they finish high or get a job," says Haynes. "The bunch of kids now is about the sixth generation."

Haynes, who has hundreds of customers, employs two reguar shoeshine boys who earn half the $1.50 price for every pair of shoes they shine. The other youths are "hustlers" who hang around hoping to swipe some of the overflow business.

Many of his former shoeshine boys have graduated to become politicians, clergymen and civic leaders. And most of them now return as customers.

Haynes, as a result, keeps up-to-date on the town's gossip, and he is often asked for advice on matters ranging from business to politics.

"We learned a lot from him," says Clyde Jordan, who has known Haynes since he first opened his shop. "He was like an older brother. He gave us inspiration."

Jordan, 53, now school superintendent and township supervisor, credits his old friend with boosting the careers of many black youngsters of the city's east end.

"Kermit gave us the feeling that we could still make something of ourselves even though we were going to segregated schools and thought we were deprived," he said.

A former big-band musician, Haynes decided to open up the shoeshine stand to insure his livelihood when his vision began failing due to cataracts.

"I knew I could still shine shoes," Haynes says. "I can shine shoes as good as anybody. You just feel them. You do what you're supposed to do and they come out right."

Last Parents' Session Set

The sixth and last in a series of "Parents Are Teachers" workshops will be held Tuesday from 9:30 to 11:45 a.m. at the Pitt County Mental Health Center.

Featured will be Barbara Lanford, pediatric coordinator at Pitt County Memorial Hospital. She will talk about "The Growth of a Healthy Child."

The workshops are held for parents and professionals working with young children. The program includes registration and refreshments, discussion, and activities for parents to learn different games and educational activities to do with their children.

A Look At The Three-Ringed Circus

Richard Thomas hosts the "Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus" — an array of spectacular feats, costumed pageantry and the artistry of the three-ringed circus — on Wednesday, Mar. 3 (8-9 p.m.) on CBS. Special guest stars are Paul Sorvino, in a theatrical performance as the archetypical circus ringmaster, Gunther Gebel-Williams, renowned animal trainer, and famous clown Lou Jacobs.

Taped on locations in Venice, Fla., and at Bayfront Center in St. Petersburg, Fla., the special takes viewers behind the scenes to circus rehearsals, for a unique ride on the circus train, and for a look at the legendary Clown Alley. In another sequence — which opens the special — the American traditions of the small-town circus parade are recaptured in a procession observed at St. Petersburg, with clowns, performers, elephants and children of all ages.

Each year, the circus strives for bigger and better acts with even more thrills and suspense than the year before. The talented people who make the circus the colorful, exciting spectacle that it is are committed to continually changing their acts to reach new plateaus of risk, danger and derring-do.

Among the exciting acts on the special are Elvin Bale, performing three death-defying feats: roaring up an inclined highwire on a motorcycle, defying gravity in a series of acrobatic tricks on the spinning "wheel of death," and challenging the awesome "mechanical monster" in a duel of "man versus machine"; Miguel Vazquez of the Flying Vazquez family, attempting the near-impossible quadruple somersault in mid-air; intrepid tiger trainer Charley Bauman facing ferocious felines; the teeterboard triumphs of the Silagi troupe; the bareback riding of the Slavovi family; the high-wheeling unicycle hijinks and basketball skills of the King Charles Troupe; and the amazing maneuvers of one of the world's smallest men, 33-inch Michu.

Additionally, Lou Jacobs, who has been immortalized on a U.S. postage stamp, performs a classic routine, showing us why he is one of America's favorite performers, and Gebel-Williams talks about his respect for animals, their unique lifestyles and the risks involved in performing in a circus.

RICHARD THOMAS (r) hosts a preview of the 112th season of the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus, and animal trainer Gunther Gebel-Williams guest stars on the special, airing Wednesday, Mar. 3 (8-9 p.m.), on CBS-TV.

Michele Will Tell

Q: Could you please tell me where I can write to Cris Collinsworth of the Cincinnati Bengals? C.W., HICKORY, N.C.

A: Write to Cris in c/o Cincinnati Bengals, 200 Riverfront Stadium, Cincinnati, Ohio, 45202.

Q: My friend and I would like to know something about one of the Dallas Cowboys. Does Butch Johnson have a special girl in his life? Also, where can we write to him? VALERIE SIMS, WARRENTON, S.C.

A: Michael McColly Johnson, better known as Butch, is a native of Los Angeles. He has worked in the off-season in marketing for a cable television company. As far as we know, the special lady in his life is still his wife, Julie. Write to him in c/o Dallas Cowboys, 6116 N. Central Expressway, Dallas, Texas, 75206.

Q: Will you please give me the address of Ricardo Montalban, of "Fantasy Island"? VALERIE BOLDEN, FAYETTEVILLE, N.C.

A: You can write to the debonair host of "Fantasy Island" in c/o the series, ABC-TV, 1330 Avenue of the Americas, New York, N.Y., 10019.

Q: Will you please tell me if Rod Serling, of "Night Gallery" and "The Twilight Zone," is dead or alive? D.L., FAYETTEVILLE, N.C.

A: Rod Serling died in May of 1975.

Q: What happened to Martin Balsam on "Archie Bunker's Place"? Also, please give me some information on James Garner. MILDRED LEDBETTER, LEXINGTON, N.C.

A: Martin Balsam is a very talented actor, and, as such, he decided to leave "Archie Bunker's Place" in order to pursue other projects. In the series, his character of Murray Klein married and moved to California.

"I am 20 years older but about 40 years wiser since leaving the original "Maverick" in 1960," says Jim Garner. Jim, who is part Cherokee, was born in Norman, Oklahoma, and lived there until age 16 when he joined the Merchant Marines. While in the Maritime Service in New Orleans, he earned his high school diploma. Married to the former Lois Clarke in 1956, he has two daughters: Kimberly, a school teacher; and Gigi, who is about to launch a singing career.

Q: Could you tell me how I can write to the Atlanta Hawks? G.P., HENDERSON, N.C.

A: The address is: Atlanta Hawks, 100 Techwood Drive, N.W., Atlanta, Georgia, 30303.

This Is A Very High School

A brother and sister become victims of drug abuse in "Desperate Lives," airing on the CBS Wednesday Night Movies, Mar. 3 (9-11 p.m.).

In the drama, John and Carol Cameron (Tom Atkins, Diane Ladd) and their children, Sandy and Scott (Helen Hunt, Doug McKeon), are an average, middle-class, all-American family. But their lives are shattered when Sandy and Scott become involved in drugs, an all too common occurrence among their peers.

Arriving at Hamilton High School to begin her new job as student counselor, Eileen Phillips (Diana Scarwid) is shocked and dismayed at the blatant use of drugs by students, and frustrated by the administration's lackadaisical attitude towards the situation. Even her boyfriend, Stan (Art Hindle), finds it difficult to cope with her increasing obsession to rectify the problem.

Taking matters into her own hands, Eileen wages a private war on drug abuse within Hamilton, including a confrontation with the local pusher, Ken Baynes (Sam Bottoms), and a dramatic display which serves as the film's climax.

The story for "Desperate Lives" was inspired after executive producer Terry Keegan learned from his kids that more than two dozen of their friends had died as a direct result of drugs. Keegan was understandably shocked and set out to make a film that would examine this national problem.

"It's time that parents realize that drug abuse is hitting very close to home," Keegan said. "It's my hope that this movie will make people realize that we can no longer afford to bury our heads in the sand and say, 'It can't happen to us.' It is happening, and we've got to do something about it."

Keegan and fellow executive producer Arthur Fellows believe that "Desperate Lives" takes an extremely realistic look at the situation. Although it may not offer any solutions, they said, at least it will make people take a good look at their lives and start communicating with their kids.

answer → Moths lay eggs which develop into larvae. These latter are the guilty culprits! They then change into pupae and form cocoons, from which later emerge the innocent moths. 1—Popular Fallacies, A.S.E. Ackerman, B. Sc., 3rd Edition, Page 4. 2—Encyclopedia Britannica, 11th Edition, Volume 16.

Linda's A Real Wonder Woman

Lynda Carter has hit paydirt again with her fourth special — "Lynda Carter: Taking It to the Streets," to be broadcast on Friday, Mar. 5 (10-11 p.m.) on CBS. Guitarist George Benson and singer Tony Orlando will join Miss Carter as special guests in this musical-variety extravaganza.

The show opens with a rousing rendition of "Dancing in the Streets" sung by Miss Carter, who then teams up with a 30-man U.S. Marine Corps drill squad for an unusual toe-tapping version of the Paul Simon hit "50 Ways to Leave Your Lover."

Miss Carter also does a dance number to the rock 'n' roll classic "You've Lost That Lovin' Feelin'", and belts out the Michael Jackson song "You're Out of My Life," and a medley of standards like "Come Rain or Come Shine" and "Can't Help Lovin' That Man of Mine."

The costumes for the special were created by Emmy Award-winning designer Bob Mackie, who worked with Miss Carter on her last show — "Lynda Carter's Celebration." Although many of the costumes look delicate, they are sturdy enough to hold up under hours of rehearsal.

"Television dance numbers are never completed in one take," explained Mackie. "They're repeated over and over for different cameras and various close-ups. The costumes 'work' much more than just the few minutes they're actually seen on camera."

Miss Carter's earlier specials garnered extraordinary ratings, which can be attributed to her total involvement in each project and her versatility.

"I know some people say television variety specials are dead because there is no new format. I don't agree. If you start with the music, you'll always have something new because there are so many different ways to present it," she said.

Dave's Pet Peeve

Many people suggest that pro athletes don't succeed or find happiness once they retire from the spotlight. That misinformation really peeves former pro basketball player Dave Cowens.

"Oh, do they have problems?" he asks sarcastically. "Most guys, it seems to me, find their niche. Just say I'm reasonably happy. And proud to have been a Celtic."

Many items in this ad carry a reference retail price. This reference is intended to provide a guide to the range of retail selling prices in our selling area and may be useful in identifying different units of the same manufacturer. An item's reference retail price is either the manufacturer's suggested retail price or our determination of its "fair" retail price based on prices at which similar merchandise is offered by principal retailers (department stores, specialty shops and other non-discount sellers) in our selling area. While we believe our reference retail price does not appreciably exceed the highest retail prices at which sales are made in our selling area, we cannot assure you that our reference retail prices as described above represent the prices in every community on any given day. Some items in this ad are listed as "regular" selling price. The merchandise is offered at this price except during a special sale. The purpose of showing a reference retail price or a "regular" price is to assist you, our customer, in making a knowledgeable and better informed buying decision. DePaul Tangles With Notre Dame

Ray Meyer's DePaul Demons will finish out their 1981-82 season against the Notre Dame Fighting Irish in a game to be televised on Sunday, Feb. 28 (2-4 p.m.) on NBC. The contest, which will be DePaul's third away game in a row, will be broadcast from South Bend, Ind.

Coach Meyer, now in his 40th season of collegiate coaching, once again has the Blue Demons in good position for a run at the national title. This year, their deep strength and team play have provided wins over highly regarded Purdue, Louisville and the University of Alabama-Birmingham.

Although Notre Dame has not been nationally ranked this year, the Fighting Irish can put together a formidable team effort, as they did earlier in the season to beat top-rated San Francisco. With this chance to tuck another Goliath neatly in their pocket, Notre Dame will be gunning for a victory.

Although DePaul is operating without its two Wunderkinds of last year — Mark Aguirre and Clyde Barrow, who have started NBA careers in Dallas and Atlanta, respectively — the Blue Demons have shown extraordinary skill and determination on the court. The departure of Aguirre has been a blessing in one respect — it has allowed senior guard Skip Dillard to come into his own. (Dillard has been playing in Aguirre's shadow since their days at Chicago's Westinghouse High School).

The 6'3" Dillard is averaging nearly 13 points and 3 rebounds per game, and is adding an emotional lift with his floor leadership. As a result, DePaul is a dominating force in the NCAA, and Dillard is considered "the best all-around shooter on this year's team" by his coaching staff.

Dillard came to DePaul from Casper Junior College in Wyoming in 1979, and since then he has averaged over 80 percent from the free throw line.

HOLLYWOOD — Barbados is swarming with Secret Service staffers, not only surrounding CLAUDETTE COLBERT'S beachfront home but every inch of the island, in preparation for the April arrival of PRESIDENT and NANCY REAGAN as CLAUDETTE'S houseguests. There are also plans for a Telestar around-the-world broadcast from the new Sheraton Hotel. Technicians can be seen climbing all over the rooftop.

That JANE FONDA really gets around — she is currently collaborating with new mama, JANE SEYMOUR on a book telling you how to keep in shape via vitamins and exercise during and after motherhood.

MELISSA MANCHESTER and her tour coordinator, KEVIN DE REMER, are planning on a permanent arrangement — May 1 has been selected for their wedding date.

PATRICK CASSIDY, SHIRLEY JONES' youngest son, was offered a co-starring role in BROOKE SHIELD'S next movie "Weekends." BROOKE and producer BOB KAUFMAN saw his performance in "Pirates of Penzance" on Broadway and were that impressed.

Everything is really coming up roses for MICKEY ROONEY these days — his autobiography promises to bring him between $2-3,000,000 judging by the bids coming in from Germany, France, England and Spain.

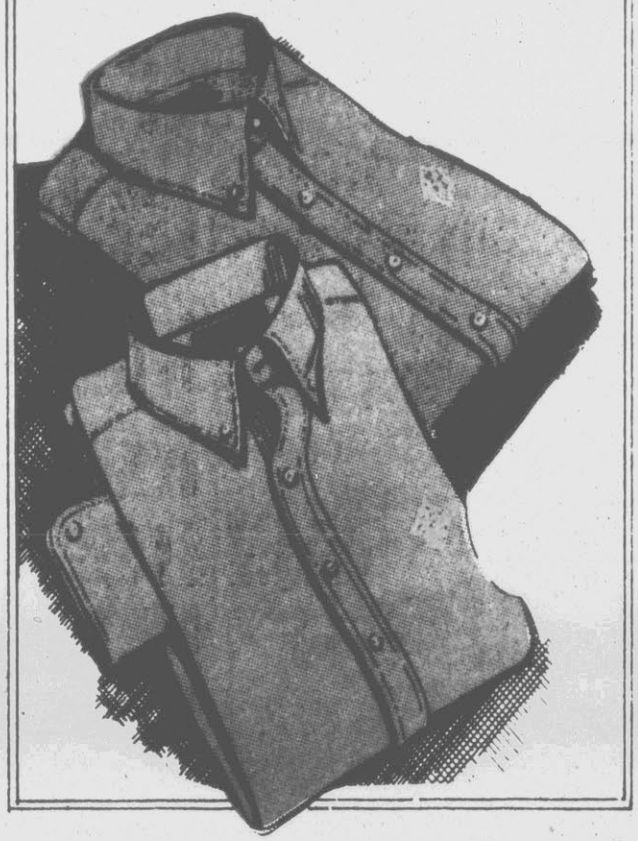
Our Own



The deterioration in styling and quality of one of our old friends has been a source of constant concern for several years. We have watched this closely and made several special trips to markets in an effort to remedy this problem.

We wouldn't put our name in just any shirt, but when we discovered a manufacturer by the name of GITMAN, we found a shirt superior to any quality level we have seen in years. We are especially pleased with the all-cotton oxford cloth. This shirt is cut along crisp, classic lines that make it an exciting experience for us to show you this new COFFMAN'S OXFORD CLOTH SHIRT.

Send the question, on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

Sevareid: Not over the hill yet.

FOR ERIC SEVAREID, host of Poly-Gram TV's Eric Sevareid's Chronicle

Isn't what you're doing strenuous work for a man of your years? How has the field of communications changed since you entered it? —E.S., Lorain, Ohio

● Some years ago I was on the set of a movie, Irma la Douce, and I asked director Billy Wilder if he would consider directing films for TV. He said, "No, I'm too old, too tired, too rich." But I'm not too old for this. I'm a lot less tired than I was when I retired from the CBS staff in 1977. They presented me with an 1890 typewriter — I think that is the way they really thought of me. And, as you get older, you have the courage of your convictions. As for rich, there are anchorwomen making twice as much as me. That, I suppose, is the biggest change in communications — escalating salaries.

FOR RICHARD E. HALLGREN, director, National Weather Service

Are there any long-range benefits to be gained from volcanic eruptions? —N.C., Ogden, Utah

● Benefits from volcanic eruptions range from increasing soil fertility to creating new land. After the eruption of Mount St. Helens, some agricultural crops produced record yields in areas of eastern Washington showered by volcanic ash.

FOR PEGGY GLENN, author of How to Start and Run a Successful Home Typing Business

What are the pitfalls of running a home-typing business? —R.C., Everett, Wash.

● The biggest is an unsteady income. At the start, work is sporadic, making it difficult to plan ahead or stick to a budget. The second negative is the isolation. To make it bearable, a home typist should be in regular contact with others doing the same work.

FOR DIANA QUICK, star of PBS-TV's Brideshead Revisited

Did your scenes in the luxury of that fabulous Brideshead house make you dissatisfied with your own house? —W.M., Chattanooga, Tenn.

● Quite honestly, no. It made me appreciate my house all the more. No way could I live there — too cold, too much housekeeping, no staff to do it. I prefer something more modest.

Sinatra: A stranger in the Orient.

FROM THE "ASK" EDITOR

CHINA: Is there any place in our world, accessible by modern transportation, where Frank Sinatra's face is not immediately recognizable? Yes, three places: Canton, Peking, Hangchow. A portrait of Sinatra was included by mistake (instead of a watercolor of the Acropolis) in an exhibit of Dong Kingman's works shipped to China and Japan. The lone portrait was admired in the artist's one-man show, although the viewers didn't have the foggiest idea of the blue-eyed subject's identity. . . . A 30-year-old Chinese woman, who states she lived with John Lennon for 18 months in the early 70's, is convinced she'll find fame and fortune via the book she's writing about their affair, which she's sure will be turned into a movie. . . . CAREERS: Chris Jagger, 33, earns his daily bread — between acting chores — as a substitute mailman. But when he goes out, people don't question him on either job. All they're interested in is gossip on his brother, Mick Jagger of the Rolling Stones. . . . With an eye to a backup career in singing, Ed McGlasson, 6-foot-4 N.Y. Giants player, is studying with Carlo Menotti, Carnegie Hall's vocal coach. Menotti says his student is blessed with a fine set of pipes. . . . Chris Walken, the tap-dancing Chicago pimp in Pennies From Heaven and Natalie Wood's co-star in the ill-fated Brainstorm, entered show-biz with dreams of becoming a choreographer. In his first Off Broadway show, Best Foot Forward, he danced with another newcomer, Liza Minnelli. . . . GAFFS: As The World Turns star Eileen Fulton's bright red cheeks were not brought on by passion or a high fever. They were caused by the biggest gaff she has made since puberty. An ex-beau promised her tickets to a society benefit of Broadway's Dream Girls, so she acted like a big shot and asked the owner of the supper club where she often appears to be her guest. Invitation was accepted and Eileen knew she had soared in her boss's estimation. P.S. Ex-beau didn't deliver. . . . When etiquette expert Letitia Baldrige graduated from college, she predicted that by the time she turned 50 she'd be terribly rich, beautiful and retired. "None of this came true," sighs Letitia, "and I'm constantly reminded of that inane remark." She adds that she's still hoping.

PRO AND CON

Should the U.S. Government Help Provide Compensation For Victims of Crime?

Send questions of national significance, on a postcard, to "Pro & Con," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $10 for those published.

PRO Representative Peter W. Rodino Jr. (D.-N.J.), chairman, Judiciary Committee

Yes. I have introduced legislation to help states compensate crime victims. We protect the rights of the accused and provide humane care for criminals and services for ex-offenders. We could do no less in a civilized society. But we also have the duty to show compassion for victims of crime — people our society has failed to protect. Such compensation will work to reduce a victim's alienation from society and encourage cooperation with law enforcement.

CON Representative F. James Sensenbrenner II, (R.-Wisc.), member, Judiciary Committee

I oppose any Federal programs that encourage or fund state victim-compensation programs. Whether or not a state wants to provide for victim-compensation programs is a matter of its own spending priorities. Too many times the Federal carrot has been used to get states involved in programs in which they would not have otherwise participated. The primary emphasis in this critical area of concern should be on restitution by the wrongdoer to the victim.

COVER STORY

Taxi's Andy Kaufman: He's a Gas!

Is Andy Kaufman, a.k.a. "Latka Gravas," insanely funny or just plain bonkers? As the author learned, it's hard to tell where the act ends and Andy begins.

1982 Maddy Miller/Outline

By Andrea Darvi

"I'm always being myself, no matter what character I am."

Late, as usual. "Maybe this time he got lost in outer space," growls actor Jeff Conaway. "No, no," explains a sarcastic Tony Danza, destroying his cigarette in an ashtray. "He's flying over Las Vegas, by himself — with no airplane!" Even the easygoing Judd Hirsch, who plays "Alex" on Taxi, the smash ABC sitcom, paces the set and complains. Then director Jim Burrows breaks in to announce that Andy Kaufman, the show's famed "Latka Gravas," will require another hour before arriving for rehearsal.

This news sends Hirsch up the wall. "It's one thing to be late," he snaps. "It's something else to be in another town."

Suddenly director Burrows orders the crew not to wait any longer. "Let's do Scene A without him," he yells. But a performance by Andy Kaufman is well worth waiting for — as everybody on the set of Stage 23 at Hollywood's Paramount Studios fully understands. The 12-time Emmy-winning Taxi would simply not be the hit that it is without him. And when he does finally appear on the set — an hour and a half later — he is immediately brilliant. His delivery is captivating, his genius obvious. The rehearsal hums with electricity.

The performance that afternoon was vintage Kaufman — as he depicted the now-famous Latka (a character Taxi writers developed from his "Foreign Man" nightclub routine). But Kaufman's talent is so highly developed that he now has more roles in his repertoire than he has parts. Lacking a show-biz outlet for all of them, he makes room for many others in his private, off-screen life. If you are a friend or publicity agent or producer or reporter calling on him, you can never be sure which Andy Kaufman will suit up for the occasion. Will he be the tough, obnoxious, cigar-smoking foreign tycoon? Tony Clifton, the loud-mouthed, brassy Las Vegas lounge singer with a compulsion to insult people? The Mafia-backed entertainer who sets his hit men on his critics? The ultrasexist, ultrasleazy wrestling champion?

Kaufman is always walking on the edge in his comedy, his life — skipping back and forth across the fine line between reality and illusion. In his act, he's read The Great Gatsby and sung "A Hundred Bottles of Beer on the Wall" (all of it) before confused fans. After a show at New York's Carnegie Hall, he bused members of the audience to a school cafeteria for cookies and milk. Hosting ABC's live late-night comedy show, Fridays, last year, Kaufman argued loudly with fellow cast members and ended up in a fist-fight with co-producer Jack Burns — all in front of the rolling cameras. Was it ad-libbed or not? Nobody knows.

1982 Herb Ritts / Visages

"How brilliant a characterization can he do?" observes veteran comic Carl Reiner of Kaufman. "It's so full and clean nobody can see past the edges, where the character begins and he ends."

And so, when I drove to his house tucked away in the Hollywood hills, I was reasonably apprehensive: I wasn't certain which one of these Andy Kaufmans I would get to interview. As it turned out, I would get to meet almost all of them.

Laurel Canyon, one of the richest sections of one of the richest cities in the world, is inhabited by the crème de la crème of the entertainment world. But Kaufman's home is modest by Hollywood's standards and, when I ring his doorbell, I am immediately met by a casually dressed, anxious — you might even say insecure — young entertainer in his early 30's.

There is an edge of hostility in his manner, but I see that as a reflection of the insecurity. As we walk into the living room, the telephone rings and he picks it up. Speaking into the receiver in hushed, tough-guy tones, Kaufman barks, as if playing out a scene from The Godfather: "Just rough 'em up a little, crack a few ribs, leave a few scars on their faces." Then he hangs up, turns to me and smiles. He quickly explains it was all a joke.

Gaining confidence, Kaufman next transforms himself from the Mafia Entertainer into the Professional Wrestler, challenging me to a match. Kaufman, it seems, has indeed challenged women wrestlers — professional and otherwise — in arenas and nightclubs from Los Angeles to Memphis. He claims undefeated status and a title all his own: "The Worldwide Inter-Gender Wrestling Champion," as he puts it. And he will continue to wrestle only women. "Women don't have it, as far as wrestling goes," he says to me, his eyes bulging combatively. "They have Wheatina above the eyebrows, oatmeal in the brains. They are superior with regard to peeling potatoes and taking care of babies, but not in wrestling."

Andrea Darvi, a former child actress, is currently writing a book about that experience. She and Thomas Plate are the authors of Secret Police (Doubleday, 1981).

Well, I'm not much at peeling potatoes, but I figure now I've got my whole sex to defend. And so — at 5 feet even and weighing in at just over 90 pounds — I accept his challenge.

I am escorted into what Kaufman describes as his "Sacred Rubber Room." The floor is covered with wall-to-wall rubber mats. "This is where I entertain people when they come over to wrestle," he says nervously. We are both nervous.

But I am not going to flinch. His obnoxious comments about women, even if intended as a joke, have gotten my goat. I stand ready to go the full 15 rounds. Suddenly — like a chameleon changing his protective coloring to suit the situation — Kaufman changes his tune. Sensing I am serious, he becomes defensive. He explains apologetically that he does not always have control over himself. "Once I became this foreign tycoon with the cigar in Atlantic City for a whole month," he insists. "I couldn't stop it. . . .Even in my sleep." The woman he was with then, he says, literally fell in love with someone he wasn't. "And I can't always bring these characters back."

1982 Maddy Miller / Outline

I have a chance to look around while he quietly sips a cup of instant coffee and stares through the sliding glass door looking out on the pool. He swims a mile by himself every day. There are no pictures on the walls, no telltale signs of the man behind the star, not even a poster of his idol Elvis Presley. He seems a stranger in his own home.

And he seems a stranger to himself — a man of a thousand faces who may not be aware of who he'll be next. The eldest child of an affluent Great Neck, N.Y., costume-jewelry executive and his wife, Kaufman took his first struggling comic steps at such launching pads as Manhattan's Catch a Rising Star and The Improvisation. From there he made it onto Saturday Night Live, where he became practically an overnight sensation. Now he is a star — and an accomplished professional performer.

Stardom has been somewhat therapeutic, he admits. "Television has made life much easier for me now that people recognize me," he says, breaking character only once in the several hours we spend together. "The reason is, I'm so shy. . .I went to psychiatrists when I was 4 years old. . . I was so shy, I couldn't even raise my hand and say 'Here' in elementary school."

Kellogg's 40% Bran Flakes cereal.

Honest Wheat Taste. That's just the start. Kellogg's 40% Bran Flakes cereal is oven-toasted. Toasted to make it taste especially delicious. Toasted to make 40% Bran Flakes light and crisp. Toasted so every flake is bursting with a hearty wheat bran flavor.

You Love It. You're concerned about a nutritious diet and your health, and you've shown it. In fact, more Americans buy Kellogg's 40% Bran Flakes than the other leading bran flake cereal. That's why Kellogg's is number one.

FAMILY WEEKLY
February 28, 1982

Kaufman is a loner everywhere he goes. During the months Taxi is not in production, he likes to hitchhike. He says it helps him "to keep from losing sight of humanity. . .I might put up a sign that says, 'I am Andy Kaufman of Taxi,'" he concedes, "but only if I'm caught in the same spot for two hours." And one night a week, time permitting, he puts in a full shift as a busboy at Jerry's Famous Deli, in the San Fernando Valley area of Los Angeles. "Being a busboy was my first job," he says. "I want to stay in touch with my roots."

Also a great believer in transcendental meditation, he maintains a verbal agreement with the Taxi producers, allowing him a special two-hour break on Fridays, between rehearsal and filming, in order to meditate.

Kaufman is a man of a thousand faces who may not be aware of who he'll be next.

Even his publicists find this show-biz phenomenon — only 32 — hard to explain. "When I was about to draw up Andy's biography," one of them recalled, "I explained that all actors lie about their age."

"Then I'm 45," he told her.

Of course, most celebrities fudge their years down, not up; but that's Kaufman for you. Actually, by the time he is 45, he hopes to have added considerably to his already substantial accomplishments. He'd like to have knocked off at least one more national tour ("only 99 cents a ticket," he proposes to his manager, who suddenly looks very worried). He'd love to produce The Tony Clifton Story — not sure yet whether the film would be a comedy or a tragedy. (Heartbeeps, which starred Kaufman and Bernadette Peters as lovesick robots, was supposed to be a comedy but turned out to be a box-office tragedy.) A TV kiddie show — and an hour-long TV variety show — are also in his dreams. In the meantime, though, he hopes the Taxi meter ticks on forever — as the ever-restless Kaufman begins the search for another house and crash pad for himself, his C.P.A. brother Michael and periodic lady friends.

Suddenly Kaufman emerges from another room with a portable electric organ. He presses the buttons furiously and shouts out tunes to the alternating sambas, rhumbas and waltzes the wretched instrument regrettably produces. We are suddenly transported to an ice-skating rink in Buffalo, where Kaufman has landed yet another part-time job.

I realize, then, that I will never pin Andy Kaufman down. We have wrestled after all, and he has won — no holds barred. Then, as if convinced that the match is over, he looks deep into my eyes and says, with that inimitable, wide-eyed, Latka-esque charm, "Tenk you verrry much."

Tenk you very much, Andy Kaufman. You are very entertaining — whoever you are. FW

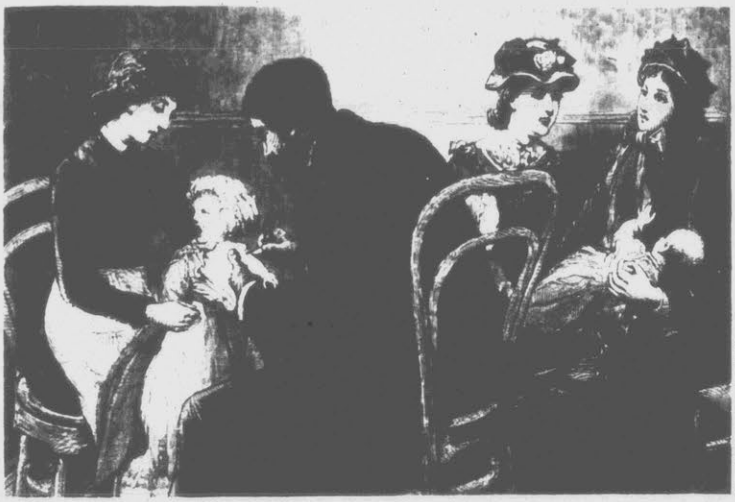
New Immunizations: A Shot in the Arm Against Disease



The Bettmann Archive

"Immunization has saved more lives than any other medical development."

By Mike Oppenheim, M.D.

Most of us are familiar with such medical miracles as cardiac pacemakers (cost: $2,000), coronary-bypass surgery ($15,000) and total body CAT scan X-rays ($800,000). But we don't hear much about immunizations, which are perhaps the greatest miracles of all and cost a patient only a few dollars. The lowly immunization has saved more lives, prevented more illness and saved more money than any medical development in the history of the human race. Millions of Americans who haven't had polio, tetanus, diphtheria or measles are indebted to immunizations, often without realizing it.

Generally we associate the word "immunization" with the old standbys (tetanus, diphtheria, whooping cough, measles) we suffered through as children. In fact, important new vaccines are now under study and several have just been released.

Hepatitis

One of the most exciting new vaccines, which was approved by the Food and Drug Administration (F.D.A.) last year and will be available in several months, protects against hepatitis B, the most serious known form of viral hepatitis. Hepatitis B is usually spread by bodily fluids, including blood and saliva. Formerly called "serum hepatitis," it used to be associated primarily with drug addicts who shared needles, but it is actually much more widespread.

Hepatitis B is the worst type of hepatitis because it is the one most likely to result in serious illness or death. There are 200,000 to 300,000 cases in the U.S. every year. It causes only about 250 deaths annually, but several thousand victims are left with a very unpleasant problem. They recover, but they are a constant threat to others because they can still spread the disease. In addition, a large number of carriers develop chronic liver disease leading to almost 4,000 deaths a year from cirrhosis (an infection which destroys important liver cells).

Immunization against hepatitis B requires three doses over six months and protects for at least five years.

Hepatitis B is easily spread by sexual intercourse, and the more sex partners one has, the greater one's chances of catching it. Homosexuals have the highest risk of all. Experts urge those with numerous sex partners to get the vaccine. Others with a high risk include health-care workers and laboratory workers.

Pneumonia

Scientists were on the verge of producing a vaccine against pneumococcal pneumonia, the most common

Mrs. Eleanor May, Headache Sufferer.

After taking Anacin pain reliever, Mrs. May's throbbing headache was gone.

Anacin® has more pain reliever. Two tablets of regular strength aspirin or non-aspirin products contain only 650 milligrams of pain reliever. But Anacin gives you more. 800 milligrams in a special formula. Mrs. May got rid of her headache fast. Next time you get a headache, get the Anacin difference. Tablets or capsules. Use only as directed.

and severe bacterial lung infection, 40 years ago. Then penicillin was discovered, and everyone thought the problem was solved. The pneumococcal germ could be killed by a small amount of penicillin.

But, curable or not, pneumococcal pneumonia has remained a dangerous disease. Penicillin does not create immunity, it only works on those who have the disease, and often pneumonia can make people seriously ill and even kill them if they aren't treated soon. There are 500,000 cases every year, and it's still among the 10 leading causes of death in the U.S. Because of this, researchers resumed their work, and a vaccine was approved in 1977. Only one injection is required in a lifetime.

Still, young, healthy people should continue to rely on penicillin because the vaccine is rare and experts reserve it for groups with an increased risk of getting the disease and less ability to fight it off. These include patients with heart failure, emphysema, chronic kidney disease, diabetes, alcoholic cirrhosis and sickle cell anemia. Any person who's had his or her spleen removed should be immunized (research has shown that the spleen fights pneumococcal pneumonia). Some (but not all) doctors advise it for everyone over age 50.

Chicken Pox and Shingles

Chicken pox is a mild illness except in children with chronic diseases and those receiving cortisone for skin disease, cancer or arthritis (cortisone lowers the body's resistance to infection). In these victims it's severe and often fatal. Also, the chicken pox virus causes shingles, a common and very painful adult skin disease. A vaccine has been successfully tested in Japan but hasn't attracted much interest in the U.S. According to Dr. Albert Sabin, professor of biometrics at the Medical University of South Carolina who developed the oral polio vaccine, "The effort to confirm the excellent results reported by the Japanese has been too small and too slow when one considers how much misery could be prevented by the eradication of shingles."

What do you do when you want the latest news? If you're like most people, you probably turn on the radio.

Well, maybe it's time you get acquainted with a different kind of radio—the Bearcat 160 Scanner Radio. Unlike regular radios, the Bearcat 160 tunes in police and fire calls, weather warnings, mobile telephone conversations, almost any type of two way radio communications, instantly, automatically. You hear what's going on, while it's going on, instead of during a regular newscast, when the news may not be so "new" anymore.

The Bearcat 160 is an inexpensive scanner radio built with computer chip technology that makes it easy to use. You just program it to monitor what you want to hear. And until March 15th, you can get a $10 rebate that makes the Bearcat 160 Scanner Radio a better deal than ever.

If you'd like to know more about where to buy the Bearcat 160 Scanner Radio and how to take advantage of the $10 rebate, just pick up the phone, right now, and call:

Smallpox

Although the smallpox vaccine is not new (it was the first vaccine, invented in 1796) experts recently announced a new smallpox development: The disease has been wiped out. The virus exists only in test tubes in the refrigerators of a few public health laboratories around the world.

Eradication was possible for two reasons: Animals are not carriers of smallpox, and humans do not become chronic carriers. Once the cycle of human-to-human transmission is broken, the virus has no place to go. A massive, worldwide vaccination program carried out over the past 15 years has accomplished this. No case has been reported since August, 1978.

Today, no one really needs a smallpox vaccination except people in laboratories where the virus is stored. A few countries still (unnecessarily) require it of travelers.

Nothing illustrates the miracle of immunization better than the disappearance of smallpox. Most infectious diseases cannot be wiped out in this way, but when use of a vaccine is widespread they are suppressed to the point of insignificance. If too many people are not immunized, however, an outbreak can occur — such as the diphtheria epidemic that swept through San Antonio a few years ago.

Other Good News

A new, safer and much less painful rabies vaccine has recently been approved. Vaccines for some kinds of meningococcal meningitis are already in use and a vaccine for prevention of another type is still in the research stage. Work is far advanced on prevention of cytomegalovirus disease, a mild viral infection which (like German measles or rubella) could cause birth defects if it attacks pregnant women. Respiratory syncytial virus is a major cause of severe bronchiolitis and pneumonia in babies under 6 months of age. Research into a live virus vaccine for respiratory syncytial has been under way for many years. Scientists are also working on immunizations against recurrent herpes infections, gonorrhea, syphilis and other forms of hepatitis.

So exciting developments in immunization are not a thing of the past. More are on the way. FW

Radiation Waste Alert

A Strangelovean site of radwaste in Nevada: "There is no amount of radiation so small that it cannot provide harmful effects."

By Fred C. Shapiro

A question posed by my high-school chemistry teacher: "Suppose I gave you all the money and all the facilities it would take to produce an acid so powerful that it would dissolve any known substance — what would be your first step in going about it?"

His answer (after shrugging off a number of our responses): "The first thing you have to determine in any experiment is, when you get whatever it is you're going after, what are you going to keep it in?"

Five years before I was taught that much about basic scientific principles, physicist Enrico Fermi and his colleagues had initiated the first controlled atomic chain reaction at the University of Chicago — and had thereby created the first reactor-made nuclear wastes. That experiment, leading to the development of the atomic bomb, was carried out under the priorities of wartime necessity. Today, however, 39 years later, the United States and an increasing number of other nations continue to produce nuclear weapons, generate nuclear power and apply nuclear technology to meet medical and industrial needs, all without yet having determined how to dispose of most of their dangerously radioactive wastes.

In this country, as then Comptroller General Elmer B. Staats pointed out to Congress in 1979, there has "never been a clearly defined, technically feasible, long-term [nuclear] waste management plan." To formulate such a plan, President Carter appointed in 1980 an 18-member commission of eight governors, six state, local and American Indian tribal officials and the heads of four Federal agencies.

A year and a half later, however, when this panel was ready to present its recommendations, its chairman, South Carolina Governor Richard Riley, a Democrat, was unable to secure an appointment with President Reagan. The new Administration subsequently announced increases in nuclear-weapons production and nuclear-energy programs.

In connection with the latter, the President promised "to proceed swiftly" toward a "deployment of means" to contain and dispose of radwaste — a term which Federal energy officials have coined to describe nuclear effluents which will remain lethally radioactive for thousands of years. In the meantime, the wastes already accumulated are leaking from cracked underground storage tanks at Federal nuclear sites, blowing from the surfaces of towering uranium mill tailings piles in the West, seeping from leaky burial grounds scattered around the country and piling up in overcrowded spent-fuel pools at reactor sites

While radiation from these leaking wastes can be measured in the surrounding environment, there is no way of determining precisely what harm it may have already caused — and is likely to cause in the future. "There is no amount of radiation so small that it cannot provide harmful effects," wrote Nobel Laureate Hermann J. Muller who linked genetic mutations to radiation. Radiation-induced cancers can have latency periods of 15 years or longer, and when they are eventually diagnosed they are impossible to attribute to a specific cause.

In the United States, radwastes are classified in six forms:

Uranium mill tailings: This is by far the most abundant form of radwaste. The milling process is unable to remove more than 90 percent of the uranium in the ore, and the sand-like particles, known as "tailings," that remain are stored in piles around 19 active uranium mills and 25 inactive ones. They continually exude radon, a radioactive gas. The present volume would be about enough to lay a foot-deep pavement over three four-lane highways between New York and Los Angeles.

Most, but not all, of these piles are in the West, where some resemble football stadiums plunked down in the desert and where they are subject to high winds. Sheldon Novick, now a counsel for the Environmental Protection Agency, calculated in 1969 that three million tons of tailings had already been blown into the Colorado River watershed.

High-level waste: Spent nuclear fuel, removed from reactors, can be reprocessed to reclaim the unfissioned uranium, but the acid effluents from this chemical separation are both thermally and radioactively "hot." By 1980, 10.2 million cubic feet of these wastes had been poured into massive steel tanks buried underground at four American sites. The largest of these, in both size and quantity of waste stored, is Hanford, a Federal nuclear reservation occupying 568 square miles in the southeastern corner of Washington state. So far, leaks totaling more than 450,000 gallons have been confirmed in 26 of 162 Hanford waste tanks — and the integrity of 38 others is considered "questionable." Nothing has yet been done to remove this high-level material from Hanford's desert plain, and the General Accounting Office reported to Congress in 1974 that five to 10 square miles of the reservation's waste area are "so grossly contaminated" that they probably never can be cleaned up.

Spent fuel from nuclear reactors: Most spent-fuel assemblies — which hold the tubular uranium-filled rods — are now piling up under at least 14 feet of water at "swimming pools" at the sites of 73 licensed power reactors. By the end of 1980, there were over 28,000 stored assemblies, comprising about 8,000 tons of uranium. Because spent fuel is not being reprocessed at this time (and because there are now no legal means of disposing of these assemblies), the original storage capacities of most of these pools have long since been exhausted. So far, the Nuclear Regulatory Commission has acted favorably upon 59 applications from reactor operators either to expand their pools or to "rerack" the assemblies closer together within them. Even so, 28 of the commercial reactors are expected to run out of pool capacity by 1990.

Transuranic waste: This classification of radwaste was created in 1970 when the Atomic Energy Commission ordered that all materials containing as much as 10 billionths of a curie (a unit of radioactive waste) per gram of any of the man-made elements heavier than uranium — neptunium, plutonium, americium and so on — be separately stored. It is estimated that 24 million cubic feet of material now considered transuranic waste had been buried at eight Governmental and five commercial sites before 1970, and in the past 10 years 1.9 million cubic feet of this material has been placed in retrievable storage. These figures do not include the mil-

Observations

From sea to sea. Drilling for oil on an island Eden off the California coast. Developing real estate on San Francisco Bay. Mining an eventual 320 million tons of coal from the Wyoming prairie. Finding a gas field near "The Graveyard of the North Atlantic" off Nova Scotia. These are just a few of the things Mobil is doing in North America. But what, some of you have asked, are we doing to the environment? Not only protecting and preserving it, but enhancing and enriching it... hand in hand with our main job of providing energy.

Redwood Shores. Some of today's valuable land around the perimeter of San Francisco Bay was once a polluted marsh, and controversial: Wouldn't reclaiming it threaten marine and bird life? Hardly. When Mobil's affiliate acquired the 1,400-acre site nine years ago, no marsh birds found forage because no fish swam in its inlets and little brooks. But now its waterways are properly cleansed through gates that let the tides flush the system daily–and both pelicans and egrets feed on the seafood smorgasbord below. Sharing the wildlife will be our planned community for up to 20,000 people.

Sable Island. The name is from "Sand Island" in French, and it's apt for some 20 square miles of treeless sandbar 176 miles east of Halifax, Nova Scotia. Its fog and treacherous shallows made a graveyard for 500 or so ships, but now a herd of stocky wild horses and several species of seal are among the diverse wildlife living on and around the island. To protect this desolate but delicate environment during drilling in the area, a Mobil affiliate asked for–and carried out–the advice of the Nova Scotia Resources Council. Its chairman praised our "extreme care," and another member thinks our presence "may in fact improve the situation." Going beyond exhaustive protection, our affiliate is now funding a dune-restoration project to undo centuries of damage from nature and early settlers. Meanwhile, eight miles offshore, we have found a potentially major gas field.

Ecology, energy, harmony. What we seek are sound business ventures...but always in harmony with the environment. We're building our Caballo Rojo coal mine in Wyoming, and already we've planned how to totally reclaim the prairie and protect everything from archeology (mysterious "teepee rings" of rock) to zoology (even down to monitoring bird droppings). On lovely Santa Rosa Island off California, we never did find oil or gas in the 1970s, but neither did an independent scientist find even "a cigarette butt or paper sack" after we'd gone. Such care is costly, but we don't think energy development and economic development have to come at the expense of a sound, beautiful environment. Behind our words is action–for all the people who live in our land, for the birds and beasts that live on it.

It's a fact: To protect the environment around the world, Mobil expended $590 million in 1980.

Paul D. Shapiro

lions of cubic feet of soil that may have been contaminated either by transuranics leaking from insufficient waste containers or by the residues of 35 known "broken arrows," the Pentagon's term for nonexplosive accidents involving nuclear weapons.

Low-level waste: This is a catch-all classification for anything not in the categories above. It is the only form of radwaste that is now being permanently disposed of — although the word "permanently" is open to some question considering the leaks of contamination from both civilian and military low-level sites. Low-level material ranges from the discardable gloves worn by workers at nuclear plants to such intense radiation emitters as sealed cobalt sources used in radiotherapy.

By 1980, 62.2 million cubic feet of this material had been buried at 17 Federal sites and 13.6 million cubic feet of it at six commercial sites. Additionally, an unknown amount of low-level waste was dumped off the Atlantic and Pacific coasts until 1970. At the land sites, these quantities accumulate at a rapid rate, both from civilian operations and from Government sources. There have been containment failures at the Federal sites but the leaks causing most of the political problems are coming from the commercial sites. Employees at a site at Beatty, Nev., were found to have sold or given away radioactive tools diverted from the burial trenches.

At present, three low-level sites remain in commercial operation, including the Beatty dump, although Nevada's governor, Robert List, said late last year that one of his goals is "to shut down that repository, and we're 95 percent of the way to accomplishing it."

Decontamination and decommissioning waste: In addition to wearing out like everything else, nuclear facilities and the equipment used in them take on a burden of radioactivity which increases with time and, ultimately, they become dangerous to approach. For that reason, commercial nuclear reactors are licensed to operate for only 40 years, and by that time the radiological protections required for their dismantling may make them more expensive to decommission than they were to build in the first place. The operators of nuclear facilities have suggested that it would be prudent to "mothball" decommissioned reactors, or to entomb them in concrete for about a century until their radioactivity decays to a point where they can be dismantled more safely. Eventually, however, the costs of monitoring and safeguarding these facilities for that length of time will offset any monetary saving — and that's not even figuring for inflation.

The stupendous cost of disposing of it will have to be borne by our children, and probably their children, putting future generations in the position of having to pay a good part of the bill for the nuclear weapons, power and medical and industrial benefits we now enjoy. Recent Federal surveys have calculated that approximately 30 million cubic feet of material from Governmental nuclear sites still remains to be disposed of.

Technologies for the safe and perpetual containment of these wastes are being developed. However, they will be expensive: Such alternatives as shooting the most radioactive fractions of the material into space or burying them beneath the tectonic plates in midocean or letting them melt their way through the Antarctic ice cap are under study. Ultimately, though, the Federal Government is expected to spend a minimum of $10 billion (perhaps as much as $50 billion) to build high-level repositories deep underground. The locations of these repositories and the types of rocks in which they'll be located are still open questions, and in any case, actual disposal of just this one of the six radwaste forms is not expected to begin before the year 2002. Amazoy withstands active kids and cookouts. Gives you time to relax since it needs little water and cuts mowing two-thirds.

FREE! UP TO 600 AMAZOY PLUGS DURING SPECIAL INTRODUCTORY OFFER

By Jack T. Johnson, Agronomist

Every year I see people pour more and more money into their lawns. They dig, fertilize and lime. They rake it all in. They scatter their seed and roll and water it.

Birds love it! Seeds which aren't washed away by rain give them a feast. But some seed grows, and soon it's time to weed, water and mow, mow ... until summer comes to burn the lawn into hay, or crabgrass and diseases infest it.

That's what happens to ordinary grass, but not to Amazoy Zoysia.

"MOWED IT 2 TIMES," WRITES WOMAN

For example, Mrs. M. R. Mitter writes me how her lawn"...is the envy of all who see it. When everybody's lawns around here are brown from drought ours just stays as green as ever. I've never watered it, only when I put the plugs in...Last summer we had it mowed (2) times. Another thing, we never have to pull any weeds—it's just wonderful!"

LAWN WATERED ONLY ONCE

And from Iowa came word that the state's largest Men's Garden Club picked a Zoysia lawn as the "top lawn —nearly perfect" in its area. Yet this lawn had been watered only once all summer up to August!

CHOKES OUT CRABGRASS

Thick, rich, luxurious, established Amazoy grows into a carpet of grass that chokes out crabgrass and weeds all summer long.

FOR SLOPES, PLAY AREAS, BARE SPOTS

NO NEED TO RIP OUT PRESENT GRASS—PLUG AMAZOY INTO OLD LAWN, NEW GROUND OR NURSERY AREA

When planted in existing lawn areas plugs will spread to drive out old, unwanted growth including weeds—from part shade to full sun. Goes off its green color after killing frosts. Begins regaining its green color at the time when the temperature in the spring is consistently warm. This, of course, varies with climate. Easy planting instructions with order.

NO SEED, NO SOD!

There's no seed that produces winter-hardy Meyer Zoysia. Sod of ordinary grass brings with it the problems of seed: like weeds, diseases, burning out, other ills. Save time, work, money. Plug in Amazoy.

TWO GROWN MEN CAN'T PULL IT APART

So deep-rooted is Amazoy . . . it grows into practically indestructible turf. Amazoy thrives in porous, sandy soil, "builder's soil"—even salty beach areas! Beauty is but one advantage of Zoysia Grass. It's also so vigorous and rich it thrives in soils where lesser grasses have failed you repeatedly. Start your Amazoy lawn this Spring, and never re-seed your lawn again!

WEAR RESISTANT

When America's largest University tested 13 leading grasses for wear resistance, such as foot scuffling, the Zoysia (matrella and japonica Meyer Z-52) led all others.

Your Amazoy lawn takes such wear as cookouts, lawn parties, lawn furniture, etc. Grows so thick you could play football on it and not get your feet muddy. Even if children play on it, they won't hurt it—or themselves.

PATTENTED STEP-ON PLUGGER IS... FREE WITH ORDERS OF 300 PLUGS OR MORE

Amazoy exclusive! No one else can offer you this patented 2-way plugger. Saves bending, time, work. Light, rugged, invaluable for transplanting. Cuts away competing growth as it digs plug holes.

CUTS YOUR WORK, SAVES YOU MONEY

Your deep-rooted, established Amazoy lawn saves you time and money in many ways. It never needs replacement...ends re-seeding forever. Fertilizing and watering (water costs money, too) are rarely if ever needed. It ends the need for crabgrass killers permanently. It cuts pushing a noisy mower in the blistering sun by ⅓.

YOUR OWN SUPPLY OF PLUG TRANSPLANTS

Meyer Z-52 Zoysia Grass was perfected by U.S. Govt., released in cooperation with U.S. Golf Assoc. as a superior grass.

Order guaranteed Amazoy now, get your bonus plugs FREE. Your order will be delivered at earliest correct time for planting in your area.

We ship all orders the same day plugs are packed, shipping/handling charge collect via most economical means.

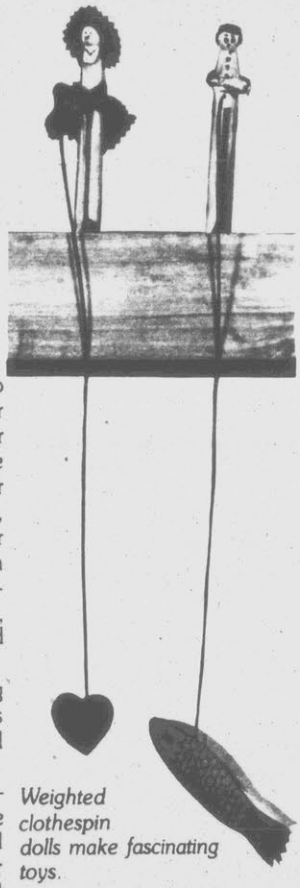
CRAFTS

Create With Wood



Weighted clothespin dolls make fascinating toys.

By Rosalyn Abrevaya

Here's an easy and inexpensive way to make clever wooden gadgets for your home and gifts for your own children, or the cub scouts. You could also donate these items to the next hospital benefit or bazaar. All you need are wooden clothespins, available at grocery or hardware stores, or tongue depressors, which you can get from any drugstore. You use them to make napkin-holders, finger puppets, note and recipe clips, mittenholders and scarfholders, personalized lapel pins and clothespin dolls.

The idea of using clothespins for holding recipe cards is not new, but with our designs they can be made decorative and no one will know of their "former life."

Napkin clips and desk-top stationery-holders made from clothespins can also be designed so that they don't reveal their real purpose — you'd gladly put them on your table or desk. The recipeholders can be attached to magnets so that they adhere conveniently to the front of the refrigerator.

Tongue depressors can be glued to a rack to hold mittens and scarves. Decorate a hallway with it or hang it on the inside of a closet door.

Toaster tongs made from tongue depressors are very useful gadgets. You can also use depressors to make plantholders and trivets, wood-stained to match your furniture. Or make a personalized hairclip or name pin for a little girl.

Finger puppets are great fun, as are clothespin dolls which can be made to dance on a wire.

Complete directions with photographs and illustrations for all of the projects are included in the booklet, "Wood 'N Things." For your copy of this booklet (#353), send $1.25 plus 25¢ postage and handling to:

Home-Grown Artichoke Recipes

By Marilyn Hansen

From the farm community of Castroville, Calif., which produces all of the fresh artichokes grown in the United States, come recipes for artichoke dishes that are the favorites of the people who help grow them.

ARTICHOKE SPINACH SQUARES

2 cups cooked brown rice
4 eggs, beaten
⅔ cup milk
2 tablespoons margarine, melted
2 tablespoons chopped onion
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
1 teaspoon seasoned salt
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup cooked, drained, chopped spinach
1 cup cooked, chopped artichokes
2 cups shredded Cheddar cheese

1. Turn cooked rice into large bowl.
2. Add eggs, milk, margarine, onion, parsley and salts; mix well.
3. Stir in spinach, artichokes and cheese; mix well. Spoon mixture into greased 9 × 9 × 2-inch ovenproof baking dish; spread evenly.
4. Bake in preheated 325°F oven for about 45 minutes or until knife inserted in center comes out clean. Makes 9 squares

GARLICHOKES

6 medium-sized artichokes
Boiling water
½ cup olive oil
¼ cup lemon juice
6 cloves garlic, minced
½ cup finely chopped parsley
½ teaspoon salt
Dash ground black pepper
Aioli, recipe follows
1 hard-cooked egg yolk, sieved

1. Rinse and trim artichokes and cut across tops 1 inch down. Trim outer leaves to first layer of edible leaves. Place snugly stem-end down in saucepan. Pour boiling water to cover them; return to boiling and cook until tender, about 30 to 40 minutes. Drain well; cool.
2. When artichokes are cool enough to handle, scoop out and discard center thorned cones and fuzzy "chokes."
3. Combine olive oil, lemon juice, garlic, parsley, salt and pepper. Return artichokes to saucepan and pour over the oil-lemon mixture. Heat to boiling; reduce heat and simmer for 10 minutes. Let stand until at room temperature.
4. When ready to serve, arrange artichokes on individual serving plates and fan out each artichoke in a sunburst fashion.
5. Fill center with Aioli and garnish with sieved egg yolk. Serve as a salad with the main dish or as an appetizer.

Makes 6 servings

QUICK AIOLI

1 to 3 cloves garlic
1 egg yolk
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 cup mayonnaise

1. In blender container, combine garlic, egg yolk, lemon juice and ¼ cup mayonnaise. Process until smooth.
2. Fold puree into remaining mayonnaise. Serve chilled.

Makes about 1 cup

ARTICHOKES IN WINE

6 small artichokes
¼ cup vegetable oil
½ cup finely chopped parsley
2 cloves garlic, minced
1 teaspoon oregano leaves
½ teaspoon salt
Dash ground black pepper
½ cup dry white wine

1. Rinse artichokes and cut across tops of artichokes 1 inch down. Trim chokes down to tender leaves and trim bottom evenly. Cut into quarters.
2. Sauté artichokes in vegetable oil in skillet. Sauté, turning until light brown.
3. Add parsley, garlic, oregano, salt and pepper. Cook for several minutes, stirring.
4. Add wine, cover and simmer about 15 to 20 minutes until bottom of artichoke feels tender when pierced with a fork.

Recipe from Joy Pieri, Castroville, Calif.

DOES 60 lbs. OF TOMATOES FROM ONE YIELD SOUND INCREDIBLE?

NOT IF YOU OWN THE Amazing TREE TOMATO

(Cyphomandra betacea)

GROWS INDOORS OR OUTDOORS . . . YOU PICK BASKET AFTER BASKET OF RIPE, TASTY TOMATOES . . . ONE BUMPER CROP AFTER ANOTHER . . . 5 TO 7 MONTHS A YEAR . . . YEAR AFTER YEAR!

We Get Letters!
Read what L. F. S. of Wisc. has to say . . . "Just a line to let you know the Tree Tomato is doing great . . . about 5½ ft. tall . . . you said leaves grew 12" . . . mine are 15 and 16". It's just beautiful!"

Noted Citriculturist of New Zealand says:
"Ripening in New Zealand from late April to early November, the tree tomato has a very long fruiting season. Its wide range of culinary uses make it a valuable winter and spring fruit . . . a welcome addition to the menu. "Although introduced into New Zealand many years ago, it is only in recent years that the tree tomato has become better known for its many uses. It is now much sought after, and its popularity is indicated by the high price realized for it on local markets . . . Under suitable conditions the plant will produce from 40 to 60 lbs. of fruit annually."

From New Zealand comes the biggest garden sensation of the century . . . THE PERENNIAL TOMATO!

GROW IT OUTDOORS AS A TREE—INDOORS AS A HOUSEPLANT!
The TREE TOMATO will thrive marvelously—indoors or out! If you live in a temperate zone, plant it outdoors and enjoy its bountiful, exotic beauty in your garden! Or, tub-grow the TREE TOMATO, bring it indoors for winter, and surprise your family and friends with ripe, just-picked tomatoes even during the coldest months of the year! Or . . . cultivate the TREE TOMATO as a house-plant anytime . . . anywhere! The TREE TOMATO will achieve heights of up to 8 ft. outdoors, but it can be trimmed and trained to any size or shape you wish!

ENJOY TREE TOMATOES SO MANY DELECTABLE WAYS!
We think TREE TOMATOES are much tastier than ordinary tomatoes . . . it's hard to find a meatier, firmer, more bursting-with-goodness taste treat! Rich in Vitamin C, TREE-TOMATOES are fabulous in salads, sandwiches and are absolutely fantastic just sliced up and popped in your mouth!

Nothing beats fresh produce, so why continue to pay high supermarket prices for inferior tomatoes, when you can grow your own TREE TOMATOES! REMEMBER, WE SHIP MATURE PLANTS . . . NOT SEEDS . . . ORDER YOUR TREE TOMATOES TODAY! Full growing instructions included.

The TREE TOMATO . . . a remarkable new horticultural concept . . . unlike anything you've ever seen before! NOT a vine . . . NOT a regular tomato plant that withers and dies after one summer . . . the TREE TOMATO is a living, growing tree that BEARS FRUIT SEASON AFTER SEASON . . . YEAR AFTER YEAR! Why settle for garden-fresh tomatoes a few short weeks of the year? Why put up with hothouse tomatoes that taste like cardboard the rest of the time? Not when you can pick crop after crop of red, plump juicy TREE TOMATOES up to 7 months a year (all year 'round when grown indoors!)

WAVE AFTER WAVE OF SUCCULENT TREE TOMATOES GROW AS QUICK AS YOU CAN PICK 'EM!
Your TREE TOMATO will arrive already leafed-out . . . in full, green hardy vigor! When ready to bear, the branches will literally droop with huge clusters of delicious TREE TOMATOES, hundreds upon hundreds . . . and, as one crop is harvested, another rushes forth to take its place . . . so you have a virtually constant supply of luscious TREE TOMATOES!

LAKELAND'S DOUBLE GUARANTEE
All plants must arrive in perfect condition. If you are not totally satisfied with any order, return within 10 days for a prompt replacement refund of purchase price (except post. & hdlg.). And all plants must thrive after planting, or return anytime within 3 months for prompt replacement—no questions asked!

Would you give away $15,000?

Asking anyone if he would give away $15,000 may sound like a foolish question, because the answer is obviously "NO!" Yet, if you plan to build on your property and finance your new home, paying this amount and more in extra financing charges is very, very easy to do.

Check these facts: If the cash price of building your new home is $30,000 and you finance with a 20-year, 13% mortgage, you will pay back approximately $14,872 MORE than if Jim Walter built a home, having this same cash price, and financed it at our standard 10% annual percentage rate.

Think of that. Just 3% more makes a difference of nearly $15,000 over the life of a 20-year mortgage. That's a difference of $62.00 more in your monthly payment, each month for 20 years. If you increase the cash price just slightly, to $35,000, you will end up paying a total in excess of $17,000 MORE. Would you give away that much money?

EXAMPLE 20 YEAR FINANCING WITH NO DOWN PAYMENT

$25,000	10%	$241.20	13%	$292	$12,407
$30,000	10%	$289.50	13%	$351	$14,872
$35,000	10%	$337.70	13%	$410	$17,365
$40,000	10%	$385.90	13%	$468	$19,855

When you shop around for a builder, be sure of your total costs. Find out how much interest you would pay. Then ask your Jim Walter representative to show you our comparison figures. You'll see a big difference between most other financing and Jim Walter's time price charge. We believe you'll choose the Jim Walter way.

Take a close look at the many homes we'll offer you. Ask for details about doing some of the inside finishing work yourself to save even more money. Jim Walter builds to almost any stage of inside finish from the "shell" up to 90% complete. The more you do for yourself, the less your cost and the more money you'll save. With Jim Walter you can be assured you will get an excellent value for your money. Call, stop by a display park or send the coupon to the office nearest you. You'll receive complete information without obligation.

PEOPLE QUIZ

Are Your Eyes A Clue to I.Q.?

By John E. Gibson

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. How intelligent a person considers you to be could depend on how much eye contact you have with him or her during an encounter.
2. People with higher-than-average I.Q.'s are action-minded and consider daydreaming a waste of time.
3. Depression lowers your ability to think.
4. Women with high I.Q.'s tend to have specific personality traits and this is particularly true when they make the best use of their abilities.
5. Creative intelligence is an invaluable asset — but almost impossible to define.

ANSWERS

1. True. Studies of how people perceive intelligence, conducted by investigators at Southwest Texas State University, showed eye contact to be a highly potent source of nonverbal communication, and that persons who exhibited longer duration of eye contact and fewer eye shifts were likely to be rated by interviewers as significantly more intelligent than individuals who generally avoided eye contact during the interview.
2. False. A study of daydreaming's relation to I.Q. conducted by a team of behavior specialists at Lancaster General Hospital (Pa.) found that persons with higher I.Q.'s accepted daydreaming more, enjoyed it more, had fewer hostile daydreams and experienced less guilt in daydreams than did persons who had lower scores on intelligence tests.
3. True. If you have a difficult problem to resolve, or an exacting mental task to perform, don't tackle it when you're in a blue mood. Psychiatric studies at the University of California showed that "depressed people scored significantly lower on tests measuring their ability to think abstractly, their ability to screen out irrelevant but associated information and their speed of information processing."
4. True. A University of Georgia study of women with above-average intelligence — which also evaluated the results of other research — found that independence and autonomy characterized most gifted females who used their abilities. It was further noted that "Successful gifted women appear to possess a high degree of perseverance in the face of adversity."
5. False. One of the best definitions of creative intelligence was set forth in a Rutgers University study of mental ability: "Creativity is. . . characterized by behavioral qualities of curiosity, openness of attitude toward learning, highly individual perception, connecting of information in a personally meaningful way and acceptance of things realistically. . . ." PLANT NOW—STEP BACK—WATCH IT SKYROCKET FORTH!

and keeps on skyrocketing 30-40-50 EVEN UP TO 60 FEET HIGH, OR MORE, in less time than most trees nudge themselves a few feet off the ground.

In Fact, During Its Super-Soaring Growing Season:

IT GROWS AS MUCH AS A FULL ½ FOOT EACH WEEK AFTER EVERY TIME YOU WATER IT!

Yes! Based on amazing growth rates reported by plant scientists—it grows SO FAST ... arches out SO WIDE ... you can actually take a ruler and measure the incredible difference in height every 2 to 3 days! OR, to really leave your neighbors gasping in awe and wonder, give them a yardstick and let them measure the difference IN FEET every 2 to 3 weeks!

Yes, goes on to thrust itself so high, so fast that it actually towers over even a Japanese Red Maple, Cherry Tree or even the most graceful silky willow in such a ridiculously short time you will simply refuse to believe your eyes! Think of it!

GROWS MORE IN JUST ONE MONTH THAN MOST TREES GROW IN ENTIRE YEAR!

Because according to plant experts, Govt. scientists and Botanical Gardens who researched this wonder-hybrid ... once established, you merely water it once-a-week, and be absolutely floored as, during its SUPER-SOARING growing season, it GROWS AS MUCH AS A FULL ½-FOOT WEEKLY AFTER EVERY TIME YOU WATER IT!

That's right! Grows higher than even a full grown Flowering Dogwood IN JUST ONE SINGLE SEASON! Grows higher than even a full-grown Star Magnolia IN JUST ONE SINGLE YEAR!

PLANT NOW—REACH OUT AND TOUCH ITS LUSH, THICK BRANCHES FROM YOUR SECOND STORY BEDROOM WINDOW BY THE NEXT SUMMER!

No doubt about it. There's just not another "instant" Shade Tree like it on this planet! Because thanks to this miracle of plant science, instead of spending a small fortune on a tree and then waiting half a lifetime for it to grow ... get set for the garden-wonder of your life as this super-soaring hybrid rockets forth from a prize nursery-grown plant to a tower of roof-high beauty in less time than you even dreamed possible.

GROWS IN VIRTUALLY ANY SOIL —REQUIRES NO SPECIAL CARE— SOARS INTO A MASTERPIECE OF BEAUTY IN JUST A MATTER OF MONTHS!

Best of all, unlike most trees that demand constant care, constant pampering ... about the only thing you do after you plant this super-growing wonder-hybrid is water it and enjoy it! That's why leading botanical gardens ... landscape artists ... garden editors ... can't stop raving about its indescribable beauty ... its trouble-free care ... its surging, towering growth.

Small wonder that leading experts hail it in the most glowing terms ... recommended it again and again for homeowners who want a stunning display of beauty ... both a wind and privacy screen and deep, cool shade ... and with practically no more work than a thorough watering each week!

VITAL STATISTICS FROM LEADING EXPERTS

MATURE GROWTH SIZE: as much as 40 to 65 feet

MATURE SPREAD: as much as 30 to 35 feet

ZONE OF HARDINESS: Hardy from the deepest South to as far North as Vermont, Minn., Quebec, British Columbia...Winter Hardy in areas where temp. drops as low as 30 degrees below zero.

LIGHT NEEDS: Grows beautifully in Sunny location.

DECORATIVE MERITS: Highly recommended by landscape architects as beautiful decorative specimens for homes, parks, highways, etc., where exceptional fast growth and beauty are required. Perfect for fast screening and privacy.

RAPID RATE OF GROWTH: Experts report growth rates on specimen trees that measure up to 8 FEET THE VERY FIRST YEAR ALONE. That's more than most shade trees grow in 3 ... 4 ... 5 ... even 7 years. Yes, once established will grow ranch-house-roof high IN JUST ONE SINGLE YEAR, that's right—The very next year after planting! Experts also report it soars an amazing 5 to 8 feet each year for YEARS thereafter. Naturally results are based on optimum growing conditions. Takes but 10 minutes to plant and normal care rewards you with a lifetime of beauty starting this very year.

CARE: Nothing special—just normal garden care. Water fully once weekly. Naturally resistant to most diseases, pest or insects.

WE HAVE AT THIS MOMENT ONLY A LIMITED SUPPLY AVAILABLE FOR RELEASE TO THE PUBLIC— FULL SUPPLY WON'T BE READY UNTIL 1983 SO ACT NOW!

Now the price of this super growing shade tree is not $20 or $30 as you might expect, but a mere $3.95!

That's right, only $3.95 for this magnificent Beauty that rewards you with such a glorious display of growth IN JUST ONE SINGLE YEAR. However, our supply is limited! Full supplies from the growing fields will not be ready until late 1982 or early 1983. Therefore, all orders must be shipped on a first-come, first-shipped basis. To make sure you don't miss out ... MONEY

Many Happy Returns: An Expert's Advice on Taxes

By Merrie Spaeth

For months last year, news reports headlined the debate over President Reagan's tax proposals. The bill that the President finally signed will mean lower taxes for many American families — but most changes won't go into effect until next year, when we file our 1982 tax returns. You'll want to take advantage of every way to minimize your 1981 tax liability. For some suggestions on how to do this, FAMILY WEEKLY spoke to Dr. Robert S. Holzman, author of the recently released book A Survival Kit for Taxpayers (Macmillan). He is also professor emeritus of taxation at New York University.

Danbury News-Times

Professor Holzman.

Q: Dr. Holzman, how does a taxpayer know if he needs help with his return?

A: A safe bet is to figure you will need help. Even figuring things like medical and educational deductions can be complicated now. The best chance a taxpayer has to file a correct return and not miss any deductions is to find someone more knowledgeable than he is to ask questions of.

Q: What about tax-preparation businesses?

A: Stay away from them! Some people who prepare returns for them know absolutely nothing. There are no Federal regulations for these firms: If they make a mistake, you get stuck with the interest payment and perhaps even a negligence charge.

Q: Who then should the taxpayer turn to?

A: A lawyer or certified public accountant (C.P.A.) specializing in tax returns is the best bet. The Internal Revenue Service (I.R.S.) also has taxpayer assistance programs in many of its local offices, but these are crowded at this time of year, and the I.R.S. agent helping you may be too rushed to ask you the proper questions.

Q: What are the most common deductions people overlook?

A: Without a doubt, medical expenses and casualty losses. Last year, a man was allowed to deduct the cost of removing paint from his fence as a medical expense because he had a little boy who was eating the paint. Let me caution you here, however. The test is not whether your doctor tells you to do something but whether what he tells you applies to a specific medical condition.

Casualty loss refers to something that happens suddenly because of some external force. The most common losses result from floods, fires, thefts, storms and tornadoes, but losing money to a confidence man could also be included in this category. To claim these expenses, you almost certainly need pictures of the damage to your house or your possessions; if it was theft, it's important for you to have reported it to the police right away.

Q: What are some common mistakes on tax returns that can cost you money?

A: One common mistake involves Social Security deductions. If you work for more than one employer, you may not realize that each employer is taking out the full amount due to Social Security, even though you may already have reached the ceiling ($29,700 for 1981). You are allowed to take a credit on your tax return for that overwithholding and have it returned to you.

Another missed saving is in the area of dependency deductions. If you provide more than half the support for someone, you can claim him or her as a dependent. Another aspect to this is when several people contribute to one person's income, as in the case of several grown children supporting a parent. Each child individually may not provide more than half the support, but together they do. In such a case, the claim for the dependency deduction can rotate among the children year by year.

Q: Are there any significant changes in the tax laws which took effect in 1981?

A: Yes, there are some specialty deductions. The biggest change is an expansion and liberalization of what you can do with money you make from the sale of your home. Before last year, people over 55 were allowed to take the profit from selling a home and sink it back into a new residence. They were allowed $100,000 tax-free income and 18 months to reinvest. Now the time limit has been extended to two years and the amount has been raised to $125,000.

A: Everything. Receipts for all expenses, and be sure to note exactly what they were for. Put information on checks. Take pictures of everything. Keep bills of sale, and get the bill or the receipt for something if it's a gift or inheritance. The I.R.S. has the power to look at a deposit in your bank account, designate it income, and tax you accordingly, unless you can prove where it came from and all other relevant information. Keep records in a safe-deposit box. FW

Whatever happened to Sunday?

It is a matter of concern to many sincere people that the Christian Church in the time of the Apostles moved from a special observance of sabbath on the seventh day of the week to observance on the first day. The day of rest became "The Lord's Day" and was celebrated on Sunday, the day of Christ's Resurrection. The reasons and circumstances of the change are considered in our pamphlet.

More important than any debate about changes is the need for all of us to reconsider the place of a special day of worship in our lives. Too many of us have forgotten. Write for the free booklet, "Remember the Sabbath... Keep it Holy!" No one will call on you.

WHAT IN THE WORLD

By Eliot Kaplan

DR.'S ORDERS: HA!

Doug Jamieson

Next time you wonder why you're not healing fast enough, consider this: Anywhere from 50 to 80 percent of patients don't follow their doctors' orders.

Dr. Harold Levinson of the University of Wisconsin, Madison, recently noted in Psychology Today that many patients think they know more about the symptoms and treatment of their illnesses than do their doctors. For instance, even though evidence shows that you cannot accurately tell when your blood pressure has risen, 90 percent of high-blood-pressure victims in one study said they could, citing such (false) symptoms as headaches, flushed faces and tension. According to Levinson, patients are guided by these faulty assumptions when deciding whether or not to follow a doctor's prescribed treatment.

CHARTBUSTERS

Neal Preston

. . . and Benatar.

Poor Kenny Rogers. There is actually one music honor he didn't win last year. Any recent Grammy Awards notwithstanding, Billboard's 1981 year-end review reveals REO Speedwagon beat him out for top pop artist, based on record sales and airplay. But Rogers did capture top spot in the country category (over Alabama and Dolly Parton) and proved to be top male artist (whipping Bruce Springsteen and Christopher Cross).

Pat Benatar was top female artist, says Billboard (Kim Carnes and Barbra Streisand were runners-up), while REO Speedwagon outdid AC/DC and Hall and Oates in the duo/group slot. Sheena Easton was top new artist, while Grover Washington was the crown jewel of jazz, Rick James supreme in soul and Luciano Pavarotti king of classical.

Singles

1. "Bette Davis Eyes," Kim Carnes.
2. "Endless Love," Diana Ross & Lionel Richie.
3. "Lady," Kenny Rogers.
4. "Starting Over," John Lennon.
5. "Jessie's Girl," Rick Springfield.

Albums

1. Hi Infidelity, REO Speedwagon.
2. Double Fantasy, John Lennon & Yoko Ono.
3. Greatest Hits, Kenny Rogers.
4. Christopher Cross, Christopher Cross.
5. Crimes of Passion, Pat Benatar.

COME ON BACK, HOWDY DOODY

At age 3, Gary Grossman became the first kid on his block to have a TV, and he spent hours mesmerized by his kiddie favorites. Now 33, Grossman is still hooked, as witnessed by his charming new book on kidvid's history, Saturday Morning TV. They're all there, from Superman to Soupy Sales, Top Cat to Underdog, Hopalong Cassidy to Road Runner.

Although today's kidvid is less violent, less blatantly commercial and more newsy, Grossman sees a disturbing trend. Due to skyrocketing costs, networks have switched from the classic shows starring real people to cartoons. "Let's face it," Grossman told us, "Yogi Bear doesn't need a health plan; Scooby-Doo doesn't get residuals.

"But kids are missing out on adult role models. Many folks at NASA say they were inspired by Mr. Wizard; airline pilots by Sky King. Now, Bill Cosby is the last human on Saturday morning TV."

LEADER OF THE PACKS

Barclay Bollas

Judd & king Cubs.

For the third time in seven years, tiny St. David, Ariz. (population 1,600) can boast the most physically fit Cub Scouts in the U.S.

Late last year, Hondo Judd, 10, Peter Haymore, 9, and Brandon Merrill, 8, beat out 100,000 other Scouts in a nationwide competition, which included softball throw, pushups, situps, long jump and 50-yard dash. Incredibly, Haymore did 122 pushups in 60 seconds, Judd 120.

The inspiration behind St. David's success is Hondo's father, Clay. Despite having rheumatic fever as a boy, Judd, 44, has become a fitness nut. Each summer morning from 5:30 to 7:30 he led the boys in workouts with the weights set up in his basement.

Among Judd's six kids, son Nephi, 16, was on 1975's winning Scout squad, and daughter Estrella, 14, is a national weight-lifting champ. Judd already is preparing a team for this year's Cub contest, but all his sons are too old. "Unfortunately," he says, laughing, "I'm out of boys."

LOVE AT FIRST SNIFF

Dan Nevins

We waited until after Valentine's Day to tell you this because we hated to ruin your notions of romance, but speculation is mounting that what attracts us to the opposite sex may not be the twinkle in his or her eye, but the twinge in your nose.

Scientists are beginning to look into pheromones, which are specific scents secreted by some creatures (female insects, for example) that can lure a mate from miles away. Before pigs mate, the boar gives off an odor in his saliva that attracts the female.

"There's no hard evidence yet of pheromones in humans," admits Dr. John Labows of Philadelphia's Monell Chemical Senses Center. But he says research is being done on individuals' unique odors and their possible effects on the behavior of others. It's been found, for instance, that women who live or work together tend to experience their periods at the same time, and this may be related to subtle smells emitted during the menstrual cycle.

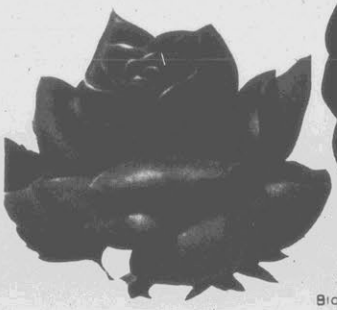
GIANT HIBISCUS

Bonus for orders mailed before April 25. Nursery grown from seed, 1-2 years old. Large blooms on 6 ft. stems.

CRIMSON GLORY
Large, well-formed, deep velvety blooms are finest red of all — and most fragrant, too. Blooms in glorious profusion all summer long into fall. Only $1.98

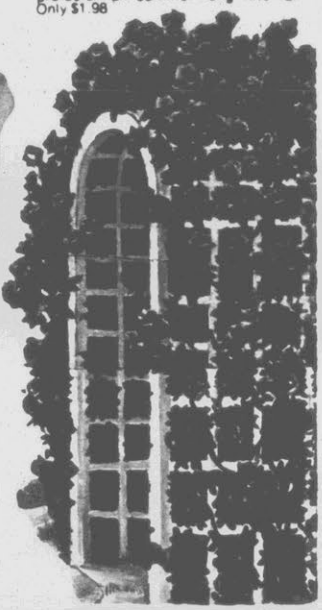


MONTEZUMA
Fantastically gorgeous! The urn-shaped buds open into large, high-centered double blooms of brilliant scarlet-orange. Very vigorous grower. Blooms profusely on a compact bush highlighted with leathery semi-glossy foliage. Only $1.98

FORTY-NINER
Blooms all summer long and into autumn with brilliantly contrasting petals: vivid Oriental red inside and chrome yellow outside. Grows to 3 feet high. Former All American Rose of the Year and deservedly so! Only $1.98

CHRYSLER IMPERIAL
Perfectly shaped tapering buds open into large, velvety, dark red blooms with as many as 40-50 petals each. Richly fragrant and colorful. Another former All American Rose of the Year. Only $1.98

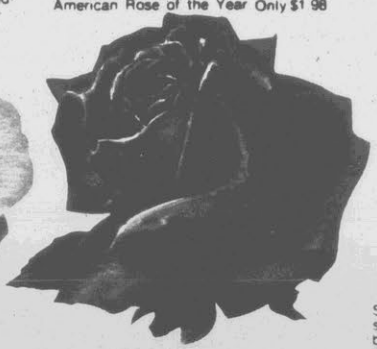
TIFFANY
Large, long buds open into lush, double blooms of beautiful, warm pink. Intensely fragrant. Considered by many to be one of the most beautiful of all roses. Former All American Rose of the Year, an authentic prize winner. Only $1.98



CLIMBING BLAZE
This champion climber produces a living blanket of big, 2 to 3 inch scarlet-red double blooms on many branched canes. Blooms again and again summer into fall, covering trellis, walls, fences with a sheet of flaming color. Only $1.98

CLIMBING PEACE
Easy growing flowers generously all summer long with dozens of vivid golden blooms tinged in red or pink. Clambers quickly over fence, side of house, arbor, or trellis in a rolling blanket of large, gorgeous golden blooms. Only $1.98

ECLIPSE
Easily established, the profuse and remarkably long pointed buds open to deep-cupped, long-lasting, doubled golden yellow blooms that come in waves far into fall. Eclipse is showy, alternately green, then yellow. Only $1.98



QUEEN ELIZABETH
Truly one of the most breathtakingly beautiful roses: its clusters of lovely, radiant pink flowers bloom early June to frost. Delightfully fragrant. Former All American Rose of the Year winner. Very dependable. Only $1.98

MIRANDY
Strong, vigorous grower produces many suprisingly large, well formed blooms, as befits a past All American Rose of the Year winner. Blooms are deep purplish-red, maroon color. Only $1.98

Original U.S. Morgan Silver Dollars

Philadelphia, February 1982. IMM announced today the release for sale of a small cache of less than 10,000 original U.S. Government Morgan Silver Dollars. Esteemed by collectors worldwide, Morgan Silver Dollars are among the last .900 fine silver dollars to have been struck for circulation by the U.S. Government and have become extremely scarce in recent years.

International Monetary Mint is releasing for sale these rare Morgan Dollars in very fine condition at the Special Investor Opportunity price of only $35 each. Investors who respond from this publication may purchase from 1 to 10 individual coins at this price. Because of the limited number available, all orders will be filled on a first-come, first-served basis with a strict limit of 10 coins per customer. This announcement will only be repeated in the unlikely event that coins from this cache are still available beyond the deadline published here.

The Morgan Silver Dollar was authorized by an Act of the United States Congress in 1878 and was struck for circulation from 1878-1904. Due to a bullion shortage, coinage was suspended until 1921, when Morgans were once again minted for a single year. During World War I it is estimated that over 270 million silver dollars were melted down for bullion and as a result, all surviving Morgan Dollars are in short supply. The specimens in this offering are all in very fine condition and to protect your investment each coin will be accompanied by a Certificate of Authenticity to that effect.

To qualify for this offering, call Lee Collins toll free at 1-800-345-8502, Dept. MDL-1886. (In Pennsylvania, call our Special Operator at 1-800-662-5180 for credit card orders; or if you would prefer, mail check or money order in the full amount to: International Monetary Mint, Dept. MDL-1886, 390 Pike Road, Huntingdon Valley, PA 19006. An additional $2.75 is requested to cover insurance, postage and special handling per order. If not completely satisfied, you may return your U.S. Morgan Silver Dollar(s) in their original condition within 14 days for a full refund. This offer expires March 23, 1982.

HOCUS-FOCUS

CAN YOU TRUST YOUR EYES? There are at least six differences in drawing details between top and bottom panels. How quickly can you find them? Check answers with those below.

Difference 1. Curtain is missing 2. Price is changed 3. Awning is smaller 4. Letter is missing 5. Vent is opened 6. Pole is missing

Junior Whirl®

by Hal Kaufman

● BLANK THOUGHT! "A weak _____ is like a microscope which magnifies trifling things but cannot receive big ones." —Lord Chesterfield. What four-letter word is missing? It's easy to answer if you put your mind to it.

The missing word is "mind."

● Oven Handed? Of the six contenders for a dozen prizes at the baking contest, five won 12, so one won how many? Answer quickly.

One won none

● Seeing Double! How fast can you think of a common word containing: 1. A double O. 2. A double Z. 3. A double A. 4. A double I?

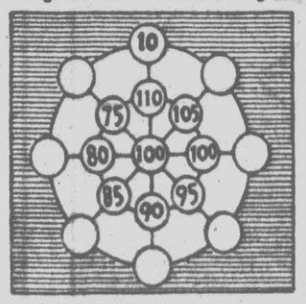
Possible answers: 1. Book 2. Jazz 3. Bazaar 4. Skiing

● Fizz Ed! 1. Standing before a mirror, try to raise your right eyebrow without raising your left. 2. Try to touch your ear with your elbow.



WELL ROUNDED MATH TEST!

How quickly can you insert seven missing numbers in the outer circles of the wheel above so that the total in each straight line of five circles is the same —340?

See if you can work out the answer in your head. Remember, the total sought in each row of five numbers is 340.

Clockwise 10, 15, 20, 25, 30
35, 40, 45

Prince Valiant

CREATED BY HAL FOSTER

WITH GAWAIN HE TRAILS HER TO A HOUSE IN THE SLUMS OF THE PERSIAN DISTRICT. ONCE INSIDE, THE TWO KNIGHTS GAPE. THE ROOM STRETCHES ENDLESSLY, AND DOWN ITS CENTER A STREAM BABBLES TOWARD THEM. IN THE WATERS SCENES FROM VAL'S PAST SLIP BY: KNIGHTHOOD, MARRIAGE, THE FIGHT WITH FATHER TIME.

EACH STEP UPSTREAM BRINGS HIM CLOSER TO THE PRESENT UNTIL, HIS HEART THUMPING, HE CATCHES UP, SEES HIMSELF WALKING BESIDE THE BROOK. THE FUTURE LIES JUST AHEAD. BUT SO DOES 'THE WANDERER.' "NO MORTAL PASSES HERE," SHE SAYS.

"VALIANT, I BRING YOU HERE TO WARN YOU. BEWARE JUSTINIAN. SECRET PLANS ARE AFOOT. TWO THINGS OF YOURS HE COVETS: WHAT ALL MEN WANT BUT CANNOT STAND, CAN LOVE BUT CANNOT BEAR; AND A FARAWAY KINGDOM NO MAN RULES, WHOSE RULER IS ALWAYS FAIR." A GUST SENDS THE ROOM WHIRLING....

.... AND THE NEXT MOMENT VAL AND GAWAIN FIND THEMSELVES BACK ON THE DOORSTEP. "BEGONE, YOU RUFFIANS," A MOTHER CRIES.

"WELL, OLD FRIEND?" VAL INQUIRES. GAWAIN MERELY SNORTS: "FOUL WATER, FOUL FOOD, FOUL CLIMATE. THESE EASTERN LANDS BEFOUL THE BRAIN." SUDDENLY, IMPERIAL TROOPS APPEAR. "THERE THEY ARE," ONE SHOUTS. FALLING LAUNDRY BUYS A FEW PRECIOUS SECONDS. "AT LEAST THEY WASH, GAWAIN," VAL SMILES.
