Recession Forces Unemployment Up

By STEVEN P. ROSENFELD
AP Business Writer

The nation's unemployment rate rose to 8.8 percent in February from 8.5 percent a month earlier, the Labor Department reported today, with more than 15 million Americans either unemployed or forced to work reduced hours.

The report that the unemployment rate returned to its December level, the highest since June 1975, followed by a day a private credit agency's report that the number of business failures for the first two months of 1982 was up 55 percent from the same period last year.

Businesses are being pinched by recession, which has slowed sales, and high interest rates, which have made it costly to borrow money to make ends meet. With many businesses struggling, unemployment has been high.

The Labor Department said 9.6 million Americans were out of work last month, up 280,000 from January and an increase of 1.8 million since last July. It said a record 5.6 million workers had to settle for part-time work.

The nation's automakers reported Thursday the number of employees laid off without a recall date was virtually unchanged at 249,710 this week, while temporary layoffs fell to 16,225 from last week's 51,525.

Dun & Bradstreet Corp. reported the number of business failures slowed to 459 in the week ended Feb. 25 from 505 the previous week and 529 two weeks earlier. The toll of 529 businesses in the week ended Feb. 11, was the highest since 1939, as far back as the company's weekly records go.

But the latest weekly total of business failures was still 94 percent above the 236 failures in the comparable week last year. In the first eight weeks of 1981, 2,269 business failures were recorded.

"The high interest rates, the unacceptable levels of current unemployment, the lost output ... the financial strains, the rising bankruptcies in the economy, the huge budget deficit that we are dealing with — none of these things are pleasant facts of life," budget director David Stockman said in a Washington speech to the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

"They are all temporary and not permanent. They are all part of the cure (for ending inflation), not the problem. They are all a prelude to the recovery, not evidence that the policies should be changed in some fundamental way," Stockman said.

Federal Reserve Board Chairman Paul Volcker told the Senate Appropriations Committee there is "no question" inflation is being brought under control. But he repeated his warnings that unless federal budget deficits are controlled an expected economic recovery could be aborted.

Inflation, as measured by the Consumer Price Index, rose 8.9 percent in 1981 compared with a rise of 12.4 percent in 1980 and a 13.3 percent rise in 1979. In January, the CPI rose at an annual rate of 3.5 percent.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass., urged businessmen to back efforts to reduce the budget deficits proposed the Reagan administration. He spoke at a Boca Raton, Fla., meeting of the Futures Industry Association, a major commodity trade group.

The liberal Americans for Democratic Action urged Congress to scuttle Reaganomics in favor of a return to Depression-era public employment programs, and government controls on wages, prices and credit.

Murray Weidenbaum, chairman of the president's Council of Economic Advisers, told the Senate Budget Committee he still expects strong economic growth in the second half of 1982, but he omitted from his prepared remarks an earlier prediction that the recovery will begin in the April-to-June period.

Meanwhile, in the fourth-heaviest trading day ever on the New York Stock Exchange, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks fell 7.61 points Thursday to close at 807.55. It was the lowest close for the blue-chip average since it finished at 805.20 on May 12, 1980.

The price of gold for current delivery fell $6.70 a troy ounce on the New York Commodity Exchange to close at $343.90 an ounce, its lowest finish since Sept. 13, 1979, when it stood at $337.10.

Williams Speaks Before Bored Senate

By MIKE SHANAHAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Harrison A. Williams Jr., fighting to save his place in the Senate, is telling his colleagues he was a victim of "renegade" federal officials who deliberately prosecuted him on false Abscam charges.

The New Jersey Democrat, defending himself for nearly six hours Thursday, termed the FBI's Abscam investigation "ethically repugnant" and vowed to battle what he called the "preposterous recommendation that I be expelled."

Portraying himself at the victim of prosecutors who took him to court on "charges they knew to be false," Williams described the time since the Abscam case broke as an "Orwellian nightmare" and a "lonely fight."

"My wife and I have been under some ordeal, I tell you, for over two years," he said.

With about 80 senators on hand and the galleries packed for the second day of Senate hearings, Williams said in his familiar, low-key baritone, "I could make things easier for you by resigning."

But that, he said, "would be a betrayal of the trust placed in me by the citizens of New Jersey in four Senate elections."

Williams claimed that "renegade individuals" in the FBI and Justice Department created the case against him "out of nothing."

Wearing a black suit and reading most of the time from a prepared text, the 23-year Senate veteran sought to build a point-by-point refutation of the case against him.

Flanked by two lawyers, he introduced documents which he said show prosecutorial doubts about the strength of the case against him and questioned the quality of videotapes of meetings he held with a phony FBI sheik.

Williams also called in the opinion of a linguistics expert who said the apparently damning words he uttered on the videotapes ddid not convey his true intentions.

During the presentation — with Vice President George Bush presiding — some senators focused on unrelated papers, wrote letters, read newspapers or worked on matters not pertaining to the Williams case.

A few dozed occasionally, and when Majority Leader Howard Baker of Tennessee called a brief recess, it took almost an hour to pull a respectable number of senators back to the floor.

Nonetheless, a few senators came to Williams' aid.

Democrats John Melcher of Montana and Russell Long of Louisiana asked sympathetic questions and Sen. Sam Hayakawa, R-Calif., once a renowned semanticist, said he was intrigued by the linguist's testimony.

Williams, 62, was convicted on bribery and conspiracy charges and ordered to pay a $50,000 fine and serve three years in jail.

He is only the third senator in history convicted of a felony in office. If the Senate votes to expel Williams, as recommended by the Senate Ethics Committee, it would be the first expulsion since the Civil War. In all, 15 senators have been expelled, all for disloyalty or treason.

In the Abscam case, Williams was accused of agreeing to use his influence as a senator to obtain government contracts for a mining enterprise in which he had an interest.

Six House members also were convicted in Abscam. One was expelled and the others either resigned or were defeated.

The senate's second-ranking Democrat, Alan Cranston of California, said he would begin his fight to reduce the proposed penalty from expulsion, which takes a two-thirds vote, to censure on Monday when the hearing resumes.

"It is my conclusion that there has been the grossest misconduct by the government of the United States in the investigation and subsequent prosecution of Sen. Williams," said Cranston.

Cranston said he finds Williams' "conduct wanting when measured against the conduct which must be expected of those who hold high public trust."

Landing On Venus

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union landed a space probe on Venus today, the second such Soviet module to make a soft-landing on the Earth's nearest neighbor this week, the official Tass news agency reported.

Tass said the latest probe was carried on the 180 million mile, four-month flight to Venus aboard the unmanned Venus-14 spacecraft, which reached the vicinity of the planet early today.

The descent vehicle loaded with cameras and other equipment then broke away from the mother ship and landed about 600 miles from the spot where a space probe carried by Venus-13 soft-landed on Monday, Tass said.

The earlier probe sent back the first color pictures from the planet's surface and other scientific data for more than two hours before going silent in the extreme heat of Venus.

Tass did not say how long the new space probe transmitted data.

I was the 12th Soviet probe landed on Venus in a series dating back to 1967.

Prison Term Is Given Priest By Poland's Court

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — A military court has sentenced a Roman Catholic priest to 3½ years in prison for slandering Polish leaders in a sermon delivered one week after imposition of martial law, a Warsaw newspaper reported today.

It was the first reported legal action against a priest since military rule was imposed Dec. 13 and the independent union Solidarity suspended.

The newspaper Sztandar Mlodych said the court sentenced the Rev. B. Jewulski following a trial in Koszalin. The prosecutor had asked for six years imprisonment, the paper added.

There was no indication when the verdict was handed down.

Polish officials had confirmed one priest was on trial for slandering Communist Party boss Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski but other details were withheld.

There was no comment from the Polish church on the conviction. The Roman Catholic church claims the allegiance of 90 percent of Poland's 36 million people and has been an outspoken critic of martial law.

The verdict was reported a few hours before a U.S. congressional delegation was to meet with Archbishop Jozef Glemp, primate of the Polish church.

Meanwhile, Poland's hardline army newspaper warned of "terrorism" in the country and said it would be "dangerous to ignore" such crimes.

"The few cases of terrorism recorded so far in Poland point to a peculiar character of this phenomenon in Poland," the paper Zolnierz Wolnosci said. "It's a particularly dangerous brand of terrorism — global terrorism directed against everyone.

"A significant cause of acts of terror in our country must be seen in the effects of indoctrination by anti-socialist organizations and the extreme wing of Solidarity prior to the introduction of martial law."

'Carlos' Demands Two Friends Given Release

By GREG MacARTHUR
Associated Press Writer

PARIS (AP) — The shadowy terrorist "Carlos" has surfaced after more than six years, sending a letter bearing his thumbprints and threatening "personally to attack the French government" unless it releases two suspected extremists arrested in Paris, the Interior Ministry said today.

A ministry spokesman said the threat came in a half-page letter in Spanish delivered to the French Embassy in The Hague on Wednesday. The letter was signed "Carlos" and included two thumbprints verified by French police as belonging to the terrorist, the spokesman said.

The French news agency, Agence France-Presse, said the French ambassador in The Hague was under heavy security since receiving the letter. It was the first real indication since an attack on an OPEC meeting in Vienna in December 1975 that Carlos, a 32-year-old terrorist born in Venezuela as Illich Ramirez Sanchez and also known as "The Jackal," was alive.

Government sources said Carlos had set a one-month deadline for freeing the two suspects.

The Interior Ministry spokesman said the letter demanded the release of Bruno Breguet, 32, of Minusio, Switzerland, and Magdalena Kaupp, 34, of Ulm, West Germany, who were arrested Feb. 16 as they fled from an underground parking lot near the Champs Elysees. olice said their car, carrying phony license plates, was loaded with 4.4 pounds of explosives, dozens of small propane gas canisters and two tear gas grenades. Police said the explosives were not rigged as a bomb.

The spokesman said the letter demanded that Breguet and Kaupp be given a plane "to fly to a destination of their choice," or Carlos would carry out unspecified reprisals against the French government.

Agence France-Presse said the letter also carried a specific threat against Interior Minister Gaston Defferre, but the spokesman could not confirm that report. Government spokesman in France are never identified by name.

Police said Breguet and Kaupp, who were identified as "members of my organization" in the letter, were carrying $2,000 when arrested, and that Breguet was armed with a 9mm automatic pistol, which misfired when he shot at police who initially suspected the pair of being robbers.

Both were charged with attempted murder, falsification of identity papers and possession of illegal explosives and firearms. They have remained silent since their arrest, police said.

Breguet, who was jailed from 1970-1977 in Israel after being convicted of a pro-Palestinian bombing attempt in Haifa, had lived in Zurich, Switzerland, since his release, apparently enrolled as a student, French police said.

Ms. Kaupp is suspected of belonging to West German terrorist groups and has been linked to Johannes Weinrich, an alleged member of the extreme leftist Baader-Meinhoff gang, they said.

Carlos has remained a mystery man in recent years.

Despite persistent rumors, including reports last year that he was leading a Libyan assassination squad against top U.S. officials, his last appearance was believed to have been during the Dec. 21, 1975 seizure of Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries ministers in Vienna, Austria.

Three people were killed and eight wounded in the takeover, but after four days of negotiations, Carlos, or someone claiming to be Carlos, and five other commandos were allowed to fly to Algeria, where they apparently were granted asylum and re-entered the underground.

The leader of the OPEC raiders matched Carlos' description, identified himself by that name and spoke with a Venezuelan accent, but his identity was never verified absolutely.

Carlos, who has been described as round-faced, stocky and about 5-foot-10-inches tall, is the son of a leftist Venezuelan lawyer who gave each of his three sons one of the names of Russian revolutionary leader Vladimir Ilich Lenin.

The name Carlos first surfaced in London when a man calling himself that claimed responsibility for the Dec. 30, 1973 attack on Joseph Conrad Sieff, a British-born, Israeli businessman. Seiff was shot three times in the face, but survived.

From that point, police concede, it is difficult to separate fact from legend, speculation, rumor and fictionalized characterizations in such best-selling novels as the "The Jackal" and "The Fifth Horseman."

FOCUS

"Man of Steel"

On this date in 1953, millions mourned the death of Iosif Djugashvili. But millions more were greatly relieved. The world had known him by his revolutionary pseudonym, Josef Stalin — "man of steel." For nearly 25 years this ex-seminarian ruled Russia with an iron hand. His ruthless purges in the 30's and 40's killed and imprisoned millions. Yet under his reign, the U.S.S.R. became an industrial and military giant, dealing a crippling blow to the Nazi war machine. Some people have suggested that Stalin did not die of natural causes. They believe Stalin was planning new purges at the time of his death, which might have included some of his highest ranking lieutenants — Beria, Molotov, Mikayan and even Brezhnev.

By The Associated Press

More unsettled weather is in store for North Carolina this weekend, sys the National Weather Service.

A weakening cold front moving into the mountains of North Carolina early this morning will be moving across the state today. This frontal system will be accompanied by a few showers. But rain will be spreading across the state tonight and continue through Saturday.

This rain will be the result of a low pressure area forming on the cold front along the gulf coast and by late Saturday this low will move into the southeastern states. At the present time it appears that some heavy rains could develope across eastern and central North Carolina during the day Saturday.

Thursday, a warm front moved inland from the Atlantic. This warm front created some marked temperature contrasts across North Carolina. As warmer air moved into the coastal sections, temperatures climbed into the low 70s along the south coast while much of the interior portions remained in the much cooler air. In the northwest Piedmont temperatures only reached the upper 30s for afternoon highs.

Jacksonville with a high of 71 degrees was the warmest in the state. Highs of 70 degrees were recorded at Wilmington, New Bern and Cherry Point.

Some light rain developed across the state during the day but rainfall amounts were quite light. Amounts during the past 24 hours have been generally less than a tenth of an inch.

Recreational weather outlook: Mostly cloudy skies will be the rule across North Carolina today with a few showers across the state. Highs today will ranged from the 50s in the west to around 70 along the south coast.

Rain will gradually overspread North Carolina from the south and southwest tonight. There will be a possibility of a thunderstorm in the southeast. The rains will continue Saturday with a possibility of some heavy rains developing Saturday. Highs Saturday will range from the 40s in the northern sections to the low 60s along the south coast.

Along the coast winds will be southwest at 10 to 20 knots today and will shift to the northwest tonight. Saturday winds will be northeast and will be increasing during the day.

Dear Abby

Natural Parent Not Interested

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1982 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I'm scared! All this sudden interest in reuniting natural parents with the children they gave up makes me very uneasy. You see, I gave up a child for adoption years ago, and I do not want to be "reunited."

Even you are advertising ALMA — an agency that "matches" adopted children with their natural parents. Why?

Is there any way I can be sure it will never happen to me? The fewer people who know about my past, the better. Thanks.

A NEW LIFE

DEAR NEW: There is no way that you can be absolutely sure that the child you gave up for adoption will never find you. But be assured that the only agencies I recommend are those that reunite parents and children only if all parties are agreeable.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Lately I have become very self-destructive in my sleep. Kicking the walls has gone on for quite some time, but just recently I woke up with a black eye, a bruised jaw and a swollen lip! I was really embarrassed to go to work looking so beat up. When I explained that I did this to myself in my sleep, nobody believed me.

My dad keeps teasing me about getting a straitjacket.

I am a 20-year-old non-violent Christian, if that helps. Any ideas?

NIGHTTIME BOXER

DEAR BOXER: Better see a psychologist about all that pent-up violent behavior you suppress during your waking hours but vent in your unconscious state. In the meantime, "save face" and provide yourself with some kind of restraints.

DEAR ABBY: What's the best way to get a guy? I've talked to a lot of people and they all give me different answers.

One of my friends says I should act like I don't have any special interest in him. Play hard to get because guys like a challenge. Somebody else says to play up to him, flirt a little and tease a lot and make him think there is something in it for him whether there is or not. (Couldn't that be dangerous? I'm a "good" girl and want to stay that way until I'm at least 21.)

I've never had a boyfriend, but I would like to have one. I'm 14 and the guy I want for my boyfriend is the same age. Answer soon before somebody else gets him.

NEEDS A BOYFRIEND

DEAR NEEDS: Don't play games. Be yourself. And forget the flirting and teasing. It could prove hazardous to your health.

Everybody needs friends. For some practical tips on how to be popular, get Abby's Popularity booklet. Send $1 plus a long, self-addressed stamped (37 cents) envelope to Abby, Popularity, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

Bridal Policy

A black and white glossy five by seven photograph is requested for engagement announcements. For publication in a Sunday edition, the information must be submitted by 12 noon on the preceding Wednesday. Engagement pictures must be released at least three weeks prior to the wedding date. After three weeks, only an announcement will be printed.

Wedding write-ups will be printed through the first week with a five by seven picture. During the second week with a wallet size picture and write-up giving less description and after the second week, just as an announcement. Wedding forms and pictures should be returned to "The Daily Reflector" one week prior to the date of the wedding. All information should be typed or written neatly.

Use a sponge to paint a wire fence. Less paint and time will be wasted.

Americans apparently don't feel like starting off the year by getting married, says the American Council of Life Insurance. Or by getting divorced, either. Statistics show that in recent years January has seen the least number of marriages in the United States — and also the least number of divorces.

'Head Shops' Restricted

A fair number of North Carolina communities enacted restrictions on the sale of drug paraphernalia and curbs on the so-called "head shops", as did some 30 states and several hundred other communities.

We can well imagine a number of city and town officials who have been watching the course of "head shop" ordinances tested in the courts are breathing a bit easier after the Supreme Court's ruling that found an Illinois village ordinance was constitutional.

What the justices did, however, was to restrict their opinion to the legality of an ordinance enacted by the village of Hoffman Estates, in Illinois. Within the limits of that community's ordinance, such restraints were found valid.

It would be surprising if a large number of local governments heretofore uncertain as to their prerogatives, did not follow the Hoffman Estates model to act against the drug sub-culture's flagrant displays and inducements to "try" tasting the forbidden fruit.

Briefly, the Hoffman Estates law requires a license to sell items "designed or marketed for use with" illegal drugs such as marijuana or cocaine. Sales to minors are barred and stores are required to keep a log of purchasers' names. A "head shop" subject to its restrictions must also file affidavits that the license and its employees have not been convicted of a drug-related offense. Violations are punishable by a fine of up to $500.

Under such conditions, the open sale of drug paraphernalia cannot thrive; its only recourse is the underground and the greater risks that entails.

Dr. Friday's Advice Is Sound

Dr. William C. Friday, president of the University of North Carolina System, made sense when he told a House subcommittee that Congress should consider building less B-1 bombers and use the money to reduce cuts in the student loan programs.

Dr. Friday said if 95 bombers were built instead of 100 the $1 billion saved could keep the student loan program afloat.

If there have been abuses of the student loan program it should not be forgotten that many students have made it through college with the loans. Some who are contributing greatly to our country would not have finished college otherwise.

It is acknowleged that cuts must be made in federal spending, but let's keep our perspective as we relate defense spending to programs such as the student loan fund which can benefit the nation in the decades ahead.

THIS AFTERNOON

The 'Who' Counts

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — It isn't always the issue which determines the outcome in North Carolina's General Assembly. Often the final vote of the honorables has more to do with who is backing the issue than with what the proposal would accomplish.

Such an instance has been graphically recalled by Louise P. Morgan who took a turn as "lay lobbyist" for a proposal under legislative consideration last year.

Mrs. Morgan is founder and president of the Burke County Property Owners and Taxpayers Association, a group which was formed to seek changes in the method of valuing property tax purposes, and to monitor the local property tax scene.

One of the primary goals of the association, which has affiliates in a number of other counties, is enactment of Initiative and Referendum in North Carolina.

Nervous

Nothing makes certain powerful leaders of the General Assembly more nervous than the very notion that people might actually gain a measure of control over what the lawmakers are doing. A demonstration of that attitude can be seen in the tough road which Initiative and Referendum faces in this state.

Simply put, the method would a allow a certain percentage of the voters to present a petition calling for enactment of certain laws. If a majority of those taking part in a statewide refendum agreed, the matter would become law. A number of states have such systems.

The proposal met defeat by one vote on final reading in the North Carolina Senate after surviving an earlier reading by just one vote. Actually the proposal was much further away from endorsement than that slim margin would make it seem. Much amended, the proposal was already cosiderably weakened. Also, the leadership of both chambers had not pulled out the heavy ammunition to shoot the measure down since the enactment was not a threat to them. Otherwise the defeat would have been considerably more one-sided.

But during the process, Mrs. Morgan discovered some interesting things about the General Assembly, citizens and powerful paid lobbyists. In short, she learned how things usually work. Her thoughts on that subject were reported in the current issue of the North Carolina Consumer Council Newsletter.

Mrs. Morgan went to Raleigh to push the initiative proposal "convinced that I would be talking with legislators who have the welfare of the citizens at heart; that the majority of them were spending their time and energies and skills in trying to find ways to improve the lot of the people who elected them.

Promises

"This was the theme of their campaign promises," she recalls.

Novice Judge Acie Ward injured the concept of swift, sure punishment for attacks on law officers when she suspended sentences for three men who attacked and beat and tried to get the gun of a highway patrolman.

Judge Ward's action may have two good consequences, all the same. It may teach Governor Hunt and those who advise him that there is sound reason to make courtroom experience a must when filling even lower-court bench seats.

And the stunned response of Highway Patrol people and some attorneys may teach Judge Ward herself, who reportedly has not done much in her month on the job to establish a reputation for toughness, that this ingredient is a vital part of the judicial mix.

Hunt plucked Ms.Ward from a briefly held assistant deanship at N.C. Central University's law school to become Wake's first woman judge. Before that she had worked only in the Attorney General's office in consumer protection, after qualifying to practice law in 1975.

That is useful experience. But the case of the assault on Trooper Allan Gatrell shows it is a poor substitute for having been on the legal firing line as prosecutor or defense attorney.

Possessed of such experience, we serously doubt Judge Ward would have gone so lightly on the defendants, a father and two sons, after a struggle over Gatrell's gun following his arrest of one son for driving with a revoked license.

Either Gatrell or one or more defendant could easily have been killed, in which case the matter wouldn't have come to District Court.

As it is, having gotten off with one $25 fine and court costs, these defendants are encouraged to think it is okay to battle an officer who is trying to do his duty. So, unfortunately, are other people who hear about it. We can think of no worse idea to spread abroad.

District Court is a busy and informal place, with no records of testimony. Though other lawyers present say the prosecution evidence for Gatrell's side, was convincing, Judge Ward says she does not recall all the details. But it is recorded that on the same day, she handed out a higher fine for speeding — $50 plus costs and a suspended sentence — than for the assault on Trooper Gatrell.

Strength For Today

FAMILIAR SOUND

We have often heard the statement, "Money talks." And it often says a great deal about the character of the person who has it.

In the hands of a wastrel it shouts "Come and get me," as it is poured out in nightclubs, casinos and racetracks. Its voice testifies to the folly of the spender.

A miser's money can scarecely be heard. Its muffled voice is whispered testimony to the futility of hoarding what might be used for good purposes. The money used by a ruthless profiteer speaks of heartless cruelty and ruined lives.

But money speaks well of people, too. For example, the money spent by parents for their children's education tells of foresignt, careful planning, and love. Money donated to church or given wisely to charity proclaims a generous, sympathetic, and responsible donor.

So as money talks, what does it say about each one of us? — Elisha Douglas

Shed A Tear For OPEC

Unlike many I do not rejoice in the misfortune of others. Therefore I imagine I'm one of the few people in America whose heart goes out to the OPEC countries, because there is now a worldwide oil glut. This has forced many of these nations to cut their prices, some to as little as $30 a barrel.

Not only is the glut cutting into the billion-dollars-a-d ay income of these struggling nations, but it is causing discord between the OPEC countries, each of whom feels the other is driving down the price by selling too much on the marketplace. This major tragedy is being played out behind closed doors by OPEC representatives, a once happy fraternity of men, who in the good years had pledged lifelong fidelity vowing to stick together through thick and thin oil — whichever they produced.

But alas, the organization's members are now bitterly accusing each other of treachery, and eternal friendships spawned by untold prosperity have been split asunder.

ART BUCHWALD

The last meeting of the group went something like this:

The minister from Nigeria, "I wish to announce that the pigs from Iran have lowered the price of oil $1 below the price we all agreed upon at our last meeting."

The Iranian representative, "We had to cut the price to finance our war with the infidels of Iraq. And we will keep lowering it until we destroy every Iraqi who put his foot on Holy Iranian soil."

"Then we will cut our price until we drag the Ayatollah Khomeini's body through the streets of Baghdad," the Iraqi representative said.

The Venezuelan representaive said, "What's happened to the OPEC spirit of all for one and one for all?"

The Libyan man said, "Curses on the OPEC spirit.

If you want to know who is the villain in this drama, look no further than down the table to the Zionist-loving oil minister of Saudi Arabia, whose pumps are working day and night to supply the Western colonial powers with enough fuel to put all of us in the poor house."

The minister from Saudi Arabia spat on the table. "That's my answer to Libya. At least we have not used our royalties to overthrow every non-Communist country in the Arab world. We will not be bound by pressure from Marxist members who talk tough, but are underselling us in spot markets all over the world."

The Kuwaiti representative said, "This political infighting is hurting the little OPEC nations. Because of the oil glut, we will not be able to add much to our $70 billion in foreign holdings this year, and may even be forced to cut back on spending. We can't go on this way and maintain the lifestyle we are accustomed to."

The man from Qatar echoed the Kuwaiti's sentiments. "Since the oil glut we've had to cancel four palaces, and make do with three used 747s for our sheiks. They are getting very restless and want to pull out of OPEC if their allowances are cut."

The Algerian minister said, "My country cannot continue its war against Morocccо if the price of oil goes down two more dollars a barrel."

"The only solution," said the representative from Equador," is for Saudi Arabia to stop drilling, so the glut will dry up."

The minister from Saudi Arabia overturned the table

Nectar Amid Press Kits

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent

ONITSHA, Nigeria (AP) — The prevailing orthodoxy among pilgrims of the press seeking truth in strange lands is to shun the apocrypha found in the official press kits and to avoid government handouts with cries of "unclean."

I must confess to creeping close to apostasy here.

I often find the press releases prepared by nameless drone hacks in the honeycombs of bureaucracy dripping with juicy nectar.

How else would one learn that in the cool of the evening of the Nigeria city of Onitsha, once the capital of the breakaway Republic of Biafra, people "stroll to the fine bridge over the River Niger to rid themselves of boredom..."?

In Enugu, another town in eastern Nigeria, the press kit informs "there are a number of love gardens where people can relax at weekends playing and reducing tension."

One honors one's mother in these parts by giving her a horse. "This could be performed after the mother is dead," as we are told by the same anonymous flack, "but the honor would be for the children alone. If done in the mother's lifetime, she shares in the honor."

If father is given a horse, on Father's Day or his birthday, "he gives more love to his children too; above all he will no longer take any meal without meat." The author is a bit vague above whether the last phrase means the gift horse will eventually end up in the mouth.

Enugu, we are told ,"is a quiet city. There are few nightclubs. There are few parties. People go to bed early. Although the city has a highly enlightened population, people here are rather conservative toward the soft life. Parents are against their daughters keeping dates. They are particularly adverse to young love. It is with greatest difficulty therefore that a girl will allow her boyfriend to get to know her parents."

But love appparently manages to bloom in the love parks of this Philadelphia on the Niger and trial marriages are commonplace. "In Enugu," the government press agent goes on, "men are still required to perform all the marriage rites before finally taking others' daughters home as wives. Young girls could still be kept at the fattening rooms immediately after the marriage feast till they become pregnant." Anyhow, it beats Weight Watchers.

We arrived in Enugu near midnight on the plane from Lagos with the papal press entourage and a busload of bishops. The bar in the Hotel President was closed and the water in all the rooms had been shut off for the night. The press kit provided some clues:

"Night visitors are not easily welcomed and those who are welcomed should not expect entertainment. This is because the host would most always tell the visitor that 'anyasi ewergo oji.'

Translated from the Ibo language, "this means in English that entertainment items have been exhausted. This is the way of telling the visitor that his visit should have been in the day."

When the water came on at 5 a.m., We got the message.

"Among the Abakaliki," another colorful pamphlet included in the press kit tells us, "so much importance is attached to marriage that it is difficult to find an unmarried woman, and no man or woman is regarded as grown up unless married. Furthermore, it is an abomination for an adult to die without a child, but if such happens the person is buried unceremoniously outside his compound.

On the other hand, a deceased person with children is buried inside the compound with full funeral ceremonies."

And, in an area that the missionaries regard as 65 per cent Catholic, the same flack relates that "except for a few practicing Chrisitans, polygamy is the order of the day. The number of wives a man has is an index of his status in the community."

A sort of rough justice seems to prevail in the Anambra State, one of three new states cut out from what once was Biafra. "As a matter of justice," a government handout tells us, "every man is his own judge. Our police therefore should not be surprised when a murderer turns up at the Abakilik Police Station with a bloody matchete to declare: 'Mgburu mmadu' (I've just killed a man). He expects to be exonerated because he had only meted out justice promptly and swiftly according to his own right." Anyhow, it cuts down the backlog in the courts.

One learns from a press release in the Oyo State in western Nigeria that the "Oyo Yoruba. They effect by diplomacy what they cannot accomplish by force."

"The Ijesas, " on the other hand, "have unpretentious manners and are less diplomatic than the Oyo Yoruba." The author, however, seems to favor the just plain Oyos: "They are virtuous, loving and kind. They are sincere in their friendships. Their children are dutiful to parents, and inferiors respectful to their superiors in age or position."

Without a press kit, one would be at a loss to distinguish an Oyo from an Oyo Yoruba or an Ife, an Ijesha, an Ibadan or an Ibarapas. Even with one, it is not so easy.

"The Ijeshas," we are told, "have no distinting (sic) facial marks but most are plain faced. Many families, however, are distinguished by having on each cheek five or six horizontal lines which are closely drawn and are much longer than Oyo marks. The Ife facial marks are three horizontal lines on each cheek."

Patient Is Bound To Its Bed

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — While the White House waits for its tax cuts to entice the sickly private sector into taking a few steps toward the future, the economy's own taxing mechanism has bound the patient to the bed.

At best it's a stalemate. Tax cuts manage to put a few more cents into private pockets, giving rise to thoughts of expansion. Interest rates, one of nature's taxes, quickly and almost totally deflate those plans.

As a result, business investment and consumer spending lag. Sales of houses, cars, farm equipment and recreation are dismally low. Hundreds of lenders are in trouble. And consumers and producers alike worry that huge federal government deficits mean continued high interest rates.

That's just one view of the economy, but it's a growing one, much to the disappointment of the Reagan administration, which continues to believe that spending and tax cuts will put the patient on his feet.

Reagan's optimism is countered regularly now by those who consider themselves his supporters. So pervasive have the frowns become that in some groups you might think the president is the only smiling American.

"If anyone thinks tax reductions will turn the country around they are wrong. Interest rates are too high," says William O'Connell, president of the U.S. League of Savings Associations. In many respects, though, members still feel a philosophical kinship with the president.

So does Julio S. Laguarta, president of the National Association of Realtors. The Realtors, says Laguarta, give strong support to many Reagan policies, but they denounce the size of the budget deficit and the high interest rates they say are a direct result of the deficit.

Both men and their organizations are in housing, and that industry, of course, has been badly damaged by high interest rates. Why shouldn't they be upset? But their views are also shared by executives in other industries, and underscored by the reluctance of business to invest.

Lenders too are said to be showing their disapproval, most visibly in the firm of an inflation premium in the rates they charge. Interest rates historically have been about 3 percent above the inflation rate. Now they are double that, representing it is said a fear on the part of lenders that the Reagan program will fail, leading to more inflation.

Interest rates of themselves do not necessarily preclude investment, Chase Manhattan Bank observes. "If demand conditions are such that a firm's expected rate of return exceeds the interest rate, then the investment will still take place." But that situation doesn't exist.

In the past two years, it continues, "the rise has been large enough that interest rates now substantially exceed the rates of return of investment that can now be earned in many industries." Why invest?

The administration is counting on greater savings and a continued reduction in the rate of inflation to offset the interest rates, but the literature of business and the comments of executives suggest the private production sector gives little credence to that view.

The savings rate has indeed risen, and sharply. From a low of 4.6 percent during last year it ranged between 5.6 percent and 6.1 percent in the final quarter. In January, personal savings were made at an annual rate of $116 billion, against $84 billion a year earlier.

Impressive, but not enough, says Edward Yardeni, chief economist of E.F. Hutton, the securities firm, and one of the first well-known business economists to dare mention the possibilty of depression.

A rise in the savings rate to 7 percent from 6 percent at the current income levels would increase personal savings by $20 billion a year. "Not much compared to the projected requirements of the U.S. Treasury," says Yardeni. And not much compared with a $100 billion deficit.

Buchwald Col. ...

and stomped out, leaving all the OPEC plans for a united front in disarray.

Now some people, who have suffered at the hands of OPEC, are clapping their hands that the members are now at each other's throats. But there are those of us who weep when we see an oil-producing country have to lower its prices to keep itself afloat. Call us bleeding hearts if you will, but OPEC has been good to us, and now that they are in financial straits we must do unto them what they have done unto us.

As a wise man from the Exxon Company once told me, "It's a crude, crude world."

Facts About The BIBLE

BY JOHN LEHTI

SALOME: ONE OF THE BIBLE'S DRAMATIC CHARACTERS, HAS INSPIRED STORIES, PLAYS, BOOKS, OPERAS, AND MORE THAN ONE MOVIE! NUMBERS OF ARTISTS HAVE PAINTED THIS SEDUCTIVE, DESTRUCTIVE YOUNG WOMAN WHOSE DANCE SO ENRAPTURED KING HEROD THAT HE VOWED, "ASK OF ME WHATSOEVER THOU WILT, AND I WILL GIVE IT THEE." THAT RASH PROMISE COST JOHN THE BAPTIST HIS HEAD WHICH SALOME DEMANDED—AND GOT—ON A PLATTER! BUT....

ALEXANDRE REGNAULT'S PAINTING - SALOME
METROPOLITAN MUSEUM OF ART, NEW YORK

NO ONE KNOWS IF HER NAME WAS SALOME—IN FACT, SHE HAD NO NAME AT ALL! IN THE TWICE-TOLD TALE (MATT. 14:6 FF, MARK 6:22 FF) SHE IS NEVER CALLED ANYTHING EXCEPT "THE GIRL" OR "THE DAUGHTER OF HERODIAS". THE NAME SALOME APPEARS BUT TWICE IN THE BIBLE (MARK 15:40, 16:1) AND DESCRIBES ONE OF THE WOMEN WHO, ALONG WITH MARY MAGDALENE AND MARY MOTHER OF JESUS, WEPT AT THE CRUCIFIXION—HARDLY THE KIND OF WOMAN WHO WOULD DO A SALACIOUS DANCE BEFORE HER STEP-FATHER!

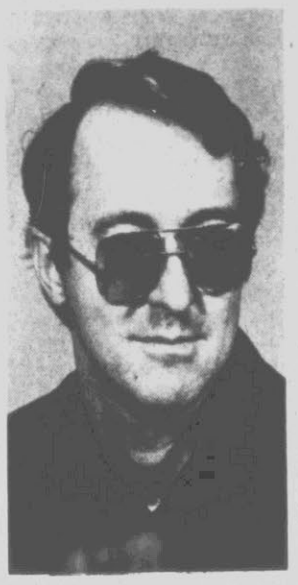
Recognized For His Applying First Aid



RON PRIDGEN

Pridgen, a volunteer ructor here, was the board of the Pitt County Red Cross this week "for using a first aid technique in a life-threatening situation and aiding another individual."

Red Cross board chairman Liz White said that Pridgen, while dining at a local restaurant on Dec. 23, assisted a lady who was choking on what was thought to be food. The lady stood and struggled to clear her airway, Ms. White said, and Pridgen intervened after other efforts were unsuccessful. Pridgen, using a technique he teaches as an instructor, successfully relieved the obstruction.

"We would like to recognize Ron for his humanitarian efforts as well as the reflection he makes as a true ambassador of the Red Cross," Ms. White said.

Pridgen, a safety technician at East Carolina University, became a volunteer instructor in CPR in 1980. Since that time he has taught 29 first aid and CPR classes for the Red Cross.

Ms. White commented, "Recognizing a choking individual and the sequence for relieving the obstruction and clearing the airway is a fairly simple task to learn taking a short amount of time. It is included in all of the Red Cross first aid and CPR classes."

Anyone interested in a course or arranging for a lecture/demonstration should contact the Red Cross office, 752-4222, she suggested.

THE END OF YOUR SEARCH FOR A FRIENDLY CHURCH

"I JUST STARTED GOING TO CHURCH."

241

When I was a child my parents took me to church. But after I left home, I got out of the habit. I didn't seem to have the "time". Then one day it dawned on me how much I missed church. I missed the friendship. And maybe, most of all, I missed the opportunity to learn about having faith in God.

I used the excuse that I didn't have time, or wasn't good enough to attend church. But there are so many good churches to pick from here in North Carolina

... I started attending a Baptist church and found people who don't claim to be perfect, but are friendly and care about me and my family.

Now, I have a faith in Jesus Christ and a place to worship. Times are difficult, but my church helps me find strength to get through each week.

Baptist churches throughout North Carolina are conducting special services during this time.

They want to get acquainted with people who want to go back to church. They will be looking for you. Visit during the HERE'S HOPE services.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stocks turned mixed today in an effort to stem a three-day retreat. Trading was heavy.

Paper and oil-service issues continued to lose ground, but many oil and steel stocks moved higher.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which fell 7.61 Thursday to a 22-month low, edged up 2.38 to 809.93 after two hours of trading today. The transportation index was lower and the utility measure was unchanged.

Declines had led advances 2 to 1 on the New York Stock Exchange early in the session, but the gap narrowed to 6 to 5.

Big Board turnover was 28.4 million at noon EST, compared with 31.55 million at that hour Thursday, when total volume hit 74.34 million shares, the fourth-largest total on record at the exchange.

Stocks are under heavy pressure from continued investor concern about the weak economy, analysts say. That concern was reinforced again today when the Labor Department said unemployment in February rose to 8.8 percent from 8.5 percent in January and 8.8 percent in December.

But after the steep slide of the previous three sessions, investors might peg the market as nearing the bottom of its decline and judge many stocks as being oversold, analysts reason.

General Motors rose 1 to 40¾ on the NYSE, while General Foods climbed ⅞ to 33. But Data General skidded 4⅜ to 29⅜, Schlumberger fell ¼ to 42¾ and Haliburton was off ¾ to 34¼.

Baker International, up ¼ to 26½, said today it planned to buy up to 1.5 million shares of its common.

The NYSE composite index was up 0.06 to 63.56.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index fell 1.89 to 253.93.

Drug Arrest

Perry Cullen Hardison, 24, of Hampton, Va., was jailed Thursday night under a $150,750 bond following his arrest on charges of possession of cocaine, methaqualone and hashish, Chief Glenn Cannon reported this morning.

Cannon said Hardison was taken into custody in a night club on Fourth Street after running from officers. A second man involved in the 9:40 p.m. incident in a parking lot at the intersection of Fourth and Evans streets escaped, the chief noted.

Cannon said officers saw Hardison and a second man in a parked car, allegedly with a bag of cocaine. When the officers attempted to arrest the two, a scuffle resulted, and the two men fled.

After Hardison was taken into custody, officers found a quantity of methaqualone and hashish in the vehicle, as well as cocaine and $660 in cash.

Big Satellite Is Launched

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The world's largest communications satellite, the two-ton Intelsat V-D, is in orbit following a successful but delayed blastoff.

The satellite lifted off at 7:23 p.m. EST Thursday, atop an Atlas Centaur rocket. The launch was 53 minutes late because of a problem in the ground support system, said Ann Skinner, spokeswoman for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

The satellite was put into elliptical orbit following its launch and "will be put into its permanent orbit Sunday," said Ms. Skinner.

Owned by 106 nations, the worldwide Intelsat system handles two-thirds of all overseas telecommunications. The new spacecraft will serve Europe, the Middle East and the Far East from a "geosynchronous orbit" position 22,300 miles over the Indian Ocean.

It will enter service May 1, said spokesman Allan McCaskill.

The consortium will pay NASA $40 million for launch of the satellite, which it bought for $35 million from Ford Aerospace Corp. of Palo Alto, Calif.

While NASA has thus far been the exclusive launch agency for Intelsat, McCaskill said the group will launch a satellite later this year through the European Space Agency and has plans for at least four more launches through ESA.

Early Help For Tonga

SUVA, Fiji (AP) — The Reagan administration promised quick aid to cyclone-battered Tong in the South Pacific, the U.S. Embassy here announced today.

Embassy official Robert Craig will leave here for Tonga on the first available plane to assess the needs of the local population, an embassy spokesman said.

Tongan King Ahau Tupou IV said today the cyclone that struck the South Pacific island chain Wednesday killed "several dozen people."

He said the capital, Nuku'ulofa, on the island of Tongatapu took the full force of the storm.

Tonga's 90,000 citizens live on 45 of the 171 islands in the archipelago 1,200 miles east of Australia. The king said the cyclone "damaged a lot of agricultural crops" on all three of the main populated islands.

An Australian Foreign Ministry spokesman in Canberra said Tonga will be dependent on outside food supplies for the next three to six months as a result of the crop damage.

He said five Australian C-130 transport planes had begun airlifting relief workers and emergency supplies to the Tongans. Cargo included food, generators, water purifiers, tents and blankets, he said.

Just one year ago today, from this earth you passed away
We loved you so much but God loved you best.
So he took you to that eternal home

Many happy years of pleasant memories we shared
To love and remember them is such a precious sight
There are many lonely days and long dreary nights
But we know the Lord doth all things right
We know you are with our Lord in peace
And your suffering days have passed
We are waiting the day when we shall meet again
To be together finally at last

Spiders Slip By ECU In ECAC Opener

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

NORFOLK, Va. — Just as it had so many times during the regular season, the foul line proved to be the villian as the University of Richmond, second-seeded in the ECAC-South Tournament, slipped past East Carolina's number seven Pirates, 49-42, last night.

Both teams finished the night with 16 field goals — Richmond not scoring from the field in the final six minutes. But the Spiders enjoyed a 17 for 22 night at the line as compared to only 10 of 17 for the Pirates.

East Carolina's game plan — to keep Richmond out of its zone defense — worked well. But the Pirates were unable to score of several opportunities when good shots bounced harmlessly away and usually into the hands of a Spider.

Richmond held a 22-19 rebounding edge in the game.

Despite the score, it was not intended to be a slow-down affair — it just seemed that way.

"I really didn't think that they would hold the ball as much or as long as they did," Richmond coach Dick Tarrant said afterwards.

"We did not come in with the intention of holding the ball," Pirate coach Dave Odom said. "The last two games (against Richmond and William & Mary during the final week of the regular season) were just comedies of errors. We changed our offense and were set on not playing against a zone defense."

And for the most part, the strategy worked. Only late in the game, after the Spiders pulled out into a comfortable lead, did they sit back in their zone.

Tarrant, who said that if he had been a fan, he would probabaly have wanted his money back, added that you do what you have to to win within the rules of the game. "As long as it is within the rules, you have to live with it. They did a marvelous job of keeping the ball out of (John) Schweitz's hands and making us play defense.

"And I just couldn't see us sitting back in the zone even after we had a slim lead. I didn't like the mood or tone of just laying back."

Early on, the Pirate offense, put in for the tournament, worked well, getting men free under the boards, mainly Morris Hargrove, who scored the first seven points for ECU. Those points, along with a slam-dunk by Charles Green and two baskets by Michael Gibson staked the Pirates to an early 13-7 lead.

But Richmond fought back with their front-court men, sparked by a three-point play by Jeff Pehl. Finally Schweitz hit for a 14-13 lead.

Green added three points to return the lead to the Pirates, 16-14, but Pehl tied it up once more and Schweitz hit from the baseline to put the Spiders up for the rest of the half. Bill Flye added another bucket for a 20-16 lead before the Pirates scored again.

East Carolina rallied, however, to pull back within two, 22-20 on a jumper by Hargrove just before the half ended.

The Pirates did manage to tie it up twice more, the last time at 26-26 with 18:14 left, before Pehl again struck to return the lead to the Spiders for good.

With the Pirates down by two, 32-30, a couple of key turnovers hurt the Bucs, and Richmond turned that into two free throws by Tom Bethea, a dunk by Pehl and two more free throws by Flye for a 38-30 lead with 8:06 remaining.

Hargrove and Tony Byles both hit baskets, but both also missed on free throw attempts that could have pulled the Pirates back within one, and Schweitz hit the final Richmond field goal with 6:09 left for a 40-34 lead.

Even after that, the Pirates again closed within four, and Richmond missed on two straight free throw trips to give the Pirates several more shots. But turnovers gave it back to the Spiders, and Bethea hit on four free throws and Pehl, one, to run the lead out to nine, 45-36. The Pirates never recoved from that.

Pehl led the Spider scoring with 13, while Bethea added 12 and Schweitz had ten.

ECU was led by Hargrove with 14 and Green with 13.

"There's a lot I'd like to say but shouldn't say and won't," Odom said afterwards. "For the first time in some time we played dedicated to our game plan, and we carried it out ot the best of our abilities.

"But for a couple of turning points, none of which we could

N. Pitt Draws S. Durham As Regional Foe

WILSON — District II champion North Pitt will play top-ranked Southern Durham Friday night in the opening round of the Eastern Regionals at Wilson Beddingfield.

The Panthers, 21-7, were paired with District II champ Southern Durham, 25-1, in a drawing held Thursday around noon. North Pitt will play the Spartans next Friday night at 8:30.

The first game of the regionals, set for 7 p.m., will pit District I winner Warren County against District IV champ Bartlett-Yancey.

The winners Friday will meet Saturday at 8:30 p.m. for the regional title and the right to advance to the state finals.

Southern Durham, whose only loss this season was to 4-A Kinston in overtime, won the District III title with a 73-64 victory over East Bladen. The Spartans are led by perhaps the best player in the state, Curtis Hunter.

Southern Durham won the Triangle 3-A conference with a 16-0 mark.

North Pitt was co-Eastern Carolina Conference champs with Greene Central, but won the conference tournament and then captured the district championship with a 37-25 win over D.H. Conley.

29th ACC Tourney Starts Today

By TOM FOREMAN Jr.
AP Sports Writer

GREENSBORO — Five of the eight Atlantic Coast Conference basketball members arrived in Greensboro Thursday, holding brief workouts before the 29th annual league tournament begins Friday.

Top-ranked North Carolina, which drew the tournament's No. 1 seed after it tied Virginia for the regular-season title, faces eighth-seeded Georgia Tech in the tourney opener, set for noon.

The Yellow Jackets practiced for an hour in the Greensboro Coliseum while the Tar Heels, just an hour's drive away from the tournament site, remained in Chapel Hill.

North Carolina is expected to have all of its players ready for action, something a Dean Smith-coached team has rarely experienced in recent memory. Freshman Michael Jordan, who was suffering from an abcess on a tonsil, was released from the UNC infirmary Thursday and watched his teammates work out. He will likely play against the Yellow Jackets.

Georgia Tech, which at 10-15 had one of its best seasons in recent years, placed senior guard Brook Steppe on the all-conference second team. Steppe felt he should have joined the first team.

"I feel like I'm one of the five best players in the conference," Steppe said. "Taking nothing away from (Virginia guard) Othell Wilson, but I felt like I should have been there."

Steppe also discounted the notion that his team's record, which included a 3-11 conference mark, had anything to do with his position.

"If you go by that, Vince Taylor shouldn't have been on the team, either," Steppe said.

Wilson and Taylor joined Tar Heels James Worthy and Sam Perkins and Cavalier Ralph Sampson on the first squad, chosen by the Atlantic Coast Sports Writers Association. Steppe finished sixth in the balloting, pushing him back to the second team.

Maryland, which upset the then-top-ranked Cavaliers last weekend, also held a one-hour workout. The Terrapins, seeded fifth and headed for a showdown with North Carolina State, will look to freshman Adrian Branch for much of its scoring punch. It was Branch's last-second jumper which enabled Maryland to down Virginia, 47-46 in overtime.

"They're probably the toughest team we've played against," Branch said of the Wolfpack, which defeated the Terrapins twice during the regular season. "We have to play the way we did against Virginia and that was play out of our minds."

Maryland reached the tournament championship game last season, but dropped a 61-60 heartbreaker to the Tar Heels.

N.C. State, seeded fourth, also remained at home for a last day of practice.

Wake Forest, which meets Duke in the first-round finale at 9 p.m., is in search of an NCAA post-season bid. Coach Carl Tacy said his team's performance prior to the tournament should help them gain a berth in the 48-team field.

"Our schedule has been strong enough. That should qualify us as one of the 48 teams," he said.

Clemson, seeded seventh, meets the Cavaliers in a 7 p.m. start and coach Bill Foster said he hopes he'll be able to repeat Maryland's feat of almost one week ago.

"You're going to play a guy and a half on Sampson," Foster said.

ECU Nine Rallies To Win Opener

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer

The 1982 East Carolina baseball season got off to an inauspicious first two innings, but the Pirate nine turned a potentially embarrassing loss into an pulsating win Thursday.

The Pirates commenced their 50th year of baseball yesterday by committing three errors in the first inning and falling behind Virginia Wesleyan, 5-0, after two innings.

But, ECU rallied not once but twice to tie the game before going ahead for good in the sixth with two runs as the Pirates went on to record a 10-8 win over the Marlins at Harrington Field.

"I'm very proud of the fact the kids battled back from five runs down," ECU coach Hal Baird said. "Our defense was not as sharp I would have liked it to be, but I'm very happy with our offensive production."

The Pirates finished the three-hour contest with 10 hits, including two home runs and a double. All 10 hits came against Virginia Wesleyan's top pitcher, Earl Mobley.

Mobley, a senior, played two years at ECU before transferring to Virginia Wesleyan at the end of 1979 — the same year Baird moved from an assistant to head coach at ECU.

"I coached him for two years. I felt like we'd be able to guess with him," Baird said. "I'm happy with the way we hit him. We didn't get any cheap ones against him."

Mobley (0-1) went the distance yesterday, striking out two and walking six in eight innings.

Down by five early, ECU tagged Mobley for three runs in the second and two in the third and fourth to go up 7-5. The Marlins, however, rallied to regain the lead with two runs in the fifth and a run in the sixth and led, 8-7, going into the bottom of the sixth.

ECU catcher Jay Carraway walked to lead off the last of the sixth and Chuck Bishop came in to run for Carraway. Bishop went to second on Robert Wells' sacrifice bunt and scored when freshman leftfielder Ricky Nichols tripled to deep center.

John Hallow then ripped a single to score Nichols and the Pirates led, 9-8, and were on their way to a season-opening victory — with a little help from freshman right-hander Bob Davidson.

Davidson, the third ECU pitcher, put on an impressive show in the final three innings. A 5-11, 180-pounder from Fort Bragg, Davidson gave up just one hit in his three innings of work and earned a save in his first appearance in an ECU uniform.

"He's going to be a very fine pitcher," Baird said of Davidson. "He's very mature for a freshman. He's a good student and he's been able to advance faster than most."

Another freshman, Brian Peterson, started for the Pirates but lasted only 1⅓ innings before being relieved by right-hander Kirk Parsons. Peterson gave up five hits and five runs (three earned).

Parsons, 5-3 a year ago with a 3.39 earned run average, hurled 4⅔ innings before Davidson came on. Parsons, a junior, allowed six hits and three runs (two earned) and got the win.

"We tried to hold down the number of pitches they threw today," Baird said. "Brian was very, very nervous. This was the first college game he's ever seen and he was trying to overthrow at times."

It didn't help any that three errors were made behind him in the first inning, three of five errors ECU made yesterday. Both second baseman Todd Hendley and shortstop Mike Sorrell made two. Hendley and Sorrell's errors came while both were playing out of their usual starting positions.

Sorrell usually plays second, but was forced to play shortstop because Kelly Robinette was out with a sprained ankle. Robinette did, however, come on to play in the last three innings.

"We wanted to give him another day of rest," Baird said. "But when we got into the middle innings I felt like we needed to shore up our defense."

With Sorrell at shortstop, Hendley was moved from second to third base, where he normally plays. Both of Hendley's errors came in the first — including one to start the game.

Troy Startoni led off the cloudy, overcast afternoon by reaching base on Hendley's first error. Startoni went to second when Rob Fallon followed with a single. After a fly out, John Abbate reached based on another error by Hendley. Jerry Orbatiz followed with a single to score Startoni.

Abbate was later forced at

GCA Downs Wilmington In OT To Advance To Semifinals

WALKERTOWN, N.C. — David Hollingsworth's jump shot with 15 seconds left in overtime helped lift Greenville Christian to a 66-63 win over Wilmington Christian Thursday night in the first round of the North Carolina Christian School state tournament.

The Knights trailed, 63-62, with about a minute left in overtime when they stole the ball and Hollingsworth hit his jump shot to put the Knights up, 64-63.

A last-second shot by Wilmington missed and on the rebound John Parnell was fouled at buzzer. Parnell hit both free throws for the final three-point margin.

GCA, now 21-1, will play second-seeded Kerwin Christian of Kernersville tonight's second round. Kerwin is 20-2.

The Knights hit 22 of 34 shots from the foul line compared to Wilmington's three of seven. Parnell connected on 13 of 17 and led all scorers with 23 points.

"We normally hit 70 percent from the foul line and had we done that last night we probably wouldn't have gone into overtime," GCA coach Dale Thatcher said. "I think we had the state (tournament) jitters.

"But, Wilmington played a super game," he added. "We Expectations Too Much For Deacons?

By TOM FOREMAN Jr.
AP Sports Writer

GREENSBORO — There was a heap of expectations to accompany the Wake Forest basketball team at the start of the season. Maybe there were too many.

The Demon Deacons were in The Associated Press pre-season Top 20, but that ranking lasted just one game when Richmond knocked them off.

Then there's the story of the four seniors who were supposed to lead Wake Forest back into post-season competition. Guy Morgan, Jim Johnstone, Alvis Rogers and Mike Helms. Had all of them remained in the starting lineup for the entire season, the Demon Deacons might well have justified their ranking without argument.

Morgan came up limping early and spent several weeks playing — and healing. Rogers hurt a knee, spent several weeks rehabilitating and reinjured it long before the Atlantic Coast Conference wars began.

When Morgan went down, speculation was that he would be red-shirted. He was not, but Rogers finally got to write-off the season. It was unexpected and frustrating, he said.

"I think we went into the Richmond game with the attitude that it was a win for us," Rogers said in a telephone interview prior to the ACC tournament.

"We realized after we had lost that we can't take anything for granted just because we have four seniors. We have to go out and play every night," he added.

Rogers said his injury was first diagnosed as a sprained knee. He said he stayed off the knee for about 10 days, then returned. By his own admission, entering the December game against Appalachian State was a mistake.

"I think I came back a little too early. I didn't take the time like I should ve," he said.

Even with the knee injury, which Rogers said later developed into cartilege damage, he wanted to come back.

"It was taking so much time that I was missing a lot of games," he said, "I wouldn't be in playing shape until seven or eight games and that would be getting way down in the thick of the league."

The team reached the 20-victory plateau, took third in the regular-season ACC title chase and has a Friday night matchup with Duke.

"We could have done a lot better. We lost some games that we shouldn't have lost. We really haven't been consistent," Rogers said in reflection of the season.

"If we're going to jell, we should starting jelling now. We've had some bright spots here and there," he added.

One of the bright spots has been sophomore John Toms, who replaced Rogers in the starting lineup.

"He's played good ball. He's been inconsistent also, but that was expected because he had to come right in after I got hurt," Rogers said.

No. 15 'Cats Burn Tigers In Tourney

By The Associated Press

It bears little physical resemblance to the Coliseum of ancient Rome, but Rupp Arena in Lexington, Ky., was no less friendly to Coach Sonny Smith's Auburn Tigers.

"I felt like the Christians with the Lions," Smith said after 15th-ranked Kentucky defeated Auburn 89-66 Thursday night in the quarterfinals of the Southeastern Conference basketball tournament.

Dirk Minniefield paced the Wildcats with 18 points, giving Kentucky its 29th straight victory at Rupp Arena and sending the 'Cats into the semifinals of the tournament tonight against Mississippi. The other SEC semifinal pits No. 18 Alabama against Tennessee.

Mississippi defeated Louisiana State 59-52 behind Carlos Clark's 28 points. Tennessee, which shared the regular-season SEC title with Kentucky, got by Vanderbilt 57-54 as Dale Ellis scored 26 points. Phillip Lockett scored 20 points in Alabama's 85-74 victory over Georgia.

"There's no question it's an advantage," Kentucky Coach Joe B. Hall said of playing the tournament at home.

The winner of the tournament gets an automatic bid to the NCAA playoffs. Mississippi is the defending SEC tournament champion.

There was action in three other conference tournaments Thursday night involving ranked teams.

In the first round of the Big East tournament at Hartford, Conn., eighth-ranked Georgetown easily handled Providence, 62-48; St. John's, N.Y., defeated host Connecticut 54-52; Villanova defeated Seton Hall 88-73, and Boston College ousted Syracuse 94-92.

At Tulsa, Okla., 10th-ranked Tulsa defeated New Mexico State 85-61 and Illinois State upset Bradley 55-50 in double overtime in the semifinals of the Missoui Valley Conference playoffs.

No. 12 Fresno State walloped Long Beach State 76-55 and Fullerton State upset Cal-Irvine 62-61 in the semifinals of the Pacific Coast Athletic Association tournament at Anaheim, Calif.

All three tournaments produce automatic NCAA qualifiers.

In regular-season action, seventh-ranked Minnesota clinched at least a tie for the Big Ten Conference title by beating Michigan State 54-51. Iowa, ranked 11th, was upset by Illinois, 73-67. The Gophers lead Iowa by one game with one game left. Since there is no Big Ten tournament, the regular-season champion receives an NCAA berth.

Big East

Freshman Anthony Jones scored 19 points as Georgetown rallied to beat Providence. The Hoyas, 24-6, were down by as many as 10 points in the first half before Jones led Georgetown on an 18-2 burst.

Freshman Chris Mullin hit a 15-footer with three seconds left as St. John's upset Connecticut. Dwan Chandler's 10-footer with three seconds left gave Boston College its two-point victory over Syracuse. Ed Pinckney scored 23 points in Villanova's romp over Seton Hall. Georgetown plays St. John's and Villanova meets Boston College in tonight's semifinals.

Missouri Valley

Mike Anderson scored 16 points to send Tulsa into Saturday's final of the MVC tournament against Illinois State. Tulsa, 23-5, the defending National Invitation Tournament champion, led New Mexico State 42-31 at halftime and won going away.

Rick Lamb converted a three-point play with 1:47 left in the second overtime and Illinois State held on to upend the regular-season MVC champion, Bradley.

PCAA

Forward Rod Higgins scored 25 points to lead four Fresno State players in double figures as the Bulldogs defeated Long Beach State. Fresno State built a 33-17 halftime lead, and Long Beach State could come no closer than five points, 46-41, the rest of the way.

Fresno State meets Fullerton State in tonight's final.

Big Ten

Darryl Mitchell scored 16 points, and Minnesota overcame a brief Michigan State lead with 10:14 left to take sole possession of the Big Ten lead. Michigan State led 38-36 on a basket by Kevin Willis, but the Gophers ran off the next eight points.

Seniors Craig Tucker and James Griffin led a second-half Illinois rally that erased a 16-point Iowa lead and gave the Illini its upset victory. Iowa fell to 20-6 and 12-5 in the Big Ten, while Minnesota is 13-4.

Each team has a conference game left. The Gophers host Ohio State and Iowa plays at Purdue.

In other conference tournaments involving automatic NCAA berths:

Southwest

Claude Riley scored 17 points and Reggie Roberts had 14 as Texas A&M defeated Baylor 64-63 in the quarterfinals of the SWC tournament at Dallas. Texas Christian defeated Texas Tech 67-61 in the other quarterfinal.

In tonight's semifinals, Houston plays Texas A&M and 14th-ranked Arkansas meets Texas Christian.

Southland

Joe Dumars' short jumper with 1:38 left in the third overtime gave McNeese State a 78-77 victory over Louisiana Tech in the Southland Conference tourney. The victory moved McNeese into the semifinals against Southwestern Louisiana tonight. In the other semifinal, Lamar meets Texas-Arlington.

ECAC South

William & Mary earned the right to meet top-seeded James Madison in the ECAC South semifinals by beating Navy 79-55 behind a disciplined attack that included the 14 points of Mike Strayhorn.

Old Dominion will meet Richmond in the other semifinal tonight. Old Dominion defeated George Mason 70-62, and Richmond downed East Carolina 49-42.

Several other major tournaments begin today. Top-ranked North Carolina meets Georgia Tech, No. 3 Virginia plays Clemson and 16th-rated Wake Forest plays Duke in the opening round of the Atlantic Coast Conference.

Tigers Send Summers To Giants

By The Associated Press

Now Champ Summers feels wanted.

"The Giants gave up two players to get me, so that looks good," Summers said after he was traded Thursday from Detroit to San Francisco.

"They must want me. I haven't talked to anyone out there yet, but evidentally they wanted me and there might be a spot for me. It was pretty obvious there was no place for me in Detroit."

Summers, unhappy with his role as a left-handed designated hitter, got his wish to be traded when the Tigers sent him to the Giants for infielder Enos Cabell and a player to be named later.

Summers, who will be 34 in June, batted .255 with three homers and 21 RBI in 1982. A well-traveled veteran with four major league teams, the outfielder is a lifetime .262 batter in nine years.

Cabell, a 32-year-old veteran of 10 major league seasons, can play third or first base. Cabell's lifetime batting average is .273 and his best seasons were with Houston in 1977 and 1978 when he hit, respectively, .282 and .295.

"We just balanced our ballclub," said Detroit Manager Sparky Anderson, who indicated he would give Cabell a shot at first base.

The Tigers also made another deal Thursday, acquiring two young players, infielder Jeff Cox and catcher Scott Meyer, in exchange for three minor leaguers.

The A's acquired Darrell Brown, an outfielder who hit .270 in AAA ball last year, and pitchers Jack Smith and Mark Fellows.

Meanwhile, Fernando Valenzuela remained a holdout while his agent and the Los Angeles Dodgers continued negotiating on a new contract for the pitcher.

Valenzuela, who last year became the first pitcher in major league history to win the Cy Young Award and the Rookie of the Year award in the same season, says he won't show up at the Dodgers' spring training facility in Vero Beach, Fla., until an agreement is reached.

For the first time, his agent, Antonio DeMarco, has said Valenzuela isn't asking for $1 million a year, reportedly the original asking price.

control, we could have won."

Odom, queried about those turning points, said that there were a couple of obvious ones. "Our people know I don't talk about officials. In fact, I think it was a well-officiated game, for 99 percent of the game if that tells you anything. There were a couple of calls that hurt us badly. Ironically, it was one of he better called games we've had in months."

Odom said the last of those points came when Byles was knocked down and called for traveling.

Another point of argument came up when the official scorer missed putting Richmond on the line for a one-and-one, and Tarrant caught it nearly two minutes later — but within the rules, before another dead ball interuption. The only problem was that the officials put the wrong shooter on the line — Schweitz instead of Pehl — but he missed anyway.

"The story of the game was clearly told at the free throw line," Odom continued. "Still, our effort was very, very good. We played well.

"If we can hold this league together, I believe that East Carolina can be competitive, but from mid-January on, this has been a disappointing season. With the proper attention, care, committment and backing we can do well in basketball."

Odom also said that the game plan was to get the ball to Hargrove and Green. "When they are playing well, they are as good as any forwards in the league. We tried to design our offense to take advantage of that, and I think we succeeded."

Questioned as to whether he felt Richmond had superior personnel — something a slowdown usually means — Odom said he didn't feel that way. "It's not that they're better, but that they are playing better."

For the Pirates, the loss ends the season at 10-17.

For Odom, it means the start of intensive recruiting to find the people he needs to put the program on the road to recovery.

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — A traumatic and potentially life-threatening situation earlier this year changed Scott Hoch's outlook on golf and may have turned his pro tour career around.

"I hate to say it, but it may have been good for me," Hoch said Thursday after he had fired a no-bogey, 6-under-par 65 and tied longshot Mick Soli for the first round lead in the $300,000 Bay Hill Classic.

Hoch, 26, a Wake Forest product in his third year on tour, and his wife were robbed of about $5,000, tied up and held captive in their Tucson, Ariz., hotel room by a gunman the night before the first round of the season.

"He had a gun and all kinds of things he kept pulling out of his coat. I saw a knife. He was a real weirdo. Said the FBI was after him. Sometimes he would say we were going to be all right, then he'd say he was going to blow us away."

After almost two hours, Hoch said, the gunman left the room, leaving Scott and his wife tied up.

"After something like that, you kind of change your priorities. You tend to look at things differently," Hoch said. "Those three-footers don't seem so important any more.

"Of course, golf is my livelihood, so it's important that I play well. But I don't get upset if I hit a bad shot, or get one out of bounds. It's not the end of the world.

"You kind of change your thinking. You know this is just a game and you go out and try to have some fun."

And, Hoch has had some fun. He managed a fourth-place finish in that season-opening event at Tucson, added a 15th and a 16th later on, then, last week, tied for second behind Andy Bean in the Doral Open.

"It's not a flashy year, but it's been consistent," said Hoch, who ranks 13th on this season's money-winning list with a respectable $47,000.

Craig Stadler, who tops this year's money list, and Bob Eastwood shared third in this tournament, a stroke off the pace at 66. The group at 67 included Fuzzy Zoeller, Gil Morgan, Scott Watkins and Jay Haas.

Ray Floyd, Hale Irwin and former Bay Hill winner Dave Eichelberger topped a big group at 68, 4-under par on the course that was softened by early-morning rains and robbed of its natural defenses by the absence of wind.

A League Co-Champs

McEnroe, Teltscher Set To Open Davis Cup Play

CARLSBAD, Calif. (AP) — John McEnroe and untested Eliot Teltscher will try to get the United States off to a fast start against upset-minded India in first-round Davis Cup competition.

McEnroe, a driving force in U.S. Davis Cup triumphs in 1978, 1979 and 1981, opened the best-of-5 series today against India's ace, Vijay Amritraj at La Costa Hotel and Spa.

Teltscher makes his Davis Cup debut against Ramesh Krishnan in a key clash of No. 2 singles players.

"All the pressure is so much on the U.S.," said Amritraj, a veteran of 17 Davis Cup battles. "And it's especially tough on the No. 2 singles. Second singles could be the turning point."

U.S. captain Arthur Ashe said he couldn't have been happier with the opening pairings.

"It's a perfect draw for us in that you have your best player (McEnroe) playing the first match and the last match," said Ashe.

McEnroe, defending Wimbledon and U.S. Open champion, holds a 5-1 lifetime advantage over Amritraj. McEnroe is the world's No. 1-ranked player and Amritraj currently ranks 22nd.

Teltscher, No. 7, was selected by Ashe over teammate Brian Gottfried, a more experienced Davis Cup player.

Explaining, Ashe said, "I picked Eliot on his record, and the fact I thought he deserves to play. He wants to play, and he's one of the most fit players on the tour."

The Americans, in quest of their fourth Davis Cup title in five years, defeated Argentina for the championship in December.

On Saturday, McEnroe and Peter Fleming, regarded by many as the world's top doubles team, take on Armitraj and his brother Anand.

In Sunday's singles matches, McEnroe opposes Krishnan and Teltscher tackles Vijay Amritraj.

McEnroe, 18-3 in Davis Cup singles competition and 6-0 in doubles play, helped the U.S. overcome tenacious Mexico here a year ago in first-round play.

With Mexico leading 2-1 in matches, the U.S. got needed singles victories from Roscoe Tanner and McEnroe to seal the outcome. Ashe considers India considerably stronger than the Mexican team of a year ago.

And with McEnroe far from top form, Ashe says "we're not taking anything for granted.

"Vijay has a history of upsetting players, and this is his second favorite surface, next to grass," said Ashe.

Teltscher has never faced Krishnan, who ranks 76th in world ratings, but holds a 4-0 mark over Vijay Amritraj, who has a 13-7 Davis Cup record.

McEnroe has defeated Krishnan in their only two meetings. Krishnan is 3-1 in Davis Cup play.

Although Anand Amritraj is not listed among world rankings, he and his brother form one of world's toughest doubles team.

Borg May Not Take Part In Wimbledon

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) — Five-time Wimbledon winner Bjorn Borg says he may not compete in the prestigious English tennis tournament this year because he would have to qualify for it.

"He doesn't feel like qualifying at Roehampton," says Peter Johnson of International Management Group of Cleveland, the firm that represents the tennis star.

The qualifying is held on the grass surfaces of Roehampton, not the All-England Club, where the tournament is held.

"A couple of bad bounces and he could be knocked out," added Johnson.

Borg, the world's fourth-ranked player who lost in the finals at Wimbledon last year, has not made up his mind yet, "but there's a good possibility he won't play," according to Johnson.

The Swede was forced to qualify for all Grand Prix tournaments when he refused to play in a minimum of 10 Super Series tournaments this year. He just began practicing after taking a five-month vacation from tennis. He petitioned the Men's International Pro Council to play only seven Super Series events in 1982, but the Pro Council refused the request.

Meanwhile, Ivan Lendl of Czechslovakia, another of the world's top tennis players, says he won't play at Wimbledon.

"I definitely will not play there," said Lendl, who is ranked third in the world by the Association of Tennis Professionals' computer. "I am playing many tournaments now, and in the middle of the year I shall take the break I normally take in December."

A factor for Lendl is that the Davis Cup quarterfinals are scheduled the week after Wimbledon. Mlana Fronta, a Czechoslovakian newspaper, reported that the break would allow Lendl to prepare for the second round of the Davis Cup, provided Czechoslovakia defeats West German.

Lendl, who lost in the first round at Wimbledon last year, captured the Wimbledon junior title in 1978.

second, but shortstop Mike Sorrell's throw to first pulled first baseman Todd Evans off the bag for the Pirates' third error of the inning. Fallon scored on the play to give Virginia Wesleyan a 2-0 lead.

The Marlins upped the margin to 5-0 in the second. With one out, Startoni and Fallon hit back-to-back singles and both came in when Scott Smith followed with a double to right-centerfield.

Abbate greeted Parsons, who came in after Smith's double, with a single to score Smith and Virginia Wesleyan led, 5-0.

ECU cut the deficit to two in the last half of the inning. Todd Evans walked, went to third on Sorrell's double and scored on David Wells' single to center. Jack Curlings's looping single to right scored Sorrell and Carraway's sacrifice fly brought home Wells and ECU trailed, 5-3.

The Pirates tied the game one inning later. Hallow was hit by a pitch to open the third and then scored on Sorrell's two-out home run over the left field fence to tie it at 5-5.

One inning later ECU took the lead on a leadoff home run by Curlings. Hallow later tripled to score Carraway, who had walked after Curlings' HR, and the Pirates led, 7-5.

The Marlins tied the game in the top of the fifth after two were gone. Steve Barnett, Virginia Wesleyan's #9 hitter, walked, Startoni singled and Fallon walked to load the bases. Smith the singled up the middle to score both Barnett and Startoni to tie the game at 7-7.

After ECU wasted a leadoff single by Evans in the bottom of the inning, Virginia Wesleyan went back on top in the sixth. With one out, Glenn Pizzanello doubled and went to third on a poor relay throw from Sorrell to third baseman David Wells.

After a ground out, Brian Fuller hit a grounder that Wells failed to handle, allowing Pizzanello to score and give the Marlins at 8-7 lead. It was a lead short-lived, however, as ECU came back to score two runs in the bottom of the inning and take the lead for good.

had beaten them earlier on their homecourt fairly easily, but we had a fight last night the whole way."

Wilmington, which ends the season at 12-6, led, 14-12, at the end of the first quarter and upped its margin to 28-25 at the half.

The Knights, however, outscored Wilmington, 20 to 12, in the third period to take a 45-40 lead after three periods. But GCA failed to hold the lead and Wilmington tied it late and then missed a shot at the buzzer to send the game into overtime.

In overtime, Wilmington inched out to a one-point lead before Hollingsworth hit his jumper to give the Knights the lead for good.

Joining Parnell in double figures for GCA were Troy Hudson with 15 and Hollingsworth with 11.

Film Institute Salutes Capra

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Director Frank Capra, who won three Oscars in six years for his optimistic Depression-era movies, was honored by the American Film Institute and got a tribute from an actor he never hired: Ronald Reagan.

"You have recognized and helped us recognize all that is wonderful about the American character," the president said in a message that highlighted the AFI ceremony Thursday night.

Capra, 84, who was born in Sicily and scrambled for a living in California before finding work in Hollywood during the silent era, won the institute's Life Achievement Award.

The 10th annual AFI award dinner was emceed by Capra star James Stewart, who appeared in "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington" and "It's A Wonderful Life," and included a host of his other performers, such as Claudette Colbert, Betty Davis, Donna Reed and Peter Falk.

During an evening of standing ovations at the Beverly Hilton, the heartiest applause went to Capra.

"I'm just about the happiest man in the world," he told the industry audience. "The art of Frank Capra is very simple — it is the love of people."

Capra directed 36 feature films between 1926 and 1961, although his best — and most popular — work was completed in the 1930s and 1940s. He won best director Academy Awards for "It Happened One Night" in 1934, "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town" in 1936, and "You Can't Take It With You" in 1938.

Miss Colbert and Clark Gable were named best actress and actor for their roles in "It Happened One Night," which became the first film to take all four top awards when, like "You Can't Take it With You," it was honored as best film of the year.

Capra's work celebrated the virtues of the common man and the director's belief that even the most mean-spirited could be redeemed, given the chance.

Capra left moviemaking after making "Pocketful of Miracles" in 1961, and he later said he retired then because he thought he had broken faith with his fans by making compromises during the filming of that movie. It was the first film he made that bombed in the United States.

Capra, who also was awarded a decoration for his service as an Army filmmaker in World War II, completed an autobiography, "The Name Above the Title," in 1971.

The program, which included appearances by Bob Hope, Jack Lemmon, Charlton Heston, Steve Martin, Bette Midler and other stars, was taped and will be broadcast on CBS-TV April 4.

Actors Rally To 'Save' Theaters

NEW YORK (AP) — Theater luminaries joined unknown actors in a marathon overnight reading of eight Pulitzer Prize-winning plays first produed at two of Broadway's oldest theaters, which are scheduled for demolition.

The Morosco and Helen Hayes theaters are slated to be torn down to make way for construction of the 2,000 room Portman Hotel. A committee is fighting the demolition.

On Thursday, U.S. Supreme Court Justice Thurgood Marshall stayed any demolition "pending receipt of a response and further order" by Marshall or the full court.

His ruling means the theaters will be protected from immediate demolition even if Judge Jacob D. Fuchsberg of the New York Court of Appeals allows his earlier stay to expire.

The Committee to Save the Theaters was expected to learn today whether Fuchberg would extend his order that has prevented the theaters' destruction, said Barbara Titus, a committee spokeswoman.

Thursday's rain dampened the audience, but "Death of a Salesman" went on adjacent to Shubert Alley as actors decried the threat to the two old theaters.

Lauren Bacall, Jason Robards, James Earl Jones, Anne Meara, Christopher Reeve and Elizabeth Ashley, bundled up in fur or down coats, drew a midday crowd as they took turns reading.

Others lesser-known performers took to the makeshift stage in front of the Morosco Theater and continued the readings overnight as the dwindling audience huddled in heavy rain. Committee members handed out more than 1,100 petitions along 45th Street, said Ms. Titus.

Playwright Arthur Miller began the readings with a Willy Loman speech from "Death of a Salesman," first produced at the Morosco in 1949.

The "rules" for the play of the cards are generalisms that work in most cases. But that does not preclude you from using your intelligence. For instance, it is normal procedure, when defending, to return fourth-best in the suit that partner has led. But that can cause problems; witness this hand from a recent tournament.

Most Norths elected to open because of their six-card suit. Invariably, South leaped to the no trump game when his partner denied possession of a four-card major.

The fourth-best heart was a common opening lead. At most tables, East won the ace and, true to the principles he had learned at his mother's knee, returned the seven—originally his fourth-best heart. South played the jack and West won the queen.

Now West was in a quandary. Most reasoned that South was unlikely to have jumped to three no trump without a sound heart stopper. Therefore, they placed declarer with having started with the J-10-8-6 and partner with A-7-4. In that case, to continue hearts would give declarer an extra trick to which he was not entitled. In an effort to find an entry in partner's hand for another heart lead through declarer's presumed tenace, they shifted. No matter which suit they chose, declarer was home free.

To the best of our knowledge, only one West did not have to face this problem. And that was because his partner did not play by rote, but chose instead to use his brains. Instead of automatically returning the seven of hearts, East told a little white lie by returning the four. But West was not fooled for long. True, he thought that his partner held only four hearts, but that left declarer with just three. So after winning the queen of hearts, West continued with the king. The situation became crystal clear when declarer failed to follow to the third round, so West simply continued with hearts and the defenders took the first five tricks for a one-trick set.

Eight Characters In Search Of A Plot

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Witer

NEW YORK (AP) — NBC does Pirandello's "Six Characters in Search of an Author" two better with the new show, "Chicago Story," eight characters in search of an involving plot. Although this 90-minute series doesn't hit stride in Saturday night's first episode, it still is loaded with promise.

"Chicago Story" isn't just another cop show. It's a police show, medical show and legal show — three cops, three lawyers and two doctors, who grew up in the same neighborhood and now get entangled each week in everybody else's professional and personal lives.

It's precursor was the "Bold Ones," but that series did separate medical, legal and police shows under one umbrella title. "Chicago Story" twines them all together, but has the knotty problem of making certain the connections aren't counterfeit.

The story Saturday night, for example, stretches it. Joe Gilland, the beat cop on the show, is wounded in a shootout with two brothers. Gilland (Dennis Franz) and the injured brother are rushed to a hospital, where they are treated by the two doctors (Maud Adams and Kristoffer Tabori).

Meanwhile, the other brother strolls into surgery and holds everybody hostage. This allows the three lawyers and other two cops to get absorbed into the crisis. One story, divided eight ways, doesn't go. But several stories each week would let the ensemble cast do more than fill slots.

All the major demographic bases are touched here. Besides the street cop, there's a serious black detective and his flighty Polish partner. The legal side has an Italian public defender and a WASP state attorney. They're friends and date the same woman, the crusading Irish lawyer. Medically, Miss Adams, the biggest name and weakest acting link, is a Swedish surgeon, while Tabori is a Jewish doctor.

Eric Bercovici, executive producer of "Shogun" and "McClain's Law" who created "Chicago Story," considers Chicago the ninth cast member. Totally filmed there, Bercovici plans to utilize its neighborhoods, sights and sounds for a bona fide urban environment, not the made-in-Hollywood look.

Saturday night's action, set mostly in a hospital, didn't allow Chicago to play a starring role, but, potentially, the chance to capture the climate of crime and city life is unlimited. "Chicago doesn't look like any other city," said Bercovici. "It has beautiful architecture and wide boulevards, with grimy, ethnic neighborhoods as little as a block away."

In the first episode, the characters walk around in open jackets. Before long, the winter of 1981-82 will play a major role, adding more authenticity. It's hard to accept street crime amid palm trees and swimming pools.

"When it was 41 degrees below, we had to use flat lenses because the oil in the zoom lenses froze," Bercovici said. "We had to shoot quickly. The actors didn't stand around to chit-chat."

"Chicago Story" is 30 minutes longer than standard dramas, and Bercovici says he needs it to showcase his cast each week. But he predicts that NBC — he calls it the (National) "Biscuit Company" — will probably order an hour show, if "Chicago Story" is renewed next season.

Saturday night has been NBC's Bermuda Triangle. Nothing has flown. Not Gabe Kaplan, the Smothers Brothers, Rona Barrett or Billy Crystal. "Chicago Story" can't do worse, but if the scripts get stronger, it can do much better.

"Peaches"

"Peaches", located in Greenville Square, will become officially dead on Saturday, March 6th at 10:00 P.M. "Peaches" was born on October 4, 1978, and was one of the hottest disco spots in town. Parents of "Peaches" were Rick Cox and Ronnie Cox. Many hundreds of people walked through the doors and enjoyed the atmosphere and entertainment. In August of 1981, "Peaches" was purchased by Libby (Swinson) Hancock of Greenville. Since "Peaches" is no longer a disco club, and is dead, she is going to be "buried" and "re-named". Along with the new name the entire image of the "Deceased" will change. Those wishing to say a final farewell are invited to come to the "last rites" and help us celebrate the "birth" of a new image in entertainment.

Life As It's Lived

Experience's Memory Brings On A Cold Sweat

By GAIL MICHAELS

Not long ago a friend of mine brought her toddler to visit. She was carrying an extra pair of training pants. "I'm trying to potty-train him," she explained.

As if on cue, the youngster sat down in the middle of my living room rug and refused to budge. I rushed to Zachary's room and grabbed an armload of trucks. "Why don't you play with these, Joseph?" I coaxed, trying to lure him onto the hardwood floor.

Joseph shook his head vehemently.

I tried cookies, soft drinks and the Jello I had slaved over for supper. Zachary accepted them all. Joseph just sat.

Joseph left the nylon pile unsullied, but I endured the rest of the visit with a trepidation born of my experiences with Meg. We trained Meg by the "Toilet Training in One Day" method. We started the day after her second birthday.

According to this method, mother and child devote the entire day to the potty chair. The mother uses a baby doll who wets to demonstrate the use of the potty. The child, after a few unsuccessful attempts, imitates the doll. Then the mother rewards the child with candy, in our case, M&Ms, and one more civilized behavior is added to the child's repertoire.

It all sounded so simple when Phillip went out to purchase the baby doll. But he came back with an anatomically correct boy. "It's the only one I could find," he said.

Tinkling Tommy arrested Meg's interest all right but for all the wrong reasons. It soon became evident that, if we were going to make any progress whatsoever, Tommy must be discarded.

We progressed to the next step. I would keep Meg on the potty for 15 minutes, a rather considerable feat in itself, as I explained patiently the reason we were going through all this and encouraged her to do her best work. She would behave as only a captive, under-aged audience can, stand up at the end of her confinement, pull up her pants and only then proceed to do her best work.

When five hours later she hit the potty, I grabbed a handfull of M&Ms and tearfully blessed her for her efforts. She immediately dropped two candies into the potty. Nothing would do but she retrieve them.

At that point I realized that Meg's training was going to take more than one measly day. Actually, it took four years. The first six months were the hardest. I couldn't take her into a carpeted restauruant or seat her in a grocery cart with out experiencing debilitating anxiety.

Compared to that time, the next three and one-half years seemed almost easy with thier tell-tale dances in which Meg contorted like a corkscrew and with the endless line of strange clothes in my washing machine as Meg graced each friend's house with an accident or two.

In keeping with our society's penchant for maligning little boys, I've heard that they are even more difficult to train than little gilrls, so when my sister-in-law remarked at the last family gathering that she was getting ready to train my nephew, I merely rolled my eyes.

Philip broke out in a cold sweat. "It's not that time already, is it?"

"Not by a long shot."

"But Christopher is not that much older than Zachary."

"Bite your tongue."

"Well, at least it should be easier with Zachary than it was with Meg," he mused. "We already have the doll."

He can save it. I plan to invest in Pampers for a long time to come.

SID Training Session Slated

The North Carolina Sudden Infant Death Syndrome Project is hosting a series of introductory training sessions at the community colleges across the state. The training sessions are especially designed for first responders, those professionals who are the first to arrive on the scene or provide immediate care to families who lose a child to Sudden Infant Death Syndrome (SIDS).

The purpose of this training session is to give first responders basic knowledge about SIDS and to sensitize them to the needs and responses of SIDS families.

The class will meet at Pitt Community College March 8 from 7:30 to 9 p.m. in room 209 of the Humber Building. Course cost for the general public is $8.

For further information contact the continuing education division, Pitt Community College, 756-3130, ext. 238.

Most were courteous, but "straight to the point" on whether or not they would support a measure, Mrs. Morgan writes.

But her biggest concern became "the large number of paid lobbyists waiting in the gallery ... The more important the bill, the more the number of lobbyists.

"After observing so many bills passed that were apparently influenced through paid lobbying, I was unsure whether a layman could achieve such a formidible task ...." Mrs. Morgan found out.

"It was not just the defeat of our proposed bill that made such a strong impression on my mind, but the manner in which our legislative business in carried out.

"Had we been able to financially underwrite a sizable amount of money, passage would have been much more insured.

"There is a distinct difference in the influence of the paid lobbyist and that of the citizen from back home," she determined.

There are some legislators who are hard-working and trying to serve the needs of those who elected them, Mrs. Morgan reports.

"One must conclude that the majority are influenced by well-heeled special interest groups," she found.
