Williams Said Resigning Seat In Senate

By SKIP WOLLENBERG
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Harrison A. Williams Jr., facing insurmountable odds against avoiding his expulsion from the Senate, has decided to resign, congressional sources said today.

One source, who sked not to be identified, said Williams had drafted a letter of resignation to be delivered later today to Vice President George Bush, in his constitutional role as president of the Senate.

This source said Williams, a liberal New Jersey Democrat, planned to make an impassioned declaration in a floor speech of his innocence in the FBI's undercover Abscam investigation, and then would leave the Capitol.

Williams' chief defender, Sen. Daniel Inouye, D-Hawaii, planned to disclose that Williams had written and delivered the resignation letter to Bush.

Sources say Williams, 62, had told colleagues privately that he intends to resign after waging a losing, seven-month battle to avoid expulsion.

Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker, R-Tenn., told reporters he wanted to "try to dispose of the issue today."

There still was a slight possibility Williams might change his mind before the Senate votes on the expulsion resolution. If the resolution is adopted, Williams would be the first senator to be expelled since the Civil War.

Williams was described as being distraught over his situation and that has accounted for his hesitation about his intentions, sources said.

Publicly, the 23-year veteran of the Senate said Wednesday that he would continue to fight expulsion.

"Right now, I'm not thinking about resignation," Williams said on the fifth day of Senate hearings on his case. An aide added that Williams has "no intention of resigning."

It could not be determined whether Williams would resign before the Senate votes on a proposal that he be censured, a lesser penalty that has been urged by those who argue that he was the victim of FBI and prosecutorial abuse.

The Senate had been expected to vote on censure Wednesday, but the vote was postponed and could come today. Baker said "a number of friends" of Williams had requested the delay.

Even the sponsor of the censure vote, Democratic Whip Alan Cranston, D-Calif., said it would fail. And Cranston that if Williams does not resign, it will be impossible for him to avoid expulsion.

After the censure vote, assuming it is taken, the Senate would turn its attention once again to the expulsion resolution recommended unanimously by the Senate Ethics Committee last summer.

The disclosure about Williams' plans came as a chorus grew among Senate Democrats for Williams' expulsion for his conviction on bribery and conspiracy charges.

Among those who said they would vote for expulsion was New Jersey's junior senator, Democrat Bill Bradley, who had refused for months to take a position on Williams' expulsion.

Although Bradley said he was troubled by what has been called "an abuse of power" by the FBI in the Abscam case, he said he watched the tapes the government made of Williams' meetings with a phony Arab sheik.

Prosecutors contended that Williams agreed at those meetings to use his influence to help a mining venture in which he had a hidden interest and which was to be financed by a $100 million loan from an undercover FBI agent posing as a sheik.

Evidence Given Endorsement

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration's presentation of evidence to support its assertion that the insurgency in El Salvador is being directed from other countries has won a ringing endorsement from a bipartisan group of former high-level officials.

"It is important for the American people to realize their government is telling the truth," said William P. Rogers, secretary of state under President Nixon.

Rogers was among 24 former senior government officials who received a private intelligence briefing Wednesday from Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. and CIA Director William Casey.

Robert Strauss, a senior member of the administration of President Carter, said the briefing was "a rather impressive bit of evidence indicating in a persuasive way the outside involvement" in El Salvador.

Zbigniew Brzezinski, national security adviser to Carter, said the information "was disturbing."

However, the administration apparently didn't completely satisfy all the former officials that the Salvadoran insurgency is under Nicaraguan and Cuban control. Rogers, for one, said he didn't want to "take a position" on that.

The briefing was part of a public relations offensive by the Reagan administration to generate broader public and congressional support for its Central American policies, including its backing of the Salvadoran government in its war against leftist guerrillas.

Haig told a Senate subcommittee separately Wednesday that U.S. military aid is essential for the Salvadoran government's struggle to beat back the leftists.

Withholding aid, he said, probably would strike "a fatal blow to the government's ability to sustain itself."

While the administration's next step in El Salvador isn't clear, Haig said the role of American military advisers, now numbering about 50 confined to non-combat situations, might have to be re-evaluated if the fighting worsens after the March 28 election. There was a hint they might be allowed into combat situations.

But in response to a question on whether the administration would continue military aid if a far right party headed by former Maj. Roberto D'Aubuisson wins the balloting for a constituent assembly in El Salvador, Haig said, "It is too early to say."

The administration's campaign for public support has included both public and private intelligence briefings and testimony before congressional committees by Haig and other senior administration officials.

Rep. Michael Barnes, D-Md., a critic of the administration's Central American policies, accused it of "whipping up a war hysteria."

"It's almost as if the administration wants a war in Central America," he said Wednesday in a speech on the House floor.

The administration had planned to unveil information Friday to support its contention that Nicaragua and Cuba are directing the Salvadoran insurgency. However, sources said the information might not be released until early next week.

A growing number of members of Congress of both parties are pressing for evidence on outside involvement in El Salvador as a condition for continuing congressional support for administration policies.

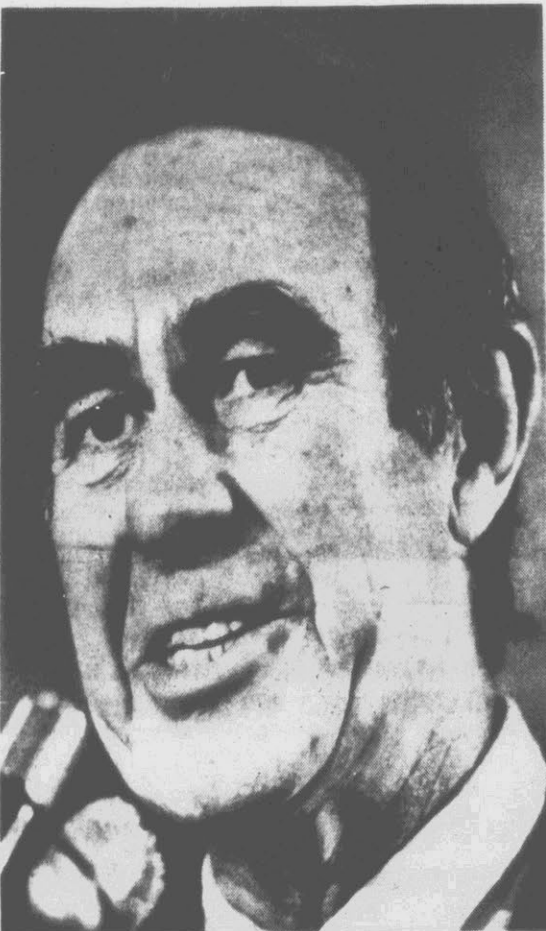

Part of the administration's strategy is to portray the guerrilla war as part of a larger Soviet and Cuban-directed drive to destabilize Central America, using Nicaragua as a base.

Several major U.S. news organizations, including The Washington Post, said they have confirmed that there is a CIA-directed plan to destabilize the government of Nicaragua using a $19 million special fund and a 500-member paramilitary force of Latin Americans.

President Reagan and Haig declined comment on the reports, neither confirming nor denying them. Nicaraguan government officials have previously charged that the CIA is plotting against their government.

Appropriations Committees Say 'No' To Further Slashes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Concluding that domestic programs already have been cut to the bone, members of the House and Senate Appropriations Committees are making clear they can't meet President Reagan's call to slash them an additional $14.2 billion.

At the same time, congressional Democrats say Reagan's partisan attacks have given a hollow ring to his overtures for bipartisan compromise on his fiscal 1983 budget.

A number of subcommittee chairmen of the Senate Appropriations Committee are telling Sen. Mark O. Hatfield, R-Ore., the panel's chairman, that no further reductions can be made in the domestic programs under their jurisdiction, according to a congressional source.

The full committee was meeting today to consider its recommendations to the Senate Budget Committee.

The source, who asked not to be identified, said the full committee's spending recommendation is likely to be for $17.8 billion more than Reagan requested for the fiscal year that begins Oct. 1.

On Wednesday, the House Appropriations Committee approved by voice vote a report to the House Budget Committee saying its members have "come to the conclusion that there will not be significant reductions made in the existing levels of funding for domestic programs."

"We've just about cut as far as we can," said Rep. Jamie L. Whitten, D-Miss., the appropriations panel chairman.

The report suggested that instead of deeper chops in domestic programs, budget savings should be found through changes in military spending, taxes and programs in which government benefits are paid directly to individuals.

Meanwhile, Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr. of Tennessee said Wednesday evening that he and other top GOP senators "are making good progress" in private discussions of alternatives to Reagan's budget.

Hotline gets things done for you. Call 752-1336 and tell your problem or your sound-off or mail it to Hotline, The Daily Reflector, Box 1967, Greenville, N.C. 27834.

Because of the large numbers received, Hotline can answer and publish only those items considered most pertinent to our readers. Names must be given, but only initials will be used.

BABY HAD HEART SURGERY

Joshua Steven Avery, 3-month-old son of Ernest and Faye Norris Avery, underwent heart surgery at Duke University Medical Center March 1 and is recuperating well. Ayden Pentecostal Holiness Church has asked Hotline to appeal for donations to help the family with expenses related to the child's medical problems.

The Averys have two older sons, 4 and 6, and Mr. Avery has had to be away from his job at the Free Will Baptist Press in Ayden a good bit since the baby was born with a heart defect. Anyone who wishes to help may mail gifts to the Averys, P.O. Box 323, Ayden, N.C. 28513. Inquiries may be made by calling the child's grandmother, Mrs. Myrtle Avery, 746-6035.

HELP WONDERFUL!

John and Nancy Moore of near Fountain have asked Hotline to express appreciation to everyone who helped them and their family in starting over after the fire that destroyed their home Feb. 19. "It is unbelievable how many wonderful people came to our need for help," Mrs. Moore said. A Hotline appeal for the Moores was published Feb. 23.

Ten Are Injured As Two School Buses Collide

By TOMMY FORREST
Reflector Staff Writer

WINTERVILLE — Ten persons, nine of them children, were injured Wednesday at 3:10 p.m. when two school buses collided in Winterville. According to Winterville police officer C. A. Ridenour, a bus driven by Morris Aulander Simpson Jr. of Route 1, Winterville, struck the rear of another bus at the intersection of Academy and East Cooper streets. Police said the second bus was driven by Kimber Alvin Cox of May Drive, Winterville.

Children in both buses received minor injuries, ac-ording to Ridenour. Two children received stitches for lacerations. Ridenour said one child was taken to the hospital by private vehicle.

Ridenour said Simpson was among those injured. He identified the other injured students as Tammy O'May, 7; Polly Ross, 8; Celestina Dixon, 9; Bryan Crandall, 5; Shawn Hynes, 8; James Whitehurst, 7; Tosha Wooten, 8, and Dezricca

Pugh, 6. Dr. Jack Allison, director of the Pitt County Memorial Hospital Emergency Department, said this morning he was pleased with the quality and rapidity of care the nine children received in the hospital emergency department.

"Dr. Joe Williamson was the physician on duty," he said, "and, in my opinion, he and the emergency room staff did a masterful job of judging and treating the children's injuries as quickly yet thoroughly as possible. They were able to calm the children and principals informed at all times. A few were treated for minor lacerations, one got a big goose egg on the head, and one with a sore arm was X-rayed ... no bones were broken."

Allison said several other children were checked later in the evening, after they had arrived home complaining of hurts that parents felt ought to be checked out. Their injuries were minor, he indicated.

"We are very lucky," he said, "that none were seriously hurt."

The children were picked

Surviving For A Year: Leads A Quality Life

By ARTHUR H. ROTSTEIN
Associated Press Writer

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — One year ago Mary Gohlke received the lungs and heart of a 15-year-old boy. Now she has gone back to work as a newspaper advertising manager, able to lead what she calls "a quality life."

"I feel wonderful," says the world's longest living heart and lung transplant recipient, who resumed her career Monday.

Mrs. Gohlke, 46, of Mesa, suffered from primary pulmonary hypertension, a lung condition of undetermined origin that damaged her heart and usually means death.

She became the first heart-lung transplant patient in more than a decade and the first to survive the operation for more than 23 days.

She received the organs of Robert Jones on March 9, 1981, at Stanford University — and with them another breath of life. Doctors used a new drug called cyclosporin A, made from a fungus, which helps block rejection of transplanted organs. It worked.

"What it means is having a second chance," Mrs. Gohlke said in a recent telephone interview.

"Isn't it wonderful that God reviewed your life and decided to give you more time?" a priest from Buffalo, N.Y., wrote to her, and she's adopted that philosophy. A suggestion that she's "cheating death" is too negative, she said.

"I'm not a terribly religious person but I just feel that I'm grateful for each day that I have," said Mrs. Gohlke, who works three hours a day as advertising manager for the Tempe Daily News.

At five-feet, Mrs. Gohlke weighs but 87 pounds, although her weight is climbing since an abdominal operation, called pyloroplasty, five weeks ago to aid food retention.

Were there doubts about the transplant surgery? "Nope." Would she survive it? "Yep."

She said she knew she'd be around from the moment she met Dr. Bruce Reitz, the Stanford surgeon who has performed all six of Stanford's heart-lung transplants. Four patients survive.

She calls Reitz "probably the kindest, gentlest human being I have ever had the pleasure of meeting. He cares about what he does. If you were hurting, he hurt. And it was very sincere."

Reitz, she said, "was tickled" when he heard she was returning to work. "That makes all his work worthwhile."

"What I wanted when I went into the surgery was to come out of it not hooked up to a machine, to be able to live a quality life, and that's what I'm doing," she said.

She said she checks in with a local physician weekly and visits Stanford every year. She will probably have to take medication to combat organ rejection for the rest of her life.

Mrs. Gohlke said she now notices little things she ignored before — "oh, you betcha, you betcha" — and has become attuned to the support of her husband Karl, her mother, two sons, and the generosity of strangers.

"I have had literally thousands of letters and hundreds of telephone calls — good wishes, there wasn't one negative thing in the whole bunch. And I couldn't believe that people could be so caring," she said.

One well-wisher from South Africa sent her "a marvelous card at Christmas time." And "the most beautiful handmade Chinese jacket you ever saw" arrived by mail with only a newspaper clipping from an interview she gave last September.

"There was no name to thank the person," she said. "Thank you, whoever it was."

Mary Gohlke hasn't spoken with Ofelia Jones of Chula Vista, Calif., mother of the teen-ager whose heart and lungs she received. The boy was riding on a bicycle with a friend when it was struck from behind by an auto.

"How do you thank someone for your life?" Mrs. Gohlke said. "Mrs. Jones just has my utmost thanks for ... giving me my life, my children's mother."

The donor's identity became known a few days after the operation. Mrs. Jones said in an interview at the time that she donated Robert's organs to keep "a little part of my son" alive. "My little guy isn't here anymore, but his heart is still there. ... I knew his heart was very strong."

Before the operation, Mrs. Gohlke faced the difficult problem of telling sons Christopher, now 18, and Lucas, 15, she was dying.

"It's not easy. You just tell them as gently and as honestly as you can. My feeling has always been, as long as you remember someone, that person is never gone."

"... We talked about death, that it does come, the candle begins to burn from the moment of birth; when it flickers, that's all," she said.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

Our aerobics instructor told us the other morning that the highest suicide rate in the country was among dentists.

She explained this was because of people's basic fear and general rejection of them as people. Despite the fact these public servants are here to help mankind, they are shunned and associated only with pain.

She added the second highest suicide rate was among aerobics instructors. The reasons were the same.

It makes me feel rotten that neither group understands how the human mind functions. They have to realize they're dealing with people who are basically weak, cowardly and unappreciative ... especially when they're bleeding or have a cramp in their legs. Sometimes, recipients of their services don't even pretend they're having a good time.

A lot of it comes down to communication. Aerobics instructors get off to a bad start just by covering the walls with mirrors. They shouldn't do that. It makes the aerobees surly and they say things they're sorry for.

Then, they have you touch your knee to your chin. Right off, we question why we're doing that. We don't get a lot of requests for it. And just when you think your enure body is on fire, the instructor will say, "I don't see anyone smiling," and "You're not breathing."

When the student hears this, she becomes quite despondent and the instructor feels this and feels responsible for it.

Dentists are no better. Seeing that tray full of sharp instruments and the hanging drills at eye level takes away the party atmosphere. Most patients are so terrified that even a simple crack like, "How have you been?" is construed as probing.

Sometimes they're not realistic. When they ask, "Does this hurt?" when they tap your filling with a metal hammer, what do they think you're going to say? "No"? Grow up!

It's a fact that cavities and cellulite will always be with us. We know it isn't personal, but there are just some things you can't be grateful for.

Incidentally, know what the third highest suicide rate is in the country? It's a tie between dental patients and aerobics students.

Wedding Vows Said Saturday Afternoon

Glenda Sue Killingsworth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Thomas Killingsworth of New Bern, was married to Frederick Latham Potts III Saturday afternoon at two o'clock.

The ceremony was performed in the First Presbyterian Church here by the Rev. Richard R. Gammon and the Rev. Curtis A. Wright.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Latham Potts Jr. of Knightdale.

Dr. E. Robert Erwin was organist. Mrs. Janet Britt sang "Whither Thou Goest" and "The Wedding Prayer."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of white organza over taffeta. The bodice was enhanced with beaded silk Venice lace and the chapel train was encircled with silk Venice and miniature chantilly lace. Her fingertip veil of illusion had pencil edging and silk Venice lace. The bride carried a bouquet of white tea roses, stephanotis, tipped coral roses accented with ornamental foliage.

Brenda Lou Killingsworth, twin sister of the bride, was honor attendant and wore a giana floor length gown of maregot blue styled with a sunburst pleated skirt and sheer jacket enhanced with re-embroidered lace. She carried a colonial bouquet of yellow lilies, coral pixies, yellow daisies accented with blue silk sweetpeas.

Bridesmaids included Kathy T. and Lorraine M. Killingsworth, sisters of the bride, Susan P. Casper, sister of the bridegroom, and E. Beth Stephenson. Their gowns were light blue and styled like the honor attendant's. Their flowers were identical to those of the honor attendant.

The father of the bridegroom was best man and ushers were Marshall C. McCoy, Michael E. Heinig, Dr. Larry W. Means, all of Greenville and Joseph L. Potts of Wendell, brother of the bridegroom.

The mother of the bride wore a floor length gown of ivory and coral knit chiffon. She wore a corsage of coral roses. The mother of the bridegroom selected a floor length gown of mint green knit chiffon with a corsage of white roses.

The church was decorated with smilax over brick walls entwined with white flowers, two nine-tiered candelabra with white and yellow snapdragons and fuji and greenery. A basket of foliage was used in the pulpit and aisle lanterns were used in front and back of the church.

A reception was held at the church and was given by parents of the bride.

The refreshment table was covered with a lace cloth and centered with an arrangement of lilies, daisies and carnations

MRS. FREDERICK LATHAM POTTS III

Assisting were Kathy McNeese, Steve Queen, Mrs. Hugh Haynie, Janet Britt, Betsy Hood and Carol Zoret.

For a wedding trip to Florida, the bride changed into a three-piece suit and wore her mother's corsage.

The bride received a B.S.B.A. degree from East Carolina University and is completing masters requirements there. She is employed by the ECU School of Medicine. The bridegroom received a B.S. in biology and psychology at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. He is a second year medical student at ECU.

Florida Tour Announced

Plans have been made for an April tour to Orlando, Fla. The group will leave Greenville April 4 and travel to Savannah, Ga.

The second day of travel will be made to St. Augustine and then on to Orlando. Activities for Tuesday are visits to Sea World and Cypress Gardens. A performance of the Black Hills Passion Play is scheduled during the evening. A day at Disney World is planned for Wednesday. Thursday will include a visit to Silver Springs and that night will be spent in Savannah. The group will return home Friday.

Interested persons should contact Edna E. Baker, 753-4676, day, and 753-4693, at night.

Enrollment Event Set For Monday

Connie Goodson of Goldsboro will be the guest speaker at the Pirate Charter Chapter of the American Business Women Association's spring enrollment event Monday.

Mrs. Goodson is corresponding secretary of the Wayne Chapter. The meeting will be held at the First Federal Savings and Loan on Greenville Boulevard said Pat Hardee, chapter president.

Using the theme "Grand March," local business women will be introduced to ABWA. "The goal of ABWA is to help women in business advance through education, increased competence and upgrading of professional skills and business attitudes, Nina Redditt, enrollment event chairman, said.

The program is scheduled to begin at 7:30 p.m. For further information interested business women should contact Ms. Redditt, 752-6410.

Bridal Policy

A black and white glossy five by seven photograph is requested for engagement announcements. For publication in a Sunday edition, the information must be submitted by 12 noon on the preceding Wednesday. Engagement pictures must be released at least three weeks prior to the wedding date. After three weeks, only an announcement will be printed.

Wedding write-ups will be printed through the first week with a five by seven picture. During the second week with a wallet size picture and write-up giving less description and after the second week, just as an announcement. Wedding forms and pictures should be returned to "The Daily Reflector" one week prior to the date of the wedding. All information should be typed or written neatly.

CHICKEN LIVERS
A savory dish with diet servings given.

1 pound chicken livers
2 teaspoons vegetable oil
1 teaspoon granulated sugar
1/4 cup soy sauce
1 1/2 tablespoons red wine vinegar
6 to 8 drops Tabasco sauce
1/4 cup minced scallions or green onions

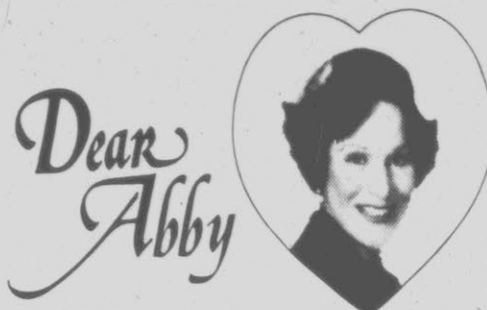

Rinse livers, discarding any bits of fat that cling to them, and pat dry with paper towels. Line a broiler pan with aluminum foil; arrange livers in pan and broil 4 inches from heat source for 4 minutes on each side. While livers cook, combine remaining ingredients in a small bowl; divide into 4 smaller bowls. To serve, center a bowl of the tart soy dip on each serving plate and surround with livers. For diet serving allow one fourth of recipe. Per diet serving: 182 calories, 23 grams protein, 9 grams fat, 6 grams carbohydrate. Reprinted by permission from Redbook magazine.

Dear Abby

Plaid Slacks Are Out!

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Please help resolve a crisis that is threatening my relationship with my girlfriend. She says that only two kinds of men wear plaid slacks in this day and age — golfers and old men. I am 23, and I happen to like plaid slacks. We await your opinion.

IN A PLAID PANIC

DEAR IN: Plaid slacks are out! But don't let that bother you. If you like plaid slacks (and are thin enough), go ahead and wear 'em.

DEAR ABBY: I'm surprised at the pastor who thinks it is "sacrilegious for a couple to say 'I do' after they have already done it."

Done what? The vows "I do" are to love, honor, obey, cherish, etc. I could find no references in either civil or religious marriage texts to sexual intimacy or pregnancy. So the bride was obviously with child. So what? If they have already loved, honored, etc., is it sacrilegious to repeat those vows before God and witnesses? The ceremony is a mutual commitment to moral values — not a medical report.

So why the fuss? Here is a loving couple making the holiest vow of all: to bring their child into the world together, "legitimately," and with as much chance for a normal life as God gives any of us. This is wrong?

A rite is only as good as the wrongs it corrects or prevents, and you are right on, Abby.

P.D. IN L.A.

DEAR P.D.: Apropos brides who are with child, read on:

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are faced with a problem we don't know how to handle. Our first child, now 12, was born seven months after our wedding. I'm sure she's already put two and two together, but hasn't said anything yet. If she asks, should I give her that "premature baby" story and hope she buys it?

EMBARRASSED

DEAR EMBARRASSED: No. Tell her the truth.

DEAR ABBY: I live on a canal in Florida, and my husband and friends go fishing quite often. My problem is that when he brings fish home I cannot help crying because I feel so sorry for the fish.

Am I the only person who feels this way?

SAVE THE FISH!

DEAR SAVE: You are not alone. I'll bet a lot of my readers will take the bait on this one.

DEAR ABBY: Why all the fuss about whether "I feel bad" or "I feel badly" is correct? Why not say, "I feel lousy," and let it go at that?

Question of Jobs?

In Ohio, the United Rubber Workers union is engaged in talks with the big tire makers; it's contract time.

Under present terms, tire workers at the big firms earn an average of $11.50 an hour, plus $6 to $8 an hour in benefits. It's a living.

One would think that with the present state of the economy ... so many people unemployed and even auto workers happy to accept reduced pay scales in order to keep their industry (and jobs) afloat — a new contract would be easy to write. It does not seem that way to the URW, which has expressed no intention of concessions and, yes, there will be additional demands.

Many industries have closed their plants because operating costs overwhelmed them, and thousands of workers became unemployed. We shudder at how many might be termed unemployable in other fields.

This is not a good season for unions to press for more, and more and more.

Good News, and Bad News

Good News ... bad news. The good news is that the recession has meant that motorists in North Carolina are driving less and therefore there are fewer traffic deaths. It is reported that there have been 37 percent fewer highway fatalities in the state this year than at the same time next year.

The bad news? That will come later when the decreased driving shows up in Highway Fund collections as less than projected.

But, too, the decreased driving in North Carolina, the rest of the nation and the world has left the oil-producing nations with a glut that is bringing down energy prices.

And all that means the back of inflation is virtually broken, at least for the present.

There are favorable and unfavorable sides to every question, and perhaps in this case the good outweighs the bad.

YES, BUT MUST THEY LEAN OVER BACKWARDS?

Reagan Now Is A Suitor

By JAMES GERSTENZANG
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — For years they were best of friends: Ronald Reagan and the hard-core members of the nation's conservative movement.

But now, Reagan finds himself the suitor as the conservatives, who once sought him as their candidate, are less infatuated with Reagan the president.

The conservatives are trying to hold Reagan's feet to the fire — on the budget, on taxes, on national defense, on White House and administration personnel, on such emotional issues as abortion and school busing and school prayer. Apparently, from the president's remarks, he is feeling the heat.

He paid a recent call on the annual meeting of the Conservative Political Action Conference in Washington and repeatedly talked about "we conservatives" and his "conservative administration."

David R. Gergen, Reagan's assistant for communications, felt the president accomplished what he set out to do with his audience: "He made it very clear he was still very much with them and extremely grateful for the support he's been given."

But, said Gergen, Reagan also tried to get across the need to "build for a majority and take into account the concerns of a majority of Americans."

Nearly every day at the White House, John D. Lofton Jr., editor of the monthly Conservative Digest, shows up to remind Gergen and deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes what the conservative position is on whatever issue happens to be under discussion in the daily press briefing. If Lofton senses a divergence between the conservative line and Reagan, he makes it clear.

And this month, his magazine devoted its issue to the question of just how conservative the Reagan administration is.

The publisher is Richard A. Viguier, who gained prominence as an expert direct mail fund-raiser for the so-called New Right. In an open letter to Reagan, Viguier told the president he immediately should remove from the administration "many of the people who do not share your deepest beliefs and philosophy from the senior positions they now hold in the White House and key departments and agencies."

Elsewhere in the magazine, quotations from Reagan aides, as reported recently, were reprinted under the heading: "With Friends Like These Who Needs Enemies?" The quotations weren't flattering and the magazine asked, "Can you imagine how long Ike or JFK or LBJ or RN or Jimmy Carter would have allowed their White House aides to bad mouth them to the press?"

Here's a sample of the quotations: — "He probably spends two or three hours at most on real work."

— "There are times when you really need him to do some work, and all he wants to do is tell stories about his movie days."

— "It's never been a question of his work capacity or his stamina. It's always been a question of his interest level."

Still, the conservatives seem to recognize that Reagan is the only president they've got and paid tribute to him on page after page of their banquet program.

There were salutes from the Young Americans for Freedom, the American Conservative Union, Human Events (a conservative weekly newspaper), Fund for a Conservative Majority and other conservative organizations.

The annual dinner was the ninth held by the conservative groups, and the seventh Reagan attended.

In his speech, Reagan did little to quell the bubbling discontent among staunch conservatives. He made no reference to complaints about personnel, and only passing reference to the sensitive social issues he rarely discusses in public except when asked.

Deep into his address, which focused on the economy and budget, Reagan told the 1,200 guests, who paid $100 each: "There are other issues before us. This administration is unalterably opposed to the forced busing of school children, just as we also support Constitutional protection for the right of prayer in our schools."

He said "we must with calmness and resolve help the vast majority of our fellow Americans understand" that abortions are "a great moral evil."

And there was some more punchy rhetoric for conservative consumption. What could be a more Reagan-like statement than his talk about "sob sister attempts to portray our desire to get government spending under control as a hard-hearted attack on the poor people of America?"

As they keep trying to remind the president or his aides about his conservative roots and their long-time support for him, Reagan's conservative friends might remember some recent evidence.

In recent months, when splits have developed among Reagan's advisers along moderate-conservative lines, he has sent out signals that he would take a moderate course. But suddenly, often at the last moment, the word comes out: The president has

System 'Bypassed'

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — Bureaucratic officialdom is still fighting over whether certain state employees should or shouldn't have to pay monthly commuter fees for use of a state car.

Many state officials are assigned fulltime use of vehicles. They drive them to and from work. In the past the explanation has been that those officials were "on call" any time and might need wheels.

Recently, though, the General Assembly decided that most of those who drive state-owned cars ought to pay the monthly fee to defray costs, if they wished to keep the public vehicle at their regular disposal.

Obviously law enforcement officers fall in the category of people who are, indeed, on call and should be exempted from that new rule. An amendment to the law was adopted to that effect.

Working? But the argument now has developed whether top-ranking Highway Patrol officials working in headquarters in Raleigh qualify as on-duty law enforcement officers, and thereby should get a free ride back and forth to work.

Those officers are not patrolling the roads on a regular basis as are the troopers. But they are in uniform, and as sworn officers they are expected to take action should they see the law being violated.

And so the debate is running, now. A bigger question is contained in that current argument over who should and who shouldn't pay the commuter fee, however.

It is whether the General Assembly should be passing and amending laws "in the dark". The amendment to the commuter fee regulation was slipped into the middle of a paragraph buried deep within the legalese of the last state budget and appropriations package, worded so that even if an inquisitive member of the Legislature or the public happened upon it, they wouldn't have known what it was all about.

This is an outstanding example of a fairly recent trend in the North Carolina General Assembly of making law in the budget. The practice is even more worrisome when it is recalled that 10 of the 12 members of the Governor's Advisory Budget Commission which is deeply engaged in writing the budget proposal are also powerful committee chairmen and leaders in the General Assembly. To put it bluntly — they have both the opportunity and the means of getting things done "in the dark", and the power to push things through without challenge. Add to that the fact that the budget proposal is normally adopted intact because to begin challenging it and breaking it up would cause the entire house of cards to collapse.

Buried Furthermore, tucking the proposal in the budget book effectively bypasses the normal legislative committee process. Under general operating rules, any legislative proposal is assigned to a committee or two on which serve lawmakers supposed to be interested and knowledgeable in given areas. The proposal should then be subject to study and debate, even public hearing if that seems in order.

Using the budget provisions for lawmaking bypasses that system and while in the past there have been times when items of a pressing or emergency nature were hurriedly slipped into law by the budget route, most observers agree that doing this routinely is causing serious trouble. A number of states

A Caribbean Basin Plan

WASHINGTON — President Reagan's address of Feb. 24, outlining his proposed Caribbean Basin policy, provided only a one-day story for the press. Such is the nature of news. The program deserves more extended comment and analysis, partly because it gives us a useful insight into Mr. Reagan's whole approach to foreign policy.

The Caribbean policy is modestly innovative. It is not notably brilliant, or novel, or bold. Only a single paragraph contains even a faint echo of a saber rattling. The program makes no pretensions toward the historic status of a Marshall Plan. What we have here is a thoughtful, constructive outline for helping our Caribbean neighbors to help themselves.

elements: free trade for Caribbean products, tax incentives for U.S. investment, supplemental economic aid, and new programs of technical assistance and training for the private sector in the Basin countries.

None of these elements is radical. Mr. Reagan's plan for a 12-year suspension of duties on Caribbean exports, for example, is carefully qualified. Textile exports would not be covered; sugar would receive duty-free treatment "but only up to a certain limit in order to protect the U.S. domestic sugar price program." Particular care would be taken to protect the economic interests of Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands.

The administration's promise of tax incentives is not precisely defined. Says the White House: "An example of a possible tax measure is a five-year legislative extension of the domestic investment tax credit for up to 10 percent of the amount of a fixed asset investment in the countries of the region." Before even this inchoate plan could be put into operation, new executive agreements would have to be reached with the participating nations.

As for supplemental economic aid, Mr. Reagan requests $350 million in the current fiscal year. It is a substantial sum, but spread among 20 nations with a population of 39 million, it cannot fairly be described as a massive giveaway. His ideas on technical assistance, especially in agriculture, are equally in scale. The package offers nothing grandiose — and this is exactly as it should be. Leftist critics in the Caribbean area will be hard put to charge Yankee imperialism. Indeed, searching for something to complain about, these critics may well contend that too little is proposed.

Persons who are familiar with the pride, the poverty and the perils of the Caribbean are likely to find the president's program just about right. Latin Americans bitterly resent the least suggestion of dominance by their great and powerful neighbor to the north. Yet they acknowledge their almost desperate need for help. As

Other Editors Say The Sales Tax

(Southern Pines Pilot)

As far as state and local officials are concerned, the sales tax is painless. The poor, on whom the tax falls the heaviest, don't protest as much as big property owners or those of high income. And it's a tax that comes in small amounts at the time without even being mentioned, but its total yield is terrifically high.

Thus it's understandable that both state and local officials are looking fondly at another increase in the sales tax in North Carolina, and it appears almost inevitable that such an increase will soon be coming.

The trouble is that both county commissioners and state legislators want that extra cent — the commissioners seeing it as a way to keep property taxes low and the legislators as the way out of a financial crunch which might entail raising the state's income tax levels.

The Moore County Board of Education got in on the act by voting to support not only a county $10 million bond issue referendum, but an additional state sales tax, with a portion of the tax designated for construction of school facilities. It's a way of touching all bases, but the board may find itself in conflict with county commissioners who would like to have that sales tax all to themselves.

It is doubtful that any of these officials give consideration to the fact that the sales tax is a regressive tax and is a significant item for those who have to watch pennies in their spending.

It has been nearly 50 years since North Carolina first imposed the sales tax, and when it was levied it was called a "temporary" tax. Within a few years that "temporary" status was forgotten, although the state did remove the sales tax from food and that exemption continued for 20 years until during the administration of Governor Terry Sanford it was re-imposed on food in order to finance Sanford's "quality education" program.

There are people in the Legislature who feel that if an extra cent is added to the sales tax that food should again be exempted, but these people are not now in the majority, and it will take a great deal of persuasion to secure an exemption. There are not many lobbyists for poor people around the legislative halls in Raleigh.

There is little doubt that funds are needed for school facilities in Moore County, but educators should be as mindful of the plight of the poor as they are of their own needs.

Strength For Today

PROPULSION POWER In the days of sailing vessels a ship becalmed was completely paralyzed. The becalming of ships, however, as far as the industrial nations are concerned, has become a thing of the past. Even sailing ships today have auxiliary engines. And most of these ships have been succeeded by completely self-propelled vessels — not so romantic, perhaps, but much more secure and powerful.

There is something tremendously reassuring in the realization that we have within our hearts the power to achieve what we must achieve. Self-propelled engines, of course, do not run automatically; they are powered by some fuel. And human lives do not run automatically; they are empowered by a Spirit from on high. The point is that this power is not a vague something which may or may not propel them, but a definite, promised propulsion which is always there so long as the engine is kept in repair.

That is our responsibility. — Elisha Douglass

Housing: Just Color It Gray

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — While housing and financing interests are badgering congressmen for financial assistance, known less charitably as bailout or handout money, the news about their industry gets worse and worse.

Perhaps the nastiest blow of all was word that home mortgage rates climbed in February, ending three months of slow but mildly encouraging declines. A standard home mortgage now averages about 17.5 percent.

The precise figure for February, as reported by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, was 17.49 percent, which was only 0.16 percent higher than in January. But the direction was all wrong. It meant bad became worse.

Adding discouragement was the setting in which the increase came: The federal government has been proclaiming its certainty that interest rates will fall, and indeed some have, but not home mortgage rates.

A year or so ago mortgage rates were about 3 percent — points lower than now, and that makes a monthly difference of more than $100 a month on a $50,000, 25-year note, enough to destroy many a planned purchase.

While the FHLBB was announcing its bad news, Standard & Poor's Corp. released some of its own. It put four home-product companies, all well-known national concerns, on what it calls its Credit Watch list.

Companies get that designation while being scrutinized for possible downgrading. While the reasons varied from company to company, in each instance the housing market decline may have had much to do with it.

Named by S&P were GAF Corp., Manville Corp., National Gypsum Co. and Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp., among the biggest names in homebuilding markets and, until the downturn, ranked among the bluest of blue chips.

The outlook for improvement doesn't seem good either. Attitudes about homebuying remain so deeply depressed they are almost off the charts.

The University of Michigan's winter "Economic Outlook USA" shows that in December "just 18 percent of consumers rated house buying conditions favorably." While December might seem far in the past, the data isn't necessarily dated. Little has occurred to improve the mood.

When you listen to Jack Carlson — and it is hard not to listen to a person who has done so much homework on the subject — you tend to get gloomier. The gloom is worsened by the realization that Carlson, chief economist and executive vice president of the National Association of Realtors, had been speaking optimistically as recently as December.

Disillusioned, Carlson now comments: "The high mortgage interest rates will continue to hold the housing market in a depressed state." It will continue, he says, "until the administration and Congress acknowledge the severe condition that exists in the housing market."

He maintains that, "By every measure, dimensions of this overall downturn are massive and surpass any other housing depression of the post-World War Two era and now rival the experiences of the 1930s."

As a professional economist, Carlson has a way with statistics, and he offers some:

—"For the first 39 months of the current housing depression cycle, an estimated 3.2 million families have been unable to purchase homes. The value of lost home sales exceeds $29 billion, while housing-related jobs have declined by over 2 million."

—Based on January prices, the median priced home has declined by 4.4 percent from 1981, the largest decline in the years since World War II. But, when sellers offer financing at 12 percent instead of 17 percent, he argues, "the actual real decline in median price is lowering the value of the home by as much as 25 percent."

Why go on? There is almost no limit to the bad news. You could, for example, mention a study by Douglas Elliman-Gibbons & Ives, the biggest broker of cooperative apartments New York, that shows declining prices.

Why it was only a year ago that tenants were desperate to buy nice Manhattan apartments for $100,000 a room, fearful that if they didn't get in on the action they would miss out on the ride to $200,000.

SHP To Investigate Trooper's Allegation

WHITEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — A State Highway Patrol investigation into allegations that a trooper accused prominent North Carolinians of drug dealings will be limited to the trooper's conduct, says a patrol official.

Maj. Glenn Russell said Wednesday the patrol would merely try to discover whether or not the Trooper J.H. Lee accused District Court Judge J. Wilton Hunt, Whiteville attorney Marvin Tedder, and Columbus County Attorney Ed Walton Williamson of involvement with drugs. He said the patrol would not investigate the allegations themselves.

"We're just investigating any possible misconduct on the part of the trooper. The other investigation is up to someone else," he said.

A defendant in a traffic-court case, Edward Murray Inman of Cary, said in court March 2 that trooper Lee asked him whether he knew of drug dealings by Hunt, Tedder and Williamson.

Hunt, who was presiding over Inman's Columbus County District Court trial on driving under the influence charges, cleared the courtroom and questioned Inman in private after Inman brought up the trooper's alleged claims.

According to a transcript of the discussion that was made public by court order, Inman told Hunt and Tedder that Lee asked him about drug dealings and said he wanted to bring in the State Bureau of Investigation to "clean up this mess down here." Inman said Lee indicated he knew the three men were involved with drugs but couldn't prove it.

Russell, director of patrol internal affairs, said the decision to conduct the investigation was made after a meeting Wednesday between him and Maj. D.L. Matthews, director of patrol field operations for Eastern North Carolina.

Russell said the patrol would interview Lee and other witnesses and would review the trial transcripts.

He said a report would be submitted to the patrol commander, who will decide if further action is necessary. He said Lee has not been suspended. The investigation is expected to take about a week.

County To Get 'Found' Money

WACO, Texa (AP) — A stash of money that two teen-agers said they dug up on a south Texas ranch has been awarded to McLennan County, settling a five-year dispute that involved the IRS and the state.

U.S. District Judge Fred Shannon awarded the money to the county Wednesday. Lawyers for the teen-agers, James D. Bridges and Percy A. Garcia, said they would appeal the ruling.

Bridges and Garcia claimed the cash along with McLennan County, the Internal Revenue Service and the state of Texas.

The money, which has increased to more than $700,000 in deposits at two Waco banks, was awarded to the county on the basis of a 1981 jury decision that the teen-agers had stolen it, said District Attorney Felipe Reyna.

The youths, found with $483,604 in the trunk of a new car when they were stopped for a traffic violation on Jan. 31, 1977, said they dug up the money in $20, $50 and $100 bills from a hiding place on the ranch of Bridges' father near Alice.

Bridges' father, James Hiroma, a welder and race-horse owner, refused to tell authorities where the money came from.

Mr. Reagan observed, one barrel of imported oil in 1977 was worth five pounds of coffee or 155 pounds of sugar; in order to buy that same barrel of oil today, the importing nations must pay 26 pounds of coffee or 283 pounds of sugar. This way lies disaster.

In his Feb. 24 address the president spoke to the peril created by continuing Soviet adventurism in the area. "Economic progress cannot be made while guerrillas systematically burn, bomb and destroy bridges, farms and power and transportation systems." Cuba and its Soviet backers seek nothing less than to establish Marxist-Leninist dictatorships throughout the Caribbean, with the consequent extinction of political freedoms.

"If we do not act promptly and decisively in defense of freedom," the president said, "new Cubas will arise from the ruins of today's conflicts... Let our friends and our adversaries understand that we will do whatever is prudent and necessary to ensure the peace and security of the Caribbean area."

The key words there are "prudent" and "necessary." Not a syllable suggests any

Britain To Buy U.S. Tridents

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's Cabinet today gave the go ahead to buy the advanced U.S. Trident II nuclear missile system to replace the Royal Navy's aging Polaris submarine fleet, government sources said.

The sources said Defense Secretary John Nott would make a full statement on the decision later today in the House of Commons.

There was no immediate announcement on cost. But it is expected to total more than $12.7 billion over the next 15 years. Critics, including the major opposition Labor and Social Democratic Parties, estimated the cost could be as high as $18 billion.

The plan calls for the Royal Navy to get a fleet of four submarines carrying 16 Trident D-5 missiles, each with 14 nuclear warheads.

The Campaign for Nuclear Disarmament today called for a referendum which it claimed would show a majority of Britons against Trident.

"The peace movement will not rest until Trident in any form has been canceled and the government has been forced to think again before playing with our lives, our jobs and our future," it said.

Government sources earlier confirmed reports that Washington has offered to give Britain some of the subcontracts for developing Trident to create jobs here and make the deal more attractive.

Britain's former Chief of Defense Staff, Lord Carver, and ex-Navy Minister Keith Speed — who was sacked by Mrs. Thatcher — are among several distinguished defense experts who oppose the purchase on grounds it will leave Britain unable to afford adequate conventional weapons.

The Labor Party has pledged to scrap the deal if it is returned to power at the next general election, due by early 1984.

Opinion polls also show opposition to Trident. An Opinion Research Center poll released Feb. 26 showed 63 percent of the 1,040 people questioned opposed it, and 53 percent thought Britain should not even keep its present outdated nuclear force.

Defending the proposed D-5 purchase from against mounting opposition, Nott argued recently that Britain needed the system in case the NATO alliance collapsed over the next 40 years.

Apart from the United States, Britain and France are the only members of the 15-nation Western alliance to maintain independent nuclear deterrents.

"In the end we must be responsible for our own defense rather than shuffling it off on to the Americans," Nott said earlier this month.

President And Wife Booed At Ballet

By JAMES GERSTENZANG
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan and his wife were booed by several members of the audience when they entered the presidential box at the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts to watch a performance of the Joffrey Ballet.

A similar demonstration greeted the Reagans when they returned to their box after the first of two intermissions Wednesday night.

It was impossible to determine how many people were booing, but it was a small percentage of the capacity audience of 2,200. However, the boos came from several sections of the auditorium and were clearly audible along with the traditional applause that greets a president on such occasions.

An official who has been with Kennedy Center since it opened in 1971 said it was the first time a president has been booed there. Each president since Richard M. Nixon has visited the center.

It also marked the first time since Reagan became president that he has been greeted with boos in a public appearance — except by participants in planned demonstrations.

As he left the box during the second intermission, Reagan was asked by reporters why the booing occurred. Before he could answer, his wife said, "It was just one young boy, just one young boy."

The president added: "He probably had a broken spring in his seat."
The Kennedy Center official, who asked that he not be identified by name, said he would "certainly agree" that more than one person was booing.

Deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes said today, in reaction to the incidents, "I think people who went to the ballet were ladies and gentlemen, patrons of the arts."

He said he was "shocked and surprised that people who would go to the ballet would engage in that sort of thing. A hockey game, yes. A ballet, no."

The Reagans initially entered their box, on the first tier over the orchestra seating level, just before the curtain rose. The house lights were already dim, but television camera lights shined on the box.

There was no announcement that the Reagans were attending, but the presidential seal had been placed on the front of the box.

As the Reagans entered, the booing began and, like the applause, continued for several seconds.

According to a note in the program, the evening's performance was in honor of International Afghanistan Day on March 21 and was dedicated "to the people of Afghanistan who are fighting for their freedom."

The Kennedy Center official reported that Robert Joffrey, the company director, said the note was placed in the program at the specific request of the White House.

The audience included Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, who stayed for a black-tie reception during an intermission but left just before the final dance.

That final number, "The Green Table," is an anti-war statement portraying diplomats at a peace conference followed by scenes of war, refugees and the aftermath of war and, finally, diplomats negotiating again.

As he shook hands with the dancers backstage after the performance, Reagan was asked about the performance.

"I liked all of it," he said. Then, referring to the final ballet, he added: "I'd never seen that before and was anticipating it."

Spying a central figure in the dance, dressed in a war helmet, with his face covered with black and white geometric designs, Reagan said: "There's the bad guy."

"You were wonderful," Mrs. Reagan told the costumed dancer.
The ballet company, celebrating its 25th anniversary this year, performs a mixture of classical and experimental dances. The Reagans' son, Ron, dances with the Joffrey II company, an offshoot of the Joffrey Ballet.

Andean Terrorists Exploding Bombs

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — At least eight bombs exploded today in the capital, and one person was reported killed and four others injured in an explosion at the presidential palace, police said.

In neighboring Peru, terrorists tossed dynamite at the presidential palace in Lima on Wednesday night, there were two other attacks in Peru, and a right-wing death squad in Colombia claimed responsibility for the murder of a lawyer.

In Bogota, a bomb-laden car ditched on President Julio Cesar Turbay Ayala's front lawn exploded 10 minutes before his arrival Wednesday night. Police said two presidential guards and three passers-by were wounded. One of the wounded later died, police said.

The 19th of April Movement, Colombia's most active leftist guerrilla group, said it was responsible for the attack. It apparently was part of a campaign to sabotage parliamentary elections next Sunday and the presidential election May 30.

Police said at least eight more bombs were set off this morning in Bogota. There were no injuries reported in those explosions.

In Lima, terrorists hurled five lighted dynamite sticks onto the roof of the presidential palace with slingshots, an ancient Indian weapon. President Fernando Belaunde Terry and his wife were in another wing of the palace, and nobody was hurt.

The police said the dynamite was fired from the roof of a hotel across from the palace. Police sources said six suspects were arrested in the hotel, including a 23-year-old Austrian.

Peruvian police said another explosion Wednesday night destroyed a transmission line from a power station southeast of Lima, causing a partial blackout in many parts of the city. They said terrorists also attacked a residential area in Ayacucho, a peasant town in the Andean foothills 360 miles southeast of the Peruvian capital.

An estimated $800 damage resulted to each of two vehicles involved in a 12:20 p.m. collision Wednesday at the intersection of Greenville Boulevard and Bismark Street.

Greenville police identified the drivers involved as Harry Davis Lockey of Route 2, Newport, and Lorain Leslie Lynch of Winterville.

Hoax Or Not- Gets Answer

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Capt. Carl Gilchrist likes to respond to all the letters — especially complaints — he receives as commander of the 22-county Highway Patrol Troop A.

However, he's finding it difficult to respond in person to a complaint received Wednesday, which was signed "A Pitt Conty Citizen," with no return address.

The letter, addressed to "Captin Gill Christ," said "I unnerstans you ar en charge uv the putrolmans in this ara. I wants to make a complot to you bout them. I works hard for mi money and luv to drank a little bit on weakens. It has got hear lately errytime I get on the rode after drankin a beer on uv yor mens stops me to see ifn Im drunk. I no yall hav a job to do but it look lik you cud let us hard wurking people hav sumfun on weakend."

The writer, pointing out that "my taxes pay yos salry a I think you cud let me enjoy my beer," said "Last saddy nite I wuz levin a joint and I hadn gon 2 mile for I seen 3 putrol cars an it wuz neerly 2 a.m. in the morning. I think you ar jus tring to sceer us hard working people frum drankin. I tol mi wif I rekin I wuz jus goin to have to quit mi drankin an start goin to church. Yor putrolmans is to tuff for me."

Most members of the Troop A office staff here feel the letter is a hoax.

But the captain's response would be the same, even if the letter was felt to be "real."

"We're not after any one person," Gilchrist said, "and not trying to scare anyone from drinking. We're simply trying to enforce the law and hopefully, in doing so, make North Carolina's highways a safer place to drive."

"But at the same time, we want the people who drink excessively and drive to know that there's a good chance one of our troopers will be there to stop them."

The Highway Patrol statewide is cracking down on drinking drivers, Gilchrist explained, because drinking and driving leads to more accidents and fatalities than any other single cause.

During 1981, the Highway Patrol in North Carolina arrested 48,096 persons on driving under the influence charges, while in Pitt County, 644 drivers were charged with DUI. In January and February of this year, 130 persons were arrested by troopers in Pitt on DUI charges.

"It's simply a case of enforcing the law," Gilchrist emphasized, "and trying to reduce the number of traffic accidents."

Industry Scores Two On Revision Of Clean Air Act

By WILLIAM KRONHOLM
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — After months of inaction, a House panel is moving swiftly to rewrite the Clean Air Act with supporters of the industry position firmly in control. Procedural votes in the House Energy and Commerce subcommittee on health and the environment have indicated 12 of the panel's 20 members support an industry-backed bill. And on Wednesday, the panel rejected two amendments opposed by industry.

One would have required new pollution controls on coal-burning power plants as an attempt to deal with acid rain, and the other would have continued the current program of testing of automobiles in urban areas to ensure their pollution control equipment is working.

Technically, the Clean Air Act expired last September. But the requirements of the moribund act will remain in effect until a new bill is approved by Congress.

The Reagan administration and the National Environmental Development

Association, industry's chief lobbying organization on the Clean Air Act, support the bill that is being considered by the House panel. Supporters say the bill, introduced by Rep. Thomas Luken, D-Ohio, would streamline the act.

Environmental lobbyists disagree vehemently with industry's description of the bill as "balanced and moderate," but they have been unable to muster more than eight votes for amendments changing it to their liking.

Four Democrats, including Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., are among those supporting the industry position. Dingell is chairman of the full Energy and Commerce Committee.

A group of environmental lobbyists was scheduled to meet today with House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., to explain that his party is not following through on its stated commitment to environmental protection.

Meanwhile, the Senate Environment Committee planned to work on the Clean Air Act revisions today. The Republican-controlled panel generally is taking the opposite tack of the House subcommittee, rejecting efforts to make major changes in the air pollution law.

Rep. Toby Moffett, D-Conn., proposed the amendments to retain the current auto testing program and to require the pollution controls on coal-burning power plants.

The subcommittee's 14-6 vote on the auto testing puts the panel on record as favoring a weaker program that concentrates testing on commercial vehicles. Private autos generally could be excluded from testing until 1987 unless a state wanted to include them.

By a 13-7 vote, the panel rejected an effort to reduce emissions of sulfur dioxide in states east of the Mississippi River.

Sulfur dioxide, which comes chiefly from burning coal, is believed by most scientists to be the chief culprit in the formation of acid rain. But opponents say more study is needed before any action against acid rain is taken.

Moffett told the subcommittee that the industry-backed bill before the panel was "an extraordinarily destructive package in terms of what it does to air quality in urban areas." He said the auto inspection programs are needed to ensure that auto pollution controls work.

But Rep. William E. Dannemeyer, R-Calif., said the current "draconian" program of auto inspections imposes unduly harsh penalties and burdens on consumers. "The benefit of inspection and maintenance is not really what it's cracked up to be," he said.

The acid rain proposal would have required a reduction of 10 million tons a year in sulfur dioxide emissions from smokestacks in the 31 eastern states by 1990.

Moffett conceded his proposal would be expensive, particularly to Midwestern power plants that now generate most of the sulfur dioxide. He said the cost might be $3 billion a year.

Dingell said the proposal would cost electric utility customers in the Midwest billions of dollars. He said not enough is known about acid rain to justify such drastic action.

"We might go through the whole exercise before us ... and still wind up with an acid rain problem every bit as bad as it is now," he said.

Dubious Over Dead Cat Sale

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Mecklenburg County officials think they've come up with a 102nd way to use cat corpses, but the idea isn't going over well with the county's Animal Shelter Advisory Committee.

A popular book says there are 101 uses for a dead cat. The author, of course, was being facetious, but Assistant Mecklenburg County Manager Hal Marshall is serious about selling the corpses to fatten the county's coffers.

Carolina Biological Supply Co. pays $4 for each dead cat the county can provide. The company's customers are biology, veterinary and pre-medical students.

About 75 cats that are killed each month at the county Animal Shelter fit the company's requirements for carcasses. At that rate, the county could raise $3,600 a year, which would pay the annual food bill for animals at the shelter, said Marshall.

However, the Animal Shelter Advisory Committee opposes the plan.

"We do not feel that any income received from this source would be sufficient to risk adverse publicity from the public in the event this would be brought to light by the media," said committee chairman Patti E. Lewis. "This is a very emotional issue and could cause a great deal of embarrassment for everyone."

Ms. Lewis cited the uproar two years ago when city officials had to gas several hundred cats that did not have licenses.

"We realize the animals are dead but we feel that pets are an emotional issue. It would give us a negative image," said Ms. Lewis, who also heads the Humane Society of Charlotte, which is also opposed to the proposal.

Carolina Biological Supply Co., based in Burlington, buys cat carcasses from Charlotte, Burlington and Guilford and Alamance counties. Authorities in those areas told Mecklenburg County officials they are satisfied with the firm.

Charlotte Animal Shelter officials have been selling dead cats for about six months.

Times Saved By Layoffs

LONDON (AP) — Publisher Rupert Murdoch said today he has decided not to close the London Times, 197-year-old flagship of the British press, because printing and clerical unions agreed to his demand for cost-cutting layoffs.

"I am happy to say that the Times is saved," he told reporters at London's Heathrow airport before boarding a flight to New York.

"Whether it is saved for all time depends of course on economic factors as it does in any business," he added.

Murdoch said he had won union agreement to an immediate reduction of 360 jobs at the Times and its sister weekly The Sunday Times, and expected that within six months a total of 1,000 employees would be cut from the papers' total full-time staff of 2,600.

The Australian publishing tycoon — whose empire includes the Sun and News of the World in Britain and the New York Post and the San Antonio Express and News in the United States — had demanded some 600 immediate job cuts as a condition of continuing to publish the Times newspapers.

He blamed overmanning at the two papers as a key factor in their losses of the equivalent of $27.15 million a year.

On Wednesday, the Times management said officials of the National Society of Operative Printers, Graphical and Media Personnel had "overwhelmingly" approved an agreement reached last Friday to cut some 200 clerical jobs.

DISCUSSES BELUSHI DEATH — Los Angeles Police Chief Daryl Gates talks to reporters Wednesday afternoon shortly after county

Coroner Thomas Noguchi released a statement saying actor John Belushi had died due to injections of heroin and cocaine. (AP Laserphoto)

Belushi Death Due Drug 'OD'

By LINDA DEUTSCH
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Comedian John Belushi died of an overdose of injected heroin and cocaine, authorities said, and three of his associates reportedly said he had been using the drugs for years.

Both drugs were found in the Sunset Strip bungalow where Belushi was found dead, Los Angeles County Coroner Thomas Noguchi said Wednesday.

Three unidentified show business colleagues who said they knew Belushi well were quoted by The Los Angeles Times today as saying he had been injecting himself with heroin for the past two years.

"He was shooting heroin and that was all he was shooting. He was snorting cocaine," one of the producers, who requested anonymity, told the Times. But the three, a studio executive and two producers, said he did not normally mix the two drugs in injections.

The three also said they urged Belushi, whom they described as "alert and dependable" while working, to get off heroin. The actor had promised them he would "straighten out," the Times reported.

Belushi's wife, Judy, was instrumental in keeping him away from heroin, and "If she had been with him, he'd still be alive today," one of the producers said.

Meanwhile, a doctor who had treated Belushi said the portly comic had been warned that an allergy he suffered would increase the chance of respiratory failure if he used cocaine.

Belushi, whose popularity on TV's "Saturday Night Live" launched a movie career that included "Animal House," died Friday at the age of 33, and police initially said he appeared to have died of natural causes. But an autopsy Saturday failed to show the cause of death, and more tests on blood and tissue samples were conducted.

In a statement read by his secretary Wednesday, Noguchi said:

"The deceased died of an overdose due to intravenous injections of heroin and cocaine. Both the cocaine and heroin were found on the premises."

Police Chief Daryl Gates also broke the department's silence on the case Wednesday.

"We determined right at the outset it appeared to be an overdose," he said. "There appeared to be cocaine and there appeared to be heroin. There was a substance found there and it was found to be cocaine."

Gates said he doubted charges would be filed relating to either Belushi's death or the drugs at the scene of the $200-a-day bungalow Belushi had rented at the Chateau Marmont hotel. Belushi's physical trainer, William Wallace, found the nude body sprawled on a bed.

Gates said police who told reporters the death appeared to be from natural causes didn't know about the drug discoveries.

A woman who was with the comedian before he died — identified by Gates as Evelyn Smith — probably could not be shown to have forced the drugs on Belushi, police said.

"Our investigators are pretty well convinced, however he was injected, that it was something he wanted," Gates said.

Belushi, who was known for his manic impersonations and slapstick in the movies "Animal House," "1941" and "The Blues Brothers," sometimes satirized drug use on "Saturday Night Live."

Belushi had an allergy to Novocain that might have included related drugs such as cocaine, said a Beverly Hills physician who had treated him for an ear infection.

The doctor, who asked to remain anonymous, also told The Associated Press on Wednesday that Belushi had been warned his allergy would increase the chance of respiratory failure with cocaine use.

Noguchi has been accused by county officials of sensationalizing the deaths of actors William Holden and Natalie Wood, and he refused to release any information until test results on Belushi were complete.

Ms. Smith, described by Hollywood division Detective Russel Kuster as "in the entertainment industry," was questioned after she drove up to the hotel in Belushi's Mercedes about two hours after his body was discovered.

Police Lt. Dan Cooke said the woman told detectives Belushi awoke about 8 a.m. Friday with trouble breathing and a congested nose. She said she gave him a glass of water, ordered breakfast for him and left.

Belushi, a Chicago native who lived in New York, had flown to Los Angeles last week to discuss a new movie, "Noble Rot," with Paramount Pictures Corp.

He was buried Tuesday on Martha's Vineyard Island off Cape Cod.

Space Shuttle Beating Clock

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — As the space shuttle's countdown preparations continued without incident, its operations director says he sees no trouble in meeting the Columbia's March 22 launch date.

"I don't see any reason why we can't make it," George Page told reporters at a Kennedy Space Center briefing Wednesday.

If needed, Page said, the shuttle's present schedule could absorb about three days in delays from unexpected problems.

In fact, things have gone so well in preparing for the seven-day third mission that Page has suggested moving up the launch of the fourth flight by a week — from July 4 to June 27.

"We have perfected a number of techniques and seen some dramatic improvements," in the turnaround time between the second and third missions, Page said. But he emphasized he was merely suggesting a "preliminary working date" for the next flight.

"It hasn't been locked up," he added.

Only "insignificant" problems have marred an otherwise successful series of operations leading to the start of the five-day launch countdown on March 18, he said. Preparations for the countdown started Tuesday.

"If everything continues to go as planned, the countdown will begin at 4 a.m. on March 18. There are 73 hours of countdown time with 29 hours of built-in holds," he said.

The third mission is being called a "thermal mission" because the shuttle and its cargo will be subjected to extreme temperatures.

Raps Regulating Banks On Check-Hold Policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Federal Reserve Bank official says Congress should not regulate the banking practice of making check depositors wait up to several weeks before they can withdraw the money.

Theodore E. Allison, staff director for the Fed's activities, Wednesday said some banks may make money by holding checks, a practice often characterized as unfair to depositors.

But, he said, a selective bank policy of holding checks is legitimate because it is a way for institutions to protect themselves against losses associated with returned checks.

"The board does not believe that it would be advisable to adopt a legislative or regulatory approach to this practice," he said.

Sen. Christopher J. Dodd, D-Conn., however, told Allison at a hearing of the Senate Banking Committee's subcommittee on consumer affairs that he would introduce legislation on the subject unless the Fed agrees to carry out recommendations made in 1979 by the American Banking Association.

An ABA task force urged the Fed to write all bank directors suggesting that they voluntarily make their customers aware of their holding procedures.

Allison said the Fed will "expand its efforts to investigate possible ways to speed up the handling of return checks."

And he said a bank with a selective policy might take into consideration how well known the depositor is to the bank, the amount of the check, and the average time required for collection and return of unpaid checks between the bank and the paying institution.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Adults over 30 probably remember the school nurse as the lady who measured their height and weight, bandaged skinned knees and provided a place to lie down when they had a headache.

No more.
At Martin Luther King High School in the Germantown section of Philadelphia, Constance Badger and Elaine Sellers are among a new breed of the nation's 30,000 school nurses who are not content with a Band-Aid approach to health and learning.

They still patch knees and keep basic health records. But they also counsel pregnant teens, help overweight students improve their self-image, and work with youngsters whose learning disabilities once meant frequent trips to the nurse's office.

"We look at more than just the physical health stuff," says Ms. Badger. "You look at peer relationships, family relationships, school adjustment, career plans — more of the total person."

An example occurred recently when a teacher referred a 16-year-old girl to Ms. Badger after the child missed three weeks of school. The teen-ager was given a physical and asked for a family health history.

It turned out the girl was missing school because her family was sick. In visits to the home, Ms. Badger found a mother too weak from hunger to leave. The nurse arranged for food stamps and helped the family shop for groceries.

"Given the same situation 15 years ago, I'd still have tried to help," Ms. Badger says. "But now I have the tools to make a much more complete assessment of the child's problems."

The days of just jotting down the results of eye and ear examinations began to end in the 1970s as school nurses pressed for added professional challenges and new laws and changes in the American family simultaneously placed new responsibilities on public schools.

As more mothers took jobs, schools — and their nurses — were left to care for children with chronic illnesses, says Judith Igoe, director of the University of Colorado's School Health Program.

At Martin Luther King High, for example, Ms. Badger and Mrs. Sellers treat 150 youngsters with chronic ailments including epilepsy, sickle cell anemia or mental retardation.

A weakening economy has also placed new burdens on school nurses, says Ms. Igoe. As more and more families feel they can only afford emergency care for their children, they leave routine dental and medical care to schools.

February was a particularly busy month for the nurses at Martin Luther King High. By law, students must be immunized against a long list of contagious diseases. So in a three-day burst, Ms. Badger and Mrs. Sellers gave 2,421 doses of vaccine to students in the gymnasium.

Two federal laws have also added to the workload.

In 1972, pregnant girls and teen-age mothers were given equal rights to an education. There are "hundreds" of teen mothers at 3,500-student Martin Luther King High, and each year about 100 more join the ranks.

In addition to regular sex education classes and pregnancy counseling, Mrs. Sellers, Ms. Badger and a pediatric nurse from the Medical College of Pennsylvania hold special classes for about 20 expectant girls.

"We talk about how it feels to be a teen mother. We go over signs of delivery, types of anesthesia, nutrition, how the baby grows month to month. Most of all, they're encouraged to ask questions of the doctor, not to treat him as God," says Mrs. Sellers.

In another major change, a 1975 federal law entitled handicapped children to a public education. The Educational Testing Service in Princeton, N.J., estimates the law added 2 million such children to the nation's public school rolls.

A short distance from Martin Luther King High is the Joseph E. Hill School for the handicapped, where nurse Peggy McNally and others care for 120 children, some with IQs in the 30s.

A recent afternoon, for instance, found Mrs. McNally crouched on the floor, coaxing a 7-year-old blind girl named Lydia to swallow apple sauce containing her anti-seizure medicine. Lydia has cerebral palsy, so swallowing is difficult. Mrs. McNally must knead the girl's cheeks to get the medicine down.

While the severely handicapped are a special case, there are many students with handicaps that are directly related to learning. Dyslexia, for example, is a nerve disorder that makes it difficult for children to read.

In the past, says Ms. Igoe, such children might have been frequent visitors to her office and considered goof-offs. "Now we feel definitely that he needs to be checked." A common finding: poor self-esteem.

A similar worry led Mrs. Sellers and Ms. Badger to begin offering classes for obese girls. The students are taught about nutrition and examine their eating habits. They're encouraged to get involved in school activities.

A measure of the effectiveness of the new school nurse is that there have been few layoffs this year, even as 55,000 teachers nationwide have lost their jobs.

"Whereas ten years ago the school nurse was an appendage, she is now involved in curriculum development, involved in drug abuse and alcoholism," says David Morrison, a former teacher in San Diego public schools and former principal of schools in Louisville, Ky., and Keane, N.H.

"The school nurse has come a long way from someone you'd see once in a while to someone critical to program planning."

Fire Permit Law

Forest Ranger Mark Webb has issued a reminder that changes in state law regulation open burning prohibits any outside fires during periods when permits are canceled.

"If a person is doing burning in violation of the law, say without a permit or when permits are canceled, we can now require him to extinguish the fire. If he does not, we are authorized to go on the land, put out the fire and send the person responsible for the fire a bill for the cost of extinguishing it. This is a new section to the law and it puts the responsibility for controlling a fire where it belongs — with the owner of the land," says Webb.

Webb said the revised law requires that anyone intending to burn material in or within 500 feet of a wooded area between the hours of midnight and 4 p.m. must first obtain a burning permit. Burning within 100 feet of an occupied dwelling does not require a permit as long as the material being burned is confined within an enclosure, such as a trash burner, or the burning is done in a protected area and watched over by a person equipped with fire tools capable of controlling the fire, such as a charged water hose.

Millions Plan For Retirement

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An estimated 550 million Americans are enrolled in retirement plans other than Social Security, says a life insurance organization report.

The 1981 Pension Facts, an annual publication of the American Council of Life Insurance, says that figure includes half of all full-time workers in commerce and industry and three-fourths of all civilian government employees. The programs they belong to include profit sharing plans providing retirement income.

Self-Protection? Proper Response Still Debated

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — It's midnight. You know it's unwise to be alone on a seldom-traveled street at this hour, but you must be getting home. Suddenly a figure emerges from a dark alley — and you're being assaulted.

What to do? You can violently resist, you can passively submit, you can try to talk the assailant out of it, and chances are no matter what you do there's an "expert" somewhere who would say you're doing the right thing.

But as debate continues on the proper response to an attack, there's one point that has won nearly universal acceptance: Whatever you choose, it's best to be ready before the fact.

Wilmington self-defense instructor Larry Osborne, who has been teaching martial arts for 15 years, favors fighting back. And he says the worst time to learn how is when an attack is in progress.

"Reading about defending yourself just doesn't cut it,"

Osborne said. "You can't learn to swim on dry land, you can't learn to be a good runner unless you run and you won't learn to defend yourself without actually practicing. Everybody talks as if knowing how to defend yourself would be automatic. It's not. You need to learn through simulated combat."

M.C. Teague, chief of the violent crime section of the N.C. Department of Crime Prevention, isn't quite as enthusiastic about meeting physical force in kind, though he admits it sometimes is best.

"Self-defense courses are good if they are taught by a qualified instructor," Teague said. "But don't have a false sense of security. Use self-defense tactics only when you have exhausted all other options."

Once the decision is made to fight the attacker, the victim should hold nothing back, says Osborne, who teaches a course in self-protection at the Wilmington YWCA.

The attacker's eyes are the victim's best target; the nose and throat are other points where injury is relatively easy to inflict. The stomach or ribs are poor targets; it's difficult to make them hurt enough to stop the attacker, Osborne says.

For the untrained, he added, the best response is "to jab them in the eye, kick them in the shin and then run like hell."

"I advocate screaming (and) don't stop," Osborne said. "The noise will attract attention, and will often scare the attacker away."

The victim also can make use of his or her surroundings. "Go for a chair. Go around a tree. Go around anything that will protect you," Osborne said.

Osborne agrees with many law-enforcement officers that it's best to comply with the wishes of an armed attacker. He also discourages the use of protective sprays.

"I don't advocate carrying things like Mace around," he said. "If you're attacked, the weapons are in your purse, and what's the first thing you do when you're attacked? You drop the purse."

"Whistles can be great for starting races and dealing with obscene phone calls, but as a means of protection, the best thing is to yell 'fire.' Few people would respond to a whistle; most would respond to a cry of 'fire.'"

D.L. Bruestle, chief of the Wilmington Police Department, says it's important to do things that will assist authorities in their investigation, such as remembering what the assailant looks like and memorizing his car's license number.

FIRE DAMAGES BUSINESS — A fire of unknown origin damaged the Law Engineering Testing Co. building on Greene Street about 7:15 a.m. today. According to Greenville Fire Department officials, the fire was contained to the rear of the metal building. There was no estimate of damage and there were no injuries reported.

Commissioning Newest Carrier

By R.D. GERSH
Associated Press Writer
NEWPORT NEWS, Va. (AP) — The nuclear aircraft carrier Carl Vinson, named for the late Georgia congressman who was known as the "Father of the Two-Ocean Navy," will be commissioned Saturday and take its place as one of the three largest warships in the world.

The Vinson, which joins the huge USS Nimitz and USS Eisenhower, cost more than $2 billion and took 6½ years to build. The keel for the 1,000-foot, 95,000-ton ship was laid Oct. 11, 1975. After her launching two years ago, the Navy crew moved in for the outfitting process.

"There's been nothing really remarkable in those two years," Capt. Richard L. Martin, the commanding officer of the Vinson, said at a news conference Wednesday. "I've just been building the ship. That's my job."

The large-deck carriers have come under attack from some members of Congress as too expensive and too vulnerable.

The Navy has defended the massive floating airports, saying they are worth the investment and provide the ultimate line of defense.

"Certainly these ships are the most capable ones," Martin said. "They're strong ships."

Vinson, nicknamed "The Admiral" for his 50 years of support for the Navy in Congress, was the only living man who saw a warship take his name. He served 26 consecutive terms in the House of Representatives from 1914 to 1965, longer than anyone else.

Walls in a small room off the hangar bays of the ship are lined with pictures of Vinson, including a caricature made when he came to see the ship launched March 15, 1980.

"No event in my life, no event in my future can ever equal this day," Vinson wrote at the time.

Vinson died June 1, 1981 at his home in Milledgeville, Ga., at the age of 97.

His grandnephew, Sen. Sam Nunn of Georgia, will speak during commissioning ceremonies Friday at Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Co., as will Sen. John Tower of Texas, Navy Secretary John Lehman and Chief of Naval Operations Adm. Thomas B. Hayward.

The Newport News yard, which built the Vinson, is building a fourth Nimitz-class carrier, the Theodore Roosevelt.

Reagan Secrecy Proposal Opposed By News Media

By ROBERT PARRY
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's plan to broaden government authority to keep information secret is a threat to a well-informed public, contend news media representatives and civil libertarians.

"Openness in government is not a slogan, but a real goal," said Bob Schieffer, a CBS News correspondent representing the Society of Professional Journalists, Sigma Delta Chi.

"Every time a bureaucrat needlessly stamps 'secret' or 'confidential' on an innocuous document, the public's cynicism about government grows," Schieffer testified Wednesday before a House Government Operations subcommittee on information.

Rep. Glenn English, D-Okla., subcommittee chairman, said the proposal amounted to a "blank check" for government officials to invoke national security whenever they wanted to deny public access to information.

English also chastised the administration for refusing to defend the plan publicly.

"Virtually, every change in (the administration's) information policy has been in the direction of more secrecy," he said. "Now the administration won't even appear before the Congress to explain why it wants even more secrecy."

The draft executive order, which requires only Reagan's signature to take effect, would allow government officials to claim national security more easily and more often in keeping information secret.

The draft would drop a number of restrictions imposed by former President Carter in 1978 on classifying documents, and would reverse a 30-year trend dating to the Eisenhower administration toward increased government openness.

Administration officials have said privately they believe the Carter order went too far toward openness and endangered national security. They have also said congressional comments will be considered before a final order is signed by Reagan.

Schieffer said one proposed change "of breathtaking vagueness" would permit stamping a document secret if it concerns "the vulnerabilities or capabilities of systems, installations, projects or plans relating to the national security."

Schieffer said he feared that "anything open to criticism — any vulnerability — in a proposed new plane or tank or bullet would be shielded from scrutiny. ... The public does not need a new way for the government to hide or compound its mistakes under the banner of national security."

Other witnesses cited the danger of news management if government officials were able to deny the public access to nearly all foreign policy information and then selectively leak documents to support the administration's positions.

Morton Halperin, director of the liberal Center for National Security Studies, said the proposed order would give government officials an even stronger hand in controlling information on foreign policy issues.

"Their concern is to patrol the dissemination of information (with an eye toward) what will promote the president's program," Halperin said. "That's why these changes in the executive order are so serious."

Charles S. Rowe, editor of the Fredericksburg, Va., Free-Lance Star, said the proposed changes "would most likely result in vast amounts of information, of questionable danger to the national security, being withheld from the public."

Speaking for the American Newspaper Publishers Association and the American Society of Newspaper Editors, Rowe said that combined with the administration's proposals to limit the Freedom of Information Act, "the net result ... could only be a government operating in darkness."

Specifically, the Reagan draft would:

- Drop Carter's policy that the need for national security be balanced against the public's right to know.
- Require the withholding of documents from the public even if there is a "reasonable doubt" about the need for secrecy.
- Eliminate Carter's requirement that potential national security be "identifiable" before the information can be classified.
- Wipe out a requirement that information be released after six years unless continued secrecy is needed.

Lawyer Denies Pension Fraud

CHICAGO (AP) — Pension benefits that the nation's largest Roman Catholic archdiocese paid to Cardinal John P. Cody's lifetime friend reflect her years of service to the church, her attorney says, denying the benefits were unearned.

Attorney Leonard Ring denied reports published in the Chicago Sun-Times that the Chicago Archdiocese had falsified Helen Dolan Wilson's work record to make her eligible for pension benefits through a plan administered by the Aetna Life Insurance Co.

Mrs. Wilson, the cardinal's step-cousin, is a key figure in a federal investigation of Cody's use of church money.

Ring said that like several other employees of the Chicago Archdiocese, Mrs. Wilson was credited with years of service accumulated as an employee with the church elsewhere. She worked for the Archdiocese of St. Louis beginning in the 1940s.

The Chicago Archdiocese had no pension plan until Cody instituted one in the late 1960s, Ring said.

It is not unusual for a company to credit an employee for pension purposes with work they did for another firm, Ring said, noting that companies often use that practice as a way of inducing workers to make job transfers.

Ring's denial was carried in a story in today's editions of the Chicago Catholic, the weekly official newspaper of the archdiocese.

Archdiocesan spokesman Bernard Hanley had previously denied the Sun-Times report that the archdiocese falsified insurance documents, but had refused to elaborate.

Ring, in today's article, also denied the Sun-Times report that Mrs. Wilson is receiving pension benefits from Aetna for her service in both the Chicago and St. Louis archdioceses.

Ring said his client does not receive a pension under the Aetna plan of the St. Louis archdiocese, but instead receives less than $450 annually as a result of her contributions to the National Health and Welfare Retirement Fund. He said that Mrs. Wilson contributed $15 a month to that plan since beginning her work for the St. Louis archdiocese. She retired from the St. Louis archdiocese in 1968.

The Sun-Times disclosed in September an investigation was under way to determine whether Cody diverted up to $1 million in tax-exempt church money to enrich Mrs. Wilson. The newspaper said a federal grand jury investigating the cardinal's financial activities has subpoenaed records of bank accounts in three states belonging to Cody or Mrs. Wilson.

Cody, who has been in the hospital several times during the past year for treatment of heart problems, has denied wrongdoing but has declined to respond to specific allegations about his use of church funds.

Cody, spiritual-head of the 2.4 million-member diocese, has not appeared in public since his last hospital stay ended in January.

He is expected to retire on Christmas Eve, when he will turn 75, the recommended age for archbishops to step down.

Hunter Bost, son of Dr. and Mrs. William S. Bost of Greenville, has been selected to attend the Hugh O'Brian Youth Foundation North Carolina Leadership Seminar on "America's Incentive System."

The weekend workshop will be held June 4-6 in Belmont. The criteria for selection includes demonstrated leadership ability, sensitivity and concern for others and the desire to learn and share knowledge and experience with others.

Bost is a sophomore at J.H. Rose High School and is currently serving as president of the sophomore class. His extra-curricular activities include participation in the Key Club, basketball and baseball.

Approximately 100 other sophomores from throughout North Carolina will attend the state seminar.

Six solid reasons why Wachovia is the best choice for your IRA

Your Individual Retirement Account is one of the most important investments you'll ever make. So you'll want to think carefully about where you choose to make that investment. Consider these six advantages of choosing Wachovia.

1. Wachovia pays top money market rates

The interest rates Wachovia pays you are based on current money market rates, assuring you top interest rates for the life of your IRA. Compare them with the rates being paid anywhere.

Example: Current Rate on Wachovia IRA's Invested in the 18-Month Accumulator Variable Rate Fund.

Per Annum Rate

Other investment options are available. For the current rate call your Personal Banker. Substantial penalties required for withdrawals prior to age 59½. Federal regulations also require a substantial interest penalty for early withdrawal of a time deposit.

2. Wachovia gives you flexible investment options

You choose from a variety of variable rate and fixed rate options for investing your deposits, depending on the amount you wish to deposit. What's more, you can change to a different option later if you wish. Your Personal Banker will explain when and how, and also explain the different options available for new accounts and rollover accounts.

Call a Wachovia Personal Banker.

3. Wachovia lets you open your IRA with any amount

There's no minimum for opening a Wachovia IRA. And no minimum for additional deposits. There's no fixed schedule for additional deposits, either. If you wish to skip an entire year or more, you can. You add as much as you like, when you like, up to the legal limit of $2,000 per year in each account. A married couple may have two IRA's, if both work, and invest up to $4,000. If one spouse is not employed, the limit is $2,250 for the couple.

4. Wachovia charges no investment fees

Unlike many other companies, Wachovia makes no charge for opening your IRA, and no annual charge for managing it. All your funds are put to work earning interest for your retirement.

5. Wachovia won't retire before you do

Wachovia's record of financial stability goes back more than a century. You know we'll be there managing your IRA properly whether you need us for 10 years, 20 years, or 50. And to add to your peace of mind, each Wachovia depositor's funds are insured up to $100,000 by the F.D.I.C.

6. You have a Personal Banker at Wachovia

At Wachovia, you don't deal with an institution, you deal with an individual: your own Personal Banker. That way, you know the name and telephone number to call with any question regarding your account. You don't end up talking to everybody at the bank before you get the answers you need.

Think about it. At Wachovia, you get top money market rates, flexibility of investment, no opening minimum, no management fee, security for now and the future and your own Personal Banker. Compare all that with any other source. Then come in and talk with a Personal Banker at Wachovia this week.

Tiny Town To Vote On Abolishing Self

By STEVE GRAHAM
Associated Press Writer
ANTELOPE, Ore. (AP) — An Indian guru's red-garbed followers, who have taken over the general store and are serving vegetarian meals at the local cafe, have residents here so worried they are considering doing away with this tiny town altogether.

The City Council, in an emergency meeting, voted unanimously Wednesday night to hold an election April 15 to decide whether to abandon its 1901 charter.

The council said it feared a recent surge of land acquisition in the town would lead to the guru's disciples outnumbering the 40 residents counted in the last census.

"The present and historic character of the Antelope community will be lost if the city of Antelope becomes a city peopled only by followers of Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh. Information from various media of this area and the world provide evidence that a city of followers ... will be one in which no non-disciple could comfortably reside," read the resolution adopted by the council.

Longtime residents apparently feel that abolishing the town would dilute the power of the Rajneesh group by placing what is now Antelope into the hands of the Wasco County government.

Sullivan noted that the commune, now at 280 members, has tried to form a city on a 100-square mile ranch the commune bought last summer, 18 miles from Antelope. Three local ranchers and 1000 Friends of Oregon, a land-use activist group, have tied up the proposed incorporation on appeal, saying that Antelope is sufficiently close to provide city services.

"We didn't ask to be here. We are driven into your arms," he said.

Sullivan said no decision had been reached on appealing the council's action.

The temporal leader of the Rajneesh commune known as Rajneeshpuram is Sheila Silverman, who is president of Rajneesh International Foundation.

The 280 followers include many Europeans as well as Americans. Most were part of a commune at Poona, India, that folded last year. Rajneesh lives on the ranch in a trailer that looks out on a manicured lawn and pruned juniper trees.

His message is a combination of Eastern and Western religious thought that includes free sex, a message frowned upon in India, where gurus are expected to be ascetics.

The disciples wear red garments, adopt Hindu names and wear a picture of Rajneesh on a wooden 89-bead necklace known as a mala.

The group says Rajneesh has about 200,000 adherents worldwide.

Record Burning By Academy Students

ASKEWILLE, N.C. (AP) — About $4,000 worth of rock and country-western records went up in flames as 42 students at Bethel Assembly Christian Academy attempted to get "closer to the Lord," said Roy O. Denton Jr., academy principal.

"We told them if they wanted to bring out their rock 'n' roll records, their rock 'n' roll tapes, books they felt within their hearts were not pleasing to the uplifting of the Lord ... we would burn them," he said.

listened to the words?" he asked. "Many of the country songs deal with making love, fornication, whose wife are we going out with tonight, booze and alcoholism."

Denton said the music is partly responsible for what's wrong with young people today.

"That's why there's so much crime on our streets, drugs, abortions, people getting pregnant without getting married, because they've been brainwashed by the rock music," he said.

Charge Mother In Baby's Death

TARBORO, N.C. (AP) — An Edgecombe County woman has been charged with murder in the Feb. 17 death of her infant son, a sheriff's department spokesman said.

Mary Hyman, 19, was arrested Tuesday and ordered confined in the county jail without bond, authorities said.

Dr. Robert Zipf Jr., regional forensic pathologist, said an autopsy indicated 4-month-old James Hyman died of shock caused by internal injuries.

"It's country, but have you

But Mayor Margaret Hill said the city may challenge the residency of some followers who are living in commercial-zoned property.

Council member Don Smith noted the Rajneesh group has bought six houses in town and the general store-cafe, which has been dubbed "Zorba the Buddha" and serves the vegetarian fare offered on the ranch where the group lives.

Portland attorney Ed Sullivan, representing 12 commune members who live in Antelope, argued that the council was not required to set an election. Sullivan said the law requires a city to have a comprehensive plan and Antelope cannot fulfill its comprehensive plan if it does away with itself.

Cyclist Nears End Of His Trip

By MARTIN ANDERSEN
Associated Press Writer
LIMA, Peru (AP) — A 24-year-old American bicyclist is more than two-thirds of the way toward realizing a dream big enough to span to continents.

Jeff Casebolt, of Gig Harbor, Wash., rested in Lima recently as he mapped out plans to finish a kayak-and-bicycle trip running the length of the Pan-America Highway, from Alaska to Tierra del Fuego in Argentina at the tip of South America.

During the first year and a half of his travels, Casebolt has studied Spanish in schools in Mexico and Costa Rica, worked as a wheel watch — steering navigator — on a boat along the coast of Central America, and spent last Christmas dropping in and out of a desert in northern Ecuador.

"In some ways I think I've learned more than the average traveler: about peasants, and farm workers, people like that," he said. "All the little huts alongside the road you kind of whiz by in a car are for me essential rest spots, for food, water and to sleep."

Casebolt began his personal odyssey on June 21,

1980, when he was 22, starting out from the official beginning of the inter-continental road, at Circle City, Alaska, about 160 miles northeast of Fairbanks.

"There's a sign that says, 'This is the end of the road,' and a map of the highway, which goes all the way down to Tierra del Fuego," Casebolt remembered. By the time the bearded, 6-foot, 175-pound cyclist reaches his goal, he said, he will have travelled more than 18,000 miles.

Casebolt was a junior in psychology and philosophy at Evergreen State College in Olympia, Wash., when he gave up the classroom for the open road.

"I wasn't really sure what I wanted to do with my life," Casebolt said in an interview here. "Now, if anything, I'm probably more inspired to continue studying."

He said he originally began the trip with a friend, but that the two parted company half way through the kayaking part of the trip, down the Powell River in British Columbia in Canada.

After wintering for six months at his family's home in Washington, Casebolt began his solitary trek through Mexico, Central America and now South America.

The only twice, he said, has he "cheated" — used some form of transportation other than his bike. Once was to fly from Belize to Honduras in Central America due to a border dispute between Belize and Guatemala, and again to avoid the Darien Gap jungle between Panama and Colombia, where the Pan-American Highway never was completed.

"It's the swamiest jungle in the world — it's sort of an expedition of its own," he said. "Guides with machetes, building rafts — it's been done before, but..."

Casebolt, who rides a 25-inch, custom-built special touring frame made in Missoula, Mont., said he spent about 80 percent of his time camping out.

"When I'm travelling, I'm travelling on about $3 to $5 a day."

He said he carries a tent, stove, sleeping bag, cooking equipment, and cold weather clothes and gear in saddle bags.

He said he has had no horror stories to tell about his trip so far.

"A bicycle is like a diploma in terms of people relations. It buys me generosity. There have been times when I've run into gringo resentment though. And bicycle touring, I've learned, isn't the best way to see Latin America if you have limited time or budget."

Casebolt said he writes to his family and calls them collect once every two months and added that loneliness "is one of the major obstacles — more than deserts, mountains or physical barriers."

Casebolt said he plans to push on with the trip to the end.

"There have been times when I've sat on the side of the road, completely exasperated, broken," he said. "I've certainly thought about quitting, but I've never really come close."

He said he plans to finish the trip a year from now, spending two or three months of the Southern Hemisphere's summer in Tierra del Fuego.

ONE BIG MESS — Homer Wilson, of Burnsville, N.C., helps members of the Clinchfield Railroad carry sacks of grain up a hill to a waiting truck after a train derailment ruptured the grain car and spilled its contents out onto the ground. The accident occurred about 15 miles north of Marion in a mountainous region of McDowell County. The grain was part of a shipment along with coal, mica, paper, sand and caustic soda headed for Bostic, N.C. in an 89-car train. Twenty-one cars derailed on a curve. (AP Laserphoto)

Sam Ragan To Be New Poet Laureate Of N.C.

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Poet and newspaperman Sam Ragan says he'll "try to measure up to what I'm supposed to do" as the new North Carolina poet laureate, which he's expected to be designated by Gov. Jim Hunt today.

The duties aren't extensive for the honorary title — "Just be available," Ragan said Wednesday.

Aides to Hunt said the governor would announce his designation of Ragan, editor and publisher of The Pilot of Southern Pines, at the governor's weekly news conference.

"I'm greatly honored," Ragan said. "North Carolina has many splendid poets, and to be chosen for this I think is a very high honor indeed."

Ragan replaces James Larkin Pearson of Wilkes County, who was the state's poet laureate from 1953 until he died last August at the age of 101.

Ragan, 66, is the author of several books, including three books of poetry. His most recent, "Journey into Morning," was published late last year.

In 1972, Ragan became the first secretary of the state Department of Art, Culture and History, now known as the Department of Cultural Resources. He was appointed by Gov. Bob Scott.

He is a former managing editor and executive news editor of The News and Observer of Raleigh, and he won the North Carolina Award for fine arts in 1979.

Ragan's selection came after he was recommended by a five-member committee of literary experts selected by the Cultural Resources Department.

"Everyone agreed unanimously and glowingly that Sam Ragan would represent the state," said committee member Shelby Stephenson, editor of Pembroke Magazine and a professor at Pembroke State University.

"There was also no question but that Sam would carry on the tradition of laureateship and maybe scatter the myth that poet laureates don't do anything," he added.

Ragan becomes only the state's third poet laureate, said Chancey Kapp, spokesman for the Cultural Resources Department. The first was Arthur Talmadge Abernethy, who was named in 1948 after the General Assembly authorized the governor to select a poet laureate in 1935, she said.

Ragan's poetry, Stephenson said, is characterized by short, lyrical verses. "I think he's very close to (Carl) Sandburg," Stephenson said. "There's a lot of music in Sam's verse. At the same time, there's a lot of philosophy in there."

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market showed some scattered gains today, continuing its rally of the past two sessions.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 2.47 to 807.36 by noon.

Gainers and losers were about evenly balanced in the mid-day tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

After hitting a 22-month low of 795.47 on Monday, the Dow Jones industrials rose 9.42 points in the next two sessions.

Analysts said the upswing appeared to be the result of internal market forces rather than any particular news development.

But they added that some traders were pleasantly surprised that no severe selloff developed once the Dow-800 level had been broken.

Exxon led the active list, unchanged at 29. A 500,000-share block traded at that price.

RCA fell 1 1/2 to 19 1/2 in trading that included a 100,000-share block at 19 1/2. Bendix Corp., which early in the week reported having bought a chunk of RCA stock, said late Wednesday it had no immediate plans to acquire any more.

The NYSE's composite index rose .05 to 63.09. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off .50 at 248.69.

Volume on the Big Board came to 23.86 million shares at noon, against 24.57 million at the same point Wednesday.

Allies Resist Libyan Ban

WASHINGTON (AP) — The European allies are resisting quiet appeals from the Reagan administration to join in a ban on oil imports from Libya, blunting the impact of the U.S. move against the radical Arab country, officials say.

The American embargo also appears to contradict President Reagan's judgment last fall that a boycott would have to be worldwide to work.

But the president and his key advisers decided to cut off Libyan imports, and block sales of American oil and gas technology, because of mounting irritation with Col. Moammar Khadafy, the Libyan leader who was branded public enemy No. 1 early in the administration.

Outlining the U.S. case against the flamboyant Islamic revolutionary, a senior U.S. official accused the Libyan regime on Wednesday of an "outrageous plan" to assassinate American diplomats and their families in Sudan.

The official said the plot was uncovered last November before two stereo speakers packed with plastic explosives could be flown from an unidentified neighboring country to Khartoum, where they were to be placed in the American social club. He said hundreds of Americans could have been killed or maimed if the "particularly horrible mission" had succeeded.

The boycott decision was taken by the National Security Council Feb. 26, but the formal announcement was deferred for two weeks to allow talks with the West Europeans and oil company executives.

Store Robbed By Armed Man

AYDEN — A black male wearing a stocking mask over his face and armed with a sawed-off shotgun robbed a convenience store here of an undisclosed amount of cash late Wednesday night, reported Police Chief Tommy Burney.

The man, described as around 5 1/2 feet tall and weighing approximately 130 pounds, reportedly entered the Fast Fare on West Third Street at 11 p.m. and took a "small amount of cash," according to Burney.

Several suspects have been questioned, added the chief, and investigation of the armed robbery was continuing.

Arrest Man In Smuggling Plan

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — A fifth man has been arrested during an inquiry into an alleged scheme to smuggle sophisticated Cobra helicopters from the United States to Libya, California authorities say.

Thomas R. O'Connor, 51, a Torrance, Calif., psychologist, surrendered to U.S. Customs Service officials Wednesday at the Los Angeles International Airport, officials said.

Three men arrested in Amarillo remained in Potter County jail without bond today on sealed indictments from a federal grand jury in Dallas, and a man arrested Saturday in Los Angeles was being held at a federal prison on Terminal Island in lieu of $500,000 bond, authorities said.

The men arrested in Amarillo are charged in a multi-million dollar scheme to transport Cobra gunships from the Bell Helicopter Textron Co. facility here out of the country, U.S. Attorney James Rolfe in Dallas said.

"This involves the transportation of some helicopters out of the country in violation of the law," Rolfe said. He said "several million dollars worth" of helicopters could have been destined for Libya, but declined to discuss further details.

Had the plot been successful, Fortier said, certain foreign countries would have received some "dangerous equipment."

Bell spokesman Jack Tarpley said no helicopters had been stolen from the facility and the scheme was the first he had heard of in the Panhandle city.

The men arrested in Amarillo are charged in a multi-million dollar scheme up from W. H. Robinson Elementary School just before the accident. There were approximately 50 students on the two buses.

Damage to the buses was placed at $3,000. Ridenour said Simpson was charged with careless and reckless driving.

Members of the Winterville Rescue Squad were first on the scene, and called for assistance from Ayden and Greenville.

Underdog Panthers Go After Top Rated So. Durham, Hunter

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer

North Pitt coach Cobby Deans has polled and practiced his players. He has quizzed and queried a number of coaches whose squads fell victim to Southern Durham.

The preparation has nearly reached its end, however, and come Friday at 8:30 p.m. Deans will match his Panthers against the once-defeated Spartans in the first round of the Eastern Regional at Wilson Beddingfield.

The winner will face the survivor of the Bartlett Yancey-Warren County game Saturday night (8:30) for the Eastern title and a berth in the finals of the state 3-A tournament.

The game will be broadcast over WRQR (FM 94) in Farmville, starting at 8:15 p.m. Should the Panthers make the regional finals, that game too would be broadcast.

North Pitt comes into the game as a decided underdog. The Panthers have won seven straight and 21-7 overall.

In the Spartans, North Pitt faces a team that is 25-1 and ranked #1 in the state by the AP. Southern Durham has won 18 straight games, its only defeat an 85-79 loss to 4-A Kinston in overtime.

The contest offers a distinct contrast in style. The Spartans like to run and force a fast tempo while the Panthers rely on a slower patterned-offensive format.

"For us to have a chance to win we've got to keep it in the low 50s or upper 40s," Deans said. "They will try to push the ball up court and create something. We've got to try to get them to slow up."

Deans has a three-pronged plan he hopes will allow his team to keep the tempo at a slower pace than the Spartans might want. Explained Deans:

"First, we're gonna try to slow 'em down on the rebound. (Two), we're gonna try to challenge the outlet pass and then (three) we're gonna try to challenge the player who gets the outlet pass."

All of which, Deans hopes, will allow the Panthers to get back and set up their defense, probably a 1-3-1 zone. "We're really gonna have to be on our toes," he said. "They're a solid, well-round team and, from what I've heard, they are very quick."

The quickest of the quick is Curtis Hunter, a 6-4 senior who is the team's leading scorer (22 points a game). Hunter's scoring is only one of a many talents he has in his arsenal.

"He does it all," Deans said. "He is quick enough to play anywhere and he is an unselfish player. I would have liked to have heard he was a selfish player — that would have made it easier. But he's not and that makes it tougher."

"I think the job we do on Hunter inside, of course, could be the key," he added. "If we allow Hunter to get the ball inside and use his power moves we'll be in trouble."

But, lest anyone think the Spartans are a one-man team, Deans is quick to set the record straight. "They've got four or five other good ballplayers," Deans said. "We don't want to go there and say we've got to stop Hunter. We might stop him from scoring (20 points), but they still could beat us."

The Spartans' best player behind Hunter is guard Greg Webb, a 5-9 senior who is named to all-conference in the Triangle 3-A the past two seasons. Webb is the Spartans' #2 scorer with a 12-point average.

Joining Webb in the backcourt is Nate Fuller, a 5-10, 150-pound junior. At the forwards will be Harold Green (6-0, 165 senior) and Derek Newkirk (6-0, 160 senior).

North Pitt will counter with Greg Hines, a 6-0 junior, and Mitch Cox, a 5-10 junior, at the guards and Dennis Bradley, a 6-2 junior, and Toby Crandol, a 6-0 senior, at the forwards.

Senior Vince Parker, at 6-3 the Panthers' tallest starter, will man the post.

Bradley, who suffered a sprained right ankle in the District II finals last week against D.H. Conley, has been practicing this week and will be start come Friday night, both Deans and Bradley said.

"I'll be ready Friday," Bradley said after a two-hour practice last night. Bradley leads the Panthers in both scoring (12 points per game) and rebounding (9.5 a game).

Hines is the only other Panther in double figures. He is averaging 11 points a game. Parker is averaging seven rebounds a game alongside Bradley. Cox is the team's leader in assists with 4.5 per contest.

Both teams enter the game with reputations for playing good defense. But, in keeping with their wish for a fast tempo, the Spartans use more of an overplay when in man-to-man and also employ both a full-court press and a half-court trap.

"I'll tell you what worries me is their zone press," Deans said. "They try to keep the tempo up (with it). Once we get past half-court I think we'll be O.K. We've got to try to make it a half-court game defensively as well as offensively."

"We've got to try to get them to slow up and then get into our offense," he added. "They'll try to force us into offense (higher up and) before we're ready. We want to start our offense when we want to and not let them dictate when."

For Parrish's part, he said he knew little about the Panthers. "I had never heard of them before," he said. "I've very worried about them, but we're gonna try to play our game."

"We like the up tempo and they like the slower tempo, but I don't foresee changing anything against them," he added. "You talk about all these things (the teams' past performances), but you can throw all that out the backdoor now. You're down to a one-game situation where one play could be the difference."

Rick Scoppe

Until last week, Southern Durham coach Larry Parrish had never heard of North Pitt High School. The Panthers hope to further Parrish's education on Friday night.

"He's gonna hear about us Friday night," said North Pitt forward Dennis Bradley.

"I think after we get in there and whip his boys he'll change his mind," added fellow forward Toby Crandol.

"It's the first time I've ever heard of Southern Durham," said North Pitt center Vince Parker, not to be outdone by Parrish. "But it makes you feel kind of funny. They don't know that much about us and we don't know that much about them."

"I think they better be ready to play a good game, though," Parker added. "We ain't no pushover."

Neither, however, is Southern Durham. The Spartan Superlatives include: a #1 ranking in the state by the AP, a 25-1 record and an 18-game winning streak. "The first thing I did after we (drew) them was look in the paper and they were ranked number one," Bradley said.

THE Spartan, however, is Curtis Hunter. The highly-recruited (UNC, Duke, N.C. State, Georgetown and DePaul) 6-4 senior is the Spartans' leading scorer and rebounder and is among the leaders in assists.

In one game this year Hunter hit 11 of 15 from the floor, 10 of 12 from the foul line, had 15

Lady Pirates Ready, Excited About First NCAA Tournament

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Tuesday evening, the NCAA announced that four walk-ons of the University of South Carolina, East Carolina's opening round opponent in the women's NCAA tournament on Sunday, had been ruled ineligible for the post-season playoffs. That leaves the Lady Gamecocks with just six players.

"There having six players means nothing, absolutely nothing," ECU Coach Cathy Andruzzi said. "Heck, most of the people in the country didn't know that we played most of the season with just eight."

Those eight, dubbed by Andruzzi as the Iron Eight, go into Sunday's 3 p.m. game at Columbia, S.C.'s, Carolina Coliseum, as the underdogs, but you wouldn't know it to talk to Andruzzi. The two met just over a week ago, and South Carolina took an 86-61 win. It was just one of two losses the Lady Pirates suffered in their final 15 games after they had opened with a 4-7 mark.

"We're fired up," the coach continued. "This is the NCAA.

It means a lot to our program and the kids after all they've been through this year. Having to win the big one over Carolina and winning it big to get the berth shows what this bunch can do. I can't say enough about them. They're ready to go."

The fact that this is the first NCAA Tournament for women is another reason Andruzzi is excited about things. "This is THE FIRST NCAA tournament, and East Carolina is a part of it," she exclaimed.

"To play South Carolina is exciting. We get a chance to be only five hours away from Greenville, and have the chance to bring some people with us. But at the same time, we're having to play a tough team."

"We've watched the films (of the ECU-SC game) over and over, looking for the mistakes that we made the first time. They are a good team, and I hope that they don't shoot like they did then (over 60 percent). We did make a lot of mistakes in that game, but there were times too when we were in their faces and they still made the shots," Andruzzi added.

The key to the victory will be how well East Carolina can handle 6-1 freshman Brantley Souther, averaging 9.9 points a game, and Evelyn Johnson (Magic's 5-11 sister) hitting 13.7. "They must be stopped," Andruzzi said. "We've been working hard in trying to stop them, since we'd like to go to Rustin (Louisiana — site of the regionals)." Should the Lady Pirates win, they would face the winner of the Kentucky-Illinois game.

And should that be Kentucky, it would be an added incentive for the Pirates, who lost to them early in the season, 78-67.

Stopping Souther and Johnson won't mean everything however. There's 6-1 senior center Sheila Foster to contend with. She's the team leader in both scoring and rebounding, hitting 20.0 points and 10.3 rebounds.

Then, there's the backcourt height of 5-10 Becky Parker, hitting 5.2 points a game, and 5-7 Sharon Rivers, canning 8.3 points a game.

That leaves only 5-10 guard Marsi McAlister on the bench. She's hitting 4.4 points a game.

Andruzzi feels that in the first meeting of the two, the Lady Pirates didn't show the type defense they are capable of playing. "The North Carolina game was one of our better games, especially in the second half. And I think that shows that we are peaking now. The kids have a great attitude, pride, and are still learning and making adjustments."

"But we're a better defensive club than we showed against South Carolina, and I will admit that South Carolina caused some of the mistakes we made. But we are capable of coming back. We must play extremely hard and be aware of what South Carolina has done and is doing. Playing at South Carolina will be no easy task either."

Despite the fact that both teams are down to a bare minimum of depth, Andruzzi doesn't expect either to lay back on defense. "They'll do what they feel they have to do to win, and you know that we haven't been sitting back on defense."

East Carolina will start Mary Denker at center (20.3 ppg, 8.7 reb.); Loletha Harrison (6.8 ppg, 6.7 reb.) and Lillian Barnes (8.4 ppg) at forwards, and Sam Jones (17.7, 6.3) and Fran Hooks (3.1) at the guards.

Rounding out the team are Loraine Foster (9.4 ppg), Darlene Chaney (7.0) and Caren Truske (1.0).

"Our strategy is to keep them from doing what they want to and to play our own game," Andruzzi said. "Whoever loses is through, and we don't want to stop playing now."

For ECU fans, a hospitality room will be open prior to and after the game in the Carolina Inn, headquarters for the Lady Pirates.

Pirates Split With Baptist

CHARLESTON, S.C. — East Carolina's baseball Pirates finally played an error-free game yesterday afternoon and pulled out a 6-2 victory over Baptist College. Earlier in the afternoon, misplayed balls had resulted in a Baptist victory over the Pirates, 4-3.

The resulting split left the Pirates even on the season 3-3, as they conclude a four-game road trip that saw all three of the losses occur.

And, it might be noted, errors were a big factor in each of the three losses.

In the opener, the Pirates grabbed the lead in the first inning, scoring two runs. John Hallow opened things with a single and Todd Evans got a hit. Todd Hendley then singled into left field, driving in Hallow. Chuck Bishop followed with a single, scoring Evans for a 2-0 lead.

The Pirates pushed over another run in the fourth, taking a 3-0 lead. Kelly Robinette reached on a bunt single, but was cut down on Fran Fitzgerald's infield grounder. Robert Wells then singled to right center, and Ricky Nichols followed that up with a double off the left field wall, scoring Fitzgerald with the third ECU run.

It was all for naught, however, as an error helped the Buccaneers rally in the bottom of the inning to score four runs and gain the eventual victory.

Mike Werkin led off the inning with a walk and Derric Hill also got a free trip. Tony Hoffidintz singled to center, scoring Werkin, but Hill was nailed at third on John Spitzmiller's grounder back to the mound. After a second out, Rudy Long grounded to third, but Hendley overthrew first, allowing Hoffidintz to score. Jimmy Flynn then doubled to left center, driving in both Spitzmiller and Long with the tying and go-ahead runs.

Hallow led the Pirate hitting for the game, getting two. No one else on either team had more than one hit.

In the second game, the Pirates finally got things to go their way for a change — and an error by Baptist got it all started.

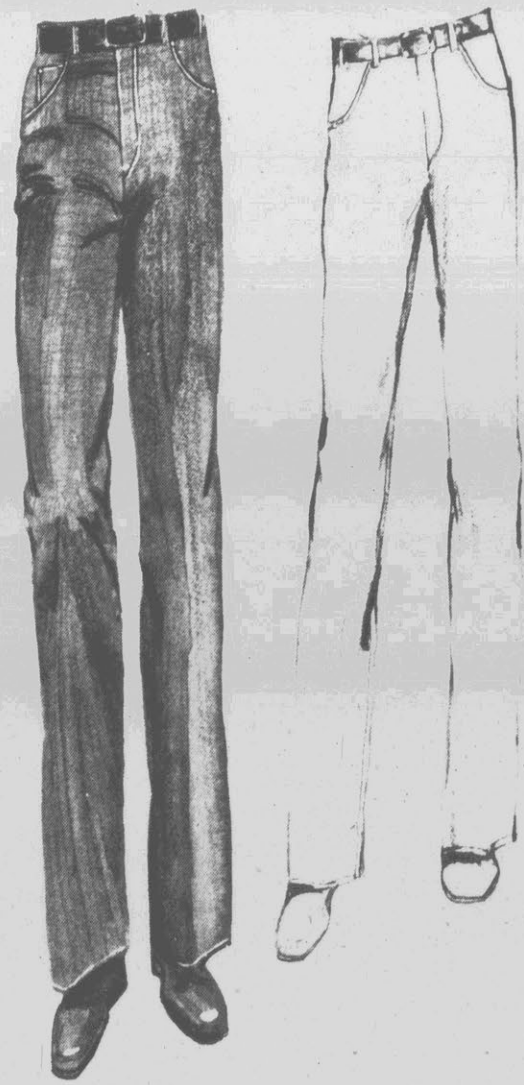

Nichols led off the first with what appeared to be a single to center. But when the ball went past the fielder, the speedy freshman raced all the way home for a 1-0 lead.

The Pirates picked up two more runs in the second — again thanks to Nichols. With one out, Carl Daniels doubled to center. Then, with two away, Nichols hit a blast to left, easily clearing the fence for a

Bucs Try Something Strange

By The Associated Press
The Cincinnati Reds were beginning a grand experiment. Yet it was the Pittsburgh Pirates who looked like they were trying something strange.

That something strange was the game of baseball, which the Pirates struggled at all day Wednesday in dropping a 4-1 exhibition decision to Cincinnati. The Reds, who used Johnny Bench at third base for the first time — the perennial all-star catcher is expected to be the regular third baseman this season — scored all their runs in the seventh inning thanks to shoddy fielding and pitching by the Pirates.

Eddie Milner led off the seventh with a walk, reached second on a fly out, moved to third on Pittsburgh reliever Ernie Camacho's wild pitch and scored when shortstop Dale Berra dropped a pop up. Tom Lawless singled in the next run and Tom Foley followed with a triple before Wayne Krenchicki singled to drive in Foley.

As for Bench, who went 0-for-3 at bat, Day 1 as a third baseman was, well, strange.

"When you use a catcher's glove all your life and you start using a finger glove, you feel strange," said Bench, who spent 13 major league seasons behind home plate. "It's like dating a girl. You've got to get used to her."

Bench, who inherited the job when Ray Knight was traded to Houston in the off-season, handled two fielding chances flawlessly. He threw out runners on a slow hopper in the second inning and on a hard-hit grounder to his left in the fifth.

Elsewhere in exhibition play, it was Los Angeles 3, Boston 2 in 12 innings; Toronto 7, Philadelphia 2; Atlanta 7, Montreal 5; the New York Mets 4, Eckerd College 3 in 10 innings; the Chicago White Sox

5, Kansas City 2; Detroit 9, Minnesota 8 in 11 innings; San Diego 1, California 0 in 10 innings; Milwaukee 15, San Francisco 5; a Chicago Cubs split squad 9, Oakland 6; Cleveland 5, the other portion of the Cubs 1; Seattle 12, Arizona State 0; the University of Miami 7, Baltimore 6, and the New York Yankees 3, Texas 1.

Pedro Guerrero, one of the Dodgers' World Series heroes last year, had four hits and scored the winning run on Candy Maldonado's bases-loaded single in the 12th. Guerrero doubled to lead off the 12th. Steve Yeager sacrificed and was safe on an error, Ron Roenicke was walked intentionally and Maldonado followed with his hit.

The Dodgers found out after the game that ace pitcher Fernando Valenzuela had returned to Mexico after being unable to come to contract terms with the team.

The Toronto Blue Jays used four Phillies errors and two balks to post five of their runs.

The unbeaten Atlanta Braves made it five in a row as Jerry Royster and Claudell Washington had two-run doubles off Expos ace Steve Rogers, who allowed five runs in four innings.

It took the Mets 10 innings to subdue Eckerd College. Mookie Wilson had two triples and scored both times on singles by Wally Backman and Joel Youngblood drove in the winning run with a sacrifice fly.

Detroit rookie Mike Laga's homer in the 11th inning lifted the Tigers, who got three RBI from Laga and Rick Leach. Al Cowens also homered for the Tigers, while Gary Ward homered and Bobby Mitchell had four hits for the Twins.

Mike Tyson's bases-loaded triple scored the decisive runs in Oakland's victory over one of the Cubs' split squads. Two-run doubles by Rick Manning and Andre Thornton led the Indians over the other half of the Cubs' roster.

Seattle had a 14-hit attack paced by Reggie Walton with two triples and a single. Walton scored three runs and drove in three, and five Mariners pitchers combined to hold the NCAA champs to four hits.

Greg Luzinski's broken-bat single with the bases loaded capped a three-run second inning for the White Sox.

Mark Brouhard led the Brewers' 17-hit attack with a pair of homers and Ned Yost added a three-run shot.

Tim Flannery's two-out single in the bottom of the 10th drove in the winning run for San Diego. Five Padres pitchers limited the Angels to two hits.

Dave Revering had three hits and Brad Gulden drove in two runs as the Yankees won their night game. And Miami upset the Orioles in another night contest, overcoming a five-run deficit. It was the first time in seven spring games that Miami had beaten the Orioles.

Campbell Grabs Golfing Lead

Campbell University vaulted past UNC Charlotte into first place in the East Carolina Invitational Golf Tournament yesterday. The event is being held at Brook Valley Country Club.

The Camels came in after the second round of play with a team total of 609, two strokes ahead of the hosting Pirates, which carded a 611 to move from third to second.

Charlotte dropped from first to sixth, as their total skied to 619. Third place in the 12-team field is now held by Temple at 614, after two rounds of 307.

Eric Moeking of N.C. State has taken the individual lead with an even par 144, with back-to-back 72's. Tied for second, five strokes back are Jody Mudd of Georgia Southern and Danny Gurley of Campbell, both at 149. Mudd, picked to play in the Masters, after a 72 opening day, fell off to a 77 in the second round.

East Carolina's top performer is Chris Czaja with a 150 (73-77), tied for fourth with Howard Hobgood of Campbell. Other ECU scorers include Don Gaffner, 151; Don Sweeting, 153; Jerry Lee, 157.

First round leader Greg Cox of UNCC, who had a 70, turned in an 83 in the second round to drop to 153 and ninth place.

The tournament winds up today with 18 more holes of play.

Conley Opens Season With 9-3 Win Over Pitt

HOLLYWOOD — D.H. Conley's Vikings opened the 1982 baseball season with a 9-3 romp over North Pitt in a non-conference clash between the cross-county rivals.

Conley jumped on the Panthers for three first inning runs to take a lead the Vikings never lost. Roy Lassiter opened the frame with a single and he stole second. With two away, Jeff Cox singled, scoring Lassiter. Doug McRoy doubled and a single by Chris Buck brought in both runners.

What proved to be the winning run came in the second. Jeff Manning singled and came around to score when Todd Rouse's single to the outfield was errored.

Conley added three more in the third and two in the fifth for its nine-run total.

North Pitt got on the scoreboard in the fourth with two runs. Quintin Dove opened with a walk and Barry Gurkins followed him the same way. Lee Manning singled in Dove, and Brian Briley walked, loading the bases. Mike Brown then grounded out, scoring Gurkins.

The other Panther run came in the fifth.

Lassiter led the Conley hitting with four in as many trips. Manning added two hits in two trips. North Pitt was paced by Daniel Keel and Elwood Ayers, both 2-for-3, while Trellis Moore was 2-for-5.

The Vikings return to action on Friday, traveling to Farmville Central. North Pitt's next outing will be Friday, when it hosts Roanoke.

rebounds and six steals and six assists, but the opposing coach said it was the Southern Durham guards, not Hunter, that hurt his team the most.

The Panthers have heard enough about Hunter. They say they have heard nothing but Hunter, Hunter, Hunter since last Thursday afternoon when a drawing was held to determine the East Regional pairings and the Panthers drew the Spartans.

"All we've heard is Curtis Hunter, Curtis Hunter," Bradley said, he of the soft voice and the muscular, 190-pound build. "I want to test my strength against his."

Parker, though of a slighter frame than Bradley, was more forceful. "He may be good — I've never seen him play — but you can't do it by yourself. I'm sick of (hearing about him)."

"He's got to be good, though," Parker conceded, "because everybody is putting the mouth on him."

The Panthers figure to start out in a 1-3-1 zone against the Spartans, but if that does not work North Pitt coach Cobby Deans has not ruled out going into a box and one. If that happens, it will be Crandol's job to square off against Hunter, who at 6-4 will have a four inch advantage.

"I'm looking forward to it," Crandol said. "If I do my part everything else will fall in place. I think we're really psyched."

"I think we're confident," guard Greg Hines added. "We're playing together and the team is playing good defense."

It was defense that helped the Panthers defeat a talented West Craven club, 47-31, in the District II semifinals and then whip D.H. Conley, 37-25, for the district championship.

It has also helped the Panthers win seven straight and carve out a 21-7 record. And it has caught Parrish's eye. "We're excited about playing them, but I'm worried about them," he said. "I know they take pride in their defense."

Still, the Panthers enter the game as a decided underdog. None of the players who discussed the upcoming game Wednesday night after a two-hour practice seemed bothered by the role. In fact, as often happens, they are using it to help ready themselves for the game.

"I know we're the underdog and I think it's better that we are," Crandol said. "We'll be looser."

Two Selected For Hall Honor

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — It had been 31 years since he left baseball and A.B. "Happy" Chandler thought the game was through with him forever.

But baseball reached into its past and awarded the former commissioner its highest honor Wednesday, electing him to the Hall of Fame along with Travis Jackson, a brilliant shortstop for 15 years with the New York Giants.

Chandler, 83, and Jackson, 80, were named to the Cooperstown, N.Y. shrine by the Veterans Committee and they will be ushered into the Hall of Fame Aug. 2 alongside sluggers Hank Aaron and Frank Robinson, who were elected in January by the Baseball Writers Association of America.

Ironically, it was through the efforts of Chandler, that black players like Aaron and Robinson were allowed to play in the majors. He was instrumental in the shattering of baseball's color line, encouraging Brooklyn Dodger owner Branch Rickey to sign Jackie Robinson.

"If I denied a player his opportunity just because of the color of his skin," Chandler told Rickey, "my Maker would never forgive me."

He went against a 15-1 vote of the owners to support Rickey's stand and that was one of a number of factors that led to his eventual ouster from the commissioner's job in July, 1951, just six years after he had succeeded the legendary Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis in the post.

For many years, Chandler was ignored by the baseball establishment under his successors, Ford Frick and Gen. William Eckert. It was only when Bowie Kuhn became commissioner in 1969 that baseball re-discovered Chandler, who served twice as governor of Kentucky and also represented his state in the U.S. Senate. He was invited to a number of functions by Kuhn.

Still, Chandler thought he wouldn't reach the Hall of Fame. "I had reason to believe they were going to pass me by because 31 years had passed since I left the commissioner's office," he said.

But Rep. Larry Hopkins, R-Ky., spearheaded a campaign supporting Chandler and got help from Commissioner Kuhn, Gabe Paul, president of the Cleveland Indians, and Joe Cronin, former president of the American league. Paul and Cronin both serve on the Veterans Committee.

"The man is a living legend in Kentucky," Rep. Hopkins said of Chandler. "Sometimes people become significant after they die. I am delighted this came in his lifetime so that he can enjoy this day with all of us."

Jackson was a slick-fielding shortstop from 1922-1936 with the New York Giants. He compiled a career batting average of .291 and hit over 300 six times.

"Jackson could do everything," said Cronin, himself a Hall of Fame shortstop. "He had a great arm. I think he captained John McGraw's winning teams."

Old Dominion, which won the East Coast Athletic Conference tournament by beating James Madison 58-57 Sunday, carries an 18-11 record into its fifth National Collegiate Athletic Association post-season appearance in six years.

"I don't know when I ever had any more positive feeling than in the three ECAC tournament games," said coach Paul Webb. "I thought that we were playing our most consistent all of the season. That should carry over to the tournament."

Although Monarch center 6-11 Mark West leads the Monarchs with 16.1 points per game, he will be matched against Wake Forest's 6-11 Jim Johnstone with 6-8 Guy Morgan and 6-9 Anthony Teachey helping out on the boards for the Demon Deacons.

The third saw the Pirates add a fourth run. Hallow led off with a single, and stole second. Evans then singled, driving him in.

The final two runs came in the top of the fifth. Evans walked, but was thrown out on Mike Sorrell's infield bouncer. Fitzgerald then followed with a blow that outdid Nichols' in left center, running the lead out to 6-0.

Baptist finally got on the scoreboard in the bottom of the frame. With two away, Glenn Pinter singled and Long followed with the game's third home run, but that was it for the Buccaneers, as the Pirates held on to pull out the win.

Nichols led the Pirate hitting with two, while Werkin had three, and Pinter and Long each had two for Baptist.

East Carolina returns home on Friday to face Connecticut in a 1 p.m. doubleheader.

Illinois Five Bombs Long Island, 126-78

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD
AP Sports Writer

Long Island University was touted as the scoring juggernaut of this year's National Invitation Tournament. It was Illinois, however, that did most of the scoreboard lighting.

Seven Illinois players, led by Perry Range with 28 points, scored in double figures as the Illini set school and NIT records with a 126-78 rout of LIU in first-round NIT action Wednesday night.

Illinois, 18-10, led 65-29 at halftime and went ahead by as many as 51 points in the second half en route to breaking Marshall's NIT record of 119 points set in 1967.

"There's an old saying that if you live by the sword, you die by the sword," said LIU Coach Paul Lizzo, whose team led the nation with an 87-point scoring average this season. "I thought we came out flat. I'm not sure why, maybe we were awed by the Big Ten and playing here (at Champaign, Ill.). It's tough to come 1,000 miles to play. We lost our luggage, we lost our running game. I thought we left everything in New York."

He said the Blackbirds had one day to get ready for Illinois.

"We needed 10, we needed two weeks, we needed three years," he added. "Everybody told me they would hold the ball. I wish they had."

"It was a fun game to play because everyone got to shoot," said Illinois guard Craig Tucker, who scored 16 points. "It wasn't one of those slowdown Big Ten games."

Range said LIU "played good defense until after the first step. They didn't play too bad on the ball, but once someone got beat, there was no one to help."

In other first-round NIT games, Purdue beat Western Kentucky 72-65, Texas A&M edged Lamar 60-58, Dayton nipped Connecticut 76-75 in overtime and Washington edged Brigham Young 66-63.

In the second round, Illinois will meet Dayton, Texas A&M will face Washington and Purdue will play the winner of tonight's Iona-Rutgers game. Other games tonight have Temple at Georgia, American University at Bradley and Murray State at Nevada-Las Vegas.

The first three rounds of the 32-team tournament are played at local sites, with the semifinals and final at Madison Square Garden in New York.

Keith Edmonson scored 29 points as Purdue held off a second-half rally to beat Western Kentucky. The Boilermakers, 15-13 for the season, were third-place finishers in the NIT last year, runners-up in 1979 and champions in 1974.

Purdue led 35-24 at halftime, but Western Kentucky's 6-foot-10 center, Craig McCormick, scored all 16 of his points in the second half to key a rally that brought the Hilltoppers within four points with eight minutes to go.

Claude Riley scored 20 points, pulled down 13 rebounds and converted a three-point play with 35 seconds left to give Texas A&M a four-point lead, and the Aggies held on to beat Lamar. Texas A&M, 19-10, finished third in the Southwest Conference.

Sean McNally's basket with 48 seconds left in overtime gave Dayton its victory over Connecticut, which got off three shots in the final seconds but couldn't score. Roosevelt Chapman of the Flyers led all scorers with 21 points, including two technical foul shots in the final minute of regulation time.

Alvin Vaughn scored 15 of his game-high 23 points and Steve Burks 12 of his 16 in the second half as Washington overcame a 40-28 halftime deficit to beat Brigham Young in the only game that the home team lost. The two Huskies guards also combined for six steals and made several foul shots in the waning moments as BYU fought vainly to come back.

Greene Central Opens With Win Over Bruins

STANTONSBURG — After having to wait a day to get the season underway, Greene Central's Rams proved equal to the task, gaining a 3-0 victory over Wilson Beddingfield behind the one-hit pitching of Donald Warren.

The no-hit bid of Warren was a brief one as Joel Patterson doubled in the first inning.

However, no other Bruin batter was able to safely put the ball between the foul lines.

Warren finished the game with seven strikeouts and six walks.

The Rams got their first run in the second inning. With two away, Butch Brown walked and scored when John Mayo doubled.

The second run came over in the third, again after two men were out. Tony Goff doubled, then scored when Warren singled.

The other Ram run came in the fifth when Chris Ginn slapped a lead-off homer. He was the lone lead-off batter for the Rams to arrive on base.

Goff and Marlow Gilmore each had two hits to pace the Ram hitting.

Lady Rams Top Rose

Greene Central's Lady Rams spoiled the opening softball game of the season for the Rose High School Rampettes yesterday, rolling to an 11-4 victory over the host team.

Greene Central got all it needed in the first inning, scoring five times. The Lady Rams picked up three more in the fourth and duplicated that again in the sixth for their 11-run total.

All four Rose runs came in the bottom of the seventh inning.

Linda Winstead led the Rose hitting with three, while Laura Vincent had two. No one had more than one hit for Greene Central, which took advantage of 11 walks issued by Rose hurling.

The Rams are now 2-0 on the year, while Rose drops to 0-1.

North Pitt 6

HOLLYWOOD — Karen Barrett slapped a solo home run to key a six-run third inning yesterday as D.H. Conley opened the 1982 softball season with a 13-6 victory over North Pitt.

It was also the opening game of the year for the Lady Panthers.

The Valkyries grabbed the lead in the first inning, scoring three times. They added a run in the second for a 4-0 lead. North Pitt rallied, however, scoring three times in the top of the third to close the gap to one, 4-3.

Then, Barrett got the big bottom of the third inning going for Conley with her homer, and by the time it was over, Conley was in firm command, 10-3. The Valkyries added single runs in the fourth, fifth and sixth innings.

North Pitt got three more in the fourth, but could rally no more.

Helena Barnhill led the Conley hitting with four. Shonda Chance and Frances Woods each had two hits to pace North Pitt.

Conley travels to Farmville Central on Friday, while North Pitt returns to action the same day, hosting Williamston.

NCAA Track Set For Silverdome

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — There's nothing like an NCAA track and field meet to cure whatever ails Suleiman Nyambui.

Nyambui, the University of Texas-El Paso's long-distance star, has been experiencing a relatively subpar season. But John Wedel, the Miners' interim coach, is certain that the 29-year-old Tanzanian will be ready for the two-day national collegiate indoor championships, which begin Friday at the Silverdome.

"There are no problems. He is in top shape," Wedel said of Nyambui, winner of an all-time record 11 NCAA titles, including five indoors, five outdoors and one cross-country.

Wedel, the Miners' assistant coach until last month when he was temporarily elevated to the top job after Ted Banks resigned, said that Nyambui suffered a knee injury following the cross-country season last fall, and "wasn't in great shape to start the indoor season."

The injury, plus a bad cold suffered just before the Millrose Games Feb. 12 in New York, combined to make the 1982 indoor season somewhat disappointing for Nyambui, the 1980 Olympic silver medalist for 5,000 meters and owner of the world indoor best for that distance (13 minutes, 20.4 seconds).

In addition, Nyambui failed to win the 1,500 meter race at the recent Western Athletic Conference championships, losing to unheralded Ibrahim Hussein of New Mexico.

"The reason he got beat in the 1,500," explained Wedel, "is that he was trying to help one of our younger runners qualify (for the NCAA meet). He (Nyambui) was leading and thought our other runner was in second place. Instead, it was Hussein. And when Hussein went past him near the end, it was too late for Suleiman to catch up."

Nyambui's loss hardly mattered. The Miners won their ninth consecutive WAC indoor title, accumulating 162 points to 116½ for runnerup Brigham Young.

It was Texas-El Paso's first meet under Wedel. Under Banks' guidance since 1973, the Miners had become the most dominant track and field power in the nation, winning a total of 16 NCAA titles. They took indoor championships in 1974, 1975, 1976, 1978, 1980 and 1981. They won outdoor crowns in 1975, 1979, 1980 and 1981, and they captured cross-country titles in 1975, 1976, 1978, 1979, 1980 and 1981.

When Banks resigned, to take a job with a shoe company, he said he was leaving in part because the school was planning to cut $55,000 from his $250,000 track and field budget.

Banks, considered a master at recruiting talent from abroad, said, "I had a meeting with the administration and I told them that if they couldn't guarantee me more money than that, then we couldn't win and the program would suffer. I didn't want to be here when that happens."

Of course, it is too early to tell what effect the budget cut — if imposed — will have on the program. But following the Miners' resounding triumph in the WAC championships, Wedel said, "We wanted to prove to everyone around the country that we are still alive and well."

The Miners are expected to make that point even more emphatic this weekend. Led by Nyambui, who is favored to win the mile title for a record fourth consecutive year — no athlete in the meet's 17-year history has won the same event four times — and is rated the top choice to regain the two-mile crown he won in 1979 and 1980, Texas-El Paso is the overwhelming selection to capture its third straight indoor crown.

Among the Miners' top performers are two-time defending champion Bert Cameron in the 440, cross-country champion Matthews Motshwarateu in the three-mile, Milt Otley in the high jump, Carl Meylor in the 440, George Mehale in the 880, Fabian Whyms in the 60, Gidemas Shahanga in the two-mile and Gabriel Kamau in the three-mile.

Bird Flies High In Second Half

Fernando Goes South

By The Associated Press
For a few minutes, the Boston Celtics looked like they were better off without Larry Bird and his fractured cheekbone.

Make that very few minutes. The Celtics won all five games they played while Bird recovered from a broken cheekbone that he got when he was hit by Harvey Catchings' elbow Feb. 28.

Bird made his first post-injury appearance Wednesday night against the Indiana Pacers. He played six minutes before halftime, missing all four field goal attempts and scoring just one point.

But the illusion didn't last long. In the second half, Bird hit 10 of his 11 shots, collected seven of his eight rebounds and three assists. He finished with 21 points in 22 minutes as the Celtics easily beat the Pacers 121-100.

It was the ninth straight National Basketball Association victory for Boston, all of them without all-star guard Nate "Tiny" Archibald, who suffered a wrist injury Feb. 17.

"As well as the team has done without Tiny and Larry, we're that much better with them," said Boston guard M.L. Carr.

In other NBA games, Chicago beat Milwaukee 101-98, Philadelphia routed Golden State 134-114, Dallas edged Portland 104-102, Denver defeated Detroit 124-113 and New Jersey stopped Phoenix 113-105.

Carr said Bird "began to rush things a little bit because he wanted to do well. It didn't take him long to realize you have to sit back and let it flow."

"It's tough coming back after five games, but I got back in the flow and my teammates were looking for me," Bird said. "If you're going to play scared, there is no sense in being out there."

Bird said he "missed being out of the lineup, but maybe it was a blessing to the rest of the team" because reserves got more playing time.

Gerald Henderson, a backup guard who is playing more while Archibald is out, had nine points to key a 17-6 surge that turned a 19-18 Boston edge into a 36-24 lead after one quarter.

Indiana never got closer than eight points thereafter, with Boston's edge ranging to as many as 21 points.

Robert Parish tied Bird for game scoring honors with 21 points. Parish added 14 rebounds, while Maxwell added 20 points.

Chicago handed Milwaukee its fourth straight loss, the Bucks' worst losing streak in three seasons.

Ricky Sobers scored 13 of his 17 points in the fourth quarter for the Bulls as Milwaukee tried to stop Chicago center Artis Gilmore, who finished with 23 points after victimizing the Bucks for 10 points on five dunks in the first period.

Bucks center Bob Lanier did not play until the final quarter because of an injured thumb. Sidney Moncrief led Milwaukee with 24 points.

Philadelphia won its fourth straight when it broke open a close game by outscoring Golden State 41-22 in the third period.

Starting guards Maurice Cheeks and Lionel Hollins scored 10 points apiece to lead the surge that carried the 76ers from a 61-59 halftime lead to a 102-81 edge after three quarters.

Mavericks 104, Blazers 102
Rookie Rolando Blackman scored 16 of his 22 points in the fourth quarter as Dallas rallied from a 16-point deficit in the first half to beat Portland.

Nuggets 124, Pistons 113
Dan Issel scored 35 points and Kiki Vandeweghe added 30 to lead Denver past Detroit.

The Nuggets led the entire second half after scoring the last eight points of the second quarter for a 66-57 halftime lead. The Pistons cut the deficit to two points in the fourth period, but they hit only one field goal in the next five minutes to fall behind 117-103.

Rookies Kelly Tripucka and Isiah Thomas both scored 25 points and fellow guard Darwin Cook keyed two third-quarter rallies for New Jersey against Phoenix.

Cook's driving layup gave the Nets a 68-67 lead and ignited a 13-2 spurt that put New Jersey ahead 79-69. Walter Davis scored the next five points for Phoenix, but a 10-2 run, including a 74-foot basket by Cook at the buzzer, gave the Nets an 89-76 lead at the end of the period.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Fernando Valenzuela's days of working out in Los Angeles while holding out from the world champion Dodgers are over, at least for now. The pitching sensation of the 1981 season has returned to his homeland.

Valenzuela, the first pitcher in major league history to win the Cy Young Award and Rookie of the Year Award in the same year, left for an undisclosed location in Mexico on Wednesday, his agent, Antonio DeMarco, told the Associated Press.

"He's going to wait there until something positive happens with the Dodgers," said DeMarco. "He'll continue to train there and continue to take care of himself. He's not saying where he will be in an effort to concentrate on his work without distractions."

Valenzuela, who grew up in the state of Sonora, Mexico, has been a holdout since March 1, the day the Dodgers unilaterally renewed his contract at about $325,000.

The 21-year-old left-hander, 13-7 with a 2.48 earned run average as a rookie during the strike-interrupted 1981 season, has said repeatedly, as have his representatives, that he won't report to the Dodgers' training camp in Vero Beach, Fla., until a satisfactory agreement is reached.

DeMarco said that he and Valenzuela appeared on ABC-TV's "Good Morning, America" show Wednesday morning in Los Angeles. Valenzuela left shortly after the TV appearance for Mexico, DeMarco said.

AA-1 Co-Champs

Harrison, Willie Green, Sam Harris, Sylvester Cherry, Derick Wilkes; second row, Donnis Wells, Robert Bunn, David Applegate, David Ward, Devonese Petteway, Trak Brown and Moses Garner.

To The Editor: Basketball is a crazy game that has a language all its own. If you are a player, you give your all in every practice and game: the word is hustle.

If you are a fan, you give your support through the good and bad times: the word is devotion.

If you are a teacher or coach, you work to develop each individual to his or her fullest: the word is dedication.

If you are a cheerleader, you pour your heart out to inspire your team to one more point: the word is spirit.

If you are a parent, you watch your child grow through the joy of victory and the agony of defeat: the word is love.

If you are a basketball alumnus, you come back for the games against old rivals, for those big tournament games — and for a moment relive those treasured joys of the past: the word is loyalty.

But if you are from the North Pitt Community and you love basketball, the word that says it all is PRIDE.

Students On Guard Over ACC Campus

By STEPHEN WERK
Wilson Daily Times
WILSON, N.C. (AP) — Rod Wyatt is similar to many college students these days; he works part time to help pay for the costs of his college education.

But Wyatt doesn't work in the local pizza parlor or bookstore as do many college students. He works as a security guard on an all-student campus security patrol.

Wyatt is one of 18 male and female students who have been hired by Atlantic Christian College to keep a watchful eye out for intruders, vandals, and thieves on the small, co-educational campus.

The student security patrol, which has replaced the school's private security patrol, also secures campus buildings, issues parking tickets, and provides escorts to female students.

According to Alvin Monshower, dean of men at the college, the patrol serves to prevent crime and trouble on campus, not to apprehend lawbreakers.

"They are my eyes and ears on campus," said Monshower, who devised and now oversees the security system. "Their job is to be alert and to discourage trouble from occurring. They are instructed not to apprehend anybody."

Members of the student patrol are armed only with two-way radios, but they do wear caps and shirts with patrol insignias. They're all upperclassmen with at least a C grade-point average. They work in pairs and serve rotating shifts.

Monshower said if the patrolmen uncover a crime in progress, they radio to the central office which contacts the Wilson Police Department.

"Usually, if the patrolmen see someone hanging around who shouldn't be, they will holler or shine a flashlight at them," he said. "There is no need for confrontation."

But there have been times when members of the patrol felt the need to apprehend vandals or suspicious people. No one has been hurt during these incidents, but the patrolmen were given strong reprimands by the dean.

"Our kids aren't cops," Monshower said. "We don't want them injured; they are students."

The idea of using the students in the patrol developed with Monshower's arrival on the ACC campus in 1978, when the campus was patrolled by a private force.

"At that time, we felt we should have 24-hour security," Monshower said. "We thought using the students would be the best way to do it."

Students gradually were added to the campus security force and by August 1979 the entire patrol was composed of students.

"We found out that the private security force did not know the kids and were not familiar with who was and who was not a student," Monshower said.

"It is very hard for a stranger to come onto this campus and not be noticed," he said. "The students receive the patrol well because they know them and rely on them."

"The patrol gives me a sense of participating in something that creates trust and allows me to be someone that people can depend on," said Wyatt, a member of the patrol for nearly two years.

Registering For Kindergarten

FARMVILLE — H.B. Sugg will hold kindergarten registration for the 1982-83 school year on March 17 from 9 a.m.-1 p.m. Parents are urged to register their children at this time, according to the principal.

To be eligible for public school kindergarten, a child must be 5 years old on or before Oct. 16. Parents should present the child's birth certificate and immunization record at the time of registration.

For further information, parents may call the school at 753-2671.

Toxic Leaks Plague Water Of Small Illinois Town

By BOB SPRINGER
Associated Press Writer
WILSONVILLE, Ill. (AP) — Stan Katich remembers when, as a child, he rode his bike to Vassi Spring, which bubbles to the surface a mile south of this tiny southern Illinois town. Its water was "cold and clean" — good to drink.

That was before thousands of gallons of toxic chemical wastes were buried in a landfill above an abandoned coal mine between the town and the spring.

Then the chemicals began leaking — moved by subterranean water from trenches where people were told the wastes would be safe for 500 years or more.

The 130-acre Earthline Corp. landfill, its gate at the end of the town's five-block main street, has frightened the 700 residents of this town 25 miles northeast of St. Louis.

Townpeople argued in a 1977 suit to close the landfill that the ground wasn't stable around the abandoned coal mine.

Many of them, or their fathers, had worked in the deep-shaft mine from its opening in 1917 until its closing in 1954. They knew its tunnels, held open by rotting wooden beams, could collapse, causing the earth to heave and shift.

But Earthline, its Boston-based parent, SCA Services Inc., and the state and U.S. Environmental Protection agencies thought otherwise. They said geologic studies showed a 10-foot-thick wall of clay would keep wastes from leaking out of landfill trenches.

Earthline "is a well-designed, secure ... disposal site," the EPA told Macoupin County Circuit Judge John Russell in 1978, during the trial on the town's suit.

Arguments over Earthline "boil down to emotionalism on one side, and the scientific state of the art on the other," manufacturers who store waste at the site said in a letter — a month after Russell on Aug. 14, 1978 closed the site and ordered its toxic wastes removed.

Chemicals are still leaking from the landfill. They include highly toxic ethanes, used in industrial paint solvents.

Earthline is a case of government regulators relying on a regulated industry's word without challenging its basic assumptions, said Gwen Molinar, 57, who led the town's fight against the landfill.

What started the fight was disclosure in the spring of 1977 that dirt contaminated with polychlorinated biphenyls, or PCBs, a flame retardant and known cancer-causing agent, was shipped from Missouri to Earthline.

"When they told us there were PCBs there, we said, 'So what are PCBs?'" said Mrs. Molinar. "When we found out, we got riled." SCA contends in papers filed Feb. 19 with the Illinois Supreme Court that leaks resulted from "an isolated engineering flaw," caused by an unpredicted, continuous layer of easily permeated sand.

It says a plastic-like wall 2,000 feet long and 50 feet deep could plug leaks; that there's no need to unearth thousands of 55-gallon drums of liquid waste or tons of powder and contaminated steel.

"We don't think it'll work," said Rick Verticchio, Wilsonville's attorney.

A layer of sand doesn't explain leaks and a plastic wall won't stop them, says First Assistant Illinois Attorney General Richard Cosby, who has helped direct the five-year legal fight against Earthline.

Henry L. Mason III, an attorney for SCA, declined to comment on the company's proposal to contain the leaks.

The state Supreme Court in May unanimously upheld Russell's order, and on Monday court ordered SCA to remove immediately all chemical wastes and contaminated earth from the landfill.

An attorney for SCA said would "seriously consider" asking the U.S. Supreme Court to delay enforcement of that order. SCA has also said it intends to ask the U.S. Supreme Court to review the case.

Katich, 32, says he wouldn't drink water from the spring and he's warned his 11-year-old son, Chris, not to play by it.

"I don't think the kids would drink from it anyway even if parents didn't tell them not to, now that they've found the leaking," said Katich.

There is no evidence the spring or the creek have been contaminated by anything buried at the Earthline site, Cosby said, although no one has monitored either since Earthline opened.

All that does little to ease the minds of Wilsonville residents, who on Feb. 2 filed a $225 million damage suit against SCA. It is now pending in federal court in Springfield.

On Feb. 19, it was announced that EPA test wells found new leaking from different trenches than those found leaking in December.

"I was so frustrated when I heard that," said Mrs. Molinar. "I don't feel we have to prove anything anymore."

Mrs. Molinar said she doesn't like to talk about it, let alone think of it, but she and others in town think they've noticed a surge in the incidence of cancer among old-timers.

"Maybe it isn't so, but you can't help but wonder. The big question on everybody's mind is, 'What's it doing to me?'" she says. The state Public Health Department acknowledges it hasn't examined any residents for cancer, although the agency said it would if asked by the village board, individual residents or the state EPA. So far, no one has stepped forward.

'Error' May Save Jobs

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Officials say a "benign error" may save the jobs of 30 to 40 city employees.

St. Louis has been paying about $1 million a year more than necessary into the pension system, and that the extra money will prevent some layoffs, officials said Tuesday.

"There was some confusion," said William C. Duffe, the city's personnel director. "I would have to consider it a benign error."

Duffe said the overpayments occurred because of an error in computing the city's contribution rate to the fund for its 7,000 non-uniformed employees. The fund does not include the city's police or firefighters.

He said that for the city's fiscal year ending April 30, the city budgeted $1.3 million too much for pension payments. If the error had gone undetected, the city would have paid $1.5 million too much next year, he added.

City Comptroller Paul M. Berra said the discovery is good news for 30 or 40 employees because the city can use the overpayment to pay salaries and prevent some layoffs.

Mayor Vincent C. Schoemehl Jr. has said he intended to eliminate up to 500 positions to pay for a 3 percent pay raise for city employees.

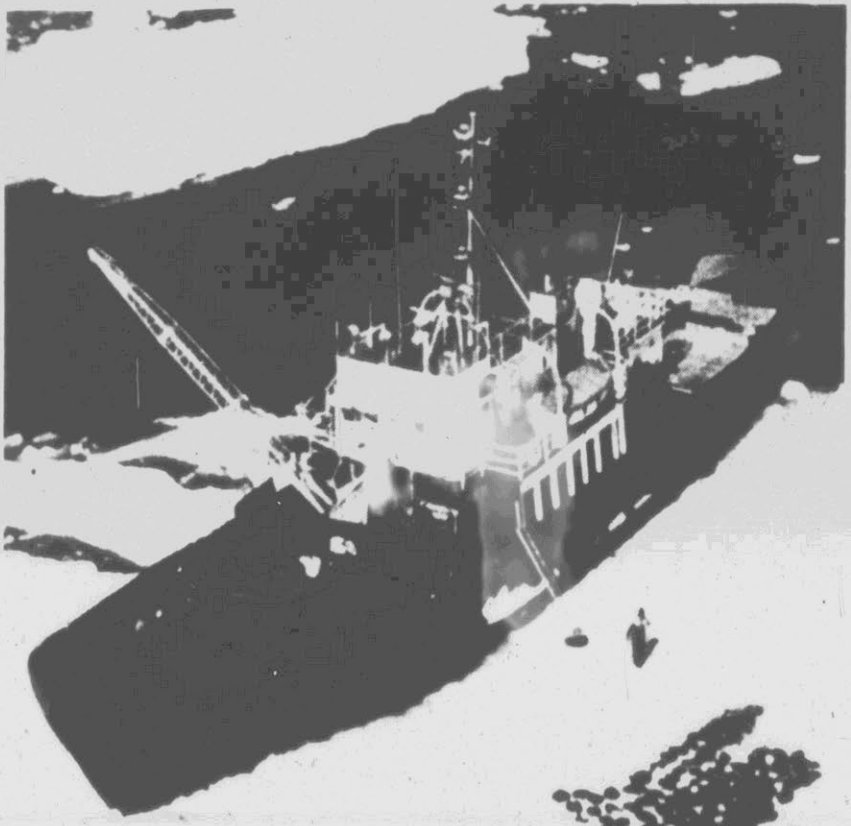

Registering For Kindergarten

PACTOLUS — Registration of kindergarten students for the school year 1982-83 will be held Tuesday from 8 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. in the school media center.

To attend kindergarten a child must be 5 years old on or before Oct. 16. To register, parents must bring the child's immunization records and birth certificate. A child cannot be enrolled until all records are seen and verified as up-to-date, according to the principal, Beth Ward.

Fiji Peace Force Detachment Is Widely Admired

By FERESHTEH EMAMI
Associated Press Writer
QANA, Lebanon (AP) — They stand out because they mostly are six feet tall, wear colorful clothes when off duty and smile a lot — even though they are in one of the most dangerous places in the world.

They are soldiers from Fiji, the island nation in the South Pacific.

They are deployed in one of the toughest areas patrolled by the United Nations Interim Force in Lebanon — better known by its acronym Unifil.

Their unit is called "Fijibatt" in Unifil lingo — short for the Fiji Battalion — and the unit has suffered more casualties than any of the contingents from seven other nations whose infantrymen serve as a buffer between Israel and the Palestine Liberation Organization in South Lebanon.

The Fijians are known among their Unifil colleagues as good cooks, fantastic musicians, mean soccer players and, as one Irish officer put it, "one hell of a good soldier."

The Fijians are on Unifil's front line along with infantrymen from Ireland, the Netherlands, Norway in Western Europe; Nepal in the Himalayas, and Nigeria, Ghana and Senegal in Africa. U.N. officials said the Fijians have lost 14 men — 11 in action and the others in accidents — since Unifil was sent to South Lebanon in 1978 after a short-lived Israeli invasion. The Fijians, close to the Palestinian-controlled strongholds around Tyre, have gotten the most harassment from the PLO guerrillas and their leftist allies, according to the U.N. officials.

The 628 Fijian soldiers now serving in Lebanon make up more than half of Fiji's entire army of 1,000 personnel. Soon more Fijians will come to the Middle East to serve in the U.S.-organized multinational force which will patrol the Sinai Peninsula after Israel returns the last slice of the desert to Egypt, scheduled for April 25.

Lt. Col. Edward Tuivanuavon, commander of Fijibatt, describes his men as "very brave and good soldiers who never complain."

Palestinian guerrillas, trying to infiltrate the Unifil zone to slip closer to Israel, have frequently been halted by the Fijians over the past 3½ years.

Last June 19 three Fijian soldiers were kidnapped at a Unifil checkpoint northeast of Qana, the Fijibatt headquarters. Two were later found slain and the third, an officer, tried to escape and was tortured before his release was negotiated, according to an official Unifil report.

The Fijians control the busiest roadblocks in the Unifil area. The one at Bazuriyah, northwest of Qana, handles an average of 800 to 900 vehicles a day, U.N. officials estimate.

Other personnel in Unifil serve in Lebanon for a six-month period, but the Fijians serve for a year. Some have spent three years in Lebanon.

They get paid a standard $1.40 a day by the United Nations and $17 a day by their own government.

"They can save up and later go back to Fiji and buy a fishing boat or a nice car with that," said Timur Goksel, a Turk who is the Unifil spokesman.

Before coming to Lebanon, many of the Fijians were fishermen or worked at tourist resorts.

During their time off here, they gather around with guitars and ukuleles, or play soccer.

One Fijian officer, when asked whether he missed his home, said: "I do very much. I miss the sun, and the sea and the music, but most of all I miss my family."

One U.N. official told of a Fijian soldier sitting in a local coffee shop strumming his new ukulele, when a little girl walked up and started playing with the instrument.

The Fijian, who had left his own 2-month-old child back home, melted with affection and gave the ukulele to the girl, despite protests from her parents who said the instrument was expensive and definitely not a toy.

"Fijibatt" has virtually been adopted by a 9-year-old

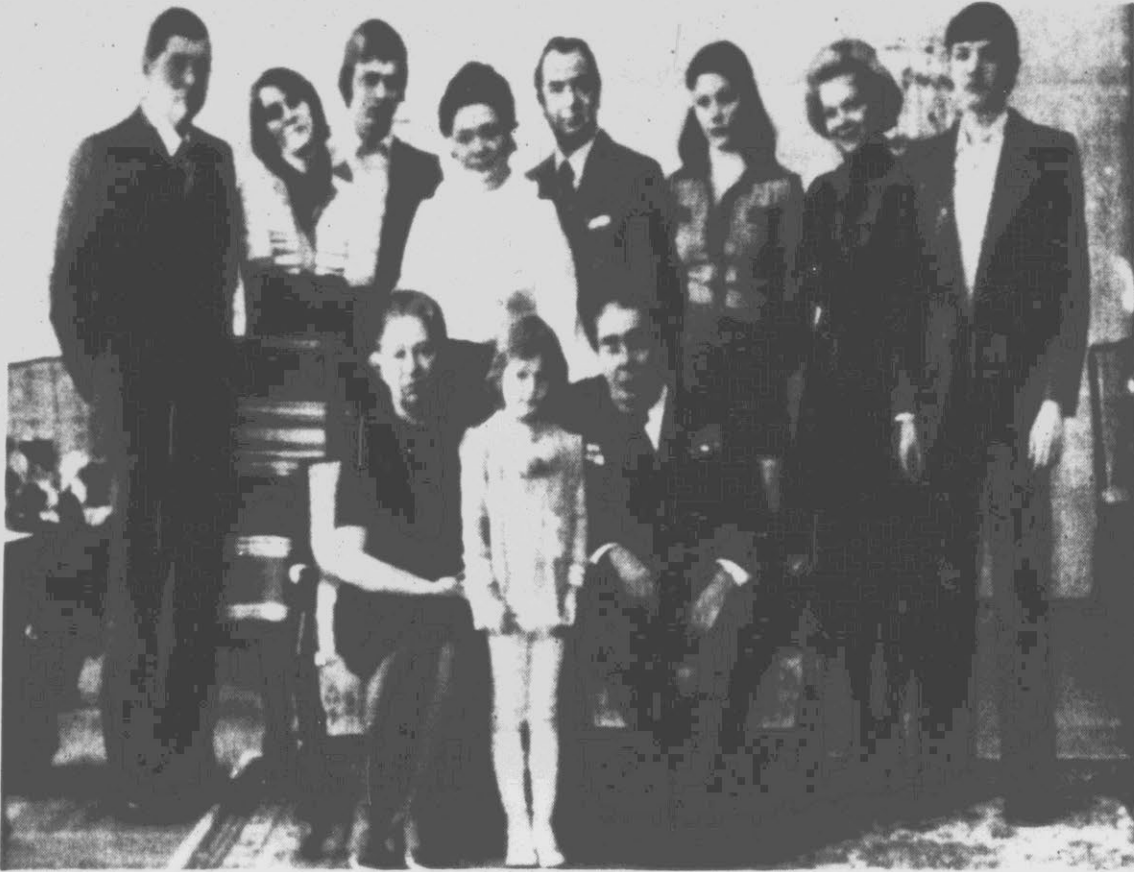

Lebanese boy whose father died during the fighting in South Lebanon in 1978. Salah Ali Rodha now speaks Fijian, makes the rounds of Unifil checkpoints in a Fijibatt jeep and helps around the mess hall.

The Fijians are by far the most colorful of the 6,000-man U.N. force.

During off-duty hours they wear brightly flowered shirts, and their checkpoints' walls are painted with scenes of Fiji island dancers and palm trees.

Other nations' checkpoints have more military-type designations, such as I-21.

But the Fijians refer to theirs as Kia, Beqa, Vatoa, and Nukulao — places back home.

Position Paper On Entitlement

The North Carolina Academy of Family Physicians has issued a position paper on the public's "entitlement to comprehensive family care in a system which promotes the maximum utilization of outpatient facilities."

"Programs which make inpatient, emergency and episodic care more accessible by providing a higher level of reimbursement for such services are now costly and often repetitious," the paper notes. "They likewise frequently result in a lower quality of care because such an approach to health care is not comprehensive."

The academy recommends that any governmental program for health care place its emphasis on comprehensive ambulatory medical care. "Reimbursement for such care should be adequate and reasonable and actually pay the physician for time spent and supplies used for the patient. The present method of reimbursing hospitalization, extended care, emergency room visit and certain specialty care at a higher percentage of customary charges is inequitable and costly," the academy said.

"Evidence exists that continuity in ambulatory care is now cost effective and comprehensive when provided through private physicians' offices as compared to ambulatory facilities primarily receiving governmental funding. The NCAFP, therefore, recommends that governmental funding for ambulatory care be directed to physicians in private practice."

Recent changes in North Carolina Medicaid reimbursement disturbs the Academy, the paper states. "We suggest that Medicare and Medicaid suppliers consider limiting pay for emergency room visits, especially non-essential ones. It is unfair and unwise to freeze reimbursement to primary care physicians, a practice which leads to less incentive to treat Medicare patients. The funds spent on unnecessary emergency room visits would be better utilized reimbursing physicians fairly for office visits.

"It also seems unwise to limit the number of prescriptions per month because this frequently leads to non-compliance by patients running out of needed medicines. This, in turn, leads to preventable expensive hospitalizations."

Zoo 'Adoption' Plan Launched

KANSAS CITY (AP) — It's an adoption program a parent could love: unlimited visitation, expenses as low as $15 a year, a trained staff to handle feeding, and clean-up, and year-round babysitting.

Of course, the "child" might be a giant fruit bat, crested porcupine, or a river otter.

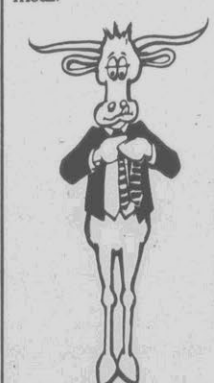

But Kansas City has some broad-minded "parents," and they are responding to an "Adopt a Wild Child" campaign recently launched by the Kansas City Zoo.

For as little as $15 a year a zoo parent can feed a tarantula (10 crickets a week), while $5,500 feeds Casey, the bull elephant, who needs 25 pounds of cabbage and carrots and 70 pounds of hay a day.

Set Return For Carol Burnett

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Reporter
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — A recent Gallup Poll for the TV special "The People's Choice Awards" revealed that Carol Burnett is the most popular woman entertainer in the United States today.

Burnett's millions of fans will be delighted to know the comedienne is returning to the tube March 15 to reprise her shrewish Eunice character based on the battling Huggins family in her old comedy sketches. "Eunice," Carol's 90-minute special will include the old cast — Harvey Korman as husband Ed, Vickie Laurence as Mother Harper and Betty White as Ellen.

The show will be a complete, four-act play — by Carol's original writers, Dick Clair and Jenna McMahon — spanning 25 years in the life of the feuding family.

"Those were the most fulfilling sketches for me personally on the weekly show," Carol said, "because the humor was drawn from life. The situations weren't simply written jokes.

Curiously, there are elements of devastating drama in Carol's presentation of Eunice and her family, moments when viewers won't know whether to laugh or cry.

The special begins with a young, unmarried Eunice. Each act progresses in 7-year to 10-year intervals of her life. Some who have seen the show compare it to a Tennessee Williams tragedy.

"You laugh sometimes because the family makes you feel uncomfortable," Carol said. "It strikes close to home. The tragedy involves people unable to communicate with each other and who rationalize their failed lives.

"Harvey Korman staged the show and directed it. We rehearsed for 10 days and then performed it three times for live studio audiences.

"After three years it was a fantastic reunion for the cast and a lot of the crew in the same studio at CBS.

"I always loved the characters in the sketches but we never had time to fully develop their intricacies before. I wanted to see what made them tick.

"The first two acts are mostly light comedy. There's a subtle change in the third act and some poignant revelations in the fourth. The laughs continue but beneath the surface the truth begins to emerge about all of them."

Just as Carol's special unveils an underlying patina of tragedy, so did Eunice evolve on the weekly show from a single dimensional harpian to a vulnerable and often pathetic woman.

"She was totally abrasive and unbelievable in our first sketch," Carol recalled. "But the audience responded to her immediately, stunned because Eunice was such a departure from variety show characters.

"Eunice wasn't remotely like 'Maude' or the characters in 'All In The Family.' I could feel there was something different going on. The sketches left me with goosebumps once in a while.

"All of us knew the characters so well we improvised a lot of the time. Parts of Eunice remind me somewhat of my mother and grandmother who were at each other's throats when I was growing up.

"My mother felt life had dealt her a bad hand. She always told me, 'If only I had been given the right break' or 'Nothing good ever happens to me.' She lived in a fantasy world full of despair.

So does Eunice." Some Southern viewers resent the Huggins family, but Carol said the family had no geographical locale when it was originally written.

"It could have been Ohio," she said. "But when I read the first lines, I reverted to my Texas family roots and the rest of the cast just followed along. Our writers hadn't planned it that way at all."

If "Eunice" proves as popular as Carol hopes it will, there will be more of Eunice and family down the TV road.

General Hospital Show Becomes A Board Game

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Be the first one on your block to double-cross your friends, blackmail your enemies and cheat on your spouse. It's the General Hospital board game. You've seen the show, now play the part. For only $9.99, your favorite cad is just a dice-roll away. You, too, can be Luke Spencer.

If Pac-Man isn't enough to keep college kids from their books, here comes General Hospital, a Monopoly-like game ready for retail sale.

It's the joint enterprise of ABC and Cardinal Industries, a New York-based game company that imports and manufactures backgammon and chess sets and a twist puzzle called Cleo the Snake.

But this is the first time that Cardinal has gotten into the television snake business.

Bonnie Berger, who graduated from Boston University last year, is Cardinal's marketing director. She told her father, the president of the company, that the hottest craze on campus was ABC's soap opera, "General Hospital."

Cardinal then hired freelance developer Brent Noseworthy, even though he had never seen the show, the most popular in daytime TV history with a faithful 14 million viewers in 1981.

In less than three months, a relatively short development time, Noseworthy had created what Miss Berger calls the first role-playing board game. It was ready in time for last month's National Toy Show. Based on the interest of the retailers, Cardinal plans to produce from 300,000 to 500,000 games this year. This is how it works: The players (up to 10 at a time) select the characters they want to be. They move around the board and earn points by starting romances, helping or hurting other players, and acquiring money. The first to reach 100 points wins.

If you want to be Luke, his character card says he's from the "wrong side of the tracks," but "poverty never crushed his spirit." In the strategic areas of romance, power, material gain and reputation, Luke "has less fear from rumors than characters like Alan Quartermaine or Amy Vingling."

Depending on the characters' personality, different points may be awarded for the same act. Some are the marrying kind, some are better at carousing. For Heather Webber to win, her card advises the player "to risk several double-cross attempts during a game."

FATE cards are like CHANCE in Monopoly. Players get them and are cleared of rumors, earn massages or have romances. Players receive points for being happily married, which the directions define as "any marriage that lasts until the end of the game."

But who can resist temptation? "Whenever a married character lands on the Campus Disco square, he or she is considered to have supplied their spouse grounds for divorce and the marriage automatically breaks up."

The game may be subject to fickle human nature, but it's not completely at the mercy of program manuvering. ABC tipped Cardinal that Laura would be leaving the show, so she's not in the game. And, if any cardboard characters are dropped from the real "General Hospital," Cardinal will stamp out new faces as quickly as ABC does.

Cardinal, which also has rights to General Hospital puzzles and medical kits, unveils an advertising campaign in college newspapers and soap opera magazines this month. ABC, however, won't permit General Hospital commercials on "General Hospital."

What if "General Hospital" isn't your afternoon addiction? "No problem. If this game takes off, we could just change the settings and characters and do other soap operas," said Miss Berger. "People live vicariously through soaps, so this is a natural. I want to be Jackie Templeton. She's going to be Luke's new love interest."

Deficit Is Wiped Out

STOCKBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI) — The 54-year-old Berkshire Theater Festival has wiped out a $100,000 deficit in the past three years and has started raising money for an endowment fund. The festival will start this summer's season debt-free for the first time in nearly 20 years. Artistic Director Josephine Abady says the deficit was overcome with a policy of tight fiscal control, stable management, increased ticket prices and sales.

Co-Winners In Play Contest

LOUISVILLE (UPI) — Two plays have been judged co-winners of the Actors Theater of Louisville's 1982 Great American Play Contest: "Full Hookup" by Elizabeth Fuller and Conrad Bishop and "A Different Moon" by Ara Watson. They will share the $5,000 first prize, and both plays will be produced during March as part of the ATL's 6th Annual Humana Festival of New American Plays. "A Different Moon" is about a woman who is taken in by a warm-hearted family after its son has deserted her; "Full Hookup" is a drama "detailing relationships with no strings and violence without conscience."

"We never worried if they would get a laugh because it was so human. This is the best work I've done. It was a matter of really digging into the characters to see how these people got this way. It took a year to write the special."

Carol sat on a stool behind the bar of her Beverly Hills mansion — an unlikely perch for the actress who doesn't drink. She was deeply involved in "Beatrice," a two-hour TV movie account of the woman who founded Alcoholics Anonymous. The project is especially close to Carol. Both her parents were alcoholics and died of alcohol-related dis-

Wedgewood Arms apartments are within walking distance of three shopping centers, a nursery school, a junior high school, doctors' and dentists' offices and an athletic center.

As if that wasn't enough, three major traffic arteries, 264 Bypass, Arlington Blvd., and Charles St. are close enough to be seen and not heard.

Fact is, no apartments in town can legitimately claim to be more convenient to more things than Wedgewood Arms.

And, that's not all. Because Wedgewood Arms is not only convenient, it's different in other ways, too.

Take the floorplans, they're different from anything you've ever seen. And when you add in high energy efficiency, tennis courts, swimming pool, and the neighborhood "feeling" that these apartments will give you — well, you'll just have to see for yourself.

Many items in this ad carry a reference retail price. This reference is intended to provide a guide to the range of retail selling prices in our selling area and may be useful in identifying different units of the same manufacturer. An item's reference retail price is either the manufacturer's suggested retail price or our determination of its full retail price based on prices at which similar merchandise is offered by principal retailers (department stores, specialty shops, and other non-discount sellers) in our selling area. While we believe our reference retail prices do not appreciably exceed the highest retail prices at which sales are made in our selling area, we cannot assure you that our reference retail prices, as described above, represent the prices in every community on any given day. Some items in this ad are listed as "regular" selling price. The merchandise is offered at this price, except during a special sale. Investing In Cable TV Is Only For The Super Rich

By KENNETH R. CLARK
UPI TV Reporter
NEW YORK (UPI) — The cable television industry, which has the potential of generating money as if it were the U.S. mint, has been likened to a gold rush. Michael E. Marcovsky prefers to think of it as a mine field.

on financial stretchers. "It's not easy and you have to know what you're doing," he said of the business that now has crews laying cable through neighborhoods in nearly every town in America. "Unfortunately, because of the tremendous growth and the attraction, there are still a lot of people who are stumbling into it. They're learning by doing." According to Marcovsky, the American public is going to learn, too — just what their forebears learned when the industrial revolution forever turned their way of doing things upside down. He said the new society, wired to cable, will be "the information society," and no one will avoid its impact.

Marcovsky, who spearheaded development of the two-way interactive QUBE system in Columbus, Ohio, is a cable television consultant now. As president of Marnel Associates, Ltd., in Los Angeles, he is a guide the daring hire to lead them through the peril of cable investment.

He probably knows as much as anyone in the business about the teeming field in which as many as 104 channels are being promised to bewildered viewers, but he denies expertise.

"No one in this business is an expert," he said in a New York interview. "I'm not an expert. I'm just maybe two chapters ahead of the class in the book and the book isn't even written."

"And what we are writing, we're writing in pencil because what is true this afternoon will be changed by next week."

Nonetheless, Marcovsky, who just put Hugh Hefner's Playboy Channel on the tube, knows what it takes to get into the business. What it takes is a great deal of money and the nerves of a table stakes poker player.

"You want in as what?" he said. "As a programmer? An operator? A producer? If you're a major company and want to get into cable television as a system operator, I would say you'd need hundreds of millions of dollars."

"If you want to get involved in franchising a new market, or as a partner because without cable experience, it might be hard for you to qualify for a franchise; you would need tens of millions of dollars — maybe hundreds of millions. If you want to start a cable network, you would need anywhere from 5 to 50 million, depending on what it is."

But those endeavors involve hardware, and with hardware at least goes real dollar value and a few tax breaks. It is the creative folks who would supply the projected 104 channels with programs who may have the most to lose, even if they have less to invest.

"If you want to produce programming, you can do it at a smaller scale, but the profit margins aren't huge and you've got to really know the territory," said Marcovsky. "You'd have to invest, I'd say, half a million up ... and you may wind up with a piece of video tape that has no intrinsic value other than $60 a reel."

"The rainbow's further away than what you can see right now and I will say point blank, it's very hard to make money, if at all, in producing programming for cable. There's not hundreds of thousands of profit per program at this point. The subscriber base is not broad enough. The economics are just beginning to be there."

Like a high-stakes poker game, however, the cable gamble can pay off handsomely, which probably is why so many corporations — including the commercial networks — are calling for a hand.

"I would say right now there are 43 programs available on the various satellites," Marcovsky said, "and that doesn't count the ones that have been announced that I have great faith will go forward with their services."

"The cable health network isn't even up yet. The Rockefeller-RCA joint venture entertainment channel premieres June 4. The weather channel, which is funded by Landmark Communications, is not on yet. We could go on and on."

"This is just the beginning of what it's going to be, although the industry has gone out of infancy to perhaps the crawling stage. Wait until they get on their feet! Of course, when they get on their feet, they're also going to fall down a bit."

"One question I'm always asked is what is the fallout of some of these services. We can't predict that until we have them on, but naturally there are going to be services that will come and go just like any business."

expanding diversity is that of the three commercial networks, but Marcovsky said they have themselves and their advertisers to blame as much as cable competition.

"What's happening, and we all know it, is that the shares of the audience have declined," he said. "There are three things that are eroding the networks. Number one is the networks themselves, because I think some of the consumers are less than thrilled with the constant schedule shifts."

"Sometimes it's hard enough to find your favorite show, let alone one you're only mildly interested in. Also, the growth of independent stations and some of their more sophisticated services may have something to do with it. And thirdly, yes — the new medium."

But Marcovsky said commercial sponsors, with their obsession for Nielsen ratings, also are vulnerable to cable's new forms of programming, and that they will suffer if they fail to change with the times.

"They keep saying, 'But what are the numbers? What are the numbers? How many are watching?'" he said. "My response at this stage of the game is 'Who cares?'"

"I would urge the advertising community to begin experimenting with forms of communication and services that are different than 30-second spots that are produced for $250,000."

The "form" in Marcovsky's mind was the "infomercial" by which a sponsor can sell his product — not with the mindless pitch that now sends viewers running for bathroom or refrigerator — but by packaging it as a microcosmic program that actually imparts information as well as an invitation to buy.

"I take credit for coining the phrase, even though everybody else has used it," he said. "When we were at QUBE, we had a form called the infomercial and it was an information, or anti-program, segment ... I never had one complaint from a consumer about an infomercial."

Marcovsky cited the Shell Oil Company's "Answer Man" as a perfect example of the infomercial he said will mark the cable era and he offered a peek at the immediate future that might glaze the eyes of a network sales executive.

"What if you had a show called 'The Answer Hour?'" he said. "Are you going to be offended because there's a program that shows you, by certain driving techniques, how you can get more miles per gallon and, by the way, happens to be brought to you by Shell?"

"I don't think we've begun to tap those resources," Marcovsky said cable, with its almost unlimited diversity of programming, ranging through video games, banking and buying from the home, foreign languages and a host of specialty programs, will have no trouble filling the projected 104 channels — or of changing the very lifestyles of those who view them.

"Cable will change the way things are watched in this country, the way people are educated and the way goods and services are bought and sold," he said. "It may include, when you take the broad spectrum, the way their employees work, the hours they work and whether they can do some of that work at home."

"The smart companies are aware that we're going from what was an agrarian society to what became an industrial society, based on the automobile, to an information society.

"We've gone from a medium of of scarcity, which broadcast television basically was, to a medium of abundance. It's really quite American when you think about it."

'Barney Miller' In Final Season

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The lights at the shabby 12th Precinct police station are being turned out for good next month on Barney. Wojo, Harris and the assortment of zany crooks who make up the "Barney Miller" TV series.

The show, which has been slipping in the ratings, will be taken off the air at the end of the current season.

Executive Producer Danny Arnold, co-creator of the hit comedy starring Hal Linden, said Wednesday negotiations with ABC-TV ended last week when he refused ABC's renewal offer.

"They waited for five weeks and then came to me with an offer so ludicrous that they knew I could not possibly accept it," Arnold said by telephone from Hawaii.

ABC spokesman Phil Krieger emphasized that it had been the decision by Arnold, and his Four D Productions, not to renew the show.

"The point is, we are not and have not canceled 'Barney Miller.' Both ABC and Four D Productions negotiated in good faith on the matter of continuing 'Barney Miller' on the network next season. We could not come to terms to which we could both agree," Krieger said.

Gloria Luchenbill, publicist for Linden, said the series would finish production about April 23.

The show's ratings have been low this year, and Arnold said last season he wanted to call it quits. He had said he was in poor health, had lost key staff members and felt he no longer could maintain the quality that had attracted 10 Emmy nominations and one Emmy award in eight seasons.

"I had made the decision last year to take the show off the air, and legal complications prevented that from happening," he said.

"I felt it was going to be too difficult to maintain the quality of the show," Arnold said, noting that the show had become increasingly expensive to produce because of increased salaries. "I don't like to do anything halfway."

Arnold, who created the show with Tony Sheehan, blamed the ratings decline on ABC's erratic scheduling of the show this season and the delay caused by the Writers Guild of America strike.

He said ABC had not promoted the show well this season, had placed a weak program in the time slot preceding it and often preempted the show. In the latest ratings of the A.C. Nielsen Co., the show placed 42nd out of 69 shows. The week before it was in 39th place, and in both weeks its percentage of the audience was in the middle 20s.

The show had undergone numerous cast changes during its eight seasons, most notably the loss of Abe Vigoda to his own series, "Fish"; Greg Sierra to another Arnold series, "A.E.S. Hudson Street," and Linda Lavin to "Alice." Jack Soo died in 1979.

Arnold, who previously had produced the Emmy-winning "My World and Welcome to It," said he had no immediate plans. But he had few kind words for network television.

"I think the people who make the decisions, creatively, are becoming much less qualified every year," he said. "I'm not anxious to continue in television under the circumstances that on occasion have been created. I wouldn't attempt to do another TV series unless I had a good deal of committed help. At the moment there is nothing that interests me sufficiently."

FOCUS

A Short Life

Although the natural life span of young harp seals is about 30 years, many will live only a few weeks. During March about 100,000 baby seals will be clubbed or shot, and skinned for their beautiful white fur. Ironically, the purpose of the fur is protection — from cold and predators. It is actually transparent, to absorb the sun's heat, until the pups can develop a thick layer of insulating blubber. Within four weeks of birth, however, the fur changes to gray. So the young seals are killed almost immediately after birth, before they can swim or maneuver well on shore. The pelts, which bring up to $30 each, will not be seen in America, however, since it is illegal to import harp seal fur into this country.

DO YOU KNOW — How long can a harp seal remain underwater?

WEDNESDAY'S ANSWER — The moon has about twice as strong an effect on tides as the sun.

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, MAR. 12, 1982

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: This could be a day of arguments and much tensions coming into the open unless you make a point to maintain self-control. The poise you display can impress others.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Ask questions of an associate and then you will know better what is expected of you. A private matter can be resolved now.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Make certain you know the motive behind a favor a friend wants to bestow upon you. A social affair could be costly.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Carry through with what a higher-up expects of you instead of being obstinate. Safeguard your reputation tonight.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Be sure to handle important business matters before engaging in social activities. Show that you have wisdom.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Keep friends and advisers apart today and avoid trouble. You have latent talents that should be put to work.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Contact higher-ups and gain the support you need. Show kindness with one who offends instead of becoming vengeful.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) It's important that you carry through with regular routines today instead of going on a foolish fun spree.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Don't jeopardize your security by spending lavishly for entertainment. Save your money instead and invest it wisely.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Don't join an argument between a family tie and a friend at this time. Streamline your social activities.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Although you may be provoked, don't argue with a co-worker who happens to be out of sorts at this time.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Find a more practical system for operating in the days ahead. Listen to what a successful friend has to suggest.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Try to get at the bottom of an unpleasant situation at home and establish more harmony. Strive for increased happiness.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be inclined to get in arguments and with little accomplished, so teach to get at underlying causes of trouble. Make sure your progeny develops the right philosophy of life. Don't neglect ethical training.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Sometimes, which card you play from a combination is a matter of guesswork. But at other times circumstances might dictate your choice.

At this vulnerability, we think that North is a little light for his preempt, especially since he had the worst possible distribution. Vulnerable, you should be within two tricks of your preempt, and North rated to take only six tricks. South's decision to bid three no trump was perfectly normal. All that remained was for him to fulfill his contract.

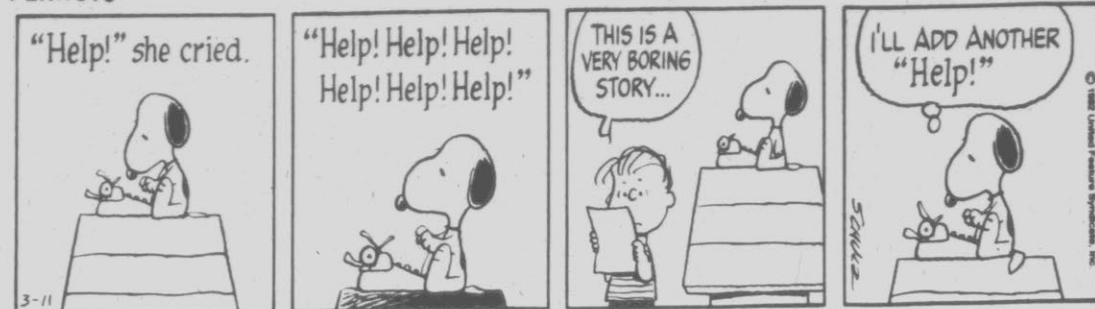

West led his fourth-best spade. East played the king and declarer made the technically correct play of holding up the ace. East continued with the nine of spades, covered by the ten and won by the jack. West carefully returned the queen of spades, suggesting that his entry was in the higher ranking suit, i.e., hearts, and declarer was forced to win the ace.

Declarer knocked out the ace of clubs, and East dutifully shifted to a low heart. If you were declarer, which heart would you play from your hand?

Had declarer needed a trick from the heart suit, he would have a pure guess whether to play the jack or the king. But a heart trick had no bearing on the outcome of the hand, for declarer had more than enough tricks from the minor suits alone. Declarer's sole objective was to prevent West from gaining the lead to cash his spades.

If declarer inserts the jack, West will get on lead whether he holds the queen or the ace. However, if declarer plays the king, West will be able to win only if he holds the ace. The play of the king stands twice the chance of that of the jack, and would succeed here.

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC
COLIFORM BACTERIA FOUND IN DRINKING WATER
During February 1982 coliform bacteria was found in drinking water samples from the Woodland Hills Mobile Home Estates water system above the limit as it appears in the "Rules Governing Public Water Supplies."
Coliform bacteria is an environmental bacteria which is found in the soil and intestinal tract of warm blooded animals. The presence of coliform bacteria in drinking water indicates that some contamination has occurred.
In an attempt to correct the cause of the contamination we have done the following:
(Check the appropriate examples)
X We have disinfected the water system.
X We have flushed the water lines.
X We are in the process of installing a continuous disinfection equipment.
X Check samples submitted on March 1, 1982 show the water to be free of coliform bacteria.
If you have questions about this notice, please contact:

Taste Verdict: Merit.

Former higher tar smokers applaud MERIT as "Best-tasting low tar I've tried."

Can a low tar cigarette provide the taste incentive to switch smokers from higher tar brands?

Research proves MERIT can.

Taste Debate Ends.

Nationwide survey reveals over 90% of MERIT smokers who switched from higher tar are glad they did. In fact, 94% don't even miss their former brands.

Further Evidence: 9 out of 10 former higher tar smokers report MERIT an easy switch, that they didn't give up taste in switching, and that MERIT is the best-tasting low tar they've ever tried.

MERIT Landslide.

In addition, extensive unmarked-pack tests confirm that MERIT delivers a winning combination of taste and low tar when compared with higher tar leaders.

Confirmed: The overwhelming majority of smokers reported MERIT taste equal to—or better than—leading higher tar brands.

Confirmed: When tar levels were revealed, 2 out of 3 chose the MERIT combination of low tar and good taste.

Year after year, in study after study, MERIT remains unbeaten. The proven taste alternative to higher tar smoking—is MERIT.
