World Trade Award For Governor Hunt

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Gov. Jim Hunt received the first annual World Trade Award Monday from the Coastal Plains chapter of the North Carolina World Trade Association.

Hunt, during his visit to Greenville, also presented a national energy award to Pitt Community College; listened to a review of the Pitt County Juvenile Services Restitution Program; briefly toured the facilities at the Eastern Carolina Vocational Center; video-taped a television announcement supporting world trade, and attended a reception in his honor sponsored by the Pitt County Democratic Women.

The World Trade Award was presented to Hunt by Bob Mills, Coastal Plains chapter president, at the organization's meeting at the Casablanca Restaurant.

"We at the association have begun this awards program to bring recognition to those who have done the most to promote world trade in North Carolina," Mills said. "In light of Governor Hunt's record, I think it is particularly appropriate that he has been selected as the first recipient of this honor."

East Carolina University, through its Regional Development Institute, helped establish the Coastal Plains chapter several years ago. Former ECU Chancellor Leo Jenkins and acting Chancellor John Howell were on hand for the presentation of the award to the governor.

Saying he was "very proud" to receive the award, Hunt emphasized "North Carolina has always been a world leader. I believe that North Carolina has just scratched the surface of its foreign trade potential."

Urging businesses in the state to "get involved" in world trade, the governor said "the whole world is out there," and pointed out that the award — a mounted world globe — "is symbolic of the kind of horizon the people of North Carolina have. We want to be the very best in the world."

Hunt pointed out that the yearly value of direct exports by state firms has more than doubled in the last five years, rising from $2.2 billion in 1976 to more than $4.5 billion in 1981. He also noted that in 1981, the state's manufacturers produce more than $3.2 billion worth of goods that were eventually exported as parts of other products.

Foreign investments in North Carolina have also grown, according to Hunt. Since 1977, more than $748 million — nearly three times the value of foreign investments during the previous 20 years — has been invested in new and expanding industry.

Hunt, as governor, has established North Carolina foreign trade offices in Japan; hired a full-time representative to promote the state's ports among Japanese and other Far East shipping lines; led foreign trade missions to the Far East and Europe, and was the first Tar Heel governor to visit mainland China while working to encourage that country's trade with state businesses.

Following the award presentation, Hunt taped a television announcement scheduled to be aired by ABC network affiliates across the state, promoting the World Trade Conference, scheduled for April 22-23 in Wilmington, during Export Imperative Week.

Earlier in the afternoon, after presenting Pitt Community College officials with a U.S. Department of Education award for excellence in research and training in the school's energy technology department, Hunt met with juvenile court counselors and others involved to review the Pitt County Juvenile Services Restitution Program.

Juvenile Court Counselor Eve Rogers, who explained the restitution program to the governor, said it is designed to increase the juvenile offender's sense of responsibility and accountability for his behavior; provide an opportunity to the juveniles to begin learning basic skills; provide a means by which participants can contribute to the community; help deter juveniles from future involvement in delinquency, and serve as a means by which delinquents can offer at least partial compensation to their victims.

Ms. Rogers said juvenile participants "come under the umbrella of caring, responsible adults," who act as volunteer supervisors at worksites in the community.

The juveniles, she noted, work a minimum of four hours a week under the adult volunteer supervisors, who "listen to their needs, problems, interests and concerns."

The restitution program "benefits the victims" of their crimes, Ms. Rogers explained, because it allows the juveniles to earn money for "victim compensation" up to $500.

Hunt was told that the program, started in January, now has 18 juveniles participating, along with 25 volunteers and nine worksites.

Hunt, praising the juvenile restitution program, said of such community-based alternatives — and programs such as the extended school program that allows students to work during the day and attend high school classes at night: "all of these things are to help young people ... be all they can be."

Hunt, who emphasized the "need to make restitution to the victims ... I believe in that very strongly ... (because) too often the victim is forgotten," said the restitution program provides "young people who make a mistake" an opportunity to "understand the mistake and make up for it."

The governor, saying "we spend so much time keeping young folks dependent on us," suggested, "Young people need to have a chance to do some things to help" themselves and others. "We need to make folks realize they can do things themselves," he said.

Saying "I'm proud of what you're doing," Hunt continued: "I urge the community to keep giving support ... Let's help our young people."

Hunt concluded his Greenville visit by attending a 5:30 p.m. to 7 p.m. reception at the Casablanca, sponsored by the Pitt

Funding Plan For Rose High Structure

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

A two-fold plan was approved Monday night by the Greenville School Board to assure availability of funding for an additional building at Rose High School to house an automotive mechanics and graphic arts program.

The plan, submitted by Superintendent Delma Blinson, is predicated on two steps. One is to prepare a budget amendment that would take $30,000 from the current $148,000 fund balance and appropriate it toward the estimated $80,000 to $85,000 cost of the proposed building.

The second step is to give Pitt County Commissioners a tentative capital outlay summary totaling $335,850 for fiscal year 1982-83. From this tentative summary, the school board will ask the county to commit $50,000 to $55,000 needed to complete funding for the building.

Board members emphasized that the recommended $335,850 outlay does not reflect the total capital outlay needs for the city schools, but does represent the system's most pressing needs. They said it also could provide a basis for county commissioners in considering the request for immediate funding assistance for the Rose High building.

Don McLane, director of vocational education, explained that the proposed building will provide 8,120 square feet to house the automotive program, the graphics shop, rest rooms, storage space and other areas needed for the courses. Plans are, he said, to have school maintenance staff provide the major labor for the building's construction, with sub-contracts being let for work that cannot be accomplished by the maintenance staff.

One of the primary factors in seeking funds for the building is to effect a savings of $8,000 annually now paid in rental fees for an automotive shop in Greenville. Dr. Blinson noted that, in his meeting with County Manager Reginal Gray and the county commissioners on Monday, he received the impression they looked with favor on the building proposal and the fact it would allow saving the annual rental cost.

A breakdown for the $335,850 tentative capital outlay summary shows $132,500 for facility construction and renovation; $184,800 for replacement of furnishings and equipment; and $18,500 for acquisition of vehicles.

In other matters:

•Two budget amendments were approved. Budget Amendment No. 2 of the State Public School Fund represents an increase of $1,389 in additional state school funds received. Budget Amendment No. 12 of the Current Expense fund is for an increase of $2,893 to provide funds to cover the supplement schedule fund for instructional services. The majority of this amount comes from an appropriation from the fund balance.

•Approval was given to a contract with John C. Proctor &

Co. to audit accounts of the Greenville City Schools. The contract, at an agreed fee of $4,800, is for audit of all categories of school funds except federal funds, for which audits are carried out by federal auditors. The contract calls for an audit date of Oct. 31, 1982.

•A Pitt County Disaster Relief and Assistance Plan encompassing agreements on the part of the Greenville Board of Education was approved. The plan, formulated by Pitt County Fire Marshal Bobby Joyner, calls for the school board to permit the Red Cross to use selected schools as natural disaster shelters. It further stipulates that designated school staff members from each of the schools act as part of a staff operating the shelter; and an agreement to open the schools at any time day or night when requested to do so by Red Cross officials.

•Dr. Robert F. Ehinger, director of the Pitt County Health Department, has notified the schools that nursing services provided to the city schools must be curtailed "as it was last

Ordinance

The Pitt County Board of Commissioners, following a 2 p.m. public hearing Monday, gave approval to a "State of Emergency Ordinance" which gives broad powers to the chairman of the board to impose prohibitions and restrictions during a state of emergency in the county.

The ordinance provides that a state of emergency may be declared when, during times of public crisis, disaster, rioting, catastrophe, or similar public emergency, public safety authorities are unable to maintain public order or afford adequate protection for lives, safety or property.

Prohibitions and restrictions which may be imposed under the ordinance include: a curfew; the possession, consumption and transfer of liquor, beer and wine; the possession, transportation and transfer of dangerous weapons, and substances such as incendiary devices, explosives, gasoline and other material; access to certain areas, such as subdivisions, streets and highways; and the operation of businesses, public places, and offices.

The ordinance, as adopted, applies to areas outside the various municipalities within the county. However, municipal governments may adopt similar ordinances or elect to come under the county ordinance.

Soviet Deployment Of Missiles Boosted Before Brezhnev Spoke

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union is dramatically increasing deployment of medium-range missile batteries on both sides of the Ural Mountains even while arms control talks are under way, a senior U.S. official says.

Only hours after the U.S. official spoke with reporters, Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev, in a speech today to a trade union congress in the Kremlin, declared a unilateral moratorium on the deployment of medium-range nuclear missiles in Europe.

And, Radio Moscow said, Brezhnev said the Soviet Union also intends this year "to reduce a certain number" of the medium-range missiles it previously has put in place.

Put in place. The senior U.S. official, citing U.S. intelligence data, said the Soviets are building five new SS-20 missile batteries capable of increasing to 1,350 — the number of nuclear warheads carried by three different types of Soviet medium-range weapons.

Construction on some sites has begun since the opening of arms control talks in Geneva, said the official, who briefed reporters on the condition he not be identified.

The official said that if the five sites are stocked with 10 SS-20 missiles each — as expected — the Soviet Union soon will deploy 150 additional nuclear warheads, each able to strike European targets.

Additionally, he said, the latest U.S. intelligence estimate is that the Soviets already have deployed 300 SS-20 missiles, an increase of 20 from the previous total, he said.

The overall numbers are swelled by including warheads on the older Soviet SS-4 and SS-5 missiles as well as the more modern and more potent SS-20s. The total number of warheads now deployed on all three medium-range Soviet missiles is estimated at 1,200, he said.

Despite these developments, the official said Soviet negotiators are approaching the arms control talks in Geneva in a "serious and businesslike manner."

Von Bulow Is Ruled Guilty

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — A jury today found socialite Claus C. von Bulow guilty of twice trying to murder his heiress wife with insulin injections that plunged her into an irreversible coma.

Von Bulow, 55, could be sentenced to a maximum 40 years in prison, but Superior Court Judge Thomas H. Needham allowed him to remain free on $100,000 bond pending an April 2 hearing on a defense motion for a new trial. No date was set for sentencing.

The seven-man, five-woman jury filed back into the courtroom at about 11:15 a.m. after deliberating for 36 hours over six days.

The tall, balding defendant, seated at the defense table with hands folded in front him, maintained the stoic poise he displayed throughout the nine-week trial as jury forewoman Barbara Connett announced the two verdicts.

Mrs. Connett, in a clear voice, twice responded "Guilty" when asked by the court clerk for the jury's finding on the two counts of attempted murder.

Lawyers for the Danish-born financial consultant had said they would appeal a conviction.

"It has been a long trial and a tremendous strain on you, the jury, as well as the defendant," Needham said before recessing court.

Prosecutor Stephen R. Famiglietti urged the judge to revoke bail, saying von Bulow was a wealthy man capable of fleeing to his native Denmark, and "we could not compel the country to Denmark to return him."

If given concurrent 20 year terms on the two counts, von Bulow would be eligible for parole in 7½ years. If the terms are consecutive, he would have to serve nearly 14 years behind bars before parole review.

Cost Of College: What Washington Wrought

By HOT OLAN
(Second in a Series)

Several dozen college presidents lobbied in Washington, D.C. five months ago against the Reagan Administration's most recent round of cuts in student aid programs. They warned that the cutbacks could force poor students to abandon hopes of a college education, while undercutting long-range efforts to improve the nation's productivity.

The Rev. Theodore Hesburgh, president of Notre Dame, was among those who speculated that additional cuts could keep poor and minority students out of college. If that happens, he emphasized, "I think we're going downhill as a nation."

E.K. Fretwell, chancellor of the University of North Carolina-Charlotte, attacked budget director David Stockman's statement that government "has no obligation to fund generous grants to anybody that wants to go to college."

He charged the Administration with trying "to abolish the federal commitment to provide secondary opportunities...at a time when alternative resources are not available."

Since then, many other critics have insisted that the Administration is reneging on a well-established Federal commitment to education equity while attempting to roll back to a previous era when college was a privilege of the wealthy and the subsidized poor.

"After two decades of struggling to make college available to every qualified student who wanted to go, we thought the 1980s would be an era to focus on quality," said Senator Claiborne Pell (D-Rhode Island), who was the principal architect of Federal grants to disadvantaged students that now bear his name.

"Instead, we now have to back up and ask about numbers as well."

Pell Grants to low income students were cut by $80 each last summer, with the maximum allowable grant reduced from $1,750 to $1,670. In addition, a revised eligibility schedule eliminated an estimated 250,000 students, most of them from families earning $16,000 to $25,000 annually.

Double Ring Vows Spoken On Sunday

BAYBORO — Laura Louise Dees and Curtis Craig McLawhorn were married Sunday afternoon in a double ring ceremony in the Bayboro Missionary Baptist Church here.

The ceremony was performed at 3:30 p.m. by the Rev. Mike Hinson. A program of music was presented by Sheryl Hardison, organist, and Debra Miller, pianist, both of Bayboro. Ann Autry of Alliance sang "The Wedding Song," "We've Only Just Begun" and "The Wedding Prayer."

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Dees of Bayboro. She was given in marriage by her father, Jannette Sumrell of Ayden was matron of honor and the maid of honor was Melannie Autry of Bayboro.

The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. J. Odell McLawhorn of Route 1, Ayden. His father was best man.

Flower girls included Karen Dees of New Bern, niece of the bride, and Kelley McLawhorn of Ayden, daughter of the bridegroom. The candlelighter was Bryan McLawhorn of Ayden, son of the bridegroom.

Ushers were Dale Lewis of Ayden and Abbott Dees of Bayboro, brother of the bride.

Ivey Dees of New Bern, sister-in-law of the bride, presided at the bride's book.

The bride wore a gown of white chiffon over taffeta styled with a high Victorian neckline accented with Venice lace. The bodice was covered with chantilace and the long sheer sleeves ended in a lace cuff. The full skirt extended to a chapel length train. She wore combs of white silk rosebuds in her hair and carried a cascade of pink silk roses with white satin ribbons.

The matron of honor wore a pink gown of polyknit with Venise lace trim. She carried long-stemmed mums with pink and blue ribbon. The maid of honor was dressed in an identical gown in blue.

The flower girls each wore a floor length dress with lace trim and carried pink baskets of rose petals.

The mother of the bride wore a pale blue polyknit dress with lace trim. The mother of the bridegroom wore a pink polyknit dress. Both wore matching carnation corsages.

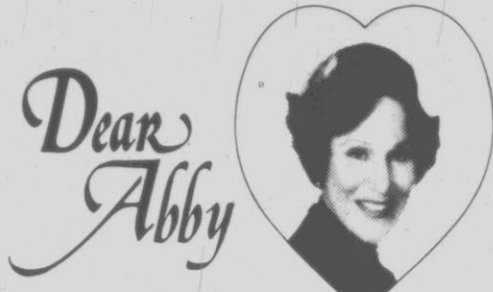

The parents of the bride entertained at a reception. Assisting were Mrs. Raymond Potter, Mrs. James Mayo, Mrs. Herman Dunbar and Susan Gibbs.

Refreshment tables were covered with lace cloths and centered with pink silk roses, blue flowers and baby's breath.

Following the rehearsal, the bridegroom's parents entertained at a dinner at the Village Restaurant, Oriental.

The couple will live in Ayden following a Florida wedding trip.

The bride is a graduate of East Carolina University with a B.S. degree in social work. The bridegroom is employed by the United States Postal Service, Ayden.

Medical Airline Is Successful

DEAR ABBY: This is to bring you up to date on AirLifeLine, the non-profit association of airplane pilots (and others) who volunteer their time and planes to fly medical personnel, equipment and supplies, free of charge, in emergency situations.

We are progressing very well. We now have almost 500 pilots in 40 states. Money remains a problem, but I suppose that is the constant battle any group of our type faces.

Recently several volunteer pilots engaged in a four-month project flying mother's milk twice weekly from Sacramento to Modesto, Calif., to save a 1-month-old baby who had been kidnapped with his mother two weeks earlier.

The baby was found near his brutally murdered mother and taken to Modesto Memorial Hospital. There the doctors found that the baby was allergic to baby formula and might not survive without mother's milk. The call for mother's milk went out, and 13 mothers responded! Members of the Sacramento-based AirLifeLine donated their time, flight costs and privately owned craft in making the 60-mile hop between Sacramento and Modesto on a "mother's milk run" to keep the baby alive. The infant is alive today and doing well.

AirLifeLine also made three mercy flights to Culiacan, Mexico, in cooperation with the non-profit Surgical Eye Expeditions International in sending teams of specialists to perform corrective eye surgery at a clinic. They have provided free medical service to 131 Culiacan patients.

AirLifeLine recently flew a kidney to San Francisco where it was transferred to a commercial airline and delivered to a patient awaiting a transplant in Tennessee. Another pilot flew a rare blood type north to Oregon for an accident victim who might have died without it.

AirLifeLine is a network of caring professionals who volunteer their services to deliver vital human organs, tissue and rare blood types to recipients in remote areas not reachable by commercial carriers.

Your publicizing AirLifeLine has provided great impetus to our organization and has inspired our board of directors to name Dear Abby its first Honorary Life Member.

For those interested in membership, or in making tax-deductible donations, our address is: AirLifeLine, 1005 8th Street, Suite 302, Sacramento, Calif. 95814. Phone: (916) 442-6230.

Again we thank you, as do the increasing number of beneficiaries of AirLifeLine services. Sincerely yours, FREDERICK J. SIMONELLI, EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

DEAR ABBY: Not every mother takes it lying down when she is neglected by her children. Enclosed is the note I received from my mother.

"Dear Son: Where in hell is my Christmas present? I didn't even get a blasted card! What gives? — Your ever-loving so-called mother."

"P.S. If you have died, please disregard this letter."

NO NAMES, PLEASE

DEAR NO NAMES: "What gives?" your mother asks. Obviously, not you, son.

DEAR ABBY: To the "Light-Fingered Transvestite" who stole women's undies rather than be embarrassed by buying them: Tell him to simply pick out what he wants and ask the saleslady to have them gift-wrapped. The saleslady will then envy the lucky lady who's to receive the gift rather than suspect the gentleman of cross-dressing.

BUYS A LOT OF GIFTS IN WICHITA

DEAR ABBY: Many parents spend the entire month of January recuperating after their grown children have come "home" with their families to spend the Christmas holidays with Mom and Dad. I'm one of those moms.

Here's a terrific letter I hope you'll print. I'm sure not many moms have received one like it:

"Dear Mom: Thanks for sending that big box of stuff I left behind when we spent the Christmas holidays at your house. Everything arrived beautifully packed, as usual. And thanks for washing and ironing everything, and mending my good blue sweater. Glad you found the brown sock behind the bed. (I thought I had looked there.) Sorry about forgetting my camera and sunglasses."

"It was sure great to see you and Dad. You always treat us like royalty, feeding us three scrumptious meals a day and waiting on us and the kids and all our friends. We didn't have to lift a finger. You did all the cooking and cleaning and laundry, too!"

"Next year we kids are going to carry you and Dad off to the shore for Christmas at that nice lodge, and somebody can wait on you for a change, OK?"

"Oh, enclosed is a check to take care of all those long-distance calls I made, and also to cover the gas I charged to your credit card. (Thanks for lending it to me.) Your loving son."

Isn't that a great letter, Abby? Of course we never received one like it, and I'll bet not many mothers have. But I believe in miracles, so it might happen yet!

Luggage

• Garment bags They're specifically designed for suits, jackets, dresses, pants and other items you prefer to hang. Many planes have special storage for these hang-up bags.

• Totes Carry-on shoulder or handle bags for items you want to keep with you.

• Wardrobe cases They're extra large, usually on wheels. This type is best for longer trips, because they have room for many hanging garments, plus considerable packing space.

Whatever style luggage is right for you, there are special features to look for: recessed wheels, zippered pockets, cushioned handles, exterior pockets and divider bags, to name a few.

The giant dredges being used to widen the beaches of Miami are providing wonderful rewards for shell collectors. In the process of widening the beach 300 feet and raising it several feet, the dredges are pumping thousands of beautiful and rare shells from the bottom of the ocean to the top of the beach: some of the coral, conchs, murex, cones and whelks being brought up are millions of years old and are there for the taking. It is an extra bonus for the visitor to Miami or nearby residents.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

It all started with Scarsdale. When that diet came out there wasn't a doubt in my mind that is small city had discovered the ultimate cure for cellulite. If you couldn't trust a respectable, hard-working community like Scarsdale, who could you trust? I cannot begin to tell you the shock I felt on seeing my first fat person in Scarsdale.

Not to be outdone, the West retaliated with the Beverly Hills diet, which had everyone in the country scrambling for the last papaya on earth.

Since then, there has been the Cambridge diet, the I Love New York diet and the soon-to-be-published Dallas diet.

All right, America, let's keep our wits about us before this thing gets out of hand. Just because I've eaten my way across America, I see no need to diet myself across it.

I know you people and I know exactly what you're going for. Milwaukee is going to say Dallas doesn't know what it's talking about until it's tried the Dairy Cream diet. Idaho will retaliate with the I Love Idaho Potato diet and Hawaii will come out with the Maui Pineapple diet.

Mark my words, it will pit east against west, north against south, brother against sister, palm trees against redwoods and grits against greens.

I say if we're going to diet, let's do it together. It's the government's fault ... with all this talk about new federalism and returning government to the states. If we don't pull together on an interstate diet, we'll have another bicentennial experience on our hands. (Massachusetts still hasn't forgiven Arkansas for not painting their fireplugs like Minutemen.)

I know what you're going to say. The government is doing too much already, but a federal diet isn't asking too much. How much could it cost?

I tell you regional diets are getting out of hand. The other day someone wanted to know if they have tried the Richard Simmons diet and she answered, "Richard Simmons. That's a suburb of Chicago, isn't it?"

If you don't want to get stuck with papayas again ... write your congressman today!

TOTE BAG AND EYEGLASS CASE

Pat's Pointers

By Pat Trexler

Here's a look of elegance at a down-to-earth price. Creamy fisherman-white yarn, plastic needlepoint canvas and easy-to-learn decorative stitches combine to create a stunning tote bag with a matching eyeglass case.

The seven-mesh plastic canvas needs no blocking, is sturdy enough to hold its shape indefinitely and, when used with acrylic yarns, is washable. The finished needlepoint pieces are simply whipped together with no hems or complicated construction details — a great gift or bazaar project even for the beginning needlepointer.

To obtain directions for making Pat's Learn-a-Stitch Tote Bag, send your request for Leaflet No. LS-4423 with $1 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Pat Trexler ("The Daily Reflector"), P.O. Box 810, North Myrtle Beach, S.C. 29582.

Or you may order Kit No. K-4423 by sending a check or money order for $11.50 to Pat Trexler at the same address. Each kit contains the instructions leaflet plus sufficient acrylic yarn and plastic canvas to complete one tote bag and one eyeglass case. The design is worked from charts and is not stamped on the canvas. Fisherman-white yarn will be sent unless another color is specifically requested.

I think I create a credibility gap when I tell you that pattern stitchery is not only fascinating but is quicker to do than basic tent stitches and often is easier for the beginner.

The gap closes when I can sit down with a novice and get them started. Since I can't be with each of you, let's see if I can take you step by step through a few stitches in this column.

Regardless of the type of canvas and yarn you will be using with your first "real" project, I suggest that you purchase a sheet of seven-mesh plastic and a skein of acrylic four-ply knitting worsted weight yarn for practice.

With all of the stitches illustrated, the needle is always brought up from the wrong side at the odd numbers and is taken down at the even numbers. Also, the lines on these charts represent the threads or "ribs" of the canvas and the blank squares represent the canvas holes.

I have found the Scotch Stitch to be a favorite with beginners and it is a good one for everyone to learn because it makes a very effective border as well as having interesting applications in larger design areas.

But that's enough talking — let's start stitching. Start at the upper left corner of your practice canvas. Bring the needle up in the first hole below the corner hole (1), then take it down in the first hole to the right of the corner hole (2). Next, bring the needle up in the hole (3) just below the hole where the first stitch was started and take it down in the hole (4) just to the right of the hole where the first stitch ended. Now follow the chart in the same way for the remaining stitches. When you have taken the needle down in the hole numbered 10, you have completed one full Scotch Stitch.

Proud of yourself? I'll bet you are! Now why not try making another just below the first to see how adjoining stitches share some of the same holes.

The second stitch will start at the very left edge of your canvas in the first empty hole below the first Scotch Stitch. Again for this stitch, you will cross a single mesh of the canvas as you did for stitch 1-2 in the first pattern stitch, so the needle will go down in the stitch labeled No. 7 on the chart. This hole will now "share" a part of two stitches. Now just continue making the second Scotch Stitch in the same way you worked the first.

Now look at the chart for the Mosaic Stitch. As you can see, it is just a miniature Scotch Stitch, but it is started at the right edge of the canvas and is worked from

A Sad Chapter Closes

Harrison A. Williams, Jr. of New Jersey is no longer a U.S. Senator. He resigned rather than undergo the final disgrace of expulsion by his colleagues in what is often called "the most exclusive club in the world."

Harrison had previously been convicted by a jury on charges of bribery and conspiracy ... one of several lawmakers caught up in the "Abscam" operation. He was sentenced to prison and fined.

Williams' final hours as a U.S. Senator were not pretty. He spent many of those hours speaking in his own defense and charging the Federal Bureau of Investigation abused its power in an entrapment. Few of his audience appeared impressed, some reading newspapers or magazines, others writing letters. They knew the story by heart.

Members of the U.S. Senate knew too well that all their colleague had to do when approached with offers of money in exchange for influence, was to turn his back. Others had. But Mr. Williams did not; instead, he returned to meet with his temptors time and time and time again.

Senator Malcolm Wallop, of Utah, chairman of the Senate Ethics

Committee, described Williams to his colleagues as a participant in "a cesspool of corruption."

"Sen. Williams agreed to sell his office for personal gain, and thereby violated the trust of the people and the integrity of the Senate, as well as the criminal laws", reminded Wallop.

Under the circumstances, members of that body had little choice when it came to rendering their verdict ... painful though it would be.

Williams spared them that much by resigning. He also spared himself the ignominy of expulsion which, on top of his earlier disgrace, would have been a crushing blow even to one of his imperturbable defiance.

For something like 22 years he had served his state well ... at least, as well as most of the Senators ... and he had been re-elected again and again. His interests lay in the rights of minorities and the working people. He had a good record. We regret those qualities and that service are lost to the country.

He had no choice but to step down, a sad chapter in the pages of "the most exclusive club in the world".

Hunt Saw Many Activities

It was a full day in Pitt County for Gov. Hunt yesterday.

He visited Pitt Community College for presentation of an energy award and then toured the campus. During the afternoon he reviewed the Pitt County Juvenile Services Program and visited the Eastern Carolina Vocational Center. Yesterday evening he received the World Trade Award and attended a reception sponsored by the Pitt Democratic Women at the Casablanca.

Gov. Hunt saw a number of progressive activities here yesterday and we are pleased he could be in the area to view the facilities we have here.

Cooperation A Key

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — A nationally syndicated columnist suggested the other day that the United States of America and Japan ought to have a merger.

The resulting nation could provide some of the best things which citizens of both now desire, and which trade barriers and uncommon legal backgrounds seem to confuse.

Of course, the suggestion was made only in jest.

Yet to North Carolinians who are becoming familiar with that once-distant island nation half a world away, much is being found in common between the two locations.

Japanese firms are putting a lot of investments into North Carolina, and finding that ports, the transportation system, and the ready access to the growing Sunbelt market make this state an excellent growth location.

Despite language, social and cultural differences, Tar Heels and Japanese are finding themselves country cousins when it comes to matters of money.

in the past 20 years.

North Carolina's lowest-in-the-nation unionism rate, productivity and cooperation of workers, and good business climate based upon close ties between the state government and business appeal to Japanese investors.

This state has a fulltime representative in Japan, and late last year Gov. Jim Hunt personally led an entourage of state government, civic, and business leaders to call upon potential investors on their own turf.

Such trips serve two serious purposes. The presence of the governor at the head of the delegation satisfies the longing of Japanese for the honor and tradition of contact with the top man.

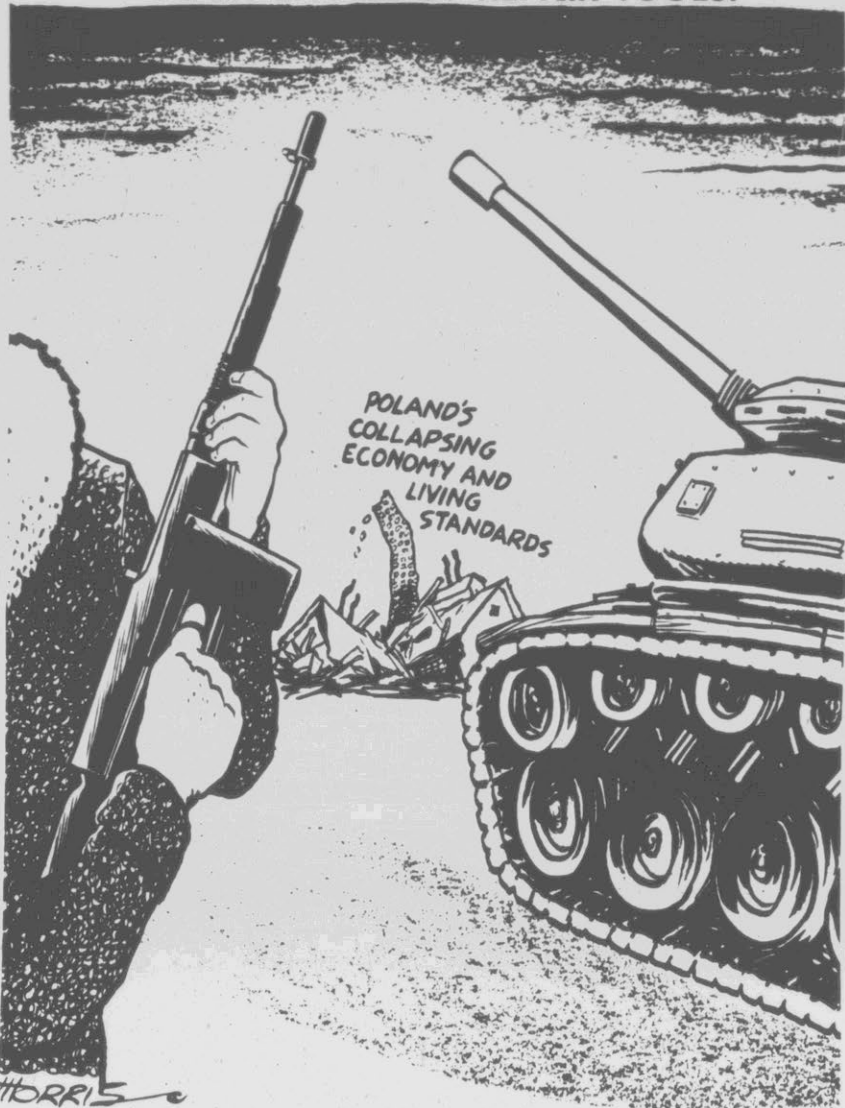

And it gives the Governor a chance to tell investors first hand of the attractions the state offers.

"The single most outstanding characteristic of the Japanese corporation is its close cooperation with government. The relationship is amicable and cooperative ... not adversarial," Hunt commented.

"It is the rule rather than the exception that government and business lead-

The News Gets 'Tilted'

WASHINGTON — It was back in November 1969, if memory serves, that Spiro Agnew took on the media elite. In two stinging speeches he charged that television network news is shaped and controlled by a small group of men whose liberal bias dominated their presentation.

The vice president's sneeze set off a terrible fluttering in the brooder house. For months thereafter media moguls were busy denying the charge and denouncing their critic. But Agnew was right on target. Now we have the findings of a survey undertaken in 1979 and 1980. It is just as the proverb tells us: The more things change, the more they stay the same. The survey was taken by Robert Lichter and Stanley Roghan under the auspices of the Research Institute on International Change at Columbia University. They published their findings in Public Opinion magazine a few months ago. Their methodology appears to be statistically valid. They concentrated on three major newspapers, three news magazines, and the four private and public TV networks. Within each organization they randomly selected reporters, editors, columnists and executives responsible for news content. They talked with 240 journalists and broadcasters, of whom 76 percent completed the interviews and questionnaires.

The media elite, the researchers found, is composed mainly of white males in their 30s and 40s. Five per-cents agreed that "the U.S. exploits the Third World and causes poverty." More than half agreed that the use of natural resources by the U.S. is "immoral." As a group they overwhelmingly approve abortion, affirmative action, women's rights, sexual freedom and environmental protection.

As a working newsman in Washington, I am sure I know many of the persons interviewed for the study. I know them to be men and women of Professional integrity. For the most part, I believe they make a conscientious effort in their news coverage to be fair. But there is not the slightest question that their personal liberalism shapes their professional judgments.

cent are non-white, 20 percent are female. Almost all of them have college degrees. A third of them are paid more than $50,000 a year. Two-fifths of them come from New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania. Their parents tended to be well-off, highly educated members of the upper middle class. Religion plays a small role in their lives: 86 percent of these leading journalists "seldom or never attend religious services."

What of their political coloration? By their own description, 54 percent of the respondents "place themselves on the right. The disparity appeared to be even larger when the journalists were asked to describe their fellow workers: Only 8 percent were classed as conservatives.

The researchers asked about political participation. These were the answers: 94 percent voted for Johnson in 1964, 87 percent for Humphrey in 1968, 81 percent for McGovern in 1972, and 81 percent for Carter in 1976. More than half the respon-

Blooper By Closest Aide

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — President Reagan can blame his closest aide, deputy White House chief of staff Michael Deaver, for the highly-embarrassing and premature announcement that Reagan would address a joint session of the British Parliament.

Before the unprecedented idea had even been proposed to opposition Labor Party leaders in London, Deaver leaked the fact that the president would make the address during his European grand tour next spring. The result: Red faces in Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's government and fury in the opposition parties. The leak from Washington was the first they had heard of it.

A footnote: The leak from discreet Mike Deaver, top social arbiter in the White House and Nancy Reagan's trusted ally, was worse than another premature White House leak that angered the French. Communications director David Gergen told reporters a full day in advance of the agreed release date that French president Francois Mitterrand was coming to see Reagan. The French government, always sensitive, was incensed.

Packwood & Reagan
White House anger over Sen. Bob Packwood's personal attack on President Reagan had not cooled when it was learned that Packwood had sent out fund-raising letters over Reagan's signature without getting approval for the mailing.

The Jan. 18 letter seeking charter members of the "Republican Presidential Task Force" at $120 a year advise him on policy initiatives for the next three months. During that period, he will split his time evenly between the White House and the Heritage Foundation. Right-wingers have no illusions, knowing that tapping Feulner is partly a cosmetic move to still their complaints. Nevertheless, they believe Feulner has a golden opportunity to develop right-wing domestic proposals at a time when the Reagan administration's well of ideas seems dry.

Tower Reacts

After quietly absorbing repeated discourtesies from an unwitting White House staff, Sen. John Tower of Texas threatened retaliation when the president just plain forgot to give him advance information on the new chairman to the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Tower's eminence as chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee alone should have entitled him to advance word, particularly in view of White House failures last year to inform him of the president's crucial strategic missile decisions. What gave Tower even greater claim to hear that Army general John W. Vessey would be the next Joint Chiefs chairman was Tower's hard battle to win that post for Marine general Robert H. Barrow.

When he heard the Vessey news on the radio, Tower understandably hit the ceiling. He informed one White House aide that if he were not brought more closely into the inner confidence of the White House, his pledge to back the administration down the line on the beleaguered defense budget might be open for change.

Reagan's Mr. Right

In answer to criticism by the New Right movement that its views are suppressed by President Reagan's aides, conservative theoretician Edwin Feulner will be brought into the White House temporarily as a policy consultant.

Dr. Feulner heads the Heritage Foundation, a New Right think tank, and recently turned down a full-time job as State Department counselor. But he accepted top presidential aid Edwin Meese's offer to advise him on policy initiatives for the next three months. During that period, he will split his time evenly between the White House and the Heritage Foundation.

Right-wingers have no illusions, knowing that tapping Feulner is partly a cosmetic move to still their complaints. Nevertheless, they believe Feulner has a golden opportunity to develop right-wing domestic proposals at a time when the Reagan administration's well of ideas seems dry.

To the editor:

Nicholas P. Criscuolo, supervisor of reading for the New Haven, Conn., public schools, states, "Approximately 98 percent of the homes in the United States and Canada have at least one television set. Children watch television an average of 24 hours per week. The average high school graduate has spent 15,000 hours in front of the TV set and only 11,000 hours in the classroom. One thing is certain — they are not reading."

Children love to watch television because it is relaxing and amusing, allows them new experiences. The same reasons can draw young people to reading. Many television programs and books contain common elements: conversation, character development, setting and plot. Television has its drawbacks concerning the education of your child. It can limit the use of language and reduce his ability to think critically if he believes everything he sees. Unrestricted television viewing can create problems, since the content of some television shows is unsuitable for youngsters.

On the other hand, television can enlarge his vocabulary and background of experiences and broaden his interests and encourage hobbies; likewise, television characters can also help him relate to someone who is making a worthwhile contribution to our world. Television can serve as a springboard to reading. For example, a child who sees a movie about Helen Keller or a program about Martin Luther King Jr. can be inspired to read about them.

Here's a checklist:
— Does he use good judgment concerning programs he watches?
— Does he share with me some ideas gained from TV viewing?
— Is TV only one of many worthwhile leisure time activities?
— Am I providing a role model by limiting my TV watching? Do my children see me reading during the time I am asking them to read?
— Are books as readily available in my home as the TV set?
— Is time allowed for reading at home at least equal to time allowed for TV viewing?
Parents, it's up to you!

Strength For Today

We read sometimes about a possible revolution in our ways of living which can be brought about by full use of atomic and solar energy. If such a revolution takes place, it will be by no means unprecedented. In the past great changes in human life have been brought about by harnessing the powers of wind, rivers, steam and electricity.

From such progress we realize that the universe around us is full of sources of power. But while we are mastering these physical powers, we are still only beginners with spiritual power. Modern living often crowds out time for prayer and worship. Our consciences grow duller, not sharper. Not one person in a hundred draws the strength and comfort and inspiration which his religion is capable of giving him.

And yet the Power that created all material powers is still there, and always will be, waiting only for us to call upon Him for all we need. — Elisha Douglass

Turning To The Older Worker

By STEPHEN FOX
AP Business Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) —

Feeling the pressures of a depressed economy, business is turning to older workers for solutions, a University of Southern California survey shows.

"When companies face some kind of crisis, as many are in the recession, they turn to a seasoned person," said Pauline Robinson, a specialist on the elderly and their employment problems and potentials.

There is a feeling these people have faced hard times before and that the experience may help companies, said Ms. Robinson, employment and retirement division director at USC's Andrus Gerontology Center. Responding to a request from the House Select Committee on Aging, Andrus Center researchers surveyed 15 executive recruitment companies, finding that the age of executives being recruited has been rising.

"In the past, 55 seems to have been a sort of top limit over which a person isn't going to get hired," Ms. Robinson said. "But there may be some give on this now."

Although the USC survey dealt primarily with executives and managers, Ms. Robinson observed that companies also are showing interest in older workers for lower-level positions. She attributed that in part to the birth rate decline in the late 1950s and early 1960s, the "baby bust" that has resulted in fewer workers entering the marketplace now.

"Companies that need entry-level workers, such as fast-food chains, are now turning to older workers because we have fewer entry-level workers in our population now because of the baby bust," she said. "Other companies which need specific skills, such as those in the aerospace industry, are also turning towards the older worker."

Ms. Robinson said some industries, notably motion pictures and recording, discriminate because they believe a youthful image is important. But in finance or insurance, she said, older workers are often preferred. The trend toward recruiting older workers could have several beneficial effects, Ms. Robinson believes. "It might help save the Social Security system and private pensions if work like this is extended, and it will also help older individuals who are grappling with inflation," she said. "There's another speculation. If we move from very large numbers of young people to more older people, we may find an increase in productivity."

Older workers, she explained, tend to be more productive because they require less training. "There's definitely less turnover with older workers, and there also may be a generational difference."

She also believes older workers may have a greater commitment to work. "They show up on Monday and they're not as demanding of the workplace," she said.

Four-Year Term Foe Has Seen No Public Demand

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer
Former state legislator Tom Gilmore says that a proposed constitutional amendment which would allow General Assembly members to serve four-year terms would erode the concept of a "citizens' Legislature."

Gilmore, who is chairing the bi-partisan "Keep the Two-Year Term Committee," said here Monday that he feels "very strongly" that the four-year proposal would "bring about a full-time, professional, highly paid General Assembly."

He observed, "I think that's wrong. We've got a good system, an honest government. Our budget is balanced and we have a good credit rating." He said there has been no public outcry for four-year terms.
Gilmore said two-year terms keep legislators accountable to the voters and he said that with four-year tenures voters would tend to forget how their representatives performed in the early segments of their terms.

Voters, who will face the issue in the spring primary, must decide whether they "really want to change the way we do business," he said. The system has worked for 147 years and "I see no reason to change," Gilmore added.

He said that if the four-year proposal passes in the primary, and the track record of constitutional amendments in the last 12 years suggests that it might, North Carolina would be the only state to allow members of the Legislature to serve four-year terms and run in off-year elections.

Gilmore said that at a time when voter participation should be broadened, the elections would be held when less people traditionally vote. Saying that North Carolina has the "most powerful General Assembly in the nation," Gilmore suggested that "we need to keep it on a short leash."

Legislators would "lose touch" if they are elected to serve for four years, the chairman said. He contended that "good members are re-elected. If they are doing a good job, they are rarely defeated."

He said there have been

"no sound reasons given, in my opinion," for the voters to give up their right to review a legislator's performance and either re-elect or reject the individual every two years.

Noting that supporters of the amendment would save money, Gilmore said he feels it would actually cost more. He said that with a term twice as long, the pressure to win would be greater and more money would be spent for a close race as candidates sought to regain their visibility with the voters.

Passage of the amendment would erode executive branch power, Gilmore said, since the Legislature would not be elected at the same time as the governor and legislative terms would overlap that of the governor. The situation would make the jobs of lobbyists much easier and foster special interest legislation, he said.

Gilmore, who represented Guilford County from 1972 until 1978, hopes to get his message to the public in the weeks prior to the primary and he said efforts to organize bi-partisan citizens' committees in counties across the state are under way. He said the committee invites "people to join with us."

The spokesman said that if the committee is able to get its message across, he believes voters will say no to the proposal.

Gilmore said he would welcome a debate on the amendment, sponsored by Sen. Henson Barnes of Wayne County, in every county prior to the primary.

The Julian native, who served as deputy secretary of the Department of Human Resources after resigning from the House, emphasized that he would like to see the voters fully aware of the proposed change. "I feel very strongly about this," he said.

Serving as honorary co-chairman of the citizens' committee are former Govs. Terry Sanford, Bob Scott and Jim Holshouser.

Briefly Enjoyed A Gasoline Price War

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Asheville-area residents say a gasoline-price war which saw rates for self-service regular drop below $1 a gallon was all too short — but nice while it lasted.

Three stations along New Leicester Highway dropped their prices 10 cents below normal Saturday and Sunday, with the lowest price 97.9 cents for self-service regular.

"They (customers) were happy, sure," said Bob Felkel of Felkel Oil Company. "People were traveling. A lot filled up, burned a tank, then came back around."

"They said they just hoped it keeps on going," said Kathy Penland, manager of Jordan Self Service. "It makes me happy. I buy gas, too."

Nancy Blankenship, manager of the nearby Hop In convenience store, said war was declared at mid-morning Saturday when she suddenly noticed a lack of customers at the new store's gasoline islands.

"I had been pumping a lot of gas," she said. "And then — I wasn't."

The mystery was solved when a motorist told her that another station in the area, Jordan Self Service, was pumping regular at a price of 99.9 cents a gallon.

A hasty call to Hop In company headquarters prompted a drop in the $1.059 price to match figures of the nearby competitor.

The war was on.

"They said to keep the price till Sunday night. We just did it to pull in business," she said. "But the customers were tickled to death."

Meanwhile, the tumbling prices attracted passing drivers to all three businesses. In a scene reminiscent of the days of gasoline shortages, cars were lined up at the islands to take advantage of the temporary 10-cent drop in prices.

But by sunset Sunday, the battle smoke had cleared and prices had returned to the $1.059-$1.079 levels.

Allan Wilbur, spokesman for the AAA Motor Club in Washington, said prices already have dropped to two digits in some parts of the nation and he expects most of the country will see gasoline selling for 99 cents a gallon by summer.

ers attend meetings and social functions together to share common knowledge and interests," he explains.

Education
Another important point in favor of North Carolina is the strong university system which has been built, and the close ties which exist between business and industry and the university system.

Japanese rever higher education, and when they see the universities directly linked with research and development as they are in the various Research Triangle Park and Research Triangle Institute projects, and in the new Microelectronics Center, they are favorably impressed.

Another move which is being taken to improve the growing relationship is creation in the public schools at elementary and secondary levels of special Japanese courses.

While the Japanese who move to this state find ready acceptance in the communities, they miss the training in religion, culture and history of their native country which the children need.

Especially important is a firm grounding in language and the basics of education so that the young people can qualify for the top universities back home.

right to left. Two full Mosaics are shown so that you can see how the holes are shared when worked horizontally.

I purposely charted the Scotch Stitch worked in one direction and the Mosaic worked in the other so that you can see that either stitch can be worked in either direction.

Now that you have mastered a couple a flat stitches, let's try a raised stitch, also good for borders or accents. The Smyrna Stitch starts with a large slanted cross (steps 1-2 and 3-4). Again, it is easier to start in a corner when you are learning as it is easier to count across to the correct hole when you do so. The second part of the stitch (steps 5-6 and 7-8) forms a straight — or upright — cross over the original cross.

That's probably enough for your first stitchery lesson — look for more lessons in future columns.

Area Group To Make Visit

A number of Greenville area residents will attend an on-campus day and gospel rally-homecoming Thursday and Friday at Roanoke Bible College in Elizabeth City.

On campus day for teens in Grades 9-12 will feature sample classes, speeches, a play, a vocal concert and a student hootenanny. The gospel rally-homecoming will begin at 7:20 p.m. Thursday, with speakers and singers from numerous places filling the four-session program.

Area students or adults desiring to attend these sessions should contact Mrs. Albert Blanton, 756-9396.

Roanokes is a four-year coeducational ministerial training school for the Churches of Christ and has programs in Bible, Christian Education, church growth and world missions, deaf education and ministry and music education and ministry.

ROSES Notice To Customers

In our Think Spring sale tabloid distributed by mail ending March 20, 1982 on page 6 the regular retail was inadvertently listed wrong on the Chocolate Clusters, Chocolate Covered Peanuts, Raisins and Bridge Mix. The correct regular retail is 97¢ per package. Also Velamints were erroneously priced. They should have been priced at 6 roll pkg. $2.00. Manufacturers rebate $2.00. Your cost after rebate 00¢. We apologize for this error and hope this has not inconvenienced any of our customers.

Dolls Generate Rare Interest

CALUMET, Mich. (AP) — Princess Grace of Monaco has donated two dolls to help save a Roman Catholic elementary school, and so far the tiny figures have generated a lot of interest and bids of up to $500.

Organizers of the May 22 auction of celebrity items hope to raise $1,000 for the 79-student Sacred Heart Central School, spokeswoman Marcelaine Rovano said Monday.

and chief economist of the Office of Management and Budget (OMB).

Kudlow, 34, never has sought public office before. Consequently, state leaders of the Republican and Conservative Parties were surprised to get the call from David Stockman's right-hand man in Washington. Their reaction was cool. For one thing, Kudlow has become anathema to supply-siders, including Lewis Lehrman, now the front-runner for the Republican nomination for governor.

What is not surprising is that Kudlow, a Wall Street investment house economist, is ready to leave Washington after one year. He has confided to friends that he thinks it is time to go and is surprised that Stockman does not feel the same way. That sounds much like a desire to leave a sinking ship.

College Costs...

Federal student aid takes a number of other forms. An estimated 3.5 million of the nation's 12.3 million college students attending about 3,000 schools went to banks last summer and took out approximately $8 billion in Guaranteed Student Loans (GSL).

These loans, because of the changes that took effect last Oct. 1, were restricted to families with an adjusted gross income of no more than $30,000. Students from families above this limit had to qualify on the basis of a "needs test."

In addition, an "origination fee" of five percent was imposed on all GSLs. This meant that a student who took out the maximum $2,500 loan for the academic year 1981-1982 will have to pay interest on the entire amount but will have received only $2,375. The $125 fee will be used to defray the Government's interest subsidy while the student is in school.

Interest rates on parent loans were raised — from 9 to 14 percent. The increase was for both the Parents Loan for Undergraduate Students (PLUS) program and the Auxiliary Loans to Assist Students (ALAS) for graduate students and those independent of their parents. Both programs offered subsidized loans of up to $3,000 a year and an overall ceiling of $15,000.

Education benefits that went to about 800,000 students whose families qualified for Social Security Assistance started being phased out last October. Only those students who qualified for these benefits in August of last year and who are enrolled in college by May 1 of this year will be eligible to receive college benefits beyond August 1982. And even these recipients will have their benefits trimmed 25 percent each year.

Until the program's curtailment, all students could receive up to about $1,500 annually if a parent who qualified for Social Security benefits had died, was disabled or had retired.

"Many prospective college students who were counting on Social Security benefits to assist them with the high cost of attending college will be forced to forego their educational plans," said Joseph Sciamé, president of the New York State Financial Aid Administration Association.

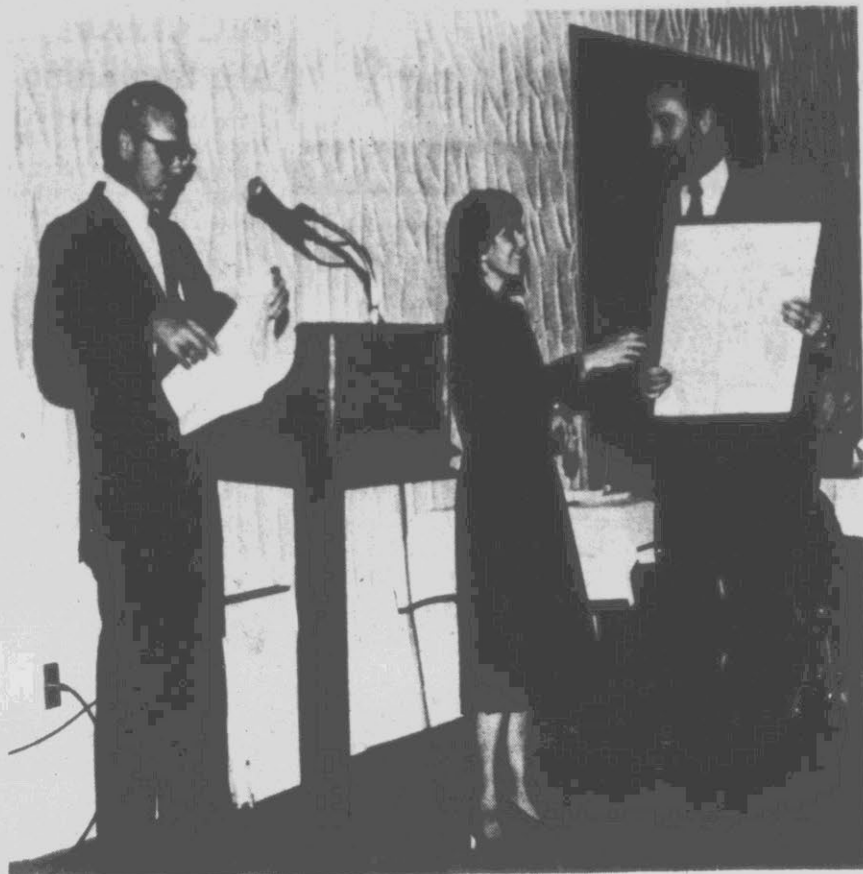

"This new Social Security law was passed last August and they didn't let us know about it until November. Would you believe it?" asked Janet Lipschultz, a guidance counselor at John Dewey High School in Brooklyn. "Some parents of high school seniors wanted their children's graduation stepped up to the past January, so that they could enter college before May and be eligible to receive the benefits. But it was too late for us to make the change."

The bulk of the reductions in Federal student assistance went into effect last October 1. Even if approved by Congress, there is little likelihood that President Reagan's plan, disclosed in his State-of-the-Union message last Jan. 25, to transfer the responsibility for some education services to the states will immediately affect the major post-secondary education programs. However, it is feared that further cuts proposed by the Administration, particularly in the federally-funded Pell Grant and Guaranteed Student Aid Loan programs, will be approved by Congress later this year.

Overall, about 7.5 million of the nation's 12.3 million college students are now receiving some form of Federal, state or private financial aid.

For its part, the government, in a recent study, cited overpayments of as much as $452 million to students receiving Pell Grants. The findings, said Secretary of Education T.H. Bell, convinced him that "radical changes" had to be made in the program.

Similarly, Federal investigators reported that many doctors are not paying back Government loans that helped them get through school. The report, by the staff of the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee, said about 5,716 doctors and 45,000 other health professionals (nurses, dentists, pharmacists, optometrists) were seriously delinquent in paying their student loans, depleting by more than $23 million the Government's pool for longterm medical

Awards Presented At Arts Council Gathering

Mary B. Regan, executive director of the North Carolina Arts Council, was guest speaker Thursday evening at the annual dinner of the Pitt-Greenville Arts Council held at the Casablanca.

Roz Fuchs, president of the Pitt-Greenville Arts Council, reviewed events and achievements in Greenville and Pitt County during the past year.

Also as part of the annual dinner, a number of awards were presented. This year, seven business and four individuals were honored for their support of the Council's work.

Businesses honored were Burroughs-Wellcome, Eaton

Corporation, Hampton Industries, Jefferson Florist, McDonald's, North State Savings and Loan, and Procter & Gamble Company.

The quartet of individuals honored for their support of arts activities in the community were Sally Freelove, editor of "Circa," the Council's publication; Roz Fuchs, Council president; Harry Leslie, chairman of the 1981 fund drive; and John McConney, chairman of the 1982 Eastern Carolina Arts Festival.

The awards this year were a limited edition of a print by artist Donald Sexauer of Greenville, a faculty member of the School of Art, East Carolina University.

Planning Sale Of More F-16s

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon plans to sell Egypt 40 additional F-16 fighter plane this year, doubling the number of these advanced jets allocated to help modernize the Egyptian air force.

U.S. planners also have allotted 220 more M-60A3 tanks in the 1982 phase of a 5-year program to upgrade Egypt's fighting forces and tie that key Mideast country closer to the United States.

This would bring to 659 the total of M-60A3 tanks sold to the Egyptians so far.

"We believe it is important to push ahead and help the Egyptians meet their modernization program objectives to the extent possible," Lt. Gen. James H. Ahmann, the Pentagon's top arms sales officer, told a House foreign affairs subcommittee Monday.

Although the overall 5-year plan has been approved by Congress, the year-by-year decisions on specific arms shipments also are subject to congressional approval.

Congress has 30 days to reject Pentagon proposals after being notified in a formal letter of intent. Otherwise, the sales go through.

Delivery of the new batch of F-16s would begin in late 1985. The additional tanks would start arriving in Egypt in early 1984.

Ahmann cast the U.S. program to help modernize Egypt's forces as part of an effort to help moderate Arab countries "resist the spread of Soviet expansion in the region."

The additional allotment of 40 F-16 fighters was disclosed by Ahmann as the United States prepared to start delivering F-16s from the first batch of 40 of the new fighters agreed to several years ago.

Egyptian pilots have been training in the United States for about a year in preparation for flying F-16s.

The United States has sought to balance improvements in both the Egyptian and Israeli armed forces. The Israelis already have received 75 F-16s, along with most of a 40-plane allotment of the more sophisticated F-15 fighters.

Eight Traffic Mishaps Here

An estimated $22,600 property damage resulted from a series of eight traffic collisions investigated by Greenville police Monday.

Heaviest damage, officers said, resulted from a 5:13 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Greene and Dudley streets involving vehicles driven by James William Cleghorn of Route 2, Winterville, and Floyd Preston Harris of 1205 Greenville Blvd.

Police, who charged Cleghorn with driving left of center, estimated damage at $7,000 to the Cleghorn car and $9,000 to the Harris truck.

Cars driven by Charles Ritchie Blake II of 205 Kenilworth Road and Roy Walton Dawson of Route 3, Goldsboro, collided about 8:45 p.m. at the intersection of Greenville Boulevard and Alexander Circle, causing an estimated $300 damage to the Blake car and $1,000 damage to the Dawson vehicle.

Investigators charged Blake with failing to yield the right of way in connection with the mishap.

Cars driven by Thomas Earl Dixon and James Howard Smith, both of Grimesland, collided about 5:23 p.m. at the intersection of 10th Street and Cedar Lane, causing $500 damage to the Dixon car and $600 damage to the Smith auto.

A 3:45 p.m. collision on Greene Street, 75 feet north of the Martin Street intersection, involved a car driven by Johnny Van Sheppard of 104 Oakgrove Ave. and a truck operated by Carrie Hendrix Gurganus of Route 6, Greenville.

Damage from the mishap was estimated at $300 to the Sheppard car and $800 to the truck.

An estimated $500 damage resulted to each of two cars involved in a 3:45 p.m. collision at the intersection of Elm Street and Brookgreen Avenue, police reported.

Drivers of the vehicles involved were identified as Sharon Smith Ricks of 1111 Hillside Drive and Ann Nichols Moore of 202 Chippendale Drive.

Tony Anthony Bryant of Belvoir Road was charged with following too closely following investigation of a 5:25 p.m. mishap on Greene Street, two-tenths of a mile south of the Farmer Street intersection.

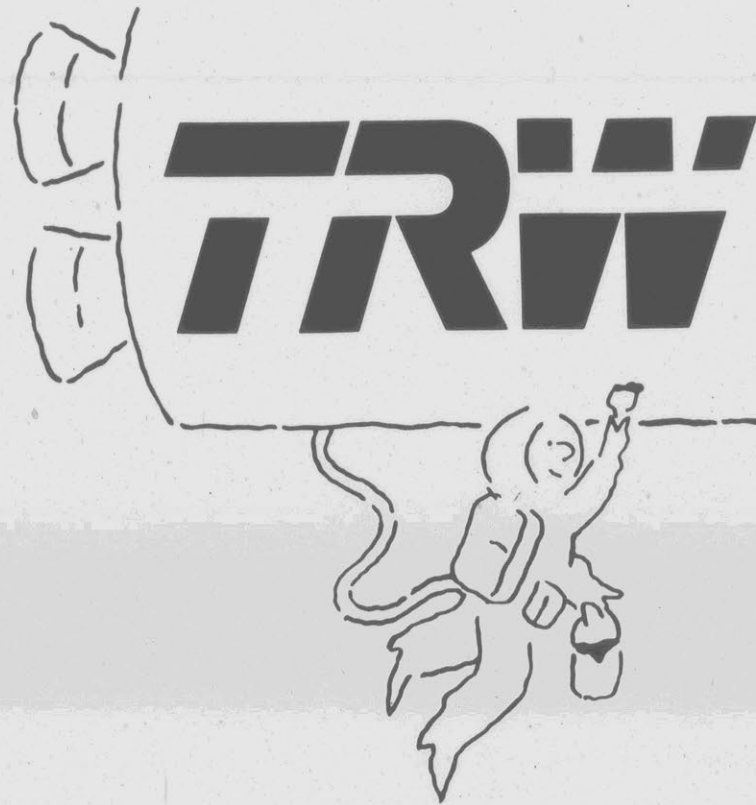

Officers said the Bryant car collided with a vehicle driven by James Hugh Wease of 1904 Fairview Way, causing $500 damage to the Wease car and $350 damage to the Bryant car.

Cars driven by William Julian Stinson of 1718 S. Elm St. and Camile Blount Clarke of 607A Fleming St. collided about 7:46 p.m. on Elm Street, 150 feet north of the South Overlook Drive intersection, causing an estimated $400 damage to the Stinson car and $350 damage to the Clarke auto.

Officers said cars driven by Virginia Morris Alcock of 311 Kenilworth Road and Jayne Karen Conway of 334 Glenn Court collided about 3:55 p.m. on Elm Street, 150 feet south of the Brookgreen Avenue intersection.

Damage from the collision was set at $200 to the Alcock car and $300 to the Conway vehicle.

REQUEST APPROVED
Police Chief Glenn Cannon announced the approval of a request by the Piney Grove Free Will Baptist Church to conduct a merchant solicitation March 15 through April 24 to obtain donations and door prizes for a church auction.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices rose modestly in heavy trading early today as the government reported that output by mines and factories rose for the first time in seven months.

The encouraging report from the Federal Reserve Board that industrial production was up by 1.6 percent in February came just days after another government report said that retail sales jumped 1.6 percent during the month.

However, respected Wall Street economist Henry Kaufman told a congressional committee today that he has never seen the business and financial situation "as fragile" as it is now.

And several major banks raised their prime lending rates to 16.5 percent in the wake of recent increases in short-term interest rates that affect banks' costs of borrowing.

At noon, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 2.28 points to 803.27 after gaining 3.62 points Monday.

Gainers had nearly a 2-1 edge over losers on the New York Stock Exchange, whose composite index was up .31 to 63.19.

Big board volume totaled 22.4 million shares compared with 18.13 million shares at noon Monday.

Reagan Says 'No' to Bid For Freeze

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — President Reagan has rejected a congressional proposal to freeze the number of U.S. and Soviet nuclear weapons, saying the plan doesn't go far enough and that "verifiable reductions" in arms are needed instead.

But Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., a leading sponsor of the freeze concept, contended the president's "approach is going absolutely nowhere."

In a related development, Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev, addressing a Soviet trade union congress in the Kremlin today, announced a unilateral moratorium on deploying medium-range nuclear missiles in Europe.

The Soviet Union, Brezhnev said, also "intends this year ... to reduce a certain number of its medium-range missiles" that it already has deployed.

White House deputy press secretary Larry Speakes, in Oklahoma City with Reagan, said this morning, "We're studying the text and analyzing it."

Presidential counselor Edwin K. Meese III, interviewed in Washington, characterized the proposal as an attempt to maintain Soviet missile superiority in Europe.

Marbury, Georgia Surprise Maryland

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — Eric Marbury may have surprised Coach Lefty Driesell of Maryland, but he didn't surprise himself.

"I've just felt more relaxed lately," Marbury said Monday night after equaling his career-high of 25 points in leading Georgia to an 83-69 victory over the Terps in the second round of the National Invitation Tournament.

"We expected (Dominique) Wilkins to come out and get his points, but not Marbury," Driesell said. "I didn't expect him to play that well. Marbury had a very fine game."

Wilkins, a third-team All-American, had his usual steady performance, scoring 23 points as the Bulldogs surged into the lead six minutes into the contest and never trailed thereafter.

Marbury, a senior from Brooklyn, said, "I don't want just to go home. I want us to win this thing."

One more victory, over

Virginia Tech in the NIT quarter-finals Thursday night, will move the Bulldogs into the final four of the invitational event, with those semifinals scheduled for Madison Square Garden in New York City next Monday.

Georgia got a break in the pairings announced early today with its third straight home game in the tournament. The Bulldogs will be host to Virginia Tech, now 20-10 after a 61-59 victory Monday night over Mississippi, at 7:30 p.m. Thursday.

"We want to go out as champions," added Marbury, who hit 10 of 16 shots from the field and all five of his free-throw attempts.

60-45 midway through the half before Maryland reeled off 10 consecutive points.

Georgia fought off that challenge with two consecutive baskets from James Banks and a driving layup by Vern Fleming that virtually put the game on ice with just over five minutes remaining.

Fleming added 12 points and also had nine assists.

Maryland, 16-13, got 22 points from freshman Adrian Branch and Charles Pittman contributed 21 points and a game-high 10 rebounds.

"We want to prove we're a good basketball team and we can beat anybody we play," said Wilkins.

SouthWest Pair Pace All-State

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — SouthWest Edgecombe has the state's longest current winning streak and the most members on the Associated Press 1981-1982 Girls' All-State High School Basketball Team.

Bridget Jenkins and Delphine Mabry, who have combined to lead the Cougars to 29 victories this year and 61 straight dating back to the 1980 playoffs, head the 10-person honor squad chosen by a panel of North Carolina sports writers.

Others chosen were Mindy Ballou of West Carteret, Lisa Squirewell of Wake Forest-Rolesville, Pam Leake of Chapel Hill, Lisa Blakeney of East Mecklenburg, Gloria Burks of Wilson Beddingfield, Debbie Mulligan of Cary, Bandys' Beverly Greenard and Rocky Mount's Kim Taylor.

All are seniors, except for Greenard and Taylor, both juniors.

Jenkins, whose sister, Alpha Jenkins, was named to last year's squad, averages 19.5 points and seven rebounds for coach Sandra Langley's squad while Mabry scored at a 12.5 clip and pulls down 7.6 rebounds per outing.

The 5-foot-7½ Jenkins scored 33 points against Northeast Guilford and 18 against Weldon as the Cougars captured the Class 3A East title this past weekend. Mabry, at 5'4½, the shortest member of the All-State team, hit three key baskets in the championship game and pulled down 13 rebounds.

Ballou, who in the next week will decide whether to continue her career at North Carolina State, North Carolina or Duke, averaged 25.2 points and eight rebounds while shooting 49 percent from the floor and 70 percent from the free throw line for the 23-4 Patriots.

The 5-8 swing player scored 1,899 points in 99 games, with a career high of 41 against West Craven.

Squirewell, a 5-9 forward, is a four-year starter for Wake Forest-Rolesville, and has a career total of 2,168 points. This year she averaged 24.5 points, 13.5 rebounds and shot 62 percent from the floor and 67 percent from the charity stripe.

Coach Ron Daniel said Squirewell has narrowed her college choices to North Carolina State, East Carolina and Louisburg Junior College.

Leake, a 5-7 guard, announced Monday night she would attend North Carolina, the first girl from Chapel Hill to play for the hometown Tar Heels on scholarship.

She averaged 19.9 points, 10.3 rebounds and shot 53.5 percent from the floor this year, giving her a career total of 1,323 points.

East Mecklenburg's Blakeney is a two-year starter and averaged 17 points and 10 rebounds this past year. The 5-9 forward, who coach Baker Hood said most likely will attend North Carolina A&T, shot 45 percent from the floor and hit 79 percent of her free throws.

Burks closed out in style, scoring 50 points against Kinston in the regular-season finale, and averaged over 30 points per game over the last 10 games.

Overall, the 6-footer hit for 26.7 points, 52 percent of her field goal attempts, 72 percent from the line and grabbed 14 rebounds per game.

Mulligan sparkplugged Cary's 26-2 season, leading coach Carolyn Shannonhouse's balanced squad with a 15.6 scoring average and 56 steals.

The 5-10 veteran pulled in six rebounds and handed out 2.5 assists each game, shooting 59 percent from the floor and 67 percent from the foul line.

Taylor, a slender 6-3, hit 50 percent from the floor and 70 percent at the free throw line while scoring 23 points per outing.

"Marbury was certainly a big difference," said Coach Hugh Durham of Georgia, which lifted its record to 18-11.

"The effort he gave this game was good for 40 minutes," he added. "I'm sure we will find some flaws, but I was extremely pleased with our total performance tonight."

Marbury's first basket of the game, a jumper from the right corner, gave the Bulldogs the lead for good at 10-8.

Georgia stretched the advantage to 10 points 14 minutes into the game and left the floor at halftime with a 37-28 lead.

Wilkins left the game with four fouls in the second half and Georgia holding a nine-point lead, and the Bulldogs quickly stretched it to 15 at

Braves Get Measure Of Revenge In Whipping Big East's Syracuse

By The Associated Press

Although it didn't do much to assuage Dick Versace's feelings, the Bradley coach exacted a measure of revenge against the Big East Conference.

Bradley's Braves, who were bypassed for the NCAA Basketball Tournament after winning the regular-season championship of the Missouri Valley Conference, took their frustrations out on Big East member Syracuse, trouncing the Orangemen 95-81 Monday night in a second-round National Invitation Tournament game.

"We're Missouri Valley champions, and it's a difficult league," said Versace. Versace has made no secret of his displeasure with Dave Gavitt, chairman of the NCAA Division I Basketball Committee and Big East commissioner, ever since four Big East teams were picked for the NCAA Tournament, while only Tulsa and Illinois State made it from the MVC.

"We should have been included in the (NCAA) tournament, although I'm glad to be in the NIT."

Syracuse Coach Jim Boehm wasn't happy at all after the Orangemen were embarrassed on their own court as David Thirkill scored 23 points for Bradley and Mitchell Anderson added 20.

"We didn't play well enough offensively to stay within reach. When they got ahead, all we could do was make an effort. They were excellent," said Boehm, who refused to be drawn into the MVC-Big East controversy.

Bradley was outscored from the floor 37 field goals to 30, but won the game at the free throw line, connecting on 35 of 47, while Syracuse was only 7 of 15. The Braves built their lead to 13 points at halftime. Willie Scott hit two quick baskets after the intermission and five points by Anderson in the first five minutes built Bradley's lead to 62-38.

Syracuse and Rutgers were the only eastern teams left in the NIT field, but Rutgers was crushed by Purdue 98-65 at West Lafayette, Ind.

In other games, Georgia trounced visiting Maryland 83-69, Dayton shaded Illinois 61-58 at Champaign, Ill., Virginia Tech nipped Mississippi 61-59 at Oxford, Miss., Oklahoma, playing at home, turned back Cal-Irvine 80-77, Texas A&M won a road game at Washington 69-65 and Tulane won at Nevada-Las Vegas 56-51.

The semifinals and finals will be held in New York's Madison Square Garden next week. First, however, the third-round schedule finds Virginia Tech at Georgia, Tulane at Bradley and Dayton at Oklahoma on Thursday night and Texas A&M at Purdue on Friday night.

Keith Edmonson scored 29 points for Purdue, which built a 14-point halftime lead on 62 percent shooting and rolled over Rutgers. Baskets by Mike Seacare and Ricky Hall and a free throw by Greg Eifert early in the second half pushed the lead to 44-25 and Rutgers never came closer than 15 points the rest of the way.

Edmonson, a 6-foot-5 guard who led the Big Ten in scoring, had 17 points in the second half. Rutgers was led by Clarence Tillman with 25 points and Roy Hinson with 22.

Georgia's Eric Marbury

equaled his career high with 25 points and Dominique Wilkins, who sat out seven minutes of the second half with four fouls, added 23 as Georgia downed Maryland. Marbury's jump shot from the right corner put the Bulldogs ahead to stay 10-8.

"Wilkins played great," said Georgia Coach Hugh Durham, "but something that made us feel good was the fact that we were able to increase our lead in the second half with Wilkins out of the game."

Mike Kaneski's scored 14 of his 23 points in the second half to help Dayton turn back several charges by Illinois in the closing minutes. The Illini got within one point with three seconds to go, but Dayton's Larry Schellenberg hit two free throws.

Virginia Tech's Reggie Stepp hit a pair of free throws with 33 seconds remaining and the Hokies held on when Ole Miss' Carlos Clark missed the last shot of the game. Clark, who led all scorers with 28 points, made a free throw with 15 seconds left but missed his second attempt. Ole Miss got the rebound but Clark's last-gasp shot bounced off the back of the rim. Jeff Schneider's 15 points topped the winners.

Oklahoma fell behind Cal-Irvine by 17 points early in the second half before David Little and Bo Overton combined for 35 points after the intermission to pace the Sooners' rally. Little was scoreless and Overton had two points in the first half, which ended with Cal-Irvine on top 34-23.

Oklahoma, backed by 11,187 partisans, got back into the game with an 18-4 burst and led by as many as 10 points, but Cal-Irvine pulled within one with 19 seconds to go. Overton sealed the victory with a pair of free throws. Overton and Chucky Barnett had 20 points apiece and Little 19. Kevin Fuller and Randy Whieldon had 18 apiece for the losers, who played without injured All-American Kevin Magee.

"Thoma Coach Billy Tubbs. "They were awesome."

Claude Riley scored 17 points and center Rudy Woods added 14 to lead Texas A&M past Washington. Riley's rebound basket with 2:58 left gave the Aggies the lead for good 62-61. Milton Woodley made four free throws to keep the Aggies on top.

Paul Thompson scored 19 points and Tulane rallied from a nine-point second half deficit to defeat Nevada-Las Vegas. Thompson, who sat out part of the second half with four personal fouls, put Tulane on top when he made a three-point play with 2:05 remaining. Daryl Moreau added two free throws with 43 seconds remaining to give the Green Wave some breathing room.

Rebounders, physical-fitness devices, are mini-trampolines which vary in size from 34 inches in diameter to 47 inches.

Keith Edmonson scored 29 points for Purdue, which built a 14-point halftime lead on 62 percent shooting and rolled over Rutgers. Baskets by Mike Seacare and Ricky Hall and a free throw by Greg Eifert early in the second half pushed the lead to 44-25 and Rutgers never came closer than 15 points the rest of the way.

Edmonson, a 6-foot-5 guard who led the Big Ten in scoring, had 17 points in the second half. Rutgers was led by Clarence Tillman with 25 points and Roy Hinson with 22.

Georgia's Eric Marbury

equaled his career high with 25 points and Dominique Wilkins, who sat out seven minutes of the second half with four fouls, added 23 as Georgia downed Maryland. Marbury's jump shot from the right corner put the Bulldogs ahead to stay 10-8.

"Wilkins played great," said Georgia Coach Hugh Durham, "but something that made us feel good was the fact that we were able to increase our lead in the second half with Wilkins out of the game."

Mike Kaneski's scored 14 of his 23 points in the second half to help Dayton turn back several charges by Illinois in the closing minutes. The Illini got within one point with three seconds to go, but Dayton's Larry Schellenberg hit two free throws.

Virginia Tech's Reggie Stepp hit a pair of free throws with 33 seconds remaining and the Hokies held on when Ole Miss' Carlos Clark missed the last shot of the game. Clark, who led all scorers with 28 points, made a free throw with 15 seconds left but missed his second attempt. Ole Miss got the rebound but Clark's last-gasp shot bounced off the back of the rim. Jeff Schneider's 15 points topped the winners.

Oklahoma fell behind Cal-Irvine by 17 points early in the second half before David Little and Bo Overton combined for 35 points after the intermission to pace the Sooners' rally. Little was scoreless and Overton had two points in the first half, which ended with Cal-Irvine on top 34-23.

Oklahoma, backed by 11,187 partisans, got back into the game with an 18-4 burst and led by as many as 10 points, but Cal-Irvine pulled within one with 19 seconds to go. Overton sealed the victory with a pair of free throws. Overton and Chucky Barnett had 20 points apiece and Little 19. Kevin Fuller and Randy Whieldon had 18 apiece for the losers, who played without injured All-American Kevin Magee.

"Thoma Coach Billy Tubbs. "They were awesome."

Claude Riley scored 17 points and center Rudy Woods added 14 to lead Texas A&M past Washington. Riley's rebound basket with 2:58 left gave the Aggies the lead for good 62-61. Milton Woodley made four free throws to keep the Aggies on top.

Paul Thompson scored 19 points and Tulane rallied from a nine-point second half deficit to defeat Nevada-Las Vegas. Thompson, who sat out part of the second half with four personal fouls, put Tulane on top when he made a three-point play with 2:05 remaining. Daryl Moreau added two free throws with 43 seconds remaining to give the Green Wave some breathing room.

Rebounders, physical-fitness devices, are mini-trampolines which vary in size from 34 inches in diameter to 47 inches.

Midwest Region Marked By Upsets

By The Associated Press
While form has held up in three regionals of the NCAA basketball tournament, upsets have been the norm in the Midwest.

Thanks to teams such as Boston College, Houston and Kansas State, just one seeded team remains in the Midwest — No. 5 Missouri, which was ranked second behind DePaul in the region.

The Tigers take on Houston and Boston College faces Kansas State in the Midwest Regional at St. Louis Friday night. Missouri, 27-3, would seem to have a homecourt advantage but that doesn't bother Houston.

"We beat Tulsa on Saturday," said Houston Coach Guy Lewis, whose Cougars upended the 10th-ranked Hurricane. Tulsa was seeded third in the region. "The kids aren't worried about playing Missouri in St. Louis. We're looking forward to it."

Boston College is looking forward to another giant-killing but they'll face another master of the upset in K-State. BC has knocked off San Francisco and DePaul, while the Wildcats beat Northern Illinois, then surprised No. 12 Arkansas.

"We're just happy to be going to St. Louis," said BC Coach Tom Davis. "I hope we make a good showing there."

John Bagley, the superb BC guard, who led the upset of DePaul with 26 points, likes his team's chances, especially if the players stick together.

"We have a lot of good athletes on our team," said Bagley. "We really play together. I guess we put in so much time together no matter what the cost, we're willing to pay for it."

Kansas State, runner-up to Missouri in the Big Eight, lost in the West Regional finals to North Carolina last year. The Wildcats are no strangers to tournament pressure.

"Our kids have played well enough, hard enough and showed enough courage to win," said Coach Jack Hartman.

The winners Friday night at St. Louis will meet Sunday for the right to represent the Midwest at the finals in New Orleans.

In the other three regions, all of the four seeded teams advanced. In the East, which also will be played Friday and Sunday, at Raleigh, N.C., top-ranked North Carolina takes on No. 13 Alabama, which was seeded fourth, and No. 9 Memphis State, the second seed, faces Villanova, rated third. The Tar Heels, 28-2, escaped with a two-point decision over unheralded James Madison on Saturday and the Crimson Tide, 24-6, sneaked past St. John's, N.Y., by a point on Sunday.

Villanova, 23-7, needed three overtimes to subdue Northeastern and Memphis State, 24-4, edged Wake Forest by one. The four regional finalists won by a total of eight points in their opening games.

The Midwest and West regionals go on Thursday night and Saturday. No. 3 Virginia, which is top-seeded in the Midwest, plays No. 17 Alabama-Birmingham, the fourth seed in the region. But the Blazers' will be playing on their home court.

UAB ousted defending champion Indiana with ease Saturday, while the Cavaliers struggled to beat Tennessee. Birmingham Coach Gene Bartow is looking ahead to Virginia without the slightest hint of worry.

"I feel very good about going into Birmingham to play Virginia," he said. "We have played very well so far."

The other Midwest game pits the second and third seeds, No. 7 Minnesota against No. 20 Louisville. The Big Ten champion Gophers, 23-5, nipped Tennessee-Chattanooga by a point in their opening game.

Louisville, 21-9, which won the NCAA title two years ago, routed Middle Tennessee to get to Birmingham.

Out west, a visitor from the East, Georgetown, and three western schools will battle. The Hoyas, ranked sixth in the country and top-seeded in the regional, put their 27-6 record on the line against defense-minded Fresno State. The Bulldogs, ranked 11th and seeded fourth in the West, slowed down West Virginia to get to the regional finals at Provo, Utah. Georgetown outlasted Wyoming.

Not surprisingly, the Fresno players were talking about Georgetown's freshman center, Patrick Ewing.

"He is great at blocking shots," said Bulldogs forward Rod Higgins. "But I don't think that we can concentrate on him blocking our shots. Hopefully we can get good position underneath so that he can't."

In the other game at Provo, No. 4 Oregon State, rated second in the West, faces No. 8 Idaho. The Vandals, champions of the Big Sky, beat the Beavers in an early-season meeting this year. But Idaho had to struggle to edge Iowa by two points in overtime to advance, while OSU blew out Pepperdine by 19.

Two Picked For All-Star Game

CHICAGO (AP) — Two North Carolina teen-agers are among 25 of the nation's top high school basketball players named Monday to participate in the 1982 McDonald's All-American high school basketball game.

The two squads of players, including North Carolinians Brad Daugherty of Swannanoa and Curtis Hunter of Durham, will meet in a game at the Rosemont Horizon on April 10.

Named to the 13-man East squad were Benoit Benjamin, Monroe, La.; Wardell Curry, Fort Defiance, Va.; Brad Daugherty, Swannanoa, N.C.; Johnny Dawkins, Washington, D.C.; Donald Hartry, Milledgeville, Ga.; Curtis Hunter, Durham, N.C.; Alfonso

Johnson, Birmingham, Ala.; Tim Kempton, Oyster Bay, N.Y.; Ernie Meyers, Bronx, N.Y.; Harold Pressley, Uncasville, Conn.; Richard Reilford, Riviera Beach, Fla.; Billy Thompson, Camden, N.J.; and Kenny Walker, Roberta, Ga.

Selected to the 12-man West squad were Ken Barlow, Indianapolis, Ind.; Kerry Boagni, Gardena, Calif.; Willie Cutts, Bryant, Ark.; Bruce Douglas, Quincy, Ill.; Roger Harden, Valparaiso, Ind.; Montel Hatcher, Santa Monica, Calif.; Eldridge Hudson, Carson, Calif.; Brad Lohaus, Phoenix, Ariz.; Wayman Tisdale, Tulsa, Okla.; Kerry Trotter, Omaha, Neb.; Erem Winters, Chicago, and Steve Woodside, Portland, Ore.

For East Carolina's Lady Pirates, the 1981-82 season came to an abrupt halt on Sunday afternoon at the University of South Carolina, as the Lady Gamecocks downed them 79-54 in the first round of the very first NCAA tournament for women.

But not, Coach Cathy Andruzzi insists, an "embarrassing" finish to the season.

"I don't think it was embarrassing for us. We played a very strong team. People tend to forget that South Carolina was ranked second in the country before they had all their problems in coaching. They lost a few games there and dropped down in the rankings. But they probably deserved their number two ranking and maybe should still be number two," she said.

"Our girls did just what we wanted them to do. They followed the game plan exactly, but the shots just wouldn't fall for us. We tried to get them into foul trouble, and we did. But after they lost one person (to fouls — leaving no substitutes), they protected them."

Andruzzi added that she would feel that the Lady Pirates were embarrassed only if they had not followed their game plan, and had given up. "But they never gave up. They never quit."

Nevertheless, it brought to an end a fine season for the Lady Pirates. Although they did not post another 20-game winner, they still managed to turn a few heads.

The season opened up promising good things, but took a downhill turn as the Lady Pirates went on the road for tournaments in New York and in Florida. By the time the New Year had come, the Lady Pirates were 4-7 and prospects of a winning season were dark.

But, despite having lost three members of the team during those days, the Lady Pirates suddenly found new life. They beat Virginia in a home game, then turned right around and popped North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

From there on, it was a different Lady Pirate team that hit the floor — one that went on to post 13 victories in the final 16 contests. Including in the streak were two wins over North Carolina and one over N.C. State.

The losses were to then-second ranked Old Dominion, and two to South Carolina, including Sunday's NCAA contest.

From the prospects of early January, it was certainly a fine finish.

"I think maybe people expected too much from us," Andruzzi said. "We had a good team, sure, but we really didn't have the stuff to compete with the likes of South Carolina. They are a super team."

At any rate, Andruzzi now must begin the job of rebuilding the team once more. Of the eight players on this year's team — at season's end — six will return, but one of the top players, Sam Jones, is gone and will be hard to replace.

However, we feel that East Carolina offers a lot in women's basketball. Few programs in the country get the media coverage ECU gets, few have radio and television coverage like ECU gets, few attract the fan support that ECU gets.

And now with two back-to-back post-season tournament bids, there is tradition building for more years of that.

It's a fine picture to be painted for the prospective recruit. Hopefully, they will take that into consideration.

Sally Little Doesn't Feel Guilty Over This Check

CITY OF INDUSTRY, Calif. (AP) — Sally Little once felt slightly guilty about collecting the $22,500 first prize in the Olympia Gold women's golf tournament.

Monday, however, she soothed her conscience — and picked up another $22,500 — for winning this year's tournament.

Little was declared the winner in 1981 because she led after the first two rounds. The final 36 holes were rained out. This time, the tournament again was plagued by rain, but it went the full 72 holes and Little scored a come-from-behind victory over Donna H. White.

"I just think I was meant to win it," Little said Monday after her 3-under-par 70 gave her a 2-stroke victory over White, who faded to a closing 76.

The final round of the $150,000 event was delayed on day when heavy rain washed out Sunday's play.

Earlier in the tournament, Little remarked that she "felt a little guilty" about winning the tournament in 1981 without going the distance.

"I read somewhere the other day that my win was a 'fluke,'" she said. "That made me kind of angry...I had said it was like a gift."

White, meanwhile, wasn't particularly downcast, although she began the final 18 holes with a 4-shot lead over Little and a 3-shot advantage over Ayako Okamoto.

"Sally just played so well. She really deserved to win," said White, back on the tour this year after taking 1981 off to have a baby. "I'm pleased; I haven't been in contention for two years."

Little, a 30-year-old South African who has won 11 events in her 12 years on the Ladies

Professional Golf Association tour, carded rounds of 75-74-69-70 for a 5-under-par 288.

Okamoto, a 30-year-old star of the Japan LPGA circuit who recently scored her first U.S. victory, wound up in a third-place tie with Nancy Lopez-Melton. Okamoto had a closing 74 and Lopez-Melton, unable to completely overcome an opening-round 78, shot 5-under-par 68.

The final two rounds were played over the 6,006-yard, par-73 Eisenhower course at Industry Hills after the golfers played one of the first two rounds on the Zaharias course, also par 73.

Little took command Monday with a string of three birdies beginning on the 12th hole. She moved into a tie for the lead with a par on No. 11, when White had a bogey. White had another bogey on No. 12, then two pars, as Little swept into a 4-stroke lead with four holes remaining.

Her edge dropped to two strokes when she took a double bogey on the 17th hole, but she and White each made par on the last hole.

"I felt I was playing the best golf I've played in my life," Little said after her first victory of the year. "Then I got rattled and limped in."

Rose's Injury Causing Worry

CLEARWATER, Fla. (AP) — The speculation continues over seriousness of Pete Rose's back injury.

Rose, the Philadelphia Phillies first baseman, says it's a muscle pull he expects to go away soon. But the 40-year-old all-star has been able to practice just once this spring, and that concerns some.

"It's somewhat disturbing that the muscle spasms are still hanging in there," Dr. Phillip Marone, the team physician, said Monday. "Usually, a couple of weeks go by and it's OK. But this thing is three weeks old, now working on four."

Marone did say he thought Rose would be ready by April 6, when the Phillies open at home against the New York Mets.

"It doesn't hurt when he swings the bat," Marone said. "It hurts, though, when he plays first base."

Rose has been limited to catching the ball during a pickoff drill. Under Marone's orders, Rose is not allowed to bend for ground balls.

Marone, who left Monday for Philadelphia, said Rose won't practice again until Friday, when the doctor returns to the camp.

Rose first injured the muscle Feb. 20, and then hurt himself again in his only workout. But he brushed off reports that the injury was a significant one.

To demonstrate that his condition has improved, Rose on Friday showed reporters he could bend over and touch his ankles.

"I couldn't tie my shoes the first two weeks," he said. "Can you tie them now?" someone asked.

"I'm wearing snaps," he replied.

Rose spoke optimistically about playing every day during the last two weeks of spring training and taking extra batting practice.

But Marone said despite Rose's desire to play, new manager Pat Corrales is against it.

"I don't blame the manager," Marone said.

Jim Rice Off To Hot Start For Red Sox

By The Associated Press
While the Boston Red Sox know the main man in their lineup is Jim Rice, who has been tearing apart opposing pitchers in spring training, they probably wish he would save some of those offensive exploits for the summer.

The Red Sox lost a 9-1 decision to the Cincinnati Reds Monday, but Rice wasn't to blame. He stroked three base hits and has seven hits in a row over the last three games. Rice has 10 hits in 23 at bats for a .435 average, with several of those hits to the opposite field. The righty-swinging Rice long has been known as a pull hitter.

"I'm hitting the ball real well now because I'm seeing it better," said Rice, who hit .284 with 17 homers and 62 runs batted in last season. "By that, I mean from the full 60 feet. I'm also being more selective in my pitches. If they want to walk me, then let them walk me. I'll take them."

Red Sox Manager Ralph

Houk would like to take the Rice he's seeing now into the regular season.

"He usually gets off to a slow start in spring training," said Houk. "But it looks as if he's in a groove right now."

Rice was about the only Red Sox player to do anything against Cincinnati, which put the game away in the fifth.

Mike Vail collected a double and a single and drove in a pair of runs to highlight the seven-run inning off Boston pitcher Dennis Burt. Vail opened with a single to right and pinch-hitter Duane Walker singled him to third. A walk to Gary Redus loaded the bases and German Barranca delivered a two-run single.

Dave Concepcion's hit made it 4-0 and a walk and a ground out made it 5-0. Concepcion then stole home when a pickoff play by Red Sox catcher Gary Allenson backfired. Larry Bittner walked and Vail drove in the final two runs of the inning with his double.

In their first meeting since the 1981 World Series, the Los Angeles Dodgers beat the New York Yankees again, this time 6-4.

Veteran outfielder Rick Monday drove in five runs, three with an eighth-inning homer off Yankee pitcher John Pacella that erased a 4-3 New York lead.

Monday drove in the Dodgers' first two runs with a bases-loaded single in the fourth and Ron Cey homered in the sixth.

Dave Collins and rookie Andre Robertson also homered for New York.

"I just swing hard in case I hit the ball," said Monday. "You get three shots at it and that's it. And then you might not be asked to do it again for three or four days."

Elsewhere, the Toronto Blue Jays edged the New York Mets 3-2, the Atlanta Braves downed Florida State University 7-1, the Minnesota Twins took the Houston Astros 3-2, the Texas Rangers handed a split squad of Montreal Expos an 8-1 beating, while the other portion of the Expos beat the Kansas City Royals 11-5.

Also, the Detroit Tigers outscored the Pittsburgh Pirates 5-2, the Baltimore Orioles bombed the Philadelphia Phillies 9-2, the Chicago Cubs blanked the Cleveland Indians 4-0, and, in night action it was the Chicago White Sox 12, the St. Louis Cardinals 4 in 11 innings and the Yucatan Lions of the Mexican League over the Seattle Mariners 8-3.

After the game, Perry and Bockhorn were sent to the Braves' minor league camp.

Dave Engle's two-out single in the ninth capped a two-run Twins' rally. Gary Ward's double had tied the game before Engle's hit.

Pat Putnam and Bobby Johnson belted homers and Al Oliver and Leon Roberts each knocked in two runs for Texas. The other half of the Expos took Kansas City as Larry Parrish and Tim Blackwell hit three-run homers.

Richie Hebner drove in two runs and scored two and Dave Rozema pitched five innings of four-hit shutout ball for the Tigers.

Sammy Stewart went Rozema one inning better when he scattered five hits and struck out six in six innings for Baltimore. Rookies Cal Ripken Jr. and Bobby Bonner drove in three runs apiece, Ripken contributing a two-run homer and Bonner a two-run triple.

Bill Buckner's four hits and Ryne Sandberg's two-run double led the Cubs.

The White Sox sent 12 batters to the plate in the 11th inning as the Cardinals made three of their eight errors for the game. Tito Landrum had four singles and two RBI for St. Louis.

In Merida, Mexico, the Mariners were beaten when the Lions scored seven runs in the fourth inning.

South Africa Chases Ring Title

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
AP Sports Writer

Bob Arum, a New-York-based promoter, plans to co-promote a World Boxing Association junior middleweight title defense by American Davey Moore against South African Charlie Weir in South Africa, a nation seemingly bent on having a world champion.

Boxing has become a major international soap box for South Africa, which has had many sports avenues closed to it because of its racial policy of apartheid.

And there seems little doubt that influence by South Africa and Arum within the WBA is the key reason Weir was picked for a title shot.

H.W.O. Klopper of South Africa, a judge, is the WBA's first vice president, while his countryman, Michael G. Mortimer, is a regional vice president in charge of Africa and Europe.

Lou Duva and Shelly Finkel, co-managers of third-ranked Tony Ayala, have filed suit in federal court — the WBA, although its headquarters is in Panama, is incorporated in Rhode Island — in an effort to block the fight which is scheduled for April 24.

Duva and Finkel say that Arum offered Ayala a title shot for $50,000 against Tidashi Mihara of Japan on the condition that should Ayala win, he would defend against Weir in South Africa. Finkel says he and Duva did not like the terms or the site for a Weir fight. Arum denies the offer.

So Moore, a black New Yorker, who became ranked No. 10 after just eight fights, got the title shot and won it from Mihara at Tokyo Feb. 2.

"We're not excited about going to South Africa," says Leon Washington, Moore's manager, who admits, "that my contract (with Arum for the Mihara fight) stated that Weir must be my first defense."

Judge Herbert I. Stern of U.S. District Court at Newark, N.J., postponed from March 9 to March 31 Duva and Finkel's request for an injunction against the Moore-Weir match. The postponement was granted because Robert W. Lee, WBA second vice president and deputy of the New Jersey State Athletic Commission, appeared in court without an attorney. That's like a fighter going into a bout without seconds.

Norman Fishbein, an attorney representing Arum, who also is a lawyer, was in court, and he described Arum as a consultant to the WBA.

Duva and Finkel point out WBA Rule 6, which states, "... should the World Champion lose his title against an opponent other than the leading available contender, the World Champion shall be required to make his first title defense against the leading available contender on his weight class in accordance with the current rating list of the Association, within a period of (90) days after the acquisition of the title."

Weir was ranked No. 6 by the WBA when Moore won the title from Mihara at Tokyo Feb. 2. At the time, former champion Ayub Kalule, an Ugandan living in Denmark was ranked first, followed by Carlos Her-era of Argentina and Ayala, of San Antonio, Texas. Weir is now fourth, while the others retain the top three places.

Of course, Duva and Finkel are aware that if they succeed in blocking a Moore-Weir fight, it could set up a Moore-Kalule fight. Herrera's manager reportedly has stepped aside for a Moore-Weir fight, but Mogens Palle, Kalule's manager, who at first stepped aside, now says he wants Moore to defend against Kalule.

Last December, ninth-ranked Aturo Frias, of Los Angeles, substituting for the injured Gonzalo Montellano of Bakersfield, Calif., won the lightweight title from Claude Noel of Trinidad, who had won the championship as No. 1 contender. Frias then signed to defend against eighth-ranked Montellano, but the WBA invoked Rule 6 and forced Frias to defend against top-ranked Ernesto Espana of Venezuela, a former champion.

In the case of Moore-Weir-Ayala, Arum notes Rule 19, which, he says, would enable Moore to fight someone who is not the highest available contender with approval by two-thirds of the Championships Committee, the president (Rodrigo Sanchez of Panama) and a majority of the Executive Committee.

Leake Goes To Heels

By The Associated Press
Chapel Hill High School guard Pam Leake will become the first player to stay at home and join the University of North Carolina's women's basketball team.

Leake, a 5-7 guard, announced her commitment to the Tar Heels on Monday.

She averaged 19.9 points and 10.3 rebounds per game this past season while shooting 53.5 percent from the floor and 64.5 percent from the free throw line.

"She played where we needed her," said Sherry Norris, coach of the 22-3 Tigers. "She has really done a tremendous job for us."

"We believe Pam is one of the premier guards in the country — definitely an All-America," North Carolina coach Jennifer Alley said. "She has great ability both offensively and defensively. She is a natural athlete who possesses a great shooting touch and excellent quickness."

A three-year starter, Leake scored 1,323 points in her career, during which time the Tigers finished 58-16 and claimed the 1981 state championship.

Leake Goes To Heels

Three Arizona games were rained out. In Casa Grande, Milwaukee led California 2-1 after four innings when heavy rains halted the game. The Oakland-San Francisco contest in Scottsdale and San Diego's game against a split Seattle squad in Tempe also were rained out.

Lloyd Moseby slammed two home runs off pitcher Jesse Orosco as Toronto edged the Mets. Ellis Valentine homered for New York.

Braves Manager Joe Torre named Bob Horner the team's first captain since Hank Aaron in 1974. Then Atlanta upped its preseason record to 7-1 as rookies Gerald Perry and Glen Bockhorn each knocked in two runs in a five-run seventh.

After the game, Perry and Bockhorn were sent to the Braves' minor league camp.

Dave Engle's two-out single in the ninth capped a two-run Twins' rally. Gary Ward's double had tied the game before Engle's hit.

Pat Putnam and Bobby Johnson belted homers and Al Oliver and Leon Roberts each knocked in two runs for Texas. The other half of the Expos took Kansas City as Larry Parrish and Tim Blackwell hit three-run homers.

Richie Hebner drove in two runs and scored two and Dave Rozema pitched five innings of four-hit shutout ball for the Tigers.

Sammy Stewart went Rozema one inning better when he scattered five hits and struck out six in six innings for Baltimore. Rookies Cal Ripken Jr. and Bobby Bonner drove in three runs apiece, Ripken contributing a two-run homer and Bonner a two-run triple.

Bill Buckner's four hits and Ryne Sandberg's two-run double led the Cubs.

The White Sox sent 12 batters to the plate in the 11th inning as the Cardinals made three of their eight errors for the game. Tito Landrum had four singles and two RBI for St. Louis.

In Merida, Mexico, the Mariners were beaten when the Lions scored seven runs in the fourth inning.

Lighter Aura For New 'CBS Morning News'

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The first day of the newest "CBS Morning News" gave indications that the broadcast will offer some jelly with its long-running fare of dry toast at sun-up.

There's a sportier set, brighter music, more informality between the anchors, an in-studio weatherman, a broader concept of wake-up information and much more film in the newscasts.

CBS still offers more news than ABC and NBC at the start of each half hour, but it's packaged differently than the previous CBS "Morning" show. The approach to news also seemed different. The first story Monday morning was a long film report on floods in the Midwest, while NBC led off with President Reagan's southern swing to continue his budget fight.

If the previous show was heavy on Charles Kuralt's "talking head" newscasts, this one went overboard on footage. Film should aid stories, but "walking heads" shot at airports and around conference tables didn't add much to Monday's broadcast.

Any new show needs time to get comfortable, and the "CBS Morning News" will get better. Already, it's an improvement in the way it better fits the viewer's frenetic morning pace.

But it has some kinks. Most glaring was the contrivance of getting Bill Kurtis and co-anchor Diane Sawyer too involved — both with each other and as participants in every phase of the program.

After several commercials, Kurtis and Miss Sawyer seemed to be sharing inside jokes before getting their serious newscast faces back on. And, Miss Sawyer particularly, hogged an interview with Deane Hinton, the U.S. ambassador in El Salvador. Richard Wagner, the CBS correspondent on the scene, was mere window dressing.

Kurtis, who appeared a bit stiff, welcomed the audience to CBS' "new approach to imparting information." But it's only really new for CBS. NBC's "Today" and ABC's "Good Morning America" have been successful with softer news and information for years.

In 27 years, CBS' morning show hasn't offered much ratings competition to NBC. CBS has tried a variety of anchors, including Walter Cronkite, Jack Paar, Will Rogers Jr. and Jimmy Dean.

Kuralt was the latest, and he was dropped for the peppier Kurtis, the top-rated local anchor in Chicago for the past decade.

Also missing from the last CBS "Morning" show were the easels, which separated Kuralt and Miss Sawyer, and the old weatherman and sportscaster. Miss Sawyer, too, was different. She was much bouncier than the Miss Sawyer of last week and allowed to have normal conversation with her co-anchor.

The new set, which housed CBS' "NFL Today" show, included a desk for the two anchors and monitors in the background. Depending on the half hour, one of several "contributors" would drop by to share the desk.

Sportscaster Jim Kelly offered basketball, hockey and golf highlights with his upbeat scores package. Weatherman Steve Dresher was not in Washington, like previous forecaster Gordon Barnes. He was more of an ensemble participant, and it's expected he'll be available for lighter moments, similar to the way "Today" uses Willard Scott.

Pat Collins, entertainment editor, made several appearances. The first time she had a worthless feature called "Headliners" that included such important stories as the buzzards of Hinckley, Ohio, and a grand ball for singing telegram workers. CBS has no right to criticize "gossip," if this is its elevation of the art form.

Ironically, Miss Collins' husband, composer Joe Raposo, was a guest on "Today" Monday. Raposo also wrote CBS' new introductory music, which is more lively than the old show's classical theme.

And, in another break with tradition, the "CBS Morning News" is not above self-promotion. Before Monday's show was over, there were several reminders about Kurtis' interview with Sen. Edward Kennedy on Tuesday.

Belushi's Last Night Devoted To Heavy Drinking And Narcotics

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Comedian John Belushi, whose arms bore "multiple fresh needle puncture marks" at the time of his death, spent his last hours in all-night revelry that included heavy drinking and narcotics, a detailed coroner's report says.

Belushi was vomiting and pale, but stayed up on March 5 until 8 a.m., 4½ hours before he was found dead, according to the report issued Monday. It also outlined another night that week when the actor drank and used drugs into the early-morning hours.

Belushi, 33, died from an injected overdose of cocaine and heroin, Los Angeles County Coroner Thomas Noguchi said last week.

In New York, meanwhile, the Daily News reported today that Belushi left his wife, Judith, more than $2 million from three life insurance policies.

A detailed report by Deborah Peterson, an investigator at the coroner's office, said that on March 1, Belushi and an unidentified woman stayed up "drinking wine and inhaling cocaine ... and injecting the drug."

Police Lt. Dan Cooke identified the woman as Cathy Evelyn Smith, a backup singer for rock groups. Miss Smith also is believed to be the last person to see Belushi alive.

On March 5, the coroner's report continued, Belushi and his woman companion were at "Rock City," a private club, where he was "drinking heavily" until about 1 a.m. He reportedly asked someone to drive him back to his rented bungalow at the Chateau Marmont Hotel.

The comedian needed help getting inside the bungalow. He began vomiting and appeared "pale and sweaty," the report said, but "the ingestion of the liquor and drug apparently continued."

Unidentified visitors were at the bungalow between 3 and 3:30 a.m., the report said. Belushi showered about 6:30 a.m. and went to bed about 8 a.m., when the woman observed he was "shaking and wheezing."

The woman was quoted as saying she heard "a loud wheezing" about 9:30 a.m., so she woke Belushi to ask if he was all right and gave him water. When she checked about 10:15 a.m., he appeared to be sleeping and she went out for breakfast in his Mercedes.

The report said the woman gave police a plastic syringe and metal spoon that appeared to have been burned on the bottom. It said she told police she took them from the bungalow when she left "because she was afraid that the maid would come in and call police."

Police led Miss Smith away in handcuffs from the Sunset Strip hotel when she returned several hours after Belushi's body was found at 12:30 p.m.

Traces of white powder, later identified by police as cocaine, were found in the room, the report said.

Toxicological tests showed Belushi had 0.007 milligrams of cocaine per 100 milliliters of blood, 0.009 milligrams per 100 milliliters of bile and 2.22 milligrams per 100 milliliters of urine. The bile also showed 2.1 milligrams of morphine, a drug related to heroin.

The amount of cocaine was described as "extremely large" and the morphine "substantial," by Dr. Jordan Cohen, a University of Southern California School of Pharmacy specialist on how drugs affect the body.

Robert Sheahan, Miss Smith's attorney, said Monday he hoped the publicity surrounding his client would lessen. She "endeavored to act with decency, grace and integrity" to "preserve the memory of one of America's most adroit comedy talents," Sheahan said.

Although spokesmen for Belushi have refused to discuss insurance policies, the Daily News said today that Nathan Kelne, a spokesman for the New York Life Insurance Co., confirmed the existence of three policies.

Kelne said Mrs. Belushi, 30, was the only beneficiary named on the documents.

"I can't tell you much about the case but, yes, he was insured by us with three policies," Kelne told the Daily News. "You'd be in the ballpark if you said they're worth over $2 million."

Intimidated By Brokaw

NEW YORK (AP) — Jane Pauley, co-anchor of NBC-TV's "Today" show, says she liked Tom Brokaw, but she was a little intimidated by his strong personality, which could "take a room by storm."

"Sometimes I adored him. Sometimes I didn't adore him so much," Ms. Pauley said. "But I always liked him."

The 31-year-old journalist said in an interview in Redbook magazine's April issue that Brokaw, who left "Today" to anchor NBC's "Nightly News," used to kid that it would take three people to replace him.

"And it did," Ms. Pauley said. Bryant Gumbel and Chris Wallace were added to the morning news show as Brokaw's replacements. Ms. Pauley remained, making three.

Auditions Set For Saturday

CHAPEL HILL — Carolina Regional Theater (CRT) will hold auditions on Saturday, March 20 for singer/actors interested in performing in the upcoming production of "Jacques Brel is Alive and Well and Living in Paris."

The play will be the first production of CRT's new cabaret repertory season which will be staged at Chapel Hill's Chez Condoret Restaurant beginning April 7.

'Stealth' Is Near Reality

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fighter-bombers equipped with highly-secret "Stealth" technology to make them virtually invisible to radar probably will be in production by the United States this year, according to Pentagon sources.

Defense Department policy has been to maintain strict secrecy on "Stealth" developments except to make bare references to an advanced strategic bomber the Reagan administration is planning for the 1990s and beyond.

However, a senior official on Monday, without elaborating, said "there is a strong element of truth" to reports that such production is likely to begin this year. The official asked not to be identified.

According to The Army Times, a privately published weekly newspaper oriented toward a military audience, has reported that Lockheed has built and tested three prototypes, each weighing less than 20,000 pounds. The newspaper said the aircraft to be produced this year would be much larger than the prototypes, but considerably smaller than the Stealth bomber that is being developed by Northrop Corp.

The Carter administration had acknowledged the existence of research on such a project in August 1980. Defense Secretary of Harold Brown at that time announced it as "a major technological advance of great military significance."

Military and scientific sources said the new technology involves a variety of techniques, including use of radar-absorbing materials that in effect would prevent Soviet anti-aircraft missile batteries, jet interceptors or airborne surveillance planes from spotting U.S. aircraft.
