

MacDonald Conviction Is Reinstated By High Court

By RICHARD CARELLI
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today reinstated the conviction of a former Green Berets doctor for the 1970 murders of his pregnant wife and two young daughters.

Dr. Jeffrey MacDonald, whose case has become one of the most publicized criminal prosecutions in recent U.S. history, now faces a life term in prison. By a 6-3 vote, the justices ruled that MacDonald was not denied a speedy trial.

MacDonald could pursue other avenues of appeal, but now it is up to federal prosecutors and the courts to decide whether he will remain free pending those appeals. Writing for the court, Chief Justice Warren E. Burger said that despite a five-year gap between the deaths and the federal indictment against MacDonald, his constitutional rights were not violated. "The Sixth Amendment right to a speedy trial is thus not primarily intended to prevent prejudice to the defense caused by passage of time," Burger said. "Once charges are dismissed, the speedy trial guarantee is no longer applicable."

MacDonald, 38, now lives in Huntington Beach, Calif., and has been serving as director of emergency medicine at St. Mary Medical Center in Long Beach.

He was a captain in the Army Medical Corps in 1970 and was assigned to the Green Berets, the special forces unit, at Fort Bragg, N.C., when military police rushed to his home Feb. 17, 1970.

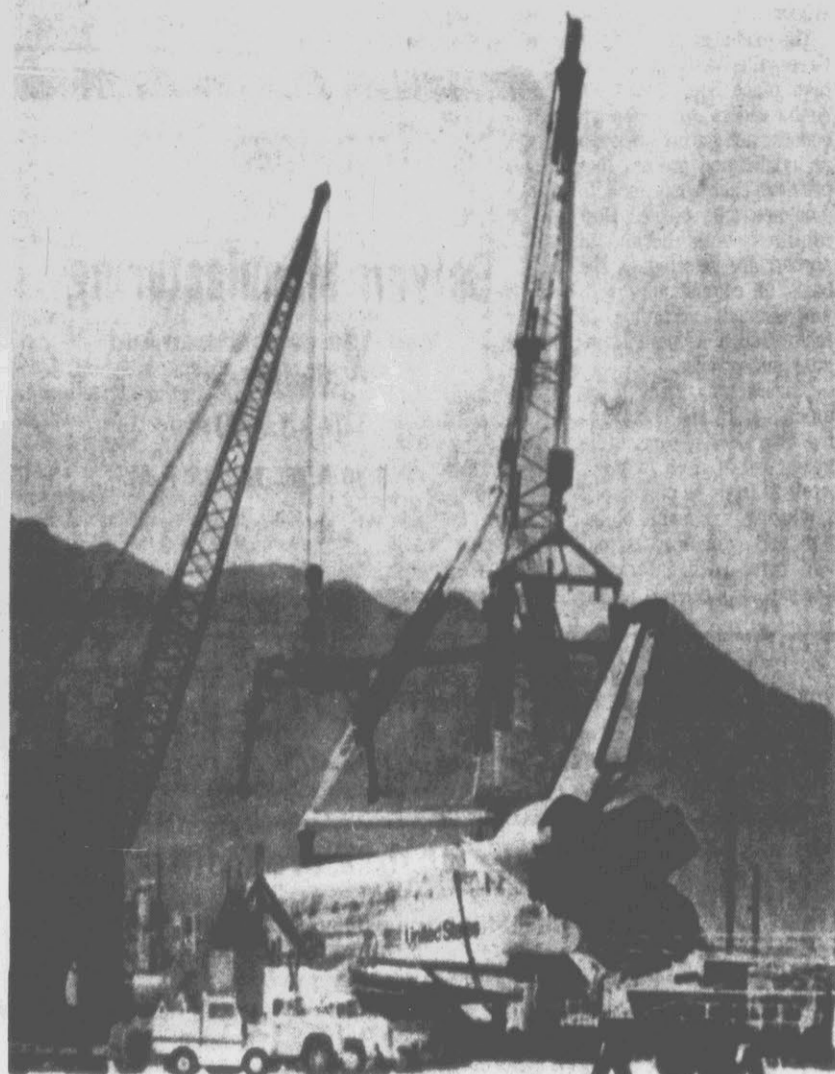

They found the doctor's wife, Colette, 24, and the couple's two children, Kimberly, 6, and Kristen, 3, bludgeoned to death. MacDonald had suffered numerous knife wounds.

The doctor told police his home had been invaded by four drug-crazed "hippies" but his account quickly fell under suspicion. He was arrested by military police and charged with murder, but subsequently was cleared of any wrongdoing.

Five years later, a federal grand jury in Raleigh, N.C., indicted him on murder charges.

The 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals dismissed the charges after ruling that MacDonald had been denied a speedy trial, but the Supreme Court in 1978 ruled that such a decision could not be made before an actual trial.

MacDonald then stood trial and in August 1979 was convicted and sentenced to life in prison. He again raised the speedy-trial issue, and the 4th Circuit court overturned his conviction. In the interim, the doctor spent a year in prison.

Shuttle Crew's Debriefing Begins

AP Aerospace Writer
SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Home safely after a spectacular "toboggan" ride from space, astronauts Jack R. Lousma and C. Gordon Fullerton begin a week of debriefing today, recounting for experts their eight days of adventure aboard the shuttle Columbia.

Columbia landed with a thump Tuesday at the White Sands Missile Range in New Mexico after staying in orbit an extra day to wait out a sandstorm that scrubbed a landing the day before.

It was the third test flight for Columbia, its toughest and longest. The spacecraft faces but one more test mission before it starts flying cargo for paying customers.

Lousma, arriving in Houston, called the mission "spectacular from end to end, particularly the toboggan down from upstairs."

In overcoming all its problems, he said, "Columbia demonstrated a maturity that was really unexpected."

The spacecraft landed at 9:05 a.m. MST Tuesday, completing a journey of more than 3.3 million miles and 129 orbits of the Earth. It dropped from space and sped across western Mexico and the United States before diving toward a safe touchdown on a dry lakebed amid New Mexico's mountains.

Except for some missing tiles on its skin and a few scars and scratches, Columbia was in good shape. Technicians quickly drained surplus fuel and chemicals and towed the stubby-winged craft to a service area beside the desert runway. In about eight days, the spacecraft will be lifted atop a jumbo jet and flown to the Kennedy Space Center for refitting. A fourth flight is planned in June.

For Lousma and Fullerton, the adventure is over and it's time for the paperwork. The astronauts will spend hours over the next seven days speaking into tape recorders and answering engineering questions about the performance of Columbia.

There was no question about how the two spacemen felt. Said Lousma from space: "This is really a beautiful flying machine."

Astronauts, space center workers and friends stood in a light rain Tuesday night to welcome the returning spacemen at Ellington Air Force Base near the Johnson Space Center.

Lousma thanked the crowd, particularly for their prayers. "I've always said a few prayers are worth a lot of training," he added.

Fullerton's speech was short. "My job was to lower the landing gear. Jack's was to land and make the speeches."

Neighbors decorated the yards at both astronauts' homes with signs of welcome. In nearby Friendswood, where Lousma lives, streets were lined with flags and more signs.

The third flight of Columbia reached several important milestones for America's space transportation system.

Teacher-Cut Last Resort

By MARY SCHULKEN

Pitt County's school principals want personnel cuts — if they must be made — to eliminate administrative positions and not teachers, said a spokesperson for the group Tuesday.

"The last services that should be cut, in our opinion, are those closest to the students," said Janie Manning, principal of Bethel Elementary. Pitt's 20 county school principals met collectively, she said, and voted on the budget-cutting policy platform they presented during the Pitt County Board of Education budget workshop meeting.

"We recognize the circumstances for reduction in force," added Ms. Manning. "We simply want to make it clear that in our opinion, reductions should be made at the central office and administrative level before we eliminate those who directly touch children."

Ms. Manning said that "already swamped" teachers were "doubling up now" to provide needed services to the schools. "Now we're facing more cutbacks and we don't need any more doubling up," she said.

The central office staff, according to the principals' plan, would be the first place for cuts to be made. "After central office staff," said Ms. Manning, "we recognize that cuts will have to be made in the school — we hope they will be made in administration and not teachers."

The Board of Education began an item-by-item study Tuesday of a tentative 1982-83 budget — a budget which currently has no totals and is aimed at "maintaining the present level of services and nothing additional," say county officials.

Associate Superintendent Thomas Craft gave board members a list of county school capital outlay needs which he described as "our most pressing (needs) within the schools at this time." The list included $1.3 million for the Ayden Middle School project.

No priorities, stated Craft, are indicated on the list. Board members will consider the items individually next Tuesday.

Pruett Makes Plea Of Guilty

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

In an unexpected move this morning in Superior Court, Abraham Pruet of Winterville, the former manager of Clerk's Department Store in Greenville, pleaded guilty to embezzlement charges brought against him in December.

Pruett and Ayden policeman Keith R. Gardner, a part-time security guard at Clark's, were scheduled for trial this week.

Pruett was charged with embezzlement after allegedly diverting 30 fans, valued at $1,490, to his own use, while Gardner was charged with receiving embezzled property (the fans) following an investigation by the Loss Prevention Division of Cook United Inc., the parent company of Clark's.

while the presumptive (normal) sentence under state law would be three years.

Following the acceptance of Pruet's guilty plea, Judge Peel excused the 11 members of the jury and announced that the case against Gardner would be continued to another term of court.

In light of the plea-bargaining agreement, it is expected that Pruet will testify against Gardner when his case is rescheduled for trial.

An article Tuesday incorrectly stated that Gardner was suspended from his job pending the outcome of the case.

A check with the Ayden Police Department today revealed that Gardner is on duty now and was suspended for only a brief time following his arrest.

Charge Fires Set By Guard

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — An 18-year-old freshman at the University of Arizona who was employed by the campus police to make sure buildings were locked has been charged with setting fires in five of the buildings she was supposed to protect, officials say.

Cynthia Louise Wong, from Ann Arbor, Mich., was charged Tuesday.

Jury selection in the case began Tuesday, and when court recessed for the day, 11 jurors had been seated.

This morning, before the jury selection process got under way, Pruet changed his plea from innocent to guilty.

Under the plea-bargaining agreement announced by Judge Elbert Peele, Pruet is to receive no active prison sentence, will not be required to make restitution to Clark's, will not face further criminal or civil prosecution in connection with the case, and will testify truthfully about the incident when called upon to do so.

Peele told Pruet, 41, that the maximum sentence for embezzlement is 10 years,

Theater Arts Complex To Honor Dr. Messick

By FRANCEINE PERRY
ECU News Bureau

Dr. John Decatur Messick, East Carolina University's fifth president, will be honored on campus Saturday when ECU's newly renovated and enlarged Theater Arts Center is dedicated and named for him.

Dr. Messick, members of his family and invited guests will be present for a 4 p.m. dedication ceremony, at which a new oil portrait of Messick will be unveiled and former ECU Chancellor Leo W. Jenkins, who succeeded Messick as president in 1960, will give the featured address.

The center encompasses what was formerly the Wahl-Coates Laboratory School, McGinnis Theater and additions made during the recent $4 million construction project.

The renovated facility includes classrooms and laboratories for speech and drama classes, workshops for costume and scenery design and assembly, dance and acting studios, a studio theater for experimental drama and the main theater, which has an orchestra pit, perfect sight lines to the

ADOPT-A-GRANDPARENT?

I am interested in knowing if Greenville has an Adopt-A-Grandparent program. Our child has material possessions, but I want her to be exposed to the attention and affection of a grandfather. It is sad when she sees and hears her playmates talk about their grandfather when she wants one so badly. Surely there must be senior citizens who love children and can share their wisdom. Mrs. R.H.

There is no organized Adopt-A-Grandparent program in Pitt County that Council on Aging Director Jeff McAllister knows about. However, he said he or Joanne Goodman in his office would be happy to talk to you and offer you names of individuals to contact.

Anyone who would like to be considered an adoptive grandparent should also call the Council on Aging office, 75 2-1717.

motes understanding, friendship and concern among people of all nations. Mrs. Jim Hunt, wife of North Carolina's governor and honorary state chairman of Friendship Force, formally announced the chapter's organization at a coffee hour meeting. "I'm happy to get Friendship Force started here in eastern North Carolina. It can be a learning experience on visitors' part and ours. I am sold on this program and what it involves," Mrs. Hunt said. "We are very much like people from all over the world. The best thing of the program is living with other people. You learn so much and that is a highlight." She told of 100 people who traveled to Russia on a program which was started by Friendship Force in Iowa. Several people from North Carolina participated, staying in hotels and visiting in homes in Russia. "We hope in the future to do more interchanging and exchanges. We are working on three or four more interchanges to Russia," she added. Mrs. Hunt was an ambassador to Newcastle, England, in 1979. Cheryl Taft of Greenville is the local exchange director and her assistant is Barbara Berman. Margaret Hackney is serving as the Washington coordinator. Others speaking on the program in addition to Mrs. Taft were Millie Schechter, state Friendship Force director, and Mayor Percy Cox of Greenville. In explaining the Friendship Force, Mrs. Taft said, "This is a community-oriented project and goes beyond age, profession and race. It deals with just people and it's for any and everybody."

"By meeting other people we can broaden our circle of friends to encompass the whole world. It's much easier to extend a hand of friendship to someone you already know and love. The hard part, but the part that makes a difference, is extending that hand of friendship to those we do not know."

"The Friendship Force was introduced by President and Mrs. Jimmy Carter in 1977 and brought here by Governor and Mrs. Hunt. Greenville is paired with a foreign city and we try to bring a wide cross-section of the community to be ambassadors and hosts. It will be a simultaneous exchange. The stay abroad will be divided into two phases — staying with the host family followed by staying with a second family or traveling independently," said Ms. Schechter. Other Friendship Forces have been established in Winston-Salem, Raleigh, Charlotte, Asheville, Durham-Chapel Hill and Wilson.

The exchange program for Greenville-Washington will take place Sept. 27-Oct. 10. Ambassadors to a foreign country are selected through an application process that provides each applicant with a chance to be selected. Host families both here and abroad are selected on the basis of compatibility with ambassadors according to factors such as occupation, interests and age.

Citizens may apply to be ambassadors and hosts during interview sessions to be held April 21 from 7-9 p.m., April 23 from 7-9 p.m., April 25 during the hours of 2-5 p.m. and again April 29 from 7-9 p.m. All interview sessions will be held at the

Willis Building, First Street and Reade Circle, Greenville. Serving with Mrs. Taft and Mrs. Berman are: Robert J. Powell III, finance subcommittee; Dr. Douglas Wilms, applications subcommittee; Georgette Hedrick, communications subcommittee; Gerda Nischan, workshop subcommittee; Kathy Taft and Helen Taft, activities subcommittee; Ann Bennett Maxwell, arrivals and departures subcommittee; and Charlene Craft, office manager.

1 teaspoon curry powder
2 1/4 to 2 1/2 cups water
1 cup converted-type rice
In a 1 1/2-quart saucepan melt the butter; add the onion and cook fairly quickly stirring often, until golden. Stir in the curry powder and the water; bring to a boil. Add the rice and cook over very low heat, covered tightly, until the water has evaporated and the rice is tender — about 20 minutes. Let stand off heat, tightly covered, for about 5 minutes. Pleated pants with straight legs were shown in short and long lengths. The slacks are also pleated at the ankle or have straight legs. Another popular look on the fashion scene is the split skirt (or culotte).

Fashion show coordinators were Becky Orr and Gloria Fletcher. They were assisted by Kathleen Sinar, Vicki Marx, Nan Linton and Melinda Turner, invitations, Kay Davis, models coordinator, Debbie Bengala and Linda Parker, store coordinators, Pia Leahy, Linda Davis, Beverly Queen, Ellen McGowan and Mary Lou Suggs, special activities. 1/4 cup butter
1 1/4 cups sugar
1 teaspoon grated orange rind
1 large egg

3/4 cup orange juice
2 cups fresh cranberries
1/2 cup chopped walnuts

Line the bottom of a 9 by 5 by 3-inch loaf pan with wax paper; butter the paper. On wax paper or in a bowl thoroughly stir together the flour, baking powder, salt and cinnamon. In a large bowl cream the butter, sugar and orange rind; beat in the egg until blended. Stir in the flour mixture in three additions, alternately with the orange juice, mixing each time only until the dry ingredients are moistened. Fold in the cranberries and walnuts. Turn into the prepared pan. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in the center comes out clean—about 55 minutes. Turn out on a wire rack and cool completely. Wrap tightly and store for 2 days to allow flavors to blend before serving.

Dear Abby

Affair Has Age-Old Ending

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1982 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: When I see letters in your column from young girls who fall in love with older men, I ache for them because I know what they're feeling.

When I was 16, I baby-sat for a divorced man who had two young children. I fell in love with him the first time I saw him. I was thrilled that an older man would even look at me. (He was 30.) I lost my heart (and my virginity) to him. Our affair went on for a year and a half. I never realized that all he saw in me was a bed partner when he felt the need. Meanwhile he was on my mind night and day.

My love for him took me out of circulation at school. Boys my own age seemed like infants. I missed the school proms and all the activities and fun high school girls have. And worst of all, it made a liar and a sneak out of me. My parents never knew, thank God.

What did I get instead? The constant fear of pregnancy. (I was just plain lucky; he was selfish and inconsiderate and refused to use protection.)

He said he was "thinking" of marriage. He was. But not to me. In the middle of our big love affair he married a woman he had said was "just a friend." My heart broke into a million pieces.

That was 15 years ago, Abby, and I've never told anyone about it. If you think this will help someone, use it in your column, but please don't say where it came from.

YOUNG AND FOOLISH ONCE

DEAR YOUNG: Thanks for the testimonial. Girls, if the shoe fits, wear it, and run as though your life depended upon it, because it does.

DEAR ABBY: Quite some time ago you printed a "Prayer for Secretaries." I framed it and hung it on the wall over my desk.

I just returned from my vacation to find that the office had been painted. You guessed it. My "prayer" had been taken down, and nobody knows what happened to it.

Please, please print it again.

WITHOUT A PRAYER

DEAR WITHOUT: Your prayers have been answered. Here it is:

PRAYER FOR SECRETARIES

"Dear Lord, help me to do my work well; to have the memory of an elephant, the patience of a saint and the hide of a rhinoceros. And when the boss asks me to stay late to type a three-page letter that absolutely must go out today, and he doesn't get around to signing it until tomorrow, please help me to keep my mouth shut.

"Dear Lord, never let me lose patience, even when the boss has me searching the files for hours for something that is later discovered on his desk!

"Help me to have the knowledge of a genius, although my education is limited to high school and secretarial training.

"Help me to understand and carry out all instructions without any explanation.

"Let me always know exactly where my boss is and when he will be back, even though he never tells me when he leaves.

"And Lord, when the year ends, please give me the foresight not to throw out records that will be asked for in a few days, even though I was told emphatically, 'Destroy these — they are cluttering up the place!' AMEN"

A Bubble Gum Felony

In an era when prosecutors and courts are criticized frequently for coddling defendants, Guilford County's district attorney came up with a different twist. D.A. Michael Schlosser filed felony robbery charges against two youngsters — aged 18 and 16 — accused of stealing 6-cents worth of bubble gum from a 12-year-old boy.

Despite cries of racism — the defendants were black, the victim was white — and some expression of amazement from the public, the case went to trial. Schlosser, explaining his stand, said he used the felony charges because the teen-agers had a "bad attitude." At trial time, however, Schlosser said they had changed and were now contrite. The charges were reduced to common law robbery, allowing the youngsters to be handled under the state first-offenders' program. No plea was required, and they will not have criminal records although the teen-agers were assigned to counselors for a year.

Trial Judge Edward Lowe, perhaps, best summed up the irony of Schlosser's decision in saying: "In my day we used to handle these situations at home."

The irony is even stronger when you realize it was Schlosser who headed the unsuccessful prosecution in the shooting deaths of three Communist Workers Party demonstrators during a confrontation with the Ku Klux Klan and the American Nazi Party in Greensboro. The handling of that case is still under investigation by a federal agency.

And you can't help but wonder aloud why a prosecutor would decide to "throw the book" at two teen-agers in a 6-cent bubble gum theft when a convicted murderer facing two sentences of life in prison can be eligible for parole in seven years?

Madness, Sweet Madness

College basketball is madness, but a sweet madness it is when the national championship is at stake.

That is the way it was for UNC-Chapel Hill Monday night in New Orleans as the Tar Heels met a tough Georgetown team in a championship game which went right down to the final second.

Within the Atlantic Coast Conference the member schools may scrap all year long, and within the state sister institutions may squabble. Monday night, however, we were all Tar Heels and all were swept up in the madness.

There can be nothing but good feelings toward a team which played its way through a rough ACC schedule, the conference tournament and the NCAA playoffs to finally gain the coveted top spot in college basketball for 1982.

Decisions, Decisions

President Reagan's attacks on television coverage have made the news executives take a hard look at what they are showing on the nightly news.

Durham, at the ACN network, told me, "You know, the President isn't all wrong. What people see on the nightly news can affect them one way or the other. We make a lot of tough decisions when it comes to what we show."

"Well, remember a couple of weeks ago when Mr. Reagan stopped off in Fort Wayne, and for 10 minutes helped the people pass sandbags to each other to stop the flood?"

"Do I ever. It was a great piece of film, and showed the President really cared about the people."

"I'm glad you saw it that way. But when the tape came in, we had a lot of questions about it. The first one was, if we showed it, would the viewing audience think the entire Midwest was under water?"

"You cleared that up by saying only Fort Wayne was being threatened."

"The second question was, would the American people think that all President Reagan did all day was pass sandbags from one person to another?"

"He was dressed in a black suit and wore a shirt and tie. I got the impression he just stopped off because it was a great picture opportunity for him" and his press people couldn't pass it up."

"That occurred to us, too. If this was true, was it a news story or just a publicity stunt to get the President on the evening news?"

"It could have been both," I said. "Frankly, the fact that the President of the United States took time out from defending his budget to pass sandbags to the people of Fort Wayne made me feel very good."

"Some of us thought that, but there were others in the newsroom who argued that viewers would be frightened about what we showed them in Fort Wayne, and they'd say if it could happen to the Hoosiers, it could happen to them. That could prolong the recession."

"I hadn't thought about that. People do tend to stop buying cars when they see them floating down the streets."

"Yet if we didn't show the President passing sandbags, the White House would start screaming that we were keeping Mr. Reagan off the air when he was doing something for the people, and only showing him when he was attacking the media."

"Why couldn't you have done both? First you could have shown the President talking about South Suckotash, and then you could have used the film of him saving Fort Wayne from going under water. It would have portrayed Mr. Reagan as first in war, first in peace and first in the hearts of his countrymen."

Durham said, "That's what we finally decided to do. But then we followed it with a story about an unemployed steelworker in Gary, Ind., and the White House raised the roof. They wanted to know what the President passing sandbags out in Fort Wayne had to do with unemployment in Gary."

"They had a point. Mr. Reagan was trying to stop an act of God, and you were trying to dramatize a manmade calamity for which the Democrats are responsible."

"Maybe we made a mistake in news judgment. We should have devoted the whole program to President

Computer In Classrooms

By MAXWELL GLEN and CODY SHEARER
WASHINGTON — Steven Jobs is again grabbing headlines, this time with an offer to put a personal computer — free of charge — in each of America's 75,000 public elementary and secondary schools.

The 27-year-old co-founder of Apple Computer, Inc., says he wants to help schools address a nagging "computer illiteracy" problem among young Americans. He's even willing to give up $200-to-$300 million worth of new "Apple II's," each with a retail value of about $2,495.

There's a small catch, of course. Jobs wants Congress to give his company — or any other so interested — a charitable tax deduction of up to 30 percent for the donation of high-tech equipment to public schools. With the inevitable promotional gain, Apple (which had $39.4 million in net earnings last year on sales of $335 million) would probably end up ahead.

Though congressmen clamor about deficits, many aren't distracted by the $20-to-$30 million in potential Treasury losses resulting from the so-called "Technology Act of 1982." At last count, 43 House members had signed their names to the legislation. Given reductions in federal aid to education and scientific research, some sponsors believe Apple's apparent altruism is the sort of corporate behavior that needs to be encouraged.

Others will simply endorse any measure designed to counter the threat from America's high-technology competitors. As "Zero Sum" economist Lester C. Thurow of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology suggests, Japanese products are better engineered than our own because Japan's schools churn out twice as many engineers as their U.S. counterparts.

"We're having a big problem getting kids to study math and science," contends Rep. Fortney H. Stark (D-Calif.), a leading co-sponsor of the "Apple bill." "If a tax break helps to stimulate interest in technology and technical education then it's a good investment."

Indeed, relatively few school districts have made much effort to integrate high technology into their curricula. According to a survey published last year by the National Center for Educational Statistics, only one in four public schools keeps a micro-computer for instructional use by students; nearly one in five lacks access to computers of any sort.

Meanwhile, says Andrew R. Molnar, a program director at the National Science Foundation here, Great Britain plans to have equipped each of its schools with a micro-computer by the end of this year. The Japanese and French, among others, have also made a national policy of computer education.

Unfortunately, Steven Jobs' offer to put an "Apple" in every U.S. elementary and secondary school doesn't begin to address two peculiarly American problems: a shortage of competent math and science teachers at every educational level and the outdated nature of math and science curricula.

On March 11 the National Science Teachers' Association reported that over half the nation's high school math and science teachers are unqualified to teach their subjects. At least 69 percent, the organization discovered, had apparently never even attended a computer workshop.

Moreover, as computers are promoted at the pre-college level, machines will effectively eliminate much of the basic addition and subtraction drudgery, forcing teachers to devote more time to the meaning and practical uses of numbers. Problem-solving, concedes Richard Anderson of the Council of Scientific Society Presidents, has been woefully neglected over the years.

Stark and his fellow congressional computer buffs may require Apple — if the company doesn't volunteer — to provide teacher training in return for any favors on the tax side. According to a House Ways and Means Committee aide, there's also a chance that provisions may be included in the Apple bill for donations to high-tech teacher training at the college level.

Without adequate preparation, however, we're fooling ourselves to think computers alone are the simple answer to more high-minded foreign competitors. Jobs' "Apple giveaway" smells of a pork barrel as long as the U.S. lacks a coherent education policy programmed for the computer age.

And remember, Steve: There's no point in "putting a chicken in every pot" when no one knows how to cook it.

Try Competition

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — Competition is wonderful and productive. Southern states fighting one another for industrial and economic growth have forced change in the region.

Schools have been improved. Communities tightened belts to provide water and sewer services. The image of sleepy conservatism is gone. Modern highways, buildings and aggressive state and local governments have replaced the old ways.

The South has now pretty much overcome more than a century of repression and seems on course to claim its birthright of an economy on par with the rest of the nation.

Competition played a major part on that progress.

But there comes a time when cooperation can produce more than does competition. That time is now at hand for the South a number of economic thinkers now believe.

Florida Gov. Bob Graham has coined the phrase: "Southern Common Market."

Region

Tar Heel Banker Thomas I. Storrs takes up that notion in an essay in the March issue of "We the People of North Carolina," and suggests that, "The prospects for continued economic growth can be most directly affected by region-wide industrial development efforts."

Storrs, chairman of NCNB Corp. in Charlotte, told the statewide Association of Chamber of Commerce Executives at their annual meeting that it is time to take stock of particular growth advantages and offerings in communities throughout the South, with a unified effort to help locate in those areas best suited for them those growth factors which would benefit not just that specific community, but the entire region.

"Many industries in the South have depended on low-cost labor because of narrow profit margins and lack of technology. Although they remain vital to the region's economy, they account for a decreasing proportion of the area's manufacturing employment. They are also responding to the need to develop new technology and provide higher wages," Storrs said.

With the decline of the small farm, agricultural employment is also declining and "it is non-farm employment that keeps the economics of the small towns and rural areas going," he said.

Low taxes, wages, cost-of-living, energy costs, and the good life have brought growth. Changing times threaten to slow that growth.

Thus, communities working across the state lines and across region boundaries to help locate firms in the South wherever it would best serve both the firm and the entire region holds promise, Storrs believes.

Targets

One approach which Storrs finds promising would be for target industries to be picked out. Specific industrial operations can be identified, and specific areas researched in which conditions such as labor supply, transit and so forth are best suited. This is akin to North Caro-

To the editor:

The recent article about the House Station inadvertently left out recognition of the Junior Woman's Club for their donations for the plaques. The Greenville Area Preservation Association would like to thank them for their generous donations for the historic plaques which will be placed on the specially designated buildings, one of the first being the House Station. These plaques will identify the ages and the owners of the buildings. It is one of the methods used across the nation to help citizens become aware of their local heritage and the beauty of those older buildings which help give a community identity and charm.

The Greenville Preservation Association is a non-profit organization open to all interested citizens who would like to foster historic preservation. The support given to this project by the Junior Woman's Club is greatly appreciated by the association as it demonstrates the community's interest and concern.

Strength For Today

ENDURING BLIZZARDS
When a blizzard sweeps over arctic regions, the Eskimos retire to their rude huts, but they leave their sled dogs out in the open, taking the cutting gales and the torrents of ice and sleet.

This at first sight seems to be a cruel procedure, but it is not. Eskimos have learned through the centuries that these dogs stay healthy only when they are exposed to the worst of weather inclemencies. Brought under cover and coddled to the slightest degree, they sometimes contract disease and usually lapse into uselessness.

Are the outstanding people we have known usually been those for whom life has been easy? Quite the contrary. Usually they are those who have had to endure the slings and arrows of outrageous fortune. The blinding storm, the cutting, cruel winds of the hurricane strengthen them and give them real power.

Even our Lord Jesus learned obedience by the things that he suffered. — Elisha Douglass

Recovery Time Is Postponed

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — It is almost official now: The economy isn't likely to move ahead strongly in the second half of the year. Old hopes of a lively recovery are being abandoned, even by the Reagan administration.

Recovery "will not be as strong as generally hoped," said Lawrence Kudlow, associate director of the Office of Management and Budget. But, he told reporters last week, "this does not preclude a recovery."

Neither, he said, did it represent "any change" in estimates, a statement that can best be understood by remembering that no economist of any stripe, especially political, likes to be called inconsistent.

It does, of course, represent a change, from optimism to resignation — at least for the short term. It is a concession to reality, similar to that made several weeks ago by automakers who admitted they still can't sell cars. It is recognition that the game plan may have to be changed.

In the financial community, where great sympathy seems to exist for the broad thrust of President Reagan's program — shrinking government, lowering taxes, deregulating business — they hold budget deficits responsible.

Those deficits, they say, lessen confidence in the program, and the lowered confidence is expressed by interest rates, which remain several points higher than historic spreads between money and inflation rates.

Many economists in the financial markets are convinced the president now has no choice but to negotiate changes in the budget, most likely by lowering some defense expenditures, and possibly by reducing, though certainly not eliminating, Social Security cost-of-living increases.

They are not convinced that the upcoming tax cut will lift the economy out of recession. "That's a riverboat gamble," says Edward Yardeni, chief economist of E.F. Hutton. Several factors can offset it, he says.

Most economists seem to agree that any recovery this year will almost certainly have to be led by advances in consumer spending. But Yardeni points out that many workers now are being asked to take wage cuts.

Moreover, while people are said to be rebuilding cash reserves, they seem far from being in a position to buy. Yardeni notes that savings fizzled in February, dropping $5.7 billion to $103 billion in one month. The drop wasn't because people went out and spent either. In all likelihood they simply were unable to save, tax incentives or not.

Everyone agrees that lower interest rates would help, but getting them is another matter. Treasury Secretary Donald Regan recently pleaded with Wall Streeters to lower rates, almost accusing them by inference of a conspiracy to keep rates high. It was a measure of frustration.

Meanwhile, those rates are having a devastating impact on businesses. Major corporations are usually illiquid. Many smaller companies are dangerously so. Business failures are 50 percent higher than a year ago, and the combined recession-high interest rates are major factors.

Ironically, the president less than a month ago said small business would lead the economic recovery. "For me," he said, "small business is the heart and soul of our free enterprise system."

Most of those business failures, however, are among companies with fewer than 500 workers, which the Small Business Administration classifies as small.

Earlier this month in an executive summary of "The State of Small Business," the SBA commented that the historic vitality of small business has been severely tested. It reported to the President:

"Bankruptcies and business failures have risen almost 30 percent in the last two years.

"Inflation of the past decade has made it difficult for small firms to replace assets and to continue to hold inventories without excessive borrowing.

"High interest rates have exacerbated the risks in borrowing."

Hardly an encouraging set of observations for the heart and soul of free enterprise, which the administration hopes will lead the economy into the promised economic land.

Time is needed, the administration says. Time for the impact of lower inflation to be realized. Time for society to adjust to new economics. Time for savings to be rebuilt. Time for interest rates to come down.

In keeping with that revered law of supply and demand, however, time right now probably has the most expensive price of all. The demand, that is to say, is great, but the supply may be running out.

stage and a stage area four times larger than previously.

The theater's computerized lighting control system is the most sophisticated model available, and has only a few counterparts in the U.S.

The dedication occurs on the third day of the scheduled run of "Show Boat," the first ECU Playhouse production to be staged in the renovated facility. The popular musical show is directed by Edgar R. Loessin, who chairs the ECU Department of Drama and Speech, and features 65 actors, singers and dancers and 10 complete set changes.

The original wing of what is now the Theater Arts Center was built in 1927. An addition, which included the theater, was added during the Messick presidency, and was shared by the campus Playhouse and the laboratory school for more than a decade.

The dedication ceremony will begin with a prayer delivered by former ECU Vice Chancellor, Robert Holt and include music performed by soprano Beth Marshburn Bell and pianist Susan Dermid Roberts.

Welcoming remarks will be given by ECU Interim Chancellor John Howell. Other speakers will be Loessin and Charles Ritchie Blake, an assistant to the chancellor.

The new Messick portrait, the work of Wilmington artist Dot Daughtry, will be unveiled by 5-year-old Sandra Jennings Willets, Messick's great-granddaughter, and accepted by ECU Trustee Chairman Ashley Futrell.

Now a resident of Wilmington, Messick came to what was then East Carolina Teachers College in 1947. He had previously held deanships at Elon College and Montclair State College, New Jersey.

During Messick's term of office (1947-1960), the institution's name was changed from East Carolina Teachers College to East Carolina College, reflecting the considerable growth in size and diversity which occurred under his leadership.

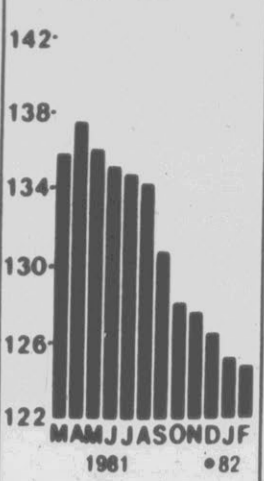

After his resignation from the East Carolina presidency, Dr. Messick continued his career in leadership positions with the National Committee on Special Education and Rehabilitation, Vermont State College and the developing of Oral Roberts University in Tulsa, Okla.

Among his achievements as ORU's executive vice president was securing a half million dollars from the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare for an educational electronics dial access system which has continued to expand with advances in computer technology. The huge building which houses ORU's library, medical school, graduate school and other academic units was named for Dr. Messick in 1967, shortly before his retirement at the age of 71.

lina's current budding efforts in microelectronics. The research and development segment is now being recruited, concentrated in the Research Triangle Park area. The hope is that existence of that phase will trigger expanded manufacturing operations which want to be close to research activity, but will locate elsewhere in the state to take advantage of peculiar opportunities different from those in the Research Triangle Park.

"Struggling areas will need cooperative arrangements among themselves and with more prosperous neighbors" to cope with changed economic conditions and the new roles of state, local, and federal governments, Storrs said. The framework for such cooperative ventures exist within the Southern Governor's Conference and the Southern Growth Policies Board, he added.

BOARD MEETING

Sweet Hope Free Will Baptist Church will hold a board meeting for men of the church Friday. The Rev. W.J. Best, pastor, said the meeting will begin at 6 p.m.

will be followed that evening by a "gala grand opening" of the center. Drama alumni and patrons of previous ECU Summer Theater and Playhouse seasons will attend the "Show Boat" performance and reception afterward at the Chancellor's Residence.

State Prison Alternatives

BLOWING ROCK, N.C. (AP) — Alternatives not now available from state legislation are needed if judges are to reduce long prison sentences which crowd prisons and sometimes hone criminal skills, judges say.

At a conference on criminal sentencing Friday, the judges said they want alternatives to imposing lengthy prison sentences and crowding state facilities.

State Court of Appeals Judge Willis P. Whichard, chairman of the Citizens Commission on Alternatives which is seeking ways to overcome a predicted fiscal crisis in the state's penal system, says the most serious cost is the loss of young, first-time offenders to the prison mentality.

"We incarcerate many a petty thief and ultimately release a professional one," he said.

Prison officials say a recent study shows that 29 percent of male adult felons released from prison return with new felony convictions in two years.

Whichard said 76 percent of the 1980 prison admissions were "for crimes that did not involve physical violence or harm to other people." He said those inmates are candidates for alternatives to prison.

It costs $8,500 to house an inmate for a year, Whichard said. Considering the current cost of $4,000 per cell to build new prisons and the loss of tax revenue by removing a prisoner from the labor force, Whichard said society is unable to withstand the cost of incarceration.

North Carolina leads the nation in its incarceration rate and state corrections officials say facilities designed to hold 14,888 inmates now hold 16,734.

Prison admissions increased slightly since 1971, but the prison terms appear to be longer. In the past 10 years, the percentage of the prison population serving sentences of five years or more has risen from 10 to 30 percent.

Among possible alternatives, Whichard suggested restitution, expanded use of probation, deferred and suspended sentencing and greater use of fines as strategies to lower the prison population.

Deep Diving Projects Postponed

By F. ALAN BOYCE
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Duke University's experimental deep-diving series has stalled while scientists study concentration and memory problems suffered by a diver who participated in last year's record-setting dive.

"One of the three divers experienced a concentration problem and some memory loss about five weeks after the dive ended," said Dr. Peter Bennett, director of the F.G. Hall Laboratory where the Atlantis series experiments have been conducted.

In Atlantis III, conducted over 43 days beginning Jan. 23, 1981, Len Whitlock, of Vero Beach, Fla., Steve Porter of Cortez, Colo., and Erik Kramer, of Williamsburg, Va., were subjected to pressures simulating underwater depths 2,250 feet below sea level.

During the experiments, a gas mixture under high pressure is pumped into a chamber to simulate conditions experienced by underwater divers.

Researchers have tentatively pushed back Atlantis IV's April 6 starting date until next fall to allow scientists to determine if the problem is connected with experimental conditions, Bennett said. Atlantis IV is intended to reach the same level.

In a recent telephone interview from his Durham office, Bennett said reports of the problem sparked rumors that other deep divers might be similarly affected. He called such rumors "quite incorrect."

The divers, using a mixture of helium, oxygen and nitrogen called TRIMIX, were able to avoid symptoms of high pressure nervous syndrome that plagued earlier divers. Those symptoms include nausea, dizziness and tremors that often prevent divers from working at extreme depths.

Bennett declined to say which diver had difficulties following the dive, saying only that he was the least affected by problems during the experiment.

"He is currently functioning quite well in a middle management position," Bennett added.

All three divers were subjected to neurological and psychiatric workups after the trouble surfaced, but only one showed the symptoms, he said.

"We were uncertain whether there was any organic cause of the symptoms," Bennett said. "But so far, we have found no physiopathology we could connect to the dive."

He said testing was done by the Bowman Gray Medical Center in Winston-Salem to avoid any suggestion of bias that might be associated with testing at Duke University Medical Center.

"We are having various other tests done of a very sensitive nature to see if there is any organic lesion in this individual," Bennett said.

Meanwhile, he said, queries to researchers in Norway, England and France showed no evidence of similar symptoms among some 100 divers subjected to depths in excess of 1,000 feet.

That dive, to be conducted with a TRIMIX variation using less nitrogen than previous experiments, was scheduled to include underwater testing of a new Swiss breathing device.

If the device can be used successfully with the thick gaseous mixtures formed under extreme pressure, Bennett said it could help open up the ocean's food and mineral resources.

Housing Money Said Misused

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — The Greensboro Housing Authority Board of Commissioners will meet in "emergency session" today at noon to discuss charges that federal money in the agency's budget has been misused, officials said Tuesday.

A federal housing official said the allegations apparently involve Village Green, an apartment complex for the elderly in south Greensboro. It is operated by the GHA board as a separate, non-profit corporation and receives no federal funds.

"I understand (from GHA officials) that Village Green may be involved," said Robert W. Fields, a deputy director of the local office of the United States Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Fields is the HUD official who works most closely with the GHA, which operates about 3,500 subsidized public housing units for low-income, elderly and handicapped residents.

GHA board Chairman James T. Isler said Saturday the allegations of impropriety were made by a mid-level GHA employee who said federal money had been spent for non-federal purposes. He would not say whether the charges involve Village Green, but did say Village Green is the GHA's only non-federal, non-subsidized housing project.

Fields said agents from HUD's Office of Investigations in Atlanta may get involved in the case later, but added, "We're trying to let Mr. Isler and the other board members take care of it for now."

The GHA board met last Thursday in closed session and hired Peat Marwick Mitchell and Co., an accounting firm, to audit the authority's books. The auditors are expected to report this week to Isler findings from a preliminary survey of GHA financial records.

Fields said that if federal money designed for public housing subsidies has been spent on other purposes, HUD would require that the money be paid back.

Wind Gusts 'Havoc' To Paratroopers

By BRIAN R. BLAND
Associated Press Writer
FORT IRWIN, Calif. (AP) — A paratrooper whose pelvis was broken in a huge airborne military exercise that left four dead and 71 injured says a gust of wind hit him about 50 feet above the California desert, snarling the straps of his parachute.

"I hit the ground, rolled about three times and started to pass out," said Army Spec. 4 Danile Maynard, 24, of New York City, one of 2,300 soldiers who took part Tuesday in the first exercise of units of the Rapid Deployment Force from all four military services.

The jump was one of the largest ever in peacetime U.S. military history. Three of the injured paratroopers were reported in critical condition with head injuries at Loma Linda University Medical Center, 60 miles from the jump site. Three other soldiers were hospitalized there and five were at other hospitals.

Li. Gen. Robert C. Kingston, commander of the Rapid Deployment Joint Task Force, said the exercise was conducted in winds varying from 6 to 10 knots. He said 13 knots, about 15 mph, is considered the maximum allowable wind velocity in peacetime training exercises such as Gallant Eagle 82.

Deputy San Bernardino County Coroner Marshall Franey said Tuesday that an external examination of the four bodies showed the men "appeared to have died of head or neck injuries," and one had a fractured arm and leg.

"We won't know the exact cause of death until autopsies are completed, but the injuries suggest they were dragged by their parachutes," he said, referring to all four victims. Asked about reports that two parachutes had malfunctioned, he repeated that the cause of the deaths was still uncertain.

Kingston said, "One soldier apparently was dragged." Two paratroopers were killed after their parachutes malfunctioned and the fourth landed on a piece of heavy equipment, officials said.

The 2,300 paratroopers, members of the 82nd Airborne Division from Fort Bragg, N.C., jumped from C-141 jets 800 feet above the Mojave Desert just after dawn Tuesday.

Late Tuesday, two C-130 cargo planes took 60 injured paratroopers to Norton Air Force Base in San Bernardino, where they were loaded onto a C-141 Starlifter for a flight back to Fort Bragg.

Maynard, speaking from his bed at Loma Linda hospital, said the jump had been called off once as the planes approached the drop zones after authorities estimated winds were gusting to 45 mph on the ground. But shortly afterward the soldiers were told the jump was on.

Maynard said the troops expressed no concern about the wind and wished one another luck as their plane flew toward the target area. "On the plane they told us it (the wind) was only 4 to 6 knots," said James Davis, 19, of High Point, N.C., who was hospitalized with groin and back injuries at Loma Linda. Davis said when he jumped he found himself wrestling with what he estimated was a 35 knot, or 40 mph, wind.

"My feet hit first, then my rear end, then my head," Davis said. The wind caught the chute, and Davis estimated he was dragged three-quarters of a mile over rocks and plants before the wind died.

As he slid across the ground, Davis said he saw other men in his unit being dragged across the rugged terrain and trying to control their parachute canopies.

Other jumpers were more successful.

"The wind wasn't that bad — I made a pretty good landing," said Pvt. Elliot Skillern, 18, of Houston. Several other troopers also said the wind didn't seem particularly strong.

Names of the dead were withheld until relatives could be notified.

Despite the deaths, Kingston said the jump was successful.

"I was pleased that we were able to get — eventually — all the heavy drop and personnel drop in," Kingston said.

Officials said it could take a month to determine the causes of the accidents. The chutes of two men failed to deploy fully and became what soldiers call "streamers," said Navy Cmdr. Milton Baker.

Another man died when he landed on a heavy piece of equipment that had just been dropped by parachute. The paratroopers were instructed to use a "pop-and-run" procedure when they hit the ground, said Lt. Col. Ron Johnston. In that procedure, a quick-release device used to prevent a soldier being dragged by the giant T-10 chutes.

Johnston told reporters Monday that, on an average jump, a 1 percent injury rate was expected. Lt. Col. Patrick Cannon said the 82nd, which engages in many jumps each year, had averaged between one and two fatalities a year for the past 10 years.

Hunt Honored By Association

THE DISTINGUISHED SERVICE AWARD... of the NC Association of Sheltered Workshops was presented to Gov. Jim Hunt during a recent meeting attended by Dan LeRoux (right), director of the Eastern Carolina Vocational Center here and a member of the board of directors of the association.

Gov. Jim Hunt has been honored by the North Carolina Association of Sheltered Workshops with its 1981 Distinguished Service Award.

The DSA is given to a person who has had a statewide influence on services to the handicapped and is not given on a regular or annual basis. The

$5,500 In A Tool Box

LEE'S SUMMIT, Mo. (AP) — Only one person was more surprised than Charles Dunn after he opened a $15 toolbox and found $5,500 inside.

That was the 64-year-old widow who lost the cash. "When I gave her the money, she was halfway between laughing and crying," said Dunn, 37. "She couldn't even count it she was so nervous."

Dunn said that as he was cleaning out the tool box that he bought at a garage sale last week, he found the money, mostly in $100 bills, wedged under tin plates.

"The first thing that came through my mind was that legally, it's my money, but morally it's not," he said.

The Western Electric Co. employee said his family goes to garage sales and swap shops because "we don't have the money to buy all the things we need."

"It's a good lesson to my son," he said. "If a parent can't be honest, how can they expect their children to be honest?"

The woman, who asked that she not be identified, said the toolbox belonged to her husband, who died four years ago. She said she probably would spend some of the money to fix her car.

"It did something to me to know there is an honest person left," she said. "There aren't too many of them."

son's advertisement. "I didn't have the slightest idea he was doing it. He has got a mind of his own."

association cited Hunt's support of the International Year of the Disabled Person, the streamlining of the Advocacy Council to make it more effective, the approach to the handicapped through the Governor's Office of Citizen's Affairs as depicted in the summer 1981 issue of "Vision" magazine, the priority given to handicapped services in the state budget, the governor's efforts to attract new industries to the state, and his support of the state building code to open local codes to group homes.

NCASW President Pete Rice, in the presentation of the award, also cited Hunt's effort to recruit handicapped persons for state government positions; the elimination from the state employment application of the question about an applicant's disabilities, and his efforts to make state buildings physically accessible to the handicapped.

Accepting the award, Hunt said, "Last year, because of sheltered workshops, 700 handicapped North Carolinians became working, tax-paying citizens. Their annual earnings were more than three times the cost of their rehabilitation."

He said he accepted the award "on behalf of the thousands of dedicated health professionals, business people and volunteers who have given so much to North Carolina and to our citizens with physical and mental handicaps."

NCASW is a statewide non-profit organization of 75 sheltered workshops and adult developmental activity programs designed to rehabilitate and promote employment for the mentally and physically handicapped.

WINTERVILLE — Dr. Steven Cohen will lecture on aspects of holistic health care Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at the Family Chiropractic Health and Accident Services office. Included in the lecture will be proper health care patterns related to food, exercise and rest.

Bundy Schedule Is Announced

State Rep. Sam D. Bundy will attend meetings of the Advisory Budget Commission and the State Board of Awards Friday and will speak at the TPA annual ladies' night banquet in Kinston that evening at 7 p.m.

Saturday at 1 p.m. he will address the Pitt County Democratic Convention in Greenville.

Advertises His Father's Virtues

ATLANTA (AP) — For 15 years, Buck LeCraw has been trying to tell folks around here that his dad is great.

This year, he pulled out all the stops: he took out a quarter-page advertisement in both local newspapers.

But LeCraw said he never thought of asking his 86-year-old father's permission.

"He'd kill me," quipped the son of former Atlanta Mayor Roy LeCraw.

Every year since 1966, the younger LeCraw has nominated his father for the "Shining Light" award, given annually by a local radio station for outstanding citizenship.

"I decided it was time to take a bolder approach to something I've been trying to accomplish for 15 years," the younger LeCraw said Tuesday of his quarter-page ads in Monday's editions of The Atlanta Journal and The Atlanta Constitution. The ads cost him $1,522.80.

Mike Faherty, general manager of radio station WSB said he was not certain there would be a "Shining Light" award this year.

But, he added, "I would think that if we do the award this year, we now have our first nominee."

Roy LeCraw was Atlanta mayor in 1940 and 1941 before resigning in midterm to fight in World War II. He also was president of the Chamber of Commerce in the 1930s and served a term in the Georgia Senate. For the past 25 years, he has practiced law in Atlanta and has served as a lay missionary for the Presbyterian Church in the Far East.

His son, 61, asserted in his ad that the elder LeCraw is an "outstanding churchman and church statesman" and an "outstandingly successful" businessman.

The ad also said Roy LeCraw is "an outstandingly successful father and family man," having raised five sons who became Eagle Scouts and graduated from Georgia Tech.

The elder LeCraw said he would appreciate the award if he won it, but understands there are "lots of other men that deserve it."

"I don't have any desire to be played up so much," he said when asked about his

The Council was formed in 1954 and since that time has awarded grants to 413 scientists in 264 hospitals, medical schools and research institutions.

Some Changes Are Proposed In Auto Insurance Regulation

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Changes proposed Tuesday by state legislative study panel leaders would reward drivers with clear records and give the state's Rate Bureau a wider range in which to classify drivers.

The changes are aimed at allowing lower rates for safe drivers by the establishment of a new Safe Driver Reward Plan.

It would reward drivers with clear records by giving them auto-liability insurance rates below an established base rate. Those currently facing surcharges for moving violations or accidents in which they were charged would continue to do so, added to the base rate.

The Rate Bureau can now classify drivers in four categories, based on use of the auto. The categories are personal use, to commute to work, for business or farm purposes.

Insurance Commissioner John Ingram could not be reached for comment on the proposed changes, but the general manager of the Rate Bureau said he favors a plan that would broaden the classification for drivers.

However, Paul Mize said he is unsure about the proposal to provide safe driver incentives.

"I do feel like a broader classification plan might be helpful and a good idea," Mize said. "As to lower rates for safe drivers, most drivers have clean driving records. If they work out a way to lower rates for one group, they'll have to raise someone else's rates to offset it."

He said more rate classes are needed, and urged legislators to reconsider their decision banning classifications based on age or sex.

"Certainly the age criteria ought to be included, but that's a matter for the Legislature to call the shots on," he said.

If accepted by the legislature's Insurance Laws Study Committee, the proposals would go to the General Assembly at its next scheduled session in June.

The study commission has put off decisions on proposals for making a major overhaul of the state's insurance regulatory system until after the June session. It will make its recommendations for the 1983 Legislature.

"These are more or less first steps toward really more substantial changes, controversial changes, which will come later," said Sen. Bob Wynne, D-Wake, co-chairman of the committee.

Wynne offered the series of insurance-law changes, along with Rep. Mary Seymour, D-Guilford, the other co-chairman. Only half the committee's 10 members were present for the meeting, and Wynne scheduled a vote at the next meeting, probably late next month.

Fishermen Know Smuggling Pays

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Some fishermen sailing south along North Carolina's coastline are being lured by the big money involved in drug smuggling, according to law enforcement officials and another fisherman.

"They're (the fishermen) trying to make a dollar and they'll do it any way they can," one fisherman from Hobucken said in an interview with the New Bern Sun Journal. "Everybody knows the risk. When they talk about the ones who got caught they say they should have known better."

The fisherman said as many as 50 percent of the fishermen may be involved, although many reject the offers.

"The big guys from out of state or Raleigh or Durham furnish them with money to buy the marijuana," the fisherman told the newspaper. "Then they say they'll give them a third when they return with it, but most never get it. They're promised good money and they get good wages, if you know what I mean."

Don Young of the Federal Drug Administration office in Wilmington said smugglers often use local fishermen, offering them as much as $50,000 to $60,000, because they have boats and know how to navigate remote waters.

"It takes a lot to turn that kind of money down," Young said.

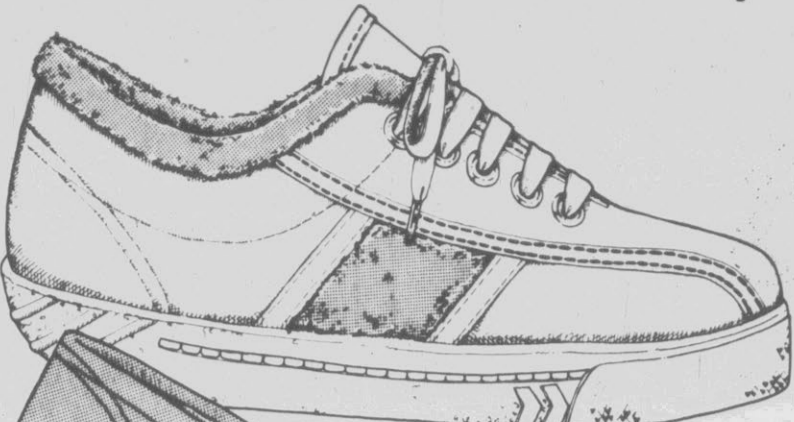

The numerous little creeks and rivers along the coast are the main reason drug agents have trouble making arrests.

"There are so many places for them to unload," said Pamlico Sheriff Leland Brinson. "We figure there are about 40 good off-loading sites in Pamlico. They are remote and hard to get to."

Pamlico County has long been a smugglers' haven, and in January 1976, federal agents descended on the tiny town of Mescic, where they confiscated more than 22 tons of marijuana. At the time, that was the largest pot haul ever made by law-enforcement agents in North Carolina.

Loan Approved For Fire Dept.

Rep. Walter Jones, D-N.C., has announced the approval of a Farmers Home Administration loan of $20,000 to Simpson Rural Fire Department Inc.

Jones said the funds will be used to replace an old water wagon with a new 1,500-gallon capacity tanker truck. The department is providing $17,000 of its own funding, the congressman said.

According to Jones, a total of 640 rural residents will benefit from the project upon completion. Terms of the loan are 20 years at 11.37 percent interest.

The Biggest Chicken In New York City Is Moving To Your Area.

This is your opportunity to grow with Perdue, the best-selling broiler in the Northeast. 1400 farmers from Dover, Delaware to Ahoskie, North Carolina now grow with Perdue Farms, Inc. For some, Perdue provides a good steady second income. Others depend on Perdue for their livelihood. But all agree that raising Perdue chickens is a good investment. And now, because of the increasing demand for Perdue products in the busy markets of Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York, Boston, and points in between, we need more broiler producers. And this is your chance to join 1400 other smart agribusinessmen and women in the profitable Perdue program. As a Perdue producer, you can earn over $20,000 annually. Our newest broiler houses are producing larger, healthier flocks than ever before. And since feeding, watering and ventilation are all semi-automated, you can grow profitable flocks by spending only a few hours each day. And by doing your job conscientiously and utilizing the services of your Perdue route supervisor, you can earn a gross annual income of over $20,000. And since it only requires a few hours, you can use the rest of the day to tend to your other farming operations. Or you might want to make Perdue your primary operation, by owning two or more broiler houses. You can do this because each house has the same high potential income. People know a good chicken when they eat one. That's why Perdue Farms has been growing for 62 years. In fact, the amount of Perdue chickens sold in the last four years has more than doubled. It is this increasing demand for our high quality products that make growing with Perdue a very smart investment.

Dirtier Air Said Result

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A spokesman for the Conservation Council of North Carolina says the adoption of proposed relaxed air pollution limits for the state's 44 coal-burning power plants will mean dirtier air.

On Tuesday, Council spokesman John Runkle told members of the Environmental Management Commission during a hearing that the relaxed limits amount to "telling utilities they can pollute as much as they want to."

The regulations under discussion included proposed higher limits for fly ash and a plan to allow utilities a three-month grace period if they exceed the limits.

If adopted, the state could cite a plant for emission violation only if the plant violates its emission limit for more than 90 days, providing it is not being started up or shut down, Runkle said.

Runkle says the grace period would allow a plant to exceed the emission limits practically all year, using a succession of grace periods, without threat of a fine.

Spokesmen for Duke Power Co. and Carolina Power & Light Co., which operate the plants, praised the proposals. Company spokesmen say the standards would save them hundreds of millions of dollars on extra pollution control devices that might not work.

Both companies claim the relaxed limits were justified because they still would keep fly ash emissions below federal health standards.

The commission is expected to decide in June whether to adopt the proposed rules.

State Increases Interest Rate

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State Treasurer Harlan E. Boyles has announced that effective Tuesday the rate of interest charged to banks and savings and loan associations for state funds invested in certificates of deposit and savings certificates was increased from 13 3/4 percent to 14 1/2 percent.

Boyles said the change reflects an increase in interest rates in the market for United States government and agency securities.

Rates charged by the state, by law, must not be less than those available in the marketplace on U.S. government and agency

Man Arrested For Exposure

Kenneth Ray Phillips, 23, of Winterville was charged with indecent exposure following investigation of an incident in the parking lot of Planters National Bank at Pitt Plaza about 3 p.m. Tuesday.

Chief Glenn Cannon said

Phillips allegedly exposed himself to Pam Welborn of Glendale Court Apartments after he walked up to a car in which she was seated and opened his coat.

Police took Phillips into custody a short time later at the intersection of Greenville

Boulevard and Red Banks Road. He was jailed under a $2,000 bond pending a hearing of the case in court.

Guerrillas Of El Salvador Underwent A Bad Week

By JOE FRAZIER
Associated Press Writer
SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — The massive turnout in El Salvador's elections appears to be a stiff repudiation of the leftist guerrilla alternative to the present government.

But the right-wing swerve the country seems to be taking may also mean recent reforms will be scrapped, swelling rebel ranks.

Moderates say they hope the radical left will take note of the turnout as a sign that guerrillas should reevaluate their support. In this and other ways it has been a bad week for rebels in the Central American country.

Attacks on most polling stations were repulsed in Sunday's voting. Voters dodged bombs, bullets and rebel roadblocks to stand in long lines and cast ballots in what the government called the country's first clean election.

What appeared to be an all-out guerrilla attempt to cut the country in half and take control of the its fourth-largest city, Usulután, flourished for a few days but collapsed after government troops guarding polling places were free to move again. In general an intense guerrilla campaign of pleas and threats to boycott the elections failed.

Incomplete returns indicate more than 1 million of the 1.5 million eligible Salvadorans voted for members of a 60-seat constituent assembly, far beyond the most optimistic estimates. So many voters showed up at polling stations that officials in some precincts had to send for more ballots or open other stations to handle crowds.

Three-time Costa Rican President Jose Figueres, a prominent figure in the Latin American democratic movement of the 1940s and 50s, said Sunday before the vote was counted, "I don't know who won today but I know who lost. The guerrillas lost."

The constituent assembly will name an interim president, write a new constitution and schedule new elections. The centrist Christian Democrats and five right-wing parties entered candidates.

It was not the first time El Salvador's guerrillas have failed to mobilize a popular movement. In January 1981 they asked Salvadorans to unite in a revolt to support the leftists' "final offensive." But the people did not rise up, and the guerrillas suffered serious military reverses and loss of face.

The last time the radical left was able to mobilize the populace was during its call for a general strike in July of 1979.

U.S. and Salvadoran intelligence sources say the size of armed guerrilla forces has not grown beyond about 5,000, the same as last year.

For months the leftists threatened and pleaded with people not to vote, while refusing to take part in the elections themselves. They argued instead for a negotiated settlement in exchange for a share of the power. The ruling civilian-military junta refused to bargain.

Ironically, if leftists had not opposed the election and instead voted for the centrist Christian Democrats of President Jose Napoleon Duarte, his party might not be on the verge of defeat by an alliance of the five rightist parties.

The Christian Democrats have instituted reforms in banking, farming and other areas that have benefitted the poor and undercut guerrilla support. They say they fear a conservative government may reverse their programs and force more Salvadorans to join the guerrillas.

"If we're forced into the opposition then God help this country," said former mayor of San Salvador Julio Adolfo Rey Prendes, leader of the Christian Democrats' slate in the capital district.

Earlier he said the guerrillas could increase their ranks 100-fold if a conservative government reverses the reforms.

The party the ruling junta toppled in 1979, the National Conciliation Party, which ruled for 18 years, emerged Tuesday as the deciding force in a new alliance the five rightist parties want to form.

'Ambassador' To Travel To Spain This Summer

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer
Rose High junior Kipper Hair will travel to Spain next

June in the role of Greenville's 1982 Community Ambassador.

Kipper, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Allen Hair, was selected for the ambassadorship from a field of seven juniors who were candidates as the youth to represent Greenville during the summer months in a role going back a number of years. Funds to support the annual program are raised from the public through efforts of a Community Ambassador Committee.

"I'm really excited about going to Spain to represent my school and the Greenville community," Kipper said. "I love to travel and am looking forward to meeting my Spanish family."

Kipper, who has studied Spanish for three years at Rose, will spend three weeks as guests with a family in Spain. "After the three weeks with my family, I'll be traveling in Spain along with community ambassadors from other schools, other states," he explained.

Greenville's 1982 community ambassador says he loves travel. "I've been to Canada and Mexico, and traveled a lot in the U.S., but this will be my first trip overseas," he said.

Kipper is active in school and community affairs. He is president of the Pitt County Teen Democrats, and is first vice president of the state Teen Democrats. He is also a member of the Key Club, the Spanish Club and the Drama Club at Rose.

He mentions swimming, tennis, dancing, soccer and playing the piano as favorite activities, and is outreach director of a Sunday school class at Memorial Baptist Church.

"I feel honored that I've been chosen as community ambassador," Kipper said. "And I hope to come back to Greenville with some exciting things to report to people in the community."

Nancy Earns Applause From Gridiron Club

By MAUREEN SANTINI
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Nancy Reagan was nervous. Her speechwriter was worried. Her press secretary's head was throbbing. And her social secretary nearly burst into tears.

All of the first lady's staff members seemed to feel a personal stake in Mrs. Reagan's self-effacing performance at the annual Gridiron Club dinner Saturday night.

It was a rare chance for the first lady to disarm her critics by poking fun at herself. Mrs. Reagan's staff members, who have stood by helplessly for the past year while their boss was criticized for accepting free clothes and ordering new china, seemed to want her to succeed as much as she did herself.

After two standing ovations, they were elated.

"I had terrible throbbing pains in the back of my head and they were gone as soon as she was finished," said Mrs. Reagan's press secretary, Sheila Tate. "Everybody was so excited."

Even Mrs. Reagan, a former actress, "confessed she did get nervous," said Mrs. Tate.

White House speechwriter Landon Parvin fussed about whether the lyrics he had written with Mrs. Reagan's help were funny.

At the end of the act, the first lady's chief of staff, James S. Rosebush, bounded backstage. "And I said, 'Oh, Mrs. Reagan! That was so terrific!'" he recalled.

Mrs. Tate said social secretary Muffie Brandon "almost burst into tears" when she heard the applause.

To Mrs. Reagan's delight, her appearance surprised President Reagan as well as the Gridiron's 600 guests at the white-tie affair. The idea for the first lady's skit took form about 10 days ago when Mrs. Tate contacted Gridiron representatives to see if there would be room for Mrs. Reagan in the show that traditionally lampoons politicians.

Betty Ford and Rosalynn Carter, two former first ladies, were both well received when they appeared in Gridiron skits in past years.

Gridiron representatives suggested Mrs. Reagan sing a number mocking reporters, but the first lady declined, saying she wanted to make fun of herself, her staff said.

Her aides helped her assemble her outfit — a pair of yellow rubber boots borrowed from Mrs. Brandon's daughter, and a blue-flowered Hawaiian skirt loaned by her secretary's daughter. She added a red print blouse, long fake pearls, a white feather boa and a plumed hat that her staff had made for her last birthday as a joke.

Following a skit that accused her of paying too much attention to clothes, the first lady peeked out of a rack of clothes at an unsuspecting audience and burst into song to the tune of "Secondhand Rose."

"Secondhand clothes

I'm wearing secondhand clothes
They're all the thing in spring fashion shows
Even my new trench coat with fur collar

Ronnie bought for 10 cents on the dollar
The china is the only thing that's new Even though they tell me that I'm no longer queen

Did Ronnie have to buy me that new sewing machine
Secondhand clothes, secondhand clothes
I sure hope Ed Meese sews."

Then, she casually dropped a heavy plate, symbolic of her new White House china. She had practiced with paper plates and this heavy version didn't break. So Mrs. Reagan sang an encore and dropped the plate again, this time with such gusto that it shattered. The audience applauded.

"The feeling I got was that she really had fun and she was glad she did it," said Mrs. Tate. "And I think part of her fun was this idea that she was going to surprise the president."

Speechwriter Parvin, who also had helped Reagan prepare his remarks, worried that the president had no prepared reaction to his wife's Washington stage debut.

But Reagan took a few moments during dinner to pen his remarks for his introduction.
"I arrived as a happy

New Director Of Fiscal Study

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Thomas L. Covington, 43, of Raleigh, was named Tuesday as the new director of fiscal research for the North Carolina General Assembly, officials said.

John Allen, legislative services officer, said Covington was hired at a salary of $43,968. He will begin work April 1.

Covington's hiring was approved by the Legislative Services Commission, a panel of legislative leaders who serve as the principal housekeeping agency of the General Assembly.

Covington has been a management consultant since 1979 and earlier held positions with the Buncombe County government and Wake County Health Services Inc.

He replaces Frank Justice, who retired last year. He will head the Fiscal Research Division of the Legislature, which provides staff service to the appropriations and finance committees.

Brokers said traders appeared to be wary about making commitments before President Reagan's news conference tonight. The market was also confronted with concern about the economic outlook and the future direction of interest rates.

On Tuesday the government reported that the index of leading economic indicators dropped 0.3 percent in February for its 10th straight monthly decline. Champion International

Police Check 2 Collisions

An estimated $3,550 damage resulted from two traffic collisions investigated by Greenville police Tuesday. Officers said heaviest damage resulted from a 4:30 p.m. collision at the intersection of Memorial Drive and Maxwell Street, involving cars driven by Louise Waters Bullock of Ayden, Carolina Sanchez Perea of 207 Whittington Circle and Zelma Boyd Savage of 25 13 Dickinson Ave.

Damage from the collision was estimated at $900 to the Bullock car, $850 to the Perea vehicle and $200 to the Savage car. Officers charged Bonita Reece Plyler of Branch's Estates with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of a 7:11 p.m. collision at the intersection of Charles Street and Oakmont Drive.

Police said the Plyler car collided with an auto driven by Norman Felarca Cabacar of Route 1, Creswell, causing an estimated $800 damage to each of the two vehicles. Investigators reported that both drivers and a passenger in the Cabacar car were injured.

Demands Blood In Traffic Fine

MIAMI (AP) — A traffic judge is asking for more than just money from some offenders: He's asking for blood. Dade County Judge Harvey Baxter is allowing the culprits to donate blood as a way of reducing their fines.

"The day is over when drivers can let tickets stack up to the ceiling and forget about them," said Baxter, who has earned a reputation for cracking down on persistent offenders. The donations began Monday as seven motorists chose to give blood. "I didn't think he'd ask me," said William Radley, a tree cutter who owed $250 after a drunken driving conviction. Radley had the cash to pay the fine, but quickly said "yes" when offered the chance to reduce the fine by $80 for donating blood.

"We don't let anyone beat the system anymore," Baxter said. "If they can't pay a fine, we'll let them do something that will benefit the community." The blood donations are the latest move in the judge's continuing war against chronic traffic offenders. It began last summer when he started sending out county deputies to arrest "scofflaws" in their offices and homes for failing to heed court summonses.

In the fall, he began levying record fines of $1,500 and more against those who persistently ignored traffic and parking citations. By the end of 1981, Dade County had taken in $8.7 million in such fines. In December, Baxter began offering offenders the chance for social service options, such as working at an animal shelter or in the courthouse maintenance work pool.

If the offenders elect to work for the county, their fines are reduced at the rate of $5 an hour. Last week, a police officer told the judge about the need for blood at area blood banks. Baxter issued a memo Thursday outlining the procedure for motorists.

Baxter, one of 14 county traffic judges, speaks both English and Spanish. His style blends the seriousness of the judiciary with the fast-talking pitch of a street vendor. In court Monday, Baxter had a typical exchange with one of his defendants. "How much did you bring with you?" he asked William Johnson, who had just pleaded guilty to driving without a license. "There are no free rides." "I didn't bring no money," Johnson protested. "I was robbed Saturday." "What did you think I was going to do today, serve milk and cookies?" the judge asked. Johnson took a sentence of 45 hours work in the clerk's office. Monday evening he was one of five "volunteers" stuffing court notice envelopes.

Stripped Of His Citizenship

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A 59-year-old immigrant who ran a motel in Fort Lauderdale has been stripped of his citizenship after witnesses from the Soviet Union and Poland gave videotaped testimony that he killed 11 Jews during World War II.

U.S. District Judge James C. Paine ruled Tuesday that Bohdan Kozy entered the United States illegally by lying about his World War II activities.

25,000 North Carolina Students, Fans Greet National Champion Tar Heels

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — It had been 25 years since North Carolina fans had celebrated a national championship, but they proved Monday and Tuesday they hadn't forgotten how.

About 25,000 fans greeted Coach Dean Smith's Tar Heels as they made their triumphant march into Kenan Stadium, fresh from beating Georgetown 63-62 Tuesday night for the school's first national title since 1957.

Carolina blue was the color of the day. Faces were painted blue, Chapel Hill's streets were painted blue, the skies were blue and even headlines in three local newspapers were in blue ink.

Dr. John Shell, who has a Tar Heel ram painted on the bottom of his swimming pool, said if the team won he would jump into his pool with his clothes on. He kept his promise, diving into the blue water.

As the crowd roared, each Tar Heel player advanced to the microphone to speak.

"We realized our goal, not only to ourselves, but to all of you," said forward James Worthy, who led the Tar Heels in the title game by hitting 28 points, including 13 of 17 field goals attempts.

The crowd greeted the 6-foot-9 junior from Gastonia with the chant of "One more year!" a reference to rumors he might turn professional in the near future.

Guard Jimmy Black told the cheering crowd that he was happy to bring the championship back where it belongs.

The last time the championship was in North Carolina was when the Tar Heels defeated Kansas and center Wilt Chamberlain, 54-53 in three overtimes.

The victory also ended Smith's flirtation with the national title, prompting one newspaper to report that the monkey's off Smith's back.

Brent Hackney, a spokesman for Gov. Jim Hunt, said the governor "has been pulling for Carolina as hard as I've seen him pull for anybody. He wanted it bad for Smith."

In Chapel Hill Monday night, pandemonium broke out when Tar Heel guard Michael Jordan sank the game's final basket with 15 seconds remaining.

A crowd estimated by police at 30,000 crowded Franklin Street and spread over the town, painting the town and each other blue.

"It's going to be a good weekend," center Sam Perkins told the crowd Tuesday. "I just want you all to go crazy."

But as the crowd roared in response, Perkins grinned and said: "Not that crazy!"

Pirates Outslug Virginia

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. — The University of Virginia shot out into a 7-0 lead over the first two innings of play yesterday, then watched as East Carolina University came storming back to overcome the Cavaliers, 18-10.

The slugfest saw the Pirates bang out 15 hits, while Virginia had 14, as a parade of pitchers went to the mound for both teams.

Freshman Brian Peterson started the contest, but was chased after only a third of an inning. Chubby Butler, another freshman, then came on for four innings, and eventually earned the victory, his third in as many opportunities. Bob Patterson went the final 4 2/3 and was credited with a save.

Virginia, meanwhile opened with Scott Laporta, but he got an early shower after three and two-thirds frames. Five more hurlers followed him for Virginia, with Doug Erbaugh, who lasted only a third of an inning, getting the loss.

The Cavaliers erupted for three runs in the first inning. Brad Miller singled to left and with one down, Glenn Harris doubled to right, scoring Miller. George Priftis then reached on an error and Harris scored when Joe Lange grounded out. Donnie Meeks followed with a single, driving in Priftis.

Virginia then pushed over four more in the second on a double by David Lynch, followed by two singles and a sacrifice.

That gave the Cavaliers a 7-0 lead.

East Carolina, however, began its rally in the third, scoring four runs. Robert Wells walked and Mike Sorrell reached on interference on his third strike. John Hallowed followed with a single to right, loading the bases.

Todd Hendley kept things going and drove in the first run with a walk, and Fran Fitzgerald added a single, scoring both Sorrell and Hallow. Ricky Nichols then singled in Hendley with the fourth run.

The Pirates then added four more in the fourth, gaining the lead for the first time, 8-7. Sorrell singled to left and Hallow walked. Hendley reached on an error and Fitzgerald then cracked out a grand-slam homer, accounting for all four runs.

Virginia tied it up once more with a run in the bottom of the inning, that coming on a homer by Priftis.

But the Pirates then scored three more in the fifth, running the lead to 11-8. Jay Carraway doubled and Wells reached on an error. Sorrell singled in Carraway, and Hallow was hit by a pitch. Wells scored on a passed ball, and after Fitzgerald walked, Todd Evans reached on a fielder's choice, scoring Sorrell.

East Carolina added two more in the sixth, three in the seventh, including a two-run homer by Wells, and two in the eighth. Virginia got single runs in the fifth and sixth.

Meeks led the Virginia hitting with three, while Miller and Harris each had two.

East Carolina's hitting was paced by Fitzgerald with two — but he accounted for a total of six runs batted in. Sorrell, Hallow, Nichols, Carraway and Wells all added two hits.

The victory boosted the Pirate record to 16-4 and they have won 14 of their last 15 games. Virginia slumps to 6-10.

East Carolina travels to Williamsburg, Va., today for a 1 p.m. doubleheader with ECAC-South foe William & Mary. The Pirates are 4-1 in conference play.

10-Inning Win Keeps Rose Unbeaten

Rampants Edge Knights, 8-7

By WOODY PEELE

Reflector Sports Editor

Bill Kittrell sent a slow roller down the third base line with the bases loaded, and Roger Williams beat the throw to the plate, giving Rose High School a hard-fought 8-7 victory over Northern Nash yesterday.

The contest, which went ten innings, was the opening Big East Conference game for each team — and the two are co-favorites to win the title this season.

The win kept Rose unbeaten, as the Rampants upped their record to 6-0 on the year. For the Knights, it was their first loss in five starts.

Ironically, it was a homer by Kittrell, who also homered yesterday, that beat Northern Nash last year in the game that decided the Big East Conference title, 2-1.

The win didn't come easy. Rose had to struggle throughout the game, rallying from three down in the first inning for a 5-3 lead, only to see Northern take the lead, 7-5, with four in the fifth.

After finally tying it in the seventh, Rose missed out on several chances to put it away before finally doing the job in the tenth.

Northern jumped out early, scoring three runs in the first off ace Roger Williams. Thomas Mabry, who went four-for-five, led off with a single and with two away, Carl Richardson walked. Steve Smith then posted the Knights to the lead, banging the ball out of the park in center field.

Down 3-0, the Pirates quickly rallied to score five of their own in the bottom of the inning. Tom Buie led off with a single and Mont Carter walked. With one down, Williams singled in Buie, and both runners advanced on a passed ball. Gordon Douglas, who later came on in relief to get the win — his third in as many decisions — walked, loading the bases. Both Crowell Pope and Randy Warren reached on errors, scoring Carter and courtsey runner Jeff Wilson. Kittrell drove in the first of three runs on the day with a single, as Douglas scored. Buie then walked, forcing over courtsey runner Terry Smith for the 5-3 advantage.

After a threat in the third, Northern came back to score four runs in the fifth for a 7-5 lead. Ronnie Stample led off with a single and Mabry added another hit. With one down, Kevin Payne singled in both runners, and Richardson reached on an error. A wild pitch scored Payne, and Smith singled to score Richardson.

Over the next three innings, the Knights stranded two runners on third and another on second — the latter two against Douglas, who replaced Williams in the seventh.

Rose, which had left men in scoring position in the second and fourth, scored once in the fifth. With one down, Kittrell did it all, slapping a homer over the fence in left.

Another threat went by the boards in the sixth, but Rose pushed over the tying run in the seventh.

Warren led off with a walk and stole second. He was sacrificed up, and Kenny Kirkland singled to left, driving him in.

WILMINGTON — East Carolina's women's softball team won two more games yesterday, sweeping UNC-Wilmington, 14-8 and 6-3.

That boosted the Lady Pirate record to 15-3 on the season.

In the opener, East Carolina pushed over one in the first then added three each in the second and third for a 7-0 lead before Wilmington got its first three runs in the bottom of the third. The Lady Pirates picked up single runs in the fourth and fifth to counter three by Wilmington in the bottom of Shirley Brown led the ECU hitting with three, including a homer. Cynthia Shepard and Mitzi Davis each had two, both hitting a pair of triples. Shepard had four runs batted in while Davis had two.

Wilmington's hitting was led by Wilkerson and Campbell with two each.

In the second game, both teams scored twice in the Yvonne Williams, David, Shepard, Marie Grube and Ginger Rothermel each had two hits. Shepard's included a triple and a double. No one had more than one for Wilmington.

"The first game had the best execution we've had on offense this year," Coach Sue Manahan said. "We got people on base and moved them around. In the second game, Angella Humphrey (the pitcher) kept her cool on the mound, despite a number of errors behind her. She didn't panic."

The Lady Pirates return to action on Friday and Saturday, participating in the UNC Charlotte Invitational Tournament.

ACC May Get 45-Second Clock

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — If the majority of head basketball coaches in the Atlantic Coast Conference get their way, the ACC will be using a 45-second clock next year, says Clemson Coach Bill Foster.

Foster, chairman of the coach's group of eight, said five of them met Monday in New Orleans and agreed to a 45-second clock that would be turned off during the last four or five minutes of the game.

He said the precise wording of the recommendation had not been finalized. It must be approved by the athletic directors at their May meeting before it could take effect.

A proposal for a 30-second shot clock was endorsed by a 6-2 vote of the coaches two years ago but was overturned by athletic directors. Foster said he expects stronger support for the 45-second shot clock.

"The clock will probably not be the answer in pulling the scores up," Foster predicted.

"The scores might come down with the clock," he said. "I know that sounds crazy, but that's what happened in the Big Eight when they experimented with the 30-second clock a few years ago. Everybody went to zones and the field goal percentages went way down."

This year, average college scores dropped for the seventh straight year, falling to about 137 total points a game. ACC games had the lowest average in the country last year, a total 118.5 points per game.

Three coaches were not at the New Orleans meeting and did not vote on the proposal. The News & Observer of Raleigh, N.C., reported, however, that seven of eight ACC coaches approve the 45-second clock, with Duke's Mike Krzyzewski the only dissenter.

Coaches not present at the New Orleans meeting were North Carolina's Dean Smith, whose team was taking part in the National Collegiate Athletic Association basketball championship game, Maryland's Lefty Driesell and Wake Forest's Carl Tacy.

Jim Valvano, head coach at N.C. State, said Smith had told him in a telephone conversation that he favors the proposal.

Tacy said Tuesday he favored the 45-second clock on an "experimental basis," but added that he does not think it will serve to offset the recent trend of low-scoring games. Driesell could not be reached for comment.

The 45-second shot clock was used by the Sun Belt Conference this past season. A team not shooting within the time frame would be forced to give up the ball.

The shot clock has been the subject of considerable discussion in the ACC this year, as methodical offenses have been blamed for a trend of lower scores.

San Francisco Trades Vida Blue

Traded To Kansas City

San Francisco pitcher Vida Blue, a two-time Cy Young award winner, was traded to the Kansas City Royals Tuesday. (AP Laserphoto)

By The Associated Press
George Steinbrenner "invited" the New York Yankees to spring training nearly two months ago. On Tuesday, he welcomed Doyle Alexander back into the fold. That left a few of his new — and well-tanned — teammates shaking their heads in dismay.

Alexander, you see, hasn't been to spring training since last year. He sat out this year's, holding out for a better contract from the San Francisco Giants. He and the National League club couldn't agree on an extension of his six-year contract, which expired at the end of the 1982 season.

So the 31-year-old right-hander, a Yankee during the second half of the 1976 season and their World Series opening pitcher that year, was dealt back to them in exchange for two minor leaguers, pitcher Andy McGaffigan and infielder-outfielder Ted Wilborn.

Alexander's new contract with the Yankees reportedly is worth $2.2 million over four years.

Alexander said he's spent the spring at home in Arlington, Texas, but thinks he will be ready to move into the Yankee rotation in about 10 days.

The Yankees open their season Tuesday — and some of them are wondering just what Steinbrenner was thinking when he beckoned his team south, ahead of all the others.

"We've been in spring training for eight weeks and he's just coming," disgruntled outfielder-designated hitter Bobby Murcer said of Alexander. "That's not fair."

And Lou Piniella, another veteran outfielder, mused: "If he wins 20 games, nobody will come to spring training next year."

Alexander wasn't the only Giants pitcher changing uniforms. San Francisco also traded former Cy Young Award winner Vida Blue and another left-hander, Bob Tufts, to the Kansas City Royals in exchange for pitchers Renie Martin, Atlee Hammaker and Craig Chamberlain and a player to be named later. Martin is the only one assured of making the Giants' roster.

In two other deals Tuesday, the Detroit Tigers bought Montreal pitcher Elias Sosa's contract and the Chicago White Sox acquired outfielder Rudy Law from Los Angeles, sending outfielder Cecil Espy and pitcher Burt Geiger to the Dodgers.

If Tuesday's game was any indication, Alexander will be a welcome addition to the Yankees' rotation. Dave Righetti, their starter against the Dodgers, allowed five runs in 5-1/3 innings. The Yanks, however, came out on top, beating Los Angeles 9-7. Bobby Brown's infield single drove in the tie-breaking run in a five-run seventh inning against loser Alejandro Pena. Pedro Guerrero and Jay Johnstone homered for the Dodgers.

The Giants' pitching staff, likewise, wasn't all that impressive Tuesday. Rich Gale, Jim Barr and Gary Lavelle were tagged for 15 hits by Seattle, three by newcomer Al Cowens, as the Mariners won 7-6. Cowens doubled in the ninth and scored the winning run on Bud Bulling's single. Jim Palmer, once the ace of the Baltimore staff, was battered by Philadelphia for 12 hits and four runs in six innings as the Phillies downed the Orioles 6-3.

St. Louis received bad news when third baseman Ken Oberkfell suffered a fractured thumb diving for Lee Lacy's double down the line during Pittsburgh's 7-1 victory. Oberkfell will miss about a month. Jason Thompson drove in three runs for the Pirates.

George Foster hit a two-run homer and Craig Swan pitched five shutout innings in the New York Mets' 4-2 victory over Detroit. Ferguson Jenkins scattered five hits and struck out five batters in six innings as the Chicago Cubs shut out California 8-0.

Ruppert Jones' four singles and one double and three runs scored paced San Diego's 8-3 ramp over Oakland. Bake McBride's two-run triple and Von Hayes' two-run single highlighted Cleveland's 7-5 triumph over Milwaukee. Greg Luzinski had two singles, an RBI and a run scored as the White Sox beat Boston 3-1, and George Bell's two-out, two-run single in the ninth catapulted Toronto past a split Montreal squad 3-2.

Jesus Vega, a reserve first baseman, hit three solo homers and an RBI-single in Minnesota's 6-2 victory over Texas, and Amos Otis and Greg Pryor homered in Kansas City's 6-5 victory over Cincinnati.

Knights Fall To Wilmington, 6-0

Dan Kennedy struck out 15 and limited Greenville Christian to three hits to lead Wilmington Christian to a 6-0 win Tuesday afternoon in a high school baseball game.

Wilmington got all the runs it needed in the third when it struck for five runs. The visitors added their final run in the fourth.

Kennedy walked none en route to the victory. He also had two hits in three at bats. GCA did not have anyone with more than one hit.

Wilmington is now 3-0. GCA is 1-1.

Rams Stop Hawks, 5-3

WHEAT SWAMP — Greene Central stopped a North Lenoir rally just in time in the seventh inning, then pushed over two in the eighth to pull out a 5-3 baseball victory over the Hawks in a non-conference meeting yesterday.

The Hawks scored first, getting a run in the bottom of the second. With one down, Bobby Price walked and advanced on an infield out. He scored on Lovette Kornegay's single.

The Rams came back with two in the fifth. Chris Suggs singled and stole up, scoring on a double by Chris Ginn. Ginn then scored when Tommy Goff singled.

The Rams added a third run in the top of the seventh, but Northern rallied to score two in the bottom of the frame to tie it at 3-3.

In the eighth, however, the Rams scored twice more to gain the extra-inning win. Goff singled and Butch Brown was safe on an error. James Moore loaded the bases on a bunt single, and John Mayo walked to force in one. Clifton Joyner grounded out, scoring Brown with the insurance run.

Ginn led the Ram hitting with three, while Suggs and Goff each had two. Kornegay led the Hawks, getting two hits and driving in all three runs.

Donald Warren hurled the victory, allowing only three hits as he struck out ten and walked two. He is now 4-0 on the year.

Now 5-4 overall, the Rams play host to North Pitt on Thursday.

Aycock Rallies Past Chargers

LITTLEFIELD — C. B. Aycock scored two runs in the top of the seventh inning to slip past Ayden-Grifton, 7-6, Tuesday afternoon in an Eastern Carolina Conference baseball game.

Ayden-Grifton, now 4-4 overall and 1-1 in the league, led, 1-0, after the first inning only to see the Falcons score five runs in the second thanks to three A-G errors and one passed ball.

The Chargers fought back with a run in the bottom of the inning and two more in the third when Joey Kennedy singled to score one run and another came home on an error to make it 5-4.

The Chargers then took the lead in the fourth with two runs when Terry Locust doubled home both Bernard Ricciarelli and Kelvin Harris. Ricciarelli reached on a fielder's choice earlier in the inning. Harris was running for Tyrone Gay, who single earlier.

The Chargers did not threaten in the fifth but had a runner on third in the sixth with one out only to leave him stranded. Aycock then scored its two runs in the top of the seventh to take the lead and, one-half inning later, the victory.

Mercer walked to open the inning and Ken Grantham and Paul Thomas singled to load the bases. Mercer then scored on a passed ball and Bunn reached on a fielder's choice to score Grantham.

Locust was three for four for A-G with two doubles and two RBI. Gay was two for three. Grantham was two for three for CBA.

Melnyk Withdraws From GGO

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — It took only one practice round for Steve Melnyk to determine that he wasn't yet ready for an attempted comeback from a career-threatening injury.

"I could probably go out there and maybe not embarrass myself, but I sure couldn't be competitive," Melnyk said after a practice round Tuesday for the $300,000 Greater Greensboro Open golf tournament.

He suffered a fractured elbow in a fall on wet pavement late in January.

He has the problem of losing half the season or more and still facing the need to make the list of the top 125 money-winners in order to retain his tour playing rights.

"I felt pretty sorry for myself for about one day," Melnyk said. "But when you consider the alternatives, you have to realize things could be much, much worse."

"I tested the job market and was very pleased to find there are a number of opportunities. I still hope to play golf, but there are other avenues. I'm very optimistic."

Although Melnyk, along with Bob Murphy and Scott Simpson, withdrew, and many of the game's top names traditionally skip this tournament that immediately precedes the Masters, the event is not without its share of top-level attractions.

Chief among them are PGA titleholder and defending champion Larry Nelson and 1981 Player of the Year Bill Rogers.

Also on hand are Ray Floyd and Lee Trevino, both of whom prefer competition rather than practice the week before the Masters, along with Bruce Lietzke and South African Gary Player, who had a strong performance last week in the Heritage Classic.

The field also includes 1982 title-winners Craig Stadler, Wayne Levi and Lanny Wadkins.

Firebirds Squeeze North Pitt By 12-11

BETHEL — Southern Nash pushed over two runs in the top of the seventh inning to squeeze out a 12-11 baseball victory over North Pitt yesterday.

The Firebirds pushed over two in the first inning to take the lead, but the Panthers came right back with four of their own.

North Pitt led off its half of the first with a walk to Mike Brown. After one out, Quinton Dove walked and Elwood Ayers singled in Brown. Jay Hines walked and Lee Manning singled in two more runs. Richard Heller finished things off with a run-scoring single.

Southern went back out with three in the top of the second, but North Pitt countered with two. Again in the third the two teams repeated the scoring of the second, with North Pitt getting its two on a two-run Greg Briley home run.

That made it 8-8 at that point.

Southern scored two more in the fourth, while North Pitt countered with another two-run Briley home run in the fifth for a 10-10 tie.

North Pitt took the lead, 11-10, in the sixth.

But Southern Nash pushed over two in the top of the seventh to gain the winning run. Harrison singled and Ed Perry walked. Danny Bissette was hit by a pitch, loading the bases. Tim Best followed with a single, driving in both Harrison and Perry.

Briley led the North Pitt hitting with three, while Heller had two. No one had more than one hit for Southern Nash.

The Panthers are now 0-2 in Eastern Carolina Conference play and 3-4 overall. They travel to Greene Central on Thursday.

SWE Rolls By Jags; Vikes Beats 'Skins

PINETOPS — SouthWest Edgecombe exploded for 11 runs in the first three innings and rolled to a 12-3 victory over Farmville Central Tuesday afternoon in an Eastern Carolina Conference baseball game.

SouthWest led, 2-0, at the end of the first inning only to see Farmville tie it up with two runs in the top of the second. Eddie Jones singled home one run in that inning and Taylor Walston's ground out scored another.

The tie was brief. The Cougars, sparked by David Proctor's three-run home run, scored five runs in the bottom of the inning to go up, 7-2, and never looked back.

SouthWest added four runs in the third and a single run in the sixth. The Jaguars' final run came in the fourth.

Jones was four for four for the Jaguars to lead all hitters. Billy Godley was two for three and Wade Corbett two for four for Farmville. Hank Farmer was two for four for SouthWest.

Farmville, now 1-5 overall and 0-2 in the ECC, travels to North Lenoir Friday.

ROBERSONVILLE — Rick Hines and Joey Ross both hit solo home runs to help lift Roanoke to a 5-3 victory over Tarboro Tuesday afternoon in a Northeastern Conference baseball game.

Tarboro jumped out to a 2-0 lead in the top of the first, but Ross' home run in the bottom of the inning cut the gap to 2-1. The 'Skins then took the lead in the second.

Darius Hudgins singled and went to second on Bernie Williford' sacrifice bunt. Joey Perry followed with a single to put runners at the corners. Hines then drilled a single to score both Hudgins and Perry and Roanoke led, 3-2.

Hines' home run in the fourth upped the margin to 4-2 and the Redskins added their final run of the day in the sixth. Tarboro's only other run came in the fifth.

Hines was two for four for Roanoke, now 3-3 overall and 2-2 in the league. Hines also had three runs batted in. Tarboro did not have anyone with more than one hit.

East Carolina University's women's tennis team rolled to a 9-0 victory over Atlantic Christian College yesterday, extending their record to 4-1 on the season.

The Lady Pirates had little trouble in the match, which saw the Lady Bulldogs win only one set and aside from that, never more than three games in any one set.

"I'm very pleased with the way things are going now," Coach Caroline Brown said. "I'm pleased with the rate of improvement. We're on an emotional up right now, and we have lot of pluses working for us."

The Lady Pirates travel to UNC Charlotte on Friday, then face both Davidson and nationally-ranked College of Charleston on Saturday at Davidson.

Rose JVs Win, 15-4; EBA Nips Nash, 9-8

RED OAK — Greenville Rose's junior varsity used four hits from Traye Fuqua, including a two-run home run, to rout Northern Nash, 15-4, Tuesday afternoon.

Mike Kinley got the win for the Rampants, now 3-0.

Bill Owens was also four for four for Rose. Tony Daniels and Jody Forbes had two hits in five at bats for Rose.

Rampants Win...

Finally, in the bottom of the tenth, Rose pushed over the winner. Williams led off with a walk and moved up on an out. Pope singled off the tip of the shortstop's glove, and stole up, putting runners at second and third. Warren walked, loading the bases, and Kittrell followed with his slow roller down the line, as Williams just did beat the throw from the drawn in third baseman.

It all brought a sigh of relief from Coach Ronald Vincent. "Northern has a heck of a team," he reflected. "They swing the bats well, but we stayed with 'em. I was really pleased with the way Douglas pitched. He did a great job against them when he came on."

However, Vincent wasn't totally pleased with the Rampant hitting. "We made good contact. I think we only had two strikeouts, but the ball just didn't fall in there for us."

That was readily apparent from the fact that Rose left 13 men on base during the game.

"We played great defense, however, and that helped us win," Vincent added.

Rose returns to action on Thursday, traveling to Rocky Mount.

LITTLEFIELD — Charles B. Aycock scored three runs in the fifth inning to break up a 1-1 tie and defeat Ayden-Grifton, 4-1, Tuesday afternoon in an Eastern Carolina Conference softball game.

The Lady Falcons scored one run in the second to go up, 1-0, but the Lady Chargers countered with a run in the bottom of the third to tie the game. It stayed that way until the fifth when Aycock scored three runs.

Ayden-Grifton, now 0-4 overall and 0-2 in the ECC, was led at the plate by Monica Stokes and Lisa Ward, both of whom had two hits. Chris Crumpler had two hits for Aycock.

Ayden-Grifton travels to Southern Nash Friday.

Opening lead: Ten of ♠.

If you are a good guesser, you should have little difficulty locating the opponents' cards. But if you are only average, like most of us, it helps to have them tell you who holds what!

North had a difficult bid. With only one king and no ace or singleton, we are not sure we would have bid four hearts. But who are we to quarrel with success, especially since South's skillful declarer play provided us with material for this column.

West led the ten of diamonds. Declarer saw that his obvious losers were the three aces. In addition, he would have to avoid a trump loser. The percentage play is to take a finesse. But the good guesser might play for the drop, if his spirit so moves him. The expert proceeds along the line that our declarer chose.

The queen of diamonds lost to the ace, and East returned a diamond to the king. A spade to the king lost to the ace, and East shifted to a club. The king was captured by West's ace, and West reverted to a spade. Declarer carefully played the jack from dummy. East covered with the queen and declarer ruffed.

The hand was now an open book. East had already shown up with the ace-queen of spades and ace of clubs, and had passed in first seat. The chances that he held the king of hearts as well, even singleton, were therefore remote. So declarer blithely laid down the ace of hearts, and claimed his contract when the king came tumbling down to his left.

Plan Resume Shipping Coal

MOREHEAD CITY, N.C. (AP)—The only major firm shipping coal from North Carolina's port at Morehead City will be back in operation in a few weeks, according to company and state port officials.

Shipments from the coal facility by Alla-Ohio Valley Coal Co. were halted Nov. 6 when the company filed for bankruptcy under the voluntary reorganization provision of the Federal Bankruptcy Act.

One major reason for the company's bankruptcy action was a financial dispute between Alla-Ohio and Steag Handel, a German partner and major European coal importer. Company officials said the disagreement created difficulties in finding ships to carry the coal.

Sam Holcomb, the company's regional director of development and operations, said shipments will resume "within the next couple of weeks.... That would depend on the owners of the coal, when they wanted to give the orders to work the mines and start loading the coal."

"Plans now are to resume the export of coal under some new organization in April," said Rear Adm. William M.A. Greene, executive director of the North Carolina State Ports Authority.

"This would involve a small number of cars initially," Holcomb said, adding there probably would be daily shipments involving fewer than 20 cars attached to local trains.

Holcomb said the shipments, which had been more than 100,000 tons per month, are being made possible by an agreement the company has reached with two unidentified companies. Those companies will be identified when other details surrounding the deal have been resolved, he said.

"Two of our concerns all along have been to protect Morehead City and generate revenue for Alla-Ohio," Holcomb said, adding that another goal has been "the infusion of capital from another investor..."

Port manager Robert Goins said the announcement is good news for the port.

Wounded Actress Testifies In Court

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP)—Actress Theresa Saldana, wheelchair-ridden and bandaged from a knife attack, testified in court during a closed preliminary hearing for a former mental patient accused of stabbing her.

Miss Saldana, appearing pale and drawn, faced Arthur Richard Jackson, 46, who has pleaded innocent to charges of attempted murder and assault with a deadly weapon in the attack two weeks ago outside the actress' apartment.

Jackson, a twice-deported drifter from Aberdeen, Scotland, who had been a patient at Patton State Hospital in San Bernardino, Calif., walked scowling into court Tuesday dressed in a blue prison jumpsuit. He could face 13 years in prison if convicted.

His arraignment was set for April 13.

Miss Saldana, whose right hand was bandaged and her left arm swathed in bandages from fingertips to shoulder, was accompanied by a nurse and her husband, Fred Feliciano. The 27-year-old actress said outside court she could not discuss details of the hearing, which had been closed to reporters by Municipal Judge Jill Jakes.

"I'm in a good deal of pain," she said. "I feel a little bit better. I plan to get healthy as fast as I can."

a diary March 15 from Jackson in which he referred to the actress as "an angel" and outlined an apparent obsession for Miss Saldana.

Cheryl Ladd In A Happy Blend

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) - "Cheryl Ladd. Scenes from a Special" is unconventional in that it both parodies and embodies the variety format. Given the limitations of this form of entertainment, tonight's ABC special is fairly successful both as satire and spectacle.

At best, variety shows can only offer snippets of satisfaction. Burdened by commercial interruptions and parades of guests, performers can't build an act as they would in night clubs. The result is that the whole is smaller than the sum of its parts. A typical variety show acquires a look and sound similar to a radio station offering some chatter, some favorite tunes and some real losers.

Producer-director Don Mischer seems to understand this. By spoofing the genre, "Cheryl Ladd. Scenes from a Special" has a sense of purpose and theme that sets it apart from recent, floundering efforts by Olivia Newton-John and Suzanne Somers.

Miss Ladd pokes fun at the usual mindless variety-show banter. This is when guests are supposed to be chatting easily, although they are obviously uncomfortable, and their conversation is about as spontaneous as the Gettysburg Address.

Miss Ladd welcomes her guests, Carol Burnett and Rick Springfield, with simple "hellos," and later engages in "A Quiet Moment" with Miss Burnett. Both performers are on stools, the typical setting for upbeat togetherness, but the two women say nothing.

In another segment, which some may find offensive, "A Short Dance Number" is performed by a dwarf named Billy Barty. Later, in a reprise, Barty is joined by another tiny dancer.

Unfortunately, whenever the special moves in this mocking direction, a patronizing laugh track makes sure viewers find the way. The conventional aspects of the special are also enjoyable, principally because Miss Ladd has a disarming manner, unlike Miss Somers' cloying act in front of 6,000 sailors last month.

Of course, Miss Ladd is beautiful, and her hugging, revealing outfits emphasize her physical talents. In her opening number, "While You See a Chance," she wears skin-tight gold pants and a scant top that is designed to deter dial-switching. Her costuming and sleek movements also tend to minimize the deficiencies in Miss Ladd's voice.

Miss Ladd, who replaced Farrah Fawcett on "Charlie's Angels," has a sweet sound, but one lacking gusto. Her voice does gain credibility against Springfield's. The young rock 'n' roll star who is now appearing on the soap opera "General Hospital" does not match well with Miss Ladd in their duet of "Whenever I Call You Friend."

Springfield's appearance is demographically sound, though. Miss Ladd is supposed to lure the male audience; Springfield is expected to capture the women. But are the other performers - Miss Burnett, an Incredible Hulk and two dwarfs - supposed to take care of the remaining viewers?

Some other highlights: a fantasy takeoff of "9 To 5," with Miss Ladd and Miss Burnett as cleaning women, and what the special calls "The Hot Number." This is a punky, sexual number, a new variety-show fixture. Called "Just Another Lover Tonight," it's actually no more suggestive than some deodorant and jeans commercials.

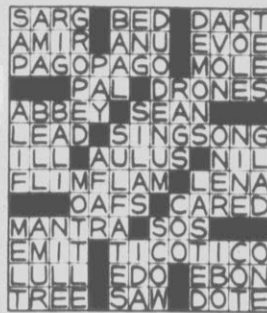

At 10 p.m. EST, Miss Ladd isn't expected to read from the collections of Robert Frost, anyway. But for those preferring old-fashioned variety shows, "Perry Como's Easter in Guadalajara" is on Saturday night.

Yesterday's Cryptokuip - CUMULUS CLOUDS DAMPEN SOME PICNIC PLANS.

Today's Cryptokuip clue: M equals V

The Cryptokuip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Gleason, Pryor Talk Film Plan

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) - Jackie Gleason says he's too old to put up with the pressure of weekly television and doesn't like to make movies. But there he was with Richard Pryor, fielding questions on their upcoming film, "The Toy."

Asked why Baton Rouge was chosen as the location, Pryor deadpanned: "It's cheaper."

Gleason added, "We were thrown out of New Orleans." "What I want to know is what you're doing here," Pryor asked reporters during the Tuesday news conference.

The most serious person to meet reporters was 11-year-old Scott Schwartz of New Jersey, who got the role of Gleason's spoiled son.

Asked if he was nervous acting in a film with Gleason and Pryor, the youngster said, "No, not at all. I'm anxious to get started."

More Radios In Country Music

By JOE EDWARDS
Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) - Radio stations playing country music full time increased by 348 during the past year in the United States and Canada, a survey shows.

The survey, by the Country Music Association, indicates that there are now 2,133 radio stations in the U.S. and Canada programming country music full time.

The CMA, the industry's trade association, said that 44.5 percent of all radio stations in the two countries now program at least some country music.

The survey shows that the 2,133 full-time country music stations are up from 1,434 three years ago.

Ed Benson, a spokesman for the CMA, said Tuesday that a key to the increasing popularity of country music is that the average age of people in the U.S. is now just over 30 - and this age group enjoys country music.

"Country music relates strongly to those who have embarked on a real-life struggle," he said. "It deals with broad emotional experiences of day-to-day living."

He also said advertisers

Another Week For 'Chariots'

"Chariots of Fire," the British-made film about two young runners in the years between the end of World War I and the 1924 Olympic games in Paris, will be held over at Plaza Cinema for another week, the fifth week in Greenville, according to Roy Griffin, manager of the theater.

"Chariots," which Monday night won the coveted Best Picture of the Year Academy Award, also won awards for best original script, best music score, and best costuming.

Interested In Donahue Show

NEW YORK (AP) - CBS and ABC were nuzzling closer to talk show host Phil Donahue after learning his last segment on the "Today" show will be May 7 and he had broken off negotiations with NBC, network sources said.

None of the network interest was expected to affect his Chicago-based syndicated talk show, "Donahue," which is seen on 225 stations.

An NBC insider said Tuesday that Donahue was willing to drape a hard bargain with NBC because he was finding it difficult to tape his syndicated show at WBBM, a CBS station, while doing his "Today" segments a mile away at WMAQ, the NBC station.

The two operations also require separate staffs. A source at CBS News said the CBS network is structuring a deal, possibly a combination of news and entertainment work, to lure Donahue.

An ABC source said ABC News President Roone Arledge has tried to interest Donahue in contributing to a network program that is to follow "Nightline" this fall.

Mapmakers Are Not Perfect; 20 Years Ago, Seattle 'Lost'

By MARLENE AIG
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) —
Sometimes, even mapmakers lose things.

It happened about 20 years ago to the American Automobile Association.

The AAA lost Seattle. No one knows just how it happened, but somebody somewhere for some reason left it off the AAA's official United States road map. The organization spent many weeks and dollars putting the nation's 23rd largest city back where it belonged — reprinting the maps.

"It just fell through the editing cracks," says Orth Rader, director of publications for the AAA.

It also happened to the public works department in Boulder, Colo.

Richard Ciacci was working as a draftsman for the county in early 1970s when he decided to "leave his stamp" on the county map, as public works director Alex Ariniello puts it.

Suddenly, there was a Mount Richard on the Continental Divide where there hadn't been a mount anything before. It was two years before the mythical mountain was discovered and the map revised.

Such are the travails of making maps. While the rest of us worry about how to follow them or fold them, the manufacturers worry about getting them right. It's a business with a history of error.

Medievalists, you'll recall, believed the Earth was flat and based their maps on the Bible, putting Jerusalem at the center of the universe.

And as any American schoolchild knows, Columbus set out for what the maps called the "Indies" when he stumbled onto a New World in 1492. That's what you get when you have flat-Earth maps.

Actually, making maps — the science is called cartography — has always been a complex, tedious task in a relatively small and highly competitive business both in this country and Europe.

Major mapmaking companies — some of which produce millions of maps a year — employ as few as 25 people to figure out just where the states, cities, towns, rivers, lakes, highways, bridges, parks and pastures belong.

Local planning departments, whose work is crucial to bigger mapmakers, sometimes employ a single soul to portray an entire community's streets, hospitals, monuments and public buildings.

With so much detail and so few people involved, it's understandable that things sometimes are forgotten or put in the wrong place.

But things are improving. You should have seen the old days.

George Washington is credited with paternity of the U.S. road map, when he complained to Congress in 1777. "The want of accurate maps of the country ... has been a great disadvantage to me."

Congress quickly remedied the problem, and some historians say that had Washington not procured maps for Princeton, N.J., Williamsburg, Va., Baltimore and Philadelphia by 1781, the American Revolution would have dragged on longer.

Railroad, bicycle and local maps were available by the 19th century, but mapmaking didn't boom until the advent of the automobile and motoring clubs turned well-known paths into paved thoroughfares and long-distance travel became a frequent reality.

"It was extremely chaotic," says Con Erickson, spokesman for Rand McNally, one of the nation's biggest mapmakers. "One state would name a road one thing with one color, while the same road would change names and colors when it went into the next state."

In the 1920s federal and state governments started giving roads numbers and. "It was the genesis of road maps as we know them today," says Erickson.

The next major breakthrough came in the 1920s, when Otto Gustave Lindberg, founder of General Drafting, pioneered in maps for the AAA the categorization of roads as good, fair and poor.

He persuaded Standard Oil

Processor's Food Fight

By LORRAINE CICHOWSKI
AP Business Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — A year after Cuisinarts and Robot-Coupe crossed blades in a fight for dominance in the high-priced food processor market, the dispute is churning again in a battle that may turn on the shape of a tomato.

Cuisinarts has won a following with its expanded feed tube, a processor bowl with a large oval-shaped opening that accepts larger foods whole.

But, asks Robot-Coupe International President Al Finesman, who ever heard of an oval tomato? Robot-Coupe is countering this spring with its own "Le Grand Opening," which Finesman says is big enough for four whole tomatoes or 10 lemons.

The feud erupted more than a year ago when Robot-Coupe — a worldwide maker of food-processing appliances under different brand names — stopped making machines in France for Cuisinarts, ending a seven-year relationship.

Robot-Coupe entered the U.S. consumer market with its own product. And it went after Cuisinarts' lock on the high end of the food-processor market — above $100 a machine — with feisty advertising attacking Cuisinarts.

But now, after winning court rulings blocking some of Robot-Coupe's most controversial ads, Cuisinarts is on the offensive.

The Greenwich, Conn.-based company is launching an aggressive new marketing campaign this spring to introduce its DLC-7 Pro, a larger processor than ones currently on the market and expected to retail initially at about $275. The advertising will promote professional qualities of the machines, even though it will be geared to the consumer.

"It's approved for restaurant use, but it's a consumer model," says Dick Tarlow, president of Kurtz & Tarlow, Cuisinarts' New York advertising agency.

Like all of the new Cuisinarts' models, the DLC-7 Pro is made in Japan. Cuisinarts started having machines built to its specifications in Japan in mid-1978 when it first ran into problems with Robot-Coupe over delivering defective machines — about two years before Robot-Coupe canceled its manufacturing agreement with Cuisinarts.

Tarlow said ads with the tagline "This year, turn pro," will run beginning in early April in national and regional magazines, and television commercials will air shortly before Mother's Day. Tarlow declined to say how much Cuisinarts, a private company, is spending to promote the new product, but he said the advertising budget is a "multimillion-dollar" one.

Robot-Coupe's Finesman, however, is readying his own spring advertising blitz to chip away further at Cuisinarts' market share.

clined to be quoted by name, put Cuisinarts' share at "more than 50 percent" of the approximately half-million high-priced food processors sold last year, with Robot-Coupe, Waring and Sunbeam taking the rest. In all, about 3 million food processors were sold, but the other 2.5 million were priced below $100.

But some retailers say Robot-Coupe is gaining acceptance, especially among cooks with gourmet tastes who want a French-made machine, such as Robot-Coupe's, over one made in Japan, such as the new Cuisinarts.

"Cuisinarts is like Kleenex," says Murray Klein, co-owner of the popular Zabar's food emporium in Manhattan. "If you want to buy tissues, you say you want Kleenex. Cuisinarts has the name. It's still the best seller."

"But Robot-Coupe is taking business away from them. The more sophisticated customers buy Robot-Coupe because they know it's the original," he said. "I think this year Robot-Coupe will catch up with them (Cuisinarts)."

Finesman says he doesn't think Cuisinarts' DLC-7 Pro "is of any consequence" and says his new ad campaign will be "keyed to our accessories."

One of the new Robot-Coupe products being introduced this spring is the larger processor bowl intended to compete with Cuisinarts' expanded feed tube. In addition, Robot-Coupe is introducing a pasta attachment expected to cost less than one currently offered by Cuisinarts.

Finesman isn't promising the new Robot-Coupe ads will be any tamer than the ones that got him in trouble before. "What's been going on to date is mild," he was quoted as saying recently.

A month ago, a federal judge in New York ordered Robot-Coupe to stop running advertising that implied its professional model is superior to Cuisinarts. The ad in question said, "Robot-Coupe 21 Cuisinart 0," referring to the number of French three-star restaurants that favor Robot-Coupe over Cuisinarts.

A year ago, the court ordered Robot-Coupe to stop using an ad that hinted Cuisinarts had gone out of business. That ad said the company's name is "pronounced Robo-Coop. It used to be pronounced Cuisinart."

Arms Sale Withheld From China

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration, caught up in delicate negotiations with China, is holding back a $60 million arms sale package for Taiwan even though it appears to have strong support in Congress.

The principal hang-up over the spare parts sale is China's insistence that the United States explicitly rule out selling advanced weapons to Taiwan and at the same time affirm that the pending parts sale would not be a violation of China's sovereignty.

Talks between the United States and China have been under way in Peking for 2½ months.

"It's turning out to be as tough as drafting the Shanghai communique," said a former U.S. official, who helped set China policy under former President Carter.

Ironically, the Peking government, by all indications, is prepared to let the parts sale itself go through. And in Congress, where a majority appears to favor strong ties with China, there is almost no inclination to cut off Taiwan completely.

"I don't know anyone who's against it," said an aide to a key House member.

The problem is that the spare parts deal represents only a first step in an arms relationship with the Reagan administration. And the Communist leadership in Peking wants to make sure the sovereignty it claims over the island is not being eroded by acquiescence.

Sources here, who declined to be identified, said Peking was willing to go along with the spare parts purchase by Taiwan. "But the Chinese want to make sure they're going to get the kind of understanding they can live with," one source said.

The Shanghai communique cleared the way for U.S. relations with China by getting around the fact there were rival Chinese governments in Peking and on Taiwan.

It accomplished this diplomatic trick by affirming that all Chinese are in agreement that there is only one China. But while the Nixon, Ford and Carter administrations drew progressively closer to Peking, all U.S. ties with Taiwan were not broken.

The current dispute erupted in late December when the State Department announced plans to provide Taiwan with spare parts for its military forces. Peking's objections grew to an uproar two weeks later when the Reagan administration decided to permit the Nationalists to buy additional F-5E fighter planes.

Even though Taiwan had wanted to buy a more advanced line of jets, Chinese leaders were upset with the administration compromise and conveyed their feelings to John Holdridge, the assistant secretary of state for East Asian and Pacific Affairs, who was in Peking at the time.

Subsequently, the Communist government let it be known it would withdraw its ambassador to Washington and downgrade relations with the United States unless a satisfactory solution was found.

With the Chinese exerting that kind of international pressure, President Reagan was being pulled in the opposite direction on Capitol Hill where he was reminded of his campaign pledge to strengthen ties with the Nationalist government.

Holdridge, who testified in secret last Friday before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, alluded to the sensitive issues that night in a speech to the Sino-American Cultural Society.

He told the pro-Taiwan group that Reagan wants "to improve the unofficial relationship with Taiwan, in quality, in style, in content." Holdridge promised the Jan. 11 announcement of further arms sales would be carried out.

"The other side of the coin," the State Department official said, "is that it is very important also to maintain and, if possible, increase the strategic relationship with the People's Republic of China."

At this point in history, Holdridge went on, "it will not make much sense, if you can avoid it, to have a break with China in a strategic way. The Soviet Union will benefit immensely."

Engineer Is Opting For Farm Life

MORVEN, N.C. (AP) — Three years ago, John Watson was a successful engineer and his wife, Pat, a teacher in Philadelphia. Their combined salaries exceeded $45,000 a year.

Now, he's a pig farmer in rural Anson County and she teaches at a small-town school.

A comedian? The Watsons don't think so — even though it's hard for them to explain why they suddenly packed up and left the big city for what was at best an uncertain future on the farm.

"That's a good question," said John Watson, 35.

Standing in a garden plot he'd plowed near his newly completed home in southern Anson County, he scooped up a handful of soft dirt.

He looked up at a blue sky dotted with white clouds and said, "Just look at that open sky and smell that fresh air. You can't beat that!"

Both Watsons were born in Baltimore and reared in Philadelphia. But both are the children of Carolinians. His parents were natives of Windsor, in Eastern North Carolina. Her father, Roy Cox, was from Lilesville in Anson County, and her mother, Elizabeth, from Sumter, S.C.

After living most of his married life in Philadelphia, Roy Cox retired to Lilesville, and it was while visiting there that the Watsons got the urge to move South.

The greatest influence on their move, John Watson said, came from his uncle, P.E. Bazemore, a retired Union County agricultural extension agent who's now a Monroe City Council member.

"He really guided me and made arrangements for me to buy this land," Watson said. "He is the one who talked me into this swine operation."

Watson unabashedly admits he knew little about the hog business before coming to Anson County.

"I talked to everyone who knew anything about the business," he said, "and I read all the books and literature I could get my hands on. I went to just about every county in North Carolina where pigs are raised and, with the help of my uncle, I became a pig farmer."

The Watsons bought 23 acres between Morven and the crossroads community of Casons Old Field, about 15 miles south of Wadesboro.

Down a small hill, away from the house, are the barns of the Watsons' twofold pig operation, consisting of 200 sows and 16 full-breed males.

"There are a lot of farmers around who are doing just as I'm doing," he said. "We breed our hogs and raise the pigs from babies through weaning. We later move them on to the next operation, which is feeding them out to 200 to 250 pounds, when they are ready for market."

"In raising my own pigs, I save the cost of buying from another dealer and, too, I'm not buying somebody else's problems. This way, you know what you've got."

With only one employee on the farm, the Watsons lead busy lives. He gets up at daybreak and helps her get their two sons, 3-year-old John and 1-year-old Sean, ready for nursery school in Rockingham. He drives them the 18 miles there.

She drives to Wadesboro where she teaches English, speech and drama at Bowman High School. After school, she drives to Rockingham to pick up the boys.

"I haven't enjoyed teaching so much in quite a while," she said, adding that the students generally are much more respectful than in Philadelphia.

"But John has adjusted really better than I have. He is always in charge — in control. He is an administrator. I liked the city and the accessibility of things there. But I'm a private kind of person, and I enjoy the country. It's certainly fine for the boys."

Big Bite Of Local Taxes Is Growing

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Federal income taxes are uppermost in people's minds as April 15 approaches, but state and local levies also account for a big chunk of the money collected by government and the take is rising.

A study by the Tax Foundation, Inc., a non-partisan, non-profit research group which has its headquarters in Washington, D.C., shows that state and local taxes totaled $236.2 billion in fiscal 1980, the latest year for which figures are available. That's about half as much as the federal government collected in taxes during the same year. Americans paid $1 to state and local governments for every $2 they paid the federal government.

The foundation also says that as of the middle of this month, lawmakers in 26 states have introduced bills that would, if passed, boost state taxes alone by $6.8 billion annually. State legislators approved tax hikes of $3.8 billion last year.

Foundation economists made a detailed analysis of existing taxes at the state level and found that the sales tax is the biggest source of revenue, accounting for $43.2 billion or 31.5 percent of all state tax collections in 1980.

The researchers said state general sales tax rates range from a low of 2 percent in Oklahoma to a high of 7.5 percent in Connecticut, Alaska, Delaware, Montana, New Hampshire and Oregon were the only states without a general sales tax.

Local sales taxes are imposed by cities and towns in 26 states. The highest combined rate of sales tax — 8.25 percent — is paid by residents of New York City, where there is a local tax of 4.25 percent on top of a state rate of 4 percent.

Income taxes are the second biggest money-raiser for the states. Individual income taxes accounted for 27.1 percent of state tax collections in fiscal 1980 and corporate income levies accounted for 9.7 percent. Only five states — Nevada, South Dakota, Texas, Washington and Wyoming — do not levy either a corporate or a personal income tax. Only seven states — the preceding five, plus Alaska and Florida — do not have any personal income tax.

The most widespread taxes at the state level are gasoline and cigarette levies, which are imposed by all 50 states. Forty-four states have state property taxes and all the states have local property taxes.

The public, meanwhile, is about equally divided in its dislike of the federal income tax and local property levies.

The Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations, a non-partisan group created by Congress to monitor the operation of government, conducts regular surveys to find out what people think about taxes and different levels of government.

The respondents are given a list of taxes — federal income, state income, state sales and local property — and asked to pick the worst or least fair tax. In the latest survey, taken late last year, 36 percent chose the federal income tax as the worst and 33 percent picked local property taxes. Fourteen percent said state sales taxes were the worst and 9 percent said state income taxes were least fair. The remaining 9 percent said they did not know which tax was worst.

When the commission started its surveys, in 1972, local property taxes were the most hated — picked by 45 percent of the public as the worst levy. Only 19 percent of those surveyed said the federal income tax was the least fair.

The commission said a demographic breakdown of the findings showed that the people most likely to pick the federal income tax as the worst tax were those who were under 44, had a high school education or better, had children and lived in urban areas and in the South.

Those most likely to pick local property taxes as the least fair were 45 and older, had less than a high school education, had children and lived in rural areas and in the Northeast.

Age 50 Only Hours Away

By PATRICK CONNOLLY
Associated Press Writer
SEATTLE (AP) — Pert, perky and pushing 50, actress Debbie Reynolds says she doesn't mind growing old — anymore.

"Forty was the hard one for me. Once I got over that, I just kept going," she said, laughing and touching up some makeup during a recent ferryboat ride across Puget Sound. She was appearing in the "singin'-and-hoofin'" musical review,
"Teamwork" with comedian-impressionist Rich Little at the Paramount Theater.

companies the star nearly everywhere, flounced a blond wave into place.

"I'll be 50 April 1 — the big one — but I don't mind," she said. "I'm comfortable with myself. Financially, I still have to work but I'm secure as a human being."

She has two divorces and two grown children behind her. She's on her own, with plans for a new Broadway musical and performances
this summer in the Midwest.
She's also taping a television game show and will do a show in Reno, Nev., next month. But marriage is not in the picture, she says.

"You can't get married until you find someone you love, and I haven't," she said. "My children are on their own and I'm proud of them. Now their mother's free to travel."

Her 1955 marriage to crooner Eddie Fisher — which produced daughter, Carrie, and son, Todd — ended in divorce four years later. In 1960, she married shoe store tycoon Harry Karl. They were divorced in 1973, and Miss Reynolds later said she had paid off $3 million in debts from reverses in the shoe business and other financial setbacks.

She quickly and coldly dismissed Fisher's recent kiss-and-tell book "Eddie Fisher," in which he says he didn't love her — "We were married to the fan magazines, not to each other."

"I haven't read it," she said, with a wave of her hand. "My daughter read it and said it was all right and didn't say anything too bad. I just don't care about it."

Miss Reynolds is amused to find herself reincarnated with the younger generation, not as the bouncy, mugging comedienne of '40s and '50s musicals, but as the mother of a science fiction movie star. Daughter Carrie has starred as Princess Leia in "Star Wars" and "The Empire Strikes Back."

"A lot of youngsters don't know Debbie Reynolds — but they know Princess Leia," she said of her 25-year-old daughter. "I sign their autographs, 'Princess Leia's Mother, and they love it.'"

Todd Fisher, 23, a former architecture student, is a "reborn Christian" with a religious television program in Southern California, she said.

"Star Wars" aside, most current film is too explicit for Miss Reynolds, who flits around in a lavender gaucho outfit and, at 5-foot-1 and about 100 pounds, seems little changed from 30 years ago.

"I'm afraid I'm from the romantic era and don't go for the near-pornography in some movies today," she said. "I can sing and dance and act and I don't have to do films for a living anymore."

"Actress friends of mine say, 'that's part of being an actress, and I say, 'No, that's part of being a stripper...or another profession.' But they're working in films and I'm not."

can eat up young actresses trying to raise families and feed husbands, too, said Miss Reynolds, whose series last year — a "Fantasy Island" copy called "Aloha Holiday" — lasted "nine seconds" by her count.

"It's absolutely killing, grueling and impossible for a personal life," she said of doing television series. "You work from five or six o'clock in the morning until 11 at night and then you get home and memorize dialogue and get up and go back to work.
It's as though you shouldn't take your makeup off. That's why I prefer the theater."

Starting off in show business today probably hasn't changed much from when she got into it "by accident," through winning a Miss Burbank, Calif., beauty pageant and being noticed by a Hollywood talent scout.

and appear in all the community functions you can," she advises others. "Don't be afraid to fail, to make a fool of yourself. Acting is making a fool of yourself."

Sipping hot coffee from a styrofoam cup, she stepped onto a rain-splattered ferry
grapher, and cocked a cheerful eye at the dripping sky.

"Singing in the Rain," she said, referring to the hit 1952 musical featuring Gene Kelly, Donald O'Connor and her. "I think this is where I came in."

Taking Program To The Elderly

WASHINGTON (UPI) —
The U.S. Department of Agriculture plans to start demonstration food programs this summer for the low-income elderly at two locations to be announced this spring.

Mary Jarratt, assistant secretary of the USDA, says the project will examine various food packages and delivery systems. Ms. Jar-ratt says it will tie into existing commodity supplemental feeding program sites that serve low-income pregnant women and small children.

She says the department is especially concerned about low-income elderly who are incapacitated by illness or who have transportation problems. She anticipates that the project will include provisions for direct distribution to people in their homes and will emphasize the use of voluntary private and local services for the delivery.

COLLECTIVIZING
BUDAPEST, Hungary
(AP) — Millions of southern Vietnamese residents will be resettled on state farms in what appears to be an all-out government effort to establish a collective agricultural system, a Vietnam Communist Party official

Solo Safari At Age 78

By JERRY SCHWARTZ
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — On Maud Morgan's second day in Kenya, a notebook she was carrying was stolen. It was packed with people to meet, places to go and things to see during a six-month tour of the vast African continent.

The 78-year-old white-haired artist did not flinch. With no guide or itinerary, she embarked on a solo safari in Africa, collecting impressions of colors and shapes that influenced her recent New York exhibition of abstract collages.

"I almost never felt fear in Africa, and I have in this country, from time to time," she says. "It's best to be old and beautiful in this country. In Africa, it's best to be old and wise."

She didn't travel first class, but took the conveyances used by the people in each country of the African continent. She trod on foot, bumped about on buses and was jostled in primitive wagons, which often broke down and had to be repaired by youths who magically fixed the vehicles with bits of wire.

She came away with memories of children who do not cry, though they live in terrible poverty; of travelers who could buy flashlights, but had to search an entire city for batteries; of men who literally gave her the shirts off their backs when she admired their garments.

Most of all, there were the colors and shapes of African clothing and fabrics.

"The colors are much brighter, but the combinations, the waves, the gorgeous beauty of the way those women wrap themselves ... You always see the color in motion. I found it very exciting," she says, sweeping the air with her long hands, her gray eyes intense.

Ms. Morgan took scores of photographs, but has not looked at them. "I wanted to absorb, I think, the feeling of the different places," she said. "I'm hoping and I feel that it's coming out in my work."

And work she does, from 9:30 a.m. to dark seven days a week in her Cambridge, Mass., studio, "unless I have to go to the dentist. Or if I have to go to a lawyer. That always throws me."

Her work includes still lifes in the 1930s, self-portraits in the 1950s, silk-screened abstracts in the 1960s and the recent collages of Japanese mulberry paper, which she considers to be among her best work.

"I feel I'm very involved with touching," she says. "I just get so excited when I see some of these pieces of paper. I suppose I should stop making collages, but I'm not even going to try."

Ms. Morgan has been touched in her lifetime by a variety of "legends." She was a friend of writer James Joyce and an acquaintance of the Indian leader Mahatma Gandhi. And she and her ex-husband, Patrick, honeymooned with writer Ernest Hemingway in Key West, Fla. She divorced her husband, also an artist, last year after 50 years of marriage because she wanted her "freedom."

And at age 78, she has become something of a movie star. A film portrait of the artist, "Light Coming Through," has been widely shown, including screenings at the Georges Pompidou Museum in Paris.

"I've found that my energy has increased with my age," she says. "Women have a certain cycle that they fulfill, and then they have menopause and then if they're healthy they have all this energy they can use."

With her African trip behind her, Ms. Morgan hopes to visit Peru sometime soon. But first she has another trip in mind — a balloon excursion over the Alps. Does she consider herself an adventurer?

"A little bit, I guess; not enough, though," she says. "I think all of us accept the pattern we fall into too readily. When you deviate a little bit from the pattern you were brought up to, the results are so rewarding."

"Well, I don't spend much time on it, but I always think it's time to get on to the next thing."

BELTSVILLE, Md. (UPI) — When some farmers say they are going fishing, don't assume they mean they are taking the day off.

Many mean they're going to tend crops of fish and shellfish. A photo-exhibit of seafarmers raising food is scheduled for public display, April 26-May 21, at the USDA's National Agricultural Library in Beltsville.

Fish farming is a relatively sophisticated practice in the western world, says the library's acting director, Richard Farley, "but it has been practiced for 3,000 years in India and 5,000 years in China."

In the United States, as in many other countries, breeding and raising fish and shellfish is becoming an increasingly important method of food production, Farley adds.

Cruise Line Has Acquired Ferry

PORTLAND, Me. (UPI) — The Prince of Fundy Cruises has announced that its recently-purchased luxury cruise ferry Scotia Prince will begin services between Portland, Me., and Yarmouth, Nova Scotia, on May 13.

The ferry, purchased for $20 million from a Swedish line, is licensed to carry 1,500 passengers and 250 vehicles. Accommodations include cabins with 800 beds, a 300-seat restaurant, cafeteria, lounge, gambling casino, pubs and a duty-free shop.

New Life For The Forces Seeking Handgun Control

By DON McLEOD
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan held firm to his support of gunowners' rights after he was shot outside a Washington hotel a year ago, but the wounding of a president with a cheap handgun nevertheless gave new life to the struggling gun control movement.

"What we're seeing across the country is a resurgence and new people coming into the handgun control movement in many different states," said Charles Orasin, executive vice president of Handgun Control, Inc.

Morton Grove, Ill., population 24,000, put itself on the map earlier this year with a local ordinance banning handguns. In Chicago, the City Council has passed a measure prohibiting the registration of new handguns after April 9.

Friendship Heights, Md., a suburb of the nation's capital, found itself prevented by a state law from banning handguns, so it tried the next best thing: banning the bullets to go in them. That one is still caught up in a legal argument, but the fever is spreading.

In Massachusetts, a move is afoot to outlaw snub-nose pistols, while a licensing and registration law is being considered in Ohio. The Maryland legislature has pending a bill to outlaw carrying a handgun outside home or place of business, with a mandatory jail term for violators. Dade County, Fla., is seeking to toughen its gun law. And California has a voters' initiative brewing, this one to cap the supply of handguns.

Movement on gun control is a new development. Public opinion polls have shown for the past 50 years that most people would like some effective controls on handguns, but that opinion never became an emotional issue to most voters — and most of the voters that did care opposed controls.

Orasin believes the assassination of former Beatle John Lennon in New York on Dec. 8, 1980, was seismic in its effect, because it stirred a generation that had not been involved in the gun issue before.

"The John Lennon tragedy really sensitized the Beatles generation," Orasin said. "This is a very new, young generation, a large group of people that can vote, are acquiring property, becoming taxpayers, the future leaders."

"And the poll data we're seeing is that the intensity of support for handgun control is much higher in this group than among older people," Orasin said. "So, as each year passes, they'll have a greater influence on the handgun control debate."

The Reagan shooting, on March 30, 1981, reached even more people, Orasin reasons. "To begin with, because of television," he said, "you had almost an instant replay of how the president was shot, and millions of Americans saw how a small, easily concealed handgun was able to penetrate this Secret Service protection and almost kill the president."

The attempt had a greater effect because the victim was a Republican and a conservative, Orasin said.

"What you find is that many conservatives who in the past had either not spoken out for handgun control or had taken no position on it, after this shooting were prompted to say something has to be done," Orasin said.

"Because the focus became narrow. It was no longer gun control — not rifles and shotguns — but specifically handgun control, pistols and revolvers," Orasin continued. "So, in that one incident the debate was focused and they saw exactly what people were talking about, just concealable handguns."

"The issue had always been looked upon as a liberal Democratic issue. Now it's an issue for all parties, all ages, all religions, all colors. People realize something has to be done," Orasin said.

At the time Lennon was shot, Handgun Control, Inc., which is generally considered the spearhead of the control movement, was struggling.

Compared to the National Rifle Association's 2 million members and $40 million budget, Handgun Control, Inc., had a mailing list of about 65,000 and was running an office and small staff on about $1 million a year.

In the weeks after Lennon was shot, Handgun Control's mailings brought in an unexpected $300,000. The group's leaders were pondering how to use this windfall when Reagan was shot. They decided to sink almost the

Repledging Their Vows

NEW YORK (UPI) — Renewal of marriage vows years after the wedding is a rapidly growing trend among all three major religions in the United States, says an article in the April issue of Ladies' Home Journal.

The survey article says repledging the wedding vows "seems to be most common among Roman Catholics, who were at the vanguard of the Marriage Encounter movement."

"During a Marriage Encounter weekend, couples learn how to communicate better with each other, and they attend a religious service where they are asked to renew their vows. Since its introduction from Spain in 1967, the Marriage Encounter experience has spread to the Jewish faith and such Protestant denominations as Lutheran, Methodist, Presbyterian and United Church of Christ," said Diane Campbell, spokeswoman for Worldwide Marriage Encounter.

The magazine article quotes Ann Scharffenberger as saying couples' reasons for renewing their vows varied. She is co-author of a forthcoming book on the marriage renewal trend.

She says many had a civil ceremony the first time around and wanted a religious ceremony. Some had highly personal reasons, such as the couple in their 20s who wanted the ceremony to coincide with the baptism of their second son. Others said they renewed their vows in an effort to save their marriage.

The pastries are designed to be heated in a conventional oven or microwave and conventional in sequence. If heated in a microwave oven only, the pastry is not crisp.

Hungry Kid Has Friend In McIntosh

By DEBBYE HALE
Associated Press Writer
LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Like an evangelist saving souls, Say McIntosh walks the aisles of his restaurant, feeding young bodies and minds as he delivers his gospel.

"Everybody go to church yesterday?" he asks.

Ten little hands go up as the children work down a second bowl of Cap'n Crunch cereal, the last bites of a scrambled egg or a hunk of a cinnamon bun.

McIntosh waves a wad of dollar bills and says: "Who's the first person you should put in your life?"

"God!" the youngsters shout.

He hands a dollar to the child who answered first.

"Who's the first person you respect?" he continues.

"Yourself!" they say.

Out comes another dollar.

"When you finish school and start making good money, what are you going to do with it?" McIntosh says.

"Give it to the church," one child says.

"Save it for your kids," another says.

"Help people who don't have any," a third says.

"Right," he says and forks out a dollar.

"And the only way you can do that is to finish school," he says. "So, I don't want to see any more F's."

The questions continue as the youngsters enter the cafe by ones, twos and threes and sit down to a free plate of pancakes or eggs, bacon and toast.

To many, McIntosh, 38, is known as the man who spent $11,000 on gifts for poor kids last year. To others, he's the man who unsuccessfully ran for lieutenant governor two years ago and tied himself to a cross last summer to demand a meeting with Gov. Frank White. He was protesting White's appointments to state positions.

But to a poor kid with an empty stomach, he's a man with a big heart — a man 120 hungry kids can count on for a free breakfast before they go to school each day.

McIntosh spends $125 to $150 a day for the food program. It is money he earns from his restaurant, which he named after himself. He also has received a few private donations.

"This program would probably cost the federal government $1 million to do, and then six months later from now when they got the program started they could serve two breakfasts and be out of money," he said.

McIntosh began the program in January while giving away holiday dinners. He noticed many hungry children. "For a kid to eat three plates of black-eyed peas and hog jowls and candied yams and corn bread, I realized that they evidently weren't eating breakfast," he said. "Not only were they not eating breakfast, but some of them were going to bed without any supper."

To make sure the minds of children are fed as well, he keeps one of the 14 tables in his restaurant laden with notebook paper, pencils and other school supplies. He spends about $65 a week on the supplies.

He also teaches the children to work. Seven help wait on tables for $1 a week. He also pays $1 for each "A" grade and $5 to the child with the best attitude each week.

"We're trying to show these kids some love, some affection and hope that people will start saying, 'Well, if he gets up and feeds that many kids, I can get up and feed my own kids.' I want kids and the parents to learn how to feed themselves," he said.

"These kids probably won't see a dollar no more until I give them another one," he said. "If I thought I could buy up all these kids' minds, if I thought a dollar would help them change their attitude, then I would buy whatever. If you could buy happiness, if you could buy kids to realize that somebody cares about them... then I would."

McIntosh says the program financially hurts him.

"But if I had to be broke," he said, "I couldn't think of a better way. This is what I like doing — working and helping people."

Ecologist Is Only 10 But Speaks Out

By BRUCE HANDLER
Associated Press Writer
RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — She speaks out against "unethical drug distribution by multinational pharmaceutical firms in Third World countries." She wants to "ban non-biodegradable detergents" and "stop money-hungry real estate developers from destroying natural ecosystems."
Manuela Pinho de Azevedo Souza has been sounding off like this at protest demonstrations and in television interviews since she was 7 years old.

She's now 10 years old. And she says she thinks it's time to present her views directly to United Nations Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar in New York.

"Children should be concerned about what's being done to the world they're going to inherit," Manuela said in a recent interview. "If adults keep destroying the environment, there won't be anything left for us when we're grown up."

"It's true that adults have all the power. But I think we kids can do some consciousness raising. After all, it's for everybody's good."
Manuela, a fourth grader, combines her adult-like concerns and vocabulary with kid-style fun such as imitating TV reporters and playing with her teddy bears or her pet turtle, "Robert Redford."

She said television brought larger world issues home to her when she was 7.

"I saw newscasts on television showing factories polluting our rivers and lakes and real estate developers putting up apartment buildings on what used to be green space," she added. "I decided I wanted to do something about it."

With the backing of her father, an actor, and her mother, a theatrical publicist, Manuela formed a group called Children in Defense of Nature.

She solicited memberships from other youngsters throughout Brazil. Then she organized protest demonstrations in Rio de Janeiro. She even wrote letters to the president of the country, Joao Figueiredo, a former army general.

"Manuela's not so much different from other children," said her mother, Betti, 36. "What happened in her case was that someone listened to her. Children say lots of important things. But usually nobody pays any attention to them."

It took two letters from Manuela to get Figueiredo to write back saying his administration will devote its "full interest toward giving the country modern, efficient ecology-defense legislation."

Manuela says that if she can get supporters to send her to the United Nations in New York and if she gets an audience with Perez de Cuellar, "I'll talk about things in general to start. I won't lay my pitch on him right away."

"But then, after I've gotten his attention, I'll hit him with the ecology defense petition from our Brazilian children's movement."

Despite the fact her native language is Portuguese, Manuela says she won't have any trouble talking to the secretary-general, a Peruvian whose native language is Spanish. Manuela said that when she was in Spain last year at the invitation of a service organization there called Plus Ultra International, "I learned Spanish in two weeks."

Manuela added that she stopped briefly in France, where she tried to make an alliance between Children in Defense of Nature and a French ecological organization called Amis de la Terre — French for Friends of the Earth.

"They were interested, but they really were more 'into' nuclear reactors," she said. "But that's okay. I understood."

A selection from the thoughts of Manuela Pinho de Azevedo Souza on ecology:

"Some municipal governments in Brazil are dredging and filling in lagoons to create more city land to build on. That's crazy. They destroy ecosystems and then they have to spend money to resuscitate the lagoons."

Lowe's Pricing Policy:

Many items in this tabloid carry a reference retail price. The reference is intended to provide a guide to the range of retail selling prices in our area and may be useful in identifying different units of the same manufacturer. An item's reference retail price is either the manufacturer's suggested retail price or our determination of its full retail price based on prices at which it or similar merchandise is offered by principal retailers (department stores, specialty shops and other non-discount sellers) in our selling area. While we believe our reference retail prices do not appreciably exceed the highest retail prices at which sales are made in our selling area, we cannot assure you that our reference retail prices, as described above, represent the prices in every community on any given day. Some items in this advertisement are listed at "regular" selling prices. The merchandise is offered at this price except during a special sale. The purpose of showing a reference retail price (or a regular price) is to assist you, our customer, in making a knowledgeable and better informed buying decision. We suggest that you also do comparative shopping and compare our prices. (Prices in this tabloid do not include delivery charges. Ask us about delivery rates.)
Lowe's Raincheck Policy: If we sell out of an advertised item, we'll issue you a raincheck. When we restock, you'll be notified so you can buy at the previously advertised price (except for products marked "Limited Quantities"). Our smaller stores may not stock all advertised items. But every item shown here can be ordered for you.
