When Truck, Train Collide

TRUCK COLLIDES WITH TRAIN — A truck collided with a train Monday afternoon injuring one person. According to the Highway Patrol, a truck driven by Leslie Mills Stokes of Route 3, Greenville, was headed east on rural paved road 1708 when the truck struck the engine of a southbound Seaboard Coastline train. The engineer of the train was identified as Steve Wayne Crickmore of Rocky Mount. Damage to the truck was placed at $6,000 and damage to the train was estimated at $500. Members of the Winterville Rescue and Fire Department responded to the call. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

Northeast Raked By New Spring Storms

By ANDY O'CONNELL, Associated Press Writer

An April snowstorm approaching "unheard of" intensity hit the big cities of the Northeast today, shutting down schools and disrupting travel, while residents of many Midwestern communities suffered their coldest day ever so late in the season.

Residents of New York City, Boston and elsewhere across New Jersey and New England were warned to batten down for a record blizzard with more than a foot of snow.

"A blizzard is unheard of here in the month of April," said an advisory from the National Weather Service in New York City. "We have had two 10-inch snowfalls in April in the past — in 1915 and in 1975 — but blizzard conditions were not met during either of them."

Veteran New York newscaster Jim Donnelly of WCBS, commenting that he had never heard such dire winter weather warnings in his city, added this footnote: "On this date in 1909, Admiral Robert Peary reached the North Pole. Today, the North Pole came to us."

Snow from the approaching blizzard hit New York and Boston just before dawn, snarling rush hour traffic, closing most schools and numerous businesses, and causing countless accidents.

"Road conditions are terrible," said Massachusetts state Trooper John Ross at the Framingham barracks near Boston. "There are numerous multiple-car accidents and injuries everywhere. We're going crazy."

One pileup on Interstate 495 near Marlboro involved 50 cars and another on Route 128 involved 15 cars.

At least five people were killed Monday as the storms whistled from Iowa to Ohio, dropping up to a foot of snow and building 4-foot drifts.

The weather service said all weather stations in Iowa this morning reported record lows for the date, and in most cities it was the coldest ever so late in the season. Cedar Rapids, Burlington, Bingham, Ottumwa and Waterloo all set records for the month of April.

The reading of 19 at Springfield, Ill., and 11 below at International Falls, Minn., also set April records.

Tentatively Extend City Role

By STUART SAVAGE, Reflector Staff Writer

The Pitt County Board of Commissioners Monday gave tentative approval to an extension of the city of Greenville's extraterritorial jurisdiction area east of the eastern bypass.

Recommended by the county Planning Board, commissioners extended the city's extraterritorial jurisdiction area to include property owned by Eaton Corp., Greenville Industries, J. H. Hudson, T. J. Warren and John Moore, providing they have no objection to the extension.

The board also gave its approval: to Independence Acres Subdivision, addition one, at Galloways Crossroads; an extension of the lease for the "A" wing of the county office building — used by the East Carolina University School of Medicine — from June 30 to Aug. 31, at the request of the N.C. Department of Administration state property office; to the Department of Transportation's secondary road bond funds program; and to the transfer of operation of the cafeteria at the county office building from ARA Inc. to Vermillion Vending Service of Kinston.

In other business, commissioners appointed Mrs. Robert Van Veld, president of the Greenville Service League, and Bernice B. Turnage of Farmville, to the Pitt County Memorial Hospital Board of Trustees, and scheduled budget hearings to begin at 1 p.m. Thursday.

The board also tentatively scheduled a public hearing on the Tar River Port Commission for 1:30 p.m. April 19, pending agreement of the Greenville City Council.

Commissioners voted to readvertise for bids for construction of the solid waste container site at the Port Terminal and construction of a building at the county garage after only two bids were received.

Housing Authority Subsidy Gets Increase Due A Budget Revision

By TOM BAINES, Reflector Staff Writer

The Housing Authority has been notified by the Department of Housing and Urban Development that the authority's operating subsidy for the 1981 fiscal year has been increased by $116,844 through a budget revision.

Joe Laney, executive director, said Monday night that the authority had expected to receive only 85 percent of its operating subsidy but HUD now says the agency will receive 96.5 percent of the funds, relative to performance system eligibility and utility costs.

Laney said there will be no more funds under the 1981 operating subsidy and the commissioners adopted a resolution acknowledging that the $116,844 closes out the subsidy.

Ken Noland, director of operations, said he has discussed with two agencies the computerization of the authority's payroll operations and it appears now that the payroll will be on computers in 30 to 40 days at reasonable costs. He said 27 employees are involved in the pay period data and he suggested that it will be "cost effective" to utilize automation in figuring the payrolls.

Noland said maintenance crews have painted 45 of the authority's housing units since the first of October and he reported that efforts are being made to get to some of the oldest apartments. He said that crews hope to work on at least 60 to 70 percent of the units during the year.

The spokesman said a drainage problem exists in the Bradley Street section of Kearney Park and the city has offered to handle repair work if the authority will purchase the necessary pipe.

Laney said drainage on both sides of Bradley Street has been a long time problem that should be alleviated. He said sufficient money should be available in the agency's operational funds to cover the expenses.

The director reported that the audit for the 24-month period ending Sept. 30 has been completed and all but two of the recommendations involved in the report have been resolved. He said a reconciliation of the agency's refrigerator inventory with the books is nearly complete and HUD has asked that the authority adopt a resolution addressing a written policy on investment strategy. Commissioners adopted the suggested policy document.

Laney said Section 8 program activity is progressing well

WATER HEATER INSUFFICIENT

I bought a water heater from a plumber who'd purchased it from Buck Supply Co. It's always run out of hot water, but is worse at some times than at others. The plumber has checked it out several times and he also has had someone from Buck Supply check on it. It still doesn't work properly. J.M.

Janice Buck, owner and operator of Buck Supply Co., said she has already sent a plumbing specialist out to check on your heater. But after our call, she also had an electrician go check it. No one can find anything wrong with it. If there were something discernibly wrong, Mrs. Buck said she would be glad to submit the reasons why it should be replaced to the manufacturer and work with them to replace it. But since there's nothing she can report, she does not feel this would be the responsible thing to do. The electrician says he believes you have a tank that is not as large as your family's hot water use demands. In his opinion, you'll either have to live with it or invest in a bigger capacity water heater or more than one water heater in your house.

Four Items Approved At City School Bd. Meet

By JERRY RAYNOR, Reflector Staff Writer

Approvals on four items — seeking alternative funding to continue a Title IV-C Project, two budget amendments, a field trip and three personnel actions — were made Monday night at the April information meeting of the Greenville Board of Education.

Following a presentation by Wende Allen on the progress and current status of a multisensory science program to help regular classroom teachers teach educably handicapped students, the board voted approval for Superintendent Delma Blinson and the school staff to seek alternative funding to continue the program.

Software (instructional books and student practice materials) and hardware (kits of various types) are both integral components of the program which was originally funded by ESEA Title IV-C funds for a four-year period. These funds have been cut to a three-year support, which means this school year is the final one funded by the federal source. Ann Harrison of the city school staff and Dr. Charles Coble of the department of science education, East Carolina University, have provided guidance and assistance to Wende Allen in developing the program.

The Greenville program for science instruction for the handicapped in regular classrooms has drawn considerable attention throughout the state as well as at the national level. There has been an indication of interest expressed on the part of a publisher of educational material to assemble and publish the program. The board concurred in a proposal to have the superintendent look into the legality and practical aspects of possible publication.

Dr. Coble, who has followed the progress of the program, stated that in his evaluation he found "evident progress has been made through the program to improve cognizant skills of students. It definitely has educational significance."

He added, "We hope you will extend an opportunity for ECU to become more involved. This program needs to be known, to be used widely, not just stay in the Greenville City Schools."

The two budget amendments approved were Amendment No. 3 of the State Public School Fund and Amendment No. 6 of the Federal Grants Fund. The state amendment represents an increase of $16,903 in that category of funds, with the major portion earmarked for special instructional and business support purposes. The amendment in the federal grants budget is for an increase of $3,000 for the ESEA IV-C allotment.

The field trip approved is for elementary students to take a field trip on May 7-8 to Carteret County. The trip will be for the purpose of studying the ecosystem of a barrier island.

In personnel action, Dr. Eugene Piner, principal of Wahl-Coates Laboratory School, submitted his plan to retire effective May 31, and Wesley Thomas, a part-time music teacher, has resigned. Kim Jordan was elected as an interim teacher for a third grade class at Sadie Sautler School.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Abe Fortas, who became the first Supreme Court justice in history to resign under fire when he left the nation's highest court in disgrace 13 years ago, is dead at age 71.

Fortas, who only two weeks ago returned to argue his first case before the Supreme Court since leaving it, was dead on arrival at Georgetown University Hospital Monday night.

The cause of death was reported as a heart attack.

Shortly before his March 22 appearance before the court, Fortas had told The Associated Press in a rare interview that he would continue practicing law "until my clients retire me or the Lord retires me."

Fortas resigned from the court May 15, 1969, following the disclosure that he had agreed to accept a $20,000 annual fee from a foundation headed by an imprisoned financier Louis E. Wolfson.

Fortas had been named to the high court four years earlier by President Lyndon B. Johnson, whom he had known since Johnson was a Texas congressman's assistant.

In his relatively brief tenure on the court, Fortas established himself as a deep-thinker and a staunch member of the predominant liberal wing under then-Chief Justice Earl Warren.

One of Fortas' best-known opinions while on the court extended to juvenile offenders the right to a lawyer's help and to other protections enjoyed by adults charged with crimes.

"Under our Constitution, the condition of being a boy does not justify a kangaroo court," Fortas wrote.

Fortas was a Washington insider long before he became a Supreme Court justice, most notably as a trusted confidant and adviser to Johnson.

While he was in private law practice, the Supreme Court appointed Fortas in 1963 to argue on behalf of a Florida prison inmate in a case that led to a landmark decision: penitents people charged with serious crimes have a right to free legal help.

He also won appeals to the court that overturned teachers' loyalty oaths and established the precedent that an accused person is not criminally responsible if his unlawful act was the result of mental disease or mental defect.

Asked in the recent AP interview to comment on the court under Chief Justice Warren E. Burger — which has been criticized for trimming back some of the individual rights Fortas helped to expand during his time on the high court — the ex-justice said "taste and decorum" prevented him from public comment.

Thatcher Refuses Quit Over Crisis-Handling

By The Associated Press

British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher today refused to resign over her handling of the Falkland Islands' crisis.

Asked by opposition Labor Party legislator Robert Cryer in the House of Commons whether she was "considering an early resignation" because of Argentina's seizure of the islands, she declared:

"No. Now is the time for strength and resolution."

She also announced a total embargo on the import of Argentine goods effective at midnight tonight.

In Brussels, her government asked the NATO allies to put economic pressure on Argentina, including a ban on arms sales and the withholding of export credits.

Mrs. Thatcher's foreign minister already has resigned, and she had been expected to face calls to quit in the House of Commons and be questioned about intelligence reports received in advance of the Argentine invasion Friday.

Reports in The Times and Daily Telegraph quoted intelligence sources in Buenos Aires as saying Mrs. Thatcher's government knew of an imminent attack on the Falklands in the last week of March "and yet they chose to ignore it totally."

Fears that Mrs. Thatcher might be forced to resign caused panic selling on the London Stock Exchange for the second day.

At one point shares lost nearly $5.25 billion in value before a midday recovery. Just before the close, the Financial Times industrial index was down 11.5 at 548.4. The British pound fell 2 cents to just under $1.75, its lowest point since 1977.

"It's a bloodbath. Selling is coming from all sources. People are taking their profits while they still can," said one broker.

Stock values dropped $4.4 billion Monday, the biggest one-day loss of the year.

Meanwhile, the Defense Department said it will take over "quite a few British merchant ships" to carry troops, heavy equipment, fuel and supplies to support the British convoy sailing to the Falklands. British Petroleum said some of its tankers were among those chartered.

Warns Alcoholism Can 'Devastate' Any Family

By CAROL TYER, Reflector Staff Writer

Alcoholism is one of the most devastating illnesses that can strike any family, according to Marty McGuire, associate director of the East Carolina University Alcoholism Training Program.

His program, a component of the ECU School of Allied Health and Social Professions, is involved in giving a seminar titled "A Family Affair, When Drinking Hurts," being held today, tonight and tomorrow at Mendenhall Student Center.

"There's been much public attention lately," McGuire said, "to driving while driving and this is good, but it's only part of the larger problem with which families need to realize they can deal in positive ways."

One of the strongest and best organizations for anyone having alcoholism or excessive drinking problems in the family is Al Anon, an organization especially for families of alcoholics, he said. Al-Anon, an offspring of Al Anon, is for children of alcoholics. Both allow the participants to see that they are not the only ones and teach them ways to deal with the alcoholic and his problems and those of the family to which he or she con-

COOKING IS FUN

By CECILY BROWNSTONE

SUNDAY BRUNCH
Ham and Egg Sandwiches on Processor Bread
Fruit Coffee
PROCESSOR BREAD
Old-time Southern "light bread" made the modern way.

1 package dry yeast
1 teaspoon sugar
1-3rd cup warm water (105 to 115 degrees)
6 cups fork-stirred all-purpose flour
4 pats (1 tablespoon each) butter, at room temperature
2 teaspoons salt
1 and 2-3rds cups cold water

Dissolve the yeast and sugar in the warm water. In a 5-cup capacity food processor, with the kneading blade, process the flour, butter pats (distributed over the flour) and salt for 20 seconds. Remove cover and add yeast mixture. With machine running, through the feed tube, pour the cold water in a steady stream as fast as the flour mixture absorbs it — about 30 seconds. Continue processing until dough begins to form a ball; continue processing about 1 more minute to knead. Shape dough into a ball; place in a buttered mixing bowl; turn to butter top. Cover bowl; let rise in a draft-free warm place (80 degrees) until doubled — about 1 hour. Punch down dough; shape into 2 loaves and place each in a buttered 9 by 5 by 3-inch loaf pan. Cover; let rise as before until doubled — 1 hour. Bake on the rack below center in a preheated 375-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in the center comes out clean — about 40 minutes. Turn out on wire racks to cool. Makes 2 loaves.

Dear Pat: I have a suggestion that may be useful for other knitters who, like myself, are handicapped in the use of their arms. Since contracting polio, I have found that I can knit by using circular needles exclusively.

I am unable to hold my left arm up with the straight needles, which causes the needles to get caught in the chair sides. This problem is eliminated with the circulars. When directions call for straight needles I still use my circulars, simply turning the work and working back and forth as usual.

When it dawned on me that this was my solution, it seemed like a gift from heaven, believe me. — Evelyn S., Glenview, Ill.

Even for those of us blessed with full use of our arms, this is a good hint, Evelyn. I started using the circular needles almost exclusively a few years ago when I was doing a great deal of traveling by air and wanted to avoid any chance of jabbing a seat mate with the ends of my knitting needles. It also eliminates the possibility of losing one of a pair of matched needles.

As you indicated, you can do either straight or tubular knitting with circular needles. For the beginner, I might mention that circular needles are made all in one piece with a tip at either end, joined together with a plastic or nylon tubing.

When you use them for tubular knitting, there is just one thing you should be sure to watch out for. When you join the piece together after casting on, be sure that the stitches are not twisted on the needle.

That is, the smooth portion of every stitch should be on top of the needles and the "bumpy" part should be on the bottom surface of the needle. If you do not take this precaution, your work may be hopelessly twisted. Unfortunately, this won't become apparent to you until several rows are worked and the problem cannot be corrected.

If your stitches are twisted, you will just have to rip out and start over. If you are not certain if your stitches are twisted or not, work two or three rows back and forth as if you were working on straight needles and then join your work at the beginning of the next row.

This will require you to make a tiny little seam at the beginning of your piece, but this is a small effort compared to that involved in ripping and re-knitting an entire piece.

Once you have a collection of circular needles in many sizes, you will find yourself taking many shortcuts. For example, you can almost always work the body of garments in one piece — thus eliminating any side seams — by joining and working together the front and back sections.

Just add together the total number of stitches needed for each piece and cast them all on at once. It is usually a good idea to place markers on the needle after the stitches of each section have been cast on to indicate the position where side seams would fall.

Circular needles are often more expensive than straight needles, but if you buy them as you need a certain size, the slight additional cost won't put a big dent in your budget.

Dear Abby

AA Plugged By Reader

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I've been meaning to write this letter for a long time — 10 months to be exact — because that's how long I've been sober. I'm 34 and didn't even start drinking until I was 26.

I didn't know I was an alcoholic until I read the "test" in your column, and after answering the questions truthfully, I realized I was.

You said that Alcoholics Anonymous was the best, so I went to a meeting, and what I found there was exactly what I needed. The open discussions helped me to see the light. My sincere thanks for helping me to save myself years of misery. About A.A.'s spiritual program: There may be lots of people like myself who aren't religious at all, and might shy away from A.A. because they don't believe in any kind of "God." But if they go, they'll find a new kind of faith. Please keep telling people about A.A., Abby. Some people make it on the third or even fourth try!

SOBER AND LOVING IT

DEAR SOBER: Thanks for writing. I know I sound like a broken record plugging A.A. as I do, but if only one person is helped today, it will be worth space in my column. A.A. is in your phone book. There's a chapter near you. It doesn't cost a dime, and could be worth a million.

DEAR ABBY: A 75-year-old woman wrote to say that when her 77-year-old husband was 30, due to a bungled operation, he had lost all desire for sex, but over the years they had experienced an intimacy that would not be believed by the present generation that thinks all there is to marriage is sex. She said, "When we cuddle up in each other's arms on a cold winter night, we achieve a more lasting closeness than the couples who make love for three minutes, then leave each other to go sleep in separate bedrooms."

Abby, when I read that, I cried. How I wish I had what she had. I love my husband, but I feel closer to him when he just holds me until I fall asleep than when he makes love to me, rolls over and goes to sleep with his back toward me.

Sometimes I pray that he will become impotent. To me, cuddling and holding expresses genuine "love." The sex part is just selfish animal gratification.

I am 20, and I think the younger generation is changing because most of my girlfriends say they don't like sex any more than I do. Some women just hide it better.

Abby, impotent men have as much going for them as the men who aren't. And if they can't find a woman to love them for who and what they are, tell them to come to Arkansas. LOVES LOVE, NOT SEX

DEAR LOVES: Thanks for a potent letter.

DEAR ABBY: "Lacking Love and Hating It" blames his wife because he had a heart attack. He claims his doctor told him that withholding sex causes sexual tension, which in turn causes heart attacks in men. I can't believe a doctor would make such a statement. As though men were the only ones with sexual tension!

"Lacking Love" should take a good long look at himself. I'll bet he's a slob who smells like a brewery, abuses his wife, then gets mad because she's not in the mood to make love. There are a lot of men like that around. You see them every day in the corner bars complaining because their wives are "cold."

CONFIDENTIAL TO "QUIET IN KOKOMO": Better to remain silent and be thought a fool than to speak and remove all doubt. (P.S. Today is April Fool's Day.)

Are you considering a luxury cruise? There is some information that will help you with your selection of a cabin. Assignment of the cabins in each rate category are usually made in the order in which the bookings are received and payments made. A preferred position is one which enjoys a close proximity to dining rooms, shops and the ship's center of gravity. It is here that the perceived sense of motion is minimal. These preferred cabins are often available upon request. The later your booking, the more forward, or rear of center your cabin will be. Later bookings also frequently go to the lower decks with or even without portholes instead of windows.

QUICKOTE TRAVELS INC. has the kind of information that will make your travel planning and traveling easier and more efficient. We can help you plan a luxury cruise or a quick business trip to New York. With our computer and our experience, we make sure you get the reservations you want fast. We make it our business to keep up with all fare and schedule changes, as well as with groups and special tours. We're at 319 Colasche St., 758-3458.

TRAVEL TIP: On a luxury cruise, there is little perceived difference in ride, regardless of cabin position, except in very rough seas.

Practical Stage Ahead

Space shuttle Columbia returned to earth last week, one day late because of a windstorm at the White Sands Missile Range, N.M.

The crew and the backup on earth had demonstrated something new on this flight, however. They had shown that the mission could easily withstand a delay and return to earth at a time not previously scheduled.

Return to earth from space has been done a number of times now. From the first orbit of the earth, through the manned landings on the moon and now the shuttle flights, the returns through the atmosphere have been almost flawless for the United States' space program.

Nevertheless there is still intense interest in the returns and it is always exciting to see the space vehicles appear in the skies and land safely.

So far the man in space program has cost billions, and the direct return has not been so evident. Soon, however, space shuttles will routinely leave the earth to take up new communications satellites, adjust or repair old ones and to perform other space tasks which can benefit mankind.

That this is now possible is the sum of all the work which has gone on before. It is due to the efforts of all the astronauts, including the crew and technicians which made the current Columbia flight possible.

Social Security Needs Work

It's been heard before. Trustees of the Social Security program say the fund will run out of money by July, 1983 if Congress doesn't act to improve the situation.

The three Social Security trust funds, even combined, will run out of money a year earlier than had been anticipated.

With all its problems it is evident that the Social Security program is extremely popular in this nation. It would not be politically practical to allow it to deteriorate. The money will be found to keep the program operating, but there also will have to be a more careful study made of projected benefits from the program and the administration of current benefits.

Relying On Habit? Remedy Usually Worse

By P.T. O'CONNOR

RALEIGH — You have to give credit to a guy like Sen. Henson Barnes. He may be beating his head against a wall but at least he's willing to take his bumps and bruises.

Barnes, a Goldsboro Democrat, is the principal, and practically sole, spokesman for the state constitutional amendment that would double legislators' terms to four years. Lined up against him is an array of state political and civic leaders, including three former governors, and the fairly well-organized Committee to Keep the Two-Year Term.

That Barnes should be so alone in his fight is a bit surprising. When the amendment came to the legislature last year, it received 37 yes votes in the Senate and 72 in the House. To become law, it will have to be approved by the voters in the spring (or summer) primary.

To be fair, it should be noted that several other legislators have shown their heads on the issue. Rep. Martin Lancaster, D-Wayne, who led the House floor fight for the bill, has filled in for Barnes in several debates. Rep. Louise Brennan, D-Mecklenburg, wrote a newspaper article and has scheduled a TV debate on the issue.

But it has been left primarily to Barnes to carry the banner. "I go about as many times as I get invited" to speak on the subject, he said. "I don't travel any farther west than Raleigh during the week." He's been to Durham and Winston-Salem on recent weekends.

What Barnes is doing, he's doing on his own. He has no financial backing, no network of county committees working for passage of the amendment. When he drives to a debate, he buys his own gas.

"When I argued for this on the floor of the Senate, I promised not to organize, not to raise any money," Barnes said. "I'm putting it out there, I'm not trying to propagandize the people. I will accept any decision they make."

Tom Gilmore, former assistant secretary of human resources, former legislator and current leader of the anti-amendment forces, says he thinks those who favor the amendment want minimal debate and public exposure.

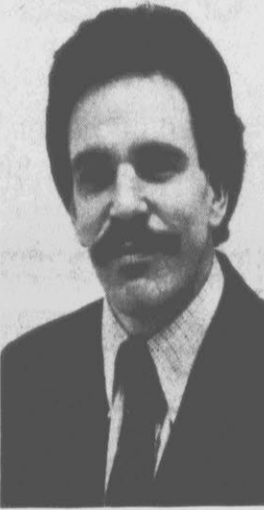

"I'm concerned that there has been very little debate on this issue," he said. "The proponents are not speaking out. Knowing the history of constitutional amendments in this state — they've all passed, 23 out of the last 24 going back to 1968 — they are intentionally not organizing. They want little discussion. It's about the last thing on the ballot and they'll work quietly for it. People are in the habit of voting yes in this state."

Several Legislators who voted for the amendment and who still support it said they won't work for its approval. "I'm not going to make it a campaign issue because I think there are far more important issues to be decided," said Rep. Ruth Cook, D-Wake.

Lancaster said legislators have been scared away from the issue. He said some legislators have told him they will work for the amendment this year if they are not opposed. "They've told me they don't want to get an opponent just because they're in favor of 4-year terms," Lancaster said.

Mrs. Cook said the issue "is being presented in a very negative way and some legislators may be concerned that the voters will perceive it to be self-serving." Barnes, for his part, plans

WASHINGTON — The rule changes just adopted by the Democratic National Committee, having to do with presidential delegate selection in 1984, will be of primary interest to political junkies, but the changes have a larger interest also: They teach us one more lesson on the nature of "reform."

The lesson is this: However bad a situation may be, the reforms adopted as a remedy almost always will be worse.

No one who attended the Democratic National Convention of 1968 is likely ever to forget the spectacle. Before those tumultuous four days in Chicago had ended, we saw 12,000 cops, 7,500 army regulars and 7,500 National Guardsmen in action; we saw barbed wire, tear gas and mounted police. More to the point, in the convention itself we saw the power of the old pols fully employed to crush the young liberals and moderates who supported Eugene McCarthy. The McCarthy forces won on a motion to abolish the unit rule, but they lost on everything else.

Out of that shattering experience emerged a demand for "reforms," and out of that demand emerged the Commission on Party Structure of the delegates were attending their first convention.

These amateurs proceeded to nominate Senator McGovern, who proceeded to lose in November by a margin of 18 million votes.

Subsequent conventions saw some minor relaxations in the rules, but nothing of great consequence. The 1980 convention was a rubber-stamp affair, dominated by such special interest groups as the schoolteachers and the feminist apostles of abortion and the Equal Rights Amendment. Sen. Edward Kennedy's effort to uncommit the committed delegates failed abysmally. The convention proceeded to renominate Mr. Carter, who proceeded to lose in November by a margin of 8.4 million votes.

In the aftermath of that disaster, sanity began to return. A fresh reform committee was created, with an assignment to reform the 1972 reforms. In 1984 the party will take some modest steps back toward the old pols and the smoke-filled rooms. Roughly 200 Democratic members of Congress, plus another 350 state and local elected officials, will be guaranteed seats as uncommitted delegates. The 1984 delegates no longer will be shackled with handcuffs and leg irons to the candidate in whose name they ran; it will be required only that they "reflect in good conscience the sentiments of those who elected them."

Other changes adopted last month also move in a sensible direction. The Iowa caucuses will be held late in February, rather than in early January. The first primary in New Hampshire will be the first Tuesday in March. Wisconsin will be prohibited from

To the editor:

Greenville can be especially proud of two fourth graders, Laura Guy and Ainsley Avery, who organized the Children's Petition Drive at Carolina East Mall this past Friday and Saturday.

Thanks to these two girls and the other children who helped, over 1,000 persons signed a petition asking President Reagan and Congress not to cut federal education funds for remedial reading and math instruction, vocational education and handicapped students.

The efforts of these school children ought to be a model for all of us. They understand the harm that federal budget cuts will do to local schools. And they believe that people — even kids — have a responsibility to let Washington know what they think.

To the editor:

I would like to take the time to commend our Public Works Department, Street Maintenance Division. Friday, Mar. 26, at 3 p.m. I called to report two bad chuckholes in the streets in my neighborhood. I was told that they would "look into it."

By the time I started home at 5:30, both of these holes (and others) had already been filled in.

I was pleasantly surprised to get such a quick response and just wanted to let the city know that our neighborhood appreciates its efforts.

Strength For Today

TENSION IS NOT WHOLLY BAD

We hear a great deal today about the disadvantages and dangers of tension. There is no doubt that a tense life often induces high blood pressure, heart disease and stomach ulcers; but it is not true that if we had no tensions everything would be rosy and life a joyful achievement.

Sir Geoffrey Vickers, chairman of the research committee of the British Mental Health Research Fund, has declared that it is a dangerous fallacy to think that the role of science is "to remove hazards rather than fit us to face them." The mark of mental illness, he goes on, is "the inability of the patient to bear experience. By all means, let us reduce occasions for stress, but stress will remain a characteristic of human life, and it may be that if we could remove it, we would lose what we most need. Security is not to be found in any aspect of life by removing challenge, but only in an inner assurance which no challenge can disturb." — Elisha Douglass

Inflation Cut By Fewer Jobs

By JOHN CUNNIFF

AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — The latest employment reports do as much as anything else to help explain how the rug got pulled out from under inflation.

Some prices are actually declining now, and the rate of increase for consumer prices in general has been reduced to about a 5 percent annual rate, which these days qualifies as acceptable.

And one of these months, some bright-side economists are saying, we might even get the shock of our lives, a price report that shows no inflation at all, at least as measured by the popular averages.

But there is a dark side to this, and it is unemployment, and it is getting darker.

The popularly cited job figures tell but part of the story. That, for example, there are 9.9 million unemployed, and that the jobless rate is 9 percent, matching the highest rate since World War Two.

Since when? Obviously there was no higher unemployment rate during the war years, when every able-bodied person and many disabled people were employed. In truth, therefore, it's the highest rate since the 1930s.

That decade, remembered despite the urge to forget as the lamentable decade, encompassed the Great Depression. Officially, today's jobless rate cannot match that of the 1930s, when the rate in one year, 1933, reached nearly 25 percent. But it's the next worst thing.

To the 9.9 million officially unemployed must be added the 5.7 million who have been involuntarily reduced to part-time status, and the 1.3 million not counted because they are said to have given up looking.

That brings the total of people directly affected to 16.9 million, plus an untabulated number of young people who also might remain uncounted because they see no hope of getting summer jobs.

Would Keep Duarte Alive

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Senior Reagan administration officials are so concerned about the physical safety of outgoing President Jose Napoleon Duarte that they are privately suggesting a safe haven for him abroad — as ambassador to the United Nations.

U.S. diplomats, backed by President Reagan, have appealed to dominant right-wing factions that will control the new government to handle Duarte with tender care. Duarte tied himself closely to the Reagan administration during the bitter election campaign. Before that he was the key leader in instituting land reform and other political and economic measures pushed hard by the U.S.

With Duarte out of the running for new president of El Salvador, or any other post in the government, high officials are concerned about his safety in the possible turmoil ahead. "We've got to keep him alive," one official told us.

Haig Aggravates Helms

The enduring feud between Secretary of State Alexander Haig and Sen. Jesse Helms took a nasty turn when Haig cancelled a scheduled April 2 session with Helms' subcommittee on Latin American affairs.

Helms had waited patiently for weeks to hear whether the Reagan administration agrees with him that the Soviet Union has broken its 1962 agreement not to put offensive weapons in Cuba. Haig, wanting to keep that delicate subject under wraps, repeatedly put off the senator.

The latest postponement, however, had an added twist. Sen. Charles H. Percy, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, advised Helms that the matter of Soviet weapons in Cuba is so important it should be considered by the full committee, not just Helms' subcommittee. That puts Percy, far friendlier to Haig than Helms, in the chairman's seat if the hearing is ever held.

Democratic Strategy

In a remarkable fundraising letter sent to Jewish Americans, the Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee links the Reagan administration's sale of AWACS planes to Saudi Arabia to an alleged far right-wing campaign to punish pro-Israeli Democratic senators.

"The goal of the Republicans is to replace 17 anti-AWACS Democratic senators with, new-right Republicans in this year's Senate elections," says the letter signed by ex-senator Frank Church, a staunch supporter of Israel. He charges "the new-right Republicans and their allies in the oil and defense industries" with raising a $50 million war chest against "our friends in the Senate."

A Republican win, says the Church letter, would mean "the further encroachment of Moral Majority factions into our lives" and "diminishing security for the state of Israel." The fact that the Moral Majority's Rev. Jerry Falwell is ardently pro-Israel and pro-Menachem Begin is not allowed to interfere with this remarkable campaign tactic.

The Old Reagan Clout

It took only 20 telephone calls from President Reagan to switch enough Republican senators to sustain his veto of the emergency energy oil allocation bill, strong evidence that the old Reagan political clout has not been lost.

Reagan went to work just before the Senate vote scheduled for March 24 on a Democratic motion to override the veto. The bill had passed the Senate by 85 to 7, meaning that a minimum of 18 senators who voted for the bill would have to switch to sustain the veto. The president did better than that: The motion to override got only 58 "aye" votes.

Two of Reagan's phone calls switched Republican senators Richard Lugar of Indiana and John Heinz of Pennsylvania, but the president failed to budge Sen. Alfonse D'Amato. The New York conservative listened politely but told Reagan he was sorry, he just couldn't support him.

Treasury VS. Fed

Although President Reagan has gagged administration officials from publicly criticizing Federal Reserve Chairman Paul Volcker, that does not stop Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan from egging on Republican congressional leaders to snipe at Volcker's tight money policy.

In recent meetings with senior Republican lawmakers, Regan has asked: Why don't you give Volcker as hard a time on what he is doing to the economy as you give me when he appears before your committees? However, the legislators hold Volcker in such awe that so far they have held their fire.

Unlike most Republicans on Capitol Hill, Regan regards Volcker as part of the problem rather than the solution. He privately reminds friends that until the early 1930s, the secretary of the Treasury served as chairman of the Federal Reserve Board — a situation that Don Regan implies might not be all that bad for the 1980s.

to continue working for the amendment. Despite the forces gathered against him, he thinks the amendment may be approved in the primary. "If the people debate it and begin to realize what's happening in the General Assembly, then there'll be a great chance of its winning."

Even with bi-partisan opposition and a lack of outward support from the people most likely to benefit from it? "Isn't it a virtue to at times tilt at a windmill?" Barnes responds with a shrug of the shoulders.

Kilpatrick Col. ...

These new reforms of the old reforms promise to breathe vitality back into the party conventions. Both party conventions in 1980 suffered from the anti-climactic blahs. Long before the Republicans met in Detroit, Mr. Reagan had the nomination locked up. The Democratic clambake in New York produced Saul Pett's famous lead in an AP dispatch: "Tension did not mount today." The most exciting moment came on the closing night, when the balloons got stuck in a ceiling net and refused to be dislodged.

It was a gross mistake for the Democrats ever to have imposed the McGovern reforms in the first place. After two landslide defeats and one squeaking victory, the party now is downgrading the idealistic amateurs and upgrading the practical pros. The late Mayor Daley, bless his truculent soul, would be greatly pleased.

Two Collisions Here Monday

An estimated $6,400 property damage resulted from two traffic collisions investigated Monday by Greenville police.

Heaviest damage, according to officers, resulted from a 10:03 p.m. collision on Charles Street, 75 feet north of the 14th Street intersection, involving cars driven by Eric Edmunds Bowman of 98 Barnes St. and Mark Andrew Harrell of 118B S. Woodlawn Ave.

Police, who charged Bowman with failing to yield the right of way, estimated damage at $3,500 to the Bowman car and $2,500 to the Harrell vehicle.

An estimated $200 damage resulted to each of two cars involved in an 8 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Dickinson Avenue and 14th Street.

Investigators identified the drivers of the cars involved as Brenda Carol Deene of Route 1, Hubert, and John Michael VanWagenen of 2606 Jackson Drive.

Hope Day Care Center A Reality In Farmville

BY CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer
FARMVILLE — Twins Edwin Gay and Edith Gay Barnes had a dream in the early '70s of giving Farmville something they believed it sorely needed — quality day care for local preschoolers.

Edwin, then a recent graduate of North Carolina A&T State University, started to work on the plan but, in 1973, he was killed in an automobile accident and Mrs. Barnes said it appeared for a while that the dream had died with him.

But day care needs in Farmville continued to be acute and on Feb. 26 of this year, the Gay family formed a non-profit day care corporation and named the center they hope to open soon Edwin Kids' Day Care Center in honor of their deceased brother. There is a seven-member board of directors.

Carlton Gay, Edwin and Edith's brother, is president of the board. He discussed the center's progress at a community meeting held recently. "Our first corporate step was to make a proposal to the town of Farmville to use Southside Recreation Center once it is vacated by the recreation department as a site for the day care center. We propose acquiring the building in exchange for upkeep — paying taxes, making repairs, landscaping and other improvements," he said.

Gay said the center's earnings will be used for education purposes only. "Our plan," he said, "is to return money to the community by supporting other educational organizations and community projects."

Community support is important to the center now, he said. He urged all supporters to attend a Farmville Town Commission meeting tonight at 7:30 o'clock.

"Our hope," Mrs. Barnes said, "is that the community center now being considered by the town will be built and permission will be given for us to use the vacated Southside building."

The Gay family invites community members to volunteer to serve on various committees: the advisory committee which will suggest center changes and improvements; fund-raising to finance the operation; curriculum to design the center's program of study;

tributes. McGuire said it's his opinion that the community needs to become more actively involved in helping families adversely affected by alcohol abuse. "This is not something we can relegate to the mental health professionals only and expect positive change," he said. "We've got to get actively involved ourselves."

The schools have a big opportunity to help, he said, adding that he would estimate conservatively that there are 28 million children in the United States whose lives are now being directly affected by an alcoholic family member. "Teachers and counselors and administrators are not doing their duty to children they observe having problems with school work and relationships at school if they don't try to find out the reason behind it and offer help if it's alcoholism or whatever else," he said.

"Church members and ministers, too, have a duty to help," he said, "to do more than just preach against alcohol use and abuse. Every church has members who are crying out for help from their fellow members and that help should be available through the church."

"Social services workers should be better trained to deal with the problems of alcoholism," he said. "Some 70 to 80 percent of all child and spouse abuse in this state are related to alcohol abuse."

"Physicians and other health professionals have a great opportunity to look beyond the injury and disease processes they treat for the causes which are often alcohol-related."

"Any other disease of this proportion," he said, "would bring out the biggest arsenal of public concern and activity imaginable. Yet most people seem to think it's up to someone else to help the alcoholic and his or her family. It's up to each of us and each of our community institutions to get actively involved and develop ways to help."

and he reported that 104 units under the existing housing segment have been leased. He added that 78 units under the moderate rehabilitation program have been leased, 29 more are under the HAP agreement, and three more units are "in the works."

In the University Towers mid-rise for the elderly, 58 of the 60 units were under lease as of the last day of the month. He said the two temporary vacancies resulted from tenants moving to nursing facilities.

The authority is still awaiting word from HUD regarding the utilization of scattered sites in the West Meadowbrook section for 40 new units of low-rent family housing, he said.

Commissioners adopted a resolution authorizing Laney to execute an instrument in order to dedicate property on 14th Street at the railroad that the city indicated is needed for proper realignment of the street. He said that in widening the street, the city found that the present curb and gutter that it installed earlier on the west side of the railroad does not properly align with the east side section improvements now underway.

Laney said the city will move the street alignment back some eight feet and "flatten" the curve. A sidewalk will also be replaced by the city and two trees will be planted to replace one that will be lost in the curb and gutter work.

The director of tenant affairs, Sallye Streeter, reported that average rents in the six housing areas at the end of March included: NC 22-1 (Meadowbrook), $81.94; NC 22-2 (Kearney Park), 94.31; NC 22-3 (Moyewood), $97.44; NC 22-4 (Moyewood), $91; NC 22-5 (Hopkins Park), $72.83; and NC 22-6 (Newtown), $76.69, for an overall average of $87.91.

Mrs. Streeter said that Susan Spell, a senior at Rose High School, has been recommended as a candidate for a $1,000 scholarship offered by the Carolinas Council of Housing and Redevelopment Officials. She said Miss Streeter, who resides in the Moyewood area, plans to attend East Carolina University in the fall.

Burning Ban Is Still In Effect

Pitt County Fire Marshal Bobby Joyner issued a reminder today that the N.C. Forestry Service ban on open burning is still in effect.

"The little bit of rain that fell last night didn't do anything to alleviate the problem," he said. "Burning at this time is very risky."

Solar Fraction

Greenville's solar fraction calculated by the department of physics of East Carolina University was 1 Monday, which means that a solar water heater could have provided 1 percent of your hot water.

BEDWETTER

LET THEM HAVE A DRY BED

The greatest gift you can give a bedwetter, and the rest of the family, too, is an end to this serious problem, and make no mistake, bedwetting is serious. It can cause complicated psychological problems that last a lifetime. It's so needless because bedwetting, when not caused by organic defect or disease, can be ended. Send for our free brochure, "Bedwetting — What It's All About and How To End It", a report by two medical doctors. No obligation.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market gave ground today, continuing the decline that set in on Monday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, off 3.24 Monday, dropped 4.76 to 830.57 by noon today.

Losers held a 9-5 lead over losers in the mid-day tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said traders were looking ahead warily to the first-quarter earnings reports that will begin coming in shortly.

Given the poor performance of the over-all economy since the start of the year, brokers said, the financial community was bracing for some possible unpleasant surprises in the profit figures.

Another damper on Wall Street activity was an unusual spring snowstorm in the New York area. Dealers in government securities planned to end trading at 2 p.m. EST because of the storm.

But both the NYSE and the American Stock Exchange said they had no plans to change their normal schedules, with the close of business at 4 p.m.

Teledyne led the active list, up 1% at 118 1/4. A 492,000-share block traded at 117 1/4.

The NYSE's composite index lost 28 to 65.76. At the Amex, the market value index was down .39 at 263.26.

Volume on the Big Board totaled 17.12 million shares at noontime, against 21.82 million at the same point Monday.

Rampants Win Eighth Straight, 4-1

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
KINSTON — Rose High School got only three hits off Kinston pitcher Paul Mitchell yesterday, but the Rampants made them enough.

Rose bunched the hits, all for extra bases, into one inning and pushed over four runs in the frame and took a 4-1 victory over the Vikings in a Big East baseball game.

The victory kept Rose unbeaten through eight games this year and boosted its Big East mark to 3-0. Kinston falls to 5-4 overall and lost its first conference game in three starts.

Roger Williams hurled the victory, his third of the season, scattering six hits. He walked two and struck out 13.

Kinston was able to put together several threats against the Rampants, but each time — except for once — the Rampants were able to put out the fire without damage.

"We got some outstanding pitching from Roger today," Coach Ronald Vincent said. "I'm quite pleased with the pitching."

"But I've got to say that we made some nice defensive plays too. (Sammy) Hodges (shortstop) made two very fine plays to get us out of trouble," Vincent said. One of those came in the sixth inning when Rose was up 4-1, and Tony Grady had led off with a walk.

After two strikeouts, Derrick Johnson hit a long fly to left that carried to the wall. Tom Buie relayed to Hodges, who then threw a perfect strike to the plate where Crowell Pope put the tag on racing courtesy runner Neil Pate.

The other occurred in the third when, with one away, Rod Brown singled and Paul Beaman laid down a bunt. No one covered first on the play, but Williams alertly spotted Brown straying off second and Hodges raced to the bag to make the tag on Williams' throw.

"We didn't swing the bats very well," Vincent continued, "but we were able to bunch up what we did get and make good use of them. We did hit a few that just didn't fall in."

Rose threatened in the first inning when Mont Carter walked and moved up on an error on a pickoff play. But two flys ended the threat. In the second, Rose again left a runner at second when Randy Warren reached on a two-out error and moved up on a wild pitch.

Finally, in the fourth, Rose put it all together. Hodges led off the inning with a double to center field. Then, with one away, Gordon Douglas walked.

Pope followed with a blazing triple into center, driving in both runners. Then, when the ball was overthrown at third and went into the dugout, he was awarded the plate.

Warren kept it going with a walk, scoring when Kenny Kirkland duplicated Pope's feat with another triple, making it 4-0.

It proved to be the last Rose threat of the game.

Kinston left a runner at second in the first as Mitchell singled and stole second. In the fourth, a walk and an error put runners on first and second with two away before Williams struck out the last batter.

In the fifth, however, the Vikings finally struck pay dirt. Harold Fleming led off with a single to center and stole second. With two away, Mitchell singled to center, driving in the run.

That, except for the defensive effort by Hodges in the sixth, ended the Kinston threats.

Mitchell was the lone hitter

Jamesville Rips Lakers By 7-2

JAMESVILLE — Carl Ange hurled a four-hitter and drove in four runs to lead Jamesville to a 7-2 win over Mattamuskeet Monday afternoon in a Tobacco Belt Conference baseball game.

Ange struck out 11 and walked just one in raising his record to 4-1 this season. The victory leaves the Bullets at 6-1 overall and 5-1 in the conference.

After a scoreless first inning, it was Ange's bat that got the Bullets on the scoreboard. Keith Waters and Kevin Waters walked to open the second, but Kevin was cut down at second when Marty Swinson reached on a fielder's choice.

Kevin Perry then reached on an error to score Keith and Jamesville led, 1-0. Greg Hardison walked to load the bases. After the second out of the inning, Ange came to bat and tripled to score all three teammates and up the Bullets' lead to 4-0.

The Bullets made it 6-0 in the third. Jeff Rogers doubled and Keith Waters followed with a single. Matthew Moore, running for Waters, stole second and both he and Rogers scored on Kevin Waters' single.

Both teams scored in the fourth and Mattamuskeet got its final run of the afternoon in the seventh.

Ange was the only player on either team with more than one hit.

Jamesville travels to Cape Hatteras Thursday.

Four Games Already Postponed

By The Associated Press
The 1982 major league baseball season, free of any strike threat for the first time in four years, remains literally under a cloud that threatens to turn the nation's pastime into a winter sport.

Four of the 10 openers scheduled for today were postponed by the threat of unseasonably cold weather and snow. Several other games were endangered by a cold snap that gripped the nation.

The season began Monday afternoon in Baltimore and Cincinnati. The Orioles defeated Kansas City 13-5 and the Reds succumbed by a 3-2 score to the Chicago Cubs in a game shortened to eight innings by rain.

"And they call us the boys of summer?" Montreal pitcher Charlie Lea asked rhetorically — and a little incredulously — Monday, not long before the Expos' season opener was postponed until Wednesday because of the prospect of a winter storm warning in Pittsburgh.

Today's remaining National League openers had San Francisco at Los Angeles, the New York Mets at Philadelphia, St. Louis at Houston and Atlanta at San Diego. Snow and freezing temperatures were in the forecast for Philadelphia.

In the American League, Toronto at Detroit, Cleveland at Milwaukee and Boston at Chicago were postponed until Wednesday by cold weather. Snow already had begun to fall in Milwaukee Monday afternoon, and the Detroit and Chicago forecasts called for temperatures near freezing.

Texas at New York and Seattle at Minnesota also were on the AL schedule. The Twins' game was not in jeopardy because of the opening of the new Hubert H. Humphrey Metrodome in Minneapolis, but the New York game faced the prospect of snow.

The biggest winners Monday may have been neither the Orioles nor the Cubs, but rather major league umpires. In a joint announcement with baseball, the lawyer for the umpires' union, Richie Phillips, said major league umpires had signed a four-year contract that represented an average salary increase of 60 percent.

"The terms of this contract reflect recognition of the contributions umpires make to this great game," Phillips said in New York.

Under the agreement, top salary for an umpire was increased from $50,000 to $75,000. In addition, league presidents now will have the right to assign umpires to the playoffs and World Series on a merit basis rather than on simple rotation.

"We have the best umpires and now we will have the best of the best working the special events," Phillips said.

The umpires struck in 1979, the players threatened to strike in 1980 and did walk out last season.

On Monday, the Orioles got the season off to a sizzling start despite temperatures in the middle-40s. Eddie Murray hit a grand slam homer and Cal Ripken, Dan Ford and Gary Roenicke added home runs as Baltimore set opening-day records for homers and runs.

Frank White and George Brett homered for Kansas City.

"It's unbelievable," Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver said. "We had a one-runner, a two-runner, a three-runner and a four-runner."

The game drew a regular-season record crowd of 52,034, including Commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

Snow was forecast for the Cubs-Reds game, and the temperature was 42 degrees at game-time. The snow held off, but the 51,864 at Riverfront Stadium sat through rain delays of 46 and 51 minutes before the game was called after eight innings.

Keith Moreland and Bump Wills, a couple of newcomers to the Cubs, each homered, and Moreland singled in the eventual winning run in the eighth inning. Moreland was acquired from Philadelphia, where Cubs General Manager Dallas Green and Manager Lee Elia spent the previous season, and Wills came over from Texas.

Doug Bird pitched seven strong innings for Chicago, yielding five hits and one run.

Cubs Slip Past Cincinnati, 3-2

CINCINNATI (AP) — It's too early to tell whether the Chicago Cubs have repented their losing ways. But it's not too early for Manager Lee Elia to get excited about the possibility.

Elia was beaming in the high-spirited Chicago clubhouse after the rebuilt Cubs edged the perennially tough Cincinnati Reds 3-2 in a rain-shortened opening day game Monday.

"You can't beat winning early in the season," said Elia, savoring his first regular-season victory as a major league manager. "That's when you try to make things jell for you. A game like today, it's important to win."

Two of the Cubs' new acquisitions in their drive to "build a new tradition" played starring roles in the eight-inning victory that was halted twice by rain.

Catcher Keith Moreland, one of several players and front office officials brought in from the Philadelphia Phillies organization, drove in two runs with a home run and a single. Second baseman Bump Wills, a former Texas Ranger, led off the game with a homer to send the Cubs' spirits soaring.

"The only way we're going to change things around here is by winning," Moreland said. "You can talk all you want about new traditions and new players."

After Cincinnati starter Mario Soto, 0-1, surrendered the leadoff homers to Wills and Moreland in the first two innings, he settled down to strike out 10 batters in seven innings of work.

"I think we have a fine

Pair Capture Putt Tourney

Robert Beacham and Rodney Hooks beat the other players and the weather to win the Monday Night Bestball Tournament at the Greenville Putt-Putt Course last night.

Beacham and Hooks were 26 strokes under par for the three-round event. Danny Pollard and Crawford Craig were a distant second at 19 under par. They were the only teams that could manage subpar performances in the cold, rainy weather.

JAMESVILLE — Kellie Hardison hit three home runs and drove in eight runs to lead Jamesville to an easy 22-7 victory over Mattamuskeet Monday afternoon in a Tobacco Belt Conference baseball game.

Hardison was four for five at the plate on the afternoon and was one of seven Lady Bullets with two hits or more as Jamesville rolled to its fifth win in six outings. Jamesville is 4-1 in the league.

Mattamuskeet led, 1-0, after the top of the first, but the Lady Bullets came back with a nine-run outburst in the bottom half of the inning and never were challenged again.

Jamesville scored another run in the second and added three runs in the third before scoring five in the fourth and four in the fifth. The game was called after the top of the sixth.

With Jamesville coach Jerry Godley substituting freely, Mattamuskeet tagged the Lady Bullets for two runs in the fifth and four in the sixth, thanks in part to 10 walks.

Crystal Perry was three for three for Jamesville with five RBI and Annette Brown and Selita Cross were both three for four. Both had home runs and Brown had three runs batted in.

Lorie Harison, Kim Hale and Benita Ellin all had two hits for Jamesville. Kim Floyd had two RBI for Jamesville. Jamesville travels to Cape Hatteras Thursday.

'New Look' Baltimore Has Impressive Start

BALTIMORE (AP) — The "new look" Baltimore Orioles are off to an impressive start.

With four home runs among their 16 hits, including a grand slam by Eddie Murray, the Orioles walloped the Kansas City Royals 13-5 in their American League opener.

The other homers came from newcomer Dan Ford, rookie Cal Ripken Jr. and Gary Roenicke, who is practically starting anew after a fractured wrist hampered his last two seasons.

Ripken, given the third base job after the Orioles traded veteran Doug DeCinces, started Monday's onslaught against Dennis Leonard with a two-run blast in the second inning.

Ford, acquired from California in the DeCinces deal, capped a six-run rally in the eighth with a three-run homer off Grant Jackson.

In between came the slam by Murray, who topped the league with 78 runs batted in during the strike-shortened 1981 season, and a solo shot by Roenicke — both off Leonard.

Roenicke had four hits, while Ford and Ripken contributed three apiece.

"I was more relaxed than last year," said Ripken, who had five singles in 39 trips at the end of last season. "I have a little more confidence."

"It was good to see Cal start like that and get us on top," said Murray. "Once he gets established, it's going to be smooth sailing for everybody."

Ford, who said he was anxious to start off with a good day before his new home fans, was cheered for almost everything he did.

"I wanted to please and show them what kind of player Dan Ford is," he said. "I wanted to drive in some runs."

After going ahead 7-1 following a five-run third inning, the Orioles came close to blowing the lead.

Frank White, who had an RBI single in the second, rapped a three-run homer in the fourth to cut Kansas City's deficit to 7-4.

But with two runners in scoring position and none out in the fifth, the Royals were stopped when Sammy Stewart relieved starter Dennis Martinez.

"Sammy is really something," said Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver. "That was the game right there. He kept them from turning it around and took a lot of the pressure off."

"People keep asking me if this is the year I'm going to become a starter," said Stewart, who yielded a solo homer to George Brett in the seventh. "But my job as a long reliever is to get them out. When I do, I look like a genius."

Leonard, now 1-3 in openers, contended he didn't have good stuff, especially his breaking pitches.

"I liked the way we battled back," said Kansas City Manager Dick Howser. "We were behind with two runners in scoring position with the fourth and fifth batters coming up, but we couldn't get them in."

That's when Stewart, the winner, retired Willie Aikens and Amos Otis, walked Hal McRae to load the bases, and then got Jerry Martin on a called third strike.

The game, started in 46-degree weather, attracted a record Baltimore regular season crowd of 52,034, including baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

Bears Fall To Aurora

AURORA — Lorenzo Mills stroked a three-run double in the sixth inning to lift Aurora to a 6-4 victory over Bear Grass Monday afternoon in a Tobacco Belt Conference baseball game.

The score was tied at 3-3 going into the bottom of the sixth when Mills came up with the bases loaded. Mills' double, his second of the afternoon, brought home all three runs and gave Aurora a 6-3 lead.

Bear Grass managed to score one run in the top of the seventh but could not get closer as the Bears dropped their fifth game in six outings this season. Bear Grass is 1-4 in the league.

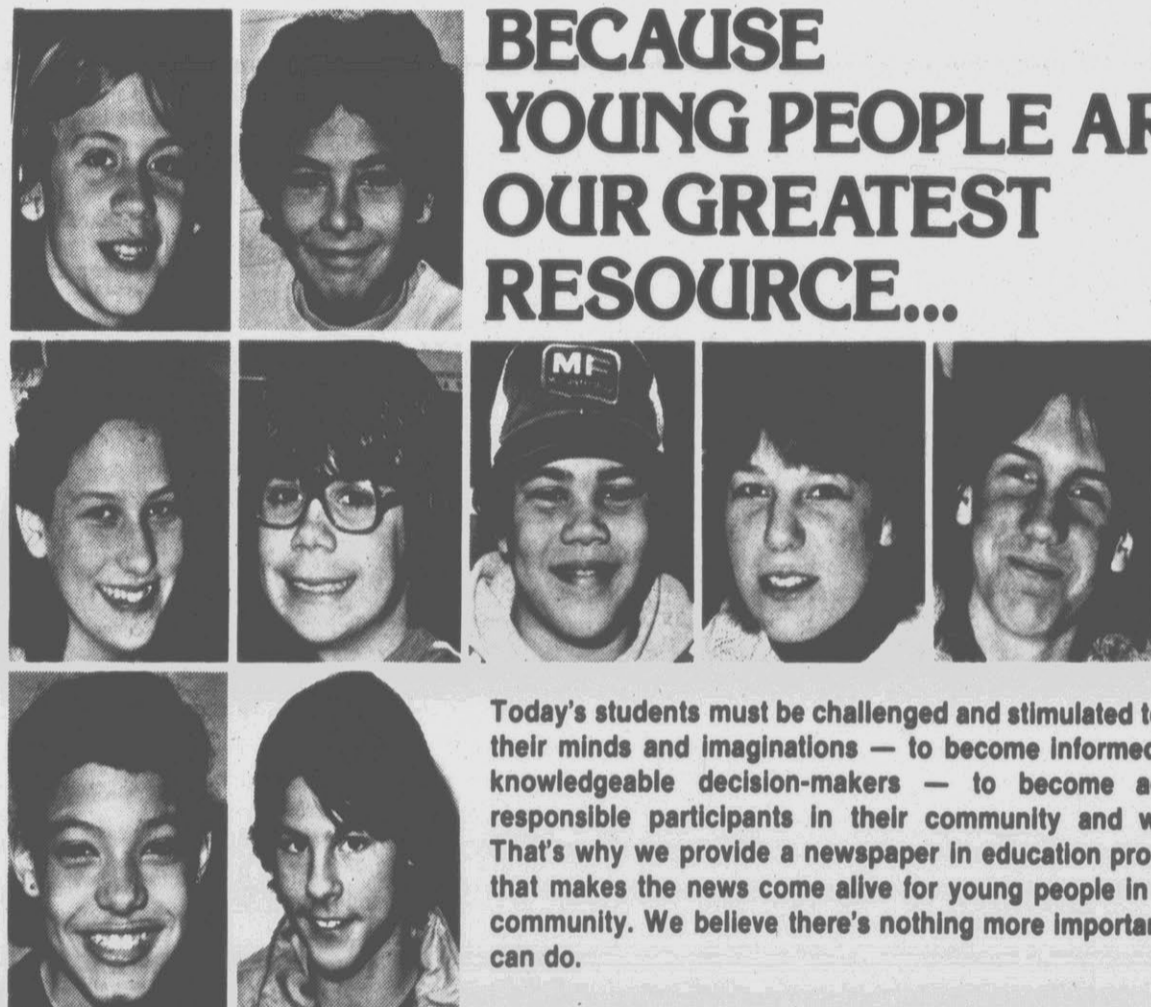

The game was tied, 1-1, at the end of the first inning and the Bears took a 3-1 lead with two runs in the top of the fourth when Lawrence Watson doubled home two runs.

But, Aurora came back to score twice in the bottom of the inning to tie the game once more.

No one for Bear Grass had more than one hit.

Bear Grass travels to Chocowinity Wednesday.

North Stars Seek A Little Respect

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — The Minnesota North Stars could not ask for more.

Or could they? From Day One of the National Hockey League's regular season, the North Stars were in first place in the Norris Division. That's also where they ended up, with a 37-23-20 record. The team finished with 94 points, the most of any North Stars team. Never before had a North Star accumulated 100 points. Two did it in 1981-82 — Bobby Smith and Dino Ciccarelli. The latter also became the first Minnesota player to score 50 goals. He got 55.

Smith and Ciccarelli also led the North Stars' power play, the best in the NHL, with a league-leading 20 goals each. Neal Broten was a rookie surprise, becoming the NHL's highest scoring U.S.-born player in a single season.

So, as the North Stars approach the first round of playoffs Wednesday night against Chicago, what more could they ask for?

A little respect, Coach Glen Sonmor said. The past two seasons, Minnesota finished third in the Adams Division. The team made it to the Stanley Cup semifinals two years ago and the finals against the New York Islanders last year.

Umps Association Reaches New Agreement Ending Strike Threat

NEW YORK (AP) — The Major League Umpires Association reached agreement today on a new four-year contract, preventing any disruption of the start of the 1982 baseball season.

The salaries ranged from a minimum $26,000 to a top of $70,000 through 1984 and $75,000 in 1985.

"It's a blockbuster deal," said Phillips. "The average salary increase this year will be 40 percent. And the new pension plan outstrips the one the players have."

Pension and insurance benefits are significantly upgraded in the new agreement, as are expense allowances for both spring training and the regular season and compensation for special events, such as the All-Star Game, the League Championship Series and World Series.

The leagues also agreed voluntarily to make improvements in the pensions of retired umpires.

In 1979, the regular umpires struck for seven weeks and were replaced by amateur and minor league ump. The three-year agreement that ended that walkout won major improvements for the umpires including in-season vacations and a provision which allowed them to continue being paid during the seven-week player strike last season. The contract expired following the 1981 season and negotiations have continued throughout the winter seeking a new agreement. Umpires, who sat out spring training games in 1979, worked the exhibition contests this year, an indication that a settlement was near.

With both the Players Association Basic Agreement and the umpires' contract in place, it means that for the first time since 1978, the baseball season begins without any labor strife hanging over the sport.

SOUTH ORANGE, N.J. (AP) — Peter J. Carlesimo, the new Seton Hall University basketball coach, said he refused to apply for the position until he was assured that interim coach Huddy Mahon was not a contender for the post.

"I've always considered Huddy Mahon as a close friend," said Carlesimo, who will resign as the Wagner College basketball coach and athletic director May 1. "My first choice for this job is Huddy Mahon and my second choice was myself."

Although it has been five months since Coach Bill Raftery resigned, the Big East school ended a nationwide search abruptly Friday afternoon, contacting a man who had not even applied for the post.

Carlesimo was offered the post after Gary Williams, the American University basketball coach, turned down the job last week, a source at the university said. Williams, the latest in a series of coaches spurning Seton Hall, was named head basketball coach at Boston College on Monday.

Henderson Picks Duke

Warren County followed David Henderson's instincts to the NCHSAA 3-A basketball championship this year and Monday he followed them himself.

Seton Hall Taps Coach

SOUTH ORANGE, N.J. (AP) — Peter J. Carlesimo, the new Seton Hall University basketball coach, said he refused to apply for the position until he was assured that interim coach Huddy Mahon was not a contender for the post.

The two-time All-East cager and member of The Associated Press All-State team announced he will attend Duke University this fall.

Henderson, who averaged 26.9 points per game as a senior, said he chose Duke over North Carolina State, Wake Forest and Maryland because his "instincts" told him Duke was the place to go.

"I liked a lot of things about Duke," Henderson said. "It came down to what I felt was most important — my instincts. Between State and Duke, it was a very tough decision. They're both great places."

Duke now has commitments from six players, having earlier heard from Mark Alarie of Phoenix, Jay Bilas of Rolling Hills, Calif., Johnny Dawkins of Washington, Bill Jackman of Grant, Neb., and Weldon Williams of Crete, Ill.

A Review

Blake Edwards' Movie Has Music And Humor

Offhand, the basic plot of Blake Edwards' film, "Victor/Victoria," (now playing at the Buccaneer movies), may not seem promising. Simplified, the plot revolves around a woman pretending to be a man who in turn impersonates females.

It's a rags to sudden riches story for two down-and-out English speaking performers in Paris in the 1930s — an English actress, Victoria Grant, (Julie Andrews), and Toddy, (Robert Preston), an aging American, homosexual and master of ceremonies at a grubby gay night club.

The two first meet when both their purses and stomachs are empty. Using the old "there's a cockroach in my salad" gimmick to hustle a free meal, they create on-the-spot pandemonium when the very much alive cockroach escapes and crawls up the silk stockings of an enormous woman diner. This is the first of an inspired string of intelligently conceived escapades that crop up periodically all throughout the movie.

"Victor/Victoria" works well at many levels. Blake Edwards has achieved a successful feat in interweaving the element of sleazy night life of the kind depicted in "Cabaret" with the restrained, just-short-of-slapstick antics of master screen comedians. People disappear in and out of closets, windows, hallways, from under beds. A detective thoroughly bumbles his assignment, and mistaken identities multiply to confuse the confused.

The heartbeat of a visiting macho (yet suave) American gentleman gangster, King Marchan, (James Garner), does a double leap when he first beholds blond, slender Count Victor. Understandably, Marchan suffers. He is determined to repress his instinctive attraction to a person he believes is another man, but he is powerless to overcome his feelings.

King Marchan's moll of the moment, a gorgeous but thoroughly boop-de-doo doll (Lesley Ann Warren), and Squash, his huge bodyguard (Alex Karras) add to the happy surprises and diversions: Convinced his boss has "come out," the former football hero Squash makes his gay declaration and forthwith forms a temporary liaison with Toddy.

The sorting out of sexual partnering is of secondary interest in "Victor/Victoria." Far more to the point (and more enjoyable) are the excellent musical numbers — Miss Andrews in a fine jazz sequence, "Le Jazz Hot," and a splashy Spanish number, among several good things. The Spanish production also is used as a vehicle for a drag performance by Preston that is comically top rate.

"Victor/Victoria" is enriched by a large cast of outstanding actors in minor roles, particularly Graham Stark as the waiter fated to be caught in the middle of every cafe brawl that takes place. The PG rating for the movie is a tip-off that music, comedy and just plain entertainment all take precedence over the movie's gay theme.

Ms. Andrews, Preston and Garner give sterling performances, holding their own against performances of those in secondary and minor roles (no mean task in this movie). Fans who enjoy song and dance movies underscored by an interesting plot and enriched by faultless photography will enjoy "Victor/Victoria."

Urges Share Media Right

DALLAS (AP) — A Senate Republican leader has urged passage of a constitutional amendment to guarantee broadcasters' First Amendment rights, but a number of his colleagues disagree.

Sen. Robert Packwood, R-Ore., the chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee, received a standing ovation Monday from members of the National Association of Broadcasters after outlining his plans to push for a constitutional amendment.

Only with such an amendment can the electronic media be guaranteed the same freedom of expression as newspapers, he said, because "no president, no Congress and no court has served this republic and its people as well as our Constitution."

A few hours later, however, three of Packwood's Senate colleagues joined four congressmen for a panel discussion in which they supported laws Packwood has attacked — equal time and the fairness doctrine.

The equal time law specifies that if a candidate uses a station's airwaves, the broadcaster must provide an equal opportunity to that candidate's opponents. The fairness doctrine requires the presentation of contrasting viewpoints if a station broadcasts a program addressing "a controversial issue of public importance."

"There are many parts of the country, especially in local races, where it could be devastating if the media is on one side and the other side cannot get access," said Rep. Carlos Moorhead, R-Calif. "I think it will be a long time before we want to do away with the fairness doctrine and equal time."

"We're talking about freedom of speech, but whose freedom is this?" added Sen. Ernest F. Hollings, D-S.C. "The freedom we're talking about is not yours or mine but everybody's in this room; yours, mine and the entire viewing and listening public. The (fairness doctrine) has worked extremely well. It led the way for op-ed (opposite editorial) pages in newspapers."

Battle-Scarred Psyche Probed

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — America sent its soldiers to fight an unconventional war in Vietnam. Then, when they did their job, it welcomed them back with non-traditional guilt, embarrassment and neglect.

This paradox is one of the psychological burdens of the returning soldiers dealt with in "Medal of Honor Rag," PBS' potent exploration into the battle-scarred psyche of a black war hero having difficulty returning to civilian life.

Tonight's adaptation of the 1976 play written by Tom Cole, is one of the strongest offerings on PBS' "American Playhouse" weekly series of dramas, comedies and musicals written by Americans. The splendid internal drama is based on a 1971 newspaper account of a black war hero who was killed while holding up a supermarket.

The play, set in a psychiatric hospital, opens with Country Joe McDonald's haunting "I-Feel-Like-I'm-Fixin'-T o-Die Rag," and the viewer understands immediately that this is not going to be a "Hogan's Heroes" war tale.

With the music as an emotional backdrop, a psychiatrist (Hector Elizondo) reads his office, while the patient, D.J. Johnson (Damien Leake), shuffle-marches down the corridors in his slippers.

Johnson had been a straight-arrow kid who overcame the temptations of the Detroit ghetto. Vietnam messed him up. He was part of a close-knit tank unit, but the day after he was reassigned to another tank, his old tank was blown up, killing everybody in his "family."

After trying to save his buddies, he went berserk. Without concern for his well-being, Johnson went on a killing spree, taking down 20 of the enemy. Out of ammunition, he was face-to-face with an enemy gun. It misfired. Johnson beat the soldier to death.

In mocking tones, Johnson says he was given the Medal of Honor for "conspicuous gallantry." He says snidely that he's "an authentic hero" and "a credit to his race."

What he can't really handle is being rewarded for everything he had been raised not to do. His mother didn't teach him to kill, but the medal was an ironic symbol that it was right.

This is the kind of conflict war causes. But a high-minded purpose for fighting and the friendly reception of the homeland ordinarily help resolve some of the dilemmas. No marching bands welcomed Johnson when he returned home two days after his killing spree.

Now he finds himself in a psychiatric ward, looking for an explanation for his rage, confusion and depression. He wants to understand why he doesn't feel like a survivor, why he wishes he was in the tank with his friends, why he dreams that the enemy gun had not misfired.

Johnson is very much worth saving. Under the layers of anger, he's bright, sharp-witted and very likable. The psychiatrist recognizes this, and in his desire to make contact, drops his professional pose and offers a personal experience of survivor's guilt.

Through some explosive doctor-patient dialogue and strong acting, the two characters alternately make contact, drift apart and touch back again.

When Johnson is in control of his emotions, he's self-assured and skilled at the games of psychological sparring. When the doctor touches something painful, Johnson stammers and acts frightened and vulnerable.

"You haven't been spared. You're still suffering," the psychiatrist tells him.

New Millionaires

By MARK SCHWED

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Twenty entertainers joined country music's millionaires club in 1981.

Some were new faces to the Country Club of Country, while others just added more gold and platinum to their trophy cases.

According to the Country Music Association, Emmylou Harris was one of the most successful — or luckiest — artists last year as far as record sales go.

No less than six of her albums attained gold status for total sales of at least three million copies since they were released. Figuring a record costs about $7.99, the six gold albums represent about $24 million.

"Blue Kentucky Girl," "Best of Emmylou Harris," "Roses in the Snow," "Evangeline," "Elite Hotel" and "Luxury Liner" each sold in excess of 500,000 copies to qualify for the prestigious "gold" label.

That doesn't mean Miss Harris sold $24 million in albums in 1981. They just passed the 500,000 sales mark in 1981.

"They just all kind of came at once," explained a spokesman for Miss Harris. "She had these albums out for several years and four or five of them went gold all at once."

Stan Byrd, spokesman at Warner Brothers Records, said the fact that she was named "Female Vocalist of the Year" in 1980 helped her record sales.

"That was 80 percent of the ballgame," Byrd said. "It created a bigger awareness of Emmylou. People who had one of her albums went out and bought another."

The New York-based Recording Industry Association of America determines when a record becomes gold or platinum.

"The RIAA sends an auditor to the record company and they check the sales and certify whether the album has sold enough copies," said Carmelita Walton, assistant to the gold and platinum awards administrator at the RIAA.

An album is considered "gold" when at least 500,000 copies are sold. Platinum means sales of one million records. For singles, or 45 rpm records, sales of at least one million qualify for gold and sales of two million qualify for platinum.

Next in the golden line was Eddie Rabbitt, who racked up total sales of at least 1.5 million albums and two million singles. His "Horizon" album was certified platinum and "Step By Step" was gold. Two singles — "I Love a Rainy Night" and "Drivin' My Life Away" — also reached gold status.

Marie Osmond Has A Checkup

PROVO, Utah (AP) — Singer Marie Osmond was released from Utah Valley Hospital after spending the weekend there for a "routine physical examination," family spokesman Ron Clark said.

Clark said doctors found nothing wrong with Miss Osmond and that she was completing scheduled interviews Monday.

He said Miss Osmond was "very tired" when she entered the hospital Friday. Clark said she often suffers a low potassium level that makes her tire easily, but doctors found no problem with the level.

Miss Osmond plans to go on a month-long cruise for the filming of a two-hour TV special of "The Love Boat" next month, Clark said. She also plans to work on another major project, and Clark said that project's director required her to get a physical examination.

Clark declined to elaborate on the second project.

Andy Kaufman Injured In A Wrestling Match

By WOODY BAIRD
Associated Press Writer
MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Memphis, Tenn. Kaufman was hospitalized with minor head and neck injuries after going to the mat with a 234-pound professional wrestler who didn't like his brand of humor.

Kaufman suffered cuts on the top of his head, strained neck muscles and a compressed space between his vertebrae in an exhibition match Monday night, said manager George Shapiro. The actor was put in traction but not believed to be seriously hurt.

Kaufman, a co-star on the ABC-TV show "Taxi" and a former star of "Saturday Night Live," claims to hold the world inter-gender wrestling championship and often wrestles women during his performances. In the past two years he has wrestled 300 women, Shapiro said.

He went into the ring Monday night against Jerry Lawler, a heavyweight male wrestler with a large local following and a reputation for meanness.

Last year in Memphis, Kaufman wrestled and defeated four women in matches at the Mid-South Coliseum. He returned several weeks later for a rematch with one of them, and Lawler challenged him to a fight.

Earlier Monday, Kaufman promised to teach Lawler a lesson for making fun of wrestlers.

"I'm sure he thinks this is all fun and games and a big joke," he said. "What I've got a chance to do is show Andy Kaufman what it's really like."

Kaufman, in his dressing room before the match, said he was worried because the 5-foot-10 professional refused to work out a routine for a fake fight.

"I think what it comes down to is he doesn't have a sense of humor," the comedian said.

Once in the ring, Kaufman managed to stay minutes. He danced around mimicking an ape and jumping out of the ring each time the wrestler approached.

Finally, Lawler stood in the middle of the ring, put his hands behind his back and challenged Kaufman to grab him around the neck. When he did so, Lawler swiftly picked up the six-foot-tall, 165-pound comedian and flipped him to the mat with a heavy thud.

He then dragged Kaufman by his hair to the center of the ring, picked him up and slammed him down head first.

That move, which wrestlers call a "pile driver," was repeated a second time, and Kaufman lay on his back unable to move for 15 minutes.

Lawler, meanwhile, pranced around the ring daring Kaufman to get up. The fans screamed for Kaufman to continue and a shower of paper cups fell on the ring.

Standing in a corner of the ring sneering at Kaufman, Lawler said he was proud of the fight and glad he used a used an illegal throw that meant Kaufman technically won the match.

"It compresses the vertebrae of the neck and back," Lawler said of the throw. "It's the one you can hurt somebody really, really bad with."

Embryo Transplant Improves Quality

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — An Apex veterinarian says calf reproduction can be increased through embryo transplants and surrogate mothers, methods veterinarians have used for years, but the process is costly.

Dr. James Nash Jr. of the Apex Veterinary Hospital has been working with the process since about 1974. He now spends most of his time transplanting embryos in cows for dairy farmers in North Carolina and Virginia.

"Instead of getting a calf every year, we can get 10, or even 100," Nash said of the process, which farmers say costs about $1,000 per calf.

Because of the expense and uncertainty, it is worthwhile to consider embryo transplants only in cases involving a cow whose calves should bring a big return.

"It's for people who can market the calves for $1,500 to $2,000," Nash said. The first step in the embryo transplant process is for the farmer to give the donor cow a hormone that causes her to produce more than the normal one egg per reproductive cycle, Nash said.

"The cow is born with thousands of ovum and with present technology, it doesn't look like we can exhaust that supply," he said.

The farmer artificially breeds the cow six to eight days after she ovulates. Nash then goes to the farm and flushes out the eggs that have developed into embryos — about six to eight eggs.

"This is absolutely not harmful to the cow," the veterinarian said. "In fact the technique is used therapeutically on cows to clean out their uterus."

The tiny embryos are found with a microscope, then washed and loaded into a glass pipette to be transferred to a surrogate mother.

Nonregistered cows and heifers, female cattle who haven't had calves, usually are used as recipients for the embryos.

Each recipient cow is given prostaglandin to cause her to ovulate the same time as the donor mother. Nash checks each cow to see which ovary she is ovulating from so the embryo may be transferred to that side.

The cows are tranquilized and given an anesthetic before Nash cuts them open and places an embryo in the cow's Fallopian tube.

A calf will be born about nine months later for 60 percent to 70 percent of the surrogates.

Opening lead: Jack of ♠.

Bridge is really a simple game. You take your tricks and give the opponents theirs. Of course, sometimes you have to do that in the right order!

Despite East's opening bid, North-South had no trouble reaching their game. At his second turn North correctly jumped to three spades despite the fact that his king of clubs was probably useless. Since he had doubled in the balancing position, a raise to two spades would have confirmed only a full opening bid.

West led the jack of clubs to the king and East's ace, and East returned a low club. Declarer ruffed in dummy. Since East surely held the king of hearts and ace of diamonds for his opening bid, the problem is to keep West off lead until the diamonds are established for a heart discard. There is no problem if East also holds the queen of diamonds, but what if that card is with West?

If you draw two rounds of trumps, ending in your hand, and then run the jack of diamonds, East wins and returns a trump and you are lost. Even coming to hand with one round of trumps is too many, for East will force dummy's trump honors with club ruffs and so promote his ten of trumps.

Obviously, you have to play on diamonds before you touch trumps. As the cards lie, you can lead any diamond from dummy and win. But leading a low diamond would lose the contract if West held the queen — he would win and shift to a heart through the ace-queen before the diamonds are established.

Since East surely has the ace of diamonds, the winning play is the king of diamonds from dummy at trick three! East wins the ace, but declarer is in control. The hearts cannot be attacked, and even if West has the queen of diamonds, by the time he gets in with that card, dummy's diamonds are set up.

Waldheim Has Teaching Role

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim has taken a new job but hasn't changed his diplomatic hat: he's teaching diplomacy at Georgetown University.

Waldheim will take the post May 1 and will conduct informal seminars, lecture periodically and help guide the university programs in diplomacy, the Rev. Timothy S. Healy, university president, said in a statement today.

The Austrian diplomat will also serve as a counselor for Georgetown's program in international business diplomacy, Healy said.

Waldheim, former Austrian foreign minister, served two five-year terms as secretary-general of the United Nations. He was succeeded in January by Javier Perez de Cuellar of Peru.

Campus Bear Apparently Hiding Out

By JOHN FLESHER
 Associated Press Writer
 RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Months after heavily armed men entered a culvert on the North Carolina State University campus in search of a bear they never found, officials still insist the animal was around — somewhere.

Capt. John McGinnis, deputy director of the university's Department of Public Safety, said this week that the bear had not shown itself since December, when several witnesses including two Public Safety officers said they saw it roaming on and near campus.

"A couple of days after the campus episode, some people spotted the bear in a garden not far away," said McGinnis. "They called (state wildlife officials) who confirmed that the tracks were made by a bear."

"But since then nobody's seen the critter, which is fine with us."

Law enforcement officers, wildlife officials and a horde of reporters kept an embarrassing vigil outside the culvert last Dec. 29 and 30 after university employees found tracks nearby. One person said he heard "growls" from within, though no one saw the bear enter or leave the tunnel.

The previous weekend, however, two Public Safety officers and several students said they saw the animal — first near Reynolds Coliseum and later outside walkway connecting the northern and southern ends of the campus.

Authorities placed barricades outside both ends of the double tunnel the night of Dec. 29 and waited nearly 14 hours, while reporters and cameramen shivered in the sub-freezing weather.

The following morning, officials fired tear gas into the tunnels. When no bear came out, three wildlife officers shouldered shotguns and dart guns and ventured inside. Minutes later, they emerged empty-handed.

The hunt was called off, renewed briefly after the sighting in the garden, and then halted for good. Wildlife officials said they were convinced the bear had left the area.

Authorities continue to bristle at the suggestion that the sightings were a hoax, and wildlife officials and an N.C. State scientist maintain that the tracks were authentic.

"I saw the tracks myself, and they looked real. They'd be awfully hard to fake," said Roger Powell, assistant professor of zoology. "The probability is very low that a bear would wander this far, but it's not at all impossible."

Bears are common in the North Carolina mountains and along the coast, but they're seldom seen in the Piedmont, Powell said. The fact that N.C. State is located within the city limits of Raleigh, a Piedmont city, makes the bear's presence doubly surprising, he added.

"But bears — especially young males — have been known to wander 100 miles or more," Powell said.

The bear probably won't make another appearance on campus, Powell said. "There's really nothing to attract one," he said. "They tend to avoid people."

Despite the votes of confidence from Powell and others, McGinnis says a number of skeptics have implied that there was no bear.

Path of Destruction
 On a muggy afternoon in spring, large clouds gather in the sky. Thunder rumbles in the distance and the clouds darken and tumble. Suddenly a black twisting funnel descends to earth, amid lightning flashes and an ominous hissing. A half hour later, all is calm. The twister is spent, but in its wake a swath of uprooted trees, exploded houses, wrecked cars and human suffering stretches for miles. This scene will be repeated perhaps 200 times this year, as a new tornado season gets under way. But with luck, none will be as destructive as history's worst tornado, which in 1925 crossed three states, killing 689 people in its 200 mile, 3-hour fury.

DO YOU KNOW — In what countries are tornadoes common?

Claim River Is Ripe For Algae

By MARY ANNE RHYNE
 Associated Press Writer
 RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A Department of Natural Resources and Community Development spokesman says the wet winter has brought with it both good and bad news for the Chowan River.

The moisture has cleansed the river, which runs through North Carolina and Virginia, but has created ideal conditions for a large algal bloom this summer, say state researchers.

"It's one of those good news, bad news situations," said Joseph W. Grimsley, department secretary.

The river has been the focus of an intensive clean up by the environmental management workers.

"The present condition of the water, although temporary, makes us optimistic that the herring run will be better this year than last year," Grimsley said.

Gov. Jim Hunt's requested that the federal Environmental Protection Agency send scientists to assess the river's condition and make recommendations. Grimsley said the report indicated cleaning is the right step to take, but added that the clean up will be lengthy.

In a prepared statement, Grimsley said, "frequent rains during the past few months have had a cleansing effect on the river, keeping the water moving and dispersing the pollutants that harm the water quality of the river."

Grimsley said nutrients from the land and small tributaries have been flushed into the river, making conditions right for a large algal bloom in the lower river later this year.

A hot summer with moderate rain would add to the chances for a large algal bloom, officials say.

Paul Wilms, assistant director of the department's Division of Environmental Management, said the blue-green, one-celled plants are prolific in slow moving, stagnant waters that contain specific nutrients — nitrogen and phosphorus.

"In sufficient quantities the algae forms mats of what amounts to green slime over the top of the water," he said. Wilms says the plants deplete the supply of oxygen for fish, causing sporadic fish kills, and interfere with boating, swimming and fishing.

Genetic Cancer Links Studied At Symposium

By F. ALAN BOYCE
 Associated Press Writer
 CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Most types of cancer appear to start with genetic changes in the body's cells and then worsen as the more destructive and faster growing cells push out healthy tissues, researchers said Monday.

Improved techniques of viewing chromosomes — the parts of cells which carry the genetic instructions organisms themselves — indicate that all cancers may have chromosomal defects, said Dr. Jorge Y. Yunis.

Yunis told scientists at the sixth annual Symposium of the University of North Carolina Cancer Research Center that he was able to detect genetic abnormalities in all of 150 cancerous tumors studied.

Yunis, a professor of laboratory medicine and pathology at the University of Minnesota Medical School in Minneapolis, attributed the findings to evolving techniques that let researchers view up to 2,000 bands on a chromosome, compared with 150 to 300 bands usually visible.

Yunis speculated that some of the defects could be inherited within families, while others could be caused through contact with chemicals or radiation.

"Perhaps a common mechanism of neoplasia (cancer) in man is that we have some 100 to 200 sites of so-called cancer genes," he said. "So you have carcinogens affecting these sites to produce nonfamilial neoplasias."

Dr. Louise Strong, associate professor of medical genetics at the University of Texas System Cancer Center in Houston, presented additional evidence of the role of genetics in cancer.

She said several diseases characterized by broken chromosomes led to an increased risk of leukemia as well as cancer of the colon, breast and brain.

Among those with a disease called Bloom's Syndrome she said, "virtually every one of these patients who reached the age of 21 had developed some kind of cancer."

Ms. Strong emphasized that the increasing discovery of genetic factors did not detract from the role of the environment — ranging from sunlight to cigarette smoking — in creating cancer. But evidence presented at the symposium strengthened the position that environmental factors do their work at the genetic level.

"Genetic as well as environmental factors interact along the way to forming cancer," Ms. Strong said. However, she said, genetic factors at times override environmental factors.

For example, she said, patients with chromosomal defects tended to develop cancer of the colon at the same rate in Japan as in England. Among patients without chromosomal defects, the incidence of colon cancer in Japan is lower, generally attributed to the difference in their diet.

People who have a family history of cancer also tend to have an increased risk of cancer, with the disease appearing at an earlier age, Ms. Strong said.

If genetic links can be confirmed in all cancers, researchers may look for ways to limit the rate at

Potential Offshore Oil Riches In Falkland Islands

By MARK S. SMITH
Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP) — The lonely, windswept Falkland

Islands, their 1,800 people and 300 times as many sheep, don't look like a strategic prize worth war. But control of the islands could mean control of offshore oil riches.

Since the early 1970s, oil companies, universities and governments have been prospecting the South Atlantic around the islands that Britain ruled and Argentina claimed for 149 years and that Argentina seized last Friday.

"There is more oil under the sea around the islands than under the North Sea," says Brian Frow, director-general of the Falkland Islands Office, which represents the staunchly pro-British islanders' interests in London. "Seizing the oil undoubtedly was the long-term objective of the Argentines."

Frow says surveys by the British government, Argentina, the U.S. Geological Survey, two British universities and several major oil companies back up his assertions of rich petroleum and gas deposits.

But most of the reports are closely guarded.

The Argentine state petroleum company, Yacimientos Petroliferos Fiscales, claims a field between Argentina's Patagonian coast and the Falklands, 250 miles to the east, could be nine times as big as that under the North Sea, which already has made Britain the world's seventh-largest oil producer.

The most recent known private study, from Western Geophysical, an American survey firm, is much more cautious but says the area is "very encouraging."

"There is promising seismic evidence," says a spokesman for British Petroleum, "but until we have done a lot of drilling, we can't be sure what oil is actually there."

The British government's Economic Intelligence Unit made an exhaustive survey of the area around the Falklands in 1976 and reported it bore striking geological similarities to the North Sea.

It said four areas were particularly promising: the Malvinas Basin, between Argentina and the Falklands; the Falkland Plateau, east southeast of the archipelago; the Burdwood Bank, south of the islands, and the San Jorge Basin, off the Argentine coast between the ports of Comodoro Rivadavia and Desseado.

"Geological and preliminary seismic evidence is such that there is certain to be interest in exploration by oil companies," it said.

But because of the long-simmering dispute over ownership of the islands, the only actual drilling in the area has been done by Argentina in its own territorial waters. YPF last February announced a strike off the Patagonian coast and said it produced 2,000 barrels a day until it was capped.

About 50 applications to drill in the Falklands area have been pending with the British government. None was granted because of the dispute with Argentina.

The Argentines reportedly have been discussing joint ventures with major international oil firms. Last May, the British government put an ad in the International Herald Tribune warning the companies any such venture would be risky until the territorial dispute was solved.

In an editorial last week, before Argentina seized the Falklands, the pro-Conservative Daily Telegraph bemoaned the Conservative British government's willingness even to discuss the sovereignty issue with Argentina when so much petroleum and natural gas might be at stake.

"Perhaps the (Foreign Office) mandarins believe that oil is something which originates in petrol (gasoline) pumps," it said. "The Argentine government is made of sterner stuff. ... For it, oil is good news, and whipping up bogus nationalist causes is nearly as good."

At Wolf Trap, The Show Will Go On

WASHINGTON (AP) — Directors of Wolf Trap Farm Park, where fire gutted the central pavilion at the national performing arts center, say they hope most of the 1982 season events can be staged in a temporary structure.

Robert K. Gray, board chairman of the Wolf Trap Foundation, said officials will begin immediate discussions with contractors to construct a building in time for the June 8 season opening.

Foundation members met Monday at the home of Catherine Filene Shouse, who donated the land and the money to build the $5 million Filene Center.

The 6,500-seat outdoor amphitheater was reduced to rubble by fire Sunday night. An investigation into the cause of the blaze is continuing, and fire officials have not ruled out arson.

Wolf Trap, the only national park for the performing arts, is located in Vienna, Va., about 15 miles from Washington. Since the facility opened in the early 1970s, Washington area residents have flocked to the popular summertime arts events staged there.

Among those scheduled to perform in 1982 are musicians Ray Charles, Jean-Pierre Rampal, Judy Collins and Arlo Guthrie. In addition, jazz, pop and bluegrass programs have been planned, along with orchestral performances by the National Symphony and the American Philharmonic.

Tickets for many of the performances have already been sold.

Discussing Wolf Trap's long-term future, Gray said the foundation's board on Monday appointed Postmaster General William Bolger as chairman of a nationwide fund-raising drive.

He said no goal for the money-raising effort has been set.

"Construction costs have gone up enormously since the building was built, but then the number of Wolf Trap fans has gone up too," Gray said, adding "there has been an outpouring of support" since the fire.

The New York Philharmonic has volunteered to put on a benefit concert and the Kennedy Center and National Theatre have offered their facilities for use in the fund-raising effort, Gray said.
