N.C. Revenues Saw Another Bad Month

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State tax collections suffered another bad month during March, reflecting lower retail sales and larger refunds to income taxpayers, state officials say.

Gov. Jim Hunt, citing the worsening economic news, said he had ordered his budget office to further tighten state spending — which has already been restricted by a hiring freeze and 5 percent spending cutback.

According to preliminary figures from the state Revenue Department, the state's tax collections grew only 1 percent during March, compared to March of last year.

That was far below expectations since March of 1981 was an unusually dismal month and budget officials believed only a reasonable economic condition this March would have produced high growth figures.

"We're definitely surprised," said Marvin Dorman, deputy state budget officer. "We thought March would be a good month for revenue."

The poor month comes on the heels of only slightly better collections in January and February, combining for a growth rate of only 3.5 percent for the third quarter of the fiscal year.

That is the worst performance for a quarter-year in North Carolina since the 1975 depression, budget analysts said.

The collections also mean revenues for the first nine months of the fiscal year were up 8.4 percent over the same period of last year — significantly below the 10.3 percent growth rate assumed in the current state budget.

Dorman said the lowered collections were due to an increase in the amount of tax revenues being issued and to poor retail sales. A special concern was that sales tax collections declined during February and March in comparison to the same periods last year, Dorman said.

Hunt issued a letter to state legislators informing them of the bad economic news and saying administration efforts to reduce spending have been working.

The budget tightening was the third ordered this fiscal year. Six months ago, Hunt ordered a 3 percent cutback in allotments to state agencies when revenues were running about even with projections.

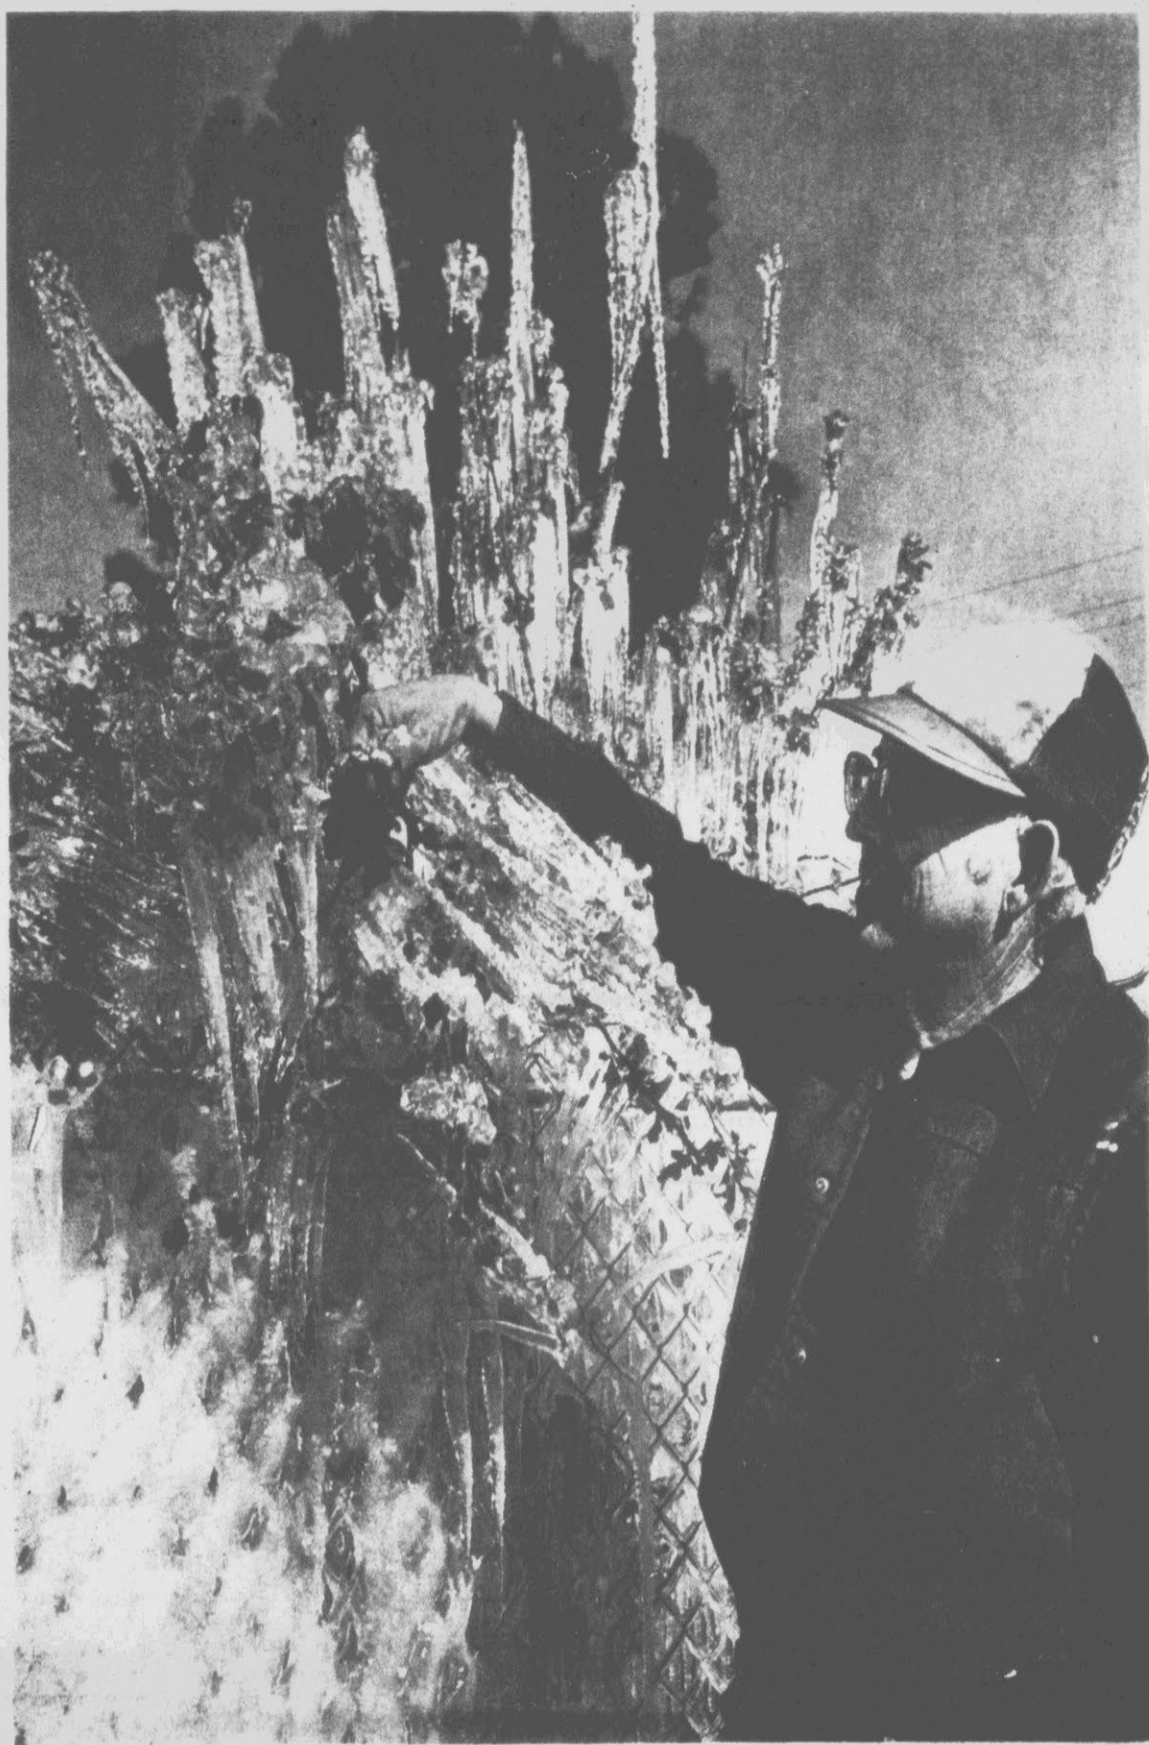

In January, he increased the allotment cutback to 5 percent and restricted travel, hiring and purchasing when collections were up 9.2 percent, more than 1 percent below the projected amount.

In practice, Dorman said, the state has cut most agencies by about 7 percent. He said the latest order would tighten spending even further.

"They've just really tightened the screws. He's directing the budget office to tighten them even further," said Gary Pearce, Hunt's press secretary.

Because of the earlier cutbacks, state officials said they did not foresee a budget shortfall by the end of the fiscal year. But the General Assembly did not include revenue for $200 million worth of programs in the state budget for the 1982-1983 fiscal year, and the administration is trying to build a surplus of that amount to carry into the new year July 1.

"I have directed that state agencies do everything they can to provide as large a credit balance as possible at the end of this year," Hunt wrote. "That credit balance will be used to balance the 1982-1983 budget."

Tree Sheathed In Ice

ICE COVERED APPLE TREE ... William Tingen of Old River Road near Greenville watered his apple trees Tuesday night in an effort to protect the blooms that covered the fruit-bearing trees.

Tingen said he started the lawn sprinkler about 10 p.m. Tuesday and let it run all night, creating an ice-like wonderland in his yard. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

Record April Cold Grips East Following Blizzard

By ANDY O'CONNELL
Associated Press Writer

Record April cold stunned much of the eastern half of the nation today in the path of an unprecedented spring blizzard that buried the maior cities of the Northeast in up to 2 feet of snow.

The big blow that crippled cities such as New York and Boston with snows driven by winds gusting to 80 mph had moved into the northeastern tip of New England, but the National Weather Service warned that a new snowstorm was bearing down on the snowbound Midwest.

Temperatures this morning dropped below zero this morning in northern Minnesota and upper Michigan and were below freezing as far south as the Tennessee Valley and the southern Appalachians.

With another storm developing over the central Rockies, a winter storm watch was posted in north-eastern Iowa, southern Minnesota, southern Wisconsin and northern Illinois.

Snow already was falling over the northern half of the Great Plains.

The storm killed at least four people Tuesday in the Northeast after claiming 10 lives in the Midwest the day before, and four young hikers were missing in the Catskill Forest of New York.

The Coast Guard searched today for a fishing boat with eight people on board that radioed late Tuesday it was taking on water in rough seas and high winds 11 miles east of Seaside Heights, N.J.

Elections were canceled, Connecticut Gov. William O'Neill called out the National Guard to help clear the streets of abandoned cars and the airports serving New York, Boston and New Jersey were shut down.

Bitter cold threatened the peach crop in Dixie and thousands of people lost electricity in Virginia as winds gusted up to 72 mph.

Unannounced, But Running

Democrat Leo Jenkins, who retired in 1978 after a politically visible tour as chancellor of East Carolina University, indicated today he will seek his party's nomination for governor in 1984.

"I am not going to announce yet because it still is way too early, but I am in the mill," Jenkins said in a telephone interview.

Jenkins, who wooed public reaction to a candidacy a decade ago, has never run for public office but has gained widespread exposure through his role as administrative leader at ECU. His earlier interest in political races came during ECU's long fight to win legislative approval of a medical school at the Greenville institution.

Asked if he had begun arranging a campaign organization, Jenkins responded: "I am working on it now."

Jenkins said he doesn't know how funding for a campaign would be arranged "because it's too early in the game. I am not too concerned about that because I don't need to buy identity."

Jenkins said he has found support throughout the state but will delay a formal announcement of his candidacy.

"It won't be until way ... I'll go as close as I can because that will allow me more freedom," he said.

Social Security To Dead Curbed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Social Security clerk who first suggested checking the Medicare rolls to see if the agency was sending benefits to dead people got a $5,000 award today.

Health and Human Services Secretary Richard S. Schweiker said the suggestion from Ted Katz, a Brooklyn, N.Y., claims representative, is leading to the recovery of up to $30 million in erroneous payments.

Schweiker said his department expects to save an additional $13.4 million this year through the computer cross-checks used to eliminate payments to the dead.

Schweiker also gave a $2,500 award to Michael Cesario, an investigator on the staff of the inspector general who put together the project that led to the cutoff of payments to the dead.

Schweiker said Katz originally suggested the cross-checks in 1979, but his idea was not picked up by the Carter administration.

Last summer Schweiker's inspector general launched a probe of the payments that led to the discovery that 7,958 people listed as dead on Medicare records were still getting monthly Social Security checks, including some who had been dead for 15 years.

Katz is a grade-seven claims representative who earns less than $21,000 a year, according to John Trollinger, a Social Security spokesman.

Trollinger said the agency has established that 4,738 of the 7,958 people, or 60 percent, are dead and that 2,105, or 26 percent, are alive. The status of 1,115, or 14 percent, was still pending.

Tail End Of Wicked Winter Brings Bitter Winds And A Freeze

By MARY SCHULKEN
Reflector Staff Writer

The tail end of wicked winter-like storm swept across eastern North Carolina Tuesday, accompanied by winds gusting up to 50 miles per hour and freezing nighttime temperatures that stifled for now any thoughts of spring.

The same freak storm system that brought six inches of snow to New York delivered howling winds Tuesday of 30-40 mph around the North Carolina coast, the National Weather Service reported. In Pitt County, the winds again turned highways and open spaces into dust bowls.

Despite the high winds, Greenville Utilities reported no major outages and little damage from the storm. "We had one tree hit a line," said assistant director Malcolm Green, "and two services were blown down but nobody lost their lights."

Temperatures in the Greenville area plunged from the 60s early in the day to a low of 30 degrees Fahrenheit Tuesday night, according to a Greenville Utilities spokesman, and fruit and early vegetables in the county may be hurt by the freak freeze, said county extension agent Sam Uzzell.

"Strawberries and other fruits are budding out right now," said Uzzell, "but most growers irrigated last night to protect the buds." As the water freezes around the plants, he explained, it releases enough heat to save the buds.

For this irrigation to be effective, however, producers say, winds need to be less than 5 mph.

Uzzell said much topsoil, along with herbicides and fertilizer, was moved by Tuesday's winds. "A lot of farmers who had put herbicides and fertilizer down will see some loss of effectivity because the winds, in essence, redistributed the substances," he explained.

Any tobacco that's been set in the field, noted the farm agent, will likely have to be reset. "If the sand hasn't cut the plants to pieces," he said, "then the freeze has effectively killed them. There will be considerable resetting."

More sub-freezing temperatures are predicted for tonight, with lows possibly falling into the 20s.

Tentative Budget

The Pitt County Board of Education has given its OK to a tentative 1982-83 budget that includes $6,564,596 in current expenses and $3,156,885 in capital outlay requests.

Associate Superintendent Thomas Craft said the figures, especially those for capital outlay, represent the county schools' "most pressing and basic needs."

"These are not by any means our total needs," he noted at the board's Tuesday workshop. "This is what we need to keep going." These preliminary totals include both state and local revenue sources.

The state, tentatively, would provide $907,984 of the $654,596 current expense money. Craft's report indicated $5,563,832 would come from local funds and $92,780 from other sources. The figure represents a $700,191 increase over the total 1981-82 current expense appropriation.

Included in the over $3 million capital outlay budget is $1.3 million for a new Ayden Middle School, along with $126,000 for classrooms and mobile units at A.G. Cox, $225,000 for a lunchroom at Chicod, $250,000 for a lunchroom at Pactolus, $94,000 for classrooms and mobile units at W.H. Robinson and $198,000 for a new home economics building at G.R. Whitfield.

Final approval for the 1982-83 budget is scheduled for the board's May 4 meeting.

FARMVILLE — The Farmville Commissioners meeting room was crowded Tuesday night as citizens turned out apparently in reference to two issues: the making of a portion of the Walter B. Jones Town Common into a park area and to support a request that the Southside Recreation Center be available to a newly formed corporation that has plans for a day care center.

Frankie Moyer spoke on behalf of three Farmville garden clubs whose members wish to take responsibility for developing a park on the town commons block (bounded by North Main, Belcher, North Walnut and East Home Avenue). Mayor Rusty Duke agreed to appoint a seven-member committee to study the matter. Four members would be from the garden clubs. A town board committee will work with them.

Edith Gay Barnes and Carlton Gay presented their family's plans for a day care center to serve Farmville which they would call the Edwin Kids' Day Care Center in honor of their brother, who died in an automobile accident after he had begun planning such a center.

The Gay family has formed a non-profit corporation and wants to use the Southside Recreation Center if it is vacated when a new community center is built. They would renovate the building and be responsible for taxes and upkeep. The commissioners told the Gays they are in favor of the undertaking and will include that possible use of the Southside Center in its further consideration of building a community center with Community Development Funds.

Several citizens, including Pete Anderson, James W. Taylor and Richard Dupree, spoke on behalf of continuing plans for the new community center. Duke said he was glad to hear the support, that community opinion had appeared to the board to be divided on the issue at one time. "We need to know what the citizens want so we'll know how to proceed," he said.

An electric rate increase to large users who contract for more than 50 kw of electricity per month was enacted. A recent overall rate increase failed to take into considera-

Planning Makes Kids Helpful At Home

NEW YORK (AP) — "It's ironic that before children are old enough to be very useful at home tasks their one passion is to help Mommy. Alas, by the time they are 10 or 12, and could give working parents a real hand, excuse-it-is has set in," says Esther Hautzig, author of a number of activity books for children.

"I wasn't told ... I didn't know how ... I couldn't read your note ... you forgot I had a meeting ... the job was too hard." These are some of the common excuses of children, along with the old favorite, "I forgot," notes Mrs. Hautzig, whose book, "Life With Working Parents," is written from the child's viewpoint.

If parents assign chores to be done after school, without supervision, it's better to settle for modest help given regularly, instead of spasmodic major efforts, she advises. By planning, they can forestall alibis and structure tasks as "set-ups for success," she explains.

"If you and your children agree on what is reasonable, and make sure the task is do-able, they find a lot of satisfaction," she observes. "Then there's a chance for helping to become a habit."

Ingredients for a working plan, she points out, include a family calendar, so a chore assignment won't overlap a play rehearsal, for instance. Then there's "Message Central," a bulletin board or chalkboard everyone learns to consult automatically upon coming home.

After that, parents can identify areas where a little regular help is most useful, and reach agreement with the kids, says Mrs. Hautzig, who adds that these tips from an informal poll of working mothers conducted by the Regina Corp. will help de-hassle after-school jobs and ease children into more responsibility successfully:

— Quick Cleaning: A once-over-lightly is easier when equipment is convenient for youngsters to use: a lightweight electric vacuum cleaner for whisking over rugs and floors; a hand brush and squeegee mop for spills; a pump-spray cleaner and sponges for spritzing the kitchen appliances.

— Room-tidying: Many parents sigh and surrender to a closed-door policy, but if a child's room is always cluttered, maybe more storage space will help. Work with the child to add shelves, hooks, cupboards, until there can be an assigned place for everything.

— Shopping: A common complaint is "You didn't say what kind you wanted!" One answer is a photocopied quantity of Mom's customized shopping list, showing all regularly used items, with brand and size preferences.

A quick morning checkoff does it, or a call from the office — and the child has confidence about choosing correctly.

— Dinner: The easiest phase-in is to ask kids to put a premixed casserole into the oven at the right time. Non-cooking preparations like washing salad greens are simple.

If children want to tackle a whole meal, have them cook the whole menu several times on weekends, when you're around, so it will be tried-and-true when they're on their own.

— Laundry: It's not hard to get family members to put dirty clothes in a hamper or utility room, and washer-dryers do the actual cleaning job. But, as any weary sock-matcher can testify, the real bother is sorting and restoring items to bureau and closet.

It's a big help to supply each child with large zippered netting bags to use for socks, underwear or other knitted clothes requiring no ironing or folding. Bags can go from hamper to washer and dryer and back into rooms with no sorting on anybody's part.

Bridal Shower Held Tuesday

Janet Shirts was honored at a bridal shower Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Sam Sanford.

Special guests included Addie Smith, mother of the honoree, Mrs. Harvey Grady Sr., Dot Smith, Judy Miller, Linda Tripp, Caroline Worthington, Janet Wooten and Ann Davis.

The refreshment table was covered with an Army-Navy lace cloth and centered with a spring floral arrangement flanked by silver candelabra holding ivory tapers.

Ms. Shirts and Merle Bowser will be married here April 17.

Butcher Block
Most butcher blocks are made of solid hard maple and are, therefore, relatively easy to care for.

Clean when necessary with warm water, soap, or detergent. Wipe dry immediately; never allow water to remain on block. Scouring powder, steel wool, or sand paper can be used for stubborn stains and cutting marks.

To preserve the block and prevent cracking, occasionally apply a generous quantity of vegetable or mineral oil to the surface; let stand 5 minutes; wipe off. This treatment should be done after heavy cleaning, sanding, or whenever the block loses its golden maple color.

Excessive dryness or humidity can cause cracks or warping to develop. Cracks should be filled promptly with wood filler; then sanded smooth, and re-oiled. Warping can be corrected by securely attaching block to cabinet base. However, allowances must be made for expansion and contraction.

After six months of treating, the block will have adjusted to the climate around it and the need for special treatments will be greatly reduced. Additional treating will vary directly with the amount of usage.

Iron
Rust is the number one enemy of iron. The first step in preventing rust is to keep iron dry. In some cases, as with outdoor furniture and cooking utensils, this is not always possible. Therefore, rust must be removed periodically.

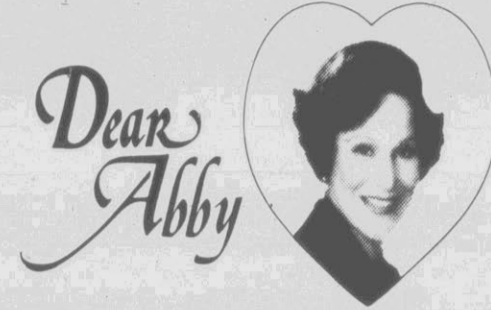

Remove light rust by scrubbing with number one ought (0) or tow ough (00) steel wool or a wire brush. Most rust buildup can be removed with persistent scrubbing.

There are also several commercial rust removers available. Apply according to product directions and check the action of the cleaner on the metal. Extensive etching or pitting can occur if the solution stays on too long.

To deter rust buildup on decorative pieces, use a rust retardant paint. These paints come in a variety of colors. For best results, be sure the item is dry and rust free before painting. Clear, flat acrylic spray also can serve as a rust retardant finish. Again, apply according to product directions.

Iron utensils used in food preparation must be re-seasoned after deep cleaning. Coat the inside and lid generously with unsalted fat or oil, and heat in an oven set at 200 degrees F. for one hour. Wipe out excess fat with a paper towel.

Gallup Poll Lists 24 Professions

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1982 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Someone told me that a recent poll was taken to find out which professionals and business people are the most respected, and real estate dealers were way down at the bottom of the list. Can you please check this out for me?

SELLS REAL ESTATE IN DALLAS

DEAR SELLS: The Gallup Poll listed the following 24 professions in order of their reputation for honesty, integrity and ethical standards. The results of the poll showed that ministers were most respected, followed by pharmacists, then dentists, next M.D.s, engineers, college professors, policemen, bankers, TV reporters, newspaper reporters, funeral directors, lawyers, stockbrokers, senators, business executives, building contractors, congressmen, local officeholders, real estate dealers, union leaders, state officeholders, insurance salesmen, advertising practitioners and auto salesmen.

DEAR ABBY: You really blew it to "Underdeveloped," the unhappy, flat-chested eighth-grader who wanted a bra but whose mother wouldn't get her one until she had something to put in it. You told her to be patient—maybe she was a late bloomer.

Girls that age have enough to deal with without feeling inadequate because they're flat-chested. As a former flatso myself, I know how that girl felt. Fortunately, my mother was more understanding than hers. She bought me a padded bra, and it made all the difference in the world to me. Instead of feeling ashamed of my underdeveloped body, it gave me a lot of self-confidence.

I'm still a flatso underneath it all, but I've been wearing a padded bra for 25 years and I feel good about myself.

NO BOOBS IN BURLINGAME

DEAR NO: Let's hear it from a lady lawyer who accepted Mother Nature's verdict with grace:

DEAR ABBY: This letter is addressed to "Underdeveloped": Your letter to Dear Abby struck a responsive chord in me because I had the same problem at your age. My mother bought me a bra, and everyone made fun of me because it kept slipping up. (I had nothing to fill it.) Added to that, I was extremely tall and skinny. I was called "Stringbean" and "Telephone Pole." I, too, wanted to cry often.

Don't feel bad. You may be a late bloomer. I never was. However, I decided to make the best of what I had. I developed my mind, my personality and my self-confidence. The end result? A 6-foot lady attorney who the men love to flirt with and the women envy because I "could be a model." By the way, not one guy I have known since I was 18 has commented unfavorably about my flat chest. Hang in there!

A Serious Business

It started as something to be taken lightly — that Argentine threat to take over the Falkland Islands.

There was, after all, nothing on the island but a few British subjects who raised sheep.

Then Argentina made good on its threat, invaded the islands and staged a military take-over.

Now the British fleet is on the move, the Thatcher government is embarrassed and high level resignations are taking place.

Still, the situation is not viewed as a threat to world peace. We shouldn't be too certain. A war state anywhere on earth carries the potential for spreading. This one is in our own hemisphere and it involves one of our closest allies. It will be difficult for the United States and the rest of the western nations to stand by and watch the territory of England grabbed off by military means.

Britain still has formidable military might and it possibly may be able to resolve the situation with force. But the Falkland Islands are a long way from home and, if military action is to be sustained, supply bases will be needed in this part of the world. Who will furnish them? Only time will tell how the war of the Falkland Islands will progress.

Soon Dust Will Settle

A headline Monday referred to a "dust bowl" in Pitt County and the area.

It was that over the weekend. High winds Saturday through Tuesday lifted soil from the freshly plowed fields of Pitt County farms and created clouds which obscured the vision of motorists throughout the area.

Little direct damage from the winds was reported, but the annual erosion of top soil from area farms is causing incalculable damage for the future.

It won't be evident in the short term, however, and given good growing conditions farm land will soon settle down to producing crops. The great dust storm for this year will be concluded.

THIS AFTERNOON

Many Participate

By PAUL T. O'CONNOR
RALEIGH — It'll probably be several months before state officials sort and process the thousands of responses they received to the N.C. 2000 questionnaire. But just from spending an hour leafing through the stacks of completed forms, several general trends are obvious.

The first is that some people are very angry about what they perceive to be government "softness." The second is that other people are scared by what they see as government "harshness." The third is that a great deal of the people still think enough of the system to participate.

Their replies come to an open-ended question: If you had five minutes alone with the governor, what would you say to him?

State workers handling the responses say they found some which were completely filled with handwriting and then had three or four pages attached.

"We need the death penalty in this state," wrote a 54-year-old man from Iredell County. "Justice is what we need more of. The court system needs more judges who know what they are doing instead of playacting," an 18-year-old Cabarrus County woman wrote. "All the people who are on welfare are able to work but don't should be made to get out and clean up our state," a 31-year-old Hoke County woman wrote.

There are hundreds of angry letters like this. People calling for an end to welfare cheating, for a halt to the migration of Northern and foreign workers into the state and for an end to the dumping of hazardous wastes near their houses.

There are others who plead for help. A number of elderly Hoke County residents said they need more police protection in their neighborhood. Some ask for more good jobs in the state, for better health care, for financial aid to help raise their families. One Halifax County woman simply asks the governor "to help us that need help."

PAUL O'CONNOR

The issue addressed most often appears to be education. These people say they want better schools, more vocational education and more student discipline. Several criticize proposed cuts in next year's federal education budget.

There's also a bit of political posturing. A number of Randolph County residents criticized Gov. Jim Hunt's highway road signs. Another said Hunt "should spend a little time being governor while you attempt to work for a federal job." A Rowan County man counters that he'd tell Hunt to "get more Democrats into office so we can clean up this mess the Republicans have caused."

Margaret Riddle, coordinator of the state Office of Policy and Planning, has read through hundreds of the responses. The most striking thing about them, she says, is their serious tone. "I spent about an hour going through them with a reporter yesterday looking for some funny ones," she said. "It took an awful long time to find a few."

Elaine Matthews, an aide to Ms. Riddle, estimates that more than 75,000 people responded to the questionnaire. Government workers often feel the public doesn't care anymore, she said, "but a response like this makes me believe there are still people out there who think that something can happen through government."

Much of the response no doubt came from people motivated to either grind or polish Hunt's image. And there are a number of responses sent in from school children who probably had to fill them out as some kind of classroom assignment.

But there are many forms in those piles that were self-addressed and written out in long hand. Forms that a lot of people took a few minutes to fill out and send to the governor. And the best

Elections In Enchilada

Flounder rushed into Bass's office at the State Department and cried, "The Secretary wants a slide presentation on the elections in Enchilada to show to the American people."

"I anticipated that," said Bass. "I've been putting one together. Sit down."

"This is the Garcia family, which lives in Miami and which financed the Liberal Peasant Assassination Party of Miguel Tortilla."

"Who is Tortilla?" "He is known as 'The Hammer' because his people like to beat on opposition politicians with hammers. In 1971 we called him Enchilada's 'Criminal of the Year.' But he got 25 percent of the vote."

"Wow, it's going to be hard for us to support him." "Not necessarily. We found a slide of Tortilla giving blood to the Red Cross. Next."

"That looks like Beverly Hills."

"It is. The Gomez family, which owns all the vanilla plantations in Enchilada, resides there."

"Who takes care of their affairs back home?"

"The Sambico Death Squads, lead by Heraldo Destino. The Sambicos claim to have wiped out 20 villages in the Ole Mountains. They're policemen by day, and work for the Gomez family at night. Destino ran on the National Unity and Freedom Party under the political slogan 'Land Reform Sucks.' He got 18 percent of the vote."

ART BUCHWALD

"Can we deal with him?" "We're going to have to because he's formed a coalition with Tortilla. Next slide."

"I don't recognize that fellow."

"That is the 'Gorilla of Cuevas' who represents the United Papillon Front, a group that splintered off from Destino because the National Unity and Freedom Party gave up the use of machetes to frighten the Indians during the election. His money comes from the Diego family, which lives in Palm Springs. He got 20 percent of the vote. He's willing to form a government with Destino and Tortilla, provided they go back to using machetes against the Indians."

"How do we explain him to the American people?"

"As an Enchilada freedom fighter who has read every book on Thomas Jefferson. Here is that crumb Jimenez Tipperillo, the loser we supported in the elections. Even with CIA help and a $50 million military slush fund he couldn't pull it off."

"We're going to have to back away from him."

"We have already. We put out the word he sleeps with a picture of Fidel Castro under his pillow."

"What are the rest of the slides?"

"Photos of the Enchilada Marxist guerrillas raping and pillaging the country."

"How did we get them?"

"We took them in Uganda, but who the hell is going to know the difference?"

"It looks like a pretty convincing slide show to me. Of course if we continue our military aid the President is going to have to certify that the new government believes in human rights."

"That's no problem. I spoke to Tortilla on the phone this morning and he assured me that anyone who opposes the new government's human rights policy will be shot in the knees."

Deployment In Violation

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — A new, still secret consensus among U.S. intelligence agencies, following months of bitter dispute, that the Soviet Union has deployed almost 200 mobile intercontinental missiles (ICBM's) in violation of the SALT II treaty undercuts politicians trying to cash in on the nuclear freeze frenzy.

If President Reagan decides to let the American people in on the confidential finding of his top intelligence advisers and explains its disturbing implications, it might end forthwith the battle in Congress and his own administration over this question: How should Reagan accommodate politically to the freeze movement without getting caught by Moscow in a freeze trap? Soviet cheating on mobile ICBM's, banned by SALT II, makes talk of an unverifiable freeze both ludicrous and dangerous.

On Friday afternoon, March 26, Secretary of State Alexander Haig overcame contentious White House political aides in persuading the president not to endorse any form of nuclear "freeze." At his press conference five days later, Reagan applauded Sens. Henry M. Jackson and John Warner for their resolution calling for "sharply reduced levels," but carefully avoided endorsing their freeze.

But before March 26 and even up to the press conference, White House aides, including chief of staff James Baker III, tried to change the president's mind on the freeze by leaks and private hints to the press. Called "the populists" by national security advisers because of their reliance on public opinion polls in determining foreign policy, these White House aides may display more fortitude with word of the Soviet violation of the SALT II prohibition of mobile ICBM's.

The new consensus that close to 200 SS-16 ICBM's have been "fully deployed" in the area of a Soviet test range called Plesetsk, near Arkhangel, ends months — perhaps even several years — of disagreement in the U.S. government. Analysts of the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA), the Defense Intelligence Agency (DIA), the National Security Agency (NSA) and other intelligence units have pondered hard and long whether the Kremlin could so blatantly be violating the treaty signed by Presidents Jimmy Carter and Leonid Brezhnev (but not ratified by the U.S. Senate).

Now, however, evidence of actual deployment of the world's first mobile ICBM (a counterpart of the intermediate-range SS-20 with an extra rocket stage and a single onemegaton warhead) is incontrovertible. The dread 6,000-nautical-mile missile, housed in and fired from huge, wheeled vehicles capable of rapid movement, are concealed under elaborate camouflage in the Plesetsk region. Their existence violates explicit SALT II prohibitions on both the production and deployment of mobile ICBM's (deemed particularly "destabilizing" to superpower nuclear relations).

The fact that competing U.S. intelligence agencies took several years to establish a consensus on SS-16 deployment points up the danger of a nuclear freeze not accompanied by airtight — that is, on-site — inspection methods to verify Soviet compliance. Yet, the Soviets won't accept on-site inspection by Western or neutral specialists aimed at preventing deployment of such weapons as the SS-16, while the world's most open society remains unable to keep any secrets at all.

Given the Soviet record of clandestine production of a vast array of nuclear missiles, submarines and other weapons that suddenly show themselves to the world without warning, critics view any nuclear freeze without iron-clad verification of compliance as dangerously mischievous for the U.S. A similar view was held by President John F. Kennedy after the Soviets secretly exploited the 1958 moratorium on weapons testing and then

Today In History

By The Associated Press
Today is Wednesday, April 7, the 97th day of 1982. There are 268 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On April 7, 1960, President Carter broke diplomatic relations with Iran as militants in Tehran continued to hold more than 50 Americans hostage.

On this date:

In 1926, the first of several attempts was made to assassinate Italy's Benito Mussolini.

In 1934, Mahatma Gandhi suspended his civil disobedience campaign in India.

In 1945, U.S. carrier planes sank Japan's largest battleship, the "Yamato," in World War II.

And in 1978, President

Carter announced his decision to defer production of the controversial neutron warhead.

Ten years ago: Former President Lyndon Johnson was hospitalized in Charlottesville, Va., after suffering a heart attack.

Five years ago: Israel's caretaker prime minister, Yitzhak Rabin, withdrew as a candidate for the prime ministership amid controversy over his American bank accounts.

One year ago: It was announced that Warsaw Pact military maneuvers off the Polish border had ended, and Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev said he believed the Polish government could best solve its own labor crisis.

Polls Cannot Reflect The Vote

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
AP Political Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Whether the subject is baseball or politics, Americans want to know the score and public opinion polls have become the political scorecards of this age.

Is Ronald Reagan winning or losing? How are the Republicans doing? Are the Democrats bouncing back?

Check the latest polls. There are new ones just about every week.

And, like baseball boxscores, they contain invaluable statistical delights for the fan who can read them with an awareness of their limitations.

Just as today's early season boxscores can't be read for reliable signs of which teams will be in the World Series next October, the polls of spring do not necessarily forecast the votes of November.

President Reagan reads the polls carefully and, publicly, at least, he brushes off the downward trend.

He told reporters Monday the polls are following "a pattern that's been historically true of every president" and added that they reflect "quite a drumbeat of criticism that has gone largely unanswered by us."

But those polls can make it very difficult to govern in uneasy times. How does a president exercise leadership in an era of intensive polling with its inevitable pressures on politicians to conform rather than lead.

For example, suppose Reagan is right about the economy despite polls showing a majority of Americans don't think his policies will work.

How long can a president pursue an unpopular or questionable course against the kind of pressure generated by weekly polls that say the public thinks he ought to change direction.

It's an election year and members of Congress are reading the latest polls as surely as they were reading those of a year ago that showed strong public support for the budget and tax cuts advocated by the president.

It wasn't just opinion polls that contributed to the pressure on Congress to support the Reagan program in 1981. More influential were the 1980 election returns and the telephone calls and letters to congressional offices as well as the signals lawmakers got on their trips home.

And it won't be just opinion polls that determine the success or failure of the Reagan program on Capitol Hill this year.

Peter Hart, a pollster with strong ties to the Democrats, says he doesn't think polls are taking control of the political process. "I think people make individual judgments," he said in an interview.

But Hart also acknowledged the last five years have seen what he called "a certain amount of poll proliferation..."

"When Harris and Gallup were the two organizations and they were giving it to you every three months that was helpful. Now, when you multiply Harris and Gallup times the six other organizations that are around, it seems like you're getting them every hour on the hour."

One of the boxscore-type statistics now being given the public is the performance rating.

"Yes," said Hart "it is helpful to have performance ratings, but not as often and as regularly as we've been getting them."

A potential irony in an age of polls is that the politicians who might prove the ultimate survivors will be those who are able to manipulate opinion rather than respond to it.

Politics might become even more dependent on marketing techniques and on the ability to package candidates and ideas in a manner that will make them easy to sell.

Strength For Today

SPIRITUAL YEARNING

In recent years there has been a marked increase in church attendance and other evidences of an eager yearning for the things of the spirit.

Two world wars, the spread of communism, instability in the Near East, and the possibility of nuclear holocaust are sometimes cited as the causes for this search for spiritual reality. But these factors are not the cause; rather they are the result of our having forsaken our religion. The materialism and unbelief of much of the twentieth century through which we have passed has left the soul of men ailing and sick.

Someone has said that man is incurably religious. Certainly as we look back through history we can see that all periods of unbelief and materialism have been succeeded by religious revivals. An ancient psalmist declared that his soul panted after God. He typified the spiritual hunger and thirst of every age. — Elisha Douglass

Helicopters Will Try Again To Reach Volcano-Scene Villages

By CONCEPCION BADILLO
Associated Press Writer
VILLAHERMOSA, Mexico
(AP) — A group of American helicopter pilots planned another attempt today to reach isolated villages on the slopes of the erupting Chichonal volcano in which more than 5,000 peasants may have perished. The chief pilot said he doubted they would be successful.

The 10 pilots flying for Pemex, the Mexican government's oil monopoly, made some trial flights Tuesday. But they could not get near the 4,340-foot volcano because of the clouds of volcanic ash belching up from the crater.

Chief pilot James Ballard said the copters would try again to fly over the five villages on the slopes of the mountain from which nothing has been heard since the eruptions began March 29. But he said the dense clouds of ash would probably force them back because the debris would clog the turbines of their choppers.

The villages are reached normally by trails now blocked by ashes three feet deep from El Chichonal. With villages much farther away from the crater deserted because of the ash covering them and roofs of huts collapsed by the accumulation of debris, many officials doubt that anyone is still alive in the isolated settlements.

However, Defense Minister Felix Galvan Lopez said he was still planning to have 150 army paratroopers dropped into the villages with food and medicine "as soon as it is possible."

Twenty-one deaths have been confirmed and more than 500 people were injured in the first week of eruptions from the peak in the Sierra Madre range in southeast Mexico. Towns and villages for miles around have been emptied by more than 60,000 refugees.

Another light eruption Tuesday, which coincided with an earthquake in

May Apply For Crop Insurance

Agents for all-risk federal crop insurance are now taking applications for coverage of corn, grain sorghum, soybeans, cotton, peanuts and tobacco crops.

Application deadlines for insurance are: tobacco (Type 12, eastern North Carolina, and Type 13, Border Belt area), April 20; tobacco (Type 11, Old and Middle belts and Type 31, burley), May 20. The deadline for corn and cotton was March 31.

All-risk crop insurance insures crops against all natural hazards, including adverse weather, fire, disease, insects and wildlife. The insurance protects the farmer's investment in his crops.

Beginning with the 1982 crop year, federal disaster payments will not be made to producers for whom federal crop insurance is available.

Names of agents in each county may be obtained from the county office of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

southern Mexico and Guatemala, poured more debris on the empty towns. Federico Mooser, head of a government geological team, said he believed the volcano "is accumulating rocks and sand" for another major eruption in a few days.

No casualties were reported from the earthquake.

El Chichonal was spewing up a 30,000-foot pillar of ash-filled smoke and steam, and the fallout was spreading for hundreds of miles.

"It is covering everything, trees, houses, the streets," said a resident of San Miguel Acatan, Guatemala, 220 miles away.

Geologists said a new danger was posed by poisonous gases emitted by the volcano. Soldiers were getting sick from the fumes while rescuing farmers, officials said.

broke it without warning in September 1961.

With his country caught naked, Kennedy could only strike back rhetorically. "We know enough now about broken negotiations, secret preparations and the advantages gained . . . never to offer again an unsuspected moratorium," he said on March 2, 1963. "Some may urge us to try it again, keeping our preparations . . . in a constant state of readiness. But . . . in a society of free choice, we cannot keep top-flight scientists . . . waiting for some other nation to break an agreement."

Kennedy was talking only about the Soviet breakout from the test moratorium. But Reagan advisers not blinded by narrow political considerations believe a nuclear freeze would offer similar opportunity for the Soviets to steal another march on the U.S., exploiting the freeze to produce new, more lethal weapons while the U.S. government was shackled by the freeze.

If they get their way, these advisers will convince Reagan that Soviet deployment of the banned SS-16 should be shouted from the rooftops to persuade the American people to oppose premature dreams of disarmers.

Major Crimes In N.C. Cities Dipped

By ELISSA MCCRARY
Associated Press Writer
CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Violent crime and property crime decreased in most of North Carolina's major cities in 1981, according to the FBI, but overall crime still increased by 1 percent over 1980. "North Carolina is right on line with the rest of the nation," said Robert L. Pence, special agent in charge of the state FBI in Charlotte. "We're really pleased to see the crime rate increase so slightly, especially in light of the really high figures we saw in 1980."

Nationally, violent crime rose by 1 percent while property crime remained about the same as 1980, FBI Director William H. Webster said, adding that the volume of reported crime reached an all-time high in 1980. According to FBI figures, the crime rate had the highest increase in the South, where it went up 1 percent. Crime in the Northeast and West showed no change and the North Central states recorded a 1 percent decrease.

Charlotte's crime rate climbed 13.1 percent for the highest increase among the state's five largest cities, while Greensboro had the best record, with a 3.6 percent drop in crime, Pence said.

Pence said robbery was the only major crime that increased across the state in 1981, rising 5.7 percent. Murder was down 7.5 percent, rape dropped by 1.5 percent, arson fell 6 percent and car theft declined 4 percent.

"I feel that it's unusual in a very bad economic year like 1981 to see a significant drop in crime," Pence said. "I think it shows that people have taken a different attitude toward crime and are working with authorities to prevent it."

"The figures prove that citizen involvement like neighborhood crime watches pays off," he added. "This is proof that it really works." Some crime, however, did increase.

Overall crime was up 2 percent in Durham, up 3.8 percent in Raleigh and down 2.8 percent in Winston-Salem.

In Charlotte, where crime made the largest jump, rape was up 36.5 percent, robbery increased 12.8 percent, assault increased 14.7 percent, burglary was up 4.2 percent, larceny increased 19.5 percent. The murder rate dropped in Charlotte by 15 percent. Arson figures were not available.

Durham, with an 8.3 percent increase in murder, was the only city to report an increased homicide rate for 1981. Greensboro had the greatest decline in murders with a 50 percent drop. Raleigh had the largest decrease in rapes, with a 12.5 percent decline. Winston-Salem had the best record for robbery with a reduction of 9.4 percent. Raleigh was down 18.6 percent in assault cases and Greensboro burglary fell 4.2 percent. Winston-Salem had greatest reduction in thefts with a 7.2 percent decrease.

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The State Ports Authority approved a $7.1 million expansion project for the port of Wilmington on Tuesday, rejecting a $33 million expansion plan that would have required long-term bond financing.

"We're getting just about everything we wanted to undertake a major expansion plan of the port at about 25 percent of the cost," said Secretary of Commerce Lauch Faircloth.

The alternative plan will convert 21 acres of existing land into use for container storage and add another container crane to the port by January 1984.

The plan that was rejected would have added 11.5 new acres of container storage to the port, a 900-foot dock and a container crane.

Cars Collided At Intersection

Cars driven by Miki Ann Ito of 2008 Pinecrest Drive and William Michael Wingate of 2700 Jackson Drive collided about 10:20 p.m. Tuesday at the intersection of 10th and Elm streets.

Police Department investigators estimated damage at $500 to each car.

Help Offered By N.C. Tax Office

The North Carolina Department of Revenue will have counselors on duty at its office at 300 W. First St. to assist taxpayers in preparing state income and intangibles tax returns Monday through Thursday of next week.

Assistance will be available between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. Revenue officer Larry Harrison asked that taxpayers bring the preaddressed forms mailed to them from Raleigh.

Taxpayers filing their own returns should mail those which indicate a refund to the North Carolina Department of Revenue, P.O. Box R, Raleigh, N.C. 27634; other completed returns should be mailed to the North Carolina Department of Revenue, P.O. Box 25000, Raleigh, N.C. 27640.

Parent-Teacher Meet Thursday

Carolina Country Day School will hold a Parent Teacher Organization meeting Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the school gymnasium.

The physical education classes, K-7, will present a program demonstrating activities from their physical education classes. After the meeting there will be a "bake auction."

Students' art work will be in display in the multipurpose room beginning at 7 p.m.

How Tar Heel Senators And Representatives Voted

By ROLL CALL REPORT SERVICE

WASHINGTON — Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes Mar. 25-31.

HOUSE COMMITTEE SPENDING — By a vote of 148 for and 270 against, the House refused to cut the 1982 budgets of its committees. The vote left intact a measure that authorizes $39.6 million for one of two categories of committee operations — about the same amount authorized last year. The $39.6 million covers salaries of about one-third of the 1,800 committee staffers as well as "investigations and studies" by the committees. Overall, House committee spending this year is projected at $73.5 million. The measure (H Res 378) was approved following failure of this attempt to inflict unspecified cuts in the $39.6 million.

Sponsor Robin Beard, R-Tenn., said "it is the height of hypocrisy to hear House leaders talk about federal deficits when they continue their (committee) empire building."

Opponent Frank Annunzio, D-Ill., said "we are asking for real sacrifices by our committees. It will not be easy for them to do their job within the dollar constraints imposed on them."

Members voting "nay" favored a $39.6 million committee outlay rather than a lower figure.

Reps. Eugene Johnston, R-6, James Martin, R-9, and William Hendon, R-11, voted "yea."

Reps. Walter Jones, D-1,

L.H. Fountain, D-2, Charles Whitley, D-3, Ike Andrews, D-4, Stephen Neal, D-5, Charles Rose, D-7, W.C. Heffner, D-8, and James Broyhill, R-10, voted "nay."

TAXING CONGRESSMEN — The Senate refused, 20 for and 77 against, to kill an amendment restoring the $3,000 limit on tax deductions congressmen can claim for Washington living expenses. However, the Senate later used parliamentary tactics to kill the amendment (see the following vote). The upshot is continued life for the 1981 law enabling congressmen to deduct up to $75 daily, without documentation, for housing, entertainment and other Washington expenses. For most lawmakers, the new tax law means a raise of several thousand dollars annually, retroactive to 1981. The votes came during debate on an appropriations bill (HJ Res 409) later passed and sent to the White House.

Sen. Ted Stevens, R-Alaska, a supporter of killing the $3,000 limit, said "any U.S. government employee who came to this town would receive $75 every day that we were here..."

Opponent William

Armstrong, R-Colo., said, "We ought to repeal the ill-advised amendments ... which have resulted in the unusual tax advantages for members of Congress."

Senators voting "nay" wanted to restore the $3,000 limit.

Sens. Joh East, R, and Jesse Helms, R, voted "nay."

POINT OF ORDER — By a vote of 51 for and 48 against, the Senate prevented a return to the $3,000 limit by sustaining a parliamentary ruling that the amendment (see preceding vote) was germane to the pending apropriations bill.

Senators voting "yea" either favored the new tax law for congressmen or did not want the issue to delay enactment of the appropriations bill, which was needed by April 1 to keep several departments from closing down.

East and Helms voted "nay."

TAX DISCLOSURE — The Senate adopted, 55 for and 43 against, a less-than-serious amendment requiring congressmen to publish their income tax returns in the Congressional Record. The measure, later nullified as non-germane, was part of an attempt by opponents of the $3,000 limit to defeat that amendment (first vote, above) by cluttering it with unacceptable provisions. There was no debate, but Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kans., quipped that "if ever a case is made for no television in the Senate, we have done it today."

A few of the 55 senators voting "yea" favored public disclosure of tax returns.

East and Helms voted "nay."

Lost Colony Hunt Slated

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Archaeologists have begun a $275,000 effort to find the remains of the Lost Colony, founded by Sir Walter Raleigh at Roanoke Island nearly 400 years ago.

Meanwhile, a dozen shipbuilders have bid on plans to build a replica of Raleigh's ship in preparation for the celebration of the 400th anniversary of the first colony in the New World. The festivities begin July 13, 1984.

An archaeological team will make a "last-ditch effort" to find the lost "Cittie of Raleigh," said Dr. John Neville, executive secretary of America's Four Hundredth Anniversary Committee.

Neville, a historian, is cautiously optimistic about this most recent attempt to find the remains of the colony. Organizers agree the find could provide the entire effort a psychological boost.

Fund-raising efforts, which began in October and have netted $700,000 so far, will continue toward a goal of $3 million in the next two years, Neville said.

Last week, shipbuilders were mailed specifications so they can bid on building a replica of Elizabeth II, which is expected to cost about $600,000.

Officials of the committee the American Quadricentennial Corp. — both based in Raleigh — plan to permanently harbor the vessel on Ice Plant Island, across from Manteo.

The colony was established on Roanoke Island under Ralph Lane in 1585. Lane's colonists also built what is now known as Fort Raleigh, which is currently a major exhibit at the Fort Raleigh Historical Site.

Skirts Raised A Bit Too High

SCITUATE, Mass. (AP) — Because some students at Scituate High School hiked their skirts a little too high, the junior class says it may not be able to raise enough money for the junior prom.

Principal Eleanore L. Gowen canceled the junior class' variety show after its first performance, calling it "bawdy." Students had hoped the second performance would raise about $1,500 toward May's prom.

The show included a skit in which several girls turned around and bent over, revealing bloomer-type panties on which letters spelled out "Class of '83."

Several parents apparently objected to the skit in Saturday's performance, as well as to off-color remarks throughout the show, said Schools Superintendent John Kulevich.

"We're in a real bind financially and we're asking for a second show," said Kenneth Branton, junior class president. "The juniors are wearing black armbands as a symbol of death of democracy at Scituate High School."

Big Naval Maneuvers In Caribbean Are Scheduled

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — The Navy says 60 warships, 350 planes and more than 45,000 troops will head to the Caribbean later this month in largest naval operation ever planned for that area.

The maneuvers will emphasize command and control of forces in a simulated combat environment, Adm. Harry D. Train II, commander-in-chief of the Atlantic Command, said Tuesday.

The operation, called Ocean Venture '82, comes on the heels of an exercise involving 40 ships now being conducted in the same area. Together, the war games focus considerable attention on the Caribbean, where Train said a "major chink in our strategic armor" exists because of the rapidly growing military capability of Cuba.

The Navy, Marine Corps, Coast Guard and Air Force, in addition to units from the Royal Netherlands Navy and Marines, and Puerto Rican and Virgin Islands National Guard, will participate in the exercise, Train said.

It will begin April 27 and continue through May 16.

Officials deny the U.S. exercise has anything to do with turmoil in El Salvador or the Argentine invasion of the British-claimed Falkland Islands in the South Atlantic.

However, officials concede the exercises are designed to show Cuba that the U.S. is capable of quickly protecting the sea lanes in that region.

Train told the Senate Armed Services Committee last month that the Caribbean is of great economic importance in peacetime and is even more vital in wartime because of the supplies that would be shipped from Gulf Coast states to reinforce Europe.

Consequently, the Atlantic Fleet this past year has revised most of its contingency plans for the Caribbean, shifting the center of the Atlantic Fleet training activity to the area, he said.

Ocean Venture '82 will be the first major training exercise for the new U.S. Forces Caribbean Command — one of Train's commands.

Two U.S. carriers, the Independence and Forrestal, also will participate.

Actor Faces

Prison Term

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Lou Gossett Jr. could face up to three years in prison if convicted on a felony charge of possessing cocaine, the district attorney's office said.

Gossett's female companion, Honey Rufner, 34, was also charged Tuesday with one count of possessing cocaine, said Pam White, a spokeswoman for the district attorney's office.

Gossett, who won an Emmy for his performance in the TV mini-series "Roots," and Ms. Rufner were freed after each posted $2,500 bail pending arraignment on April 20 in Malibu Municipal Court, she said.

An allegation Gossett and Ms. Rufner gave cocaine to their children was dropped because of insufficient evidence, said Deputy District Attorney Marsha Revel.

Gossett's 7-year-old son and Ms. Rufner's 7-year-old son and 4-year-old daughter were placed in custody of the Department of Public Social Services and then in foster homes after the actor and his companion were arrested on March 18, said Carol Matsui, special assistant to the director of the social services department.

Judge H. Randolph Moore of Juvenile Court said hearings are continuing and declined to discuss whether the children are still in foster homes.

The charge of cocaine possession is based on a small amount of cocaine sheriff's deputies allegedly found in the bedroom of Gossett's house, where the two were arrested.

The 44-year-old, 6-foot-3 actor played a villainous Haitian in the movie "The Deep," and also starred in the NBC-TV mini-series "Backstairs at the White House." He has had guest roles in such TV series such as "Mod Squad," "The Partridge Family," "Bonanza," "Police Story" and "The Rockford Files."

Paternity Suit Is Dismissed

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A paternity suit against celebrity lawyer Marvin Mitchelson has been dismissed, with the attorney who filed it acknowledging that blood tests ruled out the possibility that Mitchelson was the father of a school-teacher's child.

Mitchelson took the tests at the insistence of attorney Robert K. Steinberg, who represents Susan Riley, 27, of Manhattan Beach.

Miss Riley also has sued Los Angeles Lakers basketball player Mitch Kupchak, claiming he is the father of her 5-month-old son. She has said either could be the father of her son. Mitchelson denied ever having sex with Miss Riley and said his test showed no probability that he is the father of her child.

Mitchelson, who has been married 20 years and has a 17-year-old son, said he resents "the embarrassment and damage my family and I have suffered as a result of these unfounded allegations."

FOCUS

Adding Life to Years

Between 1970 and the year 2000, the number of people in the world aged 60 and over is expected nearly to double—from 207 million to 580 million. This drastic increase will call for important changes in health care. In America for example, only 11 percent of the population is currently over 60, but this group accounts for 29 percent of all personal health care needs in the U.S. To draw attention to these problems, the theme of today's World Health Day is "Adding Life to Years." By providing "primary health care" to the 40 percent of the world's population now without it, the World Health Organization hopes to benefit old and young alike.

DO YOU KNOW—What country's citizens have the longest life expectancy?

TUESDAY'S ANSWER—Tornadoes are common only in the U.S. and Australia.

Telephone Rate Boost Approved

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Co. received a $15.9 million rate increase Tuesday, about a third of what it had requested from the North Carolina Utilities Commission.

The increase is expected to raise the cost of residential, one-party service by about $1.40 a month for the company's 554,000 customers, most of whom are in the eastern part of the state.

The rate increase will be effective when the commission approves the tariff the company must file to satisfy the approved increase.

The Utilities Commission trimmed nearly 65 percent off the company's $45 million increase request, saying part of the reduction was attributable to increased toll revenue expected from the recent 7.9 percent increase in intrastate long distance rates.

The approved increase will raise rates 12.58 percent, which the commission said would give Carolina Telephone and Telegraph a "fair and reasonable opportunity to earn its overall cost of capital of 12.64 percent" on its original cost net investment.

The commission said the 12.58 percent increase was the lowest rate level that would still support adequate service, based on increases in the company's operating expenses.

Also denied was a proposed increase in pay phone charges, which would have increased the cost of a local call from a pay telephone from 20 cents to 25 cents.

EXTENDED WEATHER OUTLOOK FOR N.C.

Clearing Friday, fair Saturday and Sunday. Highs mostly in the 60s during period and lows in the 30s and 40s.

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You have new plans you want to put in motion, but postpone until another day to gain maximum benefits. A time to make sure you don't act in an impulsive manner.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You may want to quickly make some radical changes now, but haste could make waste instead, so take it easy.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Don't discuss a personal problem with an adviser until you understand every angle of it. Take more time for study.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Allies could disappoint you at this time so handle business by yourself and get good results. Avoid arguments with anyone.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) If you are not tactful with some credit affair, you could get into more trouble than you bargained for.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) There are new projects that are appealing to you, but don't commit yourself to any of them until they are further studied.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Get busy and handle new duties you have assumed and get ready for bigger enterprises ahead. Maintain poise.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Don't do what a hasty-acting associate wants you to do at this time and be ahead of the game. Be happy.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You have much work ahead of you, so don't waste any time. Complete the work and gain the benefits.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Take extra time to put your business affairs in better order. Personal goals can be easily attained at this time.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Plan time for improving conditions at home and have more harmony there. Be of a more helpful frame of mind.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You have to exercise more care in motion to avoid possible accident today. Show that you are precise in all things.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Don't think you can buy your way in or out of things, which would be expensive and not satisfactory at this time.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be good at getting out of confusing situations and will do something constructive about promises that are broken, so be sure to give as fine an education as possible and a happy life will follow.

Munitions Export Indictment Issued

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Charlotte Aircraft Corp. and its vice president for sales, Herman O. Brown, were indicted Monday by a federal grand jury on charges relating to exporting munitions.

The charges involve the export of a Carousel IV Inertial Navigation System in late 1978, according to the indictment handed down in Charlotte.

The INS was designated a defense article by the president, was included in the U.S. Munitions List and is used primarily in the navigation of military and other aircraft, the indictment said.

The indictment charges Brown and the company with three counts of exporting the INS to Italy without a license in 1978. Each count carries a maximum sentence of two years in prison and a $100,000 fine.

The indictment also charges the company and Brown with making a false statement to a federal government agency, an offense carrying a maximum penalty of five years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

The indictment alleges the defendants knew the ultimate destination was Libya for installation on military aircraft of the Libyan government.

'Satisfied' By Exercise

TWENTYNINE PALMS, Calif. (AP) — Grimy and weary, thousands of soldiers headed out of the Mojave Desert with their tanks, artillery and jeeps, satisfied that an arduous week-long test of the military's ability to respond to trouble spots in remote corners of the world had been a success.

"It was the first time most of us have been exposed to desert warfare," Capt. Jim Hart of Springfield, Va., a 31-year-old tank company commander, said of the war game maneuvers, dubbed Gallant Eagle 82. "We learned a lot."

Thousands of paratroopers, Marines and National Guardsmen have lived in the desert since March 30 during the war games' most active phase, which ended Tuesday. Some phases of the war games will continue until April 15.

Five paratroopers died as a result of injuries suffered in a parachute jump March 30; a soldier and a Marine died in separate vehicle accidents during war games and another soldier died in an off-duty traffic accident. Additionally, the parachute jump March 30 injured 150 paratroopers.

Farmville Bd...

tion the need for a special rate for these large industrial and commercial users, the commissioners indicated.

Acton Place was renamed Vines Street in honor of William E. "Bill" Vines, a former Pitt County deputy sheriff and Farmville police officer, who died recently. More than 90 percent of the residents on Acton Place signed a petition in favor of the name change, as did many other admirers of Vines.

The Rev. Charlie Parker appeared to protest the development of a lot at 301 Wallace St. (corner of George and Wallace) as a "quiet park." Parker, who lives at 303 Wallace, said he did not want a park that close to his home. Other citizens supported his contention that the property (40 x 90 feet) is not suitable for a park.

"It certainly wouldn't be quiet sitting on a park bench in the shade of a stop sign with motorcycles roaring by," Parker said. "I think having a park here is a bad idea."

The commissioners agreed to send the plan back to committee for more study.

The commissioners agreed to allow former Farmville policeman Earl Keel to have the $2,064.55 refunded the town when he resigned so it can be applied toward repurchase of those years of service in a state retirement system. Other former police officers whose retirement funds also were refunded may apply to the town for the same consideration, the commissioners indicated.

Cleanup and water fees were waived for a circus the Farmville Jaycees will sponsor May 3. The circus will be held on the town common and the Jaycees will have to pay $25 for a privilege license and show evidence of insurance.

The sale at auction of the No. 1 waste treatment plant and numerous other items of property owned by the town, from typewriters to street sweepers, was set for May 15.

Approval was given for the closing of the 100 block of Belcher Street April 25 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. during a concert on the town commons. The Farmville Arts Council is sponsoring the event and made the request.

The board decided not to participate in a housing rehabilitation program to be financed by the N.C. Housing Finance Agency this summer. This program is mainly for owner-occupied housing and the commissioners felt that attention should go to the already targeted area that is largely not owner-occupied dwellings.

Questions concerning the availability of Home Theater Network through the town's cable TV supplier were referred to committee and it was directed that Alert representative Joe Surles be asked to attend.

Ordinances calling for a yield sign on May Court at Hillcrest Drive and a stop sign on Woodway Lane at Greenpine Road were enacted.

Assessments were made for the paving projects recently completed on Church Street, Davis Drive and Mandarin Drive. These are due by Sept. 1.

A budget workshop was set for April 28, an office space evaluation for April 26, and a community development workshop, positions classification and pay plan discussion, and consideration of the town code revision on April 22.

Former commissioner LeRoy Redden was appointed to the community development advisory committee.

Duke commended Town Administrator Robert Morgan, utilities director Bud Wooten and street department director Bill Oakley and other Farmville citizens who responded to an emergency Saturday afternoon when a splitting tree crushed a portion of one Farmville residence and threatened another.

Mount Olive 'Walkout'

MOUNT OLIVE, N.C. (AP) — Mount Olive officials say two police officers and a dispatcher walked off the job Monday night and closed the police station.

The men walked out in protest after learning that the Mount Olive Board of Commissioners had voted to "invite" John W. Hodges, now assistant police chief at Hope Mills, to become police chief at Mount Olive.

The other finalists, selected from more than 20 applicants, were Wesley Terry, now with the Florida Department of Law Enforcement; and Capt. Ed Hudson, acting police chief at Mount Olive since December.

Hudson said he applied for the job after receiving the support of his fellow officers and encouragement from many citizens of Mount Olive.

Wilkins said he learned of the walkout about 11:30 p.m. Monday, after the board meeting. He said he called Hudson at home to meet him at the town hall, and that off-duty police officers were put on duty within minutes.

Wilkins and Hudson met with the officers who walked out until 2:30 a.m., and Hudson reported that everything was back to normal on Tuesday.

MacDonald Asks Release On Bail

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Dr. Jeffrey MacDonald, convicted of killing his pregnant wife and two daughters at Fort Bragg, N.C., has asked to be released on bail while he files further appeals.

The murders occurred in 1970, but he was not convicted until 1979. He appealed, saying he was denied a speedy trial, but the Supreme Court upheld his conviction. MacDonald, 38, was arrested March 31 after the Supreme Court ruling, but his lawyers filed a motion Monday with the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Richmond, asking that he be released again on bail. The court gave the Justice Department until April 20 to respond.

N.C. Apple Crop Outlook May Not Be All That Bad

By ELISSA McCRARY
Associated Press Writer
When a bitter cold front moved through Western North Carolina last week, apple trees in the orchards had just burst into bloom.

Weather experts said the arctic air froze the delicate blossoms and the tiny apples underneath the petals and predicted that the state would lose 50 to 100 percent of this year's apple crop.

But Henderson County apple growers say the trees are still blooming and the small apples are still clinging to the trees.

"We may have damage but I'll say this, we do have apples," said Grover Westmoreland, county agricultural extension agent.

Westmoreland said apple farmers are waiting to see if the apples will continue to grow or fall off the trees. It will be the first of next week before growers know if they will have apples to harvest this summer.

"At this point, there's nothing we can do but wait," Westmoreland said. "But we're hoping whatever damage there is will be slight and that we can recover from it."

North Carolina's apple crop is the nation's seventh largest, bringing in $50 to $60 million yearly. Most of the 16,200 acres of apple orchards are in the western part.

Henderson County, the state's top apple county, has about 400 apple growers.

Last year's apple crop was hurt by dry conditions, which caused apples to be smaller than usual.

Farmers also didn't get the prices they wanted because a shipment of Washington State apples arrived about the time North Carolina apples were being harvested. The Washington apples sold for $7 a bushel, forcing state growers to lower their $14-a-bushel price to compete.

The apple crop wasn't the only one damaged by the recent cold snap. Peach farmers in the Sandhills, where most of the state's $10 million annual peach crop is grown on about 4,000 acres of orchards, say temperatures in the 20s nipped their crop.

"A lot of peach growers say they think they lost most of their crop," said Watts Auman, president of the N.C. Peachgrowers Association.

In South Carolina, where peach-growing is a multimillion dollar industry, farmers say they also are watching their trees to see if the fruit was severely damaged.

Some farmers, like Gaffney grower Robert Scruggs, say their crops were virtually wiped out.

"All my peaches were hurt, I already know that," Scruggs said.

Meanwhile, farmers were bracing themselves for another cold front expected to bring subfreezing temperatures all over the state. The mercury was expected to plunge into the low 20s in the mountains Tuesday night and the mid to upper 20s in the Piedmont. Tuesday's high temperature in the higher elevations was only in the 30s.

Westmoreland said fruit crops are damaged when the temperature drops below 28 degrees.

"We're at the mercy of the weather," Westmoreland said. "I guess the best we can hope for is that the wind keeps blowing and keeps the frost from laying on the apples."

Challenge

ECU News Bureau

With more than 120 million gallons of hazardous waste generated in North Carolina yearly, the question often asked is "Where do you dispose of it?"

"The popular response has been 'Not in my backyard,'" says Dr. Trenton Davis, chairman of the Department of Environmental Health, East Carolina University. Davis is co-directing plans for an April 15-16 symposium on "Hazardous Waste Management" that will bring to ECU outstanding environmental specialists from across the country to present their views on the subject.

The symposium will be held in Mendenhall Student Center. The public is invited to attend the sessions.

"The proper management of hazardous wastes has been called the 'Challenge of the 80's,'" says Davis. "And for good reason!"

"Almost all of the products that we use daily from oven cleaner to the clothes we wear, produce some waste that could be hazardous to human health," Davis said.

The symposium, according to Davis, will provide information about current hazardous waste management from distinguished speakers representing industries specializing in hazardous waste treatment, state and national government agencies and health services.

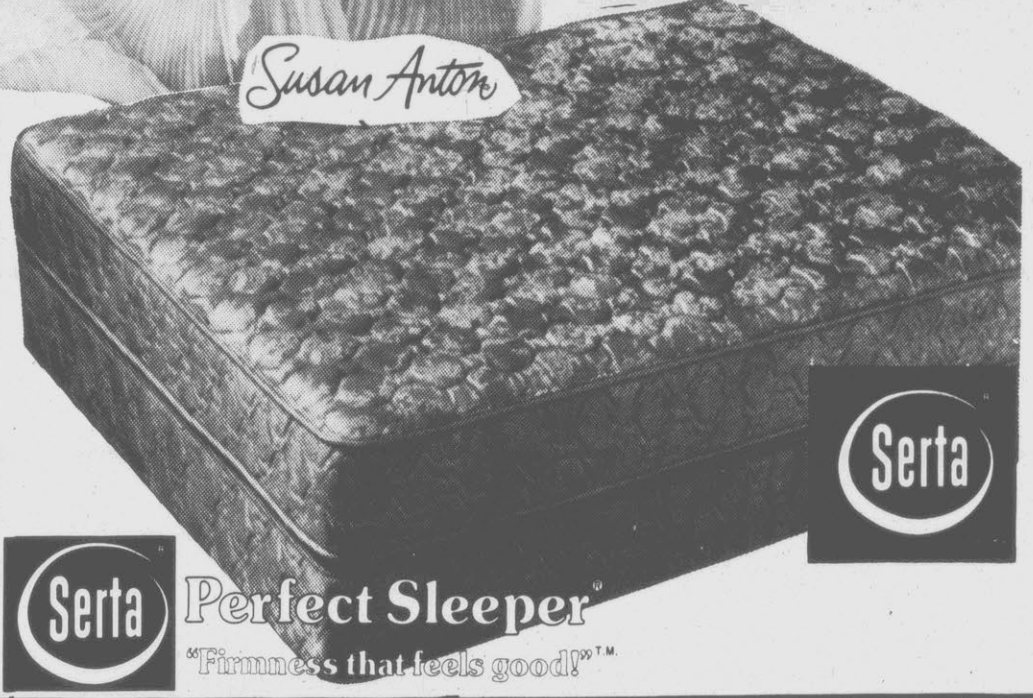

Topics include the health effects of hazardous materials, alternative disposal methods, and the geologic considerations in selecting disposal sites. The presentations will include factual and technical information of use to industry, government and academic institutions.

For more information about the symposium contact Dr. Davis in the Department of Environmental Health or Dr. George Evans in the Department of Chemistry.

Funding for the two day program is provided by: the ECU Student Government Association, Union Carbide, Burroughs Wellcome and the American Chemical Society.

Soil Tests Are Good Indicator

By ROGER N. COBB
With the beginning of tobacco transplanting, growers need to think about their fertility program. In the past, many growers over-fertilized to increase yields and quality suffered. Last year, many growers cut back on fertilizer, especially nitrogen, and found that quality increased. Along with improved quality came better prices.

The purpose of fertilizer is to supply nutrients to tobacco. These nutrients should be supplied based on need to the plant. Soil tests are a good indication of this need. Nutrients should be supplied at the lowest cost possible. Some growers are spending 4 to 6 cents per pound and some are spending 8 to 10 cents a pound. Here is potential profit for the growers spending the higher amounts on fertilizers.

Most of the problem from excess nitrogen comes from too much commercial fertilizer applied at the wrong time. Excess nitrogen, along with adequate moisture, causes plants to have a big frame. Plants with excessively large leaves are difficult to harvest and the leaves may be brittle. Often, tobacco grown with too much nitrogen will turn dark during curing. This is commonly referred to as "going dead." Excess nitrogen may also lead to red cured leaf.

Most tobacco soils have a high level of phosphorus. However, many growers continue to put down large amounts of this nutrient. Over-use of phosphorus will not hurt tobacco but will increase cost of production. Many tobacco soils are also high in potassium. Again, over-fertilization is hurting growers financially but will probably have little effect on yield or quality.

Growers have the following ratio fertilizers available to them: 1:3:3, 1:2:3, 1:1:3 and 1:0:3. After choosing one of these ratios, growers should select a high analysis grade of that ratio. The high analysis grades cost more per ton but actually cost less per acre to use because lower acre rates are needed to provide equivalent amounts of nitrogen and potassium.

So, remember to get the most from every fertilizer dollar; the name of the game is to maximize profits.

Consideration Of Bids Before Bethel's Board

BETHEL — Bids on several town projects dominated the agenda of the Bethel Town Board at its April meeting Tuesday night.

Rehabilitation bids totaling $81,576 were approved for seven houses to be rehabilitated under a federal program, the Community Block Grant. John Robertson of the Mid-East Commission, which is coordinating the grant, presented the bid proposals for the seven houses.

Approval also was given to bids for painting the town's water tank and for the audit of town funds.

The Steel and Tank Co. of Waxhaw submitted the lowest of three bidders at $8,850 for repainting the water tank. Vance B. Taylor, a Farmville accountant, was low bidder at $2,035 for audit of the town funds for fiscal year 1981-82.

Tar River Realty placed a proposed bid of $4,150 for a vacant lot belonging to the town. The lot will be re-advertised for the possibility of additional upset bids.

Following a presentation by Janie Manning of the Recreation Department on the status of a proposal to build a combination concession-press stand at Bethel Middle School, town commissioners approved allocation of $6,500 for the project. The Pitt County school system has previously allocated $5,000 toward construction costs of the stand.

Approval also was given to allocation of $1,500 for the preparation of booklets containing information on the town government, the utilities and other aspects of Bethel. Need for a town booklet was outlined by Bob Bowers of the chamber of commerce when he presented requirements for Bethel relative to competing for a Governor's Award of Excellence.

The paving of Norfolk Street, a short dirt street, was approved, and the first reading was made of a cablevision regulatory ordinance. The ordinance will receive a second reading at a later date.

Eroding The Top Soil

The dust storms of recent days have been more than an inconvenience for area farmers, according to Michael Washington, soil conservationist with the USDA Soil Conservation Service in Greenville.

He said that while the dust problems, particularly the Saturday storm that he termed a "miniature version of the dust storms that plagued the 1930s," burned the eyes of pedestrians and endangered local motorists, they "can make the difference between a profitable year and a failure" for farmers.

Washington said the dust storms of the 1930s destroyed crops, reduced visibility, decreased the productivity of the soil and virtually halted all activity in the Midwest. The storms pushed thousands of tons of soil eastward.

"In recent years," he said, local farmers have begun to use larger, more modern equipment for their convenience. Washington said many farmers have eliminated the hedge rows, consisting of trees and brush, that provided crop protection and helped conserve moisture in the soil.

"The degree of soil erosion, caused by the wind, is dependent on the physical character and condition of the soil," he explained. He added, "Dry soils move readily. Wet or damp soils are not appreciably affected."

Washington suggested that hedge rows, established in or adjacent to a field, will protect young plants from wind damages. When selecting trees for wind breaks, he noted, farmers should consider the growth potential of the trees and their future economic value.

People needing help in planning a wind break or other erosion control practices should contact the SCS at 215 Evans St., Washington

Closing Plants

SPRUCE PINE, N.C. (AP) — Blue Bell has announced it is closing three North Carolina plants housing its Wrangler Kids Division because of a decline in demand.

W.F. Wise, president of the division, said Blue Bell over the next few months will phase out operations in Micaville, Spruce Pine and Tipton Hill, which combined employ about 350 people.

"The continued softness in apparel sales and generally depressed economic climate makes this necessary to control our inventories," Wise said.

He said the company is making efforts to find buyers for the three operations.

FAA Probing Airplane Crash

RUTHERFORDTON, N.C. (AP) — Federal Aviation Administration officials say they have not yet completed their probe into the crash of a single-engine plane which killed state Rep. Robert A. "Bob" Jones Monday night.

FAA officials from Charlotte were at the scene of the crash Tuesday, along with investigators from the National Transportation Safety Board in Atlanta.

"We haven't established anything significant," said FAA spokesman Ben Wengig. "But you'd have to say that our inquiry is just getting under way."

Jones, 50, of Forest City, was piloting a Piper Cherokee 180 and was alone in the aircraft. He was en route to the Rutherford County Airport from Raleigh and a few minutes earlier had landed at Gastonia to drop off another legislator, Sen. Helen R. Marvin, D-Gaston.

Jones was a leader in legislative reapportionment efforts. His body was taken to the state Medical Examiner's Office in Chapel Hill for an autopsy Tuesday afternoon.

County authorities say the crash occurred about 7:55 p.m., and it took searchers about an hour and a half to locate the downed plane. It was found in a clearing amidst a heavily wooded area, a short distance from a field sometimes used as a private landing strip.

Residents of the rural area of the crash reported hearing the plane's engine sputtering moments before the crash. Jones was killed instantly.

The airplane was crumpled like an accordion, and rescue workers said it appeared the airplane had been in a power dive when it struck the ground. Weather at the time was rainy and foggy.

Jones, an attorney, was a Democrat serving his sixth term in the state House, representing the 40th District.

Gov. Jim Hunt issued a statement saying he was "deeply saddened by the death of my close, personal friend."

"He was an outstanding, hard-working legislator and was dedicated to the people he served," Hunt said. "During his six terms in the North Carolina General Assembly, Bob Jones was a great leader in many crucial areas, including legislative redistricting and elimination of sexual discrimination in our laws."

Baseball's Opening Day Turns Into A 'White Christmas'

By The Associated Press
"Opening Day is like Christmas — once you've lost it, it's hard to recapture," said Mike McClure, vice president of marketing for the Chicago White Sox.

And what was supposed to be the opening day of the baseball season turned out to be just like Christmas in six different cities — a white Christmas — when those famed April showers turned out to be snow showers.

A freak storm that struck the Northeast and Midwest with near-blizzard conditions forced the postponement of six games Tuesday, several others on Wednesday and Thursday and sent the Boston Red Sox scurrying back to their Winter Haven, Fla., training camp and the Milwaukee Brewers to Houston's Astrodome. Meanwhile, the Chicago White Sox and Toronto Blue Jays arranged a pair of exhibition games in Minnesota's new Hubert H. Humphrey Metrodome.

In the American League, the Boston-Chicago, Cleveland-Milwaukee and Toronto-Detroit games were first postponed from Tuesday to Wednesday and then put off again, along with Thursday's regularly scheduled games between the same teams.

The game in New York was scheduled Tuesday between the Yankees and the Texas Rangers also was postponed and there was so much snow on the Yankee Stadium diamond that it couldn't even be rescheduled for Wednesday, an open date. Those teams will try again Thursday.

In the National League, New York at Philadelphia and Montreal at Pittsburgh were called off Tuesday. The Mets and Phillies will try to play Wednesday night, but the Pirates, after first resetting their game with the Expos for Wednesday, later decided to wait until Thursday.

Chicago and New York were beset by snow removal problems and near-freezing temperatures, while more than a foot of snow forced the Brewers to seek the comfort of the Astrodome for Wednesday and Thursday workouts. The Astros were scheduled to entertain the St. Louis Cardinals both nights.

The White Sox and Blue Jays will play practice games Wednesday afternoon and Thursday night in the Metrodome, where the Twins and Seattle Mariners had league games scheduled Wednesday night and Thursday afternoon...and where Commissioner Bowie Kuhn couldn't make it for Tuesday night's opener because the storm canceled his flight from New Jersey.

Gay Leads A-G Past Rams, 5-2

SNOW HILL — Tyrone Gay hurled a one-hitter and hit a three-run home run to lead defending Eastern Carolina Conference champion Ayden-Grifton to a 5-2 victory over Greene Central Tuesday afternoon.

The win leaves Ayden-Grifton at 3-1 in the conference and drops the Rams to 2-1 in the battle for the top spot in the ECC. The Chargers are 6-4 overall while the Rams are 6-5.

Charles B. Aycock leads the ECC with a 4-0 mark. The Falcons blasted Southern Nash, 15-0, yesterday.

Gay struck out 10 and walked six en route to the decision, his third in six outings this season. He did not allow the Rams a hit until the seventh when with one out John Mayo singled.

After a scoreless first inning, the Chargers jumped out to a 2-0 lead in the second when Art Rouse doubled home Joey Kennedy and Jackie Conway. Kennedy, a senior, singled to open the inning and went to second base on a passed ball. Conway, a freshman, was hit by a pitch.

The Chargers extended their lead to 5-0 in the fourth on Gay's three-run home run — his first of the season.

Chris Strickland and Bernard Ricciarelli singled to start the fourth and Gay then ripped a shot over the left-centerfield fence for the three-run homer to give the Chargers a five-run bulge.

The Rams, stymied the first six innings, finally managed to break through in the bottom of the seventh. With one gone, Mayo singled cleanly up the middle and Marlowe Gilmore reached on an error.

Butch Brown then hit a grounder that Strickland, the A-G shortstop, failed to handle and both Mayo and Gilmore scored to make it 5-2. It was as close as the Rams got.

Ricciarelli, who went into the game hitting an even .500, was two for three at the plate and Strickland was two for four to lead the Chargers.

Ayden-Grifton travels to Farmville Central Thursday.

West Carteret Rallies In Sixth

Pats Slip Past DHC, 5-4

MOREHEAD CITY — Clint Sanford singled home two runs in the sixth and West Carteret held off a seventh-inning rally by D.H. Conley to slip past the Vikes, 5-4, Tuesday afternoon in a Coastal Conference baseball game.

The Patriots, now 4-1 overall and 1-0 in the league, trailed, 4-3, going into the bottom of the sixth but used three walks and Sanford's single to take the lead for good.

Lonnie Mister walked to open the inning and went to second on Rodney Frazier's sacrifice bunt. DHC starter Doug McRoy then complained of a stiff arm and was lifted for Mike Gurkins.

Gurkins promptly walked Randy Guthrie and William Gray to load the bases with one out. Morgan Ahlers then tried a suicide squeeze but Mister was forced out at the plate for the second out.

However, just as it looked as if the Vikings would get out of the inning with their lead intact, Sanford singled to score Robin Weeks, who was running for Guthrie, and Gray and West Carteret led, 5-4.

The Vikings threatened in the top of the seventh when McRoy singled, stole second and went to third on a sacrifice bunt by Jeff Cox. However, with the suicide squeeze on, Roy Lassiter struck out and McRoy was tagged out in a rundown to end the game.

The loss leaves Conley at 3-5 overall and 0-1 in the league.

The Vikings appeared well on their way to the victory through four innings. With McRoy holding the Patriots scoreless — the DHC hurler struck out nine and walked two — and hitting his second home run in as many games, the Vikings led, 2-0.

West Carteret erased the lead in the bottom of the fifth, but it was a lead short-lived as the Vikings scored twice in the top of the sixth to regain the lead.

Chris Buck walked and was removed for pinch runner Keith Mills. Jeff Manning then bunted for a single. Then, with two gone, Dixon Page lofted a high pop up in shallow right field that was caught and then dropped, allowing both Mills and Manning to score and giving the Vikes a 4-3 lead.

Buck was two for three with a double and McRoy was two for three, including his third-inning home run, to lead the Vikings at the plate. Sanford was two for three with a triple for the Patriots.

Conley travels to North Pitt Thursday.

Cold, Winds Force ECU To Cancel UNC Battle

East Carolina University and the University of North Carolina cancelled their scheduled baseball game yesterday just minutes before the scheduled start of the contest because of the cold weather and high winds. The game will not be rescheduled.

The high winds of the day also forced the postponement of a number of other contests.

Rose High School's baseball, softball and tennis matches with Wilson Beddingfield were postponed until today. In addition, Roanoke and Williamston delayed their softball and baseball until today. A tennis meeting between the two was reset for next Wednesday.

Greene Central's girls' track meet with SouthWest Edgemore was postponed, but has not as yet been rescheduled.

Rose High School's track meet at Wilson Fike was reset for Thursday.

Mahler Hurls Two-Hitter As Braves Edge Padres

By The Associated Press
Rick Mahler knocked Phil Niekro out of an Opening Day pitching assignment with a freak batting practice accident and his conscience bothered him for nine days.
"I thought about that right up to the game. I hated it," said Mahler, who was given the starting assignment Tuesday night after injuring Niekro's ribs with a line drive off his bat during a spring training workout.
Spurred by determination to atone for the mishap, the 28-year-old right-hander hurled a two-hitter to lead the Atlanta Braves to a 1-0 victory over the San Diego Padres.
Making the most of his first season-opening start, Mahler retired 17 consecutive San Diego batters between the second and eighth innings on the way to the first shutout and second complete game of his checkered career.

Once the game started, Mahler said he put the Niekro incident out of his mind. His shutout was preserved by three defensive gems that kept him in control.
"The defense made every play you could possibly make," said Mahler, who struck out seven and walked three.
Left fielder Dale Murphy was responsible for two hit-saving catches, and right fielder Claudell Washington crashed against San Diego's newly-shortened outfield wall to snare to line drive off the bat of Luis Salazar. Murphy made a diving catch of a Juan Bonilla liner in the third and robbed Sixto Lezcano of extra bases in the fourth with a twisting grab near the wall.

Luis Salazar's second-inning single and a ninth-inning double by Ruppert Jones accounted for San Diego's only hits.
Braves catcher Bruce Benedict said Mahler turned in "one of the best-pitched games I've ever caught. You couldn't ask for any more from a guy in his first time out."
The game's only run came in the fifth when Atlanta's Brett Butler walked with one out and scored on Glenn Hubbard's double.
"He was in complete command," said Atlanta Manager Joe Torre. "He threw the ball hard from the first inning right through the ninth. He dared people."

In other National League action, the St. Louis Cardinals walloped the Houston Astros 14-3 and the Los Angeles Dodgers edged the San Francisco Giants 4-3. Two games were called by snow - Montreal at Pittsburgh and New York at Philadelphia.
Cardinals 14, Astros 3
Darrell Porter's three-run homer in a five-run first inning started St. Louis to an easy victory over Houston and Nolan Ryan.
Ryan, 11-5 last season, including a record fifth career no-hitter, was no match for Cardinal starter Bob Forsch, who scattered seven hits in eight innings, including solo home runs in the sixth inning by Alan Ashby and in the seventh by Art Howe. Porter also collected one of seven Cardinal doubles.

"It might have been good to save some of those runs for tomorrow night but I don't think we'll have any trouble scoring runs this season," Porter said. "We won't always have it this good. It was just a great day for us and a frustrating day for them."
Forsch, despite delivery problems, mastered the weak-hitting Astros until he tired in the eighth.
"Teams come in to Houston and don't score that much all year against these guys," Forsch said. "You just don't expect that many runs off Nolan Ryan."

Dodgers 4, Giants 3
Dusty Baker's bases-loaded single through a drawn-in infield in the ninth inning lifted Los Angeles over San Francisco in the World Champions' opener at Dodger Stadium.
Bill Russell led off the Dodgers' ninth with a double off loser Gary Lavelle, the third of four San Francisco pitchers. One out later, Steve Sax singled and pinch-hitter Ron Roenicke was walked intentionally to load the bases. Greg Minton replaced Lavelle and Baker hit the first pitch between third and short for the winning run.
"He threw a high sinker and I hit it," Baker said. "I kind of thrive in being in such a situation."

Mariners Outslug Twins

By The Associated Press
Earlier this week, Jim Maler got rapped as a bad hitter by his Seattle Mariner teammates.
Tuesday night, he did his best to change their minds by driving in five runs with three hits, including his first major league homer, to lead the Mariners to an 11-7 victory over the Minnesota Twins.
"I just kept listening to the coaches and changing a few things," said the rookie first baseman who struggled through a spring hitting slump and was voted the "worst hitter" to make the 25-man roster.
"I had been putting pressure on myself and coaches just told me to relax and do what I could do. It finally sank in. I just went into tonight knowing it starts all over."
While Seattle Manager Rene Lachemann postponed judgment on Maler, he did have some thoughts about the Twins' new home — the Hubert H. Humphrey Metrodome — which inspired five home runs and attracted 52,279 fans to its inaugural regular-season game. The crowd was the largest baseball audience in Minnesota history.

"This place has got a chance of being the Kingdom in home runs," he said. "You play in here and you just have to keep going."
Minnesota third baseman Gary Gaetti hit two of them, including a three-run job that tied the score 4-4 in the fourth. In the fifth, the Mariners took the lead for good as Julio Cruz scored on a sacrifice fly by Bruce Bochte.
The Mariners scored again in the sixth on Maler's sacrifice fly and added four more runs in the seventh on an RBI double by Al Cowens and a three-run double by Maler. Cowens added a solo homer for Seattle in the ninth.

A's 3, Angels 2
Davey Lopes drew a bases-loaded walk from California pitcher Don Aase with two out in the 11th inning to force in the winning run in Oakland's victory over the Angels.
Aase walked Dwayne Murphy, the A's leadoff hitter in the 11th, but retired the next two batters before Wayne Gross singled, sending Murphy to third. Jim Spencer was walked intentionally to load the bases.
Lopes, the former Los Angeles Dodger's second baseman playing his first AL game, fell behind 0-2 on the count and then took four straight balls.

FARMVILLE — Nat Norris drove in five runs and Eddie Jones three and Farmville Central erupted for 10 runs in the second inning as the Jaguars cruised past North Pitt, 15-1, Tuesday in an Eastern Carolina Conference baseball game.
Triples by Norris and Jones in the second inning drove in two runs each, as the Jaguars pushed home 10 runs to take a lead that was never challenged en route to their second straight win.

Farmville is 3-5 overall and 1-2 in the league.
Ahead 10-0, Farmville scored twice in the third and fifth and once in the fourth before the game was called in the sixth. North Pitt's only run of the game came in the fifth.
Norris was three for four and Wade Corbett was three for five to lead the Jaguars. Corbett had two runs batted in.

Joey Steppe was two for two and Jones was two for three.
North Pitt did not have anyone with more than one hit.
Billy Godley struck out two and walked five en route to picking up his second win in three decisions.
Farmville plays host to Ayden-Grifton Thursday.

In Detroit, pitcher Jack Morris said the field was "like a brick," adding, "Right now, I think I'm going to go out and buy a heater for my waterbed."
While no one could do anything about the weather, except to try to clear the snow as quickly as possible, critics came down hard on the schedule-maker who paired warm-weather teams such as San Francisco-Los Angeles, Atlanta-San Diego and California-Oakland. In addition, Seattle and Minnesota both play in domed stadiums.
"That raises a sore spot and upsets me," said White Sox Manager Tony LaRussa. "Can you imagine California playing at Oakland? Two warm weather cities. And what about Seattle opening at Minnesota? Two teams with domes. It just doesn't make any sense."
White Sox co-owner Jerry Reinsdorf agreed with his manager, but had an explanation.
"California doesn't want to schedule a lot of games at home while the kids are in school and they don't want to be playing at home when the (Los Angeles) Dodgers are home," he said. "That's ridiculous."

The Cleveland Indians returned from Milwaukee and planned indoor workouts at Cleveland State University.
"Having snow blowing all over the seats and piling up in the parking lot is no way to entertain 50,000 people," said Harry Dalton, the Brewers' general manager.
"The field was in near-perfect condition last Wednesday. Then, Mother Nature dealt us a severe blow Friday and Saturday," added Harry Gill, the Milwaukee groundskeeper.
Former Indians pitcher Herb Score, now a broadcaster for the club, recalled stepping off a plane in Chicago before the 1961 White Sox home opener and being confronted by 15 inches of snow.
"But two days later, we played," Score said.
"We got snowed out against the Yankees one year on May 8 in Cleveland, so nothing surprise me any more," said Bob Lemon, another former Cleveland pitcher who now manages the Yankees. "I'm not sure what year it was, somewhere between 1946 and 1952."

Longshots Look To NHL Playoffs

By The Associated Press
Last season, it was the Edmonton Oilers, New York Rangers and to a lesser extent, the Minnesota North Stars, who made some waves as longshots in the Stanley Cup playoffs.

This year, teams with outside chances at turning the tables seem to be the Quebec Nordiques, St. Louis Blues and the Los Angeles Kings.

The Nordiques open their best-of-five, opening-round series tonight against Montreal at the Forum in one of the more intense rivalries in the NHL.

Elsewhere, St. Louis visits Winnipeg, Los Angeles plays at Edmonton, Minnesota hosts Chicago, and the Vancouver Canucks host the Calgary Flames.

Other first-round series opening tonight include the Philadelphia Flyers against the Rangers in New York, the Buffalo Sabres against the Bruins in Boston and the Pittsburgh Penguins against the Islanders at Uniondale, N.Y.

During three regular seasons of play, the Canadiens hold a slight edge over the Nordiques with a 6-5-5 mark. But the biggest obstacle facing Quebec is Montreal's vivid memory of what happened last year against Edmonton.

"Last year, we weren't ready when we met the Oilers because we didn't know what was waiting for us," said Canadiens defenseman Brian Engblom. "But this time it's totally different. We know the Nordiques well and, even more important, we know ourselves better.

"With the arrival of young players like (Mark) Hunter and (Doug) Wickenheiser and with a new feeling on the team, we know what we can do. We don't panic after a loss — we rebound better than we did before."

The Blues, meanwhile, hope to find some redemption in the playoffs after a frustrating and disappointing regular season.

Even though it will be an uphill battle for the Blues, who have never won at Winnipeg Arena, Jets Coach Tom Watt is not taking the best-of-five series lightly.

"I'm worried that they (the Blues) feel they didn't get the job done during the schedule," Watt said. "Playoffs give them a chance to salvage a good season." Emile Francis, the Blues' head coach, agreed.

"We had a heck of a year," he said of the 1980-81 season. "But if you asked anyone in St. Louis what they remembered about the year, they would say we got beat by the Rangers. That's the only thing they cared about."

If the Kings harbor any dreams of glory they will not only have to discover a way to stop Wayne Gretzky, but also stop looking over their shoulders.

On the day before their opening game, the Kings' players seemed more concerned with the manner in which they finished the regular season (a five-game losing streak) than looking ahead to the playoffs.

Raiders' Attorneys Charge

Owners Opposition $$$ Issue

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Attorneys for the Oakland Raiders say the National Football League owners voted their pocketbooks and thought only of their own gain when they opposed a move by the team to fill the spot vacated by the Los Angeles Rams.

As NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle completed four days of testimony Tuesday in the antitrust trial against the league, he admitted team owners stand to gain if an expansion team is brought into the Los Angeles Coliseum instead of allowing the Raiders to move.

He told a federal court jury it "would probably be worth more to the league owners" to put an expansion team in Los Angeles.

"It is a corporate right of all 28 clubs if all have contributed to the growth of the NFL. They're entitled to share the benefits," he said.

The Raiders are alleging the league is restraining trade in forbidding the move.

Raiders' attorney Joseph Alioto asked if the NFL's rules meant that eight people could say, "We want a franchise for ourselves and we'll divvy up the money" then "vote their pocketbook against Mr. (Al) Davis," the Raiders president and general manager.

"Yes," Rozelle said. "but Mr. Davis would share equally."

The Oakland team and the Los Angeles Coliseum Commission contend that NFL owners kept the Raiders from filling the vacancy in Los Angeles for selfish motives, including the chance to make more money.

"I think a franchise in Los Angeles would be worth more than Oakland and many other cities," Rozelle said. "You could certainly find a lot of owners who would like to own a team here."

Because Los Angeles has a larger population base, an expansion team in Los Angeles "would be better than starting from scratch with an expansion team in Oakland," Rozelle added.

He said they probably would realize only about half that much to put an expansion team in Oakland to replace the Raiders.

Rozelle testified that the Raiders were on shaky ground for wanting to leave Oakland because they had played 12 consecutive years before sellout crowds in that city. He said there would be television contract problems if two major league teams were put in one of the nation's major television markets.

Rozelle said he did not know when an expansion team might be placed in Los Angeles. "It would be a candidate along with other cities such as Phoenix, Indianapolis, Jacksonville, Memphis and Birmingham," Rozelle said.

He added under questioning, however, that he would not say league expansion in Los Angeles would be more likely than any of the other cities he listed.

During a trial recess, a Los Angeles Coliseum official who asked not to be identified, said he believes the league owners would be paid up to $40 million to add a new franchise in Los Angeles.

Alioto asked what a new franchise in Los Angeles would be worth, suggesting a $20 million figure over the gain to be realized with a new franchise in Oakland. Rozelle replied: "I don't know what a franchise is worth today."

When pressed by Alioto for a figure, Rozelle said, "All I could give you would be a wild guess." Judge Harry Pregerson said he did not want any guesses.

ECAC-South To Continue Despite Loss

Despite the desertion of Old Dominion from the ECAC-South, the league will continue to operate, it was affirmed yesterday.

The six remaining members of the basketball conference will continue to play and will continue to have an automatic berth into the NCAA Tournament for its own tournament winner.

The six members of the conference are East Carolina, James Madison, Richmond, William & Mary, George Mason and Navy. The six will play a round-robin schedule next winter, and hold their post-season tournament in Richmond, Va., on March 10-12.

Old Dominion announced Monday that it will leave the ECAC-South and become a member of the Sun Belt Conference.

James Madison won the regular season title in the conference last season and won one game in the NCAA tournament before falling in a close contest to eventual champion North Carolina in the second round.

DHC Survives, Nips SWE

HOLLYWOOD — D.H. Conley survived a late rally by SouthWest Edgecombe and pulled out an 8-7 non-conference softball victory yesterday.

SouthWest scored a single run in the top of the first, but Conley countered with three in the bottom of the inning, all on a homer by Helena Barnhill.

Conley then added one in the third and two each in the fourth and fifth for an 8-1 lead.

SouthWest rallied in the sixth, scoring four on a grand-slam homer by S. Staton, then scored two more in the seventh before Conley finally closed off the rally still a run short.

Irish Barnhill led the Conley hitting with four, while Lynn Kite, Helena Barnhill, Lori Kandrotas and Lisa Mills each had two hits. T. Mayo had two to pace SouthWest.

Conley is now 7-0 on the season and travels to North Pitt on Thursday.

on Woods' bases-loaded home run.

Farmville, however, rallied again, scoring three runs in the bottom half of the inning to close to within one (8-7). The Pant-HERS mounted their lead to 10-7 with two runs in the fifth and extended to 15-7 with five runs in the top of the sixth.

The Lady Jaguars rallied once more, scoring seventh runs in the bottom of the sixth and then tying the game with a run in the seventh. But, the Pant-HERS reclaimed the lead with two runs in the top of the seventh and came with the victory.

Kim Smith and Darlene Lane each had three hits for Farmville. Julia Smith, Angela White, Angie O'Brien and Rhoda Harris all had two hits for the Lady Jaguars.

Woods had four hits to pace the Pant-HERS at the plate. Gladys Roberson had three hits and Linda Harrell, Magnolia Harrington, Delores Pittman, Annetta Wilkins and Hines all had two hits for North Pitt.

Farmville plays host to Ayden-Grifton Thursday.

Greene Central erupted for 21 runs — yep, twenty-one — in the fifth inning as the Lady Rams demolished Ayden-Grifton, 30-8, Tuesday afternoon in an Eastern Carolina Conference softball game.

The Lady Rams had 16 straight base hits in a fifth inning that left what had been a relatively close game mere memories. The Lady Rams led, 9-6, going into the fifth.

The win leaves Greene Central at 8-1 overall and 3-0 in the conference. The Lady Chargers drop to 0-6.

Cindy Meadows as four for six for Greene Central. Gail Carmon and Lisa Radford were both three for six for the Lady Rams. Carmon had two home runs and Radford one.

Pat Woodard was two for three for Greene Central. Greene Central plays host to Charles B. Aycock Friday.

Greenville.....3
GOLDSBORO — Goldsboro Christian Academy took advantage of 16 errors by Greenville Christian yesterday and rolled to a 13-3 softball victory over the Lady Knights.

Goldsboro scored twice in the first, but GCA came back with one in the second. Goldsboro then added one in the fourth before the Lady Knights picked up two in the top of the fourth to tie it at 3-3.

But Goldsboro added six in the bottom of the inning and four in the sixth to wrap up the victory.

Michelle Crisp and Mary Rood each had two hits for Greenville. No one had more than one for Goldsboro.

Greenville falls to 0-3 with the loss, while Goldsboro is now 1-2. Greenville entertains Wilson on Thursday.

Knights Roll To 19-10 Win

GOLDSBORO — Greenville Christian Academy pushed over ten runs in the second inning and went on to record a 19-10 baseball victory over Goldsboro Christian yesterday.

Goldsboro took advantage of five lead-off walks to push over six run in the first inning for a brief lead.

But Greenville came back to score ten in the second to take the lead for good. Billy Stancil walked, as did Darin O'Brian and Chris Harris, loading the bases. David Hollingsworth then singled in two runs. John Parnell followed with a two-run double. Troy Hudson and Jerry Simpson both walked, reloading the bases. A walk to Joseph Sasser forced in Parnell, but Hudson was picked off third. Joel Nason singled in Simpson, and Stancil got a hit, scoring Sasser. O'Brian singled in Nason and Stancil. O'Brian later scored on a double steal after Harris had walked.

The Knights added two in the third, four in the fourth, one in the fifth and two more in the sixth. Goldsboro scored two in the bottom of the second, and added single runs in the fifth and sixth.

Parnell and Nason each had three hits to pace Greenville, while Hollingsworth and Hudson each had two. Goldsboro got only two hits, but took advantage of 12 walks allowed by Hudson and Simpson.

Greenville is now 2-2, while Goldsboro falls to 0-2. The Knights play host to Wilson Academy on Thursday.

N. Pitt 17

FARMVILLE — Frances Woods clouted a grand slam as North Pitt outslugged Farmville Central, 17-15, Tuesday afternoon in an Eastern Carolina Conference softball game.

The score was tied at 15-15 going into the seventh when Bobbie Purvis hit a two-run home run to give the Pant-HERS the lead. When the Lady Jaguars failed to score in the bottom half of the inning, North Pitt had the victory.

Farmville, now 0-10 overall, led, 3-1, at the end of the first inning, but North Pitt rallied to take a 4-3 lead in the top of the second. It was a lead short-lived.

The Lady Jaguars fought back to tie it up in the bottom of the inning, but North Pitt regained the lead (8-4) with four runs in the top of the third

Fast Greens Worry Watson

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Defending champion Tom Watson says he won't be surprised if the 46th Masters Golf champion shoots above par because of fast greens.

"Traacherous does not describe them," Watson said Tuesday. "They're almost impossible right now."

Watson, the only two-time winner on the professional tour this year, generally is regarded as the favorite in this elite, international field of 76 that will begin the chase for the season's first major championship on Thursday over the picturesque 6,905-yard, par-72 Augusta National Golf Club course.

Watson, who also won here in 1977, says he's "playing well, but I'm concerned like everybody else about my efforts on the greens." "I like them fast, as long as they don't get too fast," he added. "If you're on the wrong side of the hole here, your goose is cooked. Hitting a 30-footer is like hitting a 5-footer."

He said he expected very few scores under par this week and "if we get much wind, even par or 1 over might win."

It usually takes a below-par figure to capture this championship. Only three Masters champions have failed to break par, the last time in 1966 when Jack Nicklaus claimed the third of his record five Masters with an even-par total.

Jackie Burke Jr. and Sam Snead each won with 289 scores in 1956 and 1954, respectively.

"You have to hit the ball well to win here this week," Watson added. "It will take a lot more patience, a lot more guts to win here."

Watson said he hopes the greens don't get much faster because "if the greens get too fast, it ceases to be skill and you get a lot of luck involved."

Watson, who won earlier in the year at Los Angeles, was victorious in his last start at the Heritage before taking a week off to work on his short game.

He said the short game will be extremely important with the fast greens in placing the ball in the proper position.

"I think 95 to 98 percent of the putts on this golf course will be defensive putts," he said.

Watson said that windy conditions compounding the problem would be an advantage for the short hitter.

He cited Tom Kite as one to watch this week. Kite, who won the Bay Hill Classic in a playoff, currently is second on this season's money list with $155,392.

Nicklaus, regarded by many as the best player the game has ever had, hasn't won in six outings this year, but he always ranks among the favorites at Augusta.

Jerry Pate, who tops the 1982 money list with $160,447, also must be considered one of the top contenders along with Johnny Miller, who tied for second last year and historically plays this course well.

Miller arrived here wondering about his physical condition because he's had little activity since hurting his knee in a skiing fall several weeks ago.

Among others who must be considered are 1976 champion Raymond Floyd, Hale Irwin, Bill Rogers and Craig Stadler. Only two foreign players have ever won the Mastrs — South African Gary Player, a three-time winner, and Spain's Seve Ballesteros, who won here two years ago.

Two Australians could figure in the picture before this 72-hole test ends Sunday — Greg Norman and David Graham.

Milwaukee Gains B-I-G Victory Over Boston

By The Associated Press
How big a victory was it for the Milwaukee Bucks? Let us count the ways.

One — the Bucks' 122-116 triumph Tuesday night came against the Boston Celtics, who have the best record in the National Basketball Association and could be Milwaukee's opponent in the Eastern Conference finals.

Two — a defeat would have knocked the Bucks 11 1/2 games behind Philadelphia in the conference standings. The two teams could meet in the second round of the playoffs and the team with the best record gets the home-court advantage in a seven-game series.

Three — Milwaukee needed a confidence booster because of its problems in the backcourt, where Quinn Buckner and Junior Bridgeman are lost for the season with injuries and Brian Winters missed the Celtics' game with a groin injury.

Four — the Bucks proved they could adjust to the injuries by moving regular forward Marques Johnson to guard and giving a start to rookie forward Alton Lister, who scored 14 points and helped Milwaukee out rebound the Celtics 52-41.

"Lister was really something," said Bucks Coach Don Nelson. "The difference is experience. He's played about 1,000 minutes now. That was my goal for him so he would be ready at this time of year, and he's right on schedule."

Sidney Moncrief, the Bucks' only experienced guard, shared team scoring honors with center Bob Lanier, both with 26 points. He said the game was one of the most emotional the Bucks have played this season.

"You have to ask yourself whether you could play on emotion like that night in and night out," Moncrief said.

Both Nelson and Celtics Coach Bill Fitch played down the significance of the victory, even if it was over a team that had lost just one of its previous 22 games.

"Milwaukee's adjustment was simple tonight," Fitch said. "It would be tough if they had to play two or three nights in a row that way, or have to go into the playoffs with that lineup without any time to prepare."

"But they have these injuries now, and it gives them time to make the adjustments for the playoffs," he said.

"This game was pivotal only because we're trying to catch Philadelphia for the home-court advantage in the playoffs," Nelson said. "Boston already has its home-court advantage pretty well clinched. We probably needed this game more than Boston did."

But Nelson admitted the victory was a confidence booster.

"I think it's of some value to know now that we won't have Buckner and Bridgeman," he said. "It's something the players have to accept now and get used to. They had to do it tonight and they did it."

The Celtics, who got 27 points from Kevin McHale and 26 from center Robert Parish, led 62-52 in the second quarter, but the Bucks outscored Boston 25-5 in the rest of the first half and the start of the second to take a 77-67 edge.

76ers 117, Bulls 104
Philadelphia won its fourth straight game and stayed one-half game ahead of Milwaukee as Julius Erving scored 23 points.

The 76ers broke open a close game against Chicago with a 15-6 spurt that helped them take a 58-44 halftime lead. The Bulls, who lost their fourth straight, were led by David Greenwood with 21 points.

Sonics 102, Suns 91
Gus Williams scored 27 points and center Jack Sikma added 24 points and 21 rebounds to lead Seattle over Phoenix.

The Sonics led 45-37 at halftime and made the first eight points of the third period for their biggest lead. The Suns, who got 25 points from Dennis Johnson, never got closer than five points after that.

Blazers 136, Nuggets 122
Calvin Natt scored 28 points to lead four Portland players with more than 20 points as Denver lost its second straight game after winning 12 in a row.

The Trail Blazers got 26 points from Billy Ray Bates, 23 from Kelvin Ransey and 22 from Jim Paxson to overcome the absence of center Mychal Thompson, who had the flu.

Warriors 110, Clippers 96
Joe Barry Carroll scored 28 points and Bernard King added 16 of his 27 in the second half as Golden State handed San Diego its 14th consecutive loss.

The victory was the Warriors' seventh in their last nine games and tied them with Phoenix for the sixth and final Western Conference playoff spot. The Clippers, who haven't won since March 9, got 25 points from Joe Bryant and 21 from Tom Chambers.

Lakers 108, Rockets 97
Los Angeles snapped Houston's seven-game winning streak as Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 12 of his 20 points in the final period.

After the Rockets led 90-87 midway through the fourth quarter, Abdul-Jabbar led a 21-7 surge the rest of the way.

Earvin "Magic" Johnson led the Lakers with 23 points and Moses Malone had 37 for Houston.

Jazz 129, Mavericks 114
Adrian Dantley scored 40 points as Utah won its third straight game after losing a club-record 18 in a row.

The Jazz, with Dantley scoring 17 points, outscored the Mavericks 38-24 in the third period to overcome a 58-55 halftime deficit.

Hawks 106, Knicks 104
Eddie Johnson scored 32 points, including two game-winning free throws with four seconds left, to lead Atlanta over New York.

The Knicks had trailed by as many as 15 points before rallying to take a 96-95 lead with 4:43 left. The lead changed hands three times before Dan Roundfield's two free throws tied the game at 104-104 with 39 seconds left.

Bullets 94, Cavaliers 85
Spencer Haywood scored 20 points and Jeff Ruland 19 as Washington bombed Cleveland and stayed tied with Atlanta for the last two playoff spots in the Eastern Conference.

The Bullets and Hawks are both 38-37, with seven games remaining, and have a three-game lead over Detroit.

Pirate Men Whip Campbell By 5-1

BUIES CREEK — East Carolina won all but one singles match en route to a 5-1 decision over Campbell Tuesday afternoon in a collegiate tennis match shortened because of high winds.

With the Pirates holding an insurmountable 5-1 lead with only three doubles matches to play, the match was called at the end of the singles competition because of the high winds that had hampered play all afternoon.

ECU, now 9-3, will play host to West Liberty State Friday.

The bidding:
North East South West
1 ♦ Pass 1 ♦ Pass
2 ♦ Pass 3 ♦ Pass
4 ♦ Pass Pass Pass
Opening lead: Jack of ♣.

For some things, your reward might be in heaven. For good dummy technique, your reward is much more immediate.

South's one spade response was in keeping with the modern style for responder to show a four-card major regardless of its quality. Since a spade fit had been located, South's bid of three clubs was a one-round force — three no trump, describing a full opening bid with only four spades, might have been a better choice. North's decision to jump to four spades was a little aggressive, despite his strong spade holding.

West led a heart, and when dummy came down declarer realized that, with normal breaks, he would probably have to lose at least one trick in each suit except hearts. His problem was to avoid losing two diamond tricks, and to lead a diamond to the king offered only a 50 percent chance of success. An end play, if one could be worked out, could improve the odds.

Declarer won the ace of hearts, crossed to the king of trumps and led a club to the queen. When that won, another chance had opened up — if West held a doubleton king of clubs, declarer would not lose a club trick and could afford two diamond losers. A trump to the ace revealed the fact that there was only one trump loser. Next, declarer tried the ace of clubs to see if the king would drop — to no avail.

To complete the groundwork for the end play, declarer cashed the king and queen of hearts, sluffing a diamond from his hand. Then he exited with a trump.

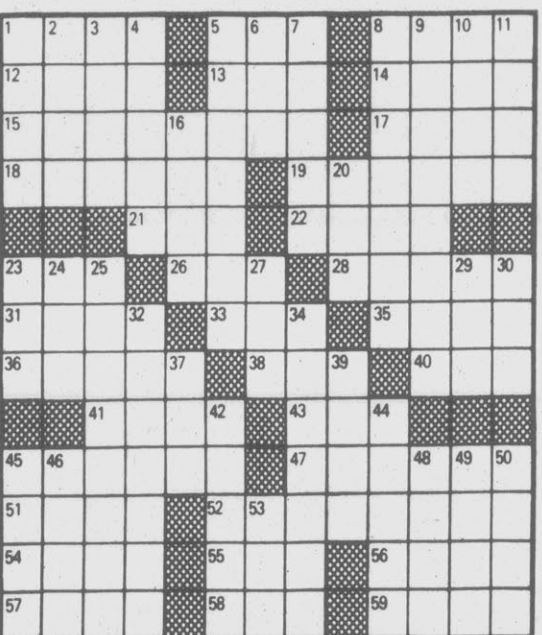

West had a Hobson's choice. He was down to only red cards. To lead a heart would allow declarer to discard another diamond from his hand while ruffing in dummy, so West cashed the ace of diamonds in the hope that his partner would have the king. But that was not to be, and good dummy play earned the contract, and a substantial reward, then and there.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip — DISTRACTED DIRECTOR GROWS GRAY TRYING TO MAKE MONKEY WORK.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: M equals F

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Alexis-Krystle Feud Dominates 'Dynasty' Even Into Next Season

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Blake and Krystle Carrington were happily married when ABC's "Dynasty" entered its second season last November — at least as happily married as soap opera writers will ever let their main characters get.

But, for the second season, sultry actress Joan Collins was hired to play Blake's ex-wife Alexis, and nobody expected her to spend her time playing Parcheesi.

She wasted no time moving into her old art studio on the Carrington estate. The seeds of turmoil were planted in the first episode, enabling the romantic triangle, the cornerstone of any soap opera worth its fan magazines, to spin its viewer web.

Last year, the main love triangle involved Bo Hopkins as Matthew Blaisdel. Krystle spent the year anguishing between Matthew and Blake. But Hopkins left the show. Befitting the facile construction of all moving parts on these serials, the call went out for a replacement, another warm body.

Miss Collins answered, and Krystle Carrington hasn't had a moment's peace since. Alexis has used every soap-opera trick to win back Blake: back-stabbing, treachery and taunting. She even infuriated her adversary by taking flowers from Krystle's garden and using them as models for her paintings.

Alexis first tried to get to Blake through their children. Their son, Steven, had an accident, and grief brought Alexis and Blake closer together in the hospital. Of course, Krystle was there to record their embrace.

When Steven was brought home to the Carrington estate, Alexis claimed territorial privilege and attempted to oversee his rehabilitation. But the plan went awry when Mother Nature intervened. Krystle became pregnant, and Blake was too delighted to be tempted by an old flame. In fact, he was so happy that he reacted like any other powerful man; he gave her an expensive car.

In the sixth episode, Alexis spotted Krystle riding her horse. The evil villains in soap operas must have some sixth sense because, instantly, she saw another golden opportunity.

She fired a gunshot, frightening the horse. Krystle was dumped and lost her baby. Having destroyed that link between Krystle and Blake, Alexis enacted the second part of her scheme.

She revived an old affair with a Middle Eastern oil tycoon, who controlled the source of Carrington crude. She used that leverage to entice Blake to come to Rome without Krystle's knowledge. Alexis spent the time being alluring, but Blake remained faithful to Krystle.

But the scandal sheets printed a picture of Blake and Alexis together, pushing Krystle into the arms of another man, Dr. Nick Toscani. This was another romantic triangle introduced this season with James Farentino playing the good doctor.

Why consummate the relationship when being on the precipice will work even better week after week? Nick and Krystle haven't had an affair either, but that didn't stop Alexis from sending Blake a poison pen letter saying they had.

Krystle, of course, found the letter and verbally confronted Alexis in the 13th episode. But she didn't get physically violent until two weeks later (March 3) when she learned that Alexis fired the shot that caused her miscarriage. That was some scratching, mauling catfight.

Both survived to hate another day, and tonight Alexis hatches another plan. But it won't work. At least not now. On May 5, "Dynasty's" final episode this season, Blake and Krystle still will be married.

But not as happily — and probably not ever after.

Oscars Pace Nielsen Race

NEW YORK (AP) — ABC won the networks' prime-time ratings competition for the second straight week, thanks in large measure to the Academy Awards show and a sitcom spinoff, "Joanie Loves Chachi," figures from the A.C. Nielsen Co. showed.

But CBS, winner in the weekly competition this season 17 times to eight for ABC, continues to lead for the period that began Oct. 5 by a full point, and two CBS shows, "Dallas" and "60 Minutes," remain the TV year's top-rated programs.

The rating for ABC in the week ending April 4 was 18.4 to 17 for CBS and 14.6 for NBC. The networks say that means in an average prime-time minute during the week, 18.4 percent of the nation's homes with television were watching ABC.

The Oscar competition, a perennial hit with viewers, ended a three-week run by "Dallas" as the No. 1 show in prime time. The rating for the ABC broadcast — up against some stiff competition — was 33.6, the highest for any winning, non-sports program this season.

Nielsen says that means in an average minute of the show, 33.6 percent of the country's TV-equipped homes were tuned to the Oscars.

"Dallas" was runnerup with "60 Minutes" third, and CBS' broadcast of the NCAA basketball championship game between North Carolina and Georgetown universities, on at the same time as the Academy Awards, finished 12th in the ratings, with a 21.5 score.

Marsha Mason In New Simon Play

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Marsha Mason, Jason Robards and Donald Sutherland have been signed to star in "Neil Simon's Max Dugan Returns" to be directed by Herbert Ross from Simon's screenplay.

The new comedy is the fifth collaboration for Ross and Simon, most recent of which was "I Ought To Be In Pictures." Their other films were "The Goodbye Girl," "California Suite" and "The Sunshine Boys" — all of which earned 12 Oscar nominations and three Academy Awards.

This time Miss Mason plays a schoolteacher struggling to raise her son in near-poverty when her ex-con father arrives with a fortune, threatening her romance with boyfriend Donald Sutherland, a detective.

Sarah Purcell Stars In Movie

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Sarah Purcell, the female host of the "Real People" television series, will star in a new NBC-TV movie to be produced by George Schlatter who produces the TV show.

Under the terms of her network contract, Miss Purcell will function occasionally as writer, director and producer of several segments of the "Real People" show in addition to preparing pilot scripts in concert with Schlatter for production next fall.

New Autoterm Plan makes possible... No Money Down! $13281 Per Month! On New '82 1301 Tercel 3 Year/45,000 Mile TEMA Available! Explanation: The remarkable new AutoTerm plan—available now at Toyota East in Greenville—brings down the high cost of transportation. AutoTerm is less costly than the conventional way of buying a car... and it's better than any lease you've ever seen. Imagine, a new Toyota for under $133 Term is 48 months. To calculate total of payments, simply multiply 48 by the monthly payment amount. First monthly payment and a refundable security deposit in that same amount required at beginning of lease. You have no responsibility at end of term... you may purchase the car or walk away... your option. Prices shown require approved credit and do not include tax and license.

LOOK, PA, NO HANDS — Robbie Kneivel, 19, son of famed motorcycle stuntster Evel Kneivel, seems to be following in his father's... er, tire tracks, with such jumps as this one of more than 100 feet in Phoenix, Ariz. He had to use his hands the first time, so he went back and did it again. (AP Laserphoto)

Many Just 'Disappear'

By The Associated Press
The last time Judy Voehringer of Wadesboro saw her friend Lisa Habegger, in February of last year, she was planning to fly to New York on a buying trip for her health foods store.

The tangible signs she ever existed are now gone. Her store, the Spice of Life in Cheraw, S.C., has closed for lack of operating capital.

The last time Reba Smith of North Wilkesboro saw her mother, Mary Lee Heavener, she was waving goodbye to her Jan. 13, 1981, and she drove off for home in Longview.

Her car was never found. Police were called, nationwide bulletins were issued, volunteers searched through woods, all without a trace.

After authorities gave up, Ms. Smith resorted to private detectives who came back empty-handed, and she even went to psychics.

"The strange thing about it is, a couple of the psychics told almost identical stories — something about a gas station and my mother being abducted from there," she said.

"We've tried everything," she said. "Knowing that there are no clues — that her car has not been found — leaves a sense of the eerie unknown."

Her best hope now is that her mother got amnesia, and still might be found safe.

Betty Brown disappeared five years ago.

The Charlotte native was living in Rocky Mount with her second husband when she apparently left home without a trace. Her sewing was still on the table.

Her car later was found a few days later in a motel parking lot at Kill Devil Hills, but the then-54-year-old woman was gone.

These reports are not uncommon.

According to the Salvation Army's missing persons bureau in Atlanta, about 4,000 people from 15 Southern states have suffered the same fate.

Police say that a truth lies at the heart of all missing persons investigations, a truth that frustrates both the families and the law enforcement agencies involved.

"If you don't have a body, you don't have a crime," said Gary Griffith, special operations supervisor for the North Carolina State Bureau of Investigation.

That makes missing persons a vague group, a numberless group and, ultimately, a low-priority group.

Nobody can say how many unaccounted Carolinas residents there are.

The SBI in Raleigh does not keep such statistics. Nor does the State Law Enforcement Division in Columbia.

"It's just not generally a crime as we collect murders, rapes and robberies," said Doug Kappler of the Police Information Network in Raleigh, an agency under the U.S. Justice Department. "There is no central network."

The only indicators are very broad estimates, like the one from the Salvation Army. About 500 of the 4,000 people in their files are from North Carolina or South Carolina.

Each case is different. Each involves a separate mystery that might never be solved.

But each case also contains an inescapable question: Did the person leave voluntarily? "Sometimes it's awfully hard to differentiate," Griffith said. "Sometimes you have a feeling one way or another, but it's awfully hard to know. If an adult has broken no law, he possibly left by his own volition. That's his right."

With that question unanswered, the police can do little.

"We might have information that a missing person has been disposed of in such and such a place, and we have an inability to confirm that because the information is just not enough," Griffith said. "We might have heard that one fella is under the NCNB building in Charlotte, but we're not likely to dig under NCNB.... We do whatever we can as far as tracing, but as far as sending out a lot of manpower, well, that's a priority that has to be placed."

Dorothy Hicks, a spokeswoman for the Salvation Army, said the burden is almost too much, especially for a non-government agency.

She said the office was overwhelmed when syndicated columnist Abigail Van Buren mentioned the service in an article.

"Abby meant well, but we are completely inundated; we cannot handle any more requests for help," Ms. Hicks said.

"You would not think there are so many people who are missing. It's a tragic thing."

Stately Old Home Tuned In On World

By JAMES DYER
CAVERSHAM, England (UPI) - Caversham Park is a stately home with a history going back to the Norman Conquest of 1066, but for the last 40 years it has been one of the world's ears.

In 1941 the British Broadcasting Corp. moved its overseas monitoring service into the 19th century house. Now, when all other sources of news dry up, governments and news organizations turn to Caversham to learn what's going on.

The BBC began its listening service at government request in the hectic days just before World War II. One of its first intercepts was news of fighting in Poland on Sept. 1, 1939, signaling the outbreak of the war in Europe.

Caversham's importance has only increased since then.

But its nerve center, the monitoring room, hasn't changed much in those turbulent years.

Surrounded by the vestiges of manor house elegance, figures in headphones sit at a double row of desks, each facing a small radio receiver and a bank of dictating machines for recording broadcasts.

Uta White used to sit at one of those desks, first as a monitor of Turkish, then as head of the French section. Now she selects and trains other monitors.

They can be hard to find. "Every upheaval brings emigres," she said in an interview, "but this is usually too late. We need the monitors when the upheaval is going on."

Ideally, monitors are born to the language they work in, but this isn't always possible. Almost all the Russian monitors, the largest single group, are now British - very well qualified British.

With a masters degree or better in the language, time spent living in the Soviet Union and probably work as a translator, it will still take three months to train them.

For monitor chief David Witherow, the problem with monitors is that there are not enough of them.

When events in Poland began to attract world interest in 1980, he had to cope with a sudden massive increase in demand, with no increase in resources.

"We only got by," he said, "because we were able to use multilingual monitors, by calling in retired staff, and by monitors working very long hours."

There are now 13 people listening to Warsaw radio 24 hours a day. In calmer days there were five.

The most important thing, Miss White said, is accuracy. "Accuracy is the god of this place," she said. "It is not a monitor's job to lose an ambiguity in translation, even if this makes clumsy English."

However, it is the monitor's job to decide what will be passed to the editorial staff for distribution to government departments and outside organizations that buy selected parts of the service.

Though run by the BBC as part of its overseas services, Caversham House is financed by a foreign office grant. In the year 1980-81 it cost about $7.5 million to run, for which it produced some 20,000 words of reports a day, as well as a telex service on fast-breaking developments.

To economize as much as possible, the BBC only tunes its ears to about half the world.

"We have a sharing arrangement with the American equivalent, the Foreign Broadcast Information Service," Witherow explained. "Between the two of us we cover about 120 countries."

"It's basically a historical division, going back to the outbreak of war. We now cover the Soviet Union, Eastern Europe, Western Europe, Spain and Portugal, as well as North Africa, parts of the Middle East, quite a large part of Africa itself and Iran and Afghanistan."

"The FBIS covers the Far East, Southeast Asia, the Indian subcontinent, parts of the Middle East, a bit of Africa and all of Latin America."

Blind, Deaf But 'Talks' With World

By DANIEL Q. HANEY
Associated Press Writer
WORCESTER, Mass. (AP)

— Since she was a teen-ager, Gayle Sabonaitis has lived in darkness and silence. But she talks with the tips of her fingers to a world that knows nothing of her handicaps.

Each evening, she crawls to a corner of her apartment house basement, where she taps the Morse code key of a ham radio set. It is a medium where she is more than an equal, where she is an expert, even though she cannot see, cannot hear, cannot walk.

She holds a full-time job, writes poetry, regularly reads 13 Braille magazines, talks music and sports and recently earned the highest ham radio license granted by the Federal Communications Commission.

She has been blind since she was 1½, deaf since 15. Progressively she has lost her equilibrium so she must crawl or glide about in a wheelchair. Her senses have been taken away by a relentless and incurable nervous disorder, which has baffled her doctors.

Yet at age 38, Miss Sabonaitis challenges her surroundings with the faculties she has left.

"I have a keen sense of smell and taste and touch," she says. "They take the place of my sight and hearing."

Earning her novice license as a ham radio operator 11 years ago was a struggle. Since she cannot hear, Miss Sabonaitis uses a transducer to understand the dots and dashes. This is a loudspeaker with a piece of plastic the size of half a pingpong ball glued onto it. She places her left hand on the ball and reads the incoming code by feeling the vibrations.

Her latest accomplishment was earning an amateur extra class license, the highest of the five that the FCC grants.

"When she's using Morse code, she's without a handicap," says Dr. Peter Sosnow, a ham radio enthusiast who works in the emergency room at the University of Massachusetts Medical Center. "Any person she's in contact with has no conception that she's deaf and blind. She sounds and seems the same as any other person."

Only 8 percent of the nation's 389,000 ham radio operators hold the highest license. The FCC's Personal Radio Branch keeps no records on whether any of them are blind and deaf, but the division's chief, John Johnson, said, "I would say that it is extraordinarily unique."

Tapping away at 28 words a minute, Miss Sabonaitis chats on the air for about three hours each evening with her radio friends throughout New England.

"I hear every word people say with my fingers," she says. "I hear through my hands."

Without ham radio, she says, "I would be psychologically dead."

Miss Sabonaitis speaks normally, but communicating without her Morse key is painstaking.

She can understand slowly spoken words by holding her fingers to the speaker's lips. Her mother, Stella, talks to her by tracing letters on her palm.

The two of them share an apartment in a building near downtown Worcester. But by day, Miss Sabonaitis works full time at the Come Play Products Co., a toy factory. There she staples small brooms and dustpans onto cardboard and stuffs them into plastic bags.

Miss Sabonaitis spent most of her childhood and teen-age years at the Perkins School for the Blind in Watertown, a Boston suburb. There she completed three years of college through correspondence with the University of Wisconsin.

She wanted to be a teacher. And even though it became clear that she could never teach in a public school, she now helps other handicapped people in her spare time to read Braille and operate ham radio sets.

Her time is full, for when she is not working or broadcasting or reading, she writes haiku, a demanding, Japanese form of poetry. Each poem consists of just 17 syllables. She has written 200 of these and is trying to get them published as a book.

Scientists Seek Origin Of Diseases

By JACK A. SEAMONDS
Associated Press Writer
TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — A group of scientists studying mummies and mastodon tissue to discover the origins of ancient diseases may indirectly uncover cures for modern ailments, a researcher says.

"Our investigations are pure research — they're primarily intended to answer interesting questions," said Dr. Frank Saul of the Medical College of Ohio. "It is possible, however, that by tracing the evolution of disease, we might uncover some method of curing it."

Saul, with his wife, Dr. Julie Saul, hosted a weekend meeting of the Paleopathology Association, an organization founded in 1973. Both work in the MCO department of anatomy. About 50 of the group's 500 members worldwide attended the session, he said Monday.

The search for answers carries this little-known group of pathologists and anthropologists from the sands of the Middle East to the jungles of Central America.

By examining the bones of Mayan Indians in southern Mexico and in the Central American country of Belize, Saul said he found evidence to contradict the conventional wisdom that the founders of the civilization were smaller but healthier than modern Mayans.

"The Mayans who live there now are suffering from a variety of malnutrition and infectious diseases complicated by their malnutrition," Saul said.

"By studying the 'long' bones of the body (leg bones) we can determine the tallness of the early Mayans from about 4,000 years ago to about 1,000 years ago," he said. "In fact, they were taller but got progressively shorter as the civilization progressed."

Saul attributes that to a shift in priorities among the Mayans. As they became temple worshippers, he said, they concentrated less on producing food and killed off the wild animals native to the area. Food supplies, mostly corn, soon were depleted.

"This is the reverse of most trends, because in most civilizations it is an established fact that as nutrition increased in importance, the surviving generations grew in size," he said.

Saul said the mastodon tissue sample was obtained from the Soviet Union in a cooperative venture. Examined by Dr. T.A. Reyman of Mt. Carmel Hospital in Detroit, the 40,000-year-old specimen was found frozen in Siberia. Reyman said the animal probably froze rapidly, possibly under an avalanche.

The society was formed following an autopsy conducted in Detroit on a 2,700-year-old mummy. Thousands of mummies were unearthed and examined during the construction of the Aswan High Dam in Egypt. The paleopathology group is applying modern techniques to the procedure.

The autopsies have revealed that hardening of the arteries, which triggers most heart attacks, were as common 3,000 years ago as today.

Starting Course In Stitchery

A course in assorted stitchery will be held at Bethel Elementary School beginning Thursday.

The class will meet on Thursdays for eight weeks from 7-10 p.m. and will cover candlewicking, bargello and pulled thread embroidery.

The registration fee is $8 and persons wanting further information may call Pitt Community College, 756-3130, ext. 238.

PRODUCTION OUTLOOK
GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — Production will drop in many industrialized countries after the turn of the century because of accelerating growth in the number of old people, the International Labor Organization predicts.

5-Year-Old A Veteran Cameraman

By ELISSA McCRARY
Associated Press Writer
BELWOOD, N.C. (AP) — When Robert Williams III was 2 years old, he pointed a camera at his father and snapped the shutter. The resulting photograph was good enough to be published. Three years and thousands of pictures later, the child is a veteran photographer who has just finished a show in Las Vegas and has had his work published in several national magazines. He also has been the subject of television shows, where he has been billed as the world's youngest professional photographer.

His father, Robert Williams Jr., says photography is just a game to Robert.

"He likes taking photographs and it's fun to him, but he doesn't understand what all the big fuss over him is all about," says Williams, an English professor at Gaston College in Gastonia, N.C. "It's just something he enjoys doing, just like he enjoys playing ball or watching cartoons on television."

Except for the large camera he often carries around with him, Robert looks like any other active 5-year-old. The blond-haired boy, wearing jeans and a Mickey Mouse watch, at times appears to be more interested in wrestling with his father in the yard of their rural Cleveland County home than taking the photographs that have earned him thousands of dollars.

But once he focuses his camera on his subject, he becomes all business.

"Stand over there, no, move over more," he tells his father as he turns his camera on his favorite subject. "Now, come down here, you're fuzzy."

"Even though he takes a lot of pictures, he is still just a child and doesn't really know any photography terminology," Williams says. "He still says fuzzy for out of focus."

Williams has taught his son to print and develop his pictures, but says the child can't read negatives. Williams sometimes has to help Robert load film into the camera because Robert's fingers are too small to do the job.

The child got interested in taking pictures while Williams was putting together a written and pictorial history of Gaston County three years ago. Williams says he dug out an old camera, put film in it and let Robert take a few pictures to satisfy his curiosity.

When Williams developed the film, he found that the shots were in focus and well-framed.

The publisher of the Gaston County book used a photograph Robert had taken of his father. His pictures have been in demand ever since.

When Robert was 3, he began selling photographs to illustrate free-lance magazine articles written by his father and mother, Elizabeth. His work has appeared in such publications as Globe, Farmstead and State.

Last month, Vivitar Corp. bought $750 worth of the boy's pictures for an exhibit at the Photographers Manufacturers Association trade show in Las Vegas. Williams says some of the photographs were sold, but he's not sure how much they brought because he hasn't received the checks.

The child also had a one-boy show recently in Gastonia, and plans to exhibit his work at Gaston College and at Sacred Heart College in May.

Robert gained a national following when he was featured on NBC's "Today Show," ABC's "That's Incredible" and a "PM Magazine" syndicated TV program.

"I have to admit, we're a little amazed by all this and at times I think Robert is, too," Williams says. "And the money his pictures bring in is nice for him, but he doesn't really care about that so much. The only thing I've heard him say about money is that he wants to earn enough to pay his way to the World's Fair this year."

Williams says all the money the boy earns goes into a savings account that he will get when he's older.

Sinai Pact Separating Wives

By DANIELA GREBLER
Associated Press Writer
RAFAH, Gaza Strip (AP) — When Israeli forces make their final withdrawal from the Sinai Peninsula in April, Kemel Madi could be left with a wife, seven children and a house in Egypt and a wife, eight children and a house in the Gaza Strip, which remains under Israel's control.

The restored Israeli-Egyptian Sinai border will cut right through this Arab town on the edge of the Gaza Strip, a 25-mile strip of land on the Mediterranean, and separate Madi's families and properties.

When Madi bought the houses, the Gaza Strip was under Egyptian control. Then Israel seized the strip along with Egypt's Sinai Peninsula in the 1967 Arab-Israeli war. Under the Camp David peace agreements, Israel has been gradually returning the Sinai to Egypt and the final phase is set for April 25. But the Gaza Strip will remain as it is, pending further negotiations.

Madi, an Egyptian Moslem who is allowed by his religion to have as many as four wives, will have to make a decision when the Israelis withdraw.

He says he may have to give up one of his homesteads unless some arrangement is made, but has no intention of leaving one wife and one set of children behind no matter what happens.

"I would have to gather my family together," he told a reporter recently. "But I would have to lose something."

Madi, 50, who is a member of the Rafah town council, leans toward choosing the Egyptian side, which would cost him his insurance business on the Gaza Strip side.

"It is not so important as keeping my property — the income is not so great," he added.

He won't be the only one affected when Israel completes its pullback. Thousands of others in Rafah, a sprawling town of 80,000 Arabs, also will be affected in one way or another. But Madi is believed to have the most unusual problem.

His first wife Khadra and the eight children live on 15 acres of olive, orange and almond groves in Gaza. On the Egyptian side are his second wife Jendia with seven children on 10½ acres of orchards.

The 15 children range from a 6-month-old son to a 28-year-old daughter.

"I have to keep part of the family in each house to look after the property," Madi said, referring to his current situation. "I would stay in either house, depending on my mood."

If forced to choose, Madi said, he would bring both wives and all the children to the five-bedroom house he recently finished at the end of a cactus-lined lane on Rafah's southern outskirts, in what will be Egyptian again.

"I have more on this side," he said. "Also, I would choose the Egyptian side because I have Egyptian nationality."

Other Arabs in Rafah are waiting for Israel and Egypt to decide how to demarcate the border, which in some cases would go right through buildings as currently planned. In the open, sandy countryside outside town Israeli bulldozers have slashed a 130-foot-wide security strip, and a concertina-wire fence is going up to mark the border.

The bulldozing stopped at a gas company's concrete wall at the edge of Rafah, and continuation of the work into the town has been postponed until Israeli and Egyptian authorities solve the problem of homes and businesses that would be destroyed by the new frontier.

The border was marked off by British and Turkish surveyors in 1906 when their governments ruled Egypt and Palestine respectively. Some of the seven-foot-tall stone pillars that once marked the cartographical limits of Asia and Africa are still standing in a path that meanders through orange groves, open fields and Rafah's alleys.

The line has been largely ignored since 1948. Egypt conquered Sinai and the Gaza Strip in the 1948

Arab-Israeli War, and then in 1967 Israel took both territories. Construction spilled across the border during both Egyptian and Israeli rule, and the Arab population includes Egyptian citizens and Palestinians.

One large group of people is clearly on the wrong side of the border — about 6,000 Palestinian refugees who live in a former United Nations military camp on what is to be the Egyptian side of the line. They may have to be moved into already-crowded Gaza.

The problems of Rafah are under consideration in the Israel-Egypt Joint Commission for Sinai, and an Israeli source said it hoped "to find a way to minimize the suffering of the local population."

Madi said Egyptian and Israeli authorities told Rafah people that there may be a gate on the border through which they could pass without control.

"They say so, but we don't know," he added. "Both sides, if they are interested so much in freedom, could arrange many good things for the citizens."

Making 700,000 Cars Each Week

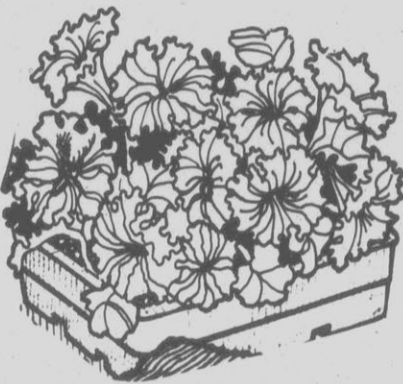

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — Although American automakers are going through one of their worst sales slumps since the Depression, one U.S. company here is churning out 700,000 cars a week and hopes to boost that figure to a million by the end of this year.

How? It's child's play. Mattel Inc., the U.S.-based toy manufacturer, said it is adding 60,000 square feet of space at its factory in Prai, 183 miles northwest of here, and installing more modern equipment to help boost the production of toy cars, which are exported mainly to the U.S. and Europe, according to Bob Miller, the financial controller for Mattel Malaysia Ltd.

Mattel also has factories in Hong Kong, Taiwan and the Philippines, where it makes dolls.

$10,500 Bill Has Town Close To Bankruptcy

Such insurance would cost Paw Paw $1,100, said Clark. "It's almost impossible. But it sure makes you want to scratch hard to come up with the money to guard against this," he said.

GOING BROKE — Paw Paw Mayor David Clark says his community may grow broke if it doesn't find a way to pay a $10,500 award to a motorist who sued the town. (AP Laserphoto)

By BARRY RENFREW
Associated Press Writer
PAW PAW, W.Va. (AP) — Being the mayor of Paw Paw means everything from chasing stray dogs to cutting the grass at the town cemetery. But David Clark never thought the job would also leave the very survival of the town in his hands.

Perched on the Potomac River where it slices between West Virginia and Maryland, the tiny community is wondering how long it can go on being a town if it can't pay a $10,500 bill. The bill stems from 1978, when the former police chief chased a motorist who later won a lawsuit against Paw Paw.

While $10,500 would be the price of a coffee break to a large city, Clark says the bill is likely to break the bank — although as he points out, Paw Paw doesn't even have a bank.

Paw Paw has been in a slow decline ever since the last of the Union troops stationed there during the Civil War marched away. A few stores and a funeral home huddle at the single crossroads in the center of town, where fresh flowers are placed regularly at the monument to the local men who died in World War I.

Jobs are scarce and most people commute across winding mountain roads to jobs in Virginia and Maryland. The students from the tiny high school — which graduated 13 seniors last year — leave home quickly.

Clark says the town had been trying to slow the downward slide. A new water system was built with a federal grant and there was even talk of attracting industry.

But then came the night in May 1978 when Charles H. Harbaugh of Berryville, Va., drove through town.

Police Chief Lawrence Sherman stated in court documents that he clocked Harbaugh doing 47 mph in a 25 mph zone. A chase ensued with Sherman stopping Harbaugh three times only to see him speed off again each time the chief got out of the cruiser.

The chase spilled over into Maryland where local authorities, after being radioed by Sherman, stopped Harbaugh. After a night in a Maryland jail, Harbaugh was released after a judge ruled that Sherman lacked jurisdiction in Maryland.

Clark, who was not mayor at the time, said the incident went unnoticed in Paw Paw. Then a year ago, another police officer said he clocked Harbaugh driving above the speed limit on his way through town. Again a chase across the hills ensued with police from West Virginia and Virginia joining in before the driver eluded them.

Clark, who also serves as justice of the peace, found Harbaugh guilty in absentia and notified Virginia authorities, who suspended his driving license for three weeks. Harbaugh responded with a $1.3 million lawsuit, alleging his constitutional rights had been violated during the first chase.

After a trial in Baltimore, a jury awarded Harbaugh damages and legal costs amounting to $10,500 — a sum almost half of the town's annual $25,000 budget. The decision bewilders Clark.

"I didn't feel the town should be held liable for a police officer's actions," he said. "I can't see how the jury found any fault against the town."

Most of Paw Paw's 600 or so residents, according to Clark, didn't know about the case until the town got the bill. In a community where the local tax of a few dollars per family hasn't been raised in 30 years, the sum seemed impossible.

"This is the biggest headache we've had in a long time," Clark said. "I'd been lying if I didn't tell you this hadn't taken something out of me."

Mark Davis, Sherman's lawyer, said his client would not answer any questions about the incident.

The suit is headed back to court because Harbaugh is not satisfied with the award. Clark says the town may end up paying even more.

The problem of footing the bill is frequently mulled over in Jerry Kline's general store, where the shelves are crowded with everything from bacon to aging posters from the Saturday Evening Post.

Kline says no one has yet come up with a solution. "Nobody likes it. Nobody thinks it's fair," he said.

Most of the townspeople, in fact, don't believe Paw Paw should pay up.

"They don't know what they're going to do," said a clerk at the local liquor store. "But everyone says they aren't going to pay."

Easter Eggs

STONE MOUNTAIN, Ga. (AP) — The Easter bunny couldn't possibly color all those eggs by himself, so it's a good thing he has help from record-seeking civic leaders.

In an effort to reclaim what they say is a world record set a year ago, officials at Stone Mountain Park and the local Jaycee chapter plan to dye and hide 30,600 eggs in time for Sunday's egg hunt.

The heat is on to retain last year's record of 21,240 Easter eggs after a civic club in Biloxi, Miss., said it beat the record last week.

The Biloxi Jaycees say they placed 28,000 boiled eggs in a 10-acre field for more than 4,000 delighted children to find during the 17th annual Harry Fountain Memorial Easter Egg Hunt last Sunday.

The Georgia Egg Commission quickly agreed Monday to add a few thousand eggs to its donation so the state park in suburban Atlanta can reclaim the record in time for an egg hunt this Sunday.

"We congratulate the Biloxi Jaycees on their one-week record," said Steve Doster, the Stone Mountain Park's assistant general manager.

"We've got the world record of the largest piece of exposed granite in the world and another for the largest single piece of sculptured art in the world," Doster said, referring to the equestrian figures of Jefferson Davis, Robert E. Lee and Stonewall Jackson carved into the granite face of Stone Mountain.

"But," he added, "we want to keep our egg hunt record, too."

Named District FBLA Officer

ASHEVILLE — Sam Sumrell of the Farmville Central chapter of Future Business Leaders of America was elected District I president at the FBLA State Leadership Conference held last weekend.

In addition, the Farmville FBLA was awarded the Gold

Seal Certificate of Merit for the seventh consecutive year and received first place in the Best Annual Activities Report competition for the second year. The group also placed first in the Installation of New or Reactivated Chapters Event.

Chapter member Julia Smith placed second in the Miss FBLA event. Both Ms. Smith and Hope Strickland were one of 15 students in the state recognized in the Who's Who in North Carolina FBLA event.

Eight Farmville FBLA members and one adviser attended the conference.

Lung Transplant Specialists Have A Problem: Few Donors

By PAUL RAE BURN
AP Science Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Dr. Frank Veith of Montefiore Hospital is a pioneer in lung transplant surgery; but he has not done a lung transplant in more than six years.

The problem: lung donors simply can't be found. Many times during the last six years, the hospital has admitted a patient with severe lung disease — usually emphysema — who could be saved only with a lung transplant. Each time, doctors anxiously searched for donors. Each time, they failed.

Veith, the head of Montefiore's lung transplant team, has watched with mounting frustration as the patients died.

In the past year, the situation has become even more vexing, because of a dramatic new development that will inaugurate a "dawning era" in transplantation, according to Veith.

Researchers have found a new drug — cyclosporin A — that is vastly better than previous drugs at blocking the body's rejection system. That rejection system would normally attack and destroy any foreign material in the body — including transplanted organs.

Dr. Calvin Stiller of University Hospital in London, Ontario, who has been studying cyclosporin A, says the drug may make transplantation of almost any organ fairly routine within 10 years.

If future tests confirm the effectiveness of cyclosporin A, Stiller says, then "we're talking about one of the most effective therapies in medicine — the 'penicillin' of transplantation."

The dawn of the new era in transplantation has already begun at Stanford University, where five combined heart-lung transplant operations were done in 1981. Four of the five patients are still alive, and the first of them has now survived nearly a year. No previous heart-lung transplant recipient had lived more than a few weeks.

Despite Stanford's luck in obtaining donors, Montefiore has still been unsuccessful. Finding lung donors is much tougher than finding heart or kidney donors for several reasons, Veith says in his office, where chairs, the desk and much of the floor are piled high with medical monographs.

One is that the size of lungs varies, and the donor lungs must roughly match the size of the patient's lungs.

Another reason is that lungs are tougher than hearts or kidneys to transport and keep alive, he says.

Donor hearts and kidneys can be removed from the donor and kept alive for a matter of hours, while they are transported to their recipients. But lungs must be transported inside the donor's body, and then removed and transplanted immediately.

It is also tough to find lungs that are not already diseased or have been damaged by whatever killed the donor — usually an accident or a gunshot.

And when suitable lungs are found, the donors' families often refuse to let them be used, a response that Veith attributes to "a lack of education in a situation that's already emotionally draining."

Veith and his colleagues have tried to solve one problem by developing a way to transport the lungs outside the body and preserve them for as long as 24 hours.

The system involves flushing the lungs and filling them with a special preservative liquid, cooling them to almost-freezing temperatures, and carrying them in an insulated metal container.

The transport system has been tested with animal lungs, but Veith says the doctors are not yet confident enough of it to try it with humans. "It's another logistical problem," he says. "We'd like to have a few successes (with lung transplants) before we try it."

Veith is not sure why Stanford has been able to find donors while Montefiore hasn't, but part of the answer apparently lies with the Los Angeles Regional Organ Procurement Association, which supplies about 70 percent of the hearts and lungs transplanted at Stanford.

The organization, part of a nationwide network of such groups funded by the federal government, has conducted an intensive educational campaign with Southern California doctors.

Use Of Cocaine Spreads Across Western Europe

By ED BLANCHE
Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP) — The use of cocaine — "The White Lady," as it is called — has been spreading at an alarming and rapid rate across Western Europe, notably Britain, Italy and France, since 1979.

Narcotics agents say that cocaine, which costs an average $100 a gram (0.3 ounces) on Western Europe's streets, is no longer exclusive to the thrill-seeking movie, rock and jet sets, but is moving down the social scale as it has done in the United States.

Undercover narcotics and customs agents swooped across Britain on March 24 to smash what they claimed was a major crime syndicate that has run cocaine and other drugs worth $36 million into this country in two years. The bust was the latest in a growing string of big cocaine seizures in Europe. French police seized a record 247 pounds last year. Five years ago the haul was 14 pounds.

British customs agents intercepted 88 pounds in 1981, five times the amount seized the previous year.

Cocaine busts quadrupled in Italy between 1977 and last year, rising from 34 pounds to 141 pounds.

This is small-time compared to the 44 tons of cocaine, worth as much as $32 billion on the street, seized in the United States in 1980, the latest year for which statistics are available.

But narcotics agents believe the total haul last year in Britain, France and Italy — street value: $22 million — was only a fraction of the swelling tide of white powder reaching Western Europe, already facing a growing heroin problem, from Latin America.

"It's unrealistic to expect to catch more than a small percentage of cocaine carriers," said a British customs investigator, who requested anonymity. "The smugglers always have the advantage."

A recent report of the U.S. Drug Enforcement Agency estimated that Colombia, Peru, Bolivia and Chile produced 200 tons of cocaine, worth $5 billion, a year.

Half of that goes to the United States and an estimated 30 tons to Europe, officials reported.

West European and U.S. narcotics officials say London has become a vital hub in the drug-running network, particularly with cocaine smugglers. However, officials said a large amount is smuggled directly to Europe from Latin America.

Most cocaine syndicates are believed based in Miami, but Scotland Yard, London's police headquarters, said the gang rounded up March 24 was based in Britain, and funded its cocaine buys with bank and post office holdups.

The raids in London and northern England climaxed a three-month undercover operation by a police task force working with custom officers.

The raids were launched after agents posing as passengers arrested a man and a woman at London's Heathrow Airport when they flew in from Johannesburg, South Africa, with cocaine and marijuana worth about $100,000.

Police said 17 people were arrested in the raids and a "large amount" of cocaine and heroin seized.

There are no estimates of the number of users in Europe. But officials in Washington estimate there are 4.4 million regular "coke" users in the United States. Unofficial estimates put that total as high as 10 million.

The British customs investigator said: "Cocaine is turning up all over the place these days. It's not just the wealthy. Cocaine's a status symbol among more and more middle-class people and there's heavy usage with the disco kids."

Dr. Claus Olivenstein, one of France's leading authorities on drug abuse, says he has found, "Cocaine is essentially limited to the milieu of show business, fashion and journalism in France. It hasn't reached the broad middle class as it has in the United States."

However, Italy's customs and fraud police reported a big increase since 1980.

Detective Superintendent Sven Fehrm of the narcotics squad in Stockholm, Sweden, said: "Cocaine use is increasing in Sweden. We're finding it in the streets in Stockholm and Malmö."

Norwegian authorities reported little cocaine traffic, but Denmark's "narko" police said seizures rose to 23 pounds last year from 2.2 pounds in 1980.

Police spokesman Klaas Wiltling in Amsterdam, the Netherlands, noted "a certain increase in cocaine use among youngsters frequenting discos."

He said Dutch police seized 13 pounds of cocaine last year. European narcotics officials say Amsterdam is another key transit point for "mules," the name for carriers of cocaine.

Spain's Civil Guard, which seized 60 pounds of cocaine last year, reported increasing drug usage and trafficking.

West Germany apparently has escaped the cocaine tide. An Interior Ministry spokesman: "Cocaine usage is small here compared to marijuana and heroin, unlike some other European countries."

The ministry said about 50 pounds of cocaine was seized last year, about the same as 1980, much of it "in transit"

"cut," or mixed, with procaine, an anesthetic; lactose, a sugar, or even baking soda to about 10 to 20 percent purity and sells for $45,000 a pound.

Corporate America Spending Less For Airplanes

By MICHAEL BATES
Associated Press Writer
WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — It's tempting to assume nosediving light plane sales, rising aircraft company layoffs and pessimistic economic forecasts are transforming Wichita from the "Air Capital of the World" to the "Detroit of the aviation industry."

But it is an incorrect assumption, say city leaders, union officials and spokesmen at the airplane manufacturers that call Wichita home.

"We're not looking at anything like that here," says Mike Potts of Beech Aircraft Corp. "Detroit is looking at a 25 percent unemployment rate. We're looking at a rate significantly below the national average," which was 8.8 percent for February.

Unemployment statistics show 5.1 percent of the 223,200-person work force in Wichita were unemployed in February. That compares with 3.9 percent in February 1981 and 4.5 percent in January 1982. The statistics, however, do not take into account large layoffs announced in March.

City Manager Gene Denton says Wichita will not suffer the unemployment fate of Detroit because of the diversification of the city's industrial base. The percentage of the labor force working at aircraft companies dropped to around 15 percent during the 1970s after reaching a high of 25 percent to 30 percent during the 1950s when the Boeing Military Airplane Co. was manufacturing B-52s. Denton says the current number of workers in aviation industries is something less than 20 percent.

Wichita has held its "Air Capital" nickname for several decades thanks to the activity of Boeing, Beech, Cessna Aircraft Co., Gates Learjet Corp. and other planemakers. About 60 percent of the air frames in the world are built in Wichita.

Strong aircraft sales and good general economic health gained Wichita a reputation as an "island of prosperity" during the 1970s as an economic malaise spread through much of the nation.

The island began eroding a little in the late 1970s when sales of single-engine planes began dropping off. Demand continued, however, for corporate aircraft, keeping those assembly lines busy.

But during the past few months, corporate America also cut its spending on planes. The General Aviation Manufacturers Association says deliveries of light planes so far this year are down 40 percent from 1981 and billings have declined almost 10 percent.

"There is a lack of buyer confidence," says association official Ed Stimpson. "If you're a businessman, you're saying 'Gee, should I buy this airplane or wait 30 days and see what happens?'"

The decline in small plane sales has led to layoffs of more than 4,600 workers at Cessna and about 1,800 at Beech in the past year. That puts Cessna's employment at about 8,520 and Beech's at about 9,000.

And late in March, Gates Learjet Corp. announced its first layoffs since 1970-1971, dropping about 150 of its 3,100 employees in Wichita.

Most of the layoffs are indefinite. Companies also use plantwide vacations to curtail production. Cessna has announced temporary shutdowns of three weeks at one plant and six weeks or longer at another.

Unlike the automakers and other manufacturers, planemakers sell a high percentage of their output before it leaves the assembly line.

Field inventories are half what they were two years ago, Cessna says. Dealers and manufacturers apparently learned a hard lesson in the 1970-1971 downturn, when sales dropped about 50 percent and stuck them with huge inventories, Stimpson says.

No dealer or builder wants inventory sitting around when it is financed at 17 percent to 19 percent interest, he notes.

Cessna maintains about a 50 percent share of the market, so it has been hit hardest by the sales declines. It is the only manufacturer to offer a full line of planes ranging from two-place trainers to intercontinental business jets.

But none of the companies, including Cessna, appears headed for severe financial straits. Industry analysts point to the fact most of the firms are owned by parent corporations with vast resources. Beech is a Raytheon company, and Gates Rubber Co. owns Gates Learjet.

The planemakers also differ from the auto companies because they have kept up with technological advances and have kept a rein on labor costs, Denton says.

Industry spokesmen say they expect demand to rise sharply once the economy rebounds. They say prospective buyers are still taking test rides and planning purchases.

"The need for business aircraft — especially propjets and fan jets — remains as strong as ever and probably stronger," says Russ Meyer, Cessna's chairman and president. "Airline deregulation has resulted in sharply reduced service to most cities and a business aircraft is in many cases the most efficient and productive means of transportation."

Meyer and others believe all that is needed is a decline in interest rates and an economic upturn. But in early March, Beech executives quietly abandoned their forecast of an economic improvement by late summer.

Advancement Certificate

Elva H. Smith, secretary and bookkeeper at Ayden-Grifton High School, was awarded a professional standards program advanced associate certificate at the 31st annual conference of the North Carolina Association of Educational Office Personnel held recently.

The professional standards program is a voluntary program of self-improvement and professional growth. To be awarded an advanced associate certificate, an applicant must have 90 semester hours of college credit, seven years experience in an educational office, 10 points for in-service training (conferences, conventions/ workshops, etc.) and 10 points for association responsibility (membership participation in local, district state and national educational associations.)

Ms. Smith is the first Pitt County school employee to be awarded the professional standards program certificate.

Monks Find Modern Campus An Oasis Of Peace

By ELISSA McCRARY
Associated Press Writer

BELMONT, N.C. (AP) — Three dozen men at Belmont Abbey College have reached back 1,500 years into history and discovered an oasis of peace at a modern college campus.

The men are Benedictine monks and live in a century-old monastery on campus. The monks, dressed in flowing black robes, spend their days teaching or working at the college or ministering to residents of the small Gaston County town of Belmont.

Father Paschal Baumstein, a monk and archivist at Belmont Abbey, says people tend to associate monasteries with the middle ages.

"It often surprises people to learn that we're here, that monasteries still exist in today's world," Father Paschal said.

ABBEY ARCHIVIST — Father Paschal is a Benedictine monk at Belmont Abbey, a century-old monastery and college in Belmont, N.C. Father Paschal is the abbey archivist. (AP Laserphoto)

"If they do know about us, they tend to think of a monastery as a place to escape reality," he added. "But I think the balance here of learning and the spiritual is very close to reality."

Belmont Abbey College, a four-year liberal arts school with an enrollment of 800 students, was founded by the Order of St. Benedict in 1876. The Benedictine Order is one of the oldest orders, founded in the 6th century.

Belmont was chosen as the site for the Catholic school and attached monastery in 1875 when a Catholic priest donated his 500-acre farm to the Benedictines.

"When it (the monastery) was founded, the people in the area were very poor and there were very few Catholics and we weren't well accepted," Father Paschal said. "But we had the latest farming equipment and we taught them modern farming techniques and broke down the barriers that way. Now we are taken for granted around here."

In the early years of the college, the monks were self-sufficient. They now take care of the college grounds, teach in the school and perform all types of administrative and menial tasks in the monastery and college. The young monks also take care of the older monks, some of whom are crippled and sick.

Walking across the campus, with its tree-lined walks and old brick buildings, is like stepping back into another age. The Catholic church, with its Gothic spires and glowing stained-glass windows, dominates one end of the campus. Footsteps echo in the hallway of the two-story monastery that houses the 34 monks. Visitors are not allowed on the upper floor where the monks' sparsely furnished rooms are located. But Paschal points with pride to the monastery's handmade brick walls built a century ago and to the original pine floors, polished to a glow by the monks.

The monks, who are all ages and come from all over the country, follow a strict schedule. They start off their day with a morning prayer session at 7 a.m., then eat breakfast and report for their day's work. They attend a second prayer session at 11:45 a.m. Mass is held at 5:15 p.m., followed by vespers or evening prayers at 7 p.m. Each monk says private prayers before going to bed at night.

Talking is not allowed at the morning meal or anywhere in the monastery except in a "common" room, where the monks can watch television or listen to a radio. The monks are allowed to drive cars but seldom go out into the community except on church business.

"It may sound confining or limiting, but it is really comforting to know what you will be doing each day," said Father Paschal.

Before being accepted into the Benedictine Order, monks are required to take vows of celibacy, poverty and obedience. They also promise to stay at Belmont Abbey.

Father Paschal, who is a 31-year-old Catholic convert, says the question he is asked most often is what attracts a man to be a monk.

"It isn't simple to answer that, but I believe being a monk gives you an opportunity to serve a religious purpose and a teaching purpose without the distractions of the world," he said. "In a monastery you have the perfect situation to apply yourself completely to your calling."

Father Mauricio West, vice president for student affairs at the college, says he thinks being a monk helps him have a better understanding of his students' personal and academic problems.

"This kind of life gives you a chance to teach students with your actions, to really concentrate on the good in the world," said Father Mauricio, a 29-year-old black man dressed in a red sweater and dark slacks.

Unlike most of the other monks, Father Mauricio says he prefers to wear casual clothes to his office instead of the traditional robes.

"Contrary to popular belief, there is nothing mysterious about being a monk," he says. "Being a monk doesn't mean wearing black robes or living in a monastery. It means serving your religion and the world the best you can every day. That's what we dedicate our lives to — service."
