Haig In London To Try Avert Conflict

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Administration officials are portraying Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. as an 'honest broker' in the effort to avert war over the Falkland Islands...

Acting on orders from President Reagan, Haig arrived in London early today to confer with British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher and Foreign Secretary Francis Pym.

He goes to Buenos Aires later in the week for talks with Argentine officials.

'Obviously, we're going to be the honest broker,' said a White House official traveling in the Caribbean with Reagan. He said both sides are looking for a peaceful solution but 'their threshold of pain remains a question.'

The official, who asked not to be identified by name, said one U.S. worry is that the Soviet Union could 'try to take advantage ... pretending to be the champion of the Third World.'

Even as Haig prepared to leave on his trip, a large fleet of British warships was steaming toward the Falklands. Britain has declared that, effective next Monday, any Argentine ships within a 200-mile radius of the islands 'will be treated as hostile and are liable to be attacked by British forces.'

The fleet is scheduled to arrive in about 10 days with orders to use force, if necessary, to dislodge Argentine troops who seized the islands Friday.

The Argentine government retaliated by declaring a 'South Atlantic theater of operations' extending 200 miles from the Falklands to the Argentine coast and announced that any ship found in the area and considered hostile to the nation's security would be attacked.

Nevertheless, both Britain and Argentina have expressed willingness to arrive at a peaceful settlement.

Meanwhile, Britain's U.S. ambassador, Sir Nicholas Henderson, told The Associated Press in an interview Wednesday that Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger had called him personally to discuss a statement from the Defense Department that implied the U.S. was neutral.

British Embassy officials said privately they were upset earlier this week when Defense Department spokesman

Henry Catto said: 'We have no idea of doing anything but walking right down the middle. We're not going to give anybody any help either way.'

Henderson said that in a telephone call, 'The secretary of defense himself told me that he had issued a denial of what had allegedly been said. I'm in no doubt about it that the Americans are not neutral on these two questions, namely the use of force and the disregard of self-determination' by the Argentines.

But a Pentagon official said later: 'I think the word denial is a little strong. The word clarification is a better word than denial. What the secretary did was to indicate that perhaps what should have been done ... was to stress the United States did support the United Kingdom in the U.N. and did condemn Argentina's use of armed force in the Falkland Islands.'

The official asked not to be identified. The Reagan administration, meanwhile, used the word mediator for the first time Wednesday in describing Haig's role in the dispute. An administration official in Jamaica with Reagan said 'there is cause to suppose that the United States has now been accepted as a mediator.'

Addressing the House of Commons today, however, Mrs. Thatcher said Haig was coming to Britain as 'a friend and ally,' not as a mediator.

'The phrase 'mediator' has not been used because we made our position perfectly clear that troops must be withdrawn from the Falkland Islands as a first step,' the prime minister said.

Despite statements from key Argentine officials that they might agree to withdraw their troops as part of an overall settlement to the conflict, Henderson declined to express optimism that a settlement acceptable to Britain might now be in sight.

'I don't think it would be sensible to say one is more optimistic or more pessimistic,' he said in the AP interview Wednesday. 'The important thing is that the Argentines should become realistic and realize that we are going to insist on the restoration of the situation before this military aggression.'

'When the Argentines have withdrawn their military occupation forces, then the time will come to consider longer-term issues. They just have to go. If they are going, they go, and they must go.'

Negotiators Say Budget To Require Compromise

By CLIFF HAAS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Negotiators in budget talks between the administration and Congress say the search for an alternative to President Reagan's plan will fail unless Reagan and House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. compromise.

House Republican Leader Robert H. Michel of Illinois said Wednesday that he and other participants in the secret discussions 'are laying the groundwork for those two.'

Michel said he and the other negotiators have at least the outlines of a budget compromise within their reach, but must persuade Reagan and O'Neill to accept the same framework.

'The rest of us are kind of in there chipping away at both those poles,' Michel said, referring to the Republican president and the Democratic House speaker.

Another negotiator, Rep. James R. Jones, D-Okla., chairman of the House Budget Committee, told a Chamber of Commerce group earlier Wednesday that 'We're going to have to figure out some way in which both principals can come on board.'

But he warned that time is running out. 'If we are unable to reach a bipartisan consensus before the end of this month, then I don't think we're going to have a responsible budget program passed by the Congress this year,' Jones said.

Michel, meanwhile, said he blows 'hot and cold' about the prospects for an agreement.

Michel and Jones have been participants in the private talks along with White House Chief of Staff James A. Baker III, budget director David A. Stockman, Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan and key Democrats and Republicans from the House and Senate. Neither Reagan nor O'Neill has participated directly.

The talks are on hold - probably until next week - while Reagan and O'Neill review the progress so far.

Sources have said the negotiators are discussing a delay and reduction in cost-of-living increases for Social Security and other benefit programs as well as higher taxes to reduce budget deficits. Those tax proposals reportedly include an oil import fee and a 4 percent income tax surcharge, perhaps applying only to upper income taxpayers.

The negotiators also reportedly are considering an excise tax on all energy products, with an exemption for home heating oil.

Reagan has refused to accept any change in the three-year personal income tax rate cut Congress enacted last year while O'Neill has refused to discuss any cuts in Social Security unless Reagan agrees to a change in his tax policy.

But Michel indicated that an income tax surcharge might be acceptable to Reagan so long as the 10 percent personal income tax cut scheduled for July 1983 remains intact.

'A surtax is the kind of thing you can take on temporarily' and remove at a later date, Michel said. After the surcharge has expired, Reagan's three-year tax cut would still be in place, Michel added.

Another Big Storm Hits Midwest; Snow And Cold

By ANDY O'CONNELL
Associated Press Writer

Another big winter storm flipped out of the Oklahoma panhandle today and landed on the Midwest just as residents were recovering from the coldest weather ever to turn an April shower into snow.

As snow-covered roads made driving treacherous, the death count from the unprecedented spring storm climbed to 45 since Tuesday with three new deaths in Illinois, two in Nebraska and two more in Pennsylvania.

Fifty cars and trucks piled into one another on Interstate 80 as snow arrived in Des Moines with the Wednesday night rush hour.

Winter storm warnings were in effect today in parts of the Midwest and forecasters said the snowfall was only half over when up to 5 inches had fallen in Iowa. The storm moved east out of Nebraska, but a half-foot of snow was expected today in Missouri and Illinois.

Three inches of snow dropped on southern Indiana overnight, and possibly heavy snowfall was forecast for tonight.

The National Weather Service said the storm developed Wednesday night over the Oklahoma panhandle, and forecasters warned it could bring snow east to Pennsylvania and Massachusetts by Friday.

A storm that dumped up to 9 inches on Chicago on Monday moved on to the Northeast and became a blizzard the next day, dumping up to 2 feet of snow and bringing Boston and New York City their biggest snowstorm of the season.

Winds up to 50 mph raked New Jersey on Wednesday and the 17-degree low in Newark was the lowest April temperature ever recorded. This morning's 23 degrees set a record low for the day.

Other record April 8 temperatures were recorded today with Baltimore's 26; Cleveland 11; Detroit 11; Great Falls, Mont., 4; Hartford, Conn. 20; and Pittsburgh 14.

The temperature sank to 8 degrees in Chicago and Moline and 14 degrees in Peoria early Wednesday - the coldest April weather recorded in those cities. Southern Illinois apple growers said most of the apple crop had been saved, but one grower, Terry Boyd, said: 'I definitely think we're going to have a reduced apple crop. This year, apples are going to be high in the stores - there's no question.'

Interstate 80 was closed Wednesday night just east of Des Moines, Iowa, because of the 50-car pileup, which started at about 7 p.m. and reportedly caused no serious injuries.

Dave Robbins, a Carlisle, Iowa, truck driver, said the pileup began a few vehicles in front of him when a livestock truck crashed and cars began smashing into it. He said a beer truck plowed into two cars, which were pushed into his truck.

In snow-covered Pennsylvania, the Public Utility Commission extended a moratorium on service shutoffs for nonpayment of bills from April 19 until the return of warm weather. National Weather Service forecasters predicted temperatures in the teens today and said more snow was expected to hit the state Friday.

Records fell Wednesday at Pennsylvania's Allentown-Bethlehem-Easton Airport, where the 31-degree high broke the 1938 record for the lowest maximum temperature of 38. In Philadelphia, the mercury crept up only to 36 degrees, breaking a record of 39 for the lowest high.

The freezing weather contributed to the deaths of two people in a head-on traffic collision on Pennsylvania Route 6 near Corry Wednesday. State police blamed the crash on an icy patch of roadway. The victims were Leroy Earle, 47, of Harrison Valley, Pa., and Stanley Dynda, 55, of Austin, Pa.

In Illinois, three people died when a pickup truck carrying 19 illegal aliens hit an icy patch of Interstate 57 north of Effingham and spun into a ditch, state police said. Two women died in separate Nebraska traffic accidents.

The Blizzard of '82 has now been blamed for at least 45 deaths, including nine in Ohio, five in Iowa, five in Pennsylvania, four in Michigan, four in New York, four in Massachusetts, three in Illinois, three in Wisconsin, two each in Nebraska, Indiana and Maine and one each in Connecticut and New Hampshire.

The temperature hit a record low of 16 for the date in Boston on Wednesday - the previous low was 20 set in 1943.

'It looks like the Easter weekend is going to be a busy one for ski areas,' said Mill Moore of the New England Ski Areas Council. 'Until this storm came along, we figured maybe two dozen ski areas would be operating for Easter. Now it looks like it'll be more than 40.'

In New York state, four missing college students walked out of the Catskill Forest Preserve Wednesday, and a hunt for them was called off.

RAILROAD BLOCKING 14TH STREET

The widening and improvement of 14th Street has been inconveniencing enough for merchants in the area and the general public all the time it's been going on, but early this week the straw that breaks the camel's back became apparent. Seaboard Coastline Railroad, which began work March 24, pulled its crews out last Thursday and the city engineer tells me the railroad tells him they won't be back until either the 12th or the 19th of April. Southern Railroad reworked its crossing in three days, but Coastline's going to keep one of Greenville's main arteries of transportation blocked several weeks. J.K.

City Engineer Ron Sewell says he and his staff are as dismayed as anyone about Coastline's refusal to complete the project once it was begun. He said the interruption of the work has created extreme hardship on the city which before was happy to be about six weeks ahead of schedule. It also has caused the L.A. Reynolds Co. to have to pull off the job, he indicated.

Sewell gave us the name, Ray Kope, in the Rocky Mount office of Seaboard Coastline. Kope was out of town, but we talked Tuesday to a Mr. Conyers who seemed to understand Greenville's dilemma and be sympathetic. However, when we called back this morning, he said that the matter is beyond his and Mr. Kope's control and that it will definitely be as late as April 19 before the work is resumed. As to why, he said only that the work crews are more urgently needed elsewhere.

Aluminum Wire Appeal Dropped

By G.G. LABELLE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Consumer Product Safety Commission has decided not to appeal a court ruling in an effort to force the aluminum industry to repair 1.5 million homes with electrical wiring that may be a fire hazard.

Commissioner Stuart Stalter said today that the decision was made at a closed meeting within the last two weeks. The commission staff was trying to come up with options for solving the problem, Stalter said, but he added he saw 'no simple solution.'

The decision not to appeal the ruling leaves in the hands of homeowners the cost of rewiring, which the CPSC staff estimates could run $1,000 to $1,500 per house. If the aluminum industry were to pay the estimated total cost, it would amount to $2 billion to $3 billion.

Stalter called the federal court decision a 'far-fetched judicial action' but said he and his fellow commissioners had decided they stood little chance of winning an appeal.

'We've gone about as far as we can go in the courts,' he said.

Stalter, who as a Senate staff member helped write the legislation that created the CPSC, said the court was writing 'bad law' in deciding that the wiring question was not within the jurisdiction of the agency.

'There's no question that aluminum wiring was intended to be within the jurisdiction of the Consumer Product Safety Commission,' he said.

The commissioner added that he hoped homeowners, despite the potential cost, would not lose sight of the possible hazard in aluminum wiring. He said any homeowner who had indications of overheating of electrical circuits should call fire officials or an electrician.

The homes in question were wired between 1965 and 1973, when there was a shortage of copper, the traditional material used in electrical wiring. It was later found the wiring could overheat, and in 1973 new technology was found to lessen the hazard.

In 1975, the CPSC found the wiring systems in the 1965-73 homes to be hazardous, but a group of aluminum companies appealed the decision. In January, a federal judge ruled the wiring was not a consumer product under the agency's jurisdiction.

Mother Fights To Regain Son

By THERESA HUMPHREY
Associated Press Writer
WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — Brenda D. Smith, a disabled, unemployed high school dropout, has lost custody of her 4-year-old son. He now lives with a woman who baby-sat for him while his mother convalesced from an auto accident.

The ruling which placed Daryl Anthony Smith in the care of Dorothy Marx, did not cite abuse or neglect, but said the boy was raised by Mrs. Marx to the point where he no longer was Mrs. Smith's son. Now Mrs. Smith wants him back.

"It's the most unjust thing I have ever heard of. They stole my baby. Nobody's baby is safe if they get away with this," said Mrs. Smith of New Castle.

The ruling could have "tremendous ramifications" for poor people in similar situations, said her attorney, Carolyn R. Schlecker.

Mrs. Smith, 24, said Family Court Judge John T. Gallagher took Daryl because Mrs. Marx could provide more for the child. Another son, 8-year-old Phillip, remains in Mrs. Smith's care.

In his ruling on Feb. 22, Gallagher named Mrs. Marx, 45, and her husband James, a 47-year-old construction worker, as guardians for Daryl.

The Marxes, Mrs. Smith, and Mrs. Smith's estranged husband, Gary, all had filed petitions for custody of the child. Gallagher said neither parent had the "parenting capability and skills that would indicate that Daryl should be returned" to them, and that both failed to "plan adequately for Daryl's physical, mental and emotional needs, health and development."

Mrs. Marx was sent by a private baby-sitting agency in March 1978 to help care for Daryl — then 2 weeks old — while Mrs. Smith was recuperating from an auto accident.

"I had a statement from my neurosurgeon that I could not lift my son," Mrs. Smith said. "I still have a permanent injury. I'm not supposed to lift over 12 pounds. I have muscle and nerve damage on my left side."

Mrs. Marx said she stayed on as a daytime sitter until October 1978, but left because she could not wait until Mrs. Smith's insurance settlement came through with payment for her work.

Mrs. Marx, who has four children of her own, said she began work as a homemaker — taking care of the elderly and handicapped in their homes — and took Daryl on jobs with her.

She contends that when she left Mrs. Smith's home on a full-time basis, Mrs. Smith continued to ask her to care for Daryl.

"She called me and asked me to take care of Daryl. I had even told her I would take care of him on weekends, but that didn't work. When I would come home from work (during the week), she would call in the evenings and ask me to come and get him," Mrs. Marx said.

In 1980, she said, Daryl spent 290 days with her family.

She contends, and Gallagher's ruling concurred, that the Marxes took care of Daryl's medical needs, as well as providing him with clothing. She also said she paid many of Mrs. Smith's bills.

Mrs. Smith contends she could provide the minimum care Daryl needed and the state Division of Social Services agreed.

She lives in her mother's four-bedroom house, with her other son, a grandmother and her 17-year-old sister.

During the four-day custody hearing in December, the state had recommended Daryl be placed in his mother's care. The state agreed there were some problems and has Mrs. Smith enrolled in parent education classes. DSS officials have also said they do not think Mrs. Smith's situation is serious enough to remove Phillip from the home or allow him to remain in the home.

Mrs. Smith is also working toward her high school diploma and is looking for a job.

She contends Mrs. Marx "begged" to keep Daryl and would buy him things that she could not provide, but really did not need.

"It was pushed on us. She took him (Daryl) places and gave him things that I couldn't afford," Mrs. Smith said. "She was trying to manufacture evidence against me and was supposed to be my friend."

The Marxes filed for and won emergency, temporary custody of Daryl in January 1981.

The state took legal custody of Daryl in September 1981, but allowed him to remain with the Marxes, pending the December custody hearing.

Ms. Schlecker, family law unit supervisor for Community Legal Aid Society Inc., filed an appeal March 24 in Superior Court on Mrs. Smith's behalf to regain custody of Daryl.

She said she sees some hope in light of a recent U.S. Supreme Court decision on the constitutional rights of parents.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

After 12 years I've finally done it.

My living room carpet is one large continuous wall-to-wall stain.

I have only experienced this euphoria on one or two occasions. Once when I succeeded in picking nail polish off the last nail minutes before I got married. Another time was in 1974, when I called everyone to come to dinner and they did — at the same time.

They tell me the odds of having a room of this size go total stain is about one in every 15 billion homes.

I knew it would happen. To begin with, the carpet is white. There are things that go with a white carpet that the salesman never tells you about.

1. With a white carpet, you must remain childless for the rest of your life. This includes children who visit or peek in the windows.

2. You must never use the room. If you go beyond the ropes, you must be prepared to take the risk and pay the price.

3. Putting furniture in it is just asking for it. White carpet cannot be expected to remain white in a room full of furniture legs.

4. If a dog comes within 500 feet of the white carpet, urine stains will materialize out of thin air and stay forever.

There are other characteristics of a white carpet. It has a pebble-in-the-water characteristic. A small piece of cheese from a canape will hit the carpet and within minutes spread to a diameter of three feet. A chewing-gum wrapper thrown carelessly on it will produce a brown spot that no amount of scrubbing can remove.

In retrospect, getting stains

Stamp Act

The British Parliament put the Stamp Act into effect in the 13 American colonies in 1765. The measure, passed without consulting the colonists, taxed all legal documents and contracts to raise money for the war effort against the French. James Otis, an American orator, coined the phrase "taxation without representation is tyranny," and the stage was set for the American Revolution.

in the traffic areas of the room was a piece of cake. (Excuse the expression.) All someone had to do was walk through and the rug would part to receive a tomato caught in the sole, a newspaper with ink that rubbed off, chunks of mud that fell from the cuff of a jean and dirt from fingernails.

It's getting them under furniture without moving it that really takes skill.

But then I once had a footprint on the ceiling of the shower. Sometimes, I don't know how I do it!

Dear Abby

Old Habits Die Hard

© 1982 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Please help me start a crusade against people introducing friends as old friends. Why can't they say, "Good friends whom I have known for a long time"? I am 75 and resent being called "old."
FRANK R. LAMB, RICHMOND, VA.

DEAR FRANK: I'll try, but I'm not optimistic. Old habits die hard. Curious that old wine is better. So are old violins. And the older the antique, the more valuable.

In other cultures (the Oriental), age is respected and revered. Only in our culture is there a premium on youth, where everyone wants to live a long time but nobody wants to be "old."

DEAR ABBY: I have a comment that was prompted by your reply to "Damned in Dallas," whose 18-year-old daughter had a life-threatening automobile accident while under the influence of drugs.

You told this man to tell his daughter that the Lord spared her because he (the Lord) wanted her to live.

So you are assuming that the Lord made the decision to spare her life. There is nothing unusual about this. It is very common for people to thank God for the good things, like recovering from a serious operation or a life-threatening accident. Anything good is supposed to come from God.

And who should we blame for having put the girl in a position to lose her life in the accident? Why did the Lord not intervene then? Why don't we say, "The Lord is uncaring about his people"? Couldn't he have prevented the accident?

When the hostages came out of Iran, the consensus was that the Lord had rescued them from their captors. My question at that time was, "And who refused to help them when the Iranians were trying to take over the American Embassy in Tehran?"

If we are going to thank the Lord for the good things, should not we also blame him (or her) for the bad times as well?

WONDERING IN DEL MAR

DEAR WONDERING: Your question brings up an ancient unresolved theological question that would take far more wisdom and knowledge than I possess to answer.

DEAR ABBY: Apropos people who smoke when it annoys others: Recently I was standing in line at a movie when the man ahead of me took out a foot-long cigar. I politely tapped him on the shoulder and said, "Sir, please don't light that cigar. I am very allergic to cigar smoke." (That is the truth.) He turned around and in a very nasty tone said, "I am getting tired of people telling me not to smoke. I don't see any sign forbidding smoking posted here, which means I have a right to smoke!"

I replied, "Sir, you do have the right, but I must warn you that cigar smoke makes me sick to my stomach and this is a very tight line."

Then the young man standing behind me in the line said loudly, "Mom, did you enjoy the spaghetti and meatballs for dinner?" (I did not even know him!)

The man put his cigar away. It was funny!

District Meet Set For May 1

The District Three meeting of American Legion Auxiliary will be held here May 1 at the American Legion Post No. 39, Pasico Norfleet Unit No. 160 will be the host chapter.

The announcement was made at the business meeting of Unit No. 39 Auxiliary meeting held Thursday.

The group made donations to the Department President's Project, Children's Heart Fund and Headquarters Office Fund.

The Girl's State Committee announced Margaret W. Cherry, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. W.C. Cherry III, and Elizabeth D. Kittrell, daughter of Mrs. Mary A. Mayo, would represent Unit No. 39 at Girls State at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro in June. Both are rising seniors at J.H. Rose High School.

The department convention will be held June 17-21 at the Bordeaux Motor Inn, Fayetteville.

Prevention Of Shoplifting Is Topic

The prevention of shoplifting was the program topic given by Carol Love at the meeting of the Greenville Service League.

Mrs. Edward Smith introduced the speaker. President Mrs. Robert VanVeld conducted the meeting which included committee reports. Mrs. Frank Steinbeck Jr., Bloodmobile chairman, said workers collected 129 units March 9 at D.H. Conley. The next visit will be May 12 at Burroughs Wellcome.

Gift Shop Chairman Mrs. William McConnell reminded hospital volunteers of Easter holidays April 12-14. Two requests were handled through Emergency Charity and two from the Laughinghouse Fund. Two layettes were furnished and two calls answered from the Lending Chest.

Mrs. Wayne Kendrick, finance, thanked members who helped with the Charity Ball. Mrs. Charles Stevens, sustaining representative, announced a coffee will be held for members April 21. Advisory Board member Mrs. Lyman Ormond read a tribute in memory of the late Mrs. K.B. Pace. Other members of the advisory board present for the tribute were Mrs. J.B. Cummings, Mrs. Walter L. Harrington and Mrs. J. Knott Proctor.

Mewborn Reunion Set

JASON — The annual Mewborn family reunion will be held April 18 at Mewborn's Primitive Baptist Church near here in Greene County.

Lunch will be served at 1 p.m. followed by a two o'clock business session. The speaker will be Isabelle M. Fletcher of Kinston. A native of the Kinston area, Mrs. Fletcher is the widow of the late Paul Fletcher and the mother of three sons. She is serving as a Lenoir County Commissioner.

The reunion will be in honor of Hardy Mewborn. Mrs. Fletcher is the great great granddaughter of Hardy Mewborn. Descendants and friends are invited and asked to bring relics of the past for display purposes and a picnic lunch.

Discipline Tightening?

North Carolina has become a true two-party state in recent years. The election of two Republican senators and several GOP congressmen tells us that.

In the long run, it will probably prove good for efficient government in North Carolina. Neither party can take for granted that it will be dominant. Party leaders will have to keep their ears to the ground and scrap for the loyalty of the voters.

It will also mean tougher party discipline, however. It will be more difficult to be active in party politics while supporting a candidate of the opposing party.

Some believe Gov. Hunt may have been making that point at a Democratic Women's reception held for him here recently. "This is the year to go out and make sure the people know they made a mistake" when they elected Republican John East to the U.S. Senate, he told the Democrats.

Some present expressed surprise that the governor signaled out East in the senator's hometown. But Gov. Hunt may have been getting a message across to the party faithful, as those there were supposed to be, that loyalty to the party was to come first.

Democratic leaders are concerned that even some strong party workers have been straying from the ticket in recent years. We can expect to see some tightening of discipline in the months ahead ... and we can expect similar activity from the Republican party.

Checking Should Be Routine

We are happy for the Social Security clerk who won a $5,000 award for suggesting that Medicare rolls be checked to determine if benefit checks were being sent to dead people. They were and some $30 million is expected to be recovered from illegal recipients.

The question arises, however, as to why in the world hadn't such a check been made all along? Perhaps it is due to the antiquated computer equipment the Social Security Administration reportedly is using. With up-to-date equipment such a check almost surely could be routinely made.

Revamping the equipment used by Social Security could pay back far more than the cost.

Art Has Clunkers

By PAUL T. O'CONNOR

Great artwork isn't always what it appears to be. Just ask the directors of New York's Metropolitan Museum of Art. The news program "60 Minutes" reported last month that the prestigious museum may have a very famous clunker in its collection: a painting thought to have been done by the French artist deLatour when purchased for $650,000 about 20 years ago but which many experts now think is a fraud.

That television program only came three days after the trustees of the N.C. Museum of Art were told that a picture they had bought for $52,000 in 1975 probably was not painted by the Italian artist Pannini as they had thought.

The state's painting is not fraud, however. Museum Director Edgar Peters Bowron thinks Pannini had some part in the picture, painting either part of it or working with a young artist in the tutorial fashion. And an auction house has agreed to pay the state a minimum of $45,000 for the painting, and probably more, when it is auctioned off this spring.

The Pannini painting does raise a question, however. Is the $50 million state art collection really as good as we think? Or, is it filled with clunkers?

Bowron says he's sure there are other paintings in the collection which like the Pannini will be found to have been done by an artist other than the one the museum thought it had. These paintings aren't frauds, he says. Rather, they are just misattributed. They may have been done by another artist or students of the artist thought to have painted it.

They are still valuable, he said. More prevalent than such disappointments, he says, will be some paintings that turn out to be real discoveries. There are paintings which have been stored away in North Carolina's art vault for years which, when brought out and re-examined as Bowron's staff is doing now, will prove to be treasures far greater than has ever been thought.

PAUL O'CONNOR

The reason I'm so excited is that there are pieces there that are so exciting but, because we have not had room to display them, have not seen the light of day in years," Bowron says. The museum will open its new facility about a year from now and it is thought that at that time a much greater portion of the state's collection can be displayed.

In one sense, Bowron and his staff know what they have in the vault. Everything the state owns is dutifully catalogued. In another sense, they don't know what they have. Many of those paintings are in desperate need of cleaning and restoration. Once they are fixed up, Bowron says, it is entirely possible that they'll be found to be far more important than originally thought.

Some pieces were bought many years ago and have not been taken out of storage in an equally long time. Trends in the art world change. An artist who was considered good 40 years ago may be considered great now. Bowron suspects that several pieces in the collection fit that category. Other paintings by great artists will be found to be of better quality than originally thought. When the museum staff gets to work on these paintings,

Other Editors Say The Cherry Caper

(Shelby Daily Star)

Motherhood, the flag — and cherry pie? Doesn't have quite the right ring to it, does it? Apples and apple pie have come to enjoy an all-American image over the years. But that reputation is undeserved, complain the nation's cherry growers. They want Congress to designate their product as nothing less than — are you ready for this? — the National Fruit.

"Why not?" asks Asoka Dutt, head of CBC International, a New York public relations firm that is organizing the campaign. "It's a wonderful idea. We've had flags, we've got a bird, but there's no fruit."

Some might argue that there are enough fruits in government as it is. But the cherry industry is taking this thing seriously. Two trade organizations, the National Cherry Growers Industry Foundation and the Maraschino Cherry and Glace Fruit Processors Association, are lobbying their congressmen. Growers are said to be inundating the capital with gift packs of fresh and canned you-know-whats.

Supporters point out that cherries are grown from coast to coast. They are associated with Washington's annual Cherry Blossom Festival. And don't forget what it was that honest young George Washington supposedly chopped down. Some of the cherry's more radical exponents even make extravagant claims about its curative powers.

We have nothing against cherries, except that they are so tedious to pick. We are sure that cherries are as patriotic and loyal as the next fruit. But, as residents of an apple-growing area, we hope Congress will bear in mind that apples remain the most popular fruit in America. Cherries ranked no higher than sixth or seventh in a recent survey.

Thus, to elevate the disgruntled cherry to a position of national leadership would be anything but democratic. In fact, it would amount to a coup. The whole idea is, well, the pits.

WHAT IS SOUL?

One of the readers of this column has written asking whether or not soul is "feeling", and whether a person who has no feeling is therefore bereft of soul.

Soul is vastly more than feeling. The Bible speaks of the soul. Jesus believed in it, and his own resurrection from the dead has proved its reality for believing Christians.

Just what the soul is, no one can say, for it is spiritual and immaterial and therefore cannot be com-prehended by the five senses. But perhaps it is not too far from the truth to say that it is a part of God existing in each one of us. If we acknowledge and cherish it, then our lives are lived in glorious fellowship with our Maker. If we ignore it, then our lives are lived in lonely isolation.

Jesus properly estimated the value of the soul when he said, "What shall it profit a man if he gain the world and lose his own soul?" — Elisha Douglass

ANYBODY WORKING ON A CURE?

MORRIS

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP)

Hats off to the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences. Oscar has got his act together again.

Maybe movies aren't as good as they used to be, but the stars sure are.

Imagine Katharine Hepburn, Henry Fonda, Sir John Gielgud, Maureen Stapleton and Barbara Stanwyck all winning Academy Awards on the same night. I was watching TV at a friend's home in lovely Charleston, S.C., when the awards were dished out, and I jumped up and cheered, something I hadn't done since the U.S. hockey team beat the pads off the Russians at the Lake Placid Olympics. The neighbors thought Fort Sumter had been fired on again.

Here it seemed was a victory for the Hollywood of my youth, when Henry Fonda was Young Abe Lincoln and Jesse James's brother Frank, and Katie Hepburn was Jo in "Little Women," and Barbara Stanwyck was Annie Oakley, getting her man with a gun. No, they don't make movies like that any more, but thank heavens some of the same stars still glitter up there in Hollywood's firmament.

The average age of this year's five leading Oscar recipients is just four months shy of 72, a statistic that stacks up as a trifle ungracious to Miss Stapleton, who is just rising 57.

Henry Fonda, after more than half-a-century of brilliant film work, finally won his first real Oscar for "On Golden Pond," after receiving a special one last year for nostalgia's sake. Why he never won for "The Grapes of Wrath" or "Mister Roberts" only contribute to capricious Oscar's history.

So Barbara Stanwyck, the former Ruby Stevens of Brooklyn, N.Y., shouldn't feel so bad about taking home a special award. Next year she'll probably take home the real Oscar too.

In recognizing the industry's real talent, the academy moves at the glacial pace of gum under a movie seat.

This year, it gave an Oscar to Sir John Gielgud, probably the finest actor ever to receive one in the 54-year history of the awards. I say this in full knowledge of the fact that his fellow British knights, Sir Alec Guinness and Sir Laurence Olivier, have been honored previously by the Academy.

Sir John is in a class by himself on the boards. The irony is that after a lifetime of superb Shakespearean triumphs live and on film, he won his first Oscar at 78 for a supporting comedy role as a vale, a gentleman's gentleman in "Arthur," the sort of part one might associate with the late Arthur Treacher, whose name now adorns fish and chips shops.

Now Gielgud is stealing the show in our living rooms as Charles Ryder's aloof, eccentric father in "Brideshead Revisited," the TV series based on the Evelyn Waugh novel that has just restored some needed distinction to public television.

Kenneth Tynan, the eminent critic, once called Gielgud "the finest actor in the world, from the neck up." This was not a put down but a salute to his marvellously musical voice, which even now he plays like a virtuoso. Gielgud, who made his debut at the Old Vic at the age of 16, was the first actor to play Shakespeare as if the lines had been written by a poet. "Speak the speech, I pray you" — no one ever spoke it better.

His "Hamlet," which he brought to New York in 1936 had the longest run in the history of the American theater. His production of "Romeo and Juliet" set a London box-office record, and the theater has not seen its like since. Or even before. Gielgud directed and at successive performances alternated the roles of Romeo and Mercutio with Laurence Olivier. What bliss it must have been to be alive and in London then.

This year even the TV awards show was better, a bit more fast-paced but still too long. The time has come for the academy to cease wearing thin the home audience's patience with pass-

Beyond That Nuke Freeze

By MAXWELL GLEN and CODY SHEARER
WASHINGTON — Before the ghost of Gen. George S. Patton jumps the nuclear-freeze bandwagon, Sen. John Glenn has perhaps the most important suggestion in store for the upcoming debate: Let's include the global spread of nuclear weapons capability in any freeze discussions.

Although his aides are still developing a "Glenn initiative," the Ohio Democrat will soon ask his colleagues to include "horizontal" nuclear proliferation in Senate Foreign Relations Committee "freeze" hearings later this month. Glenn believes that otherwise Congress may only be fooling around.

To be sure, some of Glenn's freeze-fevered colleagues may resist such a suggestion. Better to focus grass-roots concern, they'll advise, on the U.S.-Soviet arms buildup and horrors of superpower confrontation.

As Sen. Mark Hatfield (R-Ore.), a leading nuclear-freezer, told us: "Obviously, the superpowers can't exercise any leadership in the field of non-proliferation if they continue to build up their arsenals without restraint."

At the same time, however, freeze-reductions Hatfield-Kennedy style and false freeze proposals a la Reagan might be mistargeted. They ignore the increasing likelihood that some Third World general or unwitting terrorist faction — neither Russian nor American — will fire the next nuclear salvo. To dismiss non-proliferation as a longer-term problem is hedging on simplemindedness.

We tend to forget, as Glenn points out, that the world's 250-odd civilian atomic power plants produce enough plutonium by-products for 4,000 to 8,000 nuclear bombs per year. Ironically, the Russians and Yanks have always maintained the position that spent fuel must be kept "out of the reach of children."

Yet ever since a skeptical Israel bombed Iraq's French-built Osirek "research" reactor last June, doubts about international atomic safeguards and the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) have been widespread, if not somewhat well-founded. Critics rightly point out that the United Nations affiliate in Vienna is understaffed, underfinanced and too caught up in the promotional end of nuclear power.

As a result, notes Paul Leventhal, president of a non-proliferation lobbying group here called the Nuclear Club Inc., "The safeguards system is fighting a losing battle against the spread of nuclear weapons."

Despite last Tuesday's (March 30) Senate vote barring the use of spent reactor fuel in weapons production, the Reagan administration's intentions to do so have only been a blow to the suspect IAEA. The U.S. has appeared cavalier in its traditional distinction between civilian and military nucleonics, sending a signal to lesser powers that it's okay to follow suit. Inevitably, the world is at the mercy of good faith, because as former nuclear regulator Peter Bradford concedes, "Plutonium can't be safeguarded."

It's unclear, of course, how much plutonium has already been diverted by some mischievous nation to weapons manufacturing. Nor do we know the exact membership of the nuclear club. When nuclear non-proliferation was causing ulcers in the late 1960s, experts feared that there'd be at least 15 members by the mid-1980s; only six, however, have exploded devices to date (seven, if one counts Israel, a nonsignatory to the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty).

But as Leventhal, a former Senate nuclear expert, points out, "We're at the point of no return ... If the nuclear industry gets its way and is permitted to proceed with the production of plutonium fuel ... it's really just a matter of time before that fuel is diverted or stolen and used for violent ends."

For this reason, the nuclear-freezers who have so quickly caught hold of Congress and the White House might want to add non-proliferation to their menu. They needn't rely on John Glenn for the right recipe. Lincoln Bloomfield, a professor at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and a former national security official, believes a nuclear freeze on the production of fissionable material — specifically plutonium and enriched uranium — could be arranged.

Nuclear-freezers may say that the constituency is small for the complicated and frightening non-proliferation issue. Moreover, with the Canadians, French and Germans competing with domestic manufacturers for the limited world market in atomic power, American officials may never have the clout needed to clean up international nuclear trade.

Nevertheless, by sticking to its bilateral focus, the freeze campaign both in and out of Congress risks co-optation, as well as appearing dangerously one-dimensional and isolationist. It may take more explanation to organize public opinion on horizontal proliferation, but freezers have nothing to lose by expanding concern from the threats of today to the threats of tomorrow.

Cheaper: Relatively Speaking

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — If somebody told you, relatively speaking, that the price of a new automobile has dropped 60 percent since 1957 you might suspect the person of being in the employ of General Motors.

Roger Kormendi, who makes that statement, works for the University of Chicago. An associate professor of business economics, he confirms that, yes, the relative price of a car is down 60 percent.

He does have a qualification: What is called a car today differs from the car of 1957. It may be smaller, for example, but it also might be more efficient and more complex. Whatever, it isn't precisely the same.

But clothing, for practical purposes and with fashions excluded, is quite similar today to the clothing of 1957, and clothing prices also have fallen, by 58 percent, relatively speaking.

A key word, as you might have spotted, is "relative." And it is indeed a fact that relative to disposable personal income you spend far less on an automobile today than you did 2½ decades ago.

It doesn't stop with cars or clothing. Rent is down 50 percent, food 38 percent, medical bills 13 percent, and the average item in the consumer basket of goods and services 34 percent.

The increases are obvious: Fuel oil is up 50 percent, and gasoline 20 percent, based on December 1981 prices. But, Kormendi observes, price decreases since then may have made gasoline as good a buy as in 1957.

All this is well known to economists. "This is the way economists are trained to think," said Kormendi. "Relative or real prices have been around since Adam Smith," the 18th century classical economist.

For the benefit of new students, Kormendi likes to pick some of the outstanding examples of dollar price increases, trace them over a period of years, and compare them to increases in disposable income.

What he finds is often at odds with popular conceptions. Almost everyone is convinced that medical costs have risen outrageously, for example. But in terms of buying power, medical costs actually fell.

One explanation for the popular view of soaring health costs is that they fell far more slowly than the average of consumer prices — 13 percent versus 34 — and now take a greater share of takehome pay.

A different set of circumstances accounts for impressions about gasoline prices. During 1957-1967 prices fell relatively, and people became accustomed to more miles for the dollar. But from 1967 to 1982 prices rose by about 90 percent, far faster than prices generally.

A good deal of frustration, however, arises merely from frustrated expectations. Americans expect to buy more goods each year for their dollars, and for years those expectations were fulfilled.

Since 1974, however, buying power hasn't really risen.

Most of the 34 percent rise in the consumer basket of goods occurred between 1957 and 1974. Today, therefore, there might be more dollars in the paycheck than in 1974, but there are also bigger dollar signs on most prices.

If people kept their eye on the longer perspective they might not be frustrated by inflation. They might, instead, be better able to equate higher prices with bigger paychecks. But that isn't the way most people react. "They confuse dollar prices with real prices," said Kormendi.

It isn't all their fault either, he adds. To some extent he blames the media. During inflation, dollar prices will always be reaching new highs, he points out, suggesting that nothing is unusual about this.

What is news, he says, is when certain items rise faster than prices generally. Such items would be exceptions; they would be acting in an unusual way, and therein, suggests Kormendi, may lie a story.

When Bowron came here last year, the state museum directors promised him an expanded staff. The legislature gave him some of that staff last session. As these people are hired, they're finding that state has some pretty nice paintings in the attic.

It appears that paying a curator to tell you the value of what you've got is a lot less expensive, and risky, than buying a lot of paintings on the world market.

Suspect Truck Hit 2 Horses

BURLINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Three people were killed Wednesday night when a tractor-trailer truck crashed and burned off of N.C. 62 near the Alamance-Caswell county line, the state Highway Patrol said.

A patrol spokesman said the truck may have hit two horses. Troopers said they were having a hard time identifying the victims, because the bodies were burned beyond recognition. Troopers said the tractor-trailer apparently had been leased.

(Continued from Page 4) ing out Oscars for special effects, editing, art direction, sound, makeup, cinematography and other technical tinkering that we know nought about and care less. Couldn't these be given out in a garage someplace? Who cares whose brother-in-law held the key grip or clapped that clapboard together?

What saved the show, besides Johnny Carson's deft quips, was that terrific song and dance routine by Debbie Allen and Gregory Hines paying homage to song writer Harry Warren, who wrote such hits as "Chattanooga Choo-Choo," "Lullaby of Broadway," "42nd Street," "Atcheson, Topeka & Santa Fe," "You'll Never Know." And to think it took four song writers, including Burt Bacharach, to carry off the Oscar for this year's eminently forgettable winning song, something called "Arthur's Theme."

The acceptance speeches were no less boring or self-serving than usual, except for the Hungarian comedy team that stepped up to receive the Oscar for the best foreign film. Among the presenters, Bette Midler stood out. She looked as if she had been stuffed into her strapless gown by a supermarket checkout clerk and came across as gross and obnoxious as she intended. If that's entertainment, bring back bearbaiting and Dagmar. But her Don Rickles in drag bit did serve to underline the real class of Barbara Stanwyck.

When it comes to class, however, the entire academy could take a lesson in sincerity and humility from John Thompson, the basketball coach of Georgetown. His unrehearsed TV remarks after losing to North Carolina in the NCAA finals were more graceful and poignant than anything said at the Oscar ceremony. Even Gielgud couldn't have said it better.

Three Border Raids Against Nicaragua Said Driven Back

By JUAN MALTES
Associated Press Writer

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Nicaraguan exiles made simultaneous raids from Honduras and Costa Rica on three Nicaraguan border posts, killing a Nicaraguan soldier and wounding two others, the Defense Ministry reported.

Nicaraguan forces repelled the predawn attacks Wednesday at Las Pampas and Zacateras on the Honduran border and the Penas Blancas customs house on the frontier with Costa Rica, the Defense Ministry said. No rebel casualties were reported.

More than 20 people, including civilians, have been killed in at least 60 border clashes between Honduras and Nicaragua since the leftist Sandinist National Liberation Front seized power here in July 1979 from dictator Anastasio Somoza. The attack at Penas Blancas was the first cross-border raid reported from Costa Rica.

Costa Rican officials confirmed the account of that fight, but the Honduran government did not comment on the other two clashes. Honduras borders Nicaragua on the north; Costa Rica lies to the south.

The Sandinist junta has accused Honduras of permitting Nicaraguan exiles to conduct cross-border raids against military targets. An estimated 18,000 Nicaraguans have settled in Honduras since the leftists took power.

The Nicaraguan government has declared a state of emergency and started mobilizing for what it says is an imminent invasion by the United States or a U.S.-backed force. The Reagan administration says Nicaragua's arms build up is more than is necessary for defense.

The Foreign Ministry said Honduran border patrols were involved in the Las Pampas and Zacateras clashes, but a subsequent Defense Ministry statement mentioned only "counter-revolutionary bands."

One border guard was killed and another was wounded in a two-hour battle at Zacateras, the Defense Ministry reported. A guard was wounded in an attack by more than 100 rebels at Las Pampas, it said.

No casualties were reported in the 10-minute clash at Penas Blancas, which a Foreign Ministry source said involved 15 rebels and 19 Nicaraguan soldiers.

The deputy director of Costa Rica's civil guard, Marino Donato, said the attack started at 5:15 a.m. — within 15 minutes of the two Honduran border raids. He said the attackers, armed with "light weapons," were repelled.

The Nicaraguan ambassador in Costa Rica, Roberto Ocampo Leal, identified the rebels as members of the September 15 Legion. The Defense Ministry said they were from the Nicaraguan Democratic Front. Both are anti-government exile groups.

The civil guard has been ordered to reinforce patrols near the Penas Blancas crossing and remain alert against possible incursions of Costa Rican territory, Donato said.

Nicaragua's Foreign Ministry declined comment on reports by Costa Rican radio stations that a Nicaraguan military patrol crossed the border at Penas Blancas in pursuit of 19 deserting soldiers who sought refuge in Costa Rica.

Roberson Will Address Meet

WASHINGTON, N.C. — State Transportation Secretary William R. Roberson Jr. will be the keynote speaker at the 14th annual meeting of the Mid-East Commission here April 29.

The 6:30 p.m. social hour, dinner and program will be held at Brentwood Lodge.

Commission board officers for the coming year, including chairman Mary Andrews of Robersonville, first vice chairman Winston Sessoms of Windsor, second vice chairman L. M. "Mutt" Brinkley of Hertford County, secretary Louis Clark of Greenville and treasurer

Grace Bonner of Aurora, will be installed.

The Mid-East Commission serves the counties of Pitt, Beaufort, Bertie, Hertford and Martin in planning and development activities.

Borrowing 'Necessary' For Farmer's Survival

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A North Carolina farmer says borrowing money is necessary for economic survival, and up to 85 percent of them have combined to create debts between $3 billion and $4 billion.

"I doubt that you could find a half dozen farmers who don't have to borrow money," said David Parnell of Kenly. "The trick is to know how much you can afford to borrow."

Parnell, a Johnston County tobacco and grain farmer, said borrowed operating money is essential for him to manage his nearly $250,000 investment.

Parnell, who has won the Outstanding Young Tobacco Grower Award in a program sponsored by Philip Morris USA, and his wife, Connie, have cut labor costs by doing nearly all the work themselves, and the have gained substantial savings by reducing the use of fertilizer, especially nitrogen on tobacco.

That strategy has been promoted by the state Agricultural Extension Service as a means of cutting production costs and improving tobacco quality because growers traditionally use too much nitrogen.

Parnell's indebtedness will have to be repaid largely from the earnings of about 28 acres of flue-cured tobacco. The profit outlook for his grain and soybeans is not very bright.

The cost of leasing tobacco marketing quotas and land is a major expense for many North Carolina farmers. Parnell must lease all but 2,000 pounds of the 64,000 pounds of tobacco quota he will sell this year, and rents all but 10 acres of the land he is farming. The total leasing and rental cost comes to about $42,000.

He says his costs include another $40,000 for fertilizer, herbicides, fuel, labor and other production items required to produce tobacco plus corn, soybeans and wheat.

Kenneth Bateman, county agricultural extension agent, said Parnell's $220,000 investment is "in line with his operation."

"I would guess that their investment is below the average for similar operations," he said.

Parnell has paid interest rates as high as 20 percent in recent years, mostly on short-term loans. This year he was able to secure production money in the 14 to 15 percent range.

"We try to minimize this cost by keeping the time we are using these borrowed funds just as short as possible," Parnell said. "And, of course, by borrowing just as little as possible."

The declarer sees all of his side's assets. What makes defense so difficult is that each defender sees only half his side's assets and half of declarer's, and he must construct his partner's holding from clues in the bidding and early play.

West's overall posed a problem for North. His hand was a whit too weak for a bid of three diamonds, which would commit his side to game, but too strong for a raise to two spades. North decided that the diamond bid was the least of evils, and a normal four spade contract resulted.

West led the king of hearts, and East started an echo by playing the nine. Defensive prospects did not appear to be bright. There were two heart tricks to be taken, and West had to hope that his partner had one sure defensive trick. The best chance for the setting trick appeared to be a trump promotion. If East held as little as the eight of trumps, a ruff of the third heart would set up West's jack of trumps, since declarer would be forced to overruff with a trump honor.

So West continued with the queen of hearts and a low heart, to force East to ruff. Since the king and queen of hearts both won, it was obvious that West had to have the ace, so this line of defense was clearly an attempt at a trump promotion.

East put on his thinking cap. If West was striving to promote a trump, he had to hold either Q-x or J-x in trumps — there was no other holding where a trump would promote.

East's solution was simple and decisive — he "squandered" his ace of trumps by ruffing the third heart. This had the same effect as a trump uppercut. When declarer gained the lead he could cash his two high trumps, but since the jack of spades did not fall, he had to go down one.

Some 'Deserting' Social Security Plan

By CHRISTOPHER CONNELL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Social Security system, already in financial straits, is having to cope with a growing trend toward desertion by the only employers not legally bound to the plan — state and local governments and non-profit organizations.

Health and Human Services Secretary Richard S. Schweiker said Wednesday that many non-profit hospitals "are being swayed by...private insurance organizations that promise protections similar to Social Security but at less cost."

"Making hasty and sometimes uninformed decisions is a disservice to employees and a disservice to the American public in that it undermines the public's confidence in this nation's Social Security system," Schweiker said in a letter to hospital union leader John J. Sweeney.

Sweeney, president of the Service Employees International Union, complained March 18 that an "epidemic" of non-profit hospitals were seeking to abandon the system, often without informing their workers.

For more than 100 million American workers and employers, there is no avenue of escape from Social Security. The payroll tax to provide old age, survivors, disability and Medicare insurance is compulsory.

Social Security does not cover federal workers, and coverage is optional for the estimated 12.7 million state and local government workers and the 4.7 million employees of non-profit organizations.

However, more than 80 percent of the state, local and non-profit employers are in the system, according to Social Security. These entities must give a two-year notice if they plan to withdraw, and once they exercise that option they cannot get back into the program.

Social Security's main trust fund for old age and survivors benefits is in danger of running out by the end of this year. Its trustees warned last week that the system may face troubles as early as 1983 or 1984, even if the old age fund is allowed to borrow from the healthier disability and Medicare funds.

Although the withdrawals by local governments and non-profit groups are not viewed as a major factor in Social Security's financial problems, they could aggravate them if the withdrawals increased.

State and local governments and non-profit organizations provided $18 billion of the $135 billion Social Security collected for its cash and disability benefits in fiscal 1981.

Any short-term adverse impact on Social Security's revenues by withdrawals would be tempered in future years because the agency would not have to pay out as many benefits.

Until 1977, Social Security always had more workers joining the system than deserting it. But since 1977, state and local governments with 122,000 workers have quit Social Security while only 75,000 have signed on.

Among the dropouts was Alaska with its 14,500 state employees. That happened in 1979.

Among the major counties with withdrawal notices pending are Los Angeles County, with 52,284 employees, San Diego, with nearly 12,000, and Fresno, Calif., with 7,900. On the other hand, Dallas County, Texas, recently pulled back its notice to withdraw.

Social Security's trustees said in their latest annual report, "In late 1980 a sharp upward trend began in the number of non-profit employers, especially hospitals, filing advance notices of termination."

Some 271 non-profit hospitals — 7 percent of the nation's 4,000 non-profit hospitals — have filed withdrawal notices. They employ 192,000 workers and if they carried out their threats to terminate coverage, Social Security estimates it would lose $334 million in payroll taxes in the first year.

Some 272 other religious, charitable or educational institutions also have withdrawal notices pending.

Rep. J.J. Pickle, D-Texas, chairman of the House Ways and Means subcommittee on Social Security, has a bill pending that would bar any withdrawals not filed before March 25, 1981. Pickle contends that while withdrawing may save the employers money, it usually hurts their workers.

Schweiker told Sweeney, "We believe Social Security cannot be completely replaced. There are private plans that can provide workers protection at a lower cost. But few can effectively provide benefits that increase as inflation goes up."

"Few can duplicate Social Security's medical insurance for the long-term disabled under 65 or the portability of Social Security retirement, disability and survivor coverage when employees change jobs."

Schweiker predicted many of the hospitals will stay in the system.

The agency said 32 hospitals in Wisconsin have filed termination notices, 28 in California, 17 in Michigan, 16 in both Illinois and Pennsylvania, 13 in Indiana and 10 in both Missouri and Iowa. Other state figures were not available.

Martin Bd. Delays Action On $104,000

WILLIAMSTON — Martin County Commissioners have delayed action on a $104,000 bill presented by hospital officials for payment of retirement benefits of the staff at Martin General Hospital.

The bill for the retirement benefits, handled through the Life of Virginia Company, has not been paid, according to officials, due to a lack of funds.

Though stopping short of making an outright order for a feasibility study of the hospital, commissioners at their April meeting urged that such a study be undertaken. The county commission recently has come to the financial aid of the hospital with stop-gap allocations.

The board agreed to take into consideration a request from the chamber of commerce for county support to the organization. The chamber is seeking $5,000 from the county to assist in its work to promote the county for industrial purposes through printing of brochures and other means of publicity.

In a report to the board on grants for water improvements, John Boykin said prospects were still good for about $250,000 in grants for the project if additional funding can be found for the $600,000-plus project.

A maximum of $500 was approved as a county expenditure to support a Volunteer Recognition Meeting to be held at Martin Community College April 21. The meeting is sponsored by the Interagency Council.

231 Pints Given To Bloodmobile

A two-day Bloodmobile visit at East Carolina University resulted in the collection of 231 pints of blood, according to Ruth Taylor of the Pitt County Red Cross.

Mrs. Taylor said Tuesday's blood drive ended with 94 units collected and 20 people deferred due to various health reasons, while 137 donations and 24 deferrals were recorded on Wednesday.

The campus drive, held at the Ledonia Wright Building, was sponsored by the Interfraternity Council, with Tap Johnson serving as president.

The next Bloodmobile visit to the area will be on May 12 at Burroughs Wellcome, followed by a May 19 blood drive at the Moose Lodge. Mrs. Taylor said the Moose Lodge visit is open to the public.

Back To Iwo?

TOKYO (AP) — U.S. Marines may wade ashore on Iwo Jima again if the Japanese government approves a U.S. request to conduct landing exercises on the island in May.

A spokesman at Japan's Defense Agency said it is considering a request filed Tuesday by U.S. forces in Japan to conduct landing exercises on the Japanese island. Opposition is expected from people related to the estimated 20,000 Japanese who died on the island during World War II.

Kyodo News Service said Japan's government is likely to approve the request.

Iwo Jima was the site of a grinding 36-day assault in early 1944 by three U.S. Marine divisions, during which 5,931 Marines died and 17,272 were wounded, according to Marine Corps records.

REQUEST APPROVED

Police Chief Glenn Cannon announced the approval of a request by Boy Scout Troop 826 to conduct a merchant and door-to-door solicitation from Friday through May 9 to sell tickets for a pancake breakfast to raise funds for the troop.

Kaufman Quits His Wrestling

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Comedian Andy Kaufman, recuperating in a hospital bed from a whiplash injury inflicted by an irate professional wrestler, says he's throwing in the towel — and his wrestling long johns.

"No more wrestling," Kaufman said Wednesday from his bed at St. Francis Hospital.

Meanwhile, the man responsible for ending Kaufman's wrestling "career" said he had nothing to apologize for.

"He wanted a lot of publicity over this and he's getting it, but I don't think it's the kind he anticipated," professional wrestler Jerry "The King" Lawler said in a telephone interview from his home in Hendersonville, Tenn. "I went into it with the idea of hurting him and I'm not sorry for it a bit."

Kaufman, co-star of ABC-TV's "Taxi," was brought to the hospital by ambulance after being carried by stretcher from the Mid-South Coliseum Monday night.

The 165-pound comedian-actor was injured when Lawler, a 234-pound brawler with a mean reputation, slammed him head first — twice — onto the ring floor.

"I never thought he would pick me up and throw me down," Kaufman said. "I was doing comedy and he was doing real."

For the past two years, Kaufman — attired in long johns covered by a pair of short pants — has wrestled women as part of his comedy routine. After a match against a woman in Memphis last year, he was challenged by Lawler, who charged the comedian was making fun of wrestlers.

Kaufman, who bills himself as the "Intergender Wrestling Champion of the World," accepted the challenge.

He said he thought he and Lawler would work out a routine that would be funny and not dangerous. His plan was to scamper about the ring, staying just out of Lawler's grasp.

"Looking back, I don't think it was a reasonable thing to do," Kaufman said. "Before the match, I thought wrestling was phony. I guess I learned different."

Lawler said his drubbing of Kaufman was to quiet the comedian and other skeptics.

"He'd stated he didn't think it was real. A lot of people think that way," Lawler said. "It was a golden opportunity for me to do something to him that I would love to do with each and every one of those other people who think the same way."

Farm Worker Claims Slavery

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A Halifax County farm worker who last month described his life to a state legislative committee as "slavery under cover" has filed suit against grower Vernon Locke and his wife, Mabel.

In a civil complaint filed Tuesday in U.S. District Court in Raleigh, Jerome Nicholson, 23, of Enfield and 10 other seasonal farm workers sued for back wages ranging from $350 to $3,250.

The workers are represented by Farm Workers' Legal Services. The suit follows a U.S. Labor Department finding that the workers were not paid the federal minimum wage during periods from 1979 to 1981.

"With God as my witness, Mr. Locke doesn't owe them anything," Mrs. Locke said Tuesday in an interview.

Last month, Nicholson told the state Legislative Committee on Migrant Farm Workers that Locke paid the $3.35 minimum wage "when the labor department pushed — otherwise not."

There is no date for a hearing on the suit. The Lockes must answer the complaint within 20 days.

Burned by 'Hot Wire'

BRIDGETON, Mo. (AP) — A man who was trying to erect a 42-foot-tall antenna in his yard was killed instantly along with his son and two friends when a gust of wind blew the antenna into a high-voltage power line, officials say.

The four were severely burned Wednesday, officials said.

"I saw sparks flying," said Cheryl Belding, 23, a neighbor who was in her kitchen at the time.

"I looked out the window and saw the youngest kid standing there burning," she said she telephoned for help.

St. Louis County Officer Jerry Warren said Kathryn Sullivan said she had asked her husband, Maurice, 38, to seek professional help in putting up the citizens-band antenna. Instead, she said, Sullivan asked a friend, Robert Brown, 26, of St. Ann, to help.

Shortly after the work began, Sullivan and his 16-year-old son, Mark, were killed instantly along with Brown and David Lee, 24, also of St. Ann, officials said.

Police said the four were carrying the antenna into the yard when it blew into contact with a 7,200-volt power line.

Christine Gardner, 16, who grew up with Mark Sullivan and went to school with him, said she was walking home from school when she noticed what was happening.

"When I came up, all I saw was something on fire," Miss Gardner said. "I thought it was the house and then I saw the bodies."

Sullivan worked at McDonnell Douglas Co. as a sheet-metal worker. His son was a student at Hazelwood West High School.

Fire Sears N.C. Woodlands

By LEE CREEK
Associated Press Writer

A North Carolina forestry official says fires which have destroyed more than 48,000 acres of woodlands since Saturday are under control, but a forecasted change in wind direction could heat the situation up again.

Tom Hegele, fire prevention specialist for the state Forestry Service, said winds were "a little bit less" Wednesday and were expected to be in the 10 to 15 mph range today.

"But today they're expected out of the northeast and they had been out of the northwest," Hegele said in a telephone interview. "That means the fires will be pushing against a fresh sector and it could be hairy."

Firefighters brought the last fire under control Wednesday, that one involving mostly brush and trees in Sampson County. Hegele said that fire had been extinguished.

Hegele said about 600 forestry service employees and nearly 200 temporary fire workers have been fighting the blazes.

Eight fires, all in the state's eastern coastal plains, were still burning early this morning, although all were contained.

The largest was at Bull Hill in Hyde County, covering 10,000 acres. Another fire in Dare County was still smoldering over a 6,000 acre area.

In Pasquotank County, Hegele said a 4,000 acre fire was burning and a 3,700 acre blaze still had life in the White Oak community of Onslow County.

Harnett County had two fires going, one covering 3,000 acres and another 2,600 acres. In the Big Bay area of Bladen County a 2,050 acre fire remained a threat and in Washington County, 1,200 acres were still burning.

"I just saw the weather report and they're calling for rain today," Hegele said early this morning. "The forestry service forecast didn't indicate the rain was going to cover the entire state, but at this point, we'll take anything we can get."

Jim Boone, a spokesman for the National Weather Service in Raleigh, said the best chances of rain for the coastal plains is for tonight.

"They're only showing a 30 percent chance of rain during the daytime," Boone said. "The heaviest amount of rain is expected tonight. It's listed uncategory which means there's better than a 70 percent chance."

Watchdogs Baring Few Fangs In N.C. Transportation Department

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The state's highway program received very little criticism Wednesday from a legislative committee formed to oversee the Transportation Department.

Members of the Special Committee to Study the Department of Transportation, successor to a tough-talking panel last year, received a briefing on the department's planned reorganization and employee cutbacks.

Legislators also spoke kindly of Transportation Secretary William Roberson, a former legislator named to the post by Gov. Jim Hunt last year.

Allen Barbee, D-Nash, who is the chairman of the committee and House Speaker Pro Tem, praised DOT management for a "tremendous job" in coming up with a plan for trimming vegetation in front of private signs near highways.

"I feel the Department of Transportation taken a new turn since we were back here in the General Assembly last year," said Sen. J.J. "Monk" Harrington, D-Bertie. "The emphasis is now on repairing roads."

The Joint Select Committee on the Department of Transportation was the forerunner of the present committee and its attitude was considerably different.

Created amidst the battle over Gov. Jim Hunt's gasoline tax increase proposal last year, the previous panel held hearings, produced a report critical of department management, and recommended the latest committee be formed to continue its review.

"They wanted to cut some throats," said Barbee, who was also co-chairman of the earlier panel. "I think this committee is not out to clip heads off but to find ways the General Assembly can help the Department of Transportation do the changing job they're going to have to do."

Canal Project?

TOKYO (AP) — The government is likely to join the United States and Panama in studying the feasibility of building a new Panama canal, but has not made a final decision, the Ministry of International Trade and Industry said today.

The nationally circulated newspaper Asahi, quoting government sources, said Japanese participation would mean the country may help fund construction of a second canal.

An outline drafted by the Japan Chamber of Commerce and Industry calls for building a 61-mile, sea-level canal about nine miles west of the existing waterway. The outline said the proposed canal could handle 300,000-ton oil tankers, compared with the 40,000-ton limit on the present canal, and could be more quickly navigated than the present waterway, which was completed in 1914.

With five of 10 members present, the panel gave its unanimous endorsement to the proposed policy allowing owners of signs and businesses adjacent to state highways to remove vegetation along up to 250 feet of state right-of-way. The policy goes to the state Board of Transportation on Friday.

Department officials told legislators they had eliminated 104 of the 273 jobs targeted for elimination last year and expected to trim the entire number through attrition by the end of June.

They also said a proposed reorganization would save $3.2 million a year and reduce 134 positions from maintenance operations. A report distributed by DOT officials said their plan would also upgrade field management and "provide a higher type individual to make contacts with the public."

The harshest comments came from Harrington, who complained that prison officials should be more flexible in making inmates available for road work.

The panel didn't mention complaints leveled earlier this year by Republican Sens. Gilbert Lee Boger of Davie and Cass Ballenger of Catawba, who charged Roberson had attempted to keep department employees from talking to legislators about DOT problems.

Driver Facing Assault Charge

HENDERSON, N.C. (AP) — A Henderson woman has been charged with assault and hit-and-run driving after her car hit two men walking along a residential street.

Helen Betty Cheatham, 18, remained in the Vance County jail Wednesday afternoon on $50,000 bond. She allegedly drove her car onto a sidewalk Tuesday night and hit Carlton Foster, 25, and William G. Macon Jr., 21, both of Henderson.

She was charged with assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill inflicting serious injury and with hit-and-run driving involving personal injury, police said.

El Salvador's Troops, Guerrillas Again In Battle

By SOLL SUSSMAN
Associated Press Writer
SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — El

Salvador's army has clashed for the second time this week with leftist guerrillas trying to capture the strategic crossroads of San Vicente, a military official said.

Fighting ended early

drove the guerrillas from the provincial capital 37 miles east of San Salvador, the army reported. But the rebels returned Tuesday night,
Wednesday, the official said.
Late Wednesday night, there was no word available in San Salvador on the outcome or of casualties.

San Vicente is at the junction of the Pan-American Highway and a road to the coastal highway. It has been a focal attack point for the guerrillas fighting the U.S.-backed civilian-military junta.

Guerrilla bands also were stopping motorists on the western portion of the Pan-American Highway, demanding payment of a "war tax" and emptying buses at gunpoint and shooting out the tires, travelers said.

But residents of San Francisco Gotera, near the Honduran border, reported there was no fighting in their area for the first time in 10 days.
They said they had been without water since Friday, when guerrillas blocked the source of their supply three miles to the north.

"It's been pretty ugly," one resident told The Associated Press by telephone. "The damages are great."

With all government offices and most businesses closed for Holy Week, many people ignored the threat of violence and flocked to the beaches.

The guerrillas' Radio Venceremos (We Shall Overcome) announced special daily broadcasts of Roman Catholic Masses today through Saturday. But San Salvador's Church of the Conception canceled the nightly "procession of silence" it usually holds through the city. A spokesman said church officials feared a large crowd after dark would attract violence.

Meanwhile, a U.S. congressional delegation was expected today to assess the civil war that has taken more than 33,000 lives in the past 29 months.

The eight-member group is headed by House Majority leader Jim Wright, D-Texas.
It will also visit Costa Rica, Panama, Nicaragua and Jamaica to gather "in depth information for the congressional leadership about the political, military and economic problems confronting these countries," Wright's office in Washington said.

Assassination Attempt Trial Set For April 27

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rejecting a defense request for more time, a federal judge has ordered an April 27 trial date for John W.
Hinckley Jr., accused of trying to assassinate President Reagan.

U.S. District Judge Barrington D. Parker set the date at a hearing Wednesday.

Hinckley's attorney, Vincent J. Fuller, asked Parker to postpone the trial for another month, but the judge responded, "I don't look kindly on your request."

The 26-year-old Hinckley will be tried on charges he shot President Reagan and three others on March 30, 1981 as the president left the Washington Hilton Hotel following a speech.

Defense attorneys have conceded that Hinckley did the shooting, but the defendant has pleaded innocent by reason of insanity.

Appeals and legal maneuvering have delayed the start of the trial.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Roger Adelman opposed the defense request for a month-long postponement, saying, "We are ready for trial now."

But Fuller argued that a long stretch of time has elapsed since he interviewed witnesses.

"I appreciate your need for time, but it won't be 30 days," said Parker.

Five of the 13 counts lodged against Hinckley carry a life sentence as maximum punishment.

He is charged with attempting to kill the president and with assault with a deadly weapon on Reagan, presidential press Secretary James S. Brady, Washington police officer Thomas Delahanty and Secret Service agent Timothy McCarthy.

Brady, the most severely wounded, is slowly recovering. The others are back at

Wood Heat For Military Base

BRUNSWICK, Maine (UPI) — The U.S. Naval Air Station in Brunswick will become the nation's first wood-heated military base in 1984, further reducing dependence on imported oil, according to an energy-oriented publication.

Energy User News says that the use of wood chips as fuel at the base will displace nearly 2.2 million gallons of fuel oil costing $1 million to provide steam heat for the base's 200 buildings.

Cost of the wood chips will be about $25 per ton. The base expects to burn about 50,000 tons of chips annually.

Measure Would Re-Write California Crime Laws

By BOB EGELKO
Associated Press Writer
SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — In 1978 it was Proposition 13, a measure which made historic changes in California's taxing and spending laws. This year, residents of the nation's most populous state will vote on Proposition 8, an initiative which promises an extensive overhaul of the state's criminal laws.

Paul Gann, co-sponsor of the Proposition 13 and sponsor of a government spending limit initiative in 1979, calls his new initiative the Victims' Bill of Rights, though only a few of its 12 provisions deal with crime victims.

The measure was ordered onto the June 8 ballot last month by the state Supreme Court, which deferred until after the election a challenge based on the state constitutional requirement that an initiative cover only one subject.

Among its provisions are authority for judges to hold non-murder defendants without bail, a narrowing of the insanity defense, an attempt to limit plea-bargaining for serious crimes, a substantial increase in sentences for repeat criminals, and permission for victims to speak at parole and sentencing hearings.

"They're arresting the same people over and over because they're being turned loose ... by the courts, in plea-bargaining," Gann said. "People are so upset at crime and the lack of control over crime."

One of the chief targets of the measure is the state Supreme Court, which has had a liberal majority for about 30 years but which has come under increasing attack in the last few years.

As the U.S. Supreme Court has narrowed previous rulings on defendants' rights, the California court has increasingly set out on its own, under the state constitution, in areas like police searches, confessions and insanity.

The result has been accusations of judicial lawmaking, attempts to defeat Chief Justice Rose Bird at the polls, and now the Gann initiative, which would overturn many of the court's rulings.

The 69-year-old Gann, who spent most of his life selling real estate and automobiles, burst from obscurity four years ago when he and Howard Jarvis spearheaded the drive for Proposition 13.

Next to the tempestuous, headline-grabbing Jarvis, Gann was a quiet, calm figure. In 1980, Gann won the Republican nomination for U.S. Senate but was defeated by Democratic Sen. Alan Cranston by 1.6 million votes.

Even some of the measure's supporters say major portions of the measure are unconstitutional — for example, a provision that appears to admit all evidence from illegal police searches.

But the current anti-crime mood makes its passage likely, and if it survives court challenges, its impact could equal the shock wave caused by Proposition 13's $6 billion tax cut.

For instance: A provision eliminating the automatic right to bail, and making public safety the first consideration in granting bail, might repeal the bail schedules that govern release of more than a million arrestees a year.

In that event, critics say, every local police jail would need a judge to set bail and, as the initiative requires, state reasons for each release.

Another provision would declare a constitutional right for all public school students and staff to attend "safe, secure and peaceful" schools.

Supporters say the purpose is simple, to promote school safety. Opponents say the potential consequences are staggering: parents refusing to send their children to "unsafe" schools; busing from inner-city schools to suburbs; reduction of police street patrols in order to station officers on campus.

Then there is the provision declaring, with a few exceptions, that criminal courts shall consider all "relevant" evidence.

The chief purpose, sponsors say, is to reverse California court decisions on the exclusionary rule, which bars the use of evidence from illegal police searches and illegally obtained confessions.

California courts have applied the rule more broadly than the U.S. Supreme Court — for example, a defendant in California can challenge evidence from an illegal search of someone else, and can object to items found in a full-body search after an arrest for a minor crime.

But the initiative isn't limited on its face to state court decisions, and can be read to admit evidence from searches that would be barred by federal courts as well. One of the measure's draftsmen, George Nicholson, has said the measure could allow the U.S. Supreme Court to reconsider the entire exclusionary rule.

Opponents also warn of huge costs: from $339 million to $1.45 billion over five years for expansion of the state's already-overcrowded prisons, according to state officials, plus millions more to give the required notice to every shoplifting victim, for example, that the criminal is being sentenced.

Nicholson, a former prosecutor who is running for attorney general, says the warnings are unfounded speculations by liberals who are trying to defeat Proposition 8 and ignore the savings from its deterrent effect on crime.

Says Pasadena Police

Chief Bob McGowan, president of the California Police Chiefs Association, "The message to those in the Legislature who would totally frustrate the will of the people should be loud and clear: If you refuse to do anything about crime, we'll do it for you."

WNCT Radio Sets A Hospital Benefit

WNCT Radio will hold a two-pronged candy and money benefit for Pitt County Memorial Hospital all day Good Friday.

The program, entitled "Giving at Easter," has been programmed by Henry Amberston, WNCT general manager. From 7:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. Friday, the station — 11 on the AM dial, 108 on the FM dial — will play a variety of music to tie in with the theme of giving at Easter.

"We're going to have two tie-in programs going all day Friday," Amberston said. "One is to provide candy to children, as well as to older patients, who have to be hospitalized during Easter." He said the station had provided 1,000 pounds of candy. "Listeners can call in and make pledges. Anyone who pledges $5 or more will have their name inscribed on a large poster that will be installed in the lobby of the hospital.

"People can call in or can come by the station to make pledges," Amberston added.

The second part of the two-pronged benefit drive will be "a live people broadcast from the parking lot of the studio," Amberston explained. "We will have a station announcer with a microphone in the lot. Anyone of any age who wants to put pennies, nickels, dollars, checks into the kitty will have an opportunity to say hello to parents or friends over the air. This should be a fun event for everybody."

WNCT is located on Stantonsburg Road just a short distance past Pitt Memorial Hospital. It is located on the left side of the road (going from Greenville). A large WNCT sign is located at the site of the drive to the station, about 100 yards from Stantonsburg Road.

All proceeds raised in the benefit will be donated to Pitt County Memorial Hospital to be used in any manner hospital authorities see fit, according to Amberston.

Had Warning

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State officials said Wednesday that welfare recipients who lost their benefits this month as a result of a new reporting procedure will get their benefits restored if it can be shown they didn't receive adequate help from social workers.

"If it's a situation in which a county did not follow state policy, we will reinstate the clients," said June Milby, a spokeswoman for the North Carolina Department of Human Resources.

She said the recipients would still face a delay in receiving their checks, even if the benefits are restored.

She said only those recipients who filed incomplete or incorrect forms will be reinstated. Others who did not file the forms will not be reinstated, she said, because they had adequate warning.

Under a Reagan administration requirement adopted last month by North Carolina, some recipients of Aid to Families with Dependent Children were required to file detailed monthly income reports.

The requirement applied to recipients with other income, families with children 16 to 18 and to new recipients.

Douglas 1-Hits Bruins; Rose Rolls, 11-0

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
Gordon Douglas flirted with a no-hitter for the third straight time yesterday, but had to settle for a one-hitter as Rose High School rolled over Wilson Beddingfield, 11-0.

The victory was the ninth in a row for the Rampants, and their fourth against Big East Conference competition. For Douglas, it was the fifth victory of the year.

Douglas didn't give up a hit until the sixth inning when Chris Williams greeted him with a slap into right field. Douglas walked three and struck out nine — including four in the final inning. But he also admitted that he didn't really have a good outing.

"I really didn't have my good stuff," he said afterwards. I pitched last Thursday, but I haven't thrown much since then. I was right stiff out there. I guess I need to throw more between assignments."

The four strikeouts in the sixth came when one batter fanned, but reached on a wild pitch on the final strike.

Douglas' thoughts were echoed by Coach Ronald Vincent, who also didn't feel that the senior righthander had all reached on the third Bruin error of the inning, letting courtesy runner Jeff Wilson come across. Keith Phillips reached on a fielder's choice, and Tom Buie followed with a single, driving in Warren. A fourth error by Beddingfield on Mont Carter's grounder let Phillips cross with the fifth run.

Two more scored in the fifth. Vincent was referring to the last three games of Douglas. In each, he allowed the first hit in the sixth inning, losing the no-hitter there. He gave up two each to Greene Central and Rocky Mount.

"It was one of our better games," Vincent said of the overall play. "We hit the ball a little better and we took advantage of everything they gave us."

And Beddingfield gave a lot — committing eight errors. As a result, only two of the 11 runs scored by Rose were earned.

The Rampants started the scoring in the third inning, getting five runs.

Sammy Hodges led off with a walk and moved up on a single by Roger Williams. Douglas, attempting to sacrifice, reached on an error, loading the bases. A wild pitch then brought Hodges home with the first run. After an out, Randy Warren reached on an error, scoring Williams. Bill Kittrell reached on an infield hit, and Phillips was safe on still another Bruin error. Buie sacrificed Kittrell over and Carter singled in Phillips.

The sixth saw the final four come across. Terry Smith reached on a fielder's choice and Bill Johnson walked. Bobby Buie was safe on another error, loading the bases and Curtis Evans walked, forcing in Smith. Jeff Wilson singled to left, plating Johnson, and when the ball got past the fielder, Buie and Evans both scored and Wilson ended up on third.

Williams and Kittrell led the Rose hitting with two each. Rose returns to action on Saturday, hosting New Bern in the first round of the Pitt County Holiday Tournament.

meets Manteo at 2:30 p.m. followed by the losers of Saturday night's games at 5 p.m., and the Saturday winners at 7:30 p.m.

The final games are set Tuesday at 5 and 7:30 p.m. In the softball tournament at Greene Central, play will all be on Monday and Tuesday, with each team playing twice daily.

Patterson Hurls 2-Hitter At NCS; Pirates Sweep Pair From Pack

RALEIGH — East Carolina rallied for three runs in the seventh inning of the nightcap yesterday and swept a doubleheader from N.C. State University.

The Pirates took the first game, 2-0, behind the two hit pitching of Bobby Patterson, and came back for a 4-2 victory in the second game to give Bill Wilder the victory.

Patterson, who upped his record to 4-1 with the first game win, was overpowering against the Wolfpack in the first game, striking out ten while walking just three. Only twice did State manage to put a runner as far as second base, in the final two innings. No one ever reached third.

In the sixth, State's Ken Sears walked and was sacrificed up, but died there. Then, in the seventh, Jim Toman got a pinch-hit single and Moe Barbour followed with a walk, but again the rally was snuffed out to preserve the shutout victory.

East Carolina didn't score until the fifth inning, getting one run. That came with two away. David Wells walked and came around when Todd Hendley tripled.

The other run came in the seventh and was also scored by Wells. With one down, Wells doubled and moved up on Hendley's single. Todd Evans then hit a sacrifice fly to score the second run.

Hendley led the East Carolina hitting in the contest, getting two.

The second game proved a little tougher to win, although the Pirates did hold the initial lead in the game.

East Carolina took the lead in the second, scoring one. Evans doubled and advanced on Hendley's ground out. Fran Fitzgerald then brought in Evans with a sacrifice fly.

The Wolfpack came back with two in the third, taking the lead for the first time in the afternoon. Chris Baird led off with a double and after one out, Sears doubled him in, tying the game. Mike Sprouse followed with a single, scoring Sears for the 2-1 lead.

It stayed that way until the seventh inning when the Pirates rallied for three to take the win.

Fitzgerald led off the seventh with a single and was sacrificed up. Kelly Robinette then followed with a blooper just to the left of second base for another hit, driving in Fitzgerald with the tying run. Robert Wells followed with a walk and Ricky Nichols moved both runners up with his infield grounder.

David Wells then followed with a bullet through the legs of second baseman Sprouse, allowing both Robert Wells and Robinette to score.

Evans led the ECU hitting with two, while Baird had two for the Wolfpack.

The victories boosted the East Carolina record to 20-6 on the season, while N.C. State falls to 18-9.

East Carolina has now won three of five games against Atlantic Coast Conference competition, including three in a row after a pair of early season losses to Clemson.

East Carolina returns to action on Friday, traveling to Campbell University. The two teams meet again in Buies Creek on Saturday.

Jenkins Signs With Pirates

PINETOPS — Guard Bridget Jenkins, the Associated Press high school Player of the Year in North Carolina, announced today that she will attend East Carolina University on a basketball grant-in-aid.

The 5-8 prep all-America candidate led her SouthWest Edgecombe team to back-to-back state 3-A titles and a spotless 61-0 record during the past two seasons. SouthWest finished third in the state, in both her freshman and sophomore years. The team's record during her three seasons as a full-time starter was 90-1.

"She's probably the most versatile player ever at SouthWest Edgecombe," Cougar coach Sandra Langley praised.

East Carolina won the recruiting battle against Old Dominion for Jenkins' talents. Bridget's sister, Alphaia, is a Lady Monarch freshman.

Jenkins averaged 19.8 points and 6.8 rebounds for the Cougars as a senior. She also recorded 100 steals, 76 assists and 18 blocks while shooting 59 percent from the floor and 70 percent from the foul line. For her career, she scored 1,601 points to become a silver medalist in the Wade Trophy Medal club.

She was named to the AP all-State first team this season and was the Eastern Regional MVP. She was named to the All-Eastern Carolina Conference team as a junior and senior and to the conference all-tournament team as a sophomore, junior and senior.

She was twice all-conference in volleyball and led her team to the district playoffs this season. She is competing in track this spring in the long and triple jumps. Jenkins has recorded a 34-foot triple jump already.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alphonso Jenkins on Conetoe.

White Oak Tops Lenoir, Conley

WHEAT SWAMP — White Oak's Chuck Kugler won three events and led his team to victory over North Lenoir and D.H. Conley in a three-way track meet yesterday.

White Oak finished with 74 points, just nipping North Lenoir which had 71, while Conley was a distant third with 33.

Kugler took the 400, 800 and 3200-meter events, and also ran the anchor leg on the 1600-meter relay, which followed the 3200-meter run.

White Oak's Gary also won two events, the 100 and 200, while North Lenoir's Danny Wooten took the triple and long jumps.

The result left Conley with a 12-12 record on the season. The Vikings travel to Farmville Central next Thursday.

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Greenville Rose heads the first North Carolina high school track and field honor roll. Rose, which returned a veteran, versatile team, is the leader in five different events.

The honor roll, which will be compiled weekly, lists the top 10 performances in the state in 17 events.

Rose makes the honor roll in all three relay events. The Rampanths have the fastest 400-meter relay time (42.8 seconds), are second in the 1600-meter relay (3:25.0) to Fayetteville Westover's 3:23.8 and are ninth in the 800 relay.

Kenny Smith leads Rose's individual efforts, with the top time in both the 1600-meter run (4:23.4) and the 3200-meter run (9:31.4). Rose has the top two times in the state in the 800, 1600 and 3200. Tyrone Forbes is first in the 800 (1:58.0) and Smith is second (1:58.4) and Harry Williams is second to Smith in both the 1600 and 3200.

Rose's Erskin Evans is the fastest 100-meter man in the state, recording a red-hot 10.4 seconds and teammate Edward Frazier is tied for second with a 10.6.

Dennis Barron of Wilson Beddingfield has a comfortable lead in the shot put roll. Barron's effort of 59 feet, 11½ inches is well ahead of second-place Larry Berry of New Bern (55-3¼). Bynum Morris of Western Guilford heads up the discus list with a 152-11.

Chris Brunson of Smithfield-Selma is the top long jumper at 23-3 and Kenan Davis of Charlotte Olympic heads the triple jump roll at 46-8.

Two Charlotte jumpers — Shelton Boyer of West Charlotte and Billy Williams of Myers Park — lead the high jumpers. Boyer is first at 6-9 and Williams is right behind at 6-8¾.

Tracy Fowler of Hillsborough Orange is the top pole vaulter at 13-6. Pete Anderson of Tarboro is the only other vaulter to clear 13 feet, checking in at 13-0.

Walter Southerland of Henderson Vance has a 14.2-second effort in the 110-meter high hurdles and Scott Gilmer of Western Guilford leads the 300-meter intermediate hurdles — a new event this year — with a 38.3.

Darin Council of Lee County tops the 200-meter roll at 21.4 and Delton Hall of Greensboro Grimsley leads the 400-meter roll at 49.0.

Following is the North Carolina high school track and field honor roll for this week. The top 10 reported times (and ties) are listed in each event. To make updates and corrections, contact Bill Woodward, The News and Observer, Raleigh, N.C., (919) 829-4500.

Rampants Ninth In Cup Race

Rose High School has broken into the top ten in the battle for the Wachovia Cup, but it fell behind 4-A leader Chapel Hill.

The Cup is presented to the top school in each of the four classifications of the North Carolina High School Athletic Association, based on points awarded for state competition and sport participation each school year.

All schools which finish in the top eight position, plus ties, in a state championship event receive points. In sports, such as track, where all compete together, points are awarded on the basis of competition against similar schools, rather than overall finish.

Following the completion of winter sports, Chapel Hill leads the 4-A teams with 335.5 points, while Raleigh Sanderson is second at 270. Charlotte's South Mecklenburg is third with 235, followed closely by Greensboro Grimsley at 228.

Reynolds at 200, Fayetteville Terry Sanford at 167.5, Rocky Mount at 150, Rose at 140, and Cary in tenth at 132.5.

In the 3-A race, Boone Watauga leads with 250 points, with Durham Jordan close behind at 240. Skyland T.C. Roberson is third with 182.5.

Shelby is fourth at 165, with Statesville fifth at 145. Jamestown Ragsdale and Burlington Williams are tied for sixth at 125, followed by Asheville Clyde Erwin at 117.5, SouthWest Edgecombe at 112.5, and Rockingham County at 110.

Belhaven Wilkinson leads the 1-A teams with a 152.5 total, while Edneyville is second at 147.5. Robbinville is third with a 142.5 total.

They are trailed by Cherokee and Princeton, tied for fourth at 112.5, Tryon at 92.5; Eastern School for the Deaf at 90, Chocowinity at 87.5, and Hayesville and Hiwassee Dam of Murphy at 60.

Spring sports will wind up the 1981-82 Wachovia Cup races.

Prep Softball Roundup Rampettes Win

Rose High School's girls rallied for seven runs in the bottom of the sixth inning and pulled out a 13-12 softball victory over Wilson Beddingfield yesterday.

Beddingfield scored once in the top of the first, but Rose came back to score six runs in the bottom of the frame.

Beddingfield added three each in the third, fourth and fifth innings for a 10-6 lead. Betty Barnes had a solo homer to spark the fourth inning rally.

Rose came back with seven runs in the bottom of the sixth, including two on a triple by Sheila Carmon, who had four runs batted in for the game.

Beddingfield tried to rally, scoring twice to pull within one before Rose closed the door in the seventh.

Wendy Jones led the Rose hitting with three, while Laura Vincent, Frances Barnhill, Janet Mizelle and Carmon each had two. Barnes and Millie Sexton each had two for Beddingfield.

Rose, now 2-1 in Big East play, is 4-4 overall. The Lady Rampanths play at Kinston this afternoon.

Rose was paced by Lynn Moore with an 81, while Brian Hill had 83, Craig Davies had 85 and Spencer Mayo had a 92.

Farmville is now 11-2 and travels to Zebulon next Thursday. Rose falls to 4-3 and travels to Fike on April 20.

Indians In 4-0 Victory

CHOCOWINITY — Chocowinity High School gained a 4-0 baseball victory over Bear Grass yesterday behind two hit pitching by Kevin Tyree.

Chocowinity took the lead for good in the game with two runs in the third inning. Greg Hodges singled and moved up on an error on the play. Jeff Jefferson also singled and another error brought Hodges in and moved the batter up. He scored on Jay Tripp's single.

The other two Chocowinity runs came in the fifth. Warren Morrisette reached on an error and Jefferson singled. Tripp walked, loading the bases and two runs scored on a single by Freddie Potter.

The loss dropped the Bears to 1-6 overall and 1-5 against Tobacco Belt foes. They return to action today, traveling to Columbia.

Pearson Set To Make Return

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — David Pearson says he plans a return to NASCAR's Winston Cup stock car series within a few weeks and will enter five or six major races this year.

The veteran Pearson, second only to Richard Petty in all-time Winston Cup victories with 105, has been inactive for about a year on the circuit.

Householder Keeps Feud Alive

By The Associated Press

In the minor leagues, Paul Householder and Dickie Noles had a running feud going.

It's still going strong in the majors, and Wednesday night Householder got some licks in with his bat.

"I wanted to get him — I wanted to hit him good," Householder said after hitting a home run and triple off Noles to lead the Cincinnati Reds to a 6-2 victory over the Chicago Cubs. "I had a little more incentive tonight."

It was a measure of revenge for a minor league incident that triggered antagonism between the two. Householder said that he and Noles exchanged words during a Class AAA game last summer, when Householder was with the Reds' Indianapolis farm club and Noles was on the disabled list playing for the Philadelphia Phillies' farm club in Oklahoma City.

"The next day in the outfield during batting practice he stopped me, challenged me and we threw punches," Householder said.

Householder said Noles later hit him in the ribs with a pitch in a minor league game, nearly setting off an on-the-field fight.

Neither player was in a conciliatory mood Wednesday night, especially Noles, who chose an obscenity when asked about Householder after the game.

"I decked him before and I'll deck him again, if he comes after me," Noles said. "I welcome it."

Householder hit a two-out homer in the fourth inning and a run-scoring triple in the sixth, for two of the four hits allowed by Noles in 52-3 innings. Bruce Berenyi got the victory with late relief help.

In other National League action, it was Houston 3, St. Louis 2; Atlanta 6, San Diego 4 and Los Angeles 9, San Francisco 2. Two games were postponed by cold weather — Montreal at Pittsburgh and New York at Philadelphia.

In the American League, Minnesota trimmed Seattle 7-5 and California blanked Oakland 7-0. The Baltimore-Kansas City game was postponed by cold.

Astros 3, Cardinals 2

Houston's Tony Scott and Luis Pujols smashed run-scoring doubles and Joe Niekro and Joe Sambito combined on a seven-hitter to lead the Astros over St. Louis.

Niekro and Sambito quieted the Cardinals, who pounded out 18 hits in Tuesday night's 14-3 season-opening victory over the Astros. Cardinal starter John Martin got the loss.

After Scott put the Astros ahead 1-0 with a second-inning double, Pujols' sixth-inning double scored Art Howe and Scott to give the Astros a 3-0 cushion and their eventual winning run.

The victory was the seventh straight over St. Louis for Niekro.

"I don't know what it is, I just feel comfortable pitching in St. Louis and I feel comfortable pitching here (in Houston)," said Niekro. "It also feels good to beat a club that hits as well as St. Louis."

We found out last night that they can hit."

Niekro's reference was to the Cardinals' 14-3 win over the Astros in the season opener.

Braves 6, Padres 4

Dale Murphy stroked a single, double and home run and knocked in two runs and Brett Butler added three singles and drove in two runs as Atlanta defeated San Diego.

Bob Walk pitched seven strong innings, allowing five hits before Rick Camp relieved in the eighth when the Padres scored three unearned runs and Gene Garber finished up.

"It's important to get off to a good start," said Murphy, who hit only .247 last year but was .319 against the Padres.

Murphy got his hits off John Montefusco, an old friend.

"If I had my wishes, I would rather face somebody other than the Count," Murphy said. "You have to battle him every time out."

Dodgers 9, Giants 2

Ron Cey slugged a home run and singled twice and Ken Landreaux collected four singles to lead Los Angeles over San Francisco.

The Giants contributed three costly errors. Right fielder Jack Clark dropped a fly ball that led to three unearned runs in the third inning when the Dodgers scored five times. Third baseman Darrell Evans committed two errors in the fifth inning that led to two more unearned runs.

Winner Bob Welch gave up three hits in the second inning when the Giants scored their two runs, then retired 11 batters in a row to earn the victory before Alejandro Pena took over in the seventh. Steve Howe finished up for the Dodgers, pitching the ninth.

Jack Says He's Found Game's Flaw

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Three weeks ago, Jack Nicklaus wasn't particularly looking forward to playing in the Masters, a tournament he has mastered five times.

He had missed the cut in two consecutive tournaments and needed a tonic for a golf swing gone awry.

"I had to go back to basics and find them myself," Nicklaus said Wednesday, the day before play was scheduled to begin in the 46th Masters Tournament.

He said he found the flaw and that his game is "better than it's been in a long time."

If his game is back, he figures to be a contender for this prestigious event, won last year by Tom Watson.

Rain was predicted for today, and tournament officials said if the round is washed out, the 76 participants will play 36 holes Friday.

The sun shone Wednesday on the splendor of the Augusta National Golf Course and talk centered on the slick greens — so slick that Calvin Peete was putting three feet for a birdie during a practice round and wound up with a 20-foot putt back for a par.

Even Hord Hardin, the tournament chairman, said workers had been ordered to change the speed of two greens, now in their second season with bent grass.

"It was felt that they had become so fast as to be unfair," said Hardin, adding that corrective measures had been taken on the unnamed holes.

It could have been on any of the 18 holes because they are so fast they are intimidating.

The golfer who handles the extremely fast greens best has the best chance of winning this Masters.

But, which golfer is that? Nicklaus favors the longest drivers because they will be able to use a shorter iron on their approach shots.

Watson and Tom Kite differ. They give the edge to the best putters, but not necessarily the longest drivers.

"He's entitled to his opinion," Nicklaus replied when someone mentioned Kite's prediction.

All three agreed, however, that pin placement was the key to whether scores will balloon.

"The greens are too fast," Kite said. "I think most players like fast greens, but when you have a 3-foot putt above the hole and you can't keep it within four or five feet of the hole, that's a little severe."

So the key will be to keep the approach shots below the pin.

"This is a different golf course this year," Kite said. "It's still on Washington Road. It's still in Augusta, Ga., but it's a different course."

Kite, one of the most consistent players on the tour, likes the chances of Bill Rogers, the PGA Player of the Year in 1981 and winner of the British Open.

Watson, who won the Heritage Classic two weeks ago and is the only two-time winner this year, likes his chances of repeating — with one question.

"I'm playing well, hitting a lot of good shots, but I wonder if I will be able to negotiate some of the putts I know I will be facing."

He won the tournament last year with a 280 total, eight under par.

Kite, for one, thinks 5-under-par will be a good score this year if the greens remain as quick as they are.

"I'd like to have a five under and take my chances," he said.

Both Watson and Nicklaus said the mental part of the game will be an especially critical factor.

"It will take patience and a lot of nerve," Nicklaus said.

"You'll have to pretty gutsy because of the speed of the greens."

Said Watson: "It will take more patience and guts to win. It could favor the good wedge player like Tom Kite. But if the greens get too fast, it ceases to be skill and more luck is involved."

Nicklaus scored a record low 13-under par 271 in 1975 when he won the tournament. The following year, Raymond Floyd matched the score.

"If you win the Masters, you're the only one with a chance at winning all four major titles," Nicklaus said.

"If you picked one tournament to win," Kite said, "you'd pick a major. If you were going to pick a major you'd pick the Masters."

"Maybe the TPC will be the big one in a couple years, but it's still the Masters now."

Kite, Watson, Nicklaus, Jerry Pate, Bruce Lietzke, Craig Stadler, Andy Bean, David Graham, Larry Nelson, Johnny Miller, Tom Weiskopf are some of the names to watch, some of the veterans who have a good chance to win the green jacket given to the winner.

This is a tournament that demands so many skills, including steady nerves, and veterans have the edge.

"I think the most complete player has the better chance to win," Nicklaus said.

Ben Is Shocked By High Round

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — It took the stunning jolt of an 87 — 15 over par — and a back nine of 50 to shock Ben Crenshaw into an awareness of the extent of his golfing problems.

"It put in perspective where my golf game really was," Crenshaw said, recalling the worst round of his professional career two weeks ago in the final round of the Heritage Classic.

It was the low point of the most severe slump of his career, a slump that has lasted for more than a year but now may be coming to an end. He failed to win on the U.S. tour in the 1981 season. He played poorly this year.

"It's just been a struggle to make the cut," said Crenshaw, winner of eight tour titles, once ranked among the game's most promising players but a troubled also-ran for the past 18 months.

"There wasn't any one thing wrong," he said. "It was just all through my game. My driving would be OK, then it'd be bad. My irons would be good, then go bad. I'd be putting OK, then that goes bad. It was just everything."

The problem, the candid young man said, was more mental than technical.

"I've just been playing uptight," he said. "I've been trying to force things. I pressure myself. I was not at peace with myself."

Crenshaw, however, could have made a breakthrough last week with a strong, fifth-place finish in the Greater Greensboro Open.

It was, he said, just what he needed.

"This is such a fragile game," said Crenshaw, a noted golf historian. "You have to be in the right frame of mind to play. I haven't been in the right frame of mind. I haven't had any confidence."

"Last week helped. I needed to see some good rounds like that. I needed to see some good shots, not just one good shot here and another there but a series of good shots. I needed to see that to get my confidence back, get my head back in order, get my thinking straightened out.

"I feel I'm as capable as anyone," said Crenshaw, who has yet to win a major title but has finished second in both the Masters and British Opens and once lost a playoff for the PGA title.

"I just need to see some more good things happen. I need to test myself. I need to test myself a lot, to see if I can play the good, solid round under pressure, to see if I can make the good things happen when I need them."

"I just hope the worst is over."

Angels Make Billy Ball Look More Like Silly Ball

By The Associated Press

The Oakland A's like to play "Billy Ball."

But Wednesday night, the California Angels made it look like silly ball.

"You almost have to get a lead to beat that club — it takes a lot of their game away from them," said Geoff Zahn after pitching the Angels' to a 7-0 victory over Billy Martin's team with a classy four-hitter.

The night before, the A's clawed out an 11-inning, 3-2 victory with their usual style, which includes a lot of daring baserunning. But they weren't able to play Martin's wide-open game Wednesday night, after falling behind early.

Fred Lynn and Rod Carew, each of whom had three hits and scored two runs, paced the Angels to a 4-0 lead after three innings.

The shutout was the eighth of Zahn's major-league career, but only his first since he pitched a three-hitter against the A's two years ago.

"We haven't had a lot of success against them recently," he said. "I lost to them last year in April and they hit me pretty good."

Brian Downing also was an offensive star for the Angels, driving in two runs, with his second homer of the year and a sacrifice fly. The loser was Mike Norris, who was reached for five hits and four runs in 4-1-3 innings.

In the only other AL game Wednesday night, the Minnesota Twins defeated the Seattle Mariners 7-5. The Kansas City-Baltimore game was postponed by cold weather.

In the National League, it was Atlanta 6, San Diego 4; Cincinnati 6, Chicago 2; Houston 3, St. Louis 2 and Los Angeles 9, San Francisco 2.

Twins 7, Mariners 5

Jim Eisenreich's two-run single and Kent Hrbek's solo home run lifted Minnesota over Seattle. The single was Eisenreich's first major league hit and it keyed a five-run fourth inning. Hrbek smashed his first homer of the season in the fifth inning to cap the Twins' scoring and give them a 7-2 lead at that point.

Another Twins' rookie, designated hitter Randy Johnson, had two doubles and a single for his first major league hits.

A crowd of only 5,213 witnessed the Twins' victory at the Hubert H. Humphrey Metrodome after a state-record audience of 52,279 saw the Mariners win 11-7 Tuesday night.

Jim Maler, Seattle's rookie first baseman, had his second homer of the season and now has six runs batted in.

U.S. Industry Fights Japan With Mexican Labor

By CHARLES J. HANLEY
Associated Press Writer
CIUDAD JUAREZ, Mexico (AP) — American industry, battered by low-priced foreign competition, is fighting back — with Mexicans.

Tens of thousands of Mexican women are stitching together blue jeans, clipping together electronic gear and assembling small automobile parts in a string of 620 factories, most of them American-owned, that stretches along the Mexican side of the U.S. border from the Gulf to the Pacific.

The workers are paid one-tenth or less what Americans would receive, and the products are shipped almost duty-free.

Despite a slowdown caused by the U.S. recession, economists and businessmen say this special program of U.S.-Mexican industrial partnership can only expand. Some see it as a vital American weapon in the economic wars of the coming decades.

"If the United States did not have these assembly plants, we would lose a competitive edge on the world market," said Edward George, an economist at the University of Texas at El Paso who has studied the system of "maquiladoras," a Spanish word for assembly plants.

The National Bank of Mexico forecasts that the number of Mexicans employed in the maquiladoras will leap from the current 135,000 to almost 500,000 by 1990.

"I think the future is unlimited," Carlos Riquelme, former president of a national association of maquiladoras, told a reporter. "I see the whole border area becoming a center of technology and industry in the 1990s."

One sign of growth: the population of this dust-blown city on the Rio Grande has doubled to 800,000 in just 14 years. Ciudad Juarez now has 130 maquiladoras, with 45,000 workers.

U.S. labor unions complain the Mexicans are taking jobs away from Americans. But George and other economists maintain the long-range survival of the companies involved — and the jobs of their U.S. employees — would be threatened if part of the manufacturing process was not carried out by cheap, unskilled labor.

The mushrooming of the border factories also is causing some alarm south of the border. Mexican nationalists see it as a new kind of American invasion, and some labor activists complain of exploitation by U.S. multinationals.

Under the program, begun in 1965 with just 12 plants, foreign-owned factories can import components from abroad without paying Mexican customs duty, assemble the parts into televisions, clothing or other products, then ship them back to the originating country. On products sent north, the companies pay only a small U.S. import duty on the value added by the labor.

Companies taking advantage of this lucrative system include RCA, General Motors, Farah, Hughes Aircraft, AMF and General Instrument.

Eighty percent of the maquiladora workers are women. They were found to be more dexterous and patient with assembly-line work — and, some say, more uncomplaining than Mexican men.

The factories pay the minimum wage — 280 pesos for an eight-hour day. Before February's 40 percent devaluation of the Mexican peso, that equaled about $11. But now it is $6.20, or 77 cents an hour. The Mexican government is urging businesses to boost wages to help make up for the devaluation.

Here in Ciudad Juarez, Mexicans now have to pay 40 percent more pesos for milk, eggs, chicken and other staples bought from nearby El Paso. The multinationals, on the other hand, spend 40 percent fewer dollars to finance their payrolls.

"The devaluation means the gringo factory owners make more profits," said Maria Elena Villegas Gonzalez, a nurse who is a leader of the Center for the Orientation of the Working Women, which offers counseling and other services to workers.

She said the workers' greatest problems are health-related, caused by overcrowded conditions and poor ventilation, too few cafeterias and rest facilities, and speed-conscious supervisors who keep workers from going to the restroom. The women suffer particularly from kidney and respiratory ailments, and from stress and related psychological problems, she said.

George said working conditions are poor because Mexican law lags far behind U.S. law on occupational safety and health.

"The lighting is bad. Workers in textile firms inhale cotton dust all day," he told a reporter. "Invariably, the women end up after two or three years with health problems, bad eyesight or whatever, and then they are fired." Although he agreed maquiladoras are valuable to American industry, George said he believes they will not help Mexico in the long run.

"They are almost an island of economic activity, by no means integrated with the Mexican economy." He noted the factories bring little new technology to Mexico, provide little training for Mexicans, and send 100 percent of their profits back to the home country.

Some Mexicans object on more political grounds.

"There is a risk of losing our own 'economic space,' of being incorporated into the United States' productive activity," scholars at Mexico City's Center of Third World Economic and Social Studies wrote recently. They favor a Mexican economy made by and for Mexicans.

A more immediate concern here is the cyclical nature of the maquiladora system. At least 10 percent of the maquiladora work force has been laid off during the recession. Mexico has no unemployment benefits or welfare payments.

"What happens when these multinational plants uproot and go to another country for some reason or other?" Mrs. Gonzalez asked. "They leave behind a number of people who are ill, who have no money, who are unprepared for other work."

Mixing Rock With Steel

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Union officials believe that mixing rock with steel might be a good weapon against hard times.

Local leaders of the United Steelworkers of America are hoping that a benefit rock concert on April 15 will raise $20,000 to open a food bank for workers whose jobless benefits are dwindling.

The food bank would let needy steelworkers buy groceries for a tenth of their cost.

"All we want to do is get food banks together so these people can at least eat. Our band will do everything it can for that," said Rick Granati, one of four Granati brothers with the rock group G-Force of nearby Beaver Falls.

"The steelworkers come out and see us play, so I think it's time for us to give something back," he said. "If we can help them raise money for a food bank, that's the least we can do. Pittsburgh was built on the steel industry. It's the backbone of the area. We don't want to see its back broken."

Four local bands have volunteered their services. The Iron City Houserockers will headline the concert, which also will feature G-Force, Rare Experience and Billy Price and the Keystone Rhythm Band.

The USW local figures that $20,000 will supply a bag of groceries a week for 300 to 400 families for one month.

The concert is the most ambitious money-making venture of the local, which also plans to raise funds through raffles, donations at mill gates, church collections and roller skating parties.

Past Catches Up With A Driver

KENOSHA, Wis. (AP) — When 13-year-old Carl Lightner was run over and killed, Clarence W. Busch was convicted of vehicular manslaughter and Carl's mother founded Mothers Against Drunk Driving.

Now Busch, 49, was been convicted of illegally trying to obtain a driver's license in Wisconsin.

Kenosha County Prosecutor Richard Ginkowski said Busch falsely stated that his license had never been taken away. He was fined $242 after pleading no contest.

The group, founded by Candy Lightner, lobbies for tougher penalties for drunk drivers, particularly repeat offenders.

Handful Of Indians Stake Claim To Ancestral Land

By DAVID EGNER
Associated Press Writer
YELLOW THUNDER CAMP, S.D. (AP) — They live in tepees in an isolated section of the Black Hills National Forest, nearly 40 Indians who for a year have refused to leave federal land taken from their ancestors more than 100 years ago.

The community, called Yellow Thunder Camp, is modeled after a traditional Sioux village.

The federal government has filed a lawsuit seeking a court order to evict the Indians and several white supporters, who arrived April 4, 1981.

"We're not here for a publicity stunt but because we're seriously committed to developing the Indian traditional life in the Black Hills," said Bill Means, 35, who helped found the community about 12 miles southwest of Rapid City.

The Dakota American Indian Movement has filed a countersuit, seeking permission to set up a permanent Indian village on 800 acres of the federal land. A trial is expected later this year.

"The Black Hills is the Jerusalem of the Upper Great Plains, the center of the Lakota Nation, historically and spiritually," Means said.

"Here we are Indian people who have control over our own land and destiny," said Bill Means' brother, Russell, a veteran AIM activist and another camp leader.

Sitting on a worn picnic bench in the wooden geodesic dome that serves as a combination meeting hall, dining room and school, Russell Means called the camp a major development in Indian history.

"For 100 years we've been forced to live in those concentration camps they call reservations," he said. "Here we've shown what we can accomplish when Indian people are left to their own resources."

The camp operates a school and sells a small amount of Indian craft items made by the women. By growing vegetables in solar greenhouses and raising rabbits and chickens, the Indians hope to become self-supporting in about three years, Means said.

For now, the camp depends on donations to survive. Means, 42, is the prime INDIAN CAMP — The Dakota American Indian Movement set up camp in a secluded Black Hills valley near Rapid City, S.C., on April 4, 1981. A year later, the 40-some occupants are determined to stay. fund-raiser, traveling around the country on speaking trips.

He gained national prominence as one of the leaders of AIM's 71-day occupation of the Indian village of Wounded Knee in 1973, which ended with two deaths and more than 300 arrests.

Both Means brothers were charged with felony violations as a result of the occupation. The charges were eventually dismissed.

Russell Means later served more than a year in the state prison after being convicted of inciting a riot at the Minnehaha County Courthouse in Sioux Falls.

Federal authorities and AIM members have worked to prevent a violent confrontation at Yellow Thunder Camp.

The government has sought to dismantle the camp through a civil lawsuit, instead of moving in with force to evict the illegal settlers.

Camp supporters are working to win passage of a bill introduced recently in Congress by Rep. Shirley Chisholm, D-N.Y., that would set aside 800 acres for 10 years for use by Indians.

Under the measure, the Indians would be allowed to erect semi-permanent buildings, prevent use of the land for commercial purposes and hunt animals for their own use. The campsite would remain open to U.S. Forest Service officials and to other outsiders.

"If this bill gets the necessary support, our court battle will be over," Bill Means said. If it passes, Indians would later seek permission to remain at the site after the 10 years are up, he said.

Federal officials have said they fear more Indian camps could spring up in the Black Hills if the Yellow Thunder Camp wins permission to remain.

Six-Foot Duck Is Not A Decoy

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — That blue, six-foot mallard is no decoy.

The human-sized duck, named Herman, is the latest effort by employees of Republic Airlines to promote the financially troubled carrier.

The big bird was modeled after the stylized blue mallard that is Republic's corporate symbol.

"When a travel agent sees a six-foot blue duck walk into his office with the airline's latest promotion brochure and a route map, we're confident he will remember Republic and book additional business on our airline," said Debbie Phelps, a Republic reservations agent in the Twin Cities.

Ms. Phelps is program coordinator for CARE — Caring Affects Republic and its Employees — group of Republic employees who are working on their own time to increase public awareness of the airline.

ple to the Black Hills," Russell Means said. "There aren't too many people — Indian or white — who care to live in a tepee year-round."

Means said he expects the camp population to reach 150 to 200 in coming years, and says it could eventually support up to 500 people.

Camp residents live in insulated tepees heated by makeshift wood stoves. The dwellings keep out extreme cold and remain at comfortable temperatures on most winter days, camp members say.

The center of the community is the wooden dome, 18 feet high and 39 feet in diameter.

The insulated building is heated by two wood stoves and lighted at night with lanterns. It has a dirt floor and is furnished with three picnic tables and several benches. Women use a propane stove to cook meals and two sewing machines for mending and making clothes.

Under a court order, the dome must come down by April 15, but the campers hope to get an extension, Russell Means said.

Religious ceremonies are an important part of daily life at the camp, he said. Pipe ceremonies, prayers in the camp sweat lodge and other rituals are held.

"We give thanks to the Four Winds, the Great Mystery, and our grandmother, Mother Earth," Means said.

Boston Still Segregated

BOSTON (AP) — The 1980 census shows that Boston remains as residentially segregated as it was a decade ago. The Boston Globe reported today.

The census also showed three of the city's predominantly white neighborhoods contain even fewer blacks than in 1970. In 1970, The Globe said, there were 389 blacks in South Boston, compared to 15 in 1980. The newspaper said many say they were driven out by racial incidents. And while the same "re-segregation" happened to a lesser extent in Charlestown, from 76 blacks in 1970 to 26 in 1980, and East Boston, 326 to 128, where residents also fought busing, the newspaper said, other mainly white neighborhoods in the city gained some black population. Due to a drop in whites and an increase in blacks, Jamaica Plain, Allston-Brighton, Hyde Park and parts of south Dorchester showed a significant racial mix, the newspaper said. And the predominately white neighborhoods of West Roxbury, Roslindale and the North End had small increases in blacks. The newspaper said sociologists say that re-segregation runs contrary to a more typical urban pattern in which blacks are gradually accepted into white areas rather than dislodged. They say it contributed to Boston's lack of progress toward integration along with white flight from black neighborhoods. Philip Clay, an assistant director for the Harvard-MIT

Joint Center for Urban Studies, said, "Except for a few tenants assigned to public housing, the numbers of blacks are near zero. That's not the case in the South or in cities that are equally ethnic, such as Hartford or Philadelphia. Here you can count on your hands the blacks in neighborhoods of 30,000 or 40,000."

Delays On Space-Based Laser

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Spending limitations have delayed secret Pentagon research on a space-based laser weapon that could give the United States a revolutionary defense against missile and bomber attack, government investigators say.

The General Accounting Office has told Congress and defense officials it questions whether the space-based laser program is "well-structured, funded and managed."

GAO urged that Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger "commit the necessary funds to meet...objectives and to maintain stability" in the program. The congressional investigative agency also proposed management and other reforms to speed the effort.

Its suggestions and criticisms were contained in a sanitized digest of a report. GAO said the full report included classified security information. No dollar amounts were mentioned, either those being spent or those recommended.

The digest said GAO had discussed a draft of its report with "high-level officials associated with management of the program, and they agreed with the facts presented."

Both the United States and the Soviet Union have been conducting research for years on high-energy laser concepts. Theoretically, laser weapons shooting intense beams of light through space could be used to destroy missile warheads in flight, as well as satellites and bombers.

Laser weapons research is part of a wider scientific hunt for what are called "directed-energy" beam devices which GAO said "may revolutionize military strategy, tactics and doctrine."

weapons are possibly a decade away from combat readiness.

"While effective space-based laser (SBL) missile defense systems could not be deployed until well into the future," GAO said, "emerging technology has progressed to the point at which its military use is relatively clear."

"However, significant technical uncertainties remain to be resolved before even a limited first-generation weapons system is possible."

According to GAO, the uncertainties lie in all aspects of the system, including the laser device; control of the high intensity light beam; detecting, tracking and aiming at targets; surveillance; command, control and communications, and other factors.

The Pentagon's Advanced Research Projects Agency now is responsible for demonstrating the three major components of such a system — the laser, large optics, and the extremely accurate acquisition, tracking and pointing system, GAO said.

"The present program is a funding-limited approach to developing the technology," the report summary said.

"This approach risks keeping the potentially revolutionary technology in component development for the foreseeable future" unless changes are made. "Funding limitations have caused performance reductions and schedule slippages," the GAO report said.

Police List

4 Collisions

An estimated $13,150 property damage resulted from a series of four traffic collisions investigated by Greenville police Wednesday.

Heaviest damage, according to investigators, resulted from a 3:59 p.m. mishap at the intersection of First and Elm streets involving cars driven by David Matthew Joyner of 106 North Park Drive and Ramak Shahidi of 206 N. Elm St.

Police, who charged Ms. Shahidi with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety, estimated damage at $1,500 to the Joyner car and $6,000 to the Shahidi vehicle.

Officers said Ms. Shahidi was injured in the mishap. Cars driven by Mack Simmons of Waverly, Ga., and Winifred Avery Nelson of Ayden collided about 5:11 p.m. at the intersection of Greenville Boulevard and Mall Drive, causing an estimated $2,500 damage to the Simmons car and $500 damage to the Nelson auto.

Ms. Nelson was charged with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety.

Police charged Steven Douglas VanCleave of 209 Elm Villa Apartments and Laura Payne Eredia of 2515 Ellsworth Drive with failing to reduce their speed enough to avoid an accident, following investigation of a 4:12 p.m. mishap on Dickinson Avenue near the Wade Street intersection.

Officers, who identified the driver of the third car involved as Melvin Lee Moore of Grimesland, estimated damage at $600 to the car Moore was driving, $800 to the VanCleave car, and $500 to the Eredia vehicle.

Cars driven by Elizabeth Braxton Pass of Route 1, Grimesland, and Jamis Wilkerson Williamson of 2205 Jefferson Drive collided about 3:45 p.m. on 10th Street, 45 feet east of the Oak Street intersection, causing $100 damage to the Pass car and $650 damage to the Williamson vehicle.

Woman Dies In Burning House

SHELBY, N.C. (AP) — A 78-year-old woman died in a fire in her house Wednesday morning, Shelby police said.

The victim was identified as Annie Surratt Berry, said police Lt. Dale Ledbetter.

Ms. Berry was the only person in the house at the time of the fire, he said. An oil heater apparently tipped over to cause the blaze.

Firemen fought the fire for an hour and a half, Ledbetter said.

Avers China On Verge Of Own Nuclear Plant

PEKING (AP) — China is on the verge of building its own small nuclear power plant, and may buy larger reactors for southern Guangdong province, a knowledgeable Western scientific source said today.

The source, who spoke on condition that his name not be used, said China planned to build a 300-megawatt power plant, possibly buying some of the components abroad.

Foreign companies do not build such small reactors, the source said. Larger plants are more economical but harder to construct, he said.

China announced last year that it had a research reactor in operation, and said this demonstrated the nation's capability to design and build its own nuclear power stations. It has had nuclear weapons for nearly 20 years.

The Chinese press has said only nuclear power can help the nation of 1 billion people meet an anticipated large shortage of energy at the end of this century. Vice Premier Zhang Aiping recently urged a propaganda campaign to inform citizens there is nothing mysterious or frightening about nuclear energy.

The scientific source said he believed China would also build a plant with two 900-megawatt reactors in Guangdong that would also sell electricity to the neighboring British colony of Hong Kong.

On a visit to Peking last month, Hong Kong Financial Secretary John Bremridge said he expected a Chinese decision on the proposed plant within the year.

France is seeking to sell 900-megawatt reactors to China. U.S. companies cannot sell nuclear technology or material to China because there is no official agreement between Peking and Washington on safeguards required by U.S. law to keep nuclear technology from being turned to military uses.

Approve Martin Reduction Plan

WILLIAMSTON — The Martin County Board of Education has approved a "reduction-in-force" policy drawn up recently by officials and board members of the Association of Classroom Teachers.

The policy sets forth guidelines for non-renewal of any teaching position terminated due to lack of funds. The policy is described as one that is based on seniority.

The board, which considered the plan at its April meeting, indicated it believes the policy is needed due to the fact that cutbacks could result in non-renewal of contracts for teachers who have teaching experience beyond the probationary period of three years.

Youth Held For Third Recent Mass Murder

By MICHAEL L. GRACZYK
Associated Press Writer
YALE, Mich. (AP) — A 16-year-old "friend of the family" has been jailed as a suspect in the rural killings of a woman and her four children, who were shot in the head with a rifle in Michigan's third mass murder in two months.

The unidentified boy had attended high school with one of the victims and lives within a mile of the home where the five bodies were found Wednesday, police said.

A powerful storm that buried Michigan under 8 inches of snow shut down the rural Yale schools Tuesday and Wednesday, and town schools superintendent Albert Kimmel said they would remain closed today because of the killings.

"I don't know what time the slayings occurred, but it's possible the children might have been in school had it not been for the storm," Kimmel said. "Everyone here is in a state of shock."

"There are no charges formally filed at this time but the juvenile subject is being held in custody" pending a decision on whether to charge him in Probate Court, Prosecutor Robert Cleland said.

He identified the victims as Betty Giuliani and her four adopted children, Erick, 19, Kathleen, 16, Cindy Joe, 13, and Dino, 9.

Mrs. Giuliani's husband, Richard, was at work at the General Motors Corp. Tech Center in the Detroit suburb of Warren during the morning when the slayings are believed to have occurred, said St. Clair County Sheriff David Doktor. The home is 55 miles north of Detroit.

Detective Bruce Lindke of the St. Clair County Sheriff's Department said all five were shot with a .22-caliber rifle. Assistant St. Clair County Medical Examiner Benjamin C. Clyne said all five were shot in the head. Autopsies were planned today, Cleland said.

A neighbor who had planned to go bowling Wednesday with Mrs. Giuliani found the bodies inside the home shortly before 8 a.m., authorities said. The neighbor, who asked that her name not be used, said she had spoken to Mrs. Giuliani by telephone that morning. Police took the unidentified teen-ager into custody around 6 p.m. He was questioned for about 75 minutes, handcuffed, then transported to the county jail in nearby Port Huron, where he was lodged as a suspect, Lindke said.

Cleland described the boy as a "friend of the family."

The detective said there were no other suspects in the murders.

Erick Giuliani was a quarterback for the Yale High School football team last year and his sister, Kathleen, sang in the high school choir this year, Kimmel said.

Cindy Joe Giuliani was in the eighth grade at Yale Junior High School and Dino was in the fourth grade at Yale Elementary School, Kimmel said.

Mrs. Giuliani had taught religious education classes for four years, said the Rev. Joseph Nosal, pastor of Sacred Heart parish. Clyne, of the medical examiner's office, said the bodies of the mother and oldest daughter were found in a hallway, the body of Cindy Joe was found in a bathroom, Erick was found in a bedroom and Dino was discovered in a shower.

All the victims were fully clothed and one child was still in nightclothes, sheriff's deputies said. There was no sign of forced entry or robbery at the murder scene.

Seven members of the George Post family were discovered slain on their farm near Farwell in Clare County on Feb. 16. On March 13, five members of the Robert Paulson family were found shot to death in their burning home in Allendale.

Robert Lee Haggart, 31, of rural Clare, is awaiting trial in Clare County Circuit Court on seven charges of first-degree murder in the Post killings. Haggart's estranged wife was one of the seven victims.

No arrests have been made in the murders of Paulson, his wife and three daughters, Ottawa County Sheriff Robert D. Dykstra said Wednesday.

Research Casts Doubt On Soviet Nuke Accident

By RICHARD T. PIENCIAK

Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Western belief that a nuclear dump explosion created a "vast barren wasteland" near the Ural Mountains has been challenged by a new study that blames the contamination on decades of careless Soviet air and water pollution.

For years, the "Kyshtym disaster" in the winter of 1957-58 has been referred to in the West as the worst nuclear accident ever. Dissident Soviet scientists claim that the blast left hundreds dead from radiation and leveled as much as 1,000 square miles of land.

But a Los Alamos National Laboratory team, using classified CIA and military documents, now contends that there was no nuclear explosion, that the Soviet government caused the contamination by "carelessness and blatant disregard for their people or their surroundings." The researchers said that the explosion theory needed to be "examined impartially" because Kyshtym was "no longer merely an intriguing enigma; the allegations surrounding it bear heavily on the whole question of nuclear waste disposal in the United States."

The Soviet government has never commented on Kyshtym.

The report said that contamination east of the city of Kyshtym in the southern Urals is due chiefly to many years of discharging polluted water from nuclear reactors and chronic "acid rain" produced by a mix of high humidity and nitrogen oxide emissions from a plutonium enrichment plant, which would explain reports of dead trees and grass.

If the Soviets, in the rush to produce plutonium, did not adequately cool irradiated fuel elements, "the off gases would also contain appreciable amounts of radioactive iodine," the researchers added.

Improper ground disposal of radioactive liquid wastes was cited as another possible cause of contamination. Researchers did not rule out the possibility that a chemical explosion eventually occurred from the compacted storage of ammonium nitrate and hexone, a flammable solvent, among clay particles at the dried-out bottom of an artificial lake used to store nuclear wastes.

The three-year Department of Energy study concludes that while a contaminated area does exist it is far smaller than originally claimed.

The sources and documentation for the Los Alamos findings were not revealed because they are classified as secret, according to laboratory spokesman Jim Breen.

The Los Alamos team started with the supposition that the Soviet's first plutonium production facility, built in the late 1940s near Kyshtym, was modeled after the wartime U.S. plutonium complex in Hanford, Wash.

According to the report: A similar, but less carefully regulated, method of cooling was probably employed, with the used water pumped into an artificial lake that flowed into the Techa River.

By 1953, the lake was being fed from three reactors and "had become dangerously radioactive," the report concluded.

Citing classified references to "the leaky reactor at Kyshtym," the report said existence of the "chronic, waterborne source of radioactive contamination" was proof that the river valley was being contaminated "long before any suggested Kyshtym disaster date."

Breen confirmed the existence of a more detailed, classified version of the public report and would say only that the study's authors were given "wide access to classified material from more than one federal agency, including those involved in intelligence gathering."

The authors, chemist Diane M. Soran and physicist Danny B. Stillman, refused to be interviewed directly for fear they might mix up what is classified and what is not, Breen said, adding that both possess high-level security clearances.

The Kyshtym region, where munitions have been produced since the czarist period, has always been of interest to U.S. intelligence. Francis Gary Powers' U-2 spy plane was shot down in 1959 near Sverdlovsk, just to the north of Kyshtym.

The new study challenges the assertions of Soviet emigre scientists Zhores Medvedev and Lev Tumerman as well as a 1979 report by the Oak Ridge National Laboratory that an explosion in a nuclear waste disposal site had caused the widespread contamination.

"It seems rather apparent that the Soviet nuclear program has had to contend with a catastrophe involving reprocessed nuclear wastes," the Oak Ridge researchers proclaimed in 1979.

However, Ed Aebischer, public affairs officer for the Oak Ridge, Tenn., laboratory, said this week that the environmental scientists who conducted the 1979 research had no access to classified documents, but reviewed Soviet ecological and biological journals.

In 1977 the CIA released some information about Kyshtym but withheld portions of 14 documents and another 15 entirely on national security grounds. The new report also contains military maps apparently based on aerial intelligence photographs.

Medvedev, a geneticist, has been writing in the West since 1972 that nuclear wastes stored near the first Soviet atomic power plants exploded and carried radioactive particles over a wide area.

He claimed that hundreds of people died of radioactive poisoning, and the 1977 CIA material quoted Soviet sources as saying "hundreds of people perished."

The public report does not address the question of deaths but Breen said the evidence "did not suggest large numbers of cancer deaths."

Tumerman reported that when he drove through the Kyshtym region in 1961 he found it abandoned, with radiation warning signs frequently posted.

"As far as one could see, the land was dead: no villages, no towns, only the chimneys of destroyed homes, no cultivated field or pastures, no herds, no people — nothing," Tumerman later wrote.

Medvedev, who now lives in London, told The Energy Daily, a Washington-based trade publication, that he is skeptical of the new conclusions. "It's just like them to say that 'we have materials that prove our point, but you can't see them.' That's not scientific proof."

Winners Announced In Annual Math Contest

ECU News Bureau
Individual and school winners from 16 eastern North Carolina counties received awards at East Carolina University's fifth annual High School Mathematics Contest.

Nearly 1,300 students from 95 junior and senior high schools participated in the competition.

Contests were held for junior and senior students in Algebra I, Algebra II and Geometry. The comprehensive mathematics competition served as the required first stage of competition for the fourth annual statewide mathematics contest to be held in May at the Research Triangle Park.

Students who placed in the top 5 percent of the comprehensive math contest qualified for entry in the statewide event.

The top 5 percent of the Algebra I contestants will compete in a Region I Algebra I run-off contest

May 6 at Beaufort Community College.

Award-winning schools were given trophies or certificates.

Speakers and award presenters at the contest included Dr. John Daniels of the ECU Department of Mathematics, contest chairman; Dr. John M. Howell, acting ECU Chancellor; Becky Oates, Region I supervisor; Robert Jones of the State Department of Public Instruction; Gary Richardson, acting chairman of the ECU Mathematics Department; Hugh Barnett, head of the Beaufort Community College Mathematics Department; Dr. Angelo Volpe, ECU dean of arts and sciences; and Kathryn Hodgin, president of the North Carolina Council of Teachers of Mathematics and an ECU mathematics professor.

Area students who qualified for the statewide mathematics contest in Raleigh in May include K.G.

Boles of D.H. Conley High School; Donna Coster of Farmville Central High School, and James Hamilton of J.H. Rose High School.

North Pitt High School won first place in the Algebra II competition and one of its students, David Davenport, finished third in individual competition in that event.

Boles finished fourth in the comprehensive mathematics competition. Carl Willie of Aycock Junior High School, Greenville, qualified for the Region I competition in Algebra I at Beaufort Community College.

We put our foot down about apartments being within walking distance.

Wedgewood Arms apartments are within walking distance of three shopping centers, a nursery school, a junior high school, doctors' and dentists' offices and an athletic center.

As if that wasn't enough, three major traffic arteries, 264 Bypass, Arlington Blvd. and Charles St. are close enough to be seen and not heard.

Fact is, no apartments in town can legitimately claim to be more convenient to more things than Wedgewood Arms.

And, that's not all. Because Wedgewood Arms is not only convenient, it's different in other ways, too.

Take the floorplans: they're different from anything you've ever seen. And when you add in high energy efficiency, tennis courts, swimming pool, and the neighborhood "feeling" that these apartments will give you—well, you'll just have to see for yourself.

Escape By Four Prison Inmates

McLEANSVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Prison officials said four prisoners being held at a minimal custody state prison escaped Wednesday night by scaling a fence.

Prison District Manager D.G. Luther said the men are believed to have taken a car from a nearby mill after the 8 p.m. jail break.

He said the men, who were discovered missing during a compound check, are not believed to be armed.

The escapees were identified as William Randy Lee, 25, a convicted felon from Greensboro who was serving a 6- to 10-year sentence for his conviction on charges of larceny of a vehicle and breaking and entering; Tony Stafford, 20, of Winston-Salem, who was serving a sentence for larceny; Charles Mann, 33, of New York, who was serving a 2-year sentence for assault and battery on a female and malicious damage to property, and Ennis Hodge, 20, of Mount Airy, who was serving time for resisting arrest and reckless driving with no insurance.

Dan Rather Has Become Everybody's Target

By KENNETH R. CLARK
UPI TV Reporter

NEW YORK (UPI) — Call it the spring offensive. Certainly when the networks go for the Nielsen, it's war, and at the moment there is no war they would rather win than the one shaping up over news ratings.

ABC's "World News Tonight" skirmishes every week with NBC's "Nightly News" to see which of them will wind up in second place — usually by a fraction of a point — and NBC has just rolled two big new guns named Roger Mudd and Tom Brokaw to the front lines.

The spring offensive is on and Dan Rather is everybody's target.

There is nothing new in that. Rather has been in the crosshairs ever since he replaced Walter Cronkite over a year ago as anchorman for the CBS "Evening News," and in keeping with his personal style, he doesn't entertain himself with delusions of invincibility.

"We're in a good period now but who knows how long it will last?" he said. "The ratings are mysterious, but because they are mysterious, you can't weep about them when they're bad or gloat about them when they're good. I don't want us to have our focus on that. That can't be our standard with the job we're doing."

The job Rather has been doing — with lucid assistance from Bill Moyers — has kept CBS in first place with few exceptions for the last year, and reinforcements are on the way.

Charles Kuralt, who has passed the "Morning News" anchor to Bill Kurtis, is slated to return to the "Evening News" later this month to revive, among other things, his classical "On the Road" reports.

With that team in place, Rather does not expect to lose his lead.

"Our broadcasting is substantive," he said. "It's quality. We're a hard news broadcast and we do it, I think, better than anybody else ... It's a combination of being classy with guts. It's impossible for me to express the pride I have in Bill Moyers being on my broadcast. Bill does stuff of substance — the real stuff."

And what will Kuralt be doing when he joins the team?

"He's going to be doing whatever he wants to do because I give Charlie carte blanche," said Rather. "He'll certainly be doing pieces in the genre of 'On the Road.' We know he does that well. But I also know he can do a lot of other things ... politics, economics.

"I think he could do economics in a way nobody is doing it."

To Rather, putting his nightly broadcast together is a matter of taking information and turning it into knowledge.

"It's like coupling railroad cars," he said. "Information doesn't become knowledge until you make a coupling ... People get so much information they're drowning in it. We try to tell it straight. We try to make it comprehensive. We try to make sense out of it."

"Einstein once said, 'You should make things as simple as possible, but not one bit simpler.'"

A year at the CBS anchor desk has seasoned the man who spent most of his life aggressively practicing his journalism in the field and lending muscle to "60 Minutes." He is more relaxed on camera and he reflects the satisfaction that comes of seeing one's initial instincts proven right.

"Before I came in here," he said, "any number of people said, 'Dan, you're kidding yourself. You have a great illusion that the fact that you've banged around all over the world is going to help you in this job. It isn't going to amount to anything. You're going into a different world. You're going to be on a different planet.' "I didn't believe it, but I confess I did have some qualms about it because so many people told me. What I'm pleased about is that they were wrong. It makes a big difference.

"Part of my banging around was in Central America in the early '60s ... Now, with our problems in El Salvador, I know a few things about that part of the world because I've been there."

Rather winces at only one subject — the sweaters he has taken to wearing on the air and the froth they have kicked up among television reporters, proving that no evening newscast really can be free of show business when anchormen become celebrities.

"I've had a cold a lot this winter and my wife said I should start wearing a sweater around the office," he said. "One day we had a situation where we were working a story right down to air time and I just put my coat on over it without thinking."

"I don't want to spend time thinking about it. I'm into substance, not sweaters."

Yet Rather admitted it was not the sweater, it probably would be something else, the show business factor being what it is.

"It's a factor we live with," he said. "We cannot be consumed by it and we have to recognize that it's toxic. It's unhealthy."

Rather summed up his idea of health most succinctly.

"Somebody is going to define network television for the 1980s," he said. "I want that somebody to be us."

STUNT GOES AWRY — Stuntman Mickey Gilbert's camper truck flies off a ramp, sails through the air, then unexpectedly sails over the roof of a house he was aiming at during filming of an episode for 20th Century Fox' "Fall Guy" recently in Agoura, Calif. The stunt occurred about 300 yards from a ranch lake where another stuntman was killed in 1977 when a similar truck ramp failed. Gilbert was uninjured in the mishap. (AP Laserphoto)

Ingrid Bergman To Be Honored

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Ingrid Bergman will be honored April 15 by the National Conference of Christians and Jews at a special world premiere screening of the four-hour television movie, "A Woman Called Golda."

The three-time Academy Award winning actress stars in the role of the late Golda Meir, Israel's former prime minister, filmed on locations in Israel.

"A Woman Called Golda," which also stars Ned Beatty, Franklin Cover and Judy Davis, received official endorsements from the National Education Association and The American Federation of Teachers.

Today's Cryptiquip clue: U equals N

The Cryptiquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

YOUR DAILY Horoscope from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You need to be careful that you are not too fixed and determined in your viewpoints today and tonight or you could encounter more trouble than you had hoped for.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Don't be forceful with others who disagree with your views. Come to a better accord with co-workers. Be wise.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Listening to suggestions of associates is wise now and be sure to cooperate more with them. Try to be helpful to others.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Schedule your work activities wisely and then carry through with them in a positive manner. Don't waste time.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You may want to have a good time now, but it's to your best interest to save money now instead of spending it.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You have to be diplomatic at home today to avoid trouble. Study a new project well since it is bound to have some flaws.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Be tactful with others so that they don't take their ire out on you. Avoid a tendency to splurge when you can't afford it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You have to be careful in the handling of investments and other financial matters to avoid trouble at this time.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Be more thoughtful of others in going after your aims and avoid unpleasantness. Take steps to improve your health.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Keep personal worries to yourself since others have their own problems to think about. Think constructively.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Take advantage of an opportunity coming your way that could give you added income. Strive for happiness.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Study new activities that interest you early in the day but don't make decisions until the evening.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Put off until tomorrow an activity that is concerned with improving your welfare. Take positive steps to gain your goals.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will have the ability to solve problems that are difficult for others, so be sure to give as fine an education as you can afford and teach to be objective for best results. The latter years will be most self-satisfying.

Residents Want To Keep Crank Phones

BRYANT POND, Maine (AP) - With an eye on history and their hands on the telephone crank, residents of this western Maine village are trying to preserve as a "working museum" what they say is the last of the nation's antique phone systems.

The "Don't Yank the Crank" committee is asking state utility regulators to step in and stop the Oxford Telephone and Telegraph Co. from replacing the antiquated magneto system with dial phones in this town of 1,000. The company objects.

"We're a telephone company, not a museum," Oxford General Manager F. Robert Jamison said Monday. "It isn't feasible."

"The cost is one thing," he said. "Service is another. We'd have to keep a dual set of records."

Rates for crank phones would differ from those in the rest of Oxford's relatively small telephone system, making billing difficult, he said.

But Alice A. Johnson, chairwoman of the Crank committee, said her plan involves no financial risk to the telephone company.

"We will purchase and renovate a house on Main Street that would be suitable for a museum," she said. Inside, a switching station would handle calls on early dial phones, which some of the town's 440 telephone subscribers might want, as well as those placed on the hand-cranked system, she said.

"People visiting the museum could have the unique opportunity of seeing two examples of early telecommunication in working order," Mrs. Johnson said, adding that they could even have a chance to operate a switchboard.

The committee has lined up funding for the museum and will continue with its plans until the case before the state Public Utilities Commission is settled, she said.

Oxford took over the Bryant Pond Telephone Co. from a local family last year. The magneto system's switchboard is still in the home of Elden Hathaway, who owned the Bryant Pond Telephone Co. for three decades before selling out in the face of operating losses.

The PUC also is considering a request by 10 Bryant Pond residents to prevent a total conversion to a dial system planned by the phone company.

The PUC discussed the matter Friday in Augusta, and hearing examiner Jane Bradley said the commission "is committed" to making a decision as soon as possible.

Unite As Major Blanket-Makers

KANNAPOLIS, N.C. (AP) - Cannon Mills Co. and Ibena Inc. have announced an agreement in principle to create one of the largest high-quality velour blanket-producing facilities in the United States.

The blankets would be sold in the United States and Canada.

Spokesmen for the two companies said Beacon Manufacturing Co., Cannon's

Cannon is one of the nation's largest manufacturers of towels and home accessories, while Ibena is a wholly owned U.S. subsidiary of Ibena Textilwerke Beckmann GMBH & Co of Germany, which has finishing facilities in North Carolina and South Carolina.

Guilty Plea On One Of Killings

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) - A man charged with murdering five women in three states has pleaded guilty to the shooting death of one of the women, saying he's "made peace with my God."
The plea Tuesday by Stephan Peter Morin, 34, cleared the way for a jury to decide whether he should be executed or receive life in prison.
In addition to the Dec. 11 slaying of Carrie Marie Scott, 21, of San Antonio, Morin is charged with killing two women kidnapped in Las Vegas, Nev., in 1980 and the murder of a waitress in Denver in November 1981. He also is charged with the Dec. 1 slaying of a 21-year-old in Corpus Christi, Texas.

New AutoTerm® Plan makes possible...

• No Money Down!

• $132⁸¹ Per Month!

On New '82 1301 Tercel
9 Colors To Choose From

• 3 Year/45,000 Mile TEMA Available!

Explanation: The remarkable new AutoTerm plan—available now at Toyota East in Greenville—brings down the high cost of transportation. AutoTerm is less costly than the conventional way of buying a car... and it's better than any lease you've ever seen.
Imagine, a new Toyota for under $133 per month...and with no money down! The savings on your monthly payments and down payment add up to hundreds of dollars. That's money in the bank...earning you money!
All vehicles qualify for TEMA (Toyota East Maintenance Agreement)—3 year, 45,000 mile extended service plan.

Term is 48 months. To calculate total of payments, simply multiply 48 by the monthly payment amount. First monthly payment and a refundable security deposit in that same amount required at beginning of lease. You have no responsibility at end of term...you may purchase the car or walk away...your option. Prices shown require approved credit and do not include tax and license.

Examples:

2-door Corolla $159²⁹ per month

Half-ton Truck $155²⁴ per month

Landmark Smoker Study:

Merit Earns Taste Trophy.

Rigorous smoker tests confirm MERIT as proven taste alternative to higher tar smoking.

Just released—the results of extensive new research conducted by MERIT.

MERIT Remains Unbeaten.

In impartial new tests where brand identity was concealed, the overwhelming majority of smokers reported MERIT taste equal to—or better than—leading higher tar brands.

Moreover, when tar levels were revealed, 2 out of 3 chose the MERIT combination of low tar and good taste.

Taste Turning Smokers To MERIT.

In a separate part of this study, smokers report that MERIT taste is a major factor in completing their successful switch from higher tar brands.

Confirmed: 9 out of 10 former higher tar smokers say MERIT is an easy switch, that they didn't give up taste in switching, and that MERIT is the best-tasting low tar they've ever tried.

Year after year, in study after study, MERIT remains unbeaten. The proven taste alternative to higher tar smoking—is MERIT.
