Tens Of Thousands Jam Vatican

Pope Celebrates Easter

From Wire Reports

VATICAN CITY — Pope John Paul II shed his purple mourning robes and donned white vestments Saturday to celebrate the resurrection of Jesus Christ on Easter Sunday, the holiest day of the Christian calendar.

Thousands of pilgrims watched as the pope led a procession of Vatican prelates to the porch of St. Peter's Basilica, where he lighted a long white candle and blessed the "new fire" of the Divine Grace at the end of Holy Saturday's vigil.

After the lighting of the candle — symbolizing Christ as the light to the world — the pope put on his white vestments to celebrate Mass in the splendor of the world's largest cathedral.

Halfway through the two-hour ceremony, the mood abruptly changed from sorrow for the death of Christ to jubilation for his resurrection.

Gregorian chants echoed through the basilica. The smell of melting wax filled the air.

"Christ, once raised from the dead, will never die again; death has no more power over him," the pope said in his homily, quoting from the Bible.

"In the same way you must consider yourselves dead to sin but alive for God in Christ Jesus ... Christ has become in each one of us the cornerstone of the new building," he said.

When the choir began the joyful strains of the Gloria, the 10-ton bell of St. Peter's began to ring, proclaiming Christ's resurrection. The bells of Rome's 500 churches, silent since Holy Thursday, rang out later in the day.

Taking advantage of clear, early summer weather, tens of thousands of people milled about in St. Peter's Square as security officers with electronic gadgets checked those entering the huge basilica.

In most other Roman Catholic churches, Holy Saturday services were scheduled for later in the evening, to culminate with the arrival of Easter Sunday.

The Vatican's service is held earlier so the pope has enough time to rest before Sunday morning's outdoor Mass in St. Peter's Square.

The Mass and blessing were to be broadcast live to millions of television viewers in Western Europe, Latin America, Africa and the Far East.

On Good Friday, the only day in Christian year when Mass cannot be celebrated, the pope carried a black wooden cross through Rome's ancient ruins, retracing symbolically Jesus' steps to the Crucifixion on the skull-shaped Jerusalem hill of the Calvary.

At each stop, John Paul prayed for those who suffer from hunger, whose rights are violated, who are condemned unfairly and who are kidnap victims.

City officials said there were at least a million tourists in Rome for Easter. Tens of thousands of them went to the vast square, where John Paul was shot and wounded in an assassination attempt May 13.

Catholics from across Italy were also converging on Rome and officials expected an audience of more than 250,000 faithful when John Paul delivers his blessing on Easter Sunday.

A Vatican spokesman said hunger demonstrators taking part in a morning march through Rome to St. Peter's square would be free to join the throng.

"However by the time the marchers arrive, the square will be packed and they will have to cluster around the fringes," the Vatican spokesman skid.

The Easter Sunday protest march was sponsored by the small left-wing Radical Party in support of its campaign to get the Italian government to appropriate more funds to combat hunger in developing countries.

The march was also backed by Italy's Communist Party. Some church organizations also were taking part.

Three Nobel prize winners from a group of 69 who signed a manifesto against world hunger last year were expected to lead the marchers. They were Hannes Alfven (Physics prize 1970), Britain's Philip Noel Baker (Peace prize, 1958) and Northern Ireland's Betty Williams (Peace prize, 1976).

On the eve of the march, the Italian government announced it has pledged $85 million to U.N. organizations for a campaign against hunger in 15 Third World countries.

ECU Candidate List Still At Four Names

East Carolina University's Chancellor Search Committee will meet April 24 to discuss four finalists for the ECU post, committee chairman Ashley B. Futrell said Saturday.

Futrell, who also is ECU's trustee chairman, denied reports circulating in Greenville earlier Saturday that the list of candidates had been pared to acting Chancellor John M. Howell and Dr. Fred Young, president of Elon College.

"We have not even met," Futrell said, referring to his committee.

The committee earlier identified Howell, Young and two other candidates as being finalists: Dr. James A. Robinson, president of the University of West Florida at Pensacola, and Dr. Charles Q. Brown, acting dean of the ECU School of Technology and chairman of the ECU Geology Department.

Computers: Area Of Technology On The Move

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Computers, in this age of technology, are the popular thing for handling a number of tasks that have been done "by hand" in the past.

Businesses have been using them for years. More recently, because of the advances made in the electronics field toward miniaturization, computers are now available for use in the home.

And because of new manufacturing techniques and other developments, computers are becoming relatively less expensive to own and operate.

While the use of computers doesn't necessarily lead to a reduction of the number of employees a business may need, their use can postpone the need for new workers.

And computers can get things done more quickly, more efficiently and more accurately.

It's easy to blame "the computer" for errors. But computers are only as good as those who operate them — humans — and humans can make mistakes in what information they put into the computer or what they tell the computer to do.

The largest computer in Pitt County is an IBM 3081 now being installed at Burroughs Wellcome Co. It's scheduled to go into operation on Tuesday.

The new water-cooled IBM 3081, which is replacing a water-cooled IBM 3033, is considered "the latest technology" as far as processing is concerned, according to Ron Irwin.

Irwin, who heads the day-to-day computer operations at the pharmaceutical manufacturer's Greenville plant, characterized BW as "a large system user. The installation itself is considered large. Other companies (nationwide) are larger users," he noted, "but very few of them."

The computer itself, valued at about $4 million, rents for about $120,000 per month, Irwin said. That doesn't include other equipment housed in the computer room, such as disk and tape drives and printers, that are valued at another $4 million, or the 350 to 400 terminals here and at BW's facility in the Research Triangle Park, near Raleigh, that are connected to it.

Irwin said relatively few companies purchase large computers because the state-of-the-arts is advancing so rapidly that computers tend to become outmoded relatively quickly.

In addition to the new "large" computer, BW has a "smaller computer ... a medium installation" at the Research Triangle, which is linked to the new Greenville installation so the company can "transmit data back and forth between the two," and "four or so computers of smaller variety," used by BW in Greenville for "process control (monitor instrumentation and control equipment)" in the manufacture of drugs.

While BW's new computer is large, "there's nothing unusual about it," Irwin suggested.

"It's a general purpose computer ... used here for supporting five basic units: manufacturing (from reporting and predicting inventory levels to planning raw materials needed to manufacture products), finance (payroll, accounts payable, income and outgo), research (preparation of new drug applications, statistical analysis, evaluating most everything we do), organizational development (the human resource application), and

Pitt Memorial Doctor Treated President

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

It was during her first night of work in the Pitt County Memorial Hospital Emergency Department that Dr. Joyce Mitchell saw portions of a nationally televised re-enactment of the emergency medical care given President Ronald Reagan when he sustained a gunshot wound during an assassination attempt March 30 of last year.

Dr. Mitchell was interested in seeing the re-enactment on ABC's "20-20" program because she was in it. She "played" herself doing the things she had actually done as part of her duty as attending physician when the president, his wounded press secretary James Brady and wounded Secret Service agent Tim McCarthy were brought to George Washington Hospital following a 2:30 p.m. shooting at the Washington Hilton Hotel. She wasn't able to see all of the segment, however, because she was at work.

Dr. Mitchell recalls her part in the events surrounding the emergency care that medical experts credit for saving the president's life. "We were just finishing stabilizing a woman who had had cardiac arrest and whom we had resuscitated. Otherwise, we weren't as busy as we usually are on a Monday afternoon. Suddenly there was some popping on a policeman's radio and he told me there had been a shooting at the Hilton," she said.

"I knew we were probably the closest hospital to the Hilton, so I told the charge nurse to set up for a trauma case. About two minutes later, I heard the peculiar ring of the white phone that is an always-open direct line from the White House. Nurse Wendy Koenig answered and relayed the information that the presidential motorcade was on the way."

Dr. Mitchell said she did not know who in the motorcade was ill or injured, but she called for a trauma team and then ran out to the receiving ramp.

"A Secret Service agent was the first one out of the car," she said, "and the president was second. I knew then he was the patient. He looked bad and he wouldn't have been getting out if he weren't the one. He was walking and a Secret Service team whisked him inside.

"Once inside his knees sort of buckled and he said something about having trouble breathing. The Secret Service and nurses carried him to an examining room and I listened to his heart and lungs and ordered blood, two IVs and oxygen. The Secret Service seemed to have thought he had some sort of rib injury, based on his having been shoved into the car when the shots were fired."

At 97, He's A Slugger

By JANE WELBORN
Reflector Staff Writer

The man squinted at the pitcher and pushed the dirt in the batter's box with his foot. As the ball came speeding toward the plate, he took a mighty swing and hit the ball to center field.

Now that it is spring, baseball games are a common sight. But one man playing softball in St. Petersburg, Fla., is no ordinary player. Fred Broadwell is the oldest active softball player in the world.

The former Greenville resident, now 97 years old, plays for the world-renowned Kids and Kubs Three-Quarter Century Softball Club. The organization is made up of 30 retired men over the age of 75. Because there is no other team like it anywhere, the members divide up into two teams and play each other. The Kids wear blue caps and the Kubs wear red. The team uniform consists of white shirt with black bow tie and long duck trousers.

According to Broadwell, the requirements for membership are few. "You have to show that you can throw, and catch a softball, and you have to show what kind of guy you are," Broadwell explained in a telephone interview recently.

And Fred Broadwell is some kind of guy. He has been a member of the team for 19 years. Even a bout of pneumonia several years ago did not slow him down for long. "My only handicap is that I don't hear too well," he said in an interview with The St. Petersburg Times last year. "From the head down, I tell everybody I'm still a young man."

In November, an Oldsters Centennial game will be held in Florida. "When the man got in touch with me about it," Broadwell said, "he told me that I headed the list of oldsters."

Broadwell has played infield and outfield for the Kids. He rides a bus to the North Shore Park for each practice and plays at least three innings a game for the blue caps.

"Lots of people ask me what in the world do I attribute being able to play softball at my age," Broadwell said. "I tell them that there are 40 old maids and widows living in the retirement hotel where I live. How can I get old chasing them?"

Argentines Vow To Wage Battle Over Falklands

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — The military president told about 300,000 cheering supporters Saturday that the armed forces will go into battle if a British armada tries to retake the Falkland Islands. The throng whistled and booed when he mentioned the United States.

A 200-mile British war zone around the islands goes into effect at 12:01 a.m. Monday local time — 11 p.m. Sunday EST. And President Reagan said in a radio address from his vacation in Barbados, "We'll do all we can to help bring a peaceful resolution to this matter."

The multitude, reminiscent of the crowds drawn to the historic Plaza de Mayo by President Juan Peron and his wife Eva in the 1940s and 50s, waved blue and white national flags and exploded in cheers when President Gen. Leopoldo Galtieri defied Britain to attack Argentine soil.

Galtieri appeared on the balcony of Government House after meeting for 90 minutes with Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr., who arrived from London in an effort to avert war over the tiny British territory — called the Malvinas by Argentina. Haig did not speak to reporters.

Argentina seized the islands, 250 miles east of the mainland, on April 2.

The Argentine president told the throng gathered below him that Argentina "extends its hand, in peace, to the adversary. But let the world be sure that this (the Argentine) people is firm in its will. If they (the British) want to come, then let them come and we will do battle ...

"I am proud, in my discussions with the representative of the U.S. government, to maintain Argentina's dignity and honor, which is not subject to negotiation by anyone. The people are ready to battle anyone who dares touch one square meter of Argentine soil," he said, drawing a thunderous cheer.

Galtieri's mention of the U.S. government brought whistles and boos from the crowd, angry with America's support for a U.N resolution demanding Argentine withdrawal.

Hundreds of banners fluttered over the 10-acre Plaza de Mayo, proclaiming Argentine determination to keep the Falklands. "We Will Not Lose With Ink What We Won With Blood!" read one. Another read: "Sovereignty Shall Not Be Negotiated!"

The islands' newly installed Argentine governor, Gen. Mario Menendez, ordered residents to hand over shortwave radio sets to military authorities and said all shortwave antennas outside the capital of Port Stanley must be taken down because of Britain's intention to blockade the islands.

The conservative Buenos Aires daily La Nacion quoted a high military source as saying any British attempt to land on the islands would be "nearly suicidal" because of the lack of air support.

In Brussels, the Common Market decided to boycott Argentine exports to Europe, valued at $1.7 billion in 1980, the last year for which figures were available.

An Argentine Foreign Ministry communique condemned the boycott, saying it was a violation "of the norms and practices of international law."

A fleet of 40 British warships headed by two aircraft carriers was reported off the West African coast and is expected in waters surrounding the Falklands in about nine days. But at least one British submarine, the nuclear-powered Superb, is believed to already be near the islands.

Falklands Have Long Been Disputed

By JOHN REICHERTZ

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (UPI) — Argentina and Britain have squared off for a major naval battle in the South Atlantic because of an old-fashioned nationalistic struggle over the tiny Falkland Islands.

Just two weeks ago, the islands, their 600,000 sheep and 1,800 inhabitants were nothing more than an 149-year-old point of contention between the two nations.

Negotiations had dragged on for 15 years over the British-administered colony 450 miles off the Argentine coast, and it appeared they might go on for another 15 years.

But on the evening of April 1, about 4,000 Argentine marines launched an amphibious assault on the windswept islands. By the following morning they overwhelmed the 78 Royal Marine defenders and the British governor quickly surrendered.

After recovering from the shock, Britain's Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher ordered two-thirds of her fleet to steam south to teach a lesson to Argentina for what Britons called "brutal aggression."

On Monday the aircraft carriers Invincible and Hermes, following the seafaring tradition of Britain's imperial past, set out through the historic sea walls of Portsmouth to retake the islands.

By Wednesday, the Thatcher government announced a blockade would be imposed around the islands Sunday night and warned that Argentine ships found within a 200-mile radius of the Falklands would be sunk.

In Buenos Aires, nationalist feelings skyrocketed. They had hit rock bottom days earlier over an overheated, inflationary economy. Volunteers lined up for induction and the junta alerted 100,000 reservists.

Suddenly presented with the prospect of a military showdown between two U.S. allies, President Reagan sent Secretary of State Alexander Haig to London and Buenos Aires in an attempt to cool the crisis. U.S. diplomats, meanwhile, argued over what stance the United States should take in the dispute.

Some diplomats noted Argentina wasn't much of an ally, considering it continued to send grain and meat to the Soviet Union after the United States imposed a grain embargo because of Russia's invasion of Afghanistan.

U.S. diplomats also reminded the White House that Argentina, whose military regime has been roundly criticized for human rights abuses, only joined the United States in World War II when it was clear the Nazis had lost.

Others said the United States needed Argentina to help stop the spread of leftist insurgencies in Central and South America.

Diplomatic sources in Buenos Aires said a war between the two nations could only push Argentina further into the arms of its major trading partner, the Soviet Union, despite the regime's fierce anti-communist ideology.

Few, if any, Argentines question Argentina's right to title over the islands they call the Malvinas.

On the day of the takeover, Buenos Aires burst into a patriotic, flag-waving celebration with 20,000 people gathered in the palm-tree filled plaza in front of the government house. President Leopoldo Galtieri stepped out on a balcony overlooking the plaza, giving a thumbs up signal to the cheering crowd.

On the Falkland Islands, life changed drastically.

The quiet, isolated existence of the English-speaking islanders rapidly and unexpectedly became filled with battlefield-like tension.

The rumble of armored personnel carriers drowned out the bleats of the sheep that roam the rich green Scottish-like highlands outside Stanley, capital of the islands.

Soldiers speaking a foreign language, Spanish, gave orders, changing customs of old. The drivers of the island's two dozen motor vehicles were told they no longer could use the old British system of driving on left side of the road and must stick to the right.

The islands changed hands several times before the British took them over for good in 1833 from a weakened Argentine settlement. Since that time, Argentine governments have consistently claimed the islands.

Galtieri's government, plagued by unemployment, recession and inflation, proposed in late February that the once-yearly talks with Britain be held instead every month to accelerate "to the maximum" the turnover to Argentina.

The military regime warned that if its urgent proposal was not accepted, it reserved "the right to freely select" a solution to the crisis that best serves its interests.

Military sources repeatedly said Argentina would not let the question linger past the 150th anniversary of the British occupation, Jan. 3, 1983. The fuse of Argentine patience burned out as the 6-year-old military regime's hold on power began to wobble.

On March 30, Peronist labor unions paraded for "peace, bread and work" on the historic plaza in front of the government house. Thousands of steel-helmted riot police, wielding sticks, whips and rifles, injured dozen while breaking up the march with volleys of rubber bullets and tear gas. More than 2,000 people were arrested.

Many Argentines reacted bitterly to the police brutality.

"Instead of running the people off the street, why don't you chase the pirates (British) off the Malvinas (the Falklands) islands," a middle-aged lady screamed to mounted police.

Two days later, the government carried out her demand.

In its six years of rule, the junta had not come up with one economic victory. Inflation roared along at a 143 percent annual clip, wages were frozen and unemployment grew higher daily.

But while most Argentines cheered the takeover, some expressed doubts.

"Everybody in Argentina believes that the Malvinas are Argentine, but this is a circus," a pro-Western Peronist source said.

ECU Pianist Wins Contest

By ECU News Bureau

Pianist Catherine Styron of Davis, a junior in the East Carolina University School of Music, is one of the 1982 winners in the Young Artists Competition sponsored by the Greensboro Music Teacher's Association and the Greensboro Euterpe Club.

The competition, the only comparable statewide program for young musicians, involves pianists, organists, vocalists and orchestral instrumentalists between the ages of 16 and 30.

Competing musicians must be North Carolina natives or studying in North Carolina. Winners are presented in a special recital.

Schools Must Make Changes For Economies

Greenville and Pitt County are two school systems which seem to continue in their own separate directions despite all advice that a new course needs to be set.

Yet the handwriting is on the wall that there is going to have to be more cooperation between the two — perhaps merger — if the taxpayers are going to be served adequately.

Dr. John Tingelstad, chairman of the Greenville Board of Education, last week told the Pitt commissioners that more cooperation between the school districts is needed. He said it was time to begin looking for ways to work together to provide services for "all the children in the county."

There could be cooperation in the areas of maintenance, transportation, food services and special education, he said.

Commissioner Charles Gaskins expressed agreement, citing a resolution by the commissioners four years ago requesting the boards to study the possibility of merging the two school systems.

The merger idea was later rejected by the Pitt Board of Education.

It is foolhearty in this time of reduced tax funds to continue under the assumption that no economies can be realized through a merger of the two systems. Each has it own administrative staffs and it is certain that there is some duplication there. Specialized programs are being completely duplicated in separate offices only a couple of miles from each other.

There is money to be saved by combining some of the programs of the city and county school systems, and perhaps by outright merger. We can continue operating as we have if we wish, but the taxpayers should know there is some additional cost to them to maintain the school systems as they are.

Easter Sunday A Joyous Day For Christians

Today is Easter Sunday, a time of renewal for the faithful Christians throughout the world.

It is the time when Christians celebrate the resurrection of Christ, and the hope the event brought for a life after death.

Many of the world's religions have a common faith in God as creator of the world. The life of Christ, however, added a new dimension for all those who believed. His resurrection represented victory over the grave, tangible evidence that ascension into Heaven was possible for mortals.

For Christians, Easter Sunday is a joyous day.

Sunday Morning Notes

There was a party at Biggs Drug Store at Third Street and the Mall one day recently.

The store didn't even close for the occasion. In fact, many of the establishment's old customers who came in joined in the refreshments and fun.

The party honored one of the founders of the store, whose name it carries. John Biggs was retiring as a pharmacist with the store and many of the people who had worked there over the years were invited back to let him know they appreciated him.

Pete Hargett, the present operator, said the get-together of past and present employees was to honor a man "who had given a lot of his time, energy and money to the development of Biggs Drug Store."

There was cake and ice cream and comments were made by various ones present. It was all culminated with the presentation of a plaque to Biggs at the end of the festivities.

Biggs Drug Store was founded by John Biggs and Clyde Hollowell in the old Proctor Hotel building in the space now occupied by First State Bank.

Later it was moved across the street into a building which had been occupied by The Daily Reflector.

Biggs Drug Store has employed many teen-agers part time and a number of full-time workers over the years. In fact, Hargett says they still do at the downtown store and at Hargetts' on Charles Boulevard.

Many have left the area, but the ones living here were contacted and invited back for the occasion.

Anybody who likes wind and dust would have loved last week. Strong winds hit this area last weekend and continued for five days. Wind this time of year means that much of Pitt County's top soil will be lifted and transferred to parts unknown.

That's what happened this year, except the winds continue for a longer than usual time.

Breathing was difficult due to all the dust in the air and driving was practically impossible in some areas as great clouds of dust rolled across roads and obscured vision.

"I always wanted to farm," our observer commented. "If I just had a way of collecting all that top soil in the air I could set up a farm for a little of nothing."

Well, the land picked up by the wind goes somewhere. We just don't know where.

Power

WASHINGTON — A little sleeper of a bill, having to do with functions of the U.S. Postal Service, is snoozing lightly on Capitol Hill. Let me disturb its slumber long enough to suggest that the measure provides a handy example of what a fundamental dispute between liberals and conservatives is all about.

The dispute is about power and about the proper role of government in a free society. As a general proposition, liberals believe that the powers of the state should be large, and that government has a duty to protect its people from the consequences of their folly. Conservatives, by contrast, tend to believe that the powers of the state should be limited, and that freeborn Americans have a right to be foolish if they please.

Constant readers may recall that several weeks ago I wrote a column about a fellow by the name of Ford, down in Mississippi, who ran afoul of the Postal Service. Ford was selling a mail-order book in which he advocated a diet of natural vegetables as a way of keeping arteries clean. The Postal Service asserted that such a notion is contrary to the best medical evidence; therefore the book could not be sold by mail. Ford's heretical work has been effectively suppressed.

That column produced a lively mail. A couple of doctors wrote in to say that uneducated quacks had no right of free speech to sell their useless nostrums. One of my editors contended that government must protect gullible old folks from wasting their limited resources on pills and panaceas. On the other hand, several salty fellows insisted that, by damn, if they wanted to take a flier on a five-buck book, it was their own business.

A similar case is now pending in the U.S. Supreme Court on a petition for review. This case involves Athens Products, Ltd., a mail-order house that sells various health products through a bimonthly magazine called "Soma." Among the products are vitamin and mineral supplements that "will help you improve your sexual performance and confidence." Another product will "improve your memory." Yet another will "measurably raise intelligence." The Postal Service does not contend that the products are dangerous or contaminated. The Postal Service contends simply that the products won't do a thing for a customer's sex life or his memory either. The company now labors for survival under a stop order that prevents it from receiving mail.

Back to the little sleeper of a bill: Rep. Claude Pepper of Florida and Sen. John Heinz of Pennsylvania have sponsored identical proposals to vest the Postal Service with sweeping new powers in this whole area. Under their bill, the Postal Service could impose new "civil penalties" up to $10,000 a day on persons or companies found in violation of a stop order. In a court proceeding to recover such assessments, "the validity, amount and appropriateness of such penalty shall not be subject to review." The bill would authorize the Postal Service not only to stop distribution of banned products by mail, but also by "any instrumentality of interstate commerce."

What about all this? My thought is that in a free society, courts, congressmen and bureaucrats ought to consider the infinite sorts and conditions of mankind. Somewhere in this broad land there may well be a man who believes in "Euzinc-D," really believes in it, has confidence that it will make him a better lover. Much of the healing art depends precisely upon such confidence. Who is the U.S. Postal Service to say him nay?

Home Computers Take Over

RALEIGH — A salesman at a local Radio Shack has rigged up his home computer to turn his lights on and off a number of times during the evening. He defies any burglar to figure out when he's home and when he's not.

A young woman who's tracing her family tree has typed her findings into her computer and can write a fully detailed genealogical letter to any relative in 15 minutes. It used to take her two days for each letter.

A woman who's always wanted to learn to speak and write French is now doing so at home every night after work. And only her ever-patient home computer knows when she makes a mistake.

Shopping for a home computer, you run into a lot people who've found a lot of different uses for their machines. Some — like the writer of this column — use it primarily for business. For others it is a toy. But for most people, its a household appliance like the refrigerator or washing machine.

It is a trend that is apparently catching on. "Five years ago," Newsweek magazine said in its recent cover story on home computers, "it was a hobbyist's toy ... Now, with astonishing suddenness, a multibillion dollar industry has been born ... By most estimates, almost three million personal computers will be sold this year."

The price of a home computer can range from $300 on up to the thousands. What do you get? What can you use it for?

Education appears to be one of the most popular home applications. A child can be put in front of a computer tube and with almost as much excitement as there is with a video game he can go to work on remedial programs to help him catch up — or advanced programs to help him get ahead. Just working on the computer is educational.

One mother in Raleigh bought her 13-year-old a small $300 computer when he complained he was the only kid on the block who didn't have one. "At first I thought this was another fad," the mother says. She soon realized the potential for improving her child's education. Instead of watching Laverne and Shirley every night, he's tinkering with his computer. He plays video games, she reports, but they are video games which he created. At 13, the child is a computer programmer.

The young woman writing the genealogical letters found herself retyping pages and pages of information every time she wrote a relative seeking a clarification of a new lead. Now, using a computer program called word processing, she has her genealogical letters on a computer file. To write to Aunt Louise, she calls up the letter, tailors it to that aunt with a few simple editing changes, and prints it out automatically on paper.

This same woman has put her checking account and family budget on the computer. It does all the calculations and lets her know if she's got any money left. A change in electricity rates, for example, is typed into the computer and her monmthly budget is adjusted to reflect the change.

Her husband, a newsman, plugged into a national computer and reads accounts from papers around the country.

The first challenge in buying a home computer is determining what you want it for. The second is finding a salesman who knows his product will accomplish that.

Salesmen who know nothing about the products they are selling are not uncommon. Expect at least one salesman to tell you, "I know it can do that. I just don't know how." Far more dangerous is the salesman who knows nothing about computers, yet still tries to sell you one.

Advice then, for looking for a home computer, is to talk to a lot of people. They'll have a lot of advice on where to buy and they'll also have some ideas on what you can do with it.

Who Says A Shopper Knows All?

WASHINGTON — When it comes to smart shopping, we don't need any help.

Raised in the roar of the consumer movement, young Americans consider themselves savvy practitioners of the consumer ethic, "Let the seller beware." We watch for bargains and know "quality" when we see it. It's as if we all have a little Ralph Nader in us. Some of us instinctively lower the volume when commercials interrupt our favorite TV programs. We're nobody's fools, right?

Wrong. Consumer smarts don't necessarily sharpen from generation to generation. And, if our biggest ally in Washington, the Federal Trade Commission (FTC), is successfully strangled this year in Congress, some of us will be in for the rides of our lives. for "unfair" and "deceptive" business practices. Only recently, however, has the agency vigilantly defended the public interest, sending consistent signals to advertisers and promoters that Uncle Sam will tolerate nothing short of the straight-and-narrow.

As it came of age in the mid-1970s, the FTC rid us of some of the downright flimflam ads we'd grown up with. Now, when in doubt, we know "batteries aren't included."

Later this month (April 21) a House subcommittee will hold a second round of hearings on the much-maligned agency's budget and authority that could be the harbinger for a return to the days of the consumer jungle.

In anticipation, shoppers should realize that Ronald Reagan's regulatory czar, FTC chairman James Miller III, wants to dismantle the agency he directs. And two teams of senators have responded with "wing-clipping" bills popular with business leaders; a third bill is in the works.

Chairman Miller, who is not a lawyer, shocked fellow commissioners (as well as advertisers) at a Senate hearing last month when he suggested that Congress limit the agency's power to prosecute companies for "deceptive" acts or practices.

In an interview with our associate, Michael Duffy, FTC commissioner Michael Pertschuk explained that Miller sees consumers only "as the lawyers, the bankers and the economists. And he thinks everybody else has plenty of time to shop carefully."

It was Pertschuk who, as chairman from 1977 through 1980, guided the FTC through highly-controversial probes of deceptive used car sales, unfair funeral service pricing, and the well-known Pat Boone-Acne Statin case. Despite public support for such investigations, pressure from business contributors has since soured Congress on the FTC.

The agency's potential emasculation, sadly, meshes well with young Americans' confidence in their ability to sniff out rotten deals on their own. Barring a "cop in the marketplace," survivalist instincts tell us we have the sophistication to tiptoe through the mud.

Yet' as Pertschuk points out, no generation is immune to the often unnoticeably-seductive advertising practiced in the U.S. today. Like 9- and 10-year-olds scrutinized by behaviorists, baby-boomers understand the dubious merit of commercials, yet frequently covet — and purchase — the product in question.

"No matter how street-wise people think they are, the evidence is overwhelming that they'll believe anything a salesperson says," laments Pertschuk. "And they get burned time and time again."

For baby-boomers, the loss of a consumer guardian may not be immediately noticeable. In our commercially-overbuilt society, a few more outrageous promotions would have only an imperceptible impact.

But before some political charlatans sell us another bottle of budget cuts as a cure for "regulatory excess," it's worth pointing out that most Americans favor government intervention in the marketplace to keep advertisers honest. Young Americans, polls show, want more information about products which regularly get them in trouble: automobiles, credit cards and banking procedures. They want to know more about low-cost legal and medical services. The initiatives of Miller and his pals in Congress, however, only run against this consensus.

It makes no sense to turn back the clock on consumers. Despite widespread support in the private sector, no one in the administration — or in Congress — has proven that unfair practices are, in any way, economically efficient.

Smuggled Document Tells The Story

WASHINGTON — In an appeal remarkable for its realism, the intellectual leader of the movement that gave birth to Solidarity has smuggled a political document out of his Warsaw jail cell proposing "the farthest-reaching concessions" to Poland's military government to reach a compromise for ending martial law.

Jacek Kuron has been in Warsaw's Bialoleka jail since December. He predicted that the Catholic Church's own mood of compromise would persuade "a decisive majority of the Solidarity leadership, men of science and culture, in a word ... all those whose voice counts in Poland."

Kuron founded the Workers' Defense Committee, the intellectual forerunner of Solidarity, in 1976. Castigated ever since by the Soviet Union as an enemy of socialism — one of Moscow's harshest epithets — Kuron posed this warning to Marshal Wojciech Jaruzelski and the Kremlin in his late-February appeal: If there is no compromise ending martial law "within a dozen or so weeks." all chance to "stem the tide of terrorism" will vanish.

The warning was linked to rewards. A Polish "national agreement," ending martial law and guaranteeing "at least some fundamental goals and values" espoused by Solidarity would not damage Soviet Warsaw Pact interests "and would be extremely favorable to its economic" interests.

The eight-page document that Kuron spirited out of jail recorded the dismal performance of the Polish economy since the Dec. 13 martial-law takeover: January factory production, in the first full month under martial law, down nearly 15 percent from a year earlier (which had been strikewracked); February production lower than January's.

To the editor:

This season of the year produces the time when "spring hopes eternal." After the annual dreary cold and stagnation of winter, the desires and the goals of us all come forth as rapidly as Yellowstone's geyser, "Old Faithful."

When the birds began to chirp and the days began to lengthen, human beings initiate their plans and implement their strategies to make life productive, worthy and more enjoyable. We find hope in knowing that we may, through our labor and toil, develop and achieve the results toward which we strive, whether crops planted or degrees sought.

As we reflect upon our hopes and goals for the remainder of 1982, may we pause to express gratitude to one another and to ourselves. On many occasions people criticize youth for a lack of effort and for much shiflessness. Let us remember the courageous and compassionate example of the young people of Fort Wayne, Ind., who worked unselfishly to aid their city in the recent floods which swept that area of our nation. Let us recognize the sacrifices and contributions of our local youth — whether in Boy Scouts, FFA organizations or youth groups and clubs — who seek to become better and stronger young people in our country and future leaders in our world. And let us all recall the young Savior, who at 33 years of age, gave His life and we human sinners may have eternal life.

Indeed, "spring hopes eternal." We have the blessed opportunity to correct our mistakes and change our course so that the remainder of our days may be filled with the joys and comfort of knowing that we serve "the Risen Lord."

Happy Easter!

I would like to commend Reflector staff writer Carol Tyer for her excellent article appearing in the Friday, April 2, edition of The Daily Reflector — "Falkland People Team Up, Nab Theft Suspect."

I would like to praise the citizens of the Bruce and Falkland communities who took part in helping to nab the theft suspect. If more individuals would get involved as they did, it would take a bite out of crime. A "Community Watch Citizen" helps law enforcement officials do just that.

'Education Is Missing The Mark'

PROVO, Utah (UPI) — The school Jeffrey Holland heads pushes values, things like "honesty is the best policy," and also has a dress code and a prohibition on alcohol.

Holland charges the missing ingredient in higher education in America today is values' education and says if that were not so, white collar crime wouldn't be an $8 billion a year industry.

Holland, president of Brigham Young University, Provo, Utah, earned his doctor of philosophy degree at Yale University in New Haven, Conn., an Ivy League school. He said his charges are aimed at all types of disciplines and schools — public, private, Ivy, community, two-year, four-year, medical, law, divinity, engineering.

"A lot of the perpetrators of today's white collar crimes," he said, "came through our higher education system. That's why I say education is missing the mark."

Brigham Young is the nation's largest independent coed university — 26,000 students. It is affiliated with the Church of Jesus Christ of the Latter-Day Saints, usually known as the Mormon church.

"In 1979, $24 million went out front doors of banks due to stickups," he said. "And $80 million went out the back door in fraud."

The real crisis in higher education is that tens of thousands of people go through the schools without being impressed with the fact that honesty is the best policy — corny as it sounds, Holland said.

"It would be great if college presidents could agree that they must witness to students a belief in honesty is the best policy," Holland said.

"Keep your hands out of the corporate cookie jar is a fundamental truth that is not being passed along.

"I think a good job description for a president of a university would declare him also a 'professor of moral philosophy'."

There is nothing radical about teaching values, Holland says.

"Plato put it in a few words —'Education in virtue is the only education worth the name'," he said.

Holland said he was devastated to see a report on 131 graduate business students who had been asked if they expected to face a challenging ethical situation in their careers.

"They all said 'yes'," Holland said. "And half said, 'If I have to, I will compromise — especially if it helps my career or business.'"

Holland recited a litany of recent "compromises" he said led to scandals in research, athletics, Medicare, journalism frauds — an epidemic of cheating and a retreat from honesty in which no discipline or lifestyle seems immune.

He also brought up the cheating in marriages.

"There isn't an ethic that applies to the board room that doesn't apply to the bedroom," he said. "And, yet, there's more cheating on spouses in America today that cheating on taxes.

"Honesty, I repeat, is the value that's missing in the fabric of contemporary society."

Holland also is a board member of the American Association of Presidents of Independent Colleges and Universities.

"Education must assume some responsibility for what has been going wrong," he said. "The decline in values-teaching on the nation's campuses needs to be turned around. Education is supposed to throw light on the dark side of human nature."

At BYU, Holland said he assumes the responsibility to take a stand and witness values that make higher education great — and that made America great.

"I do not see this just as a Mormon issue," he said. "It is a commitment to Judeo-Christian values."

The school Holland heads has the distinction of not accepting tons of federal money for buildings, program development, supplemental assistance to faculty or for other uses. The only federal money going into the BYU coffers is from fees for work done on a contract basis. Holland said it is not considerable.

The reason the school does not seek federal funding, per se, Holland says, is that the university does not want to be thwarted in its institutional policies — including segregation of sexes in housing — as a result of federal strings or regulations tied to receipt of federal money.

"We have a strict moral code at Brigham Young University," Holland said. "It is consistent with church sponsorship."

The school has gone to court to defend that policy, taking exception to some federal policies.

Holland described the trouble as a misunderstanding involving the Justice Department.

The independence Brigham Young University maintains at the cost of turning down any possibility of massive infusions of federal money comes at a considerable loss of possible added income.

"It's a staggering amount," Holland said.

"I saw some figures recently that about 60 cents of every dollar at Massachusetts Institute of Technology is federal-sponsored. And at Princeton, it's 45 cents of every dollar."

Jurors Had Full View Of Courthouse Show

One of the strangest trials in North Carolina history took place in Superior Court at Wilson on Sept. 6, 1951. While attorney R.F. Mintz sought to convince the jury that Daughn Arthur Cain was not guilty of forging checks as contended by the state, Cain was hovering on a narrow ledge that runs around the Wilson County Courthouse near its top.

While the jury listened, Mintz argued that Cain did not write the checks he was accused of forging and that, even if jurors did decide that Cain was the forger, the 39-year-old defendant was obviously insane. From their box, the jurors could see Cain teetering on the ledge where he had fled before court convened.

For more than two hours Cain remained on his lofty perch, sometimes pacing nervously, sometimes peering at the crowd that had gathered in the courtyard below, sometimes talking to officers and others who tried to persuade him to descend. Many of the onlookers yelled for Cain to jump. Others asserted he did not have the nerve.

Wilson detective Wilbur B. Barnes sat on the roof for more than an hour, talking to Cain, but was unable to convince him that he would not be harmed if he surrendered.

As the long minutes dragged on, Cain exhibited more and more nervousness. He drew back as far as possible from would-be rescuers. Cain was in such a position that it would have endangered the life of anyone who attemnpted to save him until he signified that he was ready to be lifted back to the courthouse roof.

Finally, A.J. Hayes, an identification expert with the Wilson Police Department, grabbed Cain's arm ... but quickly released it when Cain threatened to jump. Cain then scurried to the front of the courthouse and stood just below a massive clock. His perch was 75 feet above the concrete pavement below.

Cain had come to Wilson a few months before following his release from a federal prison where he was serving a sentence — also for forgery — to take a job with a neon sign firm. He was acccused of forging the name of Littlejohn Faulkner, his employer who was a former mayor of Wilson, on 11 checks.

Cain was dressed in a sports coat and slacks when jailers James Edwards and L.V. High came to his cell in the Wilson County Jail to take him to court around 9:30 a.m. While the jailers were busy unlocking a door, Cain suddenly bolted and ran to the roof of the courthouse from the jail which was on the third floor. Then he crawled from the roof down to the ledge about eight feet below.

Despite the fact that the defendant was on the ledge in plain view of the jury, Judge Henry L. Stevens convened court and continued the trial that had begun earlier in the week. As members of the jury glanced anxiously through the windows of the second-floor courtroom at Cain, it seemed they were about to buy Mintz' argument that the defendant was demented.

After nearly two hours, William Golding, a Wilson restaurant operator who had known Cain before his arrest, undertook to persuade Cain that he would not be harmed if he surrendered and allowed himself to be removed from the ledge.

Shortly thereafter, Cain moved around to the west corner of the building and asked to talk with Annie Lee Williams, the jail matron. Shortly thereafter, Cain gave in and was pulled up a short ladder that had been lowered from the roof. As the drama ended, there was a loud cheer from the crowd of onlookers.

Rushed to a Wilson hospital, Cain was treated for shock and returned to jail. That afternoon, he was taken to the courtroom. The jury, which had received the case during the morning, resumed its deliberations. Shortly after 3 p.m., the jury announced its verdict. It found Cain guilty as charged. Judge Stevens assured the jurors that he agreed with them.

Then the judge turned to Cain and said, "As for that performance you put on on the courthouse ledge, I certainly didn't believe for one minute that you'd jump and I'm glad that it turns out the jury didn't believe it either."

Stevens described the defendant as a "man of superior intelligence and about the biggest flim-flam artist I have ever seen."

POLL

PRINCETON, N.J. — The latest Gallup Poll crime victimization audit shows that as many as one-fourth of U.S. households were victimized during 1982. These were crimes either aginst property (money or property stolen or vandalized) or against persons (robberies or assaults).

The level of victimization has changed little over the last five years. In the current survey, one person in four (25 percent) reports a crime. In last year's audit the figure was 23 percent.

Along with a continuing high crime rate has come increasing fear of crime. About one-half of survey respondents (48 percent) say they are afriad to walk alone at night in their neighborhood — the highest figure recorded since this measurement was begun in 1965. The proportion approaches two in three in the case of women (64 percent), persons 65 years of age or older (65 percent) and residents of the nation's center cities (62 percent).

Many Don't Report Crime

As has been the case since these surveys started, many crime victims did not report these incidents to the police, indicating that the U.S. Justice Department's figures underestimate the extensiveness of crime.

Here is the first question asked and the recent trend, showing no significant increase from 1981 in any of the categories studied, but a fairly steady growth in the incidence of larcenies (money or property stolen).

"During the last 12 months, have any of these happended to you?" (A list of crimes was handed to respondents.)

Crime Victimization

One or more incidents	23	22	23	25
Money, property stolen	8%	11%	11%	14%
Property vandalized	11	10	11	11
Burglary or attempt	5	7	7	7
Robbery, assault	3	3	3	3
Car Stolen	1	2	2	2

For each crime reported, respondents were asked: "Did you happen to report this to the police, or not?" Following are the latest results:

Crime Victimization/Reporting

	Crime incidence	Reported to police
One or more incidents	25	17
Money, property stolen	14%	9%
Property vandalized	11	7
Burglary or attempt	7	5
Robbery, assault	3	2
Car stolen	2	1

The results reported today are based on in-person interviews with 1,511 adults, 18 and older, conducted in more than 300 scientifically-selected localities across the nation during the period Jan. 22-25.

For results based on a sample of this size, one can say with 95 percent confidence that the error attributable to sampling and other random effects could be three percentage points in either direction.

Ted Stevens: Senator With A Cause

The bantam dandy recently rode to the wars again in pursuit of what seems to be his favorite goal — more money for the members of Congress.

No one could have been surprised that Stevens led the battle to retain a juicy and very special tax deduction of $75-a-day for each day the nobles are forced to spend in Washington.

After all, it was Stevens who was instrumental last winter in getting the gimmick on the books.

The Senate gave Stevens a scare. His more circumspect colleagues voted against him several times before the repeal effort was killed on a technicality.

No one will ever know how many of Stevens' colleagues honestly believe they deserve the deduction — previously a flat $3,000 — for maintaining a second home in the nation's capital.

Most of them just can't stand the political heat generated by that kind of a vote.

There is no question what Stevens believes. He not only considers the tax break more than justified but considers members of Congress way underpaid.

There is much than can be admired in a legislator who fights for his beliefs — no matter what the political risks.

In Stevens' case, however, the admiration is more than tempered by the nature of the cause and the Alaska Republicans' whining about having to live in the city of Washington.

"God forbid someone should tell me that the city of Washington is my home," the trigger-tempered Alaskan yelled. "I detest it.

"I can't think of a worse city in the world to have a capital ... and I don't care who knows it," he said.

Well, there's always the Black Hole of Calcutta. Or maybe Juneau.

He complained about the high interest rates, "the worst crime and the worst schools ..."

Stevens, conceding a little exaggeration for dramatic effect, is not that far off target.

But that raises the question, as the Washington Post did, as to why Stevens first came to Washington 30 years ago, worked for the Interior Department in the '50s and now has been a senator for 14 years. He is free to return home to his beloved Alaska.

What also is less than admirable in Stevens is his total insensitivity to what is happening all over the country.

How can a senator argue for a personal tax break or added pay at a time when many Americans are really up against it?

How can anyone sympathize with Stevens when he says that he is selling his home because "it costs too much to own a house in this town" when people are having their home mortgages foreclosed.

How can Stevens forget that he makes $60,000 a year as a senator and in 1980 added another $15,000 in honoraria and in that same year picked up another $39,000 to $128,500 in outside income.

Stevens is one of the least affluent of senators but the Senate is very much a haven for the very rich.

Reagan's 'Chats' Could Go On

WASHINGTON (AP) — The never-ending quest on the part of the White House for the perfect way to present the president, any president, to the American people, has taken yet another turn.

Over the last several years, a trend had developed. Whenever the president was greeting a visitor, and the White House staff decided the president's image might be boosted by being shown with the guest, photographers were summoned. Reporters tagged along.

Of course, the "photo opportunities" were also used whenever the president had something on his mind that he wanted to publicize, while avoiding a visit to the White House press briefing room for a formal statement.

The current White House staff has hit on two new methods to get their man in the public eye — but actually they were tried before.

President Reagan has begun a series of 10 weekly radio broadcasts, a la Franklin D. Roosevelt's fireside chats. They place Reagan in a familiar role, delivering in five-minute chunks his view of the world and how he would like to make it better. Stay tuned on Saturday for his portrait of how the world looks from Barbados, where he will be spending an extended Easter weekend.

Taking a cue from Harry S. Truman and other presidents, the White House staff has also taken to inviting reporters to cluster around the president's ornate desk in the Oval Office and spend a few minutes chatting about current events.

So they have said that the president will not answer any questions called out by reporters.

Instead, he will invite them into the Oval Office from time to time, strictly to chat.

The radio commentaries, which started last week, were begun after aides sought ways to shore up the president's sagging public image. The idea of nationally broadcast pep talks on the economy and foreign policy had been kicked around within the White House for several weeks.

The president, who was a sports announcer 50 years ago in Iowa before heading to Hollywood, spent the years between his 1976 and 1980 presidential campaigns taping radio commentaries on the state of the nation and the world.

Returning to that forum, he will take to the airwaves from the Oval Office, Camp David, his 688-acre California spread and, in June, Versailles, France.

Nearly overlooked in the announcement of Reagan's plans was word from David R. Gergen, the White House assistant for communications, that the president may continue the 10-week Saturday series after the summer.

As the autumn leaves fall, as snowflakes cover the ground, and then as daffodils push their way up in the spring, the nation could tune in each Saturday for the wit and wisdom of Ronald Reagan on the wireless.

Minicomputers Are Taking Up The Slack In Accounting

NEW YORK (AP) — Accountants are sometimes compared with coroners because by the time they come up with the facts, uncover the mistakes and explain why things went wrong the client is beyond reclamation.

Minicomputers are now helping to change that role, making possible an almost constant flow of quick financial and other data to auditors, who then are in position to recommend corrective options to management.

"I've always thought we were in the wrong end of the business," said Felix Pomeranz, a senior partner in Coopers & Lybrand, largest of the so-called Big Eight accounting firms.

Accountants "should prevent clients from losing money — before the fact — not tell them how much they've lost — after the fact," said Pomeranz as he decribed his experience with the new accounting.

According to Pomeranz, pre-emptive auditing is a major accounting shift, especially for those who monitor large building projects, where inflation and poor planning can lead to multimillion dollar overruns.

On one project, he said, his firm saved a power and light company $20 million on a $150 million project. On another, he claims, it saved the same company $500,000 on construction of a $5 million cooling tower.

The minicomputer is the hardware that makes it possible by simulating and changing the sequence of construction before building begins.

U.S. Police Units Relaxing Rules On Former Drug Use By Recruits

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — American police departments are finding they can't recruit new officers without overlooking some drug use in their pasts.

An Associated Press survey found that from the FBI on down, major police forces have relaxed their standards. Where once an applicant would be disqualified for any drug use, most departments now will take recruits who acknowledge having used marijuana and, in some cases, harder drugs.

None of the departments surveyed said it would accept current users.

"Ninety-three per cent of everybody who went to Vietnam smoked marijuana ... My understanding is that 80 per cent of college students have used it. Should that keep them from ever getting a job?" said Denver police chief Art Dill.

Even the FBI, the elite of U.S. law enforcement agencies, has changed its standards, according to Roger Young, director of public affairs. The change came after the death of J. Edgar Hoover in 1974, he said.

"We found we were losing a lot of good applicants because they acknowledged having used drugs," Young said.

Now, the FBI will take a qualified applicant who admits having used marijuana on an "experimental" or "occasional social" basis, Young said. Once an applicant is admitted, he is forbidden to use any drugs, a policy adhered to by city police departments as well.

The FBI and local police often find out about applicants' drug use by administering lie detector tests.

"Without the polygraph, nobody would be (admitting) using drugs and we'd hire everyone. Most applicants say, no, they haven't used drugs on their applications. Prior to the polygraph test, they'll usually admit more," said Lt. Bruce White, who investigates applicants for the Seattle police. White said such last-minute confessions do not in themselves disqualify a candidate.

In San Francisco, even an applicant with a misdemeanor conviction for drug use is not disqualified from police work, according to Officer Linda Morris. She said San Francisco uses psychological tests, but not lie detectors, to screen applicants.

In New Orleans, police overlook use of marijuana more than three months prior to the application, or amphetamines more than a year before. Even that standard "stops us from getting a lot of applicants because we have a lot of would-be applicants who experimented with drugs when they were kids," said Investigator Malcolm Williams.

Philadelphia has a six-month cutoff. "We feel that if anyone is clean in the last six months, we can find that acceptable," said spokesman Don Fair.

Most police forces surveyed still automatically disqualify applicants who have used harder drugs like heroin or LSD.

Sgt. Troy Dailey, in charge of recruiting and background checks in Atlanta, said anyone who has injected a drug is rejected. "Any drug that has a capability of causing a flashback — a hallucinogenic drug — can disqualify with one usage," he said.

Kansas City applies a similar standard. "If you have an acid-head, you sure don't want him running around with a .38 having flashbacks," said Maj. John Coleman.

Some departments say they have been able to maintain a standard that rules out all, or nearly all, drug use by applicants.

In St. Paul, Minn., chief William McCutcheon said he might accept a candidate who had used marijuana, if it happened several years ago.

The last time St. Paul hired police rookies, it had 1,600 applicants for 20 spots. "At that rate, we can be pretty selective," he said. McCutcheon said he did not think anyone with a drug background was hired in that group.

Some big city forces, such as Chicago and New York, do not use lie detectors. They give physical exampinations which include a urinalysis that will detect only recent drug use.

Scandal Shadows Publitzers

NEW YORK (AP) — A year later, Fred Knubel can still hear the reporter's question: Had Janet Cooke, winner of a Putlizer Prize for a story called "Jimmy's World," identified herself as a graduate of Vassar?

Yes, said Knubel, spokesman for Columbia University, which presents the annual awards in journalism and the arts.

Unknowingly, he had just unleashed a scandal.

Miss Cooke lied when she claimed to be a magna cum laude graduate of Vassar. Then the Washington Post reporter admitted that Jimmy, the 8-year-old heroin addict she profiled, existed only as a composite.

Knubel recalled the story last week as preparations were made for Monday's presentation of the 1982 Pulitzers.

Could "Jimmy's World" happen again?

"No, I'm not nervous. I really am not," said Knubel, the man who bore the brunt of media inquiries after last year's prizes.

The selection process this year was not so different than in the past, but there have been some changes.

In early March, 12 juries spent three days wading through 1,200 entries. Each jury nominated three stories for the prize in its category. On April 1 and 2, the Pulitzer Prize Board met and chose a winner in each category. The names were submitted to Columbia University President Michael I. Sovern, who presents the awards.

Last year, the board took Miss Cooke's story from one category and named it the winner in another; jurors said they were assured this year that the board would be more careful in overruling their decisions.

Last year, the juries offered two lists of nominees — one in alphabetical order, the other in order of preference. This year, one list was submitted in alphabetical order, accompanied by an analysis of the strengths of each entry.

The board traditionally met for one day. This year, it met for two days, "which gave them a good deal more time for reading but also for reflection and identification of possible problems," said Robert C. Christopher, who replaced the late Richard T. Baker as prize administrator.

Lebanese Set For Israeli Invasion

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Lebanon said Saturday that 40,000 Israeli troops are massed near Lebanon's southern border and asked the United States to intervene urgently to head off a possible invasion against the Palestinian guerrillas.

The Palestine Liberation Organization predicted an attack by Monday.

Israel had no direct comment but a government spokesman in Tel Aviv, citing the recent assassination of an Israeli diplomat in Paris and the killing of two Israeli soldiers in Israeli-occupied territory, said the guerrillas have "good reason for their panic."

Lebanese President Elias Sarkis held two meetings with U.S. Ambassador Robert Dillon, telling him Israel has massed two armored divisions with 40,000 troops on southern Lebanon's border, poised for an imminent attack.

"The president has conveyed to the U.S. government Lebanon's concern over the Israeli buildup and sought assurances that the United States government will urgently intervene to curb Israel," a Lebanese government spokesman said.

Deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes, with President Reagan in Barbados, said, "We renew our appeal for all those involved in the region to show the utmost restraint. This is a time for maximum caution..."

Dillon, asked whether the situation was dangerous, told a reporter in Beirut: "Yes it's dangerous, but as I said we are doing our best to see that the cease-fire is maintained." He said the Reagan administration was in constant touch with Israel and other states in the area to keep the peace.

Sarkis also met separately with Soviet Ambassador Alexander Soldatov, who told reporters afterward, "The president called me to exchange views about the very grave situation in southern Lebanon arising from warlike statements made in public recently by Israeli leaders, which we vehemently condemn."

In Tel Aviv, Prime Minister Menachem Begin's spokesman, Uri Porat, said that Palestinian guerrillas "have good reason for their panic and hysteria," but declined to comment directly on claims by the PLO and the Lebanese government that Israel was about to invade.

Porat told The Associated Press that "if they (the PLO) are panicking, they have good reason."

Asked to elaborate, he listed a series of incidents which he believed gave the PLO grounds for fearing Israeli retaliation, including the assassination of of Israeli diplomat Yaacov Barsimantov in Paris a week ago and the killing of two Israeli soldiers during a spate of Palestinian violence in the occupied West Bank of the Jordan and Gaza Strip last month.

Lebanon's state radio said the government received reports from southern Lebanon that an Israeli submarine and a warship, with an escort of gunboats were patrolling the southern Lebanese Mediterranean coast along a 25-mile stretch between the ports of Sidon and Tyre.

The Christian Voice of Lebanon radio said the PLO had distributed arms to all able-bodied men in the area. "Even vegetable peddlers in Tyre and adjacent villages are carrying submachine guns as they go about their business," the radio said.

An Israeli attack would end a truce negotiated last July after two weeks of heavy fighting between the PLO and Israel, including Israel's bombing of Beirut that killed more than 300 people.

But violence has become so common in Beirut since the 1975-76 civil war that the Lebanese prepared for a possible air raid the way citizens in other nations might calmly dig in for a spell of nasty weather.

Smartly dressed matrons added "extra candles" to the shopping lists they handed to their servants Saturday. Homeowners stocked up on flashlight batteries, canned foods, bread and water, whiskey and beer, and even home video cassettes.

At one videotape club, the manager gave customers extra films at no additional charge, saying, "You might have to stay at home for a few days."

U.S. Urges Restraint

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States, fearful of an imminent Israeli attack against Palestinian strongholds in southern Lebanon, appealed Saturday for "utmost restraint" and "maximum caution" by all sides in the Middle East.

In a statement issued in Barbados, where President Reagan is vacationing, deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes said the United States was in contact with governments in the region and working "energetically to encourage an end to all actions that contribute to tension and violence."

The White House statement coincided with a claim by Lebanese President Elias Sarkis that the Israelis had massed two armed divisions totaling 40,000 troops along the southern Lebanese border.

Sarkis asked U.S. ambassador Robert Dillon for assurances that the Reagan administration "will urgently intervene to curb Israel." Sarkis also met with Soviet ambassador Alexander Soldatov, who later denounced Israel's "warlike statements."

State Department officials refused to comment publicly on reports that an Israeli attack on southern Lebanon was imminent, expressing fear that any statement might inflame an already grave situation.

Officials at the Defense Department refused comment, except to say they could not confirm reports of Israeli troop movements.

Virginia Song Called 'Racist

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — The Virginia State Travel Service has been ordered to destroy travel brochures containing the official state song, "Carry Me Back to Old Virginia," because of complaints that the song is racially offensive.

The brochure, which is distributed to school children, is being reprinted without the song but with a brief history of Virginia.

Frederick W. Walker, director of the Department of Conservation and Economic Development, ordered the destruction and ordered that distribution of the brochures be halted.

He said he had received several complaints about the song over the years and, with a reprint scheduled soon, he decided to eliminate it from the brochure.

Although Walker said he didn't find the song offensive — "I must have sung it hundreds of times" — he said he could see that some people would.

"We're trying to encourage people to come to Virginia and not stay away," he said.

The front of the brochure depicts the state bird, the cardinal; the state tree and state flower, the dogwood; the state flag; the state seal; and the state dog, a foxhound.

The back of the sheet contains the words to "Carry Me Back to Old Virginia," written in the 19th century by a black man, James Bland, who never lived in Virginia.

The lyrics, written in dialect, say in part:

"There's where I labor'd so hard for old Massa."

George Stoddart, Gov. Charles S. Robb's press secretary, said Robb knew nothing about the directive to remove the sheet.

Marshall E. Murdaugh, director of the travel service, said the sheets have been printed for at least the past 10 years and probably much longer than that.

The sheets are mailed to children who write the state for information about Virginia, he said. About 5,000 to 6,000 are mailed each year.

In addition, Murdaugh said, the sheets are mailed in bulk to schools that request the information and are distributed at travel information centers the Department of Conservation and Economic Development maintains throughout Virginia.

He said the cost of reprinting the sheet would be minimal. An order of 50,000 sheets cost $2,540 to print in 1980, he said.

An unidentified source quoted the Richmond News Leader estimated that the cost to the taxpayers of the reprints, plus the brochures that will be destroyed, will be about $6,000.

Graham Ends Hospital Stay

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina Agricultural Commissioner James A. Graham was released from Rex Hospital Friday.

Graham, 61, has been undergoing treatment for a mild heart attack the past two weeks.

Player ...

brokerage salesman with the tobacco market for over 35 years. "I didn't have time to play when I was working on the tobacco market," he related. "I had to wait until I retired."

Broadwell has made up for his earlier lack of playing experience. The Kids and Kubs play a 60-game schedule during their season, which runs from November to late March.

Once a player is taken onto the roster of one of the two teams, he can remain a member for as long as he wishes. Broadwell says he plans to continue playing for a long time. "I tell my kids I have five children, five grandchildren and 20 great grandchildren last time I counted, that I'm still living just for aggravation," he said.

Broadwell and the Kids and Kubs softball club have become celebrities because of their unique brand of softball. The organization's games are televised live in the St. Petersburg area and have been included in a national televison show, "Real People," and in early March, Broadwell was interviewed on the NBC "Today Show."

Admission to all the Kids and Kubs games is free, but donations are collected to help cover the growing expense of playing softball and for donation to charity. Throughout the 53 years that the organziation has been in existence, the Kids and Kubs have donated or played benefit games for such charities as the March of Dimes, the Red Cross and the Salvation Army.

Even though donations to charity is an important reason for playing, Broadwell admits that the main objective of the club is pleasure. "I just love playing the game," he avows.

"Some like to sit in that old rocking chair and watch time go by.
"We're the happiest when fielding a grounder or catching a fly."

Fred Broadwell and the rest of the Kids and Kubs members live by this philosophy.

There are a lot of little reasons for the big difference in our furniture.

We don't have to put walnut dowels in our chair arms. But we think it's a nice touch because you get a little something extra at no extra charge.

Our unique manufacturing process enables us to use a larger leg stock. This provides strength, while maintaining an openness of construction that makes it easier to move around and clean under.

You won't have this problem with a Cargo table.

We make the tops of all our tables flat. That's so you can put anything you want on the table... anywhere you like.

Little things do mean a lot, but they don't cost any more at Cargo. Subtle differences in design make Cargo furniture better looking and more functional at an economical price. We make it a little different to be a lot better.

Study Projects Polish Crisis Over Economy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Poland faces a worsening economic crisis in which its future labor problems and an inability to maintain essential imports will be compounded by its crackdown on the Solidarity movement, according to U.S. study released Saturday.

The report, saying the crisis had been building before the imposition of martial law last December, acknowledged that the crackdown did succeed in postponing the day when the government will have to confront its labor problems.

But it said the crackdown increases the possibility that Western nations and their banks will be less forthcoming with economic assistance in 1982 and beyond.

"As a result," the report said, "Warsaw will be hard-pressed to maintain essential imports in its efforts to stimulate economic recovery."

The study was conducted by Gary Teske of the Office of East-West Policy and Planning in the Department of Commerce and was released by Rep. Henry S. Reuss, D-Wis., chairman of the Joint Economic Committee of Congress. It was written after the imposition of martial law but most of the research was conducted beforehand.

"Poland's economic catastrophe has been building over the decade of the 1970s," Reuss said. "Solidarity's political crisis which emerged in 1980 and 1981 was a result — not a cause — of Poland's economic crisis."

The report said Poland's economic problems originated with the hope that modernizing its industry with money borrowed abroad would enable it to repay its debts. At the same time, the country's communist rulers tried to raise personal incomes and provide more goods for consumers.

This worked well at first, but the program was hurt by bootlenecks and mismanagement, the report said. Recession in the West cut down sales of what new goods were produced at a time when Poland was experiencing poor crops and having to import more food, it said.

Depending on both private and government financing in the United States, Poland had to greatly increase its imports of American farm products to $593 million last year. The sanctions imposed by President Reagan have cut off this credit.

Before martial law, the Polish government was trying to help things by delaying debt repayments, putting in economic reforms and plans for "stablization," the report said.

Poland last Tuesday signed an agreement to delay repayment of $2.4 billion worth of debts due at the end of last year. The Joint Economic Committee estimates Poland has another $9 billion or $10 billion coming due this year.

While some debts have been delayed, the U.S. report said the reforms never got off the ground.

"Whereas in late 1981, there was some hope for labor peace and a return to 'normal' levels of production, the imposition of martial law and suppression of Solidarity has complicated future labor relations," Teske said. "Martial law has not solved the regime's labor problems; it has only postponed the day when the government again will have to confront them ...."

Teske said Poland's industrial capacity "remains sizable."

"If present cash flow problems can be solved, the economy reformed and labor peace re-established, Poland has a chance to get its economy back on track," he said. "But, at this time, the outlook for the achievement of these prerequisities is bleak."

Doctor ...

It was soon assertained, of course, that Reagan had a gunshot wound and that the bullet was in the chest cavity, with internal bleeding.

"While other people were working on Mr. Brady and Mr. McCarthy and the trauma team headed by Dr. Joseph Giordano took over with the president, I spent the rest of the time standing in a hallway indicating to the Secret Service which people were supposed to be there and could be let in and who I didn't recognize and therefore they should not let in. Patients other than President Reagan, Brady and McCarthy were channeled to another part of the emergency area so security could be maintained."

Perhaps six months after that day, the "20-20" staff began interviewing everyone involved, Dr. Mitchell said, and based on those interviews they wrote the script. "Then they taped our voices and later they filmed. In my opinion, what they came up with was as nearly what happened as I could ever imagine. I was impressed at what a good job they did," she said.

Dr. Mitchell, who grew up in Park Ridge, N.J., graduated from Muhlenberg College in Allentown, Pa., and earned a medical degree at Georgetown School of Medicine. She did her residency in internal medicine at George Washington University Hospital.

Asked how she got into emergency medicine after having interned in internal medicine, she said: "I had plans to get a fellowship for further study in internal medicine, but there was a year's interval before it would become available, so I needed to work in the meantime. I got a job in the emergency department at George Washington and soon found that I loved that field of medicine and didn't want to pursue the fellowship after all."

What does she love about it? "I love the diversity," she said "... The fact that you get some very serious cases and some patients that are quickly and easily helped. I like the interaction with people. At first dealing with worried families of patients was very difficult for me, but now I find that challenging and rewarding, too. When you're not successful in saving a patient it hurts — I hope I never get over that — but finding it within myself not to fall apart provides support for the family at a time when they need it."

Dr. Mitchell says she's as pleased with her new situation at Pitt Memorial as she is with the field of medicine she's chosen. "Both are so exciting," she says. "Interviewing, I was so impressed with Dr. Jack Allison and the department he and his staff are developing here. And coming down for a week's vacation later on, I found I loved the friendliness of the people here and the beauty and climate of the area. It reminds me of central Ohio where my family originated — minus the heavy snows they have there. I coudn't take those."

Dr. Mitchell lives near Bethel with her cat named Cat.

North Pitt Sponsors Fair

The North Pitt High School Science Fair last week attracted 150 student participants.

The winner in the senior biological division was Keith Coltrain for "Do Short Doses of Ultraviolet LIght Affect Molds?" The winner in senior physical division was Mark James for "Camparison of Various Materials for Their Insulating Abilities."

The junior biological divisonion winner was Mary Beth Carson for "The Effects of Fungicide on the Germination of Lima Beans.

They will represent North Pitt in the East Carolina Regional Science Fair to be held at East Carolina University on April 23.

Firefighters Near End Of Struggle

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A week after blustery winds fanned an outbreak of over 500 forest fires in eastern North Carolina, firefighters prepared Saturday to pack up their gear and head for home.

"We're finally getting near the end of the road," said Dane Roten, the state Forest Service's senior staffer for fire control.

Over 100 state Forest Service employees and college students remained on the job Saturday, keeping a wary eye on four stubborn blazes feeding mostly on peat in northeastern counties.

Roten said firefighters probably would abandon all but one of the fires Saturday night if an expected rainstorm materialized. But the National Weather Service said a storm from the Gulf of Mexico probably would pass farther south than first thought, dropping only a few showers or snowflakes in the extreme southern counties.

"We've got all the fires contained but there's not a whole lot else to do except let them burn themselves out — unless the rain gives the ground a good soaking," Roten said. "When the peat gets going it can smolder forever unless it rains. Sometimes even then it won't all go out."

The largest fire was in Hyde County, where 10,000 acres had been consumed. It commanded the attention of most of the state firefighters, who pumped water from irrigation ditches and prevented the flames from spreading.

Other fires were burning in Dare, Pasquotank and Camden counties, but only a few state employees joined local volunteers in monitoring those blazes.

Even without rain, the fires should be small enough by Sunday night for firefighters to leave, Roten said. He said airplanes would make periodic flights over the sites for the next several days to make sure none suddenly spreads.

State officials say the week's fires, which burned nearly 50,000 acres of North Carolina woodlands, caused millions of dollars in damages to trees and the organic soil, not counting the structures that were destroyed last weekend. But it will take months to tell whether some trees — especially pines — will die or recover, officials said.

Peat that has been approved for mining can be worth up to $7,000 per acre-foot. In some areas of the state, the peat is 14 feet deep, Roten said.

The state hasn't computed the cost of the week-long battle with the fires, but Roten said several hundred temporary helpers — including students from a number of universities and technical schools — would have to be paid. He said most of the full-time employees would get overtime pay.

"It's going to end up costing a lot," Roten said. "But when so many fires break out at once there's not much you can do. We can usually handle even major forest fires with our regular staff and local volunteers, but when you've got dozens going every which way you've got to have more help and worry about the money later."

Science Fair Honors Won

Jeff Allen took first place in the junior physical science division and Becky Denson won first place in the senior competition of the annual science fair held by the science department at Ayden-Grifton High School.

Sharon Jolly, Pam Forrest and Chris Doughtie won first prize in the junior biological science division. Bill Wiggins won first prize in the senior biologivcal science division.

They will compete in the Eastern Regional Science Fair at East Carolina University April 23.

1982 Heritage Tour

Greenville, North Carolina

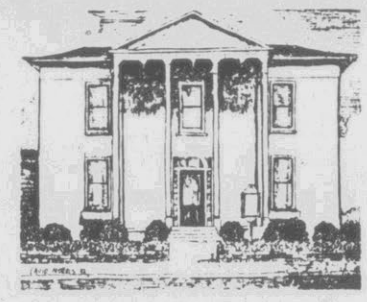
Saturday, April 17, 1982

10:00 a.m.-3:00 p.m.

Some of the Homes And Buildings Include:

HOUSE STATION (1890-1891)
2424 South Charles Boulevard

In October, 1890, the Wilmington and Weldon Railroad completed an 85-mile line between Scotland Neck and Kinston. The House Station, originally located several miles north of Greenville on land sold to the railroad by David House, is one of several quaint-depots constructed along the line. It cost $747.35 to build. It was closed in the 1950's and moved to Greenville in 1976 by Dees Whitley for use as a realty office. House Station features distinctive board-and-batten siding, heart pine floors, and wainscotting made from boards taken from the freight room. The station currently houses Century 21 Bass Realty.



SKINNER-MOYE HOUSE (circa 1860)
123 West Third Street

Featuring an exterior of scored stucco, this Greek Revival house is one of Greenville's few remaining antebellum structures. Built by Charles Greene for his daughter, Jane Brown, the house has been owned by members of the Moye and Skinner families. The house was altered and expanded in the late 19th century. However, the front entrance and window frames are evidence of its pre-Civil War origin. The present owner, Marvin K. Blount, renovated the structure for use as offices.

Also Featuring

Plant Sale and at 11:00 Elliot Frank, classical guitarist will perform on the lawn of the Ficklen Arthur House, Corner of Fourteenth and Charles.

A concert of music from the Baroque, Classical and Romantic periods will be performed at St. Timothy's Episcopal Church at 3:00 p.m.

Thousands Join Peace Walk In Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — A chanting, sign-waving throng estimated at up to 25,000 people marched for peace through Chicago on the day before Easter, some wheeling babies and leading pets on leashes.

They walked along Michigan Avenue, stretching out for two miles, singing and chanting, on their way to a rally at the Federal Building. Cars on the opposite lane sounded horns in salute.

In the vanguard were four children carrying the rallying slogan: "Stop The Arms Race, Save The Human Race."

A chant by the children was taken up by the crowd: "1, 2, 3, 4. We don't want a nuclear war. 5, 6, 7, 8. We don't want to radiate."

The turnout coincided with the 40th anniversary of the first controlled nuclear chain reaction and the beginning of the nuclear age in an experimental reactor under Stagg Field at the University of Chicago.

B.E. Ross, 79, carried a sign around his neck. "In The Name Of Humanity. Nuclear War Knows No Limits."

"I've been marching in protest of wars since 1931 when Japan invaded Manchuria," he said. "I was a DePaul law student then. We knew something was going to happen involving the United States. And 10 years later came Pearl Harbor.

"I marched through the 1960's and I'm still marching. But this, I think, is the biggest of all because life in the whole world is involved. And I'll march against it until my legs give out."

Some marchers were dressed as skeletons. Others carried painted deathhead signs.

Pearl Hirshfield, one of the organizers of the Peace Walk in Chicago said, "We don't want to wait for President Reagan to play catch-up with nuclear arms."

Father Tracy O'Sullivan, chairman of the Catholic Outreach Committee for the Peace Walk, said: "Concern about a nuclear holocaust is intense in the Catholic community."

A group of marchers held a huge, orange banner. Drawn on it were three green bottles with mushroom clouds inside of them. The banner read: "Reagan and Haig's Birth Control.

Elsewhere, in Goldsboro, N.C., a group of Japanese Buddhist monks joined 150 North Carolinians in an hour-long silent vigil to protest the presence of nuclear weapons at Seymour Johnson Air Force Base.

"We are here ... to make people aware that they are right next to a nuclear weapon," said Elon College freshman David Vireg, one of the marchers.

"A group of Japanese monks and American supporters have come to America to walk across the country to make a public witness for peace," said Bob Hurley of the North Carolina Peace Network. "They are concerned over the massive buildup of nuclear weapons and want to discuss with the American people the consequences of nuclear warfare."

And at Suquamish, Wash., 11 "peace pilgrims" bound for Bethlehem visited the grave of Chief Seattle, an "outspoken man of peace," on the second day of their planned 6,500-mile trek in support of nuclear disarmament.

Members of a Presbyterian youth group and seven Buddhist monks swelled the ranks of the marchers to about 50, said Robert Patten, of Portland, Ore., one of the pilgrims.

"Chief Seattle ... was a very outspoken man of peace and had an incredible amount of wisdom about the world," said Patten. "We believe the gravesite of a person with this kind of wisdom and spirituality is holy place.

Seattle is named for the Suquamish Indian chief, whose real name was Sealth. He is buried on the Kitsap Peninsula, about 15 miles northwest of Seattle across Puget Sound.

The pilgrims were blessed Friday by Catholic Archbishop Raymond G. Hunthausen of Seattle.

CARICATURE ...A peace rally participant in Chicago Saturday wore a papier-mache sculptured head of President Reagan. The protestor carried a sign that read, "End The Human Race." The demonstration was staged as a protest of American nuclear weapon policy. (AP Laserphoto)

Zumwalt Says Helms Wrong

SOUTHERN PINES, N.C. (AP) — Retired Admiral Elmo Zumwalt said Saturday that U.S. Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., was wrong in supporting Argentina in the Falkland Islands crisis.

Zumwalt, the former chief of U.S. Naval Operations and a former member of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and a current resident of Moore County, also said the British probably can have a successfully naval blockage of the islands, but said an airplane blockage is another matter.

Asked about Helms' comments last week saying the British government had violated the Monroe Doctrine when they seized the islands in 1832, Zumwalt said:

"I have difficulty understanding how he (Helms) could side with a dictatorship which has violated international law and fails to side with a democratic ally who has been our strongest ally over the years. It strikes me as an aberration."

Computers ...

marketing (sales reporting, trend analysis, predictions).

Some 100 people at the local plant are directly involved with computer operations and programing, with another 40 in Raleigh. They are the ones that keep the system — which includes two central processing units (most computers, including BW's old one have one processing unit) that work simultaneously, but on different problems — operating to serve those who need it.

While Burroughs Wellcome has the largest computer in the county, others with sizable computer operations include such firms as Wachovia Bank and Empire Brushes, East Carolina University and Pitt County.

Gene Windham, who heads the county's computer operations, said Pitt's IBM 4331 is "a drop in the bucket" compared to the BW's "top of the line." However, he emphasized "it will do everything we need for the county."

Applications on the county's system now include all accounting for the county, payrolls, tax billing, tax collections, voter registration, jury selection for the clerk of court, food stamp processes for the Department of Social Services, accounting and payroll for the Greenville and county school units, as well as tax collections and licenses for the city of Greenville and tax billing for all other municipalities in the county except Grimesland.

Windham noted that all accounting and payroll activities for Pitt County Memorial Hospital, as well as other applications for the medical facility, used to be handled by the county's computer. However, the hospital is completing the process of switching its work to the university's computer center.

"We're asking for additional capacity in July" — the beginning of a new fiscal year — Windham said, "to allow us to serve more users," which will include accounting and a data base for social services and other applications for various county agencies.

"We have a very novel situation ... the first in the country," Glen Crowe, director of ECU's computing and information systems, said in describing the three-way consortium involving the university, ECU's medical school and the hospital.

For consortium use, the university has installed a new Univac computer to replace an old Burroughs model which will be used exclusively for academic computing needs.

With the computer complex valued at about $3.5 million, the university, just as the county and most other large computer users, is leasing the equipment.

When fully operational, the university's Univac will handle "all administrative work for the university, the medical school and the hospital, as well as medical records and patient care research.

Saying the Univac has "twice the computing capability over the (old) Burroughs," Crowe noted that the university's computer operation has experienced "phenomenal growth" in the past few years, going from six to 24 operators and nine to 24 programers.

Job opportunities in the computer field?

Crowe said, "The demand is tremendous ... exceeding the supply. I've recruited airline people ... people from West Virginia University," and others. But because of the difference in the salaries paid by the state and by private industry, employees are hard to keep.

"Commercial groups in town have advantages the state and county can't give. We're averaging 20 percent turnover a year.

"Our graduates, with a bachelor's degree, are starting at $19,000 to $26,000 a year. The state system just doesn't allow for that type of competitive market. It's tough."

Crowe said "the head-hunters" — other computer operations — average calling ECU computer employees "five or six times a week" with offers to double their salary to move. And "several have moved to Atlanta for double their salary."

While Windham agreed that good computer people are hard for government agencies to keep, Irwin said, "We have a very low turnover rate at Burroughs Wellcome — far below the industry.

"Burroughs Wellcome has experienced tremendous growth and the people stay very enthusiastic. We retain people because of the growth," he suggested, and because they are "very active and involved."

However, Irwin acknowledged that BW has also has a "difficult time recruiting," to expand its staff because of the high demand for good computer people.

While Burroughs Wellcome, Wachovia, Empire Brushes, ECU and Pitt County are big users in the county, there are a multitude of small ones — Carolina Sales, Ormond Wholesale, Farley, Prescott and Mizelle, Morgan Printers and Garner-Wynn-Manning are among them.

So is Overton's Competition Skis, which uses a computer for national and international direct mail order applications. And The Daily Reflector uses a computer in the production of its daily newspaper editions.

Easter Egg Contest Ends

The Great Easter Egg Coloring Contest, sponsored by Carolina East Mall, had 700 third grade students from the Greenville city schools, Carolina Country Day, Pitt County schools and Greenville Academy participating.

The eggs were judged on artistic ability, creativity, originality and neatness. The winners were: first place — Devon Ulysses Beevers, Greenville Christian Academy, winning a $25 gift certificate; second place — Jonathan Beckert, Carolina Country Day, a $15 gift certificate; and third place, Malcolm Gray, W.H. Robinson, a $10 gift certificate. All students participating will receive a certificate of participation.

Most eggs were suspended from the ceiling and others were on display throughout the mall from March 25 through Saturday.

Conley Concert Will Be Held

The D.H. Conley High School Concert Band will present its annual spring concert Thursday at 8 p.m. in the school's auditorium.

The band will perform under the direction of James Fleming. Some of the selections include "Stars and Stripes Forever" by John Phillip Sousa; "Tchaikovsky Portrait" by Eric Asterling and "Imperatrix" by Alfred Reed.

The stage band will perform "Little Darlin' " by Neil Hefti; "Fancy Free" by Donald Byrd; "Hill Street Blues" by Dane Wolpe and "Theme from New York" by Jerry Nowak.

Albert Whiting: Leads NCCU Into The Light

By BILL OUTLAW
Associated Press Writer

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Albert N. Whiting, whose research lay behind a book entitled "In the Shadows of the Plantation," has helped lead North Carolina Central University into the light of modern education.

Whiting, chancellor at N.C. Central since 1967, says there have been "tremendous changes" in education at traditionally black schools since he did the research as part of his master's work more than 40 years ago.

Many of those changes came about when courts began enforcing school desegregation, a move that Whiting says created problems for N.C. Central.

At first there was a "disproportionate shifting of good black students to predominanatly white schools — by luring them with good juicy scholarships," he said. After that wave, the increasing availability of financial aid resulted in more blacks going to traditionally white schools than their traditionally black counterparts.

"So much so, that today, 80 percent, or maybe something higher, of all black students in college are in predominantly white institutions ... the exact reverse of 10 to 15 years ago," Whiting said.

Black institutions were left faced with potential declines in enrollment while their top teachers were being recruited by white schools.

"We were losing our top faculty; 50 percent were plucked away from us — pirated I call it," he said.

Instead of abandoning ship, Whiting and his staff decided to make the college "competitive" by changing course, offering what Whiting calls "non-traditional" programs designed to attract both white and black students.

Programs sprang up that were not offered at other colleges or universities, including a School of Library Science incorporating computers with early childhood education and a criminal justice program that pioneered active involvement by members of the law enforcement community.

Whiting said a musicology degree with special emphasis on church music and another program emphasizing music production rather than performance drew more enrollments.

One of his most recent innovations is a night law school, letting working people earn a law degree part-time. Whiting says it's the only night law school around not centered on full-time law students.

The changes helped the college increase enrollment from 3,086 students in 1967 to nearly 5,000 in the fall of 1981, led by an increase in N.C. Central's graduate students from 319 in 1967 to about 900.

Popularizing the programs left Whiting wondering "how to maintain the cultural benefits and, at the same time, adapt your program to integration," he said. Changing attitudes among blacks helped defuse that crisis, only to see it replaced by a new threat to historically black schools.

Federal cuts in student aid could hurt minority institutions more than predominantly white schools, Whiting says, estimating that 90 percent of N.C. Central students are receiving financial aid.

Minority schools need more private funds to offset the anticipated federal losses, Whiting says. He hopes to raise $2 million to be used as student loans so that schools would have a renewable fund as the loans are repaid.

But minority schools face a tough battle in the years to come, a battle that will leave some of the country's 104 historically black schools by the wayside, he said.

"Those that persist will be those that develop the spirit of competiveness and some kind of survival role," Whiting added.

Whiting, who plans to retire as chancellor June 30, 1983, says he plans to move to Washington and work with a national education association. In addition, he plans to devote time to the University of World Peace in Costa Rica, Puerto Rico and may write a book.

Potato Growers Set Vote May 20

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Commercial Irish potato growers in a seven-county area of Northeastern North Carolina will vote May 20 whether to renew an assessment program to support work of the N.C. Potato Association Inc.

Growers in Beaufort, Camden, Carteret, Currituck, Pamlico, Pasquotank and Tyrrell counties now contribute a fee per hundred weight of potatoes sold. The assessment was approved 25 years ago and must be approved by a two-thirds majority of those voting May 20 for the program to continue another six years.

Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham said Friday he supports the assessment, which goes toward promoting potatoes, research, market development and production.

OSTOMY CHAPTER

The Greenville Chapter of United Ostomy Association will meet Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at the Pitt County Mental Health Center conference room.

Dr. Davis Buch will discuss the pyschological aspects of ostomy surgery. The nominations of officers for the new year will be made.

Federal School Cuts May Not Be So Drastic

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina public school officials, who have been gearing up for the loss of $40 million in federal aid, may receive a reprieve if a Congressional counterproposal to President Reagan's budget is passed.

The bill would mean public schools in the state would lose between $7 million and $8 million, instead of the expected loss of $40 million under Reagan's plan.

Although educators probably won't get a definite word on federal funds until this summer, Joe Webb, special assistant for federal programs in North Carolina, is sure the 1982-83 year will reflect only slight reductions.

"I'm more optimistic about educational funding than I've been in some time," said Webb. "It's looking up."

Already, school administrators have streamlined programs and reduced staff to accommodate the changes, he said.

"They've eliminated everything they could to hold onto teachers. There really wasn't much left to cut. We were concerned because we knew they've trimmed so much already."

The largest cutbacks will be to the Title I programs for disadvantaged children, including those from poor families who have extremely weak reading and math skills, Webb added. Staff in these programs will be reduced and eligibility standards would limit the number of participants.

Schools that have received special grant funds in the past may suffer the most as about 40 programs — including library assistance — are being channeled into one education block grant, Webb said.

In Granville County, officials said cuts in vocational training programs and materials would help preserve teachers' jobs.

In Warren County, facing a reduction from $925,000 in federal aid to about $626,000, a program for disadvantaged children in kindergarten through third grade will be phased out, said James Jordan, assistant superintendent.

Jordan, like many administrators, said he hopes state and local funds will take up where federal funds leave off.

Nuclear Protest Held In Wayne

GOLDSBORO, N.C. (AP) — A group of Japanese Bhuddist monks joined 150 North Carolinians in an hour-long vigil of silent prayer Saturday to protest the presence of nuclear weapons at Seymour Johnson Air Force Base.

"We are here ... to make people aware that they are right next to a nuclear weapon," said Elon College freshman David Vireg, one of the marchers. B-52 aircraft on the base are equipped with nuclear bombs.

"It is time to voice our grief and share it with everyone," said one monk. "The way to do this is to denounce all war and renounce all violence."

The monks, rallying at the St. James AME Zion Church, spoke with the Rev. W.W. Finlator, Melissa Gehrman of CAN-DISARM of Winston-Salem, the Rev. J.R. Williams of Goldsboro, Sister Evelyn Mattern of N.C. Council of Churches and retired Air Force Col. Jim Berry. Following the rally, the group marched to the main gate of the base for the demonstration.

"A group of Japanese monks and American supporters have come to America to walk across the country to make a public witness for peace," said Bob Hurley of the North Carolina Peace Network. "They are concerned over the massive buildup of nuclear weapons and want to discuss with the American people the consequences of nuclear warefare.

"They are especially concerned because it was two of Japan's cities that suffered the horrible devastation of nuclear attack," Hurley added. "Their message is clear: Increasing nuclear arms is endangering world security."

After the protest at Seymour Johnson AFB, many demonstrators said they would go to Norfolk, Va. for similar protests.

Springs Art Show On View

ECU News Bureau

Nearly 40 works of art by artists from North and South Carolina are on view through Friday at East Carolina University's Gray Gallery.

The exhibition, "Art of the Carolinas," is the 1982 Springs Traveling Art Show, sponsored by Springs Mills Inc. Among the artists represented is David Norris, an ECU School of Art alumnus now living in Greenville. His intaglio print, "The Skaters," received a purchase award.

Gray Gallery is open to the public each weekday from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. and on Sunday from 1 to 4 p.m.

Poll Reflects Ingram Edge

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — State Insurance Commissioner John Ingram appears to have a slight edge on other potential gubernatorial candidates when it comes to name recognition, a University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill poll shows.

Among people of voting age surveyed, 84 percent said they had heard of Ingram, while 82 percent recognized the name of former Sen. Robert Morgan.

The School of Journalism poll indicated Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green, 1980 gubernatorial candidate I. Beverly Lake Jr. and state Attorney General Rufus Edmisten also were recognized by more than 70 percent of those surveyed.

Among other possible candidates mentioned — UNC system president William Friday, U.S. Rep. Charles Rose, Charlotte Mayor Eddie Knox, former Deputy Secretary of Human Resources Thomas Gilmore and state Sen. Cass Ballenger — recognition ranged from 39 percent to 14 percent.

(Former East Carolina University Chancellor Leo Jenkins, who has indicated he will run for governor, was not included in the poll.)

The 10 potential candidates were compiled from newspaper reports speculating about the governor's race in the previous six months, said Philip Meyer, professor of journalism. He added that more potential candidates have been mentioned than could be included in the poll.

Name recognition, while not an accurate means of assessing voter preference, is an important first step to building support, Meyer said.

An analysis of the data showed interesting differences in those recognizing the various names.

Friday's name was recognized among 62 percent of those with college experience, but only 30 percent of those with less education said they had heard of him.

Most of the candidates were recognized by more people in the Piedmont than in the mountain or coastal regions. But Rose, who represents a coastal district in Congress, was recognized by 54 percent of respondents there as opposed to 29 percent of those in Piedmont and mountain areas.

Knox was known by 41 percent of Piedmont voters surveyed, but his reknown dwindled to 33 percent in the mountains and 14 percent in the coastal area.

Green was the only potential candidate who was recognized more often by men than women. His name elicited positive responses by 81 percent of men polled, compared with 72 percent among women.

The poll was conducted in early March using telephone numbers selected at random by computer and limited to 593 voting-age respondents. The margin of error for the results is 4 percent, meaning that in 95 of 100 samples the results will differ by no more than 4 percentage points from the result if all voters in the state were surveyed.

Prices Listed For Pitt Book

Persons who wish to own a copy of the forthcoming "Pitt County Chronicles" will economize by putting in an order at the earliest possible date.

Elizabeth Copeland, coordinator of the history project, has furnished information on the cost of the book at various stages of time. North Carolina sales tax of 4 cents on the dollar must be added to the quoted prices. Basic prices are:

•Through Thursday — $30.

•April 16 - June 15 — $35.

•June 16 until publication date — $40.

•After publication — $45.

"There was widespread response to our request for material for the book," Ms. Copeland remarked. "We have 1,100 family stories from all areas of the county, as well as excellent historical sketches."

Compilation of material and underwriting of publication is a project sponsored by the Pitt County Historical Society. The book is to be hard bound, large format, with a generous number of old and new photographs.

Stadler Surges To Masters' Lead

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Craig Stadler, who has quietly established himself as one of golf's more accomplished players, birdied the last three holes with three long putts and took a 3-stroke lead Saturday in the third round of the 46th Masters tournament.

"I definitely think I'm playing well enough to win," said Stadler, who has won five titles and more than $500,000 in the last 2½ seasons. "I'm very pleased with my iron play."

Stadler, whose improvement in weekly tour events is roughly paralleled by his increased control of a once-violent temper, has said he's playing better than ever before.

"I've got a lot of confidence. My confidence has been high all season," he said after posting a dramatic 67, a 5-under-par effort that included a comeback from a double bogey on the second hole.

It was capped by the three critical birdies on the final holes, birdies that changed the entire tenor and tempo of the tournament.

From a multiple-man race it became a potential rout.

"I like to play with the lead. The bigger the better. Those last two birdies put a nice little cushion on an already good day."

It was a 2-3-3 finishing burst over some of the most demanding holes in the game. The spectacular close, including putts of 40 and 30 feet on the last two, gave him a 54-hole total of 211, 5 under par on the Augusta National Golf Club course.

But, Stadler noted, "there's still work to be done" in Sunday's final 18 holes.

"A very aggressive player," agreed Seve Ballesteros of Spain.

"His only problem is that he hasn't won here before," Watson said. "And there probably will be more pressure on him than, say, Jack Nicklaus and me."

Nerves, however, will not be a problem, Stadler said.

"I'm not really the nervous type, no matter the situation," Stadler responded. "It won't affect me any."

And Nicklaus seemed to agree. His disappointment was obvious as he watched on television as Stadler holed his last two birdie putts.

"Well," he said, "it looks as if his time has come."

"He's got the lead. Either he has to give it away or somebody has to take it

Stadler Hoping 'His Day' Has Come At Masters

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI) — Craig Stadler hopes Jack Nicklaus was right on target when the five-time Masters champion said it looked like Stadler's "day was coming."

"I certainly hope so," said Stadler who will be going into Sunday's final Masters round with a three-stroke lead over former Masters champion Seve Ballesteros and former U.S. Open champion Jerry Pate. "I've been playing well all year and haven't had as much to show for it as I should."

Stadler won the Tucson Open this year and feels he should have won the Crosby, where he finished second; the Doral where he tied for fifth; and Bay Hill where he tied for fourth.

"I just got beat out in the Crosby when (winner) Jim Simons shot a 32 on the last nine," said the chunky Californian. "But I feel I gave the other two away."

Stadler, who has won nearly $148,000 so far this year after topping the $200,000 mark each of the previous two years, says that won't happen Sunday.

"Somebody is going to have to beat me," he said. "I'm not the nervous type, the pressure won't affect me."

That apparently wasn't true three years ago when Stadler, a co-leader after 36 holes, had a final-round 76.

"That last round in '79 here certainly wasn't any fun," he said. "After all, I had a chance to win the golf tournament. But it served as a learning experience. I've been here a few times now and you start to learn the golf course and what to do with it."

Stadler certainly knew what to do with the Augusta National Saturday when he shot a 5-under-par 67 for a three-day total of 5-under 211 — except for the second hole.

"What can I say?" asked Stadler. "I clipped the trees and when I did get to the green it took me three putts to get down from 40 feet."

Stadler missed an eight-footer at No. 3 that would have gotten him a birdie and needed a six-footer to save par at No. 4.

"That par putt got me going, actually," said Stadler who played the final 14 holes in 7-under with an equal number of birdies and pars and closing out with two tremendous birdie putts — the first from 40 feet and the other from 30.

"I had no business making that 40-footer at 17," Stadler said with a huge smile. "But once I did, I figured, what the heck, I might as well do it again."

Campbell Storms By East Carolina, 13-5

BUIES CREEK — It seems like East Carolina's pitching staff — on the road at least — has to get past the first inning to really give the Pirates a fighting chance at winning the game.

Saturday afternoon was one of those days when the first inning let down the Pirates, and Campbell was able to storm to a 13-5 victory over East Carolina.

The Camels touched starting pitcher Bill Davidson for five runs in the first, and the Pirates were staggering after that.

"We didn't play all that badly," Coach Hal Baird said. "But it seems like on the road if we get past the first inning without trouble, we have a chance to win."

He pointed out that in both the Richmond and William & Mary losses, the opponents scored early, while against N.C. State, when the Pirates swept a double header, there was no trouble at all in the first innings.

"If we get off to a poor start, we're in trouble."

Walks also played a key roll in the loss. The three Pirate hurlers — Brian Peterson and Kirk Parsons followed Davidson — walked a total of 12 batters. Of those 12, six later came around to score. And three of those players represented the final out of the inning when they came to the plate.

Campbell did bang out 12 hits also, while the Pirates picked up ten in their times at bat.

But after the first inning, it was all over as the Pirates never caught up again.

With one out, Kevin Barger singled and Bob Posey staked the Camels to the lead with a home run, making it 2-0.

Then, after a second out, Kelly Hoffman walked and Bill Wilkes singled. Herb Williams followed that up with a second home run, and the Camels were off an running, 5-0.

East Carolina came back with two in the top of the second. Todd Evans reached on an infield hit, and Todd Hendley followed with a homer for the Pirates.

The Pirates closed it to 5-3 in the third. Hendley walked and Jack Curlings singled. Jay Carraway grounded out, allowing Hendley to score.

But Campbell came back to wrap it up with three more runs in the fourth, making it 8-3. Barger walked, stole up and watched Posey walk. Wayne Dale then singled in Barger, and Hoffman walked. Wilkes followed with another walk, scoring Posey, and after two strikeouts, Steve Regner also walked, scoring Dale.

The Camels added four more in the sixth, and got one in the seventh on a solo homer by Wilkes.

Mounting Injuries Worry Emory

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Following a scrimmage Thursday afternoon, East Carolina's football team took the weekend off for the Easter holidays.

Coach Ed Emory viewed that break with mixed feelings. "I'd really like to have kept on practicing," he said, "because we need the work.

"But we also need the time off to get some of our injured people well," he added.

Injuries are beginning to mount up, the coach said, and he's unhappy about it. "One of our goals was to have everyone in practice for all 20 days," he said. "But right now we have 14 or 15 people who will be out for the rest of the spring. We still have nine days to do, and I guess you can't expect to be injury-free, but we were hoping for better than this. Having that many sidelined concerns us, but we can still teach 'em mentally."

Last weekend, Emory expressed some concern about his offensive unit, saying it was far behind the defense. "The offense picked up some this past week, but it's still well behind the defense," he said after watching the Thursday scrimmage and then reviewing films of the fray on Friday.

"What we're doing is having about one breakdown on each play. It might not be at the same place each time, but it's happening. Our backs are not blocking very well on pass protection, and that's hurt us too. Our quaterback-receiver work is going very good."

Emory added that one of the defensive emphasis was to improve on pass rush, and he said that this should improve the protection.

"(Carlton) Nelson (switched from quarterback to wide receiver) is unbelievable. He's playing exceptionally well. Stephon Adams is also doing very well after being moved there (from running back). Damon Pope and Norwood Vann are also playing quite well at tight end. They are catching the ball and running routes very well and the line is doing a pretty good job of pass protection."

The coach feels that quarterback Kevin Ingram made good progress during the past week, and that Greg Stewart continues to have a good grasp of the offense.

"One problem we're having is that our people are having to block folks like Jody Schulz, J.C. Plott, Jeff Pegues and Curtis Wyatt. They can't block on four better people, and that should make us a better team in the fall," Emory said.

Emory said the Pirates have to be more alert to the mental part of the game. "We are making too many mistakes right now, missed assignments, bad techniques. We have the makings of a fine offensive team, but it takes time. I'm real pleased with the way they've grasped the new offense and the excitement they have about it."

In the offensive line, Emory said the return of Tom Carnes and Tony Smith will help the blocking.

"We're still having a good spring. The kicking game and defensive game are better, and that has to please me because you win games on defense and kicking."

While much has been said about the passing game this spring with the switch to the I offense, Emory said that the running game is progressing well.

"We have (Earnest) Byner back now, and he had a good day Thursday. (Jimmy) Walden has been looking good, and Reggie Branch should look good after he comes off an ankle injury.

"With the backs we have returning and the offensive line we have, our running game should be better than the passing game. But we've found out the hard way that you can't run without a good passing game, too."

The Pirates return to work on Monday night, with a film session, then practice on Tuesday through Saturday. They have nine remaining days of work during the spring drills, which wind up Saturday, April 24 in the annual Purple-Gold game.

Chargers, Rams Win Openers

WILSON — It took extra innings, but both Greene Central and Ayden-Grifton came away winners in the first round of the Wilson Breakfast Optimist Invitational Baseball Tournament in Wilson Saturday.

Greene Central lost a 6-0 lead, but rallied in the eighth to take an 11-6 victory over SouthWest Edgecombe, while Ayden-Grifton went 11 innings before pulling out a 1-0 victory over Wilson Beddingfield.

The wins moved the two into the winners' bracket for Monday's play. The Rams will face Wilson Hunt, a 10-4 winner over North Lenoir at 5 p.m., while Ayden-Griftontakes on the winner of the final game between Wilson Fike and Raleigh Enloe. The losers bracket plays earlier in the afternoon. The finals of the eight-place tournament will be held Tuesday.

The Rams pushed into the lead in the second inning of their game, scoring four times. Butch Brown walked and James Moore also drew a free pass. With one out, Donald Warren walked, loading the bases. A fourth walk to John Mayo plated Brown, and Marlow Gilmore also walked, scoring Moore. Tommy Goff then singled to drive in both Warren and Mayo.

The Rams scored two more in the third, taking a 6-0 lead.

But SouthWest rallied in the fifth, scoring six times to tie the game, and walks again played a big role in the comeback.

Barrett Powell walked and after one out, Neal Justice singled. David Proctor walked, loading the bases and a walk to Ralph Fuller brought in Powell. Alan Wilson singled in Justice and Proctor, and Hank Farmer got a hit to score Fuller. James Williams then walked as did Mike Varnell, scoring Wilson. A sixth walk to Harold Hobgood brought in Farmer with the tying run.

But the Rams pushed over five runs in the top of the eighth, wrapping up the victory. Mayo walked and Gilmore singled. Goff tripled, scoring both runners, and he scored on Chris Ginn's single. Ritchie Chase reached on an error and Moore walked. Warren was hit by a

Williams Hurls Two-Hitter

Rose Slips Past New Bern, 2-0

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Rose High School's Roger Williams stayed on top of the situation, hurling a two-hit shutout at New Bern in the first round of the Pitt County Invitational Tournament Saturday, 2-0.

The Rampants thus advance into the semifinals of the tournament and will meet Farmville Central on Monday at 5 p.m. at Guy Smith Stadium. Farmville, along with D.H. Conley, received a first round bye in the six-team field.

Conley will take on Kinston, a 5-2 winner over Washington High School in the second game of the day Saturday. The Conley-Kinston game will be played Monday at 7:30 p.m.

The tournament's consolation games are scheduled for Tuesday, with New Bern and Washington meeting at 2:30 p.m., followed by the Monday losers at 5 p.m., and the Monday winners at 7:30 p.m.

Williams, now 4-0 on the season, didn't allow a hit until the fourth inning after he had also walked a runner to put a Bear on for the first time. The first time through the lineup, he set the Bears down in order.

In the fourth, however, J.R. Hudson walked with one down and Dan White followed with a single to center. But two fly balls ended that threat.

New Bern's best threat came in the sixth inning. Brian Saunders led off with a single off the tip of second baseman Mont Carter's glove and then stole second. George Gray walked, and both moved up on an infield grounder.

After a chat between Coach Ronald Vincent and Williams, the senior bore down and struck out the next two batters, ending the inning. No one else reached base.

"I really don't think I threw all that well," Williams said later. "I don't think I threw as well as I did against Kinston (his last outing)." Williams, in that game, gave up six hits, but also struck out 13. He fanned only seven against the Bears.

"It was better than it was against Northern Nash, but I don't think I'm throwing as good as I should be yet," Williams added.

Vincent said that he feels the righthander is throwing better now. "What I really liked about his game today was that in the pressure situations, he really came through."

Vincent also felt the Rampants did a fine job backing up Williams, committing no errors. "We really played good defense. I didn't think that we swung the bats all that well. We seemed to be topping it or popping it up. Both pitchers stayed in the strike zone pretty well."

Rose managed several threats, but made only two of them pay off. In the first inning, the Rampants got an infield hit from Sammy Hodges, who then stole second, only to die there.

In the third, however, the Rampants hit pay dirt. With one down, Keith Phillips singled but was cut down at second on Randy Warrne's grounder back to the mound. Warren stole second then scored when Rudy Stalls singled to center. Stalls also stole up, but was left standing.

The second Rose run came in the

A-G Feels Pressure Of Trying To Win Second Title

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer

Ayden-Grifton began a two-week sabbatical from play in the Eastern Carolina Conference Saturday afternoon, and the break could not have come at a better time.

The Chargers began play in the third annual Wilson Breakfast Optimist Easter Tournament yesterday and do not return to conference play until April 23 when they travel to North Pitt.

With the North Pitt game Ayden-Grifton will reach the midway mark of its ECC schedule. It has been far from an easy first-half for the defending conference champions.

"We are already feeling the pressure," Ayden-Grifton coach Allan Wilson said. "In the situation we're in we know what it'll take to win (the ECC championship). We know if we lose another game we'll be out of it."

Ayden-Grifton is coming off a 9-4 win over ECC foe Farmville Central. The win was the Chargers' third straight and fourth in their last five games and left them at 4-1 in the league.

Charles B. Aycock leads the ECC with a 5-0 mark. The Falcons defeated Greene Central, 5-4, Friday. The Rams are 2-2 in the ECC, having lost only to Aycock and Ayden-Grifton.

"Going into the the year we felt like we'd be one of the top teams in the league," Wilson said. "But we also felt Aycock and Greene Central would be tough and I think its proved to be pretty much true.

"But, like I told our guys, the pressure is on us. We're facing other teams' best pitchers, whereas last year we snuck up on some people. But I still feel we've got enough talent to win it."

The Chargers, who finished 12-4 in the league and 14-9 overall a year ago, return seven starters, including their top three hitters and their best pitcher.

Missing this year are pitcher-first baseman Brandt Allen, who graduated, and junior rightfielder Chuck Smithwick, who decided not to play this year. Allen hit .315 with 20 RBI a year ago and was 4-4 on the mound. Smithwick hit .293 with 16 RBI and two homers.

Leading the list of returnees is lefthander Tyrone Gay. Gay, a junior, was 9-4 last season with 142 strikeouts in 87⅔ innings. Until recently, however, Gay has struggled.

Gay, who threw a one-hitter against Greene Central in his last outing, is 3-3 this season with a 2.12 earned run average. He has struck out 50 and walked 19 in 33 innings.

"He's thrown the ball well," Wilson said, "but he's throwing a lot of pitches and he's walking more this year."

Joining Gay on the list of returnees this season are second baseman Bernard Ricciarelli, shortstop Chris Strickland and third baseman Terry Locust. Joey Kennedy, a junior, moves to first after playing third last season and Locust moved from leftfield to third.

Roger Moye, a sophomore, is behind the plate. Moye played most of last season before being dropped from the team for disciplinary reasons.

Art Rouse returns in centerfield and Gay will be in right when not pitching and freshman Jackie Conway is in left. Doug Coley will play either left or right when not pitching.

Locust led A-G in hitting with a .361 average a year ago and is again among the leaders this year at .419. Locust has also hit three homers. Ricciarelli, who hit .246 last year, leads the Chargers with a .483 average.

Coley is team's #2 hitter with a .433 mark. Gay is at .344, giving the A-G four players hitting over .300. Two others — Strickland and Quentin Warren — are just below .300. Strickland is at .294 and Warren at .286.

"So far I've been impressed with our hitting," Wilson said. "I think we're hitting the ball better than we did last year. Our first five batters can hit the ball well. There's not an easy out among them."

Wilson expected — and need — his team to hit the ball well this year. What he did not expect but did need was someone to step forward and fill the gap left by Allen's departure.

"Early in the year the main thing we were looking for was someone to fill in for Brandt on the mound," Wilson said. "I figured Gay would have a better start than he's had but I didn't expect Coley and (Terry) Garrett to do what they've done."

Coley, while not overpowering, has come on to win three games in four outings and is the ECC's ERA leader with a 0.00 mark. Coley, a sophomore, has given up 11 runs — all unearned — in 17⅓ innings of work.

Garrett, a hard-throwing lefthanded freshman, is 1-0 and has been used mostly in late innings. He has pitched 21⅔ innings and has a 3.10 ERA. "I've got to feel good," Wilson said. "We're getting by pitching Coley and Garrett and Gay's coming around now."

When the Chargers resume their ECC schedule against North Pitt two weeks hence it will mark the start of three straight league games on the road. The Chargers travel to SouthWest Edgecombe (April 23) and to C.B. Aycock before returning home for their final four league games — against Southern Nash, Greene Central, Farmville and North Pitt.

A year ago Ayden-Grifton won 12 of its first 13 league games and clinched the title when Farmville Central defeated Southern Nash. The Jaguars' helping hand was not essential in the Chargers' run to their first conference championship under Wilson.

This year is different. Having already lost to Aycock, the Chargers must beat the Falcons when they travel to Pikeville on April 29 and hope Aycock is loses again somewhere along the line.

Moreover, the Chargers cannot afford another league loss. "I'm worrying about that loss (to Aycock) now," Wilson said. "I feel like we should be 5-0, but the thing that really bothers me about that is there are not too many teams that can beat them this year.

"There are probably only two or three teams that can beat them this year," Wilson continued. "I think the bottom of the league is a little weak this year."

AMERICAN LEAGUE

BALTIMORE (AP) — Earl Weaver contradicted himself but in the end he was certain, at least, that a win is a win.

"It was no masterpiece, but it was a win," the Baltimore manager said after the Orioles hung on to beat Boston 5-3 in the second game and earn a split with the Red Sox in Saturday's doubleheader.

Dennis Eckersley allowed the Orioles six hits in the 2-0 opener, with a two-out single by Jim Rice accounting for Boston's runs in the third inning.

Boston threatened in the last two innings of the nightcap after Eddie Murray had driven in three Baltimore runs with two doubles and a grounder — givig him seven RBI in three games.

But the Red Sox scored only one run while stranding four runners, and another was picked off second base.

The shaky finish prompted Weaver's initial assessment, but he changed his mind after further consideration.

The Orioles had two runners on base in the seventh and ninth innings of the first game, but Eckersley held on to record Boston's first opening day shutout since Mel Parnell in 1952.

Eckersley recorded four of his six strikeouts in the first three innings and then worked out of two late threats. The Boston right-hander had retired 13 consecutive batters before Murray singled in the seventh and made it safely to second when shortstop Glenn Hoffman dropped the throw from right fielder Dwight Evans.

Eckersley then failed to touch the bag after taking a throw from first baseman Carl Yastrzemski on a grounder by John Lowenstein, with Murray taking third. But he fanned rookie Cal Ripken Jr. for the final out.

Ken Singleton and Murray singled with two out in the ninth before Eckersley retired Lowenstein on a fly ball.

Gary Allenson doubled off loser Scott McGregor to open the Boston third but was trapped off base following a bunt by Reid Nichols. Hoffman flied to short center after a double by Dwight Evans sent Nichols to third, but Rice delivered both runs on a 2-2 pitch, giving him 51 RBIs in his last 54 games against Baltimore.

Murray, who had five hits for the day, had an RBI double in the first inning of the nightcap and followed Singleton's run-producing single with an RBI grounder in the second off loser Bob Ojeda, 0-1. Murray also had an RBI double in the sixth.

Milwaukee relief ace Rollie Fingers, the American League's Most Valuable Player and Cy Young Award winner in 1981.

Designated hitter Wayne Nordhagen drew a walk and, after pinch-hitter Al Woods struck out, Bonnell hammered his single over the head of shortstop Robin Yount

Roy Lee Jackson pitched the final two innings for Toronto and allowed two hits to earn the victory.

TORONTO (AP) — Barry Bonnell, who went 5-for-5 in his first appearance of the season, drilled a two-out 10th-inning single to score Damaso Garcia from third base and give the Toronto Blue Jays a 3-2 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers.

Garcia led off the inning with an infield hit, was sacrificed to second by Lloyd Moseby and took third on a wild pitch by

Texas 8
Cleveland 3

CLEVELAND (AP) — The scouting reports on George Wright said he was an excellent defensive center fielder with an average bat.

And the Texas outfielder was as surprised as anyone when he clubbed a homer, a double and a single in his first major league game, driving in three runs to help the Rangers clobber the Cleveland Indians 8-3 in the American League opener for both teams.

"At the moment of the home run, I felt nothing," said the 23-year-old Wright. "But when I got back to the dugout, I just sat said down and said 'Wow. I got a home run in the major leagues.' After today, I'll be walking on air."

Wright's offensive show, though, had to share with Buddy Bell, who hit a pair of solo home runs and added a run-scoring single.

"It's the best opening game I've ever had," said Bell, a former Indian. "Also, it's my seventh two-home-run game, and I'm just delighted. George Wright had a heck of a day, too."

Wright earned the Rangers' center field job by hitting .315 during the spring, after veteran Mickey Rivers injured his leg.

Texas starter Charlie Hough fell behind 2-0 in the first inning when Bake McBride and Ron Hassey delivered RBI singles.

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — California's Doug DeCinces sparked a four-run fifth inning with a double as the Angels whipped the Minnesota Twins 8-1 Saturday.

Bob Boone opened the inning with a walk off losing pitcher Darrell Jackson and Rod Carew also walked. DeCinces then drove Boone home with a bloop double that fell safely when Minnesota second baseman Rob Wilfong and right fielder Dave Engle collided.

Jackson then intentionally walked Don Baylor, but Juan Beniquez spoiled the strategy with a two-run single. Baylor scored the fourth run of the inning on a sacrifice fly by Fred Lynn.

ECU Golfers Move Up To Sixth Place

From Staff, Wire Reports

CHAPEL HILL — East Carolina moved up one place — from seventh to sixth — with a two day total of 591 during second round play Saturday at the of the Tar Heel Invitational golf tournament.

North Carolina State finished the second round with 572 for a 10-stroke lead over North Carolina's "White" team and Tennessee.

North Carolina's "Blue" team and South Florida were tied for fourth at 589, while East Carolina is next.

North Carolina State's Eric Moehling shot a 4-under-par 68 Saturday and teammate Roy Hunter carded a 71 to tie for the second-round lead.

Moehling and Hunter are knotted at 141 in the three-day tournament, which concludes Sunday at the par-72, 6,685-yard Finley Golf Course.

North Carolina-Wilmington's Billy Plyler was third in the individual standings at 143, while Clemson's Jim Macfie and South Florida's Bob Mattiace were tied for fourth at 144.

First-day leader Nolan Mills of North Carolina State shot an 81 Saturday following a first-round 67 to drop out of contention for the individual championship. Mills was tied with four other players for 21st place.

The Pirates are being led by Don Gafner, who has shot two rounds of 73 for a 146 total and is tied for ninth going into today's final round.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Fernando Valenzuela made a successful 1982 pitching debut Saturday, blanking San Diego for six innings as the Los Angeles Dodgers took a 6-0 victory over the Padres.

Valenzuela, late reporting to spring training because of a contract dispute, allowed five scattered hits, walked one and struck out four before giving way to a pinch-hitter. Dave Stewart and Dave Goltz finished up for the Dodgers, completing a seven-hitter.

Dusty Baker provided two of the Dodger runs with a solo homer in the opening inning and a run-scoring single in the seventh.

The start of the nationally-televised game was delayed by an hour and 11 minutes because of rain.

The National League's 1981 Cy Young Award Winner and Rookie of the Year with a 13-7 record, Valenzuela worked just five innings this spring. He reported to camp March 23, after the Dodgers unilaterally renewed his contract for a reported $350,000, some $500,000 below what he was asking.

San Francisco 7
Cincinnati 5

CINCINNATI (AP) — Joe Morgan's bases-loaded two-run single in the top of the 10th inning Saturday lifted the San Francisco Giants to their first victory of the season, a 7-5 triumph over the Cincinnati Reds.

Morgan's one-out bloop to left field scored Reggie Smith and Darrell Evans, who had singled and walked, respectively, to start the inning, off reliever Tom Hume. After a sacrifice, Milt May was intentionally walked to set the stage for Morgan's game-winning hit.

Greg Minton, who has appeared in all four games for the Giants, allowed one hit in two innings and picked up the victory. Jim Barr worked the bottom of the 10th.

The Giants tied the score with a pair of runs in the eighth. Jack Clark, who hit a two-run homer in the sixth, led off with an infield hit and eventually scored on Darrell Evans' single off reliever Joe Price.

After the Giants loaded the bases, pinch-hitter Dave Bergman's sacrifice fly off Jim Kern tied the score.

Clark homered in the sixth off Cincinnati starter Mario Soto, who struck out 10 batters in 7 1-3 innings to raise his strikeout total to 20 in 141-3 innings this season. Soto gave up five hits, including a leadoff homer to rookie Chili Davis leading off the game.

Pittsburgh 11
St. Louis.....7

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Chuck Tanner, the effervescent manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates, called it the "prettiest game" of his 900 career managerial triumphs.

"We swung the bats very well," said Tanner following Pittsburgh's 11-7 victory Saturday over the St. Louis Cardinals in a slugfest. "I think we have a good-hitting ballclub; in fact I think we have just as good a hitting ballclub as we had in 1979."

The exuberance of Tanner stemmed from a 12-hit Pirate assault which marred a St. Louis home opener watched by 40,878.

"We have great balance, and we pick each other up all the way down the line ," said Tanner. "I hope it's indicative of the fact that we can score a lot of runs."

CHICAGO (AP) — Pat Zachry never has thrown a no-hitter but that doesn't keep him from thinking about it.

"I think about it every morning when I get up on the day I pitch," said the New York Mets right-hander, who came within four outs of one Saturday in a 9-5 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

Zachry had not allowed a hit and had retired 19 in a row when he walked Keith Moreland to open the Chicago eighth. Steve Henderson flied out and Ryne Sandberg hit into what appeared to be an inning-ending double play but shortstop Ron Gardenhire's relay after a force play was wild and the Cubs were still alive.

Pinch hitter Bobby Molinaro then broke up the no-hitter with a run-scoring pinch single, his first National League hit.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Montreal right-hander Bill Gullickson overcame a record-tying six wild pitches and Al Oliver and Gary Carter each hit a home run as the Expos pounded out 16 hits to take an 11-3 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies Saturday night.

Gullickson's wild pitches, which tied the major league record shared by J.R. Richard and Phil Niekro, allowed two Philadelphia runs to score.

Atlanta 8
Houston.....6

ATLANTA (AP) — Rookie Brett Butler stroked a pair of hits, drove in two runs and scored three times to trigger Atlanta to an 8-6 victory over the Houston Astros Saturday night, giving the Braves their best start in 13 years.

The four consecutive wins equaled the Braves' 4-0 start in 1969, the last time the Braves captured the West Division pennant in the National League.

Glenn Hubbard, Rafael Ramirez and Bruce Benedict each also had two hits in the 12-hit Atlanta attack.

Rampants' Brown, Smith Shine At N.C. State Relays

RALEIGH — Robert Brown won two events and Kenny Smith took another as Rose High School's athletes shown brightly in the prestigeous N.C. State Relays in Raleigh Saturday.

Brown took first place in the discus with a toss of 150 feet, 8 inches. He then came back to take the triple jump's championship, soaring 44 feet, 9¾ inches.

Smith's victory came in the 3200-meter Invitational run, as he finished with a time of 9:37.0.

Teammate Harry Williams was third in the same event, but his time was unavailable. Williams also finished third in the 1600-meter Invitational in 4:21.7.

The two mile relay team of John Byrd, Kenny Smith, Harry Williams and Tyrone Forbes finished second in 8:10.7.

William Waugh took fifth place in the shot put with a toss of 49 feet, 1½ inches.

In the 100-meter dash, Erskin Evans qualified for the finals, but withdrew. Both he and Chris McLawhorn have been sidelined with pulled hamstrings, and Evans' flared up during the trials, forcing him to withdraw from the finals.

In the girls' competition, Rose had two second place finishes. Judy Daniels was second in the 100 in 12.61 seconds, while the 400-meter relay team of Sheila Murphy, Soyna Williams, Angie Atkinson and Daniels finished second in 50.02 seconds.

Lou Taft finished fourth in the 3200-meter run in 14:04, while Murphy was eighth in the 100 in 12.78. Belinda Haselrig was seventh in the 200-meter hurdles in 33.2 seconds.

Rose's girls return to action on Wednesday, hosting Fike, while the boys attend the Apex Relays next Saturday.

Menchville (Va.) High School captured four boys' events and seven girls' events to dominate the meet.

Menchville's boys mile relay team ran 3:21.25 to beat Grimsley, which had a time of 3:22.32.

Menchville's boys two-mile relay team ran 7:55.38 to beat Greenville Rose which had a time of 8:10.72.

Team #1, #2 Win Matches

The Greenville Recreation and Parks Tennis League completed its third week of play with Team One and Team Two winning.

Jodie Mudd

Amateur In Contention For Masters Title

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI) — Jodie Mudd, a quiet youth with ice for blood, could become the first amateur to win the Masters — a stunning prospect he finds not at all intimidating.

The 21-year-old Georgia Southern student, who skipped college this spring because "I feel like I'm spinning my wheels in school now," carded seven birdies, two bogeys and nine pars over the long Augusta National course Saturday. His 5-under-par 67 put him at 2-over 218 and definitely in contention after three rounds.

"At no point in the round did I ever think I was in contention," he said. "I didn't even look at the leader board."

Well, he allowed, he did at least once — right before rolling in a 10-foot birdie putt on No. 18 after three-putting No. 17 for a bogey.

"On 18, I looked over to see if they had posted my 3-over-par mark. I wanted really bad to get back to 2-over."

The idea of winning what is perhaps golf's most prestigious event jittered Ken Venturi in 1956, when a final-round 80 caused him to miss the green jacket by a stroke. Amateur Billy Joe Patton also missed a Masters championship by a stroke in 1954.

"But, this is 1982 and that happened in the 1950s and 1960s," Mudd said cooly. "Amateur golf is getting a lot better and, yes, an amateur golfer could win the Masters."

Mudd finished second in the East Carolina Invitational golf tournament earlier this season, carding rounds of 72, 77, 72.

Mudd, a product of public courses in Lousiville, Ky., played Saturday in much the same fashion as he did in the Heritage Classic at Hilton Head Island, S.C., two weeks ago, when he shot 66 in the third round. He finished tied for 11th.

He said his goals in his first Masters are "first, to make the cut and, second, to finish in the top 24."

"I imagine I'll be a little nervous on the first couple of holes," he said when asked if he the pressure would get to him if he's in contention near the end of Sunday's final round.

"As far as being intimidated ... I've played with Jack Nicklaus, and I've been in the last couple of groups in the Heritage," Mudd said. "But as far as being intimidated ... I think not."

His father, Louisville high school athletic director Edward L. Mudd, died before Jodie, one of three brothers, played on the 1981 Walker Cup team.

"The relationship I had with my father was different than most," he said softly.

"He was hard on me when I was young because he wanted me to be a great golfer," Mudd said. "His dream was to see one of his sons in the Masters ... so, he knows I'm here, but then, he doesn't, you know?"

Mudd, 5-feet-11 and 150 pounds "with sandbags in my pockets," won back-to-back Public Links championships and three of five college tournaments this past season before deciding not to enroll for the spring quarter at the small school in Statesboro, Ga.

"I feel like I was spinning my wheels in school now," he said, explaining how he feels ready "to step up to a higher caliber of players."

The question in everyone's mind is when he will turn pro.

"I've been thinking a lot about it since last summer," he said. "If it hadn't been for the Walker Cup team, I probably would have been a pro now."

That's what pro Frank Beard told him when Joseph Martin Mudd beat Beard in the finals of the Kentucky Open last year.

"He said my game was ready and that I could make money on the tour, but I'm glad I waited for a while," Mudd said.

Yankees Send Davis To Minnesota For Smalley

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The Minnesota Twins traded shortstop Roy Smalley to the New York Yankees Saturday for relief pitcher Ron Davis and two minor leaguers.

"I was stunned," Smalley said. "I'm emotion-filled right now. I'm not sad to be going to the Yankees, but I am sad to leave Minnesota. I'm not sad about playing in the middle of the Yankee lineup, but I am sad about leaving this one.

"The feelings I'm having now are contradictory. I kind of feel like a rookie. I'm going to the Bronx Zoo, for God's sake. Playing for the Yankees is a dream of every kid."

Smalley, who has a .259 lifetime batting average, came to the Twins in 1976 in a trade with Texas. He negotiated a four-year, $2.5 million contract last season.

Davis, 26, who combined with Rich Gossage to give the Yankees a strong bullpen, has a 27-10 career record, 22 saves and a 2.94 earned run average.

Davis went to the Yankees in 1978 from the Chicago Cubs in a trade for Ken Holtzman. His best year was 1979 when he was 14-2 with nine saves and a 2.86 ERA. He was 9-3 with seven saves and a 2.95 ERA last season, but was hit hard in the World Series loss to Los Angeles, yielding six earned runs in 21-3 innings.

The Twins also obtained right-handed pitcher Paul Boris. Minnesota had drafted Boris from the Yankees last fall, but returned him after spring training. He will report to Minnesota's Toledo farm club in the Class AAA International League.

The Twins also obtained 20-year-old shortstop Greg Gagne in the deal. Gagne, who has three years of minor league experience, will report to the Twins' Class AA Southern League team in Orlando, Fla.

Taking over for Smalley at shortstop for the Twins is Lenny Faedo, who replaced Smalley last season when he was out with an injured back.

Smalley said he spoke with Yankee Manager Bob Lemon on the phone.

"He said he wasn't as smart as my uncle but he tries," Smalley said, referring to Angels Manager Gene Mauch.

Twins Manager Billy Gardner said: "The feeling was we needed help in the bullpen and we got who we wanted. We feel like Faedo will do a good job for us (at shortstop).

"This really strengthens our pitching staff. It gives us the type of game we need to play — a good defensive pitching game. I hate to lose Roy, but that's baseball."

In New York, Davis said he had a feeling his days with the Yankees were numbered since his World Series failure. Earlier this spring, the Yankees tried to trade him to Toronto for pitcher Dave Stieb.

"They made the trade and I'm going," Davis said. "That's part of baseball. I might not win another game or save another game, but I'll have fun over there."

"I knew they were going to get rid of me. I've been expecting it since Oct.28 or 29.

away. I sure like his position better than anybody else's. He's got the momentum."

But there's still 18 to go, and, heading into Sunday's final round, some of the game's most honored names remained within striking distance. Included in that group were Jerry Pate, Seve Ballesteros of Spain, Tom Weiskopf, Ray Floyd, Tom Watson and Nicklaus.

Nicklaus finished with three consecutive 3's, but in the time it took him to get from the 18th green to the press building, the deficit grew from 3 shots to 6.

Also, there's Jodie Mudd, a 21-year-old amateur from Louisville, Ky., who insists he has a chance to become the first non-pro to win perhaps the most revered of all the world's golf titles.

Ballesteros, the young Spaniard who won this title in 1980, and Pate, the happy-go-lucky guy who has a habit of leaping into lakes following his triumphs, shared second at 214, three off the pace.

Ballesteros, Europe's finest player and a former British Open champion, was conceding nothing.

"There's a lot of pressure on the leader," he said. "I think it's easier to come from behind than to win from in front."

Pate, winner of the prestigious Tournament Players Championship last month, had a 67 in the mild, overcast weather and said, if he won here, he'd forego his aquatic act.

Weiskopf, a four-time runner-up but not a winner of the Masters, and Floyd, a 39-year-old veteran who owns two major professional titles, were at 215, four behind. Weiskopf had a 68, Floyd 69.

Watson, the defending title-holder seeking a return to his position as the game's dominant figure, had a hard-won 70 that tied him with Bob Gilder at par 216. Gilder closed with a 66, the best round of the tournament.

Long-hitting Dan Pohl, Curtis Strange and Nicklaus were next at 217. Pohl included consecutive eagles — a 3 on No.13 and a 2 on No.14—in his round of 67. "I don't know if that's a record, but I'll take it," he said of the pair.

Strange, who shared the second-round lead with Stadler, slipped to 73. Nicklaus, holder of a record 17 major professional titles and, at 42, seeking a sixth Masters crown, had to birdie the last two holes for a 71.

"I'm kind of disappointed not to get the ball in the hole when everybody else was doing it," Nicklaus said. "I played well. I just couldn't get the ball in the hole."

Mudd was in the group at 218, 2 over par.

Before Stadler's closing burst, while he was still close to the top, before Stadler pulled away, Mudd insisted he had a chance.

"I know an amateur has never won the Masters and probably never will. But it can happen. I've played in some tour events and before lots of people before. Yes, I'm in contention to win the golf tournament."

But that comment was made some two hours before Stadler finished.

The 28-year-old Stadler, who has dropped some 20 pounds but still remains a portly figure, may have taken it out of reach.

And he had to do it the hard way, fighting his way back from the discouraging effects of a double bogey-7 on the second hole.

That dropped him out of the lead and back into a multiple-man struggle for control. Strange, Pate, Ballesteros and Weiskopf all led or shared the lead at one time until Stadler exerted his authority over the final nine holes.

Stadler played in 31, a 5-under-par effort made more remakable in that he failed to birdie either of the par-5 holes, the 13th and 15th.

He got himself in trouble on the second hole when he drove into the woods, took 4 shots to reach the green then 3-putted.

But he hit irons inside of 2 feet on both the fifth and ninth and tapped in for the birdies that got him back to even for the day, and back in the fight.

He holed a sand shot for birdie on the tough 10th, scored a deuce on the 12th, let the two long holes escape, then put on the closing streak.

He made it from 15 feet on the 16th, taking the lead alone for the first time.

His approach got away from him just a little on the 17th, coming up some 40 feet from the hole. He made the putt, and that made it a 2-shot margin.

On the 18th, his 6-iron was some 30 feet from the flag, and he dropped that one. Another birdie, the third in a row, and it stretched his lead to a commanding 3 shots.

Pirates Fall...

East Carolina's final two runs came in the ninth. The first came on a one-out homer by Curlings. Then, Ricky Nichols got an infield single and Robert Wells managed a hit. Kelly Robinette followed with another single, scoring Nichols.

Wilkes led the Camel hitting with three, while Barger, Dale and Regner each had two. Curlings led the Pirates, with Robinette and Robert Wells each adding a pair.

The loss dropped the Pirates to 20-7 on the season, while Campbell climbed to 19-10.

East Carolina travels to Chapel Hill on Monday for a 3 p.m. game against North Carolina. The Pirates then travel to Wilson for a doubleheader against Atlantic Christian on Tuesday at 7 p.m., before returning home on Thursday to face N.C. State in a 5 p.m. doubleheader on Thursday.

Net Tourney Set For May

The 1982 GTCS Tennis Tournament will get under way beginning May 14 and continue through May 16 at the River Birch Tennis Center. The tournament is sponsored by the Greenville Tennis Club.

Events in the annual USTA sanctioned tournament include men's and women's singles and doubles, men's over 35 and over 45 singles and doubles and mixed doubles.

Entry forms may be picked up at the River Birch Tennis Center, from any local tennis association officer or by contacting Tom Sayetta (1117 Hillside Drive, Greenville 756-7576).

Entry fee is $18 and entries must be received by May 8. Each entrant cannot play in more than two events.

UVa Edges UNC

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (UPI) — Virginia took advantage of 19 walks by five North Carolina pitchers Saturday to edge the Tar Heels, 9-8.

Tar Heel pitcher Dave Droschak walked home what proved to be the winning run in the seventh inning. He relieved loser Steve McGuire, who loaded the bases before being relieved.

Virginia, 14-14 and 5-2 in the Atlantic Coast Conference, got offensive power from Tommy Hoare, who socked a solo home run in the fifth inning and a two-run double in the sixth.

The Tar Heels dropped to 17-22 and 4-5.

Jaeger Stuns Evert Lloyd In Family Circle

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — Andrea Jaeger stunned Chris Evert Lloyd in the Saturday semifinals of the Family Circle Cup women's tennis tournament with a 6-1, 1-6, 6-2 victory built on her patented baseline lob and a steady ground game.

She moves into Sunday's finals against second-seeded Martina Navratilova, who beat fifth-seeded Mima Jausovec 6-1, 3-6, 6-2 in the earlier semifinal match.

Jaeger, seeded third, is the fifth woman player ever to defeat Evert Lloyd on clay and the first to beat her at the Family Circle, in which Evert Lloyd had not lost in 32 matches and 65 sets. Evert Lloyd won the event the last six times she competed.

Both players ascribed the victory to Jaeger's lazy bloopers from the baseline, which Evert Lloyd admitted later she couldn't smash from the air and didn't have the patience to return in kind.

"I guess I just wasn't willing to stay out there all day and moonball back," she said.

"It's frustrating," she added. "All the players feel that way. We don't think it's attractive for women's tennis."

But she conceded that Jaeger's strategy was effective, especially on clay.

"I know how to beat her, but I don't have the right frame of mind," she said.

"I just do whatever I can to win, whether it's serve and volley or lobs," Jaeger said.

She said her baseline-hugging strategy, which yielded many long rallies, including one with an incredible 125 shots in the final game, worked better than anything else she tried.

"It's sort of hard (for opponents) if I keep the ball deep," she said. "It's hard to hit a winner off a high shot."

Jaeger took complete control of the first set after each player held her first service, winning the last five games straight.

She opened the second set with another break, but Evert Lloyd broke back and ran her streak to the end of the set.

The third set was mostly Jaeger, who seemed to be able to reach anything Evert Lloyd hit her, even managing during one rally to recover a dropped racket, though she lost the point.

Navratilova took control early against Jausovec, keeping her rival off balance with hard ground strokes to both sides of the court.

But she seemed to lose some of her concentration in the second set, and Jausovec began moving better and coming to the net with more authority.

"She played better in the second set, no doubt about it," Navratilova said. "I knew I had to get in to her backhand, and I wasn't doing it in the second set."

Nets Eliminate Pacers

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Albert King scored 18 points and Buck Williams added 17 as the New Jersey Nets won their most one-sided contest of the season, a 115-86 victory over Indiana, eliminating the Pacers from National Basketball Association playoff contention.

The victory boosted New Jersey's record to 40-38 and dropped Indiana to 34-44.

The Pacers' last lead, 13-11, was erased when the Nets took off on a 16-4 spurt, led by Albert King and Buck Williams with six points apiece, that put New Jersey ahead 27-17. A balanced second quarter attack stretched the Nets lead from 41-32 to 57-36.

New York 117
Cleveland 114

RICHFIELD, Ohio (AP) — Paul Westphal sank a technical foul shot with 18 seconds remaining for the winning point as the New York Knicks defeated the Cleveland Cavaliers 117-114 Saturday night in a National Basketball Association game.

It was the 15th straight loss for the Cavaliers, 15-63, tying a team record set in 1970 during the first 15 games the club ever played. The NBA record for consecutive losses is 20 held by the 1970-71 Philadelphia 76ers. The victory ended a three-game losing streak for New York, 33-44.

The score was tied 114-114 when referee Dick Bavetta whistled Cleveland's Phil Hubbard for an illegal defense violation. Westfall went to the line to sink the tie-breaking free throw and Michael Ray Richardson added a pair of foul shots with eight seconds left to provide the final margin.

Washington 115
Milwaukee 114

LANDOVER, MD. (AP) — Frank Johnson scored a layup with 39 seconds remaining to give the Washington Bullets a 115-114 National Basketball Association victory over the Milwaukee Bucks Saturday night.

After Sidney Moncrief gave the Bucks a one-point lead on a foul shot with 1:13 remaining, Johnson connected after a pass from Don Collins to give the Bullets the lead.

Milwaukee had a chance to win, but Moncrief, who led the Bucks with 25, missed a 15-foot jump shot at the buzzer.

The victory clinched a playoff berth for the Bullets who are now 41-37, and enabled Washington to remain ahead of New Jersey and Atlanta in the race for fourth place in the league's Eastern Conference.

Rangers Rally By Philadelphia, 4-3

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Cam Connor, who just went from the minor leagues to the Stanley Cup playoffs, showed he earned that jump on Saturday.

He poked in the winning goal for the New York Rangers with 1:09 left to beat the Philadelphia Flyers 4-3 in the third game of their first-round playoff series.

The Rangers now have a 2-1 lead in the best-of-five National Hockey League series.

Connor, 27, a left wing, rebounded the winning goal from just outside the left post after a shot by Mike Rogers bounced off the pads of Philadelphia goalie Pete Peeters.

"We had them outnumbered," said Connor. "I was fortunate to get loose, get the rebound and put it in."

The Rangers called up Connor just before the playoffs from Springfield in the American Hockey League. New York Coach Herb Brooks used him in the third period because Mikko Leinonen was out with bruised ribs.

"From day one this club always displayed a lot of character. It isn't the first time we won a game like this. Our persistence changed the momentum of the game," said Brooks.

"I don't know if we had a mental lapse or what. But the whole second period was a struggle for us," he said.

Philadelphia Coach Bob McCammon claimed officials failed to call obvious penalties.

"I was never so disappointed in officiating in my life," he said.

The Rangers can end the series Sunday (7:05 p.m. EST) in the fourth playoff game here. If the Flyers win Sunday and tie the series, the deciding game would be played in New York Tuesday night.

UNC Nips Blue Jays In Lacrosse Showdown

BALTIMORE (AP) — Dave Wingate scored six goals, including the winning goal with 35 seconds remaining in the first sudden death overtime, to lead No. 1 ranked North Carolina to a 13-12 college lacrosse victory over No. 2 Johns Hopkins.

The victory was the undefeated Tar Heels' fifth of the season. For the Blue Jays, now 5-1, the defeat was their first at home since 1978 when they lost to Cornell.

Jeff Kendall's goal with 7:49 left in regulation gave Hopkins a 12-9 lead, but Tar Heel goals by Jeff Homire, Mike Burnett and Brent Voelkel within the next 6:06 sent the game into overtime. Voelkel's tying goal at 1:43 was his third of the contest.

Bullets Down Northampton

Jamesville Wins, 4-1

JAMESVILLE — Jamesville managed just three hits, but the Bullets took advantage of three Northampton errors to win, 4-1, Saturday evening in the opener of the Jamsville Easter Tournament.

Earlier, Edenton defeated St. Francis (N.Y.), 4-2. Edenton will play the Bullets Monday night (7:30). Bath will meet Mantoe at 2:30 and Northhampton will battle St. Francis at 5 p.m.

Northampton led, 1-0, at the end of its half of the first but Jamesville tied it up in the bottom of the first when Carl Ange tripled with two out and scored on Keith Water's single.

The Bullets then took the lead for good in the second. With one gone and the bases loaded, Matthew Moore drilled a grounder to the hole at short. The throw went to third in time for the second out, but Greg Hardison, who walked earlier in the inning, raced home with the go-ahead run.

Jamesville added to its lead in the third. With one gone, Waters walked and Rex Bell came in to run for the Bullet catcher. Bell immediately stole second and went to third when the throw went into centerfield.

Then, with two gone, Kevin Waters walked. He then took off for second and stopped looking to get into a rundown, which he did. Meanwhile, Bell crossed home before Waters was tagged out.

The Bullets' final run of the game came in the fifth.

Larry Spearman led Northampton with three hits in three at bats. No one for Jamesville had more than one hit.

Ange struck out six and walked two in raising his record to 5-1 this season. Jamesville is now 8-1 this season.

pitch, forcing in Ginn, and Mayo got an infield hit, scoring Chase with the final run of the game.

Goff led the Ram hitting with three, while Mayo had two. No one had more than one for SouthWest.

Greene Central is now 7-6 on the season.

Ayden-Grifton and Beddingfield went through ten scoreless innings before the Bruins finally broke in the 11th.

Tyrone Gay, who hurled the victory for the Chargers, fittingly represented the winning run. He led off the 11th with a single and courtesy runner Kelvin Harris came on to run for him, stealing second. On a hit and run, Cherry Locust singled, driving in Harris.

Gay, who went the distance, struck out 14, and retired 15 straight batters at one point in the game. He walked none and allowed only three hits. Losing pitcher Charles Davis also went the route, fanning 14 and walking three. He allowed four hits.

Cherry Ties Mark In 100

CHAPEL HILL — East Carolina's Davenna Cherry tied the school record in the 100-meter dash Saturday at the Tar Heel Invitational.

Cherry ran a 12.4 to finish fifth in the 100 and tie the old school mark set in 1978 by Lydia Rountree.

Cherry also ran in the 200, where she ran a 26.2 but did not place. Teammate Carolina Moore was at 26.5. Moore also ran a 59.5 in the 400 but also did not place. It was the first time Moore has cracked the 60-second mark this season in the 400.

Other results: Lisa Whitley ran a 2:22.5 in the 800 and Eve Brennan ran a 4:55 in the 1,500.

L.A. After Clippers' First-Round Choice

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Los Angeles Lakers owner Jerry Buss says he made a firm offer to the San Diego Clippers in an attempt to assure his club the draft rights to Virginia center Ralph Sampson, the Orange County Register reported in its Saturday editions.

Sampson, a 7-foot-4 junior, has been a first-team All-American selection the past two years. It has been speculated that he will forego his final year of collegiate eligibility and begin his National Basketball Association career next season.

The Lakers own the first-round draft choice of the Cleveland Cavaliers, who have the worst record in the NBA's Eastern Conference. The Clippers have the poorest record in the Western Conference and are scheduled to flip a coin with the Lakers for the No.1 draft pick on May 20.

fourth. Williams reached on an error at short and courtesy runner Tom Buie stole up. Gordon Douglas grounded back to third, but fielder George Gray threw to second, trying to catch Buie, who moved back safely as Douglas also reached.

Crowell Pope followed with a single to center, loading the bases, and Terry Smith's sacrifice fly scored Buie. Bill Kittrell reached on a second Bear error, loading the bases, but Phillips' grounder to the mound got Douglas at the play, and an infield pop ended the inning.

Rose also threatened in the seventh. Buie, who had entered the game for Smith in left, got a two-out single and stole his second base of the day, but died at second.

The victory was the tenth this season against no losses for the Rampants. New Bern dropped to 6-5 with the defeat.

Aycock Rally In Seventh Erases Greene Central's Victory Bid

PIKEVILLE — Paul Thomas' double sparked a four-run rally in the bottom of the seventh and carried Charles B. Aycock to a 5-4 victory over Greene Central Friday in a key Eastern Carolina Conference baseball game.

The win leaves Charles B. Aycock at 5-0 in the conference, one game ahead of Ayden-Grifton. Greene Central falls to 2-2 in the ECC and 6-6 overall. Aycock is 9-4 overall.

"It was a big loss," Greene Central coach James Fulghum said.

Down 4-1 going into the bottom of the seventh, the Falcons scored all four of their runs after two were gone — the final run coming when catcher Butch Brown dropped a third strike and threw the ball into the dirt at first.

With one gone, pinch hitter Dwayne Nichols singled and went to third on Ken Grantham's single. Grantham later stole second. With two out, Thomas turned a misplay in centerfield into a double to score both Nichols and Grantham and Aycock trailed, 4-3.

GC starter Ritchie Chase then walked Andy Bunn before Mike Rose singled to score Thomas to tie the game. Chase then struck out Frankie Satterfield to apparently end the inning and send the game into extra innings.

However, Brown dropped the third strike. His throw to first base was in the dirt. Bunn, meanwhile, who was running on the play, raced home to score the winning run.

The Rams jumped out to a 1-0 lead in the first inning and upped their lead to 2-0 in the fourth on John Mayo's solo home run. The lead went to 4-0 in the fifth.

Tommy Goff singled with one out and went to third on Brown's single. Chase then singled to score Goff to make it 3-0. Mayo walked to again load the bases and Marlowe Gilmore reached on a fielder's choice that scored Brown to up the Rams' lead to 4-0.

A pop-up and a strike out ended the inning — a missed opportunity that came back to haunt the Rams in the seventh.

Aycock, which was held to four hits through six innings by Chase, cut the gap to 4-1 in the bottom of the sixth on Bunn's solo home run and the Falcons then rallied for four in the seventh to win.

Goff and Chase were both two for four to lead the Rams. Grantham was two for four for Aycock.

Lendl, Vilas To Meet In Grand Prix Finals

MONTE CARLO, Monaco (AP) — Top-seeded Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia will face Argentina's Guillermo Vilas, the No.2 seed, for the title in the 300,000 Monte Carlo Grand Prix tennis tournament Sunday after both survived close semifinal matches.

Vilas needed 2 hours, 50 minutes Saturday to eliminate his countryman Jose-Luis Clerc 7-6, 7-5. Vilas saved seven set points in the first set and rallied to win the second-set tiebreaker 8-6 from Clerc, seeded third.

Lendl, ranked second in the world, served six aces in a 6-1, 1-6, 6-1 semifinal victory over No.6 seed Yannick Noah of France. It was the first time Lendl had lost a set in this clay court tournament.

Vilas, the 1976 champion whose triumph Saturday put him into the final for the third consecutive year, has yet to lose a set in the tourney.

The 22-year-old Lendl has won his last eight matches against the 29-year-old Vilas, the oldest player among the world's top 10. The Argentine has beaten Lendl only three times in 11 matches, the last time in 1980.

The title match carries a winner's purse of $60,000. The runner-up will get $30,000. Clerc and Noah each earned $14,600 as losing semifinalists.

Vilas' victory was his ninth victory over Clerc in 12 matches.

Clerc, 23, attributed his loss to poor concentration.

"Never in my life have I lost a set with so many missed set points," Clerc said. "The reason I lost so many of them was because my concentration wasn't at 100 percent."

The first set was close throughout, with six of the 12 games going to deuce.

Clerc broke Vilas' service for the second time in the sixth game to pull ahead 4-2. But Vilas broke back in the next game and took the eighth with a winning serve to tie at 4-4.

In the 10th, Clerc missed his first set point and the score was tied again. He missed three more set points in the 12th, forcing the tiebreaker.

Clerc built a 5-1 lead in the tiebreaker and was at 6-3 before missing his last three set points. Vilas won it on his first set point when Clerc hit a forehand into the net.

In the second set, Vilas raced to a 4-0 lead. But he lost the fifth game on his only doublefault of the match and Clerc won the next three games, making it 4-4.

Otis' Homer Provides Spark For The Royals

By The Associated Press

Detroit Manager Sparky Anderson was thinking of a double play. Amos Otis was thinking home run.

Otis won the battle between those two adversaries and the Kansas City Royals won the game, 4-2, Friday night.

"I saw it coming," Otis said of Anderson's move to walk the batter ahead of him and set up a bases-loaded situation in the first inning.

Angrily, Otis lashed a 1-1 pitch from Jack Morris into the left field bullpen in Royals Stadium for a grand slam homer and all the runs the Royals needed.

"Sparky likes to do things like that," said Otis. "I've been in the league 13 years and it makes you kind of mad. But next time it might work out for him."

Anderson was not sorry for the move.

"I walked out to the mound, and said, 'We're going to walk (Willie) Aikens and get a double-play ball on Otis.' I've done it a thousand times and I'll keep doing it," Anderson said.

"You're going to get burned occasionally, but that's still the percentage play," Kansas City Manager Dick Howser said of the strategy. "I'm just glad Otis responded the way he did."

Morris, who started and won the Tigers' previous two season openers, gave up singles to Tom Poquette and John Wathan leading off the first. After the runners moved up on George Brett's fly to center field, Aikens was walked intentionally and Otis connected for the second grand slam of his career.

Elsewhere in the American League, the Minnesota Twins edged the California Angels 2-1; the Milwaukee Brewers routed the Toronto Blue Jays 15-4 and the Oakland A's defeated the Seattle Mariners 5-3. Two games were snowed out — Chicago at New York and Boston at Baltimore.

Twins 2, Angels 1

Kent Hrbek blasted a solo home run in the seventh inning to lead Minnesota over California. Hrbek, the Twins' first baseman, hit the first pitch of the inning off loser Angel Moreno. Winning pitcher Al Williams limited the Angels to four hits and struck out six.

The Angels took a 1-0 lead in the second inning when second baseman Tim Foli singled home Doug DeCinces, who got on with a double. Minnesota tied the game in the third when designated hitter Jesus Vega hit a solo homer.

Brewers 15, Blue Jays 4

Cecil Cooper's two-run double and a two-run homer by Ben Oglivie keyed a six-run first inning as Milwaukee crushed Toronto. Cooper and Robert Yount paced the Brewers' attack with three hits apiece.

The loss was Toronto's first home opening setback since the Blue Jays joined the league in 1977. It also spoiled the debut of Blue Jays Manager Bobby Cox.

"It doesn't set well with me, the players or the fans," Cox said of the setback. "We've looked forward to this game for two months now.

"It just didn't go very well with us," he added. "We got behind early and didn't look good losing."

A's 5, Mariners 3

Oakland beat Seattle with the help of wildness by Gaylord Perry. The 43-year-old right-hander was charged with three wild pitches and a throwing error to help the A's score five runs in the fifth inning.

Perry struck out Dave McKay, the A's leadoff batter in the fifth, but McKay raced to first base after missing the third strike, an inside pitch in the dirt. Perry then walked Jim Spencer.

With Rickey Henderson at bat, Spencer and Newman scored on wild pitches. After Henderson grounded out, Picciolo scored from third on a grounder by Dwayne Murphy, who was safe at first on Perry's throwing error. Murphy stole second, advanced on a groundout by Dan Meyer and scored the fifth run on a single by Tony Armas.

Perry's three wild pitches in one inning was one short of the major-league record shared by Phil Niekro and Hall of Famer Walter Johnson.

Rogers Earns A Measure Of Revenge

By The Associated Press

The last time Steve Rogers had pitched in a game that counted, the Montreal Expos were fighting for a crack at their first World Series.

The one-inning stint ended in futility when Rogers, in a rare relief appearance, gave up a game-winning home run to Rick Monday, and the Los Angeles Dodgers won the National League pennant in Game Five of the NL championship series.

The was on Oct. 19 of last year. Friday night, Rogers returned to action with a three-hit shutout, beating the Philadelphia Phillies 2-0 in the Expos' opener.

Andre Dawson hit a two-out homer off Larry Christenson in the Expos first inning, and Montreal added a run in the fourth on a sacrifice fly by Chris Speier as the Expos finally began play after being snowed out three times in Pittsburgh.

"It's been eight days since I last pitched, but I was able to throw in the strike zone," Rogers said. "Even when it wasn't a quality pitch I got them out."

Rogers struck out 10 and walked two.

The 32-year-old right-hander said he had lost some off his fastball, but what he lacked in power, he made up in adrenalin.

"I try to finesse them more," Rogers said. "I did have some good pop tonight, but mostly I went to my breaking ball. My adrenalin was pumping, which is something you can't manufacture in spring training. I had an idea of what I wanted to do with every pitch."

Reds 7, Giants 0

Frank Pastore tossed a four-hitter and got backing from Johnny Bench as the Reds bested San Francisco in 34-degree temperatures at Riverfront Stadium, where only 10,069 turned out.

Cubs 5, Mets 0

Ferguson Jenkins, who returned to the Cubs after eight seasons in the American League, and reliever Lee Smith combined on a six-hit shutout, and Bill Buckner slugged a two-run homer for Chicago.

Jenkins worked 6 2-3 innings, allowing five hits, and Smith finished up as the Cubs opened at home in 34-degree weather and before 26,091 fans, who were warned for throwing snowballs at Mets players.

Braves 6, Astros 2

Atlanta won its third straight game, the best start for the Braves since they went 4-0 to open the 1969 season. The Braves scored five runs in the first inning off Don Sutton, sparked by a two-run homer by Dale Murphy.

Padres 7, Dodgers 4

The Padres led 4-1 when Los Angeles tied it with three runs in the sixth on a bases-loaded double by Rick Monday.

Lady Pirates In Two Losses

RALEIGH — East Carolina Univeristy's softball team ran into problems Friday and was knocked out of the N.C. State Invitational Softball Tournament in two straight games.

The Lady Pirates were sat down by Florida State in the opener, 5-0, then fell to Northern Kentucky, 6-5, in the second contest.

Florida State jumped out to a 3-0 lead in the first inning of the opener, then added two more in the fifth.

FSU's Donaldson was the lone hitter in the game with more than one, having two in three trips.

In the second game, Northern Kentucky took a 1-0 lead in the first, and added two more in the fourth, while ECU got one in the fourth and another in the fifth. Northern then got what proved to be the difference in the sixth, getting a pair.

The Lady Pirates came back with two more in the seventh, but fell one run short in its rally.

Northern's Ryan led that team's hitting with four, including a homer; while Epperly, Jagrallz and Tousley each had two.

East Carolina was paced by Sherri Stout with four, including a double, while Jolanda Clayton had three.

The losses dropped the Pirates to 22-6 on the season. They return to action on Wednesday, traveling to North Carolina.

Pirates In Net Victory

East Carolina's men's tennis team rolled to a 7-2 victory over West Liberty State Friday.

"They were tougher than we expected," Assistant Coach Alan Farfour said. "We'll have to do better this week because we have a tough schedule coming up. I was pleased considering the limited practice we've had the last couple of days." Farfour was referring to lack of court time due to weather and several women's matches held in the last week.

East Carolina's losses came in the number six singles and the number one doubles matches.

The victory raised the ECU record to 10-3. The Pirates host Towson State on Monday at 3 p.m.

Summary:

Atlanta Defense Sparks Win

By The Associated Press

The Hawks, relying on defense in their battle for a National Basketball Association playoff berth, shut down the high-scoring 76ers for a 103-88 victory Friday night.

"We just played great defense," said Coach Kevin Loughery. "To hold a great team like the 76ers to just 88 points is a real tribute to the entire team."

"We are playing hard defense consistently," said center Wayne "Tree" Rollins. "We've been doing that all season."

Rollins' claim is supported by the Hawks' standing as the stingiest defensive team in the league, allowing an average of 100.4 points per game.

"I thought Atlanta had complete control of the game throughout, with the exception of a five-or-six-minute period," said 76ers Coach Billy Cunningham. "It's always a battle with this team. They just outplayed us tonight. I was trying to find the right combination all night and get our team headed in the right direction."

Dan Roundfield scored 21 points and John Drew and Eddie Johnson added 18 each to lead Atlanta's balanced attack. Roundfield also hauled down 15 rebounds.

"We decided to make Philly beat us from the outside," Loughery said. "When they missed some of their shots, we got the rebounds and opened up the game more."

Julius Erving, who led Philadelphia with 26 points, said this was the first game between the two teams this season when the Hawks have been completely healthy.

The victory, Atlanta's 10th in 15 games, tied the Hawks for fifth place with New Jersey in the Eastern Conference standings. The sixth-place finisher has to play Philadelphia in the first round of the playoffs.

Celtics 106, Nets 103

Robert Parish scored 36 points as Boston clinched first place in the East and the home-court advantage throughout the playoffs with its narrow victory over New Jersey.

The Nets were only behind 60-56 at halftime despite 24 points by Parish, but the Celtics pulled ahead by 15, 96-81, with eight minutes left in the game.

But New Jersey rallied to pulled within two points on two occasions before baskets by Larry Bird and Cedric Maxwell gave the Celtics a 106-100 edge.

Bucks 118, Pistons 100

Sidney Moncrief scored 35 points as Milwaukee pulled even with Philadelphia in their battle for a possible home-court advantage in the playoffs. Detroit, which trailed 69-45 at halftime and fell behind by as many as 35 in the second half, is three games behind Atlanta and New Jersey in the race for a playoff berth.

Lakers 153, Nuggets 128

Jamaal Wilkes scored 25 points and Norm Nixon added 22 as Los Angeles outlasted Denver to increase its Pacific Division lead to 2½ games over Seattle.

The Lakers scored 48 points in the second quarter and 47 in the third to build an insurmountable 122-84 lead. They had spurts of 13-0, 15-2 and 21-4 in building a 30-point lead with six minutes left in the third period.

Blazers 124, Clippers 104

Billy Ray Bates scored 17 of his game-high 22 points in the second quarterhas Portland kept its slim playoff hopes alive by beating San Diego, which lost its 16th in a row, four short of the NBA record.

The Blazers hit 17 of 21 shots in the second quarter, outscoring the Clippers 36-18 to take a 71-48 halftime lead.

Bullets 114, Bulls 98

Spencer Haywood scored a game-high 25 points as Washington improved its playoff prospects in the East by beating Chicago.

The victory moved the Bullets into fourth place in the Atlantic Division, one game ahead of Atlanta and New Jersey.

Pacers 100, Cavaliers

Billy Knight scored all of his 18 points in the second half as Indiana handed Cleveland its 14th straight loss.

Mavericks 105, Suns 100

Wayne Cooper made two free throws and blocked a shot in the final minute as Dallas held off a Phoenix rally that knocked the Suns into seventh place in the Western Conference.

The Mavericks, who got 20 points from Jay Vincent, led by 14 points with 11 minutes left, but the Suns pulled within two points at 95-93 before Cooper helped Dallas' cause at the end.

Kings 115, Jazz 99

Ernie Grunfeld scored 23 points as Kansas City snapped a three-game losing streak with a victory over Utah.

Jeff Wilkins led Utah with a career-high 37 points as the Jazz played without leading scorer Adrian Dantley, who missed his first game of the season because of a death in his family.

Ladies Day At Greenville

A low gross and low net tournament was held at the Ladies' Day event at the Greenville Country Club Friday.

First low gross was won by Harriette White with a 40. First low net went to Sue Castellow with a 34.

In a previous Ladies Day, a point tournament was held. First place went to Betty Kittrell with 60 points, while Joan Warren, Sarah Haigwood and Sue Castellow tied for second with 50 points each.

In a Bingle, Bangle, Bungle event, Janet McGlohon took first place with 26 points, while Julia Painter took second with 25. Third went to Sue Hardy with 22.

Turkey Season Opens — North Carolina's spring gobbler season opened yesterday, April 10th, and will run through May 8. The population of turkeys is on the increase in North Carolina with a statewide population of 8,000 to 10,000 birds. This increase is attributed to concerned sportsmen and a very successful turkey restoration program established by the North Carolina Wildlife Resources Commission.

Highest concentrations of turkeys are in the mountains where much of the land is considered prime turkey habitat. Healthy populations are also being established in the Piedmont and Coastal Plains.

The future of the wild turkey in North Carolina is bright but there still are threats to its existance. Poaching remains high and free-roaming dogs are major obstacles in the expansion of turkey populations in some areas.

Turkey hunters are required to have a hunting license and a big-game license. Also, if you plan to hunt on any of the State gamelands you will need a game-lands permit.

Trout Season — The season on freshwater trout is in full swing in the North Carolina mountains. The season opened April 3 and will run through next February 28 on general and native waters. Trophy trout waters are open year-round.

There should be a good population of trout in most streams this year. The wildlife commission has been stocking since early spring and will continue throughout the summer.

A trout stamp is required along with a basic fishing license to take trout in North Carolina.

Fishing Report

Coastal — fishing picked up around Cape Lookout and Bogue Banks this past week. Large bluefish showed up on the beach below the Cape Lookout lighthouse. Croakers and spots were taken off the piers on Bogue Banks.

Windy conditions kept most people indoors during much of the week.

Inland — Shad fishing continues to head up the inland news this week. The annual spawning run should be winding down within a few weeks. A few striped-bass are being caught near Jamesville on the Roanoke River. If you want a "mess" of herring, the spawning run is in full swing on the Roanoke.

Local Notes — The Pitt County Wildlife Club located on N.C. 222 east of Falkland, is sponsoring a Ladies Firearm Safety Clinic on Saturday, April 17, at 1 p.m.

Hand guns will be provided and all ladies are most welcome.

For reservations and further information, please call Billy Goodson, at 758-3183 or 752-2438.

What's The Law On...

What's the law on...game fish size and creel limits?

"It is unlawful to take in one day more than the daily creel limit of those species of inland game fish having a specified creel limit. It is unlawful to possess any fish smaller than the minimum size limit or to destroy unnecessarily any inland game fish taken from public fishing waters." 15 NCAC 10C .0304

Largemouth bass and striped bass (rock) are two game fish likely to be caught in local watercourses. The new minimum-size limit for largemouth bass is 14 inches. Two bass of any size may be included in the daily eight-fish creel (keeping) limit. The minimum-size limit for striped bass (rock) in unimpoounded coastal streams has been increased from 12 to 16 inches and the creel limit is eight rock. There is no size or creel limits in local watercourses on jack, panfishes (perch and bream), or nongame fish (catfish and suckers).

There are differences in size and creel limits in waters such as mountain counties, Currituck Sound area, inland lakes, rivers flowing into or out of adjacent states, and reservoirs such as Roanoke Rapids, Dan River, Keer, and Gaston lakes. These exceptions are listed in the 1982 Inland Fishing Regulations Digest available where fishing licenses are sold.

(Sections of law cited above are in part and not codified and should not be used as legal defense.)

John Waters, Wildlife Officer.

Sutherland Well-Schooled In Ways Of Michael Spinks

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Murray Sutherland says he will be well-schooled in the ways of Michael Spinks when he meets the World Boxing Association light heavyweight champion Sunday in a nationally televised title bout.

"I prepare the same for every fight," explained Sutherland, a Scottish-born fighter who lives in Bay City, Mich., "I study past fights. I have five or six tapes of his past performances, and we can detect some weak points. People don't fight the same every fight, but everybody has little traits and habits that come through."

Sutherland was sitting at ringside and fought on the undercard when Spinks last defended his title Feb.13 by stopping Mustapha Wasajja, a Ugandan fighting out of Denmark, in the sixth round.

By contrast, the 25-year-old champion, who is 19-0, said he hasn't studied films of Sutherland's recent bouts and will rely on instinct.

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Craig Stadler is a beefy 200-pounder with the shoulders of an ox and a reddish walrus mustache that gives him the look of a stevedore.

Tom Kite is a smallish, frail-looking fellow who can't see the scoreboard without thick-lens spectacles. He wears a white eye-shade. If the movies typecast him, it would be as a bank clerk.

Yet these two men, opposites in size and personalities, will be center stage when the world's best professional golfers swing into the final 18-hole showdown today in the Masters golf tournament.

It's a changing scene.

Less than a decade ago, followers of big-time golf thought their links heroes all came out of a single mold. On a general scale, they were blond-haired, lean and tanned with a grooved swing that didn't vary from the time of address to the sweeping follow-through.

They were all neat and clean-cut, wearing horizontally striped shirts, tailored slacks, cashmere sweaters and a new pair of shoes every day.

Jack Nicklaus was the model.

No more. Big-time golf has been invaded by a new breed following no particular pattern. As Nicklaus himself said in an interview earlier this week, they all have their own MO (modus operandi).

For example, balding Jerry Pate has made a habit of leaping into a lake every time he wins a tournament and, if he has the urge, throws some cronies in with him.

Pate also tees off with flourescent orange balls, another example of the tour's sharp break with tradition. He says he can see them better.

They say orange, yellow and lime colored balls soon will be the rage.

Fuzzy Zoeller, his nickname taken from his initials (FUZ, Frank Urban Zoeller), is a free-spirited, curly-haired chatterbox who tosses off one-liners as blithely as he runs in 10-foot putts.

He is the tour's Bob Hope.

In practice this week, Zoeller showed up wearing knickers, a throwback to the Gene Sarazen days but a ploy he picked up from fellow pro Hubie Green, who showed up at Doral with green britches that made him look like a reincarnation of old Tom Morris.

Why, Zoeller was asked, did he copy Hubie's knickerbockers?

"Hubie has less cards in his deck than I do," replied Zoeller.

Stadler, who shared the Masters lead with Curtis Strange at 144 after two rounds, and Kite, 1 shot back, are proof that the successful tournament golfer doesn't have to fit a particular physical or personality mold.

They now come in all shapes and sizes, adding a fresh variety to the game, but they are all alike in one respect — they are steel-tough once they get those steel shafts in their overlapping and interlocking grips.

Fans turning their TV knobs to the Masters this weekend will see more than a stretch rerun of old favorites — the superb Nicklaus; grim-lipped Tom Watson, the modern version of Ben Hogan; black-shirted Gary Player: firebrand Tom Weiskopf; and swashbuckling Lee Trevino — on whom they have feasted their eyes for the last decade or more.

It's not that one or more of these will not be in the chase. It's just that spectators will have to acquaint themselves with a mixed bag of interesting and colorful characters.

They will have to familiarize themselves with the fairway wobble of the bulbous, quick-tempered Stadler and the quiet, computer-like efficiency of the 155-pound Kite, who sometimes looks as if he wants to sneak off and hide.

They'll be looking at the uninhibited, free-wheeling Zoeller, a past champion; the unpredictable Pate, who threatens to turn golf into an aquatic sport; unconventional Hubie Green; big Andy Bean, the sport's L'il Abner, and others.

At 147, Pate is close enough to scare the fish in every lake on the premises. Green is at 148 and heaven knows what wardrobe he's going to pull out for the TV cameras.

Zoeller is in contention at 148 and, if he wins, the Masters Committee better have a censor handy. His comments often sizzle.

He can be saucier than Trevino.

Stadler is the tour's successor to rotund Bob Murphy, who provoked critics to chide golf as an athletic event.

"Here comes this fat guy wobbling up the fairway, somebody else carrying his clubs and moving at about one mile an hour, and the announcer saying he's burning up the course," one critic said, "and you call that a sport?"

Actually, Stadler is one of the finest shotmakers on the circuit, currently third on the money-winning list behind Pate and Kite. He won the season's first tournament, Tucson.

Pate won the Memphis last year and the Tournament Players Championship last month. Kite, overshadowed earlier in his pro career by Texas teammate Ben Crenshaw, has developed into the most consistent shotmaker on the tour, leading in many categories.

Last year he broke Watson's four-year reign as money-winning king with $375,699 in prize money.

He doesn't have Nicklaus' "Golden Bear" image. He doesn't hitch his belt and charge the way Arnold Palmer once did. He lacks the grimness of a Hogan or a Watson. But he can play this game.

L. League Registers

Final registration will be held and tryouts will begin Monday and Tuesday for the Greenville Little Leagues.

Registration will be held Monday and Tuesday from 4 to 6 p.m. in the Elm Street Center for prospective candidates to the league. Prospects must have been born between August 1, 1969 and July 31, 1973 to be eligible. A certified birth certificate is required to be shown, and the candidate must be accompanied by at least one parent. Candidates must live within the league limits, which includes an area within a six-mile radius of Greenville Five Points.

Tryouts will begin Monday at 4 p.m. at Elm Street Little League field. Candidates must bring their own gloves and shoes. They must also attend at least half of the tryout sessions to be eligible for the draft.

Tennessee-Chattanooga Coach Gets Offer From Mississippi

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — Tennessee-Chattanooga basketball Coach Murray Arnold says he will make a quick decision about the head coaching job he has been offered by the University of Mississippi.

Reached at his home Friday night, Arnold said he and Ole Miss Athletic Director Warner Alford had not set a specific time for a decision on the offer, extended earlier Friday after two days of interviews on the Oxford, Miss., campus.

"No, no time line for a decision," Arnold told a reporter. "But I want to make it very quickly."

The coach declined to discuss contract terms, but said the offer was "very attractive."

"Let's say I'm caught between two very positive options," Arnold said. "On the one hand, our team will be coming back with only two starters graduated and we'll be playing at a new arena.

"On the other hand, Mississippi has had a strong basketball program for the past two or three years and they play in one of the best conferences (Southeastern Conference) in the country."

Alford offered Arnold the coaching job that became vacant when Bob Weltlich hired on at the University of Texas.

Arnold led the Moccasins in 1981-82 to their most successful season ever — a second straight Southern Conference championship and a 27-4 record. The Mocs advanced to the second round of the National Collegiate Athletic Association tournament before losing in the final seconds 62-61 to Minnesota.

UT-Chattanooga spokesman Jim Bell said earlier Friday that Alford had telephoned UTC Athletics Director Harold Wilkes for permission to talk with Arnold, who is under contract in Chattanooga through April 1, 1987.

Bell, UT-Chattanooga's sports information director, said Ole Miss would have to make an outstanding offer to coax Arnold away from the progress he has made in three seasons as Chattanooga's head coach.

This fall, the Mocs are to move into UT-Chattanooga's new $15.5 million, 12,000-seat sports arena.They also are scheduled to play a beefed-up schedule Arnold helped arrange which includes a game in Chattanooga against defending NCAA champion North Carolina and the Krystal Classic, a new tournament Chattanooga will host in December.

Tourney Scheduled

A "Class C" and "Class D" double-elimination softball tournament, sponsored by the Pitt County Association for Retarded Citizens, will be held here on May 1-2.

Each tournament is limited to 16 teams. Class C teams are those with no more than one legitimate home run hitter. Class D teams may have no more than two home run hitters.

Entry fee for the tournament is $70. Softballs will be provided. Checks for entry fees should be made payable to Retarded Citizens/Pitt County.

Business Notes

NAMED TO TEAM

Bill Staton, director of research for Charlotte's Interstate Securities Corp., is one of 11 stock analysts on Institutional Investor's 1981 "All America Research Team."

Executives of the biggest gainers on the New York Stock Exchange were asked by the national trade publication which analysts were first to spot, and recommend, their stocks. Staton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Staton of Bethel, made the team by being the first to select Service Corp. International of Houston, Texas.

He is a Bethel native.

RECEIVED CERTIFICATES

The National Statistical Research Co. of Chicago said it awarded "Certificate of Excellence" honors to Mavis Butts Realty and Century 21 Bass Realty.

The awards are based on a computer analysis of questionnaires sent to recent home buyers asking for an evaluation of the service they received from the real estate firm handling their transactions.

This is the fourth consecutive year Mavis Butts Realty has been cited.

ACCOUNT EXECUTIVES

WNCT Radio announced the appointment of R. Blount Modlin Jr. and Charlene Hill as account executives. Modlin's primary duties will include advertising by agri-business clients, while Ms. Hill's duties will involve advertising sales and service for the AM and FM stations, WNCT said.

A Washington native, Modlin joins WNCT Radio from WITN Radio, where he worked two years in the advertising field.

Ms. Hill joins WNCT after serving in broadcast advertising with WITN-FM and WAZZ-FM. She and her husband, Bruce, live here with their two sons.

RECOGNIZED BY EMC

J.J. Grimsley of Farmville and Mark Mozingo of Route 2, Farmville, were cited for 20 years service on the board of directors of the Pitt-Greene Electric Membership Corp., Farmville.

Horace Moore of Snow Hill was re-elected as the state's representative on the board of the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association and was also elected president of the Tarheel Electric Membership Association.

Jane Patterson of Farmville was elected vice chairman of the statewide women's organization of the NCAEC. The organization is made up of representatives of the women's committees at local EMCs across the state.

DRIVE COMPLETED

Merle Bowser, president of the Greenville Home Builders Association, announced the completion of the GHBA's membership drive.

Bowser said the drive, headed by Bob Dail and Ollie Harrington, resulted in the recruitment of 31 new members. Bill Clark was recognized as the "outstanding volunteer" for sales of 14 new memberships.

Futures Close Higher

CHICAGO (AP) — Grain and soybean futures prices closed higher Thursday in moderate volume on the Chicago Board of Trade as the conflict between Argentina and Great Britain heated up.

Prices had fallen Wednesday as the conflict over the Falkland Islands appeared headed for a negotiated settlement. But the announcement by Great Britain on Thursday that it would establish a naval barricade around the islands and shoot first at any Argentine vessels violating the limit, "didn't smell like any political solution," said Bob Lekberg, a grains analyst with Shearson American Express.

He said the potential conflict boosted prices because it could interrupt the flow of grains from Argentina, which exports corn, wheat and soybeans, and divert demand to the United States. The conflict also could cause an increase in the cost of shipping insurance, which also would shift demand for grains to other countries, Lekberg added.

He said support also came from other markets, where precious metals and financial instruments prices were higher, and from buying by traders who were covering their short positions, which were established Wednesday when the Falkland Islands crisis seemed to calm down, and prices appeared to be headed lower.

The Falkland Islands conflict also was cited as a factor in higher precious metals prices, which soared earlier this week in response to the conflict, then fell Wednesday.

On the Commodity Exchange in New York, gold for delivery in April was $8.90 higher, settling at $359.10 a troy ounce, and April silver was 9 cents higher, settling at $7.45 a troy ounce.

Jack Boyd, vice president of research in New York with Drexel Burnham Lambert, Inc., said a combination of international conflicts helped boost metals prices throughout the day.

"We just had a series of things that kept the pot boiling from almost the opening this morning," Boyd said.

Boyd noted that, in addition to the Falklands crisis, the shooting of a Turkish diplomat in Ottawa and the slaying of an Arab woman on the West Bank of the Jordan River by an Israeli soldier were factors in the metals.

"Then, at about 2 p.m., things were getting quiet, and the Syrians closed their border with Iraq," and that set off more buying, Boyd added.

Prices fell from their highs of the day as traders began selling to take profits near the close, Boyd said.

Livestock and meat prices were mixed to mostly higher in dull, featureless trading on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange.

Pressure came from selling by traders who were liquidating contracts to take profits after recent price gains, said Mike Murphy, a livestock analyst in Chicago with Bache Halsey, Stuart Shields, Inc.

He said most traders were evening up their contract positions in anticipation of the three day weekend.

Murphy said hog prices were supported by higher cash prices, which were rising in response to slow marketing by farmers during the wintry weather in the Midwest.

Live hog prices were .60 cent higher with the contract for delivery in April at 52.17 cents a pound. Frozen pork bellies were .38 cent higher with the contract for delivery in May at 76.75 cents a pound.

Reagan Defends Aid Cuts

By JAMES GERSTENZANG
Associated Press Writer

BRIDGETOWN, Barbados (AP) — President Reagan interrupted his vacation for five minutes Saturday to tell a radio audience in the Caribbean and in the United States that "a lot of people have simply been misled" about his proposed cutbacks in federal aid for college students.

"We haven't cut loans," Reagan said. "We've cut the cost to taxpayers of making these loans available."

The president, in a surfside chat beamed back to the United States, also made his first public comment in two days on the Falkland Islands dispute between Great Britain and Argentina. "We'll do all we can to help bring a peaceful resolution to this matter," he said.

Deputy White House press secetary Larry Speakes said Reagan spoke briefly with Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr., who stopped in Buenos Aires after a trip to London to seek a solution to "a complex disagreement" between "two of our friends."

After the speech, which concentrated on what Reagan called the "great misconception" about his program of aid to college students, the president flew by helicopter to the beach villa of actress Claudette Colbert.

On many campuses, he said, "the students are being told they might not be able to return to school next year. In some instances, they've even been incited to stage protest demonstrations against what have been called Draconian cuts in student aid."

"Well, a lot of people have simply been misled," Reagan said, acknowledging, however, that guaranteed student loans would drop from $2.7 billion this year to $2.4 billion in the fiscal year that begins on Oct. 1.

"But not one dime of the money being cut has ever gone directly for loans to students," Reagan said, adding that the actual loans are made by private banks.

But one administration official, who asked not to be indentified, said "the prospects of getting any of these changes (sought by Reagan) are almost neglible."

Democrats, meanwhile, asserted that Reagan was ignoring facts about his student aid propoals. In a broadcast response to the president's speech, Sen. Carl Levin, D-Mich., noted that Reagan's proposal would "aid 1.9 million students less in academic year 1983-84 than are being helped now."

"And that's just direct aid to students seeking a college education," he said. "Overall the president proposes we cut federal aid to education by about 35 percent. And you can't build a strong country without a strong citizenry."

In Washington, Edwin Dale, spokesman for the Office of Management and Budget, said that while the total volume of student loans in 1983 will be at a record high, the number of undergraduates taking part will fall from 2.9 million to 2.8 million next year.

Reagan said that under his program, 44 percent of the nation's undergraduates "would be eligible for a veritable laundry list of help," including up to $1,600 in grants, $2,500 in guaranteed loans and work-study support averaging $700 annually.

But Reagan did not mention that under his proposals:

— Many students from families with more than $30,000 annual income for the first time would have to demonstrate need to become eligible for aid.

— The fee charged when a loan is first granted would double from 5 percent to 10 percent.

— As many as 700,000 graduate students would be barred from the guaranteed student loan program.

As an alternative to the 9 percent loans, on which students pay no interest until after graduation, Reagan wants graduate students to borrow under an auxiliary loan program that would charge them 14 percent interest from the start.

While a graduate student's total indebtedness could increase from the current $25,000 to $40,000, the change in the program could mean monthly interest payments alone of $466.

Asked why Reagan spoke about student aid in a speech from the Caribbean, Speakes said: "He wanted to talk about student loans so he did."

The subject also is likely to come up Monday, when the president delivers a speech in Chicago to Roman Catholic educators.

Speakes said the money allocated in the federal budget for the aid program goes for interest subsidies and payment on defaulted loans.

In the current fiscal year, he said, banks made $8.5 billion in student loans and that its expected to increase next year to $10.1 billion.

"We anticipate getting our savings by having institutions work to reduce costs by tightening eligibility requirements" and through lower interest rates, Speakes said.

In his speech, the second of a series of live radio addresses, Reagan said his Caribbean Basin initiative, "a plan for trade, aid and private investment" to build up the economies of Central American and Caribbean nations "is sound and in our best interest as well as theirs."

DIVISION ADDED

Overton's Competition Skis Inc. announced the addition of a Marine Products Division to its existing offering of water skis and accessories, and named a manager for the new department.

Parker Overton, president, said that Edward D. Biggs Jr. has been named marine manager with responsibilities that include selecting, buying inventory, and customers relations.

A Wilson native, Biggs is a graduate of Wilson Technical Institute and joined Overton's Competition Skis in 1981.

Overton said the new division will feature such merchandise as marine radios, safety items, depth finders and other electronic products, replacement parts, pumps, trailer accessories, boat covers and and other marine accessories. He said items can be ordered through the mail or over toll free lines.

Couple Marries Friday Night

BETHEL — Living Water Baptist Church here was the scene of the wedding ceremony of Sylvia Jean Summerlin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Maynard L. Summerlin, and Carlton Gray Perry Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Carlton Gray Perry Sr., Friday at 7:30 p.m.

The Rev. Willie Bell Jr. performed the double ring ceremony. A program of wedding music was presented by Vickie Andrews, pianist. Elanor Pat Hill sang "You Light Up My Life," "Time In A Bottle" and "Wedding Prayer." Karla Jo Hill was accompanist.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father. She wore a formal gown of ivory bridal satin over ivory peau de soie designed with a modified Queen Anne neckline outlined in floral silk Venise lace which continued over the entire bodice and encircled the waistline. The long fitted satin sleeves were enhanced by a sheer see-through panel of organza bordered in silk floral Venise lace with covered button closures at the cuffs. The modified A-line skirt and attached chapel length train were edged at the hemline with matching floral lace. She wore an ivory illusion veil edged in silk floral Venise lace attached to a Juliet cap overlaid in lace beaded with pearls. She carried a cascade of sweetheart roses, white daisies, white camellias, lilies of the valley, gypsophila and ivy with ivory lace and satin streamers.

MRS. CARLTON GRAY PERRY JR.

Pamela Ringgold of New Bern was matron of honor and wore a formal gown of yellow tinesta Italian silk designed with an open neckline with miniature rolled straps in back. The bodice was styled with a gathered overlay and the skirt was a sunburst of knife pleats. The sleeveless gown was complemented by a sheer drape of yellow chiffon. She wore baby's breath in her hair and a serpentine bracelet, a gift of the bride. She carried yellow roses accented with baby's breath and fern.

Bridesmaids included Phyllis Brown, sister of the bride, and Lee Ann Ward of Greenville and Deborah Jackson of Ayden, sister of the bridegroom. Their gowns were styled identical to that of the honor attendant in a contrasting shade of sea spray. The drape was edged in ivory re-embroidered lace that extended to a handkerchief point of fingertip length at center back. They, too, wore baby's breath in their hair and gold bracelets, gifts of the bride. They carried identical yellow roses.

Charles Huckleberry of Bethel was best man while ushers included Tony Summerlin of Greenville, brother of the bride, Jerry Perry, brother of the bridegroom, and Leroy Jackson Jr., brother-in-law of the bridegroom, both of Ayden. Jason Jones of Greenville was ring bearer.

Shannon Gail Jackson, niece of the bridegroom of Ayden, was flower girl. She wore a formal gown of yellow qiana trimmed with ivory lace and carried a white wicker princess basket of rose petals. She wore baby's breath in her hair.

The mother of the bride selected a formal gown of coral chiffon with a matching lace caplet. The mother of the bridegroom wore a formal gown of aqua knit complemented by a chiffon drape. Both wore white rose corsages.

A reception was held in the church fellowship hall. Guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Dwaine Summerlin of Greenville.

The refreshment table was covered with a white lace cloth over yellow satin centered with an arrangement of yellow daisies flanked with silver candelabra with yellow tapers. Mrs. Preston Summerlin of Tarboro, aunt of the bride, served cake and Helen Dunlowe of Askewville, aunt of the bridegroom, poured punch. Assisting in serving were Melinda Sumerlin and Micheal Summerlin of Greenville, brother of the bride, and cousin of the bride, Mrs. Robert Harris of Snow Hill.

The couple will live near Greenville after a wedding trip to unannounced points.

The bride is presently working at Vermont American Corp., Greenville, and the bridegroom works at Huggins' Trucking Lines, Ayden.

After the rehearsal Tuesday evening, a dinner party was held at the Three Steers given by the parents of the bridegroom.

MRS. MOULTON BRAXTON MASSEY III

Vandy Susan Beaman and Moulton Braxton Massey III were united in marriage on Saturday at 3 p.m. in Red Oak Christian Church. Dr. Harold Deitch officiated the double ring ceremony.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Edward M. Beaman Sr. of Route 1, Ayden. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Carolyn C. Massey of Greenville and the late Mr. M.B. Massey Jr.

The honor attendant was Jeanne Thomas of Greenville. The bridesmaids included Lynn Holt, sister of the bridegroom, Susan Laughinghouse, Gwyn Tavasso and Kim Smith, all of Greenville, and Debbie Massey of Houston, Tex., sister of the bridegroom. Shaye Beaman of Charlotte, niece of the bride, was junior bridesmaid. Honorary bridesmaids were Linda Whitten of Greenville, Martha Elks of Ayden and Jackie Sullivan of Fountain. The flower girl was Danielle Vandiford of Greenville.

Ernest H. Holt II of Greenville, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, served as best man. Ushers were Kenneth and Jeff Beaman of Ayden and Malcolm Beaman Jr. of Charlotte, brothers of the bride, Worth Albea and Louis Clark Jr., cousin of the bridegroom, both of Winterville and Cam Dudley of Greenville. Jeffrey Beaman, newphew of the bride, was junior usher. The ring bearer was Shannon Beaman of Ayden, nephew of the bride.

The bride, given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father, wore a white formal chiffon gown over taffeta with a Queen Anne neckline made of Brussels and Venise lace and embroidered with seed pearls. The full skirt was trimmed in Venise lace and ended with a cathedral length train. She wore a matching hat of Brussels lace with a full length veil of silk illusion and carried a cascade of white roses and cushion poms tipped in blue with ivy.

The maid of honor wore a formal gown of marigot blue with an accordian pleated skirt. The bodice was a chiffon blousson cover-up with long full sleeves edged with matching rosepoint lace. She carried a nosegay of white, blue and yellow cushion poms.

The bridesmaids wore formal gowns identical to that of the honor attendant. The honorary bridesmaids wore formal yellow gowns and carried a white mum with yellow streamers. The flower girl wore a gown of white chiffon over taffeta with long sleeves and trimmed with Brussels lace and carried a white basket of mixed flowers.

A reception, given by the bride's parents, was held in the fellowship hall with music by Sandra and Billy Stinson. The table was decorated with a centerpiece of mixed spring flowers. Punch was poured by Barbara James and Beverly Vandiford and the cake was cut by Donna Dickinson.

The church was decorated with two baskets of spring flowers, candelabras, a 15 branch arch and a nine branch tree on either side of the altar. Pews were marked by satin streamers.

The mother of the bride wore a street length dress of mauve. The bridegroom's mother wore a lavender street length dress. Each mother, along with the grandmother of the bridegroom, wore a white rose corsage.

The bridesmaids were honored at a luncheon given by Judy Beaman, sister-in-law of the bride, at the Arbor Room, Ramada Inn. An after-rehearsal dinner was held at the Greenville Country Club Friday evening given by Carolyn Massey, Debbie Massey, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Harvey Holt II, Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Clark and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Clark.

After a wedding trip to Myrtle Beach, S.C., the couple will reside in Spartanburg, S.C.

The bride attended J.H. Rose High School, East Carolina University and graduated from Pitt Community School of Nursing. She is currently a registered nurse at Pitt County Memorial Hospital. The bridegrom attended J.H. Rose High School and graduated from East Carolina University with a B.S. degree in business administration and is working as an industrial chemical representative for Dubois Chemical Co., Cincinatti, Ohio.

Double Ring Vows Exchanged

Mavis Hill Wilkins became the bride of George O. Harrington Jr. Saturday in St. Paul Pentecostal Holiness Church. The double ring ceremony was performed by Maurice Phelps, pastor of St. Paul, and John Labowski, pastor of Faith and Victory here.

The daughter of the bride, Wendy Whitehurst of Ayden was honor attendant. Bridesmaids were Tanya Moore of Cary, Donna Tripp of Ayden and Louise Hudson of Greenville. The flower girl was Teressa Berryman of Greenville.

Derek Harrington served as his father's best man. Ushers were Mark Conway of Grimesland, David Trip and Tommy Harrington of Ayden. The ring bearer was Keith Phelps.

A program of wedding music was presented by organist, Larry Jones of Mt. Olive, Pastor Phelps, soloist, Earline Stocks and her accompanist, Nancy Lancaster. Bobby and Richard Williams and Darrell Phelps chimmed the hour with hand bells.

The bride wore a Victorian styled gown of champagne lace and crepe. The blouse was of lace with a ruffle at the neckline and leg-o-mutton sleeves. The long skirt extended into a short train and the hemline and train were bordered with lace. The waistline was accented with a long satin tie. She wore an open cap of champagne Venetian lace with tiers of tulle. She carried a bouquet of silk flowers in lilac pink and purple with matching streamers.

Each attendant wore a lilac knit dress with matching eyelet cape and carried a nosegay of silk spring flowers. The flower girl wore a lilac knit dress with eyelet, fashioned similar to the bridesmaids', and carried a basket of silk flowers in spring colors.

The couple will live in Greenville after their wedding trip.

The bride is employed by Carlyle and Co., Carolina East Mall, and the bridegroom is employed by Burroughs Wellcome.

Greeting guests and saying good-byes were Mr. and Mrs. Chuck Autry Jr. and Mr. and Mrs. Mark Conway.

Wedding Vows Said In Ceremony Friday

The wedding ceremony of Julie Barnes White and Roland Lynnell Spivey Jr. was solemnized Friday evening at seven o'clock in Jarvis Memorial Methodist Chapel. The Rev. M. Dewey Tyson performed the double ring ceremony.

Daughter of Mrs. Julian Jordan White Jr. of Greenville and the late Mr. White, the bride was given in marriage by her brother, Julian Jordan White III. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Roland Lynnell Spivey of Maury.

Bridal attendants included Janice White Clark, matron of honor, Nancy Lou White, sisters of the bride, and Celia Spivey Darden, sister of the bridegroom. The flower girl was Crissie White Clark, niece of the bride.

The best man was the bridegroom's brother, Harry L. Spivey III and ushers included Julian Jordan White III, brother of the bride, and William Franklin Darden, brother-in-law of the bridegroom.

A program of wedding music was presented by Frances Cain, organist, and Susan Pair, soloist.

The bride chose a formal gown of white organza over peau de soie designed with a high neckline encircled with alencon lace. The fitted bodice featured a sheer yoke of pointe d'esprit outlined in re-embroidered alencon lace beaded with pearls. The waistline was encircled with the re-embroidered alencon lace. The short cap sleeves were fashioned of pointe d'esprit edged in re-embroidered lace. The modified A-line skirt and attached chapel length train were accented with a flounce of matching lace edging topped with beaded alencon lace. She wore a fingertip veil of illusion with pencil edging held in place by a caplet overlaid in lace beaded with pearls. Appliques of matching lace accented the veil. She carried a bouquet of roses, daisies, baby's breath and greenery.

The attendants each wore formal gowns of periwinkle matte jersey designed with an open neckline, miniature rolled shoulder straps, blouson bodice and flared skirts. The gowns were complemented with stripe chiffon jackets featuring open necklines, full sleeves and peplums. A satin sash encircled the waistline. They carried baskets of daisies, baby's breath and greenery.

MRS. ROLAND LYNNELL SPIVEY JR.

The flower girl wore a short Ance K original of white batiste with inserts of lace and ribbon.

The mother of the bride wore a mid-calf length dress of flesh and taupe silk crepe. The mother of the bridegroom selected a formal gown of lavender chiffon.

A reception was given by the bride's mother after the ceremony. A wedding breakfast was given by Mr. and Mrs. John F. Minges, Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Howard, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Holyhauer, Mr. and Mrs. Dail Laughinghouse and Mrs. Kathryn V. Whichard at the Minges home. An after-rehearsal dinner was given by the bridegroom's parents and a bridesmaids luncheon was given by Mrs. E.E. Rawl and Mrs. Wayne Hall.

Prior to the wedding the bride was entertained with luncheons and showers by Mrs. George Knight, Julie Knight, Mrs. Roy L. Honeycutt, Ms. Carolyn Massey and Mrs. William F. Darden.

The couple will be living in Maury.

The bride is a graduate of J.H. Rose High School and attended Chowan College. The bridegroom is a graduate of Greene Central High School and is employed by Coastal Chemical Corp.

Patient Circle Meeting Planned

On The Young Side

By Lisa Wang

Two groups of Rose High students will be spending their much awaited Easter vacation overseas in the countries of Spain, France and England. Through arrangements with the American Council for International Studies (ACIS), 10 students and their supervisors — Betty Beacham, Spanish teacher and Albert Gurkin — headed for Spain Thursday on a nine-day vacation. Arriving in the modern capital of Madrid, they visited such landmarks as the Plaza Mayor, Prado Museum, Puerto del Sol, the walled city of Avila and the Church of Santo Tome. They will stay in Madrid until Tuesday, proceeding next with other American high school groups southward into sunny Andalusia until reaching the city of Cordoba. The following day they will tour the old town of Seville, with its immense Gothic cathedral, Giralda Tower and the Alcazar. On Thursday, students will spend time in Granada and Torremolinos on the Costa del Sol, and they will return back home Friday.

For Nell Williams, French teacher, Vivian Nichols and eight students, Easter vacation will be a "tale of two cities." They departed Friday for a nine-day trip arranged with the American Institute for Foreign Studies (AIFS), an international travel organization. The city of Paris greeted them and other American high school groups with its famous sites, such as Place de la Concorde, l'Arc de Triomphe, Norte Dame, Montmartre, the Palace of Versailles and the Louvre Museum. They will leave Paris Tuesday and drive through the French countryside to the port of Calais, where they will take a cross channel ferry to Dover, England. Passing through Canterbury, the group will arrive in London, where they will spend three nights. During that time, they will visit Buckingham Palace, St. Paul's Cathedral, the Tower of London and Windsor Castle; they will make an excursion to Oxford University and Stratford-on-Avon; and they will attend a performance by the Royal Shakespeare Theatre. Their return to the states will also be next Friday.

Valadictorians for the graduating class of 1982, who were selected based upon grade point averages, are Belinda Marie Haselrig, Catrina Ann Logan, Elizabeth Ann Longino, Shaela Kathlean Ray and Mary Spivey Vick. They will speak at the graduation ceremony for June 8 at Minges Coliseum.

Rose High art students had an opportunity to display some of their best works in the Student Art Exhibit at Carolina East Mall. During the shows opening April 5, the Rose High orchestra performed, as well as classical guitarist Elliot Frank. Elizabeth Stewart, executive director of the Pitt-Greenville Arts Council, gave a talk, while Billy Stinson, art teacher, presented certificates to winners in the Scholastic Art Contest. The paintings, drawings, sculptures, jewelry and prints were exhibited throughout the week until April 10.

Aletha Harris, sophomore, placed third in the cake decorating division of the District I Future Homemakers of America Rally in Ahoskie. Her event was judged on personal appearance, picture display, sanitation and finished product. In the display division, Mrs. Fleming's class, represented at the rally by Benita Marble and Lisa Clemens, placed second with its display concerning FHA's current theme, "Youth Energy-Power for the 80's." The display will be exhibited at the state convention April 17.

Results have come back from the National Math Test administered in early March. Within the school, James Bright ranked first; Jeff Prescott, second; Shaun Wallace, third; Jonathan McGee, fourth; and Woody Carrow, fifth. Rose placed seventh among high schools in North Carolina. Any student was eligible to take the test; however, only the top three scores counted toward the school's score for state ranking.

Couple Says Vows Saturday

SCOTLAND NECK — Kaye Elizabeth White and Roy Gregory Gladson, both of Greenville, were married Saturday in the Dawson Baptist Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Eugene White Jr. of Route 1, Scotland Neck. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. William Augustus Gladson of Route 3, Greenville.

The bride is a graduate of East Carolina University. She is an English instructor at Pitt Community College. The bridegroom is a graduate of East Carolina University and is assistant vice president at Pitt Greene Farm Credit Service.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Bob Belford. A program of piano music was presented by Mrs. Tony Hale of Scotland Neck and vocalist was Kenneth Edwards of Grifton.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Brenda White of Scotland Neck, sister of the bride, was honor attendant. Ruth Ellen White of Wilmington, Mrs. Charles Dove and Mrs. Douglas Smith of Greenville, Mrs. Mose Woodard IV of Durham and Mrs. Mark Adamski of Goldsboro were bridesmaids.

The father of the bridegroom was best man and ushers included Roy Gladson and Al Nichols, cousins of the bridegroom, Douglas Smith, Charles Dove and S.L. Everett, all of Greenville.

The bride wore a formal gown of white silkened organza and Venise lace over peau de soie. The gown was fashioned with a modified Queen Anne neckline and sheer back yoke enhanced with Venise lace and pearls. The full bishop sleeves with lace motifs closed with a lace edged cuff. The A-line skirt and cathedral train was joined with a scalloped bias flounce edged with lace. Her two-tiered waltz length veil of silkened bridal illusion, with a rolled edge featuringscattered lace motifs, was attached to a Juliet cap accented with Venise lace and pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of white bridal roses and miniature carnations accented with stephanotis.

The maid of honor and bridesmaids each wore a formal gown of violet tinaseta Italian silk designed with an open neckline and miniature rolled shoulder straps. The gown featured an empire bodice with flared accordian pleated skirt. The gown was complemented by a cacoon jacket with lettuce edging. All carried nosegays of mixed flowers.

After the ceremony the bride's parents gave a reception in the church fellowship hall. Mr. and Mrs. Foster Askew greeted guests and Mrs. Thomas Allsbrook presided at the guest register.

The reception area was decorated with plants and silver candlesticks with lighted candles. The table was decorated with a topiary of mixed flowers and lighted candles. Mrs. N.G. Whitehead Jr., aunt of the bride, served the five-tiered wedding cake and punch was poured by Mrs. Leo Hedgepeth, aunt of the bride, assisted by Mrs. Jackie West, cousin of the bride.

The couple will live in Greenville after a wedding trip to Myrtle Beach, S.C.

Members of the wedding party and out-of-town guests attended the after-rehearsal party given by the parents of the bridegroom in the church fellowship hall.

LOIS MAE AVERY...is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wallace Avery of Bell Arthur, who announce her engagement to James Robert Davis Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. James Robert Davis Sr. of Route 8, Greenville. The wedding is set for June 25.

Club Officers Are Named

New officers were named by the Cherry Oaks Home and Garden Club at its Tuesday evening held at the clubhouse. Laurie Charlton will be serving as president.

Others are: First Vice President, Mary Scudder; Second Vice President, Nancy Rendine; Secretary, Jean Crawford; and Treasurer, Judy Bectin.

Members participated in the technique of rolling silk petals for the making of a rosebud. The next session will be held next month. Margaret Langley conducted the session.

Brenda Whichard, president, presided at the meeting. Yard of the month went to Tracy Medlin. Emily Mallard, chairperson of the tasting tea, gave a report. Mrs. Rednine and her committee were recognized for planning the recent dinner and square dance. A donation will be made to the Sheltered Workshop due to the recent fire.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

The symbols of Easter have always been the cross, the lamb, the egg, and an indulgent grandmother.

The latter shows up early Easter morning bearing a maple-cream-filled chocolate egg that is three times the weight of the child.

Her appearance is a vision to the kid who has not seen that much sugar since her solid milk chocolate heart arrived on Valentine's Day.

Sometimes she will bear a lamb cake, smothered in cocoanut and with jellybean eyes. Other times it will be a huge basket of foil-wrapped candies that will promise an upset stomach and have you laundering sheets by 3 a.m. The more creative grandmothers will drop off a live "chickie" or a furry "hop hop" which will die in three days from being petted to death.

Easter was always my mother's finest hour. It signaled the arrival of her annual Easter Egg Hunt.

She started it when her grandchildren were toddlers . . . hiding eggs under large bushes and rocks and snapping pictures as they triumphantly held their prize.

When the kids got to be around 10 or 11, a hard-boiled egg just wasn't enough incentive to freeze your buns off on a cold Ohio Easter. That's when Grandma started to tape quarters and half dollars on the eggs. (I felt it produced evil, especially when I once shoved my own child into a spirea bush and scratched his eye to get an egg with a dime attached to it.)

After awhile, even greed didn't do it. Besides, Grandma got a little fuzzy as to where she distributed the eggs, and it wasn't until July or August when my Dad would cut the grass and inadvertently grind up a three-month egg that she remembered where she hid it. And he would never forget it.

And Grandma? She's still truckin' in with three-pound chocolate eggs with everyone's name on them in white icing. And if you think I'm going to fall off my diet to make her feel good and perpetuate her indulgence . . . you're right.

Add a nutty crunch to cooked green beans by topping them with thinly sliced almonds sauteed in butter.

Melody Loughran Is Bride

LUMBERTON — Melody Jerea Loughran and Jeffrey Eugene Roberts were married Saturday afternoon at two o'clock in a garden ceremony at Lakewood Park here. The double ring ceremony was performed by Brian Whelchel of Greenville.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Wayne Loughran of Route 8, Lumberton, and Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Ward Bell of Route 8, Greenville.

Mrs. Carl A. Carlson of Lumberton was organist and Elizabeth Campell of Lumberton and Willard R. Taylor of Fayetteville were soloists.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents. Marilee Dawn Loughran of Lumberton, sister of the bride, was honor attendant. Bridesmaids included Angela Kares Forbes and Gina Lynn Windham of Greenville, Terrell Valliere and Gina Denise Gibson of Lumberton.

The father of the bridegroom was best man. Ushers included Woodie Bennett Wilson, uncle of the bridegroom, and Charles Thomas McLawhorn, both of Greenville, Jay Gordon Loughran of Lumberton, brother of the bride, and Charles Randall Tyson of Farmville.

The flower girls were Mindy Anne James of Pesotum, Ill. and Jessica L. Hougham of Heyworth, Ill., both cousins of the bride. Matthew Keith White of Greenville was ring bearer.

The bride wore a formal gown of Venise lace styled with a V-neckline, fitted bodice overlaid with lace and fitted sleeves with lace appliques. The full skirt extended into a chapel train. She wore an open crown headpiece overlaid with Venise lace. The fingertip length veil was lace edged illusion. The bride carried a cascading bouquet of white lilac, freesia interspersed with white sweetheart roses and ivy. She wore a pearl necklace, a gift of the bridegroom.

MRS. JEFFREY EUGENE ROBERTS

The attendants each wore a blue knit gown styled with spaghetti straps, floral organza bodice and full length skirts with natural waistlines. The gowns were complemented by floral jackets. They carried hand tied bouquets of blue iris, pink carnations accented with baby breath, which they also wore in their hair. The flower girls wore white gowns trimmed in light blue fashioned with spaghetti straps. The gowns were complemented by a jacket with ruffled cap sleeves. They each carried a basket with rose petals and wore a halo of flowers in their hair. The ring bearer carried a white satin pillow.

Assisting in serving were Mrs. Alden Lee Hougham of Heyworth, Ill., Mrs. Robert Helbling of Fisher, Ill., aunts of the bride, Mrs. Frankie Haddock of Greenville and Mrs. William Whichard of Bethel, aunts of the bridegroom.

After a wedding trip to Fontana Dam, the couple will live in Lumberton.

The bride attended East Carolina University and works at the Robeson County Department of Social Services. The bridegroom attended Pitt Community College and works at Alpha Cellulose Corp., Lumberton.

Parents of the bridegroom gave a pig pickin' at the home of the bride after the rehearsal. Guests included members of the wedding party, relatives of the couple and out-of-town guests. Gifts were presented to wedding attendants by the bridal couple.

The bride was honored at a tea Friday given by Gina Denise Gibson and Marie Gibson.

Dear Abby

Readers Disagree With Abby's Advice

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1982 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Thanks for agreeing with "Bothered and Bewildered," the bride's mother who resented having to cart home her daughter's wedding gifts from the reception hall!

I thought I was the only person in the world who resented the thoughtlessness of those who hand-carried wedding gifts to a reception. I am from a foreign country where gifts were always delivered to the home of the bride or bridegroom, whichever was most convenient.

I am with you 100 percent.

CORPUS CHRISTI

DEAR CORPUS: So far, my mail is running 10-to-1 against us. Read on:

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I strongly disagree with your answer to "Bothered and Bewildered." There are at least three good reasons why carrying wedding gifts to the reception is practical:

1. Most stores charge a delivery fee for gifts under $50.
2. Deliveries left at the door are not "safe" these days. (Many couples arrange their own weddings and both work during the day. Parents may live elsewhere.)
3. Hand-delivering gifts eliminates the uncertainty as to whether:
   a. The store sent the gift.
   b. The gift was actually received.
   c. The bride is a slowpoke with her "thank-you" notes.

I agree that it is a burden imposed on the bride's family, but it's still the safest way to handle the gift. The bride and groom are not obligated to open any gifts at the reception. Every reception that I have ever attended has had a table available for gifts — which is in itself a subtle reminder to those guests who still haven't bought a gift.

You say that hand-carrying a wedding gift to the reception is not an acceptable practice. I say it is a practical solution, and no one should look a gift horse in the mouth.

JANE IN SAN JOSE

DEAR ABBY: Well, excuuuuse me! I never knew it wasn't proper etiquette to bring a gift to the reception. I would think a person would be glad to get a gift no matter how it got there.

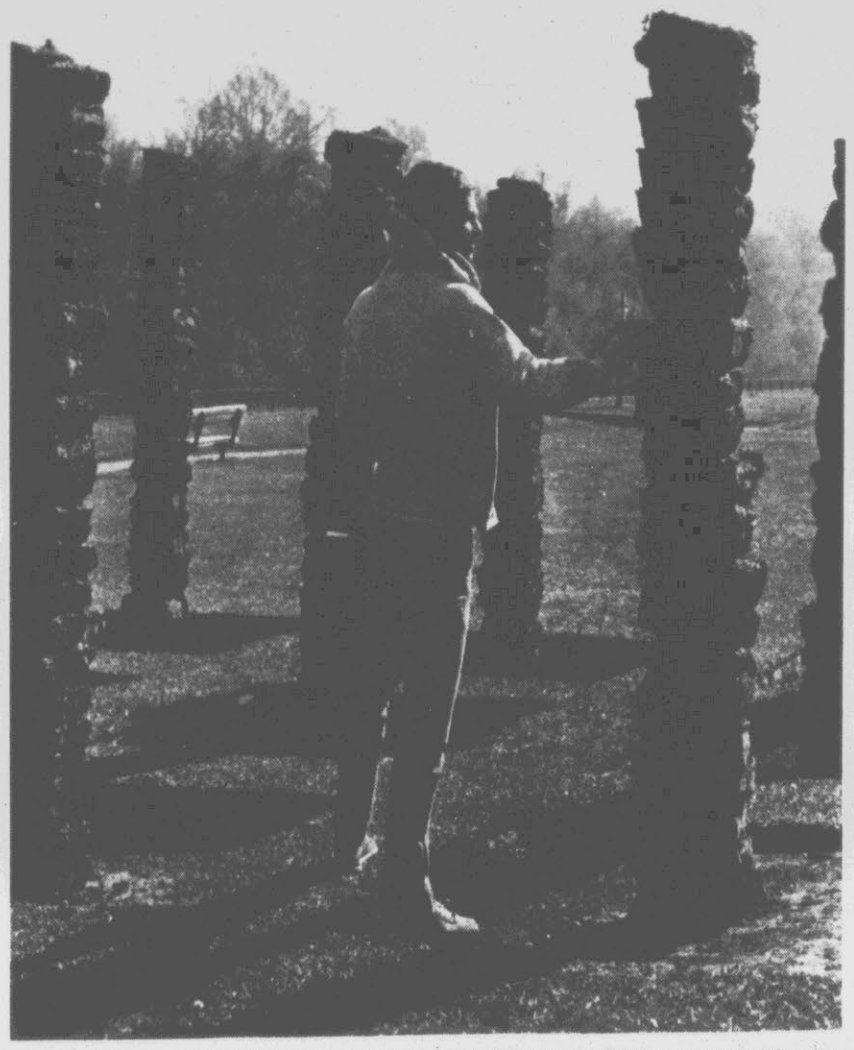
Earth Art On The Town Common



EARTH ART ON TOWN COMMON ... ECU graduate sculpture major Herb Parker of Elizabeth City is shown testing the stability of one of the nine columns he constructed as part of his thesis work. With permission of the city, Parker erected the columns from cut squares of turf impaled on metal rods. The work was taken down on Friday.

Because it was fragile, and because he made a commitment to the city of Greenville to deconstruct his sculpture by Friday, Herb Parker's nine-column earth structure on the Town Common had to be a brief-lived piece of contemporary art.

It would have been good had it been possible to keep the piece up longer. The simplicity of the natural material, its transformation to an altered state of nature, was an excellent example of what is becoming known as environmental art.

Formally structured in a pattern of standing squares of cut turf embedded for stability on a metal core, the nine columns were an attractive addition to the landscape of the Town Common. One of the most pleasing aspects of the piece was the shifting interplay of patterns created by the movement of the sun across the sky.

Parker, who created the earth piece as part of his graduate thesis requirement, said, "The important idea of this sculpture is to show the cyclic nature of an earth structure. Another important factor in a work like this is to fashion architectonic forms from material on the spot."

Technically, Parker divided the entire process of constructing into six phases. "The first phase is the unaffected structure, that is the original condition of the earth and grass existing at the time I began work. The second stage is the actual construction, the work involved in the process of making the piece. After that is the third phase, the completed work, or what can be termed the static quality of the piece."

The last phases, Parker explained, "are those of deconstruct, the kinetic phase and the reconstruction or back to original condition phase." These phases involve carefully taking down the pieces of turf and returning them to the exact spot from which they were removed; "the shifting, elusive kinetic qualities of settling, and finally, signs of the earth being disturbed fading out as nature takes over its process."

Parker, a native of Elizabeth City, is majoring in sculpture. He has attended ECU for both undergraduate and graduate studies. Parker plans to do a couple of more of these earth art works, "perhaps one on campus, and hopefully another in the community."

"One lesson I learned is that it takes far more time than I had thought it would to construct this piece," Parker commented. "I thought I could do all the work in one day. As it turned out, it took me well over 20 hours."

Parker has photographically documented the work from its inception and will continue to photograph the area to record the time process in the earth's erasing signs of his handiwork. Parker also prepared a large number of sketches preliminary to beginning the project.

"I'm grateful to the people at city hall who gave me permission to use the Town Common," Parker said. "The park is an attractive area for this type of art."

Book News

FROM SHEPPARD MEMORIAL LIBRARY

By JUNE PARKER

In anticipation for National Library Week April 18-24, the staff of Sheppard Memorial Library would like to remind the citizens of Pitt County of the book services available at their local public library.

One of the services receiving much attention at the present time is the collection of local history and genealogy. The collection includes histories of Pitt and surrounding counties, area townships and local historical sites and places of interest as well as biographical information about persons prominent in North Carolina and Pitt County. Persons can search for genealogical information in the early birth, death, marriage and court records such as wills and deeds for Pitt County and various other surrounding counties which are also a part of the collection.

The library also maintains a business collection which can provide information on estate planning, income tax preparation, money management, investments, real estate, small business operation and consumer information. Business directories which include the personnel, address, telephone numbers, products and other information for any state, national and international companies may be used in the library.

Another area of the book collection which has received quite a bit of use is the career information. The library keeps an up-to-date collection of catalogs for most of the colleges in the state as well as for many out-of-state schools. Directories and guides to two-year, vocational and trade schools are also available. Information about financial aid and grants for the various schools can be obtainedd.

Books and materials about standardized tests such as the GED and the civil service examinations and study materials such as basic math and reading may be borrowed. Lists of the basic materials and of the testing guides are available at the main library and each of the branches.

Through the Interlibrary Loan Service, books which are not owned by Sheppard Memorial Library can be borrowed from other college, university and public libraries throughout the state. Therefore the library can make available any book of nonfiction that is owned by any library in the state. The library also has information about materials that can be borrowed through the State Library for the Blind and Physically Handicapped in Raleigh.

The Books-By-Mail Service can be used by persons who for some physical reason cannot get to the library. Through this service, books and other materials can be mailed to a person's home with the packaging ready for the materials to be mailed back to the library.

New Headquarters For Society

WINTERVILLE — The Winterville Historical and Arts Society is in a new home.

Through the courtesy of the Winterville Ruritan Club, the society is now meeting the last Tuesday night monthly in the old Episcopal Church, built in 1903, located at the corner of Sylvania Avenue and Church Street. The building is owned by the Ruritan Club.

Efforts are to be made to collect and house memorabilia from Winterville's past in the building. If successful, the building will serve as a community museum.

The Historical and Arts Society, organized in 1977, has attempted to spur interest in the preservationof the Winterville Depot built around the turn of the century. The local Kiwanis Club is now considering rescuing this historial building from its deteriorating state.

Persons interested in this and other work of the society are invited to attend the next meeting on April 27 at 7:30 p.m. A clean-up, fix-up day will be held Saturday to ready the building for occupancy.

Appraisal Day In Goldsboro

GOLDSBORO — The Community Arts Council of Goldsboro/Wayne County will sponsor an Appraisal Day from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. April 24 at Dondi's Restaurant in Goldsboro.

Emyl Jenkins of Raleigh will lead a team of appraisors in giving oral and written appraisals of silver, porcelain, crystal, furniture, jewelry, old paintings, photographs, books, documents, glass and what-nots. Oral appraisals will cost $5 per object; written appraisals $7 per object. Proceeds will benefit the Community Arts Council.

Portable objects may be submitted for appraisal. Those wishing to have large pieces of furniture appraised should bring removable parts, such as a drawer, and a photograph of the piece.

For more information, contact Margaret Baddour at 734-3917.

Co-Authors Math Book

WASHINGTON — Grace Foster, an instructor of mathematics at Beaufort County Community College, has co-authored a new textbook, "Experiencing Mathematics," published by Contemporary Publishing Co.

The book, co-authored with several instructors at East Carolina University, will be used in basic mathematics education classes at Beaufort Community College. It will also be used in primary, intermediate and special education math courses at ECU.

In addition to this book, Mrs. Foster is also co-author of "Hands-On Mathematics," published by Contemporary Publishing Company. She lives in Ayden and has taught in Pitt County schools and at ECU.

Voltaire, Beethoven, Michelangelo, Leonardo da Vinci and Isaac Newton all were bachelors.

Spring Art Day Set At Rose High

Something new will be offered to the Greenville area public from 1 to 5 p.m. April 18 by art students at Rose High School. At that time, the first outdoor spring festival of art, music and free refreshments will be held in the courtyard at Rose High.

Musical entertainment will be provided by classical guitarist Elliot Frank, by the Rose High Orchestra, the Rose High Stage Band and the Rose High Advanced Ensemble.

In the art section of the show there is to be a sale of student prints. These prints represent a variety of media — woodblock, linoleum cuts and plexiglass etchings. Proceeds will go to the Rose High Art Club to provide supplies and materials.

Members of the food service classes at Rose will prepare free refreshments for visitors.

Poet To Read, Be Published

Greenville poet Gerda Nischan will read selections from her poems for students at the Woodland-Olney School in Woodland in two sessions — at 10 a.m. and at 1:30 p.m. on April 27.

Mrs. Nischan, author of a volume of poems, "Red Sky in the Night," which has been published in both German and English editions, has also had individual poems published in German and English literary journals, including "The Crucible," "The Lyricist," "Carolina Quarterly" and "Tar River Poetry."

She has also received notification recently that her poems have been accepted for publication in bilingual literary journals. The University of North Iowa, Cedar Falls, will publish two poems in "Schatz-Kammer." The State University of New York, Buffalo, will publish a story and several poems in one journal, "Klingsor," and four poems in another journal, "Terra Poetica."

Vollertsen Winner In N.C. Photo Contest

Chuck Vollertsen of Images-Creative Photography Inc., Greenville, is the recipient of a first place award in the recent print competition sponsored by the Professional Photographers of North Carolina at a convention held in Winston-Salem.

Vollertsen won first place for a portrait entitled "Young Executive." He also placed second in the pet division for "Yorki," and an honorable mention in the family portrait division.

His two prize-winning prints will be included in the 1982 North Carolina Traveling Loan Collection of 24 photographs selected from 350 entries to represent the best work of professional photographers in the state.

This traveling collection will be on display at Carolina East Mall May 17-23. It will be shown at various locations throughout North Carolina during 1982 and 1982.

Whale Study Cruise

MANTEO — The fourth annual Whale Study Cruise is scheduled for Saturday.

Sponsored by the N.C. Marine Resources Center on Roanoke Island and the N.C. Marine Education and Resources Foundation, the excursion will depart at 5:30 a.m. from Pirates Cove Marina on the Nags Head Causeway. Time of expected return is 6 p.m.

The cruise is limited to 60 persons. April 18 is set as the rain date in case of bad weather. Hilda Livingstone is coordinator for the study cruise. Cruise leaders are Charlie Potter, a marine mammal specialist with the Smithsonian Institute; David Lee, a bird specialist with the N.C. Museum of Natural History; and Ron Naveen of the National Marine Fisheries.

Cost per person is $25. Checks are payable to the N.C. Marine Education and Resources Foundation. Those taking the cruise are to bring their own food, warm clothing, binoculars and sea-sick pills. For reservations and more information, contact: N.C. Marine Resources Center-Roanoke Island, P.O. Box 967, Manteo, N.C., 27954.

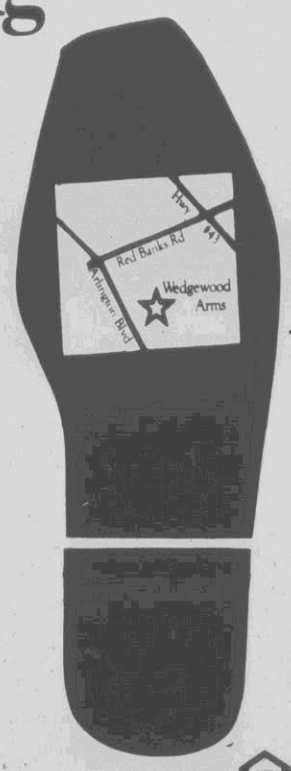
We put our foot down about apartments being within walking distance.



Wedgewood Arms apartments are within walking distance of three shopping centers, a nursery school, a junior high school, doctors' and dentists' offices and an athletic center.

As if that wasn't enough, three major traffic arteries, 264 Bypass, Arlington Blvd., and Charles St. are close enough to be seen and not heard.

Fact is, no apartments in town can legitimately claim to be more convenient to more things than Wedgewood Arms.

And, that's not all. Because Wedgewood Arms is not only convenient, it's different in other ways, too.

Take the floorplans: they're different from anything you've ever seen. And when you add in high energy efficiency, tennis courts, swimming pool, and the neighborhood "feeling" that these apartments will give you – well, you'll just have to see for yourself.

Barefoot Festival At ECU Thursday

THE NEE NINGY BAND ... specialists in incorporating elements of country blues, Cajun dance music, Irish and Appalachian fiddle tunes, Medieval and a capella music into a synthesis of world folk music, will give two performances during the annual Barefoot On The Mall Festival at ECU Thursday.

For the fourth consecutive spring, the Student Union Special Events Committee is sponsoring a "Barefoot On The Mall" extravaganza during a nearly half-day continuous session of entertainment. Events get under way at 11:45 a.m. and run until 10:30 p.m. (For a calendar of scheduled events see The Eastern Carolina Arts Festival Special Section — Section E, inlcuded in today's issue of the paper).

The final and longest performance by any group will be that of Michael Iceberg and The Iceberg Machine. The performance, to be held in Hendrix Theater, Mendenhall Student Center, is to begin at 9 p.m. and last until 10:30 p.m.

A keyboard musician since childhood, Iceberg's dream has been to construct a keyboard instrument capable of producing the sounds of real violins. The Iceberg Machine which he plays today is the product of 13 years of experiment and development, the last five spent at Walt Disney World in Florida.

The machine is a conglomeration of synthesizers, computers and technical devices, inter-connected. With this machine, Iceberg plays not only real violins, but flute, guitar, cello, French horn, all at the same time. The net result is a one-man musical show, an electronic orchestra.

In concert, Iceberg sings and performs a wide variety of musical works ranging from cosmic rock to country, Broadway and classical selections. No part of his show is prerecorded; it is all played live.

Wind Ensemble Concert

A concert of 20th Century Wind Music is to be presented by The Symphonic Wind Ensemble at 8:15 p.m. Sunday, April 18 in the East Carolina University Memorial Gymnasium. There is no admission charged, and the public is invited to attend.

Herbert L. Carter conducts the 49-member Wind Ensemble, with Dr. Rhonda Fleming to be guest conductor for the performance of Martin Mailman's "Alleluia." (Mailman is a former member of the ECU music faculty).

For the "Alleluia" work (dated 1961), Fleming will use the combined choirs of The Men's Glee Club, Edwin Glenn, conductor, and the Residence Hall Chorus, Charles Schwartz, conductor.

The Residence Hall Chorus was formed by Dr. Shcwartz in the fall of 1981 and will be making its first public appearance in this performance.

Also being featured in the April 18 concert will be tuba soloist David Lewis. Lewis, a part-time faculty member in the School of Music, ECU, is principal tuba player with the North Carolina Symphony and also teachers at UNC-Greensboro.

Compositions listed on the program are: Percy Grainger's "The Duke of Marborough Fanfare" (1939); the "Suite Fancaise," (1945) in five parts by Darius Milhaud; Ronald W. Follas' 1982 composition, "Concert Piece for Tuba and Band," with soloist Lewis; Richard Strauss' 1943 work, "Sonatina No. 1 in F;" Fisher Tull's "Prelude and Double Fugue" (1979); and the final work on the program, Mailman's "Alleluia."

Faculty Chamber Recital

A program of chamber music for piano and strings will be presented at 9 p.m. Wednesday in the A. J. Fletcher Recital Hall. There is no admission charged and the public is invited to attend on a first-come, first-seated basis.

The trio of performers, all faculty members of the School of Music, East Carolina University who will be playing are Ellen Nagode, piano; Paul Topper, violin; and Leonid Zilper, cello.

Three major works have been chosen for the Monday program. The first is Zoltan Kodaly's "Sonatina for Cello and Piano." The second work is Edvard Grieg's "Sonata in A minor for Cello and Piano, Opus 36." After an intermission, the concluding work on the evening's program is Mendelssohn's "Trio in C Major for Violin, Cello and Piano, Opus 66."

Mrs. Nagode and Topper have been faculty members at the ECU School of Music for several years.

Zilper, a cellist with the North Carolina Symphony, replaces Selma Gokcen this year during her leave of absence. A graduate with honors from the Moscow Gnesin State Academy of Music, Zelpin was a member of the Moscow State Symphony Orchetra, solo cellist with the Moscow State Chamber Opera, principal cellist of the Moscow State Theater, and a teacher in the Moscow City School of Music.

Doskey Recital

Pianist Henry Doskey, a faculty member of the School of Music, East Carolina University, will appear in a late evening recital to begin at 10 p.m. Friday in the A.J. Fletcher Recital Hall.

A native of New Orleans, Doskey has won numerous awards and citations, including the 1977 Musical Arts Award presented by the Society of American Musicians. This prestigious award resulted in an appearance on the Allied Arts Piano Series in Chicago's Orchestra Hall. In 1978 he made his New York debut in Carnegie Recital Hall. He has also performed thoughout the South and Midwest as a soloist and as an accompanist.

For his Friday program, Doskey has selected music by three composers. The first piece to be performed is J.S. Bach's "Prelude and Fugue in C-sharp minor." This will be followed by two Chopin compositions — "Etude in B Minor, Opus 25, No. 10" and "Ballade No. 4 in F minor, Opus 52."

The final work on Doskey's recital is the Beethoven "Sonata No. 32 in C minor, Opus 111."

Chodacki-Hawkins To Be In Recital Monday

East Carolina University School of Music faculty members Deborah Chodacki, clarinetist, and David Hawkins, oboist, will present a joint recital at 8:15 p.m. Monday in the A.J. Fletcher Recital Hall. The two will be accompanied by faculty pianists Paul Tardif and Everett Pittman, and faculty cellist Leonid Zilper.

The recital is free and the public is invited to attend on a first-come, first-seated basis.

The first work to be performed on the program is Georg Philipp Telemann's "Sonata for Oboe in A minor" in four parts. The second work is Leonard Bernstein's "Sonata for Clarinet and Piano;" to be followed by Handel's "Sonata for Oboe in G minor."

After an intermission, the first work to be performed is Robert Schumann's "Romance No. 3, Opus 94." The program will conclude with a performance of Brahms' "Trio fur Klavier, Klarinete, und Violoncello, Opus 114, No. 5."

Honors Recitals

Two winners in the East Carolina University School of Music Young Artists Competition will be in recital during the coming week.

The competition, sponsored annually by the Student Forum of the ECU School of Music, is open to juniors, seniors, or graduate studnets of the School of Music. The competition is adjudicated by faculty members of the School.

The preliminary round was held Jan. 23, with the final round on Feb. 3. Overall winner was junior Beth Shelton, oboist. Winner in the keyboard category is Denis Foio, pianist.

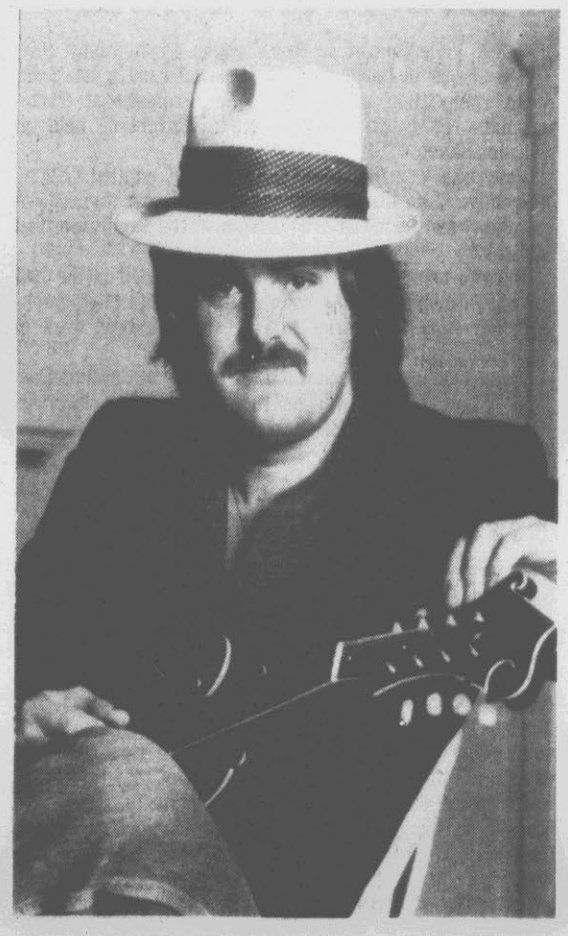
As winners, the two are recognized being presented in recital. The recitals for the two are scheduled as follows — both in the A.J. Fletcher Recital Hall:

• Thursday, 8:15 p.m. — Denise Froio — For her program, Ms. Froio, of Rome, N.Y., has chosen the J.S. Bach "Toccata in E minor;" Chopin's "Barcarolle, Opus 60;" and two Moszkowski etudes. Also, Bartok's "Allegro Barbaro" and Beethoven's "Sonata in F minor, Opus 57."

• Friday, 8:15 p.m. — Beth Shelton — In her recital, Ms. Shelton, of Tullulah, Ala., will be assisted by Patricia Foltz, piano and harpsichord, David Hawkins, oboe, and Mark Shelton, vibraphone. She will play the six pieces from Benjamin Britten's "Six Metamorphoses after Ovid;" John de Beradinis' "Interlude for Oboe and Vibraphone;" Poulenc's "Sonata for Oboe and Piano;" and Handel's "Sonata in D Minor for Two Oboes and Harpsichord."

Both recitals are free and the public is invited to attend.

Performs Thursday



RICKY SKAGGS — native of the Appalachian hills of Kentucky, will be in concert for one show only at 10:30 p.m. Thursday at the Carolina Opry House. His first appearance was on Flatt & Scruggs' Nashville TV show at age 7. In the 21 years since that prodigy debut, several of Skaggs' recordings have been in the Top Country charts. His distinctive style of showmanship has been written about in such periodicals as Rolling Stone, Billboard, the Los Angeles Times and numerous national newspapers. For information tickets, call the Carolina Opry House at 578-3943.

Blackbeard Auditions

Auditions for the 1982 production of the Bath "Blackbeard" outdoor drama will be held from 10 a.m. to noon on Saturday at the amphitheater in Bath.

Stuart Aronson, the play's director, will be seeking male and female singers, dancers, actors, a stage director and technicians.

Rehearsals will begin June 6. Production dates are each Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings beginning July 1 and continuing through Aug. 21.

Bath is located 42 miles from Greenville, 21 miles east of Washington. In past years, cast members from the Greenville area have shared rides on rehearsal and performance dates, and the same arrangement is expected to be made this year.

BILLY "CRASH" CRADDOCK ... a Greensboro native and a star on the country music scene, is the headline performer in two shows to be presented at 6:30 and at 8:30 p.m. Friday in the Ayden-Grifton High School Gym. Tickets are priced at $7.50 and $8.50.

Ayden Concert For Craddock

Three country music entertainment acts will be on hand Friday for two performances to be given in the gymnasium at Ayden-Grifton High School. The first show will be at 6:30 p.m. with the second scheduled to begin at 8:30 p.m.

Billy "Crash" Craddock, who first began singing as a rock 'n roll performer and later switched to country music, has a number of top country hits to his record, including " "Knock Three Times," "Sweet Magnolia, "Easy As Pie" and "Broken Down In Tiny Pieces." His music has been variously categorized as country, western pop or country rock, but Craddock says whatever label is given his music, he still considers himself a Tar Heel country singer. The Southern Knights will be backing Craddock.

Other entertainers on the bill is the trio of Jim Ed Brown, Christy Russell and Dianne Morgan, and the Osborne Brothers.

The two Friday shows are being sponsored as a benefit program with proceeds to go to the Ayden-Grifton Athletic Booster Club. The show is a Ralph H. Lee production.

Tickets, priced at $7.50 and $8.50, are available in advance from both the Greenville and Ayden locations of Bob's TV and will also be sold at the door.

Halifax Celebration

HALIFAX — The three-day celebration of Historic Halifax Days, which began Saturday, continues Sunday and Monday. All events are free and open to the public.

One of the most rewarding of all Halifax Day activities for young and old alike is the opportunity to wander through the straight rows of 80 tents. Here they can observe Revolutionary soldiers (British and American) cooking meals over open fires, mending their battlegear, cleaning their cannons and muskets, and taking part in other activities just as they would have more than 200 years ago. Music by bagpipes, fifes and drums will be heard throughout the area.

A brief calendar of events is:

•Sunday — 1 to 5 p.m. — Tours, living history displays and reenactment groups featuring a Revolutionary battle, and camp activites with over 250 authentically costumed British and American troops from units as far away as Florida and Kentucky.

•11 a.m. — Easter community service in the Joseph Montfort Amphitheater.

•1 p.m. — Flag raising ceremony on the Town Common.

•Monday — 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. — Tours, living history displays and military reenactment groups.

•9:30 to 5 p.m. — Craft House at Andrew Jackson School, sponsored by the Halifax County Agriculture Extension Service.

•To Bethel, Oak City, Scotland Neck and Halifax, 59 miles.

• Friday — 6:45 a.m., a look at the ECU Purple and Gold game; 7:15 a.m., a spokesman from the Tarboro Passive Solar Home Open House; 7:25 a.m., information about the Home Builders Show in Rocky Mount; 7:40 a.m., Eddie Harrington talks about plants.

WOOW Classics

A celebration of Easter and spring are being reflected in the music hostess Karen Hause has selected for Sunday night's "WOOW Classics" program of classical music. The program is aired each Sunday evening from 10 p.m. to midnight over Radio Station WOOW.

The first selection will be Bach's famed Easter composition, the cantata "Christ Lag in Todes Banden." This will be followed by "My Spirit Is Joyful" from Bach's Jubilee Cantata No. 146, featuring trumpets and organ.

Other works to be aired are a collection of Easter songs worldwide selected by Robert Shaw and performed by the Robert Shaw Chorale; the "Spring" section of Vivaldi's "The Seasons;" and Randolph Thompson's "The Peaceable Kingdom."

Four Winners At State Level

Three piano students from Greenville and one from Kinston studying with a Greenville teacher received superior ratings in the April 3 State Piano Contest of the North Carolina Music Teachers Association held on the Peace College campus in Raleigh.

Philippe Aronson of Greenville and John Noble of Kinston were winners in the senior division. Ingrid Lalik and Alicia Pascasio of Greenville were winners in the junior division.

The four were among 168 piano students statewide competing in the event. Of the 168, 17 in the senior division, and 35 in the junior division received superior ratings.

• Ingrid Lalik, 13, an eighth grade student at Aycock Junior High, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Lalik. Pieces she played at the competition were Benda's "Sonatina No. III" and Kabalevsky's "Variations on a Russian Theme." Her mother, Annemarie Lalik, is her teacher.

• Alicia Pascasio, 9, is a fourth grade student at Wahl-Coates and is taught by Carlene Ragan. Her performance pieces were "Song of the Dark Woods" by Siegmeister and Turk's "Hunting Horns with Echo."

• Philippe Aronson, 14, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Aronson and is a ninth grade student at Aycock Junior High. Compositions he played were "Papillon, Opus 43, No. 3" by Grieg and "Danzes Argentines No. 2" by Ginastera. His teacher is Mrs. Ragan.

• John Noble of Kinston studies piano with Dr. Charles Bath of the ECU School of Music faculty.

MOZART OPERA

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — "The Goose from Cairo," an opera by Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart, will make its American professional debut this spring in Kansas City.

The light-hearted opera tells the story of two lovers who agree for complicated reasons that the bridegroom should disguise himself as a fortune-telling goose.

Heritage Concert

Six violinists from the Greenville area will present a concert of music of the Baroque, Classical and Romantic periods as part of the 1982 Heritage Tour of the Greenville Area Preservation Association.

The program will be given at 3 p.m. Saturday at St. Timothy's Episcopal Church, 107 Louis St., Cherry Oaks. Admission to the concert is included in the admission ticket for the Heritage Tour.

Violinists are Andrea Bath, Sarah Burden, Elizabeth Ellen, Amy Moore and Carol Moore of Greenville, and Mary Dixon of Ayden. They will be accompanied by Jo Ann Moore and Dr. Charles Bath.

Compositions to be performed on the program include Mozart's "Rondo in G," to be played by Andrea Bath; Sarah Burden will play Handel's "Sonata in A;" and Amy Moore will play the third movement from Mozart's "Concerto No. 5."

Also, Carol Moore will play Veracini's "Sonata in E Minor;" Elizabeth Ellen will play the "Sonata in G minor" by Eccles; and Mary Dixon will play the "Concerto in A minor" by Vivaldi and the Meditation from Masseenet's opera, "Thais."

The concert will conclude with the group performing the "Concerto in D minor for Two Violins" by J.S. Bach.

The six are violinists in the Eastern Youth Orchestra and are members of the Sukzuki Violinists of Eastern North Carolina. Those from Greenville are also players in the Rose High School Chamber Players.

A Review

Has Her Finger On America's Pulse

The Best Of Dear Abby. By Abigail Van Buren. New York. ANdrews and McMeel, Inc., Universal Press Syndicate Co. 252 pages. $9.95.

"The Best of Dear Abby" is a good book. It's good for gift-giving, for fagged-out end-of-the-day reading, and good for bathroom reading. It's the kind of book that can easily be put down, but that is not to say it isn't fascinating.

First of all you learn the difference between Ann Landers and Abigail Van Buren, neither of which is their real name. They are identical twins from Sioux City, Iowa named at birth: Pauline Esther Friedman and Esther Pauline Friedman, or "Popo" and "Eppie." Popo became Abigail Van Buren and Eppie became Ann Landers.

How they got in the advice-column business, how they became entangled in a feud that kept them at arm's length a good deal of their lieves is told in Chapter I.

For years they ignored their own troubled relationship and passed out somewhat tongue-in-cheek advice to their millions of readers. Now Abigail Van Buren has collected the best of her 25 years of syndication into this delightful book.

Each chapter is a different phase of life's problems: Marriage on the Rocks, Roll Over, You're Snoring, The Animal People, Fooling Around, Paging the Aging, and Not Fit to Print, etc.

A sample letter:

Dear Abby,

I have always wanted to have my family history traced but I can't afford to spend a lot of money to do it. Any suggestions?

SAM in CAL.

Dear Sam,

Yes. Run for public office.

Abby has had her finger on the pulse of the nation for a quarter of a century and reports that people are better than ever.

How could you not read a book by someone so optimistic?

Maxine Carey Harker.

Murfreesboro Events

MURFREESBORO — Murfreesboro, one of northeastern North Carolina's historic towns, is celebrating its Heritage Festival on Friday and Saturday. The town, located on the Meherrin River, was a king's landing and port of call for 18th and 19th century sailing vessels trading with New England and the West Indies.

Today the town is actively involved in the adaptive restoration of many of its 32 historic buildings.

The dedication of one of these, the Winborne Store and Law Office, will be a major 1982 Heritage Festival Event. This newly restored structure houses selected pieces of an extensive (15,000 items) collection of old country store items.

The Rea Store, North Carolina's oldest brick commercial building, opens its museum doors to visitors so that they may view the work of the area's most famous inventor, Richard Jordon Gatling, inventor of the Gatling Gun.

Other attractions will include restored vintage carriages which will offer horse-drawn transportation through the Historic District, along with Town Tours that permit inspection of 14 buildings including five private home restorations and three contemporary homes.

At 1 p.m. Saturday, Revolutionary War troops set up in an authentic camp on the green facing the Town Hall will stage a battle. Their open camp will also provide visitors with a "living history" showcase of military life in the 18th century.

A wide array of festival activities including an art show, country music concerts, carriage rides and country and town tours will be offered both days between 10 a.m. and 5 p.m. The final event of the festival is to be a community concert beginning at 8 p.m. in Columns Auditorium, on the campus of Chowan College.

Those wanting more information may write to: Murfreesboro Historical Association, P.O. Box 3, Murfreesboro, N.C., 27855 or call 398-4886.

Murfreesboro is 66 miles north of Greenville on N.C. 11. From Greenville the most direct route is by N.C. 11 to Bethel, Oak City, Aulander (by-pass) and Ahoskie, taking the N.C. 11 route on the left two miles north of Ahoskie.

First Year In New Boys Club Home

Text And Photographs By Jerry Raynor

The past year in Greenville has been a banner one for the Boys Club of Pitt County. At this time in April, 1982, as America marks the 75th annniversary of Boys Clubs in America, more than 400 members and the staff of the active club join over a million members of Boys Club nationally in observing National Boys Club Week (April 11-17).

Here in Greenville, the Boys Club members have much to be grateful for. This spring marks the first time the boys are celebrating in their new home.

Located at 502 West Arlington Boulevard, a short distance from Hooker Road and next door to the Greenville Middle School, the spacious new 15,000 square foot brick Boys Club home that was first occupied last November 1 is a far cry from the cramped quarters the club had previously in a small church building on Skinner Street for well over a decade.

Here, there are many fine facilities — a gymnasium for basketball, exercise, wrestling and other sports that require ample participant and spectator space.

Two games room provide enough pool tables, shuffleboards, ping pong tables, and foosball games to give all a chance to play even on cold or rainy days when outside play is not possible. A growing library in the learning center assures mental as well as physical growth for the boys, and it doubles as a place to relax with a book or private thoughts. For boys with a creative bent, one area is devoted to arts and crafts. Small offices provide necessary minimum work space for the director and his staff.

In addition, there is a kitchen, club rooms, an exercise room, showers and lockers.

Outside, there's open space for the boys to romp around in, a soccer field and two baseball fields, inviting areas for energetic youths when warm weather draws them out into the open to play in the sun.

Chet Emerson, executive director of the Boys Club, extends an invitation to the public to visit the club during National Boys Club Week. "We're throwing our doors wide open and invite you to get a first-hand view of the services and activities the club provides to the youth of Pitt County," Emerson says. "Come by the club at any time during the week and see the boys in action."

Among a varied program of activities scheduled during the week are: a field day, a games room tournament, a safety and cultural day, a clean up Pitt County day, and one of the highlights of each year — the awards and recognition banquet and family night.

Pitt County Boys Club is funded 100 percent through community efforts. "We receive our operating funds from the Pitt County United Way, from corporate, business and individual donations, and from special fund raising projects sponsored by our board of trustees," Emerson points out. "We do not receive any funds from the city, county or state. We also depend on local voluntary funding for both our operating and capital funds," he added.

Emerson says he wishes to stress the fact that "those people who contribute to the Boys Club in any way can be assured that their support is paying big dividends in the enrichment of the lives of our young boys."

... Orientation sessions for prospective members, conducted by director Chet Emerson, are attended by boys and parents.

ECU Plans Symposium

ECU News Bureau

The management of hazardous waste and how it affects human health will be discussed at a symposium to be held at East Carolina University Thursday and Friday.

Sponsored by the ECU Departments of Environmental Health and of Chemistry, the symposium will begin at 8 p.m. Thursday with an address by Dr. Robert Goyer, deputy director of the National Institute for Enviornmental Health Sciences. He will discuss "The Assassment of Risks to Human Health from Exposure to Hazardous Materials." The program is in room 244 at Mendenhall Student Center.

Sessions Friday, also in Mendenhall, will feature speakers from industries specializing in hazardous waste treatment, state and national government agencies and health services.

Speakers include O.W. Strickland of the Enviornmental Health Section of the N.C. Department of Human Resources at 9 a.m.; George Bain, a geologist with Ebasco Services Inc., of Greensboro at 10 a.m.; Dr. Irving J. Selikoff, director of the Environmental Health Science Lab at the Mount Sinai School of Medicine in New York at 11 a.m.; James L. Marshall, regional sales manager for S.C.A. Chemical Services Inc., of Charlotte at 1:30 p.m.; Dr. William Huffman of Battelle, Columbus, Ohio, at 2:15 p.m.; Dr. Curtis McDowell, Polybac Corp., Allentown, Pa. at 3:15 p.m. and Donald Oberacker, an incineration research engineer with the U.S. Enviornmental Protection Agency at 4 p.m.

The ECU Student Government, Union Carbide, Burroughs Wellcome and the American Chemical Society are funding the symposium. The public may attend at no charge.

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, APR. 11, 1982

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The daytime is fine for engaging in favorite hobbies, amusements and other pleasures, while in the evening only serious and well-organized activities can be beneficial.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Take no undue risks where recreation is concerned early in the day. Enjoy outside affairs by using clever methods.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Meeting persons of mixed backgrounds can prove interesting today. Take it easy tonight and restore your energies.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Any responsibilities you have can now be handled in a most intelligent fashion. Be more cheerful in your activities.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) The day can be a most fascinating one visiting friends and relatives. Take no risks with your reputation.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You have much personal work to do now so postpone outside recreation for today. Be more optimistic about the future.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Put your finest talents to work in the afternoon and impress others favorably. Show more special devotion to loved one.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Look over your environment and take steps to make it more functional and charming. Improve your appearance.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Good day to enjoy the company of good friends. Be more willing to go along with their views and gain their goodwill.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Take time to study financial matters and plan to have greater abundance in the future. Express happiness.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Analyze your true ambitions and make plans to achieve them. Live according to your true philosophy.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Quietly plan how to gain the personal aims that's most important to you. Rest tonight and renew your energies.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Permit your friends to show you a good time today which can open up new vistas of fun to you. Smile more and by happy.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will do well at organizing public affairs and would be good in the event of any emergencies, so direct the education along broad lines for best results. Give good spiritual training early in life. One who will enjoy sports.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

FORECAST FOR MONDAY, APR. 12, 1982

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A good day to make plans for whatever course you want to put in motion that could pave the way to greater production in the future. Use your own resourcefulness and ingenuity.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Give full attention to responsibilities you have assumed and discharge them efficiently. Safeguard your reputation.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) If you carry through with expectations of associates, you avoid trouble and tensions. Don't neglect civic matters.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Begin the new week constructively by handling important work efficiently. Avoid engaging in controversial subjects.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Make sure you first perfect a skill you have before bringing it to the attention of higher-ups. Sidestep a foe.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Try to understand others whose ideas are different from yours. Be more supportive of loved one and be happier.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Obtain important data you need and improve present operations. Be sure to take better care of your health.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Handle financial affairs early in the day and get excellent results. Your usual routines could prove troublesome now.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Analyze your progress and know what still needs to be done to gain your goals. Consult an expert for advice you need.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Plan how to be more productive in the future. You have fine creative ideas that need expression now.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Follow the sound advice of good friends who have your best interests at heart. Strive for increased happiness.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Contact influential persons and discuss how you can become more successful in the future. Think constructively.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) A new project you have in mind needs more study before you put it in operation. Make new contacts of worth.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be able to gain the support of higher-ups by assisting them in some way. One who can make quick decisions, but remains steadfast to ideas. Give good religious training for a happier life. Sports are good here.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Life As It's Lived

By GAIL MICHAELS

Anarchist that she is, Meg has decided that she doesn't like school. It's not that she doesn't like her teacher or the aide; on the contrary, she adores them. She just doesn't care for any form of discipline.

Her kindergarten report card made her look like the perfect pupil until we got to the section called Work Habits: "Follows directions promptly" — minus. "Keeps her work area neat and clean" — minus. There were four other items in this section. There were three more minuses.

"I'd rather not," she'll tell her teacher when she doesn't care for the planned activity; or "I'd rather be home with my Mommy."

"She really loves spending time with you," her teacher told me during a conference.

I was flattered but I knew that my company had little to do with Meg's love of the home fires. What Meg does about home is the relative freedom. She can make all the outlandish drawings she likes, perform all kinds of experiments with water in the bathroom, play with Zachary's toys, and best of all, stay in her pajamas many hours after waking.

In short, she can do almost anything with her time as long as she doesn't use it to drive me to distraction. Those few infringments upon her liberty that her father and I do make are met with bitter denunciations or, worse, by sabotage in the form of delay.

Take the weekday morning routine, in which she must be fed and dressed and out the door before 8:30. She is the only child I know who needs 45 minutes to eat half a bowl of cereal. "Now I want an egg," she told me the other morning when she had finished.

It was not one of my better days. The mere act of watching her spoon her breakfast into her mouth flake by flake for three quarters of an hour had made my stomach rumble ominously.

"I can't fix you an egg this morning," I said. "We don't have time."

She was, as usual, unreasonable. "But I'm hungry. You cannot send a little child like me to school hungry."

"All right," I growled. "I'll fry you an egg."

"I don't want a fried egg. I want a hard-boiled egg smashed up with butter and salt."

"But that will take 20 minutes!"

She was as calm as lead pipe. "I'll wait."

She had to settle for a fried egg, which she pushed around her plate with the expression of a novice cleaning fish.

I finally escorted her bodily from the kitchen to the bathroom where I supervised her toothbrushing. "Finish up," I told her as I left, "and get your clothes on."

Ten minutes later, she was still brushing. "You can't hurry these things," she explained.

"Oh yes you can. You get out of there!"

"Well, if I get cavities, it'll be your fault."

I left to hunt for lunch money. She took that much time to get her pajama pants down to her knees. I dressed her and tied her shoes. She wailed that I never let her do anything for herself and she developed a tic in each foot.

"Now you hurry!" I told her as I pushed her out the door.

She walked heel to toe all the way across the lawn and the street.

"Meg!" I yelled. "I told you to hurry! What am I going to do with you?"

She waved and smiled. "Just hang in there."

PLAN YOUR HOME

The Foxcliff

Relaxed Living Aim Of Ranch Style Plan

By Jerry Bishop

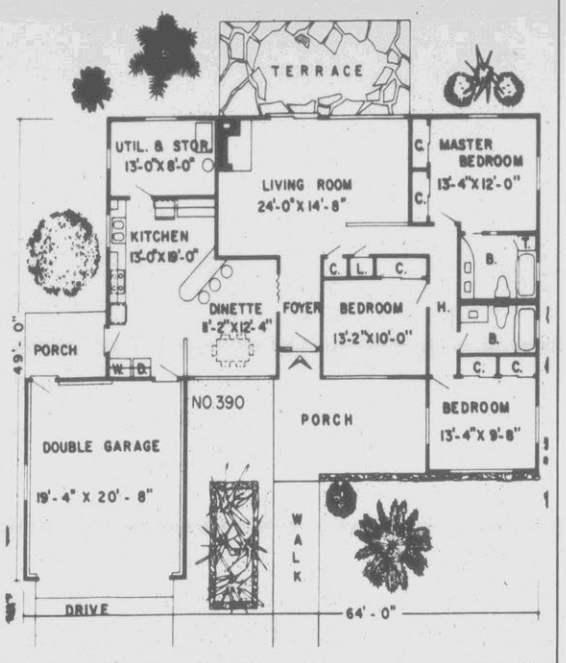
Every effort has been made to create a setting for enjoyable living in the Foxcliff, a three bedroom home that stresses convenience and informality. A workable traffic pattern minimizes steps and combines with a kitchen activity complex to fashion this livable dwelling.

Contrasting horizontal and vertical siding yield an exterior harmony punctuated by the gently sloping roof and stone chimney. Inside, the Foxcliff is a family home.

The foyer borders the kitchen complex, closed off by a folding door, and leads directly ahead to the living room. Equally adaptable to family relaxation or gatherings of friends, the living room corners a wood-burning fireplace for warmth and atmosphere. Sliding glass doors add light and extend the room outdoors to the large terrace.

Accessible from four sides, the kitchen complex is designated an important activity center. Work and play are fused by the inclusion of the angular snack bar, as well as a dining area, laundry nook, and bountiful supply of counter and floor space.

Behind the kitchen, a 13-ft. utility room offers storage space and suggests the possible use as a pantry.



Bedrooms are clustered around two full baths and include a comfortable master bedroom with double closets and private bath. Two smaller bedrooms are well supplied with closets and windows.

For the family that values informality and appreciates a step-saving floor plan, the Foxcliff offers both — and includes an appealing ranch style exterior.

AREA	SQ. FT.
First floor	— 1,637
Garage	— 420

The plan is shown without a basement, but the utility room should solve any storage problems. In addition, the double garage, convenient to yard and kitchen, offers some storage space.

New Wallpaper Comes From Old

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

The current "marriage" between some home furnishings manufacturers and some American museums in museum-backed reproduction collections is producing a boon for consumers in the form of wide availability of decorative products that recreate the past.

Everyone seems to benefit from the new state of affairs, made possible by a current widespread interest in reproducing authentic American interiors of the past.

Museums are reaping rewards in the form of royalties for their participation. Manufacturers have discovered a wonderful source of creative inspiration. And, the general public has access to suitable fabrics, furniture, wall coverings and accessories at an affordable price.

The new Historic House Association of America wallpaper and fabric collection, introduced recently in cooperation with the Historic House Association, conforms to the now-typical pattern. The Washington-based non-profit group, which advises restorers of old houses, will benefit from sales of the products.

Leila Serio, a designer for Richard E. Thibaut Inc. of New York, the manufacturer, visited 12 vintage houses across the country, choosing something to reproduce or interpret in wallpaper and textiles from each house.

One of the more interesting wallpapers comes from the Roycroft Inn in East Aurora, N. Y. The inn was opened in 1900 by Elbert Hubbard as part of the Roycrofters crafts community where furniture, books and decorative objects were made by resident craftsmen.

In recent years, a Roycroft renaissance has occurred. Craftsmen are once again working in the area and the inn, which is being restored, recently reopened to the public. Some of its rooms contain furnishings made by the original Roycrofters. Though typical of the design motifs of the period, the Roycroft stripe wall covering has been adapted from the inn's china service.

Other historic homes represented in the new Historic House Association collection, available through wall coverings outlets, include the Biltmore Estate in Asheville, N.C., and Oak Hill, President James Monroe's home in Aldie, Va., as well as nine more houses dating from the 1700s to 1895.

Garden Clinic

Q. I have always assumed that the greener grass is, the healthier it is. Is this true? (R.G., Benson)

A. No. Dark green grass may not be as healthy as a grass with a yellowish cast. The dark green color means that you have vigorous top growth, and sometimes top growth can be stimulated to the point that it hinders root growth. So, don't pour down the nitrogen in an effort to have the greenest grass in the neighborhood. This true of all grass, and it is especially true of centipedgrass.

Q. What is the best way to determine when clay soil is dry enough to work? I plowed my garden last year when it was obviously too wet and I fought clods all summer. (P.D., Hillsborough)

A. Use the "farmer test." Pick up a handful of soil and squeeze it into a ball. If the ball easily breaks when pressed with a finger or dropped from a height of three feet, the soil is dry enough to work. If the ball holds its shape when tested, be patient. Give the sun and wind more time to dry it out.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

People skillful in coping with most breakdowns around the house will often shy away from any repair pertaining to plumbing.

Whatever justification there is for this attitude with some plumbing repairs, there is none for a refusal to tackle the replacement of a washer on the ordinary stem or compression faucet. This type, still in the large majority of houses throughout the country despite the inroads made by single-lever and other newer kinds of faucets, is especially prone to dripping from the spout.

No matter how much of a novice you are in the matter of plumbing repairs, you can tackle the chore of replacing a washer and stopping a drip if you remember to turn off the water to the faucet before you do anything else. Forget it and you will soon have a stream of water shooting out and often up to the ceiling.

On some faucets, you will have to remove the handle, which requires only a srewdriver. On others, you need not do so. In either case, you must loosen the packing nut that is usually under the handle by turning it counterclockwise. This will enable you take out the faucet spindle, at the end of which you will find a washer, held in place by a screw. When this washer get chewed up or dislodged, water gets up and past it, creating the drip you are trying to halt.

Every home should have a box of assorted washers and screws in a handy place. Get one of the proper size and replace the old one, at the same time replacing the screw. Put back everything in the reverse order in which you removed it, turn on the water and your leak should be gone. This happens nine times out of 10 without any problem. Occasionally, the screw won't turn or is so beaten up you cannot get the screwdriver bit into the slot to make it turn. In that case, cut away the old washer with an awl or some other pointed tool, then grasp the head of the screw with a pliers and turn it.

If the leak was at the packing nut rather than from the spout, first try tightening the nut, which may have worked loose. If that doesn't help, take off the nut and replace the old packing unde the nut with similar material, which can be bought in a hardware store and looks something like string. If there is a packing washer, replace it with one of the same size.

When a faucet continues to leak from the spout even after the washer has been replaced, it may mean the faucet seat is rough and needs refacing. A small tool can be purchased for this purpose. It usually comes on a cardboard holder which tells how to use it. If not, ask your dealer for advice.

These days, newer kinds of faucets are of the washerless types, including single-lever models. Different kinds, as well as different brands, require slightly different repair methods. Many use cartridges that require replacement when there is a leak. Removal in some is easy, in others tricky. If uncertain, take down all the necessary data about the faucet, including its brand name, and ask your dealer to advise you how to handle the problem. If you have access to a plumbing supply establishment, it may be able to supply you with the faucet manufacturer's repair instructions.

(Details about faucet repairs, toilet-tank troubles, noisy pipes and clogged drains are contained in Andy Lang's booklet, "Make Simple Plumbing Repairs," which can be obtained by sending 50 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P. O. Box 477, Huntington, NY 11743.)

Q. —We have a huge wooden door that leads from our dining room at the rear of the house to a patio. It originally had a nice even coat of varnish on it, with the color a uniform light brown. The color seems spotty and uneven now. I would like to refinish it, but I would hate to go through the trouble of taking off all the old varnish, restaining it and then putting on more varnish. Is there any solution? I definitely do not want to paint it.

A.—First, you have to get off the accumulated dirt and grime, which may be the sole reason for the discoloration. Try wiping with a clean cloth saturated in denatured alcohol. If this makes the color even again, you can simply revarnish over the old finish after first removing any traces of gloss that might prevent the new coat from adhering properly. If a thorough cleaning leaves the color uneven, you will have to use a varnish remover, following the directions exactly as to how long to leave the remover on before scraping off the old finish. Once that is off, you can decide whether to revarnish immediately or whether an application of wood bleach is necessary to produce an even light color. If you bleach the wood, restain it, apply a sealer and, finally, revarnish it. Sure, this is something of a chore, but if your ultimate aim is a door that looks like new, this must be done.

Q. —I built a toolhouse at the back of our regular house. It is made of scrap wood of different kinds. I put two coats of paint on it, but now I would like to protect the finish with varnish. Is this practical?

A. —Not exactly, because the paint is likely to be a better protection against the elements than varnish. Under special circumstances, spar varnish or its equivalent is excellent outdoors, but in the case you mentioned, paint is the correct finish if it is an exterior point.

(The techniques of using varnish, shellac, lacquer, stain, bleach, remover, etc., are detailed in Andy Lang's booklet, "Wood Finishing in the Home.")

Potato-Tobacco Crop Tested

By DEBRA WILLIAMS

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — Faced with anti-tobacco sentiment and the need to diversify crop production, some North Carolina farmers are being encouraged by a nonprofit group to broaden their operations.

"What we say to the farmers is rather than wait until the rug is pulled out from under you, develop other crops now," Arnie J. Katz, coordinator of the North Carolina Land Trustees, said.

"Sweet potatoes are particularly suitable for that particular method because, by growing under the ground, they will not get hurt when a tractor goes through spraying the tobacco," Katz said.

Katz said sweet potato production is "very complimentary" to tobacco.

"They don't happen at the same time," he said, adding that North Carolina is the largest sweet potato producer in the nation. "We're also placing an emphasis on sweet potatoes at the beginning because it's a less risky crop. It's not nearly as perishable."

Although Katz said farmers are beginning to move away from tobacco because of the anti-smoking movement, he said other factors also are involved.

"The mechanization of tobacco harvesting along with the changes in the allotment system have made moving from farm-to-farm a lot easier. As a result, the small tobacco farmer is having more difficulty competing," Katz said. "Tobacco has been the basis for the small farmer in North Carolina but it won't be for very long."

Katz said his group encourages farmers to develop other crops so they can keep their land, stay in business and not be totally dependent on tobacco.

"They're not giving up tobacco but they realize their future should not be dependent on the crop," he said.

"They will continue to grow it as long as they can make money off of it."

He said a few farmers who have planted tobacco in previous years have forsaken the crop this season, but most farmers are planting other crops in fields separate from their tobacco.

Growing other crops besides tobacco not only provides an alternative way for making a living, but Katz said it's a possible solution to serious problems developing with the nation's food supply.

"The production of produce is becoming more concentrated and vulnerable to disruption in energy supplies and localized pest problems," Katz said, citing the situation last year with the Mediterranean fruit fly in California and Florida. "We need to bring the food system back to a local level rather than ship food all the way across the country on imported oil."

Tobacco farmers experimenting with other crops are dealing primarily with cucumbers and peppers. But some are growing corn and soybeans, Katz said, while others are working with small grain and a variety of vegetables.

In addition to diversifying their crop production, the farmers also are working on eliminating the middle man in marketing their produce.

"They don't have any trouble growing the stuff. The problem comes when they have to market it," Katz said, adding the state Agricultural Marketing Project has helped set up farmer's fair markets and direct consumer marketing.

Three years ago, several Carrboro farmers began marketing their crops directly to restaurants and independent groceries.

"The following year they put more effort into it and they sold a couple thousand dollars worth of stuff in Chapel Hill," Katz said. "Last summer, they expanded into Durham and other markets and did about $5,500 worth of business. So far, we have found the higher quality restaurants are the most interested in what we have."

Katz said the co-op also wants to open a packing house but lack of funds are posing a problem. Farmers are having a difficult time obtaining loans from the Farmer's Home Administration to purchase stock in the co-op.

"I think a lot of feeling in agriculture in the state is that if you're not growing tobacco, you're not really doing anything," Katz said.

Rockets To Light Alaska

POKER FLAT, Alaska (AP) — Little can compare with a brilliant display of the northern lights, but the scientific "outcasts" of Poker Flat will make an effort to match it.

A broad segment of the Pacific Northwest may get an opportunity to share in an awesome light show when the Poker Flat Research Range powers two rockets into space between April 12-26.

Weather permitting, people as far south as San Francisco and Boulder, Colo., and as far east as Duluth, Minn., may be able to see three brief but spectacular bursts of blue-green light low on the horizon.

The color will come from "clouds" of barium released from the rockets as part of an experiment to test scientific payloads for future flights of the space shuttle.

Scientists say if the night skies are clear, the balls of light — appearing about the size of the moon — should be visible for about 20 minutes some 12-20 degrees above the horizon. Launch time will be between 6:30 and 10:30 Pacific time.

The April show should be as awe-provoking as in the past.

There will be three bursts of light in a three-minute span. The first and third will appear the color of the moon, then change to a blue-green tint. The second burst will be red, but will slowly expand and fade in color.

An average of 15 "sounding rockets" are launched annually from the 7,000-acre site about 30 miles northwest of Fairbanks. Sounding rocket describes just about any probe of the lower atmosphere that is propelled by a rocket. The term evolved from "sounding" balloons used as far back as World War I to study sound bounced back to earth from various layers of the atmosphere.

Most of the contemporary launchings involve research into the natural phenomenon of colored lights in the sky, the aurora borealis, or "northern lights."

As the term implies, the "northern lights" tend to be a viewing privilege of residents of the Northern Hemisphere, although the aurora australis ("southern lights") can be found in a similarly sized arc around the South Pole.

New AutoTerm® Plan makes possible...

• No Money Down!

• $132.81 Per Month!

On New '82 1301 Tercel
9 Colors To Choose From

• 3 Year/45,000 Mile TEMA Available!

Explanation: The remarkable new AutoTerm plan—available now at Toyota East in Greenville—brings down the high cost of transportation. AutoTerm is less costly than the conventional way of buying a car... and it's better than any lease you've ever seen.

Imagine, a new Toyota for under $133 per month...and with no money down! The savings on your monthly payments and down payment add up to hundreds of dollars. That's money in the bank...earning you money!

All vehicles qualify for TEMA (Toyota East Maintenance Agreement)—3 year, 45,000 mile extended service plan.

Term is 48 months. To calculate total of payments, simply multiply 48 by the monthly payment amount. First monthly payment and a refundable security deposit in that same amount required at beginning of lease. You have no responsibility at end of term... you may purchase the car or walk away... your option. Prices shown require approved credit and do not include tax and license.

Examples:

2-door Corolla 5 speed $159.29 per month

Half-ton Truck $155.24 per month

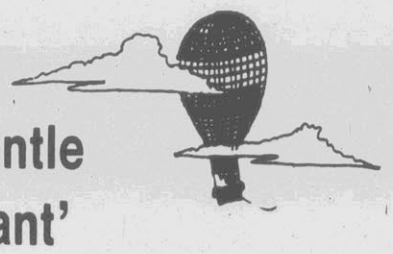
SUNDAY AT CONNER MOBILE HOMES

A 'Gentle Giant'



Will be an attraction at Conner Mobile Homes in Greenville, North Carolina, on sunday, April 11...otherwise known as a hot air balloon. This balloon is the color of the rainbow and stands 7 stories high. When inflated, the balloon holds 77,000 cubic feet of hot air and the temperature reaches 225° at the very top of the balloon.

Balloons go to any altitude the pilot desires, but on April 11 the Conner Balloon will remain tethered (which means the balloon will have long ropes attached to it so that it will go to 50-75 feet in the air) so that each person will have an opportunity to view this huge balloon close up and some of you may even like to take a ride in it and view the area.

Plan now to come to Conner Mobile Homes, take a ride in this beautiful balloon while it is tethered, or take a picture of a friend riding in the balloon while it is tethered, or take a picture of a friend riding in the balloon, or sit and watch while the balloon gently floats upward and very subtly slips back again to the ground.

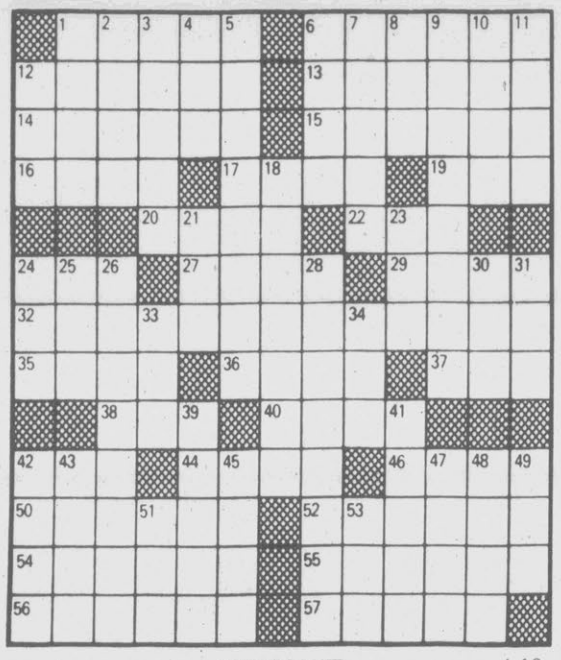
Answer to yesterday's puzzle.



CRYPTOQUIP 4-10

TLNHMGHPI FXVHYHPXKI AHKKXF AHP-PI, OLP GCPHGVCTPHMY ONMLQDP DXN NHQDP OCTA

Yesterday's Cryptoquip — COY PIANO VIRTUOSO IS VERY SERIOUS ABOUT THE FUTURE OF BOP IN HIS COUNTRY.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: A equals K

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

GOREN BRIDGE

BY CHARLES H. GOREN AND OMAR SHARIF

© 1982 Tribune Company Syndicate, Inc.

DEAR MR. GOREN

Q.—My great problem is the opening lead. If there is one card that will give declarer the contract, I am a strong favorite to pick it as my opening salvo. As an example, I have often been told: "When in doubt, lead trumps." It seldom seems to work for me. Do you subscribe to this theory?—M. Rogers, Tampa, Fla.

(This question has been awarded the weekly prize.)

A.—Many bridge cliches are based on sound principles. Unfortunately, you have adopted one of the few which is not. As a matter of fact, it would be much nearer the mark to say: "When in doubt, don't!" To lead a trump simply because you don't know what else to do all too often gives declarer a vital tempo, and sometimes even a crucial trick.

Usually, it is correct to lead a trump only when you suspect (or know) that dummy is going to come down with a shortage elsewhere in the hand. If you start removing dummy's trumps at the opening gun, you could be destroying dummy's principal asset before declarer is able to put it to use.

How can you tell when dummy is likely to have a short suit? An eminent bridge writer once remarked that there is no such thing as a blind opening lead — only a deaf opening leader. What he meant is that if you listen to the auction carefully, it should tell you when a trump lead is correct and when it isn't.

Suppose that declarer has bid two suits, and his second suit becomes trumps. With equal length in the two suits, dummy would have preferred the first-bid suit. Therefore, there is a strong inference that dummy is short in declarer's first suit, and that declarer will use ruffs in dummy to set up that suit. A trump lead could spoil his plans.

Take another case. You have a reasonable hand in high cards and you hear the opponents bid as follows: one spade — two spades — four spades. It is quite possible that part of dummy's values for his raise is distributional, so a trump lead could reap dividends.

There is one time when a trump lead is mandatory, even if you hold a singleton in the suit. That is when partner has converted your takeout double of a low-level opposing contract to penalties. Partner's pass of your takeout double states his belief that your side will make more tricks than will declarer with his suit as trumps. In effect, what partner has done is to make your side the declaring side. Now if you were playing the hand, your normal line of play would be to draw trumps to protect your high cards from being ruffed by the enemy's low trumps. Under these circumstances, you want to lead trumps to prevent declarer from scoring his low trumps by means of ruffs.

All the little reasons to move your NOW account to First Federal can mean a whole lot to you later.

The smallest minimum balance around.

$300. That's our minimum balance on NOW accounts. Compare that to what the other banks and savings and loans in town require you to keep on hand. Just $300, and we'll pay you every cent that the law allows us (or any other Federally-insured financial institution) to pay on NOW accounts.

The best little package of extras.

We've got a package of extras with our NOW account that can't be topped. Compare our extras with any deal in the neighborhood:
No-fee travelers checks.
24 hour Automatic-teller banking.
Absolutely no minimum balance if you're 55 or older.
5 locations all over Pitt County.
Out-of-town emergency cash.

The biggest little extra of all: Extra service.

Monster banks, and even the other savings and loans in town can't compare with the extra service that you'll get at First Federal. We'll go the extra mile to help you in any way we can.

So take advantage of all the little reasons. And move your NOW account to First Federal.

Put yourself first at First Federal.

Comedy Jumps From Film To TV

Last year's film comedy from Twentieth Century-Fox, "9 to 5," has been adapted for series television and, in the early going, has scored impressively in the ratings. The comedy stars Rita Moreno, Valerie Curtin and Rachel Dennison, whose sister, Dolly Parton, starred in the original film.

"All of us at ABC are tremendously excited about '9 to 5,'" said Tom Werner, a network executive. "I think that television's 'M*A*S*H' has shown conclusively that a quality motion picture of humor and relevance can also translate into a successful television series and keep these same qualities intact." "M*A*S*H" has been on for over ten years, but it is unlikely that "9 to 5" will ever be given a free rein to make such a long stand. The new series is scheduled for a limited run.

"9 to 5," which airs on Thursdays (9-9:30 p.m.), features Oscar, Tony and Emmy-winner Rita Moreno as Violet, a 12-year veteran of Consolidated Companies. A widow and mother of two, she is forever training new employees, while also fighting the battle to get ahead herself. A popular singer and dancer, as well as an actress, Miss Moreno won her Oscar in 1961 for her supporting performance in the movie musical "West Side Story." She later won Broadway's Tony Award for her appearance in "The Muppet Show." Born in Humacao, Puerto Rico, Miss Moreno has worked on numerous motion pictures and television shows, including "The Rockford Files," on which she appeared regularly.

Actress and screenwriter Miss Curtin portrays Judy Bernly, the character originated by Jane Fonda in the film. As an actress, Miss Curtin won wide critical acclaim for her performance as a bumbling waitress in "Alice Doesn't Live Here Anymore" and as a frightened woman caught up in the beginnings of the Watergate scandal in "All the President's Men." Recently, though, it has been her writing that has brought her the most attention. In 1979, she was nominated for an Academy Award for Best Original Screenplay for "...and Justice for All," which she wrote with Barry Levinson.

Miss Dennison will star as Doralee, the boss' secretary, whose good looks and good-hearted nature tend to stir up hot gossip about herself and the top executive. "9 to 5" is Miss Dennison's television debut as an actress.

"9 to 5," the motion picture sensation, is now an ABC Television Network comedy series that stars (l to r) Rachel Dennison, Valerie Curtin, Jeffrey Tambor and Rita Moreno. "9 to 5" airs Thursdays (9-9:30 p.m.).

Popular International Lady

"My Fair Lady," the highly acclaimed film musical and winner of eight Academy Awards, including Best Picture will be rebroadcast as The ABC Sunday Night Movie on April 11 (8-11:30 p.m.).

In the story, set in class-conscious 1912 London, professor Henry Higgins (Harrison) emerges from the Convent Garden opera house to overhear Eliza Doolittle (Miss Hepburn), a ragged flower girl, attempting to sell her wilted violets to a bystander, Colonel Pickering (Wilfrid Hyde-White).

Eliza is shocked to find Professor Higgins taking notes of her shrill, cockney speech and momentarily learns that Pickering is a student of dialects. Disdainful of Eliza, Higgins, an avowed woman-hater, boasts that under his tutelage she could become a salesgirl in a flower shop or even pass as a duchess within six months.

Eliza's imagination is fired by Higgin's suggestion and she soon invades his home offering to pay for lessons to improve her speech. Higgins is astonished. When Col. Pickering challenges him to a wager to make good his boast, he takes Eliza on as a pupil.

Stanley Holloway portrays Eliza's happy-go-lucky father, Alfred Doolittle, the role he originally created on the stage. Theodore Bikel appears as Zolton Karpathy; Jeremy Brett plays socialite Freddy Eynsford-Hill; and Gladys Cooper appears as Professor Higgin's mother.

A number of unusual props with a great deal of history behind them were part of the filming.

A phonograph, instrumental in transforming Eliza's speech, is a 1902 Edison model originally brought to this country by famed tenor Enrico Caruso.

A 1915 Renault limousine owned and used by Maurice Chevalier when he starred in the "Casino de Paris" revues in France is also on display in the film.

Finally, co-star Wilfrid Hyde-White carried a 26-year-old umbrella and good luck piece which he has used in more than 18 films.

AUDREY HEPBURN STARS as Eliza Doolittle, an ill-bred, Cockney flower girl who is transformed into the finest lady in London, in "My Fair Lady," to be broadcast as the ABC Sunday Night Movie on Apr. 11 (8-11:30 p.m.).

Top Dollar Show

"M*A*S*H," on its way to becoming the highest-grossing series in the history of tv syndication, may end up harvesting $1,000,000 per half-hour from sales to stations by the end of 1983, according to Robert Morin, senior v.p. of 20th-Fox TV Distribution. With 264 episodes expected to be completed by then, Fox stands to pull in the staggering total of $264,000,000.

LYNDA CARTER PORTRAYS a woman who does not know why she is being pursued by professional killers, in "The Last Song," to be rebroadcast on Tuesday, Apr. 13 (9-11 p.m.), on CBS-TV.

Michele Will Tell

Q: How many brothers and sisters does Burt Reynolds have? Also, please give me some information on Brent Musburger of "N.F.L. Today." JESSIE L. SMITH, MORGANTON, N.C.

A: Burt has one brother and one sister. Brent Musburger was born in Portland, Oregon, on May 26, 1941 — he grew up in Billings, Montana. While a student at Shattuck Military School in Fairbault, Minnesota, he was sports editor of the school paper and lettered in baseball and basketball. In the winter of 1958, he attended Al Sommers' school for umpires, and after working spring training with the Cleveland Indians, signed a professional contract with the Class D Midwest League. He was the youngest umpire in professional baseball at that time. Brent attended Northwestern's School of Journalism. He joined CBS Sports in 1975. Musburger and his wife, Arlene, and their sons, Blake and Scott, recently relocated to the New York area.

Q: Did Tony Geary, who plays Luke Spencer on "General Hospital," ever play in "The Young And The Restless"? If so, was he the one who raped Chris when the show first started? KATHY BRINSON, FAYETTEVILLE, N.C.

A: You're right! It was an 'unpermed,' much less popular Tony Geary who portrayed the role of a rapist on "Young And Restless."

Q: Would you please give me the address of Larry Wilcox? MARY HOFFMAN, HICKORY, N.C.

A: You can write to Larry in c/o his show, "CHiPs," NBC-TV, 30 Rockefeller Plaza, New York, N.Y., 10020.

A: If the 'good' parts are 'R-rated' — it's the censors! Otherwise, due to the time allotment, portions have to be edited.

Q: What are all of the spin-offs of "All In The Family"? RUFFIN REYNOLDS, HICKORY, N.C.

A: "The Jeffersons," "Maude" and "Good Times" are "All In The Family" spin-offs.

Q: Could you please give me Elvera Roussel's home address? CURIOUS IN MORGANTON, N.C.

A: As we've said before, we are unable to release the private home addresses of your favorite stars. We suggest you contact Elvera through "Guiding Light," CBS-TV, 51 W. 52 Street, New York, N.Y., 10019.

Masters Joins Cast

Ben Masters — currently starring in New York's Off-Broadway hit "Key Exchange" — will join the cast of NBC's daytime drama "Another World." He will play Vic Strang, a famous director who arrives in Bay City to begin work on the film "The View of the Bay."

Production Started

Production has started on "Dad's Out of a Job," starring Kevin Dobson and K.C. Martel, a young people's drama about a teen-age boy's reaction to family crisis, to be broadcast on "The CBS Afternoon Playhouse."

Also starring are Dee Wallace, Arlene Golonka, Melanie Gaffin, Tricia Cast and Christoff St. John.

Dobson, star of "Shannon" on the Network, plays a laid-off auto worker whose wife (Dee Wallace) goes to work to pay mounting bills. Their son (K.C. Martel) gets a job too, but panics when his dad is forced to put their home up for sale.

Keenan Wynn joins cast of "Best Friends," marking the 207th picture in his career.

Always Wanted To Act

Television viewers immediately recognize Doris Belack as Anna Craig, a role which she created and played for 10 years on "One Life To Live."

"At least when fans see me they are friendly because Anna was a sympathetic character," she says. "If you play a nasty on daytime television, someone is liable to hit you when you go to the local store. The fans get very caught up in the soap operas and can't separate the actor from the role."

Doris, who stars as iron-willed Captain Florence Baker in "Baker's Dozen," a new comedy series for CBS, has always considered that city her permanent home.

She decided she wanted to be an actress when she was a small girl.

"I think I came out of the womb wanting to act," she says. "There was never any other choice."

After graduation from high school, Doris attended The American Academy of Dramatic Arts for one semester.

"I left because I thought it was a waste of time," she remembers, "and I went out to look for work and I got it."

She appeared at the Berkshire Theatre Festival in a revival of Saul Bellow's "The Last Analysis" and on Broadway in "You Know I Can't Hear You When The Water's Running," "Last of The Red Hot Lovers," "The Trip Back Down" and "Cheaters."

Along with her long-running role on "One Life To Live" Doris has also appeared on "The Edge of Night" and "The Doctors." She guested in the television special "The Last Tenant" and has appeared in segments of "Family" and "Where The Whistle Blows." Her feature credits include "Looking Up" and "Tracers."

A Part Of 'Today'

"Ms. Liz," a refreshing original comic character who addresses herself to the problems today's women experience, is a new regular on the "Today" program.

'Ms. Liz' has achieved national acceptance and admiration by virture of the strip's appearance in Cosmopolitan magazine, on greeting cards and in animated cartoons. The animated feature will be broadcast once a week during the 8-8:30 segment.

The strip is the creation of Barbara Jo Slate, who will also introduce the segments. Of her creation she says: "'Ms. Liz' is the woman to watch in the 80s. More than a loving, sexy, successful and humorous character, she is the symbol of a life style."

Yoko Shimada Returns To TV

Almost 19 months after her stunning American debut as the beautiful Lady Mariko in "Shogun," Shimada finally returns to United States television, guest-starring as an illegal alien innocently swept up in a criminal web of drug trafficking and murder, in "Not Quite Paradise," a special 3-hour episode of NBC's "Chicago Story," airing on Friday, Apr. 16 (8-11 p.m.).

It's more than coincidence that the executive producer of "Chicago Story" is Eric Bercovici, the Emmy Award-winning producer — writer of "Shogun."

"A writer I know came to me with an idea about writing a story just for Yoko, and I immediately said, 'do it!'" Bercovici recalls. "Having worked with her in an epic period piece like 'Shogun,' it was terrific to work with her again in a tough, contemporary American drama."

Shimada, who received a Golden Globe Award and an Emmy nomination for her portrayal of Richard Chamberlain's ill-fated lover in "Shogun," was equally excited about the chance to work again in American TV.

"I had always hoped 'Shogun' would open the door for me in American films," she said in a recent telephone interview from her home in Tokyo. "Unfortunately, my English is still far from being fluent, and I realize there are not that many roles available for Asian actresses. So when Eric called to ask if I could come to Chicago, I said yes before I even knew what role he had in mind."

Estrada In Movie

Erik Estrada will star in "Honey Boy," World Premiere movie for NBC to begin production May 7.

"Honey Boy" focuses on a young boxer from the barrio, whose fast-won fame and fortune at the hands of slick, manipulative promoters carry a steep personal price that he refuses to pay. His problems are complicated further when his relationship with an attractive press agent becomes more than professional.

Film For Shields

Brooke Shields has been signed by producers Menahem Golan and Yoram Globus to star in "Sahara," a projected $15,000,000 production to be filmed under the Golan-Globus Prods. banner for the Cannon Group.

The Master Of The Masters

The Masters Tournament isn't "just the Masters;" the event carries as much if not more prestige as any golf tournament in the world. The Masters is an occasion, and CBS Sports will broadcast its final round on Sunday, Apr. 11 (3:30-6 p.m.).

The field in the event is elite since invitations — treated with the respect of a command performance — are based on present proficiency and past heroics. As a result, young amateurs as well as young professionals making their initial appearance on the famed Augusta National Golf Club course, rub elbows with the likes of Gene Sarazen, Byron Nelson, Sam Snead, and many more who have made the past history of the Masters legendary.

More than anything else, the Masters is tradition, from its founding in 1934 by Bobby Jones to the current defending champion Tom Watson. In between those years stands the historical warp and woof of the fabric that has made the Masters green coat one of the most coveted symbols in golf.

Jack Nicklaus has won the green coat five times, his first victory in the tournament coming in 1963, the year after he joined the TPA. He followed with wins in 1965, 1966, 1972 and 1975. Although Nicklaus turned 42 this January, he can never be counted out when in competition for a major title. Nicklaus has also won five PGA Championships, four U.S. Opens, three Tournament Players Championships and British Opens, and two U.S. Amateur Championships.

Last year, the Masters was played during four days of perfect weather and for the first time on bentgrass greens.

HOLLYWOOD — This just has to be GARY COLLINS' bonanza year (and it couldn't happen to a nicer guy) — with current and forthcoming action on all three major networks. Not only will he be starring in the mini-series version of "Valley of the Dolls" on CBS and replacing RON ELY as host of the "Miss America Pageant" in September, but ABC's latched him for a new audience participation series to be titled "The Success Show."

It seems there is no stopping the beautiful BROOKE SHIELDS — she is determined not to be just another pretty face — BROOKE is currently taking singing lessons from opera diva ANNA MOFFO.

CBS "Morning News" anchorman BILL KURTIS and producer DONNA LA PIETRA will be making news of their own when they tie the knot in a summer wedding.

"When E.F. HUTTON talks everyone listens" or so says the commercial, however, his daughter Nedenia, not wishing to trade on her famed father's name adopted the name DINA MERRILL and became a star on her own.

FRANK CAPRA — who has witnessed an outpouring of respect and affection unequalled in Hollywood history — received another surprise recently in his own backyard, so to speak, when family and friends and neighbors gathered there to toast and fete the energetic octogenarian. The occasion also marked the dedication of the ballroom at the La Quinta Hotel as THE FRANK CAPRA ROOM.

Tar Heel Dancer Chuck Davis A Festival Star

Dancer-choreographer Chuck Davis will be a key participant in the 1982 Eastern Carolina Arts Festival.

Davis, who stands 6-foot-7, will conduct movement workshops in public schools on April 16, teach a master class for teen-age and adult dancers at 4:30 p.m. at the Messick Theater Arts Center (old Wahl-Coates) and give a lecture-demonstration at 8:15 p.m. in McGinnis Theater. Philip Williamson will accompany Davis on the African drum.

Admission for the McGinnis event will be $1 for students and $2 for adults. Tickets will be available at the door and at the Pitt-Greenville Arts Council office in the North State Savings and Loan building (757-1785). The cost for participation in the master class will be $5, which will also cover the evening program. Preregistration is encouraged because studio space is limited. Call the Pitt-Greenville Arts Council for preregistration information.

Heritage In Dance

A recipient of the 1980 Distinguished North Carolinian Award, Davis has taught and performed throughout the United States, Europe and Africa.

Despite his extensive travels, Davis maintains close family and professional ties to North Carolina. The Chuck Davis Dance Company is an integral part of the American Dance Festival in Durham each summer. Davis is on the ADF dance faculty, his company appears on the ADF concert series and they conduct the ADF Outreach Program. This endeavor has met with such success that it has led to a program expanded beyond the summer ADF schedule to a year-round community services program.

The Pitt-Greenville Arts Council, with the support of Burroughs Wellcome, is bringing Davis and Williamson to Greenville under the auspices of the community service program.

A Night Of Traditional Music And Dance Set

The Pitt-Greenville Arts Council and the Carolina Opry House will present a night of traditional music and dance April 20 starting at 6 p.m.

This family presentation will include piano, accordian and singing by Leota Tyson, Terry Tyson and Lucy Allen. The Tar River Twirlers and Ayden Allemanders will give a square dance demonstration and will include time for audience participation. A new addition to this year's Opry House Night will be jazz pianist Rudy Tyson. There will be a clogging contest between the Hometown Boys and the Greengrass Cloggers.

Tickets are 50 cents for children and senior citizens, $1 for adults. Tickets are available from the Pitt-Greenville Arts Council (North State Savings and Loan) or at the Opry House door. This event is presented as part of the Eastern Carolina Arts Festival.

Remember Gene?

Singing cowboy star Gene Autry was instrumental in making the gentle, guitar playing cowboy a new image on the American scene. Autry also had several big record hits, including "Gold Mine In The Sky," "That Silver Haired Daddy Of Mine," and "Be Honest With Me."

Ricky Skaggs To Be In April 15 Concert

Epic recording artist Ricky Skaggs is scheduled to be in concert at the Carolina Opry House for one show at 10:30 p.m., Thursday, April 15.

Skaggs' most recent recording, "Crying My Heart Out Over You," has climbed to the No. 13 spot in Billboard's Country Singles Chart.

The 28-year old country singer was born in Kentucky, the son of a construction welder and a country musician. In his youth, he grew up in an area where old-fashioned music shaped his musical tastes.

Springtime In Greenville Brings Out The Art

Greenville's first fine arts festival, which included an outdoor exhibit, was sponsored by the Women's Club in 1935 and its success sparked a desire not only to continue the festival, but to establish a permanent art center in the area. A WPA Art Gallery and a Community Art Center were the predecessors of the Greenville Museum of Art, which opened its doors at its present location in 1960.

Since 1955 the Sidewalk Art Show has been a continuous feature of the annual arts festival, affording Greenville area citizens the opportunity to experience an array of visual arts each spring.

The format of this year's Sidewalk Art Show and festival has been expanded to include an exhibition of the award-winning entries in the south gallery of the Greenville Museum of Art on April 17-30. A juring of the works submitted April 14 will be held April 15; non-winning pieces will be on display outside the museum April 17, the date of this year's Sidewalk Art Show.

Categories and prizes for the competition include best in the show, $150; paintings, $100; sculpture, $100; crafts, $100; graphics, $100, drawing, $100; black-white photography, $100. No designation of amateur or professional categories will be used this year. Executive Director Mary Anne Pennington believes these changes will allow the public to enjoy the show more fully and she encourages all those interested in entering this competition to contact the museum.

In conjunction with the Eastern Carolina Arts Festival, the East Carolina Camera Club will present a photographic exhibition in the museum's north gallery through April 30. Recent work by the members of the club, which was formed in 1965, will include a variety of photographic images and techniques.

Jazz Ensemble To Take Part In The Festival

The East Carolina Jazz Ensemble will participate in the Pitt-Greenville Arts Festival again this year. The 20-member band will perform as the host ensemble for the Phi Mu Alpha Jazz Festival April 23-24.

This year's clinician-soloists will be James Ketch, Cecil Johnson and Dick Gable.

Ketch, director of jazz studies at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, is a widely known clinician educator. Johnson has toured with the Airmen of Note, the U.S. Air Force Jazz Band, and the Les Brown band. An arranger-performer, Johnson has contributed arrangements to the Jazz 'Bones.

Gable, a trumpeter, has toured with the orchestras of Woody Herman, Elliot Lawerence and Glenn Miller. He has recorded for the Epic and Columbia labels and has appeared on the Ed Sullivan Show. Now based in Raleigh, he is active as a free-lance recording artist.

The ECU Jazz Ensemble's association with the North Carolina Arts Council began in 1976 with concerts for the Washington-Beaufort County Arts Council. In addition to membership in the arts council, the ensemble is a member of the National Association of Jazz Educators 100% Club.

Music 40 Years Ago

The years of the mid and late '30s and early '40s have been called a period of exciting development in American popular music — an era of big bands, a surge in the sale of phonograph records and a steady flow of songs that captured the imagination of millions of Americans.

During the last years before and the first years of America's involvement in World War II, well known bands like those of Duke Ellington, the two Dorseys — Tommy and Jimmy — Kay Kyser, Glenn Miller, Harry James, Cab Calloway, Frankie Carle and Les Brown were frequently seen in movie musicals. Singers like Dinah Shore, Ginny Simms, Frank Sinatra, Buddy Clark, Martha Tilton, Judy Garland, Lanny Ross, Dick Todd, Peggy Lee, the Pied Pipers, Bing Crosby, Sophie Tucker, Johnny Mercer and Dick Haymes were constantly before the public — in movies, on records and in concert appearances.

Those late '30s and early '40s years were rich in ballads, jazz, patriotic and novelty songs.

A surprisingly large number of popular songs from South of the Border — Brazil, Mexico, Cuba, Argentina — made their way into the circle of popular North American musical circles. In a span of less than five years top transports included "Besame Mucho," "El Rancho Grande," "Green Eyes," "Frenesi," "Tico Tico," "Brazil," "Amor," "Ferry-boat Serenade" and "Yours."

Some songs of these years became overnight hits but are seldom heard today. "I Hear A Rhapsody," "Hut Sut Song," "Shepherd's Serenade," "I've Got A Gal In Kalamazoo," "Mr. Five By Five," "Oh, Johnny Oh," "Daddy," and "Pistol Packin' Mama" are a few random examples.

Others have become a permanent part of the mainstream of the American musical heritage — "Over The Rainbow," "Deep In The Heart Of Texas," "White Christmas," "Moonlight Becomes You," "Chattanooga Choo Choo," "Maria Elena" and "Blueberry Hill."

Revivals of songs from the 20s and early 30s re-emerged on the roster of favorites — songs such as "As Time Goes By," "For Me And My Gal," "It Had To Be You," "I'll Be Seeing You," "My Ideal," and "Taking A Chance On Love."

Younger Americans who have been exposed primarily to popular music of the Beatles era and the more recent decades of rock n' roll and disco might discover some happy musical surprises in music that was popular 40 years ago.

Violinist Sung-Jo To Perform At ECU April 21

Violinist Sung-ju Lee

In recognition of violinist Sung-Ju Lee's brilliant career achievements, the national puplication "Musical America" designated her one of America's "most Outstanding Young Artists" in 1978.

Ms. Lee performed her New York debut in April 1977 as winner of the Young Concert Artist International Auditions in 1976. She was presented in a return New York performance in December 1979 to acclaim.

Ms. Lee's artistry has been heard at the Flagstaff Musical Festival, the Aspen Musical Festival, and with orchestras including the Chattanooga, Baltimore, Hartford, St. Louis and Seattle Symphonies.

A native of Korea, Ms. Lee has also performed with the Seoul Philharmonic, the Hong Kong Philharmonic, and the Taiwan Symphony.

Sung-Ju Lee has won numerous prizes and honors including first prize in the Wieniawski Competition of the Kosciuszko Foundation in New York and the Friday Morning Music Club in Washington, D.C. She won a special citation as finalist of the 1978 Tchaikovsky Violin Competition in Moscow and was a finalist in the 1980 Queen Elisabeth Competition of Belgium.

Ms. Lee will conduct a master-class at 10 a.m. April 20 at A.J. Fletcher Music Center and perform the Mendelssohn "Violin Concerto" with the East Carolina Symphony Orchestra at 8 p.m. April 21, Memorial Gym.

Second Festival Year

The Eastern Carolina Arts Festival was established by the Pitt-Greenville Arts Council in 1981 when the first festival was held in April. The council plans for the festival to be an annual event and intends for the scope to be widened gradually so that those in the region are included both as participants and audience for festival events.

In 1981, the festival included performances by member groups of the Pitt-Greenville Arts Council, other local art groups and by groups from East Carolina University's schools of art, drama and music.

The events were conducted over a two-week period and included a wide variety of events which would be of public interest. A headquarters building was established and included a display of arts, crafts and a simulated Noah's Ark.

In 1982, there again will be a series of performances and cultural activities April 13-25.

Off-Beat Singers

From time to time an off-beat (i.e., off-key) singer makes it big by capturing the fancy of the public for something a little different. One such success story is that of Mrs. Miller of California, who warbled her way into hearts with "Downtown," later performed more conventionally by Petula Clark.

CHORAL SOCIETY . . . The large contingent of singers active in the Greenville Choral Society pose for a formal group shot. The Society provides audiences in Greenville with major seasonal concerts of music.

Local Choral Society Gives Seasonal Concerts

The Spring Concert of the Greenville Choral Society will be held April 18 at 3 p.m. in the Immanuel Baptist Church.

The concert by the 90-voice community choir will feature two well-known choral works: Faure's "Requiem" and Randall Thompson's "The Peaceable Kingdom."

The lyric "Requiem" was the French composer's first major work, and his only major sacred composition. The work differs from many of the fiery "Requiem" settings because Faure has omitted most of the dramatic "Dies Irae" or "Day of Doom" portions of the Mass for the Dead.

In addition, several other texts are adapted, consolidated or repositioned, making the setting inappropriate for an actual funeral mass in the Roman Catholic tradition.

"Requiem" was conceived primarily as a concert piece, a eulogy in memory of the dead. The soaring melodies of the "Sanctus," the tender solo, "Pie Jesu" and the ethereal "In Paridisum", have given the work a favored position among music lovers.

"The Peaceable Kingdom," by contempory American composer Randall Thompson, was inspired by the Edward Hicks painting of the same name. Hicks, the 19th century "preaching Quaker of Pennsylvania," painted a representation of his favorite texts from Isaiah:

"The wolf also shall dwell with the lamb, and the leopard shall lie down with the kid; and the calf and the young lion and the fatling together; and a little child shall lead them."

Using additional texts from Isaiah, Thompson composed a sequence of eight choruses for unaccompanied choir. The varied settings range from the contemplative "Paper Reeds By The Brooks" to the agitated "Woe Unto Them That Draw Iniquity With Cords Of Vanity."

Tickets for the concert are $2 and are available at the offices of the Pitt-Greenville Arts Council in the First State Bank Building, and from members of the Greenville Choral Society.

Vocal Arts Ensemble

During April the creators and consumers of culture in Pitt County will be brewing a heady festival of art, music, dance, drama and crafts spiced with what makes our festival so special—people.

It is the coming together of the artist and the beholder, the musician and the listener and the baker and the taster that creates an opportunity for sharing, produces a sensation of well being and provides a richness enhancing our daily lives.

Choose, for example, Saturday April 17 at the Greenville Museum of Art for a multifaceted experience.

Outside the museum the sights of the sidewalk art show and the sounds of young musicians and dancers will delight you. Inside, the museum parlor provides an intimate setting for chamber music by the Vocal Arts Ensemble. Mini-Concerts will take place between 1 and 3 p.m. Architectural features of the galleries and works from its permanent collection will provide a pleasing counterpart to the varied compositions being sung. Included in the program will be the "Barcarolle" from Tales Of Haffman, the "Quartet" from Rigoletto, the "Sextet" from Lucia, and some musical nonsence of P.D.Q. Bach from "Liebeslider Polkas" for Singers with Piano, Five Hands. Musicians include Patricia Hiss, Susan Jones, Federick Johnson, Jeffrey Krantz, Clyde Hiss, Tom Mercer, Barbara Caspar and Alisa Wetherington.

ECU Dancers In Fifth Annual Day Of Dance

Adding to the dance activities during the Eastern Carolina Arts Festival will be the premiere appearance of the East Carolina Dance Theater in the newly renovated McGinnis Theatre and the fifth annual Day Of Dance.

The ECDT performances will begin at 8:15 p.m. on April 22, 23 and 24. The Day of Dance, a series of master classes in ballet, modern, jazz and tap will be held in the dance studios in the Messick Theatre Arts Center (Old Wahl-Coates) Sunday, April 25.

The East Carolina Dance Theater will perform pieces choreographed in ballet, jazz and modern idoms by dance faculty members Paula Johnson, Petrus Van Muyden, Patricia Pertalion and Patti Weeks. The program will present the varied aspects of dance ranging from the classical "Pas de Quatre," a recreation of the charming styles of four Romantic era ballerinas, to a satirical look at the world of Punk Rock. Another highlight of the ECDT performances will be the modern piece "Court Dance in Magnetic Field," to music by Vivaldi which was presented earlier this year in Greensboro at the American College Dance Festival Association's annual adjudication meeting.

The popular Day of Dance, sponsored by the Department of Drama and Speech for area dance students and teachers, will resume this April 25 after one-year hiatus. This year Day of Dance is expanded over the week-end to include the Saturday night performance, as well as the day of masters classes taught by a professional guest artist and members of the dance faculty at East Carolina University.

In the past luminaries such as Edward Villella, Jaques d'Amboise, Melissa Hayden and Robert Lindgren have taught the guest artist master classes. This year David Howard will teach the classes and they will be held in the newly renovated dance studios in the Messick Theatre.

Participation in the Day of Dance Week-End will cost $10 and registration forms can be obtained from the Department of Drama and Speech Office in Messick (757-6390). Tickets for the East Carolina Dance Theater concert can be reserved at the McGinnis Theatre Box Office (757-6390).

Noted Dancer For 30 Years

One of the names seldom heard nowadays in conversations about American dance is that of St. Louis born dancer, choreographer and ballet master William Dollar. Born in 1907, Dollar was one of the first major native dancers to be trained almost exclusively in the U.S.

By the time he was 30, Dollar was a leading dancer with three American companies — the American Ballet, Ballet Caravan, and the American Ballet Caravan. Major roles he created at this stage in his career included Balanchine's "The Fairy's Kiss" and "Transcendence." The latter work was created especially for Dollar.

It was while he was a member of the Ballet Theater (now the American Ballet) that Dollar created one of his best known dances, "Peter and the Wolf."

During the 1940s he served as ballet master for The Grand Ballet de Monte Carolo, the American Concert Ballet and the Ballet Society, which later became the New York City Ballet.

In the 1950s and 1960s, Dollar worked abroad, first in establishing a ballet school in Iran, and later as ballet master and guest choreographer in Brazil.

Area Youngsters To Be Heard Playing Classics

A program of music by Bach, Beethoven, Handel, Vivaldi, Corelli, Brahms and Shinichi Suzuki, as well as a group of folk songs, will be presented by the Suzuki Violinists of Eastern North Carolina at St. James Methodist Church at 7:30 p.m. Friday, April 23.

The group will be accompanied by Dr. Charles Bath, chairman of the East Carolina University Keyboard Department and Jo Ann Moore, director of Choral and Stringed Instrument instruction at Wahl-Coates School.

Teachers of the group include Joanne Bath, director; Mary Dixon, Carol Moore, Elizabeth Ellen, Stephen Bath, Andrea Bath and Amy Moore.

The Suzuki Violinists of Eastern North Carolina is composed of players from the age of two to adults who have been taught to play the violin by the method devised by the Japanese pedagogue, Shinichi Suzuki.

The Greenville program includes students from Washington, Wilson, Ayden, Kinston, Tarboro, Farmville, New Bern, Plymouth and Morehead City, as well as from Greenville.

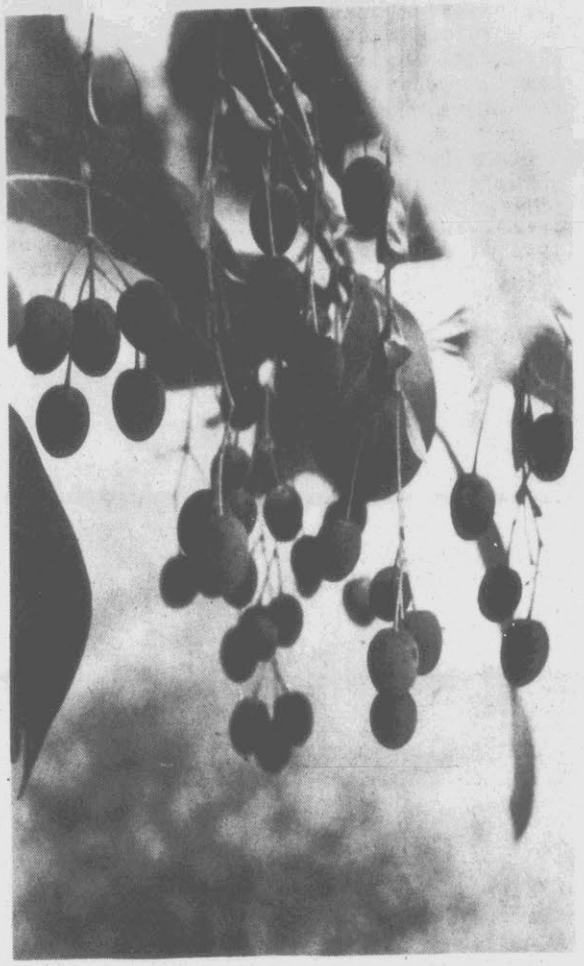
It was started in 1966 by Joanne Bath who serves as the director of the Suzuki Violinists of Eastern North Carolina and Primary teacher of students. Dr. Charles Bath and Jo Ann Moore serve as the piano accompanists.

The group has performed extensively for schools, churches and organizations throughout Eastern North Carolina. Several of the members participated in a tour of England last summer which included performances in Lyme Regis and Oxschott and at St. George's Cathedral in London. A second tour of England is planned for June, 1983.

THE YOUNGER SEGMENT . . . The youngsters shown here are from the Greenville community, members of the Suzuki String Players. They learn to play the violin through the Suzuki method and have their moments of glory in public concerts given throughout the area.

Collectibles

The art of collecting has become a favorite passtime for millions of Americans, both for pleasure and for the possibility of the collection becoming economically rewarding. Among categories of items most widely collected are coins and postage stamps of the world.



NATURE'S WIND CHIMES — This cluster of deep blue berries, the fruit following the silver-white fringed flowers of a Granddaddy's Gray Beard tree, rustle against each other in the manner of natural wind chimes. Although they make no audible sound, it is pleasant to watch the dance of these colorful clusters whenever a breeze passes by.

Wide Choice For Greenville Writers

People in Greenville who like to write — whether it's poetry, fiction, playwrighting, technical writing or journalism — have a choice of places to turn to for instruction and assistance.

• Some years ago, a teacher/poet in the East Carolina University English, Vernon Ward, established the ECU Poetry Forum on campus. The forum quickly became a favorite twice monthly (first and third Thursday evenings) meeting place where hopeful poets could bring their poems to be read and critiqued. Since Ward's retirement, the forum has been directed by Dr. Peter Makuck, poet/writer/teacher. Two volumes of poems in the "Tar River Poetry" series are published annually under the auspices of the Forum.

• The Greenville Writers Club, founded in 1968 by Betty Casey and Helen Parks, has consistently been an active group on the literary scene for the past 14 years. Completely unstructured, the Club meets twice monthly (second and fourth Tuesdays) in various homes in the area, and occasionally outside the immediate area. Several members have had books published by national book publishers, others have had fiction and articles accepted by leading American periodicals. An even larger number of local writers have had work accepted for specialized magazines and literary magazines in North Carolina.

• Currently, Pitt Community College is offering a continuing series of classes in creative writing. These have been popular, usually with more persons wanting to sign up than can be accommodated at any particular period. Instructors are local people who have had extensive experience in creating writing and in getting their work published.

• On the collegiate level, ECU has a journalism department to provide formal training to future journalists. Also, the English department offers classes in creative writing.

So whatever a prospective writer's choice of writing field might be, there is something for him to turn to for training and best of all, for encouragement.

Camera Club Sponsors Workshop

THE SPLENDOR . . . of a sunset scene over the Atlantic Ocean on the coast of North Carolina, framed by a seashore building and a pier, is the work of photographer Walter Faulkner.

The East Carolina Camera Club is sponsoring a color slide photo critique workshop to be held April 14 at 7:30 p.m. at the Jaycee Park Building, 200 Cedar Lane.

The program is free of charge and open to all individuals who have slides and wish to participate. The category is open as to subject matter. Each individual is invited to bring from 10 to 15 slides from which the critique panel will select at least five to be projected for comments. Names should be written on the border of the slide for identification purposes when returning the slides at the end of the program. Those slides not selected for the critique portion of the program will be placed in a tray for a general slide show to conclude the event.

A critique panel will be on hand to offer constuctive suggestions and/or to point out excellence. Comments will be made on composition, photographic technique, and subject matter interest. The program is designed to improve awareness of the basic elements that make for better pictures.

The public is also invited to visit the Greenville Museum of Art, North Gallery, between April 6 and 30 to view the photographic exhibit on display by members of the East Carolina Camera Club.

About 200 of his photographs, mostly black and white nature shots taken between 1917 and 1982 are included in the exhibit.

Lowe's Pricing Policy:

Many items in this tabloid carry a reference retail price. The reference is intended to provide a guide to the range of retail selling prices in our area and may be useful in identifying different units of the same manufacturer. An item's reference retail price is either the manufacturer's suggested retail price or our determination of its full retail price based on prices at which it or similar merchandise is offered by principal retailers (department stores, specialty shops and other non-discount sellers) in our selling area. While we believe our reference retails do not appreciably exceed the highest retail prices at which sales are made in our selling area, we cannot assure you that our reference retail prices, as described above, represent the prices in every community on any given day. Some items in this advertisement are listed at "regular" selling prices. The merchandise is offered at this price except during a special sale. The purpose of showing a reference retail price (or a regular price) is to assist you, our customer, in making a knowledgeable and better informed buying decision. We suggest that you also do comparative shopping and compare our prices. (Prices in this tabloid do not include delivery charges. Ask us about delivery rates.)

Lowe's Raincheck Policy: If we sell out of an advertised item, we'll issue you a raincheck. When we restock, you'll be notified so you can buy at the previously advertised price (except for products marked "Limited Quantities"). Our smaller stores may not stock all advertised items. But every item shown here can be ordered for you.

Save 15-20% on the Largest In-Stock Sale of Wedgwood Ever!

Choose from a wide selection of Wedgwood Fine Bone China. There is no more luxurious dinnerware made.

And, happily, since it is made from real bone ash, it is as strong as any ceramic body you can own. Our Bone China is fine and delicate in appearance, yet it can be put in the dishwasher—every day.

Save 20% on five piece place settings and 15% on all open stock and serving pieces. All prices shown are for five piece place settings which consist of dinner plate, bread and butter plate, salad/dessert plate, cup and saucer.

The World's Best China—at Sale Prices.

Unrivaled for quality, strength and translucency, Wedgwood's hand-crafted Fine Bone China distinguishes itself as the best. Best of all though is the way Wedgwood Fine Bone China invites you to enjoy it rather than lock it away for special days. After all, you're special. So shouldn't every day of your life be too?

Save 15% on open stock and serving pieces and 20% on five piece place settings. All prices shown are for five piece place settings which consist of dinner plate, bread and butter plate, salad/dessert plate, cup and saucer.

Save 20 to 30% on Wedgwood Queen's Ware.

Josiah Wedgwood invented fine earthenware in 1765. When he presented it to Queen Charlotte, she was so impressed, she gave him permission to call it Queen's Ware, in her honor. It still goes by that name today.

Queen's Ware is the finest quality earthenware made today and is durable and dishwasher and microwave oven safe. It should never be confused with ordinary pottery. Wedgwood Queen's Ware designs are intricately detailed and possess a subtlety of both color and design that is usually found only on Fine Bone China.

All open stock and serving pieces are available at 20% savings. All prices shown are for five piece place settings which consist of dinner plate, bread and butter plate, salad/dessert plate, cup and saucer.

ASK THEM YOURSELF

Send the question, on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

Moreno: "Brando is very shy."

FOR RITA MORENO, star of TV's Working (to appear April 13)

You've known Marlon Brando from "year one" — is he really as cold and rude as he appears to be? —N.A., Asbury, N.J.

● After he did The Men and On the Waterfront, he enjoyed his star status and was quite outgoing. Then he found he could not move an inch without having cameras follow him. That made him fearful. Everything he said and did was blown out of proportion, as it is with most celebrities. Success left its mark and he became introverted; he seemed afraid of being a celebrity. He found that friends would leak information about him to the press, using him to further their own ends. Now he seems aloof but, in reality, he is very shy. He has become somewhat reclusive because of being hurt in his early years.

FOR DOUG DAVIDSON, star of TV's The Young and the Restless

Do you know a family whose experiences resemble any of those played out on soaps? —N.B., Reno, Nev.

● I know people who have gone through many of the incidents shown on the home screen. To make a soap easy, entertaining and fun to follow, we must have constant action, drama, crises. Our episodes do mirror life with its problems.

FOR FONTAYNE, designer

● They don't have to be perfectly color coordinated, but they should look as though they had planned to be together. A woman in a beautiful cocktail dress should be accompanied by a man in a dark suit. I hate to see a man elegantly dressed, while his companion is wearing a man-tailored polyester pants suit.

FOR ROBERT P. NIMMO, administrator, Veterans Administration

How many women vets are there? Are they entitled to the same benefits as male vets? —I.P., Hobbs, N.M.

● Estimates show that of the 30.1 million living veterans, approximately 713,000 are women. They are entitled to the same benefits as men and their spouses and dependents receive the same benefits as those of the families of male veterans.

Kaufman: Grandpa's little girl.

FROM THE "ASK" EDITOR

FLASHBACK: Writer-lecturer Bel Kaufman (Up the Down Staircase), granddaughter of the legendary writer-storyteller Sholom Aleichem, has one vivid recollection of him: "I was 3 and we were at the zoo. He made a cone with a sheet of paper, filled it with water and offered it to a monkey who refused it. He smiled saying, 'She's spoiled,' refilled the cone and drank from it himself. I did not know until much later that Poppa was suffering from diabetes, which caused him to tell my parents: 'Now I know I will never die of hunger, but of thirst.'" He never reached his 58th birthday. When Bel is introduced as Sholom Aleichem's granddaughter, she is embarrassed: "All I did was get born to his daughter." She adds, shrugging: "If I had not been his granddaughter and had wanted to be a writer, beginning would not have been so difficult.". . .

Burton

THE PRESENT: Richard Burton's new, 8-hour TV bio of composer Richard Wagner is the longest role he has ever attempted. . . .Said Dick Cavett of Princess Grace's recent appearance at Radio City Music Hall for the Night of 100 Stars: "She stood on a trap door bigger than her whole country.". . .When Walter Cronkite spoke in front of the orchestra at the Tribute to Science Communication dinner, he said, "I always wanted to appear before a big band.". . .Julian Lennon, teen-age son of the late John Lennon, gave modeling a fling, making his London debut in a $450 Italian suit. . . .Rock singer Roger Daltrey, of The Who and star of McVicar, the true story of a bank robber, has long been concerned with the fate of criminals. He says, with a straight face, that if he'd never had a chance to break into music, he might have resorted to the other kind of "breaking in.". . .

FUTURE TENSE: Switching from producer to prophet, Broadway's Don Gregory foretells the fate of show biz in 50 years: "In 2031, theater will become more national, critics will lose their credibility and Broadway shows will be taped for cable before closing.". . .What will a banquet cost 100 years hence? Jerome Steiker of the City College of New York knows. At the school's 100th celebration, which cost $25 per plate, Steiker remarked that guests at the 200th anniversary may pay $55,000 for the dinner.

PRO AND CON

PRO Senator Warren B. Rudman (R.-N.H.), member, Defense Appropriations Committee

The 1982 defense bill represents the largest peacetime military budget in U.S. history. Unless our allies assume more of the defense burden to enhance our mutual security, we may need to continue high-level spending or reassess prior commitments. The U.S. spends 5.5 percent of its gross national product on defense compared with our allies' 1 to 3 percent. Why should a worker in Detroit pay so much to defend nations whose exports may threaten his job?

Send questions of national significance, on a postcard, to "Pro & Con," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $10 for those published.

CON Stephen Daggett, budget priorities coordinator, Coalition for a New Foreign and Military Policy

Last year the Western alliance (NATO and the U.S.) spent at least $20 billion more for defense than the Warsaw Pact (the Soviet Union and its allies) did. Higher spending by our allies, therefore, isn't required for military reasons, and our allies are correct in thinking the U.S. is exaggerating the Soviet threat. In addition, high military spending is a drain on any nation's economy and such large increases will undermine efforts to recover from the recession throughout the West.

"The You Generation"

Religion's New Awakening

By Billy Graham

Less than a generation ago, many observers were predicting that religion in America was rapidly becoming an endangered species. Church attendance seemed to have peaked, the media paid little attention to religious news and millions of people were drifting away from their religious roots.

But today American religion is alive and well. In fact, religion in America is probably the most vigorous it has been in a century. Furthermore, there are many signs suggesting that religion's influence is continuing to increase. Our nation may well be in the midst of one of the most significant religious revivals in its history — a revival which could have a profound and lasting effect on American society.

The signs of America's religious vitality are everywhere. According to a Gallup survey, 56 percent of Americans in 1981 said religion is "very important in their lives," up from 52 percent in 1978. It is true that church membership has continued to drop in some denominations. But this is not universally true, and one of the characteristics of the present religious resurgence is that it is not confined to traditional religious patterns. For example, tens of thousands of small Bible studies groups have sprung up in recent years, often meeting in homes, factories and offices. In 1978 Gallup found that 27 percent of American teen-agers were involved in some type of Bible study; a 1981 survey indicated that the figure has risen to 41 percent.

America's religious vitality is also seen in the growth of so-called "parachurch" ministries, or ministries which work alongside the traditional church in such areas as evangelism, Bible study and social service. Radio stations that feature religious programming number well over a thousand, with new ones coming on the air at the rate of one a week. Several religious television networks have also been formed, with more in the planning stage. In addition, Americans are buying religious books in unprecedented numbers. (Christian book sales have risen 15 percent a year since 1970.)

The media have also focused attention on religion to a degree which would have been unimaginable a decade or so ago. Some of this interest undoubtedly comes from the political impact religious groups have supposedly had in recent years. At the same time, the media have recognized that religion is of great interest to millions of people today.

What has caused this renewed interest in religion on the part of so many Americans?

Recently I received a letter from a girl who had just turned 16. "Mr. Graham," she wrote, "I have tried everything in my search for happiness — alcohol, sex, drugs, you name it. But my life was still empty and meaningless. Then I turned to Christ and my life is completely changed!" Her story could be echoed by countless people, young and old alike.

Our nation is the richest society the world has ever known. And yet our materialism has been only a veneer, masking a deep-seated spiritual hunger which will not go away. People have tried to find happiness and peace of heart in a multitude of ways — through pleasure, possessions, power, relationships. And yet many have discovered what King Solomon realized 3,000 years ago: "I denied myself nothing. . . . Yet when I surveyed all that my hands had done and what I had toiled to achieve, everything was meaningless, a chasing after the wind" (Ecclesiastes 2:10-11).

In addition, people are aware of the uncertainty and insecurity that hangs over our world. Our economic, social and political problems are staggering. Man has tried his best to find answers, but our world still seems to be hurtling toward chaos and disaster. In the midst of so much turmoil, many are seeking stability and certainty and are turning to God to provide it.

Sometimes I am asked if the current trend toward religion is really caused by a nostalgic yearning for a time when society was simpler and more stable, a seeking after values and ideals that are out of date and gone forever. But when God truly comes into a person's life, he will not try to escape from the world and its problems. God calls us instead to do His will where we are, and that means we must be concerned about the problems and needs of our world.

There are many characteristics of the renewal in America's religious life, but several have especially impressed me.

First, the religious renewal in our nation is very prominent among the young. A decade or so ago relatively few young people came to our evangelistic crusades. Now it is not unusual for well over half of the audience to be less than 25. Young people are disillusioned with the failures of the older generation and are seeking a new beginning. Also, many have already sought happiness in drugs, sex, or Eastern religions and know that the answer to life's deepest questions is not to be found there.

Second, there is a new spirit of service and idealism in American religion. A few months ago I spoke to 17,500 young people who had given up their Christmas vacations to study missionary work and Christian service in our world. I went away inspired and thrilled by their determination and commitment. Many churches and other religious organizations have taken the initiative in finding ways to encourage voluntary service in their communities, especially in the face of Government cutbacks. The 1970's may have been the "Me" generation, but the 1980's could become the "You" generation.

Third, I find many people today — because of their renewed religious commitment — are deeply concerned about American society and want to get actively involved in making it a better place. There is no question that our society has gone through a moral upheaval in recent years. Traditional moral standards have been cast aside by many, and in the name of freedom almost anything is permitted. Many are convinced, however, that if not checked these changes will ultimately destroy our nation, and they are working actively to reverse these trends. I personally share many of these moral concerns, although I have not felt that my personal calling was to get involved in movements of a political nature. I also am concerned that some movements stress only some moral issues and neglect other important ones, such as racism, injustice and peace.

Fourth, I find large numbers of people today are not content with merely going through the outward motions of religious worship, but are seeking a deeper inward experience of God's presence and power — on a daily basis. For them, Bible study, prayer and worship are not empty rituals but the means of growing closer to God and discovering His will.

Where will American religion be by the year 2000? It is risky, of course, to make predictions, and American religion is diverse. Also, as a Christian I firmly believe that it is God and not man who determines the future. At the same time there are two things that we can safely say about the future of religion in America.

To begin with, the coming decades will be a time of challenge. The challenges will come from many directions. Traditional churches will have to adjust their programs and priorities to meet the needs of their members, particularly young people who now may feel only loosely attached to the institutional church. Religious organizations will also have to deal with increased economic pressures, which make it hard to expand buildings and programs.

There also may be challenges from individuals and movements that are not religious and resent religion's influence. Already we are seeing signs of a backlash developing, especially against people who in the name of religion seek to influence political and social issues. Our society is still largely secular in its outlook, and this is not going to change easily.

Second, the coming decades will be a time of opportunity. Those of us for whom God is supremely important have a great responsibility before us. We have the opportunity to show love and concern to those around us, to work for a better society, to invite others to share our faith in God and join in the adventure of living for Him. It would be tragic if American believers were to withdraw and become unconcerned about others. If that should happen, they would be denying the faith they profess.

There is one final word I want to add. It is interesting to talk in general terms about religion in America, but the heart of religion is ultimately an individual's personal relationship with God. Many people today are turning to Him and discovering new meanings in life. My prayer for the future is not only that our nation will recover its deep religious heritage. My prayer is also that you will turn to God in repentance and faith, and join with the millions of others who have come to know God personally in recent years. FW

BILLY GRAHAM: ISSUES AND ANSWERS

In recent interviews the Rev. Billy Graham, 63, has spoken out on many important moral and political issues of the day. Here is some of what he has to say:

The tactics of the Moral Majority: There may be a danger in getting too involved in partisan politics — there are many potential snares. I am somewhat concerned when we get specific political issues intertwined with the Gospel; this confuses people about the essence of the Gospel. It could also have a tendency to dilute the Gospel. I think this was one of the errors I made in my early ministry and it is one I am seeking to correct. I am trying desperately to stay out of partisan politics, although sometimes it is rather difficult. Christians have always debated exactly how they should relate to secular and political issues, and there certainly are many social and political issues that have a moral dimension. We need great wisdom to know where our responsibilities in this area are.

Abortion: I am against abortions except in cases of rape and incest or pregnancies which affect the mother's life, but I do not support a constitutional amendment to ban them. If we start fooling around with the Constitution, we're going to have problems.

The rising divorce rate: A marriage should be made up of three people: you, your spouse and God. Christ should be the foundation of a Christian marriage right from the beginning.

Many marriages end by the fifth year because couples haven't learned how to adjust. Differences can be settled amicably if both are really seeking the Lord's will. One of the things Ruth [Graham's wife of 38 years] and I have found helpful is that when we kneel to pray together, she prays for me and my problems and I pray for her and her problems. We have found that marriage should be made up of two forgivers. We need to learn to say, "I was wrong; I'm sorry." And we also need to say, "That's all right; I love you."

Electronic preachers: Let me say that after all the crime and sex, I'm thrilled there is so much Gospel on TV and radio. Even if some of the religious programming is poor and in bad taste, and some of it drives me up the wall, I'd rather have it than a lot of the other junk. But I see dangers. One is financial gimmickry: for instance, when you use half of your TV program talking about the need for money. . . .

The time has come for all evangelists to practice full financial disclosure. The world is watching how we walk and how we talk. We must have the highest standards of morality, ethics and integrity if we are to continue to have influence.

Nuclear proliferation: It is a complex issue, and I do not believe in unilateral disarmament. But how can we be indifferent to the millions and millions who live on the brink of starvation each year, while the nations of the world spend $550 billion each year on weapons?

The "new morality": I share the Pope's conviction that there is a direct cause-and-effect relationship between declining moral standards and the general decline of society. I also share his deep concern over the breakdown of morals today and his alarm that this trend, if not reversed, will eventually result in social chaos.

Which Kids Succeed? Some Surprising News

By Diane Cole

More than intelligence, family problems or social class, a child's willingness and capacity to work proved the most important factor in predicting his well-being as an adult, according to the authors of the study, Dr. George E. Vaillant, professor of psychiatry at Harvard University, and Caroline O. Vaillant, a social worker at the Harvard University Health Services.

In their study, the Vaillants followed 456 men from age 14 to age 47. The men came from blue-collar, working-class families in tough, crime-ridden, inner-city neighborhoods. Add to this the fact that the study began during the Depression, and you begin to see the difficulties these men faced.

The study measured industriousness by whether or not the adolescents held regular part-time jobs, performed household chores or participated in extracurricular activities, and by how well their school grades reflected their intelligence and how well they coped or planned ahead.

While many of the adolescents who were rated highly according to these standards also came from strong, cohesive families and were emotionally healthy, the study stresses that industriousness remains the most important factor in predicting adult well-being. In several cases, industrious adolescents even overcame problematic home environments to succeed as adults.

If, as the Vaillants' study shows, this capacity for hard work is so vital, then how can parents help their children to be industrious?

"The way to do that is to encourage the child at tasks that are slightly stretching," says Dr. Cynthia Shilkret, a clinical psychologist who teaches at the Smith College School for Social Work. "Don't baby the child, but don't expect him to do something way beyond his years, either. The parent should know something about normal child development and learn to gauge when the child is in over his head."

Dr. Shilkret's husband, Dr. Robert Shilkret, associate professor of psychiatry and dean of studies at Mount Holyoke College, urges parents to adopt a "calmly optimistic" attitude about their children's progress.

For instance, he says, if the child at first fails at a given task, be prepared to take it in stride without becoming upset. Don't deny the failure by saying, "Well, it's really not important," because then the child may think that the task really isn't important, or that the parent does not care. Similarly, the parent should not humiliate the child because he failed.

The important thing to keep in mind, they urge, is that if the child fails the first time, he should try again.

But the child should not be driven, or slavishly bound to his task. "That's taking the idea of completing a task to its absolute extreme," Robert Shilkret says, "and there's a danger in that extreme."

The Shilkrets also warn parents against trying to compensate for their own shortcomings by insisting that a child master skills they failed to master as children (how to ride a bike by age 7, for instance). This puts undue pressure on the child.

Finally, the Vaillants stress that "not being able to stop working is almost as bad as being unable to work in the first place." It is important, therefore, Mrs. Vaillant says, not only to be industrious, "but also to know how to play and how to take vacations" and, most importantly, how to form lasting and satisfying relationships.

The Vaillants believe that the healthily industrious man or woman is never a workaholic, that, as Sigmund Freud said, mental health lies in the ability both to love and to work. FW

Observations

Nice guys finish... But they also last. We're thinking of some people who have finished up their careers but not their useful work. To overlook the wealth of talent in America's older men and women would be "as shameful as... to waste natural resources," as 81-year-old Rep. Claude Pepper pointed out. Since we've long argued against wasting any resource, you'll know why we're especially proud of so many senior members of Mobil's family. Meet just a few:

Expertise corps. Ed Oswald's taken his business and technical savvy from New Jersey to Brazil, Venezuela, and Korea. He's one of our 25 retired executives, among hundreds from various companies, who advise struggling enterprises in developing countries through the International Executive Service Corps. In California, then Florida, Vern Bellman has put his 33-year marketing career—and lifelong philosophy of helping people—to work for the Service Corps of Retired Executives. It counsels budding entrepreneurs and small business owners, which Vern says is "rewarding when you reach the inexperienced person in time, painful when you don't."

Retiring but not shy. For George Cummings, another marketer, retirement activism means membership on the Worcester, Mass., Commission on Elder Affairs; he co-chairs the committee that studies all legislation affecting the elderly and, says George, "When we speak, politicians listen." His concern extends to the whole community: When the heart of Worcester was being rebuilt, George and 249 others joined in a program to revitalize its spirit—everything from "celebrating ethnic affairs" to teaching local history in school. "Concerted action works," George says.

Friend in deeds. Not only are "the elderly a potent political and economic force," agrees Dan Maffeo, but a powerful self-help resource, too. He's New York State director of the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP)—a "hobby" he's as businesslike about as when he was a service-station supervisor. "We try to sell the idea of service" to all the elderly, says Dan: Educational programs like "Beating the Burglar," driver training, tax-preparation help, safety and health tips, aid for the recently widowed, and much more.

Good works, and works... Retirees really are helping themselves, too. Charlie Johnson, once a Texas refinery worker, now works hard for the AARP, yet he and his wife still find time to study Spanish and drama. The rocking-chair route is "a quick way to end up in the graveyard," he says, so stay active, get involved. Indeed, research shows psychological factors like maintaining a useful and satisfying role in society help keep you alive. As Dan Maffeo says of his AARP work: "It keeps my mind sharp, and I like to think I'm doing some good." Looks like nice guys don't ever finish.

It's a fact: You don't have to be retired to join in. As President Reagan said, Americans' "spirit of individual generosity and our sense of communal values" will be enhanced if private groups help deal with social ills.

All About Buying A Home Now

By Merrie Spaeth

Over the past decades, a special dream for American families has been to own their own homes. But reports of sky-high interest rates are currently deterring many younger couples from entering the housing market. To get a better idea of what the situation is, FAMILY WEEKLY talked to Dr. Jack Carlson, a Harvard Ph.D. in economics and executive vice president and chief economist for the National Association of Realtors.

Maggi Castelloe

Carlson: Riskier.

Q: Dr. Carlson, there used to be some general rules of thumb about what percent of a family's income should be allocated to mortgage payments. Have those rules changed?

A: They certainly have. It used to be considered O.K. to spend about 25 percent of the husband's income on mortgage interest and principal. Today, lending institutions consider up to a third of a family's income acceptable, and they will consider the salaries of both spouses. Some institutions will allow a couple to allocate up to 40 percent of their monthly income to payments.

Q: Will a house continue to be as good an investment in the 1980's as it was in the 70's?

A: Yes. I think so, because the young adults of the baby boom will keep demand up until the 1990's. But people in the housing market must spend enough time becoming familiar with the advantages and disadvantages of a community and with the new trends in financing. There are opportunities but there are risks, too. People should be much more selective than they would have been in the past.

Q: How will houses compare to other investments?

A: If a family in the 30- to 35-percent tax bracket has a 12-percent mortgage, that's an effective after-tax rate of only 8 percent. [That's because interest payments are deductible, of course, so you slice off one third of that 12 percent in your calculation.] I believe home values will rise at a rate just slightly higher than general inflation. The key thing to understand is that the total value of the house is rising over time, but the buyer has usually put only a small amount of cash into it — 20 percent or less. The rest is borrowed. The buyer is paying 8 percent after taxes for money while the house should appreciate much faster. In my opinion, that means homes could be a better investment than stocks, bonds or money market funds over the next five to 10 years.

Q: You talk about 12-percent financing as a real possibility.

A: That's right. Remember that the traditional way to buy a house involved going to a financial institution and taking out a mortgage where you paid a fixed amount each month for a fixed amount of months. Today, if you can get a loan, interest rates are between 16 and 18 percent. The result has been a dramatic change in how homes are financed. In our last survey, in January, 70 percent of home sales involved people-to-people financing.

The most common way is for the buyer to assume an existing mortgage. For example, the person selling the house might have an old mortgage at, say, 7 percent. The buyer could take over what's left of it, or negotiate with the bank, which would set a rate higher than the old mortgage but one that's still several points lower than the going market rate.

Q: Aren't there risks here? For example, there have been predictions of a rash of foreclosures when short-term rates with balloon payments at the end come due.

A: The home buyer is exposed to more risks than in the past. This is true of adjustable-rate mortgages, where the interest rate on the loan is changed periodically, and also with assumable mortgages. Home sellers who allow buyers to assume an existing mortgage should realize they may be liable for mortgage payments if the buyer defaults. As to short-term loans with balloon payments at the end, the key is to be realistic about your future income growth. But brokers have generally been cautious in structuring financial packages for their clients so that buyers will indeed honor their future financial obligations.

Q: What will be important to look for in housing so that the value holds up over time?

A: Rising energy costs mean that smaller, efficient houses will be highly regarded, and commuting distances will be important. Areas close to cities or jobs will continue strong. FW

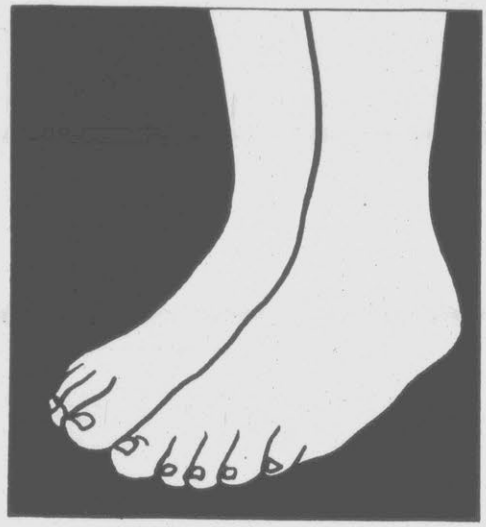
End the Pain and Misery of Tired Aching Feet

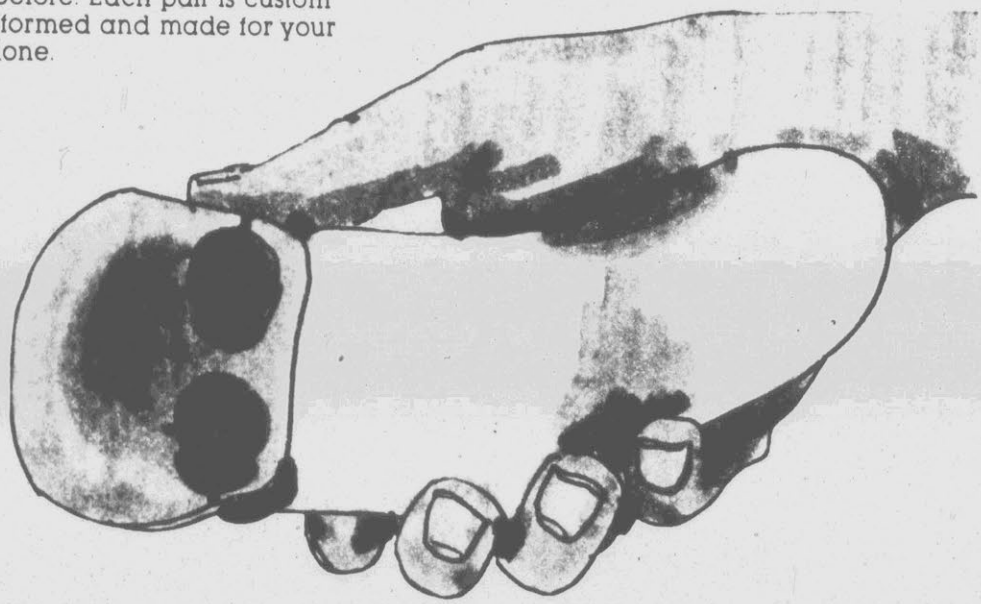
No matter how long you've suffered—be it three months, or 30 years. No matter what your problems are—corns, calluses, pain in the balls of your feet, burning nerve endings, painful ankles, old injuries, backaches, or just plain sore aching feet.

Just slip a pair of Featherspringsʼ into your shoes and your pain will vanish almost instantly. You'll be able to stand, walk, dance, even run in miraculous total comfort!



What are Featherspringsʼ?

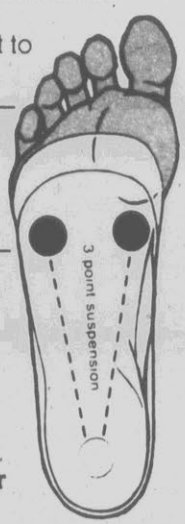
Well, they're a revolutionary foot support unlike anything you've ever seen before. Each pair is custom hand-formed and made for your feet alone.



How do Featherspringsʼ work?

Unlike conventional, mass-produced devices, they actually imitate the youthful, elastic support Nature intends your feet to have.

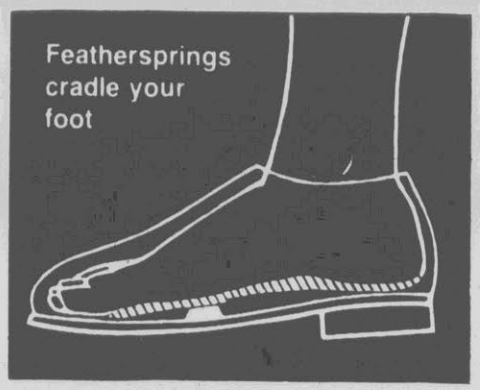
What do Featherspringsʼ look like?



They're all but invisible. Men and women can even wear them with open-backed sandals. And because you can change them from one pair of shoes to another, one pair is all you'll ever need.

How many people have Featherspringsʼ actually helped?

As of today, over 2,250,000 people of all ages with all types of foot, leg and back problems, are enjoying blessed relief they never thought possible.



How do I know Featherspringsʼ will help me?

We are so certain that Featherspring Foot Supports will bring you relief with every step you take, that if they don't work for you . . . we'll refund your money in full with no questions asked.

Don't needlessly suffer pain and discomfort for another day. If your feet are killing you, Featherspringsʼ will bring you relief. Write us for more detailed information. There is no obligation. No salesman will call. Just fill out and mail this coupon.

Remember, you have nothing to lose but your pain.

What people have to say about Featherspringsʼ...

"Received my wife's Featherspringsʼ two days ago. They are super–neither of us can believe the results. She has had terrible feet for years; already no pain. Incidentally, her sore knee is better . . . As a retired physician, this result is amazing." Dr. C.O.C. Tucson, Arizona

"Thanks again for introducing me to your foot supports! Before I got them, my feet used to ache even during my sermons on Sunday Mornings. Now, I have little or no foot pain." Rev. J.L.B. Pastor, Penna.

"I was extremely skeptical when I placed my order, and was expecting to be disappointed. Much to my surprise, I found almost immediate relief from knee and leg pains and corns on on my right foot which were a source of continuing pain and irritation have ceased to trouble me."
J.C.J. Meridian, Miss.

. . . "At the present time I still wear the Featherspringsʼ and indeed they perform well after seven years of use."

PEOPLE QUIZ

Is There Any Truth in Age-Old Myths?

By John E. Gibson

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. Stress inevitably ages us — no matter how well we cope with it.

2. Research on sexual activity in 70-year-old men indicates that fewer than half of them are still interested in sex.

3. Contemporary changes in male and female roles have not altered the fact that women outlive men.

4. The notion that retirement inevitably means serious maladjustment, dissatisfaction and physical and psychological deterioration is a myth.

5. Strenuous exercise contributes to rapid aging.

ANSWERS

1. False. Specialists at the University of California's Institute of Environmental Stress found that a person's aging process is largely influenced by how well he can adapt to and cope with stress. The investigators discovered that those who adapt the most easily to all forms of stress retain their feeling of youthfulness longest. They found that stress — unless easily adapted to — "contributes to aging in one of two ways: directly by weakening the body, or indirectly by causing a body already weakened by age to be more vulnerable to stress." The specialists concluded from their research that if a person makes a special effort to retain his youthful capacity to adapt to stressful situations, he will also retain his physical and psychological youth, even when he has more birthdays under his belt than he likes to think about, so that at age 70 he may say as Pablo Picasso did: "If mirrors didn't exist I would not know how old I am."

2. False. In Swedish studies aspects of sexuality in 70-year-old men and women were investigated. Over half (52 percent) of the married men and 35 percent of the married women reported they still had sexual intercourse.

The researchers also found that "men who continued to have sexual intercourse seldom woke up during the night, had better mental health and had a more positive attitude toward sexual activity among the aged. Women who continued to have intercourse had low levels of anxiety, had better mental health, had a general feeling of being healthy and judged their marriages to be happy. They also had a positive experience of sexual intercourse (found it pleasurable and satisfying)."

3. True. Despite the fact that women have adopted many of the pursuits that were once regarded as the male's exclusive privilege, they still outlive men. A National Center for Health Statistics survey noted that males are more susceptible to infection, which gives them a poorer chance of survival. In addition to this biological difference, deaths due to violence and accident are much more frequent among men than among women. And more men than women engage in dangerous occupations and avocations (such as hang gliding, skydiving, scuba diving, etc.).

4. True. A Clarke Institute of Psychiatry (Toronto) survey found that most people do quite well physically, mentally and socially after retirement, and that the negative stereotype is indeed a myth. The researchers conceded, however, that there appear to be factors such as health, income, socioeconomic status and personality structure which can predispose individuals to less happy retirements. (It might be noted in passing that such considerations could also have an adverse effect on a person's life at any age, whether retired or otherwise.).

5. False. In a study conducted at the Ochsner Clinic (New Orleans), lack of exercise was ranked as a chief villain in accelerating aging and daily exercise was found to be of extreme importance. The researchers noted that "when possible it [the exercise] should be strenuous enough to increase the pulse rate and respiratory rate." Walking was found to have many advantages: It requires no gadgets, is invigorating and pleasant and can be done at any time. The study pointed out, however, that since walking is not strenuous, a great deal of it is required to obtain the necessary amount of exercise. FW

By Jack T. Johnson, Agronomist

Every year I see people pour more and more money into their lawns. They dig, fertilize and lime. They rake it all in. They scatter their seed and roll and water it.

Birds love it! Seeds which aren't washed away by rain give them a feast. But some seed grows, and soon it's time to weed, water and mow, mow ... until summer comes to burn the lawn into hay, or crabgrass and diseases infest it.

That's what happens to ordinary grass, but not to Amazoy Zoysia.

"MOWED IT 2 TIMES," WRITES WOMAN

For example, Mrs. M. R. Mitter writes me how her lawn"...is the envy of all who see it. When everybody's lawns around here are brown from drought ours just stays as green as ever. I've never watered it, only when I put the plugs in...Last summer we had it mowed (2) times. Another thing, we never have to pull any weeds—it's just wonderful!"

LAWN WATERED ONLY ONCE

And from Iowa came word that the state's largest Men's Garden Club picked a Zoysia lawn as the "top lawn —nearly perfect" in its area. Yet this lawn had been watered only once all summer up to August!

CHOKES OUT CRABGRASS

Thick, rich, luxurious, established Amazoy grows into a carpet of grass that chokes out crabgrass and weeds all summer long.

FOR SLOPES, PLAY AREAS, BARE SPOTS

End erosion of slopes with Amazoy. Perfect answer for hard-to-cover spots, play-worn areas.

NO NEED TO RIP OUT PRESENT GRASS—PLUG AMAZOY INTO OLD LAWN, NEW GROUND OR NURSERY AREA

When planted in existing lawn areas plugs will spread to drive out old, unwanted growth including weeds—from part shade to full sun. Goes off its green color after killing frosts. Begins regaining its green color at the time when the temperature in the spring is consistently warm. This, of course, varies with climate. Easy planting instructions with order.

NO SEED, NO SOD!

There's no seed that produces winter-hardy Meyer Zoysia. Sod of ordinary grass brings with it the problems of seed: like weeds, diseases, burning out, other ills. Save time, work, money. Plug in Amazoy.

TWO GROWN MEN CAN'T PULL IT APART

So deep-rooted is Amazoy . . . it grows into practically indestructible turf. Amazoy thrives in porous, sandy soil, "builder's soil"—even salty beach areas! Beauty is but one advantage of Zoysia Grass. It's also so vigorous and rich it thrives in soils where lesser grasses have failed you repeatedly. Start your Amazoy lawn this Spring, and never re-seed your lawn again!

WEAR RESISTANT

When America's largest University tested 13 leading grasses for wear resistance, such as foot scuffling, the Zoysia (matrella and japonica Meyer Z-52) led all others.

Your Amazoy lawn takes such wear as cookouts, lawn parties, lawn furniture, etc. Grows so thick you could play football on it and not get your feet muddy. Even if children play on it, they won't hurt it—or themselves.

PATENTED STEP-ON PLUGGER IS... FREE WITH ORDERS OF 300 PLUGS OR MORE

Amazoy exclusive! No one else can offer you this patented 2-way plugger. Saves bending, time, work. Light, rugged, invaluable for transplanting. Cuts away competing growth as it digs plug holes.

CUTS YOUR WORK, SAVES YOU MONEY

Your deep-rooted, established Amazoy lawn saves you time and money in many ways. It never needs replacement...ends re-seeding forever. Fertilizing and watering (water costs money, too) are rarely if ever needed. It ends the need for crabgrass killers permanently. It cuts pushing a noisy mower in the blistering sun by ⅓.

YOUR OWN SUPPLY OF PLUG TRANSPLANTS

Meyer Z-52 Zoysia Grass was perfected by U.S. Govt., released in cooperation with U.S. Golf Assoc. as a superior grass.

Order guaranteed Amazoy now, get your bonus plugs FREE. Your order will be delivered at earliest correct time for planting in your area.

We ship all orders the same day plugs are packed, shipping/handling charge collect via most economical means.

FOOD

Easter Cookies

By Marilyn Hansen

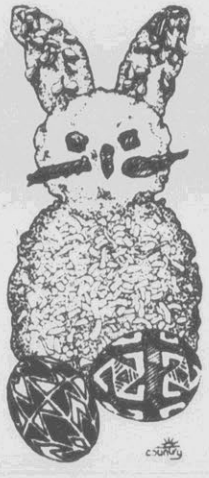
Keep friends and family happy and have fun at your house by making this delightful cookie recipe. Baked with whole wheat and raisins, they will bring smiles of approval from both natural food lovers and more traditional cookie eaters. They're delicious!

NATURALIST SUGAR COOKIES

½ cup unsifted unbleached or all-purpose flour
2 cups whole-wheat flour
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon ground nutmeg
½ cup softened butter or margarine
4 tablespoons milk
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
2 eggs
1 tablespoon water
Decorations: raisins, dates, dried apricots, sunflower nuts, wheat germ, flaked coconut, almonds, peanuts, walnuts, pecans

1. Place flour, whole-wheat flour, sugar, baking powder, baking soda, nutmeg, butter, milk, vanilla and one egg in large bowl of electric mixer.

2. Blend at very low speed for about 3 minutes. Mix at medium speed for 3 to 5 minutes until dough is well blended and mixture is a crumbly-moist consistency.



3. Line cookie sheets with foil. Draw a 3-inch circle on foil for body of rabbit, a 2-inch circle head and 2-inch long × ½-inch wide rabbit ears.

4. Take ¼ cup of cookie dough for body. Turn out in body circle and press evenly with fingers to edges. Take 1½ tablespoons cookie dough for head and press evenly in circle. Take 1 tablespoon dough for ears, using ½ tablespoon for each and pressing down firmly.

5. Beat remaining egg with 1 tablespoon water. Brush surface of cookie lightly with egg wash.

6. Decorate rabbit using raisins for eyes, slivers of date for whiskers, bits of apricot for cheeks and bow tie, sunflower nuts on ears and a sprinkle of wheat germ or coconut on the body. You may use other listed decorations.

7. Bake in preheated 350°F oven for about 15 minutes. Cool on rack. Remove from foil with spatula when cool enough to handle. Repeat with remaining dough.

8. You may also wish to shape Easter eggs in the same manner, drawing a 4-inch pattern on the foil first and filling in with dough, pressing to a ¼-inch thickness before baking. Brush with egg wash and decorate creatively as before. Store cookies in airtight container.

Makes 8 to 12 large cookies

WHAT IN THE WORLD

By Eliot Kaplan

FIND DEPRESSION GENES?

Severe depression afflicts some 2 percent of Americans and may lead to as many as 75,000 suicides a year. The causes of depression are complex and largely unknown, but a recent study seems to point to a genetic link. After analyzing blood samples from depression victims and their families, a team at the University of Rochester found evidence that genes located on chromosome #6 may predispose a person to depression. (Chromosome #6 has been linked in the past to multiple sclerosis and a form of diabetes.)

Dan Nevins

Further work is now being done by the University of Miami's Jane Egeland, who is taking blood samples from depressed Amish people in Pennsylvania. The Amish are good subjects for studying depression because they usually have large families, are inbred, have lived in the same area for generations and are rarely victims of alcoholism and drug abuse, which can be misdiagnosed as depression.

HYPNOSIS & IMPOTENCE

By using hypnosis, a Dallas psychologist claims he has been able to cure impotence. As reported in Medical World News, Dr. Harold Crasilneck says he used a mix of hypnotherapy and sex counseling with 100 impotent men. (In each case, a urologist had ruled out an organic cause.) After two to five 30-minute sessions, 87 of the 100 said they were able to achieve erections during sex and a year later reported they were still functioning sexually. Of the 13 failures, six couldn't be hypnotized.

WHAT'S A "SLIM GOODBODY"?

If you're grown-up, you may never have heard of Slim Goodbody, but if you're underage, he's all the rage.

A so-called "health crusader," Slim helps teach young kids about the miracles of their own bodies. He appears regularly on Captain Kangaroo, performs with symphony orchestras around the U.S., has an eight-part series now being rebroadcast over PBS, has written four books and has a new record out.

Slim Goodbody is actually John Burstein, 32, who like all starving young actors dreamed of doing Hamlet. Instead, in 1974, Slim Goodbody came along. "I took the role because I saw it as a stepping stone," he told us, "but I've come to love it."

A true health and fitness freak (and not just to fit into that body stocking), Burstein is well-read on his subject. "I tell kids, 'Your body is full of wonders. So, you are wonderful.' Once kids realize they're special, they'll make good health choices because they know they deserve it."

BALLOT BLUES

If the propositions and referenda on your voting ballot have read like Greek tragedy to you, it's not surprising. A political science professor reports you may need a graduate degree to understand them.

David Magleby of Brigham Young University analyzed ballot questions in four states, along with explanatory literature sent to voters. (Each election California spends $2 million on such material.) He found that the typical sentence describing a proposition contains up to 42 words and requires a reading level anywhere from that of a college junior to a second-year grad student. (The typical sentence in Time magazine, he points out, has 20 words and is geared to a 12th grader.)

Magleby says such gobbledygook causes 30 percent of voters to skip all the questions, while many more vote on only the first ones listed. And the more elaborate the wording, the more likely we are to vote that issue down.

SUMMA CUM LAUDE CAMPUSES

Move over Harvard, Yale and Princeton. Make way for Brown, Stanford and the University of Virginia. According to The New York Times Selective Guide to Colleges by Edward Fiske, these three rank at the head of their class as the best all-round schools in America. Comprehensive evaluations were done for 265 of our best and most popular colleges, with a maximum of five stars awarded in each of three categories — academics, social life and quality of life. No school got a perfect 15, but Brown, Stanford and U.Va. all received 14 (each got only a 4 in social life).

KINGS OF ROCK

One recent week, the heavy-metal rock band AC/DC boasted five albums on Billboard's top 200. Which led us to wonder, What muscial act has had the most albums on the charts at the same time, and with how many? Well, according to Record Research Inc., which monitors chart history, the answer is nine, by two different artists. But it wasn't The Beatles, Elvis Presley, Stevie Wonder or The Rolling Stones. Try Herb Alpert and Mitch Miller.

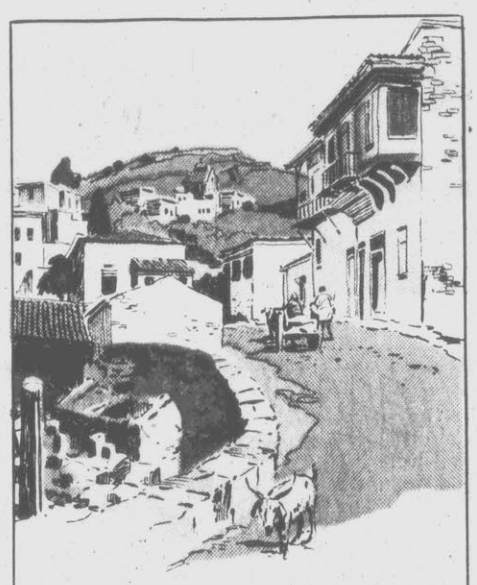
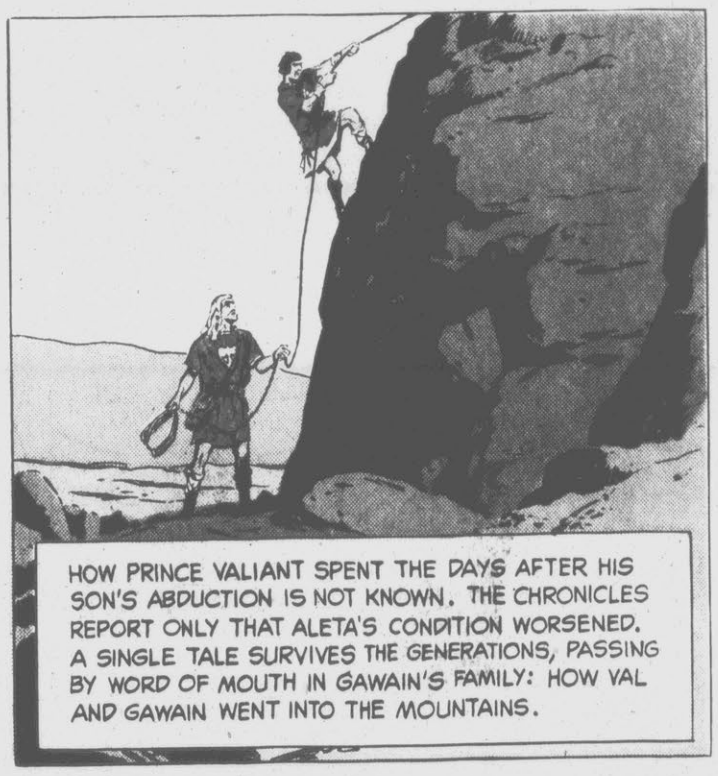
Prince® Valiant IN THE DAYS OF KING ARTHUR

CREATED BY HAL FOSTER

Our Story: HE CANNOT TAKE THE LIFE OF VAL AND ALETA'S CHILD, SO PRIAM THE PHYSICIAN GIVES IT AWAY-- TO A PEASANT WOMAN. SHE AND HER HUSBAND HAD ALWAYS WANTED A FAMILY. "WHAT LUCK!" THEY TELL THEMSELVES. ONLY AN UNUSUALLY LARGE HARVEST OF FIGS HAD BROUGHT THEM TO CONSTANTINOPLE.



THE COUPLE'S POOR, SUNBAKED VILLAGE LIES IN THE HIGHLANDS HUNDREDS OF MILES TO THE EAST, ON THE FRONTIER OF PERSIA.



HOW PRINCE VALIANT SPENT THE DAYS AFTER HIS SON'S ABDUCTION IS NOT KNOWN. THE CHRONICLES REPORT ONLY THAT ALETA'S CONDITION WORSENED. A SINGLE TALE SURVIVES THE GENERATIONS, PASSING BY WORD OF MOUTH IN GAWAIN'S FAMILY: HOW VAL AND GAWAIN WENT INTO THE MOUNTAINS.

THERE AMONG THE CLOUDS A SHRINE HAD STOOD SINCE THE DAWN OF TIME. PHOENICIANS WORSHIPPED HERE, MINOANS AND SPARTANS, EGYPTIANS, ROMANS. HERE CHRISTIANS AND JEWS HAD COME TO TOUCH THE FACE OF GOD. HERE PRINCE VALIANT SWEARS VENGEANCE.

FAR BELOW BOLTS OF LIGHTNING ILLUMINATE A CEMETERY. THE MIDWIFE THETA HAS ESCAPED SUSPICION BUT NOT HER CONSCIENCE. SHE HAS CONFESSED ALL TO HER NIECE, DIANA. THETA FUSSES WITH A LADDER AND IN A MOMENT EASES HERSELF OUT OF LIFE AS COMPETENTLY AS SHE EASED OTHERS IN. VAL STANDS BY HER GRAVE.

"SHE, TOO, WAS A VICTIM," HE THINKS. IN HER LAST DAYS ALL OF THETA'S DECISIONS HAD BEEN WRONG ONES. BUT JUSTINIAN HAD POSED THE CHOICES.
