Haig Reports To White House On Falkland Crisis

By GEORGE GEDDA
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr., interrupting his shuttle diplomacy, reported today to President Reagan on U.S. efforts to ease tensions between Britain and Argentina over the Falkland Islands dispute.

pressures on both the British and Argentine governments. "As you know, we're trying to assist the parties, who have difficult problems," he said. Before leaving London, Haig said, "The whole situation ... is dangerous and increasingly so. Therefore, there is great urgency to finding a political solution." Haig had planned to fly to Buenos Aires Monday night from London but chose instead to return to Washington. He said "difficulties developed to change those plans." The impasse centers on a British demand that Argentina withdraw all of its troops from the Falklands before negotiations begin and an Argentine demand that Britain take the first step by halting the naval armada now steaming towards the Falklands.

The slow-moving fleet is about a week's sail away from the Falklands which are in the South Atlantic about 250 miles off the Argentine coast.

Republican Hope Fading For Budget Compromise

By DAVID ESPO
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Republicans in Congress, exuding optimism a few days ago about chances for a budget compromise with the Reagan administration and Democrats, now concede that weeks of private talks may produce nothing.

"It may not happen," one GOP official said Tuesday, as sources reported President Reagan had sent word to negotiators that he remains adamantly opposed to a change in the 10 percent income tax cut scheduled in 1983.

Reagan's refusal could set off a chain reaction that could doom the private talks, officials said.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., has said, for example, that he will not consider cuts in Social Security unless Reagan concedes a change is necessary in the three-year tax cut Congress passed last year.

Participants in the private talks have assembled a package of steps to reduce budget deficits that includes scaling back cost-of-living increases for Social Security.

Presidential counselor Edwin Meese III, however, said today that "we're very hopeful, actually, that there will be some agreement that will come forth next week" and provide for reducing next year's budget deficit below $100 billion.

Interviewed on CBS-TV's "Morning" show, Meese said there was "an awful lot of room for negotiations on an agreement" despite Reagan's insistence on spending cuts, preserving last year's tax cuts and a U.S. military buildup.

Meese confirmed that budget director David A. Stockman was privately projecting a deficit of about $124 billion next year, even if Reagan wins his original budget cut proposals from Congress, because of a downturn in inflation that is reducing government tax revenues.

Administration negotiators are using the $124 billion figure in private talks with members of Congress, while their official, public estimate - a new figure issued last Friday - is for a $101.9 billion deficit next year.

In contrast to the new pessimism in Congress, several Republican participants in the talks, including House GOP Leader Bob Michel of Illinois and Sens. Pete Domenici on lastw Mexico and Bob Dole of Kansas expressed optimism last week that an agreement was within sight.

Democrats have been more guarded in their comments. Senate Republican Leader Howard Baker of Tenn., told reporters the negotiators "are making progress, I think. They will continue to meet, I think."

But Baker said there would be no meeting involving Reagan, O'Neill and himself until next week, if at all. All three men would have to agree on any compromise before it could become final, and none of them has been a participant in the private talks.

The negotiators themselves - representing the administration and both political parties of both houses - met twice Tuesday for several hours, reportedly going over details of a proposal to replace Reagan's own budget. The president's plan has almost no support in Congress.

In keeping with earlier meetings, the sessions were conducted in unusual secrecy.

Investigate School Fire

FIRE DAMAGES SCHOOL - Greenville Fire-Rescue Department firefighters check the ceiling in one of two rooms on the second floor of the Agnes Fullilove Community School on Chestnut Street which were damaged by fire yesterday afternoon. Fire fighting units were called to the scene at 1:47 p.m., and quickly extinguished fires found in rooms 203 and 205. Police Department spokesmen, who said this morning that an investigation is underway, reported four fires were set in different places in room 205, while five fires were set in room 203 - using paper and books found in the rooms. They noted that while an attempt had been made to break into the building through the basement, the arsonist apparently gained entrance through a stairway window. While damage was not extensive, several hundred dollars damage resulted to each of the two rooms, investigators noted. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

Much Of Moslem World Stages Strike Over Jerusalem Attacks

By The Associated Press
Much of the Moslem world went on strike today in protest against an Israeli soldier's bloody attack in Jerusalem on one of Islam's most sacred shrines, but Arab violence in Israeli-occupied territories subsided to sporadic stone-throwing incidents.

Government offices, schools and businesses were closed, air traffic was halted in several countries, some communications were cut and business sectors in many cities were deserted in response to the call for a one-day strike by King Khaled of Saudi Arabia, the custodian of Islamic holy places.

One Saudi newspaper called for a "jihad," or holy war, to liberate Islam's holy sites from Israeli occupation.

There was no shutdown in the Saudi oil industry. But Iranian President Hojatoleslam Ali Khamenei called on Moslem nations to use the "oil weapon" against Israel, and legions of Iranian demonstrators in Tehran urged a boycott of oil to "criminal America and its mercenaries in order to finish off the wicked existence of Zionism forever."

Arab demonstrators stoned two buses in Arab Jerusalem and the outskirts of Bethlehem, rocks hit an army vehicle in El Bireh north of Jerusalem, and youths set up roadblocks and burned tires in several West Bank towns. But no casualties were reported today.

Troops used cutting torches to open several stores in Gaza in breaking a business strike there, the army said. Military spokesmen said the strike was partially observed in West Bank towns, but Arab sources said the shutdown was almost complete.

Widespread strikes were reported in the Moslem sectors of Lebanon and the sheikdoms along the Persian Gulf. The Saudi Radio said Bahrain, the United Arab Emirates, Kuwait, Jordan, Morocco, Syria, Sudan, Djibouti, Pakistan, Qatar and Iran were joining the strike. The governments in Bangladesh and Malaysia, both heavily Moslem, declared nationwide work stoppages and there was a day-long strike in Srinagar, capital of India's Kashmir state, which has a Moslem majority. There was no strike in Egypt, the only Arab country that has concluded a peace treaty with Israel. But Moslem and Christian leaders lamented the Dome of the Rock shooting.

ECU Interviews Are Completed

Various university groups were to conclude their interviews of acting East Carolina University chancellor John Howell today as part of the process of selecting a permanent chancellor for the school.

Howell, who came to ECU in 1957, has served as chairman of the department of political science, dean of the college of arts and sciences, dean of the graduate school and provost and vice chancellor for academic affairs.

He was named acting chancellor in January and is the last of four finalists - candidates for the permanent chancellorship - to complete two days of on-campus interviews.

J. Fred Young, president of Elon College since 1973, was on campus March 24 and 25, while James A. Robinson, president of the University of West Florida since 1974, was interviewed March 29 and 30.

The other finalist, ECU professor Charles Q. Brown, was interviewed last week.

Brown, who came to East Carolina in 1966, has served as director of institutional development (now institutional advancement) and is currently acting dean of the school of technology and chairman of the geology department.

According to Ashley B. Futrell, chairman of the school's board of trustees and the 15-member chancellor selection committee, the schedule calls for the board's recommendation to be submitted to University of North Carolina President William Friday and the UNC Board of Governors by May 14.

Area Awaits New Telephone Rates

Carolina Telephone is awaiting word from the N.C. Utilities Commission on CT&T's proposed new rate schedule that would increase a typical exchange to roughly $12 a month.

CT&T spokesman Alan Sykes said in Tarboro today that the company submitted the proposed rate schedule to the commission last week and word is expected any day on the results of the commission review.

Sykes said the state agency approved an overall revenue increase for CT&T of $15.9 million on April 7. The commission instructed the telephone company to submit a proposed rate schedule that would generate the increased revenues from some 567,000 customers in towns in its 50-county service area.

The commission reported that Carolina Telephone's 13 percent increase would average $1.40 a month for basic one-party, rented telephone service for one phone.

A spokesman for the commission's Public Staff, which represents consumers in rate cases, indicated that the Public Staff does not plan to challenge the proposed rates for individual cities.

OAS Offers Assist In Dispute Over Falklands

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Organization of American States today adopted a resolution offering its "friendly cooperation" in helping Britain and Argentina resolve their dispute over the Falkland Islands.

The resolution did not take sides in the conflict, but was widely perceived by the delegates as favorable to Argentina because it made no reference to the United Nations Security Council vote on the issue 10 days ago.

The Security Council voted 10-1 on April 3 to demand that Argentina withdraw its military forces from the islands.

that Argentina withdraw its military forces from the islands.

In today's deliberations, the English-speaking Caribbean bloc had sought to include mention of the Security Council action in the resolution, but that effort was defeated on a vote of 7-0, with 20 abstentions.

The Caribbean bloc then supported a compromise resolution, introduced by Colombia, that was adopted in the spirit of hemispheric unity. It was a consensus resolution, meaning there was no active opposition.

The resolution expressed the "profound concern" of the 28-nation hemispheric organization over the Falkland Islands dispute as well as its "fervent hope that a rapid, peaceful solution can be found."

Led by St. Lucia, the English-speaking countries of the Caribbean showed their support for London's position by insisting the OAS resolution make a reference to the Security Council vote.

HONEST TEENAGER

I recently dropped my pocketbook in the parking lot of a local restaurant. I went back there when I discovered my loss and the manager was willing but unable to help. That night I went to church and while I was gone a 15-year-old girl called and told my husband she'd found my purse. He had already gone and got it when I got home. In it was the entire contents, including $35. That girl could certainly have used the money, but she chose not to. Extent Of Ayden Utility Credits Is Undecided

By MARY SCHULKEN
Reflector Staff Writer

AYDEN - Residents may get credits on their utility bills in June and September, but the amount of these credits has not been decided, say the Town Commissioners.

The Ayden Town Board instructed Town Manager Don Russell in the monthly meeting last night to form a plan for refunding to citizens the unexpected $80,000 electrical refund the town received from Carolina Power and Light.

The proposal, made by Elliott Dixon, calls for only a plan for refunding the cash - it does not mandate the refund itself, nor does it set the amount of refund.

"I feel we should give back the entire amount (refunds from both Vepco and C.P.&L.)," said Marvin Baldree. "The people were overcharged and they are the ones that should be paid back."

Mayor Ross Persinger noted, however, should both refunds go back to the customer, taxes would have to be raised in fiscal year 1982 to offset escalating electrical costs.

"I would rather see the town give back the entire amount and then go back and raise the taxes if we have to," said commissioner J.J. Brown.

"I would too," said Baldree. "Let's raise taxes if we have to, but let's give the citizens back what they put in."

The board also approved refunds to three churches that had been charged in the past for electrical demand. The refund will include the difference between the amount the churches were billed for and the amount they would have paid without demand billing for a period of one year, using an average cost per kilowatt. Refunds will be made to the First Baptist Church, the Free Will Baptist Church and the Methodist Church.

Other items considered included:

•Annexation of Strawberry Banks III subdivision was approved effective July 1.

•Pine Forest Road was closed by the town.

•Mayor and town clerk were authorized to update and codify town ordinances. Town Manager Don Russell noted that they had not been updated since 1965.

•Mayor Ross Persinger was appointed to serve as alternate commissioner to Power Agency Board.

Closing Boarding Schools To Save

By PHYLLIS MENSING
Associated Press Writer
WAHPETON, N.D. (AP) — It's the scaling down of a tradition that began more than 90 years ago. In an effort to save money, the Bureau of Indian Affairs has decided to close eight of 11 remaining boarding schools that have helped needy Indian students get an education.

"Off-reservation boarding schools are costing us too much money," says Interior Department spokesman Carl Shaw, adding "We just don't think you should take children 5, 6 and 7 years old out of their home to a boarding school."

Interior Secretary James Watt has announced that Wahpeton Indian School and Concho Boarding School in El Reno, Okla., the only two off-reservation elementary schools, will be the first to close. They will shut down June 15.

Shaw said the BIA estimates a savings of $892,000 the first year Wahpeton, with its 253 students, is closed and $925,000 when Concho, student population 144, shuts down.

Also slated to close this year is the Southwestern Indian Polytechnic Institute at Albuquerque, N.M., a vocational-technical facility. Boarding schools for high school students in Utah, Alaska, Oklahoma, South Dakota and Arizona, will close by 1985, under the BIA plan. The BIA says three others, in Oregon, Oklahoma and California, will remain open because those teenagers have nowhere else to go.

The eight schools have a total of 3,900 students and 867 employees. The BIA says the cost per student, all paid by the federal government, ranges from $7,100 a year at Phoenix and Flandreau, S.D., to $19,100 a year in Alaska.

To get into the schools, the students have to be at least one-fourth Indian. They need parental consent and approval of the superintendent for education of their tribe before they can be accepted.

Supporters of the schools, which were first started in 1890, say training schools and reformatories are even more costly, and they fear some of the youngsters could end up there.

"You can't argue with the theory that all children should be kept at home," says Ted Weisenburger, who serves as a tribal judge at Fort Totten, N.D. "But what do you do when a mother comes into your courtroom with five kids, singles out one and says 'I don't want that child.'"

Weisenburger says foster homes often don't work out because the children are valued as supplemental income rather than those who need love and care.

Angelita Primeaux, BIA superintendent for education on the Fort Berthold Indian Reservation in North Dakota, remembers her first trip to Wahpeton.

"I was sent there in 1959 when I was nine years old," she says. "As I got older, I understood it was for social reasons, because my parents couldn't take care of us. I was the oldest of 10 children."

"But at the time, we didn't know why we were going. My brother and I cried all the way from Fort Berthold to Wahpeton on the bus. 'I remember it was very strict. ... It was very painful for me, and I couldn't imagine sending my own kids away like that.'"

She was back to the boarding school last May, and found it "totally different." The Wahpeton school today includes 12 one-story buildings, modern dorms and a less regimented atmosphere. It offers a full curriculum, including home economics and shop, for students in grades three through eight.

Mrs. Primeaux still has mixed feelings about boarding school.

"On one hand," she says,

"boarding school really got me through my education and did me some good."

"On the other hand, I don't think the answer for our social problems is to send kids away to boarding school."

"Why are we as a tribe not doing anything about it? Maybe we should have a stronger social services program. If we really believe in self determination and community control, then why not give it to us? If we fail, we have no one to blame but ourselves."

Although it already has announced the closures, the Interior Department is holding public hearings this month to give tribal residents a chance to comment. A hearing on the schools at Wahpeton and Flandreau is set for April 15 in Aberdeen, S.D.

Ned Anderson, chairman of the Intertribal Council of Arizona and leader of the San Carlos Apache tribe, told an April 1 hearing that the Phoenix school was built for the tribes, not the BIA.

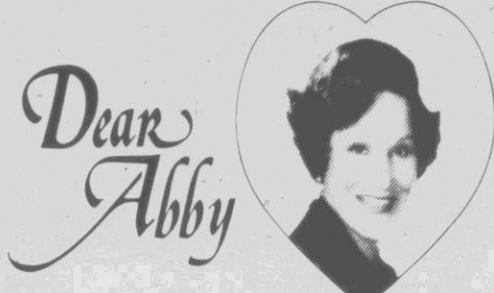

"If the tribes want to change the status of the school, that is the tribes' decision and theirs alone," he said.

"Secondary kids, they can handle material in public schools," said Concho Superintendent Arthur Cometevah. "But you've got little kids here — these are the kind you should work with."

School officials and the tribes also accuse the federal government of betraying a trust agreement with Indians, and of trying to cut the federal budget at the expense of the needy.

"They're not problem children after they come here," said Esther Horne of Wahpeton, who taught at the boarding school for 30 years.

"They're taken out of an environment where the problems are," Mrs. Horne said. "This serves as a haven for them."

Woman Resists Sporting Lures

DEAR ABBY: This is for the lady who cries because she feels sorry for the fish her husband catches. I know how she feels. When I was 8 years old, my daddy took me dove hunting. It was my job to pick up the doves that had been shot down and put them in the hunting bag.

The first (and only) dove I picked up was warm and soft and limp in my hand. I screamed and flung myself to the ground sobbing. My daddy angrily declared, "This is your last hunting trip, young lady!"

"You are so right," I thought silently. And it was. After I was married my husband took me fishing. He showed me how to bait the hook with live worms, but I just couldn't do it. I felt sorry for the worms.

I guess some of us aren't cut out for the so-called "sporting life."

SOFTIE FROM SOUTH CAROLINA

DEAR SOFTIE: My mail is running 20-to-1 against saving the fish. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: This letter is in response to "Save the Fish," the woman who couldn't help but cry over the "poor fish" her husband brought home. Ten-to-one she never cried over the "poor cow" or the "poor chickens." Just because they are already neatly packaged doesn't mean they aren't just as dead. This is the kind of hypocrisy that converted me to vegetarianism. I don't understand people who would never dream of eating a "cute little bunny," or who put down the Vietnamese for eating dogs, when they blithely consume hundreds of pigs, cows, chickens, etc. Just because an animal is a little less "cute" than another, why does that make it all right to kill and eat it? Sign me ... NO HYPOCRITE

DEAR ABBY: Ricky and I have been separated for nearly a year. I'm in no big hurry to get a divorce because we have two young children and I'm still hoping we can work things out and be a family again.

Ricky has been living with his parents since we separated, and that's part of the problem because his mother never liked me and she's pushing for the divorce.

She fixed Ricky up with the daughter of a friend of hers. This girl is a young widow who will soon come into a lot of money because her husband was killed in an industrial accident, and the company he worked for is giving her an enormous settlement.

I heard that Ricky and this young widow have brazenly been sleeping together under his parents' roof with their blessings!

Abby, I still love Ricky, and I think we could iron out our differences if his mother would leave him alone. Should I get a divorce and maybe regret it later? Or should I hang in there and hope that Ricky comes to his senses? I think deep down he loves me, too.

HOPING FOR THE BEST

DEAR HOPING: If you love him, hang in there as long as you think there's hope. Don't blame his mother for his actions. He's a free agent and is responsible for his own actions.

DEAR ABBY: Thanks for telling that young mother not to worry if her kids suck their thumbs. I am 12 years old and I still suck my thumb. It makes me feel secure, and it doesn't hurt me or anyone else. It's a lot better than smoking, and I never have to say, "Oh, heavens ... I'm down to my last thumb!"

A SUCKER'S POINT OF VIEW

DEAR ABBY: This is a tough one. A very dear friend of mine (I'll call him Tom) recently had a physical examination and his doctor found a spot on his lung. Tom was a three-pack-a-day man, so the doctor told him he had to quit smoking.

Well, Tom has quit buying cigarettes, but he hasn't quit smoking. Whenever he sees someone with a cigarette he asks for "just one drag." Of course, no one would refuse him. I plead guilty to having given Tom many drags, even though I know I shouldn't.

So how do you say no to a friend when you know he's dying for a cigarette?

GOOD BUDDY

DEAR BUDDY: It won't be easy, but if you really care for Tom, you'll say no. And if that's too difficult for you, never smoke in Tom's presence.

Do you hate to write letters because you don't know what to say? Thank-you notes, sympathy letters, congratulations, how to decline and accept invitations and how to write an interesting letter are included in Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Send $2 and a long, stamped (37 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

FICKLEN ARTHUR HOUSE (1876)
Corner Fourteenth and Charles Streets
Benjamin Franklin Patrick and his wife, Sarah Augusta Galloway, built this Victorian home in 1876 on their Green Mill Farm. In 1901 Louis Chesterfield and Ellen Douglas (Ficklen) Arthur purchased the house and 135 acres, which they named "Glen Arthur." For years the citizens of Greenville have admired the grounds that surround the house. The azaleas, camellias, and flowering trees provide a refreshing break in the developed sections of Fourteenth and Charles Streets. The house will be closed during the tour, but tour participants may enjoy the grounds, plant sale, refreshments, and guitar music.

ST. TIMOTHY'S EPISCOPAL CHURCH (1901-1902)
107 Louis Street, Cherry Oaks
With the consecration of St. Timothy's on September 13, 1901, the 90-member congregation, a mission of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, brought to life a church building that had not been used for fifteen years. Constructed in Ayden through the efforts of the Rev. John H. Griffith, Jr. and originally named St. James's Church, the structure was moved to Greenville in May, 1901, and renamed. It features stained glass windows, wainscoting, a vaulted ceiling with exposed beams, and the original pews. At 3:00 p.m. on the day of the tour a concert of Baroque, Classical, and Romantic music will be performed in St. Timothy's sanctuary.

JONES-LEE HOUSE (1890-1898)
805 South Ennis Street
C.T. Munford, a local businessman, bought the property in 1890 and apparently built this two-story Queen Anne style house prior to 1898. Occupants have included John and Minnie Jones and their daughter, Mrs. Walter Lee, who sold the property to the city in 1979. The decorative bargeboard, half-timbers, and scalloped shingles, among other features, qualified the house for the National Register of Historic Places. The present owner, Lily Richardson, restored the house during 1981.

Mother In Prison Creates Problems

By CAROL KLEIN
-ROUEMONT — Many children whose mothers are in prison have behavior problems and experience a high level of fear and guilt, said a well-know critic during a panel discussion held here recently by the Bush Institute for Child and Family Policy.

"Often these children feel responsible for their mother's incarceration and their guilt is heightened because of the stigma and secrecy that surrounds a commitment to a penal institution, explained Marge Woods, a director of the National Council on Crime and Delinquency.

"When visiting the institution," she said, "the children see guards and guns and hear the clang of bars. They fear for their own safety, as well as the safety of their mothers."

The panel "Mothers in Prison" was part of a workshop sponsored by the Bush Institute for Child and Family Policy, a division of the Frank Porter Graham Child Development Center of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and the UNC-CH School of Journalism. Workshops are held each year to share with journalists information on topics of social concern.

Woods was one of five panelists brought together to discuss ways of providing more care and attention for an estimated 250,000 American children whose mothers are behind bars and to explore alternative prison policies and programs.

Other panelists were Charlotte Purvis, a Bush fellow and family life specialist, Jennie Lancaster, assistant superintendent for treatment and programs at N.C. Correctional Center for Women in Raleigh, Pat Lessard, social worker and Kay Vives, a former in-mate at the women's prison.

The panelists discussed the serious side-effects of imprisonment upon the mothers and their children.

Vives, who is active in a number of agencies and programs to improve the criminal justice system, told the journalists that mothers suffer a purgatory of separation.

"I would make it a law," Vives said, "that mothers and children cannot be separated by reason of a mother's incarceration." She said her daughter suffered the trauma of separation at an early age.

Woods said she believed that the vast majority of women should not be incarcerated. "Although they have committed felonies," she said, "it is not true that they are dangerous to society."

She said that many women prisoners are serving time for nonviolent crimes — such as writing bad checks — that they committed to provide for their children.

Her statement was supported by Lancaster, who said that women, unlike men, often commit crimes as an emotional response to their environment.

Case histories show that many women have remained for long periods of time in an abusive marriage, Lancaster said, and they vent their frustration by committing a crime.

She described the typical woman inmate: "She had her first child at 15, dropped out of school and has no job skills, although she may be very capable."

Purvis, who has done policy study interviews and group counseling with incarcerated mothers at Women's Correctional Center said it was difficult for women to lead normal lives following their release, because of society's attitude toward their criminal record.

"Seventy-five years ago," she said, "such women were thought to be possessed by the devil. To some extent, the idea of the 'fallen woman' continues to prevail today."

Purvis said that women receive minimal help during their stay in prison. "Some states have successful programs for women prisoners," she said, "but the programs don't seem to provide an impetus for modeling in other states."

The panelists discussed the need for in-prison vocational training, the teaching of parenting skills and specific policies to meet the women's physical and emotional needs. A major problem, they said, related to the custody of children, many of whom are placed in foster homes or assigned to live with distant relatives without the mother's consent.

Purvis said that prison women often were arbitrarily denied their fundamental right to be mothers. "Because 42 percent of all prisoners are women," she said, "they are thought to represent a small problem, but the consequences of their problems are very great."

The panelists also agreed that in many instances women should be allowed to live independently in halfway houses, or in similar arrangements so that they will be free to learn new skills and find jobs.

Opportunities for women prisoners to prepare for adjustment to community life are not very great, Lancaster said. She said many women coming into prison want to be trained in cosmetology or for higher paying, nontraditional fields such as welding, wiring or construction. But the incentive in prison is to "gain time" for early release by working rather than receiving an education.

In the bleak picture of denial experienced by prison mothers and their children, the panelists pointed to some rays of hope. One is Prison Match, a cooperative nursery school and children's center in a prison in Pleasanton, Calif. Open on weekends and holidays, it provides an opportunity for children, community professionals and inmate mothers to work together to mend family ties and strengthen mother-child relationships.

Among alternative problems and services is one in North Carolina prisons that is geared toward relieving the problems of prison mothers. A support group for new and expectant mothers led by Purvis and Lessard involves nutritional information and the teaching of parenting skills. The mothers are allowed to be with their children regularly in order to promote bonding and a sense of continuity.

Lessard said at the panel that this program in the last 12 months had resulted in an overwhelming cohesiveness between mothers and children.

The support group also provides the mothers with an opportunity to express their ideas about how prison policies and programs might be changed.

A second effort mentioned by panelists is a one-year project called Advocacy for Children of Women Inmates, planned by the Phoenix Organization in Raleigh and directed by Mary Ann Howard. The organization promotes volunteer efforts and serves those involved in the criminal justice system.

Year-Round Apple Pie

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
AP Food Editor

Far be it from me to sing the praises of apple pie or remind cooks that it is still one of America's favorite desserts. Enough has been written on that subject to induce me to leave it strictly alone.

But because I am often asked for my favorite apple pie recipe, here is the one that, at present, I like best. It calls for Granny Smith apples — the great variety that is here all year because nowadays it is grown in the United States and also shipped in from a number of other countries. And the pastry for the pie is made with butter.

YEAR-ROUND APPLE PIE

Butter Pastry, recipe follows

¾ cup sugar
¼ cup all-purpose flour
⅛ teaspoon ground cinnamon

⅛ teaspoon ground nutmeg
6 medium (about 1¼ pounds)

Granny Smith apples
2 tablespoons butter, cut into small pieces

Make up the pastry and refrigerate as directed in the following recipe. On a pastry cloth, with a stockinet-covered rolling pin, roll out half the pastry and line a buttered 9-inch pie plate with it; keep the remaining half of the pastry in the refrigerator. In a large bowl stir together the sugar, flour, cinnamon and nutmeg. Peel the apples, core and slice thin — there should be 6 cups; toss with the sugar mixture; turn into the pastry-lined pie plate; top with the butter.

Roll out the remaining pastry a little larger than the top of the pie plate; place over apples; seal edges well with your fingers — fluting will not hold its shape. Cut 6 to 12 one-inch slits for vents. Cover the edge with a 2- to 3-inch strip of foil. Bake on the rack below center in a preheated 425-degree oven until apples are tender and pastry is browned — 55 minutes.

Remove foil around edge about 20 minutes before the end of the baking period and place a sheet of foil on the lowest rack of the oven to catch any syrup that may bubble over. Serve hot with vanilla ice cream or cheddar cheese.

Butter Pastry: Into 2 cups all-purpose flour, with a pastry blender, cut 1 cup (two ¼-pound sticks) butter until the size of small peas. Sprinkle with 1 tablespoon of water at a time (you'll need about 4 tablespoons altogether) and mix with a fork until the pastry can be pressed into a ball; chill for at least 30 minutes before

Land Is Precious

For many years Pitt Counties have been watching erosion of their precious top soil from farmlands in and around the county. Truly, most of the Coastal Plain area has the same problem. Each year the winds (usually in the spring) whip up and move the dry dirt from fields; and the picture is worsening as fields are made ever larger to accommodate mechanization.

Top soil is just that. It is a relatively thin layer of crop-growing earth covering the clays that lie underneath. Without the top soil, crop productivity would be virtually nil. It has happened.

Each year we lose more of that essential element in farming. We see it taking place.

The advice of the USDA Soil Conservation Service in Greenville is not something to be taken lightly. Hedge rows of trees and brush provide crop protection and land protection. Unless farmers take appropriate measures their crop lands may be of little value to their children or children's children. Agriculture as we know it today would become a memory for this part of North Carolina.

It was unbelievable in the Midwest, too.

A Good Time To Keep Quiet

Eyebrows were raised when Sen. Jesse Helms came up with a statement that Great Britain had violated the Monroe Doctrine when it seized the Falkland Islands in 1832 and thus should now recognize Argentina's sovereignty.

After all, the islands have been British for 149 years and are populated by citizens who firmly want to remain a part of Great Britain. That is the status quo. Thus, wasn't the Argentine takeover an unwarranted act of aggression?

The senator came in for considerable criticism for his surprising comments. The best thing that can be said is that Sen. Helms, being in the responsible position that he is, was talking when he should have been keeping quiet.

THIS AFTERNOON

The Court's Role

By PAUL T. O'CONNOR
RALEIGH — A single mother with several children hasn't received her child support payments for several months. But, because she's afraid of the father, she doesn't ask the courts to force him to pay. That's a common occurrence in North Carolina, a group of legislators say, and they're ready to propose a remedy.

The Committee on the Needs of Women, meeting in the Legislative Building last week, agreed that the burden of chasing delinquent fathers ought to fall on the courts. They're recommending a procedure that would be triggered automatically whenever a father falls behind on his payments.

There are some specifics still to be worked out, but here is how the study committee's recommendations would work: The clerk of court, who now collects child support payments from fathers, would pull all unpaid files after they were delinquent a certain number of days. The clerk would then send the father a letter telling him to pay up within a certain number of days or face immediate court action. Since most child support payments are part of a court order, the delinquent father would be risking a contempt of court citation if he ignored the letter.

The late Rep. Bob Jones of Forest City was one of the leading forces behind this proposal. He was killed in an airplane crash on his way home from the meeting at which details were put together.

As the law reads now, the mother must complain to the court if she wants help collecting from the father, Jones said in an interview. Mothers will often let fathers fall months behind, however, before they seek help from the court, he said. "With this automated system, you eliminate the intimidation or threats of his telling her

"Don't take me to court. This automatically goes out and tells him you're going to pay up or you're going to court."

Franklin Freeman, director of the Administrative Office of the Courts, told the committee that about 80,000 women currently receive child support payments through the courts. Various estimates cited in the meeting say that a minimum of 30 percent of these cases are in the arrears at any one time.

Freeman said it would cost the state about $467,000 a year to administer the committee's recommended program. Jones suggested, and the committee appeared ready to endorse, an administrative charge that brought to court.

The committee also wants to tighten up the law regarding fathers who build up a big debt and then get a judge to cut it down. If a father owes a year's worth of payments, judges will often say he can catch up just by paying part of it. Under the proposal, the judge could not reduce the debt except in the most extreme cases. The judge could decide, however, that the monthly payment is too high and that future payments should be reduced.

That, said Wake County District Attorney Randolph Riley, gives incentive to the father to come into court and to argue that he can't afford the payment. As the system works now, the best way to get his monthly payment reduced is just not to pay for would be levied against delinquent fathers everytime they were late enough to warrant one of the letters. The fee — $5 was mentioned but no vote was taken — would be given to the court system to offset the cost of the program.

Jones said the letter would also cut down on the number of child support delinquencies which end up in court. The letter will shake the fathers into paying, he predicted, before they are

Watch The Anchorman

I'll tell you what I'm frightened about this week. The next big war is not going to be started by two countries, but by an anchorman from one of the major TV networks.

I've been watching all the news shows concerning the Falkland Islands, and I'm getting the feeling that everyone interviewing the leaders involved is pushing the sides into a corner they can't get out of.

This is my nightmare. The anchorman is seated behind his desk and behind him is a large screen. He says to the audience, "In a moment we will be talking to the Argentinian minister of war, Mr. Rodriguez, do you see any way out of this situation, except going to war?"

"Argentina has always said it was willing to negotiate an honorable solution."

"But suppose the British sink one of your ships?"

"Then we will attack them with everything in our arsenal."

"Thank you, sir. And now from London, we have in our nuclear weapons."

"Why not?"

"We prefer not to escalate the war talk any more than it has been already."

"Forgive me for pressing you on this, but are you saying that if Argentina sinks a British aircraft carrier you would not nuke Buenos Aires?"

"We are keeping all our options open."

"Thank you, sir. And now to New York to talk to the Argentinian Ambassador to the United Nations, Mr. Ambassador, as you just heard, the British might use nuclear weapons against your cities, if you don't pull your troops out of the Falkland Islands. How will you respond to such an attack?"

"We doubt if this will happen. But in case it did, we would call on a non-NATO major power to retaliate against the British much closer to their home."

"Obviously you're talking about the Soviet Union. Has your government been in touch with Moscow?"

"I would rather not say at this time."

"Thank you sir. Let's now go to the State Department here in Washington and talk to Undersecretary Robert Dobson. Mr. Dobson, does the State Department have any contingency plans in case the Soviets supply atomic weapons to Argentina?"

"We are working on a peaceful solution to the crisis, and trying to get both sides to sit down and talk to each other."

"I don't think you answered my question. I want to know if the U.S. is willing to go to war with the Soviets, if they introduce their missiles into the Western Hemisphere."

"No comment."

"Thank you, sir. I'm sorry, our time has run out for this evening. Tune in tomorrow

Law School Loses Glow

By MAXWELL GLEN and CODY SHEARER

WASHINGTON & The following is a short, two-scene fable geared for realists of all ages.

Scene I: At a recent political reception here, an intern on leave from college reveals her intentions to attend law school. "I don't know why I'm going, really," she says. "I just don't know what else to do. I know that's a stupid reason...."

Scene II: At a somewhat less glamorous congregation for third-year law students, a Long Island native confesses he's been living on frozen pizza and Quaaludes recently. Three years of hard work for a law degree have yet to land him a job. "I've been a nervous wreck since February," he moans.

While the scenes differ, they're exemplary of a growing melodrama: Despite a record level of law school enrollments, the market for lawyers is shrinking. The "law boom" of the 1970s is over.

Unlike many law students and practicing attorneys, undergraduates may not realize that a legal education is no longer a ticket to the American Dream. Once again, 1981-1982 was a "good season" for the nation's 150 American Bar Association-approved law schools. Applications increased nearly 7 percent. One third of the 120,000 young Americans who applied to law school this year will enroll in September.

Yet when many firms simply reduced the number of fall recruiting visits last year, they sent a chill through the hearts of law school placement officers. Recently it became clear that firms are hiring fewer new attorneys — in some cases almost 30 percent fewer. There have been reports of lay-offs. The New York Times reported April 2 that in-house corporate law officers have often been the first let go by company managers. Ironically, the government which helped spawn so much litigation in the last decade may be responsible for the current bust. In addition to the Reagan administration's reluctance to issue new regulations, a minimalist Justice Department has simply brought fewer private concerns to court. Noting "a dramatic drop" in the federal caseload here, U.S. Circuit Court Judge Patricia M. Wald told the National Law Journal that the slowdown would last "a couple more years."

Yet the lawyer glut isn't necessarily limited to traditionally "recession-proof" Washington. At the ABA headquarters in Chicago, attorney Nancy Slonim noted, "What I have discovered is that hiring is down all over. It hasn't stopped, but it's at lower levels than it historically has been."

Cleveland attorney Carolyn Buller calls her city's market "rough." A year out of Case Western Reserve law school, the 26-year-old told our reporter Michael Duffy that only half her classmates had found jobs befitting their degrees.

"One friend finally got a job, and that was with a public defender," she explained. "Another was laid off after three months, a third took a job clerking at $6.50 an hour, a fourth is waitressing."

In the face of such stories, it would seem wise these days to pursue computer science, geology, or even street vendorship — anything but law. But the crude truism — that three years of contracts and moot court is as good as gold — hasn't lost its appeal.

Of course, there may be certain immutable factors. The "prestige" law schools, for example, seem to endure, if not prosper, during times of

Other Editors Say Paradox In N.C.

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

A paradox exists in the North Carolina employment situation:

The statistics showing a specific level of unemployment in the state can be misleading. Why? Because there are actually jobs available — but nobody skilled enough to fill them.

North Carolina Labor Commissioner John Brooks declares that until people are trained to fill those jobs, the state's jobless rate will remain high.

To train these workers, it is necessary for the state to better use its educational facilities.

The state has a higher percentage of its work force in industry than any other in the country. There is a definite need to utilize some of this know-how, to get it into the classroom so it can benefit others.

Brooks says we're not doing that. There is a shortage of teachers for such training, since people with the skills to train others don't want to leave high-paying industry jobs.

The state apprenticeship program has helped, but it needs to be expanded. Businesses in the program give on-the-job training under the auspices of the Department of Labor, which sets standards and monitors the program.

Almost half of the 2,700 registered apprentices in North Carolina work in construction or a related industry. Areas that have plenty of job openings and desperately need more apprenticeship programs include tool and dye manufacturing, machine and elevator repair and manufacture and industrial hygiene.

In the latter, all the openings in the state of industrial hygienists have never been filled because there are not enough qualified people.

About 400 of these jobs open up each year. It is a wide-open field — if the positions could be matched with personnel.

An effective statewide apprenticeship program would have about 20,000 participants, but the Labor Department would need additional staff members to monitor it.

At the present time, there are about 20,000 jobs just waiting to be filled, but there is no one with the skills to do them. About 95 percent of the unemployed people in the state are unskilled. Give them the skills and the job hunt becomes much easier.

Strength For Today

BASIC CHRISTIAN DOCTRINE

At the center of Christian doctrine stands the doctrine of the Atonement.

What is the Atonement? The word when broken up into syllables explains itself; it is at-one-ment. Atonement is something which brings together persons previously estranged. The Atonement brings together God and man, who have been separated by man's disobedience and sin.

The death of Jesus Christ on the cross broke the power of sin and death for mankind.

Our Lord challenged sin and gladly went to his death rather than yield. His death, therefore, sets forth the perfect submission of a human will to the divine will of God.

When we ask God to forgive our sins and appeal to Jesus' great sacrifice as our right to make that request, the Bible assures us of forgiveness. Then in fellowship with Jesus Christ we begin to participate in the great benefits which his triumph over sin produced.

Fiscal Chaos Worse Than War

By JOHN CUNNIFF

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — One of the major deterrents to a military conflict between Britain and Argentina may be the poor financial condition of the two nations.

Neither can afford a long fight. The British, already practicing economic austerity, would be forced to sacrifice even more, while the Argentines, deeply in debt, might be threatened with bankruptcy.

The impact of the friction already has hurt the two nations. Last week the British pound fell three cents against the U.S. dollar. Argentina, meanwhile, was faced with the urgent necessity of reassuring creditors.

Because of their economic conditions, therefore, it is conceivable the two nations might find patriotic and military enthusiasms dulled, and that negotiations could assume a more important role in strategies.

For this to happen would be no surprise to international bankers, who might claim no great military knowledge but who see economic factors regularly assuming a greater role in international relations.

While the evidence may not be conclusive, some of them are convinced the Soviet Union avoided a direct involvement in the Polish political and economic crisis because of the potential costs to its treasury.

There is speculation also that the less belligerent tone of Fidel Castro toward the United States might involve finances, not just those of Cuba but also of the Soviet Union, which has been forced over the past decade or more to provide Cuba with billions of dollars in aid.

While both countries have dire problems, Argentina's might be worse. Unemployment is 12 percent, inflation 132 percent. Gross national product last year fell 6 percent. The country depends on foreign credit and even in peacetime has had to struggle to pay its debts.

Most estimates place that debt at $34 billion, and the financing of it at several billion dollars a year, a tall order in an economy that is diminishing in size and already plagued by internal problems.

Argentina also lives on exports, especially of grain. Britain has, of course, banned imports from Argentina and has called on other Common Market nations to take similar action, which could diminish Argentina's exports by several hundred million dollars a year.

To date, according to diplomatic sources, the Falklands operation has cost Argentina $500 million. If that is so, Britain's costs are even more, and rising at a daily rate that would present the British with a dilemma, that of determining how to pay for unexpected expenditures when the civilian economy already has been giving its all.

The entire international community also has a financial interest in a peaceful outcome. The British have frozen Argentina's assets in their country, presenting difficulties for Argentina. But Argentina could cause problems for Britain to whom it owes several billion dollars. It could default.

Default is an ominous word to dangle over the web of international finance, particularly in view of existing difficulties about the Polish debt. Break one fragile strand and others could give way too, and the big losers could be Western banks, which hold most of Argentina's debt.

In a sense, therefore, the bigger danger to the world, bigger than a military confrontation, could be the strain on its financial system.

 uncertainty. Harvard, Michigan and Stanford expect law school applications to rise between 8 and 10 percentage points this year. Tulane anticipates a 15 percent increase.

Women are also buffeting the flood of applications. Since the late 1960s, their share of entering enrollments has increased from nearly zero to almost 40 percent. At some point soon the number of aspiring lawyers among women undergraduates will level off, but not until college placement officers offer palatable alternatives to those who, like the woman in our fable, "don't know what else to do."

Indeed, too many young men and women get caught between anachronism and reality. When other options are few or unappealing, acceptance to a law school becomes a security blanket. Moreover, whether one enrolls or not, "I'm applying to law school" simply sounds good. The truth, however, is that neither the application nor the degree is a guaranteed means to success.

When word gets back to college campuses that "Old Faithful" has lost its steam, undergraduates may want to spend some time distinguishing their interest in the law from their own financial ambitions. Any effort by professors to put the legal routine in a realistic light might ease the withdrawal from our addiction to the "juris doctor" option.

Otherwise, we're likely to see many more mini-dramas of false expectations, played by a generation of moneyhungry lemmings scurrying madly toward a mirage.

Leonardo, The Renaissance Man

Leonardo da Vinci, whose 530th birthday will be commemorated tomorrow, was perhaps the most versatile genius of the Renaissance. As an engineer he invented a moveable bridge, a flying machine, a parachute and prototypes of battleships and tanks. As astronomer he stated that the sun did not move. He was also a geologist, physiologist and cartographer. His architectural designs included churches and utopian cities. But Leonardo is best remembered for his art. His best known work is the Mona Lisa. Ironically Madonna Lisa's husband apparently disliked the painting and refused to pay for it. Now it is considered the world's most valuable art work and has been appraised at $100 million.

DO YOU KNOW — What is the title of Leonardo's famous biblical mural?

TUESDAY'S ANSWER — The proposed tax cuts would lower the highest rate from 70% to 50%.

Four Murders Appear To Have Professional Touch

By RICK HAMPSON
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The murders of a federal witness in a diamond company fraud case and three men who tried to help her were linked to the disappearance of another woman and seem to be the work of a professional killer, police say.

The body of Margaret Barbera, 38, was found Tuesday in an alley in Lower Manhattan, police said. Authorities believe she was the same woman who was abducted on a rooftop parking lot on the city's West Side by a man in his 30s who wore a ski mask and drove a white van.

Three CBS technicians who were walking to their cars in the parking lot apparently witnessed the abduction Monday night, then were chased down and shot in the head at close range, police said.

Another CBS employee hid from the killer and saw the shootings.

Chief of Detectives James Sullivan said there was no evidence of organized crime involvement in the case, but said "it's not unknown for organized crime hit men to use .22-caliber guns similar to the gun used in this case."

Miss Barbera, of the New York borough of Queens, and the missing woman, Jenny Sue Chin, 46, of Teaneck, N.J., both worked at Candor Diamond Corp. The business was forced into bankruptcy last year by a creditor who charged its owner, Irwin Margolies, with fraud.

Mrs. Chin, who was a friend of Miss Barbera, disappeared Jan. 5. Her abandoned, blood-stained car was discovered six days later, and a .22-caliber shell casing was found inside.

Ballistics tests conducted Tuesday proved the casing was from the same pistol with which Miss Barbera and the three CBS technicians were slain, Sullivan said.

Mrs. Chin disappeared near Mrs. Barbera's apartment after spending the night with her, authorities said. She was seen being pushed into her car by a man wearing a ski mask.

Miss Barbera's lawyer, James R. Coley, told The New York Times that his client had sought protection from the U.S. Attorney's office but that her request had been refused.

"She was afraid because of the investigation and now five people are dead," Coley was quoted as saying.

The Times also quoted the superintendent in Miss Barbera's apartment building as saying she had recently told him "someone was after her," and had taken steps to make her apartment more secure.

U.S. Attorney John Martin Jr., however, said Miss Barbera "neither asked for nor was given protection," the Daily News reported today.

In a court deposition last November, Margolies' lawyer said his client owned four pistols and once threatened to "kill her (Miss Barbera) or break every bone in her body" because she allegedly took $1 million in diamonds from Candor's safe last summer and demanded $100,000 for their return.

But Detective Richard Chartrand said police did not want Margolies for questioning. "We're not looking at him. Someone else is," he said, referring to federal officials.

Joe Valiquette, an FBI spokesman, said "activities" at Candor were being investigated.

Mrs. Barbera had worked as a comptroller at Candor and Mrs. Chin was her bookkeeper, authorities said.

A document released Tuesday by the U.S. attorney's office said Miss Barbera had admitted on March 29 to participating in a conspiracy to defraud the John P. Maguire Co., a New York finance company which loaned money to Candor and bought its accounts receivable.

The three slain CBS employees were identified as Leo A. Kuranuki, 54, of Great Neck, N.Y., and Edward M. Benford, 55, of Hawthorne, N.Y., both technical services managers, and Robert W. Schulze, 58, a technician, of Clifton, N.J.

"They did what all of us think we might want to do when we see someone in danger and want to help them," Sullivan said. "Unfortunately, the individual had a gun."

The chief said police believe the men saw the gunman shoot at the woman and try to force her into a white van.

As they approached, the gunman asked them, "What did you see?" He then shot one of them at point-blank range in the back of the head.

The others fled, but the gunman pursued and shot the second man in the head about 30 feet from the first victim, then ran down the third man 100 feet further away and shot him in the head as well, Sullivan said.

CBS offered a $25,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the killer.

The man who witnessed the shootings scrambled under a car and escaped the gunman's notice. Sullivan said the witness was under protective custody.

CP&L Files Rate Appeal

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The North Carolina Utilities Commission's Public Staff has filed notice of intent to appeal a 13 percent rate increase granted Carolina Power & Light Co. in December.

That rate hike would amount to a $119.2 million revenue increase, officials said, adding that it would raise the average monthly bill by about $7.

The Public Staff filed the notice of intent to appeal to the North Carolina Court of Appeals, citing 22 issues it said should be reviewed.

Public Staff officials said a major issue was the commission's refusal to consolidate the general rate case with a fuel adjustment case.

Utilities are allowed to request higher or lower rates three times a year to cover fluctuations in their fuel costs. CP&L sought a fuel adjustment increase because of higher costs incurred as a result of nuclear plant shutdowns.

The Public Staff wants the court to overturn the increase and send the case back to the Utilities Commission for reconsideration.

"We're saying the proceedings are so suspect, you've got to do it over," said Karen E. Long, an attorney for the staff.

The only other case the Public Staff has appealed was a CP&L rate increase granted in 1980. That decision is still on appeal.

CP&L spokesman Mac Harris said Tuesday the utility had no comment on the notice of appeal.

Three CBS technicians who were walking to their cars in the parking lot apparently witnessed the abduction Monday night, then were chased down and shot in the head at close range, police said.

Another CBS employee hid from the killer and saw the shootings.

Chief of Detectives James Sullivan said there was no evidence of organized crime involvement in the case, but said "it's not unknown for organized crime hit men to use .22-caliber guns similar to the gun used in this case."

'No Comment' On White House Tales

By JAMES SIMON
Associated Press Writer
BOSTON (AP)—A magazine article describing Richard Nixon as often being drunk in the White House and Henry Kissinger refusing to pass along cables to an inebriated president has prompted no direct public response from the two men.

Nixon "only comments on his own books," Nicholas Ruwe, an aide to the former president, said in New York on Tuesday when asked early today. "I have nothing on that." The Washington Post reported that a State Department spokesman said Haig had no initial comment because he hadn't read the article.

"The drinking was pretty widely known and commented on," Morris said today by telephone from Santa Fe, N.M. "It was most acute during time of crisis... the spring of 1970 before Cambodia. It was commonplace as early as the spring of 1969."

Morris said he and colleagues were concerned about the drinking and that word of it "getting out" might have led the "Soviets to do something silly."

The article in the Atlantic's May issue is drawn from a book on Kissinger that Hersh plans to publish early next year. A second excerpt will be in later this year, according to the Atlantic.

Hersh said he interviewed many former White House officials and obtained access to unpublished records of the Watergate prosecutors in compiling his research. Many of the anecdotes quote second or third-hand sources.

The author noted that many of Nixon's former aides dismissed the significance of his alleged drinking problem by saying Nixon had a notoriously low capacity for alcohol "and would slur his words and appear to be somewhat drunk after one or two highballs."

The magazine story is not the first account of Nixon's alleged drinking. One of the men closest to Nixon in the White House, John D. Ehrlichman, discussed it in his memoirs.

domestic counselor for Nixon, said in his book "Witness to Power" that "it didn't take much alcohol to affect Nixon under the best of circumstances." Phone calls to Ehrlichman at his home in Santa Fe, N.M., went unanswered Tuesday.

Kissinger regarded Haig as "a double-dealer who had ingratiated himself with Nixon and (H.R.) Haldeman and other senior aides by savaging Kissinger behind his back and spying on him," Hersh wrote.

Kissinger would tell associates that Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird "was a megalomaniac who constantly leaked anti-Kissinger stories to the press; and Richard Nixon was a secret drunk of dubious intelligence," the article said.

Laird, reached Tuesday at the Pleasantville, N.Y., office of Reader's Digest where he now works, said he would prefer not to comment until he had read the article. But when read some of the quotes relating to him, he said: "That doesn't sound like Henry. I don't think he'd say something like that."

SEYMOUR HERSH

about The Atlantic Monthly's article on the Nixon White House.

"Dr. Kissinger has not yet seen the article," his personal assistant, Christine Vick, said at Kissinger's Washington office Tuesday. "He cannot comment on what he has not seen. After he has seen it, he believes he will have nothing to add to what he has written in his memoirs."

The 25,000-word article by Seymour M. Hersh, who won a Pulitzer prize for reporting on the My Lai massacre in Vietnam, quoted Roger Morris, a member of the National Security Council staff under Nixon, as saying he often listened in on conversations between Kissinger and "an obviously drunk Nixon."

Hersh wrote: "There were many times when a cable would come in late and Henry would say, 'There's no sense waking him up—he'd be incoherent,' Morris recalls. The young aide was frightened by the idea of a president who was not fully competent after sundown. He often wondered what would happen if the Soviet Union attacked at night."

The article, appearing in the May issue of the Atlantic, said Kissinger used Alexander M. Haig Jr., then his chief aide and now secretary of state, to monitor secret wiretapping of National Security Council aides so that Kissinger could claim he had no direct role in the bugging.

"Wiretapping NSC aides was a dirty business, and everybody in the White House and the FBI knew it," Hersh wrote. "Kissinger's method of handling it was simple: he put Haig in charge."

Haig returned to Washington from London on Tuesday night. At Andrews Air Force Base he briefly spoke to reporters about his Falklands Island peace mission, but said nothing about the Atlantic article.

State Department spokesman Rush Taylor said

BIRD STAMPS — Donnie Ross of the Greenville main Post Office shows off the new birds and flowers stamps placed on sale nationally this morning. The sheet shows 50 different designs, representing the birds and flowers of the 50 states. A total of 600 sheets of the stamps are available in Greenville's two offices, and early sales were "real good." Sheets sell for $10. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

N.C. Will Not Have To Repay

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A state official says because North Carolina has taken steps to correct errors in its food-stamp program, the federal government has decided to waive a $3.5 million penalty for previous mistakes. "We're very happy because this shows that the USDA in Washington basically feels as we do, that the corrective action plan will lower our food stamp error rate and get us back on the right track," said Charles E. McLendon of the state Department of Human Resources.

Wife Is Named To Senate Seat

FOREST CITY, N.C. (AP) — A selection committee charged with filling the 40th District state House seat vacated by the death of state Rep. Robert A. Jones, has picked his wife, Nancy Jones, for the post.

Her selection came Tuesday after the committee, consisting of two representatives from Cleveland, Rutherford and Polk counties, met for about 15 minutes. Those three counties make up the district.

Jones, 50, who was killed April 5 when the light plane he was flying crashed three miles from the Rutherford County Airport.

McLendon says the system will use existing computer equipment to cross-check data on food-stamp recipients.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture already has agreed to waive the penalty after citing North Carolina and 13 other states in January for having a "very high error level" in the food-stamp program.

A state survey, conducted from October 1980 to March 1981, found North Carolina made $6.5 million in overpayments, $5.65 million in payments to ineligible people and $6 million in underpayments.

The statewide average error rate was 15.26 percent, compared to the national figure of 12.65 percent.

McLendon said the new computer system will use information from the state Employment Security Commission and the state Division of Motor Vehicles to help verify information about food-stamp applicants.

He said the system will allow cross-checking of the two areas where food-stamp errors most often occur — recipients' income and personal property.

One county social service official, Edward E. English, food-stamp program coordinator for the Wake Department of Social Services, said he was relieved that local governments would not be required to repay the food-stamp money.

"I'm very relieved because we (the state) have developed a very elaborate corrective plan that we hope will reduce error rates in the future," English said.

There were 19 North Carolina counties identified to have unacceptably high error rates in their food-stamp programs.

City Elects

A Dead Man

POWAY, Calif. (AP) — Voters here re-elected former Mayor Clyde E. Rexrode to a city council seat one day after his death.

Rexrode, 51, the first mayor of this rural community in San Diego County, was the third-leading votegetter Tuesday in the contest for three of the council's five seats.

Mayor Bob Emery said Rexrode's re-election was a triumph for the ex-mayor's slow-growth development philosophy.

"People have just supported a philosophy, despite the tragedy of Monday. This is a real statement," Emery said.

Rexrode died Monday, three days after he was hospitalized for heart problems, was among three incumbents retained. Linda Oravac was the leading vote-getter with 3,395 votes, Mary Shepardson had 3,292 and Rexrode received 2,226.

After Rexrode died, his supporters urged voters to cast ballots for him so council members could have the option of naming a replacement of their choice to the four-year seat.

The council has pushed for a 52,000 ceiling on population.

'FOOLISH MOLAR'

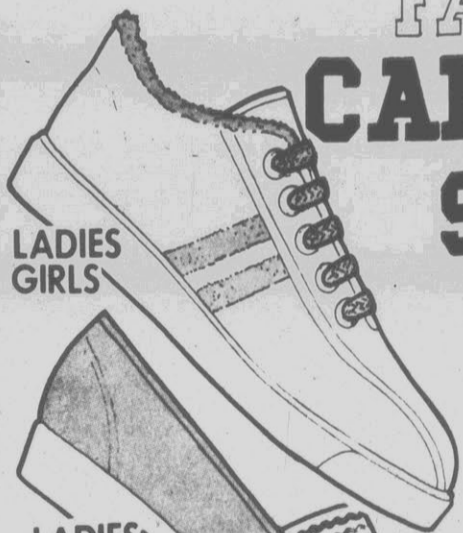

WINTERVILLE — "The Foolish Molar," a dental drama, will be presented by the first grade classes of Mrs. McLawhorn and Mrs. French at W.H. Robinson School on April 16 at 9 p.m.

The school invites parents to attend.

based on the city's water and sewer capacity. Developers and real estate interests had backed Rexrode's pro-growth challengers.

The election was the first since Poway voters approved incorporation in November 1980. Only 37 percent of the voters in this city of 37,000 turned out.

U.S. Says Soviet Helping Argentina Intelligence

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union is providing Argentina with data from satellites and intercepts of radio communications on the movements of the British fleet that is headed toward the Falkland Islands, U.S. officials say.

"They (the Argentines) are getting intelligence from the Soviets," said an official, who did not want to be identified.

Officials also said there were five Soviet ships in the South Atlantic within reach of the Falklands, but there were contradictory accounts from U.S. officials on the kinds of vessels and their location. None of the officials wanted to be identified.

A State Department official said the ships included two Soviet submarines, although another official said he didn't know of any intelligence information that pointed to the presence of Soviet subs.

The official who said there were Soviet submarines did not know their purpose, but thought they were in the area to add to the general "anxiety level." This official said the other three vessels were trawlers outfitted with sophisticated intelligence gear.

Three ships, described by another source as support vessels, were said to be far removed from the Falklands, but the sources did not say where. The Falklands are 250 miles off Argentina's coast.

The sources also said the United States is providing Britain with intelligence information.

ABC News reported Tuesday that the "extensive assistance" the United States is giving British forces includes intelligence reports, satellite communications links, weather forecasting from satellites and jet fuel supplies.

Although the Soviet Union voted in favor of a U.N. Security Council resolution calling on Argentina to withdraw its troops from the Falklands, it has otherwise appeared to side with the Argentines in the dispute.

Pentagon spokesman Henry Catto said "no" when asked whether the United States was concerned about the Soviet naval presence.

But British officials have pointed both publicly and privately to what they consider to be a close relationship between Argentina and the Soviet Union, which they have suggested casts doubt on the wisdom of U.S. neutrality in the Falklands dispute.

Sir Nicholas Henderson, the British ambassador to the United States, said in a television interview earlier this week, "I think you can't underestimate the importance of the Soviet role."

Noting that some people say the United States has to be neutral to avoid pushing Argentina into the arms of the Soviet Union, Henderson said, "It seems that they are in the bear hug already."

"So much for staying neutral down the center of the line," he said, in an obvious reference to Reagan administration statements that the United States would not take sides in the dispute.

A U.S. expert on Soviet affairs said he thought the British view was "exaggerated," but added that the Soviets clearly want to take advantage of a turbulent situation at little risk to themselves. He added there isn't any doubt that there is a growing relationship between Moscow and Buenos Aires.

Argentina and the Soviet Union have a blossoming trade relationship, especially for Argentine grain sales to Moscow, and the Soviet Union is now Argentina's biggest single export customer.

U.S. officials have said Argentina undercut the 1980 U.S. grain embargo against the Soviets by increasing its own grain sales. It ignored repeated U.S. appeals to join in the embargo to show disapproval of the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan.

Argentina and the Soviet Union signed an agreement last week for the Soviets to supply Argentina with about 220 pounds of enriched uranium to be used in its advanced nuclear program. There has been widespread speculation that Argentina is developing the capability to produce nuclear weapons. Argentina also sells meat to the Soviets and the two countries have a joint agreement for exploiting Argentina's shrimp resources. Argentina recently concluded an agreement to buy Soviet oil field equipment. An Argentine news agency had reported last week that Soviet submarines "were expected" in the waters around the Falklands, but Soviet sources in Moscow said the report was wrong. Catto said there are no U.S. vessels in the South Atlantic.

Holland Will

Host Queen

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — There's nothing unusual about Queen Beatrix touring Holland — after all, she's queen of the Netherlands. What's unusual is that she's leaving home to do it.

The queen will visit Holland, Mich., and several other cities in June to help celebrate 200 years of friendship between the United States and the Netherlands.

Amway Corp. Chairman Jay VanAndel, chairman of the Netherlands American Bicentennial Commission, said Monday the monarch's June 25-27 trip to Michigan was planned because of the large number of Dutch-Americans in the area.

The Netherlands-American Bicentennial marks the 200th anniversary of formal diplomatic relations between the two countries. Queen Beatrix arrives in the United States April 19 for a formal state visit, including an address to a joint session of Congress in Washington.

During her trip in June, the queen is expected to visit Detroit, Ann Arbor, Grand Rapids and Holland in Michigan, and Houston, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Atlanta and Chicago.

NEW YORK (AP) - The stock market was mixed today in heavy early trading. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was down 2.09 points to 838.95, and losers were slightly ahead of gainers on the New York Stock Exchange.

Numerous corporations have been reporting depressed first-quarter earnings, but that was widely expected in the recessionary economy.

On Tuesday, the government reported the third monthly decline in manufacturers' inventories, indicating producers were clearing out warehouses and awaiting an improved economy before resuming substantial production.

Electronics and drugs were among the most active. Early prices included Data General up 1/4 at 34 1/2; Hewlett Packard down 1/4 to 42 1/2; Pfizer down 1/2 to 55;

Sees Changes In Revaluating

By The Associated Press
A state legislator says changes in North Carolina's county tax revaluations may be inevitable, and those changes may call for more frequent assessments.

State Rep. Robert L. McAlister, D-Rockingham, one of the chairmen of the legislative study commission on county tax revaluations, says the General Assembly will likely reduce the eight-year period between revaluations.

McAlister said the committee has been collecting information on the problem since last year but hasn't yet begun finding a solution. The panel does not have to present recommendations to the legislature until 1983.

"Of all the people who have testified before our group, only one has said that the revaluation should be left at every eight years," he said.

McAlister said he believes he is part of a growing number of people across the state who believe the property tax system must be changed, because property values change too drastically over such a long period.

William Linzer Mabe, who owns 153 acres in Stokes County, said his father bought the land for $2,400. In 1974 it was valued at $17,220, but the new revaluation, effective this year, increased the value to $60,820.

State law allows counties to have more frequent revaluations, but county officials say they are too expensive. For example, a small county like Stokes County may pay more than $180,000 for a revaluation.

A horizontal revaluation every four years, allowing counties to adjust appraisals either up or down to correspond with inflation by using a percentage, is another option under existing state law.

State and county officials say that procedure would be expensive and would fail to solve the problems. Few

Charged In Kidnapping

ELIZABETHTOWN, N.C. (AP) - Bladen County authorities have charged a man with two counts of first-degree murder in the deaths of two young girls he allegedly kidnapped Monday.

Charges were filed late Tuesday against Tony Ginor Sampson, 21, of Clinton, according to Sheriff Earl Storms. He said Magistrate C.D. Gore signed the murder warrants after an autopsy report showed the two girls had died of drowning.

Authorities said Sampson led them to the area Tuesday morning. Searchers found the bodies of April Devane, 2, and her sister, Regina, 3, about 7 a.m. in shallow graves about nine feet apart off a logging road five miles north of White Lake.

Storms said some documents listed the spelling of the victims' and mother's last name as Devone.

Sampson was arrested Monday and charged with kidnapping after he was found in an automobile trunk at his parents' Clinton home. Police also charged him with auto larceny, communicating a threat, damage to personal property and threatening to bomb the residence from which the girls were taken.

Retha Devane, the girls' mother, told deputies she had an argument with Sampson on Monday before he took her car and children, Storms said.

Money Given To Hospital

Some $1,571.48 was donated to Pitt County Memorial Hospital as a direct result of radiothon conducted by WNCT radio last Friday, hospital public relations director Craig Quick says.

"WNCT manager Henry Ambertson just called and volunteered to do the radiothon for us," Quick said. "He invited department managers to take part and recruited a lot of volunteers, many from here in the hospital."

"There were people making three telephone lines and calls came in, not only from Pitt County, but from as far away as Jacksonville and Harker's Island. And some of the advertisers were from as far away as the Morehead City area. We were just overwhelmed by the fine support from throughout the region that PCMH serves. We owe WNCT and everyone who helped in any way a tremendous thank you."

Roger Williams blasted two home runs, while Gordon Douglas and Tom Buie each had one — the latter a grand slam — as Rose High School pounded D.H. Conley, 12-4, in the championship game of the Pitt Easter Tournament last night.

Earlier in the day, New Bern beat Washington, 9-3, for fifth place, while Kinston took Farmville Central, 9-0, in the game for third place.

Rose rushed out to a 5-0 lead in the contest before Douglas got himself into trouble with walks and saw Conley rally in the fifth to close the gap to 5-4. But Buie came back with his grand-slam in the sixth to wrap it up for the Rampants, who added three more in the seventh.

For Douglas, who won his sixth against no losses, it was not one of his better outings. He allowed three hits, walked seven and struck out a like number.

Nevertheless, both he and teammate Roger Williams were named as the co-Most Valuable Players of the tournament.

Joining them on the all-tournament team were Sammy Hodges and Buie from Rose; Wesley Smith and Doug McRoy of Conley; Nat Norris of Farmville Central; Jeff Jenkins of Kinston; Dean Adams of New Bern and Vance Morris of Washington.

The Rose power proved to be the difference in the game, as nine of the 12 Rose runs were scored on homers. Rose also added a triple and two doubles.

"I believe they hit the ball a little better than they normally do," Conley coach Ritchie Wynns said.

And Coach Ronald Vincent of Rose didn't argue with him one bit. "I was very pleased with the way we swung the bats," he offered. "Conley did make some fine defensive plays too."

Vincent singled out one play, in the fourth inning that saved a run. With two away and a runner on third, Buie sent a line drive into left that Greg Toler made a diving, rolling catch of to end the inning.

"You'll never see a better high school defensive play than that," Vincent said. Wynns called it a major league play.

"We've been plagued by injuries, and our second starting pitcher has a sprained ankle," Wynns said. "(Roy) Lassiter was hurting and we didn't want to start him, and when he came in he went as far as he could."

While feeling Douglas wasn't as sharp as usual, Wynns said that the Vikings looked at a lot of strikes, too. "Maybe the fact that he was off kept us off stride."

"Gordon was a little wilder than usual," Vincent said. "I think maybe he was trying to throw the ball too hard."

Vincent praised the fielding of second baseman Mont

Carter and first baseman Bill Kittrell.

Rose opened the scoring in the first inning, getting a trio of runs. With one down, Carter doubled and moved up on an out, scoring on a passed ball. Williams followed with a walk and Douglas smashed the ball out of the park in left for a two-run homer and a 3-0 lead.

Rose increased that to 5-0 in the third. Hodges reached on an error and Williams followed with his first homer of the evening.

Conley, which had had several threats in the first four innings, finally struck in the fifth, helped along by Douglas' inability to find the plate. he walked Jimmy Kaler and with one down, Lassiter reached on an infield hit. Doug McRoy walked, loading the bases, and Dixon Page drew another, forcing in Kaler. Chris Buck grounded out, but that brought in Lassiter, and a single by Smith scored both McRoy and Page.

That cut the lead to 5-4 and gave the Vikings hopes of pulling it out. But from there on out, Douglas bore down and no other Vikes reached base in the final two innings.

The Rampants, meanwhile, jumped on the Vikes for four more in the sixth, wrapping up the win. Crowell Pope got an infield hit and Randy Warren reached on a fielder's choice. Kittrell was safe on an error, loading the bases, and with two away, Buie lofted a towering drive over the fence in left for the grand-slam homer, running the score to 9-4.

Rose added three more in the seventh. Williams opened the frame with his second homer, making it 10-4. With one down, Pope singled and courtesy runner Jeff Wilson scored on Terry Smith's triple to right. Smith then scored on a wild pitch, winding up the scoring.

Carter, Williams, Douglas, Pope and Warren each had two hits for Rose, while Lassiter had a pair for Conley.

The win kept Rose unbeaten in 12 games, while Conley drops to 4-7 on the year.

The Rampants return to action Tuesday, traveling to Wilson Pike, while Conley travels to White Oak.

Jaycees Boys Home Game Cancelled

Officials Say Not Likely To Be Revived

A Staff Report

The North Carolina Jaycee-sponsored Boys Home All-Star football game, played in Greenville for 17 of its 19 years, has been cancelled this year and it appears unlikely that it will be revived.

"It was just not economically feasible for us," Jaycee executive president Jerry Wall said in a telephone interview from his Asheboro office. "The last two, three years, maybe more, we've not been making money off it."

"It came down to an economic thing," Wall said. "We felt like we could produce more money for the Boys Home Cottage in other areas."

The proceeds of the game went to support the Jaycee Cottage at the Boys Home at Lake Waccamaw for disadvantaged boys.

Wall said the Jaycee Board of Directors met and went over the "facts and figures" and decided to cancel the game. "The statewide interest was not as good as it could have been — or, perhaps, should have been," Wall said. "It was just a lot of things, but our (the Jaycees') enthusiasm had waned a little bit."

The game's end appears final. Both Wall and Greenville Jaycee President Jerry Cox indicated the game would not be revived. "It's our understanding — and I'm saying it is only our understanding — that the (N.C.) High School Athletic Association won't allow us to come back with the game later," Wall said.

Charles Adams, assistant director of the N.C. High School Athletic Association, confirmed this morning that chances of the game being revived are not good.

"They (the Jaycees) would have the right to come before the board," Adams said. "But once an all-star game is cancelled it would be hard to get it back."

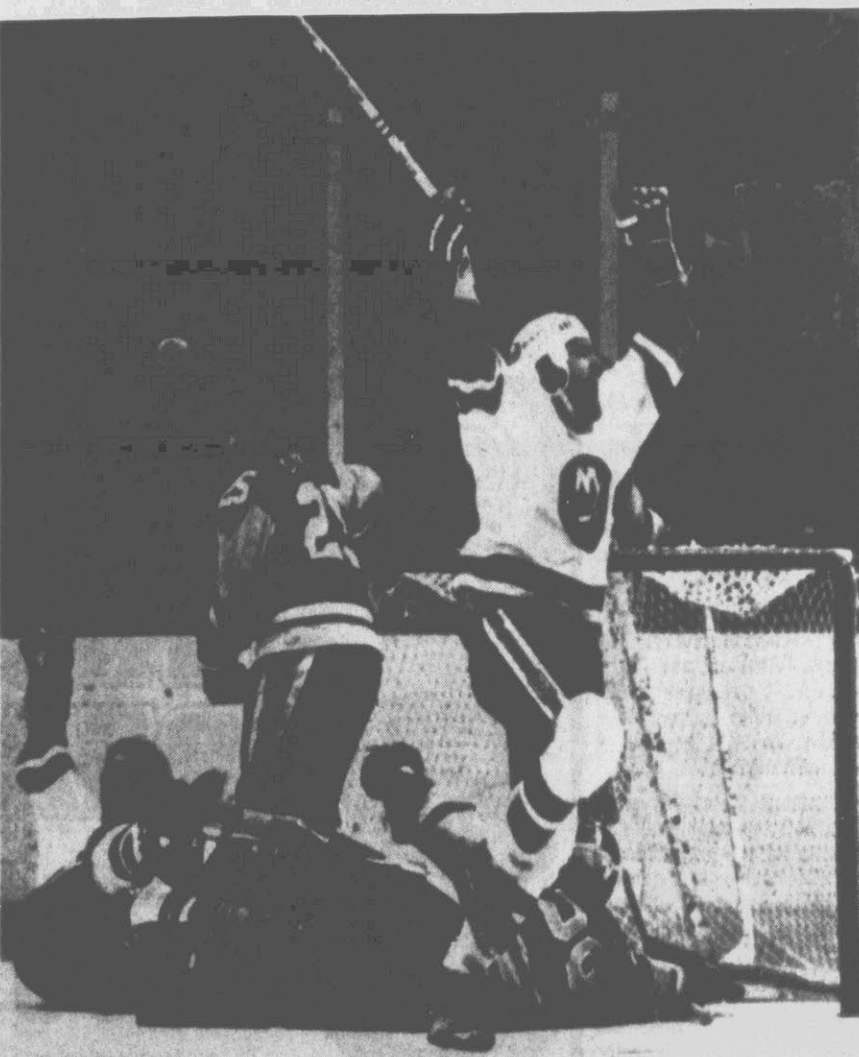

The cancellation marks the first time in 20 years the all-star game will not be played. In all but two of those seasons, Greenville has been the home for the annual summer all-star clash.

By one report, the game drew a reported 120,000 fans total during its 19 years in existence.

The game never drew more than 9,300 fans. Five games were seen by less than 4,000 fans, including one which drew a discouraging 2,100. All figures are estimates and were perhaps even lower than those announced.

Asked if the Jaycees had thought of moving the game's site, Wall said: "We did that a couple years back when we moved it to Raleigh. But it was basically the same situation."

"Nobody wanted to do it in our west chapters and we felt two years ago that Raleigh was as good a draw as we could get and it didn't fly."

Hunt Slaps A-G To Win Tourney

WILSON — Pitcher Brent Pope slapped a two-run single to key a three-run third that helped lift Wilson Hunt to a 5-2 victory over Ayden-Grifton Tuesday night in the title game of the Wilson Breakfast Optimist Easter Tournament.

Greene Central captured third place with a 5-2 win over Wilson Fike earlier on Tuesday.

The win was Hunt's seventh straight and upped the Warriors record to 10-1 on the year. Ayden-Grifton, which had won five straight going into the game, is now 9-5.

Hunt shortstop Christy Rodri was named the tournament's most valuable player. A-G pitcher Tyrone Gay was named to the all-tournament team. Gay was the only Charger on the team.

Hunt led, 1-0, after the first inning and then upped its lead to 4-0 in the third. Rodri singled home Charlie Chatman and then, with the bases loaded, Pope stroked his single off reliever Terry Garrett to score Scott Barnes and John Logan.

Garrett came on in the third after starter Doug Coley walked a man to load the bases. Coley was tagged with the loss, his second in five decisions. He also gave up three earned runs — the first earned runs of the year for him. Going into the game, Coley led the ECC in ERA with a 0.00 mark.

Ayden-Grifton cut the gap to 4-1 in the fifth when Terry Locust doubled home Bernard Ricciarelli. Ricciarelli singled to open the inning and went to second on Tyrone Gay's single.

The Warriors got that run back in the sixth to make it 5-1. Ayden-Grifton's only other run came in the seventh when Terry Locust singled home Chris Strickland.

Ayden-Grifton was led by Locust, who was three for three with a double and two runs batted in. Freshman Jackie Conway was one for one with a double. Rodri and Logan were two for four for Wilson.

Ayden-Grifton returns to action Saturday night (8 p.m.) when the Chargers play host to Roanoke.

Kinston Blanks Jags, 9-0

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Hunter Messick led off the third inning with a solo home run and that opened the flood gates as Kinston went on to score six runs in the inning and eventually gain a 9-0 victory over Farmville Central in the consolation game of the Pitt Easter Baseball Tournament last night.

Earlier in the afternoon, New Bern downed Washington, 9-3, to capture fifth place in the event, while Rose gained a 12-4 win over D.H. Conley in the title contest later in the evening.

Farmville Central, which threatened several times, but could never come up with a run-producing play, got only five hits off the hurling of Viking Rod Brown, who earned his first decision of the year in the win. He walked two and struck out three along the way.

Farmville had runners in scoring position in the first, second, fourth, fifth and sixth innings, but did nothing with them. In the first, the lead runner was cut down on an inning-ending fielder's choice, while in the second, a two-out strikeout with a runner on third ended another threat. In the fourth, the lead runner was picked off second for the third out, and in the fifth, another was left standing on second. A double play helped kill a rally in the sixth, and that was followed by a double by Billy Godley, who remained at second for the final out.

"I'm a little disappointed," Farmville coach Bill Davis said. "We didn't play as well as I had anticipated. I really don't know why. We played pretty good against Rose (Monday in the semifinals), except for the defense, and maybe we were kind of flat tonight."

Davis admitted that Kinston's third inning outburst took the wind out of the Jaguar sails. Kinston banged out six hits during the frame, but was also helped along by four Farmville errors.

"(Bobby) Carraway (Farmville pitcher) wasn't as sharp as usual. His arm was a little stiff; that's the reason I took him out (in the third inning). (Nat) Norris did a pretty good job in relief."

Defense, however, was the downfall of the Jaguars as they made a total of six errors in the game. "We have to improve on our defense if we are to be a winner. We're swinging the bats well and hustling, but we're just making too many errors. We're real young and we made mistakes, but we will get better."

Farmville was able to overcome mistakes early, holding Kinston in check the first two innings despite putting runners on. In the second, a Viking was thrown out at the plate trying to score on a potential wild pitch — the third out of the inning.

But in the third, it all blew up in the faces of the Jaguars.

Messick led off the inning with a homer to left, staking Kinston to a 1-0 lead.

But the Vikings weren't through there.

Paul Beamon reached on an infield single and moved to third when a pickoff attempt was in the dirt and rolled all the way to the fence. Paul Mitchell produced a run-scoring single to right, and Jeff Jenkins reached on an error. Tony Grady singled in Mitchell and advanced when the fielder had trouble coming up with the ball. Jeff Hendricks then singled in Jenkins and Grady, moving up on the throw home and taking third on a fly out.

Hendricks was then thrown out at the plate when Brown reached on a fielder's choice, and courtesy runner Roland Banks moved up on a wild pitch, scoring on Vernon Byrd's single to right. When the ball went past the fielder, Byrd raced on to third, but the rally was finally killed there, although a walk and a hit batsman loaded the bases before Norris finally came on to get the final out of the inning.

Kinston added one in the fifth. Brown led off with a single and Banks, back in again, stole second and took third on a passed ball. Beamon's single to center brought Banks in.

The final two scored in the seventh. Donny Burkette doubled and Harold Fleming came in as a pinch-runner, scoring on Brown's single to right. Courtesy runner Mark Signorelli moved up on another error on a pickoff try, and Beamon's single to center, scored him with the final run of the day.

Beamon led the Kinston hitting with three, while Hendricks and Brown each had two. No one had more than one for Farmville.

Kinston is now 7-6 on the year, while Farmville dips to Bullets Whip Milwaukee; Warriors Edge Lakers

By The Associated Press
The mangling of the guards finally caught up with the Milwaukee Bucks.

The Bucks, trying to keep up with Philadelphia so they can have a homecourt advantage if they have to play the 76ers in the playoffs, had been playing well despite injuries to guards Junior Bridgeman, Quinn Buckner and Brian Winters.

But the Washington Bullets, also looking for a homecourt edge in the playoffs, took advantage of the Bucks' weakness for a 109-99 victory Tuesday night in a National Basketball Association game.

"Defensively, we pressured their guards by picking them up at halfcourt," Bullets guard John Lucas said. "On offense, we had a big advantage in speed. They really miss Junior, Quinn and Winters. They must be a great team to still be in most games without them."

Don Collins, a 6-foot-6 guard, led Washington's assault on Milwaukee's backcourt with a career-high 32 points, sinking 15 of 20 shots, many of them breakaway layups.

"We were getting good rebounding from our big men, and I was just getting the jump on their guards on the outlet passes," Collins said.

Warriors 106, Lakers 101
Larry Smith's layup with 1:22 remaining put Golden State ahead for good, and the Warriors moved into a tie with Denver and Phoenix for the final two spots in the Western Conference playoff race.

Los Angeles center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, who led the Lakers with 27 points, passed the 28,000 point plateau in scoring during the game. Teammate Jamaal Wilkes added 22 points for Los Angeles.

Joe Barry Carroll led all scorers with 29 for the Warriors.

Earvin "Magic" Johnson became the third player in NBA history to get 700 assists and 700 rebounds in a season. Wilt Chamberlain and Oscar Robertson were the others.

Spurs 144, Nuggets 137
George Gervin scored 39 points and grabbed a career-high 18 rebounds and Mike Bratz keyed a late rally to lead San Antonio over Denver.

Bratz had 10 of his 14 points in the final period as the Spurs took a three-game lead over the Nuggets and maintained a two-game edge over Houston in the Midwest Division.

San Antonio led 75-61 at halftime, but the Nuggets, who got 35 points from Dan Issel, outscored the Spurs 48-28 in the third period to take a six-point lead going into the fourth quarter.

Sonics 88, Blazers 86
James Donaldson hit a pair of free throws with one second left to lift Seattle past Portland, which fell three games behind a playoff berth with just three games to play.

Jack Sikma led the Sonics with 22 points and 21 rebounds.

Rockets 99, Kings 95
Mike Dunleavy's three-point goal with four minutes left sparked Houston over Kansas City, keeping alive the Rockets' hopes to catch first-place San Antonio in the Midwest Division.

Dunleavy's long basket, which tied the score 87-87, came in the midst of a 13-0 run by the Rockets that gave them a 93-87 lead.

Elvin Hayes led the Rockets with 26 points and Moses Malone added 23, while Ernie Grunfeld had 23 for Kansas City.

Suns 105, Clippers 94
Dennis Johnson scored 13 of his 26 points in the first quarter as Phoenix beat San Diego, which lost for the 19th straight time.

The Clippers, 16-65, are one game shy of the all-time NBA consecutive loss mark of 20, set by the Philadelphia 76ers in the 1970-71 season. San Diego can tie that mark Thursday night when they close out their season against Portland.

Hawks 119, Cavaliers 111
Dan Roundfield and Mike Glenn each scored 26 points as Atlanta stayed tied with New Jersey for fifth place in the Eastern Conference, one game behind the Bullets, by handing Cleveland its 16th straight defeat, a club record.

The Cavaliers got 27 points from Cliff Robinson and 21 from Ron Brewer.

76ers 93, Pacers 89
Bobby Jones and Lionel Hollins each scored 14 points as Philadelphia defeated Indiana without Julius Erving, who had the flu.

Billy Knight, who led Indiana with 20 points, scored 14 of 18 consecutive points for the Pacers as they turned a 71-59 deficit into a 77-71 lead. But a 16-4 spurt by the 76ers put them back ahead.

Nets 104, Knicks 102
Ray Williams scored 12 of his game-high 37 points in the third quarter to lead New Jersey past New York.

Michael Ray Richardson led the Knicks with 25 points.

Bulls 120, Celtics 115
Ronnie Lester hit 12 consecutive free throws in the last 3½ minutes and Dwight Jones hit five baskets down the stretch to lead Chicago past Atlantic Division champion Boston.

The Bulls won only their second game in their last 10 outings, while the Celtics suffered their third loss in 27 games.

Larry Bird led all scorers with 35 points for Boston, which cut a 16-point deficit to three with less than a minute to play.

Gardner-Webb Signs A-G's Greg Jackson

LITTLEFIELD — Gregory Bernard Jackson of Ayden-Grifton High School has signed a football grant-in-aid with Gardner-Webb College in Boiling Springs.

Jackson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert Jackson of Grifton, was a three-year starter for Ayden-Grifton, and was selected to the all-conference and all-area teams for his last two years.

The 6-1, 194-pound fullback served as co-captain of this year's team, which finished in a three-way tie for the Eastern Carolina Conference championship, won a coin toss for the Division I playoffs, and went on to the Eastern Finals of the 3-A playoffs before losing to eventual state champion Burlington Williams.

He led the Chargers in rushing with over 1,300 yards this past season.

Gardner-Webb is coached by Tom Moore.

Royals' Rally Sinks Palmer, O's

By The Associated Press
Hal McRae couldn't shake that feeling that maybe his playing days were drawing to a close.

A .154 batting average can do that to you.

"The older you get, the harder it is to catch up," said Kansas City's 35-year-old designated hitter. "People have a tendency to write you off and say that you're done. And you have to think about it when you're not swinging the bat well and you're not seeing the ball well."

after their 10-inning 9-8 squeaker against Cleveland.

The Brewers have scored 40 runs in their first four games — but their pitchers have given up 20 runs. So while the Milwaukee batting average is .325, its earned-run average is 4.78.

Milwaukee broke an 8-8 tie in the top of the 10th when Paul Molitor drilled tripled and Charlie Moore singled. Rollie Fingers shut out the Indians over the final 31-3 innings. Robin Yount drove in three runs for the Brewers.

A's 8, Twins 3
Two home runs by Danny Meyer and one apiece by Davey Lopes and Jim Spencer in the Metrodome carried the A's past Minnesota.

Meyer's slo shot and Lopes' two-run jolt came in the third and Spencer connected leading off the sixth, all those homers coming off Bobby Castillo. He was replaced by Terry Felton after giving up Spencer's homer, then Felton gave up Meyer's second homer leading off the seventh.

"I didn't hit my first home run until September last year," said Meyer. "It feels all right."

Rookies Kent Hrbek and Randy Johnson hit solo homers for the Twins.

Rams Win, DHC Beaten

SNOW HILL — Sharon Suggs punched two two-run home runs and Andre Dixon added a third to lead Greene Central to a 23-15 win over New Bern Tuesday in the Greene Central Softball Invitational Tournament.

The victory gave the Lady Rams third place in the two-day tournament. North Lenoir defeated Charles B. Aycock, 5-4, Tuesday for the tournament title. In the battle for fifth place, Plymouth defeated D.H. Conley, 8-3, while in the seventh place game Northern Nash outscored Smithfield Selma, 10-8.

Both Suggs and Dixon hit two-run home runs in the first to give the Lady Rams a 4-0 lead. New Bern, however, rallied to for nine runs in the home half of the first to take a 9-4 lead.

New Bern upped its lead to 14-7 in the third. But the Lady Rams scored twice in the fourth to close it to 14-9 and then exploded for nine runs in the fifth, keyed by Suggs' second home run of the afternoon, to take an 18-14 lead. Sylvia Swinson had a two-run home run in the fifth.

Greene Central, now 10-1 overall, added three runs in the sixth and one in the seventh. The Lady Bears' final run came in the bottom of the sixth.

Cyndi Hicks was four for five with a double to lead the Lady Rams in hitting. Suggs and Dixon were both three for five. With two hits for Greene Central were Swinson, Jackie Holmes, Lisa Radford, Gail Carmon, Cindy Meadows.

SNOW HILL — D.H. Conley may not want to play another game in the Greene Central Softball Invitational.

The Valkyries entered the two-day tournament unbeaten after nine games but lost twice, including an 8-3 defeat at the hands of Plymouth last night to finish sixth.

North Lenoir defeated Charles B. Aycock, 5-4, for the title. Greene Central was third with a 23-15 win over New Bern Tuesday.

After a scoreless first inning, Plymouth went ahead with a run in the second and then scored twice more in the third to make it 3-0. The lead ballooned to 8-0 with a five-run fourth.

Conley, now 9-2, scored his first run of the game in the sixth and added two more in the seventh, but it was far from enough.

Sherri Waters was two for three for DHC. Lori Kandrotas and Karen Barrett each had two hits in four at bats for DHC.

But what he saw from Jim Palmer and Sammy Stewart, he liked.

When the two Baltimore pitchers finished working Tuesday night, McRae had been on base four times with two walks, a single and a run-scoring double, and the Royals had a 6-5 victory.

Palmer took a two-hitter and a 5-0 lead into the fifth. Before it was over, McRae had his RBI-double, the Royals had five runs and Palmer was gone.

"Every foolish thought comes to your mind when you're in your mid-30s and you're not going well," he said. "I like to keep reminding myself every day that I can still play. And it feels good to go out and do it."

Stewart, who replaced Palmer, gave up Amos Otis' RBI-single in the sixth that gave reliever Dave Frost, making his Kansas City debut, the victory.

Brewers 9, Indians 8
If Milwaukee's batters were facing Milwaukee's pitchers, there's no telling how many runs the Brewers would score.

"I hope we can get eight runs or so sometimes and not always have to sweat it out," Manager Bob Rodgers said

Yankees 6, Rangers 3
Mike Morgan, who was 2-13 in parts of two seasons in Oakland, wasn't all that hot in his debut for the New York Yankees — eight hits allowed in 6 1-3 seasons — but some hot bats and limber arms gave him a victory over Texas.

Homers by Lou Piniella and Rick Cerone and solid relief by George Frazier and Rich Gossage — the Goose struck out three of the four batters he faced en route to the save — beat the Rangers.

"I didn't have my good stuff," Morgan admitted, "and I was afraid to really cut loose in the early innings. And then I just got tired."

Tigers 4, Blue Jays 2
Toronto relief pitcher Dale Murray didn't do all that badly throwing toward the plate. But when he tried to throw in the opposite direction, it cost the Blue Jays two runs and the game.

He pitched two innings of one-hit ball against Detroit. But after the only hit, John Wockenfuss' leadoff single with the score tied 2-2 in the eighth, Murray picked up Lou Whitaker's bunt and, trying for the force at second, threw the ball into the outfield. It rolled to the left-center field wall and both Wockenfuss and Whitaker scored.

Knights Slip Past Wake Christian

RALEIGH — David Hollingsworth's two-run home run in the fourth inning brought Greenville Christian from a run behind and helped carry the Knights past Wake Christian, 9-6, Tuesday.

The Knights led, 5-2, after two innings, but Wake rallied for four runs to carry a 6-5 lead into the fourth.

Chris Harris walked to open the top of the fourth and Hollingsworth clouted his homer to give GCA a 7-6 lead. The Knights upped their lead to 9-6 in the sixth inning when Hollingsworth doubled inning and scored on John Parnell's home run.

Parnell was three for four for GCA while Daren O'Brien was two for three and Hollingsworth two for five.

Wake led, 1-0, after the first inning but the Knights scored five runs in the second to take a 5-1 lead. Joseph Sasser and Parnell each singled in two runs in the inning.

Wake cut it to 5-2 in the bottom of the inning and then took the lead with a four-run outburst in the third.

Eagles Score 8 In Sixth For 8-6 Win

Northeastern Rallies Past Tigers

ROBERSONVILLE — Northeastern exploded for eight runs in the sixth inning to erase a six-run deficit and take a 8-6 victory over Williamston Tuesday in the Roanoke Easter Tournament.

The Tigers face Plymouth, loser to Tabor City in the other game, in the consolation game today. Tabor City and Northeastern play for the championship. Also, North Pitt downed Roanoke, 4-1, in the losers' bracket game for fifth place.

Williamston led, 6-0, going into the top of the sixth and appeared headed for the victory. But the Eagles used four walks and two errors by the Tigers and a two-run double by Monte Hooker to score eight runs and take the lead.

Neither team scored again as the Tigers suffered their fourth loss in seven outings this season.

Williamston jumped out to a 2-0 lead in the first and increased its lead to 5-0 in the second.

Donnell Griffin reached on an error and Gray Thomas walked to open the second. Both scored on Tim Hines single. Hines later scored when a throw to second on an attempted pickoff went into centerfield.

The Tigers extended their lead to 6-0 one inning later when Thomas singled home Sterling Mizelle. Mizelle walked to open the inning and went to second on Griffin's single.

It stayed that way as

Braves Win Again; Mets Beat Carlton

By The Associated Press

Steve Carlton has won 262 games. He has pitched six one-hitters, a National League record. He is one of only four pitchers to win three Cy Young Awards. He has struck out more batters than any left-hander in major league history. He has won 20 or more games five times.

Imagine what he might accomplish if he never had to face the New York Mets.

Carlton has made two starts this season, both against the Mets, both losses. The latest one was Tuesday by a 5-2 score and dropped Carlton's career mark against the Mets to 25-30. The Cincinnati Reds are the only other team with an advantage (18-9) over Carlton.

Pat Corrales, in his first year as manager of the Phillies, was at a loss to explain Carlton's troubles against the Mets, who beat him 4-3 in a 1969 game in which he struck out 19 batters and beat him last Sept. 16 on John Stearns' only home run of the year.

didn't hit it that well — just well enough."

"His (Carlton's) stuff was good," said Corrales. "He just got tagged by Kingman, and Kingman can beat any pitcher."

The Phillies also lost star third baseman Mike Schmidt, the NL's Most Valuable Player the last two years, for at least 10 days when he tore a muscle on the left side of his rib cage.

Braves 8, Reds 5

Bruce Benedict's two-run single in the seventh inning snapped a tie and sparked the Braves to their best start since the club began keeping records in 1930 when it was located in Boston. Bob Horner's double off reliever Jim Kern following a walk to Brett Butler tied the game. Rufino Linares singled and Dale Murphy walked to load the bases before Benedict singled off Charlie Leibrandt for a 7-5 lead. Murphy hit a three-run homer in the fourth to start the scoring.

"It was a little quiet in the dugout for a while. Then they started picking each other up," said Braves' Manager Joe Torre. "We've been a little spoiled. We've been getting great pitching. Although there have been no runaways, we had been ahead. Tonight, we fell behind in a ballpark that's tough to come back in, and we came back."

Dodgers 9, Astros 5

Los Angeles got things started on run-scoring singles from Steve Garvey and Steve Yeager and a sacrifice fly by Ron Cey in the first inning. Dusty Baker hit a two-run homer off loser Bob Knepper in the second. The Dodgers added two runs in the seventh off Vern Rühle on a throwing error by catcher Alan Ashby and Bill Russell's grounder. Jorge Orta and Mike Scioscia hit sacrifice flies in the eighth and ninth.

respectively, for insurance runs.

Cardinals 4, Cubs 3

Ozzie Smith's second major league homer and first since 1978 leading off the top of the ninth proved to be the winning run. That made it 4-2 and the Cubs scored a run in the bottom of the ninth before St. Louis relief ace Bruce Sutter struck out Keith Moreland and retired Gary Woods on a grounder after Chicago loaded the bases on an error by shortstop Smith on a potential game-ending double play ball.

"I'm going to make mistakes like everybody else," said Smith, who has been to bat 2,263 times in the majors. "I'm not a home run hitter. I only weigh 155 pounds and I'm not looking for the fences, but those things will happen."

Giants 3, Padres 2

Rookie Alan Fowlkes pitched six strong innings for his first major league victory and veteran Reggie Smith hit a tie-breaking two-run double as San Francisco won its home opener. Smith, booed lustily by Giants fans when he played with the Dodgers, was cheered by a crowd of 40,527 after breaking a 1-1 tie with his third-inning double.

"I heard a few boos, but that was to be expected," said Smith, who went into the stands after a Giants fan during a game at Candlestick Park last season. "I helped beat the Giants in several games, but if they are really Giants fans, they realize that I'm a Giant now and will be trying to do as well for them as I did against them."

ROBERSONVILLE — North Pitt High School pushed over a pair of runs in the first inning and recorded a 4-1 victory over hosting Roanoke High School in the Roanoke Easter Baseball Tournament yesterday.

The game was for fifth place in the six-team tournament.

In the winners' bracket of the tournament, Northeastern downed Williamston, 8-6, while Tabor City downed Plymouth in the other game. Plymouth and Williamston meet today for the consolation title, while Tabor City and Northeastern collide for the championship.

North Pitt scored first, getting a pair in the first inning. With one out, Greg Briley reached on an error and Daniel Keel walked. Jay Hines reached on a fielder's choice, scoring Briley. Kenneth Whitehurst walked and a wild pitch scored Keel.

In the second, Roanoke came up with its only run of the game. Dalton Everett singled and stole second. After taking third on an out, he scored on Darius Hudgins' sacrifice fly.

North Pitt added single runs in the fifth and sixth. In the fifth, Hines doubled with two away and moved to third on an error on the play. He scored on Whitehurst's single.

The sixth saw the final run score. Michael Brown reached on an error, stole second and Briley walked. Keel also walked and a walk to Hines forced in Brown.

Everett led the Roanoke hitting with two and was the lone player with more than one in the game.

North Pitt is now 5-6 on the year and plays host to SouthWest Edgecombe on Tuesday. Roanoke, 4-6, travels to Ayden-Grifton on Saturday.

Dempsey Receives Pacemaker

NEW YORK (AP) — Former heavyweight boxing champion Jack Dempsey had a pacemaker implanted Tuesday because his heart was beating "on the slow side," his wife announced.

"Jack did not have a heart attack," she emphasized in a brief statement, in which she described his condition as satisfactory.

The 86-year-old Dempsey, one of boxing's greatest heavyweight champions, was admitted Sunday to New York Hospital-Cornell Medical Center for treatment of a hitherto undisclosed nature.

"We are all — the family of Jack Dempsey — tremendously grateful for the interest and concern his good friends and fans have shown for Jack in the past few days," said Mrs. Deana Dempsey in her statement.

"Jack did not have a heart attack. His heart was beating on the slow side and we decided it would be best to bring him to the New York Hospital-Cornell Medical Center on Sunday.

"The doctors thought that the installation of a pacemaker would be of benefit to him. The implant was performed this morning, and I am happy to say that Jack is resting well and is in satisfactory condition."

A pacemaker is an electrical timing device that aids the functioning of the heart. Dempsey, known as the "Manassa Mauler," fought several memorable fights. He won the heavyweight title July 4, 1919 when he knocked down 6-foot-6½ Jess Willard seven times in the first round and stopped him after three rounds.

In a defense against Luis Firpo of Argentina, "The Wild Bull of the Pampas," on Sept. 14, 1923, he was knocked out of the ring in the first round, then knocked out Firpo in the second.

His most famous fight was the "Battle of the Long Count" Sept. 27, 1927 in a rematch with Gene Tunney, who had taken away his title. In the rematch, Dempsey failed to go to a neutral corner after scoring a knockdown in the seventh round in accordance with a relatively new rule. Referee Jack Barry would not start to count until Dempsey went to a neutral corner, and Tunney might have gotten a few extra seconds to get up. Tunney won a 10-round decision.

Dempsey also knocked out Georges Carpentier, "The Orchid Man" from France, in four rounds July 2, 1921, and outpointed Tom Gibbons on July 4, 1923, in the fight that bankrupted Shelby, Mont.

Rams Edge Fike, 5-3

WILSON — Greene Central pushed over four runs in the first inning and went on to record a 5-3 victory over Wilson Fike, taking third place in the Wilson Breakfast Optimists Baseball Tournament last night.

The Rams got all they needed in the first, scoring four times. Tommy Goff singled and moved up on a passed ball. After two outs, Butch Brown singled, scoring Goff. Richard Chase followed with a walk and both he and Brown scored on James Moore's double. Moore scored when John Mayo singled.

Fike came back with two in the second. Randy Ward singled and Ernie Smith was hit by a pitch. Charles Flowers singled to score Ward, and Glenn Lee singled in Smith.

Greene Central added a fifth run in the third. With two away, Moore walked and scored on a double by Mayo.

The final run of the day came in the sixth when Fike added his third run. Joey Page singled and Ward got a hit. On the relay to third, the ball struck the third base coach and rebounded into the dugout, awarding Page home.

Goff and Mayo led the Ram hitting with two each, while Ward had two for the Golden Demons.

Greene Central, now 8-7, returns to Eastern Carolina Conference play on Tuesday, hosting Southern Nash.

Atlanta Braves Manager Joe Torre calls for a stretcher to be brought out as he leans over Braves player Claudell Washington, who was hit in the head by a pitch during the first inning of Tuesday night's game in Cincinnati. The pitch was thrown by Reds' pitcher Bob Shirley. Initial reports were that Washington was okay but stayed overnight in the hospital for observation. Don't Write Nicklaus Off Says Former PGA Champ

By The Associated Press
Don't write any golfing epitaphs for 42-year-old Jack Nicklaus yet, warns one of the game's most knowledgeable pros. The "Golden Bear" might just make you eat your words. "I did once," says Bob Rosburg, 1959 PGA champion and TV commentator, "and wound up with egg on my face. It was in 1980. Jack hadn't won a tour event in almost two years and was missing some cuts. I thought he had lost his desire.

"I made a little wager that he'd never win another major. Of course, you know, I paid off before the year was out." Nicklaus, at age 40, won the 1980 U.S. Open in a stirring duel with Japan's Isao Ioki at Baltusrol (N.J.) and later swept to his fifth PGA crown at Oak Hill (Rochester, N.Y.) with a fantastic scoring spree. "Although it cost me a few bucks, I found myself rooting for him in both tournaments," Rosburg said. "It was exciting to see a great star reach back and recapture his old skills."

One of the common faults of sports is that fans and historians alike are inclined to search for erosion in their great champions and to hurry their downfall—often prematurely. It's happening again to Nicklaus. Ominous murmurs swept the press headquarters at the Masters last weekend when Jack, having surged into a strong first round lead, suddenly lost his putting touch and finished tied for 15th, eight shots back of the winner, Craig Stadler.

"When I feel I can no longer be competitive, I won't try to hang on, I'll hang it up," Nicklaus insists. "That time hasn't come. I still enjoy the game. I think I can still win." Rosburg, accompanied by his wife Eleanor, was in New York Tuesday to help promote the $450,000 Liberty Mutual Legends of Golf in Austin, Texas, April 22-25. The event, televised the last two days by NBC, provides a nostalgia kick, bringing back the 50-years-old and over stars of another era.

"It happened to Hogan. It happened to Palmer. Now it's happening to Nicklaus," was one of the overheard comments. "Nerves are the first thing to go," said someone else. "You lose it on the greens." "It gets tough after 40," added another. This is old hat to Nicklaus, who has made a career of knocking over such flimsy ghosts. Years ago, Sam Snead and Ralph Beard predicted he would burn himself out before

NFLPA Breaks Off Talks

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Football League Players Association, reacting to what it called "a loaded survey" on player attitudes conducted by The New York Times, accused the newspaper and NFL management Tuesday of unfair labor practices and broke off contract talks with club owners. The charge, which the NFLPA said it would file with the National Relations Board, followed disclosure late Monday of the Times survey of members of the players' union. Among the questions on the survey — which has not been published — were whether the players would vote to strike and whether they had been given money, cars or gifts during their college careers.

"This NFL-New York Times poll clearly violates federal labor law," said NFLPA President Gene Upshaw. Upshaw said the union "cannot tolerate the use of a major newspaper in this country working with the NFL to do the league's dirty work for them by conducting a loaded survey." Responding to the allegation, Jack Donlan, executive director of the management unit and the owners' chief negotiator, said: "The New York Times is an institution in this country, and it has an awful lot of integrity. And to think for one second that the Times is going to get into bed with the NFL or anybody else, it's just ludicrous." Times sports editor Joe Vechione said there was no connection between the paper's survey and the club owners. "We are doing this poll completely on our own," he said. "It has nothing to do with the NFL Management Council." Ed Garvey, the union's executive director, said that following a bargaining session Tuesday morning, talks had been broken off. "It is our position that when they (the owners) comply with the NLRB general counsel order to turn over information including television contracts, radio contracts and all standard player contracts ... then we will return to the bargaining table," he said, referring to an order issued by the federal agency last week.

Garvey said the union had instructed players not to answer questions on the survey, which he said began Monday night. According to the charge to be filed with the NLRB, NFL management provided the telephone numbers of players to the Times "with full knowledge that management itself could not lawfully interrogate or poll bargaining unit members regarding their views on bargaining issues and their willingness to strike." Donlan said the NFL had provided the numbers, but added: "They (the Times) did everything else. We did say to the Times that we didn't want these telephone numbers used for anything else."

Trevino Heads T Of C Field

RANCHO LA COSTA, Calif. (AP) — Defending champion Lee Trevino tops the most exclusive field in American golf, a tight little cadre of 31 men, arrayed for Thursday's start of the $350,000 MONY-Tournament of Champions. "I've always said this is the real championship of golf," Trevino said before a practice round over the 6,911-yard, par-72 La Costa Country Club course. "Winners only, and all the winners. You can't do better than that," said Trevino, who has not won since taking this title last season. Heading his opposition in the elite field that represents the winners of all the regular PGA Tour events from the last 13 months are newly crowned Masters champ Craig Stadler, Tom Watson, who had won two consecutive Tournament of Champions titles before being interrupted by Trevino last year, and 1981 Player of the Year Bill Rogers. Stadler, like Watson and Rogers, has won three times in the eligibility period but hasn't yet come down from his playoff victory in Augusta, Ga., last weekend and very well could be suffering from a letdown. Only once since 1963 has the Masters champ been able to follow up with a victory in this event the following week. "It's been pretty busy, with family and friends and everything, since Augusta," Stadler said. "I really haven't had a chance to get off by myself and consider the situation, sort things out a little." Rogers hasn't won this season and really hasn't yet hit his stride. "I'm close, but I'm just not quite there yet," Rogers said. Watson, however, is near a peak. He won the Heritage Classic last month and had a strong, fifth place finish at Augusta. The only other multiple winners in the qualifying period are Ed Fiori, Jay Haas, Jerry Pate and Hale Irwin, each with two. Only three — an unusually small number — are T of C rookies. They are Dave Barr, Morris Hatalsky and Peter Oosterhuis, the Canadian Open champion, and one of the two foreign players in the field. The other is David Graham of Australia, the U.S. Open champ. Others in the field chasing a $63,000 first prize are Dave Eichelberger, Ron Streck, Bruce Lietzke, Fuzzy Zoeller, Keith Fergus, Ray Floyd, John Mahaffey, Larry Nelson, Hubert Green, Jack Renner, Tom Weiskopf, J.C. Snead, Lanny Wadkins, Johnny Miller, Jim Simons, Wayne Levi, Andy Bean, Tom Kite and Danny Edwards. Portions of the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday will be televised nationally by NBC.

Islanders Down Penguins In OT

By The Associated Press

The company at the top is not quite what the New York Islanders expected. Still, the two-time defending Stanley Cup champions couldn't care less—they're just happy to be alive to chase their third straight National Hockey League title.

The Islanders are the only division winner to make it out of the best-of-five opening round of the playoffs. They did so—barely—on Tuesday with a dramatic rally and a 4-3 overtime victory over the gutsy Pittsburgh Penguins on John Tonelli's second goal of the game.

While the Islanders might have expected the Montreal Canadiens, Edmonton Oilers and Minnesota North Stars to advance to the division finals along with them, they'll find the Quebec Nordiques, Los Angeles Kings and Chicago Black Hawks there instead. Along with the Boston Bruins, New York Rangers, St. Louis Blues and Vancouver Canucks. The best-of-seven second round begins Thursday, with the Islanders playing the Rangers; Boston vs. Quebec; Vancouver taking on Los Angeles and St. Louis against Chicago.

The Canadiens were ousted early in the postseason for the third straight year, losing to their provincial rivals as Dale Hunter scored 22 seconds into overtime for a 3-2 victory. Quebec had been fourth in the Adams Division, 27 points behind Montreal.

Edmonton, which finished 48 points ahead of Los Angeles in the Smythe, was embarrassed by the Kings 7-4 as Charlie Simmer and Dan Bonar each scored twice and Wayne Gretzky was held to one goal.

The North Stars, Stanley Cup finalists last year, were ousted Sunday by Chicago, which won the Norris Division series in four games.

Boston beat Buffalo in four, Vancouver swept Calgary, the Rangers won over Philadelphia in four, and St. Louis took Winnipeg in four.

Islanders 4, Penguins 3, OT
The Islanders trailed 3-1 with 5½ minutes remaining in regulation Tuesday. But, like champions, they rallied, with Mike McEwen poking in a rebound on a power play with 5:27 to play, then Tonelli getting his first goal of the night with 2:21 left to force the overtime.

About six minutes into the extra session, McEwen blocked a shot by Pittsburgh defenseman Randy Carlyle and fed Tonelli for a breakaway.

"I was running out of gas and (Penguins defenseman Paul) Baxter caught me," said Tonelli, who was a hero during the regular season when his last-minute goal against Colorado gave the Islanders their final triumph in an NHL-record 15-game winning streak. "After he took me down, I got up out of the corner and threw it to Bobby (Nystrom, who had scored the first Islander goal). He deked the goalie to the ice but the puck came off the end of his stick to me."

With Penguins goalie Michel Dion out of position, Tonelli put home a wrist shot.

"I was scared half to death in the third period," added Tonelli. "You can't let those negative feelings get in your way. We've been through so many of those pressure situations and we know how to take it to them."

Nordiques 3, Canadiens 2, OT
There were no should have for the Nordiques. And, for the first time, they own "La Belle Province."

Quebec grabbed a 2-0 lead on first-period goals by Wilf Paiement and Anton Stastny. They carried it into the third stanza, when Mario Tremblay and Robert Picard connected for Montreal to tie it.

The overtime lasted less than a half-minute.

A Close Look

Islanders during first period action Tuesday night at the Nassau Coliseum. (AP Laserphoto)

"After the third period, we said 'Let's not get caught with two or three deep,'" said Montreal Coach Bob Berry. "But we got caught with four deep 22 seconds into overtime."

Hunter scored on a 2-on-1 break with Real Cloutier.

Kings 7, Oilers 4
Offense was the key to LA's stunning upset of Edmonton. The Kings, with the second-worst defensive record in the NHL, won their three games by 10-8, 6-5 in overtime and 7-4.

Simmer scored twice in the first 6:20 and the Oilers never caught up, with the Kings putting it away with three goals in the middle period. Mario Lessard made 39 saves and Gretzky, who set NHL records with 92 goals, 120 assists and 212 points during the season, was continually frustrated.

Borg has been resting for three months and has declined to play in the stipulated minimum of 10 Grand Prix tournaments this year. Under the rules, that means he must qualify for any Grand Prix event he enters.

He came out of his temporary retirement last week, qualified for the Monte Carlo Grand Prix but lost in straight sets to Yannick Noah of France.

In Tokyo, Borg is scheduled to play in an exhibition tournament against John McEnroe, who wrested the Swede's Wimbledon title from him last year. Borg had won Wimbledon five consecutive years.

Borg told newsmen: "I am having to qualify at all the major championships simply because I decided to rest for a few months. All I can say is that I don't like that decision one bit.

Borg, Wimbledon Are Still At It

First, the qualifying tournament is held the week before Wimbledon at a small club at Roehampton where there are no facilities for spectators. A security operation would be needed to keep the public out.

Secondly, the Wimbledon draw is traditionally made on the Tuesday before the tournament. But if Borg was trying to qualify for one of the vacant places, the tournament committee would put off the draw until the end of the week—just a day or two before the tournament starts.

WANTS TO COACH CLEVELAND (AP)—Cleveland Brown tight end Ozzie Newsome wants to be a college football coach when his pro career ends. "A coach doesn't make that big a salary," he said, "but I think I will enjoy coaching and I like being around kids." Newsome, a graduate of Alabama, will help Coach Paul "Bear" Bryant with the "Bama" squad in spring practice, serving as a part-time assistant. "Having Bear's name on my resume won't hurt a bit," he said.

Handicap Awareness Shared

Beep ball is softball played with a ball that emits a sound to let blind players know where it is. A sighted player is blindfolded to even things up.

Greenville area citizens were brought into East Carolina University's Handicap Awareness Week, held last week, as never before. The general public took advantage of varied activities planned by ECU students to let the able-bodied know, at least in some measure, how it feels to be handicapped and to make the community aware of its responsibility to empower the handicapped to be fully productive citizens for their own benefit and the community's.

Melvin McLawhorn of Eaton Corporation spent part of a day blindfolded and with a cane to "see" how it feels to function in one's workplace blind. He learned it's possible, but difficult, he said.

Mayor Percy Cox performed his mayoral duties a half day in a wheelchair. "I'm thankful I don't have to use it all the time," he tells Samuel Garvonne.

Opening lead: Queen of ♠.

So, you are rather proud of your dummy play. Study all four hands, and then decide whether you would rather declare or defend four hearts. We are willing to make a small wager that you will select the wrong option.

When this hand was played in a national championship some years ago, three no trump was the popular contract, although some pairs did reach four hearts on an auction such as the above. Without an inspired guess in the heart suit, three no trump had no chance. What about four hearts?

At four hearts you start off with seven fast tricks, and that total rises to nine if the jack of hearts were to drop in two or three rounds. As you can see, that does not happen. Another way to nine tricks is to ruff two diamonds with your low trumps, draw three rounds of trumps and then try for an end play in a black suit. However, careful defense will negate that line too, and you will have to settle for a one-trick set.

You collect the money if you realized the strength of dummy's nine-eight of trumps. Together, they are equal to the jack and represent a sure trick if they can be utilized. And they can be via a very unusual dummy reversal!

Ruff the opening lead, cross to a high spade and ruff another diamond. Now that you have scored both low trumps, you employ the three entries in dummy to ruff three more diamonds. You have now brought your trick total to nine — five ruffs in your hand and the ace-king of both clubs and spades. What is more, you still have both dummy's trumps intact and you are out of trumps in your hand. Only one high trump, the jack, is still out, and regardless of the distribution you must score a trick with one of dummy's trumps.

Well done!

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal bridge format. Do they know something you don't? Charles Goren's "Four-Deal Bridge" will teach you the strategies and tactics of this fast-paced action game that provides the cure for unending rubbers. Rude Awakening In American Dream

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The American Dream has a rude awakening tonight in "Family Business," the most engaging episode of PBS' captivating "Middletown" series about life and values in Muncie, Ind.

Howie Snider is the patriarch and proprietor of the family-run Shakey's Pizza Parlor in Muncie. An ex-Marine and former divinity student, he's put his life's blood and savings into the frailing franchise. For 5½ years, Snider has performed heroically to keep his business and family together under the same roof. He's chopped cheese, spread sauce, provided late-night banjo entertainment for his customers and hammed up radio commercials.

If anybody deserves a break today, it's Snider. But instead of the work ethic reaping monetary rewards and security, Snider's business is not being supported by a public that seems to prefer hamburgers. Snider says if he could afford to be on well-traveled burger row, Shakey's would bring in $10,000-$15,000 more a month.

When the documentary was filmed in early 1981, Snider was close to tossing his last pie. In fact, while his wife is crying in the background, Snider is pleading with Shakey's management for more financial time "so I can keep operating over the weekend."

In his battle with corporate management, Snider is striking a blow against changing American values that have seen mom-and-pop stores stressing friendly, family service and loyalty suffer, while major fast-food chains and their quickie-cuisine flourish.

Snider says the humiliation of failure would destroy him psychologically and emotionally. He tells his children not to mistake worry for unhappiness, that he's proud children smile and call him Mr. Shakey's, while families come by because the Sniders are dishing out food and entertainment. For Snider's eight children, Shakey's is their livelihood and living rooms. From there, they offer each other support and advice, bring their dates by, and complain about what the business is doing to them and their father.

The close-knit Sniders admire and fear their father. They're concerned he's working too hard for such paltry results. One son tells Snider that he no longer exhibits the pride he once had as a Marine.

This segment of the "Middletown" series begins as an examination of crumbling American values. But, in the end, as the documentary builds to a very dramatic family meeting, "Family Business" proves to be as much about family as business. It's terrific television.

NBC offers another family of sorts tonight in the faculty of "Teacher's Only," yet another scholastic sitcom. This is Lynn Redgrave's latest vehicle since she quit CBS' "House Calls" last year, allegedly after she was restricted from breast-feeding her baby on the set.

Basically she plays the same character — a bright, cheerful, involved, slightly sexy single woman. She brings some vitality to the role but is sabotaged by the other characters and indifferent writing. Only Norman Fell, as the externally gruff-yet-inwardly-benign principal, provides support.

The first half introduces the characters and gives them all chances to be unimpressive. The black female is cynical, the janitor is brainless and two of the characters have lisps. The story line is predictable, with a student, whose parents have separated, latching on to her favorite teacher (Miss Redgrave).

There's nothing new and little funny about "Teacher's Only."

Dallas Retains Nielsens Lead

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Dallas" kept its No. 1 position in the television ratings for the past week, as did CBS, although the network's two perennial winners — "60 Minutes" and "M-A-S-H" — dropped out of the Top 10, according to the A.C. Nielsen Co.

The CBS prime-time soap opera about the oil-rich Ewing family remained unshakable in first place. In second place for the week ending April 11 was CBS' "The Jeffersons."

CBS' "60 Minutes" and "M-A-S-H" were both out of the running, however.

"60 Minutes" finished 14th, although it got its usual 41 percent share of the sets in use. Fewer people were tuned in, however, because of Easter Sunday.

Its new opposition on ABC, "Inside America," did even worse, finishing in 67th place, third from the bottom.

"M-A-S-H" fell to 36th in the ratings, knocked out by NBC's only placement in the Top 10, "The Kid with the Broken Halo," NBC's Monday Night Movie starring Gary Coleman. The movie finished fifth.

CBS won the week with a rating of 17.0. ABC was second with a rating of 16.6 and NBC was third with 14.2. The networks say that means in an average prime-time minute, 17 percent of the nation's homes with TV were tuned to CBS.

CBS also continued in front for the season to date. It has a rating of 19.1 overall, while ABC had 18.2 and NBC 15.3.

Two ABC comedies, "Three's Company" and "Too Close for Comfort," remained in strong positions as the third and fourth shows.

Here are the Top 10 shows: "Dallas," a rating of 27.9 or 22.3 million households, CBS; "The Jeffersons," 25.6 or 20.5 million, CBS; "Three's Company," 24.6 or 19.3 million, ABC; "Too Close for Comfort," 24.2 or 19.3 million, rerun, ABC; movie, "The Kid with the Broken Halo," 24.1 or 19.3 million, NBC; "Alice," 23.8 or 19.0 million, CBS; "Falcon Crest," 22.0 or 17.6 million, CBS; "Dukes of Hazzard," 21.8 or 17.4 million, CBS; "Trapper John," 21.7 or 17.3 million, CBS; "Hart to Hart," 21.6 or 17.2 million, ABC.

Zsa Zsa Celebrates Her 8th Marriage

By PATRICIA ALISAU
PUERTO VALLARTA, Mexico (AP) — The guests sipped champagne to the tunes of a mariachi band as Zsa Zsa Gabor was married, on a yacht off this Pacific resort to her seventh husband, a Spanish-born count she calls "a born prince."

The wedding ceremony Tuesday night was the eighth for the Hungarian-born actress and author of "How to Get a Man," "How to Keep a Man" and "How to Get Rid of a Man." Miss Gabor, who married another man twice, was divorced earlier this year.

It was the second marriage for Count Felipe de Alba, 52, a real estate lawyer with properties in Mexico, Italy and Palm Beach, Fla.

The couple first met 12 years ago at a polo match in Deauville, France. After a chance encounter in Boston, Miss Gabor said in an interview Monday, she won his heart with her cooking.

About 30 friends attended the seven-minute wedding ceremony aboard the Laura, which belongs to Zsa Zsa's sister Eva and her husband, Frank Jamieson, who were matron of honor and best man.

The guests included John Huston, who 25 years ago directed Miss Gabor in her first movie, "Moulin Rouge." Also on deck was the actress' only child, Francesca Hilton, daughter of the late hotelman Conrad Hilton.

The yacht's captain, Peter Moore, read the vows in international waters 13 miles

Milwaukee Police Chief, 70, Scorns Detractors

By RAY DOHERTY
MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Some call him too old, too tough, too blunt, too old-fashioned. But the city's top cop says those people are in the minority, that "the good people are buying what we're selling."

He's Police Chief Harold Breier, who turned 70 last fall.
Breier, chief since 1964, has been in the thick of civil rights marches and demonstrations, embroiled in recent allegations of police brutality and charges he's behind the times.

Some say he should retire, the job should not be for life.
"I'm in good shape," the white-haired Breier said in an interview with UPI. "I do a lot of walking."

He has few outside interests. One is his garden in the summer. Another is his family, especially his wife.
"I always say, to hell with my detractors, as long as I know what we're doing is right," Breier said. He thinks there is too much meddling with the department.

"I believe in going by the book. I'm called old-fashioned. I think there is nothing wrong with that if what you're doing is working out for you.

"We're No. 1 as a safe city. I know damn well we clear more crimes by arrest than any city in the nation," he said proudly as he reeled off statistics.

"We've tried new things, such as our tactical squad which probably was the first anywhere."

"We are well respected by the good people, the law abiding people who support their police. The good people are buying what we're selling... and not involved in the garbage (protests) going on."

He views his detractors as "special interest groups, demonstrators well sprinkled with members of revolutionary groups and, of course, some good people who always get sucked into these things."

"And certain members of the news media," he said. "I don't need a friendly press but a fair press."

"Many of the same people who were around in the '60s are around now," he said. "There was Father (James) Groppi in the '60s and today there is Howard Fuller and Michael McGee."

Groppi, a former Roman Catholic priest and now a city bus driver, was at the forefront of the city's racial difficulties in the 1960s, going to jail several times as he led open housing marches and championed other causes.

Fuller and McGee have been at the forefront of rallies and protests in the death of Ernest Lacy, a 22-year-old black who died in police custody last July for a rape he did not commit.

"McGee used to be head of the Black Panther party here in the '60s and Fuller is reported to have traveled in Third World countries for 14 years. I'd like to know who paid for his travel," Breier said.

Breier grew up on Milwaukee's south side, an older ethnic area, where community pride runs deep.

He had an uncle on the police department and worked in the No. 3 district station for three years under a "tough guy, Capt. John Farrell. He was a strict individual, like I am, and firm but fair."

He moved to the detective division where eventually, he said, "I was running the joint. I liked it in the street, I was very much involved."

The Lacy incident

particularly rankles him. He said he thoroughly investigated it, and "found no evidence of wrongdoing."

"It was a political decision (by the district attorney) to charge three officers. It's a terrible thing when officers are charged politically," Breier said.

Reminded that's what the system calls for — decisions on charges by the district attorney, Breier said, "aw hell, he bowed to pressure from the Lacy Coalition," led by Fuller and McGee.

"The Lacy coalition should have not had a goddamn thing to do with it," Breier said. "The only thing that should have influenced him is the law."

He also has been getting heat from some for not having a police-community relations program.

"Here again, your news media has not said anything about what we're doing until the other day. We go into schools with a kind of 'officer friendly' program, conduct tours for thousands of people, we make a lot of speeches to various groups, and the police band plays in parades and other events.

"We probably meet 180,000 or more people every year. That's relating to people, that's interaction. That's police-community relations, as I see it."

As to comments he's not open with the press, he said: "If I've got something to say, I say it."

He got flack recently for a meeting with religious leaders on police-community relations matters and problems raised by the Lacy incident.

"There was an old friend from the '60s among them, Patrick Flood. He was spouting off," said Breier, who told the leaders to tend to their own affairs and he would take care of his.

"I got 100 calls to hang in there, stick by our guns."

But he expects the criticism to continue.

Some members of the media and others "wouldn't buy Harold Breier if he were selling gold bricks at a dollar a pound," the chief said.

TOUGH COP — Some call him old-fashioned, too tough and too blunt, but Milwaukee Police Chief Harold Breier says "I know what we're doing is right." (UPI Photo)

Property Week Being Planned

The Greenville-Pitt County Board of Realtors has planned several activities in celebration of National Private Property Week, April 19-24.

Mac Harris, president, said the celebration of the right to own property includes a seminar on home buying, which will emphasize "Learning About Tomorrow's Financing Today," a "trash and treasure" sale, and festivities at Carolina East Mall.

Featured at Tuesday's 7:30 p.m. home buying seminar at the Willis Building will be information on new financing techniques such as adjustable and variable rate mortgages and other forms of creative financing, Harris said. The legal and tax aspects of buying a home will also be discussed.

The "trash and treasure" sale, to benefit the Eastern Carolina Vocational Center, is set for Saturday from 7:30 a.m. until 1 p.m. at Elm Street Park. Harris said the public is invited to donate baked goods and unwanted household items. Any Realtor will accept the items or arrangements can be made to have the items picked up by calling 756-5396.

Realtors will distribute information at the mall all week. Winners of a photo, essay, and art contest will be announced and prizes awarded on April 19.

Private Property Week is celebrated annually by the National Association of Realtors and its state and local boards.

Scholarships Are Awarded

ECU News Bureau
Two coveted scholarships have been awarded Lisa Ryan of Goldsboro, a junior at ECU Department of Foreign Languages and Literatures.

She is the recipient of the annual $500 James L. Fleming Scholarship, established by a former professor and chairman of foreign languages at ECU.

The Fleming Award is given to an ECU language student on the basis of academic achievement, participation in departmental and university activities, cultural values and potential contributions to a language-related profession.

Ms. Ryan also received an $850 scholarship from the Society of French Professors in America and the government of Quebec to attend a summer session at the University of Montreal this year.

This award, made to outstanding foreign language students, is given on the basis of recommendations from a faculty member, academic achievement and the applicants' essays written in French.

A 1977 graduate of Goldsboro High School, Lisa Ryan formerly attended Davidson College and UN-C-Asheville before transferring to ECU. She has maintained a 3.9 academic grade point average while participating in several campus organizations.

Long-Lasting Energy Source

MILFORD, Utah (AP) — Geothermal energy has been present since the earth was formed.

Molten rock, working itself up near the surface from the earth's fiery core, heats underground water which rises to the surface, causing geysers or hot springs.

Underground water at the Roosevelt geothermal project near here is about 500 degrees Fahrenheit.

The geothermal energy is being used to produce electricity.

Helicopter Role Helps Save Lives

By DAVID TOMLIN
Associated Press Writer
COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Scores of accident victims lay dying on South Carolina roads last year while the people who might have saved them sat waiting on an airport runway for a call that never came.

Many more were luckier. The life-saving call was made, and the men of what is believed the nation's busiest Army MAST helicopter unit sped them at 120 miles per hour into the skillful hands of the trauma surgeons — MAST stands for Military Assistance to Safety and Traffic.

But Dr. James I. Raymond of Richland Memorial Hospital, who doubles as state Emergency Medical Services director, still isn't satisfied with a program he believes is ahead of 90 percent of the rest of the country.

"It's good, but we've got to make it better," he says. Raymond says studies have shown that anywhere from 30 to 80 percent of accident victims who die could have lived if they'd been treated in time. South Carolina had nearly 850 traffic deaths last year.

"We're doing our own study," he says, "and we're coming up with figures which show that 30 to 40 percent of multiple-injured patients who die should not die. They die because they're not taken quickly enough to the right facility."

Since the early 1970s, South Carolina and about a dozen other states have had a powerful tool for cutting big chunks from that frustrating percentage, when they manage to get it to the right place at the right time.

Army helicopter teams, using techniques developed in Vietnam, have been collaborating with state and local governments, law-enforcement agencies and hospitals to put their skills to work for civilian casualties.

For the governments it means the cost-free services of half-million-dollar "Huey" choppers, complete with highly trained pilots and fuel consumed at the rate of a gallon per mile.

For the Army, it means a chance to boost the military's image in surrounding communities with a service which sharpens medical evacuation skills far better than any mock exercises could.

"This is real-world stuff for us," says 1st Lt. Michael Barrington, a MAST coordinator with the Columbia-based unit.

For accident victims, of course, it means precious minutes that can prevent death or permanent disability.

MAST was first tested in Texas 12 years ago. South Carolina's unit was chartered two years later and began operating in 1974.

The 34 pilots, medics and crew chiefs with their 12 helicopters at Columbia Metropolitan Airport are the 4th Platoon of the 498th Medical Company Air Ambulance, with headquarters at Fort Benning, Ga.

In South Carolina, a MAST Civilian Coordinating Committee, with members drawn from government and law-enforcement agencies and hospital officials, supervises the program through civilian coordinator Tony Wynn.

While the headlong flights to accident scenes are the most dramatic MAST service, the unit's aircraft, emblazoned with big red crosses, also transfer premature infants and other patients between hospitals and carry blood and organs for transplant operations.

Barrington says the unit averages two life-or-death scrambles daily, which makes it "the busiest MAST unit in the country." Most flights come to Richland Memorial. A few go to the Medical University of South Carolina in Charleston, the state's only other "level-one trauma-care center."

But there are limits to what the unit can accomplish. Some of them can't be controlled, like the bad weather that sometimes grounds the choppers or manpower that's stretched thin on the busy days.

A Missing Heir Poses Old Puzzle

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A disbarred lawyer who was with Adolphus von Gontard when he was last seen is "important" in the search for the vanished heir to the Anheuser-Busch brewing and Mercedes automobile fortunes, an investigator says.

It has been nearly 14 months since von Gontard disappeared, puzzling authorities in New Mexico, Arizona and Nevada.

The 46-year-old great-grandson of Adolphus Busch, founder of the St. Louis brewery, was last seen Feb. 20, 1981, in Phoenix's Sky Harbor International Airport, according to his family and police.

"There's not the tiniest thread of evidence what has happened to him," said his brother, Paul T. von Gontard of Jackson, Wyo.

Authorities say von Gontard was with Rick E. Allen, a disbarred lawyer from California, at the airport. But they won't say if they know what happened after that.

Police say they don't believe von Gontard was suicidal, the victim of foul play, involved with criminal activity, or involved with a woman.

Allen, who now lives near Reno, Nev., has refused to discuss von Gontard's disappearance and has refused to say whether he has been in contact with von Gontard, according to the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Allen faces trial in Reno on a drug charge and nine counts of practicing medicine without a license. Authorities say Allen and von Gontard, who lived in Santa Fe, N.M., had joint real estate holdings in Canada and had been associates for about three years.

The prosecuting attorney in Phoenix has jurisdiction over the investigation of the disappearance. David Corey, an investigator for the Maricopa county attorney, would say only that "the Allen thing is important," and that "bits and pieces indicated that von Gontard has talked to Allen since he vanished."

Authorities, however, say they believe von Gontard had no connection with Allen's alleged illegal activities, which they said stemmed from the operation of a chiropractic clinic, the Sparks Spinal Orthopedic Centre in Sparks, Nev., after von Gontard vanished.

Airline records show von Gontard flew to Las Vegas, as he told his estranged wife he planned to do. But investigators could find no one who saw him there.

If von Gontard, who is also a grandson of a former president of Mercedes-Benz & Manser Corp. of West Germany, is not found by Feb. 20, 1986, New Mexico law says his estate must be disposed of according to the terms of his will.

Last month, a court appointed Kenneth S. Lay of St. Louis, von Gontard's long-time attorney, as conservator of his estate. Lay applied for the position at the request of von Gontard's brother.

His only competition for the position was Jutta von Gontard — Adolphus von Gontard's second wife.

Mrs. von Gontard and her husband were divorced in January 1981, but they reconciled shortly before he vanished, she told the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

In a copyright story Sunday, the newspaper quoted her as saying that on the day von Gontard disappeared, he was to receive $200,000 in cash from Allen — the proceeds from the sale of 100 acres in Canada.

"Dr. Allen and his wife were very close friends of ours," Mrs. von Gontard was quoted as saying. "I don't know whether Adolphus took the money and disappeared."

She said she was told by Allen that her husband "seemed strange, upset" before he vanished.

"He was very happy I was back, but in those last few days, he was also very depressed," she added.

Gravesite Is Still A Secret

GRAVE REMINDER — The name of John Wilkes Booth appears on the Booth family obelisk in Green Mount Cemetery, Baltimore, but the exact location of the grave of President Lincoln's assassin has long been a mystery. (AP Laserphoto)

By JAMES ROWLEY
Associated Press Writer
BALTIMORE (AP) — Somewhere in a well-tended grassy plot surrounded by a low stone wall at the Green Mount Cemetery, rests the body of the man who assassinated President Abraham Lincoln 117 years ago.

But the exact location of John Wilkes Booth's grave has long been a mystery for visitors to the Booth family plot. An obelisk inscribed with his name is the only clue that the man who shot Lincoln at Ford's Theater in Washington April 14, 1865 is buried there.

"His grave is visited more than any other and there are over 60,000 people buried here," said Ethel Felber, manager of the cemetery. "He's an infamous person, I don't know what the attractions are."

"I think they're more interested in the mystery, in the fact that it's unmarked and we are reluctant to tell them," said Mrs. Felber, who admits she knows the secret.

"Let's put it this way, the office has to know in the event there is another interment and there are Booths still living," she said.

Four years after Booth was killed by federal authorities, President Andrew Johnson released his body for burial in Baltimore with the stipulation that the grave's location be kept secret to prevent desecration.

"I'm sure there is no problem now, but obviously at the time there was a problem because sympathies ran high," Mrs. Felber said.

The Booth family plot is about 30- by 40-feet. Fifteen family members are buried there, including Booth's parents, brothers and sisters.

The historic cemetery also contains the graves of a host of equally prominent but less notorious Americans, including eight Maryland governors, 16 Civil War generals, philanthropist Johns Hopkins and the poet Sidney Lanier.

Philanthropists Moses Sheppard and Enoch Pratt are buried at Green Mount along with Robert Garrett, the first president of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, and A.S. Abell, founder of the Baltimore Sun.

Elizabeth Patterson Bonaparte, a Baltimore woman who married Napoleon's brother, is also buried in the rolling cemetery that is landscaped with dogwood and flowering fruit trees.

"We like to think of Green Mount as a prestige cemetery," Mrs. Felber said.

The Duke of Windsor, who abdicated the British throne in 1936 to marry Baltimore divorcee Wallis Warfield Simpson, purchased a lot in Green Mount in 1958. The lot was large enough for a mausoleum he and his wife planned to build for their bodies, Mrs. Felber said.

"At that point in history he was not in the good graces of the queen," Mrs. Felber said. "But she relented and said he could be buried in England. Apparently the Duchess of Windsor is going to be buried with her husband."

Founded in 1838, Green Mount Cemetery was once the country estate of shipping magnate Robert Oliver. The rural area became a fashionable part of the city later in the 19th century. By the 1960s, however, the surrounding neighborhood had become one of the city's worst slums. In 1968 it was the center of Baltimore's race riots.

Surrounded by one of Baltimore's most blighted and dangerous neighborhoods, Green Mount is a remnant of the city's elegant Victorian past.

"It's a rather unsavory neighborhood, but once you get in here it's fine — it's an oasis," Mrs. Felber said. The 68-acre cemetery is surrounded by an eight-foot stone wall that keeps out vandals.

"We're not as active a cemetery as we once were, naturally," Mrs. Felber said. But there are still interments in some of the older lots and some lots are still for sale. About 100 bodies are buried each year in Green Mount.

Green Mount is one of the nation's few cemeteries where gravediggers still use shovels. "Every grave has to be opened manually because of the placement of the stones. We can't get a back hoe in here," Mrs. Felber said.

The cemetery has also been listed on the National Register of Historic Places, Mrs. Felber said. "It means nothing will ever happen to Green Mount. It will always be here."

Irish Fair To Draw Millions

NEW YORK (AP) — Some 2 million visitors are expected to attend a traditional Irish county fair along a one-mile stretch of Brooklyn's waterfront June 5-6.

The two-day Great Irish Fair will feature music, song, dance, Celtic sports, arts and crafts and authentic Irish food and drink in booths between the city's Brooklyn and Manhattan bridges.

Proceeds from the fair will help support the work of the Catholic Charities, Diocese of Brooklyn, on behalf of more than 100 non-denominational community-based human service programs.

Brazil Fears Censorship Will Resume

By GLORIA HELENA REY
Associated Press Writer
RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil
(AP) — President Joao Figueiredo has called for a crackdown on pornography and obscenity in Brazil. Leading political and cultural figures here fear it could mean a renewal of censorship by the military government.

They express special concern that the president's morality drive could be used as a pretext to clamp down on public debate in this important election year.

Figueiredo, a general who has promised to restore civilian government to Brazil, surprised many people with a TV address last month urging a nationwide movement to "preserve moral and social standards." The Brazilian leader said he was alarmed over "a wave of eroticism" and "an escalation of obscenity."

Brazilians had expected Figueiredo to use the occasion, which was the exact mid-point of his six-year term, to talk about his administration's accomplishments, one of which was the ending of almost all censorship, imposed after a military coup in 1964.

Figueiredo said in his speech he was not referring so much to the "legal aspect" of pornography as to its moral implications.

However, Ignacio de Loyola Brandao, one of Brazil's best-known authors, said in an interview that the president's position could serve as a pretext for a return of censorship.

"This excuse (moral standards) was used* to justify censorship during the worst years of the military dictatorship here," Loyola Brandao said. "It could happen again."

Congress member Ulysses Guimarães, the head of the opposition Party of the Brazilian Democratic Movement, said the presidential initiative "could be used to justify the stepping up of censorship in the mass media, which would be very dangerous because this is an election year."

Brazilians are scheduled to vote Nov. 15 for city councilmen, mayors, state assemblymen, state governors and federal congressmen. It's not clear yet how much radio and TV access the government will allow candidates.

The head of the National Council of Women of Brazil, Romy Medeiros da Fonseca, said that "although it's true pornography is a form of violence against women," she fears that "the government's steps toward defending morality could wind up as a toughening of censorship."

The Rio de Janeiro newspaper Journal do Brasil said in an editorial that Figueiredo's anti-pornography position reflects "national sentiment," but it that the fight against obscenity must not be interpreted as a call for censorship.

The editor of the Brazilian edition of Playboy magazine, Alexandre Machado, told a reporter he's not worried so much about Figueiredo's feelings but is concerned as to how lower officials might interpret them.

"There's always the possibility that some juvenile court judge might get the wrong idea from the president's speech and order our magazine to be removed from newsstands — even though we're complying with the law," Machado said.

Saving Energy In Video Games

NEW YORK (AP) — The new era of video games is saving energy in amusement arcades, according to Energy User News.

Compared with the electrical power needed to operate old-fashioned pinball games, the publication reports, modern-day black and white video games use less than half the volt-ampere.

It said some black and white video games used as little as 86.25 volt-amps of electricity, while a digital pinball machine uses 180.

Color video games use from 161 volt amps upward.

Sunset Rite Observed In Key West

By RANDALL HACKLEY
Associated Press Writer
KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) —
Some 200 spectators mill around Mallory Dock with a collection of talented and not-so-talented musicians, ice cream vendors, jugglers and animal acts, waiting for one of the nation's most unlikely rituals.
The ceremony could be a throwback to the 1960s, with barefoot artisans, musicians passing the hat and little boys running around with flowers in their hair. A snake is wrapped around one undulating man, who writhes to the beat of an accompanying drummer.

But as the sun seems to touch the horizon, the group hushes and applause slowly rises. A traveling musician points at the sinking fireball of orange and pronounces it "nature's best art work."
Detroit's Don Hill, in his third season of sunset ceremonies, announces with the lonely beat of a conch shell each sun's fall into the azure waters.

But the ritual that occurs during sunset at the end of the dock in Key West owes its birthright to Rex Brumgart.
Brumgart's "sunset party" was born in 1949 as a quaint waterfront gathering, replete with drinks and hors d'oeuvres for a dozen Key West naval buddies. They imbibed and ate. And as the sun set, they politely applauded.

But the sunset ceremony now is a daily public festival attended by what Conchs — the name for both native Key Westers and a pink shell-toting Caribbean mollusk — call "lemmings."

"They pack the dock like it's a sinking ship," the 62-year-old Brumgart says of his overgrown creation. "I don't even go anymore. It's like a zoo."

"They come rushing down to the docks at sunset like lemmings," adds Key West Chamber of Commerce executive Bill Smith.

About 24,000 now live permanently in Key West. The local Chamber of Commerce estimates 1 million visitors yearly crowd into the Florida resort.

Three decades ago, 26,000 lived there. Back then,
Brumgart's martini drinking friends quietly applauded a pleasing sunset, said Frank Romano, one of the original revelers.

But things changed in the 1960s. Key West grew to about 41,000 when the U.S.
Navy moved in during the Cuban Missile crisis. The sunset crowd also swelled.

Young, drug-oriented transients and dropouts came like a wave. Some took to living in beach huts on atolls just off Key West.

But the resort, with its frost-free climate, still attracted ordinary older people and celebrated writers and artists.

Tennessee Williams, the writer, was one such Key West citizen. He is said to have been tugged to the dock by Brumgart one evening to watch the sunset.

He witnessed an especially inspiring peacock of colors.

"Author! Author! Who wrote that play?" Williams is said to have shouted.

The sunset has since become "the principal daily social event" in Key West, as one travel writer put it.

Key West "has rednecks,
Conchs, tourists, Navy people. There are hippies, old
Bohemians, famous writers
(and) bad painters," adds author Tom McGuane.

They come together at sunset.

"Sunset ... in Key West ... deserves the upper case just like Halloween. (It's) rather like a miniholiday," says local historian Roger Aiello.
