

Haig To Argentina In Another Bid To Ease War Crisis

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr., under growing pressure to find a compromise in the Falkland Islands crisis, is making another try at defusing what he called an "exceptionally difficult and exceptionally dangerous problem."

Haig left Washington shortly after 8 a.m. EST today on the 16-hour flight to Buenos Aires, his second trip to the Argentine capital since he began his peace-seeking mission April 8. He has twice visited London on his shuttle.

In London, meanwhile, British defense officials told Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher that elements of the 31-ship Argentine fleet may be sailing in the direction of the Falklands.

The officials said in a statement that most of the Argentine navy was still in port, but that "some elements of the Argentine fleet" may now be leaving port "and in that case we would expect them to sail south," toward the Falklands.

The officials said they doubted the Argentine ships would "risk breaching" the war zone Britain has established around the islands, but predicted the ships "may ... sail close to the Argentine mainland and even skirt the maritime exclusion zone in an attempt to score some propaganda advantage and bolster up morale in Argentina."

The Defense Ministry also said no major Argentine warship had entered the war zone and said officials could not confirm Argentine claims that two of its coast guard gunboats went to the Falklands Tuesday.

Britain, which has a naval fleet steaming to the South Atlantic, has said all Argentine ships within 200-mile radius of the islands are subject to attack.

Earlier, Mrs. Thatcher told a special meeting of Parliament that Argentina must withdraw its troops from the islands before negotiations can be held on their future sovereignty. Argentina seized the islands April 2.

President Reagan, responding to reports that the Soviet Union has been providing intelligence information to Argentina on British fleet movements, said the Soviet should "butt out" of the crisis.

On Wednesday, Haig appealed to both Britain and Argentina to make "responsible and defensible adjustments" in their positions before it is too late.

"It is an exceptionally difficult and exceptionally dangerous problem," Haig told reporters in a brief statement. "The positions that both countries hold are deeply felt, and in many cases mutually contradictory."

Haig said he had developed some "new ideas" after his talks in London earlier in the week and had described these to Argentine officials over the telephone on Wednesday.

"Based on these new ideas, the Argentines have invited me to return to Buenos Aires," he said. He said he might go to London next.

Officials were not willing to discuss details of the proposals. But one said it undoubtedly focused on the pivotal issue of sovereignty — how to satisfy the Argentines that they will be given future sovereignty over the Falklands if they withdraw their troops now.

The official, who didn't want to be identified, said the administration is looking to the Argentine government of General Leopoldo Galtieri to show flexibility in its position.

Meanwhile, a 40-ship British fleet was believed past the halfway mark on its journey from London to oust the Argentines from the Falklands by force, if necessary, although its exact position was a secret.

The fleet is expected to arrive in the Falklands sometime next week. As it draws closer, the pressure grows on Haig to achieve a compromise to head off the possibility of an Anglo-Argentine war.

In Buenos Aires, a coast guard official said two coast guard gunboats were patrolling the coastline of the Falklands, despite the British blockade.

Capt. Victor Badini told The Associated Press the two small vessels, each carrying a crew of 30, sailed from the mainland to the islands Tuesday.

Judge Upsets Verdict

By EILEEN PUTMAN
Associated Press Writer

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) — Thanks to a judge's conscience, former hotel waiter Luis Marin was free today for the first time since his arrest a year ago in the Stouffer's Inn fire that killed 26 people.

"I love America!" the 26-year-old Guatemalan told reporters Wednesday after Judge Lawrence Martin overturned a jury's guilty verdict on 26 counts of murder and arson.

Evidence against Marin was "insufficient" to warrant the jury's verdict, the judge said.

Marin celebrated into the night with supporters and wife Blanca at the Larchmont home of Howard Dryer, one of his attorneys.

Held without bail since his arrest last April in the Dec. 4, 1980, fire at the Harrison hotel, Marin hugged his wife and said what he wanted on his first day of freedom was "beans and rice" from his native country.

A one-time illegal alien who attained permanent residence status when he married a U.S. citizen less than three months before the fire, Marin said he had two jobs lined up and planned to stay in America "the rest of my life."

While Marin was celebrating his victory, the prosecution was planning its appeal of the judge's ruling, which Carl Vergari, the Westchester County district attorney, said "turns my stomach."

Killed as fire swept through the hotel meeting rooms were executives of Nestle Co., Arrow Electronics and United States Brewers, deaths Vergari said cannot be avenged unless Marin is returned to prison forever.

Monroe Named To Be Director

ECU NEWS BUREAU

Dr. Edwin W. Monroe, senior associate dean of the East Carolina University School of Medicine, has also been appointed executive director of the Eastern Area Health Education Center.

He succeeds Dr. F.M. Simmons Patterson, who retired last December but continues to serve the medical school and the Eastern AHEC program as a consultant.

Monroe had served as president of the Eastern AHEC directors from 1974 until his appointment as executive director. John C. Blanton has succeeded him as acting president of the AHEC program's directors.

Eastern AHEC is responsible for 23 counties in eastern North Carolina.

Fire Kills Two Children

By TOMMY FORREST
Reflector Staff Writer

WINTERVILLE — Playtime turned to tragedy Wednesday afternoon when two young girls died as a result of a fire in an abandoned house near Winterville.

According to Pitt County Fire Marshal Bobby Joyner, the two children were identified as Angela Marie Jones, 7, and her sister, Joy Leigh, 4. They were the daughters of Kenneth and Deborah Jones of Route 1, Winterville.

Joyner said Mrs. Jones missed the two youngsters and began searching. Unable to find them, she returned to her home located beside the house to care for a smaller child. Joyner said Mrs. Jones resumed her search for the children when she discovered the old wood frame house on fire.

Farmers in an adjacent field said they heard screams and saw the building on fire, but were unable to enter the burning structure to rescue the children.

Firemen from the Winterville Fire Department found the two-story structure engulfed in flames, making a rescue impossible. The intense heat from the flames could be felt for some distance. Joyner said members of Ayden and Eastern Pines departments were also called for assistance.

Pitt County Medical Examiner Stan Harris said the sisters died of carbon monoxide poisoning. Both bodies were found in the front portion of the house, burned beyond recognition. The official said there was no evidence of foul play.

Joyner said the Jones' residence, located next to the house, was also damaged by the intense heat of the blaze.

The burned house was owned by Grayce Haddock of Route 1, Winterville. It was reported a total loss.

Joyner said the cause of the fire is undetermined and is under investigation.

Telephone Rate Hike Set

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

The N.C. Utilities Commission has approved a rate schedule proposed by Carolina Telephone that results in a $1.55 per month increase for residential customers on the Greenville exchange, a CT&T spokesman said Wednesday.

Alan Sykes of the company's Tarboro headquarters said CT&T was notified Wednesday afternoon that its new rate schedule, submitted last week, has been authorized.

The Utilities Commission approved an overall revenue increase for CT&T of $15.9 million on April 7 and instructed the company to prepare a rate schedule that would generate the increased revenues from its 567,000 customers.

Sykes said the approved schedule, reflecting a combined rate for basic local service and extended area service, means that Greenville area residential customers with one standard rotary-dial telephone will pay a basic rate of $12.20. The previous charge has been $10.65 per month.

Sykes said the new rates are effective immediately for billings on or after April 14.

He explained that the rates include a $1.25 rental charge for a standard telephone and if a customer has purchased a set in lieu of renting from the company the basic monthly rate will be $10.95 or $12.25 less than rental customer charges.

Business rates for the Greenville exchange, including the $1.25 charge for a standard rental set, will go up from a basic $24.85 to $28.70, an increase of $3.85 per month.

Basic monthly rates for several neighboring cities, all reflecting the $1.25 charge for a standard rental telephone, include: Farmville, (residential) from $9.95 to $11.35, (business) from $23.05 to $26.65; Ayden and Bethel, (r) from $9.65 to $10.95, (b) from $22.40 to $25.55; Grifton, (r) from $9.45 to $10.75, (b) from $21.85 to $24.90; Fountain, (r) from $8.20 to $9.35, (b) from $18.65 to $21.55; Williamston, (r) from $9.50 to $10.85, (b) from $21.90 to $25.30; and Robersonville, (r) from $9.30 to $10.60, (b) from $21.40 to $24.70.

Sykes said CT&T's last rate increase was April 16, 1981. Carolina Telephone, a subsidiary of United Telecommunications of Kansas City, Mo., has customers in 50 North Carolina counties, most of them in the eastern segment of the state.

Mercer Seeks Seat In Senate

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

FARMVILLE — Former Farmville Mayor Linwood E. Mercer has announced he will be a candidate for the state Senate seat for the Pitt-Martin County district.

"In our current economic situation and with the shifts in responsibilities from the federal to the state level, I feel it is imperative that we elect younger, more aggressive leaders to insure that Pitt and Martin counties receive their fair share of services from state government," Mercer said. "As a businessman, I see the great need for more efficiency and less waste in our governmental system. There is simply no reason that state government should not be run like the big business that it is."

Mercer, who graduated from Washington High School and attended the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, is founder and president of two firms headquartered in Farmville — Factory Storage Corp., which specializes in the storage and handling of manufactured goods, and Personnel Services, which provides transportation labor to private and contract trucking operations. With branch operations in Raleigh and Nashville, Tenn., Personnel Services employs over 200 people.

Mayor of Farmville from December 1979 to December 1981, Mercer is a member of the board of directors of Farmville Industries,

LINWOOD MERCER

He is also a member of the Pitt County Democratic Executive Committee and one of six Pitt County members of the state Democratic Executive Committee.

Mercer has also served as vice chairman of the Farmville Housing Authority, president of the Farmville Economic Council and treasurer of the Farmville Arts Council.

He is married to the former Alice Williams of Washington, and they have

Industrial Production Had Decline In March

By ROBERT BURNS
AP Business Writer

The nation's industrial production reversed a one-month upturn in February and fell 0.8 percent in March, the government said today, the seventh decline in eight months and another sign the recession has not bottomed out.

Production had risen 1.2 percent in February after a six-month decline, said the Federal Reserve Board, which revised the February level back from its earlier reported 1.6 percent gain.

But economists had warned that the February gain over January could have resulted largely from January's bad weather compounding the recession's influence on January production.

Today's Federal Reserve report, with the month-to-month figures adjusted for normal seasonal variations, said March production cutbacks were "widespread and pronounced" in durable home products, construction supplies and durable goods materials.

Meanwhile, two major corporations Wednesday showed the strains of high interest rates and depressed profits.

AM International Inc. filed for reorganization under federal bankruptcy law and International Harvester Co. said it would consider laying off 5,600 workers and take other actions to cut costs.

AM International, a Chicago-based supplier of graphic equipment and word-processing systems, defaulted earlier this month on a $115 million bank credit agreement and said it was in danger of defaulting on all of its $250 million in debt.

The action was not a surprise, since AM International had been seeking to re-schedule debt and gain concessions from lenders. In its most recent fiscal quarter, the company reported a loss of $28.6 million.

Harvester, also on the brink of failure, said that in addition to the layoffs, it would consider limiting wage and benefit improvements for salaried workers and other actions to save about $650 million in operating costs in the current fiscal year.

Harvester, a Chicago-based producer of heavy equipment, lost a total $1.1 billion on continuing operations in the last two fiscal years.

While the problems of the two companies go back further than the current recession, prolonged high interest rates that helped spawn the recession is taking a heavy toll on businesses large and small.

One economist predicted other large, well-known companies would collapse before long.

"The financial strains on industry clearly have gone much further than in past recessions," said Ben E. Laden, chief economist at T. Rowe Price Associates Inc., an investment counsel firm in Baltimore.

Business failures of companies with liabilities of $100,000 or more were 55.5 percent higher in the first three months of this year than in the same period last year, according to Dun & Bradstreet, the business information service.

Elsewhere Wednesday, the five major U.S. carmakers reported sales in the first 10 days of April fell 18 percent from a year earlier for the lowest daily selling rate since 1958.

Chrysler Corp. was the only company to report an increase — 2 percent — and auto industry analysts attributed it to early word that it would extend its rebate program. General Motors Corp. sales fell 19 percent and Ford Motor Co. was off 21 percent. American Motors Corp.'s estimated sales fell 53 percent and Volkswagen of America Inc. was down 40 percent.

RAILROAD CROSSING FEEDBACK

The Seaboard Coastline Railroad crews went back at work Wednesday morning to finish repair on a crossing on 14th Street. The railroad had told Hotline last week and Hotline had reported to its readers that it would be April 19 before work, interrupted April 1, could be resumed. City Engineer Ron Sewell says he credits Hotline's making the public aware of the dilemma with speeding up the resumption of work. The crossing repair has blocked this, a main thoroughfare of Greenville, since March 24 and has hampered efforts by city and L.A. Reynolds crews to complete the street improvement project.

HERITAGE TOUR OF HOMES. . . scheduled for Saturday will include the Dr. W.I. Wooten-Pattie B. Wooten residence, now occupied by Donna and W.I. Wooten Jr.

Heritage Tour Of Homes To Take Place Here Saturday

The Greenville Area Preservation Association will sponsor its second Heritage Tour Saturday from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Tour stops include seven architecturally and historically significant structures, including homes, a Victorian train depot and a turn-of-the-century frame church.

In addition, ticket holders will stop off at St. Timothy's Episcopal Church to attend a concert of baroque, classical and romantic music at 3 p.m. Proceeds from the tour will benefit the preservation-related projects in Greenville, including the restoration of the James L. Fleming House by the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce.

Tour stops are outlined as follows:

The Dr. W.I. Wooten-Pattie B. Wooten residence, now occupied by Donna and W.I. Wooten Jr., corner of Maple and Fourth Streets, is an eclectic but predominately Georgian style brick landmark built in 1935. Horace Trumbauer of Philadelphia, architect of Duke University, helped plan the home which features a den, breakfast room, kitchen and a one-half bath on the first floor, five bedrooms and three full baths on the second floor, a basement and attic. The house is being placed on the tour by the Wooten family in memory of the late Bobby Swinson, past president of the GAPA. Hostesses during the tour will be the Junior Woman's Club of Greenville.

The Dr. Louis Cotten Skinner-Joseph George Moye and J. Howard Moye home (circa 1860), now owned by Marvin K. Blount, 123 W. Third St., is one of Greenville's few remaining antebellum structures built by Charles Greene for his daughter, Jane Brown upon her marriage to Dr. W.M.B. Brown. The interior denotes Greek Revival characteristics. Blount renovated the structure for use as offices now occupied by Hugh M. Cox and Judge Charles H. Whedbee. Hostesses during the tour will be the Tar River Civitans.

The Dr. Ralph Hardee Rives home, owned by Dr. and Mrs. Fred B. Haar, 309 Lewis St., contains beams, bricks and doors from an 18th century house located on Cotanche Street. The dwelling is named "Little Longwood" in honor of Mrs. Haar's ancestral home located near Farmville, Va. Dr. Rives has added to the basic furnishings provided by the owners with family heirlooms and European treasures. Hostesses during the tour will be the English Speaking Union.

The Mrs. Minnie Tunstall Jones-Mrs. Walter Lee residence (1890-1898) is owned by Lily Richardson, 805 S. Evans St. The house qualified for the National Register of Historic Places. Mrs. Richardson restored the house in 1981 for use as offices. Suzanne Coutanche Evans Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution will be hostesses.

The Ficklin Arthur residence (1876), corner of 14th and Charles Streets, is a Victorian home where free refreshments will be served on the grounds during the day to ticket holders. A plant sale will be held as well as a guitar concert at 11 a.m. by Elliot Frank, artist in residence at Pitt Community College. The house will be closed during the tour.

The House Station (1890-1891), which currently houses Century 21 Bass Realty, 2424 S. Charles Blvd., is one of several depots constructed at a cost of $747.25. Hostesses during the tour will be the Town and Country Senior Citizens.

Tickets for the tour are $3.50 and can be purchased from any member of the association or the Greenville Chamber of Commerce, the Greenville Museum of Art, First Federal Savings and Loan Association, Greenville Blvd and Century 21, B. Forbes Agency.

Ticket headquarters from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday is the Greenville Museum of Art, where maps will be available showing the location of each home. Maps will also be available at the tour stops. For further information, call (919) 758-4096.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

I got this straight from the Census Bureau: Marriage is coming back.

For those of you who follow trends, it marks the end of the most popular diets of the '70s: a divorce and 500 calories a day. It signals the return of the dinosaurs who roamed the earth in twos. It might possibly mark the end of Jill Clayburgh movies.

It all sounds like a scenario from "Little House on the Prairie." Family life is supposed to stabilize. Households will move out of the cities and back to the rural areas. People will know what they want before they get stuck with it. And all because the great chunk of population born during the baby boom (1946-1964) is getting too old and too tired to play the singles game.

Marriage has gone through a lot of rhetoric during the past decade. Some of the terminology I understood. Most of it, I didn't. It's a wonder any of us survived it. If marriages are to flourish again, they're just going to have to spell some things out.

Meaningful Conversation: What is it and is it fattening? No one has a clue what it means. We're going to have some guidelines on what qualifies as meaningful, and do we have to ruin a perfectly good meal with it?

Writing Your Own Marriage Contract: This has been too ambiguous. Can you get taken to court for nocturnal headaches? Lying? Wrapping your gum in the contract and pitching it?

New Sexual Freedom: How does this differ from the old sexual freedom? Why do I need a manual for it? Can you order new parts?

Shared Responsibility: Has a nice ring to it, but who gets custody of the child with intestinal flu at 3 a.m. and how come you're going to be a father in three months and your stomach is still flat?

Non-Traditional Marriage: I know it has to do with acute boredom with monogamy, but the only couple I ever knew in a non-traditional marriage that worked were Buffy and Claude — and they were two pet rabbits.

Naturally, I'm delighted with the return of marriage. It'll do a lot for matched towel manufacturers and bridal paraphernalia. Maybe we'll even get a new vocabulary that we can all understand.

Night Boxer Should See Neurologist

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1982 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: When I read the letter signed "Midnight Boxer," I knew I had to write. (He was the 20-year-old who woke up one morning with a black eye and a bruised jaw and didn't know how it happened.)

The same thing happened to me. I also "fought" in my sleep. Once I woke up with blood on my pillow and teeth so loose I couldn't eat solids for days. Another time I fell out of bed and broke my nose.

I was soon to learn that I was having grand mal seizures — symptoms of epilepsy. (I never had any seizures during the daytime.)

Fortunately, most seizures can be controlled by medication, and now a person can live a normal life with epilepsy. "Night Boxer" — or anyone else who "fights" in his sleep — should see a neurologist.

BEEN THERE

DEAR BEEN THERE: Fortunately, epilepsy, a once feared and misunderstood condition, has come out of the closet in recent years. Anyone wanting more information about it should write to: The Epilepsy Foundation of America, 1828 L St., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036. Please enclose a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope, as this is a non-profit organization.

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to the swinging bachelor signed "Harvey" who wanted to meet a nice woman he could date for "a few laughs" — but no commitments.

You told him to take a hyena to lunch.

Well, I'm an attractive 40-year-old divorcee who looks about 30. I am a very successful, professional real estate salesperson and appraiser. Most of the males I date either want to get married so I can support them, or start a relationship to pick my brain.

Frankly, it would be refreshing to go out with a man who wanted to enjoy my company, have a few laughs and no commitments.

I'd love to be the "hyena" he'd take to lunch.
NO COMMITMENTS IN PONTIAC, MICH.

DEAR ABBY: I'm 32, happily married to a wonderful man, but something has been troubling me ever since I was a young woman. I have no breasts. My husband says I am fine the way I am, but I'm not happy with myself.

I get very jealous every time I see my husband looking at girls who have what I don't have. When I see full-bosomed women on TV, in the movies or in magazines, I feel cheated and inadequate. It's depressing.

I don't even care to have sex with my husband anymore. He keeps telling me that breasts don't make that much difference to a man, but I think he just says that to make me feel better.

Please don't send me to a shrink to learn how to "accept" myself as I am. I never will. I'm not too crazy about the idea of getting an operation, but I will if I have to. I've tried all those creams and exercisers I've seen advertised, and they don't work for me.

I guess what I really want to know, Dear Abby, is just how important are breasts to a man? I'm sure you hear a lot of men expressing themselves on this subject.

DEPRESSED

DEAR DEPRESSED: How you feel about yourself is more important than how men feel about breasts. But for the record, an overwhelming number of men have written to say that breasts (or the absence of same) don't make one whit of difference to them, so if you're considering augmentation surgery, do it for yourself — not your husband.

CURRIED BAKED TOMATO SLICES — Firm-ripe tomatoes are perfect to use for this dish, a delicious accompaniment to fish, poultry or meat.

Baked Tomatoes Take To Curry

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
AP Food Editor

Firm-ripe tomatoes are abundant in markets. How to use them? The best recipe we've come on lately, calling for these tomatoes, is easy to prepare. It makes a great addition to a main course of simply cooked fish, poultry or meat. Good to serve at a lunch, supper or dinner.

The amount of curry powder given in the following recipe, Curried Baked Tomato Slices, tastes just right to us. But curry powders vary, so you may want to increase or decrease the amount, should you decide to put the recipe — after trying it — in your permanent recipe file.

CURRIED BAKED TOMATO SLICES

4 medium-size firm-ripe tomatoes (1½ pounds)
½ cup flour
2 cups soft bread crumbs
1 teaspoon salt
1½ teaspoons curry powder
2 large eggs
1-3rd cup butter, melted

Line the bottom of a jellyroll pan (about 15 by 10 by 1 inch) with foil; butter the foil well.
Cut away the stem ends from the tomatoes; cut each one crosswise into 3 slices — each slice will be about ½-inch thick.

Mound the flour on a sheet of wax paper.
In a shallow dish or pie plate stir together the bread crumbs, salt and curry powder.

In a bowl beat the eggs just until yolks and whites are combined.

Dip the tomato slices, one at a time, in the flour; dip in the egg; dip in the crumb mixture, making sure the crumb mixture adheres well. As each slice is coated, place in a single layer on the prepared pan; drizzle with the butter.

Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven until coating is crisp and lightly browned — 10 to 15 minutes. Coating will have a yellowish tinge.

Makes 12 slices — 4 servings.

Dangers From Within

It was made clear over the weekend just how tenuous peace is in the Middle East when a gunman entered a Moslem mosque and emptied an M-16 rifle killing two Arabs and wounding nine.

Israeli authorities arrested Alan Harry Goodman, who immigrated from the United States, but the shootings set off a weekend of violence which has continued into this week.

Monday a boy was killed and many Palestinians were injured in rioting which was attributed to the weekend mosque shooting. All told, some 150 people had been reported injured in the rioting that followed the shooting as of Monday.

Goodman, who made his first court appearance saw his action as a "political matter." He reportedly gave a V-for-victory sign and shouted slogans.

Israel is surrounded by hostile Arab nations, but it also has within its borders thousands who are hostile to Israeli domination.

It only takes an incident such as the mosque shooting to bring about the violence which has been seen there.

We can hope that the government will move swiftly to bring justice to this case. It must be clearly demonstrated that the law will be applied equally if there is to be any hope of ending the violence among the Palestinians in Israel.

Most Efficient Will Survive

As the state's big tobacco crop is being transplanted it is well to note that less tobacco will be grown this year than last.

The N.C. Department of Agriculture reports the state quota for 1982 at 643 million pounds. It was 716 million pounds in 1981.

Last year was a good one for growing tobacco and the consequent production brought about the reduction in allotments for this year.

As usual cost of production will be up this year for tobacco farmers. Because less tobacco is grown doesn't necessarily mean total costs will be down. Thus tobacco growers may find themselves with higher costs and less actual tobacco to sell at the market.

It means that production costs will have to be watched closely and growers will need to get along on as little borrowed money as possible. Only the most efficient will survive.

THIS AFTERNOON

On 'Back Burner'

By PAUL O'CONNOR
RALEIGH — Gov. Jim Hunt has dropped his plans to seek funding from the legislature this year for a reduction in public school classroom sizes.

With state revenue collections lagging far behind the growth on which the 1981-83 biennial budget was formulated, Hunt is highly unlikely to seek any new money when the legislature convenes in June. Aides say he's hoping simply to have enough money to keep the salary levels and programs he has.

Hunt prides himself as an "education governor", and having to back away from classroom size reduction is a major blow to the education goal he set for his second term — cutting the state's high school drop-out rate.

In 1981, Hunt proposed a $538.2 million expansion budget for 1981-83. Included in that new spending would have been $52.1 million to reduce class sizes in grades four through six from 30 to 28 in the 1981-82 school year and from 28 to 26 in the 1982-83 school year. In grades seven through 12, Hunt wanted to reduce teacher student loads from 150 a day to 140 in reading and math classes. He also sought $1.3 million to improve basic skills instruction for low achievers in grades nine through 12.

He got none of it. When President Reagan's budget-cutting threw the legislature into uncertainty over how much federal money it would have this biennium, almost all expansion budget items were put on the agenda for the special October, 1981 session. That immediately delayed class size reductions for a year.

The October session

focused on funding a 5 percent state employee and teacher pay raise and funding the pork barrel bills of the 170 legislators. Class size reduction was set aside for the June, 1982 session and Hunt said at the time that he'd be there looking for the money. But that was when the state budget office was expecting a December end to the recession and state revenue growth of about 12 percent for the fiscal year. (The budget is based on 10.3 percent growth.)

PAUL O'CONNOR

So far, this year, revenue has grown at an 8.4 percent rate and State Budget Officer John A. Williams Jr. expects the next three months to bring that rate down even further. Every one percent difference between actual and projected growth means $30 million less for the state.

All of which is a long way for saying the state doesn't have the money for Hunt's class size reduction.

Betty Owen, Hunt's special assistant for educational affairs, said class size reduction "is one of those things which we are committed to but you have to look at what is realistic and available, and it doesn't... appear the money is going to be there."

Another top Hunt aide is even more pessimistic. "It is obvious that he can't go to the legislature and get that $25 million a year to reduce class size. Our strategy is just to get the money for our unfunded items." Continuation of the five percent pay raise is the major unfunded item.

Mrs. Owen and other Hunt aides say the governor is still committed to cutting the drop-out rate. Mrs. Owen said the best weapon against drop-outs is a smaller teacher-student ratio which allows teachers to give students more one-on-one help. But some inexpensive approaches are being tried. They include high school job placement centers for students who must work and

STEP NUMBER TWO COULD BE SO--SO NOISY!

BY HUGH MULLIGAN

Lured By Steeplechase

CAMDEN, S.C. (AP) — Anthropologists studying the rites of spring have long been interested in the migratory habits of American college students. These gaudily pruned birds head south when most other species are wending their way north.

It has been noted for decades that puffed up preppies and double breasted seersuckers flock to Bermuda from the Ivy League schools at Easter tide for the beaches, the bikinis and the booze, while their less well-feathered friends from the land-grant colleges and state universities alight at Fort Lauderdale and Daytona Beach, Fla. for the same but more economical reasons. Their arrival is as punctual as the swallows' at Capistrano, if a bit more disorderly.

But what can be the attraction in springtime of Camden, S.C. which has no beaches, a shocking shortage of bikinis and a somewhat reserved attitude toward public imbibing of any liquids not served in a fruit jar or clad in a paper bag?

The answer is the Carolina Cup, a couple of minutes of excellent, exciting steeplechase racing, which most of the migrating intellectuals never get to see, preceded by three hours of traffic jams and surrounded on all sides by picnic tables laden with country hams, fried chicken, buckets of champagne and other restoratives.

The race first run in 1930 is the most prestigious in South Carolina racing circles, which is more prestigious than your average two dollar pari-mutuel investor realizes, because many of the nation's best known thoroughbred owners winter their horses in the Palmetto State. To them watching someone else's nag bust his neck or the jockey's jumping over a dozen timbered fences in a two mile and a furlong cavalry charge is more fun than eluding the IRS man at the $50 window. These mainly are aficionados of flat racing, who regard it as an aberration for any horse to take all four feet off the ground at once without stimulus of a prior jolt from a syringe.

By the way, there is no $50 window at the Springdale race course, the retired cornfield where the Carolina Cup is run. There isn't even a $2 window. The tourist from the sinful North looks in vain for the totalizer board, a bookie in tablecloth check tweeds and Al Capone fedora, or even a British-style turf accountant in bowler hat banded with betting slips and a yawning schoolbag ready to receive the wagers.

All of which is not to say there is no gambling on the Carolina Cup, anymore than the absence of bars signifies a bourbon drought, for it has indeed been a long time since the governor of North Carolina told the governor of South Carolina that it's been a long time between drinks. Or was it the other way around?

Anyhow, this visitor from above the Mason-Dixon line shyly approached a native on the subject of a little flutter.

"Any betting on this race?"

"Sure, pal, (reaching for pencil and program card), which horse would you like?" He quoted the odds with the fiscal fervor of a Bernard Baruch, who was born in this town and may have made his first investment here at the track.

The Carolina Cup is a glorious throwback to the grand old days before Off-Track Betting parlors, when horse racing was an outdoor sport, and betting a matter of honor between gentlemen, ladies too, with no rake-off for the state treasurer. The horses are still saddled under the trees. A real live bugler tootles the post call. Refreshments are served by ladies of the Junior League, who apparently haven't learned about inflation and the standard racetrack ripoffs. Everyone, even the college crowd, turns out in his Sunday go-to-meeting suit, although I never did learn why loud Kelly green double knits are the racing style this season. Hats are in, too, broad brimmed and outrageously feathered, to go with "Gone With the Wind" plantation gowns.

One can actually watch the race on the rail at the finish line, because most of the 40,000 in attendance are busy with their elaborate tailgate parties and regard the horses as an intrusion on their feasting.

Defending A Public Image

By JAMES GERSTENZANG
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The president doth protest too much.

No, he said, he wasn't the slightest bit defensive about taking a Caribbean vacation last week. No, said his aides, it didn't bother them, either.

The trip, said President Reagan as he prepared to leave Barbados for home, was "just fine."

But sensitivity to the way the president's five-day "working holiday" would appear back in the United States — where the northern climes were suffering unseasonably cold and even snowy spring weather — clearly played a part in the White House planning, both before the trip and as it occurred.

When the trip was first contemplated, it was to be primarily a vacation. The president and his wife had been invited to spend the Easter holiday with their longtime friend, actress Claudette Colbert, who maintains a seaside villa along the fashionable west coast of Barbados.

Then aides began to worry about the impact one more presidential vacation — and an expensive one, at that — would have on Reagan's public image. Estimates of the cost of the Caribbean trip ranged from $1 million to $3.5 million. The White House says no precise figures will be available until all the bills have been received.

The president's staff took pains to keep photographers from taking pictures of the president cavorting in the turquoise surf of the Caribbean, but they were unsuccessful.

Still photographers and television camera crews were not permitted to portray the president in the study of his borrowed home overlooking the sea after he delivered a five-minute radio address to the United States on Saturday. But, using telephoto lenses, they captured him anyway when he got to the beach.

Questions about the cost of the trip, which began Wednesday in Kingston, Jamaica, were met with reminders that several top aides were sent home Thursday evening after the working half of the journey was concluded.

These aides included national security adviser William Clark, Deputy Secretary of State Walter Stoessel and Michael K. Deaver, deputy chief of the White House staff.

The stop in Kingston was added after aides decided to arrange meetings between Reagan and the leaders of Barbados and four small eastern Caribbean island nations.

A State Department official said she would not be surprised to learn that the day and evening spent with Jamaican Prime Minister Edward Seaga were added to the schedule by aides wary of the president's image. But Seaga is the leader of a nation that figures importantly in Reagan's view of the Caribbean, and the two leaders share common economic and political beliefs.

On several occasions, Reagan freely acknowledged that his schedule in Barbados was light after his meetings were concluded on Thursday.

In the radio address, he told Americans that "we took yesterday, Good Friday, off. And tomorrow we'll go to church and then fly back to Washington."

On Friday, he was asked if he was "defensive" about the vacation. "No, I'm very pleased to have a day off," he told reporters.

The president, however, displayed some skepticism that journalists would report the busy pace of his first two days, in Kingston and then in Barbados.

In a dinner toast Wednesday evening, he told Seaga that "If you'll just be patient for a couple of days after we've spoken to the ministers of the eastern Caribbean islands and so forth, you'll find it reported fulsomely that we had a lengthy, leisurely vacation while we were here."

To the editor:

On Sunday, March 21, 1982, an impressive feature article appeared in The Daily Reflector entitled "New Plaque for Historic Property." As I read it, I became strangely aware of another feature story on Sunday, December 26, 1976, in the same newspaper entitled "Old Landmark To Be A Real Estate Office."

To verify "praise where praise is due," I shall quote certain revealing and memorable lines:

"House Station is back in business ... prepared to serve another function ... the offices of Whitley and Associates, a Greenville Real Estate firm."

"It might be said that Dees Whitley, president of the firm, literally stumbled onto the station. When he found out about its existence, he got so excited that he immediately ... rode out to where the station was being used as a barn. 'I saw the roof from the road, and I couldn't figure out how to get there, so I ... ran across the field. And I fell into a ditch.'"

"There was good reason for Whitley's excitement. He had been searching for two years for a railroad station to house his offices ..."

"This week Whitley had the building moved to the New Bern Highway."

"The plans for the building's renovation are almost complete. The station has ... two waiting rooms and a large freight area. One waiting room will be Whitley's office ... The freight room will be divided ... and another floor will be added above these. The floor will be open and have a catwalk. Whitley will keep the original heartpine floors ... and replace the deck ..."

After total restoration, a fire nearly destroyed this quaint edifice. This tireless Dees Whitley eventually renovated it to its unique beauty. The credit is his!

I extend congratulations to its current owner who likewise recognizes its priceless value to Pitt County — its past, present and future!

To the editor:

The good news is that the fine old Fleming House is being restored and has a bright future as the new home of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce. The Greenville Area Preservation Association (GAPA) helped the Chamber maintain a high level of authenticity in the restoration by making a monetary contribution to this project.

The bad news is threefold: historic preservation efforts are off to a late start here in Greenville, all such efforts cost money, and GAPA has limited resources to support them.

Support the 1982 Heritage Tour GAPA is sponsoring Saturday. Check this newspaper for the tour itinerary and for where tickets are available.

Another Silver Boom Unlikely

By STEVEN P. ROSENFELD
AP Business Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Two years after the silver market's dramatic crash, bullion prices have stabilized at a mere one-seventh of their brief, but heady peak.

After falling to a three-year low of $6.965 a troy ounce last month, the metal has climbed to the $7.50 level amid concern over the Falkland Islands crisis.

But James Sinclair, head of Sinclair Securities Co., says the extraordinary combination of events that sent silver exploding from $6 a troy ounce in 1979 to a record $52.50 in January 1980 is unlikely to occur again.

And he adds that until the economy recovers from recession and industrial demand for silver picks up, there is little to make silver attractive to investors.

Like gold, silver gyrates in price during times of political and economic unrest. But Sinclair says silver's rally during the current Falkland Island dispute between Britain and Argentina is just "a hiccup."

Silver is used in the manufacture of photographic and electrical equipment, jewelry, silverware and dental and medical supplies.

"Despite the sharp reduction in the metal's price, industrial offtake (use) of silver in the United States and other industrial nations is still being constrained to some degree by the recessionary business environment," according to J. Aron & Co. "Stagnant business activity, historically high interest rates, and inventory adjustments appear to be the principal factors now contributing to reduced silver offtake."

In the silver boom of 1979 and early 1980, other factors were at work.

Speculation by the Hunt brothers of Dallas and the investment firm of ContiCommodity Services Inc.

built up huge silver holdings and helped drive prices to record levels, according to a House Government Operations Committee report last December.

At the same time, international tensions were high as Soviet troops moved into Afghanistan and U.S. citizens were taken hostage in Iran. And economic unrest was also heightened as inflation and interest rates soared while the economy slipped into recession.

But after silver hit its peak on Jan. 21, 1980, and new trading restrictions were imposed by the New York Commodity Exchange, prices plummeted, falling to $10.80 a troy ounce two months later before leveling off.

Meanwhile, inflation has been unwinding while interest rates remain high. Silver provides no interest payment to investors and high interest rates make purchases of silver on credit costly and less attractive than other investments.

A large supply of silver has also been hovering over the market.

The Hunt brothers' holdings total 63 million ounces. And the federal General Services Administration was authorized last year to sell 105 million ounces over a three-year period.

Only about 2 million ounces of the more than 11 million ounces offered for auction by the GSA were sold last fall, with an average price of $9 an ounce. The weekly auctions were called off in December pending completion of a study of the need for the sales from strategic metals stockpiles.

Sinclair says the prospect of large supplies of silver being dropped in the market has had a psychological effect on holding down silver's price. But he adds, "in a bull market, silver is going higher regardless of what the GSA does."

Burning House Uncovers A Boy

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo. (AP) — Neighbors said they never saw children at Olga Kocovski's house until the night it burned and firefighters who burst into the padlocked basement carried out an unconscious, frail 7-year-old boy.

Dejan Kocovski was in a coma today and Mrs. Kocovski, his mother, was held on $25,000 bond in the Cape Girardeau City Jail, charged with abandonment. Police said Dejan wasn't enrolled in Cape Girardeau schools. Fire Chief Charles Mills said the boy apparently slept on a sofa in the basement, where firefighters found a plate with three cookies and a banana cake. A cupboard by the sofa contained his clothes, but no toys, Mills said.

The house had been dark for four days before it caught fire Tuesday night. Neighbors told firefighters that the house had been empty because the couple who lived there was gone and there were no lights.

"We saw them out raking leaves and shoveling snow, but no children," said Maurine Brunkhorst, a neighbor. "We saw them come and go, barbecue out, and sit on their patio, but no children."

After firefighters went into the basement, "I wondered what they were carrying out," Mrs. Brunkhorst said.

"When I saw it was a child, I got sick," she said. "I didn't sleep all night. It gave me cold chills."

The boy had collapsed from the smoke but was resuscitated. He was in critical condition today at Southeast Missouri Hospital, police said.

Reporters who toured the house Wednesday found no evidence upstairs of the child or his toys, clothing or bed.

The landlord, Cecil Pletcher, said he rented the one-story home in late December to Akbar Esker, who had moved from Peoria, Ill., to attend Southeastern Missouri State University. Mrs. Kocovski had been living with Esker, but Pletcher said he didn't know there was a child. Police said the boy is the son of Mrs. Kocovski, a Yugoslavian native and naturalized citizen of Canada, and her estranged husband, Branko Kocovski.

Esker and Mrs. Kocovski were in Peoria at the time of the fire and returned to Cape Girardeau for questioning, said police Lt. Michael Seib.

"They aren't talking to us at all," Seib said. Mrs. Kocovski was charged Wednesday, officials said.

watching the Carolina Cup, was the most civilized I ever encountered at a race track. I've experienced more jostling and elbowing in the lobby of the Royal Opera House at Covent Garden during the intermission of "Swan Lake."

With the horses pounding around the turn toward the last rail fence, a silver coiffured daughter of the Confederacy offered me, a complete stranger, the loan of her binoculars. Being a graduate of the apron at Aqueduct, I instinctively patted my wallet pocket and went on the red alert for some kind of scam. Turns out her horse was leading the field, but without benefit of a passenger, so she was only being considerate of a fellow horse fan, which might get her a free ride to Bellevue at any New York track.

The Camden race track is only one-mile long, but Stephen Foster could have sung a few doo-dahs in its praise. Ringed by long-leaved pines and palmetto, with the azaleas and wisteria in gorgeous bloom, it was as beguiling as Aintree on Grand National day, only without the gas tanks and high rise council flats of Liverpool lousing up the vista.

Horse racing apparently wasn't always all this gracious in these parts. South Carolina sportsmen, to stretch the word beyond decency, used to go in for something called a "goose pull." A live goose with its neck greased was strung up by the feet at the finish line. The challenge was to come galloping down the stretch, reach out and wring its neck. But the animal lovers put up a squawk, as did the geese, which are now served on a cracker on Carolina cup bay as pate de fois gras. Such is progress.

Regional races, as the Camden experience shows, add a lot of variety and richness to the Sport of Kings here in the colonies. Belmont has something called the Futurity, flat racing's biggest test for two-year-olds. Springdale in the second race offered 10 gelded jumpers, all over 6 years old, chasing a 9-year-old mare. The program called it the Baron De Kalb, but the locals had a better name for it. The Futurity.

Kennedy Center Director Talks To East Carolina Art Society

Roger Stevens, chairman of the board of trustees of the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts, Washington, D.C., was guest speaker Tuesday evening at the annual dinner meeting of the East Carolina Art Society, the organization administering the Greenville Museum of Art.

Stevens, recognized as one of the nation's leading fund raisers as well as an advocate of the arts and a producer of plays, was a guest, along with his wife, Mrs. Christine Stevens, at a reception held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Webb prior to the 8 p.m. annual meeting at the Greenville Country Club.

In informal comments, Stevens spoke about his long association with the White House and American presidents in the field of the arts. He was the person who has been cited as being more instrumental than any other in raising funds for the Center in the years when it seemed doubtful if a national American center for the arts would ever be realized.

Responding to questions from those in attendance, Stevens said it is his belief that support of arts is not just a matter of what arts can get from the government, but more a matter of what the arts need, then letting the government see what it can do.

Relative to his career as a successful producer of plays, he admitted that "Ondine" was perhaps the favorite of plays he had produced.

During the business session, officers elected are: president, Mrs. Peggy Corbitt; vice-president, John Howard; treasurer, Burk Barbee; Lynda Blount, corresponding secretary; and Mrs. Nelson Crisp, recording secretary. Mrs. Blanche Monroe is immediate past-president.

Persons elected to the board of directors are: Chuck Chamberlain, William Freelove, Gail Williams, (one-year terms); Carlynn Knott, Grover Maxwell, Gerald Crane, Joe Gantz, (two-year terms); and Sarah Sugg, James Ficklen, Frank Wooten, Larry Mallard, and Nell Webb, (three-year terms).

In her annual president's report, Mrs. Corbitt noted that over 14,000 visitors attended shows and events during the past year. A total of 22 exhibitions were held, 11 of them with receptions. Memberships increased 52 percent, and a guild was formed for voluntary activity at the Museum.

Other activities included sponsoring tours for pre-release and aftercare candidates, for patients at the Pitt County Mental Health center, monthly theater and poetry reading programs, lectures, musicales, and classes.

Mrs. Corbitt remarked that an important consideration in the Museum's work is to serve the role of making the Museum an organization to serve the people of the general community and of East Carolina University.

Traffic Mishap Wednesday

Cars driven by Jessie Hardy Beckman of Farmville and Yvonne N. Pridgen of Whitakers collided about 9:17 p.m. Wednesday on Greene Street, 1,000 feet north of the First Street intersection.

Police estimated damage from the mishap at $300 to the Beckman car and $800 to the Pridgen vehicle.

Heir Asks Liquidating Of Newspaper Chain

SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP) — Harry H. Hoiles, son of Freedom Newspapers Inc. founder R.C. Hoiles, has asked the Orange County Superior Court to order the involuntary liquidation of the newspaper company and the proportionate distribution of its assets among the stockholders.

Freedom Newspapers Inc. has four North Carolina newspapers in its chain including the Kinston Daily

Free Press, Burlington Daily Times-News, Jacksonville Daily News and Gastonia Gazette.

Hoiles said a court-ordered dissolution of the company is "reasonably necessary for the protection of the rights and interests" of himself and his immediate family.

In the alternative, in the action filed Wednesday, he asked the court for actual and punitive damages from the other shareholders.

Named as defendants in the suit are Freedom Newspapers Inc. and the family of his sister Jane Hoiles Hardie of Marysville, and his brother, the late C. H. Hoiles.

D.R. Segal, president of Freedom, said the suit would be "vigorously defended."

He said a court-ordered liquidation of the company would not be in the best interest of the stockholders or of the readers and advertisers of Freedom Newspapers. Freedom Newspapers owns or controls nationwide 31 daily newspapers, eight weekly newspapers, a television station and a weekly shopper. Its flagship newspaper is The Register of Orange County.

The suit alleges that the C.H. Hoiles and Hardie families have "joined together to act in concert as a dominant or controlling group of shareholders to accomplish a joint purpose for their own aggrandisement and to the detriment of the plaintiffs."

The complaint says that the defendants "knowingly, willfully and unlawfully conspired to unjustly oust plaintiffs from any effective participation in the management of the company, unjustly isolate the shares of stock of FNI held by plaintiffs and unjustly appropriate the property and management rights of plaintiffs in

Hoiles said the majority of shareholders changed the bylaws of the company to permit the election of an executive committee by the directors instead of by cumulative voting of the shareholders.

As a result, he said, he was eliminated from the executive committee of the company at a meeting Feb. 8.

He also complained that when he tried to withdraw from the company, the other shareholders offered him "less than 9 percent of the fair value of the total outstanding shares of FNI or of assets owned by FNI" for the nearly 33 percent of the stock he and his family owns.

ON DEAN'S LIST

Sharon Louise Holland of Ayden has been named to the dean's list at Pitt Community College for the winter quarter, say college officials. To qualify for the dean's list, a student must maintain a 3.5-4.0 grade point average.

STRUCK BY CYCLONE

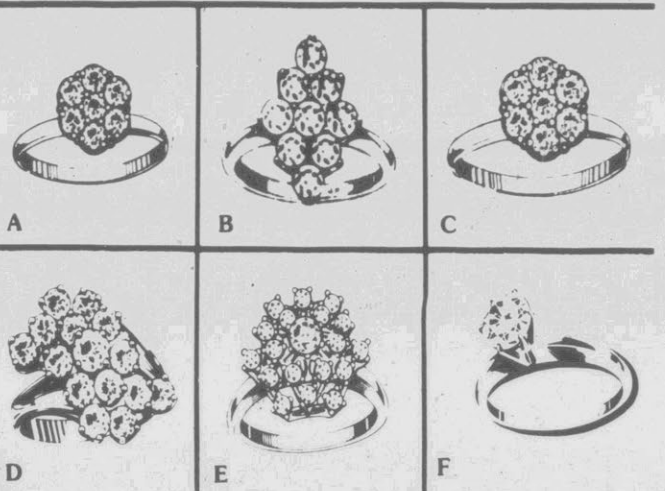

DACCA, Bangladesh (AP) — A cyclone killed six people and injured several hundred in Jamalpur, and took the lives of four others in Bogra as well as causing undetermined damage to houses and crops, newspapers here reported.

CHAMBER LEADERS ATTEND WORKSHOP
Larkin Little, left, chairman of the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce, and William J. Veeder, right, president of the North Carolina Association of Chambers of Commerce and president of the Greater Charlotte Chamber of Commerce, were two of the speakers at a one-day staff and executive workshop for the North Carolina Association of Chamber of Commerce Executives held today in Greenville. Little's topic was "You Should Have Pride In Your Chamber." Other guests included Ed Garland, executive director of the Greater Raleigh Chamber of Commerce, and Tim Smith, executive vice president of the Rocky Mount Chamber. (Reflector Staff Photo)

Not Dead Yet

Many classroom teachers are concerned that they will not have enough representation in their professional organization and disagree with the way the North Carolina Association of Educators plans to dissolve the Association of Classroom Teachers, say local ACT officials.

"We agree with the basics of the organization (NCAE) and support their legislation," said District ACT President Annette McRae. "but we disagree with the way they're going about dissolving our organization."

McRae attended the annual state NCAE convention recently at which dissolution of ACT was discussed. If the proceedings continue, NCAE would "swallow" ACT according to McRae. This move probably wouldn't happen, she said, had the membership of ACT been allowed to vote on the issue.

"There are practical reasons why it (ACT) should be merged into NCAE and we recognize these," added McRae. "We are opposed to not voting on it. We want to make sure programs which are designed to meet the specific needs of teachers are preserved," she said.

At the convention, she noted, NCAE officials defeated narrowly a movement that would have brought the issue to an every-member vote, the opposite of what they did with the superintendent's organization a few years ago.

ACT is devoted exclusively to the needs of classroom teachers, said McRae, and deals with topics such as research on teaching techniques and new materials. In contrast, said McRae, NCAE is all-inclusive — the organization is composed of administrators, retirees and personnel from all facets of education.

"Without ACT there is no guarantee that teachers' needs will be met," she noted, "whereas there are guarantees that the needs of the other facets will be met."

The fate of ACT is not sealed, said McRae, since it will be at least a year until the organization is dissolved, if it is dissolved. "It is conceivable that there would be a (NCAE) constitutional challenge to the move," said the educator. "I would hope something could be done to at least bring the issue to a vote among the membership."

Notoriety Is Unwelcome

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Charles Fuller, winner of the 1982 Pulitzer Prize for drama, says he's uncomfortable with his new notoriety and would like to "disappear so I can do what I do best — write."

Fuller, 43, was raised in the north Philadelphia ghetto, and he says the people he knew there are "in everything I do, everything I write."

He won the Pulitzer on Monday for "A Soldier's Play," which is being presented by the Negro Ensemble Company in an off-Broadway theater.

"Frankly I wasn't sure that everyone would like 'The Soldier's Play,'" he said at a news conference Wednesday.

Fuller, who is black, said he has "fierce racial pride" and has been influenced by "all the black people who have succeeded in doing what they tried to do.

"I grew up in a world where my heroes were all black men fighting to integrate the schools," he said. "They wanted to make life better for us."

Nat'l Frisbee Tourney Here

By SUE RIES
Reflector Staff Writer
The North Carolina Flying Disc Classic, a nationwide Frisbee tournament, will be held at the Allied Health Fields at the intersection of Charles Street and Greenville Boulevard on Saturday and Sunday.

Preliminaries will begin at 9 a.m. Saturday. The finals will start on Sunday at the same time.

Peter Laubert, a student at East Carolina University and North Carolina Frisbee freestyle champion, said the event is being sponsored jointly by WITN radio and Natural Light.

Approximately 150 Frisbee players are expected to be on hand to compete for the $2,000 prize purse, with $750 going to the three-person free style team; $750 to the top two-person team, and $250 each to the top distance and top self-caught player. Some of the proceeds will also go to the March of Dimes campaign.

Top Frisbee players at state, national and international levels are scheduled to be on hand for the competition. These include Don Rhodes, current world free style champion; Jason Salkey, two-time European free style champion, and the champion team of the Velasquez brothers. Another top attraction scheduled is that of Jim Baker of New Bern and his dog, Radar, the Mid-Atlantic state champion dog Frisbee thrower.

Laubert, president of the East Carolina University Frisbee Club, says the club hopes to draw about 5,000 spectators during the two-day competition.

Laubert, a native of New York who is majoring in finance at ECU, has qualified for the past two years for the U.S. free style team.

Former Pitt Resident Will Join In Peace March

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

Former Greenville resident Andy Rector is participating in a six-pronged interfaith World Peace March that will converge on the United Nations building June 5 in support of a nuclear disarmament conference being held from June 9 into July.

Rector, a Hickory native who went to graduate school at East Carolina University and worked as a social worker in the Greenville office of the N.C. Commission for the Blind for several years, made a short visit here this weekend. He left the southern route peace walkers with whom he has spent this year in Smithfield Thursday and rejoined them in Goldsboro Saturday.

"Our group left New Orleans Jan. 1," he said, "and as of last Thursday we had walked 1,250 miles. Generally we walk about 15 to 20 miles a day and stay in churches or people's homes along the way. In most communities we visit, speak publicly and hold prayer vigils."

Included in Rector's walking group are four Buddhist monks from Japan who are the acknowledged leaders, one German, one Canadian, two persons from Washington State, two from Georgia, one from Ohio and one other North Carolinian.

Buddhist monks started the World Peace Walk two and a half years ago in Hiroshima, site of World War II nuclear destruction. Last April the World Assembly of Religious Leaders for Disarmament met in Tokyo and lent its support to the cause for which the walk is held. Some 500 major religious organizations world endorsed it, also.

"The main reason we're walking," Rector said, "is to tell people about the threat of nuclear war and our hopes for a positive outcome to the conference in New York. We advocate a freeze to the arms race at present levels and dismantlement by all countries that have nuclear weapons within 10 years. We would like to see money now being spent on weapons converted to human social development, especially in the Third World countries. There's so much to be done. Two years ago was the International Year of the Child and during that year 50 million children starved to death."

Rector said $550 billion is spent on weapons each year worldwide. Yet the American Friends Service estimates that only $40 million is needed yearly to provide adequate housing, medical care and food for the underdeveloped countries of the world. "We feel diverting weapons money to social causes would do a lot toward removing the causes of war," he commented.

Rector quoted the Union of Concerned Scientists as saying there is a 50-50 chance that we will have a nuclear war by 1990. They believe that the odds by the year 2000 will be 3-2, he added. Determination worldwide that nuclear war will not occur is our only hope, he said.

All the bombs dropped in World War II would equal 2.5 megatons of dynamite, he said. A recent workshop at the Pentagon brought out that, with present capabilities, the next nuclear war could have that 2.5 megaton destruction every six seconds for the first day and last six months.

"So, of course, it's a no-win situation, a possible end to human habitation of the earth, something we've got to prevent," he said. "Once it's started it'll be too late."

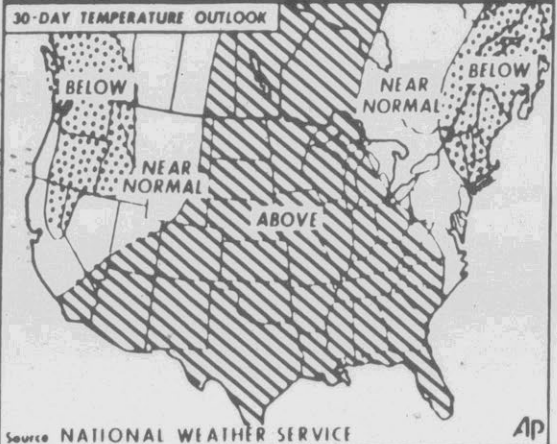

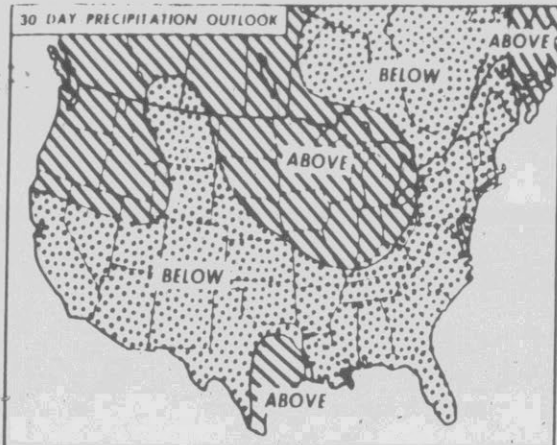

Rector's group plans to be in Washington, D.C. May 10 and fast three days in front of the White House before moving northward to New York.

He said the group has been surprised and gratified by the generous welcomes they've received throughout their walk so far. The mayor of the City of Birmingham, Ala. gave them the key to the city, he said, and a number of mayors and governors, including North Carolina Gov. Jim Hunt, have welcomed them.

Students in a sixth-grade class in Raleigh made 1,000 paper cranes and asked that these accompany the group to the UN. He explained the allusion: It's a Japanese tradition, he said, that to recover from an illness one needs only make 1,000 paper cranes. In 1956, a sixth-grade student in Hiroshima dying from leukemia through radiation started making paper cranes, but when she was working on the 956th one, she died. Her schoolmates made the other 44 and raised 70 million yen to build a crane-shaped monument at Hiroshima.

Rector said he personally has devoted himself to disarmament and world peace. He sold his belongings when he left Greenville, he said, and is planning to live as long as he can on the proceeds of that sale, so as to devote himself full-time to volunteer work for the cause. Once the money's used up, he said, he'll seek another job and may come back to Greenville. He's not sure.

Assisted Bleeding Student In Mishap

By CATHERINE LANDIS
ECU News Bureau

"I don't feel like a hero," says Air Force-ROTC Cadet Stephen R. Jones, after helping a fellow ECU student who cut his arm and nearly bled to death. If Jones had not administered first aid, the injured student might have died, officials said.

Michael Leflore, 19, a freshman from Charlotte, punched his hand through a fire extinguisher case in ECU's Scott Dormitory recently, severing an artery, Jones said. The blood was heavy and spurting.

Jones, a dormitory resident adviser, heard the glass break and rushed from the first floor to the second to find the cause. Jones elevated Leflore's arm above his head and applied pressure to the wound with a towel. Aided by students John Mangum and Michael Sampson, both of Pembroke, Jones got the victim to the ground floor where an ambulance had arrived. Jones said he had instructed a dorm resident to call an ambulance when he saw the seriousness of the injuries.

"Had not Jones taken action as quickly as he did, the boy could have probably bled to death," said Francis M. Eddings, ECU assistant director of security.

Leflore was treated and released from Pitt County Memorial Hospital.

"I have to give credit to the leadership training I have had in the Air Force these past few years," Jones said. "It has taught me not to just sit back and watch things happen." He added that he has never received first aid training.

A junior majoring in psychology, Jones, 23, is the son of Dr. and Mrs. W. R. Jones of 83 Diane Drive, Jacksonville. He is a gradu-

Ground Zero Speakers Agree: Must Not Happen

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

Spokesmen representing both the American and Soviet viewpoints of nuclear war at panel discussions held Wednesday on the East Carolina University campus emphatically agree on one point — the global horrors envisioned in a nuclear conflagration make unthinkable the possibility of reasoning people letting such a conflict take place.

Vadim I. Kuznetsov, First Secretary of the Embassy of the Soviet Union in Washington was the guest spokesman for his country. ECU spokesmen were two political science professors — Lawrence Hough and Edwin R. Griffith; and professor Marie Farr of the English department. Political science professor Lon S. Felker moderated the sessions.

The four hour program — from 10 a.m. to noon and from 2 to 4 p.m., held in Mendenhall Student Center, revolved on the theme "Nuclear War: Causes, Consequences and Cures." The program is the local area prelude event to observance of national "Ground Zero" awareness.

In his remarks, Kuznetsov stressed "an obvious need to negotiate, to come up with concrete means to limit, reduce, and eventually to liquidate arsenals of nuclear weapons."

Referring to the differences in experiences on the part of the United States and the Soviet Union in past wars, specifically World War II, Kuznetsov pointed out that "heavy losses were sustained by the Soviets for the victory over the Nazis. Our wartime losses were 21 million, compared to American military losses of 300,000 on all war fronts."

Because of this tragic, still vividly remembered loss in human lives, Kuznetsov attributes an attitude "in the Soviet Union of a greater abhorrence of war than in America. We feel the need to avert a nuclear war transcends all other considerations. I feel this is not the case in America, and I'm not talking about the 'Better Red than Dead' concept you sometimes hear."

Kuznetsov reiterated what he terms has been a long list of proposals on the part of the Soviet Union to negotiate with the United States on banning of nuclear weapons. He claims, "The U.S. chooses not to listen to a Soviet proposal to ban outright before production neutron weapons and other new types of weapons obviously intended for the European theater."

Another point made by Kuznetsov is the danger of equating the known, documented human suffering that took place in Hiroshima and Nagasaki with what would happen in a nuclear attack today.

"Today's average bomb packs a force 2,500 times more powerful than the little bomb used on Hiroshima," he said. "An idea of the force of a 100 megaton bomb is that it would take five trains carrying TNT stretching from New York to Los Angeles to equal in power a 100 megaton bomb."

The first spokesman on the morning panel, Lawrence Hough, admitted "my point, my perception is that of the idealist."

"The consequences of a nuclear war are too horrible to contemplate. We have all seen speculative documents on how mankind can be destroyed. I feel more and more people are turning their attention to the survival of the human race."

Hough said "My plea is that reasonable, reasoning human beings will reflect the belief that action can be taken to avoid something as devastating as a nuclear war."

"It is a topic so emotionally intense that it is difficult to engage in discourse without degenerating into shouting matches, but the choice, the question of whether there will be

Improve Work In Food Stamps

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina officials say counties improved slightly in handling food stamp cases over a six-month period last year, but errors still involved several million dollars.

Errors were made in 14.38 percent of the cases handled from April 1981 through September 1981, compared to 15.26 percent in the six previous months, officials said.

The national figure for April 1981 through September 1981 was unavailable, but the previous six-month period showed a 12.6 percent error rate.

Officials say overpayments to food stamp recipients and payments to ineligible people totaled about $14.8 million in the last period checked. County social service agencies also made $5.1 million in errors in the form of underpayments to recipients.

The figures came from a sampling of food stamp cases in each county during the period.

"We already have a good indication that our counties are working diligently to bring the error rate down," said Dr. Sarah T. Morrow, secretary of the Department of Human Resources. "I think with the additional training our staff is giving county workers, I see our rate continuing to come down."

Wake County had one of the state's highest error rates at 23.68 percent, nearly four points higher than in the previous period when the figure stood at 19.97 percent.

"I was hoping it would be down some," said Wake County Social Services Director James A. Wight. "But most of the corrective action (taken by state officials and by Wight's staff after the results were received from the previous period) hadn't even gotten started" when the latest sample was taken.

"I am concerned that the rate is still up there, but I don't think it's a matter of gross error," Wight said. "It's going to take time to turn it around."

Dr. Morrow said when she received the results of the previous sampling period that if the problems were not corrected by July 1982, she would ask the Legislature to take the food stamp program away from the counties and contract with private companies.

She said Wednesday she did not intend to pursue a shift to the private sector.

nuclear war is so important that it gives room for demonstrating different opinions, room for negotiations."

Hough takes the stance that "we must look at where we are, what things will lead to. Since the 1940s our assumption is that we could retaliate. This has led to massive arms build up. Misunderstandings could happen, could lead to an accident, or a nuclear war could be started on purpose. These are all things we have to face."

Equating 20th century literature with war, Marie Farr established the fact "I have no big villains to accuse. We all share a common concern on the prevention of war, especially nuclear war."

"Although we have disagreement over the best ends to employ to prevent war, my particular point is that literature is critical in shaping policy positions. Not to choose is also to make a choice."

Ms. Farr hit an emotional response from her listeners with quoting passages from World War I poet Wilfred Owen's powerful poem of death on the battlefields of France. Owen was killed in battle just days before the Armistice. The message of the poem is a compelling denial of the ancient theme of glory of dying in war for one's country, of the obscenity of passing on to children desperate for glory the idea that war, death, suffering is noble.

"The parallels between gas and nuclear weapons are clear," Ms. Farr maintains. "The days of the ideal hero is long gone."

Edwin Griffith, the final of the four panelists, a retired serviceman who served in Korea, Laos and in Vietnam in 1966-67, commented, "Nothing is nice about war. Because of my experiences, I am more interested in preventing war than those who have not seen, have not known war. The horrors mentioned in Owens' poem, the blood coming from dying throats is very real, something I have seen."

New Korean Dynasty?

Today Kim Il-sung, the President of North Korea, celebrates his 70th birthday. Since 1946, Kim has controlled his mountainous nation which boasts substantial mineral and hydroelectric resources. As Kim becomes older, some experts believe that he is maneuvering to establish the world's first Communist dynasty. Kim Jong Il, his son and apparent successor, is at present one of three Vice Presidents. He ranks second in the Communist Party Secretariat and third in the Politburo. The younger Kim now coordinates all military projects in North Korea. Apparently Kim Il-sung hopes his son will carry out his own unfulfilled lifetime dream — reuniting Korea under Communist Rule.

B-1 Cost Figures Said Kept 'Secret'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The General Accounting Office, the investigating arm of Congress, is deciding whether to appeal to the president for access to internal Pentagon estimates of the projected cost of the B-1 bomber, according to a GAO spokeswoman.

The spokeswoman, who asked to remain anonymous, said Wednesday night that the Pentagon is refusing to allow the GAO to see the cost estimates.

Although the agency can appeal to the president, the spokeswoman said, "We are still evaluating what to do."

Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger and Air Force Secretary Verne Orr have "declined to participate" in the agency's probe of the matter, she said.

The official cost estimate for 100 B-1 planes that was released last fall was $20 billion — $28 billion after allowing for inflation. The Congressional Budget Office estimated the cost at $26.2 billion, or $39.8 billion taking inflation into account.

The Washington Post in today's editions quoted unidentified sources as saying Weinberger's Cost Analysis Improvement Group had estimated the B-1 cost at between $27 billion and $28 billion, but it did not say whether that was before or after inflation.

Under a 1980 law, the president can reject a GAO request for documents from non-cooperating agencies if he finds that it would pose a danger to national security or would seriously impair the operations of the federal government.

The GAO has sent such a request to the president in only one other instance, asking for access to Drug Enforcement Agency files two weeks ago.

The two agencies reached a compromise on that matter on Wednesday, the GAO spokeswoman said, under which names of informants will be inked out before GAO investigators get documents.

Navy Rules Out Using Idled Liner

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — The Defense Department has decided not to convert the luxury liner United States into a hospital ship, it was reported today.

The Norfolk Virginian-Pilot quoted unidentified Navy sources in Washington as saying the Navy instead will convert at least two other vessels into floating hospitals.

The Navy has had no hospital ship since the Sanctuary, used during the Vietnam war, was taken out of service several years ago.

The United States cost $79.5 million when it was completed in 1952 at Newport News Shipbuilding & Dry Dock Co.

It was one of the fastest and most luxurious passenger ships in the world, and still owns the trans-Atlantic crossing speed record.

The decision again leaves the liner's fate in limbo. The vessel was purchased by the Maritime Administration in 1973 for $12.5 million and has been tied up at Norfolk International Terminals for more than a decade.

Richard Hadley, a Seattle businessman who owns U.S. Cruises Inc., said this week his company's plans to rejuvenate the United States as a cruise ship are still alive, but he would not disclose financing options for the proposal.

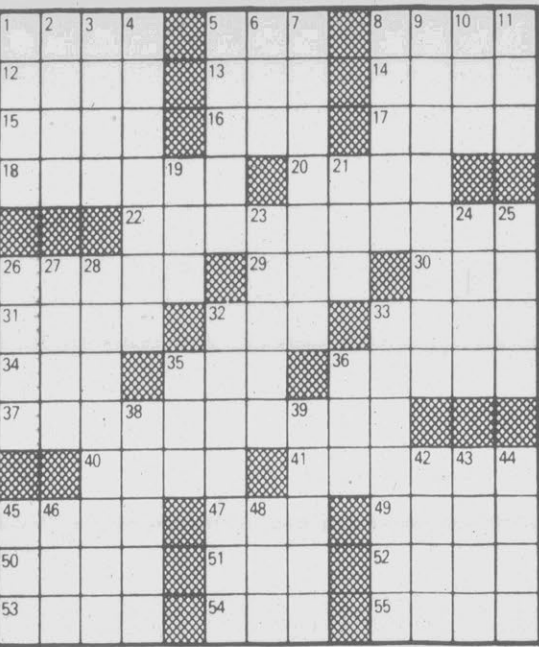

The decision not to convert the liner into a hospital ship apparently was based on cost. The estimated price for converting the ship rose from an original $30 million to about $400 million, Navy sources told the Virginian-Pilot.

Navy budget documents show it canceled a $10 million preliminary funding request for the conversion, while seeking $560 million in 1983 and 1984 to convert two or more other ships into hospital vessels.

Navy specifications say the ships would have a combined capacity of 2,000 patients and combined crews and medical staffs of 3,500.

Vice Adm. Robert L. Walters, deputy chief of naval operations for surface warfare, told a congressional committee March 4 that "the lack of afloat medical care is widely recognized as the most serious deficiency in our ability to support combat forces ashore."

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You are in a state of mind that could lead to a confrontation with an associate, but you would be wise to maintain a peaceful attitude. Make plans to have more abundance.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Use tact instead of forcefulness with others and accomplish a lot more. Discuss the future with financial experts.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Don't waste time with the wrong persons today. Go to the right source for valuable information you need.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) A financial arrangement may be annoying in the morning but solve it wisely and make better plans for the future.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Take steps to improve your health and appearance, and then go after your most cherished desires.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) A secret worry should be forgotten now and later you can easily resolve the matter. Adopt a logical outlook on life.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Contact friends you have not seen in a long time and deepen the relationships. Enjoy the social side of life tonight.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Strive to have increased harmony with family members. Bring your talents to the attention of influential persons.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You may find it hard to step out of that convenient rut you are in early in the day, but later you can do so easily.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Don't neglect duties you have assumed and discharge them with true efficiency. Be careful of outsiders.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Study what close ties expect of you during the day and then try to please them in the evening. Avoid trouble.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Try to enlist the help of loyal friends for a new project you have in mind. Avoid one who is a gossip.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Contact congenials for recreational purposes since you are in need of fun. The evening can be especially happy for you.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will have great capability for solving problems of others, so be sure to give the right education to make the most of this ability. Direct it toward salesmanship for best results. A good family person in this chart.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices drifted lower today, continuing a week-long slide, amid lingering uncertainties about political and economic unrest.
 The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, which fell 2.95 points Wednesday and has given up 4.85 points this week, slipped another 1.52 points to 836.57 by noon.
 Stocks falling in price slightly outnumbered gainers in the mid-day tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.
 Tensions in the South Atlantic and Middle East remain high, contributing to investor uncertainty.

Pirates Bomb Bulldogs In Twinbill

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
WILSON — Trailing 7-0 after just two innings of play in the first game of a doubleheader, East Carolina unleashed its bats and came away with a pair of poundings against Atlantic Christian last night. The Pirates won the opener, 14-7, and wrapped things up with a 13-6 win in the nightcap. Although the Pirates got only eight hits in the opening game, they made them pay off, also taking advantage of seven Bulldog errors. In the second game, East Carolina banged out 21 hits, including six doubles and a triple.

Kirk Parsons turned in the stellar job on the mound for the Pirates. He came in in relief of Charlie Smith in the opener, and although facing a 7-0 deficit, held the Bulldogs scoreless the rest of the way. In five and a third innings, he allowed only two hits — to the first and next-to-last batters he faced, while walking none and striking out three.

Chubby Butler hurled the win in the second game, giving up a run in the second, but doing a fine job until the seventh when he tired and gave up a three-run double and a two-run homer that capped the ACC scoring.

The two both boosted their records to 3-0 with the wins. Coach Hal Baird admitted that maybe he went too far with Butler in the second game, but that he needed to get a complete game from him.

"With so many games coming up (a doubleheader tonight and three single games over the next three days), we needed to keep him out there."

And Baird had praise for the job done by Parsons. "Kirk did a great job. He had the best stuff he's had this year, and he did it at a good time too. He shut them down and gave us a chance to get back in it."

And about the play of the Pirates in the first few innings when they made three errors that made all but two of the Bulldog runs unearned, he said. "We looked like frogs in a fish bowl out there. But it sure was good to see the bats finally come around."

Two Guards Sign With ECU

East Carolina head basketball coach Dave Odom announced the signing of guards Tony Robinson of Jamestown (N.Y.) Community College and Curt Vanderhorst of Fayetteville Douglas Byrd High School, yesterday.

Both are 6-1, 180-pound point guards.

"One of our main goals at the beginning of recruiting season was to improve our backcourt," Odom said. "We wanted to add speed, versatility and depth. Both of these young men give us those qualities."

Robinson was tabbed by Bill Cronauer of the BC Scouting Service as the top guard at the National Junior College Tournament in March. Robinson averaged 13.8 points and 6.2 assists for Jamestown, which went 33-3, and finished seventh in the national tournament. During his two seasons at the point, the Goldboro native who prepped at Brighton High School in Boston, led the team to a 62-9 record. He twice was named all-Region III. He is the all-time assist leader at Jamestown and finished 13th on their all-time scoring list with 652 points. He selected East Carolina over Rhode Island and Marshall.

Vanderhorst averaged 15 points, 5.3 assists and 3.3 steals a game for the eighth-ranked 4-A team. He helped the team to a 20-7 record and into the regional playoffs where they were beaten by eventual state champs, Rocky Mount. He was a unanimous all-Mid-South pick this year after making the squad as a junior. He also was his team's MVP as a junior. He selected East Carolina over Richmond and Western Carolina.

"The way Curt went is the way our team went," Byrd coach Lewis Konoad said. "He's a total team player. If it took 20 points from him to win a game, he went out and got them. If it took 10 assists from him to win, he'd go out and get 10 assists."

Other signings are expected within the next two weeks in the Pirate camp.

Baird said he wasn't sure if the Pirates were flat when they started out, or were just looking ahead to tonight's twinbill against N.C. State. "I heard some of them talking on the way over about State, so that could have been it. We try and keep them from doing that (looking ahead), but I guess it's just human nature."

At any rate, the Pirates looked around and saw where they were before it was too late, storming back to sweep the two and raise their record to 23-7 on the year. Atlantic Christian dropped to 11-18 with the pair of losses.

For a while, however, it looked like the "Dogs might be after a win. They pushed over one run in the first. David Lawhon led off with a walk and moved up on Eric McDaniels' single. With two away, Chuck Downs reached on an error, allowing Lawhon to score.

Then, in the second, the Bulldogs batted around, scoring six times. Russell Williamson led off, reaching on

Pirates Add Quarterback

Two sport standout John Williams will switch from basketball to football at East Carolina University, Pirate head coach Ed Emory announced Wednesday.

A guard on North Greenville (S.C.) Junior College's basketball team this season, Williams was a South Carolina Shrine Bowl quarterback in 1979. At Wrenn High School in Greenville, S.C., the 6-1, 190-pound signal caller, ran and passed for over 2,000 yards and was responsible for 23 touchdowns as a senior.

Williams averaged 10.3 points and four assists a game for North Greenville's team this season, helping the team to a 22-9 record. The guard shot 54 percent from the floor and 70 percent from the line and had a single game high of 22 points.

"He's just a super person," North Greenville coach Steve Lyttle said. "He's an excellent athlete and awfully strong for his size. He's a winner, the kind of kid you like to have in your program."

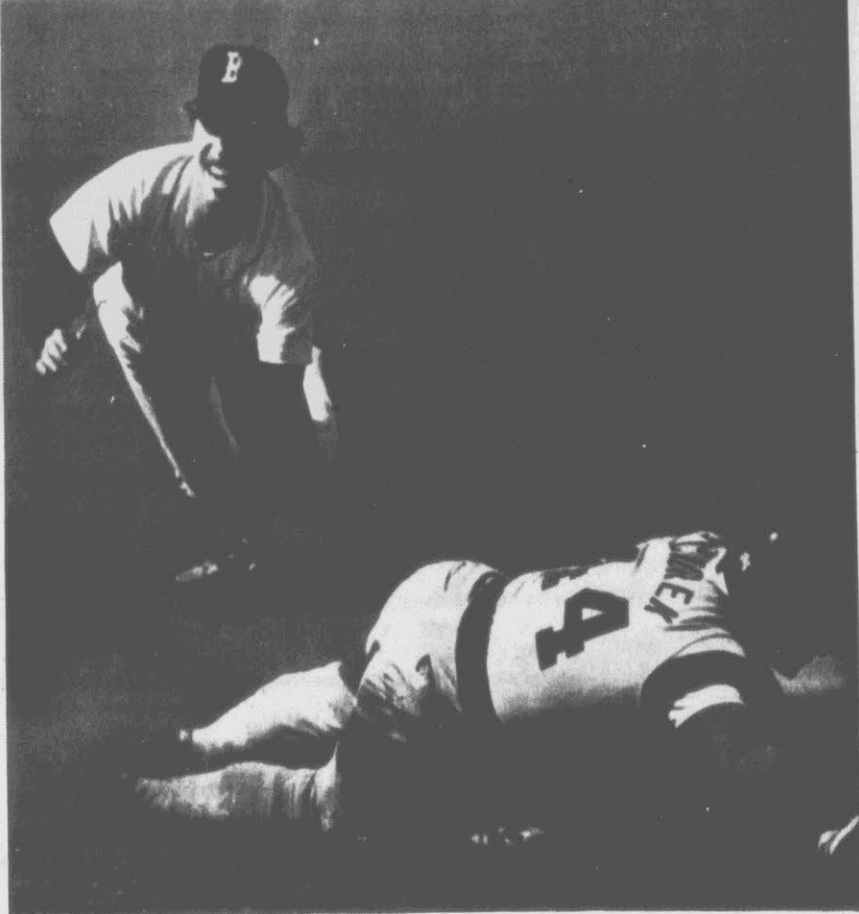

Emory, heading into his third season as ECU head coach, recalled recruiting Williams while at Georgia Tech. "Tech ended up inking Williams to a basketball grant-in-aid despite football offers from Clemson, North Carolina, Tennessee and South Carolina. He left Tech during his freshman year, then enrolled in North Greenville. I had a chance to see him play in high school. He's a great prospect with a great arm."

"He played in the 1979 Shrine Bowl and we tried to sign him for football. We sold him on Georgia Tech, but he decided to play basketball."

"I followed his career. At this time, he feels football is his sport. We feel like he can catch up. He has the ability to be an outstanding quarterback or defensive back. He's a premier athlete. He's talented enough to play almost any sport."

There is also a chance that Williams may try basketball at East Carolina also.

California Finally Gains Sweep Of Marathon Series With Seattle

By The Associated Press
There's nothing like a little baseball. Only problem is, California and Seattle don't know the meaning of "little."

They played 13 innings Wednesday night. The last 10 were your run-of-the-mill extra-inning game. The first three were tacked on to the 17 innings they played Tuesday night.

That's more than three games' worth in two nights. For the Angels, at least, it was worth it. A pair of victories, 4-3 in the 20-inning affair, then 2-1.

In the rest of the American League it was Texas 4, New York 1; Toronto 5, Detroit 4; Chicago 5, Boston 4; Oakland 7, Minnesota 5 in 12 innings; Cleveland 6, Milwaukee 2, and Kansas City 3, Baltimore 2.

"I was just glad we could walk away with a tie after 17 innings Tuesday night," said Don Baylor, who had six hits in the two games. "We were down to our last out and managed to tie it."

In fact, the Mariners were down to their last out in the ninth inning of both games but managed to tie it each time. It was in the 15th inning, after Seattle had gone ahead, that the Angels knotted things 3-3 and prolonged the agony.

"Our hitting will come around," Baylor said. "Reggie and I feel the same way, we know we have to produce or we're not going to win."

Reggie — Jackson, of course — finally found a bit of ammo in his bat. After going 0-for-20, he singled in the third inning to drive in the Angels' first run in the regularly scheduled game.

"You know we're going to hit, so the club getting pitching like it has gives us a lift," said Jackson, now batting an anemic .161.

Bob Boone of the Angels got the winning hit that brought the 20-inning affair to a close. "No, I wasn't tired," he said. "After it goes on, you start getting a little slap-happy. I was glad we could get the first one over in three innings, though."

Bobby Grich had the winning hit in the 10-inning game, a double in the bottom of the 10th after his wild throw on a potential game-ending double-play ball gave Seattle a run and forced extra innings.

Rangers 4, Yankees 1
Billy Sample didn't like the idea of being relegated to the bench when Lee Mazzilli arrived from the New York Mets. He wanted to be back in left field. Against the Yankees, he was. And he also was on the bases.

He was hit by a pitch once, walked once, and stole second and scored each time, on singles by Larry Parrish and Buddy Bell.

"I was glad to play, to get out on the field and work out my frustrations with physical activity," said Sample, who returned to the lineup when Mazzilli was sidelined with an injury.

Blue Jays 5, Tigers 4
Like Sample, Buck Martinez couldn't wait for the chance to play hero. Toronto's reserve catcher stepped to the plate in the bottom of the ninth with two outs and a man on second and singled to beat the Tigers.

"I'm always in the game, always ready," he said. "I was just trying to make good contact. I'm not that good a hitter where I can aim the ball at anybody."

White Sox 5, Red Sox 4
Unbeaten Chicago is off to its best start since 1959, when it won the American League pennant — and the Windy City fans haven't even had a chance to see them in person yet.

"Being 4-0 is great because these four games have been all on the road," said Tom Paciorek, whose three-run homer in the seventh inning upended Boston. "Beating the Yankees twice and the Red Sox twice is a compliment to our ballclub."

A's 7, Twins 5
Tony Armas "hits in the clutch all the time, not just this year," Oakland Manager Billy Martin said after Armas hit in the clutch twice against Minnesota, putting the ball over the Metrodome wall each time.

He boosted the A's into a 5-5 tie in the eighth inning with a solo home run, then unloaded a two-run shot in the 12th for the victory.

"I hit the first one real good," Armas said. "It would go out in any ballpark. But the second, I wasn't sure if it was good enough."

Indians 6, Brewers 2
Designated hitter Andre Thornton had three singles and drove in three runs to lead Cleveland's 10-hit attack while John Denny and Dan Spillner teamed for a seven-hitter against the Brewers, who had averaged 10 runs in the previous four games.

"That club can score runs awful fast," Indians Manager Dave Garcia said. "It takes good pitching to stop them."

Royals 3, Orioles 2
Amos Otis followed an intentional walk to George Brett with a two-out, ninth-inning single that boosted Kansas City past the Orioles.

Jerry Martin of the Royals and Baltimore's Lenn Sakata traded solo homers.

Braves Know They Can Win Lady Pirates Storm Past Heels In Lopsided Wins

By The Associated Press
The Atlanta Braves are off to their best start since they played in Boston, and pitcher Tommy Boggs says there has been a psychological change.

"Now, there's no doubt in our minds we know we can go out and win," Boggs said after the undefeated Braves won their eighth game.

Boggs started but did not figure in the decision as Atlanta completed a three-game sweep at Cincinnati Wednesday with a 5-2, 10-inning victory over the Reds.

The Braves are off to their best start since statisticians began to keep records of that sort in 1930, when they were the Boston Bees. Since Boggs joined the organization four years ago, the Braves have posted a 266-323 record.

"It's easy to handle something like this," Boggs said. "It's easier to handle than what we went through for the last four years."

Boggs was long gone before the action began in earnest Wednesday. Bruce Benedict's RBI double in the ninth inning knotted the score 2-2, and he walked with the bases loaded and two away in the 10th inning to force in the tie-breaking run. Rafael Ramirez doubled home two insurance runs.

"We proved right there that we could battle back," Benedict said. "We flat out took it from them. That's the sign of a good team."

In other National League games, Montreal edged Pittsburgh 5-4, the New York Mets clobbered Philadelphia 8-1, St. Louis shaded the Chicago Cubs 3-1, San Diego nosed out San Francisco 3-2 and Houston nipped Los Angeles 2-1.

Cincinnati took a 1-0 lead in the second when Cesar Cedeno doubled, advanced to third on a single by Clint Hurdle and scored when Mike O'Berry grounded into a fielder's choice.

Atlanta tied it 1-1 in the third on a wild pitch by Reds starter Frank Pastore, and Cincinnati gave Pastore the lead again in the bottom of the inning when Dan Driessen doubled home a run.

The loss dropped Cincinnati to 2-6. "Our start naturally is a disappointment," said Reds Manager John McNamara. "Beating anybody would be tough the way we're playing."

Expos 5, Pirates 4
Pinch-hitter Jerry White slugged a two-out, three-run homer in the sixth inning, rallying Montreal to victory in its home opener before 35,941 at Olympic Stadium.

Scott Sanderson worked six innings for his first victory, yielding three hits and two unearned runs.

Mets 8, Phillies 1
Leadoff hitter Mookie Wilson slugged a two-run homer, and Ron Gardenhire drove in three runs to back right-hander Mike Scott to his first victory this year for New York.

Scott, 1-1, scattered seven hits, walked one and struck out four.

Cardinals 3, Cubs 1
Andy Rincon tossed a three-hitter, and the Cardinals got two runs in the seventh inning on a two-out single by Tommy Herr to beat Chicago. Rincon struck out four and walked five as he overcame a shaky start to post his first victory.

Ozzie Smith got St. Louis started in the seventh with a one-out single. Cubs starter Ferguson Jenkins overthrew first base on Rincon's bunt, allowing Smith to go to third and Rincon to second. After another out, Herr singled both men home for a 3-1 lead.

Padres 3, Giants 2
Juan Bonilla's RBI-double in a two-run first inning started Tim Lollar and the Padres on their way past San Francisco.

Gene Richards led off the first against Dan Schatzeder with a single and scored on a double by Bonilla, who then came home on Sixto Lezcano's double. Rennie Martin's bases-loaded wild pitch in the fourth gave San Diego its winning run.

Astros 2, Dodgers 1
Alan Ashby broke up a pitching duel between Don Sutton and Burt Hooton, slamming his second homer in two games and third of the season to break a seventh-inning tie.

Steve Garvey's single gave the Dodgers a run in the top of the first but Houston got in back in the bottom of the inning on Jose Cruz's single.

Stadler Looks For Relaxation

RANCHO LA COSTA, Calif. (AP) — Craig Stadler was looking forward to a bit of welcome relief today in the first round of the $350,000 MONY-Tournament of Champions.

"It'll be nice to get out and play a relaxing round of golf," said Stadler, who has been on a frantic, non-stop pace since winning the coveted Masters title in a playoff at Augusta, Ga., last Sunday.

"It's just been so damn hectic," said Stadler, who once had to get up at 2:30 in the morning to attend a television network interview. He's been swamped by telephone calls, messages and interview requests.

"I'm a little drained from it all," he said Wednesday after a final practice round over the 6,911 yard La Costa Country Club course. But that's alright. It's well worth it.

While this elite gathering of only the winners of PGA Tour titles from the last 12 months often is a low-key, relaxing, easy-going week for golf's touring pros, Stadler can't realistically expect much relief from attention.

He's a native of the area and has a large group of family and friends with him. "It's going to be a hectic week, but I'm sure a lot of them are going to be from now on," he said. "There's no real adjustment necessary. I just need to find time for some rest."

Despite the turmoil of attention he has received and the letdown that is normal after a victory in one of the game's major events, Stadler remained a leading contender for the $63,000 first prize in this exclusive gathering of 31 champions from the last 12 months.

Chief among his challengers are defending title-holder Lee Trevino, Tom Watson and Tom Kite.

Watson, like Stadler a three-time winner in the qualifying period for this tournament, won the T of C title two years in a row before Trevino broke through last season. He's collected two victories this year and played well in Augusta last week.

Kite, last year's leading money-winner, has won once this season, been second in two others, third in another and was a strong fifth in the Masters.

Other top candidates include PGA title-holder Larry Nelson, British Open champ Bill Rogers and U.S. Open king David Graham of Australia.

In addition to Stadler, Watson and Rogers, the men who have won more than once in the last 12 months are Jerry Pate, Jay Haas, Ed Fiori and Hale Irwin.

Also in the field are Dave Eichelberger, Ron Streck, Bruce Lietzke, Fuzzy Zoeller, Ray Floyd, Dave Barr, John Mahaffey, Peter Oosterhuis, Hubert Green, Keith Fergus and Danny Edwards.

to close the gap to 7-6. With one down, Todd Evans singled and after two were away, Fran Fitzgerald walked. Jack Curlings then smacked the ball over the fence in left for a three-run homer.

Kelly Robinette kept things going with a walk and Robert Wells reached on an error. Ricky Nichols singled to left, scoring Robinette, and when the ball got past the left fielder, both Wells and Nichols circled the bases, and the Pirates were down by only one.

They got that in the next inning, tying it up. With one away, Evans was hit by a pitch and Todd Hendley singled. A hit by Fitzgerald brought in Evans for a 7-7 deadlock.

And that didn't last long as the Pirates scored six more runs in the sixth to lock up the win. Nichols walked and stole second. David Wells also walked, and Mike Sorrell reached on an error as he attempted to sacrifice, with Nichols scoring on the play. Wells scored on Evans' sacrifice fly.

Hendley singled in Sorrell, and moved up when Fitzgerald's infield grounder was errored at second. Curlings walked, loading them up, and Robinette had a two-run single. Robert Wells banged in the other run with a single.

The final run came in the seventh after two were out. Hendley reached on a two-base error and scored when Fitzgerald also reached on an error.

Hendley led the ECU hitting with two, while McDaniels and Williamson had two each for Atlantic Christian.

East Carolina wasted little time in taking the lead in the second game, scoring twice in the first. Nichols reached on an infield hit and stole second, scoring when David Wells singled. Evans doubled in Wells.

Atlantic Christian came up with its first run in the second. Ruff Bailey led off with an infield hit that third baseman Todd Hendley didn't make a play on after catching, claiming it was foul. After one out, Jody Adams singled and Williamson also got a hit, loading them up. Ken Meekins grounded into a fielder's choice, with Bailey scoring on the play.

The Pirates added a sixth run in the fifth. Evans singled, moved up on an error and scored on Hendley's double.

Four crossed in the sixth. Jay Carraway tripled to open the inning, and Robert Wells singled in courtesy runner Chuck Bishop. Nichols singled and Evans hit a double scoring both runners. Evans scored on Hendley's single.

The final three came in the seventh. Carraway walked and Curlings ran for him. Robert Wells doubled and Bishop, batting for David Wells, singled in Curlings. A wild pitch brought in Robert Wells, and Evans singled in Bishop to end the East Carolina scoring.

The Bulldogs then got to Butler for five runs in the bottom of the inning. Adams led off with a single and after two outs, Boyette walked. Collazo also walked loading the bases. All three runners came in on a double by Lawhon, and Mack Smith finished it off with a homer to right.

Evans led the ECU hitting with four, while Nichols and Hendley each had three, and David Wells, Sorrell, Fitzgerald, Carraway and Robert Wells each had two.

Bailey and Adams had two each for Atlantic Christian.

The Pirates return home tonight for a 5 p.m. doubleheader against N.C. State, then host Campbell in single games Friday and Saturday night.

Banquet Speaker

Mimi Senkowski, project director for special events for Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co., will be the speaker at the East Carolina Lady Pirate basketball banquet, to be held Tuesday, it was announced today.

As director of events for the banking firm, she has helped sponsor the Westchester Golf Classic, the Women's Christmas Classic held at Madison Square Garden (which featured Old Dominion, Louisiana State, Chaney State and Rutgers this year), and has helped in the New York City Marathon.

She is also the co-designer of the Women's Sports Foundation Hall of Fame.

Her athletic background includes being a camp counselor at Pat Kennedy Basketball Camps; being a four-year starter in basketball, including one year at Delaware and three years at Pittsburgh, of which she is a 1978 graduate with a degree in economics. She holds a masters' from Lehigh, earned in 1979.

The banquet will be held at 7 p.m. Tuesday at Ramada Inn.

High Point Downs ECU

High Point College swept the doubles matches and gained a 6-3 tennis victory over the East Carolina Lady Pirates yesterday.

The two teams had split the singles matches, each winning three.

"I was disappointed," Coach Caroline Brown said. "We had some good wins in the singles, but a lot of errors in the doubles. I was surprised that we didn't take any of the doubles."

The loss dropped the Lady Pirates to 5-5 on the season. They entertain Campbell on Friday at 3 p.m.

Night Football: To Play Or Not To Play

By TOM FOREMAN Jr.
AP Sports Writer

If television wants nighttime college football, some schools apparently are willing to give it to them, even if it means making some big changes. The case in point is the University of Georgia. They were scheduled to entertain national champion Clemson in Sanford Stadium on the afternoon of Sept. 18.

But with national television talking big bucks and big exposure, Bulldog football coach and athletic director Vince Dooley decided a change would be in order. The game is now scheduled for Labor Day night at 9 p.m.

If doesn't seem to be such a bad idea to showcase a school's talent before a national audience, but it's sort of hard when your home field has no lights. So, Dooley has also decided that Sanford Stadium will have some sort of lighting, either temporary or permanent, for Labor Day. He said last week that daytime football fans need not worry.

"It should be emphasized that this does not represent a permanent move to night football for Georgia," Dooley said. "Daytime football has always been a great Georgia tradition and will continue to be."

While Dooley assured his fans that they can still watch

Herschel Walker run over defenses in broad daylight, he did allow that television did sway his decision.

"With the networks interested in more prime-time college football, it's a good opportunity for us to have the capabilities of a night game from time to time," he said.

ABC, CBS and WTBS-Atlanta will televise college football during the 1982 season. All three will show some night games, but WTBS will televise the games the other two networks don't choose to show. Ironically, it's the second time in two years that Clemson has been involved in a football game in which television has asked for a change of date. In 1981, the Tigers and North Carolina, both ranked in the Associated Press Top 20, were to play the biggest game of the Atlantic Coast Conference's life. ABC Sports wanted North Carolina to switch the date to allow for national television exposure. Both schools balked at the move and chose to play the game on its original date of Nov. 3.

The teams were eventually relegated to so-called "regional" coverage, while Georgia and Florida met in the well-lighted Gator Bowl before the entire nation.

Thus, the issue facing many colleges, including those in the ACC, is whether the fruits of national television are worth a change in tradition as well as a major expenditure. Clemson Athletic Director Bill McLellan thinks it is, saying that as soon as his school begins its next expansion of Death Valley, lights will be a major concern.

"In the ACC, the programs have got to justify looking at lights," McLellan says. "I would say schools that have sold-out situations should definitely make this a business decision."

Three of the ACC's eight schools have lights in their stadiums — Georgia Tech, North Carolina State and Wake Forest. Following Clemson, a spot check of the four remaining schools indicates that at least one is considering shedding some light on their football.

Virginia, which just recently expanded Scott Stadium to include an upper deck, has also seen the light. Assistant Athletic Director Jim West says the school is in the process of doing an estimate on the cost of installing lights.

Lady Tigers Top 'Skins

WILLIAMSTON — Williamston High School scored early and rolled to a 15-6 softball victory over Roanoke High School yesterday in a Northeastern Conference game.

Williamston pushed over four runs in the first inning and added another pair in the second before Roanoke came up with single runs in the third and fourth. Williamston slammed the door with seven in the bottom of the fourth and added two more in the fifth. Roanoke added four more in the sixth.

Lynn Mills, Wanda Price and Celestine Perkins each had two hits to lead Williamston. G. Biggs had a three-run homer in the sixth to lead the Roanoke hitting.

Williamston is now 6-2 and plays host to North Pitt today. Roanoke plays host to Ahsokie on Tuesday.

West says the intent is two-fold. First, the school wants to get in on the three-network bonanza and second, he says the school would like to host the state high school football playoffs.

"It depends a whole lot on what it will cost to do it," West adds. "There's a possibility." Legend has it that North Carolina can't install lights in Kenan Stadium because of a stipulation in the will of William R. Kenan. But athletic director John Swofford says he knows of no such provision and adds the school is open to installing temporary lighting to accommodate television.

That temporary lighting would come from Musco Sports Lighting Inc., an Iowa firm which seems to have hit on a sure-fire idea. In the meantime, Swofford says temporary is the only lighting Kenan will have.

"As far as Chapel Hill is concerned, we would be more interested in lights on the basis of the second game of a doubleheader late in the season than we would be as far as playing night football," Swofford says. "I don't think our constituency would be favorable to night football in Kenan Stadium."

However, Swofford isn't totally averse to playing under the lights in Chapel Hill if the networks ask. After all, television does help pay the bills.

"I think it's a real plus for college football that more than one network is involved in the process," he says. "I don't mean that critically of ABC. I think it's a healthier situation to have more than one network involved because it creates a competitive situation between the networks. I think the beneficiary of that situation is going to be the colleges."

ACC Schools Add Prep Stars On Signing Day

By The Associated Press
North Carolina basketball coach Dean Smith kept his winning streak alive Wednesday, but this time it was off the court. Smith signed two of the Tar Heel state's top prep prospects to national letters of intent.

The two players signed are 6-foot-11, 215-pound Brad Daugherty of Swannanoa Owen and 6-5 swingman Curtis Hunter of Southern Durham. Athletic Director John Swofford said Smith was flying to Jenks, Okla., today to sign his third prospect, 6-3 guard Steve Hale.

Duke coach Mike Krzyzewski also got into the pen and paper act, signing 6-9 Bill Jackman of Grant, Neb. Jackman was reportedly under heavy pressure to stay home and play for the University of Nebraska.

Blue Devil coaches planned to sign three other players Wednesday. They were 6-8 Mark Alarie of Phoenix, Ariz.; 6-9 Jay Bilas of Rolling Hills, Calif.; and 6-3 Johnny Dawkins, a high-scoring guard from Mackin High in Washington D.C.

Duke coaches are scheduled to sign 6-5 David Henderson of Warren County today and, on Friday, will fly to Crete, Ill., to ink Crete-mone star Weldon Williams, a 6-8 forward.

North Carolina State got into the act when coach Jim Valvano got the signature of 6-7 Alvin Battle, a North Carolina native who has been playing his hoops at Merced Junior College in California.

The Wolfpack have received verbal commitments from 6-6

Walt Densmore of Tuscaloosa, Ala., and 6-3 guard Ernie Myers from Tolentine High in the Bronx, N.Y.

Wake Forest has verbal commitments from two players, 6-9 Tony Krasek of East Moline, Ill., and Steve Warden, 6-5, of Forsyth Country Day in Winston-Salem.

Elsewhere in the Atlantic Coast Conference, Georgia Tech had a big day, signing 6-9 Tim Harvey of Plainfield, N.J., and 6-7 Jack Mansell of Sharon, Pa.

Maryland got one of the nation's top recruits when it signed 6-7 Len Bias of Hyattsville, Md., Northwestern. Coach Lefty Dreisell also penned Jeff Baxter, a 6-2 guard from Washington, D.C., Carroll.

Virginia's lone recruit thus far is 6-4 Ken Lambotte of Woodstock, Va., Central.

Outside the ACC, East Carolina signed two 6-1 players. Troy Robinson, from Jamestown, N.Y., Community College and Curt Vanderhorst of Fayetteville Vinder walked the Pirates' plank.

And 6-9 Eric Lewis of Kinston opted to go outside the state, signing with Jacksonville University's Dolphins.

Wilkins MVP In Losing Effort

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Bones McKinney's Blue team defeated Clarence "Big House" Gaines' White squad 125-113 Wednesday night in an all-star basketball game pitting players from the Atlantic Coast Conference and a few from other schools against each other.

Washington, N.C., native Dominique Wilkins, who played collegiately at Georgia, was named the game's most valuable player. Wilkins ripped the nets for 42 points in a losing effort, hitting on 18 of 34 field goals.

The Blue team was led by Wake Forest's Mike Helms with 27. Wake's Guy Morgan chipped in with 21 points and 10 rebounds, and Duke's Vince Taylor added 17 for the blues.

BLUE (125) — Morgan 8 5-21, Helms 13 1-17, Johnstone 6 4-6, Taylor 8 1-17, Doods 8 0-16, Ross 3 4-10, Wyatt 6 0-12, Greene 3 0-6, TOTALS 55 15-19 125.

WHITE (113) — Wilkins 18 6-10 42, Black 14 4-6, Nevitt 1 0-2, Jones 4 0-8, Brust 9 1-11 29, Barlow 2 2-2 6, Parzyeh 5 2-2 12, Hall 4 0-8 8, Perry 0 0-0. TOTALS: 45 23-29 113.

Halftime score—Blue 59, White 54.

Pet Boa Named Salvador Called Cool Character

CLOSE PAL - John Houck, a sophomore at Whitman College in Walla Walla, Wash., occasionally takes his pet boa constrictor, Salvador, to class with him to give fellow students a look at the snake's eating habits.

WALLA WALLA, Wash. (AP) - In his glass cage, in the quiet hallway of a vine-covered building at Whitman College, lies powerful, cool, slithery Salvador, waiting.

It's been four weeks since the 6-foot, 5-inch boa constrictor has eaten. Now, a knot of students gathers to watch the ritual of his meal.

Salvador belongs to John Houck, a sophomore from Olympia, Wash., and long-time owner of snake, lizard and turtle pets. The snake arrived on campus, stashed in Houck's knapsack, to take up residence in the school's Hall of Science and to visit an occasional zoology lab or invertebrate class.

Each month, before Salvador gets his dinner, Houck conducts an informal seminar on the feeding, handling, personality and value of snakes.

The snake coils in graceful loops around Houck's neck, his head swaying as though he is enchanted by a swami's flute.

"Salvador is cuddly. It's a real different feeling having him around your neck. He's snug, like a coat," Houck enthuses.

He claims Salvador is gentle with people and not dangerous, that he is not strong enough to strangle an adult human being and can be pulled off if he starts to constrict.

However, the snake does have sharp teeth and lightning reflexes.

"I didn't see him bite me," says Betsy Nale, a Whitman student from Yakima, Wash.

She was snake-sitting outdoors one day when the sun awakened Salvador's interest in the world around him. He disagreed with her over how far he could roam. She doesn't hold a grudge, though. In the college atmosphere of books and lofty idealism, Salvador is a reminder of elemental aspects of life, she says.

"It's interesting to see the natural life cycle going around in its eternal form. He's always been the way he is; he'll always be that way."

When Houck drops a live, fat rat into Salvador's cage, the big snake doesn't flinch. He waits, patient, calm, while the rat wanders nonchalantly around the cage. Then, in one motion too fast to be seen, Salvador strikes and wraps a coil around the rat.

It's a humane death. Salvador's powerful muscles quickly squeeze the breath from the rat, usually without breaking a bone.

"People don't see things die right in front of them that often. It's an educational thing," Houck comments. "Salvador must kill the rat so he can live. It happens all the time in the natural world, but humans remove themselves from that system. We have slaughterhouses do it rather than bloody our own hands."

"It's important for people to see life and death in action. We don't think about it the way we would if we lived in a primitive society," he says.

Larry Chew, a Malaysian student, has held Salvador, but now that he has watched the snake feeding, he has a dread of doing it again.

"When I saw him strike the rat, I changed my mind. My fear is that I can't handle all that power," he explains. "I wouldn't know what to do if Salvador attacked me."

Yet, Reeder related, most other clergy told him they forgot about their religious missions much of the time and thought only about how they could help make African life more bearable.

"I learned to love the African blacks for their incredible, unbelievable patience. Their long-suffering tolerance of so much in their lives going wrong. Especially women. They work at the hardest jobs until they simply drop dead."

The trumpets of African independence are now stilled by enormous hunger, disease and runaway inflation.

Reeder says that, despite considerable mineral wealth in parts of the continent, most of its 350 million inhabitants live on the brink of starvation and death by disease.

Africa, he warns, is dying in muffled, mournful gasps.

Other Mormons have gone to pick up Reeder's fallen concrete and the chapel will be completed shortly. Church leaders will fly to Africa then to dedicate the structure in a virtually unknown bush town called Abon Mbaise.

It will be a day of joy yet sorrow. The Reeders cannot be there.

Wisdom Of Moses On Computer Chip

By SHARON COHEN
Associated Press Writer
CHICAGO (AP) - The divine wisdom that Moses brought down from Mount Sinai on stone tablets is now encoded on the silicon chips of a computer - along with 3,000 years of sacred words on subjects ranging from adultery and abortion to uses of garlic and the right-to-strike.

They are the teachings of Jewish law, recorded hundreds of years ago by rabbis who pondered legal and moral dilemmas and penned their responses on scrolls everywhere from the sands of the Sahara to synagogues in Spain.

Now, this tapestry of ancient Jewish rules has been woven into the memory of a modern computer. It is a religious repository of some 40 million words, including almost 40,000 formal rabbinic "responsa," or authoritative replies on questions of Jewish tradition.

"The great authorities on Jewish laws wrote these decisions," said Rabbi Irving J. Rosenbaum, a coordinator of the computer system, the Responsa project. "It's like the Supreme Court decisions."

And like a set of legal decisions, the 1,500 rabbinic authors have written about topics ranging from the mundane - insurance policies - to the mystic - the use of garlic as a medicinal aid.

There are topical and thorny issues, too, such as abortion, homosexuality, the right-to-strike and life-support systems.

Within a matter of minutes, the computer can deliver a list explaining how a rabbi in Algiers in the 15th century and another in Poland 400 years later responded to whether a man can be kicked out of his home for beating his wife.

These decisions may not seem contemporary, Rosenbaum said, but "There are no new questions. There are only new people asking them."

The Responsa project, recently completed after 15 years of research, was compiled by Chicago's Institute For Computers In Jewish Life in conjunction with Bar-Ilan University, in Israel, which has its own computer.

The Chicago computer houses 200 volumes of work - most of them in Hebrew - which represent the ultimate source of social codes and values practiced by Jews since Moses walked down the windswept mountain with the Ten Commandments.

"Jews have lived in all parts of the world since their exile in 70 A.D.," said Rosenbaum. Often, he said, they have lived in autonomous communities, where they dressed, ate and married in accordance with Jewish laws.

"When questions came up, they were directed to local rabbinical authorities," Rosenbaum said. "The rabbi was the religious, ethical and legal authority."

As Jews migrated through Europe and the Mideast, this tradition followed.

"In the course of centuries, certain responsa became the authority," Rosenbaum said. "Even today, a rabbi or judge determining a question will still consult the responsa."

Though replies date back 1200 years, Rosenbaum said, "Everything in the responsa is traced back to the Bible or an interpretation of the Bible."

Association Is Established

The North Carolina Psychological Association at its annual membership meeting held March 27 approved the establishment of a new organization named the North Carolina Association for the Advancement of Psychology.

The purpose of this new tax-exempt non-profit organization is said to be to "preserve, protect, defend and promote" the practice of psychology in North Carolina. Funds will be procured through voluntary annual dues and the organization will be managed by a board of directors with guidance from a state advisory board.

It will work in concert with the N.C. Psychological Association, which is said to be a voluntary organization "to advance psychology as a science, a profession and a means of promoting human welfare."

For further information, contact Dr. Sam Williams, 752-0113.

Caswell Center Program Set

KINSTON - Caswell Center here will hold a volunteer recognition and reception Thursday, Apr. 22, from 7 to 8:30 p.m. in Ehringhaus Building on the Caswell campus.

The guest speaker will be Jewell Waddell, president of the North Carolina Association of Volunteer Administrators. Special volunteer awards will be presented to individuals and groups who have volunteered time and talents to Caswell residents during the past year.

Buffalo Soldiers Remembered

REVIVES A MEMORY — Burl Washington, a 31-year-old artist who believes history has short-changed the buffalo soldiers, sits with three of his watercolors depicting the dress and daring of the black soldiers who served with the ninth and 10th regiments of the U.S. Cavalry. (AP Laserphoto)

By KRISTIN GAZLAY
Associated Press Writer
FORT WORTH, Texas
(AP) — The Indians dubbed them "buffalo soldiers" as tribute to their fierce prowess in battle.

And when she was young, Patricia Erisman heard of their exploits from her grandmother.

She heard how these doggedly loyal soldiers safeguarded the volatile Mexican border in the last days of the old West, how they shielded settlers from marauding Indians and how they blazed trails through rugged, uncharted territory.

"I didn't know in all her stories that the men she was talking about were black men," Mrs. Erisman said. "It didn't matter to her."

But it matters to Burl Washington, a 31-year-old artist who believes history has short-changed the buffalo soldiers.

"People need to know that blacks did contribute something to the settling of this country. That's what I'm trying to do," he said.

Washington has started a series of 18 watercolors depicting the dress and adventures of the black soldiers who served in the 9th and 10th Regiments of the U.S. Cavalry. He expects to finish the series in the next two years, and hopes it will peel off the whitewash of the folklore of the frontier.

"People today know mainly what they read or what they see on TV," he said. "John Wayne's riding to the rescue, and you don't see any blacks behind him."

Western artist Frederick Remington once rode and camped out with the 10th, and wrote of their dedication and loyalty. Historians record that the black regiments had a lower rate of desertion than their white counterparts.

The Llano Estacado Museum in Plainview is studded with artifacts from the heyday of the buffalo soldiers. The museum's curator, Eddie Guffee, has set up an exhibit on the black soldiers.

"Every kid growing up is wild about the cavalry and John Wayne movies," Guffee said. "In 1962, when I was what I called fort-hopping — going from one army post to another — I located another post in the Trans Pecos region that had been virtually untouched since the buffalo soldiers left."

That post was Pena Colorado, near Alpine. But the black soldiers also were stationed at Fort Concho, near San Angelo, and Forts Davis and Stockton in West Texas. They served from Texas' Big Bend area to the plains of South Dakota.

"I don't recall ever seeing an article in an old newspaper about the black 9th and 10th cavalry," Guffee said. "The white troops took credit for their work. The front-line troops, the troops that got the miserable jobs like picking up the dead, were always black."

"People coming in to see the exhibit say, 'What are you doing with black soldiers?' I point out that every campaign in this area was headed or participated in by a black soldier," he said.

Washington has focused his series on 1866 to 1901, trying to capture such intricate details as the corncob pipes the blacks fashioned to the Civil War weapons they were furnished.

A mutual friend introduced him to Mrs. Erisman, a Fort Worth resident whose great-grandfather — John Sylvanus Loud — was a white officer in the 9th regiment from about 1868 to 1890.

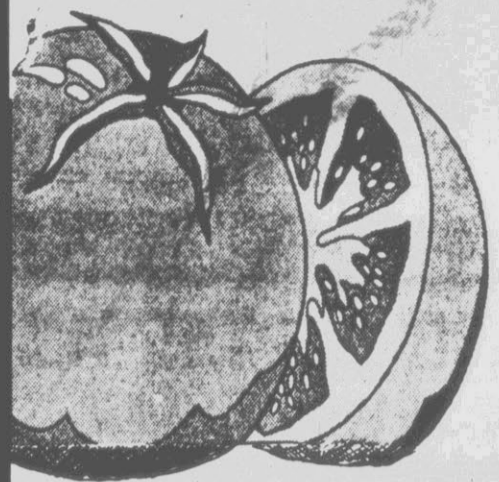

Mrs. Erisman's grandmother, Dorothy Helena Loud, left the legacy of a detailed scrapbook. "It shows the black men," Mrs. Erisman said. "They were extremely good soldiers. They were probably the best because they started with nothing. It's funny to me because I grew up knowing it (that many soldiers were black), and people just don't seem to know."

The buffalo soldiers were saddled with an extra burden — prejudice. Whites served as regiment officers; the rank-and-file soldiers were black.

Most of the buffalo soldiers were former slaves, not allowed to join the army until legislation was passed on July 17, 1862, midway through the Civil War. They earned about $13 a month. Many white officers refused to serve with black troops.

"They were set apart from the community they served," Washington said. "They are unsung heroes. They had to prove something to the whole country — and they did."

3 Minutes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The average employed American will have to toil two hours and 44 minutes of each workday this year to pay federal, state and local taxes — a drop of three minutes from last year, the Tax Foundation says.

The foundation, a Washington research group, says one hour and 51 minutes of the average worker's daily earnings will go to federal taxes, down three minutes from 1981. The organization's economists attributed the decline to the income-tax cut enacted last year.

State and local taxes will take 53 minutes of each eight-hour workday, the same as last year, the foundation says.

Taxes take by far the largest single chunk of workers' pay. The organization calculates that 90 minutes of work each day is required to pay for housing; 65 minutes for food; 42 minutes for transportation; 30 minutes for medical care; 22 minutes for clothing; 20 minutes for recreation, and 47 minutes for all other purposes, including education, savings and personal care.

Versailles Palace Cleaning Up For Summit Meet

PREPARING THE PALACE — A worker removes the protective cover from a statue in the park surrounding the Versailles Palace from a perch atop a bulldozer in preparation for the eighth annual summit of major industrialized nations. (AP Laserphoto)

By HARRY DUNPHY
Associated Press Writer
VERSAILLES, France (AP) — Hundreds of workers have invaded the sprawling wonderworld of gardens, chateaux and art-filled rooms of Versailles to prepare for the eighth annual summit of major industrialized democracies.

The workers are painting, hammering, sanding, moving earth and restoring while police with walkie-talkies and bomb detection equipment patrol the areas around the chateau and the nearby Grand Trianon Palace. It's there the heads of state and government will stay during their June 4-6 visit.

The host, Socialist President Francois Mitterrand, appears to be sparing no effort to impress fellow leaders and show a worldwide television audience part of France's national heritage.

When Mitterrand takes his guests from the closing dinner in the Hall of Mirrors to a ballet in the Royal Opera, a concert in the gilded chapel and a fireworks display in the gardens, viewers will get an idea of what life must have been like at the royal court of Louis XIV.

For President Reagan, the summit will mark his first visit to Europe since entering the White House. He will join Mitterrand and the leaders of Great Britain, West Germany, Italy, Canada, Japan and a representative of the European Economic Community to discuss economic differences.

During a recent tour of Versailles, Henri Vignal of the French Ministry of External Relations, refused to disclose how much the French were spending to get it ready. He did say the summit would cost less than the $7 million the Canadians said they spent on the summit in Ottawa in July 1981.

The major expense, he said, is transforming the Orangerie, a gigantic greenhouse, into a press center for the more than 1,000 reporters expected.

Yvon David, assistant curator of the chateau, said much of the restoration work in the buildings and gardens had been planned and was speeded up because of the summit.

Mitterrand, who faces a $15 billion budget deficit this year and has made austerity the order of the day, has been criticized by an opposition newspaper for extravagant preparations.

Some cafe and restaurant owners say they are unhappy at the prospect of lost revenues from May 24 to June 8 when the chateau will be closed. Normally, there would be more than 200,000 visitors during the period.

Government officials said worldwide publicity about the summit will, in future years, more than make up for financial losses now.

Originally a small hunting lodge, Versailles under the Sun King Louis XIV became a palace of splendor and the capital of France for more than a hundred years until the Revolution of 1789 drove the royal family back to Paris.

Located in the town of Versailles 11 miles southwest of Paris, the chateau is visited by 2.7 million visitors a year and is the place where some major treaties of modern history were signed.

They include the 1783 treaty ending the American war of independence; the 1871 treaty that ceded Alsace and Lorraine to Germany after the Franco-Prussian War; and the 1919 treaty making Germany's defeat official in World War I.

Helicopters will take the world leaders from Orly airport to Versailles, setting them down in the ornate gardens behind the chateau. Cars will whisk them to the Grand Trianon Palace where Mitterrand will be waiting.

The Grand Trianon, once home to Napoleon, was modernized by Charles de Gaulle for visiting heads of state, and has 32 rooms for visitors. Six bathrooms will have to be added for the summit. Each leader will have a suite of four rooms.

The conference will take place in the Coronation Room of the main chateau, which takes its name from a huge painting depicting the coronation of Napoleon I as emperor.

Government officials said there would be no fundamental changes to the room, but lighting for television and booths for simultaneous translation would be installed.

The officials said they were wrestling with the protocol problems of seating the leaders around the table, including who will face the windows and have a view of the gardens.

During breaks in the working sessions, participants will be able to stroll through the queen's apartment to other rooms where their foreign and economy ministers will be meeting.

The Prince's Wing, which has been closed since an attack in 1979 by Brittany separatists, will house an office with period furniture for each leader plus an office for their aides.

don't have much for them."

Terry McMann, who shares the common practice of using an assumed name, worked as a logger for nine years, "pulling in about $22 an hour. Now, I'm 45, scrapping for odd jobs and $6 bucks an hour.

"It's bloody depressing you know," he says, flicking a handmade cigarette into the incinerator with a laugh of disgust. "Most jobs here aren't that good, all manual stuff — construction, laying carpet, unloading box cars, all the dirty stuff."

McMann is one of the few men over 30 who stands by the fire all night, swapping jokes, stories of prison life and hard times until "the morning shift" of older men shuffles in.

"I think this is the end of the line, next to going to jail," says McMann's companion, Pat, a young man in his 20s. Like most of the others, he has an overpowering odor, a few days' growth of beard and blackened or missing teeth.

"Last week I thought I'd get killed in the crush," Pat said, nervously winding and unwinding a small chain around his fist.

"It's a boring life, you know. After you sign up Monday, you just keep on comin' back, hopin' that something will turn up. Usually it does, at least for a couple of hours.

"Last week I made $40, it wasn't a bad week."

makers counsellor Nick Holoboff shake his head.

"It's ridiculous you know," he said. "All we've got is two jobs for today. Used to be we'd sign up anybody who came but now we cut it off at 200. What's the point of taking more names? We don't have anything for them."

A year ago, the center would fill about 1,000 jobs a month with "career losers and loafers," counsellor Rennie Edgett said. "Now we have half the jobs and 50 percent more men. They're not all losers either. There's a lot more able bodied men out there. But it doesn't make any difference, we

Canadian West Seeing Growth In Joblessness

By MARY FERGUSON
VANCOUVER, British Columbia (UPI) — A rusty incinerator burns scrap wood to ward off the cold for 20 beaten, unshaven men as another Sunday night vigil begins outside the temporary job center in a camp of cardboard shelters.

A sidewalk for a bed on this chilly night is part of the weekly routine for 26-year-old Steve Jones, whose torn construction boots and ragged jacket are testimony he's had more hunger and frustration than work in the past year.

"I'm looking for anything, just anything," said Jones, who uses an assumed name.

"I'd take anything but there's nothing. It gets pretty frustrating.

"If I can't get work, this week I don't eat. Maybe I'll just have to roll somebody. It won't be the first time," he says, dipping into a bag of stale cookies he brought from his dinner with 300 others at the Salvation Army.

Jones' arrival at the sidewalk camp at dinnertime puts him 18th in line, but that's no guarantee he'll be on top of the job list when 150 men start pushing through the doors at daybreak.

The Monday morning crush into the Vancouver temporary job center just makes counsellor Nick Holoboff shake his head.

"It's ridiculous you know," he said. "All we've got is two jobs for today. Used to be we'd sign up anybody who came but now we cut it off at 200. What's the point of taking more names? We don't have anything for them."

A year ago, the center would fill about 1,000 jobs a month with "career losers and loafers," counsellor Rennie Edgett said. "Now we have half the jobs and 50 percent more men. They're not all losers either. There's a lot more able bodied men out there. But it doesn't make any difference, we

Adding English Words Upsets Mexico

By SOLL SUSSMAN
Associated Press Writer
MEXICO CITY (AP) —
The clothing store has a sale on "shorts" and the linen shop offers "king-size" sheets.
One restaurant has "take-out" food available and another promises the best meal in town "since 1981."

The parking lot attendant shouts, "go, go, go," as he guides a driver out to a crowded street.
Are we in Mexico?
That's the question many language experts and government officials from President Jose Lopez Portillo on down are asking these days.

They note the infiltration of English words across the 1,760-mile border with the United States, helped to spread by tourism, commerce and the pervasive influence of American entertainment from films and television to the latest pop song hit.

tourists, now feature exclusively English signs.
"This language is denationalized," Ezeta said.
He said the foreign influence was most visible in tourist areas, along the frontier and in the biggest cities.
"This certainly is not a serious phenomenon, but our work is fundamentally a preventive action," Ezeta said.

defend this language, already. But how?"
Juan M. Lope Blanch, director of the Center of Hispanic Linguistics at the prestigious Colegio de Mexico, said he thought the problem of English influence here was less serious than elsewhere in Latin America.
He said the memory of the territory Mexico lost to the United States last century still ranked enough to take away some of the prestige of the English language.
Lope Blanch said that in most countries, it was a matter of prestige for wealthy people to visit the United States.

ping spree — a visit across the border is commonplace, and the English language to them has lost much of its prestige.
But even so, he said the commission's efforts deserve support.
"It is inevitable that the technology, all of the social, economic and cultural power of the United States, extends itself," he said. "Consequently, an attempt to impede the contagion of the English language would be impossible. It would be condemned from the start."
"What can take place is an attempt to reduce it, to control it," Blanch said. "The government has understood that the language represents the spirit of the society."

Looks Forward To 25th Wife

By LINDA DEUTSCH
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) —
Glynn "Scotty" Wolfe, at age 73 the world's most married man, plans to tie the knot for the 25th time.

The bride? He doesn't have one yet, but he claims that's only a detail. Once he announces his intentions on national television, Wolfe predicts a deluge of applicants. He vows that No. 25 — whoever she is — will be his last.

Wolfe, who says he has 41 children ranging in age from 56 to two years, is listed in the Guinness Book of World Records as the most married man in the world.
"Everybody's looking for love," said Wolfe. "I've been doing this over half a century, and I'm still as game as ever, if not gamier."

Although he still loves marriage, Wolfe wants to make a few changes when he takes his next wife. When he goes on the Merv Griffin show on April 29, he'll let everyone know he wants his next bride to be a little older.

"I never married anyone over 20 years old," he said. "But now if I get one 20 to 25, that would be OK. You got to have them young because they've got nerve and confidence and they want a challenge."

Marrying teen-agers had its drawbacks, he said.

"When you marry the young ones and dress 'em up and they get big cars and mink coats, then somebody else wants to get 'em," he said. "They think maybe they can do better and they leave. But they always wind up coming back."

Wolfe's longest marriage lasted five years; his shortest ended after 38 days. But he believes his next mate will be the last one.

"You always think all of them will be your last," he said. "When you get married, you're married for eternal life. I've been married to a couple for five years, and that's a long time."

Wolfe, who said he is an ordained Baptist minister, lawyer, pilot and cosmetologist, runs a small motel in the desert town of Blythe, Calif. He says he wants to settle down there with his 25th wife and write a book giving advice to others.

"I may show people that there's always a chance for happiness, even in later life," he said. "A lot of senior citizens don't know what to do with themselves."

Speaking of Your Health...

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Jaw Disorder and Shooting Pain

I had a tooth extracted on the left side of my upper jaw. From that time, about three months ago, I have gotten shooting pain to the ear. My dentist does not believe that the removal of the tooth is responsible for it. Another doctor thinks the trouble is in my jaw joint. The pain is constant but not as severe as it used to be. I hate to think that I must go on like this for the rest of my life. — Mr. F.M.R., N.J.

Dear Mr. R.:

There need not be a relationship between the removal of the tooth and the referred pain you describe. Yet you may very well have some involvement of the jaw joint because of the poor bite caused by the absent tooth.

I can only speculate that the problem probably lies within the jaw joint itself. Sometimes even the slightest imbalance of the bit of the teeth may be responsible for changes within the jaw joint.

This condition is known as temporo-mandibular joint disorder. A huge network of nerves exists over the jaw joint. Consequently pain can be referred from the jaw joint to the ear, head, neck, face and even to the shoulder. Missing teeth, poorly fitting dentures, grinding of the teeth, and alteration of the bite (occlusion) can cause this distressing condition.

Within the jaw joint is a sac, or bursa, which becomes inflamed and irritated when there is interference with the proper functioning of the jaw. When this occurs, opening the mouth wide, or yawning, can induce severe pain.

There are now a great many dentists who specialize in jaw joint disorders. Highly technical X-rays and bite-balancing studies can identify the origin of the painful condition and indicate the direction for treatment.

In most instances, the problem is resolved when the bite is properly adjusted. Sometimes it is necessary to have injections of cortisone directly into the jaw joint to reduce the inflammation and to diminish the pain.

In your immediate city there are many dentists who are specially trained in the diagnosis and treatment of tempero-mandibular joint disorders. With your own dentist's permission, their coordinated talents will undoubtedly bring you relief.

Two of my friends are vegetarians and health faddists. I go along with some of their ideas, but now they are on a new kick. They insist on drinking raw milk instead of pasteurized milk. They say that the important nutrients in milk are destroyed by pasteurization. — Mr. L.V., Wis.

Dear Mr. V.:

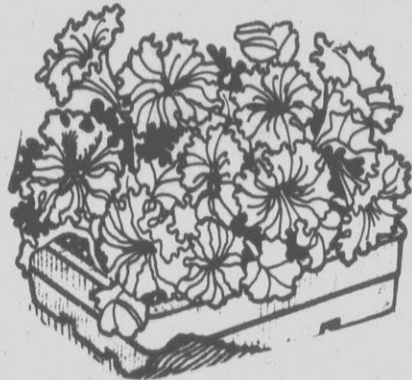

Even if there were a loss of minerals or nutrients by pasteurization, the safety of the process must be recognized. The advantages of pasteurization are tremendous. It has been responsible for the elimination of many milk-borne infections and has reduced the threat of tuberculosis.

If minerals, indeed, are lost in the process they can be replaced by mineral and vitamin supplements.

Nothing is more difficult than to convince fixed faddists that their convictions are not entirely valid.

To revert to drinking non-pasteurized milk is to invite potential trouble.

All the little reasons to move your NOW account to First Federal can mean a whole lot to you later.

The smallest minimum balance around.

$300. That's our minimum balance on NOW accounts. Compare that to what the other banks and savings and loans in town require you to keep on hand. Just $300, and we'll pay you every cent that the law allows us (or any other Federally-insured financial institution) to pay on NOW accounts.

The best little package of extras.

We've got a package of extras with our NOW account that can't be topped. Compare our extras with any deal in the neighborhood:
No-fee travelers checks.
24 hour Automatic-teller banking.
Absolutely no minimum balance if you're 55 or older.
5 locations all over Pitt County.
Out-of-town emergency cash.

The biggest little extra of all: Extra service.

Monster banks, and even the other savings and loans in town can't compare with the extra service that you'll get at First Federal. We'll go the extra mile to help you in any way we can.
So take advantage of all the little reasons. And move your NOW account to First Federal.

Put yourself first at First Federal.

'No Soap' Just Another Of Genre Given Trial Runs

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — ABC's "No Soap, Radio" belongs in the same category as the other mindless, moronic television that's been getting trial runs on the network for possible spots in the fall program schedule.

"No Soap, Radio" was the punch line for an old ruse to embarrass unwitting victims. Those in on the joke would laugh at the meaningless punch line hoping to trick the unsuspecting to think they're missing something and join in.

Well, at least "No Soap, Radio" is an honest title. There's no real joke here, either. ABC again has lived up to the mindless, minimum quality standard it set with its recent test shows, "We Dare You" and "Inside America."

"No Soap, Radio" is certainly no "Police Squad," another ABC offering that also had rapid-fire comedy bits that bordered on, and crossed the border of, good taste. "Police Squad" worked as whimsical satire on tight-lipped police shows from TV's early years. But "No Soap, Radio" isn't satire; it's just silly.

The show's setting is a dilapidated hotel in Atlantic City. Steve Guttenberg is Roger, the manager besieged by bizarre guests and a deteriorating hotel. Those who find humor in the chases and physical beatings of Saturday cartoons might laugh at midget bellhops, leaking ceilings, guests falling through floors, and elevators that bounce up and down.

Outrageous situations and off-the-wall characters don't automatically disqualify comedy shows. Not every sitcom has to be a "M-A-S-H," dealing with social issues. "Taxi," ABC's best comedy, works well with zany characters and wacky events. But "No Soap, Radio" has nothing going for it.

Tonight's flimsy plot has Roger wavering about selling the hotel to a seedy lawyer, who wants to turn the family establishment into a gambling emporium. Now that you know the basic story, understand that it's shelved for much of the time for unrelated pranks and non sequiturs.

The show begins with a man-eating box of cereal. If you find this amusing, will you still be laughing after nearly 30 seconds of munching? In case this is your style of humor, the cereal box comes back later for an encore.

Other unconnected segments include a snoring basketball, a Mozart-playing bum, and a bulletin on the disappearance of Mr. Potato Head. The only creatively funny moment is an interview with a concealed Porky Pig, who spills his guts about participating in phony cartoons. He says they weren't "weal," then cries "I'm a fraud...I'm a fraud."

"No Soap, Radio," also stars Bill Dana (the old Jose Jimenez) as one of the hotel's regular guests. The show utilizes Dana's comedy talents by having him wear Hawaiian shirts and frequently borrow the hotel's volleyball.

It's hard to believe that writers could pass this show off as funny, but, then ... No Soap, Radio.

Bridge on commuter trains is, of necessity, fast-paced — you "run out of track" in less than an hour. But there is such a thing as playing too hastily, even for the train!

The bidding was reasonable for any sort of bridge. South's decision to bid six clubs was based on the fact that he wasn't sure who could make what, but we could construct a sound case for a penalty double instead. That would have netted 800 points with accurate defense.

West led the king of diamonds. Declarer won the ace and led a club to the ace, felling the king. "Well, I can't put my diamond losers anywhere. Down one," announced South. The defenders agreeably entered 100 points on their side of the ledger.

South was too quick to lower the flag. True, there was no place for him to put his diamond loser. But there was also no way for the defenders to collect their two diamond tricks as the cards lie.

After dropping the king of clubs, declarer should cash the ace of spades and ruff a spade. Then three heart ruffs sandwiched around two spade ruffs eliminate the major suits from both declarer's hand and dummy. Declarer ends in his hand and his last four cards are two diamonds and two trumps. Dummy is down to three diamonds and a trump.

Now declarer simply exits with a diamond from hand. West performs wins this trick, but he is left with nothing but major-suit cards. Whether he returns a spade or a heart, declarer ruffs on the table and discards his last diamond from his hand. So the slam rolls home, even though it is against the odds.

Bobby Carradine Likes Role As Single Parent

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Reporter
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Robert Carradine, 28, is the youngest of the Carradine tribe of acting brothers and follows in the family footsteps of non-conformity.

Like father John and brothers David and Keith, Bobby marches to his own drum, in his case a triple threat career as actor, musician and race car driver.

He began acting a decade ago with a top featured role in "The Cowboys" with John Wayne and has since starred in several low budget pictures, "Pom Pom Girls," "Joyride," "Aloha Bobby and Rose" and his latest, "Tag."

He's also racked up some impressive movie credits with "Mean Streets," "Coming Home" and "Heartaches."

When he's not acting, Bobby races cars at the Daytona 24-hour and the Sebring 12-hour endurance grinds. In 1978 he won the first five races of the Formula Ford, a competition based solely on driving skills.

He also plays bass and guitar and sings in brother David's band, a quartet that plays gigs in and around Los Angeles.

The great love of Bobby's life, however, is his daughter, Ever Dawn, 7, whose mother Bobby never married. He won custody of the child four years ago and has reared her almost singlehandedly.

"We're the best pals in the world," said Bobby, a likeable young man with strong features, tousled hair and a bright grin.

"Ever was born at home. When the doctor asked me what we wanted to name her, I saw the sun just rising and named her Ever Dawn on the spot."

"For a man my age, raising a daughter by himself isn't easy, but it's mostly fun. There is always something to do around the house when you have a seven-year-old running around."

Bobby is up at 6:30 each weekday morning to prepare Ever's breakfast and to pack a lunch for her. He takes her to the bus stop at 7:30 and picks her up at 4 in the afternoon.

NOW SHE'S A COUNTESS? — Zsa Zsa Gabor is pictured with her seventh husband, Spanish-born Count Felipe de Alba, shortly after they were wed Tuesday evening aboard the yacht "Laura" to the accompaniment of Mariachi music at Puerto Vallarta, Mexico. The newlyweds will spend their honeymoon at the count's villa in Italy sometime in September following Miss Gabor's appearances for TV commercials in the U.S. and Sweden. (AP Laserphoto)

Bette And Burt To Get Awards

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Burt Reynolds and Bette Davis will receive the Rudolph Valentino Awards for lifetime achievement in film.

The awards, symbolized by a two-foot tall gold statuette of the silent film star, will be presented in a ceremony in Los Angeles on May 13.

The Thalians, a Hollywood-based charitable organization, sponsors the awards. Previous winners have included Ingrid Bergman, Anthony Quinn, Sophia Loren and Richard Burton.

The organization has also designated Princess Grace of Monaco to receive the award during a special ceremony in May.

TOYOTA EAST
 109 Trade Street Greenville, NC 756-3228

Term is 48 months. To calculate total of payments, simply multiply 48 by the monthly payment amount. First monthly payment and a refundable security deposit in that same amount required at beginning of lease. You have no responsibility at end of term... you may purchase the car or walk away... your option. Prices shown require approved credit and do not include tax and license.

Explanation: The remarkable new AutoTerm plan—available now at Toyota East in Greenville—brings down the high cost of transportation. AutoTerm is less costly than the conventional way of buying a car... and it's better than any lease you've ever seen.

Imagine, a new Toyota for under $133 per month... and with no money down! The savings on your monthly payments and down payment add up to hundreds of dollars. That's money in the bank... earning you money!

All vehicles qualify for TEMA (Toyota East Maintenance Agreement)—3 year, 45,000 mile extended service plan.

Communities Preparing For 'Ground Zero' Week

By MIKE FEINSILBER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — In hundreds of communities across America next week, people will gather to consider the hometown consequences of nuclear war.

There will be talks at service club luncheons, churches, schools and public meetings and a "Run for Your Life" race in Winston-Salem, N.C., a sermon by the Rev. Billy Graham at Yale University, a "Peace With Justice Concert" in Cleveland, a "There's No Place to Run" run in Champaign, Ill., and a showing of the film, "Dr. Strangelove" in Sacramento, Calif.

In Cedar Rapids, Iowa, according to organizers, red pieces of paper will be tacked on poles, marking the radius of destruction of a hypothetical nuclear explosion. And in Spokane, Wash., helium-filled balloons will be released containing scraps of paper reading: "You've just been hit by fallout."

All told, the organizers of the event — it amounts to a national teach-in — estimate that 10 million to 20 million people will take part in 650 communities and on 350 college campuses during the week April 18-25.

Many others may watch "Thinking Twice About Nuclear War," an hour-long program on Public Broadcasting Service stations.

The events are locally arranged under the impetus of Ground Zero, an organization with a staff of 12 and a budget of $290,000. It was founded in 1980 to stimulate a week of national discussion on the consequences of nuclear war.

"Ground Zero" is the technical term for the point where a nuclear weapon detonates. The organization's founders are brothers Roger and Earl Molander. Roger served as a nuclear policy aide on the National Security Council staffs of three presidents.

Earl, a college teacher, expressed surprise at how the idea caught on.

"We started with a concept, but it's out of our control," he said. "It took off on its own. There's a lot of interest at the local level, which is where nuclear war would be felt."

In connection with the week, Pocket Books has published "Nuclear War: What's In It For You," which Roger Molander wrote. Roger Molander said the book offers, in simple form, as much information as a president gets about nuclear strategy and the consequences of a nuclear exchange.

Ground Zero week will open in more than 500 communities with the unfurling of a banner reading, "If this were ground zero for a one megaton explosion, virtually everything within two miles will be destroyed immediately."

A 370-mile bike ride is planned for the area around Whiteman Air Force Base, Mo. with the purpose of showing that a "surgical" nuclear strike there would kill half the population within that circumference. Five minutes of church bell ringing will open the week in Portland, Ore.

In a park outside the White House here, a lunchtime "speaker's corner" will be established to entertain the public's questions on nuclear issues. In Hanover, N.H., a panel of clergymen will discuss, "Nuclear Weapons: Is There Any Word from the Lord?"

At the University of Arkansas, students and townspeople plan to line the main street of Fayetteville with two miles of anti-weapons placards. And students at Northwest Community College in Nome, Alaska, will release 100 bottles in the Bering Sea with a message asking finders to "open their eyes" to the threat of nuclear war.

Bum Steer For Maggie Valley

MAGGIE VALLEY, N.C. (AP) — Maggie Valley businessmen say someone in Knoxville is passing out bum information about vacancies in North Carolina for people visiting the World's Fair.

As a result, the Maggie Valley Chamber of Commerce, claiming that the region's tourist season has been severely damaged, has fired off protesting letters to the agency handling reservations, to the Better Business Bureau of Knoxville, to World's Fair President Bo Roberts and to the North Carolina Division of Travel and Tourism.

Robbie McCullough of the Three Pines Motel said she has received several calls from visitors begging her to find room for them, at a time when only 15 or 20 rooms at the 30-room motel have been booked for the entire season.

She said one woman called from South Florida, begging her to find a place to stay. The woman even volunteered to change her vacation, if necessary.

"What I couldn't understand was that I had plenty of rooms available," Ms. McCullough said.

She said someone in Knoxville, host for the World's Fair 90 miles away, was spreading quite a different message.

Callers to the Knoxville convention and tourist bureau were being told by reservation operators that Maggie Valley motels were filled for the fair's duration, from May 1 through Oct. 31.

"...But we still have plenty of accommodations available in Knoxville," they said," said Lynn Collins, Maggie Valley Chamber of Commerce vice president who made her own veiled inquiry to Knoxville.

"In fact, I myself called three times," she said. "The first two times I got that answer. The third time I was persistent and said, 'There's got to be something in Maggie Valley.' They put me on hold for 10 minutes and then said, 'Well, there are a few things.' And after all that, they gave me the wrong information on rates. The regular tourist is not going to be so persistent — he's going to take their first word on everything."

In the meantime, other

Maggie Valley motels received pleas for rooms. And the Chamber of Commerce was also contacted several times.

Knoxville spokesman John Burton conceded that his operators erred, but he said it wasn't a deliberate attempt to steer World's Fair tourists from Maggie Valley.

"We have 75 reservation phones going during the day and 45 at night," Burton said Tuesday. "Our people are trained well, but sometimes they aren't perfect. We have not pinned down which operator said what. Somebody might have meant to say there were no rooms in a particular motel at Maggie Valley and just said Maggie Valley, period."

Expo Plans For Crowds

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — It may take 30 minutes to an hour for visitors to the World's Fair to buy tickets on peak attendance days this summer, promoters say.

To ease the strain, strolling entertainers will mingle with tourists in line at the fair's gates, said James Drinnon, general manager of the six-month, energy-theme fair.

The exhibition opens May 1 and President Reagan is expected to show up for a brief ceremony.

"Opening day will be a big day. We will have 80,000 to 100,000 people here," Drinnon said Tuesday. "We expect that will be a difficult day for us. If someone wants to see opening day ceremonies, I would suggest they watch it on the local TV station."

Specialists have projected average daily attendance at 60,000 for the fair, which will feature exhibits of varying sizes from 23 foreign countries.

Drinnon said peak attendance, on such holidays as the Fourth of July, could reach 100,000, although no more than about 65,000 people would be on the 72-acre site at any one time.
