Pulitzer Winner Recalls ECU Fondly

By MELVIN LANG
Reflector Staff Writer

Pulitzer Prize winner Rick Atkinson says he looks upon East Carolina University and Greenville with a fond eye as he recalls his four years on the ECU campus in the early 1970s.

"I had a helluva good time there, had what I think was a good education and met some terrific people among the faculty and the students," the 30-year-old Kansas City Times reporter said in a telephone interview after winning the Pulitzer last week.

Atkinson, an "Army brat" who was born in Munich, West Germany, attended East Carolina from 1970 until 1974, when he received his bachelor's degree in English. He went on to the University of Chicago to earn a master's in English the following year.

He says "I kind of drifted into journalism" by going to work with a newspaper in Pittsburg, Kan., after completing his education. He then moved on to Kansas City, moving through the newsroom to become one of the newspaper's national reporters based in Washington, D.C.

Atkinson received his Pulitzer for what he called "a body of work" that included detailed examinations of this nation's program for managing its water resources — a story that took him five months to complete — and a series on members of the class of 1966 at West Point, which had an unusually high mortality rate in Vietnam.

The latter story was especially meaningful for Atkinson, he said, because he had considered going to West Point "but bailed out at the last moment and went to East Carolina instead."

Retired ECU journalism Professor Ira Baker, who served as an adviser to several publications while Atkinson attended ECU, said he recalled the student as one who was more "interested in fiction than in writing for newspapers."

Asked about Baker's recollection, Atkinson confirmed it, but then joked: "Some people would say there is not a whole lot of difference.

"I never had a whole lot of interest in journalism at that time except from the standpoint of politics. I was and am interested in fiction. I read a lot of it, not write it," he said.

Atkinson, who served as vice president of the ECU Student Government Association in 1973, said part of his duties was "keeping more or less an eye on publications. There had been a great upheaval and the editor had been kicked out.

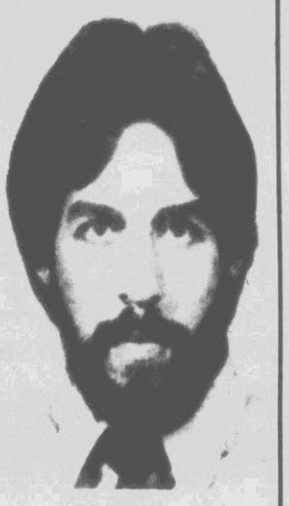

"My memories of East Carolina are all good ones ... I remember the place as being terrificly exciting when I attended because the upheavals that had torn up much of the rest of the country were a little later in coming to Greenville and I arrived at just about the time the clamor developed."

Atkinston said he especially recalled two members of the ECU English faculty, David Sanders — "who was and still is my friend" — and Erwin Hester, "the department chairman and someone I remember fondly."

Sanders expressed mild surprise when he was told that Atkinson had received the Pulitzer, but quickly added: "There's not a more deserving man."

As a student, Sanders said, Atkinson was an honors graduate in English — a student who had a "crack mind ... bright ... eager ...widely read, good insight ... a very humble person not all that sold on himself."

"He was the kind of student you'd like all students to be," Sanders said.

Farmville Man To Take Leadership Of ABC Unit

Marvin L. Speight Jr. of Farmville, chairman of the state Alcoholic Beverage Control Commission since 1977, has been chosen to head the National Alcoholic Beverage Control Association.

Appointed state ABC board chairman by Gov. Jim Hunt, Speight is the first Tar Heel to be elected president of the national organization.

He will assume the office of president at the NABCA's annual conference in Phoenix, Ariz., May 6-12.

The NABCA represents 18 states that conduct liquor sales as a goverment operation, and has an associate membership that embraces virtually all of the nation's leading distilleries, wineries and alcohol beverage importers.

Speight has been a member of the NABCA board of directors for the past five years.

Spokesmen for the national trade association said Speight has "earned the reputation of being an untiring worker with an unshakable determination to get things done."

Fellow NABCA officials appraise Speight as "today's confirmation of the often disputed claim that to those who are genuinely determined to succeed, there is no such thing as 'no chance.'"

The state ABC chairman went into business for himself immediately upon finishing high school, a move which led to successful engagement in several business fields.

Active in local civic, community and governmental affairs, Speight was chairman of the Pitt County Planning Board for five years and was mayor pro tem of Emerald Isle for almost as long. He is also a former president of the Farmville Chamber of Commerce, the Lions Club and the Jaycees — an organization which named him "Young Man of the Year" in 1952 and "Man of the Year" in 1978.

MARVIN L. SPEIGHT JR.

NABCA member states, in addition to North Carolina, include: Alabama, Idaho, Iowa, Maine, Michigan, Mississippi, Montana, New Hampshire, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Utah, Vermont, Virginia, Washington, West Virginia and Wyoming.

The member states have a population in excess of 68 million — about 30 percent of the total U.S. population. While they account for only 25 percent of the annual distilled spirits sales, and an even lower volume of wine and beer sales, they generate a third of the annual alcoholic beverage revenue in the United States.

Pitt Schools Begin Search

Pitt County's school board officially opened its search Saturday for a superintendent of the 11,000-student public system.

"The call for applications is going out across the state of North Carolina as of today," board chairman Mark W. Owens Jr. said.

Owens indicated the board expects to fill the post, left vacant by the retirement of long-time Superintendent Ott Alford earlier this year, by early summer.

"We are committed to a careful search intended to find the best person for the job," Owens said in a statement released by the school system.

"Our reputation as a top quality school system demands that the person to lead it must meet our highest standard of excellency."

Owens said the county board will serve as a selection committee and will screen any applications for the job and conduct interviews of candidates.

He said the board also is seeking input from citizens of Pitt County as to what type of personality traits and job experience they would desire in the new superintendent. "Those interested in having input in filling this ... position should contact their local school for survey forms," Owens said.

Inquiries about the selection of the new superintendent should be directed to Katheryn Lewis, an assistant superintendent assisting the board in the selection process.

Associate Superintendent Thomas L. Craft Jr. has served as acting superintendent since Alford's retirement. Craft is expected to be a candidate for the permanent post.

Hiring Freeze, Some Layoffs Ahead

Carolina Telephone Plans Cuts

TARBORO, N.C. (UPI) — Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Co. will cut back its construction program, freeze hiring and order some layoffs, company officials said Saturday.

CT&T President Wayne Peterson said the reductions were prompted by a combination of economic conditions and adverse rate rulings by the state Utilities Commission in the past year.

In a statement released by the company, Peterson said the commission's rulings "threaten our ability to provide the services our customers are going to demand in the near future."

"For the past year, nearly riskless bonds have yielded a return higher than the one allowed by the (Utilities) Commission in our recent rate order."

"We were a little disappointed with some of the decisions that came out of the commission," Peterson said, but the downturn in the economy also contributed to the decision to reduce spending.

"We don't intend to infer this decision is all due to the decision in the last rate case. It's a combination," he said.

Carolina Telephone applied for a $25.5 million increase in local rates in August 1980 and later amended the request to $36.2 million. The Utilities Commission granted the company an increase of $18.4 million last year.

The company filed a second request last year for $47.2 million and later reduced it to $38.7 million. Earlier this month, the commission approved a $15.9 million increase in local rates.

Because of the commission's rulings, Peterson said Carolina Telephone will file another rate request sometime this year.

Despite the company's spending cutbacks, "We do not intend to let our service deteriorate" to 567,000 customers in 50 counties in eastern North Carolina, Peterson said.

"It's primarily an earnings situation," he said. "We've been investing nearly $100 million a year for the last several years."

But Peterson said the company's earnings have been too low to support continued expenditures at those levels because of the economy and Utilities Commission decisions on CT&T's last two rate cases.

The company said the 1982 construction program will be reduced from $104.4 million to $83.3 million; employment will be limited "to levels essential only to maintaining adequate service;" and the existing work force will be reduced in areas where service will not be affected.

"We will probably have some layoffs. We're in the process of trying to determine where they will occur," Peterson said. New hiring will be frozen.

Phosphate Firms Keep Schedule Despite Cuts

By MELVIN LANG
Reflector Staff Writer

North Carolina's phosphate-mining companies are holding to their announced schedules although the industry as a whole has seen a drastic downturn in demand during the past year.

TexasGulf, the pioneer in mining Pamlico River tributaries near Aurora, is completing a major expansion of its facilities while North Carolina Phosphate is moving toward a scheduled start-up in 1984.

A slackened demand brought on by foreign resistance to high U.S. prices and by a growing trend domestically toward less use of commercially prepared fertilizers has been blamed for the industry's cutbacks in production. TexasGulf won a partial reprieve late last year with an increase in exports, but production at the Aurora facility has been running at about 75 percent of its former level.

Company spokesman Bob Upton said in Raleigh that current shipping figures were not available for TexasGulf. However, Morehead City port director Robert Goins said TexasGulf has shipped about one-half million tons of phosphates, including some liquid phosphuric acid, through the state terminal during the past year.

"We've had recently some shipments that weren't anticipated eight months ago and we're enjoying that," Goins said. "But on a fiscal basis, it's not a dramatic increase. The year started strong, fell flat, then picked up again."

N.C. Phosphate, based in Washington, N.C., has been on the planning board for about a decade. Plans for the company were announced by former Gov. Jim Holshouser in the early 1970s.

Those plans are on schedule, according to the company's public relations director in Washington, Rusty Walker, and aren't expected to shift because of the weakened market.

"In terms of our plans, the short-term market conditions do not affect us," Walker said.

"We are on a construction schedule that will allow us to begin shipping in late 1984. We are maintaining a monitoring system that will allow us to change that schedule, if needed, as we go along."

Missing Person: It's Really Not All That Unusual

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

A husband and wife argue and one leaves home. The other files a missing person report.

A child and its parents are having problems. The child runs away and the parents report it missing.

A teen-age girl decided to go out of town with the boy she has been dating and doesn't tell her mother. A missing person report is filed.

These are typical of many of the missing person reports received by local law enforcement agencies.

From Jan. 1, 1980, until now, 26 people — 16 males and 10 females — have been reported missing to the Greenville Police Department. Ranging in age from 12 to 68, one was found dead (the 68 year-old) and 16 returned home — including a 12 year-old, four 13 year-olds, and a 15 year-old who ran away and returned twice. The rest probably returned, although no final disposition was reported in the cases.

During the same period, the Pitt County Sheriff's Department received 61 missing person reports. All were located, one of them dead.

Law enforcement agencies in North Carolina "have regular forms to fill out" on missing persons, Sheriff Ralph Tyson explained. "We file it ... put it on file. We have a special file for that type report."

What information is needed? Identifying factors such as name, age, physical description including scars, marks, watches and rings, money, clothing, mode of travel, car, habits and anything else that might help locate the individual, the sheriff said.

And a photograph. Both the police department and sheriff's department ask area television stations to "put the picture on TV," Police Chief Glenn Cannon said.

What priority is given to missing persons? It depends on the circumstances.

"We'll take a missing person report any time," Cannon said. But, he said, "If it doesn't sound like foul play" is involved, or some other life-threatening situation, such as "if they are mentally disturbed ... we take the report but sit on it. We don't put it on the air (the statewide Police Information Network) for 24 hours."

The sheriff's department follows much the same policy.

"It depends on the circumstances," Tyson explained. "If there's a possibility of foul play, we get on it. Otherwise ... if someone is just missing from school, for example, we wait."

"Ninteen out of 20 are runaways ... not really missing," Deputy Brooks Oakley suggested. "There's very little an officer can do but to conduct an investigation and take the findings to a juvenile court counselor" in those cases where juvenile runaways are involved.

Chief Juvenile Court Counselor Eve Rogers said that, "if a family is experiencing problems with a juvenile running away," the parents can come to the Juvenile Court counselors, saying "they are aware the child has run away and they want the child returned to them."

"In effect," Ms. Rogers explained, "they are saying they want the courts to become involved."

The court counselor or a district judge can then issue a "secure custody order," Ms. Rogers said. "With a secure custody order, law enforcement officers then have the authority to pick the child up and bring that child to the juvenile section of the Pitt County Jail, where the child may be detained ... depending on the family situation ... pending an official juvenile hearing."

However, "One of the problems is that, very often, parents don't know where the child is," according to Ms. Rogers, who suggested that law enforcement agencies don't have the manpower to search the entire county for a runaway.

"I'm particularly concerned with the lack of authority of any official agency to deal effectively with the problem" of runaways, she continued.

"We find at most we can offer services ... counseling ... mental health ... But the child and the family have to agree or volunteer to participate in these kinds of services.

"We have no force we can use to compel the child to make any changes in his behavior. It really is a problem, especially for parents.

"We try to help the family deal with it more realistically ... rationally, and in doing so, hope that it will help the child."

Thousands 'March For Survival' In Texas

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Nearly 3,000 people, some carrying signs, wearing flowers or blowing soap bubbles, paraded from the state Capitol to a nearby park Saturday in a "march for survival."

Marchers displayed the slogan "Bread not Bombs" on signs, T-shirts and flags, and chanted, "Money for food, not for war, U.S. out of El Salvador. Ronald Reagan, pay attention, we don't want your intervention." Others chanted anti-nuclear slogans.

Frances "Sissy" Farenthold, a former gubernatorial candidate, told the crowd, "Wehave a built-in dependency in this country on a war economy."

"It's pathetic what we plead for, to fill human needs," said Ms. Farenthold, a Corpus Christi lawyer who lost in the Democratic primary race for governor in 1972 and 1974.

In 1972, Ms. Farenthold became the first woman in the party's history to be nominated for vice president. She garnered 420 votes before withdrawing in favor of Missouri Sen. Thomas Eagleton.

Motorcycle police blocked off side streets as marchers — many of them with dogs on leashes — walked down Congress Avenue, the main downtown street. Adults pushed infants in strollers and carried them on their backs and in their arms. One young boy rode in a car pulled by a large, white dog.

A young girl carried a sign saying, "Peace not in pieces." Another said, "Just One Bomb Can Ruin Your Day."

Last Body Found

EAST CHICAGO, Ind. (AP) — Workers battling high wind and heavy rain used jackhammers Saturday to free the body of the last victim of a highway bridge collapse that killed 12 people and injured 19.

The body of Roberto Rubio of Whiting was recovered about 4:20 p.m.

Rubio was thrown from the bridge Thursday and plunged head-first into wet concrete, which solidified around his upper body.

Cleanup from the worst accident in this steel town's history was halted by a tornado watch Friday night, but resumed Saturday with tightened police lines to restrict sightseers.

Gov. Robert D. Orr visited the site about five hours before the body was recovered. "My heart goes out to all those people," Orr said as he walked around the area.

The governor said he was impressed by the length of the highway span that fell, about 600 feet, and by emergency workers who helped during the disaster. The span fell as concrete was being poured during construction. The cause of the accident is under investigation.

"There were an awful lot of volunteers who even risked their own lives to come here and be helpful in this tragedy, and I think it's appropriate for me to thank all of them for what they have done," Orr said.

Boston May Discipline Some Transit Workers

BOSTON (AP) — Service resumed Saturday on the city's bus, subway and trolley lines as officials considered taking disciplinary action against some members of the Carmen's Union who participated in a one-day wildcat strike.

"Everything out there is running," Police Lt. Robert Cochrane said Saturday morning from a police station. "We could see the buses moving from here."

Members of the National Guard were sent home after patrolling empty transit stations during Friday's strike, which began when the 3,200 members of the union walked off the job without warning to protest the use of part-time drivers.

The strike was the carmen's first walkout in four years and broke off negotiations between management and the union, which has been without a contract for 16 months. After a late-night session Thursday, the union had assured the Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority there would be no strike, transit officials said Friday.

Paul DiNatale, an MBTA spokesman, said negotiations between union and management resumed Saturday. He also said the MBTA "is in the process of studying possible disciplinary measures against some members of the union."

"There has been some discussion of suspensions or possible firings," he said. "But it will have to be taken on a case-by-case approach."

Employees who worked Saturday and struck on Friday received written notice that they took part in an illegal job action and are required to appear at disciplinary hearings, a process that could take three weeks, according to another MBTA spokesman, William B. Coughlin. He added that negotiations Saturday lasted about three hours.

Probe Asked Over Assaults

GOLDSBORO, N.C. (AP) — The board of trustees at Wayne Memorial Hospital has asked local, county and state officials to investigate whether hospital employees violated any laws by not reporting several assaults on female patients.

During a session Friday, the trustees adopted a motion requesting the district attorney, Goldsboro police and the State Bureau of Investigation to see if any state laws were violated.

Five women who had been patients at the hospital told police they were sexually assaulted, but police said they were not told of the assaults until this month when one of the women contacted police.

Police charged Rickey LeRoy Faire, a 24-year-old hospital orderly, with first-degree burglary and attempted rape in connection with assaults on three female patients.

District Attorney Don Jacobs has asked Goldsboro Police Chief C.M. Gilstrap to document all evidence in the assault cases, and the way they were handled.

Police Sgt. David E. Lewis, who investigated the alleged assaults, said that as far as he can determine, there was no attempt by hospital officials to cover up the assaults.

Two Accidents Investigated

Two traffic accidents caused approximately $3,600 damage to vehicles, police reports indicated Saturday.

About $1,600 damage and one injury resulted from a collision between vehicles drive by Jack Howard Cox Jr. of 96 Windy Ridge Apartments, Olin Tillett Alexander, Route 10, Greenville, and Ethel Bridges Grimes of 102 Martha's Lane. The accident occurred on Greene Street. Police charged Cox with making an unsafe move.

A two-car collision resulted in an estimated $2,000 damage. Police records identified the drivers as Sula Cook Henderson of 1508 E. Fifth St. and Elizabeth Anne Ragland of 201-D Eastbrook Apartments. The accident occurred near the intersection of Elm Street and Greenville Boulevard. Henderson was charged with a safe movement violation.

Upton said TexasGulf has maintained its workforce despite the production cutbacks. According to Aurora officials, the company has stuck to its announced position of using layoffs only as a last resort by shifting production workers to construction projects when they were not needed in the mining operation.

"I've never heard of that kind of effort before," said Bruce Behringer, Aurora's community development director. Similar praise for TexasGulf's efforts came from Aurora Mayor Grace Bonner, who sees the mining operation as an opportunity for continued growth for her community.

The Aurora officials and Bill Abeyounis, industrial development director and executive vice president of the Washington Chamber of Commerce, exude optimism over the phosphate industry's future. Each says the industry is vital to Aurora and to Beaufort County.

"At the first of the year they were running slack, but now we feel that things are beginning to shape up," Abeyounis said.

He said Beaufort County has about 6,500 industrial workers with an annual payroll of about $50 million, with TexasGulf making up nearly one-fourth of the workforce. That payroll makes industrial operations second only to agriculture, which generates about $57 million, as Beaufort County's major source of revenue.

"If you drive down an Aurora street and look at the bumper stickers on the cars — TexasGulf has a little gold sticker — you are going to see a whole lot of them," Behringer said.

Behringer said the Aurora area had three major bases of income: agriculture, seafood and phosphate. "In terms of dollars turned over, phosphate has the biggest impact," he said, with 40 percent of TexasGulf's workers coming from Richland Township, which includes Aurora.

"It means an awful lot to us," he said, citing examples of cases in which local youngsters have gone off to college, received professional training and returned home to work in the phosphate industry. He also noted that TexasGulf and its officials have been active in civic and cultural affairs.

Behringer said that TexasGulf, when it completes the current expansion, will have about 1,600 employees. N.C. Phosphate is expected to have about 600. "Psychologically, that tells people that things are still progressing," he observed.

"There is a glimmer of hope, that the economic base of the community is going to remain stable. We expect Aurora's population to grow from 700 (today) to more than double that in the next 10 years, and that's really something in this day."

Behringer said he believes that his optimism was well-founded, pointing to the economic changes that have occurred in Aurora since the arrival of TexasGulf.

"There's no way you can become pesimistic over a three-month, or a four-month or even a year-long curtailment," he said. "I think you have to look at the long-term things."

Construction cutbacks will postpone the replacement of older central switching offices with more modern digital equipment and the defer installation of "test equipment and certain other types of equipment using more modern technology that does not have anything to do with service today, but will help service in the future," he said.

The switching equipment that will be kept in service is "good equipment," he said, and can be maintained at less cost than replacing a central office.

Robert Fischbach, executive director of the Utilities Commission's consumer-advocate Public Staff, said he could not comment on the company's plans because he did not know the details.

"If this is belt tightening, and it appears to be, then maybe some of the other utilities should be looking at what they're doing," he said.

Card Of Thanks

Perhaps you sent a lovely card,
Or sat quietly in a chair.
Perhaps you sent a funeral spray,
If so we saw it there.
Perhaps you spoke the kindest words,
As any friend could say;
Perhaps you were not there at all,
Just thought of us that day,
Whatever you did to console our hearts,
We thank you so much whatever the part

Falkland Negotiations Show No Sign Of Success

By WILLIAM H. HEATH
Associated Press Writer

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — U.S. Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. ended 12 hours of talks Saturday aimed at averting war between Argentina and Britain over the Falkland Islands with no indication of a breakthrough.

"We're still talking," Haig said as he entered his downtown hotel after Saturday's second session of negotiaions at Government House. He declined further comment.

State Department spokesman Dean Fischer said he could not characterize the talks Haig had during the day and evening with Argentina's president, Gen. Leopoldo Galtieri, and other members of the ruling Argentine junta and Foreign Minister Nicanor Costa Mendez.

"Secretary Haig has kept President Reagan fully informed about every step of the process," Fischer said.

While the top-level talks were going on, more than 20 generals met at army headquarters to review Haig's efforts to cool tensions growing out of Argentina's April 2 seizure of the British-administered Falklands.

After the morning round of talks, government press secretary Rodolfo Baltierrez said, "They're searching for common grounds for agreement. There are some differences, but they're still working."

Participants have refused comment, and earlier Fischer said he was "neither optimistic nor pessimistic."

But the postponement of Haig's scheduled departure Saturday was taken as a sign that his second visit to Buenos Aires in a week was making some progress.

A 40-ship British armada is steaming toward the disputed islands in the South Atlantic that are defended by an estimated 9,000 Argentine troops. It is believed the British war fleet is about a week away.

U.S. Embassy personnel had been ordered to be at Eziza International Airport at 10 a.m. for Haig's departure and the U.S. delegation's baggage was loaded aboard the secretary's U.S. Air Force jet, which waited with turbines humming. But shortly after noon, the engines were cut and the plane's crew was ordered back to town.

An airport official, air force Lt. Col. Salvador Alaimo, said he was told the plane would not be leaving before Sunday. Haig arrived here Thursday.

British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher cut short her weekend at her country residence and returned to her office Saturday for talks with top ministers, a spokesman at her 10 Downing Street office said.

Government sources in Britain said indications were that Haig would not be flying directly to London from Buenos Aires as orginally expected but would go to Washington first.

They said Mrs. Thatcher's return to London did not signify any major developments in Haig's efforts and her meeting with the ministers was a matter of "stock-taking."

The British Broadcasting Corp. said Haig was pressing a plan for U.N. or other third-party administration of the islands, with a continuing Argentine presence and the return of expelled British officials, while an eventual solution was sought.

The key issue appeared to remain sovereignty over the islands, 250 miles from Argentina and 8,000 miles from Britain, and ruled by Britain for 149 years. Britain calls the islands the Falklands, while Argentina refers to them as the Malvinas.

A British Defense Ministry spokesman said so far no Argentine warship has breached the 200-mile war zone Britain declared around the Falklands Monday. "We're absolutely firm on that one," said the spokesman, who asked not to be identified.

In Washington, U.S. officials said the United States was providing intelligence to the Argentines, but not information on British military activities in the Falklands dispute. It was learned earlier last week that the United States was supplying intelligence to Britain.

Washington officials have said the Soviet Union was similarly aiding Argentina, a major Soviet grain supplier. However, Argentina's ambassador to the United States, Esteban Takacs, said in a U.S. television interview Argentina had not asked the Soviets for intelligence data and none was being supplied.

Meanwhile, three British journalists were reported by their editors to have been arrested in Argentina's southernmost port — Ushuaia.

Prince Andrew Will Get Routine Flights

By ROBERT GLASS
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — Three months after qualifying as a navy helicopter pilot, Prince Andrew, second in line to the British throne, is heading for the Falkland Islands and a possible clash with Argentine warships.

The 22-year-old prince, second of Queen Elizabeth II's three sons, is a sub-lieutenant — the equivalent of a lieutenant junior grade — aboard the Invincible, a lead carrier in the armada heading to the Falklands.

Andrew, an athletic 6-footer with Hollywood looks, is a member of Invincible's frontline 820 Squadron and is qualified to fly Sea King helicopters equipped to drop anti-submarine depth charges.

"If we go into action I will put him on missions exactly the same as I would anyone else," Andrew's commanding officer, Lt. Cmdr. Ralph Wykes-Sneyd, was quoted as saying by the London Daily Mirror on Saturday.

The Mirror's reporter aboard the Invincible, Tony Snow, said Wykes-Sneyd made it clear Andrew would not get "kid glove" treatment, and described the prince as "very competent in the air."

"I have no special instructions about him from anywhere," said Wykes-Sneyd. "I am here to employ him as a pilot."

The prince became a fully qualified pilot Jan. 21, the day he joined the Invincible.

Within days of Argentina's occupation of the Falklands on April 2, the carrier put to sea from its base in Portsmouth, on England's south coast 8,000 miles away. At week's end, the British armada was thought to be days away from the South Atlantic archipelago.

With a crew of 1,000, the 19,500-ton Invincible carries the Sea King helicopters, Sea Harrier vertical-lift fighter jets and is armed with Sea Dart anti-aircraft and anti-ship missiles.

Andrew joined the navy in 1979 at the age of 19, signing up for a 12-year tour of duty. He was following a Royal Family tradition that eventually could make him an admiral of the fleet like his father, Prince Philip.

Andrew's grandfather, the late King George VI, served in the navy during World War I and as a midshipman took part in the Battle of Jutland between British and German fleets in 1916.

Andrew's brother, Prince Charles, 33-year-old heir to the throne, rose to the rank of commander before leaving the navy in 1976.

Before the Falklands mission, public curiosity about Andrew invariably focused on his reputation as a carefree dandy, the inheritor of his brother's mantle as the world's most eligible bachelor.

Andrew's frequent dates include former Miss United Kingdom Carolyn Seward, 20, and models Gemma Curry and Kim Deas, both 22.

His image as a global heartthrob was reinforced on a visit last year to Canada, where he was mobbed by adoring girls everywhere he went.

Friends describe the prince as cheerful and witty — more outspoken than Charles — but at times brisk to the point of rudeness.

"He's a bit of a show-off," London's Daily Express newspaper quoted one friend as saying. "Put it this way — he doesn't often let you forget who he is, or that the queen is his mother."

For Andrew's 21st birthday, rock singer Elton John entertained more than 600 movie stars, socialites and other guests at an all-night bash at Windsor Castle, 25 miles west of London.

He loves fast cars, having been taught to drive by the late British racing driver Graham Hill, and is said to compete keenly with his brother in wind-surfing, skiing, parachute jumping, hunting, fishing and other sports.

He also enjoys painting, and last year his mother allowed two of his landscapes to be put on display. They were described by the exhibition's organizer as "good for an amateur."

Andrew was born Feb. 19, 1960, at Buckingham Palace and was christened Andrew Albert Christian Edward. His younger brother, Edward, was born in 1964, and his sister, Anne, in 1950.

As a boy, Andrew became known in the popular press as the "palace prankster," a bit of a royal brat.

Naughty tricks attributed to him include: putting detergent in Windsor Castle's swimming pool, using his mother's favorite hat as a football and knotting the bootlaces of palace sentries.

At the age of 13, he followed his father and brother Charles into exclusive Gordonstoun School in northeast Scotland.

Bristish Leaders 'Taking Stock'

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher cut short a weekend in the country late Saturday to return to her office in London for talks with key ministers on the Falklands crisis.

Spokesmen said Mrs. Thatcher's return did not signify new developments as U.S. Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. continued his efforts in Buenos Aires to find a peaceful solution to the dispute that erupted April 2 when Argentine forces seized the Falklands.

Mrs. Thatcher went to her official residence at No. 10 Downing Street for a meeting with Foreign Secretary Francis Pym and Home Secretary William Whitelaw. One spokesman described the conference as "stock-taking."

Government sources said the indications late Saturday were that Haig will not be flying directly to London from Buenos Aireas as originally expected here but will go to Washington first.

The Defense Ministry, meanwhile, said Argentine warships are keeping clear of the British-declared war zone around the Falklands.

Mrs. Thatcher had spent the day at Chequers, the country residence of British prime ministers 30 miles northwest of London. Officials said she had time for a walk and kept up with information on the Falklands and "other business that goes with being the prime minister."

The British Broadcasting Corp. said Saturday that the United States is pressing for United Nations or other third-party administration of the Falklands, with a continuing Argentine presence and the return of expelled British officials, as a temporary measure.

BBC said the key issue appeared to be sovereignty over the islands, 250 miles off of Argentina's southeastern coast and 8,000 miles from here, and ruled by Britain for 149 years.

The Defense Ministry said so far no Argentine warship had breached the 200-mile war zone Britain declared around the South Atlantic islands.

"We're absolutely firm on that one," said a Defense Ministry spokesman, who asked not to be identified.

"I'm not releasing details of Argentine vessels' positions. But none is in the zone ... and knowing Britain's resolve and capabilities, we very much doubt they will make an effort to breach the zone," the spokesman told The Associated Press.

Britain imposed the blockade zone last Monday. It is thought to have four nuclear-powered, hunter-killer submarines in the zone, with the lead vessels of a powerful British armada about a week away.

The Defense Ministry declined comment on whether it based its certainty that Argentine vessels were not in the blockade zone on U.S. intelligence reports.

But U.S. officials denied reports that the United States was giving Argentina intelligence on the approach of the British fleet toward the South Atlantic colony, even though other kinds of intelligence were supplied in keeping with U.S. efforts to remain even-handed.

The U.S. Embassy in London said the United States was not giving Argentina satellite intelligence. In Washington, State Department press officer Anita Stockman said the United States was not providing Argentina with any military intelligence "about British activities in the Falklands dispute."

News Conference Irks Nicaragua

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — The Foreign Ministry sent a note of protest Saturday to Costa Rica complaining about a news conference held there by former Nicaraguan guerrilla leader Eden Pastora Gomez.

The note, signed by Foreign Minister Miguel D'Escoto, said Pastora's comments were injurious to the Nicaraguan leadership and posed serious threats to the government.

The "Nicaraguan government manifests its concern for the use that has been made of Costa Rican territory for the divulgence of the injurious and threatening statements by the abovementioned citizen," the note added.

Pastora, one of the heroes of the revolution that brought the Sandinista National Liberation Front to power in a civil war that ended in July of 1979, dropped from sight last July after leaving Nicaragua for Panama.

In a two-hour broadcast statement from Costa Rica on Thursday, he assailed the leftist Sandinista leadership for what he said was a sell-out to foreign interests. He said he would fight until Nicaragua had been cleared of foreign troops, a reference to Cubans in Nicaragua.

Pastors also said he was willing to take up arms against the Nicaraguan government.

Sound System For Utilities Seen By Shea

Thomas Shea, who is stepping down as chairman of the Greenville Utilities Comission and as a member, says that the charter system under which the commission operates is "a good one and should not be altered."

Andy Warren was appointed by the City Council last week to succeed Shea, who has served two terms and thus was not eligible for reappointment.

"I have seen the commission grow approximately three-fold," Shea said as he ended his term. The commission "has kept up with the parade with energy conservation programs, peak shaving, the E-300 program" and new technology. He cited improvements such as the new water plant and the proposed waste-water treatment facility.

"Many of the surrounding communities wish they had what Greenville has," Shea said. "All the training and hard work that has gone into these programs have managed to produce a working organization of which we can all be proud."

They are wise words. Periodically voices are raised demanding that the Utilities be made a department of the city government, or that the system be sold.

Citizens who are called upon to work closely with the Utilities soon learn that we have an ideal administrative set-up.

As a chartered entity of the city the utilities can be operated as a business should. At the same time it pays good dividends to the city government.

Cost Of Electricity Will Be Reduced Through Innovation

Thomas Shea, who stepped down from the Utilities Commission recently, wondered if the changeover from Vepco to CP&L will save all that much in the cost of power.

However, he noted that potential changes in generating and distributing could have considerable effect.

"I am thinking in terms of technology — frictionless transportation, no heat loss, and the new and better methods of generation. The existing units, while bigger and better, have fundamentally not changed," Shea said.

The is a world of room for innovation in methods of generating and delivering electricity. The power companies have not had the incentive to develop in these areas because rate increases can be had by showing higher costs. Somehow we must built into our rate setting structure the incentive to find more efficient ways to provide electricity. The possibilities abound.

Sunday Morning Notes

Back during World War II, and even before, there was an awareness that the air age would play a great part in the development of Greenville and Pitt County, as well as every other community of the nation.

Even as passenger trains continued to operate on Norfolk and Southern and Atlantic Coast Line tracks here, there was a great interest in commercial air service of the future.

The super highways of the post war era had not begun to develop and probably there was not a full understanding of the mania for the individual transportation that the automobile offers.

It was clear, however, that air travel was the wave of the future. Thus, there was excitement when it was announced that the U.S. government planned to develop the little dirt air strip north of Greenville into a modern facility to serve the U.S. Marines. It was recognized that the modern airport being developed for Marine air training would also be available for civilian use after the war.

Then-Lt.(jg) Charles B. Bissette, USNR, made some history when the airport was completed. He recently came across a newspaper clipping of Feb. 26, 1944, which told about it.

Reporter Chester Walsh wrote that Bissette, stationed at Little Creek between Ocean View and Virginia Beach, Va., had arrived in a Navy plane for a visit with his family.

"He was the first passenger to land at the Marine Air Training Station field since it was completed yesterday," the article said.

The article noted that as a former head of the Merchants Association and Chamber of Commerce, Bissette had been an original supporter of the airfield development.

The article cited a Civil Aeronautics Authority official as speculating that tobacco might come to Greenville from Georgia via air after the war. He noted that Georgia farmers were isolated from substantial tobacco markets but were near airfields.

Mayor B.B. Sugg and chamber manager W.T. Kyzer saw Greenville as a stopping place for great airliners with freight and passengers after the war.

As we know now, things didn't quite work out that way. There was some commercial service after the war, but it soon ended. We know of no tobacco coming into the airport.

The Pitt-Greenville Airport was eventually turned over to the city and county. It fell into poor repair for some years. Recently, however, extensive work has been done to put it in good shape.

Jet planes doomed air service to smaller cities such as Greenville. In recent years, however, new commuter airlines, such as Sunbird, have begun operations to serve smaller communities. There is also extensive use of the airport by private aircraft.

Abuse

WASHINGTON — Anne McGill Gorsuch came to work one day last week, sat down at her desk as administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency and picked up the morning Post. Two stories were of interest.

"Environmental Groups Assail EPA," read one headline. The Post keeps it set in type. "EPA Strives to Improve Enforcement," read a second headline: "In the face of mounting criticism over its failure to haul violators of environmental laws into court, the EPA has replaced its top enforcement official ..."

It was par for the course. In the 11 months she has been on the job as EPA administrator, Mrs. Gorsuch has been under constant bombardment. She is variously charged with destroying the agency's morale, leaving key positions unfilled, gutting the programs she is responsible for managing and caving in to the manufacturers of automobiles, pesticides and hazardous wastes. In the eyes of the most zealous environmentalists, she is the No. 1 Dragon Lady of the Reagan regime.

The target of all this abuse doesn't look like a dragon lady. She is given to slow smiles and soft speech; she is as neatly composed as a measure by Mozart, and under the unrelenting fire she remains as cool as the other side of a pillow. She is a lawyer, a former state legislator in Colorado, the mother of three. She will be 40 years old this week.

Mrs. Gorsuch inherited an agency of 10,000 employees and a $5 billion budget. She set out to do precisely what the preeident wanted her to do. She set in motion policies intended to reduce the regulatory burden on states, localities and private industry. She proposed to cut the paperwork, stop the Mickey Mouse stuff and bring some measures of efficiency into a bureaucratic maze. He hasn't altogether succeeded, but the record is more creditable than her assailants would have you believe.

What about morale? Yes, she concedes, agency morale slumped badly with the Reagan budget cuts last fall, but the rumors of wholesale dismissals were greatly exaggerated. Jimmy Carter's top people were ousted — what else, she gently inquires, did anyone expect. . — and it has taken longer than she hoped to fill the top spots. Only 100 employees actually were laid off in 1981; no one will be laid off in 1982, but personnel levels will drop to 8,000 by normal attrition. Only two key positions in management are still vacant.

Mrs. Gorsuch emphatically denies the "gutting" charge. On the contrary, she insists, such programs as the clean water program are being steadily expanded. Certain industrial guidelines that were supposed to have been promulgated by 1978 are now coming on line. Yes, she wants to extend the deadlines for industry's compliance. We are talking about a billion dollars in capital costs for the 40 affected industries, she remarks, and it is unreasonable to stick inflexibly to a schedule that was unrealistic in the first place.

Clean air? In 1970, the typical automobile was discharging 86 grams of carbon monoxide per mile. By 1980, this had been reduced to seven grams. The question now at hand — one of the questions that upsets the environmentalists — is whether a further reduction should be decreed to a level of 3.4 grams. Mrs. Gorsuch thinks not. This further reduction, coupled with a companion reduction in nitrogen oxides, would add at least $100 to the cost of a new car. In her view the benefits aren't worth the cost.

Enforcement? Under the Carter administration, 252 civil cases were sent to the Justice Department in 1980. The number dropped to 79 in 1981. Part of the explanation lies in the reorganization of enforcement procedures; part of it lies in a policy of concentrating on the most serious cases. At the moment, with the resignation of enforcement counsel William A. Sullivan Jr., one more reorganization is in prospect.

Theater Of The Absurd

RALEIGH — For theater of the absurd, you couldn't beat the Gov. Jim Hunt-Sen. Jesse Helms show that appeared at the Capitol recently.

The two were there to accept money from school children for the effort to keep the ocean from knocking over the Cape Hatteras Lighthouse.

For anyone new to the state or hasn't seen the news since 1971, these two are supposed to be bitter political rivals — Hunt an ultra-liberal (Republican description), Helms a conservative radical (Democratic description). Barring a spot for one or the other on a national ticket, they're likely to square off in the 1984 U.S. Senate race.

So how come whenever you see these two guys together they have big hugs and grins for each other? "Hey there, Jesse ... Hello, Jim." You'd think the two liked each other.

There they are on the Capitol steps and the TV cameras start running and so do the two candidates. Hunt, who's used to being in charge, immediately takes over, hugging the children and teachers and positioning himself between them and the senator. Taking the checks, he feigns surprise at the enormity of each. "$1,400!!! How did your class raise that?" or "$133 (hollering a little louder) That's great!!!" For the kids, he's got the stories of pirates and "shipwrecked ships" and it just goes on and on.

Helms can't let Hunt get away with this. He starts hugging the kids, too, and introduces "audience participation" politicking. "How many of you had to get up at five o'clock this morning?" he asks. The kids giggle and raise their hands.

Later, Hunt is threatening to steal the show again. Helms grabs the microphone and asks, "How many of you have seen the lighthouse?" By this time, Hunt's so pumped up, he raises his hand, too.

After awhile, even the state's oldest politician, Secretary of State Thad Eure, can't take anymore. He leaves, saying he has to get back to work.

None of these kids will be voting two years hence, but one still manages to help the candidates. He tells Hunt his class raised some enormous sum by putting glass jars in all the local stores. "Glass jars?" the two politicians say in unison.

It'll be an expensive campaign. Every little bit will help.

White House Eyes 'Soak The Rich' Plan

WASHINGTON — In fashioning the proposed new bipartisan budget, White House chief of staff James Baker is asking President Reagan to join the "soak-the-rich" gang pursuing a dubious remedy to the interest-rate agony.

Here is Jim Baker's bargain: Congressional Democrats would reluctantly agree to limit Social Security and other federal entitlement increases in return for a surcharge on income taxes paid by the "rich." The most widely-discussed scheme would put a 4 percent surtax on adjusted gross income above $35,000 and keep it there for three years.

Is it possible that Ronald Reagan would so betray the economic and philosophical principles of his campaign and administration? Democratic negotiators in the secret talks say they have been told not to worry, that the old man will be brought along. This would mark a virtuoso performance by Baker, avoiding his past mistakes in guiding the president's mind.

Behind Baker's earlier unsuccessful attempt to raise excise taxes and his current "soak-the-rich" efforts is his linkage between budget deficits and interest rates. Contrary to all past experience, the passage of a budget resolution dramatically lowering the deficit is supposed to magically bring down interest rates. Baker has rejected the supplyside argument that monetary policy is the true cause of high interest rates.

That explains Baker's quest for higher taxes against the will of a reluctant president. In the secret discussions with congressmen, Baker talks about $40 billion of defense spending cuts and $130 billion in tax increases over three years — the same budget-balancing formula fruitlessly pressed by President Jimmy Carter. But he also wants Democrats to accept a cap on entitlements, including Social Security.

Democratic negotiators say maybe — if the Republicans will match thinner benefits for Social Security beneficiaries with stouter taxation of the rich. This is the economic zero-sum game played in this country for a half century at the expense of middle- and upper-income taxpayers.

The current device to this end is the surtax, proposed earlier this year by prominent lawmakers of both parties (including Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker and House Budget Committee Chairman James Jones).

Relying on his instincts, Reagan will now decide whether he was elected president to raise marginal tax rates. Jim Baker has informed colleagues that he really has no idea what the president will do in a decision that goes to the core of what this administration stands for. If the Baker bargain is accepted, one excluded middle-level official told us, "it becomes time to wonder what the hell we're doing here."

Outside Activities Are Important

WASHINGTON — It's time we got something off our chests: Our college board scores weren't much to crow about. And our precious high school class rank was just that — rank.

Yet somehow we were able to enroll in the colleges of our choice. We'd like to think our extra-curricular pursuits — the school newspaper and the hockey team — provided preparation for college and beyond as critical as the lessons of Math I through IV.

As our college-bound brothers and sisters nervously await word this week from admissions offices, however, we've learned that such behavior is meaningless. In a new 250-page book released last week, The College Board and the Educational Testing Service (ETS) say that extra-curricular activities matter nil in the evaluation of applications. For admissions officers, only grades, test scores and that silly class rank tell the story.

After monitoring the fate of some 25,000 college applications in 1979, ETS research psychologists Warren Willingham and Hunter Breland concluded: "Contrary to what is generally thought, outstanding extra-curricular accomplishment has little effect on selection."

Breland and Willingham convinced nine relatively small private colleges and universities — Bucknell, Colgate, Hartwick, Kalamazoo, Kenyon, Occidental, Ohio Wesleyan, Richmond and Williams — to employ a common application for the prospective class of 1983 (who, by now, are college juniors). While the schools, selectivity varied widely, all placed moderate" emphasis on personal accomplishments.

Of course, you don't have to be a research psychologist to know that in American schools grades and test scores are of paramount concern. After all, nobody ever took the SATs to have a good time.

But it has long been a common belief among college-bound kids and their parents that most institutions reward out-of-class activities in a student's admissions profile. Colleges have nurtured this notion themselves, mimicking the Marines' fascination with the well-rounded recruit.

Now we're hearing something different. Only extracurricular activities highlighted by "significant accomplishment" will tip the scales in a close call. Being a member of the chess club won't help, but being a world-class sprinter will.

While the news may be of no consequence to high school seniors expecting the dreaded letters this week, it could send the wrong signal to their successors. Given the tendency among some students to "get involved" just to "get in," many might use the ETS study as an excuse to forgo, for example, a position on the yearbook staff. "Why," they'll ask, "should I be cropping and pasting when memorizing chemical valency is all that matters to the gods in the admissions office?"

Whether they're college-bound or not, students should think twice before handing in their resignations. Outside activities can offer experience as important — if not more so — as the routine fare of texts and classroom lessons. ETS's own Warren Willingham noted in an interview last week that "young people don't live their lives in compartments. Whether they learn to write well in class or out of class, I don't see that one method is better than the other as long as the outcome is good."

Undoubtedly, more prescient schools will keep looking beyond the grades and the scores. Highly-selective institutions, including several involved in the ETS study, take a closer look at extra-curricular activities than their less selective counterparts. As one Harvard admissions dean told our reporter, John Riccardi, more prestige schools can afford to look at a variety variable when weighing a student's case. "Besides, no top school wants a bunch of kids who sit on their rumps and vegetate," he said.

All colleges — not just those in the Ivy League — must take responsibility for the signals they send with each acceptance and rejection letter. If admissions officers believe that commitments and diverse accomplishments are valuable to their schools and to society at large, they should be encouraging experimentation and involvement as avidly as good grades. Overlooking activities in admissions decisions helps no one, colleges included.

We hope students will rise above the ETS report and pursue their outside interests. Though extra-curricular activities may seem especially inconsequential now, hindsight will prove otherwise. Take it from a couple of former extra-curricular kooks: When you look back on the "happy days" of high school, you may forget the plays you read, but you'll never forget the plays you were in.

To the editor:

Happy anniversary and congratulations on 50 years of outstanding service are extended to the Knights of Columbus from the Association for Retarded Citizens-Pitt County.

We, the members of ARC-PC know first hand of the valuable contributions which the Knights make to Greenville and Pitt County. Through the generosity of the Knights of Columbus and the efforts of the Association for Retarded Citizens-Pitt County, 28 children in need of speech therapy are now receiving that very valuable service through the speech, language and audio-pathology department of East Carolina University. To these children, it may well be the most valuable gift they will ever receive.

ARC-PC is proud to be able to assist the Knights of Columbus with their annual Tootsie Roll drive which makes such endeavors possible. The next time you see that bright yellow apron that reads "Help Retarded Children," remember the good things that happen.

We wish the Knights another 50 years of success!

It Isn't The Best Time To Ask For A Raise

NEW YORK (AP) — You don't have to be old and bored to say that spring isn't what it used to be in the business world.

It used to be a time of renewal, of big plans, of opportunities to be seized. A time for telling the boss you wanted a pay raise, and if you were successsful, a time for kicking tires and buying a new car.

It was a time also for taking the family for a ride through the new housing development and a time for assuring the real estate agent that, "We certainly are interested, and we'll get back to you for sure."

It was all part of the spring ritual, the reawakening of those old capitalistic impulses that now tend to be called greed, a time when you said, "This is it, this is the year when it will all come together."

Not many people entertain such hopes this year. It isn't the best time to ask for a raise, not with 9.9 million unemployed and with your neighbors signing away the benefits they had won when times were good.

Tire-kicking is out this year. The dealers and manufacturers have all but conceded it, and so have the customers. The latter say they can't afford the prices. The former say they'll go broke if they cut more.

Few carmen have Lee Iacocca's zeal from Chrysler. Some are so depresssed they aren't even fluttering their colored banners over showrooms or running their fantastic, stupendous, lowest-price-anywhere promotions and ads.

A tour of showrooms in many areas is likely to reveal a few places with nothing in the showroom but an old oil stain or an empty desk, revealing to the few who stop by that the business went under.

Many hundreds of car dealers have met that fate over the past couple of years, and the story is repeated among real estate salespeople. The National Association of Realtors has lost tens of thousands of members. And some who remain are very changed people.

How, for example, can a salesperson remain enthusiastic when nobody shows up to buy? Or when a customer wanders in with futility on his face and a hard-to-hide conviction that he can't handle the financing?

All the big businesss get-togethers seem to have a somber quality about them. Even the upbeat, "Let's Rebuild, America," theme of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce annual meeting, to be held April 25-27 in Washington carries the reminder that something went wrong.

You can understand that a pall would hang over the 62nd annual conference of the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks, which meets May 16-19 in Atlanta, because savings banks are in deep trouble.

And in view of automobile industry problems, it is reasonable that Roger Smith, General Motors Corp. chairman, should be on guard for critical comments at the annual meeting scheduled for May 21 in Detroit.

But scores of other corporations are preparing for confrontations of one sort or another at their meetings. "As many as a quarter of all shareholder resolutions are concerned with social issues today, up from a handful a decade ago," says the Council on Economic Priorities.

A decade ago, you might recall, social activists were only beginning to understand the process of putting issues before such meetings. Now any management must be ready to defend not just profits but how they were earned, and whether enough money was spent on social betterment.

The Finest Rush Hour

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Atrocities almost always accompany armed invasion, and the Falklands are no exception.

Within hours after Argentina forces took over the islands, there came reports that the new military government was forcing British subjects there to drive on the right hand side of the street.

One Falklander protested that it was as though "a dextral curtain had descended across the roadway."

You have seen, I'm sure, pictures of the poor wretches tooling to starboard under compulsion, their natural predilections and inclinations ruthlessly crushed. It fair makes a body's blood run cold.

Horror photographs, as much as anything, rallied public opinion in this country against the war in Vietnam. One wonders if stark, graphic shots of traffic in the Falklands will now swing the pendulum of America public opinion against Argentina.

Probably the worse thing about barbaric treatment of one sort is that it tends to give rise to other inhumane actions.

A junta that is capable of an iron-fisted suppression of portside steering can be expected to impose other cruel measures, such as forbidding the British Falklanders to keep stiff upper lips.

The rights of the Falklanders to self-determination with respect to the side of the road they drive on was a prime consideration in Her Majesty's government's decision to send a war fleet to South America.

Should the British armada strike at "the soft under-belly of Argentina" and restore British control of the islands, you can bet that will be among the first civil guarantees reinstated.

"We shall fight in the median strips, at the cloverleafs and on the exit ramps," a member of Parliament was quoted as vowing. "We shall never surrender the right-of-way."

In this country, where motorists have been driving on the right side of the road ever since the horseless carriage was invented, the intensity of the British resolve may be underestimated.

Try putting yourself in their shoes — the empire collapsing about them; the vaunted navy that once ruled the waves reduced to a second rate power.

Such a people obviously need something they can cling to, and driving on the left side is one link with a glorious past that won't be abandoned without a struggle.

As one pro-Falkland activist put it in ringing words:

"Let us therefore brace ourselves to our duties, and so drive our motor cars that, if the British Empire and its Commonwealth last for a thousand years, men will still say: 'This was their finest rush hour.'"

President's Trip To Europe May Help

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan's early June trip to Europe may come just in time to give his falling fortunes a lift.

In the book of political cliches, it has been true that when a president travels abroad and his leadership qualities are displayed with great fanfare, the country rallies in support, and his stock rises.

Reagan's decline in popularity and performance ratings are viewed by some aides as a traditional drop as a president moves into his second year.

The president had warned of sacrifices that would have to be made to curtail the size of government and its services. But his proposals are hurting more than expected, and there is a growing doubt that there will be an economic turn around by early summer, which he and his aides have forecast.

The White House way of dealing with the problem is to isolate the president more and more. As the days go on, his public and official activities are being curtailed.

The perception that his top aides have extraordinary power remains, although there are more instances apparent now that Reagan is running his own show. His aides, who never hesitate to go on television to explain what Reagan means or intends, can be and have been wrong.

Reagan clearly is a man who wants to keep his campaign promises, and who is determined to stick to his own ideology even when it comes under severe attack.

The media coverage of Reagan is now almost totally managed by his aides — obviously with the president's approval — with stringent new gag rules on reporters. All cameramen are welcome.

Meantime, the speeches that Reagan gives in his radio addresses and to sympathetic groups he gathers around him in the White House now have a noticeably bitter defensive edge. To religious leaders he had to repeatedly give assurances that his administration was not abandoning a "commitment to the poor."

The raft of social programs he has tried to reduce, or at least to realign, have aroused public concern, and on that score Reagan finds himself on the defensive. The subject of college student loans was particularly irritating and he used the unusual forum of a radio speech from Barbados to insist that there was no change in the thrust of the program.

As contacts lessen with the president — and on many days neither reporters nor cameramen see him — Reagan appears more and more to be an isolated and insulated president.

Even when he goes outside the White House to speak or travels outside of town, the security considerations make it impossible for the old give and take, contacts with crowds, and the human story of a president. If that persists he will become even more encapsulated, and more remote.

But in the coming months there will be increasing pressure on Reagan to campaign for Republican candidates, and his political strategists are playing hard ball to keep the troops in line.

White House political adviser Edward J. Rollins told reporters "the Republicans have to get back in line" behind the president. He also made it clear there would be penalties for Republican politicians such as Sens. Bob Packwood of Oregon and Lowell P. Weicker Jr. of Connecticut who have publicly criticized the president.

Rollins also chided administration officials who have done nothing to disabuse the public that Reagan makes mistakes. "We've done more damage to ourselves than anyone else has."

He stressed no Republican will get Reagan help unless he falls in line.

Rollins is urging Reagan to step up his travel schedule and to purchase broadcast time to broaden his audiences beyond the weekly Saturday five-minute radio programs. The radio speeches have commanded a wide audience and assure the president of coverage in the Sunday newspapers.

Reagan now has an image problem. All presidents get to that stage. He is trying to overcome it. The trip to Europe and the scheduled major nuclear disarmament at the United Nations later in June may help.

POLL

PRINCETON, N.J. — The public's confidence in the Reagan administration's economic program continues to slide: Only four persons in 10 think it will improve the national economy. Yet over the long term, optimism about its effectiveness outweighs pessimism by a 3-to-2 ratio.

In the latest Gallup survey, 40 percent say the economy will be strengthened by Reaganomics while 48 percent say it will get worse. When the time frame is extended to one year from now, a 42 percent plurality of Americans offer positive appraisals while 40 percent are negative. And, over the long run, 40 percent see an improved economy as a consequence of Reaganomics compared to 34 percent who hold the opposite opinion.

The table below summarizes these findings, show a more optimistic economic outlook as the target date is extended into the future.

Effect Of 'Reaganomic's
On Nation's Economy

	Now	One year from now	In the long run
Better	40%	42%	49%
Worse	48	40	34
Same (volunteered)	5	9	6
No opinion	7	9	11

The public has consistently been less sanguine about Reaganomics' effect on their own economic health than on the nation's, suggesting a willingness to undergo personal sacrifice if it means the U.S. as a whole will benefit.

Appraisals Tied To Approval Of Reagan

As shown in the table below, Americans' evaluation of Reaganomics' is very closely linked to their general appraisal of President Reagan's performance in office.

Among those who approve of Reagan's overall handling of his presidential duties (46 percent of the total) there is a much greater tendency to feel Reaganomics will improve the nation's financial situation (72 percent) than is true of the 45 percent who disapprove of Reagan, only 11 percent of whom have a positive outlook toward Reaganomics' effect on the nation.

Similarly, an overwhelming 81 percent majority of Reagan backers feel Reaganomics wil benefit the nation over the long run while only 18 percent of the president's detractors feel the same way. Even among the latter, however, long-term appraisals of Reaganomics are more favorable than short term.

Effect Of Reaganomics
On Nation's Economy

	Better	Worse	Same	No opinion
Approve of President Reagan
Now	72%	19%	5%	4%
Year from now	74	13	8	5
In long run	81	9	4	6
Disapprove of President Reagan
Now	11	82	2	5
Year from now	12	70	9	9
In long run	18	63	7	12

Following are the questions asked and highlights of the trends:

"What effect do you think the Reagan administration's economic policies will have on the nation's economic situation? Do you feel the nation's economic situation will be much better, somewhat better, somewhat worse, or much worse as a result of the Reagan economic policies?"

Effect Of Reaganomics
On Nation's Economy

	Oct	Oct.-Nov.	Feb.	LATEST
Better	53%	44%	40%	40%
Worse	37	42	44	48
Same/No opinion	10	14	16	12

'What effect do you think these policies will have on your family's financial situation? Do you feel your financial situation will be much better, somewhat better, somewhat worse, or much worse as a result of the Reagan economic policies?"

Effect Of Reaganomics
On Personal Finances

	Aug.	Nov.	Feb.	LATEST
Better	48%	35%	31%	28%
Worse	36	49	44	51
Same/No opinion	16	16	25	21

The results reported today are based on in-person interviews with 1,580 adults, 18 and older, conducted in more than 300 scientifically-selected localities across the nation during the period March 12-15.

For results based on a sample of this size, one can say with 95 percent confidence that the error attributable to sampling and other random effects could be three percentage points in either direction.

A Miracle Once ... But Not Twice

Back in June of 1965, Robert Pennell and other convicts were clearing a highway right-of-way in Yadkin County near Winston-Salem. Suddenly, the 26-year-old Hickory man slipped and was about to fall. Instinctively, he extended his left hand to break his fall. Unfortunately, the hand was extended right in the path of a bush ax being swung by a fellow prisoner. The sharp blade severed the hand from the arm.

Prison authorities packed the hand in a bucket of ice and rushed it and Pennell to Baptist Hospital in Winston-Salem where a surgical team went to work. For eight hours they painstakingly sewed each nerve and sinew together until they had put Pennell's hand back on his arm. It was believed to be the first sucessful operation of its type in the United States.

Then came many months of physical therapy as doctors and therapists worked with Penell to restore the use of his left hand. He did reflexing exercises. he lifted weights, did push-ups and chinned himself. Fortunately, Penell was right handed.

In an interview several months later, Penell recalled that at first the pain was intense, and he suffered agonies. "Now it's real hot and just burns. At other times it's an ache," he recalled. Pennell went to work in the hospital as the theraphy program continued.

"I can feel improvement week-by-week," Pennell said. "About every week or so they'll find a new muscle starting to work." He got so that he could do 12 successive pushups, rest a moment and then do 12 more. He could chin himself and lift five-pound weights with his left hand.

Despite the steady progress, the restored hand still did not function perfectly. The muscles in the thumb would not function so that Pennell could not grasp articles with his left hand unless he used his right hand to place the left thumb in the proper position. One of the surgeons considered the possibility of transplanting a tendon from the index finger to the thumb.

Meanwhile, Pennell who was serving a three- to five-year prison term for possession of burglary tools and breaking and entering, applied for parole. Finally, Gov. Dan Moore granted him a full pardon. Shortly thereafter, Pennell left the hospital and returned to Hickory.

But misfortune continued to dog him. A few weeks after Pennell was pardoned, he was shot in an altercation in a Hickory cafe. Pennell was taken to a Hickory hospital where he recovered form a pistol wound in the stomach. Police charged William Samuel Brank, 45, of assult with a deadly weapon.

Finally, Pennell's luck completely ran out. On Nov. 19, 1967, he was seriously injured in an automobile accident and taken back to Baptist Hospital where the surgeons had performed the miraculous operation two years before. This time, though, there were no miracles and Pennell died on Thanksgiving Day.

The Winston-Salem surgeons could have been forgiven if they had asked themselves — as the little boy asked his grandfather in peot Robert Southey's "The Battle of Blenhein," what good it had done and was told, "Why that I cannot tell ... but 'twas a famous victory." Perhaps the knowledge and experience the surgeons acquired in performing a miracle on Robert Pennell enabled them to do their work so well that such operations no longer are regarded as miracles.

U.S. Again Turns To Shuttle Diplomacy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Anxious about Israeli withdrawal from the Sinai and eager to stave off a war over the Falkland Islands, President Reagan has turned to "shuttle diplomacy," a familiar American response to international crises in recent years.

The risks are great. But so are the potential dividends for the shuttling broker who succeeds in keeping the peace.

Once upon a time, secretaries of state were reluctant to leave their desks and the cable traffic in Washington that kept them abreast of world problems. But that was before the era of instant, in-flight communications. It also was before Henry Kissinger started shuttling.

Airborne now, and with no fixed return dates, the two top men in the State Department are feverishly seeking solutions to the Middle East and Falklands problems through direct intercession with opposing parties.

If Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. fails — and so far his prospects for success are not very bright — two U.S. friends, Britain and Argentina, could be at each other's throats.

If his deputy, Walter J. Stoessel Jr. stumbles, Mideast tensions could boil over into renewed conflict. Stoessel's task is to hold Israel to its promise to withdraw from the Sinai on April 25, to prevent a breakdown of the Lebanon cease-fire and urge a more benign Israeli rule over its turbulent occupied territories in the West Bank and Gaza Strip.

In some ways, the shuttle diplomacy that Kissinger popularized nearly a decade ago looks easy compared to the Haig and Stoessel assignments.

Stoessel is working in the region where Kissinger once shuttled, but it seems that ensuring compliance with existing accords might prove more difficult than engineering agreements about the future.

Kissinger could hop back and forth between Cairo and Jerusalem in less than two hours. It was even easier shuttling between Syria and Israel.

Poor Haig. His shuttle between London and Buenos Aires is a 6,962-mile trek. And distance is the least of his problems.

Haig's mission to avert war between Britain and Argentina over the Falklands is complicated by reported Soviet involvement in the South Atlantic. Already buying about two-thirds of Argentina's grain harvest, and eager to take up the slack left by Common Market sanctions, the Soviets are said to be snooping on the British armada headed for the Falklands and passing the information on to Buenos Aires.

"I'd like to see them butt out," Reagan said of the Soviets before he sent Haig back to his Air Force jet. Sidestepping reports the United States is providing weather and communications data to the British, the president said he wants to remain a "fair broker" to both sides.

Haig runs a risk that the United States might be blamed by one side or the other if his mediation effort fails. If Argentina seems to be squeezed unfairly, the historic distrust of Yankee motives might resurface among Latin-American nations.

Even success involves a gamble. The immediate gratitude for helping to avert a conflict could give way eventually to resentment with whatever solution Haig might help Britain and Argentina find. If the settlement unravels, Washington could become the scapegoat.

Doolittle Raiders Hold Reunion

By ORVAL JACKSON

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) — Forty years after their famed bombing run on Tokyo surviving members of Doolittle's Raiders met behind closed doors Saturday to call the roll and toast with silver goblets "those who have gone."

Sixteen planes, with five-man crews each, took part in the World War II attack and at least one member from each crew is still alive.

Only the crew of the "Lucky 13th," however, was able to report "all present or accounted for."

Outsiders were barred from the ceremony, but by tradition Retired Lt. Gen. Jimmy Doolittle leads the raiders in rising their inscribed silver goblets in a toast "to those who have gone."

Forty-nine of the 80 raiders are still alive, and 32 attended this year's three day reunion.

Their raid marked the first time the Japanese homeland was hit after the attack on Pearl harbor and set the stage for the decisive battle of Midway six weeks later.

They made their historic bombing run in old prop-driven B-25's, but after the roll call Saturday they toured the flight line at MacDill Air Force base to inspect the sleek F16 jets that are a mainstay in America's modern day arsenal.

The reunion concluded Saturday night at a public banquet in St. Petersburg with speeches by Doolittle and Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz.

Among the women attending the reunion were Doolittle's wife "Joe", which she prefers rather than her given name Josephine, and the widows of seven members of the all-volunteer raiders.

"I didn't know where he was," Mrs. Doolittle recalled when asked when she first learned of her husband's risky mission. "I learned about it when the president announced it."

When the 16 bombers were launched from the pitching decks of the aircraft carrier Hornet on April 18, 1942 and headed for Japan, it was a one-way trip.

After dropping their bombs on Tokyo, 15 of the planes headed for safe areas in China, but one landed in Russian controlled territory. The five men in that crew were interned for one year before being returned home.

Another plane ditched in the China Sea near the coast and two of its crew drowned and three were captured by the Japanese. The crew of still another plane bailed out over a Japanese controlled area and all were captured.

But the crews of the other 13 planes bailed out over Chinese controlled land and eventually joined up at Chungking and were returned home.

Three of the men captured by the Japanese were executed and one died in prison camp. Of the four who survived and were released after 40 months captivity, three still are alive and two were at the reunion — Robert L. Hite of Enid, Okla., and Jacob DeShazer of Salem, Ore.

IN THE COCKPIT AGAIN ... Retired Gen. James Doolittle sits in the cockpit of a B-25 bomber during the 40th reunion of his raiders. Thirty-two of the 49 surviving members of the Doolittle raid on Japan in World War II were on hand for the reunion in Florida. (AP Laserphoto)

Senate To Examine Troop Cutback Plan

By W. DALE NELSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (A) — The Senate opens hearings this week on proposals embraced by both liberals and conservatives to bring home some of the 300,000 U.S. troops stationed in Europe despite warnings that it might further divide an already shaky NATO.

Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, released on Saturday a report by the committee staff saying that "any significant withdrawals" would make NATO less cohesive.

"This study makes a convincing case that NATO ... could easily be pushed into crisis if issues are not managed carefully," Percy said. "It is, therefore, a particularly bad time for Congress to consider any proposal to remove U.S. troops from Europe."

Despite the opposition of Percy and pressure by the Reagan administration not to open the subject, the Senate subcommittee on defense appropiations will hold hearings Wednesday and Thursday on U.S. global commitments, including troops in Europe.

Scheduled witnesses include Deputy Secretary of Defense Frank C.Carlucci and Richard Perle, assistant secretary of defense for international security policy.

The chairman of the subcommittee, Sen. Ted Stevens, R-Alaska, has questioned both the need and the cost of the U.S. commitment — $41 billion a year for the troops actually in place in Europe and another $90 billion support costs in the United States.

"We are not saying to walk away from it, but we are saying we should take a hard look to see if it has to continue at such a high level," an aide to Stevens said.

The idea of troop withdrawals is drawing support in Congress both from conservatives who believe Europeans are not doing their share and liberals who see it as a means of reducing defense spending.

It picked up more support when Western Europeans refused to impose sanctions on trade with the Soviet Union as requested by the United States following the marshal law crackdown in Poland last December.

The Foreign Relations Committee staff report said complete withdrawal of U.S. forces over a short period of time "would represent such a drastic shift in U.S. policy that its overall consequences would be catastrophic."

"The idea of partial or phased withdrawals does have appeal for some," the report added. "But in the current political climate, any significant withdrawals would be seen as punitive and would clearly provoke an angry, confused, and divisive European reaction that would severely harm NATO cohesion."

Meanwhile, Sen. Joseph Biden of Deleware, the ranking Democrat on the European affairs subcommittee, released a Libary of Congress report which contended that a U.S. troop withdrawal could bring about a Soviet doimination of Europe.

The report by the Congressional Research Service said troop withdrawals "could lead to an independent but neutral Europe, a fragmented Europe greatly influenced by the Soviet Union, or Soviet domination of the entire continent."

But the report also said it was "theoretically possible" that U.S. troop withdrawals would bring about a more united Europe allied to the United States, Congress should "examine with great care" any such step, it said.

The question of the U.S. troop commitment to NATO, the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, has been reviewed by Congress periodically since the late 1950s.

The last time was in 1973, when a coalition of moderate to conservative Republicans and Democrats defeated a troop-cutting amendment sponsored by then Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont.

Famous Festival Gets Non-Famous

KINGSTON, Ga. (AP) — Maybe it wasn't the star-studded opening of "Gone With The Wind" at Loew's Grand Theater down in Atlanta, but this town's Famous People Festival certainly had its celebrities Saturday.

A crowd hungry for a look at the glitter people were treated to the the likes of Fat Boy Pruitt of Texas City, Texas, "Famous" Amos, West Virginia's secretary of state, horror movie actor Freddie James and the 1977 homecoming queen of Florida Technological University.

"I had to come here to be certified," said "Famous" Wally Amos, a chocolate chip czar from the West Coast who boasted that his business sold $6 million in cookies last year.

The festival, cooked up by Mayor Vernon Ayers, was originally meant to commemorate the anniversary of Andrew's Raid during the War Between the States. But when celebrity after celebrity refused to come to the event, Ayers sent out an all-points plea for a celebrity — any celebrity — to grace the festival.

They came in droves on Saturday. In addition to the big names already mentioned, the event drew Freckles the Clown, Abraham Lincoln, two versions of Santa Claus and hundreds of people wearing T-shirts proclaiming the wearer as an "Official Famous Person."

Connecticut Man Kills Four People

WEST HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — A salesman shot and killed his former wife and her boyfriend on a sidewalk of this affluent suburb Saturday, then rushed to her home and and fatally shot her mother and his own adopted teen-age daughter, police said.

Police Chief Francis Reynolds said Steven J. Wood, 42, a plastics company employee who has a criminal record dating back to 1958, shot his former wife, Rosa Wood, 34, and her boyfriend, George A. Troie, 32, each with a single shot to the head.

Their bodies were found on the street handcuffed together. Reynolds said police could not explain when or why the two were handcuffed.

Wood was arrested after a five-hour standoff with police at his ex-wife's home where he shot killed his ex-mother-in-law and the teenage girl, police said.

Mrs. Wood and Troie apparently had been sitting together in a parked car on a West Hartford street, Reynolds said, and left the car before the shooting.

"It appeared they were running into the street when they were shot," said Reynolds, who declined to discuss a possible motive.

The other two victims were Patricia Voli, 65, Mrs. Wood's mother, and Lisa Wood, 15, Mrs. Wood's daughter by a previous marriage who was adopted by Wood. The Woods were divorced about six months ago, Reynolds said.

Lisa's body was found in her bedclothes in a second-floor bedroom of Mrs. Wood's home, a large two-story house in an exclusive, residential section. Mrs. Voli was found in a first-floor bedroom.

Two handguns, a .357 magnum and a .380 caliber automatic, were recovered at Mrs. Woods's house.

Police were called about 12:30 a.m. with a report of gunfire in the West Hartford business area. There they found the bodies of Mrs. Woods and Troie. Hurrying to Mrs. Wood's home, Reynolds said, officers heard two gunshots, back to back, inside the the home.

The officers were notified by headquarters that Wood was in the house, holding two hostages, Reynolds said.

"The house and neighborhood was secured. Contact was made with Steven Wood by telephone and he stated that he was holding two hostages, his daughter and his former mother-in-law."

During the next five hours, police, including Reynolds, relatives and a psychologist, held telephone conversations with Wood. About 6:15 a.m., Wood surrendered peacefully.

Wood was held on $200,000 bond pending an appearance Monday in West Hartford Superior Court.

Israelies Say Sinai Retreat Is Certainty

By MARCUS ELIASON
Associated Press Writer

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Senior Israeli officials said Saturday that Egypt has rectified peace-treaty "violatons" and Israel's final withdrawal from the Sinai on April 25 "is no longer in doubt."

The officials, who declined to be identified, said Egypt had withdrawn military units and installations that Israel had claimed were not permitted in the limited-forces area of the eastern Sinai mapped out in the 1979 peace treaty.

Israel Television said an American U-2 reconnaissance plane would photograph the area Sunday and turn the pictures over to Israel and Egypt.

The officials said that on the eve of the last scheduled Cabinet meeting before the withdrawal, most ministers were confident the alleged violations were being corrected and the final withdrawal would take place on deadline.

They said Prime Minister Menachem Begin had concluded that the dispute over a small patch of territory at the southern tip of the future Egyptian-Israeli border was "technical, not political," and would be solved.

They said Israel was considering various means of reinforcing the peace treaty, such as asking President Reagan to send Egypt and Israel a letter reaffirming U.S. guarantees of the accord it helped negotiate during the Carter administration.

This might be dicussed with U.S. Deputy Secretary of State Walter Stoessel who returns to Israel Sunday from Cairo, they said. Stoessel has been shuttling between Egypt and Israel seeking a solution to last-minute disputes.

Israel also had accused Egypt of violating the treaty by allegedly overlooking the smuggling of arms to Palestinian guerrillas in the occupied Gaza Strip. A high-ranking Egyptian intelligence officer came here to examine the problem, and the officials said Israel took this act as closing the matter.

They indicated that Israel's third charge — that Egypt was backing Palestinian statehood in the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River and Gaza Strip in contradiction of the spirit of the peace treaty — was being dealt with "in a positive direction."

Some Israelis remain skeptical, however. Seven of the 48 deputies in Begin's parliamentary Likud faction urged the government "to reconsider its decision to withdraw" in light of the alleged infractions.

Legislator Yigal Cohen-Orgad accused Egypt of putting a wholly different interpretation on the peace treaty by calling for Palestinain statehood.

Meanwhile, the Israeli army was reported to be making final preparations to evacuate about 2,000 people who are refusing to leave the Israeli town of Yamit in the section of Sinai to be turned over to Egypt.

Israel Television said hopes for a peaceful evacuation were boosted by a declaration by Israel's two chief rabbis saying any suicidal attempt to block the withdrawal would violate Jewish law.

It said the statement by Rabbis Shlomo Goren and Ovadiah Yosef was prompted by reports that some militant religious nationalists had suggested that the anti-withdrawal movement make a "Masada-like" stand at Yamit.

Masada is the mountain fortress where the Jews made their last stand against the Romans in 70-73 A.D. and committed mass suicide when they faced defeat.

The television broadcast quoted the rabbis as warning that anyone killed resisting withdrawal "will be regarded not as a martyr but as a suicide who has no place in the afterworld."

Carter May Join Mideast Peace Talks

ATLANTA (AP) — Former President Carter says he may travel to the Middle East to join negotiations on Palestinian autonomy in the West Bank and Gaza Strip, according to an interview in the joint Sunday editions of The Atlanta Journal and The Atlanta Constitution.

Carter alsc said he thought the Reagan Administration's failure to take a more active role in the Middle East has jeopardized the continuation of the Camp David peace process, initiated by Carter, the late Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin.

Predicting Israel's scheduled withdrawal from the Sinai will take place "without a hitch" on April 25, Carter said he may become personally involved in the second phase of the peace process — the negotiations on Palestinian autonomy.

"I'll use my influence, whatever it is, to continue the process. Particularly in Egypt, and I think to a major degree in Israel. I'm still trusted," Carter said. "As a private citizen working in a proper way, I'll use my influence if a time of trouble comes."

A State Department spokesman said there would be no comment on Carter's proposed travels.

The former president said from his home in Plains that his involvement, which may include several trips to the Middle East, "will not be governmental in nature."

When asked what role the United States will play after the transfer of the Sinai, Carter replied, "I'm presuming that your question refers to the Reagan-Haig administration. I don't know."

"Evidences of good faith and common understanding and ease of communication and so forth haven't been realized," he said. "And those things need to be implemented in their entirety, maybe before we can hope to have a final resolution of the West Bank, Palestinian-Israeli security question.

Inmate To Get Award

DENVER (AP) — A 44-year-old inmate convicted of shooting two policemen and killing a father of four will receive a Freedoms Foundation award for an angry letter about the seizure of U.S. hostages in Iran.

The foundation, based in Valley Forge, Pa., annually honors individuals who by their words or deeds exemplify the American way of life.

Nancy De Lauro, the awards chairman for the Denver chapter of the foundation, said she knew about Hayward Lawson's record. But she said his letter to the editor of the Denver Post stood out from the hundreds of items written after the release of the hostages.

Lawson's letter, published Feb. 7, 1981, expressed anger at Iran for holding the hostages:

"When our flag was burned and a third-rate nation raised clenched fists against our president, my anger rose. When the United States was called 'the great Satan,' I wanted to scream out, 'You dirty bastards — I'm buried in prison here in the United States and I wouldn't trade my fate with the very best of your lot!'"

Lawson is serving a term of 25 years to 40 years at the Colorado State Penitentiary for shooting two Wheat Ridge policemen during a burglary attempt and stealing a woman's car at gunpoint during the getaway in September 1973.

When that term is up, he will start a life sentence for bursting through the door of a Lakewood home during a robbery attempt in January 1973 and shooting to death a father of four before escaping with about $10.

His trouble with the law began when he was a teenager and includes numerous burglary arrests and a jail escape from Missouri.

Ruth Schilgen, a foundation spokeswoman, said she was not aware of Lawson's murder conviction, but that she knew he was "a serious criminal."

"We were a little nervous about awarding a prisoner," she said. "Our jury awarded it to him, but we were not going to make any news about it. We were going to give it to him quietly."

Reagan Says Union Needed

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan said Saturday that the United States and the Soviet Union must negotiate a joint nuclear arms reduction to "end this threat of doomsday which hangs over the world."

Reagan told a nationwide radio audience that he opposes nuclear war, but that the United States cannot unilaterally reduce its nuclear arms stockpile without similar action by the Soviets.

Reagan disputed accusations that he is a nuclear arms proponent.

"Those who've governed America throughout the nuclear age and we who govern it today have had to recognize that a nuclear war cannot be won and must never be fought," Reagan said. "So, to those who protest against nuclear war, I can only say I'm with you. Like my predecessors, it is now my responsibility to do my utmost to prevent such a war. No one feels more than I the need for peace."

In a Democratic response, Rep. Toby Moffett of Connecticut said that although the Reagan speech was billed as a talk about arms control, it wasn't.

"It was a discussion about our enemy, the Soviet Union," said Moffett. "We Democrats agree with him on Afghanistan and Poland, but we don't agree the Soviet Union is 10 feet tall. We don't believe they are stronger than America. And it serves no useful purpose for a president to keep suggesting they are."

Reagan's broadcast address was given on the eve of the opening of an ambitious, week-long project by Ground Zero to make Americans aware of the dangers of nuclear war. The non-partisan educational group planned a series of seminars, teach-ins, "dances against death," "run-for-your-life" marathons, and other activities on 450 campuses and in more than 750 communities throughout the nation.

Brezhnev Rejects New York Summit

MOSCOW (AP) — President Leonid I. Brezhnev on Saturday rejected President Reagan's offer to meet in New York during a special U.N. session in June, saying a superpower summit should not be incidental to another forum. He proposed they meet instead in a neutral country in the fall.

At the White House, communications director David Gergen said, "We do not interpret his (Brezhnev's) remarks as a rejection of the president's expressed hopes that President Brezhnev would come to New York in June and meet with him" during a special U.N. session on arms reduction.

He said Brezhnev's remarks would be studied but Reagan "remains hopeful that President Brezhnev will come to the United Nations this June and meet with him then."

Brezhnev mentioned Finland and Switzerland, two neutral European countries, as possible sites, and suggested October as a possible time, according to the official news agency Tass, which announced Brezhnev's response.

Brezhnev's remarks were made in response to a question by the Communist Party newspaper Pravda and distributed, in advance, by Tass.

It was the 75-year-old Brezhnev's first major statement since he disappeared from public view March 25 after a four-day visit to Soviet Central Asia.

Brezhnev later was reported by unofficial Soviet sources to have been hospitalized and then released. He was variously said to be suffering from exhaustion, a heart ailment or a stroke, but the Soviet Foreign Ministry said he was on a regular winter rest.

His statement Saturday simultaneously answered Reagan's proposal and indicated that he considers himself in good enough health to meet the American six months from now.

Reagan had told reporters in Washington April 5 that he would address a U.N. disarmament conference in New York in June, and suggested that Brezhnev do the same.

Asked if he would like to meet with Brezhnev after the U.N. arms control sessions, Reagan said then: "Naturally, a head of state is here in our own country. I would very much think that he and I would have a meeting."

However, Brezhnev told Pravda that Reagan's offer had "left rather a vague impression" on him and said he thought the meeting had a better chance of success if it was not held in conjunction with other international forums.

"It is understandable that a meeting between the president of the United States and myself must be well-prepared and held in a solid way, not incidentally in connection with this or that international forum," Brezhnev said.

"To be more specific, we are in favor of such a Soviet-American summit meeting that would be in keeping with the lofty responsibility of our states for world affairs and would justify the hopes pinned on it.

"I would say the following considering the time and place of our possible meeting with President Ronald Reagan:

"The meeting could be held in some third country, say in Finland or Switzerland, naturally with the preliminary consent of a corresponding government. The autumn of this year, for instance, October, could be a suitable time for this meeting to my mind.

"This is my answer to the question. I believe it is quite clear and definite."

Brezhnev first proposed in February 1981 that he and Reagan hold a summit. However, the White House said then and subsequently that the time was not right for such a meeting, and that any meeting between the two leaders had to be carefully prepared.

Brezhnev's response, Tass reported, added: "...I already spoke about the usefulness of an active dialogue with the United States of America at all levels, stressing particularly that summit meetings are of decisive importance. We are in favor of such meetings now, too."

Analysts Say Brezhnev Near End Of Reign

MOSCOW (UPI) — President Leonid Brezhnev's health problems may not be as serious as they seemed last month, but analysts of Soviet affairs say the 75-year-old Kremlin leader is reaching the end of his reign.

Brezhnev has been No. 1 in the Communist Party since October 1964, less than a year after U.S. President John F. Kennedy was assassinated, and to many Russians the question of who can succeed him is almost impossible to answer.

But in the twilight days of the Brezhnev era, a list of candidates who hope to replace the leader of the Soviet state is being assembled.

The generally accepted grouping of those who would follow Brezhnev divides into three lists:

—A longshot group of Soviets who are not of Russian ethnic origin but could become quite influential in the post-Brezhnev era.

Brezhnev's long-time protege, Konstantin Chernenko, is the No. 1 candidate of nearly all analysts for promotion to party leadership. He is 70, but very healthy.

The three other Politburo members thought to be contenders are Andrei Kirilenko, 75, who has a background in industrial management; Yuri Andropov, 67, the KGB director; and Dmitry Ustinov, 73, the defense minister.

Among dark horse possibilities are Mikhail Gorbachev, 51, the youngest Politburo member and an agricultural expert with a long record of hard work on behalf of the party; and Vladimir Dolgikh, 57, a Central Committee official credited with the recent dramatic growth of heavy industry in Siberia.

But the speculation over who will replace Brezhnev necessarily awaits a decision by the party leader himself, or his peers on the 14-man Politburo, that he must step aside. And when that will come is uncertain.

Brezhnev dropped from sight March 25 and there were several reports since then that he had fallen critically ill, possibly from a stroke.

Soviet officials refused to comment on the dozens of stories that speculated on the illness, thereby lending credence to the notion he was incapacitated.

They only issued a formal statement after a magazine report contended Brezhnev was on the verge of resigning his party and government posts. That denial did not address his physical condition.

Brezhnev's personal physician, Dr. Yevgeny Chazov, told Western acquaintances last week, however, that his VIP patient may have suffered nothing worse than exhaustion as a result of a strenuous schedule of speeches and public appearances in March.

At worst, Chazov reportedly said, Brezhnev may have suffered an extremely mild stroke.

No one has disclosed whether Brezhnev suffered from paralysis or lost his powers of speech. But the Soviet leader's condition apparently has been improving — he was seen riding through Moscow in his official motorcade several times last week.

Such fleeting glimpses do not, however, shed any light on whether Brezhnev will be able to resume day-to-day leadership of the government.

Pravda has published dozens of telegrams and other messages to world leaders supposedly signed by Brezhnev, but they supply no evidence about the true state of his health.

Guatemala Says Raids Killed 67

GUATEMALA CITY (AP) — Military authorities Saturday reported 67 deaths around the country in army clashes with guerrillas or attacks by unidentified gunmen on Indian villages in western Guatemala.

The fighting and raids occurred Thursday and Friday, a military statement said.

It said 30 guerrillas were killed when army troops caught them trying to burn down the city hall in Pujujil in Solala state, 85 miles west of the capital.

Troops killed another guerrilla they said was carring pouches of weapons, medicine, clothing and food near Xesic de San Antonio Ilotenango, 100 miles northwest of the capital.

The communique said there were no government casualties in either action.

It said another armed group attacked the eastern town of Agua Caliente de San Jose Poaquil, killing 14 peasants and burning the city hall and numerous houses.

Some of the attackers wore olive-green uniforms, the announcement said. All three incidents were Friday.

Twenty-two peasants were killed in three incidents on Thursday in the northwestern department of Quiche, according to the statement.

Gunmen burst into a prayer service eight family members were holding in memory of a dead relative, tied their hands and shot them to death in Semaje Primero near Santa Cruz del Quiche 100 miles west of the capital. The bodies were taken to a local hospital.

Thirteen other peasants in nearby Chichicastenango were killed when armed men shot them in their homes and burned the houses. They were burned beyond recognition, police said, and were buried in a common grave by volunteer firemen.

A 17-year-old girl, Angela Calel Cana, was abducted from her home in Quiche on Thursday. She was found shot to death Friday, the military said.

Quiche residents said there had been a drop in violence there since last month's military coup, but that it started picking up again in recent days.

About 300 people a month die in political violence in Guatemala, where four guerrilla groups are challenging the military government for power.

Canada Gets New Constitution

OTTAWA, Canada (UPI) — In a glittering ceremony on the rolling lawns of Parliament Hill, Queen Elizabeth signed a royal decree Saturday severing Canada's last colonial ties to Britain and giving Canadians their own constitution for the first time.

At 11:37 a.m. EST, just before the sky split open to release a heavy rain, the queen signed "Elizabeth R" to a 300-word proclamation bringing into force the 1982 Constitution Act to replace the British law that has served as Canada's constitution since it became a dominion in 1867.

All of Canada save Quebec, which has warned the new constitution will force the French province to secession, celebrated the fact.

A crowd of more than 100,000 people massed on the 29-acre Parliament Hill site to witness history. The pomp and pageantry of the queen's severing of Canada's last colonial links to Britain was broadast live to an audience of 24 million.

The new constitution for America's neighbor was effective at 12:01 a.m. EST Sunday.

In a warm gesture, the United States raised the Canadian Maple Leaf on the U.S. Embassy across from Parliament Hill. It was the first time a flag other than the Stars and Stripes had flown over that Embassy.

In their nationwide addresses, the queen and Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau both noted Quebec Premier Rene Levesque's warnings that the constitution will push the French-speaking province into secession.

"Although we regret the absence of the premier of Quebec, it is right to associate the people of Quebec with this celebration because, without them, Canada would not be what it is today," Queen Elizabeth said.

Trudeau, 62, said he was confident the "silent majority" will win out over Quebec's objections and use the constitution to strengthen all of Canada.

"By definition, the silent majority does not make a lot of noise, it is content to make history," the prime minister said on his day of triumph.

The huge crowd lining the flag-bedecked cavalcade route cheered on the royal couple as they passed under a scarlet-coated escort of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

The royal standard fluttered in a stiff wind from the 23-foot-high stone Peace Tower, the centrepiece of Parliament and a monument to Canada's war dead. A flock of racing pigeons — substituting for scarce doves — was released to soar upward.

A 21-gun salute boomed out over the Ottawa River by the 30th field regiment. A fanfare was trumpeted by the Royal Canadian Artilley Bands and the royal salute, "God Save the Queen," was played by the Royal Regiment Band.

The overcast sky split to release a drenching rain as the queen began her address, but it failed to dampen the enthusiasm of the huge flag-waving crowd before the covered, red-carpeted dais. The Canadian Armed Forces precision squadron "The Snowbirds" screamed overhead in a nine-jet fly-by.

Referring to Quebec again in her 5-minute speech, the queen noted that "differences persist. In this vast and vigorous land, they always will.

"The genius of Canadian federalism, however, lies in your consistent ability to overcome differences through reason and compromise," she said.

QUEENLY SALUTE ... Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau and Queen Elizabeth exchange toasts during the queen's visit to Ottawa this weekend. The queen signed Canada's new constitution Saturday, ending requirements that constitutional changes be approved by the crown before they can become effective. (AP Laserphoto)

Canadian Constitution At A Glance

OTTAWA (AP) — Canada's new constitution replaces the British North America Act, which bound Britain's remaining North American colonies into a confederation in 1867.

Added to the old document are a formula for future amendments and a charter of rights and freedoms that resembles in some ways the U.S. Bill of Rights.

The new constitution can be amended by vote of Canada's federal parliament and seven of the 10 provincial parliaments — providing that the seven provinces voting to amend include at least 50 percent of Canada's population.

The provinces that do not approve an amendment may then "opt out," rendering the change null within their borders. This provision raises fears that the Canadian constitution will become a bewildering patchwork, with only legal experts knowing which parts apply in which provinces.

The provinces can also decide that some provisions of the charter of rights and privileges simply do not apply within their boundaries.

The 34 sections protect such things as freedom of expression, freedom of religion, the right to be secure against unreasonable searches, the right to be presumed innocent until proven guilty, and the right to be free of racial, religious and ethnic discrimination. But all those rights could be overturned locally by a vote of the provincial legislature.

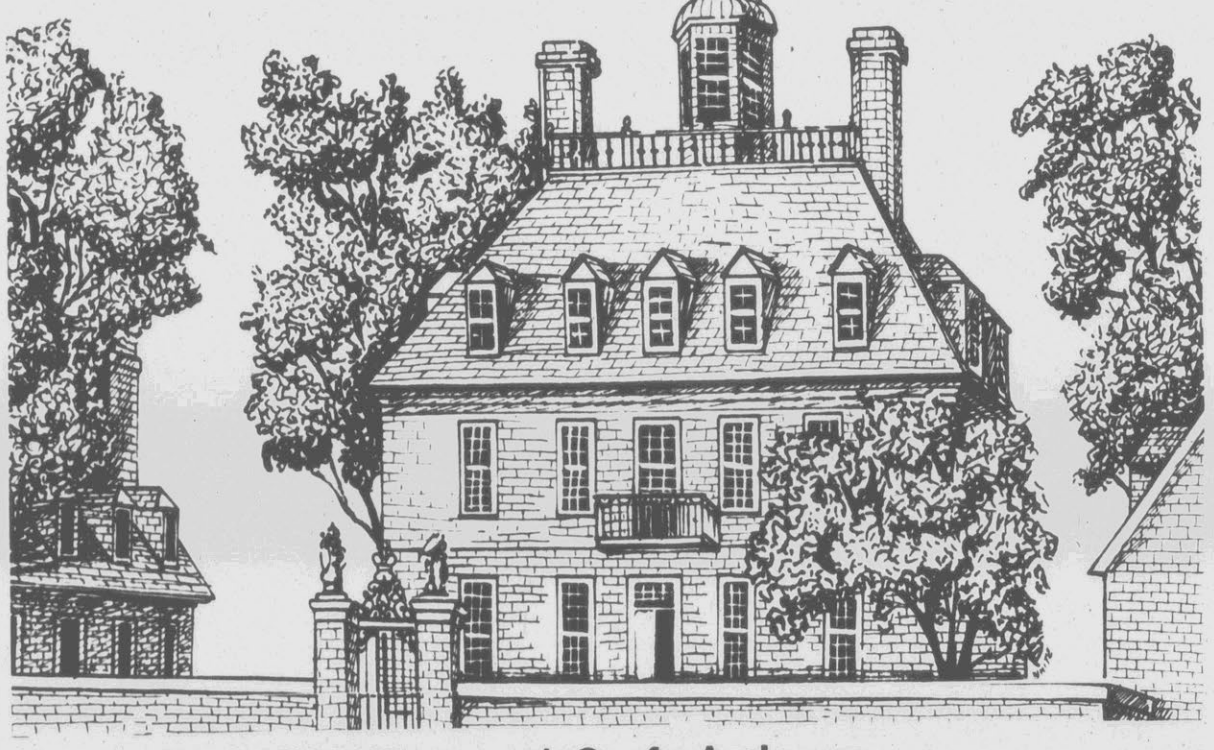

Among the rights immune to amendment by the provinces are the right to vote.

Planning Board

The Pitt County Planning Board will meet Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at the county office building at 1717 W. Fifth St.

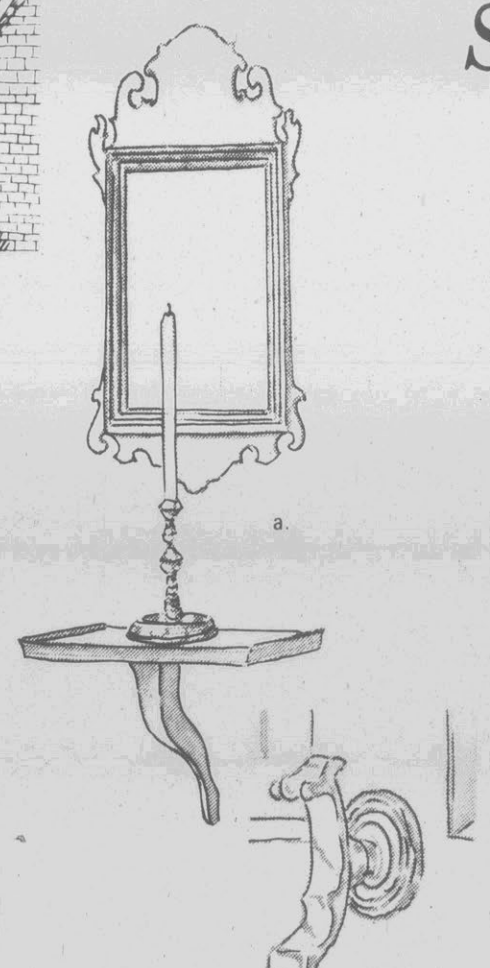

Included on the agenda is the consideration of Alouland Acres subdivision addition in Belvoir Township; the final plat for the Ralph Tucker Subdivision in Chicod Township; and a review of the county subdivision ordinance.

Court Frowns On Credits

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's plan to give tuition tax credits to the parents of children in private schools is likely to have a tough going before the Supreme Court even if it gets through an already hard-pressed Congress.

Reagan, fulfilling one of his 1980 campaign pledges, formally unveiled the plan last Thursday in an address to a Roman Catholic educators' group in Chicago.

"It's uphill, but I wouldn't rule out the possibility," Harvard law professor Lawrence H. Tribe says of the chances the high court would uphold the tax credits.

The key element in what would be a certain Supreme Court challenge to the credits is the constitutional ban on the "establishment" — or undue governmental favoring — of religion.

A majority of those benefiting from Reagan's plan would be parents of students in church-run schools.

The Supreme Court has struck down state tax-break plans for parents of private school students in New York and New Jersey, on the grounds they unconstitutionally aid religion.

"Special tax benefits ... cannot be squared with the principle of neutrality established by the decisions of this court," Justice Lewis F. Powell wrote in the New York case in 1973.

All five members of the majority that struck down the New Jersey plan without a written opinion in 1979 are still on the Supreme Court.

But, says Tribe, the Supreme Court may be persuaded this time around that its views on the establishment prohibition have been "too rigid."

"The court might show greater deference to Congress than to the states," he said.

University of Chicago Law Professor Antonin Scalia agrees that the court shows greater deference to Congress. Becayse it struck down the state plans doesn't necessarily mean it would invalidate a similar federal law, he says.

Scalia cautions that the court's decisions in "establishment" cases to date are "utterly muddled."

Generally, the court applies a three-part test in deciding whether a governmental action violates the required separation of church and state.

That test asks:

—Does the action have a religious purpose?

—Is its primary effect to advance or inhibit religion?

—Does it foster "excessive government entanglement with religion?"

If the answer to any of the three questions is "yes," the court traditionally has outlawed the governmental action.

The present composition of the Suprme Court also spells severe difficulty for a tuition tax credit.

Justices Powell, William J. Brennan, Thurgood Marshall, John Paul Stevens and Harry A. Blackmun joined with then-Justice Potter Stewart to strike down the New Jersey law. Of those five, all but Stevens, who was not on the court at the time, joined in striking down the New York law in 1973.

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justices William H. Rehnquist and Byron R. White dissented from the New York ruling and said the New Jersey case deserved further consideration.

Justice Sandra Day O'Connor, who replaced Stewart, has not yet tipped her hand on the subject.

Of course, the court's membership could change by the time any challenge to any congressionally passed tuition tax credit reaches the justices.

Reagan unveiled his tax credit plan before a convention of the National Catholic Education Association representing about 10,000 Catholic schools with 3.5 million students, or two-thirds of all private school students.

The plan would let parents claim federal income tax credits of up to 50 percent of the tuition paid for each child in private elementary or secondary schools. There would be a ceiling of $100 in 1983, $300 in 1984 and $500 in 1985.

State's New Central Prison Nearing Completion

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — After 26 years of working inside aging Central Prison, Warden Sam P. Garrison says he's going to "feel like I'm a long way out of place" when his new, $27 million complex opens soon.

His 1,000 or more prisoners may feel out of place too, although they'll still know they are in state's maximum security lockup.

The old Central, a red-brick bastille with towers and turrets and tiers of cellblocks straight out of a James Cagney movie, is where North Carolina's worst offenders have been held for nearly a century. It soon is to give way to a brown maze of buildings that have slowly risen on the same 26-acre compound near downtown Raleigh.

The contrasts could hardly be greater. The old Central has been notorious for its overcrowding, with 1,400 or more men crammed four to a cell in a building designed for fewer than 900 prisoners.

The new Central has been built with state-of-the-art prison design. There are individual cells for each inmate, electronically controlled doors, secured guardposts positioned to watch each inmate constantly — and virtually no bars.

"It looks almost like a college campus," Lt. Bill Perry, who has helped guide construction of the new prison, observed from the prison's exterior.

"It'll be a hell of an improvement, I can tell you that," says Garrison. "No bars is an indication of security. If you don't have a bar to cut, you have to use a jackhammer to get out."

The prison, rebuilt on the same spot to take advanatage of newer existing buildings that will remain, is expected to cost $35 million upon completion. The final phase will begin when the old main building is torn down, its inmates moved into the new portion.

Construction contractors last week turned over to the state one of the new buildings — the kitchen, dining and bakery sections. The main portion, the cellblocks, should be turned over to the state within a few months, officials say.

Prison officials still must learn how to operate complicated observation centers and guard posts, and they have to retrain guards.

"It's going to be either an electronic marvel or an electronic monster," quipped Stuart Shadbolt, Correction Department spokesman.

Garrison plans several months of training, with a 60-day test using minimum-custody inmates scheduled for late this year. It may be next year before the real move is made.

Visitors will move through a granite-floored lobby, through the first guardpost and are taken by elevator to a visitor's area. Individual booths will allow them to talk, but not touch, inmates. A spacious lobby has a dramatic skylight and a playroom for visitors' children.

Guards in master control rooms on each of the building's three floors will be able to monitor every main door in the prison.

Each cellblock is arranged in a V shape, with a row of eight cells on each side. Above is a second tier with two rows of eight cells, making 32 cells in the V. A guard will be in a sealed booth in the center, observing the entire scene, and between them is a "day room" with a few steel tables for times when inmates are let out of their cells.

Directly above that double-decked grouping is the same arrangement with another guard booth, for a total capacity of 64 people per block. Each cell is 7 feet by 10 feet, with a five-inch wide window — too narrow to require bars.

The area is sealed and air conditioned, its windows made of a tough plastic called polycarbonite. Steel doors are operated electronically from a control booth. And there are brightly painted trimmings, a different color for each cellblock.

There are six cellblocks with 384 cells, and the total capacity will be increased to nearly 1,000 with other buildings — the more modern, existing hospital and mental health buildings and a new set of cells yet to be built. One older dormitory will remain, the only place where inmates won't be in single cells, said Shadbolt.

The prison also has a new gas chamber and a four-cell death row, though the state has executed no one in 21 years. Two windows are in place for observers. The chamber, sealed by a galvanized steel door, looks like a walk-in freezer. The door still bears a label indicating it was built for refrigeration.

There are other rooms for counseling, offices, a gymnasium, an auditorium and music room. And there are concrete-lined escape tunnels in the event of fire that empty into a walled-in exercise yard.

The prison was designed by Garrison and other prison officials, along with their architect and a consulting firm.

Tobacco Forces Now Seek Support From Public

By The Associated Press

Tobacco industry lobbyists have filtered their sights on a new target, and in doing so have been accused by opposition forces of putting up a smoke screen.

In the past the lobbyists have focused their attention on legislators in Washington, but now they're target is the public's sympathy.

Last month the Tobacco Institute, the largest and most influential defender of tobacco, began a year-long series of magazine advertisements it hopes will deliver a message of open-mindedness toward smoking to 85 percent of the nation's population.

The $7 million campaign includes nine two-page color ads to be run in three major news weekly magazines, as well as Sports Illustrated, People and TV Guide.

"I think it's fair to say we realize that in most cases now the legislative emphasis is out in the states and cities," said Walker Merryman, Tobacco Institute director of communications. "The people we need to communicate with are outside of Washington."

The institute says it's ads pose "the most asked questions about cigarettes," including "Does cigarette smoking endanger nonsmokers?" and "Does cigarette advertising cause kids to start smoking?"

"We see this as a long-term campaign that seriously tries to answer questions asked by the public," said Chris Smith, the account supervisor.

Anti-smoking advocates are impressed by the campaign, but say they think it isn't all that accurate.

"We think it's a very well financed and very clever effort to confuse the American public," said American Heart Association spokesman John Kessler, an officer of the newly formed Coalition on Smoking and Health. "I think it's typical of the Tobacco Institute and the tobacco lobby."

Kessler said the ads were misleading because they imply that unanswered questions remain about the hazards of smoking, an issue "that has been clearly defined in the surgeon general's report of this year."

"Cigarette smoking is the major single cause of cancer mortality in the United States," the report said.

Anti-smoking forces have also forced the Tobacco Institute to seek support from state legislators and city-council members.

Tobacco lobbyists say that while anti-smoking legislation passed by Congress has drawn more publicity, far more laws unfavorable to smoking have been passed by state and local governments.

In a counter attack, the institute has opened 20 field offices staffed with lobbyists from coast to coast. Toohey said that number might be increased in the near future.

U.S., Soviets Join In New Project

By MARC ROSENWASSER
Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW (AP) — The United States, Canada and France are joining the Soviet Union in a multimillion-dollar joint satellite project to help find plane crash survivors and people lost at sea.

Planners, who met here last week, say hundreds of lives could be saved every year once the system is operational. The first satellite is to be launched this summer.

A Western expert said the system will enable monitors to pinpoint almost instantaneously the location of a downed plane or a disabled ship, instead of spending hours searching for it.

"The new system should take the 'search' out of search-and-rescue," he said.

According to the Soviet press, 350 to 400 large ships sink every year on world sea lanes, including some that simply disappear with their crews without a trace.

The project is expected to go ahead as planned, despite major political disagreements that have led to a cutback in scientific exchanges between the United States and the Soviet Union. Organizers from the four countries, including a 19-member U.S. delegation, said their talks had gone well.

The Soviet Union is scheduled to send its first rescue satellite into orbit in July, and a U.S. satellite, with French and Canadian equipment on board, is expected to be launched early in 1983. A 15-month test period is anticipated, but, an expert said, the satellites could play a part in saving lives as soon as they go into orbit and ground stations are working.

The head of the American delegation, Tom McGunigal, of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, said the United States had allocated $29 million for the first phase of the project; France set aside $22 million; and Canada about $13 million.

The head of the Soviet delegation, Yuri Zurabov, declined to specify how much the Soviets had spent when asked by a Western correspondent.

The two satellites, designed separately, will be able to operate effectively together, planners say, even though Americans involved in the work say no exchange of technology was involved.

The satellites are to be equipped with special receivers and sent into a low orbit, where they will be able to "listen" for distress transmissions from ships and planes equipped with radio beacons. Such radio beacons are already mandatory in all large American vessels and all U.S. planes.

Once a signal is received, it will be relayed to a network of ground stations. The radio wave monitored at ground stations should vary according to the relative location of the satellite, flying in a fixed orbit, and the origin of the distress signal. This, the experts say, will enable them to determine the location of the ship or plane in distress.

The time that will be saved, project managers say, is critical to the chances of survival of passengers and crew members aboard stricken planes and boats.

Members of the U.S. delegation stressed that the project did not require the transfer of technology from the United States to the Soviet Union.

Some critics of U.S.-Soviet cooperation have charged that the Soviet Union has used technology provided by the United States to develop new weapons systems which the United States has had to match at great expense later.

It is also continuing despite a slowing of joint U.S.-Soviet scientific work following the Soviet military intervention in Afghanistan in December 1979, the banishment of dissident leader Andrei Sakharov in January 1980, and the declaration of martial law in Poland four months ago.

South Carolina Polishes Nuclear Survival Plan

By KEITH SCHNEIDER
Associated Press Writer

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — Amid rekindled national concern over what would happen if the superpowers hit the nuclear panic button, emergency planners are polishing a plan they claim would add 1.5 million South Carolinians to the survivor list after an atomic holocaust.

Of course, they're hoping they'll never have to prove it, but nobody in the state has more reason to pray that they're right than residents of the Charleston metropolitan area.

That's because Charleston, with its ballistic missile submarines at Charleston Naval Base and weapons production capabilities at the Polaris Missile facility, is the state's only "category 1" risk area if there's a nuclear exchange.

Bluntly put, that means this quiet, historic port city with its traditions of ease and grace is a prime target for total destruction by an enemy who wants to try a nuclear knockout punch against the United States.

But there's small comfort in this for other South Carolinians, especially those who have military bases for neighbors.

Horry, Sumter and Beaufort counties with their Air Force and Marine air bases are "category 2" risk areas, which means they probably wouldn't have much time to watch the mushroom cloud rise over Charleston.

And the large population centers of the Columbia and Greenville-Spartanburg areas, along with Aiken and Jasper counties are on the "category 3" list. A would-be nuclear first-striker would likely target those regions as well.

This year the state Emergency Preparedness Division plans to spend $180,000 from the Federal Emergency Management Agency to continue planning how residents could be moved quickly in a crisis from the risk areas to less densely populated regions, called "host areas."

Congress is now considering whether such expense would achieve real protection for anyonen, but the division's nuclear planning branch manager, Tommy Moore, believes it would strengthen the nation's nuclear deterrent capability.

"Right now, the president has two responses to the Russians if they start moving their people," he says. "He can push the button or he can surrender. This gives the president one more option. They have their people in place, we have our people in place, now let's sit down and talk this thing over."

Federal planners estimate that without any such relocation effort, only 30 percent of the population would survive. Moore says the figure rises to 80 percent if people get away from the target areas.

In South Carolina, that 50 percent increase in the survivors means an additional 1.5 million people, half the state's population, left to pick up whatever pieces would be left after a nuclear war.

"A lot of people think because we make these plans, that we're in favor of nuclear war," Moore says. "Nothing could be further from the truth. We hope these plans never have to be implemented."

South Carolina's plan, more than half completed now, involves a carefully organized web of police, fire, health, utility, transportation and military agencies to cope with the planned exodus.

Together with similar plans in other states, it is the nation's primary civil defense proposal for coping with nuclear war. But not everyone agrees that it's worth pursuing.

Last month President Reagan approved a $4.2 billion program which called for nearly doubling the civil defense program next year from $133 million to $252 million.

But just days later, the Senate Armed Services Committee and its chairman, John Tower, R-Texas, cut the budget back to $144 million amid reports that members just don't believe citizens can really be protected from an all-out nuclear attack.

Other critics point to government reports which say 130 million Americans would die and another 32 million would be injured if the missiles fly. Why move people, they ask. Life wouldn't be worth living. They also doubt the relocation plan would really work anyway.

But supporters of crisis relocation say it's irresponsible not to try to make the survival rate as high as possible.

In high risk areas like Charleston, the plan would work this way, according to William Wolfe, director of the Charleston County Disaster Preparedness Agency.

Presumably a nuclear attack would be preceded by as much as a month of "heightened international tensions," during which local police, fire and other agencies would study and rehearse their roles in the plan.

Local newspapers would print and distribute half a dozen pages of detailed information, outlining for residents where they should go if the order comes to move.

For example, residents of Mt. Pleasant would prepare to head north on U.S. 17 to shelters in Georgetown County, and North Charlestonians would be told to go west on Interstate 26 to Williamsburg County.

If tensions reached the critical point, the president would go on national television to announce that crisis relocation was going into effect.

The District 6 office of the state Highway Patrol would go to designated traffic control sites, Charleston fire engines would begin leaving the impact area for Colleton County and hospital patients would be moved, although key health personnel would remain in the target area along with employees of South Carolina Electric and Gas Co. and Southern Bell.

In the Emergency Preparedness headquarters just off Leeds Avenue in North Charleston, operators would sit before a battery of radios, fielding incoming calls and relaying information from police, fire and other emergency personnel.

Wolfe envisions an orderly evacuation with nobody but civil defense workers and other critical emergency people in the risk area by sundown.

"Of course it can work," he insists. "It has to work. Without a plan we have nothing to protect our people with. If they stay in the impact area, we lose everything. People can survive if they move out of the risk area. That's what we're talking about — survival. Nobody wants nuclear war. But if it happens, we have a plan to save people."

The critics aren't so sure.

"One big bomb dropped over Charleston and it would wipe out everything from the coast to Columbia," says John B. Heaton, president of Aiken Environmental Coalition. "Where are they going to relocate people to protect against that?"

"I was working inside when the Cuban Missile Crisis hit in 1962," says R.G. Graham, a former Central Intelligence Agency staffer and now director of the Charleston County Emergency Medical Service.

"They're talking now about having weeks to prepare. Well, that thing happened so fast. We had a couple of days' warning. I don't think this plan could be implemented in that short amount of time."

"I haven't even seen the plan for Charleston County," says Wilmot E. Guthke, chief of the Charleston Fire Department.

But Moore says the nation needs a plan as part of its nuclear deterrent strategy.

"The one word everybody likes to use when they talk about this issue is prevention," he says. "We see crisis relocation as a way to prevent nuclear war. It's an option, another mechanism we never had before. It's something, and something is always better than nothing."

Names Of Confederate Dead Unknown

By RON HARRIST
Associated Press Writer

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — For more than 40,000 gray-clad soldiers from small Georgia towns, the hills of Tennessee and hundreds of other places across the South, the Civil War ended with hasty burials in unmarked graves in small Mississippi railroad towns.

"The identities of thousands of these men remain unknown — their names lost in battle or wiped from wooden grave markers by time," said Dave Harris of Jackson, who has worked for the last six years to identify Confederate grave sites as part of a project sponsored by the Sons of Confederate Veterans.

Harris and researchers from the Mississippi Department of Archives and History say graves of Confederate war dead can be found throughout the state, primarily in public cemeteries or small church plots in towns scattered along old railroad routes.

Others are buried in trenches near battle sites or even in the backyards of old homes.

The researchers found that while many of the Southern soldiers were victims of skirmishes in Mississippi, most had succumbed in makeshift hospitals to disease or to their wounds after long trips from conflicts in other states.

"You have to keep in mind that there were more deaths due to disease than due to actual combat," said Bill Wright of the Archives and History Department.

"In many cases, we have found a great number of Confederate graves in a location where there was no major battle simply because the men were buried near a hospital," said Wright, considered one of the leading Civil War archaeologists in the South.

"For example, a large number of the diseased and wounded ended up in hospitals in Meridian, which also served as a kind of hub for troop movements," during one period of the war, he said.

Harris said many of the graves identified during his organization's study were those of men who had been wounded in one of the best known battles of the Civil War.

"When General P.G.T. Beauregard retreated from the battle of Shiloh to Corinth in northeast Mississippi, he brought with him at least 10,000 of his own wounded," Harris said. "Corinth was just a small hamlet and had no way of taking care of this number. Every church and house porch was crammed with injured and dying soldiers."

Harris said Corinth officials apparently decided the only solution was to ship the wounded to other towns in hopes of getting them better care.

"They used the railroads, pressing into service every available car and engine, to send the wounded to small towns along the lines," he said. "We have found Confederate graves from that battle in every cemetery in every then-existing railroad town in' he said. "And over to the east, there are 1,000 tombstones at Lauderdale Springs north of Meridian, 500 at Enterprise, 300 at Quitman and an estimated 500 at Schubuta."

Harris said there were many graves in the Vicksburg area, where a successful siege by Union forces in 1863 opened the Mississippi River to federal shipping and split the Confederacy in half, and at Jackson, where the Confederates operated seven hospitals.

"In a number of towns, even the existance of these Confederate plots is unknown to local residents," he said.

"In a number of towns, even the existance of these Confederate plots is unknown to local residents," he said.

Jim Thompson of Jackson, national historian for the Sons of Confederate Veterans, said the first attempt to locate Confederate war dead in Mississippi was made by a Capt. Jones, then vice chancellor at the University of Mississippi and a former Confederate soldier.

New Court Review Rekindles Debate Over Speedy Trials

By CRAIG WEBB

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — North Carolina's latest, as-yet unpublished statistical review of its court system is refueling the debate on whether the Speedy Trials Act promotes the swift punishment of criminals Gov. James B. Hunt Jr. wants.

Records from the Administrative Office of the Courts show just 66 of the 455,461 cases in Superior Court and the criminal non-motor vehicle section of District Court during 1980-81 were dismissed because of the Act. In contrast, 108 cases were tossed out in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1980.

The data, collected from Superior Court clerks statewide, will be released in the next few weeks.

Jack Cozort, a Hunt aide who lobbied legislators for the Act, said the drop proves the state's criminal justice system is getting used to the changes.

But opponents claim the decrease hides cases that district attorneys and trial lawyers are pressured into exempting from the Act. They also point to a rise in the median age of felony cases as a sign the system is clogged.

The Speedy Trials Act, since 1978, has required most trials on criminal charges to begin within 120 days of arrest or the serving of indictment papers. The limit was to have dropped to 90 days in 1980, but opponents' dogged legislative fighting has pushed the implementation date to October 1983.

The Act fulfills part of Hunt's 1976 campaign pledge to get tough on criminals by imposing swift and certain punishment. The other half is the equally controversial Fair Sentencing Act, designed to end capricious sentences through general standards for prison terms.

Cozort said the reduction in dismissals under the Act encourages him.

"I'm sure it's having an effect," he said last week. "If the law were to work perfectly, it would mean there were zero cases that came out. The fewer cases you get thrown out mean it is working."

But Howard Twiggs of Raleigh, president of the North Carolina Academy of Trial Lawyers, said the Act "puts defendants under the gun" by pressuring them into exemptions if they want the time needed to prepare a good case.

"If a defendant consents to a delay, the trial does not apply (under the Act)," he said. "Often a defendant needs additional time to prepare for the case, sometimes to raise funds.

"The court has said you've got to file a motion for a speedy trial in order to have the case dismissed," he added. "A defense attorney may need time to prepare for the trial, so why is he going to take the time to file for a speedy trial dismissal if he needs time to prepare?"

One district attorney who asked not to be identified said the pressure to get cases processed in time forces him to plea bargain — persuading a defendant to plead guilty to lesser counts in exchange for dropping major charges.

But Cozort said: "I have seen no significant change in the way cases are plea bargained."

Wade Barber Jr. of Pittsboro, president of the state district attorneys' association, said he believes his peers have learned how to better manage their caseloads to avoid dismissals under the Act.

But he sees problems in the increase of the median age for pending felony Superior Court cases, from 72.6 days in 1979-80 to 81 days in 1980-81. A median is the midpoint in case ages, with half the cases older and half younger.

"I think that increase shows there is a strain on the system, and if we had dropped back to 90 days without a lot more resources, both within our office and in the sessions of the court, you would have ssen a lot more dismissals," he said.

"I'm using every day of Superior Court that I can get hold of, and most days I've scheduled more pleas and sentencing hearings than I could handle."

Barber's association in the past has called for a substantial jump in the number of judges and prosecutors. Wake District Attorney Randolph Riley, for example, has said he should expand his 18-lawyer staff by four in order to properly implement the 90-day time limit and the fair entencing act.

Whistling Champ Regains Title

By TOM MINEHART
Associated Press Writer

LOUISBURG, N.C. (AP) — Puckerers, teethers and warblers from across the nation descended on Louisburg Saturday for the ninth annual National Whistlers' Convention.

Whistlers from 23 states crowded the Franklin County Courthouse, transforming it into an aviary and concert hall. All the winners in the whistling contest were from North Carolina.

Sherrill whistled "The Entertainer" through his teeth, performed cricket and catbird sounds and pierced the ears of about 100 spectators with loud whistle that also won him second place in the category for loudest whistler.

Sherrill, a Greensboro native, said he didn't practice much since winning the 1981 national grand championship.

"It's something you don't forget," he said, taking a trophy, a $100 prize and a purple ribbon. Sherrill also won first place in the Special Sounds and Contemporary Music divisions.

Tracy Smith, 3, of Apex, won in the Youngest category with a brave monotone that one observer said rivaled the abstract music of John Cage. The winner of the Oldest division was Elmer Mullen, 72, of Louisburg. He performed "Greensleeves," "Five-Foot-Two" and several quail calls.

Isiah McArn, a 50-year-old caterer from Wilson, won first place in the Loudest catetory with a taxi whistle that also lent itself to an inspiring version of the "Marine Hymn."

Ralph Stecker, 66, of Raleigh won first prize in the Classical Music division with his rendition of Strauss' "Southern Rose Waltz." Stecker also placed second in Special Sounds with a bird call he said represented a robin expecting rain.

Dan Moore won second prize in Contemporary Music with "Red Wings" and Cliff Jackson took second prize in Classical Music with "William Tell Overture."

Fred Newman, a writer, talk-show host and comedian from New York, led a workshop on the folk-art aspects of whistling — and about two dozen other ways to make sounds with the mouth and hands.

Newman, author of the book "Mouth Sounds," produced the sounds of a flute, trumpet, steamship, bicycle horn, neon sign, railroad sign, dog, lion, frog, soul-band rhythm section, home aquarium, elephant-filled jungle, helicopter, stock-car race, submarine, banjo, mandolin, kitchen sink and hair dryer.

He also harmonized with himself on "It's Crying Time Again," whistling out of both sides of his mouth.

"Sounds don't represent intrusions, they're opportunities," said Newman, 29, who says he doesn't want storytelling with sound effects to become a lost art. "Whistling is only one channel to connect with people."

Newman, who was born nearly 30 years ago in LaGrange, Ga., said he relished returning to the South for a "refresher course" in the region's characters, which he uses in his comic routines and stories.

"I grew up trading sounds like baseball cards," said Newman, who has a business degree from Harvard and has worked for Newsweek. "Now I do sounds and impressions for a reason — for my theater activities and writing."

Mrs. Carlson said she learned the art of whistling at the Woodward School of Whistling in Fullerton. Alumni of the school include Bing Crosby and John Wayne, who needed warbling skills for several movie parts.

"I want everyone to know that whistling is not irreverent or tacky," she said after performing "Bird Raptures," "Alley Cat" and a birdlike "Amazing Grace." "It's a lovely art, and I don't want the art to die out."

Citizens Fight Utility Costs

ALBEMARLE, N.C. (AP) — Angered by high utility bills, more than 100 Albemarle Utilities Services customers have banded together and hired an attorney to fight city hall.

Organized as the Concerned Citizens of Albemarle, the customers have raised $800 and hired Charlotte attorney Julius Chambers to represent them if they decide to fight the utility.

Roberta Daughtery, 53, president of the group, was arrested last month for staging a protest at city hall. She says she refused to pay her December and January electric bills because utility officials wouldn't tell her why the bills were so high.

The organization has hired a Charlotte accounting frim to look at Albemarle's utility system from the meter-reading stage to the actual bill, but city and utility officials say the system is basically sound. They say the customers' anger stems from a short-lived bill-estimation system started Sept. 1 to save the utility money.

The system allowed the meter-reading staff to be cut from seven to five people, Sasser said. In response to public outcry, the city council voted to end the program earlier this year.

Monthly meter readings have been done since February although "a lot of the bills that went out the first of March still had the effects of estimation," Sasser said.

Jackson Birthplace Undergoes New Search

WAXHAW, N.C. (AP) — Archaeologists' efforts to discover the rightful birthplace of Andrew Jackson, the seventh U.S. president, may put to rest more than 200 years of disputes between North Carolina and South Carolina.

A marker in Union County, planted by the Charlotte chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, claims he was born near Waxhaw on March 15, 1767. Just over the border in South Carolina's Lancaster County, however, lies a 360-acre park commemorating Jackson's birth.

Already, exploratory digs have uncovered room for doubt about either claim, according to Terry Erlandson, state archaeologist.

Local oral historians claim the DAR marker sits atop the chimney base of the George McCamie cabin, where North Carolinians insist Jackson was born en route to his uncle's plantation in South Carolina.

"I can say without a doubt that is not the original site of the chimney base at the McCamie cabin site," said Tom Funk, chief archaeologist with the historic sites division of the state's department of cultural resources. "But there is a substantial argument for some kind of 18th or 19th century occupation at the site. That we have concluded."

Funk said the McCamie cabin could have been located near the marker. If it is found, that would provide impetus to forces believing Jackson's home is rightfully in North Carolina.

Both North Carolina and South Carolina experts claim Jackson's mother left the dirt-floored cabin near Mineral Springs where Jackson was conceived — northeast of Waxhaw — when the time of delivery neared. But South Carolinians believe Mrs. Jackson made it to the plantation of her uncle, James Crawford, before her son was born.

Excavations at the Waxhaw site have been slowed by previous explorations and by the scarcity of artififacts there, Erlandson said.

The plot likely has been graded and cleaned at least three times during the memorial's 72 years, said Tom Hartzell, director of the $61,050 project.

Once investigators have completed the laborious task of clearing out a grid of 10-by-10-foot holes, sifting the dirt for artifacts, they will move to the Mineral Springs site.

There they expect to find more significant artifacts indicating what life was like during the several years the Jackson family was in North Carolina.

Meanwhile, pressure is mounting for a theme-of-life museum similar to the one in South Carolina to be built in Waxhaw.

"This is a substantial financial commitment on the part of North Carolina," Funk said. "The state is trying to do something about heralding Andrew Jackson's birthplace. It is a big commitment. And we are going to deal with it to the max."

Ground Zero Events Planned

"Ignoring nuclear war won't make it go away," ECU Ground Zero Week coordinator Dick Welch gives as the reason for a local observance of the national drive to educate the public about the threat of nuclear holocaust.

Ground Zero Week begins Sunday with some area ministers addressing spiritual and moral aspects of nuclear war in their individual churches.

Monday from noon to 1 p.m. an automobile tour of Greenville will be held to explain what would happen if a one-megaton bomb were exploded at the center of the city.

Tuesday at 2 p.m. a film and discussion on nuclear war will be given at Mendenhall Student Center, Room 244, on the ECU campus. At 7 p.m. a film titled "War Without Winners" will be shown at the Baptist Student Center and a discussion will be led by the Rev. Bob Clyde.

Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in the Allied Health Auditorium, Belk Building, Charles Street, a discussion on the "Health and Economic Aspects of the Nuclear Threat" will be held. Charles "Pete" Beavers, planning director of the Health Systems Agency; Christopher J. Mansfield, economist with the Eastern Carolina Health Systems Agency, and Dr. Daniel Young, president of the Chapel Hill chapter of the Physicians for Social Responsibility will lead the discussion. A film, "The Last Epidemic," will be shown.

Thursday at 4 p.m. in the Pitt County Memorial Hospital Auditorium, health and medical personnel will participate in a discussion of "Physiological Response to Nuclear War." The speakers will be Dr. Steven Leighton in emergency medicine and Dr. Robert Greenburg in pediatrics at UNC-CH.

At 4:30 p.m. Thursday in the Physics Building, Room 205, Dr. James Joyce of the ECU Physics Department will discuss "The Technology of Nuclear Warfare."

Thursday, Friday and Saturday at 6:45 p.m. in the lobby of the Mendenhall Student Center, a film, "Hiroshima and Nagasaki," will be shown.

On April 28, at 7 p.m. an interdenominational forum will be held on "Nuclear War: Religious and Moral Perspective." Leaders will be the Rev. Linwood Walters, Baptist; the Rev. Graham Nahouse, Lutheran; the Rev. William Hadden, Epioscopalian; and Sister Helen Shondell, Roman Catholic.

FBI Probes MacDonald Case

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — U.S. Justice Department officials have confirmed the FBI has been asked to investigate assertions made in a report filed by a private investigator hired by Dr. Jeffrey MacDonald.

Brian Murtaugh, who ordered the investigation, said he found nothing in the four-volume report "which changes my mind or anyone else's about the correctness of the jury verdict" finding MacDonald guilty of murder in the 1970 deaths of his wife and two daughters at Fort Bragg.

But Bernard Segal, MacDonald's chief defense lawyer, says the evidence in the report is enough to become the basis for a new trial for MacDonald, whose life sentence was recently reinstated by the Supreme Court.

MacDonald, a former Green Beret doctor, was convicted in 1979 in U.S. District Court in Raleigh on three counts of first-degree murder for the deaths of his wife, Collette, 26, and their children, Kimberley, 5, and Kristen Jean, 3.

Los Angeles private investigator Ted Gunderson compiled the report for MacDonald, who was recently returned to a federal prison following the Supreme Court decision.

Murtaugh said he does not give the report any "credence" but asked the FBI to investigate because the report could become an issue in further appeals by MacDonald.

Neither Murtaugh nor Segal would discuss the report in detail, but they said its chief focus is the story of Helena Stoeckley Davis, a defense witness at the trial.

Man Sentenced To 1,197 Years

MIAMI (AP) — A Circuit Court judge has sentenced a 23-year-old man convicted of armed robbery and battery to 1,197 years in prison. He'll be eligible for parole in 2015.

Alfonso Ponton was convicted Friday of five counts of armed robbery and two counts of aggravated battery.

Circuit Judge Ellen Morphonios Gable sentenced him to 730 years in prison, to be served consecutively after two other armed robbery terms totalling 467 years she handed down earlier this month.

Ponton also was sentenced to 11 consecutive minimum mandatory three-year sentences for using a firearm during the commission of various felonies.

The sentences stemmed from four armed robberies committed last Nov. 11, 13 and 16.

Ponton and accomplices robbed a used-car lot and held up a North Miami moving company and a Hialeah business forms company, authorities said.

Genetic Program Set

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (UPI) — Officials at the University of North Carolina medical school have formed a new program to promote and coordinate genetic engineering research and education.

The Molecular Biology and Biotechnology program should assist efforts of researchers in various university departments to extend the uses of genetic technology, said Dr. Stuart Bondurant, the dean of the medical school.

Dr. Marshall Edgell, a professor of bacteriology and immunology who will direct the program, said it will create closer ties between two groups of research scientists.

"We need to increase communication between the genetic engineers and the people with special knowledge of biological systems in which there are opportunities for practical applications of genetic engineering," Edgell said.

An academic program is being designed to promote cooperation and a sharing of knowledge between the two groups, he said. Conferences and lab workshops are also planned to spread genetic engineering skills.

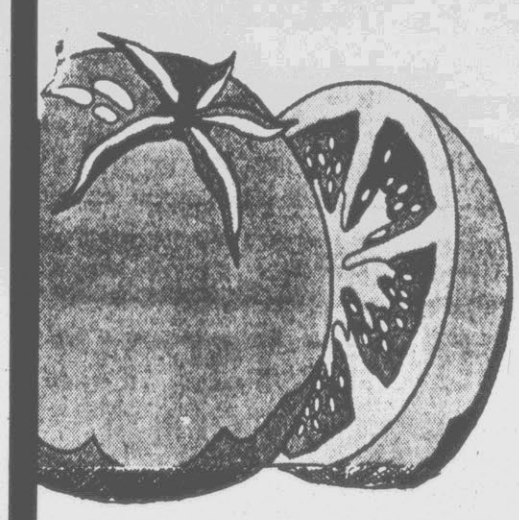

Genetic engineering involves isolating DNA — the materal that determines the characteristics of living organisms — and rearranging it to change the genetic characteristics. Because the process recombines DNA, it is sometimes called "recombinant-DNA technology."

Edgell, who was involved in early work in the field, says genetic engineering should provide greater understanding of how the human body works and thus, help scientists solve the riddles of many serious, chronic health problems.

"I anticipate that the knowledge we can expect to gain, in part as a consequence of genetic techology, will create for all of us the possibility of inhabiting a body that functions at full capacity for a longer time.

"It's not going to happen tomorrow, but it might happen 30 years from now," he said.

We put our foot down about apartments being within walking distance.

Wedgewood Arms apartments are within walking distance of three shopping centers, a nursery school, a junior high school, doctors' and dentists' offices and an athletic center.

As if that wasn't enough, three major traffic arteries, 264 Bypass, Arlington Blvd., and Charles St. are close enough to be seen and not heard.

Fact is, no apartments in town can legitimately claim to be more convenient to more things than Wedgewood Arms.

And, that's not all. Because Wedgewood Arms is not only convenient, it's different in other ways, too.

East Carolina Plans Open House For Anniversary

ECU News Bureau

East Carolina University will hold open house from 2:30 p.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday in commemoration of the 75th anniversary of ECU's founding.

Some of the highlights are a chemical "magic show", a demonstration of glassblowing, firing of raku pottery in the ceramics kiln yard, musical performances, several films and slide presentations and various types pf computers at work.

Ample free parking will be provided in the area of Mendenhall Student Center and behind Joyner Library in the Ninth Street parking lots.

Most demonstrations, performances and exhibits will take place on the campus mall and in Mendenhall Student Center.

On the campus mall will be exhibitions of field ecology equipment, blood pressure screening equipment, computer displays, performing musical ensembles and, at 4:30 p.m., an Air Force ROTC Drill Team exhibition.

Other mall booths will feature ECU's employment placement service, coastal-related research, services for handicapped students, intramural recreation, student organizations and academic programs in education, nursing, geology, library science, sociology, anthropology, health, physical education, recreation and safety.

On the patio of Mendenhall Student Center will be a special exhibit arranged by the admissions office and a display concerning a political attitudes survey sponsored by the department of political science.

The Student Council for Exceptional Children will sponsor a 2:45 p.m. performance by the Caswell Spirit Singers. A campus performing group will interpret popular song lyrics into sign language at 3:15 p.m., also on the patio, and students from the ECU Dance Theater will perform at 4 p.m.

Restored and enlarged photographs from East Carolina's early years will be displayed on the first floor of Mendenhall Student Center. Nearby will be a home economics exhibit and a student programming display.

The first floor lounge will feature exhibits of programs and activities sponsored by the ECU Playhouse and the ECU Regional Development Institute, along with the history, geography and planning exhibits.

Health presentations furnished by the school of medicine, the school of allied health and social professions, and the health honor society will be on view in Mendenhall's multipurpose Room.

Folk music in foreign languages will be played for visitors at the second floor lobby, where career displays sponsored by the department of business education and office administration and the office of cooperative education will be on view.

Science is emphasized in exhibits planned for the second floor of the student center. These include biology displays and experiments, a glassblowing demonstration, demonstration of the teletypewriter for the deaf, a "Computer Assisted Instruction to Logic" exhibit, a display of physics apparatus and the chemical "magic show."

Also displayed in the auditorium will be materials regarding the division of continuing education's extension programs and the campus counseling center. A science education exhibit will be located on Mendenhall's ground floor lounge.

Other open house activities include an aerospace studies alumni briefing at 2:30 p.m. in Wright Annex, demonstrations of various art processes in the Jenkins Fine Arts Center (featuring a 3 p.m. raku firing in the kiln yard), biology and physics exhibits in the Science Complex, foreign language activities in Brewster Building's third floor, D-wing and geology exhibits in Graham Building.

East Carolina history will be presented in a Joyner Library exhibit, along with a Friends of the Library book sale in the library's lobby. The department of psychology and the campus infirmary will lead visitors through their facilities. Artifacts from North Carolina historical sites will be on view in the Archeology Lab in Old South Cafeteria Building.

Midgett's Color Intaglio Awarded 'Best In Show'

A color intaglio by Ed Midgett, entitled "Ed & Fred With Bed" is the 1982 recipient of the Best in Show Award at the annual Greenville Sidewalk Art Show.

This year, for the first time, artists wishing to enter their art in the juried sector of the show brought them in early in the week. Lorraine Laslette of the N.C. Museum of Art, Raleigh, judged the works. Winners and those receiving merit awards are now being exhibited in the south galleries in the museum.

•Sculpture — first place, Linda LeMar, "Crescent Moon," a work in wood, clay and wire; merit awards, Davis Strider for "S-1," a piece in ash wood, and John Quinn, a bronze, "Prelude to Dance."

A dozen works were given general merit awards for the purpose of being included in the exhibition. Artists whose works were chosen in this category are: John Quinn, Alice Stallings, Davis Strider, Bette Bates, Paula Blumenfield, C. Joseph Champagne, Zane Gray, Paul Hamilton, Maxine Harker, Hugh Heaton, Linda LeMar, and Dempsey Parker.

ASPO Schedules Health Fair

The childbirth and parent education divisions of the Greenville chapter of the American Society for Psychoprophalaxis in Obstetrics will launch their spring programs with a health fair at Carolina East Mall Thursday through Saturday.

The fair will give parents and professionals an opportunity to become familiar with ASPO and its services. Displays will feature two themes, "Start Life the Healthy Way," emphasizing Lamaze-prepared childbirth, and "Parents Helping Parents," focusing on support services available to new parents

April 26-May 2 is National Lamaze Childbirth-Prepared Parenthood Week. Greenville ASPO President Tommie Pratt, a family nurse practitioner and Lamaze instructor, will appear on "Carolina Today" on WNCT-TV April 26 at 7:40 a.m., along with Laura Kesler, parent division representative, to share information about the local chapter's programs. They will relate, also, how parents and professionals work together to promote the concept of family-centered maternity care in this area.

On April 29, at 7 p.m. in the parlor of Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church, the first in a series of parent education program sponsored by Greenville ASPO will be held. Dr. Stephen Porter, director of pharmacology at the East Carolina Family Practice Center, will speak on "Drugs and Your Baby." He will discuss chemicals such as caffeine and certain over-the-counter drugs that appear in the breast milk of nursing mothers.

An ice cream fling for families will be held May 2 from 3 to 5 p.m. at Elm Street Park. The affair will be open to all parents.

The spring ASPO all-member meeting is scheduled for 7 p.m. June 1 in the Jarvis Church parlor. Teresa Fesperman, a registered nurse, will discuss "Hospital Policy changes for Labor and Delivery and Postpartum." A business session to follow will include the election of a new board of directors and officers.

Betty McCain Is Named By Hunt For ERA Lobby

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — Gov. Jim Hunt has named a close political ally to lobby for the Equal Rights Amendment during a June session of the General Assembly.

Betty McCain of Wilson, a long-time friend and supporter of the governor, will serve as an unpaid lobbyist for ERA, spokesmen for the governor said.

"It is a sign of his (Hunt's) commitment to ERA and trying to get it passed this June," said Gary Pearce, Hunt's news secrtary.

Mrs. McCain will be Hunt's official representative on ERA, Pearce said. The governor believes there is still a chance for passing the amendment before June 30, the deadline set by Congress for ratification of the controversial amendment.

ERA is not scheduled for debate during the June session and there is a "gentleman's agreement" in the Senate that it will not be brought up or voted upon this year.

But last week, a legislative study commission on economic and legal needs of women voted to include an ERA ratification bill in its recommendations to the Legislature — a move that could circumvent the rules blocking consideration.

Mrs. McCain is a former state Democratic Party chairman who later served as co-chairman of Hunt's 1980 re-election campaign. The governor has appointed her to the state Advisory Budget Commission.

Cards Beat Phils, Carlton For 7th Straight Victory

ST. LOUIS (AP) — St. Louis right-hander Joaquin Andujar is not the same pitcher he used to be.

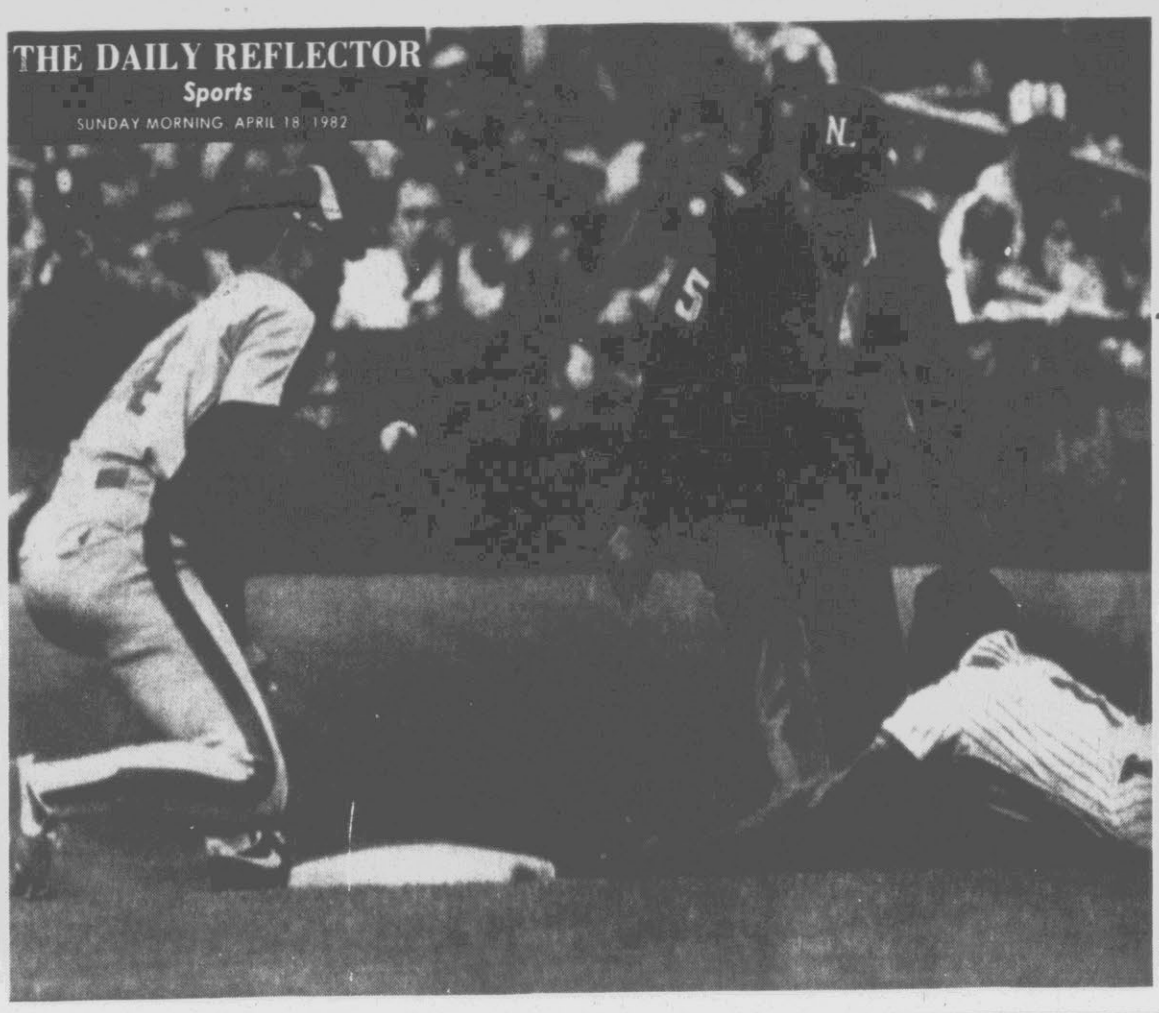

"The name of the game is to throw strikes," the 29-year-old right-hander said after he shut out the Philadelphia Phillies, 6-0, on three hits Saturday. It was the Cardinals' seventh straight triumph.

Known as a power pitcher, Andujar said, "I'm not trying to overpower people anymore. I could throw it 95 or 97 miles per hour if I wanted to, but (pitching coach) Hub Kittle has convinced me that throwing strikes is the most important thing. Now I'm settling for 89 or 92."

"Gosh, he pitched good," Cardinals Manager Whitey Herzog said of Andujar. "He threw only 96 pitches with three days rest, that's something. He stayed ahead of the hitters."

Andujar struck out seven and didn't walk a batter as he lowered his earned run average to 1.08. At the same time, the Cardinals riddled Philadelphia ace Steve Carlton for five early runs.

Braves Tie NL Mark With Victory No. 10

HOUSTON (AP) — Atlanta third baseman Bob Horner hit a two-run double in the first inning to help the Braves defeat the Houston Astros 2-1 and tie the National League record for consecutive victories at the start of a season.

The victory was the 10th of the year for the Braves, who can break the league mark and tie the major league record Sunday in the series finale with Houston. The Oakland A's won 11 straight games at the start of last season for the major league best.

Walk was replaced by Larry

Wadkins Maintains T Of C Lead

RANCHO LA COSTA, Calif. (AP) — Lanny Wadkins, leading the $350,000 MONY-Tournament of Champions, took a look over his shoulder and wasn't particularly pleased with what he saw.

Right behind him was Tom Watson.

"I'm leading the best player in the game by two shots," Wadkins said Saturday after he'd regained the lead with a back-nine burst that produced six birdies and a third-round score of 68.

"I don't think this thing is over with by a long shot. You know Tom is not going to back off, and behind him there are a a lot of people at 4 and 5 under par.

"At this stage, though, things are kind of in the leader's hands. If he goes out and shoots 66 or 67 (in the last round), it's pretty hard for anybody to catch up."

Watson agreed.

"It will take an outstanding round for me to have a chance," he said. "Lanny's a hard man to catch when he gets in front."

Wadkins pulled away from the elite field of only winners of PGA Tour events during the last year with a 32 on his back nine and, at one point, appeared poised to make a rout of it.

He birdied five of his first six holes on the homeward side of the 6,911-yard La Costa Country Club course, then bogeyed two of the last three.

"I just kind of got it rolling," Wadkins said, "and then I started knocking the flag down."

He completed 54 holes with a 207 total, 9 shots under par.

Tom Watson, who won this event two years in a row before being interrupted by Lee Trevino last season, matched par 72 in the mild, breezy weather and was second at 209.

"I got off to a poor start and just didn't do anything particularly well," said Watson, who won four consecutive Player of the Year awards before the streak was broken in 1981.

"Lanny is playing very well," Watson said. "It will take a supreme effort from me tomorrow for me to catch him. I'll have to play very, very well to catch Lanny. He's playing well and he's a hard man to catch."

Ron Streck was another shot back at 210 after a 68. Tom Kite, last year's leading money winner, had a 65 that ranked as the best round of the tournament, and closed up to 211.

He was followed by U.S. Open champion David Graham and Fuzzy Zoeller, tied at 212. Graham included a hole in one, with a 5-iron on the seventh, in his round of 70. Zoeller had the same total despite a 4-putt double bogey on the sixth.

Trevino had a 74 and was at 217. Craig Stadler, winner of the Masters last week, shot 73 and was out of the title chase at 219.

Wadkins matched par over the front side and said he was "hitting a lot of good shots. It had to break soon, one way or the other. I either had to start making some birdies or it was going to catch up with me and I was going to start making bogeys. Something had to happen.

"Fortunately," he said, "the coin came up heads."

Patterson Hurls 1-Hitter As ECU Blanks Camels

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

John Hallow smacked a three-run triple to highlight a six-run sixth inning, and Bobby Patterson tossed a one-hitter at Campbell as East Carolina rolled to a 7-0 victory yesterday.

The lopsided victory helped gain a little salve for a 4-1 loss at the hands of the Camels on Friday night, when the Pirates got only one hit of their own.

But for Patterson, it was just a little sweeter. Just two nights ago, he had been battered and chased after just over two innings by N.C. State as the Pirates went into a three-game dive ended by the fine effort by the senior lefthander, now 5-2 on the year.

"I was a little stiff to start with," Patterson said later, "but I'd rather pitch that way. My fast ball didn't have the zip it usually has, but it was effective. My curve worked the best it's worked this year."

Because of his effectiveness, the Camels had little to rejoice about during the afternoon. Patterson sat them down in order until the fourth inning when he hit leadoff batter Tom Montgomery. Herb Williams followed with a bloop hit — the only one the Camels got.

On the play, Williams hit toward the hole between short and third, where Todd Hendley made a diving stop on the infield grass. With no chance to get the hitter from his kneeling position, Hendley attempted to force Montgomery, but his throw was just too late.

Both runners were then sacrificed up, and Wayne Dale was intentionally walked before a fly ball and an infield grounder got the Pirates out of that jam.

Patterson later walked the first two batters in the sixth, but after striking out the third, two fly balls got him out of that jam too.

No other Camels reached base the rest of the way, as Patterson retired the last 12 men he faced in order.

"Bobby did a great job of mixing his pitches and finessing them. He got the flow going and pitched strongly after just one day's rest," coach Hal Baird said. "He threw a heck of a game. In fact, that's three well-pitched games in a row for us." Baird was referring to games tossed by Bob Davidson against N.C. State in the second game of Thursday night's doubleheader, and by Bob Wilder Friday against Campbell. "I hope that this will be a harbinger of things to come."

Baird said he felt the Pirates played pretty well in the game. "I really thought that we'd kind of struggle, but we got a good effort there in the sixth inning to put it away. We haven't been swinging the bats very well in the last few games, but I hope we snapped out of it today."

The Pirates ended up with 11 hits, including two each by David Wells, John Hallow and Fran Fitzgerald. Hallow and Ricky Nichols each had triples, while Jack Curlings and Todd Hendley picked up doubles.

Curlings' double keyed the first Pirate run, in the third inning. After leading off with the two-bagger, Curlings moved to third on a sacrifice. Wells then brought him in with a single to center.

Just before Wells' hit, however, Baird made one of his rare appearances on the field to protest a call.

Nichols, who had grounded back to short, appeared to pass the bag before the ball reached there. As umpire Bob Murphrey called him out, Baird burst from the dugout in protest.

"I just asked him if he had seen something I hadn't," Baird said later. "He said that Ricky was out by a step and a half," he related unbelievingly.

The Pirates left men at third in the fourth and fifth. In the former, Hendley opened with a double and moved up on a sacrifice, but a line drive and a fly ball ended that threat. In the fifth, Nichols reached on an error, stole second and moved to third on the second out of the inning, only to die there.

But in the sixth, the Pirates came up with three runs to put it away.

With one down, Fitzgerald singled through the middle and courtesy runner Chuck Bishop moved up on an infield out. Curlings was intentionally walked — for the second straight time — and Kelly Robinette singled to right, loading the bases.

Nichols drew a bases-loaded walk, forcing in Bishop and sending Camel starter Joe Stephenson to the showers. Wells followed with a ground ball back to the first baseman, but Wells won the race to the bag, with Curlings scoring on the play. Hallow followed with his triple up the alley in right center, pushing in all three runners. A passed ball then brought him across with the final run.

Again in the eighth, the Pirates let a threat get away, as Nichols tripled with two away, but died there on a fly out.

The win boosted the Pirates to 24-10 on

Rose's McLawhorn Named To East Team

From Staff, Wire Reports

GREENSBORO — All-State high school football player Chris McLawhorn of Rose High School will join two other receivers to give the East team a potent pass catching crew while Wilson Beddingfield's Dennis Barron will anchor a strong line as the East squad hopes to capitalize on those fleet receivers and good kicking in the 34th annual East-West All-Star Game this July.

Barron, a 6-4, 230-pounder from Wilson Beddingfield, leads four linemen with bigtime credentials, receivers with speed and pass catching ability and an all-American place kicker on the 30-player roster.

The squad will be coached by John Daskal of Fayetteville Reid Ross, James "Bump" Elliott of Durham Senior High and Harvey Brooks of Princeton.

Barron, considered one of the top line prospects in the South, signed with North Carolina after making several All-America teams and the Associated Press All-State squad.

He'll be joined up front by 6-4, 245 Reggie Singletary of West Columbus, 6-4, 215 James Riggs of Scotland County and 6-3, 280 Ronnie Yarborough of Henderson Vance. Singletary has signed with N.C. State, Riggs with Clemson and Yarborough with South Carolina State.

The real strength of the team may be the receivers — Tim Morrison of Fayetteville Terry Sanford, Ken Weaver of Rocky Mount and McLawhorn.

Morrison, a 6-1, 175-pounder headed for North Carolina, grabbed 43 passes for 955 yards and eight touchdows this season, while McLawhorn, who signed with East Carolina, pulled in 27 for 593 yards and seven scores.

Weaver compiled the most impressive statitics, catching 53 for 1,017 yards and

Lady Pirates Capture Tournament Crown

Led by Jeanette Roth and Maurine Buck, East Carolina University's Lady Pirates captured the championship of their own tournament yesterday.

The Lady Pirates beat Campbell, 11-1, then topped Lenoir Rhyne, 6-1, to win the championship after pool play in the morning was completed.

Roth was selected as the tournament's Most Valuable Player after hitting .455 for the day and pitching four victories. Buck won the award for the best batting average, going .500 for the day.

In the pool play, which started the day, East Carolina won both of its outings. They downed the Lady Seahawks of UNC-Wilmington, 8-0, and then topped UNC Charlotte, 5-0.

In the first game, East Carolina scored once in the first and added single runs in the fourth and fifth before adding three more in the sixth. Two more crossed in the seventh.

Shirley Brown, Cynthia Shepard, Mitzi Davis and Jo Landa Clayton each had two hits in the contest.

In the second game, the Lady Pirates got one in the first and picked up the other four in the third.

In B bracket, N.C. State beat Lenoir Rhyne, 7-6, and Campbell, 5-4. Campbell then topped Lenoir Rhyne, 5-2.

When the second part of the tournament got underway, Lenoir Rhyne downed UNCC, 3-2, then downed N.C. State, 8-5. Campbell nipped UNCW, 1-0, in 19 innings.

That set up a meeting between the

Emory Says Things Falling In Place For Pirates

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

With one week still to go in spring football drills at East Carolina, things are beginning to fall into place.

Following Saturday morning's latest scrimmage, the Pirates have four more practice days left for the spring, which winds up next Saturday night with the annual Purple-Gold game at 7 p.m. in Ficklen Stadium.

Through the first ten days of drills, Coach Ed Emory had expressed some concern over the slowness of the offense in picking up the new I formation.

But this week, "Things have fallen into place," he said Saturday morning.

"The offensive line and backs are doing a much better job of blocking now," Emory said. "The offense has stayed healthy, although Roy Wiley had a small operation the other day and will miss the rest of the spring. He'll be back for the fall, however. Milt Corsey has had a good week at tailback.

"Ernest Byner (fullback) and Terry Long (guard) have both looked good this week, too."

Emory also noted that some people who had been carried in the first and second units had been demoted during the week because of academic problems. "They've got to get that in order if they expect to play," Emory said.

Defensively, the Pirates have continued to maintain the intensity that Emory has seen all along. "We've tried to work with some of our younger kids this week, too. We know that we have two good defensive tackles in Steve Hamilton and Hal Stephens. Maury Banks has come along well, but we're concerned about depth behind them."

Emory also noted that injuries have caused some depth problems at the nose guard position.

Emory is also pleased with the play of the linebacking crew, Gerald Rogers, Amos Twitty, P.J. Jordan and Dewayne Anderson. The defensive end group of Jody Schulz, Jeff Pegues and Curtis Wyatt also are pleasing Emory.

"We've come a long way in a week. If we can make as much progress in the next week that we have in this last one, we'll be pretty near where we hoped to be," Emory said.

Saturday, the Pirates, for the first time this spring, sent the number one offense against the number one defense, and that too, was pleasing to the coach. "Both groups had some good moments," he said. "Greg Stewart is out front at quarterback, with Kevin Ingram close behind him. Carlton Nelson is doing a heck of a job at wide receiver, and Stefon Adams also is having a good spring after switching to receiver from the backfield. Some others who have looked good include Mac Powers (center), Barry Smith (tackle), Stuart Ramirez (wide receiver) and Robert Pittman (tight end)," Emory said. All of the final group are transfers.

Emory plans to have one more scrimmage, probably on Wednesday, prior to Saturday's Purple-Gold game.

"We haven't worked yet on the shotgun formation, but we hope to start putting that in next week," he said. "We expect to show the whole offensive package at the game," he said, then noted that maybe not everything would be shown.

"We've had a great spring. We've had great enthusiam, great attitude and great contact. We've made lots of progress and if we keep everyone eligible I think we have a chance to be competitive in the fall."

Tigers Edge Yanks, 5-3

DETROIT (AP) — Enos Cabell had three hits, including a homer, and drove in three runs to back the 10-hit pitching of Jack Morris and Kevin Saucier as the Detroit Tigers defeated the New York Yankees 5-3 Saturday.

Cabell lined a solo shot into the lower left-field seats in the Detroit first — his second homer in as many days and the only two the Tigers have hit all season.

In the Detroit second, Tom Brookens beat out a bunt single, went to second when New York left-hander Tommy John, 0-2, uncorked a wild pitch, and scored on Alan Trammell's single. Cabell's two-out double drove in Trammell and Glenn Wilson, who had walked, to give the Tigers a 4-0 lead.

Kirk Gibson, Larry Herndon and John Wockenfuss started the Detroit third with successive singles to load the bases, and Gibson scored on Brookens' double-play grounder.

Willie Randolph led off a three-run New York sixth with a double and scored on Jerry Mumphrey's single. Bobby Murcer's one-out homer drove in Mumphrey ahead of him.

Texas 5
Milwaukee 3

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Lamar Johnson belted a two-run homer in the sixth inning, leading the Texas Rangers to a 5-3 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers Saturday.

Frank Tanana, 1-1, yielded five hits before he was relieved with two out in the sixth by Steve Comer.

Comer pitched perfect relief until the ninth, when he loaded the bases on a walk and singles to Gorman Thomas and Mark Brouhard. One run scored on Robin Yount's double-play grounder, and Comer got the final out when pinch hitter Don Money lined to third.

The Rangers erased a 2-1 deficit in the sixth when Leon Roberts reached on a throwing error by third baseman Paul Molitor and Johnson slammed his first homer of the year off Bob McClure, 1-1.

Texas scored two insurance runs with two out in the ninth. Doug Flynn singled and scored on a triple by George Wright. Lee Mazzilli's bunt single scored Wright.

Boston 5
Toronto 4

BOSTON (AP) — Glenn Hoffman capped a five-run first inning with a three-run homer, and the Boston Red Sox snapped a four-game home losing streak Saturday with a 5-4 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays.

Tudor, 2-0, settled down after Toronto scored three runs on singles by Damaso Garcia and Garth Iorg, a triple by Jesse Barfield and Wayne Nordhagen's sacrifice fly.

With a fifth-inning triple, Yastrzemski reached another career milestone, becoming the seventh player in major league history to gain 5,201 total bases.

CHICAGO (AP) — Greg Luzinski's towering two-run homer in the first inning and the three-hit pitching of Britt Burns through seven innings led the undefeated Chicago White Sox to a 3-1 victory over the Baltimore Orioles Saturday in the first game of a twi-night doubleheader.

The triumph was the sixth straight for the surging White Sox and marked their home opener after a series of postponements because of inclement weather.

Luzinski's first homer of the season hit the upper deck facade in right-center and came with two out following a single by Steve Kemp, who also singled home a run in the third inning.

Burns, 2-0, gave up an infield single to Rich Dauer in the Orioles' first and didn't allow another hit until Rick Dempsey singled with two out in the fifth. Eddie Murray tripled with two out in the sixth but was stranded.

The only Baltimore run came in the ninth off reliever Salome Barojas on John Lowenstein's RBI single following a two-base error by center fielder Ron Leflore. Barojas worked the final two innings for Chicago and earned his fourth save.

The loss was the fourth straight for the Orioles and was charged to starter Dennis Martinez, 1-1.

CLEVELAND (AP) — Amos Otis drove in five runs, including a game-winning, two-run double in the eighth inning, and the Kansas City Royals pounded out 22 hits in a 12-10 victory over the Cleveland Indians Saturday.

Kansas City trailed 10-8 entering the eighth. Jerry Martin led off with a single, moved to third on a double by Frank White and both runners scored on a single by pinch-hitter Willie Aikens.

Dave Frost lifted his record to 3-0 despite yielding two runs in 21-3 innings, and Dan Quisenberry recorded his fourth save with two innings of one-hit relief. Rick Waits, 0-2, one of three Cleveland pitchers in the eighth, was the loser.

Cleveland scored five runs and took an 8-7 lead with two out in the fifth. Mike Hargrove was hit by a pitch, Thornton singled and Joe Charboneau walked to load the bases. Alan Bannister slapped a two-run double, and, after Manning walked, pinch-hitter Chris Bando tied the score 7-7 with a two-run single that kayoed Royals starter Larry Gura. Jerry Dybzinski followed with an RBI single off Frost.

Malone Player Of The Year

NEW YORK (AP) — Houston center Moses Malone has been named National Basketball Association Player of the Year in a poll of NBA players conducted by the Sporting News.

Malone, the league's leading rebounder and second-leading scorer, received 70 votes to 50 for runner-up Larry Bird of the Boston Celtics. Earlier, the weekly St. Louis publication named Detroit's Isiah Thomas NBA Rookie of the Year.

The balloting players also named an all-star team including Malone, Bird, forward Julius Erving of Philadelphia and guards George Gervin of San Antonio and Gus Williams of Seattle. Gervin is the league's top scorer.

Steelwheels' Hudson Gets Two Honors

CHAPEL HILL — The Greenville Steelwheels' Richard Hudson has been named the Class 2 most valuable player and coach of the year.

Hudson led a list of four Steelwheels on the all-conference team, which was announced today by league officials. Hudson coaches the Steelwheels to a 7-9 record this season and a third place finish in the conference, the best ever for the Greenville team.

Two Steelwheels — Troy Peoples and Butch Ferrell — were named to the Class 3 all-conference team while a third — Charles Howerton — was selected to the Class 1 all-conference team.

Players in the league are divided into three classes, which are determined by the degree of disability a player has.

Leonard Barrow of the Carolina Tarwheels received the inaugural Tim Harris Memorial Award. The award honors Harris, a former Steelwheel and D.H. Conley athlete, who died last year of cancer.

Rose Shines En Route To Winning Apex Relays

APEX — Rose High School's track team turned in an outstanding performance yesterday at the Apex Relays, winning first place in four events and taking the overall team championship.

Kenny Smith and Harry Williams dominated the invitational mile, finishing one-two in that order. Smith's winning time was 4:19.5, while Williams was an eye-lash behind at 4:19.7.

They were joined by Tyrone Forbes and John Byrd in capturing the title in the distance medley relay with a winning time of 10:44.9.

The four also teamed up to win the two-mile relay, capturing the title with a time of 8:17.

Rose's sprint medley team of Roderick Harrell, Robert Brown, Edward Frazier and Forbes also took the sprint medley relay in 3:39 to round out the Rose victories.

In the individual events, Brown finished fourth in the discus with a toss of 143 feet and was fifth in the triple jump with a leap of 45 feet, three-quarter inch. Frank White was third in the high jump with a leap of six feet, 4 inches. Marty Barnes finished tied for fifth with a 6-2 jump. Ashley Ferrell was seventh in the pole vault at 12 feet. Frazier took third place in the premier 100-meter dash in 10.01 seconds.

In other relay events, the shuttle hurdle relay of Roswell Streeter, Bernie Carraway, Calvin Joyner and Barnes finished third in 64.4 seconds. The 800-meter relay team of White, Harrell, Joyner and Frazier was third in 1:30.5, while the 400-meter relay team of Rodney Smith, Harrell, Brown and Frazier was second in the time of 43.3. The winning team was also timed in 43.3, but Rose was awarded second on the judges' decision.

Rose finished the meet with 87½ points, well ahead of second place Raleigh Broughton, which had 65. Oxford Webb was third with 44 points. A total of 22 teams participated in the event.

Rose did not have two of its better athletes with it in the meet, as Chris McLawhorn and Erskin Evans continued to be sidelined with injuries.

Rose returns to action on Tuesday, hosting Wilson Hunt. The Rampants travel to New Bern next weekend for the Colonial Classic.

Reds Whip Giants To End 6-Game Losing Streak

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Bruce Berenyi and Tom Hume combined on a four-hitter, and the Cincinnati Reds ended a six-game losing streak with some excellent defense to beat the San Francisco Giants 8-2 Saturday.

The Giants left runners at first and second in the seventh when right fielder Paul Householder made a running catch of a line drive by pinch-hitter Champ Summers. And the Reds made three double plays behind Berenyi, who walked eight and struck out four.

Hume pitched the final 21-3 innings, giving up two hits and a run in the ninth. Max Veneble drove in the run with a single.

Householder, the only Cincinnati batter to hit a home run so far this season, got No. 2 when he connected off Al Holland, 1-1, with the bases empty in the fifth inning to break a 1-1 tie.

Milt May doubled in the second inning for the first San Francisco hit but was stranded at second. The Giants scored in the third when Davis got a lead-off walk, went to second on a ground out, to third on a fielder's choice and came home on a groundout by Reggie Smith.

Twenty-three consecutive Cincinnati batters had been retired, including the last 14 in Friday night's 6-1 loss to the Giants, before Ron Oester led off the fourth with a single to right. Dan Driessen forced Oester at second, advanced to second on a groundout, went to third on a wild pitch by Holland and scored on Johnny Bench's single to tie the score.

After Householder's homer, the Reds padded their lead with two runs in the sixth and four more in the ninth.

NEW YORK (AP) — Mookie Wilson's sacrifice fly in the bottom of the seventh inning scored Tom Veryzer with the winning run as the New York Mets defeated the Montreal Expos 2-1 Saturday.

Hubie Brooks led off the seventh with a single and went to second when Montreal left fielder Tim Raines let the ball get by him for an error. Tom Veryzer then bunted, but right-hander Ray Burris, 0-2, threw out Brooks at third base.

Pittsburgh 2

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Leon Durham slammed a two-run home run and Larry Bowa snapped a 1-for-25 slump with a pair of extra-base hits Saturday as the Chicago Cubs ended a four-game losing streak with a rain-delayed, 10-2 win over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The Cubs bunched eight of their 18 hits in a five-run explosion in the eighth inning off Tom Griffin, the third of three Pirates pitchers.

Chicago added two ninth-inning runs. Henderson doubled home Durham, who singled and scored from first. After Woods walked, Wills singled home Henderson.

Dickie Noles, 2-1, struck out five and walked none to earn the victory for Chicago, which had lost five of its six previous games. He gave up eight hits in seven innings of work, failing to return after a second rain delay of 55 minutes. Willie Hernandez pitched the final two innings.

The Cubs took an early 2-0 lead off Pirates starter Ross Baumgarten, 0-1, who was knocked out of the game in the fifth inning.

In the second, Bowa doubled to drive in Woods, who had walked and stole second to open the inning.

Pittsburgh tied the game with a pair of runs in the fourth. Jason Thompson drilled a solo home run, his second of the year, into the right-field seats. Bill Madlock then singled and scored on a double by Pena, who hit safely in his seventh straight game.

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — Kathy Whitworth fired a 1-over-par 73 Saturday to hold a comfortable 4-stroke lead entering the final round of the $15 0,000 CPC International women's golf tournament.

If Whitworth wins Sunday, it will be the 82nd victory of her LPGA career, tying the number of championships won by golfing great Mickey Wright.

Two-time leading money-winner Beth Daniel, who had sole possession of second place entering Saturday's round, shot a 76 to move into a three-way tie for the second slot.

Daniel tied at 2 over par with Patty Sheehan and Alice Ritzman, who shot the best round of the day of 68. Ritzman was also the only golfer in the field of 66 to shoot below par for the day.

Second-year pro Kyle O'Brien fired a hole-in-one on the 15 th hole, only the second ace in the CPC's seven-year history.

Daniel, who dropped 2 strokes on the 18th hole and forfeited par for the tournament, said, "I played bad today, it's as simple as that."

Daniel bogeyed three other holes.

Harry Gant, who started the day as the seventh fastest of eight qualifiers, took the outside pole at 114.361 mph, also in a Buick. The Taylorsville, N.C., native has had seven second-place finishes, but has managed to get into the top five just once this season.

Labonte, the current leader in the Winston Cup point standings, dropped to third position at 114.314 mph in his Chevrolet.

Mark Martin, who was second to Labonte on Friday in his Pontiac, fell to fourth at 114.297 mph.

The 25-year-old Labonte has won only once in his short NASCAR career. In 1981, he took eight top five finishes and slightly less than $335,000 in prize money

Bobby Allison, driving a Chevrolet, moved up from sixth on Friday to qualify in the fifth spot at 113.970 mph. Ron Bouchard fell from fourth to sixth at 113.826.

Ricky Rudd, seventh in Friday's trials, remained in seventh position in a Pontiac. Joe Ruttman, making his first appearance in a Buick, kept the eighth spot he took in the first qualifying session.

The positions for the 2 p.m. race were determined on the basis of the average time from two days of time trials.

Defending champion Richard Petty, who had trouble with his Pontiac during the first day, will start from the 19th position, while his son, Kyle, will be alongside, also in a Pontiac.

Dave Marcis, winner of the pole position last year and holder of the qualifying record for the race, will start in the ninth position after averaging 113.959 mph.

THE FIRST BOAT SHOE DESIGNED TO PERFORM AS WELL ON LAND AS IT DOES AT SEA.

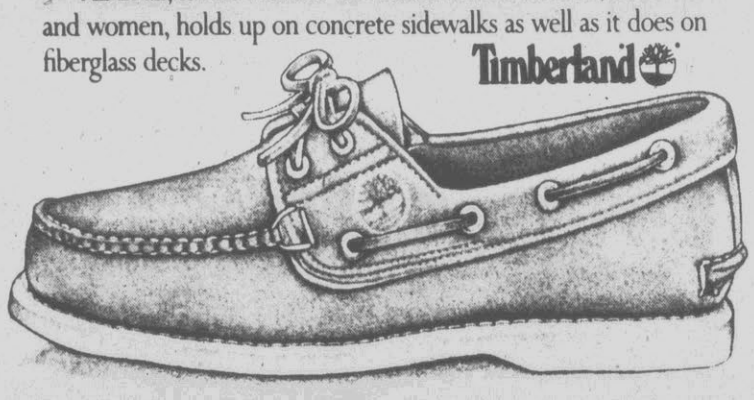

Most boat shoes are fine on boats. But put them on land and they just don't hold up.

The Timberland boat shoe has uppers made of oil-impregnated full-grain leathers that won't dry out or crack. The laces are thick rawhide.

And, to prevent rusting and damage from salt, the eyelets are only solid brass. But, most important, the sole is long-lasting, rugged Vibram.®

All in all, it's no wonder the Timberland boat shoe, for men and women, holds up on concrete sidewalks as well as it does on fiberglass decks.

Campbell scored its only run in the top of the first, only to see East Carolina come back with three in the bottom of the frame. The Lady Pirates then added three each in the third and fourth and finished up with two in the sixth.

Davis led the ECU hitting with three, including a triple, while Buck was also 3-for-4.

Then, in the championship contest, East Carolina downed Lenoir Rhyne, 6-1.

The Lady Pirates scored three times in the second, as Sherri Stout came over on a hit by Buck, and then she scored when Brown singled. Brown came over withthe third run on a hit by Ginger Rothermel.

After Lenoir Rhyne got its lone run on a homer by Dee Williams, East Carolina struck for three more in the fifth. Rothermel came around on a hit by Williams, and both Williams and Roth scored on a sacrifice by Davis.

The Pirates also played a non-tournament game with Lenoir rhyne, gaining a 7-3 decision. In that, ECU scored twice in the first inning and added one in the third and another in the fourth. The final three came in the sixth. Lenoir Rhyne got two in the sixth and one in the seventh.

They travel to N.C. State on Monday for a doubleheader, then will take part in the state tournament which runs Friday and Saturday at N.C. State

Lendl, Clerc In WCT Finals

HOUSTON (AP) — Top-seeded Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia gained his 15th consecutive tournament final Saturday with a 6-3, 6-2 victory over Ecuador's Andres Gomez in a semifinal match of a $300,000 World Championship Tennis tournament.

Lendl, who has won nine of those tournaments and ranks No.2 in the world, will face second-seeded Jose-Luis Clerc of Argentina in Sunday's final. Clerc, ranked fifth in the world, defeated Australia's Peter McNamara 5-7, 6-2, 6-3.

Lendl and Clerc both had to contend with erratic serves before gaining a chance at the $100,000 first prize. Lendl made only five of 21 first serves in the first set, although he broke Gomez in the first and ninth games and never was in serious trouble.

Lendl broke Gomez at love in the sixth game and did not get a first serve in the court. He finished the match hitting only 38 per cent of his first serves.

"On clay courts, the percentage of first serves is not important as long as your serve is winning you points," Lendl said. "My second serve was keeping him on the defense."

Lendl played a near-perfect second set, with only two groundstroke errors. He broke Gomez in the sixth and eighth games, winning it on the first match point with an overhead smash.

Clerc connected on only 18 of 39 first serves in losing the first set to McNamara, who needed to win the tournament to qualify for the WCT Championship tournament in Dallas.

Clemson Atop ACC Golf

ROCKY MOUNT, N.C. (AP) — Aided by 1-under-par 71s by sophomore Dillard Pruitt and Norman Chapman, Clemson claimed the lead Saturday in the Atlantic Coast Conference golf championships.

The Tigers finished at 578. That total is 2-over-par on the 7,134-yard Northgreen Country Club layout and is three shots better than first-round leader North Carolina State.

Defending champion North Carolina, spurred on by a second straight 72 from John Inman, remained in the hunt at 586. The Tar Heels were 5-under par as a team at the turn, but faltered in the windy, humid condition and lost 11 strokes to par coming in.

Wake Forest also experienced trouble on the back nine after going 3-under-par on the first nine holes. The Demon Deacons finished at 297 and dropped back to 592 for the team championship.

Maryland was fifth at 606 while Duke moved up a notch into sixth at 608. Virginia was at 613 and Georgia Tech brought up the rear at 624.

Pruitt was alone in first place in the race for individual honors after his second straight 71. Maryland's Tom Loveless, who set the opening pace with Clemson's Julian Taylor after a 69 Friday, was tied with Hunter at 143.

Taylor, Chapman and Inman were knotted at even-par 144.

Cards Win...

Andujar, 2-1, permitted a triple to Dick Davis in the second and a single to Pete Rose in the third, then set down 10 straight batters before Gary Matthews doubled in the seventh.

Carlton, meanwhile, allowed five runs in the first two innings as he lost his third straight game — his worst start since 1975.

The Cardinals pulled off two double steals in their two-run first. Lonnie Smith led off with a double and Tom Herr walked. The two then advanced on steals.

George Hendrick lofted a sacrifice fly, and after Gene Tenace walked, Herr broke for home. Catcher Bo Diaz threw to second baseman Manny Trillo on a designed play, but Trillo dropped the ball, allowing Herr to score and Tenace to take second.

Darrell Porter, Ozzie Smith and Andujar singled consecutively in the second to load the bases. Carlton walked Lonnie Smith, forcing in one run, Herr's fielder's choice grounder scored another and Hendrick added an RBI single.

The Cardinals got their final run off of Ron Reed in the seventh. Herr singled, went all the way to third on a groundout by Keith Hernandez, and scored on a single by David Green.

Hernandez, who has a nine-game hitting streak, singled in the fifth for his 1,000 career hit.

Davis' triple led off the second, but Andujar struck out Dave Roberts, got Garry Maddox on a weak grounder and fanned Diaz. Matthews' double opened the seventh, but Andujar got Davis on a ground out, struck out Len Matuszek and got Maddox on a foul pop.

Ayden-Grifton Rained Out

LITTLEFIELD — Rain wiped out a grand slam by Joey Kennedy and what appeared a sure victory for Ayden-Grifton Saturday night.

The Chargers were leading Roanoke, 9-3, when rain halted the game in the bottom of the fourth inning. The Redskins would have needed to bat in the top of the fifth for the game to count.

Kennedy had a grand slam in the first when the Chargers scored seven runs, all to no avail, however.

McLawhorn Named To Team...

And if the East squad finds itself unable to get into the endzone, then 5-11, 180 pound Lee Gliarmis of Wilson Fike will be waiting in the wings. He hit seven-of-12 field goal attempts and 19-of-22 extra points this season and at one point in his career connected on 37 straight conversions. He had eight field goals of over 40 yards and booted two in North Carolina's 7-6 Shrine Bowl loss last December.

While the backfield lacks big names, C. B. Aycock's Kenny Grantham, an AP all-stater, and Fayetteville Reid Ross' Ray Williams may fill the bill. Grantham tallied 1,387 yards and caught passes for 310 more, while Williams netted 1,359 rushing yards, caught 21 passes for 420 more, scored 21 times and punted for a 40-yard average.

The East will also have a couple of underated linebackers in Wilmington New Hanover's Rondro Boney and Clinton's Butch O'Lear.

Quarterbacks selected are Reid Ross' Jack Rickman, Kevin Wardlaw of Fayetteville 71st and Roxboro Person's Randy Snow.

Others named to the team were Southwest Onslow's Robert Simmons, Fayetteville Byrd's Tony Stubbs, Smithfield-Selma's Chris Brunson, Princeton's Barry Rose and David Starling, Whiteville's Tommy Griffin, Clayton's Mickey Nixon and Durham's Cyrus Hinton.

Raleigh Broughton's James Partington, Raleigh Millbrook's David Plum, Durham's Roderick Vereen, Raleigh Enloe's Myron Beaty, Terry San ford's Sam Hendrickson, Dunn's James Winters and St. Paul's Anthony McMillian were also selected.

Daskal is the only coach Reid Ross has had in 14 years and he has won over 110 games, while losing 35. He has directed teams into the state 4-A playoffs four times including a finals appearance in 1972. He has had but one losing season.

Elliott is one of the state's coaching veterans, being in the profession 29 years. He won state titles at Wilson Darden in 1951 and Charlotte's Ward High in 1963.

Brooks has been at Princeton 11 years and is one of the few coaches around who directs both the football and basketball programs. His football record is an impressive 75-24 with four league titles. His teams have made the state 1-A finals two of the last three seasons.

Teams #2, #3 Win Matches

The Greenville Recreation and Parks Department's Tennis League completed its fourth week of play Saturday.

Team Two and Three Three were winners.

Team Two downed Team One, with Nelson Staton defeating David Bronson, 6-4, 7-6; Al King downing Mike Strickland, 6-2, 6-1; Tom Sayetta and Harold Moore defeating Don Mills and Ed Rhem, 6-7, 6-1, 6-4; and Wes Hankins and Ed Leonard beating Paul Tardiff and Raymond Song, 6-2, 6-3. Team One's Gary Whitford and Joe Gantz downed Don Ensley and Charles Fennessy, 7-6, 6-3.

Team Three beat Team Four, with Steve Creech downing Conley Branch, 6-1, 6-0; John Day beating Billy Johnson, 6-0, 6-1; Craig Miller and Bobby Short taking K. Proctor and John Melvin, 6-4, 6-2; and Scott Disee and Pete Paradossi beating Larry Land and Larry Graham, 7-6, 6-1.

The third doubles was forfeited to Team Three.

ECU Netters Win, 7-2

East Carolina University's women rolled to a 7-2 victory over Campbell University Friday.

The victory boosts the ECU record to 6-5 on the year.

A scheduled match with Mars Hill, set Saturday, was cancelled. The Lady Pirates host Peace on Monday, then travel to UNC Charlotte on Thursday for the AIAW state championship.

Campbell Nips East Carolina By 2-1

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Campbell University's Darin Cloninger limited East Carolina to only one hit Friday night as the Camels slipped past East Carolina, 2-1, in collegiate baseball.

Cloninger was overpowering throughout the evening, and the lone run off him was unearned. He struck out seven and walked only two in winning his sixth game in eight decisions.

Losing for the Pirates was Bill Wilder, who fell to 5-4, and who also had a fine effort although not up to that of Cloninger. Wilder walked six, including one intentionally, and struck out four while giving up eight hits.

East Carolina's lone hit came off the bat of Ricky Nichols in the sixth, when the lone run scored on an error when the Pirates attempted a double steal. But otherwise, there was little action from the Pirate bats.

"We just can't seem to get a hit when we need one," Coach Hal Baird said afterwards. "We did get some opportunities, but it tells you something when we have to score our only run on a double steal. We're definitely not swinging the bats.

"We played well enough defensively (no errors) to win and Bill pitched well enough to win. But we need some timely hits and right now we are not up to the task," Baird continued.

"I'm not taking anything away from Campbell. They have got a great club, but our kids have to suck it up right now and go. We still have a big part of the schedule ahead of us. What we do the rest of the season will determine whether we get a bid to the ECAC-South tournament.

"The kids are playing hard, and they are taking this little stretch tough. They're doing all we ask of them. We just need to convert some of this determination into some action with the bats."

The lack of power from the bats was evident. Aside from Nichols' slash into left field for the lone hit of the night, the Pirates were able to lift only one other ball out of the infield, when John Hallow flew to center in the eighth inning. Every other out was recorded in the infield.

And while Campbell did record eight hits, several of them were bloopers. The first was an infield drive to deep short that Bob Posey just did beat out, and the next two were little pops that fell in between the charging infield and outfield just inside the rightfield foul line. Another was recorded when Wayne Dale grounded back to the mound, and Wilder prepared to throw to third for an advancing runner, only to see him hold at second. By the time the hurler then whirled and fired to first, it was too late.

Campbell offered its first threat in the opening inning when the infield hit and a blooper into short right by Dale put runners at the corners.

But in the fourth, the next threat paid off for the Camels. Posey doubled off the fence in left and stayed at second as Dale reached on the infield hit when Wilder was late with his throw.

But the Pirates then made a mental mistake on the next play and it cost them. Kelly Hoffman grounded back to Todd Hendley at third, and instead of tagging the bag to force the lead runner, Hendley threw on to second to force Dale, and the relay to first for the double play try was late. That left Posey on third, and he scored when Herb Williams hit a sacrifice fly to right field for a 1-0 lead.

The other Campbell run came in the fifth. Bobby Spicer walked and with one away, Rodney Stovall and Kevin Barger both singled, the latter bringing in Spicer for a 2-0 lead.

Campbell had only one other threat after that, in the eighth, when two walks opened the inning, and after a sacrifice, Bill Wilkes was issued an intentional walk. The next two batters grounded into fielder's choices, the first nipping a runner at the plate as the side was retired without further damage.

The Pirates, meanwhile, were having little success against Cloninger. Hendley was the lone Pirate with any success over the first five innings, walking twice and reaching second only once, in the fifth.

The Pirates finally did crack the ice in the sixth. Robert Wells was hit by a pitch, and Nichols followed with his single. Hallow forced Nichols at second.

Hallow then took off for second, drawing up as catcher Dale threw to second and Wells broke for the plate. The throw to second, however, bounced away, and Hallow pulled on into second as Wells easily scored.

With two outs, Fran Fitzgerald reached on an error that moved Hallow to third, but he died there as a stikeout ended the threat.

It was the late, too, as Cloninger didn't allow another baserunner the remainder of the game.

The victory boosted the Camel record to 23-10 overall, and 23-5 since the team lost its first five outings of the season. East Carolina, losing its third straight, tying its longest losing streak of the year, falls to 23-10.

Following another meeting of the two teams on Saturday, the Pirates were to host UNC Charlotte today at 2 p.m.

Nets Finally Defeat Boston

By The Associated Press

For more than two years, the New Jersey Nets have had Boston on their minds. Now they'd like to believe the Celtics are worrying about them.

"If we have to play them in the playoffs, it gives them something to think about. It's fresh in their minds that we beat them the last time around," Jan van Breda Kolff said Friday night after the Nets, who hadn't beaten the Celtics since the 1979-80 season, polished them off 113-96.

Rookie Buck Williams scored 27 points and spurred a third-quarter burst as the Nets outscored Boston 26-8 to put them in command at 92-78.

76ers 100, Bullets 96

Lionel Hollins' tie-breaking basket with 21 seconds to play, followed by a pair of Darryl Dawkins free throws 29 seconds later, gave Philadelphia its victory and dropped the Bullets into a fifth-place tie with Atlanta in the Eastern Conference.

Whichever team finishes fourth will have the home-court advantage over the fifth-place team. The sixth-place team will play the 76ers.

Washington led 85-76 early in the fourth period but fell behind 91-89 when Dawkins and Julius Erving combined for five consecutive points. The Bullets never regained the lead, managing only to tie it at 96-96 on a basket by Don Collins with 35 seconds remaining. Erving led the Sixers with 22 points. Jeff Ruland had 22 for Washington.

Hawks 109, Pacers 91

Eddie Johnson's 22 points and John Drew's 20 helped Atlanta cruise past the Pacers. The Hawks outscored Indiana 20-6 in the first nine minutes of the second quarter to go up 52-39 at the half and widened the spread to 84-62 going into the final period. Billy Knight's 26 points topped the Pacers.

Bulls 112, Cavaliers 102

Cleveland, the worst team (15-66) in the NBA, lost its 18th in a row, two shy of the NBA record, despite a 31-point performance by Ron Brewer. But if the Cavs are destined to match the futility displayed by the 1970-71 Sixers, they'll have to wait a while. They have just one more game this season.

Artis Gilmore led Chicago with 28 points, 20 in the second half, and blocked eight shots. Reggie Theus added 20 points for the Bulls.

Kings 123, Nuggets 121

Kansas City rookie Steve Johnson scored 21 points, the last two on a slam dunk with 42 seconds to play, to lock up the victory over the Nuggets and seriously dent their playoff hopes.

Alex English had a game-high 25 points for Denver, and Dan Issel added 24 before fouling out.

Spurs 118, Mavericks 106

San Antonio secured its second consecutive Midwest Division title — its fourth division title in six NBA seasons — and George Gervin took another step toward his fourth scoring championship in five years, hitting 35 points against the Mavericks.

Bucks 112, Knicks 99

Milwaukee's backcourt tandem of Marques Johnson and Sidney Moncrief scored 24 points apiece as the Bucks closed out their home season by snapping a three-game tailspin and saddling New York with its fourth consecutive loss. The Knicks were led by Bill Cartwright's 19 points, but he left the game with seven minutes remaining after chipping a tooth.

Rockets 107, Jazz 100

Despite its victory, compliments of Moses Malone's 34 points, Houston still needs a victory Sunday at Kansas City to make sure it'll be in the playoffs.

Elvin Hayes added 19 points and 18 rebounds for the Rockets while Adrian Dantley's 35 points paced Utah.

Suns 113, Blazers 98

Phoenix remained in a fourth-place tie with Houston in the Western Conference playoff scramble as Alvan Adams scored a season-high 32 points in the Suns' victory over Portland. The Trail Blazers have lost three in a row.

Lakers 125, Warriors 109

Los Angeles, behind Kareem Abdul-Jabbar's 26 points, ran away from Golden State and dropped the Warriors into a tie with Denver for the sixth and final Western Conference playoff berth.

The Lakers turned a 61-55 halftime lead into a 73-59 edge 2½ minutes into the third quarter and the Warriors never got closer than 10 points thereafter. Bernard King's 21 points led Golden State.

GCA Girls Win First

Beverly Hurst singled home Paige Brown with the winning run in the last half of the seventh as Greenville Christian slipped past Falls Road, 11-10, Friday in a high school softball game.

The score was tied at 10-10 going into the home half of the seventh. Brown singled to open the inning and later scored on Hurst's single to give GCA its first victory in seven outings this season.

GCA appeared headed for an easy win through three innings. The Lady Knights led, 3-0, after the first and upped the margin to 7-0 with four runs in the second.

Falls Road made it 7-1 in the third and then scored three runs in the fourth to cut the gap to 7-4. GCA got all three runs back in the bottom of the fifth to up the margin to 10-4.

Falls Road, however, countered with two runs in the sixth and four in the seventh to tie the game at 10-10 going into the bottom of the seventh, when Brown and Paige put together singles to give GCA the win.

GCA was led at the plate by Hurst, who had three hits in five at bats. Brown adn Mirinda Sutton were both two for four. Michelle West was three for five for Falls Road.

GCA travels to Wilson Christian Monday.

Hudson Homer Keys Knights

GOLDSBORO — Troy Hudson's two-run single keyed a five-run fifth inning that helped give Greenville Christian a 16-14 victory over Faith Christian Friday in a high school baseball game.

The score was tied at 10-10 going into the top of the fifth inning of this slugfest, which featured a combined 30 runs and 24 hits, including two home runs. There were also 13 errors, seven by Faith.

GCA's Chris Harris singled to open the inning and stole second. He scored on John Parnell's single. Parnell then stole second and went to third on David Hollingsworth's single. Hollingsworth later stole second.

Both Parnell and Hollingsworth scored on Hudson's single. Hudson later scored on Daren O'Brian's single to make it 15-10.

Faith cut it to 15-11 in the bottom of the inning on a home run by David Cool and closed to within 15-14 with three runs in the sixth, but the Knights got one of those runs back in the seventh and held on for the win.

GCA, now 4-2, was led at the plate by Parnell, who was three for four. O'Brian was two for three and Billy Stancill was two for four. Ed Massengill was two for three for Faith.

GCA jumped out to a 3-0 lead in the top of the first only to have Faith come back with five runs in the first and add five more runs in the second to go up, 10-3.

The Knights battled back with five runs in the third, keyed by a three-run home run by Stancill, to make it 10-8. GCA knotted the score one inning later with a two-run outburst and then took the lead in the fifth.

GCA travels to Wilson Christian Monday. The Knights will make up a suspended game that ended tied 12-12 after six innings two weeks ago before playing the regularly scheduled contest.

Braves Up Win Streak

By The Associated Press

The Atlanta Braves took aim at a 27-year-old National League record last night, but rookie outfielder Brett Butler says he and his teammates are thinking one step further.

The Braves scored all five of their runs in the sixth inning — two on a Butler single — to beat the Houston Astros 5-3 Friday night, extending their season-opening winning streak to nine games.

The NL record is 10, set in 1955 by the Brooklyn Dodgers, and the major league record is 11, set by last year's Oakland A's of the American League.

"We've all got an 11-0 start on our minds," Butler said, "but we just go out and play all the games to do our best each time. If some of the guys slack off, somebody else will pick them up. I was fortunate tonight to get the hit that helped us."

The Braves, who had baseball's best spring record of 18-7, send right-hander Bob Walk, 2-0, against Astros knuckleballer Joe Niekro, 1-0, tonight.

Starter Rick Mahler lost a string of 26 consecutive shutout innings in the fourth when Tony Scott and Jose Cruz singled consecutively and scored on Alan Ashby's double.

Butler hit a 3-2 pitch up the middle off Nolan Ryan, now 0-3, to start Atlanta's five-run sixth. He scored later on a wild pitch by Ryan. Atlanta's other two runs scored on a double by Bob Horner and a throwing error by Houston reliever Dave Smith.

Giants 6, Reds 1

Rich Gale, the former Kansas City Royal, tossed a three-hitter, and San Francisco pounded out nine hits to beat Cincinnati. Reggie Smith drove in a run with a first-inning single and got credit for his third game-winning RBI.

Gale, 1-0, earned his first National League victory and pitched the Giants' first complete game of the season, striking out seven and walking two. He retired the last 14 batters he faced.

Padres 8, Dodgers 1

Ruppert Jones scored three runs and Luis Salazar had a pair of RBI to pace the Padres to their third straight victory, while Los Angeles lost its third in a row.

John Curtis worked seven innings for the Padres, giving up three runs on eight hits for his first victory. Dodgers lefty Jerry Reuss lasted 5 1-3 innings, giving up three runs in the first inning on four hits and another two runs in the sixth that snapped a 3-3 tie.

Cardinals 3, Phillies 2

Darrell Porter hit an RBI triple in the first inning and scored the tie-breaking run in the third on George Hendrick's single as the Cardinals won their sixth straight.

Philadelphia, losing its sixth game in eight, had only six hits in the first seven innings off right-hander Bob Forsch, 2-0. Bruce Sutter finished the job with two innings of hitless relief.

Expos 4, Mets 3

Al Oliver clubbed a leadoff homer in the ninth inning to boost Montreal over New York and make a winner of former Mets reliever Jeff Reardon. Reardon pitched three innings of one-hit ball in relief of Bill Gullickson.

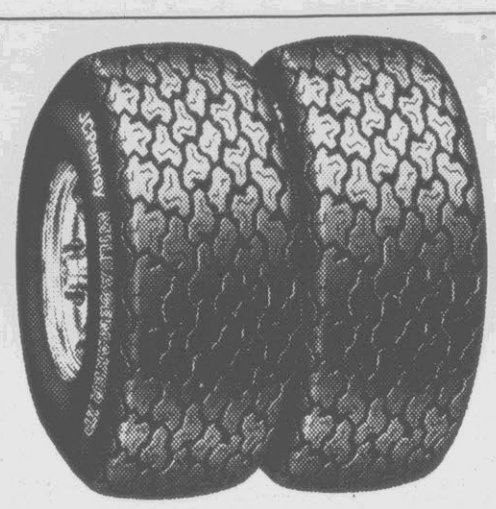

Mets reliever Jesse Orosco had two strikes on Oliver before the Expos first baseman hit his second homer of the season.

New York tied the score 3-3 in the sixth on a two-run single by George Foster. Gullickson had retired 11 in a row when Mike Jorgensen walked to lead off the sixth. Mookie Wilson singled him to second and both runners advanced on a sacrifice bunt before Foster's hit over the head of center fielder Gary Woods, who was playing shallow, to give Pittsburgh a 12th-inning victory in its home opener.

Willie Hernandez, the fourth Cubs pitcher, hit Tony Pena to start the 12th. Johnny Ray bunted and was safe when second baseman Bump Wills, covering first, missed the bag. Jim Smith sacrificed, and Steve Nicosia was walked intentionally to load the bases.

Teletip Can Help With Wildlife Plans — Interested in learning more about a wildlife project you have been thinking about for a long time? Chances are you have seriously considered planting wildlife food or improving habitat for wildlife or raising catfish or some project.

Many times the lack of a plan or of knowledge of how to approach a project prevents an outdoorsman from geting it started.

One of the most successful approaches in assisting the public with information on a multitude of subjects is the N.C. Agricultural Extension Service's "extension teletip." The plan offers an approximatly two-minute tape played to people who call, free of charge, to the extension's service office in Raleigh and request any one of hundreds of tapes on a wide variety of subjects.

Tapes available include: Bears (2650), Beavers (2651), Chipmunks (2652), Deer (2653), Raccoon (2656), Squirrels (2710), Improving Wildlife Habitat (2660), Planting Trees for Wildlife (2582), Fertilizing Fish Ponds (2675), Stocking Fish Ponds (2679), Raising Bullfrogs (3030), Raising Catfish (3032), Improving Urban Wildlife Habitat (2661).

Interested parties need only dial toll free 1-800-662-7301 and request the tape you would like to hear by the assigned numbers shown above. Have a paper and pencil ready for notes, or you might try recording the message onto your own tape.

One advantage of the tapes is they are professionally done and the information can be relied on to be accurate.

The service operates from Sept. 1 through March 31, Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. and on Saturdays from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Fishing Report:

Coastal — The weather has been the factor again over the last week. The wind has kept the water muddy and made fishing difficult. The only news has come from the Core banks area where spot and croakers have been caught.

The head boats have been successful fishing for grouper and snappers when they can get out.

Inland — Fishing has also been slow inside the past week. As with the coast, the wind has been a key factor. Mattamuskeet Lake had been fair (largemouth bass) if you can get out of the wind. Try topwater baits, Devil's Horse, Rebel, etc., or anything with a spinner, Mepps Minnow, Sassy Shad or Beetle Spin.

Big Carp

This 15-pound carp was caught in the Tar River near Grimesland by "Little Sam" Dixon Thursday. The fish was caught on a worm on a no. 6 hook on 10-pound test line. Dixon said he was going to let the fish go at the Town Commons here after the picture was made.

Wild NBA Season Close To An End

By The Associated Press

A desperate playoff battle that will conclude with one of five teams being eliminated despite a record well over .500 highlighted the 1981-82 National Basketball Association season.

The Boston Celtics' long winning streak, near-record losing streaks by the San Diego Clippers and Utah Jazz and a magic month by Moses Malone were other headline-making events in the NBA's 36th year.

Going into the final weekend, four teams — Denver, Houston, Phoenix and Golden State — were tied in the race for three playoff berths in the Western Conference. Midwest Division leader San Antonio also had not clinched a berth with two games to play.

One of these teams will not make the playoffs despite a record no worse than 45-37. A year ago, Houston made it to the NBA championship series and Kansas City was in the conference finals after each finished 40-42 in the regular season.

Los Angeles and Seattle were the only teams in the West that had clinched postseason spots.

The six East playoff teams already are determined. Boston, Milwaukee, Philadelphia, Washington, New Jersey and Atlanta are assured of playoff action, but only the Celtics weren't jockeying for home-court advantages in the last days of the season.

The Nets, Bullets and Hawks each hoped to play two games at home in the first round, while the Bucks still had a chance to catch the 76ers for a home-court edge in their possible second-round meeting.

The Celtics, however, are certain to finish with the best record in the NBA. For much of the season, they were in a tight race with the 76ers and Lakers for that distinction, but an 18-game winning streak in February and March put Boston comfortably in front.

The streak, which equaled the 18 triumphs in a row by 1969-70 New York Knicks for the third-longest in NBA history, ended March 28 with a defeat against Boston's archrival, the 76ers.

The Celtics, who hope to become the first team since the Celtics in 1969 to successfully defend their NBA title, won five of the games in the streak without superstar forward Larry Bird, who broke his cheekbone Feb. 28. When Bird returned, he was relegated to a substitute's role, although Coach Bill Fitch explained: "It's who is in there at the end that counts."

At the other end of the standings, the Clippers stopped a 19-game losing streak by winning their last game of the season Thursday. The skein was one short of the NBA record for futility set by the 76ers in the 1972-73 season.

The Clippers, 17-65, were stung in January when owner Donald Sterling announced that the team's first priority was to finish last in the Western Conference so they could have the first pick in the 1982 draft. He might get his wish if the Clippers can win a coin flip with the Los Angeles Lakers May 20.

The Lakers acquired the first-round pick of the Cleveland Cavaliers, who have the worst record in the Eastern Conference.

The Utah Jazz nearly matched San Diego in futility, losing 18 games in a row before beating the Clippers to stop the streak.

Malone, who will finish the season first in the league in rebounding and second in scoring behind George Gervin, was virtually unstoppable in the month of February.

The Houston center started with an NBA season high of 53 points against San Diego and finished with 44 points against Dallas. In between, he was nearly as good.

Malone sank 55.5 percent of his shots in 14 games while averaging 38 points and 17 rebounds per game.

In a contest against Seattle, which boasts a front line that includes all-stars Jack Sikma and Lonnie Shelton, Malone scored 38 points and grabbed an NBA season high of 32 rebounds, including a league record 21 at the offensive end. He personally outrebounded the rugged Sonics 32-29.

Elsewhere in the league:

•The Cleveland Cavaliers used four coaches, starting with Don Delaney, using Bob Kloppenburg on the bench for one day and hiring Chuck Daly before replacing him with General Manager Bill Musselman on March 8. In another coaching change, Rod Thorn replaced Jerry Sloan for the Chicago Bulls, a playoff team in 1981 that faltered badly this season.

•The New York Knicks, 50-32 a year ago, also failed to make the playoffs. In addition, they suspended forward Sly Williams three separate times for missing games, practices and doctors' appointments. He finally went home to settle "family problems."

•Former Brigham Young basketball star Danny Ainge gave up a major-league baseball career with Toronto to sign with the Celtics Dec. 9.

•The league signed a new four-year, $88 million contract with CBS-TV and also branched off into cable television with a two-year, $11.2 million deal with USA Network and ESPN.

•Washington Bullets guard John Lucas, after admitting a former cocaine habit, was permitted to continue playing while taking part in a rehabilitation program.

Slower Vida Blue Still Dazzles 'Em

By The Associated Press

Vida Blue has lost some of his velocity, but none of his vitality.

"They say I don't throw as hard as I used to, that I don't average six or seven strikeouts a game," Blue says. "But I like to think I'm a complete pitcher. I like setting up hitters. You don't get paid for strikeouts, but for winning games."

Friday night, Cleveland center fielder Rick Manning called Blue "awesome" as the Kansas City left-hander helped the Royals take a 3-1 decision over the Indians.

"He doesn't throw as hard as he used to, but he hits the spots and kept us off balance," said Manning after Blue allowed the Indians just two hits in seven innings. "I've never seen his slider break so sharply before."

The victory was the first in the American League for Blue since he was a member of the Oakland A's in 1978. He was acquired by the Royals in spring training from the San Francisco Giants.

The 32-year-old Blue limited Cleveland to two hits — including Toby Harrah's solo homer — in the first seven innings. Dan Quisenberry came on to pitch the final two innings and gain his first save.

The Royals snapped a 1-1 tie against Cleveland's Len Barker, 1-1, when Lee May led off the seventh inning with an infield hit and scored on U.L. Washington's two-out triple.

Yankees 10, Tigers 2

New York scored five unearned runs in the second inning and Ron Guidry pitched a seven-hitter as the defending American League champions defeated Detroit. Pat Underwood, 0-1, was the victim of the Yankees' five-run burst.

Guidry, 1-0, who lasted only four innings in his only other start this season, struck out four and walked two against Detroit, breezing past the Tigers after his teammates handed him a 7-0 lead after two innings.

"With a 7-0 lead, you can just go out and challenge the guys," said Guidry after turning in his first complete game since July 23, 1980. "You don't have to be so fine with that kind of edge."

Rangers 4, Brewers 1

Pinch-hitter Bill Stein drove in the tie-breaking run with a double and Texas added two runs in the 10th inning to beat Milwaukee in the Brewers' home opener.

Blue Jays 2, Red Sox 0

Jesse Barfield drove in two runs with a triple off Dennis Eckersley in the fourth inning and Luis Leal and Roy Lee Jackson combined on a seven-hitter to lead Toronto past Boston.

Leal, 2-0, did not allow a runner to advance beyond second base in pitching the first eight innings and facing one batter in the ninth.

It was the Red Sox' fourth straight loss at home, the first time that's happened at the start of a season at Fenway Park since 1948.

Mariners 5, A's 0

Al Cowens hit a three-run homer and Floyd Bannister scattered seven hits to lead Seattle past Oakland. Bannister, 2-0, struck out eight and walked four. He leads the American League with 27 strikeouts.

Angels 4, Twins 2

Doug DeCinces' two-out, two-run homer in the bottom of the 10th inning lifted California over Minnesota. Brian Downing singled with one out in the 10th and was forced by Rod Carew's grounder before DeCinces homered.

The Angels had tied the score 2-2 in the bottom of the ninth on a pinch-hit RBI double by Fred Lynn.

Salazar Leads Boston Field

BOSTON (AP) — World record holder Alberto Salazar, undefeated at the distance, runs in his first Boston Marathon Monday as a strong favorite in an unexceptional field.

Only three of the world's top 10 rated marathoners have entered the 86th annual classic that has drawn 7,603 runners. Japan's Toshihiko Seko, who set a course record of 2:09.26 last year, is bypassing the event.

Interest will focus on a confrontation between the young and the old — the 23-year-old Salazar, who is running only his third 26-mile, 385-yard race, and the 34-year-old Bill Rodgers, a four-time winner of his hometown test of speed and endurance.

"There's world record potential for both men's and women's races," said Rodgers, who finished fifth in the 1980 New York City Marathon won by Salazar. "I think the women's field is the best one ever in the 12 years it's been an official entry in the Boston Marathon. It may be the best of any marathon."

The women's race is headed by Grete Waitz of Norway, another runner who competes in marathons infrequently but successfully. She has been in just four, winning the New York City Marathon in 1978, 1979 and 1980.

Waitz dropped out with an injury in the middle of last year's New York City Marathon, won by Allison Roe of New Zealand in a world-record time of 2:25.29. Roe, who set a course record of 2:26.45 in the 1981 Boston Marathon, is not competing here this year.

The course winds from Hopkinton, west of Boston, to The Prudential Insurance Co. tower in the city. It may be the last time that route is used.

Prudential, the race's major sponsor for 16 years, is withdrawing after this year to protest efforts to commercialize the marathon. Race director Will Cloney said the current finish line is "ideal" but probably will be changed next year.

Marathon officials also are considering changing the race day from the traditional Patriots' Day holiday, a Monday, to a Sunday to attract better television coverage. Hopkinton officials, concerned with the impact such a change would have on church services, are reviewing the matter.

Rodgers, the world's seventh-ranked marathoner, and Dick Beardsley, of Rush City, Minn., rated ninth, have the best shots at upsetting Salazar, a former resident of suburban Wayland, Mass.

But Rodgers, third here a year ago, is not high on his chances. He says he is not in peak condition and has felt tired in recent races.

Salazar, who set his world record of 2:08.13 last October in his second consecutive New York victory, is coming off a strong performance April 10 in a 10,000-meter race in Eugene, Ore.

Henry Rono won in 27:29.9, but Salazar was right behind with a 27:30.0 clocking that was just 84-100ths of a second behind Craig Virgin's American record.

"I ran so well. I'm sure ready for a good marathon," Salazar said after the race.

Rodgers agrees.

"He'll have to put out an effort to win, but I think he is so fit that, to me, it seems he's a strong favorite," said Rodgers. "I think I'm just one of the other runners out there."

Rodgers finished fifth in the Houston Marathon Jan. 24, then sagged to 34th in a marathon in Tokyo a week later. He was in a marathon in Seoul, South Korea on March 28 but said he didn't run with great determination.

Beardsley, 26, tied for first with a time of 2:11.48 in last year's London Marathon. His 2:09.37 finish last June 20 in Duluth, Minn., was the second best by an American in 1981, behind Salazar.

Rodgers, who won the Boston Marathon in 1975, 1978, 1979 and 1980, and Neil Cusack of Ireland, the 1974 champion, are the only previous winners returning for the men's race. John Lodwick, who came in fourth last year, and Ron Tabb, the third-place finisher in 1980, also have entered.

The strongest challenges to Waitz in the women's competition are expected from Charlotte Teske of West Germany, Lorraine Moller of New Zealand and Jacqueline Gareau of Canada.

Patti Catalano of West Roxbury, Mass., runnerup the last three years, is not running.

Teske won the Orange Bowl Marathon Jan. 20 in 2:29.01. Moller, ranked second, captured last June's Grandma's Marathon in 2:29.37 and says, "I think my endurance is better than Grete's." Gareau won here in 1980.

Customary competitions will take place among wheelchair entrants and in the master's category. Another fixture, 74-year-old John A. Kelley, will wear No. 51 in his 51st Boston Marathon.

For the first time, blind runners will take part, accompanied by sighted guides.

"I never thought much about cancer until it hit close to home—twice." Charles W. Appich, President

"To me cancer was something that happened to other people. Then my own father got it. He was covered by a group health plan, but that coverage just wasn't enough when it came to the high cost of his cancer treatment.

"Soon after this our parts manager at work was diagnosed as having cancer. Fortunately he was covered by an American Family Life cancer-only policy. His claim was substantial and it was paid in just a few days.

"Because of the very satisfactory experience our parts manager had, most of our employees decided to sign up for the coverage and have the monthly premiums deducted from their paychecks.

"In these days of tons of paper work and red tape, we have found American Family Life claims easy to report, inquiries are answered immediately and new applications are processed quickly. And all at reasonable rates.

Let American Family Life help protect your family. For more information about cancer expense insurance, call the American Family Life agent in your area, ask about our payroll deduction plan where you work or send us this coupon.

The Dream: Baseball Back In Brooklyn

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball and Brooklyn. A marriage joined in 1890. Flourishing on the rough diamond of Ebbets Field, weathering slumps, celebrating pennants. Both sides willing to "wait 'til next year."

In 1957 came the divorce.

Owner Walter O'Malley packed up his team and headed for California. Brooklyn's Dodgers would forever play in a land of palm trees and surfers, their faithful fans reduced to rooting for teams in other boroughs and other states.

But state Sen. Thomas Bartosiewicz, Brooklyn-born and bred in the era of the Boys of Summer, envisions a Hollywood ending to this love story. He dreams of a new team playing in a new domed stadium in old Brooklyn.

"No one deserves a team more than we do," says the Democrat and leader of the bring-baseball-back-to-Brooklyn movement. "Being a Dodger fan taught me to be optimistic, and in true Dodger tradition, we're going to do it.

"Brooklyn has got to win one."

An artist's rendering of a proposed Ebbets Dome sits on an easel in Bartosiewicz's office. It combines modern technology — an air-inflated dome — with touches of the past, including a red-brick front that suggests the facade of old Ebbets Field.

Bartosiewicz claims the dome, patterned after the Silverdome in Pontiac, Mich., could mean $80 million a year to Brooklyn.

"Realistically, we could have a facility ready for a major league team within three years," says Bartosiewicz, his patter quick and confident. "And that's construction and scheduling, ready to go."

The senator and his stadium have their detractors. Newspaper columnists, including some who covered the old Dodgers, have ripped the plan. And Borough President Howard Golden feels Brooklyn should concentrate on expanding amateur sports rather than chasing an elusive major-league franchise.

The letter-writers remember 1957, the final season for the Boys of Summer.

The effort to keep the Dodgers took many forms. Then-Mayor Robert Wagner estimated the city spent $200,000 on studies. A group of Long Island businessman tried to buy the team. Nelson Rockefeller offered to buy into the team and help with construction of the new stadium.

But in 1958, they were gone. Ebbets Field was leveled for an apartment complex, and Brooklyn...

"Brooklyn has never been the same since the Dodgers deserted and abandoned it," says Bartosiewicz. "When I was in college, people's eyes would light up when I told them I was from Brooklyn. Now, they look at you funny and ask, 'Why would anybody want to live there?'"

Flatbush Avenue has decayed, with burned-out buildings sharing space with public-housing projects. The borough, like the city it's a part of, has watched crime rates spiral as its population dropped.

Bartosiewicz, however, envisions the Dome as a step toward rebuilding Brooklyn.

"Do you know Brooklyn doesn't even have a hotel?" he said. "It's never needed one. But a new ballpark, bringing in different kinds of events, could get things rolling again."

"If there's anything I could do to help the senator, I would do it. I would love to get them back," say Saul Leisner, the auctioneer on April 24, 1960, when Ebbets Field was sold for souvenirs. "That was the saddest day of my life. They were a part of Brooklyn. When they left, it was like losing a part of your family."

Leisner, now 72, remembers the thousands who poured onto Flatbush Avenue in hopes getting of a relic from the sacred stadium.

"If you know baseball, you know what devout fans Brooklyn had," he said. "There was so many Dodger fans waiting for the sale, most of them looking pretty bereaved. If we got a new team, it would absolutely rejuvenate the borough."

Brooklyn Community Board 13, whose 50 members voted unanimously to bring baseball back, has offered a site in Coney Island for the stadium.

"Why? Well, I'm an old Dodger fan, and I'd like to see it," says Herb Eisenberg, district manager for the board. "We support the Yankees, we support the Mets, and we can support a team in Brooklyn.

"You talk to anybody in the stream, it's all the same. They want a team back. It's Brooklyn, it's the Bums, it's baseball."

Bartosiewicz says feasability studies, funded by a $30,000 appropriation from the state Legislature, are under way to find a site and financing for the stadium. He has talked with the National League and commissioner's office, and

Petty To Be Up Front, If Form Holds True

RACING NEWS

NORTH WILKESBORO — If form holds true on the NASCAR Winston Cup circuit, Richard Petty will finish either first or second in the Northwestern Bank 400 here this weekend.

In the last 12 Northwestern 400s at the five-eighths of a mile track at the North Wilkesboro Speedway, Petty has not finished lower than second. Petty has won the last two 400s and is a heavy favorite to make it three straight and No. 11 for his career.

Petty won six straight spring races at North Wilkesboro from 1970-75. The sport's all-time race and money winner then put together four consecutive second place finishes in the first race of the year at the track before again returning to the winner's circle in 1980.

"I knew that we have always done real well at North Wilkesboro, but I didn't realize that our record was that good in the spring race," said Petty, who has won 195 events on the NASCAR Winston Cup circuit.

"I guess we might as well keep it up," he added with a smile.

Petty, who feels he should have won two races this year "with a little luck," will go over the $4.5 million mark in career winnings if he is able to continue his winning ways at the track.

While the drive of the STP Pontiac will be the odds-on favorite to win the event, another almost sure bet is he will not capture the pole position. In the 21 previous spring races run at the track he has never won the No. 1 starting position.

"That's not surprising," Petty said. "I've never been a good qualifier. In fact, you can say I'm a bad qualifier."

Petty has dominated the Northwestern Bank 400 to such an extent that only two other drivers who will compete in the seventh race of the 1982 Winston Cup season know the way to victory lane.

Bruins In Second Win In Playoffs

By The Associated Press

The regular season served as a course in self-assurance for the Boston Bruins, and they're putting their lessons to use in the Stanley Cup playoffs.

"Our execution of what we want to do has been perfect," said Boston defenseman Brad Park, who had two assists as the Bruins beat the Quebec Nordiques 8-4 Friday night. That triumph boosted the Bruins into a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven National Hockey League quarterfinal series, with the next two games set for Quebec Sunday and Monday nights. "It took us 80 games to convince ourselves we're a good hockey club and now we're a mature hockey club."

One of the more mature Bruins, eight-year veteran Rick Middleton, had a goal and three assists for Boston, while rookies Barry Pederson and Bruce Crowder chipped in two goals and an assist apiece.

"We're starting to peak at the right time," said Pederson. "We won the last two games of the regular season that we had to (to clinch second-place in the Adams Division) and it just steamrolled into the playoffs."

The Bruins eliminated Buffalo in four games in the opening round and have taken command against the Nordiques, who upset Montreal in a five-game, first-round matchup.

In other quarterfinal action Friday, Los Angeles edged Vancouver 3-2 on Steve Bozek's overtime goal to even that series 1-1; St. Louis knotted Chicago at a game apiece with a 3-1 victory, and the two-time defending champion Islanders deadlocked their "Battle of New York" with the Rangers at 1-1 with a 7-2 rout of their local rivals.

Pederson felt a score by Tom Fergus nine seconds after a Quebec power play, which made it 4-2, was the big goal.

"Tommy's goal was the ice-breaker because they were playing very well," he said. "They had the power play and there's nothing worse than after you have a power play for the other team to come back and score. We did. I think that kind of got things going."

Kings 3, Canucks 2, OT

Bozek, a rookie who scored 33 times for the Kings this season, provided his second key score of the playoffs. He tipped in a shot by Rick Chartraw — after Chartraw's first effort was blocked — at 4:33 of the overtime session.

Blues 3, Black Hawks 1

Three of St. Louis sharpest shooters — Bernie Federko, Wayne Babych and Joe Mullen — provided the offense and goalie Mike Liut had a relatively easy night as the Blues' checkers kept the Black Hawks off balance. Tom Lysiak scored a power-play goal on Chicago's first shot of the night, then the Hawks got nothing past Liut.

"It's been kind of a chess game," Federko said. "Each team is waiting the other out. I think it's been very physical. But you can't afford to take bad penalties. We know their power play can score, and they know we can also score on a power play."

Islanders 7, Rangers 2

Playing like champions after a four-game stretch in which they struggled to oust Pittsburgh — losing the third and fourth games and being forced to overtime in the fifth — and lost the opener of the quarterfinal round to the Rangers, the Islanders got two goals from Duane Sutter, a goal and two assists apiece by Bryan Trottier and Denis Potvin, and three assists from Anders Kallur.

"We made them make mistakes," said the Islanders' John Tonelli. "We were on top of them every step and they couldn't do a thing."

"We played the body well and moved the puck well," said center Brent Sutter, Duane's brother. "But we can play even better when we're working hard."

The Miami Dolphins threw only seven passes in their 24-7 victory over Minnesota in the 1974 Super Bowl Game.

Dream...

feels a new stadium "will make it impossible for major league baseball to deny us our team."

Golden, the borough president, also has spoken with baseball officials. He says bluntly: "I have to conclude that the prospects for bringing major league baseball back to Brooklyn are limited."

Bartosiewicz is undaunted. He spends much of his time working for a new stadium and new team, and dreaming of the day the game returns.

"We get the Dodgers' 1955 world championship banner from the Hall of Fame, and we unfurl it from the top of the dome for Opening Day," he says, envisioning the scene. "The stands are packed, and everybody's waiting, and the old Dodgers come out of the dugout to take the field in their old cotton uniforms.

"Then our Dodgers will have returned."

Safety Award

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — Carolina Power & Light Co. has earned the National Safety Council's Public Utilities Section Safety Award for 1981, ranking highest for on-the-job safety among 18 power companies of its size across the nation.

Officials say this is the ninth straight year CP&L has received the honor.

Tax Court Cracks Down On Shelters

By JIM LUTHER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Carrying its crackdown on tax shelters a step further, the U.S. Tax Court has denied a deduction for the cost of instructions on how to participate in the popular "family trust" tax-avoidance scheme.

The decision, filed last week, was against Agnes L. Hicks of Portland, Ore. She will have to pay taxes on $6,000 of income that she claimed had been transferred to the "trust" and on $2,000 that she paid for forms and instructions bought from the Institute of Individual Religious Studies.

The family trust has been used by thousands of people looking to cut their taxes by signing over their property and services to a trust. Promoters claim such a person then could draw untaxable compensation from the trust, which itself would face little or no taxes.

The Internal Revenue Service has rejected such tax shelters and the Tax Court has supported the IRS position.

Mrs. Hicks signed over her home and a portion of her income to a trust and named as trustees her adult son and daughter trustees. The papers creating the trust stipulated that Mrs. Hicks could not spend money from the trust without approval of one of the children.

However, the court said, "We conclude that Mrs. Hicks exercised total control over the distributions of trust income, many of which were used to satisfy her personal obligations, including household maintenance, automobile expenses and medical care, without seeking or obtaining the consent of her children."

In short, the court held, she claimed her income as a partner in a health club was paid to the trust, but the trust had no contract with the club. She signed her house over to the trust but continued to live in it and produced no lease or rent receipts.

In deducting the $2,000 for the forms and instructions for creating the trust, Mrs. Hicks identified the writeoff as a "cost to conserve assets and-or minimize taxes."

But the court, in a decision written by Judge Perry Shields, agreed with the IRS that such a deduction was not proper because the trust was not a realistic economic endeavor.

The court also held that the IRS was right in assessing a $113 penalty against Mrs. Hicks for negligence or intentional disregard of tax rules and regulations. The judge rejected her plea that she was acting only on the advice of her accountant, to whom she was referred by the organization that sold her the trust forms.

In other recent decisions, the court:

—Held that Donald W. Margolis of Boulder, Colo., must pay tax on the full 40 weeks pay of $22,969 that International Business Machines Corp. gave him as an inducement to leave the company. Margolis, a patent attorney, claimed the money was a gift, and thus untaxable, because IBM had no obligation to make any termination payment.

The court noted, "It is well-settled that the mere absence of a legal or moral obligation to make such a payment does not establish that it is a gift."

—Overturned IRS' denial of a tax exemption for Hip Sing Association Inc., a social and service membership organization created in 1896 in New York City to provide Chinese-Americans "a permanent place of meeting of the members, away from the baneful influences of the opium den and gambling joint."

Sugar Futures Still Weak

By KEITH E. LEIGHTY
Associated Press Writer

Sugar futures prices, continuing the weakness that has sent them plummeting this year, dropped below 10 cents a pound in one contract Friday, a day after the price declines forced a one cent increase in the U.S. import fee on sugar.

Beset by a lack of supportive news, sugar prices have been drifting lower on the Coffee, Sugar & Cocoa Exchange in New York but many analysts had expected the price to start back up after approaching 10 cents a pound, which they said was a psychological barrier.

Nauman Barakat, a sugar analyst with Smith Barney, Harris Upham & Co, in New York, said the break through the 10 cent level could signal a sharp decline.

"Now that that has been penetrated, I think we can really see prices plummet," Barakat said.

He noted that industrial users have stayed out of the market on the thinking that the price will decline, and that lack of purchasing has increased the pressure on prices.

Further pressure came from the increase in the import fee from 3.07 to 4.07 cents a pound. and Barakat said he would not rule out a fall to 8 cents a pound.

Sugar for delivery in May fell .29 cent and settled at 9.94 cents a pound.

Cocoa prices also were off sharply as a report of the first quarter U.S. cocoa grind showed an unexpected decline from a year ago, said Pam Rockley, director of New York research with A.G. Becker.

Miss Rockley noted that the initial report given on the trading floor indicated a decrease of 4.5 percent and the price of the May contract fell to $1,570, the lowest the contract has reached.

Analysts had expected the figure to be unchanged to slightly higher and the market "just started to fall apart."

However, the figure later was revised to a 1.3 percent decline and the price recovered some-what. The May delivery contract settled at $1,586 a metric ton, down $66. A metric ton is about 2,205 pounds.

Most of the rally came in the last 15 to 20 minutes of trading and followed a rally in the Treasury Bill futures, said Mike Murphy, a livestock analyst with Bache Halsey Stuart Shields in Chicago.

Live cattle for delivery in May was .18 cent higher, settling at 71.60 cents a pound; and frozen pork bellies were 1.55 cent higher, settling at 79.02 cents a pound.

Buying by commercial firms supported pork belly prices, Murphy said. He added that cash prices for pork bellies were slightly higher, giving support in the pork belly pit.

Murphy said fundamental factors related directly to live-stock and meat remain supportive for prices.

Grain and soybean futures prices were mixed in light, featureless trading on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Most prices remained in a narrow range as traders were cautious about opening new contract positions because of international tensions, which could cause prices to go sharply up or down, analysts said.

Soybean prices fell near the close, mostly in response to a drop in the price of gold, said Don Outland, a grains analyst with Drexel Burnham Lambert, Inc. Bullion prices fell as unconfirmed reports circulated Argentina was relaxing its posi-tion for a settlement in its conflict with Great Britain over the Falkland Islands, Outland said.

Corn prices were slightly lower but show underlying strength because of higher prices on the cash market, Outland said.

He added that the final round of purchases of corn by the Soviet Union are expected in the next two to three weeks and deliverable supplies are limited because so much corn has been put into various government price support programs. Futures prices are likely to be supported as a result, he said.

Wheat prices were mixed and appear to be ready for a decline, Outland said, because of technical considerations such as trends on price charts and trading volume.

Furniture Industry Sees Surge

By ELISSA McCRARY
Associated Press Writer

HIGH POINT, N.C. (AP) — For furniture manufacturers who have seen their industry cut back production, lay off workers and shut down plants for the past two years, even a little good news is welcome.

So when manufacturers attending the spring Southern Furniture Market in High Point heard that retail orders had picked up during the past three weeks, they were optimistic that the upturn in orders signals the beginning of a recovery from the slump.

"Any increase in orders whatsoever is good news," said Robert P. Gruenberg, general manager of the Southern Furniture Market Center. "And it's particulary encouraging that it came at this time, with the furniture market in full swing."

The week-long market, which runs through Thursday, opened amid predictions of declining attendance and sluggish sales. Many manufacturers said before the market opened that they expected buyers to be too cautious to commit themselves to many major purchases.

The semi-annual market, held each October and April, brings visitors from 50 states and 60 countries to some 1,300 manufacturers' showrooms scattered all over the Piedmont.

An estimated 36,000 visitors, down from the 1978 figure of 38.500, are expected to pump nearly $50 million into the state's economy.

But the real success of the furniture market is measured by the number of retail furniture orders. A strong market could mean steady jobs for the more than 80,000 furniture-factory employees in North Carolina, who produced one-fourth of the nation's furniture.

Furniture experts say they don't expect the spring market to give the industry the shot in the arm it needs. Designers say manufacturers are too conservative with their offerings to attract buyers. Manufacturers blame the depressed economy for slow sales.

"New offerings are stale, a result of manufacturers trying to play it so safe that they have saturated the market with mundane look alikes ..." designer John Mascheroni said at an opening-day news conference.

One company vice president, who asked not to be identified, described the furniture business by saying, "Let me put it this way. We're working at full capacity so far but we're not selling anything. We're turning it out but they're not buying. Business is frankly rotten."

The executive, sitting in his nearly deserted showroom on opening day, said he didn't expect a good buyer turnout.

"The economy is such that the buyers just aren't going to making a lot purchases," he said. "And if they're not going to buy, why go to the expense of coming to the market?"

However, Southern Furniture Market Center officials say they don't expect attendance to be significantly down for the spring market. And they point out that the number of pieces brought in to be displayed at the market are up.

"Everything that is displayed at the market comes across our loading docks and there are more pieces this time," Gruenberg said. "That means that manufacturers are not cutting back on what they bring in but rather are introducing new lines. That seems to me to be a very positive attitude."

Gruenberg said the center conducted a survey that showed store buyers plan to shop the market as usual, staying the same number of days and visiting the same number of showrooms.

But he admitted, "The overall attitude is conservative but cautious."

Some manufacturers, like Larry Himes of Burlington Furniture, see very little change for the market or the industry until the economy shows substantial improvement.

"Not much has changed," he said. "The high interest rates, low housing starts and high unemployment are still with us. Before we can start to recover, the economy has to recover. And that may take a while."

Governments To Get New Fund

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — Local governments in North Carolina should be able to invest funds in a unique cash management fund later this year, a lawyer for the state Treasurer's office said Saturday.

The fund is similar to those used by private investors, but was "expressly developed for local government units in North Carolina," said Greg Gaskins.

"This particular type of fund will be the first (for local governments) registered with the (federal) Securities and Exchange Commission," said Greg Gaskins.

The state Local Government Commission Friday approved in principal a management fund proposed by a consortium of two companies and a bank. Final certification is expected by July 1, pending registration with the SEC.

Cash management funds are investment accounts that are favored by many private investors because they pay higher interest rates than banks and allow investors to write checks on their accounts.

The proposed local government cash management fund will be open to city and county governments, school boards, local ABC boards, community colleges and other local public authorities.

"Local governments are like everybody else — money is real valuable to them, and any extra tool to help them earn extra income is valuable," Gaskins said.

Participation in the fund will be voluntary.

"Essentially, this is a new investment option they didn't have before," he said. "The potential advantages are you have a professional manager, while some of our smaller (government) units may not have had expertise in this area."

Government agencies are barred by federal regulation from using interest-bearing checking accounts and have traditionally invested funds in certificates of deposit and other types of interest-paying investments.

Those agencies should earn higher interest rates from the cash management fund because of the potentially large amount of money they have to invest, Gaskins said.

"I think it'll be used as governments see the need for it or when they see it would be useful," he said.

The Local Government Commission began seeking proposals for a cash management fund after the General Assembly passed authorizing legislation last year.

The plan tentatively approved by the commission will be marketed and distributed by Sterling Management Co., a Charlotte investment counseling firm. Fidelity Management and Research Group of Boston will serve as the investment adviser and funds will be handled through First Union National Bank.

Calypso Police Chief Resigns

CALYPSO, N.C. (AP) — Calypso Police Chief Tony Braswell, charged with embezzling $4,109 from the Duplin County Fireman's Association, has resigned from the police department.

Braswell, 28, who was secretary-treasurer of the association two years ago, resigned Wednesday night at a special emergency meeting of the Calypso Board of Commissioners.

He was arrested Tuesday by State Bureau of Investigation agents and taken to the Duplin County Jail in Kenansville, where he posted $5,000 bond and was released.

District Attorney William H. Andrews said Braswell allegedly embezzled $4,109 from the association from April 1978 to December 1980. Braswell was a member of the Warsaw Police Department at the time.

In a statement to the town board before his resignation, Braswell said he would fight the charges "right down to the letter, if necessary."

Princess Garner Reigns In Hearts of Many

Princess Garner is a princess indeed.

Paralyzed from birth and hospitalized from birth through 21 months, she has enjoyed a reign of love over the Neonatal Intensive Care and Pediatrics departments of Pitt County Memorial Hospital. She has basked in the devotion of nurses, doctors, housekeepers — virtually everyone at PCMH — during her record-breaking-length stay there. Now she's become the central figure in the household of Herbert Lee and Donnell Roundtree Staton in North River Estates here, joining the family as a foster child. All the while, she has in Northampton County a family who loves her and will welcome her home to them whenever her doctors say she's well enough to live that far from the advanced medical care afforded her here.

Princess was born in Pitt Memorial Hospital June 26, 1980. Her mother, Sharon Garner, had not felt her baby move during the last two weeks of her pregnancy, so her doctor had sent her to Pitt Memorial to deliver. His decision was a good one because the services of the Neonatal Intensive Care Unit here were needed as he had thought they might be. Although a good-sized full-term baby, Princess was born paralyzed from the neck down and struggling for every breath.

Went To Statons April 1

Princess left Pitt Memorial April 1 for the first time in her life, except when she has been taken out on the grounds by a nurse or transferred to Duke Hospital for testing or surgery. Her fans at Pitt Memorial threw for her a farewell party matched only in gaiety by the party they gave her on her first birthday. Present at both gatherings were her parents, Wayne and Sharon Garner of Northampton County, her brother and sisters, Ronielle, Curtrisha, and TaShauna, her grandmother, and the woman who has become her foster mother, Donnell Staton.

"Princess has surprised us all along with how she's hung onto life and even begun lately to get much better," her primary physician, Dr. Jim Nickelsen, said, "We really were afraid at first to hope she'd live very long."

By the time she was 3 months old, movement had came back to her legs. This was puzzling and continues to be, Dr. Nickelsen says, in that paralysis is almost always from extremities inward. For a time he said he began to hope that, since nerve service had come back to Princess's lower body, the same would happen in the upper torso area. But it now seems unlikely that it will.

The breathing difficulties caused by paralyzed muscles in the chest were complicated by a collapsed lung. "We kept hoping that lung would reinflate," Dr. Nickelsen said. "But early this year it became apparent that it probably wasn't going to, so we sent Princess to Duke Feb. 16 for surgical removal of the lung.

Unhoped-For Progress Since Surgery

"We couldn't have hoped for the progress we've seen since then! At one time we thought she'd always be on a ventilator, but now she's been able to come off it and the other lung seems quite normal and is functioning well in spite of the chest paralysis."

Princess still has a tracheostomy (a surgically-made hole in her windpipe for breathing) and needs a humidifier at intervals. For some reason that her doctors cannot fully explain she will not eat solid food.

"We put the best-tasting things we can find in her mouth," one of her nurses, Jackie Varnell, said, "and we beg her to swallow. But she just won't."

"I think, being tube-fed from the beginning, that she just never learned," Mrs. Staton said. " I have faith I can get her to eat once she's home with us. I feel like when she gets to my house and sees the other children eating, she's going to get the idea."

Mrs. Staton started visiting Princess about a year ago and has missed few days since. She's brought her husband and their five children, 5 to 16, and even all of her seven sisters to see her and says they love her, too.

"Donnell's been a marvelous stabilizer in Princess's life," Ms. Varnell said. "We nurses have always held her and cuddled her all we had time to, but no one's consistently rocked her and hugged her and talked to her every day like Donnell has. Princess responds to her as she does to no one else."

"I'd had it in my heart for a while," Mrs. Staton said, "that I'd like to take Princess home and let her know what being part of a real family is like, but I never dreamed they'd ask me."

"Mrs. Staton is a very special person," Dr. Nickelsen said, "someone Princess already knows and loves. We feel very fortunate, now that Princess is well enough to leave the hospital, that there's someone so capable and so willing to care for her until she's able to go 100 miles from the hospital to her own home. Right now she's going to need to visit the hospital several times a week so it's necessary that she be very close."

Skilled Home Care Required

Once the Statons were approved as foster parents by the Departments of Social Services of Pitt and Northampton counties, the nurses began teaching Mrs. Staton the many things she needs to know to care for Princess in her home. She understands that it's no easy task: she must tube feed her, suction her tracheostomy often as mucus collects in the windpipe and perform chest percussion therapy on her often. A heart-lung monitor went to the Statons' with her, but even with that, she has to be watched carefully to be sure she doesn't strangle on the mucus that collects quickly since she doesn't have the muscular control to bring it up and rid her body of it.

Princess cannot speak nor laugh nor cry out loud. She communicates with facial expressions. She smiles when she's pleased and turns her face away when she's not pleased. And when she's sad, big tears flow silently down her cheeks. When she wants more attention than she's getting, she smacks her mouth and gets it or if she's in someone's lap she bumps her head against the person's chest.

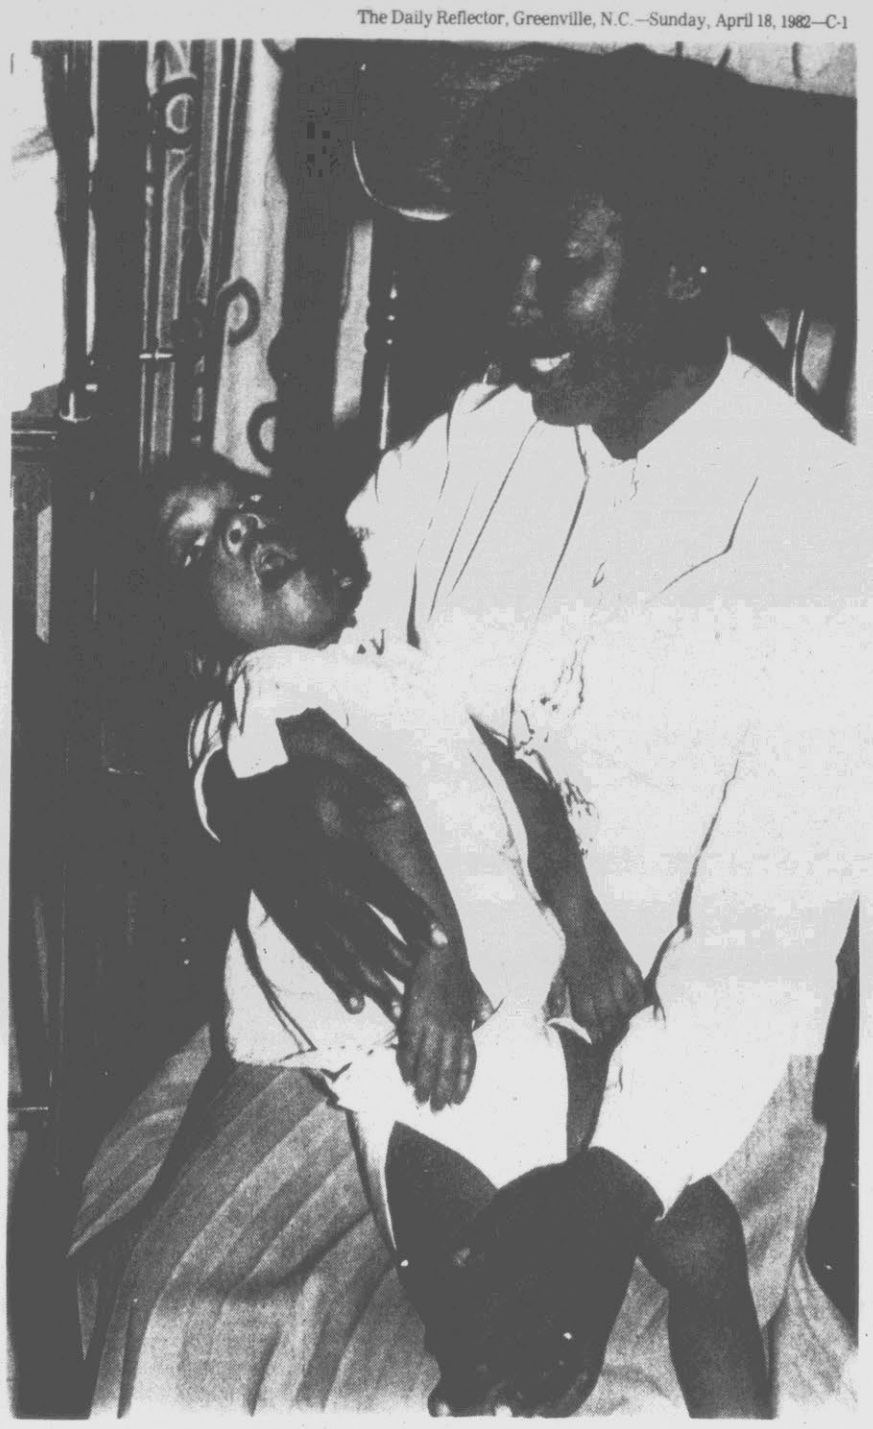

Mr. and Mrs. Garner say they're pleased that Princess has left the hospital, even though she's not able to go home with them. "I'm going to take care of her just like she's one of my own," Mrs. Staton told Mrs. Garner, "and you know how well you try to take care of your own."

"Princess was the PCMH Pediatrics Department's first intensive care patient," Dr. Nickelsen said. "Things we'd never done before on this floor, we're now doing routinely for other children. Princess taught us all a lot."

"Yes, Princess did teach us a lot," Jackie Varnell said. "Mostly she taught us how much we gain when we love the way we've loved her."

Wedding Vows Solemnized

Linn Elizabeth Winbourne and William Thomas Coghill Jr. were united in marriage Saturday afternoon at four o'clock in the First Presbyterian Church. The double ring ceremony was conducted by the Rev. Richard Rhea Gammon.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Linwood Limuel Winbourne of Greenville, the bride was given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Earline Allen Coghill and Mr. William Thomas Coghill Sr., both of Greenville.

Lori Elizabeth Hooper of Charlotte was maid of honor and bridesmaids included Gwendolyn Kay Coghill of Eastville, Va., sister of the bridegroom, Cindy Allen Brewer of Pineville and Lori Ann Waters of Greenville.

The father of the bridegroom was best man and ushers included James Stephen Winbourne, brother of the bride, Samuel Allen Mills, Charles Michael Waters, Mose Stocks and Gregory Allen Jester, all of Greenville, James Jay Jester of Henderson and Phillip Tetterton of Alexandria, Va.

A program of organ music was presented by Dr. E. Robert Irwin. Teresa Elaine Leggett sang "The Wedding Prayer" and "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride wore an ivory floor length gown of chiffon and silk Venise lace over taffeta. The fitted bodice featured a Victorian neckline with a schiffli embroidery yoke and full bishop sleeves. Silk Venise lace motifs etched with seed pearls outlined the yoke and adorned the bodice. Bridal buttons fastened the lace cuffed sleeves and the back of the gown. The flared full length chiffon skirt extended into a chapel train. Scalloped silk Venise lace bordered the hemline of the gown. Her veil was an ivory chapel length mantilla bordered with Venise lace flowing from a Venice lace face frame headpiece accented with lily of the valley. She carried a cascade bouquet of yellow and candlelight roses with baby's breath and satin streamers.

The maid of honor wore a formal gown of blue tinaseta Italian silk designed with an open neckline and miniature rolled shoulder straps. It had an empire bodice and accordian pleated skirt and was complemented by a short cacoon jacket with lettuce edging. She wore matching blue baby's breath in her hair and carried three yellow-stemmed roses, greenery and baby's breath tied with satin streamers. The bridesmaids' gowns and flowers were identical.

The bride's mother wore a pastel green formal gown and the mother of the bridegroom selected a powder blue formal gown and matching sleeveless coat. Each wore a yellow cymbidium orchid corsage. Mrs. Stephen C. Winbourne of Rocky Mount, grandmother of the bride, wore a corsage of white carnations.

A reception, given by the bride's parents, was held in the fellowship hall of the church. Guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Johnson and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Fletcher.

Cake was served by Delores Bunting and Carol Batts. Diane Justis of Eastville, Va. and Lynn Thigpen, aunt of the bridegroom, poured punch. Paula Newton of Miami, Fla., cousin of the bride, and Rosalie Trotman presided at the bride's register.

MRS. WILLIAM THOMAS COGHILL JR.

Good-byes were said by Mr. and Mrs. Monroe E. Turner of Rocky Mount, aunt and uncle of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. Roger Winbon. Rice bags were distributed by Carol Johnson.

The couple will live at Route 5, Greenville, after a wedding trip to Florida.

The bride and bridegroom are graduates of J.H. Rose High School and East Carolina University. She is a staff artist with WITN-TV, Washington, and the bridegroom is engaged in farming with his father.

A wedding breakfast was held Saturday morning at the home of Lori Waters where guests were greeted by Dr. and Mrs. Robert L. Timmons. The bridegroom's parents entertained at an after-rehearsal dinner Friday evening at the Ramada Inn.

A bridesmaids luncheon was held at the home of Mrs. Broaddrick. Assisting hostesses were Mrs. Fletcher, Mrs. Linwood Stoneham, Mrs. Winbon, Mrs. Bobby Gaylor and Mrs. Trotman.

New Members Inducted By Club

A "table of fours" dinner was held at the NCFWC Junior Woman's Club of Greenville at the Woman's Club recently. The induction of new members was held.

Second Vice President Lynn Forbes reported on a recent project. Education Department Chairman Laura Shivar introduced Lisa Carraway, as the club's Sallie Southall Cotton Scholarship winner.

The program for the evening was a shower given through the Home Life Department. Chairman Lucine Barker collected gifts for Social Services and Adopt-A-School program. CIP Chairman Mary Shearin reported on contributions given to Save the Lighhouse and Save a Seat Infant Care Loaner program.

Membership Chairman Shelley Basnight inducted Rose Crumpler, Gayle Sterken and Chris Flower as new members.

Mrs. Forbes received the Juanita Bryant Citizenship Award. Nancy Harrington, Jana Gurganus, Mrs. Shivar, Sandra Garner and Kathy Hunnings were nominated for Outstanding Young Women of America. President Hunnings reminded members of the NCFWC State Convention May 3-5 in Winston-Salem.

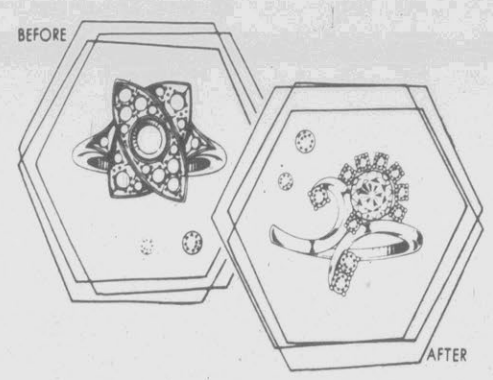

Guests for the evening included Dot Harrigan, advisor, Florence Holt and Betty Jo Manning. Lee Vann, Kathy Kazior and Mrs. Basnight were meeting hostesses.

Paid Announcement

Berg-Wells Vows Said Saturday Afternoon

Janet Marie Wells and Mark Arnold Berg were married Saturday afternoon at three o'clock in St. Peter's Catholic Church. Father Frost officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Billy B. Wells of Greenville. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Arnold N. Berg of Greenville.

A program of wedding music was presented by Mrs. T.J. Pignani, organist, and Cora Lee sang the "Wedding Song," "Lord's Prayer," "Ave Maria" and "We've Only Just Begun."

Donna L. Wells of Greenville served her sister as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Nancy Berg, sister of the bridegroom, and Janie Keeter, both of Greenville, Allison Lyder of Chapel Hill and Janice Sanderson of Miami, Fla. Genny Brewer of Norfolk, Va., cousin of the bride, was the flower girl.

The best man was T. Lee Brown of Greenville. Ushers were Tim Durham of Springfield, Va., Hugh Goettner of North Wales, Pa., and Don Hughes and Samuel Whitehurst, both of Grifton.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of white chiffon over peau de soie with a Queen Anne neckline trimmed in re-embroidered Alencon lace and beaded with pearls. The fitted bodice was enhanced with beaded Alencon lace that continued over the shoulders and down the back which was fashioned with satin button closures. The chiffon sleeves were cuffed in overlaid beaded Alencon lace with button closures of satin. The accordian pleated skirt of chiffon extended into a chapel length train. She wore a juliet cap overlaid in Alencon lace and accented with pearls with a waltz-length veil of illusion trimmed in pencil edging. The veil was accented with lace motifs. She carried a cascade bouquet of white miniature carnations, sweetheart roses, baby's breath and green springirii tied with a white satin bow.

Each attendant wore a formal gown of romance embossed chantilly lace with a blouson bodice, short split sleeves and a softly flared skirt. The portrait necklines were edged with piping and accented with miniature tie bows at the shoulders. They each carried bouquets of mixed summer flowers tied with matching bows. The flower girl wore a sleeveless formal gown of layered chantilly lace accented with a ribbon sash at the waist. She carried a basket of mixed summer flowers with a matching bow.

MRS. MARK ARNOLD BERG

The mother of the bride chose a formal gown of seaspray lusterglo fashioned with a V-neckline and attached chiffon capelet. The mother of the bridegroom wore a formal gown with ivory crepe bodie and magenta taffeta sash.

A dinner reception, given by the parents of the bride, was held at Ramada Inn immediately following the ceremony. Lisa Keller provided the dinner music and Paula Daughtry presided at the guest register.

An after-rehearsal dinner for the wedding party and out-of-town guests was given by the parents of the bridegroom at the King and Queen Restaurant Friday evening.

After a wedding trip to Las Vegas, the couple will reside in Greenville.

The bride attended East Carolina University and is currently assistant manager of McDonalds. The bridegroom, a graduate of East Carolina University, is manager of McDonalds.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

No one can pinpoint the exact day the first threat was made by a mother.

As close as anyone can figure, it was around the time of Eve who said to her son, Cain, "If you don't stop making faces at your brother, your face will turn into a pillar of salt."

Whatever you think of threats and intimidation, it's a weapon that has worked for mothers for years and is passed on from generation to generation.

Your ten basic menacing threats are still being used today and are as successful as ever in instilling fear and mistrust in a child.

"If you don't keep your hand in the car, the wind will blow your hand off." Despite the fact that you never knew anyone personally who had a hand blown off, I've never met a child who wants to take that chance.

"You cross your eyes one more time and they'll freeze that way." There was a rumor once of a telethon for frozen eyes of children who played the odds and lost, but it's not documented.

"Don't you dare wash your hair after 8:30 or you'll catch pnsumonia." Someone's grandfather died once from pneumonia. I couldn't believe he didn't know better than to wash his hair after 8:30.

"If you don't comb your hair, the rats will build a nest in it." Would it look any different?

"You keep playing with those matches and you'll wet the bed." I was 35 before I trusted myself to light the stove for dinner.

"Those who play with their gum get very sick." Do you want to tell your mother that makes no sense whatsoever?

"Drink coffee before you're out of high school and your teeth will turn black."

"Sit up straight or your spine will grow that way."

"Eat everything on your plate or I'm sending your food to the Armenians." I always wondered what the Armenians did with all those cold vegetables.

The universal threat was always, "You keep making faces and your face will freeze that way." I always wanted to laugh at that one until I remembered Lot's wife turning to salt as she left Sodom. I just knew she was horsing around!

Couple Weds Saturday

Teresa Bradfield Kempton and Jerry Wayne Jones were married Saturday in a single ring ceremony at eleven o'clock in the First Presbyterian Church by the Rev. Richard Rhea Gammon.

Parents of the bride are Mrs. Charles Langley Clark of Greenville and Mr. George Bradfield Kempton Jr. of Marion, S.C. She is the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Burney Kittrell of Pinetops. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dalton Troy Jones of Greenville.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of white schiffli embroidered silk net designed by Phyllis Bianchi. The empire bodice featured a Queen Anne neckline and cap sleeves. The A-line skirt was highlighted by a watteau chapel train. She wore a chapel length train of silk illusion which fell from a halo of white silk flowers and carried a cascade bouquet of white cymbidium orchids accented with stephanotis and ivy.

The bride was attended by Mrs. Layden Kempton James, honor attendant, and bridesmaids, Elizabeth Kempton Dunn of Greenville and Virginia Locke Kempton of Marion, S.C., all sisters of the bride.

The father of the bridegroom served as best man.

MRS. JERRY WAYNE JONES

The attendants wore street length dresses of printed silk in shades of mauve, lavender and blue, featuring three-quarter length sleeves and round necklines. The gathered skirts were accented with sashes of mauve ultra suede. They carried clusters of pink gerbera daisies, alstomeria and lavender freesia.

Brazilian Film To Be Shown

A noted 1976 Brazilian film, "Bahia," directed by Marcel Camus, is being shown at 7 p.m. today in the Cinema Society Series in Hendrix Theater, Mendenhall Student Center. Free coffee and refreshments will be served for half an hour prior to the movie.

Set in the province of Bahia, the film centers on "star-crossed lovers" — a sweet-talking street hustler and a beautiful young prostitute. Their affair is set against a combination of vivid tropical colors, sensual bossa-nova dancing and a strange blend of voodoo and Christianity.

"Bahia" is the fifth of six movies in the 1981-82 Cinema Society series.

Engagement Announced

KATHY GAIL WRIGHT...is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Warren C. Wright of Edenton, who announce her engagement to Edward Allen Malloy, son of Mrs. June P. Malloy of Bethel and the late Mr. Gerald Malloy. A May 28 wedding is planned.

Teresa Lou Wells Is Bride

AYDEN — The wedding ceremony of Teresa Lou Wells and Jeff H. Tripp was solemnized Saturday at 3 p.m. in the Ayden Free Will Baptist Church. The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. David Ricks.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William T. Harris of Route 1, Ayden, was given in marriage by her stepfather. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Harold Tripp of Route 2, Ayden.

The honor attendant was Cheryl Jones of Ayden. Erica Lynn Shatz of Washington was flower girl.

The best man was Tony Harris of Ayden while ushers included Ollen Wingate and Earl Elks, both of Ayden. The ring bearer was Billy Harris of Route 1, Ayden.

The bride wore a formal gown of white organza over peau de soie styled with a rounded neckling, long sleer sleeves with lace cuffs and chapel length train. Scalloped lace and a lace ruffle accented the neckline and hemline of the gown. Appliques of matching lace trimmed the bodice. Her mantilla of illusion was bordered with matching lace and was attached to a lace covered headpiece. The bride carried a silk bouquet of pink, white and blue daisies, yellow, blue and mauve forget me nots and greenery.

The honor attendant was dressed in a floor length gown of pink polyester accented by a floral sheer jacket. She carried a silk bouquet of daisies in mauve, pink, yellow and blue.

The mother of the bride wore a street length two-piece lilac dress and a corsage of yellow silk roses. The mother of the bridegroom selected a light blue street length ensemble and wore a corsage of yellow silk roses.

After a wedding trip to the coast, the couple will live in Ayden.

The bride is a graduate of Ayden-Grifton High School and is a supervisor at Hardee's in Ayden. The bridegroom is also a graduate of Ayden-Grifton High School and is self-employed.

An after-rehearsal party was held at the church Friday evening given by the bride's parents.

Faye Trotman, aunt of the bride, presided at the bridal register.

Trudy Briley poured punch and Faye Matthews served wedding cake. Assisting in serving were Ruby Dunn and Helen Lane, aunts of the bride, Barbara Shatz, cousin of the bride, Ruby Wingate and Wanda Singleton.

MRS. JEFF H. TRIPP

Senior Show

Julie Winfree of Winston-Salem, a senior in the school of art, East Carolina University, has her senior exhibition on view at the Arts & Camera Frame Shop and Gallery, Cotanche Street.

A reception for the artist was held Saturday. The show will be on view through April 24.

After graduation, Ms. Winfree plans to complete an educational program in Raleigh and then locate in Atlanta.

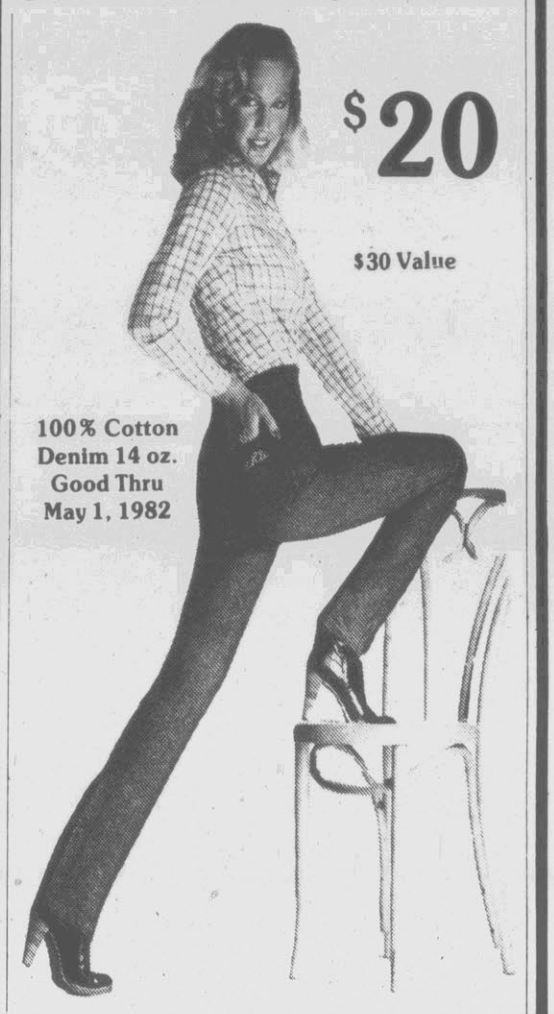

Diane Bridger Organ Recital

Diane Lynn Bridger, of Suffolk, Va., a senior in the ECU School of Music, will present her senior organ recital at 6 p.m. today in the First Presbyterian Church, at Elm and 14th Streets. The recital is free, and the public is invited to attend.

For her program, she has chosen four compositions: several pieces from Francois Couperin's "Mass for the Convent;" Franck's "Choral in E Major;" Paul Hindmith's "Sonata II for Organ;" and the "Prelude and Fugue in E flat Mayor" by J.S. Bach.

Winter, summer, spring. Mountain and meadow vistas, old barns, a mule and cart, as well as birds, butterflies and boats. All these are depicted in a collection of 36 color photographs in the North Gallery of the Greenville Museum of Art.

The one-gallery exhibit of photographs is by several members of the East Carolina Camera Club — Ennis Cestang, William Collins, Robert Cramer, Walter Faulkner, Ray Jones, James Rees, Jack Thornton, Tilton Wilcox, Hershel Williams, and Louis Zinconi.

These local photographers display a common bond in the photographs being shown here — all are lovely pictorial scenes, peaceful, and are devoid of drama (except for one fine photograph of an old house burning.) Many are the type of pastoral views found in publications like The National Geographic.

Only two are portraits, and the majority do not have people as part of the scene.

This small show reveals a search on the part of the photographers for places and scenes that reflect a world of calm and order. From this approach, the show works well.

The one factor that mars the exhibition is several instances of too-heavy framing and in other cases the use of brightly colored mats that tend to be too aggressive, clashing with the photographs.

It's good to have a chance to see the work of these men. These three dozen pieces serve to make a viewer want to see more of what they have achieved.

Book News

FROM SHEPPARD MEMORIAL LIBRARY

By LOUISE PERRY

A wide range of new non-fiction titles is available at Sheppard Library. Aimed at everyone from the do-it-yourselfer to the would-be-tourist, these will fascinate, amuse, and instruct those who enjoy reading non-fiction books.

Southern Living's "Travel South" is a must for those now planning spring and summer vacations. Enhanced by beautiful color photographs, the book provides maps, as well as information on the 15 southern states (history, vacation highlights, places of interest). National and state parks are listed as well as a seasonal calendar of major events for each state. With the thousands of changes that take place that can affect vacation plans (days and hours of operations of museums, attractions etc) this book will save time and money in vacation planning and enjoyment.

The "Homeowner's Book of Lists" by Franklynn Peterson and Judi Kesselman-Turkel is a useful compedium of practical information in an easy-to-use form. Some of the lists included are: birdhouse dimensions for different types of birds, bed linen sizes, carpet fiber rating and performance, children's clothing sizes, consumer assistance and complaint resources, drapery rod length, firewood heating values, and food buying guide as well as many others. This book has almost everything you've always wanted to know about every question around the house.

The "Indispensable Cancer Handbook" by Kathryn H. Salsbury and Eleanor Leibman Johnson is a comprehensive, authoritative guide to the latest and best in diagnosis, treatment, care, and supporting services for cancer patients. Drawing on the resources of the National Cancer Institute, this book answers clearly every question patients and their families might have on the treatment of cancer, and includes the most up-to-date alternative therapies as well as a special chapter on children with cancer. The best facilities for treating the different forms of cancer are indicated in a complete list of cancer treatment sites in the U.S. The "Indispensable Cancer Handbook" is a well researched and clearly written addition to cancer literature, not only for patients and their families but for health professionals as well.

Dean's Photographs Exhibited In Show

Three photographs by Dean James, Greenville photographer and proprietor of Dean's Photography, were chosen for an exhibition sponsored by the Southeastern Professional Photographer's Association held recently in Williamsburg, Va.

Two of the photographs, "Anticipation" and "The Enchantress" are in the portraits category. The third photograph, "Serenity," was selected in the unclassified category. All three received Gold Corner Awards, and "Serenity" was additionally given a Seal of Approval Award.

Library Week

In celebration of National Library Week, April 18-24, Sheppard Memorial Library is planning several activities for its patrons. These will include movies, puppet shows, and an amnesty on fines for all overdue material returned during this week.

For children, a special presentation of the full length Walt Disney movie based on the Mary Norton book "Bed-knob and Broomstick" will be shown. Showtimes are at 3:15 p.m., Friday, April 23 in the Children's Room of the Main Library, 530 Evans Street; 10 a.m., Saturday, April 24 in the auditorium of the East Branch Library, 2000 Cedar Lane and 2 p.m., Saturday, April 24 at Carver Branch Library, 618 West 14th Avenue.

For lovers of puppets, the library is offering two classic children's tales, "Hansel and Gretal" and "The Little Girl and the Gunnie Wolf," which will be presented at puppet plays. All puppet performances will be held in the auditorium of the East Branch Library. There will be shows at 9:45 and 10:45 a.m. an April 20, 22 and 23.

For all patrons, the library is offering an amnesty on all overdue books. No fines will be charged on any material returned to the Main Library, East and Carver Branches, or the Bookmobile between April 18 and 24.

Sheppard is participating in National Library Week activities along with libraries throughout the country. The theme for this year's celebration is "A Word to the Wise — Library."

Youth Writing Forum To Meet

Rose High Presenting Musical

The famed musical of the late 1940s, "South Pacific," by the team of Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein II, adapted from James A. Michener's Pulitzer Prize winning novel, "Tales of the South Pacific," is being presented for three performances during the coming week by members of the J.H. Rose High School Drama Club and members of the school orchestra.

The big-cast musical features romances, World War II servicemen, shrewd but lovable natives, tropical islands in the Pacific, and tunes like "Some Enchanted Evening," "Bali Ha'i," "There's Nothing Like A Dame," and "Gonna Wash That Man Right Out of My Hair."

Productions will be at 8 p.m. Friday, Saturday and Sunday in the Rose High Gymnasium. Tickets are priced at $3 in advance and will be $4 at the door.

The lead roles of the French island planter Emile De Berque and American military nurse Nellie Forbush are portrayed by Tim Shank and Mary Kate Cunningham, respectively.

Other cast members in star roles are Kim Lingerfelt as Bloody Mary; Brion Berryman as Captain Brackett; Jim Hickmon, Commander Harkison; Shaun Wallace as Billis; and Chip Little as Lt. Cable.

Also, Carmela Weber, Liat; Kipper Hair, Stewpot; two Rose High alumni, Mike Thurber and Jeff Jones as Li'l Abner and Henry; Andrew Harris as the professor; Lydia Coulter, Ngana; Curt Lieberman, Jerome; Dwayne Speight, Sgt. Johnson; David Schlienz, Mr. Caffrey; Jon Pringle, Steves; Danny Dupree, Hassinger; Stephen West, Waters; Lisa Kittrell, Genevieve; Leanne Licko, Lisa; and Louise Hindmarsh, Connie.

Filling the role of French girls are Camille Cox, Leslie Lazzo, Margaret Cox, Judy Flower, Nan Thompson, and Terese McLawhorn. Those portraying natives are Kim Teel, Lisa Wallace, Moisa O'Callaghan, Beth Kopelman, Stacey Sewell, Stuart Coulter, Chuck Williamston and Tiki Hair.

Coming Up At Minges

JOAN AND THE BLACKHEARTS — Rock singer Joan Jett and her band, the Blackhearts, will appear in concert at Minges Coliseum Sunday, April 25 (hour of performance to be announced later). Joan's latest album, "I Love Rock 'N Roll," has reached platinum status and is now in the Top 5 on the album charts. The single of the same title was the nation's number two song in the Top Ten charts for last week. A critic in the New York Times describes a Jett performance as ". . . leaving a sonic boom of power-pop and hard-nosed rock in her wake." Information on tickets and reservations can be made by calling the Central Ticket Office, 75 7-6611.

Almanac Calendar

WASHINGTON — Spring theatrical productions in Ayden and in Plymouth are among topics to be discussed by guests on Almanac, the early morning personality show airing over WITN-TV, Channel 7, weekday mornings beginning at 6 a.m. Guests to be interviewed by host Dick Jones and Jim Mallory this week are:

• Monday — D.R. Bryan, president of the Rocky Mount Board of Realtors, talks about private property week.

• Tuesday — Winky Phillips reveals a few of the ins and out of producing a musical, "Mame," at Ayden-Grifton High School.

• Wednesday — A second high school production, that of "West Side Story" by students at Plymouth High School, is discussed by members of the production.

• Thursday — Dr. Charles Petty, executive director, Governor's Office of Citizens Affairs, contributes information on the organization's latest project.

• Friday — The focus is on the GED program as Warren Bishop of Wayne Community College looks at the strengths and shortcomings of the program.

ECU Groups In Choral Concert

Three groups — the ECU University Chorale, Charles Moore, director; the ECU Women's Glee Club, Rhonda Fleming, director, and the ECU Men's Glee Club, Edward Glenn, director — will present a Spring Choral Concert at 8:15 p.m. Monday in the A.J. Fletcher Recital Hall.

The concert will be open to the public with no admission charged.

Accompanists for the program are Betsy Larder, with the University Chorale, and Cheryl Kite, with the Women's Glee Club.

•Selections to be heard on the University Chorale portion of the program are Boyce's "Alleluia;" the credo from Mozart's "Missa Brevis in D Major," with Julie Clemens, soprano, Teresa Norris, alto, Phil Brown, tenor, and Tim Parker, bass. Instrumentalists are Amy Moore and Carol Moore, violinists, and Jeff Tuthill, cello. Also, Buxtehude's "Instruments, Waken and Publish Your Gladness" with trumpet soloists Steve Stewart and Mike O'Connor; two works by Benson, "Sea Change" and "Variations on a Handmade Theme;" the aria from Bach's "Suite in D Major" with Mike Sheard, string bass and Kim Summers, percussion; and Bacharach's "Magic Moments."

•The Women's Glee Club will perform Verdi's "Laudi alla Vergine Maria;" Hassler's "Come, All Musicians, Come;" Purcell's "In These Delightful Pleasant Groves;" two songs from Binkerd's "Under the Silver Umbrella;" three Highland airs arranged by Best; and the Cachucha and Finale from "The Gondoliers," arranged by Harris.

•The Men's Glee Club will be heard in Koerner's arrangement of "Men of Harlech;" Washburn's "A Lament" and "Let the Toast Pass;" four old Hungarian folks songs by Bartok; and three songs — "Set Down Servant," "Colorado Trail," and "Loredo" arranged by Shaw, Luboff and Hunter, respectively.

Day Of Dance Workshop Set

ECU News Bureau

David Howard, recognized as one of the nation's foremost ballet masters, will be featured at East Carolina's fifth annual "Day of Dance" workshop on Sunday, April 25 .

The workshop is for dancers at all levels of training and experience and will include classes in ballet, modern dance, jazz and tap dance. Registration is limited to dancers 10 years old or older. Fee is $10 per person which includes a ticket to the East Carolina Dance Theater performance on the previous evening.

Howard will conduct master level ballet classes. Other ballet classes will be taught by ECU faculty members Petrus van Muyden and Patricia Pertalion. Jazz and tap classes will be taught by Paula Johnson, and modern dance will be taught by Patti Weeks. Johnson and Weeks are both ECU faculty dance instructors. Alecia Baucom, an ECU dance graduate, will assist in jazz instruction.

Howard began his teaching career in the U.S. as director of the Harkness School. Before that, he had an extensive performing career in his native England, which included seven years as soloist with the Royal Ballet.

He has also been a soloist with the National Ballet of Canada, president of the National Association for Regional Ballet and techer for the Metropolitan Opera, Jofrey I and II, and the Ballet de Marseilles.

Currently, he teaches at his David Howard School of Ballet in New York, where he has coached dancers such as Gelsey Kirkland, Patricia Bissell, Natalia Markarova, and Cynthia Harvey.

Additional details and pre-registration forms area available from the Department of Drama and Speech, ECU, telephone 75 7-6390.

"DAY OF DANCE" GUEST TEACHER . . . Ballet master David Howard will conduct master level ballet classes at the fifth annual "Day of Dance" workshop to be held at East Carolina University on Sunday, April 25 .

Peters In Recital

Bass-baritone Constantine Timothy Peters of Rockville, Maryland, a senior in the School of Music, East Carolina University, will present his senior voice recital at 9 p.m. Tuesday in the A.J. Fletcher Recital Hall.

He will be accompanied by pianist Joel L. Lane.

For his recital, Peters has chosen two Handel compositions, "Non la diro col labbos" and "Va godendo;" two Schubert songs, "Frehlingsglaube" and "Die Facelle;" Peter Cornelius' "Mein Sahn;" Vincent d'Indy's "Laid Maritime;" Henri Du Parc's "L'invitation au voyage;" and two Benjamin Britten songs, "The Salley Gardens" and "The Foggy, Foggy Dew."

Ayden Worskhop Is Presenting 'Mame'

The Ayden Theater Workshop will present three performances of the "life is a banquet" musical, "Mame." Opening night is Thursday, with the second performance to be given Saturday (both nights at 8 p.m.) and a 2 p.m. matinee performance on April 25.

Admission is $2 (all ages) and tickets will be available at the door.

Winki Phillips of Grifton has the title role of Mame. A veteran member of the Theater Workshop, Mrs. Phillips has previously been seen in workshop productions in such roles as Eleanor in "The Lion in Winter" and as Margaret in "The Lady's Not For Burning." She has also appeared in productions at the Greenville Museum of Art and in dinner theater at the Casablanca.

John Williams has the role of Beauregard Pickett, the Southern gentleman who rescues Mame from the depression. He has appeared in workshop productions of "Blythe Spirit" and "The Lady's Not For Burning."

Peggy Russel as Vera Charles, Mame's bosom buddy, makes her first appearance with the Ayden Theater Workshop. Local audiences will remember her in a number of Kinston Community Theater productions, including a number of musicals.

Others in the cast include workshop regulars Gloria Hooker as Gooch, and Mitchell Riggs as Ito.

ROBERT HAUSE ... will conduct the East Carolina Symphony Orchestra in a spring concert at 8 p.m. Wednesday in Memorial Gym on campus. Korean violinist Sung-Ju Lee will be guest violinist for two compositions on the program. This is the final event in the ECU Music Festival '81-'82. There is no admission charge. (ECU News Bureau Photo by Marianne Baines)

Orchestra, Violinist In Festival Concert

Korean violinist Sung-Ju Lee will be guest soloist with the East Carolina Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Robert Hause, in a spring concert that is the final event of the ECU School of Music Festival '81-82.

The concert, which is free and open to the public on a first-come, first-seated basis, will be at 8 p.m. Wednesday in ECU Memorial Gymnasium on East 10th Street.

Four compositions have been selected for the Wednesday concert. The program will open with the Overture to Wagner's "Rienzi," to be followed by Mendelssohn's "Concerto in E Minor for Violin and Orchestra." The third selection will be Vivaldi's "Spring" from "The Four Seasons," and the concert will conclude with Britten's "The Young Person's Guide to the Orchestra" (Variations and Fugue on the Theme of Purcell).

Ms. Lee is to be the soloist in the Mendelssohn and Vivaldi compositions. In recognition of Sung-Ju Lee's achievements, the national publication of "Musical America" designated her one of the nation's "Most Outstanding Young Artists" in 1978. She has given solo performances at national festivals and has appeared with major symphony orchestras. Her performing tours have taken her across the United States, to Asia and to Europe.

Hause, an ECU School of Music faculty member for a number of years, was also coordinator of this year's festival. An arranger and composer, he has conducted at the Brevard Music Center and Greensboro's Eastern Muisic Festival. He has also conducted members of the London Symphony at the Florida International Music Festival and was former conductor of the Stetson University Orchestra and assistant conductor of the Jacksonville (Florida) Symphony.

Piano Duets Recital

A recital of piano duets by 16 pianists will be presented at 1:30 p.m. Saturday at the Greenville Museum of Art. The recital is part of the ongoing Eastern Carolina Arts Festival.

Pianists to perform are Cinday Wallace, Lisa Wang, Jenny Jones, Kelly Jones, Philippe Aronson, Mary Beckman, Arleen Song, Catherine White, Andrea Wynne, Kelly Moore, Amy Moore, Ingrid Lalik, Carla Hudson, Michelle Deal, Mary Paul Castellow and Melinda McGlohon.

Compositions to be performed are: Beethoven's "Ecossaise in E Major," and von Weber's "Sonatina in C Major," representing the classical period; three works in the romantic period, Faure's "Berceuse," Grieg's "Elfin Dance," and Schumann's "Scenes of Childhood;" and in the contemporary period, Dello Joio's "Family Album," Kabalevsky's "Sonatina," and Gillock's "Sidewalk."

WOOW Classics

Music to soothe listeners weary of taxes and spring winds has been chosen by hostess Karen Hause for light, lyrical, easy listening Sunday night. From 10 p.m. until midnight, Mrs. Hause will play records of suites and concertos on her weekly Sunday classics program aired over WOOW Radio, 1340 on the radio dial. The selections are:

- Mozart's playful favorite, "Eine Kleine Nachtmusick;"
- The Telemann "Suite in F Major for Two Horns and Chamber Orchestra," with horn soloists James Stagliano and Arthur Berv;
- "Piano Concert No. 4 in C minor" by Saint-Saens, with pianist Philippe Entremont and the Philadelphia Orchestra conducted by Eugene Ormandy;
- Ravel's "Daphne and Chloe Suite No. 2;"
- "Bourgeois Gentilhomme" by Richard Strauss; and
- Rodrigo's "Concerto Arangues" with guitarist John Williams.

Hospitality House

WASHINGTON — Emyl Jenkins, author of "Why You're Richer Than You Think," is a guest of Kay Curries's Hospitality House show airing from noon to 12:30 p.m. today over WITN-TV, Channel 7, Washington.

Ms. Jenkins, a resident of Raleigh, is a senior member of the American Society of Appraisers and is a contributing editor to Antiques Dealer Magazine.

Also today, Dr. Tom Speros, a family practitioner from Washington, will join Kay and Mr. and Mrs. John Linton, chairmen of the Beaufort County Cancer Crusade on discussions of cancer research. Another guest is Tom Secor, band director, Washington High School, who spotlights the Band Booster Club.

Details On Annual Rocky Mount Show

ROCKY MOUNT — Artists and craftsmen, professional and amateur, are eligible to enter the 25th Annual Outdoor Art Rocky Mount Arts and Crafts Show Center to be held from 1 to 5 p.m. Sunday, May 9, on the grounds of The Arts Center.

Work in any media is acceptable. Entries will be accepted only from Monday, May 3 through Friday, May 7 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. The Center will also remain open until 9 p.m. Thursday, May 6, to receive entries. All work, excepting winners, must be checked out immediately after the show on May 9, between the hours of 5 and 6 p.m.

An entry fee of $5 per artist is charged. All work submitted must be original — no copies of kit work will be accepted, and work previously shown in the Rocky Mount Outdoor Art Show is unacceptable. A commission of 25 percent will be charged on all sales, including purchase awards.

A total of $5,000 will be available in prizes and purchase awards. Nine first-place awards totaling $900 will be awarded. The Best in Show will be awarded $500. A special feature of this year's 25th anniversary show is a $3,000 purchase award to be used for acquiring original works of art by North Carolina artists for Rocky Mount's new five-story City Hall to open next fall.

Artists interested in more information are to call the director, Julia Jordan, 977-2111, extensions 377 or 378 or write to: Rocky Mount Arts Center, P.O. Box 4031, Rocky Mount, N.C., 27801.

Choral Society Concert Today

FEATURED SOLOISTS . . . Boy soprano Troy Barnes and baritone Edward Glenn, shown here with director Rhonda Fleming, are soloists being featured in the Faure "Requiem" in today's Greenville Choral Society Spring Concert. Bettie Keller, harpist and Charlie Currin, organist, will provide accompaniment. Also on the program is Randal Thompson's "The Peaceable Kingdom." The concert is at 3 p.m. today in Immanuel Baptist Church. Tickets are $2 and can be purchased at the door.

ECU Band Concert

Joel Schultz, a graduate teaching assistant in the school of music, East Carolina University, will conduct the ECU Concert Band in a concert to be presented at 7 p.m. Thursday in the A.J. Fletcher Recital Hall.

The concert by the 58-member band is free and open to the public on a first-come, first-seated basis.

Schultz has chosen compositions by five composers. The program will open with Jerry H. Bilik's "Block M," to be followed by Leonard Bernstein's "Danzon" (the third sailor's dance from the ballet "Fancy Free).

The other selections are John Zdechlik's band setting of "Psalm 46;" Arthur Benjamin's "Jamaican Rumba" arranged by Philip L. Lang; and "American Overture for Band" by Joseph Willcox Jenkins.

Acts Added For Opry House Night

In addition to previously announced performers for the 1982 Opry House Music and Dance Night to be held Tuesday beginning at 6 p.m., announcement has been made of three new acts for the night's show.

Those added are: Matthew Cox, saxophone player; Joe Congleton, pianist; and the Nicky Harris Band. The Harris Band will top off the evening of country-rock music.

The Opry House Music and Dance Night is one of the Eastern Arts Festival Events being sponsored by the Pitt-Greenville Arts Council.

GMA Presents Poets' Theater

The monthly "Best Lunch Theater Ever" of the Greenville Museum of Art for April is presenting a Poets' Theater, with two area poets to be reading from their own poetic works.

At noon Wednesday, Dr. Jim Smith, of the ECU Department of Philosophy, and Dr. Hal Daniel, of the ECU School of Allied Health Professions, will be reading their poems.

The reading will be held in the downstairs gallery of the Museum, located at 802 South Evans Street.

Wellcome Middle Presenting Musical

Students at Wellcome Middle School on Highway 11-13 north are busy in final rehearsals for their first musical to be presented to the public at 8 p.m. on Friday.

The musical, "Let George Do It," is a musical biography of George Washington performed through song and dance. The public presentation is priced at $1 for studnets and $1.50 for adults.

A performance also will be given to students during a school assembly to be held at 8:45 a.m. Friday.

Barbara Plummer directs. Michael Hicks will portray George Washington, and Colier Mullins will have the role of King George the Third.

Chosen Worst

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Each year the Golden Raspberry Awards are presented to the "worst achievements in film" as determined by members of the Golden Raspberry Foundation made up of young filmmakers and fans who see more than 50 films.

ASSISTANCE GIVEN ... dance instructor Petrus van Muyden, left, helps dancer Thomas Bell assume the proper position to use in a particular dance step.

ECU Dance Theater

Three Evenings Of Dance An Arts Festival Highlight

Text And Photos By Jerry Raynor

Three dozen plus young dancers, four instructors and a dance teaching assistant of the East Carolina Dance Theater, Department of Drama and Speech,are excited about their forthcoming "Evenings of Dance," one of the highlight events in this spring's Eastern Carolina Arts Festival.

The three evening performances of dance to be presented on Thursday, Friday and Saturday will mark the first opportunity for the dancers to perform on the spacious stage of the newly renovated McGinnis Theater in the Messick Theater Arts Center.

"Our dance program coming up is the first one we will dance using the new computerized lighting control. It's also our first appearance in McGinnis since 1976," said Patricia Pertalion, dance instructor whose work with dance at ECU dates back to its beginning in 1964.

Curtain time is 8:15 p.m. each evening. Tickets are priced at $3 each (all ages) and are available from the theater's box office, open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.daily. Tickets may also be reserved by calling 757-6390.

The four ECU choreographers/dance instructors have created an array of ten dances ranging over the spectrum from classical pas de quatre to a spoof on punk rock. Music used for the dances is as varied as the style of dances being presented and include works by Vivaldi, Chopin, Gershwin, Pugni, as well as more contemporary work by the Paul Winter Consort, Emerson, Lake and Palmer, and Mannheim Steamroller.

• Petrus van Muyden, the Dance Theater's ballet master, has choreographed a romantic pas de deux in contemporary ballet form, "Claire de Lune," and "Grand Tarantella," a perky, fast-paced ballet derived from character ballet. van Muyden has choreographed for numerous ballet, opera and operetta companies worldwide, as well as for television in Europe and the U.S.

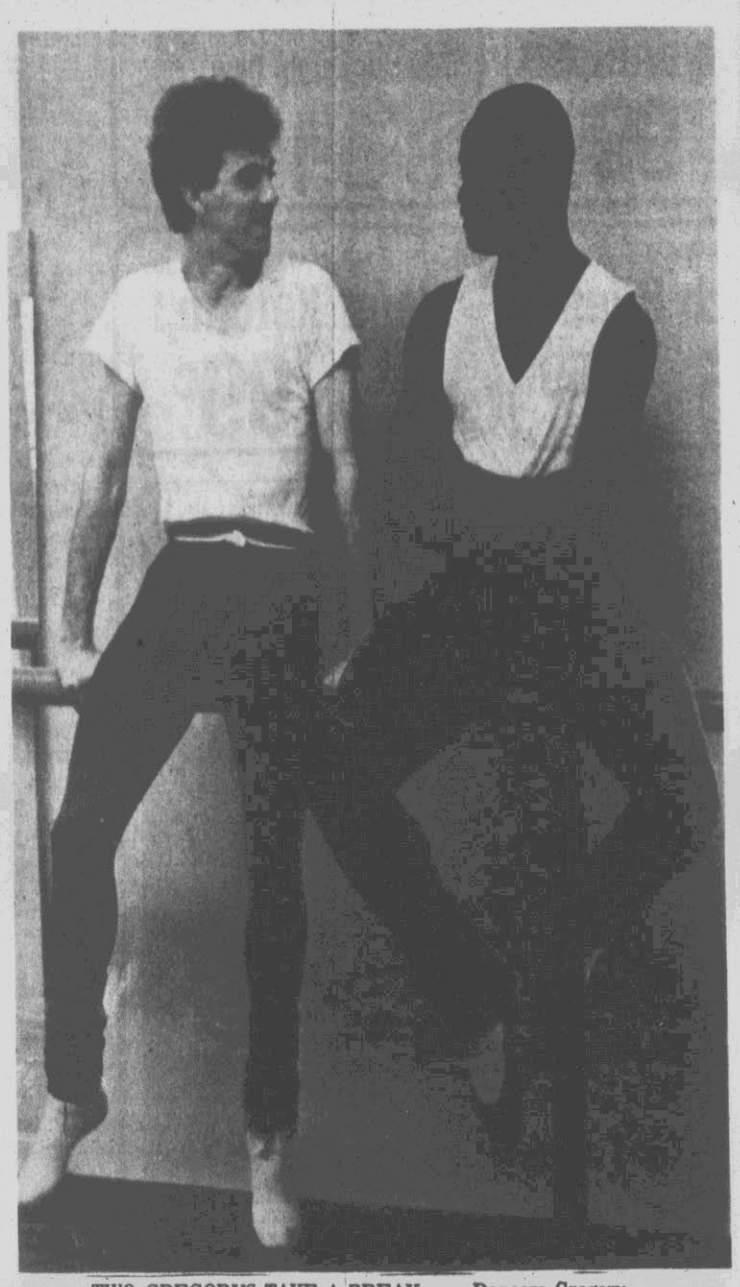

• Faculty choreographer Paula Johnson is the creator of "Punkrocker," a dance arranged, according to Johnson, to "the most irreverent, outrageuos music possible. The selection I used is a rock and roll version of Tchaikovskey's 'March Militaire' from 'The Nutcracker,'" she said. "I feel the world is taking the punk rock movement too seriously, and it's time for a lighter look at it."

• "Court Dances in a Magnetic Field," a dance about people being drawn toward or repelled from one another is one of the works by Patricia Weeks. Her background includes work with the Virginia Tanner School for Creative Dance and extensive work in rhythmic analysis.

• Patricia Pertalion, a veteran of the New Orleans Opera Ballet and now dance coordinator at ECU, has choreographed two pieces for the program. One is entitled "Spaces . . . Between Us," and the other is "Homages to Isadora." Pertalion's "Homages" is inspired by the movement qualities and photographs of the legendary dancer Isadora Duncan.

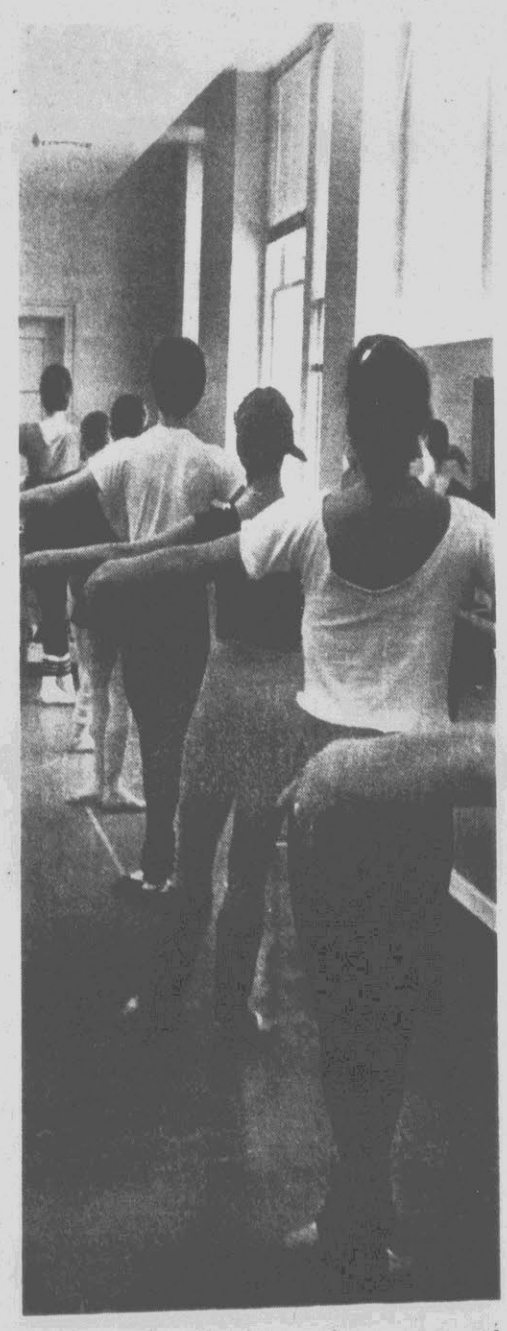

PATRICIA WEEKS ... rehearses a sequence from a dance she has choreographed and will dance in, entitled "A Matter of Choice."

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, APR. 18, 1982

YOUR DAILY Horoscope
from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A beautiful day for meditation and studying a philosophy of life under which to operate in the days ahead. Take time to make plans that could give you more abundance.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Talk over with loved one how to have better relations and more happiness in the future. Exercise your good judgment.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You have to be more sensible where practical plans are concerned to gain your most cherished aims. Be logical.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Plan what to do for those who have done you favors and show your appreciation. Plan time for personal pleasure.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Engage in a new kind of recreation that will bring you more pleasure today. Strive for increased happiness.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Contact friends and discuss important plans you have in mind. Be more precise in handling your personal affairs.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) A new approach at new ideas will make them work more successfully for you. Allow time for recreational activities.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Make those changes in your environment that will be helpful to your welfare. Take no risks with your reputation.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Good day to analyze what you most want to achieve in the future and make plans to carry through successfully.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Study every facet of your life and then gain advice from advisers you trust. Express happiness with closest tie.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Attend to regular routines early in the day so you'll have more time for recreation later. Be more cheerful.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Taking part in public affairs can prove most satisfying and interesting today. Make this a worthwhile day.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Your hunches are accurate now, so be sure to follow them. Allow time to engage in favorite hobby with congenials.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will have an uncanny knack for coming up with the truth in any given situation but could be harsh in judgment unless taught early in life to have more compassion for others. Politics would be a good field here.

FORECAST FOR MONDAY, APR. 19, 1982

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You are able to work out a better financial arrangement early in the day. Later you become more interested in the social side of life. Make sure your activities are well organized.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Tackle every angle of a difficult problem in the morning and get excellent results. Cut down on expenses wherever you can.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Know what your true aims are and then go after them in a positive way. Show more interest in outside events.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Get together with associates and make plans to be more productive in the future. Improve your appearance.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You need a more worldly viewpoint if you wish to expand in career activities at this time. Be alert.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Contact good friends who can assist you in gaining your most cherished wishes. Be wise and careful in spending your money.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Morning is best for widening your vistas and gaining your aims. Later confer with influential person for support you need.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Handle important business affairs early in the day so you'll have time to study new projects later. Think constructively.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Come to a better understanding with associates and cooperate more with them. Keep commitments you have made.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Get busy at work ahead of you and gain benefits. You are able to make rapid progress at this time. Be wise.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Talks with associates can produce excellent results at this time. Exercise more patience in handling a civic matter.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Don't neglect to look into new interests that are appealing to you. Show more affection for family members.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Have those talks with allies and plan how to become more successful in the days ahead. Make this a most productive day.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . be or she will be one who can easily gain the right perspective in business matters, so send to the right schools and this can become a successful and happy life. Teach early in life to be more understanding of others.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Life As It's Lived

By GAIL MICHAELS

Freud was among the first to note that women occasionally form intense emotional attachments to their doctors. Freud, of course, had an involved psychological explanation for this phenomenon. I have a much simpler one: gratitude.

Women fall in love with doctors who don't make them wait. This doesn't happen often. But the very rarity of the situation is what makes doctors who do know how to schedule appointments so appealing. In my lifetime, I have been madly in love with the members of one pediatric practice and of one family medicine practice.

That's it. They're the only doctors who actively tried not to let me wait more than 20 or 30 minutes a visit. They obviously cared about me. They all valued my time. More important, they valued my sanity.

The doctor I have now does not value my time. And he most definitely cares nothing for my sanity, or he wouldn't let his office staff make me wait with my energetic toddler for an hour and a half in a waiting room with nothing designed to entertain children except two "Sweet Pickles" books.

At best, this situation is dangerous, because the less toddlers have to entertain them, the more they find to entertain themselves. Zachary, for instance, found the water cooler.

I was not surprised. Zachary has a strong affinity for water. Just the day before he had gone wading in his tennis shoes in a decorative fountain in a Raleigh clothing store. The minute he saw liquid spurt from the doctor's fountain, he launched an investigation. The on button was within his reach. He sprayed two nurses and soaked the floor in front of the receptionist's window before I could stop him.

I entertained him as long as I could with the pictures and old library cards in my wallet. Meanwhile, several people with minor ailments were worked into the doctor's schedule ahead of us. After 45 minutes I didn't care whether or not Zachary destroyed the place. He tore the covers off the magazines. He locked the front door, and two patients and a pharmaceutical salesman had to stand in gale-force winds for 15 minutes before they were discovered.

When Zachary's name was called, I felt like a mental patient who had had one of the laces on his straitjacket loosened. I shouldn't have been so relieved. It is the practice of many doctors to have a nurse remove the child's clothes 10 minutes before the doctor's entrance into the examinaing room. Zachary is not one to sit quietly on the waterproofed examining table for such a long period of time. He preferred to bounce off the walls. Naturally, all this exercise stimulated his system. Within minutes, he had created a puddle in the middle of the floor and had stepped in it in his sock feet.

When the doctor finally arrived, Zachary and I were playing tug-of-war with the Enfamil samples stored under the sink. The doctor gave him a quick examination and concluded that there was nothing wrong with him.

"But he has a fever," I protested.

"And he's pulling at his ears."

"He's probably just scratching."

For the ordeal I paid $14 . This doctor has big brown eyes and gorgeous thick hair. He's usually very nice. But I don't love him. At this point I'm not sure that I like him.

FOUND NO PROOF

THE HAGUE, Netherlands (AP) — The Dutch government has found no proof of a government plot in the slaying of four Dutch journalists in El Salvador, but will protest the Salvadoran government's refusal to let a Dutch investigator question soldiers involved in the case, Foreign Minister Max van der Stoel says.

Award-Winning Furniture Designs Offer Variety

AP Newsfeatures

There are Academy Awards, Pulitzer Prizes, and a host of other awards for accomplishment in the United States. But until recently there was no award to honor the best furniture designs.

That lack has been partially remedied with the Daphne Awards — established in 1981 to honor achievement in hardwood furniture design.

This year's recently announced winning designs covered a wide spectrum. Consumers who might wish to go shopping for a Daphne prize winner to take home would find quite a diversity in looks, price and place of purchase.

Interestingly enough, a majority of the citations went to those who produce only a small portion of the furniture sold in the United States each year. Of 26 mentions, nine went to furniture craftsmen working mainly out of tiny woodworking shops, often in obscure rural localities.

Six awards went to manufacturers with small production shops, just a few steps removed from the craftsmen, and five went to companies that normally distribute their small production through designers.

The remaining winners or finalists were manufacturers and designers whose products are normally sold through furniture and department stores where most Americans buy their new furniture.

The dominance of small companies and designers as award winners is not surprising and has a parallel in the apparel field, according to Fred Calabrese, an architect and design professor at the Parsons School of Design and chairman of the judges' panel.

The newest ideas in apparel often come from a small group of avant-garde designers with a limited clientele. Then, others take up their ideas and translate them into more commercial products. The same process appears to occur in home furnishings, said Calabrese.

"Many larger manufacturers try to be all things to all people, so their designs are naturally somewhat diluted," he noted.

Calabrese, however, believes that some of those who market products often underestimate the intelligence and awareness of the general public. He would like to see some of the more advanced products made widely available.

Interesting new products are often too expensive for most people to buy. Sinee they buy what is available in their price range, consumers may seem to be supporting the idea that adventurous designs won't sell, while they are really reflecting the absence of such products at reasonable prices, said Calabrese.

One advantage of an awards program is that it exposes the newer, more interesting designs to a wider public and may stimulate greater sales for these designs. Such a state of affairs is the best way to persuade manufacturers to offer more such products, he added.

Among the Daphne award winners, John Saldino's upholstered ash sofa for Dunbar was cited as best of show and best occasional seating in the designer showroom category.

Other Daphne winners were: Walter Bahno and Jeffry Blaesing for Thomasville's Country Collection of light ash wood bedroom, dining-room and living-room furniture; Leif Blodee, designer, Kimball International, for his oak-frame stackable dining chair; Chris Bergelin, White Furniture Co., for a mahogany chest and desk; Marion Pratt, Councill Craftsmen, for a Chippendale-style side table in mahogany, and Dan Droz for his oak and glass table adjustable to coffee table, desk or dining height.

Q. — We have a fairly old refrigerator. It is not self-defrosting. Lately it seems to be building up more frost on the inside than it used to. Somebody told us that the refrigerator door probably is not airtight, but it seems all right to us. I remember reading a long time ago about a test that could be made with a $1 bill, but don't remember how it works? Can you tell me?

A. — It's a test that can be made with any bill — $1 or $10. Just close the door on a bill that is placed so that you can still hold part of it. Now pull gently on the bill. If it moves or comes out without opening the door, there is a space letting in air. When you pull on the bill and it does not move or come out, try it in several other places before deciding whether air is getting inside. If so, a new gasket or seal around the edges of the door will usually correct the trouble.

Q. — I have a home-made wooden deck behind our house. It was painted some years ago and now is getting a bit messy. What I would like to do is to refinish it with a wood preservative that has a little color in it. Can this be done without taking off the paint? If not, can I get off the paint with a regular paint remover?

A. — You cannot apply a colored wood preservative over the paint. Yes, you probably can get off the old paint with a remover, but it would be one tough chore. It would be much better to scrape off any loose paint and get the surface in shape for a new coat of paint. Use an outdoor deck enamel or one of the other outdoor paints which can be walked on.

Q. — We have just moved into a house which has kitchen cabinets that apparently had a clear finish on them many years ago. We want to refinish them with varnish. Can it be applied right over the old finish, which is in pretty good shape?

A. — Yes, but be certain all dirt and grime are removed from the surface of the cabinets. One of the regular household cleaners will probably handle the job, but if not, follow by rubbing the wood with denatured alcohol, being certain there is plenty of ventilation in the room. Then you can apply the varnish.

(The techniques of using varnish, lacquer, shellac, stain, bleach, remover, etc., are detailed in Andy Lang's booklet, "Wood Finishing in the Home," which can be obtained by sending 50 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P. O. Box 477, Huntington, NY 11743. Questions of general interest will be answered in the column, but individual correspondence cannot be undertaken.)

Q. — About 12 years ago, we wallpapered our recreation room in the basement. It turned out fine. Recently, we decided to redo the wallpaper, but knowing how difficult it is to get wallpaper off wallboard, we just papered over the previous paper. Now we have several bubbles — 2 to 3 inches long and about 1 inch wide. Do we have to tear off the second layer of wallpaper or is there some other solution.?

A. — Take a razor blade and cut slits in the paper where the bubbles are. That will let out the trapped air, after which you will have to do the best you can to reglue that portion of the paper to the wall. If you are very careful, you can do a neat job and the repair will not be noticed. Be especially certain to roll down the patched areas so the same thing doesn't happen again.

Q. — Is there any way to soundproof an apartment? Is there paneling with a backing or some such product? We called a man in and he said the folks above would not hear us, but we would still hear them, which made no sense to us. Any advice would be welcomed.

A. — Lots of mail on this subject in recent months. It is easier to keep sound within an apartment than keep it out. If you put acoustical tile on the ceiling, it will — as you have been told — do more to prevent sound from going upstairs than to keep upstairs sounds from coming down. But it will help somewhat. If you can get the cooperation of your neighbors and explain the situation, perhaps some padding under their rug (do they have one?) may be of help. However, some sounds — such as the creaking of boards — may still come through.

Property Week Is Proclaimed

Mayor Percy Cox proclaimed April 19-24 as Private Property Week here.

Cox urged area residents to join the Greenville-Pitt County Board of Realtors and members of the national association "who are setting aside this special time to remind us all that we are a free people with the right to own real property and the obligation to protect that right."

Cox said the right to private ownership of real property has generated other liberties, including the free enterprise system and political freedom.

"In many countries where citizens are denied the right to own real estate," he said, "they are also denied such rights as free speech, peaceful assembly and voting for the candidates of their choice—privileges that Americans often take for granted."

He said the local Board of Realtors, together with Realtors and Realtor-associates throughout the country, are observing Private Property Week, "a tradition established in 1956 to mark the celebration of private property ownership and the protection of the rights that attend this ownership."

PLAN YOUR HOME — The Sierra

Design Blends Shelter, Surroundings

By Jerry Bishop

For the family that needs shelter but loves nature, the Sierra, today's featured home achieves a pleasing unity of both. Indoors and outdoors mingle in the design, which is capable of virtual camouflage into a woodland setting.

Exposed stone, wood siding, and a cedar deck create exterior harmony. Inside, the emphasis is on air, space, and light.

While the foyer helps protect the living room from entry traffic, it also allows an immediate view of the room, a spacious area for family and friends. Clerestory windows heighten the sense of space, and a wood-burning fireplace with stone hearth promises cheery warmth in cold weather. The heavily glassed rear wall of the living room overlooks a cedar deck, and double doors invite merging of deck and room for plentiful party space.

Also accessible to the deck is the large kitchen, featuring indoor dining space and sliding glass doors for easy preparation of outdoor meals. The kitchen is edged by a highly functional hallway with storage closet and carport entry, and a full bath/laundry combination is opposite.

For entertaining, the front facing dining room exudes formality and is close to the kitchen for convenience.

Sleeping quarters are nestled to the left of living areas and manage to be easily reached but sufficiently private. Two sizable bedrooms are separated by two full baths, one private to the double-closeted master bedroom and one handy to the living room.

On the lower level, the design outlines a storage room, utility room, another full bath, and a recreation room or third bedroom. Accessible from this level is an unusual covered patio with fireplace.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

"Fasteners" is a word that encompasses a large variety of items used for holding things together.

Since gypsum boards and other kinds of wallboards came into general use many years ago, builders and do-it-yourselfers alike have had to make the acquaintance of special types of fasteners that could be attached to so-called hollow surfaces — that is, thin walls with nothing behind most of them.

Such fasteners fall into the category of anchors or bolts which grip more securely when they are tightened in place. One of the most common of these is the toggle bolt. After it is pushed through a pre-drilled hole, its two wings open up behind the wall and grip it firmly. When this kind is used, the bolt must first be passed through the object being attached to the wall. The toggle bolt can usually be used only once, since the toggle part of the gadget falls behind the wall when the bolt is removed. There are variations of the toggle bolt, but all operate on the same principle. Many expand inside the wall as you drive screws into them and will stay in place if the screws are taken out, thus permitting them to be used more than once.

Should you need to attach something to an especially thin hollow wall, the expandable kind can be used if you chose those made for that purpose. They usually can be bought on a card that specifies they are made for hollow doors.

Whenever you can attach a heavy object directly to a wall stud, do so. Some persons can quickly find a stud by rapping the wall with their knuckles. A "solid" noise tell when a stud has been located, a "hollow" sound indicates a between-studs area. If you can acquire the knack of doing this, it will stand you in good stead many times when performing do-it-yourself chores. Other methods of finding studs involve magnetic devices, nailheads along the baseboard and various others, some of which seem to work for some people and some of which do not.

Q. Last year my broccoli flowered without forming heads. What did I do wrong? (K.P., Durham)

A. Setting out broccoli too late or letting it get under stress will cause premature flowering. Broccoli forms the best heads when it grows at a steady rate in cool weather. Plant about March 1 in your area.

Q. Is there any sure way of killing bamboo? (B.S., Hickory)

A. It can be done, but it's tough because bamboo has such an extensive root system. Cut off the tops and spray the new shoots that emerge with Roundup. Keep spraying as long as new shoots keep appearing. You may be at it for a year or two but don't give up.

Q. There are a large number of insects that look like honey bees at my bird feeder. There are so many of them they seem to have chased the birds away. What can I do? (B.T., Charlotte)

A. The insects at your bird feeder probably are honey bees. In the early spring, honey bees begin to search very enthusiastically for pollen which they feed to the young bees in the hive. Sometimes the bees are so eager that they make mistakes and collect things that are somewhat similar to pollen. Some of the small particles from the bird seed in your feeder are the same size and color as is pollen. The best solution is to wait a week or so and the bees will realize that they have made a mistake and will no longer visit your bird feeder.

Q. This is my first year as a vegetable gardener. I've selected a site in full sun and had the soil tested. What other advice do you have? (Mrs. W.S., Albemarle)

A. You are off to a good start. Follow the soil recommendations on lime and fertilizer. Don't be too hasty about planting warm season cropos, such as corn and beans. Wait until the soil warms up. Use quality seed and good transplants. A good transplant is one that is stocky, medium sized, green, well rooted and free of insects and disease. Prepare soil carefully, getting rid of clods. Don't plant too deeply. Irrigate during dry periods. Quality vegetables are those that grow rapidly and continually, not those subject to periodic drought stress.

Q. Last year I set out a dogwood which died during the summer. I've set out another one and want to prevent the same thing from happening. Any suggestions? (R.M., Elizabeth City)

A. Mulch it with three to four inches of organic matter, such as pine needles, decayed bark or compost. This will help hold moisture, discourage weeds and, maybe most important of all, provide some protection from a lawn mower. Also fertilize this spring and again this summer. Use two pints of a complete fertilizer, such as 8-8-8, for a four-foot tree. Increase the fertiizer if the tree is larger; decrease it if the tree is smaller.

Q. I set out some asparagus last spring. Will I be able to harvest any of it this spring? (M.S., Chapel Hill)

A. Yes. You should be able to harvest a few spears. However, don't expect a full harvest season — four to six weeks — until next year.

Invalid's Visitors Cause More Pain Than Pleasure

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1982 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I am in my 89th year and in poor health. I live alone and seldom get out, so friends keep wanting to come visit me. I don't want to seem ungrateful, but, Abby, it is such a burden I would rather they didn't come.

Let me explain. A hostess is expected to offer her guest a cup of tea and perhaps a sandwich or some sweets. This imposes a hardship on me because I am badly crippled with arthritis and can barely prepare my own meals. I also have diabetes and never have sweets or bakery goods on hand.

I would be interested in hearing how other elderly and disabled people feel about having company.

NO COMPANY, THANK YOU

DEAR NO COMPANY: I know a person who handles visiting an elderly or disabled person this way: She calls and says, "I will come on one condition — that you do not lift a finger! I will bring the refreshments."

Then she arrives with a picnic basket containing a thermos of tea, an assortment of refreshments, cups, saucers, linen placemats and napkins. All the hostess has to do is open the door and enjoy the company. Now wouldn't that kind of company be a pleasure?

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I am a 29-year-old divorced woman. When I was 22, I had a short affair with a very mature boy who was only 15. After that I discovered that I really got turned on by boys between the ages of 15 and 20.

Some older guys still turn me on, but most teen-agers are more manly than men in their 30s.

I would like to know if this is normal for a woman my age, or do I need to see a shrink?

CRADLE ROBBER

DEAR ROBBER: According to the most authoritative studies on sexual behavior, the male reaches his sexual peak in his teen years. And from then on, it's downhill.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: We have a precious new daughter-in-law. She and our son are head over heels in love. She has many fine qualities, but, Abby, her grammar is atrocious! For example, she says, "We seen," instead of, "We saw." And, "Him and me went," instead of, "He and I went."

I would like to correct her in a loving way, not for my sake, but for hers. She is barely 21, and if I could find a gentle way to correct her, I'm sure it would save my son a lot of embarrassment later on, because he surely must notice how bad her grammar is.

I don't want to mention it to my son because I don't want him to think I am finding fault with his wife. I have always had a wonderful relationship with him and don't want to do anything to alienate him or offend his wife. My husband feels as I do, and suggested I write to you.

CARING MOTHER-IN-LAW

DEAR CARING: Don't offer your new daughter-in-law any well-meaning help by correcting her grammar. If your son is satisfied with his wife, and apparently he is, that's all that matters.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Tell "Save the Fish" to cheer up. Next time her husband brings home a fish, let her think of all the smaller fish that would have been eaten later if her husband hadn't caught it, and of all the smaller fish that fish had already eaten.

In his autobiography, Benjamin Franklin relates how he resolved to be a vegetarian because he didn't believe living creatures should die so he could eat. Then he realized that fish eat each other regularly. He continued to eat fish.

SCARED MINNOW FROM PA.

ASK OMAR

Q.—We play a five-card major system. The other day I picked up:

♠10xxx ♡AK9x ◇AK ♣10xx

After two passes, I opened one heart in third seat. Partner responded one no trump, which we play as forcing, and I passed to show my balanced hand. In the end, we achieved less than a maximum result, and partner took me to task for being antisystemic. I might add that we had a partial of 70 points. Your comments, please.—D. Lerner, New Haven, Conn.

(This question has been awarded the weekly prize.)

A.—I don't know what happened on the hand after your pass, but I must say that I agree with your partner. You have flouted a basic tenet of five-card major methods for no good reason.

When you play five-card majors with a forcing no trump, there is only one time when you pass partner's forcing no trump response. That is when you have opened a sub-minimum, balanced hand in third seat. No matter what you do thereafter, partner will always presume that you have the sort of hand you promised by your initial actions, and he will base his bidding and, if the opponents buy the hand, his defense, on that presumption.

On the hand you submit, there is no reason why you should depart from your methods — not even the part score is an excuse. You have a full opening bid — a very sound one, as a matter of fact, because it contains four defensive tricks. Therefore, you should open one club, and you will be ideally situated no matter what partner responds.

I am all for taking liberties when you have a part score, but not with one of the fundamentals of bidding structure. If you want to take advantage of the part score, I would not mind if you opened the hand with one no trump. The two tens and the fact that your points are all prime make your hand worth more than 14 points. Besides, partner will take into account that, with a part score, your no trump range is likely to be a little, shall we say, elastic.

Q.—How would you play this combination if you need only two tricks from the suit?

Dummy—J 6 4 3

Declarer—A 10 7 2

Entries to and fro are no problem.—L. Diamond, New York City

A.—There is a safety play that caters to this situation. Cash the ace first. If an honor drops, you have two tricks by force. If not, lead low to the jack. If your left-hand opponent started with four in the suit headed by both honors, he must rise with an honor or the jack will win, and now you must score two tricks. If he shows out, dummy's jack forces an honor from right-hand opponent. Enter dummy and lead toward your ten to make sure of a second trick in the suit.

On The Young Side

Varsity and junior varsity cheerleaders have been selected to promote school spirit for the 1982-83 school year. Tryouts for the junior varsity squad were held April 7. Eight were chosen from among thirty students by a panel of six judges. To insure fairness, the judges were all unrelated to the Greenville school system.

Members of the varsity squad, all returning cheerleaders from this year, are Alice Dawkins, Lisa Kitrell, Caroline Lee, Lori Little, Kim McGlohon, Harriet Morris and Wendi Terrell. Tryouts for the 25 applicants were held April 8.

Each girl was required to learn one dance routine, three chants, a gymnastic stunt, two standard cheers and an original cheer for tryouts. In addition, varsity cheerleaders had to do a mount. Tryout sessions were closed to outsiders and were conducted in groups of four.

Members of the marching band auxillary unit were selected after two weeks of tryouts March 29-April 8. Judges were Tom Goolsby and Joel Schultz, director and assistant director, respectively, of the ECU Marching Pirates.

To become a member of the flag squad or rifle corps, students had to learn the fundamentals of holding a rifle or flag, marching techniques and a standard routine. Drum majors were required to learn directing motions, marching commands and voice commands.

The main functions of the marching band auxillary unit will be to perform at football games, parades and special exhibitions during the 1982-83 school year. Dr. Ben Ferguson is the director of the marching band.

The flag squad will consist of Regina Hathaway, captain; Myra Flemming, co-captain; La Sonya Austin; Lisa Brann; Jackie Carter; Felicia Chance; Glenda Daniels; Lisa Dixon; Sharon Glast; Jewel Hardy; Sarah Hu; Teresa Johnson; Toni Staton and Monica Wright. Deborah Carter and Cassandra Short are alternates.

The spring musical "South Pacific" by Rodgers and Hammerstein will be performed April 23-25 at 8 p.m. in the Rose High Gym. Tickets are $3 in advance and $4 at the door.

ECU Delegation Attends Meeting

ECU News Bureau

Seven students and a faculty member represented East Carolina University at the 1982 Phi Beta Lambda State Leadership Conference in Charlotte.

They were Dr. Francis Daniels of the ECU School of Tecnology faculty and seven students majoring in business education, accounting, marketing or office administration — all members of the ECU's Omicron chapter.

Phi Beta Lambda is a national organization for students in postsecondary schools and colleges enrolled in business, office or teacher education programs.

The organization's purpose is to provide opportunities for students to develop vocational competencies in business and office occupations and business teacher education, while promoting a sense of civic and personal responsibility.

Dr. Daniels is a faculty adviser to ECU's Omicron chapter.

Student delegates included Jodie Faust Louya of Greenville, a junior accounting major and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald J. Faust. She was elected N.C. Phi Beta Lambda state vice president for 1982-83 and placed in the conference's mamagement and accounting competitive events.

Science Fair Set Friday

ECU News Bureau

The Eastern Regional Science Fair will be held at East Carolina University on Friday in Minges Coliseum.

Sponsored by the ECU Department of Science Education, the fair is the only regional science fair in North Carolina and is expected to draw more than 300 entries from junior and senior high school students. In addition, more than 2,500 guests are expected to view the exhibits when the fair is opened to the public at noon.

The fair will be directed by Dan Nicholson of the department of science education. Awards wil be given for the best projects representing biological, physical, earth and technological sciences. The awards presentation begins at 2:30 p.m.

A supplementary program for the youth attending the fair will include a glass-blowing demonstration. Refreshments and snacks will be available.

PEUGEOT

A car that captures energy lost in the tailpipe and recycles it to give you "free" extra power: The Peugeot turbocharged diesel.

"Free" extra power: the Peugeot turbocharged diesel

The result is the best of both worlds: more passing power, yet the miserly thirst of a diesel engine. Thirteen percent more horsepower than the normal diesel.

The source of this extra power is free. The turbocharger is driven by exhaust gases that would otherwise be expelled through the tailpipe and disappear into thin air.

Dazzling New Listings!

Uncompromised attention to detail characterizes the renovation of this historic country-side residence. The very finest materials and workmanship have been employed to refurbish the old and also provide the conveniences expected of the highest quality homes available. Authentic stained glass windows, original oak and pine flooring, 3 functional fireplaces, solid doors, Birdseye Maple bannisters, beveled glass windows and mirrors have all been handsomely preserved. A completely remodeled kitchen with handmade cabinets, pine flooring, superb Jenn-Aire and Kitchen Aid appliances and attractive lighting accents is evidence of near perfection. Solid brass hardware and light fixtures have been installed throughout. Heating and air conditioning, wiring and plumbing are all new. In a word, nothing has been overlooked... no expense spared...and it shows. This rare property is located a few miles from Greenville and is surrounded by nearly an acre of country tranquility. Call our office for full details. $160,000.

An exquisite home for those who refuse to sacrifice. Well-defined traditional lines enclose an expansive living area composed of a massive living room matched with a genuine stone fireplace and track lighting. Formal and casual dining areas are abundant and convenient to the gourmet pullman style kitchen. Bedroom and bath areas are generous and logically placed. There's also a hobby room, a 2 car garage, a private library which help make this unique home quite versatile. Located in one of Greenville's finest areas. $158,500.

BEACON'S REACH

The villages of Pine Knoll Shores West, near Morehead City have become well-known for their variety of exceptional seaside lifestyles. And now, we've brought them all together under the new name, Beacon's Reach — to offer you the most far-reaching new idea in oceanfront community living anywhere on the coast of North Carolina.

Situated near Cape Lookout Lighthouse, on the island of Bogue Banks, Beacon's Reach offers a unique "Vacation Colony" environment in the midst of an ancient Maritime Forest. Here, the word "vacation" takes on a whole new meaning, and becomes an all-encompassing, permanent way of life.

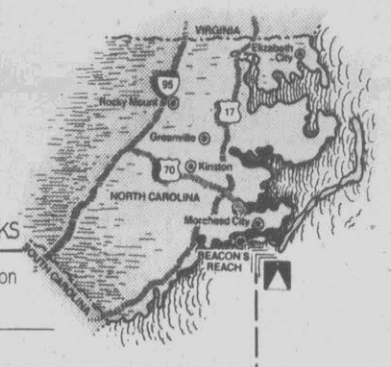

With prices from $90,000, we offer a superb choice of vacation lifestyles in several distinct village clusters. Everything from beachfront lots and condominiums among the massive, stable dunes, to quiet soundside residences along the peaceful shores of Bogue Banks.

As a resident, you'll enjoy all the amenities for which the Outer Banks are famous. And then some.

We want you to come live at Beacon's Reach, so send for more information. A limited number of rental accommodations are also available if you'd like to make a preliminary visit.

Beacon's Reach.

Please send me information about Beacon's Reach.

Shakespeare's Enchanted Love Story

"A Midsummer Night's Dream," perhaps the most popular comedy in the English language, will air Monday, Apr. 19 (8-11 p.m.) on PBS, as the 20th production to be broadcast on The Shakespeare Plays, a six-year series which will eventually present all 37 of Shakespeare's dramatic works.

The play tells a complex, comic story of love gone wildly awry in an enchanted forest, of quarrels between fairy royalty, of spells misplaced, of a weaver given the head of an ass on a moonlit midsummer's eve. In this production, Helen Mirren is a luminous Titania, the Queen of the Fairies and consort to the darker Oberon, played by Peter McEnery.

Into a forest, dizzyingly upended by a quarrel between the fairy king and queen, stumble four misplaced Athenian lovers — Demetrius and Helena (Nicky Henson, Cherith Mellor) and Lysander and Hermia (Robert Lindsay, Pippa Guard). As luck would have it, a band of Athenian workmen, led by a loudmouthed weaver named Bottom (Brian Glover), are rehearsing a play in the forest on that same midsummer night. The resulting blow is one of the best-loved tales in all theater.

Also starring are Phil Daniels as Oberon's mischievous servant Puck; and Nigel Davenport and Estelle Kohler as Duke Theseus and his betrothed Hippolyta.

In the 400 years or so since it was written, "A Midsummer Night's Dream" has lent itself to an immense spectrum of visual styles: everything from extravagant Victorian visions of fairyland with live rabbits hopping about the set, to the sparse, stark white gymnasium of Peter Brook's famous 1970 Royal Shakespeare Company production.

The Shakespeare Plays presentation returns, in a sense, to the 19th century vision; the enchanted wood is based largely on the engravings of Gustave Dore, with a full moon hanging overhead, and much of the action takes place around (and, on occasion, in) a forest pool. The costumes are Elizabethan — as they would have been in a production of Shakespeare's own day — and the fairies, bedraggled, dank and mud-spattered, look like Elizabethan courtiers who have been left out in the rain for several months.

PETER McENERY AND HELEN MIRREN star as the fairy King and Queen, Oberon and Titania, in Shakespeare's romantic comedy, "A Midsummer Night's Dream," airing Monday, Apr. 19 (8-11 p.m.), on PBS-TV.

Michele Will Tell

Q: Could you tell me if Judy Garland and Mickey Rooney played in all the Andy Hardy series or did Polly Benedict play in some? F. HUDSON, HICKORY, N.C.

A: Rooney appeared in all the Hardy films, while MGM used them as a vehicle to launch many of their starlets — Judy Garland, Lana Turner and Donna Reed to name a few. Ann Rutherford appeared as Polly Benedict, Andy's often neglected girlfriend in many of the Hardy films.

Q: Could you please tell me what Danielle Brisebois does in her spare time? Also, where can I write to her? TAMMY TEMLY, LEXINGTON, N.C.

A: In her spare time Danielle likes to rollerskate. She enjoys appearing on telethons for such charities as muscular dystrophy, arthritis and Easter Seals. She loves "pretty clothes, little toys, and eating between meals." Her mother is a former singer and dancer — dad is a corporate computer and electronics instructor. Write to her in c o "Archie Bunker's Place," CBS-TV, 51 W. 52 Street, New York, N.Y., 10019.

Q: I would like to know what network first aired "The Andy Griffith Show," and for how long. TIMOTHY RICKETTS, WILSON, N.C.

A: CBS-TV first aired "The Andy Griffith Show" on October 3, 1960. The series had an eight-year run on the network.

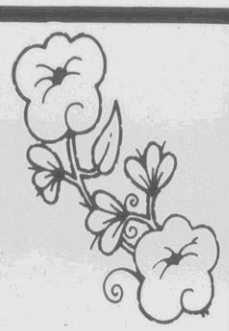

Q: Could you please settle something for me? My grandmother says Nell Carter, (the maid) on "Gimme A Break," played Shirley on "What's Happening." I say she didn't. Who's right? SHAWN MAYNARD, GOLDSBORO, N.C.

A: We're going to have to side with you in this dispute — the role of Shirley the waitress on "What's Happening!!" was created by actress Shirley Hemphill.

Q: Please give me some information on the man who played Michael Reynolds in the movie "Washington Mistress." MRS. W. BRAY, FT. BRAGG, N.C.

A: He's thirty-eight-year-old Richard Jordan, who catapulted to fame via the mini-series "The Captains and the Kings." Richard has also starred in "Les Miserables," "The Defection of Simas Kudirka" and "The Bunker." His feature film credits include "The Friends of Eddie Coyle" and "Raise the Titanic." A Harvard graduate, Jordan was captivated by the city of Washington during the filming of "Washington Mistress." "This is where history is being made, where it is all happening. You go to monuments, read the things Jefferson wrote. You live here and are a part of it. It's hard to give it up." Could it be he may someday follow the route of fellow thespians now in government?

Ready For Reggie

The California Angels are excited about their newest addition to the team for 1982, none other than former Yankee Reggie Jackson. "Right now, I can't wait to write his name down on the lineup card as our right fielder," says Angel manager Gene Mauch. "It would be ridiculous to relegate him to designated hitter with the enthusiasm and the proficiency he has shown in the outfield since he came to our camp."

Woman Fights For Her Life

"Walking Through the Fire," starring Bess Armstrong as a desperately ill young mother, will be rebroadcast as the CBS Late Movie, Wednesday, Apr. 21 (11:30 p.m.). The film is based on the book of the same title by Laurel Lee.

In the story, Tom Mason portrays a school bus driver in Oregon who although he tries, finds it increasingly difficult and finally impossible to deal with his wife, Laurel's illness.

Richard Masur plays the role of Dr. Maitland, a sympathetic physician. Sometimes feeling helpless, he sees Laurel through her moments of panic, dread and pain, from the time she enters the hospital for grueling tests until her final release months later.

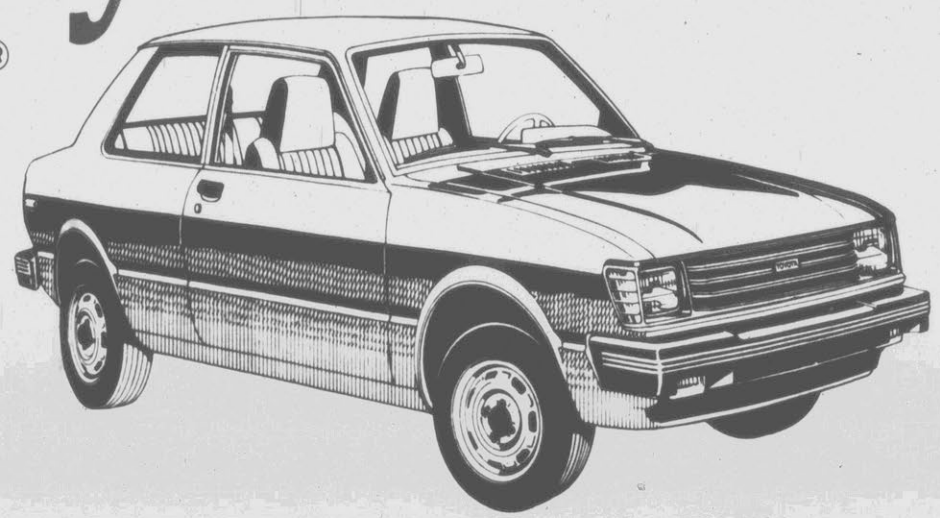

Bonnie Bedelia portrays Dr. Gwen Rand, a straight-spoken, empathetic confidant who stands by Laurel while the young patient faces her momentous decision: to delay intensive disease-attacking radiation treatment vitally necessary to herself, in order to avoid damaging or perhaps killing the unborn baby she has carried for six months. Laurel has been advised to have a "therapeutic abortion" and begin the intensive treatments or risk her life by delaying.

Swoosie Kurtz is seen as Laurel's young glib, supportive hospital roommate, who is in the final stages of the disease. Ken Kercheval and J.D. Cannon portray other doctors involved in Laurel's case, and June Lockhart plays Laurel's concerned mother.

The drama focuses on Laurel's own ordeal and inner terrors as she reaches for answers and grasps onto her firm faith and the writing of her journal. It also follows her relationship with her family as the ostensibly happy life she had tried to maintain falls slowly apart. Bobby and Laura Jacoby portrays Laurel's children, Matthew, 5, and Anna, 3.

Hall Of Famer

Johnny Petraglia, a 14-time champion in Professional Bowlers Association competition, has been elected to its Hall of Fame. The 35-year-old Petraglia, from Manalapan, N.J., becomes the 25th Hall of Famer since the PBA began honoring its outstanding performers and founders in 1975.

Uses Time Well

Len Elmore was overlooked by most teams in the NBA, but has been a solid starting center for the New Jersey Nets. "It's not how much playing time you get," says Elmore, "but what you do with the time that counts."

Join Forces

Henry Mancini and Al Jarreau will join forces to create the title song for the Golden Harvest production of "Whose Little Girl Are You?" Mancini will be responsible for the overall score.

Lewis Is In The Running

On the Sunday, Apr. 18 (4:30-6 p.m.) edition of "NBC SportsWorld," three events will be highlighted — the Bruce Jenner Track and Field meet, Part Two of the Golden Gloves Association of America Tournament of Champions, and Part Two of the Strongest Man in the World competition.

Among the featured athletes in the first event are long jumper and sprinter Carl Lewis; Stanley Floyd, who will compete in the 100 meters; and miler Steve Scott.

Lewis has run the 100 meters in 10.0 — the fastest time ever run at sea level; the fastest by a collegian and the third fastest of all time behind the altitude-aided clockings of Jim Hines (9.95 at the 1968 Olympic Games at Mexico City) and Silvio Leonard (9.98). Lewis has also run a (wind-aided) 9.98 at the NCAA Championships and has run the third fastest indoor 60-yard dash (6.06).

In the long jump, Lewis has leaped 28 feet, 3 and 3-quarter inches (also wind-aided), second only to Bob Beamon's incredible world record of 29 feet, 2 one-half inches. The 19-year-old Lewis holds the world indoor mark and boasts the five best performances in the world in 1981.

But what is most impressive is that he became the first man in 45 years since — Jesse Owens in 1936 — to win both the 100 and the long jump at the NCAA Championships (this past summer). In fact, Lewis has won the long jump at both the NCAA Indoor and Outdoor Championships two years in a row.

Lewis' sister Carol, who will also be competing in the Bruce Jenner Track and Field meet, holds the American junior record in the long jump and was the fourth best jumper in the country in 1980-81. Last year, as a senior at Willingboro (N.J.) High School, Carol was named female high school Athlete of the Year by the Touchdown Club of Washington, D.C. She is now a freshman at the University of Houston.

Lucky 13

Hurdler Edwin Moses' lucky number seems to be thirteen. He has been running intermediate hurdles for 13 years. He holds the top 13 times ever run in the event and takes exactly 13 strides between each hurdle. This year however, he's switching to 12 strides. "And with some luck," Moses says, "I'll set 13 new records."

Ask Polly

By Polly Vonetes

Looks like muscleman ARNOLD SCHWARZENEGGER will finally marry MARIA SHRIVER after three years of disapproval by the KENNEDY clan. EUNICE SHRIVER has resigned herself to becoming ARNOLD'S mother-in-law, however — she is not ready to condone 17-year-old son ANTHONY'S romance with TATUM O'NEAL.

Producers STEPHEN METZ and BOB RENO are proceeding with their plans to film BOBBY DARIN'S life story, "ON BORROWED TIME," without any help from SANDRA DEE, Bobby's wife. Although her character will play an important part in the film, an actress will be cast to portray her in the role of Allison Wade. Sandra will not be named in the script.

The current boom of interest in soap operas has proved to be a boom to reviving sales of "DARK SHADOWS," the gothic daytime drama that has been out of syndication for five years and off the network for 10. Stations are beginning to pick it up for the 4:30 to 5 p.m. timeslot.

THE DUKES OF HAZZARD ALBUM is such a hit that a special is being planned based on the album. JOHNNY CASH, who solos "The General Lee" on the disc with the show's stars, admits he gladly wrote and sang the tune. "It was an honor to do it," said Cash. His son JOHNNY (12) — a "Dukes" fan — even had his birthday cake in the shape of the General Lee car.

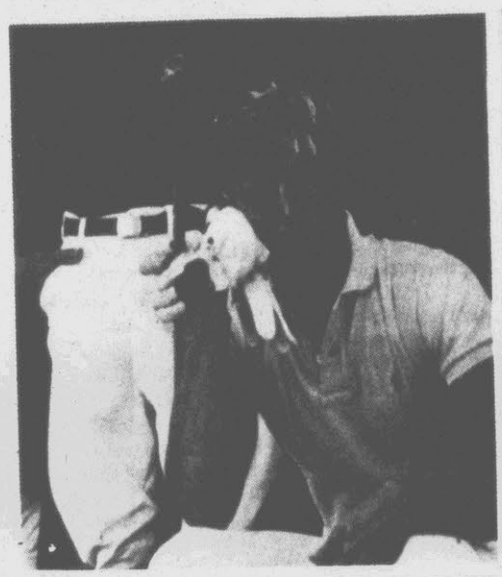

Production To Start

"Charles and Diana: A Royal Romance," a romantic real-life drama, will be produced by Linda Yellen for future broadcast on CBS.

Ms. Yellen will produce the film in London, with production to start in May. Casting will be announced shortly.

THE GREAT DODGE PROSPECTOR GOLD RUSH IS ON!

Walt Garrison,
Former Dallas Cowboy,
Rodeo Star,
Dodge Truck owner.

"They're equipped with the options us truck buyers want most."

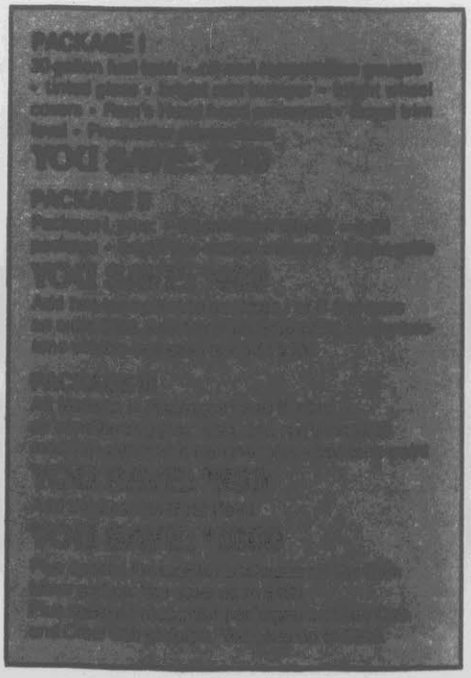

Stop in and see your Dodge Truck Dealer now and you'll get more than big savings on Prospector truck packages...values that Ford and Chevy don't offer. You'll get a chance to win a pound of solid gold. A full 12 troy ounces! In all, 49 pounds of gold will be given away by Dodge, plus a treasure chest of gold prizes. Nothing to buy, void where prohibited. See your Dodge Truck Dealer now for full details during The Great Gold Rush. But hurry, sweepstakes ends May 31, 1982. Fill out the Claim Form and take it to your dealer.

Finds writing a labor of love.

FOR SUSAN POLIS SCHUTZ, author of poetry book Love, Live & Share

Many traditions have been tossed aside — is love-letter writing one of them? —M.B., Waterbury, Conn.

● Not in my opinion. I get more than 2,000 letters a month from people asking how to convey their feelings in writing to loved ones. I tell them to compose letters which are honest, open and from the heart. I firmly believe that love, or the need to express it, will never go out of style. Love letters often become treasured examples of self-expression and a means of communication favored by both sexes. My husband and I regard love letters as a romantic way to revitalize and enhance our relationship. And you'd be surprised at how many other couples, of all ages and walks of life, agree with us.

FOR ANDREW STEVENS, star of The Seduction

● I am not one to have a favorite anything. If I had to name a favorite film, it would be The Boys in Company C, which I did in 1977. Along with four other young actors, I shaved my head, lived in a bungalow with no dressing room and worked in 112-degree heat. Much of my work was improvisation.

FOR CHARLENE TILTON, star of TV's Dallas

As you look back on things you did in school, what stands out as being the silliest? — J.H., Warren, Ohio

● When I was in junior high school, a girlfriend and I emptied a box of detergent into a fountain at the corner of Sunset and Vine in Hollywood. There were bubbles everywhere and the police had to rope off the sidewalk. I suppose it wasn't a very nice thing to do — but it sure was fun at the time.

FOR JIM BOUTON, former baseball star and author of Ball Four, Plus Ball Five

If you could make one change in the professional baseball league, what would it be? — E.R., Olympia, Wash.

● As long as the baseball commissioner is hired and paid by the owners he will represent their interests. To cut down on strikes and frozen World Series, the commissioner should be elected. Sportswriters should nominate candidates and the fans should vote.

FROM THE ASK EDITOR

FACT: It's not true that superstars are blinded by their own glory, unable to see the sparkle of their peers. Take Jane Fonda, for instance. She saw Number Our Days onstage in Los Angeles and was so impressed with Eda Reiss Merin's performance that she went backstage to meet and embrace the actress. "You moved me so much that you made me cry," Fonda said. Eda, beaming, replied, "Then I'm paying you back, because you always move me and make me cry." . . .

Redgrave: Pen mightier than screen.

FICTION: Lynn Redgrave, on the other hand, takes other performers in stride. Those who earn her ardent admiration are the breed that create words and music for the likes of Lynn to perform. Said Lynn: "I can't resist authors. I love talking to them and adore listening to them. Their conversations are absorbing, educational, refreshing; not in the least bit self-centered or egotistical." . . . FRIEND: More than 20 years ago, at a London club, after pianist Confrey Phillips hit the last notes of "You've Gotta Have Heart" from Damn Yankees (a naughty thing to do since it's considered unethical to air the score from an American musical before the show is in production in Britain) one patron demanded, "Where did you get that song?" Replied Confrey, "Why? Do you like it?" The angry patron, who turned out to be American composer Richard Adler, answered, "I wrote it." Adler intended to give Confrey hell for playing a restricted song, but instead became his good friend. Now the two buddies have taken different musical paths — Phillips performs at New York night spots, while Adler is channeling his talent into classical music. . . . FOE: Those setting up East Germany's first wax museum needed help, so they asked Madame Tussaud's in London and the Hollywood Wax Museum for the measurements of Robert Redford, Paul Newman, Barbra Streisand, Liz Taylor. In Hollywood, proprietor Spoony Singh was jittery ("It's collaborating with the enemy"). But on hearing that Tussaud's had complied he decided: "We in wax are above politics and must stay glued together." . . . FILM: Albert Finney, star of the film version of Annie, shaved his lush mop to play bald Daddy Warbucks, upon orders of producer Ray Stark. Said Finney: "Now I know what they mean by Stark naked."

PRO AND CON

(Question submitted by Lauren Locklin, Alamo, Calif.)

Send questions of national significance, on a postcard, to "Pro & Con," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $10 for those published.

PRO Jack E. Yelverton, executive director, National District Attorneys Association

Because of limited resources, all persons accused of crime cannot be brought to trial. Under our informal plea-bargaining system most persons accused of crime have a choice. They can elect to go to trial and run the risk of a harsh penalty or negotiate a settlement with a consequent reduction in punishment. Both the defendant and society benefit. The defendant is punished less harshly in exchange for not demanding an expensive and time-consuming trial.

CON George W. Pugh, professor of law, Louisiana State University

About 90 percent of American convictions result from plea bargaining. Under this system, the disposal of a criminal case is too much a product of negotiation between prosecution and defense, rather than control by a judge. There is too great a danger that persons agreeing to plead guilty will be dealt with too leniently. In addition, persons pleading not guilty but convicted after trial could be treated too harshly, and innocent persons could be induced to plead guilty.

"Final Touch–it's whiter. It really is."
Nancy Reynolds

"They both feel soft. This towel is definitely whiter. And, to me, whiter means better."
Bunny Tarquinio

"They're both soft, but this one is whiter! I can tell. Look! White as snow!"
Judy Swenson

We asked women who use the other well-known liquid fabric softener to compare washes done with theirs and Final Touch. They found that cottons washed in Final Touch were soft and noticeably whiter. If you agree with these women that a whiter wash is a better wash–try Final Touch and prove it for yourself.

COVER STORY

Hometown, U.S.A.

Pride and Prejudice in America

By Peter Davis

In 1976, when the country had barely begun to recover from Vietnam and Watergate, I set out to write a book that would examine American society. In the book, Hometown, I would try to locate the "firestorm of change," as one observer described it, that had swept across the land in the last tumultuous decades.

Knowing only that the right place should be neither too large for a small compass nor too small to contain a full range of experience, I eventually went to see Richard L. Forstall, chief of the demographic statistics branch of the population division of the Census Bureau.

"You have to find a place," he said, "big enough to have everything its people need and small enough so you can figure out what in the world is going on there." He judged the town should contain between 50,000 and 100,000 people, since below 50,000 the complete array of situations and institutions is lacking, and above 100,000 the community becomes too complex. The town should be Northern enough to be industrial, Southern enough to have a gently rural aspect, Western enough to have once been on the frontier, Eastern enough to have a past.

Forstall of the Census pored over his maps, scrutinized his demographic charts, probed his commercial and population surveys. He searched his city directories and conjured his County and City Data Book the way a necromancer entreats tarot cards to deliver their mysteries. At length he looked up. "You could do worse," Richard Forstall concluded, "than to go to Hamilton, Ohio."

More searching followed, but I finally did select Hamilton, principally because I liked it so well there. With its tree-lined streets, gentle neighborhoods, friendly sidewalk chatter, and its manageable population of about 63,000, Hamilton is the kind of town most Americans tell each other they would like to live in someday. Surely this would be a fine place to study change, to see the radical alterations in American society. "You'll have no trouble spotting change around here," said the first person I talked to in Hamilton, a newspaperman. "The streets aren't even safe anymore, just like Chicago." A city official had another complaint. "The problem nowadays," he said, "is that so many of the best educated kids are leaving town. That never used to happen."

Questions about change hung over my early research in Hamilton, but as I collected stories about Hamiltonians and delved into the town's past, I began to see more and more continuities. What I was pursuing, it developed, was not change at all. I was not primarily seeing the differences between past and present, but the correspondences. What Hometown was becoming, without my willing it or at first even knowing it, was a rediscovery of enduring qualities in American life.

Like all of us, Hamiltonians have been hostages to the future for a long time, dating from the town's founding in 1791. "The wife and I want our fun now and then," a welder in one of Hamilton's foundries said, "but what I'm working so hard for is to see my kids make out a couple of shakes better than I do." The hopes of Americans have been pointed at an earthly hereafter at least since John Adams said that his generation had to be soldiers so their sons could be farmers so their sons could be merchants and the fourth generation could be artists. This suggested that each generation would be completely different from its predecessor, that each would see itself as transitional — and so we have regarded ourselves. What generation of Americans has not thought itself a generation in transition? When have Americans not longed for the days when children obeyed, a dollar was worth a dollar, honesty was more respected, the boss knew all his workers by their first names? In which year since the founding of the Republic could a citizen claim to live in a time of change and have failed to elicit wide agreement?

America was never where you started but where you started over. The first generation of every group of immigrants to America, whether arriving in the 17th or 20th century, has always seen itself in the role of pioneer. In Europe the frontier was a border, in America it was the horizon; one was where you had to stop, the other stretched as far as you could imagine. Although the first generation itself could not last forever, its spirit persisted. Even now the romance of the frontier stills conversation, puts a twinkle in the urban eye.

And when have we ever not moved on? Most Hamiltonians agree with the city official who complained that kids today are moving away as soon as they finish high school, depriving the community of their talents and energy. This is regarded as a relatively new, at least post-World War II, pattern. A look at the town archives indicates otherwise. When Hamilton celebrated its 1891 centennial, the local high school had a history of 29 years. Thirty-six percent of its graduates still lived in Hamilton, compared with 44 percent of the class of 1950 who were still in town three decades later. Comparisons can be misleading when life expectancy, methods of record-keeping and population size are as different as they are between 19th- and 20th-century Hamilton. Yet it seems clear that despite hometown nostalgia for a stabler past, Hamilton's young were at least as unlikely to remain nestlings 100 years ago as they are today. Hamiltonians who look back longingly are those who, obviously, still live there. Their parents did stay. But not all their aunts and uncles did. "It may be better for her, but I was sorry to see my daughter move to Cleveland," said a retired Hamilton industrialist whose family had arrived in the early 1800's. "The town used to hang onto its young people more tightly." Yet the same man's uncle had left the family business in the late 19th century to become a lawyer in Omaha. The point is not that Hamiltonians are wrong to think their children footloose; the point is only that they always were.

I went to Hamilton not so much looking for as assuming change, but what I found was an astonishing, striking correspondence between the town's past and its present. The desire to sell, build, expand, educate, advertise, migrate, win, get more for the children — all of these have been in Hamilton for over 150 years. Yet Hamiltonians themselves remark on how much has changed in the town. Along with the worries about young people moving away and unsafe streets, it is not hard to find a whole armada of presumed changes. "What they do today is they tear down every decent building and put up junk," a retired lawyer said. "People feel like ciphers now," said a banker, "because we're all part of some endless computer terminal." "The corruption of public officials is just unbelieveable," a tool and die maker said, adding "it's a sign of the times." "Technology runs everything today," a teacher lamented, "and racial tension is the dirty little secret in our schools."

"The town used to hang onto its young people more tightly." Even so, nearly half the class of 1950 is still in Hamilton.

But each of these complaints is an echo from the 19th century. Hamilton's old Georgian courthouse was torn down in the 1880's, amid general consternation, to make way for its magnificent Victorian successor, which still stands. The bootlegging city marshal of the 1870's is mirrored in the sheriff who in the 1970's was convicted of embezzlement, conflict of interest and income-tax evasion. No contemporary condition is easier to criticize than the lack of safety for those who like to take walks after dinner. But drunken brawls spilling out from dozens of taverns had made the downtown section treacherous for strolling Hamiltonians by the 1860's. The whiskey rings of the 1880's gave way to Prohibition in the 1920's, and in the 1930's John Dillinger used Hamilton as a hideout. During World War II the town was still so famously corrupt it was placed off limits by the U.S. Navy.

The rapid pace of change already disturbed many Hamiltonians of the 1890's, who longed for "the gentler days gone by" — indeed, the days of their own youth. As for technology, Hamiltonians proudly and somewhat fearfully recorded the "radical changes" that had made the 1890's so different from the early 19th century — the railroad, telegraph, telephone, electric light, microphone. These made them feel they lived in a time the world had never known, and of course they were right. But so had their own grandparents been right when they declared that canals, steamboats and daguerreotypes had changed the world forever.

In race relations, the town's first flour mill was built before the Civil War by a black freedman, but he was not allowed to own it. In 1862 the Hamilton school board ruled against admitting blacks to the new high school, which was "set apart for white scholars." In the 1970's a high-school coach contended that "for all practical purposes, integration has never been implemented in Hamilton, Ohio." A municipal worker said that Progress Avenue, a lovely and symbolically named residential street that had once been the focus of a Life magazine article as America's most typical street, was off limits to blacks. In 1980 the school board mandated integration by combining the town's two high schools, but in 1982 a teacher still claimed that the only result has been to isolate black students within the high school except for those who become highly visible as athletic stars. The expressions of racism have been modified and reduced; the feelings that produce these expressions remain, also modified but hardly obliterated.

What changes far less than suspected by most researchers, it seems to me after six years of observing this town, is the nature of family relationships. When the novelist William Dean Howells was growing up in Hamilton in the 1840's, he noticed that "between the young and the old there is a vast gulf, seldom if ever bridged. The old can look backward over it, but they cannot cross it, any more than the young, who can see no thither side." More than a century later, "generation gap" was coined and pushed as an insight into a current phenomenon. Howells himself did not present his recollection as anything new; he was simply paying attention to his own childhood, making observations as relevant to the 1980's as they were to the 1840's. Even as a boy, Howells also found Hamilton's class structure oppressive, criticizing "social cruelties which are the modern expression of the savage spirit otherwise repressed by civilization." He admired Hamilton for its friendliness and decency, which remain today; he deplored its class snobbery, which also remains.

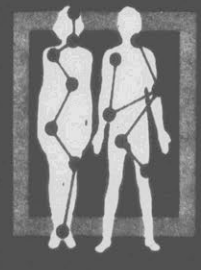

Many Hamiltonians worry about their community's being split into factions and consider this a problem their parents' — or at least their grandparents' — generation never faced. "Hamilton today is so deeply fragmented," a local leader said, "that many of our various groups barely speak to each other. The town used to be far more united." Yet its west and east sides have always been economic rivals; borrowers and lenders have mistrusted each other since the first banks failed in the early 1800's; the uneasiness between blacks and whites stretches back well over a century; rich and poor have been estranged since Hamilton's first industrialist refused to give his workers a 10-cent-per-day raise in 1836.

To see continuity is not to deny our choices — on the contrary, it is to clarify them — but only to understand that there is a line, a kind of bloodline, between who we were and who we have become. The past abides. Of all the freedoms Americans cherish, none is more sacred than our certainty that we are free of the past. But to ignore the past is hardly to escape it. Surely this is not to suggest sameness between past and present — that would be boring as well as stagnant — but it does indicate that the peculiar birthmarks of successive generations bear a strong family resemblance. Hamilton, Ohio and the country that surrounds it have come of middle age. As in an individual, our national genes determine characteristics we can no more "radically change" than we can the many colors of American skin. A sense of continuity can help us unhitch ourselves from the notion that every decade, sometimes every month, we Americans are in, as we say, a whole new ball game. Our identity is composed of elements that evolve and accrue gradually, incrementally, yielding to the latest patents and annual trends only the way the Grand Canyon does to wind. FW

Is last year's summer of discontent behind us? Does time, indeed, heal all wounds? The question remains. . .

CAN BASEBALL WIN BACK THE FANS?

For baseball fans, it was a tense spring training. Are the reflexes still there? Will the heart still lift with the first glint of grass (or that plastic stuff) and stay lifted through the doldrums while one's team remains eternally glued to fifth place? What about the vocal cords? Will they still groan like Pagliacci over loud fouls and snigger when the umpire gets hit in the foot and has to hop like a bunny? Or will we perhaps not bother to go at all?

The thing is, we've had a scare. After the baseball strike last year, the reflexes didn't come back, at least for some of us. The game had lost its fizz; the grass was just, if that, grass. It couldn't just be the greedy owners and selfish players, could it? In that case, baseball would have died in infancy. While the strike was on, I kept telling myself there was nothing a little baseball couldn't cure. (continued on page 12)

Just as you don't need a good priest to perform a valid marriage — any old hack will do — so, in its humbler sphere, any scoundrel who can run, throw and hit with power is authorized to perform baseball.

Yet something was wrong. Maybe the strike had bitten a little deeper than we thought. After all, the players were fighting specifically for the right to leave their teams, which is perfectly reasonable but does not go down well in dreamland where the fans hang out. To find your very favorite player demanding extortionate ransom just to stay in your neighborhood hurts a fellow after a while.

Then there was the practice of naming the player rather than his agent in the endless headlines (fans will read anything). "Joe Blow demands an arm and a leg" seems to smite one right through the bubble-gum card, but it isn't an exact account of what most likely happened. Joe may not even know what he is demanding today. He has acquired an agent, because it's the thing to do, so that he can keep his mind on higher things, like warning kids off alcohol abuse and giving his money away. Unlike the old-timers who did their own haggling all winter and wouldn't give a dime to a blind waitress, today's superstars need never think of cash at all.

Unfortunately, it all seems upside down to the fan. Why leave your own team to make more money, which you're going to give away anyway? Never mind. It is the nature of agents, who are only really happy when all their clients are playing in New York and Los Angeles, where commercial opportunities tumble over each other in senseless profusion.

Still, this does not quite scratch the itch. Although the fan would probably prefer to pay less for his seat than to support the Joe Blow Foundation or whatever pious undertaking the latest free agent gives his salary to, I don't think he minds the players getting the big bucks so long as it hurts the owners enough. (The villainy of owners is a baseball tradition not to be tampered with.)

What he minds is that the concept of "team," which is a mighty act of imagination in the first place, becomes harder than ever to sustain. We've always known in theory that the random collection of out-of-towners who currently represent our city could all be gone tomorrow. Owners have bought and sold whole teams in the past, and the faith has endured. The fans themselves have to provide the glue, the continuity that makes, say, the Boston Red Sox an idea rather than just an employment office. A team's personality lives on in the stands, regardless of who's playing out there (which is why there is no such thing as a dull Red Sox team).

But it does not live on regardless of the fans. When they go, all the TV revenue in the world can't buy you back your personality. And the glue doesn't exist that will make a team out of guys who'd rather do after-shave commercials than stay put in our dream.

Another trouble with last season was that the numbers came out all wrong. A home-run leader is supposed to hit so many, the R.B.I. man so many more — and a Cy Young winner is not supposed to be 13-7. I hadn't realized how much one depends on these things coming out right. With our diamond-like minds, fans demand things orderly.

Which means no more double or triple playoffs ever again. Any playoffs are bad enough — they don't belong anywhere, being neither season nor Series, and their records just dangle. "So-and-so's record in post-season play" is an ersatz, anemic phrase. Other sports may exist for their playoffs, but not baseball. The season must be cut to measure, so that Babe Ruth and Hank Aaron may appear to do roughly the same thing and we can have something to talk about through the black winters.

This at least is the view of the old breed, who want an asterisk put after everything. Pete Rose plays eight more games a year than Ty Cobb — give him an asterisk. The last man to hit .400 did so before the real onset of night baseball — asterisks all around. Call us the last of the grass brigade (Astroturf is the ultimate asterisk), but we come in all ages. Baseball is Merit Taste Unbeaten!

One low tar cigarette continues to challenge higher tar smoking—and win.

Latest research offers new evidence confirming MERIT as the proven taste alternative to higher tar smoking.

Higher Tars Meet Taste Match.

In impartial new tests where brand identity was concealed, the overwhelming majority of smokers reported MERIT taste equal to—or better than—leading higher tar brands.

Moreover, when tar levels were revealed, 2 out of 3 chose the MERIT combination of low tar and good taste.

Taste Smokers Turning To MERIT.

In a second part of the same study, smokers confirm that MERIT taste is a major factor in completing their successful switch from higher tar brands.

Confirmed: 9 out of 10 MERIT smokers who switched from higher tar report that MERIT is an easy switch, that they didn't give up taste in switching, and that MERIT is the best-tasting low tar they've ever tried.

Year after year, in study after study, MERIT remains unbeaten. The proven taste alternative to higher tar smoking—is MERIT.

GENERAL FOODS "DREAM HOUSE" SWEEPSTAKES—OFFICIAL RULES

1. THERE ARE SEVERAL WAYS TO ENTER. You are entered into the sweepstakes by filling out your name and address and redeeming the store coupons in this ad. Each coupon you fill out and redeem is an additional entry into the sweepstakes. To be eligible for the sweepstakes, coupons must be redeemed by June 30, 1982. Do not mail coupons.

2. ALTERNATE MEANS OF ENTRY...NO PURCHASE NECESSARY TO ENTER: If you do not wish to redeem the store coupons to enter the sweepstakes, you may enter the sweepstakes by completing the entry form appearing in this ad. Or, on a 3" x 5" card, hand print your name and complete address. Enter as often as you like, but each entry must be mailed separately by first class mail to: DREAM HOUSE SWEEPSTAKES, P.O. Box 8070, Kankakee, IL 60902. All entries must be postmarked by June 30, 1982 to be eligible. Drawing will take place during the week of December 26, 1982.

3. From all entries received, winners will be selected in a random drawing conducted by Marden-Kane, Inc., an independent judging organization whose decisions are final. Winners will be notified by mail approximately thirty days after the drawing. All prizes will be awarded. Taxes are the responsibility of winners. No substitution for prizes except as offered. Odds of winning are dependent upon the number of entries received.

4. The Grand Prize Winner will be given the choice of receiving one (1) home up to $150,000 in value OR $150,000 in cash. The Grand Prize of a "Dream House," worth up to $150,000, does not include the building lot and the lot is subject to approval by The Boise Company, plus any local zoning or other applicable ordinances. Winners consent to the use of their names and/or likenesses for advertising and trade purposes without additional compensation. Grand Prize Winner will be required to sign an affidavit of eligibility. Non-compliance may result in the Grand Prize being awarded in a separate drawing from among all entries.

5. Sweepstakes open to residents 18 years or older of the Continental U.S.A., except employees and their families of General Foods Corporation, their advertising, print and production agencies and Marden-Kane, Inc. Void wherever taxed, restricted or prohibited by law. All Federal, State and Local laws and regulations apply.

6. Anyone may enter by mail. Residents of Wisconsin, Washington, Missouri, Ohio and Utah may enter only by mailing their completed entry form or 3" x 5" card directly to Dream House Sweepstakes, PO. Box 8070, Kankakee, IL 60902.

But a new breed may be upon us who, still jangling from their electronic games, want excitement right now and to hell with the numbers. The designated-hitter rule, which enables decrepit athletes to trundle on rubber legs past better men's records, simply soups up the action for these wild-eyed newcomers. The electronic mind does not fret about things like team loyalty: It would be like getting sore at the figures in a video game. Winning is the only thing.

Baseball is really not designed for such people, though George Steinbrenner is trying. But if the old-timers become disaffected, the game may have to be restructured like a hot rod to produce artificial hysteria. Players might be persuaded to fight each other every few minutes, flailing their bats like hockey sticks. Olympic sprinters could enter the game at will, jumping up and down on home plate and flinging their hats. Chorus girls might carry signs announcing the number of the inning.

Last season the numbers came out all wrong. A home-run leader is supposed to hit so many, and a Cy Young winner is not supposed to be 13-7.

Right now, the Atari generation has to settle for exploding scoreboards, excruciating organ music and ridiculous uniforms. Is it enough? I know it's more than enough to depress the pants off the fogies, but does it also perform the modern miracle of making this stately sport exciting?

It could be that the very things that have cooled my own baseball fever and slowed my reflexes to a crawl are the heralds of a new era sweeping me, not baseball, into the dustbin of history. It may even be necessary to purge the old-timers in order to get the revolution in gear.

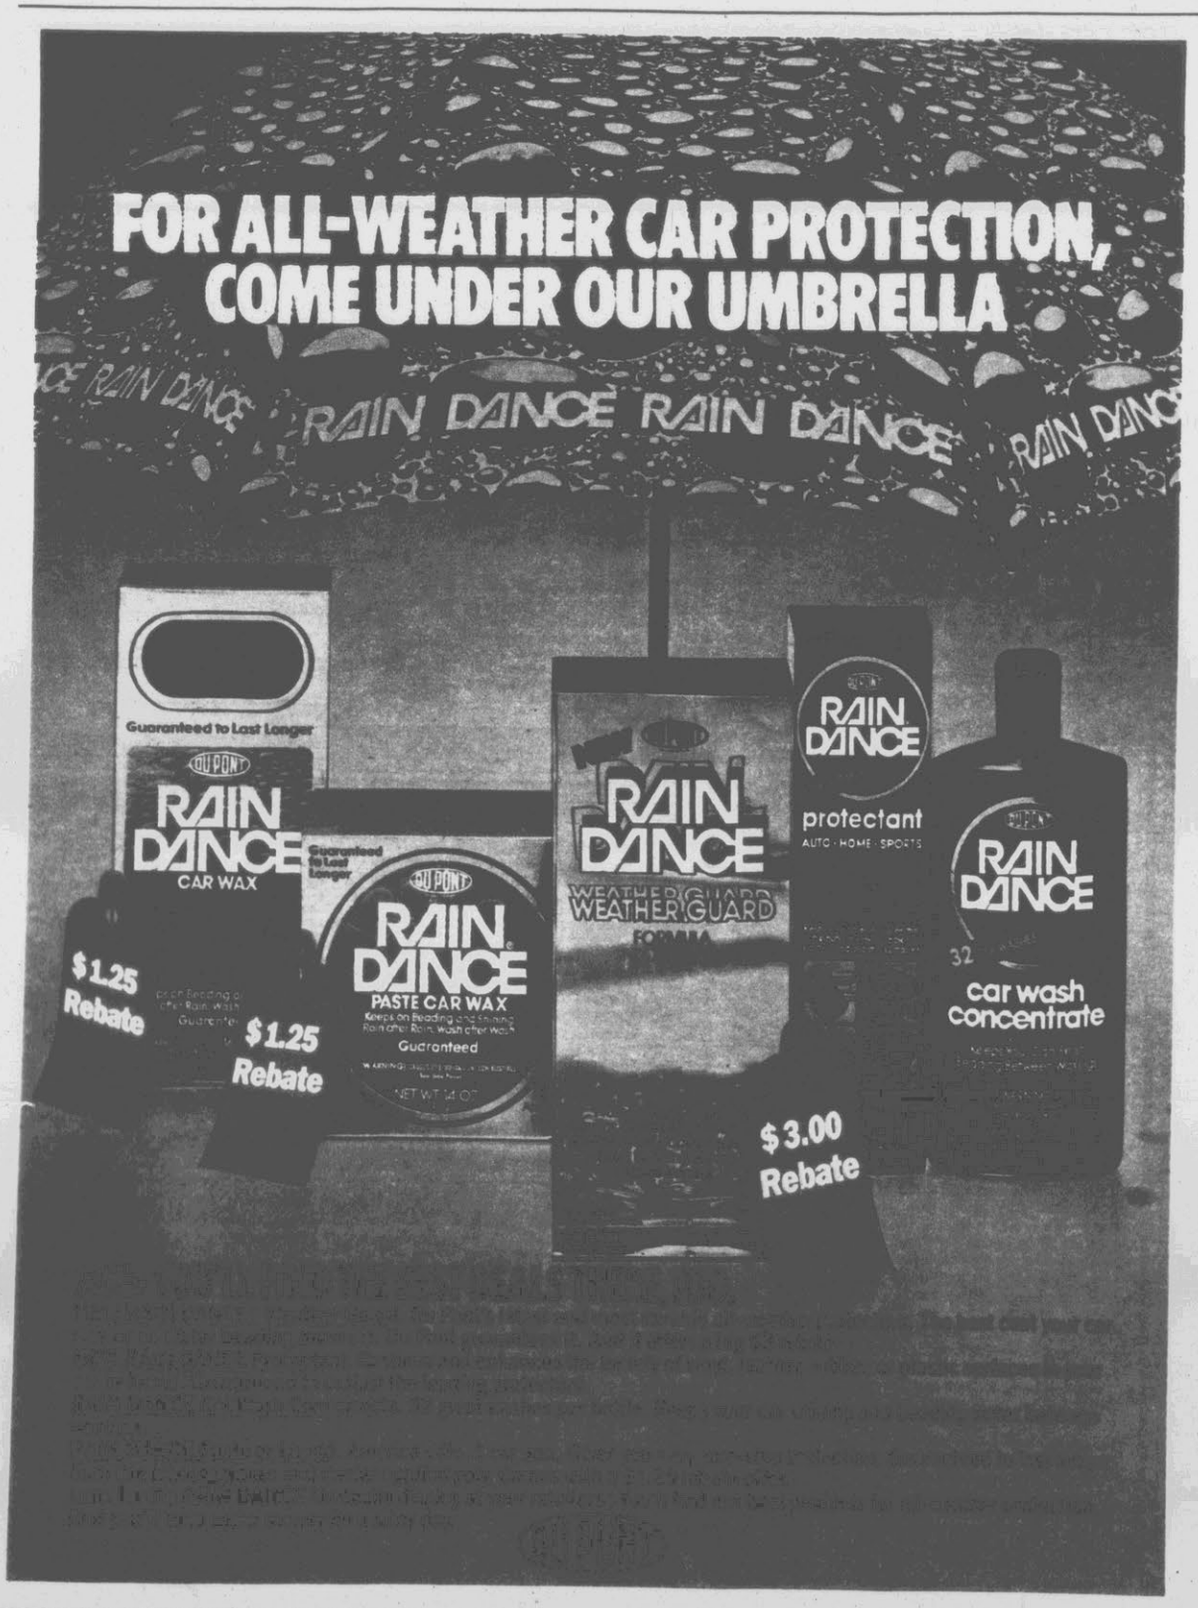

. . . I woke from that last paragraph sweating. Oh, Ghost of Baseball Past, say it ain't so. The rustic graces of the old game must eventually work their magic on even the savage Yankee fan. The essential game is so unchangeable that even under a ton of makeup it looks good. And it is the nature of the baseball fan in spring to be afflicted with hope.

The free-agent thing seems to be calming down, as more and more guys with long-term contracts pile up on the bench, crowding out talented kids. Baseball skill is not a fixed commodity but a continual gamble, and a scout with a good eye can still outsmart a rich myopic; i.e., Baltimore bests out most of the big spenders.

And as for the playoffs, even the owners (whose denseness is also legendary — we need it) must see that a little extra boodle at the end of the season cannot make up for the cheapening of the season. Baseball is not a set of isolated explosions like football, but a steady timeless pleasure that builds as gracefully as it plays — and can only have one climax.

Do not mess with it, gentlemen. FW

Wilfrid Sheed is an author and critic whose latest book is Clare Boothe Luce (Dutton). As a boy he dreamed of playing shortstop for the Philadelphia Athletics.

Norman Rockwell's "Toymaker" Figurine $19.95

International Collection Finders is proud to announce the greatest collector find in history, a full-color, exquisite fine porcelain figurine... Norman Rockwell's "The Toymaker" and at the unheard of price of only $19.95. You have seen similar figurines selling for as much as $69 or more, but because of a special purchase, we are able to send this individually cast and assembled and hand decorated figurine to any reader of this publication who responds to this notice by midnight, May 25, for the sum of $19.95 plus $2 shipping and handling. There is a strict limit of only two figurines per address. You may purchase one for yourself and one for a dear friend for the combined price of only $35 postage paid. The true color and craftsmanship can only be suggested in the small picture shown here. But once you see the full size (5" x 4" x 3¼") and beauty captured by our craftsmen, you will understand why we expect an enormous demand for this figurine and therefore must limit the purchase. No requests will be accepted after midnight, May 25. Any checks postmarked later will be returned uncashed. We accept credit cards. Just give us the name of the card, account number and expiration date. Or, send appropriate sum together with your name and address to: International Collection Finders, Dept. #TMF-2500, 390 Pike Road, Huntingdon Valley, Pennsylvania 19006, or call toll-free 1-800-345-8502. DOES 60 lbs. OF TOMATOES FROM ONE YIELD SOUND INCREDIBLE?

NOT IF YOU OWN THE Amazing TREE TOMATO

(Cyphomandra betacea)

GROWS INDOORS OR OUTDOORS . . . YOU PICK BASKET AFTER BASKET OF RIPE, TASTY TOMATOES . . . ONE BUMPER CROP AFTER ANOTHER . . . 5 TO 7 MONTHS A YEAR . . . YEAR AFTER YEAR!

We Get Letters!

Read what L. F. S. of Wisc. has to say . . . ". . . Just a line to let you know the Tree Tomato is doing great . . . about 5½ ft. tall . . . you said leaves grew 12" . . . mine are 15 and 16". It's just beautiful!"

Noted Citriculturist of New Zealand says:

"Ripening in New Zealand from late April to early November, the tree tomato has a very long fruiting season. Its wide range of culinary uses make it a valuable winter and spring fruit . . . a welcome addition to the menu." "Although introduced into New Zealand many years ago, it is only in recent years that the tree tomato has become better known for its many uses. It is now much sought after, and its popularity is indicated by the high price realized for it on local markets . . . Under suitable conditions the plant will produce from 40 to 60 lbs. of fruit annually."

From New Zealand comes the biggest garden sensation of the century . . . THE PERENNIAL TOMATO!

GROW IT OUTDOORS AS A TREE—INDOORS AS A HOUSEPLANT!

The TREE TOMATO will thrive marvelously—indoors or out! If you live in a temperate zone, plant it outdoors and enjoy its bountiful, exotic beauty in your garden! Or, tub-grow the TREE TOMATO, bring it indoors for winter, and surprise your family and friends with ripe, just-picked tomatoes even during the coldest months of the year! Or . . . cultivate the TREE TOMATO as a house-plant anytime . . . anywhere! The TREE TOMATO will achieve heights of up to 8 ft. outdoors, but it can be trimmed and trained to any size or shape you wish!

ENJOY TREE TOMATOES SO MANY DELECTABLE WAYS!

We think TREE TOMATOES are much tastier than ordinary tomatoes . . . it's hard to find a meatier, firmer, more bursting-with-goodness taste treat! Rich in Vitamin C, TREE-TOMATOES are fabulous in salads, sandwiches and are absolutely fantastic just sliced up and popped in your mouth!

Nothing beats fresh produce, so why continue to pay high supermarket prices for inferior tomatoes, when you can grow your own TREE TOMATOES! REMEMBER, WE SHIP MATURE PLANTS . . . NOT SEEDS . . . ORDER YOUR TREE TOMATOES TODAY! Full growing instructions included.

The TREE TOMATO . . . a remarkable new horticultural concept . . . unlike anything you've ever seen before! NOT a vine . . . NOT a regular tomato plant that withers and dies after one summer . . . the TREE TOMATO is a living, growing tree that BEARS FRUIT SEASON AFTER SEASON . . . YEAR AFTER YEAR! Why settle for garden-fresh tomatoes a few short weeks of the year? Why put up with hothouse tomatoes that taste like cardboard the rest of the time? Not when you can pick crop after crop of red, plump juicy TREE TOMATOES up to 7 months a year (all year 'round when grown indoors!)

WAVE AFTER WAVE OF SUCCULENT TREE TOMATOES GROW AS QUICK AS YOU CAN PICK 'EM!

Your TREE TOMATO will arrive already leafed-out . . . in full, green hardy vigor! When ready to bear, the branches will literally droop with huge clusters of delicious TREE TOMATOES, hundreds upon hundreds . . . and, as one crop is harvested, another rushes forth to take its place . . . so you have a virtually constant supply of luscious TREE TOMATOES!

LAKELAND'S DOUBLE GUARANTEE

Corns, Calluses and Bunions: The Agony of Da Feet

By Jody Gaylin

If you give a second thought to your feet, it's probably to curse them for hurting so much: We all tend to abuse those appendages at the ends of our legs — stuffing them into shoes that don't fit, standing on them for hours at a time, walking, jogging, dancing. And we scarcely give a thought to the damage we might be inflicting on our poor soles. It's no wonder that often by the end of the day, our feet are aching and swollen. And if we suffer from bunions, corns or calluses they probably feel even worse.

But though wear and tear on the feet can irritate these afflictions, experts believe that the tendency to get corns, calluses and bunions is primarily hereditary.

Bunions

Bunions "are certainly aggravated by shoes," notes Richard Jacobs, M.D., head of the division of orthopedic surgery at Albany Medical College, Albany, N.Y. But they "tend to be familial." He notes, for instance, that bunions occur in cultures where going barefoot is customary.

A bunion is an abnormal alignment of the bones of the big toe and front part of the foot that causes a bony prominence on the inner side of the foot. Pressure from shoes (particularly high heels that thrust the foot forward) adds to bunion discomfort, causing pain and swelling.

While wearing looser shoes can help alleviate bunion pain, the only permanent way to rid yourself of bunions, say the experts, is surgery. Some recommend an office procedure called "minimal incision ambulatory surgery," in which a tiny incision is made to grind down the troublesome protrusion. Other orthopedists and podiatrists believe that bunions are best removed in a hospital, where a large incision is made and part of the protruding bone is removed.

Corns and Calluses

Corns and calluses are a result of recurrent friction or irritation caused by excessive pressure on a given area of the foot, according to Elizabeth Roberts, professor emeritus at the New York College of Podiatry and author of On Your Feet (Rodale Press, 1980). Calluses tend to appear on the ball of the foot or big toe, corns on the toes. The pressure can come from poorly fitting shoes or an imbalance in the way our body weight is carried by our feet. The imbalance can have genetic origins (muscle development of the feet and legs, for instance) or result from your way of life (the fact that you walk a lot). The friction and irritation can lead to an additional blood supply in the area, increased cell growth and, finally, the emergence of a corn or callus.

It is important to catch both corns and calluses early, says podiatrist Gary Gordon, director of the running and jogging program at the University of Pennsylvania Sports Medicine Center. If they are allowed to grow they will become more difficult to remove. He advises sufferers to exercise caution when using over-the-counter corn remedies: They frequently contain an acid preparation designed to burn away the corn.

The tendency to get corns, calluses and bunions is primarily hereditary.

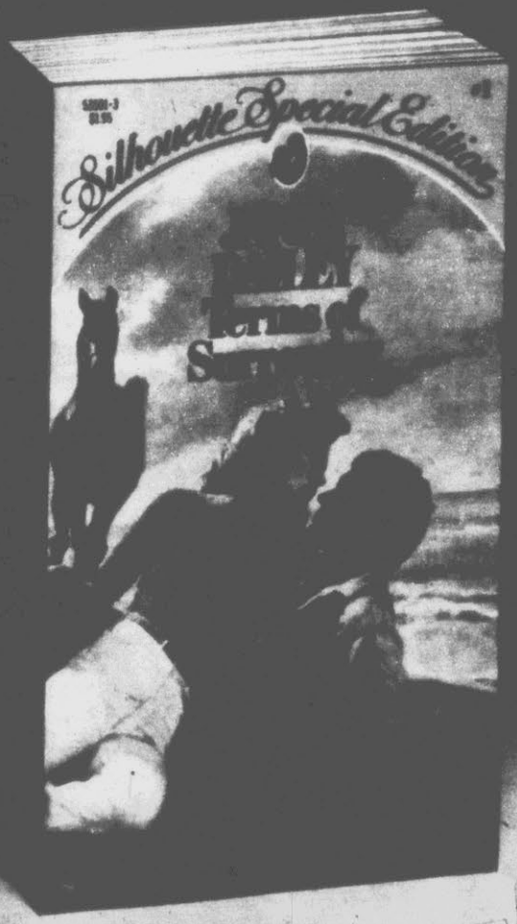

Trouble is, the acid also burns any surrounding healthy skin it drips on. If you buy corn pads with oval openings, says Dr. Roberts, cut a wedge out of the pad so that it is horseshoe shaped. Then place the pad sufficiently behind the corn so that it won't add more pressure to the already painful spot. The best protection for corns are bandages placed so that the sterile gauze center is directly over the corn.

"Always start conservatively when treating foot problems," suggests Dr. Jacobs. Before you use a razor or acid on your corns and calluses, pay a visit to a podiatrist or an orthopedist who specializes in foot problems. Some experts can design supports for your feet, alter your shoes, steer you to special protective insoles or wrap your feet in dressings that will re-train the muscles of your feet and help correct the weight imbalance. Dr. Roberts believes that whenever possible people (that includes men!) should wear comfortable shoes with open toes and/or open heels. Dr. Jacobs recommends wide, low-heeled laced oxfords. Your corns and calluses may not disappear with a change of shoes, but they will become less severe once the pressure is off. FW

"I don't care how good a reel is. If it's fished hard, sooner or later it's going to need my help. But I'll wait a long time before I see a new Cardinal 700 series reel in here for repair," says Ken Cormier, Independent Tackle Repair Expert.

But don't just take Ken's word for it. Compare these new Cardinal 700s yourself to anybody's reel.

As you turn the handle, you'll actually feel the smooth, quiet Cardinal difference. Precision machined gears and stainless steel ball bearings silently guide the velvet smooth, effortless movement of the Cardinal's working parts. It means a smoother working, longer lasting reel.

"Plus," Ken adds, "you're protected much better from broken lines and lost fish with the widest range rear drag of any spinning reel, anywhere. And that makes it the smoothest, most dependable rear drag of any spinning reel anywhere. And the drag adjustment is quick and easy on these new Cardinal 700s because it's conveniently located at the rear of the reel, facing you, not the fish.

All of this precision smooth dependability is engineered into the lightest weight reels in their class, based on spool capacity. Even lighter than experimental graphite models.

There are four new Cardinal 700s in a range of sizes from ultralight to heavy-duty. And each one is the smoothest casting, longest lasting, best value in its price range.

Pick the one that's right for you. And, while Ken Cormier is busy fixing those other reels, you can be busy catching fish with your new Cardinal.

Dutch Treats

By Marilyn Hansen

On Monday, the United States and the Netherlands will celebrate the 200th anniversary of continuously peaceful diplomatic relations between the two countries. The Dutch have contributed to the American social, political and cultural scene in diverse ways. One of the very earliest, of course, was the original Dutch settlement in New Amsterdam, now New York City.

At a dinner recently, I had the opportunity to meet a Dutch-born executive, Eddy J. M. Florijn, and his Dutch wife, Marianne. Eddy, an excellent cook, is general manager of the flagship hotel of Hilton International's Vista group in the United States, Vista International New York. The hotel is located on the site of the original Dutch settlement, New Amsterdam.

DUTCH MEATBALLS
(Gehakte Ballen)

½ lb. ground beef
½ lb. ground pork
¼ cup minced onion
½ clove garlic, minced
1 egg
2 slices white bread
4 tablespoons milk
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon ground black pepper
Dash ground nutmeg
Fine dry bread crumbs
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 tablespoons vegetable oil
1 cup beef broth

1. In large bowl, combine beef, pork, onion, garlic, egg, bread soaked in milk, salt, pepper and nutmeg. Mix well.
2. Shape meat mixture into four large meatballs. Coat meatballs with breadcrumbs.
3. In large skillet, heat butter and oil until hot, but not smoking. Brown meatballs over medium-high heat, turning with two wooden spoons until well browned on all sides.
4. Reduce heat, add beef broth, cover and simmer over very low heat for 30 to 45 minutes. Serve with boiled potatoes and a green vegetable. Kale is very popular in Holland. Makes 4 servings

Note: Marianne says, "This is a great dish to make ahead and keep warm when you don't know exactly when your husband or guests will be arriving for dinner."

CHEESE TRUFFLES
(Kaastruffels)

¼ lb. butter, softened
3 to 4 tablespoons grated Gouda, Edam or Parmesan cheese
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon dry mustard
Dash ground black pepper
1 cup fine pumpernickel bread crumbs

1. In mixer bowl or bowl of food processor, beat together butter, cheese, salt, mustard and pepper.
2. Chill mixture slightly until it can be shaped into bite-size balls.
3. Roll balls in pumpernickel crumbs. Arrange balls on a plate, cover with plastic and refrigerate until firm. Serve as an appetizer with drinks.

Makes about 18 balls

DUTCH PANCAKES
(Pannekoeken)

1 pkg. active dry yeast
¼ cup very warm water
2 cups unsifted all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon salt
1½ cups lukewarm milk
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 apples, peeled, cored and sliced
8 strips bacon, halved
Butter
Brown sugar
Molasses or pancake syrup

1. Dissolve yeast in warm water. Sift together flour and salt; combine with half the milk and the dissolved yeast, beating in remaining milk slowly. Let stand in warm place for 45 minutes to rise.
2. In a 10-inch skillet, melt 2 tablespoons butter and heat until hot, but not smoking. Pour in about ¾ to 1 cup of batter or enough to cover the bottom of the pan.
3. Cook pancake until golden brown on the bottom. Using a large spatula, turn and brown quickly on the other side. Turn out onto large, heated serving plate. Serve immediately with butter and brown sugar or molasses. Cut into wedges.
4. To make Appelpannekoeken (apple pancakes), place ¼ cup apple slices in melted butter in skillet, pour batter over them and cook pancake as described above.
5. To make Spekpannekoeken (bacon pancakes), cook bacon until crisp; drain. Pour off most of drippings. Add 1 tablespoon butter to remaining drippings. Pour batter into skillet over 4 bacon strips. Cook and serve pancake as described above.

Makes 4 large pancakes

Safe-Deposit Boxes: Just How Safe Are They?

By Rosalyn Abrevaya

Many of us dismiss the idea of renting a safe-deposit box as an indulgence for the rich. But whether we realize it or not, most of us own something valuable enough to make a safe-deposit box worth considering. Jewelry isn't the only item that might be better off stored in a safe place. Such valuable documents as the deed to a house, savings certificates, stocks and bonds, insurance policies for a home, car or other property or warranties on major purchases can also make the rental worthwhile. Some people might want to lock up cherished rare possessions such as a coin collection, military decorations or old photographs and letters. It's also advisable to store an inventory list of your personal property (ideally it should be accompanied by photographs) in the safe-deposit box to be used in the event your house is robbed or your property damaged or destroyed by fire.

If you do decide to consider renting a safe-deposit box, be prepared to shop around. "The demand for safe-deposit boxes has dramatically increased in the last few years, and at most banks and savings and loan associations there is a waiting list," notes Jay Jones, president of the New York State Safe Deposit Association. "In fact, because of the increased demand, independent safe-deposit companies are springing up, offering accessibility to your valuables 24 hours a day — but the rates are much higher than at your local bank."

Although safe-deposit boxes come in various sizes, they average 21 to 24 inches in length, about 2 to 10 inches in depth and 4½ to 10 inches in width. Rental costs, depending on the size of the box, range from about $12 to about $90 a year.

When you pay a visit to the vault, the guard matches your signature against the signature on your contract file card. After entering the vault, the guard opens the enclosure. You then take the box to a small private booth where you can remove or add items.

"Although a safe-deposit box is one of the most secure places to keep your valuables," Jones says, he cautions us to be aware of some points:

Generally banks do not take out insurance to protect the contents of renters' safe-deposit boxes, so in the event of a theft or a vault break-in, it might be wise to keep an inventory of property left in your box — that includes serial numbers of securities, sales receipts and jewelry appraisals. Keep the list at home. You might also think about taking out inexpensive insurance on the contents. The average cost to insure $50,000 worth of securities or valuables is $25 a year.

There are also two important items you should not leave in the box, both of which pertain to your estate. In some states, as soon as a bank is notified of a customer's death, the deceased's accounts are frozen and his or her safe-deposit box is sealed. Since your beneficiaries need immediate access to the will and life-insurance policies, originals of these should not be stored.

When you pay a visit to your bank vault, here are some safety tips to follow:

1. Never lose sight of the attendant using your key.
2. Make sure your key is returned to you before you take your safe-deposit box into the booth.
3. Avoid opening the box except in the privacy of the booth.
4. Don't let the guard carry the box ahead of you — don't lose sight of it even for a moment. FW

"Batter Up!"

painted entirely by hand
Just $19.95

Remember her? The pretty little girl who was a tomboy at heart... whose biggest ambition was to play baseball with the boys? Here she is all dressed up for a party in her starchy white pinafore and perky blue hair bows—practicing how to hit a homer if she ever gets the chance!

"Batter Up!" has been sculptured with tenderness and humor by Angela Adams, the noted children's artist, exclusively for The Collectors Studio. It is skillfully crafted in porcelain to capture every feature and detail of the artist's work—and painted entirely by hand in true-to-life colors. Right down to the little tomboy's tawny freckles and ruffled white petticoat peeking out from below her pretty blue party dress.

This delightfully whimsical figurine will transport you back across the years on a magic carpet of memory. And you'll love displaying it in your home—because anyone who appreciates fine porcelain will be captivated by it. And everyone will respond to the appealing little girl who would rather play baseball than go to a party.

"Batter Up!" is approximately 4" tall. And the price for this hand-painted porcelain figurine is just $19.95—considerably less than the $35 to $60 which works of comparable quality sell for in retail stores.

Examine it free for 15 days

"Batter Up!" will be sent to you to examine in your home without charge for 15 days. If you decide to keep it, you will be billed $19.95. And then you will receive another hand-painted porcelain figurine each month for 11 months on the same free-examination basis. If you decide not to keep "Batter Up!," you may return it within 15 days and owe nothing. Furthermore, you may cancel your subscription at any time.

Please note that "Batter Up!" is available only from The Collectors Studio, and only by mail. Because it will be crafted exclusively for us in Taiwan, it's important that you mail your order by May 31, 1982 to assure prompt delivery. Simply mail the free-examination form at the right to The Collectors Studio Inc., 800 Third Avenue, New York, N.Y. by May 31st.

The Collectors Studio stands behind the quality of its works. You may return any figurine, for any reason, within 15 days for your choice of replacement or a full refund.

The Great Fabric Stick-Up

You can make a bouquet of projects with fabric — including flowers.

Cover a table, decorate the walls, make a basket of flowers or turn out yards and yards of gift-wrapping ribbon. You can do all these things and more with inexpensive fabrics, some homemade paste and a brush.

To make the paste, you mix flour, water and sugar (our instructions will give you the details). Then use this mixture to attach fabric to any surface you want to cover: walls, window shades, bottles, wastebaskets, telephone books, picture frames. The advantage to using the homemade paste is that the fabric will stick and stay where you put it, but it can also be easily removed. One great idea: Give a smart look to your closet shelves inexpensively by covering shoe boxes and accessory boxes with a decorative fabric.

You can also use the paste to stiffen fabric (rendering it resistant to unraveling). Using this technique you can make a number of fabric craft projects without having to hem the edges: cloth flowers, ribbons, colorful napkin rings, hair clips and lapel pins.

One of the best ways to use the stiffened fabric is to make ribbons and bows for gift wrapping. For instance, using this second method you can make 45 yards of one-inch-wide ribbon from one yard of 45-inch fabric, a great way to save money, because ribbon by the yard is so expensive. With the stiffened ribbon you can also make wonderful bows with the aid of a stapler and a length of wire, a chenille stem or a pipe cleaner, to give any package a distinctive look.

Detailed instructions for making all these projects, along with photographs and illustrations, are included in the booklet, "The Great Fabric Stick-Up" (#355). For your copy, send $1.25 for postage and handling to:

MIRACLE

GIVE YOU ARMFULS OF

LUSCIOUS FRUIT IN JUST 90 DAYS!

It's one of the most incredible sights you've ever seen. Imagine! The amazing CLIMBING VINE PEACH nature's own wonder plant that was first discovered in Asia then test-grown at U.S. Dept. of Agriculture's Plant Research Station and that this year will reward you with armfuls of the most unique and magnificent looking fruit starting in just 90 days!

THINK OF IT! YOU PLANT THIS SPRING—

PICK FRUIT THIS JULY—and it keeps on producing all summer long!

Yes! Dozens of luscious golden beauties from each and every plant! Each and every fruit the size of a ripe, juicy orange. Also—masses of golden flowers that adorn your fences, trellises, garden walls in a dazzling yellow cascade. And because it's a climber, it means that from just a square foot or two in your garden, per plant, you'll pick fruit week in, week out July to frost.

ONE OF THE EASIEST, FAST TO GROW FRUITS YOU'VE EVER SEEN!

Best of all, these sensational CLIMBING VINE PEACHES require no special care, no pruning, no cutting. They're so easy to grow, a child can do it. They thrive magnificently in virtually any soil, so all you have to do is drop them in the ground, stake them, water them and forget them. It's as easy as that.

SORRY, BUT SUPPLIES ARE SO LIMITED WE MAY NOT BE ABLE TO REPEAT THIS OFFER THIS YEAR—YOU MUST ACT NOW!

Now, the price of these wondrous CLIMBING VINE PEACHES is not the $5 or $10 apiece you might expect, but a mere $2.00 for each to grow and bear fruit this summer. Think of it. A mere $2.00 apiece for magnificent, super growing climbing vine peaches that come to you direct from the nursery in their own growing pots, all set for you to simply plunk into the ground, and reward you with armfuls of luscious fruit starting JUST 90 DAYS FROM PLANTING. However, because supplies of CLIMBING VINE PEACHES are extremely limited, this offer may not be repeated this year. And since now the time to plant is almost upon us, you must act immediately!

GROWTH HABITS

FLOWERS & FOLIAGE

FRUIT

Shape and size of an orange. Flesh whitish. Ideal for zingy summer salads. Delicious when pickled or preserved, also a great gift for friends.

GENERAL CHARACTERISTICS

Truly a garden rarity not normally found in U.S. This plant, commonly called the Vine Peach, should not be confused with the stone fruit peaches obtained from trees (Prunus persica). According to horticulturists it is in reality a variety of the melon family so unique you've never seen anything quite like it in all your life. Guaranteed to be the garden sensation of your neighborhood.

PLANT-PICK LUSCIOUS FRUITS LIKE THESE BY THIS JULY!

Yes, this sensational CLIMBING VINE PEACH grows so fast and bears fruit so quickly, that just 90 days after planting you'll actually start picking fruit by the armful, and keep on picking it all summer long! For full details on this amazing wonder-fruit, read what the experts have to say about it, then take advantage of no-risk trial offer below.

WHAT IN THE WORLD

By Eliot Kaplan

AFTERNOON DELIGHT

Americans are tired, says a noted sleep expert, and could stand to lie down for the midday siesta common in many Southern Hemisphere countries.

Almost three-quarters of us have to be awakened by an alarm clock, for instance, reports Dr. Wilse Webb, professor of psychology at the University of Florida. If we were getting the proper amount of sleep, he says, we would wake up without prompting. Evidence indicates that the need for a nap is part of our body cycle, although our energy slump seems to come closer to 3 or 4 P.M., rather than immediately after lunch as was thought previously.

"The nap is the last period of sleep given up by youngsters," says Webb, "and it is quickly returned to in old age [75 percent of 50- to 60-year-olds nap] and when our schedules permit it [40 percent of college students Webb surveyed are nappers]."

FRIGHTENING REPERCUSSIONS

Much the way kids stuff themselves with candy even though they know it will bring on a stomach ache, 80 percent of children report they like scary movies and TV shows, although over half suffer afterward from nightmares, nervousness or sleeplessness.

Wisconsin researchers Joanne Cantor and Sandra Reilly recently surveyed 275 sixth and 10th graders and 100 of their parents. Fifty-five percent of the kids reported these enduring fright reactions when they were age 6 or under, although far fewer experienced them recently.

Among the scariest shows to kids are feature films shown on TV such as Jaws, along with The Incredible Hulk, The Wizard of Oz and ads for horror movies. Rarely do children tell parents of their fright, says Cantor, because they don't want to appear babyish or have their future viewing restricted.

"Children are attracted to scary media and repelled by them at the same time," Cantor told us. "It seems similar to the morbid curiosity adults show by gathering around the scene of a gory accident."

Ron Galella

TAMING OF THE SHOE

Recently, during a performance of her Broadway play, The West Side Waltz, Kate spotted a front-row viewer plop his feet on the lip of the stage. She turned to him and growled, "You must take your feet off the stage," and without skipping a beat went on with her lines. But after the show, she stopped the applause, looked at the poor guy and roared, "You must never again do a thing like that in a theater. I was expecting that the next thing you'd want was for me to bring you a pipe and slippers. You shouldn't be a boor. You shouldn't pick on us like that because we are sitting ducks up here."

After a moment of silence, the audience broke into cheers. Later, the unidentified, chastised boor slipped off into the night.

PRISON ILLS NO CON JOB

Besides the penance of incarceration, prison inmates are also being punished by contracting illnesses two to three times as often as the general public.

After nine months interviewing inmates of a Massachusetts prison, sociologist Wornie Reed of Washington University in St. Louis found a distinct social structure among the prisoners, and he believes that in the big house, as on the outside, those on the bottom rungs suffer health problems most often.

On top of the prison hierarchy is the "daring" criminal — one who kills a cop in a gunfight or pulls off a brilliant heist. Next come those convicted of breaking and entering. At the bottom are rapists and child molesters. "That could have been my mother or sister," inmates told Reed.

As to why prison breeds illness, Reed blames the "ritual destruction of identity" and the added stress brought on by a complete lack of privacy.

YOU MUST REMEMBER THIS

The secret to creating an effective ad — hire ex-jocks or Bill Cosby. Or so says a survey by Video Storyboard Tests of the most-remembered TV ads of 1981. The winner was the Miller Lite campaign with all those former athletes hoisting beer and talking funny. Number two was the Coke ad with Bill Cosby, whose smiling face also pushed Jell-O pudding to number 15 and Ford to 21.

Of course, what we remember about a commercial doesn't always do a company much good. For instance, 10 percent recalling the James Garner/Mariette Hartley camera ads thought they were for Kodak, not Polaroid.

Bill Wrenn

1. Miller Lite.
2. Coca-Cola.
3. Pepsi-Cola.
4. Dr. Pepper.
5. McDonald's.
6. Bell System.
7. Polaroid.
8. French's Mustard.
9. Seven-Up.
10. Oscar Mayer.

TRY YOUR HAND AT MATH-MAGIC!

Numbers in the diagram above are arranged so that the middle horizontal row equals twice the top row. And the bottom row is the sum of the top two rows.

It is possible to rearrange the digits in each row so that three new rows of figures result, with the middle row again double the top row, and the bottom row equal to the sum of the upper two rows.

Top row: 219; next 438; then 657

● Sea Here! Half the sailboats on display are sunfish, one-fourth are lightnings, one-seventh are snipes and three are yawls. How many in all?

Twenty-eight — 14 sunfish, 7 lightnings, 4 snipes and 3 yawls.

● What Foe? Puzzling as it may seem, a FRIEND may become a demon of sorts by dropping just one letter. Which letter?

Drop the R and FRIEND becomes FIEND
