Early 'Bridgehead' On Falklands Seen

By The Associated Press

Britain tightened its grip on the Falkland Islands dependency of South Georgia today, taking the icy South Atlantic island's second harbor of Leith, the Defense Ministry announced in London.

The ministry said 150 to 200 Argentines have had been taken prisoner since the marine landing Sunday after British helicopters attacked an Argentine submarine at the main port of Grytviken, 15 miles south of Leith. Britain said the Argentines there surrendered.

"We believe the numbers to be in the order of 150 to 200 including those from the damaged submarine (Santa Fe). They are regarded as prisoners but not prisoners-of-war," the ministry said in a statement.

Press Association defense correspondent Robert Hutchinson said British forces would likely attack the main Falkland Islands, 800 miles northwest of South Georgia, "within the next 48 hours."

The Defense Ministry said earlier today "There are no reports of any casualties at Leith," indicating there may have been fighting. The spokesman added, "The Union Jack is flying again on South Georgia."

A spokesman for the British Foreign Office said: "I would not say we are in a state of war and the position remains that we are determined to do all we can to settle the crisis by negotiation." Argentina's foreign minister said upon arrival in Washington, where the Organization of American States was to convene today, that talks are suspended.

Quoting an unnamed government official, Hutchinson said the likelihood is that British troops will establish "some kind of bridgehead" in a remote areas of the Falklands to pressure the Argentines to come to diplomatic terms over sovereignty of the South Atlantic colony. The islands, ruled by Britain since 1833, were long claimed by Argentina, which seized them on April 2 and 3.

Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher was meeting with her war Cabinet today as the 24-day-old crisis escalated and was scheduled to address the House of Commons later in the day.

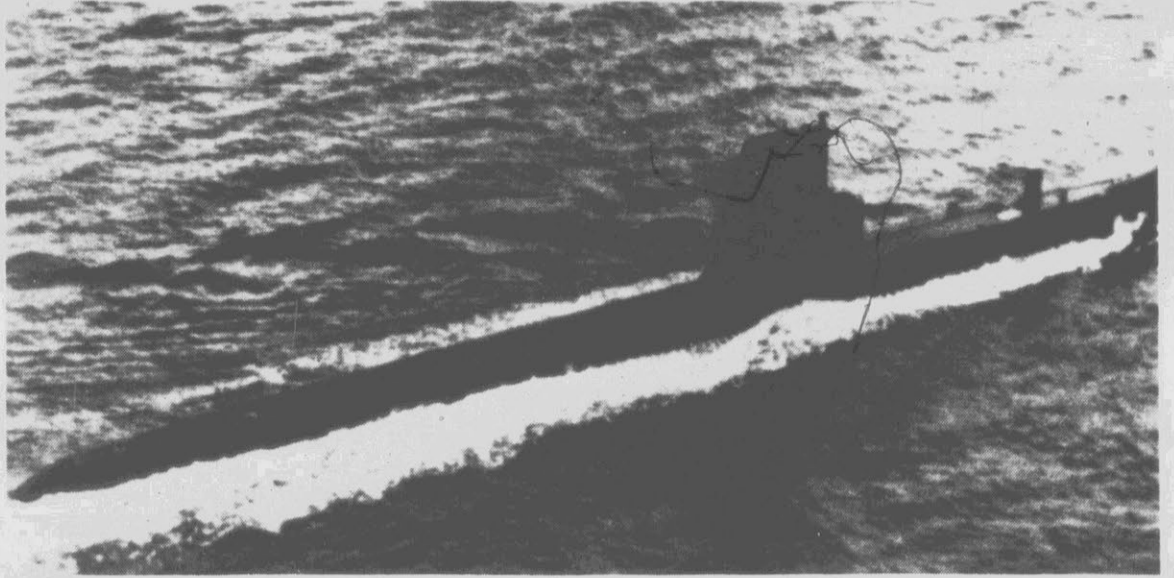

Sunday's British announcement of the recapture of Grytviken said the small Argentine garrison there surrendered, and British helicopter-gunships badly damaged one of Argentina's four submarines.

The Argentine government disputed that British claim, reporting late Sunday night that its forces had "fallen back" and "continue to fight in interior zones" of the icy, 120-mile-long South Atlantic island 1,140 miles to the east of Cape Horn. But it said communications with the garrison had been cut "for tactical reasons."

Argentine military sources, who asked not to be identified, said there were about 130 troops on the island and they destroyed the principal port installations before splitting into three groups and retreating.

The British Defense Ministry said the Argentines put up "only limited resistance" to the assault Sunday and there was only one serious casualty, an Argentine seaman who suffered leg injuries in the attack on the sub.

It said the sub, the Santa Fe, was "smoking, listing heavily, leaking oil and possibly aground." The Argentine military sources said the crew scuttled it to prevent the British capturing it.

Judge Ponders Telling Hinckley Jury Of Result

By LARRY MARGASAK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prosecutors say presidential assailant John W. Hinckley Jr. could go free if found innocent by reason of insanity, and they want jurors at his trial to know that before deciding his fate.

U.S. District Judge Barrington D. Parker still must decide what jurors at the upcoming trial should know about the consequences of their verdict and about the workings of Hinckley's troubled mind.

Those questions were to be discussed today at a pre-trial hearing, the last proceeding before 90 prospective jurors arrive Tuesday at the federal courthouse for the start of the actual trial.

They will enter a gray, stone building — site of the Watergate trials — that has been turned into an armed camp to protect Hinckley.

The trial is expected to last at least a month, with perhaps the first week being devoted to selecting the jury that ultimately will decide whether Hinckley is guilty, innocent or innocent by reason of insanity.

Hinckley, 26, is charged in a 13-count indictment in the March 30, 1981, shooting of President Reagan, White House press secretary James Brady, a Secret Service agent and a Washington policeman.

Hinckley has admitted the shootings, but contends he is innocent by reason of insanity and not legally responsible for his actions.

Until March 5, a successful insanity defense automatically would have landed Hinckley in a mental institution — possibly St. Elizabeths, a federal facility in Washington.

But prosecutors filed a motion Friday pointing out that a March 5 ruling by the U.S. Court of Appeals here could enable Hinckley to avoid automatic commitment.

The government, which still contends automatic commitment is legal, says Parker must now decide that question. If the judge rules out automatic commitment, prosecutors want him to give this instruction to the jury at the end of the trial:

"If the defendant is found not guilty by reason of insanity on any of the counts charging violations of federal law, he will not be automatically committed to St. Elizabeths Hospital in Washington or any other institution.

"He will be released from custody and will no longer be under the jurisdiction of the court."

The appeals court ruling said the automatic commitment standard was unconstitutional because it applied to defendants charged with federal crimes in Washington, but not to federal defendants elsewhere.

The impact is not certain in Hinckley's case, however, because he is charged with both local and federal offenses.

In federal courts outside of Washington, defendants found innocent by reason of insanity are turned over to civil commitment officials, who make an initial determination on sending someone to a mental facility.

The matter then goes to a judge or a jury for a civil commitment proceeding.

To have Hinckley committed, the government would have to show he is presently mentally ill and, because of this, is likely to injure himself or others if not detained.

Hinckley was helicoptered Friday night from his cell at Fort Meade, Md., to Johns Hopkins University Hospital in Baltimore for a "CAT scan," a form of computer enhanced X-ray widely used in neurological studies. He spent about two hours at the hospital.

Prosecutors also have asked Parker to reconsider his decision last week to allow jurors to go home each night instead of keeping them at a motel under the court's custody.

N.C. General Assembly In Fourth Special Session

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The General Assembly will begin deciding tonight how to respond to the federal government's rejection of North Carolina's latest legislative redistricting plan.

The legislature will meet in its fourth special session since the six-month regular term ended last July. It is the third special session to deal with redistricting, as another special session was devoted to the state budget.

Lawmakers face decisions on a date for the postponed statewide primary and on what their next move will be in the dispute with the U.S. Justice Department over House and Senate districts.

Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green and House Speaker Liston Ramsey plan to brief the Senate and House on their options as soon as the session convenes.

Tuesday morning, each chamber's reapportionment committees are scheduled to meet.

Legislative lawyers say they have three basic options:

— They can revise their redistricting plans in the two areas

— Cumberland County in the House map and the northeastern corner on the Senate map — objected to by the Justice Department.

— They can appeal the federal decision by going into federal court in the District of Columbia.

— Or they can ask the federal court in Raleigh for a ruling approving their current plans on an interim basis as they are and ordering the primary to be held.

"If they vote to appeal it, we'll go home," said Senate President Pro Tem Craig Lawing, D-Mecklenburg. "If they vote to fix it, the committees can come in and get to work."

Although no decision has been made, several proposed revised maps have been circulating among legislators and staff lawyers.

The special session comes at a time when the state Legislative Building is in the midst of a nearly $400,000 refurbishment.

The lawmakers will be "staring at each other in their offices through the holes in the walls," quipped John Allen, legislative services officer who directs the Legislative Building and its staff.

Hotline gets things done for you. Call 752-1336 and tell your problem or your sound-off or mail it to Hotline, The Daily Reflector, Box 1967, Greenville, N.C. 27834.

Because of the large numbers received, Hotline can answer and publish only those items considered most pertinent to our readers. Names must be given, but only initials will be used.

SMM SOLD

Over the past month Hotline has received more than a dozen complaints about mail orders made to SMM Mail Order Marketing in San Fernando, Calif. We have been informed by Family Weekly magazine, the Daily Reflector Sunday supplement, which was the advertiser that appears to have prompted most of the orders, that SMM recently has been acquired by Gold Equities Inc., a public corporation with headquarters in Rancho Cucamonga, Calif.

This company is asking that everyone who has complaints against SMM allow 30 days for them to try to fulfill the orders brought forward. They suggest that if anyone's complaint is still pending after that period that you send them all the information on your order and a copy of both sides of your canceled check, or a copy of your charge card statement or money order receipt. Their Customer Service Department address is Customer Service Department, SMM Mail Order Marketing, 11828 Glenoaks Blvd., San Fernando, CA 91340.

Hotline suggests that each person whom this item affects clip it and send in the requested information 30 days from today, not before May 26.

Having provided this information, Hotline will let those affected take responsibility for solving their own problems with the SMM if the orders are not filled within the next month.

Arrest Suspect In Lighthouse 'Funds Appeal'

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

A man believed to be the person who advertised an appeal for funds titled "The Downeast Lighthouse Fund" in The Daily Reflector and The Reflector Shopper's Guide in late March was arrested in Pine Knoll Shores along with his wife about the same time the ads were published.

Arrested on a Virginia fugitive warrant in the parking lot of the Whaler Inn by Carteret County Sheriff Deputy Steve Gillikin were William Herbert Griffin Jr., 42, and his wife, Barbara. Griffin waived extradition to Mecklenburg County, Va., where he was reported wanted on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses. Mecklenburg County Sheriff H.T. Harris said Griffin is still in jail under a $100,000 cash bond or $200,000 property bond. A hearing had been set for April 23, but was continued to a later date.

Mrs. Griffin was released on a reduced bond of $25,000. Griffin is charged with embezzlement of $25,000 from Theodore Ehlers of Mecklenburg County. Both Griffin and his wife are charged with defrauding Ralph Callahan and Margaret Callahan of $25,000; defrauding Pehr H. Pehrsson of $25,000; and removing property, an automobile, under lien without the consent of the lien holder.

Sheriff Harris said the couple ran a real estate office in Mecklenburg County in south central Virginia. All the charges, he said, except the one involving the car, center around real estate dealings. His office has had the fugitive warrant about a year, he said.

Sheriff Deputy Steve Gillikin said "Save the Lighthouse" literature was found in the car Griffin was driving when he was arrested.

An ad placed the previous week was run in The Daily Reflector March 28 and in the Shopper's Guide March 31. Griffin was arrested in Carteret County March 26 and extradited to Virginia March 27.

The ad offered a film coupon book for 100 rolls of photographic film of any size in exchange for a "one-time donation of $20" to a fund that the ad placer claimed would be used to save both the Cape Hatteras and the Cape Lookout lighthouses. The ad stated that the fund was sponsored by a non-profit organization. The address on the ad was listed as P.O. Box 432, Salter Path, N.C. and the man who placed the ad gave his name as W.H. Griffin.

The IRS says the organization does not have tax-exempt status. The state Save Cape Hatteras Lighthouse Committee, as was stated in the April 16 Hotline column of this newspaper, has disclaimed any connection with or official knowledge of the organization.

Alan Hirsch in the N.C. Department of the Attorney General said the Special Investigations Division of his department is investigating the "Downeast Lighthouse Fund." He asked that anyone who has sent money to the fund provide all pertinent information as soon as possible to Barbara Hunt, Consumer Protection Division, N.C. Department of the Attorney General, P.O. Box 629, Raleigh, N.C. 27602.

Couple Speaks Vows In Outdoor Ceremony

GRIMESLAND — Debra Joyce Spain and Donald Earl Baker said their wedding vows in an outdoor ceremony performed at the home of the bridegroom Sunday afternoon at three o'clock. The Rev. Paul Brafford officiated the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Otis Vance Spain of Greenville. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Joe Robert Baker of Grimesland.

A program of wedding music was presented by Emily Barwick, pianist, and Tina Forrest sang "Endless Love" and "The Wedding Prayer."

Gwen Memola of Greenville, sister of the bridegroom, served as matron of honor. Bridesmaids included Terry and Shiela Spain of Greenville, sisters of the bride, and Pam Kelly of Cary, cousin of the bride. Lorie Thompson of Greenville, cousin of the bride, was the flower girl.

The father of the bridegroom served as best man. Ushers were Randy Spain of Winterville, brother of the bride, Steve Baker of Grimesland, brother of the bridegroom, and Cliff Forrest of Greenville.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an Alfred de Lorenzo original formal gown of ivory organza over ivory peau de soie with a Queen Anne neckline and a chantilly lace bodice with star shaped motifs of seeded pearls. The formal skirt ended in a cathedral length train trimmed in chantilly lace. Self-fabric covered buttons extended down the back and accented the cuffs of the belled sleeves. She wore a matching ivory laced cap with a fingertip illusion veil and carried a bouquet of white miniature carnations, daisies and blue tipped cushion poms accented with baby's breath, greenery and satin streamers.

The matron of honor wore a formal gown of pink silesta chiffon and carried an arm bouquet of pink carnations accented with fern and pink streamers. The bridesmaids wore formal gowns of silesta chiffon in contrasting colors and carried the same bouquets with rainbow streamers. The flower girl wore a formal blue gown with a ruffle trimmed in lace and carried a basket of white daisies and pink cushion poms with pink streamers.

The mothers and grandmothers of the bride and bridegroom wore white carnation corsages.

A reception, given by the parents of the bride, followed the ceremony. The wedding table was decorated with an arrangement of mixed spring flowers. Cake was served and punch was poured by aunts of the bride. Angie Griffin, cousin of the bride, presided at the guest register.

An after-rehersal party was given by the bridegroom's parents Saturday evening at their home. Members of the wedding party and out-of-town guests were invited.

After a wedding trip to Myrtle Beach, S.C. the couple will reside in Ayden.

The bride is a graduate of J.H. Rose High School and is currently employed by Farley, Prescott, Mizelle and Co., Inc. The bridegroom is a graduate of D.H. Conley High School and is now employed with Burroughs Wellcome.

Cooking Is Fun

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

We've tried several recipes for yeast bread calling for orange juice. But our favorite orange loaf recipe to date calls for half an orange, peel and all, ground finely enough to be a puree. We use our food processor for the grinding, but a hand-operated food grinder may be used.

The following recipe gives the method for making the bread by hand. However, if you have a food processor and are accustomed to mixing and kneading bread dough in it, you can easily convert this recipe for such use.

About the raisins in the loaf; they are our own addition and, according to our tasters, an admirable one.

RAISIN AND

Bridal Policy

A black and white glossy five by seven photograph is requested for engagement announcements. For publication in a Sunday edition, the information must be submitted by 12 noon on the preceding Wednesday. Engagement pictures must be released at least three weeks prior to the wedding date. After three weeks, only an announcement will be printed.

Wedding write-ups will be printed through the first week with a five by seven picture. During the second week with a wallet size picture and write-up giving less description and after the second week, just as an announcement. Wedding forms and pictures should be returned to "The Daily Reflector" one week prior to the date of the wedding. All information should be typed or written neatly.

- ORANGE BREAD
1 package dry yeast
1/2 cup warm (105 to 115 degrees) water
1/2 cup finely ground unpeeled orange (1/2 of a fairly large thick-skinned seedless orange)
1/4 cup honey
2 tablespoons butter, melted
1 large egg
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup raisins
2 1/2 cups (about) all-purpose flour

In a large bowl dissolve the yeast in the water. Add the orange, honey and butter and spoon-beat to blend. Add the unbeaten egg and salt and spoon-beat to blend. Add the raisins. Gradually work in enough of the flour to make a soft dough.

Turn out on a prepared pastry cloth and knead until smooth and satiny — about 10 minutes. Place in a buttered bowl and turn to butter top; cover and let rise in a draft-free warm (about 80 degrees) place until doubled — about 1 hour. (To test, press a fingertip 1/2 inch into the dough; if the dent stays, the dough has doubled.)

Punch down; let rest 10 minutes. Shape into a loaf, tucking in raisins under top and bottom of dough. Place in a buttered 8 1/2 by 4 1/2 by 2 1/2-inch loaf pan. Let rise as previously until doubled — about 45 minutes.

Bake on the rack below center in a preheated 350-degree oven until browned and a cake tester inserted in the center comes out clean — about 50 minutes. Turn out on a wire rack; turn right side up; cool completely. Delicious served fresh from the oven or stored and toasted lightly. You may wish to serve this bread with a spread of sweet butter blended with honey and grated orange rind.

Makes 1 loaf.

Proclamation Signed By Mayor Cox

Greenville Mayor Percy R. Cox has signed a proclamation recognizing Friday as the start of Beta Sigma Phi Year. Government officials around the world are also signing proclamations.

The international women's social, service and cultural organization celebrates its anniversary with Founder's Day activities. The celebration here will be held at the Ramada Inn by Eta Delta.

Linda McGehee, president, will be serving as toastmistress and other members taking part in the program are Carol Bishton, Ann Pfeifer, Joyce Sawyer and Mary Ellen Joyce. Kay Fogg will present a special message from the International Executive Council of Beta Sigma Phi and awards will be presented to outstanding members in recognition for their sorority work this past year.

Rituals will also be held for Libby Kinley, Bonnie Martin, Jo Perrin and Patti Weisenberger.

Some of the Greenville chapter projects are Cerebral Palsy Center, Hospice, Eastern Carolina Vocational Center and Pitt County Department of Social Services.

Internationally, the chapters have created several special funds to which they contribute including the International Loan Fund and the International Endowment Fund.

Pat's Pointers

By Pat Trexler

Looking for a new and different idea for a baby gift? Here's the perfect answer. Cover a satin baby pillow with a lacy snowflake crochet design and stuff a whimsical crocheted puppy in the pillow opening. Top it off with an enchanting angel mobile, laced and tied with ribbon. The mobile can double as a lovely Christmas decoration to be used yearly and any part of the set will be big hits for charity bazaars.

To obtain directions for making the pillow cover, puppy and angel mobile, send your request for Leaflet No. APR-11 with $1 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Pat Trexler, ("The Daily Reflector"), P.O. Box 810, North Myrtle Beach, S.C. 29582.

Or you can order Kit No. KPR-11 by sending a check or money order for $14.50 to Pat Trexler at the same address. The kit price includes sufficient cotton crochet yarns to make all items plus embroidery floss, felt, leaflet and shipping charges. The pillow form is not included.

Help, Pat! I have inherited some apparently incomplete crochet instructions, which say to finish with a picot edging but do not include the directions for working the edging. Can you tell me how to do this? — Lee W., Chicago, Ill.

Dear Lee: There are many ways to make a picot stitch, but most are based on making a certain number of chain stitches between single crochet or slip stitches.

For one of the simplest, make a chain of about 20 stitches. Work a slip stitch in the fifth chain from the hook. (Chain 3 and work a slip stitch in the same stitch; work a single crochet in the next stitch and a slip stitch in the following stitch.) Repeat the steps in parentheses over and over all across the row.

Still another picot edging is this one: slip stitch in the second chain from the hook. (Chain 6, slip stitch in fifth chain from hook, chain 1, single crochet in next chain.) Again repeat the steps in parentheses across the row.

In both of the above edgings, you were working on a chain for practice. In actual use, you will be working into a row of previously worked stitches, which may be single, double, treble or any combination of stitches. As you practice, you will see that you can create picots of almost any depth or width by varying the number of chains and single crochets worked. Since your instructions are missing, I suggest that you experiment until you find the stitch that gives you the desired effect.

Dear Pat: Here is a method I use when knitting a multi-row pattern that looks the same on both sides. I use two different colored needles of the same size. No need to guess which is the right and which is the wrong side.

This is especially helpful in doing a stitch such as the double seed. You can tell by the color of the needle when to start a row by purling and when to start it by knitting.

I always enjoy the suggestions in your column and hope this may be of some help to your other readers. — Donna B., San Diego, Calif.

Dear Abby

Keeping The Faith Can Stunt Spirit

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1982 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I was amazed at your response to the 15-year-old girl who felt guilty for dating out of her faith against her parents' wishes. She said she was proud of her heritage and had no intentions of marrying out of her faith, but at 15 she wasn't considering marriage.

You replied: "You will avoid a lot of possible heartache by dating only boys you may one day marry. The heart doesn't care what the head is thinking."

I deplore your bigoted point of view. If we limit our dating only to people who share the same religion, philosophy and political views, we will not grow or learn. We need to associate with people who make us think and question our own beliefs.

Children should be taught to choose their friends for their character, worthiness, intelligence and caring rather than for their religion, color of skin, social status, style of dress or any other basis for prejudice.

There are many reasons why people date a member of the opposite sex, Abby. It isn't always a prelude to romance and marriage.

DISAPPOINTED IN YOU

DEAR DISAPPOINTED: Move over. Many others were also disappointed. Read on for a letter from someone who agreed with my "bigoted" point of view:

DEAR ABBY: I'm glad you advised that 15-year-old girl against dating boys of a different religion if she had no intentions of marrying out of her faith.

I was raised in a strict Baptist home, but dated boys I knew I could not marry.

I fell deeply in love with a Jewish boy, but I married someone else.

That was over 30 years ago, and I still dream of my first love. Now I wish I had either married him or not set myself up to fall in love with a man I could not marry.

I REMEMBER MOREY

DEAR ABBY: My mother always used to ripen tomatoes quickly by setting them on the windowsill with the "belly-button side" up, so that's the way I've always done it.

A friend recently told me that tomatoes ripen faster if they are placed with the belly-button side down. Who is right?

SANDRA

DEAR SANDRA: It makes no difference which side is up. To ripen tomatoes quickly, place them in a brown paper bag, with the top closed.

DEAR ABBY: Please tell "Honest Amy," who gives her telephone number to men just to avoid hurting their feelings, then ducks them when they call, that it's cruel and dishonest to give a man hope when none exists.

There's nothing worse than having your hopes built up at the first meeting, then getting the runaround when you phone the lady for a date.

When I ask a girl for her phone number, a polite but honest, "Thanks for asking, but the chemistry is just not right for me," would be perfectly acceptable.

Disappointing? Of course, but I have nothing but respect for women who are honest enough to let me know immediately what my chances are.

APPRECIATES HONESTY IN ALASKA

DEAR APPRECIATE: I'll bet you do. Especially when the nights are six months long.

Hard Bargaining Ahead

A new awareness is arising concerning the threat of nuclear conflict. It is a concern that is well placed.

Since the first atomic weapon was dropped on Japan in World War II mankind has come to recognize that we had unleashed an awesome force that could destroy the world.

Since then the weapon has become far more awesome and it is generally conceded that we would see the end of civilization if nuclear weapons were ever unleashed.

It is not fair, however, to paint the Reagan administration as pro nuclear weapons. In a radio address recently he made it clear that a joint nuclear arms reduction treaty must be negotiated "to end this threat of doomsday which hangs over the world."

He said all who have governed America during the atomic age have had to "recognize that a nuclear war cannot be won and must never be fought."

It would be superb if we could dismantle all our nuclear weapons and feel confident that the Soviets would do the same. It won't happen that way, however. There must be a clear treaty and there will have to be adequate inspection. That can be done, but it will require hard bargaining with the Soviets.

Alford Death A Major Loss

The death of Ott Alford last week removes an indefatigable worker in education and civic life from our community.

Mr. Alford's accomplishments as superintendent of Pitt County Schools since 1965 are well known. He was also extremely active in church work and many civic organizations which serve the needs of Pitt County. The esteem in which he was held by school patrons, citizens and fellow educators was well demonstrated from the time of his retirement, due to health reasons, until his death. He was honored at a number of functions and praised for his many years of service to his community. There will be no replacing Ott Alford in our community and in our hearts.

APPROACH OF THE BUSY SEASON!

The Debate On Debates

By MAXWELL GLEN and CODY SHEARER VENTURA, Calif. — Public-office seekers ought to have the guts to debate their opponents. It's democracy in action. Yet, in California, debate-dodging has made a mockery of the primary campaign season.

At a recent "forum" here, six GOP candidates for the U.S. Senate recited their qualifications, damned their opponents and, in some cases, departed before their rivals had spoken. Such a "beauty contest" may have satisfied members of the local Republican women's club, but it provided an inadequate treatment of complex national issues.

San Diego Mayor Pete Wilson began the show with an error-filled attack on Rep. Pete McCloskey's voting record. McCloskey, in turn, accused Wilson of "blind allegiance" to Israel. Meanwhile, other hopefuls dumped on the current frontrunner, Rep. Barry Goldwater Jr., whom ultra-conservative candidate Rep. Robert Dornan called a "crybaby" and "no leader."

an "unvarnished way." George Washington University political scientist Stephen J. Wayne adds that, all things being equal, debates only help the challenger.

While such a view smacks of pure self-interest, frontrunners usually add that the public isn't interested in debates. Indeed, the public knows the hypocrisy of contenders who seek political capital with calls for debates. Pete Wilson, for example, may be a debate advocate today. But even his media adviser, Robert Goodman, admitted to us that if his client were ahead in the polls, such advocacy could change tomorrow.

Moreover, some point out that debates can favor personality over substance. Others see the media hype of inadvertent blunders — such as Gerald Ford's toast to a "liberated" Poland in 1976 — as debate's dominant feature. Catholic University political scientist Michael Robinson says we're naive to think that debates are absolutely necessary. "You will learn all you can about a candidate from reading a newspaper."

As imperfect as debates may be, however, we have doubts that Californians or voters elsewhere are prepared to scrap the prospect. Here and in other large states, where media time is both essential and costly, the absence of a genuine inter-urban political contenders isolates the Garamendis, Vidals and other underfinanced underdogs. Accordingly, advertising campaigns tell us only to vote "Goldwater — a tradition in the U.S. Senate."

While the national and state Leagues of Women Voters have long pushed for a more equitable electoral process, they've unfortunately been at the mercy of candidates on the debate issue. They've also been slow to organize primary debates.

The California primary campaign of 1982 again signals the need for required debates — early and often. The more we do to reform the debate process and reduce the dominance of Ventura County beauty contests, the healthier our democracy will be.

THIS AFTERNOON

The Survivor Role

By PAUL T. O'CONNOR RALEIGH — For the most part, the Rev. Bob Hullinger's pain has passed. His murdered daughter is dead four years now. He finds himself grieving, he says, only on holidays and family anniversaries. His anger at the young man who beat her to death in Hamburg, Germany, has also subsided.

Rev. Hullinger is still driven by that murder, however. His daughter's death introduced him to an abused, misunderstood and misrepresented segment of society: crime victims and their survivors. A Lutheran pastor from Cincinnati, he is the founder of Parents With Murdered Children, a national organization with chapters in 10 states and chapters forming in five others — none yet in North Carolina. He founded the group after he realized that for the survivors of murdered victims, there is nowhere to turn.

"I am a surviving victim of a murdered daughter," Rev. Hullinger told the N.C. Crime Commission. "My wife and I had no preparation for that. We were plunged into that role... We found we had to talk to people who had suffered similarly and so we learned what it is to grieve and what it is to suffer together."

Hullinger's tale of grief for his daughter is expected. What is not expected, however, is the story of pain inflicted on the victim's survivors. The criminal justice system ignores your grief — employers, bill-collectors and newspaper reporters compound it. Even your own family can be a source of great pain. As children, spouses and parents grieve what is their loss, too, relationships tear apart.

The loss of a loved one often leaves the survivor depressed, with little energy, a low resistance to illness. The survivor will be surprised by "the intensity and duration" of his emotions — anger, isolation, guilt, loneliness, rage, fear and a sense of powerlessness are felt more strongly than at any other time in your life. One day you are up, and your wife is down. The next day the roles may be reversed. Wishing to avoid the other's gloom, couples avoid each other. No wonder that in 70 percent of American marriages where a child dies, the mother and father eventually divorce. Surviving children they must endure because the overwhelming attitude is don't bring your troubles here. Get on with your work if you want to work here."

Then there is the criminal justice system. Call the police asking for news on the investigation and you're likely to be treated like a pest. Be called as a witness and the prosecutor is likely to forget to tell you that a trial date has been postponed. See the defendant get 18 months for murdering your daughter but the judge won't explain his ruling to you.

So Rev. Hullinger is on the road across this country, forming chapters of POMC so parents will have help

There are the expenses for medical bills and travel to trials. There's lost income for missed work. The news media never seems to go away. No wonder your work suffers. Survivors "frankly don't care about the job...but

BY ART BUCHWALD

A Payoff In 'Riffing'

Riffing, or what is known in the government parlance as "reduction in force," is taking its toll on Washington. By law those with seniority cannot be fired from a department if there is another job available, even if it is a much lower one. The person has to be kept on for two years before he can be let go. Many overqualified people are taking menial jobs just so they can stay in the government and collect their pensions, or hope that someone will put them back where they belong.

One of these happens to be Delbeck, who has a Ph.D. in geology, and formerly worked with the U.S. Geographical Survey Department studying moon rocks.

I went to see Delbeck out in Reston, Virginia. Instead of being directed to his laboratory I was told I would find him in the mail room.

"Dr. Delbeck, what are you doing here?" I asked him.

"Sorting mail. It was the only job open when we had our last riff."

ART BUCHWALD

"What a comedown!"

"It's actually not a bad job as soon as you learn the alphabet. You see, you ignore the first name and only look at the initial of the last name. Then you put the letter in the box corresponding to the letter on the envelope. When I get the letters all sorted out, I give them to Dr. Fromm and he marks the rooms on them."

"Dr. Fromm?"

"Yes, he used to head the mineral exploration division, and he's a whiz at knowing room numbers without having to look them up in the directory."

"What happens after Dr. Fromm puts the room numbers on them?"

Then Dr. Lasker takes them and puts them in a supermarket basket and delivers them to the various offices."

"What did Dr. Lasker do before he took that job?"

"He was in charge of studying earthquake faults around the world. He was working on a new way of predicting them in advance, until the OMB decided it was a waste of money."

"He must be very bitter."

"He was until the head of the mail room explained to him that delivering people's mail on time was just as important as figuring where the next earthquake would take place. Sometimes while Lasker is waiting for us to sort out the mail he sneaks off in a corner with his calculator and predicts earthquakes just for the hell of it. But he has to be careful no one sees him, because there's talk they may lay off someone in the mail room and he has less seniority than Dr. Fromm and I do."

"Do you ever examine moon rocks anymore?"

"No, but if it's a light day I might take out my microscope and analyze what kind of ink they used to print a postage stamp. I like to keep my hand in just in case something opens upstairs."

"I can't believe the government would be so stupid as to allow three scientists like yourselves to work in a mail room."

"We're lucky. Dr. Ridgeway, who was just about to figure out a way of measuring ultraviolet rays by a laser beam, is now operating a paper-shredding machine in the boiler room. She was riffed out of a Nobel Prize."

The head of the mail room came over to us. "Delbeck,

Other Editors Say Export Policy

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

If history repeats itself the "export imperative" is as critical to North Carolina industry today as it was in the recession of 1974. That is to say, it is imperative to develop an overseas market for manufactured and agricultural products to help smooth out the peaks and valleys in the U.S. economy.

It may not be economically perfect, but it works. It works something like the country fable about the ant and the grasshopper, one of whom sang and played all summer and then had no food in the winter, while the other stored up food in advance.

A manufacturer of textile parts near Charlotte had his plant going full tilt in 1974 when all of his neighbors were laying people off as the U.S. economy turned downward.

When some of the other manufacturers asked him how he managed to keep going, he said, "while you all were spending 100 percent of your time satisfying U.S. demands over the last two years, I have been developing an export business in Latin America. Now I have a full order book that will keep me going for the next two years."

Whether he invested his time and energies and money during the fat summer in order to store up orders for the lean winter is really not material. The point is that he did divide his time, his energies and his investments between the U.S. market and the overseas market during the good times, and he reaped the benefits of that investment when it was most critical to his company's sales and profits.

Eight years later he still has the same attitude toward the export market: It is an important segment of his total business.

In 1978 and 1979 the furniture industry, with help from the federal government and several state agencies, began to increase its attention to overseas markets.

Foreign buyer programs were instituted at the major furniture marts and trade missions visited foreign countries to display products.

The export imperative has two parts. First, treat the international market as a regular part of the total business and spread the risk over a broader base; second, treat overseas customers as well as domestic buyers are treated.

Strength For Today

HATEFUL DREAMS

It is surprising, to say the least, that Karl Marx, the father of modern communism — the man who declared that he wanted to make the world a neighborhood of comrades — was himself unable to get along with practically any living soul. His career was one continuous quarrel after another with his associates. Only his dear friend, Friedrich Engels, stayed beside him and refused to quarrel with him.

Marx's dream of a utopian social system was a dream indeed. He seemed to be utterly unable to put his theories into practical application. He longed for the brotherhood of man, yet he called no man brother upon earth. He wanted to make humanity one great family, yet he failed in every possible way with his own family. He has probably cast more fire upon the earth than any other single individual who ever lived.

Marx wanted to make the world a neighborhood; instead he made it, as he made his own life, a battleground. — Elisha Douglass

Federal Tax Bite Is Bigger

By LOUISE COOK Associated Press Writer

A hypothetical family of four with an income of $25,000 faces a federal tax bill of almost $7,000 for the current fiscal year, a new study shows.

The figures come from the Tax Foundation Inc., a non-profit research group in Washington, D.C., which keeps track of the taxes Americans pay.

Foundation economists regularly look at the federal budget and calculate how the government spends an individual taxpayer's dollars, using a hypothetical family with one working spouse, two children and an annual income near the median for all U.S. families.

There are lots of numbers involved, but it's worthwhile to wade through them to learn where your money goes.

For the latest study, the economists used a family with an annual income of $25,000. They found that such a family would have a federal tax bill of $6,916 for fiscal 1982 — the year that began last Oct. 1. Federal income taxes would account for $2,771 of the tax bill. Social Security would account for $1,675 and indirect taxes like excise levies and corporate income taxes would add up to $2,470.

Five years ago, the economists used a family with an income of $15,000 and found that such a family had a federal tax bill of $3,975. Federal income taxes accounted for $1,459; Social Security taxes for $878; and indirect taxes for $1,635.

In 1977, the federal tax bill for the lower-income family equaled 26 1/2 percent of income; for 1982, the federal bite on the higher-income family was 28 percent.

The hypothetical income level used for the calculations was increased 66 percent between 1977 and 1982, allowing for an increase in earnings of more than 10 percent a year. That produced an increase in the tax bill of 74 percent. Income levies accounted for 37 percent of the tax bill in 1977 and 40 percent in 1982; Social Security taxes accounted for 22 percent in 1977 vs. 24 percent in 1982; and indirect taxes accounted for 41 percent in 1977 and 36 percent in 1982.

Most people think of taxes in terms of the calendar year — from Jan. 1 to Dec. 31 — but the economists based their calculations on the fiscal year — from Oct. 1 to Sept. 30 — since that is the period used by the government for budgetary purposes.

The biggest chunk of the money — then and now — goes for what is called income security, including Social Security payments, welfare benefits, etc. Income security accounted for about 32 percent of the family's tax bill in 1977 and about 33 percent in 1982.

National defense was the second biggest spending category in both years. It accounted for 23 1/2 percent of the tax bill in 1977 and just under 25 percent today.

There have been shifts in other areas of spending over the past five years. Interest on the national debt accounted for about 9 percent of the family's tax bill in 1977 and was in fourth place.

Today, interest is in third place, accounting for 13 percent of the tax bill.

Health, which was third on the list five years ago has slipped to fourth place; in both 1977 and 1982 it accounted for a little more than 9 percent of the tax bill.

In dollar terms, income security accounted for $1,288 of the tax bill in 1977 and $2,291 today, a rise of 78 percent. The defense portion of the tax bill went from $934 to $1,712, up 83 percent, and the interest portion went from $353 to $905, up 156 percent.

The individual income tax remains the biggest source of money for the federal government; it will account for almost 50 percent of all federal tax collections for the current fiscal year. Employment taxes — including Social Security collections — will account for about 31 percent and corporate income taxes will provide about 8 percent. The rest of the money will come from miscellaneous levies, including excise, estate and gift taxes.

Clash On Job-Search Policies

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina planned to ask today that a private personnel agency be ordered not to charge its clients until it finds them jobs.

A hearing was scheduled for today in Wake County Superior Court, where the state Department of Labor was expected to ask that a judge tell National Executive Search of the Carolinas mend its ways. The department has ordered the company to close its Charlotte office.

Taylor McMillan, deputy labor commissioner, says the affiliate of a Washington-based company violates state law by charging the "up-front" money and also runs deceitful advertisements. A spokesman for NES said in a telephone interview it had broken no laws.

A similar business, Robert Jameson Associates, has been ordered to stop its Charlotte operation while continuing negotiations with North Carolina. Other closings may follow, say state officials.

The developments stem from a crackdown by the labor department on job-search agencies that aren't square with their customers, McMillan said.

"With jobs so tight, people are more apt than usual to become victims of businesses that don't obey the law," McMillan said. "And when the firms' clients can ... put down two or three thousand dollars and get nothing out of it," we think it's time for the state to protect the interest of its citizens."

led to believe they'll do," McMillan said. "Who would pay $2,000 for help with a resume?"

William P. Jones of Charlotte, who went to NES for help and later complained to the state attorney general's office, agreed.

"I'm convinced I was taken," he said. "They didn't find me a job and they did only about half of what they said they'd do."

Other North Carolinians have voiced similar complaints about NES and other firms, McMillan said.

Contacted by telephone in Washington, D.C., NES vice president and regional director James Sellors refused to comment on specific allegations against the firm.

He attributed the complaints to "misunderstandings" that he hoped would be cleared up in today's hearing.

McMillan said other agencies have run afoul of North Carolina law by collecting fees before their clients find work. He would not name them, but The Associated Press learned that one of them is Jameson Associates.

The labor department confirmed that Jameson had closed its Charlotte office temporarily. Company officials couldn't be reached for comment.

Watermelon Contest Set

A watermelon-growing contest for youth ages 9-19 will be held for youth involved in 4-H, with a first-place state prize $100. The melons will be judged at the Farmer's Market in Raleigh on July 30.

Contest rules require youths to enter ten melons grown for judging. They will be judged according to the U.S. Grade No. One standard for uniformity, color and taste.

Second and third place prizes will be $50 and $25. The judges will be buyers for major food chain stores.

Youth in Pitt County planning to enter the contest should register by calling Sam Uzzell, Pitt extension agent, phone 752-2934, ext. 374.

Dairy Poster Contest Set

A Dairy Poster Contest will be held for youth under 18 years of age by the Pitt County 4-H office, according to Miriam Nance, Pitt extension agent.

Competition will be judged in four age divisions: 6-8 years, 8-12 years, 12-14 years and over 14 years. The Pitt County Extension Office will provide poster board (22 inch by 28 inch) for making the posters.

Youth interested in participating should call the 4-H office, 752-2934, ext. 362 for further information.

T I M E F O R CATERPILLARS... There are sizeable populations of tent caterpillars and spring cankerworms this year, visible in most hardwood and fruit trees. These worms hatch from eggs in March and April according to Pitt Extension Agent Sam Uzzell, can become voracious eaters capable of stripping entire trees of their leaves. The worms can be controlled by the use of several recommended insecticides, he said. (Reflector Staff Photo)

Fire Safety Program Ends

A special 4-H fire safety program was completed in April with 121 youth participating, according to Dale Panero, 4-H extension agent.

Robert Bass, an Ayden volunteer fireman and 4-H club leader, and Terry Payne of the Pitt County Fire Marshall's Office, directed the program in their communities.

In each area the participants viewed a film on the proper use of fire extinguishers on a blaze.

The following number of youth participated in each community: Ayden, 19; Pactolus, 10; Winterville, 17; Stokes, 12; Staton House, 14; Farmville, 15; Black Jack, five; Grifton, seven, and Bethel, 22.

"Learning to utilize fire fighting equipment properly is a life skill that we hope every child in Pitt County can acquire," said Dale Panero, 4-H extension agent.

"We believe this program was a success because it was a cooperative effort of 4-H and the fire Marshall's office."

CARS COLLIDE

Cars driven by Roosevelt Howard of Route 1, Bethel, and Eva Lois Wiggins of Route 3, Ahoskie, collided about 5:27 p.m. at the intersection of Memorial and South Village Drives.

Officers, who reported five passengers in the Wiggins car were injured, estimated damage at $500 to the Howard car, $1,000 to the Wiggins vehicle, and $500 to a pole on a service station lot owned by Leon L. Moore.

Farm Scene

By SAM UZZELL
Agri. Ext. Agent

Every spring at least two insects make their appearance in eastern North Carolina on hardwood trees and cause widespread alarm when they are observed. Some years are worse than others and it is obvious that this year there are sizeable populations of tent caterpillars and spring cankerworms.

These insects hatch from eggs in March or April and become voracious caterpillars that can strip limbs or entire trees of newly-expanding leaves. The casual observer will be made aware of these insects by noticing bare branches on susceptible trees, by seeing worms dangling from limbs by a silken thread or seeing masses of caterpillars on the bark.

The tent caterpillar has two species. The forest tent caterpillar spins silken areas on oaks, maples, poplars and other hardwoods. They are pale blue in color, very hairy and can easily be identified by white keyhole-like markings down the back. They often swarm into buildings and are very obvious as they crawl on the trunks of trees where they hatched.

The eastern tent caterpillar is very similar to the forest tent caterpillar. It is also very hairy, is less than two inches long and usually brownish in color with a light stripe down the back. Its most obvious sign is a silken tent spun in the forks of wild cherry, wild plum, crab apple and other trees in April. These caterpillars hide in the tents during daylight and spin silken pathways along the branches to feed during the night.

Tent caterpillars become periodically so abundant that trees can be completely defoliated in some years. There is only one generation of these caterpillars per season. The caterpillars will become full grown in four-six weeks.

The other insect pest of trees in addition to the tent caterpillars is the spring cankerworm. It also has periods of relative abundance and scarcity. These caterpillars are brown, brownish-green or green in

Three Wrecks Are Reported

An estimated $3,225 damage resulted from three traffic collisions investigated Sunday by Greenville police.

Heaviest damage, investigators reported, resulted when cars driven by Edward Dean Rhodes of 105A North Meade St. and Rowland Preston Harris II of North Hollywood, Calif., collided about 12:30 p.m. at the intersection of First and Reade Streets.

Damage was estimated at $1,200 to the Rhodes car and $100 to the Harris vehicle.

Cars driven by Donald Lester Lawler of 109 Cheshire Drive and Harold Reed Blake Jr. of Hollybrook Estates, collided about 12:15 p.m. on Tenth Street, 700 feet west of the Riverbluff Drive intersection, causing $700 damage to the Lawler car and $500 damage to the Blake auto.

A 1:20 a.m. mishap at the intersection of Tenth and Cotanche Streets involved cars driven by Al Mayon Barney of Eastbrook Apartments and Timothy Wayne Webb of Route 1, Macclesfield.

Damage was estimated at $275 to the Barney car and $450 to the Webb auto.

Goat Show

A dairy goat show will be held by the Pitt County Livestock Development Association on May 15 at 1:30 p.m. at the Pitt County Fairgrounds. The event will be sanctioned by the American Dairy Goat Association.

Persons wanting information on entering goats should call Cathy Baker, 758-0975; Carl Venters, 746-3845 or the Pitt County Agricultural Extension Office, 752-2934.

The public is invited, according to Miriam W. Nance, Pitt extension agent, and barbeque plates will be available.

Liz (near center with guitar) and son, Joshua (to her right), lead singing and preaching on the streets of Ashford, Kent, England.

Sid and Liz Doyle Are Missionaries In England

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

Sid and Liz Doyle, who are visiting Liz's parents here from England, met in 1972 on a street corner in Belfast, Northern Ireland, where Liz was preaching and singing to the accompaniment of her own guitar.

Sid was, at the time a recent veteran of nine years in the British army, then enrolled in the Bible Training Institute of Glasgow, Scotland. He was home visiting his parents, residents of the village of Crumlin in County Antrim, "a safe distance from Belfast, if there is any safe distance."

They loved each other from the beginning and had in common prior-made personal commitments to work full time for the Lord, say the couple, who are now missionaries in Southeast England. But they waited a year to get married. Sid went back to Glasgow for the second phase of his three-year course and Liz, whose family lived in Ohio at the time, went to Minnesota for a year at a small Bible college there.

Sid, who says he was reared in an in-name-only Protestant home, had begun his spiritual search about seven years earlier while serving in the army in Germany and had been converted largely through the witness of a fellow soldier and a minister back home whom he sought out while on leave. Liz had accepted Christ at age 14 while in Vacation Bible School in the American Baptist Church in Ohio and had felt a call to be a missionary at 16.

"An Irish missionary came to talk at our church," she said, "while I was in high school and he said, 'Come on over. We need you.' I don't know whether anybody else took him seriously, but I did."

Immediately after high school, she embarked for Ireland and enjoyed challenges of which she'd never dreamed herself capable. "It was great being an American over there at that time," she said. "The Irish were so divided Protestant and Catholic and so mistrustful of each other, they didn't communicate. But everyone was fascinated by an American who would come to such a dangerous area and they all wanted to talk to me. I loved it."

The corner on which she met her future husband, she said, was in a bombed-out pedestrians-only part of Belfast. The reason no motor vehicles were allowed in the area was that so many had been used as vehicles for incendiaries.

During the summer of 1973 Sid came to the States and worked six weeks to earn their fare back to the British Isles. They were then married and went to Glasgow, where Liz enrolled in the same school Sid was attending.

The couple and their son, Joshua, now 5, visited Liz's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Richard Preston, in Greenville. Then they went on to Ohio, Indiana and Michigan to share with Christian friends who have supported them morally and financially over the years they've been missionaries in England.

The Doyles serve a small church in Ashford in County Kent, England. "There are fewer Christians in England than there are in Communist Russia," Liz said. "In Russia it's a matter of state persecution; in England, it's apathy. I meet and talk to many people who tell me they've never in their lives personally known or even talked to a Christian. England once sent out missionaries all over the world, but now they need missionaries. It's difficult to explain to Americans what a secular society it is."

The Doyles say they were once affiliated with the Methodist denomination, but now they have an independent Christian church. "We find we reach the unsaved better," Sid said, "when we're non-aligned. This is true in England, where we serve, and also in Ireland, where we visit my family. People who really know nothing about Christianity have many misconceptions and alignment with any particular denomination or sect seems to add to the lack of understanding. We're just interested in sharing the gospel."

In Ashford, the Doyles took over a dying church with three members. The church now, seven years later, has about 80 members. These 80 are probably the majority of all the Christians in Ashford, they say. In a densely populated area of 46,000 residents, there are probably about 200 Christians, they estimate.

Persons who do become Christians in England, they say, are often deeply committed, having made the conscious choice, usually as an adult. They cite one of their member couples who opened their homes to homeless derelicts soon after they became Christians. This same couple was one of four whom Sid remarried in a joint religious ceremony. Most British working class people are married in civil ceremonies only, they say.

Liz leads a Christian singing group that is probably the only one in southeast England, she said. Called "Adelphi," the group and a sister drama group called "Expression" performed in France last year. This year they plan a tour of Ireland and of Holland. They've also toured in the United States.

In addition to sharing with others about their work of forming and leading churches, the Doyles like to tell how they live by faith. "We never worry about how we're going to do things," they say. "We just pray to know the Lord's will and then a way is opened to us."

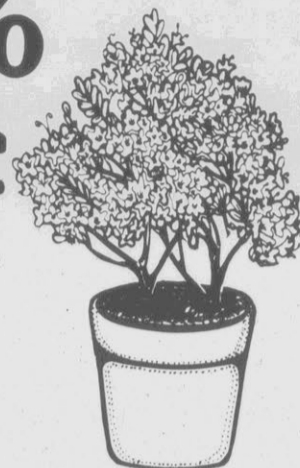

They spoke while visiting here at Foursquare Gospel Church, at the Church of God in Christ in Ayden and at a house meeting in Ayden. Sid also took part in a several-day stint on WBZQ radio.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today, after opening higher along a broad front, amid uncertainty over the course of interest rates.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which rose 9.04 points Friday and which has increased in each of the past six weeks, slipped 2.95 points to 859.21 at noon. The blue-chip average had been up 2.38 points in the first half-hour today.

But more than seven stocks rose in price for every six losers in the mid-day tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Uncertainty over the outcome of budget negotiations between the White House and Congress pushed interest rates higher in early trading today. Pre-occupation with federal deficits dampened hopes for lower interest rates that had been kindled Friday by a Federal Reserve Board report of an unexpected decline in the nation's money supply and a Labor Department report of the first decline in consumer prices since 1965.

Investors also continued to follow developments in the South Atlantic, with Britain tightening its grip on the Falkland Islands dependency of South Georgia.

Conley Pair Close-Up Participants

WASHINGTON, D.C. — D.H. Conley students Sharon Evans and Kim Swank will attend National Close-Up April 25-May 1, according to school officials.

National Close-Up is a program that allows students to see the federal government in action by visiting key places and happenings. Students will have an opportunity to talk to senators, representatives, White House and executive branch officials, lobbyists and reporters.

In Pitt County Close-Up, participants visit the courts, sheriff's office and hear local officials speak. Both Miss Evans and Miss Swank participated in Pitt County Close-Up.

At Conley Miss Evans is a member of the Choral Ensemble, Pep Club, Literary Club and is a nominee for Honors Chorus. She serves as parliamentarian of the Student Council Association, athletic secretary, statistician for Conley sports and as a coordinator for Easter Seals. She is the daughter of the late Alfred (A.C.) Evans and Mrs. Shirley Ross Evans.

Miss Swank is a member of the Literary Club, Pep Club, varsity cheerleading squad, Future Business Leaders of America and the Drama Club. She is assistant coordinator for Easter Seals and served as secretary for the state of North Carolina for one day through the Youth Involvement Program. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James D. Swank, 111 Guinevere Lane, Greenville.

Pactolus School To Mark Week
 Pactolus Elementary School will celebrate North Carolina Heritage Week April 26-30 with activities centered around North Carolina history.

Artifacts of North Carolina will be displayed in the media center and a tasting of old recipes will be held. The recipes have been compiled into a cookbook by the school.

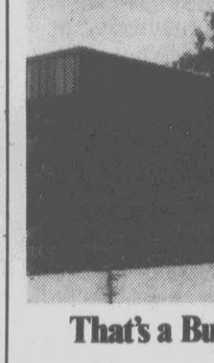

On Tuesday a presentation of "Blackbeard" will be given to the student body and on Tuesday Mrs. Craig Phillips, state chairman of N.C. Heritage Week activities, will visit the school.

Budget Meet Purpose Stated
 The purpose of the meeting of the City School Board at Wahl-Coates School tonight is for the administrative staff to present the proposed 1982-83 school budget to members of the Board of Education, and to allow for public comments to board members on the budget.

The meeting, to begin at 8 p.m., will cover both the current expense and capital outlay segments of the budget. Later, following formal adoption by the board, the budget will be presented to the County Commissioners.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — The National Weather Service forecast for the period ending early Tuesday predicts showers for the East from Maine to Florida and along the gulf coast to Louisiana. Showers are also forecast for parts of Texas, Oklahoma, New Mexico, Colorado, Wyoming and Kansas (AP Laserphoto)

By The Associated Press
 North Carolina's mostly sunny and warm weekend gave way to rain and chilly temperatures this morning, and the National Weather Service said it would stay that way for the next day or so.

A low pressure area that moved east out of Arkansas this morning will continue to pump plentiful moisture up through the Southeastern states and through the Carolinas at least into Tuesday.

While the East continued to enjoy the bulk of the sunshine Sunday, cloudiness and rain was on the increase over Western North Carolina. The rain continued to advance through most of the state during the night. Over an inch of rain fell on the mountains and western Piedmont. The heavier rain shifted to the coastal region during the early morning hours. Most all of the state had received some varying amount of rain through the pre-dawn hours with the exception of the extreme northeast.

The 70s were fairly common over the East Sunday with the warm spot being Fayetteville at an even 80 degrees. The clouds and rain limited much of the mountains to the 50s and low 60s while the western Piedmont levelled off in the mid and upper 60s.

Overnight, it continued quite mild over the East where low and mid-60s prevailed. In the West the 50s were more common early this morning.

Recreational weather outlook: It will become more showery along with the possibility of some scattered thunderstorms this afternoon and tonight. Mild 70s will be noted over the East again today with 60s to near 70 over the west.

Rain will continue into Tuesday, then gradually taper off in the far western part of the state late Tuesday. It will turn slightly cooler across the mountains Tuesday afternoon as a cold front works its way from the central plains today into the Appalachians later Tuesday.

It will be rather windy, especially over the East again today and a small craft advisory remains posted for the coastal waters and sounds.

Three Break-Ins
 Greenville Police are investigating three break-ins that occurred this morning. Chief Glenn Cannon said officers were called to Lowe's on Memorial Drive about 12:52 a.m. when an alarm sounded. However, nothing was reported missing from the building. At 3:29 a.m., a break-in was reported at the Kayo service station on North Greene Street.

The chief said thieves left 29 cartons of cigarettes they had assembled in a box inside the store. Nothing else was reported missing.

The third break-in occurred at Week's Seed and Feed on Dickinson Avenue, about 5:02 a.m. Entrance to the building was gained by breaking out a window, and several pairs of jeans were reported taken.

Lemon Yanked (Again); Michael Picked (Again)

NEW YORK (AP) — George Steinbrenner is doing the "Yankee Shuffle" again — this time with familiar dance partners Bob Lemon and Gene Michael — and morale on his defending American League champions has hit rock bottom.

The New York Yankees owner announced Sunday, only a few hours after the club broke a three-game losing streak by beating Detroit, that Lemon, his manager, was fired. He was bringing back Michael, the former Yankees general manager-turned manager-turned scout.

At baseball's winter meetings last December in Dallas, Steinbrenner had announced that Michael would return as Yankee skipper for 1983, when Lemon would retire as manager. Michael's return came only 148 games early.

Steinbrenner, infuriated that the team had lost a six-game World Series to the Los Angeles Dodgers, reportedly was ready to fire Lemon last winter. A plea by Lemon that he be given another chance is said to have convinced Steinbrenner to delay his plan.

Since Steinbrenner, acting as the head of a consortium, purchased the Yankees on Jan. 3, 1973, he has presided over eight managerial changes, beginning with the resignation of Ralph Houk on Sept. 30, 1973.

Michael also becomes the third man in the past four years to get a second shot at managing the Yankees. The others were Lemon and Billy Martin. Only once in six years have the Yankees had one manager (Dick Howser in 1980) for an entire season.

"I've only been here two weeks, and it seems like there's one controversy after another," said shortstop Roy Smalley, acquired by the Yankees in a trade that sent reliever Ron Davis to Minnesota. "I guess everybody else is used to this by now, but I'm not."

Steinbrenner announced the firing of Lemon in a lengthy statement distributed by Irv Kaze, the club's media director, at the Stadium at about 8 p.m. EDT. Kaze said there would be no other comment. In the statement, Steinbrenner said, "No one is more appreciative of Lem's great loyalty to the organization than I am. He has always been loyal to the Yankees and to me in whatever role he has been asked to assume."

"It is just that I feel that it is in the best interests of the club that this change be made now," Steinbrenner said. "I have discussed it with Lem. He understands my feelings even though I had promised him the entire season."

The victory over the Tigers Sunday was New York's first at home this season, and the Yankees still were two games under .500 at 6-8.

"When we lose, it gets so much more complicated here," relief ace Rich Gossage said before the announcement, although rumors of the firing were widespread. "It has become very depressing around here."

"When I came here (in 1978), it seemed like everybody was having fun," the reliever said. "If you don't perform here, you don't need Steinbrenner on you. The people will let you know."

"This game should be fun to play, but it isn't any more ... it's getting worse. I've never faced anything like this."

Michael is no newcomer to the Yankees, many of whom are familiar with his managing style from last season. Michael, then general manager of the club, was reassigned to the field by Steinbrenner on Nov. 21, 1980, replacing Howser.

He compiled a record of 48-34 (34-22 as the Yankees won the first-half title in the strike-torn season of 1981), before he was fired on Sept. 6, 1981 and replaced by Lemon.

Lemon's first stint as manager came as a replacement for Billy Martin, who was forced to resign on July 24, 1978. Lemon finished the '78 season and managed until June 18, 1979, when he was fired and replaced by Martin. Martin, in turn, was fired on Oct. 29, 1979, and Howser was hired in his place.

Steinbrenner said Lemon would stay with the club as a scout, an accustomed holding tank for past and future Yankee managers. It was a position Michael occupied until today while waiting to retake control of the team.

Steinbrenner did not try to place any of the blame for New York's slow start on Lemon.

"Like Lem, we are all disappointed in the slow start of the club," Steinbrenner's statement said. "Our entire organization feels that we have the talent to win. This is the deepest and best balanced team we have had in some years. It is the players who are not producing the wins, and perhaps this change will get them going."

Steinbrenner started making changes in the club early. He said he wanted to rebuild the Yankees on speed instead of power. After allowing Reggie Jackson to escape via free agency, Steinbrenner made a deal last November with Cincinnati for the services of the fleet outfielder Ken Griffey. Two days before Christmas, the Yankees signed free agent speedster Dave Collins from Cincinnati.

The changes had just begun. On April 1, the Yankees traded pitching prospect Gene Nelson to Seattle for reliever Shane Rawley. Two weeks ago, Steinbrenner completed the Davis trade, and last Friday, he sent first baseman-designated hitter Bob Watson to Atlanta for a minor-league pitcher. Saturday, pitcher John Pacella was sent to the minor leagues when Butch Hobson was removed from the disabled list.

Robbins, Crump Await NFL Draft

Former East Carolina defensive tackle Tootie Robbins did not want to admit it, but as the 1982 National Football League college draft nears so, too, have the butterflies.

"I saw George (Crump) and he asked me if I was nervous," Robbins said. "He said he was. I didn't want to say so, but I have a whole lot of butterflies, too."

"I've been waiting four years for this and I'm glad I'm gonna have a chance to play," Robbins said. "Since I was about 12 years old I've dreamed about playing professional football."

For both Robbins and Crump, the former ECU defensive tackle, the dream will reach a measure of reality sometime either Tuesday or Wednesday when the NFL holds its annual draft of college players.

The draft, which will be televised by ESPN, begins at 10 a.m. Tuesday in the Grand Ballroom of the New York Sheraton Hotel, and concludes Wednesday. Some 334 players will be picked during the 12 rounds of the draft.

Robbins is expected to be selected sometime on Tuesday, probably in the second or third round. Crump may have to wait until Wednesday, though his agent, Ken Hutcherson, believes Crump will be picked somewhere in the middle rounds, between the fourth and seventh.

Both players said come Tuesday they will be waiting anxiously by the phone, Robbins in his apartment and Crump in a friend's. "I'll be over with (ECU noseguard) Fee Griffin looking at ESPN," Crump said. "My room's close by and I'll be able to run over (when picked)."

Robbins and Crump are the most likely ECU candidates for the draft, but three other players — running back Harold Blue, linebacker Mike Davis and strong safety Marvin Elliott — could be drafted in the lower rounds, catch on as free agents or try out with the CFL.

Another ECU player — linebacker Glenn Morris — is in camp with Ottawa of the Canadian Football League.

Seattle Buries Rockets; 76ers; Celtics Triumph

By The Associated Press
There will be no miracles from Moses Malone this year. Jack Sikma and the Seattle SuperSonics made certain of that.

The Sonics, paced by Sikma's 30 points, eliminated Malone and the Houston Rockets from the National Basketball Association playoffs Sunday with a 104-83 victory. That ended — quickly — Houston's hopes of riding the burly shoulders of Malone to the NBA finals, as the Rockets did last year despite a losing record in the regular season.

Seattle grabbed a 46-30 lead at the half and coasted to win the best-of-three miniseries. Malone wound up with 24 points but had only four points and two rebounds in the second quarter, when Seattle put together a 12-4 spurt to take charge.

"We got up early and never let up," said Sikma. "In the second half we never had a period where we let up. They key was to push the ball from the very beginning."

"Another key for all of us was our bench. You can really go hard when you're in there because there are guys behind you who can come in and pick it up. It's nice to have a fellow like James Donaldson come off the bench. You can move over and let James do it."

Donaldson said the Sonics' game plan worked to perfection.

"He was very frustrated because their guards couldn't get the ball to him," said Donaldson. "Our plan was to pressure inside, make their guards take outside shots and hope they missed."

Now Houston will be missing from the Western Conference semifinals, which begin Tuesday with Seattle hosting San Antonio and Phoenix at Los Angeles. The Suns defeated Denver in three games in the opening round.

In the Eastern Conference semifinals, Boston and Philadelphia each got the jump Sunday. The Celtics downed Washington 109-91 and the 76ers edged Milwaukee 125-122.

Those series continue Wednesday night.

Malone was impressed with the SuperSonics. "I've got a lot of respect for that team," he said. "It's not their bigness but their team play that won. Seattle came out more aggressive, we never got into our game in the first half. We did in the second, but by then it was too late. When they get going they're hard to stop."

"They were much more aggressive on defense," said Houston Coach Del Harris. "Especially getting through our screens and causing pressure on our shooting. When you get behind it's hard to play catch up when you play at a moderate pace. They were so much more physical today, on defense and on the boards, than we were."

Celtics 109, Bullets 91

The Celtics, trying to become the first team in 13 years to repeat as NBA champions — they did it in 1968 and '69 — got off to a poor start. They trailed Washington by two points at the half, but then blew out the Bullets, who had eliminated New Jersey in the miniseries while the Atlantic Division champion Celtics had a bye.

Boston outscored Washington 24-15 in the third period, paced by eight points apiece from Nate Archibald and M.L. Carr, who led the Celtics with 21 points.

ECU Signs Forward

David Harris, a 6-8, 220-pound power forward from New York, has signed a grant-in-aid to play basketball at East Carolina, coach Dave Odom announced this morning.

Harris comes to ECU from Wingate High School in Brooklyn, N.Y., where he led his team to back-to-back 18-4 seasons. He averaged 16 points and 12 rebounds a game during his senior year.

Harris was named to the Public School Athletic League all-star team and also played in two post-season all-star games: the Wheelchair Classic and the AFBE (Athletes For Better Education).

"We have recruited him as a power forward," Odom said in announcing the signing. "He gives us the strength we need inside. He's a hard worker he's come out of a fine basketball program."

Harris transferred to Wingate after playing two years in a New York Parochial School. He was his team's captain and named its most valuable player during his senior year.

Harris is an honor student and will major in pre-law at ECU. Harris is the third signee for Odom. He joins point guards Tony Robinson of Jamestown (N.Y.) Community College and Curt Vanderhorst of Fayetteville Byrd High School.

Phils Halt Cards' Streak

By The Associated Press
Philadelphia Manager Pat Corrales says reports that Steve Carlton's fastball is dead are greatly exaggerated.

"Steve has been throwing the ball as good as I've ever seen him, but has not been winning," Corrales said after Carlton picked up his first victory as the Phillies beat St. Louis 8-4 Sunday. "Today he had a real good fastball. He had real good stuff and excellent velocity."

Carlton, a three-time Cy Young Award winner who doesn't talk to reporters, lost his first four decisions with a 6.85 earned run average. The worst start in his career started whispers that the 37-year-old left-hander, the National League's all-time strikeout leader, had lost something.

But on Sunday, Carlton held the Cardinals, who had won their previous 12 games, to one run and three hits through eight innings while striking out eight. He tired in the ninth, allowing five more hits and three runs.

"He's pitched the same way all year. He's got the same fastball and the same slider that he's had since spring training," said catcher Bo Diaz, who was acquired by the Phillies in the off-season. "I can't compare him to last year because I wasn't here."

The difference Sunday, Diaz said, "was that we gave him some support and that's what he's been needing."

The Phillies made efficient use of nine hits, scoring three runs in the fifth and four in the eighth.

It's been a season of winning streaks in the NL, with Atlanta capturing a record 13 in a row to start the season and San Diego still working on a 10-game spree in addition to St. Louis' 12 straight.

"We knew it had to end one of these days," said Cardinals Manager Whitey Herzog. "We were facing Carlton today, and then we play Houston with all of those good arms waiting for us."

Giants 6, Dodgers 3
Jeff Leonard spoiled Los Angeles' bid for its fifth straight victory with the first grand slam homer of his major-league career in the bottom of the eighth inning for San Francisco.

Leonard's blast also snapped the Giants' four-game losing streak and hung the loss on Fernando Valenzuela, 2-2, although the Mexican left-hander gave up only three hits in 7-1/2 innings. But he left the game with one out and the bases loaded in the eighth after giving up a single by Jeff Ransom and two walks.

Reds 4, Astros 3
Cincinnati climaxed a comeback from a 3-0 deficit against Houston with Dave Concepcion's sacrifice fly in the 10th inning.

With one out in the 10th, Ed Milner beat out a bunt off Randy Moffitt, 0-1, making his first appearance for the Astros after being called up from the minors. Milner went to third on

Cubs 5, Pirates 3
Larry Bowa, batting just .169 going into the game, sliced a two-run double to climax the Cubs' four-run fourth inning as they snapped a four-game losing streak.

With Pittsburgh leading 3-0, Gary Woods doubled in the first run off loser Rick Rhoden, 0-2, and Bowa followed with his two-base hit down the left field line. Bowa then scored when pinch-hitter Steve Henderson singled.

Expos 5, Mets 2
Andre Dawson had three hits, including a pair of run-scoring singles, and Scott Sanderson fired a four-hitter for seven innings to lead Montreal past the New York Mets.

CHAPEL HILL (AP) — North Carolina reached the finals of the Atlantic Coast Conference baseball tournament by winning three games with late-inning rallies — and apparently decided the championship game was no time to change.

Trailing 2-0 and just one strike away from defeat, the Tar Heels rebounded to score twice in the ninth inning, then scored the winning run on a suicide squeeze in the 12th to defeat Virginia 3-2 and win the ACC tournament Sunday.

The victory sends North Carolina into the first round of the National Collegiate Athletic Association playoffs. It hasn't been decided when and where they'll play.

Barney Spooner led off the 12th for the Tar Heels with a walk. Spooner stole second, took third on a sacrifice bunt, then broke for the plate with two strikes on Pete Kumiega. Kumiega bunted down the first base line and Spooner scored.

"Somebody said it was a call that'll either get you hired or fired," said Tar Heel manager Mike Roberts. "It's the kind of play that when it works looks great and when it doesn't, it looks horrible. But we thought it was the thing to do."

North Carolina appeared doomed after being handcuffed for eight innings by Virginia righthander Dave Hopkins. But three Virginia errors and two hits gave the Tar Heels two runs.

With one out in the ninth, designated hitter Stuart Jump reached on an error by Cavalier shortstop Todd Kirtley. Pinch hitter Chris Mench went down swinging, but centerfielder Gregg Shuler lined a double into the leftfield corner.

Joe Rocklein, running for Jump, scored when Cavalier leftfielder Donnie Meeks underthrew the cutoff man on the relay back to the infield. Shuler took third on the bad throw and scored on a bloop single by pinch hitter Jim Thrift.

Virginia took the lead in the bottom of the first on Steve Heon's double to right. Heon scored on Glenn Harris' single. The Cavaliers got another run in the third on consecutive doubles by Kirtley and Heon.

Snead, January Take Legends

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Sam Snead and Don January won the Legends of Golf Tournament by 12 strokes, shooting a 9-under par 61 to shatter the all-time scoring record. The duo posted a 54-hole total of 27-under par 183 on the Onion Creek Golf Club, which broke the record of 23-under 187 by Tommy Bolt and Art Wall. Never had a team earned this best-ball title for golfing greats 50 and over by more than two strokes. Finishing second were the teams of Bob Goaly and Roberto DeVicenzo, Littler and Rosburg, and Bob Toski and Chin-Sei-Ha at 195, 15-under. Goaly-DeVicenzo shot a final round 7-under 63, Toski-Chin had 66, and Littler-Rosburg fired 64.

Birds 'Strand' White Sox, 2-1

By The Associated Press The Chicago White Sox were standing on the hot corner, watching a lot of golden opportunities go by.

The White Sox left six runners in scoring position Sunday — including four at third base — and the frustration added up to a 2-1 loss to the Baltimore Orioles.

"The ninth inning was a little hard to believe," said Chicago Manager Tony LaRussa. "All the things we did, and we couldn't get a run in."

Precisely. The White Sox managed a single, a stolen base, a double, a wild pitch and a walk but came up empty-handed in the futile final inning and the Orioles went on to win their second straight game after nine consecutive losses.

Rudy Law opened the Chicago ninth with a single off Dennis Martinez and stole second, but was thrown out at third on a grounder to second baseman Rich Dauer by Jerry Hairston. Ron LeFlore then doubled but Hairston was out at the plate on relay throws from left fielder Gary Roenicke and shortstop Bob Bonner.

A wild pitch enabled LeFlore to reach third base for the third time in the game. But after Tony Bernazard walked, LeFlore was stranded there for the third time when Tippy Martinez came out of the bullpen to strike out Steve Kemp for the final out.

"Those are the kind of games I'm used to," said Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver. "I'd been looking forward to one for the last 11 days or so. I missed the thrill and the excitement."

Rick Dempsey hit a two-run homer in the fifth inning for the Orioles' winning runs and Dennis Martinez won for the 11th straight time at Memorial Stadium with last-out relief help from Tippy Martinez.

Yankees 3, Tigers 1 Willie Randolph's homer broke a 1-1 tie in the seventh, leading New York over Detroit. It was the Yankees' first victory at home this season and snapped a three-game losing streak.

The Tigers, meanwhile, had Don Money cracked three hits, drove in two runs and scored twice and Cecil Cooper drove in three runs as Milwaukee outslugged Texas.

Royals 6, Indians 3 Lee May and George Brett hit home runs and Amos Otis reached base three times, leading Kansas City over Cleveland.

Mariners 5, Twins 4 Todd Cruz's leadoff home run in the bottom of the 11th, his fourth hit of the day, led Seattle over Minnesota. Cruz took a ball from Terry Felton and then hit his game-winning homer over the left center field fence at the Kingdome. The blow made a winner of Bill Caudill.

Nordiques' Next Opponent: Isles

BOSTON (AP) — The Quebec Nordiques are getting used to being underdogs. With each upset, their confidence grows. They finished ninth in the National Hockey League's overall standings. Then the playoffs began. First, they knocked off Montreal, which finished third overall. Then, they used a 2-1 victory Sunday night to dispose of the Boston Bruins, who came in fourth. All they have to do now to reach the Stanley Cup finals is beat the two-time defending champion New York Islanders, who were first in this year's standings. The Islanders are home Tuesday and Thursday for the first two semifinal games. "We're doing things now that we never thought we would at the beginning of the playoffs," said Quebec's Wilf Paiement. "I really didn't think the players thought we could beat the Canadiens. We did it. I really didn't think the players thought we could beat the Bruins. We did it. "We're building confidence that we can beat anybody we play against." The Nordiques' winning goal Sunday night in the seventh and deciding game of the quarterfinals was by low-scoring defenseman Dave Pichette on a power play at 9:39 of the third period. Peter and Marian Stastny assisted, but Boston Coach Gerry Cheevers gave referee Andy Van Hellemond some credit. Van Hellemond had called hard-hitting Terry O'Reilly for charging 1:47 before the score. "If any other player on the ice would have made that hit, he would have called no penalty," Cheevers said. "That was one of the worst I've ever seen in Stanley Cup play." O'Reilly appeared to charge a Quebec player, but that kind of hit often is overlooked in the late stages of playoff games. Quebec took advantage with a deliberate power play in which it kept passing to set up a good shot. Pichette finally got it when Boston's four skaters ended up closer to the net than normal to cover the forwards and he rifled in a 40-footer. "It's a good feeling, but you have to talk about 20 players that won the series. I just got a goal," said Pichette, who had only 11 of them in his first two NHL seasons and none in two years in the playoffs. "I saw it at first and then I didn't see it any more," said Bruins' rookie goalie Mike Moffat. By the time he moved to where he thought the puck was "it was already in the net." The Nordiques had only two power plays but dominated both. Michel Goulet got his seventh playoff goal on the first one at 9:56 of the second period, but Peter McNab tied the game with his sixth playoff goal at 13:35. Quebec goalie Dan Bouchard, playing for the first time since the opening game Boston, stopped 28 shots. Moffat turned aside 20.

Weak Draft, But None Question Ability Of Sims

NEW YORK (AP) — According to Steinberg — Coaches, general managers, personnel directors and scouts claim to be unimpressed by the quality of players available in this year's National Football League draft. No one, however, is questioning the ability of Kenneth Sims. Sims will be the first pick in the draft Tuesday morning, with the New England Patriots grabbing the defensive lineman from the University of Texas. The 6-foot-5, 265-pound Sims broke his leg late in the season against Texas Christian but the Patriots aren't worried about Sims' health. "His rehabilitation has been perfect," said Dick Steinberg, the Patriots' personnel director. "We decided months ago to select him." That sits well with new Patriots Coach Ron Meyer, who had the misfortune of facing Sims and the Longhorns while he was the head man at Southern Methodist. Meyer was hired to replace the fired Ron Erhardt last January. "I'm just delighted to know he is going to be on our team up here," said Meyer. "He's an impact-type player who doesn't have any weaknesses. He is effervescent, enthusiastic, positive and he will be a leader. I think he can do for us what Lawrence Taylor did for the Giants' defense last year." That's saying a great deal since Taylor helped turn the Giants' defense into a monster unit and New York made the playoffs for the first time since 1963. "There are no linebackers like Lawrence Taylor. E.J. Junior or High Green of last year. There are not very many competitive big men in this draft and we don't have any defensive backs rated in the first two rounds." Still, the 28 NFL clubs won't have any trouble filling out their preseason rosters. Running back and linebacker would appear to be the strongest positions among the graduating players.

Gant Gains First NASCAR Win

MARTINSVILLE, Va. (AP) — To win on the Grand National stock car circuit, Harry Gant says "you have to have luck, get the best pit stops or have the fastest car. Today, we had all of 'em." The comment came Sunday after Gant coasted home a winner in the $204,100 Virginia National Bank 500 for his first victory in 107, starts on the Winston Cup circuit. His was undoubtedly the best car and — with some of the things that befell him — he was fortunate. Most of all, though, he and his car were the best things going as he showed his rear bumper to the dwindling field for the last 144 laps to win by more than a lap over Butch Lindley. No one else was to Gant, who had been second a 10 times the last two years without winning. Neil Bonnett was two laps back of Lindley in third and Ricky Rudd was another lap down. In the same lap with Rudd and completing the top five finishers was Darrell Waltrip, who started with problems and had more than a few during the latter stages of the

"We were figuring on 165-170 laps, and I wasn't accelerating that much at the end," Gant said. "We just had some good luck today," the 42-year-old North Carolinian added. "We had run good here before, but it just seemed like something always happened." Last year, he was leading the fall race with eight laps remaining, cut a tire and finished second to Waltrip. "Today, it looked like it was going to be another one of those days." It seemed as if a bit of everything happened to him. He got bumped by Dale Earnhardt in the first 80 laps and was sent to the pits with a smoking right front tire that was being rubbed by the sheet metal. That put him a lap down but he got it back at the 201-lap juncture, when Lindley pitted for tires and gas. He pitted one time because of ill-fitting ear plugs and then, on the sixth caution of the day, he pitted too soon and had to go to the tailend of the lead lap.

Robbins, Crump...

er, remain ECU's best bets to be among those whose names are called once the draft begins. Both players — particularly Crump — have been helped this year by a draft that many call the weakest in recent history. "It's not a good year of offensive or defensive lineman," Hutcherson said. "That's helped George. It'll be a kind of hit and miss deal for many teams because of this." Crump got off to a slow start with the pros because of a question concerning his eligibility. Crump missed most of the 1980 season because of a knee injury but a hardship appeal was not granted. Thus, Crump, who went into the '81 season listed as a junior in the football brochure, was ruled a senior — after the pro scouts had come around in the fall. "That hurt him," Hutcherson said. "But, that just made him more determined to make it. I feel he has a good chance of making it. On a scale of one to 10 I'd say he's an eight and a half to make it. "He's made himself into that. He has great size and speed for a big man and is extremely strong. His big weakness is his technique," Hutcherson said. "But the pro people feel he'll make a football team." Crump, a 6-4, 260-pounder from Chesapeake, Va., played defensive tackle for the Pirates but will probably be switched to either defensive end or outside linebacker if he makes it in the pros. Robbins, a 6-5, 270-pounder from Merry Hill, N.C., will probably remain at offensive tackle, where this past season he was named a second-team All-American. Robbins' agent, Joe Courge, could not be reached for comment, but Robbins feels his chances of making it in the NFL are good. He then pointed to 1979, when he quit football, as the turning point in his career. "In 1979 when I quit I just didn't feel I was dedicated to football," he said. "I had some disagreements with the coaches and just didn't feel I was playing like I should." Coach Ed Emory talked Robbins into returning the next season, and the result was Emory got an All-American tackle and Robbins received a second chance at football, something he knows he won't get in the pros. "I don't feel like I've lived up to my potential, but I know I can play football," he said. "I do know, though, that I've got more potential than I've shown. "This is the time to do it," he added. "I've gotta do it now. I can't go out and play any other way if I want to make a name for myself and help my people."

Seattle Buries Rockets...

(Archibald)," said Celtics Coach Bill Fitch. "He could have sulked, but he responded like a true professional. You really have to shut their guards off from passing the way they can, and Tiny did that." Washington, which lost all six regular season games with Boston, was led by Spencer Haywood with 17 points. "I'm disappointed, really disappointed, because I thought we had a very good chance to win if we did a good job on (Larry) Bird and (Robert) Parish," said Washington

Coach Gene Shue. The Bullets held Bird to 10 points and Parish to 14. "The Celtics' key players were not factors and that's an opportunity we missed. We did the job on Bird and Parish, but it didn't pay off for us. "That's a credit to the Celtics. They have a lot of balance and a good bench. They showed us we're going to have to play a lot better to beat them." 76ers 125, Bucks 122 Julius Erving's 34 points and 26 by Andrew Toney sparked Philadelphia, which rallied late in the final quarter. The Bucks were ahead 111-110 when 76ers center Darryl Dawkins fouled out with 5:18 to go. But Philadelphia scored the next eight points and, although Milwaukee twice got within two, the Sixers held on. Mickey Johnson had 28 points and Marques Johnson scored 27 for the Bucks. "All of our games with the Bucks seem to turn out that way," said Erving. "No lead is safe. You just can't get too far away."

Philadelphia played without guard Lionel Hollins, sidelined with a broken knuckle on his shooting hand. Toney made up for Hollins' absence. Moving away? Make the trip lighter by selling those unneeded items with a fast action Classified ad. Call 752-6166.

Q.1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠A763 ♣KQ95 ♦Q843 ♣4
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
Pass 3 ♦ Dbie Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—Your side should have at least game, and even slam is not inconceivable. But in which suit? You should not make the choice unilaterally. By cue-bidding four clubs, you give partner the option of picking the suit, and you can support any one that he chooses.

Q.2—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠KJ94 ♦842 ♣1094 ♣QJ7
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 NT Pass Pass 2 ♣
Pass Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—There are four possible choices: a bid of two spades; a raise to two no trump; a double; or a pass. The first three are aggressive actions, which are stabs in the dark and could result in possible large minus scores for your side. Despite the fact that your side has a combined count of at least 23 HCP, we suggest you pass — then apologize to partner for your timidity if you defeat two hearts badly. When you don't know what to do, the conservative action usually yields more points in the long run.

Q.3—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠QJ98 ♣Q62 ♦93 ♣J874
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 ♦ Dbie Pass 1 ♦
Pass 2 NT Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—Partner's auction shows a hand worth almost a two no trump opening bid. He surely has the equivalent of 21 points and you have six. Simple arithmetic solves the problem. Bid three no trump.

Q.4—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠Q84 ♦87 ♣AQ5 ♣AQ82
The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West
1 ♦ Pass 2 ♦ Pass
2 ♣ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—You could play it cute by bidding three diamonds, but that could easily get you to the wrong spot. We think the choice is between three spades and three no trump, and we prefer the latter. With so much of your strength in diamonds, no trump seems like the logical spot. In addition, your tenaces in the minors will be protected from a potentially damaging opening lead.

Q.5—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠A1087 ♣A9652 ♦984 ♣6
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♦ Pass 1 ♣ Pass
2 ♣ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—Since you have a five-card heart suit and a mild fit with partner's suit, your hand rates a move toward game. Bid two spades. That suggests game, while pin-pointing your side strength. If you simply reraised to three hearts, partner won't be able to judge how well the hands fit, and he could raise you to a hopeless game — or pass when it's cold!

Q.6—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠754 ♣AK ♦AKQ10 ♣AJ93
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
Pass Pass 1 ♦ Pass
2 ♣ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—Partner's jump describes a hand of near opening bid strength with a good spade suit. Since a new suit by you would be forcing, you could start a slam try by bidding three clubs. But really all you are interested in is the quality of partner's spades, so we suggest a jump to five spades. A bid over game here can only ask partner to continue to slam if he has excellent trumps.

How do you choose the best opening lead? Charles Goren has the answer. For a copy of "Winning Opening Leads," send $1.85 to "Goren-Leads," care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 259, Norwood, N.J. 07648. Make checks payable to Newspaperbooks.

Charge 4 In Kidnapping

LENIOR, N.C. (AP) — Caldwell County authorities have charged four men and a woman with kidnapping and extortion after ransom money was paid for the release of two women.

The five arrests came after the Caldwell County Sheriff's Department was notified by the parents of the two women that the two were being held in lieu of ransom.

Police identified the five as James Gregory Hollar, 22; William Stephen Bentley, 26; Michael Douglas Hollar, 18; Destry Stephen Watson, 23, all from the Lenior area, and Lisa Lynn Shoun, 18, of Hudson.

The five were arrested after arrangements were made to take the two women to a Lenior restaurant, where they were to be exchanged for $1,800 in ransom. One of the women escaped, but the ransom was paid for the other, police said.

The five were arrested after the Lenior Police Department and Caldwell County sheriff's deputies had made sure the two women were safe.

All five are being held on $10,000 bond each. Their first court appearance is set for Monday.

Natalie Cole In Minor Mishap

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Singer Natalie Cole suffered scrapes and bruises in a minor auto accident over the weekend, authorities said.

Miss Cole declined hospitalization after her car hit a concrete sewer ventilator at 12:30 a.m. Saturday, officials said. Paramedics treated Miss Cole at the scene and she declined further medical treatment.

Police said no citation was issued. Miss Cole is the daughter of entertainer Nat "King" Cole.

Players Set 'Barney Miller' Has Odd Record Taped Final Scene

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — More than 4,500 college students proved that breaking a world record — not once but twice — can be child's play.

The 4,514 players Sunday in the World's Largest Musical Chairs Game broke the previous mark recorded in the Guinness Book of World Records.

The standing record also was set on the campus oval of Ohio State University. That record was with 4,378 participants April 27, 1980.

Scott Ritter, 18, a business major, was the last person to keep a seat Sunday. He won a 6-foot trophy with a chair on top and a pizza a week for a year.

Student players turned out with Frisbees and beach towels to warm up for the event under sunny skies and temperatures in the 70s. Soundspeakers played taped rock music.

As the rescheduled game time drew near, organizers counted heads and decided to waive the $1 entry fee for bystanders. The crowd began chanting and coaxing observers, including a few adults, into seats.

Proceeds from the event, sponsored by the Undergraduate Student Government Association, will benefit the Franklin County Branch of the Heart Association. Marks estimated this year's proceeds would be $3,000 to $5,000, after $6,000 in expenses.

The program is aired each Tuesday and Thursday at 6:30 p.m. on WOOW Radio.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The squad room door in ABC's police comedy "Barney Miller" will close for the last time May 20, when the series' final episode is broadcast.

"According to my watch, the 12th Precinct has ceased to exist," actor Hal Linden said Friday night after the final scene was taped.

For eight seasons, Linden has played New York police Capt. Barney Miller, the calm, paternal leader of the small band of policemen.

The Emmy Award-winning show has slipped in the ratings, and its creator, Danny Arnold, decided to call it quits.

"I have developed some very deep relationships with the people here, and I'm trying to deal with that," said Ron Glass, who played a dapper would-be author, Sgt. Ron Harris.

"We recognize we've been working with special people and that we've all had something to share with each other," said Max Gail, the show's Detective Stan Wojciehowicz.

"I've pretty much decided to join the merchant marine because where do you go from here?" quipped Steve Landesburg, who portrayed the intellectual Detective Arthur Dietrich.

Feeble Presentation In Osmonds' Story On TV

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — One of life's delightful ironies is that faithful followers of the Coalition for Better Television won't be able to watch "Side by Side: The True Story of the Osmond Family" tonight.

That's because it's on NBC, the boycott target of the Rev. Donald Wildmon's anti-litter campaign on television.

Although "Side by Side" might be a naughty temptation to the coalition, it's a definite detour for anybody selective about TV viewing, or at least concerned about their diet. If ingredients were included in the credits, sugar would be on top and substance on the bottom.

Nothing against apple pie, motherhood and singalongs, it's just that this TV movie about the popular singing family is the flimsiest of dramatic entertainment. It's a flat family portrait, like looking at your neighbor's album of snapshots, report cards and prom-night carnations.

The clean-cut Osmond family shouldn't resemble the back-biting Ewing clan, but the movie would have had more flair and excitement if it weren't produced by Osmond Entertainment. It may be the true story, but is it the real story?

This is a second-generation TV movie for several reasons. First, the Osmonds' popular success began with weekly appearances on the "Andy Williams Show" in the early '60s. And second, TV star and singer Marie Osmond plays her mother, Olive.

Photographer Takes First

Daily Reflector part-time photographer-writer Larry Zicherman received a first place award for spot news photography Saturday night at an awards banquet in Knoxville, Tenn.

The photography competition was sponsored by the Society of Professional Journalist, Sigma Delta Chi, and covers five southeastern states including east Tennessee. The competition is open to all college students.

Zicherman entered a spot news photograph that appeared in The Daily Reflector during the summer of 1981, showing the scene of a three fatality accident in Greenville.

Zicherman, who is a student at the University of Tennessee at Knoxville, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Zicherman, of Greenville.

Unfortunately, there's no emotional range in Miss Osmond's acting. In one scene, a lonely teardrop comes trickling down to signify crying. Later, she slaps her husband, George (Joseph Bottoms), and it has all the dramatic impact of a handshake.

It's tough raising eight kids, but Miss Osmond makes it look easy, hardly aging a day throughout the film.

The story begins with the courtship of Sgt. George Osmond and Olive Davis in Ogden, Utah, in the mid '40s. The early look of the movie evokes the times when June Allyson was the girl next door and a military uniform really meant something.

George sweeps Olive off her feet, they eat vanilla ice cream for lunch and smile a lot. But there's trouble in paradise because George isn't the marrying kind, at least not right away.

Eventually, George realizes he can't live without Olive. They get married and begin raising the big family they both want. Cynics who don't appreciate the Osmonds are represented by a snooty neighbor who's constantly teasing George about the growing clothesline in the backyard.

Their first children, Viri and Tom, have hearing defects, and George and Olive resist putting them in institutions. Music helps reach the more severely impaired Tom, and singing becomes an integral part of the Osmonds' life. The one thing more boring than a long car ride is hearing the Osmonds sing "The Old Oaken Bucket" ad nauseum in the car.

The turning point is when Viri and Tom decide to become Mormon missionaries. The other children volunteer to sing in public to raise money for them, and the rest is show business history.

The movie emphasizes the long hours of practice and loving support the family members give each other, but these values lose impact in this feeble presentation.

The story line and mountain scenery will remind some of "The Sound of Music." But, as a TV attraction, "Side by Side" is really "The Sound of Muzak."

Money, Work In New Divorce Law

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — If either sex benefits more than the other from North Carolina's new divorce law, women should get a slight edge, lawyers say.

The new equitable distribution law doesn't single out women for its benefits. But because the husband has historically held title to most assets in marriages, the impact of the new law is expected to help women more than men.

The law gives a woman a greater claim to her husband's property at the time of the divorce, leading lawyers to predict more cases will end up in court. But that won't necessarily mean a financial windfall for attorneys, since they'll have to be extra careful to avoid malpractice claims, lawyers say.

While they'll be able to charge hefty fees, the lawyers say they'll do a lot more work than divorce cases used to require. In many cases, they say, they'll probably have to call in experts to assist them — appraisers, accountants, tax lawyers — who will have to be paid.

Until Oct. 1, the wife was entitled only to property to which she had title, or to a share of property held jointly with her husband.

With some exceptions, most assets accumulated during a marriage are considered the "marital" property of both spouses. The law provides that at the time of divorce, marital property be divided equally between the spouses, unless a judge determines that a different split is equitable.

The law recognizes indirect contributions by a spouse, such as the wife's

Coinjock Bridge Is Reopened

COINJOCK, N.C. (AP) — The Coinjock Bridge in Currituck County reopened Sunday afternoon, two days after an Army barge accidentally put it out of commission.

Jim Boyle, a public affairs officer with the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, said the bridge was opened to one lane of traffic that would be alternated until it becomes fully operational about one week from now.

The double-swing bridge had been locked in the open position since Friday when it was struck by the army boat.

The bridge carries N.C. Highway 158 across the Atlantic Interoceanic Waterway and is a main link between Virginia and North Carolina's Outer Banks. Travelers had to take a 90-mile detour while the bridge was stuck in the open position.

Boyle said water traffic will be open all of the time to boats that can negotiate the area with only one span open, and once every four hours for larger boats.

Civil Defense Plans Growing

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina and South Carolina are joining other states in beefing up plans for dealing with a nuclear attack, insisting that atomic war wouldn't automatically mean death for all.

"We're going to save people," said retired Army Brig. Gen. George Wise, director of South Carolina's emergency preparedness division. Wise said a good civil defense program was the best deterrent against nuclear war.

In North Carolina, 55 of the state's 100 counties are being studied for sites where uprooted residents may flock in the event of a disaster, said Don Isom, chief of the state's Nuclear Civil Protection Planning Branch.

"Forty-five counties are not involved in this crisis relocation," he said. "We call them nonrisk, nonhost."

Officials are also working on a relocation plan for Norfolk-area Virginians in 10 northeastern North Carolina counties, said Tom Pugh, deputy director of the North Carolina Division of Emergency Management.

"We're just in the process of really getting done a survey of facilities in those counties," Pugh says. "It will take probably about a year to complete that."

While division engineers are contemplating moving Charlotte's 314,447 residents to Cabarrus, Gaston and Union counties, few of the affected residents are aware of the plans, said Ken Williams, director of the Charlotte-Mecklenburg Emergency Management Office.

"It's so preliminary — the thing is at least three years away from being finished — I would doubt that they would," he said.

The Reagan administration is seeking $4.2 billion from Congress to step up the Crisis Relocation Plan process, based on the assumption that the United States would have a week's warning of impending nuclear attack.

Especially in need of CRPs are areas with counterforce military installations like Seymour Johnson Air Force Base in Goldsboro and the Charleston, S.C. Naval Base.

A nuclear bomb-bearing B52 wing, part of U.S. strategic forces, sets Johnson apart, though imminent deactivation of the 14-plane wing might alter its status. Atomic-powered, nuclear missile-loaded submarines distinguish Charleston.

Sniffin' Snow

Sigmund Freud, Sherlock Holmes and even President McKinley all shared a stimulating experience — cocaine. Some say it is almost as widely used as Coca-Cola — which until 1906 contained the stimulant as an ingredient. But the accidents of Richard Pryor and John Belushi point up the sinister side of cocaine. Although not a narcotic and not addictive, cocaine use can lead to psychological dependence, physical problems and — in the case of overdoses — death. Perhaps 30 million Americans have tried it — many in the upper levels of society. With annual U.S. sales approaching $30 billion, cocaine is a major industry — ranking just below Ford Motor Co. in total revenues.

DO YOU KNOW — Which illicit drug is second to cocaine in total sales annually?

Evacuate Dorm Due Teargas

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — A cloud of teargas forced the evacuation of one floor of a residence tower at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill early Sunday.

Capt. Fred Merricks of the Chapel Hill Fire Department said someone apparently was pulling a prank when a canister of teargas was thrown at the Granville West dormitory.

Merricks said the second floor was evacuated and two people were taken to the hospital. Hospital officials refused to comment, but Merricks said he doesn't think the injuries were serious.

No one has been caught in the prank, which is still being investigated by authorities.

THE DAILY REFLECTOR has been advertising local businesses since January 26, 1882.

In August, 1925, the J.C. Penney Company opened a store in Greenville. Vida Crawford has worked in the Greenville store for 40 years, a store record. She remembers "when the original store was a two-story building on Evans Street, located where Coffman's Men's Wear is now".

Christine Windham, an employee of 30 years who works in Fashions, remembers when the department was called "ready-to-wear".

"You couldn't buy better men's work clothes anywhere", said Windham. "And the store very seldom stayed open past 5:30 p.m. Oh, once in awhile during the Christmas holidays we would stay open later than that, but not often."

Another employee of 30 years, Richard Meeks, is currently a salesperson in auto supply. "At one time I was an assistant manager of the old store," said Meeks, "but I like selling better."

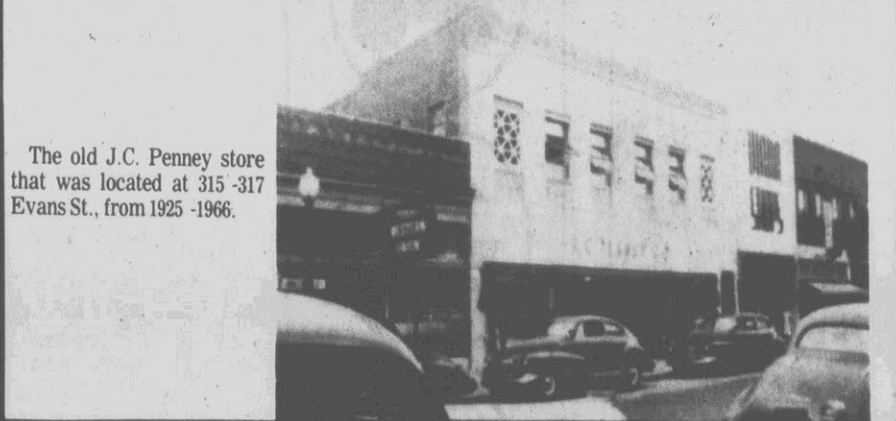

Asked if he was an avid car enthusiast, he responded, "Nope, I didn't know much at all about autos when I first started selling auto supplies in 1976. My hobbies are hunting, fishing and boats."

All three employees are natives of Pitt County and remember when only 15 employees did all the work at the store. Now there are 65 full-time employees at the Penney's store in Pitt Plaza.

The present store opened in August of 1966 and is currently managed by William Hopper.

"We have seven employees who have worked at Penney's in Greenville for a combined total of 167 years," said Hopper. "We are quite pleased to be in Greenville. The customer/merchandise match-up seems to just perfect."

"And we have been very satisfied in our relationship with THE DAILY REFLECTOR. They have cooperated to the fullest."

Death Of Chicago's Cardinal Leaving Questions

By JOHN DOWLING
Associated Press Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — As church officials prepared for the funeral of Cardinal John P. Cody, uncertainty clouded the future of a probe into allegations he misused church funds — charges a lifelong friend believes were "the direct cause" of his death.

The spiritual leader of the nation's largest Roman

Fear Exposure To Hepatitis

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — The Orange County Health Department has reported that people who ate pastries at Hotel Europa between April 6 and April 20 may have been exposed to viral hepatitis type A.

Jerry Robinson, director of the health department, said someone involved with preparing the pastries has been confirmed as having viral hepatitis type A. He said the person "may have shed that virus onto the items" he prepared.

Robinson suggested that anyone who ate pastries at the hotel between those dates should get a shot of "human-immune globulin." He said the immunizations could be given at hospitals, doctors' offices or local health departments.

"Once you start showing the symptoms, it's too late," he warned.

The incubation period lasts from 15 to 50 days, with an average of from 28 to 30 days.

Early symptoms include fever, malaise, loss of appetite, nausea and abdominal discomfort. The severity of the virus increases with age, but Robinson said it is not considered a severe disabling disease in most people.

Heavy Damage From Collisions

An estimated $4,950 property damage resulted from two collisions investigated by Greenville police Friday.

Officers said heaviest damage resulted from a 9:05 p.m. collision on Memorial Drive at the Maxwell Street intersection.

Police said a car driven by Frank Edward Bright Jr. of Kinston, left the roadway and collided with two parked cars at Phelps Chevrolet Co., then struck a utility pole.

Damage was estimated at $1,500 to the Bright car, $800 to one of the parked cars, $150 to the other, and $800 to the pole.

Kader William Bass Jr. of Jamesville, was charged with driving under the influence and hit and run driving following investigation of a 9:20 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Greenville and Charles Boulevards.

Investigators said the Bass truck collided with an auto driven by Manly Gwen Newman of Jacksonville, causing an estimated $500 damage to the truck and $1,200 damage to the Newman car.

Paragraph Omitted

In Christine Rusch's review of the Ayden Theater Workshop production of "Mame" that appeared in Friday's edition, a paragraph was omitted. The paragraph reads:

"If Mame had not chosen to marry John Williams, the Southern gentleman Beau, he'd have been snatched by any number of audience females."

TWO ELECTED

The North Carolina State University Chapter of Alpha Lambda Delta National Freshman Honor Society has elected two students from the Greenville area to the society.

Kevin Amos Clark of Greenville and Bradley Page Griffin of Grimesland have been inducted into the society because of outstanding academic achievement during their freshman year.

AREA CHAIRMEN

Two area chairmen for the Leukemia Society of American Cycle for Life drive have been announced. These are Linda Lilley of Winterville and B. Kim Bass for the Commerce and Industry division of Farmville.

Lilley's phone number is 756-6610; Bass's, 753-2161.

Catholic archdiocese died

early Sunday of an apparent heart attack at the age of 74. He had a history of heart trouble and had been confined to his home in recent months after a lengthy hospital stay.

The controversial, strong-willed churchman was under federal scrutiny following allegations he illegally diverted up to $1 million in church funds to his step-cousin, Helen Dolan Wilson.

In his last official statement, released after his death, Cody said he could forgive his "enemies" and could forget the "personal hurt ... and the scandal to the flock" they caused. But he said he prayed that God would help them turn "from delusion toward truth."

Mrs. Wilson, who was raised with Cody, felt the allegations involving her caused the prelate's death, according to her lawyer, Leonard Ring.

"She felt that the burden of the charges was a bit too much for him to carry,"

Ring said. "He told her that over the past six months he feared that he would not be able to physically bear up under the charges ... leveled against him."

Funeral plans were to be made today by a board of church officials, said Monsignor Francis A. Brackin, vicar-general of the archdiocese of 2.4 million Catholics. The funeral Mass probably will be held "toward the end of the week," he said, with burial at a mausoleum in suburban Hillside.

Brackin also said the board today was to elect one of 12 churchmen as "acting ordinary" to run the archdiocese in consultation with the other 11 until a permanent successor as archbishop is chosen by Pope John Paul II. He estimated the selection by the pope might take "from six weeks to eight months."

The last months of Cody's life were darkened by a scandal — the first grand jury investigation of an American prelate.

In September, federal prosecutors confirmed that a panel was investigating allegations Cody illegally diverted as much as $1 million in tax-exempt church money to Mrs. Wilson. The reports surfaced in the Chicago Sun-Times.

Cody denied wrongdoing but refused to discuss specific allegations.

U.S. Attorney Dan K. Webb said Sunday that he joined in mourning Cody. He said his office would review the status of the inquiry in light of Cody's death, but declined further comment on the future of the investigation, calling it "inappropriate at this time."

Mrs. Wilson, who arrived Sunday in Chicago to attend Cody's funeral, had referred to the allegations as "a vicious joke." Ring said Mrs. Wilson was very disturbed by Cody's death and was not available for comment.

"I know she wanted him to have a chance to establish his innocence before he died," Ring said.

Ring revealed that Mrs. Wilson will receive about $43,000 from an insurance policy on Cody's life. Cody paid the premiums on the $100,000 policy, against which Mrs. Wilson has received $57,000, Ring said.

At a news conference, Brackin released a statement written by Cody in January during his last hospital stay.

"I wish to let everyone know that I have forgiven my enemies," Cody wrote. "I yield up resentment, forgo rage and anger and will not seek retributive justice or gross vengeance ..."

"I can turn aside from the personal abuse, the plotting, the media maneuvering and even the incomplete untruths. I can look elsewhere and I do. Let them go on."

A private nurse found Cody asleep Saturday night and "having some difficulty" breathing, according to Curtis Thompson, a spokesman for Northwestern Memorial Hospital. The nurse summoned paramedics, who rushed Cody to the hospital. He was pronounced dead at 12:19 a.m.

Speculation about Cody's successor — the suggested retirement age for bishops is 75 — had been rampant in recent months.

One churchman frequently suggested as a likely successor is Archbishop Joseph Bernardin of Cincinnati, a leading Catholic moderate. Another is Bishop Paul Marcinkus, chief administrator of the Vatican and a native of the Chicago suburb of Cicero.

Cody was born in 1907 in St. Louis, the son of an Irish immigrant firefighter. He was sent to a preparatory seminary at age 13 and later spent 13 years at the North American College in Rome, earning doctorates in philosophy and theology. He was ordained in 1931.

In Rome, Cody learned the intricacies of Vatican bureaucracy and gained access to prelates who later would rise to the highest levels of church power, among them Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli, later Pope Pius XII, and Monsignor Giovanni Battista Montini, who became Pope Paul VI.

He returned to St. Louis in 1938 and was consecrated a bishop in 1947, serving first in St. Joseph, Mo., and later in New Orleans. He was named Archbishop of Chicago in 1965 and was elevated to the College of Cardinals two years later.

In Chicago, Cody set up retirement programs for the laity and clergy and got rich parishes to share their wealth. He was criticized for closing five inner-city parochial schools for lack of funds without consulting the school board.

Cody was sometimes criticized as peremptory and arbitrary in his use of power, and in 1971 the Association of Chicago Priests voted to censure him. The conflict eroded the Chicago church's reputation for progressivism in the American branch of the church.
