U.S. Sides With British; Offer Military Supplies

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States today offered military supplies to Britain in the Falkland

Islands crisis, while suspending arms sales and loan guarantees to Argentina. With those steps, Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. ended three weeks of neutrality and put the United States on the side of Britain. He ruled out any "direct U.S. military involvement" in the heightening crisis. Haig said President

Reagan ordered the sanctions against Argentina because the Buenos Aires government had refused to compromise in the dispute over control of the South Atlantic islands.

He said the Falklands crisis "is about to enter a new and dangerous phase in which large-scale military action is likely."

The tilt toward Britain had been expected, but the American stance was toughened with Haig's announcement that the United States "will respond positively to requests for materiel support for British forces." He did not say what kind of supplies would be involved.

He spoke as both Britain and Argentina set up war zones around the disputed islands. The British had imposed a full blockade of the region at 7 a.m. EDT, and Argentina responded by declaring a blockade of its own.

Despite Haig's pessimistic assessment of the prospects of war, Reagan was heard to remark that neither side seemed to want to start the shooting.

Reagan was overheard making that comment to senators at a White House meeting on the budget. "It just seems obvious that no one wants to start the shooting," he said.

Haig said while he pressed the effort at mediation, the United States refrained from taking sides in the crisis, and Britain understood that position.

"Now, however, in light of Argentina's failure to accept a compromise, we must take concrete steps to underscore that the United States cannot and will not condone the use of unlawful force to resolve disputes," he said.

Argentina invaded the British-held islands on April 2.

Even as he announced American support for Britain, "our closest ally," Haig said that in the end there will have to be a negotiated settlement of the territorial dispute over the sparsely-populated islands 25 0 miles off the Argentina coast.

"Otherwise we will face unending hostility and insecurity in the South Atlantic," Haig said.

He said the final arrangement would have had to take into account "the interests of both sides and the wishes of the inhabitants," most of them of British descent.

He said the administration had reason to hope the British would consider those terms, "but Argentina informed us yesterday that it could not accept" them.

The Buenos Aires government insisted on immediate assurances that it would gain ultimate sovereignty over the islands.

Few Appear Interested In How To Use $660,000

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

Greenville is in line to receive over $660,000 in revenue sharing funds in 1982-83 but apparently very few local citizens are interested in how that federal money is spent.

With an audience of five on hand, including three city department heads, interim City Manager Gail Meeks conducted a brief proposed use hearing on the appropriation of revenue sharing funds and solicited input on possible spending avenues for the upcoming year.

Liz White, appearing on behalf of the Pitt County Red Cross, asked the city for an appropriation of $2,000 to $3,000 toward funding of a cardio pulmonary resuscitation educational program in Greenville next March. Ms. White explained that the program is aimed at training one out of every seven people in the city in CPR as part of a nationwide effort to have more people able to respond to CPR situations.

The spokesman said that the program would be offered each day during March and participants would be able to complete a course of roughly six hours on their own schedule. She said that funding is needed to buy mannequins and books to aid in instruction.

Ms. White said local rescue personnel have indicated they will help the Red Cross in putting on the program.

Ms. Meeks read a letter from Mrs. R. E. Lee requesting that the city target revenue sharing funds for facilities to aid handicapped citizens, particularly ramps, parking spaces and identification markers. Mrs. Lee, who has a handicapped child, mentioned the Little League park near Guy Smith Stadium, Sheppard Memorial Library and the courthouse as areas of consideration.

The interim manager said that the Airport Authority is asking for $29,450, an increase of over $6,000 from 1981-82, in revenue sharing money, while the library is asking that the city's two-thirds share in funding be increased some 2.7 percent this year to $268,355. Public transportation needs an allocation of $60,143, she said.

According to Ms. Meeks, a number of major capital outlay items have been requested this year, including two rescue vehicles, two garbage trucks (container and residential, $94,000), eight police vehicles, a street sweeper ($70,000), and dump truck ($17,500). She said a request has been received for $125,000 in street resurfacing money and the city hopes to fund at least a mile of work costing approximately $25,000. Traffic signal improvements are also needed and will receive consideration.

The city expects to receive $663,332 in revenue sharing funds, she said, including an allocation payment of $623,332, a fund balance of $35,000, and interest on investments totaling $5,000.

Under the federal program, which was first enacted in 1972, funds are distributed to state and local governments and may be used, obligated, or appropriated for any purpose for which a recipient government may spend its own funds.

Helms Stands Alone Behind Argentinians

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., stood alone in his support of Argentina Thursday night, finishing on the short end of a 79-1 Senate vote on a pro-British resolution in the Falkland Islands dispute.

Despite losing the vote, Helms did manage to pressure his fellow senators into taking some of the bite out of the resolution by threatening a filibuster.

Helms called the final version a "tooth extraction" and the original, tougher resolution a "root canal."

The original resolution would have put the Senate on record as favoring the use of "all appropriate means to assist the British government" if hostilities developed between the two countries.

"The purpose of the resolution is to make it absolutely clear ... where we stand," said Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del., the resolution's primary sponsor. "We stand foresquare with Great Britain. Argentina was wrong. Great Britain war right."

The watered-down resolution which passed called upon the Reagan administration to "further all efforts" to bring about withdrawal of Argentine forces from the Falklands.

"I hope no (Latin) nation will interpret this as a slap in the face," Helms told the Senate.

Earlier, the House Foreign Affairs Committee passed a resolution saying the United States should provide "full diplomatic support" to Britain if the showdown over the islands is not settled peacefully.

In its compromise form, the Senate resolution was sponsored by a majority of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee members, including chairman Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill.

Helms, chairman of the subcommittee on Western Hemisphere affairs, stood fast, saying the measure in its original form "would have been dangerous because it would have taken away the coalition we must have if we are to prevent a communist takeover of Central America."

"We do stand to lose something in South America," Biden said. "I do not doubt that." But if the Senate rejected the resolution, he said, "we would lose our most faithful ally."

"If ever there was a need for evenhandedness in order to avoid bloodshed in the Falkland Islands, it is now," Helms said.

He put into the Senate record a copy of the resolution passed by the Organization of American States supporting Argentina's claim to sovereignty over the islands.

Reagan Asking Voters 'React'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan is launching a new budget campaign with a call to the voters to "do it again" and convince Congress to line up for his economic program.

The president summoned congressional Republicans to the White House today and planned to meet with prospective Democratic allies Monday in an apparent attempt to reassemble the coalition that delivered his first round of tax and budget cuts last year.

In a nationally broadcast address Thursday night, the president told the public to let "your representatives know that you think this is no time for politics as usual — that you, too, want an end to runaway taxes, spending, government debt and high interest rates."

"You did it once — you can do it again," Reagan said. A White House spokesman said that about three hours after the president's speech, 2,967 telephone calls had been received and most of Democratic Rep. Walter B. Jones of Farmville filed today with the State Board of Elections as a candidate for re-election in North Carolina's 1st District.

Jones, now in his ninth term, is chairman of the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee. He is the only member of North Carolina's House delegation to hold a full committee chairmanship. He is also a ranking member of the House subcommittee on tobacco and peanuts.

If re-elected, Jones will become the dean of the Democratic North Carolina delegation.

Workers Rushing At World's Fair

By DEAN FOSDICK
Associated Press Writer

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Trucks and backhoes, painters and food vendors rushed around the grounds of the 1982 World's Fair early today, putting on the finishing touches for the weekend opening of the festivities expected to draw 100,000 people to town.

The first world's fair since 1975 and the first ever in the Southeast opens Saturday for a six-month run. President Reagan and his wife, Nancy, will be on hand.

Exhibits from 22 nations, four states and more than 50 corporations and organizations are unveiled on a 72-acre downtown site. The exhibits are based on the fair's energy theme, noted in a commemorative postage stamp that went on sale here Thursday.

On the eve of the opening, workers splashed paint on newly erected walls and vendors carted boxes to food counters and souvenir stands.

Mrs. Reagan will fly to Knoxville tonight and then take a helicopter ride to the home of Sen. Howard Baker, R-Tenn., in rural Huntsville, where she and the president will be weekend house guests.

Reagan is flying to Knoxville Saturday for the opening, a national radio address, and a fund-raiser for fellow Republican Rep. Robin Beard.

Elsewhere in Knoxville, World's Fair clerks were cataloging accommodations that include hotel rooms, private homes, dormitories, campgrounds, houseboats and a remodeled tobacco warehouse.

Charlotte Ware, who handles alternative housing for the fair, said reservations have been coming in slowly, but are starting to pick up.

"We have a lot of availability," she said. "We've seen a slow amount of reservations for May but in the last week, we've had tons of reservations for the first couple of weekends after the fair opens."

"I think we'll have plenty of space available through the fair," she said. "It may not always be their first choice but it will be available and it will be nice."

Fair officials Thursday stood by their predictions that 100,000 people would attend the weekend opening.

Consultants' projections call for an average of 60,000 people a day to visit the exposition during its six-month run. That number would be about 60 times Knoxville's population of 183,000.

Despite reports of price gouging and evictions of more than 1,000 tenants by landlords eager to rent apartments overnight, people should have no trouble finding accommodations if they're willing to shop around and pay the price, officials said.

Dick Rogers, the fair's housing director, said more than 2 million "room nights" — one room for one night — are available within 50 miles.

"I had a guy call me just this morning to report he'd completed building four motels (in Knoxville)," Rogers said Thursday. "That's almost 700 rooms. He's hurting for business."

The area's major hotels and motels, which two months ago were charging $30-$65 a night for double occupancy, have raised their rates to $65-$100 a night.

Several small motels outside town have boosted rates above $100 per night, and a downtown hotel in a run-down neighborhood

He has advertised the find in The Daily Reflector classified ads to no avail. Anyone who can describe the glasses, kept in a brown case embossed with the name of an Asheboro eye doctor, may claim them in the Daily Reflector news room. The chairman of the North Carolina Savings & Loan League says a major effort is being launched to "ask and insist" that the state's congressional leaders in Washington make housing and its availability a priority item.

William G. White Jr. said at a morning press conference here that the effort will begin with an "open letter" to members of Congress, appearing Sunday in newspapers across the state.

White, in announcing plans to "Save the American Dream," said that, "Literally thousands of our fellow voters will list their names in support of an effort to refocus the attention of our leaders" on the current housing plight.

"It is our goal to achieve an expression of concern over this issue by each of our 13 elected members of Congress," he said. "From there we hope to appeal to every other member of Congress and to the president of the United States."

White said, "In the process of all of this name signing, letter writing and flag waving, we will be combining the minds and innovative spirits of the leaders of the housing related industries ... in an effort to develop the structure of specific legislation to be offered in defense and support of the average North Carolinian ... so that he will be able to purchase adequate housing for himself and for his family."

White said "our opinion is that government put housing in its current dilemma" and government should move to correct the problem.

The league chairman noted that unemployment in the state has "raced past the national average of 9.5 percent" and the "recession has finally caught up with even our state's balanced economy."

White said, "Much of the erosion of monthly paychecks caused by unemployment can be tied directly to the housing-related industries of our state."

He said the "housing industry is in its most depressed state since the 1930s" with housing starts in 1981 (approximately one million units) representing the lowest total in 35 years. Sales of existing homes fell to 2.3 million units, the lowest since 1971, he reported.

Unemployment in the home building industry has reached 19 percent and nearly 4,000 builders had been forced out of business by the middle of 1981, White said. In the real estate field, more than 65,000 salesmen and women left the business last year.

"The basic problem, of course, is the high cost of money," White said, adding that, "If buyers cannot buy, then sellers cannot sell."

He said, "It is clear that high interest rates, the product of federal budget deficits which have been too large for too many years, are almost solely responsible for the depression in housing."

White said that "many economists feel that any downturn in rates will be small and brief."

In carrying the new plan to Congress and beyond, White said, "We will be moving toward the establishment of a consensus that will sustain and even guarantee the continued reality of the American dream of home ownership."

White was introduced by Thad Woodard, president of the league, which represents 175 savings and loan institutions in North Carolina. White was scheduled to announce the program at six press conferences across the state.

has raised its double-occupancy prices from $18 to $80 a night. A former tobacco warehouse five miles from the site is offering 750 rooms without TV or telephones for $66 a night for four people. Roger Miller, a spokesman for the Great Smoky Mountains National Park, about 40 miles east of Knoxville, said campground space is available at the popular site. Eleanor Prather, who operates Stump Hollow Campgrounds on Watts Bar Lake, about an hour's drive from Knoxville, said the dozen or so private campground operators say reservations have been slow. "There are plenty of campsites still available," she said. "Rates are the same as if there were no fair going on. All of us have a repeat business which we want to protect." Campgrounds are charging $5-$30 per night depending upon what service is offered. Houseboats are being rented for about $200 per night for six people and mobile homes are going for about $100 for four people. Area colleges and universities are charging $26-$55 per couple for a night's stay in a dormitory room.

GOP Tries Block Filing Time

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Claiming the speed in which it must be done is unconstitutional, a group of state Republicans have gone to federal court hoping to block the scheduled opening of the filing period for legislative candidates. Attorney Arthur J. Donaldson, of Salisbury, filed a motion for a temporary restraining order on behalf of a group of Republicans who are also challenging state legislative redistricting plans in federal court. "The opening and closing of filing for candidates all within 10 days of the enactment of redistricting plans is unconstitutional," said the motion, which was filed shortly before 5 p.m. Donaldson said he hoped the court would schedule a hearing Friday morning. The General Assembly adjourned a special redistricting session Tuesday night after scheduling the statewide primary for June 10. It designated a filing period for legislative and congressional candidates to begin at noon Friday and end one week later at noon, May 7. Donaldson's motion objected to the filing period because the U.S. Justice Department has not yet approved the filing schedule as required under the federal Voting Rights Act of 1965. Donaldson's motion argued that repeatedly changing district lines and closing the filing period within 10 days enhanced the re-election of incumbents. He said it denied potential candidates, especially those of racial minorities, the opportunity to assess and evaluate their possible candidacy. The motion said the General Assembly "conducted no public hearings concerning the proposed redistricting and failed beforehand to inform the public" of proposed district changes and the filing period. James M. Wallace Jr., special deputy state attorney general, said he expected a court hearing to be held Friday morning. State Elections Director Alex Brock said he expected the case to be argued before U.S. District Judge Franklin T. Dupree. Dupree was scheduled to hold a 10 a.m. hearing in an unrelated election-law case, and Brock said state attorneys would probably ask Dupree to hear arguments on the latest motion before the other case. Dupree is one member of a three-judge federal panel named to hear legal challenges to the reapportionment plans filed by Republicans and the NAACP Legal Defense and Education Fund. Federal law would allow a single judge to consider the request for a temporary restraining order until the three-judge panel could hear the case, Donaldson said in a brief filed with the motion. In an interview, Donaldson said he sought the restraining order because he believed candidates or potential candidates for the state House and Senate should have more time to learn their districts and assess their strengths. "The only people who know what the districts are and what their chances are, are the incumbents," he said. "We're simply saying there ought to be a little time for candidates to know what their districts are."

Provisional President Of El Salvador Named

By SOLL SUSSMAN Associated Press Writer SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — A split in the rightist coalition in the Constituent Assembly made possible the election of a banker favored by military leaders, the Christian Democrats and the United States as provisional president of El Salvador. The National Conciliation Party broke with the assembly's ultra-rightist speaker, Roberto d'Aubuisson, and sided with the centrist Christian Democrats to elect Alvaro Magana, 56-year-old head of the National Mortgage Bank for the last 17 years. He is a political independent who is considered to have moderately conservative views. The vote in the assembly Thursday was 36-17 with seven abstentions.

Dr. ALVARO MAGANA

The assembly also elected three vice presidents, one each from the Christian Democrats, National Conciliation and d'Aubuisson's Republican Nationalist Alliance, or ARENA. Although the Christian Democrats are the largest party in the assembly and ARENA is second, National Conciliation's Raul Molina got the first vice presidency and will become acting president if Magana dies, travels abroad or is incapacitated. Dr. Gabriel Gutierrez Castro of ARENA was elected second vice president, and the Christian Democrats' Dr. Paulo Mauricio Albergue got the third vice presidency.

Magana and the three vice presidents will be sworn in Sunday at a ceremony that will terminate the U.S.-backed civilian-military junta that has headed the government since a coup in October 1979. "The principal thing for El Salvador will be economic recovery, and that will create a climate of confidence," Magana said in a recent interview. "The provisional government should create this climate so that the constitutional government has it available." U.S. Ambassador Deane R. Hinton said in a statement that the election of "a government of national unity is good news for El Salvador."

"The Salvadoran people today took another highly significant forward step in the democratic process so overwhelmingly endorsed last March 28 by over one and a half million free Salvadoran voters," he said. "Democracy is at work."

Magana, one of three nominees put forward by the military commanders after the Christian Democrats and the rightists could not agree, has said little about the war between the government and leftist guerrillas in which an estimated 33,000 people have died in the last two and a half years. But he has been described as flexible toward the land reform program and bank nationalization which the junta president, Jose Napoleon Duarte of the Christian Democrats, put through in an attempt to get the support of the peasants away from the leftists.

The rightists condemned the reforms during the election campaign. But after they won the majority of seats, U.S. officials warned them that if they rolled back the land redistribution program, Congress would probably refuse to continue financing the war against the guerrillas.

The next test of rightist unity will come when Magana submits his cabinet to the assembly, which voted earlier this week to give itself the veto over his choices. Once the provisional government is approved, the assembly is to begin writing a new constitution and preparing for the election of a president and a legislative assembly.

Reagan Asks...

them — 2,352 — supported Reagan.

However, results of a Washington Post-ABC News poll published today by the Post indicated that 59 percent of those interviewed wanted Congress to make substantial changes in Reagan's budget proposals, with 28 percent opposed. And by a 58-35 margin, the Post said, those surveyed wanted Reagan to drop his proposal for social budget and tax cuts and try something else.

The Post-ABC poll was conducted April 21 through last Sunday, before the breakup of budget talks between the White House and Congress.

Before Reagan met with his GOP allies, Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., said he expected the president to hold fast to overall targets of $122 billion in tax increases over three years and a $28 billion cutback in his proposed defense buildup. Dole, who took part in a month of secret talks that failed to produce a compromise budget agreement, said he hopes Congress can agree swiftly on at least a partial package of measures aimed at reducing fiscal 1983 budget deficits. Dole wants Congress to pass the measures as part of a debt limit bill expected to reach the House and Senate floors by June.

With the first budget Reagan submitted to Congress this year all but forgotten — and efforts to find a bipartisan alternative to it in shambles — Reagan said he intends "to forge the beginnings of an acceptable budget initiative." Congressional Democrats, however, said Reagan's strategy will not work this year and will succeed only in tying Congress in knots.

Rep. Richard Bolling of Missouri, giving the Democrats' broadcast response immediately after Reagan's speech, said the president was being too political and making an appeal that threatens to deadlock Congress on the budget issue. "If we work together effectively we can produce something that's good for you and good for the country and good for the future of the country," said Bolling, responding without a prepared text.

He said the budget problem is neither Republican nor Democratic and "it's very important that we have bipartisan cooperation all the way through." Later, Bolling told reporters the president's speech "almost assures it will tie up the Congress in a situation where we don't get a result."

He added that he had pushed for budget negotiations with the administration rather than confrontation this year "because I feel so strongly that we've got to be able to function this year, in one way or another."

But Reagan declared in his speech that his Democratic critics only "want more and more spending and more and more taxes."

ECVC building fund drive spokesmen said the Greenville Host Lions Club is the 10th organization to contribute $1,500 or more to help fund 40 dormitory rooms at the facility. He noted that the contributors will have one of the rooms dedicated in their honor with an appropriate plaque.

The fund drive has raised more than $1 million of the $1.4 million needed to complete the facility.

In addition to the Lions' contribution this week, the Knights of Columbus have pledged $1,500 to the project. Officials of the organization said the group will raise the money in a fund drive in the fall.

Dear Abby

Mail Abby's Printed Reply

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: A woman I know carries around a small bottle of breath freshener, and right in the middle of a conversation she whips it out of her purse, opens her mouth and sprays!

I find this repulsive, and many others have commented on it.

Is there a nice way to tell her that this is something that should be done in private? Or am I mistaken?

REPULSED

DEAR REPULSED: You are not mistaken. After this hits print, you could mail it to her.

DEAR ABBY: I met a man who said he was a top photographer for a famous magazine. He asked me to pose for him, saying I would get $100 for every picture. I agreed, and he came over Sunday with his camera.

I posed with nothing on but a policewoman's hat. He also took a lot of pictures of me naked in the shower with the water running. Then we drove to the beach and he got some shots of me on the beach and in the water. It took all day.

About halfway through, he ran out of film and didn't have his wallet, so I loaned him $30 for more film. Later we got hungry, so he borrowed $15 from me to pay for the food.

He promised he'd call me after the pictures were developed, but I haven't heard from him. I don't know how to get in touch with him. I want my $45 back, but I'm afraid to go to the police because I said I was 21 and I'm only 17, and I don't want to get into trouble for being underage and posing like that. Thanks for any help you can give me.

NO NAME, PLEASE

DEAR NO: My guess is that the "photographer" is a phony. You could write to the magazine he claimed he works for, but don't be surprised if the people there never heard of him.

I can't help you get your $45 back, but I have some valuable advice for you: Don't pose for any more strangers. You could lose a lot more than $45!

DEAR ABBY: Someone who served with Gen. George Patton wrote that the general had entertained some visiting dignitaries at an elegant dinner in his headquarters in Germany. Later that evening an aide reported that two place settings of Hitler's monogrammed gold dishes, goblets and tableware were missing!

I would like to know how Patton came to have these things in the first place. I thought only Nazi generals stole other people's property.

DEAR CURIOS: In time of war, when property changes hands, they don't call it stealing — they call it confiscating.

PINEAPPLE CAKE

Our chief recipe tester sometimes takes this to her Bible study group for coffee-break time.

Bake white cake batter in a 13 by 9 by 2-inch baking pan, flavoring the batter with grated orange rind and three extracts — vanilla, lemon and almond. Turn the cake out of the pan and cool completely. Meanwhile lightly drain the heavy syrup from a 20-ounce can of crushed pineapple. In a medium saucepan gradually blend the pineapple syrup into 3 tablespoons cornstarch, keeping smooth; add the crushed pineapple. Cook over moderate heat, stirring constantly, until thickened. Off heat, stir in 1 teaspoon vanilla; cool completely. Cut the cake into two long layers and spread the bottom layer with the pineapple filling; top with the remaining layer. Cover the top and sides with confectioners' sugar frosting, using orange juice for the liquid.

Energy Saving Still Wise

The ECU Board of Trustees voted recently to spend some $672,000 for energy saving projects on three dormitories.

The improvements will include new shower heads, new windows and other work on Jones, Aycock and Garret dorms. They will be financed by a $242,000 federal energy loan and with funds from other sources.

It is expected that the 3 percent loan can be repaid over five years with funds saved through energy use reductions.

If the projects do what is expected of them, we can think of no better expenditure. If the loans can be paid off in five years there will be many years of further savings for the state, the university and the students who pay the dormitory fees.

Energy costs have abated somewhat in recent months due to the decreased demand for petroleum products. Almost no one expects the situation to remain that way over the long haul. Already there is a trend back to larger autos, and once the current worldwide recession is turned around, petroleum use will be on the increase once again. That will put petroleum suppliers in a position to increase prices.

The energy saving work on the ECU campus is for the long term. Every public agency still needs to be looking at ways to save energy through more efficient buildings and conservation.

The Trouble In School

Linda Peeples was giving the dinner. When dessert was finished she said, "I have some exciting news for all of you."

"So tell us already," someone said.

"My son George just read his first book."

We all raised our wine glasses to toast the occasion.

"How old is George?" Reilly asked.

"He'll be 18 next month," Linda said.

"That's fantastic," Rowan said. "My son is 21 and he hasn't read a book yet."

"George has always been a bright student," Linda bragged.

What book did he read?" Frannie Huff wanted to know.

"J.D. Salinger's 'Catcher

in the Rye.'"

There was an embarrassed silence at the table.

"What's wrong?" Linda wanted to know.

"Catcher in the Rye' is a dirty book," I said. "Where did he get his hands on such filthy literature?"

"He found it in the school library," Linda said.

Exstrom was outraged. "You ought to report the librarian to the school board. They probably don't even know it's there."

"But George seemed to enjoy it," Linda said defensively.

"Sure he enjoyed it," Reilly said. "It's full of sex and bad words. But it doesn't belong in a high school library. The next thing you know, George will be reading 'Huckleberry Finn' and Kurt Vonnegut's 'Slaughterhouse Five.'"

"Or Studs Terkel's 'Working,'" I said.

"Not to mention Somerset Maugham's 'Of Human Bondage,'" Frannie Huff said.

"Are they all bad books?" Linda asked.

"The worst. They've ruined kids for life," I said.

"But we've been trying to get George to read a book since he was 12 years old. 'Catcher in the Rye' was a breakthrough, and it would break his heart if we told him he couldn't read any more like it."

"There are books and there are books," Exstrom said. "My daughter came home from her English class with William Faulkner's 'Sanctuary', and I told her if she ever brought anything like that in the house again I'd throw it in the furnace. I also reported her teacher to the principal."

I said, "If more parents took an interest in what their kids were reading we wouldn't have such a rotten society."

"Well, it's too late now," Linda said. "George has already read 'Catcher in the Rye.' What do I do?"

"Watch him closely," Frannie Huff said. "Search his room. If you find a book by John Steinbeck or James Baldwin under his bed, then you know he's in real trouble and I would take his library card away from him."

"I wish I had kept a closer eye on my son. I let him read Hemingway's 'The Sun Also Rises' when he was 15 years old, and the next thing I knew he checked out Malamud's 'The Fixer,'" Exstrom said.

"Where do you find out what books are bad for children's minds?" Linda wanted to know.

"There are organizations all over the country that will supply you with lists," I said. "We get our guidance from a

Tidings Are Never Glad

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
AP Political Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — I got a "Dear Friend" letter from Betty Ford the other day.

Actually, hardly a day goes by that the postman doesn't bring a cry for help from the rich, the famous, the powerful. Most of them begin on an apocalyptic note. Something obviously is terribly wrong. Their tidings are never glad.

And like people who just can't seem to remember your name, the famous ones usually begin their letters, "Dear Friend."

The one from Mrs. Ford was no different. It's been more than five years since she and her husband moved from the White House and the former first lady sounded upset.

"Dear Friend," she began. "You and I could just give up."

What has Mrs. Ford upset is that time is running out for ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment.

"Although we are just three states short of victory, this simple declaration of equality for women that we support will fail if you and I let it," she wrote.

Mrs. Ford isn't really thinking about giving up. She's raising money for the National Organization for Women.

How about this one?
"Dear Friend:
"Each day, three to five new nuclear warheads are constructed on this small planet."
Or this one?
"Dear Friend,
"You may be in for a big surprise ... a disastrous surprise."
Or this from actor Judd Hirsch?
"Dear Friend,
"I am writing to you because I'm worried. I'm worried about the radical right's success in eliminating our best friends in Washington, one by one."
Conservatives worry, too.
"I've enclosed a legal document for you to look over," wrote John T. Dolan, chairman of the National Conservative Political Action Committee, the group that most upsets Hirsch.
"What it says," continued Dolan "concerns you personally, me, and everything NCPAC stands for. ... I have discovered evidence that there is a network of liberal Senates, Congressmen and media representatives who are conspiring to keep NCPAC's commercials off the air."
Even the president needs help.
"I am writing to you today to ask for your help and support in my effort to restore our economy and rebuild the national defense of the United States," said the letter signed, "Ronald Reagan."
What the president thinks would move things along is the election of more Republicans to Congress. He'd like his "friend" to send money to the Republican National Committee.

"I hope you will become a 1982 Sustaining Member by sending the most generous contribution you possibly can," wrote the president.

"I hesitate to suggest a specific amount for you to contribute," he continued "but I know the committee needs desperately many $25, $50 and $100 contributions. I know they also depend on many $150, $250 and $500 contributions to counter fully the power and influence of Labor Bosses and other narrow special interest groups."

The postman is a non-partisan civil servant. One day's delivery of an appeal from the Republican president might be followed soon after by a counter appeal from the Democrats.

"Now is the Time," was how Charles T. Manatt, the Democratic Party chairman, began his letter, the words standing out in boldface.

"Now is the Time to say 'We Disagree' with an administration that would do away with services for workers, senior citizens, children, veterans, and disadvantaged people who need help," wrote Manatt.

"I look forward to hearing from you and welcoming you as a contributing member of the Democratic Party," concluded Manatt.

By the look of the mail, these are troubled times. Don't send sympathy, send money.

Needed: Physical Activity

It wasn't particularly surprising ... the report that almost half of the nation's youth are out of shape to the point where they failed a standard fitness test.

The Amateur Athletic Union did an analysis that showed physical performance actually declined in some categories after the age of 14.

That was attributed to the fact that compulsory physical education was dropped by the schools after the eighth grade. That is probably true. It is also true that teen-agers have so many other activities available to them there isn't time for the physical exertion required for participant sports.

We are a sports-crazed nation but, alas, we are largely spectator-sports oriented.

Every youth organization — school, church or civic — needs to plan more physical activities for our young people.

THIS AFTERNOON

The Big Loophole

By PAUL T. O'CONNOR
RALEIGH — There's a loophole in the state's motor vehicle license law that's big enough to drive a truck through — literally.

Drivers of big trucks can get away without paying their license tag fees and according to the Department of Transportation's legislative lobbyist, Nancy Roberts, enough are doing it that it's costing the state a half million dollars a year.

Under current law, any truck driver caught without a valid license plate is required to buy one immediately. But he only pays a pro-rated fee based on the amount of time remaining in the year. So, if three months have passed since his plate expired, he pays for only nine months — that's 75 percent of the annual fee. The driver will face court charges of driving without a plate, but the usual punishment, Ms. Roberts says, is just the costs of court — $31.

Truck license plates can cost as much as $923 a year. If a truck driver can go three months before he's caught, he's saved $230.75. Subtract the $31 court costs and he's still saved almost $200.

The Legislature's joint Governmental Operations Committee is drafting legislation aimed at closing that loophole. The bill would still require an offending truck driver to buy his plate immediately at the pro-rated fee. But when he got to court, he would face an additional penalty equal to the cost of a full year's license plate fee. In the case outlined above, the truck driver would face a $923 penalty in addition to buying the plate (at a cost of $692.25) for the remainder of the year.

There's a problem with the legislation as drafted, however. Currently, these cases are handled in District Criminal Court. After costs of court, any fines handed down go — by order of the state Constitution — to the public schools. But DOT wants the money for the troubled Highway Fund. So, in proposing the legislation, they asked that the new penalty be considered civil.

Rep. George Hux, a lawyer from Halifax, saw a problem immediately. Civil penalties are much more difficult to collect. If a court orders a civil penalty against a and he's likely to find the money. With out-of-staters, it is even more difficult, and maybe prohibitively expensive, to collect.

So the legislators have sent the bill back to subcommittee where they'll try to work things out.

Included in that same bill is a provision that DOT hopes will make it easier for the state to weigh trucks. The state now has 13 permanent weighing stations which can

Other Editors Say Can't Just Attack

(Washington Daily News)

A recent article carried by the Chicago Tribune-New York Syndicate and headlined "GOP Failures Don't Assure Demo Successes" gives us a lot of food for thought.

Very naturally, Democrats are going to attack Republican failures and they are going to attack President Ronald Reagan at every turn. Every time Mr. Reagan appears to be wrong, make no mistake about the fact that somewhere along the line that wrong will rise up and slap him in the face.

By the same token, with a Democratic House, Republicans will attack every wrong they believe they see along with every Democratic failure they think has taken place. People expect that in politics and there certainly is nothing unusual about that line of campaigning for either party.

But today within the Democratic party there could be a growing feeling that "we can win by pouring it on Reagan." And we do not believe victory can be achieved with any such negative campaign. We feel Democrats must not only take Mr. Reagan to task for any mistakes, but the party must also come forward with a program of its own to substitute for the Republican program under which we are now living.

There are millions of people over the nation who might disagree strongly with the president, but if it comes to a showdown between Mr. Reagan and a liberal Democrat they will vote for Mr. Reagan and his conservatism. Disagreement is no guarantee of disenchantment.

We suspect that within the Republican party today millions of its members at some time or the other disagree with something the administration has done. By the same token we suspect that millions of Democrats somewhere along the line disagree with the U.S. House in some position it has taken. Surely we can point out the millions of Democrats who in the last election went over to Mr. Reagan but also to the millions of Democrats who while disagreeing with Mr. Carter stood by him and voted for him as loyal Democrats.

We interpret this as meaning also that the failure versus success argument might well go into congressional races and into state races where Republicans and Democrats are squared off against each other.

Good salesmanship demands that each party sell its wares on their own merits and not on the weaknesses of the other party. Democrats must offer a positive program, a program of progress and a pleasing alternative to what we have now.

PAUL O'CONNOR

driver, Hux said, he can claim he doesn't have the money to pay — this is especially easy to do under the state's bankruptcy laws. If the matter stays in criminal court, the threat of jail hangs over the driver

Strength For Today

NEARER THAN WE THINK

Religion has much to say about judgment day, but very often we fail to catch the rather obvious implication of all true religion that every day is a judgment day for all of us. James Russell Lowell wrote:

"Every ounce of dross costs its ounce of gold; For a cap and bells our lives we pay. Baubles we buy with a whole soul's tasking; 'Tis heaven alone which is given away. 'Tis only God which may be had for the asking."

The poet was noting the way in which so many people throw their lives away on things which might seem terribly important at the time but which, in the light of judgment day, are matters of complete insignificance. What the final judgment day will depend upon how we live every day until that fateful hour comes. And as a matter of fact it is nearer than we think — it is with us right now. — Elisha Douglass

Direct Selling Field Growing

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — While the recession is shrinking employment in most industries it is adding workers to the rolls of direct selling firms, made up of those people who ring doorbells and throw sales parties.

"We have people who can do very well in a recessionary situation," said Charles E. Swanson, chairman of the Direct Selling Association. Some of them, he maintains, might even earn six-figure incomes.

Several years ago, according to association figures, about 4 million people were involved in direct sales. "It's hard to estimate," said Swanson, "but 5 million now sounds like a true figure."

The figure expands because people lose their regular jobs, fear they will lose them, or have had their hours cut back. Direct sales is easy to enter, and easy to leave also. And hours are flexible.

Some work only a few hours a week and then only when they can spare time from other activities. Others work almost all the time, day, night and weekends. "If you're willing to work, the rewards can be great," says Swanson, who is president of Encyclopaedia Britannica, Inc. Some work very hard. Industry sales are estimated to be $9 billion a year.

Last year Kyu Jung Lee, a Korean immigrant working out of Falls Church, Va., earned $80,000, making him the highest paid Britannica salesman in the United States. But not in the world. A fellow in Australia beat him, selling more than 600 sets at roughly $1,000 each, and earning as much as 26 percent gross commission on each sale.

Such high sales, nevertheless, are small compared to the volume of some Amway distributors of household products and cosmetics who, Swanson says, may reach volumes in the millions of dollars a year.

At the other end of the pay scale, some part-timers, who account for 90 percent of industry employment, might earn a few hundred dollars. A good sales party in a private home might bring sales of $200 to $250, of which 15 percent to 20 percent might go to the sales person.

As most people know, sales activities are pervasive. The association estimates that 75 percent of U.S. homes are contacted each year, and as most people also know, many homes are contacted more than once.

The ability of sales people to irritate is well known, but Swanson insists their ability to be of service is also appreciated, regardless of jokes, cartoons, and reports to the Better Business Bureau.

"The whole identity has changed a great deal," Swanson claims. The old spiel of working your way through college or conducting a survey is considered passe now. "We have done our share of that in the past, as have most companies, but most companies have abandoned it," he said.

Some of the brazen practices of magazine salesmen also have become too well known. Buyers today are usually more sophisticated than those of two decades ago — more aware of deception, more aware of their rights.

Knowing that the lady of the house was peeking from behind the curtains but declining to answer his knock, one oldtimer was accustomed to walking off with the milk bottles, knowing the occupant would instantly appear on the porch. "Aha, there you are madam," he would intone as he returned to the scene of his crime and began his pitch.

Today, said Swanson, companies encourage representatives to present credentials quickly and tell their story directly. "A doorstep identity is essential today," he said, one reason being the high incidence of crime. It works both ways. Sales people too are sometimes victimized.

Also helping to raise the image is a law giving customers three days in which to cancel a purchase of $25 or more made in the home. Some companies allow merchandise to be returned within 15 days after receipt. Some companies, such as cosmetics makers, claim to give money back if the customer isn't satisfied, even after using the product.

Life As It's Lived

Kindergarten Romance Is Indicator Of Trouble

By GAIL MICHAELS
Meg is obsessed with love. I don't know whether this obsession is common with little girls her age or not. All I know is that it's beginning to worry us.

Of course, Meg has been in love before. There was a time she insisted she would marry her daddy. I finally convinced her that I would remain selfish in my claims upon him. For several years she carried a torch for her uncle. He betrayed her by marrying someone else. Then she focused her attention upon Zachary — until Zachary got old enough to struggle against her expressions of devotion.

She has now given up on her family, but that doesn't mean she is disillusioned with love. Not too long ago she watched "My Fair Lady" on television, and she had Henry Higgins married off before Eliza ever had a bath.

"I can tell they're going to fall in love," she simpered as Henry was standing there making fun of Eliza's speech. "Lovers never like each other to begin with."

"How do you know that?" I asked.

"Because it's in all the movies, like Maria in 'The Sound of Music.' And I know I didn't like Scott at first either."

"Who is Scott?" Phillip mouthed to me.

I had no idea, and by that time we had progressed to another subject. Henry was telling Eliza that, after she learned to speak properly, she could do all kinds of things.

"Yeah," Meg said wisely. "Like have a baby."

She was thrilled when Eliza sang "I Could Have Danced All Night." "You see? She longs for his touch."

Meg fell asleep before the end of the movie, but she was still alert enough to notice when Eliza appeared in all her finery for the ball. "Oh, look at that beautiful wedding dress," she murmured just before she closed her eyes.

Within the next week she had found herself a mate. She came home from school bursting with the news. "I'm in love with Greg."

"Who's Greg?"

"He's a boy in my class."

"What does he look like?"

"He has brown hair, and he's as tall as my shoulder. I have to bend down when he kisses me."

I could tell by the light in her eyes that this was a full-blown kindergarten romance. "He kissed you?"

"Oh, yes," she sighed. "He sneaked up behind me in the lunch line. Most of the boys are afraid of kisses, but he's not. That's why we're getting married tomorrow."

Old fogey that I am, I thought this was rather sudden. "Don't you think you should wait awhile?"

She tried to be patient with me. "Of course not. I've already asked Kristy and Heather to be bridesmaids. Sarah just longed to be the flower girl so I let her."

"But marriage is a big step. Are you sure you're ready for it?"

"I'm sure. I know all about love. Don't you think I've been in love before?"

"You have?"

"You have?"

"Millions of times," she said with an air of vast experience. "I've been in love with Scott and Bill and Jimmy just this year."

"But how do you know you're not in love with them now?" I had to ask.

"Well, you know," she stopped fooling around with each other."

I have a feeling Phillip and I are going to have trouble before too long.

weigh a truck rather easily. They also have 350 portable stations which can take a lot of time.

When stopped at a portable scale, truck drivers can now request that they be weighed on a permanent scale. If one of the 13 isn't within five miles, he'll be turned down, however. Under the proposed legislation, he could have his truck weighed at any Department of Agriculture certified permanent scale. For example, the one at the local grain silo.

Early Parole A Mistake, Says Hunt

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt says the early parole given a former state trooper convicted in the shooting death of his wife was a mistake.

Hollis Britt was paroled April 1 after serving two years of a 20-year sentence for manslaughter. At his weekly news conference, Hunt said Britt did not deserve early release from prison.

"I regret very much that the mistake was made," Hunt said. "It appears had they looked at the facts... he clearly would not have been entitled to parole."

The North Carolina Paroles Commission reportedly did not notify proper officials that parole was being considered. Two of those officials, Harnett County Attorney John W. Twisdale and Sheriff Lewis C. Rosser, have said they would have protested the parole.

Hunt was asked if the decision was influenced by politics or by the fact that two of the five paroles commissioners are from Britt's native Robeson County.

"I have had absolutely no indication there were any politics involved," Hunt said. But Twisdale said Wednesday in an interview that the parole appeared to be "politically motivated."

Twisdale says two of the five people who made recommendations for Britt's parole were at the party with Britt the night of the shooting.

Hunt said state law does not allow revocation of the parole because of mishandling by the Paroles Commission. But he said that Department of Corrections officials had changed procedures to guard against a recurrence of the error.

Britt pleaded no contest to a manslaughter charge in March 1980 in connection with the 1979 shooting of his wife in their Lillington home.

Twisdale said he allowed Britt to plead no contest to the lesser offense of manslaughter after assurances from the commission that the seriousness of the crime would require an offender to serve at least one-quarter of his sentence.

'Employer Of Year' Named

FARMVILLE — The Farmville Central Cooperative Education Program has named Alice Wilkerson of the Farmville Central High School cafeteria as its "employer of the year."

Mrs. Wilkerson, who has trained seven student workers through the cooperative program, was cited for her work at the program's recent employer-employee breakfast.

Other awards went to Shelia Pridden, distributive education student of the year; Tony Prescott, the most improved student; Bonnie Moore, home economics student of the year, and Teresa Joyner, office occupations student of the year.

Presentations For A Visitor

Four Pitt County schools put on special presentations this week for Mrs. A. Craig Phillips, wife of the state superintendent of public instruction, during her visit in observance of North Carolina Heritage Week.

Mrs. Phillips is honorary state chairman of the heritage observance.

Bethel School had a display of antique dolls, equipment, creative writer and posters depicting signs and symbols of North Carolina ready for viewing by Mrs. Phillips. At Sam D. Bundy School, a dramatization of "Two Lost Babes" was presented.

Farmville Central High School's jazz band and chorus held a concert in Mrs. Phillips' honor. Pactolus School served a selection of foods prepared from recipes 100 years old or more and actors from "Blackbeard" presented skits.

Each school presented gifts to Mrs. Phillips.

Challenge Registering Of Students

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Republicans may find it difficult to disqualify 400 North Carolina A&T State University students who registered to vote, the chairman of the State Elections Board said Thursday.

The Guilford County Republican Party is challenging on grounds that dormitory students are not permanent residents of the county and should not be allowed to vote at local precincts. Those challenges were filed Wednesday and Thursday.

Elections Board Chairman Robert Spearman of Raleigh said state Supreme Court rulings in the 1970s dealt with the issue.

Spearman said the rulings held that a college student cannot automatically be excluded from voting in a county because he lives in a dorm and does not intend to stay in the county.

The GOP action brought an immediate cry of "harassment" from Guilford County NAACP President Dr. George Simkins. He said he plans to notify the U.S. Justice Department's voting rights section and the NAACP Legal Defense and Education Fund.

Richard Bryan, the lone Republican on the county election board, denied race or partisan politics was behind the GOP challenges, and that similar action would be taken against students at the city's predominantly white colleges if registration drives are held there.

In a ruling in the early 1970s, the state Supreme Court upheld the right of a Meredith College dorm student to vote in Wake County, Brock said. The student's parents lived in Pitt County.

In another ruling in the mid-1970s involving Chapel Hill students, the court said because a student plans to move away after graduation is not enough to bar him from voting in Orange County.

Guilford County used a questionnaire until this month, but its constitutionality is being challenged by Simkins. County Elections Board Chairman Richard Tate has ordered that the questionnaire not be used until its legality is settled.

School Marks Heritage Week

Students at G.R. Whitfield School celebrated North Carolina Heritage Week with a series of daily events, starting with a "wash day and housekeeping day" exhibit displaying instruments used for laundry and homemaking in previous years.

Beatrice May talked to students in grades 3-8 on Tuesday about "Pitt County Profiles" and "Retold Legends," while state Sen. Vernon White presented the school a flag that had flown over the state Capitol.

A retired teacher, Hattie Thimpson, shared her recollections of earlier years with students on Thursday. Fifth grade students conducted lessons in Cherokee Indian lore with sessions involving students in the first, second and third grades.

Dr. James L. Mathis of the East Carolina University faculty was to recount a story about "General Grimes and the Civil War" in a presentation today to seventh and eighth graders.

Concerned Parents will have its annual fish fry Saturday from 11 a. m. to 3 p.m. on the corner of Hooker Road and Arlington Boulevard next to the Stop 'N Go Store. Anyone wishing to order dinners costing $3 each may call 756-2078.

ACCEPTING REFUGEES
BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — The United States will accept between 10,000 and 30,000 Cambodian refugees for permanent resettlement, the American Embassy said Thursday.

FISH FRY
Joy Temple Holiness Church will hold a fish fry in the parking lot of the Memorial Drive Harris Supermarket Saturday beginning at 11 a.m. Plates are $3 each.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — The National Weather Service forecast for the period ending early Saturday predicts no significant precipitation for the nation. (AP Laserphoto)

By The Associated Press
A high pressure area over the eastern seaboard will control North Carolina's weather into the weekend, according to the National Weather Service forecast.

There will be some high level cloudiness across the state today. Skies will range from partly sunny in the southwest to mostly sunny in the northeast. Afternoon highs will be in the 60s to around 70.

Under fair skies tonight lows will dip into the upper 30s and 40s. It will be mostly sunny Saturday and afternoon temperatures will warm into the 60s to mid 70s.

Small craft advisories are in effect for coastal waters and sounds. Northeast winds at 15 to 25 knots will decrease later today and the small craft advisories will most likely be discontinued by afternoon.

Although there was some high level cloudiness Thursday, sunny skies were the rule.

Afternoon temperatures warmed into the 60s for the most part. There were some low 70s in the southwest and Fayetteville had a high of 70. The warmest location was Bryson City with 73. On the cool side were Boone and Spruce Pine with 57 and Cape Hatteras with 59.

Willing To Turn In Gun

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — A Communist Workers Party member says she will turn in her gun to investigators for ballistics test and that she had no idea they had been trying to find the weapon.

Signe Waller says she wasn't aware for a long time her .38-caliber pistol was even fired that day. She also says she was unaware that investigators were looking for her gun in connection with a grand jury investigation of the Nov. 3, 1979 shootings in Greensboro that left five people dead.

Authorities say that during the violence, CWP member Dorothy Blitz of Martinsville, Va., fired several shots from Ms. Waller's gun at Ku Klux Klansmen and Nazi Party members. None of those shots hit anyone.

Ms. Waller said U.S. attorneys asked her about the gun three weeks ago in a pretestimony interview.

"I had no idea they were even looking for it," she said. "This didn't seem like a paramount thing."

Her statements were made after she testified before the federal grand jury. Her husband, CWP leader James Waller, was among those killed.

DRIVERS INJURED — Greenville Fire-Rescue Department personnel work to remove the driver from one of two cars that collided head-on on Hooker Road about 7:58 p.m. Thursday. The drivers of both vehicles were injured in the collision that caused an estimated $4,500 property damage. (Reflector Staff Photo by Tommy Forrest)

Dept. Trims 8 Positions

By The Associated Press
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Dr. Sarah Morrow, secretary of the North Carolina Department of Human Resources, announced Thursday that she is eliminating eight positions in the department as part of an effort to streamline her agency.

However, two new positions were created using the vacancies, she said.

One will be an assistant secretary for Intergovernmental Relations and the other is a special assistant to serve as an adviser to the secretary and deputy secretary on major policy issues.

She said Ted Parrish, who has served as a school board member in the Chapel Hill-Carrboro system and as a policy adviser to Gov. Jim Hunt, would fill the first position and focus on local government needs.

She said June Millby, who oversees the public information office, will fill the second position.

The eight vacancies were created when the Division of Plans and Operations was eliminated. Mrs. Morrow said 25 of the 33 people in the department were relocated.

Three Collisions In City Investigated

An estimated $7,550 property damage resulted from three traffic collisions investigated by Greenville police Thursday.

Heaviest damage, investigators said, resulted from a 7:58 p.m. mishap on Hooker Road, 100 feet north of the Manchester Drive intersection, involving cars driven by Anita Caroline Lang of 718 Hooker Road and Beadie Mertice McKinney of 719 Hooker Road.

Officers, who charged Ms. Lang with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety, estimated damage at $2,000 to the Lang car and $2,500 to the McKinney car.

Police reported both Ms. Lang and Ms. McKinney were injured.

A 10:45 a.m. collision at the intersection of 10th and Forbes streets involved cars operated by Gregory Bryan White of 410A Student St. and Jo Hobgood Kinsaul of Route 4, Greenville.

Damage was estimated at $650 to the White car and $1,100 to the Kinsaul vehicle.

Vehicles driven by Maureen Mary Dolan of 601 White Dorm and Billy Lynn Manning of Bethel collided about 4:57 p.m. on Charles Street, 500 feet north of the Greenville Boulevard intersection, causing an estimated $1,000 damage to the Dolan car and $300 damage to the truck driven by Manning.

Malpractice Suit Filed

WILKESBORO, N.C. (AP) — A Yadkin County man has filed a malpractice suit seeking more than $10,000, claiming the Knollwood Hall nursing home was negligent in allowing his father to escape and get hit by a car.

James Franklin Ashley Jr. of Hamptonville filed a suit Wednesday in Wilkes County Superior Court against Hillhaven Inc., Knollwood's parent company.

James Franklin Ashley Sr., Ashley's father, was hit by a car and died after escaping from the nursing home Dec. 31, according to J. Gary Vannoy of North Wilkesboro, Ashley's attorney.

Knollwood officials could not be reached for comment.

The complaint said Ashley's father was "disoriented, confused and senile," had often escaped his restraints and that he left the nursing home Dec. 31.

While walking the streets in Winston-Salem, Vannoy said, Ashley was hit and killed by an automobile.

The complaint said the nursing home failed to properly restrain and care for Ashley.

Argue Witness's Credibility In Reporting Sirhan 'Threat'

By LINDA DEUTSCH
Associated Press Writer
SOLEDAD, Calif. (AP) — The convicted murderer who claims Sirhan Sirhan spoke of planning to kill Sen. Edward Kennedy is a con man who "can tell a plausible story for any circumstances," a parole investigator says.

The allegation that Robert F. Kennedy's convicted assassin had plans to kill Edward Kennedy if the Massachusetts senator became president is a key part of the Los Angeles County district attorney's request that Sirhan's Sept. 1, 1984, parole date be rescinded.

But a parole board considering the district attorney's request heard an investigator and three inmates dispute the credibility of Lawrence Eugene Wilson, the convict who told of Sirhan's alleged plans.

As the hearing at Soledad Prison neared the end of its first week, Sirhan's attorney, Luke McKissack, said he now believes "there's a reasonable chance" the board will grant Sirhan parole in 1984.

"I was pessimistic, but my opinion has changed," he said.

Prisoner Robert Bell said Wilson solicited him to give false testimony against Sirhan.

"He (Wilson) wanted me to say I overheard him and Sirhan talking about political figures and that I heard him say he was going to assassinate Edward Kennedy after his release," Bell said.

"Did you actually hear this?" asked board member Loretta Collier.

"No, I didn't," Bell said, adding that he first told investigators he did overhear the conversation because he hoped Wilson could help him win leniency in his own case.

Wilson's story, first told to Los Angeles County District Attorney John Van De Kamp last year, was cited repeatedly by Van de Kamp in his campaign to keep Sirhan behind bars.

Prisoner Timothy Necochea said Wilson solicited him to tell the same story but he refused.

The parole board's investigator, Richard Washington, said in his inquiry into Wilson's past he found the convict "definitely is an accomplished con man."

Washington said Wilson was convicted of murdering a businessman — a crime he tried to blame on his father — and tried to cash a $5,000 check found on the victim's body. "Mr. Wilson uses any means necessary for his monetary gains," he said.

Deputy District Attorney Larry Trapp noted that Wilson had testified in several murder trials.

The inmate witnesses also cast doubt on the credibility of Carmen Falzone, a fugitive who was not available to testify.

Falzone, in an article for Playboy magazine, said Sirhan wanted him to steal nuclear materials for transport to an Arab country.

But William "Old Man" Kogan, a 60-year-old prisoner who introduced Falzone and Sirhan, said he was convinced the article was phony.

"I remember Falzone's first words when he found out Sirhan was there (at Soledad)," Kogan said. "He said, 'This would be fantastic if I could get him to tell his story. His story would be worth a fortune.'"

McKissack said later that "if this were not an election year, there's no question in my mind the district attorney's office would withdraw from the case at this point."

Van de Kamp is running for state attorney general but has denied political motives in seeking Sirhan's continued imprisonment. He said other testimony would be sufficient to support his position even if the convicts were proved untrustworthy.

Sirhan, 38, was convicted of shooting Robert Kennedy on June 5, 1968, in Los Angeles just after Kennedy won the California Democratic presidential primary. The Jordanian immigrant was first sentenced to death but the penalty was reduced to life imprisonment when the Supreme Court invalidated California's death penalty law.

ROBOT COUPE™

The Original French Food Processor

The Robot-Coupe was the first food processor in the world, developed over 35 years ago in France, birthplace of fine cuisine. Through the years we have perfected our invention for use in the great restaurants of France and in the homes of cooks throughout the world.

This work-saver will become an invaluable kitchen aid — one that slices, shreds, chops, mixes, kneads, purees and otherwise accomplishes a thousand tedious cooking chores in seconds. The Robot-Coupe comes with a complete 179 page book filled with recipes for pizzas, pastas and breads, vegetables and salads and an array of tantalizing desserts and appetizers, as well as recipes for meat, fish, soups and sauces. There are a hundred and one things that you can do with this amazing work saver. Once you use this machine, you'll discover just how enjoyable cooking can be. Bon appetit!

The work bowl, cover, pusher and plastic blade are made of shatterproof, heat-resistant Lexan® plastic. Steel blades are manufactured to hold an edge for years. Slicing and shredding discs are also high-quality stainless steel. All parts are dishwasher safe.

The power source of the Robot-Coupe 2000 food processor is a 500-watt, 115-volt direct drive induction motor, which allows you to do heavy duty jobs like mixing doughs. It simply shuts off to keep the motor from overheating and burning out. It also has an On/Off/Pulse switch for quick bursts of power or to let the machine run continually.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

SHE WAS FAIR TO BEHOLD!
(ESTHER 1:10FF)

HER NAME WAS VASHTI.
VASHTI NEVER HEARD OF MALE CHAUVINISM,
BUT SHE SUFFERED IT. VASHTI NEVER HEARD OF WOMENS LIB, BUT SHE WAS ITS SISTER!

HER HUSBAND, KING AHASUERUS, RULER OF THE PERSIAN EMPIRE (485-464 B.C.) WAS ENTERTAINING
HIS NOBLES, AND PRINCES, WITH AN ENORMOUS FEAST WHICH LASTED DAYS ON END. "ON THE
SEVENTH DAY WHEN THE HEART OF THE KING WAS MERRY WITH WINE" HE SENT ORDERS FOR THE QUEEN
TO COME AND PARADE HER BEAUTY BEFORE HIS GUESTS.

VASHTI REFUSED! SHE DID NOT SAY "I REFUSE TO BE A SEX OBJECT!" BUT THAT'S SURELY
WHAT SHE MEANT. "THE KING WAS VERY WROTH," AND VASHTI'S DISOBEDIENCE COST THE LOSS OF
HER THRONE FOR THIS EARLY REBELLIOUS ACT
IN FAVOR OF WOMENS INDEPENDENCE!

NEXT WEEK: WHEN A BIBLE KILLED A KING!

Bill has been in the music recording industry almost 25 years as a writer, recording artist, manager, arranger, and record producer. Fourteen of those years were spent on music row in Nashville, Tenn. Bill has over 200 songs published, some of them recorded by Chubby Checker, Eddy Arnold, Louis Armstrong, Leroy Van Dyke and others. He has performed on The Grande Ole Opry, and has received awards for his music from Broadcast Music, Inc., of New York.

In 1975 Bill joined the staff of The Christian Broadcasting Network as Director of the Music Division, founded House Top Records and its two music publishing companies.

Bill co-produced and wrote some of the music on House Top's album "The Sparrow" by Cathie Taylor and "Moose" by Steven "Moose" Smith. Some of the songs God has given Bill are "Praise God Anyhow", "Naturally Beautiful", "I Read The Back Of The Book And We Win" (three of the most requested songs on gospel radio stations across the country today), "Shout It From The Housetops", "What Would Jesus Do (If He Were You)..." "Do It Lord", "I Am The Sparrow", and "Ode To Mary Jo And John" which has been picked as a hit, not only on the gospel charts but on the country and western charts as well.

The dock weighted average price for next week is 43.14 for small purchases of plant grade broilers picked up at processing plants. Estimated slaughter today 1,692,000.

Hens
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) (NCDA) — The North Carolina hen market was steady with a firm undertone, supplies adequate, demand moderate. Prices paid per pound for hens over seven pounds at farm for Wednesday, Thursday and Friday slaughter too few to report.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices rose today, halting a three-day slide, despite concern over a budget impasse at home and the threat of war in the South Atlantic.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which fell 20.64 points over the past three sessions, rose 1.62 points to 846.56 at noon.

Stocks rising in price held a slight lead over losers in the mid-day tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

In the deficit impasse, President Reagan sought public support for his budget campaign in a speech Thursday. Rep. Richard Bolling of Missouri, delivering the Democratic response to Reagan, said he was worried that a partisan battle would delay action on deficit-cutting.

The Commerce Department reported today that its index of leading indicators, a barometer of future economic trends, fell 0.5 percent in March after a similar decline in February, marking its 11th consecutive monthly decline.

The NYSE's composite index rose .11 to 67.06. But at the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off .04 at 271.08.

Big Board volume reached 20.90 million shares over the first two hours of trading, down from 23.39 million in the comparable period Thursday.

Find Old Lost B-24 In Jungles Of New Guinea

PORT MORESBY, Papua New Guinea (AP) — U.S. Army investigators have found the wreckage of a World War II B-24 Liberator bomber with the remains of 19 Americans in the jungles of Papua New Guinea.

A team from the Army's Central Identification Laboratory at Fort Shafer, Hawaii, and members of the Papua New Guinea museum staff found the wreck 8,856 feet up the slopes of Mount Thumb, 43 miles northeast of here.

Col. David Rosenberg, of Fort Shafer, said the searchers found the wreckage a week ago with the help of local villagers.

He said he and his team had "pieced together" the remains of 19 American airmen and soldiers. They were trying to locate the remains of three others thought to have been on the ill-fated flight.

Williams, Rampants Trip Northern, 8-2

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
RED OAK — When Rose High School opened its Big East campaign several weeks ago, it took extra innings before the Rampants were able to battle past Northern Nash, the team picked to battle Rose for the title.

Last night, when the two met for a second time on the Knight field, it looked like it might turn out to be the same type of a game.

But a four-run fourth inning turned it around and Rose High went on to record an 8-2 victory over the Knights, taking another step toward the league championship.

Rose is now 15-0 overall and 7-0 in the conference — halfway through. Northern drops to 4-4 in the league and 11-4 overall.

Everyone in the league aside from the Rampants has now lost at least three games, and a sweep of three games set next week would ice no worse than a tie for the championship, and depending on how other games come out around the league, could clinch the title, with still two weeks left to play.

Last night, Roger Williams boosted his record to 6-0 on the season, but it was not one of his better outings. He walked five, including four in the first two innings, and went to a full count on a number of batters.

However, he was still sharp enough to limit Northern to 12 hits, while striking out 12. In fact, the first eight outs were all strikeouts, and the infielders made only two outs in the first four innings.

"Roger threw a lot of pitches tonight, but he threw hard," Coach Ronald Vincent said later. "I still think he had good control, but the umpire was calling them very tight for both teams, as the walks show."

Northern's pitchers walked ten Rampants, and that cut down on the hitting. Rose had only five hits. "It's hard to hit the ball when they are walking you so much," Vincent said.

"This was a real big win for us. We're half-way through now, and we're in real good shape. If we can win these next three (next week), we'll be in great shape."

For a while, however, the issue was in doubt.

Rose jumped on the Knights for a run in the top of the first inning. With one out, Mont Carter singled to center, but was thrown out at second as Sammy Hodges reached on a fielder's choice. Hodges then stole second and took third on a wild pitch, scoring on Williams' single to right.

The 1-0 lead lasted by briefly, however.

Northern's starting pitcher, Thomas Mabry, helped his own cause with a towering drive over the left centerfield fence on the very first pitch delivered by Williams. The ball cleared the wall at the 335 sign, and provided Northern with a 1-1 tie.

But the Knights weren't through there. With one out, Kevin Payne walked and stole both second and third. He scored on a wild pitch after two were out and both Steve Smith and Billy Godwin had walked.

But after Williams walked the second batter he faced in the second, he retired the next 13 in a row before walking Smith again in the sixth. In the seventh, pinchhitter Glen Melvin singled to open the inning, but went down on a fielder's choice before an error with two away put two on base. However, a grounder to short ended the threat.

Rose, meanwhile, quickly moved back into the lead in the second inning, scoring twice with only one hit — that an infield one. Gordon Douglas led off with a walk and with one away, both Randy Warren and

Bill Kittrell both walked, loading the bases. Rudy Stalls was hit by a pitch, forcing in Douglas with the tying run. With two away, Carter grounded to short, but the fielder was indecisive on what to do with the ball, and Carter beat out his throw for a hit while Warren scored with the go-ahead run.

After a threat that left Douglas at third in the third, the Rampants struck for four in the fourth.

Kittrell led off the fourth with a walk and Stalls also drew one. Buie beat out a slow roller down the first base line, loading the bases. Carter was hit by a pitch, forcing over Kittrell. Hodges then hit a fly to left that was dropped, with Stalls scoring easily. Williams and Douglas followed with sacrifice flies to score both Buie and Carter. The final run came in the fifth. Warren walked and Kittrell became the third Rampant hit by a pitch. Warren stole third and scored when the throw down was errored.

Rose left men in scoring position in the sixth and seventh, with Williams getting a double in the sixth, and the bases loaded on walks in the seventh, but got no more runs.

Williams and Carter each had two hits for Rose.

The Rampants travel to Elizabeth City on Monday for a make-up game against North-eastern.

Hooten Happy About Victory

By The Associated Press
Around the Los Angeles Dodger clubhouse, they call Burt Hooten "Happy" — a tongue-in-cheek nickname for his unsmiling demeanor.

Thursday night, he really had something to be happy about.

"I'm just happy I got a good, solid game under my belt," said Hooten after pitching a one-hitter to lead the Dodgers to a 4-0 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies. "I felt like I had things in control all the way. I felt like I was throwing consistently well all game."

Hooten retired the first 10 Phillies he faced before Ivan DeJesus lined a 1-2 pitch to center for a clean single in the fourth inning. Pete Rose then drew the only walk the Phillies got, but Hooten was able to pitch out of trouble.

DeJesus' hit came on a mistake, Hooten said.

"It wasn't a pitch that I wanted to throw. I wanted to bounce it, but I didn't," he said of the knuckle-curve. "I guess you'd call low and inside a good pitch to a lot of hitters, but he chokes up a lot and can handle that pitch."

Hooten, 1-1, hadn't had much success in his four previous starts.

"I have been a notoriously slow starter," he said. "I've had games like this early in the season, but I haven't usually put them back-to-back until the second half of the year."

"I haven't really been confident all year. When you aren't as confident as you should be, it throws your control off. I was sharp, but I've been sharper."

Giants 7, Expos 3

Darrell Evans hit a three-run homer, climaxing a five-run, first-inning rally that propelled San Francisco over Montreal.

Montreal starter Ray Burris, 0-4, went into the game with a sparkling 1.17 earned run average, best in the National League. But it climbed to 3.12 after three innings of work in which he gave up all seven San Francisco runs.

Rookie Alan Fowlkes, 3-1, was the winning pitcher.

Harris Inks At Catawba

Tim Harris, a 6-6 senior at Rose High School, has signed a basketball grant-in-aid with Catawba College, it was announced today.

Harris, who was the starting center for the Rampants this past winter, averaged just under 10 points a game. He is the son of Barbara Evans of Greenville.

allowing 12 hits and striking out seven in his first complete game.

Braves 3, Cubs 0
Dale Murphy and Bob Horner hit consecutive home runs in the eighth inning to lead Atlanta over Chicago.

After Chicago veteran Ferguson Jenkins and Atlanta rookie Joe Cowley had battled for seven scoreless innings, Claudell Washington singled off Jenkins, 2-2, with one out in the Braves' eighth.

Washington stole second and took third on Chicago catcher Keith Moreland's throwing error before Murphy hit a two-run homer for the game's first runs. Murphy's homer, his sixth, increased his league-leading RBI total to 22.

Horner added an insurance run with his sixth homer.

Gene Garber, 2-1, who relieved Cowley after seven innings, got the victory.

Pirates 9, Astros 6

Tony Pena hit a three-run homer and Dave Parker added a solo shot to power Pittsburgh over Houston. Pena put the Pirates ahead 4-1 in the first inning with his homer off Houston starter Bob Knepper. Bill Madlock had singled in the first Pirate run.

The Pirates extended their lead to 6-2 with a pair of fourth-inning runs, one on a wild pitch by Knepper and the other on Dale Berra's sacrifice fly.

Padres 6, Mets 0

Tim Lollar limited New York to five hits in hurling his first major league shutout and belted his second home run of the season as San Diego beat the Mets.

The Mets, who ended the Padres' 11-game winning streak with a 15-inning 5-4 victory Wednesday night, managed just four singles off Lollar, 2-0, who walked two and struck out five.

Rose Tops New Bern

The Greenville Rose golf team slipped by New Bern, 323 to 325, Thursday afternoon in a match held at the Brook Valley Country Club.

New Bern's Brian Taylor had the low score for the day, shooting a 78, but it was the Rampants that took the match.

Scott Wilson and Craig Davis both shot 80s to lead Rose. Spencer Mayo was one stroke back at 81 followed by Brian Hill at 82.

Steve Fulcher had an 80 for New Bern followed by Ashley Scott at 81 and Brad Sutt at 86.

Jane Blalock, a star of the women's golf tour, is a former schoolteacher.

ELIZABETH CITY — Rose High School's Rampant track team closed out its regular season yesterday with a 112 to 50 victory over hosting North-eastern High School yesterday. Currittuck finished with 8 points.

Merwin Is Selected

Bill Merwin, a sophomore on the East Carolina University soccer team, has been invited to participate in the Southern Regional Olympic tryouts at the University of South Carolina on May 22-23.

This is one of three sites in the south where 18 players will be selected for the Southern Sports Festival team to participate in the National Sports Festival in Indianapolis, Ind., later this summer.

Merwin is only the second ECU soccer player to be chosen for the honor. Phil Martin was picked in 1979.

"Bill is probably the most skiller player we've had here," East Carolina coach Brad Smith said of the Basking Ridge, N.J., native. "If he has a good weekend, he'll have a good shot at making the team."

Merwin was a midfielder for the Pirates this past fall.

Greene Central Tops Farmville

SNOW HILL — Greene Central scored three runs in the first inning and got a strong pitching effort from Richie Chase to defeat Farmville Central, 5-1, Thursday night.

Chase gave up just four hits, struck out 12 and walked just two in going the distance for his third win in six decisions. Farmville's only run came in the sixth.

The win leaves Greene Central at 11-7 overall and 5-2 in the league. The Rams are third in the ECC, behind C. B. Aycock (6-0) and Ayden-Grifton (6-1). The Jaguars are now 3-11 overall and 1-6 in the league.

Greene Central, which returns to action Tuesday at North Pitt, travels to Ayden-Grifton next Friday and then plays host to C.B. Aycock the following Tuesday. The Rams got all the runs they needed in the first inning yesterday. Tommy Goff led off with a double and scored when Chris Ginn's single to left was misplayed.

Matthew Moore then walked and Chase singled to score Ginn. Moore later came home on a wild pitch to make it 3-0.

It stayed that way until the sixth. Farmville edged to within 3-1 in the top of the sixth when Joey Stepp singled home Nat Norris, who had singled and stole second to open the inning.

But, the Rams came back to score twice in the bottom of the inning. Donald Warren singled and went to second when the ball was misplayed in centerfield. Dana Harrell then singled home Warren. Harrell subsequently scored on Ginn's single.

Ginn was three for four to lead Greene Central. Chase was two for two. The Jaguars did not have anyone with more than one hit.

Farmville plays host to SouthWest Edgecombe today.

Archer, Strange Steal Show At Dallas Event

DALLAS (AP) — There was no wind and the normally fast greens were soft. It was strictly target golf in the opening round of the Byron Nelson Classic with George Archer and Curtis Strange stealing the par-breaking show.

Archer, who still holds the PGA record for fewest putts in a 72-hole tournament, used a new blade to one-putt 10 times Thursday for a 5-under par 65.

Strange matched Archer's heroics over the tame Preston Trail Golf Club with another 65, including six one-putt greens.

"I've played here many, many years and I've never seen the course play any easier," said Archer. "You could just fire it at the pins."

For an example of how simple the course played, de-tending champion Bruce Lietzke was 1-over par 281 in winning the tournament last year.

Lietzke shot 1-under 69 Thursday and trailed 14 other players.

Bruce Fleisher, Vance Heafner and Eric Batten cruised home in 4-under 66. Three were at 67 and six, including U.S. Open champion David Graham, were at 68.

"We got a break in the weather," admitted Strange. "The wind didn't blow and the temperature (mid-70s) was perfect. The overnight rains softened the greens."

Strange added "par is never a bad score here over 72 holes. The course always catches up to the players. Watch what happens if we get a little wind."

Archer, who used only a record 94 putts when he won the 1980 Sea Pines Heritage Classic, tried a Bullseye putter and the change worked magic.

"It's the kind of putter I used when I was a kid," the 41-year-old Archer said. "I'm not as good a putter as I once was...I can't concentrate like I used to. But I only had 26 putts...that's pretty good."

The 27-year-old Strange, one of the bright, young stars on the PGA tour, didn't use a new putter just good "mechanics" on his round.

"I've been working hard on it," he said. "Ninety-nine per cent of putting is between the ears."

Archer and Strange played in the afternoon after early morning winds had died down.

Filly Tests Derby Hopefuls

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Cupecoy's Joy, a fast-working New York-bred filly, Saturday will test 18 colts — including a one-eyed runner — and a gelding, survivors from a Kentucky Derby field that has been stripped by illness and injury.

In 107 previous Derbies at Churchill Downs, only two fillies have won — Genuine Risk in 1980 and Regret in 1915.

Cupecoy's Joy, who ranked sixth on the money earning list which determined the field at a maximum 20 3-year-olds, also had been entered in today's Kentucky Oaks for 3-year-olds.

However, after Cupecoy's Joy drew the favorable No.1 position for the richest Derby ever with a gross purse of $327,600, owner Roberto Perez said, "We're in for the big one. If we had drawn on the outside, we would have scratched immediately and run in the Oaks."

Bettors, perhaps remembering that Genuine Risk paid $28.20 for a $2 win ticket here, don't figure to get that high a payoff on Cupecoy's Joy since she will be part of the parimutuel field with seven others because there can be only 12 betting interests.

The parimutuel field was listed at 8-1 in the early line, which favored El Baba, winner of eight of 10 starts, at 5-2, followed by unbeaten Air Forbes Won, the Wood Memorial winner, 7-2, and Muttering, the Santa Anita Derby winner at 4-1.

Cupecoy's Joy, to be ridden by Angel Santiago, has four victories — all against New York-bred competition — five seconds and four thirds in 14 starts, earning $213,420. Royal Roberto, a 20-1 outsider, is the other New York-bred in the field for the 1 1/4-mile first leg of thoroughbred racing's Triple Crown.

No New York-bred has ever won the Derby which has been dominated by Kentucky-breds who have won 81 times.

The bay daughter of Northerly-Lady Alba made her last start in the Spiral Stakes at Latonia March 27 where she finished third. She has been impressive during her workouts here this week.

Mrs. Joe W. Brown's El Baba won the Louisiana Derby and ran second to Hostage, who fractured a sesamoid earlier this week, in the Arkansas Derby. The son of Raja Baba-Hail to El, tops the money winners among the Derby field with earnings of $384,863.

El Baba, who won twice here as a 2-year-old, will leave from the No.4 post position with Don Brumfield aboard.

"Good," said trainer Dewey Smith when he heard his colt's post position. "That's just good, couldn't be better. I'm very happy."

Edward Anchel's Air Forbes Won will go from post No.7 under Angel Cordero Jr., who rode the colt's sire, Bold Forbes, to victory in the 1976 Derby. "Sitting on him is like sitting on his daddy," said Cordero after a workout earlier this week.

Air Forbes Won didn't go to the races until March 4 this year and has won all four starts. The last horse to win the Derby that didn't race as a 2-year-old was Apollo in 1882. He also was bred in Ohio which has produced only one Derby winner, Wintergreen in 1909.

Muttering, owned by the Tartan Stable, heads a contingent of five who prepared for the Kentucky Derby on the West Coast. He has raced only twice this year but has earned $317,299 off a career record of four wins and two seconds in nine starts.

Laffit Pincay Jr. will ride Muttering from the No.11 post position for trainer Wayne Lukas.

There is plenty of curiosity here over 20-20 Stable's Cassalera, who lost his left eye in a stall mishap shortly after his birth. Because he is claustrophobic, according to his trainer, Ron McAnally, he has been stabled here in a special outdoor pen.

Cassalera and Water Bank, who will run as a McAnally-trained entry, were listed at 20-1. Cassalera has earned $355,670, second highest in the Derby field, with three victories, two seconds and six thirds in 12 career starts.

Because of his handicap he has been involved in several brushing or bumping incidents. He finished third in his last start, the California Derby, as Water Bank ran second to Rockwall, also in the Derby field.

Cassalera drew the No.18 post position, which pleased McAnally who said his late-charging colt runs better on the outside.

Bill Shoemaker, who has won three Derbies, will be riding in his record 22nd Derby aboard Star Gallant, the undersized colt who finished second in the Derby Trial last Saturday and ran second in the Florida Derby to Timely Writer, the early Derby favorite who was withdrawn last week after intestinal problems and surgery.

Star Gallant, who had won his first four starts before his two seconds was listed at 8-1. Sent off at 1-5 odds in the Derby Trial, he lost to Listcapade, a non-Derby nominee.

The absence of Timely Writer, Hostage and Linkage, the Blue Graavor of the May 15 Preakness at Pimlico, prompted a rush to Churchill Downs for Saturday's race.

Some of those late-comers, mostly with unimpressive rerecords, were joined in the mutuel field with Cupecoy's Joy. They were New Discovery, Rock Steady, Wolfie's Rascal, Majesty's Prince, Music Leader, Reinvested and Real Dare, the gelding.

Gato Del Sol, second in the Blue Grass, was listed at 10-1. Bold Style, third in the Arkansas Derby, and Waverling Monarch, third in the Blue Grass, were rated at 15-1.

Other outsiders were Royal Roberto, third in the Derby Trial, 20-1; Laser Light, third in the Wood, and Rockwall, 30-1 each.

Bullets Romp Past Aurora

JAMESVILLE — The Jamesville Bullets rolled to an 8-1 baseball win over Aurora yesterday in a Tobacco Belt Conference game.

The Bullets got a one-hitter from Rusty Holliday, who struck out 12 and walked only one.

The walk and the hit, however, led to the only run Aurora scored, that coming in the fourth inning. Dale Scott drew the walk and Tom Howard followed with a triple, scoring Scott with the run.

Jamesville had taken the lead in the third with a run. Carl Ange doubled and Jeff Rogers reached on an error.

Keith Waters hit a sacrifice fly to score Ange.

After Aurora tied it up in the top of the fourth, Jamesville scored two more in the bottom of the inning to take a 3-1 lead. Greg Hardison tripled and Ritchie Ange walked. Carl Ange brought in Hardison with a sacrifice fly, and later in the inning, Waters had a second sacrifice fly to score Ange.

No one on either team had more than one hit. Jamesville, now 10-3 in the league and 11-3 overall, travels to Chocowinity today.

Greene C. 6

S. Nash 3

STANHOPE — Greene

Central set a school record for most wins in a season Thursday afternoon as the Rams beat Southern Nash, 6-3, in an Eastern Carolina Conference tennis match.

The Rams are now 12-3 overall and 6-0 in the league. The 12 wins are the most ever for a Greene Central tennis team.

Greene Central returns to action Tuesday when the Rams play host to Farmville Central. But, it is Thursday — when the Rams travel to C.B. Aycock — that is more important.

The Rams should beat Farmville, which has yet to win a match. If that happens, the Rams will face Aycock needing only to defeat the Falcons to clinch the ECC title.

A loss would force the Rams to finish a match with Southern Nash which was halted because of rain last week with the score tied at 1-1. That match, if needed, would be played Monday at Greene Central.

Parsons (200 MPH) Feels He's Got Pole Position Sewed Up

TALLADEGA, Ala. (AP) — Benny Parsons figures a 200 mph qualifying lap is like money in the bank, so he's not worried if he'll keep the pole position for Sunday's Winston 500 Grand National stock car race.

The 41-year-old driver from Ellerbe, N.C., set an all-time stock car qualifying record Thursday, touring the 2.66-mile, high-banked oval at Alabama International Motor Speedway at an average speed of 200.176 mph.

That broke the old record of 199.648 mph set here in 1970 by Bobby Isaac.

However, just when he appeared to have the top starting spot locked up for Sunday's race, an afternoon rain stopped the first-day time trials with nine cars still waiting in line for a qualifying shot.

Among the remaining competitors who appeared to have a slim shot at the pole — based on practice speeds — were Terry Labonte, the youngster who currently leads the Winston Cup point standings; former Talladega pole-winner Buddy Baker, Dale Earnhardt and Joe Ruttman.

"I got the first 200 (mph lap) here, so I guess I've gotta be happy with that," Parsons said shortly before NASCAR officials decided to postpone the rest of the first-day time trials until today. "Really, it's pretty exciting to get it because there's been so much talk about 200 the last few years. I'm sure there's going to be a lot of conversation about it for a while."

"But, as a race car driver, that's what they (his team) prepared me to do. They (the team) did all the preparation and all I had to do was mash the gas pedal to the floor, steer it and try to keep it running a smooth line."

"The 200 (mph) lap is a tribute to the car and to (crew chief and engine builder)

Waddell Wilson and the crew."

The cars that were in line when the rain began will be allowed a chance to nudge their way into the top 20. The rest of the 40-car field will be decided later in the day in the regularly scheduled session.

"I know I'm gonna start pretty close to the front, whatever happens," said Parsons with a grin. "I'm not going to lose any sleep over it. Besides, I brought the sleeping pills with me."

Parsons, who already has won the pole for the Daytona 500 and the Coca Cola 500 at Atlanta this year, gave an indication of things to come when his Pontiac LeMans was clocked at 200.419 mph in a morning practice session Thursday.

That and a practice lap of 199.8 by defending Grand National champion Darrell Waltrip, had the garage area buzzing before the time trials got underway.

Parsons didn't disappoint anyone, either, turning a 200.031 lap on the first of his two qualifying laps, then sizzling the asphalt with his faster second lap.

He watched nervously as Waltrip came up with a 199.446 lap in his Buick Regal and Ricky Rudd turned in a 199.388 lap in his Pontiac Grand Prix.

Parsons was able to smile after Rudd ran, but the rain put off any kind of celebration for at least a while.

"One thing I know for sure," said Parsons, "is that this is one gorgeous race car."

This LeMans is brand new, with a new and different chassis from the one Parsons drove at Daytona and Atlanta. But he knew it was fast right away.

"They took it off the truck and I went out and ran 198 right away," he noted. "I said, 'Wow, it really runs comfortable.' I knew we could have a shot at it (200 mph) if conditions were just right."

Thursday was overcast and unusually cool for Alabama at the end of April, virtually ideal conditions for going fast on an asphalt track.

"Boy, that's something isn't it," Waltrip said. "You run 199 miles per hour and you still need a little more."

Richard Childress, retired NASCAR driver and Rudd's car owner, said, "The car and weather have to be virtually perfect for somebody to get 200 miles per hour by themselves (with a draft) on the track. I guess both of them were (perfect)."

Splittorff's Home Run Helps Jays Beat Ex-Royal Teammates

By The Associated Press

Where Buck Martinez and Paul Splittorff are concerned, familiarity breeds...well...how about a home run?

For five years, Splittorff, a left-handed pitcher, and Martinez, a catcher, played together with the Kansas City Royals, batterymates and close friends.

But when they take the field these days, they are temporary enemies in different uniforms. Martinez hammered a three-run homer and an RBI single to lead the Toronto Blue Jays to a 7-0 victory over the Royals and Splittorff Thursday night behind Dave Stieb's five-hit pitching.

"We talked an awful lot about hitting and pitching the years we played together," Martinez recalled. "Maybe subconsciously in the back of my mind I might be expecting something (a certain pitch) from him because we played together so long."

Martinez, who was the Royals' catcher from 1973-77, hammered a 2-2 pitch from Splittorff over the left field fence in the fourth inning with two runners on base, the 28th home run of his career, giving Toronto a 4-0 lead.

In the sixth, Barry Bonnell singled and scored on Jesse Barfield's double. Barfield took third on the throw home and Martinez knocked Splittorff out with a single.

White Sox 3, Tigers 2

Ron LeFlore collected three hits, including a towering two-run homer, while winner Dennis Lamp and Salome Barojas combined on a three-hitter. Lamp held the Tigers hitless through four innings and gave way to Barojas with one runner on base and one out in the seventh after yielding two hits. Barojas finished to increase his league-leading total to six saves.

The White Sox scored their first run in the second inning on Carlton Fisk's single, a passed ball, an infield out and Bill Almon's single. Chicago increased it to 3-0 in the fifth when Almon led off with a single and LeFlore ripped the first pitch from Larry Pashnick into dead center field for his second home run of the season.

Angels 2, Yankees 0

Geoff Zahn pitched a seven-inning for his second shutout of the season and Bob Boone lined a tie-breaking single in the ninth inning. New York's Dave Righetti pitched into the eighth but reliever Shane Rawley hit Reggie Jackson with a pitch to start the ninth. Fred Lynn sacrificed pinch runner Jose Moreno to second and Rawley walked Tim Lincecum intentionally. Boone had a 3-2 count when he lined a pitch up the middle with the runners moving, scoring Moreno and sending Foli to third. Brian Downing followed with a sacrifice fly.

A's 9, Orioles 6

A bases-loaded sacrifice fly by Dwayne Murphy drove in the first of three Oakland runs in the ninth inning after the A's had blown the last of a 6-1 lead when the Orioles scored three times in the bottom of the eighth. Oakland loaded the bases in the ninth on a single by Mike Heath and walks to Fred Stanley and Rickey Henderson. After Murphy's sacrifice fly broke the tie, the A's added two more runs on a wild pitch and Tony Armas' single.

Dan Meyer drove in four runs with a grounder and a three-run double to help the A's build their 6-1 lead. Davey Lopes homered for Oakland.

Indians 5, Mariners 1

Toby Harrah hit his sixth home run and Andre Thornton rapped a two-run single to support Lary Sorensen's five-hit pitching. Sorensen, who picked up his first victory in four appearances since the Indians acquired him from St. Louis in an off-season trade, walked one and struck out four.

Gaylord Perry Going For Number 299 Tonight

NEW YORK (AP) — Gaylord Perry, the oldest man playing major league baseball, realizes that he is best known as the pitcher with the illegal pitch.

Whether or not he really throws it, he is hoping that victory No. 300 will help erase some of that image.

"I'm known nationally for some pitches," he says cagily. "Three hundred wins might override that some. It will mean that I have pitched well over an entire career."

Perry, 43, broke into the major leagues in 1962 with San Francisco and his career has spanned 20 years with the Giants, Cleveland, Texas, San Diego, the New York Yankees, Atlanta and now Seattle.

He is two victories away from that magic mark that will put him into the Hall of Fame. He could win No. 299 tonight at Yankee Stadium when he opposes right-hander Doyle Alexander.

"I'm throwing as well as I have in the last four or five years," said Perry, who was released by Atlanta last season and did not sign with Seattle until March 27.

"I know what it's like for a hitter to get 3,000 hits," he said Thursday at a news conference at Yankee Stadium. "No pitcher wants to give up that 3,000th hit. I'm beginning to think no one wants to lose that 300th game."

Perry came into the season with 297 victories. He came into tonight's game with a 1-2 record, although he has pitched well. "I've had some close games," he said. "I lost 4-3, and 3-2. But we had a good homestand, our defense is improving and we have some good, young talent."

Perry said he was never worried about signing with some club, even though it wasn't until March that he was invited to try out with the Mariners.

"I thought I could help a lot of clubs," said Perry, who will be 44 before the season ends. "But a lot of clubs thought they had enough. I feel very lucky, but I always knew I'd be playing baseball somewhere."

Perry signed a one-year contract with Seattle, but he says it actually is a month-to-month deal. "It's not a great contract, but it's the best I could get," Perry said. "But I know I can pitch. I don't want their money anyway if I can't earn it."

If Perry wins his 300th game, he will be the first man to attain that plateau since 1963 when Early Wynn did it. Perry will be the 15th 300-game winner in major league history.

Perry says he probably would have been back on the farm in Williamston, N.C., 10 years ago if he hadn't developed the spitball.

Junior Baseball

PIKEVILLE — North Pitt's "B" baseball team gained a 4-2 decision over Charles B. Aycock yesterday.

Junior Huber hurled the win, allowing but one hit. He had relief from Chris Ayers in the seventh inning. North Pitt got only two hits off the Falcon pitching.

North Pitt is now 4-1 in Eastern Carolina play and 8-3 overall.

Jack Sikma Thinking Ahead

By The Associated Press
Jack Sikma is thinking ahead — three games ahead.
The SuperSonics' center doesn't want to return to Seattle next Wednesday down three games to one against the Spurs, which means he's banking on winning one of the next two games in San Antonio.
"This year we were not even close to them in games there," Sikma said of the Sonics' performances (one victory in five games) in San Antonio, where their National Basketball Association Western Conference semifinal resume tonight. "But the playoffs are different."

"We've got to get one of those (two games) down there. You don't want to come back home down 1-3," Sikma said. "I'd like to grab the game Friday, that would put the monkey on San Antonio's back."
San Antonio, winner of the Midwest Division, put the monkey on the Sonics' back with a 95-93 victory in Seattle in the opener of the best-of-seven series. Seattle, which finished second to Los Angeles in the Pacific Division during the regular season, won the second game 114-99.

The Lakers head into Phoenix tonight with a 2-0 lead in their series. Los Angeles twice beat the Suns with ease, 115-96 and then 117-98.
In the Eastern Conference playoffs, action resumes Saturday in Washington and Milwaukee. The Bullets and Boston are tied 1-1 with Washington having won its second game 103-102 on the Celtics' court. The Bucks come home down 2-0 to Philadelphia, the 76ers having won the second game of that series 120-108.

Freddie Brown said the Spurs' dominance of Seattle on their home court is meaningless now that the regular season is over. "I don't think of it in those terms," he said. "You can't look at it like that. You have to look at it as one game at a time."
The Lakers won all three games in Phoenix this season, prompting Suns guard Dennis Johnson to observe: "This is not a time to panic, but it is a time to worry."
Phoenix Coach John McLeod may be on the verge of panic, though, considering the way the Suns played in Los Angeles.

"We're not going to beat anybody the way we're playing now," he said. "We haven't given a good effort yet and we haven't been competitive."
And Johnson added: "It's like the coach said, you can't just show up in the locker room, clap your hands and say you're ready. You have to go out on the floor ready."
Bill Fitch, the Boston coach, said the Celtics weren't ready to handle Washington's ball-control attack in the second game, won by the Bullets when rookie Frank Johnson hit a three-point basket with three seconds remaining. And he cautioned that Boston could get burned again.
"We just played lousy," said Fitch. "If anybody doesn't think they played lousy then we're in trouble because it can happen again."
"The win," Washington Coach Gene Shue said, "will give us confidence. We're not going to be passive."
Mickey Johnson of Milwaukee said the Bucks "are a little down now" following their two losses to the 76ers in Philadelphia. "The best thing is to make things go our way at home."

Penalties, Fights Mar Black Hawk's Victory

By The Associated Press
Playoff intensity was one excuse given for the penalties and fights which marred a 4-1 Chicago Black Hawks victory over the Vancouver Canucks on a pair of third-period goals by high-scoring Denis Savard.
Savard broke the game open with a goal at 4:42 of the final period and then added a power-play score, his 10th goal of the playoffs, at 16:23.
Shortly after his first goal of the final period, the intensity of the action caused a brawl. Referee Bob Myers cleared the ice of everyone but the two goal tenders as he handed out six 10-minute misconduct penalties, two majors for fighting and two minors for roughing.
In all, Myers called 178 minutes in penalties, including 150 in the final period, all of which fell short of the playoff record of 267 minutes in one game set last year by the New York Rangers and Los Angeles Kings.
"I don't think there's a place for that in hockey," said Black Hawks Coach Bob Ford. "It's immature. It's something that should be handled by the league president."
The victory enabled the Hawks to square the best-of-7 semifinal series at one victory each.
Vancouver Coach Roger Neilson, who was ejected late in the game for arguing with Myers about some of the calls, said, "The fighting didn't beat us and in our opinion it did not get out of hand. We made some key mistakes."

The series now swings to Vancouver for games Saturday and Tuesday, with the fifth game scheduled for Chicago next Thursday night.
Islanders 3, Nordiques 2
Bob Bourne had a halfway complete description of why the New York Islanders are two victories away from qualifying for their third straight Stanley Cup finals.
"We're a cool team," said Bourne. They also have a hot goaltender.
That combination — the Islanders' ability to remain calm even when they're being outplayed and Bill Smith's spectacular play in goal — sparked the two-time defending National Hockey League champions to a 5-2 victory over the Quebec Nordiques Thursday night. The Islanders lead the best-of-seven semifinal series 2-0 with the third and fourth games set for Quebec City on Saturday and Tuesday nights.

Led by Mike Bossy's two goals, a goal and two assists by Bourne and the netminding of Smith, the Islanders subdued Quebec even though they weren't at their best for the first two periods. At the end of 40 minutes, New York was on top 3-2 and the Islanders totally shut down the Nordiques' high-powered offense in the final period.

Loftin Is Putt Champ

Jack Loftin overcame a mediocre first round performance to take top honors in the amateur medal play action last night at the Greenville Putt-Putt Golf Course.
Loftin turned in a nine-under par 27 in the second round to gain the win.
Danny Harris took second place in a sudden death playoffs against Rodney Hooks after both finished with 67, four strokes under par. Jay Wynne, five off the pace at 68, finished fourth.

Illegal Alien Raids Continuing

By ANDY O'CONNELL
Associated Press Writer

Americans citizens are said to be clamoring for the jobs left open by raids on illegal aliens, but critics charge the nationwide sweep is sowing "dangerous seeds" of racial conflict while doing little to ease unemployment.

About 3,500 people, many of them Hispanic, have been arrested in several cities since Monday in the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service's "Operation Jobs," a week-long bid to remove illegal aliens from jobs that could be held by unemployed Americans. The INS said the arrested workers had an average wage of $4.70 per hour.

The raids have provoked criticism of INS tactics, and a federal judge in Los Angeles ruled that alleged illegal aliens must be advised of their right to legal counsel before they may be deported.

The raids have caused so much fear among Hispanic aliens in Sacramento, Calif., that priests at Our Lady of Guadalupe Church have released parishioners from their obligation to attend mass. Local INS chief David Johnston said the operation wouldn't cover Sacramento.

In a telegram Thursday to U.S. Attorney General William French Smith, Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., called for an end to the raids and said there was "very little convincing evidence" they actually produce jobs for U.S. citizens and resident aliens.

There is evidence "the raids are sowing dangerous seeds of racial and ethnic conflict in California," Cranston said.

Ted L. Giorgetti, INS deputy director of investigations in Chicago, said the agency had notified job agencies — including Operation PUSH, the Illinois State Employment Agency and the Minority Economic Resource Corp. — about jobs made available by the alien roundup.

"We've received hundreds of calls from people interested in these jobs," Giorgetti said.

Some employers interviewed in San Francisco said news of the raids brought many applicants for vacant jobs, although the employers were skeptical the new applicants would stay.

I.V. Ferguson, district director for the Texas Employment Commission's Dallas office, said he expected the arrests "would have very little effect on unemployment in the Dallas-Fort Worth area."

The ACLU and Hispanic leaders in some cities say the arrests are aimed at Hispanics and not at other illegal aliens.

At the Petaluma Poultry Co., about 55 miles north of San Francisco, manager Nickie Becker said agents on Monday arrested 18 of her 125 employees who make between $5.25 and $6.50 an hour.

"We were able to fill the jobs within three hours, but four or five quit the first day," she said. "It's not the kind of work most white middle-class Americans want to do. You hang up live chickens and cut their throats... I wouldn't do that kind of work for anything."

"To say INS is really interested in the rights of these people is really absurd," U.S. District Judge Matthew Byrne said in Los Angeles Wednesday in an order that he broadened Thursday.

A lawyer for the American Civil Liberties Union, Mark Rosenbaum, said the case had been certified as a class action and the order that the people caught in the raids had to be advised of their right to a lawyer would apply nationwide.

A federal judge in Chicago refused to require immigration officials to let seized aliens meet immediately with their lawyers.

"It's common knowledge that when illegal aliens are arrested and detained they have a tendency not to give their real names in order to avoid punishment," U.S. District Judge George N. Leighton said Thursday in Chicago, "and this sometimes causes delays."

Arrests of 108 people in Chicago early Thursday brought the total number of aliens seized there to 963, the INS said. Agents arrested 395 aliens in Houston, Dallas and Fort Worth Thursday, bringing the Texas total to 1,744. Another 613 have been arrested in Los Angeles and Orange Counties in California, 400 have been arrested in Denver and 343 in the San Francisco area.

Immigration officials in Detroit said they had to release 71 of the 107 snared in that city when their families produced papers showing they were working legally after all.

A Review Overcame Handicaps In Presenting Musical

Everyone involved with the production of the Rodgers-Hammerstein musical "South Pacific" which opened Thursday night at D.H. Conley and which will be on stage again at 8 p.m. tonight and for a final performance at 3 p.m. Sunday, is to be commended for their ability to overcome most of the pitfalls that any amateur effort faces when tackling a job this large.

First, a look at a list of good things that happened on opening night:

- The deep, mellow baritone voice of Pierson Shaw as Emile de Becque that made listening to "Some Enchanted Evening," "Twin Soliloquies" and the brief but haunting "This Nearly Was Mine" a real pleasure.
- Susie Hudson's ability to cope with the demanding singing and dancing requirements of the role of Ensign Nellie Forbush. Miss Hudson is at her best in the more active sequences — "I'm Gonna Wash That Man Right Outa My Hair" and "Honey Bun."
- Musical director James Fleming's wise choice to use only a combo — Greg Barner, piano; Darla Richards, timpani; Dallas Braxton, drums; and Glenn Buck, trumpet — which resulted in being able to hear the singers, even the ones with smaller voices.

- A honey of a baby plump, baby face, shimmering rendition in the "Honey Bun" number by the show's Stewpot, Ragan Spain.
- A loveable, impish, South Sea Island beautiful Robin Carmon who was touristically seductive in "Bali Ha'i," and charmingly con-lady in the "Bloody Mary" number.
- Van Behr's brash, snappy characterization of the Seabee always doing the wrong thing at the right time (all the other cast members could profit from observing how Van Behr responds to his role rather than merely reciting memorized words).

- A bouquet of good general touches — The well coordinated, energetic dance sequences; the crisp delivery of the chorus singing; and the naturalness of Carla Snow and Guy Buck as the two de Becque children and Tim Neal as de Becque's household guardian, Jerome.

Next, a look at some of the production's shortcomings:

- Principally, the pitfall that ensnares most amateur productions — the inclination of the majority of cast members to stand in a near-rigid stance and recite lines instead of act.
- A noticeable tendency on the part of several cast members to unconsciously fall back too heavily on Southern accents, resulting in not understanding key words on occasion.
- Failure several times to wait until laughter died down before going on with the dialogue.

Finally, the one obstacle that cannot be overcome in a production requiring the technical sophistication of a show on the scale of "South Pacific" — that is, the inadequate facilities to quickly and smoothly accommodate scene changes. This shortcoming is particularly noticeable in the second act which calls for a rapid change of locales in the brief time span allotted Scenes 5 through 12.

Director Jane Wilson took chances on tackling a production of this size and complexity. It is to her credit and to the credit of the cast and technical crew that the pluses in Conley's production far outweigh the minuses.

This show is dedicated to the late Ott Alford, former superintendent of the Pitt County schools. It is indeed a fitting tribute.

Opening night was a sell-out. Tickets manager Gino Abessino notes that as of Thursday night tickets were still available for tonight's and Sunday's performances.

Country Music Honors Its Best Entertainers

By YARDENA ARAR
Associated Press Writer
BUENA PARK, Calif. (AP) — The rocking country band called Alabama was the big winner at the 17th annual Academy of Country Music awards, taking two honors in addition to being named entertainers of the year.

Barbara Mandrell was named top female vocalist Thursday, Merle Haggard won top male vocalist, and the duo of David Frizzell and Shelly West won top vocal duo and song of the year, for "You're the Reason God Made Oklahoma," in the ceremony at Knott's Berry Farm.

Alabama, which less than two years ago was playing a bar in Myrtle Beach, S.C., claimed "Hat" trophies for top vocal group and album of the year for their "Feels So Right." A year ago the band won the top vocal group award.

"I think the academy just kind of leads the way," said lead singer Randy Owen. "It's a great honor. Last year we did 300 days (on the road) and we're glad all the people listened."

Frizzell and Miss West had something more to celebrate than their awards — Miss West gave birth Tuesday to her first child.

Miss West is the daughter of Dottie West, who was co-emcee of the NBC telecast, and her husband, Alan Frizzell, is her singing partner's brother.

"All this in one week — it's been an amazing week," David Frizzell said backstage.

Dottie West got her first glimpse of her new granddaughter, Tess Marie Frizzell, during the program as co-hosts Mickey Gilley and Conway Twitty introduced a videotape of the baby and her parents.

Miss Mandrell's top female vocalist award marked her fourth honor from the Los Angeles-based academy. "You've been very, very good to me for a very long time," the blond singer told the audience of 2,000 at the amusement park.

Haggard was not on hand to claim his best male vocalist trophy — his 14th Hat trophy and his sixth for male vocalist.

Juice Newton was another absentee winner in the best new female vocalist category. But Ricky Skaggs said, "Thank you, Lord" as he collected his award for best new male vocalist.

The Oak Ridge Boys, gospel singers turned country, won the single record of the year award for "Elvira." The song is the subject of a $10 million federal lawsuit by members and survivors of the Rivingtons, who claim that the "Oo-papa-mau-mau" refrain of "Elvira" was stolen from a Rivingtons hit.

However, in accepting the best single award, Oak Ridge Boy Joe Bonsall said without referring to the lawsuit that the band had first heard "Elvira" sung by a group in Texas a few years ago.

"If we knew the name of that little group in Texas we'd buy them a Cadillac," Bonsall said.

Bob Hope Lines Up May 3 Cast

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Bob Hope lined up two-time Oscar winner Jack Lemmon, sex kitten Morgan Fairchild, Dottie West and Larry Gatlin for his May 3 show titled "Bob Hope's Stars Over Texas Special."

The comedy-variety show will originate from the 3,000-seat Performing Arts Center at the University of Texas at Austin, one of America's largest campuses.

Highlight of the show will be a trio of Hope, West and Fairchild singing, accompanied by Lemmon on the piano. Proceeds from the show will benefit the Performing Arts Center, the March of Dimes and Austin's Seaton hospital.

Schedule Direct Orlando Flight

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — New York Air announced Thursday it will inaugurate the only non-stop, low-fare service between Raleigh Durham Airport and Orlando on June 15.

Fares will be $49 for children and $79 for adults. The regular one-way coach fare is $164 for adults and $61 for children.

in Houston; and radio station of the year, to WPLO radio in Atlanta.

With the exception of the honorary awards and the nightclub, disc jockey and radio station honors, winners were determined by balloting by the academy's 2,600 members.

Railway Crossings Safety Discussed

Pitt County Farm Bureau Women saw a presentation Thursday on the need for more safety at railroad crossings.

Former Highway Patrol Commander C.A. Speed, executive director of North Carolina railroads' "Operation Lifesaver," presented the program at a luncheon sponsored by the county Farm Bureau Women's Committee to observe National Farm Bureau Day.

"The public needs to be re-educated concerning hazards at railroad crossings," Speed said.

Speed, who showed a film entitled "Crossings," said his first priority is to present the program to every schoolbus driver in the state and the second one is to share the information with each driver of vehicles carrying flammable materials.

He was introduced by Margie Hart, chairman of the Farm Bureau Women's Committee.

H.R. Phillips of Greenville, a retired railroad official, was also a special guest. Mamie Smith, a member of the Hospice Board and a program volunteer, discussed the program and told of training available.

Mattie Hardee, one of the first Farm Bureau women, was given special recognition by Mrs. Hart. The luncheon invocation was given by Christine Bell.

Cars Collided At Intersection

Cars driven by Alfred Norfleet of 1700 S. Greene St. and Janet Susan Loftin of 29A Stratford Arms collided about 5:39 p.m. Wednesday at the intersection of 10th and Clark streets.

Police, who reported Ms. Loftin was injured in the mishap, estimated damage at $1,000 to the Norfleet car and $1,500 to the Loftin vehicle.

FOCUS

Rags to Riches

The best-selling U.S. author in the last third of the 19th century was not Mark Twain. It was Horatio Alger. An ex-minister, his work at the Newsboys' Lodging House in New York City brought him into contact with many street-wise orphans and runaways. These became the models for the heroes in many of his 100 popular books. Alger's formula was invariable: poor boy overcomes adversity through brains and luck to become wealthy. Books like Ragged Dick, Tattered Tom, Luck and Pluck and Sink or Swim inspired many Americans. Today, on the 150th anniversary of Alger's birth, a new postage stamp commemorates the man who did so much to shape the Great American Dream.

TELLS OF THEFT — Miss Hawaii, Vanessa Dubois, describes to a friend from her New York hotel room Thursday how her $7,000 necklace and pendant was ripped from her neck by a robber on a Manhattan street Wednesday. Proponents Of Casinos In Florida Will Try Again

By MATT BOKOR
Associated Press Writer
TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) - Drubbed at the polls four years ago, Florida proponents of casino gambling regrouped and are now trying their luck again in a fight to legalize crap tables and slot machines in the Sunshine State.

In 1978, casino backers financed their $3 million effort largely from the fancy, oceanfront hotels of Miami Beach that would have been the big winners had voters approved game houses for a 23-mile strip of the Gold Coast.

This time it's a low-key,

130,000 signatures on each of two petitions to put the initiatives to the November ballot, Kashuk said. About 300,000 signatures are needed on each.

While casino backers regrouped, opponents lined up, too. Leading the bipartisan foil are former Gov. Reubin Askew, who led the 1978 opposition; Gov. Bob Graham, Jack Eckerd, the drug-store magnate and unsuccessful Republican candidate against Graham in 1978, and the Rev. S.S. Morris Jr., a Jacksonville minister.

The arguments on both sides are the same, but in

The Florida Legislature this year raised the state sales tax by a penny per dollar, to 5 percent, partly to raise money for crime fighting.

Last year, Nevada clubs and casinos raised $131.7 million for the state, while New Jersey casinos produced $86.5 million - and three Atlantic City casinos were not open all of 1981.

As nice as extra money would be to fight crime, Graham said, "We need to encourage the best qualities in our people, not pander to the weakest."

John F. Brown, a former

New Jersey lawmaker and now a South Florida resident and gambling supporter, questions whether Graham's job includes responsibilities as moral leader of the state.

"The whole key in this campaign is going to be, don't let anyone dictate to you what your destiny is," he said. "We're going to bring that message to the people. We're going to make it a people's campaign and keep it there."

That wasn't the case in 1978 when the the casino initiative lost in each of Florida's 67 counties, collecting only 29 percent of the vote.

Askew, the popular ex-governor who is currently "testing the waters" for a possible Democratic presidential bid, says casino backers should have gotten the message in 1978, when he headed No Casinos, Inc.

This time, Askew has handed the anti-casino reins to Graham, to the dismay of Republican casino opponents who fear Graham's anti-gambling role will help his likely bid for re-election.

The two parties have entered into a fragile agreement aimed at keeping the campaign bipartisan.

Despite the high-powered opposition, Kashuk maintains the issue has a chance. Among those in the pro-casino ranks this time are senior citizens and condominium associations that were "sold a bill of goods" by Askew four years ago, he said.

The widespread public outcry over crime will help the campaign because it will mean more money for law enforcement, Kashuk said.

He also points to the 37 pari-mutuel establishments, such as horse and dog tracks and jai alai frontons dotting the state, to remind that Florida already has some legalized gambling; notes that Florida newspapers publish winning lottery numbers from other states, and argues that since illegal betting flourishes in Florida, the state government might as well its share.

Earlier this year Kashuk's group concentrated its efforts along the hotel-and-condo-lined Gold Coast of Palm Beach, Broward and Dade counties, but since spread the campaign around the state.

"The governor might had had 100 supporters at the Governor's Mansion," Kashuk said of Graham's February anti-gambling kickoff. "But he ought to tune his ear to the constituency now and see that the tone and times have changed since 1978 with the tax situation, the crime situation and with the economy."

While casino proponents are bitter about charges that organized crime would control legalized casinos, a 1980 hearing before the New Jersey Casino Control Commission featured testimony about a reported 1976 meeting in Miami Beach in which reputed Mafia financier Meyer Lansky met with other underworld figures to discuss the possibility that casino gambling would be legalized in Florida.

grass-roots effort that's shying away from the big-time corporate guns, says Miami Beach publicist Jay Kashuk, who helped organize the unsuccessful 1978 drive.

Kashuk wants to put two proposals before voters - a local option to allow casinos anywhere in Florida, unlike the Las Vegas-style strip sought the last time, and one to begin a state lottery.

Fifteen states now run lotteries; only Nevada and New Jersey have casinos.

So far, Florida gaming backers have gathered about four years, the state's crime and economy have worsened, providing new fodder to gambling proponents.

Kashuk rejects arguments that casinos will bring more crime, saying lawlessness is rampant already "and we don't have casinos in the state." Instead, proponents say casinos will help the war on crime by adding millions to state coffers for law enforcement.
