Adopt $11 Million City Schools Budget

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

A budget of $11,022,900 for city schools for fiscal year 1982-83 was adopted Monday night by the Greenville Board of Education at its information meeting.

Of this grand total, $10,481,690 is in the current operating expense portion of the budget, and $541,210 is a capital outlay request.

From this total budget, the $541,210 capital outlay portion and a current expense budget request of $2,407,532 will be presented to Pitt County Commissioners for their consideration and action in allocating county-appropriated funds to the city school system.

A summary by major sources applicable to the current operating expense portion of the budget is:

- State public school funds . . . $5,677,472.00
- Federal grant funds . . . $ 785,439.51
- School food service funds . . . $ 754,169.00
- Local current expense fund:
Budget request to county . . . $2,407,532.20
- State input to local funds . . . $ 503,212.84
- Other sources (fines, interest) . . . 353,865.15
- Grand Total . . . $10,481,690.70

The $2,407,532.20 current expense budget request to be presented to County Commissioners for their consideration, as noted in earlier school board discussions and hearings on the budget, includes a basic 11.53 percent increase over the current 1981-82 current expense appropriation of $1,983,351 plus a request that the county pick up $195,420 in funds for federal programs that are being cut. Totally, this constitutes an increase of 21.38 percent over the current expense budget.

This requested increase, Superintendent Delma Blinson has stressed, represents funds needed in order to maintain current programs at status quo.

Considerable discussion was focused on the $541,210 request for capital outlay funds. The figure includes requests in Category I, II and III of capital outlay. This amount represents a 213 percent increase over the current fiscal year funds of $172,724 in capital outlay appropriated by the County Commissioners.

The $542,210 figure, Dr. Blinson explained, has been derived from two major budget considerations. One is the basic figure originally arrived at by the staff and administration and earlier presented to the school board. The second consideration is based on the survey of facility needs prepared by members of the Business Affairs Advisory Committee, also presented earlier to the school board. The committee's recommendations were compared with items on the original administration figures, any duplication weeded out and the $213,000 item recommended for Agnes Fullilove School deleted.

"The rationale behind this request," Dr. Blinson told the board, "is that some commissioners have made suggestions that the capital outlay budget contain requests reflecting the annual basis of the status of the buildings. This idea is an outgrowth of the condemnation of Third Street School some years back. At that time, commissioners requested an annual report on the status of county and city schools. It is my understanding that in the last couple of years commissioners have not requested nor have school boards submitted these facility needs status report."

School board members asked that Dr. Blinson, in his presentation of the budget to the commissioners, be certain that an explanation of the rationale behind the 213 percent increase request be given the county board, with emphasis on the fact that some of the items included in the request represent needs that can be spread out over a period of time.

An additional request for $42,500 in capital outlay funds will be presented which covers the county's allocation for the vocational shop to be constructed at Rose High.

Other matters taken up by the school board:

• Relative to budget considerations, the board in executive session voted to notify by letter a total of 25 teachers on interim contract and those in part-time positions that renewal of their contracts will be contingent on the availability of funds after the budget is finalized. Also approved in executive session was renewal of contracts and granting of career status to 22 persons who have completed the three-year interim probationary period. One person was denied renewal.

• For the 1982 Rose High graduation, an alternative site must be found. The traditional graduation ceremony site at Ficklen Stadium will not be available for use for the June 8 graduation date due to planned work on the stadium. A number of other choices both off and on the ECU campus have been ruled out due to lack of adequate seating space. The one available place large enough to easily accommodate students and audience is Minges Coliseum; however, a cost of $2,000 is involved in setting the coliseum up for such usage. The administration will present a number of alternative sites to the board at the next meeting.

400 Rescued So Far Argentina Finding Cruiser Survivors

By The Associated Press
Britain today reported more fighting around the Falklands, and Argentina said 400 survivors had been rescued from the General Belgrano, the cruiser torpedoed and sunk by a British submarine.

That left 642 crewmen officially listed as missing in the icy South Atlantic. The privately owned Argentine news agency DYN quoted naval sources as saying the majority of the 1,042 crew were rescued, but gave no figures.

Ireland, dropping its support for Britain in favor of neutrality, called for an urgent U.N. Security Council session to demand an immediate end to the Falklands fighting and a search for a diplomatic solution.

British Defense Ministry spokesman Ian MacDonald told reporters in London, "There has been action which I don't have full details of yet." He did not say whether the clashes happened Monday or today. But he added: "I have no knowledge of British casualties."

Asked if the clashes involved rescue vessels searching for survivors of the General Belgrano, he said: "If Argentine ships are engaged in picking up survivors, we would not interfere with them."

The Argentines did not mention new fighting.

MacDonald said the British armada "is continuing by air and by sea both by day and by night to enforce the total exclusion zone around the Falklands." The 200-mile zone was imposed last Friday.

He reiterated earlier British claims that the General Belgrano, escorted by two destroyers armed with anti-ship and anti-aircraft missiles, posed a threat to British ships "because of its position relative to our task force and because of its weapons capability overall."

Asked if the Argentine flotilla had actually made any threatening moves against British ships, MacDonald said: "With modern warfare, if you wait until the threat becomes actual, you're often at the bottom of the sea."

The General Belgrano was sunk outside the war zone Sunday, and Argentina's Joint Chiefs of Staff announced in Buenos Aires today that 400 survivors have been picked up. It said those rescued were en route to Ushuaia, at the tip of the South American continent.

The Argentine Joint Chiefs of Staff said rescue work was continuing in the area where the General Belgrano — Argentina's only cruiser — went down, and that 15 rescue vessels were involved. The cruiser was hit 36 miles outside Britain's 200-mile war zone.

An earlier communique from the Argentine military said a search plane spotted "various" lifeboats. But the sinking occurred in wintry waters only 665 miles north of the Antarctic Circle, and a navy source said, "You cannot survive long in an open boat in those waters."

The Argentine government accused the British of a "treacherous act of armed aggression" because the cruiser was outside the British zone of exclusion around the Falklands.

British Defense Secretary John Nott countered that the attack was "quite correct" because the 13,645-ton Belgrano posed "a threat" to the Royal Navy armada blockading the islands Argentina seized from Britain April 2.

"We will continue to tighten the screw" to force Argentina to withdraw the estimated 9,000 troops it put on the islands, Nott told a news conference in London. He said Britain still wants a peaceful solution and the "minimum loss of life on both sides." But he warned Argentina to stop threatening our forces in the South Atlantic.

Britain also claimed its Lynx helicopters sank one Argentine patrol boat 90 miles north of the Falklands and damaged another early Monday after the boats fired on two helicopters from the carrier Hermes, the flagship of the British force. The British said their aircraft were not hit.

Changes Seen Brewing For Tobacco Supports; Consensus Shaping Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Charles G. Rose III, D-N.C., says there may be a number of changes brewing for the tobacco price support program.

Rose, chairman of the House Tobacco and Peanut Subcommittee, said there appears to be a consensus to finance the program through farmer fees and sharply reduce price support levels for low-stalk leaf.

Rose also said Monday there is support to end the practice of fall quota leasing and to force non-farming corporations and institutions to sell their allotments.

Tobacco leaders will probably try to avoid forcing the sale of allotments, a politically explosive issue, he said. Rose called the changes "pretty bold steps" and says they are still being discussed by congressional leaders and are subject to change.

"There are clearly a lot of bases that have to be touched before we set this in stone," he said.

"We are getting the same vibes from back home," said Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C. "We are moving close to a consensus. I want it (the legislation) to be a unity bill to the extent possible."

Among the changes which Rose says are possible are the following:

— Making the price support program self-supporting by letting grower-owned cooperatives assess a fee on the farmers. Since 1933, the taxpayers have absorbed $57 million in lost principal and $152.8 million in unpaid interest on government loans to tobacco farmers.

— Giving the U.S. agriculture secretary power to reduce price support levels on low-stalk tobacco that is not competitive with imported leaf. The USDA says a glut of low-stalk tobacco on loan at grower-owned cooperatives threatens major future losses in the program.

— Requiring non-farming corporations and institutions — such as Carolina Power & Light Co. and Duke University — to sell their tobacco allotments over a period of time.

— Eliminating fall leasing of tobacco quotas. This occurs when a farmer who does not need all of his quota leases it to a farmer who has grown more tobacco than his quota allows. Rose says such arrangements often drive up the cost of tobacco.

Rose said the major unresolved question is whether to place a cap on the cost of renting allotments. Under consideration is a proposal to limit allotment rents to 25 percent of the price that tobacco had garnered the previous year.

He said the plan contains a major loophole, that being that non-growers — such as widows or retired farmers who no longer cultivate tobacco — could lease their allotments with their land. They could compensate for having to charge lower allotment rents by charging more for land rental, he said.

Rose said tobacco leaders have discarded the possibility of requiring allotments to be held only by growers.

Two Deadlines

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — As a result of a compromise between federal and state officials, there are two deadlines for candidates to file for Congress or the General Assembly.

The deadline for those using normal filing procedures is noon Friday, but for those who submit petitions to qualify as candidates, a process established for indigents to avoid paying a filing fee, the deadline is May 17.

State Elections Director Alex Brock says the Friday deadline was left unchanged for those following the normal filing procedure. Those candidates pay a filing fee of 1 percent of the annual salary of the office they seek — $607 for Congress and $69 for the state House and Senate.

The deadline change was one result of a Sunday meeting of the state Board of Elections, which rescheduled the primary from June 10 to June 29, and was made to meet government demands under the federal Voting Rights Act of 1965.

The new schedule is subject to another voting-rights review by the U.S. Justice Department, but state officials expect quick approval.

To qualify under the petition rule, a person must obtain the signatures of 10 percent of the registered voters of their party in the House, Senate or congressional district they wish to represent.

PROSPECTING (FOR JOBS) IN ALASKA NOT PROMISING

"Contrary to certain misleading advertisements now in circulation nationwide, the employment picture in Alaska is bleak and North Carolinians should not travel to that state in hopes of finding employment," state Labor Commissioner John Brooks says.

Brooks said national publicity concerning the gas pipeline waiver package recently passed by Congress has generated a marked increase in persons arriving in Alaska in search of work. "As a cooperative effort with Edmund Orbeck, commissioner of labor in Alaska, we are issuing this warning about advertisements which offer to secure high-paying jobs or information about such jobs for a fee," Brooks said.

"Construction of the Alaska Highway Gas Pipeline has not begun. Financing for the project has not been finalized and recruitment of workers is not under way. Bogus ads about working on the pipeline do a disservice to Alaska and to job seekers."

Brooks said Alaska's unemployment rate averaged 9.3 percent in 1981, when the national average was 7.4 percent and the North Carolina rate was 6.4 percent. Areas experiencing an unemployment rate of 23 percent are common in Alaska, he added.

He urged job seekers not to go to Alaska unless they have in hand a firm offer of employment. Anyone seeing what appear to be bogus promotions about the job market picture in Alaska is asked to notify the Communications Division, N.C. Department of Labor, 4 W. Edenton St., Raleigh, N.C. 27601; phone — 919-733-4904.

JOSHUA AVERY FEEDBACK

The family of Joshua Avery, the infant heart patient appealed for in Hotline recently, asks that everyone who contributed to a fund for the baby's care be thanked. Joshua's doing well, his grandmother says. He's home from the hospital and his parents are grateful both for his successful surgery and for the support they've received from their friends and neighbors.

Sutton Closes Long Association With Board

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

James E. Sutton, a Housing Authority commissioner for over 20 years and longtime chairman, was recognized Monday night as he closed out a period of unprecedented association with the board.

Sutton, one of five charter members of the authority, has now completed two 10-year tenures, sandwiched around a year's absence.

Commissioners, who elected Dr. Patricia Rice to succeed Sutton as chairman for the coming year, presented Sutton an engraved plaque with a mounted gavel in recognition of his years as a board member and chairman.

Roscoe King was elected vice chairman and Joe Laney, the agency's executive director, was reappointed secretary-treasurer.

Sutton was first appointed to the authority in May of 1961 by then-Mayor S. Eugene West and he served the maximum of two consecutive five-year terms before leaving in May of 1971. After a year's absence, he was reappointed to a new five-year term in May of 1972 and he launched his fourth five-year period in May of 1977.

The retiring board member was vice chairman during his first term and served as chairman during the majority of his time on the commission.

Dr. Rice, who was appointed to the authority by the City Council in 1979, assumes the chairmanship after serving as vice chairman during the past year. The Wilson native is a professor in the department of housing and management, school of home economics, at East Carolina University.

During the regular business session, Laney reported that the authority's Section 8 program activity is "proceeding quite well" with 105 units leased under the existing housing program and 93 of 100 units leased under the moderate rehabilitation segment. He said that due to a temporary vacancy, 59 of the 60 apartments at the University Towers mid-rise for the elderly were occupied at the end of April.

Laney said that he visited the Greensboro office of the Department of Housing and Urban Development recently to check on the status of 40 new units of low-rent family housing. He said HUD had some questions about the location of proposed scattered sites for the new housing in West Meadowbrook but the project is still alive and awaiting HUD's endorsement to proceed.

Commissioners approved a budget revision for the University Towers project that Laney said would implement format changes recommended by auditors. Related budget resolutions were approved regarding the mid-rise financial package and also dealing with a $26,500 revision to the low-rent public housing budget for fiscal year 1982.

Laney said the authority applied last year for federal comprehensive modernization funds for the local housing

Union Carbide Leaving Town

Associated Press Writer OAK RIDGE, Tenn. (AP) — It probably will take more than one company to fill the shoes of Union Carbide Corp. when the nuclear giant steps out of town next year, a government spokesman says.

Union Carbide announced Monday it will cease to operate three nuclear facilities in Oak Ridge, Tenn., and one in Paducah, Ky., when its current $1 billion operating contract with the government expires Sept. 30, 1983, although an extension is possible.

Union Carbide has had the contract to run nearly all of the government's sprawling nuclear reservation since 1948. The company makes an annual profit of $8 million — a negotiated fee — on the $1 billion contract.

The decision, announced at one plant over a public address system, caught employees and town leaders off guard Monday.

"If you have an employer of 18,000 in a town of 30,000, when they leave town, it's got to be a surprise," said lawyer Eugene Joyce, who chairs the executive committee of the Roane-Anderson Economic Council.

The company operates the Oak Ridge National Laboratory, which employs thousands of scientists for energy research; the Gaseous Diffusion Plant, which enriches uranium for use as nuclear fuel; and the Y-12 Plant, a highly secret installation still known by its World War II code name where parts for nuclear bombs are made.

Another plant in Paducah, Ky., which employs 1,400, also is used for uranium enrichment.

"They've been a highly regarded firm here," Joyce said. "There's no way to tell how many billions of government funds they've spent in this town."

Cite Industrial Building Drop

WASHINGTON (AP) — A steep decline in industrial building in March contributed to the 0.8 percent drop in the amount of money spent on construction, the government says.

The Commerce Department reported Monday that the overall March construction figure fell to its lowest level since October, despite increases in the value of new housing units and in public construction.

Dear Pat: Please don't make us wait until next fall for good ideas for Christmas gifts. There are lots of us who have more leisure time in the summer and like to get a head start on our gift list. Then, too, there are the church and charity bazaars always on the lookout for hand-made items, and these are usually needed by mid-year. How about it, Pat... will you give us early birds a break? — Carol J., Milwaukee, Wis.

I'm always envious when I hear of those who plan ahead as you do, Carol. I must confess that I was working until 10 o'clock on Christmas night on a ski sweater for a grandson who was arriving the next day.

But even though I don't live up to my better intentions, I'll share some ideas with those of you who don't delay. Perhaps some of my other readers will also send in their ideas for quick-and-easy knit, crochet, needlepoint and cross-stitch gift items, to be published from time to time over the summer months.

For starters, how about a very striking—but simple to make—belt. These instructions were sent to me some years ago by Mary W. of McConnellsville, S.C.

Purchase plastic rings, available at needlework, notions or drapery departments. With almost any type of yarn, single crochet around the first ring until half of it is closely covered. Count the number of stitches you used so you can have the same number on each succeeding ring.

Next (chain 2 and then single crochet around half of the next ring). Repeat the steps given within the parentheses until enough rings are joined to barely reach around the waist of the wearer. If you are not sure of the waist size, it is better to have it a little short than to have it too long, as it will be tied at the waist.

Then make a chain of about 50 stitches; single crochet around a ring, covering it completely. Next single crochet in each of the 50 chains, thus making one of the ties.

You have now crocheted your way back to the belt rings and are ready to cover the other half of each ring, using the same number of single crochets in each ring as before. Also, on this return row, work a single crochet in each of the two chain stitches between rings.

Work in this manner until all of the rings are covered. When you reach the end, again chain about 50 stitches, cover a ring and single crochet in each chain stitch. Fasten off when you reach the first ring and conceal the end of the yarn.

The two long ends are tied to fasten the belt around the waist. If you like, loop several 5- or 6-inch lengths of yarn through the rings at the end of each tie, making a pretty tassel on each.

Using these simple instructions, many variations can be made. With just a little imagination, each belt will be different. Use big, showy beads instead of the rings on the tie end; try different colors and ring sizes; put an additional row of crochet around each ring and around the belt itself; or omit the ties and fasten with a buckle or button tab. Whatever your choice, the belts are sure to be people-pleasers.

Best of all, you can make one in an hour or less and can use any leftover yarns you have on hand.

Piano keys will stay white if they are cleaned with milk or yogurt.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

If you're searching for someone who just ripped off a supermarket, you're looking for someone wearing new hose, lipstick, underwear and gloves, who smells nice, coughs a lot and has a steak, ham, pork roast or lamb chop tucked in their shirt.

According to a recent survey in Security World magazine, these are the top ten items being lifted these days from supermarkets and convenience stores. Hose is No. 1.

As a woman who has been known to kill off an entire afternoon in front of a pantyhose rack figuring out if I'm an A, B, C, D, XX, or Wide Load, I say these sleazy, swifty shoppers get what they deserve.

Everyone knows shopping for hose is an art form. It was elevated to that position 20 years ago when pantyhose were born. You cannot hurry the buying process. No egg will hatch before its time.

If you buy them for your height, the waistband will bind your knees together. If you buy them for the right weight, the waistband will make you flat-chested.

Do you want fanny control? Tummy control? Entire body control? Industrial strength for those special occasions when breathing is secondary? Or a spot tourniquet for your cellulite?

What do you want to do in them? Cough? Massage your legs? Jump higher? Or make America beautiful by concealing them under your slacks so it looks like you're wearing "nothin'."

Do you want knee-hi's, thigh-hi's, bare, nearly nude, with seams, bikini, reinforced toe, heel, or extra room at the waistband?

The options go on. Do you want a new shade like Sins of the Flesh Beige or Scraped Knee Chestnut? Or do you want the basic Don't Tell Your Mother Black or Varicose Plum?

Frankly, all these dishonest people who pilfer hose off the shelves without paying really tick me off. They not only take the human race down a notch, they give pantyhose shoppers everywhere a bad name.

Just in case you're curious as to what they steal the least of, it's peanuts and batteries. Neither of them gets runs.

Grounded By Her Lifestyle

DEAR ABBY: I am a young woman who recently became friendly with another young woman who is a flight attendant with an airline. She is a very together gal with a warm and winning personality—friendly, charming, vivacious. She has it all.

She asked me over last Saturday so we could have lunch and take in a movie. When I got to her apartment, she was making the last of 14 telephone calls—mostly to married men.

She told me that she had just discovered that she had contracted a venereal disease, and she was calling every man she had been with for the last three or four months so he could be examined immediately and not risk infecting his wife or any other woman. I admired her concern and sense of "honor," if you can call it that, but I must admit that I was badly shaken.

Why am I writing this? To ask you to please warn every sexually active man, woman, girl and boy that no matter how "clean" a person looks, it's foolish to take a chance with a stranger.

This girl looks like the most immaculate, ladylike, discriminating, cautious person you would ever want to see. Please, Abby, print this. All it takes is one wrong guess.

SHOOK

DEAR SHOOK: I'm printing your letter. A word to the wise is sufficient. And it may even help the foolish.

Consider Possibilities

We haven't been keeping score, but there is a definite feeling that at least once a month there is a brief item on the wire report about some country expelling a Russian or Russians for espionage activity.

Very rarely is there a story of an American being expelled on that count.

There are varied conclusions available:

Russia is engaged in a massive espionage campaign throughout the world (and the odds for apprehension quite naturally would rise):

The Russians are amazingly inept:

The U.S. isn't doing much foreign intelligence work these days (a frail reed to rely on as an explanation, we'd guess):

American espionage is far more subtle than the world gives credit;

The focus of U.S. intelligence efforts is far different from that of the Soviet Union.

There is also the possibility that as the haven of refugees and exiles from just about any point on the globe, and available information right at their own doorstep, might be just about overwhelming our intelligence services' computer banks.

The floodgates for rumination just about spillover.

Avoid State Worker Layoffs

No doubt there were shock waves in state government with Gov. Hunt's indication that a 5 percent pay raise granted to state employees and teachers could be eliminated.

The alternative is layoffs of workers during the upcoming fiscal year.

The governor pointed to "abysmal" revenue projections as the cause of the grim outlook. For the first nine months of the fiscal year General Fund revenues grew by 8.4 percent, compared to a 10.3 percent growth last year. At that rate revenues would be $60 million less than had been projected for the year.

Spokesmen for employee organizations said they were shocked and would fight for retaining the increase. That is understandable and we are in sympathy with the state employees, but if the money is not there at the end of the fiscal year it simply isn't there. It is going to be nearly impossible to find new sources of revenue in these recessionary times. No one wants to lose a projected salary increase, but that may be preferable to major layoffs of state workers.

THIS AFTERNOON

Bypass Assembly

By PUALT O'CONNOR
RALEIGH — Last year, when the General Assembly appropriated $3.45 million for state treatment of severely emotionally troubled youngsters, the legislators were not doing so out of their own volition. The state was already committed to that expenditure and even though the Constitution gives the legislature the sole responsibility for appropriating funds, that money was effectively appropriated long before the solons came to town.

The appropriation arises from the much-publicized "Willie M" case. In October, 1979, four plaintiffs, one a 13-year-old boy identified publicly only as Willie M., sued the state asking for treatment for all severely emotionally troubled youngsters in the state. The issue facing some angry legislators now is how these funds were committed without legislative approval.

Rather than fight what appeared to be a losing case in the courts, the state Department of Human Resources decided to settle with the plaintiffs. In a consent decree worked out through the state's attorney — the attorney general — the state agreed to provide treatment, rehabilitation and education to the plaintiffs and to seek out all similarly handicapped youngsters in North Carolina. The state is now legally bound by that order and cannot appeal it.

Rep. Billy Watkins, D-Granville, chairman of the House Expansion Budget Committee, doesn't think the attorney general and DHR should have the authority to appropriate money, even indirectly. He says the consent decree is likely to end up costing North Carolina taxpayers $30 million over the next decade and that the legislature ought to have made any decision regarding creation of such a large program.

Watkins is chairman of a Governmental Affairs Committee subcommittee that is looking for ways to limit the attorney general's authority to enter into consent decrees that will require future legislative funding. The committee is composed of their bill in the short session.

Senior Deputy Attorney General Andy Vanore says he doesn't blame Watkins for being concerned. He says the legislature should have been consulted about the Willie M. case before any consent order was signed. The case is one "that slipped through the cracks," he said. In the future, consent orders of such magnitude should be made conditional on legislative funding. There are less than a dozen of these consent orders each year, Vanore said, and none has ever been near as expensive of the biggest guns in the legislature. At a recent meeting, they appeared to support tightening the reins in consent orders. They're just looking for the right way of doing it. When they find it, their collective power in the assembly ought to assure

The Law Faring Poorly

WASHINGTON — This weekend brings Law Day, and with it a host of luncheons, lectures, seminars and exercises in self-examination. Across the nation lawyers and laymen alike are looking at the legal profession. How goes the law?

The answer, I submit, is not very well. Americans overwhelmingly still subscribe to the rule of law; despite the appalling levels of crime, we remain a basically law-abiding people. Yet I venture an impression that public confidence in the judicial system is lamentably low. A conviction grows that recourse to legal remedies takes too long and costs too much. In public opinion polls, lawyers rank toward the bottom, in a class with chiropractors, radio evangelists and the salesmen of used automobiles.

Our society has become the most litigious society in the world. No other nation is even close. Over the two decades between 1960 and 1981, while the population was increasing by 13 percent, the number of cases filed in federal district court increased by 137 percent — from 89,100 to 211,900. The number of appeals taken to federal circuit courts increased in this period by 576 percent. State and local courts have experienced the same swollen dockets. The U.S. Supreme Court struggles to dispose of 4,000 petitions a year.

What factors have accounted for this explosion of litigation? The number of lawyers has something to do with it. The old joke — not a very funny joke — tells us that a small community may not be able to support one lawyer, but it always can support two. By 1990 it is estimated that the nation's bar will number 750,000 licensed lawyers. California alone has more lawyers than the entire United Kingdom.

A second significant factor has to do with the growth of "regulatory law." Fifty years ago the fields of law were comparatively few; we had criminal law and civil law, and within civil law we had the familiar specialties — the law of corporations, of probate, of patents, of divorce and so on. That comfortable picture has gone the way of quill pens and judicial wigs.

Today the courts are clogged with legal proceedings of a hundred kinds. The holy name of "civil rights" has become a talisman that magically multiplies the grievances of society. The swarm of federal agencies has produced a swarm of specialized practitioners. No supposed cause of action is too frivolous to attract a lawyer to espouse it. It often seems that everybody is suing everybody else.

Almost everywhere I travel

in this broad land, I see from the newspapers and the Yellow Pages that lawyers are advertising. Maybe this is a good thing; the foresighted preparation of a simple will doubtless is a contribution to a well-ordered society. But I wonder, all the same, if the litigation churned by the advertising is as good for the community as it is good for the lawyers.

Regan Hurt By Packwood

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — Trying to bury a bloody hatchet, Senate Republican leader Howard Baker has promised President Reagan that Sen. Bob Packwood, chairman of the Senate Republican Campaign Committee, will cease attacks on Ronald Reagan and Reaganism.

Baker, one of Packwood's closest political allies, insisted that any effort to replace Reagan's liberal hairshirt would lack the votes to depose him. But if Packwood continues to bloody Reagan's nose, Baker continued, Baker himself would lead the charge to oust him.

The president reluctantly agreed, but not with much confidence that Packwood would stop his attacks on Reagan policies. Packwood's criticism has infuriated Reagan and alienated Republican financial contributors. One result: Advance ticket sales to the Republican fund-raising dinner May 4 are more than $1 million under last year's off-year take.

Warning Dobrynin
A sharp protest over Soviet conduct in the Falkland Islands crisis was delivered directly to Soviet ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin April 16 by Under Secretary of State Lawrence Eagleburger.

Eagleburger handed the veteran Soviet diplomat a formal note protesting high-voltage Soviet commentary against the U.S. and Great Britain. Anti-American charges dominated Soviet press coverage of the British-Argentine showdown in the South Atlantic. The basic accusation of the government-controlled media: The U.S. has teamed with Britain in a latter-day revival of colonialism. Behind the Soviet charge was this hope: to stir anti-Yankee sentiment throughout Latin America.

Since Eagleburger gave Dobrynin the note, Soviet press coverage has been quieter (which Reagan officials doubt will continue). But Eagleburger's private protest showed the high degree of Reagan administration worry that the Soviets might cash in on the struggle between two U.S. allies.

Carbaugh To The Rescue
Secretary of State Alexander Haig's surprising ally in infighting to form a new government in El Salvador following the national election there is none other than John Carbaugh, right-hand man of Haig's longtime foe, Sen. Jesse Helms.

Without fanfare, the ubiquitous Carbaugh slipped into San Salvador a few days after Roberto d'Aubuisson was elected president of the Constituent Assembly resulting from the March 28 national election. With the full backing of Haig and Assistant Secretary of State Thomas Enders, Carbaugh used his influence in direct talks to persuade d'Aubuisson that the U.S. Congress never would accept a government without some moderate leaning.

Carbaugh's utility as an undercover diplomatic-political agent derived from his own credentials as Helms' top aide and his reputation as a conservative.

Perle's Lure
When Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker finally agreed to let the Senate hold a top-secret session for a briefing on the Soviet military threat, he did not know that Assistant Secretary of Defense Richard Perle had thought up the idea.

The Soviet threat briefing by the Defense Intelligence Agency (DIA) was Perle's way of luring fence-sitting senators to support President Reagan's new defense bill. Perle, former defense adviser of Democratic senator Henry M. Jackson, knew that the briefing had powerfully affected individual senators who had heard it (including Sen. John Glenn, a potential Democratic presidential candidate).

Strength For Today

WILL THE CHURCH SURVIVE?

A church leader was talking some time ago with a Christian Chinese refugee. "Will the church ever rise again in China?" asked the leader.

The Chinese Christian answered very quickly. "Of course the church will rise again. In fact, it will never be destroyed, for we have the promise that the gates of hell shall not prevail against it. Most of our church buildings have been torn down. In one city the communists took down the church, stone by stone, filled in the foundation, covered the area with soil and sowed it with grass."

Churches will rise again, but it will be in the cellar of someone's shop, in the back room of someone's home. Groups of people will meet in the fields. The church's one foundation has not been destroyed, and will not be destroyed.

Nominal Christians scare easily, but devoted Christians do not give up hope. — Elisha Douglass.

Public Forum

Letters submitted for Public Forum should be limited to 300 words. The editor reserves the right to edit longer letters.

To the editor:

I quote from an editorial published in the Thursday, April 29, edition of this paper regarding a "bogged down" budget compromise: "Something will have to give soon...and the giving should be done by the Reagan administration. It was, after all, the Reagan policies which created the current mess that sees the nation facing an awesome budget deficit."

I find it most distressing to read such narrow-minded views. Our liberal administrations of the past two decades have created the "current mess." Can the taxpayer continue to support 15-20 percent increases in social welfare programs yearly? A look at your income tax deductions on your next paycheck will answer this question with relative ease. Cutting back this type spending is what the Reagan administration has attempted due to the overwhelming majority of voting Americans mandating this action in November, 1980. Given the opportunity, our current Congress would choose to continue extravagant increases in federal spending as has been the case for years. Obviously, the tax bite would have to increase to finance these politically motivated decisions.

One simply cannot address the fiscal situation in this country by attributing current problems to one year of the current administration. Do we enjoy high taxes and 15 percent yearly inflation or do we prefer lower taxes, negative inflation, and, given the opportunity, a chance for renewed prosperity we have never before witnessed.

It is simply humorous that Americans decided we wanted a change, a President was elected to provide the impetus for change, an aging Congress now TALKS of balanced budgets and then refuses to implement the people's will and continues to TALK. Remember, a Democracy is a government of the people, by the people, and for the people — not one by the politician, for the politician, and of the politician — OR IS IT?

To the editor:

What a pleasure it was to hear the All-City Strings Concert held Thursday at Rose High School! The quality of the performances was very high and were a testimonial to the continuing success of our local string instruction in the schools. Candace Dixon, JoAnn Moore, Wesley Thomas and student teacher Katherine Jenkins were all justifiably proud of their students' efforts, and the large appreciative audience gave these teachers and their students a standing ovation at the end. Mrs. Terry Shank and I couldn't resist a congratulatory hug, expressing our feelings of elation over the success of a project that we began through both our efforts many years ago. The support of Schools Superintendent Delma Blinson and Director of Elementary Instruction Charles Ross was evident by their attendance. At one point, Mr. Ross was even turning pages for Mrs. Moore at the piano! This program, one of the most outstanding I have observed in my own teaching career, deserves the highest level of support by this community.

'Everybody' On Iacocca's Back

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — It had been another long day for Lee Iacocca, the Chrysler Corp. chairman, one of many in the past three years, which earlier in the day he told congressmen had been "sheer hell."

He said it again after flying up from Washington for a brief pause in Chrysler's office here, "sheer hell, a drain on the stamina, everyone on my back, unions, bankers, government."

He reminisces. "My father told me God lets you see only one day at a time," he says, thanking God for his charity. He knew Chrysler faced the pits, he said, but he didn't know he'd have to "jump a canyon."

Had he known what was in store — begging Congress for loan guarantees, the recession, the layoffs he had to order, the personal stress — he said he might not have tried. "I hate even to think of it," he said.

If that is so, it doesn't show. Iacocca in person is spunky as he looks and sounds in ads. Same guy. "We've got the best cars," he snaps. No doubt in his mind. "We have the best warranty too." Despite customer fears that Chrysler would fail, it has raised market share — the only one to do so — to 11 percent from 8 percent, and Iacocca sticks to an estimate of $150 million profit for the year, though much of it would come from sale of the company's tank division.

Company surveys now show the percentage of people who feel Chrysler will fail has fallen to 5 percent from more than 60 percent in late 1979. "Actually, you can't measure it anymore," the chairman says. "Nobody holds back buying now because they fear we'll fail."

Things are turning Chrysler's way, says Iacocca. "If you have a good product, people will be on your side," he says. "They're starting to roll with us." Some management people, in fact, think Chrysler might become a symbol of reindustrialization if it maintains its gains.

Based on his experiences, Iacocca has even begun offering advice to the administration, whose problems he seems to feel are similar to and probably as critical as Chrysler's difficulties of three years ago.

"I give them 4 'f's and 2 'd's," he says. "Regulatory policy: They can't figure out what we need. Trade policy: They're for free trade; they're out of their heads.

"Monetary policy. Who appointed him to conquer inflation on the backs of housing and cars?" he asks of Paul Volcker, Federal Reserve Board chairman and exponent of tight money policies in battling inflation.

Iacocca is angry; the housing and auto industries are devastated by high interest rates. "He's independently wrecking the country," he says of Volcker. "He says he has no interest rate policy, only a money supply policy, and that you have to give them their medicine," the "them" meaning carbuyers, homebuyers, consumers, people in general.

Add contempt to anger. "I wish I could be an ideologue; they have great theories — and we have 70 percent black teen-age unemployment in Detroit."

He continues: "Fiscal policy: Changes every day. Tax policy: They're living beyond their means. Energy: Nobody knows what's good." Professor Iacocca, educated in life's realities, flunks the administration.

"We need a bipartisan economic policy," he says. "They (Democrats, Republicans, the administration, the Fed) owe it to the country." There must be movement, agreement, action, he says.

"We have to do something within the next 30 days or the country will burn down," he said. "We can't wait until July when the tax credit comes in. If they just let the free market run the works," and let the Fed continue its tight money policy, "we're on a disaster course."

Decisions must be made. Because tough decisions have been avoided, economic affairs "are close to anarchy," he said. "When things get tough everyone has pain; a lot in Congress don't want to have pain."

What would he do? He repeated what he had told a House subcommittee a few hours before. Cut 5 percent from defense and 5 percent from social programs. And then add in revenue from a surtax on imported oil.

Result: "You have a $55 billion reduction in the deficit. The prime rate will drop. Consenting adults will engage in commerce again. And revenues will rise."

It takes decisions though, said Iacocca. "Somebody has to show leadership and do it," he said, always with his Chrysler experience in mind. "We made those tough decisions," he said.

"It would be a hell of a waste if they learn nothing from it."

legalistic and less just. It is ridiculous that more than a year after the assassination attempt on President Reagan, the assailant is only now coming to trial. The business of "bail reform" has become such a travesty that dangerous criminals — men with long records of violent crime — regularly are released to prey upon the community while they await trial. Time after time, truthful and material evidence is excluded from the trial of manifestly guilty defendants.

The picture has its bright spots. The quality of our state judge never has been higher. At every level of the judiciary, technological innovations are making our courts more efficient in dealing with their overloaded dockets. The experimental introduction of television in criminal trials is giving the public a better idea of the judicial process. And for all its regrettable abuses, the system of providing taxpaid lawyers for the poor is providing a measure of equal justice under law.

None of my laments is new. Nearly 400 years ago Shakespeare had Hamlet complaining of the law's delays. Dickens built one of his greatest novels around the greed of lawyers exhausting the Jarndyce estate. But if public criticisms lack novelty, they manifest a continuing discontent. In England the bench and the bar rank at the very top of public esteem. That happy condition, sad to say, does not obtain here at home.

Summer Clinic Will Be Held

Greenville City Schools are sponsoring a summer clinic for children with learning problems in cooperation with the East Carolina University Special Education Department.

Individual and small group remedial sessions, conducted by graduate interns in the learning disabilities masters program, will be held at Wahl-Coates School. The session will begin June 28 and end July 28. The hours will be 9:30-11:30 a.m. Content areas will include reading, mathematics, written expression and study skills. The program is designed to serve children who will enter grades three through nine in the fall. The tuition will be $135 and enrollment will be limited to 30 students.

The registration deadline is June 1. Mrs. Ann Harrison, director of exceptional children programs, Greenville City Schools, or Dr. Betty A. Levey, School of Education, ECU, can be contacted for further information.

Need Time To Prepare Reply

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department says it needs more time to prepare its response to public comments about the government's proposed settlement with the American Telephone & Telegraph Co.

On Monday, department lawyers asked U.S. District Judge Harold Greene to extend the time for filing a response from May 5 until June 2.

Greene is conducting any inquiry to decide whether he will accept the settlement which would require AT&T to divest itself of its 22 local telephone operating companies.

Evans-Novak . . .

partly because some of his aides, more interested in cutting the budget than seeing a big defense bill pass, argued it would make it harder to cut the Reagan defense budget. That judgment confirmed Perle's original thought. The actual briefing is to be conducted by Sen. John Tower, chairman of the armed services committee, with DIA experts standing by to help.

Supply-Sider Conable One of the surprises of the protracted budget negotiations was Rep. Barber Conable of New York, senior Republican on the House Ways and Means Committee, lecturing Democrats on the need to retain President Reagan's tax cut.

Conable, no supply-sider, was economic adviser to George Bush during his 1980 presidential campaign when Bush referred to Reagan's tax cut proposals as "voodoo economics." Although Conable loyally backed the Reagan economic program, the intensity of his support in the negotiations was unexpected.

A footnote: Republican leaders in Albany are determined not to let New York state redistricting put Conable and Rep. Jack Kemp in the same district and will try to keep both their districts pretty much intact. Conable has warned he may retire from Congress if forced to run in a basically new district.

as Willie M. Watkins wants funding for consent order settlements limited to appropriation funds. If DHR wants to settle a case, they should have to find the money in their budget. If they don't have it, they ought to go to the Council of State for a piece of the state's Contingency and Emergency Fund, he said. Vanore says that sounds reasonable to him.

Legislative researcher Jim Newlin was quick to point out to the committee, however, that there are other ways the executive branch appropriates money. Newlin said the state has signed agreements with the federal government on the construction and maintenance of recreational facilities at Falls Lake, for example. These agreements could end up costing $25 million. It was not approved by the legislature, he said.

Scholars Weekend Held at ECU

ECU News Bureau Nearly 100 high school students from 42 North Carolina counties attended East Carolina University's Scholars Weekend, held recently.

The visiting students, all juniors, were given a closeup view of the ECU campus, the academic programs and student activities. They attended films, concerts, athletic events, and attended classes and discussion sessions in the academic areas in which they had expressed interest.

The weekend was highlighted by a Sunday evening banquet at which Dr. John M. Howell, ECU's acting chancellor, delivered the featured address.

Scholars Weekend is held annually to acquaint high school students with the campus and the academic scholarships that are available to qualified students.

Those attending were selected on the basis of their Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude test (PSAT) scores and recommendations from their respective high schools.

The counties, towns and names of area students attending Scholars Weekend follow:

MARTIN COUNTY, Jamesville — Donald Mizelle. Williamston — Clay Revels and John Roney.

PITT COUNTY, Ayden — Michael Boykin and David Webb. Greenville — Loretta Grantham. Grifton — Barbara Nobles. Winterville — Dallas Braxton.

FOCUS

Bug Off!

For many a gardener, May is not the time for romance, but the beginning of mortal combat with armies of ravenous creatures that creep, crawl and fly toward tender young plants. Although the gardener is outnumbered millions to one, a new, environmentally safe pesticide may soon come to the rescue. Citric juices, rinds and seeds contain bitter-tasting chemicals called limonoids, which seem to bug bugs. In taste tests, insects indicated a decisive preference for leaves without limonoid dressing. When larvae were forced to eat limonoid-treated leaves, they grew more slowly. Scientists believe commercial production is feasible — more than 300 metric tons of limonoids could be produced each year from grapefruit seeds alone.

See Few Changes In Guidelines For Student Loans

By F. ALAN BOYCE
Associated Press Writer

North Carolina officials have breathed a sigh of relief following an announcement by the Reagan administration that few changes have been proposed in guidelines for student loans this year.

Congress has 30 days to reject the Education Department's published standards, but state officials say they may begin to process a backlog of loan applications.

Stan Broadway, director of the state Education Assistance Authority, which oversees federal programs for state universities, said the published rules are an extension of existing regulations.

"That does not indicate that Congress or the (Reagan) administration are through with arguments over the program," he said. "We still may end up having to go back to students for additional information if Congress decides everyone must be evaluated for eligibility."

Education Department guidelines require only students from families earning more than $30,000 to prove they are in financial need to qualify for a full $2,500 student loan. Those from families earning more than $75,000 must file a separate financial statement disclosing assets to see if they qualify.

Students could get the loans regardless of their parents' wealth until last Oct. 1.

Ralph Byers, executive director of the state Center for Independent Higher Education, said the state's 38 private institutions received $10 million of some $40 million in Guaranteed Student Loans to the state in 1980-81, with the rest going to state-supported institutions.

He expects that figure to increase to about $13 million, based on reduced federal funding for other types of student aid.

"The independent colleges and universities, with about 50,000 students, received about $32.5 million in total student aid in 1979-80," he said. "It was about the same for 1980-81. But this year we expect only $28 million."

Byers said he expects the funding for the 1982-1983 to drop to about $26 million, with only $15 million expected under President Reagan's recommendations.

"We are relatively confident that the Reagan request will not be approved by Congress," Byers added. "The president's recommendations go beyond the bounds of anything that could be considered reasonable."

Broadway said a total of 24,000 North Carolina students received loans last year while this year, 26,000 applications have already been distributed.

"Probably next year's loan volume will be about the same as this year's," he added. "As for 1983-84, there's no way to predict."

N.C. Private Colleges Claim 'Holding Own' In Applications

By The Associated Press
North Carolina's private colleges say they are holding their own in the number of applicants they are attracting, despite the uncertainty surrounding student loans.

The government has promised cutbacks in federal aid to higher education, part of the Reagan administration's efforts to balance the budget.

Despite the problems, the state's larger schools say they are getting several more applications than last year.

Associate Admissions Director Gene Buckingham of Duke University says the school has received 10,479 applications for the freshman class, compared with last year's 10,008.

"We have separate applications for the School of Engineering as opposed to Arts and Sciences," he added. "Applications are up in both categories."

Vonda Reece, administrative assistant for admissions, reported an eight percent increase in Wake Forest University applications.

Davidson College says its applications have dropped by about 100, down to 1,500 this year.

At High Point College in Guilford County, there was little change from last year. "As of Friday, we were up 18 applications over this time last year," said Al Hassell, director of admissions at High Point. He reported 803 applicants this year, compared to 785 in 1981.

Officials at Chowan College, nestled in the Hertford County town of Murfreesboro, were the only ones who blamed the loss of federal funding for declining applications.

Churchgoers Think Preacher Is Devil

WEYMOUTH, Mass. (AP) — A small group within the congregation of the local First Baptist Church thinks it has a devil in its midst.

The church members claim that "God has spoken directly to them," saying that Associate Pastor Larry Baskin is "a son of the devil."

Church authorities have been unable to dissuade the group, so they've called a meeting of the congregation Thursday to decide the issue, said Rev. Douglas Auld, the pastor of the church.

The dissident group raised the issue soon after Baskin came to the church three years ago, Auld said Monday.

"Some people got these 'words from God' right after Baskin arrived," he said.

Baskin, who could not be reached for comment Monday at his telephone number, was quoted in The Patriot Ledger of Quincy as saying, "From my point of view it was a grievous misunderstanding. I am convinced we are going to be able to work through it."

Auld said he considered Baskin "absolutely" clear of any wrongdoing and said his associate is "taking this very well."

An investigation by the board of deacons cleared the young pastor of any wrongdoing but has not mollified the group, he said.

So the board of deacons sent a letter to the congregation announcing Thursday's meeting.

The congregation will hear "the expression of both parties," the letter said, adding:

"And if the church agrees with the position of the deacons," dissenting church members will be told to "cease and desist their spreading discord among the brethren."

Baby Given Wrong Pair

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A court has awarded $150,000 in damages to a couple who never saw their baby again after a hospital discharged the child to a man and woman posing as the parents in 1979.

Aliya Payne was 6 weeks old when her parents, Rosalind Payne, 22, and Timothy Loman, 23, took her to St. Christopher's Hospital for Children for treatment of a fever. A doctor discharged the baby to a couple believed to be in their late 30s or early 40s.

A Common Pleas Court jury made its award April 22 after a month of testimony on the negligence suit.

Michael Brodie, the lawyer who handled the suit for the parents, said no specific amount of damages was requested but he was still "disappointed in the amount."

St. Christopher's spokeswoman Dolores Barbieri said the hospital would not appeal. She said the hospital increased its security after the incident.

Police have followed several leads since the abduction and once thought they were close to finding the child, "but it turned out that those leads were nothing," Brodie said.

"They handled it the way any human being would have," Brodie said of the parents. "How do you handle something like this?"

*Also to be placed on the agenda for the next school board meeting is the matter of a decision on the future of the Agnes Fullilove Community School. Kay Whitehurst is heading a task force to study and present alternatives. Some of the suggestions presented in Mrs. Whitehurst's preliminary report include: leave at present site; move the program to Rose; move the program to Aycock; move to a school now housing a K-3 or 4-6 program or divide the program along grade level. The preliminary report on alternatives has involved input from Fullilove's principal, Johannes Bleicher, as well as from Naomi Edwards, Carolyn Ferebee, Ann Harrison, Howard Hurt, Paul Rasberry, Charles Ross and Bob Stewart.

*Two policy matters were approved in a second reading. These are the policy papers on community use of facilities and the policy on corporal punishment. Also approved on a first reading basis was the affirmative action plan and the rough draft of a conflict of interest (prevention of nepotism) policy.

*A field trip for eighth graders at Aycock to visit Busch Gardens in Virginia on May 22 was approved.

A report on educator's attitudes concerning granting tuition credit to private schools was presented by member Terry Shank. She reported that the president of the National School Board Association has said efforts to express opposition to such a credit need to be upgraded.

Citing percentage figures, Mrs. Shank noted that such federal assistance would be inequitable, as a few states would benefit from the bulk of such assistance. Another basic consideration she pointed to is that there is concern over the constitutional matter of the separation of church and state. Mrs. Shank said only 15 percent of private schools are not church-related. Following her report, school board members endorsed a resolution to again send letters of concern to North Carolina representatives in Congress.

Housing Authority

units but it appeared that housing authorities in the worst financial condition in other areas received the funds. HUD, he said, has suggested that the authority apply again this year although it is doubtful the application will be approved.

The director said HUD recommended that the authority begin using a small portion of its operating funds for modernization work. Commissioners agreed that initial work should begin in the Kearney Park section, the oldest of the agency's housing areas.

Sallye Streeter, director of tenant affairs, reported that three temporary vacancies occurred in the six housing areas in April and average rents included: NC 22-1 (Meadowbrook), $82.72; NC 22-2 (Kearney Park), $96.35; NC 22-3 (Moyewood), $95.84; NC 22-4 (Moyewood), $96.15; NC 22-5 (Hopkins Park), $74.20; and NC 22-6 (Newtown), $75.04, for an overall average of $88.39.

Mrs. Streeter said that Susan Spell, a resident of Moyewood, was named a finalist for a $1,000 scholarship offered by the Carolinas Council of Housing and Redevelopment Officials but she was unable to attend the final interview session because of a commitment to the Health Occupation Students of America organization which met in Winston-Salem on the same date. Miss Spell, a Rose High School senior, is serving as president of the association and was scheduled to address the HOSA meeting.

Allows No Bail For MacDonald

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — A federal appellate court has ruled former Army Capt. Jeffrey MacDonald must remain in jail while seeking to overturn his murder convictions in the deaths of his wife and two daughters, but says it will grant an expedited hearing for any further appeals.

In denying his release during the appeals process, the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals said it "finds that the appellant has not carried the burden of establishing that he will not flee if released on bond."

The written order was made public Monday, although the court actually issued a verbal order denying bond after a hearing last Friday.

The 38-year-old MacDonald, who once served in the Army's elite Green Beret Corps, was convicted in 1979 of the 1970 stabbing and bludgeoning deaths in their home at Fort Bragg, N.C., of his pregnant wife, Collette, 24, and their daughters, Kimberly, 6, and Kristen, 3.

Ever since the killings, MacDonald has maintained they were committed by long-haired intruders who

Seminar On Theft To Be Held

The Merchants Committee of the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce announced that it will present a May 12 seminar, "To Catch a Thief," featuring Frank Abagnale, dubbed the "the world's greatest con artist."

The seminar is aimed at retailers, security personnel, sales people, teachers, students and anyone working with computers or handling money.

FRANK ABAGNALE

Abagnale, the chamber said, successfully posed as a pilot, a pediatrician, an assistant attorney general, a stockbroker, a college professor, and an FBI agent between the ages of 16 and 21. He cashed $2.5 million worth of phony checks in all 50 states and 26 foreign countries, according to the chamber.

The speaker will talk about how to protect against forgery, spot hot checks, recognize fraud, beat quick change artists, spot counterfeit checks, determine which hard-to-forge ID cards are most acceptable for business, understand how color copiers have changed the forgery business, and recognize the most common con artist tricks.

The seminar will be from 7:30 p.m. at the Willis Building. The fee will be $10 for chamber members and $15 for non-members. People seeking further information should call the chamber office at 752-4101.

The 4th U.S. Circuit Court reversed that conviction July 29, 1980, ruling MacDonald's right to a speedy trial was violated. But the conviction was reinstated March 31 by the U.S. Supreme Court.

MacDonald had been free on $100,000 bond and had been practicing medicine in California after the circuit court reversed his conviction. After the Supreme Court ruling, the district court ordered he be returned to the Terminal Island federal prison in California.

After the Supreme Court decision, one of MacDonald's attorneys said the case would be appealed again to the 4th Circuit Court on other grounds.

In what is a moot observation from a practical standpoint, the circuit court said Monday the district court overstepped its bounds in revoking bail after the Supreme Court decision.

"The district court was without jurisdiction to direct the U. S. Marshal to apprehend MacDonald. We did not surrender jurisdiction over this matter. Neither the Supreme Court nor this court has remanded this case to the district court," the appeals court said.

Flanagan Finally Gets In The Groove

By The Associated Press
Mike Flanagan was just too strong in the early going this season.
On Monday night, he was just too good.
"The last four times I've pitched, I've felt too strong," Flanagan said after facing the minimum number of batters in firing a three-hit shutout for his first victory in four decisions as the Baltimore Orioles whipped the Seattle Mariners 6-0.
"In those games, I felt so strong that I tried to over-throw. Tonight, I felt smooth. It was just a matter of slowing myself down."
Rich Dauer and Gary Roenicke backed Flanagan's pitching with home runs. Dauer hit a two-run homer off rookie Mike Moore in the first inning and singled a run across in the fifth, while Roenicke connected for a three-run homer off Larry Andersen in the eighth.

Despite the three Seattle hits and one walk, Flanagan pitched to the minimum number of batters. He picked one runner off first, another was thrown out trying to stretch a single into a double and two were erased on double plays.
"I had good control of my fast ball," Flanagan said. "It's nice to be able to go out and feel in total command. I just made the pitches when I had to and got some good defensive support."

"Mike had good command of his fast ball," added Ray Miller, the Orioles' pitching coach. "He stuck with the fast ball for most of his outs. That's the power pitching of the Mike Flanagan of old. That's the way he threw in '79 when he won the Cy Young. If he has his fast ball, his curve can get anyone out."
Baltimore third baseman Cal Ripken Jr. was hit in the head by a pitch from Moore in the fifth inning. He went to a hospital for X-rays, which were negative.
Red Sox 6, Twins 2
Two-run homers by Dave Stapleton and Rick Miller powered red-hot Boston to its fourth consecutive triumph and 12th in the last 13 games, while Chuck Rainey and Bob Stanley combined on a five-hitter. Stapleton's inside-the-park homer capped a four-run first inning after Carl Yastrzemski's two-run double erased a 2-0 Minnesota lead. Miller's homer followed Rich Gedman's double in the fifth.

Stapleton's homer came when his high fly down the right field line fell just out of reach and skipped away from a diving Mickey Hatcher.
The Twins, with a 9-16 record, have hit 29 home runs. Boston, which leads the AL East at 16-7, has just 14.
"Home runs don't mean anything. It's runs scored," said Boston Manager Ralph Houk. "We're scoring runs. We led the league last year in runs scored. We're not the type of ballclub that hits home runs."
Angels 5, Indians 4
Don Baylor drove in the tying run with a seventh-inning double and then hit a ninth-inning sacrifice fly for the winning run, while Andy Hassler and Don Aase combined for 7-3 innings of sparkling relief. Rod Carew led off the ninth with a single off Dan Spillner and Fred Lynn walked. Carew went to third on Reggie Jackson's fly ball and scored on Baylor's drive to deep center.
Hassler relieved starter Mike Witt in the second and pitched five scoreless innings — he is unscored upon in 13 innings this season — before Aase retired the final seven batters, striking out five. The Angels trailed 4-0 but scored twice in the fourth inning off Len Barker on two walks, an error and a sacrifice fly. Consecutive singles by Carew, Lynn and Jackson made it 4-3 in the seventh.
Aase, 3-1 with a league-leading 0.67 earned run average in 27 innings, explained: "I'm a little more relaxed coming out of the bullpen than I was starting. Usually, when you come in you're in a situation with men on base and you don't have time to think about everything."

A's 5, Yankees 2
Singles by Dwayne Murphy and Tony Armas drove in the tying and lead runs as Oakland rallied for four runs against Tommy John and Rich Gossage in the eighth inning and went on to its fifth consecutive victory. The A's had managed six hits and one run until pinch hitter Jeff Burroughs opened the eighth with an infield hit. Rickey Henderson walked and Murphy, who drove in Oakland's first run with a third-inning triple, singled to score pinch runner Jimmy Sexton with the tying run.

Henderson scored when

Armas greeted Gossage with a bloop single. Cliff Johnson's sacriossage wild pitched Armas to third and he scored on Joe Rudi's squeeze bunt. Matt Keough went the route for the A's, scattering seven hits and walking seven. The A's also committed four errors, two by Keough on pickoff throws.
Royals 3, Brewers 2
Greg Pryor's home run and

Hal McRae's two-run double gave Kansas City a 3-0 lead against Mike Caldwell in the sixth inning. Paul Splittorff carried a four-hit shutout into the seventh, then gave up a two-run homer to pinch hitter Larry Hise, who hadn't played since April 17 because of a sprained wrist and an eye infection. Dan Quisenberry relieved at that point and checked the Brewers the rest of the way on one hit for his league-leading eighth save.
"We need a good year out of Quisenberry, and he's been outstanding so far. He's our Rollie Fingers," said Manager Dick Howser.

In the seventh, after one out, John Bolen singled and Mark Holloman doubled. Stacy Best walked, loading the bases and a hit by Franklin Pugh brought

The Kiwanis added three more in the fourth, two on a homer by Chambliss, and four more in the fifth.
Coke got two in the third and one in the fifth.
Chambliss led the Kiwanis hitting with three, while McDonald and Pat Joyner each had two. Tony Evans led the Coke hitting with two.

Ramsey Still Can't Believe It

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — Frank Ramsey, the "Sixth Man" of the Boston Celtics, was still shaking his head in disbelief as he lined up with the likes of Willis Reed, Hal Greer and Slater Martin to be installed in the Basketball Hall of Fame.
"I've got to be the only sub in the Hall of Fame," said Ramsey, who totaled 8,738 points coming off the bench during a nine-year pro career during which the Celtics won seven National Basketball Association championships.

he said. "You don't make halls of fame in a team sport by yourself and I played with some of the best from the time my high school won the state championship."
Reed is now coaching at Creighton University.
Standing a foot shorter than Reed, Martin, at 5-10 one of the smallest players ever to make the Hall of Fame, agreed.
"I still amazes me," he said. "I knew my teammates would get here, they were all shooters, but you don't expect it when you are under six feet and play defense."
An All-American at Texas, Martin, 56, played on four NBA championship teams with Minneapolis Lakers one with the St. Louis in the 1950s. He scored 7,337 points and 3,160 assists in an eleven-year pro career.
For Greer, the NBA's eighth-leading scorer, the honor was a long time coming, but he was all smiles Monday.
"I thought it should have come earlier, but I'm not mad anymore," said Greer, an All-American at Marshall University in 1959. His deadly accurate jumpers from the foul line were a trademark of a 15-year pro career with Syracuse and Philadelphia that included 10 All-Star games.
"It's been quite a few years, but sometimes it's better when you have to wait for it," said Greer, who first became eligible five years after his retirement in 1973.
"I've never had but one job and that's just been a game," said Gaines, 58, who has coached Winston-Salem since 1947. His teams, which have included such future pro stars as Earl Monroe, have had only two losing seasons.
Case, who died in 1966, amassed an 87-percent winning percentage in 47 years of coaching.

Also inducted Monday were Winston-Salem State Coach Clarence "Big House" Gaines, the winningest active coach in basketball with a 683-299 record; Alva Duer, executive secretary of the NAAIA from 1949 until his retirement in 1971 and the late Everett Case, former coach at North Carolina State.
Danny Biasone, who as owner of the old Syracuse Nationals, revolutionized the pro game in 1954 by persuading the other owners to institute the 24-second clock, received a special award as an outstanding contributor to the game.
"I couldn't believe it when I opened my mailbox. I thought I got the wrong mailgram," recalled Ramsey, 52, who returned to his hometown of Madisonville, Ky., after his playing days to become a banker and farmer.
"We never played for stats, we played to win. Heck, I would have sat on the bench all year to get those seven titles."
For Reed, the big, quiet center who came out of tiny Grambling College to lead the New York Knicks to the NBA championships in 1970 and 1973, the words "team play" were the key.
"The people I played with, my teammates, put me here," he said. "You don't make halls of fame in a team sport by yourself and I played with some of the best from the time my high school won the state championship."

Reed is now coaching at Creighton University.
Standing a foot shorter than Reed, Martin, at 5-10 one of the smallest players ever to make the Hall of Fame, agreed.

THE DAILY REFLECTOR has been advertising local businesses since January 26, 1882.

Joe Saad's shoe repair business has been located at 113 Grande Avenue for almost 36 years.

And for over 30 years, Joseph Saad has been advertising his family's local shoe repair business in THE DAILY REFLECTOR.
"My motto has always been 'Never lie to a customer'," said Joe. "If a shoe can't be repaired properly enough to fit correctly again I'll tell them so."
This way of doing business has apparently paid off for Joe. His shop now repairs shoes for third-generation customers.
Following his tour of duty in the Army during World War II, Joe opened the shop on July 3, 1946, in the same location that it is at today — 113 Grande Ave.
Although his wife Juanita, along with their youngest son Jimmy, now handle the routine shoe repairs, Joe does the specialty prescription footwear work that customers from as far away as Durham and the coast come to get done.
You can still get an old-fashioned shoe shine at Joe Saad's place, while passing the time of day with Lester Peterson, an employee for 18 years at Saad's Shoe Repair.
"Shoes have changed a lot over the years," said Joe. "Probably the biggest change is that shoes no longer leave those black heel marks that were so hard to clean off the floors."
"But one thing that hasn't changed over the years is our thoroughly enjoyable relationship with THE DAILY REFLECTOR."

I wish to announce to the public that I have leased the Shoe Repair Shop formerly operated by the College View Cleaners and Laundry at their plant, 105 Grande Avenue.

I will strive to give only first class work. With our new machinery this will be easier to do.

Tennis Alphabet War Takes Off; Top Players Caught in Middle

NEW YORK (AP) — The tennis Alphabet War is in full swing, with Sweden's Bjorn Borg an early casualty and Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia caught in the crossfire.

The combatants include the International Tennis Federation (ITF), the Men's International Professional Tennis Council (MIPTC), the Association of Tennis Professionals (ATP) and World Championship Tennis (WCT), plus assorted support groups, strategists and behind-the-scenes generals.

The latest skirmish occurred two weeks ago when all of the world's top 10 players were in action — five in Las Vegas, Nev., at the $300,000 Alan King Tennis Classic, a Volvo Grand Prix event, and the other five in Dallas at the $300,000 WCT Finals.

The battle lines were drawn a year ago when WCT, run by sports entrepreneur Lamar Hunt, decided to form an agency to represent players. The people who run the Grand Prix tour were quite upset at the fact that Hunt wanted to represent players and run tournaments at the same time. A conflict of interest, they said.

There was no mention made of ProServe, the company formed by Donald Dell, a Washington lawyer and former tennis player, promoter, agent, television commentator, etc.

Lendl, for example, is a ProServe client. The man listed as his agent, Jerry Solomon, also happens to be tour director of the Grand Prix. Any connection between ProServe and the Grand Prix is only speculation. Make up your own mind.

When the Pro Council (MIPTC — see second paragraph), which administers the Grand Prix, decided Hunt was going too far, the Texas multimillionaire decided to go his own way and set up the WCT tour, where tournament victories are worth $100,000 instead of the $12,000 to $90,000 first-place prizes offered by Grand Prix events.

The Pro Council reacted by forcing players to sign up for a minimum of 10 tournaments for 1982. When Borg, who has won six French Open and five Wimbledon titles, decided to take a five-month vacation, he asked for an exemption to the rule and play in only seven tournaments.

"No exceptions," said the Council, which then decreed that Borg must play the qualifying round for every Grand Prix tournament in which he enters. At Las Vegas, the world's sixth-ranked player failed to get through the qualifying and the tournament lost one of its biggest draws.

"I feel sorry for Bjorn," said Lendl. "He has been a great champion and should not be treated that way."

Then the hammer came down on Lendl, who has reached the finals in his last 18 tournaments, losing only three times.

Gervin Says 'No Coasting' As Spurs Go For Series Sweep

By The Associated Press
George Gervin still regrets what happened to the San Antonio Spurs in the National Basketball Association playoffs in 1979.

He doesn't want the same thing to happen this year.

"There can be no coasting," Gervin says as the Spurs, holding a 3-1 edge in their seven-game, quarterfinal series with Seattle, prepare for Wednesday night's game with the SuperSonics.

"I'm confident but not cocky. There is no room for being cocky in this league. That will eat you up."

Which is what might have happened to the Spurs in 1979 — when they led the Philadelphia 76ers 3-1 and just narrowly won the series in seven games, then lost to the Washington Bullets in seven after holding a 3-1 advantage.

The San Antonio-Seattle game is one of three quarterfinal contests scheduled for Wednesday night. In the others, Boston will play Washington and Philadelphia meets Milwaukee. Both Boston and Philadelphia each need one more victory to wrap up their Eastern Division series.

The Los Angeles Lakers have already won their West series with Phoenix and will meet the winner of the San Antonio-Seattle battle.

To play harder Wednesday."

The Spurs, meanwhile, don't figure to be an easy touch in Seattle. They certainly weren't in San Antonio.

"We had San Antonio beaten three times and let them off the hook," said Seattle's James Donaldson. "We are confident we can come back and win."

The Celtics-Bullets game will be played in Boston Garden, a tough place for visiting teams. The Bullets did manage to win Game Two of the series at the Garden, on a three-point basket by Frank Johnson with three seconds remaining. But the Celtics had a 35-6 record there during the regular season. In addition, the Bullets have beaten the Celtics only once in the last 13 meetings.

"I don't feel confident yet," said Celtic Coach Bill Fitch, whose team is the defending NBA champion. "Ask me the same question when it's over and I might say 'maybe.'"

The Bucks, playing without injured guards Quinn Buckner and Junior Bridgeman, both out for the season, had five men average 42 minutes each on Saturday and seemed to be worn out after Sunday's 100-93 loss to the 76ers.

"It seemed like Milwaukee burned out a little," said Julius Erving. "There was a lot more holding and grabbing. We got some breakdown situations that we wouldn't have had if they had rested players."

Telly Savalas Returns To TV In PBS Drama

AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Telly Savalas, who played evil, maniacal characters in the movies before he became a tough good-guy cop on "Kojak," returns to television tonight in a role in need of some softening and a play in need of some subtlety.

"My Palikari," an original 90-minute play for TV, is this week's offering on PBS' "American Playhouse," the series of American dramas, comedies and musicals.

The concept, along with Savalas' debut on public TV, were encouraging signs. However, the story lacks impact, is devoid of dramatic tension and warmth, and never gives viewers a chance to touch the characters.

Savalas plays Pete Panakos, a restaurant owner from Greece who has chased the American dream since 1918. It's now 1953, and Pete is returning to Greece and his mother and brother for the first time in 35 years.

Humanity isn't part of Savalas' repertoire, which further damages a character too broad to be believable anyway. Pete is very Greek. He likes to dance and hug a lot. He talks a good game about family and the simpler life of his homeland, but his idol is really the American dollar.

Pete takes his prized 1953 Buick on the boat to Greece. Once there, he tries to absolve his guilt over the long separation with gifts and money. Constantly downgrading his family's poor lifestyle, he's obnoxious and insensitive, a regular Ugly American of the imported variety.

Meanwhile, his son, Chris, reluctantly comes along for the summer sojourn. He loves baseball, and has no interest in his father's former life. Played in a monotonous, humorless manner by Keith Gordon, there's nothing likeable about this teen-ager.

When Chris first arrives in Greece, he says disdainfully: "It's nice. It's kind of like Brooklyn."

Of course, once in Greece, Pete's 35-year-old memories don't match reality or his new attitudes. Just as predictably, Chris gains an appreciation for the simpler way of life, although there isn't any explanation for this beyond a Greek girl friend.

Pete's situations are trite and heavy-handed. When the Buick, the symbol of his materialism, breaks down, a donkey passes by not once, but twice.

Maybe you should turn down the sound and watch the beautiful location scenery. "My Palikari" is disappointing, but Greece isn't. It looks just like the travel posters.

There never were any lofty expectations for tonight's other offering, CBS' "Portrait of a Showgirl." Consequently, there was no disillusionment when the movie turned out to be typical dramatic series fare, only longer.

It's "A Chorus Line" without quality music and dancing and meaningful story lines. A bunch of dancers are practicing for a Las Vegas hotel show opening, and "Portrait of a Showgirl" traces some of their stories.

Lesley Ann Warren, who was in TV's "Portrait of a Stripper" and the current theatrical film, "Victor, Victoria," plays a New York dancer, who has trouble adjusting to Las Vegas. She's trying to get over an affair with a married man, and her hard New York edge doesn't endear her to the other dancers.

Miss Warren is a talented performer, who is sabotaged by the script: "I'm trying to get myself together. I'm fighting for my life," she says.

Another featured dancer is Rita Moreno, a veteran pair of legs who needs the work because of the futile financial schemes of her husband (Tony Curtis).

"Portrait" won't even help the travel agents. Filmed in Las Vegas, it never captures the glitter and vitality of a city that is supposed to be winking 24 hours a day.

Tell Cable TV 'Get Involved'

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Cable TV operators must actively support a telephone regulation bill pending in Congress or wake up to find the American Telephone and Telegraph Co. dominating the information industry, according to several congressmen.

"These issues are of crucial import to you, but where is the cable industry?" asked Rep. Timothy E. Wirth, D-Colo., chairman of the House Communications subcommittee. "You need to be involved. Congress needs to hear from you because you are deeply affected."

"It's Bell against the world, and the world is losing," Rep. Al Swift, D-Wash., a member of Wirth's subcommittee, added during a special panel discussion Monday.

Wirth, Swift and four of their colleagues spoke during the first day of the National Cable Television Association's annual convention about the challenges posed by the recent AT&T antitrust settlement. The settlement has become a major concern here because it would allow AT&T to enter the cable television business.

The telephone regulation bill sponsored by Wirth would go beyond the settlement by imposing additional restrictions on AT&T, such as prohibiting the company from using its facilities to provide electronic information services. After the measure cleared Worth's subcommittee by a 15-0 vote in March, AT&T launched a massive lobbying campaign that is still underway.

The plea that cable operators get involved in the dispute was unusual only in that it was accompanied by unexpectedly bleak assessments of the bill's future.

AT&T's lobbying effort, which Wirth called "a massive fear campaign," is having its intended effect, the congressmen acknowledged.

"I've gotten more mail (in two months) on that than on any single other issue in my six years in Congress," said Rep. Marc L. Marks, R-Pa. "If they can do that, where can they be stopped?"

Swift complained that the company was taking out misleading advertisements in his district and that he had been told by an unidentified AT&T lobbyist that the company "was going to have to burn" him for the measure.

"You know why?" he continued. "Because all the other members of the full committee and members of the Congress ... are watching that. They're watching our punishment. They're trying to get messages through us to the people who are going to have to provide the votes if this legislation is to go anywhere."

"If we don't do something about it, the likelihood is that the world will continue losing," agreed Rep. Billy Tauzin, D-La. "Frankly, if we don't have your help in educating the American public on the issues at stake here, we're going to lose this one."

Wirth, in his keynote speech during a luncheon Monday, said he believed AT&T should be free to compete in new areas such as data processing.

There are 250,000 sweat glands in the foot, which give off an average of a half-pint of perspiration a day.

By TOM MINEHART
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The North Carolina Symphony Board of Trustees has ended its three-year search for a permanent artistic director and conductor with the selection of Gerhardt Zimmermann.

Zimmermann, 36, has been serving as associate conductor of the St. Louis Symphony and conductor of the Canton, Ohio, Symphony Orchestra.

He also has been music director and conductor of the St. Louis Youth Orchestra and guest conductor for the National Symphony, the Chicago Symphony, the Atlanta Symphony, the Pittsburgh Symphony and the Phoenix Symphony.

"The search at times has been rocky," said Nancy Faircloth, chairman of the trustees at a Monday afternoon press conference. She said Zimmermann was chosen two weeks ago, but an announcement was delayed because it was difficult to communicate with him while he was on tour.

Thomas H. McGuire, the symphony's executive director, said salary was "not a major stumbling block" in the negotiations, although officials did not release a figure.

The North Carolina Symphony has been plagued by financial problems, a 1980 strike and opposition among many musicians to principal guest conductor Patrick Flynn.

Musicians' representatives said Monday they were "delighted" with Zimmermann's selection.

"We think Mr. Zimmermann can build the orchestra," said principal clarinetist Jimmy Gilmore, chairman of the musicians' conductor search committee.

"We examined some 14 or 15 candidates over the three years," Gilmore said. "Most could conduct, but we think Mr. Zimmermann can build an ensemble with its own individual sound. We think he can develop the players. He has the rapport, the background and the necessary tools."

Mrs. Faircloth said Zimmermann and the board still had "just a verbal commitment," but that they had agreed on a one-year contract with an option to renew.

She said she didn't know when Zimmermann would begin work, but he would be in North Carolina long before the symphony's season-opening concert on Sept. 16.

Zimmermann guest-conducted the North Carolina Symphony earlier this year in Wilmington and Burlington.

Proven Stars In TV Miniseries

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Betty Davis, Angela Lansbury and Maureen Stapleton will star in "Little Gloria...Happy At Last," a four-hour NBC-TV miniseries based on the child custody case of heiress Gloria Vanderbilt.

The TV movie, which co-stars Martin Balsam, Barnard Hughes and Ken Howard, is taken from Barbara Goldsmith's nonfiction book of the same title and is scheduled for the 1982-83 TV season.

"Little Gloria...Happy At Last" will be filmed entirely on locations in New York City, Newport, R.I., and Montreal, Canada, beginning in May. Waris Hussein will direct the miniseries from a script by William Hanley.

Eyes 'Empire' In TV Rentals

By KENNETH R. CLARK
UPI TV Reporter

NEW YORK (UPI) — When Brian Wolfson says, "The two most mistrusted people in America today are the auto mechanic and the TV repairman," who can refrain from "Amen?"

It is upon that "Amen" that Wolfson is building what he confidently predicts will be a television empire.

He owns no television stations, syndicates or cable systems. He produces no programming — not even on an import basis from his native England which seems to supply much of the best in the public broadcasting sector.

Brian Wolfson doesn't even sell television sets. He rents them, and if his American venture matches similar ventures elsewhere, he soon will be the unchallenged king of the "98-cent-a-day" video rental business.

Wolfson runs Rentacolor Inc. which, with 50 branches, already is the nation's largest TV rental business.

His domestic headquarters are in Hartford, Conn., but he learned his trade in England, where up to half the viewing audience uses rented receivers, and in a worldwide market where he said the capital investment in set rentals now runs between $10 billion and $12 billion.

His Rentacolor International, parent company of his American endeavor, has a sizeable slice of that action in 23 nations.

Possibly because the American dream always has been to own its own hardware, Wolfson has not a single American competitor in the rental business — at least not in the mode in which he operates. Like his own firm, his only rivals, including Granada which he once directed, are British-based.

But why should anyone eschew title to a television set that eventually will be paid off in favor of monthly rental installments that go on and on? That, said Wolfson, is where the sinister TV repairman comes in — or, in this case, goes out.

"In the minds of most people, radio is magic and television is black magic," he said. "If your set breaks on Friday and you want to have it fixed for the big game on Sunday and you call the TV repairman, he won't give you service."

"The two most mistrusted people in America today are the auto mechanic and the TV repairman. You pay $50 and you don't even know if you've gotten a good job."

For rental payments — ranging from $14.95 a month up, depending upon equipment rented — Wolfson will guarantee constant, uninterrupted service. If the tube blows, a new set will be in its place within 24 hours.

If a small screen begins to strain the eyes, a phone call will bring a bigger one into the living room, along with videotape recorders, home video cameras, video disc players, screen games and all the other trappings of the modern electronic entertainment center.

Lucille Ball To Host A Special

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Lucille Ball bounces back to television to host a one-hour retrospective special on "Three's Company," titled "The Best of Three's Company" for telecast May 19.

The retrospective will cover the first six years of the highly rated comedy series which stars John Ritter, Joyce DeWitt, Suzanne Somers, Audrey Lindley, Norman Fell, Don Knotts and other cast members.

Miss Ball will narrate the one-hour special of film clips and original footage featuring Ritter.

Funnymen For Columbia Film

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Columbia Pictures has loaded up its new comedy, "The Toy," with a cast full of funny men, including Richard Pryor, Jackie Gleason, Wilfrid Hyde-White and Ned Beatty.

Put your bridge wizardry to the test. Cover up the East and West hands and decide what's your best chance to make six no trump after a diamond lead.

North's bid of four no trump does not ask for ace — there is no agreed suit. It is simply a quantitative raise in no trump, and asks partner to bid six no trump if he has a maximum. South had, and did.

At first glance it seems that you have to play for one of two finesses being right. As the cards lie, the heart finesse succeeds, so you make your contract. You look a line that gives you a slightly better than 3-to-1 chance of success. But you didn't take quite the best line. You could have given yourself a slight additional chance.

Since it's even money on the location of the heart king, win the opening diamond lead in your hand and lead a low heart toward the jack. If West has the king of hearts and goes up with it, you don't need the spade finesse. You can take four tricks in each minor suit, three in hearts

Monitoring Compliance

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Secretary of State Edmund Muskie is lending his prestige to a commission established to monitor the Nestle corporation's compliance with an international marketing code for infant formula. Nestle is financing the commission.

Muskie and company officials announced their plans for the eight-member Infant Formula Audit Commission on Monday.

The venture was criticized by the Infant Formula Action Coalition, which opposes Nestle's infant formula sales campaigns in Third World nations. The coalition participated in a four-year-old boycott of Nestle products called because of the company's marketing practices.

"At this point there seems little reason to report violations to this commission," said Douglas Johnson, the group's national chairman. "They are chartered only to investigate violations of Nestle's weak marketing instructions."

Johnson's criticism was directed at Nestle's decision to support the infant formula code but to write its own interpretation of its rules.

The task force will investigate complaints about Nestle's marketing practices. Muskie said it might also initiate checks on its own without waiting to receive a complaint.

He said the amount of money to be spent on the task force has not been settled.

Muskie insisted that the task force would have a free hand in conducting whatever reviews it sees fit. "We have authority to say anything we wish to say, at any time we wish to say it, in as harsh a language as we wish to say it or as gentle a language as we wish to say it," he said.

Three task force members who joined Muskie at the news conference announcing their plan said they would receive no payment for their work.

'Palimony Suit' For Jack Webb

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jack Webb, the Sgt. Joe Friday of "Dragnet" and producer of "Adam-12" and other action TV shows, faces a $2 million "palimony" suit from a would-be "step-son."

In the unusual action filed Friday in Superior Court, Richard J. Sherman said his late mother, Jane Sherman, had a relationship with Webb from 1973 to 1980.

As administrator of her estate, Sherman claims Webb promised his mother $3,600 a month in support and agreed to give her a condominium in West Hollywood and an automobile. She died Jan. 15.

He also seeks $2 million in punitive damages. Webb said he had no comment on the matter.

Propose Joint Industry Effort

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three senators are urging the Reagan administration to propose a joint industrial complex with the NATO countries to coordinate the alliance's defense production.

Sens. William Roth, R-Del., John Glenn, D-Ohio, and Sam Nunn, D-Ga., introduced a resolution Monday that says NATO could be reinvigorated by "a more equitable sharing" of defense costs.

Roth said a cooperative defense-industrial effort would help to check the soaring cost of new, duplicative weapons systems that have worked against a strong defense.

The resolution suggests that the administration make the case for a pooling of resources at a NATO summit meeting in Bonn, West Germany next month.

Great Response To N.C. Exhibit

By The Associated Press

The director of the state Division of Tourism says the response to North Carolina's exhibit at the 1982 World's Fair in Knoxville, Tenn., "has been fantastic."

Charles Heatherly said cloggers, folk singers and can-can dancers greet visitors to the Tar Heel exhibit, which opened along with the rest of the fair last weekend.

"The reaction has been fantastic," Heatherly said. "You get the performers on stage, and it just draws the people right in."

In an effort to help promote the state's tourism and travel industry, the state says it spent $200,000 to build the exhibit and will spend another $200,000 to operate and 1,500 square-foot state exhibit.

Officials are hoping to get a great more than that back from their investment.

Jerome B. Douglas, director of Western North Carolina Associated Communities, said his group is hoping to get an additional $35 million to $50 million in income.

The exhibit, located in the Technology and Lifestyles building, is shaped like a welcome center with a state-shaped map of scenic photographs, video tapes, a travel film, a stage and a counter staffed by college students passing out travel brochures.

Jinger Rogers, who is in charge of the exhibit, said it spotlights different counties on various days of the fair's six-month run.

She said entertainers from Haywood, Alexander, Forsyth, Gates and Guilford counties have entertained during the first three days. May 28th is North Carolina Day and Gov. Jim Hunt will be among the guests.

Among the performers thus far were the Magnum Cloggers; the Painters, a singing group; and the Ghost Town Sweethearts, can-can dancers from Maggie Valley.

Indict Three N.C. Inmates

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Three Central Prison inmates who held hostages at knife point for more than 41 hours in March have been indicted on kidnapping and assault charges by a Wake County grand jury.

Each of the three inmates — Darrell Little of Dobson, Melvin Surgeon of Annapolis, Md., and Ezekiel Hall of Brooklyn, N.Y. — was charged with eight counts of kidnapping and eight counts of assault with a deadly weapon.

Little, 27, and Surgeon, 31, also were charged with the armed robbery of items such as wallets, cash and keys which belonged to three of the eight hostages.

Hall, 28, was charged with possessing a knife belonging to one of the hostage that was allegedly stolen by the other two inmates.

The indictments named as victims the six prison employees and two inmates who were seized and held in the prison's diagnostic center.

The three men seized five prison staff members, a guard and two convicted murderers on March 23. They released the first four hostages in exchange for food, water and cigarettes.

A fifth hostage was released after medical problems developed, and the last three were exchanged in return for the hostage takers' transfer to a federal prison in Virginia.

The three were taken to Virginia, but were returned the next day, March 26. They subsequently were placed in solitary confinement at Caledonia Prison in Tillery.

If convicted of the additional charges, each inmate faces a maximum prison term of 30 years on each kidnapping charge and 10 years on each assault charge. Surgeon and Little also face up to 40 years on each armed robbery charge, and Hall up to 10 years for possession of stolen property.

The inmates said in interviews after their return from Virginia that the hostage-taking was triggered by inhumane conditions at Central Prison.

Research Results Conclusive:

Merit Taste Stands Alone.

Extensive research confirms MERIT proven taste alternative to higher tar smoking.

Landmark smoker study confirms that the majority of higher tar smokers who have switched to MERIT have one thing in common—Praise for MERIT taste.

Taste Debate Ends.

Nationwide survey reveals over 90% of MERIT smokers who switched from higher tar are glad they did. In fact, 94% don't even miss their former brands.

Further Evidence: 9 out of 10 former higher tar smokers report MERIT an easy switch, that they didn't give up taste in switching, and that MERIT is the best-tasting low tar they've ever tried.

Taste Verdict: MERIT.

Further, extensive unmarked-pack tests confirm that MERIT delivers a winning combination of taste and low tar when compared with higher tar leaders.

Confirmed: The overwhelming majority of smokers reported MERIT taste equal to—or better than—leading higher tar brands.

Confirmed: When tar levels were revealed, 2 out of 3 chose the MERIT combination of low tar and good taste.

Year after year, in study after study, MERIT remains unbeaten. The proven taste alternative to higher tar smoking—is MERIT.
