British Signal Invasion If UN Peace Effort Fails

By The Associated Press

Britain's Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher convened her emergency "War Cabinet" today with growing signs British troops will invade the Argentine-seized Falkland Islands if U.N. peace efforts collapse.

"The government's priority is to do everything possible to achieve a negotiated solution," the Foreign Office said. But informed military sources said the requisitioned liner Canberra carrying 2,500 marines and paratroopers was hours away from the Falklands, where a British war fleet bombed and strafed Argentine positions on Sunday as a possible prelude to invasion.

British war correspondents aboard the fleet reported British frigates and destroyers were now within sight of the Falklands, moving in closer to enforce a total blockade of the islands.

In New York, U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar said today there were "reasons for hope" that Britain and Argentina might agree to a peaceful settlement of the conflict.

"Let's hope we'll make still more progress," the secretary-general said on arriving at U.N. headquarters for the fourth day of his peace efforts.

Perez de Cuellar, responding to reports Argentina was no longer insisting on prior British recognition of its sovereignty claim to the islands, said it was "very difficult to say they have softened on that particular issue."

"We are discussing procedures, not substance," he said. Sunday night Perez de Cuellar's spokesman Francois Giuliani said "substantial" progress had been made over the weekend in the secretary-general's separate meetings with British U.N. Ambassador Anthony Parsons and with Argentine Deputy Foreign Minister Enrique Ros.

The British said Sunday their ships and aircraft bombarded Argentine military targets around the airfield at Stanley, the Falklands capital; an Argentine helicopter was shot down, and an Argentine fishing factory ship apparently spying was captured in the British blockade zone around the colony Argentina seized five weeks ago.

Argentine Defense Minister Amadeo Frugoli claimed the British warplanes dropped anti-personnel scatter bombs he said were banned by international agreement. He called the bombs "infernal death-dealing machines." There was no immediate reply from the British.

After four days without a military attack, ships from the British battle fleet moved close to shore to bombard the Stanley airfield area, a British correspondent reported from the task force flagship Hermes.

At the same time, Britain said its Sea Harrier jets strafed the Argentine positions. British correspondents with the battle fleet reported a missile fired by a British warship shot down an Argentine helicopter engaged in "air combat" over the Stanley airfield.

Argentina reported a 50-minute British attack on Stanley and the nearby town of Darwin. The Argentine account gave no word of casualties. Britain said its jets returned safely.

It was the first fighting reported in the South Atlantic since an Argentine warplane hit the British destroyer Sheffield last Tuesday with a French-built missile, killing 20 crewmen, and a British jet was downed attacking Stanley airfield.

The attack followed reports the Argentines had repaired the runway at Stanley, reportedly knocked out in two previous British raids, and was airlifting supplies to the island garrison in defiance of a British blockade. But correspondents with the British fleet said Harrier jets had turned back Argentine C-130 military transports escorted by Mirage jet fighters.

The British Defense Ministry also reported British jets attacked the 1,298-ton Argentine fishing boat Narwal 66 miles off the Falklands because it was shadowing the fleet and appeared to be "fitted out for surveillance."

A spokesman said the 25 crewmen abandoned ship and surrendered, and the ship was also taken into custody. One Argentine sailor was reported killed, one seriously injured and 12 others slightly hurt.

Iran Plans New Blows For Iraq

By NICOLAS B. TATRO

Associated Press Writer
BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) —

Iran claimed today its troops were on a final thrust aimed at recapturing its port city of Khorramshahr, seized by Iraq shortly after it launched the 20-month-old war to take control of the disputed border waterway to the Persian Gulf.

Iraq denied Iran's claims and said the Iranian troops had suffered heavy casualties and that their advance was repulsed.

A Tehran radio correspondent reported the Iranians were marching down the highway from Ahvaz, capital of Iran's oil-rich Khuzistan province, to Khorramshahr, which is 75 miles south of the capital and on the Shatt-al-Arab waterway. Tehran radio said Iraqi defenses "in the Khorramshahr region" were overrun, including the border post of Shalamchah just north of Khorramshahr, cutting off an Iraqi military supply point. Iranian dispatches said Khorramshahr was virtually encircled.

An Iraqi communique broadcast by Baghdad radio said "thousands" of Iranian soldiers had been killed and that fighting still raged in two other undisclosed areas of Khuzistan at the southern end of the 300-mile long battlefield. Baghdad radio said Iraqi artillery gunners downed an Iranian fighter jet.

"The entire offensive was destroyed by mid-morning Monday and enemy bodies and wrecked armor littered the battleground while large numbers of Iranians were taken prisoner," the Iraqi communique said.

The claims could not be confirmed because neither Iran nor Iraq allow foreign reporters to tour the battlefield on a regular basis.

The drive came on the 11th day of a general Iranian offensive which is aimed at retaking the port city of Khorramshahr, nine miles from the Iran-Iraq border. The city was the scene of fierce fighting in the early stages of the war which began on Sept. 22, 1980 over control of the Shatt-al-Arab waterway, Iraq's only outlet to the Persian Gulf.

Iran's official news agency IRNA (the Islamic Republic News Agency), said Iranian forces began the third stage of the "holy city of Jerusalem" offensive Sunday night and retook Shalamchah, which before the war was an Iranian customs and immigration checkpoint on the Iraqi border just north of Khorramshahr.

The Iranian news agency has said Iran's forces have retaken 386 square miles since the April 30 offensive began and that Iranian forces had driven to the international border in some points for the first time since the war began.

Candidate List Is Virtually Completed

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

The candidate list for the June 29 primaries is virtually complete following the passing of Friday's filing deadline for U.S. congressional and state senatorial and house seats.

Seeking the First Congressional District seat will be incumbent U.S. Rep. Walter B. Jones of Farmville and Thomas B. Brandon III of Robersonville, both Democrats, and Republican candidates James McIntyre III of Greenville and Gene Leggett of Emerald Island.

Democratic candidates for the state's 9th Senatorial District seat will be incumbent Sen. Vernon White of Winterville and Linwood E. Mercer of Farmville, while Sallie C. Keel of Greenville is running as a GOP hopeful.

Under the redistricting plan, the 9th District includes Pitt County, seven townships in Martin County and Chocowinity Township in Beaufort County.

Sam D. Bundy of Farmville and Ed N. Warren of Greenville, incumbent members of the General Assembly, will be unopposed in their re-election bids for the two 9th House District seats.

The realignment now has the 9th House District serving all of Pitt and Greene counties except Bethel and Carolina townships, which were added to the newly-formed 6th District along with three precincts in Hertford County and most of Bertie and Martin Counties.

Candidates for the one 6th District seat will be Democrats John B. Gillam III of Windsor (incumbent representative from the old Fifth District), Jananne B. (Jan) Ocamb of Route 2, Williamston, and William D. (Bill) Harrison of Route 3, Williamston.

Thomas D. Haigwood, chief assistant district attorney for this district, and Robert L. Shoffner Jr., a public defender, will seek the district attorney post now held by Eli Bloom, who is not running for re-election.

Incumbent Sheriff Ralph Tyson will have primary opposition from Farmville Police Chief Ron Cooper.

The incumbent Pitt County Clerk of Superior Court, Sandra Gaskins, will be unopposed in the primary as she seeks a new four-year term.

Candidates for the Pitt County Board of County Commissioners include: (District 5 seat representing Ayden, Grifton and Swift Creek townships), Walter E. Gaskins, Walter Bruce Jones Jr., Charles L. McLawhorn, Dr. J. Elliott Dixon, Robert A. Halstead, and Ronald H. Garris; (District 4 representing Winterville, Chicod and Grimesland townships), incumbent Burney Tucker; and (District 1 representing Greenville Township), incumbent Kelly Barnhill.

Current District 5 representative Alton Gardner is not seeking re-election after some 27 years of service.

Seeking the three four-year seats available on the Greenville Board of Education will be Erma S. Carr (incumbent), Donovan Phillips (incumbent), Wilson Rhodes, George Williams, Pennie Dunn, and Mary Williams.

Running for six-year terms on the Pitt County Board of Education will be: Anne McGaughey (incumbent), representing Farmville township; Ivan Hill, Stephen Tripp, the Rev. R. T. McCarter, all representing Ayden township; and Mark Owens (incumbent), representing Fountain, Falkland and Bell Arthur townships.

The busy primary day will also see four N. C. Supreme Court Justices, seven N. C. Court of Appeals judges, and 24 Superior Court judges involved in the balloting.

While the deadline for those using normal filing procedures has passed, those who submit petitions to qualify as candidates have until May 17 to file. The process was established for indigents to avoid paying a filing fee.

The deadline for voter registration and for making changes in precinct or party affiliations is June 1 at 5 p.m.

The date for a second primary, if necessary, is July 27, while the general election will be held on Tuesday, Nov. 2.

U. S. Poses Nuke Slash

CHICAGO (AP) — President Reagan's bold and sweeping arms control proposal seeks to neutralize the Soviet Union's commanding lead in powerful land-based missiles while the two superpowers slash their arsenals of nuclear warheads by one-third.

"The monumental task of reducing and reshaping our strategic forces to enhance stability will take many years of concentrated effort," Reagan said in outlining his proposal Sunday at Eureka College, his alma mater.

"But I believe that it will be possible to reduce the risks of war by removing the instabilities that now exist and by dismantling the nuclear menace." The U.S. goal is a treaty setting equal ceilings on U.S. and Soviet strategic nuclear forces and Reagan told the Mothers' Day commencement ceremony he hopes negotiations can begin by June.

The arms control proposal came on a day of high emotion for Reagan. He was flooded with personal reminders of the four years he spent as a scholarship student at Eureka a half century ago during the Depression and blinked back tears when he joined the graduating class in singing the school song.

As the day drew to a close, the president declared: "I have spent the day in a warm flood of nostalgia."

Probing for a Soviet reaction, the president had told President Leonid I. Brezhnev in a letter Friday what he would say in Sunday's speech.

While there was no direct Soviet response, Defense Minister Dimitri F. Ustinov accused the United States of "openly hostile policies" in an article Sunday in Pravda, the Communist Party daily newspaper.

"The Soviet Union will not allow the existing balance of forces to be disrupted," Ustinov wrote.

Reagan was shown a news account of Ustinov's remarks after his speech and had no reaction, said Larry Speakes, the White House spokesman. Speakes said the Soviet official's article was not considered a response to Reagan's proposal.

An authoritative reply would have to come from Brezhnev directly, said U.S. officials. Reagan's overture clearly was designed to seize the

Farm Scene

By LEROY JAMES
Cnty. Ext. Chairman

Soybean farmers are going to have to be "lean and mean." That phrase has been used many times, but it has never been more appropriate than in 1982 — a year of high interest rates, high costs and low crop prices.

In North Carolina and throughout this area there is a projected increase in the soybeans acreage this year. In one sense, it is difficult to understand the logic of planting more acres but in other ways I can see the farmers' thinking. In short, many farmers feel that they can put in a soybean crop with less out-of-pocket cost and with less risks than with corn or cotton, for example. Also, there appears to be that glimmer of hope that the soybean picture will improve.

Knowing whether the soybean picture improves or not certainly requires a crystal ball approach which we in extension do not have. What we know, however, is some good, down-to-earth soybean production practices than farmers should be looking at closely this year. The following is a brief treatment of each.

•Use lime where called for by soil tests. This is one area where farmers have been overheard talking of cutting costs, probably more so than fertilizer, in 1982. The lime decision, even on rented land, could be pivotal to good yields.

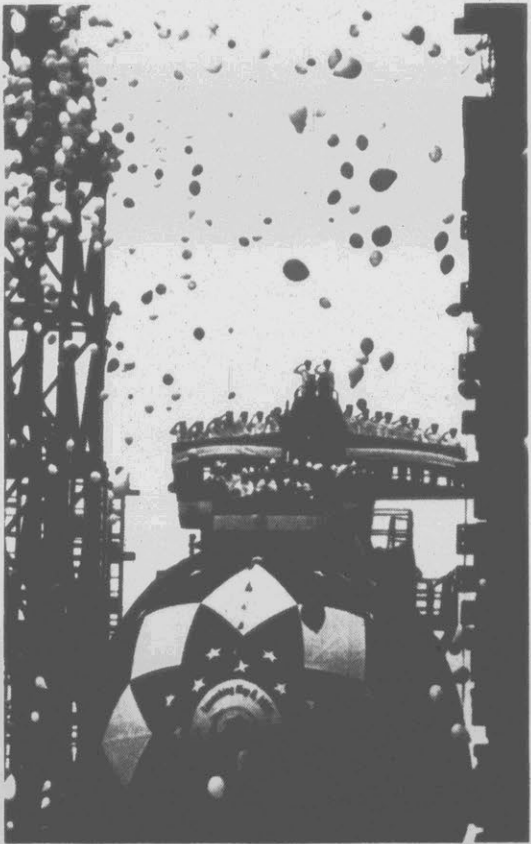

•Fertilize according to soil tests. Lime and fertilizer together account for an average of almost 30 percent of the out-of-pocket costs for producing soybeans. Farmers should look closely this year to see if there are certain fields where fertilizer may be left off in 1982. If soil tests, for example, show adequate levels of phosphorus and potassium for an optimum yield, leave it off in 1982 or, if their phosphorus level is OK but the potassium level is down, consider a potash application only. Don't apply what you don't need for the 1982 crop.

•Use good seed of an adapted variety and don't overplant. Seed should be cheaper than in 1981 but farmers need to do a better job of matching up varieties with the conditions encouraged such as nematodes, planting date, sandy soil, desired maturity. Also, the recommended plant populations should be followed. Seed of some varieties will be small, therefore there will be a tendency to overplant. Overplanting not only wastes seed but can cause lodging and encourage disease development especially under wet, humid conditions.

•Reduce tillage trips in seed bed preparation. Excessive tilling wastes energy, money, soil moisture and can contribute to soil erosion and compaction. Make every trip across the field count.

•Know your pests. Not only is this important in weed management but for disease, nematodes and insects. Fields should be scouted from bloom-time until maturity not only for insects but for other problems. For insects, treatment during this growing season is possible but for nematodes, low soil pH and late weeds the cure may be prevention in 1982.

Soybean farmers face a tough year in 1982. But by being "lean and mean" with every management dollar put in, there can be more than just a glimmer of hope for making profits with soybeans.

Britons Disavow Firing On Rafts

By PETER ARCHER
Press Association Writer
ABOARD HMS HERMES AT SEA (AP) — British fighter pilots, who attacked an Argentine fishing ship suspected of spying on the British fleet, today emphatically denied a claim from Buenos Aires that they opened fire on survivors in life rafts.

The two Sea Harrier pilots from HMS Hermes characterized the Argentine claims as contemptuous. The allegations were "totally untrue," they said.

The Narwal, an ocean-going fishing factory, was captured and boarded by Royal Marines after the attack Sunday.

(Amadeo Frugoli, the Argentine defense minister, was quoted by The Associated Press in Buenos Aires, as saying the British sank the fishing boat and then strafed survivors who had escaped in life rafts.)

The British Defense Ministry on Sunday night issued a sharply worded denial of the Argentine claims, saying it "deplores these allegations which are, of course, completely without foundation."

The task force reported that the Narwal is now under British command. It said there were no reports of resistance from the Argentine crew of 25, who surrendered, were taken prisoner and transferred by helicopter to ships in the British fleet.

One Argentine crewman as killed in the air attack, and 13 were wounded, one seriously, Britain said.

Medical teams were airlifted to the ship with the commando boarding party. Engineers also went aboard.

The Narwal was holed in the attack but is not in danger of sinking. However, some machinery is extensively damaged.

It has not yet been decided what will be done with her. She could be towed away, abandoned and left adrift, or sunk.

The vessel could possibly be used as a minesweeper, but it remains to be seen how badly she is damaged.

The Narwal was sighted well inside the total exclusion zone by the two British jet fighters at 1:35 p.m. London time Sunday (8:35 a.m. EDT). She had already been warned, a week ago, against entering the zone.

The pilots were instructed to engage. They dropped bombs, but missed the target, and then opened fire with machine guns.

"We let off 30mm cannon fire and hit both sides of the bridge," said Flight Lt. Dave Morgan, 34, one of the pilots.

Among the Argentines taken prisoner, was a Lt. Cmdr. Gonzales Llanos, whose service number is 00419, the task force reported. His presence on the vessel reinforced British suspicions that the vessel was being used as a spy ship.

On Sunday, British forces launched an attack on Argentine military installations around the Falkland Islands capital, Port Stanley.

Officers commanding the naval task force said no troop landing was attempted. Warships from the task force slipped in close to the shore to bombard Argentine military positions. Under cover of darkness, the British 4.5-inch naval guns pounded the enemy for an estimated 50 minutes.

The aim of the mission was to further enforce a sea and air blockade of the occupied islands.

It was feared that some Argentine shipping and aircraft may have beaten the blockade, despite patrols by the task force, Britain's nuclear-powered submarines and jet fighters.

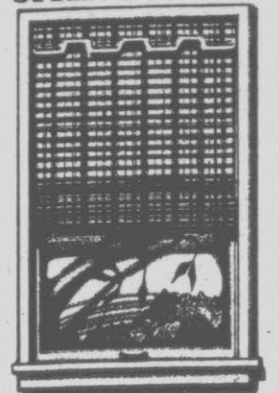

Saturday and Sunday, attempts by the Argentines to re-supply troops on the Falklands with air drops were beaten back by British jets. Argentine Hercules transport planes, escorted by Mirage fighters, turned back after Sea Harriers from the task force were sent to intercept.

Sunday's military engagements were the first since the British destroyer HMS Sheffield was hit by an Argentine missile Tuesday. There have been daily alerts, but no engagements.

Early Sunday, the Sheffield was taken in tow. The ship is now in safe water outside the war zone.

See Increasing Success In Limb Reattachment

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — A new artificial device for restoring speech to people without a larynx probably has been "oversold," a Bowman Gray School of Medicine associate professor of surgery says.

Dr. Fred McGuirt, associate professor of surgery at the Bowman Gray School of Medicine, says the device is successful only with highly motivated patients with good eye-hand coordination. To maintain the device, a patient "has got to be able to work backward in a mirror," McGuirt said.

McGuirt was one of several physicians who made presentations during a meeting of the North Carolina Medical Society last week.

While initial studies of the device showed a long-term success rate of 71 percent, he said current estimates have dropped to 50 percent.

McGuirt said the device, which is planted in the windpipe with a hole in the neck which must be covered when a person wants to

Interest Levels Move Up Again

NEW YORK (AP) — Interest levels are headed back up to their 1981 highs, when the prime rate topped 20 percent, says the chief economist for the Wall Street investment house Salomon Brothers.

Henry Kaufman, interviewed Sunday on NBC's "Meet the Press" program, said a business recovery in late 1982 combined with a big federal deficit would force up the cost of borrowing. If the government tries to finance a huge deficit by borrowing, it will snuff out the recovery by crowding out private borrowing, Kaufman said.

speak, should be used only in selected patients. He said the device should not be implanted at the same time the voice box is removed.

In another presentation, a Duke University surgeon told the assembled physicians that the success rate in reattaching severed limbs has improved to 85 percent in some cases.

Since 1967, doctors at Duke have reattached lost parts on 600 patients, said Dr. James Nunley II, assistant professor of orthopedics, during last week's meetings. Of those, 39 have been hands or arms with an 85 percent success rate, he said.

The biggest recent breakthrough has been rapid attachment of a temporary artery between the arm and the severed hand, which reduces the time the hand is without blood, Nunley said.

That has led to improved function, although few patients ever regain full control of their fingers and thumbs, he added.

Other presentations at the conference concentrated on ways to improve the use of artificial voice boxes, allergies and delayed sexual development.

Hundreds Offer To Join In War

NEW YORK (AP) — Hundreds of U.S. residents have contacted the British and Argentine consulates to volunteer to fight for the Falkland Islands, but so far none has been accepted, consulate officials say.

Argentine Deputy Consul Ramon Granda said about 220 people, mostly expatriate Argentines or former residents of Cuba or Puerto Rico, have volunteered to fight the British. He called the number "encouraging," but said only Argentine citizens were being accepted for the fighting.

British consulate spokesman Peter Beekingham said Saturday he "couldn't possibly give a figure" for the number of would-be volunteers to fight against Argentina, but said the number has been "very substantial."

Wedding Ceremony Solemnized Saturday

SWAN QUARTER — The wedding ceremony celebrating the union of Peggy Ann Carawan and Julian Evander Parks Jr. was solemnized Saturday at high noon in the Providence United Methodist Church. The double ring ceremony was performed by Father Jerry Sherba, of St. Gabriel's Parish, Greenville and the Rev. Nevin D. Snyder of Providence.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy J. Carawan Sr. of Swan Quarter. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Julian Evander Parks Sr. of Raeford.

A program of wedding music was presented by Gail Potts, organist. Dawn Parks, sister of the bridegroom, sang "The Lord's Prayer" and the Rev. Harvey Estes sang "The Wedding Song" and "Psalm 23." Sallie Miller was directress of the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of white satin and re-embroidered chantilly lace. It was fashioned with an off-the-shoulder neckline, chantilly lace over the bodice and applied at the waist. The lace full sleeves were shaped at the wrist with a button and thread loop closing. The sheer skirt and chapel train were designed with white satin. She wore a waltz length mantilla of illusion accented with silk lace motif along with a single strand of pearls and pearl earrings. She carried a cascade bouquet of white and pink silk roses, gypsophylla and purple violets.

The matron of honor, Roslyn Smedberg of Greenville, and maid of honor, Neda Carawan, niece of the bride from Myrtle Beach, S.C., wore gowns of lavender eyelet designed with an inset midriff, elasticized off-the-shoulder neckline and a self-ruffle and underskirt. They carried bouquets of silk mixed summer flowers with gypsophylla and wore a laurel of purple violets in their hair.

Bridesmaids, Elaine Waeltz of Greenville, Terry Pridden of Macesfield, Mary Beth Keifer of Grimesland, Marsha Unverferth of Winterville and Laura Grimes Harrell of Winston-Salem, wore gowns identical to the honor attendants, in colors of pink and white. Their bouquets and headpieces were also alike.

Arthur Carrera of Greenville attended the bridegroom as best man. Ushers were Roy Carawan Jr. of Myrtle Beach, S.C., brother of the bride, Andrew Parks of Raeford, brother of the bridegroom, Rich Wynne, Rick Spencer, John Gardner and Jim Wilkie, all of Greenville. Scott Carawan of Myrtle Beach, S.C., nephew of the bride, and John Parks of Raeford, brother of the bridegroom, served as acolytes.

The mother of the bride selected a formal gown of pink chiffon embroidered with pearls around the sleeves and neckline. The bridegroom's mother wore a formal gown of sateen chiffon with tiers of nylon crystal pleats trimmed in lace.

A luncheon buffet reception, given by the bride's parents, was held at the Swan Quarter Agriculture Hall immediately following the ceremony. The wedding table was covered with embroidered outwork linen cloth and decorated with spring flowers and candles. Serving wedding cake and champagne punch were Lena Willima, sister-in-law of the bride of Myrtle Beach, S.C., Luerain Williams of Greenville and Holly Mooney Lester of Fairfield.

Members of the wedding party were entertained at an after-rehearsal buffet dinner given by the parents of the bridegroom at Jarvis' Restaurant, Swan Quarter. The bridal couple was entertained following at a party given by friends and relatives.

After a wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple will reside in Greenville.

The bride is a graduate of Appalachian State University with a B.A. degree in psychology and is presently employed at Pitt Memorial Hospital. The bridegroom graduated from ECU with a B.A. degree in philosophy and psychology.

PCAIW Has Installation Of Officers

Officers of the Pitt County Association of Insurance Women were installed during its meeting held Wednesday evening at the Ramada Inn. Mildren James, CPIW and also state president, conducted the ceremony.

Audrey Stillwell is president and will be assisted by Sarah Jenkins, first vice president, Frances Blanchard, second vice president, Frances Blanchard, recording secretary, Sheri Tyson, corresponding secretary and Marion Smith, treasurer.

Mrs. James spoke on "setting and achieving goals and the importance of taking an active part in the association. The N.C. Association of Insurance Women's convention will be held May 20-23 in Greensboro. Joyce Mills, CPIW, Hilda Pinkham and Mrs. Stillwell, CPIW, will be local delegates.

Mrs. Jenkins presented Joyce Mills, past president, a gift.

Guests included Mrs. James, Emma Harkey, Elaine Downer and Kathy Gibson.

Dinner tables were decorated with baskets of mixed spring flowers. Marion Smith was meeting hostess.

If you have rye flour left over from bread baking, this is a good way to use it.

1 1/4 cups rye flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 large eggs, separated
2 cups buttermilk
2 tablespoons butter, melted
1 tablespoon honey

On wax paper stir together the flour, soda and salt. In a medium bowl slightly beat the egg yolks; add the buttermilk, butter and honey and beat until blended; add the flour mixture and stir just until smooth. In a small bowl beat the egg whites until stiff; fold into the batter gently but thoroughly. Drop by 1/4 cupfuls, several inches apart, onto a greased griddle heated to 375 degrees. Bake until a few bubbles appear on tops and undersides are browned; turn and brown other sides. Good served with heated honey. The batter rises high on the griddle but the pancakes are a scant 1/4-inch thick after baking and 3 1/2 to 4 inches in diameter. Makes 20. Adapted from "Whole Grains" by Sara Pitzer (Garden Way).

DEAR ABBY: After reading about the man who bragged about his physiological attributes at the age of 77, I have decided to list my own attributes, which far outshine his.

For instance, I am still a vigorous and athletically inclined individual at the age of 96!

Furthermore, I have not been sick in the last 50 years, not even with a headache or backache. Furthermore, I still engage in daily calisthenics, exercising every muscle and organ in my body. Furthermore, I am still mentally vigorous. (I write occasional newspaper and magazine articles.)

I still have an excellent appetite for good, wholesome food, and equally, if not more important, I am still sexually potent.

If any man or woman can duplicate my record, I would be glad to hear from them.

WILLIAM MCHENRY, WORCESTER, MASS.

DEAR WILLIAM: I'll bet you will hear from a good number of readers. But if you're challenged by a woman demanding proof of all your claims — you're on your own.

DEAR ABBY: Yesterday my 18-year-old daughter told me that a boy had made a derogatory remark about her at school in the presence of several of her friends. She refused to repeat the remark but said she was very upset because she had always considered him to be a nice person and a good Alayna Keller, a finalist in the National Merit Scholarship Program, is the recipient of a non-renewable National Merit $1,000 Scholarship. Selection of the 1500 "national" award recipients was made by a committee of experienced college admissions officers and secondary school counselors.

In reviewing the records of finalists, committee members looked for academic accomplishments (course load and difficulty as well as grades earned); personal qualities; extracurricular achievements; PSAT/NMSQT and SAT scores; a school official's recommendation of the student; and the finalist's self-description.

Sophomores Grayson Morris and Marc Shannon are now among 454 semifinalist nominees who will be considered to attend the North Carolina School of Science and Math in Durham next fall. Selection of the 240 students will be made by May 24. NCSM is the nation's first public residential high school for gifted and talented juniors and seniors interested in science and mathematics.

In the National Scholastic Art Awards Competition in New York City, senior Karen Lang merited an honorable mention for her entry of a mixed media collage. Karen, whose entry won a gold key in the regional competition, is the second student from Rose to win at the national level.

May 4 was the opening day for the combined Greenville-Pitt County art show at the Greenville Museum of Art. Rose submitted over 60 pieces of art including prints, sculpture, drawings, jewelry and paintings.

At the ECU Jazz Festival conducted in late April, two musicians received special recognition for their performances in the stage band. Senior Jim Hamilton, who plays first trombone, won the outstanding trombone solo award for his performance in the Count Basie tune, "Switch in Time." Winning a talent citation for his solo on the alto sax was sophomore Will Hester. The contest, which was open to all high school stage bands in eastern North Carolina, was judged by Cecil Johnson and Dick Gable, both previously members of professional bands.

System Needs Changing

For once, the top two officials in North Carolina's public school system appear to see eye to eye. Dr. David Bruton, chairman of the state Board of Education, has called publicly for constitutional changes that would allow members of the state board to be elected by the public or by the General Assembly. In turn, the board would appoint a state superintendent of public instruction. Eleven of the 14 board members now are appointed by the governor. The other three are constitutional officers — superintendent of public instruction, who serves as secretary of the board; the lieutenant governor and the state treasurer.

Somewhat surprisingly, Superintendent A. Craig Phillips, who has held his elective position as a member of the Council of State since 1968, has agreed with Bruton.

Such a move would reduce the superintendent's political influence, but both Bruton and Phillips say it also would clear up some of the conflicting authority now vested in the superintendent's office and in the state board. In practice today, they serve on an uneasy footing, with the superintendent administrative head of the Department of Public Instruction as well as secretary and chief administrative officer of the board. The board, on the other hand, is charged with the responsibility of supervising and administering the public school system. Their duties frequently overlap.

We agree with Bruton and Phillips, but strongly endorse the concept of a state board directly responsible to the people — not to the General Assembly. Legislative appointments would be no better than gubernatorial appointments. The tendency to follow, rather than lead, would still be present.

As for the superintendent, we need an experienced administrator — not a politician. The same can be said for other departments such as the Department of Agriculture and the Department of Insurance, both of which now are headed by constitutionally mandated officers elected by the people every four years. A state board elected by the people, serving with control over and with the advice of an appointed commissioner, would best be suited for each department.

As Bruton noted in his call for an elected school board, the recommendation has nothing to do with personalities or individuals now in the offices. Phillips, Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham and Insurance Commissioner John Ingram have served their offices well and have been a credit to the state. It's the system that needs to be changed.

Job-Hunting Is Tough

Most of the telephone calls I've been receiving these days go something like this. "Hi, it's Phil." "Hello, Phil, how are you?" "Never mind the small talk. My kid is graduating from college this year and he wants a job." "This is a bad time to get a job in Washington." "That's why I'm calling you. I figured you would know somebody." "I know a lot of people, but I don't know anybody who can give him a job." "What about all those senators and congressmen you're always writing about?" "I haven't had any luck with them. I called a senator the other day about a job for my nephew, and he asked me for a job for his niece. It was a standoff. Neither one of us could do anything for the other." "You know Ben Bradlee?" "Of course I know Ben Bradlee." "Good, get my kid a job with The Washington Post." "I can't do that. Bradlee had to get a job for his godson, so he called up Otis Chandler at the Los Angeles Times. Chandler said he'd give the kid a job if Bradlee hired his godson to work on The Post. Bradlee had to use up his last draft choice in the trade with Chandler."

"What about the White House? My kid is willing to start anywhere." "I can't ask the White House for a favor because if they give your kid a job, they'll expect me to go in the tank for them in exchange."

"What about the State Department?" "I don't know anybody in the State Department. Besides any job there is offered first to the kids of big Republican contributors. You have to understand. I have nothing to trade with anybody. I can't just call up and ask for a job for your kid in this town, if I can't get one for his."

"So what you're saying is I should tell my kid you won't get him a job in Washington." "That's unfair. I like your kid, but I have 45 resumes from sons and daughters on my desk right now, and I can't even get them in the Marine Corps."

"How about calling up your friends at Public Television?" "I don't have any friends at Public Television any more. They were all laid off."

"My kid isn't proud, he'll even work for a lawyer." "Look, Phil, I'd love to help you but I don't have any clout with lawyers. The word is out on the street I can't get their kids a job in this town, so they have no interest in interviewing anyone I send them."

"You turned out to be one helluva friend. All I ask you for is one little lousy favor and you give me the brush." "Has your kid come to Washington and tried to get a job for himself?"

"I told him he didn't have to because I knew you. It's pretty late in the game to tell him he has to find his own job. It will break his heart that his Uncle Artie wouldn't even help him fulfill his lifetime dream."

"Why didn't you call me first before you told him I could get him a job?"

Other Editors Say On A Sound Basis

(The Robesonian - Lumberton) Cutbacks in federal grants and loans should have little effect on one kind of development the government has supported. Health maintenance organizations (HMO's) have been expanding and attracting private investment.

The HMO's are prepaid, flat-fee health care groups which offer an alternative to hospital and doctor insurance programs. Enrollment in them has grown from 3.5 million in 1970 to 11 million last year.

Since 1973 the federal government has provided start-up and operational financing. Grants totaled $145 million up to last September, and none have been made since then. Low-interest loans, which have totaled $195 million, are scheduled to be ended in September 1983.

Noting that $1.1 billion has been privately invested in HMO's, the Reagan administration is planning an intensive campaign to encourage further investment by banks, businesses, insurance companies, physicians and hospitals. It is making use of a comprehensive survey which shows that well-managed HMO's can make money.

Over the past four years, the survey showed that days spent as hospital patients averaged 730 per thousand persons covered by conventional hospital-medical care insurance. The average for HMO members was 410 days of hospitalization per thousand persons. That's a 44 percent difference, attributed to preventive medicine and out-patient treatment when medically approved as adequate without hospitalization.

Although the Reagan administration cannot claim credit for government sponsorship of HMO's, it endorses the objective of increasing competition in the health industry and slowing the rise in fees. And it benefits, along with the public, from the success of the program, enabling grants and loans to be phased out.

Meanwhile, local recognition of cost-reduction possibilities is indicated by the "same day" surgery program at Southeastern General Hospital. Patients who could safely be taken back home within hours after surgery, without occupying a hospital room until the day after, are being encouraged to do so.

Strength For Today

BEST WISHES FOR A REAL LIFE
A certain parent who has to be away from home a great deal receives many letters from his little 6-year-old. One of these letters reads: "Dear Daddy — I love you. I hope you live all your life."

This is the youngster's way of wishing his daddy a long and happy life. Some people die intellectually after leaving school or college. They give up reading altogether except a bit of thrilling fiction or a controversial article in a magazine. Many die morally. Every time they confront a crisis they collapse, run out on the issue, thinking only of themselves. There is a vast crowd which takes the path of alcohol, and there are many thousands in the country today who try to get satisfaction out of drugs. An endless round of pleasure holds others in bondage.

These people may be convinced that they are living their lives. They are not. They are dead on their feet. — Elisha Douglass

Fenwick Has Tough Rival

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
NEWARK, N.J. — When Rep. Millicent Fenwick in a May 2 television debate taping claimed to have supported the defense bill "Mr. Reagan asked us to vote for" and boasted of 19 out of 22 pro-defense votes, the campaign for New Jersey's Republican Senate nomination truly began another episode in the party's ancient ideological conflict.

Mrs. Fenwick's claims prompted her principal opponent in the June 8 primary, ex-Reagan political aide Jeffrey Bell, to unlimber statistics he had memorized: 43 Fenwick votes against 17 weapons systems over seven years. That included not only the exotic MX missile, B-1 bomber and neutron bomb but, said Bell, "naval destroyers, conventional aircraft carriers — the whole range of weapons systems."

Bell would have preferred to keep arguing about interest rates and budget deficits, continuing a decorous debate held at Haddonfield three days earlier rather than personally dissect Fenwick's ideology. So would party regulars, who regard Doonesbury's "Lacey Davenport" as a cretious Republican asset sure to win in November if not tripped up in the primary.

Indeed, those regulars preferred that Bell pass up this year's race. Many conservatives who backed his astonishing 1978 primary upset over the late Sen. Clifford Case are for Fenwick, who is vastly more attentive to grassroots politics than was the liberal Case. Only two Republican county chairmen support Bell, and one of them (Middlesex County's Richard Plechner, a nationally-known conservative activist) may be bounced because of it.

But party support for Fenwick cannot hide the Republican cultural cleavage. Bell, 38, who helped develop President Reagan's New Federalism and tax reductions, epitomizes right-wing populism. Fenwick, 72, whose family roots in New Jersey go back to the American Revolution and who has lived in the same house all her life, is part of the old Republican establishment. The cultural gap produces ideological conflict across the board.

In the Haddonfield debate, Fenwick came out against the death penalty, against tuition tax credits, against school prayer — right-wing populist causes shown by polls to have overwhelming approval from the state's Republicans. Yet, her political virtuosity is such that she cloaked these positions with conservative veneer (saying she had shocked "my kinder-hearted friends" by supporting capital punishment for murder of a prison guard — actually, a minimal death-penalty position). Bell at Haddonfield was unwilling to risk the backfire from a face-to-face attack on Lacey Davenport. But at the debate taping in a New York City studio, he bit the bullet by attacking her anti-defense history. Even before that, however, Bell mailings were excoriating Fenwick's congressional votes — much to her outrage, especially when her defense record was called "very similar" to Bella Abzug's.

At a joint appearance at East Windsor April 17, Fenwick privately confronted Bell and warned him she would retaliate. Meeting Bell in her congressional office April 26, she refused his request for additional televised debate and warned she might cancel those now scheduled if he persists in unfairly assaulting her. At Haddonfield April 29, she declined Bell's proffered hand before the debate. When New York Post headlines April 30 referred to Fenwick as the "lady of the left," she was apoplectic.

All this disrupts the Republican moderate's time-honored tactic practiced by Fenwick: Move right for the primary, then back to the left for the general election. She praises Reagan as "a sunny man" and gushes over "how happy I was to see President Reagan elected in 1980."

Moreover, Bell's central campaign theme of blaming high interest rates on the Federal Reserve Board is an implicit criticism of Reaganomics, contributing to Fenwick's new role as the president's true defender. In truth, she seems closer than Bell to the present White House tax-increasing, defense-cutting mood. When she says of the Reagan tax cut, "I do worry; I think we all do," she echoes many Reagan aides, some of whom prefer a sure winner in New Jersey to old Reaganite Bell.

But Bell is incomparably closer than Fenwick to Ronald Reagan's doctrine on economics, defense and social issues. Consequently, the debate is the real beginning of a bitter campaign renewing the old quest for the Republican Party's identity.

Big Business Has To Adjust

By ROBERT FURLOW
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Maybe it's hard for small businessmen to feel sorry for Exxon Chairman Clifton Garvin, overseer of billions in assets and the largest sales in the Western world. After all, if Garvin's giant company isn't padded well enough to glide through the recession, what debt-ridden small firm can hope to survive?

But Exxon's chairman insists his moves to counter tough economic times are pretty much like the little guys': Think less about expansion, "put more emphasis on cost control," concentrate on riding out the storm.

"We're no different from any other group in that sense," he said of his company and other giants. "The dollars are larger but the principles are the same."

Indeed, the dollars are surely a lot larger for the business executives who met this past weekend for shop talk and government briefings in the western Virginia resort town of Hot Springs.

Members of the Business Council head some of the richest and best known companies in the nation: Big oil, big banks, big department stores, big phone company, big everything.

But the talk wasn't all that different from what you might hear at a convention of new car dealers or aluminum siding installers: When will the economy get going, when will interest rates come down, when will people start buying?

Their answer to all three questions: Pretty soon, we hope.

The remaining doubt — and it's one they've expressed loudly in Washington — is whether the economic recovery can be very strong or last very long if Congress and the president fail to reduce what one executive called "frighteningly high federal deficits."

With few exceptions, the business leaders said they accept the economists' view that if deficits soar well above $100 billion, interest rates likely will stay high, consumers will find it expensive to buy big items on credit, producers will find it difficult to finance new production and the economy will continue to flounder.

That worry, plus the fact that many of their big companies aren't doing any better than thousands of little ones in the recession, made this weekend's semiannual get-together a little less cheerful than some.

These men are not exactly worried about losing their jobs and becoming another statistic in the highest unemployment rate since World War II. But presidents and chairmen of huge corporations clearly are expected to produce or step aside.

The administration showed the businessmen how important it thinks they are by flying down Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. and other officials to give exclusive, closed-door briefings on a wide range of government and international topics.

And the executives kept telling each other that surely the big tax-rate cut scheduled for July will help sales of just about everything by putting more dollars in American consumers' pockets.

In addition, quite a few Business Council members said they take comfort from their growing certainty that the post-recession U.S. economy — if only it can make it that far — has the potential of being a thing of real beauty.

The reason is an economic change that has received wide publicity but still somehow hasn't seemed to sink in: The substantial lowering of inflation in the past year.

"The changes in inflation are very significant," said Ruben Mettler, chairman of TRW. Many others agreed.

Part of their hope for long-term lower inflation grows out of a development one might expect any businessman to welcome: A new willingness by some unions to accept lesser wage increases.

But Mettler and others also foresaw their own businesses being forced, as he put it, "to take a much tougher attitude toward costs, productivity, quality, knocking down and being competitive."

"A return to price stability will make it tougher to solve cost problems just by increasing price," Mettler said.

Banker Walter Wriston, chairman of Citicorp, said such a new "burden" of not being able to pass everything on to consumers could cause real management problems for some companies during "a difficult few transition years."

FIRE DAMAGES HOME — Firemen check the attic of a house at 109 Pearl Drive, in the Red Oak subdivision after the house was heavily damaged by fire late Saturday night. According to Greenville Fire/Rescue department reports, the owner of the house was Lehman Sutton. Department officials said the fire apparently started in the kitchen and spread into the attic and into adjacent rooms. Heavy fire damage resulted in the kitchen and heavy smoke and water damage to the remainder of the brick home. There were no injuries reported. Cause of the fire was listed as undetermined. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest).

Grant Made To Med School
First District Congressman Walter B. Jones has announced the approval by the Department of Health and Human Services of a grant of $40,759 for research at ECU School of Medicine.

The purpose of this grant is to study the vegus nerve and its influence on reproduction. It is hoped that the knowledge gained may ultimately lead to treatments for infertility. Dr. Charles Hodson of the Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology is director of this project.

bonds is by no means assured. Federal programs which have induced industries to relocate in North Carolina are also being cut, Brooks says. Farmers Home Administration loans helped create 34,000 jobs in rural North Carolina during the past eight years but that program has been cut out of the federal budget for 1983. Add to this the federal government's cut of social programs. With a $175 million taken out of the state's economy, consumer product demand will decrease. Brooks himself doesn't say when the Sun Belt boom will end. But he cites one researcher who says six-eight more years.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government is losing millions of dollars annually by setting prices too low on timber in the national forests, an environmental group charged today. The Natural Resources Defense Council said the sales not only cheated the government out of money, but also represented unfair competition for the 30,000 owners of private forests. In a report titled "Reforming the Unfair Timber Magnet," the council said the government lost more than $280 million from 1974 through 1978 on timber sales in 73 of the 118 U.S. Forest Service management units where timber sales were being made. These sales depress the price that private timber companies can get, the council said, and harm the country's ability to replenish harvested trees. "Without cost recovery, the federal government will continue to rob private forest owners of the cash flows they need to finance proper forest management," said Thomas Barlow, author of the report. Barlow said that in the Southeastern United States, only one in nine private forest acres is being properly reforested after logging. Forest Service officials disputed the council report, saying it was wrong to compare government timber operations with those of a private timber company — whose only function was to sell timber. George Castillo, a spokesman for the service, said the money spent to manage the forests benefited not just logging needs but also recreation and watershed needs.

RIGHT NOW YOU CAN PROFIT FROM THE TROUBLE OUR SUCCESS HAS CAUSED US.

At Perdue, we hear good news and bad news from up North. First, more people buy Perdue than any other brand of chicken. That's good. But far too many others ask for Perdue...and can't get it. That's terrible. Right now, there are five major chains (with several hundred stores) waiting for their first shipments from Perdue. We have nothing to ship. We receive many calls every week from distributors requesting our birds. We have to refuse. And even our regular customers are on short rations. Our chicken shortage has come about because we developed the most outstanding, high quality bird in the business. And we do an aggressive job of advertising its superiority. Since we're not about to change our bird (except to improve it) and we're not going to soft-pedal our advertising, we have one alternative: to grow more birds.

We created this monster. We'll pay you well to help us feed it. When you sign up to build a new Perdue broiler house and grow our chickens, good things happen:

1. We sell you North Carolina's most modern, most automated broiler house at a price that's very little more than the price of an ordinary house.
2. You start earning a secure, steady income. Based on our New House Guarantee you can make over $20,000 annually on 5.5 flocks of broilers. Many growers exceed this. Even folks who had no experience growing chickens until they joined Perdue (one reason for their success is that we have specialists who work closely with newcomers every step of the way.)
3. Your new broiler house is designed to increase the return on your investment. An extra thickness of insulation keeps birds cooler in summer. Warmer in winter. An automatic ventilation system prevents wide fluctuations in broiler house temperatures. And keeps the air cleaner too. All those improvements make healthier chickens. For details about this business opportunity, contact Perdue now. Before our troubles go away. Let's Talk Chicken.

For 1982, we hope to build more new chicken houses than were built in the preceding two years combined.

Legislators May Be In Session Come Primary Day

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The short filing period for state-office candidates that ended Friday may be an incumbent's dream, but legislators still don't like the timing of the June 29 primary.

The reason is the schedule set by the state Board of Elections last week also means the General Assembly will hold its budget session on June 2, and it may well be still in session by primary day.

"It's not the way we planned it," said Rep. Paul Pulley, D-Durham. "No one wants to be there on June 29."

State House Speaker Liston Ramsey said he's been flooded with calls from Democratic legislators upset at the schedule.

"They don't like it — that was predictable," Ramsey said.

Legislators have two main concerns: that they'll be busy in Raleigh while their opponents are campaigning against them and, though they don't like to say so in public, that they'll be forced to vote on some sticky issues while staring at a primary election only weeks or days ahead.

"It's not fair to be in session and have your opponents back home taking potshots at you," said Pulley, while in Asheville for the rally with U.S. House Speaker Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill.

The session could also be delayed by posturing by incumbents seeking headlines back home, he added.

The session could put on the spot some incumbents who haven't yet had to take a position on the Equal Rights Amendment. Supporters of the ERA are sure to try to push the issue, since they face a June 30 national deadline for ratification.

Also, a pay freeze for state workers is being considered because of projected budget shortfalls. Other touchy issues include possible changes in the automatic fuel adjustment factor on electric bills and Gov. Jim Hunt's proposals to raise taxes on liquor and other items to benefit the highway system.

Ramsey said a number of legislators suggested recessing the session in early June until after the primary. But that would complicate passage of the revised budget for the year beginning July 1, and could open legislators to new charges they are meeting too often — they've already met twice this year.

Ramsey said he would go along with the split session but considered the idea dead because of Senate opposition. And he said the session would last three to five weeks at least.

Still, the session was set by an earlier schedule, and the late June primary was the result of delays in passing redistricting plans acceptable to the U.S. Justice Department.

And the schedule allowed only a week for candidates to file, when the period usually runs a month.

"The short primary has got to favor the incumbent," said state Sen. Russell Walker, D-Randolph.

Supporters of ERA are still trying to decide how holding the legislative session before the primary will affect chances for the amendment's approval. ERA strategists see advantages and disadvantages in the schedule.

But the leading Senate supporter, Senate President Pro Tem Craig Lawing, D-Mecklenburg, said he is still extremely pessimistic about its chances in the Senate. Lawing said the amendment is still four votes short of a Senate majority.

State Sen. R.P. "Bo" Thomas, D-Henderson, was letting it be known last week at the gathering of western Democrats for Speaker O'Neill's visit that he wants to be counted among the contenders for the lieutenant governor's nomination in 1984.

Thomas, a wealthy produce dealer, says he'll have the money for a credible race. Already considered in the race are state Sen. Robert Jordan, D-Mount Gilead, and unsuccessful 1980 candidate Carl Stewart of Gastonia.

Interestingly, Thomas hasn't beaten anyone in an election. He was appointed to his Senate seat and then won election in 1980 without opposition. He'll face GOP opposition for re-election this year, however.

Thomas twice ran for Congress in the 11th district, coming close to upsetting then-incumbent Lamar Gudger in the primary. Suggesting some hanky-panky in the vote counting, not unheard of in mountain politics, Thomas quipped, "I won two elections — I just didn't get credit for it."

Bill Graham Advises Soviets Should Obey The Authorities

MOSCOW (AP) — Evangelist Billy Graham, preaching in Moscow's only Baptist Church, told Soviets to "obey the authorities" and made no mention of alleged human rights violations or the detention of dissidents in jails, labor camps and mental hospitals.

The 63-year-old Southern Baptist minister spoke to 900 officially invited guests, while about 300 Baptists singing hymns were kept behind a police barricade 200 yards from the church. Some of the Baptists said they heard of his visit through shortwave radio broadcasts by the U.S. government-run Voice of America and travelled to Moscow from all over the country.

Security was tight and only people with tickets were allowed into the Baptist Church and a Russian Orthodox cathedral where Graham, a North Carolinian, spoke later.

"We are only Baptists and they are making us stand here like criminals," a Russian man complained. Another, who said he travelled to the capital from Byelorussia near the Polish border, asked, "Why can't we get closer? This should be held in a stadium."

The Soviet Union has an estimated 600,000 Baptists, including 100,000 who worship illegally in unregistered congregations.

Asked by a reporter whether he knew there was a group waiting outside the church for a glimpse of him, he replied, "I didn't know that" and proceeded to the black Chajka limousine waiting to take him to the Patriarchal Yelokhovskiy Cathedral.

Although police warned the street crowd to stop singing hymns, apparently no arrests were made.

Graham also apparently ignored a small demonstration at the end of his first sermon in which two people held up banners saying "we have more than 150 prisoners for the work of the Gospel!" and "deliver those who are drawn away to death."

A plainclothesman led away the young woman holding the first banner, but what happened to the other person was not known. The official news agency Tass refused to transmit for The Associated Press a picture taken of the woman unfurling the banner.

Graham's sermon was typically Baptist in content.

"God can give you the power. God can make you to love people you normally would not love...He gives you the power to be a better worker, a more loyal citizen because in the 13th of Romans we're told to obey the authorities," he said.

He reminded his audience at the cathedral that Sunday was the 37th anniversary of the Soviet defeat of Nazi Germany.

"The United States and the Soviet Union were allies against the common enemy. Now we have another common enemy, the possibility of nuclear holocaust," he said.

Graham arrived here Friday for a six-day visit as the guest of the Orthodox Patriarchate. He said he would touch on the human rights issue in his 20-minute address Tuesday to the conference of "Religious Workers for Saving the Sacred Gift of Life from Nuclear Catastrophe."

Supervisors Attend Meet

FARMVILLE — Town of Farmville supervisors recently participated in a motivational workshop sponsored by the Community Services Division of the Pitt County Mental Health Center.

Richard Martin of the Pitt County Mental Health Center and Harry Cain of the Farmville Mental Health Center conducted the workshop which dealt with self-motivation as it relates to motivating others. This workshop is one of several employee enhancement workshops offered through the mental health center. For more information, contact PCHC Community Services, 752-0119.

Media Group Meeting Set

The spring meeting of the Pitt-Greenville Media Society will be held Thursday at 6:30 p.m. at the Colonial Inn, Farmville.

The speaker will be Dr. Gene D. Lanier, professor of library science at East Carolina University. He is chairman of the Intellectual Freedom Committee of the North Carolina Library Association and a member of the State Legislative Study Committee on Obscenity Laws. His topic will be "The Events in North Carolina during the Past Year Involving Censorship."

This meeting is open to all librarians and friends of libraries. Anyone wishing to attend may contact June Parker at Sheppard Memorial Library, 752-4177.

Bombs Rock Five Cities

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Five homemade bombs exploded today in Zamboanga, a port city on the southwestern tip of guerrilla-plagued Mindanao Island, killing two people and injuring 52 others, the Philippine News Agency reported.

The agency, quoting Zamboanga police, said the explosions hit the back of a police station, a public market, a restaurant and an area in front of the city fire station.

Authorities imposed restrictions on the movements of area residents after the bombings, the news agency said without elaboration.

It said military authorities blamed the explosions on unidentified "terrorists," apparently referring to the groups of Communist and Moslem separatist insurgents that have been fighting police and troops in the region for years.

Located 540 miles south of Manila, Zamboanga, a popular tourist spot, is a city of 350,000. It has been the scene of a number of bombing incidents in recent years.

The military blamed most of the earlier bombings on guerrillas of the Moro National Liberation Front, which launched a revolt for Moslem autonomy in 1972.

Communist New People's Army rebels are also operating in the region.

Cites Unusual Peace Threat

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — United Nations Ambassador Jeane J. Kirkpatrick, citing the Falkland Islands crisis, said world peace is sometimes threatened from unpredictable spots.

"We knew Libya, Poland, the Middle East were threats to world peace — but the Falkland Islands?" Mrs. Kirkpatrick said Sunday in a commencement speech at the College of Charleston.

"Frequently, the catastrophes about which volumes are written and endless speeches are given turn out to be not really the catastrophes we face," she told 451 graduates at the small liberal arts college.

Mrs. Kirkpatrick received an honorary doctor of letters degree.

North Carolina Department of Transportation

NOTICE OF A PUBLIC HEARING ON THE PROPOSED LOCATION FOR THE US 264 NORTHWEST BYPASS OF GREENVILLE
PROJECT R-526B PITT COUNTY

The North Carolina Department of Transportation will hold the above public hearing on June 16, 1982 at 7:30 PM in the cafeteria of the Welcome Middle School located on US 13-NC 11 north of Greenville.

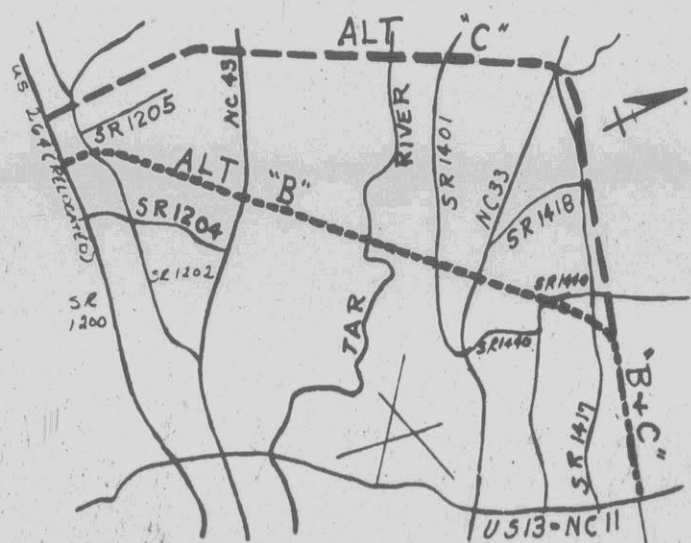

The hearing will consist of an explanation of the alternative locations, right of way procedures, relocation advisory assistance and State-Federal relationship. The hearing will be open to those present for statements, questions, comments and/or submittal of material pertaining to the proposed project. Additional material may be submitted for a period of ten days from the date of the hearing to: Mr. George E. Wells, P. E., Manager of Highway Design, P. O. Box 25201, Raleigh, N. C. 27611.

The project is not currently scheduled for right of way and construction in the Transportation Improvement Program. However, the Board of Transportation has authorized the development of the project through the Final Environmental Stage which will establish an approved location. The corridor location public hearing is a required part of this process.

The two alternates on new location begin in the vicinity of the intersection of SR 1202 and SR 1205. The alternates proceed northeasterly with Alternate B crossing NC 33 at its intersection with SR 1418 and Alternate C crossing NC 33 approximately one mile west of this intersection. Both alternates then curve easterly and intersect US 13-NC 11 opposite SR 1590 (Greenville Boulevard).

A map setting forth the alternate locations and copies of the Draft Environmental Impact Statement are available for public review at the N. C. D.O.T. Division Office in Greenville.

Anyone desiring additional information on the hearing should contact Mr. W. A. Garrett, Jr., P. E., Public Hearing Officer, P. O. Box 25201, Raleigh, North Carolina 27611; telephone number 919-733-3244.

War Brings A Latin America Realignment

By BRUCE HANDLER
Associated Press Writer
BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — The Falkland Islands war is causing a realignment in Latin America, at least temporarily, with formerly hostile governments supporting Argentina and the Argentines muting their traditional superior attitude. Such democratic governments as those of Venezuela and Costa Rica, which kept a conspicuous distance from Argentina's repressive right-wing military regime, enthusiastically support the Argentine cause in the South Atlantic. Even Sandinist Nicaragua, once reported to be a target of Argentine CIA-style plotting, is on Argentina's side in the campaign to get Britain to abandon the Falkland Islands. "My country will never forget its sister nations which are with it in this crucial historic moment," said Gen. Leopoldo Galtieri, Argentina's president and the chief of its ruling military junta, in a message of gratitude to other Latin American leaders. This Latin solidarity is a new theme for the Argentines, too.

Most of them are of European descent, and they felt insulted when North Americans lumped them with the rest of the Latin Americans south of the Rio Grande.

The Argentines generally live better, eat better, dress better and have more schooling than most of their neighbors. Buenos Aires, with its broad avenues, high-fashion boutiques, concert halls and first-class restaurants is a far cry from the dusty square with a burro tethered to a banana tree on the Late Late Show.

Until very recently, it was not uncommon for white Argentines to refer to swarthy Brazilians as "monkeys" because of their African heritage and to Bolivians and Peruvians as "Indians" because of their Inca ancestry.

"I don't think you're going to hear much of that kind of talk from Argentines any more," said a Buenos Aires man chatting with friends and a foreign correspondent in a sidewalk cafe on busy Cordoba Avenue. "It is true that we sometimes used those expressions about people from other places in Latin America. But our fight with the British has taught us, I think, who our real friends are."

Military reservists slapped signs on downtown buildings denouncing Colombia as "the Cain of Latin America" because it abstained on a vote supporting Argentina in the Organization of American States. Someone penciled "the Colombian government, not the people" on one of the signs.

Even Chile, with which Argentina almost went to war four years ago because of a border dispute, is sharing in the new glow of Latin American brotherhood.

Chile also abstained on the OAS vote, but Chilean residents of Argentina have marched in support of the Argentine cause in the Falklands. A Chilean ship helped look for survivors from the torpedoed Argentine cruiser General Belgrano. And Chilean Ambassador Sergio Jarpa Reyes assured the Argentines his government would not take advantage of the difficulties with Britain to press the border issue. "Argentina's back is well protected," he said.

Construction Reported Down

Building permits valued at $751,819 were issued in Greenville during January as construction dropped off from the December level, according to a building activity report released by state Labor Commissioner John Brooks.

Greenville's January permit total compared with $1,463,759 recorded in December. In Pitt County, construction authorized during January amounted to $840,219, including $498,785 for 12 single-family units, $60,000 for two multi-family units, $5,536 for two non-residential units, and $275,898 for 26 additions and alterations. The total construction figure for the county compared with $1,652,649 in December.

Brooks said total building activity authorized in the state's largest cities in January dropped 44.4 percent from the units reported in January of 1981. Double digit declines were reflected in all four categories of building statistics reported monthly for the 44 cities of more than 10,000 population.

Construction costs for a single-family home in North Carolina averaged $44,544 in January, up 5.3 percent from the $42,286 average a year ago. The January average climbed 1.5 percent from December's $43,892.

Building values for January in several neighboring cities included: Elizabeth City, $111,000; Goldsboro, $1,710,375; Jacksonville, $1,322,516; Kinston, $55,858; New Bern, $189,591; Roanoke Rapids, $199,870; Rocky Mount, $1,238,649; Tarboro, $258,365; and Wilson, $2,240,392.

Raleigh led individual cities in value of authorized construction with $9,454,256, followed by Winston-Salem, $7,616,165; Charlotte, $7,094,235; Greensboro, $4,878,757; and Wilson, $2,240,392.

Eight Dead In N.C. Traffic

By The Associated Press

Traffic accidents on North Carolina highways claimed eight lives over the weekend, boosting the state's traffic death toll for the year to 350 compared with 463 reported by the same date last year, the state Highway Patrol said.

Larry Niel Smith Jr., 22, of Watauga, Wash., was struck early Saturday morning as he walked along N.C. 210 in Onslow County. Police said his body was found around 6 a.m.

A 15-year-old bicyclist died Saturday night in Pamlico County when he emerged from a parking lot and ran into the side of a car. The patrol said Robert Earl Swindell of New Bern died when he was thrown onto the hood of a westbound car and into the windshield.

Timmy Allen Baker, 21, of Taylorsville, died Saturday morning when his motorcycle left N.C. 127 in Alexander County and struck a vehicle parked on the right side of the highway.

Three deaths occurred when drivers lost control of their cars and left the highway.

Wilma Tyson Hilliard, 33, of Goldsboro, died Sunday morning in Duplin County when the car in which she was riding left N.C. 111 near Keenansville and struck a tree.

Patrick Arnold Day, 17, of Graham, died Saturday morning when the car he was driving left N.C. 87 in Alamance County and struck a bridge abutment. Joe Eugene Reynolds, 20, of Newton, lost his life when the car in which he was riding left N.C. 10 in Catawba County, struck an embankment and overturned three times.

A head-on collision claimed the life of Jackie Elston Thompson, 24, of Robbins when the car he was driving swerved into the path of an oncoming vehicle on U.S. 220 in Randolph County.

Pauline Crewse Norris, 75, of Kannapolis was the weekend's first traffic fatality when she walked in front of an oncoming vehicle in Cabarrus County near Concord on Friday night.

Agribusiness Meeting Set

Sen. Vernon White, Rep. Ed Warren and Rep. Sam Bundy will be special guests at the monthly meeting of the Pitt County Agribusiness Association on May 11 at 7:30 p.m. at the Three Steers Restaurant on Memorial Drive.

Also scheduled to take part in the meeting, which will include a panel discussion on agriculture, will be Rep. Vernon James, chairman of the North Carolina House Agriculture Committee, Sam McLawhorn, chairman of Gov. Jim Hunt's Agriculture Committee and a representative of Commissioner Jim Graham's office.

All members of the Pitt County Agribusiness Association are asked to attend, according to the president, John Moore.

GRADUATES

Alan Ray Cayton graduated this month from Parsons School of Design in New York.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. T.G. Cayton of Greenville, he is a graduate of Rose High School and attended East Carolina University. He will do further study in France and Italy this summer.

A Gathering Of 'Microbrewers'

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — Beer drinkers who think the only good brew comes from Germany might be surprised at the stuff produced by the brewers gathering here next month for the Great American Beer Festival.

It's a part of the fourth annual National Homebrew-Microbrewery Conference and Competition June 3-5, sponsored by the American Homebrewers Association.

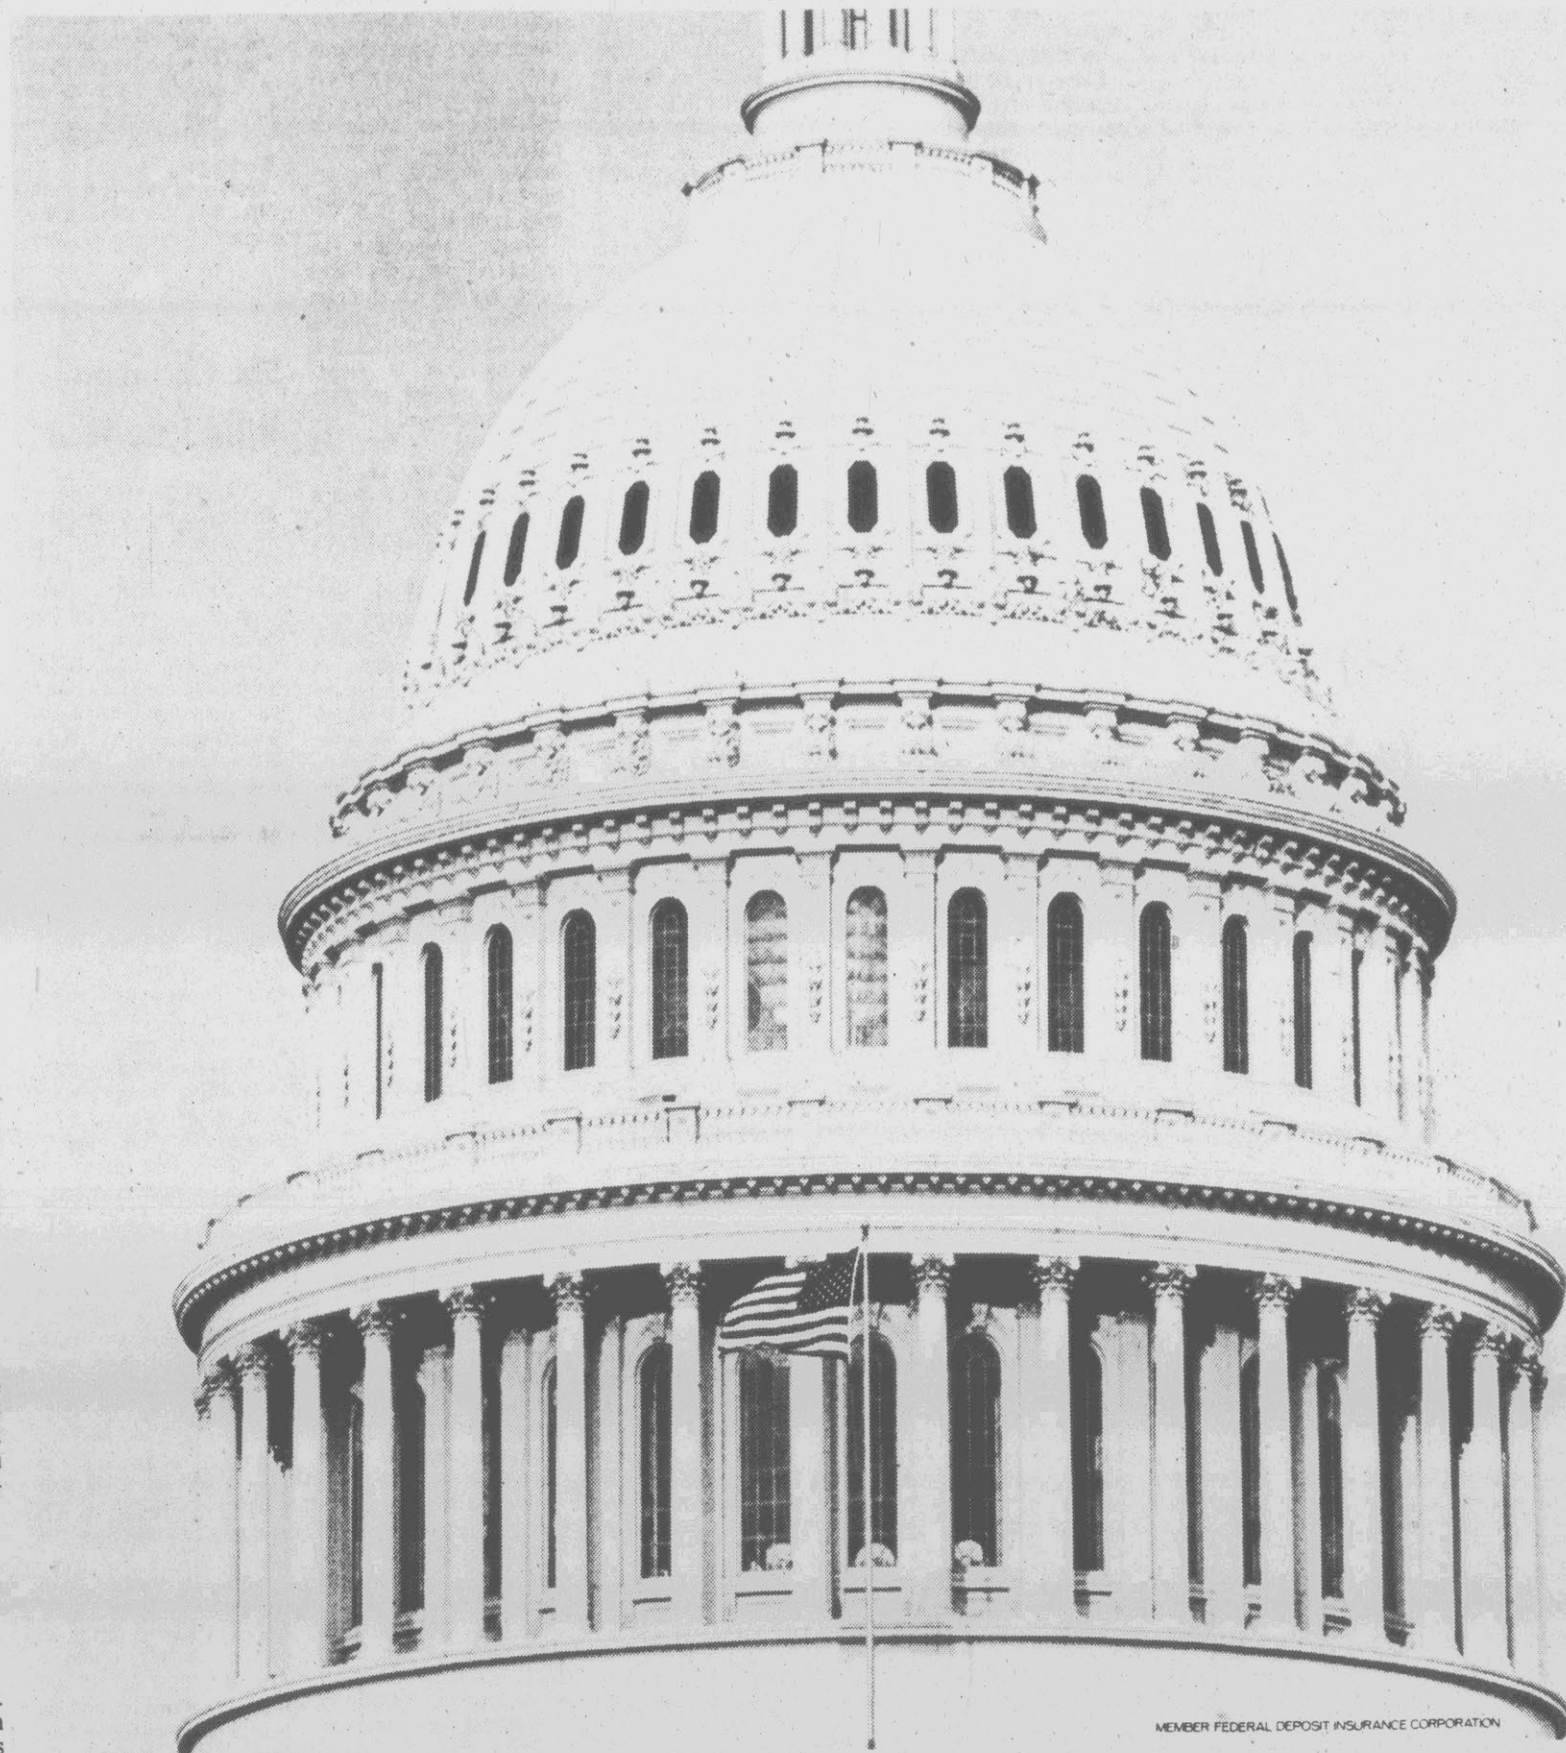

A microbrewery is defined as a licensed beer maker producing 10,000 barrels or less a year.

Heart Association State Meet Slated

WINSTON-SALEM — About 1,000 physicians, scientists, nurses and non-medical Heart Association leaders are expected to attend a three-day meeting to be held May 19-21 at the Benton Convention Center and Hyatt House in Winston-Salem.

This conference is a joint one of the American Heart Association, North Carolina Affiliate, and the Sixth Scientific Sessions of the N.C. Chapter of the American College of Cardiology.

Persons interested in full details are to contact: Jim Street, Heart News Bureau, 1 Heart Circle, P.O. Box 2636, Chapel Hill, N.C., 27514, telephone 968-4453.

While the debate goes on over an economic policy for the nation, BB&T offers a sound economic policy for your family.

At Branch Banking and Trust, we believe that saving money is sound economic policy.

We've maintained that simple philosophy even through times of high inflation—when the popular wisdom said spend, not save. And today, we believe saving makes more sense than ever.

Saving is the one way you can be sure of having the money you need for the things you want. And with some help from BB&T, you can protect your savings from inflation to a greater degree than you might have expected.

When it comes to saving money, not everyone's needs are equal.

For some people, saving money means a savings account—and that's always a very good way to save.

BB&T also offers a number of alternatives to regular savings accounts—alternatives that can earn you higher interest.

Consider, for example, our Certificates of Deposit*, which allow you to choose a maturity from 30 days to 8 years and a corresponding interest rate on deposits as low as $500. Or high-yield Money Market Certificates for deposits of $10,000 and more.

With these and other savings plans, BB&T can help you put together a comprehensive savings program that will give you the best rate of return on your money and the kind of flexibility you need.

Exercise your inalienable right to save for your own future.

We can't predict what the state of the national economy is going to be. And the debate in Washington over such matters will go on and on.

What we do know, however, are the ways in which saving regularly has improved the lives of BB&T customers through the years. We want you to share in the security and the good life many of them have known.

So while you're waiting to see where the economy is headed, take the future into your own hands.

Start a savings plan at BB&T.

Add Enemies To A Home

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — As if the elements and termites weren't enough, Mother Nature has come up with two more enemies of your home — the carpenter bee and the woodpecker.

Carpenter bees, which bore holes into wood in order to lay their eggs, will be hovering near unpainted, weathered or stained wood buildings in coming weeks, said John Carroll, Forsyth County Agricultural Extension chairman.

Once the bees have tunneled six or seven inches along the grain, they discard the sawdust they make and begin stocking their new homes with pollen and nectar.

Carpenter bees are more annoying than dangerous because they don't weaken the structure of a building, although they're constantly buzzing, Carroll said.

But the biggest problem arises when woodpeckers discover the bee nests and peck holes into the wood to get to the tasty bee larvae, Carroll said.

Once the pecking starts, the woodpeckers seem to get carried away, he said.

Hunt Voice Concern On Tax Effect

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A tax on unshipped goods may not be worth as much to North Carolina as the industries the state might get if the tax were repealed, Gov. Jim Hunt says.

"As the competition gets tougher, especially with the Northeast and Midwest becoming more competitive, we are more concerned about the inventory tax as an obstacle to growth," Hunt said in an interview. "I'm determined to protect our revenues but you have to calculate how much you'd gain if you do away with it."

"We must look at it (inventory tax relief) very pragmatically," Hunt added. "Our position will be determined by how much more growth and jobs would come to North Carolina if it is phased out."

A bill that would provide manufacturers 100 percent credit on their state income taxes for inventory taxes paid has passed the state House and is now in the Senate. The bill would cost the state $23 million the first year and $86 million by fiscal 1986. But the measure is not expected to be adopted without Hunt's support.

Even as North Carolina anguishes over its inventory tax, many states, including New York, are offering tax breaks to lure industry, Hunt said.

"Every state around us offers tax advantages but we don't want to get into the competition of seeing who can cut taxes the most," he said. A better tactic is to be more aggressive in recruiting industry and to offer such incentives as a trained workforce and good roads, Hunt added.

Hunt acknowledged that declining gas tax revenues mean the state is not likely to build many new roads.

"But, if we can maintain what we've got already and planned, we'll still be ahead of the rest of the nation," he said.

Hunt said a $300 million water bond issue authorized by the legislature last year will help with industrial recruiting if the bonds are approved by the voters. He said he has not decided whether to call the referendum in June when political primaries will be held or in November during general elections.

birds have been known to penetrate the wall of a house and become trapped indoors.

That could put you in a quandary, he added, because it is illegal to kill woodpeckers.

So the best way to protect your home is to concentrate on controlling the carpenter bees, applying Sevin or other insecticide sprays or dusts directly to the hole of the nest, Carroll said. Then the holes should be plugged with a half-inch wooden dowel or hard-setting wood putty to prevent the holes from being reused.

The use of a wood preservative containing pentachlorophenol on wood surfaces being attacked is a repellent to both the bees and the woodpeckers, though it does not kill them, he added.

Safety Rodeo

Some 50 area youth participated in Greenville's Bicycle Safety Rodeo, held Saturday at Evans Park.

All participants took part in eight skills tests demonstrating their abilities to safely mount and dismount their bicycles, perform proper signals, and safely maneuver their bikes through obstacle courses and safety stop situations.

Trophies were awarded to the top four finalists in each of three age groups.

Winners of first, second, third and fourth place trophies included: (Grade 3 or younger), Witt Thomas, Christopher Gillikin, Alex Darden, and Stephen Huntsberry; (Grades 4-6), Ashley Davenport, Marty Smith, Brett Gibbs, and Lemuel Gilbert; (Grades 7 and up), Debbie Morrison, April Davenport, Justen Vick, and Michelle Robbins.

The rodeo was sponsored and scored by members of the Greenville Citizens Bikeway Committee, the Greenville Optimist Club, and the Greenville Host Lions Club.

The safety event concluded a week in which members of the bikeway committee and the Police Department showed films on bicycle safety and discussed bicycle rules of the road in programs to all six elementary schools in the city.

Sudden Drop In Export Of Coal

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — The coal export boom has gone bust in the wake of the worldwide recession and oil glut, port officials and coal industry experts say.

In January, experts predicted a banner year for coal and the port of Hampton Roads, the nation's leading coal-exporting port.

But a dramatic fall in demand in the last two months has slashed up to $8 per ton from the price of coal at the mine, costing exporters and shippers millions of dollars and spurring layoffs of coal miners.

The National Coal Association, Hampton Roads' top coal exporter and port shipping agent, now says that coal exports nationwide and in Hampton Roads will not rise this year, and probably will fall below last year's level. Hampton Roads handled 47.6 million tons of export coal in 1981.

"The star is not as bright," said Tony Anthony, an official at the Washington-based association. "Where we (initially) forecast modest growth in 1982, we are now forecasting no growth."

The NCA predicts coal exports this year will stay at 92 million tons, the same as last year.

Wilson J. Browning, one of Hampton Roads' largest shipping agents, agreed with Anthony's pessimistic projections.

The port's two coal-loading facilities handled record levels of coal through the end of April, "but we're not going to see numbers like that again for a while," Browning said.

"It's going to be a down year," he said, predicting Hampton Roads' coal traffic could fall as low as 45 million tons this year. The port handled a total of 50.1 million tons last year, 47.6 million for export and 2.4 million for domestic use.

Anthony and Hampton Roads' four major coal-exporting companies predict coal exports will remain flat through the end of this year and well into 1983.

But they still are confident that foreign demand for steam coal, used in electric

Six Children Killed By Fire

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — An investigation is underway into a fire that killed six children, including five from one family, when it swept through a residence on Columbus' east side.

Fire Battalion Chief Michael Fiori said Sunday the mother of five of the victims was awake when the blaze broke out Saturday night, but she was unable to rouse the children before she was forced to flee.

Some U.S. strategists are concerned that the Soviets could be tempted to launch an attack if they were confident they could destroy enough of the United States missile force to prevent a powerful U.S. response.

Reagan's objective is to cut deeply into this force of SS-18s and other land-based Soviet missiles by sharply reducing the number of warheads the Soviets would be allowed.

In the first phase of the treaty, each side would have to dismantle more than 2,000 warheads, which would require the Soviets to dip into their land-based missiles where they have concentrated their efforts.

In the second phase, Reagan said, the two superpowers would make further cuts in all their strategic forces and reach lower, equal ceilings.

"We will negotiate seriously, in good faith and carefully consider all proposals made by the Soviet Union," Reagan said.

"If they approach these negotiations in the same spirit I am confident that together we can achieve an agreement of enduring value," he said.

Surgery Leaves Sugar's Future Unsure For Now

BALTIMORE (AP) — Sugar Ray Leonard's boxing career will be in doubt for several weeks following eye surgery, although doctors think the world welterweight champion could resume fighting before the end of the year.

Although optimistic about a full recovery, Dr. Ronald G. Michels said it's too early to tell whether Sunday's operation will successfully repair the detached retina in Leonard's left eye. However, he added retinal surgery was successful 90 percent of the time.

"The tissue has to seal down in the proper locations, we have to wait for the healing response," Michels said after the two-hour operation at Johns Hopkins Hospital. "It's much too early to tell, but he should be fully recovered in four to six months."

The operation forced the postponement of Leonard's title bout against Roger Stafford scheduled for Friday in Buffalo, N.Y.

Michels, the ophthalmologist who successfully performed retinal surgery on boxer Earnie Shavers, said it will be several weeks before doctors can predict a full recovery.

Handlers for the 25-year-old boxer, meanwhile, said the champion was more concerned about a full recovery than his career.

"That's probably the last thing on Ray's mind, whether he's going to punch somebody again," Leonard's agent and attorney Mike Trainer said Sunday. "No one is going to know for six months, we don't have the data to put into the computer so that Ray Leonard can make a decision," he added.

"It's too early to say, but we are definitely hopeful that he will have a full recovery," Michels added. If Leonard's eye heals properly, he would be able to resume boxing. "If the surgery is successful, the tissue will be stable."

"It's unusual to have a recurring retinal detachment from the same part of the retina and we are hopeful he will be able to pursue whatever career choice he makes," Michels said.

The retinal tissue lines the inside of the eye and catches the image that is transmitted to the brain. About 40 percent of the retina in Leonard's left eye had become detached, Michels said.

"This is a condition that is serious and can affect vision and must be treated," Michels said.

The nationally-televised bout in Buffalo would have been Leonard's second fight this year. In his last fight, on Feb. 15, in Reno, Nev., Leonard knocked out Bruce Finch.

Leonard became the undisputed world welterweight champion last September when he stopped Thomas Hearns in the 14th round in Las Vegas. During that fight, Leonard suffered injury to his left eye. Michels said it was impossible to determine whether that injury caused the detached retina. But the doctor said "the changes in the eye were due to his professional activity."

Manager Angelo Dundee said problem in Leonard's eye was unexpected. "The last time (trainer) Janks (Morton) and I saw the kid box, he was perfect, he was threading the needle per se, he looked great."

Trainer said Leonard first noticed spots before his left eye at the beginning of this month. A doctor in Buffalo prescribed drops and told him to have the eye checked after the Stafford fight, he added. The blurred vision persisted and Leonard decided to see Michels. He was admitted to Hopkins Hospital Saturday night.

"I'm tickled to death we found it and as for his future fighting, I think Ray'd like to make the decision himself," Trainer said. The decision won't be made for several months.

"We're going to see what comes out from four to six months from now," Dundee said. "I will wait and hear what Dr. Michels has to say and what Ray has to say."

Trainer said he planned to travel to Buffalo Monday to meet with Chamber of Commerce officials about refunding money for the 14,000 tickets already sold for the bout.

Leonard had made no plans for other fights after facing Stafford, although there had been inconclusive negotiations about a possible fight against Marvin Hagler, Trainer said.

Celtics Rout 76ers In Opener

BOSTON (AP) — The sight of one of the best teams in basketball playing like one of the worst was enough to move a grown man to tears.

"You cry and you laugh," said Philadelphia Coach Billy Cunningham after watching his 76ers annihilated by the Boston Celtics 121-81 in the opening game of the best-of-seven National Basketball Association Eastern Conference championship. "I'm laughing now because I cried on the court and got all the tears out there."

"We didn't do anything in any phase of our game, and they were outstanding," Cunningham said.

"I think you have to give all the credit to us today," said Boston's Cedric Maxwell. "I don't think they made too many turnovers. We did everything well." The 40-point margin was the widest of any Celtic playoff win and any 76er playoff loss.

Boston's biggest previous winning playoff margin was 129-95 over St. Louis on April 2, 1961 in the opener of the championship series won by the Celtics, 4-1. Philadelphia's biggest playoff loss was 156-120 against Milwaukee on March 30, 1970.

The unexpected spark that turned the game into an unexpected rout was reserve Rick Robey.

Robey came in with Boston leading 33-24 with 10:07 left in the second quarter. He played the rest of the period, scoring 15 points and boosting the Celtics to a 62-45 halftime bulge. The 76ers never came closer after that. "Rick was the difference in the game," Maxwell said.

"Any time you can come in and help a team win a playoff game it's going to make you feel good," said Robey, who finished with a season high of 19 points.

Philadelphia's top two centers, Darryl Dawkins and Caldwell Jones each had three fouls for most of the second period, and third-stringer Earl Cureton played the final six minutes.

Dawkins said that he was hampered by a painful leg and added that he didn't know if he would play in the second game here Wednesday night. He broke the same leg during the season.

Boston pulled down 67 rebounds, two more than its regular-season high, and held Philadelphia to just 32.3 percent field goal shooting.

"For us to stay in the ballgame and slow down their running game, we knew we would have to control the boards," said Boston center Robert Parish. "They got the ball inside to their people, but we double-teamed them and their shots weren't dropping."

Parish and Larry Bird scored 24 points each for Boston, which led by as much as 48 points, 110-62. Andrew Toney paced the 76ers with 15.

"You hate to beat a team by 40 and you like to beat a team by 40," said Maxwell. "A big win just stirs them up again."

"I don't think either team will remember it come Wednesday," said Robey.

Boston outscored Philadelphia, 22-7, in the first seven minutes of the second quarter to grab a 52-31 lead, its biggest of the first half. Robey and Kevin McHale had nine points each in that spurt.

The Celtics put the game away in a 31-11 third quarter that gave them a 93-56 lead.

The Celtics hadn't played since Wednesday, when they beat Washington to win that playoff series, 4-1. The 76ers didn't wrap up their six-game series with Milwaukee until Friday night.

"It was very hard, physically, for us to regroup after the Milwaukee series," said Philadelphia's Mike Bantom. "We had a mental high after that but we learned a hard lesson."

Jabbar Leads Lakers With 32 Points

L.A. Whips San Antonio

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The National Basketball Association playoffs are giving the Los Angeles Lakers an opportunity to erase some bitter memories. So far, they are perfect, but the misery of a year ago is still remembered.

The Lakers won the NBA championship following the 1980-81 season, but last spring was a different matter as they were eliminated by the Houston Rockets in a first-round mini-series.

"We're playing well as a team because we can remember the disappointment from last season," said Kareem Abdul-Jabbar after the Lakers whipped the San Antonio Spurs 128-117 Sunday in the opener of the Western Conference championship series. "This year, the team is ready. We want to win."

Abdul-Jabbar, a six-time NBA most valuable player who turned 35 last month, led the way with 32 points, 10 rebounds, six assists and five blocked shots as the Lakers held off the gritty Spurs.

The Lakers, by winning the Pacific Division championship, didn't have to play in a mini-series this year. They advanced to the conference championship series by sweeping the Phoenix Suns in four games.

The second game in the best-of-seven Lakers-Spurs set will be played here Tuesday night before the teams travel to San Antonio for games next

Friday and Saturday. "We definitely have our work cut out for us," said Abdul-Jabbar. "San Antonio is a very physical team and can score whenever they like."

"If we don't get a good defensive effort from the team, we won't win the series. Today's game showed how hard they can play and this will not be an easy series."

The Spurs can play better, as evidenced by their 47.9 percent field goal performance and 66.7 percent effort from the free throw line. The Lakers hit on 55 percent of their floor shots and 77.3 percent of their free throw tries.

In addition, San Antonio got only eight points from four-time NBA scoring champion George Gervin in the first half.

However, the Spurs were in contention nearly all the way. Mike Bratz missed a layup with 40 seconds to go that would have drawn them to within four points. The Lakers then scored the final five points of the game to give them their 11-point margin of victory.

"I just missed it," said Bratz. "I probably should have pulled up for a three-pointer, but I tried to draw the foul and went for the three-point play on the layup."

Abdul-Jabbar wasn't the only Laker to turn in an outstanding offensive performance. Norm Nixon scored a personal playoff career-high 31 points; Bob McAdoo came off the bench to score 21; Jamaal Wilkes had 17; Earvin "Magic" Johnson had 13 points, 16 rebounds and 14 assists, and reserve Michael Cooper had 10 points, six re-

Waltrip Roars To 5th Win

Results on page 10
 NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Darrell Waltrip had little difficulty winning his second straight Grand National stock car race, taking the $159,000 Cracker Barrel Old Country Store 420 after leading every lap but one.

The win Saturday was Waltrip's fifth in 10 starts and earned the Franklin, Tenn., driver an estimated $24,025 in first-place and contingency money.

Starting from the pole, Waltrip relinquished the lead on lap 116 when he went into the pits for a tire change. Harry Gant, of Taylorsville, N.C., took the lead but was knocked from the race 2 laps later when he collided with Dave Marcis' car on pit row.

Waltrip, the defending Winston Cup Grand National driving champion, average 83.502 mph in a Junior Johnson-Mountain Dew Buick over the .596-mile Nashville International Raceway.

Terry Labonte, of Corpus Christi, Texas, and the current Winston Cup point leader, finished second driving a Chevrolet.

Third was Ron Bouchard, of Fitchburg, Mass., in a Buick. Joe Ruttman, Upland, Calif., was fourth in a Buick; Neil Bonnett, of Hueytown, Ala., was fifth also piloting a Buick; and Bobby Allison, also of Hueytown, wound up sixth in a Chevrolet. Seventeen of the 30-car field finished the race.

Next stop on the 30-race Winston Cup circuit is the Mason-Dixon 500 at Dover, Del., on May 16.

Staub's Pinch-Hit HR In 9th Keys Mets By Giants

By The Associated Press
San Francisco relief pitcher Greg Minton doesn't give up a home run very often. And Rusty Staub hasn't been hitting them too often of late, either.

Therefore, "home run" was the last thing on Staub's mind when he came to bat as a pinch-hitter for the New York Mets with two out in the bottom of the ninth inning Sunday.

"I was up against a guy who doesn't give up home runs, and I just tried to find a pitch I could handle," said Staub, who was pinch-hitting for pitcher Craig Swan with the score tied 5-5.

Staub not only found a pitch he could "handle," but one he could drive, and lashed it into the right field bullpen at Shea Stadium to give the Mets a dramatic 6-5 victory over the Giants.

"He made a mistake," said Staub, who was 0-for-16 before the homer and only 2 for 22 this season. "It was a sinker up, so I could drive it a little."

Ironically, it was the second Met home run in eight days off Minton, who had previously set a major league record of pitching 2691-3 innings without giving up a gopher ball. New York's John Stearns broke the streak with a homer against Minton last Sunday in San Francisco.

"I hope he goes another 260 innings or so before he gives up another home run," said San Francisco Manager Frank Robinson.

Staub's homer, by the way, was one of six in Shea Stadium, another rarity of sorts.

"It's not often you see six home runs hit in this ballpark, especially in the daytime," Robinson acknowledged after watching each team hit three over the fence.

Dodgers 5, Expos 4
Pedro Guerrero hit a three-run homer in the fifth inning and Fernando Valenzuela scattered eight hits to lead Los Angeles over Montreal for a sweep of their four-game series.

The Dodgers, who have won five straight, overcame a 3-1 deficit with Guerrero's one-out blast on the first pitch in the fifth from Montreal starter Ray Burris, 0-6. Dusty Baker doubled home a run ahead of Guerrero's game-winning hit. It was the 10th RBI in three games for the hot-hitting Baker.

Cubs 6, Astros 3
Jody Davis' three-run homer with two outs in the bottom of the ninth — his first of the season — led Chicago over Houston. Leon Durham doubled with one out and took third as Junior Kennedy grounded out. Pinch-hitter Bob Molinaro was walked intentionally before Davis hit his first homer of the season.

Willie Hernandez, 1-2, gained the victory in relief, while Randy Moffitt, 0-2, was the loser.

Pirates 6, Reds 3
Jason Thompson extended his hitting streak to 17 games with his 10th homer, a two-run blast in the third inning, and Johnny Ray smashed fourth hits to lead Pittsburgh over Cincinnati.

Thompson's homer capped a four-run rally off Tom Seaver, 1-4, who lasted just 22-3 innings in his first start of the season. Winner Don Robinson, 3-0, blanked the Reds on four hits for the first five innings, losing his shutout when Dan Driessen hit a solo homer with one out in the sixth. Kent Tekulic came on in the seventh to gain his third save.

Padres 6, Phillies 0
Unbeaten Tim Lollar recorded his fourth victory with a four-hitter and singled home a run as San Diego snapped Philadelphia's six-game winning streak.

Lollar struck out nine and walked none in pitching his second shutout of the season. After giving up a leadoff single to opposing pitcher Steve Carlton in the third inning, Lollar retired 18 straight batters before giving up a one-out single to Bob Dernier in the ninth. Carlton, 3-5, was the loser although he struck out seven and walked just one in seven innings.

Braves 3, Cardinals 0
Bob Horner hit an RBI single in the second inning and belted his ninth home run in the sixth to power Atlanta over St. Louis.

Right-handers Joe Cowley, Preston Hanna, Steve Bedrosian and Gene Garber combined on a three-hitter. Hanna, 2-0, earned the victory in relief of Cowley, who departed in the fourth after pulling a muscle behind his right shoulder. Joaquin Andujar, 3-3, was the loser.

"I think the biggest thing has been our pitching, especially in the late innings," said Horner about the Braves' fast start. "You don't go 20-9 with a bad bullpen. I just hope they keep it up."

Indians Suddenly On Warpath

By The Associated Press
Seven days in May have produced quite a change in the Cleveland Indians, who have suddenly gone on the warpath.

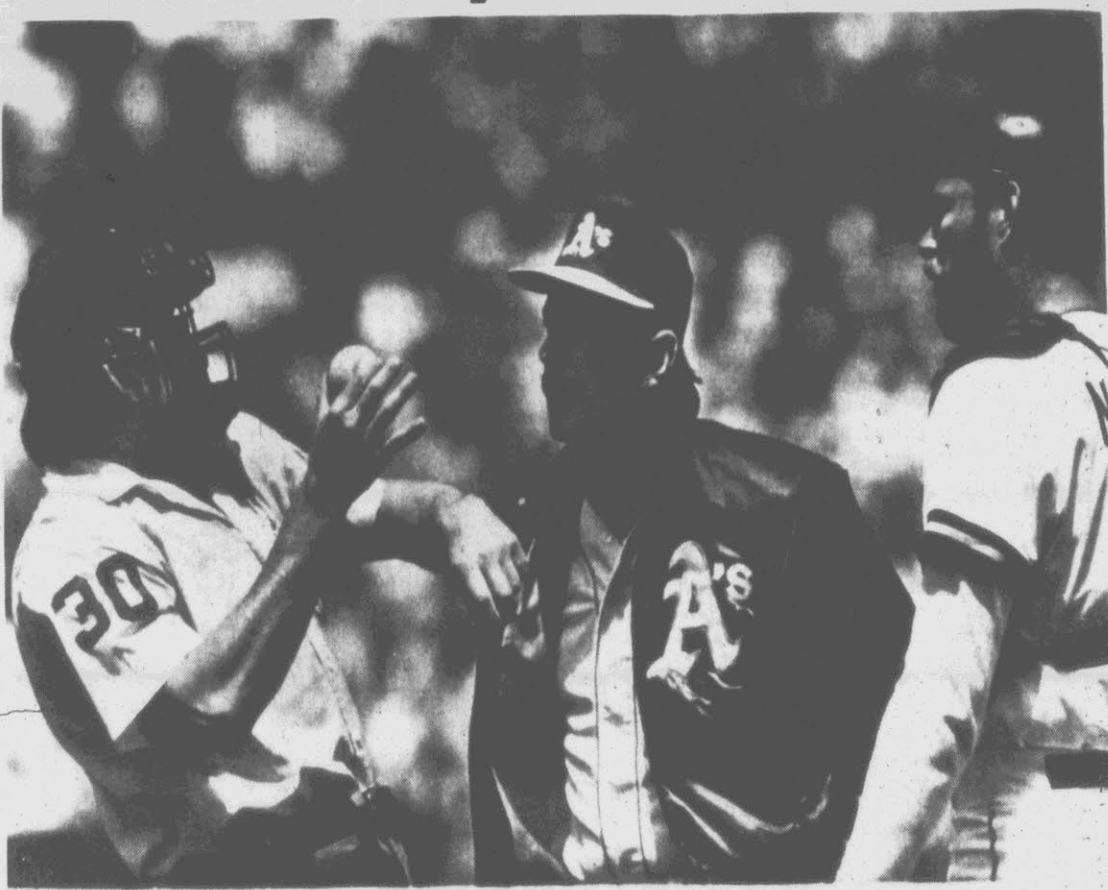

Last Sunday, the Indians were staggering after managing only four runs during a three-game sweep on their own reservation at the hands of the Oakland A's. This weekend, however, found them in Oakland, where they dropped the series opener 4-2 but then pounded the A's 15-6, 8-5 and 14-2 on Sunday behind a 15-hit assault that included three doubles and five home runs.

"It was certainly a turnaround in fair play," said Andre Thornton, who hit a pair of two-run homers and boosted his American League-leading totals to nine home runs and 29 RBIs. "Their pitching handcuffed us in Cleveland, but we got our bats going here. If we continue to get good pitching and defense we can make some noise."

Thornton hit his homers off Matt Keough, who allowed six runs in 41-3 innings. The Indians then got to Jeff Jones for eight runs in the ninth, including home runs by Mike Hargrove, Ron Hassey and Rick Manning. Hargrove collected five RBIs, four of them in the ninth on a two-run homer and two-run double. With all that support, Larry Sorensen breezed with a nine-incher.

Following consecutive homers by Hassey and Manning in the ninth inning, Jones threw a pitch close to Jack Perconte and plate umpire Dallas Parks gave the Oakland hurler an official warning. A's Manager Billy Martin argued with Parks and was ejected for the first time this season.

The A's pitching staff, which two years ago threw a record 94 complete games, has completed only 11 of 30 this season.

"I think people are expecting too much from us," said Mike Norris. "People are used to what we've done the last two years, and when they see us get beat around like we have this weekend they can't understand it. But sometimes it happens. I'm not about to push any panic buttons yet."

"Good hitting is contagious," said Keough, "but bad pitching is also contagious."

Red Sox 1, Rangers 0
Tony Perez drove in the only run with a sixth-inning double as Boston nipped Texas behind the nine-hit pitching of John Tudor. Bob Stanley and Mark Clear. The victory was the 16th in the last 19 games for the Red Sox. The Rangers, who snapped a 12-game losing streak Friday night, have now lost two in a row.

Brewers 6, Twins 2
Jim Gantner hit a two-run triple and a bases-empty homer. Ben Oglivie slammed a two-run homer and Jim Slaton earned the victory with five innings of one-run relief. The Brewers broke a 2-2 tie against Pete Redfern in the fifth inning when Cecil Cooper singled and Oglivie belted his seventh homer. Gantner, who also had a single, made it 5-2 in the sixth with his second homer of the year.

White Sox 4, Tigers 3
Rudy Law drove in two runs with a single and a triple to back the eight-hit pitching of Richard Dotson, Kevin Hickey and Salome Barojas. Chicago scored twice off Larry Pashnick in the first inning on Greg Luzinski's RBI double and a sacrifice fly by Tom Paciorek. In the second, Jim Morrison walked, moved to second on an error and scored on Law's single.

Angels 8, Orioles 4
Bobby Grich and Tim Foli drove in three runs apiece and run on Willie Upshaw's single, a sacrifice, infield out and Rance Mulliniks' pinch single.

Yankees 3, Mariners 0
Tommy John allowed four hits in eight innings and Oscar Gamble hit a two-run homer. Rich Gossage pitched the ninth and picked up his fifth save, striking out the side while allowing one hit. The Yankees scored their first run off ex-teammate Gene Nelson in the third on Willie Randolph's infield hit.

Don Baylor added a two-run homer, while Bruce Kison, making his first start since April 21, earned his first victory of the season by holding the Orioles to four hits through seven innings. Kison was staked to a 2-0 lead in the first inning on Baylor's homer off Dennis Martinez.

Blue Jays 2, Royals 0
Dave Stieb scattered eight hits in blanking Kansas City for the second time in 11 days and Jesse Barfield homered with two out in the seventh inning to snap a scoreless duel. Barfield's homer was only the fifth hit off Paul Splittorff, who was relieved by Dan Quisenberry in the eighth when the Blue Jays scored their second bounds and 11 assists.

Gervin, who averaged 32.3 points during the regular season, made only three of his 13 field goal attempts in the first half. But he scored 26 points after the intermission to give him a game-high 34 points. He also had six rebounds and six assists.

Mike Mitchell added 25 points for the Spurs, and Johnny Moore and Mark Olberding had 16 and 15 points, respectively, for San Antonio. Moore had a team-leading 12 assists and reserve center Dave Corzine led the losers in rebounding with 11.

"We were playing hard and giving it our best shot," said Gervin. "You can't get disappointed in a seven-game series. (But) I'm never happy to lose."

Nixon started slowly, missing his first three shots and scoring only four points in the first quarter. But he was a key factor after that.

"I knew it was just a matter of time before we got going," he said. "Once the tempo picked up, I knew my shot would start to fall."

The Lakers went ahead to stay by outscoring the Spurs 16-5 in the final 3:55 of the first half to turn a 40-47 deficit into a 63-53 advantage at the intermission. Nixon had six of those points and Abdul-Jabbar and Jamaal Wilkes added five apiece.

The Spurs got as close as three points at 80-77 midway through the third period before the Lakers ran off eight straight points to give them an 11-point lead, equalling their largest advantage of the game.

But the Spurs, sparked by Gervin, got as close as five points on three occasions in the fourth quarter, the final time at 118-113 with 2:50 go. It was 123-117 when Bratz missed his layup.

"Just watching the game you can see that it's at a different level," said Los Angeles Coach Pat Riley. "It's much more tense, much more competitive. It's a credit to both teams. We both really went after it."

"That's just game one, we have to come back Tuesday, and we have to come back tougher."

San Antonio Coach Stan Albeck was shaking his head afterwards.

"I will tell you how bad things are, our guys don't have any hot water in their showers," he said. "We just have to work harder. This is going to be a great series. I am happy with the way the guys played."

Sneed Wins Open In Sudden Death

HOUSTON (AP) — Ed Sneed, haunted the past three years by the memory of blowing a final-round lead in the 1979 Masters, saw history repeat itself in the $350,000 Houston Open golf tournament.

But this time Australian Bob Shearer played the lead role. Sneed, who started Sunday's final round five strokes behind Shearer, fired a 1-under par 70 to tie Shearer at the end of regulation play and then won his first tournament in five years with a birdie on the first playoff hole.

Shearer carded a 4-over par 75 at the 7,071-yard, par-71 Woodlands Country Club.

Sneed, who earned $63,000, has spent the past three years trying to erase the stigma of losing the lead in the 1979 Masters, when he was ahead by three shots with three holes to play but lost to Fuzzy Zoeller on the second playoff hole.

"I guess what happened to Bob today is what happened to me in the Masters," the soft-spoken Sneed said. "A lot of people have asked me if it has affected me. I guess it has but I didn't think about it today."

Shearer started the final day at 13 under par and the heavy favorite with 13 sub-par rounds in his last 14. He led Sneed by five shots.

But he bogeyed No. 7 and made the turn with only a three-shot lead while Sneed was running in birdies on the second and fifth holes.

Shearer continued his downfall on the backside with back-to-back bogeys on 11 and 12, and fell into a tie on the 16th hole following two straight birdies by Sneed.

Both golfers then bogeyed No. 17 and parred 18 to force the playoff, beginning on No. 15.

Despite his tailspin, Shearer said he was confident at No. 18, where he missed a 16-foot birdie putt that would have given him the tournament.

"I really wasn't worried at 18," Shearer said. "I felt I had to have one birdie for the day. It was close but that was the way the day went for me."

Shearer's putt skidded six feet past the hole and he had to sink the putt coming back just to stay even.

Sneed had not won on the tour since a 1977 victory in the Tallahassee Open and had not gone into the final round with a lead since last year's Los Angeles Open.

But this time, Sneed averted the final-round jitters.

Canucks' Style Annoys Isles

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — The New York Islanders got a taste of what the 1982 Stanley Cup finals are going to be like from the very first faceoff.

The Vancouver Canucks made it clear from that point they were going to play a slowdown type of game, hitting, clutching and grabbing the Islanders at every opportunity. Although that style frustrated the two-time defending Cup champions Saturday night for much of the first game of the best-of-seven National Hockey League championship series, they did manage a 6-5 overtime victory. And, that is all that really counts as the teams prepare for Game 2 Tuesday night.

"We can't allow their tactics to upset us," said Mike Bossy, whose 30-foot slapshot two seconds from the end of the first overtime won the game. "We have to settle down and concentrate on playing our game."

Bossy was one of the few Islanders who played his game in the series opener. He scored three times, giving him a Cup-leading 13 goals, as the Isles won their seventh overtime decision in their last eight OT games and their 19th in 24 overall.

For most of the contest, however, the Canucks' deliberate style annoyed the champions, who are seeking to become the first United States-based franchise to win three straight Stanley Cups.

It won't bother them any more, according to center Wayne Merrick.

"We did expect a lot of it," said Merrick. "You have to. But we'll play any type of game they want and, even though it's frustrating, we'll handle it."

"We can fight fire with fire," Left wing Clark Gillies, who had a goal and an assist Saturday, agreed with Merrick.

"If they can get away with clutching and grabbing, more power to them," he said. "But they played their type of game and we scored six goals and won."

The Canucks had been shackling the opposition throughout the playoffs after a mediocre regular season in which they finished 30-33-17. They carried an 11-2 mark into the opener of the finals and goalie Richard Brodeur had allowed only 32 goals in the playoffs.

But he was beaten twice by Denis Potvin, three times by Bossy and once by Gillies.

"We found out we can score on him and that has to help our confidence," Gillies noted.

Brodeur didn't seem particularly disturbed by the Islanders' offensive output in the opener.

"They know they'll be under pressure from us for the whole series," said Brodeur, a former Islander. "They got three lucky goals."

"We're going to show them a tough series. We don't give up and we felt when the series began we could win. I still do."

Thomas Gradin, the Canucks' top scorer this season, had two goals and an assist Saturday. Like Brodeur, he was encouraged by his team's effort against a club which finished 41 points ahead in the regular season standings.

"When a team is hot at the right time, it can go all the way," said Gradin. "We had them going pretty well and I thought we could take it. But that's the way it goes."

"No one thought we were one of the best teams in the playoffs but we are here. The way we've been playing, we can win it all."

Lendl Tramples Dibbs In T Of C

NEW YORK (AP) — Eddie Dibbs is the latest to get trampled in Ivan Lendl's rush to get to the bank.

"Once he gets on top of you, he never lets up," Dibbs said.

Lendl, reaching the finals in his 18th consecutive tournament, won his 15th title Sunday with a 49-minute 6-1, 6-1 romp in the WCT Tournament of Champions.

"I know you people didn't like the match and wanted a good fight," he told the crowd of 12,661 after the easy victory. "But I was happy the way I played and I'll take it this way every time."

The Czech ace picked up $468,500 for the week, including $100,000 for the victory, and increased his 1982 tournament earnings to a record $1,088,550. John McEnroe set the old mark for most money won in a year in 1980 with $1,008,742. Lendl needed just 14 weeks.

His take from the victory at the West Side Tennis Club included a fur coat valued at $43,000, $37,250 in Tournament of Champions bonus money and $288,250 in WCT bonus money.

Hitting with ferocious pace deep into the corners, Lendl was awesome in his destruction of Dibbs, the defending champion in the tournament at the courts where the U.S. Open was played until 1978.

"I was hitting deep, hard and not missing," he said. "It's all you have to do to win in tennis."

The 22-year-old Czech speaks like he plays tennis — direct and to the point, with no frills, no wasted motion.

"I was like one or two steps behind," Dibbs said. "I just wasn't there. I really couldn't do much of anything out there."

Dibbs, 10 years older than his opponent and, like Lendl, an acknowledged clay court specialist, began the match by holding serve at love. He was to win only 17 more points Sunday.

Lendl powered his blistering forehand into the corners, boomed his heavy top-spin backhand cross court and even ventured the net — though rarely — to put away winning volleys. Dibbs played a supporting role, always on the defense and never able to mount an attack.

The destruction of Dibbs was complete and awesome.

After Dibbs' start, Lendl ripped through the next 11 games, losing only 14 points.

His serve was threatened only once — in the sixth game of the opening set when he was down 30-40. He won the next two points with a wicked forehand down the line and a service winner, then double-faulted back to deuce before ripping off another service winner and another forehand down the line that touched just inside the corner.

That made it 5-1 and the only question remaining was how long it would take to complete the blitzkrieg.

"I was hitting deep, hard and not missing," he said. "It's all you have to do to win in tennis."

Weants Take Doubles

Dan and Ginny Weant defeated Jim and Karen Akers 7-5, 6-2 to win the mixed doubles championship of the Heart Fund Tennis tournament held this weekend at the River Birch Tennis Center.

Randy Bailey and Weant downed Akers and Billy Helton 6-1, 6-2 in the men's doubles title match while in the women's finals Weant and Akers combined to defeat Nancy Powell and Myra Hill 6-4, 4-6, 6-1.

In the men's "B" doubles, Mark Lindsey and Craig Miller edged Bobby Short and Harold Moore 7-6, 2-6, 7-6.

In the men's 45 singles, Sayetta downed Andy Warren 6-2, 6-3 while in the men's 35 singles Nelson Staton beat Wes Hankins 7-5, 2-6, 6-4.

Sayetta and Hankins combined to win the men's 35 doubles title. Second place will be determined later.

The 35 mixed doubles finals will be played later.

The tournament raised $355 for the N.C. Heart Association, according to tournament officials.

Tennis Results

The USTA-Michelob Light Tennis League completed its first season here this weekend with Team #1 rallying to tie Team #2 by winning both doubles matches.

Team #2 finished the season with a 5-0-1 mark, tops in the league. Team #1 finished second with a 4-1-1 record. Team #3 was third at 2-4 while Team #4 ended up last at 0-6.

Summary:
Team #1 2, Team #2 2
Nelson Staton (#2) d. John Cayton 6-1, 6-2
Tom Sayetta (#2) d. Alonzo Newby 4-6, 6-1, 6-0
Mills-Bronson (#1) d. Moore-Enslie 6-0, 6-1
Tardif-Kilcoyne (#1) d. King-Leonard 6-2, 6-4

Overton Sets Mark

LAKELAND, Fla. — Kristi Overton set a new National Record here at the Lakeland Capability Trick Water Skiing Tournament this past weekend.

Overton, 12, a sixth-grader at Greenville Christian Academy, scored 5,490 points to break the previous mark set in August 1980.

The national record is pending the approval of the American Water Skiing Association.

Overton has been invited to a meeting of the Liz Allen Super Stars in Groveland, Fla. The invitees include a group holding national and world records.

Overton went into the weekend ranked 21st in the world but with her record performance she will probably move up among the top seven.

N.Y. Sprinter Inks With East Carolina

Regina Kent, the New York City 100- and 200-meter champion and the city record holder in the 100-meters, has signed a grant-in-aid at East Carolina, track coach Pat McGuigan announced today.

Kent, who has run an 11.8 100 meters and a 24.6 200 meters, placed third in the state of New York in the 100 this year.

Kent also won the 55-meter dash in the 1982 Colgate Women's Games, a nationally televised meet earlier this month.

Kent, from Jamaica High School in Queens, N.Y., has also participated in the National Hershey Games in West Virginia.

"Regina is one a level now where she could place at the nationals," McGuigan said. "She's possibly the best sprinter ever at East Carolina. Somebody with her credentials will help upgrade the program."

"She has a unique amount of leadership quality and is an overpowering runner," Coach Don Pasinkoff said. Pasinkoff is Kent's high school coach.

Kent was also recruited by Syracuse and Harvard. She is ECU's second signee, joining SouthWest Edgecombe star Delpine Mabry.

SWE's Jenkins, Mabry On Team

GREENSBORO (AP) — East All-Stars boys' coach Preston McClain thinks he has a pretty good bunch of basketball players for this summer's battle against the West squad and he has good reason.

"From what we understand, we have a good group of athletes," the Raleigh Enloe coach says. "We were fortunate to get this calibre of kid. It's a good feeling."

McClain will coach David Henderson of Warren County and nine others when the two squads collide this summer in the Greensboro Coliseum.

Meanwhile, Bridget Jenkins

of Southwest Edgecombe will lead the girls' team.

Henderson, a 6-foot-6 guard, averaged 26.9 points and 11 rebounds in leading his team to a 3-A title and was named to The Associated Press all-state team.

Jenkins, a 5-foot-8 guard, averaged nearly 20 points as Southwest Edgecombe rolled to 31 straight victories and a second straight 3-A crown. Jenkins was The AP girls' player of the year and has signed with East Carolina.

The East will take the floor without Southern Durham's Curtis Hunter, the AP boys' player of the year. Hunter was ruled ineligible after playing in two national all-star contests last month.

Also named to the boys' team were John Davis of Chapel Hill, Kenny Gattison of Wilmington New Hanover, Rafael Hernandez of Hope Mills South View, Derrick Johnson of Kinston, Bruce Mann of 1-A champion Belhaven Wilkinson, George McClain of 4-A champion Rocky Mount, Nathan McMillan of Raleigh Enloe, James Rhone of Cape Fear and Tracy Williams of East Carteret.

Johnson stands 6-9, Gattison 6-8. The smallest is 6-0 Mc-Clain, a North Carolina State signee. Rhone carries the highest scoring average at 27.3, while McClain produced 24 per game.

McClain will be assisted by Joe Clay Jones of Pender County.

Others chosen to the girls' East squad were Jacksonville's Kristen Weinert, Cary's Debbie Mulligan, Weldon's Keenan Menafee, Wilson Beddingfield's Gloria Burks, Topsail's Andrea Hansley, Donna Atkinson of 4-A champion Goldsboro, West Carteret's Mindy Ballou, Wake Forest-Rolesville's Lisa Squirewell and Southwest Edgecombe's Delpine Mabry, Mulligan, Ballou, Squirewell and Mabry joined Jenkins on the AP all-state team.

Chapel Hill's Pam Leake, regarded by some as the state's finest player and who signed with North Carolina, is also ineligible after playing in a national all-star contest in Washington, D.C.

Burks, who signed to attend Norfolk State, averaged 26.9 points at Beddingfield, while Hansley produced 26 per game. Squirewell averaged 24.5 points per game and Menafee 19. With Burks at 6-0 and Weinert at 6-2, the East will have good size.

Greenville Team Splits Pair

Marty Varner hit a three-run home run to help Greenville outscore Bear Grass, 13-9, and earn a split of their double-header Sunday in a Tri-County Adult Hardball League baseball game at Guy Smith Stadium.

Bear Grass won the opener, 10-0, taking advantage of six errors by Greenville to hand the league-leading Vikings their first loss of the season.

The Vikings had made only six errors all season before yesterday's games.

In the second game, Varner's three-run home run in the second inning and Dave Bishop's solo shot in the third helped the Vikings earn the split and up their record to 5-1.

Varner's home run was his third of the season while Bishop's was his first of the year. Varner also picked up the win on the mound for Greenville.

Paul Kuch led Greenville in the second game with four hits in four at bats.

Greenville returns to action Sunday when the Vikings travel to Elm Grove. The Vikings return home May 23 when they play host to Hamilton for a double-header. Game time is 2 p.m.

Admission is $1 for adults and 50 cents for children. All home games are being played at Guy Smith.

NEW YORK (AP) — If Phil Donahue did a show on midmarriage crisis, Elliott Gould and Elizabeth Montgomery from "The Rules of Marriage" would be on it.

Richard Pryor Ill In Hospital

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Comedian Richard Pryor is recovering from a respiratory ailment and keeping to his hospital room, which has a guard posted outside 24 hours a day.

Pryor, 41, was reported in satisfactory condition at Our Lady of the Lake Hospital.

"Mr. Pryor is doing very well, he is resting very comfortably," hospital spokesman Beau Hutchinson said Sunday.

Pryor was in Baton Rouge filming the movie "The Toy" with Jackie Gleason.

"Richard was asked by the producer, Phil Feldman, to take a rest from a very strenuous filming schedule," publicist Peter Emmet said Saturday. "We expect him to be back for filming Wednesday or Thursday."

Emmet was not available for comment Sunday.

Pryor underwent six weeks of hospital treatment in 1980 for burns suffered in an accident at his home on June 9. Authorities said a fire started when Pryor tried to make "free base," a potent purified form of cocaine. In a recent film, Pryor performed a sketch with a similar set of circumstances.

are everybody else's perfect couple. Upper middle class, with two kids and a house in the Connecticut suburbs, the Hagens pinched themselves and discovered that the American Dream's marriage contract had some loopholes.

They're drifting apart, teetering between accepting comfortableness and de-stesting complacency, conflicting emotional states that can perforate any marriage.

In a two-part movie tonight and Tuesday night, CBS' "The Rules of Marriage" explores the breakdown of a supposed happy relationship, examining a couple's need to be together and apart. It's a clever, sensitive film that uses the four hours to probe, not trivialize, some universal problems.

Gould plays Michael. He writes detective novels, two a year. They may not be lasting art, but they please the public. "He does sex, gore and violence better than anybody else," says Michael's agent. "He writes the best crap in town."

Michael is growing disillusioned with his work, which reflects and feeds into a general uneasiness about his life and marriage. "Maybe 10 years ago life was funny and young," he says, wishing he could bypass aging like his detective character.

He says the marriage has become too tough. It's not worth fighting for anymore. But he's afraid to do anything about it because of the children.

Miss Montgomery, the beguiling Samantha from "Bewitched," is Joan, a housewife who remembers better and more passionate days. She, too, feels the missed connections and free-floating anxiety about an ailing marriage that is more degenerative than symptomatically sick.

Although Michael has had casual affairs during their marriage, when he learns that Joan is involved with their dentist and friend (Michael Murphy), he gets self-righteous and walks out. "I'm leaving my home, and I don't even know what happened."

This statement is offered to the home audience, a means of first-person expression that is used throughout and intelligent film. George Burns can get away with it on his comedy show, but the technique is merely jarring and intruding here.

After Michael moves out, the movie shows how Michael, Joan and their children all deal with the dismantling of their happy home. Sean Astin, the son of Patty Duke and John Astin, is particularly touching as the Hagens' son.

Gould is fine, but Miss

Montgomery is really special in her role, pulling viewers from one emotion to the next with a delightfully expressive face. She slides between being sensitive to the hurt she's inflicted on her children, and her need to stand up for her choice and get on with her new life.

The family devastation and trauma is handled very realistically, except for the too-pat Hollywood ending. But in this kind of movie, the journey is much more important than the final destination.

PBS tonight profiles a remarkable man, Roger Baldwin, founder of the American Civil Liberties Union, and, according to Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., "the First Amendment's most dedicated advocate."

Baldwin, who died last summer at the age of 97, was interviewed when he was 95.

Thousands Graduate At N.C. Colleges

By The Associated Press
Thousands of North Carolina college and university students graduated over the weekend, and commencement speakers urged them to become politically active and warned against cuts in education funding.

Gov. Jim Hunt told graduates of Lenoir-Rhyne College in Hickory Sunday that the United States could ill afford further cuts in education subsidies.

"We cannot afford to close the door to higher education for millions of American families," Hunt told 216 graduates.

"Our nation's greatest resources are not in the ground, they are in the minds of our people," said Hunt. "We cannot waste those resources, and we cannot afford not to invest in them."

At Duke University in Durham, an estimated 2,030 graduates heard Dr. Hannah Holborn Gray, president of the University of Chicago and a noted historian of the Renaissance.

Ms. Gray said the current emphasis on careers for college students has not damaged liberal education, which she said linked the past and future.

In other private college ceremonies, Frank Pace Jr., former U.S. Secretary of the Army, addressed some 140 Catawba College graduates in Salisbury and Charles Rhyne, senior partner of Rhyne and Rhyne of Washington, addressed 129 graduates of Belmont Abbey College in Belmont.

Three state schools held commencement activities Sunday. About 1,650 graduates of Appalachian State University in Boone heard a speech by State Attorney General Rufus Edmisten.

Former Cleveland Mayor Carl Stokes urged 1,000 graduates of North Carolina A&T State University in Greensboro to become personally involved in reform.

"History teaches us that in periods of distress, we can effect change and reform," Stokes said. "You should utilize your training and motivation to reform the system so it can again employ those who want to work."

Margaret Seagars, executive director of the White House Initiative on Historical Black Colleges and Universities, spoke before 364 graduates at Fayetteville State University.

"Degrees do not give you a monopoly on truth," Ms. Seagars said. "Some of the best minds in Harlem never read Hegel."

"Let no one persuade you that success comes easy," she said. "Nothing from nothing gives nothing."

Ms. Seagars also praised President Reagan's programs, pointing out that he signed an executive order in September to aid black colleges and universities.

Dean Martin Is Booked, Freed

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Entertainer Dean Martin, whose comedy routines often rely on jokes about drinking, has been booked on a drunk-driving charge.

Martin, 64, was arrested Saturday night by California Highway Patrol officers, the Los Angeles County sheriff's department said. After being booked, he was released on his own recognizance, said sheriff's Sgt. R.A. Davison.

No details were available about why Martin was stopped or whether he was administered a test to measure the amount of alcohol in his body.

FRASCATI, Italy (AP) — A valuable 13th century painting was stolen overnight from the St. Peter Cathedral of Frascati, south of Rome, police reported today.

TIGERS GRADUATE — Clemson University held its spring graduation Friday, awarding 1,364 degrees. Keeping to the tradition that tiger paws must be seen at every event, Mary Lidefer Carrol of Red Bank, N.J., showed her school spirit by displaying her paw on her mortarboard. This pattern of graduates was observed as they waited to enter Little John coliseum. (AP Laserphoto)

Sirhan Plea For Parole Is Expected

By LINDA DEUTSCH
Associated Press Writer
SOLEDAD, Calif. (AP) — Sirhan Sirhan's time in prison for the killing of Robert F. Kennedy should be computed differently than time served by other prisoners because Sirhan was forced to lead a "loner kind of existence," his lawyer says.

"The 16 years and three or four months he will have served if he gets out in 1984 would translate as 25 to 30 years for someone else," said attorney Luke McKissack.

Sirhan was expected to make his personal plea for freedom today at a parole board hearing in Soledad Prison. The board is considering a request from the Los Angeles County district attorney to rescind Sirhan's 1984 parole date.

McKissack, who spent the weekend working with Sirhan on his 15-minute statement, said the convicted assassin probably would express regret for his crime but say he has been punished enough.

Sirhan, who will be paroled in 1984 unless the board delays his release, will tell how he had to become a virtual recluse in response to his notoriety, McKissack said.

"He will say what it's been like for him being in prison...the different kinds of problems he's had to cope with," McKissack said.

When he first came to prison Sirhan feared he would be killed by inmates seeking to become famous, his attorney said.

"There was no one he could develop a relationship with for fear of his own life," the attorney said. "He was fearful of getting too close to anyone. He knew that people would try to climb over his body and benefit by saying he said things to them. So he stayed removed."

Other prisoners have alleged that Sirhan told them he wanted to kill Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., the slain senator's brother.

"It led to this loner kind of existence as a matter of survival," McKissack said.

In light of this, McKissack said Sirhan will say his time in prison should be computed differently than others.

He noted that Sirhan would stress he was a first-time offender — "a person without a criminal history and with no criminal future."

McKissack said the 38-year-old Sirhan, who hopes his speech will convince the board not to rescind his release date, will express "his belief in the American legal system which set his parole date" and will claim it is unfair for the board to change that decision now.

Another parole panel decided in 1975 that Sirhan should be released in 1986. That date was moved up for good behavior to Sept. 1, 1984.

Los Angeles Deputy District Attorney Larry Trapp, arguing for Sirhan to stay behind bars indefinitely, will say that the original board made a mistake, that it did not evaluate all pertinent evidence and should have treated Sirhan, a political assassin, differently than an ordinary murderer.

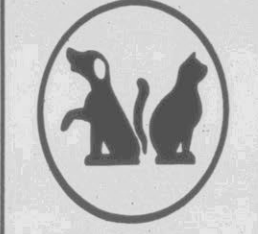

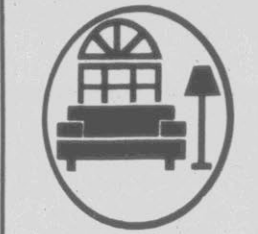

"This is a very unique crime," Trapp has said. "We have to shift the focus away from the individual victim to the wound to society as a whole. There are some kinds of murder that endanger society more than others."

Sirhan, a Jordanian immigrant said to have been angry about Kennedy's pro-Israeli policies, shot the New York senator on June 5, 1968, in Los Angeles moments after Kennedy claimed victory in the California Democratic presidential primary.

The assassin was first sentenced to death, but invalidation of California's death penalty in 1972 changed his term to life in prison with eligibility for parole after seven years.

The campaign to rescind Sirhan's parole date led to the extraordinary series of hearings which have stretched over two weeks and included testimony from prison officials as well as a parade of convicts.

GOREN BRIDGE

BY CHARLES H. GOREN
AND OMAR SHARIF
© 1982 Tribune Company Syndicate, Inc.

Q.1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠ J ♠ AKQ105 ♠ 83 ♠ Q9832
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ Pass
2 NT Pass 3 ♠ Pass
3 ♠ Pass 4 ♠ Pass
6 ♠ Dble ?
What action do you take?
A.—East's double is unconventional, asking for an unusual lead — generally the suit first bid by dummy. He probably has the ace-queen over your partner's king, and at a club contract a diamond lead will give the defense the first two tricks. Convert to six no trump. East becomes the opening leader and your partner's king of diamonds is protected from a lead through.

Q.2—As South vulnerable, you hold:
♠ A6 ♠ J4 ♠ QJ83 ♠ AK1076
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
Pass Pass Pass 1 ♠
Pass 2 ♠ Pass ?
What action do you take?
A.—When partner makes a jump shift as a passed hand, something has happened to improve his holding to the equivalent of an opening bid. That must be either a fit with your suit, or an excellent suit of his own. Your hand rates one move, and we suggest a raise to three spades — under the circumstances, your support is adequate.

Q.3—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠ AQ95 ♠ K93 ♠ K98 ♠ Q97
Your right-hand opponent opens the bidding with one no trump. What action do you take?

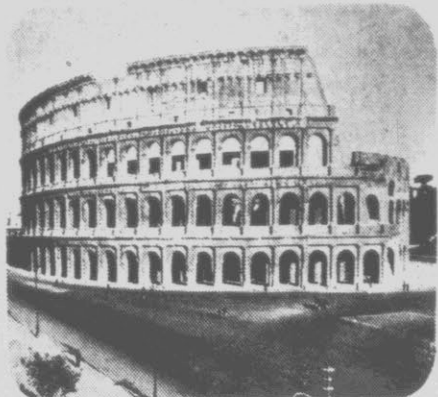

A.—If you enter the auction on this motley collection and find West with the balance of power, the result could be bloody indeed. Pass. A double by you would show the equivalent of a one no trump opening bid, and would be penalty-oriented.

Q.4—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠ 7 ♠ AJ10 ♠ AKQ854 ♠ AQ8
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ Pass
What do you bid now?

A.—Despite the fact that you don't have a fit for partner's suit, your hand seems strong enough to insist on game. Since the most likely game is in no trump and you have both unbid suits well under control, we recommend a jump to three no trump. True, your hand is unbalanced, and partner has every reason to expect another spade from you, but he should not correct to four spades unless he has a long, decent suit and a hand unsuited to no trump play.

Q.5—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠ 73 ♠ 987532 ♠ 1082 ♠ AQ
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South
1 ♠ 2 ♠ ?

FOCUS

Quo Vadis?

For those Americans with a yen to travel and the pesos to pay for it, Europe offers a great deal this summer. Transatlantic bargain flights are available and the dollar is fairly strong in relation to foreign currencies. Because the mark has fallen, Germany is very affordable right now, and France, Austria and Holland are about the same. Britain is more costly with prices about 18 percent higher than in Germany. But the most expensive country in Europe is Switzerland — with 42 percent higher prices than Germany. The best buy is southern Europe. A trip to Italy would be about 16 percent less than a similar stay in Germany, and a Yugoslav vacation would be 10 percent cheaper than Italy.

DO YOU KNOW — Which country is visited by the most foreign tourists each year?

FRIDAY'S ANSWER — Amniocentesis is a test during pregnancy for fetal birth defects.

What action do you take?

A.—There is a strong temptation to double, but your hand — especially your trumps — is not quite good enough. You might take only one trump trick! There is also the possibility that someone will remove the double, and then you will be badly placed in the ensuing auction. Pass.

Q.6—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠ 1092 ♠ J8652 ♠ KJ5 ♠ A8

The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 ♠ Dble Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—Facing a takeout double, you have quite a good hand, and it is your duty to advise partner of this fact. Jump to three hearts. A bid of only two hearts could be made on a bust, and partner will pass with many hands that could produce a game. A jump response to a takeout double is invitational, not forcing.

Cissy Baker Campaigning

HUNTSVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Cissy Baker, following the pattern set by her father and grandfathers, has hit the campaign trail she hopes will lead her to Congress.

About 500 people came to this tiny East Tennessee town Saturday to help the 26-year-old daughter of Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker Jr. launch her bid for the Republican nomination in Tennessee's newly created 4th Congressional District.

After a reception at her family's home, Miss Baker walked down the street to her hometown's square, where she delivered a speech and played guitar with a country music band hired for the festivities.

Miss Baker proposed rural enterprise zones to stimulate small-town economies. She said unemployment, the national debt and high interest rates were the nation's biggest problems.

Baker and his wife, Joy, attended the brunch, but declined interviews. "I'm not going to say anything," Baker said. "I'm leaving this day to Cissy. I think you can understand why."

Miss Baker's maternal grandfather was Senate Minority Leader Everett Dirksen of Illinois. Her paternal grandfather, Howard H. Baker Sr., was a Tennessee congressman.

FIGHT PRIVATE ARMY BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Government forces attacked 40 armed men of opium warlord Khun Sa near the Thai-Burmese border, killing three of his troops, Deputy Prime Minister Prachuab Soon-tarangkun said today. One border policeman was killed.

There's a Dhurrie (or two) for every taste and home decor in our remarkable Dhurrie Event. All gathered in one of the most impressive collections of nationally advertised Pande Cameron Dhurries we've ever assembled.

Why is Dhurrie so prized? Because of its versatile flatweave. This smooth, tightly woven stitch makes each Dhurrie usable as a fine carpet or hangable as a fine tapestry. And because the flatweave creates two perfectly finished sides, every Dhurrie is beautifully reversible.

Meticulously hand-woven in India, the Dhurrie is crafted with the finest woolen yarns and truest color dyes. From any point of view, it is a work of art.

We urge you to see the collection at your earliest convenience, while widest selections in style, size and color are available.
