Howell Named ECU Chancellor

Dr. John Howell

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

CHAPEL HILL - Dr. John Howell was elected chancellor of East Carolina University this morning by the University of North Carolina Board of Governors.

The election of Howell makes him the eighth chief administrative officer at ECU in 75 years.

Howell, acting chancellor at East Carolina since January, was nominated for the post by UNC President William Friday from a list of three candidates submitted by the ECU Board of Trustees.

Following his election, Howell told Friday and the Board of Governors:

"Thank you for this expression of your confidence. I accept this assignment and I am challenged by it.

"We know that East Carolina has a good future when it is compared to many institutions in other parts of the nation. We have a moderate climate that is the 'greener pasture' to those in places like upper New York state.

"The strength of East Carolina has been built on this interchange with the people it serves. The relationship has been mutually advantageous and all of us know it. We do not make the mistake of assuming that we can solve all the problems of the world by working together in this way, but we do plan to tackle some of them and thereby improve the quality of life."

Howell concluded by saying, "During the interim that began in January, we have been supported by the (UNC) General Administration, the ECU Board of Trustees, the campus community, the alumni and friends of the university, not only in Greenville, but in the entire area served by East Carolina University."

"We expected support, but we never dreamed that it would be so warm and so complete. With your endorsement today we can approach the always uncertain future with confidence."

ECU board Chairman Ashley Futrell, who was in Chapel Hill this morning, said, "I think we've come up with the finest possible answer. Dr. Howell will be a real leader in the university community and in the primary area served by East Carolina University."

Futrell also predicted that Howell's election as chancellor "will be met with genuine approval and appreciation by the

Long-Postponed Rezoning Petition Finally Denied

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

After continuing action on a rezoning request for several successive months, the City Council finally brought the matter to a vote Thursday night and turned down the petition.

The governing board's denial of a request by J.T. Manning to rezone 4.5 acres adjacent to Tucker Farms and Shenandoah Subdivision actually resulted from the failure of a motion that was made to approve the zoning change.

Mayor Percy Cox explained that a petition protesting the rezoning from RA-20 to R-9 had been received by the city from property owners adjacent to the Manning tract and in order for the council to approve the request five affirmative votes were necessary.

After brief public hearing remarks supporting and opposing the Manning request, a motion to rezone the property failed by a four to two margin. Council members Stuart Shinn, Louis Clark, Judy Greene and William Hadden voted in favor of the request while Janice Buck and George Pugh cast opposing ballots.

In asking for council approval, attorney Fred Mattox said that Manning, his client, had owned the property for 17 years and did not set the development trend toward multifamily usage in the area. Mattox said the mill run that separates the property from single family homes provides a natural buffer.

The attorney asked, "If you don't rezone it to R-9, what will you do with it?"

Joe Laney, a homeowner who represented the protest petitioners, asked that the city consider providing an R-9 residential buffer between the Manning tract and the single family homes. Laney asked that the council follow the recommendation of the Planning and Zoning Commission in denying the Manning request.

Jim Lanier of Country Club Drive also supported the request of Laney and the protest petitioners.

Hadden said he was concerned with the buffer arrangement but he added that he felt the R-9 designation was in keeping with the planned zoning for the area. He said he felt the city was obligated to zone the property R-9.

Council members continued for at least 30 days action on a request by Greenville Cable TV Inc. for a revised bulk rate schedule and the establishment of a motel bulk rate.

Janet Cooke, general manager of the local cable system, said the bulk rate schedule applied to any apartment or condominium development with 30 or more units. She said the firm proposed that a maximum rate of $4.30 per unit per month for bulk rate subscriptions be set but the rate change would not affect any apartments or condominium complexes already under a seven-year contract.

R. W. Howard, a resident of Windy Ridge and member of the homeowners association's board there, said that cable service to the condominiums is unsatisfactory. He said that the cable firm utilized an existing system built for the units to accommodate local channels and Windy Ridge has now been told that the system is inadequate to provide quality cable reception.

Howard said the 105 families at Windy Ridge were disenchanted with cable and did not feel that the firm should ask for a rate increase when it is not providing adequate service.

Cable spokesman Ray Bell said that reception has never been adequate in cases where an existing system was utilized and he said his firm has offered to rebuild

British Spirit, Pride Re-Raised

By MAUREEN JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) - After 30 years of waning international influence and economic decline, the determined British pride that stood against Hitler has been reborn in the Falkland Islands crisis.

The public opinion polls show that the majority of the British people support Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's call to fight for the principle that aggression must not be allowed to pay off.

To some analysts, it is a response born of the yearning for the glory of bulldog resistance in World War II and the humiliation of Britain's last major military expedition, the abortive attempt in 1956 to retake the Suez Canal.

"This whole sense of war spirit and military values and concern with questions of courage and principle is in many ways tremendously irrelevant to our real problems," said author Anthony Sampson, whose book "The Anatomy of Britain" is a standard text on British society.

"Yet we are able to mobilize a sense of national purpose and unity over this rather eccentric expedition which we have failed to produce in other fields - planning, industrial growth,

Confirms Israeli Forces Poised To Attack PLO

BY MARCUS ELIASON
Associated Press Writer

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) - Israel's military chief of staff, Lt. Gen. Raphael Eytan, confirmed in an interview published today that Israel has concentrated forces on the Lebanese border for a possible attack on Palestinian guerrillas.

"I'm not saying that there is going to be a military operation," he told the daily Yedioth Ahronoth. But the Palestinian guerrillas in Lebanon know that "the price is now much higher, because I have concentrated forces in the north."

Bomb experts dismantled a nine-pound time bomb in a telephone booth just off Teeming Zion Square in the Jewish sector of Jerusalem today. The discovery of the bomb, presumed to be the work of Palestinians terrorists, heightened speculation that the Israelis might go into action in southern Lebanon.

Eytan's remarks confirmed what correspondents have known for weeks but have been unable to report because of military censorship - that Israel has moved large quantities of troops and hardware to the Lebanese frontier.

The number of troops is not known, but some foreign reports have mentioned as many as 40,000 men.

In another indication of Israel's strong stake in the Lebanese arena, Prime Minister Menachem Begin was quoted as saying his government had given its Lebanese Christian allies $100 million worth of military aid in recent years. Israel army radio said Begin made the disclosure to visiting Italian Foreign Minister Emilio Colombo.

Eytan's interview shed new light on the tough-talking military chief's preference for massive retaliation in dealing with the guerrilla problem.

The only way to beat the guerrillas was to "charge them a price they cannot afford," he was quoted as saying.

"They can plant a mine, but they don't know what I plan to do. I might go into Beirut. Maybe their entire artillery will be destroyed. Maybe all their command posts will be destroyed. Then they'll think a million times before they plant a mine," he said.

Israel should not play according to rules set by the guerrillas, he said. "That means that if I have a big bat and the other side has a small bat, I don't have to exchange my big bat for a small bat."

Eytan appeared to be speaking for the hardliners in the debate that has split the Cabinet over whether to invade Lebanon.

According to Israeli press reports, Prime Minister Menachem Begin, Defense Minister Ariel Sharon and several other ministers favor military action, but are opposed by a group of Cabinet doves who doubt a massive operation can solve the problem.

Israel has been poised for most of this year to launch a sweep into Lebanon, but has held off partly because of U.S. pressure. It has also been urged by most of the press to exercise restraint.

Wholesale Prices Enjoy Tiny Increase After Brief Decline

By SALLY JACOBSEN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Wholesale prices reversed two months of declines and rose at a tiny annual rate of 0.9 percent in April, the government said today.

Rising prices for food largely offset record declines in energy costs in the Labor Department's Producer Price Index for finished goods - the formal name for the wholesale price index.

With the overall gain in April, inflation at the wholesale level was running at an annual rate of 0.4 percent for the first four months of 1982. For all of 1981, the index rose 7 percent.

The minuscule rise in the index so far this year lends further support to economists' predictions that wholesale inflation for all of 1982 will be well under last year's pace.

Many have lowered their predictions for this year to as little as 4.5 percent, down from the 6 percent to 7 percent forecast earlier.

The lingering recession and the worldwide oil glut have been held largely responsible for the lowered inflation rate. As the economy pulls out of the recession, however, economists are expecting prices to rise moderately.

At the White House, presidential spokesman Larry Speakes said today's report indicates a "continued moderation of inflation pressures, a development that continues to bring relief to every American worker and saver."

In other economic news today, the Federal Reserve Board said production by the nation's factories and mines fell 0.6 percent in April, continuing a slide that has seen output decline in eight of the last nine months.

The board reported markedly increased production of consumer durable goods - including cars and home goods - but said there were large reductions in the output of business equipment, construction supplies and durable goods materials.

The 0.6 percent overall drop in production was not quite as steep as March's 0.8 percent decline and was not nearly as bad as declines of well over 1 percent per month during the winter.

In its new wholesale price report, the Labor Department said the index rose a seasonally adjusted 0.1 percent in April. That was up from February and March, when the index had fallen 0.1 percent each month. The last time the measure had dropped two months in a row was in January and February, 1976.

Inflation at the wholesale level had risen 0.4 percent in January.

If prices rose for 12 straight months at April's rate, the yearly rise would be 0.9 percent after seasonal adjustment. The annual rate reported by the Labor Department is based on a more precise calculation of monthly changes than the figure the department makes public.

The new report said that over the last year, from April 1981 to April 1982, prices at the wholesale level rose 3.1 percent - the lowest gain for a 12-month period since the 2.9 percent in the year ending in October 1976.

Specifically, the department said in its report of April wholesale price activity:

-Energy costs declined 5.2 percent, the fourth straight monthly drop. The decline was the biggest monthly decrease since the government began calculating energy prices in 1974 and broke the 2.9 percent record fall of January 1976.

MONEY BACK - FINALLY

On Sept. 14, 1981, I placed an order at a beauty show in New York for some costume jewelry to sell in my wife's boutique. I paid cash and have an invoice that indicates "paid in full." I've never received my merchandise. Writing to the company, Mardon Jewelry Corporation Inc. of Providence, R.I., brings no response. C.S.

Hotline called and talked to Ron Moline, who said if we'd send a copy of the invoice, he'd send you the refund. Arrest State Rep. G.R. Taylor In Burnings Case WINDSOR, N.C. (AP) - State Rep. G. Ronald Taylor has been arrested on charges connected with the April burning of four warehouses owned by State Sen. J.J. "Monk" Harrington, court officials said today.

A Bertie County Superior Court official, who asked to not be identified, said early this morning that the Bladen County Democrat was lodged in the Bertie County Jail. Bond has not been set.

"As far as I know, the charges - well, I haven't seen the bill of indictments," the official said. "They are sealed and will be opened later in the morning."

"I assume they are arson-related charges," the official said. "I'll make the statement that he (Taylor) is there (Bertie County Jail)."

Attempts to reach Taylor early Friday morning by telephone at the jail ended when jail officials told reporters, "He's asleep."

Taylor is to appear at 11:30 a.m. today in Halifax before Superior Court Judge Richard B. Allsbrook, officials said.

According to the Greensboro Daily News, Taylor was indicted by a Bertie County grand jury on Thursday.

Harrington's warehouses, located in Lewiston, burned April 23.

Taylor, 29, of Dublin, was arrested by State Bureau of Investigation agents about 4:30 p.m. Thursday at the family-owned Taylor Manufacturing Co. in Elizabethtown, the newspaper said.

Bertie County District Attorney Willis Murphrey said the case was still under investigation. Other county and state authorities refused to say what the specific charges are, the newspaper said.

State Department of Justice officials also refused to comment except to say that a special prosecutor from the department will assist Murphrey in prosecuting Taylor and two other defendants from Bladen County charged last week with burning the warehouses.

Two Clarkton men, Sandy White Jr., 46, and G. Franklin Bridgers, 43, were arrested May 3 and are being held by Bertie County authorities under bonds of $100,000 each. Both were charged with arson and unlawful burning, according to Bertie Clerk of Court Thomas S. Speight.

White is a former tobacco farm manager and tobacco warehouse worker for Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green of Clarkton. He is now president of a small company which manufactures picnic tables and other outdoor furniture in a building adjacent to and owned by Taylor Manufacturing Co. Bridgers is an unemployed construction worker.

Taylor said in an interview this week that it would be "crazy" for anyone to assume that he or anyone in his family had anything to do with burning Harrington's warehouses.

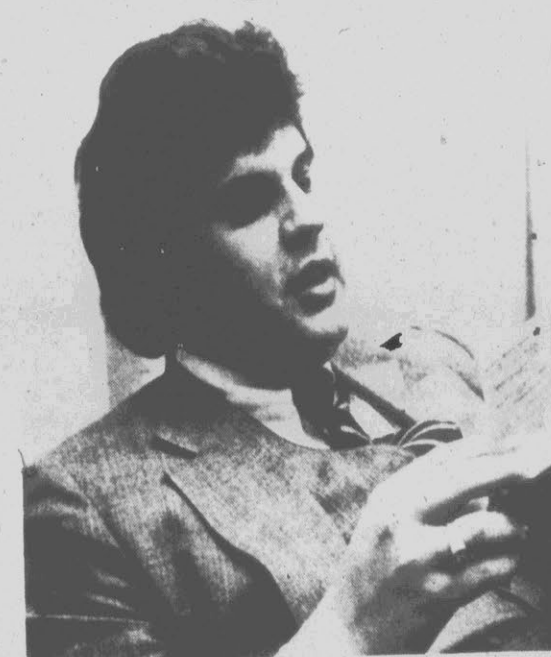

Harrington, owner of Harrington Manufacturing Co. of Lewiston, estimated his loss at $500,000 as the fire destroyed three warehouses and damaged another.

Harrington has been trying to collect a $350,000 federal court judgement for patent infringement from Taylor Tobacco Enterprises. The Elizabethtown company employs Taylor and is owned by his parents, the paper said.

The judgement was awarded by a federal grand jury in New Bern in December 1980 and affirmed by the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Richmond.

The court ruled that a mechanism used in tobacco harvesters manufactured and sold by Taylor Manufacturing $118-Million Budget Adopted By Community Colleges Bd.

By MARY ANNE RHYNE
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A $118-million budget for 1983-1985 has been approved by the state Board of Community Colleges, with a $30 million allocation for new equipment as its top priority.

"The training equipment, much of it, is out of date, obsolete and in need of repair," said Judy O'Neal, board spokesman.

Community college officials, local leaders and lawmakers were asked to rank their priorities during a series of six public hearings, which served as help in preparing the budget.

The Advisory Budget Commission and Gov. Jim Hunt will review the budget proposal, make adjustments and submit it to the legislature.

The budget seeks $20 million for a projected increase in enrollment at the school and another $20 million is sought for increased funding per student, Ms. O'Neal said.

She said board members also expressed concern for funding of the adult basic education program, whose money comes mostly from the federal government. Federal money for the program has been cut by 20 percent for 1983-85 and Ms. O'Neal said federal money may be eliminated altogether by 1987.

In other action, the board approved new programs at eight schools and set up seven more cooperative skills training centers, schools to coordinate costly programs to train highly skilled workers.

The new programs are for institutional technology at Reaumur County Community College, Davidson County Community College, Forsyth Technical Institute, Halifax Community College, Mitchell Community College and Robeson Technical College.

Each school will receive $75,240 to set up programs to train workers in critically needed fields — tool and die making, machinists and industrial maintenance workers.

College, Lenoir Community College and Tri-County Community College; industrial maintenance at Anson Technical College; nursing education options at Central Carolina Technical College; chemical technology at Fayetteville Technical Institute and Guilford Technical Institute; and associate degree nursing at Mitchell Community College.

The skills training centers will be established at Cleveland Technical College, Coastal Carolina Community

Swears In New Supreme Court

By DAVID BRISCOE
Associated Press Writer
MANILA, Philippines (AP) — President Ferdinand E. Marcos swore in a "new Supreme Court" today with the same chief justice and 1 of the members who resigned in a bar exam scandal.

The president left out two of the justices involved in the scandal and appointed three new men, filling all 15 court seats for the first time ever.

The country had technically been without a Supreme Court since Marcos accepted the resignations Monday, citing the court's "tarnished prestige."

Marcos reappointed CHIEF Justice Enrique Fernando, who admitted "blurred judgment" in allowing recorection of the exam of a fellow justice's son. Two other justices linked to the scandal — RAMON Aquino and Antonio Barredo — also were retained.

But the president did not reappoint Justices Ramon Fernandez or Vicente Erieta. Fernandez allegedly helped obtain the test booklet of Erieta's son at Erieta's request before bar results were announced, leading to a change in the youth's grade so he could pass.

In a low-key ceremony, Marcos swore in as new justices Conrado Vasquez, a former Court of Appeals judge; Lorenzo Relova, former Supreme Court administrator, and Hugo Gutierrez, a former assistant solicitor general.

There were no speeches during the ceremonies and no mention of Erieta, Fernandez or the bar scandal.

Some groups had urged Marcos to replace the entire court. Newspapers were full of speculation that prominent government officials might be added to the bench as Marcos called in dozens of people to consult on the matter.

overwhelming majority of our people."

Saying "the trustees are unanimous in their feeling that he is the best man available" and noting that, "I think he's a good man and think he's going to do a good job," Futrell said "90 percent of the people I've talked to from the Greenville area in the last month have endorsed Howell."

Futrell served as chairman of the 15-member chancellor selection committee. He said the committee "was unanimous" in its recommendation of Howell.

"I think this committee has shown great dedication and done a magnificent job in coming up with a candidate of this caliber. In my opinion, the chancellor selection committee is most enthusiastic about this selection," Futrell said.

Futrell emphasized that Howell did not apply for the post as chancellor. Howell, he explained, "was nominated and put in by the Chancellor Selection Committee."

Now, according to the ECU board chairman, "We've got a lot to do about getting things (at the university) back on track. He (Howell) wants to get to work immediately on that."

Prior to the start of today's board meeting, Friday noted that the ECU position was the 20th chancellorship recommendation he has made. "I wish I had felt as confident about the rest as I do about this one," Friday said.

The governors accepted Friday's recommendation and elected Howell chancellor on a motion submitted by David J. Whichard II of Greenville.

In his nomination, Friday said one of the more pertinent factors involved in his recommendation of Howell was that, in each phase of the selection process, the vote for Howell had been unanimous. "That speaks very highly for him," Friday said.

Howell, a World War II Air Force veteran, attended the University of Alabama and Duke University and taught at a number of colleges and universities before joining the East Carolina faculty in 1957 as an associate professor of political science. He became a full professor in 1961 and since has served as chairman of the department of political science, dean of the college of arts and sciences, dean of the graduate school and provost and vice chancellor for academic affairs.

Howell, who gave up his vice chancellor's post in 1979 to return to the classroom, was appointed acting chancellor by Friday in January, following the Sept. 9, 1981, resignation of former Chancellor Thomas Brewer.

Howell's wife, Gladys, was an associate professor of sociology at ECU until his appointment as acting chancellor.

He said this morning that "I've talked about her a good bit," since becoming acting chancellor. Now, "I have the appointment but she's very much involved in helping me carry it out. She's giving up her career for this, but is glad to do it."

"She does a lot of the work. It's an appointment that requires two people. Maybe one person could do it, but it really makes it a whole lot more effective, I think, with two. And I think she's pretty good at it, to put it mildly," the new chancellor said.

VonBulow Bail Hearing Slated

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Claus von Bulow, sentenced to 30 years in prison after being convicted of twice trying to murder his heiress wife, faces a hearing a week from today to determine if he has met a bail requirement allowing him to remain free pending appeal.

A lawyer for the socialite submitted a list of von Bulow's assets valued at $1 million and posted a $50,000 bond Thursday in accordance with instructions from Judge Thomas H. Needham.

Before bail becomes official, however, the court must verify the assets, court officials said. Von Bulow was found guilty March 16 of trying to kill Martha "Sunny" von Bulow with insulin injections.

Nationally Known Teachers Present For Quilt Symposium

By ROSALIE TROTMAN
Reflector Woman's Editor

A lot of expertise in the area of quilts began arriving here late Wednesday afternoon. Several nationally known instructors and students were gathering and registering at Tyler Dormitory.

The occasion was the N.C. Quilt Symposium '82 which opened here Thursday morning with a session by Flavin Glover of Alabama on "Quiltaholism — No Known Cure."

Georgia Bonesteel of Hendersonville, Nancy Halpern of Natick, Mass., and Carter Houck of New York are among the women teaching during the three days.

Georgia Bonesteel: "My quilting focus over the years has been with the beginning quilters — the gal that has a sewing background but has never made a quilt! I'm here teaching garment or quilted vest-making which has been very popular and shows how diversified quilts can be — as clothing, in home decorations, for small projects such as tote bags and accessories. The most important aspect is quilts' keep us warm," said Ms. Bonesteel.

"The essence of quilting is connecting the three layers together for warmth and fiber dimension which produces the quilt. To me, the prettiest thing or overall aspect of the finished product is the shadows created by the quilting.

"From my standpoint I think the next thing quilters can look for is machine quilting, which is something I have not expanded on. We are all so busy learning new techniques and new patterns, it's hard to pinpoint one new aspect. That's the idea of the symposium — to learn, grow and exchange ideas. The camaraderie is sharing all these learning experiences with friends — it's a friendly competitive spirit.

"I teach quiltmaking because people seem so eager to learn plus I have an inborn desire to tell it all. The line that I mainly teach is geared toward the woman and the home. My style of teaching is working with traditional patterns with an upbeat approach — trying to be more innovative, showing more spirit," said Ms. Bonesteel.

Ms. Bonesteel appears in a lap-quilting series for the University of North Carolina Public Television network. She is the author of a book scheduled for release in June entitled, "Lap Quilting With Georgia Bonesteel," published by Oxmore House. "It's a polished and professional book based on my first study guide," she said. "Lap Quilting — Your Legacy Quilt," was her study guide for her first 12 television shows. Thirteen new shows have been taped and produced and will be aired in North Carolina beginning in July.

"I am very much elated to have my book completed," she said.

Nancy Halpern: Nancy Halpern doesn't care what's new in the quilting world. "What I do care about in the quilt world as a teacher, and that's why I'm here, is to encourage women to have the confidence to speak out with their own voices in fabric. Lots of people are already technically and competent to make beautiful 'tradition' quilts. I want to help them take the next step — to realize that tradition does not mean 'reactionary' — that we are the tradition and that we all have our feet firmly planted on the continuum," she said.

"I particularly care about landscape and the kind of indigenous architecture which seems to grow out of the landscape. Lately I have been trying to make quilts which depict shelter. Quilts, of course, are portable shelters like tents and clothing.

"On the personal level, the reason I like quilts is because they're fabric and I understand fabric. When I want to say something, I say it with fabric. I tried other things to start with and I didn't get very far with it. But like a lot of other women when I started making quilts I left like I'd come home in a sense.

"The longer I make quilts, the easier I find it to say in fabric. These are not always easy things to say. Sometimes they involve pain, a loneliness or loss. But because it takes a long time to make a quilt, these feelings are tempered by good days and warm feelings, so that the resulting quilt has (I hope) a certain balance in it.

"The sculptor Isamo Noguchi says that when he starts a piece he hits the rock and breaks it — that every chisel mark he makes afterwards is an attempt to bring the piece back into balance. I feel the same way about quilt making. I make an initial cut and then spend weeks and months bringing my ideas back into balance," she explained.

"When I first started making quilts I thought quilts were two dimensional. The more I worked with them, the more I realize they are three dimensional because they involve us in so many levels — as expressions of design, as shelter, as history, as objects these two areas of design. The best part of quilting is that it can be solitary or a group effort.

"I'm here because of my North Carolina friends. I will be teaching Victorian crazy quilting which includes silk and velvet and lots of embroidery. It's a type of quilting popular from 1870-1910. Nobody has been able to think of anything intelligent to do with it because it is so elaborate. It was suited especially to Victorian houses. The only place anyone would use it now is on

Georgia Bonesteel

"As a person, anything I do I enjoy and I feel I must tell everybody about it. Now for this reason, I have taught sewing, all types of needlework, beginners backpacking and introduced people to sailing. In other words, if I like it, I teach it. My whole family is afflicted with this disease," she added.

DEAR ABBY: Re your "Secretaries' Prayer." A secretary needs her rights more than she needs a prayer. I submit the enclosed for your consideration.

EVE BERTON, ADMINISTRATIVE ASSISTANT, NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF WORKING WOMEN, CLEVELAND, OHIO

The Bill of Rights for Women Office Workers

1. The right to respect as women and as office workers.
2. The right to comprehensive, written job descriptions specifying the nature of all duties expected of the employee.
3. The right to detailed descriptions specifying compensation, terms, conditions and benefits of employment.
4. The right to compensation for overtime work and for work not included in our job descriptions.
5. The right to choose whether to do the personal work of employers (typing personal letters, serving coffee, running out for lunch).
6. The right to defined and regular salary reviews and cost-of-living increases.
7. The right to comprehensive medical coverage for any temporary medical disability without jeopardizing our seniority, benefits or pensions.
8. The right to maternity benefits and to having pregnancy and other gynecological conditions treated as temporary medical disabilities.
9. The right to benefits equal to those of men in similar job categories.
10. The right to equal access to promotion opportunities and on-the-job training programs.
11. The freedom to choose one's lifestyle and to participate in on-the-job organizing or outside activities that do not detract from the execution of assigned tasks.
12. An end to discrimination on the basis of sex, age, race, marital status or parenthood.
13. The right to written and systematic grievance procedures.

that show loving and caring, as gifts and companions, as lonely people who need something to do," Ms. Halpern remarked.

Carter Houck: "Quilting is the American woman's art and statement far more than anything else that has lasted. Through their quilts you know what the lives of farm women in the 1930s or a lady of Baltimore in 1840 were like. As you feel their quilt and see their tiny stitches, you can almost hear their voice," said Ms. Houck.

"Professionally, I come from a dual background of needlework and sewing as in fashions. Quilting is the only art that really combines

Naval Future Is Now

The shock of the French-built Argentine missile hitting a British destroyer, after being launched from something over 20 miles away, should have been felt in all world capitals where national defense figures in their preoccupation.

The missile, popularly known as a "fire and forget" weapon, hit its target dead center; posing huge implications for the present and future. There is no sure defense, little advance warning against the deadly stinger.

All ships of war are vulnerable because there is (as of now) little chance of escape. More than that, any armored vehicle is similarly vulnerable ... becoming something less than a combat weapon, and now more of a target.

In World War I the tank made its debut as a revolutionary weapon and was the dominant tool for combat in World War II, pacing advances of entire armies. Today it appears facing the fate of dinosaurs. (Maybe we can now do without those multimillion-dollar "Cadillac" tanks that require such a large part of the U.S. Army's present budget, and devote the savings to antitank missiles.)

In aerial warfare we have already seen the old "dogfight" replaced by simply sighting and firing air-to-air missiles with a homing ability that outperforms everything except imagination.

If army, naval and air force chiefs around the world are not badly shaken, they should be. The future has already moved in on them.

Graham's Soviet Visit Risky

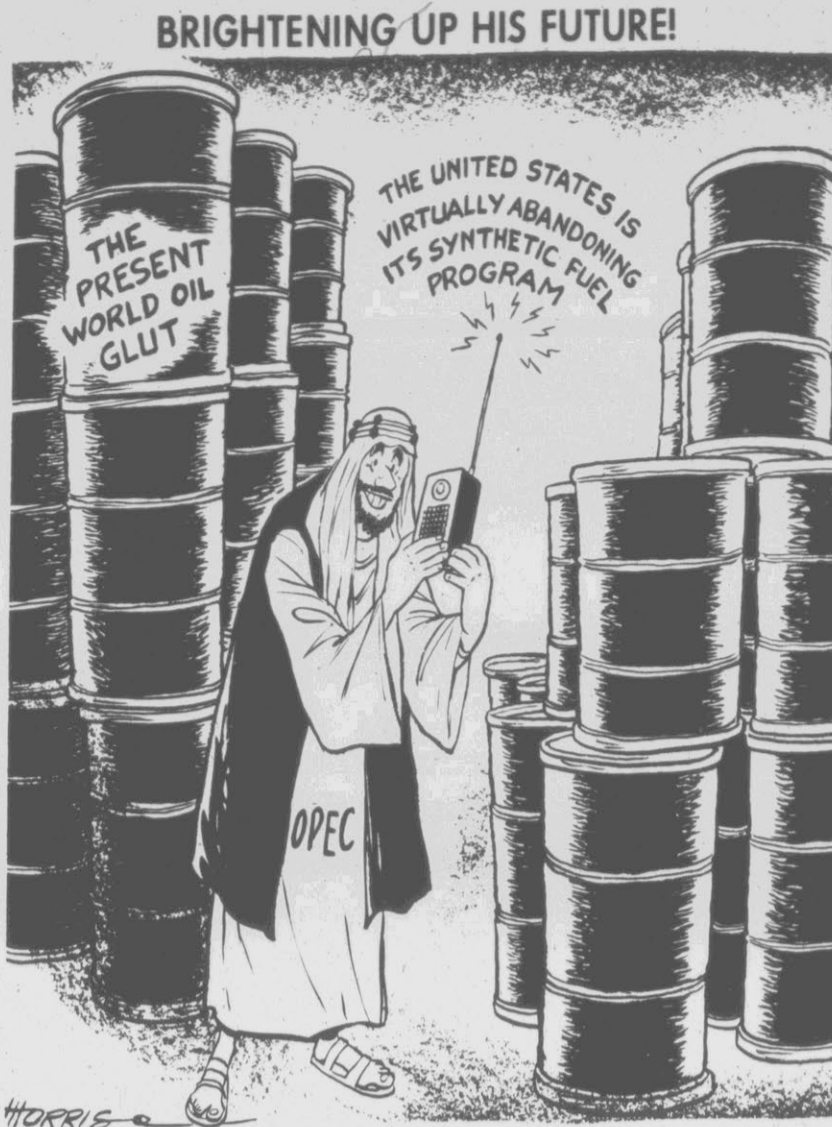

North Carolina Evangelist Billy Graham has concluded his controversial visit to the Soviet Union, amid criticism back in the United States of his comments on individual rights while there.

His critics should be more understanding. The trip to the Soviet Union was a difficult one for Graham to undertake. There was danger of the visit being used for propaganda motives by the Soviet government. Any all-out attack on the government there would have soon branded him as unwanted and might have brought about restrictions on his movements.

As it was, Graham was able to visit Soviet churches and preach the message he has offered throughout a lifetime. His stand on religious freedom is well known and he said nothing to dilute it.

Billy Graham had more people contact while he was in the Soviet Union than could any diplomat we might ever send to that nation. His contacts with Soviet citizens of religious convictions were worth more than years of railing from the safety of a pulpit in the United States ever could be.

We should thank him for the risks he took.

Those School Prayers

It is to the President's credit that with all the things on his plate, including unemployment, a tough budget fight, the Falkland crisis and his efforts to try to close the "Window of Vulnerability," he would take time to propose a constitutional amendment to permit prayers in school.

Critics have accused Mr. Reagan of raising the issue at this moment as a sop to his right-wing supporters, who feel the President has been spending too much time on the country's financial problems and not enough energy on the real issues facing the nation, of which school prayer is one with the highest priority.

Whether a constitutional amendment is a solution is up for debate. I believe we should try some other remedies first to satisfy everybody.

The administration has come down strgly on the side of giving tax credits to parents who send their children to parochial schools. It seems to me if this law is peer pressure as well as teacher pressure will force a kid to pray whether he has the choice or not.

The latter group sees this kind of scenario:

"All right, children, we will now open with a morning prayer. Those sinners who don't believe in God can either stand in the back of the room with their faces to the wall, or hide in the clothes closet.

"Come, you little Bolsheviks, hurry it up so the rest of us can get on with seeking divine guidance. Where are you going, Tony?"

"I'm going to the back of the room. I already prayed at home this morning."

"And you think that's enough?"

"It's enough for me."

"Look at Tony, children. He is a perfect example of a secular humanist. He'd rather stand in the back of the room than pray to God. Does anyone know where Tony is going to wind up with his attitude?"

"In Hell."

"Very good, Charles. And who will he find in Hell?"

"Satan."

"And what will Satan make him do?"

"He'll make him feed the flames of a fiery furnace, and Tony will have to wear a tail, and he'll be screaming all the time and fighting off snakes, but it won't do him any good."

"That's absolutely right, Enid. Who knows what else will happen to him?"

"Blackbirds will peck his eyes out, and he'll have a stomachache all the time and his toes will drop off."

"Very good, Everett. Well, passed, a compromise solution to the problem would be to permit children attending public schools to be bused to a religious school of their choosing in the morning, say their prayers, and then get back on the bus and go to their public school to do their work. In this way you would give American children an opportunity to pray, but you would also keep religion off state property. Those on the bus who didn't want to pray could remain in their seats and hit each other over the heads with books.

The pro-prayer people say that the constitutional amendment is voluntary and a child will not have to pray if he doesn't want to. The anti-prayer people maintain that

THIS AFTERNOON

A Classic Contest

By PAUL T. O'CONNOR
RALEIGH — The race developing this year in the 4th Congressional District ought to be as much a battle of campaign styles as it is a contest of political philosophies. Barring an upset in the June 29 Republican primary, this fall's campaign in the district should be a classic confrontation between old-fashioned and modern North Carolina politicking.

Democrat Ike Andrews of Cary is running for a sixth term in Congress. His challenger is Bill Cobey of Chapel Hill, the former UNC athletic director and the unsuccessful Republican candidate for lieutenant governor in 1980. In the primary, Cobey must first beat Raleigh's Leo Tew, a politically unknown retired airline pilot who has little chance of winning.

The district is comprised of Wake, Franklin, Chatham, Orange and Randolph counties.

Cobey is the thoroughly modern candidate — a political product of Sen. Jesse Helms' National Congressional Club. In 1980, he cashed in on the public recognition he earned at UNC, got into politics and almost beat Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green. The club, through a tax-exempt affiliate called the Taxpayers Educational Coalition, has kept Cobey's face on Raleigh-area TV screens during the political off-season and has now brought him out for a full-scale attack on Andrews.

Cobey hopes to have a campaign budget of $300,000. He already has a staff of five and the polling firm of Arin the campaign, will get out more this time. But he'll spend a lot of time raising TV money.

In Andrews, Cobey will be facing the old-boy Southern gentleman-politician. Andrews runs his own campaigns primarily from his hip pocket. He'll have volunteer campaign managers in thur Finkelstein has been testing the political winds for him. He'll use professional media consultants and conduct direct-mail fundraising. Almost certainly, he'll spend a great deal of money on television advertising.

In the 1980 campaign, the Republican "New Team" of statewide candidates made very few public appearances. Instead, they raised money either over the phone or in private meetings. That money was then spent on TV. Cobey, whose engaging personality should be a big plus

Other Editors Say Political Summer

(Washington Daily News)

Because the legislature had severe difficulties in redrawing the district lines for N.C. House and Senate seats, the usual primary dates have been moved back from the traditional date of May 4 to June 29.

On June 29, both Democratic and Republican parties throughout North Carolina will be holding their primaries. There will be some second primaries in evidence, too. They will be held on July 27.

Then we can look forward to the general election which takes place on Tuesday, November 2.

Over the years we have heard it said many times that we cannot get people out to vote when school is not in session and we cannot get people out to vote during the summer months because of vacations.

Being here in an area that at least is semi-recreational and with plentiful waters for skiing, boating, fishing, swimming and enjoying the natural scenery, we understand the difficulties involved in impressing upon citizens the necessity to go to the polls and cast ballots.

Yet we do have that very challenge before us. Unless an all-out effort is made here to get out the vote we shall, in all probability, fall embarrassingly low in the number of our electorate casting ballots.

Ordinarily in a Democratic primary we might go to the polls and cast something between 5,000 and 6,000 votes in Beaufort County; Hyde County may cast from 1,200 to 1,800 votes. Republicans in Beaufort may cast 400 votes and in Hyde less than 100.

What is happening is that about 30 percent of the registered voters are taking the time to go to the polls and vote. And it does take a little time and trouble. Added to the picture is the fact that in Beaufort County we have another 8,000 people who should be registered but who have not put their names on the voting books. In Hyde County there are around 1,000 such potential voters.

Admittedly, we have a job on our hands to do a creditable job of voting in our area in June and July with school out and vacations on. But these conditions in no manner imply that the effort to get out a healthy vote should not be made. Indeed, we need to redouble our efforts.

Strength For Today

INCREASING STATURE
Some of the older men's colleges and preparatory schools are going to face a heavy expense in the next few years — they must buy new beds for their dormitories. The beds they bought years ago are now too short for the present generation of young men. Perhaps by the year 2000 any man under six feet in height will be conspicuous by his diminutive stature.

We can well believe this because those of us who have traveled through Europe recall seeing suits of armor worn by the heroes of old which would just about fit a modern 13-year-old boy.

We stand on the threshold of a world of bigger men. But will they be bigger in spirit, in understanding, and in soul than their ancestors? This is by no means certain, if only because such growth is not simply a natural process. It requires stronger moral purpose, a greater sense of social responsibility, and these things require special help — from above. — Elisha Douglass

Henry J., A Man With Vision

By C. W. MIRANKER
Associated Press Writer
OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — The year is 1883, and the photograph shows 18-month-old Henry Jack wearing a lacy white dress and sitting in a high-back chair.

A half century later, snapshots reveal the little boy has grown into a successful, innovative industrialist: standing on a construction platform at the Hoover Dam, beaming proudly at Liberty ship launchings, accompanying President Roosevelt on a shipyard tour.

In between, Henry J. Kaiser built roads, bridges, levees and pipelines; he founded cement, magnesium and steel plants, managed a huge artillery-shell operation and ran an aircraft and aircraft-parts plant.

Then he turned to aluminum, cars, houses, hotels, kitchen appliances, radio and television stations and a novel prepaid medical care program, the first and largest of its kind.

His achievements are the focus of an exhibit of photographs, cars, memorabilia and sketches of futuristic vehicles he dreamt up but didn't build. The "Man of Vision" show which opened a week ago at the Kaiser Center in Oakland and in mid-June will tour the country in honor of the centennial year of his birth.

Photos chronicle the last of the great, self-made American industrialists as he made his way from upstate New York, where he was born to German immigrant parents, to Florida, Spokane, Wash., British Columbia, Cuba, Hawaii and California, where he based his farflung activities.

At 13, Kaiser began work in a drygoods store, went on to open a photo studio and supply store, worked as a hardware salesman, signed on with a gravel and cement company and then took over a road-building company that went bust in midproject. He finished the job successfully and began making a name for himself in the construction business with speed and innovation.

In 1921 when Kaiser got his first California job, the average progress for road

Prayers At Post-Time

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent
LOUISVILLE, KY. (AP) — More fervent prayers are whispered, indeed shouted, under the twin steeples of Churchill Downs on Derby Day than in all the great Gothic cathedrals of Europe.

"Lord," the ancient pleas rises to heaven over the tote board, "let me break even. I need the money."

The octagonal pagoda looming above the winner's circle adds an air of Oriental mysticism to Louisville's hallowed hippodrome, which on the first Saturday in May is the mecca for a curious cult intent on divining the fiscal future in the blood lines and performance charts of a lower order of animal species.

Their bible is the Racing Form, writ in curious hieroglyphics, although sundry prophets pass among them urging belief in certain four-legged deities.

Most end the day up to their hocks in hock, but with their faith in the Derby's promise of instant Nirvana undiluted.

"Till you go to Kentucky and with your own eyes behold the Derby," preached Irvin S. Cobb, a home-bred prophet who brought considerable honor to this part of the country, "you ain't never been nowhere and you ain't seen nothing."

Well, at long last, I've been somewhere and I've seen something.

I visited this "lodging for bats and spiders," as Jimmy Cannon called Churchill Downs, and I saw the Derby, all two minutes and thereabouts of it — Two minutes of hoof-pounding hysteria, preceded by two hours of traffic jams, four hours of partying and 25 minutes on line for the men's room.

The day and my first Derby had many wonders to behold.

As the big button in my lapel proclaims, "Mine Eyes Have Seen the Glory of Cassalera," the one-eyed gander horse, who finished 13th. He wasn't the only one at the track that day with a hole in his head. Those of us caught up in the cult of the vacant left eye socket invested $332,236 in the miracle that never happened.

Long ago my father spoke a parable that should have curbed my gaming greed. He told of a man who bought a horse down in Mexico and angrily returned to the dealer with the complaint, "Hey, you didn't tell me this horse was blind."

"Sure I did, senor," drawled the seller. "I said this was a good horse even if he don't look so good."

Now why didn't I think of that when an airplane passed low over Churchill Downs at post time pulling a trailer: "Our hearts are with Cassalera!"

The problem is on Derby Day they all look good and steal your heart, prancing around the tulip-lined paddock all curried and combed with bright ribbons in their manes and tails bobbed and braided. Despite what the tote board read, the odds on any 3-year-old winning this year's derby were 43,497 to 1, which is the total crop of fillies and colts foaled in the late winter and spring of '79.

No wonder folks break into tears when the band plays "My Old Kentucky Home," especially at the line:

"By'n by, hard times comes a-knocking at the door,

Then my old Kentucky Home good night."

The blizzard of discarded mutual tickets on the track apron after the race tells you hard times just about busted down that door. This time, 141,009 spectators bet $5,011,575 on the Derby or something like $355 apiece.

The total handle for mint juleps, by the way, at $3.50 a glass, was $280,000. It would have been more, but they ran out of mint for the first time in history. In some sections of the grandstand, the run for roses is the run for red noses.

The track really doesn't expect you to lose all our money on Derby Day, but they make you pay for parking in advance just in case. And the bars around town stay open until 6 a.m., to accommodate late finishing horses. Louisville in Derby Week has been described as a place where they clean everything but the ashtrays. The ambience is a mellow mash of blue grass, bourbon and burgo, which is a kind of chicken served under sloppy track conditions. Red Smith said this is the only city in the world where the bellhops hand out tips instead of the other way around.

"The Derby is a happening," said trainer Wayne Lukas, who ought to know because his highly regarded colt Muttering happened to finish fifth.

Churchill Downs on Derby Day is a zoo where they cage up the college kids in the infield and let the animals run free. With good reason too: Bombay Duck got belted with a beer bottle from the violent ward a few semesters back.

In Derby week anyone around here below the rank of colonel is an oppressed minority. Kentucky chic is affecting a white planters suit, black string bow tie and pointy goatee as though you made a killing in fried fast foods.

"Millionaire row" in the clubhouse on Derby Day outglitters nearby Fort Knox.

"It's strictly a one-day grab," Jimmy Cannon wrote. "The joint is operated as if the owners were going to pack their keisters and take the next train out of town ..."

The waitress who doesn't short change you would be canonized as Kentucky's first saint."

Yet the faithful flock in pilgrimage each spring to this shrine of undying hope.

Life As It's Lived

Life Of Single Parent Doesn't Fit The Scene

By GAIL MICHAELS
During the three weeks Phillip has been away from home on business, I've learned one thing, I am not cut out to be a single parent. I have nothing but admiration for those who are successful at this gargantuan task, but I am not one of them. I need someone to keep Zachary out of the kitchen trash while I cook dinner, to push Meg through the motions of living without erupting like a volcano, and to let me sleep late once a week.

I want another pair of hands willing to feed and water a delinquent cat, another pair of ears to give me a respite from Meg's incessant chatter. I miss having someone to complain to on a regular basis. And I miss having someone to cuddle with after a long day of wrestling with a Super Friend in disposable diapers. The thought of murder has occurred to me more than once since I've been abandoned at the mercy of two hoodlums. Zachary caught a stomach virus from which he has not fully recovered, and I have spent days on end running after him with a puddle pad. His temperature went so high at one point that I rushed him to the doctor, who has always praised Zachary's sweet disposition. He did not praise him on this visit. Zachary suddenly realized that no decree from Heaven forced him to endure passively the usual poking and prodding. Three people were required to hold him down for the throat cut.

I'm just thankful that we made it to the pharmacy and the grocery store before the gas tank on the car started leaking. While the station wagon was being repaired, we were well-supplied with the medicine and the Coke that the doctor had prescribed. Of course, if Zachary got to drink Coke, then Meg had to have some, too. Unfortunately, Meg gets hyper when she has too much sugar.

She was jumping on her bed. She was jumping off her desk. She whizzed around the dining room on Zachary's tike bike like a fingernail zipping around a blackboard. She was unable to sit on a chair with more than half her behind at a time.

Zachary didn't react so violently to the Coke, but he did to the Donnagel. It was flying all over the kitchen, spattering my shirt, rolling into his ears. In short, it was going everywhere but his mouth. I finally got the dregs down him and put up the medicine bottle.

He started to scream harder. "I want more medicine!" Meg, exiled in her bedroom, was wailing, "I miss my daddy! He's the only one around here who really loves me." In the middle of all this, the phone rang. "It sounds lively around there," Phillip laughed. "Just a normal day with your two hooligans."

"You miss me, huh?" "Let's put it this way. You just better make it home by this weekend if you know what's good for your kids."

"Honey, I keep telling you to hire a babysitter and get out of the zoo once in a while."

I wrenched my electric frypan from Zachary's hands. "I'm playing bridge tonight."

"Good." He sounded relieved.

"I almost canceled though. I thought I might have to take Zack to the emergency room."

There was a sharp intake of breath on the other end of the line. "Is he sick?"

"No more than usual." "Then what in the world is wrong?"

"I have been contemplating strangling him."

Slain Pastor's Widow Suing

HIGH POINT, N.C. (AP) — A pastor's widow has filed a $2 million damage suit against the Louisiana church where her husband was shot to death last year.

Barbara Bowman of Archdale filed the suit last month in Jefferson Davis Parish Court in Jennings, La., naming the Pentacostal Church in Topsy, La., as defendant.

Her attorney, William H. Sanders of Jena, La., requested service of the suit be temporarily suspended. The man charged with second-degree murder in the shooting, Jarvis Dale Chapman, 23, of Topsy, has not come to trial yet.

The Rev. Bill Bowman was shot Oct. 5 as he was preparing to conduct a revival at the church.

each county but he probably won't listen to much of what they tell him. He'll pretty much set his own schedules and then breaks them whenever he gets a better idea. He'll do television ads but they'll be the kind he likes to do — him sitting alongside the American flag, chatting in his Chatham County accent. Maybe he'll let somebody at the TV station tell him a little something about the lighting.

If Andrews hires a single campaign helper it will be a major shock in local Democratic circles. At the Democrats' Jefferson-Jackson Day Dinner, 4th District Democratic leaders pleaded with him to hire a professional campaign manager. He told them he'd think about it. He doesn't do any polling. Doesn't believe in it. He talks to hundreds of people on the telephone every month, so why pay someone to do the same thing? He'll probably raise a third of Cobey's treasury.

By himself, or maybe with one volunteer helper, Andrews will go to the shopping malls, mobile home parks and drug stores of the district. He'll shake hands with people, introduce himself and ask what he can do for them. He never asks people to vote for him in this kind of meeting. This style's worked for him all of his political career, and ought to work now.

The political analysts call his a bellwether district — one which has a social, political and economic mix representative of the state as a whole. When the vote comes in, it ought to say as much about campaigning in North Carolina as it says about the two candidates.

Allan Lacombe, an old friend from New Orleans, used to bunk down on Derby eve in the workroom below a Louisville funeral parlor. One Derby morn he awoke to find two extra guests who weren't going to the races or anywhere on earth anymore. This year he rented "more lively quarters" — in a home for the aged.

Meriwether Lewis Clark Jr., a grandson of the Clark who explored the Louisiana Territory, got things started in 1875 by leasing a couple of cowpastures from his uncles, John and Henry Churchill, and staging a race for 3-year-olds that was won by Aristides when Chesapeake was supposed to. Then along came Col. Matt Winn, an entrepreneur extraordinary who did for live horses what Col. Sanders did for dead chickens. In 1930, the 17th Earl Of Derby crossed the pond to tell the julep sippers that this equestrian event was pronounced "darby" not "durby" or "doiby," but everyone was too busy watching Gallant Fox romp home to heed him.

The names of new winners keep going up in gilt letters over the paddock verandas, but the litany of the losers never changes:

"I had that exacta in the fourth, but I didn't play it."

"Who said grays never win?"

"Real Dare was consistent: last in the Louisiana Derby, last in the Kentucky Derby."

"I had a good day at the track today ... someone left the door of a pay toilet open."

Buchwald Col. . . .

what do you have to say to that, Tony?"

"I'd still rather stand in the back of the room."

"Are there any other Communists in the class who would like to join him? All right, Tony, you seem to be the only one. Go to the back and I don't want to see your ugly face until I tell you to take your seat. Now, class, let us bow our heads and pray for Tony's soul! Heavenly Father, there is always one rotten apple in the barrel....."

BLAZE DAMAGES EGG PRODUCING PLANT — Firemen from area departments battle a blaze that caused heavy damage to the Sunnyside Egg

Sunnyside Eggs Facility Again Suffers Considerable Fire Loss

By TOMMY FORREST
Reflector Staff Writer
Fire destroyed a portion of the Sunnyside Egg facility on N.C. 43 south of Greenville shortly before 11 p.m. Thursday.

According to Lyman Hardee, chief of the Eastern Pines Fire Department, the egg-producing business was heavily damaged by the flames, which killed as much as one-third of the company's chickens.

Hardee said the front portion of the complex was fully engulfed in flames when he arrived. He said he called for assistance from Winterville, Black Jack and Ayden. The fire was brought under control about 11:30 p.m.

Hardee said the fire apparently had been burning for some time before a neighbor spotted it. Hardee, along with officials of the Pitt County fire marshal's office, said the blaze apparently started in the middle of one of the chicken houses. The roof of the structure had collapsed when firemen arrived, and only small fires were seen. Hardee said the chicken house apparently burned out, and the flames then spread to the front buildings housing the cooler and egg processing equipment.

Ken Paramore, a spokesman for the Sunnyside Egg plant, said approximately 53,000 chickens were housed in the plant. Paramore said the loss could be as high as 18,000 to 20,000 chickens. Paramore said electricians were on hand this morning trying to make wiring changes to reinstate electrical power to the portion of the structure not damaged by the fire.

Hardee said Eastern Pines fireman Mitchell Meeks required treatment at Pitt County Memorial Hospital for dehydration. Hardee said he was treated and released.

Records indicated that a fire in July 1977 destroyed the Sunnyside facility. The apparent cause of that fire was listed as malfunctioning electrical wiring.

Damage to the building and contents in Thursday's fire were not available.

Members of Station House and Simpson fire departments also assisted.

Suspect Opened A Car Door, Escaped

GOLDSBORO, N.C. (AP) — A man suspected of an attempted break-in was apprehended by two young men Thursday, but then walked away from a Wayne County sheriff's deputy.

Scott Morrison, 19, of Goldsboro, and Hardy Gurley, 20, of Dudley, chased the man after Morrison's mother, Ann Morrison, heard the sound of breaking glass from the house next door. Shortly after the man jumped a fence, Morrison and Gurley collared him.

Wayne County Sheriff Bill Adams says that when Deputy Wilson Joyner picked the man up, he did not handcuff him. He did place him in the back seat of the squad car, which Adams said still had door handles because removal made it too inconvenient.

The suspect then simply opened the door and made his escape.

"The deputy is supposed to use his good common sense and judgment during an arrest," Adams said. "We allow them to use their judgment in different situations but we strongly suggest they handcuff a person."

Adams said he had offered a reward for information leading to the arrest of the man, whom he identified as Ollin Devin Coley of Greensboro. He said Coley is charged with breaking and entering and larceny.

Quarterly Meeting

Quarterly meeting services will be held at Sweet Hope Free Will Baptist Church this weekend.

Tonight at 7:30 p.m. quarterly conference will be held. At 7:30 p.m. Saturday Holy Communion will be led by the Rev. Tyrone Turnage and his congregation of Little Creek Free Will Baptist Church.

Sunday at 11 a.m. the worship sermon will be led by the Rev. W.J. Best, accompanied by the Senior Choir, Senior Ushers and the W.J. Best Traveling Choir. At 2 p.m. dinner will be served. At 3 p.m. the Rev. Hue Walston and the congregation of Sycamore Baptist Church will conduct a service. The Senior Usher anniversary will be held at 5 p.m.

Bailey Talks To Retiree Group

Herb Bailey showed slides and discussed recent developments and activities at Pitt County Memorial Hospital and the new Brody Building at last week's meeting of the American Association of Retired Persons Monday.

Bailey is community relations development coordinator for the hospital.

Eva Cain, president, conducted the meeting and welcomed Mary Beverly as a new member. Joseph Tripp and Louise Langston joined last month.

Katherine Cottle, community service chairman, announced volunteers were needed in the local libraries. Pete Anderson, legislative chairman, reported congressmen and senators have been written regarding the cost of living adjustment bill.

Certificates of appreciation for tax-aid help were presented to Repsy Baker, Marian Chappell, Louise Snowden, Randy Ward and Lee Williams. The next meeting will be a covered-dish luncheon June 14 at the Memorial Baptist Church.

N.C. Law Enforcers Prepare For Increase In Con Artists

By TOM MINEHART
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The recession is sparking an increase in confidence artists and consumer swindlers, North Carolina law enforcement officials say.

Police in Raleigh, Charlotte and Onslow County said the peak con artist season still has not arrived. But Lt. Will Annarino of the Asheville police said swindlers have hit western North Carolina with a vengeance.

"We've had more than about one a week," he said. Most reported cases involved phony construction company salesmen opening checking accounts with a few dollars and writing thousands of dollars of checks.

"It's the up-and-coming crime," he said. "With the recession, we're noticing it more. People are willing to grasp at anything. Most of these crimes play on greed."

Some officials say there has been a decline in reports of itinerant tricksters in recent years. They say an increase has occurred in the number of cases involving local companies.

"We don't see as much of those kind of people as we used to," said Darlene Buckman, consumer protection specialist with the state attorney general's office.

"We have more problems with people who are actually located in the town who have become unscrupulous."

State officials say a desire to save money leads some people to deal with unlicensed contractors.

"It's greed," said Mary Hopper, a spokesman with the Consumer Protection Division. "They (victims) think they're getting a bargain."

For several years, a band of swindlers known as the Irish Travelers would enter the state from South Carolina, move up Interstate 95 and hit small towns, she said.

"They had spray trucks. They'd take your money, mix their paint with water, hit your house, dog, screen, whatever, and run," she said. "Or they'd mix some oil with gravel and put it on your driveway. It would never harden."

The same crimes still occur, but it is harder to detect a pattern, she said.

Other con artists advertise jobs in the want ads, then demand a $150 deposit when the victim shows up for an interview, Annarino said. Others will set themselves up as exterminators and spray victims' homes with used motor oil.

Most swindlers are "fast-talking people" in their 30s and 40s who have graduated from petty crime, Annarino said.

Driveway paving swindlers have hit Winston-Salem at least four times this season, said police Lt. H.R. Tuttle. Most claimed they had a truckload of asphalt from a road job, offered it to victims for a reduced price and stung them for up to $3,000 per driveway, he said.

Tuttle said police think those responsible are part of a group traveling throughout the East Coast from New Orleans to Pennsylvania.

The most popular con recently has been the bank-examiner scheme, said Gary Griffith of the State Bureau of Investigation.

The swindler, pretending to be a bank officer or investigator, will call up the victim and convince him that his money may be counterfeited. The victim will take money out of the bank and give it to the swindler, hoping to receive a reward.

Other tricksters offer to sell untaxed cigarettes to legitimate businessmen, Griffith said. When the businessman pulls up to the warehouse to receive the goods, the con artist has left with the money. Similar schemes involve illicit or homemade liquor, he said.

Yet another scheme involves the sale of watered-down herbicides and pesticides to farmers who want to save money, said John Smith, pesticide administrator with the state Department of Agriculture. "They find out they've bought somebody's water for $25 to $30 a gallon," he said.

Eye Changes In Payments In Medicaid

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A plan that would limit Medicaid reimbursements to high cost hospitals has drawn the support of the North Carolina Division of Medical Assistance.

Hospital administrators designed the plan in an attempt to adjust to federal budget cuts. Put forth by the state Hospital Association, the plan suggests the transfer of some Medicaid patients from high-cost facilities to lower-cost hospitals.

William Oviatt, the hospital association's finance director, said some uncomplicated operations can be performed more cheaply at some institutions.

"It makes no sense to go to Duke to get your tonsils out," he said.

Medicaid is the nation's chief program of medical care for the poor. State and hospital officials are grappling with methods to handle Medicaid as federal funds have shrunk and the General Assembly has declined to make up the difference with state funds.

Administrators say the plan is the most desirable of several choices, although they admit doctors must also give approval for it to be effective since they traditionally control hospital admissions.

William F. Andres, president of the Wake County Hospital System, said physicians will cooperate with administrators.

"We find physicians are becoming very cost conscious," he said. "They've got to become partners with us in dealing with these changes."

Francis E. Winslow Jr., head of Raleigh's Rex Hospital medical staff, says the plan won't work because patients won't tolerate being sent to a strange hospital for lower-cost operations.

"If you've got to have your gall bladder taken out, you want it done in your own community, by your own doctor," he said.

Following a public hearing, the state Department of Human Resources and the federal government must approve the plan. The proposals call for 23 hospitals to be placed in the higher-cost category and 105 in the lower-cost group.

In the higher-cost group, the state would reimburse fully for a limited number of days the costs of a Medicaid operation. Those cases referred to a lower-cost hospital would receive complete funding for an unlimited number of days.

Suggests Tax To Pay Share

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., is quoted in the June issue of Conservative Digest as saying he thinks churches should be taxed.

Asked if churches and religious schools should have to conform to national policy to get tax exemption, Hatfield, an American Baptist, is quoted as replying "I think any religious institution ought to be taxed. I'm not saying at the same rate, but they enjoy the benefits of the fire department, the police department, the protection that is given to them. I think they ought to all pay a part of the load."

Deep Russian Religious Roots

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

The most eloquent voices of Russian history have rung with a powerful religious note, and although the country has been officially atheist for the past 65 years, faith perseveres there.

Some of it, no matter how overshadowed by communist government policy, was reflected in a remarkably broad forum this week, ranging from U.S. evangelist Billy Graham to Russian Orthodox Patriarch Pimen.

About 480 leaders of various religions of the world, including 25 from the United States, had been invited to Moscow for a peace conference on preventing nuclear disaster.

While evidence has indicated Soviet government attempts to manipulate Russian church leaders, they nevertheless remain public symbols of a persisting faith among the people.

It is a deep-rooted thing, a part of an ingrained memory, of a Russian "soul" that has pulsed through the works of Russian literary greats, of the 19th century Dostoevski and Tolstoy, of the contemporary Alexander Solzhenitsyn.

He himself, now in U.S. exile, has maintained that Christianity's greatest strength, forged in fires of oppression, will eventually emerge in Russia when it is free. Even under present circumstances, recurrent reports indicate an increased turning to faith.

"Religious belief is growing amazingly, despite intensified atheist propaganda," says the Rev. Blahoslav Hruby, editor of a documentary journal, Religion in Communist Dominated Areas.

Some experts on the situation have said that believing Christians in Russia outnumber Marxists despite attempts to eliminate religion ever since the Bolshevik Revolution of 1917.

No religious statistics are available on the Soviet Union, but the fortnightly, Christianity Today, cites current estimates that about half the 268 million Soviet citizens are non-religious, about half religious.

About 37 percent, or 100 million, are Christian, it is estimated, 70 million aligned with Russian Orthodox, the rest Armenian Orthodox, Roman Catholics or Protestants. Another 11 percent are Moslems and 2 percent Jews or Buddhists.

Walter Sawatsky, U.S. Mennonite representative in Europe and authority on evangelicals in the Soviet Union, estimates weekly church attendance there at 20 percent of the population, about four times higher than in Great Britain, says Christianity Today. In the United States, weekly attendance is 41 percent of the people.

Communist authorities, failing in efforts to stamp out religion, have sought to grind it away by restricting its activity to church worship, banning classes for the young, and requiring government registration of churches, coupled with continual promotion of atheism.

The registration requirement has divided Protestants into two camps, about 500,000 in the registered All-Union Council of Evangelical Christian-Baptists, and other independent Baptists and Pentecostals who refuse to register.

The latter are thus considered illegal, their secret presses and meetings frequently raided, their leaders and followers subjected to harassment, arrests and imprisonment, charged with anti-Soviet activity.

Soviet efforts to manipulate the registered and predominant Russian Orthodox Church were recently indicated in a smuggled out report bearing the name of a deputy chairman of the government's Council on Religious Affairs.

The report, published by Hruby's documentary journal, says "there is no consecration of a bishop, no transfer, without through investigation of the candidates of the council."

Religion historically has been state controlled in Russia, going back as far as 1721 when Peter the Great made the administration of Russian Orthodoxy a function of the state. That church-state tie continued under later czars, who backed the church, up to the time of the communist overthrow opposing religion.

Nevertheless, even with modern Soviet attempts to keep the church tame and submissive, the smuggled report says the clergy are "still capable of shaping religious ideology, promoting blind faith in God and spreading mysticism."

That religious sentiments are increasing has been reported even in the Soviet press, including a Pravda editorial, which called for stronger atheist indoctrination to curb increased youth church attendance.

Izvestia, the government organ, complained that "among certain people it has become a sign of 'good tone' to have in one's apartment an icon and to wear a gilded cross."

EVANGELIST Mickey Kirkland will conduct services at Trinity Free Will Baptist Church, U.S. 264 Bypass, Sunday through May 23. Services will begin at 11 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. on Sundays and at 7:30 p.m. on week days. The Getsemane Quartet of Greensboro will be featured at the Sunday evening service. There will also be a ventriloquism program nightly for the children.

The Rev. J.M. Bragg, pastor, said the first services were held the third Sunday in May 1962. The church ministries today include: Sunday school, including classes for the deaf and mentally handicapped; youth ministry; music ministry featuring an adult choir, gospel quartets, trios and soloists; a Christian day school; the Greenville Christian Academy; Kiddie Kollege; a Christian day care ministry and a men's athletic program.

Former pastors include the Rev. Jack Mosher, the Rev. J.T. Woodley and Dr. Barry Bagwell.

Recently the church had its auditorium remodeled and a 12,500-square-foot gymnasium with a seating capacity of 800 has been added.

Pirates Top Madison, 8-2, In 1st Round

HARRISONBURG, Va. — Going in, East Carolina University coach Hal Baird was a little worried about his first round game in the ECAC-South tournament yesterday. The third seeded Pirates were facing number two James Madison, the defending champion. And the Dukes had put together a 24-1 record on their home field this season.

inching contest in the other game, sending the winner against the Pirates today at noon. ODU and JMU meet in the second game with the loser packing its gear up for the trip home — or cross-campus, as the case may be.

East Carolina started the scoring early, getting a run in the first inning. David Wells opened the game with an infield hit and was sacrificed up. After a second out, Todd Evans also reached on a single by Fran Fitzgerald, driving in Wells.

Madison, however, rallied to tie it up in the bottom of the inning. With two away, and on a 3-2 count, Mike Reeves rocked Wilder with a tremendous blast. The ball not only carried out of the park over the 320-foot sign, but it kept going to land in the median of Interstate 80 which passes the outfield fence.

The Pirates came back with two more in the fifth. Hallow doubled, his 14th of the season, tying the single year mark. Hendley followed with a two-out single to right, scoring Hallow, and Robinette doubled to left, scoring Hendley.

David Wells, Hallow, Evans, Hendley, Curlings and Robert Wells each had two hits for the Pirates. Reeves and Tony Murant led Madison with two each.

tournament seeded fourth and coming away with a first-round win. It has never won the tournament, however. Today, the Pirates are expected to send Bobby Patterson to the mound against Catholic. Patterson is 8-2. Catholic is believed to be planning to use either Hans Ziegler, 6-0, or John Walker, 5-4.

Rose Wins 20th As Fike Falls

By WOODY PEELE Reflector Sports Editor After having wrapped up the Big East baseball championship with their victory over Kinston last Tuesday night, Rose High School Rampants could be excused if they weren't at their best last night against Wilson Fike.

Williams then singled to center, scoring both runners. Williams kept things going with a steal and another wild pitch moved him to third. Douglas walked, and courtesy runner Jeff Wilson moved up on a passed ball. Pope grounded out, scoring Williams, and on the relay from first to home on the play, the ball was thrown away, allowing Wilson to come around also.

Fike got on the board in the top of the fourth. Charles Flowers led off by reaching on an error and moved up on Randy Ward's infield hit, going all the way to third on the play. He scored on Glenn Lee's sacrifice fly to center field. Ward moved to third on an error on the relay, but died there.

Phillips and Hodges each had two hits for Rose, while no one had more than one for Fike. Rose plays its final road game of the regular season Tuesday, meeting Wilson Hunt in Fleming Stadium in Wilson at 7:30 p.m.

Nevertheless, the Rampants did come away with a 9-1 win as Gordon Douglas claimed his 12th victory of the season. The win boosted the Rampants to 20-0 on the year. They are 12-0 against league competition.

In the sixth, a single and another error put the first two on, and after a strikeout, Douglas walked his only batter to load the bases. He then struck out the next two to end that uprising.

Florida had gained the second round game with a win over the University of North Carolina in the first round. East Carolina, third seeded in the tournament, had a bye in the first round.

Florida pulled off two upsets Thursday to advance to the semifinals. The 49ers downed Cleveland State, seeded seventh, 6-2. In their second contest, UNCC stopped second-seeded Northern Kentucky 5-4 with two runs in the bottom of the seventh inning.

Islanders Shut Out Canucks; Near Sweep

VANCOUVER (AP) — One step away from their third straight Stanley Cup, the New York Islanders are playing it as cautiously as they did in getting to that position.

The Islanders played awesome defensive hockey Thursday night, shutting down the Vancouver Canucks for a 3-0 victory. The two-time defending National Hockey League champions have a 3-0 stranglehold on the finals with Game 4 here Sunday.

However, in the semifinals, he lost to Edenton's Mike Lee, 6-4, 2-6, 7-6, in a hard-fought match. Lee later lost in the finals, having to default because of exhaustion.

Holloman Advances

WILSON — Rose High School's Steve Holloman won his quarterfinals match yesterday and qualified for the Eastern Regionals in the high school tennis playoffs.

Keith Phillips led off the third with a single into right and moved up on a passed ball and a wild pitch. Buie singled up the middle to drive him in, and also advanced on a wild pitch. Sammy Hodges beat out an infield hit with one away, and stole second. Roger Shepard, Davis and Clayton led the Lady Pirate hitting with three each, with Davis having a double and a triple, while Clayton drove in five runs and Shepard drove in two.

Williams, Fran Hooks and Shirley Brown each had two hits, one of Hooks' a double. Florida's hitting was led by Mary Guzzardo and Carlyce Cononie, each with two hits.

Offense Makes It Tough On Hoyt

By The Associated Press
Although his Chicago White Sox teammates have given him booming offensive support this season, Lamarr Hoyt isn't pitching entirely pressure-free. "It's not as easy as it looks," says Hoyt, whose teammates have scored 42 runs for him in the last four games. "The hardest thing about it is keeping your earned run average down. Once you get a big lead, you have to throw fastballs — and the hitters expect you to throw fastballs."

Thursday night was another loud night for the White Sox; who clubbed 20 hits en route to a 3-2 triumph over the Milwaukee Brewers. The latest offensive slug included home runs by Greg Luzinski and Ron LeFlore.

"I threw what I wanted when I wanted," said Hoyt. "They can say what they want, but everytime I go out to pitch I expect to throw a shutout and I expect to be shut out."

White Sox Manager Tony LaRussa: "Hoyt pitched smart. He showed good stuff when he needed it. He got a big lead and threw the ball over the plate. He got guys when he had to."

Hoyt's only test came in the sixth inning when the Brewers loaded the bases on a pair of singles and a walk. He then went to work on Marshall Edwards and got him to bounce out to end the threat.

"Fortunately," said Hoyt, "I can throw more than one or two pitches."

Hoyt, 7-0, became the first seven-game winner in the majors with the victory. Hoyt picked up his 12th straight decision over two seasons and now has won 14 games at Comiskey Park without a defeat as both a starter and a reliever.

The victory was the ninth in the last 10 games for the White Sox, who battered loser Mike Caldwell, 2-3, for 13 hits before LeFlore knocked him out with a two-run homer in the sixth inning.

Yankees 6, A's 4
Steve Balboni staked Ron Guidry to a 2-0 lead in the first inning with his first major league home run and the rookie first baseman added two more hits as New York beat Oakland.

Guidry, 5-1, allowed six hits, including Dwayne Murphy's leadoff homer in the fourth inning, his seventh, before needing relief help with no outs in the eighth. Guidry struck out eight and walked four before George Frazier and Shane Rawley finished up for the Yankees.

Orioles 3, Mariners 1
Al Bumbry and Dan Ford hit seventh-inning home runs and Dennis Martinez pitched a five-hitter as Baltimore beat Seattle.

Leading off the seventh, Bumbry snapped a 1-1 tie with his first homer of the season.

One out later, Ford socked his third home run of the season. Martinez, 3-3, walked two and struck out one and yielded the Mariner run in the fourth inning, on an RBI grounder Steve Strouther.

Rangers 4, Blue Jays 3
George Wright scored the winning run for Texas with two out in the ninth on a throwing error by Toronto shortstop Alfredo Griffin. It was Griffin's third error of the game and the Blue Jays' sixth.

Wright reached first on a fielder's choice, stole second and took third when Blue Jays' catcher Ernie Whitt's throw sailed into center field. He came home when Griffin fielded a ground ball by Billy Sample but threw wildly past first for what have retired the side.

The Rangers took a 3-2 lead in the seventh as Bill Stein doubled and scored on a single by Wright. But Toronto tied it in the eighth on Willie Up-shaw's RBI groundout.

"Those are some of the breaks we have not been getting," said Wright, whose Rangers won for only the second time in 17 tries.

Tigers 6, Twins 2
Larry Herndon drove in two runs with a homer and a triple and Detroit got a six-hit performance from Jack Morris to beat Minnesota.

It was the fifth complete game of the year for Morris, 5-3, who hadn't won since beating the Twins on April 27. He had lost two games in that period. The right-hander struck out seven and walked only one.

Minnesota rookie Kent Hrbek extended his hitting streak to 23 games with a two-run homer in the ninth, his 10th of the year. The streak is just three short of the American League rookie mark set by Guy Curtwright of the Chicago White Sox in 1943.

"I don't know what the reason was, but I felt in control the whole game," said Morris, who was working on only three hours sleep after a long team flight in from Texas. "I had good control, turned the ball over good and stayed ahead of them. Six runs sure don't hurt you. There's nothing tricky about a six-run lead."

Royals 11, Red Sox 2

Angels 3, Indians 2
Juan Beniquez walked with two out and the bases loaded in the bottom of the 12th inning to lift California over Cleveland.

With two outs, consecutive singles by Fred Lynn and Don Baylor put runners on first and third. Then pinch-hitter Reggie Jackson was walked intentionally by Dan Spillner, 0-3, after the reliever went to a 3-2 count on him.

Spillner then walked Beniquez on a 3-2 count to force in the winning run and make a winner of Andy Hassler, 1-0.

Mears...

during the day. That makes it pretty slippery. But then it cools off just when all the rubber is down and everybody's ready to go out and get off a big one.

"I expect we can qualify (Saturday) at these speeds, but it wouldn't take much of a change in the conditions to drag them (the speeds) down."

The scorcher by Mears, Andretti and Johncock were just part of the continuing speed parade that has everyone breathlessly awaiting the start of time trials, Saturday, for the 66th Indianapolis 300-mile race.

Don Whittington, driving a year-old March-Cosworth, ripped off a lap of 204.5 mph Thursday, the fourth-fastest of the week and the history of the ancient racing plant on the Westside of Indianapolis.

Joining Johncock Thursday as new members of this year's 200 mph club were four-time winner A.J. Foyt at 201.3, Tom Sneva at 202.5 and Danny Ongais at 200.3. All have been over 200 in the past, with Sneva the official track record-holder for one lap, 203.620, and four-laps, 202.156, both set in 1978 qualifications.

Earlier entries over 200 included Whittington's younger brother, Bill, with a top lap of 201.4 and three-time Indy winner Al Unser at 200.9.

Overall speeds continued to climb Thursday, with the number of drivers above 190 mph in practice reaching 32, a figure that lends a certain amount of credence to those drivers forecasting that it will take between 190 and 95 to make the 33-car starting field for the May 30 race. Last year's slowest starter, Jerry Karl, had a four-lap qualifying average of 186.008.

Other top speeds Thursday included laps at 198.0 by rookie Hector Rebaque, 196.1 by Herm Johnson and 195.7 by Geoff Brabham. Rookie Desire Wilson, trying to become the second woman driver to make the Indy race, was clocked at 193 mph. Other drivers reaching 190 for the first time were rookies Chip Ganassi and Jim Hickman, along with veterans Dennis Firestone, Pete Halsmer and Jerry Sneva, Tom's younger brother.

Josele Garza of Mexico, last year's rookie of the year here, had a lap at 94.8 mph, but crashed into the concrete wall moments later coming through turn three. He was not injured, though his new March-Cosworth racer suffered heavy damage to the right side.

"It's gone. It's totaled. There's a lot of damage here you can't see," said Garza team manager Bobby Unser, last year's Indy winner. "We don't have enough pieces for the other (backup) car, but somehow we'll surely get it going."

Unser, in his first year as a team manager, still is a possibility to drive in this year's race. But Garza's crash definitely put a hold on any such plans.

Mullis In Putt Win

Steve Mullis shot a four-under-par 32 in the final round to capture the weekly Putt Putt Tournament last night.

Mullis shot a first-round three-under-par 33 to take the lead and managed to maintain his advantage with his 32 in the second round to win.

Moses Hodges was second with a 35 in the second round to go with his 36 shot in the first round. Hodges and David Applegate were tied for third after the first round with 37s.

Dwane Grace, who was second after the first round, dropped to third in the final round with a two-over-par 38. He had a 73 total.

Mike Futrell was fourth with a 77 and Charles Gunther was fifth at 79.

Arkansas Girl Is Miss USA

By TERRY GOGGIN
Associated Press Writer
BILOXI, Miss. (AP) — Terri Utley of Arkansas has been crowned Miss USA, causing a stir in her hometown where the school board meeting was interrupted and the switchboard jangled at the seven-officer police department.

"It hasn't even set in yet that I was Miss Arkansas," the 20-year-old brunette said after Thursday night's nationally televised pageant finale. She had held the state title only a month.

Miss Utley will represent the UNITED STATES in the Miss Universe contest July 26 in Lima, Peru.

She is the second Arkansas woman to win a national beauty title in nine months. Elizabeth Ward of Russellville was named Miss America last September. The two pageants are not affiliated.

In Cabot, Ark., a town of 4,000 people, Alma Elliott, the wife of the school superintendent said she interrupted the school board meeting to tell everyone that Miss Utley had won.

"I think it's fantastic," she said. "I'm just so proud of her. She's a sweet girl. She deserved it."

Cone Magie, publisher of the Cabot Star Herald, said he was already making plans to go to Peru for the Miss Universe pageant.

"After all how many small towns have a Miss USA?" he asked.

Miss Utley, who dropped out of the University of Central Arkansas to sell condominium shares in Hot Springs, said she hopes the title will further a modeling career. She said she's looking forward to living in New York City, where she will share an apartment with a chaperone during her reign.

Life there is bound to be different from Cabot, she said, where summertime fun consists of driving to the hamburger stand, where friends sit on the tailgates of old pickups, play banjos, "drink a little beer and have a good time."

The runners up in descending order were: Vanessa DuBois of Honolulu; Miss Maryland, Angie Boyer of Dunkirk; Miss Massachusetts, Janet Flaherty of Wilmington;

Miss Michigan, Diane Marie Arabia of Warren; Miss Tennessee, Nise' Levy of Nashville; Miss Vermont, Georgia Davis of Bennington; and Miss Virginia, Sondra Jones of Richmond.

'Marco Polo' Reflects Sheer Beauty

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — What Marco Polo saw, his mind's eye conquered, and NBC's 10-hour visual extravaganza reflects this spirit of imagination, awe and curiosity.

"Marco Polo" is sheer beauty, suitable for framing and worthy of hanging in the best art museums, even though it's limited in the conventional TV elements of dramatic chills and sexual spills.

That's not to say the four-part miniseries, running Sunday through Wednesday nights, doesn't have flaws. It gets talky and ponderous at times.

This reflects the approach of writer-producer, Vincenzo Labella of Italy, who produced "Jesus of Nazareth." Labella is a former historian and now a disciple of the European filmmaking school of detail over drama.

But, for the most part, Labella's deliberate thoroughness works. He takes time to lay the saga out right, brick by brick, like the Great Wall of China.

If audiences can get by the building blocks and character introductions Sunday night, the reward is an awesome new world and a cinematic journey paralleling what Marco Polo must have experienced 700 years ago.

Filmed in Europe, Africa and China, "Marco Polo" is an adventure of the imagination, taking viewers through stark deserts, over the spectacular Himalayas and, finally, to the mysteries of 13th century China. We're privy to spectacular sets, lavish costumes, mood-provoking music, the sounds and sights of epic battles and plague-ridden towns, and, of course, the spectacles of China: the Great Wall, the Forbidden City and the Ming Tombs.

This should open China to Americans the way "Shogun" brought the Japanese culture, customs and character into our homes. Scenes of Mongolian horsemen and a delightful stick-and-sword dance are played out in all their splendor.

With these rituals and Marco's tales of such Chinese inventions as printed books, paper money and pasta, it's no wonder his contemporaries dismissed him as a liar and a religious heretic.

In the film, Marco, a Venetian merchant, has told his remarkable tales to the writer Rustichello, while both were prisoners of war in Genoa in 1298. The story then unfolds through flashbacks, which begin in 1254 with young Marco waiting for the return of his father and uncle from a trading expedition to China.

They have been instructed by Kublai Khan, the Mongol emperor who has conquered China, to establish trade agreements between China and Venice, and to return with Christian missionaries.

Marco joins their second journey, and Sunday's three hours trace the Polos' travails. On Monday, they arrive in China after a harrowing rope crossing of a gorge in the Himalayas. On Tuesday night, the story gets a bit sedentary in Kublai Khan's palace, where Marco forges a friendship with the legendary leader.

But Wednesday's final three hours is full of intrigue and packs a fitting finish, with Rustichello's conclusion that the legacy of Marco's 20 years of pioneering was to free the West from ignorance.

Ken Marshall, 28, a virtually unknown American actor who's bound to be the next pin-up poster sensation, captures Marco's boundless enthusiasm, inquisitiveness and impetuosity. His innocence and passion for people are well-played against the regal grandeur of Ying Ruoqeng, one of China's most powerful actors, as Kublai Khan.

Adding luster and marketability are short appearances by Anne Bancroft as Marco's mother, Sir John Gielgud as a Venetian politico, John Houseman as a Venetian religious leader, Sada Thompson as Marco's aunt and Burt Lancaster as the pope.

Like the journey 700 years ago, "Marco Polo" is bumpy in spots, but definitely a trip worth taking.

City Manager Is First To Know

FAIRFAX, Va. (AP) — When there's a fire or false alarm in the middle of the night and Station No. 33 gets the call, Fairfax City Manager Edward Wyatt is the first to know.

Wyatt, 40, lives in the fire station.

Fire Chief Gene Dailey offered a private room in the facility to the manager after Wyatt moved here from Greenville, N.C., two months ago and couldn't find temporary housing within his $250-a-month housing allowance.

So he gave up the allowance and lives for free at the fire station. Wyatt said he plans to stay until his son finishes school in Greenville and he can get a permanent home.

Firefighters said they were uncomfortable at first with having their boss around but they're used to him now.

EXTENDED WEATHER OUTLOOK FOR N.C.

Osmonds Plan A Mission

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — George and Olive Osmond, parents of the famous singing family, are planning an 18-month mission in Hawaii for the Mormon church.

Next month, the Osmonds will serve as directors of the church's Hawaii Temple Visitors Center in Laie, about 30 miles from Honolulu on the north coast of Oahu.

Don LeFevre, spokesman for the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, said Thursday the Osmonds — like all the church's 30,000 full-time missionaries — were asked to serve by the faith's ruling First Presidency.

The elder Osmonds, originally from Ogden, Utah, are the parents of eight sons and one daughter, Marie.

Four of the older sons — Alan, Wayne, Merrill and Jay — began singing as The Osmond Brothers on Andy Williams' TV show in the 1960s. Also rising to popularity were their younger siblings, Donny, Marie and Jimmy.

Miss Michigan, Diane Marie Arabia of Warren; Miss Tennessee, Nise' Levy of Nashville; Miss Vermont, Georgia Davis of Bennington; and Miss Virginia, Sondra Jones of Richmond.

Tourists Avoid Prices Of Downtown Knoxville

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Tourists are arriving at the World's Fair in predicted numbers but they're skirting costly downtown parking lots and restaurants in favor of bus tours and suburban eateries.

The trend has downtown businesses panicked and those in suburbs pleasantly surprised. "We were out of dessert before closing last night and I've been here 17 years and that's the first time that's ever happened to me," said Bonnie Shields, one of the owners of the Pioneer House restaurant, 10 miles south of the fair. She said business has zoomed since the fair opened May 1.

"We've been feeding the Army band, which was appearing at the fair, and we've had some tour groups, and we've been feeding the Goodyear blimp crew," Ms. Shields said.

Attendance the first dozen days of the fair has averaged between 50,000 and 60,000 a day — just as predicted.

But three blocks from the 72-acre fair site in downtown Knoxville, business at the Farragut Diner has been slow.

"People won't come in because they can't afford to pay for parking," said Joann Denton, owner of the diner. Jim Peroulas, who runs Peroulas' restaurant in a downtown mall, said the tour buses are to blame for hauling fairgoers away from the area.

Downtown parking lots that raised prices from $1.50 to as much as $10 a day before the fair opened are only partially full and operators are cutting prices.

But at the fair's north gate, business is booming as 50 bus dispatchers supervise 50 bus berths.

"We can handle as many as 250 buses in one hour," said Dave Miller, the fair's assistant transportation director. "We're just pushing them through as fast as we can."

On Saturday and Sunday, Miller said, about 700 tour and charter buses are expected to show up each day and about 800 are expected daily the following weekend.

IN Gatlinburg, a Smoky Mountain resort town about 35 miles southeast of the fair, civic leaders are buying radio advertisements to boost a spring season they consider a disaster.

"We still have no walk-in traffic at our motels, which we usually have in May," said the city's vice mayor, Bill Cox, who also owns a motel.

"It will pick up in June, July and August, but we don't need the help from the World's Fair for those months. This is the softest May I can remember," Cox said.

HOSPITALIZE 16

Ask Simple Annexation Laws

By MARK DAVIS
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Two statewide local-government organizations have recommended that the state's annexation laws be more understandable.

The recommendations came from the North Carolina Association of County Commissioners and the North Carolina League of Municipalities and were made to a Legislative Research Committee on Annexation Laws Thursday.

The joint recommendations were submitted by Gerry Cohen, head of the Legislative Research Commission's bill-drafting section, who had been asked by the committee to begin developing an annexation bill to present to the General Assembly in 1983.

Changes in the current law submitted by Cohen included the requirement that water sewer maps bear the seal of a registered engineer; an increase in the time in which annexation reports are available for public inspection and the requirement that cities annex some areas under certain conditions.

Cohen said some maps put on display for annexation purposes have been inaccurate. In one case, homeowners were assessed for a water line a map depicted as located on their land that did not exist, he said.

Current law requires municipalities to adopt an annexation report explaining the area to be annexed. The cities are then required to post that report at least 14 days before a mandatory public hearing about the annexation. The organizations suggested lengthening that two-week period to 30 days.

On the final point, the report says adjacent urbanized areas that need municipal services should be annexed.

Other recommendations, such as requiring boards of county commissioners to approve annexation of county lands, also were offered to the committee.

Since 1959 when the General Assembly enacted annexation laws, municipal officials in North Carolina have had the authority to annex land. Since then, said Sen. J. J. Harrington, D-Bertie, the needs of residents have changed.

Annexation became a hot topic in the General Assembly's 1981 session after residents of land adjacent to High Point protested the city's proposed annexation of their property.

Urge Salvaging Of Pay Boosts

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State employees and teachers have once again urged Gov. Jim Hunt to salvage their 5 percent pay raises or merit salary increases.

To help accomplish that end, the groups have presented a list of five recommendations for lawmakers' consideration.

Representatives of the N.C. State Government Employees Association, the N.C. Association of Educators and the N.C. State Employees Association made the comments Thursday at a news conference in front of the Legislative Building.

Leaders from the three groups say state employees and teachers are being singled out unfairly, as potential targets of budget cuts.

The five requests by the groups ask lawmakers to:

- Abandon proposals to eliminate the 5 percent pay raise implemented in January.
- Keep merit pay increases in the budget.
- Adopt an Internal Revenue Service regulation allowing employees to defer payment of taxes on retirement funds until they draw on the funds.
- Avoid laying off any state employees.

— Retain medical hospitalization and dental care benefits for state workers and teachers.

The legislature will consider ways to balance the 1982-83 budget when it convenes June 2. Elimination of the 5 percent raise or merit salary increases have been proposed as ways to reduce a projected $60-million budget shortfall caused by sagging state revenues.

Plan Mother Of Year Contest

The Pitt County Branch of the NAACP WILL sponsor a local "Mother of the Year" contest at Cornerstone Baptist Church Sunday at 4:45 p.m.

Participants will come from churches of Pitt County. The mother for whom the most money is raised will be crowned "Ms. Pitt County" and will complete in a state mother of the year contest May 23 at 2 p.m. in Memorial Auditorium in Raleigh.

Interested persons may contact Ms. Annie Cohen, chairperson, 752-1244 or 752-4206.

FOCUS

Ballot Battlers

In 1920, the same year that women finally won the right to vote, the League of Women Voters was founded. Supporting neither candidates nor party, the League's purpose was to provide information about issues and encourage people to vote. This weekend members from its 1400 chapters convene in Houston to hear speakers as diverse as Ellen Goodman and Sen. Robert Dole. The convention's priorities are not just "women's issues" but include extension of the Clean Air and Voting Rights Acts and opposition to budget cuts that hurt the poor. The League's broad social outlook is reflected in its membership, too - the League of Women Voters has about 4,000 voting members who are men.

DO YOU KNOW - Which Constitutional Amendment secured for women the right to vote?

Postage Costs Inflicting Setbacks On Fundraisers

By RANDOLPH E. SCHMID
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Even as federal officials look to private charities to take up more of the nation's social burden, fund-raising by those groups has suffered a sharp blow in postage costs.

Budget cuts have reduced government payments to the postal service, and that resulted in rate hikes Jan. 10 affecting a variety of subsidized second-, third- and fourth-class mail.

"It's killing us," complained Joan Holmes, executive director of the San Francisco-based Hunger Project.

Officials of the American

Kidney Fund say the higher rates may have been associated with the death of a Virginia woman because every dollar paid in additional non-profit postage is taken from those waiting for financial help to obtain treatment.

"The relationship between non-profit postal rates and deaths from kidney disease is direct and real. In January, after the abrupt and staggering increase in postal rates, a woman on our waiting list died," Ellen Kay Hatch, executive director of the fund told a House subcommittee.

While she did not name the patient involved, Ms. Hatch noted that her organization raises 99 percent of its funds via mail, and the rate increase meant that in January it had $16,000 less to spend assisting individuals.

The woman, she said, had died that month while awaiting assistance from the foundation. It was the first fatality on the group's waiting list, which grew to about 500 people last fall, Ms. Hatch said.

Subsidies holding down the rates for certain classes of mail had been scheduled to be phased out gradually by 1987, but the Reagan Administration convinced Congress to end the subsidized rate early.

Known as "revenue foregone," the subsidy for 1983 was proposed at $500 million by the administration. However, the House postal operations subcommittee has recommended a subsidy of $913.2 million, which would roll back the rates to the original schedule. The question is now before the House Budget Committee.

Under the administration cuts, non-profit organizations soliciting money now have to pay 27 cents a pound for bulk mail, up from 15.8 cents. And those using second-class mail to distribute publications that contain little advertising saw the per item charge jump from 0.9 cents to 4.5 cents.

The rates for first-class mail and most for-profit magazines and newspapers were not affected, having gone up last November. The January hike did involve an increase for some newspapers, those circulated within one county.

"People are going to have to cut back on the amount of mail they send out. That's going to affect their returns," observed Clyde Shorey of the March of Dimes.

A 2.1 cent increase means an extra cost of $2.5 million in mailing 120 million solicitations, he said.

Charles E. Taylor, president of Wilberforce University in Dayton, Ohio, complained that the rate hikes will mean less income for the United Negro College Fund and thus less money for assisting students at his and other schools.

"Without any doubt, fewer young Americans will be able to break the cycle of poverty as a direct result of the sudden and steep increase in non-profit third-class postal rates," he said.

Jane Biral of United Negro College Fund told a congressional subcommittee that the January rate hike forced her organization to cut back mailing by 60 percent, resulting in a decline in income of $500,000.

That, explained Taylor, results in an average of $12,000 less for each member college, and "assuming institutional aid of $500 per student, it would mean that Wilberforce's freshman class next year would be at least 5 percent smaller than the freshman class on our campus today."

Carolyn A. Emigh of the Non-profit Mailers Federation noted that these subsidy cuts come at the same time the government wants private groups or charities to take over more of the nation's social service needs.

Her concern was echoed by the Passionist Fathers, publishers of Sign.

"We're asked as a religious group to pick up the SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) If you cooperate more with family members, you'll find that harmony is restored in the home. Improve your surroundings.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) A perfect day to make calls on friends and to make plans for the future. Attend a social affair this evening.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Put those clever ideas to work and contact proper persons who can be of great help to you. Take health treatments.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Friendliness is the keynote now and you can easily impress others with your fine personality. Express happiness.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) New ideas you have need to be thought out more carefully before taking action. Ideal evening for romantic happiness.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one who loves people, but should be taught to discipline the mind and discriminate between those who can be helpful and those who are detrimental to progress. There's much happiness in this chart.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Isn't it amazing how often a star receiver will come up with an incredible catch and then drop the next ball that is thrown right into his hands? Like today's declarer, he simply took his eyes off the ball.

South's hand more than compensated in distribution for any lack of high cards he might have held for his demand opening. When North could support his second suit freely, South leaped straight to slam.

West led the queen of clubs, and declarer was delighted with his dummy — indeed, he was thinking in terms of an overtrick. He won the king of clubs, cashed the ace of diamonds and continued with a diamond to the queen. He was not unduly worried when East showed out on the second trump.

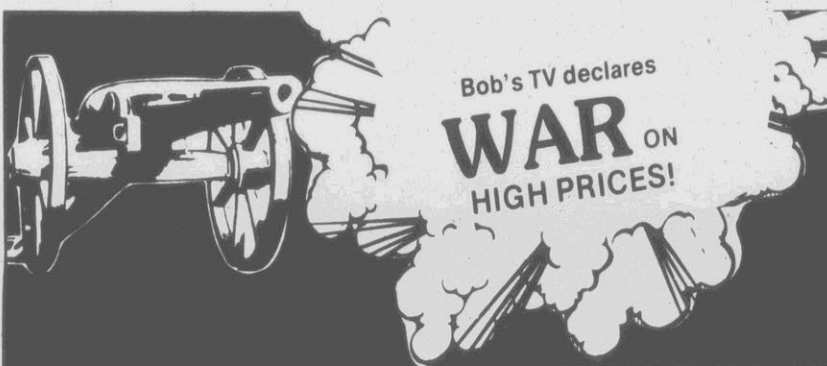

Declarer led a spade to the king and tried to cash the ace of spades. It was only when West ruffed this trick that declarer's predicament began to dawn on him. He had already lost one trick, and he had three spade losers and a club to dispose of in his hand, and only two trumps and the ace of hearts to take care of them. In the end, South had to concede a black-suit trick to the defenders for down one.

Declarer was unlucky to find a 3-1 trump split and a 5-1 spade split, but it wasn't difficult to guard against the actual distribution. If spades were no worse than 4-2, the contract could not be defeated unless trumps were 4-0 in the wrong hand. Therefore, after winning the first club trick declarer should immediately lead the ace-king of spades. If both live, declarer can draw trumps and claim his contract.

As the cards lie, West ruffs the second spade, but declarer is still safe. Even if West returns a trump, declarer wins in hand and he can still ruff three spades in dummy — the queen of diamonds on the table prevents West from scoring a second spade ruff with his remaining diamond honor. The ace of hearts takes care of declarer's club loser.

Bob's TV declares WAR ON HIGH PRICES!

"If anyone says you can't get a bargain on a Sony, you can tell them where to go."

Straight to my store!

You see, a lot of people are under the mistaken impression that Sonys never go on sale. They think you can't get a good buy on a Sony.

Well, I'd like to correct that right here and now.

This week, I've got Sonys at low prices. So now there's no reason in the world why you can't get the Sony quality you've always wanted. Come on in and I'll show you how easy it is to afford a Sony.
