Under Heavy Air Attacks British Begin Land Operation

By The Associated Press
British marines and paratroopers launched new offensives on the Falkland Islands today, 24 hours after breaking out of their beachhead under heavy Argentine air attacks, the Defense Ministry in London announced.
It said two Argentine Skyhawks were downed Thursday when they attacked the British beachhead at San Carlos Bay, and that a British Harrier jet was shot down over the Falklands capital of Stanley — the apparent target the British drive.
"Offensive land operations" by the British are under way today, the Defense Ministry said, adding that Harrier jets were flying reconnaissance missions for the ground troops. He gave no other details.

British commanders were maintaining radio silence to avoid giving their positions away, British sources said. The advancing troops, outnumbered by the Argentines, were relying on surprise and mobility, they said.
The British Broadcasting Corp., citing unofficial reports, said British troops ran into stiff Argentine resistance Thursday as they pushed toward Darwin in a bid to secure one leg of their two-pronged assault on Stanley.
The BBC said paratroopers opened fire from high ground on the estimated 600 Argentine troops at Darwin, about 20 miles south of San Carlos, and at nearby Goose Green, site of a key island airstrip.
The Times of London said helicopters ferried troops under cover of darkness for a "big push" to Darwin and Goose Green. Another British press report said the attackers might try to bottle up the Argentine defenders and push on to the capital, 50 miles to the northeast.

While the paratroopers were advancing on Darwin and Goose Green, the BBC said Royal Marines with Scorpion light tanks and artillery moved directly east from the beachhead toward Stanley in the main thrust of the pincer assault apparently aimed at gaining the high ground overlooking the capital garrison.
The British are expected to use positions overlooking the capital to pour 105mm artillery fire down on the estimated 7,000 Argentine defenders entrenched in a wide arc reportedly stretching from Green Patch to Bluff Cove.

Shriners To Be Parading On Saturday

The Sudan Temple's spring ceremonial, which began this morning with a golf tournament, will be highlighted with a 40-unit parade at noon Saturday.
The ceremonial, honoring David Julian Whichard Jr., chairman of the board of The Daily Reflector, is expected to bring between 7,000 and 12,000 Shriners to Greenville for the two-day event.
Sen. Jesse Helms is scheduled to be inducted into the Shrine during Saturday's activities along with an estimated 155 other candidates. Helms is also scheduled to attend the Potentate's banquet Saturday night.
Today's activities, which will include a concert by the Sudan Temple band at Pitt Plaza Shopping Center at 5 p.m. and a dance at 8:30 p.m., will be followed Saturday by registration of candidates, a business meeting, candidate initiation, a 1 p.m. lunch session and the Potentate's Ball at 8:30 p.m.
The noon parade, which will form at the intersection of Second and Washington streets, will travel south on Washington Street to Reade Circle, then east on Reade Circle and north on Reade Street to Third Street, where it will disband.

Sudan Temple units included in the parade will be the Sudan Patrol, the drum and bugle corps, the Legion of Honor, the motor patrol, three floats, the Oriental Band, the Wrecking Crew, the candidates and a number of cars for Sudan Temple and other officials.
Whichard, 87, has been a Mason since 1916 and a member of the Sudan Temple since 1945.
Whichard, a 1913 graduate of Greenville public schools, began his newspaper career as a delivery boy for The Reflector, which was founded in 1882 by his father and his uncle, while still in school. He worked at various jobs on the newspaper and was also employed by the U.S. Postal Service (rising to the position of assistant postmaster) before entering the U.S. Army in 1917.
In 1919, after his return from the Army, where he served with the American Expeditionary Forces in France during World War I, Whichard purchased

Budget Strategies Collapse In House

By CLIFF HAAS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Cracks in Republican ranks and a surprise rejection of Medicare savings for next year left stunned leaders of both parties watching their budget strategies crumble in the House early today.
"We're going to march into the sea. ... The Pharaoh's army is breathing down our necks," House Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Texas, said jokingly Thursday just before the full House began voting down budget plan after budget plan.
When it was over early today, legislators had rejected carefully crafted blueprints from Republican leaders — carrying President Reagan's endorsement — from Democratic leaders and from a bipartisan coalition of moderates.
Even a dramatic last-ditch appeal to legislators from House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., to let the American people "know that Congress did its job and passed a budget" failed.
But House Republican leader Robert H. Michel of Illinois, who had been expressing confidence earlier in the week that he could piece together a narrow victory, said that perhaps the House would have to try "moving just a few more degrees to the right" to find a budget that can pass.

The action left weary legislators no choice but to try again to come up with a spending plan that can gain a majority in the rebellious House.
House Budget Committee Chairman James R. Jones, D-Okla., announced that his panel would meet informally later today to try to pull the process back together. The full House is in recess until Wednesday for the Memorial Day weekend.
Rejection of the Republican plan, on a 235-192 vote, was a blow to the president and his House supporters. It followed on the heels of Senate passage Thursday night of housing subsidies over a veto threat, making it Reagan's second legislative defeat in the day.

Under the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, Congress is supposed to approve by May 15 a target federal budget for the fiscal year beginning the following Oct. 1. That deadline has been missed, however, in past years. Because the budget Congress is now trying to reach agreement on is for fiscal 1983, the failure to come up soon with a compromise will have no effect on federal programs in this fiscal year.
After five days of slogging through dozens of amendments and seven budget alternatives, the House finally rejected the three main rival budgets along with the amendments that had

N.C. Legislators Hunt Way Out Of Salary Freeze Alternative

By MARK DAVIS
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State legislators from districts heavily-laden with state employees are continuing their search for alternatives to salary freezes to help ease problems with the 1982-1983 budget.
One alternative being considered is the resurrection of a bill defeated in the state Senate in 1977 requiring some corporations to pay their taxes in advance quarterly payments.
The bill, designed to give short-term relief, would close a loophole in the law that allows some corporations to defer paying state taxes in quarterly advance payments, Rep. Al Adams, D-Wake, said.
In 1977, Adams, whose district has the state's heaviest concentration of state employees, and House Speaker Liston B. Ramsey, then a Madison County representative, pushed the bill through the House before it was stopped in the Senate.

Corporations were opposed to the measure because they otherwise could invest that money for the entire year.
"The governor said it would be a good bill for a rainy day," Adams said. "Well, it's raining mighty hard now."
Hunt offered his proposal Tuesday to House and Senate budget leaders and it was approved Wednesday by appropriations subcommittees. Thursday, the joint House and Senate Appropriations Committee reviewed it.
Several criticized Hunt's employees get their raises.

However, Ramsey says legislators would be facing the same dilemma next year if the economy did not improve, a fact agreed on by Sen. Kenneth Royall, D-Durham.
"That would be a dangerous way to do business," Ramsey said, adding that he would prefer to ratify the bill, collect the money and put it in a state savings account.
Sen. Harold Hardison, D-Lenoir, predicted the bill would remain just a rumor. "I don't think it'd float," he said. "There'll be a whole lot of proposals around here in the next week."
Hunt press secretary Gary Pearce said the governor hasn't considered reviving the bill.
COLUMBIA, S.C. — East Carolina, trying to stave off elimination in the NCAA East Regionals, was ahead of North Carolina 1-0 as the two teams entered the bottom of the seventh today.
ECU needed to defeat the Tar Heels to stay in the running for the regional title. A loss would end the season for either team.
ECU scored its lone run in the fourth. Mike Sorrell and John Hallow walked and both moved up a base on a sacrifice by Todd Evans. Sorrell then came home when Fran Fitzgerald grounded out.
ECU starter Bob Patterson was still on the mound as of the seventh. The Pirates chased UNC starter Brad Powell in the third. Powell was replaced by Ronnie Huffman.
Old Dominion, which defeated ECU 2-1 in the first round, was to have played West Virginia, a 7-0 loser Thursday to host South Carolina, today at 2:30 p.m. to determine who would meet the winner of the ECU-UNC game.
The Citadel and South Carolina will play at 7:30 p.m. in the final game of the day.

CAT PICKUP
It has been reported to the Pitt County Humane Society that a man driving a late model maroon-trimmed gray pickup truck was in the town of Ayden Thursday asking people if they had "cats to get rid of." Humane Society President Elizabeth Savage says the society has reason to believe that these cats will be sold for use in scientific experimentation, some while alive, a practice which its members condemn. Anyone having a cat or cats to "get rid of," is urged to contact Humane Society officers, Barbara Haddock, 752-9922 or Elizabeth Savage, 756-4867, rather than giving them to this man.

PCC Trustees Again Review Need For Space

The Pitt Community College Board of Trustees meeting Thursday was dominated by discussions about the college's request for more space for its nursing education program.
Board Chairman Clifton W. Everett Sr. told the board that he and members of the finance committee presented the college's need for more space and suggestions for meeting that need to the Pitt County Board of Commissioners.
PCC President William Fulford said the college is having to vacate space in Pitt County Memorial Hospital and, unless additional space is secured, the number of nursing students that can be accepted will have to be reduced.

Everett reported that G. Henry Leslie has been reappointed to the PCC Board of Trustees for another eight-year term by Gov. Jim Hunt.
The board approved the establishment of a respiration therapy curriculum, contingent on the availability of funds, personnel and adequate space and approval by the Department of Community Colleges. The tentative starting date for the program would be the fall quarter of 1983.

Board Vice Chairman Kay Whichard reported that the N.C. Community College and Technical Institutes/Colleges Trustees Association has presented a plaque in behalf of the late Dr. Robert Lee Humber in appreciation for his service and presidency of the

Hinckley Transfixed On Viewing 'Taxi Driver'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jurors at the federal trial of John W. Hinckley Jr. today watched a showing of "Taxi Driver," a movie closely linked with the presidential assailant's fantasies.

U.S. District Judge Barrington D. Parker previewed the movie and decided it should be shown to the jury. A few minutes later, a half-dozen television sets were wheeled into position facing the jury, the defense tables, Parker's bench and spectator seats, and a videotape of the movie was shown.

Moments before the movie began, Hinckley nervously formed fists with both hands and drummed them on the defense table. But the instant the film starting rolling, he turned toward a monitor about five feet away and watched transfixed.

The defense team told Parker the movie was important for jurors to see because Hinckley assumed the role of the main character, Travis Bickle, when he shot President Reagan on March 30, 1981.

In the film, Bickle stalks a presidential candidate and tries to rescue a young prostitute played by Jodie Foster, the actress with whom Hinckley had a one-sided romance.

Government prosecutor Roger M. Adelman argued that defense psychiatrists told jurors everything they need to know about the movie, but Parker said from the bench, "I'll permit the jury to see the movie."

But the prosecutors, trying to prove that Hinckley was sane when he shot Reagan and three other men outside a Washington hotel, won their bid to prohibit the jury from seeing an electronic scan of the defendant's brain.

Parker told Hinckley's lawyers Thursday they could not introduce results of a CAT scan, which they hoped would support the conclusion that the defendant was suffering from schizophrenia at the time of the shooting.

Jurors spent the day outside the courtroom, but

Parker summoned them in the late afternoon to tell them the defense has called their last witness.

"Defense counsel have completed their testimony," Parker said. "Then you will hear testimony from the government on the issue of insanity."

Radio station WTOP-AM reported here this morning that Hinckley threatened Miss Foster in March when she gave videotaped testimony that was played at the trial.

The station quoted unidentified "court sources" as saying that Hinckley threw a pen at her and said, "Jodie, I'll kill you."

While the defense has attempted over the last two weeks to show that Hinckley was insane, and thus innocent, the prosecution will argue that the defendant knew what he was doing when he wounded Reagan and three other men outside the Washington Hilton Hotel.

Prosecutors have said they will call several witnesses, including law enforcement officers who were at the Hilton when Hinckley fired six shots from his .22-caliber revolver.

Before hearing testimony on the CAT scan, Parker called Hinckley to the bench to discuss his absences from the courtroom.

Head down and hands clasped in front of him, Hinckley told the judge: "I just had a problem listening to testimony yesterday. I feel today I can sit through the remainder of testimony."

The words were the first the defendant has spoken publicly since his trial began exactly one month earlier.

He had boycotted his trial Wednesday, watching the proceedings on closed circuit television in a cell behind the courtroom. But he told Parker he realized he could not "come and go" from the courtroom at will.

According to Hinckley's lawyers, the CAT scan — computer assisted tomography — showed Hinckley's brain had shrunk. But three experts in psychiatry testified Thursday that studies statistically linking the test to schizophrenia are too new to be conclusive.

In a ruling from the bench, Parker agreed.

"I think, running consistently through their testimony, was the lack of general acceptance of the CAT scan as a diagnostic instrument in connection with the disorder of schizophrenia," he said.

He added he was not convinced that CAT scans are "a credible and generally accepted supportable element within the diagnosis. I don't think the defendants have made an adequate and sufficient showing."

But Dr. Daniel Weinberger, of the National Institute of Mental Health, testified the X-rays are useful for detecting "structural" faults like tumors that can produce mental illness but that "evidence is not such that a conclusion of cause and effect can be drawn."

He said: "schizophrenia is not diagnosed from CAT scans" and "I would not use this to make a diagnosis of schizophrenia."

Among 7th Graders Honored At Duke U.

Seven students at Greenville Middle School were among students from 16 states honored at Duke University May 15-16. They were among 18,000 seventh graders who took the college level Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) as participants in the university's Talent Identification Program.

Christy Garrison and Kate Shappley were honored at the Grand Awards Ceremony. To be invited, students had to score at least 600 out of 800 points on the verbal portion, 58 out of 60 points on the Test of Standard Written English, or have an SAT score (mathematics plus verbal) greater than 1,000.

Gita Gulati, Michele Hunt, Becky Kirkland, Marshall Moore and Jennifer Newton were honored at the awards ceremony for high-scoring students from North Carolina — students who scored at least 500 out of 800 points on the mathematics portion of the SAT (450 for girls), or 430 out of 800 points on the verbal, or 52 out of 60 points on the Test of Standard Written English.

Greenville Middle School itself was awarded a certificate of merit based upon the students' scores.

To participate in the TIP program, a student had to score in the top 13 percent on CAT tests. Sixteen percent of the middle school's students were eligible to take the SAT in the program, and the seven students invited to the awards ceremonies all scored above the average for college-bound high school students, school officials said.

Government prosecutor Roger M. Adelman argued that defense psychiatrists told jurors everything they need to know about the movie, but Parker said from the bench, "I'll permit the jury to see the movie."

The coalition plan backed by moderate Republicans and Democrats was rejected 289-137. Defeated 253-171 was a Democratic leadership-endorsed plan drafted by Jones' committee and carrying floor amendments.

A final attempt to pass the Jones bill without the amendments was rejected 265-159.

The critical blow that brought down the process came when Republican conservatives, upset at the record-breaking deficits under consideration, revolted and joined with Democrats in passing an amendment by Rep. Mary Rose Oaker, D-Ohio, that called for full financing of Medicare at the expense of Reagan's planned defense buildup.

Conservatives who supported the amendment later said they hoped to defeat all three potential spending blueprints before the House in hopes that a plan with a sharply lower deficit could be passed.

The Oaker amendment called for transferring $4.85 billion from defense spending to Medicare programs in the 1983 fiscal year. It passed 228-196 as 64 Republicans broke ranks. Democrats quickly took advantage of the schism among Republicans to amend the other two plans as well to include the transfer.

Passage of the amendment was not so much a reflection of House sentiment to the idea of increasing Medicare money as it was an indication of the growing splits in both parties in the chamber that sometimes give splinter groups the balance of power.

Leaders on both sides admitted later that they had badly miscalculated in thinking the Oaker amendment could not attract sufficient support.

Medicare aside, there were substantial differences among the three competing budget plans before the lengthy amending process began on the House floor. Each plan had deficits for 1983 in the area of $100 billion.

The Reagan-backed proposal called for $95 billion in tax increases over three years; a $28-billion reduction in the administration's defense buildup and $76 billion in overall spending cuts in domestic and benefit programs, Medicare included.

The deficits were predicted to decline from $102.6 billion in 1983 to $52.2 billion in 1985.

The deficits envisioned in the Democratic leadership's proposal were $103.9 billion in 1983, declining to $34.7 billion in 1985, but the mix of tax increases and spending cuts was far different. On taxes, the Democrats favored increases of $147 billion over three years, combined with a reduction in the defense buildup of $47.4 billion. Democrats proposed spending cuts in domestic programs of $38.5 billion, or about half the amount in the GOP plan, including the $9.4 billion from Medicare.

FCC Decides TV Ads 'Fair'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The televising last fall of Republican-produced commercials supporting President Reagan's economic program did not violate the fairness doctrine, according to the Federal Communications Commission.

In a 6-1 vote Thursday, the commission said the Democratic National Committee failed to prove the overall coverage of economic issues on CBS and NBC — the networks airing the commercials — was "unreasonably out of balance."

Memorial Day

American Legion Post 39 of Pitt County will celebrate Memorial Day with its annual service Sunday beginning at 2:30 p.m. at the Legion building on St. Andrews Drive.

The Rose High School junior band, conducted by Ben Ferguson, will provide the opening music. Harold D. "Buck" Weaver, post chaplain, will be in charge of the invocation. The colors will be raised by the D.H. Conley Junior ROTC cadets, led by Lt. Col. (Ret.) Carl L. Grantham, followed by the pledge of allegiance led by Seth Jones.

"America" will be sung, led by Mrs. Norman Wilkerson and organist Mrs. Ruth Taylor.

District 3 Commander R.M. Helms will introduce the speaker, Dr. Leo Jenkins, who will speak on "Descent of Our Heritage." Jenkins, former chancellor of East Carolina University, is a long-time Legionnaire. He served in the Marines from 1941-1945.

Following the speech will be the singing of "America the Beautiful." A salute will be fired by the honor guard of the 167th Military Battalion of the National Guard from Washington, N.C. Taps will be played by D.H. Conley Junior ROTC member Scott Garris and a prayer led by the post chaplain will conclude the service. Refreshments will be served following the ceremony.

Dear Abby

Future Still Undecided

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem a lot of kids my age have, so I hope you will come up with an answer and print it. I'm 17 and a junior in high school. I'm an average student and I guess you could call me an average guy.

People are always asking me what I am going to do with my future. And my problem is, I don't know yet.

When I tell them that, they look at me like I am weird or stupid, so please tell me how I am supposed to answer that question so I won't feel embarrassed.

FUZZY FUTURE

DEAR FUZZY: You need not feel embarrassed for admitting that at 17 you don't know how you want to spend the rest of your life.

You are very wise, not "weird or stupid," to defer such an important decision until you are reasonably certain. Hat's off to you for your honesty and good judgment.

DEAR ABBY: As a professional counselor, I encounter many people who don't know how to handle grief or the loss of a loved one. They are grieving alone because their friends are afraid to visit them. Why do friends stay away? Because they don't know what to say.

I have learned more from dying and grieving people than I have from books. Perhaps these tips on how to give support to those who are terminally ill or are struggling to cope with a tragedy or loss will be useful to your readers. Please feel free to edit as you see fit and use in your column.

PHYLLIS W. HENDERSON, STAUNTON, VA.

1. When there's a terminally ill person in the family, everyone asks the family, "How is he?" Those who must live with that person need to hear, "How are you?" The family is hurting, yet they're treated as if they were invisible.

2. Don't worry about what to say. Speak from the heart. Or say nothing. Sometimes just hugging or holding someone can convey more than words.

3. Don't worry about what to bring someone who is very ill. Bring yourself. And give of yourself. Don't be like the person who runs in and says, "I've come to cheer you up..." I'm double-parked. Gotta run. Bye!"

4. Be there later. Chances are, their numbness will wear off long after the crisis or the funeral, but by then, everyone's gone home. Anniversaries, birthdays and holidays are hard times to be alone.

5. Don't shut the children out. If there are children in the family, listen to them, and don't hide your tears. You should teach them that tears are healing. (They are.) Ask each child if he/she wants to attend the funeral, and accept each answer as right for that child.

6. Don't stay away. Go even if you have a knot in your stomach. Go even if you're afraid you might say all the wrong things. Chances are they won't remember your words, but they'll feel your touch and remember that you came when they needed someone.

DEAR ABBY: My sister-in-law, Margaret, was going to ride along with two other women who came by for her. When they pulled up (both sitting in front) Margaret started to get into the back, when they said, "There's plenty of room for three in front."

As she started to get in, the woman on the right moved to make room for Margaret, and she accidentally stepped on the gas pedal. The car lurched and Margaret was thrown to the pavement and broke her leg. It was a nasty break, which will take a long time to heal.

Please warn your readers to always shift into "park" when people are getting into and out of a car.

When a new recipe for barbecue spareribs came our way, we were tempted to try it because — for a change — the sauce was made without the usual tomato base.

On inquiry, we discovered that the young cook who invented the new sparerib dish had been trying an Indonesia recipe for a sate (grilled skewered meat). The chief ingredients for the sate's sauce were soy sauce, peanut butter and a sweetener. She liked the dish so much she decided to work out something similar using spareribs. The corn syrup used as the sweetener in her recipe helps the sauce stick to the ribs — a most desirable quality. When we cooked and broiled the ribs indoors and reheated them in our microwave oven, the sauce coated the ribs very thickly.

The following recipe gives directions for broiling the ribs in a kitchen range and for broiling them outdoors over charcoal.

NEW STYLE BARBECUE SPARERIBS
4 pounds spareribs, cut into 1-rib portions Water
1/4 cup soy sauce
1-3rd cup creamy peanut butter
1-3rd cup cider vinegar
1 cup dark corn syrup
1 tablespoon minced fresh gingerroot
Scallions, if desired
In a 5-quart saucepot cover the spareribs with water.

Bridal Shower Held Recently

Mary Alice Smith, who will marry Eddie Rhodes June 26, was entertained at a miscellaneous shower Saturday afternoon.

Hostesses were Debbie Mills and Charlotte Simmons.

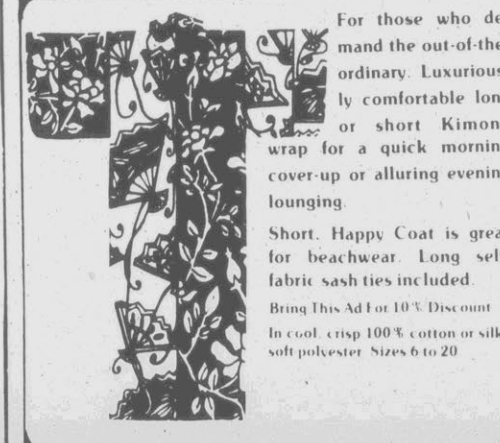

The honoree was remembered with a corsage of yellow silk mums.

The refreshment table was covered with a white lace cloth and centered with an arrangement of multi-colored roses.

Over high heat, covered, bring to a boil. Boil gently until the spareribs are tender — about 45 minutes.

In a small bowl stir together the soy sauce, peanut butter, vinegar, corn syrup and ginger.

Drain the ribs well; place in a single layer in a shallow roasting pan (15 by 12 by 2 inches); spoon some of the sauce over the ribs. Broil 6 inches from high heat, turning and basting often with additional sauce, until browned — about 20 minutes.

Garnish, if you like, with scallions.

Makes 4 servings.

Note: The spareribs may be broiled over charcoal. In this case, they should be brushed with the sauce, placed directly on the barbecue grill and basted often.

Stand By Convictions

Has the United States learned nothing from its recent history of pull-back warfare? One reasonably would believe that Korea and Vietnam — where thousands upon thousands of Americans died while their political leaders pulled feather-soft strings back home to appease the enemy — had shown the world the folly of fighting a war without trying to win.

But not the Reagan Administration. Secretary of State Alexander Haig, who won a few gold stars for himself in trying to head off military action between Argentina and Great Britain, now proposes that England follow the U.S. lead in Southeast Asia and draw back before reaching victory in the Falklands.

Haig's excuse is that a total British victory would make Argentina look for a scapegoat and "it probably would be us." Can any reasonable person expect Argentina not to look for a scapegoat regardless of anything short of a total victory by the Argentine forces? The United States already is on Argentina's less-than-desirable list because it has backed Britain so far.

But if we now stand scared of what Argentina might say if Britain wins, why did we speak up in the first place. Once Haig had completed his diplomatic efforts, the U.S. eagle could just as easily have folded its wings — as it has come close to doing in the last three decades when confrontation occurs — and remained neutral. After all, Argentina is in the Americas and that makes it almost one of us.

Instead, the U.S. chose to grab on the tail of the British lion — which this newspaper supported — while publicly offering its support and materiel. Haig's statement now just doesn't come close to matching that promise of support. It's almost like the case of the second-biggest bully latching on to the coattail of the biggest bully when they go up against an outnumbered foe, and then turning tail and running when the foe shows strength.

The United States is not a bully, nor is it afraid of itself. We had the conviction to take a stand with Britain. Now, for the sake of all that has gone into building this country, let's stand up and forget about Korea, Vietnam and Iran and again become the United States of America.

BACK-TO-BACK PERIL!

Good Minds Not Wanted

By MAXWELL GLEN and CODY SHEARER
WASHINGTON — Forget what U.S. history books say about the "melting pot" that lured the likes of Einstein, Frankfurter and other talented immigrants; America is in a mood to force foreign minds from her shores.

In response, Congress has been moving quickly on potentially landmark legislation that would, among other measures, require most foreign students to leave the U.S. once they've received their degrees. Under the proposed Immigration Reform and Control Act of 1982, student visa-holders would have to return home for two years before applying for permission to live and work in America.

Many Americans might appreciate a crackdown on the rapidly growing number of foreign students in the U.S. (Today's total of about 300,000 is expected to double by 1990.) Iranians, who represent the largest group of foreign students, made a bad name for themselves during the hostage crisis. More importantly, one in three foreign students remains in the U.S. after completing his or her degree, either through visa abuse, the good graces of prospective employers, or spouses who are U.S. citizens.

Wyoming Sen. Alan Simpson, co-author of the immigration bill, believes that U.S. policy encourages foreigners to hang out in the states rather than help their own countries. "I don't mind foreigners studying in the U.S.," the lanky Republican lawyer insisted.

"What we're saying is that they can adjust their (immigration) status ... but in their home countries. A two-year period should enable them to see what purpose they can serve there."

On one hand, of course, no one wants U.S. policy to encourage brain drain in the Third World. Yet Simpson has been resisting dire warnings from the electronics and academic communities that his bill will exacerbate domestic manpower shortages in fields highly popular with foreign students: electrical engineering and computer science.

To date, Simpson has been leaning on the pro-labor advice of electronics industry "gadfly" Irwin Peerst, who's tirelessly argued that U.S. companies tend to hire foreignborn engineers at lower salaries and at the expense of older Americans. In any case, Simpson adds, the U.S. shouldn't become overly dependent on foreigners for its high-tech expertise.

But U.S. government statistics and college placement surveys indicate anything but a surplus of electrical engineers and computer scientists.

Moreover, industry executives we spoke with readily point to National Science Foundation calculations that foreigners now account for half the engineering doctorates awarded by U.S. universities. American students simply aren't as eager to obtain the advanced degree that recruiters would prefer.

"It's not a matter of discriminating between foreigners and Americans," says William Cagney of the National Foreign Trade Council in New York. "It's a matter of quality ... the companies I'm talking to are desperately searching for high quality graduates."

Much has been made of the estimate that U.S. taxpayers subsidize foreign-student education to the tune of $1 billion annually. Betty Vetter of the Scientific Manpower Commission in Washington notes that only 4.7 percent of graduate students in 1980-1981 listed their major source of financial support as foreign.

"We are rightly or wrongly allowing many foreign students to learn graduate engineering in this country," Vetter says. "Having invested this much, should we send the investment out of the country?"

In the effort to quell fears about illegal immigration, Simpson and his House counterpart, Romano Mazzoli (D-Ky.), have not addressed what even President Reagan calls the "threatening" state of math and science education in America. Perhaps their bill is weighty as is.

Yet, severe cutbacks in — among other areas — National Science Foundation grants for science and engineering education are forcing universities to grovel for more corporate sponsorship. Its an "iffy" prospect, which, in the meantime, only heightens the need to redress faculty and graduate student attrition with foreign nationals.

"You have to set your priorities," says Hishan Massoud, 32, an Egyptian graduate student in Stanford's electrical engineering department. Massoud has been recruited heavily by universities and electronics firms. "I would respect a decision to shift money now spent on foreign students to programs that help poorer Americans ... but sending foreign nationals back solves the least important problem."

Simpson, a flexible guy, may eventually accommodate foreign students who, like Massoud, are in such high demand. But he might do so in the interest of a coordinated, educational and industrial policy. No matter where they come from, good minds are terrible things to waste.

Welcome To Sudan Temple

Most local citizens are aware now that thousands of Shriners, members of Sudan Temple, are here this weekend for the spring ceremonial.

Festive banners have been hung by many Greenville businesses during the week to welcome the visitors.

The ceremonial will honor David J. Whichard, Jr., who was for many years editor and publisher of The Daily Reflector and now is chairman of the board of directors.

There will be events of interest to the general public, including the parade which is scheduled to begin tomorrow at 12 noon.

The Shriners will also be having a business meeting, and other activities for members and their wives.

It is a time for celebration for members of Sudan Temple. We welcome our visitors and their families.

Something For Nancy

The question of personal gifts to the President and the First Lady is not a new problem, and before making a judgment on whether they should accept them or not we should examine the issue closely.

The first thing we must ask ourselves is, "Why do people want to give the Reagans gifts now, rather than before Ronnie and Nancy moved into the White House?"

The answer is that the donor has such respect for the highest office in the land that he wants to show his affection with something more tangible than a mailgram.

I have a furrier friend in New York named Rabbitt, and every time we get a new First Lady he calls me on the phone.

"You know someone at the White House?"

"Of course I do."

"Good, I want to make the President's wife a brand new fur coat."

"Why do you want to do that?"

"Because I love her and I don't want her to freeze when she goes with her husband to Canada. It won't cost her a nickel, and I'll even come down to Washington to do the fittings, so she doesn't have to come to my showroom and put up with a lot of television and news reporters, who would probably hear about it."

"You have a good heart, Rabbitt, but some people might think you're giving her a fur coat just to promote you straight out if you gave the First Lady a fur coat?"

"I'll say, it's not for me, but for the White House to comment on that. If they want to spill the beans that's their business. I consider it a personal matter between the Reagans and myself. Just tell Nancy I've got the pelts if she's got the time."

"I don't know," I said.

"You just don't call up the First Lady of the land and say, 'Rabbitt wants to make you a fur coat.' It's sort of tacky, and besides it implies that the President can't afford to buy her one."

"Okay, if she feels strongly about it I'll loan her a fur coat for the next three years, and then she can give it to the next first lady who moves into the White House. Our slogan is, 'A Rabbitt Fur Coat Lasts Forever.'"

"Are you sure there are no strings attached to this generous offer?"

"What do you think I am, some crazy publicity hound? I only give away fur coats to my friends."

"But Nancy Reagan isn't your friend."

"She will be if she takes the coat."

"I'm not sure I want to make the call."

"You got to," Rabbitt said desperately. "It's being announced in Vogue and Harper's Bazaar next month."

"Why did you do that?" I said.

"It wasn't me. There's a mole in my organization who keeps leaking things to the press."

yourself."

"I can't help what people think. This is strictly a personal gift from my wife and myself. If 'Women's Wear Daily' finds out I gave the First Lady a fur coat it won't come from my publicity department. I told them mum's the word. But my furs are so beautiful that when people see her on television I can't stop them from saying, 'Look, she's wearing a Rabbitt Fur Coat.'"

Prison Labor-Use

By PAUL T. O'CONNOR
RALEIGH — It warmed the hearts of legislators last year to order that additional prison inmates be put to work on North Carolina roadways. If the motorists of the state were to pay and extra three-cent tax on gas, then inmates could be made to contribute something to their own upkeep.

Putting inmates on the roads pleases everybody. The Legislature feels frugal, hard-liners feel they've eliminated the country club element of prison life, and corrections officials see the work as rehabilitative. Even the inmates like it. Better to be out on the road all day than sitting in some cell.

When legislators come back for the June session, they'll have to decide whether or not to continue a program that has increased the number of medium security inmates at work on the roads. Last year, they upped the number of these inmates from 368 to 848. They'll have to put an additional $1.1 million in the budget for 1982-83 to keep the medium security workforce at that level.

Counting minimum security inmates, there are almost 2,000 inmates working on state roads. Department of Transportation officials are certain that the minimum security inmates amount to a real bargain. DOT pays the Department of Correction $1 per day for each minimum security inmate. These people then work alongside regular highway workmen on all kinds of road projects. It pretty much amounts to free labor.

The cost efficiency of medium custody inmates is not as evident. These guys are considered much more dangerous than their minimum security brethren and require armed guards. Their work areas are restricted and the kinds of work they do is limited.

DOT figures it costs $3,800 a year to put each of these people to work on the road. Is it worth it?

One factor is the kind of work these people perform. Legislative researcher Jim Newlin characterizes it as

Other Editors Say Out Of Court

(Greensboro Daily News)

Each year dozens of legal cases are adjudicated which should never see the inside of a Guilford County courtroom.

They are petty in nature, often pertain to personal squabbles and usually involve minor infractions of the law.

Not only are they expensive for participants who often hire lawyers, they are costly for taxpayers whose dollars underwrite the court hours these cases monopolize.

Earlier this week, the Z. Smith Reynolds Foundation of Winston-Salem awarded $25,000 to a Guilford County group that hopes to remedy the situation with a dispute settlement center.

The foundation grant should be applauded by all citizens who believe in a progressive judicial system. A dispute settlement center works like this:

Persons involved in minor disputes have their case mediated free of charge at the center rather than in court.

Mediators are trained volunteers. No guilt is assigned. If the parties are not satisfied with the settlement they may take the case to court.

The center is expected to hear cases involving domestic and juvenile issues, minor criminal cases, neighborhood disputes and landlord-tenant disagreements.

Orange County is the only judicial district in the state with a dispute settlement center.

During 1981, that center heard 442 disputes and successfully mediated 84 percent of them.

Orange County's good record is the best recommendation for launching a dispute settlement center in Guilford County.

Let there be no dispute about that.

Strength For Today

WALK IN FAITH

St. Paul in one of his epistles urges his followers to walk in faith. But the Bible nowhere states that people are saved just by believing something. It insists that this belief must be of a variety which makes a spiritual difference, which manifests itself in new attitudes and new ways of living.

All religion begins with belief, but religion which ends with belief is not religion at all but a delusion and a snare. Belief is only the first step in the direction of faith.

A test to which all of us should subject ourselves is a regular check-up on the extent to which we really practice the things we profess to believe. Many people have perfectly good Christian doctrines which rattle around in their empty hearts and minds like loose cargo being tossed about in a ship during rough weather.

Walk in faith — don't just talk in faith. — Elisha Douglass

NEW YORK (AP) — Pressed by recession, inflation, high interest rates and foreign competition, American companies are asking the basic questions they have long avoided.

To paraphrase Peter Drucker, the management authority, they are asking themselves "What exactly is it we do?" and "Why?"

As a result, literally hundreds of companies are reorganizing. One authority, Prof. Eugene E. Jennings, counts 25 of the largest 100 concerns as now undergoing total restructuring.

Products are being redesigned or dropped, divisions sold and others acquired, executive responsibilities consolidated, while collar workers laid off by the thousands, and wages and salaries cut or frozen.

Some Wall Streeters who watch the process say the end result will be a much stronger American industrial base, but in the meantime just as many wonder if pressures might not destroy some old line firms.

General Motors provides an example of some of the changes. Speaking to shareholders at the company's annual meeting, chairman Roger Smith ticked off some of the steps already taken by the biggest manufacturer.

—GM's worldwide salaried ranks have been reduced by 27,000 employees in the past three years.

—The company "absorbed" more than $1 billion in extraordinary expenses in the past year connected with the introduction of "so many new products."

—One-third of GM's North American product line for 1982 is brand new.

—New national labor agreements have been negotiated. What remains is for management and employees to work together at the plant level to become more competitive and thus assure job security.

—Divisions have been eliminated or consolidated, personnel realigned and new operations created.

—The company has aligned itself with overseas firms through outright purchase of minority ownership or joint agreements, such as purchase of a minority interest in Suzuki Motors Co. and a joint venture with Fujitsu-Fanuc of Japan.

While GM still tends to stick to its last, the production of engines and automotive vehicles, some old-line concerns are making stunning breaks with tradition. Among them are companies in communications, steel and chemicals — AT&T, U.S. Steel and Allied Corp. included.

One of the biggest changes of all seems to involve management and employee attitudes.

Embarrassed and concerned by superior productivity at some Japanese plants, and fearful about the loss of contracts and jobs, U.S. labor and management appear to be far more cooperative than before.

Taking a cue from Japanese management, which involves workers directly in quality control and productivity improvement, many American companies are developing the practice of participative management.

Perhaps the best known example of this is Quality Circles, begun in Japan, in which small groups of workers meet voluntarily for an hour or so each week to discuss ways to improve quality and production.

Honeywell Inc. is probably the most extensive user of Quality Circles in the United States, but the concept is spreading widely. Moreover, similar concepts that involve workers and which have the same quality and productivity goals are being developed under different names.

As one consultant put it, workers often have the answer to production and quality problems but have no outlet for expressing themselves, especially when management and labor have a tradition of estrangement.

Reflecting on it, some executives remark on the revolution in thinking that brings them to the point of asking assembly line workers for advice and information.

But no more revolutionary, they concede, than asking themselves: What is it we're trying to do, and how best can we do it?

Favor Mandatory Jail For Drunken Drivers

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer
For the second time in as many months, a survey of North Carolina drivers has shown that they favor a crackdown on drunken drivers.

says 86 percent of its North Carolina and South Carolina respondents to a recent questionnaire favor mandatory jail terms for drunken drivers.
Results of a University of North Carolina poll released in April said 69 percent of its respondents thought the courts were too lenient on drunken drivers, while 20 percent said court action was about right and 4 percent said the courts were too harsh.

Quentin Anderson Jr., spokesman for the Charlotte

N.C.-based Motor Club, said he believes the latest survey "represents our membership, and I think our membership represents a pretty good cross section of motorists as a whole."

Anderson said that only 4,300 — 3 percent — of the club's 211,000 members responded to the survey, but he speculated that the results would have changed little if all members had participated.

The annual survey, which ran in the April issue of the club's bi-monthly newspaper, included the question, "Are you in favor of a mandatory jail sentence for persons convicted of drunken driving?"

In North Carolina, 2,689 club members answered yes and 435 answered no. In South Carolina, 855 said yes and 139 said no.

Motor-club members responding to the survey also backed:

— Continuation of the annual motor vehicle inspection program.

— Laws requiring that children riding in automobiles be secured in approved safety seats.

— The nationwide 55-mph speed limit.

— Raising the legal drinking age from 18 to 21 years.

People responding to the survey opposed requiring adults to wear seat belts and mandatory inspections of automobile exhaust for emission pollutants.

A recent Gallup Poll showed 89 percent support nationwide for stricter drunken driving laws, with 77 percent favoring two-day jail sentences for first offenders.

"I think we're seeing a major shift in public opinion on drunken driving," Anderson said. "People are getting fed up. They're demanding that something be done."

Anderson said the Carolina Motor Club and other AAA affiliates have circulated films on drunken driving in public schools for grades seven through 12. He said recently expansion in the education program includes kindergarten through sixth

"We think the best way to combat drunken driving is to educate the public, but we also would like to see better enforcement of existing laws," Anderson said. "We'd like to see the conviction rate increase with less plea bargaining. It doesn't help to have officers making arrests and then have people get off because of some technicality or because they've got a smart lawyer."

"make work." Highway Administrator Billy Rose recently told a legislative committee the inmates perform low priority work that otherwise would not be done. They clean out ditches and pipelines, pick up litter and remove un-sightly vegetation from roadways.

Bob Adams, state maintenance chief, said most of the work wouldn't get done unless a problem arose. For example, drains wouldn't normally be cleaned out until they became clogged. In that sense, he says, the inmates provide an extra service to the taxpayers.

Adams says he's sure one inmate doesn't do as much work as one regular DOT employee. An inmate only costs one-third of a regular employee's salary, however. Noting that, he says it is doubtful one regular could get around and do as much as three inmates.

So, they may cost less than regular employees but then they're doing work which isn't important.

Is the medium security program a luxury? Prison officials don't think so. The real benefit from the program may be rehabilitative. About 15 percent of the state's 16,000 prison inmates have nothing to do — no work release, no study program, no prison duties. Putting inmates on the roads relieves the overcrowding during the day and defuses prisoner frustration. It also gives them a little work experience. All of this in a program that makes the legislators feel like they're saving money.

Marking Sixth Anniversary

The board of directors of the Carol Wilson Caldwell Memorial Scholarship Fund will hold its sixth anniversary celebration at the Casablanca Restaurant here Saturday at 7:30 p.m.

Greenville Attorney Richard Powell will be the keynote speaker.

The organization, founded in 1976, perpetuates the memory of Mrs. Caldwell, a Parmele native who practiced law in Williamston and Tarboro.

ELKS PARADE

Pitt Elks Lodge No. 234 and Golden Rod Temple No. 368 will hold their annual Elks Parade Sunday at 4:30 p.m.

All daughters are to meet at the lodge at 2 p.m. The District Workshop will begin at 3 p.m. Members should be uniformed, June White, E.R., said.

GRADUATE

Vera Renee Mills, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Mills of Grimesland, graduated from North Carolina Central University in Durham recently. She received a BBA degree in business administration with a concentration in management.

FISH FRY

Joy Temple Church will hold a fish fry to benefit its building fund Saturday from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. in the parking lot of the Harris Supermarket on Memorial Drive. Trout plates will cost $3.50; other plates, $3.

Eyewitness Describes Daring Of Argentine Pilots

LONDON (AP) — A British television correspondent in the Falklands says Argentine aircraft losses in the Falklands are estimated at six out of every 10 planes that attack the British task force.

"We can certainly confirm the daring ... of some of these pilots who came into our air defenses, hugging the water, as they did today (Thursday), coming along the line of the river even, to get into us before we can detect them," said Michael Nicholson of Independent Television News, in a radio report to ITN foreign editor Vernon Mann.

"They have been daring, they have been courageous ... They have done their damndest to come in on us and bomb us and sometimes they have succeeded, but most times they haven't.

"I gather that one of the figures that is being bandied about here as a daily average of casualties is that out of every 10 of these aircraft that are sent in from Argentina, only four manage to get back to their base.

"Six are knocked out of the air either by the combat air patrol Harriers from the carriers Invincible and Hermes, or if they manage to escape the combat air patrols, they are hit by our own missile systems here, and the machine guns, of course. Let us not forget them."

Mann asked about the machine-guns, saying, "It all sounds ... a little old-fashioned about 24,000 rounds of ammunition going into the air from 18 guns alone, and our ship has that.

"I mean that's not taking into account all the machine guns throughout the fleet here. I mean, on our ship alone the 18 guns are putting out 24,000 rounds of ammunition.

"Imagine what it must feel like, if you were a pilot in a Mirage or a Skyhawk coming in and suddenly seeing this wall of lead. I mean, there is no escape from it, you either go through it or not.

"You either go under or over, but at that speed, and by the time you've seen it, there's no escape.

"One of these lieutenants today, one of the Royal Marine commandos behind one of these guns, directing his other guns at this aircraft, making this barrage of lead, actually saw the underbelly of one of these Mirages ripped open, and it caught fire and crashed into the hill a mile on. ... Old-fashioned or not, they're doing the job."

A transcript of the conversation was made available to The Associated Press by the British domestic news agency Press Association, which obtained it from ITN.

At the start of the conversation, Mann asked: "You have been in the region of the Falkland Islands for five days now. What is your personal impression of how things are going?"

Nicholson: "I like the way you say 'in the region of.' You make me sound as if I'm some distance from it. We are right in the middle of it.

"You know San Carlos Water is a kind of horseshoe bay with a river leading off the southern tip of it, surrounded by land, and we are surrounded by our own troops on either side.

"They are well dug in. My impression is, as I said earlier, that the British military command on their own admission seem to admit that they seriously underestimated the determination of the Argentines to take casualties."

Later Mann asked about conditions aboard ship, saying: "Obviously you are on alert for quite a large part of the day. I am sure that the wives at home would be keen to hear that their husbands are getting well fed into the bargain."

Nicholson: "Well, you couldn't have said a better thing. I have been at sea now for well over seven weeks, and all of a sudden we transfer to a ship in San Carlos Water and believe it or not, they have Chinese cooks, and we have had some of the best food I have ever had in my life in these last few days.

"And over the last couple of days there has been some transfer of troops to this ship, a kind of transit operation, and the men have come up with their top button undone because they couldn't do it up. The food here has been superb.

"That doesn't go for the men ashore of course. They are sitting in trenches, sitting in holes. It's extremely cold here, if I can tell you that the Falklands looks a very inhospitable place.

"It can look very beautiful early in the morning, but when you see it for real, it is very boggy, very peaty. Apparently after the first few inches of soil it goes into the mud, and this is how these guys are surviving.

"But they have got their own messes set up, they've got their own hospitals, they are totally self-contained. They have got tons of water, and I gather that they're not complaining — well, at least not complaining publicly."

P&G Employees Celebrated Safety Record Achievement

Employees of Procter & Gamble's Greenville plant, in activities Thursday, celebrated the achievement of having worked two million consecutive hours without any employee experiencing a disabling injury.

Taking part in ceremonies at the plant were state Labor Commissioner John Brooks; Charles N. Jeffress, assistant commissioner of labor; Ed Walker, president of the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce; Burney Tucker, chairman of the Pitt County Board of Commissioners; Mayor Percy Cox; Dr. K. D. McMurrain Jr., corporate medical director for P & G from Cincinnati, and plant manager Robert Griffin.

Griffin accepted on behalf of all employees a special state certificate from Brooks, who told the gathering that it was a privilege to see industry so concerned about employee safety and recognizing accomplishments such as two million consecutive safe employee hours.

Griffin and members of the plant safety committee also accepted a P & G safety award flag from McMurrain.

McMurrain, who said that "safety is a learned function," pointed out that out of 54 company plant locations (71 when technical centers are included), there are 18 with more than one million safe hours worked, three with over two million, and

Want Probe Of Car Insurance

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans lose $1 billion a year in resale value of their cars because insurance companies pay for the lowest-price repairs for vehicles damaged in accidents, according to an organization of auto body shops.

Automotive Service Councils Inc., which claims to represent 5,000 independent shops, said Thursday in a letter to the Federal Trade Commission that the consumer agency should investigate the auto insurance industry.

John R. Cook, a spokesman for the American Insurance Association, denied that insurers are providing claimants with less-than-top-quality work.

She Rammed Wrong Car

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Pamela Czerwinski said she got a sinking feeling as soon as she saw the husky, gray-haired man emerging from the car she had just rear-ended at an intersection.

It was none other than Police Chief Harold Breier on his way to lunch in an unmarked car with an officer at the wheel and two judges riding along.

"I recognized him immediately as soon as he got out of the car," Ms. Czerwinski, 19, said of the Wednesday accident. "I've seen him on TV and stuff and I know who he was.

"I thought, 'Jeez, I'm in trouble.'"

No one was injured in the fender bender and the only damage was a broken tail light on the chief's car.

Both cars were stopped at a red light when Ms. Czerwinski's car crept forward and bumped the other auto. She said the brakes failed, and she was ticketed for driving a car with defective brakes.

"I told her, of all the cars in the city, she had to hit a squad car," the 70-year-old chief said of the accident. "She was a very frightened young lady. I felt very sorry for her. She was a nice young lady."

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

SHAKESPEARE IN THE BIBLE?

IN 1604, KING JAMES GATHERED TOGETHER A GROUP OF LINGUISTS, PREACHERS, PROFESSORS, AND SOME 47 BIBLICAL SCHOLARS TO PRODUCE A GREAT BIBLE! IT WAS DECREED THAT ALL WHO WORKED ON THIS HOLY CLASSIC SHOULD REMAIN ANONYMOUS, HOWEVER....

...SEVEN YEARS LATER, WHEN THIS GREAT VERSION OF THE BIBLE WAS PUBLISHED (1611), SOME AUTHORITIES INSISTED THAT SHAKESPEARE WAS ONE OF THE UNSUNG WRITERS AND HAD LEFT SOME CLUES TO PROVE THIS VERY FACT!

CLUES

IN 1605 SHAKESPEARE WAS 46 YEARS OLD. TURN TO PSALM 46. COUNT TO THE 46TH WORD: SHAKE NOW COUNT BACKWARDS FROM THE END OF THE PSALM ANOTHER 46 WORDS: SPEAR PUT THEM TOGETHER: SHAKESPEAR!

WHETHER THIS LEGEND IS TRUE OR FALSE, IT'S NOT TOO HARD TO BELIEVE THAT SHAKESPEARE'S TALENT CONTRIBUTED TO THE RICH POETRY AND PROSE THAT WE FIND IN THE KING JAMES BIBLE!

NEXT WEEK; PROMISES!

Revival Series Begins Sunday

REV. TOM LILLY
 Revival services will be held at Parker's Chapel Free Will Baptist Church Sunday at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m., and Monday through Wednesday at 7:30 p.m.
 The Rev. Tom Lilly, a West Virginia native who has had ministries in Michigan and North Carolina, will be the evangelist. He is the editor of "Witness," the monthly publication of the North Carolina Association of Free Will Baptists.
 Special music will be provided during the four nights of services, as will a nursery.

PRAYER SERVICE
 Universal prayer will be held at Cherry Lane Free Will Baptist Church Sunday at 7:30 p.m. and a revival will be held next week. The Rev. Tyrone Turnage will deliver the message and a choir of 100 will sing during the Sunday night service.
 The revival services will be held Monday through Friday evenings at 7:30. There will be a different choir each night: Monday — Live Oak Senior Choir; Thursday — Holly Hill Senior Nazarene Church of Christ Wednesday — Rev. Matthew Choir; and Friday — Elm Senior Choir; Tuesday — Best Traveling Choir; Grove Senior Choir.

SPECIAL GUEST
 Pearl King of Baltimore will be the special guest at Haddock Chapel Free Will Baptist Church Sunday at 11 a.m. The Young Adult Choir will sing.

GOSPEL PROGRAM
 A gospel music program will be held at Pleasant Plain Holy Church on Route 1, Ayden, Sunday. Featured singers will be the Scott Brothers of Long Island, N.Y., the Bells Singers of Baltimore and others.

REVIVAL AT FALKLAND FALKLAND — Revival services at Friendship Holiness Church here will be conducted by Elder James Turner of Rockingham.
 The music for each 8 p.m. service will be as follows: Monday — Holy Trinity Young Adult Choir; Tuesday — Mount Pleasant Choir; Wednesday — Clemons Grove Holiness Church Choir, Stokes; Thursday — Mount Moriah Church Choir, Farmville; and Friday — Mona's Chapel Choir near Saratoga.

MISSION SERVICE
 A mission service will be held at Sweet Hope Free Will Baptist Church Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. Eldress C. Smallwood will provide the message. Music will be performed by Moderator Matthew Best and the Best Traveling Choir, accompanied by Hardee's Gospel Tone Singers of Greenville.

Sunday Service

The Little Creek Free Will Baptist Church will observe worship service and fellowship day Sunday beginning at 11 a.m. The senior choir will sing. Elder Tyrone Turnage will deliver the sermon.
 Recognition will be given to college and technical school graduates. Dinner will be served at 1 p.m. At 3 p.m., Elder Turnage will preach at Mount Shiloh Missionary Baptist Church, Winterville.

Mark Pastor's 78th Birthday

St. Matthew, St. Luke and Hattie's Chapel Free Will Baptist churches will celebrate the 78th birthday of their pastor, Eldress Hattie M. Cobb, Saturday at 7:30 p.m. at St. Matthew Church.
 Speakers for the occasion will be Dr. Andrew Best, George Pugh and Skip Aronson. Elder David Daniels will preside. Dinner will be served.

Youth Revival

A youth revival will be held at Waterside Free Will Baptist Church Monday through Friday at 7:30 p.m. nightly. Elder A.J. Clark of Rock Spring Free Will Baptist Church will be the speaker.
 Monday night the W.L. Phillips Traveling Choir of Rock Spring will perform; Tuesday, St. Paul Free Will Baptist Church Choir; Wednesday, Guiding Light Temple of Faith, Farmville, Thursday, Allen Chapel Young Adult Choir, and Friday, Rouse's Chapel Voices of Youth.

ANNIVERSARY

The trustees of Rock Spring Free Will Baptist Church will celebrate their anniversary Sunday at 7:30 p.m. The Rev. Robert Phillip and Crisp Chapel Church will be in charge of the service.

MUSICAL PROGRAM

The Pastor's Aid Club, the Junior Consolators and Golden Jubilee of Greenville will present a musical program at Selvia Chapel Free Will Baptist Church on Sunday at 4 p.m.

Pope In Britain Renews Falkland Peace Hopes

LONDON (AP) — Pope John Paul II launched his historic trip to Britain today, praying for peace in the Falkland Islands and then meeting Queen Elizabeth II at Buckingham Palace.

The head of the Roman Catholic Church began his six-day tour of this Anglican nation by declaring he was deeply moved to set foot on English soil and said he would pray for an end to the Falkland Islands conflict "at each step" of his pastoral visit.

"We cannot forget that an armed conflict is taking place — brothers in Christ fighting in a war that imperils peace in the world," he said in a homily at Westminster Cathedral. "In our prayers, let us remember the victims of both sides."

As he spoke, British troops were fighting to expand their beachhead on the Falkland Islands, seized by Argentina April 2.

The 62-year-old pontiff, who nearly canceled his visit because of the conflict, was applauded by the cathedral congregation when he said: "Today, for the first time in history, a bishop of Rome sets foot on English soil. I am deeply moved."

Against a background of 450 years of sectarian strife between Catholics and Protestants — continuing to this day in Northern Ireland — John Paul said, "My deep desire, my ardent hope and prayer is that visit may serve the cause of Christian unity."

He later met the queen at Buckingham Palace. The monarch, whose predecessor Henry VII broke with the Holy See in 1534 over its refusal to sanction his divorce, is temporal head of the Church of England, Britain's officially established church.

Extreme Protestants have objected to the meeting — billed by both London and the Vatican as "informal" — citing the queen's formal title as "protector of the faith."

Earlier, arriving at Gatwick Airport south of London to a low-key reception, John Paul recalled his repeated pleas for a Falklands truce: "As I stand here today, I renew my heartfelt appeal, and I pray that such a settlement of the dispute will soon be reached."

Returned To Find A Body

NEWTON, Mass. (AP) — Police are trying to identify a man's body discovered in a bedroom closet by a couple returning home from a six-month vacation.

The body, with a bullet wound in the head, was found sitting in a closet at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Marks, police said.

Police were called to the scene at 8:40 p.m. Tuesday after the couple entered their home and discovered "a strong stench." Police said a .25-caliber handgun was found next to the body.

Authorities were still trying to determine if the death was a murder or suicide, said Lt. Charles Feeley.

Medical examiner Nathaniel Brackett Jr. said the body had been there "more than a couple of weeks."

The body, clothed in tan pants, a tan jacket and work shoes, was found in a sitting position, police said. The man, who had long brown hair and a mustache and beard, appeared to be 35 to 40 years old.

The ranch house was vacant while the family was away, police said. There was no sign of forced entry.

Obituaries

Bell
 A funeral service for Mrs. Jessie Mae Jones Bell will be conducted Monday at 4 p.m. at Mount Calvary Free Will Baptist Church by Dr. W.L. Jones. Burial will be in Brown Hill Cemetery.

Mrs. Bell spent most of her life in Greenville and was affiliated with Mount Calvary Free Will Baptist Church, which she served on the Mothers Board and as a welcomer of visitors. She attended the Greenville schools and graduated from Winston-Salem State University. For 40 years she taught in the Pitt County and Greenville school systems, retiring from Third Street School in 1981. After retiring, she worked with her husband at Bell's Service Center and did volunteer tutoring at Third Street School.

Surviving her are her husband, U. Grant Bell Jr.; three sons, Louis Bell of Anoka, Minn., Godfrey Gray Bell of Fayetteville and U. Grant Bell III of Goldsboro; four brothers, John Jones Jr., William E. "Bill" Jones and Bruce Jones, all of Greenville, and Fred Jones of New York; and eight grandchildren.

The family will receive friends Sunday from 8 to 9 p.m. at Mount Calvary Church.

Mr. Pollard was born and lived most of his life in the Joseph Branch community of Pitt County. He was a member and deacon of Joseph Branch F.W.B. Church and a member of the Popular Hill Senior Citizens Club.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Nora Hargett Pollard of Route 1, Vanceboro; four sons, William Pollard of Route 1, Grimesland, James E. Pollard and Benjamin Franklin Pollard, both of Newark, N.J.; and Elmer Pollard of Snow Hill; 11 daughters, Rosa Marie Pollard and Darlene Pollard, both of the home, Mrs. Martha P. Cooper of Southern Pines, Mrs. Nina P. Davis of Passaic, N.J., Mrs. Kallie P. Kidd of Jamaica, N.Y., Mrs. Ella P. Lee of Long Island City, N.Y., Mattie Pollard of Newark, N.J., Mrs. Betty P. Williams of Far Rockaway, N.Y., Mrs. Margaret P. Edwards of Franklinton, Mrs. Mary P. Lane of Route 2, Ayden, and Mrs. Velma P. Wooten of New Bern; one brother, Amos Pollard of Route 1, Vanceboro; 55 grandchildren and 18 great-grandchildren.

The body will lie in state at the Norcott Memorial Chapel in Ayden from 6 p.m. Saturday until it is carried to the church one hour before the funeral. The family visitation at the chapel will be from 8-9 p.m. Saturday.

Wells
 Mr. Ausman Goodwin Wells, 76, of 2504 E. Fourth St., died Thursday in Pitt County Memorial Hospital. His funeral service will be conducted Saturday at 3:30 p.m. in the Wilkerson Funeral Chapel by the Rev. Jim Bailey. Burial will be in Greenwood Cemetery.

Mr. Wells, a native of Belhaven, had been a resident of Greenville since 1923 and was a graduate of Greenville High School. He was associated from 1925 to 1961 with Greenville Banking And Trust Co., which later became Guaranty Bank and Trust Co., then merged in 1960 with Wachovia Bank and Trust Co. He was a member of Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church and its Carson Memorial Bible Class.

Friends will meet at the Wilkerson Funeral Home tonight from 7 to 9 o'clock. Those desiring to make memorial contributions are asked to consider the Ausmus G. Wells Memorial Fund of Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church.

Old Dominion Ekes Out 2-1 Victory Over Pirates

By WOODY PEELE

Reflector Sports Editor
COLUMBIA, S.C. — When East Carolina Coach Hal Baird heard the news Monday that ECAC-South foe Old Dominion had not only gotten the sixth bid to the East NCAA regionals at Columbia, S.C., but would be the first round foe of the Pirates, he was heartsick.

"They have everything going for them," Baird said in comments then. "The little park at South Carolina favors their type of play, and they certainly will be up for us. We had to win the tournament to get into the field and they lost the tournament and still got it."

Yesterday afternoon, it turned out to be just as Baird had feared as the Old Dominion Monarchs eked out a 2-1 win over the Pirates.

The loss sends East Carolina against North Carolina, a 9-4 loser to The Citadel Thursday at 10:30 a.m. today.

The Monarchs, meanwhile, will face West Virginia, a 7-0 loser to host South Carolina yesterday. Game time is 2:30.

ODU and South Carolina will play at 7:30 p.m. The loser of the 10:30 game is out of the double-elimination tournament.

The battle turned out to be a fight between ECU's Bill Wilder and ODU's Jim Ambrose — as the two met for the third time this year. Both gave up seven hits, with Wilder walking one and fanning two. Ambrose, who had helped in the final frame from Scott Hughes, walked none and struck out one.

"They were able to get the ground ball through the infield and we weren't," a red-eyed Wilder said afterwards. "They got the doubleplay when they needed it and got the breaks and beat us."

The key to the game came in the first inning as leadoff batter Mark Wasinger hit a homer to near dead center. The ball just did clear the fence in the peanut-sized park.

South Carolina's centerfield fence is only 365 from home. For comparative purposes, ECU's Harrington is 410, and Guy Smith's is 362.

"He hit a down and low fast ball and I thought it was just a fly ball," Wilder said. "Then I turned around and saw Robert (Wells) leap for it. He really didn't hit it that well."

Joe Millis followed the roundtripper up with a high hopping ball to short for a hit and with one away, Jeff Beard singled to left. Then, after another out, Terry Bell got a hit up the middle for the second ODU run — a run that would not have scored

Rose-Richmond Co. Winner To Meet Eastern Wayne

The wait is over and sometime later tonight, either Greenville Rose or Richmond County will fall from the list of the unbeaten.

The two 4-A baseball powers square off tonight at Guy Smith Stadium in the second round of the state playoffs, with the winner advancing to the 4-A semifinals.

Game time is 8 p.m., not 7:30 as previously reported. Admission is $2.50.

The winner will square off against Eastern Wayne, a 3-2 victor over New Hanover of Wilmington Thursday night. Eastern Wayne is now 2-2.

Eastern Wayne scored two of its runs on errors and its third on a wild pitch. Eastern Wayne, which is hitting around .340 as a team, managed just two hits last night.

Reliever Robbie Pelletier saved the game for Eastern Wayne, coming in on the top of the fourth with the bases loaded and a 3-1 count on Jerry Arthur, New Hanover's top hitter, at the plate.

Pelletier struck out Arthur for the final out. He went on to strike out eight in 3½ innings.

In another playoff game tonight, Williamston (15-7) travels to Jacksonville to meet White Oak (18-3) at 7:30 in the second round of the 3-A playoffs.

Meanwhile, in the 1-A playoffs Jamesville travels to Raleigh to play Cardinal Gibbons in a 4 p.m. game. The winner advances to the 1-A finals.

Richmond County comes into tonight's game at 24-0. The Rampants, meanwhile, are 23-0.

Gordon Douglas (12-0, 0.25 ERA) will be on the mound for Rose while Rocky Walters (11-0, under 2.00 ERA) will counter for the Raiders in one of the biggest games in the area in recent years.

A Staff Report

Greenville Rose honored its own last night at its annual sports banquet for what has been an outstanding year at the school — a year that has not as yet come to an end.

Neither baseball nor track awards were given last night because both squads remain in the hunt for state titles.

Rose's baseball team plays Richmond County 8 p.m. tonight at Guy Smith Stadium in the second round of the 4-A playoffs. Meanwhile, the Rampant track team will be in Raleigh today for the state meet.

Despite the absence of baseball and track awards, Rose's three most prestigious awards — the Kiwanis Cup, the H.L. Hodges Award and the Dixon Cup — were all given out.

Robert Brown, who runs track, wrestles and plays football, received the Dixon Cup, symbolic of the most outstanding male athlete at the school.

Belinda Haselrig, who is on the tennis team and basketball team, won the H.L. Hodges Award, the girl's version of the Dixon Cup.

Barry Smith, who played football and basketball, received the Kiwanis Cup, which is symbolic of sportsmanship in athletics.

Brown, Haselrig and Smith also won other awards. Brown was named as the best defensive player on the football team while Haselrig received the Coach's Award in tennis.

Smith, a senior forward, was named the most outstanding player on the basketball team.

Frances Barnhill was the only other athlete to receive two awards. Barnhill was named most valuable player in both girls' basketball and volleyball.

A special award was presented by the Rose High booster club to former Rose coach Dave Bumgarner, who coached the football team from 1971 to 1980 before resigning.

Another special award of a plaque and a jacket was to be presented to former Rose pole vaulter Mike Thurber, who last year was named an All-American. Thurber was unable to attend because of an illness.

Wide receiver Chris McLawhorn was voted most valuable player in football and forward William Battle received the same award for his performance this season in basketball.

Rose AD Bud Phillips also announced that both the girls' and boys' teams had won the All-Sports Trophy in the Big East. The boys won by 13 points over Rocky Mount and the girls edged Wilson Fike by one-half point.

In other MVP awards: Boys' cross country — Kenny Smith; Girls' cross-country — Angie Michelle.

Boys' tennis — Stephen

Holloman; Girls' tennis — Lou Taft.

Wrestling — James Richardson.

Golf — Craig Davies.

Boys' swimming — Kevin O'Neal; Girls' swimming — Mary Kate Cunningham.

Girls' track — Judie Daniels. Girls' softball — Linda Winstead.

JV football — Frankie Carr. JV basketball — Mack Walston.

JV baseball — Mike Kinley.

In other football awards, Ben Smith was voted the best lineman and Roger Williams was voted the best back. Robert Jones was named most improved.

In other basketball awards, Tim Harris was named most improved for the boys and Alma Atkinson received the Coach's Award for the girls.

Gloria Adams was named the most outstanding in the running events in track and Angie Atkinson received the same award for the field events.

Lakers Rally From 15 To Down 76ers In Opener

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Los Angeles Lakers Coach Pat Riley proved himself a master of understatement after his team defeated the Philadelphia 76ers in the first game of the National Basketball Association championship playoffs.

"We're a team of spurts," said Riley after the Lakers' 124-117 triumph over a Sixers team that crumpled in the last 26 minutes Thursday night.

The Lakers trailed, 83-68 with 5:59 left in the third period. In the next 10 1/2 minutes, Los Angeles out-scored Philadelphia, 40-9, to turn that 15-point deficit into a 16-point lead.

That made it 108-92 with 7:35 left in the game. The 76ers never got closer than the final margin of seven points, and most of that came at the end on two three-point goals by Andrew Toney and another by Steve Mix.

The second game in the best-of-seven series is here Sunday, with the third and fourth at Los Angeles Tuesday and Thursday.

The victory was the ninth straight in the playoffs for the Lakers, breaking the NBA record of most consecutive playoff victories in one season. The 1950 Minneapolis Lakers won their first eight.

Minneapolis actually won nine straight if you count the last game of the 1949 playoffs.

The Lakers, who hadn't played in 12 days, previously eliminated the Phoenix Suns and San Antonio Spurs, each in four straight games to win the Western Conference title.

They've been waiting since for the winner of the Eastern final between Philadelphia and Boston, which went seven Jamaal Wilkes and Norm Nixon led seven Lakers in double figures, each with 24 points. Kareem Abdul-Jabbar collected 23.

It was the 100th of 105 career playoff games that Abdul-Jabbar scored 20 or more points.

Nixon also had 10 assists and two steals, while Earvin "Magic" Johnson contributed 14 rebounds and nine steals. Wilkes also had 10 rebounds, seven off the offensive boards.

Philadelphia, which reached the final with victories over Atlanta, Milwaukee and Boston, was led by Julius Erving's 27. Erving had nine rebounds, three assists and three steals.

Bobby Jones had 19, Toney 20 and nine assists, and Darryl Dawkins 16 points. Maurice Cheeks scored 12, handed out nine assists and made three steals in a losing cause.

Philadelphia started fast, leading 61-50 at halftime. The Lakers appeared flat from their long layoff.

But Los Angeles adjusted, caught up at 1:27 of the third period, 87-87, and took the lead for good on a fastbreak layup by Mike Cooper. It was 91-89 after three quarters.

Wilkes scored 16 of his points in the third period, with Nixon getting 11 and Abdul-Jabbar 10.

Wilkes said the turnaround was due to the pride and character of the Western champions.

"We got our defense going and the opportunity shots and made them," said Wilkes.

"If we can keep Doc (Erving) at 25 points or less we ought to win," said Wilkes. "Another key to our second half was our defense off the offensive boards. It triggered our fastbreak and turned the game around," Wilkes said.

Coach Billy Cunningham of the 76ers said his team played well for 2 1/2 periods, then broke down at both ends of the court.

"They used traps to limit our inside game. They kept us to one shot and were able to run and get their transition game going.

"They're a great team, but I'm confident we'll bounce back," Cunningham said.

Erving, sitting with ice packs on both knees, sat patiently and explained what happened to his team as the others dressed hurriedly and left.

"If we won it in a breeze today, we probably wouldn't know how to act. Now we have to do it the hard way. In the third period they came at us in waves.

"We were beaten tonight but now we feel we can come back and do the beating on Sunday."

Erving said that "with Magic (Johnson) on the boards and Nixon with the ball, and Kareem (Abdul-Jabbar) just being Kareem the home court won't mean that much."

Erving said the Lakers gamble a lot.

"That's the kind of team they are. They're going to kill you if you let them. They can be very opportunistic."

And the 76ers let them.

Under Pressure

Leads Memorial After First Round

Maltbie Says He's On Way Back

DUBLIN, Ohio (AP) — First-round Memorial Tournament leader Roger Maltbie knows why his golf game deteriorated after the last of his three PGA Tour victories here in 1976.

"When you're playing poorly, it hurts," he said after his 4-under-par 68 Thursday. "You know your performance is substandard, but it was not enough to drive me back to the practice tee. I found out the problem wouldn't correct itself."

The fun-loving Maltbie earned a combined $112,000 in the four seasons following 1976, when he won $117,000. He dipped as low as $9,796 three years ago.

Now Maltbie insists he's on the way back.

The facts support him. He won $75,000 a year ago and has $34,000 already in 1982.

Why is Maltbie on a comeback?

"She's right there," he answered, pointing to his wife, Donna. They were married in November 1980, shortly before Maltbie began to rediscover his game.

There were other reasons.

"I worked harder and corrected some of my nocturnal habits. I'm making strides, but once you lose your ability to play, it's hard to recapture it," he said.

One stroke back, at 69, came defending champion Keith Fergus, former tennis pro Frank Conner, Steve Melnyk and Bruce Fleisher. At 70 was an even bigger cluster, led by Tom Kite, Hale Irwin and Johnny Miller. They were joined by Jay Haas, John Cook and Greg Powers.

The $380,000 tournament's host, Jack Nicklaus, was five shots behind on the course he designed and built eight years ago. But he warned: "I will play better. I am playing too well not to. I am still playing aggressive golf."

Nicklaus wasn't the only big name at 74. Also there were Masters champion Craig Stadler, Tom Watson, Jerry Pate and Ray Floyd.

And then there was Gary Player at 75, Lee Trevino at 78 and Sam Snead at 81 on his 70th birthday.

The best field in this seven-year-old tournament is battling for a first prize of $63,000. Portions of the last two rounds Saturday and Sunday will be televised nationally by CBS.

Even though he was only at par-36 after nine holes on this testy 7,116-yard layout, Maltbie liked his position.

"I got off to a fairly smooth start and that's important here," he said. "If you don't, you can get defensive."

Then the 30-year-old Californian found the birdie touch. He posted four birds on the closing eight holes and then saved a par on the 18th to preserve his lead.

"I was saving par today," he said, "which suddenly has become one of the better parts of my game. But this is only the first round. It all counts on Sunday."

The collection of second place golfers was a weird one.

Conner is a former tennis pro who did not take up golf until he was 24, 12 years ago.

Melnyk broke his right elbow four months ago and some said he would never play again.

Fleisher, the 1968 U.S. Amateur champion, has not won in 11 seasons. And Fergus has won just twice in four years, here last year and at Atlanta last week.

Melnyk, part of CBS' golf telecasting team, said, "I am just lucky to be here. If anyone had told me in February that I would be playing — and playing well — I would have told them they were crazy."

Conner said he switched to golf in 1971 strictly for business reasons. "There wasn't any money in tennis back then," he said. Conner, and Ellsworth Vines are the only professionals ever to play for the U.S. Open golf and tennis titles.

Fleisher thinks he did the wrong thing last week. "I was moving furniture. We were moving. I wish I had played in Atlanta," he said. "I didn't hit the ball as well as I thought I should."

Union Carbide 11
Sportsworld 2

Kevin Fisher hurled a one-hitter and Union Carbide scored six runs in the first inning to roll past Sportsworld, 11-2, Thursday in a North State Little League baseball game.

Fisher struck out 11 and walked seven. He did not give up a hit until the fourth inning when Ledowick Johnson singled. Sportsworld scored both its runs in the second when Fisher walked four and hit a batter.

Union Carbide got all the runs it needed in the first inning. Morris Johnson doubled to open the game, stole third and, with one gone, scored on an error that allowed Abram Lang to reach.

A second error and a passed ball put Lang on third and Fisher on second, Greg Davis then walked to load the bases. Darryl Joyner and Andre Hopkins both then reached on a fielder's choice to score Lang and Fisher.

Davis later scored on Paul Powers' sacrifice fly and Martin Anderson followed with a single to score Joyner and Hopkins to make it 6-0.

UC scored two more runs in the second on a double by Fisher and a triple by Joyner and then added a run in the fourth and two in the fifth.

Fisher, along with pitching his one-hitter, was three for four at the plate. Johnson and Joyner were both two for four.

Moose 1
True Value 0
Jay Mattox threw a one-hitter and Moose scored its only run in the second to nip True Value, 1-0, Thursday in a Tar Heel Little League baseball game.

Mattox struck out six and walked five. The only hit off Mattox was a two-out single by Stewart Vines in the fourth inning.

Moose scored the only run of the game in the second. With one gone and L.L. Everett on second with a single and Wesley Jackson on first with a fielder's choice, Mattox hit into a force play at second.

Everett went to third on the play and scored moments later when Rob Barnes singled him home.

Neither team had anyone with more than one hit.

For the Pirates, it was another loss in NCAA play over the past 19 years — a time span that has seen ECU win only one game.

Baird is just hopeful that the second round will find the bullet in the chamber for someone else for a change.

Pearson On 600 Pole

HARRISBURG (AP) — David Pearson returned to Charlotte Motor Speedway after a two-year absence to capture the pole for Sunday's World 600 NASCAR race with a qualifying speed in excess of 162 mph.

The Spartanburg, S.C., veteran, driving a David Ifft-prepared Buick Regal, broke his own World 600 qualifying speed record Thursday with a four-lap average of 162.511. Pearson had set the record at 161.435 in 1977.

"We didn't know how we would run," Pearson said after winning the $16,200 pole prize, NASCAR's biggest ever. "We didn't get a chance to run yesterday morning because we were changing engines and stuff like that."

Pearson, 47, known in racing circles as the "Silver Fox," said his absence from the 1.5-mile Charlotte oval would have no effect on his performance in Sunday's race.

"I'll be ready to run 600 miles," he said. "I ain't been absent from racing, I just ain't been here."

Pearson edged Buddy Baker for the top starting position, with Baker pushing his Buick to an average speed of 162.396 mph. Rookie Geoff Bodine, entering his first World 600, qualified third fastest in a Pontiac at 161.971. Harry Gant, in a Buick, took the fourth spot with a speed of 161.962 mph and Cale Yarborough, also in a Buick, grabbed the fifth position at 161.932 mph.

Thursday's qualifiers for the $455,000 World 600 turned in the fastest laps ever recorded for the race, despite the fact that rain kept the track damp most of the day. Qualifying for the top 15 positions was scheduled to get under way Wednesday but was postponed until Thursday morning by rain.

Drizzle delayed the first round of qualifying 1½ hours Thursday and time trials for positions 16 through 30 were rained out about 7 p.m.

Final qualifying for the World 600 and the Mello Yello 300 was scheduled to resume today.

Earlier this week, speedway officials predicted it would take speeds of better than 158 mph to get into the top 15 slots, but they were surprised by the quick laps turned Thursday.

Indy 500

Zest, Joy For Racing Remains For A.J. Foyt

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Someday, A.J. Foyt will decide that he's had enough of this dangerous business of racing automobiles that travel like rocket-powered missiles.

Someday, he will grow tired of squeezing his body into the cockpit of his car for that breakneck trip around the turns and through the straight-aways.

Someday, the joy of competition, the zest for one more trip through Victory Lane, the thirst for one more checkered flag, will be finished.

And, when that day comes, Foyt will walk away from the races — once and for all, with no looking back over his shoulder.

"When I quit, that will be it," Foyt said before his 25th Indianapolis 500. "The day I quit, you can be sure, I won't ever step back into a racing car."

Foyt admires racers who can do that. "That was what Jackie Stewart did," he said. "They offered him all kinds of money to come back but he wouldn't race again. That's what I'll do."

And, how will he spend his spare time when that happens? "I'm going to go off and learn to fish," he said. "I've always wanted to do that. Get away from everybody." For now, though, the flounders and flukes will have to wait. Foyt will spend his Memorial Day weekend as he has spent so many others, negotiating the asphalt track at Indy, bidding for a record fifth victory in this spectacle that lures some 350,000 fans to the Speedway.

Sunday's race will be Foyt's first Indy car event since a crash at last July's Michigan 500. He damaged his right forearm in that race and it continues to give him trouble. "My arm won't be 100 percent anymore. I'm lucky to have it," he said nonchalantly.

Foyt qualified at 203.332 mph for Sunday's race and will start on the outside of the first row, alongside Rick Mears and Kevin Cogan. All three were on the oval Thursday for their final practice runs, this time in race day configuration with full loads of fuel. Foyt had mechanical problems and clocked 167 mph. Cogan's 202.292 was the fastest single lap time.

A jubilant crowd sat through intermittent showers which halted the racers several times. Many fans wore buttons supporting Foyt, who has logged 9,045 miles at Indy, some 2,500 more than anyone else. Some said "Fifth for Foyt." Others were labeled, "A.J. 25th Year at Indy." And, some simply carried "5th" with no further explanation needed.

Foyt doesn't need his last name for instant identification. A.J. is sufficient at Indy, the best known track in the business. Nobody's been here longer than the feisty Foyt.

"Twenty-five years was not a goal for me," he said. "I might be here another five. I don't know if I'll be here another 25."

Why does Foyt come back year after year?

"Because every year, you race, you might win," he said. And A.J. thinks he stands an excellent chance to win in his March-Cosworth.

"I feel pretty good," he said. "It's a good car, very capable of winning this race with any luck at all."

Luck, of course, almost always plays a part in the outcome at Indy. Still, Foyt has a strategy plotted to help his chances.

"I think you've got to play your cards right," he said. "You can't fall way behind. You can't set a blistering pace. You have to figure to run 500

UNC Bids For 2nd Lacrosse Crown

By TOM FOREMAN Jr. AP Sports Writer

North Carolina's bid to repeat as NCAA lacrosse champions amounts to an attempt to beat the odds that they can't defeat Johns Hopkins three straight times.

Top-ranked and undefeated, the Tar Heels have downed Johns Hopkins twice in the last year. In 1981, North Carolina claimed a 14-13 verdict to take the crown it will defend in Charlottesville, Va., Saturday. This spring, North Carolina claimed a 13-12 overtime verdict on the road.

The third time will definitely be the hardest. The Blue Jays have lost their stronghold on lacrosse supremacy and faded to third place in the regular-season coaches' poll. They gained a measure of revenge for that rating last weekend by downing Virginia to beach the finals.

Tar Heel coach Willie Scroggs would like to beat the odds. He's already dismissed them.

"We really don't have any thoughts about it being the third time," Scroggs says. "This is a one-game shot and I think they feel the same way."

Another factor in the 66th renewal of this race could be the inexperience of a number of the drivers. There will be nine drivers in the 33-man field making their first starts at Indy. At the request of the veteran drivers, like Foyt, the newcomers will carry rookie stripes on their cars for identification purposes.

"The experienced racers will talk to the rookies before the race," Foyt said. "The boys will listen. If they don't, there could be accidents."

In 24 previous races here, A.J. has seen his share of crackups. In his very first one, in 1958, there was a 15-car crackup on the first lap in which driver Pat O'Connor was killed. Foyt spun out after 148 laps that year and finished 16th. He went on to win in 1961, 1964, 1967 and 1977, a record unmatched by any other driver.

Twenty-five years is something of a milestone. Could it be the last time around this oval for Foyt?

He smiled at the question and said simply, "I hope not."

is difficult to beat somebody three times in a row."

Leading the bid for another crown are three all-Americans, Michael Burnett, Doug Hall and goalie Tommy Sears, named Thursday to the all-Atlantic Coast Conference team.

Dave Wingate is the team's leading scorer, while Jeff Homire and John Haus lend support. Still, Scroggs refuses to allow one player to take all the credit.

"We've got a number of kids who played well all year for us. Maybe that's a sign that we've got a good team," he says.

Along with trying to keep a 25-game streak alive, North Carolina has the added challenge of playing on a neutral site — the University of Virginia's Scott Stadium.

"There's not a great deal of closeness between the University of Virginia and the University of North Carolina," he admits. "But I think whatever people they have in that area that are Wahoo fans might be rooting for us a little more than they'd be rooting for Hopkins."

Scroggs has no fancy strategies, trick plays or secret weapons.

"We're a very adaptable group," Scroggs says. "We've been able to play a variety of different teams and we've done well against them. We're going to have to do a good job defensively, we're going to have to do a good job offensively."

Forget Defeats Nastase At Open

PARIS (AP) — French teen-ager Guy Forget, ranked 630th worldwide, needed only two games to wrap up a two-day, five-set battle against aging Romanian star Ilie Nastase in a second-round match today at the $917,000 French Open tennis tournament.

Darkness had halted the match Thursday night after both had won two sets and were tied 7-7 in the deciding frame. The 17-year-old Forget only allowed the 1973 French Open champion on the scoreboard three times in the final two games Friday for a 6-1, 5-7, 6-4, 1-6, 9-7 victory.

Nastase, who at age 35 is one of the oldest players on the circuit, is ranked 83rd.

"I'd wish he'd stayed in school instead of coming to the stadium," Nastase said. "I think his future is now. He has all the shots in his arsenal and his second serve is incredible."

Forget, who faces No. 1 seed Jimmy Connors this weekend, entered the tournament on a wild card. The French Open marks its first major tournament.

"I was a bit nervous at first about playing a great champion like Nastase," the gangly schoolboy said. "But I became more confident as the match went on."

Sweden's new tennis wonder, 17-year-old Mats Wilander, handily defeated Spain's Fernando Luna 6-3, 6-1, 6-0 in a third-round match today.

Wilander turns 18 in August and has risen an astonishing 265 places in the rankings since 1980 to his current No. 18 spot. His fourth-round match will pit him against the winner of a today's encounter between Czech Ivan Lendl, the No. 2 seed, and India's Ramesh Krishnan.

In other results today, defending women's champion Hana Mandlikova of Czechoslovakia, the No. 5 seed, staged her second consecutive straight set victory, beating Virginia Wade of Britain 6-2, 6-1.

Two Florida tennis starlets, whose combined ages total 31, were to meet each other in another woman's third-round match today. One of those players was Kathy Rinaldi, who was back at the scene of her greatest triumph.

The 15-year-old Rinaldi made tennis history a year ago when she upset two seeded players to become the youngest competitor to reach the quarterfinals in French Open since the prestigious clay court tournament admitted foreigners 56 years ago.

Her opponent today in the battle for a fourth round berth in the $917,000 event was 16-year-old Kathy Horvath, the 1980 French Open junior champion, who three years ago became the youngest player ever to qualify into the U.S. Open.

Rinaldi, a dentist's daughter from Jensen Beach, Fla., eliminated fellow American Julie Harrington, while Horvath, who attends high school in Brandenton, Fla., overcame France's Corinne Vanier 6-3, 6-3.

Rinaldi, who was unheard of when she burst upon the tennis scene at the French Open last year, is the No. 15 seed this year and ranked 20th worldwide. Horvath is ranked 31st.

The winner of the Rinaldi-Horvath match will meet the winner of today's match between two other Americans — No. 2 seed Martina Navratilova and unseeded Lisa Bonder.

In third-round matches among the men today, No. 2 seed Ivan Lendl played India's Ramesh Krishnan, No. 4 seed Jose-Luis Clerc of Argentina met France's Bernard Fritz and No. 5 seed Vitas Gerulaitis of the United States faced Switzerland's Heinz Gunthardt.

In other women's third-round matches, No. 3 seed American Tracy Austin played Hungary's Andrea Temesvari, while defending women's champion Hana Mandlikova, the No. 5 seed from Czechoslovakia, took on Britain's 36-year-old Virginia Wade.

Wade advanced with a 6-3, 6-3 win over American Suzan Mascarin and Mandlikova ousted Holland's Betty Stove, 6-3, 6-4.

Top seeds Jimmy Connors and Chris Evert Lloyd both advanced Thursday with straight set victories and were expected to see action again Saturday or Sunday.

The 27-year-old Lloyd, vying for a fifth French Open title, downed her American compatriot Kim Steimetz 6-2, 6-1 in a third-round match.

The French Open is the only Grand Slam title that has eluded the 29-year-old Connors. He moved into the third round with a 6-2, 6-0, 6-2 triumph over 19-year-old Swede Jan Gunnarsson.

Baltimore's Murray Is Making Up For Lost Time

By The Associated Press
Baltimore's Eddie Murray missed nine games with tendonitis in his left hand — and he's making up for it in a hurry.

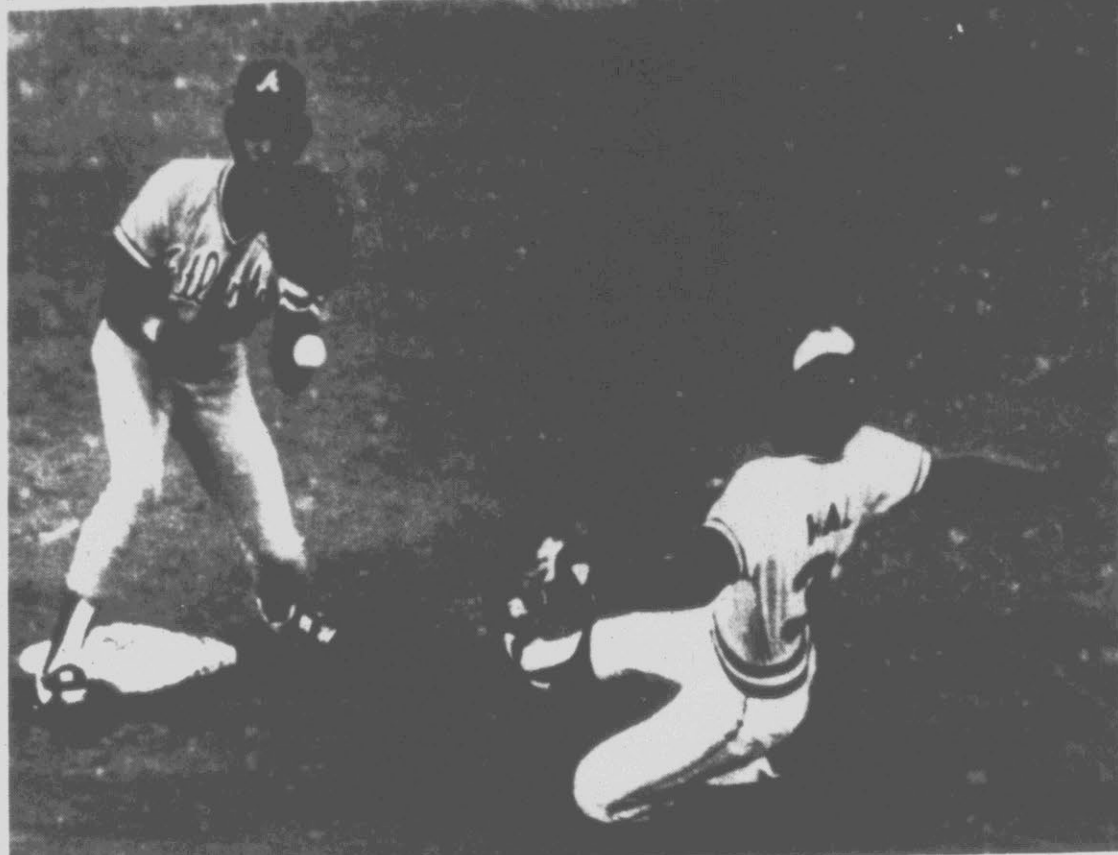

Rebounding from his recent hand injury with a vengeance, Murray has picked up right where he left off. In his second game back in action Thursday night, he lashed four hits, including a home run, and drove in three runs as the Orioles stopped the Texas Rangers 6-0.

"I don't feel like I can hit well with my left hand right now," said Murray, who did his damage Thursday night with virtually one hand. "It feels bad — I'm just trying to use my left hand as a guide hand. I'm not swinging with it at all."

"It's only hitting — swinging the bat — that bothers it," he added. "I can play the field fine now."

In addition to his sixth homer of the season, Murray clouted two singles and a double. His performance backed the five-hit pitching of Sammy Stewart, who got his first complete game of the year, his first career victory over the Rangers and his first career shutout in the majors.

Murray's two-run homer in the first inning produced all the runs Stewart, 5-3, actually needed. The Baltimore starter struck out two and walked one.

Brewers 4, Angels 3
Paul Molitor homered on the game's third pitch to put Milwaukee ahead to stay and Cecil Cooper unloaded a two-run blast in the third inning to lead the Brewers over California.

Molitor belted his fifth homer of the season leading off against loser Ken Forsch, 4-4. Cooper's blow, his fourth, gave the Brewers a 4-0 lead and they hung on to cool off the streaking Angels, who had won nine of their last 11 games.

Mariners 10, Red Sox 6
Gary Gray belted a three-run homer and Todd Cruz and Rick Sweet added solo shots to power Seattle past Boston. Winner Gene Nelson, 3-6, scattered 12 hits before needing last-out relief help from Ed VanDeBerg.

Moye Wins P-P Tourney

Robbie Moye came from a fourth place tie in the first round to win the Thursday Nite Amateur tournament at the local Putt Putt course.

Moye was tied for fourth with four other players after the first round with two-under-par 32s. But Moye came on in the final round to shoot a 31 and win the tournament.

John Nichols, third after the first round with a 33, moved up to second with another 33. Third place went to Duane Grace, who was one of the four players tied with Moye for fourth in the first round. Grace finished with a five-under 67.

Jimmy Silverthorne, who was first after the opening round, dropped to fourth with a one-over 37 to finish with a 68.

Kinston Uses Errors To Edge Williamston, 6-5

KINSTON — Kinston took advantage of Williamston errors to score five runs in the first two innings and slip past the Lady Tigers, 6-5, Thursday in the second round of the state softball playoffs.

Kinston, 14-3, advances to the third round of the playoffs. The loss ends the season for Williamston, which finishes up at 16-3.

Williamston took a 1-0 lead in the top of the first only to have Kinston come back with two runs in the bottom of the inning. The Lady Vikings took advantage of two errors to score their two runs.

Kinston then upped its lead to 5-1 in the second on two walks and two errors. The Lady Tigers battled back with a run in the third and two in the fourth to make it 5-4, but Kinston scored what proved the winning run in the bottom of the fourth.

Williamston's final run came in the sixth.

Williamston outhit the Lady Vikings, 11 to four, and both teams finished with six errors.

No one for Kinston had more than one hit. Williamston was led by Wanda Price with three hits in four at bats. Lynn Mills and Valeria Smith were both two for four.

Opening lead: Ten of ♠.

Success in war often depends on lines of communication. That is also true of the battle over the green baize!

With his balanced hand and collection of "quacks" (queens and jacks), North might have passed his partner's one spade opening. Once North responded there was no stopping South — he even made a slam try with his club cue-bid.

Sitting South was former U.S. internationalist Bill Grieve. He was not thrilled with his dummy, since he faced the possibility of losing a trump, two diamonds and a club. His immediate problem was to find entries to dummy — declarer would need two entries to the table to take two finesses in diamonds.

Instead of hoping that one of the defenders held a singleton king of spades, declarer led a low spade at trick two. While that conceded the trump loser, it did make sure of two entries to the table regardless of who held the king of trumps. West took his king and returned a heart, ruffed by declarer.

Now dummy's trumps were put to good use. A low spade to the ten provided the entry to run the eight of diamonds to West's king. Declarer ruffed the heart return and re-entered dummy with a trump to the queen. He led the jack of diamonds to repeat the finesse. When East turned up with the queen, the contract was home.

Grieve's mathematics were impeccable. The chances of finding a bare king of trumps were slight indeed. Giving up a trump trick in exchange for two entries to dummy would succeed whenever East held at least one of the two missing diamond honors, and that was better than a 3-to-1 chance.

Co-Op Votes Evict Multimillionaire

NEW YORK (AP) — Multimillionaire A&P supermarket heir Huntington Hartford has lost his bid to block fellow co-op apartment owners from evicting him from their posh Beekman Place building.

Hartford's neighbors at 1 Beekman Place voted in March to evict him as "undesirable." Hartford sought a temporary injunction from Manhattan Supreme Court Justice Allen Murray Myers blocking the eviction while he tried to invalidate the vote.

But Myers denied the injunction motion Thursday, clearing the way for Hartford's neighbors to commence eviction proceedings in Housing Court. The judge also ordered a speedy trial of the legal issues concerning the eviction vote.

Meanwhile, it was disclosed in court papers that Hartford has listed the luxury duplex for sale.

Lawyer Victor Kovner, representing 1 Beekman Corp. the co-op corporation, said in court papers that the other apartment owners will move to evict the 70-year-old multimillionaire unless the co-op is sold within "a reasonable period."

The co-op board voted to evict Hartford after deciding that he had violated a provision of his lease forbidding people of "dissolute, loose or immoral character" from entering the premises.

Hartford, who has lived in the 20-room East Side apartment for 28 years, has charged that the board's action was motivated by social prejudice against his ex-wife and others he associates with.

Charges are pending in Manhattan Criminal Court against Hartford's fourth and most recent ex-wife, 29-year-old Elaine Kay, and her 17-year-old roommate, Ariana Adereth, who were accused of assaulting another young woman and shaving her head in the Hartford apartment in January.

Both were charged with unlawful imprisonment, assault and criminal possession of a weapon.

Trains A Stable Of Actors, Actresses

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — When Hubert G. Wells says he has a stable of actors and actresses at his beck and call, he isn't kidding.

Wells is owner and proprietor of Animal Actors of Hollywood. In the past 13 years, he's provided trained animals for more than 75 television shows, 38 movies and assorted commercials.

Tucked inside nearby Carlisle Canyon, Wells' 17-acre spread is home to more than 100 four-legged would-be movie and TV stars representing 46 different species, including an African elephant, leopards, a black bear, a camel and gray, black and white Arctic wolves.

At the age of 22, Wells fled Hungary during the 1956 anti-Soviet uprising. As a youth, he was a falconer and his interest in animals led to his first job in the United States — as a trainer at Parrot Jungle in Florida.

He was not allowed to keep his own animals there, however, so he moved to New York, where went to work for an animal adventure farm and began collecting his menagerie.

Wells developed a traveling animal act using a leopard, dog and bird that caught the eye of a Walt Disney studios film director who promised to write a script using the act.

"I never thought I would hear from him again," Wells said, "but three weeks later I had a call to come out to California."

In California, Wells worked as a trainer at Jungleland in Thousand Oaks and, when the animal entertainment park closed in 1969, he launched his Animal Actors venture.

Wells' current projects include preparations for his male chimpanzee, Karanja, to journey to Hong Kong to appear in a feature film for a Chinese production company.

The 7-year-old Karanja is a veteran performer and "has reached the age where most chimps retire," Wells said. But Karanja, trouper that he is, will continue to perform, he added.

"It's just that every year it gets a bit more nerve-racking," Wells said.

The key to an animal's performance is the trainer's ability to exert control, said Wells.

"I have the little edge," he said.

Raquel Erases Image As Sex-Symbol

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — If Raquel Welch ever really wanted to erase her sex-symbol image, she succeeds Sunday night in one of the most tedious movies of the year, NBC's "Walks Far Woman."

Miss Welch plays Walks Far, a proud Pikuni Blackfoot Indian who must leave her tribe after she avenges her husband's death by killing two men. The movie, based on Colin Stuart's novel, then traces — slowly, very slowly — her gradual acceptance by the Sioux tribe, her marriage to a conceited warrior named Horses Ghost and the effect of the Battle of Little Big Horn on both of them.

It could have been worse. When completed in 1979, the movie was three hours long. NBC, waiting for the right moment to air "Walks Far Woman," cut out 30 minutes and finally decided to broadcast it on a night when ABC has the delayed tape of the Indianapolis 500 and CBS has repeat programming.

The movie was produced, in part, by Miss Welch's production company. This was her conception of a high-minded movie, and she does try hard to keep the movie together, offering some moving moments, such as the childbirth scene.

Along the way, we also learn a bit about Sioux customs and rituals, but the characters too often come across as cigar-store Indians, with the action and dialogue even more wooden. It's obvious that Miss Welch is serious about the project. She never uses any of her wardrobe from "One Million Years B.C.," and is fully clothed in body-length outfits most of the time. After rave reviews in her Broadway debut in "Woman of the Year," playing an Indian who lives to be 102 in a pedestrian production is a step backward.

"This Is Kate Bennett" is another movie in search of a time and day that wouldn't be too damaging. Originally shot as a pilot for a possible series last fall, it will be shown tonight, when the critical May ratings period is over and Memorial Day traveling has begun.

"Kate Bennett," a rip-off from the movie "Eyewitness," is about another heroic television reporter. A divorced mother, Kate juggles time with her daughter and the demands of the job, which include a pig-headed producer and a hayseed weatherman who hounds her for a date.

CBS had a similar series last fall, "Jessica Novak," but it was quickly canceled. CBS' programmers decided the public wasn't interested in a female Lou Grant.

As ABC's press releases say, "beautiful Janet Eilber" plays Kate Bennett. Sure she's beautiful, but can she act? ABC doesn't tackle that question, but points out that she's an accomplished dancer.

Consequently, there are numerous scenes where the athletic Miss Eilber is chasing reluctant interviewees or fleeing from dangerous men. See Kate run. See Kate solve crimes. See Kate at 11.

The movie begins violently with a sniper shooting down several nurses. "Don't take any unnecessary chances," Kate tells her crew. She then rushes from cover to one of the dead nurses.

For what purpose? Was she going to ask what it's like to be shot?

This superficial movie is amusing only when it's lambasting some of the seamier things about local news and local newsmakers. When the sniper is caught, Kate's News 6 Team gets his picture. "What channel am I going to be on?" he asks.

Later, when Kate tries to interview the sniper's mother, the woman wonders: "Why? So you can ask, 'How do you feel?'"

Big Bidding In Wine Auction

BOSTON (AP) — With Florida liquor dealer Carl Mayhue alone shelling out $83,495, wine lovers and investors bid a near-record $604,065 Thursday at a one-day wine auction advertised as the world's largest.

Mayhue, a Fort Lauderdale liquor store chain operator, paid $13,000, the highest price for a single item, for a jeroboam of 1929 Chateau Mouton Rothschild and the next highest price, $10,000, for a bottle of 1865 Chateau Lafite.

Yesterday's Cryptiquip — CAN ALFALFA BE DESCRIBED AS AN ALLITERATION WITHIN ONE SHORT WORD?
 Today's Cryptiquip clue: Z equals Y

The Cryptiquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Ask Ruling On Pipeline Charge

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Energy Regulatory Commission has been asked for a prompt ruling on the Justice Department's five-year-old complaint that oil companies are overcharging for shipping oil through the Alaska pipeline.

The request was made Thursday by the department's antitrust division.

which said failure to get the matter resolved quickly could discourage future development of additional North Slope and Beaufort Sea oil reserves.

The division said that negotiations between itself, eight oil firms and the state of Alaska have failed to settle the case.

Segal's Wife Seeks Divorce

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Actor George Segal's wife is suing him for divorce, citing irreconcilable differences, a Los Angeles Superior Court clerk reports.

Marion Segal filed a petition with the court last week to dissolve her 25-year marriage to the actor, a clerk for the court's indexing division said Thursday.

The Segals have one child, 16-year-old Polly Segal, who lives with her mother in Beverly Hills.

Mrs. Segal's suit seeks custody of their daughter, support for herself and the girl and an undetermined amount of property.

Segal starred in "Blume in Love," "A Touch of Class" and "Fun with Dick and Jane."

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, MAY 29, 1982

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Today brings a good chance for you to get together with old friends for mutual enjoyment. Take it easy in the evening and build up your energies. You can gain your objectives now.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Much sociability with good friends pays off handsomely today. Evening should be spent at home. Be alert to opportunities.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Use your intuition in connection with an important business deal. Express your talents today, but use discretion.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You can learn a great deal from new contacts today. A good time to become more involved in a worthwhile civic matter.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Get busy at those duties ahead of you and do them well so that you get the approval of others. Be wise.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Find out what close ties exist of you and then aim to please. An important matter develops that can bring happiness.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Delve into all that work facing you with enthusiasm instead of grumbling about it. Allow time to engage in favorite hobby.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Get together with allies and exchange views. Plan for greater mutual success. Spend more time with close friends and relatives.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Make improvements at home that are necessary. Studying a new interest during spare time can bring excellent results.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Daytime is best for outside activities so you can enjoy your home and family tonight. Budget your money wisely.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Study new ways to build up your security. Make those repairs to property that are needed. Attend the social tonight.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Use your personal charm with friends and get more out of the relationships. Take steps to improve your environment.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Meet with an expert and gain the right advice to gain more financial security. Make the evening a happy one.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will want to know all types of people and can benefit from the contacts. The chart becomes a successful one later in life provided the education is good. You must plan now so there will be no slip-up because of lack of cash.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

No Librarians Shush Chuckles

NEW YORK (AP) — No librarians shushed the laughter when humorists Peter DeVries, Fran Lebowitz, Russell Baker, Nora Ephron and Calvin Trillin read from their works at the New York Public Library's annual literary luncheon.

DeVries, speaking Thursday in the library's south reading room, offered epigrams of modern life, such as "God is love" and "If a man answers, hang up."

Miss Lebowitz told of looking for an apartment in New York, and calling a friend in a highly desirable building to learn whether anyone had died overnight. Told no, she considered the possibility that "high ceilings and decorative moldings prolong life."

Baker told of his problems writing a play, which at one point was about a "Chicago flower girl who falls in love with Marconi and inspires him to invent radio."

Miss Ephron read from a work in progress, describing a man so neat that he "put hospital corners on the newspaper he used to line the hamster cages."

Hopeful News in Medicine

A new and exciting drug for the treatment of herpes is now being readied for public consumption by the Food and Drug Administration. This is one of the first of the new drugs for herpes that soon will be on the market. Its generic name is acyclovir ointment.

Preliminary studies show that the new drug tends to encourage the healing of the sores of herpes and may even reduce the growth of the viruses during active infection.

In a vast series of patients, men were found to gain some relief from the application of the drug. The release from the FDA indicates that the drug will be tried both for genital herpes and for herpes of the mouth and lips.

The speed with which this drug has been evaluated is evidence of the enormous need that now exists to combat the epidemic of herpes.

It is expected that this new drug portends many others that are now being tried at various hospitals all over America. This particular ointment does not seem to be toxic and presents only a few symptoms of burning and stinging when first applied.

There is enormous output of scientific material and research that is aimed at combating this massive threat to the physical and emotional health of the nation.

Happy Hour For Automobiles

LAKOTA, N.D. (AP) — It suits Everett Wiseman fine if people stop by at happy hour, get tanked up and go out on the road, since the refreshments he dispenses are meant for the cars, not the drivers.

Wiseman's service station on U.S. 2 here offers a happy hour discount on gasoline, an idea he borrowed from bars to drum up more business.

A tavern might offer two drinks for the price of one during happy hour; Wiseman takes a nickel off each gallon of gas or diesel fuel pumped between 5 p.m. and 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

"With the high prices of everything, a guy needs all the business he can get," said Wiseman, who has owned and operated the station for 12 years.

He hasn't kept track of how much happy hour gas he has pumped since starting the promotion about eight weeks ago, but Wiseman said many of his regular customers try to take advantage of the discount.

"On 20 gallons, they can save a dollar," Wiseman said. "That dollar will buy you a loaf of bread, I guess."

Heavy N.C. Rains Cause Flooding, Crops Damage

By The Associated Press
Officials say severe thunderstorms in North Carolina have taken their toll, causing an estimated $500 thousand in property damages in the Buncombe County community of Leicester and $1 million worth to Durham County crops.

Storms hit throughout the state Thursday, damaging bridges and roads, endangering crops in the Piedmont and causing flash floods in the west.

The fast-moving storm dumped 5½ inches of rain in Buncombe County late Wednesday, destroying crops, drowning farm animals and extensively damaging roads and bridges in the Leicester area.

"We've got crops damaged, one bridge out and two others damaged, we do have some damage to homes and several vehicles damaged," said Buncombe County Deputy Sheriff Clarence Aiken. "I'd estimate damages worth about $500,000."

The National Weather Service issued a severe thunderstorm warning for Harnett and Johnston counties after a funnel cloud was sighted near Pope Air Force Base, but no reports of serious wind damage were reported.

An agricultural extension agent warned that if rain continues for another week, Durham County tobacco losses could run as high as $1 million, but specialists said it was worse in other parts of the state.

N.C. State University tobacco extension specialists Bill Collins and Joe Peedin said tobacco in eastern North Carolina was in no danger. Although some areas west of Raleigh had been hit by heavy rains, they said much of it had fallen quickly and run off rather than soaking in.

"It's true, there has been some excessive rain. But only 10 days ago we were worrying about not having enough rain," Collins said. "At this stage prospects are still good for this year's crop...There's no cause for alarm."

All of the schools in Buncombe County's Erwin School District were closed Thursday because of hazardous driving conditions.

Basements were flooded, topsoil and lawns were washed away and many roads and Asheville streets were impassable. Families in a Buncombe County mobile home court were forced to flee late Wednesday, while a large tree toppled over on a house.

Carolina Power & Light Co. officials said between 700 and 800 outages were reported Wednesday night, but that all customers had service by late Thursday.

Some families living along creeks were forced to stay in their homes. R. Curtis Ratcliff, chairman of Buncombe County's board of commissioners, returned from a meeting Wednesday night to find that land on both sides of a bridge leading to his house had washed away.

Flash floods were reported as creeks overflowed in Forsyth, Surry and Yadkin counties, where up to 5 inches of rain fell late Wednesday and early Thursday. Firefighters were called to help evacuate more than 70 children from the Bethlehem-Kimberley Park Child Care Center in Winston-Salem Wednesday afternoon after two inches of water seeped into the building. Water was a foot deep outside, officials said.

Power had to be cut off in 15 homes after their basements flooded. In the Old Town township, several houses were flooded along with Brewer Tire Co., which has been closed since Monday. Other businesses were damaged in Winston-Salem.

Traffic accidents caused by treacherous roads were reported throughout the region, although no deaths had been reported.

Life As It's Lived

Then There Are Those House-Selling Pitfalls

By GAIL MICHAELS

My friend Brenda warned me more than once about the pitfalls of trying to sell a house in a real estate market that's lower than the Nielsen ratings for "Mr. Rogers" reruns.

Her house was on the market for 13 months. Her real estate agent advertised it as "immaculate." One hour before her first and only open house, the dog threw up on the living room carpet.

There never seemed to be any good time to show the house. "Help!" she would scream when I'd answer the phone. "The salesman wants to show the house in 20 minutes, and there are 15 kids with popsicles in my kitchen!"

I never had any advice for her, but when we put our house on the market, she had plenty of ready advice for me. "Take the sign down, and plan on retiring here. The hassle isn't worth it."

She was right. Trying to sell a house can destroy a person's character. I had always thought of myself as honest, but each time we showed the house I found myself trying to conceal its defects.

"Gail," Phillip finally said, "people are sure to wonder why you're squatting in front of that wall Zachary signed with the key."

I stopped doing that, but I couldn't stop cleaning. I became compulsive. I screamed every time a hand touched the wall. I went into shock at the sight of a cracker crumb on the kitchen floor.

A personality change of this magnitude is bad enough in a woman who has always sworn that the chemicals in all cleaning products including Ivory Snow cause irreparable damage both to the environment and to the nervous system. But this kind of personality change is disastrous in a household with children whose idea of entertainment is pulling every toy in their rooms into a large pile in the middle of the den floor and with a husband who likes the lived-in look that dirty sweatsocks give a house.

I became shrewish. They became surly. They claimed my behavior wasn't justified. But the one time I left the house in a wreck, the salesman called Phillip and wanted to show it. When I got home, the beds weren't even made.

"Didn't you do anything before they came?" I shrieked.

"Of course I did," Phillip said. "I cleaned the top of the refrigerator. You know, you had let it get filthy."

I thought about murder, but I didn't want to make the house payments by myself. So I continued to mop the soles of Phillip's shoes, to confiscate all toys left on the floor for more than five minutes and to wipe the rings off the kitchen counter each time someone lifted a glass.

Meg finally voiced the opinion of the entire family, myself included. "I hate this moving stuff. I can't even sit on my bed."

I know what she means. I can't sit on mine either.

Field Day

A demonstration of equipment and chemicals available for maintenance of watershed projects will be held in Lenoir County on June 3.

The demonstration, sponsored by the Wayne County Drainage District No. 1, will be held on the Bear Creek Watershed, beginning at the creek's intersection with secondary road 1501 in Lenoir County. The watershed covers Lenoir, Greene and Wayne counties.

Skillet-Throwing Now 'International'

MACKSBURG, Iowa (AP) — Bill Sanders took some heat because the team he picked to represent Iowa in a skillet-throwing contest went down to defeat last year, so this year he let the Macksburg Boosters Club choose the team.

That flipped him out of the frying pan and into the fire.

The boosters club selected only Democratic candidates for public office, and now the Republicans are demanding equal representation, said Sanders, who is chairman of the National Skillet Throwing Association. The Macksburg-based association sponsors the contest, which is scheduled this year for June 19.

"A man from the Republicans came around and asked me why I put only Democrats on the team," Sanders said Wednesday.

"I've suggested the Republicans get up a team of their own. If they can do it, maybe we'll have a 'throw-off' in advance to determine who will represent Iowa."

Macksburg — a town of 140 about 45 miles southwest of Des Moines — started the National Skillet Throwing Contest in 1975 for the nation's bicentennial, which also was the town's centennial.

Contestants throw a 12-inch cast steel skillet at a straw dummy with a basketball head. The event has attracted as many as 5,000 to 6,000 spectators, Sanders said.

The contest went international last year when a team of exchange students from Finland who were attending school in the Macksburg-Orient Community School District won the championship.

"They won everything and carted the trophy back to Finland," Sanders said.

He said another team from Finland has registered for the eighth annual tournament this year.

Cars Collided On Thursday

Cars driven by Carlton Ray Harper of Route 1, Greenville, and Brenda Harris Harrell of Route 1, Stokes, collided about 5:25 p.m. Thursday on Greene Street, 100 feet south of the Pactolus Highway intersection.

Police estimated damage from the collision at $150 to the Harper car and $500 to the Harrell vehicle.

 In most of America, the day after tomorrow will be Sunday, but in Indianapolis it'll be Race Day. More than 300,000 fans are expected to turn out for the 66th Indy 500. Sunday's race will be a far cry from the first race held here in 1911. In that year the winner, Ray Harroun, drove the 500 miles in 6 hours 42 minutes and 8 seconds — an average of 74.59 miles per hour, quite respectable for an antique car. This year's winner should finish in about half that time, averaging about 150 mph. But the biggest difference will be the purse. Instead of Harroun's $14,000, the '82 winner is expected to take home over a quarter of a million dollars.

DO YOU KNOW — Who won last year's Indy 500?

Plan Overhaul Of Immigration Laws In U.S.

By JAMES H. RUBIN
 Associated Press Writer
 WASHINGTON (AP) — In a major step toward overhaul of the nation's immigration law, the Senate Judiciary Committee has approved a sweeping bill with only one dissent.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., cast the only negative vote Thursday as the panel, by a 16-1 margin, cleared the immigration proposal and sent it to the full Senate.

Just minutes before the final vote, Kennedy won a major concession which would greatly increase the number of illegal aliens now in the country eligible for legal status.

The Republican-controlled committee, by an 8-7 vote, approved Kennedy's proposal to give temporary legal status to any illegal aliens who could prove they had been in this country since Jan. 1, 1982.

The date had been set at Jan. 1, 1980, the same as in a similar immigration bill pending before the House Judiciary Committee.

The difference of two years could mean legal status for an estimated 500,000 additional illegal immigrants — or a total of five million, according to Reagan administration and committee figures. There are an estimated six million illegal aliens in the United States now.

Temporary legal status would be the first step for the illegal aliens to gain citizenship, although some have expressed the fear that they would be mistrustful of coming forward and acknowledging their illegal status.

Administration officials said that if Congress agrees on the 1982 date, the president could probably live with it. The administration had recommended a Jan. 1, 1981 date for cutting off the legalization program.

Steak-Eaters Have A Mecca In Tampa, Fla.

By PAT LEISNER
 Associated Press Writer
 TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — The quiet, dead-end street in a rickety old section of Tampa is an unlikely spot for a restaurant with a reputation larger than its five-inch-thick wine list and beef it boasts as the "most beautiful and costly in America."

But despite its location and a faltering economy, more than 500 people — many from out of state and some with reservations made months in advance — sit among the antiques of the eight dining rooms at Bern's Steak House on an average night.

"Nobody happens to drive by," says Bern Laxer, the owner. "People have heard about us somewhere around the world."

Reservations already have started coming in for January 1984, when Tampa hosts the Super Bowl. But Laxer thinks that's too far ahead and refuses them.

In Bermuda shorts and white socks, the wiry 58-year-old Laxer makes a sharp contrast to the opulent decor of his restaurant, where customers sit in red velvet chairs as they dine.

In the bar, they drink at little marble tables with foot pedals, while seated on small velvet settees. The staircase has gilded cherubs on the railings.

"I imagine I live on the Riviera and try to decorate that way to attract some attention," he said. "It wasn't easy being on a dead-end street. Nobody saw you, so you had to attract some attention."

As other businesses try to shave costs in today's troubled economy, Laxer has just doubled the number of reservation phone lines to eight, and added a toll-free line for long-distance reservations. He's built a mammoth warehouse and is adding a 200-seat room for exotic flambe desserts.

Upstairs, in a small phone room, three people busily take reservations and give directions on how to reach the restaurant from interstate highways and from Tampa International Airport.

"I don't know of any other place that has a WATS line for reservations," said Laxer. "How many people call long distance and get put on hold? To me it's nicer if I pay for the call."

There is also a Telex for reservations coming in from overseas and New York and Atlanta.

Three wine cellars house more than 5,000 different wines, each selected by Laxer. A detailed menu carefully explains eight cuts of prime beef, ranging from $12.10 for a six-ounce filet mignon for one, to $100 for a three-inch-thick, 60-ounce strip sirloin recommended for six.

"I tend not to want to put up with mediocrity," he said. "I'll fight for what I consider my level of quality."

He employs 200 people — including an electronics crew, and crews for construction, stainless-steel fabrication and carpentry.

"I get things sooner, exactly the way I want it, at less cost and have the fun of innovating ways of doing things," says Laxer.

Diners are pampered at Bern's. Coffee is ground an hour before the doors open at 5 p.m. The cream is whipped fresh. The desserts are homemade, the vegetables homegrown.

A New Yorker from the Bronx, N.Y., Laxer and his wife, Gert, came to Tampa in 1951. He had attended New York University, expecting to pursue a career in advertising. "I worked for two companies, and when I didn't get a raise, I left," he said.

With $1,400, the Laxers bought the Gator Juice Bar, a 26-seat coffee shop which they ran from 1953-56 in downtown Tampa and grossed $30 a day.

Twenty-five years ago they bought Bern's, then called the Beer Haven. "We grossed $30 a day there, too, at the start," said Laxer. He declined to reveal the volume now.

"I've built a reputation by trying to give people a fair deal," he said. "If you give them a better-than-fair value, they'll come back. I don't think people mind spending money — whether it's $2 or $200."

President Franklin Roosevelt and Prime Minister Winston Churchill met at sea in 1941 to draft the Atlantic charter.

Inmates Ask For Damages

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State correction officials have been named in a lawsuit filed by three inmates charged with holding eight hostages at Central Prison in March, with the suit seeking the inmates' return to a federal prison.

Darrell Little of Dobson, Melvin Surgeon of Annapolis, Md., and Ezekiel Hall of Brooklyn, N.Y., also seek $500,000 in damages, according to the suit. Named as defendants are Rae H. McNamara, director of the state Division of Prisons; Correction Secretary James C. Woodard and Central Prison warden Sam Garrison.

The inmates ask that the defendants be dismissed and "replaced by citizens who are not known as conspirators by our... society."

The inmates' complaint says inhuman treatment at North Carolina's only maximum-security prison led them to take the hostages on March 23 and demand transfer to a federal prison.

The suit asks that they be sent to a federal prison and given a chance to say why they should not have been returned to a state prison after the hostages were released.

The suit said Central Prison "doesn't have adequate provisions for everyday living" and said the three officials had the authority to change the conditions.

Coty Awards For Designers

NEW YORK (AP) — Designers Geoffrey Beene, Bill Blass, Donna Karan and Louis Dell'Olio have won Coty awards for women's fashions.

The Coty American Fashion Critics' Awards were made public Thursday.

Beene has now won eight Coty awards; Blass entered the Coty Hall of Fame in 1970.

Sal Cesarani received an award for men's fashions.

Special awards were given to Susan Bennis and Warren Edwards for footwear, Jay Lord Hatters for headwear, Ted Muehling for jewelry design and Patricia Underwood for millinery.

Other honors went to Jackson Allen and Tim Veness for sweaters, Zoran for men's separates and Robert Comstock for outerwear.

The winners of Coty's "Winnie" and men's clothing awards will be announced Sept. 23.

Ceremonial Honors Whichard

The Sudan Temple's Ceremonial Friday and Saturday honors David J. Whichard Jr. of Greenville, a longtime Mason and veteran newspaperman.

David Julian Whichard, son of the late David Jordan and Hennie Sutton Whichard, was born in Greenville on Jan. 11, 1895. He attended Greenville public schools where he graduated in 1913.

He began his newspaper career as a delivery boy on The Reflector, which was founded in 1882 by his father and his uncle. During his school days, he worked at various jobs on the newspaper and following graduation, he was actively engaged in the newspaper's operations. He was also employed by the post office in Greenville where he rose to the position of assistant postmaster.

In the fall of 1917, he was granted military leave from the post office to enlist in the armed forces and served with the American Expeditionary Forces in France during World War I. Upon return from service, he purchased The Daily Reflector from his father and assumed active management of the newspaper as editor and publisher on July 1, 1919.

He was one of two North Carolina delegates to the organizational convention of the American Legion. He has been active in the American Legion since that time.

He has been active in newspaper affairs in North Carolina for many years, having held office in several newspaper organizations — including the presidency of The Eastern North Carolina Press Association and the N.C. Association of Afternoon Dailies. He has also actively participated in civic affairs in Greenville and Pitt County.

On June 16, 1926, he married Virginia Young Suther of Goldsboro. She died on August 25, 1973.

Whichard is still active on the newspaper as Chairman of the board of directors. The Reflector is now owned by his two sons, David J. Whichard II and John Suther Whichard, and the five Whichard grandchildren.

Whichard was raised in Lodge No. 78 AF&AM. On March 27, 1916, and this lodge later merged with Greenville Lodge No. 284, of which he is now a life member. He became a member of New Bern Scottish Rite Bodies in the fall of 1973 and a member of Sudan Temple in January 1945.

He petitioned Chapter 50 in early 1917 but the Army interrupted his plans and he got the Chapter Degree in mid-1919. He petitioned Commandery UD May 21, 1921, and was elected on June 17, 1921, and was active on the Commandery Degree Team for a number of years. He received the Red Cross and Malta Degrees in July 1921. He served two two-year terms as commander of Bethlehem Commandery. He is a charter member and continuous member of Greenville No. 7 White Shrine of Jerusalem.

Honoree
David J. Whichard Jr.

memorabilia is a statue of William J. Florence, one of the founders of the Ancient Arabic Order, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine.

As souvenirs, visitors can take home with them free brochures and a postcard of the International Shrine Headquarters building.

Keychains bearing the image of the headquarters building are being developed and will be available in the new room in the future.

The visitors/memorabilia room is open during regular office hours, Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Visitors' Room Tells The Story

A new room has been added to the International Shrine Headquarters building in Tampa, Fla., — a visitors/memorabilia room, designed for nobles, their ladies and also any non-Shriners who wish to learn more about the Shrine headquarters and the Shrine organization.

The visitors/memorabilia room has already attracted hundreds of people from all parts of North America. The room is equipped with a video projection television set on which a visitor can watch any of several movies about the Shrine and its philanthropy.

There is also a collection of Shrine memorabilia. For instance, along the all-glass wall overlooking Old Tampa Bay is a display of fez from each of the 185 Shrine Temples. This is an especially beautiful sight when the warm Florida sunshine streams through the display.

Along the other walls are colorful photographs of Shrine parades, clowns and smiling patients from several of the 21 Shriners Hospitals for Crippled Children. There are also photographs of each member of the Imperial Divan and the board of trustees for Shriners Hospitals.

History Of Sudan Full Of Memories

Within the book, "The Great Light of Masonry" that lies open upon the altar of every Masonic Lodge, are these words, "For a thousand years in thy sight are but as yesterday, when it is past, and as a watch in the night."

Therefore, the first few years in the life of Sudan's organization, now 50 years old, would be but a second of time to those who were the builders of Sudan Temple.

To create the new and to preserve the best of the old have been the genius of the new America. As Kemp says in the concluding stanza of his poem entitled "God the Architect," "But chief of all thy wondrous works, supreme of all thy plan, thou hast put an upward reach into the heart of man." Such an upward reach was planted in the heart of Noble Joseph F. Rhem, of New Bern in the second decade of the 20th century when he initiated steps to have a Shrine Temple located in New Bern to serve the eastern half of North Carolina. He was a member of Oasis Temple and that temple assumed the responsibilities sponsorship.

Dispensation for the establishment of Sudan Temple was received July 13, 1916, and formal institution ceremonies were held four months later on Nov. 22, 1916. Interest had already been manifested, evidenced by the fact that on the day of institution there were 106 candidates and 30 affiliates received into the membership of Sudan Temple.

On May 24, 1917, Sudan Temple held its first spring ceremonial in Rocky Mount with 125 candidates created Nobles of the Mystic Order of the Shrine. Fourteen affiliates were also elected as this ceremonial.

Then came the day of the presentation of the charter. The charter had been granted at Minneapolis by the Imperial Council at its session on June 26, 1917.

On Sept. 26, 1917, Sudan Temple, UD, was open in form with all officers filling their respective stations. Potentate A.B. Andrews stated that the meeting was called to receive the charter from the Imperial Council which has been granted at Minneapolis on June 26, 1917. Past Potentate R.S. Rhineheart of Oasis Temple, special representative of Potentate Charles E. Devonshire, presented the charter and constituted Sudan Temple a regular Temple of the Mystic Shrine of North America.

Now, at last, Sudan Temple was in business for itself.

It was a realization of those in the early days of Sudan Temple that for an organization to be successful it must be one of activity, one that would create enthusiasm and that ceremonials other than those of the annual business meeting should be held in cities throughout the jurisdiction of Sudan Temple.

To maintain the reputation of activity, Uniformed Units and Shrine Clubs were organized throughout the jurisdiction of the temple. Today there are a dozen Uniformed Units and more than 40 Shrine Clubs, all of which are promoting Shrinedom in their respective areas.

Sudan Temple is 17th in membership among the temples in North America and is recognized as one of the larger contributors of funds to the Shriners Hospitals.

Shriners Operate Several Hospitals

The Ancient Arabic Order of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine maintains a number of charitable institutions known as the Shriners' Hospitals for Crippled Children. The first of these was opened in September 1922.

The combined capacity of the hospitals maintained by the Shrine is more than 1,360 beds. Locations of the hospitals include Shreveport, La.; Minneapolis-St. Paul; San Francisco; Portland, Ore.; St. Louis, Mo.; Montreal; Springfield, Mass.; Chicago; Philadelphia, Honolulu; Spokane, Wash.; Salt Lake City; Winnipeg, Canada; Lexington, Ky.; Greenville, S.C.; Mexico City; Los Angeles; Erie, Pa. and Houston.

The motive prompting the Shriners to establish and maintain these hospitals throughout the country is that of SERVICE to humanity — service in particular to the crippled children of low-income families.

It is the aim of the Shrine to place at the disposal of such children whose parents or guardians cannot afford to pay for treatment, the best of hospital facilities and professional talent the country affords. These advantages are for crippled children, regardless of race, creed or color, in order to alleviate their afflictions and to prepare them for useful citizenship. Treatment is free.

All Shriners' Hospitals for Crippled Children are under the general supervision of the National Board of Trustees, through which the local boards of governors, the directors and the chief surgeons are appointed.

The administrator of the hospital is carefully chosen and must meet special qualifications. She directs the general management of the hospital as the agent of the local board of governors. She is aided by a director of nursing who supervises and trains nursing personnel.

An important part of the hospital organization is a large consulting staff composed of local specialists in other fields of medicine.

Superior registered nurses and a corps of trained attendants give the children tender and watchful care through the days and the nights.

Some conditions treated are club feet, curvature of the spine, bone tuberculosis, infantile paralysis, bow legs, fractures, deformities resulting from injuries and any other diseases coming within the scope of orthopedic surgery. If suffering primarily from some other medical or surgical condition, the child cannot be accepted in the hospital.

Children with unhealed burns are not accepted at the orthopedic hospitals, but applications may be made to one of the burn centers. Burn Institutes are in Boston, Cincinnati and Galveston, Tex.

Requirements for admission include:

1. The child must be under 15 years of age.
2. The child must be of sound mind i.e., as intelligent and mentally active as the average child of his age. A child over 5 years of age who has never learned to talk, who cannot feed or otherwise care for himself is not eligible.

3. A child must, on examination by the surgeon, be found to have a condition which can be cured, or at least corrected to such extent as to render the child capable of self-support in later life.

See any Shriner or write to The Administrator, Shriners' Hospital for Crippled Children, Greenville, S.C. and request an application blank. This should be completely filled out and promptly returned to the hospital. It must have the family data, age of the child, birth certificate copy, photographs and a physicians' certificate stating his diagnosis in the case. It must also be signed by a Shriner who personally knows the financial condition of the parents or guardian and of their inability to pay for proper medical treatment for this child elsewhere.

4. The local governing board will decide if the child is eligible for treatment from a financial standpoint.

Upon approval of the application, the child is given a clinic date for the initial examination. He is then placed on the waiting list for admission or, if treatment can be given as an out-patient, it is started at once. Admission to the hospital usually requires at least a year on the waiting list, unless the child is classified as an emergency.

During the admission period, the waiting child should be carefully examined by his local physician and any conditions such as bad tonsils, diseased teeth or the like should be corrected in advance to admission.

The length of the hospital treatment can vary from one week to 18 months. The average stay is about 45 days.

Whenever possible, the children are allowed to convalesce at home, so the beds they have occupied can be used by other children.

In an emergency when no application is available, the family doctor should confer with the chief surgeon by telephone, stating the condition and age of the child.

Happiness ... Shriners' Goal

Every Shriner believes that while pleasure is something we take out of life, or something that we can put into it, happiness is something that we share. Each Noble of the Mystic Shrine realizes that no man has any real right to play unless he has also contributed to the happiness of others. Out of such thoughts and principles came the idea of the "World's Greatest Philanthropy."

From virtually the outset in the Mystic Shrine of North America, there were those who realized that it must become something far greater than a playground...The first step toward adoption of a project to justify existence of the Shrine came in 1914 when the Imperial Council appointed a committee to consider establishment of a tuberculosis sanitarium for afflicted children of Shriners. The following year the committee announced rejection of the proposal.

In 1919 W. Freeland Kendrick launched the idea that the Order of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine should undertake, as an organization, to do something for friendless, orphaned and crippled children.

It was at the 46th Imperial Council Session at Portland, Ore., resolution to establish a Shriners Hospital for Crippled Children. His resolution was adopted unanimously after a lengthy discussion. Thus, Noble Kendrick came to be known as the "father" of the Shrine's great philanthropy.

Tucson Temple Hit Fund Goals

Sabbar Temple of Tucson, Ariz., found its niche in Shrine history last year when its members were recognized for being the first Temple to achieve 100 percent participation in the 100 Million Dollar Club.

As if that weren't enough, several active Sabbar nobles developed a Wills and Gifts Program designed exclusively for special donors. It's called the Humanitarian Fund and 100 percent of all funds go to Shriners Hospitals for Crippled Children. Any expense incurred is underwritten locally.

To be a member, Shriners and non-Shriners alike must make a minimum gift or pledge of $10,000 by way of cash, bequests, real estate, stocks, insurance, etc. Each member receives a personal plaque and a metal wallet size membership card and is recognized at an annual black tie banquet.

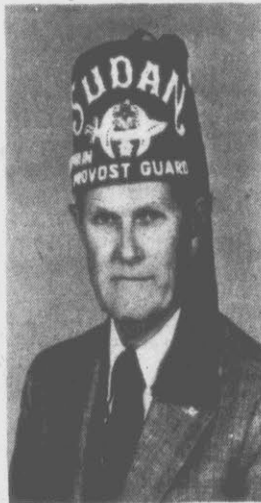

To date the Humanitarian Fund has 41 members, and the gifts and bequests thus far represent about $2.5 million for 1981 alone. This more than doubled the original goal of $1 million.

Shrine Was Begun By N.Y. Masons

The Shrine started in the early 1870s with the idea and the enthusiasm of two high-degree Masons, Dr. Walter M. Fleming, a surgeon and specialist of New York, and William J. Florence, an actor who achieved distinction as a comedian.

Dr. Fleming was completing his higher degree work in Masonry at the time, and in his quest for relaxation, he had the urge to establish a playground for Masons — an organization to which only Masons who were Knights Templar or 32nd degree Scottish Rite Masons would be eligible for membership. He discussed the idea with Florence, a 32nd degree Scottish Rite Mason. He hoped to obtain some tips relative to a name and a ritual.

Noble N. McClenachan was coroneted a 33rd degree Scottish Rite Mason in 1860. He was an outstanding authority on all Masonic matters and perhaps the leading ritualist of his time. He was a key figure in aiding Dr. Fleming in preparation of the Ritual.

At the outset, records were kept on scraps of paper, but eventually they were transcribed. There were 17 meetings on the second floor of Knickerbocker Cottage located at 426 Sixth Avenue, New York City.

It was during this period that Dr. Fleming communicated the Shrine work to himself and 12 other members of the Luncheon Club. Later Dr. Fleming communicated the work to 17 other high-degree Masons. With this membership nucleus, a meeting was called on Sept. 26, 1872, in the Masonic Hall, 114 E. 13th St., New York, for the purpose of formally organizing the first Shrine Temple in North America. It was proposed that the first Temple be named Mecca.

The creation of Damascus Temple in Rochester, N.Y., was granted under a charter dated June 7, 1876, by Mecca Temple. This served to spur activity and gave Noble Fleming another idea. That idea was to select a number of prominent Masons in various parts of the United States and invest them with the rights and prerogative of Past Potentates so they could establish subordinate Temples.

On June 6, 1876, Fleming called for the creation of a governing body for the order, and at a subsequent business meeting the Imperial Grand Council of the Order of Nobles of the Mystic Shrine was authorized.

A committee of three Nobles, McClenachan, Ehlers and Ward, was named to draft statutes and regulations for government of the Imperial Grand Council.

The first official act was to grant a charter to Mecca Temple, dated Sept. 26, 1872.

During 1876, another Temple was granted a charter, Mount Sinai Temple, Montpelier.

In 1877, charters were issued to Al Koran Temple, Cleveland; Cyprus Temple, Albany, N.Y.; Oriental Temple, Troy, N.Y.; Syrian Temple, Cincinnati; Pyramid Temple, Bridgeport, Conn.; Syria Temple, Pittsburgh; and Ziyara Temple, Utica, N.Y.

Since that time, the Mystic Shrine of North America has increased to more than 900,000 members, reaching into the Canal Zone, Canada and Mexico.

Dr. Hubert M. Poteat, a professor at Wake Forest College and a past imperial potentate, described the organization and its principles. He wrote:

"The Shrine appeals to the strong manhood of North America for a variety of reasons. In the first place, the Oriental pageantry and magnificence of costumes and regalia appeal to men who may be old in years but are still young in spirit. Little boys play cops and robbers; Shriners play Moslems and infidels.

"In the second place, the Shrine provides opportunity for fun and mirth on a truly magnificent scale. Shriners are the apostles of good cheer and happiness and as such are performing a vital function in this tragic modern world of ours. Indeed it may be said that we have 'called into the kingdom for such as this time.'

"A further important principle of the Shrine is toleration in the field of religious opinion. One of the most tragic phenomena of our times is the endless warfare among the people of different faiths and beliefs. In other

James Brewer Is Potentate

James W. Brewer of Greenville was elected Potentate of Sudan Temple on Jan. 23 and will preside at the Shrine's David J. Whichard Jr. Spring Ceremonial in Greenville Friday and Saturday.

Brewer graduated from the public schools in Greenville and attended East Carolina College. In August 1934 he was married to Mary Louise Clark of Greenville. They have three children, Ann, Clark and Judy, all of whom are married.

Potentate Brewer is a member of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church of Greenville and for many years served as a member of the Official Board. He now serves as chairman of the Finance Committee. He has served as president and teacher of Carson Memorial Bible Class for men.

For many years Brewer was an active member of the Kiwanis Club of Greenville. He has also served as chairman of the Salvation Army Advisory Board and is still an active member of that board. Brewer also has served as a member of the board of trustees for Pitt Community College for nine years.

Brewer was appointed grand steward of the Grand Lodge of North Carolina in April 1954 by the then-incoming grand master, Robert L. Pugh. He is a member of the three York Rite Bodies in Greenville.

In 1944, Brewer became a member of Sudan Temple. He is a past president of Pitt County Shrine Club. In 1947, Potentate William J. Bundy asked Brewer to organize and serve as the first captain of the provost guard of Sudan Temple. He served in that capacity for five years.

Brewer is a member of New Bern Court No. 145, Royal Order of Jesters. He is grand treasurer of the Grand Lodge of AF&AM of North Carolina, a position he has held for 20 years.

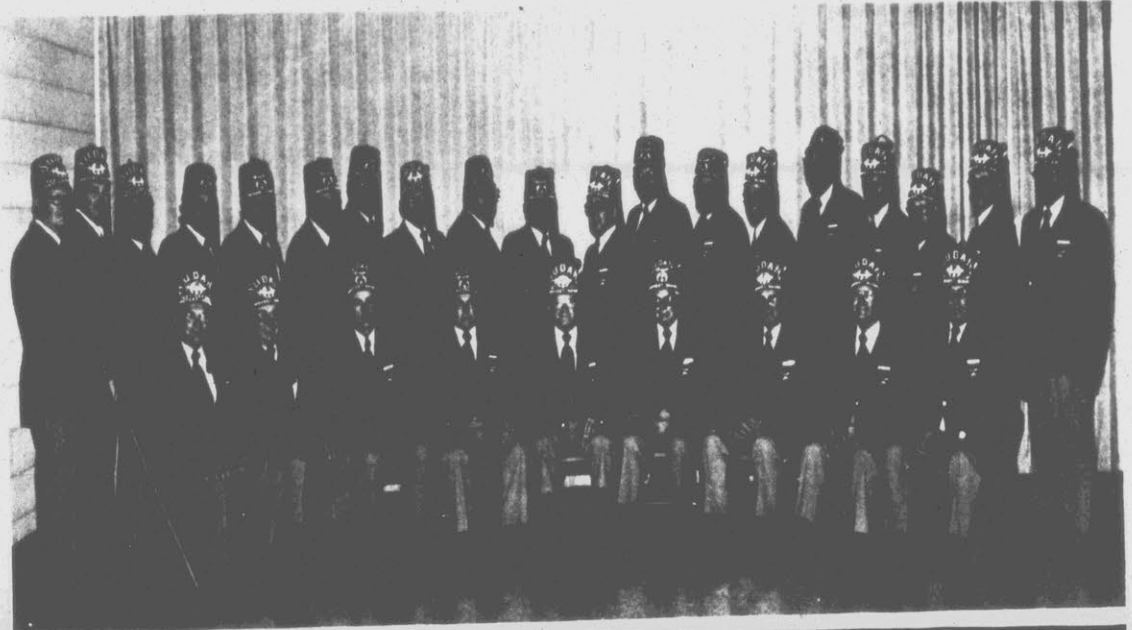

In November 1946, Brewer received the Scottish Rite Degrees in New Bern Consistory No. 3. He has received the Investiture of the Rank and Decoration Of Knight Commander of the Court of Honour in October 1951, and the Degree of Inspector General Honorary or 33rd Degree in October 1957.

words, we expend our energies fighting one another instead of the devil. The Shrine will have none of it and it instructs its initiates that they are to recognize the right of every human being to worship God as he sees fit, without interference or even criticism from any man who walks this planet.

"If there is one thing our harassed world needs more than another today, it is brotherly love. This can be found nowhere in a finer and truer form than in the Mystic Shrine. This does not mean for a moment that all Shriners are the perfect embodiment of this quality. However, Shriners in general do live by this principle."

Dr. Fleming planned and achieved a complete organization, even to emblems and costumes, when he built the Mystic Shrine of North America.

The Crescent was adopted as the Jewel of the Order: In forming the Crescent, the most valuable and sought after materials were the claws of the Royal Bengal Tiger. These were united at their bases in a gold setting. In the center was the head of a sphinx, on the back of which was a pyramid, urn and star.

The crescent has been a religious emblem in all ages in the Orient.

Hartsell Is Chairman Of Ceremonial

Edward W. Hartsell, Sudan Temple's Outer Guard, is also the general chairman of the Spring Ceremonial in Greenville.

Hartsell, a Mount Airy native, was appointed Outer Guard in January. He is a field supervisor for the state Department of Labor, based in Greenville.

Hartsell graduated from Pittsboro High School in 1941 and, after a four-year tour of duty in the U.S. Navy, attended North Carolina State University in Raleigh.

After college he was employed as a department manager with Montgomery Ward Co. in Durham. He was transferred to Alexandria, Va., in 1948. In 1952, he was promoted and transferred to Easton, Pa. After a short tour, he was transferred to Ithaca, N.Y., and to Rome, N.Y., as an assistant manager. In 1958 he moved on to Raleigh as store manager, transferring in 1961 to Elizabethton, Tenn., in the same position.

In 1963 Hartsell returned to North Carolina and was employed by the North Carolina Department of Transportation in Raleigh. In 1966, he transferred to the Department of Labor as a representative and was based in Greenville. He was promoted to field supervisor in 1974.

He was married to the former Pearl Carper of Winchester, Va., in 1950. They have one son, Douglas of Charlotte, and a daughter, Debra (Mrs. P.C. Eure Jr.) of Greenville.

Hartsell is a member of Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church, where he serves as superintendent of study. He is a member of the Carson Men's Bible Class and has served as president of the class, in 1976 and 1981. He is a member of the Greenville Country Club, the Greenville Moose Club, the Pamlico Cotillion Club of Washington, N.C., and the Greenville Cotillion Club. He is vice president this year of the Greenville Cotillion Club.

Hartsell received Masonic degrees in Norwich Lodge No. 302, Norwich, N.Y., in October 1956 and became affiliated with Crown Point Lodge No. 708, Greenville, on Jan. 25, 1968. He served as master of Crown Point Lodge No. 708 in 1975. In April 1969, he became a Scottish Rite Mason and in May 1978 he joined the York Rite Masonic Bodies of North Carolina.

Hospital On Schedule

Plans for the Shrine's 22nd hospital are unfolding on schedule according to Randolph R. Thomas, imperial potentate, and W.W. Bennett, chairman, board of trustees.

During January, Shriners Hospitals for Crippled Children filed a letter of intent for a certificate of need application to construct the proposed 60-bed orthopedic hospital. The planned unit will be constructed on the University of South Florida's Tampa campus and will be affiliated with USF's Colleges of Medicine and Nursing.

The Shrine has been working with Heery & Heery Architects & Engineering, Inc. of Georgia and approved the company's final plans. Ground breaking is scheduled for June 12 with a target opening date of December 1983.

The proposed Tampa Unit, which will include extensive orthopedic research and teaching activities, will serve crippled children throughout Florida and the southern parts of Georgia and Alabama. The need for the specialized children's hospital was determined through a study conducted last year by Robert Douglass Associates, a hospital planning and consulting firm.

No state funding will be sought or obtained to supplement the estimated $25 million project. As with all of the other Shrine hospitals, all care and services at the proposed Tampa Unit will be provided free of charge to eligible children under 18 years of age.

Movie Tells 'Burns' Story

One of the most popular television public service announcements distributed by the Shrine is the 30-second spot featuring Noble Mel Blanc and the cartoon characters that he brings to life with his many voices — Bugs Bunny, Daffy Duck, Sylvester the Cat and Tweety Bird.

Following the announcement's success is the production of a 23-minute movie about burn prevention. "Ounce of Prevention," which combines live action and superimposed animation, features Mel Blanc and his famous characters. This may be a collector's item, for Blanc has never before appeared in a film of this length, actually talking to Bugs, Daffy, Sylvester and Tweety.

Warner Brothers is donating the use of the four cartoon characters and Blanc is donating his time. Blanc Communications Corp. of Los Angeles is producing it.

There will be two versions of the movie. The first, a 15-minute piece, involves Blanc and the cartoon characters touring a home in search of potential burn hazards. This version of the film will be sent to schools by the Shrine.

The longer version, intended for television distribution, will include the 15-minute version plus a dramatization of a hypothetical burn case. It will explain the extensive modern medical techniques and research that Shriners Burns Institutes have developed and continue to improve upon daily.

"Ounce of Prevention" will preview this June at the 108th Imperial Council Session in Orlando, Fla.

Jack Honeycutt Is Grand Master Of Masons

Ava Clarence "Jack" Honeycutt is this year's grand master of Masons in North Carolina.

Honeycutt, who operates three dry cleaning plants in Raleigh, was born March 16, 1925, in the Wakefield community of Wake County. He was one of seven children — four sons and three daughters — born to the late Ava L. and Donie Honeycutt. All four of the sons were to become Masons.

His family moved to Raleigh in 1932 and Honeycutt received his education in the public schools in that city. Drafted into the Army during World War II, he spent three years of military service in the Continental United States.

After his discharge at San Francisco, Honeycutt returned to Raleigh and joined his brother in the dry cleaning business. He later purchased his brother's interest and now operates the business by himself.

Honeycutt has served on the board of directors of the North Carolina Cleaners and Launderers Association, serving as president of that association in 1975-1976. He is secretary-treasurer of the Raleigh Cleaners' and Launderers Association.

On June 28, 1947, Honeycutt married Margaret Council, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. M.C. Council. They have three children.

The Honeycutts are active members of Samaria Baptist Church in Raleigh, where Jack has served as a Sunday school teacher, as superintendent and as a deacon. He has been treasurer of the church since 1960.

On June 17, 1953, Honeycutt became a Master Mason in Hiram Lodge No. 40, in Raleigh. His father-in-law, M.C. Council, coached him during the degrees. Council, secretary of Green Level Lodge No. 277 for many years, was one of the first North Carolina members to be presented the Diamond Jubilee Sixty-Year Award.

Honeycutt served Hiram Lodge as coaching chairman and was master in 1967.

Active in the Grand Lodge for many years, Honeycutt was for a time housing chairman for the annual communication. He later became general chairman of the annual communication, having the responsibility of seeing that all activities went smoothly.

Fish Fries Help Children

What started out to be a method to cook and serve the Moslem Feast at a ceremonial has developed into an activity recognized all over Shrinedom.

In 1956, Clarence H. Parker was potentate of Sudan Temple when plans were being made to hold the spring ceremonial in Elizabeth City. Noble Harvey W. Smith, who in 1956 was appointed Outer Guard by Clarence Parker, had four large deep fat cookers made and gave them to Sudan Temple to be used during the Moslem Feast, after which they were to become the property of Sudan Temple for its use and also for the use of the Shrine Clubs.

From this idea and offer of Harvey Smith along with foresight of a group of nobles from Onslow County, the Shrine's present-day successful fish fries for crippled children were made a reality.

Noble George E. Roberts of Jacksonville made a call to the Recorder's office in 1958 requesting to borrow the cookers for a crippled children's project. Roberts stated that he, along with other Shriners in the Onslow area wanted to put on a fish fry, selling tickets to the public with all net proceeds to be contributed to the Shriners Hospital in Greenville, S.C. The plans were worked out, the date set, and what was eventually to be recognized as Sudan's most enthusiastic activity was begun.

From that simple start, Sudan Shrine Clubs have adopted the idea of fish fries for the crippled child and it is now their greatest activity. It took much planning and work to promote and sell the Shrine Clubs on this project. Many of Sudan's nobles traveled many miles and spent many hours explaining to the clubs how the fish fries were conducted. Today, practically every club in this jurisdiction has a project for Shriners Hospitals with fish fries being the most popular one.

From the simple beginning,

Sudan Shriners have cooked and served literally tons and tons of fish all for the Crippled Child. As an example for the past several years, thousands of pounds of fish have been cooked and served by the Shrine Club on the behalf of the philanthropy.

What started out by a few Nobles in Onslow County has become Sudan's greatest activity.

Some clubs and uniformed units sponsor other types of projects for our crippled and burned children, such as variety shows, dances, brunswick stew suppers, tapping toes dance recitals, walking cane sales and horse shows.

Guidelines For Shriners In Sponsoring Children

Some of the questions asked most often by Nobles are: How do I sponsor a crippled child? What's my financial obligation to the child? What about the application?

Because Nobles are unsure of the correct answers, they sometimes decide not to sponsor a child. This is sad, for sponsoring a child is rather simple and quite rewarding. Here's all you do.

1. Obtain an application from your Temple or a Shriner's Hospital.

2. Make sure the application is filled out completely (parents' signatures and witnesses are essential). Sign your name and address and get the Physician's Certificate signed and completed. If the Physician's Certificate is not complete, the application must be returned.

3. Obtain a birth certificate or affidavit as to the child's age.

4. Submit custody papers

(or copy of divorce decree) if parents are divorced, adoption papers if the child is adopted. All legal forms should be returned to the guardians.

5. Obtain three pictures (front, side and back full-length views) of the child with sufficient clothing removed to show deformity.

6. Forward the above material to the nearest Shriners Hospital for Crippled Children.

After appropriate review by the Chief of Staff and the Hospital Board of Governors, the family will be notified as to whether the child can be accepted or rejected. If the child's application is accepted, the parents will be notified as to the date for an initial examination.

Every child who is admitted to a Shriners Hospital must have a Shrine sponsor. Any Shriner can submit the application of a child. There is absolutely no financial obligation on the part of the sponsor at any time.

Through your neighbors, your church, your doctor and your co-workers, you can find those little children who need your help. By letting people know that you are a Shriner and that the Shrine operates 21 hospitals for crippled and burned children, word will get around to the families in need.

Remember that a child's family need not be destitute. The financial requirement for admission is that if treatment at another facility would place a financial burden on the family, then the child may be admitted (assuming age and medical requirements have been met). Children must be under the age of 18 and there must exist a reasonable possibility that treatment can benefit the patient.

All expenses for care and treatment are assumed by Shriners Hospitals for Crippled Children.

Mini-Clinic Bus

The Nobility at Moslem Temple of Cleveland, Ohio, is developing a new project the Moslem Mini-Clinic Bus. The outside appearance of the mobile clinic is similar to that of a commercial bus, but the interior now includes two fully-equipped examination rooms, a galley, an enlarged lavatory, customized lighting, hand rails and special seating to accommodate regular and wheel chair passengers.

The bus is both an examination clinic to screen children for possible admission to Shriners Hospitals and also a vehicle for transporting up to 14 children and parents to the Shriners hospitals in Chicago and Cincinnati, replacing expensive air transportation.

The Moslem Mini-Clinic Bus will be stationed periodically in shopping centers, malls, sports arenas, county fairs, and other places where many people gather.

Shrine Has World's Fair Exhibit

The Shrine of North America is part of the 1982 World's Fair in Knoxville, Tenn.

The Shrine's "Temple of Children's Smiles," along with exhibits from over a dozen foreign nations and many major corporations, will be featured through Oct. 31. The fair's theme is "Energy Turns the World," and Shriners believe that our children are tomorrow's most valuable source of energy.

The "Temple of Children's Smiles" is housed in a unique 1,500 square foot pyramid and demonstrates the theme "Shriners - Giving Children Reasons to Smile." An estimated 4 million to 5 million of the expected 11 million fair visitors will learn the story of the Shrine and Shriners Hospitals for Crippled Children by progressing through an audio visual experience, exhibits, and a traditional museum display.

As you walk through the Shrine exhibit you will learn life-saving tips about burn prevention by means of bigger-than-life sized household burn hazards. Adults will see how a protruding pot handle or dangling electric cord appears from a child's eyeview. A "hands-on" quiz will test your knowledge of safe tap water temperatures.

You will also watch a short movie about Shriners Hospitals and experience the special "Halls of Smiles," a display of photographs and artifacts from famous Shriners who have made generations of children smile. Among those included are: John Wayne, Red Skelton, Roy Rogers, Ty Cobb, Jack Dempsey, Colonel Sanders, Franklin D. Roosevelt, John Phillip Sousa and Emmett Kelly.

This is the most expensive fair involvement by any Masonic organization since the New York World's Fair in 1964-65.
