101ST YEAR NO. 129

GREENVILLE, N.C.

MONDAY AFTERNOON, MAY 31, 1982

Commencement Exercise Held For PCC Graduates

During Spring commencement exercises for Pitt Community College graduates held Sunday, associate in applied science and associate in arts degrees and diplomas were awarded graduates of technical, vocational and college-transfer programs. High school equivalency diplomas also were awarded.

Jane Smith Patterson, secretary of the North Carolina Department of Administration, discussed the need for highly skilled workers in Eastern North Carolina and advised the graduates of their opportunities to fill these positions. She emphasized that many new North Carolina industries need not only machinists, but laser technicians, workers in fiber optics, robot technology, and computer operation and programming. "Traditionally, about half of our productivity comes from increases in individuals' skills and knowledge," she said. "And our nation's productivity in the last 20 years has fallen seriously behind that of countries like Japan, which puts an even greater emphasis on education and training than does America."

She expressed her belief that some national policies are improperly focused and that programs that invest in people, like job training, public school assistance, day care, college aid and basic research funding should be increased, not decreased.

"Despite the long unemployment lines in many areas, we are suffering from shortages of critical workers, from machinists to engineers. The result is bottlenecks, higher prices and lower quality in both domestic and defense products," she said.

She mentioned that North Carolina has one of the highest rates of participation in the labor force by women of any nation in the union. She explained that national population figures tell us that the primary source of new workers in this decade will be women.

"Leave the world smarter, more compassionate and safer to live in," she admonished the graduates.

Ann Marie McConney, an accounting graduate, gave the graduates' response. She said PCC faculty members have shared their knowledge with the graduates. "All of our instructors went the extra mile with us, so now we will strive to meet our goals in life," she said. "We express our thanks for those who have helped us along the way during our years at Pitt Community College."

The speaker was introduced by Kay Whichard, vice chairman of the PCC board of trustees. Dr. William E. Fulford Jr., president of PCC, made opening remarks and welcomed the assembly. Edgar L. Boyd, dean of students, introduced the candidates and Clifton W. Everett Sr., chairman of the trustee board, conferred the degrees and diplomas, assisted by Dr. Edward B. Bright, dean of instruction. The Rev. Wayne Adkisson, pastor of Winterville Baptist Church, gave the invocation and benediction. Mrs. Shirley Moore was organist. A reception followed.

A Pilgrimage Goes 'Political'

PIEKARY SLASKIE, Poland, (AP) — Two hundred thousand Polish men turned a traditional Catholic pilgrimage into a political statement, cheering a bishop's call for freedom for activists interned under martial law.

In the biggest gathering since martial law was declared last Dec. 13, the men, mostly coal miners, came to this small, sooty Silesian town Sunday in an annual rite of homage to the Virgin Mary.

Piekary Slaskie is not far from the Wujek coal mine, where at least seven miners were killed in December as soldiers crushed the most determined resistance to martial law by supporters of the suspended independent union Solidarity.

Archbishop Herbert Bednorz of the nearby city of Katowice told the crowd that Pope John Paul II on his next visit to Poland "would like to visit all the internment camps." But the archbishop said the pontiff would prefer that his visit to the camps would not be necessary because of the release of the internees.

The miners cheered, and cheered again when Bednorz said: "Social justice should receive more respect in Poland so that no wrong or evil will be done to people as is being done now. The thoughtless dismissals from work, new internments and new arrests must stop."

Bednorz said he met with the pope at the Vatican last week and gave him a wooden cross carved by an internee at the Uherce camp near the Soviet border. During the meeting, they apparently discussed the possibility of the pope visiting his homeland later this year.

Prior to martial law, the pope had planned to visit Poland for the Aug. 26 celebration of the 600th anniversary of the Black Madonna of Czestochowa, an icon of the Virgin Mary which Poles believe helped repulse an invading army and preserve Poland's independence in medieval times.

When martial law was declared, the pope's plans were put in abeyance, and church officials said he probably would not come as long as martial law was in force. Archbishop Josef Glemp, the Polish primate who attended the ceremony Sunday, has said that the anniversary is a year-long event, and the pope could come any time during the year.

Garrison Under Bombardment

By The Associated Press

British troops were driving toward the heavily defended Falkland Islands capital of Stanley today, where the Argentine garrison came under punishing bombardments Sunday from the air and sea. Argentina said its warplanes may have knocked out the aircraft carrier Invincible but Britain denied it.

Britain acknowledged an attack was "attempted" on the 100-ship fleet, but denied any ships were hit. Officials in London said one Argentine Skyhawk was probably shot down by a destroyer.

British military sources said Sunday's bombardment by 4.5-inch naval guns and Harrier jets was the most punishing of the campaign so far and was aimed at softening up the Argentine garrison, estimated at 7,000 troops, defending the Falklands capital.

Argentina said two Harriers were downed by anti-aircraft fire and a third was damaged. The British had no comment on the claim.

An Argentine military communique said Super Etendard fighter bombers carrying Exocet missiles and Skyhawk jets with "high-powered bombs" hit an "aircraft carrier-type ship" and it was put out of action "because of the grave damage it received."

Brig. Gen. Basilio Lami Dozo, member of the ruling junta and air force commander-in-chief, told reporters that pilots said they saw "smoke and flames and internal explosions" aboard the ship. He said "we hope to be able to verify whether it was or was not the Invincible or some other aircraft carrier."

Argentine news agencies said the ship was the Invincible, one of two in the battle group, along with the Hermes. Prince Andrew, second in line to the British throne, is a helicopter pilot aboard the Invincible.

The British Defense Ministry said in a statement: "A number of Argentine naval aircraft attempted to attack the carrier battle group this afternoon. None of the ships was hit. One Skyhawk was believed to be shot down by an escorting destroyer."

Arms Reduction Talks Set Begin On June 29

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan announced today that the United States and the Soviet Union will begin strategic arms reduction talks in Geneva on June 29.

In a speech prepared for delivery at a Memorial Day ceremony in Arlington National Cemetery, the president also said the United States would not undercut terms of existing strategic arms limitation treaties so long as the Soviet Union played by the same rules. "This is a fitting occasion to announce that START negotiations between our country and the Soviet Union will begin on June 29," the president said.

"As for existing strategic arms agreements, we will refrain from actions which undercut them so long as the Soviet Union shows equal restraint," he added.

"With good will and dedication on both sides, I pray that we will achieve a safer world."

The governments of the United States and the Soviet Union issued a joint statement shortly before Reagan's address formally announcing the new round of negotiations.

"Both sides attach great importance to these negotiations," according to the joint announcement by the governments of the two countries.

Ambassador Edward Rowny will head the U.S. delegation. His Soviet counterpart will be Ambassador V.P. Karpov.

Earlier this month, in a speech at Eureka College in Illinois, Reagan proposed sharply reducing U.S. and Soviet missile arsenals beginning with a cutback of one-third in missile warheads to equal levels of 5,000 apiece.

Both countries now have more than 7,000 warheads.

SALT II was signed by former President Carter and Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev in 1979 after seven years of negotiations by three U.S. presidents. It never came to a ratification vote in the Senate, where resistance mounted after the Soviet military move into Afghanistan in late 1979.

SALT II called for the Soviets to cut back 250 (Please turn to Page 8)

Memorial Day Services Held At American Legion Building

"Your presence here reminds us of the sacrifices so many have made in the service of our country," Dr. Leo Jenkins, former chancellor of East Carolina University told those attending a Memorial Day service at the American Legion building here Sunday.

"There is hardly a family in America which has not been touched by the great price of guarding and protecting the world's foremost leader of a free society," he continued, pointing out that since the struggle for independence over 200 years ago, more than 39 million young Americans have served in 10 major conflicts.

"In this time, our nation has spent 35 years fighting major wars — that's approximately one year of war for every 5.7 years of our existence." In addition, he said, "we have been involved in more than 100 limited military situations — 25 of these occurring since World War II. We owe a debt to the gallant Americans who have served their country in arms, but we are especially grateful for the sacrifice of the more than one million who gave their lives in these conflicts."

American vigilance and military strength "have been the bulwark of world peace for the entire 20th century," according to Jenkins, who added "the loyalty and sacrifice of our men and women in uniform have been the major source of this strength."

Jenkins suggested that by remaining strong, the United States serves as a catalyst for peace, while the neglect of a strong defense, rather than serve the cause of peace, would encourage "flare ups of international violence which can easily escalate."

According to Jenkins, "the American experiment has proven to be a showcase not yet matched by world society. However, we must never forget that what we have today was not achieved easily. It was not done without the umbrella of freedom given unselfishly by our fighting men since the beginning of this republic. Indeed, we owe them a great debt which can only be repaid by each generation assuring that freedom and prosperity are preserved — even if we must pay the ultimate sacrifice that every generation of Americans has faced."

The Memorial Day service, sponsored by American Legion Post 39, included music by the Rose High School junior band, a salute fired by the honor guard of the National Guard's 167th Military Police Battalion, and the playing of taps by D.H. Conley Junior ROTC member Scott Garris.

COOKING IS FUN!

CHERRY-RHUBARB COFFEECAKE — Great to serve for brunch.

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
AP Food Editor

If you enjoy pairing pink or red rhubarb with another fruit, you may be interested in a new recipe we've just tested. It's for a Cherry-Rhubarb Coffeecake that's delicious to serve at Sunday brunch.

As is my wont, in the following recipe I specified exactly the kind of dark sweet cherries we used — a 17-ounce can of the pitted variety. But if a jar of whole unpitted dark sweet cherries is at hand, don't hesitate to use it. Just pit the cherries after draining them.

This coffeecake may be brought to the table in its baking dish, cut there and served warm. Family and guests are likely to relish it as they linger over those last cups of coffee.

CHERRY-RHUBARB COFFEECAKE

Topping recipe follows
17-ounce can dark sweet pitted cherries in heavy syrup
1 cup diced (1/2 inch) fresh rhubarb (about 5 ounces)
2 teaspoons cornstarch

1 1/2 cups buttermilk baking mix
1-3rd cup sugar
1/4 teaspoon ground nutmeg
3 tablespoons butter, at room temperature
1 large egg
1-3rd cup milk
Make the Topping. Grease and flour a 2-quart square baking dish (8 by 8 by 2 inches).

Drain the cherries, saving the syrup. You'll need 3 tablespoons of the syrup for this recipe; refrigerate the rest and use in a beverage or some other dish.

In a 1- or 1 1/2-quart saucepan bring the rhubarb and 2 tablespoons of the reserved syrup to simmering; simmer, covered, until the rhubarb is tender — 3 to 5 minutes; remove from heat.

In a cup stir together the cornstarch and 1 tablespoon of the reserved syrup until smooth; stir into the rhubarb mixture. Over moderate heat, stirring constantly, cook until clear and thickened. Off heat, stir in the cherries; set aside.

Into the bowl of an electric mixer turn the baking mix, sugar, nutmeg, butter, egg and milk. Beat on low speed for 1/2 minute; beat on medium speed for 4 minutes. Spread half the batter in the prepared baking dish. Spoon the cherry-rhubarb mixture over it; add the remaining batter by spoonfuls, spreading it with a small spatula. Sprinkle with the Topping.

Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until the top is golden and springs back when lightly touched in the center — 35 minutes. Serve warm. Makes 8 servings.

Topping: Stir together 1-3rd cup each all-purpose flour, sugar and chopped (medium-fine) unblanched almonds; with a pastry blender cut in 3 tablespoons butter until it is in fine particles. Makes about 1 1/2 cups. Set aside until needed.

Looking for a quick and simple summer project? Then try your hand at macrame, making this casual Folkloric Purse. You can make it in an evening or two, using two colors of macrame braid and plastic rings with a marblelike look.

To obtain directions for making the Folkloric Purse, send your request for Leaflet No. M-5392 with $1 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Pat Trexler, ("The Daily Reflector"), P.O. Box 810, North Myrtle Beach, S.C. 29582.

Or you can order Kit No. KM-5392 by sending a check or money order for $14 to Pat Trexler at the same address. Each kit contains the instruction leaflet, two colors of Wonder Braid and two 8-inch Marbella Rings. Shipping charges are included. Please specify your choice of the following color combinations: brown and eggshell; emerald and royal; pastel blue and white; black and white.

Macrame is a great family hobby — pleasurable, satisfying and relaxing for all ages. Chances are that Dad and the boys will already know how to make all of the basic knots, but Mom and Sis can easily learn. Many projects are started by fastening all of the cords onto a holding cord, a ring or some other similar object. This is done with a Lark's Head Knot.

Fold a cord in half and hold the loop of the fold under and behind the cord or ring. Bring the ends of the cord up over the cord or ring and pass them through the loop, as shown in the first illustration. Pull down to secure the cords. Your directions will tell you how many cords you will need and how long to cut them.

For ease in working, I recommend that you use a macrame board, available at most craft shops. If you want to make your own, try to get a piece of insulating board about 12" by 16" and cover it with a piece of cloth. For small projects, you could even use a very firm pillow or tape several layers of corrugated cardboard together. You'll be pinning your cords to the board or pillow as you work so you will also need a supply of sturdy pins, such as "T-pins."

The most commonly used knot in macrame is the Square Knot. In some directions this will be abbreviated as SK. The second illustration shows this knot worked on four cords. When you fasten two folded cords with a Lark's Head Knot, you will have four cords, as shown in the second illustration.

Mentally number these cords 1 through 4. In the illustration, Cord 1 shows as shaded gray, Cords 2 and 3 as white and Cord 4 as black. Cords 1 and 4 are the "working" cords (abbreviated as WC) and Cords 2 and 3 are the "holding" cords (HC). Several inches below the working area, wrap the holding cords around a pin and secure the pin to the board.

Pass Cord 4 under the holding cords and over Cord 1; then pass Cord 1 over the holding cords and under Cord 4. This completes a half knot. Tighten by pulling on the two working cords. The second half of the square knot is the same as the first, worked in reverse.

To work a sennit, continue working Square Knots, one under the other. Or, to work a horizontal row of Square

Knots, repeat the procedures given in the last paragraph on each group of four cords across the row.

A very pretty pattern can be worked using Alternating Square Knots, abbreviated as ASK. To do this, first work a horizontal row of Square Knots for Row 1. Then for the second row, put the first two cords on one side. Your first knot will be worked with Cords 3 and 6 used as working cords and Cords 4 and 5 as holding cords.

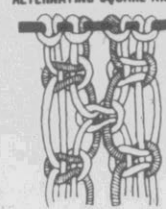

The second knot will use Cords 7 through 10 in the same manner. Continue making square knots across the row until two cords remain. These last two cords on this row will not be used. Repeat Rows 1 and 2 over and over for desired length. See illustration No. 3.

With just these knots, you can create many exciting items, but other knots are just as easily learned when you take them one step at a time. Watch for other macrame knots in future columns.

WHY A "TEMPORARY" FILLING?

Have you ever had your dentist tell you he was using a "temporary filling" and wondered why? No, my friend, it is not a ploy so he can get a second crack at you. This is a perfectly proper dental procedure.

It is referred to as "indirect capping", and is used in cases where the nerve (or pulp) would be exposed if all the decay were removed from the cavity. Regarded as a conservative treatment, the application of medicated cement in the temporary filling helps the pulp of the tooth to repair itself by containing the decay and allowing the buildup of a wall of tooth structure between the pulp and the decayed material.

This is a "holding action". When your dentist removes the temporary filling, he may take an X-ray to determine if the pulp has healed. If so, the balance of the decay is removed, and a permanent restoration, or filling, can be placed in the tooth.

In summary, your dentist is trying to keep your tooth alive, avoiding the need for a root-canal filling, pulp capping, or extraction of the tooth.

Agency Enlists Parents In Fight

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1982 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I want to save other parents the heartache we felt when we discovered our sons were using marijuana and other drugs.

After many months of blaming ourselves, blaming others and searching for help, we heard about the National Federation of Parents for Drug-Free Youth — an organization founded, directed and administered by parents to educate and assist parents in the prevention and intervention of drug use. It helped us immediately. We received reliable up-to-date educational materials. We obtained a Parent Group Starter Kit, which told us how to form a parent support group. With this information, we were able to begin helping our family focus on the cause of our problem — drugs! Not only are our sons now drug-free, but my husband and I have been able to help hundreds of other parents recognize the signs and realize that they, too, must take positive steps to help their children.

It is important for all parents to know that their children will be faced with pressure to use drugs. (Our boys tell us that over 60 percent of students at their schools "do drugs.") The average beginning age is 11½ years.

I pray that you will print this soon.

CAROLYN B., SILVER SPRING, MD.

DEAR CAROLYN: I've checked out the agency you recommend and have found it to be tops. It has agreed to respond to every request for information promptly. Parents wanting information or support should contact the National Federation of Parents for Drug-Free Youth, P.O. Box 722, Silver Spring, Md. 20901.

DEAR ABBY: "Tens" (really beautiful women) have a problem I call "the curse of excessive beauty." Because of this, they are unapproachable by potential mates because everyone assumes that all such beauties are already spoken for.

This assumption, which is valid about 98 percent of the time, coupled with the male's natural fear of rejection 99 percent of the time, causes a lot of people to miss the boat.

When a beautiful woman is newly divorced or has just broken up with her last love and is not involved with anyone but would like to be, she has a problem.

My solution: Let her wear some kind of identifying symbol donating to several funds including the scholarship fund and disaster fund. A letter of appreciation from St. Jude's was read.

Mildred Hecker, education chairman, reported receiving a gold link certificate. Carolyn Hatcher said crayons and magazines had been donated to the United Cerebral Palsy Center.

A philanthropic project for next year was reported by Ms. Taylor. The hospital is arranging for volunteer activities by groups who would be working several hours every few weeks. Linda Peele said the state convention was held in Charlotte.

The meeting and salad supper was held at the home of Ms. Robinson.

HERB IN HOUSTON

DEAR HERB: Nice try, but somehow I can't see a "10" wearing a "sitting duck" T-shirt to signal her availability. All she has to do to telegraph her interest is make eye contact and smile.

DEAR ABBY: I am newly married and expecting a baby. My problem is that my in-laws have two dogs that are like part of their family. These dogs are infested with fleas. I'm sure the fleas are in the carpet, so it's a year-round problem. Please understand, my in-laws aren't dirty or anything like that, but their dogs have fleas. (Can fleas hurt a baby or cause disease?)

The flea bites cause itchy red bumps on me, but I suppose they're not too serious. It's funny, but my husband isn't affected by flea bites the way I am.

How do I bring this up without sounding picky or neurotic? I don't want to hurt my in-laws, as they are super people and I love them very much.

NEEDS ADVICE

DEAR NEEDS: Fleas can be serious. They can also be eradicated. And if your in-laws are really "super" people, they will consult a vet about how to keep their dogs flea-free forever.

Keep Workers On Job

Hard choices are now having to be made in the effort to balance the state budget.

A freeze on state salary step increases is one of the choices that has already won tentative approval. It would affect most state and teacher positions.

It is not a pleasant prospect for state employees and there were quick statements of disapproval by officials of employee groups.

It is a fact, though, that the House and Senate budget committees face a situation where they must develop a balanced budget and they must keep the functions of government intact.

The situation is gradually coming down to choices between a salary freeze or major layoffs of state employees. Since it is not possible to determine exactly who would be terminated it would appear the freeze plan, which could keep most state employees working through a difficult financial time, would be the best alternative.

We have long supported better salaries, particularly for teachers in North Carolina, and we will continue to do so. Even now we would hope that the business climate would improve, increasing state revenues so that the salary freeze won't be necessary. If the state revenue picture is as bleak as we are told, however, we would want to do all possible to keep as many state workers on the payroll as feasible. Layoffs, after all, would only increase the unemployment numbers with all the problems for our society that entails.

NOT A VERY HOSPITABLE CLIMATE!

2-Year Financial Drain

If Congress is looking for new constitutional amendments, I wish they would push for one which would allow a member of the House of Representatives to serve for four years instead of two. One of the biggest financial drains on the country is the money spent on the two-year congressional elections.

You think you have just helped someone get elected when they are back again making a pitch for funds.

"I need your help," said congressman Diablo at a party.

"I already gave you a check a few months ago," I told him.

"That was for my last election. I'm talking about the one coming up. I've got a very tough race." "You told me that the last time."

"It's even tougher this year. I have 14 percent unemployment in my district and my opponent is trying to make an issue of it."

"Wouldn't it be cheaper to tell him if he doesn't knock it off you'll hit him in the mouth?"

"It's not a he, it's a she. It's harder to beat a she than a he because they don't fight fair. That's why I need more money."

"I can't keep financing your election every two years," I told him. "Why don't you raise the money in your own district?"

ART BUCHWALD

"No congressman these days can raise money in his own district. He has to raise it in places where they don't know him."

"Why don't you get it from lobbyists who are interested in special legislation?"

"I've already tapped them. I've sold my soul to big business, the environmentalists, the moral majority and the labor union political action committees. Now I'm hitting up my friends who know where I really stand."

"I'd like to help you, Diablo, but you can't seem to hold a job."

"It's not my fault," he said. "The way the Constitution is written there just isn't any security in being a congressman. As soon as you get elected, you have to start raising money for your next campaign. And no matter how you vote, you immediately wind up on somebody's hit list."

El Salvador's False Hopes

By MAXWELL GLEN and CODY SHEARER
WASHINGTON

Americans become so caught up in the exercise of democracy that we often take for granted the underlying foundations that help make our country free. Then, when we try to export our system, we're surprised to find that it doesn't always survive under local conditions.

This seems very much to have been the problem in our expectations of El Salvador's parliamentary elections last March 28. Most Americans undoubtedly assumed the large turnout that Sunday signaled the beginning of the end to El Salvador's problems. Little did many of us realize, however, the false hopes that such free elections engendered.

Indeed, we should have cashed in our chips when Salvadoran voters gave four right-wing parties the support needed to form a majority coalition at the expense of the centrist Christian Democratic regime of President Jose Napoleon Duarte. The election results made inevitable last week's suicidal decision by the Constituent Assembly to suspend the third part of a three-stage land reform program.

Although the Salvadoran government had also suspended the second phase of land reform in 1980, the U.S. government and AFL-CIO had considered such redistributive economic measures essential to the long-term stability of El Salvador. U.S. aid was tied to the program's continuation.

Now Roy Prosterman, a University of Washington law professor and the program's architect, believes the Constituent Assembly has forsaken its claim to U.S. military and economic support, which the Reagan administration has pegged at $319.3 million for fiscal 1983 alone.

"My only position is that if the Assembly doesn't reverse the decree, U.S. aid should be suspended immediately for as long as the land reform is in suspension," said Prosterman. "Even if there's a veto (by President Alvaro Magana), it has to be regarded as an interim measure." Prosterman declared that Magana must appoint a new proreform leader of the program to prove that his government is committed to the project. Right now, he added, the Assembly's efforts are "totally contrary to the interests of the campesinos (peasants)."

Coming from the likes of Prosterman, who is no fan of the left (he planned land reform in Vietnam and is working on similar projects for Philippine president Ferdinand Marcos), such an ultimatum indicates how seriously he and many in Congress view the implications of the Assembly's decision.

But we only wish that he and other Americans who defended U.S. support of the Salvadoran government had been more up front about the implications of a rightist victory in El Salvador last March. Indeed, Prosterman's contention of surprise at the program's suspension seems incredible in light of his extraordinary familiarity with Salvadoran politics. And the belated squirms on Capitol Hill, particularly by lawmakers who "observed" the election, make us wonder whether the U.S. was any more prepared for the vote than was El Salvador itself.

For less starry-eyed observers of the land reform, however, the suspension of the third phase was far from surprising. Since the new Assembly took office, not a single application for land title under Phase I of the reform had been issued. Nor, since April 7, had a single title under Phase III. Meanwhile, evictions under both phases rose to an all-time high: some 5,000 families since March 29.

Leaders of the American Institute For Free Labor Development (AIFLD), which virtually orchestrated the land reform, met in Washington this week with representatives of Salvadoran labor and pe-

An Idea To Be Forgotten

Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker, is proposing a constitutional amendment to empower the U.S. Supreme Court to set the salaries of members of Congress.

Sen. Baker sees this as a way of relieving Congress of the responsibility of setting its own pay.

A flaw in the plan is the fact that Congress sets the salaries of the Supreme Court justices, creating a potential trade-off situation.

This is one more proposed constitutional amendment which doesn't deserve much consideration.

Members of Congress are elected by the people and they can be held accountable if they exceed reasonable boundaries in setting their own salaries.

We don't need this kind of clutter in our constitution.

RALEIGH — Former U.S. Marine Capt. Dave Harris didn't expect marching bands to greet him at the airport when he returned to the United States after 13 months in the Vietnam War. He also didn't expect his countrymen to ignore him.

Harris remembers the day in 1969 when he first arrived in San Francisco, stopping off to see his cousin there before heading east. A cab driver immediately recognized him as a returning vet. "You coming home from Vietnam?" the driver asked. Harris shook his head. "You poor ..." the driver said. Conversation ended. Repatriation begun.

That cabbie gave Harris all the commiseration he'd ever receive from his countrymen. "I soon became aware that nobody nobody cared," Harris says. "I didn't expect any big greeting, but at least they could have said it's nice to have you back."

"I have never been able to come to terms with why the people want to pick on the vet and not on the politicians. The vet was doing the best he could," Harris says.

Saputo has a theory about the public and the Vietnam vet and Harris puts it into words: "The public is trying to forget Vietnam and trying to forget the vet because the vet reminds them of Vietnam."

"But we're not going to let them forget 10 years of history and the millions of men who served there just because it was an unpopular war," Saputo says. "We're not going to let them forget what we did."

Other Editors Say Helms' Concern

Goldboro News-Argus

Senator Jesse Helms' support of Argentina in the Falklands crisis is couched in a concern over the domino effect of the communist influence in Latin America and South America.

Argentina, he says, has been pro-U.S. and has helped us fight communist influence in other countries in the western hemisphere.

What would happen if the emerging countries in the southern hemisphere fell under communist domination?

The obvious threat, of course, would be their proximity to the U.S., making available to the Soviet Union areas of natural resources and locations for naval and air bases that could threaten us and our shipping lanes.

But Helms sees another threat.

"We saw in Vietnam what happened when the communist took over. Ten percent of the population fled the country, risking their lives in leaking boats to get away. Thousands of boat people died," explained Helms.

"We wouldn't be able to stop them. We have more people guarding the nation's capital than we have patrolling the Rio Grande. How would we house, feed and clothe 10 million more people on welfare?"

Is there a difference between Latin and South Americans and the people of Southeast Asia? We need but look at what happened when the communists took over Cuba.

There are some professional Helms haters, particularly among the media, in this state and across the nation. And the senator's uncompromising positions on many issues make him highly vulnerable and fair game for criticism. But however unpopular his stand on the Falklands has been, it was based on legitimate concerns. Those concerns deserved more news coverage and editorial amplifications.

Unfortunately, too many among us were preoccupied with slicing up Helms rather than examining his purposes.

Strength For Today

LAWS IN THE RIGHT PLACES

A governor of Arizona wrote recently: "Over my desk flows a steady stream of beautifully rationalized appeals for more laws to avoid this and prevent that ... Men cannot be made law-abiding by law alone. If laws were enough to produce such a result, ours would be a model country for all time to come, because it would be hard to find a nation on earth more surrounded by rules and regulations than ours. Still, we are writing more of them, with increasingly dubious results."

It is sometimes difficult to appreciate the plain truth that the main thing wrong with the world is the hearts of the people who live in it. In the long run, the only way to make a better world is to make a better humanity. This we can do chiefly through education, through the extension of democracy, and above all through the ennobling power of religious faith.

To the editor:

Monday, May 24, I received a letter from Dr. Benjamin Spock. To review, Dr. Spock was well known in the 50's for his advocacy of full permissiveness in child rearing; in the 60's for his support of Ho Chi Minh and the Viet Cong; in the 70's for his endorsement of marijuana and other drugs.

Today Dr. Spock is asking people to contribute money to the National Mobilization for Survival. He is also asking for people to go to New York for a "national demonstration to demand a nuclear free world."

I wrote in reply to Dr. Spock: "Of whom is this demand to be made? Of the USA? Of the USSR? Both?"

"But you give no indication of demand on the USSR. Why?"

(1) Because you know it would be useless?

(2) Because of sympathy and belief in the USSR?

If the first, then do you, and we, dare for a weak USA to face a strong USSR?

If the second, then are you really an American, or truly a Communist, and an activist in the destruction of the USA?

Let us note the subjection by Russia of three Baltic countries, each with their own history, legends and language: Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania. Let us note the fate of the people of Hungary, Czechoslovakia and Poland; also Afghanistan. Let us note the perhaps five million people murdered slowly in Cambodia. Let us note the hundreds of thousands who fled from Vietnam in rotten ships seeking to escape the "heaven" (or hell?) of communism — in ships going nowhere in particular, and often as not to sink with all lives lost. Who really wants to live for Communism?

Feeling A Petroleum Slowdown

By CHARLIE SMITH
Associated Press Writer
OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Although he's unemployed, Tim Orbison still tries to look on the bright side of things. "My income last month was zero," he said recently, "so I figure there's no way to go but up."

Orbison, 24, is one of the thousands of people who came to Oklahoma to take advantage of the state's energy boom. And now, with a slowdown in the state's petroleum industry, he's one of those left unemployed.

Shortly after being graduated from Freed Hardeman College in Henderson, Tenn., Orbison came to this state and landed a job as a landman, or oil and gas lease broker, sometimes called a leasehound or leaser.

It was pretty fascinating work for a young person, involving the search of property records to find owners of mineral rights so that arrangements could be made for oil companies to lease or option them.

But lots of landmen now find themselves out of jobs, and records show that many previously purchased leases still haven't been worked. Oil prices have dropped, and drilling isn't as profitable as it was. Since December, industry figures show, the number of rotary rigs that are drilling in the United States has fallen by more than 1,000 to about 3,400.

Orbison said that of seven employees in the firm where he worked, only two are still employed. But at the height of the boom, he said, "none of us were getting less than $100 a day."

It contrasts with the fortunes of young college graduates in other parts of the country, many of whom found jobs scarce and employers less willing than in other years to take on inexperienced beginners.

"The slowdown really caught us later than other companies," Orbison said. "I know of bigger companies with huge employee ranks that have let 80-90 percent of their landmen loose."

Six months ago, when oil prices were higher and interest in new sources of oil was booming, "anybody who could do anything could get a good job," said Orbison.

Since his job was eliminated, Orbison said his wife has been working for a temporary employment service, and he worked for one for a short time. "Mostly, I've just been sitting around the house and taking care of the yard," said Orbison, father of a 9-month-old child.

He concedes "this can't go on for very long," and that "I'll either have to pick up a part-time job to pay the bills, or change my line of work."

He hasn't given up on being a landman again. "Hopefully, this will all pick up," he said. Some major companies are still going through with their drilling programs, he said.

But activity among the smaller outfits that, used to put together a well package is "completely out," said Orbison. "It's been shut down 100 percent," and so too has Tim Orbison's luck, at least for now.

Marion, Ill. Today Looks Like Bombed Community

By MARK PETERSON
MARION, Ill. (AP) — Severe thunderstorms flinging hail and rain sent new funnel clouds dancing over this community as workers plowed through tons of debris from a tornado that killed at least 10 and left Marion looking "as if it had been bombed."

None of the funnel clouds sighted Sunday touched down, but the hail and rain forced rescue workers to seek shelter temporarily, delaying the search for more victims.

The tornado Saturday afternoon left more than 100 injured in this southern Illinois community. At least 44 people remained hospitalized Sunday.

Hospital officials said at least 65 additional people sought treatment for injuries, mostly puncture wounds, received while combing the wreckage Sunday.

Officials said the death toll may rise as workers lift piles of twisted steel, glass and concrete.

Scores of homes and more than 100 apartments were destroyed. Officials estimated 75 businesses in the tornado's 15-mile-long path also were destroyed.

Gov. James R. Thompson gave an initial damage assessment of $100 million. Thompson said at a news conference Sunday that he had talked to President Reagan and would ask the federal government to declare Williamson County a major disaster area.

The state already has declared it a disaster area.

State Sen. Gene Johns, D-Marion, who toured the destruction with Thompson, said the damage will further erode Marion's faltering economy.

"A lot of people are going to be out of work or out of business. It's going to be a real economic plunge," Johns predicted.

Tom Kirby, owner of the Village Squire men's clothing store in one of three flattened shopping centers, salvaged most of his inventory. "I may have to pitch a tent (to reopen)," he said, "but I cannot afford to be closed. Have you checked the economy lately?"

An 8:30 p.m. curfew was imposed for the second consecutive night to curb looting. City streets again were patrolled by National Guard troops and state police, as well as volunteers from several other jurisdictions.

"We stopped it (looting) before it got started," said Ron Swafford, assistant police chief in the community of about 13,000.

"The townspeople are taking it pretty well. We've set up emergency housing in several churches," he said.

E. Erie Jones, director of the Illinois Emergency Services and Disaster Agency, said records of past tornado fatalities were not immediately available, but that Saturday's twister was "the worst tornado he's ever seen," according to an emergency services spokesman.

"He does not remember one with this many fatalities in the last 20 or 30 years," said spokesman Chuck Jones.

He said a tornado normally moves along the ground at about 40 mph, but the one that hit Marion moved slower, giving residents time to take cover.

"We have some reports that toward the end, this one was almost stationary. That's a unique twist ... and it enabled the people to take protective action," Jones said.

"How do you describe this?" asked an Illinois Department of Criminal Investigations officer, who asked not to be identified. "It looks as if it (Marion) had been bombed."

TORNADO AFTERMATH — An apartment complex and a shopping center suffered heavy damage when a tornado struck Marion, Ill. Saturday. An estimated 240 homes were destroyed. Rescue workers are still digging through the rubble with at least 10 people killed. (AP Laserphoto)

West Point Appointee

Tim Faulkner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lonnie Faulkner of Winterville, has been appointed to West Point by Congressman Walter B. Jones. After graduation from D.H. Conley High School, Faulkner will report to the United States Military Academy July 1.

TIM FAULKNER

Faulkner has been active in the D.H. Conley Junior ROTC and served as state parliamentarian of the Future Business Leaders of America. He was also president of the National Honor Society and parliamentarian of Mu Alpha Theta. He was awarded the Scholastic Excellence Award and the Academic Excellence Award.

Each prospective applicant must apply to a congressman or senator. Appointment to West Point is done on a competitive basis.

Local Man Is President

At the tenth anniversary and annual meeting of the statewide Epilepsy Association of North Carolina (EANC), Scott Luce of Greenville was elected president for 1982-83.

The anniversary celebration and elections were held at the organization's state headquarters in Charlotte. Over 80 members, guests and former officers attended the day-long meeting and an outdoor barbecue pork dinner.

Luce has been a member of the E.A.N.C. for two and one-half years. He served as president of the Coastal Plains Chapter in Greenville for two terms, as the chairman of the state organization's Chapter Development Committee for one year and as a member of the EANC board of directors for two years. He is the first executive officer of EANC to be elected from the eastern part of the state. sant groups to assess the consequences of their brainchild's suspension. After a meeting with Assistant Secretary of State Thomas Enders, they concluded the Reagan administration had been sending the wrong signal to the new right-wing majority.

Said Roy Prosterman, a one-time Reagan adviser to the Latin American country, "The U.S. Mission in San Salvador has not in the past two months done any sort of job to convey to the new government that the U.S. supports the land-reform movement."

"Fit the mold, don't break it": Newsweek, among other publications, has criticized the press for its inconsistent coverage of the Salvadoran civil war. Once the Salvadoran elections were over, Newsweek accurately predicted, the vanguard of reporters would leave.

In the vacuum, however, the violence continues (some die-hard reporters say it is far worse than two months ago). And both Americans and their government clearly suffer from the information gap.

Not surprisingly, there is no Salvadoran Election Commission to monitor the many Miami-based fat cats who stoked the campaign war chests of two right-wing parties, ARENA and PCN. But international observers in San Salvador suggest that exiled land owners donated more than $1 million toward the media blitz that helped carry the conservatives into office.

The Reagan administration will ask Congress for $500 million in supplemental economic and military aid for El Salvador within the next year, predicts Larry Birns of the Council on Hemispheric Affairs. "If there isn't a significant increase in cotton, sugar and coffee exports," said Birns, "El Salvador's $3.5 billion international debt will only grow larger."

So Saputo and Harris and two dozen other vets have formed a committee and they're raising money. They want to build a monument to Vietnam veterans and place it on the Capitol Square in Raleigh. Harris says the monument "will show that some people care about the vet in that they've put something up to recognize the vet." If you want to help them raise the $150,000 they think they'll need, send a donation to the N.C. Vietnam Vets Memorial Committee, Box 31048, Southern National Bank, Raleigh, 27622.

While the debate goes on over an economic policy for the nation, BB&T offers a sound economic policy for your family.

At Branch Banking and Trust, we believe that saving money is sound economic policy.

We've maintained that simple philosophy even through times of high inflation—when the popular wisdom said spend, not save. And today, we believe saving makes more sense than ever.

Saving is the one way you can be sure of having the money you need for the things you want. And with some help from BB&T, you can protect your savings from inflation to a greater degree than you might have expected.

When it comes to saving money, not everyone's needs are equal.

For some people, saving money means a savings account—and that's always a very good way to save.

BB&T also offers a number of alternatives to regular savings accounts—alternatives that can earn you higher interest.

Consider, for example, our Certificates of Deposit*, which allow you to choose a maturity from 30 days to 8 years and a corresponding interest rate on deposits as low as $500. Or high-yield Money Market Certificates for deposits of $10,000 and more.

With these and other savings plans, BB&T can help you put together a comprehensive savings program that will give you the best rate of return on your money and the kind of flexibility you need.

Exercise your inalienable right to save for your own future.

We can't predict what the state of the national economy is going to be. And the debate in Washington over such matters will go on and on.

What we do know, however, are the ways in which saving regularly has improved the lives of BB&T customers through the years. We want you to share in the security and the good life many of them have known.

So while you're waiting to see where the economy is headed, take the future into your own hands. Start a savings plan at BB&T.

Ramsey Sees Trend To Annual Assembly Session

By WILLAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The General Assembly has met so many times in the past year — the meeting Wednesday is the sixth for this group of legislators — that it's easy to forget these annual sessions are a new idea.

But only six years after the legislature began holding a short budget session in election years, the trend is toward full sessions every year, says House Speaker Liston Ramsey.

"The trend will continue, in my opinion," says Ramsey. "Government is more complicated. Unless the federal government abolishes an awful lot of programs they've mandated, within 10 years we'll be coming down here every year for full session."

"I'm opposed to that," he adds. "But there's nothing I can do about it."

The latest session follows a series of special sessions last winter and this spring, mainly for reapportionment, since the regular long session last year. This is the one scheduled last year, however, to deal with the budget and a limited number of other issues.

But according to an analysis by the Institute of Government at Chapel Hill, that limited number of other issues handled during the budget session is growing steadily — with several implications.

Back in 1976 when the legislature first held a short off-year session, lawmakers passed eight new laws plus more budget-related bills, according to the institute's statistics.

By 1978, legislators had widened the scope and enacted 167 new laws — including liquor-by-the-drink — in the so-called "budget session." And in 1980, there were 255 laws passed and hundreds of budget-related bills.

The length of the sessions grew slightly, to three weeks.

"The result was general unhappiness among some legislative leaders and many legislators because it was difficult to give fair consideration to so much legislation in a short time," Robert L. Farb, an Institute of Government faculty member, wrote in a summary of the legislature last year.

As in previous years, the budget session will have an agenda limited by a resolution passed last year to budget bills, local bills, recommendations of study commissions and bills that passed one chamber last year but weren't acted upon in the other.

The provision to allow recommendations of study panels is the method that will allow the Equal Rights Amendment to come up this year.

But the provision allowing bills that made it halfway through the legislature last year is the one that has proven to be crucial. It was added in the 1978 session so that the legalized mixed-drink bill could be revived after passing the Senate the year before.

That provision has had two dramatic effects on the legislature, says Farb.

"First, it increases the work of an already overburdened short session," he said. "Second, it skews the legislative process. During the long sessions last month, legislators no longer have to convince both houses to pass a bill. They can be partially satisfied with passage in one house and possible enactment next year."

After the 1980 session, Farb notes, many legislators vowed not to repeat the pressure-packed short session, with hundreds of bills decided in 15 days. Yet the rules this time mean even more bills can be considered than last time.

The result, argues Farb, is that the short budget session begun six years ago is radically changing the General Assembly.

"The legislature not only is meeting every year but also is expanding the short session from what originally was intended to be a budget-adjusting session into a miniature long-year session," he says.

Not only does it increase pressure, it reduces scrutiny of bills and concentrates more power in the hands of legislative leaders "since the leadership can more readily control the flow of legislation," he says.

"The short session also allows less time for broad public participation in, and reaction to, legislative events."

With the tight situation economically in tobacco this year there is one way to obtain higher yields: top your tobacco plants on time. The average daily loss in pounds per acre is 27 when you fail to top plants in the early button stage. Here is an opportunity for every grower to increase his yield. If you wait until the early flower stage you will have lost some 183 pounds per acre. At full flower the loss will be 403 pounds per acre and at late flower the loss 564 pounds per acre. So remember to top on time to obtain every pound.

Again this year, one will need to watch MH usage. Labels on all MH-containing products now prohibit more than one application per season unless a wash-off occurs within 6 hours after application for new-type KMH and 12 hours for the old type DEA-MH.

In order for growers to obtain good sucker control with one application of the MH the following steps are suggested.

1. Apply from 60 to 80 pounds per acre of nitrogen plus adjustments for leaching. Excess nitrogen produces excess sucker growth which is hard to control. It also delays maturity, reduces curability and quality, and is related to increases in certain insects.

2. Apply a contact sucker control solution at 4 percent dilution before topping when about 50 percent of the plants reach the button stage. Two gallons of the contact sucker control products on the market should be mixed in 48 gallons of water. This will make a 4 percent solution which should be applied at the rate of 50 gallons per acre delivered with a triple nozzle arrangement or equivalent arranged as follows: TG3, TG5, TG3. Go slow enough to get rundown of the solution to touch and desiccate tiny suckers at each axial.

3. Top plants that are ready for topping immediately after application of the contact solution.

4. Apply a second application of a contact solution at 4 to 5 percent concentration 3 to 5 days after the first application, particularly in fields that have irregular growth and flowering.

5. Top remaining plants that were not topped during the first topping.

6. Apply a product containing only MH or apply FST-7 (contains both MH and a contact) about seven days after the last application, preferably in the morning about two days after a rain or irrigation.

Do not use MH products just prior to harvest. The labels on MH products specify a seven day interval between chemical application and harvest.

Pitt Falkland Sparks Interest

FALKLAND (AP) The Falkland Islands dispute between Argentina and Great Britain has sparked interest in the Falklands — both the islands and the town of Falkland, N.C.

Residents say people have learned how to spell the tiny Pitt County town's name — they usually tried to put a 'u' in it and spell it Faulkland, said Joyce Peadar, bookkeeper at Wooten's general store.

Woodrow W. Wooten, 67, owner of the general store and one of three town commissioners, said many residents have taken an avid interest in the conflict over the Falkland Islands.

And it has sparked interest about the origin of the town's name.

Graduate student John Lawrence says the honor should go to George Falkner, who owned a tavern-stable business here in the 1780s.

Others say it was named after the city of Falkland, Scotland, and some think the name came from a variation of the word "fork" taken from the fork in the town's main road.

Postmaster Katie L. Peadar, 64, said she recently received a request from a Charleston, W.Va., stamp collector, who sent her an envelope with two U.S. stamps and a facsimile of a Falkland Islands stamp.

"He wants me to postmark it with Falkland on it and mail it back," she said.

Ships Warned Area A Target

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Iraq is warning foreign tankers to stay away from Iran's oil terminal on Kharg Island in the Persian Gulf, which it says has become a target of Iraqi bombers.

The Iraqis, trying to stem a tide of recent Iranian victories, said in a communique Sunday they had scored "effective hits" at the Kharg Island terminal and at a refinery in Tabriz, Iran's northernmost city.

Iran's war communique Sunday said the two sides exchanged artillery fire across the disputed Shatt al-Arab waterway, Iraq's only access to the Persian Gulf. Kharg Island is near the mouth of the waterway.

Iran said it shot down one Iraqi jet in a dogfight over Abadan, the major Iranian city in the oil terminal area.

Neither side reported any major action by ground troops.

Meanwhile, diplomatic concern about the war was growing. Members of the United Nations Security Council scheduled private consultations today on ways to resolve it peacefully.

Saudi Arabia and five other Arab nations in the gulf region were meeting in Riyadh to take a collective stand on the turn of the war tide in Iran's favor.

Arab Moslem Iraq called on all fellow Arab nations to break ties with Persian Moslem Iran. It cited Israeli Defense Minister Ariel Sharon's recent statement that Israel sold $27 million worth of arms to Iran as "evidence of the alliance between Tehran and Tel Aviv."

The official Iraqi news agency reported Iraqi President Saddam Hussein wound up five days of morale-boosting talks and meetings with troops and generals at the front Sunday.

It quoted Hussein as saying that Iran's recent retaking of the city of Khorramshahr "warrants an upgraded preparedness to fight the enemy and defeat his aggressive intentions on the southern front as well as all other areas of operation."

Recognition

The Greenville Fire/Rescue Department has received recognition in the May issue of Fire Chief magazine, which features the department's involvement in the organizational development process of team building.

The city said the team building program is the first of its kind in the nation to be approved by the United States Fire Administration (USFA). The purpose of the program, it was pointed out, is to improve the problem solving and organizational planning abilities of the department's senior staff.

The USFA provided the services of an organizational consultant to facilitate the program, the city said. Participants in the workshop were Chief Jenness Allen, assistant chiefs Tony Brannon, Harvey Case and Don Mills, and now retired assistant chief Paul Nethercutt.

Two Charged With Larceny

Greenville police Friday arrested Malcolm Tyson, 18 of Newport News, Va., and Jeffrey Vincent Moseley, 18 of 104 Emma Place on larceny charges.

Chief Glenn Cannon said officers took the two in custody about 12:30 p.m. and recovered a radio and calculator allegedly stolen from the old cafeteria building at East Carolina University a short time earlier.

Bond for the two was set at $1,000 each pending a court hearing of the case.

Breathing Club Meets

The American Lung Association of North Carolina, Eastern Region, is continuing to sponsor the Better Breathing Club for the public.

The club meets at 2 p.m. on the first Thursday of each month. Meetings are held at the Willis Building, corner of First and Reade Streets. This month's program is entitled "Dealing With Summer Air Pollution Problems" and will be presented by Dr. Trenton Davis of the East Carolina University Department of Environmental Health.

For further information, interested persons are to contact the Lung Association at 752-5093 between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. weekdays.

HEARING THURSDAY

The Governor's Task Force on Drunken Driving will hold a public hearing Thursday at 7 p.m. in the Pitt County Superior Courtroom. The date was incorrectly printed in Sunday's edition.

ERA Support Being Urged

Citizens of Pitt County are being encouraged to attend the Wednesday and Thursday legislative sessions of the North Carolina General Assembly. The purpose of attending is to lend support to the issue of the Equal Rights Amendment (ERA).

Ms. Dot Gronert, Action Team co-chairman in the ERA office in Greenville, is interested in hearing from people who would like to attend, and invites those interested to call 756-0338 for more information and for car pooling arrangements.

The General Assembly, which is to open its special session on Tuesday, will address ERA as one of its major issues.

Chiropractors, Physicians in Bitter Legislation Argument

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Two medical communities with plenty of political influence — physicians and chiropractors — are prepared to battle over a General Assembly bill redefining the treatment chiropractic may give patients.

Philip R. Smith, executive director of the N.C. Chiropractic Association, said the bill passed by the Senate last year after vigorous debate is intended as a consumer service to clarify the duties that the state's 437 practicing chiropractors may perform.

"We want it up front in the law," Smith said in a recent interview. "We are doing it to protect the consumer. What we want is to update and verify, based on modern practice, what chiropractic is."

The authority for some services performed by chiropractors — including manipulation of athletes' shoulders, elbows and knees — is granted by statutes outside the one defining the practice or by loopholes in the main law, Smith said.

Dr. Don C. Chaplin, chairman of the N.C. Medical Society's legislative committee, described the proposed change as "the most radical and far-reaching enlargement of chiropractic practice ever proposed in North Carolina."

Chaplin said the changes were permit chiropractors to practice medicine without receiving the education and training required to practice medicine. He also questioned the need to amend the law.

"If chiropractors do not need the bill to legalize what they are now practicing, no need for any legislation exists," he said. "Similar bills have been defeated in the General Assembly during almost every session for many years."

The 1981 Senate-passed bill would define chiropractic as "the science and art of using the natural healing processes of the body and the functional relationships between the body structures, especially the spinal column and the nervous system, for the restoration and maintenance of health."

The bill would authorize chiropractors to use in connection with manipulations of the spine and joints of the body:

- Physical therapy techniques, including the application of heat, cold and water treatment.
- Nutritional advice, such as the recommendation of vitamin supplements.
- Diagnostic procedures, including routine physical laboratory and radiologic examinations.

Thomas L. Adams, the medical society's director of governmental affairs, said the Senate bill would allow chiropractors to administer tests, including Pap smears and brain scans — procedures now reserved for physicians. Smith said chiropractors need the authority to perform diagnostic tests such as drawing blood or testing urine.

"There are more than 40 causes for lower back pain," he said. "Some could be pathological. A chiropractor better be doggone sure he's treating something that's within his scope."

The authority for some services performed by chiropractors — including manipulation of athletes' shoulders, elbows and knees — is granted by statutes outside the one defining the practice or by loopholes in the main law, Smith said.

Find Drivers By Bus Drivers

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — About one-third of the Winston-Salem-Forsyth County school bus drivers whose records were checked in a random survey have one or more traffic violations, according to a Winston-Salem newspaper.

The Winston-Salem Journal reported in its Sunday editions that the violations include driving under the influence, reckless driving after drinking, running stop signs, running stop lights and speeding. None of the violations occurred while the driver was in a school bus and not all happened while the driver was employed by the school system, the paper said.

Jeff Laws, assistant director of transportation for the schools, told the newspaper that three of the drivers, including one convicted of drunken driving, had their bus driver certificates revoked and would be fired immediately.

Laws also said the school's transportation department was aware of some of the violations but receives no record of a driver's convictions outside the times he is employed as a bus driver.

Forgotten Heroes Are Finally Being Honored

By KILEY ARMSTRONG
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The Hell Fighters from Harlem are in their 80s now and their country has started to notice them.

Denied the right to fight beside white Americans in World War I, the six surviving members of the 369th Infantry Regiment were honored Sunday at a Memorial Day ceremony in Harlem. The honorees said it was about time.

When the United States denied the regiment combat duty, France welcomed the black soldiers.

Nicknamed the Hell Fighters by the enemy, the unit was cited for bravery 11 times and won the French Croix de Guerre, the highest military honor.

"Our country sold us like slaves to the French," said Dr. Charles Turner, 87. "And we got more medals in our outfit than the whole doggone U.S. contingent put together."

In France, the Hell Fighters were treated "like first-class citizens," Turner said as he posed for photos with French Brig. Gen. Michel de Noray near a banner that read, "Harlem to the Rhine."

De Noray attended the ceremony to reward the French medal of honor to the remaining soldiers on the 65th anniversary of American involvement in the war. "We thank them again for all they did," he said.

The Hell Fighters was the first Allied Army regiment to reach the Rhine and the first combat regiment to arrive home and march up Fifth Avenue.

The unit spent 191 days in the trenches, longer than any other American unit, and lost 1,500 soldiers, nearly half its strength, at the battles of Champagne-Marne and Meuse-Argonne.

But it never lost a foot of ground or a single prisoner, and had 171 officers and enlisted men who were individually decorated, according to National Guard historians.

The Hell Fighters worked as stevedores before the French agreed to use them as soldiers, said Lt. Col. Nathaniel James, the regiment's current commander.

"The French, having dealt closely with African soldiers, didn't have the prejudice of Americans," James said.

"The Hell Fighters have never gotten proper recognition for their deeds until now," he added. "More and more, black soldiers are coming into the history books. When I was in school, it wasn't there."

At least two of the survivors were wounded during World War I. Turner proudly tells onlookers of the scrap medal lodged behind his ear and Melville Miller was wounded when a shell exploded.

"It killed five or six men," said Miller, 82. "It was hell, but it's over and done."

Organized in 1916, the regiment served under the command of Col. William Hayward, a white Nebraskan, and was brigaded with the 16th French Division of the Allied Forces.

The other surviving Hell Fighters are former U.S. Rep. Hamilton Fish of New York, who served as a white officer with the group, William Isles, Melvin Fisher and Robert Thompson.

For Miller, the ceremony brought back some harsh memories. "There were days in those holes when we had nothing to eat," he recalled. "I think it's important that they remember us," he said. "But I think it would be better that they remember not to have any more wars."

Recreation

Cited By Mayor

Mayor Percy Cox proclaimed June as National Recreation and Park Month and urged "all citizens to participate in the many programs of recreation offered by Greenville" during the observance.

"We are more aware than ever before of the important role which leisure activities will have in our future lives and in the lives of our children," the mayor said.

He said the city "offers an impressive array of recreation facilities and leisure activities for the benefit of all our citizens."

The Recreation and Parks Commission joins the National Recreation and Parks Association in designating June "to highlight the growing need of our citizens for constructive, creative and meaningful free-time activities," Cox said.

Arms Talks...

land-based or submarine-fired missiles or long-range bombers.

Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee on May 11 that the chances of ratifying SALT II were "dead" and he urged the nation to rally around Reagan's proposals for arms reduction.

In his speech, without mentioning the Soviets by name, Reagan referred to "potential adversaries" and said:

"We must strive to speak of them not belligerently, but firmly and frankly. That is why we must never fail to note, as frequently as necessary, the wide gulf between our codes of morality. That is why we must never hesitate to acknowledge the irrefutable difference between our view of man as master of the state and their view of man as servant of the state."

Reagan said the United States must never underestimate "the seriousness of their aspirations to global expansion. The risk is the very freedom that has been so dearly won."

The president, who departs Wednesday for a four-nation European journey, said that "honesty of mind" can lead to fruitful negotiations and "build a foundation upon which treaties between our nations can stand and last — treaties that can someday bring about a reduction in the terrible arms of destruction, arms that threaten us with war even more terrible than those that have taken the lives of the Americans we honor today."

Sen. John Warner, R-Va., hailed Reagan's announcement, saying, "The president has kept his pledge to commence arms reduction talks promptly. The greater the unity of the American people behind our president, the stronger will be the hand of his negotiators on opening day."

Spain Added To NATO

WASHINGTON (AP) — Spain's entry into the North Atlantic Treaty Organization makes it the 16th member and the first country to join in about 27 years.

Spain formally became a member of the alliance on Sunday when officials from the country presented the State Department with documents indicating all procedures necessary for entry had been met.

Sunday's action cleared the way for Prime Minister Leopoldo Calvo Sotelo to attend the NATO summit next week in Bonn.

Formal steps toward Spain's membership began in December 1981 when an invitation was extended by the organization. Acceptance by Spain followed, then ratification by each of the NATO members. Greece was the last country to ratify, said State Department spokeswoman Sondra McCarty.

Under treaty procedures, the final step in a country's entry is to deposit ratification documents with the United States in Washington.

The organization was created after World War II as a defense system among Western allies. West Germany in 1955 was the 15th member to join.

Spain adds its 255,000-man army, its strategic naval bases and its modern air force to the organization's defense structure. Spain's navy, with eight submarines, 11 destroyers and 16 frigates will significantly boost NATO forces in the Mediterranean Sea. The Spanish air force has 177 American and French-built combat aircraft.

Some 10,000 In Attendance At Ceremonial

Sudan Temple Shrine Potentate Jimmy Brewer of Greenville said this morning that an estimated 10,000 persons were in Greenville Friday and Saturday for the Shriners spring ceremonial.

Among the 160 candidates inducted into the Shrine Saturday were U.S. Sen. Jesse Helms, Greenville Mayor Percy Cox, East Carolina University Vice-Chancellor for Business Affairs C. G. Moore and former General Assembly member Tom White of Kinston, Brewer said. He added that the youngest candidate Saturday was 21 years old while the oldest was 88.

Brewer said the oldest Shriner attending the ceremonial was 97-year-old Dr. E. L. Henderson.

The largest public event during the two-day session was a noon parade Saturday through downtown Greenville which included some 25 Sudan Temple parade units and 500 Shriners.

Brewer, expressing his thanks for the cooperation given by area citizens, said there were no problems housing those attending the ceremonial. He said local area motels were "contracted for last November," and many of the Shriners were "guests in... homes."

"We fed between 4,000 and 5,000 ourselves," according to Brewer. The rest were served at local area restaurants.

The two-day ceremonial was held in Greenville to honor 87-year-old David Julian Whichard Jr., chairman of the board of The Daily Reflector, a Mason since 1916 and a member of Sudan Temple since 1945.

Rose Kennedy Said 'Stable' In Hospital

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Rose Kennedy, the 91-year-old matriarch of one of America's most prominent political families, has been admitted to St. Mary's Hospital for observation and tests, a hospital spokeswoman says.

"She's feeling much better, we're pleased to report," nursing supervisor Ruth Hardy said at midmorning. "She is in stable condition and is resting comfortably."

She said a series of evaluation tests were planned for later in the day, but said she did not know when the results might be known or made public.

Mrs. Kennedy was brought to the hospital Sunday night from her Palm Beach home by family members. "Apparently, she just wasn't feeling well," said Mrs. Hardy.

Mrs. Kennedy was hospitalized last November after complaining of chest pains during Mass at St. Edward's Roman Catholic Church in Palm Beach.

Her physician, Dr. Robert Gerard, said at the time that Mrs. Kennedy was suffering from angina, a condition that can cause pain around the heart when the heart receives too little oxygen.

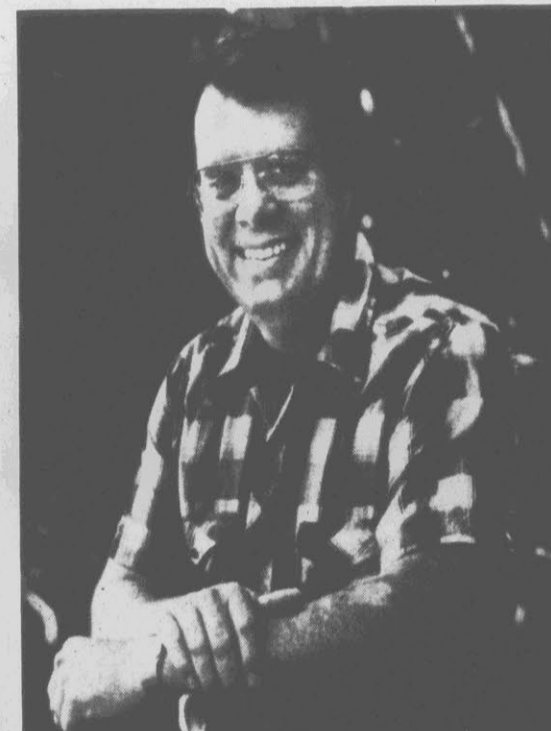

Mrs. Kennedy is the mother of U.S. Sen. Edward Kennedy and of former President John Kennedy and former U.S. Sen. Robert Kennedy, both of whom were assassinated.

Three Attend

Energy Meet

Three Greenville people recently attended a Community Energy Management conference in Baltimore, Md.

The three are Sam Arnett, chairman of the Greenville Energy Commission; Keith Spivey, program coordinator for Phase Two of the City's Comprehensive Community Energy Management Program; and Faryce Goode, city planner. Titled "Innovated Strategies for the Eighties," the conference was sponsored by the National Community Energy Management Center for persons involved in planning, financing and directing innovative energy-saving and energy-producing activities in U.S. cities.

Arnett said the Greenville Energy Commission is investigating proposals that would reduce the amount of energy consumed locally and also proposals to produce energy locally. He said the work already accomplished in Greenville (Beat the Peak and Proposition E) makes the city a leader in the nation. "But the city must implement more comprehensive plans to cope with the continuing rise in energy costs and possible supply disruptions," he added.

The city announced that the guests on its radio program, "City Hall Notes," this week will be Willie Nelms, director of Sheppard Memorial Library, and Jim Parker, recreation coordinator of the Recreation and Parks Department.

Nelms will discuss the proposed budget for the library and Parker will talk about the recreation department's swimming program.

WILLIAMSTON, N.C. (AP) — Edgar Jarvis Gurganus, chairman of the North Carolina Inmate Grievance Commission, former state senator and past president of the state Jaycees, died Sunday in Nags Head at the age of 61.

Gurganus, a lifelong resident of Williamston and a graduate of Wake Forest College School of Law, was born Jan. 15, 1921.

In a career of public service that spanned nearly three decades, Gurganus served as a member of the Martin County Bar Association, the N.C. Junior Chamber of Commerce, the N.C. Prison Commission and the N.C. Commission of Correction.

Gurganus also served as director of the N.C. Jaycees from 1954-55 and as a state senator from 1963-69, representing Beaufort, Dare, Hyde, Martin and Tyrrell counties.

Gurganus was appointed as a member of the first Inmate Grievance Commission in 1974 and was appointed chairman in 1981. Mainly because of his efforts, a legislative subcommittee in April 1981 decided not to abolish the commission.

Gurganus is survived by his wife, Anne Beasley Gurganus; sons, Ed Gurganus and Ray Gurganus; of Williamston; brothers, John Hatton Gurganus of Williamston and Eli Gurganus of Virginia Beach, Va.; and sisters, Mildred Waters of Windsor, Elsie Hatch of Virginia Beach, Va., and Faye Ferris of Williamston.

Johncock Outruns Mears To Capture Indy 500

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The tower at the head of the track ticked off the laps as the brave men who pilot racing cars at blurring speeds zoomed around the oval, setting the stage for the closest, most dramatic finish in the history of the Indianapolis 500.

With a dozen laps to go Sunday, Gordon Johncock's Wildcat Cosworth was leading the race and Rick Mears, driving a Penske Ford, was chasing him. The difference between the two cars was 12 seconds and 350,000 frenzied fans, their cheers almost drowned out by the ear-splitting sounds of the engines, were about to witness Johncock survive the most exciting stretch duel in the 66 years that cars have been hurtling around this storied course.

It takes 200 trips around the 2.5-mile Indy track to finish this gruelling test of man and machine and at 190 laps, Mears, operating the fastest car in the field, had Johncock in his sights, trailing the leader by 10 seconds.

Mears had qualified his car at an astounding 207.044 mph, and now, driving with what the auto racing fraternity calls "pedal to metal," he made his move, slicing the distance between them as the tower ticked off the laps.

Johncock worried about those crucial final dozen laps. "I gondered if I might blow a tire or run out of fuel, or some other crazy thing like has happened so many times in the past," he said. "As long as I kept running, I was all right. I knew I had to run all out."

He had finished in the top 10 in this test four straight times and had won it in 1973 in a rain-shortened race, getting the news while his car sat in the pits, waiting for a rainstorm to pass. This time, though, Johncock would have to earn his victory on the track, fighting off a frantic stretch drive by Mears.

At 192 laps, the gap was 8.5 seconds. At 193, it was 6.5. At 194, it was 6. At 195, it was 5.

As each lap was completed, Mears kept creeping closer and closer to Johncock, the Penske Ford responding majestically to its driver's demands.

"I was trying everything I could think of," said Mears, "but he had a lot better straightaway speed. I could catch him in the corners but I couldn't hold it."

Johncock, who had battled so hard to get in front, was not surrendering to the pressure Mears applied.

"No way I was going to back off," he said. So the two-car duel continued as the laps on the tower fell one by one. At 196 laps, the gap was 3 seconds. At 197, it was 1.67. At 198, it was .56.

By now, the crowd was on its feet, howling at the sight of these two magnificent drivers dueling for the most prestigious title in their sport, battling man-to-man with the miles running out on them.

As they crossed the row of bricks that marks the start-finish line at Indy for the last time, they were just about parallel. The race would be decided in the final lap — 2.5 pulsating miles, one more trip around the oval that has recorded its share of heartaches and thrills in its storied history. This was going to be one to remember — the 45-year-old Johncock, one of seven drivers who have accounted for 14 victories in the last 16 Indys, against the 30-year-old Mears, who won here in 1979 in only his second try.

"I really didn't know where he was," Johncock confessed. "I couldn't see him in my mirror. I didn't know if he was behind me or to the side of me."

It hardly mattered. Johncock knew Mears was close enough to take the race he had been favored to win. He knew he would have to hold that Penske Ford off in that last lap.

As the white flag signaling the final lap was displayed, the

17-Year-Old Downs Lendl In Five Sets

PARIS (AP) — Mats Wilander, a 17-year-old tennis sensation from Sweden, doesn't like to encourage comparisons between himself and fellow Swede Bjorn Borg.

"You shouldn't compare me to Borg — he's the best player ever," the blond, smiling Wilander said after he toppled No. 2 seed Ivan Lendl Sunday at the $917,000 French Open tennis championships.

Wilander battled the 22-year-old Czech for four hours on the slow clay courts of Roland Garros Stadium in posting a 4-6, 7-5, 3-6, 6-4, 6-2 victory that moved him into the quarterfinals.

"It was the first time I've ever played five sets in a tournament," said Wilander, who started playing tennis when he was 7 years old. "This was my biggest win ever."

Wilander has climbed from 283rd to 18th place in the computer rankings in the past 18 months. Lendl, who lost to Borg in the finals at last year's French Open, is ranked third.

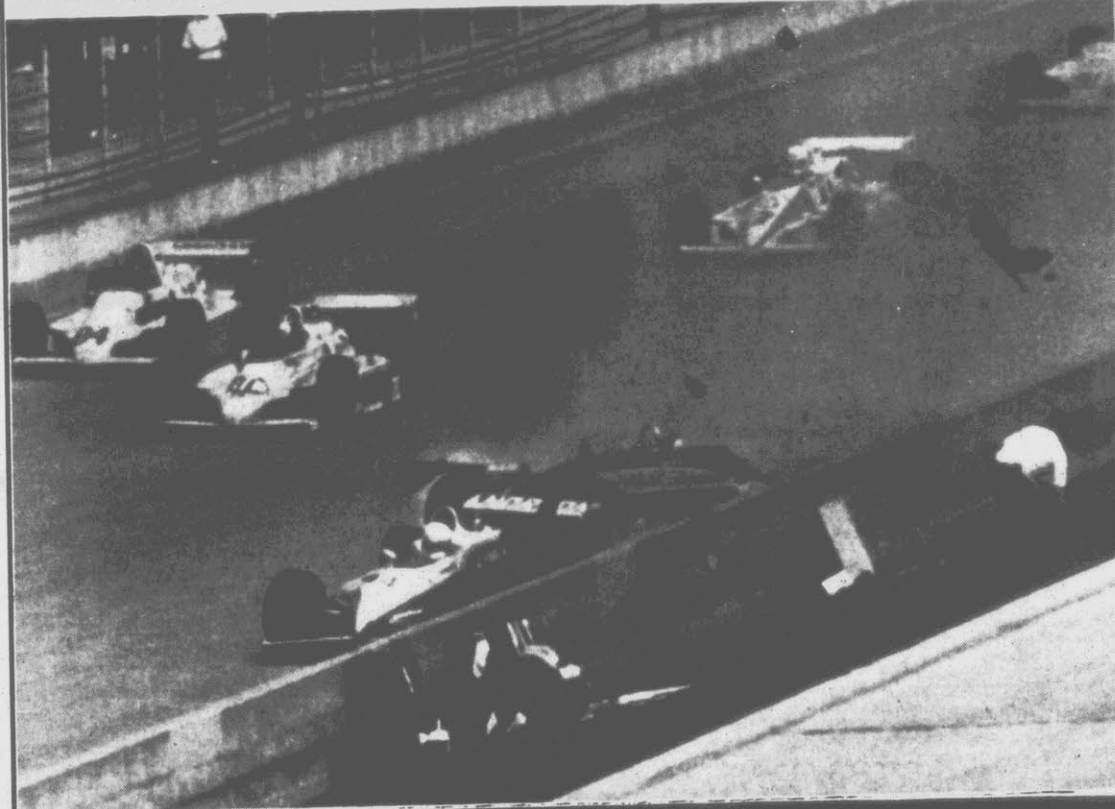

The 25-year-old Borg, who is now ranked fifth, decided not to try for a seventh title in Paris this year. He canceled all of his 1982 Grand Prix tournaments last month following a dispute with the Pro Council over how many events in which he should be required to play this year.

Borg became the youngest player to win the French Open when he took his first title here in 1974 six days after his 18th birthday.

Wilander celebrates his 18th birthday on August 22. When asked how it felt to upset Lendl at the age of 17, he said, "It's the happiest moment of my life"

Bonnett Holds On To Win World 600

HARRISBURG (AP) — Neil Bonnett was having trouble, breathing, Bill Elliott was on the verge of fainting and a record crowd of 132,000 was on its feet to witness a battle to the wire in the World 600 stock car race.

Bonnett withstood extreme heat and two passing attempts on the final lap to hold off Elliott by 1 1/2-car lengths Sunday and win the $455,000 NASCAR Grand National event at the Charlotte Motor Speedway.

Bonnett took the upper hand in the battle of Ford Thunderbirds by slipping past Elliott with 12 laps remaining in the 400-lap race. Elliott led briefly one lap from the finish but Bonnett got back on top and shut the door twice in the final mile.

"It got so hot in the car I was gasping for air," said Bonnett, who averaged 130.058 mph for the 600-mile ride over the 1.5-mile high-banked superspeedway. "It felt like a torch on us."

"With about 100 laps to go, I felt like I was going to go," Elliott said. "But circumstances had me leading the race. When you lead the race, you don't want to go out."

The temperature at race time was 92 degrees and temperatures reached 135 degrees inside the cars. It bothered most drivers, forcing many to seek relief.

"My hands were so hot I couldn't hold the steering wheel," said Connie Saylor, who finished 15th. "My hands were sticking to the wheel and pulling the skin off."

The victory, worth $60,650 to Bonnett, was the 11th in the career of the 35-year-old driver from Hueytown, Ala. Elliott, winless in 75-Grand National starts, matched his best previous showing, a second-place finish in the 1979 Southern 500.

The end of the world's longest stock car race also brought to an end an extremely long day for Elliott.

"I got up at 5 a.m. to work on the car," he said. "We changed a few things and it paid off."

It was Bonnett's 10th career superspeedway victory and his first ever at Charlotte. It also was Bonnett's first victory of the year in the Wood Brothers' car. Last year he put it on the pole but crashed while he had the lead on the 210th lap.

"Bill did one hell of a job," said Bonnett of his rival from Dawsonville, Ga. "His car ran exceptional and his talent showed. I'm glad today that people got to see how capable his is."

Included among the drivers who gave way to relief help were the father-son duo of Richard and Kyle Petty. Lennie Pond drove Richard Petty's car for 28 laps, but had a difficult time reaching the pedals. Donnie Allison, who was severely injured in the race last year, finished the ride in eighth place.

Kyle Petty was relieved by Tim Richmond after experiencing severe cramps in his left leg. Petty was treated at the track hospital and released. Richmond, who like Pond and Allison went out earlier in the race, drove the car to a 17th-place finish.

The race was the most competitive in 23 years. There were 47 lead changes among a record-tying 12 drivers.

Bobby Allison finished third, a lap behind the leaders while Cale Yarborough, Buddy Baker and Jody Ridley finished two laps back. Ricky Rudd, Richard Petty, Dave Marcis and Ron Bouchard rounded out the top 10.

Polesitter David Pearson, running in the race for the first time in two years, finished 21st, just ahead of defending Grand National champion Darrell Waltrip, who crashed on lap 354. Current Winston Cup points leader, Terry Labonte was 34th in the field of 42.

There were 10 caution periods for 62 laps. The worst accidents occurred early, with the first involving five cars on the fifth lap.

76ers Whip Lakers, Tie Championship Series

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia 76ers preached what they practiced and as a result are tied at one victory each with the Los Angeles Lakers in the National Basketball Association championship playoff.

The 76ers, led by the irrepresible Julius "Dr. J." Erving, snapped a 12-game Lakers' winning streak — a record nine in this year's playoffs — with a 110-94 triumph Sunday.

The loss also ended Los Angeles' NBA mark of consecutive playoff victories on the road — dating to 1980 — at seven.

The best-of-seven-game series now shifts to Los Angeles for Games 3 and 4 Tuesday and Thursday nights, with the fifth game scheduled here next Sunday.

"We worked hard the last two days in practice on stopping their trap plays and we did," said 76ers' coach Billy Cunningham.

Erving, who scored 24 points, grabbed 14 rebounds and handed out three assists, agreed with his coach.

"We learned (in practice) how to deal with their traps."

"We exposed them in the first half, and forced adjustments," Erving said.

"We have taught ourselves how to beat the Lakers"

The Lakers' traps consist of double-teaming the ball. It forces the opposition into turnovers and keys the L.A. fastbreak.

Philadelphia shut the trap doors by spreading around the court and making quick passes, then patiently waiting for the open shot.

It bordered on a zone offense.

The 76ers took the lead at 10-9 and never trailed. They opened a 34-26 first quarter lead, and upped it to 57-44 at halftime.

They led by 11 at halftime in the first game and by 15 with record nine in the third period before falling apart as the Lakers outscored them 40-9 and took a 16-point lead.

Not Sunday.

The Lakers never got closer than six in the third period, and eight in the final quarter. The Sixers had a 19-10 spurt in the third as Andrew Toney hit five of seven for 10 of his 12 points.

Toney also contributed 11 assists in the game.

The Lakers scored six straight points to make it, 98-90, with 6:30 remaining as the sellout crowd of 18,364 stirred uneasily.

But the 76ers went on a 12-4 spurt to keep the game in hand.

In addition to Erving, the 76ers got 19 points and eight assists from Maurice Cheeks, and 12 points from Caldwell Jones. Bobby Jones and Richardson had 10 each.

Emotional Victory Has Floyd Bubbly

DUBLIN, Ohio (AP) — Ray Floyd believes his Memorial golf tournament victory may have his attitude moving in the right direction.

"You get down on yourself," he said Sunday after his 16th professional career triumph, built on a two-shot margin. "You're playing well, but not performing. You get in a rut. When you're playing badly, everything upsets you. When you're playing good, you're bubbly," said Floyd. "I've played what I thought were good rounds of golf and I couldn't put a number on the board."

The 39-year-old veteran of two decades on the Tour was in such a bubbly mood he bought two cases of champagne for the media from his winner's check of $63,000.

"It was a very emotional win for me," he said before a toast with Jack Nicklaus, the tournament's host.

"I'm delighted to see any great player win this tournament. Raymond's record speaks for itself," Nicklaus said of Floyd's first victory this year.

His 72-hole total of 281 was one stroke shy of David Graham's tournament record and marked the first time he had finished higher than eighth on the difficult 7,116-yard Muirfield Village layout.

"I was very much in control. I think that's why I was successful this time," he said.

Floyd, a former PGA and Masters winner, moved into the lead to stay with a 20-foot downhill birdie putt on the 14th hole.

He followed with another birdie two holes later, for a two-shot lead that runners-up Gil Morgan, Roger Maltbie, Peter Jacobsen and Wayne Levi could not overcome.

Maltbie and Morgan started the cloudy, windy day tied for the lead. But they closed with 2-over-par 74s playing in the last three holes with Floyd.

Levi finished with a 70 and Jacobsen matched par of 72 to tie Maltbie and Morgan at 283, 5-under-par.

The four players, tying for second place, picked up checks for $23,100 each.

Bruce Lietzke and Dan Pohl shared sixth at 284, Jay Haas, Scott Simpson and Tom Purtzer eighth at 285. Nicklaus was in a cluster of five players at 286 on the course that he designed.

Tom Watson, second on the current money list, closed with 70-287. Masters champion Craig Stadler, No. 1 in 1982 winnings, had 76-296.

For Maltbie, it was a bitter disappointment. He had posted a Memorial record of 10-under-par 134 and was six shots ahead at the midway point.

Title Hopes End For Jamesville

RALEIGH — Jamesville coach Ron Davenport said no one expected his Bullets to come this far. However, that was little comfort for Davenport after his team dropped a 9-7 decision to Cardinal Gibbons Saturday night in the semifinals of the state 1-A playoffs.

The game had originally been scheduled for Friday night but had been postponed because of rain.

"Nobody in Jamesville expected this team to go as far as it did," Davenport said. "We just got beat by a better team. If we played 'em again it might be different."

Jamesville scored three runs in the top of the fourth to tie the game for the second time, but Cardinal Gibbons came back with a run in the fifth and sixth to pull away for the win.

With one gone, Troy Butler reached on an error and Bill Axberg walked. A sacrifice bunt moved both runners up a base before John Rucchio, the #9 hitter, singled to score Butler and give Cardinal Gibbons a 8-7 lead.

Three straight singles in the sixth brought home another run and gave the home squad a 9-7 lead and, one half-inning later, the win.

Cardinal Gibbons outhit the bullets, 12 to three and made five errors to the Bullets' two.

Cardinal Gibbons will play Edneyville for the 1-A title.

"We felt like it was pretty good to get only three hits and score seven runs. We did a good job there," Davenport said. "When the other team outthits you twelve to three they're supposed to win 10 to 2 or eight to 2."

"But we never gave up," Davenport added. "We got down but the boys came back."

Jamesville, which ends the season at 19-4, took a 2-0 lead in the top of the first. Keith Waters and Richie Ange reached on an error to begin the inning. Matthew Moore came in to run for Waters and stole second before Ange reached base.

Ground outs by Carl Ange and Jeff Rogers scored Waters and Richie Ange for a 2-0 lead.

Cardinal Gibbons came back in the bottom of the inning for four runs, keyed by a two-run home run by Mitta.

The Bullets tied the game in the third when Waters doubled home Moore, who had walked, and Rogers doubled home Waters. But, once again, Cardinal Gibbons came back, this time scoring three runs in the bottom of the inning to go up, 7-4, after three.

The Bullets, however, matched their opponent's comeback with three runs in the fourth.

With one gone and Kevin Waters on first with a fielder's choice, Moore and Keith Waters walked. Richie Ange then reached on an error to score Kevin Waters.

Carl Ange then walked to force home Moore to make it 7-6. Then came a play Davenport said determined the game's outcome. Rogers hit a hooking line drive down the leftfield line that the leftfielder made a running catch of to prevent any runs from scoring.

"He just made an outstanding catch," Davenport said. "We would have scored three runs on it."

As it was, the Bullets got one more run when Rex Bell reached on an error to score Keith Waters to tie the game at 7-7.

Cardinal Gibbons rallied again — and this time the Bullets were unable to counter as Steve Davis came on to pitch 3½ innings of no-hit relief for Gibbons.

Davis struck out the side in the fifth and struck out three in the sixth, though on one of the SOs the batter reached when the catcher missed the ball.

Keith Waters was two for four to lead Jamesville. Steve Davis and Mitta were both three for four for Gibbons. Pete Davis was two for four.

Johncock Captures Indy 500...

two cars were virtually side by side. Now they flew into the first turn and Johncock pulled in front ever so slightly and the cars went hurtling toward the second corner.

Into the backstretch, Mears stayed right on Johncock's tail. The duel stayed that close around the third and fourth turns and into the final straightaway. And they crossed the finish line that way, separated by 16 one-hundredths of a second, a blink of the eye worth about $300,000 to Johncock.

"One more lap and it could have been sixteen-hundredths of a second the other way," said a disappointed Mears, who led for 71 of the 200 laps.

Johncock, who led 54 laps, had moved in front with 100 miles to go and then got an important edge on Mears when both cars made their last pit stop to fuel up for the final, fateful duel. Mears pulled in at 184 laps but got caught behind rookie Herm

Johnson's car and took 20 seconds in the pits — far too long. Johncock, who went in at 185 laps, needed only 13 seconds for that final stop.

"I got behind a slower car as I pulled into the pits for the last time," Mears said. "He should have pulled if the side and kept the middle lane open. But he stayed in the middle and I hit him."

The collision was minor — not enough to damage either car — but enough to delay Mears and, he said, cost him crucial time.

"That could have given me another three or four seconds," Mears said. "If I had another three or four seconds, we could have caught Gordy."

Mears also was involved in the most frightening moment of the race, a crackup which occurred before the event ever began. It eliminated four cars on the pace lap and delayed the start of the race by some 45 minutes.

Mears, who captured the pole position on the first day of qualifying, was setting the pace as the cars approached the start. Then Kevin Cogan, his Penske teammate who was driving alongside Mears in the front row, veered only yards from the starting line, derailling A.J. Foyt, who was racing at Indy for the 25th time, and bouncing back across the track and taking 1969 winner Mario Andretti with him.

Foyt repaired his car and returned to the race with the crowd roaring for the sentimental favorite. The four-time champion gave them more to cheer for when he dashed in front and held the lead for the first 22 laps of the race, setting a blistering pace of 194.342 on the first tour of the oval.

But his car was giving him trouble and after eight pit stops, the veteran was forced out after 95 laps. "The handling was very poor all day," he said.

Drivers Say Cogan, Mears To Blame For Wreck At Start

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The 1981 Indianapolis 500 had two finishes. This year, the May auto racing classic had two starts.

A five-car pileup just before Sunday's Indy 500 began knocked four drivers — including veteran Mario Andretti and front row qualifier Kevin Cogan — out of the race and delayed the start for nearly an hour.

Several drivers, including Andretti, blamed either Cogan or his teammate Rick Mears, the pole-sitter with a top qualifying speed of 207.004 mph, for the mishap.

Before the race was over, the accusations and questions began.

Was Mears going too slow at the start? Was Cogan driving too wildly or did something in his car break?

No one was hurt in the mishap just before the starting line. The race hadn't even begun. The green starting flag hadn't been dropped.

The 33-car field was just completing the last of three parade laps when up to five cars bumped, collided or nicked each other.

Besides Andretti, Cogan and rookies Roger Mears and Dale Whittington had their race ended early.

Veteran A.J. Foyt, beginning his 25th Indy 500, also was involved in the mishap, but after some repairs was able to return his car to the starting line. Foyt dropped out halfway through the race with gear problems.

Andretti called the accident "the biggest disappointment I can remember."

On the final warmup lap, Andretti was knocked out when Cogan veered and struck the wheel of Foyt. Andretti, trying to avoid the crash, turned his car into the wall.

"That's what happens when you have children doing a man's job," an infuriated Andretti said, referring to the 26-year-old Cogan, after the crackup.

"I had a car come in front of me with no place to go," said

Andretti. "It looked like Cogan was looking for a little bit of trouble. He did exactly what he's not supposed to do. He crowded Foyt. He couldn't handle the responsibility of the front row. (Car owner) Roger Penske has a car that's too good for him."

Just before Cogan's car swerved, Mears' car slid over toward him, television footage showed later.

In the 1981 Indy 500, Andretti was awarded first place when Bobby Unser was penalized one lap for passing cars during a yellow caution light as he exited from the pits. However, several months later, the U.S. Auto Club Appeals Board reversed the penalty, again dropping Andretti to second and awarding Unser the victory.

After the race, Cogan, in his second year as an Indianapolis qualifier, said mechanical failure was to blame for the mishap.

"I was accelerating smoothly with Rick. We were side by side and anticipating the green, when the car jerked very, very hard to the right — unstopably hard," said Cogan.

Two other drivers Johnny Rutherford and Josele Garza blamed Cogan's teammate, Mears, for the near disaster.

Rutherford, the three-time Indy winner who started from the fourth row, said "the pace was extremely slow, way too slow. Rick fell too far behind the pace car. I'm sure Cogan was in low gear. When they let us go, he leaped on the throttle and the car just jumped sideways and let go."

But Cogan said, "I really don't know what happened." Cogan, a second-year driver, started from the front row of Sunday's race after posting the second-fastest qualification time ever for the race, 204.082.

"I'd have to take a look at the film," he said in a brief news conference outside his garage in Gasoline Alley.

Garza, last year's rookie of the year at Indianapolis, said Cogan was "a victim of circumstance" and blamed Mears, the fastest qualifier, for the accident.

"It was doomed to happen," said Garza, who started from the 33rd position. He also said Mears was going to slow. "It's not the first time it happened. He started us too slow at Phoenix and at Atlanta. Unfortunately we don't have a five-gear box like Rick Mears. Instead of speeding up, he slows down and then pops into a very good start, but everybody else starts bunching up. We were lucky we got through Phoenix and Atlanta safely."

Garza, who said he was not bitter, had words of advice for Mears, the 1978 Indy 500 winner.

"Be fair. Build up the speed or everybody else is gonna be in a wreck."

Mears defended his start, however, maintaining the guidelines laid down in the drivers' meeting that morning.

"It doesn't matter what the pace is. They (race officials) said not to speed up, then slow down and speed up again. There are some people who have got to blame somebody for everything. I didn't have any problem with it."

Edenton Blasts Post 94

Memorial Weekend proved something less than a good weekend for the Snow Hill American Legion team.

Post 94 opened Legion play Saturday night with a 9-7 loss to Rocky Mount and then dropped a 19-0 decision to Edenton Sunday afternoon.

The losses leave Post 94 at 0-2 this season.

In yesterday's contest, Edenton scored four runs in the first inning on four hits and never looked back. Post 94 walked 10, hit three more batters and made seven errors to help Edenton.

Edenton scored five runs in the fourth on two hits and added six more runs in the eighth — again on two hits. In Another Sixers' standout was seldom used center Earl Cureton, who played 15 minutes in relief of foul-plagued Caldwell Jones and Darryl Dawkins.

Cureton contributed eight rebounds, five on the offensive boards, and scored six points. He also handled Kareem Abdul-Jabbar about as well as you can play the 7-foot-2 Lakers' star.

Caldwell Jones said of Cureton: "In practice, he's a madman. He's always making you work. He's always sticking it to you. Today, (Sunday) he did just that."

Cureton said he knew what he had to do with Jones and Dawkins in foul trouble.

"I had to beat him (Abdul Jabbar) up and down the floor, stay in front of him, aggravate him," Cureton said.

Erving commented that he thought the Lakers were unprepared for Cureton.

"I don't think they even went over him in the scouting report," Erving suggested.

The Lakers' scoring was led by Abdul-Jabbar with 23 points. Magic Johnson collected 18, while Jamaal Wilkes, who scored 24 in game one, managed only 13.

Abdul-Jabbar had only seven rebounds. Johnson's 11 was the best for Los Angeles.

Lakers' Coach Pat Riley said he thought the game was still in the balance when his team got within eight in the final period.

"But it was Philadelphia's day. They played well and deserved to win," Riley said.

"We just didn't get the shots today (Sunday) that we normally get."

"But we're going home before a sellout crowd. It will be wild, and we'll have more confidence."

Wilkes observed, "it was a long afternoon. They needed to win. He (Erving) is their main man and he had a superb game."

Norm Nixon said the defeat "didn't do anything for us except make us hungrier for Tuesday."

Cardinals Nip Padres In 10th

By The Associated Press

Dan Iorg says that "calm, cool and collected" is not a description that can always be applied to the St. Louis Cardinals.

On Sunday, it certainly would have seemed out of place.

The Cardinals, shut out for eight innings, had to score three runs in the bottom of the ninth and three more with two out in the 10th inning to beat the San Diego Padres 6-5.

Yet, Iorg said the three adjectives could have been applied to him when he entered the game in the 10th as a pinch hitter with runners on first and second and two out. Two runs already had crossed the plate, tying the score 5-5 when Iorg, a lefty hitter, came up as the first hitter against right-hander Floyd Chiffer.

"I was calm. I was probably the calmest player out there," Iorg said. "When somebody else is up there, I'm really nervous..."

Iorg picked on a 1-1 delivery that he sent into center field for the game-winning single, and the Cards won for the fifth time in their past six games.

Tim Lollar, a rookie, and Gary Lucas were working on a four-hit shutout when St. Louis came to bat in the ninth, trailing 3-0. Lonnie Smith smacked an RBI double, another run scored on a ground ball and David Green forged the tie with a sacrifice fly.

In the top of the 10th, San Diego scored a pair on pinch-hitter Joe Lefebvre's double and a ground ball.

Dodgers 7, Cubs 0

Fernando Valenzuela tossed his first shutout of the year, scattering eight hits, Valenzuela, 7-4, struck out a season-high nine batters and got home-run support from Pedro Guerrero, who hit his 10th, and Steve Garvey, who blasted No. 3.

Reds 7, Expos 3

Mike Vail, Eddie Milner and Ron Oester homered to help the Cincinnati Reds snap Montreal's eight-game winning streak. Oester hit a solo homer in the third inning. Vail had a three-run shot in the seventh and Milner added a two-run homer in the eighth.

Montreal led 3-1, aided by Al Oliver's two-run homer, until Cincinnati scored four runs in the seventh. Dave Concepcion's RBI single preceded Vail's homer.

Mets 9, Astros 5

George Foster bashed his first home run at Shea Stadium since April 18, and New York pounded out 14 hits to win the final game of its three-game series with Houston. Hubie Brooks had four of the Mets' hits.

New York led 7-0 after two innings, scoring four in the first, two on Foster's sixth homer off Bob Knepper, who got just two outs in the game. The Mets added three more in the second as Brooks tripled.

Phillies 6, Braves 2

Steve Carlton posted his sixth victory in his past eight decisions as Philadelphia struck early against Atlanta. Gary Matthews' two-run double sparked a three-run first inning, and the Phillies scored three more in the fourth.

Pirates 7, Giants 6

Johnny Ray slugged a solo homer with one out in the bottom of the 13th inning to lift Pittsburgh over San Francisco. The Giants had tied the game with runs in the sixth and seventh innings, then went ahead 6-5 in the 11th on a sacrifice fly by Bob Brenly.

Yanks, Twins Get Different Bounces

By The Associated Press

The New York Yankees are getting all the good bounces these days — and the Minnesota Twins the bad ones.

"We're playing well. We're just not getting the breaks," said Minnesota Manager Billy Gardner after Sunday's 8-6 loss to the Yankees in 10 innings.

The latest bounce that broke the Twins' backs came in the eighth inning of the game at the Hubert H. Metrodome. The Twins had battled back from an early 6-0 deficit to pull within a run.

Facing Goose Gossage, the Yankees' top reliever, Gary Gaetti walked and Larry Milbourne singled. Then Gary Ward hit a ball into the right field corner that appeared likely to clear the bases.

But the ball bounced off the artificial turf and over the wall for a ground-rule double, allowing only one run to score. The Yankees got out of the inning, then won it in the 10th on Willie Randolph's run-scoring single and Oscar Gamble's RBI double.

"When things are going bad, nothing seems to work," said Gardner, whose Twins have lost 11 straight games and 16 of their last 17.

The Twins also had another chance to score after loading the bases one inning earlier, but Yankee first baseman John Mayberry made a saving catch of a liner by Randy Johnson, diving to his right and coming up with the ball.

"That was just another one," Gardner said.

It was the fourth straight time the Twins had lost either in the ninth or 10th inning. They've been victimized by late-game lightning by the Yankees three straight times.

"I like the ballclub to get used to winning like that," said Yankee Manager Gene Michael. "It gives us an edge. It helps."

After a slow start this year, the defending American League champions have won nine of their last 10 contests and are four games over .500.

Indians 4, White Sox 2

Andre Thornton hit a three-run homer and Toby Harrah added a solo shot to support Len Barker's nine-hit pitching and spark Cleveland over Chicago. It was the Indians' seventh straight victory.

Thornton hit his third-inning blast off White Sox starter Dennis Lamp, 4-1, to boost his AL RBI lead to 44. The homer was his 13th.

Harrah's seventh-inning homer, also off Lamp, was his 10th and enabled him to raise his batting average to .389. Barker, 6-2, struck out 10 and walked two to record his third complete game.

Brewers 7, Angels 3

Cecil Cooper capped a four-run rally with a two-run homer in the fifth inning to spark Milwaukee over California.

The Brewers erased a 3-0 deficit after getting just one hit through four innings off right-hander Bruce Kison, 4-1. Mark Brouhard doubled, took third on a single by Jim Gantner and scored on another double by Marshall Edwards. Roy Howell's sacrifice fly scored Gantner before Cooper slammed his sixth homer of the season, giving Milwaukee a 4-3 edge.

The Angels' runs off Jim Slaton, 4-1, came on Fred Lynn's solo homer in the second inning, his second, and a two-run blast in the fourth by Doug Cincies, his sixth.

Blue Jays 6, Orioles 0

Rookie Jim Gott and Roy Lee Jackson combined on a one-hitter and Damaso Garcia knocked in two runs, leading Toronto over Baltimore.

Gott, 2-1, fanned six batters and allowed only a fifth-inning single by Rick Dempsey before being lifted with a stiff right shoulder after issuing his fourth walk, to leadoff batter Terry Crowley in the seventh. Jackson, making his 17th appearance in Toronto's 46th game, recorded his fourth save.

Jim Palmer, 2-3, was the loser.

Rangers 8, Royals 1

Doc Medich scattered six hits and Billy Sample hit two home runs to lead Texas over Kansas City. Medich, 3-5, walked two and struck out two for his first complete game of the year.

The Rangers took charge early, moving to a 4-0 lead after three innings. Sample hit his first homer of the season leading off the first inning, then slugged his second in the eighth to cap the Rangers' scoring.

Tigers 5-3, A's 2-10

Alan Trammell broke a 1-1 tie with a two-run single in the fourth inning, sending Detroit over Oakland in the first game of their doubleheader. The Tigers managed only five hits altogether, but Oakland helped them with 10 walks.

Rickey Henderson stole four bases, raising his season total to 49 in 49 games, smashed three hits and drove in three runs to pace Oakland's second-game victory.

Mariners 2, Red Sox 1

Richie Zisk and Gary Garvey delivered run-scoring doubles after two were out in the ninth inning as Seattle rallied to beat Boston.

Boston's John Tudor, 4-3, walked leadoff batter Bobby Brown in the ninth, but was one out away from shutting out the Mariners when Zisk doubled home the tying run. Gray then belted reliever Mark Clear's first pitch for the game-winning hit.

The Red Sox had held a 1-0 lead by virtue of Jim Rice's first-inning single.

WEATHER FORECAST — The National Weather Service forecasts showers Tuesday for most of the southeast and from the central Gulf to the Great Lakes. Cool weather is due in the northern Plains, warm weather for most areas. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press
Stationary high pressure centered over the Atlantic was expected to make Memorial Day hot and humid, the National Weather Service reported this morning. Temperatures were expected to climb into the 80s across the mountains and into the 90s east of the mountains, with scattered thunderstorms developing during the afternoon.

Thunderstorms will proliferate across North Carolina tonight and Tuesday because of a cold front that will move slowly across the mountains into the Piedmont Tuesday.

The increase in thunderstorms and cloudiness Tuesday will cause temperatures to be a few degrees cooler than today. The most noticeable change in temperatures will come behind the cold front Wednesday and Thursday.

Skies were mostly Sunny Sunday afternoon. Scattered thunderstorms developed with most of them occurring across the sandhills and portions of the mountains, foothills and Piedmont.

Afternoon temperatures warmed into the 80s across the mountains where readings ranged from 81 at Spruce Pine to 89 at Murphy. East of the mountains temperatures warmed into the low to mid-90s for the most part. Exceptions were Cape Hatteras with 85 and Greensboro with 89. Hottest afternoon locations included New Bern with 96 followed by Goldsboro and Jacksonville with 94.

The extended forecast calls for clearing in the west and a chance of thunderstorms in the east Wednesday followed by fair skies and mild temperatures statewide Thursday.

Along the coast winds will be southwest 10 to 20 knots today and tonight. Southwesterly winds will increase to 15 to 25 knots Tuesday.

'Maverick' Rides Into Sunset

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — With the cancellation of "Maverick," the TV western has ridden into the sunset, with little chance to return.

For younger viewers, a western is not a show featuring blond surfers and bathing beauties on the California beaches. It's period-piece programming about the 19th century cop on the beat — the cowboy lawman.

People forget these shows once were the rage of network television. In the 1959-'60 season, there were an incredible 32 westerns on TV. With the demise of NBC's "Maverick," not a single western will be on the three networks' schedules next fall.

It seems violence from another era just won't wash, given the public can get megadoses of the real stuff on the news and modern police shows, along with simulated thrills and spills on youth-oriented shows like "Dukes of Hazzard."

For years, the debate raged on whether it's dangerous for kids to watch westerns, then act out fantasy games of cowboy shoot-'em-ups. But, with recent studies linking violence on TV and aggressive behavior on children, it seems worse that they watch modern urban warfare and reckless driving scenes.

In any case, today's viewers evidently prefer car chases to hijacked stagecoaches and gunman on horseback. "We're not fast in the same way that police shows have action," says Meta Rosenberg, executive producer of "Maverick." "Actually, with all our swindles and cons, we're more like the "Sting" than a John Wayne western."

But the spenders most attractive to advertisers weren't buying it. They never accepted James Garner returning to "Maverick." It seems that the now generation prefers reality to nostalgia.

NBC's "Maverick" was rated 31st among the shows in 1981-82, but it was 63rd among viewers aged 12-17, 58th among viewers aged 18-24 and 43rd among viewers aged 25-54. The show was most successful with people who remembered the original "Maverick" 25 years ago, ranking 14th among viewers over 50.

"These things run in cycles," says Ms. Rosenberg. "When I first did 'Ben Casey,' there were a glut of hospital shows. Westerns have a classic quality. They're for people wanting to go back in time. People respond to them, provided you can do them in a sophisticated way."

"Maverick," which is re-run on Tuesday night through the summer, was definitely a western with a contemporary theme. Garner's character, just as in the "Rockford Files," didn't take the world too seriously. To Maverick, life was one big game.

The public's rejection of the past wasn't the only thing plaguing "Maverick" and the western genre. With mini-cameras taking news viewers to the street for live reports and with cop shows like "Hill Street Blues" creating a gritty realism, the western was limited by its own authenticity requirements.

"When we do westerns, all our buildings have to be built and every extra has to be wardrobe," says Ms. Rosenberg. "It's much harder to construct our interior sets and much more expensive."

"If we shoot outside, it must look like 100 years ago. We can't have airplanes, telephone poles, power lines or TV antennas. We must lose an hour a day from our shooting schedule because of the airplanes."

Perhaps the mechanical age will hit animals the hardest. Actors can get other jobs, but what about the horses? Old shows, like the talking horse on "Mister Ed," are being replaced by programs glamorizing machines.

"Herbie, the Love Bug," about a Volkswagen was on CBS last season, and next year, NBC has "Knight Rider," about an indestructible car that features a talking computer.

One Is Injured In Accident

One person was reported injured and an estimated $4,200 property damage caused in three traffic collisions investigated by Greenville police Saturday.

Officers said Kim Nethercutt of 1805 Sulgrave Road was injured when the moped he was riding overturned about 4:22 p.m. on Greenville Boulevard, 10 feet north of the Adams Street intersection.

No damage resulted to the vehicle, officers noted.

Cars driven by Walter Lee Haddock of Route 3, Ayden, Dorothy Smith Gardner of Winterville, and Melvin Lee Stocks of 120 Greenway Apartments, collided about 11:45 a.m. at the intersection of Memorial Drive and Arlington Boulevard.

Investigators estimated damage from the collision at $1,000 to the Haddock car, $1,800 to the Gardner vehicle and $400 to the Stocks car.

A 2:15 a.m. mishap on Cotanche Street, 100 feet south of the Fourth Street intersection involved cars operated by Virgil Alfonza Gaddy of Pinehurst, Tapley Orman Johnson of 500 Elizabeth St., and Curtis Michael Warren of Tarboro.

Damage was estimated at $50 to the Gaddy car, $800 to the Johnson car and $150 to the Warren vehicle.

Two Wrecks Are Reported

An estimated $3,550 property damage resulted from two traffic collisions investigated by Greenville police Friday.

Officers said heaviest damage resulted from a 10 a.m. mishap at the intersection of Fifth and Cotanche Streets, involving vehicles driven by Johnny Jerome Turner of Fayetteville, Grover Edward Harris of Conley, Ga., and Phyllis Heath Hodges of 12 Glenwood Apartments.

Police, who charged Garris with failing to stop for a red light, estimated damage at $1,000 to the Turner car, $950 to the Hodges car and $100 to the Garris truck.

Investigators reported Donna Lee Froehling of Route 5, Greenville, was injured when the car she was driving overturned at the intersection of Greenville Boulevard and Charry Court Drive about 4:10 p.m.

Damage to the vehicle was estimated at $1,500.

Six Teachers At Workshop

Six teachers from Pitt County have been selected to attend a workshop on the use of microcomputers in the teaching of mathematics, science, and computer-programming.

Selected are Claudia Coulter and Nancy Wynne of Rose High School; Judith Mewborn of Aycock Junior High School; Mary Warren; Mitzi Woods of A.G. Cox Grammar School and Emily Pascasio of Greenville Middle School.

The two-week-long workshop is being conducted by the faculty of the North Carolina School of Science and Mathematics on the school's campus in Durham.

Reappointment Made To Board

Dr. Edward W. Markowski of Greenville has been reappointed by Gov. Jim Hunt to the North Carolina Marital and Family Therapy Certification Board to serve through Sept. 30, 1985.

The seven-member board, all appointed by the governor, certifies marital and family therapists.

Q.1—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
AK1095 AQ1076 485
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♦ Pass 1 ♦ Pass
2 ♣ Pass 3 ♦ Pass

What action do you take?
A.—It is not our practice to sit for partner's low-level penalty doubles of an overall when we have opened a distributional hand that included a void in the enemy suit. Therefore, our recommendation is to bid two diamonds. Don't jump shift, because you do not have enough for game unless partner can raise one of your suits voluntarily.

Q.2—Both vulnerable, as South with 90 on score you hold:
KJ1073 1098 43 4854
Partner opens the bidding with one heart. What action do you take?

A.—Even though one heart is enough for rubber, it is doubtful that the opponents will let the game go by default. Therefore, we would like to get in a bid while the price is cheap. Bid one spade, even if only to make the opponents think that we might hold something. Two hearts is a close second.

Q.3—East West vulnerable, as South you hold:
83 AJ9 AKQJ10762
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♣ Pass 1 ♦ Pass

What do you bid now?
A.—You would like to make some forcing bid, but no good one is available. The only solution is to jump to three clubs, even though that is a decided underbid. Technically, that is not forcing, but the bidding is unlikely to die there. It sounds as if partner has quite a good hand because the opponents, despite marked length in the major suits, couldn't interfere at the one level.

Q.4—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
4Q4 A7 AJ754 4AJ93

The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♦ Pass 1 ♦ Pass
2 ♣ Pass 3 ♦ Pass

What do you bid now?
A.—With all first-round controls except in the suit bid by partner, you should not overlook slam possibilities. We suggest you make a cue-bid of three hearts. Partner's next bid might put you in a better position to determine the final contract.

Q.5—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
4AJ3 4KJ8 4AKQ1095 45

The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♦ Pass 1 ♥ 1 ♦
What do you bid now?
A.—Even if partner is dead minimum for his response, with your powerhouse the prospects for game somewhere are very bright. Your first duty is to alert partner to your strength. You do so by cue-bidding two spades. That should facilitate getting to the correct game (diamonds, hearts or no trump are all possible), or even to slam if partner has the right cards.

Q.6—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
4J972 4KJ9 4KJ985 44

The bidding has proceeded:
East South West North
Pass Pass 1 ♥ Dble
Pass 2 ♦ Pass 3 ♣ Pass
What action do you take?
A.—By first doubling and then bidding a new suit, partner has shown a strong hand. With 9 points in high cards, you have a much better holding than partner has any right to expect, even though you have a singleton in his suit. We would venture three no trump.

Use Interferon Against Tumor

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — An experimental anti-cancer agent is being given to brain tumor patients for the first time in the United States by researchers at the University of North Carolina School of Medicine.

Nine adults with a type of brain tumor called a glioma will be administered interferon after surgery and before a full course of conventional radiation therapy to the brain, said Dr. M. Stephen Mahaley Jr., chief of neurosurgery and chief researcher.

Interferon is a protein produced by certain cells of the body involved in natural defense against disease. It has been tested as an anti-cancer agent in clinical trials throughout the country since 1972.

The first patient already has begun receiving the treatment and other patients will be studied during the next six months, he said.

"The purpose of the study is to evaluate patient tolerance of interferon with special attention to fever, appetite, activity and, in some cases, intracranial pressure," said Mahaley.

Other studies have shown that interferon is relatively safe, but this pilot project will show whether it can be safely given to brain tumor patients, Mahaley said.

Researchers will measure carefully to see if there is increased pressure within the skull during interferon administration.

"This will be a special consideration," Mahaley said. "If the interferon makes the pressure go up, it might be inappropriate for use with some brain tumor patients."

Interferon may prevent the regrowth of a brain tumor either by acting directly on the tumor or by enhancing the patient's immune system so the body will reject the tumor by itself.

Subjects in the study are volunteers, all patients at the Clinical Research Unit at North Carolina Memorial Hospital. Each patient will be given doses of interferon intravenously on three consecutive days, each week for three weeks.

But You Forgot to Remember

Most Americans won't forget that today is Memorial Day, but many may have trouble remembering what is so memorable about the occasion. Originally May 30 was celebrated as Decoration Day. On that day, members of the Grand Army of the Republic (GAR) a veterans organization, decorated the graves of Union soldiers who died in the Civil War. The GAR celebrated Memorial Day amidst flag-waving, parades, and speeches. In 1971 the day became an official federal holiday which also honored Confederate soldiers and the dead from other American wars. But several Southern states continue to ignore the holiday. In Virginia it is celebrated as Confederate Memorial Day.

DO YOU KNOW — What veterans organization was founded in Paris after World War I?

FRIDAY'S ANSWER — Bobby Unser was finally declared the winner of last year's controversial race.
