Budget Deadlock Delaying Other Work

By CLIFF HAAS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The deadlock in the House over a 1983 budget blueprint is holding up work on legislation necessary to curb the flow of government red ink — action the Reagan administration and congressional leaders agree is vital to the nation's economic health.

reject more than half a dozen budget plans last week and send the issue back to the House Budget Committee.

The House resumes work Wednesday. But budget writers were trying to regroup earlier, with the House Budget Committee meeting possibly as early as this afternoon for preliminary work on drafting a new budget plan.

Meanwhile, President Reagan scheduled a late-afternoon meeting today with Republican members of Congress to discuss the budget. White House deputy press secretary Larry Speakes described it as "a very preliminary type of meeting."

After a post-mortem session of the Budget Committee on Friday, its chairman, James R. Jones, D-Okla., conceded "it really is very difficult to get a broad consensus in the House under the conditions that exist."

His suggestion that Republicans and Democrats "split the difference" between their two main budget proposals has met with a cool reception in both parties. Instead, the full House may find itself voting on separate Democratic and Republican resolutions.

The resolution that the House has been unable to agree on sets revenue and spending targets for the fiscal year which begins Oct. 1.

The Republican-controlled Senate already has adopted a budget outline which has President Reagan's blessing.

Rep. David R. Obey, D-Wis., a member of the Budget Committee, says the budget resolution "has become the pied piper of Congress. Its schedule dictates when Congress convenes and when it recesses, what happens on the floor and what is stalled on the (legislative) calendar."

Appropriations and tax-writing committees in the House need the resolution to give them targets for legislative action. Without a budget blueprint, there would be no binding instructions to the committees for the tax increases and spending cuts that are necessary to trim deficits.

The budget resolution Congress adopted last year at Reagan's urging pointed the way to the record tax and spending cuts that followed.

But the faltering economy has shaken confidence in the direction charted in last year's budget resolution, including its forecast of a $37.6 billion shortfall this year. The latest deficit estimates for this year are $120 billion and more.

Congressional and administration officials agree that without action — outlined in the budget resolution — to trim government spending and increase tax revenues, next year's budget deficit will hit $182 billion.

So far, the problem has been the inability of anyone in the House to find a budget outline containing the mix of domestic spending cuts, tax increases and reductions in Reagan's planned military buildup that can attract a majority.

Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan said over the weekend that if deficits are not brought under control the nation must face an "anemic" economic recovery while interest rates remain high. Congressional leaders repeatedly have cited the need to "send a signal" to the financial markets through decisive action on the budget.

Last week's budget breakdown sent no such signal, and President Reagan termed it "a bad one for all those Americans who are suffering because of the recession and the high interest rates."

British Closing In On Stanley

By The Associated Press

British marines and paratroopers today were reported fighting Argentine troops for control of a strategic mountain 12 miles west of Stanley in action that could pave the way for the decisive battle of the Falkland Islands.

But government sources in London were quoted as saying the commander of the British task force, Rear Adm. John Woodward, has been given full authority to decide whether to give the Argentines an opportunity to surrender before launching a full-scale assault on Stanley, the Falklands capital.

The sources, quoted by Britain's domestic news agency, Press Association, and Independent Television News, said the British did not want to subject Argentina to a humiliating defeat because of concerns of worsening political instability in Latin America.

The British Defense Ministry reported Monday night that British and Argentine troops were battling for control of 1,500-foot Mount Kent 12 miles west of Stanley.

Press Association reported fighting three miles closer to Stanley on a ridge called Two Sisters, indicating the British marines and paratroopers may have pushed back the Argentine perimeter. But there was no official confirmation of this.

Argentina in a communique issued early today said its forces had "detected" British troops about 15 miles from Stanley. It said Argentine troops were using helicopters to reinforce their defense positions around the town.

Reports from London and Buenos Aires said the Argentine commander, Brig. Gen. Mario Menendez, had heavily fortified Mount Kent and the nearby ridges. If the British captured them, they would provide a vantage point for shelling the inner Argentine defenses.

Press Association also reported without attribution that the British had landed their backup force of 3,500 Scots and Welsh Guardsmen and Nepalese Gurkhas north of Stanley, bringing their total land forces on the island to at least 7,500 and outnumbering the estimated 7,000 Argentines concentrated around Stanley.

The Defense Ministry refused to confirm the landing report.

Two British forces had been advancing on Stanley, Royal Marines and paratroopers moving westward by helicopter from the San Carlo beachhead, and another paratroop force coming around from the south after capturing the Goose Green airstrip and 1,400 Argentine prisoners.

Solidarity Leaders Preparing A General Strike In Warsaw

By THOMAS W. NETTER
Associated Press Writer

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Solidarity leaders say they're planning a general strike in Warsaw, Wroclaw and the Silesian coal mines because lesser protests have failed to force the martial-law government to "back off from repression."

Fugitive leaders of the suspended union gave no indication of when they might call the strike.

They said in a leaflet that workers in several large Warsaw factories had asked them to organize a general strike. They said they were also planning to extend the strike to Wroclaw, a major industrial center in southwest Poland, and the Silesian coal mines, which produce the country's chief export.

"The forms of protest action which have been used until now have proven insufficient to force the authorities to back off from repression and pursue the concept of national accord," the leaflet said.

Street marches by Solidarity supporters in early May were broken up by the police.

The union leaders said they are demanding freedom for 2,000 Solidarity activists, including union chief Lech Walesa, held since imposition of martial law Dec. 13.

In another gesture of defiance Monday, union members managed to place a plaque undetected in Warsaw's Victory Square commemorating the nine coal miners killed on Dec. 16 by police who broke a sit-in strike protesting martial law.

The plaque was removed during the night, presumably by government authorities.

Red and white ribbons on the plaque carried the message: "To those who gave their lives for freedom and independence of work."

The plaque was placed at

China Holds U.S. Woman

PEKING (AP) — An American teacher from Denver was handcuffed after a struggle and detained by Chinese police for investigation of alleged theft of state secrets. U.S. Embassy and foreign sources said today.

The sources quoted Chinese police as accusing Lisa Wichser, 28, of being a spy for the United States Central Intelligence Agency. Miss Wichser is the first American detained in China since the United States and China established diplomatic relations in 1979.

The sources said Miss Wichser was picked up Friday night at the Friendship Hotel where she lives. She resisted, was handcuffed, and was visited by a U.S. consular officer at a police station. The U.S. Embassy said it protested the handling of the case on grounds it violated the U.S.-Chinese consular agreement.

Foreign sources said Chinese police ordered hotel attendants to summon Miss Wichser from her room to receive an "urgent telegram." When she went downstairs, they tried to detain her, but she struggled, resisted, and was handcuffed and taken away.

The detention occurred at a time when China has stepped up its warnings to be vigilant against foreign, capitalist and Taiwan spies. China also is clamping down on contacts between Chinese and foreigners.

Miss Wichser has sought permission to marry a Chinese economics student, and officials of her school reportedly have approved.

Net sales and use tax collections in Pitt County in April amounted to $285,563, according to Mark Lynch, Secretary of the N.C. Department of Revenue. He said the April figure compared with $271,854 recorded in Pitt in March and $227,292 reported for February.

Neighboring county totals for February, March and April included: Beaufort, $130,799; $127,405; $132,560; Carteret, $119,253; $131,753; $148,031; Craven, $198,535; $204,319; $215,383; Edgecombe, $131,383; $139,688; $138,379; Greene, $49,697; $9,869; $6,991; Lenoir, $178,873; $182,512; $188,720; Martin, $65,579; $64,483; $66,183; Nash, $226,806; $221,974; $252,515; Wayne, $253,835; $240,025; $254,944; and Wilson, $175,809; $198,229; $217,817.

Lynch said total distributions in the 99 participating counties in April amounted to $18,747,119, compared with $16,299,722 in March and $15,943,371 in February.

Preparing For Defeat

By DOUGLAS GRANT MINE
Associated Press Writer

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Argentina's military rulers are preparing their people for defeat in the Falkland Islands. But they insist any setback will be temporary, that Argentina has done itself proud in the fight with Britain and that it will eventually own the archipelago.

President Leopoldo Galtieri set the new line in an Army Day speech Saturday after British paratroopers had overrun key Argentine positions.

"May god grant that, beyond the fortunes of the unequal battle against the extra-continental aggressor and those who support her, that the torch we have lighted to illuminate the awakening of our America not be extinguished," he said.

One of the president's top advisers, who asked that his name not be used, spelled out the government position to The Associated Press.

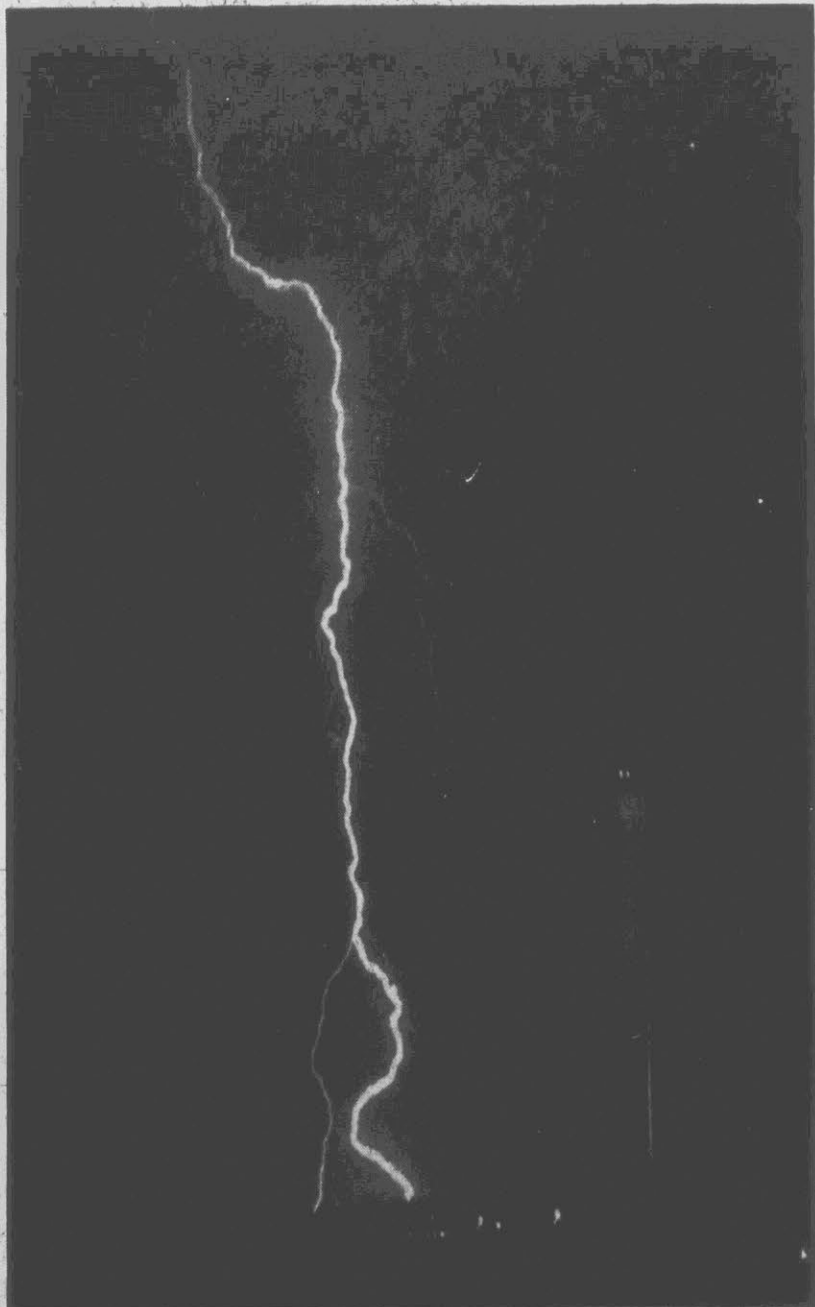

"We have already won," he said. "We could not have been expected to defeat militarily the third and first most powerful nations in the world."

"When we lose, you will hear Galtieri, who is now a Latin American hero, say, 'Our islands have been occupied by means of vastly superior military force. I negotiate nothing nor do I cede any of our legitimate demands. I believe in the retaliatory power of my people, and we will again recover the islands.'"

Argentines who for weeks have been served a heavy dose of encouraging news — "Victory" headlines and "We're winning!" magazine covers — are beginning to read worst-case scenarios.

The Buenos Aires newspaper Conviccion said Monday: "The adult Argentina should get ready to assimilate, with virile sadness but not with desperation and much less with shame, the possibility that Great Britain, with the aid of the United States, temporarily re-establishes by force a colonial usurpation."

The paper, which has close ties to the navy, pointed out positive effects of the conflict: "With just what we've done up till now, leaving aside the surprises we've yet to give, we have acquired a dignified and gravitating presence in international society."

Peace Price?

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — Arab states on the Persian Gulf have offered Iran $25 billion to halt its war with Iraq, diplomatic sources say.

The Arab nations apparently are afraid that victorious Iranian armies will invade Iraq to oust President Saddam Hussein, the sources said Monday. The offer for war reparations from the oil-rich nations came as Iranian and Iraqi gunners shelled civilian areas in each other's territory for the third straight day.

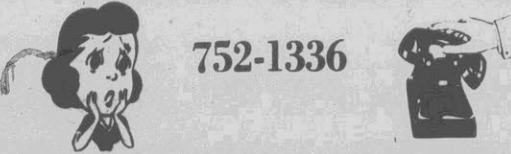

Gulf nations have given Iraq millions of dollars in aid to win the war because they fear an Iranian victory will spread Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's Moslem revolution to their lands.

In Jerusalem, Prime Minister Menachem Begin's office said today that Egyptian Foreign Minister Kamal Hassam was expected Wednesday with a letter from Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak. Israeli newspapers said the message was expected to deal with the Iran-Iraq war.

HEALTH INFO CLEARING HOUSE

I heard an ad on TV about a toll-free number you could call to get information about any particular health problem. Since then I haven't been able to catch it again. Can you tell me what this number is?

You must be referring to the toll-free telephone information service of the National Health Information Clearing House, 800-336-4797.

This toll-free phone service is available to anyone Monday through Friday 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. It's a service for health consumers and health professionals of the Office of Health Information, Health Promotions, Physical Fitness and Sports Medicine of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services.

Anyone who calls in for information must give the name of the condition as told to him or her by a doctor, since those in the office are not equipped and would not presume to make diagnoses. In most cases, information is provided immediately on the telephone and follow-ups are made by referring the caller's name and address to one of more than 2,000 health organizations in the service's data base. Often, copies of articles on particular health subjects are also mailed to the caller.

The office is located in Arlington, Va., and serves the entire United States.

Mosquito Warning

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — April showers may bring May flowers, but the almost daily downpours of May and June may bring a horde of mosquitoes to North Carolina this summer, scientists say.

Thomas T. Blalock, an entomologist with the North Carolina Department of Human Resources, said people who venture outdoors this summer should expect more mosquitoes if the rains of the past two weeks continue unabated.

"If they (weather forecasters) are correct, we will have many more mosquitoes," he said.

Charles C. Apperson, an extension entomologist with N.C. State University, said coastal counties with limited resources to fight the problem could be hit hardest.

The state does not have a well-organized mosquito-counting program, so officials do not know how many insects they could be facing this summer, he said.

Some authorities already fear the worst, Apperson said. In Hoke County, residents have been telling extension agents they have sighted more mosquitoes this year than last year.

North Carolina is not alone in its plight, officials say. Entomologists are predicting 1982 will be a bad year for mosquitoes from Connecticut to California.

Jobless Benefit Funds In N.C. Said 'Healthy'

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — While applying for unemployment benefits can be distasteful, North Carolina's jobless at least are spared the trauma of worrying that the funds will run out, officials say.

Jobless-benefit funds are bankrupt in 15 states and others are running low. But in North Carolina, the system is healthy despite growing unemployment rolls, officials in the state Department of Labor say.

The state's fund, supported by mandatory contributions from companies whose employees are eligible for jobless benefits, still has a reserve of $535 million, enough to cover unemployment checks for at least 11 months.

Employers who avoid layoffs pay only a token contribution into the system, ranging from 0.1 percent to 0.23 percent of the first $6,000 in salary paid to each employee. Companies with a history of job layoffs pay the highest rates, up to 5.7 percent.

State officials pride themselves on making sure the payments come in on time, said David Pearce, who monitors unemployment rates for the state Labor Market Information Service. The fund has built-in formulas to increase the required employer contributions if prolonged unemployment drains the reserves, he said.

"Historically North Carolina has always ranked up with much larger states as far as the size of the trust fund goes," Pearce said. "Good management is the main reason. Also, unemployment here hasn't been quite as severe as somewhere like Detroit."

Even during the 1974-75 recession when state unemployment passed 11 percent, the fund reserve never dropped below $200 million, Pearce said. Unemployment in the state reached 9.7 percent this year. The fund had paid $166.2 million in jobless benefits between Jan. 1 and April 30.

The average weekly unemployment check issued in North Carolina during April was for $102.04. Employees with a history of steady work during the past few years may qualify for a maximum of $152 per week, Pearce said. Workers with a record of sporadic employment may get as little as $15 a week.

State officials also are cracking down on fraudulent claims during high unemployment months. State Employment Security Commission records show $239,290 in fraudulent payments were recovered during April. At least 74 people were convicted of making false unemployment claims.

High Speaks At PCC Program

Joe High, personnel manager for TRW Corp., was the principal speaker at Pitt Community College's annual adult basic education achievement and recognition program held recently.

The banquet was attended by 150 ABE students and PCC faculty.

In his address, entitled "It Will Make You Or Break You," High challenged students to keep a positive outlook. "It will give you the backbone to reach for the three ingredients in life — learning, earning and yearning," he commented. "Yearning says 'yes I can, yes I will.'"

Dr. E.B. Bright, dean of instruction, and Mary Outerbridge, ABE coordinator, awarded certificates to students.

She wore a single tiered train length illusion veil held in place by a cap overlaid in silk lace flowers. The bride carried a bouquet of white orchids from which cascaded a spray of single orchids.

The maid of honor was Margie Worsley. Bridesmaids included Jami Grist, Beth Robinson, Armenia Stallings, Roberta Tice, sister-in-law of the bride, Amanda Toler, sister of the bridegroom, and Valerie Whitehead.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

Eye Color Is Distressing

DEAR ABBY: Everywhere I go I'm laughed at because I have two different-colored eyes. One is blue and the other one is brownish-green. It's not terribly noticeable from a distance, but when people get up close to me they notice it and think it's weird.

A friend of mine said she once saw a cat with two different-colored eyes, but never a person. Well, I've never seen another person with this problem.

Please don't tell me I ought to be glad that I have two eyes and can see. I am glad, but I'm only 13 and I hate to think of going through the rest of my life being a freak. Can anything be done to change the color of one of my eyes?

FEELS LIKE A FREAK

DEAR FEELS: Eye doctors who fit patients with contact lenses can prescribe lenses for you that will give your eyes the appearance of having the same color — or close to it. They are not inexpensive, so if your parents can't afford it now, perhaps you can earn and save money and get contacts yourself when you are older.

In the meantime, it's not as weird as you think. In your grandparents' time there was a beautiful Irish movie star named Colleen Moore, who had two different-colored eyes, and everything turned out rosy for her!

DEAR ABBY: In response to "Depressed," who was miserable because she was flat-chested: The woman I love has no more on top than I have, but she's the sexiest girl I have ever known.

A woman's breasts have nothing to do with her sexiness. Would she consider her husband inadequate and unappealing just because he wasn't built like Arnold Schwarzenegger?

I've talked to other men, and you'd be amazed at the number of men who find smaller-breasted women more attractive.

FLATTIES PREFERRED

DEAR FLATTIES: Stay tuned for a letter from a woman who had too much of a good thing:

DEAR ABBY: I hope I've read my last letter from flat-chested women who envy their full-bosomed sisters. Believe me, there's nothing spectacular about having big breasts. I know. The last time I bought separates, the skirt was a size 12 and the blouse was size 18!

In high school I can remember being told to quit "showing off" when I stretched. I started to wear loose-fitting tops to hide my size but gave up because everybody thought I was pregnant.

I suppose I could have breast reduction surgery, but I have finally learned to accept myself as I am. I've discovered that the people who are worth knowing don't judge a woman by the size of her bra.

LIVING WITH IT

DEAR ABBY: Recently at a small wedding ceremony, I exchanged rings and vows with the man I love. We plan to spend the rest of our lives together.

I have been to all my relatives' weddings and have always brought gifts and/or done the flowers. Would it be flaunting my homosexuality if I sent wedding announcements to my 50 relatives? Not all of them know that I am gay.

For the first time in 48 years,
Eli Bloom's voting for someone else for District Attorney:
Tom Haigwood.

By representing the people as District Attorney in thousands of cases, Eli Bloom has developed a sharp sense of character.

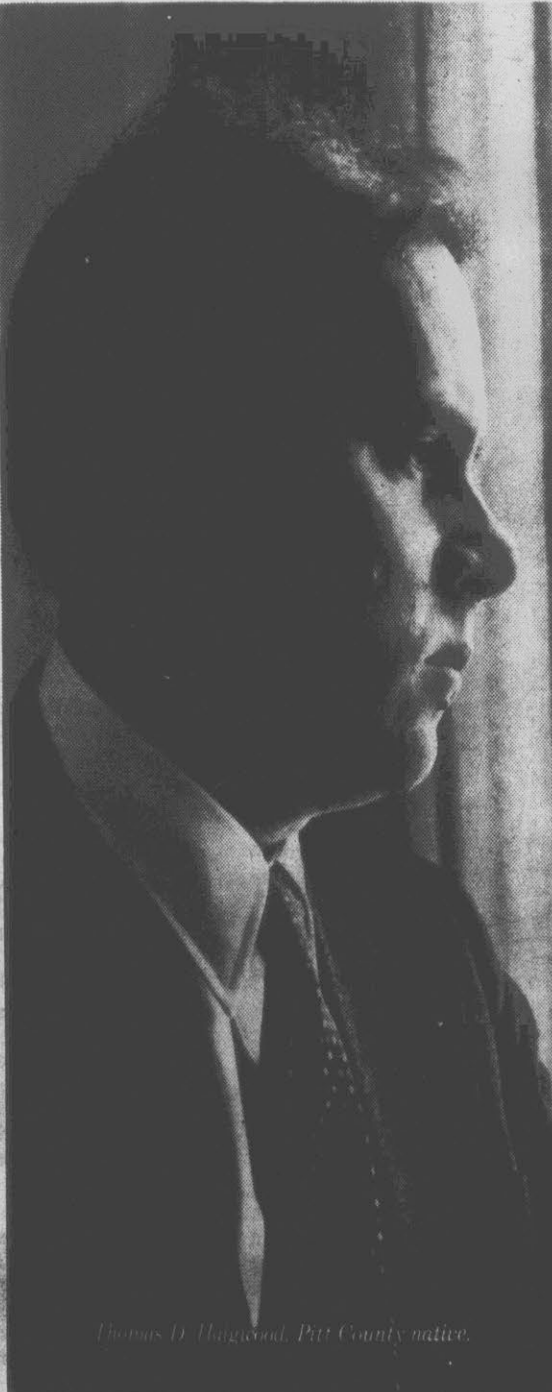

Eli Bloom thinks that Tom Haigwood is the right calibre man to replace him at the job he loves.

But, character isn't the only measure of Tom's worthiness. There's experience—over nine years as Assistant District Attorney. And staying power, too—as a Pitt County native, Tom sees election to District Attorney as a career move. Not a stepping stone to other offices.

Vote Thomas D. Haigwood for District Attorney.

He's got what it takes.

Paid for by the Committee to Elect
Thomas D. Haigwood, Eli Bloom, Treasurer.

Harsh Medicine

Rep Charles Rose, (D-N.C.) announced recommendations for revising the tobacco program last week.

The proposal would virtually end leasing of allotments and would allow the sale of tobacco allotments. Only in case of disasters would leasing and transfers be allowed and then with U.S. Secretary of Agriculture approval.

In addition starting in 1983, corporations, businesses, utilities, educational and religious institutions and other owners of allotments which do not normally produce tobacco would be required to sell allotments.

Rose said a widow or widower or a dependent child would be allowed to lease allotments to growers, but when the dependent spouse dies, or when the dependent child becomes independent, the allotment would have to be sold.

Money collected from tobacco growers would be placed in a fund so that if price support money were needed, it would not come from the government.

Sales of allotments would be allowed on a contract basis. Provision would be made for reversion of the allotment in case of default.

Beginning this year, a rate of increase in the price support formula would be reduced.

Rose said some proposals would be painful but changes are essential if the program is to survive.

"We feel a lot like cooks," Rose said. "We've worked very hard to fix something to put before our families and we're afraid some of you will push it away. But we believe this is the best way to preserve what has become a way of life in North Carolina."

Those with an interest in tobacco allotments will swallow hard as they consider these harsh moves. Many families have subsisted for years by renting out small tobacco allotments to large growers. This could end soon.

The funds to be collected from growers would represent another expense in the production of tobacco.

It was known, however, that harsh measures would have to be taken if the tobacco program were to be saved.

The plan presented by Rep. Rose should be studied carefully and modified to meet area needs where possible. It would be unrealistic, however, to expect that the proposals can be watered down and that the program can still be maintained.

IT'LL SURE TAKE UNPRECEDENTED TEAMWORK!

BY JAMES KILPATRICK

A Point Of Principles

WASHINGTON — From its beginning nearly two months ago, the War of the Falkland Islands has seemed a bad dream of a war. Almost any day now, we said to ourselves, everyone would wake up; the islanders would be tending their sheep, the Argentines would be enjoying an extended autumn, Whitehall would be drowning in an English April.

Several incidents, early on, contributed to the illusion. It seemed absurd that a band of scrap merchants, in search of metal on South Georgia, could have provoked the chain of events that followed. There was a marvelous touch of Gilbert and Sullivan in the formal surrender of the Falklands, Gov. Rex Hunt, splendidly turned out in silver sword and plumed panache. Two weeks later, when officers of an Argentine submarine surrendered South Georgia, it was only to be expected that the officers would be invited to dinner on a British ship.

JAMES KILPATRICK

Once the British armada sailed, the dream vanished. The Argentines miscalculated. So did the British, whose overconfident commander predicted a "walkover." Now both sides count the dead and wounded of a war that never should have begun — a war that, once begun, has defied a swift ending through the diplomatic arts.

At some point, of course, hostilities will cease. There will be a reckoning of the cost, calculated in lives lost, ships sunk, wealth expended, international relationships damaged. As in every other such reckoning, the question will arise: Was it worth it? Should the British ever have fought for the Falklands at all?

My own answer is, yes. Unequivocally, yes. These were British subjects on territory that had known the British flag for nearly a century and a half. It is immaterial whether there were 1,800 islanders or 18,000. A nation unwilling to defend her own subjects must become an outcast in the family of nations. To do one's best and still be defeated is to incur some measure of respect; to do nothing is to incur contempt.

We may look to unrelated events in our own history — Fort Sumter, the Cuban missile crisis, the lost cause of a free Vietnam. Lincoln might have yielded to the South's secession, but he saw the principle of union as vital. Kennedy might have found excuses to ignore the Soviet missiles. Johnson could have let South Vietnam go with no more than a gesture. In each case, reasons of precedent and principle became paramount.

In the case at hand, both principle and precedent were self-evident: A nation must protect its own; aggression must not be rewarded. In the face of Argentina's flagrant provocation, Britain had no happy choice. Up in the Bering Sea are two tiny islands just eight miles apart — Big Diomedes, owned by the Soviet Union, Little Diomedes, a part of Alaska. If the Soviets someday should occupy Little Diomedes, it is inconceivable that we would not go to war to protect our subjects and to restore our flag. A failure of will would serve only to invite further aggression.

In the making of such fateful decisions, it is always imperative that the principle be clearly defined and the effect of a precedent be carefully judged. The nature of one's response has to be weighed. Risks cannot be brushed

Weinberger Is Undercut

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK WASHINGTON — Behind the circus atmosphere of the House budget debate, Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger was waging a lonely — and losing — rear-guard action to bring President Reagan back to the reality of his original promise to restore American military power.

The treatment of lawyerly, quiet-spoken Cap Weinberger by top White House aides literally disarmed him and the Pentagon, preventing the counterattack they had planned against sundry budget documents drafted for House debate. Every one of these hacked away at defense, but Weinberger was silenced.

Weinberger's custody of Reagan's commitment to rearm in the face of runaway Soviet military spending has never been in question (despite complaints of occasional inattention). He prevailed over Reagan's staff throughout the budget struggles of 1981 and again in early 1982. His defeat now by White House staff chief James Baker III and budget director David Stockman sends a weakened Reagan to the Bonn summit to explain why the U.S. must reduce its "force postures"; place some fighting units in mothballs.

For weeks Weinberger was kept in the dark by the backroom Baker-Stockman signal-callers who were warning Reagan he would have to accept substantial defense cuts in his 1983 budget. At the same time, the Baker-Stockman team worked over House Republican leader Bob Michel. They encouraged him to tell the president the same thing: that defense cuts between $5 billion and $10 billion in 1983 outlays were unavoidable.

On May 19 Weinberger made his first move. He called Stockman on the telephone and told him defense cuts of that size were unacceptable. But Stockman insisted Reagan's only course was to "deal with the Democrats" — in other words, retreat. Weinberger argued back: The president should fight any and all reductions under his original military budget and withdraw his support from defense cuts in Sen. Pete Domenici's Senate-approved budget.

But the retreat was advancing. On May 22 Reagan announced, his support of the "bipartisan" budget named for Michel and Rep. Delbert Latta. That undercut Weinberger's planned counterattack in the form of a letter to Michel — an undated version of which had been hand-delivered to Michel before Reagan's public endorsement of Michel-Latta.

How could Weinberger attack defense cuts that the president himself was supporting? The answer: by indirection — by focusing his attack on the larger but similar cuts contained in the House Budget Committee's bill, sponsored by Rep. James R. Jones, committee chairman.

The Jones version would have reduced 1983 defense spending by $9 billion, somewhat more than the Michel-Latta version, and 1983-1985 spending authority substantially more than Michel-Latta. So Weinberger's letter, which arrived on the floor only moments before the House started voting on May 25, spelled out the costs of the Jones budget:

— It would "send a clear signal of a lack of resolve to both our allies and adversaries."

— It would require "significant reductions in the force structure, readiness and sustainability of our combat forces."

— Army and Marine ground forces "might have to be reduced by up to two divisions, deployed naval forces reduced by decommissioning up to 36 older ships and Air Force tactical fighter forces reduced by up to five wings."

The Michel-Latta budget, and the higher cuts in the Domenici bill, would force similar — though lesser — reductions across the board in the American defense posture. By the time Congress takes final action on the defense budget, possibly months away, the cuts may be enlarged far beyond Michel-Latta size.

Cap Weinberger, blindsided by Baker and Stockman, has now made his record. It is a record Ronald Reagan should scrupulously study before he accepts White House staff advice for even deeper defense cuts in the bloody budget struggles still ahead.

THIS AFTERNOON

Two Against One

By PAUL O'CONNOR LUMBERTON — For the past four years, Tom Gibson and Ed Johnson have been Robeson County's conservative political gunslingers. After Gibson lost his bid to be county sheriff in the 1978 Democratic primary, he and Johnson teamed up to co-chair the county's reelection effort of Sen. Jesse Helms. Then, in 1980, they co-chaired the election campaigns of President Reagan and Sen. John East.

In 1981, they formed the Conservative Response, a political action committee that has spent $9,000 calling Robeson County Democrats "ultra-liberals." They also headed up the Committee Against the Gas Tax, the statewide effort that tried to stop Gov. Jim Hunt's legislative proposal for a 3-cent gas tax increase. That effort was underwritten by Helms' National Congressional Club.

So what are these two doing this year? They're running for Congress. Both of them for the seat held by "ultra-liberal" 7th District Rep. Charlie Rose. One in each party.

Johnson is the Republican candidate and his credentials within that party can hardly be questioned. He's the GOP's Robeson County chairman and one of the party's Most Outstanding Young Men of 1981. He's chairman of the GOP's Truth Squad which regularly calls press conferences to give Hunt the devil.

Gibson's ties with his Democratic Party are less impressive. In addition to campaigning for Helms, East and Reagan, he's also attended the Republican State Convention in 1981 and he's a regular at Truth Squad press conferences. If he's nominated, he'll support only conservative Democrats who are on the ticket with him. Right now, he says, none of the incumbent Democrats is conservative enough. If he's elected, he'll only vote for a Democratic House speaker if that man is a conservative.

So why is he a Democrat? Because he was born and raised one — his family once had close ties to President Jimmy Carter. Because he doesn't "apply to either party. I'm just a conservative. I don't have any more desire to be a Republican than I do to be a Democrat."

Neither Johnson nor Gibson is likely to beat five-term Rose. No one's won more than 40 percent of the vote against him since 1972. But what happens if Gibson does beat Rose? Do the two conservative buddies run against each other? Johnson said he'd ask the 7th District GOP executive committee if they wanted him to stay in the race. Gibson says it's so unlikely he doesn't have an answer.

Johnson says his chances of beating Rose are slim enough. Gibson, he says, has practically no chance because he has little time and money to prepare for the June 29 primary and because Democratic primary voters aren't as conservative, on the whole, as the general electorate. Johnson says he has at least as good a chance of winning as Sen. East had in 1980 when he challenged Sen. Robert Morgan.

Gibson doesn't deny that he'd be satisfied chopping up Rose a bit so he'd be more vulnerable to Johnson. "If it's a situation where, to use your words, I chop him up and take him out more to the public and it helps another person, and it's Ed who has a philosophy as I have, so be it."

Gibson will go after Rose

To the editor:

Contrary to the pseudo-Christian propaganda flawlessly producing its usual Technicolor lies here in the South, the Soviet economy is not folding nor are capitalist or Baptist revolutionaries at work or on the pinnacle of popular success in that country. The former may, however, be the case in the future as President Reagan continues to play on Soviet fears of nuclear or ecological holocaust and forces their less-developed economy to assign once more an arms priority. Russia will not starve. We do not feed Russia, nor does Argentina. The grain supplies that Russia imports are used for hog and cattle feed, but during the Carter years when, in general, the arms race slowed and tensions were relaxed, the Soviet economy moved ahead at a relatively steady rate and the standard of living improved. This was not due to trade with the West, as there are fewer commercial embargoes on commodities headed for the Soviet Union now, than there were then.

There are significant dissident movements in the Eastern Bloc. The leaders of these movements, Leck Walesa, for example, are either Christian Socialists or reform Marxists, and the two most significant questions involving a distinct stance are intellectual freedom and the development of a worker, as opposed to state, economy. But very few of these dissidents, including those in Solidarity, had any interest in resurrecting an investment or capitalist economy; as a matter of fact, the banks loans hard currency and rampant corruptions of the sixties involved one of the chief complaints against the Communist establishment (Gierick was tried to placate the Union) not complaints made toward banks in the West, but made to the designers of a corrupt and inefficient bureaucratic socialism.

Strength For Today

NEWMATERIAL IS IMPORTANT

Do you have any moral standards?

Oh yes, you reply, I have some very definite moral standards. Such being the case, the next question is, are these made of steel or rubber — or perhaps of butter?

Some people have mighty good theories which they never for a moment think of putting into operation when comfort or profit or passion is at stake. Many people have an adaptable type of moral standards, which can assume one form in one circle of society and an entirely different form in another. Some moral standards bend like rubber; and others melt like butter when the heat of public criticism is put on.

Stand for something! Everyone will think more of you if you do. Even those who laugh at you will secretly admire you. You may have heard the expression "Stand for something or pretty soon you will stand for anything."

Steel, rubber, and butter. What is the substance of your ideas? — Elisha Douglass

Private Business Weakening?

By JOHN CUNNIFF AP Business Analyst NEW YORK (AP) — The strength of private business continues to erode, endangering the survival of many thousands of companies and leaving some of them too weak to rebuild for any economic upturn.

"This isn't deadwood that's being cleaned out," said Prof. William Dunkelberg of Purdue University, an adviser to the National Federation of Independent Business. "We're cutting into the green," he said.

His assessment of the condition of small and medium-size companies follows a sampling of 2,305 firms randomly selected from more than a half million members of the federation, based in San Mateo, Calif.

"The condition of business is very fragile," he said. "If we took a further economic dip in the near future we would see a lot of firms on a rolling wave of bankruptcies." Bankruptcies already are running at rates unseen since the Great Depression of the 1930s and, said Dunkelberg, many other companies are simply seeking to survive. They're asking "What must I do to be in business a month from now?" he said, contending that very few concerns have the financial strength to make any plans beyond that time.

The survey showed that seasonally adjusted employment among federation members fell for the 10th straight quarter, leading Dunkelberg and Jonathan Scott of Southern Methodist University to state that it will require a strong, sustained rise in sales before the picture improves.

The survey also showed that 1 in 5 firms lowered their selling prices in the first quarter as they sought cash by unloading inventories. "Price cutting has never been more pervasive in the nine-year history of the NFIB survey," the two economists stated.

They contend that falling prices pose serious problems for small companies that already are cash poor and burdened with debt. Declining or stable prices make it harder for companies to raise cash to retire debts and prepare for an expansion, they said, explaining that "This is especially true if costs are still rising — even moderately."

If prices continue to fall, they said, more and more companies may find their survival endangered. Moreover, if they do survive they might be unable to take advantage of an improved economy, when it arrives.

They explained: "If deflation (deflation is falling prices; disinflation is a falling rate of increase) sets in, the burden of repaying the 'survival' debts incurred during the last few years will increase, making it more difficult to raise capital for inventory and expansion and preventing small business from participating in whatever recovery occurs in 1982."

In most instances, the lower prices offered by smaller businesses are insufficient to cover costs, said Dunkelberg. "They're not getting their margins back. Prices are low because of the need to get rid of inventory," he said in an interview prior to release of the survey.

Dunkelberg blamed much of the problem on the inability of Congress to cut deficits. A $100 billion federal deficit, he pointed out, is nearly equal to the amount saved annually by consumers. That is, federal government borrowing may consume all capital saved by individuals.

As a consequence, he said, neither businesses nor consumers are making any spending plans. Everyone, he suggested, is waiting to see what the future holds rather than making plans for major expenditures.

In such a situation, he said, many smaller businesses probably have no choice but to cut prices to spur sales in order to remain alive. And in doing so, they may be digging themselves deeper into a financial hole.

Booksellers Eye Censors

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Laws protecting minors from harmful material could have the "insidious" effect of banning books, the American Booksellers Association has been told.

Displayed in a locked cage at the convention of 20,000 booksellers, publishers, agents and authors — which ran through today — were some classics of Western literature, shown to symbolize renewed attempts at censorship in the United States, organizers said.

Among the volumes behind bars were works by Homer, Dante, Shakespeare, Hans Christian Andersen, Elizabeth Barrett Browning, George Bernard Shaw, Ernest Hemingway, Laura Ingalls Wilder and Isaac Asimov.

Speakers at a seminar Monday on censorship said there had been persistent book-banning efforts in Georgia, Virginia, Florida, Arizona, Colorado, California, Washington state, Maryland and Pennsylvania.

Association attorney Maxwell J. Lillienstein said he was most concerned by "the proliferation of the so-called 'minors access' statutes."

"These are very insidious laws," he said. "In the guise of protecting minors from harmful materials ... they have said in effect, 'You, Mr. or Mrs. bookseller, either ban the book or ban minors.'"

Hurricane Season

MIAMI (AP) — The six-month-long Atlantic hurricane season opens today amidst warnings from the nation's top hurricane forecaster that competition for inland roads may keep many coastal residents from escaping an approaching storm.

"The results are frightening," National Hurricane Center Director Neil Frank said of evacuation plans. "They are showing very long times to evacuate..."

"Just looking at a wider area in that comprehensive study, we find that a lot of people from coastal areas are all going to be using the same inland roads," he said.

Forecasters can usually give only a 12-hour warning of when a hurricane will hit a particular section of coastline, Frank said.

But under ideal circumstances, evacuation of Texas' Galveston Bay would take more than 27 hours, Tampa Bay would need at least 18 hours, and it would take up to 20 hours or longer to get residents of Key West out of danger along a two-lane highway that would probably be clogged with thousands of other keys residents, he said.

The 1982 Atlantic season runs through Nov. 30, with the first storm to be called Alberto.

Last week a Pacific storm, tropical storm Aleta, lashed the Central American nations of Nicaragua and Honduras with rain for five days, leaving nearly 300 dead and more than 60,000 homeless.

Appointment Said Offered

John LeConte Wade of Greensboro has been offered an appointment to the U.S. Air Force Academy in Colorado Springs, Colo., according to an announcement from the office of Sen. John East, R-N.C.

"It is probable that a high percentage of people who shop in bookstores bring minors with them. This type of shop, if it were permitted to prevail, would probably have an enormous impact," Lillienstein said.

The convention is the largest English-language book show in the world. This year, 1,200 publishers came from Canada, Great Britain, New Zealand and Australia.

Wade is the grandson of Mrs. J.N. (Elizabeth) LeConte of Greenville. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Wade of Greensboro.

The academy appointment is for the graduating class of 1986.

aside. When Iran's militants seized our embassy in Tehran and took our subjects hostage, it was clearly an act of war; we might have responded as Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher responded, by assembling an armada and mounting an invasion. We temporized, explored the avenues of diplomacy, made an abortive attempt at rescue, suffered a degree of humiliation and elected a new president thought to be more resolute. It was not the happiest hour in our history.

The Falklands war might not prove to be Britain's happiest hour either. Peace, when it comes, almost surely will bring a U.N. protectorate in its wake. Ultimately Argentina's sovereignty may be acknowledged after all. The diplomatic cost, especially to the United States, may be severe for the short term. But I persist in believing that over the long haul, Britain's risky but resolute game will be worth the costly candle.

Refunds Doubled.

Right now, if you're getting a refund from Uncle Sam, you may be wondering what to do with it.

Frankly, we can't think of any way to make more of it than investing in an NCNB IRA. In fact, it's like getting tax refunds every year from now until you retire.

First, as you can see by the chart, it doesn't take long for your money to double, redouble and double again with the interest an IRA pays.

Second, you pay no taxes on the interest your IRA earns until you start withdrawing. Then, you'll probably be retired and in a lower tax bracket.

Finally, any money you add to your IRA each year can be deducted from your taxes.

For more details, stop by and see the people at NCNB. And find out why more people have been opening IRAs with us than any other place in the neighborhood. NCNB

Charlie Lea's In The Groove And Houston Astros Believe It

By The Associated Press
Charlie Lea says he's in the groove now. And the Houston Astros have to believe it.

The Montreal right-hander shut out the Astros for the second time in five days Monday night, 10-0 with a four-hitter, and has now pitched 26 straight scoreless innings.

"I have confidence on everything I throw," said Lea, who continues to rebound from arm problems. "I'm in the groove right now."

After a slow start, Lea had a 3-2 record and posted a 1.43 earned run average for 44 innings in May.

Lea hasn't been the only success story of late in Montreal. In addition to Lea's pitching, Tim Wallach has been providing the key hitting for the Expos. Monday night, he belted a pair of two-run homers.

Wallach, who finished May hitting .387, attributes his success to the extra hours he has spent with batting coach Billy DeMars.

"The thing about Billy is that he says things so that you can understand," Wallach said. "I've done the things he's showed me so much that everything comes natural now. I just go up to the plate and let things happen."

Lea, 42, had retired 26 straight batters entering the game, but the Astros, whom he beat 4-0 last Wednesday, snapped the string when Terry Puhl singled leading off the game.

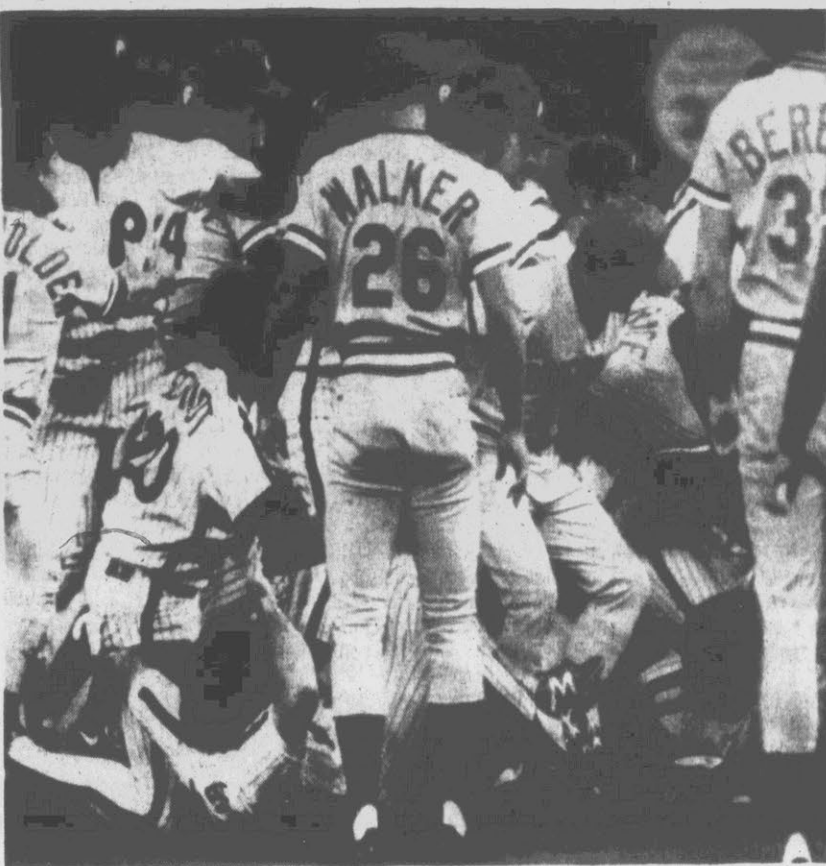

The only other hits off Lea were a double Alan Ashby and singles by Joe Pittman and Craig Reynolds. Lea struck out five batters and walked none.

The Expos unleashed a 15-hit attack, pounding Houston starter Don Sutton, 7-2, for five runs in the first inning that proved more than enough for Lea.

Cardinals 11, Giants 6
Ozzie Smith, Willie McGee and Tito Landrum drove in two runs apiece to highlight a 10-run fourth inning and send St. Louis over San Francisco.

Smith's double sent St. Louis ahead during the rally which wiped out a 3-1 San Francisco lead as part of the major leagues' biggest inning of the year.

The Giants wasted a 15-hit attack off Cardinals' starter Steve Mura and relievers John

Both benches from the Phillies and the Reds emptied onto the field after Reds' pitcher Mario Soto was hit by a pitch from Phillies' Ron Reed in the seventh inning of play

Monday night in Philadelphia. Soto went after Reed and a brawl broke out between the two teams. Three players were thrown out of the game, Reed and Soto and the Reds' Dave Concepcion. (AP Laserphoto)

Martin and Jim Kaat. Martin, 44, picked up the victory after pitching the fifth through the seventh.

"It's the momentum; it's like when you play basketball," said McGee. "One team gets the momentum and just keeps going."

"I felt adrenalin flowing. Everybody was like one. They were all clapping for each other. When you get an inning like that, you try to capitalize on it."

Padres 9, Cubs 7
Ruppert Jones and Sixto Lezcano hit home runs, Tim Flannery drove in three runs and pitcher Chris Welsh knocked in a pair to lead San Diego over Chicago.

Jones hit his seventh homer in the first inning after Flannery had singled, and Lezcano belted his fifth of the season in the third off loser Doug Bird, 3-5. Welsh doubled in a run in the second and also singled to drive in a run in a four-run fourth that gave the Padres an 8-3 lead and their eventual winning run.

"I'm used to playing night games, so I usually have trouble seeing the ball in the daytime," said Flannery. "But maybe because we played a day game in St. Louis yesterday helped me to adjust today."

Mets 10, Braves 4
Ellis Valentine belted four hits, including a two-run homer, and John Stearns had three hits and three RBI as New York routed Atlanta. Charlie Puleo, 5-2, struck out a career-high 10 batters before needing Craig Swan's relief help with two out in the eighth inning.

Bob Walk, 44, pitched the first 22-3 innings for the Braves, leaving after an RBI single by Hubie Brooks. The Mets collected a club-record 16 hits against five Atlanta pitchers.

The game marked the return to Shea Stadium of Atlanta Manager Joe Torre, who was fired as Mets' manager last October.

"We were blown away. We played lousy," Torre said. "It was our worst game of the week, and this last week has been a bad one for us. The team's not overconfident, we're not letting panic set in. We're still in first place."

Dodgers 5, Pirates 4
Mike Scioscia and Ken Landreaux each hit sacrifice flies off reliever Kent Tekulve to break an eighth-inning tie and lift Los Angeles over Pittsburgh.

The rally gave Los Angeles a

5-3 lead and helped it withstand Jason Thompson's 13th home run in the bottom of the inning.

Reliever Steve Howe, 3-1, was the winner. "My heart stopped four times during that game," Los Angeles Manager Tom Lasorda said after the Dodgers survived two dropped fly balls in the eighth by right fielder Jorge Orta.

Phillies 5, Reds 4
Third baseman Johnny Bench's throwing error in the 15th inning allowed Philadelphia's Bob Dernier to come home with the winning run as the Phillies outlasted Cincinnati.

Dernier led off with a single off Bob Shirley, 2-3, moved up on Pete Rose's sacrifice bunt and took third on a fly ball by Gary Matthews. He scored when Bench fielded Manny Trillo's grounder and fired in the dirt away from first baseman Dan Driessen.

Sid Monge, 2-0, the seventh and last available Philadelphia reliever, was the winner.

The Phillies scored four runs in the ninth after two were out, tying the score on a two-run double by Bo Diaz and two-run single by Garry Maddox.

Vincent Worried About Eastern Because Of Fan Reaction To Win

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

As his Rampants go into the Eastern finals tonight, Coach Ronald Vincent is worried about only one thing — last Friday night's game against Richmond County.

In that, the Rampants gained a 6-4 victory in a battle between two unbeaten. Rose came into the game with a 23-0 record, while the Raiders were 24-0. Never before in the history of the state playoffs have two unbeaten met, according to the North Carolina High School Athletic Association, and many people were billing it as the game that would decide the state title.

Vincent is worried that some folks might just be taking that as fact.

"I am worried about the game," he admitted as he prepared for tonight's 7:30 p.m. game at Guy Smith Stadium against Eastern Wayne.

"A lot of people have the attitude that Friday night's game decided the state championship, but it was only the quarterfinals. We still have to win three games to be the state champs, and we have to win this one if we want to get into the finals."

Those finals will be played next week at the site of the western winner, either Roxboro Person or South Caldwell, who meet Wednesday afternoon at Roxboro for that title. Both of those teams got into the playoffs via the runner-up route, having finished second in their respective conferences, the Big Six and the Western.

"I can go back a couple of years ago in football and see what I am afraid of," Vincent said. "You remember that we had lost to Rocky Mount during the regular season, and then came back and beat them in the state semifinals. Everyone thought we had it made then, and we had a letdown against High Point and lost the title. That's what I fear most right now."

However, the coach said that he feels that the players are not taking this attitude, merely some of the fans. "I just hope that it doesn't rub off. Generally, the players realize what they've got to do."

What they have to do is beat Eastern Wayne, the Mideastern champions, and Vincent sees it taking a good effort to do it.

"We played well against Richmond County. We had to or we would have lost. They had a good team."

"But I think Eastern Wayne has better pitching. They've got four who are really good. And they are solid in every position. They have good speed and good power," he added.

"I don't see how it could be an overall tougher game than Richmond County, but I do look for it to be a very, very hard game," Vincent said. "Eastern Wayne plays very smart baseball."

To win, Vincent feels that the Rampants must continue to play good offensive baseball. "We have to take advantage of the situations they give us. And we can't afford to make mistakes."

Vincent will continue his usual rotation and start Roger Williams, who came in to work the final two and two-thirds innings against Richmond County in relief of Gordon Douglas. Now 9-0 on the season, Williams has an earned run average of just under 2.00.

Around the rest of the field, the lineup will continue to be the same, with Crowell Pope behind the plate, Bill Kittrell at first, Mort Carter at second, Sammy Hodges at short and Douglas at third. In the outfield will be Tom Buie in left, Randy Warren in center and Rudy Stalls in right.

Carter has come on with a hot bat recently, and has boosted his average over .400. Williams and Kittrell are also hitting over .400 for the season, and the team has a mark of over .300 as a whole.

In the state semifinals, there is no tomorrow. The loser goes home and the winner keeps playing. The state finals are a best-of-three series.

Eastern Wayne Looks For Return Of Power Hitting Against Rose

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer

Eastern Wayne comes to town tonight looking to recharge its power factory, which has been dormant throughout the first two rounds of the 4-A state playoffs.

The Warriors had 18 home runs and hit .336 as a team in 20 regular-season outings but have yet to hit a homer and have only nine hits in two playoff games.

"At one time we were a great hitting team," Eastern Wayne coach Carl Lancaster said. "But, we have not hit it in the playoffs."

Eastern Wayne hopes to cure its hitting problems tonight when the Warriors face Greenville Rose in the eastern finals of the state playoffs. The winner advances to the state finals.

Game time is 7:30 at Guy Smith Stadium.

The winner will play the survivor of Wednesday's South Caldwell-Roxboro Person matchup.

The Warriors downed Kinston, 9-5, and New Hanover, 3-2, to earn a berth in tonight's game, but failed to hit the ball well in either. Eastern Wayne had seven hits against the Vikings and only two against New Hanover — that from a team with only one starter hitting under .300.

"We've been very fortunate to win both those games," Lancaster said. "We hadn't had to bunt but maybe once this year and against Kinston we laid down four perfect bunts. At least we know if the game does get close we can bunt."

"It's supposed to take some breaks to win a state title," he added. "Well, we've used up all our breaks."

"I feel like we're due to hit (the ball). We are a good hitting club but we just haven't hit it in the playoffs."

In both previous games the Warriors, who start six left-handed batters, have faced left-handed pitchers. "Rose doesn't have any left-handers, do they," Lancaster asked. When told no, Lancaster said: "Good."

The Rampants do have two outstanding right-handers, though, and one — Roger Williams — will start. Williams is 9-0 this season with an ERA of just under 2.00.

Williams is coming off an impressive relief job in the Rampants' 6-4 victory over Richmond County last Friday night. Williams struck out five and did not give up a hit in 22-3 innings to preserve the win.

Eastern Wayne, which is 22-2, will start either Gary Ream or Joey Rouse, both of whom are right-handers. Ream is 5-0 this season with an ERA of 1.09 and 70 strike outs. Rouse is 5-0 with a 0.80 ERA and 69 strike outs.

"Rouse is just a hard thrower," Lancaster said. "He just reaches back and throws it. Ream comes over the top, from the side, between his legs. He's more of a control pitcher."

If either or both get in trouble, Lancaster has two more pitchers he can call on: Jeff Ginn or Robbie Pelletier. Ginn is 5-0 with a 1.68 ERA. Pelletier is 3-2 with a 0.78 ERA.

"We've got four good pitchers and I feel we've got more pitching depth than Rose," Lancaster said.

Third baseman Mike Sullivan is at .377 followed by catcher Gary Frederick at .361 and Ream at .356. Leftfielder Chris Newsome is at .333 while

Arizona State Just Watching

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Five teams from last year's College World Series are back, but defending champion Arizona State will be on the sidelines when play begins Friday for the 1982 NCAA baseball title.

Wichita State and Texas Monday night won their regional to complete the eight-team field for the two-week, double-elimination tournament.

Earlier in the weekend, Maine, Miami, Cal State-Fullerton, Oklahoma State, South Carolina and Stanford each won regional to advance to the national series.

The big shock came Sunday when Cal State-Fullerton, ranked No. 3 by Collegiate Baseball, upset No. 2 ranked Arizona State to win the West II Regional in Tempe, Ariz. Coaches say that development makes the tournament a wide open event, but many are eyeing Oklahoma State, the team that finished second to the Sun Devils last year.

The Cowboys, who beat Oral Roberts to win the Midwest Regional, will face Texas, one of the five teams from last year's Series, at 5:10 p.m. CST Saturday. The Longhorns swept the Central Regional in Austin Monday, beating Eastern Michigan 9-1 in the finals.

The late game Saturday, pits repeater South Carolina against Stanford at 8:10 p.m. CST.

Wichita State won the South Regional Monday, beating host New Orleans 8-1, the only run they allowed in the regional. The Shockers will face Cal State Fullerton Friday at 8:10 p.m. CST. In Friday's early game, repeaters Maine and Miami will meet.

Hot-Hitting Royals Pound White Sox

By The Associated Press
Two years ago, the big story in Kansas City was George Brett's run at a .400 batting average. The question this season is whether the Royals as a team can hit .300.

"When you look at our lineup, we have good hitters one through nine," Manager Dick Howser said Monday night after the Royals pounded out 18 hits, including three doubles and two triples, in thrashing the Chicago White Sox 11-4. "There is really not an easy out in the lineup." The barrage lifted the Royals' team batting average to .294, tops in the major leagues. They also lead the American League with 96 doubles and 23 triples.

Willie Wilson and John Wathan each collected three hits while Onix Concepcion drove in two runs for the Royals. Every Kansas City starter had a hit and scored at least one run and only Amos Otis failed to drive in a run. The White Sox led 4-1 after 4½ innings — Harold Baines hit a two-run homer in the fourth — but Kansas City knocked out Britt Burns with five runs in the fifth and added five more in the sixth.

Besides the 18 hits against Burns and two relief pitchers, Kansas City also capitalized on Chicago's sloppy fielding and five walks to hand the White Sox their fourth consecutive loss. It was enough to prompt Manager Tony LaRussa to hold a team meeting after the game.

"Basically, we talked about how we stunk up the joint. There were 40,000-plus who were witnesses," LaRussa said. "We played bad. I don't think we quit, we just played bad."

Tigers 4, Angels 3
Lou Whitaker's two-out single with the bases loaded in the ninth inning drove in the tying runs and pinch hitter Jerry Turner singled in the winning run as Detroit scored three times to beat California. California reliever Doug Corbett retired the first two batters in the ninth before singles by Richie Hebner and Larry Herndon and a walk to Lance Parrish loaded the bases for Whitaker.

Elias Sosa held the Angels to one hit over the final three innings to gain the victory in relief after the Angels got home runs from Brian Downing and Bobby Grich in taking a 3-0 lead against Larry Pashnick.

Blue Jays 5, Yankees 4
Rance Mulliniks drove in three runs with a pair of doubles as Toronto snapped the Yankees' three-game winning streak and stretched its only string of victories to three. Mulliniks gave the Blue Jays the lead for good at 2-1 in the third inning when he doubled off Roger Erickson to score Alfredo Griffin and Damaso Garcia, who had singled. Mulliniks doubled another run across in the fifth and scored what proved to be the winning run on a double by Willie Upshaw. Graig Nettles and Roy Smalley homered for New York.

Indians 9, Twins 4
Von Hayes drove in five runs with a homer, double and a bases-loaded walk and Andre Thornton also homered to spark Cleveland to its eighth consecutive victory and saddle the Twins with their 12th straight loss. Minnesota's losing streak matches this season's major league high established by the Texas Rangers and is one short of the all-time Minnesota record of 13 set in 1961. Hayes' three-run homer capped a four-run first inning and Thornton's 14th home run of the season made it 7-3 in the third.

Orioles 8, Rangers 7
Rookie Cal Ripken Jr. stole home to break a sixth-inning tie, Al Bumbry followed with a run-scoring single and Ken Singleton hit a two-run homer to cap a decisive three-run eighth inning. Ripken, who had an RBI double in the second inning, started the sixth with a single and took third on Lenn Sakata's two-out single. The Orioles' 8-3 lead was just enough to offset a four-run Texas ninth on Leon Roberts' three-run homer and a solo shot by Larry Parrish. Randy Bass and Billy Sample also homered for Texas.

Mariners 5, Brewers 4
Rookie Paul Serna's second homer of the game, a two-run shot with one out in the bottom of the 11th, gave Seattle its eighth victory in the last nine games. With one out, Lenny Randle singled off the leg of pitcher Jerry Augustine and Serna, who hit a solo homer in the seventh, hit the game-winner. All of Milwaukee's runs came on solo homers — two by Robin Yount and two by Cecil Cooper. Al Cowens also homered for Seattle, while Bruce Bochte of the Mariners tied the score with a two-out single in the bottom of the ninth.

Pepsi-Cola 12
Famous Subs 10
Pepsi-Cola outlasted Famous Subs, 12-10, in a Babe Ruth League baseball game last night.

Pepsi jumped into the lead in the first inning, scoring four times, then getting three in the second for a 7-0 lead.

But Famous Subs rallied in the third for three, then got one in the fourth. Both teams scored twice in the fifth, and Famous Subs added one in the sixth to close within 9-7.

Pepsi then closed them out with three in the top of the seventh. Kelly Parrish walked as did Mitch Phillips and Mark Nover, loading the bases. Sterling Edwards was hit by a pitch, forcing in one run, and walks to Les Turner and Hal Priestly brought in the other two runs.

Famous tried to rally, but fell two short in the bottom of the inning.

Edwards led the Pepsi hitting with two, while no one had more than one for Famous.

yesterday in the North State Little League.

Jason Wing got the lone hit of the day in the first inning, as Coburn struck out eight and walked two.

The Jaycees were held in check too until the fifth inning when they struck for two runs. Mario Davis reached on an error and Brian Pierce walked. A passed ball let Davis score, and after Brian Wille walked, Bruce Koonce reached on an error, scoring Pierce.

The Jaycees got only two hits off the combined pitching of Dee Williams and Jamie Brewington.

Carroll & Assoc. 5
True Value 3
Billy Carr scored three runs, including the last as Carroll & Associates gained a 5-3 victory over True Value Hardware in the Tar Heel Little League yesterday.

Carroll grabbed the lead in the first inning, but True Value pushed over two runs in the top of the third to tie it up. Carroll went back out with one in the third, but True Value again tied it in the fourth.

Finally, in the fifth, Carroll pushed over two runs to take the win. Lloyd May walked and stole up, scoring when Carr singled. An error on the play allowed Carr to circle the bases with the final run of the day.

No one on either team had more than one hit, and True Value's Chris Bender allowed only two by the winners.

Red Sox 5, A's 2
Rick Miller hit a two-out grand slam home run in the fourth inning after Oakland botched a double play. Miller hit his third career grand slam off Bo McLaughlin to erase a 1-0 Oakland lead. McLaughlin retired the first batter in the fourth before Carney Lansford got an infield hit. Dave Stapleton grounded to second baseman Davey Lopes, who tried to start a double play by tagging Lansford. However, Lansford eluded the tag and Lopes threw wildly past first base trying to get Stapleton.

Stapleton went to second and Lansford, who was on the bag, was then caught in a rundown between second and third. McLaughlin then loaded the bases for Miller by hitting Glenn Hoffman with a pitch and walking Gary Allenson. Rickey Henderson and Tony Armas homered for Oakland.

"Once the runner (Lansford) stopped between first and second, he (Lopes) should have thrown to first to get the batter. We still could have gotten Lansford in a rundown," said A's Manager Billy Martin.

Paul Brown and Steve Strickland had two hits each for Bethel, now 1-4. Brown had a solo home run and Strickland a two-run shot.

Two members of the Rose High School tennis team were selected to the All-Conference list picked last night by the Big East coaches.

Selected from Rose were Steve Holloman, who played number one, and Paul Farley, who played at two, three, or four throughout the season.

A total of 12 players were chosen to the team. Wilson Fike, which won the conference championship, had four chosen. They included Tom Benson, John Lowe, Jimmy Silverthorne and Lee Giarmis.

Others picked included Bradley Herring and Pinky Jefferson of Wilson Hunt; Terry Gratz and Chris Janelle of Rocky Mount; Tommy Sanders of Northern Nash; and Ken Smith of Northeastern.

Mears' Slow Pace May Have Prevented Injuries

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Polesitter Rick Mears, blamed by some for a five-car mishap in an aborted start of the 1982 Indianapolis 500, may have prevented serious injury by the pace he set in bringing the 33-car field toward the start-finish line.

"Rick brought us down too slow," said three-time Indy 500 winner Johnny Rutherford. "Rick fell too far behind the pace car."

Mears said he was following the instructions of race officials "not to speed up, then slow down and speed up again" and that as the man on the pole he could drive "as quick or as slow as he liked."

"On the bright side, they were going fairly slow when the accident happened. And now I have something to use as an example next year when I warn them (the drivers) about the start," said Chief Steward Tom Binford.

The accident knocked four cars out of the race with some drivers blaming Kevin Cogan, who was starting in the middle of the three-car front row.

"It looked like Cogan was looking for trouble," said Mario Andretti, who had his car eliminated from the race along with those driven by Cogan, Roger Mears and Dale Whittington. "He was accelerating and all of a sudden, he crossed in front of me. He was crowding Foyt and wasn't paying attention."

Gordon Johncock, who scored his second Indianapolis victory by nipping Mears in the closest finish in 66th running of the race, declined to blame anyone.

"We were running pretty slow," he said, adding that the mishap might not have taken place on a wider track or in a race when only two cars are in each row.

"Here he didn't have anywhere to go," said Johncock, who was directly behind Cogan as the field moved toward the starting line for the green flag that would signal the start of the race. "He tried to straighten it out. I think he got it pretty well straightened up at one time, until he clipped A.J. (Foyt) on the left front. Then he veered over to the other side of the racetrack and Mario hit him broadside."

Johncock said it was possible the accident, in which none of the drivers were injured, might not have happened if Mears had been going quicker.

"I think we should have a faster start," said Johncock. "But that's up to the steward, to tell him how fast to go at the start. I don't know if that was ever discussed in the meeting after the driver's meeting. I wasn't there when they met with the front row."

"It's my opinion they should come down in third gear at 110 or 120 mph. There's nobody to tell him 'you're going to be penalized if you don't come down at 100,'" he said.

Cogan said mechanical problems led to the mishap and Binford said he did not know what caused the problem.

"I've thought back over it," Binford said. "Rick brought them down very well when he was on the pole before (in 1979), and on the second start (Sunday). Why he came down at that speed (on the first start) only he knows."

"We like the cars to speed up gradually. The safety factor is that they are generally in a higher gear and not as much acceleration is needed get to racing speed. I'd say that 160 or 170 (mph) is a good racing start."

"I don't know how fast Rick was going, but I'd say maybe he had them at 120 by the time they got to the line. Of course, it's not proven that the speed at the start was a major contributing factor in the accident. Kevin's car just veered right."

Third in a series of conversations with Linwood Mercer...

"In business, it's my job to squeeze productivity out of every dollar. As your State Senator, I'll remember my job."

State Government is actually the largest business in North Carolina. It takes in revenues — our taxes — and distributes these revenues to provide services.

"As a small businessman myself, I've definite ideas about how our government's business should be run. First, priorities must be set. Then the budget should be allocated to accomplish those goals.

"My priorities are with people, both the people of our Senate District who receive services from State Government and the people who work for State Government to provide those services.

"We deserve the agricultural, education, transportation and human resources programs our state provides. We pay for these services. And, as State Senator, it will be my job to make sure our area receives the services to which we are entitled.

"But, the people who work for State Government deserve to be compensated for their efforts on our behalf if they are to have the morale and motivation to serve us. In troubled economic times, politicians often react to decreased revenues by eliminating jobs or decreasing salaries. Neither alternative is fair to the people who serve us. Fewer agricultural extension agents cannot offer us the same support. Teachers who are denied wage increases soon lose the incentives to teach our children. I believe there is a better method of coping with the reduced revenue problems we are now experiencing...reducing costs.

"The challenge in governing our state during the coming years will be to provide services efficiently. Instead of raising taxes and eliminating jobs, we need to seek out methods of providing more from less. As founder and president of two small businesses, I feel the same principles of management must be applied in Raleigh.

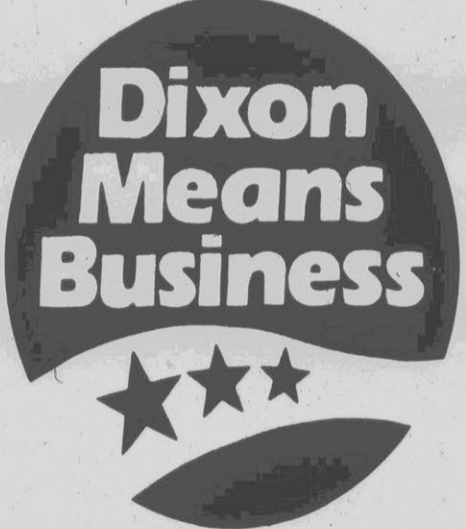

"I want the job as your State Senator. And, you can count on my efforts to help make our tax money more productive."

Roger Penske Feels Speed Can Be Safe

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — How much faster can racing machines go without turning the Indianapolis 500 into a carnage or blunting the enthusiasm of its legion of fans? "Speed isn't a killer — it's loss of concentration and foolish human errors that cause accidents just as it is every day on our roads and highways," insists Roger Penske, head of the $250 million car-building corporation that bears his name. "Remember while speeds were escalating, until Gordon Smiley's accident in trials this year we hadn't had a casualty here since 1973. "No matter how many rules they impose to reduce power, human ingenuity will find ways to make the car go faster. All the while, measures are taken to make them safer." Penske, a onetime driver himself who turned his skills in another direction, is merely enunciating a fact of life. Man will continue to dare. He will soar to the moon, scale the highest mountains, defy the most treacherous rapids and, in auto racing, shoot for endless new plateaus of speed. It's ingrained in the human soul.

Penske, who put Rick Mears in the fastest car in the 66th Indy 500 Sunday only to see him beaten by an eyelash by plucky Gordon Johncock, now goes back to the drawing boards. "We never stop experimenting," he said. "New technology never ends." Auto racing has come a long way since June 1895, when 22 primitive cars, averaging 15 mph, made the 750-mile round trip run from Paris to Bordeaux, the first recorded auto race.

The first Indy 500 was run on Memorial Day, 1911. The cars were open two-seaters, with a mechanic sitting behind the driver. Ray Harroun was the initial winner, averaging 75 mph. By the end of World War II the roadster had developed into a long, sleek machine with the power train on the left side to help keep it low on the turns. That was the age of the Offenhauser engines. No more. Today the cars are winged missiles, low to the ground, hoods like arrowheads, massive tires 19 inches across, a sophisticated power plant and such innovations as ground effects, a concept in aerodynamics that keeps the car hugging the ground. The fuel isn't ordinary gasoline. It's methanol, and the machines burn it up at the rate of 1.6 miles a gallon in their blistering speeds in excess of 200 mph.

The early pace-setter Sunday, A.J. Foyt, Jr., was clocked at 218 mph on the straightaway before a defective fuel pump knocked his car out of the race. Drivers, wearing fireproof underwear and jump suits, visored helmets and other protective gear, are squeezed into a tiny cockpit. They might as well be in straight jackets. The whole scene is like something out of "Star Wars."

While auto racing, like thoroughbred racing, is supposed to be a means of improving the breed, these whining ground torpedoes haven't the slightest resemblance to the family jaloxy. "That's very true," concedes Penske, a handsome, silver-haired man of 45, "but we shouldn't forget that many of the improvements and safety features of the present-day passenger car were pioneered in racing cars. "We were the first to use disc brakes, seat belts, shoulder harness and wide, tubeless tires. Our present cars are equipped with an apparatus to lock the fuel tank in a crash, thus preventing fire."

rightfielder Bill Herrett and Ginn are at 324. Ream leads the team in home runs (six) and runs batted in (23). Ginn has five home runs.

"At the beginning of the year our pitching was our strong suit," Lancaster said. "But then all of a sudden our bats came around and they carried us for awhile. But then in the two playoff games we've had our problems."

The Warriors won their first 18 games before dropping back-to-back decisions to New Hanover and Southern Wayne, a team they had beaten twice already. They came back to avenge the loss to New Hanover in the playoffs.

"We made a couple of errors at New Hanover (the first time) and we had some unfortunate calls," Lancaster said. "I think we wanted 'em too bad in the playoffs."

"Before the game I remember some of the guys they were going to stick it to 'em, but we just weren't under control," he said. "I think the pressure has got to us some, and that could be a factor (tonight)."

"They've got a good, solid ball team. I've seen a number of teams capable of beating them on a given day. It's going to be some kind of baseball game. Both teams are a lot alike and I think we match up well."

Notes... •Ayden-Grifton, the ECC regular season champion, played Eastern Wayne in a scrimmage game prior to the season. The Chargers "lost" the game, 3-1.

•Lancaster said the layoff between tonight's game and the state finals, which begin June 10, is too long and that state should consider making the semifinals a best two-out-of-three series.

"I don't think it's fair that you can come this far and then lose maybe on an error by a kid who hasn't made an error all year," Lancaster said. "If they just beat us, or if we just beat them, that's fine."

"But, if we're going to have this kind of layoff maybe we should go to a best two-out-of-three."

Wilander Becomes Darkhorse

PARIS (AP) — Mats Wilander has made his mark on the French Open tennis tournament no matter what lies ahead for him in this Grand Slam event. The 17-year old Swede has given the spectators a darkhorse to root for and impressed his fellow players with his promise.

Wilander, who played No. 5 seed Vitas Gerulaitis today in a quarterfinal match, still had everyone talking of his upset of second-seeded Ivan Lendl. That five-set shocker Sunday, the biggest surprise so far in the two-week clay court tournament, snapped a winning streak that had placed the Czech play-court specialist in the finals of the last 18 tournaments he has played.

"Wilander's style, which is not unlike that of his famed compatriot Bjorn Borg, has drawn compliments from players still in contention for Sunday's $66,000 title match. "I watched a little of the Wilander-Lendl match and it gas like Wilander was on No-Doz or something," No. 2 seed Jimmy Connors said Monday after he advanced into the quarterfinals with a 6-1, 6-0, 6-4 victory over fellow American Chip Hooper. "Wilander is a very good player." Connors, who has yet to reach the finals of any French Open tournament, plays again Wednesday against Spain's Jose Higuera. Higuera, ranked 17th worldwide, advanced with a 6-4, 6-2, 6-0 upset over No. 6 seed Eliot Teltscher of the United States, ranked seventh nationally, who has now lost to Higuera in four of their nine encounters.

The Spaniard, who two weeks ago defeated John McEnroe to capture the title at a Grand Prix tournament in Hamburg, West Germany, has a 1-1 record against Wilander this year. "He's a good player whose going to get much better," Higuera said of Wilander, who has risen 265 spots in the world rankings in the past 18 months to 18th place. "I saw his match against Lendl and it impressed me how strong his mind is for such a young player."

Wilander celebrates his 18th birthday August 22. If he wins the title in Paris, Wilander would end Borg's distinction of being the youngest French Open champion. Borg won the first of his six French titles in 1974 six days after his 18th birthday. Borg is not going for a seventh title this year. He announced last month that he was canceling the rest of his 1982 tournaments because of a dispute with the Tennis Pro Council over the number of events he should enter.

Gerulaitis defeated Wilander in the finals of a tournament in Brussels in March. Their quarterfinal meeting marked their first encounter since Belgium. In other men's quarterfinal matches at Roland Garros Stadium, Argentine Jose Luis Clerc, the No. 4 seed, met Australian Peter McNamara, seeded seventh.

Third-seeded Tracy Austin, making her first career appearance in Paris, went against defending champion Hana Mandlikova, the No. 5 seed from Czechoslovakia, in one of today's two women's quarterfinal matches. The other was between Martina Navratilova, seeded No. 2, and unseeded Zina Garrison of Houston, who has been the big surprise in the women's division.

McNamara needed less than 10 minutes to complete a two-day win over No. 9 seed Andres Gomez of Ecuador. The Australian was leading 6-1, 5-7, 6-3, 3-6 with the tiebreaker in the final set tied at 9-9 Sunday night when darkness halted the match. McNamara took both games Monday for an 11-9 win in the tiebreaker.

In other matches, Argentine Guillermo Vilas reached the quarterfinals with a 6-2, 6-3, 6-1 victory over unseeded Andreas Maurer of West Germany. Vilas, ranked fourth worldwide, is the only men's player who has not lost a set. Vilas will meet Frenchman Yannick Noah, the No. 8 seed, in the quarterfinals. Noah lost two sets Monday before eliminating unseeded Wojtek Fibak of Poland 4-6, 6-7, 6-4, 6-4, 6-3 in a four-hour battle. Chris Evert Lloyd, favored to win her fifth French Open, moved into the semifinals by defeating unseeded Lucia Romanov of Romania 6-2, 6-4. It was Lloyd's 21st victory on clay in the 221 matches she has played on that surface since September 1973.

American Andrea Jaeger, who turns 17 Friday, also made it into the semifinals with a 6-1, 6-0 romp over Romania's Virginia Ruzicia, the No. 11 seed. Jaeger will play Lloyd in the semifinals on Wednesday.

FLIES

Flee, Fly!

The common housefly is actually a wonder of nature. It has four extra hearts to keep its beautiful iridescent wings buzzing at 200 beats a second — compared to 75 for hummingbirds. It can land upside down or stay aloft for hours. The common housefly — one of 85,000 species of flies — can be found from the Sahara to the Arctic. But it is more than an annoying pest. Its dirty feet and spittle help spread cholera, tuberculosis, typhoid, dysentery and many other diseases. June is designated "Fight the Filthy Fly Month," the time to kill the critters before they spread. In just one summer two little flies could theoretically multiply into more than 5 trillion offspring.

The program is designed to be of general interest to all beachgoers, young and old, and of special interest to lifeguards, rescue squad personnel, and others who work with the public along the North Carolina beaches.

For more information, interested persons are to call the Marine Resources Center at 726-0121.

GIANT BABY — Mrs. Christina Samane is shown with her 22-pound baby boy, the biggest ever recorded in South Africa Transkei, which was born on May 24 by Caesarian section. He is the fifth child born to the mother. Doctors said the mother was doing well but the baby and Mrs. Samane would be kept at the hospital for an extended period because she could not afford to feed the infant. Before the birth, doctors said they believed the mother was extraordinarily large because of excess fluids. (AP Laserphoto)

Beach Thefts Are Part Of Risks On A Holiday

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. (AP) — Young, tan and clad in swimsuits, they may be lounging on a beach towel next to yours, waiting for you to get up and take a splash.

Then, while you're frolicking in the surf, they slide onto your towel as if it belongs to them.

After a few minutes, they quickly scoop up your wallet, watch and hotel room key and walk away.

That's the scenario for one of the most common crimes against tourists on the Virginia Beach oceanfront, says Sgt. Daniel H. Kappers, crime prevention coordinator for the city's Police Department.

The next most common offense is the use of a stolen room key to clean out the tourist's belongings — usually before he notices his key is gone, Kappers said.

From Memorial Day to Labor Day, when an estimated 2.5 million tourists visit the oceanfront, "it's party time at the beach," Kappers said.

"The idea people come into town with is that they don't want to worry about anything and they feel like they're in a crowd that feels the same way. They tend to let down on the security they maintain in their hometowns."

It's the tourists' carefree attitude that makes their property easy pickings for thieves, Kappers said.

Statistics for the 2nd Precinct, which includes the oceanfront, show that burglaries and larcenies nearly double during the summer — when hotel rooms, automobiles and beach towels are key targets for thieves.

During June, July and August of last year, 195 burglaries occurred in the 2nd Precinct, compared with 96 in the previous three months.

Also in 1981, 1,369 larcenies were reported in the three summer months, compared with 774 during March, April and May.

"The biggest problem tourists are going to have in our city is larcenies from automobiles, locked or unlocked, parked on the beachfront from Fort Story to Sandbridge," Kappers said.

The thieves, usually teen-agers, prowl the oceanfront in search of vehicles with out-of-state license tags and valuables visible from the outside, he said. The reason they prefer out-of-staters is that those tourists will be least likely to return and prosecute, Kappers said.

"Nothing is better for them than to hit a French Canadian car. What person from Ontario is going to come back because he lost $300?"

The best way for visitors to prevent car break-ins and beach-towel heists is to lock their valuables in car trunks, he said.

"These people (the thieves) are looking for easy pickings. If somebody's standing there with a clothes-hanger trying to pop the lock on a car (door), nobody's going to pay much attention to him. They'll say, 'Look at that poor guy who locked himself out of his car.' "But standing over a trunk with a crowbar is something different," Kappers said.

Smugglers' Vessel Is Now In Research

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Scientists seeking information about the ocean are getting the services of a vessel once used to smuggle contraband marijuana onto the U.S. coast.

The Research Vessel Seahawk was dedicated Monday, eight months behind schedule. Following a series of tests by National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration officials, the craft will be a transport from New England to the Gulf of Mexico for scientists collecting data about the sea.

NOAA provided the money for the project, organized by the Southeastern Consortium for Underwater Research. The University of North Carolina at Wilmington is SECURE's lead agency, and UNC-W marine sciences professor Gilbert Bane serves as the program's director.

"We had originally planned going to sea for local missions last fall with the vessel partly complete — without the new bunks and some of the other conveniences," Bane said. But delays in getting needed equipment forced officials to delay going to sea, he said.

"Then the people who gave us the money (NOAA) said, 'Here's the rest, go ahead and get it completely finished.' So now it's all done."

So far, SECURE has accepted six scientific expeditions for this summer, Bane said.

One trip, organized by the N.C. Division of Marine Fisheries, will involve plotting the exact positions of artificial reefs created along the state's coast. Divers also will be studying the organisms that are growing on those reefs, Bane said.

Another venture, a joint project by officials in Georgia, Florida, North Carolina and South Carolina, will study the effect on reefs of fishing operations known as roller rigs.

Roller rigs are shrimp trawlers that have turned to dragging the ocean floor for finfish. Some fishermen fear roller rigs will destroy reefs, eventually destroying the fish that depend on those reefs for food.

Crowd Beaches During Holiday

By The Associated Press
Record-breaking crowds lined North Carolina's beaches for Memorial Day, but officials reported that a massive traffic jam was about the only serious problem to mar the holiday.

"We couldn't see any vacancy signs," said Ralph Buxton, president of the Outer Banks Chamber of Commerce, which took an informal poll of inns from Duck to Nags Head. Buxton estimated that 100,000 people jammed the area for the weekend and said motel and cottage occupancy was between 80 and 90 percent.

Bumper-to-bumper traffic was reported on most major roads leading away from the beaches at the end of the first big weekend of the tourist season.

"All our facilities were bursting at the seams," said Paul F. McCrary, assistant superintendent at Cape Hatteras National Seashore.

Milton R. Rice, Wrightsville Beach police captain, reported a "record-breaking" crowd on his three-mile beach beat and estimated at least 25,000 sun worshippers.

"There was still space to lay out a towel but no space to park to lay out a towel," Rice said.

Officials at Wrightsville Beach, Cape Hatteras, Kill

Devil Hills and Nags Head reported that the weekend was quiet except for a high number of parking violations.

Boaters also crowded waterways in pursuit of recreation from the stifling humidity and heat that topped 90 degrees in many areas.

The swing-span Coinjock Bridge opened 150 times Friday through Monday to allow passage of about 200 boats on the Albemarle and Chesapeake Canal. A Cape Hatteras Coast Guard spokesman said charter fishing boats were "just packed" at Diamond Shoals off Hatteras.

Endorsement By Pitt PACE

AYDEN — The Pitt County PACE (Political Action Committee for Education) chapter of the North Carolina Association of Educators has announced its endorsement of Ivan Hill for the Ayden seat on the Pitt County Board of Education subject to the June 29 election.

Lula Cannon, a teacher at Ayden Middle School and president of the Pitt County NCAE, said PACE made its declaration of support at a meeting last week.

PACE also interviewed candidates for the Pitt County Commissioners and was unable to reach a consensus, she said. Committee members, however, pointed out that "Mr. Robert Halstead and Mr. Charles McLawhorn are both sensitive to the needs of education," Ms. Cannon said.
