Poised For Stanley Blow

By The Associated Press
British forces consolidated their grip on the high ground overlooking the Falkland Islands capital of Stanley today, moving up reinforcements to launch a final assault unless the Argentine garrison surrenders.

Argentina sent a military delegation to the United Nations, but there was little expectation a peaceful settlement could be achieved.

Sources in London said the British troops outside Stanley might delay their advance for two or three days, until troops moving up from the west and southwest bring the assault force to some 4,000 men.

Meanwhile, British artillery on the heights, warships on the sea side and Harrier jet fighters were expected to give the Argentine positions a constant pounding.

"Stanley is cut off. Time is on our side. The Argentines have nowhere to go, and they know it," said one source in London.

Argentina's ruling junta dispatched three high-ranking military officers to U.N. headquarters in New York to try to make peace. But Foreign Minister Nicanor Costa Mendez said they "aren't carrying any new proposals." And Gen. Mario Menendez, the Argentine governor of the Falklands, delivered a rousing martial broadcast to his estimated 6,000 troops, calling them "To arms! To combat!"

Menendez told his men: "Argentina is watching us — our parents, wives, girl friends, children. ... We not only have to defeat them (the British), but we must do it in such a way that their defeat is so crushing that they will never again dare to invade our land."

The British Defense Ministry continued a virtual blackout on news of current military operations. But correspondents with the British forces, in dispatches passed by the censors, reported the capture of 1,535-foot Mount Kent 12 miles west of Stanley, and Bob McGowan of the London Daily Express said marine commandos stormed the strategically vital Two Sisters ridge three miles closer to the town.

"Opposition throughout was slight," McGowan reported. "We found enemy trenches with boots, ammunition and clothing still in them, indicating that the Argentines ran when they saw the British sweeping in on them."

The Argentine junta acknowledged indirectly that the British had taken Mount Kent but claimed they were unable to advance. A spokesman for the joint chiefs of staff said as a result of Argentine bombing, "British forces stayed on Mount Kent. They have not passed Mount Kent."

Another 3,500 British troops are reported to have landed north of Stanley, but the Defense Ministry has not confirmed this and there has been no mention of their location in correspondents' reports from the British task force.

Losses on both sides increased. Britain said 250 Argentine soldiers were killed in the fighting for Goose Green Saturday, raising the known total of Argentine dead and missing in the conflict to more than 650.

Ten-Day Effort
Reagan Starts European Tour

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan set off today on his first European trip since taking office, declaring himself proud to represent the United States and promising to try to bolster the unity of the major industrial democracies.

Embarking on a 10-day tour, Reagan made a farewell speech to 200 top-level government officials, including members of the Cabinet, the Joint Chiefs of Staff and members of Congress who gathered in the White House East Room.

"I can only tell you that I shall be more proud than I've ever been of anything to be there representing the United States, with an opportunity once again to express to all of the world what it is we think we represent, what it is we want for all the people of the world," he told his cheering audience.

The president then headed for Andrews Air Force Base, Md., by helicopter for a flight that will reach Paris shortly before midnight in the French capital.

The trip includes visits to four countries and two summit meetings — an economic conference in Versailles outside Paris and a NATO meeting in Bonn, West Germany.

"There's been nearly a decade of troubling events and uncertainty among the allies and ourselves," the president said, "but today there is a regrowth of unity and purpose, and I hope that this trip will contribute to that and increase it."

Reagan said the United States and its allies had "weathered threats of aggression and internal disagreements, but we've maintained a sense of unity and a commitment to freedom and we're still being tested, possibly more now than ever before.

"It's important for that reason to meet and renew our bond," the president declared.

"I know there are some who question the value of the alliance, who view it as cumbersome and at times unresponsive to the need for action," he said.

"And there are those people still in our land who yearn for the isolationist shell. But because we've rejected those other courses back over the recent decades, there has been peace for almost 40 years on the Western front."

Reagan said the United States "never sought the leadership that was thrust upon us at the end of World War II. But what we have done, I think, in this last year is reaffirm to our friends abroad and to possible adversaries that we accept that responsibility."

He said that at the first summit, the Versailles economic conference, "we should see more clearly where and how we mean to have a better economic future."

He said he would propose "regular and closer consultation among us so we can together pursue economic policies that move in the same direction, first to reduce inflation and then to have greater monetary and fiscal discipline."

At the NATO meeting in Bonn, he said, the United States "will have a chance to explain in detail plans for engaging the Soviet Union in realistic arms reduction talks." He had announced last week those talks would begin June 29.

The president said Tuesday that U.S.-European ties are closer than they have been "for some years." He added: "I think we're seeing much more eye-to-eye than we have in the past."

But he told European reporters in a live television interview that he wonders whether opponents overseas "think I am a threat to peace" as a result of "some imagery that has been concocted for them."

The president said he would seek to portray himself "as someone who believes very much" in the U.S.-European alliance.

The president's aides, who requested anonymity, have emphasized efforts at winning popular support in Europe almost as much as they have stressed the substantive issues of high interest rates and protectionism, key topics at the economic summit conference that is the first major event on the president's schedule.

The interview with European reporters on the eve of Reagan's departure was the latest in a White House effort to soften the president's image in Europe.

Administration officials, who spoke on condition they not be identified, have acknowledged that they are anticipating demonstrations in Europe protesting the president's proposals to increase defense spending.

Pitt Education Board OKs Title I And Migrant Budgets

By MARY SCHULKEN
Reflector Staff Writer

A $1 million-plus 1982-83 Title I budget and a $90,000 migrant budget received the stamp of approval from the Pitt County Board of Education Tuesday pending continuation of federal funds for these programs.

A projected $1,195,500 in funds for Title I was accepted, along with $90,500 for the county's migrant program. Both programs are federally funded, explained Title I Director Sue Branch, and final figures remain uncertain until monies for their operation are earmarked by the federal budget.

The migrant budget is cut $1,099 from the 1981-82 total of $91,599, according to Ms. Branch, and provides the county with two full-time positions and four half-time teachers. There are 196 migrant students in the county, she added, and the program serves 125 in 13 schools. In 1982-83, Sam Bundy, Pactolus, G.R. Whitfield and Falkland will not receive service because of the decrease in funds.

County achievement tests scores have been received, noted Assistant Superintendent John McKnight, and tentative results tabulated. "We are at a place now where we have strived to be for a long while," he said. "We are at or above grade level in all subject areas."

California Achievement Test scores at North Pitt remain below those at the other three high schools, noted board Chairman Mark Owens. According to tentative information released by McKnight, North Pitt scored at a level of 9.3 in total language, compared with 11 at Ayden-Grifton, 10.4 at D.H. Conley and 10 at Farmville Central. In total math, North Pitt's score was 8.9, compared with 10 at Ayden-Grifton, 9.6 at D.H. Conley and 9.5 at Farmville Central.

"I don't have an explanation for this," said McKnight, "and I would only comment that it is consistent throughout the testing."

FARMVILLE — Farmville Commissioners Tuesday night reversed a decision by Mayor Rusty Duke to relieve John W. Downs of his duties as town planner.

Duke stated in a memo to the board, "The mayor is notifying the town board of the concentration of John W. Downs and his staff on the planning and construction and other duties arising on the new Community Center and the Community Development Block Grant program. In view of the fact that the primary duty of John Downs is director of the Community Development Block Grant program, it appears that he must be relieved from his duties as town planner. He will remain available to the Planning Board to assist the board upon request."

Duke read from minutes of commissioners' meetings to support his contention that Downs was never designated by the board as general town planner, but only as community development director, with duties of coordinating town planning with the CD efforts.

Joe Kue and Charles Joyner, commissioners who were on the board during the previous administration, said they were in on the decision to give Downs planning duties and for the town to pay 25 percent of his salary so he could assume planning duties and relieve the town of the need to pay an assistant town administrator. The board voted for Downs "to continue in his present position," with Kue requesting the mayor "not to assume powers not delegated to him by the board."

After considerable discussion, the board agreed to exchange the site of the No. 2 Wastewater Treatment Plant owned by the town with the F.M. Davis Heirs for a lot at 703

S. George St. and $1,070. The return of the treatment plant site to the Davis heirs reflects the honoring of a recommendation made by the board which acquired the site from the family some years ago that it be returned when it was no longer needed by the town. The George Street property is suitable for use in furthering the goals of the town's Community Development Block Grant program. The town had had a cash offer of $8,000 for the lot, but the would-be buyer, present at the meeting, said he would withdraw his offer in light of the town's need to honor the previous recommendation.

The board voted not to condemn the property of the Luby Baker heirs at 705 S. George St. Condemnation had been considered as a means of combining the lot with an adjacent

While standing in the checkout line last week, I noted that everything in my basket had a stalk of wheat on the package and was stamped "100 percent natural."

Every box, every can, every package contained a disclaimer: NO SALT! SUGAR-FREE! LOW FAT! NO ADDITIVES! LITE! POSITIVELY NO PRESERVATIVES! NO SUBSTITUTES!

Never have I been so paranoid about what goes into my body. Was it only eight or ten years ago when we used to kid around about the late Euell Gibbons coming for lunch and grazing on the front lawn? Now I don't care what cereal tastes like just as long as it has a log cabin with smoke coming out of the chimney on the package and the words, "CONTAINS NATURAL FIBER." It makes me feel virtuous even though I haven't the slightest idea what natural fiber is.

Something very weird has happened to my buying habits. When the kids were growing up I threatened to buy a trough with an entry starting at the stove. It would snake around the kitchen table and return at the kitchen sink. It was my plan to pour the spaghetti, baked beans and chili from the stove to the table and what they didn't eat, hose into the sink. They were meals of convenience. I never squeezed a tomato, looked for brown spots on bananas or put a cantaloupe to my ear to see what month of development it was in.

I bought anything that was stamped 100 percent sugar, vitamin enriched, made with pure cream, real butter, no skimming, artificial coloring added. It was the American dream to eat natural foods that had been improved upon.

Then everyone got on a health kick and word began to trickle down that all the research rats were living longer eating natural. (Or it seemed longer.) The first time I discovered apples didn't grow in cans swimming in heavy syrup was a big day in my life.

The kids don't want to come home anymore. They complain there's nothing to eat.

I told them, "Of course there are things to eat. It's all

Living Drama To Be Held At Tryon Palace

NEW BERN — Visitors to historic Tryon Palace this summer will meet personalities of the period when colonial characters are brought to life for the Palace's Living Drama.

Now in its second summer, the Living Drama offers six historical sketches which allow visitors to experience history on a personal level while enlivening the surroundings of the palace complex.

From June 1 until the end of August, palace visitors will meet historical residents of colonial New Bern. Played by members of the Tryon Palace Players, the characters give insight into the era when the palace was the residence of North Carolina's royal governor.

Featured in the role of Royalist sympathizer Samuel Cornell will be Bud Browning. Now a resident of Pamlico County, he was once a featured regular on television's "Tugboat Annie" series and later appeared as a principal character in Flip Wilson's television comedy "A Salute to Football." He played opposite Richard Conte in the film "The Blast." Since moving to the east coast, Browning has appeared at Virginia's Barter Theatre and at the North Carolina State Theatre at Flat Rock.

Returning to the role of sea captain, Joseph Rilee will be New Bern resident Steven L. Oien. Oien has 20 years experience in broadcasting as well as many years of experience acting in local dramas.

Rilee's daughter, Maggie, will be portrayed by Lynne Barnhardt of Hickory. She graduated this year from East Carolina University with a major in dance and a Appearing as N.C. patriot and Governor Tryon's secretary, Isaac Edwards, is Peter Norton. Currently a resident of New Bern, he attended the Neighborhood Playhouse Theatre in New York City.

Local resident Nancy Blades will assume the role of Molly Thatcher. She was the director of the Albemarle Players in Elizabeth City from 1961 to 1979. She received the Elizabeth City Musician of the Year award in 1972. She is the current director of "Footlight Theatre" here and of the Tryon Palace Players.

Period costumes for the Living Drama were authentically recreated by Patrice E. Alexander of Greenville and Nina Parker of New Bern. Mrs. Alexander was resident designer at East Carolina University and has worked with Equity Library Theatre and Theatre De Lys in off Broadway productions.

Living Drama will be offered as part of the daily tours of Tryon Palace Complex, which is open year round, Tuesday through Saturday from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Sundays from 1:30-4 p.m.

Toddlers Need Watchful Eye

DEAR ABBY: I'm sure everyone has heard of people who have found superhuman strength or courage in times of extreme emergencies.

I just want to write and tell you about my daughter, who is 2 years old. Her best friend is her cousin, who is also 2.

One day while I was on the phone, the two little girls wandered out in the backyard where there is a 10-foot-deep swimming pool. Before I could get off the phone, my little niece had fallen into the deep end of the pool. Before I could get to her, my little 2-year-old girl had already jumped into the pool and pulled her cousin out! It was a miracle. I didn't even know my child could swim, let alone rescue someone. That just goes to show you what a 2-year-old can do.

PROUD MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: I think it is indeed wonderful that your 2-year-old child could save another child's life as yours did, and you have a right to be proud. But I am wondering, "Proud Mother," why two 2-year-olds were allowed to wander unsupervised in the backyard where there was a 10-foot-deep swimming pool?

I'm glad you wrote. It gives me another opportunity to warn parents, grandparents, baby sitters - anyone who is in charge of children: Do not take your eyes off them for 5 seconds! Their lives are in your hands.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 60-year-old single male. I never married because I never met a woman I wanted to spend the rest of my life with. I am not bad looking and don't look my age.

The problem is with a young woman in her early 20s who lives near me in this small town. She has indicated to me many times that she would like to go out with me, but I've pretended not to notice. Then her parents started to put some pressure on me to take her out. I did nothing about it, so now they are very unfriendly to me. I do not want to lose their friendship, but I am not going to date their daughter just to please them.

How should I handle this situation?

BACHELOR BY CHOICE

DEAR BACHELOR: If you lose their friendship because you refuse to date their daughter, you haven't lost much. Clear the air by telling them that you would not feel comfortable dating a girl who is young enough to be your daughter.

"Where Parents Leave With Confidence and Children Learn With Love"

TEACHING EXPERIMENT — Headmistress Sheila Greenfield presides over class at Lagan College, Northern Ireland's only interdenominational school. Despite early success, Mrs. Greenfield says the school needs money for a new location more accessible to bus transport. (AP Laserphoto)

A Look At An Integrated School In Northern Ireland

By CHARLES J. HANLEY
Associated Press Writer
BELFAST (AP) — "Have you got integrated schools in America?" asked young Noel McGuigan. "Do you have them between Indian kids and whites, between black kids and whites?"
Twelve-year-old Noel and his classmates at Lagan College are the "black and white kids" of Belfast. Roman Catholic and Protestant children who have been brought together in an experiment that many here hope will help break down the sectarian walls that have divided this land for generations.

Their school, evenly mixed with children of both faiths, is unique in Northern Ireland, where a rigidly segregated education system, segregated neighborhoods and a decade of Catholic-Protestant violence have created an atmosphere of distrust, hatred and fear.

The philosophy of year-old Lagan College — to nurture understanding between Northern Ireland's two communities by schooling their children together — already seems to have changed some attitudes.

"I didn't know what the Catholic boys would be like when I came here," Jonathan McBride, 12, told a visitor. "I thought they'd fight me or something if they found out I was Protestant... But I've found out about Catholics. They're not like that. We're all just sort of one."

Lagan College, a private, five-year secondary school, opened last September with one first-level class that now numbers 20 boys and 11 girls. Its sponsors intend to have as many as 300 students in four classes by 1984, thereby qualifying for state aid.

Meanwhile, they say they urgently need money to survive, including $288,000 for new and larger quarters to replace their present two-classroom schoolhouse, a hilltop building in suburban Castlereagh whose lease expires next month. Lagan College principal Sheila Greenfield says a central location more accessible to bus transport is needed for Irish school system through next fall's term.

Despite the financial squeeze, Mrs. Greenfield remains optimistic.
"This is a movement that's grown from the people, from a group of parents," she said. "It's not something imposed from the outside. So that's why I think it's going to be successful."
The school, named for the river that divides Belfast, was established by a parents' group called All Children Together after their efforts to integrate the Northern Irish school system through legislation proved futile. This British province's school population of 300,000 children is roughly half Protestant and half Catholic. By long practice, the Protestant children attend state schools overseen by Protestant churches and operated by overwhelmingly Protestant staffs, and all but a tiny percentage of the Catholic children attend Catholic parochial schools, which are financed largely by the government.

HONEY CARROTS

If you have a sweet tooth, you may want to add extra honey.
1 pound carrots
2 teaspoons cornstarch
1/2 cup orange juice
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons honey
Pare the carrots and with a knife or in a food processor slice them 1/8-inch thick. Steam until tender and drain. In a 2-quart saucepan gradually stir the orange juice into the cornstarch, keeping smooth; add the butter and honey. Cook over moderate heat, stirring constantly, until thickened and clear. Stir in the carrots and reheat. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Boat Ramp Good Idea

We like the idea of a boat ramp in the area of the Town Commons. Boating enthusiasts abound in Greenville, in Pitt County, and throughout Eastern North Carolina with easy access to water. Here, we have an ancient waterway to the coast; and its potential for pleasure traffic is nowhere near being tapped to what you might expect. One could well surmise the local boat ramp would spur the use of the Tar River by hundreds of boaters — present and future — who look on towing boats to more distant launching sites as an unwanted nuisance. American communities to the north, to the south, on the east and west coasts, are alive with marinas and launching ramps. Serving boaters is as much of an industry to them as serving motorists is to the landlocked. The concept of the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce is a good one — though admittedly a luxury item during this period of economic duress. On the other hand, it is not something to file-and-forget. Rather it would be well to have the plans prepared, then held in abeyance until such time as it appears the economy has truly turned the corner into another period of prosperity. Then would be the time to jump on the bandwagon so many others fully appreciate.

Pope's Visit Is Worthwhile

Pope John Paul II has made an historic visit to England. It developed to be a sensitive visit because of the mounting war between Great Britain and Argentina over the Falkland Islands. The pope risked alienating the large Catholic community of South America with his visit to Protestant England. Pope John Paul II could have deferred the visit and waited for a better international atmosphere. He came, however, as a man of peace, praying for an end to the war and seeking better understanding with religious leaders of England. It has been a worthwhile visit and hopefully it can help bring about better understanding among all Christians.

THIS AFTERNOON Back To Dropouts

RALEIGH — He's a 16-year-old who doesn't have many high school friends, whose grades are bad and whose parents don't seem to care. On national statistical models, he's ripe for dropping out of school. According to a recent study of dropouts done by the Burlington school system, he's not the only kid who may be leaving school before he graduates. Dr. Elen Pitillo, Burlington school superintendent, says a recent study in her city found some interesting areas where North Carolina dropouts differ from the national average dropout. The school system found 354 young adults who left Burlington schools during the 1970s. Interviews with these people form the basis of her report.

English. A third of the students felt that school was never hard for them. That's about as far afield of national trends as the Burlington study went. The study followed national trends in reporting that nine of 10 dropouts quit before senior year, that almost all cite age as the reason for their quitting school and that the biggest number of dropouts comes at age 16. About half the dropouts

The interviews show that the dropouts are headed for the same economic condition their parents were in. A third are currently unemployed. Four of 10 work in unskilled jobs. Three of five say they made a mistake dropping out of school and half say a high school diploma is "very necessary" for finding a job. The Burlington study was designed to help educators find potential dropouts long before they decide to quit. "These findings predict that it is possible to predict with a high degree of accuracy which students will become

PAULO'CONNOR

It is generally held that a teen who feels excluded from other students is more likely to drop out of school. But of the Burlington interviewees, four out of five said they had at least one "true friend" in high school and that they felt the people they went to school with were friendly. Another general belief is that parents of dropouts don't encourage their children to do well in school. Seven of 10 interviewees said their parents frequently encouraged them to do well in school. Almost all the rest said they got some encouragement. Three-quarters of the dropouts said their parents tried to dissuade them from quitting school. About half said their parents took part in some school activities. Another surprise: Two out of every five dropouts said math was their favorite subject in school while about the same number said they had the most trouble with were students of average scholastic aptitude and achievement, 40 percent were below average and 10 percent above. Half of the dropouts were retained in at least one high school grade and retention in the ninth grade appears to be a good indicator of future trouble. Family conditions seem to play a big role. Four out of five had parents in semi-skilled or unskilled jobs. Nine of 10 had parents who did not finish high school themselves. Four of five came from the lowest income groups.

Watt Makes The Team

"Who's on first?"
"No, Watt's on first."
"Who is Watt?"
"Watt is the secretary of the Interior. He wants to sell all the mineral rights on federal lands."
"What for?"
"I don't know."
"I thought 'I Don't Know' was on second."
"Watt's on second, too. He's touching all the bases."
"How can Watt be on first and second?"
"Because he's playing both ends against the middle."
"What for?"
"Because Watt doesn't believe you should support large tracts of wilderness which don't produce one nickel for the government."

"If Watt is on first and second, Who is on third?"
"Watt is on third."
"Why is he on third?"
"Because he thinks there is cond, and What is on third and What is also pitching to the coal companies. Then Who is catching?"

"You're wrong again. Watt is catching."
"What is he catching?"
"Hell from the environmentalists, the Sierra Club, the National Audubon Society, and National Wildlife Federation."
"What for?"
"Because he won't play ball with them."
"Who is in the outfield?"
"No, Watt is in the outfield. He's trying to sell it to private developers for resort condominiums."
"How can you have a game if you sell the outfield?"
"Who knows?"
"Isn't there an umpire to call Watt out when he's off base?"
"Watt says he's the umpire and he calls them as he sees them."
"Why doesn't someone kick dirt in his face?"
"Because the President keeps cheering him on from the side."
"What President?"
"Watt's President."
"I thought Reagan was President."
"He is. Reagan is Watt's President."
"You mean Watt doesn't have to follow the book as long as Reagan eggs him on?"
"Watt makes up his own rules as he goes along."
"He sounds like a foul ball."
"He's a hit with the people who hate conservationists."
"What's going to happen to all of us if he wins?"
"Exactly."

To the editor:
Results of the California Achievement Tests are now being disseminated, and several parents have recently asked me, "How can my child's scores be so divergent in reading 'vocabulary' and reading 'comprehension'?" How can he understand the meanings of individual words and still not be able to select main ideas or interpret authors' attitudes? Such a seemingly paradoxical situation is easily understood, however, if parents realize how reading is taught in many classrooms today — from a bottom-up, isolated skills approach, rather than from a top-down concept or meaning-centered approach. Rules and skills can be good clues to children sorting out meaning, but better than all the rules is the confidence that children gain from exposure to books, to adults who care about books, and who care enough to share their time reading and discussing books so that children become excited about the reading process. Children may learn to distinguish words through phonics skills, but they don't learn to READ this way. Children don't learn to read through lists of vocabulary words presented to them before a story is read. They don't learn to read by circling words on a worksheet after a story is "read." They don't learn to read by reading aloud to a teacher who is constantly judging them. They don't learn to read from adults running their fingers along the lines of a teacher's manual. They learn from human beings who talk to them about literature, who listen to what they have to say about literature, who urge them to take risks with print, to make guesses and predictions about words in a CONTEXT of meaning and to confirm their guesses by forging ahead to the larger passage. They learn to read also in great part by WRITING about what they have read and by reading and talking about what they have written. Finally (or primarily) they learn to read through as many varied experiences with the real world as possible, for the child takes just as much from a passage as he can bring to it from his own background.

Rivalries In Inner Circle

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Michael K. Deaver, President Reagan's closest White House aide, moved fast to separate himself from Texas right-wing Republican Clymer Wright when Wright sent a letter to leading Reaganites around the nation pinpointing James Baker III as Reagan's nemesis. Deaver has been Wright's friend and protector within the ranks of Reagan Republicans for years. He was instrumental in making Wright the finance director of the Reagan campaign in Texas. When Wright mailed his letter attacking White House chief of staff Baker, one copy quickly arrived in the White House. Deaver worried that his long friendship with Wright might somehow implicate him in Wright's anti-Baker move. Insiders told us Deaver immediately showed Wright's letter to Reagan and that within "hours" the decision was made for Reagan himself to answer it — with a brutally-frank defense of Baker. But that has by no means ended the conservative assault on Jim Baker. Dole Takes A Dive Sen. Bob Dole infuriated activists in the anti-union national right-to-work movement when he refused to attend a crucial session of the Senate Rules Committee May 20 that needed one additional senator to make a quorum ready to vote rigid new limits on union political spending. With only six senators present, Sen. Charles McMathias, though opposed to the bill, held up proceedings for 45 minutes while agents of conservative Republican senator Jesse Helms sent an S.O.S. to Dole's office. Dole strongly favored the bill that would bar the spending of any compulsory union dues on any political activity. But Dole, tied up with Senate budget matters, sent apologies, even though his vote was just enough to approve the bill. Dole promised old friend Reed Larson, president of the National Right to Work Committee, to help maneuver the bill to passage on the Senate floor as an amendment to a related measure. But some of the 41,000 members of the right-to-work committee in Kansas were furious with Dole and told him so in letters and phone calls that poured into his office. Martial Law Milestone A dramatic presidential announcement that the U.S. will expand its overseas broadcasts is being timed for the six-month anniversary of Poland's martial law crackdown against Solidarity, with the Soviet Eastern European empire as the prime target. That will not come close to satisfying Republican conservatives and anti-Soviet hardliners who want President Reagan to impose new and harsher sanctions on the Soviets. But Eastern European expatriates working to expand voice of America broadcasts believe that broadcasting into the Soviet empire has far more potential than it has ever realized. The president will have just returned from his European grand tour in time to remind the world that martial law has ruled Poland for six months on June 13. With or without any new anti-Soviet sanctions, which are not totally ruled out, the decision to expand foreign broadcasts will give more than symbolic meaning to the memory of a black day in Polish history. Trouble To Emk Although the re-election of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy is a foregone conclusion, disclosures from Richard Wirthlin's opponent, have disturbed Kennedy partisans, particularly his low marks as a "problem solver." Between September 1981 and April 1982, the number of Massachusetts voters who credit Teddy Kennedy with being an "effective" problem-solver had declined from 63 percent to 48 percent. Another Wirthlin question — the possibility of a 1984 Kennedy presidential race — disclosed that 54 percent in his own backyard feel that he either will not run for president or, if he does, will not win. Kennedy remains far ahead of the neophyte Shamie, a highly-successful businessman who never has run for office. Even so, pro-Kennedy voters remain uncomfortably close to the 50 percent line for a popular incumbent — only 53 percent say they would vote for him, with 25 percent undecided. Solzhenitsyn's Alarm The haughty letter to President Reagan from Nobel laureate Alexander Solzhenitsyn regretting Reagan's May 11 luncheon invitation contained the charge that "some U.S. generals" want to destroy the Soviet Russian population by aides for "hostility" to the Russian population of the Soviet Union. "It is strange how Russian national consciousness inspires the greatest fear in the world today for the rulers of the U.S.S.R. — and within your (own) entourage," the great Russian author wrote Reagan. Those words angered White House aides. But when they discovered late last week that Radio Liberty, the semi-independent radio that broadcasts from Munich into the Soviet Union, had broadcast the full letter 11 times on the single day of May 19, these White House aides were livid. Their question: Why on earth should Radio Liberty, the openly-propagandistic voice of the U.S., suggest to Russians that the U.S. military wants to nuke them into kingdom come?

SPEAK OUT!
Many years ago in a small New England town, a Sunday School teacher published a summary of a religious discussion that had taken place in his class. In the course of time, a copy of this pamphlet came to the great Russian writer, Tolstol. It made a great impression on him and led him to write the well-known book "The Kingdom of God is Within You". Tolstol's book was soon translated and read everywhere. And down in South Africa, an Indian lawyer named Gandhi read it. According to his later statements, that was one of the forces which led him back to free his countrymen and change the course of history for India. The words of a few people in an obscure community altered the lives of millions of people. The lesson is that we should not stifle our next impulse to speak the right words. We never know how far and how magnificently they may be echoed. — Elisha Douglass

Shadow Of Debt Is Prevailing

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Credit problems pervade the American economy, farm and factory, individual and corporation, borrower and lender, big business and small, seller and buyer, public sector and private. Since it has so much to do with the amount of money and debt, and the overall monetary policy of the country, the Federal Reserve Bank is now in one of its most powerful and critical roles. Anyway you look at it, and wherever you look, you hear a too-familiar story about the shadow of debt: Recession has taken away income. And disinflation — in some cases even deflation, which is an actual drop in prices rather than a drop in the rate at which prices are rising — has reduced the value of assets. One common response to the problem is to borrow, but if rates are high and assets weak, borrowing is difficult and costly. And dangerous too. Farm foreclosures are rising. Business bankruptcies have reached levels unseen since the Great Depression. Sellers of homes often must offer loans that, three years later, buyers cannot repay. Consider the farmer: A few years ago crop prices were high and the market value of farmland was rising. Many farmers borrowed on existing land to expand their acreage. Then farm prices began falling. Moreover, collateral shrank. The U.S. Agriculture Department reports that after rising 16 percent in 1979 and 9 percent in 1980, farmland values fell an average of 1 percent from Feb. 1, 1981 to April 1, 1982. Consider homeowners: Having seen market values double in a decade, and feeling certain the trend would continue, many sold existing homes and put the money into bigger houses. To do so, they took larger mortgages at higher interest rates. Now, in some neighborhoods, although not in the country as a whole, owners are seeing an actual decline in market values — but not in carrying costs. Business knows all about the consequences of expansion and debt. Among casualties are AM International, Bobbie Brooks, Braniff, IteL, Laker, J.W.

Mays, McLouth Steel, Saxon Industries, White Motor, Wickes. And many large companies are endangered, notably International Harvester. The level of short-term corporate borrowing during the recession is far in excess of what many economists had foreseen. In times of general economic weakness, inventory liquidations and the low level of corporate investment plans, such as now, the demand for funds by corporations is generally expected to be weak. However, economists at Chase Manhattan Bank point out, commercial and industrial loans from banks, and noncommercial paper outstanding, has grown since January at an annual rate of about 23 percent. Much of it appears to be distress borrowing, and debt-to-asset ratios on a book-value basis have risen from less than one-third in the early 1970s to more than one-half today, said the bank's economists. They explain: "As profits and cash-flow have deteriorated because of sagging consumer spending, these firms have found themselves in financial distress, needing to borrow an increasingly greater amount to finance heavy interest commitments in order to avoid bankruptcy." Most companies, like many individuals and farmers, are caught with short-term debt and long-term obligations. That means debts constantly must be refinanced, some of them at higher and higher rates. Wright Investors' Service, investment manager for banks and other institutions, observes that short-term debt as a percent of the total credit market rose from 29 percent in 1957 to 42 percent last December. Wright also points out that short-term loans rose from 11 percent of total new corporate funds raised in 1966 to 17 percent in 1981, while internal cash-flow as a source of funds declined from 70 percent to 67 percent, and long-term borrowing fell from 19 percent to 16 percent. So pervasive is debt, individual and institutional, that Federal Reserve policy, it has been suggested, may now have more to do with the economy's future than anything done by the president or Congress.

High Court Eased Auto Search Law

By KEVIN COSTELLOE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court is stripping away more of the protections motorists enjoy against searches of their cars by police acting without a warrant. The court ruled 6-3 Tuesday that police do not need a warrant to search closed bags and other containers found in a car — if they have reasonable grounds to believe the objects contain illegal drugs or other contraband.

The ruling overturns the court's 1981 decision in an unrelated case that police needed warrants to search closed parcels and containers found in a car trunk.

Since 1925, the high court has ruled that police have much more freedom to make so-called "warrantless" searches of cars than of homes and other buildings.

All police need to justify searching a car without a warrant is a reasonable factual basis — or "probable cause" — to believe that illegal items will be found.

Tuesday's decision is designed to clarify power of police to search through closed containers or bags located out of sight somewhere in the car.

The opinion by Justice John Paul Stevens makes clear that police, acting with probable cause that they will find illegal items, now have the power to search through containers found anywhere in the car.

All police need, Stevens said, is the same degree of certainty that would allow a judge or magistrate to issue a warrant to search for illegal objects.

"If probable cause justifies the (warrantless) search of a lawfully stopped vehicle it justifies the search of every part of the vehicle and its contents that may conceal the object of the search," Stevens wrote.

The justice warned police that there are limits to their powers to search cars without a warrant.

"Just as probable cause to believe that a stolen lawnmower may be found in a garage will not support a warrant to search an upstairs bedroom, probable cause to believe that undocumented aliens are being transported in a van will not justify an unwarranted search of a suitcase," Stevens said.

Joining Stevens were Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justices Lewis F. Powell Jr., Harry A. Blackmun, William H. Rehnquist and Sandra Day O'Connor.

Justices Thurgood Marshall, William J. Brennan and Byron R. White dissented.

Tuesday's decision reinstated the heroin-possession conviction and prison sentence of Albert "Bandit" Ross Jr., arrested in the nation's capital four years ago.

In other action Tuesday, the Supreme Court: — Ruled that a company that wins an unfair labor practice complaint against a union is not entitled to recover the cost of lawyer fees.

— Agreed to decide whether individuals can serve simultaneously as directors of a bank or bank holding company and an insurance company.

— Refused, without comment, to let New York authorities ban the use of topless waitresses and topless female dancers in liquor-serving establishments such as bars and nightclubs.

In other business, Rehnquist refused to reinstate Georgia's congressional redistricting plan, which the Justice Department says discriminates against some black voters.

Two Accepted For N.C. Math - Science School

Two 10th grade students at Rose High School, Grayson Morris and Marc Shannon, have been accepted as students in the North Carolina School of Science and Mathematics in Durham.

The school, a public residential high school for qualified juniors and seniors with potential for high achievement in the areas of science and mathematics, was established by the N.C. General Assembly to provide challenging educational opportunities for students. The school is now in its second year of operation with about 300 students. For the 1982-83 school year, approximately 250 juniors are being accepted.

Miss Grayson is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Abbott Morris of Greenville. She has been a cheerleader for the past two years, and holds membership in the Anchor and Spanish clubs. In community activities, she has assisted with Special Olympics and was area coordinator for the Hunger Project. Hobbies and special interests include swimming, white-water rafting, and working with computers.

She plans to pursue a career in some area of computers, and hopes to attend Duke University or UNC-Chapel Hill, then go on to graduate school.

Marc Shannon is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dawn A. Shannon. At Rose, he has participated in math contests, and will attend the Atlantic Region Math competition being held this week. He is also a member of the French Club and is active in RECAST (Regional Eastern Carolina Affirmative Student Training).

Among activities that interest Shannon are playing the piano, math, electronic games and working with computers. He plans to make a career as a computer programmer or systems analyst, and would like to attend Duke University.

As members of the student body at the N.C. School of Science and Mathematics, Miss Grayson and Shannon will be engaged in a vigorous program of science and math studies and other subjects. The regular faculty at the school is supplemented by visiting scientists, mathematicians and leaders in various other fields.

PRESENTATION

The North Carolina American Civil Liberties Union will offer a slide-tape presentation Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the East Federal Savings and Loan building at 100 Arlington Blvd. The presentation will be open to the public and a reception will follow the program.

dropouts. Many students will accumulate in various combinations over their school careers some of the dropout characteristics and the rising sum of these predictors is alienation.

The Burlington study recommended special training for teachers and community volunteers who could work to eliminate the sense of alienation these students feel.

Integrated School...

Public opinion surveys consistently find that 60 percent to 80 percent of the people of Northern Ireland favor integrated education, said Anthony Spencer, a sociology professor at Queen's University in Belfast and a driving force behind Lagan.

"It's extraordinary that there is this massive contrast between what people actually want and what the system actually allows them to choose," he said.

British government officials say church resistance — particularly from the Roman Catholic Church — has kept the school system here segregated.

Catholic Church spokesman James Cantwell in Dublin said the church remains unconvinced it should abandon all-Catholic education for the sake of uncertain social benefits from integration.

"There is some concern about using children as a sort of social experiment," he said.

Ireland's Anglican Church also has balked at integration moves. A recent church synod denounced mild government proposals to weaken the powerful hold the Protestant churches have on state schools.

Lagan's administration and teaching staff — two full-time and six part-time teachers and three teaching volunteers — are evenly divided between Protestants and Catholics.

Tuition is 600 pounds a year, $1,080. Mrs. Greenfield, stressing that Lagan is "not elitist," said half the parents could not afford the full tuition and were being subsidized by the school.

The children take normal secondary school courses, although religious instruction has a special wrinkle — they have classes in "common Christian tradition" and, if desired, separately in their own denomination's teachings.

Young Noel told of one problem at Lagan that troubled the children's consciences — whether to recite the "Lord's Prayer" with the Catholic or Protestant ending.

"Some people said it would be doubting our Catholic religion to say it the Protestant way," he recounted. "Then the teacher came up with a solution — one day say it the Catholic way and the next the Protestant way."

"If you try hard enough," the boy said, "you'll succeed in solving every problem."

Three of four youngsters interviewed at Lagan said close relatives had been injured or killed in Northern Ireland's "troubles," in which Catholic guerrillas of the Irish Republican Army are waging a campaign of bombing and assassination to take the Protestant-dominated province out of the United Kingdom and unite it with the predominantly Catholic Irish Republic.

Mrs. Greenfield reported only one "incident" at the school: Early in the academic year some young Protestant workmen at a nearby construction site shouted anti-Catholic epithets and threw stones at the children. No one was hurt, and the workmen were removed.

"If there were more schools like this in Northern Ireland it would help a lot," said Jonathan McBride. "If everyone was all one, we'd solve so many problems."

"When I grow up," said Noel, "I think I'll say, 'Well, I don't know all Protestants, but the ones I know, the ones I've played with, they're all right.'"

HEARING MOVED UP — The automatic parole hearing date for Arthur L. Bremer, who tried to assassinate George Wallace in 1972, has been moved up by three years to June 1985, a Maryland corrections department spokeswoman said Tuesday. (AP Laserphoto)

Hinckley Brain Described Abnormal

By LARRY MARGASAK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A radiologist who studied X-rays of John W. Hinckley Jr.'s brain says it is "abnormal" for a man his age but acknowledges the pictures don't reveal anything about the defendant's behavior.

A federal jury saw the X-rays Tuesday as the presidential assassin's trial resumed after the long Memorial Day weekend.

Hinckley has admitted shooting President Reagan, but he has pleaded innocent by reason of insanity.

"Absolutely, this is an abnormal brain," said Dr. Marjorie LeMay of Harvard Medical School, who testified the X-rays show Hinckley's brain is slightly shrunken for a 27-year-old man.

Today, the defense will ask Dr. Daniel R. Weinberger of the National Institute of Mental Health to explain his research findings, which statistically link brain shrinkage to schizophrenia.

Defense psychiatrists said Hinckley suffered from severe schizophrenia, a disorder characterized in part by a withdrawal from reality.

Miss LeMay described the abnormalities in Hinckley's brain while standing alongside slides of his X-rays that were projected onto a white screen.

As the medical school professor faced the jury with a microphone clipped to her lapel and a wooden pointer in her hand, several jurors shifted restlessly in their seats.

But Hinckley sat transfixed, staring at the screen.

She explained that wavy lines were folds or creases called sulci, which were considerably wider than in most men Hinckley's age.

As the sulci get wider, the tissue between the folds gets smaller, she said. Likewise, Hinckley's ventricles — spaces in the brain — were enlarged, also signifying shrinkage.

The X-ray slides were from a sophisticated CAT scan procedure — computerized assisted or axial tomography. One slide was from a scan taken in April 1981, and another from a second scan last April.

"I think seeing widened sulci over a period of a year suggests this is organic brain disease," Miss LeMay testified. The results suggest, she added, "these are permanent changes."

But on cross-examination, Assistant U.S. Attorney

Roger M. Adelman asked if it was true that the CAT scan results couldn't determine Hinckley's behavior March 30, 1981 — the day he shot Reagan and three other men.

"That's true," Miss LeMay said, unless the X-rays showed a physical defect such as a tumor.

"You didn't see any tumor in Mr. Hinckley's brain, did you?" Adelman asked.

"No," she said.

Q. You can't take a picture and tell anything about the behavior of a person, can you.

A. No.

Hinckley is charged in 13 felony counts with attempting to assassinate the president and with assault with intent to kill Reagan and three other victims.

Killed By A Hair-Dryer

NORTH HARLOWE, N.C. (AP) — Electrocuting by a hair dryer has been ruled as the cause of a 7-year-old girl's death that initially baffled authorities, a medical examiner says.

Dr. Charles Garrett, regional medical examiner in Jacksonville, said Craven County sheriff's deputies found a hair dryer near a bathtub in which Geneva A. Fisher of Havelock died.

The girl died Saturday morning. Her mother said she heard the girl scream and found the child floating in the tub.

The youngster was pronounced dead on arrival at a local hospital.

The cause of death had stumped Craven County medical examiners, who said she did not drown. Investigators said there was no sign of foul play in the death.

After checking Monday, deputies learned a hair dryer was found in the water with the girl.

The dryer was apparently plugged into a wall socket and was lying on a shelf near the bath tub. It is not known whether the girl dropped it in the water or it fell.

The hair dryer did not need to be running to electrocute the child, Garrett said.

2 Accidents On Tuesday

An estimated $3,050 property damage resulted from two traffic mishaps investigated by Greenville police late Tuesday afternoon.

Officers said Karen Lee Paricio of 803 E. Fifth St. was charged with failing to stop for a stop sign following investigation of a 5:13 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Fourth and Jarvis streets.

Police said the Paricio car collided with an auto driven by Shannon Lynette Avera of 114 Avon Lane, causing $700 damage to the Paricio car and $800 damage to the Avera vehicle.

Officers were continuing the investigation of a 5:48 p.m. collision on Charles Street, 200 feet north of the Oakmont Drive intersection.

They reported a car collided with the rear of a vehicle driven by Jeanette Glenda Getz of Route 13, Greenville, causing a chain reaction involving two other cars — vehicles driven by Ira Otto Creedle of New Bern and Amanda Carol Meece of Carriage House Apartments.

Following the collision, the fourth car then backed up and left the scene.

Damage was set at $1,000 to the Getz car, $500 to the Creedle car and $50 to the Meece vehicle.

Candidates To Appear At Event

Candidates for the Pitt County Board of Commissioners are scheduled to appear at a Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce "Pepsi Break" at the Ramada Inn at 7:30 a.m. Tuesday for a "Discussion with the Candidates" program.

Reservations for the session may be made by contacting the Chamber of Commerce office at 752-4101 or P.O. Box 894.

Vatican Asks Extra Giving

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Vatican is asking U. S. Catholics to help head off a projected 1982 budget deficit of $29 million by increasing contributions to the annual "Peter's Pence" collection.

The collection is used to support papal projects and various Vatican offices and activities, including global charitable work.

Archbishop Edward T. O'Meara of Indianapolis, head of an ad hoc U.S. bishops' committee on Vatican economic concerns, says Americans have been "extremely generous" in supporting the fund, but need to be "even more sensitive and responsive."

Ordinary Vatican revenues are "now falling far short of meeting current needs," he says.

The "Peter's Pence" collection usually is taken on the Sunday nearest the feast of St. Peter and St. Paul, which this year is June 27. In some dioceses, the collection is taken at Pentecost which is observed this Sunday.

In recent years, the collection among 50 million U. S. Catholics as averaged about $5 million.

Barbecue-Makers Up In Arms Over Regulators'

By The Associated Press
Federal regulators pondering an official definition of barbecue have asked for help from the public, but most of the people who have replied have urged them to butt out.

At least one letter contained a none-too-subtle threat. "Gentlemen," wrote Will D. Sampson of Dallas, Texas, "if some SOB shows up around here to tell me how to do my barbecue, there is going to be one less government agent."

The U.S. Department of Agriculture announced April 2 that it was soliciting public comment on a possible rewrite of federal barbecue regulations. The period for public comment ended Tuesday.

A longstanding dispute on the true nature of barbecue was resurrected by the USDA action. Purists in Texas argue that the term applies solely to their beef dish, while North Carolinians respond that shredded pork barbecue has a more legitimate claim to the title. Still others say chicken or anything else basted with tangy barbecue sauce qualifies as barbecue.

The USDA involved itself in the controversy at the urging of Smokarama Inc., a Boley, Okla., company that makes a commercial cooker that uses hickory wood under pressure to make barbecue.

California, under its truth-in-menu law, charged the Smokarama barbecue wasn't authentic. California eventually dropped its challenge, but the company decided to challenge the USDA barbecue inspection regulation on which the California law was based.

Here's the existing federal definition of barbecue:

"Barbecued meats, such as product labeled 'beef barbecue' or 'barbecued pork,' shall be cooked by the direct action of dry heat resulting from the burning of hard wood or the hot coals therefrom for a sufficient period to assume the usual characteristics of a barbecued article, which include the formation of brown crust on the surface and the rendering of surface fat. The product may be basted with a sauce during the cooking process. The weight of the barbecued meat shall not exceed 70 percent of the weight of the fresh uncooked meat."

Most people who wrote to the USDA urged the department to either abolish its barbecue regulation or broaden it to include all types of barbecue.

Alyce L. Bitticks of Greensboro wrote: "In California, barbecue is a verb; it is something you do to meat. When I moved to North Carolina, I discovered that barbecue is something that you eat; it is a noun."

Dale Crane of Dallas wrote: "Texas barbecue and beautiful, alluring women are alike in that they are diminished somehow as our understanding of them increases. Accordingly, it should be public policy that no federal specifications be written for barbecued meat."

Some purists, however, insisted that the government protect barbecue's integrity.

"Certain foods designated barbecue by restaurateurs and merchants in some areas are clearly attempts to distort a heritage or bend a tradition in order to wring economic gain out of the local population's identification with its past," wrote John Marshall of the Florida Folk Life Program.

Canoe Trip Is Underway

The Neuse River canoe segment of the Mountain-to-Sea Trek is under way through June 4 from Smithfield to New Bern in Craven County.

The trip, which began May 29 at Smithfield, includes a visit to Ram Neuse west of Kinston today and overnight camping south of Kinston. On Thursday, a canoe trip of approximately 20 miles is planned with camping scheduled upstream of Craven County Road 1470. Friday's 20-mile segment will culminate at the Craven County Road 1400 bridge located about 10 miles above New Bern.

Participants, who must be at least 18 years old, may join the trek at any stage in lieu of completing the entire Smithfield-to-New Bern schedule.

The Mountains-to-Sea Trek is being sponsored by the North Carolina Trails Association in cooperation with the N.C. Department of Natural Resources and Community Development. The journey is being made from Murphy to Cape Hatteras by hikers, bicyclists, equestrians and canoeists.

Eyewitness Report On Advance In The Falklands

EDITOR'S NOTE — The following pooled dispatch from the Falkland Islands by British correspondent Bob McGowan of the Daily Express was made available to the Associated Press. The dispatch was subject to British military censorship.

By BOB MCGOWAN
LONDON (AP) — British spearhead troops are now in sight of the Falklands capital of Port Stanley. Tuesday I stood on a mountain top with a forward patrol of the advancing "paras" (paratroopers) and saw the first view by the British ground forces of Stanley.

As I watched, Royal Marine commandos on our flank stormed the strategically vital Two Sisters ridge overlooking Moody Brook, where fellow marines of Naval Company 8901, who put up such valiant resistance to the invaders two months ago, were based.

Through a bitterly cold night specialist units hit Argentine observation posts in the high country overlooking the capital while the paras, to whom I am attached, swept in and took a key pass.

Opposition throughout was slight. Specialist troops were involved in sporadic fire-fights as Argentine patrols fell back and took to the hills for Stanley.

We found enemy trenches with boots, ammunition and clothing still in them, indicating that the Argentines ran when they saw the British sweeping in on them.

With more marines on our other flanks, I can say with confidence that Britain holds the high ground around Port Stanley.

And it is at Stanley, where enemy troops are now said to be in defensive positions with artillery, air cover and armor, that the major battle is now set to take place. The stage is set.

The paras and the marines are ready. One can almost taste the early scent of victory on the wind. The British are not prepared for defeat... With the paras, the slog forward has been a hard one.

Men travel in fighting order, their packs coming up later in the rear. Spending freezing hours in the open, in falling snow, without cover or sleeping bags, has become almost routine in the headlong drive to the capital.

As the paras moved in to where Tony and Ailsa Heathman have recently started up a sheep farm, just 15 miles from Stanley, troops beyond the glow of the moonlight zapped an enemy special services patrol attempting to gain intelligence on our advance.

The Red Berets (nickname for the paratroopers because of their headgear) crept in around the four out-houses toward the white wooden-walled farmhouse with its red corrugated steel roof.

The paras thought enemy troops might be inside.

"Open up — it's the British army," said an officer as flares burst into life around the four-bedroom building and paras took up firing positions.

Ailsa Heathman, clutching her one-year-old baby Nyree, lay on the floor along with Tony, 32. They have nine others in the house, all refugees from Stanley — three men, three women and three children.

"I thought it may have been an English-speaking Argentinian officer," said Ailsa. "There are quite a few of them."

In her spacious kitchen, heated by a large stove, she made tea for the paratroopers and added: "We are really pleased to see you."

"There have been all the sound effects around here — we heard you firing mortars and shooting at the Argies, but we haven't seen any of them for days. I think they must have ran off when they saw you coming."

A burly para with black-and-green camouflage cream forming a horrendous mask beneath his red beret, was bouncing little Nyree on his knee. The little girl was gurgling contentedly.

"She is mesmerised by it all," said Ailsa. "So am I a bit."

Husband Tony, who farms 10,240 acres with 2,700 sheep, said: "A day or so ago

Argies from Goose Green came in hungry and with frostbite. They demanded that I drive them into Stanley on my tractor. I refused, and they went away."

While all this was taking place, units of commandos were making a flanking move on Argentine defensive positions near Stanley, as we prepared to push on toward the center of the capital.

But while moving forward, every unit knew that each mile brought closer the threat of a major Argentine counter-attack.

"The big battle awaits us yet," said a para officer.

Learning Problem Clinic Is Scheduled

ECU News Bureau
Children with learning problems who will enter grades three through nine in the fall are eligible to participate in a summer clinic sponsored by the East Carolina University School of Education and the Greenville City Schools.

The clinic will run from June 28 to July 28 at Wahl-Coates Elementary School in Greenville with two-hour morning sessions. Individual and small group remedial sessions will be conducted by graduate interns in the department of special education's learning disabilities master's degree program.

Content areas include reading, mathematics, written expression and study skills.

Fee for the clinic is $135. Further information is available from Ann Harrison, director of exception children programs for the Greenville school system (telephone 752-4192) or Betty Levey at the ECU School of Education (telephone 757-6181/6814).

Enrollment will be limited to 30 children. Early registration is advised.

Congress' Cost Is Multiplying

WASHINGTON (AP) — It will cost taxpayers $676.4 million to run the House and Senate in the budget year ending Sept. 30, according to the Tax Foundation, a non-partisan research organization.

The cost of operating Congress has grown by almost 900 percent since 1960 and now averages $2.3 million per senator and $836,000 per House member, according to an analysis released Tuesday by the foundation.

Other agencies in the legislative budget — ranging from the U.S. Tax Court to the Library of Congress — run the total cost to $1.5 billion, the study said.

ASK ASSISTANCE
TOKYO (AP) — Chinese Premier Zhao Ziyang, on an official state visit, has asked Japanese Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki for more Japanese financial assistance and participation in Chinese offshore oil exploration.

Scare Idles Busy Beach

HONOLULU (AP) — One of Hawaii's most picturesque and popular swimming beaches, Hanauma Bay, was ordered closed to the public for an indefinite period to determine if the waters are contaminated with sewer water.

Preliminary bacterial tests on water samples taken by the state health department and city sewage technicians on Friday were negative, but Honolulu Mayor Eileen Anderson said she wanted to take no chances and ordered the park closed Tuesday pending more thorough testing, a spokesman said.

Concern was raised last week when an unidentified physician notified state health officials that a patient became afflicted with severe diarrhea after swimming at Hanauma Bay, according to city Parks and Recreation Director Robert Matsuda.

There were unconfirmed reports that six other people who had been at Hanauma Bay with that patient suffered similar problems, said the mayor's press secretary, Bob Awana.

Officials plan to check if sewage from a cesspool at a beachside restroom facility might somehow be getting into the bay, Matsuda said.

Hanauma Bay, created by an ancient volcanic crater and located about 10 miles from Waikiki Beach, is a conservation area where an abundance of tropical fish mingle closely with waders, swimmers and divers.

The beach will be closed to the public at least until Friday, to allow time to complete the water tests, Matsuda said.

one to produce a bigger building space. However, Mrs. Albert Ellis, one of the heirs, appealed to the board not to condemn. Board members said they have no intention of condemning contrary to the owners' wishes.

The board also decided that, because of a delay in the sending out of utility bills (due to a computer problem), the deadline for paying electric bills this month will be extended to June 25.

A public hearing was set for the first Tuesday in July to review the progress of current Community Development Block Grant programs and to discuss funding options. This hearing needs to be held prior to submission of an application for CDBG funds under new state regulations. A second hearing will need to be held to discuss in detail the application to be submitted.

A resolution was adopted requesting the state to honor the Department of Housing and Urban Development's commitment for a third year of CDBG funding for Farmville.

Town Administrator Robert Morgan was authorized to enter into an agreement with Textilease Corp. for uniform rental for town employees. The new agreement reflects a decrease in the price of uniform rental, which is shared equally by the town and each employee. Three changes per week is down from $3.42 to $3.30; four changes down from $4.56 to $4.40 and five changes, down from $5.70 to $5.50.

Regulations for the Farmville Farmers Market, to open June 15 on the Walter B. Jones Town Commons, were approved. Hours will be from 6 a.m. to noon Tuesdays and Thursdays, it was decided.

Approval was given for the continuation of retainer agreement with Town Attorney John B. Lewis Jr. and Town Engineer Van Lewis. Lewis' fee is to remain the same and Lewis' was slightly reduced, the commissioners indicated.

Consideration of two electric rate study proposals was tabled, because the board has just recently become aware that Electricities may do some of the work for the town.

A budget amendment was enacted permitting the issuance of checks for an electric rate refund.

The board transferred $2,064.55 from the general fund contingency account to pay previously approved retirement benefits to former town employee Earl Keel and $2,130 to the Rescue Squad for compensation for calls.

A budget public hearing was set for June 29.

Pitt Students Attend Program

Last Thursday through Saturday, approximately 300 students and their teachers gathered in Raleigh for the second session of North Carolina -- Close Up.

Students from Pitt County schools among the participants included Patrice Edwards, Rodney Reeves, Marc Holsenback, Lydia Worthington, Robby Joyner, Suzanne Moye and teacher-coordinator Sarah Hunt.

North Carolina -- Close Up began in 1978. It is an educational program designed to allow students and their teachers to interact with state officials, legislators, representatives from the news media and lobbyist organizations. Approximately 115 high schools participated in the program.

Arrest Two For Armed Robbery

Two area men were arrested Tuesday by Pitt County deputies and charged in connection with the Dec. 24 armed robbery of Convenient World grocery at Stokes.

Sheriff Ralph Tyson said that Elliott Dwayne Powell, 19, of Route 5, Greenville, and Ricky Lynn Tripp, 22, of 102 Corbett St., Greenville, were placed in Pitt County Jail under $10,000 bond each on the armed robbery charges.

He said the store was robbed around 10:12 p.m. on Christmas Eve by two men wearing stockings over their faces and armed with pistols. The operators, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Edwards, told deputies that the men fled north on State Road 1546 after taking approximately $232. The Edwards were not injured in the incident, he said.

Udall Will Try Override Veto

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz., says he is going to try for an override of President Reagan's veto on legislation designed to settle an Arizona water rights dispute involving the Papago Indian tribe, the City of Tucson and other major water users.

In his fourth veto since taking office, Reagan on Tuesday called the bill "a multi-million dollar bailout of local public and commercial interests at the expense of federal taxpayers throughout the nation. . . . It asks the federal government to pay the settlement share of the mining companies and other local water users whose share should more properly be borne by the defendants themselves."

Evidence 'Lost' By High Court

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — A five-year effort by Idaho legal authorities to convict two companies of obscenity charges is jeopardized by the loss or theft of some key evidence from the offices of the U.S. Supreme Court, officials say.

Several films and magazines deemed obscene by an Idaho judge are missing from the high court's Washington offices. Officials say if the evidence can't be found, it may wipe out the state's case against two Garden City, Idaho, adult book stores.

The state charges that U.S. Marketing and Niks and Naks sold or displayed obscene material. The case was filed in 1977 under Idaho's moral nuisance law. So far, however, the stores are still open.

Disappearance of the evidence was reported in the Sunday editions of the Idaho State Journal.

Records in the case show at least five films and four magazines sent to the U.S. Supreme Court when the case was appealed were never returned to Idaho when the case was sent back.

A letter from Idaho Deputy Attorney General Lynn Thomas sent to the clerk's office at the high court says the case against the bookstores "may go for naught" because of the loss.

The bookstores won the first round in state district court, but lost in Idaho's Supreme Court. The appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court followed. Thomas and defense attorney William Tway sent the evidence to the high court in Washington. Records show the materials were sent December 22, 1981.

In March the appeal was dismissed, bringing the case back to Idaho courts.

Most of the evidence in the exhibit was returned April 6, according to court records, but several pieces were missing. Two more items were sent to Idaho 11 days later.

That still left evidence unaccounted for. On April 22 Supreme Court Clerk Bill Young wrote to say still missing were four magazines and five films included in the evidence sent to Washington.

Supreme Court officials said they sent everything back, at least everything they could find.

On May 12, a U.S. Supreme Court clerk was forced to write:

"As of this writing, I am sorry to say the missing exhibits have not been recovered and we cannot account for them. Please accept my apologies for their loss."

Thomas said an Idaho district court is scheduled to hear the case in June. The state plans to ask for an order closing the bookstores. But he said if some of the evidence is missing, it will be hard to appeal any closure order based on evidence which can't be found.

Thomas says he's asking the Supreme Court to determine what happened, if the items are believed lost or stolen, and what has been done to recover them.

'Unexpected' No Damages

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A state appeals court has refused to grant damages to the family of an unexpected baby or the boy himself, noting the child, in effect, "is claiming that he would be better off unborn."

Virginia Miller and her family filed the suit against two doctors and Normandy Osteopathic Hospital, contending a sterilization operation was improperly performed four years before the birth of the woman's fifth child, Dawon, on Feb. 21, 1980.

The Missouri Court of Appeals dismissed the parents' malpractice claim since it was not filed within the two-year statute of limitations, and ruled Tuesday against the wrongful birth claim on behalf of the child and his other siblings.

"It would be against public policy to . . . encourage suits by 'all others born into the world under conditions they might regard as adverse,'" said the appeals court.

'Observations' Are Completed

Students in the child development classes of Rose High School, under the direction of Elaine Tschetter and Kelly Fleming, have completed their childhood observations.

The students spent one morning each at a particular site doing various activities with small children. The facilities which cooperated in this effort are Industrial Park Child Care, Family Day Care, Kiddie College and Elmhurst School.

Receives Medals...

son told him early this morning that he was to receive the medals at a 10 a.m. service.

Following the presentation, Gen. Moore said although the United States is the "greatest country on the face of the world," sometimes "the deeds of others" are overlooked and indicated his pleasure in helping to correct the oversight.

Lt. Col. Carl Grantham, commander of the Conley JROTC unit, also took part in the awards ceremony.

Drunk Driving Hearing Set

The Governor's Task Force on Drunken Driving will hold a public hearing at 7 p.m. Thursday in the Superior Courtroom of the Pitt County Courthouse.

"This is the public's opportunity to tell the Task Force what to do about drunk drivers in North Carolina," task force chairman Jack Stevens of Asheville said.

"Everyone who is interested in finding solutions to drunk driving," should come and "offer your thoughts and ideas on the problem," he continued. "This is the public's meeting."

Persons wishing to speak at the hearing are asked to register at 6:30 p.m., Stevens said.

The task force is to recommend changes in the state's laws regarding drunk drivers and preventive measures to the 1983 General Assembly.

The Governor's Crime Commission made several recommendations on driving under the influence earlier this year.

Probably the most widely known of those suggestions is one calling for raising the drinking age for beer and wine from 18 to 21 years, phased in during a three-year period.

El Salvador's Rural Guards Blamed For Killings

By SAM DILLON

Associated Press Writer

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Politicians and newspapers are demanding that the Civil Defense Corps, a paramilitary organization of rural guards blamed for the recent murder of 34 civilians, be disarmed and disbanded or incorporated into the regular armed forces.

Eighteen of the guardsmen have been arrested this month for the massacre of 22 villagers and the murder of four Christian Democratic mayors and eight other workers for the centrist party.

Leaders of the Christian Democratic Party, which lost power to a conservative coalition after the election of the constituent assembly March 28, accuse the rightists of creating a "climate of permissiveness" that fostered the murders.

"The right has the feeling that success in the election has given them space for new paramilitary actions," Christian Democratic assemblyman Roberto Viera said after three of the jailed guardsmen were identified as members of assembly speaker Roberto d'Aubuisson's ultra-rightist party, the Republican Nationalist Alliance.

D'Aubuisson's party denied any responsibility.

"We didn't ask everybody who signed our party book, 'Are you sure that you're not going to shoot somebody?'" said secretary-general Mario Redaelli. "We cannot control what goes on out in the boonocks."

A few days later, d'Aubuisson's party demanded "the militarization of the whole scheme of rural patrols and civil defenses" to put them under "responsible hierarchical control in carrying out their duties as protectors of citizens and not their victimizers."

The manifesto accused the guards of "committing all manners of outrages in the name of counter-insurgency."

San Salvador's generally conservative newspapers joined in the criticism. El Diario de Hoy said "outraged citizens" demanded that the Defense Ministry "purge or abolish the guards."

The assembly, functioning temporarily as the national congress, unanimously approved a Christian Democratic resolution condemning the violence and setting up a special committee to explore ways of ending it.

Official organizations of armed rural guards have existed in El Salvador since 1932, when the military put down a Communist-led peasant uprising and killed an estimated 20,000 people.

The best known was ORDEN, formed in the early 1960's with 80,000 members as an anti-Communist vigilante army that helped to keep successive conservative governments in power. It was disbanded in early 1980 after two reformist colonels overthrew President Carlos Humberto Romero. But when leftist guerrillas went to war against the new junta, the Defense Ministry organized the Civil Defense Corps, and informed sources say many of its members were ORDEN veterans.

The guardsmen are armed with old rifles and handguns. Estimates of their number run from 5,000 to 12,000. They operate mostly in small communities, like San Francisco Chinameca, 12 miles southeast of the capital, where 11 armed men took Mayor Teodoro Eleazar Cruz off a bus May 13 and killed him.

In sworn statements to judicial authorities, witnesses said the killers were guardsmen.

Twelve days later, gunmen shot and killed his successor, Evangelina Garcia Lopez, and her 18-year-old daughter in the kitchen of their home. Both Cruz and Mrs. Garcia Lopez were Christian Democrats. Three guardsmen were arrested for the murders, and warrants are out for eight more.

In El Paisnal, 26 miles north of San Salvador, Mayor Carlos Moreno Montes was also dragged from a bus and killed on May 22. His 14-year-old son identified three members of the civil guard in the town as the killers, and they are being held for trial.

Another Christian Democratic mayor, Jose Juan Gomez, was murdered two days later in El Divisadero, 137 miles east of the capital. Also on May 24, gunmen kidnapped six young Christian Democrats who had been poll watchers during the elections. Their headless bodies were found next day on the slopes of a nearby volcano.

Christian Democratic leaders blamed those killings on guardsmen also, but no arrests were made.

Twelve more guardsmen are in jail in Cojutepeque, 20 miles east of San Salvador, awaiting trial for the massacre of 22 civilians. In testimony to examining magistrates, the guardsmen called the victims "subversives," the term Defense Ministry officials use for the leftist guerrillas. The victims were later identified as relatives of a National Police official.

By all accounts, civilian deaths in the war have decreased since the elections. U.S. Embassy officials say they average 250 a month; the Human Rights Commission says 350. The average was 1,000 a year ago.

Embassy and Salvadoran military officials say the decline is due to improved discipline in the country's 26,000-man regular army. It, too, was blamed in the past for killing civilians who weren't enthusiastic supporters of the rightists.

Had Enough Greetings

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Bankers Life has had enough belly dancers and balloon messengers.

It has become increasingly popular in the Des Moines area to send birthday or other greetings by way of a belly dancer or messenger dressed only in a bathing suit and balloons. The balloons are popped until the recipient can read the message painted on the messenger's body.

"It's rather disruptive to the work staff," said Carla Pierond, public relations associate for Bankers Life. "Everyone stops working and gathers around to watch the belly dancer. We've also asked that the clown and balloons cease and desist, in a nice way, of course."

"It's picking up in frequency," said Chuck McDonald, a vice president at Aid Insurance of Des Moines.

His company requires recipients to receive their greetings in a reception area rather than in the office.

At least 14 companies in Des Moines offer balloon messages.

Martie Fultz says her service is not all that disruptive.

"If employees are happy, they'll work harder because they're happy," she said. "I can't see where five minutes out of a work day can make all that much difference."

The ordinance, adopted unanimously by the City Council March 15, requires heads of households in the city of 5,400 people to own and maintain a firearm and ammunition. It exempts convicted felons, the disabled and those with religious convictions that prevent them from owning a gun.

ACLU Aims At Gun Ordinance

KENNESAW, Ga. (AP) — The American Civil Liberties Union has taken aim at a new city ordinance that requires residents of this Atlanta suburb to maintain a firearm and ammunition in their homes.

The ACLU has asked a federal court in Atlanta to prohibit enforcement of the law, which went into effect Tuesday with little fanfare.

The court challenge was filed by the ACLU on behalf of Kennesaw resident Richard Butler, said Gene Guerrero, executive secretary of the ACLU in Georgia.

"We think that it's an illegal, unconstitutional taking of liberty (and) an invasion of privacy in that the government of Kennesaw is telling people what they must do without any showing of any compelling reason to do so," Guerrero said.

According to the ACLU suit, Butler is "opposed to the use of firearms on a personal and moral level and does not wish to be forced into keeping a firearm in his household."

The suit alleges that the life of Butler's 12-year-old son would be in danger if he is "forced to maintain a firearm in his residence."

Mayor Darvin Purdy said the ACLU's action proves "they're not interested in protecting civil liberties or constitutional rights."

And he said the city will defend the law in court because of its value for public safety.

The gun ownership ordinance has no provision to punish violators, but Purdy said the City Council has interpreted the city code to require a $50 fine for violations. He added, however, that there will be no "vigorous enforcement."

100,000 Turn Out To Greet Pope Visiting Wales

By GRAHAM HEATHCOTE

Associated Press writer
CARDIFF, Wales (AP) — Pope John Paul II, winding up his visit to Britain today, was greeted in the capital of Wales by more than 100,000 people waving yellow papal flags and the red dragon emblem of the Welsh.

"Croeso I Gymru — Welcome to Wales," read many signs, in a display of the Welsh-English bilingualism that has become mandatory in public notices in this principality, the site of resurgent nationalist sentiment in recent years.

A male choir sang a traditional Welsh tune. "We'll keep a welcome in the hillsides, we'll keep a welcome in the vales," as the pontiff got out of the helicopter he used for the short hop from Cardiff's airport to celebrate Mass in Pontcanna Fields, a 60-acre park.

As he had done in England, Scotland and every other country he visits, the pope kissed the ground when he stepped from his plane at the airport.

At the park, Cardiff's City Council had nailed a notice to a beech tree at the main gate, stating that a local ordinance passed a year ago "shall not apply to Pontcanna Fields on June 2, 1982." The ordinance "prohibits preaching, lecturing, or the holding of or taking part in any meeting, demonstration, religious service, or religious discussion" in the park. Tens of thousands of families, many carrying picnic equipment, trekked through the city during the night and were waiting in the park as the sun rose on a warm, misty morning.

Cardiff was the last stop on the pope's six-day journey, the first visit a pope has ever made to Great Britain. Police said there were between 100,000 and 150,000 in the crowd for the Mass; church officials had expected 200,000.

Church officials estimate the number of Catholics in Wales at 270,000 out of a population of 2.7 million. But half of those at the Mass were expected to be non-Catholics from Wales and England anxious for a last glimpse of the pope on British soil.

The Welsh Tourist Board welcomed the pope as a boost to tourism. "We are very happy he is coming," said Harold Naylor, the board's executive officer. "We are a very small nation. The fact that the pope decided to come gives us immense pleasure, irrespective of religious views and the fact that only 10 percent of our people are Catholics."

Two thousands singers and musicians were to keep the crowds entertained all day with folk songs, sacred choruses and hymns in Welsh and English.

Catholicism increased in Wales in the 1840s with the arrival of Irish immigrants fleeing starvation in the potato famine. The Irish built Cardiff's docks, the railroads and the canals to move the coal that made south Wales for a time one of the world's great industrial centers.

The pope received a rapturous welcome Tuesday from over 250,000 people at Bellahouston Park in Glasgow, home of many of predominantly Presbyterian Scotland's Catholics.

He preached a sermon of peace and reconciliation, asking Scottish Protestants and Roman Catholics to make a "pilgrimage together hand in hand."

The crowd sang, held up signs, waved yellow papal flags and repeatedly interrupted his homily with rhythmic chants of "John Paul, John Paul."

Outside the park, the Rev. Ian Paisley and his little band of military Protestants continued their daily protests against the papal visit to predominantly Protestant Britain.

About 150 of them waved Bibles and shouted "Anti-Christ" as the pope arrived by helicopter. About 50 others carried signs along a different side street reading "Ecumenical Dialogue Is Deadwood" and "Pope Backs the Argies" — a reference to the pope's visit next week to Argentina to offset the offset the effect in that Catholic country of his visit to its foe in the Falkland Islands.

After the pope left Glasgow Tuesday, more than 1,000 Protestant hardliners marched through the city. Police moved in two hours later to disperse the crowd, there was some scuffling, and the police reported 32 arrests.

As another concession to the Argentines, the pope during his visit to Britain did not meet with Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher or any political leaders. But the papal nuncio's office in Buenos Aires said on Tuesday that the same ban would not apply to Argentina.

A spokesman said John Paul after his arrival June 11 either would meet with President Leopoldo Galtieri at Government House or would meet at the Congress building with the three-man junta which Galtieri heads.

Ex-Con Nearer Being Lawyer

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — A man convicted of murder and later pardoned has moved a step closer to being granted a license to practice law in North Carolina.

Wake County Superior Court Judge F. Gordon Battle ordered the state Board of Law Examiners on May 27 to reconsider its rejection of Jerry Banks Moore's 1978 application for a license to practice law.

The board had ruled that Moore didn't meet the bar's good moral character guidelines.

Moore, 41, who has homes in Pasadena, Texas, and Charlotte, said he was "encouraged" by Battle's ruling but wouldn't comment further.

In December 1966, Moore was sentenced to 25 years in prison on a second-degree murder conviction in the shooting death of his wife's boyfriend. Moore claimed he shot Barnett Adler of Raleigh in self-defense.

Moore became the first North Carolina prisoner to participate in the state's new study-release program in 1969.

In 1975, two years after he was paroled, he graduated with honors with a degree in religion from the University of North Carolina at Charlotte. Former Gov. Jim Holshouser granted Moore a pardon from parole and sentence and restored his citizenship that year.

Moore then entered the South Texas College of Law in Houston, where he earned his law degree in 1978. Later that year, he took the North Carolina bar exam but his application for a law license was rejected.

In 1979, Gov. Jim Hunt granted Moore a pardon of forgiveness for the 1966 crime.

Moore took the law examiners' rejection of his application to the state Supreme Court, which ruled in his favor.

But the law examiners then took the matter to Wake County Superior Court, leading to the latest ruling.

Moore currently works as a legal consultant and has interests in several businesses.

National Award For Ridesharing

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. has received a national award from the Federal Highway Administration for the company's ridesharing programs.

Gov. Jim Hunt and Ronald E. Heinz of the highway administration presented the award to company executive vice president Dee Smith during ceremonies Monday at the North Carolina Department of Transportation.

Began as an 11-van pilot project two years ago, Reynolds' van fleet has grown to 44 vehicles — the largest company-sponsored van pool program in the state.

In addition, an in-house matching system helps employees form van and car pools.

Piedmont Gas Revenue Up

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Piedmont Natural Gas Co. revenues for the six months ending April 30 totaled $210,370,476, up from $196,727,652 a year ago, company officials said.

Company president John H. Maxheim said net income for the period was $9,731,999, down from $11,931,816 a year ago.

Earnings per share for the sixth-month period dropped to $3.15 from $3.91 a year ago, Maxheim said.

Ancient Swiss Dialects Survive Time's Passage

By URS C. GRASSI
Associated Press Writer
BERN, Switzerland (AP) — To Franz Kafka, the often guttural idiom seemed "filled up with lead." To Swiss playwrights-novelists Friedrich Durrenmatt and Max Frisch, it is a language which they speak but do not write.

A dictionary started a century ago has grown to 14 volumes and more than 100,000 entries, with only an off-chance that it might be completed before the year 2000.

The entries are in Swiss German or "Schwyzerdeutsch," which is only one way to spell the collective label for the scores of dialects in Switzerland where German, or rather Swiss-German, or rather Swiss-German, speakers make up three-fourths of the population.

They developed in the Middle Ages and are still closer to the medieval idioms than the "High German" spoken in neighboring West Germany. They can differ from valley to valley, from town to town, in a unique linguistic fragmentation.

Most are incomprehensible to West German visitors and some dialects of remote regions in the Valais pose problems even to many Swiss.

And they have brilliantly survived against the challenge of High German's domination in the media, films, theater, church sermons and the multilingual federal parliament — because French- and Italian-speaking members normally would not understand the German dialects.

Most Swiss Germans readily admit they feel ill at ease in speaking what they call "written German." Some even prefer switching to French in talking to West Germans. Max Frisch says "written German" is a "semi-foreign language" but adds that he is happy about this discrepancy because it helps him in his writing.

George Mikes, the Hungarian-born British author of the best-selling "How To Be an Alien," was among the first to point to another advantage:

"It may not be beautiful as a language but it is brilliant as a conspiracy," he noted in his "Switzerland for Beginners." "It is a splendidly secret language."

Recently, Swiss newspapers triumphantly published new evidence backing up this attribute. Evgeny Chernevski, an engineer of the Moscow Institute of Sciences who is described as "linguistic world champion," reported his encounter with what seemed to him first an "Asian or African language unknown to me."

Chernevski, who claims fluency in 32 languages, including High German, told an interviewer of the newspaper "Sovietskaya Rossiya" that the "strangely articulated language" was used by "two white men" whom he met in an Irkutsk restaurant. "I asked them in English what language they were speaking and they told me they were businessmen from Switzerland."

"German was the first foreign language I learned," said Chernevski, who claims he can simultaneously translate eight. "Each additional language becomes easier to learn because there are so many similar words. But Swiss German is an exception."

Economy-minded Swiss diplomats are known to prefer the dialect to costly anti-bugging equipment. Insiders say deciphering tapes is assumed to be virtually impossible for foreign intelligence services.

Swiss newspapers said use of the dialect was also a popular weapon in sales talks, especially with state-controlled East European import agencies. The representative of a Swiss machinery concern said that in countering last-minute efforts to bring the price down, "Schwyzerdeutsch allows us to discuss our reaction even in the presence of German-speakers although some may consider this impolite."

"When my husband the perfectionist had trouble with his eyes, I suggested another perfectionist!"

"I knew Pearle Vision could not only meet my husband's high standards, but exceed them. Right down to the smallest detail. And I was right. He's said he's never seen anyone take so much time and care making sure he got exactly the right prescription. And the perfect pair of frames. He only had one complaint—he couldn't find anything wrong."

Sign-Painting By Candidates

HUNTINGTON, W.Va. (AP) — The recession has forced people to cut back in a lot of areas, and West Virginia's primary election campaign indicates that candidates are among those cutting back.

Carl Workman, a sign painter who usually makes a lot of political signs during a campaign, says candidates are painting their own.

"It's just a cheap way to get by," he said on the eve of today's primary. "These people who are putting handmade signs out, running for high political office, they should have a decent sign. Their sign represents their personality."

But Workman, 52, insists on being paid in advance, no matter what office is being sought.

"If I don't get paid for my work, I might as well go out and sunbathe. If they get beat in the primary, you have a hard time getting your money."

Warriors Kill Rampant Dreams, 4-2

Welcome Home!
Eastern Wayne's Jeff Ginn (circled) is greeted by a host of his teammates as he comes home after slapping a two-run homer in the third inning last night in the Eastern 4-A baseball finals against Rose High School. Ginn's blow tied the game, and the Warriors went on to take a 4-2 victory over the previously unbeaten Rampants. (Reflector Photo by Mary Schulken)

Steve Sides and Jeff Ginn accounted for the offensive punch, and Robbie Pelletier came off the bench to shut down the Rose High School offense last night as Eastern Wayne ousted the previously unbeaten Rampants from the State 4-A baseball playoffs, 4-2.

It was an outstanding baseball game on both sides of the diamond and both coaches were quick to point it out. "I still say that a series like this should be the best two out of three," Eastern Wayne coach Carl Lancaster said only minutes after his team celebrated the mild upset win.

"There were two great teams out there, and it's just a shame that one of them had to lose." Ronald Vincent, whose Rampants had just lost their first outing in 25 starts this season, agreed. "Sure, I'd like to see a two-out-of-three series for the Eastern title since the time frame suits it, but I'm not really sure that it would make any difference. Eastern has a very, very good team."

For the Rampants, however, it was a bitter disappointment after their outstanding season to this point. But in the final game, the Rose bats were effectively silenced by Pelletier, who came off the bench in the second inning after starter Joey Rouse found he had control problems.

Rouse, who was 5-0 coming into the game, allowed the two Rampant runs, allowing Rose to take the early lead in the game.

But it was not long after that Sides, who had three hits in four trips, including a double and a run-scoring triple, and Ginn, who had a two-run homer and scored another run, took command of the offensive side of the game.

And meanwhile, Pelletier was setting down Rose as the Rampants offered few threats after he came on the scene until the seventh inning.

That seventh inning could have been the most fateful for the Rampants. Rudy Stalls led off, reaching on an error and Pelletier then walked Tom Buie.

Gary Ream was then brought in to save the day and he did just that, although it took one batter for him to get going, as he walked Mont Carter.

That left the bases loaded with none out. But Ream then calmly picked Stalls off third, and neither of the other runners advanced. Sammy Hodges flew out to center and Roger Williams grounded to first, giving Eastern Wayne the right to move into the finals of the 4-A playoffs.

"That pickoff play could have been the key to the win," Lancaster said. "He is on his own on pickoffs, and he has a number of good moves to any base."

There was some surprise when Lancaster elected to bring in Pelletier when Rouse failed to get the job done. Ream was then expected to come on, but Lancaster felt otherwise. "Pelletier throws strikes. He's come through when we needed him in recent games. He's got eight saves, so you can see that he does get things done. Gary is sometimes a little wild and we wanted to hold off as long as we could going to him. We know Pelletier won't put people on base."

"I can't say enough for the job he did, nor the job Sides did both on the field and at bat."

Sides proved his worth with the glove in the fifth inning, when he went deep behind second to snare Buie's grounder up the middle, turning and firing to first just in time to get the speedy Rampant.

He also proved his worth with the bat, sparking the rally that tied it up in the third inning.

Eastern threatened in the first, as the number two and three hitters both got singles, but Mont Carter pulled in a line-drive off the bat of Ginn and nailed the lead man at second for the game's only doubleplay.

Another threat caused by a dropped pop fly in the second when shortstop Sammy Hodges and third baseman Gordon Douglas collided also failed to produce anything.

Rose, which left a man at second in the opening frame, struck for the lead without benefit of hit in the second. Douglas led off, drawing a walk and was sacrificed up. He moved on to third on a wild pitch as Randy Warren walked.

That spelled the end for Rouse and brought in Pelletier. Warren stole up and Bill Kittrell's grounder behind the mound scored Douglas, the batter reaching when the ball was misplayed. Stalls then grounded out, scoring Warren.

Except for the seventh inning, Rose offered few threats after that, putting a runner on second in the fourth with two away, and on second in the sixth also with two away.

The Warriors, who ran their record to 23-2, tied it up in the third. After two were out, Sides doubled down the left field line, and Ginn followed with a homer to right, knotting it at 2-2.

Only one other Warrior reached in the next two innings, and died on first.

But in the sixth, Eastern pushed over what proved to be the winning run. Ginn led off with a walk and was sacrificed up. Pelletier then helped his own cause with a double to left center, easily scoring Ginn with the go-ahead run.

The other run came in the seventh. Chris Newsome reached when his pop-up was dropped by Douglas, and he stole second. He was then sacrificed to third, scoring when Sides tripled to right, his shot just landing inside the foul line. Ginn was intentionally walked, and after a second out, Pelletier was also walked intentionally and an infield

Legion Practice

Pitt County's American Legion baseball team will begin practice Thursday at 5 p.m. at the Farmville Central High School baseball field.

Bill Davis, who served as assistant coach of the team last year, has taken over the duties of head coach for this season.

All prospects for the team are requested to be present for the Thursday practice session.

Pitt County will open its season on Friday, hosting Wilson County at 8 p.m. at Harrington Field on the East Carolina University campus. Four games which were postponed because of the late finish of Rose High School will be rescheduled for later this month.

Odom Ponders Cav Job Offer; Says Two EC Players May Leave

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Dave Odom, head basketball coach at East Carolina University, has been offered a position on the University of Virginia basketball staff, he revealed yesterday.

Reports of the job offer, apparently made this past weekend in Charlottesville, Va., surfaced yesterday afternoon, and Odom said that he had, indeed, been offered a job by University of Virginia coach Terry Holland and had not yet decided whether he would accept it.

"I haven't reached a decision yet. No one has put me into any time frame situation, neither Coach Holland, East Carolina, nor myself," Odom said. "But I do hope to come to a decision by this weekend." Odom said any decision he reaches won't be one he has come suddenly on. "This has been going on for a little while now. Coach Holland contacted (ECU officials) approximately a week ago for permission to talk to me, and received that permission."

Odom said that he and his wife visited Charlottesville this past weekend and talked with a number of people involved with the Cavalier program.

"I feel good about the situation here," Odom said of the ECU program. "There's nothing left to do for next year but to coach. Our recruiting has been completed for the coming year," Odom said. Three recruits had been previously announced by East Carolina, and two more were announced today.

Odom also said that two members of the current team had announced their intention not to return to East Carolina, but labeled as completely false any report that they might be headed to Virginia.

Both Morris Hargrove, who was the scoring and rebounding

Pirates Add Two Cagers

East Carolina University basketball coach Dave Odom announced the signing of two more incoming players for the coming season today, bringing to five the number signed for next year.

Both of the new players are coming from Laurinburg Institute.

Johnny Edwards, a 6-6, 220-pound power forward, averaged better than 30 points and 15 rebounds a game while prepping at Laurinburg this past season. As a high school senior at South Mecklenburg in Charlotte, he was named to the All-State team.

Guard Keith McLeod, 6-3, 195, averaged 25 points and 15 rebounds as a senior in the high school division at Laurinburg. He is formerly from Key West, Fla.

"In the signing of Edwards, we have secured a much needed power player who is comfortable inside and can exert muscle when needed. Johnny has the potential to be an enforcer type player," Odom said.

"Keith gives us more depth in the backcourt, something we need," the coach continued. "He also provides us with more versatility at the position."

Other recruits previously signed include 6-1 guard Tony Robinson of Jamestown, N.Y., a junior college transfer; 6-8 David Harris of Brooklyn, N.Y.; and Curt Vanderhorst, a 6-1 guard from Fayetteville Douglas Byrd.

Lakers Whip 76ers As Jabbar Sits

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It got very quiet at the Forum late in the first quarter when perennial all-pro center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar drew his third personal foul and went to the sidelines.

But the Los Angeles Lakers proved long ago that they can function quite well without their captain.

Because of his foul problems, Abdul-Jabbar missed the final 14:15 of the first half Tuesday night in Game Three of the 1982 National Basketball Association Championship Series. But the Lakers rolled to a 129-108 triumph over the Philadelphia 76ers.

Los Angeles, which never trailed in taking a 2-1 lead over the 76ers in the best-of-seven series, led 24-17 with 2:15 to go in the first quarter when Abdul-Jabbar was saddled with his third foul.

If anything, that served as an inspiration as the Lakers scored 16 of the game's next 19 points to take a 40-20 advantage. The 76ers weren't closer than nine points after that.

Los Angeles showed what it could do without Abdul-Jabbar two years ago against tie 76ers in the sixth game of the Championship Series. Abdul-Jabbar sprained an ankle in Game 5 and couldn't play at Philadelphia a few days later, but that didn't matter as the Lakers rolled to a 123-107 victory to win the NBA title.

Last December, the six-time NBA most valuable player missed six games because of an injury, and the Lakers were victorious in all six.

Bob McAdoo, who played center most of the time Abdul-Jabbar was watching Tuesday night, was a key factor in keeping the Lakers on top as he scored all 14 of his points in the first half.

"I think it's indicative that when a team loses at this level it always responds with a much-better effort," said Los Angeles Coach Pat Riley, whose club dropped a 110-94 decision at Philadelphia on Sunday. "The only adjustment we made was in attitude.

"I really thought the effort and the intensity level was up defensively in the first half, and that's really the nature of the game. At this level right now, you can talk about adjustments and going back to the chalkboard, but it comes down to who plays the hardest.

"I expect Philadelphia to come back in a different frame of mind Thursday night."

Riley referred to the fourth game of the series, which also will be played on the Lakers' homecourt, starting at 6 p.m., PDT.

While the Lakers got fine efforts from just about everyone who played, the 76ers were generally unimpressive outside of guard Andrew Toney.

The reason we lost is they played so well. We just did not play well as a team. We looked to establish something and we just did not do it tonight.

Toney scored a game-high 36 points, connecting on 13 of 21 field-goal attempts and nine of 10 free-throw tries. The other 76ers combined to make just 26 of 67 floor shots and 20 of 30 from the foul line.

Overall, the 76ers made only 44.3 percent of their floor shots to 54.9 percent for the Lakers. Including team rebounds, Los Angeles outrebounded Philadelphia 66-54.

Three other 76ers scored in double figures; Julius Erving had 21 points but pulled down only three rebounds; Maurice Cheeks had 17 points and nine assists, and Darryl Dawkins had 14 points and a game-high 13 rebounds.

Norm Nixon led the Lakers with 29 points, all but eight coming in the second half. Earvin "Magic" Johnson added 22 points, making eight of his nine field-goat attempts.

He also led his team with nine rebounds and eight assists.

Jamaal Wilkes and Abdul-Jabbar added 17 and 16 points, respectively, for Los Angeles.

"This is the first game we were able to take command early," said Nixon, who had only six points on three-of-14 shooting in Game 2. "We made a conscious effort to get to the front early.

"I think if I don't have a good night scoring, I hurt my team. So I went out from the gun and tried to score. I found my rhythm in the second half. I lost it in the second game."

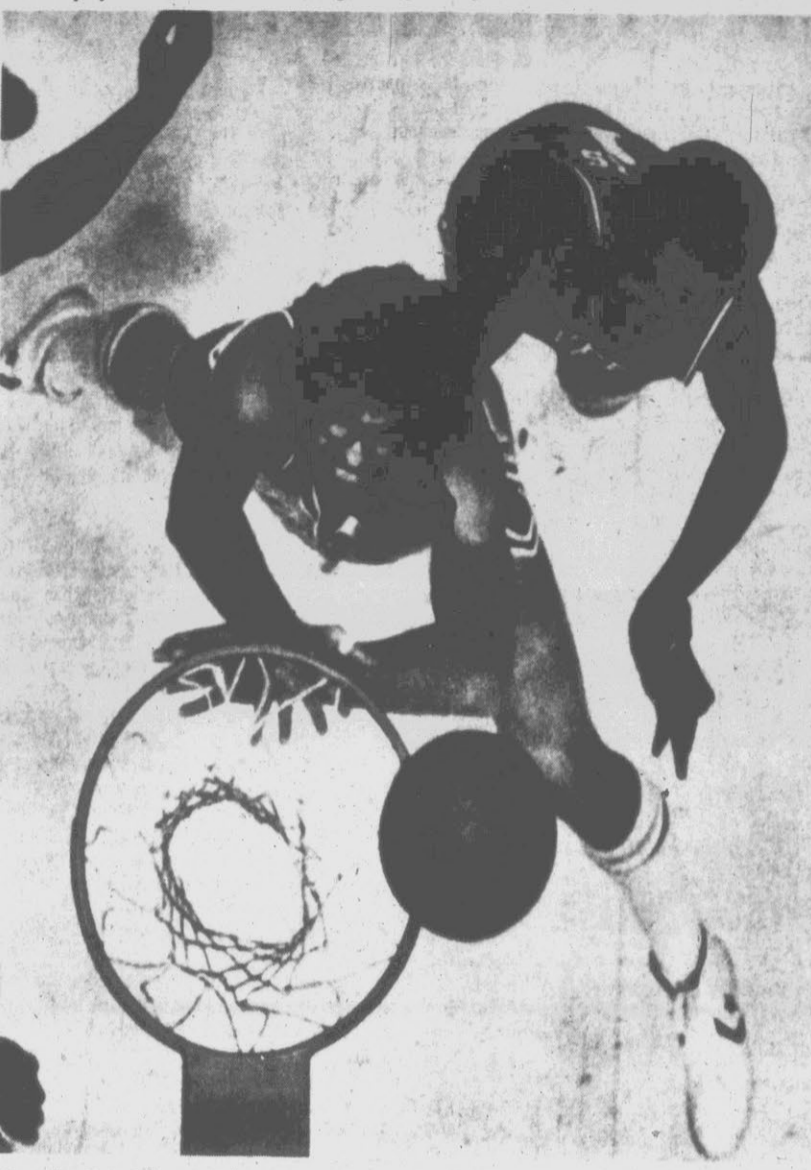

The Lakers scored the game's first six points, but the 76ers came back to tie the count at 8-8. Los Angeles scored the next six points to go ahead for good.

Philadelphia battled back from the 40-20 deficit to get as close as nine points four times late in the second quarter, but the Lakers made it 60-48 at the intermission on Michael Cooper's three-point field goal as the first half ended.

Los Angeles ended all doubts by outscoring the 76ers 13-2 in the opening 3:39 of the second half to go ahead 73-50. Philadelphia never got closer than 15 thereafter.

"At the end of the first half I was very pleased we were only down by 12 points," said Cunningham. "We had a chance, then in the third period we just could not generate anything."

"This is a situation we've been in many times in the playoffs, being beaten badly. But we've always come back. We will be back. You'll see a different club on Thursday night."

Battle For The Basket

Kurt Rambis, center, of the Los Angeles Lakers, managed to sink a basket past the block of Caldwell Jones of the Philadelphia 76ers during their NBA championship series game Tuesday at the Forum in Los Angeles. The Lakers defeated the 76ers, 129-108, in this third game, for a 2-1 lead in the best-of-seven series. (AP Laserphoto)

NFL Owners Talk Of Move

NEW YORK (AP) — Al Davis' attempt to move the Oakland Raiders to Los Angeles — given a boost last month when a jury ruled against the National Football League in its efforts to keep the club in Oakland — is the paramount topic of conversation of the 28 league clubowners.

The owners met today for the first time since a Los Angeles jury ruled against the league in a suit filed by Davis.

Davis is expected to attend the sessions but will not participate in any discussions concerning his team's situation. Instead, the 27 other owners, as defendants in the case, will have a privileged session with their attorneys, with Davis excluded.

The owners will get an explanation of the verdict as well as recommendations from the attorneys on what further action can be taken. Judge Harry Pregerson is expected to rule shortly on the Raiders' request for an injunction, clearing the way for the move to Los Angeles, and the NFL's request for a stay of that injunction.

Also, the owners were scheduled to hear a report by the NFL Management Council on continuing negotiations with the NFL Players Association.

Odom...

leader of the team last year, and Bill McNair, had been rumored to be leaving ECU for several weeks, and Odom said that they had told him they had planned to leave. Both are rising juniors.

"There is not one speck of truth to the report that they are planning to transfer to Virginia," Odom said. "Only two people can give permission for any Division I school to talk to them, myself and Dr. Ken Karr (athletic director). I can definitely say that Virginia has not shown any interest in them. Only one school has called and I really don't know what their plans are."

While Odom would not say what school had contacted him about the two, reliable reports say it is Georgia Southern. "They could change their minds," Odom said of their planned transfer, indicating they might choose to return under a new coach, should it come to that.

Odom said that no other players are planning to leave ECU, but that Al Mack, a junior college transfer last year, is academically ineligible for the coming season.

Odom has met with criticism of his program this past year, when the team record sunk to 10-17, the worst year of his three. He has an overall mark of 38-42.

"I don't think the East Carolina program is in trouble," Odom said. "In fact, it's in the best shape it's been for some time. We just signed the best player we've gotten since I've been here."

Odom emphasized that he had not gone seeking a job, but that Holland had sought him out. "I'm flattered by (the offer). Being talked to about a position at Virginia is attractive. Virginia is an outstanding school both academically and athletically. When you add to it a man a Terry Holland's stature, it makes for a fine offer. There are only two or three schools in the county that I would be willing to go to as an assistant coach from a head coaching position and Virginia is one of those."

"But I feel I have a good job here. I was pleased to come here and I'm pleased to still be here. I'm happy in Greenville and my family is too," Odom added.

Should Odom leave, his successor would become the sixth at the school since it entered Division I NCAA status in 1963.

Warriors...

grounder ended it. For Williams, who struck out nine, it was the first loss in the last two seasons, and left him 9-1 on the year.

"It's really a shame that it's over for Rose," Lancaster said. "We were fortunate to come out on top, but I have to give my regards to Rose for the fine way in which we were treated here. I'm still kind of stunned with it all."

The loss, of course, was a bitter disappointment for Vincent, whose teams are now 46-4 over the past two years.

"They hit the ball better than we did. They played better than we did tonight. We made some key mistakes that beat us, like getting picked off there in the seventh. But you never know what would have happened otherwise."

Disagreeing with Lancaster, Vincent felt that the key play of the game was not the pickoff, but Pelletier's double that drove in the go-ahead run. "I though Roger pitched a fine game tonight. He pitched well enough to win, they just hit the ball well and we didn't."

Vincent said he did feel that there was a letdown following Rose's victory over previously unbeaten Richmond County, 6-4, last Friday night. "We were on an emotional high for that game, and I'm not sure that we were all here tonight. But we did feel that Eastern Wayne has the best talent we've seen this year, and I think the kids knew that coming into the game."

Eastern will now face the winner of the South Caldwell-Roxboro Person game, scheduled for this afternoon, in next week's best of three series for the state title.

Vincent, accepting handshakes from fans, turned back, brightening a little. "I guess third in the state isn't so bad, is it?"

Fairbanks Resigns As Colorado Grid Coach

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — Chuck Fairbanks, who amassed a dismal 7-26 record during his three years as head football coach at the University of Colorado, has resigned to return to professional football.

Eddie Crowder, athletic director at Colorado, told a news conference Tuesday that Fairbanks has submitted his resignation earlier in the day and left immediately for New York City to begin formation of the New York franchise in new United States Football League.

Fairbanks was scheduled to appear at a news conference today to announce that he will be president and coach of the franchise.

Jim Valek, director of development for CU's football program, also resigned to serve as general manager of the new team which is owned by oilman J. Walter Duncan.

Fairbanks coached the New England Patriots of the National Football League immediately prior to taking job at CU.

Crowder and several other university officials met with CU President Arnold Webber Tuesday night but there was no announcement of a replacement.

"We bandied about several names and I will be on the phone early in the morning," Crowder said after the meeting.

Duncan, contacted at his office in Oklahoma City, would not confirm Fairbanks's selection as president and coach of his team. But he said he and Fairbanks have been friends for years.

"I've known Chuck since he was at Oklahoma, when he went away to New England and then when he went to Colorado," Duncan said. "I don't know why he wasn't successful at Colorado."

Duncan flew to New York Tuesday and said he was negotiating for a home field for his team. He said it would be Shea Stadium, Yankee Stadium or Giants Stadium in New Jersey's Meadowlands Sports Complex.

Crowder said he first learned of Fairbanks' interest in the USFL last fall and began pursuing a new coach at that time.

"Both Chuck and Jim have kept me informed as to their status," Crowder said. "We will move quickly to have replacements appointed."

Valek, a former coach at the University of Illinois who worked with Fairbanks at New England as an assistant coach, assistant general manager and business manager, had been at Colorado since September 1980.

Fairbanks, 48, coached New England for six seasons and built a 46-42 record there.

Union Carbide 19

Optimists 2

Andre Hopkins slapped two homers and collected two other hits in pacing Union Carbide to a 19-2 romp over the Optimists in the North State Little League yesterday.

The Optimists gained the early lead in the game, scoring twice in the bottom of the first. Both runs scored on a homer by Joel Pierce.

Union Carbide, however, rallied for three in the second to take the lead for good. Morris Johnson got it started with a solo homer. Greg Davis followed by reaching on an error and Hopkins hit the first of his two roundtrippers for the 3-2 lead.

Union Carbide added two in the third, three more in the fourth, two in the fifth and nine more in the sixth, including two on Hopkins' other homer.

Hopkins' four hits led UC, while Johnson had three and Kevin Fisher had two.

Pierce had two hits to lead the Optimists.

Moose 9

Wellcome 6

Jay Mattox hit a two-run homer in the seventh inning to help the Moose ease past Wellcome, 9-6, in the Tar Heel Little League yesterday.

The Moose took the initial lead in the first inning, scoring four times, but Wellcome rallied for a pair in the second and added a third run in the third. The Moose upped the lead to 5-3 with one in the fourth, before Wellcome came up with three in the fifth to take a 6-5 lead. The Moose then tied it up with one in the sixth.

In the seventh, however, the Moose pulled it out. Wesley Jackson led off with a walk and Mattox followed with his homer, putting the Moose back out, 8-6.

Daren Bullock reached on a fielder's choice to keep the rally alive, moving up on a single by Chris Christopher, and scoring on a passed ball.

Rexter Williams led the Moose hitting with two, while Dallas McPherson had four and Judd Crumpler, two, for the Wellcome squad.

Clark's Pinch-Hit Sparks Giant Win

By The Associated Press
 San Francisco outfielder Jack Clark is a tough man to keep down, even when he's hurting.

Last week's National League Player of the Week, Clark was held out of the starting lineup Tuesday night against the St. Louis Cardinals because of a sore foot.

But it didn't stop him from pinch-hitting in the 11th inning—and winning the game with a run-scoring single as the Giants topped the Cardinals 4-3.

"I didn't want to make any mistakes," Clark said. "I talked to the doctor at 7 o'clock. He said I couldn't hurt it any worse. I just wanted to swing and get it over."

Which is exactly what he did, hitting reliever Doug Bair's first pitch into center field to bring home Darrell Evans from second base.

"The pitchers over here go right after you," said Clark after the game in St. Louis. "He's got a good hard fastball and a good hard curve. If he'd gotten ahead of me, he might have tricked me with a curve."

His game-winning hit made the foot feel a lot better.

"Now that I've been on the foot, I know it's okay," said Clark. "It was tendinitis of the Achilles. That can be serious, but the doctor told me it should be OK."

Reggie Smith and Evans opened the 11th with singles and Smith was forced at third on a bunt by Milt May before Clark belted his game-winning hit.

Jim Kaat, 1-1, the third of four Cardinal pitchers, took the loss. Greg Minton, 3-3, who stopped St. Louis for 32-3 innings on one hit, was the winner with last-out relief help from Gary Lavelle.

Lonnie Smith's single put the Cardinals ahead 2-0 in the first inning. The Giants rallied for a 3-2 lead in the third, as Jim Wohlford singled home one run and Smith doubled home two more.

The Cardinals tied it 3-3 in the fifth when John Stuper tripled and scored on Willie McGee's grounder.

Elsewhere in the National League, Cincinnati defeated Philadelphia 4-1 in a game shortened to seven innings by rain. San Diego walloped Chicago 9-1. Atlanta turned back New York 7-3 and Pittsburgh beat Los Angeles 3-1. The Houston-Montreal game was rained out.

Reds 4, Phillies 1
 Greg Harris pitched a five-hitter and singled in a run as Cincinnati defeated Philadelphia. The Reds took a 1-0 lead in the third on Dave Concepcion's RBI single, then made it 3-0 in the fourth on run-scoring singles by Larry Biittner and Harris.

In the fifth, Concepcion singled with one out, took third on Dan Driessen's single and scored on Mike Vail's infield hit.

Harris, 2-0, who was recalled from Indianapolis of the American Association May 20, struck out three and walked four in gaining his first complete game.

The Phillies scored their run in the sixth on Bo Diaz' RBI double.

Padres 9, Cubs 1
 Ruppert Jones slugged a three-run homer and Broderick Perkins drove in three runs with a triple and a single to power San Diego over Chicago.

The Padres scored four runs in the second inning and four more in the third to wrap up the game early and make it easy for John Montefusco, who worked only five innings.

Randy Martz, 4-4, took the loss.

"I worked hard on improving myself," said Jones. "The work I put in is starting to pay dividends. When you work hard, you're going to get results. I have pride and was not happy with what I did in 1980 and 1981. I owed it to myself and my family."

Jones batted .223 with nine home runs with the New York Yankees in 1980 and .249 with four home runs last year with San Diego. His homer against the Cubs was his eighth of the season and second in two games. He also singled to boost his average to .355.

"Ruppert has been just amazing," said Manager Dick Williams. "He's been that way all spring."

Braves 7, Mets 3
 Dale Murphy's three-run homer keyed a four-run first inning, triggering Atlanta over New York. Murphy took over leadership in the NL home run race with 15. He also is the leader at driving in runs with 42.

Randy Jones, 6-4, was the victim of the Braves' assault in the first inning, allowing all four runs without retiring a batter before he was lifted. The game marked Jones' second attempt to notch the 100th victory of his career.

Atlanta's Ken Dayley, 2-2, gave up a two-run homer in the fourth to Ellis Valentine and a solo shot to Rusty Staub in the sixth before needing relief help. Steve Bedrosian and Gene Garber pitched the last 32-3 innings, finishing up a combined six-hitter.

"The guys in front of me are giving me opportunities to drive in runs," said the Braves' cleanup hitter. "I'm also getting some breaks. Atlanta is a good hitter's park. The ball carries out well and the fences are only 7 1/2-feet high."

Pirates 3, Dodgers 1
 John Candelaria and two relievers combined on a five-hitter and Bill Madlock hit a two-run homer to lead Pittsburgh over Los Angeles.

After the start of the game in Pittsburgh was delayed 65 minutes by rain, Madlock rapped his two-run shot in the first inning off loser Jerry Reuss, who fell to 5-5 with his fourth loss in five decisions.

Candelaria, who retired the first 10 batters before yielding a single to Bill Russell, surrendered a solo home run to Ron and Kent Tekulve finished up, with Tekulve getting his sixth save after coming on with one out in the ninth.

Cey in the fifth inning, his fifth after seven innings due to a stiff left elbow and Rod Scurry

Haden Taking New Position

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Pat Haden, the oft-injured and much-criticized Los Angeles Rams' quarterback, is leaving the football field for a seat in the broadcast booth.

The National Football League team announced Tuesday that Haden, a 29-year-old former Southern Cal star who was with the Rams for six years, was retiring to become a color commentator for CBS-TV. He's expected to work games for the network's new college football series beginning this fall.

A Rhodes Scholar and law school graduate, he's also expected to practice law in addition to his broadcasting duties.

The 5-foot-11 Haden, said by critics to be too small and too weak-armed to be an effective National Football League quarterback, survived challenges from James Harris, Joe Namath and Vince Ferragamo, among others, for the Rams' starting quarterback job.

But Los Angeles recently signed Bert Jones from the Baltimore Colts, and Haden's starting job was once again in jeopardy.

Haden, who joined the team in 1976, came back from concussions and on two occasions he suffered broken fingers.

Vince Ferragamo took over when Haden was hurt in 1979 and led the club to the Super Bowl. Haden won the job back for the start of the next season, but he was hurt in the opening league game. Ferragamo went to Montreal of the Canadian Football League following the 1980 campaign.

Although Haden was unable to ever guide the Rams past the playoffs and to the Super Bowl, he turned in some solid seasons.

He was voted to the Pro Bowl in 1977, and in starting roles with the Rams, his record was 35-18-1. He threw for 52 touchdowns, passed 1,363 times with 731 completions and had just 60 interceptions.

Haden played in the now-defunct World Football League in 1975 although the Rams acquired him in the seventh round of the 1975 NFL draft. In his debut in the NFL the following season, Haden's first pass resulted in a 47-yard touchdown.

His best season may have been 1977, when he ranked second in NFL passing efficiency, had a league low of only six interceptions and threw 106 consecutive passes without an interception.

In 1979, he suffered a broken finger in the tenth regular-season game and gas out for the season.

In 1980, he broke a finger in the opener. But when he returned, it was in an understudy role. Last season, he started again but later was replaced by former Houston and Oakland quarterback Dan Pastorini. Pastorini was released after the completion of a year in which the Rams failed to make the playoffs for the first time in nine seasons.

Haden was the starting quarterback for the University of Southern California in three Rose Bowl games, including the 1975 triumph over Ohio State where he threw for the winning touchdown and a two-point conversion in the final seconds.

Salem Tops Putt Play

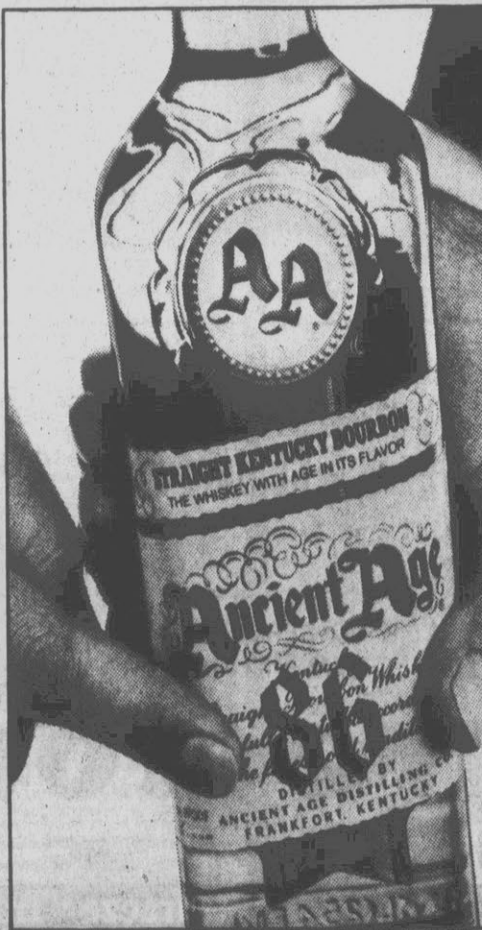

Salem Methodist was upset last night by Farmville Presbyterian at the Greenville Putt-Putt during the weekly Churh League meeting.

Led by Mel Williams' eight under par 65, Farmville Presbyterian (24-3) beat previously unbeaten Salem Methodist (26-1) by a team score of 272 to 279. Ray Taft was the low scorer for Salem at 65.

Hopewell Pentecostal (17-9-1) and First Wesleyan (12-14-1) both came in with 294 for third place, with Danny Pollard having a 66 and Mike Robertis a 67 for their respective teams.

Fourth place went to Arthur Christian (14-13) with a team total of 302, led by Lanny Norris' 68.

Gum Swamp Free Will Baptist was next (12-15), followed by Faith Pentecostal (17-9-1) and First Baptist (5-21-1), tied for sixth, and Gloria Dei Lutheran (0-27) last.

Losing Streak Continues For Twins

By The Associated Press
It took 20 years for Billy Gardner to return to the Minnesota Twins, but not nearly that long for him to experience a sense of deja vu.

Gardner was an infielder with the Washington Senators when they moved to Minnesota in 1961, became the Twins and suffered through a 13-game losing streak.

Gardner was traded to the New York Yankees later that season and didn't put on a Twins uniform again until last year, when he signed on as a coach after a 12-year managing career in the minors. He replaced Johnny Goryl as manager of the Twins on May 22, 1981, and Tuesday night, Gardner's youthful 1982 Twins tied the 1961 club record of 13 consecutive losses when they dropped a 6-4 decision to the Cleveland Indians, who have won nine in a row.

"So I'm managing now and I'm going to try and break it, but no, we'll get them tomorrow (Wednesday)," Gardner said.

In other American League games, Detroit edged California 2-1, Oakland nipped Boston 3-2, Kansas City shaded Chicago 4-3, Toronto downed New York 5-2 and Milwaukee beat Seattle 2-1. The Texas-Baltimore game was rained out.

Minnesota, which blew a 2-0 lead in the fourth inning when Cleveland's Andre Thornton hit a three-run homer, his 15th of the season, tied the game 4-4 in the top of the eighth on Kent Hrbek's infield hit.

But with two out in the bottom of the eighth, Von Hayes singled off Ron Davis. Dan Petry pitched eight shutout innings and Dave Tobik notched his first save of the season as Detroit moved into first place in the AL East, one-half game ahead of Boston. The Tigers scored their runs in the second inning against Ken Forsch. A single by Richie Hebner and Larry Herndon's double set the stage for a run-scoring grounder by Lance Parrish and an RBI single by Lou Whitaker.

Petry, who hails from Placentia, a community within a few miles of Anaheim Stadium, wanted the shutout so badly he could almost taste it. "I started to get chills after each inning. I was thinking, 'I'm going to shut them out,'" he said. "I tried to do too much and went out of control. I gave up five walks, and that's just too much against a good club like the Angels."

A's 3, Red Sox 2
Rickey Henderson, who stole his 50th and 51st bases earlier in the game, hit a two-run homer in the fifth inning for the tying and winning runs. Henderson's steals gave him 51 in 51 games. The homer off Chuck Rainey was his fifth of the season and his second in two days. In the third, Tony Phillips singled and was forced by Henderson, who stole second and scored on a single by Dan Meyer.

Oakland's Rick Langford allowed three hits and two runs in the first inning but only three more hits until he was replaced by Tom Underwood in the ninth.

Royals 4, White Sox 3
Kansas City relief ace Dan Quisenberry pitched out of a seventh-inning jam to pick up his 13th save of the season. Quisenberry, who leads the AL in saves, pitched the final three innings to preserve the victory for Vida Blue and hand the White Sox their fifth straight loss.

Kansas City erased a 2-0 deficit with two runs in the bottom of the first. George Brett doubled home Willie Wilson, who singled and stole second. Brett scored on a single by Hal McRae. The Royals made it 4-2 in the fifth on singles by Frank White, Wilson and John Wathan and Amos Otis' grounder.

Quisenberry entered the game in the seventh after Jim Morrison homered and Bill Almon walked. Ron LeFlore singled Almon to third, but Quisenberry picked Ron LeFlore off first after faking a move to third, then got two ground balls to end the threat. However, he issued his first walk of the season — when he passed Jerry Hairston with one out in the ninth.

"I can't seem to throw a strike when I need one," Quisenberry said with a smile.

Blue Jays 5, Yankees 2
Barry Bonnell drove in the tying and lead runs with a bases-loaded single off New York relief ace Rich Gossage in the eighth inning and Jesse Barfield added a two-run double. Gossage came on with one out and runners at first and second. He walked pinch hitter Buck Martinez and Bonnell rapped his next pitch into center field for the game-winning hit. Dale Murray was the winner with three innings of one-hit relief.

"I think the only other time I've ever got a hit against him (Gossage) was in spring training in 1978," said Bonnell. "I knew he was going to throw me a fast ball. But I guess everybody in the park knows that. He threw it and I handled it."

Brewers 2, Mariners 1
Pete Vuckovich blanked Seattle on two hits for seven innings, Ted Simmons homered in the second inning and Roy Howell singled home the Brewers' other run in the seventh. Vuckovich lost his shutout bid in the eighth when Joe Simpson doubled and Bruce Bochte singled him home. That chased Vuckovich and Rollie Fingers came on to record his 11th save.

Wilander Pulls Off 2nd Upset; Connors Final American Hope

PARIS (AP) — A second major upset by Swedish teen-ager Mats Wilander left it up to Jimmy Connors to break America's string of frustration at the French Open tennis championships.

Vitas Gerulaitis, the No. 5 seed, was the 22nd American to be eliminated from the Grand Slam event Tuesday when the unseeded 17-year-old Wilander toppled him 6-3, 6-3, 4-6, 6-4 and qualified for the semifinals.

Now, only Connors can become the first American man in 27 years to win the $917,000 clay court tournament, one of the major events on the world circuit.

Top-seeded Connors played Spain's Jose Higueras today in the quarterfinals. Guillermo Vilas of Argentina, the No. 3 seed, met Frenchman Yannick Noah, seeded eighth, in the other remaining quarterfinal.

The 29-year-old Connors, who has never made the finals of any French Open, had won five of his six previous matches against Higueras, the No. 14 seed who is ranked 17th worldwide.

Wilander's victory moved him a step closer to ending his compatriot Bjorn Borg's distinction of being the youngest man to win this event.

Borg, who is not competing this year, won his first of six French titles in 1974 six days after his 18th birthday. Wilander, whose style is similar to that of Borg, celebrates his 18th birthday Aug. 22.

Wilander earlier upset No. 2 seed Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia. The teen-aged sensation will meet Argentine Jose-Luis Clerc for the first time in his brief career in the men's semifinals Friday. The $66,000 title match is to be played Sunday at Paris' Roland Garros Stadium.

"I never thought I'd make it this far," said Wilander, who was last year's junior champion at the French Open.

The young Swede blew two match points in the final game before Gerulaitis, ranked ninth worldwide, slammed a backhand into the net. Gerulaitis earlier this year defeated Wilander in the finals of a Grand Prix tournament in Brussels and now has a 1-1 career record against him.

Wilander is currently ranked 18th in the world standings. He has risen an astonishing 265 places in the past 18 months.

Clerc, seeded fourth, became the first man to qualify for the semifinals Tuesday when he defeated Australian Peter McNamara 6-2, 6-2, 6-2.

"I was really surprised that I won so easily," Clerc said after his quarterfinal victory.

The Argentine clinched the victory on his first match point when the 26-year-old McNamara, who had been seeded seventh, failed to get the ball over when he rushed the net.

"There was nothing I could do," the Australian said. "He was playing too well."

Three Americans and a Czech will play in the women's semifinals Thursday.

Defending champion Hana Mandlikova, the No. 5 seed from Czechoslovakia, will face No. 2 seed Martina Navratilova, Czechoslovakian-born and now an American citizen. It will be the first time the two have played each other on clay.

The other semifinal pits Chris Evert Lloyd, who at age 27 is favored to win her fifth French Open, against fellow American Andrea Jaeger, the No. 4 seed who celebrates her 17th birthday Friday. Neither Lloyd nor Jaeger have lost a set in this tournament.

The semifinal survivors will play Saturday for the $51,000 winner's purse.

Mandlikova, a 20-year-old ranked fifth worldwide, blew two match points in the second set then raced to victory in the third for a 7-6, 6-7, 6-2 quarterfinal upset Tuesday over No. 3 seed Tracy Austin.

"This is only my first or second big tournament of the year," Mandlikova said after her victory. "I took off four months because of a back problem. But I'm satisfied with my game and I think I can win the tournament."

Mandlikova needed two hours and 39 minutes to eliminate the 19-year-old Austin, who was making her first career appearance here. The French Open is the first official tournament Austin has played since a pinched nerve in her back forced her to take a nearly five month break.

Navratilova advanced by beating fellow American Zina Garrison 7-5, 6-1. Lloyd moved into the semifinals Monday by eliminating Romanian Lucia Romanov while Jaeger defeated Romanian Virginia Ruzici in their quarterfinal match.

Evans Hopes To Join Oilers
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Former North Carolina State University quarterback and punter Johnny Evans says he'll seek a spot with the Houston Oilers as a punter.

Evans, known as "Big Foot" at N.C. State because of his kicking ability, will report to the Houston Oilers' training camp July 20 for his tryout.

Evans was a regular punter and a backup quarterback for the Cleveland Browns for three years until 1981, when he was traded to the Buffalo Bills. The Bills cut him from their roster before the season started and Evans was back in Raleigh.

Cogan: Others Too Quick To Blame

TORRANCE, Calif. (AP) — Kevin Cogan, the driver whose car triggered an accident that knocked four cars out of the Indianapolis 500 on the pace lap, said others were too quick to put the blame on him. "Unquestionably, it was a mechanical failure," Cogan told the South Bay Daily Breeze. "Unfortunately, others chose to speak out before they knew the facts."

Cogan said in the telephone interview from Indianapolis that the accident was caused by the disintegration of the constant velocity joint at the right rear wheel of his Norton Spirit Penske just before the green flag for the start of the race.

The accident put Cogan, Mario Andretti, Dale Whittington and Roger Mears out of last Sunday's race. A.J. Foyt also needed repairs to his car, but he was able to make the start that was delayed 50 minutes by the mishap.

Cogan said the breakdown of the joint "would give you a free-wheeling right rear tire and a driving right front tire. At 700 horsepower that would cause the car to move to the right very abruptly, which is what it did."

"The rear of the car did not slide or move at all. There is no way this could be figured as driver error."

Both Andretti and Foyt sharply criticized Cogan for his driving.

"Whether I'm inexperienced or not has nothing to do with anything when you have a mechanical failure," Cogan said. "Superman could not have kept that car straight."

Cogan's car spun and came to a stop against the outside wall after being hit broadside by Andretti's. Further back collided. Of the charges made against him by Andretti and Foyt, Cogan said: "Everyone's upset when something like that happens. I think, Mario, for some reason, was more upset than anyone else would have been. "I didn't want to say anything before I knew for sure what happened. They chose to speak right away. On the other hand, people don't realize the intensity of the situation.

Votes Of Record In Congress

USED CARS — By a vote of 286 for an 133 against, the House vetoed a proposed Federal Trade Commission rule to require used car dealers to put a sticker on cars alerting prospective buyers to any major defects the dealer is aware of. The Senate also vetoed the rule and the proposal is now dead. The veto resolution was S Con Res 60.

Supporter Bill Emerson, R-Mo., said that under the rule, "consumers will end up paying a higher price on a used car, taxpayers will end up with the cost of additional FTC personnel ... and the problem of the sale of unsafe used vehicles will not be solved."

Opponent Robert Garcia, D-N.Y., said the FTC rule "requires honesty on the part of the dealers in their dealings with the buyer."

Members voting "yea" were opposed to the FTC used-car rule.

Reps. Walter Jones, D-1, L.H. Fountain, D-2, Charles Whitley, D-3, Ike Andrews, D-4, Steothen Neal, D-5, Eugene Johnston, R-6, Charles Rose, D-7, W.G. Hefner, D-8, James Martin, R-9, James Broyhill, R-10 and William Hendon, R-11, voted "yea."

1983 BUDGET — The House rejected, 182 for and 242 against, an amendment to balance the fiscal 1983 budget, primarily by freezing virtually all spending at 1982 levels. The vote came during debate on the 1983 budget blueprint (H Con Res 345) that will guide the House and Senate in later action on specific spending bills. The major Democratic and Republican blueprints, on which final action had not been taken, proposed deficits in the $100 billion neighborhood. Sponsor John Roussetol, R-Calif., said his balanced-budget amendment would send "the strongest signal to both Main Street and Wall Street and will be a tremendous incentive to bring down interest rates."

Opponent David Obey, D-Wisc., said "this amendment does not get us to a balanced budget. It is not based on real numbers...It is based on fabricated assumptions" of projected revenue.

Members voting "yea" thought the Roussetol amendment would eliminate a fiscal 1983 budget deficit.

Fountain, Whitley, Neal, Johnston, Rose, Hefner, Martin, Broyhill and Hendon voted "yea."

Jones and Andrews voted "nay."

CUTTING DEFENSE — The House rejected, 128 for and 285 against, an amendment to cut FY 1983 defense outlays by $7.5 billion and raise $15 billion in new revenue by imposing an excise tax on luxury items such as furs, jewelry and wagering. This was to have lowered the projected 1983 debt to $79.5 billion — $22.5 billion less than the anticipated deficit in the administration-backed "Latta plan" for the 1983 budget. The vote occurred during debate on the 1983 budget blueprint (see preceding vote).

Sponsor Chalmers Wylie, R-Ohio, said the administration's defense request must be cut because "frankly, I do not think the Defense Department can spend that much money wisely."

Opponents either disliked the cut in defense spending or objected to establishing a new tax without benefit of Ways and Means Committee hearings.

Members voting "yea" wanted to lower the deficit by cutting defense outlays and taxing the sale of luxury items and wagering taxes.

Jones, Fountain, Whitley, Andrews, Neal, Johnston, Rose, Hefner, Martin, Broyhill and Hendon voted "nay."

SENATE RAISING TAXES — The Senate rejected, 32 for and 68 against, an amendment to repeal the third installment of the three-year personal income tax cut approved last year by Congress. Left intact by this vote is the 10 percent across-the-board cut in individual income tax rates that is scheduled to take effect in July 1983. Supporters of the amendment, mostly Democrats, said foregoing the cut would save the Treasury $107.2 billion to be used to cut the staggering budget deficit, while opponents said the cut is indispensable to the president's economic recovery program. The vote occurred during debate on the FY 1983 budget plan (S Con Res 92), later sent to the House, that limits spending at $784 billion and projects an annual deficit of $116 billion.

Supporter Charles Mathias, R-Md., said it was necessary to repeal the three-year tax cut because, contrary to expectations, the president's tax-cut strategy has failed to regain the confidence of the financial markets or stimulate industrial productivity.

Opponent Mack Mattingly, R-Ga., said the Senate lacks "the guts" to trim politically-popular entitlement programs, and that it is therefore unjust for it to seek additional revenue by depriving individuals of lower taxes.

Senators voting "nay" wanted to retain the third installment of the cut in individual income tax rates.

Sen. John East, R, and Jesse Helms, R, voted "nay."

UNEMPLOYMENT BENEFITS — By a vote of 52 for and 42 against, the Senate tabled and thus killed an amendment to the 1983 budget blueprint (see preceding vote) providing 12 more weeks of unemployment benefits for the jobless. This sought to lengthen the eligibility period for unemployment checks to 52 weeks in states having at least 8 percent unemployment (about 30 states). The projected cost was $1.2 billion.

Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kansas, who voted to kill the amendment, said "I just do not believe we have the extra billion dollars to pay for the program in the next fiscal year."

Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., who supported the additional 12 weeks' unemployment pay, said "there is a serious need for this kind of commitment to the unemployed working men and women of this country."

Senators voting "nay" wanted the jobless to get up to 52 weeks of unemployment checks.

East and Helms voted "yea."

RAILROAD WORKERS — The Senate adopted, 57 for and 40 against, an amendment providing expanded cost-of-living increases in the pensions paid some 1 million former railroad workers under the Railroad Retirement Act. In part, he amendment lifts the 4 percent cap proposed on the increases for fiscal 1983-84 and permits the hike to be the same percentage as the Consumer Price Index. Although no firm cost projection was offered during debate, there were indicators the amendment will cost the Treasury at least $100 million annually. The vote occurred during debate on the 1983 budget resolution (see preceding votes).

Sponsor James Sasser, D-Tenn., said railroad retirees are "good, hard-working men and women" and that Congress must stand by its previous commitment to them.

Opponent Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., said that with one or two U.S. railroads making money "I wish to know where these funds are going to come from to provide a cost-of-living increase ... As beneficial and desirable as that might be, I think once again we are looking for that old money tree."

Senators voting "yea" wanted more liberal cost of living hikes for railroad retirees.

East and Helms voted "nay."

Next Time, He Will Not Stop

MASON, Mich. (AP) — A man who broke out of jail made the mistake of stopping to read the morning paper in the front yard of an off-duty law officer's home, Ingham County authorities say.

downs, instead of bars, he added.

Later, an off-duty sheriff's deputy saw a man lying in the yard of his Wheatfield Township home, 12 miles northeast of Mason, reading the morning paper, Doolittle said.

The unidentified deputy called department headquarters after he confronted the man. A patrol car was dispatched and Bosse was found hiding in a weed-covered ditch near the deputy's home, Doolittle said.

One Grad Never Attended Class

KENT, Ohio (AP) — The tale has only just come out, but one of the students listed as graduating at the December commencement of Kent State University never attended a class.

The name of Nelson Springer Angstrom, a character from the novels of Pulitzer Prize-winning author John Updike, was called out at the commencement exercises. But, predictably, he didn't step forward to claim a diploma.

Angstrom's name was added to the list of graduates contained in the commencement program by Robert McCoy, assistant to university President Brage Golding. McCoy provided Updike background on Kent State when Angstrom, the son of Rabbit Angstrom in Updike's "Rabbit" novels, was supposed to have enrolled in the school in northeastern Ohio.

Golding, getting wind of the prank, made sure Angstrom's name was read among a list of graduates stepping forward to receive diplomas.

Updike's reaction? "They'll do anything for a laugh at Kent State."

Pick Israel For Peace Prize

CHICAGO (AP) — The National Coalition of American Nuns has nominated the nation of Israel for the 1982 Nobel Peace Prize because its people have "nobly given" the Sinai back to Egypt for the sake of peace. "This is the first time in history that a nation has thus forfeited land won in a war," the nuns' organization said.

Battleship To Reopen Friday

WILMINGTON — North Carolina's sound and light spectacular, "The Immortal Showboat," opens its 18th season Friday at the USS North Carolina Battleship Memorial in Wilmington. The outdoor drama will continue nightly at 9 p.m. through Labor Day, September 6.
 More than a quarter of a million persons have visited the site of the World War II memorial since its initial performance in 1965. The spectacular is 70 minutes of sound and light telling the story of the ship from the time of her keel laying in 1937 to the end of hostilities in the Pacific in 1945.
 Wartime action is depicted in locations such as the East Solomon Sea, Iwo Jima and Okinawa.
 Admission is $1.50 for adults, and 75 cents for children ages 6 through 11. Admission is free for those 5 and younger.

A Hayfever Family Has 'Safe' Home

By GEORGE JAHN
Associated Press Writer
LUGANO, Switzerland (AP) — A Swiss family is enjoying their first torture-free spring in years in their new home, built to relieve the agonies of the hayfever sufferer.

"It started off as an experiment," said Milo Navone, an architect who became desperate after years of inoculations and medication failed to help his wife and daughter shake the runny nose, sore throat and itchy eyes familiar to millions worldwide. "But, now, we're all laughing."

Spring comes early to southern Switzerland, and with it the clouds of pollen that inflict misery on unwary city dwellers as far as 200 miles away from the countryside.

To meet the threat, the Navone house, innocuous among its suburban neighbors, is equipped with an invisible first line of defense — a sophisticated air-conditioning system.

The air conditioning lets the family keep all windows sealed. It also keeps the inside air pressure high, which acts as a buffer to the few pollen particles not kept out by the air filters.

Natural stone and wood were used for the structural walls, to avoid the problem posed by artificial building materials which release various irritants, Navone explained.

Inside, Navone has opted for open space instead of dividing walls, which trap dust. Also, he said, many hayfever sufferers feel confined by small rooms — an unexplained psychological side effect.

Furniture is sparse and simple — again to reduce the accumulation of dust. And when Mrs. Navone housecleans, she uses moist dustcloths and special micro-filter vacuum attachments which capture most of the minute dust particles vacuum cleaners miss otherwise.

Other than these concessions, it is very much of a normal house, Navone said, adding: "It cannot be like a hospital or my family wouldn't feel comfortable."

"There are no expensive particularities" putting such a house out of the reach of other hayfever sufferers, he said.

Navone, 49, said he had built the house as an act of desperation, after his wife and 14-year old daughter had "traveled all over Europe, trying normal medication and desensibility tests with no result."

Since the family moved in recently, his daughter has not suffered any hayfever symptoms, while his wife has been free of the asthma attacks which usually accompany the coming of spring, he said.

When he started planning the home four years ago, it was strictly "a private solution to a private problem." But, he added, the success of his endeavor has "started me thinking about going commercial — if there are any takers."

Of those there should be plenty. Allergy experts estimate that as many as one out of three Europeans are hayfever victims to some degree.

CENSORED — Anita Morris, who plays Raul Julia's mistress in "Nine", the Broadway musical at the 46th Street Theatre in New York, demonstrates one of the body gestures that the Standards and Practices Committee at CBS censored for presentation of its 1982 Tony Award Show. The star is heartbroken, the producer defiant, and the provocative dance number in which Morris wears black lace has been eliminated from the Sunday, June 6 broadcast and another one substituted. (AP Laserphoto)

Rueful Laughs At Russian Jokes

By MATHIS CHAZANOV
MOSCOW (UPI) — When Gennady Chazanov (no relation) walks into a restaurant, the doorman smiles, waitresses blush and people at other tables lean over to hear what he is saying.

At 36, the short, black-haired entertainer is a star. His previous one-man show ran for 2½ years at the Moscow Variety Theater and a new production has won glowing reviews in the Soviet press. It is called "Believe it or Not" and sells out every performance at the Variety, a smallish theater across the Moscow River from the Kremlin.

People come by subway and in long, official limousines to roar with laughter at his routines, written with a collaborator.

The sketches are broken up by musical numbers featuring leggy dancers and recorded rock music.

The topics range from the problems of a man who lugged home a soda-vending machine because his factory didn't make anything smaller worth stealing to an apprentice cook (male) who decides he is pregnant because he feels sick.

"Do you want to know what makes me sick?" he asks. "Be quiet or I won't tell you ... It makes me sick to see people licking the heels of the bosses."

The crowd applauds.

Explaining the title of his show, Chazanov asks his audience to tell him if the following story is believable or not.

"An everyday Soviet engineer wakes up one day and decides to take a vacation in Sochi (a popular resort hard for ordinary people to get into).

"He flies down to Sochi, the management kicks somebody else out and he gets a lovely room overlooking the sea, has a wonderful time and decides to come back every summer.

"Now tell me, is this believable or isn't it?"

Overcoming the usual shyness of Soviet audiences, a few people call out, "Unbelievable." Others agree.

"But why?" Chazanov asks in mock confusion.

"Maybe you didn't understand, so I'll tell it again. An everyday engineer — from England — wakes up one day and decides to go to Sochi."

Since most people believe the best of everything is reserved for foreigners, the audience declares that this is much more believable.

"That's right," Chazanov says. "It was our engineer that got tossed out of the hotel room...but what's unbelievable is that he got the room in the first place."

Although his routines poke fun at shortages and other problems of Soviet life, Chazanov says he does not consider himself brave for saying in public what others say in private.

"I'm not telling people anything they don't know themselves already," he said, adding that his scripts are approved by officials from the Ministry of Culture with little editing.

Many of Chazanov's routines spotlight typically Soviet situations such as a

Cable Television Going Full Cycle, Back To Mom And Pop

By KENNETH R. CLARK
 UPI TV Reporter
NEW YORK (UPI) — Cable television, born in the sticks about 20 years ago, started life as a Mom-and-

Pop operation designed to send a video signal where no signal ever had gone before. Then it grew up, moved to town and started counting its money in megabucks.

Carolina Grill
 Corner 9th & Dickinson
 Cheese & Egg Sandwich 59¢
 Ham & Egg, Bacon & Egg, & Sausage & Egg Sandwiches ... 99¢
 Phone 752-1188 For Take-Outs

Now, according to Blake Sidlo, things have gone full cycle and for as little as $2,500, Mom and Pop once again can have a piece of the action.

Sidlo, an account executive for Integrated Resources in Toms River, N.J., is one of many who have found a new line of work as a result of the cable explosion. He serves as a broker, selling limited partnership units in cable systems valued at $63 million. The offering comes from a corporation spearheaded by Denver cable pioneer Bill Daniels.

Daniels, who has amassed a fortune by buying small cable systems, upgrading them, and selling them at a profit, currently owns 21 systems valued at $150 million.

Sidlo said as a long-term investment, a cable buy from Daniels' partnership is even better than the interest-rich money market, and much safer than playing the stock market.

"When you invest in cable, you are actually the owner," he said. "You're not owning a company that owns a system. You are an owner. You have someone else manage it for you, but you own it because you've put up the money."

"As an investment broker and planner, I do like people to have money markets. I believe it's quite a favorable alternative to a savings account, but you shouldn't fall in love with the money market."

One thing is certain. The nation already has fallen in love with television.

In 1945, Americans owned a minuscule 10,000 television sets. Today, they own more than 130 million. In 1960, 650,000 homes subscribed to cable television. Today, the figure has topped 15.5 million and is climbing faster than anyone can count.

Individual systems and corporate multiple-system owners have blossomed like dandelions in a summer lawn. Even the prime time networks — their audiences eroded of precious percentage points by all the alternate programming — are getting into the act.

Now, under an offering called "ACT 1" by American Cable TV Investors — the partnership managed by Daniels and Associates — small investors who qualify can start adding cable to their portfolios. Qualification to be an "ACT 1" buyer demands a minimum annual salary of $20,000 and another $20,000 in net worth.

Citing a "hypothetical model," Sidlo claims an investor in the 50 percent tax bracket who invests $10,000 should reap $41,100 at the end of seven years.

"It's not like a stock in that you have easy liquidity," he said. "If you want to sell, you can probably find a buyer, but it's not geared as a short term investment. You should expect to stay in for a number of years."

But Sidlo said there are more immediate advantages to a cable buy for the small investor. It can help him beat the tax man.

"Most people are already sold on the idea of cable, but little do they know that it is a tax advantage investment," he said. "Within a four-year period, you will get to write off 100 percent of your investment."

"When you buy a stock, you have double taxation. The company is taxed, they give you a dividend, and you are taxed. Or, if there's an increase on the price of the stock, you're taxed on the capital gains."

Answer to yesterday's puzzle. 6-2

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, JUNE 3, 1982

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day and evening when planetary pressures could disrupt previous plans. Progress toward success could be delayed. Use more self-control and be as cheerful as possible.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) The situation at home could be difficult now, but use tact for best results. Remove conditions that cause disharmony.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Make sure to safeguard your personal property at this time. Much care in motion is needed to avoid possible mishap.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Stay within your budget today even though you may be pressured into doing otherwise. Strive for happiness.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You may want to withdraw because you think others are not treating you properly, but this is not true.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Some anxiety could keep you from operating in a constructive way if you allow it. Be sure to handle duties efficiently.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Some friends are not in a good mood in the morning but later they give you the support you need. Exercise more patience.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Instead of just worrying about a career matter, do something constructive about it. Be more firm in business dealings.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Be sure you don't make radical changes today or you could regret it later. A business expert can give you good advice.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Be sure to meet your obligations honorably. Study a new outlet that could be profitable in the future.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Associates may seem annoyed now but it is because they have problems of their own. Sidestep one who talks too much.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Handle routine tasks ahead of you and show that you are most efficient at them. Improve your appearance.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Keep busy at work ahead of you since this is not a good day for the recreation you have in mind. Relax at home tonight.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those highly emotional young persons who should be taught to use this vital force constructively. Any field connected with government work is fine here. Give good religious training early in life.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

4 ♠ Pass Pass Pass
Opening lead: Four of ♣.

Nothing is more difficult for the defenders than to cash out the four top tricks due them when those tricks are split between the two hands. Sometimes, declarer can take advantage of that fact with a bit of deception.

South's jump to four spades was a trifle aggressive. Even though he had 19 points in high cards, his two doubleton queens were dubious assets.

Sitting South was South African, Gus Calderwood. When dummy came down, he was looking at two losers each in hearts and clubs, and no place to put any of them. A possible line was to draw two rounds of trumps, then play four rounds of diamonds in the hope that they would live and allow him to discard one of dummy's clubs. But when declarer then led a club, the defenders could maneuver so that the one who held the third trump would win the first club, and then remove dummy's last trump to prevent a ruff.

Instead, declarer chose to enlist the defenders' help. He won the opening lead in dummy and immediately led a low club. East played low, and declarer's queen lost to the king. To West, it looked as if declarer was trying to ruff clubs in dummy, and that he had gotten off to a good opening lead. So he continued with a trump. Declarer needed no more.

He won in dummy and took four rounds of diamonds, as West had to follow. On the last diamond, declarer discarded dummy's remaining club. Now a club ruff was declarer's tenth trick - and even the defenders had to applaud Calderwood's pretty swindle.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal bridge format. Do you know something you don't? Charles Goren's "Four-Deal Bridge" will teach you the strategies and tactics of this fast-paced action game that provides the cure for unending rubbers.

Beach Bombshell
As the summer weather heats up, American beaches and swimming pools are packed with scantily-clad bathers. Suntan lotion, sunglasses, and bikinis are standard equipment for many women as they soak up solar rays. But few people have any idea where bikinis came from. The name "bikini" derives from the Bikini Atoll in the Pacific, a group of islands where American A-bomb tests were held after World War II. But the native islanders there did not invent the bikini. Actually the bikini, like many fashions, originated in France, in the early 1950s. When this sartorial bombshell exploded on the international fashion world, its impact could only be compared to an A-bomb in its "de-vestating" effect.

DO YOU KNOW - What are the three main groupings of Pacific islands?
TUESDAY'S ANSWER - They dissolve their food with spit and suck it up through their proboscises.

Six From Pitt In Who's Who

CHICAGO - Six residents of Pitt County, five from Greenville, and one from Farnville, are listed in the 1982-83 edition of "Who's Who in America."

The six making the publication for the first time are Wilhelm Richard Frisell, Eugene David Furth, Robert Hawthorne Maier, Carl Robert Morgan and Ronald Lewis Thiele, all of Greenville, and Thomas Shipley Ryon of Farnville.

Dr. Adele Hast, editor-in-chief of the reference publication which was initially issued in 1898, noted that more than 16,000 persons are making first-time appearances and that total biographical sketches in the new edition now exceed 74,000.

'Grand Prix' For Detroit

By HARRY ATKINS
Associated Press Writer
DETROIT (AP) — Foreign cars, object of much scorn in this capital of the reeling American auto industry, invade Detroit this week for what is being billed as the first Grand Prix auto race among skyscrapers.

The invaders are not the latest high-mileage offerings from Japan but about 30 high-performance automobiles which will compete June 6 in an event that officials hope will bring glamour and dollars to a city where one in five of its 1.2 million citizens is unemployed.

The idea for a Grand Prix was started two years ago by the directors of Detroit Renaissance Inc., a local non-profit business group. With some help from retired auto magnate Henry Ford II, whose cars experienced great success in international racing in the 1960s, the idea was sold to Grand Prix officials in London and Paris.

The group put up about $3.5 million to support the race and need about 65,000 fans, who will be paying between $15 and $75 a ticket, to break even.

The Detroit City Council spent $800,000 to repave the streets that comprise the 2.5-mile race course in the downtown area.

The construction caused traffic snarls and grumbling from motorists who had to dodge hundreds of un-repaired potholes elsewhere around the city. City council members, who were caught in the traffic jams, angrily summoned race organizers to explain. Some critics labeled the race the Grand Mistake.

"God knows times are tough," Mayor Coleman A. Young said in turning aside complaints. "But, it doesn't hurt us to have a little fun once in a while, too. The Grand Prix comes at a time when Detroit can use an emotional lift."

Grand Prix racing, with its roots in Europe, already is an established success in two other American cities — Long Beach, Calif. and Las Vegas. In all, 15 races are scheduled this year in such places as Monaco, France and Belgium.

If the Detroit Grand Prix does attract 65,000 fans, and if they spend about $4 million in restaurants, hotels and shops during their stay downtown, the city would realize $200,000 in sales tax alone, according to Robert E. McCabe, president of Detroit Renaissance.

"The message we wanted to get out through the Grand Prix is already getting out, every single day, in a variety of little ways," McCabe said. "I saw where a reporter asked a carpenter, putting up bleachers near Cobo Hall, how he liked the Grand Prix coming to town. The carpenter said, 'I like it fine. This is the first work I've had in 18 months.'"

It will cost $15 just to stand and watch the June 6 race. A reserved seat costs $35. A better seat is $65. A seat for the race and qualifying trials June 4-5 goes for $75.

"It's a major sporting event," says Jackie Stewart, a three-time World Driving Champion and winner of 27 Grand Prix races. "You have to pay for the premier pre-stige event of the calendar year."

Advance ticket sales are "right on target," says Paul Klapproth, a spokesman for the race, but had no specific figures.

Detroit Renaissance is asking owners of buildings which ring the course to close Saturday and Sunday so no one can watch the event for free. People who need to work at their regular jobs within the course area will be given special passes, officials said. To ensure that restaurants and bars cash in, race fans won't be allowed to bring food- and drink-filled coolers with them.

The course itself has the city's Renaissance Center as its centerpiece, with the Formula One racing cars streaking along the Detroit River, navigating about 16 turns, including two hairpins, through the downtown area, and averaging 100 mph. Top speeds are expected to reach about 150 mph.

Rules call for the race to conclude at 175 miles or after two hours, whichever comes first. The total amount of prize money is not made public.

"You're going to hear motor and sound like you've never heard before, open exhaust pipes with canyons of buildings bouncing off," says Stewart, who will be providing color commentary for the event which will be broadcast by ABC.

The race will be televised in 40 countries and sponsors estimate a portion of it will be seen by about 100 million viewers.

The Precious Gift of Sight

"To see a world in a grain of sand,
And a Heaven in a wild flower,
Hold infinity in the palm of your hand,
And eternity in an hour."

When William Blake wrote these lines in the 18th century, he offered a magnificently gentle poetic tribute to the joys of seeing.

Last month a child who had been blinded by a rare eye disease contributed his own immortal testimonial to the wonders of seeing. After a "corneal graft operation" that successfully returned his sight, he said, "When I kissed my mommy before, I didn't know she was so pretty and that her eyes were blue — until today."

Only when sight no longer exists can man fully understand the immensity of the loss of this priceless possession.

For a fortunate few this treasure is returned, to transform a sunless world into one filled with ecstasy.

The return of the treasure is one human being's planned generous gift to another human being.

One of the truly miraculous accomplishments of modern medicine in the field of eye surgery is the successful transplantation of the cornea of the eye from one person to another.

This delicate operation, now performed by eye surgeons in major hospitals all over the world, has evolved from a fantasy to a regularly repeated reality.

Thousands of people are once again blessed with vision because of the generosity of others who have contributed their gift of precious corneas for transplantation.

Many more thousands in various stages of blindness patiently wait for the treasured corneas that have been promised by unknown benefactors.

A massive organizational program for "banking" corneas was originally undertaken under the supervision of Dr. R. Townley Paton of the Manhattan Eye, Ear and Throat Hospital in New York City.

The Eye Bank for Sight Restoration was created in 1944 to serve as a dedicated agency for finding the generous people who would bequeath, after their death, the tiny microscopically thin piece of eye tissue — a practically "invisible" fragment — that spelled the difference between incapacitating blindness and serviceable sight.

The magnificent response of many benefactors has made this program a national one, with eye banks in 100 cities in America alone, under the jurisdiction of the Eye Bank Association of America.

Despite the gigantic expansion of this program, there is still a vast shortage in the number of available "gift corneas."

The banking of corneas has stimulated far-reaching research aimed at restoring sight in many types of blindness previously considered incurable.

Smugglers' Goods Keep Flourishing

LANDI KOTAL, Pakistan (AP) — An elderly tribesman adjusts his turban and takes a long pull at his hashish pipe. His face lights up in a toothless grin as he proudly points to his shop's wares.

Neatly stacked, row upon row, are Japanese stereo sets and cameras, French-made typewriters and a host of other gadgets — items normally unavailable at city stores or beyond reach of all but affluent Pakistanis.

Next door, tribal elders squat on the mud floor of a tea shop and haggle over the price of a batch of locally processed heroin on the first leg of its secret journey to the outside world.

A young boy is dwarfed by the Soviet-made AK-47 automatic assault rifle slung over his shoulder as he stands guard nearby. Negotiations drag on until dusk, but finally a price is fixed: the high-grade white powder changes hands at 500 rupees a kilogram — or the equivalent of $23 a pound.

On international markets that kilogram (2.2 pounds) it will fetch $120,000 and much more once it is cut and sold in small packets on the streets.

Pleased with their profits, the group splits up. The precious cargo is loaded onto a garishly decorated truck bound for Islamabad, Pakistan's capital, where it will be smuggled out of the country.

Landi Kotal, a few miles from the Khyber Pass in North West Frontier Province, is a key trading post for smuggled goods and cargoes hijacked in neighboring Afghanistan.

Situated in a fiercely independent tribal belt, the townsfolk police themselves according to tribal law. This dusty, windswept outpost is sandwiched in a sort of no-man's land, where not even authorities or customs officials dare enter unless accompanied by armed frontier scouts.

"It's uncontrollable; the law of the land doesn't apply in this region," shrugged a customs officer at a border checkpoint 12 miles to the east. "About four months ago, a paramilitary force went in to raid the shops. The tribesmen didn't like being challenged. There was a big confrontation."

He said his job is to warn tourists to be out of the area before dark and to never venture alone in the hills. "Otherwise, we can't guarantee your safety," said the officer as he jotted down the registration number of a car that had been permitted to proceed.

But, for 30 rupees ($3), armed guards are willing to accompany visitors to this frontier town, which snuggles in a mountainous landscape dotted with ruined forts from the days of British colonial rule.

"During colonial rule there were about 50,000 British troops garrisoned out here," the customs official went on. "But they never subdued these people. Probably, no one ever will."

Aside from the daily commerce in illicit goods, tribesmen occasionally kidnap and hold for ransom newcomers who explore the area alone, he said. "Naturally, if they think they've grabbed someone important they will demand more money."

This frontier bazaar, with its twisting alleyways and underground cavern awash with stalls, has flourished in recent years because of a government edict banning consumption of "intoxicants" and a 120 percent duty on most imports.

Trading posts like Landi Kotal have mushroomed since many customs officials apparently are prepared to turn a blind eye to the goings on — for a fee. Bargaining remains keen among wealthy Pakistanis eager to acquire luxuries sold slightly below normal market prices.

It also has attracted its share of hippies, who wander from shop to shop in search of a cheap fix or tablets of hash that are said to rank among the world's best.

"This place is unbelievable," said one shaggy-haired youth, who identified himself only as David. "I'll be coming back here real soon, man."

Bell-Fenwick Race Is Hot

CONTEST — The contest for the GOP nomination to the U.S. Senate from New Jersey features Millicent Fenwick and Jeffrey Bell (right). (AP Laserphoto)

By PATRICK BRESLIN
Associated Press Writer

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — The contest for the Republican nomination to the U.S. Senate from New Jersey features a former aide to Ronald Reagan who is well-versed in economic theory and a popular moderate congresswoman who is the model for a comic-strip character.

It's Jeffrey Bell vs. Millicent Fenwick in what undisputedly is the state's most exciting race in the June 8 primary.

Bell, 38, is a lanky boyish-looking intellectual who can quote economic theories and the results of military studies during casual conversation.

Mrs. Fenwick, 72, is the charming, eloquent former model and Vogue editor whose pipe-smoking caricature is known nationwide as "Lacey Davenport" in the popular "Doonesbury" comic strip.

The winner faces one of nine lackluster Democratic candidates in the general election to replace convicted Abscam defendant Harrison A. Williams, who resigned in March after 24 years in the Senate.

Although Mrs. Fenwick is the acknowledged leader, Bell is counting on a final blitz of television commercials this week to stop her momentum.

Bell, who was Reagan's national political scout in 1974 and a campaign worker in 1976 and 1980, has warned that Mrs. Fenwick would become the president's leading Republican critic if elevated to the Senate.

Bell's television and radio commercials are critical of Mrs. Fenwick, including charges that she frequently voted against major weapon systems backed by the Reagan administration.

But Mrs. Fenwick has emphasized her support of Reagan's economic programs and "for a tough, lean national defense."

The heir to a family fortune, Mrs. Fenwick is part of the wealthy moderate Republican wing in New Jersey. She has a 20-year political history, including two elections to the state Assembly, two years as the state consumer affairs director and eight years in Congress.

She has been endorsed by 10 of the 21 county GOP chairman and by 44 of the party's 55 state legislators.

"I've never seen a member of the House of Representatives who has started a (statewide) campaign with such visibility," said John Deardourff, Mrs. Fenwick's media consultant. "She's as strong a candidate as our firm has ever worked with."

So far, this apparent popularity has not been seriously undercut by Bell's intense fact-filled campaign. Officials in both camps say their private polls indicate Mrs. Fenwick is well ahead.

"I think Mrs. Fenwick still has a significant lead, but I think we're getting some significant movement," Bell said recently.

"We think there's going to be a little slippage," Mrs. Fenwick's press secretary, John Fuchs responded. "It's only natural."

But Fuchs speculated that Bell's tough advertising campaign may backfire.

"His ads are so negative, and Mrs. Fenwick is so well-liked, that he's going to lose because of it," Fuchs said.

Bell's press secretary, Mac Carey, said it is "almost certain" Bell's television spending will total $600,000.

Fuchs said Mrs. Fenwick has budgeted $200,000 for television but may increase it.

Bell takes credit for helping to devise Reagan's three-year income tax cut plan and the "New Federalism" program of returning federal programs to state control.

"I support everything he's done," Bell said of Reagan. "I'm willing to support him even when he gets into some political difficulties, which I think he is in now."

But Bell has been in tough spots before. In 1978, he stunned state party leaders by beating 24-year incumbent Sen. Clifford P. Case, largely by exhaustive campaigning and criticism of Case's liberal voting record.

In that campaign, Bell successfully promoted his impeccable conservative credentials through television, while Case did no advertising. Bell lost the general election to Democrat Bill Bradley.

Bell's campaign theme this year is that he can help Reagan straighten out the economy by putting congressional pressure on the Federal Reserve Board.

"We must get the Fed to cut interest rates now," Bell says.

He argues that Fed Chairman Paul Volcker, in his successful three-year effort to lower inflation through a tightened money supply, has inadvertently sent interest rates skyrocketing.

Bell dismisses arguments, advanced by Reagan himself, that the high federal deficit is the cause of the current 16½ percent prime rate.

"There is no sign that the size of the budget deficit has ever done this before," Bell says.

Mrs. Fenwick has called Bell's argument "a fantasy," noting that the Fed does not report to Congress.

"The interest rates are not going to go down until we get hold of this deficit," Mrs. Fenwick said at a debate.

"I'm not going to turn my back on Mr. Reagan and say he's all wrong when he says the deficits are the problem," Mrs. Fenwick said.

And, she pointed out, "No one is going to enter the Senate with a clarion voice and expect to get the cooperation of the Federal Reserve."

Still Die In El Salvador

FIGHTING LESS VISIBLE — A Salvadoran guerrilla, armed with an automatic assault rifle, mans a roadblock near a town southeast of San Salvador in the March, 1982 photo. Two months after the guerrillas failed in their election offensive, the civil war has moved away from the cities, but the bloodshed continues. (AP Laserphoto)

By RICHARD BOUDREAUX
Associated Press Writer

USULUTAN, El Salvador (AP) — Two months after guerrillas failed in their election-day offensive, the Salvadoran civil war has moved away from the cities and become less visible.

Though it is reported less frequently, the bloodshed persists in the 31-month-old battle.

The 26,000-man armed forces, bolstered by 1,500 soldiers just back from training in the United States, are trying new counterinsurgency tactics in attempts to destroy the rural hideouts of 4,000 to 6,000 leftist guerrillas while encouraging defections from their ranks.

Since the March 28 assembly elections, the conflict has centered on remote volcano slopes and the Pacific coastal lowland of this Central American country of five million people.

Gone are the white flags of neutrality that flew from homes here during a six-day guerrilla occupation that halted polling.

Gone, too, are the wrecks of buses and trucks that were sacked and burned at the time by rebels approaching Usulután on the important Coastal Highway.

Today the city and the road seem safe.

"It's been very calm, too calm," said an Usulután hotel owner. "There's something funny going on. I'm afraid of what's coming."

Anyone who thinks the guerrilla retreat is permanent soon learns otherwise.

"The war is just about over," a truck driver asserted as he waited last week to cross the Coastal Highway bridge over the Lempa River into Usulután province.

Minutes later, on the other side, he watched soldiers carry the bodies of five national guardsmen to the highway from a muddy cornfield after a battle with 100 or more insurgents who had dynamited a freight train.

All but a few of the 300,000 peasant refugees crowded into cities and towns across the country are ignoring government appeals to return home for spring planting.

One cautious 25-year-old farmer has decided to stay in a refugee camp at Puerto Parada, just south of here, six days a week. On the seventh day, he travels 12 miles by boat to work his corn and rice plots on a volcanic bluff near El Espino, an ocean resort that has changed hands several times in recent fighting.

In the northeast province of Morazan, thousands of new refugees are wading south across the rising Torola River before they are isolated by the spring rains. Red Cross workers said those peasants feared that guerrillas who blew up the only bridge would keep the army from repairing it.

The army chose Morazan for its only battalion-sized offensive since the election. In 10 days of fighting that ended May 3, the army claimed to have killed 122 guerrillas and destroyed 13 mountain hideouts while losing 22 soldiers. Residents who saw two truckloads of dead soldiers said government losses were much higher.

The announced aim of the operation was to head off an expected rebel attack on the provincial capital, but most rebel units escaped the dragnet.

At the urging of U.S. strategists, the army is waging most of its search-and-destroy missions with smaller, platoon-sized units. The new, more aggressive tactic has apparently exposed its troops to greater risk.

In April, the government reported 202 of its troops killed compared with 143 in March when the guerrillas attacked major cities. The figure for January was 148.

The rebel Radio Venceremos reported 18 battles in April, down from 81 in March. Guerrilla casualties reported by the radio and the Army fell from 269 in March to 73 in April.

To military analysts, the numbers mean the battles are getting nastier as each side obtains more sophisticated weapons. Late in April, guerrillas captured several 90mm and 150mm cannons, an armored personnel carrier and eight M79 grenade launchers from the army, according to Salvadoran newspapers and the rebel radio.

The country's new president, Alvaro Magana, and its senior Roman Catholic leader, Monsignor Arturo Rivera y Damas, have publicly suggested a "dialogue" with insurgent leaders.

But the defense minister, Gen. Jose Guillermo Garcia, considered the most powerful government figure, favors a military solution.

The U.S.-trained soldiers and officers will help the army expand the number of small counterinsurgency units and coordinate them with night reconnaissance planes to be provided by the United States under this year's $81 million military aid package.

The army is also instructing troops to take prisoners in rebel hideouts and to encourage them to desert in exchange for freedom.

A sophisticated advertising campaign tells guerrillas, "The people you say you are fighting for rejected you." It is a reference to the large voter turnout March 28 interpreted as a call for peace.

The guerrillas have continued to flex their muscles with sporadic attacks, but the rebel radio has made no mention of any large offensive or the failure of the announced May offensive to materialize. Instead, it said on May 18 that "a period of grassroots labor organizing would be the most effective and revolutionary reply" to the new rightist-dominated government.

British Immigrant Busy As Sponsor Of Refugees

By DONNA ANDERSON
Associated Press Writer
PROVO, Utah (AP) — Some nights when she can't sleep, June Atherton seeks slumber by counting the 150 Asian refugees she has introduced to the United States — a country once foreign to her.

Peru's Exhibit Has A Mummy

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Visitors to Peru's exhibit at the World's Fair will get an opportunity to see scientists unwrap a mummy that is estimated to be 600 to 1,000 years old.

The Incan mummy, dug up on the edge of Lima, will be unwrapped behind glass display-windows by Peruvian archaeologist Arturo Jimenes Borgia and his assistants, said Jorge Boza, commissioner of the Peruvian exhibit.

The mummy is to arrive this week. The unwrapping is expected to begin in mid-July and take about two weeks.

citizen herself.

"I lay in bed at night when I can't sleep and count my refugees," she says. "Sometimes I start in 1975 and count forward, and other times I start with now and go backwards."

Joan Gardner, the director of the United States Catholic Conference in Salt Lake City, said she does not know if Mrs. Atherton has set a record for sponsoring refugees.

"But I would think it is," she said. "She has helped a lot of them. I really don't know of any one person that has taken that many (refugees) into their home."

Mrs. Atherton left Southampton, England, for Provo in the early 1960s after she became a Mormon.

"I think I was sort of a frustrated social worker when I was born," she says. "My father died...and left me a house which I sold. I had $675 a month in payments I got for it and I thought, 'I'm rich. I might as well do this.'"

The first Vietnamese family of six was all she'd planned to help. "I really enjoyed them. It was my first association with Asians. They asked if I would sponsor their relatives...I had 24 in the first year."

The next year, she agreed to sponsor a family of seven.

"The agency called and told me they had been put on hold. So I said, 'I'll take whatever you've got,'" she said. "They decided to send a family of six. Both lots turned up within a few weeks of each other."

One of the families asked her to help 20 relatives who had settled in southern Utah relocate in the northern part of the state.

"I thought, 'I've got 13, I'd never notice another 20,'" she said.

"Once the word gets out, it's like having a hobo sign on your gate," she said. "I can't remember half of them, love, to be truthful."

From that beginning, she continued to sponsor a number of teen-agers and families, many of them relatives of other refugees. She now has six teen-agers living with her.

Despite poor eyesight, which prevents her from driving and makes reading difficult, Mrs. Atherton has found clothes, furniture, apartments and work for her refugees.

"If you're not part of the solution, you're part of the problem," Mrs. Atherton said about her work. "These are mostly very gentle, sweet people...trying to survive in an alien culture."

Mrs. Atherton speaks no Asian languages, but communicates with her hands. She often relies on the help of other refugees who speak English.

The refugees do the cooking and and she eats their native dishes.

"It's good, except occasionally I get some wierdo thing like squid, and one woman cooked brains for her husband, which didn't turn me on much," she said.

Once a refugee jokingly told her that her dogs would make good soup.

"I told him toes would make good soup," she said. "Their (his family) name happened to be pronounced 'toe.'"

Hit Airplane

BELEM, Brazil (AP) — A diving buzzard recently crashed through the windshield of a small plane carrying four Southern Baptist missionaries, scattering glass, blood and ripped upholstery, but missing the passengers. Pilot Don Johnson brought the single-engine craft to a safe landing in Belem.

Go 'Modern' In Medicine

By PHIL BROWN
Associated Press Writer
HANGZHOU, China (AP)—Chinese medicine, which likes to boast of centuries-old secret formulas for chronic ills, is pressing ahead with modern research into more immediate problems, like stopping bleeding in emergencies.

A powder made by mixing eight or nine kinds of herbs can stop heavy bleeding in seconds and then be absorbed harmlessly into the body, especially useful in treating an organ like the liver that can't be sewn up, said Feng Gensheng, director of the Hangzhou No. 2 Medicine Factory.

He said government approval for mass production is expected soon.

Meanwhile, the factory still is busy making some of the medicines, considered tried and true after hundreds of years of use for everything from heart disease to keeping youthful vigor.

The difference is that it is working to transform the doses from "big, bitter and ugly" to "small, sweet and attractive," said Quan Hua, one of the women among plant's 984 workers.

Chinese medicine is made of things like antelope horns and herbs that used to be boiled into tea, both troublesome and unattractive. It took a big cup of tea to have much effect, Miss Quan told a recent group of visitors.

Now the factory squeezes doses into tablets, small bottles or vials for injections. Its white-gowned workers operate in glassed-in rooms where the air has been purified, or with big vats dotted with modern-day valves and meters.

The plant's laboratory tests new medicines and tries to figure out why old ones work.

Feng said one of the plant's medicines can attack the virus that causes hepatitis, but "we have not succeeded in extracting the single element that attacks it. If we succeed, it would be a significant advance."

"White mice in the laboratory were being injected with herbal medicine to test its effect in increasing the blood's white cell count.

Experiments with the powder to stop bleeding were shown in a film. In one test, the powder quickly stanching a spurt of blood from the amputation of a dog's leg. In another, it was sprinkled on a human liver during surgery to stop bleeding.

Feng said the plant had been working on the powder since 1978.

Then there are the "Ching Chwun Hwei Fu Pyan," or "Recover Youth Tablets," described as the product of scientific research based on a secret prescription of the Yung Le Imperial Hospital in the Ming Dynasty (1368-1644).

That secret, Feng said, is one reason the tablets cannot be sold in the United States. The U.S. Food and Drug Administration wants to see the formula first, he said, "but we cannot make it public."

In China, 80 tablets sell for 8.80 yuan ($4.90), Feng said, and in Hong Kong the price jumps to 70 Hong Kong dollars ($12.30).

The medicine is supposed to build energy, strengthen bones and muscles and improve mental capacity.

Some other products include "donkey hide glue," a blood tonic; "some pear ointment," a cough medicine, and a kind of pill to fight dizziness, fatigue, insomnia and amnesia.

One that has been approved for sale in the United States is "Two Treasures," a mixture of ginseng and royal jelly — to make it taste better — intended as a tonic to strengthen resistance to illness. In China, 10 small vials sell for 5.13 yuan ($2.85).

Feng said the company, which makes 80 different products, including 20 for export, mostly in Asia, had total sales of 30 million yuan ($16.7 million) last year.

Profits are 5 to 7 percent, he said.

"Our purpose is to serve the people," he explained. "We don't stress profits. This is different than in America, where pharmaceutical companies make very big profits."

Feng and Miss Quan said Chinese medicines are cheaper than Western medicines and do not produce side effects, and that while Western medicines act more quickly, Chinese medicines get to the root cause of illnesses.

Raw materials for the medicine come from all over China and such ingredients as rhinoceros horns come from Africa, Feng said.

But one ingredient grows in the factory's own garden — a kind of peony whose root is described as good for digestion.

Feng said it also is believed to reduce the possibility of contracting cancer.

In April, China's leading newspaper, the People's Daily, reported that China had developed its own "cola," a health drink made from peony roots to resist germs and infection.

"If our exports of peony-root drink only reached one-tenth of Coca-Cola's, it would become a big item among our export products," the paper said.
