

N.C. Senate Votes 27-23 To Table ERA

By MARY ANNE RHYNE
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The North Carolina Senate today voted 27-23 to table the Equal Rights Amendment, apparently killing chances for ratification of ERA in the General Assembly this year.

The action also dims chances that ERA will win ratification before June 30 in three more states needed to make the amendment part of the U.S. Constitution.

As the vote came, crowds of ERA supporters who filled the gallery began chanting, "ERA won't go away." They were cleared by security guards.

"It was a miracle that didn't happen," said Sen. Helen Marvin, D-Gaston. "It is a tragedy that with all the political maneuvering we haven't picked up a single vote."

At least one chamber of the General Assembly has rejected the ERA in 1973, 1975, 1977 and 1979. In 1980, 13 male senators signed an agreement not to discuss the amendment.

The vote today came on a motion by state Sen. Marshall

Rauch, D-Gaston, that the ERA bill lie upon the table. Under Senate rules, a two-thirds majority in the 50-member Senate would be required to bring the bill back to life — a margin considered out of reach for ERA this year.

"There's no way they can get it back now," said Sen. Craig Lawing, D-Mecklenburg, president pro-tem of the Senate.

Rauch made the motion as the bill calling for ERA's ratification was formally introduced and its title read on the Senate floor for the first time. Normally, no vote is taken on a bill's first reading, but Rauch made his motion to table before Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green, the presiding officer, assigned the bill to a committee.

Supporters of ERA staged a desperate effort to avoid the killing vote, but they lacked the support to win motions to postpone the action until next week and to adjourn the session immediately.

Sen. Robert Jordan, D-Montgomery, sponsor of the ERA bill, attempted to make a motion that the ERA bill's reading be postponed until Monday. But Rauch then made his motion to table, a motion not debatable under Senate rules. Sen. Harold Hardison, D-Lenoir, seconded his motion.

The action capped an intensive three days of lobbying on both sides of the ERA measure, which saw Gov. Jim Hunt work for its passage.

Opponents had said earlier they wanted to kill the ERA bill immediately, before it went to the Senate Constitutional Amendments Committee, where ERA supporters held the upper hand.

In the state House, an identical ERA bill was referred to the 19-member Constitutional Amendments Committee, where supporters felt they had a three-vote edge.

But Rep. Al Adams, D-Wake, one of the sponsors of the bill, said there was no use keeping his bill alive.

"If we're not going to ratify ERA, I don't want to have people vote on something that's a meaningless issue," he said after the Senate vote.

"I think it was a forgone conclusion," Rauch said of today's action. "I don't think any other state will ratify it anyway." Identical bills to ratify the ERA — one written by supporters and another by opponents — had been filed for introduction today. The lieutenant governor discarded the second bill, filed by opponents, because the identical measure was tabled.

In other action in the legislature Thursday, bills were filed in the House and Senate to allow those who pay for the care of a parent aged 65 or older to claim an income tax deduction.

Other bills included one to more than double the minimum franchise tax on corporations, a bill that would raise the minimum tax threshold for filing an intangibles tax return from $10 to $15 and a bill to allow an income tax credit for installing a heat pump water heater in a home.

Another House bill would establish a fine of $1,000 and imprisonment up to six months for anyone willfully supplying false or fraudulent information on tax withholdings.

U.S. Won't Ask Britain Delay Falkland Assault

By The Associated Press

No political or diplomatic reason will hold up the decisive battle for the Falklands capital of Stanley and British task force commanders have been told to launch the attack as soon as they are ready, government sources in London were quoted as saying today.

President Reagan's spokesman Larry Speakes denied published reports that Reagan would ask Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher to hold up the assault when they meet in Paris later today. The reports came from observers quoted by Britain's domestic news agency, Press Association. But the observers also said if there is any pause it will last only as long as it takes British forces to make final preparations to attack Stanley.

Argentina's Joint Chiefs of Staff said their gunners in Stanley "intensely pounded the area of Mount Kent," a 1,500-foot hill held by the British about 12 miles east of the Falklands capital. It also said Argentine forces were patrolling the area in the winter snow.

Argentine Defense Minister Amadeo Frugoli told the privately-owned news agency DYN: "The final battle will take place when the enemy's will is broken and in that regard Argentina will never be defeated since its will is unbreakable." He added that the ability of his forces to fight "is intact and the country has (sufficient) food and energy, essential elements in waging a war."

In another war-related development, the Civil Defense Committee said it had ordered a blackout on the southern cities of Bahia Blanca, Punta Alta and Puerto Belgrano, about 400 miles south of Buenos Aires. "Today, unexpectedly, the population was called to turn off all public and private lighting after 6:30 p.m.," DYN reported.

The agency said no reason was given for the order, but Bahia Blanca has been a major port for the Argentine fleet.

Unemployment Rises

WASHINGTON (AP) — An unrelenting business slump coupled with an influx of college graduates into a tight job market pushed the nation's unemployment rate up to 9.5 percent last month, eclipsing the post-war record set in April, the government reported today.

The seasonally adjusted unemployment rate climbed one-tenth of a percentage point from April to May as tens of thousands of college and university graduates entered the labor force searching for work, the Bureau of Labor Statistics said.

Altogether, 10.5 million Americans were out of work last month. Adult males, who traditionally constitute the bulwark of the blue-collar work force, were once again hard hit by the lingering recession. Joblessness among this segment of the labor force rose to 8.4 percent, shattering the post-World War II record set two months ago.

Since last July, some 2.7 million Americans have been thrown out of work by the deepening recession.

In Paris, where President Reagan was preparing for a seven-nation economic summit, Deputy White House press secretary Peter Roussel said the new unemployment figures were not surprising.

"The modest rise in the unemployment rate is in line with our view that the recession is bottoming out," Roussel said.

Circumstances Worked Against Local March

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

Circumstances kept working against Thursday's Greenville segment of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference's "Pilgrimage to Washington, D.C.," but these were overcome and the pilgrimage ended with an 8 p.m. rally that local leaders termed "very successful."

First, there was the news that the Rev. Joseph E. Lowery would be unable to be on hand to lead the three-mile march from Moyewood to Hopkins Park. Lowery is the national president of the SCLC and recently has been elected chairman of the Black Leadership Forum, an association of 16 Black organizations.

"Reverend Lowery had to attend an industrial union department conference in Atlanta, so he could not be here as planned," the Rev. James Orange explained at mid-afternoon during a planning session and break time held at Selvia Chapel Church in Hopkins Park. Orange is the national coordinator of the pilgrimage.

"However, Rev. H.L. Welcher of Durham is coming to attend the mass rally. He and I will be speakers at the rally here tonight," Orange told the group.

Later, at the site designated for the beginning of the march, the parking lot of the medical office of Dr. Andrew Best, there was uncertainty for a time about the weather — whether an impending storm would strike before the march could be completed. A decision was made at 4:15 p.m. to go ahead with the march.

Bennie Roundtree, president of the Pitt County Chapter of SCLC and local coordinator of the march, noted the threatening weather "most likely kept a larger number of people from showing up to begin the march."

Commenting to those gathered in Moyewood, Roundtree said: "We're going to keep right on working to change things in this country. There's a lot of things that need our attention here in eastern North Carolina and everywhere. Voters' rights, the cutback in college help to students, these are some of the things that affect not only the black man, but all poor people."

"Whatever is necessary we're going to do. I've got my traveling shoes. I'm with more joining in as the group moved across town. A threatening storm was said to have been a major reason for the small numbers beginning the march. (Reflector Staff Photo).

Hail Pelts Northern End Of County; Some Crops Damaged

By MARY SCHULKEN
Reflector Staff Writer

Pounds of ping-pong ball-sized hail pelted the northern end of Pitt County Thursday, accompanied by sharp lightning to the south and strong winds that flattened fields of tobacco and thrashed large tree limbs to the ground.

The storm, part of a severe thunderstorm system that moved across central and coastal North Carolina, dropped over 2.74 inches of rain on northern Pitt between 5-8 p.m., the Greenville Utilities' Water Plant office reported.

Wind gusts of 35 mph were recorded at the Pitt-Greenville Airport but gusts up to 60 mph were unofficially reported near Greenville.

"This morning I saw fields with tobacco blown completely over and many where the plants were stripped by hail, although not entirely," said Pitt County Agricultural Extension Chairman Leroy James. "We had a lot of damage north of the river around House Station and Belvoir, and a great deal of hail damage near Greenville's Memorial Drive."

James had no official estimate of damage to the county's crop, although he said he thought most of the wind and hail-damaged tobacco was salvagable. "In most cases, we'll still make a good crop," he noted, "because there's still a lot of fertilizer in the fields and the plants will continue to grow."

Not recoverable, he said, are those plants broken in half by the wind and the hail. "In some instances, particularly north of the river, the stalk was just broken in half by the wind and ice," said the county chairman. "Most of these fields will probably have to be reset."

Wicked lightning south of Greenville knocked out a major Greenville Utilities circuit during the storm, GUC Assistant Director Malcolm Green said. "We had about a 30-minute power outage in the area from Bell's Fork to the Craven County line because of a direct hit on a line that blew up a lightning arrester," he explained.

A piece of porcelain from the exploding arrester broke an insulator, Green said, interrupting power to the region. "We had other outages that were much longer due to fuses blowing," he added, "but this one affected by far the largest area."

Couple Marries In Raleigh

RALEIGH — The marriage of Martha Lynn Maddox of Raleigh and Rob Vernon Fiser Jr. of Charlotte took place Saturday at 4 p.m. in White Memorial Presbyterian Church here. Dr. Edwin Pickard officiated at the ceremony.

Music for the ceremony was presented by Dr. Brock Downward. The bridegroom's nephew, Kevin Currie of Lumberton, was acolyte.

The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Rob

Vernon Fiser of Farmville.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Erskine Maddox of Raleigh. She wore her mother's wedding gown which was an original model fashioned with a bertha of crushed satin edged with imported lace with long fitted sleeves coming to call points over the hands. The skirt front featured a panel of tiered ruffled imported lace which extended into a cathedral train. Her cathedral length mantilla of illusion featured a scalloped border of peau d'ange lace. It was worn over a chapel cap with lace and pearls. She carried a bouquet of white sweetheart roses, valley lilies and gypsophila and orchid.

Mrs. William Vinson Ratliff of Concord served as her sister's honor attendant. Bridesmaids were the bridegroom's sister, Mrs. Robert Currie of Lumberton, Sarah Snow and Margy Mitchell of Raleigh. Mrs. Randolph Kelley of Kinston, Mrs. Edward Jernigan of Ayden, Mrs. John L. Grist of Charlotte and Mrs. Wiley Coleman of Southern Pines. They each wore a gown of voile and lace designed with a full raspberry skirt and white bodice with Venise lace trimming the neckline and sleeves. Their bouquets accented their gowns.

The father of the bridegroom was best man. Ushers were cousin of the bridegroom, J.Y. Monk of Farmville, brothers of the bride, Van Maddox of Texas and Steven Maddox of California, Van Lewis of Farmville, Brooks Gullede and Sandy Acton of Raleigh and Ken East of Columbia, S.C.

The mother of the bride wore a periwinkle chiffon gown with flowing cape sleeves. The mother of the bridegroom selected a renoir rose silk designer's gown with a draped bodice. Both wore white orchid corsages.

The bride graduated from Goldsboro High School, Peace College and the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. She is employed by Cavalier Advertisers, Inc. in Raleigh. The bridegroom graduated from Farmville High School and Wake Forest University in Winston-Salem.

Miss Herring Says Vows

DOVER — Ruby Kay Herring of Kinston and Kenneth Wayne Jackson of Winterville were married Friday in the Lane Chapel Methodist Church here. Dan Powells officiated at the double ring ceremony at four o'clock.

The parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Herring of Kinston. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Elouise Jackson of Winterville and the late Mr. Kenneth Ray Jackson.

A program of wedding music was presented by organist Bob Mayberry and soloist Patricia Ipock, both of Kinston.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents and wore a formal white gown of sheerganza and chantilly lace. The gown was designed with a modified Queen Anne neckline accented with lace and iridescents. The full bishop sleeves featured bands of lace, lace cuffs and closed with ruffles and traditional bridal buttons. The flowing skirt, accented with lace and a flounce, flowed into the attached chapel train. She wore a chapel length veil of silk illusion bordered and appliqued with chantilly lace which was attached to a matching lace bandeau etched with pearls. The bridal bouquet consisted of assorted silk flowers in spring colors. The throw bouquet was a yellow mum with yellow and white ribbons.

Matron of honor was Mary Hill of Kinston, sister of the bride. She wore a yellow floor length dress with matching cape. She carried yellow and white mums with green ribbons.

Bridesmaid Betty Herring of Kinston, sister of the bride, wore a green floor length dress with matching cape. Bridesmaid Patricia Gladson of Greenville wore a light green floor length dress with a matching cape. Both carried yellow mums tied with green ribbon. Sabrina Ipock of Ayden, cousin of the bride, served as flower girl. She wore a green floor length dress with a white overlay. She carried a basket of petals of assorted colors. Ring bearer was Linwood Whitehurst of Greenville, son of the bridegroom. Eddie Jackson was best man. Ushers were brothers of the bridegroom, Bobby Jackson and Steward Jackson, both of Greenville.

A reception was held in the fellowship hall of the church following the wedding.

The bride and bridegroom are both graduates of J.H. Rose High School. The bride is employed by Lenoir Memorial Hospital in Kinston. The bridegroom is employed by Pitt County Garage, Greenville.

After a wedding trip to the Blue Ridge Mountains, the couple will reside in Winterville.

Engagements Announced

TERESA LYNNE PINKERTON...is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lester Pinkerton of Raleigh, who announce her engagement to Andy Ray Holliman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Felton Ray Holliman of Route 1, Stokes. The wedding will take place June 26.

DORIS MARIE POSEY...is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Kornegay of Grifton, who announce her engagement to James McCoy Rankins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Rankins of Colerain. The wedding will take place June 26.

HOMEMADE BREAD
Nonfat dry-milk solids add valuable protein.
5 to 6 cups all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon sugar
¾ cup powdered nonfat dry milk
1 envelope dry yeast
¼ cup butter, at room temperature
2 cups very hot tap water (120 degrees)

In the large bowl of an electric mixer stir together 2 cups of the flour, the salt, sugar, dry milk and yeast. Add the butter. Gradually stir in the water; beat at medium speed for 2 minutes, scraping the bowl a few times. Stir in ¾ cup flour or enough to make a thick batter. Beat at high speed for 2 minutes, scraping the bowl several times. Stir in enough more flour to make a soft dough. Turn out on a lightly floured surface; knead until smooth and elastic — 5 to 10 minutes. Place in a buttered bowl, turning to butter top. Cover; let rise in a warm draft-free place until doubled — about 1 hour. Punch down dough; turn out as before and divide in half; shape each half into a loaf; place in two buttered 8½ by 4½ by 2½-inch loaf pans. Cover; let rise as before until doubled — about 1 hour. Bake on the rack below center in a preheated 400-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in the center comes out clean — 30 minutes. Turn out of pans and cool on wire racks. Makes 2 loaves.

At Wit's End
By Erma Bombeck

In the movies, it's always a big scene. The boy picking up the girl at the prom will have a box containing a corsage in his hand. He's standing at the bottom of the stairway looking awkward and uncomfortable talking with the girl's parents.

Suddenly, she appears. Their little girl has emerged from her pigtails and jeans into a woman in a long, flowing dress. She has usually developed a bust and the braces are off her teeth. Everyone is struck speechless as a 68-piece orchestra comes out of the woodwork and she makes her poised entrance down the stairway.

It's a great scene if you're the mother of a daughter.

But no movie has ever filmed that scene in which a son emerges from the bathroom on prom night wearing white tux and tails, an ascot tie, wing collar shirt, top hat, gloves, white patent leather shoes and a coordinating walking cane... looking like he just fell off a wedding cake.

There are no violins with a son. No magic moment when your eyes meet and there are tears in them. No moment when you throw your arms around him and declare him full-grown. A boy runs around like he has starch in his underwear.

He tries to be cool about the outfit, but you know him well enough to see the anxiety. Will the toilet tissue clot the blood on his face he got when he cut himself shaving?

Will his palms sweat when he dances?

Was that spot on the jacket there BEFORE he brought it home?

Will the corsage smell like the garlic in the spaghetti next to it in the refrigerator?

Will he have enough money at the restaurant?

Will he have to write a check at the restaurant?

Will they cash the check before he gets a job?

Will he end up killing the jerk who talked him into a white satin tux with no pockets?

With a son it's corny to take pictures. Besides, he's late. You have to remember it all. The peck on the cheek. The slam of the door.

The mystique of the boy turned man lasts until you reach the bathroom. Heavy steam settles over 15 Bandaid wrappers, eight wet towels, foam-covered sink, three razor blades, shampoo and soap oozing down the drain, garment bag, boxes, tissue and a bill for $56.75 impaled on the white cane.

The child lives!

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1982 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR READERS: Summer is here, and I am sure to get a lot of letters from teen-agers complaining because they want to work during the summer but can't find a job. "Every place I apply tells me they want someone with experience. But where am I going to get experience if nobody hires me?" Good question. I recently came across a little jewel of a book, "Getting Off to College" by Melody Martin, published by Oak Tree. The following excerpt from that book contains some valuable tips for teen-agers who want a summer job:

"Before we go into the ramifications of jobs, let me say that I am fully aware of the lack of good part-time jobs for kids. I am cognizant of the biases against teen-agers in the job market, and knowledgeable about the horrors of working below minimum wages for long hours. I realize what it's like to work for fast-food chains and drugstores, to baby-sit or tutor kids. I also know it's hard to find those jobs.

"Focus on what you do well. The most successful moneymakers were those who created their jobs by focusing on what they did well, turning it into a service for others, and selling it.

"One class of high school students came up with a wonderful insight: 'What do people hate doing so much that they would be willing to pay someone else to do it?'

"Out of this discussion came the following examples:

"— A pair of guys walked neighborhoods doing window-washing. They aimed at tract housing where neighbors could get a gander at work in progress. They scanned each house and gave an estimate. They worked together and finished fast. They also did quite well financially.

"— One clever girl charged a basic fee to grocery shop for families. She could easily do two families after school and more on weekends. She got a fee plus tip.

"— Some kids organized art groups for children in their garages. They charged a fee that included the cost of materials.

"— Some kids took pictures for money.

"— One girl gave exercise classes in her garage.

"— Some kids organized an 'I'll take your child to the beach and watch him' business.

"— A couple offered bulk mailing services (stuffing, folding).

"— Car washing and waxing were popular and paid off.

"— One girl entertained as a clown at children's birthday parties.

"— A group of kids became party helpers (serving, cleaning up, getting ready).

"— One clever boy walked through neighborhoods and shined shoes by the closetful.

"The services are endless. I have been delighted and amused at the resourcefulness of students who were willing to earn some money in a different way. Remember that all of these job ideas came from the students' own knowledge of what they did well. Once again, it's a question of taking some kind of positive action instead of moping about because jobs are hard to find.

"Remember that during the summer months you have a lot more time to earn money. It's not too soon to think about how that could be accomplished. Summer usually means a rise in tourism and a change in several of the local industries.

"— Hotels need daytime baby sitters.

"— Food places take on extra help.

"— Many little kids are dying for something to do and someone to do it with.

"— Many weary parents will pay you to entertain their kids.

"Again, it's up to you to get something started. Don't be afraid to invent all kinds of services. You might surprise yourself with the results."

DEAR ABBY: This is a comment to "Two Thrilled Parents From Iowa" who insist that they are now parents because the husband took your advice and switched from wearing tight brief shorts to boxer shorts.

You may be interested in another side of the story: In the last 30 years I have had four husbands. The first three wore tight brief shorts.

From my first marriage I had two sons, born a year apart. From my second marriage I had three children in three and a half years. Then my husband got a vasectomy and I got a divorce.

I married a third time and immediately had twins!

I am now married to No. 4, who says he's worn boxer shorts all his life. He was married before and was never able to father a child, thank God! He's 50 and I'm 48. Please don't sign my name. Sign me...

LOVES THE ONES I HAVE,
BUT ENOUGH ALREADY

DEAR LOVES: Just because your husband never has, doesn't necessarily mean he can't. With your prolific record, you'd be wise to take no chances.

Fewer Tickets For Speeding

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A sharp decline in the number of speeding tickets is the price North Carolina is paying for a decrease in highway fatalities, state Highway Patrol Commander Col. J.T. Jenkins says.

Speeding tickets issued by the Highway Patrol have dropped by an average of more than 1,000 a week in the past year. The patrol issued 66,273 fewer speed tickets in the 12-month period ending March, a 22.4 percent drop from the preceding 12 months, according to statistics compiled by the Division of Motor Vehicles.

Jenkins said the patrol is concentrating less on catching speeders and more on curbing fatalities and nabbing drunken drivers. For that reason, many troopers have been shifted from interstates to highly traveled — but more dangerous — secondary roads, he said.

"We have moved a lot of people over on rural and secondary roads that have been giving us problems," he said. "That's where our accidents and fatalities were occurring."

"Whatever we're doing must be right — we're leading the Southern states in the reduction of fatalities. We make changes all the time and, of course, this is one of the changes we've made that seems to be right."

Through June 1, there have been 412 fatalities this year on North Carolina roads, 125 fewer than the same period last year, the Division of Motor Vehicles says.

The decline in speeding tickets came as two significant changes were made in patrol operations:

— In May 1981, a state law took effect barring the patrol from assigning ticket quotas to troopers.

— In October 1981, the patrol deliberately cut back the use of radar by troopers to catch speeders.

Last fall, the patrol began restricting troopers' use of radar units on weekends. The move was made to force troopers to focus more attention on drunken driving and other offenses unrelated to speeding.

The downward trend in speeding tickets, however, began in the second quarter of 1981, when the General Assembly passed a law forbidding the patrol to base a trooper's pay or promotion on the number of tickets written.

Jenkins said the patrol had never assigned ticket quotas to troopers.

Reviewing Fuel Clause Action

By MARY ANNE RHYNE
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A legislative subcommittee is scheduled to meet again today to review a bill that would reduce the number of times utility companies can pass on fuel adjustments to their customers to once a year.

The bill, prepared by Rep. George Miller, D-Durham, and given to a subcommittee Thursday, would change the number of times utility companies can adjust rates from the three times a year now allowed by law.

The fuel adjustment would be based on the cost of fuel to the utilities during the previous 12-month period.

Miller and other members of the legislature's Utility Review Committee are looking for alternatives to the state's controversial fuel adjustment law.

Under the proposed bill, utilities also would be required to submit data on the cost of fuel, capacity of generating units, availability of power, kinds of fuel used and revenues. The state Utilities Commission, in reviewing the request, could consider other information, including efficiency and management of the utility.

State courts have ruled that no other factors — such as utility efficiency or management — may be considered in adjusting the rates.

Robert Fischbach, executive director of the commission's Public Staff, praised Miller's bill for dealing with "what costs and what causes fuel charges." "It's a good bill," said Gary Pearce, a spokesman for Gov. Jim Hunt. "It does all things we think it ought to do."

Hunt has been lobbying for changes in the present fuel-adjustment law.

Power company officials at the committee meeting were less than pleased with the bill.

"It has substantial problems," said William E. Graham, executive vice president of CP&L. "I think there would be some problems of ending up with some insolvent utilities."

Two other draft bills have been submitted to the committee. Both would allow utilities to ask for rate changes based on anticipated fuel costs for the next 12-month period. Utilities favor that approach because they would not have to wait to recover expenses during a time of rising fuel costs.

Shaping Morals

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — A black historian says television is replacing the church in shaping the morals of black people.

Alton Hornsby Jr. of Morehouse College in Atlanta told a conference that the "black church stands out as perhaps the greatest contribution to black history in the United States" but the church's influence has been dramatically diminished by TV sets in black households.

PRAISE SERVICE

Evangelist Valetine Banks of Ayden will conduct a praise service tonight at Holy Mission Church, 905 Dickinson Ave.

Sunday at 8 p.m. there will be an appreciation service for musician Tyrone Green. The speaker will be Eldress Mattie Smith of Saints Rest Holiness Church.

Our Trashed Roadsides

The Department of Transportation reports that during April some 300 maintenance workers, aided by 167 outside organizations, 2,000 individuals and Gov. Hunt picked up litter along the state's highways.

It reported that 3,625 truck loads, or 14,500 cubic yards of litter, were picked up along 6,300 miles of state roads. This was an increase of 12 percent in miles of roads cleaned over the clean up campaign of last fall.

The participants deserve all the praise we can give them for their efforts. They have removed tons of unsightly mess from our highways and made a ride into the countryside more enjoyable for all of us.

Nevertheless, the question arises as to why a civilized society such as ours has to put up with all this debris along our highways. It doesn't grow there and it isn't put there by the wild animals that inhabit our forests. One creature is capable of such wanton littering and that is man.

The only thing those who litter our public highways respond to is apprehension and suitable punishment.

The highways and their rights-of-way belong to all of us. As taxpayers we all have to pay the costs of cleaning up the trash that a few thoughtlessly throw out. We hope that law enforcement agencies will make a concentrated effort to apprehend those who litter the highways and the courts should deal properly with them.

Interchange Can Be Helpful

President Reagan is in the midst of his 10-day tour of Europe.

The first stop was a meeting with French President Francois Mitterrand. That was followed by an economic summit at Versailles. Reportedly the two presidents deferred talks on economic issues until the meeting with leaders of West Germany, Britain, Italy, Canada and Japan.

The economic issues facing the democracies are large and they include inflation, energy costs and worldwide recession.

All of the participating nations have their economic problems and in many cases they are interdependent.

There will be no magic wand approach to the economic woes of Europe, the United States and Japan, but surely the interchange between the leaders of these major democratic nations can be helpful.

THIS AFTERNOON

Dunn's Two Hats

By Paul T. O'Connor
RALEIGH — Charles Dunn wears two hats when he comes to work in the Legislative Building. One gives him a good deal of clout with legislators. The other, much less.

As vice president of the N.C. Textile Manufacturers Association, Dunn is an influential lobbyist. As president of Child Watch Inc., the Raleigh-based private advocacy group for children, he's much less important to legislators.

Textile companies, truckers, railroads, banks, state employees, teachers, senior citizens, they all have clout. Legislators know better than to ignore constituency groups with plenty of money or plenty of voters. Children don't have either. So they can be ignored.

"We're trying to build a children's lobby in the Legislature," Dunn said during a recent discussion of children's issues with several interested legislators. "But we don't have the public discussion of these issues. It is virtually impossible to get these issues commented on in the campaign process and consequently, they just don't get the budget attention in the Legislature."

Marian Edelman, president of the Children's Defense Fund in Washington, said the situation is the same in Washington. "Unless we have that strong, tough constituency out there who can make an issue in an election," children's issues will continue to receive secondary interest, she said.

Ms. Edelman said that the recent federal budget cuts fell most harshly on children's programs. "No other group was asked to sacrifice as much as America's children. Critical children's programs were cut by $10 billion in last year's tax and defense spending spree," she said. The reason was simple: children can't fight back.

There are plenty of people interested in children's issues, Dunn said. But they haven't been very well organized. "Many of the children's groups are really small. In the Legislature, we'd find there were dozens of children's groups that came in on one issue. Or, they may not show up for a whole session if they didn't have an issue that year."

These groups are represented primarily by volunteers who are really no match for the pros hired by other special interests. And they aren't coordinated with each other. Some state agencies send representatives over to lobby for programs but some legislators write this off as state employees working to keep their programs funded.

Dunn says children will someday have an effective lobby in Raleigh. First, they'll have to organize all of the state's children's groups. Then they have to build networks of grassroots support. A legislative candidate shouldn't be able to raise his head during a campaign without being asked about children's issues.

Children's groups will also have to bring some heavyweights into their camp. Dunn's group has already started doing that. People like Sherwood Smith, president of Carolina Power and Light, and John Medlin, president of Wachovia Bank, are members of Children's Watch's board. Former Gov. Dan Moore is chairman. With these men come clout whether they're lobbying for their industries or for green fire hydrants.

The atmosphere is beginning to change in the Legislature, he says. Legislative committees have begun asking Child Watch to provide information at meetings. That's the first step. But Dunn said the day when legislators quake in their shoes over children's issues is still a long way off.

Other Editors Say Monument Due

(The Raleigh Times)

If there is one thing Capitol Square doesn't need aesthetically, it is another monument for pigeons to roost on, children to climb on and moss to cling to.

Nevertheless, some spot on the square, or some site nearby, should be set aside for a monument recognizing veterans of the Vietnam War.

Twelve monuments, the last erected in 1948, already dot the square. They honor everybody from the state's three Presidents to Civil War Gov. Zeb Vance to the United Daughters of the Confederacy's statue to Henry L. Wyatt, first soldier to die in the Civil War. Soldier monuments include those of three Confederate fighters and "Old Hickory" and "Wildcat" division veterans of World War I.

The $50,000 memorial which the N.C. Vietnam Veterans Memorial Commission plans to erect would honor the 206,000 Tar Heels who went to war in Southeast Asia, the 30,000 wounded and 1,500 killed there.

Because Capitol Square is already so crowded with monuments that, as one official noted, it looks like a cemetery, now may be the time to look elsewhere for memorial sites, such as the Bicentennial Plaza across from the Legislative Building or the state government mall farther north. The site should be prominently located so as not to detract from the statue's significance.

George Is Waiting Too

"Mrs. Consumer, may I speak to you for a few minutes?"

"Sure, I'm not going anywhere."

"When are you going to start spending money again so the economy can get on its feet?"

"When George lets me. He says we have to hunker down until the recession is over."

"But the recession will continue if you don't start spending money."

"George is afraid he'll lose his job. He doesn't want to get into any more debt than we are already."

"Can I speak to George?"

"Go ahead. He's sitting in a chair over there watching television."

"Hi, George, can I join you?"

"Sure, hunker down in a chair."

"You thinking about buying a new car soon?"

"Not really. They sure look nice on television, but my old one runs okay. We'll stick with the one we got until things start looking up."

"When do you expect that to happen?"

"Reagan said either this spring or summer."

"You know they won't start looking up unless you go out and buy a new car."

"Can't do it with those interest rates. I'm not going to buy a new car until they come down."

"They won't come down if the economy doesn't look up, because business is not going to invest if they don't think you are ready to spend some money."

"I don't imagine you're planning on buying a new house this year."

"You have to be kidding. I can't even afford to paint this one."

"George won't even let me recover the furniture. I was lucky to get the money to buy braces for our daughter."

"Doesn't it bother you,

ART BUCHWALD

Mrs. Consumer, that you can no longer keep up with the Joneses?"

"Haven't you heard? Jones went bankrupt a few months ago. They took everything including his house. No one wants to keep up with him anymore."

"This is a very serious state of affairs. If no one is trying to keep up with the Joneses, then how do we get out of the recession?"

"Don't worry, Reagan will get us out of it with his tax cut."

"What are you going to do with your tax cut, George?"

"Use it to pay my real estate taxes. The city really socked me this year, because they lost all their federal funds for education. I'm going to have to give them my federal tax cut plus a couple of thousand more, which I don't have."

"George, if you're not going to buy a house and you're not going to buy a car, and you're not going to buy and paint, the recession is going to continue indefinitely."

"I'd like to do my share, but I have to send my son to college this year. Have you any idea what that is going to cost?"

"Isn't there anything you want to buy immediately as an impulse item?"

"I could use a new TV set to watch the World Series."

"But they're all made in Japan. That's not going to help the American economy."

"I can't help that. It's the only entertainment we can afford during the recession."

"May I tell both of you that your attitude is counter to all the expectations of the economists, and as long as you persist in this frugality, we will never get out of the economic crisis we're in. You are not part of the problem any more. You ARE the problem. If you don't start spending money, who will?"

"Reagan will. Have you seen his budget for 1983?"

Nicaraguan Showdown

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
MANAGUA, Nicaragua — The Sandinista government of Nicaragua, a communist regime in everything but name, is tightening the screws internally and worrying about insurgency in the countryside, while Uncle Sam stands aside as an undecided observer.

Hard-liners have eclipsed soft-liners in ruling this unhappy country, as shown by recent land confiscations and restrictions on private business. At the same time, trouble on the Honduran border is no longer caused by mere bands of armed men but well-organized guerrilla units.

This points to Nicaragua as the focus of a possible armed showdown for the fate of all Central America, with the U.S. curiously ambivalent to date. Anti-communists in neighboring countries can never feel secure while Marxist-Leninist revolutionaries rule in Managua. Yet, there is no decisive posture in Washington, whose diplomats show ineffectual annoyance without a unified Nicaraguan strategy.

That indecisiveness is reflected by the refusal of Anthony C. Quainton, the bright young U.S. ambassador here, to label this a communist regime. His posture is a hangover of Carter administration policy that helped overthrow dictator Anastasio Somoza in 1979 and then encouraged supposedly democratic elements in the Sandinista revolution through $131 million in aid (now almost entirely suspended).

There is no doubt among liberal foes of Somoza about what the Sandinistas are. "This is a police state and a communist state," one business executive told us. Another company manager said: "We thought there never could be anything worse than Somoza. We were wrong. The communists are incomparably worse."

Nothing close to those comments can be made publicly in Nicaragua today. If the secret police knew such remarks were made to foreign journalists, the offenders would be summarily arrested. Describing their personal experiences, such critics told us of being pulled from bed at 2 a.m. and put in solitary confinement for months without charge or trial.

Suppression of individual liberty has been unchallenged within the Sandinista camp from the start, but economic debate persisted until recently between "softs" trying to stimulate a productive private sector and "hards" committed to doctrinaire communism. Within the last month, the "hards" scored their inevitable triumph under the leadership of Commandante Henry Ruiz, the dogmatic minister of planning.

His victory is demonstrated by escalating confiscations of Nicaragua's most productive farmlands and the scrapping through massive taxation of new incentives, however anemic, for the private sector. Ruiz' principal antagonist — Alfredo Cesar, Stanford-educated young president of the central bank — signaled surrender by going into exile on his recent honeymoon trip to Panama.

With Cesar's departure, the door opened for unrestrained printing of paper money and strangulation of commerce. The dead hand of "scientific socialism" is on Managua; where normal Latin American vitality is replaced by gray stagnation.

No matter how unpopular the regime becomes, nobody here believes the commandantes will flee as Somoza did three years ago. Nor will the Soviet-supplied Nicaraguan army, Central America's largest at 25,000 regulars, be so easy to rout as Somoza's national guard. But rising concern of the regime is shown by the recent conference on the Honduran border between Honduran and Nicaraguan officials.

The Sandinistas were not their usual arrogant selves, pleading for control of the Nicaraguan guerrillas operating from base camps in Honduras. By Sandinista admission, they are now crossing the borders by the hundreds; they return with fresh recruits each time. Guerrilla leaders in Honduras told us they command 1,000 disciplined men, but total insurgents — including Miskito Indians — surely exceed that.

The Honduras-based guerrillas are wary of the charismatic Eden Pastora, the disaffected "Commandante Zero" who still idolizes Che Guevara. But

Strength For Today

A GREAT CONVERSION

The great English preacher, Charles H. Spurgeon, who for more than thirty years spoke to a congregation of two or three thousand people, was converted at the age of fifteen in a little Methodist chapel.

A layman in the pulpit was expounding the text, "Look unto me and be saved, all the ends of the earth." At one place in the sermon the preacher suddenly pointed to the boy and said, "Young man, you look very miserable. And you will always be miserable if you do not obey my text. But if you obey now, this moment will you be saved." Then he shouted at the top of his voice, "Young man, look to Jesus Christ."

At that moment something happened to young Spurgeon. As he described it, a cloud hanging over his life lifted, and the sun rose. He was converted. The power of that experience never abated during the whole of his distinguished life. — Elisha Douglass

Many Are Depending On You

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The critical economic question concerns you — whether you will get out and spend as you did in the past or conserve your money, declining to buy so long as money costs 18 percent or more.

Carmakers are depending on you to spend, as are manufacturers of home appliances, including computers. And so are those in recreation, transportation, building and securities, to name but a few industries.

At the White House they're waiting, too. And in the offices of scores of private sector economists, who are saying again and again that they expect more activity from you than you showed in the past six months.

A large percentage of them, as a matter of fact, are gay out on a limb with forecasts of a revived consumer leading the nation out of the pit of recession and into a more positive, more stable economic world.

Never mind that you were told a couple of years ago that consumer consumption was in large part responsible for getting the country into its economic bind. You may recall the conflation: Too much money has gone into living for the moment, too little on building for the future.

That script, it appears, has been edited, sort of like the story line of a soap opera being revised to make it pertinent to late developing news. Whatever, expectations again are based on consumer spending.

It is there for at least two reasons: 1. Business shows little inclination to lead; it may not even have the ability to spend. 2. The consumer soon will receive financial gifts from the government.

The larger of these is a 10 percent federal tax cut beginning July 1 that will mean $30 billion a year to taxpayers. Added to this is a boost in Social Security benefits of about $11 billion a year.

There has been a tendency among economic analysts to assume that this money will be spent on consumption items, and some have even used terminology such as "$41 billion added to consumer pocketbooks."

But who can declare the money will go into pocketbooks? Critics of the "consumer shall lead us" viewpoint contend that some funds will go for mere survival, that is, food and shelter for the unemployed. Some also may go to pay debts. And some seem destined to rebuild savings.

The latest survey of consumer attitudes by the University of Michigan Survey Research Center shows little evidence that consumers are getting ready to spend their additional funds. It shows they remain defensive.

A key sentence provides blunt evidence of the mood. "The early 1982 surveys give no indication that sales of houses, vehicles, and large household durables will begin to post sustained and cumulative increases by the fall of 1982," wrote the director, Richard Curtin.

Curtin observes that recoveries during the past several decades were indeed led by consumers, but increasingly, he adds, those consumers had to depend on "the availability and widespread use of borrowed funds."

His comment: "To the extent that relatively high interest rates characterize the next few years, greater reluctance among consumers to incur new debt will slow the overall pace of recovery."

More Going To Science-Math School

Three Pitt County tenth-graders, Rebecca L. Denson, Phillip C. Evans and Angela F. Liverman, have been accepted as students at the North Carolina School of Science and Mathematics in Durham.

The school is a residential high school for North Carolina high school juniors and seniors with special ability in science and mathematics. For the 1982-83 school year, approximately 250 juniors are being accepted.

Becky Denson, a student at Ayden-Gritton High School, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond L. Denson. She is number one in her class and plans a career in forensic pathology.

Miss Denson has been a member of the Quiz Bowl team, Science Club, and Medical Explorers. She received a DuPont scholarship to attend the East Carolina University Science Camp and has been awarded many scholastic honors. She took first place in the Ayden-Gritton Science Fair in the Senior Physical Division, and was awarded second place in the ECU Regional Science Fair in the Senior Biological Division. Her hobbies include sewing, reading, running and bicycle riding.

D.H. Conley student Phillip C. Evans, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Evans, is interested in mathematics and computers. He placed first in the Pitt County Math Contest in Algebra I and second in Algebra II; in the ECU Regional Math Contest, he was awarded third place in Algebra I. In the Optimist Club Oratorical Contest, he received first place in 1981 and second place in 1982. He was a 1982 Governor's School nominee and a candidate for vice president of the Student Academy of Science. He is a member of the marching band and the stage band at Conley and is a Student Government Association representative. Other clubs which he belongs to are the Bi Chem Phi Club, and the Medieval Society.

At the present time, he is interested in a career in medicine or computers and data processing. His hobbies include science fiction and fantasy games, working with computers, building models, and reading. He is a member of Hollywood Presbyterian Church.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Liverman, Angela F. Liverman is a student at Farmville Central High School. She is presently serving as sophomore class president and as sophomore editor of the yearbook; she also held those positions for the freshman class in 1981. She is a member of the tennis team, Science Club, National Honor Society, Debating Team, and the Student Council Association. In addition, she was a member of the Science Olympiad at St. Andrews College.

Miss Liverman enjoys playing tennis, reading, playing the piano and swimming. She attends Macedonia Baptist Church. Even though she enjoys physical science and biology, she hopes to attend the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill to major in law.

Pitt Board To Meet Mon.

The Pitt County Board of Commissioners will meet Monday at 10 a.m. at the county office building at 1717 West Fifth St.

Included on the agenda is a report on proposed fees for Health Department services by health director Dr. Robert Ehringer, consideration of bids received on May 17 for health care insurance for county employees, consideration of a request by the Farmville Recreation Department for permission to hold a fireworks display on July 4, and other business.

These clandestine opposition leaders see formerly anti-Somoza and pro-Somoza forces coalescing into armed opposition that could generate a Central American war with immense consequences for the hemisphere. They wonder whether Washington is prepared to help—doubt spurred by what they consider Ambassador Quainton's unwillingness to confront the Sandinistas since his arrival here three months ago. "I would say your diplomacy is very meek," one clandestine leader told us.

Without a robust U.S. role, the Sandinista regime may survive incompetence and unpopularity. The coming year may seal the fate of Nicaragua and the future security of its neighbors. "If nothing happens in the next year," one young businessman told us, "I will leave. I only hope it is not too late for me by then." Unlike the American diplomats, he perceives that the first communist foothold on the Latin American mainland could become welded in iron.

Six Traffic Collisions Reported On Thursday

An estimated $8,250 damage resulted from six traffic collisions investigated by Greenville police Thursday.

Heaviest damage, according to officers, resulted from a 7:30 p.m. collision on Elm Street, 50 feet north of the Willow Street intersection, involving cars driven by Lu Anne Dixon of 210 N. Elm St., Michael Wade Purser of 221 Britt Road and Delora Lynne Good of 204 N. Elm St.

Investigators, who charged Ms. Dixon with exceeding a safe speed, estimated damage at $2,500 to the Dixon car, $300 to the car driven by Purser and $750 to the vehicle driven by Good.

Vehicles driven by Barbara Moseley Ross of 1108 S. Overlook Drive, James E. Hannon of 111 Greenwood Drive and Donnie Melvin Lessie Jr. of Aberdeen collided about 6 p.m. on Dickinson Avenue, 75 feet west of the Ridgeway Street intersection.

Police, who said Hannon was injured in the mishap, estimated damage at $1,200 to the truck Hannon was driving and $100 each to the other two cars.

Cars driven by Rebecca Boyd Weisiger of Goldsboro and Leroy Perkins of 1901 S. Pitt St. collided about 5:47 p.m. on 10th Street, 25 feet east of the Greene Street intersection, causing an estimated $575 damage to the Weisiger car and $600 damage to the Perkins auto.

A truck operated by Kenneth Edward Robinson of 213 Glenwood Drive and a car driven by Gordon Gray Strickland of Route 2, Ayden, collided about 8:38 p.m. at the intersection of Dickinson Avenue and Memorial Drive, causing $500 damage to the Robinson vehicle and $400 damage to the Strickland car.

An 8:15 p.m. collision at the intersection of Fifth Street and Memorial Drive involved cars driven by Margo Belle Manning of 707 E. Second St. and Robert Geraud Mazurek of Route 2, Chocowinity.

Damage to the Manning car was set at $600 while damage to the Mazurek car was placed at $25.

Investigators charged Mazurek with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety, while Ms. Manning was charged with driving with expired registration plates.

An estimated $300 damage resulted to each of two cars involved in a 7:40 p.m. mishap on Greenville Boulevard, 75 feet north of the Eastbrook Drive intersection.

Drivers of the cars were identified as Dwight Brewington Bell of 604 Albemarle Ave. and Fred Wiley Alcock of 311 Kenilworth Drive.

Charge Orderly Patient-Assault

GOLDSBORO, N.C. (AP) - A medical attendant accused of sexually assaulting three patients at Wayne County Memorial Hospital has been indicted by a grand jury.

Rickey LeRoy Faire, 24, was indicted on three counts of attempted rape, two counts of first degree burglary and one count of felonious breaking and entering.

Faire is charged with assaulting patients on Sept. 15, 1980, Nov. 24, 1980, and Feb. 24. Two similar incidents at the hospital occurred in March but no one has been charged in those incidents.

THREE SNAKE BITES - Wayne McClelland is recovering nicely at West Florida Hospital (Pensacola) after a near fatal snake bite attack in Alabama. McClelland was attacked by a person holding the snake, an Eastern Diamondback, at an outdoor party. He was bitten three times on the right shoulder. McClelland required 60 vials of anti-venom in Andalusia, Ala. and another 21 vials when he arrived in Pensacola, where he was not given much chance of survival. (AP Laserphoto)

Candidate In Visit Here

EUGENE H. PHILLIPS

Winston-Salem attorney Eugene H. Phillips, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for the N.C. Court of Appeals, was in Pitt County Thursday seeking support for his campaign in the June 29 primary.

Phillips, an attorney for 35 years, is seeking the seat being vacated by the retirement of Chief Judge Naomi Morris. He is a former president of the Wake Forest University Lawyer Alumni Association, the N.C. Academy of Trial Lawyers and the Forsyth County Bar Association.

School Drive For Lighthouse

Pitt County Extended School, located on the campus of Pitt Community College, was one of several Pitt County schools that recently participated in a volunteer project to raise funds to support local and statewide efforts to save the Cape Hatteras Lighthouse.

To conclude the Extended School activities, Linda Gurganus made a special presentation to the student body this week. Mrs. Gurganus is secretary to Jack Minges, chairman of the Pitt County chapter of the "Save Cape Hatteras Lighthouse" Committee.

Mrs. Gurganus explained the significant historic value of the lighthouse to North Carolina and its people, the forces which threaten to destroy it and the plans to preserve it.

Argentina Escalates U.S. Feud

By GEORGE GEDDA
Associated Press Writer

HAVANA (AP) — Argentina escalated its month-long feud with the United States over the Falklands crisis with an unexpected expression of support for the "liberation struggles" waged by Vietnam and Cuba against American influence.

Praise for two of the most bitter foes of the United States was contained in a speech here Thursday by Argentine Foreign Minister Nicanor Costa Mendez. His remarks could signal a shift in Argentina's traditionally pro-Western policies.

Minutes after posing for photographers with Cuban President Fidel Castro, Costa Mendez told a meeting of non-aligned foreign ministers that he is confident Argentina can count on their support in the Falkland Islands crisis.

His remarks were laced with criticism of Israel and South Africa — two favorite targets of the non-aligned movement — and his comments on the United States went well beyond attacks on American backing of Britain in the South Atlantic conflict.

After denouncing the "illegitimate and unjust" policies of colonialist and imperialist powers, Costa

Mendez said, "I cannot ignore the fact that countries such as Algeria, India, Cuba, Vietnam and others fought long liberation struggles for their full rights to an independent life."

In an additional gesture of support for Cuba on an issue that has contributed to anti-American sentiment here, he said the U.S. naval base at Guantanamo Bay was an example of great power "expansionism."

Until the Falklands crisis erupted, Cuba and Argentina were on opposite sides of the ideological spectrum, and the Reagan administration considered Argentina's right-wing military government a potential ally in the U.S. struggle to block Communist expansionism in Central America.

But Costa Mendez's speech Thursday, coupled with Cuba's offer of full support for Argentina in its undeclared South Atlantic war with Britain, could foreshadow a new era of Soviet bloc cooperation with Argentina.

Such a shift would have seemed highly improbable just a few short months ago when, during a visit to Washington, Argentine President Gen. Leopoldo Galtieri promised his country's backing of the United States in the global struggle against Soviet expansionism.

The possibility of a change in Argentina's political orientation has been source of concern to the Reagan administration for some weeks. Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. said in a speech last month that the Falklands crisis could open the way to the establishment of a Soviet foothold in South America for the first time.

Costa Mendez was specific in his bid for non-aligned support although it appeared certain he would be satisfied if the movement gave its endorsement to a proposed resolution being circulated by Cuba.

The resolution condemns British "colonial aggression" against Argentina, and American support for the British. But some delegations, led by Kenya and more than 20 other members of the British-led Commonwealth, are pressing for a resolution insisting that Argentina comply with U.N. Security Council resolution 502, which calls on Argentina to withdraw its forces from the dispute islands.

The three-day ministerial conference is scheduled to end late tonight with the approval of lengthy position papers outlining non-aligned sentiment on international political and economic issues.

The resolutions will serve as working papers for a non-aligned summit scheduled to meet in Iraq in September. At that meeting the chairmanship of the movement will pass to Iraq from Cuba, which has filled that role since the 1979 summit in Havana.

Voice Appreciation To Dr. Patterson

The Pitt County Memorial Hospital medical staff has adopted a resolution of appreciation for Dr. F.M. Simmons Patterson who, until his recent retirement, was director of medical education of the hospital, assistant dean for continuing medical education of the East Carolina University School of Medicine and executive director of the Eastern Area Health Education Center.

The resolution notes that "his singular achievements in the development of a truly outstanding continuing medical education program for the medical staff of Pitt County Memorial Hospital have greatly enriched the professional lives of the medical staff and encouraged the life-long learning traits of its members."

His exemplary medical career as a practicing surgeon, as head of the North Carolina Regional Medical Program and as a member of the faculty and director of the Cancer Control Program of the Duke University Medical Center is also noted, as are "the numerous honors and awards bestowed upon him."

"He commands the respect and love of all who know him and quietly demonstrates those attributes and qualities that characterize the Compleat Physician," the resolution states.

WEATHER FORECAST — The National Weather Service forecasts rain and showers Saturday for most of the Atlantic coast states. Rain and showers are also forecast for much of the Northwest. Cool weather is forecast for the Great Lakes, but most areas will be warm. (AP Laserphoto)

By The Associated Press
Thunderstorms wrought havoc in several North Carolina counties Thursday and more of the same was expected for today, the National Weather Service said.

In the Durham area Thursday, heavy rain caused flooding and threatened a dam. Hail pounded crops and lightning set fires and blacked out several neighborhoods. About 60 rain-drenched men worked into Thursday night piling sandbags on an earthen dam on Lake Elton near Durham to shore it up after the lake threatened an apartment complex and residential subdivision located below the dam.

The job started early in the evening and continued past midnight. The bags, borrowed from the highway department, were two to three deep about two-thirds the length of the dam.

Two school buses stood by to evacuate residents in the area. Some decided to leave on their own after some residents reported knee-high deep water in their yards.

Lightning also caused two fires in another apartment complex near Durham. One caused only minimal damage, but the other caused heavy damage to the wall between two apartments.

Durham Fire Capt. W.T. Lemons said both fires were called in about 3 p.m. The most serious one was reported in the walls between two apartments, Lemons said.

He said firemen also received several calls Thursday night about lightning striking buildings, but he said none of the fires was serious.

A woman was "numbed" when lightning struck near her while she was walking on Duke's East Campus Thursday afternoon, said Durham Public Safety Sgt. J.L. Robinson. Robinson said, The woman, who was not identified, was taken to the Duke infirmary where she was treated.

In nearby Raleigh, heavy rain and hail swept through the area, pelting drivers caught in rush-hour traffic and stripping young tobacco leaves from their stalks.

"I've never seen a hailstorm as big or as long as this one," said Roy Jones, Rolesville fire chief. "The hail just ragged up the tobacco plants, completely tore (them) to pieces."

Agriculture officials say they aren't sure of the extent of crop damage, but said tobacco damage was reported in Youngsville and Rolesville in northern Wake County.

Hail also was reported in parts of Franklin and Johnston counties.

The weather service said today's weather would hardly differ from Thursday's. A weak cold front along the coast stretching as far west as Arkansas was responsible for the low pressure bringing the precipitation.

A trailing cold front will be move into North Carolina Saturday. Behind the cold front precipitation will be end over western North Carolina Saturday morning.

Innocent Plea By Ex-Hostage

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Cynthia Dwyer, who spent nearly a year in an Iranian prison on spying charges, has pleaded innocent to a criminal mischief charge stemming from a quarrel in a parking lot.

Mrs. Dwyer did not appear at a court hearing Wednesday in suburban Amherst, and was represented by lawyer Patrick J. Baker. Town Justice Edward L. Robinson of Amherst adjourned the case to June 23.

The suburban housewife was arrested April 29 on charges of damaging a man's car in a dispute over a parking space.

Mrs. Dwyer was arrested in May 1980 by Iranian revolutionary guards in Tehran after being lured into a phony plot to free some of the Americans being held hostage by Iran.

Coastal Management Act Seen As N.C. Legislative Success

By STEVEN K. PAULSON
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Two researchers for the North Carolina Center for Public Policy Research have concluded that the Coastal Area Management Act, criticized for extensive regulation of beach development, has been highly successful and not as restrictive as some people have claimed.

Bill Finger, co-author of an article on the study published in N.C. Insight, said the act has been successful in six areas.

The act is expected to come under a lot of scrutiny by two legislative committees, he said.

Finger said the act:

- Affects only 20 of the state's 100 counties and only 3 percent of the land within the affected counties.
- Has promoted more land-use planning because all 20 coastal counties and 48 municipalities affected have state-approved land-use plans.

— Has not been overly restrictive in that 97 percent of all permit request have been approved.

— Streamlines the procedure for developing property on the coast.

— Has brought $5.6 million in federal funds to North Carolina.

— Allows the state to monitor all federal actions affecting coastal areas for consistency.

The act was passed by the North Carolina General Assembly in 1974 at the urging of then-Gov. James Holshouser Jr. The act has been under attack recently by legislators, who say that it is too restrictive and inhibits coastal development.

Gov. Jim Hunt has expressed support for the act.

Finger said a study showed that 322 of 335 major permits were issued, and 1,203 of 1,227 minor permits requested had been granted.

"One reason it was so high is that CAMA permit officers work with land owners to try to work with developers. If something is too close to the beach, the officers will work with them to negotiate and they can still build what they want."

Finger said CAMA has drawn a lot of criticism because it is so prominent in coordinating permits.

He said that has been one of the strengths of the act.

"It is the agency that is out front. A property owner may think CAMA is responsible for six or seven permits he is required to have. One may be from the Division of Marine Fisheries, another may be a local permit for septic tank location."

He said the agency also holds public meetings, where any objections are aired. That also puts the agency in the limelight, he said.

"Ironically, that's one of the strengths," he said.

See Dawning Of Missions Era

BANGALORE, India (AP) — A "new era" for world Christian missions has dawned, with a fast-growing force of missionaries now coming from the Third World, says a commission of the World Evangelical Fellowship.

A report from a meeting here says the missionary force from Asia, Africa, Latin America and Pacific islands has grown 348 percent since 1972, with cross-cultural workers has increased from 3,404 to 15,249.

"A new phase in missionary partnership is now possible," the report says.

A RIDE TO JAIL

Many Flunk Standard Test To Finish Grade

BENTON HARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Twenty-two percent of the kindergarten through second-graders here will have to repeat a grade next year because they failed to meet minimum skills standards, but school officials say they won't relent.

Under the new program, which will be extended next fall to the third and fourth grades, a daily summary was kept of each child's progress in reading and math, said district spokesman Clem Cleveland. Students having trouble were given extra help.

Tests, texts and teaching methods were standardized in the district and teachers developed achievement goals for pupils in each grade, Cleveland said.

To avoid flunking, kindergarteners must know "things like colors, being able to read simple numbers and basic, beginning reading and math," Cleveland said.

"We said they would not be promoted (if the standards were not met) and they will not be promoted," said school Superintendent James Hawkins. "We haven't had any backlash thus far, but the full impact may not have been felt by the parents."

At a school board session this week, Kaye Jeter, Benton Harbor's elementary education director, said 459 of the district's 2,083 kindergarten through second-grade pupils would be retained in their current grades when the school year ends today.

The normal failure rate is about 5 percent.

The flunking students have not met math and reading objectives set in a new minimal-skills program begun last fall.

But school officials said the get-tough policy gradually is improving students' performance. They point to state achievement test scores as proof.

On 1981 tests, 10 percent more Benton Harbor fourth graders demonstrated mastery of three-fourths of the math skills on the state test than in the year before. On reading tests, an 11 percent improvement was recorded.

"Something had to be done about it. It was obvious the kids were not reaching basic skill levels," Hawkins said. "After a lot of study, we decided we needed to establish some performance standards."

Hawkins said there is a consensus among people in the southwestern lower Michigan community that "kids ought to do better academically." He said parents' groups were involved in planning the new program.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

PROMISES!

HOW MANY PROMISES CAN BE FOUND IN THE BIBLE? EIGHT THOUSAND, NINE HUNDRED AND TEN! 7,706 PROMISES IN THE OLD TESTAMENT, 1,104 IN THE NEW! 7,485 (85%) ARE MADE BY GOD TO MAN—ONLY 290 PROMISES MADE BY MAN TO GOD! 991 ARE BY ONE MAN TO ANOTHER. ANGELS HAVE MADE 28 PROMISES. 9 PROMISES WERE MADE BY THE DEVIL! 2 BY EVIL SPIRITS. 1 PROMISE FROM A MAN TO AN ANGEL! 2 BY GOD THE FATHER TO THE SON. ISAIAH, JEREMIAH, EZEKIEL—EACH OVER 1,000 PROMISES (MOSTLY PROPHETIC, NATURALLY). ONLY ONE BOOK IN THE ENTIRE BIBLE HAS NO PROMISE IN IT—TITUS! BUT THE RICHEST CHAPTER FOR PROMISES IS THE 37TH PSALM, WITH A GRAND TOTAL OF 43!

ONE OF THE MOST BEAUTIFUL SIGNS OF A PROMISE MADE IS THE RAINBOW, SEEN AFTER EACH SHOWER. THIS IS THE TOKEN WHICH COMMEMORATES GOD'S PROMISE TO MAN THAT HE WOULD NEVER AGAIN DESTROY MANKIND BY A FLOOD. (GENESIS 9:11-17)

Encyclopedia Of World Faiths

By GRAHAM HEATHCOTE
Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP) — A revolt by some Africans against Western-style Christianity 25 years ago started the Rev. David B. Barrett, an English clergyman-missionary, wondering about the present state of the world's religions. His questions have led him to compile what is probably the most comprehensive array of facts and figures about all faiths throughout the world and also about the extent of non-belief. Barrett's work, with 500 collaborators, has produced the "World Christian Encyclopedia," a huge volume on the memberships of 20,800 distinct Christian denominations from 1900 to 1980, with projections to the year 2000. Also included — an index of 500 names for God in 900 languages. Other religions, as well as atheism, are covered because "Christianity must be studied in the total religious context," Barrett said in an interview. The 1,000-page book has just been published in the United States by Oxford University Press (at $74.50 until Aug. 1 and $95 thereafter). It appears in Britain in July. Barrett, 54, an Anglican who lives in Kenya and trekked with his notebooks through 212 countries and territories of the 223 featured in his book, said much of the material was already available to individual churches, "but they didn't know what to do with it." "I was sometimes told that the Archangel Gabriel doesn't use statistics and that there are no statistics in heaven," he said. "But all the churches collect their own statistics every year — and then forget them. I would say that, far from being useless, the facts about the world growth of Christianity are of primary importance." Barrett said Christians are the most numerous of the world's religions, outnumbering Moslems by nearly 2-to-1. "But Islam is growing slightly faster." "Islam's strength is in the third world, like Indonesia, where population is increasing faster than in the West," he said. "Christianity is rooted in Europe and the United States, where population growth is slowing down. The percentage of Christians is declining very slightly each year, because the surge of Christianity in Africa and the Far East is balanced by a 3-million-a-year loss in Europe and the United States." Barrett, lean, bearded and quietly humorous, studied aerodynamics at Cambridge University and was a government aircraft designer when he changed vocations 30 years ago, entering the Church of England ministry. Eventually sent to Kenya 1957 as a missionary, he soon faced a church rebellion in which about half the diocese broke away to form their own church, saying the Anglican church did not reflect African culture. The same thing happened in many other Western-style African churches, and there now are 27 million people in African indigenous churches. After learning that similar breakaways had been going on in Africa for 100 years, "it seemed far bigger than anybody realized, but there were no figures." He began collecting them in 1967, leading to his huge, worldwide research project. With financial help from the Church Missionary Society and the Anglican Community, Barrett worked from an office in Nairobi. He said 100 of his collaborators in Islamic and Communist countries insisted on anonymity, because of state or social pressures against their religions. A number are Roman Catholic monks and nuns who "know their countries very well." "One man wrote the facts for me on Jordan, Syria, Lebanon and Palestine — Palestine because the Israeli boundaries are artificial from a Christian viewpoint. They were on just four sheets of paper, but they were sensational, quite unknown to the outside world," he said. To get information on "difficult" countries like Albania, Iraq and the Soviet republics, it was not always necessary to go there but to find out who the experts are, wherever they might be. "Writing was no good, so I went to nearly every country in the world. I asked churches for their yearbooks and if they were unsatisfactory I went to universities. "University experts are important sources, in Moscow, London, San Francisco. Then there are the exiles. There are two Albanian churches in the United States." Barrett said his book contains many discoveries and curiosities. "The pope thinks he has 730 million Catholics. My figure is 805 million. "Brazil claims more than 11 million Catholics who are really Protestants. They were baptized Catholics who discovered, mostly in Pentecostalism, a more dynamic religion. "Dual affiliation is my category for them, and for those Scandinavians who belong to a state church but also become Salvationists or members of free churches. There must be at least 50 million people in the world like that."

New Caterbury Tales Following A Papal Trail In Great Britain

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent
LONDON (AP) — The first pope ever to visit Protestant Britain was expected to encounter some difficulties, but not the sort that befell Pope John Paul II during his six-day pilgrimage of unity. The Roman Catholic pontiff got stuck in an elevator, lost his skullcap and his helicopter ticket and was caught yawning by the ever-watchful photographers. And his play was panned by the critics when it opened in London on the eve of his arrival. These, of course, were only minor incidents in a tour of personal triumph for the pontiff that saw him making history by meeting the queen at Buckingham Palace, kneeling in prayer beside Anglican Archbishop Robert Runcie at Canterbury Cathedral and getting a 10-minute ovation in the Liverpool Anglican Cathedral where Runcie was heckled off the pulpit two months before for supporting the papal visit. It was while boarding a British Airways helicopter to Canterbury that the pope discovered he had lost his ticket. A constable found it on the tarmac. The pope's zuchetto, his white skullcap, blew off as he stepped off his plane in Liverpool. A bishop hiked up his cassock skirts and chased it, huffing, while the cameras rolled. The pope himself picked up a religious medallion and returned it to the well-wisher who dropped it as the pontiff walked down the aisle of the Anglican cathedral in Liverpool. John Paul and Cardinal Basil Hume got stuck in an elevator and had to shout for help during a break for dinner at the cardinal's house behind London's Westminster Cathedral. An embarrassed worker opened the locked upstairs door leading to the shaft. The play "The Jeweller's Shop," written by Karol Wojtyla 20 years before he was elected pope, opened to less than ecstatic reviews in the West End on the eve of his visit. Milton Shulman, critic for the London Standard, recalled a comment on Winston Churchill's paintings: "One is surprised if it is competent and dumbfounded if it is good." He was not dumbfounded.

The Daily Express critic said the plot line about three couples in love was "told with all the authority of a spectator and little of the experience of the practitioner." But the pope's personal appearance tour got rave reviews, although the crowds were often less than expected. Some of the kudos may have dimmed him, however. Lord Longford, the Catholic historian known as "Lord Porn" for his fight against smut, said the pope "had the mind of Bertrand Russell and the heart of Mother Teresa." Norman St. John Stevas, a prominent Catholic politician, called him "the first pope pop star," which seemed appropriate after his triumph in Liverpool, the hometown of the Beatles. English and Scottish youths, mad for rugby and soccer, turned out by the tens of thousands to cheer him like a world class athlete bringing home the cup. At jammed stadiums he was hailed with deafening locomotive cheers of "John Paul — John Paul!" One member of his entourage who was much on view was Archbishop Paul Marcinkus, the pope's 6-foot-4 unofficial bodyguard, a former football player from Chicago who helped protect the pope from a bayonet-wielding Spanish priest in Portugal a few weeks back. One London tabloid referred to him as "God's Gorilla."

Father Ken Doyle of Albany, N.Y., a journalist with the Vatican entourage, complained that because of the clerical assailant in Portugal, "the cops searched us in Roman collars closer than anyone else." At some stops along the papal path even bishops had to submit to a body search. In Glasgow's Bellahouston Park, where eight acres of people embroidered the hillsides with a living Scottish plaid that one caption writer labeled "The Pope's

Survey Church Day-Care Role

NEW YORK (AP) — What is considered the largest survey of religiously run day-care programs for children shows that American churches are heavily involved in the growth of the day-care industry. The Rev. Eileen Linder, director of the Child Day Care Project of the National Council of Churches, said the survey indicated 48 percent of Protestant, Eastern Orthodox and Anglican congregations operate or house a child day-care program. Half of these programs are for pre-school educational programs, she said. In the poll, questionnaires were sent to 93,000 congregations, of which 24,900, or 27 percent, responded. She said the strong response "tells us we've touched a nerve that is important in the life of local parishes."

7:00 P.M. — DINNER
7:30 P.M. — MEETING

Lee grew up in Florence, S.C., where he excelled in athletics in high school. He attended a small junior college in North Carolina and College in Charleston, S.C. He spent a year in Vietnam in the U.S. Marine Corps. Upon completing military service, Lee returned to a society that had changed drastically. This was during the late 60's when social turmoil was raging and many of Lee's friends had turned to drugs. Lee began experimenting with drugs and became a junkie with a steady diet of heroin, morphine and speed. On December 26, 1973, while reading a Bible he had received as a Christmas present, he realized that Jesus was the answer to all of his problems. Immediately he was saved and delivered from drug addiction with no withdrawals whatsoever. He later joined the staff of the Nicky Cruz Home for Boys in Florence, S.C., working with alcoholics and drug addicts, witnessing on the streets, in bars and in jails. Many were saved, delivered, and healed as a result of his efforts. In November, 1974, Lee married and shortly thereafter he and his wife, Jean, moved to Dallas, Texas, to attend Christ For The Nations Bible Institute. During that time, Lee and his wife became Youth Directors of Wynnwood Presbyterian Church. After graduating from Christ For The Nations, Lee became Associate Pastor at Living Faith Christian Center in Myrtle Beach, S.C., where he helped establish a two-year Bible College. Lee moved to Charleston, S.C., where he founded and pastored New Joy Fellowship (church). Presently, he and his wife are living in Whiteville, N.C. Lee now pastors Living Word Christian Center, a fast-growing full gospel church located in Chadbourne, N.C.

A prepared statement released by the city this morning, said the city fire marshal and the codes enforcement supervisor made a routine annual inspection of the Casablanca on May 27, "in response to the owner's request for a renewal of a special use permit to operate ... as a nightclub."

Three "major fire and safety hazards," were discovered during the inspection, the statement continued.

The alleged hazards listed in the city's statement included: "the stage in the Morocco Room is constructed of flammable materials and does not meet the requirements," of the state building code; "only one exit light is visible in the entire Morocco Room," with "the inadequate exit lights," being a violation of the building code; and "the exit passage along the rear ... wall of the Morocco Room is blocked by built-in storage cabinets and serving stations," in violation of the building code.

"Separate letters from the fire marshal and the codes enforcement supervisor were mailed on Friday ... the day after the inspection ... informing the owner of the violations and closing the Morocco Room until the violations are corrected," the city statement said. "It came to our attention Tuesday night that the building was still being used in violation of the order of the Building Inspections Department," and on Wednesday, "we contacted the owner personally to correct the violations."

The statement pointed out, "the owner has been informed that as soon as the violations have been corrected, the City will immediately re-inspect the premises and he will be allowed to reopen. As the Morocco Room is currently constructed and furnished, the maximum occupancy is 406 persons."

Cleef, of Manteo, was killed Feb. 19, 1979. Fearing pleaded guilty Feb. 8 of this year to felonious hit-and-run for running over Cleef.

Fearing was sentenced in Chowan County Superior Court.

Fearing's cousin, Malcolm Fearing III, a former Manteo town commissioner, and C.C. Duvall, a former Dare County sheriff's deputy, were convicted in connection with the death.

REUNION
 The Laughinghouse-Sneed Family Union Club will meet Saturday at 8 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Janice Rice, 1208 Myrtle Ave. Final plans for the family reunion to be held June 10-11 at Casablanca Restaurant will be discussed.

Hail For County...

 Green said hail prevented his crews from working for a while and noted that "huge chunks of ice" pounded their trucks, in some cases "knocking paint off in spots."
 Lightning reportedly struck a refrigerator at the N & L Body Shop on Mumford Road around 5:30 p.m., setting the cord and the insulation in the steel building ablaze, according to Darrell Williams, chief of the Staton House Fire Department. He estimated the damage at approximately $2,000.

Inspectors Closed Casablanca Area

By STUART SAVAGE
 Reflector Staff Writer
 City officials ordered a portion of the Casablanca Restaurant on North Greene Street closed Wednesday afternoon, shortly before the weekly happy hour was scheduled to get underway, as a result of a routine inspection which revealed what were described today as "major fire and safety hazards."

According to the city, "in view of the serious hazard created by flammable construction materials and inadequate exit lights, our building inspectors had no choice but to enforce the life safety requirements of the North Carolina State Building Code and close the Morocco Room."

"The building inspector's job is to protect the public's safety by requiring public places, such as restaurants and nightclubs, to meet the life safety requirements," of the building code. "We regret any inconvenience to the owners and managers of the club and their patrons, but must reiterate that our duty is to protect the public from fire and safety hazards in violation of the State Building Code in buildings which are open to the public."

The 13-30 Corp., a publisher of high school and college magazines, coordinated the contest as part of the bicentennial of the Battle of Yorktown. Each contestant wrote a 1,000-word essay related to the battle and the Army's bicentennial theme, "The Spirit of Victory," and focused on the importance of this same spirit of courage and determination in achieving any worthwhile goal.

As local winner, Davenport will be presented a certificate by Capt. Louis Morales, commander of the U.S. Army Recruiting Area. He is now eligible for the state competition. From the 50 state winners, five regional winners will be selected. The four national runnersup will receive $750 savings bonds. The national winner wins an all-expense-paid trip to Yorktown and Washington, D.C., where Secretary of the Army John Marshall will present him a $1,500 savings bond. All students grades 11 and 12 were eligible to enter the contest.

Traffic Is Up For Piedmont
 WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Piedmont Airlines reported a 13.4 percent traffic increase for May and said it was the best performance for any month in the company's history.

In addition to flying 313.3 million revenue passenger miles (a fare-paying passenger carried one mile), Piedmont had passenger boardings of 707,247, also a record, and the first time the airline has carried over 700,000 passengers in a month.

Piedmont also offered more capacity than in any previous month with 551.3 million available seat miles, a 17.9 percent increase over a year ago.

Lakers Drub 76ers For 3-1 Advantage

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Lakers are on the verge of winning their second National Basketball Association title in three years. They are just as close to setting a new standard for excellence in the playoffs.

But they're quick to support the old Yogi Berra adage: "It ain't over 'til it's over."

The Lakers took a 3-1 lead in the best-of-seven NBA Chamampionship Series Thursday night, building a big lead over Philadelphia in the first three quarters and then holding off a fourth-quarter surge by the 76ers for a 111-101 triumph.

"I'd like to say one thing," Coach Pat Riley said after the game. "We haven't won anything yet. I know we're ahead 3-1. We have one more game to win."

"We're starting to smell the aroma (of the championship), but we have a lot of work left."

The fifth game is scheduled Sunday at Philadelphia, starting at 2 p.m. EDT. A sixth game, if necessary, will be played here next Tuesday night. If a seventh game is needed, it will be played at Philadelphia next Thursday night.

The Lakers, who swept Phoenix and San Antonio to get to the Championship Series, are 11-1 in post-season action. Six of the 35 NBA champions lost only two games on their way to the title. No team has ever gone through the playoffs with as few as one setback.

"Right now, I'm just counting the wins and losses," said Los Angeles center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, who had 22 points, 11 rebounds, six assists and three blocked shots in Game 4. "We have a lead right now, but as you know, we have one more game to win."

"For us to win we have to use all our potential and all our talents. Philadelphia is an excellent team and just because you take the court doesn't mean you're going to win."

It seemed to be that simple through most of Thursday night's game. As in Game 3 two nights earlier, the Lakers never trailed and the game was tied just once, this time at 2-2. Los Angeles rattled off six straight points to take an 8-2 advantage and was on top the rest of the way.

It was 29-18 at the end of the first quarter and 57-42 at halftime. The Lakers led by as many as 19 points in the third period before settling for an 87-72 lead entering the final 12 minutes.

The 76ers outscored the Lakers 8-2 at the outset of the fourth quarter to cut the deficit to nine points, 89-80. However, Los Angeles regrouped and soon led by 14 points. But Philadelphia wasn't finished.

It was 100-86 midway through the final period when the 76ers went on a 12-5 binge to make it 105-98 with 3:17 left. Philadelphia had two opportunities to narrow the gap to five points, but bad passes by Caldwell Jones and Julius Erving spoiled the chances.

The teams went nearly two minutes without a score. Bob McAdoo's alley-oop layin with 1:25 to go made it 107-98 and ended all doubts.

Earvin "Magic" Johnson and Jamaal Wilkes led a balanced Los Angeles attack with 24 points each. McAdoo came off the bench to add 19 points. Norm Nixon was held to 11 points, making only four of 18 field goal attempts, but he recorded a game-high 14 assists.

Kurt Rambis had only three points for the Lakers, but equaled Abdul-Jabbar's rebound total of 11. Including team rebounds, Los Angeles outrebounded Philadelphia 61-53.

"If we don't rebound, we don't win," said Abdul-Jabbar. "When we play good defense and control the boards, we're a very difficult team to beat."

Andrew Toney led the 76ers with 28 points and 11 assists. Erving added 25 points, all but eight of them coming in the second half. No other Philadelphia player scored more than 12 points. Bobby Jones led the 76ers in rebounding with nine.

"This was a pivotal game for both teams," said Riley. "It puts them in a desperate situation. But they're pros. They came back a couple of times tonight. They would never give up, they're going to be ready on Sunday."

"We were surely two different ball clubs in the first half and second half, both offensively and defensively, especially defensively," said Philadelphia Coach Billy Cunningham. "We became aggressive in the second half and started hitting the shots."

"I was most concerned with the defense we played in the first half. For us to have any success, we have to play great defense every night. We can't play half a game. We can't generate something for eight or 10 minutes. We have to be on a consistent level for 48 minutes."

Several Philadelphia players expressed optimism concerning Sunday and the rest of the series.

"It's a best four out of seven, not three out of seven," said Toney. "We still have an opportunity. Obviously they played well (Thursday night), they won."

"It's a difficult task for us right now, but nothing's impossible," said Maurice Cheeks, who had 12 points and nine assists. "I think we have the character to come back."

"If it couldn't be done, why not have a three-game series," asked Bobby Jones. "We can play with them. Wait until Sunday."

"We have been in this position before, only the opposite way, up three to one," said Cunningham, referring to the Eastern Conference finals when the 76ers led Boston 3-1 before losing two straight games, only to win the seventh contest. "We know it takes four games to win and we are looking forward to coming back to L.A."

No Decision By Odom Yet

East Carolina University basketball coach Dave Odom is unlikely to announce any decision on his future with the school prior to Monday, a spokesman said this morning.

Odom, who has been offered a position on the University of Virginia basketball staff under head coach Terry Holland, said earlier in the week that he expected to come to a decision on whether to accept or to stay at East Carolina by the weekend.

The spokesman said that Odom had some further consultations to do that could not be accomplished until over the weekend, and that his decision probably would not be announced until the first of the week.

Odom, who has one year remaining on his present contract at East Carolina, has completed three seasons at the helm of the basketball program.

Legion Opens Season Tonight

Pitt County's American Legion baseball team, with only one day's practice, is set to open its 1982 schedule tonight at 8 p.m. at Harrington Field.

The Post 39 men will take the field against Wilson in the contest, the first of 20 games scheduled through the end of the month. Playoffs are scheduled to begin July 1.

The team has already seen four games postponed due to Rose High School's participation in the state 4-A playoffs, two of which have already been rescheduled. One, at Edenton, will be played on Sunday, June 13 at 7 p.m., and the other, at Wilson, will be on Tuesday, June 15 at 8 p.m. The other two, one at Snow Hill and the other with Wayne County here, are still to be reset.

As a result of the schedule shifts, Pitt's first five games will be at Harrington before the Edenton game puts them on the road for the first time.

Coach Bill Davis, who takes over the program from former coach Pat Smith, has 15 players on the roster for this year.

"It's going to take us a few games to get everything settled in," Davis said. "But I'm glad that we have a roster like we do, so that it's not too hard to keep folks happy."

Davis will have a six-man pitching staff which will probably have Roger Williams and

Gordon Douglas of Rose and Tyrone Gay of Ayden-Grifton as the primary starters. Scott Galloway, a former Rose player, and Mike Kinley, who played mostly on the Rose JV team, will join Kevin Tyree of Chocowinity as reserve pitchers.

Former Rose player Emmett Walsh is expected to handle the catching duties, with Rampant Crowell Pope as his backup.

At first base, another Rose player takes over in Bill Kirtrel.

North Pitt's Greg Briley and Rose's Mont Carter appear to be in a battle for second base, while Sammy Hodges of Rose will be at shortstop.

Ayden-Grifton's Terry Locust and Douglas will battle for third, with Pope as a possible here, too.

The outfield will have Rose's Randy Warren in center, with another Rampant, Tom Buie in left, with the possibility of Galloway also playing some here. Locust, Williams or Kinley could take over the right field spot.

Pitt is the defending regular season champion in the league.

76ers In Trouble

Philadelphia 76er Darryl Dawkins finds himself swamped by the defense of the Los Angeles Lakers' Kareem Abdul-Jabbar (33) and Earvin "Magic" Johnson during second half action last night in Game Four of their NBA Championship series. The Lakers defeated the Sixers, 111-101, for a 3-1 lead in the best-of-seven series. At right, Sixers coach Billy Cunningham shows his frustration as he dejectedly walks in front of his bench during the game's waning minutes. (AP Laserphotos)

CFA To Talk Suit Funding

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The continued funding of an antitrust suit against the NCAA was expected to be the dominant topic of conversation this weekend at the College Football Association's sixth annual convention in Dallas.

The convention opens today, and a vote by the 60-member organization on financing the suit could come on Sunday — one day before the suit begins in federal court in Oklahoma City.

The universities of Georgia and Oklahoma filed the antitrust action earlier this year, and are asking the court to invalidate the four-year $263.5 million football television contracts with ABC and CBS, as well as the NCAA's $7,408,000 cable agreement with Turner Broadcasting System.

A decision by CFA members to halt financing of the Oklahoma-Georgia suit is not expected to halt the litigation.

"There is a great deal of commitment to the suit," said Dan Gibbens, a professor of law, Oklahoma's faculty representative to the NCAA and a member of the CFA board of directors.

"They see it as a matter of principle as much as anything else," he said.

The trial, before federal judge Juan G. Burciaga, was expected to last two to three weeks. A decision was not expected until late summer, shortly before the first college games kick off.

NCAA supporters say a favorable ruling for Oklahoma-Georgia could result in chaos, but officials at Oklahoma, Georgia and other militant CFA schools insist that would not be the case.

"It could be a tremendous mess," said Dick Andrews, chief attorney for the NCAA. "If the decision is to invalidate the NCAA contracts, it is very unlikely anyone could put together any other system of controls in time to have any sort of organized televising on the networks for the coming season."

"I really think that's reflective of tunnel vision," said Gibbens.

Gibbens said the dispute may ultimately be resolved by a judicial panel approving a compromise proposal, similar to the courts' handling of public school desegregation cases.

"I don't see endless litigation," Gibbens added. "I do see that one lawsuit may not settle all the issues to the satisfaction of both parties."

Attorneys on both sides concede the Oklahoma-Georgia suit may be the first in a long series of litigations before the situation is resolved. A militant group within the CFA waged a bitter, unsuccessful fight last year to seize control of football television rights from the NCAA.

After reaching a four-year agreement with NBC, the CFA leadership failed to muster enough support among its members and abandoned the plan. But shortly after the NCAA signed the four-year contracts with ABC and CBS, Oklahoma and Georgia, with the backing of the CFA board of directors, filed the suit. The CFA includes all major football independents and conferences except the Big Ten and Pac-10.

Other items on the CFA's convention agenda include a discussion of the recent restructuring of the NCAA's top football division and an evaluation of academic requirements for college athletes. A vote is also expected on a proposal to expand the CFA to include men's basketball programs.

Gibbens, while agreeing that a dissolution of all centralized control of football television is a logical consequence of the suit, said some controls would remain.

"No, 1, the courts do not do unrealistic things," he said. "It may be unpleasant for one or more of the parties, but it would be workable, and it would not set up chaos. The idea of doing away with all centralized controls, I don't think, is a realistic consequence of the lawsuit."

"I don't know what particular resolution the court would work. But there are all kinds of possibilities. I don't see chaos for a year, or for any period of time."

"Organizations that have been involved in similar action that have gone to the U.S. Supreme Court are still alive and healthy and exercising controls."

Higher Grades To Be Stressed

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Atlantic Coast Conference Commissioner Bob James says students who play in the College Football Association in the future will have to meet even more stringent academic requirements.

"I can't speak for everyone in college athletics, but I know the schools in the ACC are serious about getting on record as being in favor of legitimate academic requirements for athletes," James said in a telephone interview Thursday from his Greensboro office.

James and commissioners from other CFA conferences will meet in Dallas this weekend to discuss higher academic standards for college football players on scholarship.

The CFA is expected to adopt a resolution asking the National Collegiate Athletic Association to increase grade point ratio requirements for high school students entering college on scholarship from 2.0 to 2.5.

Other suggested changes include:

- A minimum score of 750 on college board tests.
- Three years of high school English with a minimum 2.0 average.
- Two years of social studies with a minimum 2.0 average.

James said the changes would probably be presented to the NCAA at its annual meeting next January.

Duke coach Red Wilson says he believes the higher academic standards will be supported by football coaches in the CFA, which is an association of 62 major universities.

"I don't know how a football coach could go back and look at his faculty with a straight face unless he goes along with something like this," Wilson said.

Toronto Stops Yankee Split Hopes

TORONTO (AP) — The New York Yankees, who breezed into town Monday as winners of seven of their last eight games, figured to add to their victory total in a four-game set against the last-place Toronto Blue Jays. It didn't quite turn out that way.

Luis Leal, who is rapidly gaining a reputation as a Yankee-Tommy John killer, slammed the door on any New York hopes of earning a split in the series Thursday night as he fired a four-hitter to pace the Blue Jays to a 3-1 victory. That gave Toronto victories in three of the four games.

The only other American League game scheduled Thursday, Texas at Baltimore, was postponed because of rain.

It was pitching and defense that hurt the Yankees here. In its three wins, Toronto's pitchers limited the Yankees to six, seven and four hits, respectively.

"Toronto has improved quite a bit," said Yankees outfielder Oscar Gamble. "They showed us they can play real good defense."

Blue Jays catcher Buck Martinez, who drove in the first run in the second inning with a double to right that scored Anthony Johnson, believed Leal is coming into his own.

"He's pitched real good for us all year," said Martinez. "His record (4-3) could be a little better, but we haven't been able to score many runs for him."

"The big thing with Luis is that he's got confidence in his ability now. The key to tonight's game was that he was able to stay ahead of the hitters."

Leal, a 25-year-old native of Venezuela, was also able to extend his lifetime mark against Tommy John to 3-0.

John, who pitched two innings of relief in Monday's loss, gave up nine hits and watched his record fall to 4-5.

Leal maintained that John's presence was secondary to the game.

"I don't care who pitches for the Yankees," said Leal. "I just go out there to pitch my own game."

He admitted it was one of his stronger performances.

"I liked the cool weather tonight," Leal said. "I had more gas."

"I just felt good tonight. I had a good curve ball. They were hitting a lot of the balls in the dirt and to first base. They have a lot of left-handers and I was throwing the slider and curve in on them."

The Jays added a run in the second when Alfredo Griffin drove Martinez home with a two-out single to right. Toronto's other run came in the fifth on pinch-hitter Wayne Nordhagen's RBI single.

The lone Yankee run came in the fourth when Gamble singled, moved to third on a double by John Mayberry — his first hit in 20 at-bats against his former teammates — and came home on Graig Nettles grounder to second.

Perhaps due to the frustration the series wrought, Yankees Manager Gene Michael was ejected from the game in the fifth inning by home plate umpire Rich Garcia.

"He (Garcia) told Tommy to make sure he took the signs on the rubber," said Michael. "That's fine, it's his job to protect the batter. But he shouldn't walk out to the mound to argue with our pitcher about it, that's a different matter. After that he said something to me as I was going to the dugout. He was wrong to keep it going."

NCAA Track Meet Turns Into Sprinters' Holiday

PROVO, Utah (AP) — The mountain altitude and a brand-new track are turning the NCAA Outdoor Track and Field Championships into a sprinters' holiday.

So say the men and women speedsters who blazed to impressive qualifying times on the eve of two days of finals today and Saturday.

"This is the fastest track I've ever run on," said a grinning Bert Cameron of Texas-El Paso after the two-time NCAA 400-meter champion qualified Thursday in a sizzling 44.79 seconds.

"This is a very fast track and I feel like I'll be able to run a good time in the finals," he said. "If I am pushed, it is possible that we could see a world record in the 400 meters."

Another 400-meter contender, Kasheef Hassan of Oregon State, posted an even better time of 44.76 in another heat and sported a grin as wide as Cameron's.

Stanley Floyd of Houston had a 10.1 clocking in the 100-meter trial, outdistancing Georgia football star Herschell Walker, who failed to qualify. Floyd said a world record was a possibility in the final because of the track at Brigham Young University and the 4,500-foot altitude.

"It's the first time I've run at this altitude and the chance for a world record is the chance of a lifetime," said Floyd, whose time was the third-fastest in the country this year.

Other sprinters agreed the thinner air contributed to the uniformly fast times.

"The track is just a track. I think it's the altitude," said Merlene Ottey of Nebraska, a candidate to repeat as national collegiate champion in the women's 100 and 200 meters.

Ottey, a 21-year-old junior Jamaica, streaked to a 21.29 time in her 200 meter trial, a remarkable time in that she battled a brisk head wind.

Ottey also anchored Nebraska's 400-meter relay team to a collegiate-record time of 43.67, breaking Tennessee State's 3-year-old mark of 43.68.

Howard University's 1,600-meter relay team concluded Thursday's qualifying in a meet-record 3 minutes, 2.66 seconds, followed closely by quartets from Mississippi State and Oklahoma, who also finished under the old meet mark of 3:03.08 set by Tennessee last year.

Behind Floyd's mark in the 100, Mike Miller of Tennessee posted a 10.12 and Calvin Smith of Alabama had 10.19.

In addition to the strong showings in the sprints, favorites in the distance races qualified with ease. Suleiman Nyambui of three-time defending champion UTEP, who holds 13 NCAA gold medals, coasted to a 14:13.9 time to win his 5,000-meter heat. He will be pressed by teammate Gidamas Shahanga, who won the other heat in 14:05.15.

Nyambui, 28, a silver medalist in the 1980 Olympics for Tanzania, goes after his fourth-straight 10,000-meter NCAA title today and his third 5,000-meter championship Saturday.

Leann Warren of Oregon, the only other woman attempting to repeat twin collegiate titles, posted a strong finish in her 800-meter qualifying heat and prepared to defend her 1,500 meter title today.

"This race showed me I could still accelerate. I was glad I had the chance to kick it out at the end," said Warren, who is just recovering from a severe intestinal virus.

Walker, Georgia's All-American running back, was a distant seventh in the 100 meter heat won by Floyd.

MacKenzie Sec. 7

CHICOD — Chicod eased to a 9-7 Southern Pitt Little League victory over MacKenzie Security last night.

Jerome Carter, in relief of Tyrone Turnage, got the victory in the game.

Chicod's hitting was led by Stevie Peele with two hits, including a bases-loaded triple in the sixth that tied the game. Carter followed with a homer to provide the margin of victory.

MacKenzie's hitting was led by Wallace with two hits, one of them a triple.

Chicod is now 3-4.

Junior Tennis Programs Set

The Greenville Recreation and Parks Department will be sponsoring junior tennis lessons in a variety of formats beginning June 14 at River Birch Tennis Center.

The first of these will be lessons for beginners. This is for those who have never had any form of tennis instruction before. These lessons will be offered for three different age groups. The 7-9 year old group will meet on Tuesdays and Thursday from 8 to 9 a.m.; the 10-13 year old group will meet from 9 to 10 a.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays; the 14-18 year old group will meet from 11 a.m. to 12 noon also on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

If you are not yet old enough to be in a certain category but you will reach that age by August 1, 1982, you may sign up for that class. This session ends July 1, but you may also register for the second session, which begins July 19. There are a limited number of spaces available in the classes.

The second form of junior tennis offered will be the Novice Tennis League. This is for beginners who have had some instruction before and are familiar with how to keep score and the basics of the game. The league will consist of four teams with each team having a maximum of 15 players. Each team will have its own coach and will practice Monday and Wednesday with matches being played on Friday mornings.

Junior and Senior Tennis Camps are also offered. This is for the more advanced player. The junior (grades 4-7) will meet on Monday and Wednesday mornings from 10 to 11, while the senior camp (grades 8-12) will meet from 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. also on Mondays and Wednesdays. The camps will have matches with other area programs in Eastern North Carolina.

All programs will meet at the River Birch Tennis Center. Registration for all junior tennis begins July 7 and lasts until June 11. It will be also at River Birch from 9 a.m. until 6 p.m. There is a $4 fee.

Wilander Turns Attack Against Jose-Luis Clerc

Returning Colts Pace Belmont

PARIS (AP) — The field in men's division at the French Open tennis championships had been narrowed to a 29-year-old Spaniard making a comeback, a teen-aged Swedish sensation in the manner of Bjorn Borg and two Argentines whose once-close friendship has weakened because of tennis.

The men's semifinals at the first Grand Slam event of the year began today when No. 4 seed Jose-Luis Clerc played Swede Mats Wilander, an unseeded 17-year-old who already had toppled Czech Ivan Lendl and American Vitas Gerulaitis.

Argentine Guillermo Vilas, the No. 3 seed who has not lost a Grand Prix tournament this year, met Spain's Jose Higueras, seeded 14th, in the other semifinal on the red clay central court of Roland Garros Stadium.

The women's $51,000 championship match Saturday will be a match between two Americans — No. 2 seed Martina Navratilova and No. 4 seed Andrea Jaeger, who both defeated former French champions Thursday in straight sets.

Jaeger stopped top seed Chris Evert Lloyd Thursday in her advancement toward a fifth crown in Paris. The blonde teen-ager, who has cut off her long pigtails, outplayed the 27-year-old Lloyd 6-3, 6-1 Thursday a day before her 17th birthday. It was only Lloyd's fourth loss on clay in the 222 matches she has played on that surface since 1973.

"I didn't expect to be beaten that bad," Lloyd said. "I never really got into the groove of hitting my ground strokes."

Jaeger, who would become the youngest women's champion if she wins the title, said, "she probably didn't play well, but I'll take the credit."

The American teen-ager has lost her last three matches against Navratilova and has a 4-6 lifetime record with her going into Saturday's final.

Navratilova needed only 41 minutes to eliminate Czech Hana Mandlikova 6-0, 6-2 in the other women's semifinal. Mandlikova, the 20-year-old defending champion who was seeded fifth, attributed her rapid defeat to "bad luck and a bad day."

Navratilova, a Czechoslovakian-born American, credited her superb playing to the help she has received from her coach, Renee Richards.

The men's $66,000 final at this $917,000 two-week event will be played Sunday.

Wilander, who burst on the tennis world this year, has become the prodigy of the tournament. If he wins the title, Wilander will end Borg's distinction of being the youngest man to win the French Open.

Borg, who is not competing in any more tournaments this year, won his first of six French Open titles in 1974 six days after his 18th birthday. Wilander turns 18 on Aug. 22.

The Swedish teen-ager, now ranked 18th, has never played his semifinal opponent Clerc, a 23-year-old ranked sixth worldwide.

Clerc said he would like to play Vilas in the title match.

Both Argentine players, once close friends, say their friendship has suffered because of Clerc's refusal to play for Argentina in the Davis Cup earlier this year.

"We once had a very good friendship," Vilas said. "We're not great friends now, but we're not enemies either. We talk to each other."

Vilas, who turns 30 in August and is the oldest player among the top 10, is vying for his second title in Paris. He is the only player in the men's division who has not lost a set in the two-week tournament. The poetry-writing Argentine, who published a second volume of his work this year, has won all five Grand Prix tournaments he has entered this year.

Higueras, who will be 30 next March, was among the top 10 players two years ago but is now ranked 17th. He had hepatitis in 1980 and just recently shook off the last effects of the illness.

NEW YORK (AP) — Two colts who were nearly knocked out of the Triple Crown classics by injuries are rated among the top contenders for Saturday's Belmont Stakes.

Back in February, Conquistador Cielo was sidelined with a slight shin fracture and Aloma's Ruler was taken out of training because of a wrenched ankle.

Since then, Conquistador Cielo has raced the fastest mile ever at Belmont Park. Aloma's Ruler wasn't ready for the May 1 Kentucky Derby, but won the Preakness May 15.

"He probably wouldn't be here now if it wasn't for Dr. Reed," said Butch Lenzini, trainer of Aloma's Ruler.

Woody Stephens, Hall of Fame trainer of Conquistador Cielo, echoed Lenzini's remarks about William O. Reed, who also treated his colt.

"He's without a doubt the finest veterinarian in country," said Stephens.

Conquistador Cielo is still being treated with an electronic device that stimulates bone growth. Aloma's Ruler no longer needs the Bi-Oseogen system.

Conquistador Cielo, owned by Henryk deKwiatkowski, has won three straight starts since returning to the races, including the Metropolitan Handicap in 1:33 last Monday at Belmont Park.

The son of Mr. Prospector, who will be ridden by Eddie Maple, was made the early-line 3-1 choice after the field of 11 3-year-olds was entered Friday. He will leave from the outside No. 11 post.

"I'm very happy to be out there," said Stephens. "I have a very fast horse and that way I can control the race."

Next to him in the No. 10 post will be another speedball, Nathan Scherr's Aloma's Ruler, ridden by Jack Kaenel, who at 16 will be attempting to become the youngest rider ever to win the Belmont.

The Belmont will provide another matchup between Aloma's Ruler, winner of six of eight career starts, and Christiana Stable's Linkage, ridden by 50-year-old Bill Shoemaker.

Linkage, beaten a half-length by Aloma's Ruler in the Preakness and a winner in eight of 11 starts, and Aloma's Ruler, each was listed at 4-1 in the early line.

The speed horses will be attempting to hold on for the 1 1/2 miles. If they falter, Gato Del Sol figures to be coming like he when he rallied from 19th place to win the Derby.

The Derby winner, who again will be ridden by Eddie Delahoussaye from the No. 1 post, was listed at 5-1. By preference, his trainer, Ed Gregson, elected to bypass the Preakness, and not race until the Belmont.

"I've stuck to my plan and let's see if it can be done," was Gregson's comeback to his critics about the colt's 35-day layoff.

"The Derby pace was perfect," he added. "The speed horses tired, and that set it up nicely for Gato.

"But I don't think this is a race that anybody can steal, even though the speed is dangerous."

Gato Del Sol, a 21-1 outsider in the Derby, has won three times in 13 outings.

Herbert Allen's Cut Away, third-place finisher in the Preakness, is the next choice in the Belmont at 8-1 in the early line.

Completing the field are Royal Roberto and Illuminate, each 10-1; Estoril, 15-1; and Anemal, High Ascent and Lejoli, 20-1 each.

All starters will carry 126 pounds.

Attrition by injuries and illness have contributed to the fact that for the first time since 1934 no horses will have competed in all Triple Crown races.

Another factor was the decisions to keep Linkage out of the Derby and Gato Del Sol out of the Preakness.

On the other hand, Stephens is happy to be in the Belmont, the one Triple Crown event he hasn't won in his illustrious career.

Stephens, 69, won the 1974 Derby with Cannonade and the 1952 Preakness with Blue Man.

"I'll have a hard race (in the Metropolitan), it would have been easy to say no (to the Belmont)," the trainer of Conquistador Cielo said. "But under these circumstances, I'm going to run him.

"I've never had the pleasure of taking the Belmont Stakes."

If all go, the Belmont gross purse will be $266,200.

Maine Hopes To Make Name In College Series

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Maine didn't receive a vote in an informal coaches' poll to pick the favorite for the 1982 College World Series. However, Coach John Winkin knows he has strong support back East.

"We've had tremendous following this year," Winkin said before today's Series opener between Maine and Miami.

"One thing you can say about this team is it is truly a Maine team. We have one pitcher in our rotation who is from out of state and only one player in our starting lineup comes from outside Maine.

"Maybe it's amazing that a bunch of snowbirds and potato pickers can make it to Omaha. I don't know but it's quite a thrill being here."

Winkin, who brings a second-straight team to Omaha, said the national sports cable network, ESPN, will telecast all the College World Series games this year and that's also a plus for his team.

"Last year I left home a hero and came back a bum. Our quick exit kept us from playing on television because ESPN didn't cover the series until later. This year they're doing all the games so there are going to be baseball parties in front of the television, and our statewide radio network is going to carry the games back. This year I left as a hero and hope to go home a hero."

Winkin joined his team's practice early Thursday afternoon and missed casting his vote in the coaches' poll for a tournament favorite, Texas, ranked No. 1 in the final Collegiate Baseball ranking, was given a vote by three coaches.

Cal-State Fullerton, the 1979 tournament winner, was tabbed by two of the eight tournament coaches. Stanford received one vote and Texas Coach Cliff Gustafson said his first-round foe Oklahoma State looks as good or better than last year's runner-up team.

Miami (49-18-1) and Maine (32-12) meet in the 5:10 p.m. and Wichita State (70-12) faces Fullerton (51-21) in the 8:10 p.m. Friday game. On Saturday Oklahoma State (56-14) meets Texas (57-4) at 5:10 p.m. and South Carolina (45-11) faces Stanford (48-16-1) at 8:10 p.m.

ea! Pirates Win Three In Row Leader Carner Unhappy Over Hall Requirements

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates won three straight division titles a decade ago. They won three straight World Series games from Baltimore in 1979.

But these are tougher times, and the Pirates latest success streak came Thursday night when they won three games in a row for the first time all season.

"It's a good feeling and hopefully just a start," Manager Chuck Tanner said after Pittsburgh edged the Montreal Expos 5-4 on a tie-breaking double by Tony Pena in the bottom of the 10th inning.

"We have to keep it going," said Pena, the young catcher who also beat Los Angeles the night before with a two-run single in the bottom of the ninth.

"This is a great win. I can feel the momentum," said Mike Easler, who singled home one run and saved another with a lunging catch in left field.

It was quite a display of emotion by the Pirates, who once took winning streaks in stride. But they just escaped last place in the National League East this week.

The strain showed on the normally patient Tanner last Monday when the Pirates lost to the Dodgers. He snapped angrily at a reporter, something he rarely does.

But Tanner was all smiles Thursday night.

"We haven't had three in a row since opening day, and we sure waited long enough to get it," he said.

The game — the only one in the National League Thursday night — was a makeup of an Expos-Pirates contest that was snowed out the first week of the season.

Temperatures dropped into the upper 50s Thursday night, and the game drew a sparse crowd of 4,158, including 1,649 steelworkers and their families who bought $1 discount tickets on "Steelworkers Night."

The Pirates scored twice in the fourth on RBI-singles by Johnny Ray and Easler off Expos starter Steve Rogers. The Expos made it 4-2 in the fifth as Raines doubled and scored by a double by Dawson.

The Pirates tied the score with two runs in the seventh as Dale Berra singled home a run and Bill Madlock hit a sacrifice fly.

Bryn Smith, the fourth Montreal pitcher, opened the Pirate 10th by walking Jason Thompson, who was sacrificed to second by Easler.

Pena then brought Thompson home with a double up the middle that won the game for reliever Rod Scurry.

It was the second loss in a row for the Expos.

"We'd won nine out of 11 coming in here, which is not all that bad," said Expos Manager Jim Fanning. "So I figure that we're still on a winning streak even though we lost tonight."

MALVERN, Pa. (AP) — when it wasn't considered a major.

"The qualifications should be changed," said Carner after taking a one-stroke lead over Patty Sheehan, Kathy Postlewait and Chris Johnson.

"A major is hard enough to win, but to win two separate majors is difficult. And the Hall is very important to me."

Nancy Lopez, Cindy Hill, Gail Hirata, Cathy Mant and Sandra Palmer each were at 70 after the opening round of the 72-hole tournament over the 6,283-yard course.

Carner's 68 was one stroke over the course record set last year by Barbara Moxness in the third round. Carner, who had five birdies, had a chance to tie the record, but she bogeyed the 18th hole, missing a five-foot putt for the bogey five.

"I haven't been in the 60s in quite awhile," said Carner. "I haven't been making birdies. This was refreshing."

Carner birdied the first two holes with putts of 25 and 6 feet, then parred out. On the backside she had birdie putts of 4, 9 and 12 feet, the bogey and four pars.

Johnson and Postlewait never have won a tournament. Sheehan was Rookie of the Year in 1981, winning once. She also has a victory this year.

Johnson had six birdies and three bogeys, while Postlewait had four birdies and one bogey. Sheehan nipped par five times with two bogeys.

Sandra Spuzich, who won last week at Corning, N.Y., could earn an additional $100,000 from the sponsors with back-to-back triumphs. She had a first-round 74.

Careless Putt Cost Peete Share Of Lead

BETHESDA, Md. (AP) — Calvin Peete was just trying to be courteous on the 13th hole when he leaned on one foot to avoid another player's line and attempted to sink a one-foot putt. He missed and that cost him a share of the first-round lead in the $400,000 Kemper Open.

17,733-yard Congressional Country Club course in suburban Washington, D.C.

Peete, an 11-year tour veteran, said he made a careless putt for his bogey on the 13th hole.

"It was just a common mistake we all make sometimes," said Peete. "I was just trying to step over somebody's line and putting on one foot."

Peete said the error helped his game.

"It probably was all for the best because it made me play more aggressive the next five holes," he said. "Before then, the wind was blowing pretty good and I was steering the ball for the center of the green. After I three putted there, it made me know that I had to be more aggressive."

Peete birdied three of the next four holes for sole possession of second place at 69 entering today's second round.

Morgan has played well at this course.

In the 1976 PGA Championship, he shot 66-68 and was the leader after the first two rounds before fading and he finished third in the 1980 Kemper, the first year it moved to Congressional.

"Usually, I start playing good here and I get better as it gets closer to the fall," he said.

"The golf courses are more suited to my game, the more they get into fast greens, hard greens, long courses as opposed to some of the grass types we play on the West Coast."

Levenson, from Johannesburg, had no trouble at Congressional after finding the course. He was lost three hours Monday. The South African had one bogey on what he described "my only bad shot of the day" to go with four birdies.

Four veterans Gibby Gilbert and Lon Hinkle, relative unknown Clarence Rose, a two-year pro from Clemson, and Bobby Clampett, were at 70 while Andy Bean, George Cadie and Fred Couples were in a group of eight players at 71.

Jack Nicklaus came in with what he described a "so-so 72."

Pats, Sims Okay Pact

BOSTON (AP) — The New England Patriots and top draft choice Ken Sims reportedly have agreed to a $1.8 million National Football League contract that would make him the highest paid professional lineman.

The Boston Globe today said that Bucko Kilroy, general manager of the Patriots, said Thursday he was meeting in New York with Sims' agent, Witt Stewart, and other lawyers.

The newspaper quoted Kilroy as saying the contract had been agreed to for a couple of weeks.

It reportedly would be for four years, giving Sims an average of $450,000 a year. Approximately $1 million would be a bonus, and the rest would be in annual salary.

The contract would make Sims the highest paid Patriot player ever.

British Accents Highlight News

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — They're not exactly household names, but Brian Hanrahan, Michael Nicholson, Jeremy Hands and Robert Fox have been heard frequently on American newscasts, providing the closest thing viewers have to the sights and sounds of the war in the Falkland Islands. These are the British reporters whose scratchy-sounding voices come from the South Atlantic, just as an Argentine plane comes strafing by. They're the reporters whose faces, bubble-gum card style, share corners of the screen with the ubiquitous maps of the Falkland Islands.

In this small-world era of satellite linkups and air-travel cards, American television rarely has had to rely on other organizations to tell the first-hand story. But for this war, neither Argentina nor Britain will permit foreign journalists into the combat zone.

Both nations are exercising strict censorship, but Britain's war information generally is viewed as more credible than Argentina's. In addition, Argentina's state-run TV organizations are not providing anything comparable to the eyewitness accounts of Hanrahan, Nicholson and the others.

These reports, which are censored aboard the British fleet and again by the Defense Ministry in London, are what appears on English TV and then the U.S. networks. ABC, CBS and NBC have been careful to point out to viewers that the information is censored and, potentially, biased.

"It's a very difficult story to keep in perspective," says Jeff Gralnick, executive producer of ABC's 'World News Tonight.' "There are no third parties. Everybody providing information has a direct investment. The art form has become listening to it all and balancing it out."

What America is hearing, then, has a decidedly British accent. How good has that reporting been? Is the truth coming out?

Ed Fouhy, CBS' vice president for hard news broadcasts, says he knows the British correspondents from other wars and other stories. "The BBC (British Broadcasting Corp.) and ITN (Independent Television News) say they sent their best. They're doing a pretty good job of being objective. There's just not enough detail."

That's because of censorship, says Gralnick. "The British don't want that kind of information out. Reports from the British front line are sources of Argentine intelligence."

In fact, British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher has criticized the government-supported BBC for not cheerleading the British effort.

Gralnick, for one, is appreciative of the British objectivity, although he says

"they use more 'we' and 'us' than American reporters. Sometimes, things like 'our planes and our troops' weave in and out of their reports."

Harry Griggs, producer of foreign news for NBC's "Nightly News," agrees.

"There's a slight empire tinge to their reporting," he says. "They're writing for a British audience, and, occasionally, you can feel the sympathy and empathy."

"Some identification is natural and understandable. They're on the ground getting shot at, too. And, when they're interviewing somebody in a trench who's excited about receiving dry socks, the identification is there. But it's with the troops, not the cause."

Relying on foreign organizations is a far cry from the way the American networks covered the war in Vietnam, the first daily television war.

American TV coverage of the Falklands has been a combination of information gathered by U.S. correspondents in London and Buenos Aires, analyses by the networks' military consultants with their maps and model airplanes, and the British journalists' eyewitness accounts.

The pictures tend to come from archives — or be dated. Earlier this week, NBC showed month-old Argentine footage of soldiers on the Falklands.

"It demonstrated how young these men were," says Griggs. "That says something."

Says CBS' Fouhy, "If I ever write a book, I'm going to call it the 'File Footage War.'"

O'BRIEN AND FAMILY — Actor Pat O'Brien, right, his wife Eloise and their daughter Brigid, left, have found success in what they call the ideal stage role for their family in the play "On Golden Pond". The O'Briens have been appearing on stages across the country performing the Ernest Thompson play. (AP Laserphoto)

Tony Awards Show Is Today A Spectacular

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Drama Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Broadway's first Tony awards show, in 1947, was a modest affair at the Waldorf Astoria. The winners' list wasn't broadcast until late that night, and then only on local radio.

It's grown some since. This year, it's a $1.5 million spectacular that CBS will broadcast live nationally on Sunday at 9 p.m. EDT. The show is also being taped for later showings in 40 foreign countries.

It's become the best publicity any Broadway show can have, with a national TV audience estimated at over 10 million homes. That has a direct, immediate effect at the box office, says a man who should know.

"It always does, particularly for the shows picked as the season's best play and best musical," says Alexander H. Cohen, a Broadway producer and executive producer of the glittering, black-tie bash.

"And even the ones that don't win benefit," adds Cohen, who with his wife, writer-producer Hildy Parks, has put on every Tony show since the awards' first national telecast in 1967.

"I think you'll find that in the two weeks right after the Tonys, the box office will jump as much as 25 percent," he laughed. "The truth is, it's a great hype" as well as a salute to achievement in theater, he said.

Top contenders for Broadway's top honors in the 1981-82 season are Britain's "The Life and Adventures of Nicholas Nickleby" and two made-in-America musicals, "Nine" and "Dreamgirls."

"Nickleby," based on the Charles Dickens novel and staged here by the Royal Shakespeare Company, has the most Tony nominations for a play — eight. But it closed Jan. 3 after an acclaimed and limited $100-a-seat run. It's up for best play against "Mass Appeal," also closed, and the still-open "Crimes of the Heart" and "Master Harold ... and the boys."

"Dreamgirls," the flashy, high-voltage Michael Bennett musical about a Supremes-like black singing trio, has the most nominations for a musical, 13, followed by "Nine" with 12.

The two are competing for best musical honors against "Pump Boys and Dinettes," a country music piece, and "Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat," a Biblical pop opera by the creators of the Tony-winning "Evita."

"Nine," based on "8½," Federico Fellini's surreal movie about a director in distress, barely made it in under the wire this season. It opened on May 9, the last day of eligibility for Tony nominations.

The nominations, by a 13-member panel picked by the League of New York Theaters and Producers, were sent to over 600 members of the Broadway community for voting that ends today.

Each panelist had to choose four candidates in each of 19 categories, or his or her list would be rejected. Given the generally lackluster Broadway season, it made for slim pickings, at least in choice of performers in three categories in the musical department.

Three delegates from "Nine" wound up nominated in the supporting actress category, two from "Dreamgirls" in the best actress category, with two men from the same show nominated in the supporting actor competition.

However, a wider range of players was to be found in the straight play department, which included the first father and daughter ever nominated for Tonys in the same season.

Christopher Plummer was nominated in the best-actor category for his flamboyant Iago in "Othello."

Junta Sees 'New Argentina' Play A Leading Role

By BRUCE HANDLER, Associated Press Writer
BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — The military junta is making plans for a new Argentina after the Falklands war, with some civilian participation in the government and a leading role in Latin America.

Gen. Basilio Lami Dozo, the air force commander and junta member, is emerging as a spokesman for the new order. Although many outsiders assume that a military loss to Britain must lead to the downfall of the three-man junta that ordered the invasion of the Falklands, there are indications that won't happen. Despite the pain of the loss of sons, brothers and husbands in battle, many Argentines still see the junta in a patriotic light. The three military chiefs achieved a generations-old Argentine dream by planting the national blue-and-white flag on the Falklands even if they apparently can't keep it there. The junta already is preparing the public for a changed postwar era, with an inferred admission that British rule of the disputed islands will be reinstated.

The approach is subtle and low key. The uniformed chiefs are conferring with civilian political leaders, whose parties have been officially suspended since the coup six years ago, and giving guarded promises to include them in the future setup.

Diplomatic circles regard the strategy favorably. Their view was expressed by the widely read English-language magazine The Review of the River Plate, which wrote: "A destabilized regime would be the ultimate nightmare."

Argentina's future government must have "participation by all sectors," said Lami Dozo, 53, who personally directed the air attacks that were the only successful Argentine military action of the war.

The more participants there are in this construction, the stronger will be the republic we want to form," he said. He cautioned, however, that military decrees suppressing political activity cannot be lifted right away. But he said they could be "restructured in their application." Unlike his junta companions, army Gen. Leopoldo Galtieri, the president, and Adm. Jorge Isaac Anaya, Lami Dozo moves comfortably in both military and civilian circles. He is accessible to the press and cuts a dashing figure in his olive-green or blue-dress uniforms.

"Argentina already has won a political triumph," he declared. "We have a different Argentina — one that is considered in an international context and known in international forums...as a country that has conviction and faith in its destiny and is in condition to confront other countries"

Lami Dozo talks of the post-Falklands Argentina as "a country with a capital C" and says its military performance against Britain "could not have been imagined a few years ago" by the rest of the world.

He asserts that the country "has matured rapidly" because of its war experience. Galtieri has argued the same line but without going into the civilian political question as explicitly as Lami Dozo. He said in a recent address that Argentine soldiers "surprised the world with their courage and combat aptitude" in an "unequal battle against an extracontinental aggressor and those that aid it." The 55-year-old chief of state dared the British after the seizure of the islands "to come" and try to take them back. Now that they are doing just that, his line is that Argentina fought to "illuminate the awakening of Latin America."

Anaya is thought to go along with the "Latin leadership" justification. The navy chief, who has been close to Galtieri since they were 12-year-old freshmen at a military school, is more closemouthed than the other two junta members, but the Buenos Aires newspaper Conviccion reportedly often reflects his thinking.

The paper said recently the war has taught Argentina who its friends are. It said Argentines and all Latin Americans should realize that the world is run by force and vested interests.

Lami Dozo says Argentina should increase its productive capacity to "make itself felt" in world markets. The air force leader said the national economy should be "semi-closed" — open enough to stimulate free enterprise but not enough to endanger national interests.

Life As It's Lived

Chaos In The New Home And New Neighborhood

By Gail Michaels
Setting into a new home is like setting out to explore Antarctica with a broken compass and 50 pounds of canned goods. The landscape is unfamiliar. There are curtain rods lying in wait to trip one behind every other box. The mattress pads are in one unmarked box, the sheets in another, the toilet tissue in another, like way stations in a blizzard.

I found my white eyelid dust ruffle in a box of rusty paint cans and Phillip's grandmother's antique crystal lamp in a wardrobe box wedged in between two pair of ice skates. Every time I put something up, Zachary would drag it out again and find a new resting place for it. I found myself missing my kitchen cabinet locks more than I missed my hairdresser and my best friend.

But worse than the physical disorder was the emotional chaos. Because of the unfamiliarity of our surroundings, we kept skirting disaster. Phillip could not remember to close our bedroom door. It just didn't seem important. Unfortunately, our bedroom has a vanity and sink in it, and one evening I found Zachary standing there with Phillip's Trac II, calmly shaving his nose.

Luckily, he knicked it in only three places, but the heart palpitations I suffered at the sight of blood smeared from ear to ear were to return the next day when he awoke with a fever and diarrhea, and I couldn't find my way out of the subdivision, much less to a doctor's office.

He had diarrhea for days. In fact, my friend Brenda called right as I was throwing out the daily Hefty Two-Ply full of dirty diapers. "So, Gail, you've been there a week," she said. "How do you like it?" "Well, you know that nice smell a new house has?" "Yes..." "Ours doesn't have it any more."

"What happened?" "To make a long story short, Zachary's diapers had gaps. I've just spent an hour cleaning his mattress and his new beige carpet."

"Ugh." "My sentiments exactly, especially when I was cleaning out the air conditioner vent and my new neighbor rang the doorbell. She had come to tell me that Meg had gone over to visit her boys and, not finding them at home, had scratched I CAME in the door with a nail and then signed her work with her name."

"Oh no," Brenda groaned. "What did you do?" "I cried. And I couldn't even wipe the tears away because my hands were still

Bakke Prepares Graduate Today

By JOHN HOWARD, Associated Press Writer
DAVIS, Calif. (AP) — Allan Bakke, the engineer who challenged a medical school's minority admissions program and sparked a landmark U.S. Supreme Court ruling, stands ready to begin his new career as a doctor.

Bakke won admission in 1978 to the University of California at Davis after the Supreme Court agreed that the medical school's system of racial quotas to help minority groups violated his constitutional rights.

The publicity-shy Bakke, 42, who had tried to get into medical school since 1973, was among 100 students scheduled to graduate today from the university 85 miles east of San Francisco.

Bakke claimed — and the high court agreed — that the medical school's admissions policy of reserving 16 out of every 100 openings for disadvantaged minorities unfairly barred him.

The court ruled, however, that race could be used as one of many criteria in deciding admissions, as long as no numerical quota was set for minorities.

In a rare interview, Bakke told a Sacramento Union reporter during his first day of classes that "it would have been easier not to come at this point and do what I've been doing for the past 10 or 11 years."

Bakke had worked as an engineer at the Ames Research Center in Sunnyvale. After taking several pre-med courses, he applied to Davis in 1973, but his application was rejected for two straight years.

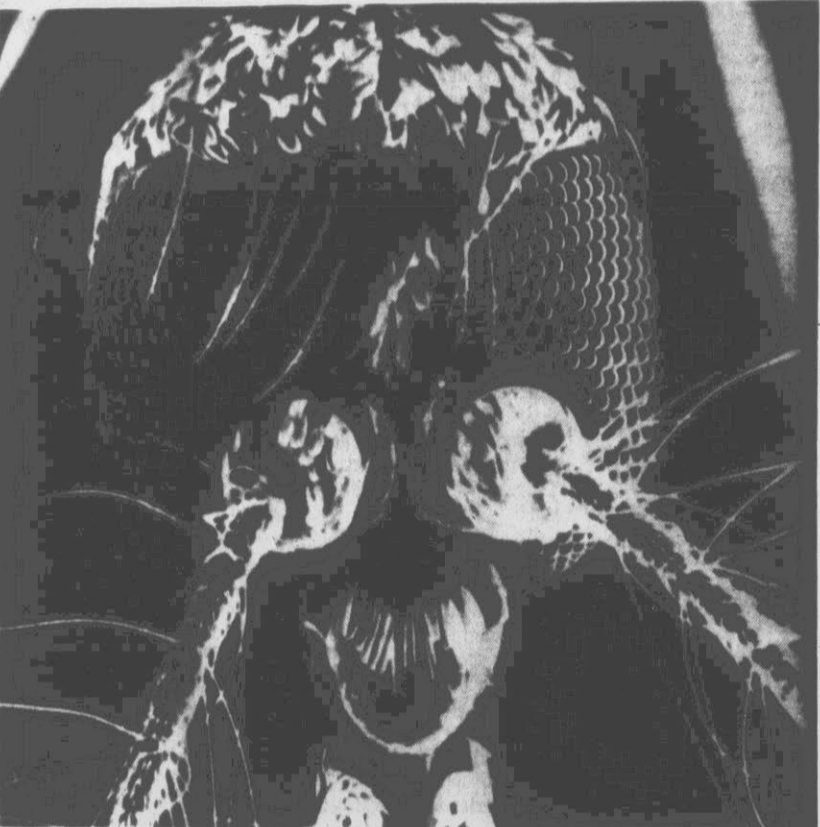

Bakke then sued, claiming he would have been admitted if 16 of the school's 100 slots had not been earmarked for minority students, many with lower test scores than his.

Bethel C-Of-C Reviews Work

The Bethel Chamber of Commerce held its "On the Move Banquet" Thursday night at Bethel Elementary School.

Chairman Bob Bowers reviewed the work of committees for the past year. The Membership Committee, under the leadership of Toby Timberlake, built the membership of the Bethel Chamber to 77, hosted two Pepsi Breaks and had many orientation sessions. The Community Development Council, led by Danny Norris, conducted a survey for a Child Care Center in Bethel, worked with the town board in establishing a recreation committee, assisted in sponsoring the Christmas parade, and served as hosts for last December's Bethel marathon.

The Political and Governmental Committee chaired by Ferrell Blount, held a political forum last fall for the local town election. This public exposure of the candidates led to a 70 percent voter turnout in fall.

The Economics and Industrial Relations Committee under Ramon Latham has been working on the Governor's Community of Excellence Award. With assistance of John Griffin of Pitt Community College, the committee has put together a slide presentation and are in the process of putting together a liveability brochure and an industrial booklet for Bethel.

The highlight of the evening was the ceremony honoring the outstanding citizen for 1982. James Dupree, vice president of the Bethel Council, presented the Outstanding Citizen of the Year Award to Walter C. Latham, principal and school teacher in the Bethel and Stokes communities for over 40 years. His last post, from which he retired in 1974, was at North Pitt High School. According to Chairman Bowers, "He has aided and touched the lives of many citizens in the Bethel community."

Guests at the banquet included Dr. J. Elliott Dixon, chairman of the Ayden Council; state Sen. Vernon White; state Rep. John Gilliam; County Commissioner Bob Martin; Robert Dunn of the Pitt County Development Commission; Doug Warren, recreation director, and Bethel Mayor Frank Hemingway.

Set Cheerleader Camp In July

ready to go all the way to Washington, D.C."

Mary Williams, a candidate for the Greenville City School Board and an active community worker, said, "My main concern is for voters rights. We've got to see that action is taken to get the right kind of voter legislation approved everywhere in this country of ours."

About 75 marchers began the crosstown march. The route was from Moyewood toward downtown along Third Street, along Elizabeth to Fifth Street, then onto 14th Street with a turn off at Pitt Street to take the group into Hopkins Park.

At the peak of the march, about 300 people had joined in, but before reaching Selvia Chapel all except about 60 dispersed as the afternoon storm moved in. This group reached its destination just before the hail storm hit.

Roundtree said 200 attended the Friday evening rally held at Selvia Chapel. "The SCLC leaders of the pilgrimage said our gathering was one of the smallest in the pilgrimage, but that we made up for it in prayer and spirit," Roundtree commented.

The "Pilgrimage to Washington, D.C." a march through five Southern states to call attention to voting rights, jobs, economic justice and peace began April 19 at Tuskegee, Ala., and Athens, Ga. Since that date, pilgrim volunteers, traveling in cars and vans have staged marches in a number of Alabama, Georgia and South Carolina towns. The first North Carolina march was held in Laurinburg on May 19. On Wednesday, the group was in Wilson, and today it scheduled a march in Williamston.

The pilgrimage schedule calls for the group to enter Virginia on June 9 with a march in Norfolk, and to arrive in Washington, D.C., on or about June 23.

Answer to yesterday's puzzle.

CRYPTOQUIP 6-4

DAMF: FNOBLAMHH OBHMSK DVCBT
 VB KXM SVFK VD FB CBNFHXT TVL

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: AN AMPLE ISTHMUS CONNECTED THE PENINSULA TO THE MAINLAND.
 Today's Cryptoquip clue: D equals F

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Report Churches Open In China

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — More than 300 Protestant churches are now reported opening and functioning in China, says the Rev. M.

Douglas Swendseid, East Asia secretary of the American Lutheran Church, on his return from a second visit there.

The number is up about 100 from a year ago. He says 250,000 Bibles were

A Puzzling Pastime

Geniuses like Brahms, Liszt, and Wagner once performed at the famous Vigado Concert Hall in Budapest, Hungary. But this weekend, the beautiful hall will host geniuses of a different sort in the first International Rubik Cube Contest. Invented by Hungarian Architecture Professor Erno Rubik in 1974, the cube is a world craze. In 1981 alone an estimated 13 million Rubik cubes were sold. Saturday, champions from 22 nations will compete for the world crown by solving three different problems as fast as possible. The American entry, Minh Tai, a Vietnamese refugee, may have to beat his U.S. championship time of 26.07 seconds to gain the coveted first prize in Budapest—a gold-plated Rubik cube.

DO YOU KNOW—How many moves are needed to solve the Rubik from any position?
THURSDAY'S ANSWER—Woodrow Wilson was the first U.S. President to visit Europe while in office.

Since he had some time to spare while on a South African business trip, Trump Coup Tommy decided to while away a few hours at the bridge club in Johannesburg. Apparently, his reputation as a bumbling incompetent, except when faced with a trump stack, had not preceded him; otherwise, East would never have doubled Tommy in four hearts.

As usual, Tommy botched the auction—he would have done better to pass three no trump. His mild fit for partner's suit suggested that nine tricks in no trump might be collected easily if either red suit lay favorably. But Tommy was not the sort to put a six-card major suit down in the dummy—he insisted on being declarer.

West led the king of clubs, and Tommy won in dummy. He led the nine of hearts, intending to run it if East played low. Since his double had given away the location of the trumps, East put up his king. Tommy won the ace and led a low diamond to the queen. When that held, he returned the five of hearts, covered by the seven and won by the eight. Next came a diamond and, when West produced the king, Tommy ducked!

Since he could not afford to return a spade, West continued with the queen of clubs. Tommy ruffed, led a diamond to the ace and continued with the jack of clubs. Since Tommy would have discarded a spade if he did not ruff, East trumped low. But he was only postponing the inevitable.

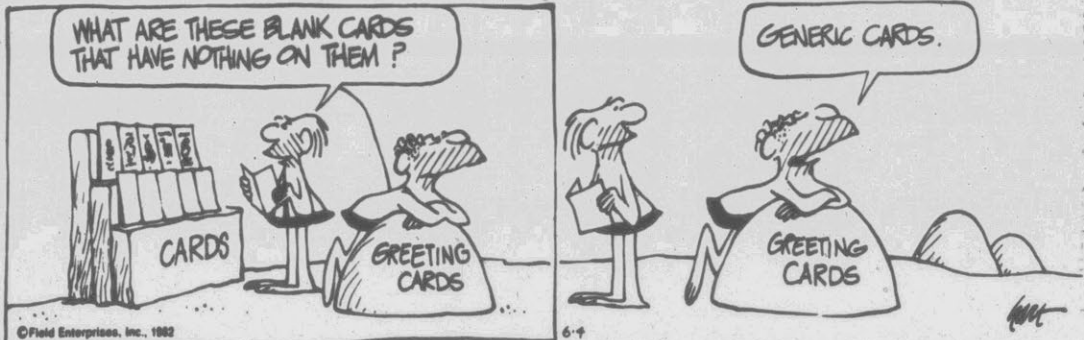

Declarer overruffed, crossed back to dummy with the king of spades and led a good diamond. East's goose was cooked. If he declined to ruff, declarer would discard his spade loser and still be in dummy to lead another diamond. If East ruffed low, his second trump trick would published in China in 1981 and 600,000 to 700,000 are expected to be published in 1982. He says Chinese church leaders report some tightening of controls in Bible distribution because of recent activities by Bible smugglers from the outside.
