

School Board Sets Summer School Fees

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

Fees for summer school classes and the low bid for construction of a metal building at Rose High were approved by the members of the Greenville City School Board at its information meeting Monday night.

The fees for summer classes for students in grades 7, 8 and 9, to be held at Aycock Junior High, are $30 per course or $60 for the full offering of language, art and math. The summer course at Aycock is for four weeks, June 14-July 9.

The fee for the six weeks of summer school, June 21 to July 30, at Rose High is $60 per student. Summer courses to be offered at Rose will depend on the interest shown by students. Courses can only be offered for which a sufficient number of students enroll.

Except for the 90 students who have already indicated they will enroll for the summer driver education program, all other courses must be self-sustaining, with tuition fees to pay for the teacher's salary for the summer session.

Superintendent Delma Blinson explained that there are no local or state funds earmarked for offering summer classes. If funds from state remediation resources are available, they can be used to supplement the summer program. There are no scholarship or assistance funds for students who may wish to attend summer school but who are unable to pay.

"Under the present system, summer school is a touch-and-go situation. It's a real mess," Dr. Blinson commented. "The only real solution to the problem is some type of tax appropriation to underwrite the program so that we could be able to manage it without the present difficulties."

Eastern Construction Co. was the accepted low bidder at $49,500 for the base bid for the mechanics-graphics arts building to be constructed at Rose High School. Six companies submitted bids on the building, with the high bid at $57,600. Approval of the bid entails a stipulation by the board that action be taken at a later date to add brick walls to the exterior of the building.

In awarding a base bid of $49,500, this leaves $35,500 to finish the building to include heat and ventilation, electrical and plumbing installation, paneling the inside of exterior walls, painting, and installation of interior walls to provide classrooms, offices, a darkroom and storerooms.

The building is due to be completed in time for use in the 1982-83 school year.

Reagan Is Cheered In Parliament Talk

ADDRESSES PARLIAMENT — With two Yeomen of the Guard standing behind him, President Ronald Reagan addresses members of both houses of the British Parliament at London's Westminster Hall today. (AP Laserphoto)

LONDON (AP) — President Reagan won cheers from members of Parliament today for a ringing defense of Britain's fight for the Falkland Islands and a challenge to Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev to address

Americans on television, on condition that "he will allow me the same opportunity with the Soviet people."

Reagan also publicly urged Israel to "bring its forces home" from Lebanon. But he offered Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin some succor in the war against Palestinian guerrillas by saying, "We must all work to stamp out the scourge of terrorism that in the Middle East makes war an ever-present threat."

Proposing a worldwide promotional campaign for liberty and democracy, Reagan offered Brezhnev television exposure in the United States and suggested a periodic exchange of television news commentary, to invite Soviet participation in a peaceful "competition for ideas and values."

Such an exchange of television speeches by U.S. and Soviet leaders would renew a practice established by Brezhnev and former President Nixon, who made an unprecedented address broadcast from the Kremlin after a summit meeting in Moscow in May 1972.

Brezhnev was accorded the same privilege when he spoke from Nixon's California home at San Clemente during his visit to the United States in June 1973. Nixon spoke again on Soviet radio and television after his final Moscow summit in July 1974.

Reagan addressed parliamentarians in the 120-year-old Royal Gallery of the Houses of Parliament, speaking from a blue-

Two MiGs Said Downed PLO Says 60,000 Israeli Moved In

By The Associated Press
Israeli jets shot down two Syrian MiGs over the Galilee region of northern Israel today and two more MiGs in dogfights over Damour, 10 miles south of Beirut. Israeli commandos battled north along the Mediterranean coastal highway toward Damour and Israeli warships shelled the Palestinian stronghold.

Palestinian broadcasts claimed 60,000 Israeli troops were now in Lebanon and that they controlled the 50 miles of highway running from the border north to Damour. U.N. officials said five Israeli brigades plus commando units were in Lebanon. An Israeli brigade numbers about 3,500 men.

The intrusion of the MiGs over Galilee, as well as indications that Syrian artillery batteries were shelling Israeli forces inside Lebanon, marked a major escalation of Syrian involvement in the hostilities.

Israel launched a massive invasion Sunday to drive Palestinian forces out of southern Lebanon and prevent PLO artillery from shelling northern Israeli settlements. The Israeli government calls the operation "Peace for Galilee."

The flight of the MiGs over Galilee was the first incursion into Israeli airspace by Arab forces since the 1973 war. The Tel Aviv command said the MiGs were downed by Israeli interceptors, and an Israel radio correspondent said the MiGs apparently were trying to attack an Israeli army convoy in southern Lebanon.

The Tel Aviv command also said its jets downed two Syrian MiGs in northern Lebanon. The Syrian command in Damascus confirmed two of its MiGs were downed in dogfights over Damour, and claimed an Israeli Skyhawk also was shot down. Israel denied any of its planes was hit.

Another Syrian communique said Israeli jets and artillery blasted the Syrian-controlled Lebanese town of Jezzine, killing 20 civilians in the predominantly Christian town. Jezzine is about 12 miles east of Sidon.

The communique said "battles there are still going on at this minute," suggesting that Syrian positions also were shelling the Israelis.

In another development, the Lebanese government announced electricity would be rationed because the power plant in the coastal town of Jiye, 14 miles south of Beirut, was bombed out of action by Israeli forces. The Jiye plant supplied 50 percent of Beirut's electricity, and under the rationing system, nine-hour blackouts were imposed on a rotating basis throughout Lebanon.

In London, President Reagan said in a speech to Parliament that "the fighting in Lebanon on the part of all parties must stop and Israel should bring its forces home. It was Reagan's first call for an Israeli withdrawal, although Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. had done so earlier.

Israel's announced goal was to push the Palestinians back at least 25 miles so their artillery and rockets could no longer hit northern Israel.

Investment Earnings Told To County Board

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer
County finance officer Margaret Roberts told the Pitt Board of Commissioners Monday that by the end of the fiscal year — June 30 — the county will have earned more than $562,300 on investments during the past 12 months.

Mrs. Roberts said the bulk of the money, some $463,800, will have been earned through the investment of general fund revenues, while more than $48,200 will have been earned through the investment of revenue sharing funds and another $50,300 will have been made through investment of revenue bond

Housing Authority To Use Contract System

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer
An amendment to the Housing Authority's procurement and disposition policy to enable the agency to use the state purchasing contract in buying needed items was approved Monday night.

Commissioners endorsed utilization of the state contract as a means of saving money in purchasing a variety of items, including office supplies.

Ken Noland, director of operations, said the purchasing contract was discussed at a recent seminar and data was presented which indicated the potential savings that could be realized through contract buying.

Noland said the state has its data stored on microfiche cards and in order to be able to access the information a reader will have to be acquired at a cost of from $150 to $175. Commissioners approved the purchase of a microfiche reader.

Executive director Joe Laney said the authority will not desert the local market and commission member Roscoe King said he would like to see the agency buy as much as possible in the community. Laney said the state contract gives the authority another bargaining tool in making needed purchases.

Noland reported that the

Four County Commissioner Candidates At Forum

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer
Four of six candidates for the Ayden-Grifton-Swift Creek townships seat on the Pitt County Board of Commissioners appeared at a Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce candidates forum this morning.

Responding to questions posed by the chamber were Elliott Dixon, Ronald Garris, Robert Halstead and Charles McLawhorn. Candidates Walter Gaskins and Walter Bruce Jones did not attend the session.

The six men are seeking the seat on the board now held by B. Alton Gardner who, after more than 27 years on the board, is not seeking re-election.

Chamber member Tim Rosche, moderator of the forum, said questions posed to the candidates concerned their position on meetings of the Board of Commissioners that are more accessible to the public, the merger of the city and county school systems, industrial development and county support for Sheppard Memorial Library and the Greenville rescue service.

Garris, who told the gathering, "I'm a plain ole country boy," responded to all four questions by saying, "I'm open-minded to anything and anything is subject to change."

He added that he favors growth, "but not at the expense of the people. Let it be for the people."

Dixon responded by saying he would support a "more convenient time," for commissioners' meetings, which normally begin at 10 a.m.

He suggested board meetings start at "4 or 4:30 p.m." break for supper, then continue with an "evening session," which would be more convenient for county residents.

As for combining the two school systems, Dixon said he has "not looked at merger," but suggested a "task force or committee" be established "to lay out a plan of merger ... see all the details ... then decide."

The candidate noted that, in his opinion, the Pitt County Development Commission "has not been funded at an adequate level," and suggested that the county "make a long term commitment to industrial development."

Dixon also said there is a need for adequate library and rescue service, suggesting that county funding should be based on use by county residents.

"I don't see a problem" with the commissioners' 10 a.m. meeting, Halstead said. "I didn't realize there was this much problem. I'd be willing to have three or four meetings during the year at a more convenient time."

A member of the Pitt County Board of Education, Halstead said he "opposed merger" efforts because of a "duty to support the wishes of my constituents," but noted that, if elected to the Board of Commissioners, he would support a merger of the two systems "if I see the need."

He explained that his opposition to merger as a school board member also involved the questions of loss

COACH DAVE ODOM announces he'll be leaving ECU.

Odom Going To Virginia

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
David Odom, for the past three years head basketball at East Carolina University, resigned his position this morning to take a post on the staff of the University of Virginia.

Odom had been offered the job by Virginia head coach Terry Holland a little over a week ago, and decided to accept it over the weekend.

The coach said his resignation would become effective June 30, but that he would remain as an unpaid working consultant to the program until the end of the second session of summer school.

Athletic Director Dr. Ken Karr said that an evaluation of the basketball program would be conducted, and that a decision on how to proceed in the selection of a new coach would be decided in about two weeks.

"Since we have the good fortune of having Dave with us until around August 1, I would feel that this might be the deadline for dealing with all our options," Karr said.

"My decision was made after much consideration was given to the people that it affected and to the two fine universities involved," Odom said in a prepared statement.

"I want to sincerely thank those people at East Carolina that have supported me and helped make my three years in Greenville years that my family and I will always remember with a special fondness. I can in all honesty say that the administration, and I want to stress this, and the staff at ECU have always strived to provide me with the tools to be successful," he continued, adding that the entire athletic staff had been helpful and that he was glad for the opportunity for having worked with them.

"I feel that I did receive total backing from the university, alumni, fans, and Eastern North Carolina. I appreciate everything that was done in my behalf. I could not ask for more."

Odom came to East Carolina three years ago following the two-year tenure of Larry Gillman, fired two years into his three-year contract. East Carolina was later placed on a one-year probation because of recruiting irregularities during the Gillman reign.

Prior to coming here, Odom had served for two years on the staff of Carl Tacy at Wake Forest University, and for six years before that, had been head basketball coach at Durham High School, where he won coach of the year honors three times. In 1976, he was chosen to coach the U.S. all-stars in the McDonald's Classic, but declined because of state high school association rules.

In addition to his basketball duties at Durham, he also, served tenures as

Debbie Bell of the Therapeutic Recreation Department of Pitt County Memorial Hospital says response to the Hotline appeal for craft materials has been "great!" She adds that she is interested in contacting an anonymous donor who left craft items Monday morning. Among the items, left almost surely accidentally, she said, were two pictures of the same little girl. In one she was posed with Santa Claus; in the other, with the Easter Bunny. Miss Bell asked that the owner of the pictures contact her, 757-4445, or go by and pick them up from her office.

Persons 13 to 18 who're interested in volunteer service to the residents of Greenville on a regularly scheduled basis and in gaining experience in nursing and social work activities are asked to contact Terry Fuller, 758-4121 as soon as possible. "There is fun and knowledge to be shared between young and old," she said.

NEEDLEPOINT A BASKET

A tisket, a tasket, needlepoint a basket ... and you'll have one of the brightest new ideas in pocketbooks for summer or fall. This roomy basket — the newest of Pat's Learn-a-Stitch projects — is easily made with plastic canvas and nylon needlecraft yarns.

In addition to complete stitch diagrams and construction details, the leaflet also features full monogram charts. Make one or more for yourself and then get a head start on your Christmas list with bags for all of your favorite friends.

To obtain directions for making the monogrammed Basket Bag, send your request for Leaflet No. NP-5040 with $1 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Pat Trexler ("The Daily Reflector"), P.O. Box 810, North Myrtle Beach, S.C. 29582.

Or you can order Kit No. KN-5040 by sending a check or money order for $13.50 to Pat Trexler at the same address. Please specify your choice of the following color combinations: moss green with sunny yellow (designer's choice); brown with soft orange; burgundy with pink; navy with sky blue. If you prefer, you may request white instead of any of the second colors listed. The price includes shipping charges.

Pattern stitchery adds new dimensions to needlepoint regardless of the type of canvas or project. Even traditional pillows or pictures gain from the imaginative use of decorative stitch borders or backgrounds.

One example of a rather unique border stitch is the eight-point star — also known as Canterbury Cross. As on all such stitch charts, the lines of the graph represent the threads of the canvas and the blank squares represent the holes of the canvas.

To work this stitch, bring the needle up in Hole #1, count down and to the left diagonally over two canvas threads and take the needle down in the first hole near the top of the chart that is marked with a little square box. The stitch direction is shown by the solid dark lines. Continue around in the same way, bringing the needle up in a numbered hole and following the stitch direction as shown, keeping in the numbered sequence.

Only the first 11 stitches are numbered, but the remaining stitches are worked the same as the first 11, as shown on the chart. The "wiggly" lines on the chart show how a second pattern repeat joins the first one.

One full pattern repeat covers 12 canvas threads. Thus, you can use this as a geometric border any time that you have a multiple of 12 threads along all edges. In other words, if the border area contains 48 canvas threads in one direction and 60 canvas threads in the other direction, this would fit perfectly as both are evenly divisible by 12.

This can also be used as an overall geometric design best started in the middle of the canvas, centering the first Canterbury Cross and then adding others at all points. When a number of these are worked as an overall design, you will have a blank square of eight canvas threads in the space between each group of four Crosses. This eight-thread square can then be filled in with tent stitches or a variety of pattern stitches.

While I try to give you as much instructional help as possible in this column, it is always easier to teach in person. When and where to hold needlepoint workshops, however, was a dilemma for me until I had an idea while vacationing last February in Hawaii.

In between golfing, swimming, eating and loafing, I was — of course — stitching. Other tourists always gathered around and wanted to know what I was making and how it was done, so I found myself teaching informally almost daily. The thought then struck me that this was an ideal place to hold needlepoint classes — away from all the usual distractions.

Since then, I have been working on lesson plans and have made arrangements with the Sheraton Resort Hotel at Kala Koi on the island of Molokai to hold a week-long seminar there next February for beginning and intermediate level needlepointers. If you think you would like to participate, write to me at P.O. Box 810, North Myrtle Beach, S.C. 29582 and I will send you the details.

Dear Abby

Judge Frees Himself From Chain-Smoking

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am a 70-year-old retired municipal judge from the Philippines. Ten years ago I suffered a serious heart attack. I had been a chain smoker for nearly 40 years, averaging four packs of cigarettes a day. My physician ordered me to stop smoking. I objected vehemently, promising to cut down but not quit entirely.

In 1979, when I was strong enough to travel, my wife and I came to the U.S.A. On Nov. 18, 1981, I read in your column in the Long Beach (Calif.) Press-Telegram:

"Tomorrow will mark the Fifth Annual Great American Smokeout, a good-humored, upbeat, one-day campaign to encourage smokers to give up cigarettes for 24 hours — just to prove to themselves that they can. It's the brainchild of the American Cancer Society, which insists that anyone who can live without a cigarette for 24 hours can quit forever. So if you are hooked on cigarettes and have been meaning to quit, why not start tomorrow — for just 24 hours? It won't be easy, but I promise you it will be the best present you can give yourself and those who love you."

I decided to give it a try. I quit for one day, then another, and another, and I have not touched a cigarette since! The cough and chest pains I used to have have stopped, and I no longer crave a cigarette.

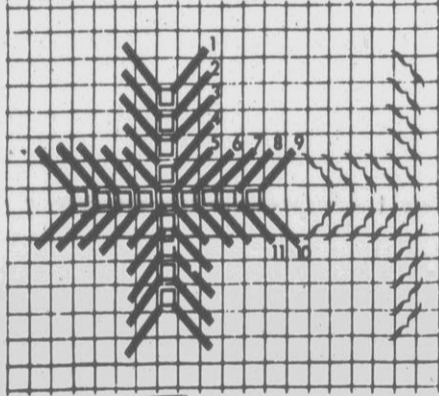

I wish I could personally thank you for this, for if I could, I would not only shake your hands firmly, but would kiss them as well as a sincere manifestation of my appreciation and gratitude. You may use my name.

JUDGE JOSE L. COLLADO

DEAR JUDGE: Your letter is more than sufficient thanks for me. And if there are other readers who quit smoking on the Great American Smokeout Day, I want to hear from you!

CONFIDENTIAL TO MY READERS: If a member of your family has been diagnosed as "mentally ill" and is living at home, please write and tell me what problems this has created for you. Your firsthand experiences are needed for an important mental health study.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

Sometimes I think women are their own worst enemies. Take pregnancy. Please.

To be "with child" used to get you a seat on the bus, a pillow for your back, 30 days in bed watching soap operas following the birth, and 10 years of intense guilt for your husband.

For more than half a century, we had a good thing going for us. Then, one by one, our benefits began to tumble. Pregnancy isn't the fun time it used to be. As the list of no-nos keeps getting longer, so does the list of yes-yesses.

You can't smoke because it's harmful to the baby and to you, but you can do aerobics.

You can't drink alcohol because of the potential danger to the fetus, but you can work up to the last day.

You can't indulge yourself by eating because the delivery can be difficult, but it's all right to jog. You can't shop for clothes because nothing fits, but you can get into a swimsuit and do three miles every morning. Even coffee drinking is a no-no, but you can play tennis.

I don't know when someone figured out that exercise and fresh air were compatible with pregnancy, but women's lives haven't been the same since.

Personally, there's nothing I loved any more in my 11th month than a good volleyball game, but some women have gone overboard.

Mary Bacon, a jockey, gave birth to a daughter soon after riding her third horse of the day.

Wendy Boglioli, the Olympic swim champion, was in her fifth month of pregnancy when she competed in the 100-yard freestyle at the American Amateur Athletic Union meet.

Andrea Mead Lawrence won two gold medals in Alpine hours and five minutes near the end of her eighth month of pregnancy.

Okay, so times have changed. Let women pump iron, run 10 K's, play four sets of tennis, deliver twins at lunch, and hike a mountain before the sun sets.

Von Bulow Wins Stay From Term

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — A state Supreme Court justice has saved Claus von Bulow from beginning the 30-year prison term he faces on convictions of twice trying to murder his heiress wife. Von Bulow, 55, spent about an hour in the custody of Newport County sheriffs Monday after Newport Superior Court Judge Thomas H. Needham revoked his $1-million bail because the socialite had failed to submit a list of $900,000 in assets as a condition for freedom pending an appeal of the convictions.

But defense lawyer John F. Sheehan quickly won a stay of the revocation from state Supreme Court Justice Florence K. Murray, who freed von Bulow until the high court could settle arguments about the conditions of his bail. Von Bulow has been free on $100,000 cash bail on his March 16 conviction of twice trying to kill Martha "Sunny" von Bulow with insulin injections during Christmas visits to their Newport estate in 1979 and 1980. Mrs. von Bulow has been in a coma at a New York City hospital since the second alleged attempt on her life.

His lawyers are contesting a requirement that the Danish-born financial consultant make an additional $900,000 in assets available for the state to claim if his appeal is rejected and he fails to surrender to begin his prison term. The appeal might not be decided for two years.

"The problem is that we don't want to tie up those assets, stocks or securities or whatever, for two years," Sheehan said.

Von Bulow had until Monday to submit an acceptable list of valuables, either in personal goods or corporate stocks and bonds.

Candidates' Promises

Former President Carter, speaking at a convention, said he knew the refusal of Iran to return the U.S. hostages meant that he would be defeated by Ronald Reagan.

"Rosalynn and I both knew that there was no chance for me to be re-elected," he said in a talk to the American Booksellers Association.

Carter, who will soon be publishing his memoirs, made it clear that the hostage situation was a major concern to him.

"The capture of the hostages ... began the worst year of my life," he said. He noted he had advice ranging from returning the shah to Iran to "dropping an atomic bomb on Tehran."

But he felt that he made the correct decisions. If he had taken military action "I think the hostages would be dead today," he said.

Certainly the Iranian hostage situation was a time of agony for the president and, indeed, for the entire nation. If Carter is blaming his defeat on that impasse, however, he is ignoring other difficulties which contributed to his defeat.

As a candidate Carter had promised much for the future of the nation. Instead, we found ourselves with rapidly rising energy costs and a soaring inflation rate. That left the public disgruntled. If the nation had been in more stable economic times, we think the public would have forgiven the hostage situation. Indeed, the public was supportive of the administration's efforts at the time.

It is in the nature of American politics, however, to promise much during a campaign. Reality sets in after a candidate becomes president and things have to be dealt with as they are.

If it is any consolation to former President Carter, his successor also held out great economic hopes. He hasn't delivered and the consequences are setting in.

LIKE HE NEVER LEFT HOME!

Angered By Tip O'Neill

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — In a meeting with House Republican leaders that lasted over one hour, President Reagan dropped his good-guy posture and vented his intense personal dissatisfaction with Speaker Thomas P. (Tip) O'Neill.

The congressmen were surprised to hear Reagan personally blame O'Neill for the embarrassment he faced on the eve of his European grand tour. The president attacked the speaker as responsible for no budget resolution passing. Reagan took that failure personally because of its coincidence with his departure for Europe.

A footnote: Supply-siders at the meeting — led by Reps. Ed Bethune of Arkansas and Jack Kemp of New York — came away with mixed results. They got Reagan to declare he was committed only to one year of deficit-reducing tax increases. But they could not convince the president to junk the deficit-expanding economic assumptions of David Stockman's Office of Management and Budget.

No Mideast Summit
Despite Reagan administration efforts, a proposed Mideast summit conference in Washington between President Reagan, Egyptian president Hosni Mubarak and Israeli prime minister Menachem Begin never got out of the planning stage.

High administration officials, including Secretary of State Alexander Haig, were looking for some way to break the Egyptian-Israeli deadlock on West Bank autonomy talks. Bringing Mubarak here to join a previously-planned meeting between Reagan and Begin looked promising. It seemed a way out of Israel's refusal to hold the next autonomy session anywhere other than Jerusalem and Mubarak's refusal to hold it anywhere except Jerusalem.

Begin told the U.S. he would be glad to meet Mubarak here, but then added, gratuitously in the view of State Department officials, this caveat: No meeting in Washington can weaken Israel's insistence on holding the next autonomy session in Jerusalem. For his part, Mubarak feared getting mousetrapped by the Israelis and the Americans during the Washington summit in a way that might veto his refusal to go to Jerusalem.

No For Miami
The Democrats may hold their 1984 national convention in Miami, site of the 1968 and 1972 Republican conventions, thanks to an intervention by militant feminist Eleanor Smeal.

Democratic leaders veto holding their convention in any state that has not ratified the Equal Rights Amendment (ERA). That rules out Chicago. But Smeal has given a dispensation to Miami because of unanimous Miami City Council support for ERA, even though Florida has not ratified the amendment. In the opinion of Democratic insiders, that puts Miami in first place for '84.

A footnote: Democratic national chairman Charles T. Manatt would prefer holding the convention in his home state of California. But Los Angeles will be busy with the 1984 Olympics, and San Francisco has no suitable convention hall.

Dole's Role
A Sunday evening telephone call from President Reagan laid it squarely on the line to Sen. Bob Dole: Mr. Chairman, while I'm away in Europe, please protect and defend the third-year tax cut with your very life!

Finance Committee chairman Dole needed no such advice. He told Reagan sentiment was hardening on Capitol Hill in favor of the 10 percent, third-year cut in marginal rates for individual income taxpayers. Moreover, White House aides agree with Dole that the political impact of the second-year, 10 percent cut, starting July 1, would further reinforce congressional reluctance to repeal or delay the third year.

Dole's committee is expected to attach $95 billion in new taxes to the pending increase in the debt ceiling. But the third-year tax cut most definitely will not be salvaged in order to reach $95 billion.

THIS AFTERNOON

Expects Turnover

By PAUL T. O'CONNOR
RALEIGH — North Carolina's incumbent county commissioners can expect to take a beating at the polls this year, a lobbyist for the N.C. Association of County Commissioners said recently.

Patrice Rosler told a conference sponsored by the N.C. Center for Public Policy Research that she expects an unusual amount of turnover in county commissioner ranks this year. Each election usually sees about 30 percent of the incumbents leave office through either retirement or defeat, she said. This year, expect that rate to be higher, although she didn't have a precise estimate.

There are two reasons, she said. Commissioners are catching heat from both directions. Anti-government sentiment continues to run strong. People who feel government is doing a poor job, who say taxes are too high and government too big are lambasting incumbent commissioners. A good number of taxpayer groups have been formed this year.

On the other side, people who have found their benefits reduced through federal and state budget cutting are likely to vent their anger at the incumbent commissioners. Since counties deliver many of these services, counties must notify people that they're no longer going to receive the benefits. Some people won't understand that the cutting was done at a higher level and they'll blame the commissioners. Others will blame the commissioners for not doing more to continue services.

The combination of concerns has led to local races which are far more bitter in tone than usual, she said.

Ms. Rosler painted a budgetary picture for counties this year that may make many of the election losers feel like winners. On top of all the upheaval created by last year's federal and state budget cuts comes the congressional difficulties with passing a budget for next year. As counties put their budgets together this month for the fiscal year starting July 1, commissioners are making a lot of assumptions that may turn out to be erroneous.

A typical county budget in North Carolina consists of 25 percent federal money. Another 12 percent is state money. The commissioners are guessing, right now, about how much federal money they can expect to receive for certain programs. If they guess wrong, there'll be political mayhem with programs getting cut in mid-year and budgets being

ing, rather than eliminating, programs, she said. Ms. Rosler contacted all 100 counties and received responses from 53. She asked where they are cutting back and found that most county decisions are being made in the area of Title XX social service programs.

For example, the chore worker program which provides in-home housecleaning and help to people unable to fend for themselves, is not being eliminated. But chore workers are being laid off. The remaining workers spread the extra work out further and spend less time at each home.

Cuts were also made in daycare centers. She knew of no center being closed but administrative personnel were laid off. With these cuts, she expects counties to face greater demands for service to the indigent and with that comes the inevitable rise in tax rates on July 1.

Surplus Cheese, Butter

WASHINGTON — On May 5 Secretary of Agriculture John R. Block announced his big cheese-and-butter plan. A month later, it seems unhappily evident that the plan has laid a large egg. On Capitol Hill, where politics is thicker than whipping cream, few members are disposed to take on the dairy lobby.

Yet something has to be done before a taxpayers' rebellion arises, and both Block and his farm constituency know it. The story offers a classic example of the maxim that nothing fails like success. The present price-support law has succeeded so marvelously in increasing dairy production that the surpluses add up to a political and economic failure.

As recently as fiscal '79, government purchases of dairy products amounted to $49 million. In the current '82 fiscal year, purchases will amount to $2 billion. Unless the present law is amended, the next three years will see more than $6 billion paid out.

And for what? What does the government get for these billions? The Commodity Credit Corporation winds up with millions of pounds of dairy products expensively stored in refrigerated warehouses and in the cool caves of Kansas. By Oct. 1, despite Block's best efforts to get rid of the stuff, the taxpayers will own 445 million pounds of butter, 818 million pounds of cheese and 1.2 billion pounds of non-fat dry milk.

It sounds absurd and it is absurd. What about the starving children of Bangladesh? Block would give it away, but the law won't let him. What is known as Public Law 480 now forbids the kind of disruption in world markets that such a giveaway would provoke.

How about giving the stuff to our own poor folks? Even here there is a limit to free distribution. Block announced on May 30 that the CCC would give away 50 million pounds of surplus butter before the end of the year — about two pounds each to 25 million families — but new purchases in this same period will produce no net reduction in the surplus stocks. In this race between the government and the milk producers, it is like Alice in Wonderland: Block has to run as fast as he can to stay in the same place.

Barring action from Congress, the lunacy can only get worse. The present price support of $13.10 per hundredweight will be succeeded on Oct. 1 by a new price of $14. A year later the law requires a price support of $14.60. Any schoolboy could predict the consequences: More cows, more milk, more purchases by the CCC, more discontent among the taxpayers who recognize folly when they see it.

Block's plan, identified as the Emergency Dairy Adjustment Act of 1982, would vest discretionary authority in the secretary of agriculture to reduce the price-support levels. In his statement last month, Block promised that, if granted this authority, he would make no change prior to Jan. 1. At that time, he would not cut the price to a level below $12. The effect, he hopes, would be to encourage a gradual 10 percent reduction in dairy herds. A couple of years down the road, producers might be milking a

To the editor:

I'm not sure how many people are familiar with the Regional Rehabilitation Center that is part of Pitt Memorial Hospital. It is a portion of the hospital (I understand there are only four or five in the state) that is set up to handle the care of stroke victims, and other people who have lost the use of a limb through some unfortunate accident. Their positive program and attitude is formulated to return the individual as much as possible into the mainstream of life.

I have just had a very personal experience with the Rehabilitation Center in the care of my mother who experienced a stroke on the 7th of March. After her stroke she could barely move her right arm and leg, in addition to experiencing speech and eyesight difficulty. She has just completed a 10-week stay in this center, where she daily was involved in a very professionally organized and directed program of physical therapy, occupational therapy, recreational therapy and speech therapy. We all expect good care in a hospital, but no one could possibly expect the complete dedication, interest, encouragement, support and attention that was always visible from the Rehabilitation Center staff.

My mother is 87 and is now able to walk some with help, move her right arm, speak more clearly and is generally on her way to a physical recovery that will allow her to ultimately return to her home. This would not have been possible without an intensive effort by the Rehabilitation staff. Pitt County, and, indeed, the entire East, are fortunate to have this type of medical facility staffed with such dedicated personnel.

To the editor:

I see where those doxy Senators — some of whom had just emerged furtively from a hiding place in the darkened Chapel — girded on their collective machismo and declared that while Motherhood and Womanhood were ok, Women had better stay in their Place and not try to claim equality, under the law, with their menfolks.

One of the Senators announced on television that he himself in person had served on the front lines or in some other such dangerous place during the last war and that, by God, he wouldn't have wanted a woman there beside him at the time, with hell bustin' loose and all.

But I think that if he had got hungry, and the woman had come crawling up from the rear with a mess of collards, mashed potatoes, hot corn bread and apple pie that she had fixed for him in the rocket's red glare; and with some clean underwear that she had washed and mended for him by the dawn's early light — why he might not have minded her presence there so much after all, bombs bursting in air notwithstanding. Just so she stayed in her Place.

The fact is, of course, that the proposed ERA didn't say anything about the front line or any other line except, by implication, the dividing line between equality and inequality. Maybe you women out there who think you're equal had better stop voting for those men who think you're not. Otherwise, those gallant defenders of Womanhood, but not of Women, are bound to keep right on thinking that you're Just Plain Dumb.

Strength For Today

FORGIVENESS

A psychiatrist was speaking. "Almost everyone with whom we deal in mental institutions," he said, "is overwhelmed with a sense of guilt. Sixty to seventy percent of all our patients would walk out of mental institutions tomorrow if they could be relieved of that sense of guilt."

The sense of guilt is probably no stronger today than it has been in the past. People then as well as now have felt it settling down upon them at some time, and many have carried it through life — an awful burden indeed.

The gospel, or the good news, has promised hope and release from guilt when people accept on faith the assurance of the Word of God that, through Jesus Christ, the heavenly Father has offered forgiveness to all men and women. The only people who will not be forgiven are those who believe that they have nothing for which to be forgiven. All who want forgiveness may have it. The only requirements are repentance and faith. — Elisha Douglass

Think Before Making A Call

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Ma Bell is in a snit about the way her flock of customers is being treated by some overseas hotels. They're padding the bills on international phone calls, she says.

Upholstering might better describe the practice. According to AT&T, parent of the great Bell family of phone companies (over which the fictitious Ma "presides") says surcharges range up to 300 percent.

The company also says it is fed up with the practice because, among other things, it loses millions of dollars a year when Americans traveling abroad believe rates are too high for them to call home.

And they do. The company's director of correspondent relations, one of the fellows who deals with foreign phone companies, says the surcharges account for about 90 percent of complaints made to him.

He cites these examples: —A traveler who made a $22 call from West Berlin to Philadelphia, and then found when checking out that he was billed $60 by the hotel.

—A guest who complained to a Paris hotel when billed $90 for two $7.50 calls, and was told the $75 surcharge covered the cost of phone equipment and staffing the switchboard with multilingual operators.

—A Swiss hotel that "reportedly" has netted $35,000 a year in surcharges.

"Some modest charges are reasonable," said the PR representative. It is true, he said, that hotels in recent years have had to pay for more modern equipment and that they must have a multilingual staff.

"But they have made a profit center out of the switchboard," he complained.

In most instances, he said, the traveler has no idea he is being billed by the hotel at far above its actual costs.

"When you get your bill you learn about it for the first time, and it isn't broken out as a surcharge," he said.

Burdened with luggage, and racing to make connections, the customer is in no position to argue very long.

"When there is time for indignation," he said, "the hotel cashier smilingly explains that the service fee is standard hotel practice. Complain to the manager and he says the same thing."

While such surcharges might be standard in many overseas hotels, they are not customary in the United States, and that makes Americans particularly vulnerable to the practice.

So bothersome has the practice become that AT&T assigned a director — that's one step below vice president — to come up with a solution. E.E. Carr, the director, designed what is now called Teleplan.

Teleplan is an agreement with overseas hotels to set moderate surcharges and a fixed maximum, regardless of the length of the call. That latter consideration, the call's length, is important, since many of the offending hotels continue to surcharge by the minute.

Teleplan agreements recently were arranged with Comfort Hotels in United Kingdom, France and Netherlands; Inter-Hotels Switzerland; Novotel Hotels in Germany and Austria; Mandarin International in the Far East; and the Panama National Hotel Association.

Similar agreements to limit telephone surcharges already are in effect with the hotel associations of Ireland, Israel and Portugal; Hilton International Hotels worldwide; Marriott Hotels; Golden Tulip Hotels Holland; The Lygon Arms in England; and the Ledra in Cyprus.

At non-Teleplan hotels, advises AT&T, you may avoid big charges by briefly calling home — most surcharges are based on length of call, so the bill will be relatively small — and asking them to call you.

And though AT&T didn't say it, you can save even more by just not calling at all.

European Ratings

President Reagan, on his first trip to Europe since he took office, will probably receive a more sympathetic reception than he would have six months ago. According to a U.S. government poll, about 60 percent of Europeans believe Reagan is "sincere" in his arms control plans. About the same percentage believe Soviet President Brezhnev to be "insincere." Experts believe that Reagan's recent peace proposals have helped dispel his militaristic image, while Russia's role in Poland's repression has reinforced the negative image of Brezhnev. But not all Europeans are happy with the President. Some Labour Party members have threatened to boycott Reagan's scheduled address to the British Parliament today.

Teachers Oppose Pay Freeze

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Almost 2,500 angry public school teachers marched Monday to urge state legislators to preserve scheduled salary increases while Equal Rights Amendment supporters tried to design a plan to salvage ERA.

The teachers, members of the North Carolina Association of Educators, rallied at the association headquarters in downtown Raleigh and marched eight blocks to the Legislative Building. After a protest there, the group marched to the Governor's Mansion. Gov. Jim Hunt did not appear.

Hunt, with the support of legislative budget leaders, has proposed cancelling scheduled raises for merit and added pay steps for the coming year. The move would save $90 million.

"We know what it means, and we are not willing to accept a cut in our pay," NCAE President John I. Wilson told the crowd.

Some teachers waved signs saying, "Freeze Gov. Hunt and All His Turkeys," "Hunt Uses N.C. For D.C.," and "Dedication Won't Pay the Light Bill." At one point in the march they sang, "We're going to hang Jim Hunt from the sour apple tree."

In the legislative gallery, teachers chanted, "Freeze, Freeze, Freeze," and "Vote You Out," as soon as lawmakers adjourned.

The NCAE endorsed Hunt for governor in 1976 and 1980. In a letter to Wilson, Hunt said a deep recession, high unemployment and lagging state tax revenues had caused a budget shortfall that made the freeze necessary.

"The only alternative to this approach would be substantial reductions in personnel," Hunt said.

But Wilson said teachers want lawmakers to change the tax-payment schedule for corporations, producing a one-time $90-million tax windfall to the state that could be used to pay scheduled raises.

Bernard Allen, an NCAE lobbyist, said the group also wants legislators to increase taxes on alcoholic beverages to raise money for teachers' salaries.

Legislative budget committees delayed action Monday on the pay freeze when one legislator, Rep. Jeanne Fenner, D-Wilson, said she wanted to invite state Treasurer Harlan Boyles to speak to the committee.

Boyles has said he believes money is available to balance the budget without freezing pay.

In other legislative action Monday, a number of new bills were filed in the House to abolish the town of Haywood in Chatham County, to appropriate $25,000 for Western North Carolina Public Radio Inc., to appropriate $24,000 for the Dispute Settlement Center Inc. in Orange County, to appropriate $25,000 for the study of day care and to raise the annual gift tax exclusion from $3,000 to $10,000.

Members of the Senate filed bills to provide an income tax credit for contributions to the North Carolina Symphony or N.C. Art Museum, to increase the permissible length of farm trailers to 50 feet, to provide overtime pay for forestry employees fighting forest fires and to raise criminal court costs by $1 for the benefit and retirement fund of law-enforcement officers.

of local control, busing students, inadequate funding to insure the best of each system as the minimum standard for a merged system, and the position taken by local county school advisory councils which opposed merger.

Halstead voiced support for "controlled development" according to a long-range plan, as well as library and rescue service.

As for the commissioners' meeting schedule, McLawhorn said "I think they should be accessible" and expressed his willingness to consider "any proposal" which would help improve attendance at commissioners' sessions.

"We need to take a good hard look at whatever is best" for the schools, McLawhorn said, indicating that "Pitt County has two good school systems" at this time.

He also voiced support for increased industrial development efforts, saying the "effect" of industrial development in the county in the past has been "dramatic."

McLawhorn said county financial support for Sheppard Memorial Library, which began in 1935, and for Greenville rescue service, which started in 1962, "should continue." But he suggested that a "charge for transportation" by rescue units, which in most cases would be paid for by insurance companies, might be one way to increase financial support for emergency medical service operations.

During a question and answer session, the four candidates expressed support for the reinstatement of a county planner which was dropped from the 1981-82 budget by the present Board of Commissioners as a money-saving measure.

*Approved a revised calendar for the 1982-83 school year. Three changes have been made from the original calendar. One is deleting the student holiday-teacher workday previously scheduled for Feb. 25 and moving that to an Aug. 16 workday to provide the required 180 school days. The last day of the 1982 summer school session was shifted from July 23 to July 30 and the May 23 student holiday was moved to May 30 so it would coincide with Memorial Day. This will be a student holiday only.

*Approved on first reading two policy papers. For both policy papers, adoption applies only to the policy statement, not to the regulations and procedures applicable to the policies.

The first policy deals with promotion, retention and placement of students. In part the policy reads "The major criteria to be used in promoting, retaining, or placing a student shall be demonstrated pupil achievement. 'Social promotion' is not acceptable. Assessment of achievement shall be based on appropriate multiple criteria; including course grades, criteria references tests, norm referenced tests, teacher judgment, and appropriate psychological tests..."

The second policy paper is on conflict of interest and prevention of nepotism. This covers prevention of employment, assignment or placement that would permit anyone to evaluate or make other decisions related to any other school employee who is a member of his or her immediate family. The definition of immediate family covers relationships all the way from a spouse to in-laws and step-relations.

Both these policies are due for a final reading at the first school board meeting in July.

*Received a report showing that questionnaires on interest in an after-school program reveals that 73 parents were interested in the program for children in grades K-3, and 25 parents were interested for children in grades 4-6, for a total of 98. The school board will have to decide whether the program can be operated on a break-even basis without using funds from the regular school program. Utilities costs must also be considered.

Blinson said it would be legitimate to consider use of community schools funds for the program. He also mentioned an after-school program will entail an entirely separate staff other than the regular school staff.

*Approved personnel action, in executive session, on: one leave of absence, one contract renewal, one resignation and one maternity leave.

*Delayed action on the system's affirmative action plan to allow time to assemble a community committee of approximately 12 persons to give further input to a draft plan. Board members suggested such a committee include representatives from the area's three leading black organizations, the League of Women Voters and other organizations that have shown an interest in formulating the affirmative action plan.

*Agreed it is essential that board members, as a board and as individuals, take action to oppose proposed legislation that would authorize a 1 percent optional sales tax for counties. The tax would not be tied to school financing. Other measures before the Legislature would establish a mandatory 1 percent sales tax tied directly to school funds.

PCC Courses Are Announced

Pitt Community College will offer two basic introductory courses in electricity and electronics. The courses are designed to provide a sound understanding of the basic elements and theory of electricity and electronics in preparation for further study. Participation in these courses will be especially beneficial to those students studying the plant engineering series on electrical maintenance.

Session I will begin June 14 and meet Monday and Wednesday nights. Session II will begin June 15 and meet Tuesday and Thursday nights.

Each course will meet from 7-10 p.m. for six sessions, totaling 18 hours. The class will be conducted in the Pitt Community College Attmore Building, located on W. 5th Street next to the Medical Pavilion building. The registration fee is $8 per person. Books will be furnished at no cost.

Interested persons should plan to enroll the first night of classes due to a limited enrollment policy. For additional information, contact carpeted dais underneath portraits of British monarchs. Many Laborites, opposed to Reagan's nuclear policy and support for right-wing governments, were absent. The president's audience totaled only about one-third of the 1,813 members of the House of Commons and House of Lords.

As Reagan left the chamber for lunch with British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher at 10 Downing St., a group of women peace demonstrators with blackened faces shouted "Reagan Out." It was not known whether the president noticed them in the crowd of 400 people.

Another group of about 40 demonstrators shouted and waved their fists as the Reagans arrived at the prime minister's residence to dine on lobster, beef and strawberries. When Reagan's motorcade drove up, it was on the righthand side of Downing Street — the wrong side in Britain.

The parliamentarians, who could be expected to maintain a dignified reserve during a world leader's speech, interrupted Reagan with applause twice — once when he proposed dual television appearances with Brezhnev and again, more vigorously, when he defended Britain's battle in the Falklands.

Reagan said British forces were fighting for more than "lumps of rock and earth so far away."

"Those young men aren't fighting for mere real estate. They fight for a cause, for the belief that armed aggression must not be allowed to succeed, and that people must participate in the decisions of government under the rule of law," Reagan declared.

"If there had been firmer support for that principle some 45 years ago," Reagan added, "perhaps our generation wouldn't have suffered the bloodletting of World War II."

In his speech, which was

million fewer cows than they are milking now.

The administration's bill also contemplates a restoration of authority to donate surplus dairy products to hungry people around the world. Here at home, efforts would be intensified to give away cheese and butter to such eligible institutions as schools, child care centers, summer camps, hospitals and nursing homes — but the catch is that, to the extent these donations replace purchases that otherwise would be made, the government is no better off.

Looking at the figures, Block professes a steadfast optimism that something effective will be done. The secretary was born to be a scoutmaster in a Norman Rockwell painting; he exudes a simple faith that if only the people and the Congress will understand the problem, the Congress will rise above politics and do what has to be done. In recent speeches to dairymen around the country, Block says he has encountered a responsible reaction. The typical dairyman is willing to cut his own production — but not until his neighbor makes the same move.

The whole situation is ludicrous. If the cost weren't so painful it would be something to laugh about, but on Capitol Hill, when someone says "cheese," nobody smiles.

Behind the scenes at the Paris and Bonn summit conferences, President Reagan is trying delicately and diplomatically to sell British prime minister Margaret Thatcher on giving up the idea of self-determination as the final solution of the Falkland Islands war.

What Reagan wants is a display of great magnanimity by Thatcher. She wants Reagan to agree on a contingent of American troops — perhaps a couple of hundred or less — as part of the post-war peacekeeping force on the islands.

Some advisers are urging Reagan to agree on grounds it might strengthen his hand against self-determination. Falkland Islanders would opt for permanent British sovereignty, and that makes self-determination unacceptable for Argentina.

devoted primarily to hailing the attributes of democracy and denouncing totalitarianism, Reagan said the world's democratic nations have been too shy in promoting their own strengths.

"Let us be shy no longer," Reagan said. "Let us go to our strength. Let us offer hope. Let us tell the world that a new age is not only possible but probable."

"What I am describing now," he said, "is a plan and a hope for the long term — the march of freedom and democracy which will leave Marxism-Leninism on the ash heap of history as it has left other tyrannies which stifle the freedom and muzzle the self-expression of the people."

Reagan's speech followed a wave of criticism in Britain — particularly in the press — over a U.S. voting flip-flop in the United Nations on Friday. The United States at first joined the British in vetoing a Security Council resolution calling for a cease-fire in the Falklands, but then announced it had intended to abstain instead. It was too late to change the vote, but the move angered Britain.

Kirkpatrick Says U.S. Still Inept

NEW YORK (AP) — Jeane Kirkpatrick, ambassador to the United Nations, said today she was not criticizing the Reagan administration's foreign policy when she said the United States has been impotent in the U.N. and has been "stumbling ... almost on a Mad Hatter basis."

In a speech to the Heritage Foundation on Monday, Mrs. Kirkpatrick said the United States has shown an ineptitude in the United Nations that has "persisted for decades."

Interviewed on ABC's "Nightline" early today, Mrs. Kirkpatrick said she was not referring to the embarrassing diplomatic gaffe Friday, when she cast a veto against a Security Council resolution that called for a ceasefire between Great Britain and Argentina in the Falkland Islands.

On instructions from Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr., she later tried to retract the vote, announcing the orders to abstain had come too late, an event she termed a "pure communications snafu."

In her speech, she said one reason for a poor performance at the U.N. is that the United States has been unable to express a cohesive national purpose; instead the country has been "stumbling from issue to issue almost on a Mad Hatter basis."

She said another problem is that U.S. delegates leave the job before getting to know the ropes, and noted that the Soviet Union keeps personnel on the job for decades. On ABC she suggested appointing career officers as ambassadors might help solve the problem, although she added even career officers turn over quickly in a form of "bureaucratic turbulence."

In her speech, she indicated she wasn't planning an extended stay in the job. "I couldn't stand it, I don't believe," the former Georgetown University professor said.

Mrs. Kirkpatrick, who has been at odds with Haig and the administration's policy of support for Britain in the Falklands crisis, said on "Nightline" that the British performance at the Security Council was one the United States should seek to emulate.

"It is very strange that we Americans, who are very good at ... politics, should be so inept at international politics in arenas such as the United Nations," she told the Heritage Foundation.

The ineptitude, she added, "has persisted through several decades, several administrations" with Americans conducting foreign policy "like a bunch of amateurs."

The ambassador said she had been reflecting for months on what she called "our unhappy fall from influence to impotence."

"Unless we approach the United Nations as professionals, political professionals ... then we don't even know if the United Nations can be made a more hospitable place for American national interest," she said.

In the ABC interview, Mrs. Kirkpatrick said she was not criticizing U.S. foreign policy.

NCNB Pondering New Acquisitions

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — NCNB Corp. officials say they're ready for their next step in the proposed mergers with four banks that would give the Southeast's largest bank holding company more than $10 billion in assets.

Some industry analysts and officials with competing banks say the rapid pace of the proposed mergers suggests the regional banking giant may be moving too far, too fast.

NCNB officials and industry analysts say the company's next step is to determine how to absorb the new acquisitions without seriously draining earnings.

By themselves, the four firms about to be absorbed by NCNB would rank as North Carolina's fourth largest financial institution. Their combined assets of $2.4 billion compare to the $7.7 billion in assets now held by NCNB, already the Southeast's largest bank holding company.

With the clout of more than $10 billion in assets, NCNB will be among a handful of major regional banks, positioned to be more of a factor in both regional and national financial markets.

"We are at a watershed, a cross-point," said NCNB President Hugh McCroll. With the completion of pending mergers, "the major acquisition phase is over."

"We have achieved the size needed to be a meaningful force in interstate banking," McCroll said. "Now, our emphasis is going to be on profitability. We with to make our shareholders wealthy, by making more money on our asset base. That is where our energies will be directed."

But some industry observers wonder how much the firm's current earnings will be affected by the burden of new stock and the weight of borrowed money NCNB is using to pay for the acquisitions. And they ask if NCNB has enough depth of management to fight what will amount to a two-front war — North Carolina and Florida — in the increasingly competitive financial services industry.

"I think they have a tough row to hoe for the next couple of years," said Dick Stillinger, an analyst with Keefe, Bruyette & Woods Inc..

No Match For Sun's Energy

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — If you totaled all the energy the Earth uses in a year, from earthquakes to electricity, it wouldn't equal the energy unleashed in a weekend explosion on the Sun, scientists say.

Sunday's solar flare, an eruption of ultra-hot gases, was so huge that scientific instruments couldn't measure it, said solar expert Phil Powell of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

The flare appeared as a tongue of light and heat bursting millions of miles into space. On Thursday, the scientists had detected another major flare, but of smaller magnitude.

The flares sometimes interfere with electronic communications systems on Earth.

Odom Going...

assistant football and head tennis coach at the school.

Prior to going to Durham, he served for one year as head basketball coach at Goldsboro High School, his alma mater, and was also an assistant there in football and baseball.

As a high school player in Goldsboro, he played football, baseball and basketball. Then, at Guilford College, he played both football and basketball.

At Goldsboro, he was named the Most Valuable player in football as a senior, and served as captain of the baseball, football and basketball team that year. At Guilford, he was named the best undergraduate athlete in 1965, and was captain of the basketball team as a senior.

The 39-year-old Odom is married to the former Lynn Atkins, and they have two sons, Lane and Ryan.

In his three-year career at East Carolina, Odom compiled a 38-42 record, the best coming in his first season, 16-11, and the worst this last year, 10-17.

East Carolina joined the ECAC-South during the third year of Odom's tenure, and he praised that move as a great help to the program.

Odom had already completed recruiting for the coming year, having signed five players to grants-in-aid. However, two members of the team eligible to return, Bill McNair, and leading scorer-rebounder Morris Harrgrove, had announced their intention to transfer to other schools prior to Odom's resignation. Officials at the school said that they had not yet officially requested re-lease, and could change their minds.

Odom said that he did not expect any of the new signees to switch to another school, and he did not anticipate any of the other remaining players leaving.

"I think a lot of it will have to do with who the new coach is," Odom said, "but I think that the future can be bright and exciting. The goals are reachable, but it will take time. I think we've gotten the foundation in, but sometimes it's necessary for someone else to build from the foundation up."

"I would say that at this point, should everyone who is eligible to return actually return, then the talent level is as good as it was when I came here, and that level was good."

Karr added that he feels that the program is on a sound base. "I feel that our program has been in capable hands, and we regret that Dave has decided to leave to go to the University of Virginia. He's made marked progress in the capability level of the players, and in the academic level too."

Holland, via telephone, said that when Craig Littlepage left his staff to become head coach at Penn, his first thought was of Odom. "We went after him very hard. I'm very pleased that he has agreed to join our staff."

"He is an accomplished coach in all phases of the game, and is an excellent recruiter."

authority's flail mower recently broke down and repairs would have exceeded the initial cost of the equipment. He said local prices were sought and a three-bladed mower was bought from Eastern Tractor & Equipment Co. at a cost of $1,056. The expenditure was approved by the commissioners.

In other business, Laney reported that the Department of Housing and Urban Development has mandated the use of a new model lease for areas such as the University Towers facility for the elderly here. Laney, who said he was unhappy with HUD's new lease requirements, said the policy has been posted at University Towers and some of the residents are being asked to review the documents and offer comments.

The director, who said the new lease does not do anything the present lease does not cover but is more complicated in its wording, said the board will be asked to consider the lease for adoption after the tenant review.

Laney presented the commissioners with a report of the results of an equal opportunity monitoring visit by HUD's fair housing and equal opportunity section. He said HUD had questions about the racial balance in the Meadowbrook housing section and he is asking HUD to give the authority the opportunity to do something about the balance in accepting applications for housing.

Laney said 104 units under the existing housing segment of the Section 8 program are under lease and 94 out of 100 units under the moderate rehabilitation section are leased. Another 15 units should be leased in the next two months, he said. All 60 apartments at University Towers are leased.

He said he is still having problems locating a site for the location of 40 new units of low-rent family housing and he said a tract of from six to 10 acres is needed. HUD has not endorsed any of the sites proposed so far, Laney reported.

Noland said six people from the county's summer youth employment program will begin work with the authority as maintenance and administrative helpers on June 14 and will work until the week before Labor Day.

The operations director, presenting the tenant occupancy report in the absence of Sallye Streeter, director of tenant affairs, said total occupancy was reported in the six housing areas at the end of May. Average rents included: N.C. 22-1 (Meadowbrook), $83.38; N.C. 22-2 (Kearney Park), $93.96; NC 22-3 (Moyewood), $93.20; N.C. 22-4 (Moyewood), $96.91; N.C. 22-5 (Hopkins Park), $74.44; and N.C. 22-6 (Newtown), $76.84, for an overall average of $87.40.

Commissioners welcomed Billy B. Laughinghouse as a new member of the board, succeeding James E. Sutton who served for over 20 years. Laughinghouse was a longtime member of the Redevelopment Commission.

M.E. Gilstrap, associate director of Pitt County Memorial Hospital, reported that the hospital set a record with 500 patients in one day during the month of May. The previous high occurred last year when 430 patients were hospitalized.

Gilstrap noted that the average patient load for the month of May was 462.

Robert Little of near Simpson told the board that Grimesland-Simpson area residents are upset over illegal dumping into the solid waste container site in the area — in particular dead animals and logs or large limbs — and said the residents will try to identify those persons that are in violation of the county solid waste ordinance and report them to the proper authorities.

In addition to logs or large limbs over four inches in diameter and more than six feet long and dead animals, the ordinance prohibits such things as hot ashes, explosives, poisons, nuclear waste, auto and truck bodies, metal drums (unless top and bottom have been removed), sludges and other semi-solid fluids, construction or land clearing materials, concrete debris and pesticides and herbicides and their containers, from being placed in the bulk solid waste containers.

Woman Killed In Mishap

OAK CITY — The organist of Bethel United Methodist Church, reportedly on her way to Sunday morning services, was killed at the intersection of N.C. 11 and N.C. 903 here Sunday about 10:15 a.m.

Highway Patrolman Walter J. Warren said Lorraine F. Erb, 25, apparently died instantly when her car overturned several times after being struck by a car driven by Mark Daniel Gardner, 19, of Wheaton, Md.

Warren said a witness told him Gardner's vehicle approached the intersection at a high rate of speed, passed the car in front of him and kept on through the stop sign, striking Miss Erb's car. Warren said Gardner, who was not injured, has been charged with death by vehicle, a stop sign violation and improper passing.

Miss Erb, who lived with her mother in Virginia Beach, Va., was a graduate student at East Carolina University.

 Gordon Douglas cracked a two-run homer to highlight a four-run seventh inning as Pitt County's American Legion baseball team rolled to its second straight win last night, downing Rocky Mount, 9-3.

Roger Williams got the victory in his first start of the young Legion season, going seven innings. He gave up eight hits, struck out an equal number and walked five as he experienced a little control problems.

Most of the trouble came in the fifth inning when Rocky Mount struck for all of its runs and rallied to trim the Pitt County lead back to 4-3.

But Post 39 came back with a run in the sixth, then closed it out with the four in the seventh.

The win boosted Post 39 to a 2-0 record, while Rocky Mount tumbles to 2-2.

The victory left coach Bill Davis quite pleased with the way the team is playing so early in the season. "I thought the boys played extremely well tonight," he said. "They were a little flat (in the first game), but I kind of expected that. They were much better tonight and they ran the bases well.

We didn't make as many mental mistakes tonight either."

Davis felt that Williams did a good job on the mound. "He did get the ball up there in the fifth inning, but overall I thought he did a very good job. And Gordon came on a gave us two good innings of relief. We've worked some with his curve ball and I thought he threw it very well."

Douglas, in his two innings, didn't allow a hit, walked one and struck out four.

Rocky Mount got off the first threat of the night — and that was caused by a mental mistake. Williams, after giving up a leadoff hit to Kevin Payne, picked him neatly off base, but during the rundown, a hasty throw allowed Payne to slip back untouched into first base. Eddie Coats followed with a single, moving Payne to third, but Williams got a strikeout and a short fly to retire two, then picked Coats off first.

base for a single, scoring Buie.

Coats, fielding the ball, threw to third, where Hodges had strayed too far around the bag, and he was cut down in a rundown.

Pitt added a second run in the third. With two away, Williams reached on an error and Locust walked. An error on an attempted pickoff let both runners advance two bases, with Williams scoring.

Two more crossed in the fourth. Bill Kittrell walked and was safe at second on an error on Greg Briley's grounder. Hodges then doubled, driving in both runners.

Rocky Mount put on its rally in the fifth cutting the lead to 4-3. With one down, Billy Godwin singled and Payne was walked. Coats then tripled down the right field line, scoring both runners. He came in when Steve Smith singled to center.

However, Rocky Mount failed to score again, leaving runners in scoring position as the inning ended, and again in the sixth and ninth.

Pitt added a fifth run in the sixth. Kittrell opened the inning with a triple to right, scoring on Buie's sacrifice fly.

The final four came in the seventh. Emmett Walsh led off with a triple to center, scoring when Williams reached on an error. After one out, Douglas unloaded his homer to left, scoring Williams ahead of himself.

Randy Warren kept it going with a walk, then stole second. He scored on Kittrell's single to center with the final run of the game.

Hodges, Douglas and Kittrell each had two hits to lead Pitt, while Coats and Godwin each had a pair for Rocky Mount.

Pitt is now idle until Saturday night when it hosts Wayne County. A game with Edenton, scheduled for Friday, has been postponed until later in the season.

Cooney Vs. Holmes No Love Lost Between These Two Heavyweight Fighters

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Gerry Cooney may not be a good standup comic, but then he won't be trying to make Larry Holmes laugh when they meet for the World Boxing Council heavyweight title.

"You better stick to boxing," said Cooney's trainer, Victor Valle, after the No. 1 ranked contender had cracked a couple of jokes at a post-workout news conference Monday.

"Which room you playing Friday night," somebody else asked Cooney after the fighter's brief attempt at being a comedian.

"The main room," said Cooney.

Friday night Cooney won't be trying for laughs. He will be fighting Holmes in a 32,000-seat arena in a Caesars Palace parking lot.

It will not only be the "main room" at Caesars, it will be center stage in the world sports.

The 25-year-old Cooney appeared relaxed at the news conference, discussing a variety of subjects, a couple reluctantly.

Holmes addressed the fans attending his workout, but he did not meet with members of the media.

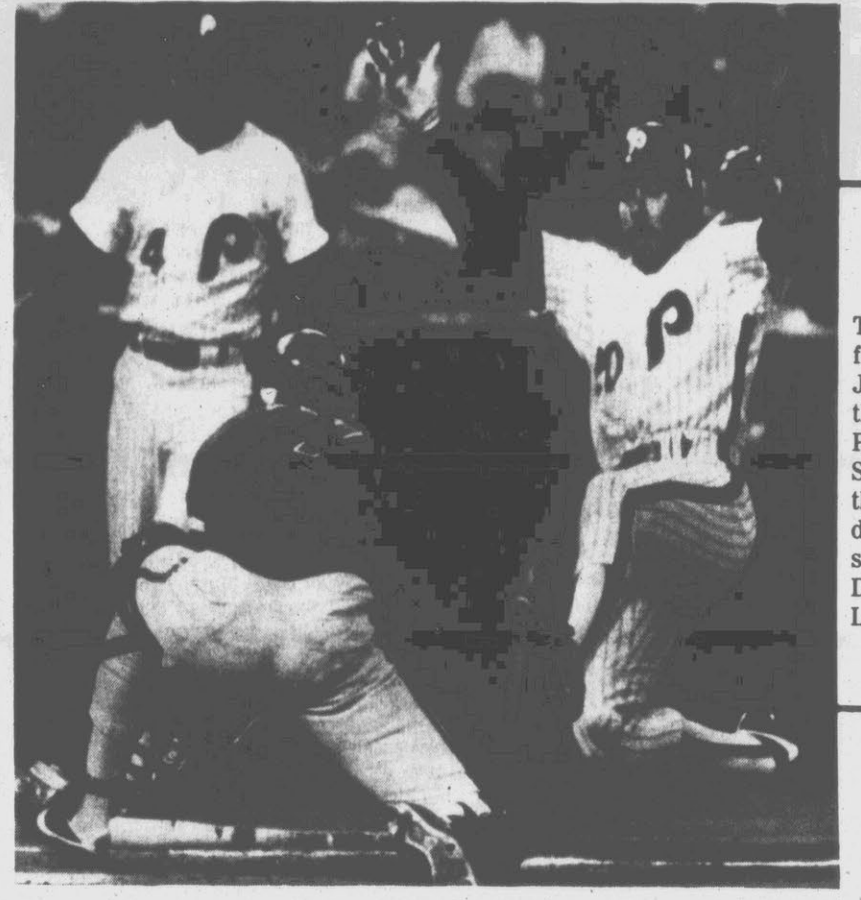

The movie boxing character Rocky was mentioned, and Cooney said, "Rocky is a great character. It (the series of three films) doesn't have to be about boxing. It can be about anything."

"The most important thing about it is he was an underdog and a regular guy," Cooney said.

One subject Cooney, who is white, didn't want to talk about was the race being an issue in the fight.

"I just forget about it," said Cooney. "I don't want to talk about it. The more everybody

Does Los Angeles Now Have Its Back Against The Wall?

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It was only a few days ago that the Los Angeles Lakers were being touted by many observers as one of the greatest teams in National Basketball Association history. Now, there are those who believe the Lakers have their backs against the wall.

The Lakers, with a 3-2 lead over Philadelphia in the best-of-seven NBA Championship Series, entertain the 76ers tonight in Game Six. The contest begins at 9 p.m., EDT.

The series moved back to Los Angeles because the 76ers rolled to a 135-102 triumph on their home court last Sunday. If the 76ers win tonight, a seventh game will be played at the Spectrum in Philadelphia Thursday night.

On the whole, the Lakers would rather not be in Philadelphia, at least not right now.

"It's going to be a heck of a basketball game because the Lakers are going to treat it like it's the seventh game," said Philadelphia Coach Billy Cunningham, speaking of tonight's contest. "They don't want to come back to Philly to play us."

Of course, the 76ers aren't too fond of playing the Lakers at the Forum, either. Los Angeles has won 40 of its 58 home games against Philadelphia over the years.

Philadelphia is trying to become the first team in the 36-year history of the NBA to win a Championship Series after trailing 3-1. As Lakers' guard Norm Nixon pointed out, the 76ers still have a lot to accomplish.

"Who's down 3-2?" asked Nixon after Game Five. "They have to win two games, we have to win one. They have to play two great games."

One 76er who played a great game Sunday was 6-foot-11 center Darryl Dawkins. However, about the only consistent thing about Dawkins seems to be his inconsistency.

Dawkins came off the bench to score 20 points, grab seven rebounds and play a key role as the 76ers held Los Angeles center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar to only six points. In Game Two of the Series, Dawkins played only eight minutes. He scored nine points, but picked up five fouls.

Abdul-Jabbar hadn't scored fewer than 11 points in his previous 109 playoff games. The last time the 35-year-old, six-time NBA most valuable player failed to score in double figures in any game was opening day of the 1977-78 season. He scored two points then before getting into a fight with Kent Benson and being ejected.

Asked about the 76ers' strategy against him Sunday, Abdul-Jabbar said, "They just pushed and shoved."

BUIES CREEK — East Carolina finally got around to opening its 1982 North State College League season, but found Campbell just a little stronger than planned as the Camels put together a 7-2 win over the Pirates.

Campbell, which is now 1-1 in the league, got a fine pitching effort from Tim Kotroco, who went the distance, scattering eight hits. He didn't allow a run until the seventh when Art Barnhardt drove in both of the Pirate runs with a homer.

In the meanwhile, Campbell had built up a 7-0 lead, scoring twice each in the fourth and fifth and once in the sixth.

"I'm not really that disappointed," Coach Gary Overton said. "We're shorthanded, and we're learning."

That was made obvious by the lineup fielded by the Pirates. Kelly Robinette, the Pirates shortstop, is sidelined with an illness, and David Wells, normally in left field moved into this position. John Hallow, who has been playing right field, has moved to third, while Robert Langston has taken on second base duties. Barnhardt, a walkon, and Mark Shank, who missed the spring season, with an injury, flank the outfield positions.

Bob Davidson got the mound

duty for the Pirates and held the Camels in check for the first three innings.

But they finally struck for two runs in the fourth. Bob Spicer led off with a double and Bob Posey singled. Wayne Dale reached on a fielder's choice, getting Posey at third, but scoring Spicer. With two away, Bill Wilkes singled to score Dale, making it 2-0.

The Camels added two more in the fifth. Kelly Hoffman walked to open the inning and Tom Lynch reached on a two-base error, allowing Hoffman to score. Lynch took third on a passed ball and scored when Steve Regner grounded out.

The final three came in the sixth. Posey walked to start the frame, and Dale singled, with Tom Montgomery running for him. Kevin Barger doubled in Posey, and a triple by Wilkes brought over both Montgomery

To Pitt County:

When I vote on June 29, it will be for Elliott Dixon as County Commissioner.

As a lifelong resident of Pitt County, Elliott has devoted many hours to the betterment of his community. He has served as President of the Ayden Rotary Club, President of the Economic Council, Chairman of the Ayden Council of the Pitt/Greenville Chamber of Commerce and as a Board member of the Mid-East Commission. In addition, Elliott has served as a Town Commissioner for Ayden for the past nine years.

Elliott believes that local government needs to be receptive to its citizens if it is truly going to represent all the people.

As a result of Elliott's business experience, he will bring these skills to help the county attack its problems.

Integrity Of College Sports Threatened, Report Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Recruiting scandals and other breaches of amateurism in big college football and basketball are threatening the integrity of all U.S. colleges and universities, an internal American Council on Education report says.

The report suggests one way out of the crisis would be for the major colleges to shed the facade of amateurism in these sports, pay athletes over the table and not even require them to be students.

The brief report says recent revelations about transcript manipulation at several schools and allegations of illegal payments to athletes "have raised serious concerns about whether big-time football and basketball programs are really under the control of the chief executives and governing boards."

The council, a lobbying and research group that represents 1,400 colleges and universities, has invited the presidents of more than a dozen major college football and basketball powers to a closed-door meeting here next Tuesday to discuss the problems.

The Associated Press obtained a copy of the report written by Robert H. Atwell, the council's vice president. It says the situation is beyond the control of the NCAA.

"There is a strong body of opinion which holds that the problems of corruption in big-time football and basketball are of crisis proportions and threaten to discredit our institutions," the report said.

The report said the presidents really have only three alternatives if they want to solve the problem:

• A return to amateurism. But it said this "is not really viable" for the major powers because of economic pressures and demands from alumni, booster clubs and their communities for winning teams.

• An open move toward professionalism in football and basketball for the major powers. Blue-chip athletes "would be paid a market wage rather than artificially constrained 'grant-in-aid' with all of the attendant pressures for under-the-table payments..."

Continuing the status quo, "which means a drift toward professionalism, but an increasing credibility gap between the pretenses of the student-athlete model and the realities of money, corruption and professionalism."

Babe Ruth
Planters Bank 5
Coca-Cola 3
Planters Bank scored four runs in the first three innings and then held off a late rally by Coca-Cola to come away with a 5-3 victory Monday in a Babe Ruth baseball game.

Planters took a 2-0 lead in the first inning when Tyrone Jones tripled home Jordy Smith with two gone and then scored on a wild pitch. Smith had walked with one gone.

Planters upped its lead to 3-0 and Barger.

That spelled the end for Davidson, and Mike Williams came on to retire the side after that, getting two strikeouts and a groundout to end the inning.

East Carolina finally broke the ice in the top of the seventh. After one out, Charlie Smith singled and Barnhardt followed with a homer to left-center, scoring both runs.

David and Robert Wells each had two hits to pace the Pirates, while Posey and Wilkes each had two for Campbell.

East Carolina, now 0-1, travels to UNC-Wilmington tonight in the second. Jason Boyd walked and came around to score on a wild pitch and a passed ball.

Coke came back to score a run in the top of the third, but Planters got the run back in the bottom of the inning and then increased its lead to 5-1 with a run in fifth.

Coke scored twice in the sixth, keyed by back-to-back singles by Traye Fuqua and Billy Michel, to make it 5-3. But Coke could get no closer as Planters held on for the win.

Curtis Perkins had two hits

for Coke. Jimmy Best had two hits for Planters Bank.

Little League
Moose 9
C & Associates 7
Jay Mattox singled home the go-ahead run in a three-run sixth inning to help lift Moose to a 9-7 win over Carroll & Associates Monday in a Tar Heel Little League baseball game.

The score was tied at 6-6 going into the sixth when Rexter Williams led off the sixth with a single and went to second on Stephen Smith's sacrifice. Then, after Wesley Jackson walked, Mattox singled to score Williams to give Moose a 7-6 lead.

Chris Dillard followed with a single to score Jackson. Mattox later scored on Chris Christopher's single to make it 9-6.

C&A came back with a run in the bottom of the inning when Billy Carr singled home Joel Daughtry, who led off the inning with a double, but it was not enough.

Both teams scored a run in the second but C&A took a 3-2 lead in the third only to have Moose take a 5-3 lead in the fourth with three runs. The inning was keyed by Jackson's three-run double.

C&A cut it to 5-4 in the bottom of the inning but Moose got the run back in the fifth only to have C&A score twice in the bottom of the inning to tie the game.

Allen Speight and Rob Barnes both had two hits for Moose. Carr had three hits to lead C&A. Daughtry, Jason Lee and Jamie Marshall all had two hits for C&A.

Union Carbide 6
Jaycees 0

Paul Powers hurled a one-hitter and Morris Johnson had two home runs to lead Union Carbide to a 6-0 victory over the Jaycees Monday in a North State Little League baseball game.

Powers, who struck out eight and walked two, came one out from a hurling a no-hitter. With two gone in the bottom of the sixth, Brian Wille singled for the first hit of the game off Powers.

UC scored three runs in the first inning — all it needed with Powers on the mound.

Abram Lang reached on an error and went to second when Kevin Fisher walked with one gone. Johnson followed with a three-run home run to give UC a 3-0 lead.

UC added another run in the second before upping its lead to 5-0 in the third on a solo home run by Johnson. UC scored its final two runs in the sixth.

Johnson and Powers each had two hits for UC.

'Angry' Comartie Sparks Montreal

By The Associated Press
It took an angry young man to nudge the Montreal Expos just a little closer to the front-running St. Louis Cardinals in the National League East.

Warren Cromartie — the not-so-proud possessor of a .211 average — led off the ninth inning of a 2-2 game Monday night facing St. Louis bullpen ace Bruce Sutter. As 211 hitters are wont to do, he was not happy with his recent performance.

"It wasn't frustration or a lack of hustle," said Cromartie. "It was just anger at myself."

It didn't take much to make Cromartie happy, though. He belted Sutter's first pitch over the right-center field wall for the game-winning homer as the Expos beat the Cards, 3-2, to move to within 3½ games of first-place St. Louis.

"I've been getting inspiration from my teammates, family and friends," said Cromartie, who hit .304 last season. "It's just a matter of me putting it all together."

The Cards stranded 11 baserunners, leaving Manager Whitey Herzog none too pleased.

"We never were ahead," said Herzog. "We had our chances early and we couldn't do anything with them. But it was a good game. We battled to the wire."

Ray Burris, 1-7, got the victory in relief for Montreal.

Braves 4, Dodgers 3

Dale Murphy belted his league-leading 17th homer — a three-run, seventh-inning shot of reliever Tom Niedertuer — to pace the Braves' victory, which enabled first-place Atlanta to maintain a 1½-game lead over San Diego in the NL West.

The Dodger defeat did not diminish the feat of first baseman Steve Garvey, who played in his 1,000th consecutive game.

"It's a source of pride to be able to produce every day of my contract, almost every inning," said the 33-year old Garvey, owner of the fifth-longest consecutive-game playing streak in major league history.

Veteran knuckleball artist Phil Niekro, 4-2, got the victory for Atlanta. Steve Bedrosian picked up his third save.

Padres 6, Reds 5
Garry Templeton's two-run

single ignited a five-run Padre third inning outburst, lifting Chris Welsh to his fourth victory against one defeat.

The Padres once held a 6-2 lead, but the Reds scored three late runs before Luis DeLeon came on in the ninth for his third save.

"I lost my concentration," said Welsh. "I figured we were cruising and there was no way they were going to score four runs in two innings."

The Padres sent 11 men to the plate during their five-run inning as nine consecutive hitters reached base off Reds' starter Greg Harris, 2-1, and reliever Charlie Leibrandt.

Phillies 7, Cubs 5

Manny Trillo's infield single scored pinch-runner Luis Aguayo from second base with the winning run in the eighth inning as the Phillies beat the Cubs, who absorbed their eighth straight defeat.

Bo Diaz and Garry Maddox singled off Cub reliever Lee Smith, 1-1, to start the winning rally, with Aguayo running for Diaz after Maddox' hit. On a double steal attempt, Trillo hit a hot smash deep to the hole between first and second, and Aguayo scored from second base, beating Bump Wills' relay throw. The Phils added an insurance run later in the inning on Cub shortstop Larry Bowa's error.

Phillies' slugger Mike Schmidt, hobbled by injuries so far this year, belted his fourth homer of the season and scored three times.

Winner Sid Monge, 3-0, hurled three shutout innings of relief as the Phillies also moved to within 3½ games of East-leading St. Louis.

Pirates 4, Mets 3

Bill Madlock's RBI single in the 12th inning off Mets' reliever Neil Allen scored Lee Lacy with the winning run as the Pirates won their fifth game out of their last six.

"We are now five games below the .500 mark, and we're going to reach that spot (.500 very soon," said Pirate Manager Chuck Tanner.

With one out in the 12th, Lacy singled off Allen, 1-3. With Dave Parker up, Lacy stole second and went to third as catcher John Stearns' throw sailed into center field. Parker struck out, but Madlock followed an intentional walk to Jason Thompson with a line shot single to score Lacy.

Rod Scurry, 4-3, hurled two scoreless innings in relief to pick up the victory. Pirate starter Manny Sarmiento struck out nine Mets and scattered four hits in eight innings of work.

Beacham-Loftin Win P-P

Robert Beacham and Jake Loftin combined to win the Monday Nite Bestball Tournament at the Greenville Putt Putt Golf Course.

Beacham and Loftin shot a 28-under-par 80 to outdistance Bobby Ippock and David Beacham by three strokes. Ippock and Beacham shot an 83.

Mike Shane and Robbie Moye were third with an 84 followed by Jay Wynne and Vince Nelson were next at 86.

Beacham and Loftin led by one stroke over Ippock and Beacham at the end of the first round and added a stroke lead in the next two rounds for their winning margin.

Hometown Cheers On Cooney

HUNTINGTON, N.Y. (AP) — "Cooney Power." "I love Gerry Cooney."

This sprawling Long Island community, renowned as the home of poet Walt Whitman, is wearing its heart on its sleeve this week for a fighter, favorite son Gerry Cooney.

The above accolades are emblazoned on T-shirts and car bumpers and the name buzzes in the school corridors throughout the day and in the local pubs until the wee hours of the morning.

Will the 6-foot-7 neighborhood kid with the knockout punch wrest the world's heavyweight boxing crown from Larry Holmes in their $50 million showdown at Las Vegas, Nev., Friday night?

It's a rhetorical question. To Gerry's family, friends and fellow townspeople there is no doubt.

"Just a matter of when," is the common reply. "It'll be quick."

Walt Whitman High School, which Cooney, now 25, attended, is declaring Friday "Gerry Cooney Day."

"There will be no holiday — classes as usual," said assistant principal John V. O'Farrell. "But we'll probably have buttons and banners. I'm sure there will be an after-school rally."

O'Farrell is sure to find some of his teachers missing. Geraldine Gorman, who was profiled in a national magazine as Gerry's favorite English teacher, and other members of the faculty were to join Cooney's mom, brothers, sisters and close family friends today in a flight to Las Vegas.

Earlier, Gorman went into seclusion to avoid reporters hunting for details about this powerful iron worker's son who could be the first white man in more than 20 years to rule the heavyweight division.

Cooney-Holmes...

writes about it the worse it gets."

Another subject Cooney said he didn't want to talk about was Holmes, a man Cooney says he can't be friends with because of things the champion has said about him.

But he did talk about Holmes briefly, and one of the things he said was: "If I was married and had children, I wouldn't want them looking up to him."

"Gerry Cooney never had an obstacles to jump over," said Holmes, who says Cooney hasn't earned his No. 1 contender's ranking.

The champion also told fans that he didn't like some things that have been written about him recently.

"I'm bitter and angry. I admit it," said Holmes, who drew cheers when he added: "I feel each one of you deserve five minutes of my time. You're the ones who are going to help me make $10 million."

At the beginning of his chat with the fans, Holmes said, "I'm ready and I'm going to put a whuppin' on him."

"Stop bragging," someone shouted. "I'm not bragging," said Holmes. "I'm telling the truth."

"I don't get a chance to comb my hair in the morning," said Mom Cooney. "The phone never stops ringing."

To reach the small brick bungalow where Gerry grew up, one must turn off the Jericho Turnpike, pass the Walt Whitman Mall and take Holland Street to a dead end. The house is protected by a steel fence and an disarming sign, "Beware of Dog."

The living room breathes with the influence of the famous son — magazine cover stories and a red boxing glove on the coffee table, on the wall plaques and photos of some of his 25 fights, 21 won by knockout, 11 in the first two rounds. Only a color portrait of Pope John Paul II breaks the theme.

Eileen Cooney is a handsome, dark-haired woman who never sought to steer her third oldest son into a more peaceful profession.

"His father had his heart set on Gerry being a fighter," said Mrs. Cooney. "I wouldn't have changed that for the world."

The father died six years ago, living only long enough to see his son win the Golden Gloves heavyweight crown. Gerry declined to go to Montreal Olympics because he didn't want to leave his ailing dad.

"I get nervous when he's even sparring," Mrs. Cooney said. "When he's in the ring, I hide my eyes, finger my rosary beads and get weak in the knees. Fortunately, his fights don't last long. As far as I am concerned, if he got it over in a second I'd be happy."

Connecticut Mops Up, Rains Strike In Midwest

By The Associated Press
As floodwaters receded in New England and washed-out residents began the "long, tedious job" of mopping up after the rain that left 22 people dead or missing, powerful Midwestern storms knocked out power to thousands and swept two children down the Arkansas River.

homes before it ended Monday night. State police patrolled today in the lower Connecticut Valley town of Essex, one of the hardest hit communities, to guard against looting.
A preliminary estimate put damage in 16 southern Connecticut communities at more than $100 million. Smaller damage totals from the weekend flooding were reported in Rhode Island and Massachusetts, where rain was tapering off today.
Connecticut Gov. William A. O'Neill warned residents of his state they had a "long, hard, tedious job" of cleaning up after the storm. He asked for federal disaster aid but didn't have a precise estimate of the damage.

"It's very hard to describe. You have to see it to believe it," said O'Neill, who flew over the state in a helicopter Monday. "The damage is just astronomical."
Meanwhile, thousands of Kansans were without electricity today after winds gusting to 90 mph swept rain and softball-sized hail through the Kansas River Valley on Monday.

Near Broken Arrow, Okla., strong currents in the Arkansas River swept away Amy Harper, 13, of Tulsa and James Hardie, 11, of Broken Arrow. Two firefighters borrowed a 16-foot boat and were nearly ready to give up the search when they found the children nearly 2½ miles down river clinging to a sandbar, said Assistant Fire Chief Ron Dennison.
Christa Lawrence, 13, survived a similar experience Sunday in Westport, Conn., when she was washed into a 150-foot tunnel that carries Dead Man's Creek under part of the town.

Steven Treadway, 14, who saw her swept away, went to the downstream end of the tunnel, grabbed a tree branch, leaned into the flood and grabbed Miss Lawrence when she was swept out of the tunnel.
"I thought I was going to die any second," she said. "The current was pulling me under...I couldn't breathe."
In Missouri, the control tower at Kansas City International Airport was evacuated for 20 minutes because of the winds and several planes were damaged. About 100 streets were flooded in the city.

In central Missouri, a tornado touched down near Slater, damaging about a dozen farms, but causing no injuries.
In Connecticut, Joseph Martin of the Insurance Consumer Information Center in Hartford said low-cost federal loans would be important because most residents did not have flood insurance on their homes.

Transportation was hampered by the washout of 70 sections of state highway and tracks for Amtrak and Conrail. Many repairs were expected to be made today, but one line was expected to be out for two weeks.
The deaths included 10 in Connecticut and five in Rhode Island. There were seven people missing: three in Massachusetts, two in Connecticut and two in Rhode Island.
In Rhode Island, Gov. J. Joseph Garrahy estimated damage at $3.3 million and asked for federal aid. He said reports from 26 of the small state's 39 cities and towns indicated 132 homes and 75 businesses were damaged.

Santo Amato, director of Rhode Island's disaster agency, said the Blackstone and Pawtuxet Rivers both crested Monday.
In Massachusetts, authorities in Hull and Medway were waiting for storm conditions to ease so they could resume the search for three people who fell into storm-tossed waters Sunday.

The bidding:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♥ Pass
2 NT Pass 3 ♣ Pass
3 NT Pass Pass Pass
Opening lead: Three of ♣.

The danger hand had all the entries! But skillful play kept him off lead just long enough for declarer to make his contract.

The main point in the auction is North's bid of three clubs. There are those that consider it a signoff, but don't include us in that group. We don't pretend to be clever enough to know that a hand will make exactly nine tricks in a suit but not eight or nine tricks at no trump. With double stoppers in the unbid suits, South chose the nine-trick game.

West led his fourth-best spade, and declarer captured East's jack with the king. A thoughtless declarer might lead a heart to the king. East would win the ace and return a spade, and before declarer could get nine tricks the defenders would have three spade tricks and two aces for a one-trick defeat. It is no better to lead the king of clubs from hand. East can win and revert to spades with the same result.

Obviously, East is the danger hand and should be kept off lead as long as possible. With that in mind, the winning line becomes a bit easier to spot. Declarer does not mind losing a trick to West, since West cannot continue the attack on spades without giving declarer a third trick in the suit. See what happens if, at trick two, declarer crosses to dummy with the queen of diamonds and leads a club.

If East rises with ace, declarer will make four tricks in clubs together with two spades and three diamonds, so East must duck. Declarer wins the queen of clubs and now leads a heart. Again, East cannot afford to win, for that would give declarer nine tricks via two spades, three hearts, three diamonds and one club. And East must duck again when declarer leads another heart from dummy. But East's fine defense is to no avail because declarer now reverts to clubs. Whether East rises with the ace or not, declarer is sure of his game — with overtricks.

Mandrell Again A Big Winner

By JOE EDWARDS
Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — After pocketing more of the country music industry's awards, singer Barbara Mandrell says she'll turn her talents to making movies.

Miss Mandrell won or shared four honors at the 16th annual Music City News show, broadcast Monday night on syndicated television from the Grand Ole Opry House.

She won female artist of the year and musician of the year and shared awards with her two sisters, Louise and Iriene, for television show of the year and top comedy act. Miss Mandrell is star of the NBC TV program "Barbara Mandrell and the Mandrell Sisters," which goes off the air this fall after two seasons.

Last October, Miss Mandrell won an unprecedented second straight entertainer of the year title from the Country Music Association. She also has been voted top female vocalist by the association twice in the past three years.

Miss Mandrell said after the show that she plans to launch her acting career in a movie, now in the planning stages, about a fashion buyer.

"I'm hoping it ends as good as it sounds," Miss Mandrell said as fans at the foot of the Opry House stage shouted for her autograph.

She described the movie as "intrigue and comedy," and said filming should begin next spring. The male lead hasn't been picked, she said.

Her move to the big screen follows that of singer Dolly Parton, whose second film, "The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas," will be released next month. Miss Parton's first movie was "9 to 5."

The Statler Brothers and Shelly West were the only other double winners in the awards presentations, which launched a week of special country music activities at the Opry known as "Fan Fair."

The Statler Brothers, hosts of the show along with Louise

Mandrell and Ed Bruce, were chosen No. 1 vocal group and earned top album honors for "Years Ago."

Miss West, daughter of country music star Dottie West, was honored as most promising female singer and shared the top duet award with David Frizzell, the younger brother of the late country music star Lefty Frizzell.

"I want to thank my mother for all her inspiration," Miss West said upon accepting the award for top duet.

Marty Robbins, who was a finalist for seven awards, was chosen male artist of the year — the last award presented.

"I'm glad I hung around," he quipped.

Other winners were Alabama, band of the year; "Elvira" by the Oak Ridge Boys, single of the year; T.G. Sheppard, most promising male artist; the "Hee Haw" gospel quartet, gospel act of the year; and newcomer Ricky Skaggs, bluegrass act of the year.

Winners were picked by subscribers to the Music City News, a monthly country music publication. The show was the second of three yearly country music awards presentations. The others are the Academy of Country Music awards in April and the CMA awards in October.

Box Office Records By Latest Star Trek Film

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The latest cinema adventure featuring Captain Kirk and Mr. Spock is setting records faster than a speeding bullet.

"Star Trek II: The Wrath of Khan," a sequel by Paramount Pictures, has earned $14.3 million in the nation's theaters to claim a new a three-day record in the movie box office sweepstakes.

The previous three-day champion was last summer's "Superman II," another sequel, which collected $14,100,523 from 1,395 screens.

MGM-United Artists had good news from its summer contender, "Rocky III"; $10,028,555 for the second weekend, an average of $10,681 for the 939 screens. The 10-day total was $30,860,483.

"Poltergeist," MGM-UA's new entry from Steven Spielberg, drew a respectable $6,896,612 in 890 theaters for a three-day average of $7,749. Spielberg's other summer entry, "E.T., The Extra-Terrestrial," is due from Universal next week.

Columbia Pictures was pleased with the limited engagement of "Annie," but less so with the release of the Gene Wilder-Gilda Radner comedy, "Hanky Panky."

The musical was holding firm at $414,685 for last weekend in 14 theaters, for a 17-day total of $2,158,219. It goes into wide release on June 18.

"Hanky Panky" collected a disappointing $3,597,244 in 1,238 theaters.

School Board Sets Summer School Fees

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

Fees for summer school classes and the low bid for construction of a metal building at Rose High were approved by the members of the Greenville City School Board at its information meeting Monday night.

The fees for summer classes for students in grades 7, 8 and 9, to be held at Aycock Junior High, are $30 per course or $60 for the full offering of language, art and math. The summer course at Aycock is for four weeks, June 14-July 9.

The fee for the six weeks of summer school, June 21 to July 30, at Rose High is $60 per student. Summer courses to be offered at Rose will depend on the interest shown by students. Courses can only be offered for which a sufficient number of students enroll.

Except for the 90 students who have already indicated they will enroll for the summer driver education program, all other courses must be self-sustaining, with tuition fees to pay for the teacher's salary for the summer session.

Superintendent Delma Blinson explained that there are no local or state funds earmarked for offering summer classes. If funds from state remediation resources are available, they can be used to supplement the summer program. There are no scholarship or assistance funds for students who may wish to attend summer school but who are unable to pay.

"Under the present system, summer school is a touch-and-go situation. It's a real mess," Dr. Blinson commented. "The only real solution to the problem is some type of tax appropriation to underwrite the program so that we could be able to manage it without the present difficulties."

Eastern Construction Co. was the accepted low bidder at $49,500 for the base bid for the mechanics-graphics arts building to be constructed at Rose High School. Six companies submitted bids on the building, with the high bid at $57,600. Approval of the bid entails a stipulation by the board that action be taken at a later date to add brick walls to the exterior of the building.

In awarding a base bid of $49,500, this leaves $35,500 to finish the building to include heat and ventilation, electrical and plumbing installation, paneling the inside of exterior walls, painting, and installation of interior walls to provide classrooms, offices, a darkroom and storerooms.

The building is due to be completed in time for use in the 1982-83 school year.

Reagan Is Cheered In Parliament Talk

ADDRESSES PARLIAMENT — of both houses of the British Parliament at London's Westminster Hall today. (AP Laserphoto)

LONDON (AP) — President Reagan won cheers from members of Parliament today for a ringing defense of Britain's fight for the Falkland Islands and a challenge to Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev to address

Americans on television, on condition that "he will allow me the same opportunity with the Soviet people."

Reagan also publicly urged Israel to "bring its forces home" from Lebanon. But he offered Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin some succor in the war against Palestinian guerrillas by saying, "We must all work to stamp out the scourge of terrorism that in the Middle East makes war an ever-present threat."

Proposing a worldwide promotional campaign for liberty and democracy, Reagan offered Brezhnev television exposure in the United States and suggested a periodic exchange of television news commentary, to invite Soviet participation in a peaceful "competition for ideas and values."

Such an exchange of television speeches by U.S. and Soviet leaders would renew a practice established by Brezhnev and former President Nixon, who made an unprecedented address broadcast from the Kremlin after a summit meeting in Moscow in May 1972.

Brezhnev was accorded the same privilege when he spoke from Nixon's California home at San Clemente during his visit to the United States in June 1973. Nixon spoke again on Soviet radio and television after his final Moscow summit in July 1974.

Reagan addressed parliamentarians in the 120-year-old Royal Gallery of the Houses of Parliament, speaking from a blue-

Two MiGs Said Downed PLO Says 60,000 Israeli Moved In

By The Associated Press

Israeli jets shot down two Syrian MiGs over the Galilee region of northern Israel today and two more MiGs in dogfights over Damour, 10 miles south of Beirut. Israeli commandos battled north along the Mediterranean coastal highway toward Damour and Israeli warships shelled the Palestinian stronghold.

Palestinian broadcasts claimed 60,000 Israeli troops were now in Lebanon and that they controlled the 50 miles of highway running from the border north to Damour. U.N. officials said five Israeli brigades plus commando units were in Lebanon. An Israeli brigade numbers about 3,500 men.

The intrusion of the MiGs over Galilee, as well as indications that Syrian artillery batteries were shelling Israeli forces inside Lebanon, marked a major escalation of Syrian involvement in the hostilities.

Israel launched a massive invasion Sunday to drive Palestinian forces out of southern Lebanon and prevent PLO artillery from shelling northern Israeli settlements. The Israeli government calls the operation "Peace for Galilee."

The flight of the MiGs over Galilee was the first incursion into Israeli airspace by Arab forces since the 1973 war. The Tel Aviv command said the MiGs were downed by Israeli interceptors, and an Israel radio correspondent said the MiGs apparently were trying to attack an Israeli army convoy in southern Lebanon.

The Tel Aviv command also said its jets downed two Syrian MiGs in northern Lebanon. The Syrian command in Damascus confirmed two of its MiGs were downed in dogfights over Damour, and claimed an Israeli Skyhawk also was shot down. Israel denied any of its planes was hit.

Another Syrian communique said Israeli jets and artillery blasted the Syrian-controlled Lebanese town of Jezzine, killing 20 civilians in the predominantly Christian town. Jezzine is about 12 miles east of Sidon.

The communique said "battles there are still going on at this minute," suggesting that Syrian positions also were shelling the Israelis.

In another development, the Lebanese government announced electricity would be rationed because the power plant in the coastal town of Jiye, 14 miles south of Beirut, was bombed out of action by Israeli forces. The Jiye plant supplied 50 percent of Beirut's electricity, and under the rationing system, nine-hour blackouts were imposed on a rotating basis throughout Lebanon.

In London, President Reagan said in a speech to Parliament that "the fighting in Lebanon on the part of all parties must stop and Israel should bring its forces home. It was Reagan's first call for an Israeli withdrawal, although Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. had done so earlier.

Israel's announced goal was to push the Palestinians back at least 25 miles so their artillery and rockets could no longer hit northern Israel.

COACH DAVE ODOM announces he'll be leaving ECU.

Odom Going To Virginia

By WOODY PEELE

Reflector Sports Editor

David Odom, for the past three years head basketball at East Carolina University, resigned his position this morning to take a post on the staff of the University of Virginia.

Odom had been offered the job by Virginia head coach Terry Holland a little over a week ago, and decided to accept it over the weekend.

The coach said his resignation would become effective June 30, but that he would remain as an unpaid working consultant to the program until the end of the second session of summer school.

Athletic Director Dr. Ken Karr said that an evaluation of the basketball program would be conducted, and that a decision on how to proceed in the selection of a new coach would be decided in about two weeks.

"Since we have the good fortune of having Dave with us until around August 1, I would feel that this might be the deadline for dealing with all our options," Karr said.

"My decision was made after much consideration was given to the people that it affected and to the two fine universities involved," Odom said in a prepared statement.

"I want to sincerely thank those people at East Carolina that have supported me and helped make my three years in Greenville years that my family and I will always remember with a special fondness. I can in all honesty say that the administration, and I want to stress this, and the staff at ECU have always strived to provide me with the tools to be successful," he continued, adding that the entire athletic staff had been helpful and that he was glad for the opportunity for having worked with them.

"I feel that I did receive total backing from the university, alumni, fans, and Eastern North Carolina. I appreciate everything that was done in my behalf. I could not ask for more."

Odom came to East Carolina three years ago following the two-year tenure of Larry Gillman, fired two years into his three-year contract. East Carolina was later placed on a one-year probation because of recruiting irregularities during the Gillman reign.

Prior to coming here, Odom had served for two years on the staff of Carl Tacy at Wake Forest University, and for six years before that, had been head basketball coach at Durham High School, where he won coach of the year honors three times. In 1976, he was chosen to coach the U.S. all-stars in the McDonald's Classic, but declined because of state high school association rules.

In addition to his basketball duties at Durham, he also served tenures as

She adds that she is interested in contacting an anonymous donor who left craft items Monday morning. Among the items, left almost surely accidentally, she said, were two pictures of the same little girl. In one she was posed with Santa Claus; in the other, with the Easter Bunny. Housing Authority To Use Contract System

By TOM BAINES

Reflector Staff Writer

An amendment to the Housing Authority's procurement and disposition policy to enable the agency to use the state purchasing contract in buying needed items was approved Monday night.

Commissioners endorsed utilization of the state contract as a means of saving money in purchasing a variety of items, including office supplies.

Ken Noland, director of operations, said the purchasing contract was discussed at a recent seminar and data was presented which indicated the potential savings that could be realized through contract buying.

Noland said the state has its data stored on microfiche cards and in order to be able to access the information a reader will have to be acquired at a cost of from $150 to $175. Commissioners approved the purchase of a microfiche reader.

Executive director Joe Laney said the authority will not desert the local market and commission member Roscoe King said he would like to see the agency buy as much as possible in the community. Laney said the state contract gives the authority another bargaining tool in making needed purchases.

Noland reported that the

By STUART SAVAGE

Reflector Staff Writer

Four of six candidates for the Ayden-Grifton-Swift Creek townships seat on the Pitt County Board of Commissioners appeared at a Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce candidates forum this morning.

Responding to questions posed by the chamber were Elliott Dixon, Ronald Garris, Robert Halstead and Charles McLawhorn. Candidates Walter Gaskins and Walter Bruce Jones did not attend the session.

The six men are seeking the seat on the board now held by B. Alton Gardner who, after more than 27 years on the board, is not seeking re-election.

Chamber member Tim Rosche, moderator of the forum, said questions posed to the candidates concerned their position on meetings of the Board of Commissioners that are more accessible to the public; the merger of the city and county school systems, industrial development and county support for Sheppard Memorial Library and the Greenville rescue service.

Garris, who told the gathering, "I'm a plain ole country boy," responded to all four questions by saying, "I'm open-minded to anything and anything is subject to change."

He added that he favors growth, "but not at the expense of the people. Let it be for the people."

Dixon responded by saying he would support a "more convenient time," for commissioners' meetings, which normally begin at 10 a.m.

He suggested board meetings start at "4 or 4:30 p.m.," break for supper, then continue with an "evening session," which would be more convenient for county residents.

As for combining the two school systems, Dixon said he has "not looked at merger," but suggested a "task force or committee" be established "to lay out a plan of merger ... see all the details ... then decide."

The candidate noted that, in his opinion, the Pitt County Development Commission "has not been funded at an adequate level," and suggested that the county "make a long term commitment to industrial development."

Dixon also said there is a need for adequate library and rescue service, suggesting that county funding should be based on use by county residents.

"I don't see a problem" with the commissioners' 10 a.m. meeting, Halstead said. "I didn't realize there was this much problem. I'd be willing to have three or four meetings during the year at a more convenient time."

A member of the Pitt County Board of Education, Halstead said he "opposed merger" efforts because of a "duty to support the wishes of my constituents," but noted that, if elected to the Board of Commissioners, he would support a merger of the two systems "if I see the need."

He explained that his opposition to merger as a school board member also involved the questions of loss

NEEDLEPOINT A BASKET

A tisket, a tasket, needlepoint a basket ... and you'll have one of the brightest new ideas in pocketbooks for summer or fall. This roomy basket — the newest of Pat's Learn-a-Stitch projects — is easily made with plastic canvas and nylon needlecraft yarns.

In addition to complete stitch diagrams and construction details, the leaflet also features full monogram charts. Make one or more for yourself and then get a head start on your Christmas list with bags for all of your favorite friends.

To obtain directions for making the monogrammed Basket Bag, send your request for Leaflet No. NP-5040 with $1 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Pat Trexler ("The Daily Reflector"), P.O. Box 810, North Myrtle Beach, S.C. 29582.

Or you can order Kit No. KN-5040 by sending a check or money order for $13.50 to Pat Trexler at the same address. Please specify your choice of the following color combinations: moss green with sunny yellow (designer's choice); brown with soft orange; burgundy with pink; navy with sky blue. If you prefer, you may request white instead of any of the second colors listed. The price includes shipping charges.

Pattern stitchery adds new dimensions to needlepoint regardless of the type of canvas or project. Even traditional pillows or pictures gain from the imaginative use of decorative stitch borders or backgrounds.

One example of a rather unique border stitch is the eight-point star — also known as Canterbury Cross. As on all such stitch charts, the lines of the graph represent the threads of the canvas and the blank squares represent the holes of the canvas.

To work this stitch, bring the needle up in Hole #1, count down and to the left diagonally over two canvas threads and take the needle down in the first hole near the top of the chart that is marked with a little square box. The stitch direction is shown by the solid dark lines. Continue around in the same way, bringing the needle up in a numbered hole and following the stitch direction as shown, keeping in the numbered sequence.

Only the first 11 stitches are numbered, but the remaining stitches are worked the same as the first 11, as shown on the chart. The "wiggly" lines on the chart show how a second pattern repeat joins the first one.

One full pattern repeat covers 12 canvas threads. Thus, you can use this as a geometric border any time that you have a multiple of 12 threads along all edges. In other words, if the border area contains 48 canvas threads in one direction and 60 canvas threads in the other direction, this would fit perfectly as both are evenly divisible by 12.

This can also be used as an overall geometric design best started in the middle of the canvas, centering the first Canterbury Cross and then adding others at all points. When a number of these are worked as an overall design, you will have a blank square of eight canvas threads in the space between each group of four Crosses. This eight-thread square can then be filled in with tent stitches or a variety of pattern stitches.

While I try to give you as much instructional help as possible in this column, it is always easier to teach in person. When and where to hold needlepoint workshops, however, was a dilemma for me until I had an idea while vacationing last February in Hawaii.

In between golfing, swimming, eating and loafing, I was — of course — stitching. Other tourists always gathered around and wanted to know what I was making and how it was done, so I found myself teaching informally almost daily. The thought then struck me that this was an ideal place to hold needlepoint classes — away from all the usual distractions.

Since then, I have been working on lesson plans and have made arrangements with the Sheraton Resort Hotel at Kalua Koi on the island of Molokai to hold a week-long seminar there next February for beginning and intermediate level needlepointers. If you think you would like to participate, write to me at P.O. Box 810, North Myrtle Beach, S.C. 29582 and I will send you the details.

Dear Abby

Judge Frees Himself From Chain-Smoking

© 1982 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I am a 70-year-old retired municipal judge from the Philippines. Ten years ago I suffered a serious heart attack. I had been a chain smoker for nearly 40 years, averaging four packs of cigarettes a day. My physician ordered me to stop smoking. I objected vehemently, promising to cut down but not quit entirely.

In 1979, when I was strong enough to travel, my wife and I came to the U.S.A. On Nov. 18, 1981, I read in your column in the Long Beach (Calif.) Press-Telegram: "Tomorrow will mark the Fifth Annual Great American Smokeout, a good-humored, upbeat, one-day campaign to encourage smokers to give up cigarettes for 24 hours — just to prove to themselves that they can. It's the brainchild of the American Cancer Society, which insists that anyone who can live without a cigarette for 24 hours can quit forever. So if you are hooked on cigarettes and have been meaning to quit, why not start tomorrow — for just 24 hours? It won't be easy, but I promise you it will be the best present you can give yourself and those you love you."

I decided to give it a try. I quit for one day, then another, and another, and I have not touched a cigarette since! The cough and chest pains I used to have have stopped, and I no longer crave a cigarette.

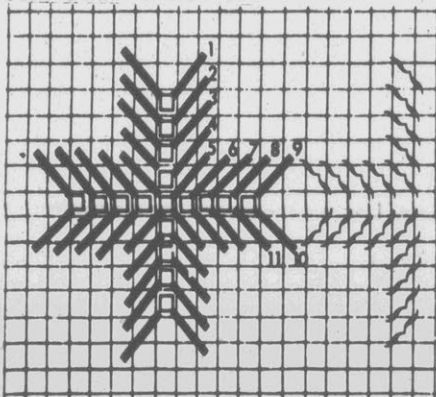

I wish I could personally thank you for this, for if I could, I would not only shake your hands firmly, but would kiss them as well as a sincere manifestation of my appreciation and gratitude. You may use my name.

JUDGE JOSE L. COLLADO

DEAR JUDGE: Your letter is more than sufficient thanks for me. And if there are other readers who quit smoking on the Great American Smokeout Day, I want to hear from you!

CONFIDENTIAL TO MY READERS: If a member of your family has been diagnosed as "mentally ill" and is living at home, please write and tell me what problems this has created for you. Your firsthand experiences are needed for an important mental health study.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

Sometimes I think women are their own worst enemies. Take pregnancy. Please. To be "with child" used to get you a seat on the bus, a pillow for your back, 30 days in bed watching soap operas following the birth, and 10 years of intense guilt for your husband.

For more than half a century, we had a good thing going for us. Then, one by one, our benefits began to tumble. Pregnancy isn't the fun time it used to be. As the list of no-nos keeps getting longer, so does the list of yes-yesses.

You can't smoke because it's harmful to the baby and to you, but you can do aerobics.

You can't drink alcohol because of the potential danger to the fetus, but you can work up to the last day.

You can't indulge yourself by eating because the delivery can be difficult, but it's all right to jog. You can't shop for clothes because nothing fits, but you can get into a swimsuit and do three miles every morning. Even coffee drinking is a no-no, but you can play tennis.

I don't know when someone figured out that exercise and fresh air were compatible with pregnancy, but women's lives haven't been the same since.

Personally, there's nothing I loved any more in my 11th month than a good volleyball game, but some women have gone overboard.

Mary Bacon, a jockey, gave birth to a daughter soon after riding her third horse of the day.

Wendy Boglioli, the Olympic swim champion, was in her fifth month of pregnancy when she competed in the 100-yard freestyle at the American Amateur Athletic Union meet.

Andrea Mead Lawrence won two gold medals in Alpine hours and five minutes near the end of her eighth month of pregnancy.

Cookout, Pool Party Held

Coley Vainright was entertained at a cookout and pool party Wednesday in celebration of his birthday. The party was held at the home of Henry and Pennie Dunn.

Gerald Dunn assisted in serving guests. Birthday cake was served by Marga Ross.

Special guests were Sallie Vainright, wife of the honoree, their sons, Gregg and Stevie and friends, Laurie and Sherry, Almata Harris, Pauline Ross, Elizabeth Moore, Evelyn Beasley, Margie Humenay, Cecil and Lillian Bradshaw, Van and Louise Cox, Douglas Ross, Lloyd and Marie Stocks.

Von Bulow Wins Stay From Term

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — A state Supreme Court justice has saved Claus von Bulow from beginning the 30-year prison term he faces on convictions of twice trying to murder his heiress wife. Von Bulow, 55, spent about an hour in the custody of Newport County sheriffs Monday after Newport Superior Court Judge Thomas H. Needham revoked his $1 million bail because the socialite had failed to submit a list of $900,000 in assets as a condition for freedom pending an appeal of the convictions.

But defense lawyer John F. Sheehan quickly won a stay of the revocation from state Supreme Court Justice Florence K. Murray, who freed von Bulow until the high court could settle arguments about the conditions of his bail.

Von Bulow has been free on $100,000 cash bail on his March 16 conviction of twice trying to kill Martha "Sunny" von Bulow with insulin injections during Christmas visits to their Newport estate in 1979 and 1980. Mrs. von Bulow has been in a coma at a New York City hospital since the second alleged attempt on her life.

His lawyers are contesting a requirement that the Danish-born financial consultant make an additional $900,000 in assets available for the state to claim if his appeal is rejected and he fails to surrender to begin his prison term. The appeal might not be decided for two years.

"The problem is that we don't want to tie up those assets, stocks or securities or whatever, for two years," Sheehan said.

Von Bulow had until Monday to submit an acceptable list of valuables, either in personal goods or corporate stocks and bonds.

Candidates' Promises

Former President Carter, speaking at a convention, said he knew the refusal of Iran to return the U.S. hostages meant that he would be defeated by Ronald Reagan.

"Rosalynn and I both knew that there was no chance for me to be re-elected," he said in a talk to the American Booksellers Association.

Carter, who will soon be publishing his memoirs, made it clear that the hostage situation was a major concern to him.

"The capture of the hostages ... began the worst year of my life," he said. He noted he had advice ranging from returning the shah to Iran to "dropping an atomic bomb on Tehran."

But he felt that he made the correct decisions. If he had taken military action "I think the hostages would be dead today," he said.

Certainly the Iranian hostage situation was a time of agony for the president and, indeed, for the entire nation. If Carter is blaming his defeat on that impasse, however, he is ignoring other difficulties which contributed to his defeat.

As a candidate Carter had promised much for the future of the nation. Instead, we found ourselves with rapidly rising energy costs and a soaring inflation rate. That left the public disgruntled. If the nation had been in more stable economic times, we think the public would have forgiven the hostage situation. Indeed, the public was supportive of the administration's efforts at the time.

It is in the nature of American politics, however, to promise much during a campaign. Reality sets in after a candidate becomes president and things have to be dealt with as they are.

LIKE HE NEVER LEFT HOME!

Angered By Tip O'Neill

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — In a meeting with House Republican leaders that lasted over one hour, President Reagan dropped his good-guy posture and vented his intense personal dissatisfaction with Speaker Thomas P. (Tip) O'Neill.

The congressmen were surprised to hear Reagan personally blame O'Neill for the embarrassment he faced on the eve of his European grand tour. The president attacked the speaker as responsible for no budget resolution passing. Reagan took that failure personally because of its coincidence with his departure for Europe.

A footnote: Supply-siders at the meeting — led by Reps. Ed Bethune of Arkansas and Jack Kemp of New York — came away with mixed results. They got Reagan to declare he was committed only to one year of deficit-reducing tax increases. But they could not convince the president to junk the deficit-expanding economic assumptions of David Stockman's Office of Management and Budget.

No Mideast Summit

Despite Reagan administration efforts, a proposed Mideast summit conference in Washington between President Reagan, Egyptian president Hosni Mubarak and Israeli prime minister Menachem Begin never got out of the planning stage.

High administration officials, including Secretary of State Alexander Haig, were looking for some way to break the Egyptian-Israeli deadlock on West Bank autonomy talks. Bringing Mubarak here to join a previously-planned meeting between Reagan and Begin looked promising. It seemed a way out of Israel's refusal to hold the next autonomy session anywhere other than Jerusalem and Mubarak's refusal to hold it anywhere except Jerusalem.

Begin told the U.S. he would be glad to meet Mubarak here, but then added, gratuitously in the view of State Department officials, this caveat: No meeting in Washington can weaken Israel's insistence on holding the next autonomy session in Jerusalem. For his part, Mubarak feared getting mousetrapped by the Israelis and the Americans during the Washington summit in a way that might veto his refusal to go to Jerusalem.

No For Miami
The Democrats may hold their 1984 national convention in Miami, site of the 1968 and 1972 Republican conventions, thanks to an intervention by militant feminist Eleanor Smeal.

Democratic leaders veto holding their convention in any state that has not ratified the Equal Rights Amendment (ERA). That rules out Chicago. But Smeal has given a dispensation to Miami because of unanimous Miami City Council support for ERA, even though Florida has not ratified the amendment. In the opinion of Democratic insiders, that puts Miami in first place for '84.

A footnote: Democratic national chairman Charles T. Manatt would prefer holding the convention in his home state of California. But Los Angeles will be busy with the 1984 Olympics, and San Francisco has no suitable convention hall.

Dole's Role
A Sunday evening telephone call from President Reagan laid it squarely on the line to Sen. Bob Dole: Mr. Chairman, while I'm away in Europe, please protect and defend the third-year tax cut with your very life!

Finance Committee chairman Dole needed no such advice. He told Reagan sentiment was hardening on Capitol Hill in favor of the 10 percent, third-year cut in marginal rates for individual income taxpayers. Moreover, White House aides agree with Dole that the political impact of the second-year, 10 percent cut, starting July 1, would further reinforce congressional reluctance to repeal or delay the third year.

Dole's committee is expected to attach $95 billion in new taxes to the pending increase in the debt ceiling. But the third-year tax cut most definitely will not be savaged in order to reach $95 billion.

THIS AFTERNOON

Expects Turnover

By PAUL T. O'CONNOR
RALEIGH — North Carolina's incumbent county commissioners can expect to take a beating at the polls this year, a lobbyist for the N.C. Association of County Commissioners said recently.

Patrice Rosler told a conference sponsored by the N.C. Center for Public Policy Research that she expects an unusual amount of turnover in county commissioner ranks this year. Each election usually sees about 30 percent of the incumbents leave office through either retirement or defeat, she said. This year, expect that rate to be higher, although she didn't have a precise estimate.

There are two reasons, she said. Commissioners are catching heat from both directions. Anti-government sentiment continues to run strong. People who feel government is doing a poor job, who say taxes are too high and government too big are lambasting incumbent commissioners. A good number of taxpayer groups have been formed this year.

On the other side, people who have found their benefits reduced through federal and state budget cutting are likely to vent their anger at the incumbent commissioners. Since counties deliver many of these services, counties must notify people that they're no longer going to receive the benefits. Some people won't understand that the cutting was done at a higher level and they'll blame the commissioners. Others will blame the commissioners for not doing more to continue services.

The combination of concerns has led to local races which are far more bitter in tone than usual, she said.

Ms. Rosler painted a budgetary picture for counties this year that may make many of the election losers feel like winners. On top of all the upheaval created by last year's federal and state budget cuts comes the congressional difficulties with passing a budget for next year. As counties put their budgets together this month for the fiscal year starting July 1, commissioners are making a lot of assumptions that may turn out to be erroneous.

A typical county budget in North Carolina consists of 25 percent federal money. Another 12 percent is state money. The commissioners are guessing, right now, about how much federal money they can expect to receive for certain programs. If they guess wrong, there'll be political mayhem with programs getting cut in mid-year and budgets being

ing, rather than eliminating, programs, she said. Ms. Rosler contacted all 100 counties and received responses from 53. She asked where they are cutting back and found that most county decisions are being made in the area of Title XX social service programs.

For example, the chore worker program which provides in-home housecleaning and help to people unable to fend for themselves, is not being eliminated. But chore workers are being laid off. The remaining workers spread the extra work out further and spend less time at each home.

Cuts were also made in daycare centers. She knew of no center being closed but administrative personnel were laid off.

With these cuts, she expects counties to face greater demands for service to the indigent and with that comes the inevitable rise in tax rates on July 1.

Surplus Cheese, Butter

WASHINGTON — On May 5 Secretary of Agriculture John R. Block announced his big cheese-and-butter plan. A month later, it seems unhappily evident that the plan has laid a large egg. On Capitol Hill, where politics is thicker than whipping cream, few members are disposed to take on the dairy lobby.

Yet something has to be done before a taxpayers' rebellion arises, and both Block and his farm constituency know it. The story offers a classic example of the maxim that nothing fails like success. The present price-support law has succeeded so marvelously in increasing dairy production that the surpluses add up to a political and economic failure.

As recently as fiscal '79, government purchases of dairy products amounted to $49 million. In the current '82 fiscal year, purchases will in world markets that such a giveaway would provoke.

How about giving the stuff to our own poor folks? Even here there is a limit to free distribution. Block announced on May 30 that the CCC would give away 50 million pounds of surplus butter before the end of the year — about two pounds each to 25 million families — but new purchases in this same period will produce no net reduction in the surplus stocks. In this race between the government and the milk producers, it is like Alice in Wonderland: Block has to run as fast as he can to stay in the same place.

Barring action from Congress, the lunacy can only get worse. The present price support of $13.10 per hundredweight will be succeeded on Oct. 1 by a new price of $14. A year later the law requires a price support of $14.60. Any schoolboy could predict the consequences: More cows, more milk, more purchases by the CCC, more discontent among the taxpayers who recognize folly when they see it.

Block's plan, identified as the Emergency Dairy Adjustment Act of 1982, would vest discretionary authority in the secretary of agriculture to reduce the price-support levels. In his statement last month, Block promised that, if granted this authority, he would make no change prior to Jan. 1. At that time, he would not cut the price to a level below $12. The effect, he hopes, would be to encourage a gradual 10 percent reduction in dairy herds. A couple of years down the road, producers might be milking a amount to $2 billion. Unless the present law is amended, the next three years will see more than $6 billion paid out.

And for what? What does the government get for these billions? The Commodity Credit Corporation winds up with millions of pounds of dairy products expensively stored in refrigerated warehouses and in the cool caves of Kansas. By Oct. 1, despite Block's best efforts to get rid of the stuff, the taxpayers will own 445 million pounds of butter, 818 million pounds of cheese and 1.2 billion pounds of non-fat dry milk.

It sounds absurd and it is absurd. What about the starving children of Bangladesh? Block would give it away, but the law won't let him. What is known as Public Law 480 now forbids the kind of disruption

To the editor:

I'm not sure how many people are familiar with the Regional Rehabilitation Center that is part of Pitt Memorial Hospital. It is a portion of the hospital (I understand there are only four or five in the state) that is set up to handle the care of stroke victims, and other people who have lost the use of a limb through some unfortunate accident. Their positive program and attitude is formulated to return the individual as much as possible into the mainstream of life.

I have just had a very personal experience with the Rehabilitation Center in the care of my mother who experienced a stroke on the 7th of March. After her stroke she could barely move her right arm and leg, in addition to experiencing speech and eyesight difficulty. She has just completed a 10-week stay in this center, where she daily was involved in a very professionally organized and directed program of physical therapy, occupational therapy, recreational therapy and speech therapy. We all expect good care in a hospital, but no one could possibly expect the complete dedication, interest, encouragement, support and attention that was always visible from the Rehabilitation Center staff.

My mother is 87 and is now able to walk some with help, move her right arm, speak more clearly and is generally on her way to a physical recovery that will allow her to ultimately return to her home. This would not have been possible without an intensive effort by the Rehabilitation staff. Pitt County, and, indeed, the entire East, are fortunate to have this type of medical facility staffed with such dedicated personnel.

To the editor:

I see where those doctory Senators — some of whom had just emerged furtively from a hiding place in the darkened Chapel — girded on their collective machismo and declared that while Motherhood and Womanhood were ok, Women had better stay in their Place and not try to claim equality, under the law, with their menfolks.

One of the Senators announced on television that he himself in person had served on the front lines or in some other such dangerous place during the last war and that, by God, he wouldn't have wanted a woman there beside him at the time, with hell bustin' loose and all.

But I think that if he had got hungry, and the woman had come crawling up from the rear with a mess of collards, mashed potatoes, hot corn bread and apple pie that she had fixed for him in the rocket's red glare; and with some clean underwear that she had washed and mended for him by the dawn's early light — why he might not have minded her presence there so much after all, bombs bursting in air notwithstanding. Just so she stayed in her Place.

The fact is, of course, that the proposed ERA didn't say anything about the front line or any other line except, by implication, the dividing line between equality and inequality. Maybe you women out there who think you're equal had better stop voting for those men who think you're not. Otherwise, those gallant defenders of Womanhood, but not of Women, are bound to keep right on thinking that you're Just Plain Dumb.

Strength For Today

FORGIVENESS

A psychiatrist was speaking. "Almost everyone with whom we deal in mental institutions," he said, "is overwhelmed with a sense of guilt. Sixty to seventy percent of all our patients would walk out of mental institutions tomorrow if they could be relieved of that sense of guilt."

The sense of guilt is probably no stronger today than it has been in the past. People then as well as now have felt it settling down upon them at some time, and many have carried it through life — an awful burden indeed.

The gospel, or the good news, has promised hope and release from guilt when people accept on faith the assurance of the Word of God that, through Jesus Christ, the heavenly Father has offered forgiveness to all men and women. The only people who will not be forgiven are those who believe that they have nothing for which to be forgiven. All who want forgiveness may have it. The only requirements are repentance and faith. — Elisha Douglass

Think Before Making A Call

By JOHN CUNNINGHAM
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Ma Bell is in a snit about the way her flock of customers is being treated by some overseas hotels. They're padding the bills on international phone calls, she says.

Upholstering might better describe the practice. According to AT&T, parent of the great Bell family of phone companies (over which the fictitious Ma "presides") says surcharges range up to 300 percent.

The company also says it is fed up with the practice because, among other things, it loses millions of dollars a year when Americans traveling abroad believe rates are too high for them to call home.

And they do. The company's director of correspondent relations, one of the fellows who deals with foreign phone companies, says the surcharges account for about 90 percent of complaints made to him.

He cites these examples: —A traveler who made a $22 call from West Berlin to Philadelphia, and then found when checking out that he was billed $60 by the hotel.

—A guest who complained to a Paris hotel when billed $90 for two $7.50 calls, and was told the $75 surcharge covered the cost of phone equipment and staffing the switchboard with multilingual operators.

—A Swiss hotel that "reportedly" has netted $35,000 a year in surcharges.

"Some modest charges are reasonable," said the PR representative. It is true, he said, that hotels in recent years have had to pay for more modern equipment and that they must have a multilingual staff.

"But they have made a profit center out of the switchboard," he complained.

In most instances, he said, the traveler has no idea he is being billed by the hotel at far above its actual costs.

"When you get your bill you learn about it for the first time, and it isn't broken out as a surcharge," he said. Burdened with luggage, and racing to make connections, the customer is in no position to argue very long.

"When there is time for indignation," he said, "the hotel cashier smilingly explains that the service fee is standard hotel practice. Complain to the manager and he says the same thing."

While such surcharges might be standard in many overseas hotels, they are not customary in the United States, and that makes Americans particularly vulnerable to the practice.

So bothersome has the practice become that AT&T assigned a director — that's one step below vice president — to come up with a solution. E.E. Carr, the director, designed what is now called Teleplan.

Teleplan is an agreement with overseas hotels to set moderate surcharges and a fixed maximum, regardless of the length of the call. That latter consideration, the call's length, is important, since many of the offending hotels continue to surcharge by the minute.

Teleplan agreements recently were arranged with Comfort Hotels in United Kingdom, France and Netherlands; Inter-Hotels Switzerland; Novotel Hotels in Germany and Austria; Mandarin International in the Far East; and the Panama National Hotel Association.

Similar agreements to limit telephone surcharges already are in effect with the hotel associations of Ireland, Israel and Portugal; Hilton International Hotels worldwide; Marriot Hotels; Golden Tulip Hotels Holland; The Lygon Arms in England; and the Ledra in Cyprus.

At non-Teleplan hotels, advises AT&T, you may avoid big charges by briefly calling home — most surcharges are based on length of call, so the bill will be relatively small — and asking them to call you.

And though AT&T didn't say it, you can save even more by just not calling at all.

European Ratings

President Reagan, on his first trip to Europe since he took office, will probably receive a more sympathetic reception than he would have six months ago. According to a U.S. government poll, about 60 percent of Europeans believe Reagan is "sincere" in his arms control plans. About the same percentage believe Soviet President Brezhnev to be "insincere." Experts believe that Reagan's recent peace proposals have helped dispel his militaristic image, while Russia's role in Poland's repression has reinforced the negative image of Brezhnev. But not all Europeans are happy with the President. Some Labour Party members have threatened to boycott Reagan's scheduled address to the British Parliament today.

Teachers Oppose Pay Freeze

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Almost 2,500 angry public school teachers marched Monday to urge state legislators to preserve scheduled salary increases while Equal Rights Amendment supporters tried to design a plan to salvage ERA.

The teachers, members of the North Carolina Association of Educators, rallied at the association headquarters in downtown Raleigh and marched eight blocks to the Legislative Building. After a protest there, the group marched to the Governor's Mansion. Gov. Jim Hunt did not appear.

Hunt, with the support of legislative budget leaders, has proposed cancelling scheduled raises for merit and added pay steps for the coming year. The move would save $90 million.

Some teachers waved signs saying, "Freeze Gov. Hunt and All His Turkeys," "Hunt Uses N.C. For D.C.," and "Dedication Won't Pay the Light Bill." At one point in the march they sang, "We're going to hang Jim Hunt from the sour apple tree."

In the legislative gallery, teachers chanted, "Freeze, Freeze, Freeze," and "Vote You Out," as soon as lawmakers adjourned.

The NCAE endorsed Hunt for governor in 1976 and 1980. In a letter to Wilson, Hunt said a deep recession, high unemployment and lagging state tax revenues had caused a budget shortfall that made the freeze necessary.

"The only alternative to this approach would be substantial reductions in personnel," Hunt said.

But Wilson said teachers want lawmakers to change the tax-payment schedule for corporations, producing a one-time $90-million tax windfall to the state that could be used to pay scheduled raises.

Bernard Allen, an NCAE lobbyist, said the group also wants legislators to increase taxes on alcoholic beverages to raise money for teachers' salaries.

Legislative budget committees delayed action Monday on the pay freeze when one legislator, Rep. Jeanne Fenner, D-Wilson, said she wanted to invite state Treasurer Harlan Boyles to speak to the committee.

Boyles has said he believes money is available to balance the budget without freezing pay.

In other legislative action Monday, a number of new bills were filed in the House to abolish the town of Haywood in Chatham County, to appropriate $25,000 for Western North Carolina Public Radio Inc., to appropriate $24,000 for the Dispute Settlement Center Inc. in Orange County, to appropriate $25,000 for the study of day care and to raise the annual gift tax exclusion from $3,000 to $10,000.

Members of the Senate filed bills to provide an income tax credit for contributions to the North Carolina Symphony or N.C. Art Museum, to increase the permissible length of farm trailers to 50 feet, to provide overtime pay for forestry employees fighting forest fires and to raise criminal court costs by $1 for the benefit and retirement fund of law-enforcement officers.

of local control, busing students, inadequate funding to insure the best of each system as the minimum standard for a merged system, and the position taken by local county school advisory councils which opposed merger.

Halstead voiced support for "controlled development" according to a long-range plan, as well as library and rescue service.

As for the commissioners' meeting schedule, McLawhorn said "I think they should be accessible" and expressed his willingness to consider "any proposal" which would help improve attendance at commissioners' sessions.

"We need to take a good hard look at whatever is best" for the schools, McLawhorn said, indicating that "Pitt County has two good school systems" at this time.

He also voiced support for increased industrial development efforts, saying the "effect" of industrial development in the county in the past has been "dramatic."

McLawhorn said county financial support for Sheppard Memorial Library, which began in 1935, and for Greenville rescue service, which started in 1962, "should continue." But he suggested that a "charge for transportation" by rescue units, which in most cases would be paid for by insurance companies, might be one way to increase financial support for emergency medical service operations.

During a question and answer session, the four candidates expressed support for the reinstatement of a county planner which was dropped from the 1981-82 budget by the present Board of Commissioners as a money-saving measure.

•Approved a revised calendar for the 1982-83 school year. Three changes have been made from the original calendar. One is deleting the student holiday-teacher workday previously scheduled for Feb. 25 and moving that to an Aug. 16 workday to provide the required 180 school days. The last day of the 1982 summer school session was shifted from July 23 to July 30 and the May 23 student holiday was moved to May 30 so it would coincide with Memorial Day. This will be a student holiday only.

•Approved on first reading two policy papers. For both policy papers, adoption applies only to the policy statement, not to the regulations and procedures applicable to the policies.

The first policy deals with promotion, retention and placement of students. In part the policy reads "The major criteria to be used in promoting, retaining, or placing a student shall be demonstrated pupil achievement. 'Social promotion' is not acceptable. Assessment of achievement shall be based on appropriate multiple criteria; including course grades, criteria references tests, norm referenced tests, teacher judgment, and appropriate psychological tests."

The second policy paper is on conflict of interest and prevention of nepotism. This covers prevention of employment, assignment or placement that would permit anyone to evaluate or make other decisions related to any other school employee who is a member of his or her immediate family. The definition of immediate family covers relationships all the way from a spouse to in-laws and step-relations.

Both these policies are due for a final reading at the first school board meeting in July.

•Received a report showing that questionnaires on interest in an after-school program reveals that 73 parents were interested in the program for children in grades K-3, and 25 parents were interested for children in grades 4-6, for a total of 98. The school board will have to decide whether the program can be operated on a break-even basis without using funds from the regular school program. Utilities costs must also be considered.

Blinson said it would be legitimate to consider use of community schools funds for the program. He also mentioned an after-school program will entail an entirely separate staff other than the regular school staff.

•Approved personnel action, in executive session, on: one leave of absence, one contract renewal, one resignation and one maternity leave.

•Delayed action on the system's affirmative action plan to allow time to assemble a community committee of approximately 12 persons to give further input to a draft plan. Board members suggested such a committee include representatives from the area's three leading black organizations, the League of Women Voters and other organizations that have shown an interest in formulating the affirmative action plan.

•Agreed it is essential that board members, as a board and as individuals, take action to oppose proposed legislation that would authorize a 1 percent optional sales tax for counties. The tax would not be tied to school financing. Other measures before the Legislature would establish a mandatory 1 percent sales tax tied directly to school funds.

PCC Courses Are Announced

Pitt Community College will offer two basic introductory courses in electricity and electronics. The courses are designed to provide a sound understanding of the basic elements and theory of electricity and electronics in preparation for further study. Participation in these courses will be especially beneficial to those students studying the plant engineering series on electrical maintenance.

Session I will begin June 14 and meet Monday and Wednesday nights. Session II will begin June 15 and meet Tuesday and Thursday nights.

Each course will meet from 7-10 p.m. for six sessions, totaling 18 hours. The class will be conducted in the Pitt Community College Attmore Building, located on W. 5th Street next to the Medical Pavilion building. The registration fee is $8 per person. Books will be furnished at no cost.

Interested persons should plan to enroll the first night of classes due to a limited enrollment policy. For additional information, contact carpeted dais underneath portraits of British monarchs. Many Laborites, opposed to Reagan's nuclear policy and support for right-wing governments, were absent. The president's audience totaled only about one-third of the 1,813 members of the House of Commons and House of Lords.

As Reagan left the chamber for lunch with British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher at 10 Downing St., a group of women peace demonstrators with blackened faces shouted "Reagan Out." It was not known whether the president noticed them in the crowd of 400 people.

Another group of about 40 demonstrators shouted and waved their fists as the Reagans arrived at the prime minister's residence to dine on lobster, beef and strawberries. When Reagan's motorcade drove up, it was on the righthand side of Downing Street — the wrong side in Britain.

The parliamentarians, who could be expected to maintain a dignified reserve during a world leader's speech, interrupted Reagan with applause twice — once when he proposed dual television appearances with Brezhnev and again, more vigorously, when he defended Britain's battle in the Falklands.

Reagan said British forces were fighting for more than "lumps of rock and earth so far away."

"Those young men aren't fighting for mere real estate. They fight for a cause, for the belief that armed aggression must not be allowed to succeed, and that people must participate in the decisions of government under the rule of law," Reagan declared.

In his speech, which was

million fewer cows than they are milking now.

The administration's bill also contemplates a restoration of authority to donate surplus dairy products to hungry people around the world. Here at home, efforts would be intensified to give away cheese and butter to such eligible institutions as schools, child care centers, summer camps, hospitals and nursing homes — but the catch is that, to the extent these donations replace purchases that otherwise would be made, the government is no better off.

Looking at the figures, Block professes a steadfast optimism that something effective will be done. The secretary was born to be a scoutmaster in a Norman Rockwell painting; he exudes a simple faith that if only the people and the Congress will understand the problem, the Congress will rise above politics and do what has to be done. In recent speeches to dairymen around the country, Block says he has encountered a responsible reaction. The typical dairyman is willing to cut his own production — but not until his neighbor makes the same move.

The whole situation is ludicrous. If the cost weren't so painful it would be something to laugh about, but on Capitol Hill, when someone says "cheese," nobody smiles.

Behind the scenes at the Paris and Bonn summit conferences, President Reagan is trying delicately and diplomatically to sell British prime minister Margaret Thatcher on giving up the idea of self-determination as the final solution of the Falkland Islands war.

What Reagan wants is a display of great magnanimity by Thatcher. She wants Reagan to agree on a contingent of American troops — perhaps a couple of hundred or less — as part of the post-war peacekeeping force on the islands.

Some advisers are urging Reagan to agree on grounds it might strengthen his hand against self-determination. Falkland Islanders would opt for permanent British sovereignty, and that makes self-determination unacceptable for Argentina.

devoted primarily to hailing the attributes of democracy and denouncing totalitarianism, Reagan said the world's democratic nations have been too shy in promoting their own strengths.

"Let us be shy no longer," Reagan said. "Let us go to our strength. Let us offer hope. Let us tell the world that a new age is not only possible but probable."

"What I am describing now," he said, "is a plan and a hope for the long term — the march of freedom and democracy which will leave Marxism-Leninism on the ash heap of history as it has left other tyrannies which stifle the freedom and muzzle the self-expression of the people."

Reagan's speech followed a wave of criticism in Britain — particularly in the press — over a U.S. voting flip-flop in the United Nations on Friday. The United States at first joined the British in vetoing a Security Council resolution calling for a cease-fire in the Falklands, but then announced it had intended to abstain instead. Kirkpatrick Says U.S. Still Inept

NEW YORK (AP) — Jeane Kirkpatrick, ambassador to the United Nations, said today she was not criticizing the Reagan administration's foreign policy when she said the United States has been impotent in the U.N. and has been "stumbling ... almost on a Mad Hatter basis."

In a speech to the Heritage Foundation on Monday, Mrs. Kirkpatrick said the United States has shown an ineptitude in the United Nations that has "persisted for decades."

Interviewed on ABC's "Nightline" early today, Mrs. Kirkpatrick said she was not referring to the embarrassing diplomatic gaffe Friday, when she cast a veto against a Security Council resolution that called for a ceasefire between Great Britain and Argentina in the Falkland Islands.

On instructions from Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr., she later tried to retract the vote, announcing the orders to abstain had come too late, an event she termed a "pure communications snafu."

In her speech, she said one reason for a poor performance at the U.N. is that the United States has been unable to express a cohesive national purpose; instead the country has been "stumbling from issue to issue almost on a Mad Hatter basis."

She said another problem is that U.S. delegates leave the job before getting to know the ropes, and noted that the Soviet Union keeps personnel on the job for decades. On ABC she suggested appointing career officers as ambassadors might help solve the problem, although she added even career officers turn over quickly in a form of "bureaucratic turbulence."

In her speech, she indicated she wasn't planning an extended stay in the job. "I couldn't stand it, I don't believe," the former Georgetown University professor said.

Mrs. Kirkpatrick, who has been at odds with Haig and the administration's policy of support for Britain in the Falklands crisis, said on "Nightline" that the British performance at the Security Council was one the United States should seek to emulate.

"It is very strange that we Americans, who are very good at ... politics, should be so inept at international politics in arenas such as the United Nations," she told the Heritage Foundation.

The ineptitude, she added, "has persisted through several decades, several administrations" with Americans conducting foreign policy "like a bunch of amateurs."

The ambassador said she had been reflecting for months on what she called "our unhappy fall from influence to impotence."

"Unless we approach the United Nations as professionals, political professionals ... then we don't even know if the United Nations can be made a more hospitable place for American national interest," she said.

In the ABC interview, Mrs. Kirkpatrick said she was not criticizing U.S. foreign policy.

NCNB Pondering New Acquisitions

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — NCNB Corp. officials say they're ready for their next step in the proposed mergers with four banks that would give the Southeast's largest bank holding company more than $10 billion in assets.

Some industry analysts and officials with competing banks say the rapid pace of the proposed mergers suggests the regional banking giant may be moving too far, too fast.

NCNB officials and industry analysts say the company's next step is to determine how to absorb the new acquisitions without seriously draining earnings.

By themselves, the four firms about to be absorbed by NCNB would rank as North Carolina's fourth largest financial institution. Their combined assets of $2.4 billion compare to the $7.7 billion in assets now held by NCNB, already the Southeast's largest bank holding company.

With the clout of more than $10 billion in assets, NCNB will be among a handful of major regional banks, positioned to be more of a factor in both regional and national financial markets.

"We are at a watershed, a cross-point," said NCNB President Hugh McCroll. With the completion of pending mergers, "the major acquisition phase is over."

profitability. We wish to make our shareholders wealthy, by making more money on our asset base. That is where our energies will be directed."

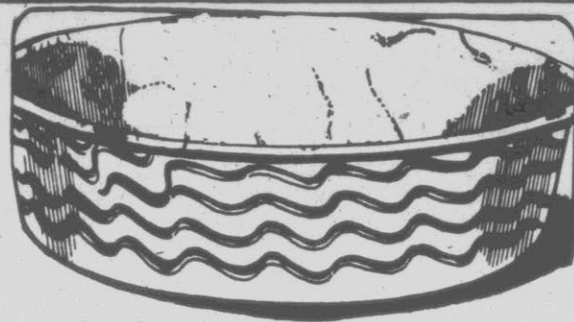

But some industry observers wonder how much the firm's current earnings will be affected by the burden of new stock and the weight of borrowed money NCNB is using to pay for the acquisitions. And they ask if NCNB has enough depth of management to fight what will amount to a two-front war — North Carolina and Florida — in the increasingly competitive financial services industry.

"I think they have a tough row to hoe for the next couple of years," said Dick Stillinger, an analyst with Keefe, Bruyette & Woods Inc.

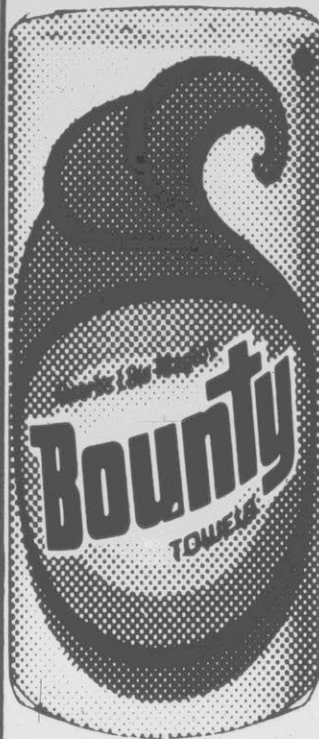

Report Accident At Intersection

Dennis Hilton Smith of Washington was charged with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of a 9:45 a.m. collision Monday at the intersection of Dickinson Avenue and Truman Street.

Police investigators said the Smith car collided with a truck driven by Joe Daniek of Winterville, causing an estimated $450 damage to the truck and $2,800 damage to the car.

Receive $30,000 Grant For Vocational Center

The East Carolina Vocational Center has received a $30,000 grant from the Kate B. Reynolds Health Care Trust of Winston-Salem. Presentation of a check for the grant was made to Morris Brody, fund-raising campaign chairman for the center, by Dr. Edward Monroe.

Dr. Monroe, associate dean of the school of medicine, East Carolina University, is also a member of the advisory board of the Reynolds Health Care Trust.

The $30,000 grant will be used toward expansion construction and equipment costs of the rehabilitation center. Brody heads the drive to raise capital funds to pay for a neccarea at the center and for purchase of equipment to be used in training participants in a variety of educational programs. The total goal in the campaign has been securing funds to finance the $5.1 million project.

The Reynolds Health Care Trust, a private foundation with headquarters in Winston-Salem, was created in 1946 through provisions in the will of Mrs. William N. Reynolds for the purpose of improving health care to the people of North Carolina.

Approximately $1.5 million is awarded each year in grants to non-profit organizations throughout the state. The current areas of interest for the trust are programs which promote access to primary health care, alternative health delivery programs which are cost-effective and illness prevention-health promotion programs.

Odom Going...

Prior to going to Durham, he served for one year as head basketball coach at Goldsboro High School, his alma mater, and was also an assistant there in football and baseball.

As a high school player in Goldsboro, he played football, baseball and basketball. Then, at Guilford College, he played both football and basketball.

At Goldsboro, he was named the Most Valuable player in football as a senior, and served as captain of the baseball, football and basketball team that year.

At Guilford, he was named the best undergraduate athlete in 1965, and was captain of the basketball team as a senior.

The 39-year-old Odom is married to the former Lynn Atkins, and they have two sons, Lane and Ryan.

In his three-year career at East Carolina, Odom compiled a 38-42 record, the best coming in his first season, 16-11, and the worst this last year, 10-17.

East Carolina joined the ECAC-South during the third year of Odom's tenure, and he praised that move as a great help to the program.

Odom had already completed recruiting for the coming year, having signed five players to grants-in-aid. However, two members of the team eligible to return, Bill McNair, and leading scorer-rebounder Morris Hargrove, had announced their intention to transfer to other schools prior to Odom's resignation.

Officials at the school said that they had not yet officially requested release, and could change their minds.

Odom said that he did not expect any of the new signees to switch to another school, and he did not anticipate any of the other remaining players leaving.

"I think a lot of it will have to do with the new coach is," Odom said, "but I think that the future can be bright and exciting. The goals are reachable, but it will take time. I think we've gotten the foundation in, but sometimes it's necessary for someone else to build from the foundation up."

"I would say that at this point, should everyone who is eligible to return actually return, then the talent level is as good as it was when I came here, and that level was good."

Karr added that he feels that the program is on a sound base. "I feel that our program has been in capable hands, and we regret that Dave has decided to leave to go to the University of Virginia. He's made marked progress in the capability level of the players, and in the academic level too."

Holland, via telephone, said that when Craig Littlepage left his staff to become head coach at Penn, his first thought was of Odom. "We went after him very hard. I'm very pleased that he has agreed to join our staff."

"He is an accomplished coach in all phases of the game, and is an excellent recruiter."

He said local prices were sought and a three-bladed mower was bought from Eastern Tractor & Equipment Co. at a cost of $1,056. The expenditure was approved by the commissioners.

In other business, Laney reported that the Department of Housing and Urban Development has mandated the use of a new model lease for areas such as the University Towers facility for the elderly here. Laney, who said he was unhappy with HUD's new lease requirements, said the policy has been posted at University Towers and some of the residents are being asked to review the documents and offer comments.

The director, who said the new lease does not do anything the present lease does not cover but is more complicated in its wording, said the board will be asked to consider the lease for adoption after the tenant review.

Laney presented the commissioners with a report of the results of an equal opportunity monitoring visit by HUD's fair housing and equal opportunity section. He said HUD had questions about the racial balance in the Meadowbrook housing section and he is asking HUD to give the authority the opportunity to do something about the balance in accepting applications for housing.

Laney said 104 units under the existing housing segment of the Section 8 program are under lease and 94 out of 100 units under the moderate rehabilitation section are leased. Another 15 units should be leased in the next two months, he said. All 60 apartments at University Towers are leased.

He said he is still having problems locating a site for the location of 40 new units of low-rent family housing and he said a tract of from six to 10 acres is needed. HUD has not endorsed any of the sites proposed so far, Laney reported.

Noland said six people from the county's summer youth employment program will begin work with the authority as maintenance and administrative helpers on June 14 and will work until the week before Labor Day.

The operations director, presenting the tenant occupancy report in the absence of Sallye Streeter, director of tenant affairs, said total occupancy was reported in the six housing areas at the end of May. Average rents included: N.C. 22-1 (Meadowbrook), $83.38; N.C. 22-2 (Keamey Park), $93.96; N.C. 22-3 (Moyewood), $93.20; N.C. 22-4 (Moyewood), $96.91; N.C. 22-5 (Hopkins Park), $74.44; and N.C. 22-6 (Newtown), $76.84, for an overall average of $87.40.

Commissioners welcomed Billy B. Laughinghouse as a new member of the board, succeeding James E. Sutton who served for over 20 years. Laughinghouse was a longtime member of the Redevelopment Commission.

Warren said a witness told him Gardner's vehicle approached the intersection at a high rate of speed, passed the car in front of him and kept on through the stop sign, striking Miss Erb's car.

Warren said Gardner, who was not injured, has been charged with death by vehicle, a stop sign violation and improper passing.

Pitt Co. Beats Rocky Mt. For Second Straight

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Gordon Douglas cracked a two-run homer to highlight a four-run seventh inning as Pitt County's American Legion baseball team rolled to its second straight win last night, downing Rocky Mount, 9-3.

Roger Williams got the victory in his first start of the young Legion season, going seven innings. He gave up eight hits, struck out an equal number and walked five as he experienced a little control problems.

Most of the trouble came in the fifth inning when Rocky Mount struck for all of its runs and rallied to trim the Pitt County lead back to 4-3.

But Post 39 came back with a run in the sixth, then closed it out with the four in the seventh.

The win boosted Post 39 to a 2-0 record, while Rocky Mount tumbles to 2-2.

The victory left coach Bill Davis quite pleased with the way the team is playing so early in the season. "I thought the boys played extremely well tonight," he said. "They were a little flat (in the first game), but I kind of expected that. They were much better tonight and they ran the bases well.

We didn't make as many mental mistakes tonight either."

Davis felt that Williams did a good job on the mound. "He did get the ball up there in the fifth inning, but overall I thought he did a very good job. And Gordon came on a gave us two good innings of relief. We've worked some with his curve ball and I thought he threw it very well."

Douglas, in his two innings, didn't allow a hit, walked one and struck out four.

Rocky Mount got off the first threat of the night — and that was caused by a mental mistake. Williams, after giving up a leadoff hit to Kevin Payne, picked him neatly off base, but during the rundown, a hasty throw allowed Payne to slip back untouched into first base. Eddie Coats followed with a single, moving Payne to third, but Williams got a strikeout and a short fly to retire two, then picked Coats off first.

base for a single, scoring Buie.

Coats, fielding the ball, threw to third, where Hodges had strayed too far around the bag, and he was cut down in a rundown.

Pitt added a second run in the third. With two away, Williams reached on an error and Locust walked. An error on an attempted pickoff let both runners advance two bases, with Williams scoring.

Two more crossed in the fourth. Bill Kittrell walked and was safe at second on an error on Greg Briley's grounder. Hodges then doubled, driving in both runners.

Rocky Mount put on its rally

in the fifth cutting the lead to 4-3. With one down, Billy Godwin singled and Payne was walked. Coats then tripled down the right field line, scoring both runners. He came in when Steve Smith singled to center.

However, Rocky Mount failed to score again, leaving runners in scoring position as the inning ended, and again in the sixth and ninth.

Pitt added a fifth run in the sixth. Kittrell opened the inning with a triple to right, scoring on Buie's sacrifice fly.

The final four came in the seventh. Emmett Walsh led off with a triple to center, scoring when Williams reached on an error. After one out, Douglas unloaded his homer to left, scoring Williams ahead of himself.

Randy Warren kept it going with a walk, then stole second. He scored on Kittrell's single to center with the final run of the game.

Hodges, Douglas and Kittrell each had two hits to lead Pitt, while Coats and Godwin each had a pair for Rocky Mount.

Pitt is now idle until Saturday night when it hosts Wayne County. A game with Edenton, scheduled for Friday, has been postponed until later in the season.

Cooney Vs. Holmes No Love Lost Between These Two Heavyweight Fighters

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Gerry Cooney may not be a good standup comic, but then he won't be trying to make Larry Holmes laugh when they meet for the World Boxing Council heavyweight title.

"You better stick to boxing," said Cooney's trainer, Victor Valle, after the No.1 ranked contender had cracked a couple of jokes at a post-workout news conference Monday.

"Which room you playing Friday night," somebody else asked Cooney after the fighter's brief attempt at being a comedian.

"The main room," said Cooney.

Friday night Cooney won't be trying for laughs. He will be fighting Holmes in a 32,000-seat arena in a Caesars Palace parking lot.

It will not only be the "main room" at Caesars, it will be center stage in the world sports.

The 25-year-old Cooney appeared relaxed at the news conference, discussing a variety of subjects, a couple reluctantly.

Holmes addressed the fans attending his workout, but he did not meet with members of the media.

The movie boxing character Rocky was mentioned, and Cooney said, "Rocky is a great character. It (the series of three films) doesn't have to be about boxing. It can be about anything."

"The most important thing about it is he was an underdog and a regular guy," Cooney said.

One subject Cooney, who is white, didn't want to talk about was the race being an issue in the fight.

"I just forget about it," said Cooney. "I don't want to talk about it. The more everbody

Does Los Angeles Now Have Its Back Against The Wall?

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It was only a few days ago that the Los Angeles Lakers were being touted by many observers as one of the greatest teams in National Basketball Association history. Now, there are those who believe the Lakers have their backs against the wall.

The Lakers, with a 3-2 lead over Philadelphia in the best-of-seven NBA Championship Series, entertain the 76ers tonight in Game Six. The contest begins at 9 p.m., EDT.

The series moved back to Los Angeles because the 76ers rolled to a 135-102 triumph on their home court last Sunday. If the 76ers win tonight, a seventh game will be played at the Spectrum in Philadelphia Thursday night.

On the whole, the Lakers would rather not be in Philadelphia, at least not right now.

"It's going to be a heck of a basketball game because the Lakers are going to treat it like it's the seventh game," said Philadelphia Coach Billy Cunningham, speaking of tonight's contest. "They don't want to come back to Philly to play us."

Of course, the 76ers aren't too fond of playing the Lakers at the Forum, either. Los Angeles has won 40 of its 58 home games against Philadelphia over the years.

Philadelphia is trying to become the first team in the 36-year history of the NBA to win a Championship Series after trailing 3-1. As Lakers' guard Norm Nixon pointed out, the 76ers still have a lot to accomplish.

"Who's down 3-2?" asked Nixon after Game Five. "They have to win two games, we have to win one. They have to play two great games."

One 76er who played a great game Sunday was 6-foot-11 center Darryl Dawkins. However, about the only consistent thing about Dawkins seems to be his inconsistency.

Dawkins came off the bench to score 20 points, grab seven rebounds and play a key role as the 76ers held Los Angeles center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar to only six points. In Game Two of the Series, Dawkins played only eight minutes. He scored nine points, but picked up five fouls.

Abdul-Jabbar hadn't scored fewer than 11 points in his previous 109 playoff games. The last time the 35-year-old, six-time NBA most valuable player failed to score in double figures in any game was opening day of the 1977-78 season. He scored two points then before getting into a fight with Kent Benson and being ejected.

Asked about the 76ers' strategy against him Sunday, Abdul-Jabbar said, "They just pushed and shoved."

BUIES CREEK — East Carolina finally got around to opening its 1982 North State College League season, but found Campbell just a little stronger than planned as the Camels put together a 7-2 win over the Pirates.

Campbell, which is now 1-1 in the league, got a fine pitching effort from Tim Kotroco, who went the distance, scattering eight hits. He didn't allow a run until the seventh when Art Barnhardt drove in both of the Pirate runs with a homer.

In the meanwhile, Campbell had built up a 7-0 lead, scoring twice each in the fourth and fifth and once in the sixth.

"I'm not really that disappointed," Coach Gary Overton said. "We're shorthanded, and we're learning."

That was made obvious by the lineup fielded by the Pirates. Kelly Robinette, the Pirates shortstop, is sidelined with an illness, and David Wells, normally in left field moved into this position. John Hallow, who has been playing right field, has moved to third, while Robert Langston has taken on second base duties. Barnhardt, a walkon, and Mark Shank, who missed the spring season, with an injury, flank the outfield positions.

duty for the Pirates and held the Camels in check for the first three innings.

But they finally struck for two runs in the fourth. Bob Spicer led off with a double and Bob Posey singled. Wayne Dale reached on a fielder's choice, getting Posey at third, but scoring Spicer. With two away, Bill Wilkes singled to score Dale, making it 2-0.

The Camels added two more in the fifth. Kelly Hoffman walked to open the inning and Tom Lynch reached on a two-base error, allowing Hoffman to score. Lynch took third on a passed ball and scored when Steve Regner grounded out.

The final three came in the sixth. Posey walked to start the frame, and Dale singled, with Tom Montgomery running for him. Kevin Barger doubled in Posey, and a triple by Wilkes brought over both Montgomery

Integrity Of College Sports Threatened, Report Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Recruiting scandals and other breaches of amateurism in big college football and basketball are threatening the integrity of all U.S. colleges and universities, an internal American Council on Education report says.

The report suggests one way out of the crisis would be for the major colleges to shed the facade of amateurism in these sports, pay athletes over the table and not even require them to be students.

The brief report says recent revelations about transcript manipulation at several schools and allegations of illegal payments to athletes "have raised serious concerns about whether big-time football and basketball programs are really under the control of the chief executives and governing boards."

The council, a lobbying and research group that represents 1,400 colleges and universities, has invited the presidents of more than a dozen major college football and basketball powers to a closed-door meeting here next Tuesday to discuss the problems.

The Associated Press obtained a copy of the report written by Robert H. Atwell, the council's vice president.

It says the situation is beyond the control of the NCAA.

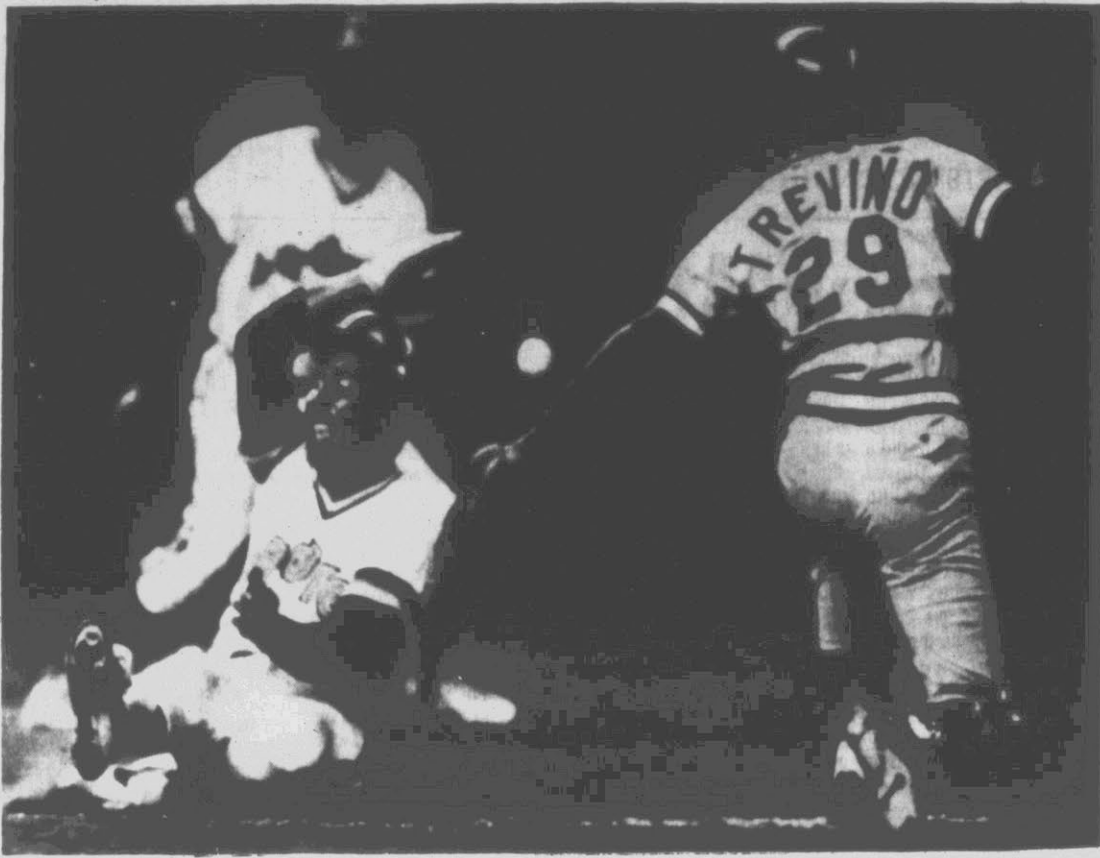

"There is a strong body of opinion which holds that the problems of corruption in big-time football and basketball are of crisis proportions and threaten to discredit our institutions," the report said.

The report said the presidents really have only three alternatives if they want to solve the problem:

•A return to amateurism. But it said this "is not really viable" for the major powers because of economic pressures and demands from alumni, booster clubs and their communities for winning teams.

•An open market for professional football and basketball for the major powers. Blue-chip athletes "would be paid a market wage rather than artificially constrained 'grant-in-aid' with all of the attendant pressures for under-the-table payments..." the report said.

•Continuing the status quo, "which means a drift toward professionalism, but an increasing credibility gap between the pretenses of the student-athlete model and the realities of money, corruption and professionalism."

Babe Ruth
Planters Bank 5
Coca-Cola 3

Planters Bank scored four runs in the first three innings and then held off a late rally by Coca-Cola to come away with a 5-3 victory Monday in a Babe Ruth baseball game.

Planters took a 2-0 lead in the first inning when Tyrone Jones tripled home Jordy Smith with two gone and then scored on a wild pitch. Smith had walked with one gone.

in the second. Jason Boyd walked and came around to score on a wild pitch and a passed ball.

Coke came back to score a run in the top of the third, but Planters got the run back in the bottom of the inning and then increased its lead to 5-1 with a run in fifth.

Coke scored twice in the sixth, keyed by back-to-back singles by Traye Fuqua and Billy Michel, to make it 5-3. But Coke could get no closer as Planters held on for the win.

Curtis Perkins had two hits

for Coke. Jimmy Best had two hits for Planters Bank.

Little League
Moose 9
C & Associates 7

Jay Mattox singled home the go-ahead run in a three-run sixth inning to help lift Moose to a 9-7 win over Carroll & Associates Monday in a Tar Heel Little League baseball game.

The score was tied at 6-6 going into the sixth when Rexter Williams led off the sixth with a single and went to second on Stephen Smith's sacrifice. Then, after Wesley Jackson walked, Mattox singled to score Williams to give Moose a 7-6 lead.

Chris Dillard followed with a single to score Jackson. Mattox later scored on Chris Christopher's single to make it 9-6.

C&A came back with a run in the bottom of the inning when Billy Carr singled home Joel Daughtry, who led off the inning with a double, but it was not enough.

Both teams scored a run in the second but C&A took a 3-2 lead in the third only to have Moose take a 5-3 lead in the fourth with three runs. The inning was keyed by Jackson's three-run double.

C&A cut it to 5-4 in the bottom of the inning but Moose got the run back in the fifth only to have C&A score twice in the bottom of the inning to tie the game.

Allen Speight and Rob Barnes both had two hits for Moose. Carr had three hits to lead C&A. Daughtry, Jason Lee and Jamie Marshall all had two hits for C&A.

Union Carbide 6
Jaycees 0

Paul Powers hurled a one-hitter and Morris Johnson had two home runs to lead Union Carbide to a 6-0 victory over the Jaycees Monday in a North State Little League baseball game.

Powers, who struck out eight and walked two, came one out from a hurrying no-hitter. With two gone in the bottom of the sixth, Brian Wille singled for the first hit of the game off Powers.

UC scored three runs in the first inning — all it needed with Powers on the mound.

Abram Lang reached on an error and went to second when Kevin Fisher walked with one gone. Johnson followed with a three-run home run to give UC a 3-0 lead.

UC added another run in the second before upping its lead to 5-0 in the third on a solo home run by Johnson. UC scored its final two runs in the sixth.

Johnson and Powers each had two hits for UC.

'Angry' Comartie Sparks Montreal

By The Associated Press
It took an angry young man to nudge the Montreal Expos just a little closer to the front-running St. Louis Cardinals in the National League East.

Warren Cromartie — the not-so-proud possessor of a .211 average — led off the ninth inning of a 2-2 game Monday night facing St. Louis bullpen ace Bruce Sutter. As 211 hitters are wont to do, he was not happy with his recent performance.

"It wasn't frustration or a lack of hustle," said Cromartie. "It was just anger at myself."

It didn't take much to make Cromartie happy, though. He belted Sutter's first pitch over the right-center field wall for the game-winning homer as the Expos beat the Cards, 3-2, to move to within 3½-games of first-place St. Louis.

"I've been getting inspiration from my teammates, family and friends," said Cromartie, who hit .304 last season. "It's just a matter of me putting it all together."

The Cards stranded 11 baserunners, leaving Manager Whitey Herzog none too pleased.

"We never were ahead," said Herzog. "We had our chances early and we couldn't do anything with them. But it was a good game. We battled to the wire."

Ray Burris, 1-7, got the victory in relief for Montreal.

Braves 4, Dodgers 3

Dale Murphy belted his league-leading 17th homer — a three-run, seventh-inning shot of reliever Tom Niedenfuer — to pace the Braves' victory, which enabled first-place Atlanta to maintain a 1½-game lead over San Diego in the NL West.

The Dodger defeat did not diminish the feat of first baseman Steve Garvey, who played in his 1,000th consecutive game.

"It's a source of pride to be able to produce every day of my contract, almost every inning," said the 33-year old Garvey, owner of the fifth-longest consecutive-game playing streak in major league history.

Padres 6, Reds 5
Garry Templeton's two-run

single ignited a five-run Padre third inning outburst, lifting Chris Welsh to his fourth victory against one defeat.

The Padres once held a 6-2 lead, but the Reds scored three late runs before Luis DeLeon came on in the ninth for his third save.

"I lost my concentration," said Welsh. "I figured we were cruising and there was no way they were going to score four runs in two innings."

The Padres sent 11 men to the plate during their five-run inning as nine consecutive hitters reached base off Reds' starter Greg Harris, 2-1, and reliever Charlie Leibrandt.

Phillies 7, Cubs 5
Manny Trillo's infield single scored pinch-runner Luis Aguayo from second base with the winning run in the eighth inning as the Phillies beat the Cubs, who absorbed their eighth straight defeat.

Bo Diaz and Garry Maddox singled off Cub reliever Lee Smith, 1-1, to start the winning rally, with Aguayo running for Diaz after Maddox' hit. On a double steal attempt, Trillo hit a hot smash deep to the hole between first and second, and Aguayo scored from second base, beating Bump Wills' relay throw. The Phils added an insurance run later in the inning on Cub shortstop Larry Bowa's error.

Phillies' slugger Mike Schmidt, hobbled by injuries so far this year, belted his fourth homer of the season and scored three times.

Winner Sid Monge, 3-0, hurled three shutout innings of relief as the Phillies also moved to within 3½ games of East-leading St. Louis.

Pirates 4, Mets 3
Bill Madlock's RBI single in the 12th inning off Mets' reliever Neil Allen scored Lee Lacy with the winning run as the Pirates won their fifth game out of their last six.

"We are now five games below the .500 mark, and we're going to reach that spot (.500) very soon," said Pirate Manager Chuck Tanner.

With one out in the 12th, Lacy singled off Allen, 1-3. With Dave Parker up, Lacy stole second and went to third as catcher John Stearns' throw sailed into center field. Parker struck out, but Madlock followed an intentional walk to Jason Thompson with a line shot single to score Lacy.

Rod Scurry, 4-3, hurled two scoreless innings in relief to pick up the victory. Pirate starter Manny Sarmiento struck out nine Mets and scattered four hits in eight innings of work.

Beacham-Loftin Win P-P

Robert Beacham and Jake Loftin combined to win the Monday Nite Bestball Tournament at the Greenville Putt Putt Golf Course.

Beacham and Loftin shot a 28-under-par 80 to outdistance Bobby Ipock and David Beacham by three strokes. Ipock and Beacham shot an 83.

Mike Shane and Robbie Moye were third with an 84 followed by Jay Wynne and Vince Nelson were next at 86.

Beacham and Loftin led by one stroke over Ipock and Beacham at the end of the first round and added a stroke lead in the next two rounds for their winning margin.

East Carolina finally broke the ice in the top of the seventh. After one out, Charlie Smith singled and Barnhardt followed with a homer to left-center, scoring both runs.

David and Robert Wells each had two hits to pace the Pirates, while Posey and Wilkes each had two for Campbell.

East Carolina, now 0-1, travels to UNC-Wilmington tonight

HUNTINGTON, N.Y. (AP) — "Cooney Power." "I love Gerry Cooney."

This sprawling Long Island community, renowned as the home of poet Walt Whitman, is wearing its heart on its sleeve this week for a fighter, favorite son Gerry Cooney.

The above accolades are emblazoned on T-shirts and car bumpers and the name buzzes in the school corridors throughout the day and in the local pubs until the wee hours of the morning.

Will the 6-foot-7 neighborhood kid with the knockout punch wrest the world's heavyweight boxing crown from Larry Holmes in their $50 million showdown at Las Vegas, Nev., Friday night?

It's a rhetorical question. To Gerry's family, friends and fellow townspeople there is no doubt.

"Just a matter of when," is the common reply. "It'll be quick."

Walt Whitman High School, which Cooney, now 25, attended, is declaring Friday "Gerry Cooney Day."

"There will be no holiday — classes as usual," said assistant principal John V. O'Farrell. "But we'll probably have buttons and banners. I'm sure there will be an after-school rally."

O'Farrell is sure to find some of his teachers missing. Geraldine Gorman, who was profiled in a national magazine as Gerry's favorite English teacher, and other members of the faculty were to join Cooney's mom, brothers, sisters and close family friends today in a flight to Las Vegas.

Earlier, Gorman went into seclusion to avoid reporters hunting for details about this powerful iron worker's son who could be the first white man in more than 20 years to rule the heavyweight division.

"I don't get a chance to comb my hair in the morning," said Mom Cooney. "The phone never stops ringing."

To reach the small brick bungalow where Gerry grew up, one must turn off the Jericho Turnpike, pass the Walt Whitman Mall and take Holland Street to a dead end. The house is protected by a steel fence and an disarming sign, "Beware of Dog."

The living room breathes with the influence of the famous son — magazine cover stories and a red boxing glove on the coffee table, on the wall plaques and photos of some of his 25 fights, 21 won by knockout, 11 in the first two rounds. Only a color portrait of Pope John Paul II breaks the theme.

Eileen Cooney is a handsome, dark-haired woman who never sought to steer her third oldest son into a more peaceful profession.

"His father had his heart set on Gerry being a fighter," said Mrs. Cooney. "I wouldn't have changed that for the world."

The father died six years ago, living only long enough to see his son win the Golden Gloves heavyweight crown. Gerry declined to go to Montreal Olympics because he didn't want to leave his ailing dad.

"I get nervous when he's even sparring," Mrs. Cooney said. "When he's in the ring, I hide my eyes, finger my rosary beads and get weak in the knees. Fortunately, his fights don't last long. As far as I am concerned, if he got it over in a second I'd be happy."

writes about it the worse it gets."

Another subject Cooney said he didn't want to talk about was Holmes, a man Cooney says he can't be friends with because of things the champion has said about him.

But he did talk about Holmes briefly, and one of the things he said was: "If I was married and had children, I wouldn't want them looking up to him."

"Gerry Cooney never had an obstacles to jump over," said Holmes, who says Cooney hasn't earned his No. 1 contender's ranking.

The champion also told fans that he didn't like some things that have been written about him recently.

"I'm bitter and angry. I admit it," said Holmes, who drew cheers when he added: "I feel each one of you deserve five minutes of my time. You're the ones who are going to help me make $10 million."

At the beginning of his chat with the fans, Holmes said, "I'm ready and I'm going to put a whuppin' on him."

"Stop bragging," someone shouted. "I'm not bragging," said Holmes. "I'm telling the truth."

Baker Quitting Ellington Team

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)—After a year and a half without a victory and a wreck in Sunday's Pocono 500, veteran driver Buddy Baker has announced he will resign from Hess Ellington's team.

"The wreck has nothing to do with it," Baker, of Lake Norman, said Monday in announcing his decision. "It's just one of those things... A spontaneous decision on my part."

While Baker said he was uncertain of his racing future after leaving the Wilmington-based team, there was speculation that he might replace Benny Parsons on Ranier Racing of Charlotte.

Baker drove for Ranier in 1979 and 1980, winning the Daytona and Winston 500s in 1980. He was replaced in 1981 by Bobby Allison.

Team owner Harry Ranier has been plagued by a winless streak of his own as his cars, engineered by Waddell Wilson, have failed to take the checkered flag in 13 starts this year.

Parsons, who became the first Grand National driver to crack the 200 mph mark with a lap of 200.176 prior to the Winston 500 at Talladega, Ala., may end up driving for Ellington if he loses the Ranier ride. Others believed to be in contention are Rusty Wallace, Dick Brooks and Joe Millikan.

Royals Capture Sixth Straight

By The Associated Press

How does Kansas City's ace reliever Dan Quisenberry pitch to the heart of the Minnesota Twins' lineup?

"Very, very carefully," he says — particularly when he's pitching in the Hubert H. Humphrey Metrodome in Minneapolis.

Quisenberry was in such a situation Monday night, with the Royals leading 5-4 in the 11th inning and the same three batters coming up that hit consecutive home runs in the eighth — Ron Washington, Tom Brunansky and Kent Hrbek.

Quisenberry blew the ball by both Washington and Brunansky, then got Hrbek for the final out on a fly ball to left field, helping the Royals win their sixth straight game.

Hrbek, incidentally, had hit a homer off Quisenberry in that explosive eighth. Washington and Brunansky hit their blasts off Kansas City starter Keith Creel.

"Hrbek has very good plate coverage," said Quisenberry. "Most players hit a zone — but not him. He's interesting."

The Twins were losing 4-0 before tying the game with four runs in the last two innings. After the three homers in the eighth, they tied the game 4-4 in the ninth on an RBI single by pinch-hitter Jesus Vega.

Then in the Kansas City 11th, Amos Otis led off with a single. He was forced at second by Hal McRae's fielder's-choice grounder. McRae then scored the Royals' winning run when Jerry Martin singled to center and Brunansky misplayed the ball.

Quisenberry evened his record at 2-2. Peter Redfern, 2-7, making his first appearance out of the bullpen after nine starts, was the loser.

White Sox 6, A's 5

Bill Almon's bases-loaded single in the 11th inning scored Harold Baines from third to give Chicago a comeback victory over Oakland.

Baines led off the 11th with a single and Carlton Fisk, who earlier hit two successive home runs to help the White Sox wipe out a 5-0 deficit, doubled to send Baines to third. Marv Foley was walked intentionally before Almon lined his game-winning single.

Kevin Hickey, 2-1, was the winner and Dave Beard, 4-3, the loser.

Trailing by five runs, Chicago cut Oakland's lead to two in the bottom of the seventh on a two-run homer by Fisk and a solo shot by Jerry Hairston off A's starter Rick Langford.

Steve Kemp's sacrifice fly in the eighth off Beard gave the White Sox their fourth run and they tied it in the ninth on Fisk's second homer of the game.

Mariners 6, Rangers 0

Gene Nelson pitched a brilliant two-hitter, allowing only those two Texas runners to reach base, as Seattle beat the Rangers.

Buddy Bell spoiled Nelson's bid for a perfect game with a two-out single in the seventh inning. The second hit off Nelson, 3-7, was a one-out single by Dave Hostetler in the eighth.

Texas left-hander Jon Matlack, 1-4, retired the first 12 Seattle hitters, but Richie Zisk opened the fifth with a single. Al Cowens walked and Todd Cruz singled to load the bases.

Terry Bulling's single drove in Zisk and Cowens for a 2-0 Mariner lead.

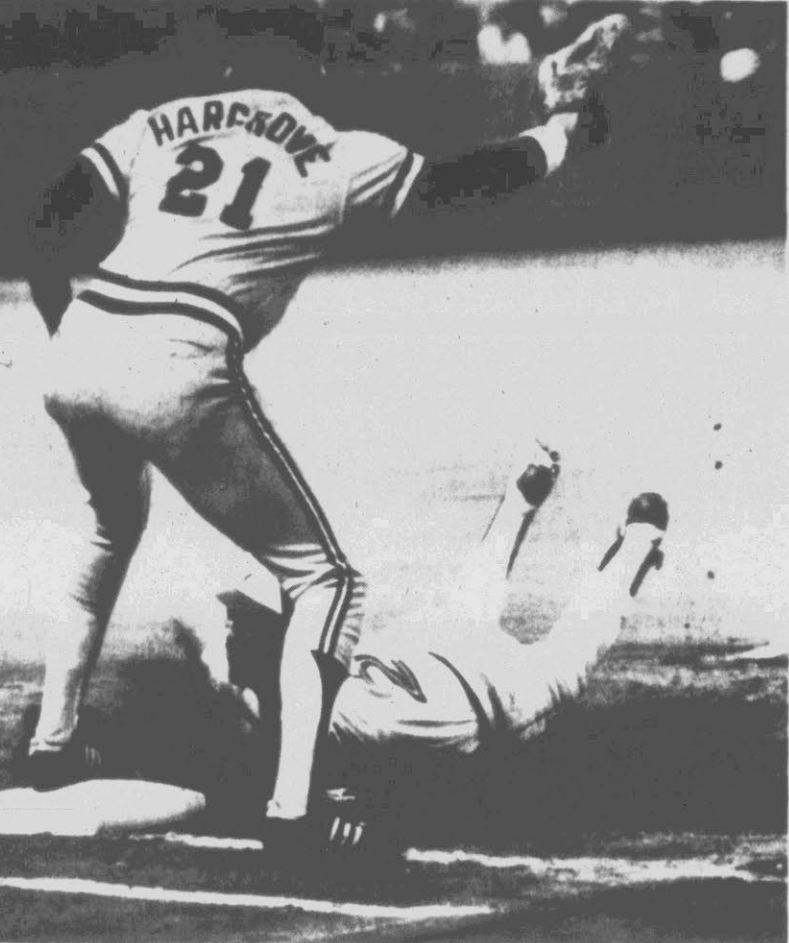

"I threw a good pitch to Buddy Bell and he just went out there and hit it," said Nelson, who struck out five.

"Then once I gave up the hit I just decided, well, go pitch your own game."

Orioles 7, Brewers 2

Jim Palmer hurled a five-hitter and Benny Ayala capped a four-run fifth inning with a two-run homer, leading Baltimore over Milwaukee.

The Brewers had scored 28 runs in their previous three games, but Palmer, 3-3, who earned the game with a 6.02 earned run average, allowed just Ben Oglivie's 11th homer in the seventh inning and Robin Yount's sixth in the ninth.

Leading 2-0, the Orioles put the game away in the fifth. Rick Dempsey led off with a double and took third on a single by Lenn Sakata. Both runners scored on a double by Rich Dauer. Two outs later, Ayala hit his fourth homer of the season to chase Mike Caldwell, 3-5.

Blue Jays 7, Indians 3

Willie Upshaw belted his sixth and seventh homers of the season, including an inside-the-park shot in the third inning, to lift Toronto over Cleveland.

Toronto right-hander Luis Leal, 5-3, scattered six hits, walked three and struck out four. Cleveland's John Denny, 3-6, surrendered all seven Toronto runs in five innings.

Upshaw finished the game with three runs batted in and two runs scored. His average climbed to .337.

"Willie's a real good student and works hard," said Toronto batting coach Cito Gaston. "He's got real quick hands and he's built strong. I don't want to take any credit for what he's done this year. He works hard and deserves everything that's come to him."

Connecticut Mops Up, Rains Strike In Midwest

By The Associated Press
As floodwaters receded in New England and washed-out residents began the "long, tedious job" of mopping up after the rain that left 22 people dead or missing, powerful Midwestern storms knocked out power to thousands and swept two children down the Arkansas River.

A four-day, 11-inch downpour in Connecticut forced rivers over their banks, washed away seven dams and 13 bridges, and forced thousands from their homes before it ended Monday night. State police patrolled today in the lower Connecticut Valley town of Essex, one of the hardest hit communities, to guard against looting.

A preliminary estimate put damage in 16 southern Connecticut communities at more than $100 million. Smaller damage totals from the weekend flooding were reported in Rhode Island and Massachusetts, where rain was tapering off today.

Connecticut Gov. William A. O'Neill warned residents

of his state they had a "long, hard, tedious job" of cleaning up after the storm. He asked for federal disaster aid but didn't have a precise estimate of the damage.

"It's very hard to describe. You have to see it to believe it," said O'Neill, who flew over the state in a helicopter Monday. "The damage is just astronomical.

Meanwhile, thousands of Kansans were without electricity today after winds gusting to 90 mph swept rain and softball-sized hail through the Kansas River Valley on Monday. Near Broken Arrow, Okla., strong currents in the Arkansas River swept away Amy Harper, 13, of Tulsa and James Hardie, 11, of Broken Arrow. Two firefighters borrowed a 16-foot boat and were nearly ready to give up the search when they found the children nearly 2½ miles down river clinging to a sandbar, said Assistant Fire Chief Ron Dennison.

Christa Lawrence, 13, survived a similar experience Sunday in Westport, Conn., when she was washed into a 150-foot tunnel that carries Dead Man's Creek under part of the town.

Steven Treadway, 14, who saw her swept away, went to the downstream end of the tunnel, grabbed a tree branch, leaned into the flood and grabbed Miss Lawrence when she was swept out of the tunnel.

"I thought I was going to die any second," she said. "The current was pulling me under...I couldn't breathe."

In Missouri, the control tower at Kansas City International Airport was evacuated for 20 minutes because of the winds and several planes were damaged. About 100 streets were flooded in the city.

In central Missouri, a tornado touched down near Slater, damaging about a dozen farms, but causing no injuries.

In Connecticut, Joseph Martin of the Insurance Consumer Information Center in Hartford said low-cost federal loans would be important because most residents did not have flood insurance on their homes.

Transportation was hampered by the washout of 70 sections of state highway and tracks for Amtrak and Conrail. Many repairs were expected to be made today, but one line was expected to be out for two weeks.

The deaths included 10 in Connecticut and five in Rhode Island. There were seven people missing: three in Massachusetts, two in Connecticut and two in Rhode Island.

In Rhode Island, Gov. J. Joseph Garrahy estimated damage at $3.3 million and asked for federal aid. He said reports from 26 of the small state's 39 cities and towns indicated 132 homes and 75 businesses were damaged.

Santo Amato, director of Rhode Island's disaster agency, said the Blackstone and Pawtuxet Rivers both crested Monday.

In Massachusetts, authorities in Hull and Medway were waiting for storm conditions to ease so they could resume the search for three people who fell into storm-tossed waters Sunday.

I TOOK THIS QUESTIONNAIRE AROUND TO ALL OUR READERS.

I JUST SPENT A LOTTA CASH CONDUCTING THIS SURVEY OF OUR READERS.

IT'S IMPORTANT FOR NEWSPAPERS TO GET FEEDBACK FROM THE READERS.

—WHAT THEY THINK ABOUT THE GREAT ISSUES OF THE DAY —WHAT VITAL INFORMATION THEY NEED TO HAVE...

IF WE KNOW WHAT OUR READERS NEED TO READ, THEN WE CAN BE A BETTER NEWSPAPER.
