$25.48 Million County Budget Offered

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

The Pitt County Board of Commissioners, following several preliminary budget sessions over the past few weeks, Thursday took its first look at the total preliminary budget for 1982-83 as recommended by County Manager Reginald Gray — a total of $25.48 million as compared with $24.6 million for the current year.

As recommended, the proposed budget projects the expenditure of $394,663 more in local ad valorem tax revenue than did the 1981-82 budget ($11.18 million in 1982-83 as compared with $10.78 million this year). However, due to a $77.7 million increase in assessed valuation, Gray recommended the present tax rate of 54 cents per $100 valuation be maintained.

In his annual budget message to the board, Gray said in preparing the 1982-83 budget, "I have followed your guidelines as given during the sessions held for each county department or agency..."

Gray's message continued, "The departments and agencies, for the most part, presented requests which took into consideration the present economic conditions and were well justified, providing more economic and efficient operation of their departments."

However, Gray said "the Pitt County schools, the Greenville city schools and Pitt Community College ... requested considerably more funds for the new fiscal year than they received in 1981-82."

Gray said he had recommended no across-the-board or incentive pay hikes for employees, but said "it is our recommendation that you give serious consideration to providing an incentive and longevity program," in the new budget.

The only new employees recommended by Gray in the budget for the coming year are for the Work Fare program in the department of social services which have been previously approved by the Board of Commissioners, and "a new clerk and a new deputy" for the sheriff's department.

Gray's budget message continued by recommending that the county adopt a modified motor pool plan for county vehicles in the coming year; give further consideration to consolidating all county offices in the county office building (such as the tax supervisor and collector, and the register of deeds) "for better supervision and management, with the courthouse to be used exclusively for court-related purposes;" and that the board investigate the possibility of renovating the Tucker Building at the intersection of Third and Washington streets for use as a juvenile justice facility.

Gray pointed out that, of the agencies in the county's general fund, 12 departments have been recommended for increases because of increases in fixed charges such as telephone, office supplies and other items "over which they have no control," while 11 departments have been recommended for decreases "due to efficiencies made in those departments." The proposed budget for one department remains the same as for the current fiscal year.

As for education — which takes the largest share of county tax money — Gray's message said, "It still amazes me that

Cease-Fire Is Declared By Israel, Syria

By The Associated Press
Israel and Syria declared a cease-fire in their six-day war in Lebanon at 6 a.m. EDT today, with Israel claiming its forces had completed their mission with a drive to the gates of Beirut through the heart of Lebanon's Palestinian guerrilla strongholds.

Fighting on the ground and in the air continued to within minutes of the cease-fire that came at noon in the Middle East. Israeli planes bombed Beirut's Palestinian enclaves and reportedly shot down 18 more Syrian jets over Lebanon.

Syrian President Hafez Assad said in Damascus that he ordered his troops to stop firing with the understanding that Israel would withdraw the powerful ground forces it sent into Lebanon Sunday.

The Israeli announcement made no mention of pulling back the forces it ordered to drive Palestine Liberation Organization guerrilla formations beyond artillery range of settlements in northern Israel.

An official spokesman for PLO Chairman Yasser Arafat, Mahmoud Labadi, said the truce was "under consideration." His brief announcement did not elaborate.

In Tel Aviv, Israeli military sources said it was not clear yet if Palestinian guerrillas were observing the cease-fire. The sources said that although Israel would not initiate any new offensives against guerrillas, its forces would return to Palestinian fire.

The Israeli military sources said the Israeli army would not enter Beirut or interfere with operations at Beirut airport. They said Israeli troops had established an outpost at Khalde, four miles south of Beirut International Airport.

According to the military sources, the cease-fire left Israel in control of 1,100 square miles of Lebanon, more than one-fourth of its territory.

The Israeli announcement was coupled with a warning to Syria that that Israel would retaliate immediately if its forces were fired upon or the Syrians attempted to move fresh anti-aircraft missiles into Lebanon.

Claiming Israel had completed its mission, Prime Minister Menachem Begin's Cabinet announced the cease-fire one day after the United States, Soviet Union, Saudi Arabia and other nations urgently called for an immediate halt to hostilities in Lebanon.

"The government has instructed all branches of the army to cease fire today beginning at 12 noon (6 a.m. EDT). From this time on, Israeli soldiers will no longer fire on all the fronts in Lebanon unless they are fired upon," Cabinet Secretary Dan Meridor said, reading a Cabinet communique in Jerusalem.

City Council Endorses A 264 Alternate

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

A resolution endorsing one of the alternate locations proposed for the U.S. 264 northwest bypass here was adopted Thursday night by the City Council for presentation at next week's Department of Transportation hearing.

The council went on record in support of corridor or alternate "C" of the project "with a four-lane divided section for the entire 7.3 miles proposed with a right-of-way width of 320 feet and with a fully controlled access."

Alternates "B" and "C" on the proposed bypass location begin in the vicinity of the intersection of State Roads 1202 and 1205 and proceed northeasterly. Alternate "B" crosses N.C. 33 at its intersection with State Road 1418 and "C" crosses N.C. 33 approximately one mile west of this intersection. Both corridors then curve easterly and intersect U.S. 13-N.C. 11 opposite Greenville Boulevard.

In its resolution, the council contended that the "proposed construction of a four-lane divided highway, from the proposed U.S. 264 (relocated) ... near State Road 1204 to connect with State Road 1590 (Greenville Boulevard) at U.S. 13-N.C. 11 (Memorial Drive) would help alleviate such traffic problems that will be created by the new U.S. 264 corridor."

The resolution stated that "the existing U.S. 264 Bypass is already congested and at capacity during peak periods" and "proposed corridor 'C' will provide for a continuous four-lane freeway from Wilson to Washington."

The council contended that "with increased development in the medical complex areas west of ... Greenville, it will be more desirable to locate the western bypass as far from the medical complex as possible."

The board also urged the State Department of Transportation to "consider the implementation of an overpass with appropriate ramp access at the intersection of N.C. 13 and N.C. 11."

The hearing on the northwest bypass proposal will be held Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at Welcome Middle School north of Greenville. The state emphasized in advertising the hearing that, "The project is not currently scheduled for right of way and construction in the transportation improvement program. However, the Board of Transportation has authorized the development of the project through the final environmental stage, which will establish an approved location."

Mayor Percy Cox said city representatives will attend the meeting and present the resolution for consideration.

The council voted to continue until the July meeting consideration of a request by Greenville Cable TV Inc. for a revised bulk rate schedule and the establishment of a motel bulk rate, and a petition submitted by Donnie Spain to annex approximately 1,003 acres located off N.C. 33. A public hearing was conducted on the cable request at the May meeting and was continued then until the June session.

Board members followed the recommendation of the Planning & Zoning Commission in denying a request by Eula G. Cannon for rezoning two acres at 956 E. 10th St. from R-9 to office and institutional. The council could have scheduled a public hearing to consider the Cannon request but exercised its authority to deny the request without a hearing.

A hearing was scheduled for the July meeting on a request by Judson H. Blount Jr. to rezone approximately 11,096 acres north of Airport Road, east of N.C. 11-13, south of Gum Road, and adjacent to the airport, from unoffensive industry to highway commercial.

Approval was given to an ordinance amending the City Code giving the planning board authority to handle street name changes. City Manager Gail Meeks pointed out that the planning board was already considering the name changes but the ordinance wording relative to that authority needed clarification.

- Other action taken by the council included:
- Reappointed D. C. Wade Jr. and Marty Goldfarb to new three-year terms on the Board of Adjustments;
- Appointed William A. Shires to the Environmental Advisory Commission replacing Phil Dickerson who resigned;
- Appointed Keigt Bishton to the Greenville Energy Commission for a three-year term;
- Reappointed Clarence Tugwell to a second three-year term on the Planning & Zoning Commission;
- Reappointed Dr. Robert G. Deyton to the Recreation

Reagan's European Odyssey Ends With Visit To Divided Berlin

By MICHAEL PUTZEL
Associated Press Writer

BERLIN (AP) — President Reagan, ending his 10-day European odyssey, visited the stark Berlin Wall today, challenged the Soviet Union to a new peace initiative, and scorned communist regimes for being "scared to death" of freedom.

"Goodbye and until we meet again, auf wiedersehen," Reagan told his West German hosts at a farewell ceremony in Bonn before he departed aboard Air Force One at 9:53 a.m. EDT for the eight-hour flight back to Washington.

"These trips, these meetings, have been arduous, they've been long, they've been tiring to all of us, but they've been successful," Reagan said.

Earlier in West Berlin, the president, wearing a heavy bulletproof vest, stood for about five minutes at the white-painted line at the Checkpoint Charlie border crossing that separates the city from the communist East. "It's as ugly as the idea behind it," he said.

Asked if the divided city would ever be united again, he replied, "Yes," and returned to an armored limousine ringed by more than a dozen Secret Service bodyguards.

Later, as the president delivered a televised speech in the safety of a tightly guarded palace garden, riot police battled hundreds of leftist-led, anti-Reagan protesters with tear gas, water cannon and nightsticks at a city plaza four miles away. Masked youths stormed a barbed wire barricade, looted and set fire to a furniture store and burned a police car.

During his 3½-hour visit to the divided city under an extraordinary security guard, the president urged the Soviet Union to join in lowering human barriers in Europe "as bleak and brutal as the Berlin Wall itself."

He also proposed to expand on Soviet-American agreements of 1963 and 1971, going "further to avert the risk of war through accident or misunderstanding" and ease nuclear tensions.

Specifically, said senior American officials, Reagan will ask the Soviets to improve the Washington-Moscow "hot line" established in 1963 by shifting from encoded printed messages to faster, more reliable voice communications.

They said he also will propose that the two countries inform each other in advance of missile test launches or readiness exercises that, when first detected without such notification, might appear to be the start of a nuclear attack.

Thus ended Reagan's first visit to Europe as president, a 10,689-mile tour that took him to Versailles, France, for a two-day economic summit, to Rome for an audience with Pope John Paul II, to England for a two-day visit — including an address before the British Parliament — and to West Germany for a NATO summit meeting, a parliamentary speech and today's brief appearance at the Berlin Wall.

Reagan was closely guarded every step of the way today. His motorcade included seven vans carrying heavily armed guards, and other guards stood every 50 feet along the mile-long route from the airport to the wall.

Helmeted riot police with round black shields sealed off every street approaching from the west. Helicopters circled overhead, and the president looked uncomfortable in a heavy bulletproof vest easily visible to spectators.

Accompanied by his wife Nancy, West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt and Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr., the president posed for photographs and waved to some Berliners leaning out of windows in a slum building nearby.

Shots Are Fired

A Route 3, Washington man, who apparently held area law enforcement officers at bay with gunfire as they attempted to serve a warrant, was taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital after being shot by officers this morning, a Sheriff's Department spokesman said.

The spokesman said that the condition of the man, whose identity had not been learned at press time, was not known.

He said the two deputy sheriffs had gone to the man's home off the Pactolus Highway near the Pitt-Beaufort County line to serve a warrant for assault when they were shot at from the man's house. The deputies' car was reportedly damaged by gunfire in the incident.

Officers from the Highway Patrol also responded.

Salary Freeze Vote Is Delayed By Legislature

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Legislative budget committees delayed a vote on a proposed salary freeze today as committee leaders, in an abrupt about-face, said they were working on a formula to avoid the freeze.

No details of their plan were available and committee leaders went into a closed-door meeting after House Appropriations Chairman, Rep. Billy Watkins, D-Granville, told reporters he was working on a proposal that would leave room for some pay increases for teachers and state workers.

"I'm working on an alternative," Watkins said. "It's adjusting figures and salaries so we won't have to freeze. I think I have a plan where we can take the resources we have and not have to freeze salaries."

Sen. Harold Hardison, D-Lenoir, chairman of the Senate committee, said the plan was the result of "a brainstorm last night," but he also declined to reveal the details.

"It's looking at them (salaries) top and bottom," he said. Both chairmen said the plan involved no tax increase.

The freeze, proposed by Gov. Jim Hunt and backed by legislative budget leaders, would keep salaries for teachers and state employees at their June 30 level for the following year. It would cancel scheduled merit pay raises and upgraded pay steps, which would cost the state $90 million to implement.

Hunt said revenue shortfalls caused by the recession had required the freeze as a way to trim the 1982-1983 state budget.

The comments today came after the joint House and Senate committees met in a session delayed 45 minutes while the chairmen huddled in private. The panels voted to delete a $360,000 appropriation to provide liability insurance for public school teachers and voted to keep in the budget a $130,000 emergency reserve for the Department of Insurance to hire actuarial consultants.

Budget leaders had said earlier they would push for a vote on the freeze today, but the committees recessed until the afternoon without taking up the pay issue.

The budget leaders' comments on an alternative to the pay freeze were in direct opposition to their public statements on Thursday. After meetings then, Hardison and other budget leaders said opponents of the freeze had failed to come up with a practical alternative to the wage freeze.

"That's the only way to balance the budget unless we can come up with $90 million (in cuts)," Hardison said.

Budget Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House, in a victory for President Reagan, today approved a budget plan offered by Republicans by a vote of 219 to 206.

The formal vote came after the House tentatively ratified the package on a 220-205 vote. The bill, projecting a 1983 fiscal deficit of $99.2 billion, now goes to a conference with the Senate.

The Republican proposal won acceptance after the House rejected on a 225-202 vote a rival Democratic plan, which projected a $107.5 billion deficit for fiscal 1983.

Only two weeks ago, the House rejected eight separate budget plans.

Pope Brings A Plea For Peace

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Pope John Paul II began a whirlwind visit to Argentina today with pleas for an end to the fighting in the South Atlantic and for international action to avoid "even greater damage."

The pontiff traveled to this predominantly Roman Catholic country to urge an end to Argentine-British battling over the Falkland Islands and to balance his visit last week to mainly Protestant Britain, a trip that aroused an undercurrent of criticism here.

As a cold drizzle and blustery winds buffeted the airport, John Paul descended from his jetliner, kissed the ground and was immediately greeted by Gen. Leopoldo F. Galtieri, Argentina's president and army commander, who knelt and kissed the pontiff's ring.

The pope, dressed in a white cassock, walked slowly along a red carpet, lined with government officials and Latin American and Argentine church dignitaries. Many of them also knelt to kiss the pontiff's ring. Galtieri, dressed in military uniform and hatless, walked slowly behind the pope.

An airport crowd waved blue-and-white Argentine flags, and one Argentine official struggled against the blustering wind to shield the pope with an umbrella. A group of schoolchildren gathered beneath a banner that read, "We love you a lot, John Paul."

An estimated 30,000 men — four times the number of Argentine troops on the Falklands — were deployed about Buenos Aires to protect the pope, who has survived two assassination attempts in the past 13 months.

In his arrival statement, the pope urged "a just and durable peace" in the South Atlantic.

NO DECISION YET

Only a short time ago I bought a $40 Diners Society Card for 10 free meals at the Casablanca Restaurant. I had been pleased with the value I'd gotten so far, but am wondering now that the restaurant's closed — what's going to be done to straighten up with all the many people in this area who made the same purchase? Deborah Muise, contacted at the Casablanca this morning, said no decision has yet been made as to how to deal with this problem. She said the management has a complete list of Diners Society members and that a decision will be announced to these people soon.

Stress-Free Meal Is Appreciated

DEAR ABBY: With regard to "Indigestion at Mealtimes," who wrote to express concern over miserable mealtimes caused by her husband constantly correcting the children's grammar and manners at the dinner table.

We faced a similar situation with our four children. My husband finally realized how hard it was on our children, and he declared every Wednesday as "free night" with no corrections or criticisms at the dinner table.

It is now a happy tradition at our house, and we all look forward to Wednesdays knowing we will have a stress-free dinner.

The two I am most interested in are: Should you tip the beautician or barber who cuts your hair? And if so, how much? Also, how much should you tip the boy at the grocery store who carries your groceries to your car? Or should he be tipped at all?

OHIO READER

DEAR READER: Tip the beautician or barber 15 percent of the bill, unless he or she owns the shop. About the boy who carries your groceries to the car: If you've spent $50 for groceries, tip him a dollar. If he smiles and says, "Thank you," give him another 50 cents.

And if he says, "Sorry, but we aren't allowed to accept tips," don't encourage him to cheat by insisting that he take it anyway. Compliment him on his integrity instead.

DEAR ABBY: After being out-of-work for many months, I was guaranteed a job with a small newspaper if I took a course in writing, so I enrolled at a small college in Washington state not far from where I live.

Halfway through the course, my teacher, an attractive 29-year-old woman, gave me this assignment in her own handwriting: "Write an essay on the first time you made love, using contemporary language — no euphemisms!" (This was not the first suggestive assignment she had given me.)

Well, I started the essay and showed it to my wife. She was furious! She said, "No way are you going to finish that and hand it in!"

I told my teacher I didn't care for that assignment, but she insisted that in order to pass the course I had to complete it. I want that newspaper job and I need a passing grade to get it, but things are getting extremely touchy at home.

I am 60 years old and, to tell you the truth, I can hardly remember the first time I made love, so the essay wouldn't be very good anyway.

What should I do?

ON THE SPOT IN OCEAN SHORES, WASH.

DEAR ON THE SPOT: Tell your teacher that you consider her assignment a tasteless invasion of your privacy, and unless you are offered an acceptable alternative, you'll appeal to the dean, the president, the regents and any other person with clout at the college.

DEAR ABBY: So the sex experts say that a male reaches his sexual peak in his teens, and from then on it's downhill?

Well, I am a 21-year-old male virgin, and it's depressing to learn that I have already passed my sexual peak before I have even begun.

A Classic Mistake In Visiting World Fair

By GAIL MICHAELS
I wanted to like the World's Fair. I wanted to think that all the adverse publicity was due to the negative outlook of a few journalists. Granted, it might not be worth the trip if it required driving or flying a long distance and paying high rates for accommodations. But surely a local could get her money's worth. Well, I was wrong. My weekend at the fair was as dismal as a Tennessee thunderstorm. And anyone who doesn't know how dismal that is has never been caught in one with two parents, two small children and one umbrella.

The sky was ominous when we all emerged from the Australian exhibit. But we decided to stand in line for the Chinese exhibit anyway.

We stood for half an hour in the drizzle before the woman in front of us asked, "Have you been stamped?"

We were only several yards from the door. "They won't let you in if you haven't been stamped," she continued.

No matter that we knew nothing about a policy that had gone into effect only that day. No matter that the line to be stamped was about two hours long. They wouldn't let us in, and just as we were turning to leave, the deluge descended upon us.

The only shelters were small spaces in front of the exhibits and a few tents beside the concession stands. One would think that the fair promoters had never considered the possibility of rain.

After 45 minutes spent in front of the Australian exhibit in genial conversation with two lovely old ladies from Pittsburg who were sitting under us, we gave up and headed for the bus stop. After 45 minutes there, we gave up and flagged a taxi. The taxi's air conditioning was out, and the defroster only worked with the heater. We all sat there smothering, but Meg, seated in the middle of the backseat, her hair plastered to her head, was having the most uncomfortable ride. She finally looked up at the top of the cab and whimpered, "Mommy, the light leaks."

Now my mother, from whom I inherited the tendency to exercise my tongue in lieu of my brain, tried to console her by promising, "Tomorrow we'll go and ride the rides and have a really good time."

The next day would have been a perfect fair day if the temperature hadn't been soaring toward the 100 mark and if the entire population of the Southeastern United States hadn't decided to come that day. The line at the China stamping booth stretched back to the Great Wall. The lines to every thing else were only half that long. There simply was not enough exhibits to accommodate the teeming masses.

Phillip took Meg and Zachary to the midway, only to return in an hour after almost losing them as they took off after a ketchup bottle robot.

"He wouldn't let me ride anything because of the lines!" Meg wailed. "And Grandmommy promised!"

It was at this point that Grandmommy made the classic mistake. Feeling as guilty as Meg intended her to, she sent Meg and Granddaddy to buy her a balloon. They got lost. After an hour of futile searching, Zachary was registering a vociferous protest over the hot sun. Phillip sent us and the grandmother home while he continued the search.

In the end we were all reunited. Meg was happy because Granddaddy had not bought her a balloon but had let her ride the sky ride before they started on their own for home.

Phillip spent four hours at the fair and saw only one exhibit — a teen-ager in a string bikini top. The rest of us saw the Australian exhibit. It was entertaining, but somehow I don't think it was worth the admission price.

Safety Always First

It always is sad — regrettable at least — when a business, a plant, a school or an office closes, but the outpouring of grief over the closing of the Casablanca restaurant is unreal.

One would think the Wednesday afternoon happy hour at the Casablanca was the only way to stand life in eastern North Carolina — just as the long-wearing Israelites threw up the golden calf and danced at the base of Mount Sinai when all else seemingly failed.

OK, Greenville and the rest of eastern North Carolina still is mostly rural by nature and there isn't all that much to do in the way of socializing at a neighborhood bar or taking a guest to dinner with live entertainment. But the world has not ended with the closing of a single restaurant because of building code violations.

The building code was there when the Casablanca opened. It was there when it reorganized. It makes no difference whether fire safety officials cited the alleged violations previously; the burden of meeting the safety code rested upon the operators.

If, indeed, those violations were present — and we are not doubting the official report — it is far better that the Casablanca choose to close than to remain open and run the risk of a true tragedy, not one created by unhappy patrons.

The Casablanca filled a void in this area, but the Casablanca is closing because it allegedly failed to maintain safety standards. So be it.

Comeback For WPA Ahead?

Things have a way of coming back to us. Reagonomics or whatever, the economy has continued to falter and unemployment is spurring. And, just as it did more than a half-century ago, Congress is looking for an outlet. In that vein, the House has approved a resurrection of the old Civilian Conservation Corps but with a new name, the American Conservation Corps.

Under the House plan, the nation's youth would be able to find employment in the corps doing work on inner city projects or on public lands. Opponents justifiably point out it is similar to two federally sponsored jobs-for-youth programs being phased out.

Perhaps a new effort won't hurt. But even with an unconditional endorsement of this program for youths, there is still a nagging doubt — is the old PWA, WPA, etc, headed for a comeback, too?

Unaware Of Abuse

By PAUL T. O'CONNOR
RALEIGH — When a second-grader came to school here with welts and bruises over his back several years ago, Wake County school officials reported his mother to the county social services department. The child's mother, a woman in her early 20s, had used the buckle end of a belt to discipline the child for having stolen something. The social workers recognized the case immediately as one of child abuse but, amazingly, it took the mother several years to come to the same realization.

Similarly, the mother of an 11-year-old Raleigh truant was called into question for allowing the boy to come back home in the morning and skip school. She didn't see herself as being neglectful of her child. He was old enough to fend for himself, she told DSS workers.

This is Child Abuse Prevention Week in North Carolina, and one message state officials are trying to get out is that many child abusers do not realize they are abusing or neglecting their children. Celia Mansaray, chairman of the Wake County chapter of Parents Anonymous, related the stories of the two families above and says many abusive parents think they are simply performing the normal duties of parenthood.

"We've had parents who have broken skin or left bruises during spanking and they could not believe it was abusive" when they were reported to the county Department of Social Services, Mrs. Mansaray said. Larry Sage, program consultant for the Division of Protective Services for Children, said many child abusers are raising children the way they themselves were raised. "You find that many of these people were abused when they were children, but they didn't realize it. They'll over-discipline as Parents Anonymous, many will stubbornly deny being abusive. Cases of psychological (Continued on page 5)

Perhaps the Reagan administration should take another close look before it embarks upon a foreign policy designed to bring this country into a closer relationship with Red China.

In the aftermath of the arrest and treatment of an American school teacher, this course of action seems to be in order, for obviously this is one leopard whose spots haven't changed.

The teacher, accused of spying and ousted from China, said later a pre-dawn knock on her door began a "nightmare" in a cement room where she was isolated and asked to write a confession.

Lisa Wichser told reporters she does not fully understand the charges against her in China, but feels they may be related to her intention to marry a Chinese economics student.

If that is the case, the communists could simply have had her expelled as an undesirable person. The bullying tactics and the inquisition were quite unnecessary.

Miss Wichser said her week-long detention, which ended with a request that she leave China within 48 hours, had been a "nightmare, something I don't understand."

She said she was awakened around 1:30 a.m. May 28 by a phone call from an attendant in the Peking hotel where she lived. She said she was told there was an urgent cable from her family.

A few minutes later she answered a knock on her door and found five or six uniformed members of the Chinese Public Security Bureau accompanied by the bright lights of several TV cameras.

They came in and searched her room. She asked them what was going on, but they never gave her a satisfactory answer.

The officials confiscated several boxes of papers, including her research files, Chinese documents she used as scratch paper, letters from colleagues at the University of Denver, and notes made by her fiancé on Chinese law regarding marriage between Chinese and foreigners.

The English and economics teacher was taken to a detention center in Peking and placed in a cement room with a barred window and steel door. The Chinese repeatedly denied her requests to contact U.S. Embassy officials or friends, and would not give her a paper and pencil to keep a diary.

Apologists for Red China will, of course have ready answers for the episode, but this action should not be ignored by the State Department.

THE BRIDGE CALLED LIFE

In addition to some of the words of Jesus found in the four Gospels (and one saying in Acts 20:35), there are a number of so-called "apocryphal" quotations of doubtful authorship and authority. Some of these are very interesting. Whether uttered by Jesus or not, they reflect his spirit.

One of these runs as follows: "The world is merely a bridge; ye are to pass over it and not build your buildings upon it." Whether Jesus ever uttered

New French Souvenirs

PARIS — The French have always been noted for their perfume and their beautiful clothes. But recently they have become famous for their air-to-ground missiles.

I went into a high-class shop on the Rue Royale the other day to buy one for a souvenir.

The clerk said, "Can I help you, Monsieur?" "I was looking for an Exocet cruise missile as a gift." "Alas," he said. "We are all out of stock. Peru bought the last ones."

"What about the one in the window?" "It is sold to Saudi Arabia."

ART BUCHWALD

"How long would I have to wait to get one?"

"We have orders from all over the world. Everyone wants an Exocet, even Libya."

"Well, is there something else particularly Parisian?"

"How about a new Mirage 2000 fighter? They can shoot down anything in the sky."

"Can I get it on the plane?"

"We'll wrap it for you in bubble paper so it won't break."

"If I can't get an Exocet, what would you suggest I put on it?"

"Perhaps the Super Matra missile. It's the top-of-the-line rocket and can be launched at anything from a plane to a tank. It has a delayed fuse and doesn't explode until it's in the target. The Egyptians are very happy with it."

"Do you have anything smaller?"

"We're now making a helicopter with rocket launchers that is perfect for destroying buildings."

"How much is it?"

"Less than a million dollars. If you don't want it with rocket launchers, we can sell it to you for $750,000, and since you live in the United States you don't have to pay French sales tax."

"I don't know. Do you have anything else that says France all over it?"

"What about a torpedo boat? The Nicaraguans are very happy with them. Our torpedoes are sound-activated and can home in on another ship's motors at 10 miles."

"That's nice. What else are you selling?"

"We sell everything, Monsieur. We are the third-largest suppliers of military equipment in the world. Perhaps you would like a French tank? It comes equipped with a laser that follows its target by day or night."

"I don't think my friend would like a tank."

"Perhaps an automatic French machine gun, made in France under license from the Israelis. It's automatic and can spray anything within 60 yards."

"That's not a bad idea. How do I get it into the United States?"

"We can ship it to you through France."

"Do you take American Express credit cards?"

Looking For Better News

By ROBERT FULROW
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Today's quiz: Based on the government's economic indicators, is the national economy "just sitting in the mud" or is it "poised for recovery"?

And is that recovery "imminent" or would it still be "premature to draw any firm conclusions about the timing of a business upturn"?

The trouble is that a pretty good case can be made for any or all of those four declarations offered by President Reagan and private and government economists in the past few weeks.

The most recent government figures show unemployment at the highest level in 40 years, factories turning out even fewer goods than earlier in the recession, builders putting up and selling fewer houses and customers ordering fewer products and materials for future delivery.

True, some retailers say their sales are up a bit. But most recent reports on the economy seem to fit the sitting-in-the-mud description given by David Cross, a senior economist with Chase Econometrics in Bala Cynwyd, Pa.

And the weakness in orders for the future is a big reason why Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige says recovery celebrations are still premature.

But on the other hand, only the most pessimistic analysts say things are likely to keep getting worse through the fall and summer.

The president's own statement, in Paris last week, that "we believe economic recovery is imminent," is a bit more cheerful than many economists would offer. But some say the upturn, though hard to detect, is already under way.

And few would disagree very strongly with the view of Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan that "we are not there yet but we are poised for recovery."

Tying all those statements together are two things: one more economic indicator — the unglamorous category of business inventories — coupled with the approach of the big tax-rate cut scheduled for July 1.

Bypassing the controversy of laying blame for the recession, it is clear that the weakness of the past few months has been concentrated in the fact that business officials facing high interest rates and relatively slow sales have sharply cut their production, instead supplying customers out of previously built-up inventories.

Low production means layoffs. Layoffs mean fewer Americans with money to spend. Less money to spend means even slower sales. And on and on.

But government figures show that inventories have indeed been coming down, dropping for four straight months after rising every month for six years.

That isn't necessarily good news but it does set the stage for good news; it does mean the economy "is poised for recovery" — if sales pick up.

With inventories lean, brisker sales would surely persuade businessmen to step up production, which would require hiring back laid-off workers, which would give those workers paychecks again and allow them to increase sales even more.

Or so, say the economists, past experience leads them to believe things should work out.

Stubbornly high interest rates remain a problem, they agree, making it expensive for businesses to finance new production and difficult, if not impossible, for young families to buy houses and other big items on credit.

But by almost all accounts, at least some recovery can be sparked by the tax-rate cut that begins taking effect in about three weeks, accompanied by an increase in Social Security benefits. Together, they will put about $40 billion into Americans' pockets at an annual rate.

According to the original "Reagonomics" game plan, most of that money was supposed to be saved, serving as a base for business investment. But few in the administration will cry now if Americans spend the money instead, pushing the economy out of the recession that has dominated the president's first 17 months in office.

There have been a few other encouraging signs of recovery. But some have been more obscure, the subject of technical arguments among professional economists. And many have tended to cancel themselves out quickly.

For example, the Commerce Department's Index of Leading Indicators, designed to forecast future economic trends, rose 0.8 percent in April, the first gain in a year.

But the improvement was dominated by increases in stock prices, the money supply and total liquid assets. Stock prices fell substantially in May, and economists say the other two categories may have declined, too.

Big retailers reported last week that sales improved in May. And car sales were reported to be up, too. And the past year's gains against inflation are already giving many Americans greater purchasing power.

But a private survey of business purchasing managers said Monday that production, employment and incoming new orders all fell sharply in May, an apparent sign that the recession was still deepening.

Pick an indicator for any economic forecast you might favor. Then wait, like

Homes And The Interest Rate

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — If the interest on home mortgages dropped from around 17 percent to 13 percent — a possibility but not a likelihood this year — perhaps 5 million additional families could afford to buy homes.

It is figures such as this that demonstrate the remarkable impact of interest rates, which many if not most economists now believe are the controlling factor in the nation's economic health, or lack of it.

Some would say, of course, that interest rates are merely a symptom — of a big budget imbalance, of government overspending, of a need to restrain the economy — but what economic factor isn't cause and effect?

The example was drawn from housing because housing vies with cars as the industry most devastated by today's extraordinarily high rates, which were expected to fall but didn't when inflation began to ease.

Under the impact of those interest rates, the capital spending plans of heavy industry are shrinking too, and so is the spending plans of smaller businesses, and some consumers and municipal governments.

But it is in housing, an area personally familiar to most Americans, where the carnage is most observable. Housing's recession began in November 1978. It is already 43 months old and destined to continue.

The Commerce Department reports that sales of new, single-family homes in April plunged 15.3 percent to a record low annual rate of 315,000 units, 32.5 percent below the April 1981 figure.

The National Association of Realtors reports existing home sales in April dropped to 1.9 million units, 27.8 percent below a year earlier, and "one-half of what was typical prior to the housing depression."

The quarterly survey of the Mortgage Bankers Association for January through March revealed a record-high foreclosure rate of 0.53 percent of loans, up from 0.41 percent in the final quarter of last year.

That 5.35 percent of its total homes loans were at least 30 days delinquent in the first quarter, the highest percentage recorded since it began the survey 29 years ago in 1953.

The National Association of Home Builders estimates that if interest rates fell just 4 percentage points from their existing levels, that is to around 13 percent, 15,310,000 families would have incomes sufficient for $60,000, 30-year mortgages. About 9.22 million now qualify.

The association worked out the figures on the basis of income, and assumed that one-third of income would comprise the total housing payment, made up of interest, principal, insurance, taxes, utilities.

At 17 percent, it calculated, an annual income of $38,520 would be required, meaning only 15.4 percent of families, or a total of 9,216,000, would qualify. At 13 percent, the income needed would drop to $31,644, and 25.5 percent of families would be able to qualify.

Those figures remain a far cry from the 8 percent mortgage days, which may be gone forever. Still, they did exist, and were they to reappear it would mean 44.3 percent, or a total of 26,556,000 families would have the $23,580 needed to qualify for the $60,000, 30-year mortgage.

Of course, though still alive, the 30-year mortgage isn't as easy to obtain today as it used to be, a further symptom of the interest rate uncertainty that exists. Could rates go higher? Lenders don't know, but they certainly don't want to commit themselves to an uncertainty.

Historically, the spread between interest rates, as measured by the prime interest rate, and inflation, as measured by the consumer price index, has been 3 or 4 percentage points. It is more than double that now. The April-to-April index rose 6.6 percent. The prime is now 16.5.

Rarely if ever has such a gap opened between the two rates. And never in 30 years has there been a more prolonged depression in housing.

Those figures remain a far

More Damage In N.C. Thunderstorms

By MARK DAVIS
Associated Press Writer
Weather forecasts called for an end sometime today to the state's latest onslaught of thunderstorms after Thursday's barrage claimed at least one life, and resulted in additional flooding and damages to property and farmers' crops.
An all-night search was scheduled to continue today in Moss Lake for the body of Bob Hoover of Shelby, whose sailboat was capsized by winds during a storm Thursday afternoon. Another person with Hoover managed to swim to a nearby island.

Unusually high amounts of rain have been reported in several cities since the almost daily rash of thunderstorms began May 15. Wilson has had 8.89 inches in that time — about 3.5 inches is normal for that area. Smithfield has had 8.34 inches of rainfall, Laurinburg, 7.09, Raleigh-Durham 8.16, and Murfreesboro, 6.24, said meteorologist Brian K. Eder at N.C. State.

Thursday storms added to the damages just about everywhere as trees were ripped apart and power lines were knocked out by winds gusting up to 40 mph and hail that hammered rooftops.
The National Weather Service reported the front, moving eastward from the Tennessee, blew across the state Thursday afternoon and night. Weather bureaus reported everywhere reported rain, wind and storm-torn skies.
In Mecklenburg County, a Duke Power Co. spokesman said that by 5:30 p.m. about 10,000 customers had been without power for varying lengths of time during the storm.

Charlotte weather specialist Bob Green said the storm was "a pretty mean one" that toppled a tree in one of Charlotte's parks.
The storm also stranded about 30 people in a two-story office building. A moat four feet deep encircled the building and those inside tried in vain to barricade the front doors with sand bags. They ran to the second floor when water pressure smashed ground level windows.
Elsewhere, severe-weather statements warned residents to watch for lightning and high winds.
Farmers across the state scanned the sky worriedly as more rain fell on already wet fields. Growers in Johnson and Durham counties said tobacco plants were drowned. Other crops also suffered from the hard rains, extension agents reported, and an earthen dam in Harnett County collapsed before the force of a rain-swollen creek.
In Asheville, meteorologist John Lippert said the storm left the mountains shortly before 4 p.m. A 14-mph wind moved through the valleys of Buncombe and surrounding counties and some counties experienced marble-sized hail, he said.

The weather service in Greensboro issued a watch in effect until 7 p.m. and warned Piedmont residents to watch for high winds and possible hail. Greensboro police reported minor flooding of residential streets Thursday morning, but said there had been no reported damage.

High winds and hail battered the southeastern portion of the state later Thursday, and a tornado was reported Wednesday that ripped the metal roof off the Standard Products of N.C. Inc. building in Brunswick County with about 30 people inside. No one was injured, but damages totaled an estimated $200,000.

INSTANT WINNER — Earl Sterry Jr. of Munn Road, Southbury, Conn. is a $10,000 winner in the state Instant Lottery — without even buying a ticket. Sterry came across a bunch of old lottery tickets while picking through a dumpster for returnable bottles at the Southford Store in Southbury. One ticket turned out to be a 10 grand winner. Bill Restricts Nursing Board

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A resolution that would allow lawmakers to introduce legislation to curtail the powers of the North Carolina Nursing Board has been approved by the state House of Representatives.

The bill, introduced by Rep. J.P. Huskins, D-Iredell, would give the community college board the power to set standards for all its academic programs, including nursing, and exempt the programs from approval by any state board.

The action came Thursday after the State Board of Community Colleges voted to seek legislation to keep the nursing board from having influence in the board's decisions.

"All these educational procedures should be left up to the community college and not to an outside agency," said Charles B. McIntyre, chairman of the N.C. Association of Community College Presidents.

The controversy started in April, when the nursing board proposed regulations that college-board members said would raise nurses' training costs and take away colleges' control of standards. The nursing board proposed a ratio of one teacher per eight students and asked that all nursing program directors in the state's 38 community colleges have master's degrees in nursing or a related field.

A subcommittee of the nursing board is now reviewing the proposed regulations. Dixie King, the board's business administrator, said the entire board will probably review the regulations at its August meeting.

However, the regulations would become moot if the state Senate approves Huskins' bill.

"The effect is uncertain, but (the bill) has potential for grave problems," she said, including the possibility that nursing school graduates' licenses might not be honored by other states where nursing boards set academic standards and accredited nursing programs.

"Sometimes, the community college people make the new regulations sound like a whole new ball game," Mrs. King said. "But they've always had standards of some kind to follow."

Community college officials noted that graduates of their two-year nursing programs often have a higher passing rate on the state license examination than graduates of the state's four-year colleges and universities.

"Other licensing boards work within the system with us," said Dr. Larry Blake, community college board president.

"We have a good working relationship," he said. "In the past, the same was true of the nursing board."

abuse are even less likely to be recognized by parents, Mrs. Mansaray said. This parent will never hit a child but will constantly belittle the child by telling him that he's worthless, that he doesn't do anything right. The psychological effects on that child can be just as damaging as the welts and bruises of a belt buckle.

Some parents slowly begin to realize that they are abusing their children. And some will voluntarily join Parents Anonymous to seek help, Mrs. Mansaray said. (DSS orders others to do so.) Some parents will try to make it on their own and discipline themselves. This doesn't always work — as is demonstrated by the case of Mrs. Mansaray and her child.

"I was beating my child as a way of venting my anger. It's easy to lose track of the fact that what we're doing is really venting our anger and not doing anything to correct their behavior," she said. After she would beat her child, she'd always feel guilty and promise herself she wouldn't do it again. But, in times of stress, she'd slip back into the abusive method of parenting she learned from her own parents.

During fiscal year 1981, 11,421 confirmed victims of child abuse and neglect were found in North Carolina — a number that includes 12 deaths and many more cases of beatings, incest and abandonments. State officials suspect they found only one-sixth of all the real cases.

everybody else, for the tax cut.

If things aren't moving, or at least getting into gear, by late summer or fall, there will be new arguments that the fault lies with the president, or with Congress, or with the economists, or with the banks, or with someone else.

And there will be plenty of new figures to talk about.

"Maybe a dozen."
"Ah, Monsieur, we don't sell them by the dozen. Our minimum order is 5,000. If we sell a few of them they could get into the wrong hands."
"I see your point. What's that stuff that looks like silly putty?"
"Plastique. You just stick it on to anything and insert this fuse and everything goes BOOM. We've had it for years but it is still very popular in Third World countries, where everything goes BOOM all the time."
"Well, I must say for a souvenir shop you're very well stocked. You don't have any perfume, do you?"
"You mean that can be sprayed with bacteria?"
"No, I just meant perfume that you could smell."
"You must be crazy. What kind of a French store do you think we are?"

Pitt Budget...

the citizens of the county are still not aware that it is the county which provides all the local financial support for Pitt Community College, Greenville city schools and the Pitt County Schools.

The community college's recommended budget, Gray said "has been prepared with increases only where cost of operations mandates an increase," and "$100,000 in a reserve appropriation to begin to accumulate funds for a building to meet the needs of the community college for space."

Gray's message continued by saying the proposed budget recommends $47,000 more in current expense funds for the Greenville school system than was budgeted this year while, under the required proration formula, the county school system would receive $175,800 more in current expense money.

As for capital outlay funds, the city would receive the same amount, while $5,600 more would go to the county in 1982-83.

Gray emphasized that "the supplement amounts, the projected increment raises and the (salaries for the) assistant superintendents and supervisors were removed" from the county school budget requests "as you directed and as was done last year. The additional funds ... (will be used) to help with meeting the Southern Association of Schools and College Accreditation requirements, instructional supplies, maintenance of building, including a new person for heating and air conditioning, and other uncontrollable costs."

Concluding, Gray noted that "there is no way to provide all that has been requested" by the two school systems — Pitt County and Greenville city — "without a tax rate increase of 26.3 cents ... and the citizens of Pitt County would not stand for that."

A look at the budget shows total recommended expenditures in the general fund of $15.96 million, as compared to requests totaling $21.29 million and the present fiscal year appropriation of $15.88 million.

The recommended social services budget of $4.21 million includes $125,200 more in county money than the present appropriation of $4.16 million. That department had requested a total of $4.22 million for the coming year.

The recommended $2.14 million for mental health is exactly what was requested, but less than the present $2.56 million budget, while the recommended $1.47 million for the health department is less than both the $1.49 million requested and the $1.53 current appropriation.

However, the recommended budget for health represents an increase of some $164,400 in local effort — including revenue sharing, and surplus funds — over the amount of local money in the present budget.

For education, the recommended budget includes $562,200 for Pitt Community College, which requested $1.52 million and had a current appropriation of $440,300.

For the city school system, the recommended total for current expense for 1982-83 amounts to $2.02 million, as compared with the present budget of $1.98 million and requests totaling $2.4 million, while in capital outlay, the recommended figure is $172,700 (the same as this year), while the amount requested was $341,200.

The recommended budget for the county schools includes $4.67 million for current expense (compared to $4.5 million this year and requests amounting to $5.56 million) and $407,900 for capital outlay (as compared with $402,300 this year and a requested $3.15 million).

Commissioners have scheduled another budget workshop session for 2 p.m. Tuesday.

A public hearing on the budget has been scheduled for 7 p.m. June 21.

Graduation Of County Extended School Held

JENKINS SPEAKS TO EXTENDED DAY GRADS... Dr. Leo Jenkins, (left) president emeritus of East Carolina University, was the featured speaker for commencement exercises of the Pitt County Extended School held Thursday at PCC. Above, he chats with Irene Hanifer, (center) director of the program, and Tom Craft, (right) acting superintendent of Pitt County Schools, before the ceremony.

Commencement exercises for the Pitt County Extended School were held Thursday afternoon on the campus of Pitt Community College with Dr. Leo Jenkins, president emeritus of East Carolina University, as the graduation speaker.

Dr. Jenkins told the graduates there are, in his opinion, four important rules in life. "Have a staunch faith in God," he said. "Stop, pause and pray about your problems."

He reminded graduates to seek a career field that reflects their talents. "Find a job you will like with all your heart — not one you might dread when you report for work on Monday morning," stated Jenkins.

He also pointed out that hobbies are important. "All work and no play makes Jack or Mary very dull people."

"Finally," he concluded,

Libraries Face Magazine Loss

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — The rising cost of periodicals may price North Carolina's libraries out of the magazine market, state librarians say.

The average cost of the average magazine has risen by 13 percent to 14 percent in the last few years, said David McKay, librarian at the state Division of Libraries in Raleigh.

Many libraries are facing magazine and newspaper cutbacks, while others are avoiding subscribing to any new periodicals.

Five Rescued As Boat Burns

OREGON INLET, N.C. (AP) — Five people on board a 42-foot sport fishing boat have been rescued from the ocean after they jumped off their boat when it caught fire Thursday about 22 miles southeast of Oregon Inlet.

The five were retrieved by a nearby fishing boat after jumping from the Amy, which was making its maiden voyage at sea.

"It went up like a book of matches," said Gary Myers, captain of the Duke of Dare, a charter fishing vessel that rescued the five. "It was unbelievable."

Two of the five, Daniel D. Yeargin, 42, of Zebulon and his son, Daniel Cain Yeargin, received first- and second-degree burns and were flown by a U.S. Coast Guard helicopter for treatment at the Albemarle Hospital in Elizabeth City. The elder Yeargin was listed in satisfactory condition Thursday, while his son was treated and released.

The other three, Gary Dowdy, his son Hunter Dowdy and Troy Alexandria, all of Manteo, were uninjured.

The $100,000 boat belonged to Gary Dowdy's father, Joe Dowdy of Manteo. Joe Dowdy said he had been told the five smelled smoke as they headed out to sea with a fleet of fishing vessels. The engines in the plywood-and-Fiberglas craft slowed and flames shot out when they opened the engine compartment, he said.

Dowdy said his grandson was below deck when the fire erupted and managed to escape through a deck hatch.

The flames prevented the group from reaching life jackets and fire extinguishers, the elder Dowdy said.

Fishermen who saw the smoke and heard the explosion notified the coast guard. The 82-foot Coast Guard cutter Point Brown reached the scene at about 10 a.m. Thursday — about two hours after the fire started.

Invite A Ghost To Open House

UNION, N.J. (AP) — There's not a ghost of a chance she will attend, but city officials have invited a woman killed in the Revolutionary War to attend a Fourth of July celebration here.

Mayor James C. Conlon invited the ghost of Hannah Ogden Caldwell to attend an open house July 4 at her colonial-era home, now a local museum.

In a letter sent in care of the county freeholders, Conlon told Mrs. Caldwell that "we have kept your home all these years — painting it, planting flowers and pampering it in any way we can. Now we want to show the people of our wonderful township and yourself just how much we admired and loved you and your family."

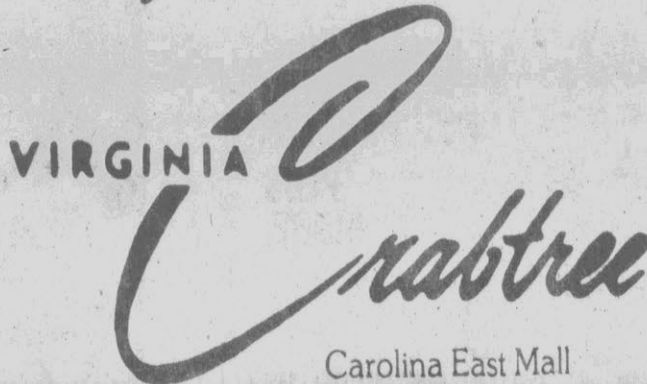

The home, the Caldwell Parsonage, is said to be haunted by the ghost of Mrs. Caldwell, who was shot to death by a British soldier more than two centuries ago.

Conlon ended his letter with the plea, "Hannah, please come home."

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

BE MY GUEST!

IN THE DAYS OF THE BIBLICAL PATRIARCHS, THE RULES OF HOSPITALITY WERE STRICTLY ADHERED TO. SOME OF THE CUSTOMS WERE CERTAINLY BIZARRE AND ODD, TO SAY THE LEAST! FOR INSTANCE, A MAN'S ENEMY BY THE MERE ACT OF TOUCHING THE MAN'S TENT POLE IMMEDIATELY BECAME HIS GUEST AND, AS SUCH, COULD CLAIM FOOD, DRINK, AND PROTECTION IN THE TENT FOR THREE DAYS PLUS FOUR HOURS—AND, ON LEAVING, COULD CLAIM FURTHER IMMUNITY FROM HARM FOR THIRTY-SIX MORE HOURS!

IN ANOTHER ASPECT OF HOSPITALITY A MAN'S WEALTH WAS MEASURED BY THE NUMBER OF GUESTS ENTERTAINED. NEHEMIAH, GOVERNOR OF JERUSALEM, ENTERTAINED 150 MEN AT A SITTING! KING AHAB AND JEZEBEL FED 800 PRIESTS OF BAAL DAILY (UNTIL ELISHA SLAUGHTERED THEM!). FOR SOLOMON'S FEASTS AT HIS COURT, ONE DAY'S PROVISIONS INCLUDED "...10 FAT OXEN, 20 CATTLE, 100 SHEEP, HARTS AND ROEBUCKS, FALLOWDEER AND FATTED FOWL." (1 KINGS 4:22FF). IT WAS A MATTER OF PRIDE FOR KINGS, NOBLES, AND ALL WEALTHY MEN TO PROCLAIM HOW MANY PEOPLE THEY FED AND ENTERTAINED. BUT FOR SHEER NUMBERS JESUS OUTDID THEM ALL—WELL, DIDN'T HE FEED THE FIVE THOUSAND? (MATT. 14:14-21)

If You Have a Habit Of Following The Crowd, We Suggest, The Best Crowd to Follow is the Crowd Going To Church

Church Grows, Fewer Priests

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Roman Catholicism in 1981 recorded its largest membership gain in 16 years, passing the 51 million mark. It was the second successive year of hefty increases, but the ranks of professionals to tend the flock kept shrinking.

So did the number of seminarians preparing for the priesthood, continuing a decline seen by experts as pointing to a deepening vocational crisis in the church.

According to new statistics given this week in the Official Catholic Directory, compiled by P.J. Kennedy & Sons, there are 11,645 candidates studying for the priesthood, down 823 from the year before, and about half the 22,963 of a decade ago.

While researchers throughout the period have seen the trend as heading for a severe priest shortage, the total number of priests has remained comparatively steady, although slowly declining.

"For years, it's been called a 'crisis,' but it's an ongoing 'crisis' that hasn't materialized," says Thomas H. Walsh, manager of the firm that gathers the figures. "The prophecies of doom have not been fulfilled. But there's no question it's a very serious problem."

In any case, there now are 58,085 priests serving in the country, down 313 from last year, and 1,807 less than the peak of 59,892 in 1967.

Walsh says that while the number of seminarians has shrunk drastically, they now are much more carefully screened, and nearly all enter the priesthood, while 15 years ago, only 20 percent did so.

"That has partly balanced out the effect," he says. "But it's still a problem as the number of Catholics keep growing, and priests get fewer."

Like numerous others, he foresees eventual dropping of the requirement of priestly celibacy, which studies find to be a major deterrent to the priesthood, although Pope John Paul II has strongly upheld it.

Meanwhile, Protestantism, which permits clergy to marry and in many cases also ordains women, has swelling enrollments in seminaries and an ample influx of new clergy.

U.S. Roman Catholicism, to try to cope with its priest shortage, 10 years ago began enlisting permanent deacons, married or unmarried, to officiate at baptisms, marriages, funerals and other assisting tasks.

There now are 4,725 such adjunct clergymen, up 746 in the last year, but they cannot consecrate the elements of the Mass, or Holy Communion, which requires a priest.

Nuns also increasingly are serving as "lay" assistants to help distribute Communion, but the number of nuns is shrinking, too, down 1,283 last year to a total of 121,370 sisters.

"Nuns are in worse shape than the priests," Walsh says. "There are hardly any new postulants — they just aren't there." The total number of nuns has fallen 60,000 since a peak of 181,421 in 1966.

Despite the squeeze on church professionals, however, membership in the church last year rose by 757,737, the biggest gain since the 766,248 increase in 1965.

"Both baptisms and conversions were up very substantially," says Walsh, adding that there were indications of a "return to religion. Hard times have something to do with it. It's definitely happening."

"Most encouraging is that young people are coming back, those of college age and young adults. Kids before had turned the church off, turned the government off, turned everything off. But there seems to be a resurgence of religion among them."

It was the second year in a row that the membership rise had almost paralleled the level of 1965, the last year of the reforming Second Vatican Council. The total in 1980 rose 637,664, signalling a turn-around in 15 years of sagging growth and in some cases, losses.

The even bigger advance in 1981 brought the total to 51,207,579, amounting to 22.17 percent of the population, still below the peak of 23.7 in 1968, but inching back up again after previous slippage.

Heaviest membership gains last year were registered in areas of heavy influxes of Hispanics, including Corpus Christi and Brownsville, Texas; Los Angeles and Miami.

However, the number of converts increased by 3,919 last year to a total of 92,861, and the number of baptisms rose 38,954 to 982,586.

Lay teachers continued to increase in Catholic parochial schools, replacing the shrinking number of nuns, brothers and priests.

Slim Pickings In Amish Sect

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP) — A dwindling Amish group in central Pennsylvania has become so closely interrelated that members are almost forced to marry second cousins — with unknown genetic consequences, says a Penn State researcher.

The "White Buggy" sect, named for the horse-drawn carriages which members use for transportation, does not use radios, televisions or telephones. James P. Hurd, a Penn State anthropology instructor who studied the group, said the sect is down to 902 members and does not mix with other religious groups, or even other Amish sects.

"A church will not share ministers with another church and also will not allow or share communion with another church," Hurd said. "So these barriers go up among churches, and they also include excommunication if people marry outside their church."

The result is that members of the White Buggy sect, most living in Mifflin County, with other groups clustered in Centre, Snyder and Union counties, are almost inevitably forced to marry second cousins, Hurd said. "Engaged men and women find they are related to each other six different ways," he said.

Hurd said that over the years, schisms have reduced the numbers of the sect, who are also called Nebraska Amish after a minister from Nebraska who organized the church. First cousins who intermarry have a greater chance of producing offspring with various genetic defects caused by recessive genes, Hurd said. But re-

THE MOTHER CHURCH — The nation's 9.6 million Methodists are each being asked to donate a dollar to save the dilapidated but elegant historic Lovely Lane Methodist Church that is the cradle of their faith in Baltimore, Md. Pirate Woes Continue; 'Hawks Win

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer

East Carolina, four games into its Summer League schedule, continued to have its problems at the plate Thursday evening against UNC-Wilmington — despite a seventh-inning flurry.

UNC-W struck for five runs in the first inning, added three more in the next six on solo home runs and withstood a five-run outburst by the Pirates in the seventh to beat ECU, 8-5, last night at Harrington Field.

The loss drops ECU to 0-4 — three of those losses coming at the hands of the Seahawks. UNC-W is now 5-2.

The Seahawks took a 5-0 lead in the first against ECU starter Chubbie Butler, who left without having gotten an out in his first start of the Summer League season.

UNC-W upped its lead to 8-0 on home runs by John Slaughter in the fourth and back-to-back shots by Paul Murr and Don Stevenson in the sixth before ECU was finally able to score in the fifth.

UNC-W freshman Mike Melville, in his first varsity start, held ECU scoreless through six innings but tired in the seventh and was replaced with two on by staff ace Ken Smith.

Smith, who had given up three hits in two previous outings, promptly gave up RBI singles to Charlie Smith and Pete Persico. The Pirates scored three more runs on an error by third baseman Chris Cabbage before Smith struck out Mark Shank to end the game.

"Just too little too late," ECU coach Gary Overton said. "We fell behind early. That hurt us."

Overton noted the Pirates had the leadoff man in five times but, trailing as they were, indicated his strategy was limited. Overton could not punt his man up. The Pirates need a big inning.

"We had to rely on hits," the coach said, "and we didn't get them when we needed them."

That's been the story of the Summer League season thus far for ECU, which going into last night's game had managed only four runs in 21 innings. Asked about his club's hitting problems, Overton replied:

"I don't know the answer. We haven't seen that good a pitching, but maybe we're trying to be too fine. Look at the times a player tried to go to the opposite field tonight."

"That may be part of the problem," he added. "We're just trying to be too fine."

Persico led the Pirates at the plate with three hits in four at bats. David Wells was two for three with a double. Murr, Stevenson and Slaughter all had two hits for UNC-W.

UNC-W, which swept a double-header from the Pirates Tuesday night, wasted no time in jumping on the Pirates and Butler.

Butler walked Gary Hall to open the first. Hall stole second and went to third on Murr's single to left. Stevenson followed with a single to center to score Hall and, when centerfielder Robert Wells misplayed the ball, Murr raced home.

Cabbage then singled and Slaughter followed with a double to score Stevenson and chase Butler for Mike Williams. After Williams walked Roger Hudson, Tom Phillips singled to score Cabbage. Slaughter later scored on a passed ball to make it 5-0.

UNC-W loaded the bases in the second on three walks by Williams but Phillips grounded into a force out at second to end the threat.

ECU used a leadoff single by Shank, a double by John Hallow and walk to Todd Evans to load the bases in the third. But, Charlie Smith grounded out to short on a 3-2 count to end the inning.

The Seahawks upped their advantage to 6-0 in the fourth on Slaughter's two-out home run over the rightfield fence. The lead went to 8-0 two innings later when Murr led off with a home run to leftfield and Stevenson followed with a shot to right-centerfield.

ECU finally broke through in the seventh to end Melville's bid for a shutout. Walks to David Wells and Art Barnhardt sent Melville to the dugout for Smith, who walked Evans to load the bases.

Smith then reached on an infield single to bring home Wells and Pete Persico blooped a single behind first to score Barnhardt, who pinch hit for catcher Jack Curlings.

Then, with two gone, Robert Wells hit a high chopper down third that Cabbage couldn't handle. The ball rolled into foul territory, allowing three runs to score.

It was not enough, however, and the brief last-inning flurry offered little consolation for Overton.

"The main thing about the last inning is we didn't give up," he said. "But we're just not hitting the ball. We're going to come around, though, we know that."

Smith, Brown, Johnson Resign Coaching Posts

Three members of the East Carolina University athletic staff have resigned their posts, it was announced this morning by Athletic Director Ken Karr.

The three are soccer coach Brad Smith, tennis coach Caroline Brown, and strength coach Jeff Johnson.

Smith, a former ECU playing standout in soccer, coached the team to a 7-9-1 record in 1981, his fifth as Pirate head coach. His overall record at East Carolina was 25-55-6, against one of the tougher schedules around.

The recently married Smith will be working for his Ph.D. in psychology at the University of Tennessee.

Brown, who headed both the men's and women's tennis programs, served for two years in the latter position, and one season in the former. She led the men's team to a 15-4 record this spring, while her women's team gained a third-place ranking in the state this past year. Freshman Katherine Tolson became the first ECU regional to make the AIAW regional this past year, under Brown's tutelage.

Brown will assume a position as head women's tennis coach at Davidson College.

Johnson, who recently completed his second year on the staff, was in charge of the university's weight program. When he first arrived on campus, there was no one on the football team who could hang-clean 300 pounds, and there are now 36 who can accomplish this, one indication of his work. Johnson recently received the best lifter award as he won the 181-pound class in the American Weight Lifting Championships.

Johnson will move to Colorado Springs, Colo., where he will hopefully train for a position on the U.S. Olympic squad in weightlifting for 1984.

No replacements for the three have been named as yet, according to a university spokesman.

The three bring to six the number of staff members who have resigned this spring. Others include swimming coach Ray Scharf, basketball coach Dave Odom, and golf coach Bob Helmick.

Patterson, Sorrell Sign Pro Contracts

Two more members of the East Carolina University baseball team have been picked up by the pros, one in the draft and the other as a free agent.

Bob Patterson, a senior righthanded pitcher, was drafted in the 21st round by the San Diego Padre organization. He has been assigned to that organization's Saratoga team in the Gulf Coast Rookie League.

Patterson was 10-2 on the season, winning his last outing against the University of North Carolina, 1-0, in the NCAA Regionals. His ERA of 1.84 led the team.

Mike Sorrell, senior second baseman, was signed as a free agent by the Kansas City Royals organization, and was assigned to that team's entry in the Gulf Coast League, also at Sarasota, Fla. Sorrell finished the season with a .257 batting average.

Earlier Bill Wilder, senior lefthander, was drafted in the 16th round by Kansas City Royals.

Stage Set For Battle Of The Heavyweights

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Larry Holmes defends his World Boxing Council heavyweight championship tonight against a younger, taller, heavier Gerry Cooney in the richest fight in ring history, an extravaganza to be staged in the parking lot at Caesars Palace.

Holmes, 32, weighed in at 212½ pounds Thursday, 13 lighter than the 25-year-old Cooney, who was 225½. The champion, at 6-foot-3, is also four inches shorter than the challenger. But the statistical edge hardly seemed to disturb Holmes on the eve of the fight, which will earn record purses of $10 million for both men.

"I'm sticking with my prediction of seven rounds," the champion said. "But if he acts foolish, he won't go four."

The two men weighed in separately, avoiding any confrontation. They have been kept apart for much of the last two weeks during training sessions because of incidents between members of their camps.

Cooney's people have harassed Holmes with taunts of "Tick ... tick ... tick," suggesting that time is running out on the 32-year-old champion.

Holmes answered that at the weigh-in when he led his entourage in a chant, like a college cheerleader.

"What time is it?" he shouted at them.

"Holmes' Time!" they answered.

Both men carry impressive credentials into this fight which matches a master boxer against a powerful puncher in the classic stylist-sluggers showdown.

Holmes has ruled the WBC heavyweight division for the last four years, defending his title 11 times and ending 10 of those fights with knockouts. He is 39-0 for his career and has scored 29 knockouts.

Cooney is also undefeated with 22 knockouts in 25 fights. Eight of his fights, including the last two, have ended in the first round.

Holmes is the boxer, an expert at setting up an opponent. He is considered to have one of the best left jabs in the business. "I got here boxing and I'm gonna leave here boxing," he has said.

Cooney's left hook has devastated

tated opponents. He scored awesome knockouts in his last three fights, destroying Ken Norton, Ron Lyle and Jimmy Young — three men who either held or fought for the heavyweight title — in four rounds or less.

For these reasons, the fight has captured the imagination of the boxing public. The fans' appetite for the match was increased even more by a two-month postponement forced by an injury to the challenger's left shoulder.

Cooney says he is healthy now and trainer Victor Valle thinks the delay may have helped his man develop his right hand and made him more of a two-fisted threat to Holmes.

With the excitement the match has created, co-promoter Don King said the gross could soar past the record $50 million figure which Holmes and Muhammad Ali set in the same parking lot stadium Oct. 2, 1980.

Clark Added To Tech Staff

ATLANTA (AP) — Georgia Tech basketball Coach Bobby Cremins has hired as his assistant Perry Clark, a former assistant coach at Penn State.

Clark, 30, coached teams that compiled a 61-48 record from 1978-1982 under Nittany Lions head Coach Dick Harter. Clark played at Gettysburg College and coached high school basketball before going to Penn State.

He replaces Ben Jobe, who resigned to become head coach at Alabama A&M.

"Perry has all the qualities we are looking for," Cremins said. "We are excited to have him aboard."

Hrbek's Grand Slam Sparks Minnesota

By The Associated Press
It was the fourth consecutive game in which Kent Hrbek has homered. For the Minnesota Twins rookie, it was by far the best.

"It put us in the lead," Hrbek said of his first major league grand slam. "That's what's been missing. It was what we've been needing. Getting a home run's not much if it don't help any."

Hrbek's homer Thursday night was the big blow in Minnesota's 8-7 victory over the Kansas City Royals. That snapped the Twins' five-game losing streak and Kansas City's eight-game winning string.

The rookie left-hander considers himself a streak home run hitter.

"I told Bruno (Tom Brunansky) that he would probably hit more home runs than I did because I'm a streak home run hitter," said the big rookie who is batting .335 with 15 homers, 45 runs batted and an American League-leading 127 total bases. "I always did well in doubleheaders. Sometimes I'd hit three or four.

"I don't know if it's the home-run swing or not. I don't think home runs. The ball just starts going out. I don't know what it is. It's a streaky thing."

Hrbek has now hit in his last 15 games. He had a 23-game streak earlier this season and has hit safely in 46 of the 49 games this season.

His big homer came in the fifth inning with the Twins down 3-1. Reliever Mike Armstrong hit Brunansky with an 0-2 pitch, forcing in one run and bringing up Hrbek.

"The key to the inning is he got two strikes on Brunansky and hits him," said Royals Manager Dick Howser. "One guy's hitting .230 and the other guy's hitting a ton."

"All he can do is get better and that's hard to believe," winner Pete Redfern said of Hrbek. "Next week he'll run for mayor."

Brewers 9, Orioles 7
A two-run double in the eighth inning by Ben Oglivie gave Milwaukee its victory over Baltimore, snapping the Orioles' five-game winning streak despite Baltimore's 17-hit attack.

Oglivie's double off reliever Tim Stoddard made a winner out of reliever Rolie Fingers, 3-5, who pitched the final three innings.

Ken Singleton, Lenn Sakata,

Rick Dempsey and Rich Dauer homered for Baltimore, while Don Money slammed a two-run homer for the Brewers.

White Sox 7, Angels 6
Steve Kemp slammed the first pitch in the bottom of the ninth inning into the left field stands to lift Chicago over California. It was Kemp's fourth homer of the season.

The Angels had tied the game 6-6 in the eighth on Reggie Jackson's RBI-single and Bobby Grich's run-scoring double.

Chicago starter Britt Burns, who wasn't involved in the decision, didn't allow the Angels a hit until Fred Lynn hit his third homer in the fifth inning.

Yankees 5, Red Sox 3
Left-hander Dave Righetti hurled hitless ball for 61-3 innings, then needed relief help from Goose Gossage as New York snapped a five-game losing streak by stopping Boston.

Righetti had his no-hit bid broken up with one out in the seventh when Glenn Hoffman singled to right-center.

Dave Winfield homered to the Yankees, who scored two runs in the seventh on three-base error by Boston left fielder Jim Rice.

Miami Gains Series Finals

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Miami baseball Coach Ron Fraser has qualified for five consecutive College World Series and four times he's gone home disappointed.

"We had no dream we'd be in the finals," said Fraser after his team trimmed No. 1-ranked Texas 2-1 in Thursday night's winners' bracket finals. The victory automatically sends the Hurricanes into a CWS championship contest either Saturday or Sunday.

"The other teams we brought in here were highly ranked, had great pitching and played great defense," said Fraser. "This is an entirely different type of club. This one is free-swinging and can hit the long ball. The other teams couldn't do that."

Pitching has not been a strong point for the 1982 Miami club but Sam Sorce and Dan Smith combined for a five-hitter against the Longhorns.

"This was a good old-fashioned Miami win that we were used to having in years past," said Fraser. "It has been unusual for us to win 2-1 ballgames this season. It was by far our best pitching performance of the season."

Miami pitching coach Skip Bertman said he called all the pitches against Texas, "especially for Smith because he has so many pitches. He's had 43 outings this year and 39 of them have been good ones."

Bertman said the pitching strategy worked well against the Longhorns in pulling Sorce after five innings and coming in with the left-handed Smith.

Smith allowed only two runners to reach second base, including a runner he stranded in the top of the ninth as he fanned pinch-hitter Kirk Killingsworth and No. 9-hitter Milo Choate.

"Danny dominated them," said catcher Nelson Santovenia. "He was psyched up. He was throwing extra curve balls, then he struck Killingsworth out on a fast ball and Choate on three awesome curve balls. That was the best game we've played."

The 2-1 contest dropped Texas, 59-5, into an elimination game with No. 2-ranked Wichita State, 71-13, this evening.

Miami, now 51-18-1, faces 34-13 Maine, a team the Hurricanes have not lost to in 12 past outings.

"We haven't lost to them?" Fraser asked. "Well that won't make any difference this time. They're playing extremely well. They sent Cal-State Fullerton and Stanford home. They're a good club."

"Maine has to be feeling good right now," Fraser continued. "They're throwing their No. 2 pitcher, Joe Johnson, who may be their No. 1 pitcher right now. And we're throwing a freshman, (Rob) Souza. They've got to be feeling confident."

Greene County . . . 1

Billy Godley got Pugh's Firestone off to a good start with a lead-off homer in the bottom of the first inning and the team went on to claim a 3-1 victory over Greene County last night in the Coastal Plains Senior Babe Ruth League.

Pugh's got all it needed in the first inning, scoring twice. Godley rode the first pitch of the night by visiting pitcher Elmer Dixon out of the park in left center for a 1-0 lead.

Toby Fischer followed with a walk and was advanced on an out. Keith Phillips reached on an error, allowing Fischer to score.

The other Pugh's run came in the third, with Godley again coming around to score. Greene County got its only run in the fifth, spoiling Godley's bid for a shutout on the mound.

Godley led the hitting for Pugh's with two, while Ritchie Chase had two hits for Greene County.

CHICOD — Chicod downed the Chicod Hornets, 5-3, last night on a three-run double by Joey Johnson.

The blow came in the bottom of the sixth, and left Johnson, who also hurled the win, allowing just two hits, with two hits of his own.

Chicod is now 5-5 on the year, while the Hornets are 6-4.

Little League
Pepsi-Cola 15
Exchange 4

Mike Kelly drove in three runs and Mitch Mitchum and Wes MacKenzie two each to lead Pepsi-Cola to a 15-4 win over Exchange Thursday in a Tar Heel Little League baseball game.

Pepsi scored seven runs in the bottom of the first to erase a 1-0 deficit en route to the win. Peter Rivera singled home one run, a wild pitch brought home another before six walks and an RBI single by Kelly produced the final five runs of the inning.

Pepsi added four more runs in the second, keyed by Kelly's two-run double, to make it 11-1. Pepsi scored twice more in the third and fourth for its final total. Exchange scored three runs in the fifth.

Britt Erwin was two for two for Exchange. Kelly had three hits and MacKenzie two for Pepsi.

Lions 8
Coca-Cola 1

Coca-Cola outhit the Lions, 6-2, but it's runs that count, and the Lions came up with a good deal more of those to take an 8-1 victory in the North State Little League yesterday.

The Lions got all they needed in the first inning. With one down, Robin Joyne walked and after a second out, Tom Moye walked. Bobby Williams singled in Joyner, and an error on the play let Moye score for a 2-0 lead.

The Lions added two more in the third, two in the fourth, helped by Moye's triple, and got one each in the fourth and fifth.

The lone Coke run came over in the third. Coke's hitting was led by Derrick Hines with two.

Curtis Has Winning Attitude For San Diego

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Left-hander John Curtis, a former history major at Clemson, isn't one to quibble over semantics.

The 34-year-old journeyman pitcher for the San Diego Padres says simply that the difference between being a loser and a winner is not a good fastball or a wicked curve — it's a matter of attitude.

"I have a feeling of gradual improvement, and it's more attitude than anything physical that I am doing," Curtis said after throwing a two-hit, 5-0 shutout against the Houston Astros Thursday afternoon.

It was the first shutout for Curtis since July 19, 1979, and his first complete game since Sept. 30, 1980. The 11-year veteran faced 28 batters — one over the minimum — and allowed just two Houston batters to reach first base. Neither one got any farther.

"Today it was just a matter of discipline," Curtis said. "I kept the ball consistently at the knees and below."

The result was 16 ground-ball outs by Houston as Curtis won his third consecutive decision in lifting his season mark to 5-4.

"In the past, when I would go out to pitch I would wonder how we were going to lose the game," said Curtis, who finished 1981 with a 2-6 record and 5.10 earned run average. "But now we know the kind of weapons we have on this club spell victory."

The Padres, winners of seven of their last nine games, handed left-hander Bob Knepper his seventh loss in nine decisions.

Rookie left fielder Alan Wiggins got Curtis the only run he needed when he singled in Luis Salazar after the Padres' third baseman doubled in the third inning. Wiggins also stole his 12th consecutive base and his 21st in 29 games, and made a fine running catch in the second inning, robbing the Astros' Alan Knicely of a possible extra-base hit.

Catcher Terry Kennedy hit a two-run double — his league-leading 17th two-base hit — in the fourth, and Sixto Lezcano got the first of two RBIs with a solo homer in the sixth.

The final Padre run came in the seventh when Garry Templeton walked, stole second and scored on a single by Lezcano.

Knicely and Ray Knight had the only hits off Curtis.

Bargain Counter Putter Helps Lye Share Lead

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Mark Lye credits a bargain-counter putter for a share of the lead he took into today's second round of the Danny Thomas Memphis Classic golf tournament.

The 29-year-old Californian matched veteran Ray Floyd's 5-under-par 67. They were were one stroke ahead of Mark McCumber.

"My old putter ... the head was black, turning to grey," Lye said. "Just like my putting."

After arriving in Memphis this week, Lye visited golfing equipment manager Bert Dargie.

"He had his old putter lying around. I just put it in my bag," Lye said.

"He gave me a deal — $24.95 — one time only, just for me."

The new putter — a half mallet — worked fine, said Lye. "I made some putts that were unbelievable."

Requiring just 25 strokes on the Bermuda greens, Lye on-putted 12 times.

McCumber, a fifth-year pro whose best finish this year has been a tie for 20th, appeared headed for the lead until he double-bogeyed the seventh hole, his 16th of the pleasant day, and finished at 68.

Gary Koch was alone in fourth place with a 69. Among those at 70 was Tom Kite and J.C. Snead. Dave Hill, the only four-time winner of the event, was at 71 while Lee Trevino, a three-time Memphis champion, was in a logjam at 72 over the 7,249-yard layout.

Defending Champion Jerry Pate had a disastrous day, finishing at 79.

Wayne Player, the son of 1974 champion Gary Player, had a 74.

Lye birdied six holes and had only one bogey, on the 17th hole, where he drove into the rough and hit a wedge over the green.

Floyd, who needs the $72,000 first prize here to become the tour's sixth player to top the $2 million mark, bogeyed the eighth and ninth holes Thursday, but racked up seven birdies.

Portions of the tournament's final rounds Saturday and Sunday will be televised by CBS.

Hession May Be Making Her Bid

MASON, Ohio (AP) — Therese Hession, three years on the tour without a victory, may be making the most serious bid of her career — in one of the biggest events in women's golf.

Hession was tied for the lead with Jan Stephenson and Beth Daniel at the start of today's second round of the $200,000 Ladies Professional Golf Association championship.

Each shot 3-under-par 69 Thursday over the 6,298-yard Grizzly Course at the Jack Nicklaus Sports Center near Cincinnati.

"I feel very aggressive. I went after a lot of flags," said Hession, 24, a former high school and amateur champion from Indianapolis.

"I haven't been a particularly fast starter. But I came here hitting the ball as solid as I ever have."

Four weeks ago, Hession wasn't swinging a club at all. She tore cartilage in her right knee and missed four tournaments.

"I couldn't get my arms up past my waist. The only thing I could do was sit down until it healed," Hession said.

"I just started playing again last Thursday. Now, I feel really good. I feel like it's healed, and I don't hold back on it at all. I didn't even flinch; I wasn't afraid to go after it today."

Hession's 69 equalled her best competitive round as a pro.

"It really was an easy round," she said. "Only about twice I got into trouble, and both times I made putts to save par. I'm playing very confident."

Daniel was the first of the leaders to finish Thursday, while the soggy course was playing long for many of the pros. But she found the conditions to her liking.

New Charges On NFL, Coke

By The Associated Press

While officials and players disputed accusations that cocaine use permeates pro football, a new published report says some National Football League teams drafted college prospects this year who were known to have used illegal drugs.

Don Reese, the former defensive lineman who triggered the latest uproar by co-authoring a copyright article in which he said cocaine use can be found in quantity in the NFL, faces investigations in two states concerning the article, in Sports Illustrated.

Nine top college prospects were discovered to have traces of cocaine or other illegal drugs in their bloodstream during a tryout camp at Tampa, Fla., the Orlando Sentinel reported today. The paper said all nine were chosen in the NFL's draft last April and that one of the players was an early first-round choice.

The tryout camp was conducted by the Tampa Bay

Buccaneers under the auspices of the United Scouting Combine. It was attended by 150 college players and the information gathered was shared by the 16 NFL teams that form the combine.

As part of the tryout, the prospects were given exhaustive physical examinations. The urinalysis portion of the physical, according to the head coach and officials of three other teams affiliated with the combine, revealed traces of illegal drugs in nine players, the newspaper said.

"As bad as we hate to admit it, nine out of 150 is probably a pretty low percentage," said Harry Buffington, the head of United Combine. "I should be shocked if there was less than that out of the normal student population."

Meanwhile, officials in Florida and Louisiana said they would either investigate, or invite Reese to discuss his June 14 article in Sports Illustrated, whose article named several players who allegedly used cocaine while with the Saints, pleaded guilty in 1977 to selling cocaine. He served a year in jail and was released from the Dade County Stockade on probation in August 1978. In the copyright story he said he has used cocaine many times since then

It's an admission that Dade County officials say could put Reese back in jail.

"We are going to investigate immediately and take as strong action as we can under the law," said Janet Reno, the Florida state attorney general for Dade County.

Joseph Durant, the judge who sentenced Reese in 1977, said the former Jackson State star, whose probation expires in mid August, could be sentenced to as much as 15 years for violating parole.

Fast-Rising Yank Watched

LONDON (AP) — Chip Hooper, preparing for his first Wimbledon, refused to predict how he would do, but two things were certain — he will be one of the tallest players ever at the All-England Club and his service will be one of the fastest.

The fans were following the lanky American around at London's Queen's Club, eager to see what has lifted him from 235th place to 25th in the world computer rankings in six months.

Hooper gave them some idea of his talents Thursday when he hammered Paul McNamee of Australia 6-4, 6-2 to reach the quarterfinals of the $172,000 Stella Artois Championships.

Friday he was tilting at John McEnroe, who is tuning up for the defense of his Wimbledon title in two weeks.

"I'm described as anything between 6 feet, 8 inches and 6 feet, 5 inches," Hooper said. "In fact it's somewhere in between. I'm slightly shorter than Vic Amaya, and he's supposed to be 6-7."

"As for my service, it's been estimated at 135 miles per hour, but I don't think the speed matters. I would say it's as fast as any around at the moment."

McEnroe, favorite for the Queen's Club title, defeated John Sadri 6-3, 6-2 to reach the quarterfinals.

Jimmy Connors, the No. 2 seed, beat Hank Pfister 7-6, 6-4.

Neither McEnroe nor Connors has dropped a set in the tournament.

In today's scheduled quarterfinal action, McEnroe was to meet Hooper; American Fritz Buehning will play Chris Lewis of New Zealand; American Brian Gottfried will meet South Africa's Kevin Curren; and Australian Mark Edmondson was to take on Connors.

Tommy Barefoot beat out a large field in the Thursday Night Amateur Tournament at the Greenville Putt-Putt last night. Barefoot came from behind to win the tourney with a four under par 68.

At the end of regulation play, Robbie Moye, Sheri Fearing and Missy Strong were tied for second place with two under par 70's. Moye claimed second in a sudden death playoff, with Fearing and Strong finishing third and fourth, respectively.

Three strokes off the pace at a one under par 71 was Steve Johnston. One stroke back at 72 was Frank Moye in sixth, while David Johnson came in seventh with a two over 72.

Martina Richest

NEW YORK (AP) — Martina Navratilova's double victory in the French Open tennis tournament last weekend has made her the richest female athlete.

The Czechoslovakian-born left-hander captured the singles title by defeating Andrea Jaeger, then teamed with Anne Smith to capture the doubles over Rosie Casals and Wendy Turnbull of Australia.

Her winnings raised her career earnings to $3,870,904, surpassing Chris Evert Lloyd, who has won $3,861,752 on the women's tennis tour.

Navratilova has reached the finals in her last 17 tournaments — beginning with the U.S. Open last September.

Holmes Is The Choice

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Gerry Cooney, the challenger, says the pressure will be on Larry Holmes, the champion, when they battle in the desert heat tonight for the World Boxing Council heavyweight title.

Indeed, the pressure is on Holmes, who has spent a career proving himself over and over even though he has won all 39 of his fights, 29 by knockout.

But Holmes is a pressure performer. He reached back for something extra when it appeared he might lose the title to Mike Weaver. He got up from knockdowns by Earnie Shavers and Renaldo Snipes.

This ability plus his experience and boxing ability will hold him in good stead against an opponent, who at 6-foot-7 is four inches taller than Holmes and who at 25 is seven years younger.

Holmes has said that he is going to show the world that he is a young 32. What he must not be is a careless 32.

In some past fights, he has suffered losses of concentration. This could be disastrous against Cooney, who possesses a vicious left hook and has scored 22 knockouts in winning all of his 25 fights.

Holmes must also keep his cool, fighting a calculated fight.

Holmes must employ side-to-side and upper-body movement, make himself a moving target and not allow Cooney to get set. He also must keep Cooney off balance by firing his excellent left jab.

The challenger punches hard enough to become champion. But Larry Holmes will rise to the occasion and stop Cooney in the 11th round.

It's 'Mister X' Against 'The Great White Dope'

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Can a nice kid from suburban Long Island who loves children and dogs and who is always good to his mother whip a tough, street-wise school dropout who has spent most of his life battling social barriers and public indifference?

We should know some time around midnight.

That's when the curtain at gilded Caesar's Palace drops on one of the most intriguing heavyweight title fights in years.

In one corner, is the reigning WBC champion, Larry Holmes, 32, undefeated in 39 fights over 10 years but still a ho-hum "Mr. X" to the greater segment of the sports community.

Angered by the slight, he is reported snorting like a wild bull in anxiety to get at the upstart young challenger whom he calls "The White Dope."

Across the ring is the challenger, Gerry Cooney, 25, a big, powerful-shouldered young man of Irish descent who his supporters boast can fell an ox with a six-inch left hook.

Also undefeated in a five-year pro career, he has kayoed 22 of his 25 opponents, eight in the first round, 10 others in four rounds of less.

He's always acts as if he's in a rush to keep an early date.

Surrounded by family, friends and supporters from middle class Huntington, N.Y., some 50 miles via expressway and the Long Island Railroad from Manhattan, he has been a mild-mannered, perfect gentleman all week, refusing to make waves.

broken home.

The setting is bizarre — an outdoor ring surrounded by a luxurious gambling palace, beautiful women lolling in the sun with handkerchiefs for bathing suits, goddesses in brief gold and white togas wending through the crowds with drinks, the gaming tables humming from the action of the big spenders.

It's right out of Ancient Rome. Any minute, you expect the lions vs. the Christians. We'll take Cooney in two.

Falklands' Story Is Frail Reed

By DOUGLAS GRANT MINE

Associated Press Writer
BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — The islands the British call Falklands and the Argentines call Malvinas were discovered by a Spaniard. Or was it a Dutchman? Or a Briton?

In any case, they were first colonized by the French, who sold out to the Spanish, and an American first asserted Argentine sovereignty over them. When the British took them in 1833, they ousted a German who was governing in the name of Argentina.

Argentina maintains it inherited the archipelago from Spain when it got its independence in 1816. Argentine historians present a list of more than 10 ancient treaties they contend constitute British recognition of Spanish — and therefore Argentine — sovereignty over the islands.

The British say Capt. John Davis, an Englishman, discovered the islands in 1592. They deny they ever gave up their claim to the real estate, a claim inscribed on a lead plaque left behind when the British abandoned their first settlement in the islands in 1774.

The Argentine version is that the islands were discovered in 1593 by Capt. Francisco de la Ribera of Spain. But by the time France's Louis de Bougainville arrived to establish the first settlement in 1764, the name on the map was Sebaldinas. It was given them by the Dutch navigator Sebald de Weert, who dropped anchor in the archipelago in 1600. Some historians consider him the true discoverer.

This is what happened after the French established the first settlement:

1766 — British Capt. John McBride arrived aboard the 32-gun frigate Jason and established Port Egmont, a settlement of about 100 people on West Falkland island.

1767 — France, after years of negotiation, handed over Bougainville's Port Louis to Spain for 24,000 pounds. The Spaniards renamed it Puerto de la Soledad.

1770 — A Spanish force compelled the British settlers to leave Port Egmont.

1771 — Spain, rather than fight Britain, ceded Port Egmont back to Britain. Argentina later claimed Britain recognized Spain retained sovereignty over the islands.

1774 — Britain withdrew the Port Egmont settlement on economic grounds but left behind a lead plaque declaring the islands "the sole right and property" of King George III.

1811 — Spain, also for economic reasons, abandoned its settlement.

1820 — Capt. David Jewett,

a Yankee from Connecticut in the service of Argentina's fledgling government, sailed to the islands to assert Argentine sovereignty and impose Argentine law on ships of various nations hunting seals and fishing there. He was Argentina's first governor of the islands.

1826 — An Argentine settlement was established at Puerto de la Soledad. Argentina granted Luis Vernet, an entrepreneur from Germany, fishing and sheep-ranching rights in the islands and named him governor.

1831 — Vernet seized three U.S. ships for illegally hunting seals. The U.S. government dispatched the warship Lexington from Brazil and its captain, Silas Duncan, destroyed the fort at Puerto de la Soledad in reprisal.

1833 — British Capt. John Onslow sailed the frigate Clio into Puerto de la Soledad and ordered the outgunned Argentines out. British occupation of the islands resumed and continued for 149 years, until the Argentine invasion April 2.

Flood Of Immigration Seen By Century's End

WASHINGTON (AP) — Immigration in the next few years will pose a challenge to American society similar to when Europeans flocked here at the turn of the century, according to a private study.

The report by the Population Reference Bureau, a non-profit population research organization, projects net annual migration into the United States at between 795,000 and 970,000 in this decade.

About half of those immigrants will enter the country illegally, according to the study, primarily from Latin America.

"Immigration at these levels... promises a change in the makeup of U.S. society that presents Americans with a challenge similar to that of the large numbers of European immigrants who entered at the beginning of the 20th century," wrote bureau demographer Leon Bouvier.

In the report "U.S. Population: Where We Are, Where We're Going," the bureau's panel of experts also predicted:

— Fertility should remain low, with annual births peaking at about four million and then beginning to decline.

— Death rates will continue to decline.

— The number of first marriages will gradually decline, as the number of people aged 20 to 27 has peaked and is falling.

— The rise in divorces should moderate, at least partly because the increase in women's employment, a prime factor in divorce, seems likely to slow.

The number of unmarried couples living together will continue to rise steeply. — The proportion of the population moving each year, currently 20 percent, should moderate.

— Population movement to the South and West will continue, but not accelerate.

In his study of immigration, Bouvier noted that Mexico's young adult population is expected to double over the next 20 years, and continuing improvement in transportation and communication will keep up the immigration pressure from there and other parts of Latin America.

"The urge to migrate remains high in the Latin American and Caribbean countries where most illegals originate; the young adult population is growing rapidly and unemployment has not been reduced," Bouvier reported.

These immigrants and others from Asia face a cultural gap with American society even wider than faced by earlier European immigrants.

Plus, the report noted, "Hispanics in particular appear to want to preserve their own culture and language, rather than assimilating."

The 1980 Census reported that Hispanics made up 6.4 percent of the population. Bouvier predicted their share could reach 10 percent by 1990.

The study also looked at the nation's changes in the 1970s, reporting on the surge in illegal immigration, movement out of the cities, migration to the Sunbelt, the shrinking size of households and unexpected gains in life expectancy.

Martin O'Connell of the Census Bureau noted that fertility is at a near record low in the United States, at 1.9 births per woman. He predicted it will fluctuate between 1.8 and 2.1 births.

But since the number of women in childbearing years is a record 55 million, the total number of births will climb to four million, nearing the baby boom peak of 4.3 million set in 1957 and 1961.

Marilyn McMillen of the Social Security Administration, predicted that death rates will continue to decline. She said life expectancy — now at 69.5 years for men and 77.2 for women — will pass the 70 mark for males and 80 for females in this decade.

The gap between the two, however, is expected to remain.

Former Census Bureau demographer Paul Glick reported that while the number of unmarried people living together will continue to grow, it probably won't triple as it did in the 1970s. Estimated at 1.8 million couples in 1981, these pairs could grow from 3.5 percent to 7 percent of all households by 1990, he said.

And demographer Calvin Beale of the Population Reference Bureau predicted that non-metropolitan growth will continue to outstrip that of the cities "until popular perceptions of life in the cities improve."

SECURITY CAT! — Marvin Winter, of Cass City, Mich., usually uses a dog to guard his used truck business in Detroit but decided to use Sue Ellen, his 2-year-old pet lioness because his employees wanted to see her. However, Detroit police would have preferred that he kept his pet at home on his six acres of enclosed land. They issued Winter a citation for bringing a "wild, ferocious or undomesticated and untrained animal" into the city. (AP Laserphoto)

Argentina Bird In Neighborhood

ANDERSON, S.C. (AP) — When her son spotted "a strange, green bird" nesting in a backyard oak tree, Lena Loskoski thought he had been drinking.

Then she saw for herself — a blue-green bird with a yellow breast and a dark, curved bill.

Since the bird arrived two weeks ago, Mrs. Loskoski and her neighbors have identified it through books as a Monk Parakeet, a native of Argentina. They think it may be a descendant of a group shipped from Argentina that escaped at Kennedy International Airport in New York four years ago.

"When they told us the bird is from Argentina, we figured it left the country to get away from the war over there," Mrs. Loskoski joked.

Six of the birds, probably descendants, have been sighted in Florida, seven in New York and two in Asheville, N.C.

"It's about the size of a dove and its call is similar to a crow, but the bird resembles a parrot more than a parakeet," she said.

N.C. House ' Approves Limiting Electricity Hikes

By MARY ANNE RHYNE
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A bill aimed at limiting increases in electric rates cleared the state House Thursday with an unexpected amendment that could further reduce consumers' bills.

That amendment would give the state Utilities Commission discretion whether to add Construction Work in Progress, or CWIP, charges to rates.

Since 1979, utilities have been able to add the cost of financing new plant construction to consumers' bills before the plants begin producing power.

Utility spokesmen said they bitterly oppose the changes.

"I'm just distressed about it," said John D. Hicks, senior vice president for public affairs at Duke Power Co.

But lobbyists for consumers were elated.

"They've sent a basic message that the utilities ought to hear — the House is concerned," said Gary Pearce, spokesman for Gov. Jim Hunt. "The House wants something done and is willing to go beyond the bill that came out of committee."

The bill, strongly pushed by Hunt, would limit electric utilities to one request a year for adjusting rates because of fuel costs. Currently utilities may have three fuel-adjustment hearings a year.

The proposal, a product of the joint House-Senate Utilities Review Committee, also would allow the state Utilities Commission to consider a company's efficiency and management when looking at fuel-adjustment requests.

Identical bills were introduced Wednesday in the House and Senate. Supporters, believing the climate was better in the House, pushed the measure through the House Utilities Committee and to the floor in less than 24 hours.

Rep. Richard Wright, D-Columbus, proposed the CWIP amendment on the floor and noted that North Carolina "is the only state in the union to mandate that CWIP be included in rates."

Supporters of the bill tried to keep the measure intact but failed in efforts to table the amendment and rule the change ineligible for consideration.

The amendment was approved 57-49 before House members voted 102-6 to approve the bill.

Sen. J.P. Huskins, D-

Iredell, one of the bill's sponsors, cautioned House members that the amendment might jeopardize the bill's chances in the more conservative Senate.

"I am sure it will create new problems as the bill proceeds through the General Assembly," Huskins said.

Rep. Ben Tison, D-Mecklenburg, and others tried to hold up the vote on the bill and warned that "we are about to cause disaster in North Carolina."

"We're biting off more today than we can chew," Tison said.

But House members pushed forward.

Now the Senate Utilities Committee must consider the bill, along with a Senate version identical to the original House measure.

Sen. Craig Lawing, D-Mecklenburg, proposed several amendments Thursday, but the panel did not have time to vote on them.

One amendment would set up an automatic adjustment of rates to recover all losses due to fuel costs or refund overcharges.

Drafters of the bill say the amendment would gut the proposal and take out the mechanism for determining whether the fuel costs were the result of poor management or inefficiency.

Wright said he did not know what the bill's chances were in the Senate.

"I would hesitate to think that the Senate would go on record as opposing the people of North Carolina," he said.

Wright said he was not requested to submit the amendment, which was similar to a bill he introduced last year to abolish CWIP.

"I decided to do it last July when they killed my bill," he said. "I waited around until the proper time."

Expected To Approve New Degree Programs

The University of North Carolina Board of Governors, meeting at Elizabeth City State University today, were expected to approve two new degree programs at East Carolina University — a master's degree program in social work and a baccalaureate degree program in accounting.

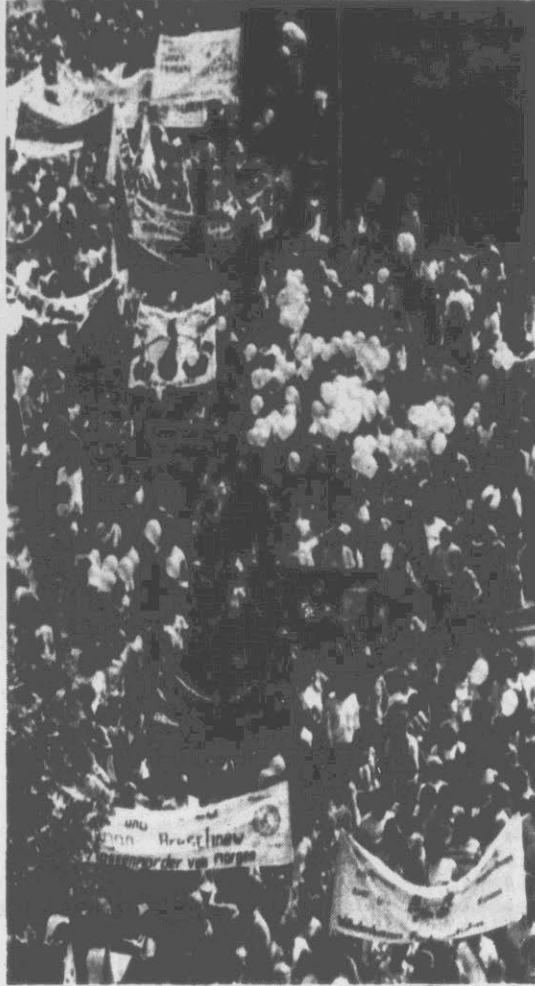

The master of social work degree (MSW) is a professional degree designed to prepare students for advanced social work practice. The program includes two tracks: primary services, designed to prepare students to provide social work services to children, families and small groups; and facilitative services, which prepares graduates for leadership roles in planning, managing and evaluating social work programs.

Four areas of specialization or fields of practice are available in each track, including health, justice, family and child welfare, and school social work.

The only other MSW degree program in the state is at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. The proposed ECU program will focus on the practice areas of child welfare and family services and corrections and criminal justice — areas which the program at UNC-CH does not emphasize.

The bachelor of science in accounting program is designed to prepare students for entry level positions as public accountants and encourage their commitment to careers as professional accountants.

$108,000 Grant For Med School

ECU News Bureau
The department of family medicine at the East Carolina School of Medicine has received a $108,000 grant from the Beverly Foundation to support a teaching program in geriatric medicine at Greenville Villa, a local nursing home.

The three-year grant will establish a training program for ECU medical, nursing and allied health students and enable the medical school to provide multidisciplinary services to the 150-bed facility.

The program will integrate full care for patients to help them achieve maximum function, according to Dr. Harold Kallman, chief of geriatric training in family medicine.

Kallman says the consultation team will include physician and nurse gerontologists, who are specialists in caring for the elderly, and health professionals in nutrition, dentistry, physical therapy, pharmacology and psycho-social work.

In addition to evaluating patients at Greenville Villa, the consultation team will serve in-patients at Pitt County Memorial Hospital and out-patients in ambulatory clinics and home settings. Regular conferences to assess individual needs of patients will guide the team in its evaluations.

Kallman said the goal of the consultation service is to improve each patient's quality of life and teach the family to cope with the special needs of the geriatric patient.

Medical students currently receive training in geriatric medicine during a third-year rotation in family medicine. The expansion of the geriatric medicine program now makes it possible for students in ECU's allied health and nursing programs to acquire clinical experience as members of a comprehensive geriatric care team.

Bike-a-thon Is Planned June 19

The Pitt County Chapter of the Leukemia Society of America Inc. will sponsor a Bike-A-Thon in Winterville June 19 beginning at 9 a.m.

Bike-A-Thon chairman Linda Lilley said the event will be held near A.G. Cox School and streets will be blocked to provide maximum safety for riders.

She said riders of all ages may participate. Bikers will recruit sponsors who will provide contribution pledges according to the number of miles the bikers ride.

Contributions collected from the bike-a-thon will assist the Leukemia Society by providing funds for patient aid, research and education.

For further information contact Ms. Lilley at 756-6610.

SUNDAY SERVICES

Elm Grove Free Will Baptist Church near Ayden will begin Sunday school services at 9:30 a.m. Father's Day services will begin at 11 a.m. with the Rev. Elmer Jackson officiating.

Radio Hams To Test Their Preparedness

On the weekend of June 26-27 from 2 p.m. Saturday to 2 p.m. Sunday, members of the Brightleaf Amateur Radio Club will participate in the 46th annual American Radio Relay League Field Day emergency preparedness test.

Thousands of amateur radio operators (hams) in the United States and Canada set up their stations in the open, using only emergency power and portable antennas. They contact as many operators as possible in the 24-hour period.

These tests are designed to help hams refine operating skills for use during disasters and times of emergency when normal channels of communication are disrupted or unavailable.

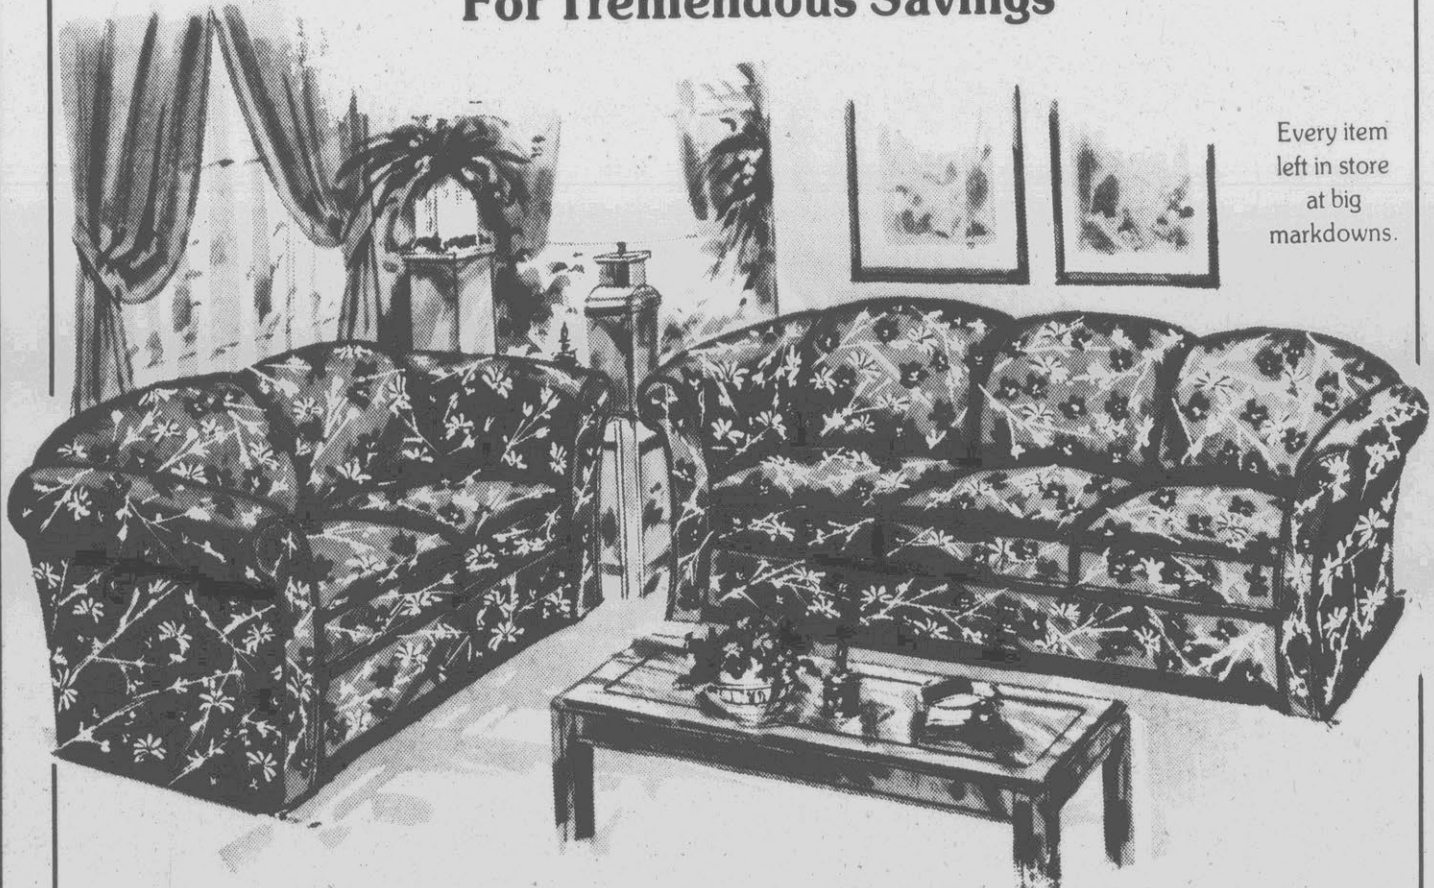

The operation site for the Brightleaf Amateur Radio Club will be behind the Pitt County office building on West Fifth Street. Satellite communications will also be demonstrated. Members of the club will be on hand to answer questions about equipment, procedures and the public service role amateur radio plays in the community.

Field Day is sponsored by the American Radio Relay League, a membership society of the U.S. and Canadian amateur radio operators.

'Facing Up To The Bomb' Featured Tonight

SINGER DIES — Mickey Harris McFadden, a member of the Shirelles vocal group that recorded several hit songs in the late 1950s, died Thursday in Atlanta of an apparent heart attack. By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — In the nuclear war game, both sides are raising the bomb bidding. But to many Americans, only one side's buildup is justified — their own.

Tonight's NBC documentary, "Facing Up To The Bomb," explains the genesis of that position, while offering insight into what seem to be the legitimate fears of the Soviet Union.

"The idea that anybody could be afraid of the United States was something that only very slowly entered the minds of Americans," says Ernest May of Harvard, a specialist in the arms race. "We assumed that we were Galahad."

Ray Medvedev, a historian from the Soviet Union, says to gain a better understanding of the Soviet nuclear buildup requires a better understanding of Soviet attitudes toward America.

"Those phrases about American imperialism wanting to impose its will upon the entire world are not simply propaganda," he says. "Many Soviet leaders and officials believe them."

In the world of nuclear and rhetorical overkill, it's not constructive simply to say these perceptions are not based in reality, or that they are fostered by disinformation.

The bottom line is that they seemingly are a major source of motivation for the Soviets, and something Americans must comprehend.

That message is offered tonight in NBC's analytical documentary, anchored by correspondent John Hart, on the eve of major disarmament demonstrations. "Facing Up To The Bomb" gets underneath the nuclear arms race from the historical and psychological perspective of the two superpowers.

Unfortunately, it's not easy television to absorb. The medium best understands people stories, pictures, clear graphics and simple answers. NBC has chosen, instead, a low-key discussion detailing how and why the nuclear buildup got out of hand.

There are a lot of talking heads, who come across more lucidly in the documentary's transcript than on-screen. They explain how the United States' nuclear arsenal of nine warheads was enough in 1946, but not nearly enough after the Soviet aggression in Eastern Europe, the Berlin Wall, and, most importantly, the first atomic bomb stamped "Made in the U.S.S.R."

Now, there are 50,000

nuclear bombs, and demonstrators in Europe and America are saying, "Enough is enough."

CBS graphically blew up Omaha in a five-part defense series last year. NBC opens with an explanation of the devastation a one-megaton bomb would have on Chicago. Hart stands in the middle of the map, at ground zero, as he tells in a matter-of-fact way the potential destruction, even when skin will turn to charcoal.

There's the usual file-footage of Nagasaki, but, keeping with the non-alarmist tone, few gut-wrenching pictures of deformity.

The documentary explains that today, the race is not for weapons; it's for delivery devices: missiles.

After the bomb gap and the missile gap, another gap comes to the nuclear lexicon; it's the Civil Defense Gap. Are we as prepared as the Soviets? The answer offers the program's most human elements. Grade schoolers in Moore, Okla., adjacent to a U.S. air base, discuss surviving a nuclear attack. This classroom lesson may be the shame of modern civilization.

One child is asked what he would bring to a fallout shelter. Food, clothing and weapons, he says. Why weapons?

"Because everyone would be fighting over space in the bomb shelters, and we might need them to protect ourselves," he replies.

A little later, a Russian immigrant to the United States recalls defense preparations in the Soviet Union:

"The officer, the teacher, of this class was really serious about it. He really believed in it. We laughed at him, but he really believed in everything that he was saying."

A Mistake In Music Awards

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The wrong country music group was presented an award for album of the year at the 16th annual Music City News Country Awards show, the publication's editor says.

The group Alabama won the award for its album "Feels So Right" rather than the Statler Brothers for "Years Ago," editor Lee Rector said Thursday night.

"We apologize to the Statler Brothers, Alabama, their fans and the country music industry for this unfortunate incident," Rector said in a statement.

Rector said the mix-up came when trophies were being readied for presentation on the nationally syndicated television show, which was televised live Monday night from the Grand Ole Opry House.

"This has never occurred before in the 16 years we have been making these awards," Rector said. "And Music City News is extremely sorry that it happened."

With the best album award, Alabama is now a double winner. The group also was named band of the year in a vote among subscribers to the country music publication.

A representative of the accounting firm that counts the ballots notified the publication of the mix-up after the best album award was presented to the Statler Brothers, Rector said.

"The announcement of the winners was read from information printed on the award trophies themselves," Rector said. "When we prepared the artwork for the trophies, the Statler Brothers' name was inadvertently used rather than Alabama."

The Statlers, who co-hosted the show, won vocal group of the year award for the 12th consecutive year.

"We have great respect for them, and the fans have shown that they do also by voting for them in the vocal group of the year category."

WEATHER FORECAST — The National Weather Service predicts showers Saturday for parts of New England, New Mexico, Colorado, Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Tennessee, Missouri, Iowa, Minnesota, Indiana, Wisconsin and Michigan. (AP Laserphoto)

By The Associated Press
Some relief from the thunderstorms may be on its way as the National Weather Service says most of the rain should be gone in time for the weekend.

The cold front and weak low pressure system that triggered showers and some heavy thunderstorms Thursday were moving offshore early this morning. Showers were still scattered across the central and northern coastal areas to the outer banks before sunrise, but they were to move out to sea during the morning.

Showers were to end along the central and northern coast this morning, otherwise partly cloudy weather was on tap for the Tar Heel state today and tonight.

Highs will be in the 80s with some 70s in the northern mountains and northeast. Lows are going to be in the 50s and 60s. Variable cloudiness is expected Saturday along with an increasing chance of showers over the western part of the state. Highs will be in the 70s and 80s.

Along the coast, winds are going to become northeast at 10 to 20 knots today continuing tonight. On Saturday the winds will become southeast at 10 to 20 knots.

Elsewhere across the state, cloudiness began decreasing as drier air filtered into the area. Temperatures were mostly in the 60s.

Rainfall amounts Thursday were substantial in some areas. Totals of between two and three inches were reported from several stations in the northern piedmont. Some minor street flooding and flooding of low-lying areas occurred.

A high pressure system that was centered over the midwest this morning was to drift east during the day. By late Saturday the high will be over the northeastern United States.

Other than lingering showers near the coast this morning, no precipitation is expected through tonight. There will be enough moisture, however, to cause partly cloudy skies.

On Saturday, a weak low pressure system will be moving from the Texas area through the lower Mississippi Valley. This will result in a chance of showers, mainly over the western half of the state.

School Volunteers Are Honored Here

Volunteers in public school programs — "tangibly contribute to the success rate" of schools, East Carolina University Chancellor John Howell told a gathering of local school officials and volunteers Wednesday.

Howell was featured speaker at the second annual Greenville Community Schools Volunteer Appreciation Banquet. He emphasized the importance of volunteers in a time of formidable threats to public schools — withdrawal of federal funding, staff cutbacks, teacher salary freezes and the recent rise of private school enrollments.

The banquet was held in the cafeteria of Wahl-Coates Elementary School. Others appearing on the program were Dr. Jon Tingelstad, chairman of the Greenville School Board; Dr. Wiley Hines, Greenville dentist; Dr. Delma C. Blinson, Greenville school superintendent, and Carolyn Ferebee, director of Greenville Community Schools program.

Ms. Ferebee noted that at least 1,781 persons served Greenville schools as volunteers during the 1981-82 school year, compiling a total of 7,966 hours of service. "Translated into financial terms, if each volunteer is assigned the minimum wage value, that means more than $27,000 worth of time," said Ms. Ferebee.

FOCUS

Frozen Delight

June is Dairy Month. And what better way to celebrate than with a triple-dip ice cream cone. From rum raisin to bubble-gum - there is no shortage of flavors to tempt Americans into their total annual consumption of close to a billion gallons of ice cream. No other nation comes close. Australians, New Zealanders and Canadians rank second by eating only half as much. Contrary to popular thought, ice cream did not originate in America. Most historians believe the first real ice cream appeared in 15th or 16th century Italy or England. No matter. Today Americans are the unquestioned connoisseurs of the world. Have you tried a scoop of yellow tomato lately? Dill pickle? Jelly-bean?

DO YOU KNOW - What is the most popular ice cream flavor in America?

THURSDAY'S ANSWER - NATO was formed under President Harry Truman.

The bidding:
North: East South West
1NT Pass 3♥ Pass
3♦ Pass 4♦ Pass
4♥ Pass Pass Pass
Opening lead: Four of ♣

How good a guesser are you? To those with sublime faith in their ability to locate a missing queen, this hand presents no problem. To the rest of us, some better method of play must be found.

North's bid of three spades showed first-round control in the suit, a good no trump opening and excellent heart support. South cue-bid his diamond ace but was content with four hearts when his partner could take no further action.

West led the four of hearts, and most declarers would waste little time on the hand. They would draw trumps and lead a club to the king. When that lost to the ace, they would take a diamond finesse, and the fate of the contract would hinge on which way they took the finesse.

There is a far better line available. As a matter of fact, the contract cannot be defeated once trumps break no worse than 3-1. Can you spot it?

Draw three rounds of trumps and then cash the ace of spades. Continue by leading a low club from dummy, and simply cover whatever card East plays. West can win the trick, but he is end played.

Let's consider what happens if East plays a low club. Declarer covers with the eight and West can win the ten. Now what? If he exits with a spade, he sets up a spade trick for a diamond discard; a diamond gives declarer a free finesse; and a club means that declarer will lose only two club tricks.

The play is much the same if East shoots up with the jack of clubs when the suit is led. Declarer covers with the king and West wins the ace. Again, West cannot attack spades or diamonds, so he must play a club. Regardless of the location of the club honors, declarer will always be able to set up a club to take care of the third diamond in dummy.

Strings To A Gift By Sheik Al-Fassi

SOUTH PASADENA, Fla. (AP) - A rich Arab sheik has agreed to donate a park to the city of South Pasadena, but he's set a few conditions.

Vice Mayor Arno Liebman said Sheik Mohammed Al-Fassi agreed to donate a park if the city:

- Extends an official invitation to Al-Fassi.
- Names the park Al-Fassi.
- Names a street Al-Fassi.
- Names a room in City Hall Al-Fassi.
- Proclaims an Al-Fassi Day.
- Grants the sheik honorary citizenship and a key to the city.
- Supplies him with seven escorted limos when he arrives to formally donate the park.
- Picks up the tab for advance men at the posh Don CeSar Beach Resort Hotel.
- And provides a news conference, airport clearance for his jet and plaques for presentation to him and his family.

The city has several pieces of property under consideration for parks. Officials say the sites could be converted for $725,000 to $1.1 million.

The City of Opa-Locka, a suburb of Miami, has agreed to name a weed-covered empty lot across from City Hall "Dr. Sheik Mohammed Al-Fassi Square" in exchange for $30,000 to beautify the city.

Al-Fassi has been sued by his estranged wife, Sheika Dena Al-Fassi, for $3 billion. He caused a stir in California when he erected nude statues on the lawn of his Beverly Hills mansion and painted them green.

It's Time To Spray Again

Dogwood trees that were infested with the cottony maple scale earlier in May should be sprayed again soon, says James B. Kea, area extension forester, since eggs laid in the cottony sacs have begun to hatch into crawlers.

"These crawlers and crawlers of other scales are very susceptible to chemical treatments," Kea said. "Spraying should begin soon and be repeated in ten to 14 days to control any late-hatching eggs."

The forestry agent recommended spraying with Sevin, Diazinon, malathion or a combination of malathion and summer oil (Volck) in rates listed on labels.

"Fertilizing and mulching damaged trees will help with recovery," said Kea. "Broadcast the fertilizer in a band 2-3 feet wide under the ends of the branches if not fertilized this year. Do not place fertilizer near the trunk."

"Mulch should be applied in a layer about three inches deep," he added, "and trees should be watered as needed by allowing water to trickle from a hose for two hours in each spot."

Kea noted that further information can be obtained at the Pitt Extension Office, 1717 W. Fifth St., 752-2934. The pamphlet "Growing the Flower Dogwood" is available at the Martin County office, 792-1621, he added.

Two Collisions Here Thursday

An estimated $3,400 property damage resulted from two traffic collisions investigated by Greenville police Thursday morning.

Officers said an estimated $1,500 damage resulted in an 11:44 a.m. collision at the intersection of Raleigh Avenue and Chestnut Street.

Drivers involved were identified as Charles Alton Fesmire Jr. of 1310 Myrtle Ave., charged by investigators with failing to stop for a stop sign, and Oduie Harrell Bess of Oakmont Square Apartments.

Lamont Warren Cannon of Shady Knoll Trailer Park was charged with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of an 11:10 a.m. mishap at the intersection of Memorial and South Village drives.

Officers said the Cannon car collided with an auto driven by Doris Myers Holloway of 108 Howell St., causing an estimated $100 damage to the Holloway car and $300 damage to the Cannon auto.

Designate East 'Best Friend'

WASHINGTON — Sen. John East, R-N.C., has been named "The Taxpayers' Best Friend" by the National Taxpayers Union for his votes to reduce federal spending.

The "Best Friend" title was based on NTU's annual congressional spending study which ranks members of Congress on how often they vote for reduced federal expenditures.

The study of 231 Senate roll call votes showed East voted for reduced spending 69 percent of the time — the 12th highest score in the Senate.

Founded in 1969, the NTU is a non-partisan, non-profit group which advocates reduced taxation and lower federal spending.
