Stress City Budget 'Holding The Line'

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

Both the city and Greenville Utilities Commission stressed "hold the line" aspects of their 1982-83 budget proposals Thursday night and underlined the absence of funding for new programs for the upcoming operating year.

City Manager Gail Meeks presented an overview of the city's proposed $13.5 million budget package, and Charles Horne, director of Greenville Utilities, discussed the proposed $50.29 million budget for GUC.

Mrs. Meeks told a small public hearing audience that funding for the key operating expenses and capital outlay segments of the budget are recommended at essentially their current levels.

Mrs. Meeks said that while the budget represents an increase of 6.4 percent over 1981-81 appropriations, the bulk of the increase ($744,320) involves Utilities bonded indebtedness. When the bonds are excluded, the new budget represents an increase of approximately one-half of 1 percent over 1981-82.

According to the manager, it was necessary to appropriate $459,897 of the city's fund balance (cash on hand) to help balance the overall package. Mrs. Meeks said budgeting such a large fund balance appropriation reflects something that the city does not like to do but feels a need to do this year to meet necessary funding levels.

She said that in the area of personal services, there are several additions and deletions in position allocations suggested which would result in a net increase of three full-time employee posts. The additions, which would increase the employee force from 379 to 382, involve three uniformed patrolmen for the Police Department.

Mrs. Meeks said funds have not been included in the budget for wage adjustments nor the merit program but she said the City Council will consider funding at an upcoming workshop. She recommended that funds be included for the merit program.

Agency funding recommendations include $268,355 as the city's Sheppard Memorial Library appropriation and $25,000 for the Pitt-Greenville Airport. The two agencies are funded jointly by the city and county.

The new financial package recommends maintaining the present tax rate of 49 cents per $100 assessed valuation, she said.

The manager termed the proposed package "a very conservative budget" and said some of the departments will have a difficult time in trying to operate at present levels for the upcoming year.

Horne echoed Mrs. Meeks "hold the line" approach and reported that Greenville Utilities was "not initiating any new programs" under the proposed budget.

Horne said in his budget message that totals for the electric, water, sewer and gas funds "have been held to the minimum levels necessary to provide adequate service with limited growth." He added, "A sharp increase in requests for service extensions, or a major system failure could create fund demands beyond existing reserves."

Recommended appropriations for the four utility fund accounts include: electric, $39.9 million; water, $3.4 million; sewer, $1.6 million; and gas, $5.3 million.

Horne said no new positions are provided in the budget in accordance with the goal to increase productivity. He said GUC will operate without new personnel under current growth and economic conditions.

During the public hearing, Morris Brody appeared on behalf of the Eastern Carolina Vocational Rehabilitation Center and requested that the city consider an appropriation of $30,000 towards helping the center complete its funding goal for capital improvements. Brody said the new construction is 95 percent complete but $160,000 is needed to complete contract payments.

The spokesman said the center's board of directors authorized the construction program "in the faith of the people of Pitt County" and he suggested that city and county residents "who know what we have out there will help." Brody said the city appropriation will help physically handicapped, mentally retarded, and senior citizens of the area.

Former center director Howard Dawkins said the center

POWs Will Go Home After Shakeup In Argentina

By The Associated Press
Argentine military leaders conferred today to name a new president to replace Gen. Leopoldo F. Galtieri, forced from office and relieved of his army command because of his refusal to admit defeat in the Falkland Islands.

Meanwhile, Britain said it was given an Argentine guarantee of safe passage for British ships to return prisoners from the Falklands directly to Argentina and announced it would allow Argentine vessels to help transport the troops out. The guarantee came through the International Red Cross, officials said in London.

A spokesman for the Foreign Office in London said the requisitioned liner Canberra, with 4,000 prisoners, and the North Sea ferry Norland, with 1,000 more, were expected to sail later in the day for the Argentine harbor of Puerto Madryn.

Interior Minister Alfredo Saint Jean takes over as interim president, but expectations are he will be succeeded either by the foreign minister or the air force chief.

"I'm going because the army didn't give me the political backing to continue as (army) commander and president of the nation," the 55-year-old Galtieri said. "The generals... want me to resign, which I am willing to do today to maintain the unity of the army and the armed forces," Galtieri told reporters at 4 a.m. before retiring for his final night in the Pink House, the presidential palace in Buenos Aires.

"I do so aware of the responsibility this means but sure that it can contribute in a positive way to the feelings of the Argentine nation and its international policy."

Galtieri's ouster Thursday as army commander cost him his seat on the three-man ruling-junta of army, navy and air force chiefs.

Britain's Foreign Office said two Argentine hospital ships, the Bahia Paraiso and the Almirante Irizar, were to sail for Stanley to help pick up wounded soldiers, some reportedly shot in the feet by their officers trying to prevent them from deserting during the fighting.

A spokesman for British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher said Britain has yet to receive an assurance Argentina considers hostilities in the South Atlantic at an end.

Legislative Leaders Push To Adjourn

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Legislative leaders pushed for adjournment as House and Senate budget conferees met today in hopes of breaking a deadlock over a rider to the $6 billion state budget bill.

The only remaining item in dispute was a provision tacked onto the budget bill that would give teachers up to five days leave, with pay, when school was canceled due to bad weather.

But the 10-member House and Senate conference committee failed to reach a resolution in a meeting Thursday evening, after the House had refused to go along with two Senate amendments.

House conferees were unanimous in support of the paid leave, while three of five Senate conferees opposed it. A majority of conferees from both chambers was needed to break the impasse.

"Someone's going to have to come up with a compromise," said Sen. Robert Jordan, D-Montgomery. "There's some work being done on a compromise now."

The dispute had the potential to delay adjournment of the short legislative session, but legislative leaders said they hoped for a resolution today.

In both chambers, legislative leaders pushed for adjournment this week, and Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green told the Senate adjournment was possible tonight.

"I see nothing to keep us here past tomorrow afternoon, but of course, I expect the computer's going to break down about 4 p.m.," Green said.

House Speaker Liston Ramsey advised House members to keep their motel rooms for tonight. A top ally said legislators may meet Saturday, although Ramsey said the session could still last into next week.

"We could finish late tomorrow or early Saturday," said Rep. Jack Hunt, D-Cleveland, House Rules chairman. "I think that's better than a qualified guess."

The most controversial ingredients of the budget for the fiscal year beginning July 1 is a freeze on salaries for state employees and teachers, proposed by Gov. Jim Hunt to save $90 million. It was not in dispute, having been approved with the main budget by both chambers earlier in the week.

The snow-leave provision was strongly sought by the N.C. Association of Educators, the teachers' group, but was opposed by Gov. Jim Hunt.

It would allow local school boards to give teachers up to five days off on account of snow — not requiring makeup days for those missed on account of snow. Local boards now need permission of the state Board of Education to give the leave, and supporters said that permission was rarely granted.

The provision would have the effect of allowing the 180-day school year to be reduced to 175 days in some cases.

The provision also would extend the leave to state employees, although groups representing state employees did not back the measure. Emmett Burden, lobbyist for the N.C. State Employees Association, said state workers have personnel regulations now covering bad weather, and the State Personnel Commission could continue to rule on leaves for weather.

Rep. Jo Graham Foster, D-Mecklenburg, a retired educator, strongly pushed the provision and tried to get the conference panel to agree to allowing the provision for teachers but not state employees.

Hotline gets things done for you. Call 752-1336 and tell your problem or your sound-off or mail it to Hotline, The Daily Reflector, Box 1967, Greenville, N.C. 27334.

Because of the large numbers received, Hotline can answer and publish only those items considered most pertinent to our readers. Names must be given, but only initials will be used.

REUNION TO MAKE?

Lionel Carney has asked Hotline to appeal to the members of the class of 1972 of North Pitt High School to contact him by June 30 if they are interested in attending a class reunion planned for July 3 at noon at Elm Street Park here.

The graduates who have not responded are asked to do so by June 30 — those who plan to attend and those who otherwise want to be in touch with their high school classmates. Carney said the reunion is in danger of "not making" if more response is not received. North Pitt Class of 1972ers are asked to contact Nancy M. Barnes, 756-4321; Lionel Carney, 752-9869; or Susan James Manning, 825-2611.

PRINCESS FEEDBACK

There were several nice cash donations in response to the recent Hotline appeal for Princess Garner, a paralyzed 2 year old who's in foster care in Pitt County and under the medical care of the department of pediatrics of East Carolina University School of Medicine. However, the appeal for a group to "adopt" — take continuing interest in — Princess was not successful, social worker Rhonda Stanley said. She'd like to put out the word again that this is a need.

Also continuing to be needed is a small room air conditioner to make the child's body temperature more stable.

Anyone willing to help may call Ms. Stanley at 757-2733.

For more information about Princess, see a feature on her published in "The Daily Reflector" April 18.

Betty Speir Is Appointed To Education Bd.

Betty Speir of Bethel has been appointed to the State Board of Education, according to an announcement made by Gov. Jim Hunt.

Mrs. Speir, who will serve on the board until April 1, 1987, is a guidance counselor at North Pitt High School and is a former English teacher in the Farmville and Bethel schools.

She is now acting chairman of the state Democratic Party and is co-chairman of the Governor's Victim Assistance Committee. She was a member of the Governor's Crime Commission until her resignation because of her appointment to the state school board.

A native of Bethel, Mrs. Speir has been active in Pitt County and state politics for many years. This is her second stint as acting chairman of the state Democratic Party. She recently replaced state Sen. G. Russell Walker of Randolph County as party chairman because he faces opposition in the June 29 and, therefore, according to party rules, must resign. Mrs. Speir stepped in because she was first vice chairman. She also temporarily led the party in 1980 when Walker sought re-election.

On the Board of Education, she will replace John A. Pritchett, a Windsor attorney.

Smith Pledges Effort To Help 'Partnership'

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

"I pledge to you the fullest cooperation by our company as we go forward together with efforts to provide an adequate supply of electricity for our customers,"

Sherwood Smith Jr., chairman of the board and president of Carolina Power & Light Co., told a gathering of local business, governmental and educational leaders from Greenville and Pitt County at a noon luncheon today.

Smith, invited by the Greenville Utilities Commission, told the gathering, "I am enthusiastic about the new partnership between Carolina Power & Light Co. and the North Carolina Eastern Municipal Power Agency through which we are able to provide service to Greenville. Greenville is an important member of the agency, and you are particularly fortunate to have Charles Horne as director of utilities."

Horne, Smith emphasized, "has been an effective and innovative leader in the development of the Greenville utility system."

Pitt County, Smith said, "has tremendous growth potential, with a good balance between industry and agriculture. In addition, the excellent academic training provided by East Carolina University enhances and stimulates the entire region."

"Through the power agency," he continued, "we at CP&L hope to support the continued economic development of the area."

Saying the agreement under which the power agency has purchased ownership in CP&L generating facilities and will act as the whole supplier to municipally owned utilities such as the GUC was "a landmark event," Smith continued, "it is something we can all be proud of, as it should help assure a reliable, reasonably priced supply of electricity for many years to come."

Smith continued his presentation by comparing CP&L's performance with seven other major Southeastern electric utilities. Although CP&L rates have increased during the period of 1975 through 1981, "We have continued to provide service at rates that are below the average of the eight Southeastern companies, and that are well below the national average."

He also noted that CP&L "has consistently come in below the Southeastern average" in total operating

Life As It's Lived

The Heartfelt Message: 'This Mess Is A Place'

By Gail Michaels
As one of the modern gypsies conversant with single-family housing in all its variations, I feel qualified to state that every recently purchased house has its problems. An old house, for instance, remains an old house. It's like a geriatric patient who can benefit from modern medicine only up to a point.

But at least the buyer of an old house knows what to expect. It's a triumph just to get the stove clean. The owner of a new house doesn't have that advantage. No matter how many new homes he's bought, the smell of the formaldehyde in the carpet of the most recent one always seems to produce a sense of euphoria which in turn leads to the conviction that this is the one new house that's going to stay that way.

Perhaps this is possible if the house in question has dirt floors and windowless paneled walls, but the average house without such amenities is going to start the process of deterioration the minute the movers come and knock all the paint off the corners. At this point the homeowner suffers an anxiety attack that lasts for several months or until the youngest child draws his version of an interstate highway on three of the living room walls, whichever comes first.

When we moved into the house, Phillip's blood pressure soared heavenward every time Meg or Zachary touched a wall. His reaction was justified. Within a week the lower third of the wall turned mud red.

I shared Phillip's tense pride in ownership. I was so determined to keep the house presentable that I polished all the furniture. I should have known I was beaten when I looked behind me and discovered that Zachary was following the path of my dust rag with a peanut butter and jelly sandwich.

I think I realized just how futile my goals were the day I tried to clean the windows. As Phyllis Diller has so aptly stated, a woman with children who indulges in this kind of cleaning might as well be shoveling snow in a blizzard. Within hours after my gargantuan effort, the only way the windows could be differentiated from the walls was by the locks.

Phillip was quick to commiserate. "Breaking in this house has been like training a puppy — in reverse. Then again, I don't suppose that dirt is an adequate reason for a nervous breakdown."

"I guess you're right," I said as I finished hanging a particularly appropriate housewarming gift in the entrance hall. It was a plaque with a heartfelt message, "This mess is a place."

Announce ECU Assistant Dean

ECU News Bureau
Walter L. Shepherd has been named assistant dean for the East Carolina University School of Medicine, according to Dean William E. Laupus.

Shepherd, who joined the school in 1975 as assistant to the dean, will assume senior administrative responsibilities for health services research and continue to serve as director of the Center for Health Services Research Development, a position he has held since 1979.

In addition, he will continue to be administratively responsible for the medical school's office of information and publications and office of health education.

The center's staff conducts research on the health care system and the relationships between patients and health-care professionals and develops strategies for improving health services. Shepherd has played an active role in the development of innovative health-care delivery systems for the region and has provided both research and development assistance to many communities and organizations.

A native of Buffalo, N.Y., Shepherd was a member of the administrative staff at the Medical College of Virginia for six years before joining the medical school. His experience also includes being associate director of the Richmond, Va., Urban League and a community organizer with the Richmond Community Action Program.

He received his undergraduate and graduate degrees from ECU and is a lecturer in the university's sociology department.

Child Care Program Receives New Name

LEXINGTON — The Junior Order Children's Home here has recently begun operating under the name "American Children's Home," according to Ray Mims, executive director.

Founded in 1925 by the Junior Order United American Mechanics, a national patriotic fraternity, the home has cared for more than 2,000 abused, neglected, parentless and handicapped children across North Carolina and a total of 20 children from Pitt County.

At the May meeting of the agency's Board of Directors, the name "American" was unanimously approved as best representing the ideals on which the home was conceived, "Virtue, liberty and patriotism." The Board of Directors consists of 27 men and women from over the state.

"The home's founding organization, the Junior Order, had 40,000 members in the state in 1950 but that number has dwindled to less than 1,500. Declining membership almost forced the Children's Home to close, but efforts to revitalize the program and its financial base have been very successful," reports Mims.

Home presently provides care for over 117 boys and girls, an increase of 200 percent since 1978. Services include residential care for dependent, neglected, mentally retarded and emotionally disturbed school-age children; day care and early childhood education for infants through age 5; foster family care for children; independent living skills training for teens; and a parent education program. Additional services for children and families are planned by the agency's board.

A goal of $200,000 statewide has been set for 1982 to be used to upgrade facilities and provide care for children at the American Children's Home.

Susan Laney Marries Burney Fleming Jr.

WASHINGTON — The marriage of Susan Annette Laney and Burney Mooring Fleming Jr. was solemnized Sunday at 3 p.m. in the Second Baptist Church. The Rev. Sherwood Alcox heard the double ring vows.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James C. Laney and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Burney M. Fleming of Greenville and the late Mr. Fleming.

A program of wedding music was presented by Katrina Gray at the piano and Millie Tripp, vocalist.

The bride, escorted by her father, wore a gown of white chantilly lace over taffeta. The high Victorian neckline was enhanced with Venise lace and seed pearls. The bodice of the dress was of bridal satin and chantilly lace with motifs of the Venise lace scattered over the satin. The full skirt was fashioned with five tiers of chantilly lace that fell to a cathedral train. She wore a chapel length veil of bridal illusion which was attached to a cap of chantilly lace. Her bouquet was of white sweetheart roses, miniature carnations, stephanotis and baby's breath.

Bunny Tripp of Greenville attended the bride as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Katherine Bishop of Greenville, Mrs. Elwood Jarvis of Wilson and Cherry Fleming, sister of the bridegroom from Raleigh. Junior bridesmaid was Beth Barber of Kinston. The attendants wore gowns of polyester and cotton voile over taffeta in maize. They were designed with a bouffant skirt edged with a flounce featuring a bustle back. Their nosegays were of white and yellow daisies. The honor attendant carries white daisies.

Serving as flower girl was Vanessa Bell, cousin of the bride. She was dressed like the bridesmaids and carried a white basket.

'Glow' Is Not There

There have been few "unkind cuts" at President Reagan's recent grand tour of Europe to re-cement old alliances; but more to the point, the press has not been a really enthusiastic observer.

One might say the president was upstaged by events in the Middle East and the Falklands.

Or perhaps closer to the truth, some of the glitter has worn thin on the president and in the eyes of the vast press he is evolving into just another president.

Reagan to have been expected.

Over the years there have been few presidents who remained heroes, or had their images embellished by the press corps after the first few months in office. No president since John F. Kennedy has enjoyed anything like a mutual understanding between the White House and the press...and before JFK there was that long gap dating back to Franklin Roosevelt.

Historians may agree as presidents neither FDR nor JFK were "great", but they did have an image that cast a glow.

Whatever it takes, that "glow" is infrequent at the White House.

Old Fashion Advice Holds

Eat fruits, vegetables and whole grain cereal products daily...

Include oranges, grapefruit, dark green leafy vegetables, carrots, winter squash, tomatoes, cabbage, broccoli and brussels sprouts...

Eat very little salt-cured, salt-pickled and smoked foods...

Drink alcohol only in moderation...

If all that sounds like old-fashioned advice on sensible eating, recognize that it is the latest word on a diet which might reduce cancer possibilities.

The National Research Council made the recommendations, although it acknowledged that there is still no clear link between cancer and diet.

The advice is sound, though. Most of us were raised with the admonition to eat sensibly, avoid alcohol or drink in moderation. Along with that we were told to keep reasonable hours and work hard at something at which we are happy. Science may be on the threshold of proving the old time advice was accurate all along.

THIS AFTERNOON

ERA Will Return

By Paul F. O'Connor

THE HOUSE "ERA Won't" committee supporters of the Equal Rights Amendment of 1971 are back in the chamber today and there's a chance they will pass the ERA in the next few minutes.

The ERA ratification process has been in limbo since the Supreme Court's ruling in Webb v. Obituary in 1975. The ERA would put men and women on an equal footing after the fashion of the Equal Rights Amendment of 1971.

Sen. Donald Kincaid of North Carolina said after the vote that he would support the amendment, to "gender." Redman said that would eliminate the possibility that homosexual marriage would become legal under the amendment. Ballenger said the word "sex" is a noun, verb and adjective and that the courts could read the amendment to mean any number of things using the word "sex."

"Gender" is only a noun and would be less likely to be misinterpreted by judges, he said.

Redman added that he'd like to see some provision in the amendment that would allow churches to keep their all-male rules regarding the ordination of ministers.

ERA has three sections. The first forbids discrimination by the state and federal governments on the grounds of sex. The second says Congress shall pass appropriate legislation to implement the amendment's intent. The third sets the date the amendment becomes effective.

PAUL O'CONNOR

A number of senators said they'd like to see changes in the second section. Sen. Henson Barnes of Goldsboro said the second section leads him to think federal bureaucrats will be making rules and regulations for adoption, divorce, marriage and child support. Those are matters for state government, he said.

Sen. Donald Kincaid of North Carolina said, "Leave it just like it is but cut out that second section. Leave it to each state to correct their own abuses and I would go for it." Kincaid added that even without the second section the federal courts would still have the authority to review state action. If a state failed to make their laws non-discriminatory, the courts could find the laws unconstitutional.

A number of other senators said they'd support ERA today if their constituencies supported it. They said the recent Harris poll showing that three-fifths of the state's population favored it didn't convince them that their constituents supported ERA.

"Make my people for it and I'll be for it. But I don't think they want it," said Sen. Dal Alford of Rocky Mount.

Other Editors Say Law Is For All

Washington Daily News

There is no such thing as a law being good for 20 counties and bad for 80 counties in this North Carolina of ours.

Yet, that is exactly what we have in the Coastal Area Management Act (CAMA), because it applies only to 20 coastal counties and not to the other 80 counties of North Carolina.

Recently two researchers for the North Carolina Center for Public Policy Research had high praise for the act and both said that complaints that the law is too restrictive are without foundation. Both say it has been successful.

Without trying to start any argument, let us say that these two fellows are being paid to reap success in CAMA and whether it is successful or not, these two fellows would be offering high praise.

We do not wish to seem critical. There are some very good features about CAMA and we are blind if we fail to realize and recognize these features. But when it comes to the point of adding more red tape, more delays, and more confusion to the normal pursuits of our people living along the coast, then CAMA is not as successful as its workers would have us believe.

If people of 20 counties along the coast are to live in a restricted area, while people of the other 80 counties have no such restrictions, then the very fairness of such an atmosphere must be open to attack.

In fairness to all, all should be fed out of the same spoon. All should be subject to the same treatment. All should be under the same laws. We should not have one law for Joe Blow and another law for John Doe.

We do feel that some attacks directed at CAMA have been unfair and should not have been made. The intent, we believe, is good. The application often times may be looked at with concern.

In full truth, the fellow living in the Piedmont area has no criticism of CAMA because he is untouched. The same applies to the fellow living in the mountains of our state.

We talk about political strength and how unfairness can be removed. With a ratio of 80 to 20, the chances of making CAMA a statewide act are just about zero. Thus there is so little which can be done.

Maybe we somehow could muzzle the paid workers who tell how successful it is. It had better be successful or those paid workers offering praise might lose their jobs.

Communications Gap

WASHINGTON — It has now been generally accepted in Washington that the recent mistake in the way Ambassador Jeane Kirkpatrick voted in the United Nations on a Falklands resolution was, as she described it, a communications snafu between the State Department here, and her people in New York.

What happened was that Ambassador Kirkpatrick had received original instructions from State to veto a Security Council resolution against the British. After Mrs. Kirkpatrick voted, she received orders from Washington not to vote on it, but to abstain. But the new word came too late. To make sure everyone knew where the United Nations stood, Mrs. Kirkpatrick announced to the Security Council that the U.S. had changed its mind, although she was aware it couldn't change its vote.

Because there is a suspicion in Washington that Ambassador Kirkpatrick and Secretary Haig don't agree on many issues, and have a personality conflict, some people immediately jumped to the conclusion that Mrs. Kirkpatrick announced the boo-boo publicly in the Security Council to embarrass Mr. Haig.

When Haig was asked why Ambassador Kirkpatrick did not receive her instructions personally from him on the vote, he replied he did not contact her directly because one does not catechize that way "to a company commander."

A State Department source told me, "Our job is not to take sides, or pin the blame on either Washington or New York. But we must close the communications gap between the two so something like this will not happen again."

"How do you propose to do this?" I asked.

"We've come up with some new fail-safe methods for getting our instructions to the U.N. ambassador. The first decision we made was not to use the regular U.S. mail service to convey our policy to Mrs. Kirkpatrick. In the future we will either use Express Mail or in emergency cases contact the ambassador in New York by ham radio from somewhere in the D.C. area."

"Is it true Secretary Haig did not call Mrs. Kirkpatrick directly because he felt as a general it was beneath him to give orders to a company commander?"

"That was just a cover story Secretary Haig put out to take the heat off the mixup. The real reason, which would have caused great consternation among our allies, is that the secretary was in Paris at the time, and under the new Reagan budget guidelines could not make a long-distance telephone call from overseas without first getting permission from the OMB."

"Haig's people were in the process of contacting David Stockman for the okay, when the vote was taken in the Security Council, and the damage had been done. In order that something like this will not happen again President Reagan has told Secretary Haig he will, in the future, be permitted to make one call when he is overseas without first going through the budget office."

"But," I said, "if Secretary Haig has only one call, how can you be sure he'll use it to speak to Ambassador Kirkpatrick?"

"He won't call her just to reach out and touch someone. But when it comes to a Security Council vote I'm sure he will put U.S. foreign policy interests above any personal problems he has in direct dialing Mrs. Kirkpatrick."

"Suppose Mrs. Kirkpatrick is sitting at the Security Council table when Secretary of State Haig is trying to call her?"

"We have planned for just such an emergency. We now have a horse and rider sta-

Tough Talks Are Prelude

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer
UNITED NATIONS (AP)

Less than two weeks before the opening of new strategic arms talks in Geneva, the United States and the Soviet Union have denounced each other in such strident Cold War terms that the outlook for an agreement is uncertain.

Neither power showed much inclination for the kind of compromise and conciliation essential for resolving differences and concluding a treaty.

First, Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko took the rostrum of the special session on disarmament to level charges of trickery and barbarism. Then, President Reagan responded with accusations of oppression and aggression.

The aim of U.S. policy, Gromyko said in his speech Tuesday, is to keep the Soviet Union scared — "as simple as that, to keep it scared." Reagan responded on Thursday that the Soviets had compiled "a record of tyranny."

Both men are seasoned enough to understand that since World War II the U.S.-Soviet adversary relationship has been a persistent factor in international politics. Reagan and Gromyko are used to these pie-throwing contests, and presumably are realistic enough to get on with the serious business of deterring nuclear catastrophe.

But even though the U.S. and Soviet governments seem to want to give arms control a special priority shielded from their disputes over Poland, the Middle East and Afghanistan, the atmosphere at Geneva is bound to be affected.

"Soviet aggression and support for violence around the world have eroded the confidence needed for arms negotiations," Reagan said as he backed toward his old belief in linkage.

Only last month, Reagan took a loftier line. He spoke of "a very realistic relationship" with the Soviets — not ignoring their "policy of expansionism" but "trying to improve the chances for peace in the world."

He told reporters on May 24 that reducing the store of nuclear arms that threaten the peace of the world was the primary problem to be addressed. Other "friction points" would have to take a back seat.

But here, at the United Nations, the president seemed to doubt the value of reaching arms control agreements unless the Soviets gave up their "imperialist adventures."

"We need deeds, not words, to convince us of Soviet sincerity," he said.

Since there is virtually no chance that Moscow is about to adopt a new and benign foreign policy, waiting for the Kremlin to behave could derail disarmament.

Even though Gromyko announced a Soviet pledge to not use nuclear weapons first, the foreign minister took a harder — and sarcastic — line.

Accusing the United States of trickery and "concoctions of all sorts," Gromyko said a "military frenzy" was driving the United States to seek supremacy over the Soviet Union.

Rhetoric aside, Reagan and Gromyko offered sharply conflicting views of the two powers' relative military strength.

Defending record U.S. defense spending, Reagan said U.S. strength had fallen dangerously low. "We refuse to become weaker while our potential adversaries remain committed to their imperialist adventures," he said.

Gromyko took the tack that the two sides are roughly equal right now. A number of members of Congress, including freeze proponents such as Sens. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and Mark O. Hatfield, R-Ore., tend to agree.

But the Soviets are negotiating with the Reagan administration, and their differences could have a significant impact when the START negotiations open on June 29.

Strength For Today

SILENCE

For many, if not most people, one of the hardest things in the world to do is to remain silent. If, for fifteen minutes every day we could empty our minds of the affairs of the moment and sit in inner contemplation of ourselves and our relation to God and the things about us, we could obtain a certain wisdom and balance which we did not have before.

One of the greatest contributions which the Quakers have made to the spiritual life of the world is to teach people the value of solemn silence. They have shown that under the proper circumstances this can engender within us a peaceful mood which will enable us to meet with equanimity whatever circumstances the day may bring forth.

Thomas Carlyle said on one occasion, "Do thou thyself but hold thy tongue for one day, and on the morrow how much greater are thy purpose and duties; what wreck and rubbish hve the mute workmen within thee swept away when intrusive noises were swept out." — Elisha Douglass

Consumers To Lead Upturn?

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Citibank says "It looks as if the consumer is going to lead the way out of the valley."

And Merrill Lynch sees two positive signs that the consumer is poised to lead the upturn.

There's nothing atypical about such expectations, not at least in the past few months, when the consumer seems to have been elevated to the rank of general, given command of economic forces and told to advance.

It is a rare consensus of government, business and academic analysts, and one that hardly could have been foreseen a year ago. True, you can usually say that economic recoveries are consumer-led, but this time there appears to be a campaign under way to make him a national hero.

But now the questions arises about the consumer's willingness and ability to be thrust into that role, and as time and experience have demonstrated, today's better informed consumer has a mind of his own.

Those who seek to forecast consumer movements point to a small increase in the use of installment credit and what is said to be a rise in retail sales during May.

Consumer debt is also supposed to be back in better relationship to income. And, with inflation subsiding, some indicators of consumer buying power, are beginning to look better.

The 10 percent income tax cut beginning July 1 is viewed as a bonus, the icing on the cake, the dessert the consumer now can eat after a weight-shedding diet. Certainly, it is said, he cannot resist indulging.

Well, say the contrarians — few in number, strong in conviction — don't be too sure. The consumer isn't a mindless robot, they say, even if some forecasters make that claim. Because he has the ability to spend doesn't mean that he will spend. He must have willingness too.

By most measures that are designed to probe the feelings of consumers, they are wary and uncertain. That, of course, is hardly the atmosphere in which people spend, either in the stock market or in Woolworth's.

More than 17 million Americans are unemployed, temporarily removed from the labor market or involuntarily working part time rather than full time. They will not be inclined to spend. And, the contrarians point out, neither will those workers who use the jobless statistics as a measure of how secure or tenuous is their own hold on a full-time job.

The much-touted 10 percent income tax cut that becomes effective July 1 may be welcomed by consumers, but they might not view it as dessert to be consumed. For the typical worker it will mean just $6 a week.

That doesn't mean he can spend it. Benefits for most workers, in fact, won't be sufficient to offset the increase in Social Security taxes and the impact of bracket creep, or the ascension into higher tax brackets that results from pay raises and cost-of-living increases.

If he does come out with more money, there still is no certainty a worker will spend it. What do you suppose are the consumer's thoughts about inflation? He is thankful, it would seem, for the decline in the rate at which prices are rising. But has he forgotten the experience of double-digit inflation? Hardly. Worried about it's return? Certainly.

Habits might be changing also. During the 1970s many people felt free to spend rather than save because, they reasoned, their house was rising in value and would in effect provide them with a bank account.

At the moment, the house isn't serving that purpose. Prices might be rising, but the rate of increase is lower than it was five years ago. The house offers shelter, but not quite the same financial security.

Meantime, there are inducements to save rather than spend, which is the opposite of that which prevailed in the 1970s. Interest rates are high, and inflation is subsiding, if perhaps only for the time being. And there are many more financial instruments, such as money market mutual funds, into which savings can be placed at a real profit.

And so the question arises: Is the consumer the new leader? Does he want the job? Or has he been appointed to lead because no other leader is in sight?

The Forecast For Saturday, June 19
 ● Low Temperatures

National Weather Service
 NOAA, U.S. Dept. of Commerce

Fronts: Cold ☞ Warm ☞ Occluded ☞ Stationary ☞

WEATHER FORECAST — The National Weather Service forecasts a band of showers from New Mexico to New England. Showers are also expected for Florida. Cool weather is predicted for the central Plains but most areas will be warm. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press
 Flooding was reported in several North Carolina areas early today, and the weather forecast is calling for even more rain.

The state Highway Patrol and the Cabarrus County

Sheriff's Department blocked off parts of Interstate-85 this morning after two feet of water from nearby Rocky River and Coddle Creek flooded the interstate. The patrol said traffic was rerouted to U.S. 29 from along a section from Poplar Tent to N.C. 73.

The National Weather Service issued small stream flood warnings for people living in Rowan and Cabarrus counties.

The moist, tropical air continues to produce rain in North Carolina.

Most of the rain and scattered thunderstorms fell over eastern North Carolina Thursday. However late in the day, scattered showers and a few thunderstorms developed over the mountains.

By evening, the showers and thunderstorms moved across the western piedmont. During the night, a slow moving moderate to heavy rain area became nearly stationary between Charlotte and south of Greensboro. Flooding was reported during the early morning hours mainly across sections of Cabarrus and Rowan counties. Several homes were reported flooded as well as sections of roadways. In fact, part of interstate 85 was under water.

By daybreak, the rain had ended over the piedmont, but an area of rain continued over the east. Otherwise it has been mostly cloudy around the state yesterday and overnight.

Maximum temperatures on Thursday ranged mostly in the low and mid 80s, east of the mountains. The warmest reported temperature was the 87 at Elizabeth city and Fayetteville. Across the mountains the range was from 68 at Boone to 79 at Murphy and Bryson City.

Overnight, temperatures ranged in the 60s and low 70s. Recreational weather outlook... Rain and scattered thunderstorms will be more prominent over the east today while widely scattered afternoon thunderstorm may pop up over the mountains. Rain and thunderstorms will taper off along the coast tonight. Scattered showers and thunderstorms will once again return mainly to the west portion of the state on Saturday as another cold front moves toward the Appalachians late in the day then stalls across western North Carolina Saturday night. Daytime temperatures will range mostly in the 80s with some 70s in the higher mountains. The nights will continue mild with 60s. See the national weather summary for latest map features.

cousin of the bridegroom, was ring bearer. Kenan Fleming of Greenville was best man for his brother. Other groomsmen were Bryant Morton, Reggie Cannon and Jay Cox, all of Greenville, and junior usher was David Laney, brother of the bride.

Mrs. Mark Boyd of Pinetown was mistress of ceremony.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Laney chose a formal gown of light pink and wore a white orchid corsage. The bridegroom's mother wore a light green gown. She, too, wore a white corsage.

The bride is a graduate of East Carolina University with a B.S. degree in special education. A graduate of North Carolina State University, the bridegroom is employed by Lewis Construction Co. in Greenville.

Following their wedding trip to Hilton Head, S.C., the couple will make their home in Simpson.

Immediately following the ceremony the parents of the bride hosted a reception in the fellowship hall of the church.

An after-rehearsal dinner was held for the wedding party, out-of-town guests and families of the bridal couple. Hosting the buffet were Mr. and Mrs. Taylor Barnhill at their home in Stokes.

Grant To Spur Rural Education

ECU News Bureau
 The Z. Smith Reynolds Foundation has awarded a $25,000 grant to the Rural Education Institute at East Carolina University to support leadership workshops and a research program which could have "tremendous implications" for rural education.

ECU Chancellor John M. Howell announced the grant by the Winston-Salem-based foundation which provides major financial support for many rural education and health-care programs.

The Rural Education Institute, directed by Dr. Richard W. Warner Jr., dean of the ECU School of Education, was established last fall within the school of education as a model research and program development service for rural education.

Warner said the Reynolds grant will support a program to identify local community personnel with leadership potential who will then be encouraged to attend local workshops to increase and sharpen leadership skills. The REI plans to conduct at least three regional leadership training workshops during the coming year. Warner said an earlier study sponsored by the Reynolds Foundation defined leadership skills as "critical" in rural education programs.

"We believe that a comprehensive and concentrated leadership program for local community leaders and potential educational leaders will render an invaluable service and be an important step for the Rural Education Institute," Warner said.

Utilizing the grant resources, the REI also will address the specific question of certification requirements and rural education. Current certification requirements that all teachers be "in field" have been criticized as too restrictive for rural schools, Warner said.

tioned on the curb outside the State Department. If we are unable to reach Ambassador Kirkpatrick, we will hand our instructions in a leather dispatch case to the rider who will race it to Baltimore and turn it over to another State Department courier on a fresh horse, who will take it to Philadelphia where a third rider will grab it and make a dash to the Lincoln Tunnel, where one of Mrs. Kirkpatrick's aides will bicycle it to her on the floor of the Security Council."

"Won't that take a bit of time?" I asked.

"It's just a temporary measure until we can train enough carrier pigeons to fly the secretary's orders from Washington to New York."

REVIVAL

Revival services will be held this week at St. Peter Missionary Baptist Church, Route 5, Greenville.

Services will begin at 7:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. The guest minister will be the Rev. Dink Smith of Greenville. Different choirs will sing each night.

PRAISE PROGRAM

Sycamore Hill Baptist Church will climax its vacation Bible school with a praise program tonight at 7 p.m.

City Budget...

will be self supporting.

John McConney, speaking for the Pitt-Greenville Arts Council, requested that the city appropriate $3,000 for the council that will be matched by a $1,500 Local Government Challenge Grant from the North Carolina Arts Council. The funds, he said will be used for Arts Council operating expenses for 1982-83. According to McConney, the $1,500 grant is contingent upon receiving $3,000 in local government funds from the city.

Saying that "the arts are things which enrich our lives," McConney explained that the Arts Council endeavored "to encourage and coordinate programs and activities of existing arts organizations within the city ... and ... county, and to promote the development of new artistic endeavors."

The president of the League of Women Voters of Greenville-Pitt County, Rhea Markello, said the league commended city departments for their economizing efforts in making budget requests and shared the administration's concerns in desiring to make plans for capital funds for new and replacement equipment, for resurfacing local streets and for other capital needs. Ms. Markello said while the league realized that budget constraints necessitate delays in street resurfacing, "We would urge the City Council to initiate a program in the very near future for the resurfacing project."

She said the league also commended the council for its continued support of the energy program and she suggested that greater emphasis be "placed on the facilitation of bicycling as an alternate means of transportation thus conserving energy and improving environmental quality."

Mayor Percy Cox told the gathering that the philosophy adopted by the council "from the beginning was to hold the line." He said the council is pleased with the budget but to fund any other requests would mean increases in local taxes.

Councilman Stuart Shinn mentioned the "spirit of cooperation" that existed between the city and Greenville Utilities this year and GUC Chairman Harry Hagerty said, "It proves it can be done."

The council will schedule at least one more budget workshop before setting a date for a special meeting to adopt the new package prior to June 30.

and maintenance expense, and was "the second lowest utility in this group in 1981."

In the area of fuel and purchased power, Smith explained that "one third of our total expenses goes to pay for fuel and purchased power. Out fuel and purchased power expenses have been either the lowest or the next-to-lowest each year" since 1975.

He indicated that the reason for the low fuel cost record "is that we continue to have a favorable fuel mix," explaining that "more than 99 percent of the electric generation on the CP&L system comes from coal, nuclear or hydro," with less than 1 percent coming from oil-burning facilities.

"That makes CP&L one of the lowest users of oil for electric generation of any electric utility in the country," Smith emphasized.

The CP&L president also noted that the utility operates "with the second lowest number of employees relative to the amount of electricity generated," and the wages and salaries paid by CP&L "have been consistently below the average" for the other Southeastern utility companies.

Citing efforts by CP&L to promote conservation and load management, thereby reducing the demand for electricity, Smith said, "I am aware that Greenville Utilities has been a pioneer in appliance control, involving both water heaters and air conditioners. I also understand that your utilities staff here in Greenville was helpful in sharing information with our engineers as we began developing our own appliance control program" aimed at reducing peak demands on the system.

"That is a good example of the spirit of cooperation between our utility systems," he emphasized.

Raising rates to cover higher costs "is not a popular concept," Smith suggested, "but it must be faced squarely and honestly. We will do our best to reduce our overall costs and hold down the size of future rate increases ... But as long as inflation continues and costs rise, some increases will be necessary."

"If history on our system repeats itself in the future, your increases, however, will be less than elsewhere. Your arrangement with the power agency will enable you to employ lower-cost capital and thus further hold down your electric costs."

Smith concluded by saying in addition to providing for future energy supply, CP&L and the power agency "share the continuing challenge" of building greater public understanding about electric energy issues such as "why rates are increasing, why new facilities are needed, and why an adequate supply of electricity is so vital to economic growth, productivity improvement and national security."

"We must clearly communicate that this is not a case of utility versus consumer; instead, we are all in this together, and together we must build for the future," Smith said.

The Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce handled the arrangements for today's luncheon.

Begin Prepares Address A Hostile UN

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON
Associated Press Writer
UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The United States is striving to hammer together a lasting cease-fire in Lebanon as Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin prepares to defend Israel's invasion before a largely hostile U.N. General Assembly.

Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. met Begin at breakfast for about 90 minutes this morning and Haig said they had "a very important and serious discussion" on the current situation in Lebanon.

He called the situation serious but said it is also "not devoid of some hope for the future."

Haig confirmed that Begin's meeting with President Reagan on Monday — at one point termed only "tentative" by the State Department — will take place. Asked by reporters whether a workable cease-fire can be arranged in Lebanon, Haig replied, "There is a cease-fire, providing the contending forces do not attack."

He declined to comment about whether the Palestine Liberation Organization is near a decision to lay down its arms.

Haig is exploring ways of ending bloody fighting inside Lebanon in a way that will strengthen the authority of the paralyzed central Lebanese government.

U.S. officials declined to rule out the possibility that the United States might offer to guarantee a Lebanese peace that would insulate Israel from terrorist attack, but say expectations of a quick diplomatic breakthrough are "premature."

Haig also intended to raise the Lebanese issue in a separate meeting this afternoon with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko.

The Soviet Union has a mutual defense pact with Syria, whose armed forces were invited into Lebanon seven years ago and were badly bloodied in the Israeli invasion which began on June 6.

The Haig-Gromyko meeting is their third in the last nine months, and Haig told reporters Thursday that he goes into it "with no expectations."

"We have a lot of problems and a lot of serious talking to do," Haig said.

In his address to the 157-member General Assembly, the Israeli leader will be facing a tough audience dominated by delegates from the developing Third World, many of them openly hostile to Israel.

Syrian diplomats say that Arab delegates and their supporters in the non-aligned movement may boycott the speech altogether or even walk out when Begin appears.

The General Assembly

same protocol by the United States.

A separate commentary distributed by the Kremlin's Novosti press agency said Reagan's speech "once again puts doubt on the U.S. government's proclaimed desire to work for peace and disarmament. What he outlined was not an agenda for peace but an agenda for confrontation."

Another lengthy Novosti commentary included a rare positive comment about Reagan's speech, saying that the American leader "proposed a number of measures which might promote confidence."

Accuse Reagan Of Distorting Facts

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet news agency Tass said today that President Reagan resorted to distortions and repeated "absurd rumors" during his speech to the special session of the U.N. General Assembly on disarmament.

The commentary also said it was "difficult to take seriously" Reagan's calls for international restraint, given American actions in the Caribbean, Southeast Asia and the Middle East.

"As a matter of fact," Tass wrote, "the president's speech boiled down to rhetorical justifications of the policy of the United States aimed at undermining, detente and aggravating international tension."

Tass said Reagan had "grossly distorted" the policies of the Soviet Union, juggled data about Soviet and American military expenditures, and "repeated absurd rumors" about the alleged Soviet use of chemical weapons.

The news agency said Reagan's charge that the Soviet Union had violated the Geneva protocol outlawing the use of chemical weapons was intended to "hide well-known violations" of the

Some legislators on both sides of the issue suggested the provision was offered as a favor to the teachers' group, since it had failed to win a salary increase this session.

"They (teachers) have been quiet about the freeze because they thought they were going to get some snow days," Mrs. Foster said. "It certainly is no move to shorten the school year to 175 days."

The conference committee quickly resolved one difference between the House and Senate by agreeing to impose a seven-month moratorium on new, for profit rest home bedspace but leaving nonprofit homes free to expand.

The original provision would have frozen all rest home expansion, and was backed by Senate leaders. Sen. Harold Hardison, D-Lenoir, said that it was needed as a way to cut state Medicaid costs — arguing that if more beds are added, more would be filled at state expense.

The limitation drew opposition from the N.C. Association of Non-Profit Homes for the Aging, which includes many rest homes run by religious groups.

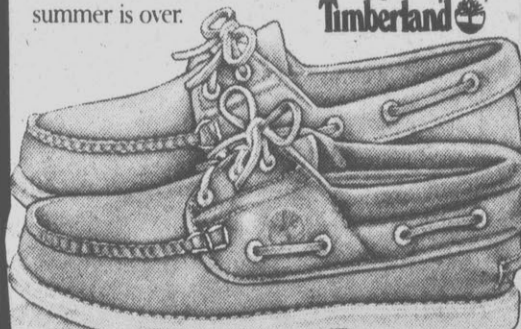

Bob Price, lobbyist for the association, said many of the homes have waiting lists of people wanting to be admitted. "Our position is, restricting beds restricts availability to the public," he said.

FINALLY, A BOAT SHOE WITH A BODY AS TOUGH AS ITS SOLE.

Let Overton's Skis and Timberland make Father's Day Complete

The Timberland boat shoe is made of oil-impregnated leathers that won't dry out or crack. The eyelets are only solid brass. The laces are thick rawhide. And, most important, our sole is long-lasting, rugged Vibram.*

All in all, it's no wonder Timberland boat shoes, for men and women, last long after the summer is over.

Only Three Candidates Appear At Forum In Ayden Last Evening

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

AYDEN — Only three of six candidates for the Ayden-Grifton-Swift Creek townships seat on the Pitt County Board of Commissioners attended a candidates forum Thursday night sponsored by the Ayden Council of the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce.

Responding to questions posed by the chamber at the session were Charles McLawhorn, Dr. Elliott Dixon and Ronald Garris — all candidates for the seat on the board now held by Alton Gardner who, after more than 27 years on the board, is not seeking re-election. Candidates Robert Halstead, Walter Gaskins and Walter Bruce Jones did not attend the session.

The questions posed to the candidates concerned their position on meetings of the board of commissioners that are more accessible to the public, the merger of the city and county school systems, industrial development and where the most emphasis should be placed for capital improvements.

In order of their response, Dixon told the gathering that in his opinion, commissioner meetings should be held at a "more convenient" time than the usual 10 a.m. sessions, suggesting a 4 p.m. or 4:30 p.m. session for routine business, followed by evening sessions for "more controversial matters."

Suggesting that the county cannot allow one school system to deteriorate while another prospers, Dixon said a plan of merger should be worked out so the parties involved could then "look at the entire plan" before deciding if merger is the way to go.

Dixon said, too, that the county should work "vigorously" to attract new industry, adding that in his opinion, "the development commission is not funded at an adequate level" at present. "The county needs to make a long term commitment to new industry," he said.

Dixon also said the capital needs of the county should be assessed and the best way of meeting those needs — such as the establishment of a capital reserve fund, finance construction on a year-to-year basis or have a bond issue — be determined.

"All of the questions, with different circumstances, are subject to change," Garris said, adding that "the people who want to attend the (commission) meetings" can attend "regardless of when they are."

Garris also said, "I think maybe," school merger should be considered, but emphasized, "It's up to the taxpayers to decide this."

As for industrial development, Garris voiced his support for seeking industry, but noted, "I don't think the grass roots people should pay taxes for industrial development."

And in the area of capital improvement projects, Garris suggested that in his opinion, building programs could be financed from what the "county spends every year." McLawhorn, saying commissioner meetings should be "as accessible as possible," suggested that the "most important" meetings might be held at different times.

Officials should "take a long, hard look at merger, partial merger or realignment of (school) districts ... whichever is most practical," to insure the best education possible for all the children in the county, McLawhorn suggested.

He continued by saying there is a need for industrial development in the county, and pledged, "I shall actively seek these jobs for our people."

In the area of capital improvements, McLawhorn said he is "more in favor" of funding school capital improvement needs, "including Pitt Community College," than in spending money on county offices and related buildings.

During a question and answer session, all three candidates suggested that commissioners should meet on a regular basis with town boards of all municipalities in the county just as the board does with the Greenville City Council, and voiced their support for more cooperation between local governments, such as in the form of a central purchasing agent for the county and all municipalities in the county.

Responding to a question on the need for a county planner, both McLawhorn and Dixon voiced support for a full-time planner, while Garris suggested that the county manager could "work as county planner." However, he said it would depend on "what the citizens want ... what the citizens will stand for..."

Asked individually why they thought they would make better commissioners than any other candidate, both McLawhorn and Garris said they had the time to devote to the job.

Dixon responded by saying his experience in local government, in his own business and the fact that "I'm open to suggestions," would make him the best choice. "I'm very much in touch with the people," he said.

Found Guilty Of Shooting Dogs

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — An ordained Mormon minister was convicted Thursday of shooting a dog to death and wounding another.

Wake District Judge Philip O. Redwine found Duncan J. Floyd, 36, of Raleigh, guilty of two counts of cruelty to animals. Redwine sentenced Floyd to three days in the Wake County Jail and ordered him to pay $500 restitution for each dog.

Floyd has appealed the conviction to Wake Superior Court and a trial has been scheduled for July 15.

Can Qualify For Special Prices

WASHINGTON (AP) — Beginning July 1, a family of four can have a maximum annual income of $12,090 and still qualify for free or reduced-price school lunches for their children.

The Agriculture Department said Thursday that the income ceiling, now at $9,300, would be boosted under terms of a law requiring an annual readjustment based on changes in the cost-of-living.

Some 11.7 million of the 23.3 million children participating in the school-lunch program in March ate free or at reduced rates, according to department figures.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

THE AMERICAN INDIAN BIBLE!

QUITE FITTING ENOUGH IS THE FACT THAT THE VERY FIRST BIBLE ACTUALLY PRINTED IN AMERICA WAS WRITTEN IN—NOT ENGLISH—BUT A NATIVE AMERICAN LANGUAGE—ALGONKIAN! THE TIME: 1663, THE PLACE: THE COLONY IN MASSACHUSETTS, AND THE MAN RESPONSIBLE: JOHN ELIOT, CALLED "THE APOSTLE TO THE NORTH AMERICAN INDIANS". ELIOT CAME TO AMERICA FROM ENGLAND IN 1631, WAS MADE TEACHER OF THE CHURCH IN ROXBURY, MASS., AND ORGANIZED THE FIRST VILLAGE OF INDIAN CONVERTS AT NATICK, NEAR BOSTON, IN 1651.

WHETHER THE INDIANS FELT HONORED OR NOT OVER THE FACT THAT THE FIRST BIBLE TO BE PRINTED IN AMERICA WAS DONE IN THEIR LANGUAGE HAS NOT BEEN RECORDED, BUT OVER A CENTURY WOULD PASS BEFORE THE FIRST ENGLISH LANGUAGE BIBLE WOULD BE PRINTED IN 1782!

Stock And Market Reports

Hogs,
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The trend on the North Carolina hog market today was 1.00 to 1.25 lower. Kingston 59.00; Clinton, Elizabethtown, Fayetteville, Dunn, Pink Hill, Chadburn, Ayden, Pine Level, Laurinburg and Benson 59.00; Salisbury 57.00; Wilson 59.00; Spivey's Corner 58.25; Rowland 58.50. Sows; all weights 500 pounds up; Wilson 52.00; Spivey's Corner 53.00; Fayetteville 54.00; Whiteville 51.00; Wallace 53.00; Rowland 53.00; Durham unreported.

Poultry,
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The North Carolina f.o.b. dock broiler market was trending 3 1/2 cents lower. Supplies moderate. Demand light to moderate. Weights desirable. The dock weighted average price for this week is 43.21 for small purchases of plant grade broilers picked up at processing plants. Estimated slaughter today 1,634,000.

Hens,
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The North Carolina hen market was steady with a weak undertone, supplies fully adequate, demand moderate. Prices paid per pound for hens over seven pounds at farm for Wednesday, Thursday and Friday slaughter 10 cents.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices lost more ground today as selling pressure persisted around the market's lowest levels in more than two years.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which fell Thursday to its lowest closing level since April 23, 1980, dropped 2.67 to 788.81 by noontime.

Losers held a 2-1 lead over gainers in the over-all tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues. Mesa Petroleum fell 1 to 15 1/2, and Gulf Oil and Cities Service both were delayed in opening. Late Thursday Gulf agreed to a $63-a-share acquisition of Cities Service, which has been engaged in a two-way takeover battle with Mesa.

The NYSE's composite index lost .21 to 61.75. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down 1.21 to 247.52. Volume on the Big Board totaled 21.00 million shares by noontime, against 22.81 million at the same point Thursday.

Rule States Required To Educate Retarded

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court ruled today that mentally retarded individuals committed to state institutions must be given training and education in addition to food, housing and medical care.

The court's 8-1 vote, involving a dispute over a Pennsylvania mental institution, is a major victory for the more than 100,000 such patients in the United States.

The ruling also severely limited a state's rights to shackle or otherwise restrain patients in its mental institutions.

The opinion, written by Justice Lewis F. Powell, said a patient's "liberty interests, require the state to provide minimally adequate or reasonable training to ensure safety and freedom from undue restraint.

Powell's added that of officials "may not restrain residents except when and to the extent professional judgment deems this necessary to assure such safety or to provide needed training."

In the case at hand, he wrote, "the minimally adequate training required by the Constitution is such training as may be reasonable in light of (the patient's) liberty interests in safety and freedom from unreasonable restraints."

"In determining what is 'reasonable' — in this and in any case presenting a claim for training by a state — we emphasize that courts must show deference to the judgment exercised by a qualified professional."

The court thus made it clear that while it was approving sweeping new rights for mentally retarded patients, it wanted to limit the intrusion by federal courts into the operations of state-run institutions.

The challenge ruled on today had been filed by Nicholas Romeo, a severely retarded man involuntarily committed to the Pennhurst State School and Hospital in 1974 at age 26.

In 1976, after Romeo had been injured several times at the facility, located in the Philadelphia suburb of Spring City, his mother filed a civil rights suit against three officials of the institution.

In November 1980, the 3rd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals said mentally retarded people have a right to "a form of treatment that is regarded as acceptable for them in light of present medical or other scientific knowledge."

The appeals court also said that any bodily restraints must be justified by a "compelling necessity" and that patients have a right to personal security, including protection from attacks by other patients.

Pennsylvania officials said they were required to provide such patients only with "food, clothing, shelter, reasonable safety and medical care."

Report Sharp Gain In Personal Income

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans' total income rose 0.7 percent last month, the biggest gain since November, while personal consumption spending rose a sharp 1.3 percent, the government reported today.

Both figures were bound to be greeted as encouraging news for economic recovery, since most analysts say recovery from the recession depends heavily on production increases spurred by gains in consumer spending.

Nearly half the May gain in income was in wages and salaries, with the rest in interest income and in government transfer payments such as unemployment benefits.

With spending rising even faster than income, today's Commerce Department report said, new personal saving dropped 16.5 percent to an annual rate of $11.9 billion in May.

Personal income rose to an annual rate of $2.55 trillion, while personal consumption spending climbed to an annual rate of $1.98 trillion, it said.

Total income had gained a similar 0.7 percent last November, then was virtually flat in December before recording modest gains through April.

The increases in March and April had been 0.4 percent and 0.3 percent.

Spending on personal consumption had slipped even further in early spring, dropping 0.2 percent in March before gaining a modest 0.3 percent in April, the report said.

Economists inside and outside the government have been counting on the July 1 tax-rate cut to give Americans more money to spend, hoping that such spending will encourage manufacturers to produce more goods and begin hiring back laid-off workers.

Separate Commerce Department figures have shown retail sales climbing steadily in April and May, and some officials have raised the possibility that consumers were increasing their spending early in anticipation of the tax cut.

May's total income figure translates into $9,254 for every man, woman and child in the nation, using a population estimate of 231.7 million.

All of the figures in the new report were adjusted for normal seasonal variations.

Upholds Limits In Surveillance

NEW YORK (AP) — A judge has upheld a law enacted in the wake of the Watergate scandal to curb excess government surveillance, ruling it strikes a "reasonable balance" between citizens' rights and the need for foreign intelligence information.

U.S. District Judge Joseph M. McLaughlin's ruling Thursday — the 10th anniversary of the break-in at the Watergate — came in the first constitutional challenge to the act, which allows a secret panel of seven judges to authorize wiretaps if there is cause to believe the person under surveillance is a foreign agent.

The law was challenged by lawyers for five American citizens accused of illegal weapons sales to Irish nationalists.

Pirate Rally Falls Short As UNC Wins, 3-2

CHAPEL HILL — Reliever Greg Karpuk struck out Jack Curlings with two out and the bases loaded in the seventh inning to help North Carolina escape with a 3-2 victory over East Carolina Thursday evening in a North State Summer League baseball game.

Robert Langston walked to open the seventh off UNC reliever Tim Breedlove, who was replaced by Mitch McCleney.

McCleney walked Ricky Nichols but, moments later, Langston was picked off at second by catcher Todd Wilkinson. However, McCleney walked Mike Williams and David Wells to load the bases.

John Hallow then grounded into a force play at second to score Nichols and cut the gap to 3-2. McCleney walked Todd Evans to reload the bases and on came Karpuk.

Karpuk, the Tar Heels' fourth pitcher, promptly struck out Curlings swinging to end the threat — and the game.

The win ups UNC's mark to 5-6. ECU falls to 3-7. The Pirates were to meet the Tar Heels tonight for a double-header in Chapel Hill before taking on N.C. State Saturday.

ECU threatened in the top of the second when Evans doubled and Curlings walked and both moved up on Art Barnhardt's sacrifice. But, Mark Shank struck out and Langston grounded out to end the threat.

North Carolina came back in the bottom of the inning to score twice. Wilkinson walked and moved to second on Chris Mench's single. A passed ball allowed both runners to move up a base.

Jeff Scott followed with a single to score Wilkinson and McCleney grounded to short to score Mench.

Stacy Drops Labonte

CHARLOTTE (AP) — J.D. Stacy has dropped his sponsorship of the stock car racing team of NASCAR Winston Cup Series point leader Terry Labonte.

Labonte was informed by letter that Stacy would no longer sponsor the team. The team is owned by Louisiana businessman Billy Hagan.

The team got a new sponsor almost immediately when Texas Jeans of Thomasville announced it would back the team in the Michigan 400 this Sunday and in the Firecracker 400 on the Fourth of July in Daytona.

Stacy couldn't be reached for comment.

A source close to the High Point-based Labonte-Hagan team said "the letter indicated Stacy didn't think he was getting his money's worth, incredulous as that might sound."

Labonte has a 144-point edge over runner-up Bobby Allison in the chase for the driving championship entering Sunday's Gabriel 400 at Michigan International Speedway. Labonte has three poles and five runner-up finishes, but hasn't won this season.

"Stacy wanted to continue his sponsorship through the Gabriel 400, which is to be nationally televised live by CBS," said the source. "But Terry's car, already en route to Michigan, has been stripped of its Stacy logos."

Moore Second In Junior

RALEIGH — John Powers won a playoff over Lyn Moore of Greenville to win the first flight of the North State Junior Golf tournament at the Wildwood Country Club.

Powers and Moore, a student at Greenville Rose, were tied for first place at the end of regulation with 308 in the 16-18 age group. Powers won on the first playoff hole with a par when Powers bogeyed. Powers led going into yesterday's final round but shot an 80 while Powers was a 74 to rally to forge a tie at the end of regulation.

Another Greenville youth, Jim Blount, finished third in the first flight with a 312 in the 14-15 age group. Blount shot a 77 yesterday.

Mark Dowd of Selma won with a 307.

Judge Dismisses Clemson Lawsuit

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A $12 million lawsuit charging two coaches from national champion Clemson and a Clemson alumnus with football recruiting violations has been dismissed by a special judge in Knoxville.

The suit involved charges by two Knoxville high school football players that they were offered cash and other incentives, including new homes for their widowed mothers, to attend Clemson.

The decision by Chancellor William Inman follows by three days a preliminary hearing in which the counsel for the Clemson defendants asked that the case be dismissed.

Clemson Athletic Director Bill McLellan greeted the dismissal with relief.

"Sure, I'm happy, but I'm not surprised," McLellan said. "I could never see how it got as far as it did. I was surprised it ever got filed."

The lawsuit had been filed against Clemson football coach Danny Ford, former assistant coach Billy Ware and Knoxville businessman T.C. "Buck" Breazeale for allegedly offering former recruits Terry Minor and James Cofer cash, homes for their mothers, color television sets, refrigerators and entertainment to play football for the Tigers.

Minor and Cofer — graduates of Knoxville Rule High School — signed letters-of-intent with Clemson in 1981. Last December the pair filed the lawsuit charging Ford, Ware and Breazeale with committing NCAA recruiting violations in order to persuade the two players to attend Clemson.

The case was dismissed, according to Judge Inman, because Cofer and Minor "got exactly what they bargained for."

In a telephone interview from his Morristown, Tenn., home, Inman said Minor and Cofer "wanted a grant-in-aid to attend Clemson University and they got it...or at least they had it."

After signing the letters-of-intent with Clemson, Cofer and Minor attempted to switch to the University of Tennessee to play football, but were unable to because of an agreement between the Atlantic Coast Conference, of which Clemson is a member, and the Southeastern Conference, which includes the University of Tennessee, located in Knoxville.

After playing one season at Louisiana Tech, the two transferred to Carson-Newman.

Devlin, Rogers Tied For U.S. Open Lead

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — The captivating but capricious Pebble Beach Golf Links took its toll on the world's finest players on the opening day of the United States Open, leaving Bruce Devlin and Bill Rogers, an unlikely couple, sharing the first-day lead.

Devlin, who says he plays the game mostly from memory, and Rogers, who has been unable to recall the formula that made him Player of the Year in 1981, both shot 2-under-par 70s Thursday on the windswept 6,825-yard layout.

That was one stroke better than Jim King, Calvin Peete, Danny Edwards, Bobby Clampett and Terry Diehl, all in at 71. Nine others, including 1978 champion Andy North and Tom Watson, were tied at 72.

Defending champion David Graham had a 73 and Jack Nicklaus, bidding for a record fifth Open title, fell victim to the winds and finished with a 74, as did current PGA champ Larry Nelson. Masters Champion Craig Stadler had a 76 and hot-shooting Ray Floyd, with two victories and a second in his last three starts, finished with an 81.

Rogers, who won seven tournaments including the British Open last year, has been struggling this season. But he came out fast with birdies on the second, third and sixth holes. He gave back two with consecutive bogeys on Nos. 7 and 8 before birdying No. 9 to make the turn in 34. He shot 36 on the back side with nine consecutive pars.

Devlin grinned when asked what he would have said if at breakfast Thursday someone had suggested that he'd be leading the open that evening. "I'd have told them they were mad," he said.

He had played in just eight tournaments all year and missed the cut in half of those. His top finish was a tie for 45th place and his tour earnings for the year had been a meager $3,603.71.

Devlin hasn't won a tour event since 1972 when he finished first at Pleasant Valley and Houston and then went into semi-retirement.

He eagled the second hole Thursday and survived bogey-double, bogey at Nos. 6-7 and another bogey at 10 with birdies at 9, 15 and 16 to grab his share of the lead.

Five Ways To Help Dad Stay In Trim This Father's Day

Get him one of our new work saving gas trimmers. Each is designed for high performance, dependability, and to make Dad's trimming chores a whole lot easier.

Power to spare
Toro trimmers have efficient high torque engines capable of whipping flexible lines or blades at effective cutting speeds. That gives you lots of trimming power in grass, tall weeds or brush.

Built like a Toro
Get a Toro and you're getting dependability. Like simple starting. Durable construction. And one of the best warranties you'll find on trimmers anywhere.

Easy handling
With all its heavy duty capability, a Toro gas trimmer is lightweight and easy to handle. That means edging into tight spots you didn't think possible. And a Toro is designed to be well-balanced, so it's more comfortable to use.

Vibration-dampening. And lots more Using a gas trimmer that vibrates too much can make you call it quits. So Toro builds vibration-dampening into their engines to smooth out your trimming. And when you tap a Toro trimmer equipped with Automatic Line Feed, on the ground, it feeds out new cut line to exactly the right length.

The right trimmer for the right job
There are five Toro gas trimmers to choose from. Two flexible shaft models for regular use. Plus three straight shaft models for tougher, professional type jobs. And Toro offers a complete line of trimmer accessories to let you handle most any trimming chore.

The Toro line of gas trimmers for Father's Day. With them, you get high performance. Dependability. And easy handling. Not to mention all the trimmings.

Futrell Wins Putt Putt

Mike Futrell shot a seven-under-par 65 and captured a sudden death playoff with John Nichols to win an Amateur tournament at the Greenville Putt Putt last night.

Nichols finished second in the tournament after he and Futrell tied for first at the conclusion of two regulation rounds.

Mike Shane was third with a six-under-par 66 followed by Eric Nelson at 68 and Brian Godley at 70.

Delphia Beacham, Jimmy Silverthorne and Vince Nelson were tied for sixth place at the end of regulation but Beacham won a sudden death playoff to clinch the sixth spot.

ECU Falls...

The Tar Heels upped their lead to 3-0 in the fourth when Scott singled home Mench, who had singled with one gone in the inning.

ECU cut the gap to 3-1 in the fifth. Shank walked and stole second. He went to third on a single by Langston and scored on a single by Nichols.

The Pirates did not threaten in the sixth, but came back with a run in the seventh only to have their rally cut short by Karpuk.

Both Scott and Mench had two hits for UNC. ECU did not have anyone with more than one hit.

Brian Peterson went the distance on the mound for the Pirates, giving up four hits. He walked two and struck out two in seeing his record fall to 1-2.

Nuggets Finally Trade Thompson

DENVER (AP) — The Denver Nuggets have accomplished what they have been trying to do for some time — trade high-priced guard-forward David Thompson.

But there could be a catch. The National Basketball Players Association doesn't like the deal the Nuggets swung Thursday with the Seattle SuperSonics.

Thompson was dealt to Seattle in exchange for the Sonics' choice in the first round of the upcoming NBA draft — the 19th pick overall — and the rights to 6-foot-7 forward Wally Walker.

The problem is that Walker technically is a free agent, and that could hinder completion of the deal.

The league's collective bargaining agreement prohibits the trading of players' rights.

"The deal cannot be made," said Charles Grantham assistant counsel for the NBPA. "We'll have to have a look at Walker's contract before we take any action."

"There seems to be no dispute from either club — Walker's a free agent," Grantham said. "But we can't go much further until we see the contract."

Carl Scheer, president and general manager of the Nuggets, termed Walker's status "clouded" but said "the uniqueness of his contract does not detract from our ability to acquire him — he's not anybody else's property."

Walker's agent, David Falk, said the debate over Walker's rights "is an academic point. They (the Nuggets and SuperSonics) can decide among themselves, but it's not important for us to fight that." He said his top priority is to meet with Scheer to finalize a new agreement.

The 6-4½ Thompson was an All-American in college and led North Carolina State to the NCAA title in 1974. He became the highest paid athlete in the country when he signed a multi-year contract with the Nuggets near the end of the 1976-77 season for a reported $800,000 a year.

Thompson has one year left on that contract, and the Sonics reportedly have agreed to pay $500,000 of the $800,000 to Thompson next season, and possibly more, depending on his performance.

Thompson was drafted out of college by Virginia of the old American Basketball Association, but his rights were traded to Denver. He played one season for Denver in the ABA, averaging 26 points and being named Rookie of the Year, before the league merged with the NBA.

In the NBA, Thompson was named to three consecutive All-Star games and was the Most Valuable Player in the 1979 contest. He and Julius Erving of Philadelphia are the only players to have been named MVP in both an NBA and ABA All-Star game.

Thompson has averaged 24.1 points per game as a professional, and his total of 73 in one game is a feat bettered only by Wilt Chamberlain. But Thompson has been struggling the past two seasons to regain his all-star form.

Plagued by injuries, the 27-year-old Thompson averaged only 14.9 points and 20 minutes per game last season and played in only 61 contests while losing his starter's spot at guard to T.R. Dunn.

Philadelphia Downs Pittsburgh

By The Associated Press While two home runs by Gary Matthews powered Philadelphia to victory, Pittsburgh Manager Chuck Tanner was talking about a bunt.

"I don't know what the chances are," Tanner said after playing the game under protest. "We'll just have to wait and see."

In other National League games Thursday, Cincinnati stopped San Francisco 4-2 and Chicago outlasted Montreal 12-8.

Matthews' second homer of the game to lead off the 11th inning gave the Phillies a 4-3 victory and snapped Philadelphia's five-game losing string — its longest of the year.

"When you hit a home run like that, you take a lot of pressure off everybody," Matthews said.

It was the bunt that had Tanner talking after the game.

After the Phils had tied the game 3-3 in the top of the ninth, Tony Pena opened the bottom half of the inning with a single.

Lee Lacy, attempting a sacrifice bunt, popped the ball into the air and Philadelphia relief pitcher Sparky Lyle caught before it hit the ground.

Lyle then threw to first base to double off Pena, who was running on the play.

But plate umpire Bob Engel didn't see Lyle catch the ball and ruled that Lacy was out at first and Pena was safe at second base.

DHC Has 2 All-Conference

VANCEBORO — D.H. Conley placed two baseball players and four softball players on the Coastal Conference All-Conference teams that were announced Thursday.

First baseman Dixon Page and pitcher Doug McRoy were the two Viking on the 15-man all-conference baseball team. DHC's Wesley Smith, a centerfielder, was named honorable mention.

Conference champion White Oak led the team with four players.

The Phillies immediately challenged the call. After Engel huddled with his fellow umpires for 10 minutes, he reversed himself and ruled it was a double play.

Cubs 12, Expos 8 Home runs by Bill Buckner, Jay Johnstone and Bump Willis helped Chicago outlast Montreal. Pitcher Randy Martz aided the attack with a three-run double.

Others on the all-conference softball team were:

From White Oak — Richard Sloan, Israel Meadows, Pat Riley, Charlie Soos; From West Carteret — Randy Guthrie, Lonnie Mister; From North Lenoir — Jeff Braxton,

It was the Cubs' fourth straight victory, but Martz wasn't around long enough to get the victory, which went to reliever Mike Proly, 1-0. David Palmer, 1-1, took the loss.

Reds 4, Giants 2 Cesar Cedeño continued his hot hitting with a two-run double and Eddie Miller drove in a run, then later scored as Cincinnati downed San Francisco.

Red Sox Down Indians To End Three-Game Skid

By The Associated Press

Although the Boston Red Sox have surprised nearly everyone with their first-place standing in the American League East, it's been a frustrating season for Mike Torrez and Dave Stapleton.

The pair made outstanding contributions Thursday night, however, as the Red Sox beat the Cleveland Indians 6-3 to snap a three-game losing streak.

Torrez pitched a four-hit shutout until he was reached for three more hits and all three Cleveland runs with two outs in the ninth inning. Stapleton slugged his seventh home run and a run-scoring double.

Stapleton, who batted .326 last season to earn the starting first base job ahead of veterans Tony Perez and Carl Yastrzemski, is hitting only .258 this year.

"I go through flashes when I think I'm going to get started, but then the next night I'll hit a couple of balls at somebody and get disgusted," Stapleton said. "That's been my big problem. It's been mental. I feel like in these past couple of months when I hit the ball there are outfielders and infielders everywhere.

"I get that feeling and it brings on a defeatist attitude. I just haven't had my confidence this year."

Torrez' earned run average is a horrendous 6.12 despite

Thursday night's good outing, which improved his record to 4-3.

Red Sox catcher Rich Gedman said Torrez just needs a dose of confidence to be effective.

"I hope tonight will prove to him how good he can be," Gedman said. "I think he probably doesn't realize how good his stuff is. He goes out and tries to be too fine. Tonight, he got ahead of hitters by not trying to be too fine."

"Mike has struggled, but tonight he pitched a lot like last year," said Red Sox Manager Ralph Houk. "He's been throwing the ball real well, but getting behind hitters. You can't always make big pitches when you're behind 2-0 on a lot of hitters."

Torrez allowed only one Cleveland runner to advance past first base until the ninth, when he gave up a walk, two singles and a three-run double to Alan Bannister. Mark Clear got the final out and his 11th save by striking out Karl Page.

Yastrzemski, the designated hitter, singled in Boston's first run in the first inning before Stapleton made it 2-0 with a solo homer in the fourth.

The Red Sox got three more runs in the sixth on an RBI triple by Reid Nichols, Rick Miller's run-scoring single and a sacrifice fly by Carney Lansford. Stapleton's double made it 6-0 in the ninth.

Angels 10, Blue Jays 8

California took a half-game lead in the AL West over idle Kansas City as Don Baylor and Bobby Grich drove in three runs apiece and Rod Carew had four hits to extend his hitting streak to 21 games.

Grich hit a three-run homer and Baylor added a run-scoring single to lead the Angels' six-run third inning against Toronto. Baylor also singled in runs in the fourth and sixth.

The Blue Jays made the game close with four runs in the ninth on a two-run double by Buck Martinez and a two-run homer by Damaso Garcia. Jesse Barfield also homered for Toronto.

White Sox 11, A's 7

Tony Bernazard, despite three errors at second base, knocked in four runs for Chicago, three of them with a double to climax a four-run third inning.

Steve Kemp added three RBI with a double and a two-run single as the White Sox banged 16 hits off four Oakland pitchers. A's starter Mike Norris, 3-6, suffered the loss after leaving the game with a shoulder injury in the third inning.

Steve Trout, 5-5, had a three-hitter until the seventh, but he surrendered three runs in that inning and reliever Eddie Solomon gave up a two-run homer to Jeff Newman in the eighth.

Brewers 3, Tigers 2

Seldom-used catcher Ned Yost tripled in the 11th inning and later scored on an error by shortstop Alan Trammell to give Milwaukee its victory over Detroit.

Yost, who entered the game as a pinch-runner in the ninth, blasted a pitch from Tigers reliever Dave Tobik, 2-1, to the 400-foot mark in left-center field with two outs. After an intentional walk to Ben Oglivie, Gorman Thomas drilled a one-hopper that Trammell couldn't handle, allowing Yost to score.

Mike Caldwell, 4-6, allowed only four hits in 10 innings for the victory, although he gave up homers to Lance Parrish and Mike Ivie.

Rangers 5, Mariners 1

Buddy Bell highlighted Texas' four-run third inning with a three-run double, while pitcher Rick Honeycutt had Seattle beating the ball into the ground.

The Rangers loaded the bases off Mariners starter Gene Nelson before Bell doubled and scored on a single by Dave Hostetler.

U. Carbide To Victory

Little League

U. Carbide 10

Sportsworld 4

Paul Powers drove in four runs — three with a home run — to lead Union Carbide to a 10-4 victory over Sportsworld Thursday in a North State Little League baseball game.

Union Carbide scored four runs — three on errors — in the home half of the first to erase a two-run deficit and take a lead it never lost.

UC added another run to its lead in the second and then upped its lead to 10-2 in the third with five runs. The inning was keyed by Powers' three-run home run and Kevin Fisher's two-run double.

UC added three more runs to its total in the fourth and fifth. Sportsworld scored a run in the fourth and sixth.

Jamie Brewington had two hits for Sportsworld. Powers and Fisher had two hits for Union Carbide.

Moose 7

True Value 6

Moose rallied from a six-run deficit to slip by True Value, 7-6, Thursday in a Tar Heel Little League baseball game.

True Value scored four runs in the second and added two more runs in the third to take a 6-0 lead. Moose, however, countered with six runs in the fourth and then took the lead with a run in the sixth.

L.L. Everett singled in the inning and came around to score on a series of wild pitches and passed balls.

No one for either team had more than one hit.

Babe Ruth

Bethel 4

Winterville 1

BETHEL — Daniel Keel hit a three-run home run to spark Bethel to a 4-1 win over Winterville Thursday in a Babe Ruth baseball game.

Keel was three for three for Bethel and was the only player on either team with more than one hit.

Chris Ayers was the winning pitcher.

Correction

In Thursday's Daily Reflector, a story had Billy Godley having four strike outs in a Babe Ruth game. Godley actually had 14 strike outs.

Try A Different Perspective Watching TV

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — "The Dukes of Hazzard" and "Dallas" are in reruns tonight. If you watched these CBS hits the first time for fun and escapism, try watching them from a different perspective this time.

Think about what impact — consciously or subconsciously — they might have on your children.

CBS considers the "Dukes of Hazzard" light-hearted entertainment. It's made millions of dollars for both the network and merchandisers of "Duke" cars and dolls.

But is it possible that the "Dukes" might have some serious overtones for your child?

How healthy is it that the "Dukes of Hazzard" offers an unreal and dangerous conception of automobile travel? From the Duke Boys' speedster, the General Lee, might kids believe cars should be driven at one speed: screeching acceleration?

And if speed limits aren't enough for the popular show to trample, what about the notion that big hunks of machinery can collide with virtual impunity? Does a young child have the same healthy respect for cars after watching the General Lee glide through the air?

Nobody knows for sure, but it's something that every parent should think about.

The speed limit may be about the only law that isn't broken in "Dallas." Here, an underhanded, ruthless snake is glamorized, values of brotherly love and caring families are disregarded, and the State of Texas doesn't seem to have a single honest businessman.

Are children sophisticated enough to know that J.R. Ewing is somebody's idea of fun and not an appropriate role model?

Remember, in the Midwest "Dallas" is on at 8 p.m. Can children watch these programs and not take their messages with them? Can these characterizations and influences be harmful?

Last month, the National Institute of Mental Health published the results of its comprehensive study of television. One conclusion:

"The more time viewers spend watching television, the more they will conceive the world to be similar to television portrayals... People who view a great deal of television — and consequently see a great deal of violence — are more likely to view the world as a mean and scary place.

"These heavy viewers," the report added, "also exhibit more fear, mistrust, and apprehension than do light viewers."

Dr. Elissa Benedek, director of research and training for the Center of Forensic Psychiatry in Ann Arbor, Mich., says violence on TV is unreal violence.

"TV doesn't show the feelings behind violence," she says. "There's no sense for the victim or victimizer. It's all fantasy. Children have no sense of the horror in-olved."

Mrs. Benedek says violence on TV also can stimulate emulation. "It's difficult enough for normal children to integrate and distinguish what they see on TV. Think about how it might impact on people with underlying disturbances."

The networks' response to the Mental Health report was to deny any correlation between violent behavior and TV. NBC said the report had some inaccurate statements and "will be challenged by social scientists conducting independent review."

Granted the nature of this longstanding debate, shouldn't parents be more vigilant about what their children watch while awaiting definitive evidence?

Anybody who's seen children watching TV, then acting out games of "bang-bang, you're dead" knows that TV can be influential. If the networks don't think so, why are they paid millions of dollars by advertisers trying to mold minds?

Mayor Hardee Convention

Mayor Hardee, veteran of the Carolina National Guard, was honored by the Greenville television news station in a special presentation of the annual convention recently.

Hardee, president of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce, was cited for his leadership in the city's development. The presentation was made at the annual convention by association president, Mayor Hardee.

Hardee's Greenville Chamber of Commerce reporter and editor for the Daily Reflector in Greenville. He has been working for the newspaper since 1970 in Greenville, the Daily Reflector and Observer and has been a director and president for news for the newspaper in Washington.

Standards For Antennas

WASHINGTON (AP) — In an effort to get down on a high note, the Consumer Product Safety Commission has issued standards for television antennas hand made.

The standards approved by the commission requires the antennas to be shock-resistant. The commission said it estimated that 45 million are filled annually with the antennas touch while being in use.

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, JUNE 19, 1982

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A good day to get out from whatever conditions are present that need changes so you can continue in a more progressive manner. Study better ways to operate in the future.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Contact those friends who can help you the most in the days ahead. Look into new enterprises that can be profitable.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Talk to the most influential in your circle of friends and get good ideas for improving your status in life. Be logical.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Situations arise today that can help you advance more quickly in your career. Be alert to new opportunities.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Look into new ideas and see if they can be of benefit to you. Show more consideration for loved one.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Situations arise today that can prove profitable to you in the future. Be more precise in handling your personal affairs.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Make plans to use the newest appliances you can to make your work more efficient and less difficult.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Attend to home chores early in the day so you will have more time for social activities later. Be more progressive.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Anything you do at home today should be of a constructive nature so that you please others. Make this a worthwhile day.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Get out to places and be with persons who can help you gain more knowledge. Be more thoughtful of others.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Study new outlets and find a new way of adding to your income. Show more devotion to family members.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Become more interested in modern projects and products. Make new friends who think along modern lines.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) New aims you seek can be successful if you apply yourself seriously. Come to a fine agreement with closest tie.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those charming young people who can comprehend a task quickly and get ahead easily, so send to modern schools where the finest talents can be brought out to fullest advantage.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

There is a new book of bridge quizzes from the most prolific of our bridge authors, Fred Karpin ("The Play of the Cards: Self Quizzes at Bridge," paperback, 210 pp., $6.95; published by Max Hardy, 144 S. Yukon Ave., Hawthorne, Calif. 90250). We have seen the hands before, and there are a few too many squeezes for our liking. Still, this book should present the average player with a fair challenge. To give you an idea of the complexity of the hands, cover the East and West cards with your thumbs and decide how you would play this hand at six spades after the lead of the king of diamonds.

The auction shown is that in the book. Many of us would consider South's bid of five spades as a query about partner's diamond holding — with two potential losers, he would have to pass. A better bid would have been a cuebid of five diamonds.

Against six spades, West leads the king of diamonds. The ace of trumps must be lost, so the only problem is to avoid a club loser. You need not worry if the suit breaks 3-3, but that is against the odds. Far more likely is a 4-2 division.

At first glance, you might think that all you need do is win the ace of diamonds, cash the ace-king of clubs and then ruff a club in dummy. The clubs are now set up, but if you carelessly lead a trump, you will be defeated. West wins the ace and leads his last club, and East's ruff means down one.

The solution is simple, if you think of it. After ruffing the third club, return to your hand with a diamond ruff and then ruff another club with the queen of trumps. You get back to your hand with another ruff and lead the king of trumps. West wins, but he has no more clubs. You can ruff any return, draw the remaining trumps, and claim the rest of the tricks.

As the cards lie, declarer can also get home by leading a trump at trick two! West can't lead a second trump, and declarer has all the time in the world to ruff a club.

$1,000 Given ECU School Of Nursing

ECU News Bureau
 A $1,000 award has been presented the East Carolina University School of Nursing by Beverly Enterprises, a Pasadena, Calif., firm which owns Greenville Villa, a local nursing home facility. The funds are to be used to reward and recognize four students in the nursing school who have demonstrated excellence in their nursing studies. Presenting the funds to Dr. Therese Lawler, acting dean of the nursing school, was Carolyn Harrell, Greenville Villa administrator.

"With a renewed thrust to improve the quality of nursing care for our elderly population, the school of nursing will select recipients who have demonstrated special interest in geriatric nursing in addition to scholastic excellence," said Dr. Lawler.

This is the second year that Beverly Enterprises has funded awards for ECU nursing students. Notification of the award was sent to ECU by Robert Van Tuyle, chairman of the board of Beverly Enterprises.

Beverly Enterprises is proprietor of nursing homes throughout the United States, with a total of 45,000 beds. Its regional headquarters are in Virginia Beach, Va.

The four recipients of the Beverly Enterprises awards will be selected during the 1982-83 academic year.

Daddy... Mr. Everything!

He's the bread winner. He's a little girl's knight in shining armor. He's a boy's best friend. He's mom's sweet-heart. He's Mr. Fix-it, Mr. Businessman, and anything but Mr. Selfish. HE'S DAD, and on his day be sure you remember. Why not bring him to Western Sizzlin for a fine steak dinner? And this time, you pick up the tab.

Answer to yesterday's puzzle.

CRYPTOQUIP 6-18

NCJABM KHWWASFTH QASXCSNAJ
 ZAWW FT QSANFASA CX MZC TAZ
 K H W W A M B

Yesterday's Cryptokuip — AWED COMIC ARTIST FINDS HIS CHARACTERS DRAWN FROM REAL LIFE.
 Today's Cryptokuip clue: N equals M

The Cryptokuip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Family Collects 17 Degrees

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (AP) — In the past 20 years, the 10 children of Joseph and Mildred Dahmus of State College, Pa., have received a total of 17 degrees from the Pennsylvania State University.

The latest to get a degree was the youngest daughter, Elizabeth, who received a bachelor's degree in business administration this spring. An older sister, Margaret, had received an M.D. degree a week earlier from Penn State's College of Medicine at the Milton S. Hershey Medical Center.

 A number of the children hold master's degrees, as well as bachelor's degrees, from the school. Their father, Dr. Dahmus, was for 27 years a member of Penn State's faculty, helping to organize and directing the university's Medieval Studies Program. He retired in 1974 as professor emeritus of medieval history.

FOCUS

Life With Father

In general over the last decade, fathers have been spending more time with their kids than they used to, while mothers are spending less. But there's a long way to go before the gap is closed. Mothers still take care of the children about 80 percent of the time. On the average, working men spend less than three hours a day with their families and of that only one-half hour alone with their children. When fathers do help they're more likely to be found playing with their kids or helping them with homework than feeding, dressing or bathing them. Nevertheless, according to one survey, only 29 percent of mothers say they want more help from dad with the kids. Have a happy Father's Day this Sunday.

DO YOU KNOW — Who played the role of the father in the TV series of the 50's "Father Knows Best?"

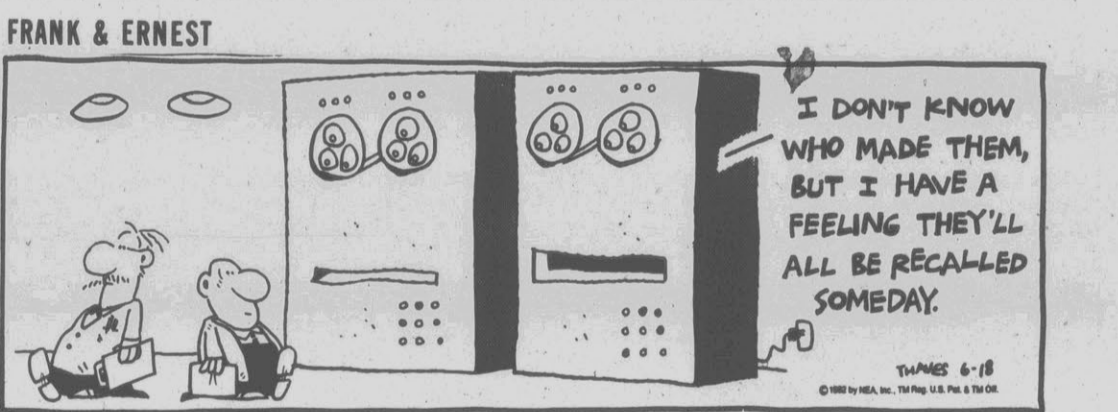

THURSDAY'S ANSWER — Attorney General John Mitchell was imprisoned as a result of Watergate.

SWP May Still Face Difficulty

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The Socialists Workers Party may meet the legal requirements to get on the upcoming primary ballot, but could still have problems doing so because of opposition from the state, say SWP organizers.
 The law now requires 5,000 signatures of a party seeking a spot on the ballot. Steve Craine, a SWP spokesman, said 13,000 signatures have been collected in more than 50 of North Carolina's 100 counties. But he says experience has taught him to be cautious about the chances for success.

Hunt Large Snapping Turtles For Pitt Gourmet Food Item

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer
Whenever they go fishing, Ronald Nicholson and his uncle, Joe Nicholson, stay on the lookout for a local Pitt County gourmet food item — large snapping turtles. "They're mighty good eating," Joe Nicholson commented. He used a turtle hook to lift a few of the turtles out of barrels and tubs to place them on the ground to be photographed. The turtles are kept in water until one is needed for a meal. "We've got about a dozen on hand now," Ronald Nicholson said. The smallest one weighs 5 pounds, with the largest weighing in at 20 pounds. Residents of the Cox's Mill community in southern Pitt County, the Nicholsons do most of their fishing in the local area. "Some of these we caught in the Tar River, and some of them we caught in the Black Jack area." A snapping turtle can inflict a vicious bite with its strong hooked beak. "You got to watch them, especially out of water," Joe Nicholson pointed out, "else they can lunge at you and snap when you're looking the other way." Ronald Nicholson, who works at Vermont American in Greenville, does the job of killing and cleaning the turtles. "It's easy enough to do once you know how," he commented. "The women do the cooking. They fix them in different ways. They make stews and pot pies. Sometimes they fry them." The Nicholsons agree that finding a good-sized turtle is not nearly so difficult as catching one, but to them it's worth the effort. For the Nicholson family, local snapping turtle is a gourmet food.

Annual Report

Greenville city schools will distribute their annual report as a supplement to the Sunday edition of "The Daily Reflector." According to school Superintendent Delma Blinson, the report is intended to provide a record of activities for the city school system during the 1981-82 school year.

Workshop In Writing Set

Greenville's Community Schools Program, as a part of its summer activities, will offer a creative writing workshop in June and July for students entering grades 3, 4 and 5 for the 1982-83 school year. Students enrolled in this workshop will make books (cloth bound, scroll and accordion) from stories they write. They will read folktales about gnomes, dwarves, elves, goblins and trolls and extend this literature with art work, games and dramatics.

The workshop will model new writing research done by Dr. Donald Graves of the University of New Hampshire, who emphasized that children need to be able to choose topics of interest each day so that they can think ahead on their chosen topic. They need to be able to discuss their individual experiences to aid in choosing topics and to share their ideas afterwards.

Dr. Nina Mikkelsen, educational consultant, will conduct the workshop. Two sessions of the workshop will be offered: June 21-July 2 and July 12-23. Classes will meet Monday through Friday from 9:30-11:30 a.m. in the auditorium of the Wahl-Coates Elementary School. Parents having questions concerning the workshop may call the community schools office at 752-4192.

Two Collisions Here Thursday

An estimated $4,550 property damage resulted from two traffic collisions investigated by Greenville police Thursday. Heaviest damage, according to officers, resulted from an 8:45 p.m. collision at the intersection of 10th Street and College Hill Drive involving cars driven by Charles Reid Weatherington of 118 Riverbluff Road and Dianne Brown Daniels of Riverview Trailer Park. Damage from the mishap was set at $900 to the Weatherington car and $1,300 to the Daniels auto. Vehicles driven by Jeffrey Steven Jernigan of 110 Bunch Lane and Linda Walters Howard of 2804 Evans St. collided about 8:50 a.m. on 10th Street, 100 feet west of the Rocksprings Road intersection, causing an estimated $500 damage to the Jernigan truck and $1,000 damage to the Howard auto. A 1:35 p.m. collision on Charles Street, 60 feet south of the 14th Street intersection, involved cars driven by Evelyn Tyson Wade of Grifton and Amy Monon James of 310 Stanwood Drive, investigators reported. Damage from the collision was set at $50 to the Wade car and $800 to the James vehicle.
