School Merger — In Pitt, Candidates And Public Alike Keep Consolidation At Arm's Length

By MELVIN LANG
Reflector Staff Writer

Proposals for merger of the Pitt County and Greenville public school systems — an on-again, off-again topic for the last two decades — are being held at arm's length by candidates for city and county supervisory boards as well as by carryover members of those boards.

Candidates for the Pitt Board of Education have made it clear in recent weeks that merger is not a favorite topic. Aspirants for the Greenville Board of Education appear to be less hesitant to consider merger, but have not been overly vocal in their support.

"There's no way I feel I could be elected if I said I favored the merger," county school board candidate Ivan Hill of Ayden said at a recent candidates' forum. "In traveling around the county during my campaign, I have found no interest in consolidation (of the school systems)."

Hill, however, did leave the door open to consideration at least of proposals for partial merging of services in specified areas. Other candidates in the June 29 primary generally have expressed interest also in studying plans for combined services, but none has called publicly for action.

Most of the recent attention given to merger has come from the Greenville Board of Education, with Dr. Jon Tinglestad, the board chairman, serving as an outspoken advocate of full merger, partial merger or combining of services.

The Pitt County Board of Commissioners, which provides local financing for both systems, has been on record since 1977 — when it requested a merger study by the two school boards — as supporting the concept of merger subject to a definitive plan agreed to by both systems and the county board. The commissioners issued a directive in January 1979 to both school boards to pursue the idea of merging and to develop such a plan by October 1979. The deadline passed without a merger or without a plan for merger from the two school boards.

County school officials, who previously had supported the concept, increasingly became hostile to merger and in November 1980 the county school board rejected the merger proposal outright.

County Manager Reginald Gray said last week the commissioners' 1979 merger mandate remains in effect, but there has been no move by the board since that period to enforce the directive.

Nor is there any reason to believe that the June 29 primary will affect the county commission's role in merger talks. The only seat to be filled this year is the one reserved for Ayden, Swift Creek and Grifton townships and candidates in that race have not indicated either would push actively for merger.

An opinion sampling conducted by The Daily Reflector during the last two weeks also indicated sharp disagreement on the merger issue. The opinion sampling, reported in detail in an accompanying article, reflected distrust, jealousy and — to a degree — misinformation.

The county school board, in its 1980 vote rejecting merger, cited such factors as "loss of local autonomy ... possibility of busing children from their community to another ... philosophical differences .... turning away from an emerging school system identify with quality and excellence as keystones."

Tinglestad, in a recent interview, said his call

A random sampling of public opinion by The Daily Reflector indicates residents of Greenville and Pitt County are divided in their feelings toward merger of the city and county public school systems.

In general terms, the survey conducted over the last two weeks showed moderate support for merger among city residents polled while county residents — at times more vocal in their beliefs — opposed merger by a 2-to-1 margin.

Participants in the survey were asked: "Do you want the Greenville City School system and the Pitt County School system to merge?" More than 100 people responded.

Their answers ranged from "I don't really care because I send my kids to private school" to "the education of the entire county can be administered by one group with one budget so why have two separate systems?"

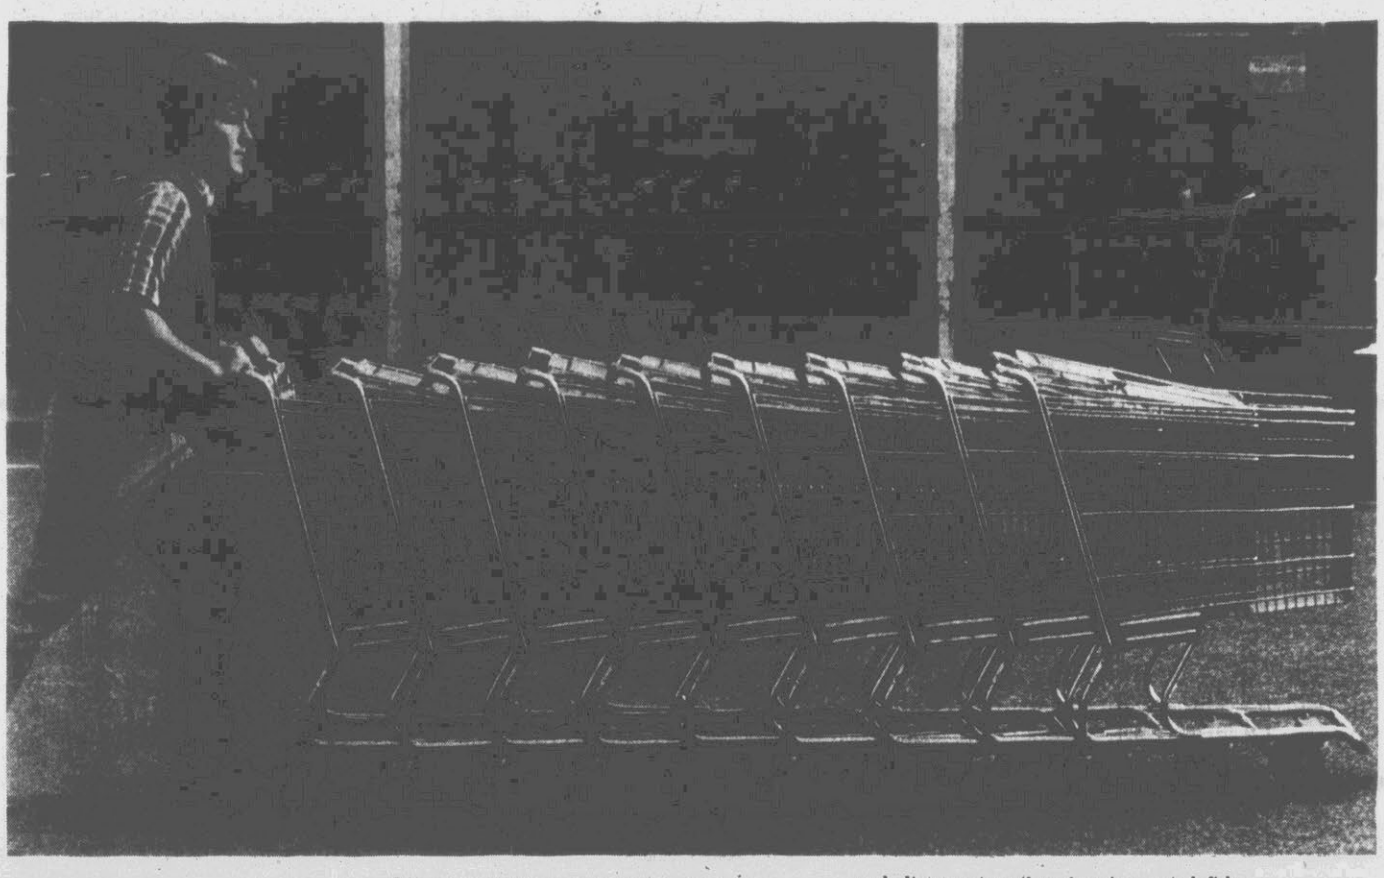

Whether the people questioned had children in one of the school systems or whether they lived in the city or the county was not indicative of the answer they gave.

Thirty-seven people who lived in the Greenville school district said they wanted the school systems to merge, while 22 city dwellers did not want the merger. Among county residents, 17 aggreed with the merger and 34 were opposed.

Of the Greenville citizens with children in the city schools, 17 wanted the schools to merge and 11 did not. Parents with children in the county schools were opposed to the merger 20-8.

Points for merger included such factors as consolidation of administration and the joint use of facilities, the same school-year calendar for all students, easier control over student distribution to ease overcrowding and the consolidation of bus routes. Also mentioned as a reason for merger was one large budget which would allow more available funds for special programs and additional buildings such as a new Ayden Middle School and an auditorium for J.H. Rose High School.

El Salvador Is Rocked By Quake That Leaves 12 Dead And 200 Hurt

By SAM DILLON
Associated Press Writer

ATEOS, El Salvador (AP) — An earthquake rocked El Salvador early Saturday, hurling huge boulders onto highways, causing landslides and toppling rural houses. Officials said at least 12 people were killed and more than 220 were injured.

The quake, centered in the Pacific Ocean about 60 miles south of San Salvador, the capital, also was felt strongly in Guatemala, Nicaragua and Honduras. Light tremors were reported in Costa Rica.

There were few reports of serious damage in San Salvador but the fortress-like U.S. Embassy in San Salvador was hit hard, officials said.

Walls cracked, water pipes burst, elevators jammed and the ceiling of Ambassador Deane Hinton's office caved in.

"The commissary looks like it had been hit by three hours of vandalism by reckless teenagers," said Don Hamilton, an embassy spokesman. "But we had a very serious earthquake and at least the building didn't fall down."

The embassy was built in 1965 and designed to be earthquake-proof.

The U.S. Geological Survey in Washington said the quake, which struck at 2:22 a.m. EDT, registered 7 on the Richter scale, meaning it was capable of causing major damage. The Richter scale gauges the energy released by an earthquake, as measured by the ground motion recorded on a seismograph. Every increase of one number in the Richter reading means roughly that the ground motion is 10 times greater.

The four deaths occurred in San Salvador and in San Miguel Tepezontes, 31 miles to the southeast, when sleeping people were crushed by falling roofs, said officials at the Red Cross and at a city morgue.

Red Cross officials noted that five people were killed overnight in shooting incidents in San Salvador. Political violence has taken an estimated 34,000 lives since October 1979, when centrist military officers ousted the conservative regime of President Carlos Humberto

Gunman Takes Over Monument

WASHINGTON (AP) — An armed Vietnam veteran who said the Washington Monument was "a good place to die" held police at bay inside the obelisk Saturday before surrendering 2½ hours later.

About 90 tourists enjoying the hazy view from an observation deck near the top of the 555-foot structure were evacuated during the standoff. No one was injured and no shots were fired, police said.

U.S. Park Police said Paul M. Gundlach, a 34-year-old laid-off auto worker from Flint, Mich., waved an antique flintlock pistol about and pointed it to his head until a police negotiator convinced him to drop the weapon.

Lt. Kenneth Green, the police negotiator, said Gundlach appeared to be suffering "delayed stress symptoms" connected with his Vietnam service.

Green said Gundlach had participated in a recent Vietnam veterans rally in Washington and had sought help at the Veterans Administration office here, but was told the paperwork would take five months.

Gundlach also claimed the Internal Revenue Service owed him about $400, the negotiator said.

A Park Police spokesman, Sgt. Richard Dendy, said the bearded Gundlach walked up to the monument entrance about an hour after the landmark opened at 8 a.m. He was asked to cooperate with a security regulation and leave his backpack outside. Gundlach followed the instruction, but returned carrying the small pistol, Dendy said.

British Troops Land On Sandwich Islands

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Helicopter-borne British troops surrounded an Argentine weather station in the South Sandwich Islands Saturday, the Foreign Ministry announced.

It did not say if there was any fighting or casualties in the latest action in the undeclared war with Britain over the Falkland Islands.

In London, a British Defense Ministry spokesman said, "We've got no knowledge of this," when asked about the report.

The Argentine announcement said British helicopters made two passes over the station with guns firing and then the troops landed.

The weather station is known as Corbeta Uruguay. It was established by Argentina more than five years ago, and about 20 scientists work there.

According to Argentina, Britain agreed in 1977 to let the weather station operate on the barren islands claimed by both countries. But a spokesman for the British Falkland Islands Co. said recently the Argentines were there illegally and Britain had never bothered to do anything about them.

The South Sandwich Islands are about 1,140 miles southeast of the Falklands and not far from Antarctica. Pack ice surrounds them in winter.

Argentina seized the South Sandwich group, along with the South Georgia archipelago, from Britain on April 3, the day after its troops invaded the Falkland Islands.

The British recaptured South Georgia on April 25, prior to regaining the Falklands. But they did not send forces to the South Sandwich chain at that time.

Argentina denounced Saturday's battle as "an open and flagrant violation of United Nations Security Council Resolution 502 as well as the principles established in the charter of that world organization."

Britain held the South Sandwich and South Georgia islands as dependencies of the Falkland Islands and under the jurisdiction of the British colonial governor at Statnley, the Falklands capital.

Humanitarian Aid

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The Security Council issued a unanimous call Saturday night for humanitarian aid to war-ravaged Lebanon and urged all parties "not to hamper the exercise" of U.N. relief agencies in the Israeli-occupied area.

Despite Israeli criticism, the United States joined the other 14 council members in supporting the resolution that was sponsored by France.

Israeli Ambassador Yehuda Blum complained about the "ugly innuendos" in the resolution, which followed complaints by U.N. relief administrators that Israeli troops were not permitting them to help the civilian victims of the invasion.

No Problem In Finding Family Physician

The Doctor Is In For Pitt Families

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

If you are a newcomer to Pitt County and don't have a family doctor, or if you're an established resident who hasn't had the need for medical treatment until now, you should have no trouble in finding a physician, according to a survey of family practitioners conducted last week.

The question of the availability of family practitioners in Greenville and Pitt County was posed to five physicians, either practicing alone or in groups, and all said a prospective patient should have no problem in finding medical care. They all said they were accepting new patients.

"Yes. We're taking new patients," Dr. Quentin Mewborn, who is associated with other physicians in Greenville Family Doctors, said.

"We couldn't about six years ago ... for about six months," until another doctor joined the group, but the group is seeing new patients now, Mewborn said. "We get about four to six requests from new patients daily, and we see most of those requests."

Each of the physicians at Greenville Family Doctors sees "about 25 patients a day."

"I've always stressed the point to try to serve whoever needs service, even though it took long hours to do it," Dr. Andrew Best, who practices alone, said. But the situation has improved. Best, who sees "anywhere from 60 to 70 people a day," noted that "in some specialties" the area may be "at the saturation point, but not in my judgment overpopulated."

"If anything," Best noted, "we're probably underpopulated in family medicine in the outlying areas."

"I'm one of the 'old school' ... I have to take new patients," Dr. Herbert Hadley, who also practices alone, said.

Dr. C. G. Garrenton, who has been practicing medicine in Bethel since 1936, reported he is "taking new patients ... every day," and said "there's never been a time I couldn't take new patients. I see 30 to 50 patients a day, five days a week ... and practice medicine in my kitchen at home on Saturday and Sunday. And I'm the only doctor that I know of that still makes house calls ... not as many as we used to, but there's no point in letting them (patients who can't get out) suffer."

Dr. Elliott Dixon, one of the physicians associated with the Dixon Medical Center in Ayden, said, "We're still taking new patients ... seeing new patients. There's a continuing process of having people call us. It's been such that we feel we can take in a third physician," who will join the clinic staff July 1.

"We're still getting calls for people as new patients who want to be seen ... three or four calls a day ... and we see them. We have never had a time we could not take new patients."

According to Dixon, there are more physicians in Pitt County now than ever before, "but not more primary care physicians ... not in private practice as opposed to university practice (those doctors associated with the East Carolina University School of Medicine).

"There's not been in the past few years the influx of a large number in private practice," Dixon said. Bue he emphasized, "the Family Practice Center (associated with the medical school) has helped to reduce the physician shortage ... and provide service for a large segment" of the population, not only of Pitt County but in the surrounding area of eastern North Carolina as well.

Even though the university's Eastern Carolina Family Practice Center (with facilities in Greenville and Bethel) provides service to a large number of people, the doctors questioned said their practice has not suffered because of it.

In all, there are 14 family practitioners in Quake...

Romero. A Constituent Assembly elected in March is now planning steps for national elections.

The quake caused severe damage in Comasagua, a mountain town with a population of about 12,500 six miles south of this Pan American Highway crossroads. An estimated 150 injured people had to await treatment for several hours because roads were blocked by landslides and aid vehicles could not get through.

"By the grace of God, there's nobody dead there, but it's a mess," said Manuel Flores, a 22-year-old Comasagua resident who talked to a reporter after walking from the town.

On the 12-mile stretch of highway between Ateos — 10 miles south of San Salvador — and Santa Tecla to the east, bulldozers and hundreds of peasants were clearing more than a dozen landslides that partially blocked the way.

Dozens of landslides blocked roads in surrounding La Libertad province, and in San Salvador and La Paz provinces. Electricty was cut until well after daybreak in many towns.

Residents in El Salvador said the quake sounded like a passing freight train and lasted about half a minute. It was reportedly the strongest quake to hit El Salvador since a May 3, 1965, earthquake that killed an estimated 160 people.

Guatemala's seismic observatory said the quake registered 6.0 on the Richter scale and described it as the strongest to hit the nation since a damaging 1976 quake. Frightened residents in many town ran from their homes and slept outside for fear of further tremors. Guatemalan officials reported five injuries and said several dozen houses collapsed and highways were damaged on the Guatemalan border with El Salvador, officials in Guatemala City said.

Reports from Nicaragua and Honduras said many people were startled awake by the quake, but there were no reports of damage or injuries.

Prosecutor Asks Jury To Explain

CLAYTON, Mo. (AP) — A St. Louis County prosecutor has sent letters to jurors who recently acquitted a teenager accused of rape, asking them to explain the verdict to the youth's 17-year-old accuser.

Gordon L. Ankney, who has a reputation for coolness in the courtroom, sent the letters to seven men and five women who heard the trial of Kenneth E. Tate, once convicted of murdering a rape victim.

Some of the jurors said they were upset by the letter, and two lawyers have complained to the St. Louis County Circuit Court that the letter violated the ethical code of the Missouri Supreme Court.

Chief Prosecutor George Westfall denied that charge and supported Ankney's action, saying it was "an emotional response to an outrageous verdict."

"While the girl's story was totally uncontradicted, the jury let a convicted murderer go with less than two hours' deliberations," Westfall said. "My feeling is that if any jurors reacted violently, it was out of guilt."

Westfall said he and Ankney had discussed the matter and agreed that Ankney should send a second letter explaining to jurors that he did not mean to offend them.

In his letter to the jurors, Ankney said he felt they should share the task of explaining the verdict to the teen-ager, who, the prosecutor said, still could not discuss her rape last September without bursting into tears.

"The best I could explain is that there are still those in our society who require a girl to have a witness and a broken jaw before they will accept that she was raped," the letter said. "I could not even tell her that you chose to believe Tate over her because he did not even take the stand to deny the crime.

"I hope that she can take some comfort in the fact that by handling the situation intelligently, she was not injured (physically) or killed. She is obviously more fortunate than the 13-year-old girl who did resist Tate and was beaten to death with a tree limb."

Tate, 17, is serving a 25-year prison sentence for the murder of Lisa Ann Harris of Cedar Hill in May 1980. He had been free on bond last September.

Michael Young, Tate's attorney in the latest case, said he thought the verdict was proper under the evidence presented. He had argued that the victim had consented to sexual relations.

"Her story was grossly inconsistent with rape," Young said. "It wasn't reasonable to believe it happened the way she said it did, and 12 jurors agreed."

The victim testified she was waiting for her boyfriend in a park when she was accosted at knifepoint by Tate and raped in a secluded area.

Playwright Barnes Dies At Age 90

NEW YORK (AP) — American poet, playwright and author Djuna Barnes, whose novel "Nightwood" was hailed by Dylan Thomas as "one of the three great books written by a woman," died Saturday of natural causes at her Greenwich Village home. She was 90.

In the 1920s and 1930s Miss Barnes lived in Paris, where she befriended a circle of writers that included Gertrude Stein, James Joyce, Ezra Pound, and T.S. Eliot.

Eliot, who wrote the introduction to "Nightwood," published in 1936, called it "so good a novel that only sensibilities trained in poetry can wholly appreciate it."

Born in Cornwall-on-Hudson, N.Y., in 1892, Miss Barnes was raised in an eccentric family and was educated at home, according to her editor at The Dial Press, Frances McMillan.

Her father gave her the unusual name Djuna because, Miss McMillan said, "I think he liked the sound of it."

She started her career as a journalist and began writing plays for Eugene O'Neill's Provincetown Players in the 1920s. She also was an artist and illustrator.

Among her works was the novel, "Ryder," published in 1928, and "The Antiphon," a play in verse published in 1958 and translated into Swedish by Daj Hammerskjold in 1961.

School Merger ...

for resumption of merger talks has "not been responded to in any perceptible fashion. I frankly think it would not become viable or visible until the Board of Commissioners exerts some of its strength."

Tinglestad noted that he has "made public statements in which I advocated a merging of services, in such areas as transporation, food service, maintenace and so forth. I believe this is the direction in which we should proceed."

Mark W. Owens Jr. of Fountain, chairman of the county school board, said he sees "nothing wrong with any joint venture in any facet of county government that would save money and have the good services follow with it." He declined, however, to say whether he would support merger of the school systems.

"I don't know that I have ever given a personal opinion because if it came to a tie vote, I would have to break it," Owens said. "I will say that I think both units have studied the situation extensively over a period of 10 years to my own knowlege and that, from the studies that have been revealed, it has not been proven it would be beneficial to either unit. That does not mean it would not be in the future."

One factor cited repeatedly by advocates of merger is the preposition that monies now available to the two systems could be used more effectively by a merged system.

Dr. W.O. Fields, superintendent of the Wilson school system, agrees with that philosophy although he carefully points out that merger does not necessarily mean that services will cost less.

Three public school systems in Wilson County — the county, the city of Wilson and Elm City — were consolidated six years ago and Fields was brought in as superintendent of the merged system.

He said there has been little change in the number of employees because "most ... are directly related to the number of pupils. There has been no appreciable change there."

Nine existing high schools were consolidated into three, Fields said, and the resulting new school boundaries have provided a relatively constant enrollment for the 13,000-pupil system. The system has spent more than $15 million for capital construction — including two new high schools and three new elementary schools plus major repairs to existing facilities — since the merger.

Central office personnel have been reduced, Fields said. "Where each system had some central office staff with expertise in certain areas, we have been able to expand the level of services and to carry out our work with fewer people," he explained.

"I think it is a mistake to say merger is going to reduce costs," Fields said, "but if each of the separate school systems tried to offer the breath and depth of our programs, it would cost more. From our perspective, we feel the merger has been very successful."

Pitt County's existing system has just over 11,000 pupils while Greenville finished the 1981-82 school year with just under 5,000.

Some respondents said they felt the students in the local schools would receive a better education if the systems were to merge. Those schools that need new equipment would receive it and all schools would be run with the same rules and grade leveling, the survey participants said.

Other people felt that merger would be the most feasible solution to the money pinch in education. "Merger would be the most economical thing for the schools," one respondent said, "because the city is in financial trouble and needs more funds." The answer referred to a loss of state funding because of the city's declining school population.

Fewer people in high-level administrative positions was also seen as a plus for merger. Many people believe that one school board to administer to the entire county is all that is needed. "Ten years ago there were two or three people at the top and now they have 30 people carrying briefcases who don't know what they're doing," one person said. "I think the system would be more efficient with fewer administrative personnel," said another person.

Those people surveyed who were against the merging of the systems cited such reasons as more red tape and the fear that a larger system would be less personal. Some people said that one system encompassing all schools in Pitt County would be too big to handle. "I don't think Pitt County will benefit because it will be penalized by the per student ratio," one person said.

Some teachers expressed fear they would have to commute greater distances to another school or that they would be transferred if the systems merged.

One person questioned said, "I can't see any advantages. Each system is operating above average now, so why complicate things and put them together?"

Redistricting was a fear of some of the people surveyed. "I don't want my children to be bused any further," said one "They already have to travel far enough."

People in the county mentioned that they were scared their community would lose its identity if the school systems were to merge.

Some people felt that the city would try to control the new system. "Greenville will try to take over the whole thing," one respondent said. "The city should take care of theirs and the county should take care of theirs, and that's all there is to it."

Another person said, "Merger would not be fair to the county residents. The city would take all the money and spend it on the city schools."

Other people had hard feelings because they remembered earlier discussions on merger. "Greenville schools didn't want to share when Pitt County needed financial help," one person from the county responded. "Why should the county be expected to help Greenville now?"

During the course of the poll, those people questioned expressed concern about what they thought might happen if the schools were to be combined. Questions raised included: will children have to change schools or be bused farther if the schools merge? Would there be any redistricting as a result of the merger and would more taxes be levied to support the larger school system.

private practice in the county — three in Ayden (soon to be four), one each in Bethel and Grifton, two in Farmville and seven in Greenville. The Family Practice Center has another 12 full-time staff members (one in Bethel) and 34 residents who are specializing in family practice.

But most of the physicians talked to suggested there is room for more family practitioners to enter private practice in the county. And according to figures quoted by Tom Syer, administrator of the medical school's department of family practice, there seems to be plenty of patients.

Syer said physicians at the Family Practice Center in Greenville see, on the average, 110 patients a day, while another 20 patients are seen at the Bethel center. The Greenville center also sees an average of 235 new patients a month, while about 35 new patients are seen at the Bethel center each month.

"There's no problem for a new patient to be seen," according to Syer. "We take care of all emergencies ... they're seen." If it's not an emergency situation, patients are seen "within 48 hours ... most of them within 24 hours."

Syer, pointing to the fact that the Family Practice Center in Greenville is the largest such facility in the United States as far as space is concerned, explained that the center's objectives are service and education — education of residents specializing in family medicine, and service to the people of the region.

In addition to its staff of doctors and residents, who "diagnose and treat illness," the center's support staff of nurses, pharmacologists, nutritionists, psychologists and medical social workers provides patient education and counseling services ... and in doing so, train residents in these services.

The center "works with the family in its entirety" in performing its primary goals of "education of residents," and providing for the health care needs of the community, according to Syer.

Syer stressed the importance of the specialist in family practice by describing the "family doctor" as "the portal of entry for the health care profession." The family doctor, Syer said, can handle 90 percent of the medical needs of an individual.

While the availability of family physicians in Pitt County seems to be no problem, and while the operation of the Family Practice Center seems to have had little effect on the number of patients seeking doctors in private practice, the presence of a medical school in the community has had a decided effect on the quality of medical care available to the residents of the county.

"The practice of medicine is more sophisticated now ... more complex," Hadley said. "I refer more people than I used to" because of the availability of specialists. "I used to do it all."

"It's a very exciting time to be practicing medicine in Pitt County," said Dixon, who has 20 years experience in the community, because of "the advent of the medical school. The medical school has brought people, facilities, instrumentation we would not have otherwise. The level of care has increased."

Garrenton agreed. The medical school has "improved medical attention ... (with) wonderful referral opportunities. It's caused family practitioners to improve their service ... or made it possible."

But the Bethel doctor said, "I'm disappointed how few (of the 1982 graduates from the ECU program) went into family practice. What we need is family practitioners."

According to Best, "Definitely, the presence of the medical school" has improved the level of patient care, the "quality of service ... and in my judgment, many lives have been saved."

And Mewborn suggested that the presence of the medical school "helps individual doctors stay on their toes," because of the availability of continuing education programs.

But even with the availability of physicians and the higher level of service, most of the private family physicians feel people are more reluctant to seek medical attention now.

"The thing that disturbs me is the rising costs. It's got to stop somewhere," Hadley emphasized.

"It's amazing how hard people think it is to see a doctor," when all they have to do is "just pick up a phone," Mewborn said. However, he suggested that the state of the economy has had some effect.

"People wait longer to come in," so they have more serious problems ... they are sicker when they come. There's been a definite change in the last two or three years."

However, Mewborn noted, by putting off seeking medical service, "in the long run it's not economical. It takes longer to get well, takes more medication ... sometimes hospitalization. But I don't know what to do about it."

Dixon has the same opinion. "People are visiting doctors less frequently. There's been a decrease in the amount of patient contact. The patients we are seeing now have been sick for five, seven, 10 days as opposed to three or four days."

Garrenton, too, suggested that by "visiting (a doctor) less frequently ... putting it off as long as they can, it probably costs them more in the long run. But that can't be helped sometime."

Anti-Khomeini Forces March

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Iranians opposed to Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's Islamic regime marched to the Iranian Embassy Saturday, carrying portraits of alleged victims of Khomeini's "reign of terror."

Irish Priest Is Indicated

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — The Rev. Patrick Moloney, a Roman Catholic priest from New York, his brother, and a third man were indicted late Saturday on three counts of possessing firearms.

They appeared at a special hearing of Ireland's anti-terrorist, no-jury criminal court.

Charged along with Moloney 43, was his brother, John Moloney of Limerick, and Patrick McVeigh of Belfast, who also was charged with being a member of the IRA.

Father Moloney told the court he was vacationing in Ireland and knew nothing about weapons seized at the time of the arrests.

The weapons, found Friday in the southwestern city of Limerick, included a U.S.-made automatic rifle, ammunition and other arms.

Informed sources here said U.S. Customs officials had tipped Ireland's anti-terrorist police branch that the outlawed Provisional Irish Republican Army was shipping weapons from New York to Dublin in a consignment of bedding.

Police said agents trailed a truck from the Dublin docks to Limerick, 120 miles east and moved in to seize its contents when it stopped.

The three defendants were brought to Dublin where they were charged with having the weapons with intent to endanger life. They were ordered held in custody until Monday, when bail applications are to be heard.

Forum Was Held For Democrats

AYDEN — A spokesman for the Ayden Council of the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce said Saturday that only Democratic candidates for the Pitt County Board of Commissioners were invited to a candidates' forum held Thursday night.

Mitchell Oakley, vice chairman of the council's public and governmental affairs committee, said he planned to invite Walter Bruce Jones of Ayden, a Republican candidate for the county board, to participate in a forum with the winner of the June 29 Democratic primary.

Jones had been reported as not being present at the forum Thursday.

Edwin West Jr. A Good Choice For Pitt Schools

The Pitt County Board of Education has ended its search for a new superintendent with the approval of Edwin West Jr. of High Point for the position.

West is currently serving as superintendent of the High Point school system and he is highly regarded as a school adiministrator.

He was termed by state Superintendent of Public Instruction Craig Phillips as "one of the top educators in the state.

"Pitt County could not have chosen wiser," Phillips said.

West saw the move to Pitt County as providing him with the opportunity "for greater service to and contributions to public education."

He said a superintendent must "provide leadership which fosters both an individual's commitment and contribution to the goal of excellence."

West appears well qualified. He has a doctorate from UNC-Chapel Hill. He is chairman of several educational groups and active in other organizations involved in education.

The Pitt County school system has made great progress in recent years. Building an outstanding educational system is a continuing thing. There is a great deal to be done to get the best out of our students, faculty and staff and certainly the leadership provided by the superintendent of any school system will determine how well the system will function.

West seems to have the leadership ability, administrative experience and educational qualification to lead the Pitt County school system to new heights.

WASHINTON (UPI) — The pressure is on the superpowers to make more concessions toward nuclear disarmament. And clearly both President Reagan and Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev are feeling the hot breath of the disarmers on their necks.

While he was in Bonn, Germany, some 300,000 persons staged anti-nuclear demonstrations, knowing they may be the first in the crossfire should World War III break out.

White House officials were aware of the massive protests but Secretary of State Alexander Haig dismissed them as "funded" by the communist East.

Last weekend, a half million more demonstrators marched in New York to express the same horror of a nuclear war.

The anti-nuclear movement is spreading and both superpower leaders are pressed to stay ahead of the crowd on the dynamic issue.

Reagan has come a long way from his campaign rhetoric that hinted at the possibility of superiority of nuclear arms. His views expressed in an interview early in his presidency that a limited nuclear conflict in Europe is not beyond the pale ignited massive anti-American demonstrations last year.

Since then, Reagan has taken the initiative to seek a mutual one-third reduction in nuclear warheads in talks agreed to by the Soviets that will begin June 29 in Geneva.

Reagan also is prepared to offer the Kremlin new ways to supplement the "hot line" teletype between Washington and Moscow to modernize communications betwen the two capitals and to lessen the chance of an accident or miscalculation.

Telephonic communications and pre-notification of testing within home borders are among the ideas he is prepared to unveil. During a major global nuclear exercise involving the Strategic Air Command next month, the United States was expected to demonstrate its good faith by alerting the Soviets to the simulated maneuvers.

The goal of the United States is to persuade the Soviets to remove their 300 SS-20 missiles aimed at European capitals. In exchange, Reagan has promised not to deploy Pershing II modernized intermediate range missiles in Europe. But barring any agreement the scheduled deployment is on track to offset the Russian missiles.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko gained some momentum with his dramatic statement before the special disarmament session of the United Nations Tuesday that the Soviet Union would not be the first nation to use nuclear weapons.

Gromyko read a statement from Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev promising to lift the threat of nuclear devastation from the people of the world.

"The Union of Soviet Socialist Republics assumes an obligation not to be the first to use nuclear weapons," Brezhnev's message said.

So far, Reagan has not been willing to renounce first use since it would leave Europe vulnerable to the more massive conventional Russian armies.

Clearly, both Reagan and Brezhnev are being pushed along by the force of events and the force of world opinion, not to mention the reality that both leaders are privy to in terms of their nuclear capabilities and capacity for world devastation.

In the Pentagon, where planners must project the future and prepare for all contingencies, little public notice has been given to a study that is being conducted on the chance of a prolonged nuclear war.

Reagan has had an eye opener since becoming president. He has become less glib about what can be expected from a military conflict. He also observed first hand a nuclear drill and his own role in the scheme of things if it should come to that.

Alvin Taylor — Sunday Morning Notes

Malcolm Green, assistant director of Greenville Utilities, brought some caps by to a collector of them.

The collector was pleased with the variety of the caps which ranged from a Greenville Utilities one to various distributors of supplies.

Green said he had no need for them.

"I'm the one in my family who still has hair," Green quipped, running his fingers through his hair. "As long as I do, I won't be wearing a hat!"

Council member Janice Buck recently celebrated the 30th anniversary of her business, Buck Plumbing Supply Co., by inviting guests to a pig pickin'.

She said that putting on such an affair is easy if you're good at getting other people to do things.

She explained she told one person to do this and another to do that. As the event progressed, she said, she didn't have anything to do other than greet guests.

Your columnist can testify that whoever she pointed to to arrange the barbecued pig certainly did a great job.

Justice or not.

A preschool child grabbed a popsicle from a freezer in a store and ran out the door. Two clerks pursued and caught the child just as he unwrapped the loot.

One clerk felt that even though the popsicle couldn't be sold, it still should be taken away from the child as punishment for taking something that didn't belong to him.

The second clerk argued that the kid didn't understand that he was stealing, the popsicle was a loss anyway, so why not let him have it?

How would you vote? We might add that the law and order clerk won.

And the last of the graduations is over. ECU finished in early May, then Pitt Community College.

Rose High had its graduation followed by the county high schools. By now all the graduates have come down off the clouds, completed the parties and begun to wonder what life holds.

One high school grad told us a few days after the ceremonies, "I really don't feel any different."

Well, that one day's ceremony which separates graduates from those who are still in school doesn't change us so much in itself.

Crime Rate Is Up; Better Reporting Of Crimes Needed

The crime rate in Greenville is reported to be up by 15 percent for the months of January-March of 1982.

That is a major increase and it is made all the more a matter of concern because it was the largest gain for any of 15 cities in North Carolina which are surveyed by the N.C. Justice Department's Police Information Network.

The largest increase was in property crimes with the number standing at 757 compared with 680 for the same period last year. Violent crimes also showed a major increase locally.

Statewide there was a decrease in property crimes of 2 percent.

It is not clear why crime has taken an upsurge during the first three months of this year.

Nevertheless it should cause all of us concern. Neighborhood watch groups and individual citizens should do all possible to observe potential law violations and promptly report them. Police should redouble their efforts to solve crimes and apprehend criminals.

Paul T. O'Connor — Legislative Halls Aren't Fashion Shows

RALEIGH — Every day, hundreds of school children are escorted through the Legislative Building to learn the basics of North Carolina state government. We can only hope that independent of teacher's instructions, their active little minds aren't coming to any conclusions about fashion.

Legislators are often community leaders. What is hard to understand is how anyone could get very far in his community dressing the way legislators do. Ties clash with jackets. Slacks flay against shirts. Sometimes socks don't match. Many a plaid jacket has been worn with striped trousers.

Greensboro's Rep. Howard Coble came to the redistricting session this winter wearing a blue and green plaid jacket with a green tie that did not match the green in the plaid — and gray pants. After Rep. Maggie Keesee and others pointed out that the pants stood out, he bought a green pair. It isn't hard to find Coble when he's wearing this outfit.

Charlotte's Rep. Roy Spoon wore a lovely pink jacket with maroon pants and tie to a session last week. Concord's Sen. Cecil Jenkins was a bit brighter with a pair of preppy green trousers, a different shade green tie and a yellow sports coat. He sits near Sen. Dal Alford of Rocky Mount who, on the same day, wore a yellow jacket with a green tie and a pale green shirt and checkered yellow and green slacks.

When Rep. Charles Beall of Haywood County was sworn in last January, he dressed up in a red-plaid suit. The whole suit. Sen. George Marion of Dobson has long been recognized as the Beau Brummel of the upper chamber. He was seen recently in white shoes, white socks, white three-piece suit with a solid red shirt and solid green tie.

Many of the legislators are lawyers and they dress with all the reserve of their profession — gray or dark blue pin-striped suits. Occasionally a lawyer like Durham's Rep. Paul Pulley will get daring with a subdued beige plaid suit — and a lemon yellow tie.

Some legislators — especially those from Raleigh — set aside the same jacket to wear everyday. Rep. Al Adams wears the same striped sports coat almost every day. Rep. Aaron Fussell wore his green plaid jacket to the Legislature so many times in 1981 that reporters drafted a phony appropriations bill asking the state to buy him a new suit of clothes.

The growing number of women in the Legislature has reduced the problem somewhat. Almost without exception, female legislators dress handsomely and in the latest styles. Rep. Jeanne Fenner of Wilson, for example, wore her sailor's suit into the House chamber last week.

A few male legislators do know how to put an outfit together. For some it's easy, they just wear business suits. Others, like Rep. Edd Nye of Elizabethtown are obviously a lot more cosmopolitan and sophisticated than their country twangs would betray. Nye's silk jackets, which are tailored by some guy with a six-syllable name, always perfectly complement his neatly pleated slacks. He admits to buying his clothes outside Bladen County.

Shoes are also a big deal in the Legislature. Rep. John Church of Henderson loves white shoes, as does Sen. Craig Lawing of Charlotte. There are plenty of loafers with tassles or buckles or brass ornaments. But Oxford's Rep. Billy Watkins provided the shoe story of the year last week when for the first time in his life he didn't wear a gray suit. Needing shoes to wear with a tan suit, he got his brown and white golf shoes and detached the spikes.

Rowland Evans and Robert Novak — 'The Psychology Of A Broken Country'

BONN, West Germany — President Reagan got a private, first-person earful from Chancellor Helmut Schmidt here last week on the strength of detente and the peace movement and why they are formidable contenders for political power in his own ruling Social Democratic Party (SPD).

Coincidentally, a letter attacking the U.S. signed by 59 SPD members, including three political leaders, was sent to the president via Ambassador Arthur Burns. An answer to the letter, which denounces Reagan's foreign policy, is now being drafted by Burns for the White House.

At their tete-a-tete in the chancellory Schmidt was on his best behavior, despite a 102-degree temperature from a flu virus. He wanted to make two points: first, that after four shaky, petulant years during the unpredictable Carter administration and a rocky first Reagan year, the two countries must come together again, and second, he wanted Reagan to understand why West Germany has such a tenacious attachment to detente.

The anxieties that have produced the peace movement, Schmidt said, have few counterparts in the U.S. Germany is a "broken" country, half west, half East, with divided families. Detente, he said, has brought many concrete benefits, including family reunification. These are benefits few west Germans are willing to give up.

As one summit participant told us, Schmidt's exposition about the "psychology of a broken country," delivered without the intellectual arrogance that the chancellor sometimes displays, impressed Reagan.

It is doubtful, however, that the president will have so benign a reaction when he reads the letter.

"We cannot abandon and do not wish to abandon detente policy," they wrote, "nor do we wish to keep quiet about the success acheived so far." West Germans "cannot accept and do not wish to accept someone (i.e., the U.S.) dictating to us the formes of solidarity with the oppressed in Poland and the U.S.S.R."

James J. Kilpatrick — Mice... And The Freedom To Squeak

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Senate has spent the past several days debating a bill to extend the Voting Rights Act of 1965, but in all the oratory the case of Jeff Reich figured, if at all, very slightly. Yet the case is instructive. It illustrates the unintended mischief that often is done when well-intentioned men set out to do good.

Reich is a 31-year-old attorney who was elected in 1980 to the board of supervisors of Fresno County, Calif. Under state law, candidates for local office may prepare a statement setting forth their qualifications and presenting their views on public issues. The county clerk then mails the statements to every registered voter, along with a sample ballot.

Reich spent two weeks polishing his statement. He tackled several sensitive and controversial issues, among them affirmative action. He presented his stand on a hotly debated local tax. He gave his views on social services, protective services and appointments to positions in county offices. Then he paid the modest fee, gave his statement to the county clerk, and directed specifically that the statement be distributed in English only.

So far, so good. But a catch developed. The clerk ruled that under bilingual provisions of the Voting Rights Act, Reich's statement had to be translated into Spanish also. Over the candidate's protest, this was done, right down to the Spanish equivalent of "signed by" at the bottom. Reich was told that if he wanted to make something out of it, he would have to travel to Washington, D.C., to argue the matter in a U.S. District Court there.

Now, Reich's mastery of Spanish begins with "buenos dias" and ends with "buenas noches." What had happened, quite simply, was that Spanish words had been put in his English-speaking mouth. He had been officially forced to say things he had not said. Reich went to a professor of Spanish at California State University in Fresno. The professor gave him a useful instruction in the nuances of language.

Reich had said in his English statement that "jobs should be based on merit alone." In the statement distributed before the primary election, "merit" came out as "merito." In the general election, the county clerk's amanuensis had changed it to read "aptitud." Neither Spanish word, Reich was told, precisely translates the English "merit." The word "merito" was deemed especially unfortunate, for the Spanish word "has a rich cultural heritage, suggesting reward for past good acts."

Reich sought an injunction in a U.S. District Court in California, and sure enough, the judge threw his case out of court. Under the Voting Rights Act, said the court, exclusive jurisdiction lies in the federal courts of Washington, D.C. Reich appealed to the 9th Circuit, which heard his argument in San Francisco in April. A decision is pending.

When the bilingual requirements were inserted in the Voting Rights Act a few years ago, I supported them. It seemed to me that the right of franchise is so important that some accommodation should be made for voters incapable of understanding ballots — for example, on statewide referendums — printed in English only. It never occurred to me that a Reich situation might arise, and I confess that I never gave sufficient thought to the exorbitant expense the act imposes upon affected persons thousands of miles away.

Granted, this isn't the greatest constitutional case since Marbury vs. Madison, but it tells us something of the excesses of paternalism. In any language, Reich has been handed a dirty deal.

Today is Father's Day. Let's reread Dr. Frank Crane, (Four Minute Essays: Dad):

Dear Dad,

I am writing this to you, though you have been dead 30 years ...

I feel I must say some things to you, things I didn't know when I was a boy in your house ...

It's only now, after passing through the long hard school years, only now, when my own hair is gray, that I understand how you felt.

I must have been a ... trial to you ... I believed my own petty wisdom ...

Most of all, I want to confess my worst sin against you. It was the feeling I had that you 'did not understand'.

when I look back over it now, I know that you did understand. You understood me better than I did myself ...

And how patient you were with me! How full of long-suffering and kindness!

And how pathetic, it now comes to me, were your own efforts to get close to me ...

What was it that held me aloof? I don't know. But it is tragic — that wall that rises between a boy and his father ...

I wish you were here now, across the table from me, just for an hour, so that I could tell you how there's no wall any more; I understand you now, Dad, and how I love you and wish I could go back and be your boy again ...

Well, it won't be long, Dad, till I am over there and I believe you'll be the first one to take me by the hand and help me ...

I know that among the richest, most priceless things on earth and the things least understood is that mighty love and tenderness and craving to help which a father feels toward his boy.

For I have a boy of my own ...

Up there somewhere in the Silence, hear me, Dad, and believe me.

To the editor:

At this period in history, wherever we look, there is upheaval, strife and acts of terrorism. One crisis follows another: Ireland, Poland, the Mideast, Central America, the Falklands, Africa, etc. ... To think that all this is happening in a time of religious belief: Christianity, Hinduism, Judaism, Mohammedanism, etc. ... And, with the nuclear buildup, how can there be a ray of hope left unless a drastic change takes place in the attitude and behavior on the part of humankind throughout the world?

In today's society, with the individual focusing mainly on self and the leaders focusing on riches and power, a change has to be made. For, with the cooperative universal practice of loving and caring, there can be space enough and food, too, for all members of the human race. There is a belief in a higher Being or Power by both Christian and non-Christians (excepting atheists and agnostics), so that this, plus the true practice of Christianity by Christians, could, by working toward such a goal, make this possibility become a reality. It need not take ages for this to be achieved. Especially when we consider the alternative: self-annihiliation of the human race. Let our voices be heard.

To the editor:

It was very disappointing to see the Sunday (June 13, 1982) opinion column of The Daily Reflector on the Palestian-Israeli war.

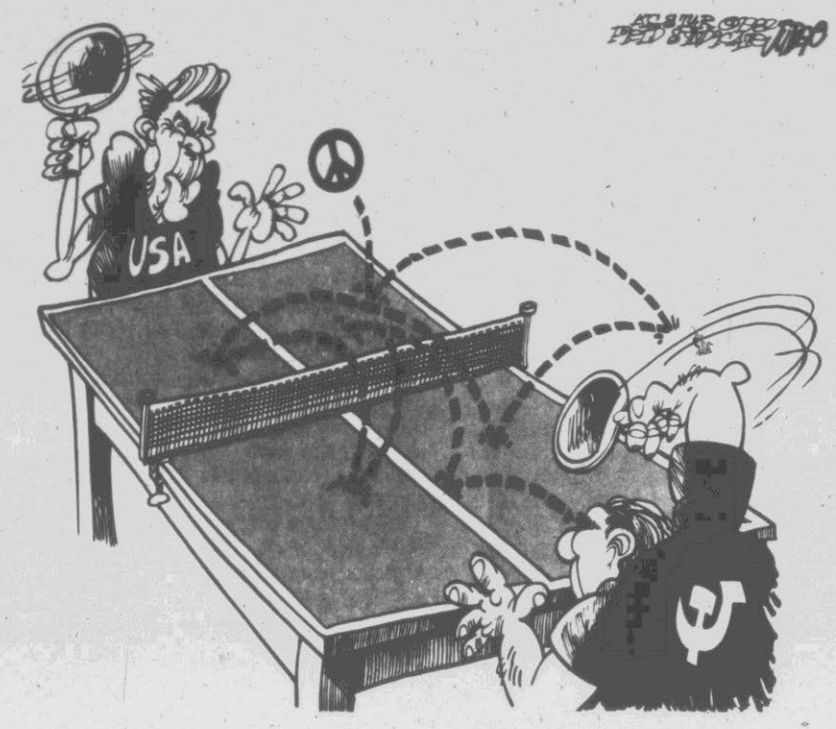

How can one justify the killing of hundreds of innocent people including children, women and old men by the arms supplied by this country in the name of peace? These innocent people have no part in this Israeli conflict. These are the innocent people, who were deprived of their homeland at the time of creation of Israel for no fault of their own and have been living as refugees since then. The killing of innocent civilians by either Israelis or Palestinians is not justified and would not be worthy of support by any peace-loving society.

The current Israeli bombing of Lebanon is illegal and cannot be supported by any decent human law. Punishing someone else for someone else's killing is not right. Just before this war, there was no evidence of shelling of the northern Israeli borders by Palestinians. It looks that the Israeli government has used a pretext to launch an attack against the innocent people in Lebanon.

Also, in the Israeli-occupied West Bank, the Israeli government has been killing many innocent Arabs when there is no evidence of violence from these people. This kind of action by the Israeli government will not bring peace in the area, but hatred. Several prominent groups in this country, including the Reagan administration, have condemned this act of Israel.

The editorial in any newspaper is a place for balanced and unbiased opinion, not one-sided story. We hope that the Daily Reflector will be more careful about the editorial in the future on such sensitive issues.

Rates Bring Confusion

WASHINGTON (AP) — It's rather disquieting to hear the nation's leading economic policymakers profess openly these days they don't really know why interest rates are so high.

It's just as disturbing to listen to those experts in and out of government who claim to have the answer to this puzzlement. They fundamentally disagree with each other.

The troubling part is this: If the people in charge aren't sure what's wrong, how are they going to fix the problem?

On some points, there is complete agreement, but then, it doesn't take an economist to state the obvious. Interest rates are at the highest levels since the Great Depression, relative to the rate of inflation; interest rates are causing enormous economic pain for anyone who has to borrow money, and they pose a singular threat to the future well-being of the American economy and the world economy.

After that, the confusion and contradictions begin, as economists search for arcane links between interest rates and federal budget deficits, the supply of money and the demand for credit, lender fears about future inflation, and the condition of the economy.

Chief White House economist Murray L. Weidenbaum told a congressional committee that "we have no truly satisfying account of why interest rates have remained so high."

"It's an act of levitation that interest rates are staying up," Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan told a group of reporters. But in the face of this magical act, Regan gamely predicted last week that the prime lending rate, which banks charge their corporate customers, would recede modestly from a current level of about 16.5 percent to 14 percent by the end of 1982. A year ago, Regan said: "I think we'll hit single-digit interest rates in 1982."

The interest rate mystery deepened in October 1979, when the Federal Reserve, the government's banker, decided to abandon its long-time policy of maintaining stable interest rates through direct manipulation. Today, the bank influences interest rates indirectly by controlling the supply of money in the economy that can be tapped for loans. This approach has produced large fluctuations in interest rates.

Today, the community of economic thinkers proclaiming to have answers is divided as rarely before over what interest rates will do and when they'll do it. Each faction shares a mutual disregard for the others.

Some warn that a recovery later this year will drive rates higher; others argue that a recovery will guarantee a decline in rates. Some insist intersst rates are high because the bank's money-policy is too tight; others say it's because the Fed's policy is too loose. Some say rates on short-term loans -those of less than a year - defy explanations; others protest that only 10-year bond rates escape understanding.

One common theme is that the demand for short-term money is very strong but the supply is being intentionally limited by the Federal Reserve to slow down the economy and dampen inflation in the process. Thus, like any other scarce commodity widely sought, the price of money goes up.

But several economists say the supply of money hasn't been all that restrictive in recent months and they question why demand is so strong. After all, the country's in a recession, and that should mean consumers are buying less on credit and businesses are borrowing less to expand. Interest rates should be falling until a recovery whets credit appetites again.

One of the latest explanations is that businesses are falling into financial distress because of the recession and are borrowing heavily to survive until better times arrive, when, presumably, improved sales and profits will reduce their need to borrow.

President Reagan's critics blame the persistence of high interest rates on the giant deficits stemming from the administration's tax cut and other economic policies.

Reagan and his advisers still insist they are on the correct economic course. It's just that the journey is harder and longer than they thought.

In the meantime, administration officials have nothing else to do but shrug their shoulders and hope for the best.

His Was A Helping Hand

The next time the cost of your electric bill prompts you to profanity, you might pause a moment to say a prayer of thanksgiving to the memory of Stanley Winborne. If it had not been for the adoption of a radical proposal made 50 years ago by Winborne, then a fledgling member of the State Utilities Commission, your utility bills might be a whole lot higher.

Back in 1932, when the nation was in the throes of what is now called the Great Depression, Winborne proposed to the state's major power and telephone companies that they get out of the economic doldrums by drastically cutting rates.

Winborne's reasoning was much the same as that used by the nation's grocery chains, then in the formative stage, and other mass-market merchandisers — that it's far more profitable to earn a small return on a huge margin of sales than it is to make a big margin on a small volume of business.

Winborne figured that if the major utilities would slash their rates it would result in such an increase in sales of electricity and bring such a boost in telephone usage that both the companies and their customers would benefit. Winborne's call for lower utility rates brought a spate of handwringing by scoffers who asserted it would be like throwing gasoline on a forest fire in the hope of extinguishing the flames.

"We called a conference of all electric and telephone people to get an agreement from them to reduce rates without hearings," Wonborne recalled in a 1958 interview just before he retired after 25 years as SUC chairman. "Back in those days utility rates were pretty high compared to what they are now (in 1958)."

He recalled that, at the time the meetings were called, "It was indicated generally they would be a waste of time." But the naysayers were in for a surprise after the utility officials had trooped into the hearing room in the old Labor Building. Apparnetly, the economic rigors of the depression had gotten them into a mood where they would try anything that offered even a ray of hope.

Almost to a man, they agreed at the conference table to cut their rates and then stand by and see what happened. The results were exactly what Winborne had predicted.

"We found their business improved tremendously with each reduction," Winborne said.

With more and more customers using more and more electricity and more and more people installing telephones and using them more, the utility companies embarked on a drive to expand their facilities to meet the increased demand, a race that is still going on.

In that 1958 interveiw, Winborne, a silver-haired, courtly man, called the success of the 1932 meetings the highlight of his career, which included 35 years in public service. He said that, during the 28 years he spent on the Utilities Commission, he was always guided by the conviction that everyone — the state, the utilities and their customers — would prosper more with the lowest rates conducive with first-class service.

Boy Wonder Disappears

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Bob Packwood, once a bit of political boy wonder, is now perilously close to 50 and in need of a cause to lead.

The one he has chosen is most meritorious: to improve the Republican Party's image with blacks, hispanics, Jews and women. To achieve this goal, the third-term Oregon Republican wants to lead a drive against restrictive social and civil rights legislation.

"I'm reaching 50 years of age," he said recently. "I've been in the Senate 14 years and right now am looking at what I want to do with the rest of my life."

In a period when the Republican Party is terribly dominated by conservatives, the moderate-liberal wing is in desperate need of a strong leader.

If he assumes the mantle, Packwood is in for a frustrating and very probably hopeless fight.

In the past, the concept of a more open Republican Party committed to social and civil rights has not been embraced by the GOP except in cheap rhetoric.

Strong, well-known national leaders of the recent past such as Nelson Rockefeller, Jacob Javits and William Milliken were frustrated.

Packwood is not — at least not yet — in their class, and the climate is much worse.

The Oregon senator claims a "lot of senators" have indicated their support for his positions but are reluctant to speak out.

"They say to me, 'I'm glad somebody said that," Packwood said.

At least Packwood is perfectly situated. The Senate is the showcase arena where conservatives are pushing the most restrictive social legislation.

The Senate has already approved legislation forbidding courts to order school busing more than 5 miles or 15 minutes one way — tantamount to outlawing the practice.

A pending bill would rules that human life begins at inception — making an abortion a murder. Other anti-abortion measures are in the wings. There are also moves to permit voluntary prayer in public schools, and efforts will be made to stop an extension of the voting rights act.

It is a perfect time for Packwood to begin displaying his leadership. The question remains whether he can or will.

Over the off-and-on nine months the Senate spent before finally passing the busing measure, it was Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn. — not Packwood — who did the leading.

In fact, the opposition to the busing legislation was pretty much a solo job by Weicker except during rollcall votes.

Although Packwood's opposition to abortion legislation is well-known, clear, frequently enunciated and long-held, there have been other senators who took on more clearly-defined leadership roles for the Republicans.

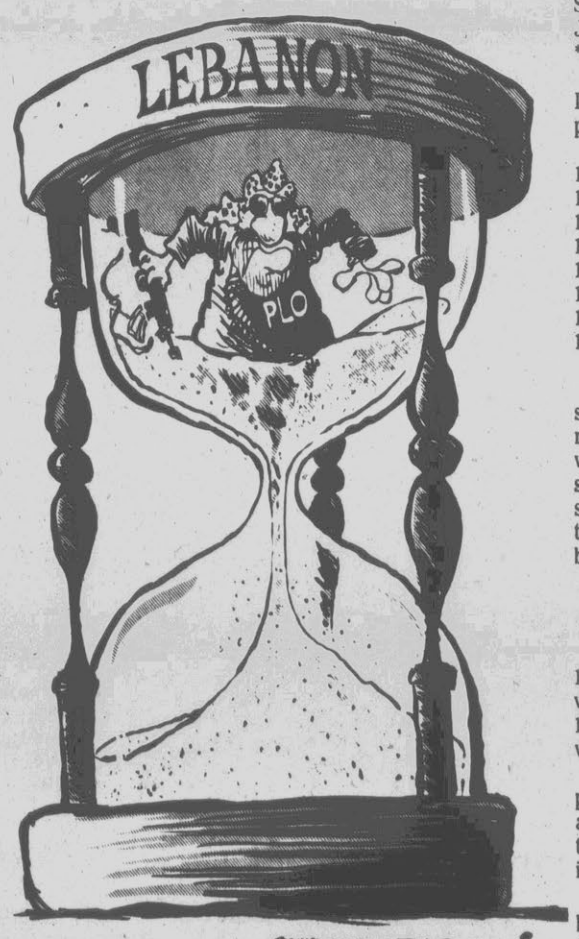

For many years, as the legislation became more and more restrictive, former Sen. Edward Brooke of Massachusetts carried the torch. Later, it was again Weicker.

Packwood was the self-appointed Republican leader opposing the sale of AWACs to Saudi Arabia. But to the disgust of his allies on the Democratic side, Packwood turned out to be strong on talk and weak on the grinding work that builds majorities.

And Packwood cannot get any help along the way from the White House.

His brand of Republicanism is not in favor at the other end of the avenue, and his recent potshots at President Reagan have shut down communications.

It would help the Republican Party to have an eloquent and effective leader for the small but still loyal moderate-liberal wing of the party. Packwood may not be the man.

Review

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard M. Nixon always looked forward to history. But while history is pending, he's following the Satchel Paige philosophy.

"I never look back," Nixon said, 10 years from Watergate. "I never look back."

"Don't look back, something may be gaining on you," advised Paige, the black pitcher who died recently at the approximate age of 75. He never looked back to say how old he really was.

To Nixon, the Thursday anniversary of the Watergate break-in that began his political downfall was an unpleasant reminder, but not an occasion for review. "... It reminds me, of course, of the fact that I went through it 10 years ago and relived it several times since," he said in a CBS-TV interview. "As far as I'm concerned, I've said everything I can on the subject; I have nothing to add and I'm looking to the future rather than the past."

Nixon, 69, said he sees that future "primarily in the foreign policy area," traveling at his own expense, but with the knowledge of the administration. He didn't explain his foreign policy role beyond that, but said his travels would be personal trips.

Long before Watergate and resignation, Nixon felt, and said, that history would judge him more favorably than many of his contemporaries. He said the perspective of history would magnify the achievements of his administration, particularly in foreign policy.

Ironically, that concern was a factor in his undoing. One of the explanations for the White House taping system that recorded Watergate evidence against him was Nixon's concern that there be a full, accurate record of his presidency for future historians.

Even now, Nixon said in the CBS interview, he gets a half-dozen letters a week asking why he didn't burn the tapes. "It should have been done," he said. "But the main part is, they should never have been started."

The achievements most likely to secure Nixon's place in history were attained during his first term as president, before Watergate, re-election and the second term cut short by resignation.

Among them were the reopening of American relations with China after a generation of hostility, the negotiations that ended U.S. participation in the Vietnam War, and the first strategic arms limitation agreement with the Soviet Union.

At home, Nixon promoted the program of revenue-sharing designed to share money, and therefore power, with state and local governments. It was the first step in a process President Reagan still is pursuing. Also, the Environmental Protection Agency was created during Nixon's administration.

"My feeling is that history is going to treat my presidency perhaps considerably more objectively and I may say, somewhat more generously than my contemporaries," Nixon said in the CBS interview, "because history will see what we were trying to do in the long term."

He said the China opening will be recorded as "the major geopolitical event since World War II," and the arms control agreement also will get high marks.

"As far as otherwise, history probably without question will have to refer to that I was the first president to resign..." he added.

"But as years go on, the verdict of history is one that is objective."

Poll

PRINCETON, N.J. — With the congressional elections less than five months away, the Democratic Party enjoys a lead of landslide proportions over the Republican Party in the popular vote for seats in the U.S. House of Representatives.

In the latest survey (conducted in mid-May), the Democrats are the choice of 53 percent of registered voters to 38 percent for Republicans. In the 1978 congressional elections, Democratic candidates won about 55 percent of the popular vote and the seat division was 276 for the Democrats and 157 for the Republicans.

While the current findings look anything but hopeful for the GOP this fall in terms of the overall division of House seats, Republican strength has remained constant in recent weeks after a steady decline between January and April of the current year.

At his point, however, the GOP appears headed for greater-than-normal seat losses for the party holding the White House — losses which have averaged about 30 seats in off-year elections during the last 35 years.

Following are the questions asked and the trend:

"If the elections for Congress were being held TODAY, which party would you like to see win in this congressional district, the Democratic Party or the Republican Party?"

Those who said they were undecided or named a different party were asked:

"As of today, do you lean more to the Democratic Party or to the Republican Party?"

Here is the trend over the last year:

Vote For Congress
(Based on registered voters)

	Democrat	Republican	Other	Undecided
LATEST (May 14-17)	53%	38%	1%	8%
April 30-May 3	53	38	1	8
April 23-26	56	36	1	7
April 2-5	54	34	2	10
Feb. 5-8	55	36	1	8
Jan. 22-25	52	39	1	8
Jan. 8-11	50	42	1	7
Oct. 30-Nov. 2, 1982	55	38	1	6
Oct. 2-5	51	41	*	8
Sept. 18-21	52	39	2	7
June 19-22	49	45	1	5

*Less than 1 pct.

On a two-way basis, the current figures are 58 percent Democratic and 42 percent Republican. By way of comparison, here is the division of the vote for Congress since 1954:

	Democratic	Republican
1974	64	36
1970	59	41

Analysis By Groups

Analysis by population groups (based on two successive surveys) show the current figures closely parallel those recorded at this time in the congressional election year of 1978, with one important exception. A Gallup survey at that time showed men and women in close agreement in their congressional choices. Today, women are considerably more inclined then are men to favor the Democrats, as shown in the table below:

Vote For Congress
(By sex — registered voters)

	Democratic	Republican	Other/ undecided
1978-men	54%	34%	12%
women	56	35	9
women	56	35	9

The findings reported today are based on two successive in-person surveys with 3,141 adults, 18 and older, of whom 2,282 are registered voters. The interviews were conducted in more than 300 scientifically-selected localities across the nation during the periods April 30-May 3 and May 14-17.

For results based on a sample of this size one can say with 95 percent confidence that the error attributable to sampling and other random effects could be two percentage points in either direction.

Victors, Losers Returning Home

By United Press International

The requisitioned British luxury liner Canberra arrived at an isolated Patagonian fishing village Saturday to return 4,200 Argentine war prisoners to a homeland wracked by political turmoil in the aftermath of the failed Falkland Islands invasion.

In Britain, relatives and well-wishers lined the dock at Portsmouth to greet the destroyer Glasgow and its crew of 280 home from the South Atlantic fighting. Another 90 wounded British troops flew in from Ascension Island to an Air Force base in western England.

The Ministry of Defense in London, still awaiting Argentina's assurance that all hostilites had ended in the South Atlantic, said "vile" weather had delayed the Canberra's 700-mile journey from the Falklands to Puerto Madryn, an isolated fishing port in the barren province of Patagonia.

Another commercial vessel, the North Sea ferry Norland, left for Argentina with 1,200 more prisoners Saturday afternoon after being trapped in the Falklands capital of Stanley by the bad weather. It was expected to arrive in Argentina Monday.

Government sources said British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, Foreign Secretary Francis Pym and Defense Secretary John Nott were annoyed at Argentina's demand that the prisoners be transported to the Patagonian port — apparently chosen to avoid the spectacle of British ships bringing home dejected Argentine prisoners.

British reporters on the Falklands said thousands of Argentine prisoners, most with only chocolate bars and empty cigarette packets in their pockets, had boarded the two ships for home. They constituted less than half of the 11,845 prisoners the British said they had captured.

"We are here to escort you and guide you in, we are here to protect you," the Argentine destroyer Santisima Trinidad radioed the Canberra in English as it approached Argentine waters, BBC correspondent Robert Fox reported from the British liner.

Instructions were given for an Argentine pilot to come aboard. Another warship, the Comodoro Py, a World war II destroyer, shadowed in the distance.

Britain said its sealift of prisoners would continue despite the Argentine junta's refusal to declare hostilities formally ended until British troops were withdrawn from the South Atlantic, the submarine blockade lifted and economic sanctions ended.

Britain said it would hold about 1,000 Argentine officers near Stanley or on the HMS Fearless until Argentina agreed to declare an end to hostilities.

The British Foreign Office said it had pressed the Swiss Embassy in Buenos Aires to seek a reply from military leaders, but added that it understood Friday's leadership change in the junta — which ousted President Leopoldo Galtieri — had confused matters and delayed a formal agrement.

The Argentine government promised safe conduct for the British ships, which sailed under Red Cross supervision. The Argentine hospital ship Bahia Paraiso was to transport another 1,500 prisoners.

In Portsmouth, the Glasgow's captain called it "the luckiest ship alive" because a bomb passed through the ship's superstructure — but failed to explode — during a bombing raid off the Falklands.

The crew stuffed the holes with mattresses to stop flooding until repairs could be effected, the captain said.

Haig Says Soviets Aren't Serious About Arms Cut

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Secretary of State Alexander Haig wound up two days of talks with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko Saturday charging the Soviets with engaging in an "unprecedented" level of strategic missile tests while publicly extolling disarmament.

Haig's charge, which came after 9 hours and 15 minutes of talks with Gromyko, appeared to characterize a meeting that failed to warm the chilly relations between the two superpowers.

Haig said he and Gromyko discussed the possibility of a summit meeting between President Leonid Brezhnev and President Reagan, but since both sides agreed such a meeting should be "well-prepared," Haig said he had nothing to announce about a U.S.-Soviet summit.

"I would note after the speech to the United Nations by Foreign Minister Gromyko (on the Soviet pledge not to use nuclear weapons first), the Soviets have undertaken a high level of strategic activity," Haig told reporters.

He said according to information he received Saturday, Soviet "strategic activity" included: an anti-satellite test, two intercontinental ballistic missile launches, a submarine-launched ballistic missile, an SS-20 (intermediate-range) missile and two anti-ballistic missile intercepts.

Haig described the activity as "unprecedented" and offered no explanation for it. He repeated that it stood in sharp contrast to Gromyko's words about Soviet wishes for disarmament.

On Friday, Haig and Gromyko met for nearly five hours at the U.S. mission, mainly discussing disarmament. They conferred for just over four hours Saturday at the Soviet mission, discussing "regional issues," including the Israeli invasion of Lebanon.

Haig said that, by agreement with Gromyko, he would go down the list of topics, but not the substance of the conversation. He described the meetings as "full, frank and useful."

Gromyko did not talk to reporters after the meeting.

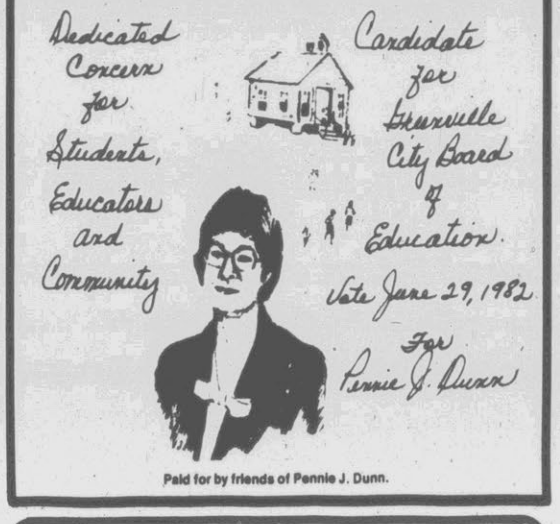

Haig said the United States has now laid out a full program of proposals for cuts in nuclear arms and conventional forces.

The proposals include cutting the superpowers' arsenals of nuclear warheads by one-third; eliminating intermediate range missiles in Europe; and a 700,000 limit on conventional ground troops for both sides.

He said the United States "is prepared to maintain a constructive relationship with the Soviet Union," but insisted the future depends on Soviet "action and not words."

The latest meetings between Gromyko and Haig were the third in a series, but they appeared to bridge none of the harsh public differences between the two sides. Both men nonetheless went out of their way to appear affable to each other when photographed at the beginning of their meetings.

It is unlikely Gromkyo will meet with Reagan after his talks with Haig, which up until 1978 has been the custom after meetings between Gromkyo and his American counterpart.

Missing Banker's Body Found

By MARK S. SMITH
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — The body of Italian banker Roberto Calvi has been found dangling by the neck from a bridge in London, adding another puzzling chapter to the tale of corruption and intrigue in one of Italy's most far-reaching scandals since World War II.

Calvi, 61, chairman of the Banco Ambrosiano, Italy's largest private bank, disappeared eight days ago from his Milan apartment. A passerby found his body hanging Friday from a piece of scaffolding on Blackfriar's Bridge, which spans the Thames in London's financial district.

Italian state television reported that London police found Calvi with his feet dangling in the water, $18,000 in various currencies in his pockets, and a passport in the name of Gianroberto Calvini. His mustache had been shaven off.

London police have not said whether they think Calvi's death was a murder or suicide. He tried to kill himself by taking sleeping pills and slashing his wrists last July, during his trial for currency law violations.

Calvi was convicted of illegally exporting $26.4 million in Italian currency, fined $13 million, and sentenced to four years in jail. He was free pending an appeal when he disappeared.

Calvi's name appeared on a list of members of the super-secret Masonic Lodge known as Propaganda Due, uncovered in May of last year. The members are said to have plotted the establishment of an authoritarian regime in Italy and engaged in a wide variety of illegal activities, including bribery, tax evasion and shady currency and stock deals.

The list including Cabinet ministers, politicians, judges, journalists, police, military men and Calvi. When it was found in a suitcase at the country villa of the lodge's self-styled "grand master," Licio Gelli, the scandal brought down the government of Prime Minister Arnaldo Forlani.

Calvi's problems multiplied in May when the Banca D'Italia, the Italian state bank, asked his Banco Ambrosiano to account for $1.4 billion in debt and interest charges incurred by four subsidiaries since 1978.

The bank's troubles have been cited by currency dealers as a key factor in the plunge of the Italian stock market and of the Italian lira, which has fallen to record lows against other European currencies.

Italian newspaper reports said that to cover his bank's debts, Calvi tried but failed to secure a loan from the Institute for Religious Works, the Vatican's unofficial bank, whose head is Archbishop Paul Marcinkus of Chicago.

When Calvi disappeared, Banco Ambrosiano dissolved its board of directors and asked the Italian central bank to appoint a custodian and the Milan stock exchange suspended trading in Banco Ambrosiano shares.

Last Thursday, a week after his disappearance, Calvi's secretary leapt to her death from the fourth floor of Banco Ambrosiano's Milan offices. A scribbled suicide note from Graziella Teresa Corrocher, 55, said:

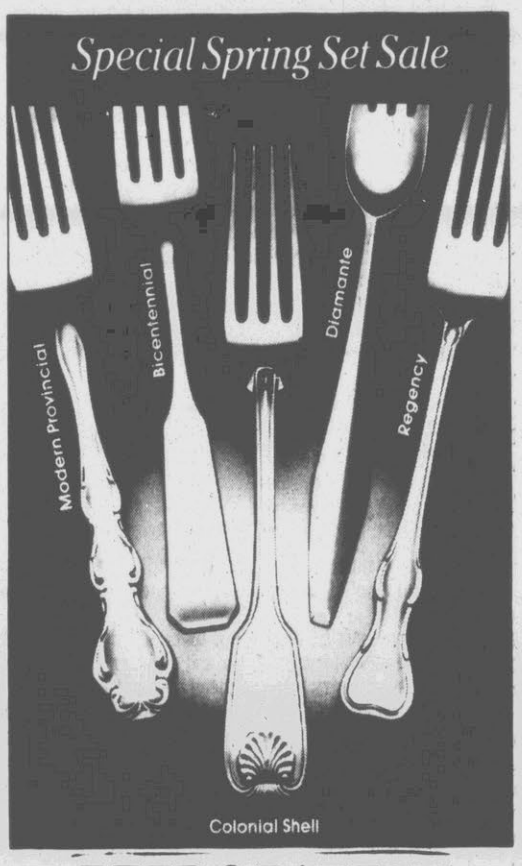

"Curse him for all the wrong he is doing to all of us from the bank and the group of whose image we were once so proud."

Refugees Flee Beirut As Fears Mount Over New Israeli Attack

By ALEX EFTY
Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Hundreds of cars jammed a checkpoint waiting to escape from the besieged western sector of this divided city Saturday as fears mounted that an all-out Israeli attack against the trapped Palestinians may be imminent.

People everywhere were glued to radio stations bringing news of preparations for what could be a bloody showdown. The truce observed by the invading Israeli forces ringing the city is due to expire at an unstated time Sunday afternoon.

Many of the people fleeing to safer areas appeared to be affluent Lebanese who travel regularly across the heavily fortified Green Line splitting the city since the 1975-76 Moslem-Christian civil war.

The long line of cars waiting to cross to the east are checked three times on their way in a half-mile stretch of road by the city museum. First, two Syrian soldiers wave the cars on perfunctorily as they creep past their checkpoint. Second, Lebanese army soldiers check the identities of people they consider suspicious. Finally, Christian Phalange militiamen search vehicles to ensure no Palestinians or leftist militiamen slip by.

Associated Press correspondent Dick Pyle reported tens of thousands of Lebanese jammed the coastal highway in Israeli-occupied territory heading south, many taking their families.

Hatem Kirre, accompanied by his wife and children, told Pyle he had lived in Beirut for three years and was returning south "because it is safe now."

Tens of thousands of Palestinian refugees of west Beirut and poor Moslem inhabitants appeared reluctant to cross into the Christian sector. Many feared they would be detained by Israeli troops or their Christian Lebanese allies across the line.

Many of these people have been moving instead closer to the center of the city, as far as possible from the poorer Palestinian slum areas on the southern outskirts likely to bear the brunt of an Israeli attack.

The neighborhoods of Sabra, Chatila and Bourj el Barajneh were almost completely deserted. Their narrow streets, hemmed in by rows of tenement houses and usually teeming with people and traffic, were being blocked by hastily erected fortifications.

Groups of armed Palestinian guerrillas and their leftist Moslem Lebanese allies use bulldozers to erect staggered lines of tall mounds of red earth. Other guerrillas were using pneumatic drills to dig shallow round holes in the asphalt road surface and plant mines.

The sound of mortar and rocket fire from continuing skirmishes along the southern fringes of the city frequently sent the guerrillas scurrying for cover as shells crashed dangerously close.

The guerrillas put on a brave front, echoing the words of Yasser Arafat and other Palestinian leaders who have vowed to "fight to the death."

In the eastern sector of the city life continued normally with shops open and streets full of traffic and people. In glaring contrast with the fortifications being erected in west Beirut, a gang of workers were laying down sidewalks along a busy east Beirut boulevard

Battles Erupt In West Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Israeli-Palestinian mortar and rocket battles erupted along the fringes of the guerrillas' encircled west Beirut nerve center Saturday while U.S. and Lebanese negotiators tried to head off the growing possibility of an Israeli tank-led assault on the panicked enclave.

As the Israelis moved their armor closer, hundreds of cars jammed a Green Line checkpoint waiting to escape west Beirut. Tens of thousands of refugees too frightened to leave the enclave moved closer to the center of the zone, and tens of thousands of others fled south along the coastal highway.

The Israelis brought more tank, artillery and infantry reinforcements to the edge of the 10-square-mile stronghold, but respected their promise to the United States to make no move into the Palestinian-held areas during a 48-hour truce period. The deadline expires at an unstated time Sunday afternoon.

The negotiators, including U.S. presidential envoy Philip C. Habib, Lebanese President Elias Sarkis and former Premier Saeb Salaam, sought to persuade the Palestine Liberation Organization in the west Beirut enclave to surrender its arms to the Lebanese army to avoid bloody street battles which the outnumbered and outgunned PLO was sure to lose.

Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko met in New York and discussed the conflict and a number of other issues. Israel invaded Lebanon June 6 to crush the guerrillas and drive out the Syrians, whose 30,000-man army in Lebanon has increasingly attacked Israel's Christian allies rather than police the six-year-old civil war armistice.

Israel reported late Saturday that an Israeli patrol killed five Syrian soldiers in a skirmish Friday in eastern Lebanon, 25 miles from the Beirut front. The terse communique said three Israeli soldiers were wounded.

It did not say which side started shooting after the patrols encountered each other east of Qaraoun Lake nor did it say why the report was delayed for a day. The clash appeared to be one of the most serious between Israeli and Syrian forces since the two countries agreed to a cease-fire in Lebanon June 11.

In Beirut, the Israelis appeared determined to exploit their military advantage to the maximum and to allow the PLO and its huge arsenal no escape from the west Beirut trap. The PLO publicly vowed to resist and to die fighting, while its negotiators privately sought a face-saving formula for submitting to the Israeli demands.

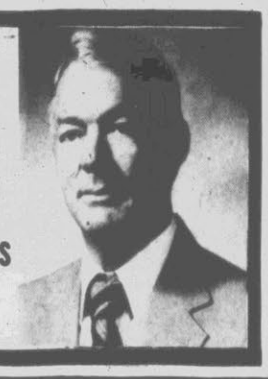

The PLO's top security chief, Salah Khalaf, also known as Abu Iyad, issued a statement declaring that the guerrillas "have no choice but to stand fast, to fight to the last breath." He said an Israeli offer of safe conduct out of Beirut for PLO leaders following their surrender was "totally unacceptable."

But the guerrillas' chief of staff, Brig. Gen. Saad Sayel, told the official Lebanese news agency that the PLO is "pursuing every possible avenue to save Beirut and spare it the battle that the enemy is planing at this moment" — clearly implying a PLO readiness to compromise.

But if the Israelis set their price too high, Sayel added, the PLO "could find itself with no option other than to fight in self-defense, regardless of the consequences."

Some 600,000 residents remain in west Beirut, including at least 100,000 Palestinians jammed into the Bourj el-Barajneh refugee slum area between the city and the paralyzed international airport, where mortar and rocket duels flared.

Hinckley Jurors To Return Today

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A mostly black jury picked a soft-spoken, retired supermarket employe as its foreman Saturday but failed to reach a verdict in a second day of deliberations in the trial of presidential assailant John W. Hinckley Jr.

Hinckley, who has pleaded innocent by reason of insanity in the March 30, 1981 shooting attack, awaited his fate in a basement cell of the federal courthouse. His parents were nearby.

The jury, which deliberated 3½ hours on Friday, labored another 7½ hours Saturday in considering Hinckley's defense that he shot Reagan and three others because he believed it would help him win the love of actress Jodie Foster.

The panel reviewed the evidence in the same courtroom where the historic, eight-week trial was held. U.S. District Judge Barrington Parker then ordered the jury to recess for the evening.

Lee Ann Flynn, administrative assistant to the court, said the judge planned to have the sequestered jury resume at 10 a.m. EDT Sunday after some members of the panel attend church, escorted by deputy marshals. She said he would recess the deliberations at 3:30 p.m. Sunday if the jury was not near a verdict.

Ms. Flynn said the jurors, who are staying at a hotel under tight security during the deliberations, elected Roy Jackson, 64, its oldest member, as foreman.

A neighbor, Nathaniel Adams, told United Press International Jackson is a retired employe of the Giant Foods supermarket chain and described him as "a very soft-spoken man" who likes to garden. "He's more or less of a loner," the neighbor said.

Ms. Flynn disclosed that after nine hours of deliberations, the panel requested "additional writing supplies, a dictionary, an exhibit list and transcripts of several witnesses' testimony."

Parker denied the request for the transcripts and the dictionary, she said.

Bell Says Schools Are Improving

WASHINGTON (AP) — Education Secretary T.H. Bell said Saturday that rising test scores for children in New York, Washington and other major cities signal that the nation's schools are pulling out of their long academic slump.

"There are encouraging signs all over the country," said Bell. "I think we're on the way up as far as education and academic achievement is concerned."

The education chief, interviewed on Cable News Network's "Newsmaker Saturday" show, said, "We have a long, hard pull yet. But I think the decline in education achievement is behind us at least for a while."

"It's a tribute to schools and teachers that are working under very difficult circumstances," he said.

Public schools in Washington and New York reported this week that their third and fourth grade children respectively were at or above national averages on reading and math tests.

On another matter, Bell criticized the Supreme Court's 5-4 decision Tuesday striking down a Texas law denying a free public education to children of illegal aliens.

Bell said education policies should be a matter for state legislatures to decide with help from governors and schools boards.

"I recognize the children are the unwitting victims of that ... but I really feel this is a decision that ought to be left to the state of Texas," he said.

However, Bell said after the show that if he had been chief of Texas' schools, he would have fought for the right of every child living within its borders to a free education.

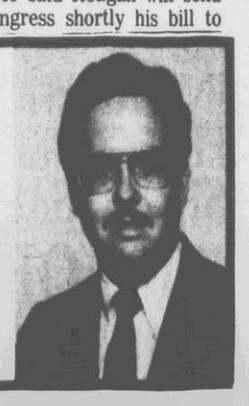

Bell said Texas will be able to count the illegal alien children when it applies for existing federal school aid for the disadvantaged and the handicapped, but "we won't ask for any more money."

He also said President Reagan has delayed submitting to Congress his bill to downgrade the Education Department to a foundation because "we don't have enough sponsorship yet. ... We're not going to push it until we feel that there's a higher probability for passage."

He said Reagan will send Congress shortly his bill to provide tax credits to defray tuition paid by parents of private school children.

He denied the tax credits will drain support from public schools.

Nameless Storm Leaves Eight Dead

CAPE HATTERAS, N.C. (UPI) — A nameless, "half-breed" storm that left eight people dead in three Eastern Seaboard states caused coastal flooding and chased vactioners from beaches before turning out to sea Saturday.

The storm claimed four lives when it hammered Florida and took two each in Georgia and North Carolina.

"This is a half-breed thing — neither a winter-type storm, nor a tropical-type storm. It's a combination of both," a forecaster said.

The National Weather Service reduced gale warnings to a small craft advisory along the East coast at noon Saturday as the storm moved out over the Atlantic. Sustained winds of 65 mph, with stronger gusts, were reported east of the storm's center as it moved northeast at 20 to 25 mph.

Seas of up to 30 feet were reported by a ship just east of the storm's center Saturday morning.

Bob Muller, a weather service meteorologist, said the storm's effect on the Eastern Seaboard diminished as it moved further out to sea.

"But to say it will not have any more effect is not true," Muller said.

He said he did not believe the storm would affect Rhode Island, where gale warnings were posted early Saturday, "unless it turns."

On North Carolina's Outer Banks, Nags Head police banned swimming because of the dangerous surf.

Four men were rescued from a sinking 68-foot trawler off Cape Fear shortly before 3 a.m. Saturday, and a 40-foot French sailing vessel ran aground near Cape Hatteras as its four passengers attempted to seek shelter.

More than 21,000 customers lost electrical power when gale-force winds and blinding rain swept the South Carolina coast Friday night. Flooding was reported in parts of Charleston, and police blamed numerous traffic accidents on the storm.

The North Carolina Highway Patrol said two women were killed Friday night west of Wilmington when their car hit a pool of water dumped by the storm, causing the driver to lose control of her auto and crash into a tree. Authorities identified the victims as Unice Smith McMillan, 42, and Essie Mae Smith, 72, both of Ash.

The surf was up to the dunes just south of the Cape Hatteras lighthouse, which stands less than 100 feet from the ocean, the National Park Service said.

Mary Ann Peckham, a ranger with the National Park Service, said officials had not been able to check portions of the Outer Banks because of overwash.

"We just haven't had a chance to get on the south beach so we're not sure if we've got erosion or overwash," she said. "We're monitoring the situation. We have west to northwest winds, which are holding down the ocean and beating it back as opposed to northeast winds which bring it in."

Winds were blowing at 40 knots and seas were eight to 12 feet when the captain of the sailing vessel Saotome decided to seek shelter for himself and his family. The Nantes, France, residents were sailing from San Juan, Puerto Rico, to Norfolk, Va., when the unidentified Frenchman radioed for help. The Coast Guard sent a boat to Cape Hatteras to guide the Saotome through the inlet, but the sailing vessel ran aground before the Coast Guard could reach it. No one was injured.

Two Georgia residents, one an 8-year-old boy, died Friday in mishaps caused by the storm.

In Florida, one man died on a rain-slick highway south of Miami, and another was killed by a tornado spawned by the storm. A 2-year-old Orlando boy drowned when surging waters swept him off his tricycle into a drainage ditch, and a 37-year-old Englishman drowned while swimming in heavy surf off Treasure Island, on Florida's west coast.

A Dare County Sheriff's Department spokeswoman said soundwater covered portions of N.C. 12 on the Outer Banks, but no extensive damage had been reported. Early Saturday, motorists were advised not to travel on the north end of Ocracoke Island where sea

Pesticide Hearing

By The Associated Press

Senate hearings will begin Monday on a proposal by Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., to limit public access to information on the contents and manufacture of pesticides.

"Our central concern is that the farmers have the agricultural chemicals ... they need to produce their crops," Helms said in a prepared statement. "We have to make sure that consumers have the food they need at reasonable prices with full assurances of health and safety."

The Senate Agriculture Committee, chaired by Helms, will consider his bill to revise the federal Insecticide, Fungicide, and Rodenticide Act by limiting pesticide information to scientists, the government and other groups considered worthy.

Amended in 1978, the act requires that new pesticides be registered with the Environmental Protection Agency before being sold or shipped. It also permits states to regulate pesticides as long as the states don't permit sales or uses prohibited by the FIFRA.

General Assembly Adopts 1982-83 State Budget

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The General Assembly recessed for the weekend after enacting a 1982-83 state budget, but legislators faced the prospect of their session dragging on to within a week of statewide primary elections.

With two major disputes and a long list of special appropriation bills pending, the House quit Friday and agreed to return Monday afternoon — apparently avoiding an all-night marathon to finish the session.

Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green scheduled the Senate to return Tuesday morning — just one week before the June 29 primary for legislative and congressional seats.

The $6 billion budget was settled when the House and Senate unanimously agreed to a conference committee report on a disputed provision of the budget giving teachers up to five days paid leave when schools are closed due to snow.

Standing in the way of adjournment was a House and Senate disagreeement over a health insurance plan for state workers and teachers, and a proposal to transfer control of the controller of the state Department of Public Education.

The Senate voted 27-7 to approve the bill transferring the state's education fiscal officer to the Office of State Budget and Management, a part of the governor's office.

The bill was sponsored by Sen. Harold Hardison, D-Lenoir, who said it was needed to "have better fiscal control." But it was sharply opposed by Gov. Jim Hunt, who issued a memo to all legislators.

"In my opinion, this would seriously damage the smooth operation of public education in North Carolina," Hunt said. "I urge you, in the strongest possible way, to reject this proposal."

The bill emerged from the Senate Appropriations Committee with a package of so-called "special bills," — small, supplemental appropriations for projects in legislators' districts. The bills total about $6 million.

The medical insurance bill would drop the state's policy held for the past 10 years with Blue Cross-Blue Shield, and replace it with a plan in which the state, in effect, provides the insurance itself.

As approved by the House, the bill would turn the claims processing over to a Texas-based computer firm, Electronic Data Systems Inc.

But Senate opponents succeeded in winning an amendment dropped reference to EDS from the bill. Instead, it would give authority to select a claims processing contractor to an administrator and board of trustees of the insurance plan.

The move left the House facing a choice Monday of whether to go along with the deletion of EDS or to send the bill to conferees.

The plan would cause a premium increase for hospital and medical coverage for teachers and state workers with families. But the plan would hold down out-of-pocket medical expenses and was generally supported by groups representing teachers and state workers.

The main budget bill was enacted after a conference committee ended 24-hours of maneuverings by agreeing to compromise language on the provision dealing with teachers.

The agreement dropped other state employees from the leave provision, and added a requirement that local school boards who grant the leave notify the state Board of Education and state a reason for granting it.

In other legislative action:

Utilities — The House failed to vote on a resolution that would have urged the Utilities Commission to act to limit high salaries to utility company executives. The sponsor, Rep. George Miller, D-Durham, withdrew the resolution from consideration.

Tax Exemption — A bill giving a tax break to some manufacturers estimated at up to $2 million was enacted.

The new law provides an exemption from local property taxes on equipment used to clean up air inside plants. The tax bill, sought by the textile industry, was enacted when the House voted unanimously to concur in Senate amendments.

Sex Discrimination — A bill dropping what some described as the last major instance of sex discrimination in North Carolina law was enacted when the House voted unanimously to concur in Senate amendments.

The bill changes the state's "tenancy by the entirety" law. Previously, state law had given the husband complete control over rental income from property jointly held by a husband and wife. The new law gives the wife equal rights over the rental income.

Liquor — The Senate voted 31-7 to tentatively approve a bill setting a 5 cent-per-bottle surcharge on liquor to pay for construction of a new state Alcoholic Beverage Commission warehouse and office complex in Raleigh.

The surcharge would generate $2.2 million a year for operating the ABC and building the warehouse.

Odometer Fraud — The Senate enacted a bill extending the time limit for filing charges related to odometer rollback schemes from two years to four years. The extension was sought by the state Attorney General's office.

Pitt Chosen As Air-Quality Monitor Site

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State environmental officials and industry seekers are collaborating on a project aimed at improving air-quality monitoring and bringing new businesses to North Carolina.

State Natural Resources and Community Development Secretary Joseph Grimsley said 15 people will be added to the staff of the Division of Environmental Management to gather and review air-quality data and operate 10 new pollution-monitoring devices across the state.

The move will double the department's capacity to monitor for pollutants, especially ozone and sulfur dioxide. The state already has four sulfur dioxide monitors and six ozone monitors.

The units, which are housed in temperature-controlled huts, provide continuous readouts on air quality. Staff members visit the units at least once a week to make sure equipment is operating properly and to collect data.

The state Department of Commerce helped environmental officials select the sites where industrial growth is expected and where air-monitoring facilities are needed. New stations will be in Alexander, Davie, Edgecombe, Johnston, Lincoln, Martin, Moore, Person, Pitt and Robeson counties.

"I think it will benefit not only the economy but our ability to monitor air quality," Paul Wilms, assistant director of environmental management, said of the project. "It could reveal more (pollution) problems than we thought we had but if that's the case, good, we need to know about it."

The monitoring program will help industries select construction sites and gather information needed to obtain building permits, officials said.

In the past, industries have been required to conduct their own air-quality monitoring for a full year before they could apply for permits and begin construction. The Environmental Protection Agency has listed seven pollutants which must be monitored before and after an industry builds a plant.

With state-owned monitors in place, industries may use already prepared data to get construction permits within 60 days.

"Most industrial clients can't sacrifice a year before they make a decision (whether to build)," said Derr Leonhardt, senior environmental consultant for the industrial development division of the state Department of Commerce.

"When a company comes in, knows the situation and can apply for a permit immediately, you have a good tool for attracting industry," Leonhardt said. "We will be able to match new industry with areas where it will be a good fit."

Leonhardt said states with large metropolitan areas have had some advantage over North Carolina in recruiting industry because they already have air-quality monitors in their large cities. But in North Carolina, he said the EPA has ordered only Charlotte to maintain pollution-monitoring devices.

Surgical Tool May Reduce Brain Damage

DURHAM, N.C. (UPI) — Duke University Medical Center researchers said Saturday a new monitoring device used in surgery may reduce the number of people who die or are left with severe brain damage following operating room mishaps.

The instrument, used at the hospital since April 1 as a monitor on surgical patients under general anesthesia, is "capable of indicating within two or three seconds whether the amount of oxygen available to the patient's brain is sufficient," Dr. Michael Mitnick, a physiology research associate, said.

Mitnick and Dr. Elisabeth Fox, an associate professor of anesthesiology, said the instrument — a Near Infra-Red Oxygen Sufficiency Scope — is considered a "revolutionary development in operating room technology" because it continously monitors the amount of oxygen available to the brain.

"Most anesthetic injuries occur when the supply of oxygen to the brain is insufficient, for any reason," Dr. Fox said. "Anesthesiologists usually rely on blood prssure, heart rate, and EKG readings to monitor the patient's condition."

But those readings fall short as warning signals to the anesthesiologist, Mitnick said, because they are indirect indicators.

"Three minutes is approximately the maximum time the brain can go without oxygen and not be permanently damaged," Mitnick said. "Lack of oxygen supply to the brain can leave a patient in a vegetative state."

Dr. Fox said the NIROS-SCOPE is "an invaluable tool" for the anesthesiologist.

"It gives us, for the first time, a continuous, non-invasive way of directly monitoring the amount of oxygen available to the nerve cells in the brain for proper function and survival," she said.

Invented and developed by Duke physiology professor Dr. Frans Jobsis, the instrument has been patented and licensed to the American Hospital Supply Corp. Jobsis hopes to see the instrument commercially available in 1983 and widely used by hospitals within the next few years.

The NIROS-SCOPE works by shining different "colors" of near infrared light through the skin and skull into the brain and measuring how much of that light comes back out.

"I discovered that infrared light can penetrate skin and bone tissue much more easily than thought before," Jobsis said. "I also discovered that brain tissue changes its absorption of this kind of light depending on the amount of oxygen available to the nerve cells."

Jobsis said recent advances in near infrared light sources and detectors coupled with recent advances in microelectronics and microcomputers "set the stage for development of a new instrument for clinical use."

Various versions of the NIROS-SCOPE have been tested on animals and human volunteers.

The infrared light is carried thorugh hairlike strands of glass fibers, bound together in flexible bundles. A tube containing the bundles of optical fibers directs the beam of light into the patient's head. The tubes containing the bundles are attached on the patient's forehead with a simple headgear.

"There is no risk at all to the patients," Dr. Fox said. "You actually get about the same amount of infrared exposure as you do when walking around on a sunny day in North Carolina."

Eagle Ceremony Scheduled Today

The Eagle award, one of scouting's highest achievements, was to be presented to Steve Worley during ceremonies Sunday at St. James United Methodist Church.

The Eagle Scout, son of Mr. and Mrs. Scott Worley of Greenville, is a junior at Rose High School and a member of Troop 340, sponsored by St. James Church.

STEVE WORLEY

For his Eagle project, Worley designed, built and delivered a special walker to aid children with cerebral palsy in walking correctly. Worley also assisted the staff at the United Cerebral Palsy Developmental Center in helping a child use the walker in order to test the design.

Worley began his scouting activites in 1977 and advanced through the tenderfoot, 2nd class, 1st class, star and life ranks before earning the Eagle designation. He has earned nine skill awards and seven merit badges in various areas.

He is a member of the track team at Rose High and was a member of the first place geometry team at the 1981 East Carolina University mathematics contest during his freshman year in school. He is also a member of the science, French and mathematics clubs at Rose High.

Results Reported On ECU Survey Of Freshmen

ECU News Bureau

Well over half of East Carolina University's 1981-82 freshmen came from families with incomes over $20,000 and are the offspring of parents who attended college.

They are also more liberal on some issues — women's equality, federal power, marijuana use, abortion, divorce and premarital sex — than their counterparts on other campuses throughout the nation.

These trends are reported by the 1981 Cooperative Institutional Research Program conducted by the American Council on Education and the University of California at Los Angeles. Results were recently released to individual participating campuses.

According to Dr. Elmer Meyer, ECU's vice chacellor for student life, 70.7 percent of the 2,477 freshmen who entered ECU last year responded to the survey questionnaires.

More than a third of the respondents were in the top 20 percent of their high school classes and ECU was the first choice for 72 percent of the respondents and second choice for 24.4 percent. Nearly a third applied to no other institution and nearly a fourth applied to only one other.

Seventy-three percent selected ECU for what they perceived as a good general academic reputation or specific strengths in educational programs they desired.

The advice of ECU alumni or personal friends motivated another 26.7 percent. Assorted reasons indicated by less than 10 percent included low tuition, offered financial assistance and advice of guidance counselors.

Only 2 percent of the freshmen chose ECU because they wanted to remain at home while attending college, and the majority have homes at some distance from campus — 101-500 miles, 46 percent, and 51-100 miles, 25.5 percent.

The most frequently indicated reasons for attending college noted among ECU's freshmen were: to get a better job, to learn more about specific things, to make more money, to gain a general education and to meet new people.

Meyer said that the 38.1 percent of "reborn Christians" among ECU's freshmen remains higher than the national average but has declined almost 6 percent since a similar 1980 survey.

The religious affiliation of half the students is Protestant. Roman Catholics make up 12.4 percent. Jewish respondents comprised slightly over 1 percent, with 32.1 percent indicating "other" and 4.2 percent indicating "none" when questioned about religious preference.

As noted above, ECU freshmen are more liberal on some social and economic issues than the national average for first-year college students.

On other issues they are about the same, but they are at least 3 percentage points more conservative on seven current topics: homosexuality, a national health program, drafting women into the military, cohabitation between the sexes, capital punishment, more taxes for the wealthy and open admission to college.

Their goals are primarily along "establishment" lines: 78.7 percent want to become authorities in their professional fields and 70.8 percent want to be financially secure.

"Help others in difficulty" is a goal for 57.2 percent of the males and 75.9 percent of females, and "raise a family" is a plan for 65.3 percent of males and 64.1 percent of females.

All but 19.5 percent of the freshman are getting some financial help from their parents, and concern about financing their education is "major" only to 18.6 percent.

Dr. Meyer noted that 42.3 percent of the ECU respondents were male and 57.7 were female. Eighty-eight percent of the respondents were white, 10.6 percent were black and 2.4 percent of other racial origin.

Participating in the national study were 192,248 freshmen from 368 campuses — junior colleges, senior colleges and universities.

Polynesian Dancer An Illustrated Man

By MIKE LEIDEMANN
Associated Press Writer

HONOLULU (AP) — It took four years, $35,000 and a search that extended from Western Samoa to West Germany, but Ioteve Puhetini has finally fulfilled his greatest dream. He's an illustrated man.

Puhetini, an entertainer in a Polynesian dance troupe in Honolulu, was 17 years old when he first got the idea of receiving a full body tattoo in the style of ancient warriors from his native Marquesas Islands.

He had migrated to Papeete, Tahiti, from the Tiiohi district in French Polynesia when he first saw drawings of his ancestors tattoed from the neck to the ankles.

"It made me so proud, I wanted to do something to honor my people," Puhetini said.

Tattooing, however, had been outlawed in the islands more than 120 years before by missionaries who viewed the practice as heathenish, idolatrous and unhealthy. Since then, the art had been lost entirely in the islands, and there was no one to tattoo him.

Eventually, Puhetini found his way to Honolulu where he linked up with the popular dance review headed by Matagialalua Tavana, a Tahitian-born chief known for helping young islanders arriving in Hawaii.

"When Teve first started talking about getting a full tattoo, I didn't know if it could be done," Tavana said. "I didn't know if he nould stand the pain." But Tavana took the young singer and dancer into his extended family, and soon began giving more and more thought to helping Puhetini.

Tavana bristles at the suggestion that the idea of an illustrated man was a publicity stunt designed to impress the hundreds of tourists who see his show each night.

"Teve begged me," he said. "But I wouldn't let him do it until I was sure everything would be authentic. I'd never let him put a tattoo on that didn't belong to him."

To guarantee authenticity, Tavana began more than a year of research into the methods and designs of ancient tattooing. The research took him from Honolulu to Tahiti and Samoa and eventually to Germany, whose early visitors in the islands had left some of the best descriptions of ancient ways.

It was in a West German archive that Tavana found the design Puhetini wanted — a 19th-century lithograph of a fully tattooed warrior of Puhetini's own Teii tribe.

Tavana hired Honolulu artist Jordon Lum to transform the 6-by-8-inch lithograph into a lifesize drawing suited to Puhetini's tall, muscular body.

Meanwhile, he began negotiations with Western Samoa's Minister of Culture Asi Elkeni, who oversees the four men still licensed there to practice tattooing by ancient methods.

The tattooers, or "tufugas," use pieces of shaved bone, ranging in size from 5 centimeters to nearly 2 inches across and attached to a wooden handle, to tap a mixture of ash soot and water into the bodies of the bravest men and women in the islands. The soot mixture produces a uniform blue-gray ink color.

Normally a full-body tattoo would be applied over several years to minimize the pain and danger of infection. But Tavana asked "tufuga" Lesa Li'o to reproduce the Marquesan designs on Puhetini's body in six weeks to keep down the expenses of their stay in the islands. For good measure, and because he considered it his duty as Puhetini's chief, Tavana decided to have a wide swath of his back and abdomen tattooed as well.

So, for six hours a day, five days a week beginning last August, the two lay in an open-air home near Apia, Western Samoa, while Li'o tapped and chiseled away at their bodies, beginning with the back first, then moving on to the sides and finally the stomach and legs.

"It hurt the most in the groin and the underarms," Puhetini said. 'But all of it was horrible."

The Samoans, who had never seen as complete a tattoo as Puhetini's, were so impressed with his bravery that they paid him the rare honor of making him a "matefili" or prophet. To make it official they tattooed the word on his left foot.

Like Ancient Warrior

EXTERIOR DECORATION — Entertainer Ioteve Puhetini proudly shows off his full-body tattoo, received over a six-week period in Western Samoa. The design is one copied from a drawing of a warrior from Puhetini's Teii tribe made more than 200 years ago.

A Review

A Summer Bonus Of Poems

Tar River Poetry. Spring 1982. Volume 21, Number 2. Paper, 56 pages, $2.50. Greenville, East Carolina University.

"Tar River Poetry" editor Peter Makuck can be proud of an exciting poetry scoop. Five poems by the great 20th century Austro-German poet Rainer Maria Rilke appear for the first time anywhere in English in this issue. The quintet of poems are ones translated from the original French by A. Poulin Jr., noted for his translation of Rilke's German "Duino" and "Orpheus" sequences pubished by Houghton Mifflin in 1979.

All five poems — "Gong," "Memories of Muzot," "Graves," "The Three Carriers" and "Lies" — are stamped with the strong images, the haunting sense of mystery, and the profundity of human emotions that characterize Rilke's work.

"We live on an ancient bartering ground where all's given, all's surrendered — but our heart often swaps an Angel for the vanity of an absent sky. . ."
(From "Memories of Muzot")

And a verse in "Graves" in a sense capsules the mixture of gentle ecstasy and sorrow so prevalent in much of Rilke's work

"It was to this, then, to this perfect music that all in you consented, lover and sister.
The earth sings you; we feel the tilt of its head, but its mouth is turned toward someplace else."

In the third verse of "Lies," Rilke gives us these lines that translates into English in a rythm beautiful in its tightly furled cadance.

"Compromising cemetery,
full of avoidable resurrections;
parrots drunk on palpable words, their impervious tongue
infatuated with . . .
Taste of painted fruit."

Several poems in this issue relate to the play of lights sensed while the observer either travels and stands and watches light. In "Night Ride, Berkshire County," poet Gregoire Turgeon employs the head and tail lights of a car as symbols of journeying in the night hours, then adds a verse on moonlight that

"opens whole meadows and pastures for the magic of shadowed horses and shapes of tractors cutting silhouettes.
It drifts across the lawns of houses sometimes miles apart. . ."

Jane Coleman, in "From Sister Helen's Diary" captures an essential human sensual longing

"The chestnut tree fires evening with candles, the virgin stands enshrined, inviolate, above the quiet pool where sparrows come to drink, bowing their heads.
Wanting you, I can no longer bend mine in supplication.
Wanting your male body, unconfined, your eyes, bright as that blue pool where the virgin muses on my sins."

Three local poets are represented in this issue — Hal J. Daniel III and Jim Smith, both professors at East Carolina University, and freelance writer and poet Jim Rivers. These three have read their poetry locally on several occasions, and all have previously been published. Since moving to Greenville, Rivers has found material for poetry in the local scene. For example, in the two "Culpepper" poems he has contributed to this issue, he writes in "Culpepper Redeemed"

"He emerges from The First Foursquare
Church of the Divine Apogee
Corruption, The Devil and Rebel Yell."

The Spring 1982 issue of "Tar River Poetry" is a truly fine bonus of some of the best poetry being written anywhere today. More than two dozen poets, American and foreign, several of them well-known poets, have contributed. As usual, a couple of insightful, highly readable reviews of recent volumes of poetry enrich the offering.

Book News

By LINDA M. STANCILL

New biographies recently added to the library's collection include famous people of the present as well as the past.

Ben Wilder and David Hapgood reveal one of history's greatest crimes in "The Murder of Napoleon." In this gripping narrative of the Emperor's final years in exile on the remote island of St. Helena, he mysteriously sickens, suffering bout after bout of extreme nausea, chills and weakness in the legs.

Expiring at 51 after a lifetime of robust health, Napolean himself suspected something other than natural causes and ordered a thorough autopsy. His suspicions were well-founded but until recent developments in forensic science it was impossible to prove a case of murder, let alone name the killer.

Now, 150 years later, Wilder and Hapgood assert that Dr. Sten Forshufvud, a Swedish expert on poison, has cited the cause of Napoleon's death as arsenic poisoning rather than stomach cancer. By reading the memoirs of Napoleon's valet, a 20-year inquest and a feat of detection, this 20th century detective has produced one of history's greatest surprises.

Fred Lawrence Guiles presents a fascinating look at one of our most intriguing and controversial public figures today in "Jane Fonda: The Actress in Her Time." Guiles' expert commentary catches her in motion and pursues her in a tireless route of study, self-discovery and social awareness that causes her ultimately to reject the "beautiful people" life-style of her first husband, Roger Vadim, for the role of political activist with her present husband, Tom Hayden. He shows how the shift in political climate transforms her from history's scourge to history's darling, and despite government harrassment and public scorn for her radical beliefs, she achieves international acclaim for her action and twice received the Academy Award for best actress. Candid interviews with friends, relatives and colleagues enrich this admiring, honest portrait of an exceptional woman of many identities, a powerhouse within the Hollywood industry.

"From Housewife to Heretic" depicts Sonia Johnson's struggle for equal rights and her excommunication from the Mormon Church. A heroine of the Equal Rights movements. Sonia Johnson's dramatic true story goes beyond the account of that heartrending year when her life came apart and presents an insider's view of the present-day Mormon Church and its male-dominated hierarchy. She gives a fascinating account of her gradual, even unwilling, progression from self-denial to activism in her story of loss and rebirth, despair and fulfillment. "From Housewife to Heretic" is a book for the millions of women trying to reconcile their belief in feminism with their belief in the family and religion.

Big Band Era Music Is Sunday In The Park Fare

Today's Sunday in the Park performance, the second of seven for the summer of 1982, will focus on musical favorites performed by well known American Big Band leaders of the 1930s and 1940s, interpreted for today's audience by a 13-piece band from East Carolina University.

At 7 p.m. at the Sunday in the Park site east of Reade and between Third and Fourth Streets, George Broussard will lead a dozen brass and percussion music makers in a program designed to bring back memories to the older generation and to introduce younger listeners to musical styles prevalent before their time. (In the event of inclement weather, rain date for the concert is 7 p.m. Monday at the same site).

Songs popular with audiences for dancing and listening years ago by big name band leaders like Duke Ellington, Glenn Miller, Woody Herman, Les Brown, Harry James and Stan Kenton will be on the program — favorites such as "Don't Get Around Much Anymore," "Moonlight Serenade," "Swanee River," "Early Autumn," "Riff," and "Jamie."

Among today's featured soloists is trumpeter Dick Gable, an alumnus of the Elliot Lawrence, Glenn Miller and Woody Herman bands. Other musicians in the band have a wide range of experience. Some of them have worked with such notables in popular music as Billy May, Woody Herman, Warren Covington, Ray McKinley, Roger Pemberton, Van Moore, the bands of Glenn Miller, Tommy Dorsey and Bob Crosby, and others.

In addition to Broussard, who plays the trombone as well as conducts, and Gable, other members of the band, drawn from the faculty and student body of the ECU School of Music are:

- Saxophones — Gary Liebst, Willie Morris, Scott Ireland, and Brad Foley.
- Trumpets — Steve Morgan and Joel Schultz.
- Trombones — Rich Moncure and Steve Irwin.
- Piano — Val Parker; bass, Dave Garza; and drums, Dave Albert.

Patrons attending these concerts are encouraged to bring along old blankets, pillows, folding chairs and other items that will add to their personal comfort while listening. There is no admission charged, and everyone is welcome.

Sunday in the Park is funded by the City of Greenville, and is coordianted by Stuart Aronson under the auspices of the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department.

Monteverdi Operas Being Aired On PBS

CHAPEL HILL — Following the June 14 performance of Claudio Monteverdi's opera, "The Return of Ulysses," The Center for Public Television, UNC-Chapel Hill, will air two other Monteverdi operas during June.

At 9 p.m. Monday, "The Coronation of Poppea" will be presented. The first opera to make use of historical figures rather than mythlocial ones, "Poppea" takes up the story of Rome and its emporors following the reign of Claudius. The story is about Nero's ruthless bid to exile his wife and crown his mistress, Poppea, as empress. The cast of the opera includes Rachel Yakar as Poppea and Eric Tappy as Nero.

At 9 p.m. June 28, Monteverdi's "Orpheus," written in 1607, will be aired. This is his first opera and only the sixth "dramma per musica," as the infant musical form was then known. The international cast will include Philippe Huttenlocher as Orpheus, with Euridice portrayed on the screen by Dietlinde Turban and sung by Rachel Yakar.

Greenville Dance Students To Attend NCSA Session

Four dance students of the N.C. Academy of Dance Arts in Greenville will attend a five-week summer session at the North Carolina School of the Arts in Winston-Salem this summer. Students from all over the United States will be taking part in the program.

Three of the four are from Greenville — Carmela Weber, a student at Rose High, and Heidi Schellenberger and Sarah Burden, both students at Aycock. The fourth dance student, Marti Roberson, is from Robersonville and is a student at Hobgood Academy.

In addition to the four selected, two other students will attend the NCSA summer session. These are Karen Forehand, a 1982 Rose High graduate who will be attending NCSA this fall, and Marnie Stokes, a student at Aycock.

The N.C. Academy of Dance in Greenville was founded in 1981 by Sherryl Mercer, the academy's director. At the time the academy was established, girls of ages 10-15 were auditioned by Petrus van Muyden, assistant professor of dance, East Carolina University, for a program of intensive instruction. Of 30 that auditioned, 13 were selected for their potential as dancers. During their first year, the girls have followed a structured ballet syllabus, receiving training five days a week from 5:30 to 6:30 p.m. The students are also required to continue training during the summer.

Ms. Mercer is an ECU gradute with a degree in dance. She has had masterclasses with Melissa Hayden and Frank Wagner and has performed in dance concerts on campus and as a guest dancer in other performances.

Greenville Native Nicky Harris Releases A New Single Record

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

Greenville's Nicky Harris is an aspiring composer-singer band leader who readily admits to "preferring to write and sing slower ballad type songs, what I call uptown-country music." This week his second record, a single, is being released in the two Carolinas, Virginia and Tennessee. A 1966 Box-Tops hit, "Soul Deep," is on one side, with one of his own compositions, "When I Dream," on the flip side.

The 32-year old performer was attracted to music early in life, "listening to my father, Rocky Harris, play songs like 'Stardust' and 'San Antonio Rose' on his guitar. I was already hooked on music when I graduated from Rose High in 1968," he recalls.

After graduating from high school and attending Pitt Community College, Nicky married a Belvoir girl, Deborah Warren. The couple has two daughers. "Tina is 11 today (June 16) and it's also my 32nd birthday," Nicky said about his first child, who was his 21st birthday present. "Our youngest daughter is Misty, now 11 months old.

"Tina's like her mother, ready for sleep when ten o'clock comes. I think Misty's going to be a night owl, like me. When I come in at late hours after a performance, she's up, wide awake, ready to play and be fed."

The "Soul Deep/When I Dream" combination was recorded on the Carolina Records label by Harris and Nashville producer John Stacey at Reflections Studios, and was mastered at Marty Robbins' studio, both in Nashville. Veteran enginner Joes Mills, whose credits include Loretta Lynn's latest hit, engineered the project.

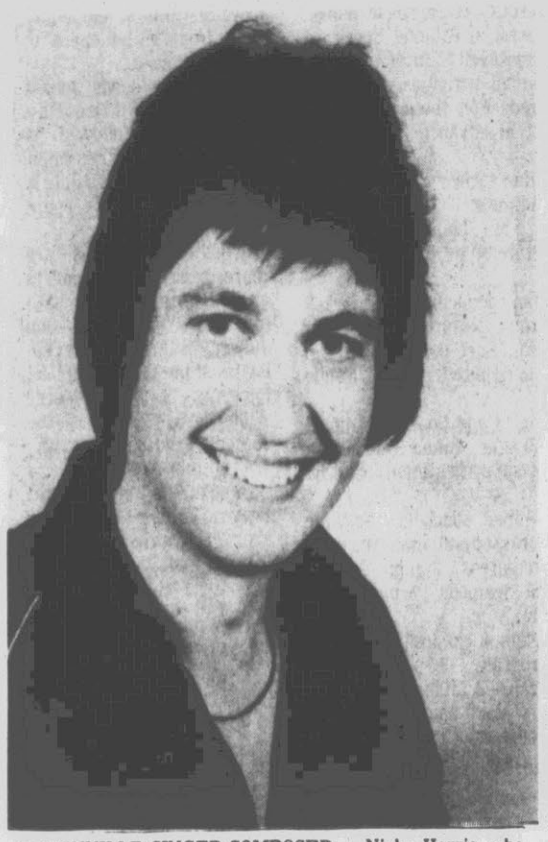

Nicky has been performing, off and on, since high school days. "At first we played in places that ranged from beer dives where we had to be on the watch out for knife-wielding patrons to junior-senior proms," he recalls. Then, after high school, the student group broke up. Not dismayed, Nicky performed with a number of bands throughout the South on one-night stands.

"I first went to Nashville to try my luck in 1972, but since I had taken two weeks off from my job and had to get back, I couldn't stay there to wait for something to turn up," Nicky relates. One thing the trip impressed on him was the tremendous variety in styles of country-popular music. "I found out then what type of music I like to sing, and I began to focus on that style, songs with a good hook and a melody line that lingers in the mind after the song is ended."

For two consecutive years, 1978 and 1979, Nicky was a semifinalist in the Country Music Division of the American song festival. "This is not one of those advertising gimmicks, but a highly respected, prestigious competition for amateurs and professionals," Nicky commented. "This encouraged me to try my hand to get one of my songs published, so in 1980 I returned to Nashville." Gary Musick, a young publisher whose company was emerging in Nashville, gave him encouragement, and in the spring of 1981 he was back in Nashville to co-produce and record his first record. In this, as in his just-released second single, Nicky married an old song with one of his originals. The first record contained his own "Playing the Fool Again" coupled with a remake of "This Magic Moment."

Structuring concerts that include his own compositions, current favorites in the top 40 listings, and "a number of good oldies," Nicky says that to date in 1982 "I've been pretty solidly booked." Among places where he and his group are regularly showcased are the Carolina Opry House in Greenville, Dillon's in Roanoke Rapids, Jack's Music World in Rocky Mount, and Bogart's at Louisburg.

"I'm staying busy this summer," Nicky said, "and the good part of it is that people seem to like the kind of music I enjoy singing, music with a definite melody."

GREENVILLE SINGER-COMPOSER ... Nicky Harris, who lives in Belvoir with his wife and two daughters, has a new single record being released this week. The single includes his own composition, "When I Dream," and a remake of the 1966 Box-Tops hit, "Soul Deep." The record will be available in local music stores within a few days.

ECU Exhibit On Depression Days

ECU News Bureau

If you think we're living in hard times, think again. Consider taking a look at "Depression — '30s Style," an exhibit of letters, photographs, newspapers and pamphlets now on display at East Carolina University's Joyner Library.

Drawn from the library's East Carolina Manuscript Collection, the exhibit reveals glimpses of how severely the Great Depression of the 1930s hurt farmers, businessmen, average citizens and even the wealthy classes.

Consider the plight of the people of Falkland during the winter of 1929-1930. Annie Gorham Crisp told her daughter that "there is going to be a lot of suffering for both food and clothes ..." She and other more fortunate citizens volunteered to make clothes for needy children.

Even Alice Hoffman, a wealthy landowner in Carteret County, lamented in 1932 that "life is anything but a 'Bowl of Cherries.'" The latter was a reference to a popular song of the period.

Reaction to poor wages and other adverse conditions of the era were varied, the display shows.

A copy of the High Point Enterprise with banner headlines and typescript from an interview with the editor, Capus Waynick, deals with a violent strike in 1932 by workers at the High Point Hoisery Mills. Waynick helped mediate the strike, and workers fared better than strikers in neighboring communities.

Some of Franklin D. Roosevelt's relief programs — including the now-beleaguered Social Security Act of 1935 — are reflected in correspondence and a speech by Johnett Webb Spillman, who was then commissioner of the N.C. Unemployment Compensation Commission.

We put our foot down about apartments being within walking distance.

Wedgewood Arms apartments are within walking distance of three shopping centers, a nursery school, a junior high school, doctors' and dentists' offices and an athletic center.

As if that wasn't enough, three major traffic arteries; 264 Bypass, Arlington Blvd., and Charles St. are close enough to be seen and not heard.

Fact is, no apartments in town can legitimately claim to be more convenient to more things than Wedgewood Arms.

And, that's not all. Because Wedgewood Arms is not only convenient, it's different in other ways, too.

Take the floorplans: they're different from anything you've ever seen. And when you add in high energy efficiency, tennis courts, swimming pool, and the neighborhood "feeling" that these apartments will give you—well, you'll just have to see for yourself.

Call us for an appointment today.

Watson, Rogers Tied For U.S. Open Lead

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus surveyed the big board that lists the standings of the leaders going into Sunday's final round of the 82nd United States Open Golf Championship.

"It could be a very good final. There are some good names on the board," he said.

His is among them, not as close to the top as he'd like, but still very much in the chase for a record fifth American national championship.

The top names are those of Tom Watson and Bill Rogers, the men who have swept the last five Player of the Year awards. they're tied at 212, four under par, and will play in the same twosome Sunday over the last 18 holes for the most coveted of the world's golf championships.

But it's definitely not a two-man chase. Thirteen players are locked within 4 strokes of each other at the top.

"The Open championship is very important to me," said Watson, who has collected two Masters crowns and three British Open titles, but has yet to take the biggest of them all.

"I'm gonna try my damnedest to win. If I don't, there's always next year. If it happens, it happens. If I don't there's always next year. You have to be patient."

Rogers, who last year interrupted Watson's four-year reign as Player of the Year and captured the 1981 British Open title, said virtually the same a few moments later.

"The key to the whole thing is patience," said Rogers. "You have to learn from experience. Any time you're in the pressure cooker you need to have the confidence that comes from having previously won a major championship.

"Sure, I'd like to win, but there will be another one and another one. It's not a life or death situation."

They'll be paired together in the final group off the tee at 1:05 p.m., PDT, Sunday.

"Tom and I have played together before and we know what to expect from each other. It won't be match play. I'll play my game and he'll play his," said Rogers, a runner-up in this event a year ago.

"I've had two good chances to win the Open and haven't done it. So this is the third chance. Maybe the third time is a charm," said Watson.

Watson, gritty and freckle-faced, birdied two of the last three holes for a 4-under-par 68 on one of his favorite courses, the mist-shrouded forests and glens and cliffs and crags that make up the Pebble Beach Golf Links.

Rogers, a fast pacer called "The Panther" by his fellow pros, shot a 69 in the cool, calm weather under gray, leaden skies that occasionally leaked a drizzling rain.

It was 2 shots back to George Burns, Scott Simpson and a pair of transplanted Australians who happen to be close friends, defending champion David Graham and 44-year-old Bruce Devlin. They were tied at 214, two under par.

Graham, seeking to become the first man to successfully defend this title since Ben Hogan in 1951, dropped a 35-foot birdie putt on the final hole to finish off a 69 that put him very much in contention going into Sunday's final round.

"Obviously, I've got a chance, don't I?" said Graham.

Devlin, now a sometime tour player who spends most of his time as a golf television commentator and course architect, held a 2-shot lead at the end of 18 holes, but couldn't hang on to it. Devlin, whose last victory came 10 years ago, did not make a birdie despite the near-ideal playing conditions, and struggled to a 75.

Burns, who led at the end of 54 holes in this tournament last year, closed with a 70 and Simpson, a steady money-winner on the PGA Tour, matched par 72.

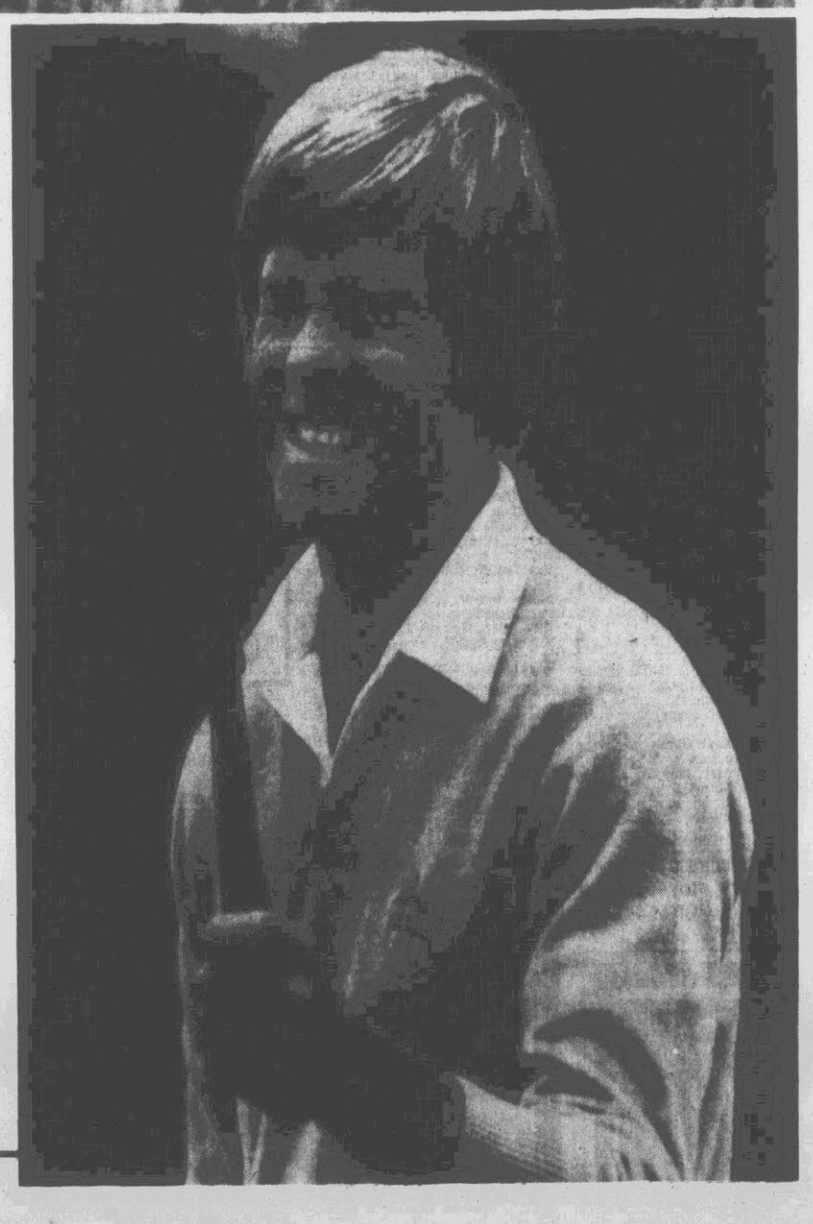

Jack Nicklaus had a 71 that kept alive his hopes for a record fifth U.S. Open crown. He was at 215, only 3 back, and tied with Cal Peete, who shot a 72.

"I played well enough — again," said Nicklaus, who holds a record 17 major professional title. Again, however, he was victimized by some indifferent putting, letting chances slip away as the holes went by to 2-putt pars.

"Seventy-one is a decent round of golf," Nicklaus said. "But I'll have to shoot a little bit better tomorrow if I'm to have a shot at winning the golf tournament.

D.H. Conley's Long Named Male H.S. Athlete Of Year

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer

HOLLYWOOD — D.H. Conley wrestling coach Milt Sherman noticed it not long after first meeting Michael Long.

"He had that little extra spark that a champion needs," Sherman said. "From the ninth grade on he had the ability to come from behind. When you combine his physical ability and his winning desire you've got a good one."

Long displayed just how good he can be during the state high school wrestling tournament when he pinned all four of his opponents in the first period to win the state title at 188 pounds.

THE DAILY REFLECTOR
SUNDAY MORNING
JUNE 20, 1982

That effort won Long the "Outstanding Wrestler of the Year" award at the state tournament. And, it was that, plus his ability on the football field, which helped him become the first Daily Reflector Male High School Athlete of the Year.

Long joins Tootie Robbins and Sam Jones in winning the first-ever award from the Reflector. Robbins was named the male and Jones female collegiate athlete of the year.

The Reflector will announce its Female High School Athlete of the Year next Sunday.

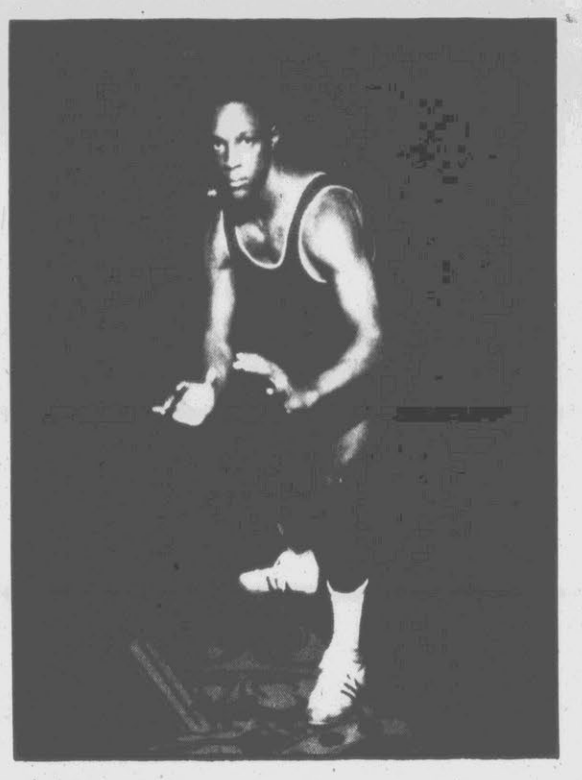

Long, a junior, started at linebacker in DHC's 5-2 defense and at tight end for the Vikings and was one of just three unanimous choices for the Coastal Conference All-Conference team and was honorable mention All-East.

Long, a 6-0, 192-pounder, led the Vikings in tackles with 143. He intercepted two passes and picked up two fumbles.

But, it was his prowess in wrestling that enabled him to beat out Greenville Rose's Chris McLawhorn, a Shrine Bowl performer for the Rampants this season, for the award. McLawhorn played wide receive on the Rampants' football team and also was on the track team.

Long faced four opponents on his way to the state wrestling title, and each fell in the first period by pin.

"It was an outstanding performance," Sherman said. "I think I compared it at the time to a Golden Gloves boxer knocking out four opponents in the first round.

D.H. Conley's Michael Long

"I'm not aware of anyone ever doing this before. I'm sure someone has pinned his way to the state title, but I doubt anyone has every done it in the first period."

Long geared himself for the state tournament by winning the conference crown for the third straight season, advancing to the finals of the sectionals and then taking the regional title.

During the regular season, Long, who was 27-3-1 this year, was second at the Bull Durham Classic and the Plymouth Invitational and led the Vikings in most victories (27), most pins (19), fastest pin (15 seconds) and most team points (189).

Last week Long added another title to his list when he won the United States Wrestling Federation State Greco championships. The victory qualified him for the National Greco Championships set for the last week of July at the University of Iowa.

"He is a very gifted athlete and he has worked hard to improve his ability," Sherman said. "He's got the physical tools and he's been willing to work on his own to improve himself.

"He learns well," Sherman added. "In any sport, you've got techniques you need to learn. He learns techniques well and he'll apply them. If he likes a particular technique, he'll work on it and try to get it down."

Sherman said Long has recieved the normal influx of letters from colleges and universities that come from winning the state title and Sherman believes Long has the ability to wrestle in college.

Said Sherman: "I feel like he does have the ability to compete at that level in both wrestling and football. I can't speak for football, but he definitely can compete in wrestling."

DHC football coach Gerald Garner can speak to Long's football ability. Garner feels Long may have a chance to play college football, depending on how hard he works and how the upcoming season goes.

Garner said coaches from North Carolina, Clemson and East Carolina have looked at Long and seem interested.

"There's no question he can play college ball," Garner said. "But, whether he can play at Carolina or Clemson or East Carolina I don't know. It depends on how much he works on his foot speed, which is his only weakness."

Garner said Long was by far the best athlete on the team, but one that leads more by works than words.

"I'd describe him as a game player," Garner said. "He really goes unnoticed in practice."

Come game time, however, Long is ready. "He will hit you," Garner said. "He will rock your jock. He'll knock you into the middle of next week."

Both Garner and Sherman, while giving Long his due athletically, are quick to point out he is in the "college prep" curriculum at Conley and is more than another jock.

Long is also a fine artist and had one of the leading roles in Conley's recent musical "South Pacific."

"The great thing about him," Garner said, "is he's a good kid, a good student and he has a good attitude."

Davis' Homer Helps NCSU Down ECU, 9-3

RALEIGH — Doug Davis hit a two-run homer to spark a six-run second inning as North Carolina State cruised to a 9-3 victory over East Carolina Saturday in North State League baseball.

Pitcher Mike Psavento went the distance for the Wolfpack, giving up six hits and striking out four en route to his fourth victory in as many starts this season.

The Wolfpack, 8-4, capitalized on strong hitting and poor fielding by the Pirates to chase East Carolina starter and loser Bob Davidson, 2-2, from the game in the second inning.

ECU falls to 3-8 with the loss.

After the Wolfpack took a 1-0 lead in the first on Tracey Black's double that scored Chris Baird, NSCU struck for six runs in the second to all but put the game away.

Tim Barbour reached base on an error by David Wells at third and Davis followed with a home run. Bob Hoffman then singled, stole second and scored on Shane Gahagan's double to make it 4-0.

Baird then reached base on an error to score Gahagan and later stole second before scoring on Black's single. Black scored on Jim Tomar's single for the final run of the inning.

ECU managed one run in the third. Robert Langston and Ricky Nichols singled and Pete Persico followed with a sacrifice fly to score Langston. Wells struck out to end the inning.

NCSU got the run back in the bottom of the inning when Davis reached base on an error by Persico and scored on Moe Barbour's single.

The Pirates scored twice in the sixth to cut the gap to 8-3. Persico walked, Wells singled and Todd Evans singled to score Persico. Wells later scored on an error.

NCSU got its final run in the sixth on a run-scoring single by Tracy Woodson which scored Baird.

The Wolfpack had three consecutive singles in the inning.

Wells had two hits in three at bats for ECU. Black had three hits to pace the Wolfpack.

Davidson was one of three pitchers for the Pirates. He walked five and struck out one and gave up five hits and seven runs — five earned — before leaving in the second inning.

Benitez, Hearns Set To Fight

Contract May Be Signed Tuesday For October Meeting

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Thomas Hearns, reportedly itching to get back into the ring, is set to sign a contract to oppose World Boxing Council junior middleweight champion Wilfred Benitez in a title fight in October, Hearns' trainer-manager Emanuel Steward said Saturday.

"It looks like we'll sign the papers on Tuesday," said Steward, who earlier had thought the contract would be finalized sometime Saturday night when Hearns and a Benitez' representative arrived in town.

"We're going to wait until all Benitez' people get here by Tuesday and then we'll be running from hotel to hotel to get this thing down in writing," added Steward. "It should be no problem."

Steward arrived Friday to prepare some of his Kronk Gymnasium boxers for a series of fights here Tuesday night. Hearns is scheduled to begin light workouts in suburban Scottsdale starting Sunday afternoon.

According to Steward, only "minor hassles" are left to be hammered out for the Hearns-Benitez title bout — primarily, television rights.

The fight will probably be held in Las Vegas, Nev., with the 23-year-old boxers earning $3 million each, Steward added.

Benitez has a 43-1-1 record while Hearns stands 33-1 with only two middleweight bouts under his belt. Hearns hasn't fought since Feb. 27 when he knocked out veteran middleweight Marcos Geraldo in the first round at Las Vegas.

"Thomas is itching to get back," Steward said. "He wants Benitez. This fight would have had to take place sooner or later."

Should Hearns win, Steward said his fighter may then face middlweight champ Marvin Hagler "sometime around the first of the year."

A Hagler-Hearns bout had been scheduled for July 15 in Windsor, Ontario. It was canceled, Steward said, due to a contract dispute with promoter Bob Arum of Top Rank, Inc., and because Hearns wanted the site switched closer to his hometown of Detroit — specifically, the Silverdome in Pontiac, Mich.

Hagler scoffed at the change, claiming the challenger was calling the shots, and said Hearns "didn't want to fight me from the beginning ... He'll always be afraid to fight me."

In an interview with The Associated Press last week here, Hearns said he "will have no problems" beating Hagler.

"Thomas purposely wanted to get Hagler for personal reasons. He felt it would give him more credibility," said Steward. "But this is the fight (against Benitez) we've had in the background all along."

Meanwhile, Steward said he is "90 percent certain" that Phoenix will be the site of proposed July 10 fight between top-ranked welterweights Roger Stafford and Milton McCrory.

Stafford, 19-2-1 and ranked as the No.1 contender by both the WBC and World Boxing Association, had been scheduled to oppose world welterweight champ Sugar Ray Leonard in April at Buffalo, N.Y. But the bout was canceled when Leonard underwent surgery May 9 for a detached retina in his left eye.

"It automatically means that the winner is in a powerful decision," Steward said. "If Ray decides to fight again, it's obvious he's going to have to fight one of these two before he can even think about Hagler or anyone else."

McCrory, 18-0 and the No. 2 ranked contender by the WBA and WBC, has won 17 of his fights by knockout. He beat Detroit's Pete Ranzany on a 10-round decision in his last bout three months ago.

Lewis Powers To 100-Meter Win

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Carl Lewis took the first big step toward a second consecutive double in the USA-Mobil Outdoor Track and Field Championships, powering to victory in the 100-meter dash Saturday night.

The remarkable, 20-year-old Lewis, winner of the 100 and long jump last year in the national championships at Sacramento, Calif., took the sprint in 10.11 seconds

Immediately after crossing the finish line, he headed for the long jump area, where the trials and final were scheduled to begin about 10 minutes after the dash.

Lewis' clocking broke the meet record of 10.13 he set last year.

His closest competition this time came from Calvin Smith of the University of Alabama. The diminutive Smith stayed with Lewis for about the first 80 meters, but the strong University of Houston sophomore then blasted his way in front and raised his index finger in victory as he sped past the tape.

No athlete has won the 100 and long jump twice in a row in the national championships since Malcolm Ford did it three times, from 1884-1886. When Lewis accomplished the rare double last year, it was the first time it had been done since Jesse Owens did it in 1936.

While Lewis was bidding for his rare double, Stephanie Hightower, formerly of Ohio State University, equaled the American record in the women's 100-meter high hurdles with a time of 12.86.

Hightower's clocking tied the mark set by Deby LaPlante in 1979.

"Everything felt good all the way down," said Hightower, who outsped crowd favorite Benita Fitzgerald of the University of Tennessee. "I didn't hit anything (hurdles).

"I have been trying for a record," she added. "But until now, I had been trying entirely too hard."

Another impressive women's winner was sprinter Evelyn Ashford. She took the 100 in 10.97, the fifth fastest time in history and only .09 off the world record of 10.88, held by Marlies Gohr of East Germany.

Ashford had to battle to hold off Merlene Ottey of Jamaica and the University of Nebraska.

Wearing her usual one-piece suit, a bright red outfit, the swift Ashford led all the way in beating the long-legged Ottey, whose time of 11.06 was a British Commonwealth record.

Willie Gault, another Tennessee standout and a favorite with the crowd at the school's Tom Black Stadium, blazed to victory in the men's 110-meter hurdles in 13.54.

Gault, tutored by world record holder Renaldo Nehemiah — who has given up hurdling for a lucrative pro football career with the San Francisco 49ers — led virtually all the way in beating Milan Stewart of the University of Southern California, the runner-up in 13.63.

"It's very special to be in front of a crowd that's used to seeing me run for touchdowns," said Gault, one of the nation's outstanding football wide receivers.

Gault and Stewart both broke the track record of 13.74 set last year by Charles Foster.

Perhaps the biggest disappointmznt for the fans was the failure of Edwin Moses, the world record holder and 1976 Olympic champion, to run in the semifinals of the 400-meter intermediate hurdles.

Moses, scheduled to make his 1982 debut in quest of his 73rd consecutive victory in the hurdles, was a late withdrawal because of injury.

"I have a muscle strain very high in the rear of my right leg," explained Moses. "I first suffered the injury at the IS-TAF meet in Berlin last August and re-strained the same muscle three weeks ago.

"I came to Knoxville with the intention of competing because I wanted to see what would happen," he said. "I've never had a serious injury and I want to avoid one at all costs.

"It's really cramped. It's not a tear or pull or anything like that. It's just an injury that takes time to heal."

In Moses' absence, Andre Phillips and David Lee won the hurdles semifinal heats in leading the way into Sunday's final. Phillips' time of 48.81 broke the track record of 49.09 set by James Walker in 1980.

"I am kind of neutral about Edwin being out of the competition," said Phillips.. "I respect any decision that he makes."

Another record fell in the final of the men's shot put as Kevin Akins of Ohio State smashed the stadium mark with a winning heave of 69 feet, 9½ inches, his best ever outdoors. The old mark of 69-4¾ was set by Dave Laut in Friday's qualifying.

Laut's best Saturday night was 68-8, placing him third behind Dean Crouser, the NCAA champion from the University of Oregon, the runner-up at 69-1½.

"I found out two weeks ago that the shot I had been using for the whole outdoor season weighed 17 pounds," said the surprised Akins. The normal weight for a shot put is 16 pounds.

Several other records were broken.

Ria Stalman of The Netherlands won the women's discus at 203-10, erasing the meet and stadium marks. Edna Brown of Temple cracked the track record in the women's 400-meter hurdles in winning her semifinal heat in 57.35.

And Wilt's Athletic Club bettered the track record in the women's 400-meter relay, winning its semifinal heat in 43.60. Six other teams also went under the previous mark of 45.11. Running for Wilt's team were LaShon Nedd, Jeanette Bolden, Alice Brown and Florence Griffith.

Bob Roggy, the only American ever to throw the javelin over 300 feet, didn't reach his best of 307-6, but still won his specialty at 289-9, breaking meet and stadium records.

Canada's Debbie Brill equaled the meet record and erased the stadium mark by winning the women's high jump at 6-4¾.

Matt Centrowitz did not set any records in winning the men's 5,000 meters in 13:31.96, but he did close in on a mark by taking the event for the fourth straight year. Only Greg Rice, a five-time winner from 1938-1942, ever has captured more consecutive 5,000 national titles than Centrowitz.

In another final, the Los Angeles Naturite Track Club team of Sharon Dabney, Sherri Howard, Denean Howard and Rosalyn Bryant took the women's 1,600-meter relay in a fast 3:28.68, breaking the track record.

Area Games Rained Out

Rain forced postponement Friday of games involving both East Carolina and Pitt County and a number of other area baseball games.

ECU was to have played North Carolina in a double-header in Chapel Hill Friday evening, but rain forced the games to be split up and rescheduled for June 25 and July 6 in Greenville.

The two teams were already scheduled to play single games on June 25 and July 6 and the makeup games will be part of double-headers. On June 25, ECU will be the home team for both games while on July 6 UNC will be considered the home team.

Pitt County's American Legion game with Snow Hill Friday night was rained out and has been rescheduled.

The game will be played June 24 at Harrington Field.

Also rained out Friday night were two Babe Ruth games — Pepsi-Cola vs. Famous Subs and Wachovia Bank vs. Coca-Cola. No makeup date has been set.

Saturday, three Babe Ruth games and two Prep League games were called because of wet fields.

The three Babe Ruth games were Coca-Cola vs. Pepsi-Cola, Wachovia Bank vs. Brown & Wood and Famous Subs vs. Planters. No makeup date has been set.

The two Prep League games — Auto Specialty vs. Shop-eze and Hendrix & Dail vs. First State Bank — have been rescheduled for today — weather permitting.

Both teams scored four runs in the first inning, with two of Moose's coming on a home run by Jay Mattox.

Moose took a 5-4 lead in the second on L.L. Everett's solo home run but First Federal tied the game in the third. One inning later, however, First Federal took the lead for good.

Red Sox Down Indians; Brewers Pound Detroit

CLEVELAND (AP) — Dave Stapleton's two-run single keyed a four-run sixth inning and Bob Stanley hurled 32-3 innings of scoreless relief to spark the Boston Red Sox to a 7-3 victory over the Cleveland Indians Saturday night.

Chuck Rainey, 4-2, pitched the first 51-3 innings for the Red Sox, yielding three runs on six hits before Stanley came on to get his fourth save despite giving up five hits.

The Indians took a 1-0 lead in the third on Mike Fischlin's sacrifice fly. Dwight Evans tied the score for Boston with his third home run of the season leading off the fourth, but Cleveland regained the lead in the fifth when Chris Bando doubled and scored on Miguel Dilone's single.

Jerry Remy and Evans drew walks off Rick Sutcliffe, 5-3, with none out in the Boston sixth. Carney Lansford singled to load the bases and knock out Sutcliffe. Carl Yastrzemski greeted reliever Ed Glynn with a single to tie the score 2-2 and keep the bases loaded.

After Glynn struck out Rich Gedman, Ed Whitson came on to face Stapleton, who singled for a 4-2 Boston lead. Glenn Hoffman followed with a sacrifice fly to score Yastrzemski and make it 5-2.

Cleveland cut the deficit to 5-3 in the sixth on Von Hayes' RBI triple off Rainey. But Stanley came on to strike out Bannister and Bando.

Boston added two runs in the eighth on sacrifice flies by Hoffman and Reid Nichols.

Milwaukee 10
Detroit 3

DETROIT (AP) — Milwaukee's Robin Yount had a pair of homers, including one inside the park, and drove in four runs to lead the Brewers to a 10-3 victory over the slumping Detroit Tigers Saturday night.

Milwaukee's Moose Haas, 4-4, went the distance and scattered nine hits as the Tigers went down to their sixth straight defeat.

The Brewers put the game away with a four-run barrage in the first inning. Paul Molitor worked Jack Morris, 8-7, for a leadoff walk and came home on Yount's 10th home run. Cecil Cooper and Ted Simmons then singled, and Cooper scored on Ben Oglivie's grounder. Gorman Thomas singled Simmons home to make it 4-0 and send Morris to his earliest shower ever after recording just one out. The RBI was the 500th of Thomas' career.

Ed Romero led off the Milwaukee second with a double off reliever Aurelio Lopez, went to third on Marshall Edwards' grounder, and scored on Yount's inside-the-park homer. It was a two-out blast to the 370-foot mark in right-center that bounced off the wall and got away from Detroit center fielder Kirk Gibson.

In the third, Simmons walked and came home on Thomas's 14th home run, a one-out shot off Lopez that made it 8-0. An inning later, Yount drew a two-out walk off Pat Underwood, the third Detroit pitcher, and scored on Cecil Cooper's 11th homer.

Detroit's three runs came in the sixth when Larry Herndon's sacrifice fly drove in Enos Cabell and Richie Hebner slammed his second homer of the season.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Oakland 1

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Consecutive run-scoring doubles by pinch-hitter Garth Iorg and Lloyd Moseby in the 12th inning powered the Toronto Blue Jays to a 3-1 victory over the Oakland A's Saturday.

Jim Clancy and Joe McLaughlin combined to give up only four Oakland hits as the A's lost their fifth in a row.

With one out in the 12th, Damaso Garcia, who had five singles in five at-bats, hit an infield single and took second on a throwing error by second baseman Dave McKay.

Iorg then laced a double down the left field line off reliever Bob Owchinko to score Garcia. Moseby followed with a double to right for another run.

Owchinko, 1-1, took the loss in relief of A's starter Brian Kingman, who worked 101-3 innings and allowed nine hits in his third start since being recalled from Tacoma June 6.

Clancy allowed only one unearned run on three hits in 10 innings, with two walks and 10 strikeouts. McLaughlin, 5-3, earned his second victory in as many days, pitching the final two innings in relief and allowing only one hit.

Oakland scored its only run against Clancy in the fourth inning.

Dwayne Murphy walked after getting new life when Rance Mulliniks dropped his foul popup. Murphy took second on a wild pitch, went to third on Dan Meyer's fly ball and scored on a bloop double by Wayne Gross.

The Blue Jays, who stranded two runners in both the third and fifth innings, finally scored in the seventh when Ernie Whitt singled, went to second on Alfredo Griffin's grounder and scored on Garcia's single.

Chicago 7
California 6

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Steve Kemp blasted a grand slam homer in the fifth inning and finished with five RBI Saturday to give the Chicago White Sox a 7-6 victory over the California Angels.

With Chicago trailing 4-2, Harold Baines led off the fifth with an infield single off starter Geoff Zahn, 7-3, and reached third base on first baseman Rod Carew's throwing error on the play.

After Aurileo Rodriguez was hit by a pitch and Bill Almon walked to load the bases, Luis Sanchez relieved Zahn and surrendered a one-out RBI single to Tony Bernazard before Kemp cleared the bases with his sixth homer of the year.

The White Sox took a 1-0 lead in the first on Kemp's sacrifice fly, but the Angels responded with two runs in both the first and second innings off Rich Dotson, 3-7.

Reggie Jackson hit a two-run shot into the right field stands for his 12th homer of the season, and Tim Foli's RBI double and shortstop Almon's fielding error made it 4-1 in the second.

Chicago first baseman Tom Paciorek pulled the White Sox a run closer with a solo homer in the fourth.

Dotson allowed only four hits after the second inning until he was relieved by Jerry Koosman after Brian Downing doubled with two out in the seventh.

Rod Carew greeted Koosman with an RBI single, extending his batting streak to 23 games and setting a new club record while matching Kent Hrbek's major league high for the season.

Kevin Hickey earned his third save by retiring Jackson on a grounder with two runners in scoring position, ending the game. Earlier in the ninth, Carew's RBI single off Salome Barojas had cut the California deficit to one run.

Minnesota 3

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Buddy Bell homered twice and Lamar Johnson and Dave Hostetler also belted home runs to carry the Texas Rangers to a 6-3 victory over the Minnesota Twins Saturday.

Jon Matlack, 2-5, pitched 61-3 innings to earn the victory. Danny Darwin contained the Twins rest of the way to earn his second save.

The Twins, who have now lost 39 of their last 45 games, fell behind in the second inning after Hostetler led off with triple against Pete Redfern, 3-8. Jim Sundberg followed with a groundout to score Hostetler for a 1-0 Texas lead.

Johnson hit his fourth homer of the year leading off the fourth to put the Rangers ahead 2-0, and Bell opened the sixth with his fifth homer to give Texas a 3-0 lead. One out later, Hostetler hit his seventh homer of the season.

Gary Ward's two-run blast, his seventh homer of the season, trimmed the Texas margin to 4-2 in the sixth.

West Leads N.C. Amateur

GREENSBORO (AP) — Mike West of Burlington Saturday continued to dominate the North Carolina Men's Amateur Golf Championship when he shot a sold back nine holes, expanding his lead by three shots after crusing in with a 71 for a total of 208.

West suffered from two missed putts on the front nine, giving Wake Forest star Mark Thaxton a chance to take the lead. Thaxton tied with West for the lead briefly, but lagged in the back nine with a 40 score.

Mike Roland of Winston-Salem finished the end of the day with a 70 to record a 211. He missed six greens in his third round, but saved pars four times and added two birdies.

Two Charlotte residents are tied for third. Roy Hunter and David Powell both recorded totals of 212 at the end of the day. Powell shot a hot 1-under-par 69, only one of two sub-par scores recorded Saturday.

Bill Plyler of Monroe recorded the best individual score for the day with a 2-under-par 68.

West said the turning point in his play came on the 188-yard, par-3 No. 16 hole. He birdied on the hole, while Roland, who was threatening, missed the green.

L.A.'s Valenzuela NL's First 9-Game Winner

CINCINNATI (AP) — Pedro Guerrero homered and drove in a pair of runs Saturday, enabling Fernando Valenzuela to become the National League's first nine-game winner as the Los Angeles Dodgers beat the Cincinnati Reds 2-1.

Guerrero drove in a run in the first inning when he reached first on an error, then snapped a 1-1 tie with a solo home run in the seventh inning to power the Dodgers to their fifth straight victory.

Valenzuela, 9-5, scattered five hits to beat the Reds for the first time in his career and post his eighth complete game. The left-hander, who retired the last 12 batters he faced, has won four of his last five decisions.

Cesar Cedeno rapped a bases-empty homer in the second inning for Cincinnati's only run.

The Dodgers scored in the first inning, which began with singles by Steve Sax and Ken Landreaux. A double steal put both runners in scoring position and shortstop Dave Concepcion made an errant throw to first base on Guerrero's grounder as Sax scored.

Cedeno hit his sixth homer of the year and third in the last week leading off the second inning to tie the score 1-1.

Cincinnati starter Bruce Berenyi surrendered five hits in eight innings to absorb his seventh loss in 12 decisions.

San Francisco 9
Atlanta 4

ATLANTA (AP) — Chili Davis' grand-slam homer capped a six-run San Francisco rally in the ninth inning as the Giants stormed from behind to defeat the Atlanta Braves 9-4 Saturday night.

With the Giants trailing 4-3, Milt May led off the ninth with a single off Atlanta reliever Gene Garber, 5-3. Champ Summers grounded a single to right, sending pinch-runner Max Venable to third.

Al Hrabosky relieved Garber, and Darrell Evans' grounder forced Summers at second, allowing Venable to score to tie the game 4-4. Tom O'Malley struck out, but pinch-hitter Bob Brenly hit a smash up the middle that was fielded by second baseman Randy Johnson.

Johnson's throw to first could not be handled by first baseman Chris Chambliss, and Evans went to third on the play, scored as an infield hit and an error to Johnson.

Johnnie LeMaster then looped a single into right-center field, scoring Evans with the go-ahead run and sending Brenly to third. Joe Morgan walked to load the bases, and Steve Bedrosian relieved Hrabosky. Davis then cracked a 2-1 pitch over the right-center field wall to clear the bases, his seventh homer of the season and first career grand slam.

The victory went to Giant reliever Gary Lavelle, 4-2.

The Braves had taken a 4-3 lead on Rufino Linares' home run off reliever Jim Barr in the seventh.

The Giants had tied the game at 3-3 earlier in the seventh on O'Malley's RBI single.

Atlanta went ahead 3-2 in the fifth when Rafael Ramirez doubled and scored one out later on Bob Horner's single.

New York 8

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Dave Kingman capped a four-run New Yor rally in the eighth with a three-run homer, powering the Mets to an 8-5 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals Saturday night.

Kingman's homer, his 17th, came off St. Louis rookie Jeff Keener, 0-1. The blast made a winner of reliever Tom Hausman, 1-0.

All four of the runs were unearned as a result of an error by catcher Glenn Brummer at the start of the inning.

After Wally Backman reached on Brummer's miscue and Ron Gardenhire sacrificed, Backman took third on a single by Mookie Wilson and scored on a sacrifice fly by pinch-hitter Rusty Staub.

George Foster followed with a single, sending Wilson to third, and Kingman followed with his drive to center field.

St. Louis had taken a 5-4 lead in the seventh when Lonnie Smith singled, stole second, advanced to third on catcher Ron Hodges' throwing error and scored on Dane Iorg's infield hit.

HOUSTON (AP) — San Diego's Broderick Perkins rapped a two-run pinch single, and Alan Wiggins followed with a two-run triple as the Padres exploded for five seventh-inning runs to down the Houston Astros 7-1 Saturday.

San Diego's John Montefusco, 6-4, and reliever Gary Lucas combined on a six-hitter, with Lucas earning his ninth save.

After the Astros scored a run in the third, the Padres chased loser Joe Niekro, 6-5, while sending 11 batters to the plate in the seventh. The uprising broke Niekro's consecutive scoreless inning streak at 21.

Luis Salazar's infield hit knocked in Sixto Lezcano, who had doubled, to tie the score in the seventh. After Tim Flannery was intentionally walked to load the bases, Perkins singled through the middle, making it 3-1.

Wiggins then knocked out Niekro with a triple into the right-field corner, adding two more runs and giving the Padres a 5-1 edge.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Steve Carlton scattered nine hits and Philadelphia capitalized on three Pittsburgh errors to beat the Pirates 8-3 Saturday, the Phillies' third straight victory in the series.

Carlton, who won for the eighth time in his last 11 decisions, raised his season record to 8-7 after an 0-4 start that was the worst of his 17-year career. It also was Carlton's seventh straight victory over the Pirates dating back to 1978.

The Phillies took a 4-0 lead in the second inning with the aid of two Pittsburgh errors, one by losing pitcher Don Robinson, 6-3.

After Mike Schmidt walked, Robinson fielded Bo Diaz's grounder and threw the ball wide of second, putting runners at second and third. Both then scored on Garry Maddox's double.

Ivan DeJesus then doubled Maddox home and scored when Carlton hit a bouncer between the legs of first baseman Jason Thompson.

The Phils made it 5-0 in the fourth when Manny Trillo singled, took second on a single by DeJesus and scored when second baseman Johnny Ray threw the ball past first base in a double play attempt.

Pete Rose singled in the fifth and scored on a double by Gary Matthews to make it 6-0. The hit raised Rose's career total to 3,768, three shy of Hank Aaron and second place on the all-time list. Ty Cobb leads with 4,191 hits.

Rose also scored the 1,950th run of his career, moving him past Stan Musial into fifth place on the all-time list.

Warren Cromartie was given an intentional walk by reliever Bill Campbell, and after Tim Wallach grounded out, White looped a double to short right, scoring Oliver and Cromartie.

Yanks Demote Alexander, May

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Yankees announced Saturday that pitchers Doyle Alexander and Rudy May would be sent to the team's Columbus affiliate in the International League Tuesday on 20-day rehabilitation assignments.

Alexander, who sustained a broken knuckle on his pitching hand after punching a dugout wall in frustration during a loss in Seattle, started three games this year for the Yankees.

The right-hander, who signed with the Yankees for a second time this year as a free agent, has an 0-2 record with a 3.94 earned run average.

May, a left-hander who suffered a partial tear in his left pectoral muscle, had five starts and 11 appearances this season, compiling a 1-3 record and a 4.17 ERA.

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Sunday is "Father's Day" all over the world and it has special significance at this seasite site of the 82nd U.S. Open Golf Championship.

Bruce Devlin, the 44-year-old Australian dark horse leading into the final 36 holes, says he wouldn't have taken up the game if his father hadn't lost an arm in an auto accident.

A touching tableau has Jack Nicklaus Jr., 20, lining up putts and toting the bag for his dad, Jack, Jr., seeking his fifth Open crown in a phenomenal string of 19 major championships.

The first and only father-son combination ever to compete in the Open, South Africa's Gary Player, 46, and Wayne, 20, find themselves on the sidelines, both frustrated by the treacherous fangs Pebble Beach.

Young Player became so discouraged after shooting the three closing holes in Friday's second round in 5-4-8, bogey-bogey-double bogey, that he impetuously blurted out loud:

"That does it. I'm giving this game up."

Later, when asked what his father might think of such a reaction, he said:

"Dad's got no choice. I'm dead serious. This game drives me nuts."

The youngster shot 81-79 for the last two rounds, his famous father, one of four men ever to win all the major crowns (Masters, U.S. and British Opens and PGA) shot an uncharacteristic 78-78, both missing the halfway cut.

It was particularly galling for Wayne because he qualified for the Open, while Jack Nicklaus Jr., failed.

Nicklaus and Player both have been honored as two of the most ideal parents in all of sports.

Nicklaus and his pretty wife, Barbara, have four sons and a daughter, all athletically inclined.

Jack Jr., and the second oldest son, Steve, 19, gravitated to golf naturally after starring in football, soccer and basketball.

The famous father, recognized as the world's greatest golfer, caddies for his sons in important tournaments. The sons, in turn, caddy for dad on the tour and in the big ones, such as the Open.

"Neither Barbara nor I ever pushed the kids to get into golf," the elder Nicklaus said. "We were very careful that they should be allowed to go the direction they wanted."

Jack, Sr., was greatly influenced by a father, Charlie, a successful Columbus, Ohio, druggist who followed his son around the circuit.

"He wasn't a doting father — he never pushed," Jack recalled. "He just was very happy and proud when I did well."

Charlie Nicklaus died 10 years ago. They say Jack, who had begun losing interest in the game, was inspired to continue for his father's sake. That was the time he went on w stringent diet, changed his image and took a new lease on his golfing life.

"There's no difference in the way my father treated me and the way I treat my kids," Jack said. "The difference is Jack Jr., has the outside pressure of trying to live in his father's image."

Player understood Wayne's inner turmoil. "This was a tremendous strain on him," Gary said. "Because of me, he wanted to do well.

"Young people say such things on the spur of the moment. If you're a father, you understand such things."

Player and wife, Vivian, have six children, two boys and four girls. An internationalist, who plays all over the world, Gary schedules his tour so that he spends adequate time with his family in Johannesburg.

Meanwhile, Devlin, who grew up in sheep country in a little town 40 miles from Sydney, couldn't help letting his thoughts wander back to his dad back in Australia.

The father, Arthur, who loved weekend golf, lost his right arm in an auto accident when Bruce was 15. He continued to play with one arm but, embarrassed to play alone, he took his son along aslcaddy and companion.

"If it hadn't been for the accident, I would never have taken up the game," Bruce Devlin said. "I hated the game. But now I'm glad, for dad's sake and mine, that I played."

Graham Shoots Into Contention

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Defending champion David Graham, hoping to become the first United States Open Champion to repeat since Ben Hogan did it 31 years ago, shot into contention with a third-round 69 Saturday.

That left the Australian at 2-under-par 214 for 54 holes over the par-72 Pebble Beach Links.

"My game's gotten better each day," said Graham, who shot 73 and 72 in the first two rounds.

"Every player knows that if you're going to make a move, make a run, today's the day to do it."

Graham's run included a key par on the fifth hole.

"I had bogeyed an ordinary par at three and it looked like I'd bogey at five," he said. "I didn't hit a good tee shot. But I chipped seven or eight feet and putted for the par. That was a turn-around because I birdied the next two holes."

Twice in the tournament, once at No.8 and again at No.18, Graham said the wrong club selection had hurt him. "Those are very serious mental errors," he said.

Graham said he resisted the tempation to attack Pebble's 6,825-yard layout.

"If you try to get aggressive, there's so much trouble around you that you could get into big trouble," he said. "You back off. The penalties are too severe."

A year ago at the Merion Golf Course in Ardmore, Pa., Graham went into the final 18 holes of this tournament three shots behind George Burns III and three ahead of the next man. He finished with a 273, to edge Burns and Bill Rogers by three strokes for the title.

"I jumped out with birdies on the first and second holes and with 16 holes to play that gave me a five-shot gap," he said. "It became a two-man tournament. This year, it's a different tournament. There are so many more players bunched up."

Graham's glad to be one of them in the hunt with 18 holes to play.

"I still have got to play very well if I am to win," he said.

Watson, Rogers Tied...

"But with a good round, I've got as good a chance as anybody. The position I'm in is not bad."

The group at par 216 included Masters champion Craig Stadler, Lanny Wadkins, Dan Pohl, Bobby Clampett and longshot Larry Rinker, a Tour rookie who held second place at the start of the day's play.

Wadkins, who won the PGA national title here five years ago, closed up with a 67 that matched the best round of the tournament. Pohl, who lost to Stadler in the Masters playoff, and Craig each had a 70. Clampett shot a 72 as Nicklaus' partner. Rinker had a a 75.

At one time or another, six men — Devlin, Rinker, Andy North, Rogers, Watson and Clampett — either led or shared the lead in the constantly changing standings.

But at the end, only Rogers and Watson were there.

North, whose last victory came in the American national championship of 1978, dropped out of his share of the top spot with a string of four bogeys in five holes. He finished with a 77 that left him at 220.

Rinker dropped back with a double bogey on the ninth hole. Devlin simply suffered a slow, no-birdie erosion.

Clampett held on the longest, finally giving way with bogeys on three of the last four holes.

And that left only the two men who have dominated the game for the last five years.

"I came back today (after a second-round 73) and played a good round of golf and that sure helps my confidence for tomorrow," said Rogers, who had been in a year-long slump since winning seven international titles in 1981.

"I feel good going into tomorrow's round," said Watson, who swept Player of the Year and money-winning honors in the four-year span 1977-1980. "Obviously I like my position. I have a good feeling about my golf swing. I can't wait to get out there tomorrow."

Watson, starting the day 5 shots back, bogeyed the first and last holes holes on the front nine, each time missing the green. But he birdied four holes in between, scoring on putts in the 12-18 foot range on the third, fourth, seventh and eighth.

He rifled a 3-iron shot to 3 feet on the 12th and made the putt, but gave the stroke back with a bogey following a drive into the rough on the 14th.

But he came back again, scoring from 12 feet on the 16th and then taking a share of the top spot with a 10-foot putt following a wedge approach on the 18th that curves along the rocky shore of Carmel Bay.

Rogers, playing behind him, opened quickly, 2-putting for birdie-4 on the second, then subduing the fourth and sixth with 12-15 foot putts.

He lost a shot on the 10th with a bogey from the deep, wet, snarly rough. He wedged to 3 feet for birdie on the 14th, again taking the lead alone. He expanded it to 2 shots with 30-footer on the 15th.

But Watson's birdie on the final hole and Rogers' bogey on the 17th, where he missed the green, constituted a 2-shot swing and put them even through 54 holes.

SECOND ACE SHORT

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Holly Hartley scored a hole-in-one on the par-three, 173-yard 5th hole in the second round of the Birmingham Classic, an LPGA event.

On the final round, playing the same hole, she put her tee shot within two feet of the pin.

"I guess I used the wrong club this time," she laughed.

Belgium Near Clinching Spot In Second Phase

MADRID (AP) — Ludo Coeck's goal in the first half gave Belgium a 1-0 victory over El Salvador Saturday and virtually enabled the Belgiums to clinch a place in the second phase of the World Cup finals.

Belgium and Brazel are the only teams to date to have won both their opening group games in the world's biggest soccer tournament.

The Soviet Union defeated New Zealand 3-0 and Cameroon and Poland drew 0-0 in other action Saturday.

Coeck's 18th-minute goal, a hard, low shot, gave Belgium the lead in Group 3, which also comprises Argentina and Hungary.

The Salvadorans, trounced 10-1 by Hungary in their opening game, played a tight defensive game throughout, hopeful of avoiding another one-sided setback.

The result left the Central Americans with no chance of advancing in the 24-team competition, but they at least performed creditably.

New Zealand also was eliminated from the second phase after losing both its opening games.

The Belgians need only a draw from their final Group 3 match against Hungary in Alicante Tuesday to advance to the the second round.

The Soviet Union, which is in Group 6 along with Scotland and Brazil, needs to win its final game with Scotland in Malaga Tuesday to advance.

Brazil, with its two straight victories, already has cemented a place in the second round — unless it should lose to New Zealand in its last outing. The Scots and the Soviets both have a 1-1 record.

Oleg Blokhin sparked the Soviet victory in Malaga Saturday. He scored one goal and assisted on two others as the gritty New Zealanders crumbled under persistent pressure.

Goalkeeper Frank van Hattum made a string of sensational saves, but the Kiwi part-timers could not withstand the powerful Soviet attack.

The speedy Blokhin set up the opening goal for Yuri Gavrilov after 25 minutes, scored the second in the 48th and then set up the third for Sergei Baltacha in the 69th.

Soviet Coach Konstantin Beskov said he was "satisfied" with the Soviet play, but added that "our team is not yet up to the level we desire.

"We have more work to do still," he said.

New Zealand Coach John Adshead said that while he was disappointed his team lost, he was proud of their performance.

"We came here to learn and to earn respect," he said. "And I think we did that, even in defeat."

Cameroon, one of the surprise teams of the tournament, surpassed its opening 0-0 draw with Peru by holding the vastly experienced Poland team to a scoreless draw in its Group 1 clash in La Coruna.

The result left the group in a complicated state. All four teams — Cameroon, Poland, Peru and Italy — have drawn their opening two matches.

Whichever two teams advance now depends on the results of the last two games — Peru vs. Poland in La Coruna Tuesday and Cameroon vs. Italy in Vigo Wednesday. If both those matches also are drawn, the teams that have scored the most goals will advance.

The tournament continues Sunday with three additional group matches.

Porsche Team Continues To Dominate Le Mans

LE MANS, France (AP) — The factory Porsche team continued to dominate the Le Mans 24-Hour Race marathon early Sunday morning after eight hours of racing.

The cars crewed by Americans Hurley Haywood and Al Holbert held a one lap lead over teammates Jacky Ickx of Belgium and Derek Bell of Britain.

Two minutes behind in third place came the German team's closest challenger, the French Rondeau-Ford crewed by Frenchman Xavier Lapeyre and Francois Migault, with Briton Gordon Spice, 40 seconds ahead of the third factory Porsche of Jochen Mass and Vern Schuppan, which had been delayed with minor electrical problems.

In fifth position, another lap back, was taken by the private Porsche of the Belgian Martin brothers, Jean Michel and Philippe, with Bob Wollek of France.

One of the two new British Nimrod-Aston Martin cars, five laps — over 40 miles — behind held a steady sixth on its first visit to the demanding circuit, driven by Britain's Ray Mallock, Simon Phillips and Mike Salmon.

Early withdrawals included both works Ford C100 contenders, the Ludwig-Surer entry with electrical problems and the sister Winkelhock-Niedzwiedz car with a blown engine.

The American father and son team of Mario and Michael Andretti failed to start the race after a controversial last-minute disqualification following a minor technical infringement. Their Mirage-Ford was disqualified before the start when officials ruled an oil radiator was unsafely installed.

"It's beyond my comprehension," said a bitter Andretti Sr., who noted the car officially had been verified and repeatedly checked before and during qualifying this week.

The lead repeatedly switched as the cars pitted for refueling. But the two works Porsches of Americans Hurley Haywood and Al Holbert, with German Porsche works driver Jurgen Barth, and that of Belgian Jacky Ickx and Briton Derek Bell, after sixth and third victories here, respectively, kept the overall lead. The third car driven by German Jochen Mass and Australian Vern Schuppan slipped back slightly.

Then came the French WM-Peugeot of Marcel Pignard and Jean-Daniel Raulet, the works Ford C100 of Germans Manfred Winkelhock and Klaus Niedzwiedz and the Rondeau Ford of Frenchman Francois Migault and Xavier Lapeyre with Briton Gordon Spice.

New rules limiting fuel consumption were hampering the Porsches' top speed, and three cars, including the Lola driven by British veteran Brian Redmen, were reported stranded on the 8.3-mile track, out of gas.

Trouble plagued the other leading team, the Lancias, on the opening laps. Both cars, crewed by Italian Grand Prix drivers Michele Alboreto, Riccardo Patrese and Teo Fabi, and Pier-Carlo Ghinzani, had problems with their electrical fuel pumps.

Instead of challenging for the lead as expected, they were far back in the field.

The race, the 50th since 1923, was being held in warm, cloudy weather before a crowd estimated around 100,000.

There were 30 American drivers in the field, but some were early victims of the notoriously tough track where speeds as low as 40 and as high as 220 mph impose severe mechanical strain.

The Porsche Kremer of Ted Field, Danny Ongais and Bill Whittington had a crackcase failure. The Porsche 935 of Bob Akin, David Cowart and Kemper Miller was another car that broke down within the first four hours.

One of the two Nimrod Aston Martins crashed on the three-mile Mulsonne straight in the early evening. British driver Tiff Needell escaped injury but the car was out of the race.

After six hours, a quarter way into the marathon, the three works Porsches still were lying first, second and fourth. The American-crewed car led the Ickx-Bell car by 2 minutes 15 seconds, about two-thirds of a lap of the 8.4-mile track.

The Vern Schuppan-Jochen Mass car had made up most of its delay and was pushing the third-placed Rondeau-Ford of Francois Migault-Xavier Lapeyre of France and Gordon Spice (Britain), overtaking it on pit stops.

Both were a lap behind the leading pair, which had covered 91 laps — exactly 770½ miles, an average speed of 128.4 mph.

Moxness Fires 68 To Take LPGA Lead

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP) — Barbara Moxness fired a 4-under-par 68 Saturday to open a 3-shot lead heading into the final round of the $200,000 Lady Keystone Open at the Hershey Country Club.

Moxness, who has never won a tournament on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour, had a 3-shot advantage over Vicki Fergon and Hall of Famer Sandra Haynie.

Fergon, the first-round leader, slipped to 1-over-par 73 for a two-day total of 140. Haynie shot her second consecutive 2-under 70 for her share of second place.

Gerilyn Britz and Sylvia Bertolaccini shared third place at 141. Britz fired the day's best round, a 5-under 67 while Bertolaccini had a 69.

Another shot back at 142 was last week's LPGA Championship winner, Jan Stephenson, who shot her second straight 71.

Navratilova Ups Winning Streak

EASTBOURNE, England (AP) — Martina Navratilova continued her winning streak to the eve of Wimbledon Saturday, defeating Hana Mandlikova 6-4, 6-3 for the $23,000 first-place prize in the BMW tennis tournament.

Navratilova tamed an awkward wind which whipped across the court and made strokes difficult.

"I am in the best form of my career," she said after the final, which lasted less than an hour.

Navratilova is top-seeded for Wimbledon and is rated a 6-4 favorite by British bookies. She is expected to open her Wimbledon campaign Tuesday and is seeded to meet Chris Evert Lloyd, the defending champion, in the final on July 3.

Lloyd spent the week practicing, but most of Navratilova's other rivals for the Wimbledon crown played at Eastbourne. The only player who gave her any trouble was Jo Durie, the No.3-ranked British player who took a set from her in the semifinals on Friday.

Navratilova has won 82 matches and lost only five — all in tournament finals — since the U.S. Open at Flushing Meadow last September, and has won nearly $500,000 this year.

Unlike the men's field at Wimbledon, which is missing four of the top six players in the world, the top 20 women and 46 of the 50 in the world will play singles in the All-England Championships, as will two-time champion Evonne Goolagong of Australia, who is seeded 16th but has not played in enough tournaments since the birth of her second baby to be ranked on the computer.

The only top women who will miss the second stop of tennis' four Grand Slam tournaments are Regina Marshikova, ranked 25th in the world, who is currently serving a prison sentence in her native Czechoslovakia following a car accident in which two women died; American Bonnie Gadusek, 21st, who is injured; Argentina's Ivanna Madruga-Osses, 35th, who is skipping Wimbledon because of the conflict over the Falkland Islands, and Betty Stove of the Netherlands, 47th.

MOST DANGEROUS JOB — A policeman is attacked in an urban area, and a wildlife officer is assualted on patrol. Which officer is in more danger? The wildlife officer is, according to a Universitry of Wyoming study of assaults on law-enforcement officials nationally. In fact, the study found that assaults on wildlife officers deal with people who are usually armed, and are often in remote areas," said Gene Abernethy, chief of the N.C. Wildlife Resources Commission's Division of Enforcement. "Police are assaulted more often than wildlife officers, but 80 percent of these assaults don't involve deadly weapons — which include guns, knives and clubs. Many are just scuffles. In contrast, 80 percent of the assaults on wildlife officers involve firearms."

As expected, these asaults take a toll — three wildlife enforcement officers have been killed in assaults since the Wildlife was formed in 1947. The first was W.I Wright, who was killed while checking illegal squirrel hunting near Rosewood in Sampson County. He died from a .22-caliber bullet wound, and the case was never solved. The next was Dewey McCall, who was killed in 1971 on a trout strem near Morganton. McCall had issued a man a citation for a trout-fishing violation, and the man "swore to get even." He returned to his home, picked up a .32-caliber pistol, and returned to the stream and engaged McCall in a fatal shoot-out. Lloyd O'Neil Mayse was killed on Thanksgiving Day in 1980 while checking illegal night-hunting in Northhampton County. He was involved in a struggle with two night hunters, and was fatally shot.

"The loss of these officers was tragic," said Abernethy, "but we're fortunate that the toll hasn't been higher. Many of our officers have been shot and wounded, and just about all of our officers have been shot at during the course of their careers. Others have been stabbed and badly beaten, and one man was even taken hostage.

"These cases also show that a wildlife officer isn't always aware of the danger he's in. For example, the first two killings of wildlife officers involved relatively minor offenses — squirrel hunting in closed season and a trout violation. A lot of people who are invloved in serious assaults are not mentally stable — someone who would kill a man over a six inch trout has serious problems. An officer has only a few seconds to size up a situation, and it can be difficult to tell if someone is dangerous. Loud-mouthed drunks are easy to handle; it's the quiet ones that fool you."

"Fire-lighting details and other high-risk duty may result in less assaults than routine assignment because officers are careful," said Abernethy. "When we apprehend the lighters, we know that we are dealing with men who are armed, often drunk, and sometimes carrying concealed weapons. In general, they're a bunch of rough characters, and our officers take precautions. For example, we usually assign teams of officers to fire-lighting details, and the radio system allows us to get several officers to the scene on an arrest quickly. However, on routine patrols — like checking fishermen — our men are not expecting problems, and that's how the trouble sometimes starts."

Not all assaults involve firearms. Wildlife officers are also routinely attacked with knives, bottles, boat paddles, sticks, rocks, fists, boots, clubs and anything else that is handy.

"We don't even count scuffles in our assault reports," said Abernethy. "People are often very upset when they are arrested, and will sometimes struggle a little. The officers need to take control of the situation at the start, and calm people down as quickly as possible. Trouble usually comes early — once people have time to think, they seldom resist."

Fortunately, Abernethy says that assaults on wildlife officers aren't increasing. "We usually have about a half-dozen serious assaults per year. Having well-trained officers is one key to preventing assaults, and we're always looking at new ways to deal with the problem."

FISHING REPORT

Inland — Reports from the Pamlico Sound show fair catches of small croaker and grey trout near the Neuse River entrance tower. It's almost time for grey trout to show up near Hoboken and Englehard.

Saltwater — Fishing has been good this past week on the coast. Trout, croaker, spot and bluefish are being caught off the piers and in the surf. Offshore, good catches of King Mackeral, Spanish Mackeral and Cobia have been reported close in.

In the Gulf Stream, dolphin, wahoo and tuna are abundant. Billfishing still has not taken off.

Local News — Tom Jamieson of Greenville caught a 43 lb. Cobia fishing off Bogue Inlet recently.

What's The Law On...

What's the law on...requirements of motorboat owner when boat is lost, stolen, abandoned or destroyed.

Lost or stolen boat —

If your boat is lost or stolen, notify both the Wildlife Resources Commission and the local law enforcement authorities immediately. If you boat is numbered in this state, the Commission will already have its general description. Any distinctive markings should be supplied, however, since the number of a stolen boat will probably be removed or painted over.

When property previously reported lost is recovered, notify by the Commission and the local authorities of the fact.

Abandoned or destroyed boat —

When a numbered boat is destroyed or abandoned, the law requires the owner to notify the Wildlife Resources Commission within 15 days after such destruction or abandonment so that the boat number may be cancelled.

Change Residence —

If you have the numbered boat and move your residence so that your certificate number no longer conforms to that appearing on your certificate number, the law requires you to notify the Wildlife Resources Commission of your new address within 15 days.

Change motors —

No notification or new number is required when a different motor is placed on a numbered boat whether it is an outboard or an inboard motor. When the certificate of number is renewed for the succeeding period, however, the application for renewal must show any changes in the type of propulsion or in the type fuel used.

Lost certificate —

If a certificate is lost, a boat owner may obtain a duplicate certificate by fililng a request on a form provided by the Wildlife Resources Commission and accompanying this request with a fee of two dollars.

Next week...What's the law on....sale, trade or transfer of boat.

Correction

In Friday's The Daily Reflector, a story incorrectly had John Powers bogeying the first hole in sudden death playoff at the North State Junior Gold tournament.

The same story also had Powers ahead going into the final round of the North State Junior Golf tournament.

The story should have read Lyn Moore of Greenville bogeyed the first hole in sudden death to give Powers the title. And, it was Moore, not Powers, who led going into the tournament's final round.

Bouchard On Pole For Gabriel 400

BROOKLYN, Mich. (AP) — Ron Bouchard, who says Michigan International Speedway quickly is becoming his favorite track, drove a Buick Regal to his second straight pole position here Saturday in qualifying for the Gabriel 400 Grand National stock car race.

The 1981 NASCAR Rookie of the Year, from Fitchburg, Mass., toured the high-banked two-mile oval at an average speed of 162.404 mph to win the inside front-row starting post for Sunday's 400-mile race.

The race is scheduled to be televised live on CBS, starting at 2:30 p.m. EDT.

Bouchard, whose only other Grand National pole came here last August in time trials for the Champion 400, just nipped veteran Bobby Allison this time around.

Allison, in another Buick, took the outside pole for the race with a quick lap of 162.082.

Third was Grand National rookie Geoff Bodine, a longtime nemesis of Bouchard's when the two competed mostly in modified racing in the northeast a few years ago. Bodine's Pontiac Grand Prix was clocked at 161.816

Three-time NASCAR champion Cale Yarborough was a solid fourth at 161.729 in a Buick, followed by current NASCAR point leader Terry Labonte at 161.674 in a Buick, and defending national champion Darrell Waltrip at 161.460 in another Buick.

Buddy Baker, who took over the ride in Harry Ranier's Pontiac left vacant when Benny Parsons was fired last week, took the inside spot on the fourth row at 161.366. However, Parsons, who stepped into Baker's ride in Hoss Ellington's Buick, was shy of the top 20 with a 157.535 on a slowly deflating right rear tire.

"Everybody has a favorite track and, obviously, this race track is to my liking," said Bouchard. "And my crew likes it too. We've got the right setup here. We even qualified fifth the first time we came here (for this race in 1981).

"Right now, this track and Talladega (Ala.) are the ones I like best."

The 33-year-old Bouchard, whose only Grand National victory came in last August's Talladega 500, has not finished here as well as he's started. He was 10th in his first race at Michigan, last June, then wound up 29th the day he started from the pole.

"It's just so competitive now that you just have to get out there and just run flat out all day long to stay in the lead draft," he explained. "If anything at all goes wrong, you lose that lead draft and it gets to be an awful long day.

"Really, starting from the pole at a track like this isn't so important. You just have to start in the first 10 to keep up at the beginning.

"The thing is, a track like this is so competitive, you're always moving around from position to position, moving up and down the ladder. It really keeps you busy and the biggest thing is you don't get bored like you do during some 500 mile races."

The start of Saturday's qualifying was delayed by an early morning rain that soaked the track. But the time trials finally were run in the afternoon with cool temperatures and partly sunny skies.

Robin McCall Makes 400 Field

BROOKLYN, Mich. (AP) — Eighteen-year-old Robin McCall, in only her second try at Grand National racing, qualified Saturday for the Gabriel 400 stock car race at Michigan International Speedway.

The San Antonio teen-ager, whose father, Bob, owns a machine and sheet metal shop, drove a Buick Regal sponsored by J.D. Stacy to a quick lap of 154.636 mph on the high-banked, two-mile oval.

That was good for the 35th spot on the 37-car grid.

McCall, who graduated from high school on Memorial Day weekend, attempted to qualify for the World 600 at Charlotte that same weekend, but was unable to make the field. That was the only previous qualifying attempt for the petite, short-haired Brunette.

McCall's crew had to scramble to get her ready for a qualifying attempt after her engine broke during the morning practice session.

"I was a little handicapped since this was the first time I'd ever seen the track, and I only had 15 or 16 practice laps before the engine went," McCall said.

"But I really like the track," she added, "because it's so wide and it will be easy for somebody just starting to stay out of trouble.

"What I really need now is experience, and time on the larger tracks."

McCall, who has gained what experience she has running quarter-midgets, half-midgets and stock cars, is one of only a handful of women ever to drive in a NASCAR Grand National race, and the first since Janet Guthrie participated in several events in 1979.

Another 18-year-old from Texas, Bobby Hillin Jr. from Midland, also made the field. His top lap averaged 157.312 mph. That gave the high school senior, who will stop racing early in August to begin his last season of prep football, the 26th position in his third Grand National start.

Hillin, whose father owns and operates the Indy car team that three-time Indianapolis 500 winner Al Unser drives for, said, "All we wanted was to get in the field where I can learn a little more. All we're doing is trying to learn. Every place I go (to race), I've never been. I have to learn the race tracks."

Both McCall and Hillin will limit their Grand National participation this year to five or fewer races, with an eye toward running for Rookie of the Year in 1983.

Western Carolina's Carr Injured In Auto Accident

CHAPEL HILL (UPI) — Western Carolina basketball standout Ronnie Carr was injured in an automobile accident Saturday and school officials say they do not know whether he will be able to return to play his senior year.

Carr suffered a broken arm, leg and collarbone and cuts and bruises. He was listed in stable condition Saturday night at North Carolina Memorial Hospital after undergoing surgery, a hospital spokeswoman said.

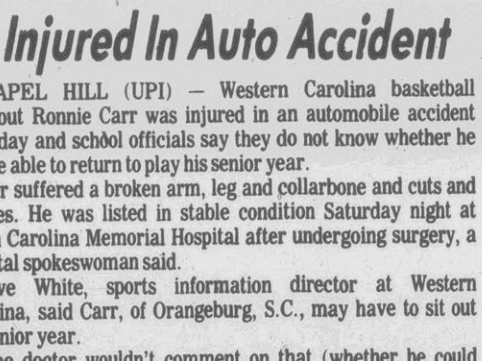

Steve White, sports information director at Western Carolina, said Carr, of Orangeburg, S.C., may have to sit out his senior year.

"The doctor wouldn't comment on that (whether he could play)," White said. "It will be a long recovery. He is right handed and his injuries are to his left arm and leg. Whether he will be able to play or will have to sit out a year, we don't know."

Carr, who White said was "definitely a pro prospect," provided the bulk of the Catamounts' offense last season. He averaged 19 points a game and was named the Southern Conference's leading scorer.

Carr earned All-Southern Conference honors the last two seasons and made basketball history by being the first college player to score a three-point goal.

"The first few years in Denver were great. But when we started to lose, that's when the finger pointing & backstabbing began. It's been hell since then."

—David Thompson

SEATTLE (AP) — Being traded to the Seattle SuperSonics is a "relief," said Denver Nuggets guard David Thompson, adding that the last few years in Denver have "been hell" for him.

"The first few years in Denver were great," said Thompson, of Shelby, N.C. "But when we started to lose, that's when the finger pointing and backstabbing began. It's been hell since then."

Thompson was dealt Thursday to Seattle in exchange for the Sonics' first-round choice of the National Basketball Association draft June 29 — the 19th pick overall — and the rights to small forward Wally Walker.

Considered to be the highest paid player in the NBA at one time, Thompson said in a telephone interview with the Seattle Post Intelligencer that he is glad to be leaving Denver. He also said he was upset over a recent article in the Denver Post about his possible former use of cocaine.

"That was pretty poor, especially the timing," Thompson said Thursday about the newspaper story this week that said the Sonics' management had looked into reports of his possible use of cocaine. "I'm just not going to let that bother me."

Sonics' President Zollie Volchok said Thursday in Coronado, Calif., that whatever troubles Thompson had were behind him.

"The NBA investigation has not found any evidence of drug problems," Volchok said. "It's been just hearsay and reports of things two years ago or more. We feel he's free and clear of any problems."

The deal for Thompson may still have a catch. The NBA Players Association said that the 6-foot-7 Walker technically is a free agent, and that could hinder completion of the deal.

The league's collective bargaining agreement prohibits the trading of players' rights.

"The deal cannot be made," said Charles Grantham, assistant counsel for the NBPA. "We'll have to have a look at Walker's contract before we take any action.

"There seems to be no dispute from either club — Walker's a free agent," Grantham said. "But we can't go much further until we see the contract."

Carl Scheer, president and general manager of the Nuggets, termed Walker's status "clouded" but said "the uniqueness of his contract does not detract from our ability to acquire him — he's not anybody else's property."

Walker's agent, David Falk, said the debate over Walker's rights "is an academic point. They (the Nuggets and SuperSonics) can decide among themselves, but it's not important for us to fight that." He said his top priority was to meet with Scheer to finalize a new agreement.

The 6-foot-4½ Thompson was an All-American in college and led North Carolina State to the National Collegiate Athletic Association championship in 1974. He became the highest paid athlete in the country when he signed a multi-year contract with the Nuggets near the end of the 1976-77 season for a reported $800,000 a year.

Thompson has one year left on that contract, and the Nuggets reportedly have agreed to pay about $300,000 of the $800,000 to Thompson next season. The Sonics may pay more than $500,000, depending on Thompson's performance.

"Sure it's a gamble," said Sonics' Coach Lenny Wilkens. "But you take a chance every time you walk out of a house, right? You take a chance every time you make a draft choice. This is no different than that.

"I have always been a David Thompson fan. He will give a big dimension to our ball club. He will be another quality guard to go with Gus Williams and I think he will enhance Bill Hanzlik's play as well."

Thompson was drafted out of college by Virginia of the old American Basketball Association, but his rights were traded to Denver. He played one season for Denver in the ABA, averaging 26 points, and was named Rookie of the Year, before the league merged with the NBA.

In the NBA, Thompson was named to three consecutive All-Star games and was the Most Valuable Player in the 1979 All-Star contest. He and Julius Erving of Philadelphia are the only players to have been named MVP in both an NBA and ABA All-Star games.

Thompson has averaged 24.1 points per game as a professional, and his total of 73 in one game is a feat bettered only by Wilt Chamberlain. But Thompson has been struggling the past two seasons to regain his All-Star form.

Plagued by injuries, the 27-year-old Thompson averaged only 14.9 points and 20 minutes phis starter's spot at guard to T.R. Dunn.

Walker, a graduate of the University of Virginia, began his pro career with the Portland Trail Blazers in 1976 and was a member of Portland's 1977 NBA championship team before being traded to Seattle for first-and second-round draft choices in 1977.

Walker, also 27, became a starter and had his best pro season in 1982 when he averaged 9.9 points per game in 70 contests for the Sonics.

The trade was announced Thursday afternoon by Scheer and Volchok during the NBA's annual meeting in Coronado, Calif.

"I'm real pleased," Thompson said. "It's a great move for me and my career. I'll be with a team that has a real chance to win the title."

He said Wilkens is a "very knowledgeable coach, has a good disposition and is easy to work with. He's constructive as far as criticism is concerned. He likes me as a player, and that's a plus there."

Clippers' Future To Be Major Topic At NBA Meetings

CORONADO, Calif. (AP) — The future of the San Diego Clippers — who will own them, who will play for them and where they will play — will be a major point of discussion at the National Basketball Association meetings starting Monday at the Hotel del Coronado.

Donald Sterling, owner of the team that had the NBA's lowest attendance last season, signed a contract earlier this month to move the team to Los Angeles, with games to be played at the Los Angeles Sports Arena.

The move, however, is subject to the approval of the league's Board of Governors, which consists of one representative, usually the owner, from each of the 23 NBA teams. A three-quarters vote, or 18 teams, must approve franchise shifts or ownership changes.

Jerry Buss, owner of the Los Angeles Lakers, who play in the Forum, about 10 miles from the Sports Arena, has indicated he would veto the proposed move. The Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum Commission countered Buss' statement by filing a $50 million antitrust suit against the Lakers' owner.

Despite the three-quarters rule, NBA lawyers say Buss alone could veto the move because the Clippers would be infringing on his team's territory. There is no provision in the NBA constitution for territorial indemnity, but since Buss has to approve of the move, the Clippers might have to pay dearly to get such permission.

Dick White, manager of the Sports Arena, said the suit would be dropped if the Clippers' move is approved by the Board of Governors.

As for the ownership of the Clippers, Leon Parma, president of the Greater San Diego Sports Association, said Thursday that Sterling told him he wanted to sell the team.

Parma said Sterling "finds the economic challenges of owning a franchise to be overwhelming and that he'd just as soon get out."

The Clippers also are certain to receive offers at the meetings for their No.2 pick in the first round of the NBA draft June 29.

The Lakers, who own Cleveland's No.1 pick, are expected to choose James Worthy of North Carolina, while the Clippers would like Terry Cummings of DePaul. Another junior forward who chose to enter the draft a year early, Dominique Wilkins of Georgia, likely will be picked by the third team on the draft list, the Utah Jazz.

The talent-poor Jazz and Clippers, however, have been the subject of trade rumors for weeks. Utah General Manager and Coach Frank Layden, however, has been quoted as saying he is 99 percent sure the Jazz will keep the third pick.

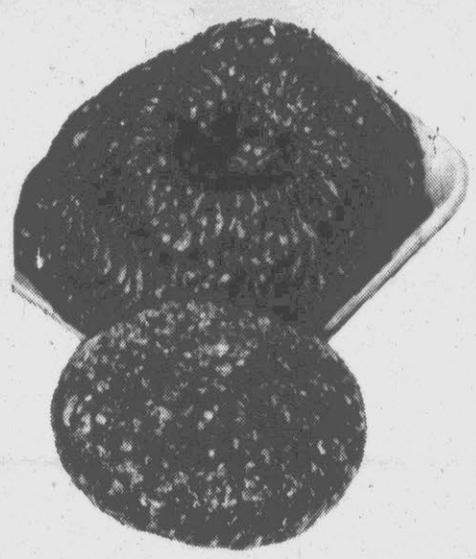

The New Jersey Nets reportedly have offered leading scorer Ray Williams to the Clippers and Jazz for a chance to get Cummings or Wilkins.

Banks Not So 'Entertaining' At USA Meet

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The fireworks from the World's Fair were crackling in the background and the crowd was applauding rhythmically, but Willie "The Entertainer" Banks was not up to a four-star performance.

Banks, the American record holder in the triple jump and ranked No. 1 in the world — the first United States athlete to receive the honor in that event — was the overwhelming favorite in the final Friday night of the USA-Mobil Outdoor Track and Field Championships.

But the best he could do was finish third, behind Robert Cannon, the winner at 55 feet, three-quarters of an inch, and Paul Jordan, runner-up at 54-10 3-4.

"You should expect the unexpected, but I didn't expect this," said Banks, after leaping only 54-10 1-4, nearly three feet short of his American record of 57-7 1-2.

"I'm feeling good, but I'm not jumping that well," added the popular, fun-loving Banks, whose enthusiastic approach helps excite the crowd to the triple jump, an event he feels long has gone unnoticed. "I guess I'm falling down a chasm," he said. "Everyone has a bad time and my time is now."

While it was not the best of times for Banks, it was for Cannon. The former University of Indiana jumper won the event in dramatic fashion — on the final jump of the competition.

The triple jump ended a long program which included finals in four other events, plus qualifying and trials in several other events. Twelve more finals were scheduled today with the last 22 on Sunday.

Other winners Friday were NCAA champion Kim Schnurpfeil of Stanford in the women's 10,000 meters in 33 minutes, 25.88 seconds; Jim Heiring in the men's 20-kilometer walk in 1:30.21.3; Susan Liers-Westerfield in the women's 5,000 walk in 24:56.6, and the Stanford Track Club in the women's 3,200-meter relay in 8:22.26.

Another athlete who enjoyed himself was Carl Lewis, the world's top-ranked athlete in the 100-meter dash and the long jump. The precocious, 20-year-old Lewis, seeking his second consecutive double in the national championships in the 100 and long jump, sailed through the sprint trials, easily winning his heat in 10.23 seconds. He did not have to compete in the long jump qualifying because it was canceled when only 11 entrants showed up.

Lewis, not noted as a good starter, was surprisingly strong out of the blacks in the 100 heats and was comfortably ahead by about the 60-meter mark. He then eased up and still won handily, clapping as he crossed the finish line.

UNC-W Wins AIAW Title

WILMINGTON (AP) — The University of North Carolina-Wilmington Saturday withstood a final challenge from Meredith College to capture the team title of the 1982 Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women Division III national golf championship.

Dakota State (S.D.) finished third with 1,051.

Meredith's Luann Johnson took the individual championship with a 5-over-par 77 Saturday for a 233 total. She finished nine strokes ahead of UNC-W's Darci Wilson, who posted a final-day 86 and a 242 overall score.

Carr Hurls, Hits C&A To Victory

Little League

C & Associates 10
Exchange 2

Billy Carr hurled a rain-shortened no-hitter and hit two home runs and drove in three runs to lead Carroll & Associates to a 10-2 win over Exchange Friday in a Tar Heel Little League baseball game.

Carr struck out 10 and walked three and hit one batter in four innings. The game was called at the end of the fourth because of rain. Exchange scored both its runs in the fourth on errors.

C&A scored two runs in the first five walks, a passed ball and a wild pitch and then upped its lead to 4-0 in the second on Carr's two-run home run. Lloyd May walked prior to Carr's blast.

Carr hit his second home run — a solo shot — in the third during a five-run outburst that gave C&A a 9-0 lead.

Exchange scored both its runs in the top of the fourth. C&A scored its final run in the bottom of the inning and the game was called after the fourth because of rain.

Carr had two hits for C&A and was the only player with more than one hit for either side.

Lions 5
Jaycees 4

Bob Williams hit a three-run home run to key a five-run first inning that erased a three-run deficit and carried the Lions to a 5-4 victory over Jaycees Friday in a North State Little League game.

The Jaycees jumped out to a 3-0 lead in the top of first, led by Neal Creech's two-run double. But, the Lions countered with five runs in the bottom of the inning and then held on for the win.

Carlos Harris and Robin Joyner walked to open the bottom of the inning. Then, with one gone, Harris was out at third. Tom Moye then walked and Williams then hit his home run to make it 3-3.

Four walks and a wild pitch allowed Marty Measamer and David Tripp to score to give the Lions a 5-3 lead.

The Jaycees came abck with a run in the third when Brian Pierce tripled and scored on Brian Wille's single, but could get no closer as the game was called after the fourth because of rain.

Williams had two hits in two at bats for the Lions and was the only player on either team with more than one hit.

Bottom Of Braves' Order Keys Win Over Giants

By The Associated Press

With Chris Chambliss, Dale Murphy and Bob Horner batting 3-4-5, the heart of the Atlanta Braves' lineup can throw fear into the hearts of National League pitchers.

When they aren't doing the lion's share of the hitting, the bottom of the order can be pretty scary, too.

Their big guns relatively silent Friday night, the Braves' seventh and eighth hitters — Bruce Benedict and Randy Johnson — combined for six runs batted in as Atlanta whipped San Francisco 8-3.

"I have in the last couple of weeks started to swing the bat better, but mainly it feels good to contribute to the ballclub," said Benedict after knocking in four runs with a homer and a single.

"The fourth, fifth and sixth hitters have been carrying our club all season and it's good to take some of the burden off them," he added.

Benedict, batting in the seventh spot, had a two-run single in the first when the Braves jumped on Renie Martin, 2-4, for five runs, and belted his first homer of the season in the fifth after Horner had singled.

"You like to think you're a better hitter in a tough situation," Benedict said of his first-inning single that came with two out.

Johnson's two-run double capped the Braves five-run first.

Murphy and Chambliss weren't entirely quiet, however. Murphy boosted his league-leading RBI total to 55 with a bases-loaded walk in the opening inning and Chambliss had a sacrifice fly in the second.

The victory went to rookie Ken Dayley, 3-3, who gave up seven hits and two runs in 52-3 innings. Rick Camp finished the game to gain his fifth save.

Dodgers 3, Reds 2

Pedro Guerrero tripled and scored on Mike Scioscia's single in the 11th inning, leading Los Angeles over Cincinnati. Guerrero tripled past the glove of center fielder Cesar Cedeno to lead off the Dodger 11th. Following a groundout and a walk, Scioscia singled off Tom Hume, 0-2, for the winning run.

Terry Forster, 2-3, pitched one inning to gain the victory, and Vincente Romo hurled the last inning to post his first save and extend the Dodgers' winning streak to four games.

Los Angeles starter Dave Stewart pitched six shutout innings before the Reds scored twice in the seventh with the aid of a fielding error to the tie the score 2-2 and snap a streak of 28 scoreless innings by the Dodgers' pitching staff.

Phillies 8, Pirates 3

Garry Maddox drove in three runs and Mike Krukow scattered nine hits to pace Philadelphia over Pittsburgh.

Pete Rose also hit two singles in five at-bats for the Phillies, moving him within four hits of tying Hank Aaron for second place on the all-time list with 3,771 career hits. Ty Cobb is the all-time leader with 4,191 hits.

With Maddox driving in his three runs, the Phillies took a 7-0 lead in the first five innings, chasing Manny Sarmiento, 2-1, during a four-run fifth.

"A seven-run lead, gee, that was nice," said Krukow, 5-5. "But in a situation like that, I really force myself to think of it as if it was a 1-0 game."

Astros 7, Padres 2

Nolan Ryan struck out 11 batters and Alan Knicely drove in three runs to lead Houston past San Diego.

Ryan, 6-8, did not give up a hit until one out in the fourth inning and wound up with an eight-hitter. It was Ryan's 138th game in which he struck out 10 or more batters, an extension of his own major league record.

CHRIS Welsh, 5-2, was the loser.

"He (Ryan) was getting his curve ball over," said Padres' Manager Dick Williams. "When he does that, he's some kind of pitcher."

Expos 4, Cubs 0

Steve Rogers pitched a six-hitter and singled in a run and Warren Cromartie homered to lead Montreal past Chicago in a game marred by a second-inning brawl.

Bill Buckner, the Cubs' first baseman, and Gary Carter, Montreal's catcher, got into a fight in the top of the second inning that emptied both benches.

"I had bad rhythm and was jumping around out there early," Rogers said. "I was lucky at the start because they hit some balls hard but right at someone.

"I was just trying to keep us in the ball game and trying to keep them to three runs or less and take my chances. They're a good-hitting ball club."

Mets 5-4, Cardinals 3-5

Ellis Valentine and Wally Backman each hit two-run singles as New York rallied for five runs off St. Louis relief ace Bruce Sutter to beat the Cardinals in the rain-delayed first game of their doubleheader.

Trailing 3-0, the Mets sent 10 batters to the plate during their late rally. George Foster singled in the other New York run.

Willie McGee's bases-loaded triple capped a four-run rally in the seventh inning, salvaging a victory for St. Louis in the second game.

McGee's blast to right-center field in the nightcap handed rookie John Stuper, 1-0, his first major league victory.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Texas 3, Minnesota 2

If you're the manager of a team that's 22-35, you can't afford to go against the book. That didn't stop Don Zimmer.

The beleaguered manager of the Texas Rangers went against baseball's unwritten rule and ordered his pitcher to put the tying run on base in the ninth inning of a one-run game. And it worked, as the Rangers defeated the Minnesota Twins 3-2 Friday night.

With Ranger reliever Steve Comer clinging to the 3-2 lead with two out and none on in the ninth, he was ordered to intentionally walk Twins' rookie slugger Kent Hrbek.

"Right now he's one of the most feared hitters in baseball. He's got the short fence, 15 homers, and close to 50 RBIs. I wasn't going to let him get a swing," Zimmer said.

"If we got the first two men out I already knew what I was going to do. I respect the guy that much. (Jesus) Vega hits a two-run homer and I may be looking for another job."

Comer got Vega to ground out to end the game.

Indians 10, Red Sox 3

Cleveland's Toby Harrah, who leads the major leagues with a .387 average, but who had gone hitless in his last three games, cracked a homer, two doubles and a single in Cleveland's victory.

"I saw the ball real well tonight," said Harrah. "That happens once in a while and tonight was one of those nights that I had a few pitches to hit," Harrah said.

Cleveland's John Denny, 4-7, posted the victory over the first-place Red Sox with 71-3 innings of six-hit pitching. Cleveland's Miguel Dilone slugged a two-run homer, while Von Hayes had two doubles and three RBIs. Dennis Eckersley, 6-5, took the loss for the Red Sox.

Royals 4, Mariners 1

Kansas City's Amos Otis and Willie Aikens cracked two-run homers in the ninth inning to lead the Royals to their come-from-behind victory.

Otis and Aikens delivered off the Mariners' Bill Caudill, 7-3.

Angels 7, White Sox 2

California's Reggie Jackson homered for his 2,000th career hit, and had no difficulty putting the milestone into appropriate words.

"At the age of 36, it means I'm not going to get 3,000," said Jackson. "It also means I'm about 540 hits behind Rod Carew."

Carew also reached a milestone. With a third-inning double, he extended his hitting streak to a 22 games, tying the Angels' club record set by Sandy Alomar in 1970. It's also the longest hitting streak of Carew's distinguished 15-year career.

Orioles 4, Yankees 1

Jim Palmer and Tippy Martinez combined on a three-hitter as the Orioles won their ninth game in their last 11, while halting a three-game Yankee winning streak.

Palmer, 4-3, gave up a homer and a single to Dave Winfield and a single to Roy Smalley in 82-3 innings of work. Martinez came on to notch his sixth save of the year.

Palmer was lifted after Winfield singled with two out in the ninth. "I just joked with (Manager) Earl (Weaver) and said, 'Now you take me out with two out in the ninth inning?' I think that upset him," said Palmer.

Palmer gained his 252nd career victory, moving ahead of Bob Gibson into 31st place on the all-time list.

Brewers 5, Tigers 2

Paul Molitor belted a two-run homer to key a three-run Milwaukee third inning as the Brewers handed the Tigers their fifth straight defeat.

"I realized a long time ago that I'm more important to our club as an offensive player than as a defensive player," said Molitor, who finished the game with two hits in four trips, driving in two runs and scoring two. "That's where I emphasize all my efforts, on offense."

Detroit's Larry Herndon hit his 13th homer of the season off Brewers' starter Randy Lerch, 5-5.

Blue Jays 6, A's 4

Alfredo Griffin and Lloyd Moseby paced the Toronto attack with two RBIs each, as the A's lost their fourth straight game.

Camels Sweep Pair From Seahawks

BUIES CREEK (AP) — Bill Wilkes homered in the fifth and scored on a wild pitch in the seventh to lead Campbell past UNC-Wilmington 2-1 in North State Summer Baseball League action Friday.

The Fighting Camels swept the doubleheader by taking the nightcap 12-2 behind homers by Tom Lynch and Bob Posey.

Wilkes opened the seventh with a walk, Kelly Hoffman walked, Lynch hit into a fielder's choice and Wilkes scored with the Seahawks' Carl Willis uncorked a wild pitch.

Campbell exploded for nine sixth-inning runs in the nightcap, highlighted by Lynch's 3-run blast. Posey connected on a two-run shot in the third.

Campbell raised its record to 6-6 while Wilmington fell to 8-6.

Fourth in a series of conversations with Linwood Mercer....

"If our State Legislature can set mandatory retirement ages for educators and judges, shouldn't it do the same for itself?"

"What's good for the goose is good for the gander, they say. And while my own position is that a person's retirement age should depend entirely on his or her ability to perform the job, it seems only fair that the State Legislature should treat itself as it treats other state employees. That is, if it requires others to retire at age 65, then the state legislators should also be required to retire at that age.

"Take your present State Senator for example. He's now 76. And if the 4-year term is passed, he will be 80 by the time he retires.

"It's unfair. The double standard of requiring all state employees except legislators to retire at a certain age is something we could do without.

"I want the job as your State Senator. And I think that our laws concerning mandatory retirement ages should be carefully examined.

"Please give me your support on June 29."

Metals Fall In Moderate Trading

By KEITH GAVE
Associated Press Writer

Precious metals futures prices were sightly lower in moderate trading Friday on the Commodity Exchange in New York.

Analysts said prices opened higher on the thinking that prices fell too far on Thursday. But the continued strength of the dollar against foreign cur-rencies and anticipation of firm interest rates continued to pres-sure prices throughout the day.

Phil Spinelli, a metals analyst in New York with Dre-xel Burnham Lambert Inc., said prices remained in "a very tight range" throughout the day.

Speculative and light trade buying "kept the market from really tanking out," Spinelli said.

Bette Raptopoulous, a metals analyst in New York with Bache Halsey Stuart Shields Inc. said money supply figures released after the close of trad-ing suggested increasingly firm interest rates, which traders had anticipated.

"Once again, interest rates become a primary factor in the price of the precious metals," she said.

Silver prices closed lower in light trading. Analysts linked the decline to weaker spot prices overnight on the London exchange, lower gold and cop-per prices and late selling by independent traders.

Gold for delivery in August settled $3.40 lower at $304.20 a troy ounce; July silver settled 4.2 cents lower at $5.095 a troy ounce; and July copper settled 1.2 cents lower at 54.15 cents a pound.

Meat and livestock futures prices rebounded somewhat but closed mixed on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange.

"It was a pretty good turn-around following extreme pre-s-sure from the financial mar-kets" throughout the week, said Robert Holbert, a livestock analyst in Chicago with Con-tiCommodity Services.

He said psychological factors weakened cash prices through-out the week, but added that "they will have to recover by late next week to say lower prices were artificial."

He said the pork complex fi-nally began to rebound Friday from declines earlier in the week, caused in large part by a mid-week report by the Nation-al Academy of Sciences advis-ing Americans to reduce their consumption of processed meats that may cause cancer. Prices fell to their daily limit of 1.5 cents three days this week.

He said traders expect a U.S. Department of Agriulture report to be released Tuesday to show tight supplies of hogs and pigs, which may boost prices. Anticipation of the report prompted some buying by spec-ulators and by traders who were offsetting their agree-ments to deliver. Several of the contracts for live hogs in-creased by the daily limit.

Nurse To Sing At World's Fair

WAYNESVILLE — Donna Gammon is an operating room nurse in Waynvesville — a place she will be leaving temporarily this summer.

Her reasons for leaving are to sing at the World's Fair Monday and to participate in the Grandfather Mountain Highland Games July 8-11. She will leave Aug. 15 for Europe for five weeks of singing engagements in Germany and Scotland.

Miss Gammon, playing the dulcimer, and David Morris playing the autoharp with both singing recently released an album, entitled "From Grandfather's Land," of Scottish folk songs.

"I have been amazed over the years to find people think I am a professional musician — that I do this for a living. They are always astonished when I tell them I am a nurse by profession and my music is just a hobby." Miss Gammon said.

"A number of people have come to me during the GMHG (Highland Games) to ask if I have a record album of my music. I really felt silly even thinking of such an undertaking. Then I began to realize that I had something to give to people. Through my music I could give them the very thing which means the most to me, a feeling for our heritage, our traditions. So I began to think seriously of recording an album. At the same time, my good friend David Morris was thinking along the same lines.

"David and I had met at GMHG the summer of 1965. When either of us would begin to sing, the other would inevitably join in. We found our voices blended and complemented each other, so occasionally we would perform duets. The strange thing to us was people thought we sang together all the time, but we only saw each other once a year at GMHG," said Miss Gammon.

Continuing, she added, "Last summer I asked David to entertain with me at a Clan Campbell gathering during the highland games. When we arrived we were asked if we were going to sing 'Mary Hamilton.' We said we'd think about it. To be honest, we hadn't sung that song together for at least eight or nine years and each of us had developed our own style and progression of verses. But we decided to try it anyway.

"Once again, we were surprised by the cohesiveness which came through when we sang together. Later that day David and I discussed the fact we were each interested in recording an album. One thing led to another and we began talking about doing an album together. We made some tentative plans that weekend but I still considered it to be more fantasy than fact. Reality sank in though on Nov. 2, 1981, when David arrived at my house ready to begin putting it together, practicing and recording. I think I was in a state of shock the whole month of November!

"Let me back track for a minute. The evening I returned home from GMHG last summer I received a call from some friends in Haywood County. They wanted to know if I would consider being one of several musicians from the county to be included on an album of mountain music being put out by the Haywood County Arts Council to be entitled 'Our Mountain Musical Traditions.' Here I was being asked to contribute through my music in preserving another tradition."

"I saw this as an opportunity to get some experience in a recording studio and as a means of hearing my own voice recorded on something more than a cassette tape. So I agreed to do it. That experience was definitely worthwhile and prepared me for things to come," Miss Gammon stated.

Both David and Donna had been single performers for years. They each had a number of songs they wanted to have in the album. After listing them, they added the songs they could perform together and put down several they hadn't done before but wanted to learn. The elimination started when they began working on balancing — happy vs. sad and solos vs duets. They wanted a blend which would keep everything from being too "samey." They decided to use some instrumentals, not only for balance but to give the instruments a chance to be heard.

"Arranging my music I believe is a natural progression. I hear a song and like the tune and have a feeling for the words. The next step is putting it into my vocie range; then I try it out on the dulcimer. Some songs seem to fit the dulcimer perfectly and others sound better a capella. Each time I perform a song my interpretation seems to be different, depending on my mood and the mood of the audience." Miss Gammon said.

When asked what aspect was most appealing, she said, "I think it would be easier to tell you what aspect was least appealing. Working nine to 10 hours a day in the operating room, then recording for six to seven hours at night. Another very appealing aspect came the day I first saw the finished product. It was as if, after all that work, here was a concrete result. I could say to myself, 'We really did it.'"

Miss Gammon's dulcimer was made for her to her specifications by Edd Presnell of Banner Elk. This is the second dulcimer he has made for her. The back, sides and top are of wormy chestnut, the fretboard is walnut and the tuning pegs are rosewood.

"This particular one has four strings — this provides a louder melody sound and more variety in method of playing. When Edd and I were discussing it, he asked if I wanted any carving or inlay work done on it? And my response was, 'Edd, I'm gonna play it, not hang it on the wall for decoration. I don't want anything fancy on it.'"

Donna and her parents, The Rev. Richard and Flora MacDonald Gammon of Greenville, have been attending the Grandfather Mountain Highland Games for a number of years. Mrs. Gammon is director of music and Donna is her assistant. Her father is director of track and field events there.

"I first attended the GMHG the summer of 1960. The occasion was my uncle's wedding in Linville and a family reunion to boot. The following summer my uncle asked me to sing with him an old Harry Lauder song he had taught me when I was younger. I was hooked and have performed every summer since," Miss Gammon said.

"Over the years, I have attended highland games in Colorado, South Carolina and Georgia. Tradition and heritage are things that interest me most about the highland games. Carrying on something which was started hundreds of years ago. Seeing myself as a continuum, one part of a whole. Through highland games I learn more about the Celts, the race of people from which I am descended. I learn more about my own particular family. I learn I am not just a product of my environment, but I have characteristics which have been passed down for generations.

"The sound of bagpipe music echoing around the hills and the rich panorama of color from all the different tartans is exciting. But the most exciting thing of all is to see people communicating about something they all have in common — their heritage," said Miss Gammon.

Continuing, she said, "Right now I have no definite plans for expanding my recording career. I'm satified to take things as they come and see what happens. This record has brought about opportunities for concerts at local music centers, civic organizations and schools and to represent Haywood County at the World's Fair. Some people are already saying I should do an album on my own.

"But right now, answering this question is like filling out an application for college and having to answer the question, 'How do you see yourself in 10 years?' So I don't have any particular plans to expand, but as opportunities come along, I believe I'll know if they are 'right' for me or not."

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

"Dad 1982" is not the same Dad we paid tribute to a decade ago.

A funny thing happened to him on the way to the women's liberation movement. He became liberated too.

The stereotyped features are gone: the stiff upper lip in the face of sorrow, the preoccupation with car mileage, the garage full of power tools that he hated, the burden of being the sole breadwinner. In their place is a father who is allowed to cry, to sweat, and to fail.

He's a man who can change a diaper and heat a bottle without losing his manhood. He can smell good and wear pastel shirts and not raise eyebrows.

He can kiss his sons in the same spirit in which he kisses his daughters, and fight for custody of them and stand a fair chance of winning if he has to.

He can wear tennis shoes on airplanes and go on a diet. He can get a job as a nurse or a secretary and not be unique.

He doesn't have to pace the floor of a waiting room while his child is being born, nor does he have to lose face because his wife supports him while he is finishing his education or is between jobs.

The old "Wait till your father gets home" that used to mean an hour of talks and discipline, now means, "We eat dinner."

He can pass up gusto for something dietary and no one cares. A hurricane can bear his name. Putting gas in the car and changing the oil is no longer a job FOR MALES ONLY.

He can make stroganoff, a good cup of coffee, treat ring-around-the-collar, and find the working end of a vacuum sweeper.

He is less threatened by women, children, and responsibility as he becomes more aware of our similarities and not our differences.

Never in the history of civilization have fathers been closer to their children. They're no longer that elusive figure who used to appear on cue, count them, have dinner with them, and peck them good night on the cheek as they went to bed. Dad 1982 is a vital part of their lives.

I used to say, "God invented man and said, 'I can do better than that.'"

I'm not so sure anymore.

Couple Marries On Saturday

Dana Louise Avera and Neil Bryan Jones were united in marriage Saturday afternoon at two o'clock in the Oakmont Baptist Church. The Rev. Gordon E. Conklin performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Grover Cleveland Avera and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joel Timothy Jones Sr., all of Greenville.

A program of wedding music was performed by organist Mary Vick. Soloists Billy and Sandra Stinson sang "Color My World," "Lady" and "The Wedding Song."

The bride was given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father. She wore a formal gown of white chantilly lace over peau de soie designed with an open neckline outlined in lace beaded with pearls and sequins. The fitted bodice was overlaid in chantilly lace. The gown was fashioned with all-lace fitted sleeves accented with pearls and sequins at the cuffs. The full circular skirt featured cascading tiers of chantilly lace that extended to a cathedral length train. She carried a round bouquet of miniature pink and white carnations, rubrum lilies, baker fern, ivy and baby's breath tied with pink and white ribbons.

Cindy Avera McDonald of Wendell, sister of the bride, served as matron of honor and wore a pastel pink floor length organza dress featuring off-the-shoulder ruffles and a hemline ruffle cascading down the back of the gown. She carried a bouquet of miniature pink carnations, lavender daisies and white pom pons tied with a lavender ribbon.

Bridesmaids included Shannon Lynette Avera, sister of the bride, Tammy Cayton Jones, sister-in-law of the bridegroom and Elizabeth Roann Bailey, all of Greenville; Shelia Hardy Jones of Grimesland, sister-in-law of the bridegroom; and Sandra Renee Jones of Greensboro, sister of the bridegroom. They each wore a lavender dress styled like that of the honor attendant and their flowers were identical and tied with a pink bow.

Lori Dozier of Fuquay-Varina, cousin of the bridegroom, served as flower girl. She wore a dress and carried flowers identical to that of the matron of honor.

The mother of the bride wore a formal lavender dress with a matching lace jacket. The mother of the bridegroom chose a formal blue crepe dress with a matching overblouse. They wore corsages of pink miniature carnations and white daisies. The grandmothers of the bridegroom were remembered with corsages of white carnations with white ribbon.

The father of the bridegroom was best man. Ushers included Joel Timothy Jones Jr. of Greenville and Ricky Ray Jones of Grimesland, brothers of the bridegroom, Tony Grover Avera of Annapolis, Md., brother of the bride, Maylon Edward McDonald Jr. of Wendell, brother-in-law of the bride, and Jay Thomas Little of Grimesland.

The wedding was directed by Linda Plaire of Valdosta, Ga., aunt of the bride. Mitzi Taylor of Hahira, Ga., and Deena Plaire of Valdosta, Ga., cousins of the bride, presided at the register.

A reception given by parents of the bride was held at the Ramada Inn following the ceremony. Dr. and Mrs. Donald Bailey of Greenville greeted guests. Mrs. Plaire and Shirley Taylor of Hahira, Ga., aunts of the bride, assisted in serving.

An after-rehearsal dinner was given Friday night by the parents of the bridegroom and Mr. and Mrs. John Thomas Jones and Mr. and Mrs. C.H. Dozier, grandparents of the bridegroom. Shannon Avera and Tony Avera hosted a wine and cheese party for the bridal couple after the rehearsal dinner.

A bridesmaids luncheon was given by Mrs. Betty Bailey and Beth Bailey at their home.

The bride graduated from Pitt Community College with an AAS degree in accounting. The bridegroom studied electronic engineering at Pitt Community College. The bride is employed by Grady-White Boats, Inc. The bridegroom is employed by Gray and Creech.

Cooking Is Fun

KIRSCH PUNCH

Adapted from a recipe of the 1900s.

2 cups dry white wine
¼ cup domestic kirsch
¼ cup sugar
Yellow part only of the peel of half a medium lemon, cut in strips or spirals

Stir together the wine, kirsch and sugar until the sugar dissolves. Add the lemon strips; cover and chill overnight. Remove the lemon strips. Serve in small footed glasses or punch cups with an ice cube, if you like, in each.

Squeaky Floor Solutions

Squeaky floors in your home may be caused by sagging joists, which have become crooked after drying completely.

But, according to Dr. Glenda Herman, extension housing specialist at North Carolina State University, there are several solutions to this problem.

Two solutions involving the joists are to place 1 x 4 inch strips snugly against the bottom of the subfloor, nailed to the floor joists or to use wooden wedges driven between the subfloor and the top of the floor joists.

"A third solution may be the use of screws which are driven from the bottom side of the floor or crawl space through the subfloor into the finished floor," Dr. Herman says. This is possible only where the underside of the floor is accessible.

Wedding Vows Said Saturday Afternoon

SANFORD — Ina Christine Gift, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel W. Gift of Sanford, and William Jonas Camp of Greenville exchanged wedding vows Saturday afternoon at two o'clock.

The Rev. Charles R. Huggins performed the double ring ceremony in the Trinity Lutheran Church here.

The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Paul K. Camp also of Sanford.

The father of the bridegroom was best man and Clara Gift-Garrett of Hickory, sister of the bride, was honor attendant. Bridesmaids included Jeannette DeVenney, sister of the bride, and Arlen DeVenney, niece of the bride both of Hickory and Cynthia Kent of Charlotte.

Ushers included James Camp of Chapel Hill, brother of the bridegroom, Bartowe Garrett, brother-in-law of the bride of Hickory and Gerald Parker of Greenville.

Susan Huggins of Sanford was organist.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a white formal gown and headpiece designed by Christian Dior and created by her mother. The fitted bodice of tissue taffeta had a standing rolled collar with a bias necktie of moire taffeta. Long fitted sleeves had buttoned vents at the wrists. A crushed cummerbund of moire taffeta had a pleated bow and streamers forming the train of the gown. The tulip skirt of tissue taffeta extended from the cummerbund. Her moire taffeta headpiece had a pleated bow and was attached to a band from which flowed two graduated bows and a cathedral length veil of sheer illusion. She carried a cascade of white silk phalaenopsis orchids and Boston fern.

MRS. WILLIAM JONAS CAMP

The honor attendant wore a formal gown of rose voile with a V-neckline, standing ruffled collar and long full sleeves of raglan style gathered into a cuff. A cummerbund accented the waistline and full skirt. Mrs. DeVenney wore an identical rose voile gown while Miss DeVenney and Miss Kent wore identical gowns of pale green voile. All attendants carried a European bouquet of silk pink sweetpeas and mixed greenery.

Mrs. Charles Huggins directed the wedding, Mrs. Clyde Lentz passed out programs and Mrs. V.S. Cline presided at the register. All are from Sanford.

A reception was held at the home of the bride where guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Bill Wall.

Kim Aman of Raoanoke Rapids served cake and Martha Farrell and Jill Beaver poured punch. Floating hostesses were Mrs. Moses Snipes, Mrs. Carl Cameron and Rainbow Girls. Mrs. Stacy Allen presided at the bride's table and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Dilworth said good-byes.

The rehearsal was followed by an informal barbecue given by the bridegroom's parents at their home for the wedding party and out-of-town guests.

The couple will be living in Greenville after a wedding trip to Ocracoke Island.

The bride attends East Carolina University. The bridegroom graduated from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and is employed by Metalwood, Inc. of Greenville.

Family Salary Low In N.C.

In July of 1981, the U.S. poverty threshhold for a non-farm family of four was $8,450. In North Carolina, 17.5 percent of households were below that level.

According to extension family resource management specialists at North Carolina State University, that figure is up from 14.7 percent in 1975.

Per capita income in the state in 1979 was estimated to range from $4,086 in Avery County to $8,499 in Mecklenburg, for an average of $7,382. Per capita income rose in 1980 to $7,819, but the state had dropped from 39th to 41st in national income ranking status.

STARCH BLOCK™

STARCH BLOCK™ IS:
• A revolutionary new concept in natural weight control.
• A natural product that blocks excess starch digestion.
• So effective we back it with a complete money-back guarantee.

STARCH BLOCK™ IS NOT:
• A chemically synthesized drug.
• A stimulant
• Another appetite suppressant.

Almost half the average American's calories come from carbohydrates.

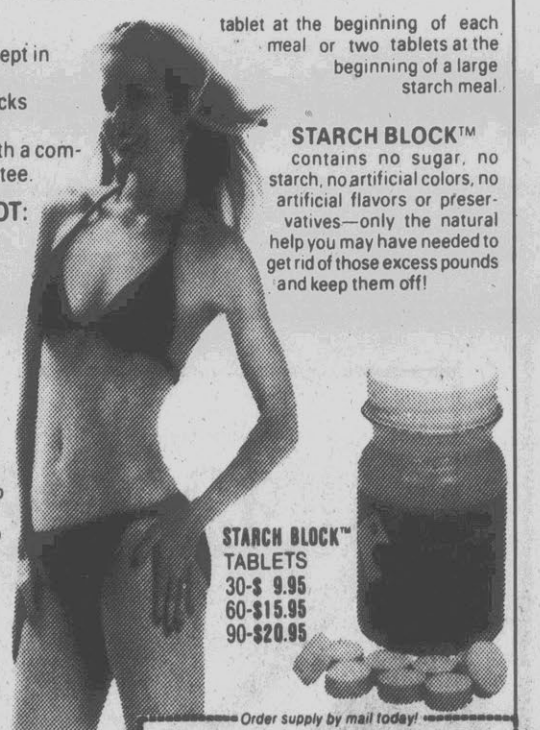

Starch is a major dietary complex carbohydrate. If enzymes did not break down the starch to simpler sugars, those calories would not be absorbed to add to total calorie intake.

Scientists have spent years studying and reporting on naturally occurring protein in legumes (beans) that blocks alpha-amylase, a major body enzyme that breaks down starch to absorbable forms. It was decided that if this protein could prevent or inhibit alpha-amylase from breaking down starch in test tubes, maybe it could do the same in people.

The idea was tested in human diet study and it worked! The test group given the inhibitor lost more weight than the control group not given it. No undesirable side effects were reported. These exciting results were put to use in the development of STARCH BLOCK™. Now you can put STARCH BLOCK™ to work for you!

One STARCH BLOCK™ Tablet can block the conversion of 150 grams of starch to absorbable calories—that's 600 calories! Simply take one tablet at the beginning of each meal or two tablets at the beginning of a large starch meal.

STARCH BLOCK™ contains no sugar, no starch, no artificial colors, no artificial flavors or preservatives—only the natural help you may have needed to get rid of those excess pounds and keep them off!

The ruffled hemline was trimmed with antique lace and ribbon. The matching chapel length veil was decorated around the crown with silk flowers and ribbons. She wore an antique cameo on the neckline. She carried a cascade bouquet of ivy, baby's breath, roses and long streamers.

Connie McCormick of Greenville, cousin of the bride, served as matron of honor. She wore a blue off-the-shoulder dress with an empire waistline decorated in antique lace. She carried a white basket filled with roses of assorted colors.

Bridesmaids were Terry Hayes of Farmville and Susan Nelson of Greenville. They wore peach colored dresses designed like that of the honor attendant. They carried white baskets filled with roses of assorted colors.

Kenneth Mozingo of Ayden, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man. Ushers were Eric McCormick and Mike McCormick, cousins of the bride, both of Greenville.

A reception was held at the Ayden Country Club immediately following the cermony.

The bride attended Independence High School in Charlotte and is enrolled in Pitt Community College. She currently works for Lawrence Behr Associates, Inc. of Greenville. The bridegroom attended Farmville Central High School and is employed with Stuart Shinn of Greenville.

After a wedding trip to Atlantic Beach the couple will reside in Ayden.

Dear Abby

Happy Adoptee Doesn't Lead a Double Life

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1982 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I am 15 years old and my name is Jenna Whitney, and I would like to set you straight on the subject of adoption from an adoptee's point of view. I read your column in the Berkshire Eagle and was prompted to write when I read your Mother's Day comment: "If you're adopted, send your mother two bouquets."

Contrary to your slanted belief, we who are adopted are not a special breed of people — we are simply people who arrived in the family differently. Perhaps our natural parents couldn't afford to raise us, or our natural mothers had no husbands and wanted the best for us. Either way, I'm sure that more than half the people who are adopted are glad they are where they are. If someday they would like to find the woman who gave birth to them, that's their prerogative and I wish them luck. Since I was adopted when I was 3 months old, I never knew the woman who gave birth to me nor do I ever want to, but I am glad she had me because I am having a wonderful life. My mother and father who raised me have given me many opportunities few people have had. I've been to Bermuda, the Bahamas, Europe, and I plan to go to England, Ireland and Scotland this summer — all before I'm 16.

Now, Abby, before I close this letter I want to ask you two things:

1) Since by your standards I'm supposed to give my mother two bouquets of flowers for Mother's Day, should I give my father two ties for Father's Day?

2) Please use this in your column because I would like to know how many readers agree that adopted children owe their parents twice as much.

JENNA IN WILLIAMSTOWN, MASS.

DEAR JENNA: One tie and this column should make a wonderful Father's Day gift.

GOREN BRIDGE

BY CHARLES GOREN AND OMAR SHARIF

DEAR MR. GOREN

Q.—I think I understand the requirements for a takeout double. But I am not so confident about how to respond to a takeout double. Most particularly, the regulars in our game seem to be completely in the dark about what constitutes a one no trump response. Can you lead the blind?—H. Wagner, Palm Beach, Fla.

(This question has been awarded the weekly prize.)

A.—Responding to a takeout double is really a simple matter. Your hand falls into one of three categories:

a)—Weak (0-9 points). To make game, partner will have to have a hand considerably better than a minimum double. You show this type of hand by simply bidding your longest suit at the cheapest level. However, with 7-10 points and a stopper in the opener's suit, bid one no trump if your hand is balanced. If you have a choice of suits, show a four-card major before a five-card minor, especially if you can do so at the one-level.

b)—Invitational (10-12 points). Since partner should have the equivalent of an opening bid for his takeout double, you are in the game zone. If partner has a good minimum takeout double, i.e., 14-15 points, you want him to bid game. You get this message across by jumping in your long suit, or to two no trump with a balanced 11-12 points and preferably double stoppers in the opponents' suit. Note that this jump is not forcing and can be made on a four-card suit. Here, too, it is sound policy to jump in a four-card major rather than a five-card minor — it is easier to make ten tricks than eleven.

c)—Game-going (13 points or better). If you are unable to bid game yourself because you don't know where the hand is to be played, you start with a cue-bid of the enemy suit. That does not promise either first- or second-round control of opener's suit, as would a normal cue-bid. It simply creates a game-forcing situation, and asks the takeout doubler to start showing his four-card suits. The doubler should give preference to a major suit. There is no need for either partner to jump, since the bidding cannot die until game has been reached unless someone doubles the opponents for penalties. Jumps should only be used to indicate extra values, usually in the shape of a solid suit.

That leaves just one response — converting the double to penalties by passing. You do that in one case only: where you have length and strength in opener's suit and reasonable defensive values on the side, such as an ace and a king. Note that your pass virtually demands that partner lead a trump. The idea is that you want to draw trumps to prevent opener from scoring his low trumps via ruffs. Your trump suit should be at least as good as Q-J-10-9-x. When you pass a takeout double, you should expect to score more by penalizing the opponents than by making any contract of your own. If you pass simply because you don't know what to do, it's odds-on that you have chosen the wrong action!

New Bern's Annual Trent River Raft Race

People At A Water Festival

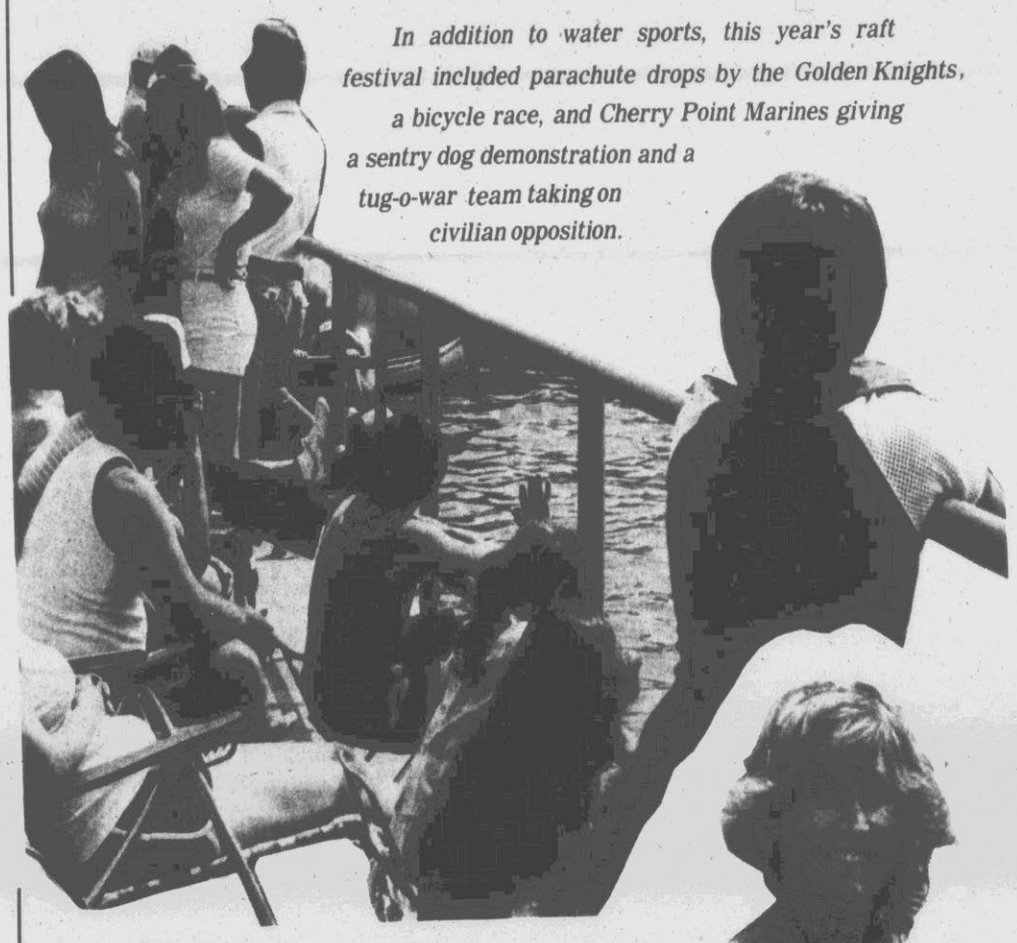

Proceeds from concessions, souvenir sales and raft race entry fees go the Shrine Crippled Childrens Hospital and Burn Centers. The festival is sponsored jointly by WAZZ Radio, New Bern and the Shriners.

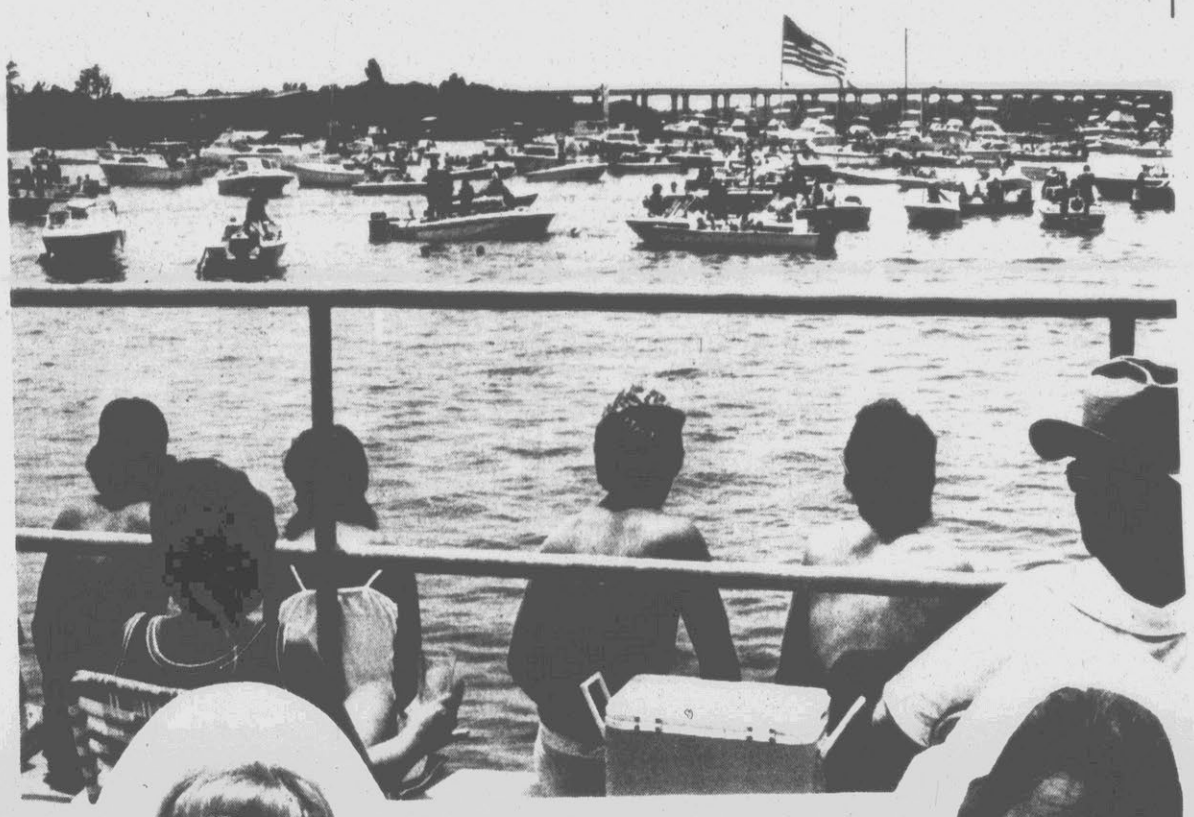

At New Bern's annual Trent River Raft Race last Saturday, thousands of spectators, young and old, enjoyed a day of exciting water events — water skiing, canoe races, raft races. The partly cloudy warm June day was ideal for the big outdoor festival.

In addition to water sports, this year's raft festival included parachute drops by the Golden Knights, a bicycle race, and Cherry Point Marines giving a sentry dog demonstration and a tug-o-war team taking on civilian opposition.

Marines, Coast Guardsmen, sailors and airmen took part in several of the events, with their buddies cheering them on.

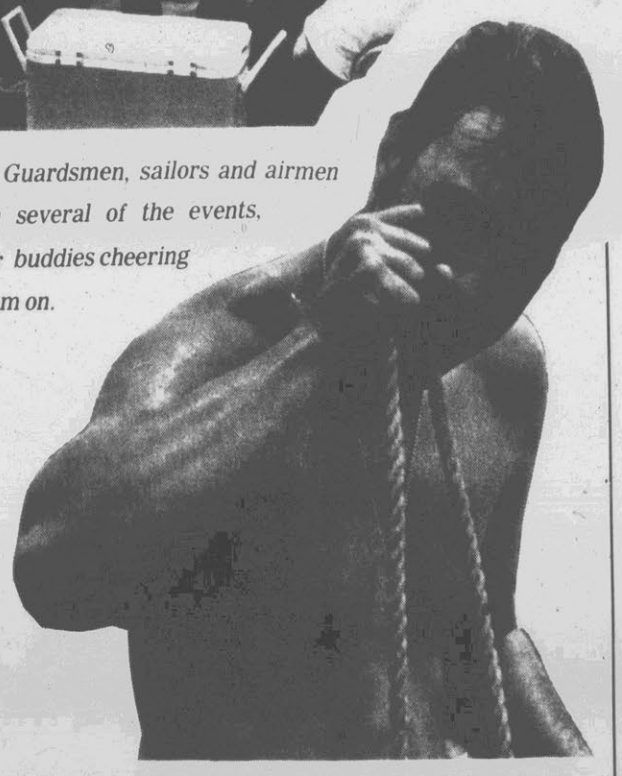

Once more, the Trent River festival proved to be a day of June pleasure against the background of a historic town.

For children there were train rides, face painting and a calliope playing tinkly tunes.

Text And Photographs By Jerry Raynor

People watching was a major attraction of the festivities. Body building males and pretty girls in bathing suits were very much in evidence and graciously posed for photographs.

Mini-Blinds To Give Home Decorators Wider Choice At Less Cost

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

Choosing window coverings from among shades, draperies, curtains and blinds is a decorating decision generally made partly on taste and partly on cost and convenience considerations.

Only about one in 20 consumers selects blinds, according to one industry study. But makers of blinds contend consumers would choose this type of window covering more often if it didn't cost so much and were available for immediate installation.

Now, a number of companies have launched in-stock mini-blind programs, which are expected to bring the cost of the 1-inch blinds down 25 to 50 percent compared to custom blinds, and to provide immediate delivery. The ready-to-install blinds should be appearing in retail home furnishings outlets by mid-summer.

At least five manufacturers launched in-stock blinds at the spring curtain nd drapery market in New York recently. One of them is also offering in-stock vertical blinds.

Though not made to measure, the mini-blinds will be available in enough sizes to fit most windows. They will come in a choice of only a few neutral colors — generally white, off-white, beige and brown — instead of the myriad colors available in custom blinds. However, manufacturers point out that white accounts for at least 50 percent of all blind sales now and neutrals are the next most popular color choice.

One company, whose program is typical, is offering blinds in 64- and 72-inch lengths and in widths ranging on the inch from 23 inches to 48 inches, plus 54- , 60- and 72-inch widths. Consumers will be able to shorten the blinds by removing some vanes by hand.

According to Daniel Spaeth, marketing director for Marathon Carey-McFall, consumers will do their own measuring, using an instruction guide available from the retailer. Blinds will be ready to take home and install and each package will contain the necessary hardware and instructions. A 27-inch-wide mini-blind will sell for about $30, compared to $50 or more for the same size custom blind. A blind to cover a 72-inch sliding glass door will sell for between $100 and $125, compared to as much as $250 for a custom blind.

Other companies offering in-stock mini-blinds in white and neutral shades in a variety of sizes include Joanna Western, Hunter Douglas, Levolor and Graber. Graber will also offer vertical blinds for self-installation.

Sam Schuppe, vice president of marketing for Graber, estimated the ready-to-install vertical blinds will rost about 30 percent less than custom vertical blinds.

The company will cover cloth vanes in three textures and seven colors. The five-inch-wide vertical vanes will snap into a horizontal rod that will beinstalled at the window in a manner similar to a drapery curtain rod.

Rods will be available to fit windows ranging in width from 48 inches to 156 inches. All the blinds are 84 inches long, but a shortening kit, which will sell for about $6, will make it possible to shorten the vanes, if necessary.

The vertical blinds are expected to be on sale nationally beginning early this summer.

A blind large enough to cover a 6-foot-wide sliding glass door (the most popular use for vertical blinds at present) should cost about $160, compared to about $230 for the same size in a custom installation.

The in-stock program is expected to increase the demand for custom blinds as well by providing greater exposure for the product. Industry studies show that although sales of vertical blinds are growing at a rate of about 50 percent a year, many consumers still are not familiar with this type of window covering.

Similarly, makers of mini-blinds say the increased availability of their product at a lower price will mean that more consumers will choose zlinds.

Those who want the convience of professional installation and the decorating advantages of unusual colors and textures will continue to select custom blinds, it was said.

Garden Clinic

Q. I'd like to grow a fall garden and would like to know if it is best to start with seeds or set transplants. (W.G., Elm City)

A. If you can irrigate your garden, you can get earlier maturing vegetables by direct seeding. If you can't irrigate, I would go with transplants. Broccoli should be direct seeded between July 20 and Aug. 5 in eastern North Carolina. Cabbage should be direct seeded between July 15 and Aug. 10 in the east and up to July 20 in the west. Comparable dates for leaf lettuce are Aug. 15 to Sept. 20 and up to Aug. 25. Dates for turnips are Aug. 10 to Aug. 30 and up to August 15, and the suggested dates for direct seeding of Kohlrabi are Aug. 15 to Sept. 20 in the east and up to Aug. 25 in the west.

Q. I know that bees are necessary to pollinate certain crops, such as cucumbers. Does this mean that home gardeners should try to keep bees? (R.W., Charlotte)

A. Not necessarily. Planting of an acre or less that are surrounded by undisturbed wooded areas will likely have enough native pollinators to do the job. Larger fields or small gardens suurounded by acres and acres of crops may need supplemental pollinators in the form of beehives.

Q. Something crawls over the leaves of my tomatoes, cucumbers, squash and beans and leaves a long, winding trail of dead tissue. What creature is responsible? (L.D., Boiling Springs)

A. The winding tunnels are the result of feeding by leafminers. These tiny worms feed between the leaf surfaces and thus are protected from natural enemies and pesticides. A giant gnat or miniature house fly may be seen resting on the leaves. Female flies lay eggs inside the leaves and tunneling follows in a few days. Fortunately, the damage is minor, as the plant usually outgrows the leafminers. However, diazinon is suggested where leafminers and damage are numerous.

Q. Earlier in the year I planted some azaleas in red clay soil. They are wilting, looking chlorotic and I think dying. Someone told me that I didn't plant them properly and they are drowning from all the rain we had. What can I do at this point to save my azaleas? (L.G., Thomasville)

A. Take them up. If they are suffering from "wet feet," as many improperly planted azaleas do, they have not started new roots or become established. Once you have gently removed them, bed them down in a shady place. Mulch well and keep watered if the rains cease. Once the soil dries, work up a good planting site with plenty of organic matter. Do not put your azaleas back in a hole. Set them almost on top of the ground and surround with topsoil and organic matter. Azaleas set in this manner will survive wet weather. However, you must make sure they get plenty of water during the dry weather.

On July 20, 1969, Neil Armstrong became the first man to set foot on the moon. Twenty minutes after Armstrong had stepped out of the spacecraft, Edwin Aldrin followed. While an estimated 528 million people watchd on television, the two Apollo 11 astronauts conducted experiments, collected moon rock and planted a stainless steel plaque which proclaimed that men had come to the moon in peace for all mankind.

PLAN YOUR HOME — The Delmar

Space, Livability for Family, Guests

By Jerry Bishop

While many home designs tend to be either family-oriented or guest-oriented, the Delmar, a gracious single level plan, succeeds in being both.

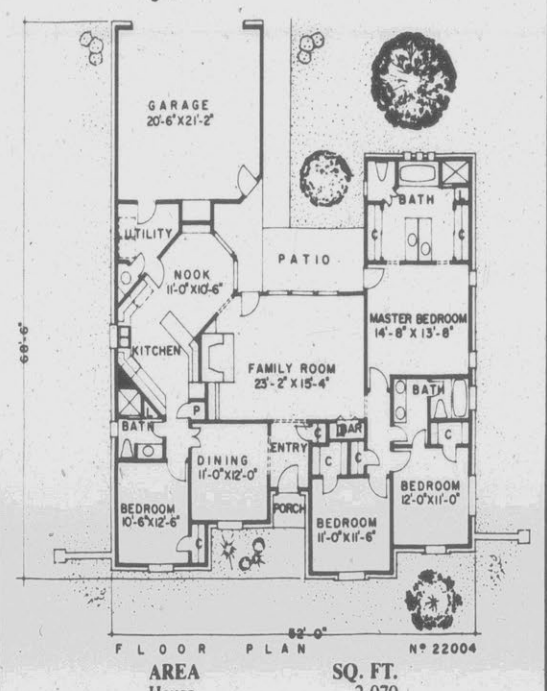

The design not only features plenty of space and a workable traffic pattern but a floor plan that segregates living areas, family sleeping areas, and guest bedroom and bath. In all, four bedrooms and three baths are called for.

On the exterior, the Delmar exhibits a painstakingly careful attention to detail. Gently sloping roof lines, decorative walls of brick, and an abundance of small paned windows add to the character of the home.

Entry is into a sizable foyer with dining room at left and family room ahead. Spanning more than 23 feet, the family room is a multi-function area, equally inviting to family members and visitors. Included is a wood-burning fireplace, wet bar, and access to the patio.

Connected to the family room is the 11-ft. dining nook and adjoining kitchen. The size of the nook makes it possible to include more than a standard dinette set, if desired, and adequately supplements the more formal dining room. The kitchen itself is marked by a wealth of counter space and built-in pantry, and the rear entry garage is joined to the area by a laundry/utility room.

The layout of the sleeping areas is both unique and practical. For overnight guests, a front-facing bedroom and neighboring bath are tucked next to the dining room. Family members get equal attention with an impressive master bath/dressing area linked to the master bedroom, situated for privacy and furnished with patio access. Two front bedrooms share another bath.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG

A hammer is a hahmer is a hammer — except when it has something to do with water, in which case it has to do with noise.

Water hammer is that sound you hear when the water comes to an abrupt halt inside a pipe. Usually the noise — eometimes resembling that of a hammer blow — occurs when a valve is shut off quiculy. If this takes place every time such a shutoff is made, even if it is only at a sink faucet, the hammering may be the result of a pipe banging against a floor joist or something similar.

Should this be the case, try to track down the exact location of the noise. It can often be eliminated simply by securing the pipe with one of those metal pipe straps or using some kind of cushion between the pipe and the joist or whatever it is slamming against as the water valve is turned off.

Basically, however, the fault lies in the malfunctioning of whatever air chambers are tied in with the system or perhahs with the lack of such equipment. If there is one or more chambers, it may be filled with water instead of air and requires attention. Draining all the pipes in the house is a possible solution, at least for the time being. First, be certain all the bathroom tanks in the house are filled to their normal levels.

Next, turn off the valves under the tanks, then shut off the main water valve to the entire house. Now turn on the faucet at the lowest point in the house, then turn on all the other faucets. This procedure should force the water out of the air chambers, ending the water hammer. If it doesn't, your plumbing system needs the services of a licensed plumber to find out whether new air chambers are required and what else requires a professional treatment.

Should the original noise be a kind of chatter at the faucet, the chances are the washer in that fixture has come loose or is chewed up, in which case the washer should be replaced. This necessitates removing the stem from the fixture, turning the screw counterntockwise and putting in a new washer. Be sure the water to that faucet is turned off first.

Once no water is coming in and if you don't know the size of the washer, take it with you to the hardware or home center to be certain you do not get one that is too large or too small. When you do so, warn everyone in the household to stay away from the sink until you get back. Turning on the water before the stem is put back can result in hundreds of gallons pouring into your house before you return from the store. Actually, every house should have a package of assorted washers and new screws on ha d at all times, since trouble has a way of happening when stores are closed.

There are various other but less common plumbing noises. One of these is a rumbling sound that occurs only in the hot-water lines. Sometimes this can be corrected quickly by lowering the temperature of the hot water. The setting can be 160 degrees Fahrenheit or 20 degrees lower without interfering with the hot water requirements of the household, which results in a savings of energy and money.

Take time out some time to show every member of the household capable of understanding exactly where the shutoff water valve to the house is located. This can prevent a lot of trouble if a pipe breaks or there is a major leak sometimes when you aren't home. If nobody else knows where the shutoff valve is located and how to operate it, your house may be partly under water before the valve finally is turned off.

(Plumbing noises, leaky faucets, balky toilet tanks and other subjects are discussed in Andy Lang's booklet, "Make Simple Plumbing Repairs," which can be obtained by sending 50 cents PLUS A LONG, STAMPED, SELF+ADDRESSED ENVE-lope to Know-How, P. O. Box 477, Huntington NY 11743.)

Q. — The heavy wooden door at the entrance to my house is beginning to catch and drag at the top. I dread the idea of taking off the door and trying to plane some wood off the top edge. I remember doing that years ago and having a lot of trouble with the wood splintering. Is there some way to solve this problem without planing?

A. — Usually, a door that binds at the top can be fixed by doing a little work with the bottom hinge. First, see if the bottom hinge is loose. Even the tiniest movement of that hinge when opening or closing the door can cause the binding at the top. If you find such a movement or if one of the screws in the hinge leaf is loose, put a screwdriver or something similar under the door whil it is open. This will keep the door firm and even while you are working on it.

Take out the screws and put in slightly larger replacements. Should that not be workable, as when the holes in the hinge are not large enough, fill the holes in the wood with wood putty or plastic wood. When the filler hardens, replace the original screws and everything should be all right. However, if your testing discloses no trouble with the hinge screws, take out those in the jamb portion of the hinge. Insert a cardboard shim, the same size as the leaf, under the metal and reinsert the screws. If all else fails and you have to plane the door's top, there is no need to remove the door from its hinges. Instead, open the door and place a wedge under the bottom of it. Get on a proper support and do the planing with a block plane. To prevent splintering, work from the end of the door toward the center.

Q. — I do not know what was used to finish the kitchen cabinets in our house, but they seem to need refinishing. Do I have to take off the previous finish or can I lightly sand them and put another finish on them? The cabinets are 8 years old. They have some kind of clear finish on the wood.

AV. — It is difficult to tell from your letter why they need resinishing, but that would have a bearing on whether the old finish must be removed. On the assumption that the old finish is worn in spots, with a kind of messy surface, caused by the grime that sometimes accumulates on walls where cooking is done nearby, the chances are you can put another finish over the old. First, use a type of primer that is especially good in kitchens on wooden surfaces. Follow the directions on the label of the container on what, if anything, must be done before applying a top coat of whatever you choose. Again, because you did not specify what your preference in a new finish might be, the guess is that you probably want the finish to remain clear.

Life As It's Lived

By Gail Michaels

Creative women and creative children don't mix. Oh, I've seen the articles all right, the ones where the women making their first million on mail order corn cob dolls or writing books on saving money by using fruit cocktail syrup for popsicles are seated at their typewriters, their children right beside them contentedly sucking on crayons. It's a hoax, and all you long-suffering women ought to be informed of it.

I know it's a hoax because when I first started writing, the photographer took a picture of me busily preparing one of my culinary masterpieces while Meg played placidly on the kitchen floor.

If the picture had been true to life, Meg would have been climbing one of my legs, offering her indispensible advice. The idea that I might be able to express myself in any area without her aid has never occurred to her. If I try to work on one of the handmade projects that please my in-laws so much at Christmas, she positions her nose within half an inch of what I'm doing and demands a lesson. If I sit down to write a letter, she starts a discussion on the mating habits of giraffes.

Zachary is no better. He's not quite as verbal, but he knows instinctively that if I'm working with an instrument that requires the attention I should be giving to him, he should be on my lap with his chubby hand guiding my own.

I used to think, as most women who work in the home do, that the answer to all my problems was a room of my own. Housewives aspiring to self-improvement rarely get rooms of their own. Men have offices or workshops. Women have a corner of the garage or, at best, a desk in the kitchen. I can't count the times I've dreamed of an office without a tool kit and a bicycle, where no one of dwarf size could entertain himself by dropping pennies and paperclips into my typewriter.

Well, when we moved into this house, I got it. True, I have to share it with Phillip and the guest bed, but I have a door between me and the kids.

Theoretically, that is. In reality, I don't get to use the door. No woman in her right mind would leave two kids like mine on the loose in the house without supervision. Zachary, for instance, has found a new penny bank, the dishwasher controls, to which he contributes every time my back is turned. Meg is slightly more trustworthy, but the way she thumps any closed door between us with her shoulder, accompanying herself at all times with loud sighs, is more than I can bear.

And the moment the door is opened, she has something important to tell me. It's always urgent. It absolutely connot wait. "You ought to hear what Mark told me," she said as I sat down to start this column.

I was determined to be firm. "Later. I'm busy."

"But he said that he told his mother that his teacher told ..."

I was rapidly surrendering to that highly touted grip of nervous tension. "Not now! I have to work, and I can't listen to you at the same time."

She tried various other tacks. She attempted to whisper her message in the hope that I would not be disturbed as much. She handed me a piece of paper with the message, "I need to tok tO yoo."

After threatening her with bodily injury and relegating her to a chair where she sniffled and blinked back tears, I tried to recapture my train of thought. it was futile. I stared into her dejected face and demanded, "Well, what is it that you need to tell me?"

She hesitated a moment. "Oh, Mommy," she said ruefully, "I forgot."

Crowning America's Junior Miss

Marking its silver anniversary, "America's Junior Miss Pageant" will be broadcast from the Municipal Auditorium in Mobile, Ala., on Tuesday, June 22 (8-9 p.m.) on CBS. After an absence of five years, Michael Landon will return as the host.

With the colors red, white and blue, representing America, and silver, representing the Pageant's 25-year history, prominent in the stage setting, two competitions will be conducted in choreographed production numbers. One, for youth fitness, will be performed to the Olivia Newton-John song "Let's Get Physical." In the other, for poise and appearance, contestants will present their qualifications in a musical salute to the CBS series "Dallas."

According to Pageant officials, approximately 27,000 high school seniors participate — and over $2,500,000 in scholarships and prizes are offered — on the local, state and national levels. Kimberly Ann Smith of North Carolina, last year's Junior Miss, will crown the new America's Junior Miss, who will also receive a $25,000 scholarship.

"They're a nice bunch of girls," said host Landon of the Junior Miss contestants. "They're really very interesting. And the girls are not just beautiful. They have scholastic ability, too."

Landon has developed quite a few abilities himself since being born Eugene Orowitz in Forest Hills, N.Y. Besides starring in and producing "Little House on the Prairie," he has directed a number of televison projects, including "Walt Disney...One Man's Dream."

When he was the age of the Junior Miss contestants, Landon had just started to fatten up the 90-pound frame he sported in 10th grade. However, he had a mighty arm when it came to throwing the javelin. As a result, he was offered scholarships to numerous colleges.

No sooner had Landon chosen the University of Southern California than he injured his arm, which put an end to his career.

On a whim, he accompanied a friend to an audition at Warner Bros. The casting agent took an interest in Landon and urged him to attend the studio's acting school. Soon he began making the rounds on his own auditions, and when he was offered the part of Little Joe on "Bonanza," Michael Landon, alias Eugene Orowitz, was on his way to stardom.

WITH MICHAEL LANDON as the host, Kimberly Ann Smith, the current Miss Junior Miss, will crown her successor, on "America's Junior Miss Pageant," Tuesday, June 22 (8-9 p.m.), on CBS-TV.

Man Breaks Out To See Son

George Peppard stars as a fugitive dodging pursuers as he attempts to travel across the United States to visit his critically injured son, in "Five Days From Home," a feature that Peppard produced and directed. The film will have its network television premiere on NBC's Sunday Night at the Movies June 20 (9-11 p.m.).

Peppard stars as T.M. Pryor, who escapes from a Louisiana prison just six days before he is eligible for parole in order to visit his 9-year old son in a Los Angeles hospital. The youngster has been critically injured in an auto accident and Pryor decides to break out after his request for an immediate furlough is denied.

Determined to reach the son he hasn't seen in six years, Pryor is pursued with a vengeance by Markley, (Neville Brand) a police inspector who believes that the convict killed a guard while escaping. As he continues to flee, Pryor meets Georgie Haskin, (Savanah Smith) a woman who reluctantly drives him further along his journey, soon realizing he is not the kind of man being described in radio news accounts.

As he continues his flight across the country, Pryor calls the hospital ward where his son is recuperating and finds that the head nurse is quite sympathetic to his plight. With Markley never far behind, the fugitive kidnaps an insurance broker and his secretary in Texas and uses their luxury car to stay on the move.

GEORGE PEPPARD STARS as a fugitive dodging pursuers as he attempts to travel across the United States to visit his critically injured son, in "Five Days From Home," an adventure drama airing Sunday, June 20 (9-11 p.m.), on NBC-TV.

A New Residence

Mary Moore has established her permanent residence in New York. Mary has no plans involving television in the near future but is very proud of her recent theatrical release, "Six Weeks."

Stars Are Signed

Katharine Ross, Tom Selleck, Sam Elliott, Ben Johnson and Jeff Osterhage will star in Louis L'Amour's "The Shadow Riders," for CBS-TV being produced for airing next fall.

TV Chatter

By Polly Vonetes

"LOVE, SIDNEY" fans can look forward to an upcoming episode featuring MYRNA LOY as a guest star. All Miss Loy had to hear was that TONY RANDALL has always been a big fan of hers but was too bashful to ask her to be his guest.

If you just happen to have a beach home at Malibu you may be interested to know that you can protect your private beach from unwelcome guests with a remote control electronically operated 5-foot shark for a mere $2,000. How ironic — to work so hard to become rich, famous and adored, and then have to pay so dearly for privacy.

Number three network NBC is really trying harder — they have asked HENRY MANCINI to liven up its ELECTION NEWS COVERAGE of the congressional races this fall by composing a special theme. I guess the PEACOCK isn't ready to shed his feathers yet.

Surprises just seem to follow RICHARD PRYOR. While on location in Hammond, La., filming "THE TOY," Richard was to be frightened by a pair of "fake" alligators in the town's pond. Well, he was frightened all right — by a pair of unexpected water mocassins that closed the set for the rest of the day.

A happy LOU GOSSETT won custody of his seven-year-old son after a Los Angeles Juvenile Court Commissioner dismissed petitions alleging the child had been given cocaine. The complaint had been filed by the actor's ex-wife.

"MAGGIE" star MIRIAM FLYNN and husband, WILL PORTER, are expecting their first baby later this year.

ROBERT MITCHUM will be making his dramatic motion picture-for-television debut with ANGIE DICKINSON in "SO LITTLE CAUSE FOR CAROLINE," currently filming in the Lake Tahoe area.

Among the many wires congratulating CARY GRANT as the N.Y. Friars' Man of the Year, ELIZABETH TAYLOR's noted: "Even though we have never worked together, I have lusted for you yea these many years. And I still do. Is there a chance for us yet? You're getting younger and I'm getting older." Well, that's our Liz — she certainly has a way with words.

A Hollywood tale in Florida: "BLUE SKIES AGAIN," currently filming in Fort Lauderdale, was in need of an actress who was also a good athlete to play the first girl trying to break into Major League Baseball. After interviewing dozens of girls, they decided to look for an athlete who could act. They found 19-year-old ROBYN BARTO, a college freshman on a baseball scholarship, who is a look-a-like for Ali MacGraw and reads lines like Katharine Hepburn. Producers feel they have discovered a real natural for the movie. That's the fickle-finger-of-fate at work again — it could happen to you!

'Shogun' Returns

"Shogun," the award-winning mini-series starring Richard Chamberlain will be repeated during the fall season on NBC.

Connie Will Host

Connie Francis will host a benefit for the American Foundation for the Blind, July 12-13 at the Imperial Palace in Las Vegas.

Thriller For CBS

Elizabeth Montgomery stars in "A Private Investigation," a new motion picture-for-television about a woman who undertakes a personal investigation of her husband's murder, now in production for broadcast next season on CBS.

Also starring are John Reilly, Louann and Ron Karabotsos.

When her husband, a political reporter, was murdered before her eyes and the killers were not apprehended, Sara Scott (Miss Montgomery) vowed someday to bring those responsible to justice. Now working for a private investigator (Karabotsos), she stumbles onto the trail of the killers and becomes involved in a deadly cat-and-mouse game in which she is marked as the next victim.

Tribute To Fats Waller

The television presentation of "Ain't Misbehavin'," a Tony Award winner for Best Musical of 1978, will be broadcast on NBC, Monday, June 21 (9-11 p.m.). The production stars members of the original Broadway cast, including Nell Carter (of NBC's "Gimme A Break") in a re-creation of her Tony-winning performance; Andre DeShields, Armelia McQueen, Ken Page and Charlaine Woodard.

The evening of song laced with comedy is a tribute to the music of Thomas Fats Waller. All 31 songs were either written by Waller or recorded by him. Waller, a prolific composer, singer, musician and comedian, is credited with the invention of swing music of the 1930s.

In addition to the cast, the special also utilized the services of production people from the Broadway musical: Luther Henderson, arranger and onstage piano player; Richard Maltby, staging; Arthur Faria, musical staging and choreographer; and Randy Barcelo, costumer. Maltby, who conceived the show, also won the 1978 Tony as Best Director of a Musical.

DAVID CARRADINE portrays Tom Horn, the enigmatic frontier figure whose colorful Wild West career encompassed the capture of Geronimo, in "Mr. Horn," airing Wednesday, June 23 (8-11 p.m.), on CBS-TV.

Series Enshrined

Another popular television program is being enshrined in the Smithsonian Institute.

Already housing the well-known chairs used in "All In The Family" and other Hollywood props, the museum gained custody of the jailhouse door, badges and other paraphernalia used in the ABC series "Barney Miller." Star Hal Linden and others were on hand for ceremonies.

Michele Will Tell

Q: I would like to know if Everett Greenbaum, one of the writers on the show "M*A*S*H," ever served in the army in WW II in the Aleutian Islands. I served with an Everett Greenbaum and am very interested in knowing if this could be the same person. HERBERT CLARK, ELIZABETHTON, N.C.

A: Whether the Everett you served with and the writer on "M*A*S*H" are one and the same, only he can tell you. Write to Mr. Greenbaum in c/o "M*A*S*H," CBS-TV, 51 W. 52 St., New York, N.Y., 10019.

Q: Please tell me if the Walt Disney movie "Cinderella" has been on TV, and if so, when? NANIS WILLIAMS, WILSON, N.C.

A: Disney's "Cinderella" has been released theatrically several times — it has yet to be shown on television.

Q: Could you tell me the real name of the man who plays Mr. McCord on the "Guiding Light," and any other information you have on him? ANGELA SMITH, GREENVILLE, N.C.

A: Mike Tylo stars as Quint McCord on "Guiding Light." A native of Detroit, Michigan, he is a graduate of Wayne State University and met his wife, Deborah, at graduate school. Mike and Chris Rich (Sandy on "Another World") have formed their own production company.

Q: Could you tell me what happened to Donna Douglas who played Elly May on "The Beverly Hillbillies"? I heard she was dead, if so how did she die? LESTER HOWARD, GREENVILLE, N.C.

A: Donna is not dead! You may have missed her last October when she and several of the original cast members of "The Beverly Hillbillies" reprised their roles for "Return of the Beverly Hillbillies." Donna left acting for several years and was successful in selling real estate in the fashionable areas of Beverly Hills and Bel Air. She eased back into television with several appearances in Jack Webb's "Project U.F.O." series and for the past two years has been performing a musical act, as Elly May, in the South and Southwest.

Q: Where does Brooke Shields go to school? ANGELA B., FAYETTEVILLE, N.C.

A: The lovely Miss Shields attends the very posh prep school Dwight-Englewood, located in New Jersey.

Doing It Naturally

Tony Award-winning composer Albert Hague, who stars as a music professor on the NBC series "Fame," had no difficulty in auditioning for the part. Hague, a teacher and musician for many years says he also teaches classes in auditions and has attended over 35,000 of them.

Former Player

Many pro athletes make the jump to television after notable careers in sports. Chuck Connors, who rose to fame as "The Rifleman," played major league baseball before portraying a rancher. In 1949, he played first base for the Brooklyn Dodgers and in 1951, he was first bagger for the Chicago Cubs.

Glamour Roles Are Dead Ends

How do you cure a bad case of typecasting?

If you're Maud Adams, the ex-model, you join the cast of "Chicago Story," which airs Fridays (8:30-10 p.m.) on NBC.

"I'm interested in a long-term career," Miss Adams said. "Glamour roles are basically a dead end. Eventually you get older and you can't play them anymore. 'Chicago' not only gave me a chance to broaden my range as an actress, it gave me a wonderful opportunity to play a character I am truly interested in."

And that character, Dr. Judith Bergstrom, a dedicated chief resident in the trauma unit of Cook County Hopsital, is a far cry from her early career roles in films such as "Rollerball," "Killer Force" and "The Man With the Golden Gun."

"There's a certain bias among some Hollywood producers that if you were once a model you can't possibly act," Miss Adams said. "That results in rigid typecasting where you end up being offered roles that are all flash and no substance."

As a native of Lulea, Sweden (which is due south of the Arctic Circle), Miss Adams was seemingly better prepared than most to withstand the freezing Chicago weather during the winter filming of the NBC series.

"Actually, I used to ski to school," she said. "Junior high was a couple of kilometers across a lake, from my house. When the lake froze I would skate across; when snow covered it I would take my skis.

"I can remember coming they'd lost all feeling. To thaw them out, I'd stick them in hot water. The pain was excruciating. I can still remember standing there crying.

Miss Adams said she grew up with a great desire to leave the extreme cold weather in Sweden as soon as she could. "Even as a kid, I was thinking up all types of professions that would get me out of there.

'The Kid' Strikes Again!

A grand scheme backfires when a boy who enters every contest that comes along wins a flock of chickens. The "twist" occurs when he decides to keep his winnings on an elegant estate in order to help a friend — an underpaid butler — avoid starvation. All this happens in "The Contest Kid Strikes Again," returning to the "ABC Weekend Specials" series, Saturday, June 26 (noon-12:30 p.m.).

The story continues the delightful adventures of a boy who is eternally optimistic and undefeatably enthusiastic about everything he does. The relationship between the boy and his older, dignified friend presents an excellent picture of youth and age interacting to create something very special.

Harvey Small becomes upset when he hears that his good friend, Hawkins, is going hungry, due to the fact that the city has cut the salary he earns managing a historical mansion once owned by his former employer. Hawkins is touched when Harvey asks him to join in his chicken business and lets the boy build a chicken coop on the property. Problems arise, however, when the mayor's assistant finds out about it and orders Hawkins to get rid of the chickens.

Soon after Harvey and Hawkins protest, Hawkins finds himself in jail and out of a job — but not for long!

Patrick Peterson stars as Harvey, reprising the role he created in "The Contest Kid." Alan Napier, who was featured as another butler — Alfred — in the "Batman" series, plays Hawkins

EVEN ALAN NAPIER'S innate reserve and dignity suffer when he has live chickens in his arms, in "The Contest Kid Strikes Again," a story about the lucky boy who wins all the wrong contests, airing on the "ABC Weekend Specials," Saturday, June 26 (noon-12:30 p.m.).

Graham Seeks 2nd Open Win

When Australian David Graham picked up his first set of clubs — and a left-handed set, at that (he switched to right-handed clubs at 16) — he never envisioned himself as the United States Open champion and the winner of well over $1 million.

He reached both of those goals last year, though, and Graham will be trying to repeat his U.S. Open victory when the 1982 tournament gets under way at the Pebble Beach (Calif.) Golf Links. ABC will broadcast the final round of the event — from the first tee to the eighteenth green — on Sunday, June 20 (4-8 p.m.).

Last June in Merion in the Open, Graham trailed George Burns by three strokes after three rounds. He then played what many have called one of the finest finishing rounds in the history of the tournament — a three-under-par 67 for a total of seven-under 273, one stroke better than Burns and Bill Rogers.

As Rogers said at the awards ceremony, "David hit 18 greens in regulation and in the last round of the U.S. Open, that is unbelievable."

Earlier in the year, the 36-year-old Graham had another personal first. He started his season at the Phoenix Open, and won by a stroke over Lon Hinkle. Not many of his seven victories have been easy. His first triumph came in the 1972 Cleveland Open, when he had to defeat his close friend Australian Bruce Devlin in a sudden-death playoff.

When Graham won the PGA Championship in 1979, his first "major" victory, he was cruising until he double bogeyed the 18th hole to let Ben Crenshaw tie him. Graham then recovered to birdie the third extra hole.

Winning the PGA, he said, changed him as a player and a person. "I felt I was rather tense prior to that. I found the game difficult," he said. "But after the PGA, I realized I may have been selling myself short. I gained more composure, more self-control and I'm now more relaxed."

Graham didn't start playing golf until he was 14 years old, and two years later, he worked in a golf shop in Melbourne, Australia. After a three-year apprenticeship, he took the head job at a nine-hole course in Tasmania.

He returned to Australia two years later and worked for a club manufacturer. It was there that his love for designing clubs began.

Finally, late in the 1960s, Graham embarked on the tournament circuit, first through Australia and the Far East. It was a road that has taken him to the top of his profession.

Golf Can Be Work

Avid golfer Bob Hope once offered his description of the game. "If you watch a game, it's fun. If you play it, it's recreation," says Hope. "If you work at it, it's golf!"

Attitude Improved

Fortunately, the attitude towards preventing damaging injuries in the boxing ring has improved over the years. Today the referee will not hesitate to stop a fight when it is evident that a boxer cannot defend himself. In 1951, middleweight champ Jake La Motta absorbed 56 punches straight without returning a blow as Ray Robinson defeated him for the title.

GREENVILLE CITY SCHOOLS

Annual Report To The Citizens
1981-82

Progress Through Involvement

Dr. Delma C. Blinson, Superintendent

From The School Board Chairman

On behalf of the Greenville City Board of Education, I congratulate and commend our students, parents and friends, teachers, staff, and administration for an exceptionally fine year. Once again your accomplishments have been numerous and significant, encompassing scholastic achievement, superior performances in the fine arts, and an outstanding athletic program.

The introduction and integration of new leadership has proven productive and effective in our system with its ever increasing requirements and demands, despite declining enrollment and diminishing revenues.

As this year draws to a close, two of the current board members definitely will not be returning in the roles we have played for several years. I know that I speak for Mrs. Terry Shank, as well as myself, in challenging the citizens of Greenville, students, faculty, staff, administration, and Board of Education to be bold, imaginative, and understanding as we are confronted with the multitude of tomorrow's educational challenges. The Greenville City School System is a key to the future of Greenville, Pitt County, and perhaps even eastern North Carolina.

Dr. Jon Tingelstad, Chairman
Greenville City Schools Board Of Education

The Greenville City Schools Board Of Education

From The Superintendent

Superintendent Dr. Delma C. Blinson

As I approach the end of my first year as your Superintendent, there is much I would like to say, and unfortunately space does not permit me to say all I would like. But I do want to say a special "thank you" to you—the people of Greenville—for all your support of our schools and our efforts this year.

It has been a busy year. It has been a good year for Greenville City Schools. The contents of this report will attest to that statement. Greenville has excellent schools. True, we have needs, and will always, but there is so much good here. We have a dedicated and capable School Board. Our staff is one of the best anywhere. We have as fine a group of students as any school system anywhere. We are fortunate to have a tradition of excellence in Greenville. This tradition is based on proven performance, not on a plastic public relations campaign.

But what I have seen this year that has most impressed me has been the support the community has given our schools. Again, you'll see documentation of that in this report. "Progress Through Involvement" has been chosen as the theme of this report. I feel it conveys the tenor of this school year.

My message to you is one of gratitude and a sincere appeal for your continued support. I appreciate it. We need it. The kids deserve it.

Dr. Delma C. Blinson,
Superintendent
Greenville City Schools

The Administrative Team: An Approach to Decision Making

One of the changes made by the new Superintendent this year was the implementation of the Administrative Team approach to decision-making. The Team is composed of the principals and central office directors. It meets twice monthly, or on call, at the Central Office. The Superintendent presides and determines the agenda. The process used by the group is "consensus gathering" based on participatory discussions and the use of parliamentary procedure. The Superintendent reserves the right to change or veto group decisions, but to date that has not been necessary.

The Administrative Team is involved in all of the significant administrative decisions of the school system. All policy proposals are reviewed by the Team before submission to the Board of Education. The Comprehensive Plan and the strategies for reaching our goals were developed by the Team. The sessions also allow for sharing and discussion of mutual problems.

Another feature of the Team is the facilitation of communication. Every administrator is aware of the significant actions and issues of each department and school. Administrators with less experience have the benefit of those who have "been around," while the experienced ones get the benefit of new ideas and questioning.

The concept is not new, having been used in business and industry for years. Many other school systems have adopted the concept in recent years. There is much research which says groups usually make better decisions than individuals. This is particularly true where decisions need organizational support for the best implementation.

When asked how he feels about the Team's functionings thus far, Dr. Blinson responded: "I'm very pleased. Building a team takes time. We have very capable administrators, and they have worked hard at becoming a team. Working together, I'm confident we will continue to improve Greenville City Schools."

THE PLAN

In February, the Board of Education, upon the recommendation of the Superintendent, adopted A Comprehensive Plan For The Improvement of Greenville City Schools. The plan is a collection of forty-two goals involving every aspect of the school system.

The process began with a "needs assessment" which involved suggestions from over a thousand people, including a survey of all parents. The Superintendent met with over fifty groups, involving several thousand people, to discuss the problems and strengths of the school system. He then submitted a report to the Board of Education on the Status of The Greenville City Schools. The goals were developed to correct problems and build on the strengths.

Copies of The Plan were distributed to all parents in the January/February edition of the newsletter. The Plan will be reviewed and revised annually. It also serves as the criteria for evaluating the progress of the school system. The Board uses it to evaluate the Superintendent's performance.

After adoption of the goals, every principal and central office director developed a "Management Plan" for each goal. This process provides for each principal and director to determine how each goal will be met in each school or department. Specific strategies and timelines are developed in each school. These plans then become the basis upon which the Superintendent evaluates the performance of each principal and director.

Thus, the patrons tell the Board how they feel about the schools. The Board determines what is to be accomplished. The administrators determine how to accomplish the goals and are evaluated on their performance in accomplishing the goals.

Some of the goals are short-term. Others will require years to accomplish and some are continuing. Some are rather routine, others somewhat technical. Some lend themselves to objective measurement, others cannot be measured except in indirect ways. The goal setting process is not a panacea for all needs. They do set directions. They do not provide resources for accomplishing good intentions.

When asked to comment on The Plan, the Superintendent said: "The goal is for each child to get the best possible education. The most crucial element in that success is the quality of the classroom teacher. Some teachers are better for some kids than others. Education is not a science. The quality of education cannot always be measured as business measures profit and loss. What we are attempting to do with The Plan is to be responsive to what the community wants of our schools, to provide a means for the Board to control the school system, and to provide a way of assessing performance. Still, the real goal is to do what is best for each child."

Parent Conferences

Despite the excellent teaching taking place in our schools, we know that each child needs support from home if he is to meet his maximum potential. There is no question, parents are crucial to the students' success.

With the above statement clearly understood, the staff of Greenville City Schools has made an "all out" effort to reach all parents of students taught this year.

Comments such as these have been heard from teachers:

"Parent conferences have helped to make my school year a successful one."

"I have talked with every parent represented in my homeroom except one this year. I also made home visits."

"Of the twenty-five students charged to me, I was able to confer with twenty-three of the parents. Home visitations, phone calls, and conferences at school equaled a total of 65 clock hours for such a task...no regrets."

The City-Wide PTA Council

The Greenville City-Wide PTA Council is composed of PTA presidents from Greenville City Schools, school principals, and parent delegates. The Council serves as a forum for sharing ideas and keeping abreast of PTA work being done throughout the city.

One of the major projects of the City-Wide Council has been its support of increased training and incentive awards for city school bus drivers. During 1981-82 the individual PTA units contributed six hundred dollars to help support additional training and make incentive awards possible.

The Council has also served as a means of communication between administrative officers of Greenville City Schools, especially the Superintendent, and parents of Greenville school children. The Council invites not only parents but also administrators and teachers to contact it if they have information or ideas that might be beneficial to all PTA units.

Custodial Services

In addition to the regular custodial personnel that take care of our buildings this year, we have had an addition.

The regular crews' work hours are staggered at the larger schools so that we can have work going on longer after school hours when buildings are not occupied. The smaller schools employ one janitor and one maid, and this procedure is not practical.

During the winter of this school year, we hired a special after-hour cleaning crew to supplement our regular custodial personnel. The crew consists of three people and is intended as a temporary measure to get some heavy cleaning accomplished.

The buildings' appearance, especially the floors, reflect the results of this work and are looking very good. Many PTA groups have worked very close by with the principals to improve the appearance of shrubbery and to provide funds for playground equipment.

Maintenance Highlights for 81-82:

A. Domestic hot water systems have been installed that will supplant use of the buildings' heat systems boilers about 75 school days per year. A regular boiler requires 18-20 gallons of fuel per hour; whereas, a new hot water system requires about 1½ gallons of fuel per hour. A little arithmetic indicates a savings of about $17 to $18 per hour of operations for each school. These systems have been installed this past year at:
   Elmhurst School
   Sadie Saulter School
   South Greenville School
   Rose High School
   Aycock School had a system that we were able to modify and eliminate the use of the main boiler for heating domestic hot water. Third Street School and the Middle School also have small hot water systems. We plan to install a system like the one in Sadie Saulter at Eastern School next year.

B. The Maintenance Department installed two high efficiency steam boilers at Rose High School. These units replaced the worn out 30-year-old boilers at that school.

C. The Maintenance Department has zoned the heat system at Rose High School so that the entire school does not have to be heated in order to heat one area when the rest of the building is not occupied. This also allows the sunny side of the building, etc., to be cut off when not needed.

D. Utility costs and energy uses are compiled monthly and computerized. These procedures have resulted in direct savings of about $10,000. The computer read-outs allow us to monitor all energy comsumptions and check out unusual circumstances.

E. We did a study to consider the feasibility of installing energy management mechanisms. One local citizen made a study and recommended that we not install the mechanisms, explaining that we were employing about all the energy conservation methods we could afford and spending money on this equipment could not be justified. Our local Utility Commission engineer and an engineer from the Division of Plant Operations (SDPI) concurred with this patron's findings.

We have established a Business Affairs Advisory Committee during the 1981-82 school year. This committee is comprised of professional persons in the community that meet with us once a month and are available as needed to offer expert advise in many areas of the school system's operations (businessmen, contractors, bankers, insurance men, tax experts, attorneys, etc.)

They have assisted us in contract considerations, inspection of facilities, budget recommendations and other ways. It gives us, as school business managers, a sense of confidence knowing we have this expertise to draw on as may be needed.

We have had fires at two facilities:

Maintenance Department:
A valve on a heater unit malfunctioned at night, and the heater overheated, starting a fire that damaged one section of the facility. This damage has been repaired and an addition made to the warehouse.

Agnes Fullilove:
The building sustained about $16,000 damages from several fires in two classrooms.

NOTE: The cooperative action of citizens living in the vicinity of these facilities in reporting these fires to the Fire Department saved items from extreme damage or total loss. We are happy to know that people are alert and concerned, and we thank the Greenville Fire Department for their prompt and efficient responses. They kept fire damage to a minimum, and it is very obvious they took great pains to eliminate water damage and did assist us in clean up operations.

Of course, general maintenance is an ongoing task that Mr. Francis Dorey and his personnel take very seriously and continue to do a good job.

Highlights Of Child Nutrition Program

The school year began as Linda Tingle, Child Nutrition Supervisor, attended the National School Food Service Convention in Atlanta during July. The speakers and exhibits resulted in new ideas being brought back to Greenville City Schools.

Approximately one-fifth of the cafeteria employees and managers attended the East Carolina University Summer Institute to improve skills and knowledge related to their jobs. The inservice prior to the opening of school for all cafeteria personnel was held at Wahl-Coates School. Employees learned about safety in the kitchen. Managers learned about recordkeeping, ordering foods, nutrition education, merchandizing, "offer vs. serve" and various other subjects.

School opened with "offer vs. serve" implemented in grades K-12. Rose High School and E.B. Aycock School implemented a sandwich bar to increase a la carte sales. A satellite operation for Third Street and Agnes Fullilove was started to decrease labor expenses.

National School Lunch Week was celebrated during October. The School Board participated in the celebration at South Greenville Elementary School. Parents were invited to eat lunch with their children. Newsletters were sent home with all K-6 students to inform parents of the "offer vs. serve," a la carte and the Child Nutrition Program.

During October, the United States Department of Agriculture completed an audit. It was an excellent review which acknowledged efficient management of foods supplied by the Federal Government.

The cafeteria managers and employees attended the District School Food Service Convention in Nags Head. Monthly meetings are held jointly with Pitt County Schools. Lunch tray, breakfast tray, decoration and other contests are held to promote enthusiasm. The December meeting was a dinner meeting for all employees.

In January the food service office and central food storage areas burned. Records and food were destroyed. The State audit, which began prior to the fire, continued with what records remained. The State audit confirmed the detailed recordkeeping and the efficient bookkeeping in the Child Nutrition Program.

Throughout the year, nutrition education was integrated into the curriculum. The cafeteria managers and Child Nutrition Supervisor really got involved with testing new foods for the children. Third Street School kindergarten children dyed hard-boiled eggs for the Easter bunnies to pass out for breakfast on Good Friday. E.B. Aycock and Rose High School student governments increased their involvement in planning cafeteria activities. Foreign Food Week, celebrated at E.B. Aycock and Rose High School, proved to be a real success. All schools participated in Chinese Day during May. The K-6 teachers were given a story to read to their children about Chinese food. Some school librarians had Chinese music played in the cafeteria while the children ate their lunches. The School Board members enjoyed the Chinese food at Eastern Elementary School.

Parents participated throughout the year in the Child Nutrition Program. Mrs. Cecelia Boklage, parent at Third Street School, has served on a menu panel in which comparisons of various school menus have been discussed. Chip Little, Rose High Student Government President, has also met with managers and the Director to discuss areas of the program. The Child Nutrition Director has spoken to various groups such as the Young Teen Democrat Party, E.B. Aycock Student Government, Teacher Liaison Committee and various faculty groups to better inform them of the Child Nutrition Program.

Although participation decreased for the lunch and breakfast programs, a la carte sales increased tremendously. The Greenville City Schools has operated a financially sound Child Nutrition Program for the 1981-1982 school year.

SCHOOL BUS SAFETY

Transportation

The yellow bus system of Greenville City Schools consists of a fleet of 28 full sized and 2 mini buses. As of March, 1982, this fleet of vehicles has traveled during this school year a distance of 180,107 miles. The operational cost for the buses for the same period of time was $114,542.81. In addition, $50,138.36 has been spent in salaries for drivers. The average number of children transported daily is 2,841.

There have been some mishaps. There have been ten accidents as of March. With the exception of one, all of them could be considered minor. There have been no reports of any of these incidents of personal injury to students, drivers, or non school personnel.

Several new innovations have been incorporated into the bus system. One is the adoption by the Board of Education of a set of rules for students.

Next, the county held the first bus rodeo competition for all drivers in both county and city school systems. Of four trophies presented, the city system was awarded two.

Finally, the city-wide PTA, in an effort to provide incentives for bus drivers, has generously awarded a monetary stipend for bus drivers. This is to be given in cash to those drivers who have maintained a safe driving record and have received no major complaints that could be documented during the school year.

An evaluation of all three changes will be made at the end of the school year to see if they have provided observable improvements in the yellow bus transportation system.

ACTIVITY BUSES:

Three new buses were added to our activitiy transportation fleet this year. The Athletic Booster Club has provided a new "Mighty Mite" 24-passenger bus for athletics. This vehicle is excellent for small team activities. The Board of Education has provided one new "Mighty Mite" 24-passenger bus and one new 44-passenger bus. These two vehicles have been used for athletics, band, and general transportation for all students.

Cultural Arts

Early last fall, Elmhurst School parents and staff expressed a need for more cultural arts activities; as a result, the Rose High School Stage Band, a local violin student group, and an Arabic dance performance provided several assemblies for the students.

One exciting activity at Wahl-Coates in the area of cultural arts was the "Wahl-Coates Circus," a creative drama directed by Mr. Steve Myott, from the New England area. The children were in charge of creating their acts, their costumes, and the scenery. Mr. Myott conducted a creative drama workshop for teachers. This activity proved to be one of the highlights of the year.

The Eastern Carolina Arts Festival provided students an opportunity to participate in many cultural arts activities: the kindergarten classes at Eastern presented delightful plays and invited parents and other schoolmates. The students played musical instruments, learned many songs, and made musical instruments, which were on display. "The Magic of Spring," a program of songs and poems, was presented by the 1st grade to parents and other students.

The Wahl-Coates String Quartet performed background music for the Adopt-A-School Kick-Off Breakfast at Aycock. Another activity for this group was the All-City Orchestra Festival, in which players from grades four through twelve participated.

The 1981-82 school year was one of proud achievement and new activities for the elementary band students. A group of 6th grade students was invited by the N.C. Bandmasters' Association to perform for the Music Educators' State Convention in Winston-Salem, N.C. This group performed before a capacity audience in the ballroom of the Regency Hyatt House. The group was introduced by the president as the "youngest band in history to perform for the N.C. Bandmasters' Association."

Soon after returning to Greenville, the band was invited to present another workshop for the Eastern Division Bandmasters' Meeting at ECU. An Honors Band was formed. The purpose was to provide enrichment for those band students who qualified for membership by their playing ability and their overall work in band.

Two scholarships for outstanding students to attend the East Carolina University Summer Music Camp were awarded. These scholarships were made possible by the Greenville City Band Boosters' Club and were given in memory of David Welborn, a young trumpet player who died last fall.

Through Adopt-A-School Program, students at Wahl-Coates Elementary School participated in sign language classes in an after school program. Kathy Beetham from East Carolina University, Program for the Hearing Impaired, was the instructor.

Lynn Shine, who coordinated the class sessions, made this comment concerning the program. "The positive response and attendance was second only to the enthusiasm shown by 54 participants."

During National Library Week, Cindy Leazer's 6th graders at Wahl-Coates made posters to depict the theme and floats to represent their favorite books.

Publishing eight issues of the "Pirate Pride," the school newspaper, was a great accomplishment by Sue Lanier's 6th grade enrichment students at Wahl-Coates.

ANNUAL TEST RESULTS ARE GOOD AND INDICATE PROGRESS OVER THE PAST YEARS

In the spring of 1982, a battery of achievement tests was administered to students in the first, second, third, sixth, and ninth grades in the Greenville City Schools System, as well as to students at comparable grade levels throughout North Carolina. Results from the tests will be used to identify students' learning strengths and weaknesses, to improve students' academic performances, to inform parents and the general public of the progress of their children and the educational programs, and to plan and improve educational programs.

A reading test and a mathematics test were administered in grades one and two. They were designed to give teachers and parents detailed information about a student's performance on skills and knowledge that are emphasized at that student's particular grade level. This information will be used to pinpoint areas in which the teacher, the student, and the parent need to concentrate to improve the student's performance.

Achievement tests in reading, mathematics, and language were administered to students at grades three, six and nine. These tests, in contrast to the tests used at the first and second grades, were designed to obtain general measures of performance and to compare the performance of various groups of students. These tests provided, however, enough detailed information to help the teacher obtain indicators of the student's strengths and learning difficulties.

This report is a summary of the performance of students for the entire student population in the Greenville City School System at five grade levels. In addition this report shows a comparison of the achievement of the students in the Greenville City School System with students in the nation as well as a comparison of test scores for Greenville City Schools for the past several years.

Professional Growth Activities

Many of Greenville City Schools' professional staff members have participated in inservice at the local, regional, and state levels as well as at colleges and universities. A total of 311 persons have participated in local and regional workshops. These range from vocational education through creative dramatics, reading, mathematics, economics, computer-assisted instruction, computer-managed instruction, participatory decision-making, stress management, audiovisual equipment repair, science, personnel appraisal, and human relations. Additional inservice activities include attendance at state sponsored workshops in business education, special education, compensatory education, vocational education, community schools activities, and workshops in staff development.

Three administrators continued work on the sixth-year certificate. A total of 31 regular college courses were taken by 20 staff members. Some of these were for certification at the sixth-year or master's level. Some were for certification in an additional program area. These program areas included business education, special education, supervision, administration, and social studies. Three Rose High School teachers participated in workshops related to educating the very able student at the North Carolina School of Mathematics and Science and at Western Carolina. Five teachers traveled abroad and gathered materials to be incorporated into their instructional program. Nine teachers and counselors participated in the Teacher Work/Learn Workshop offered by our local businesses/industries.

All principals and directors participated in a year-long workshop, "Improving Instruction, 1982," which included components on Team Building, Evaluation, and Computers.

Kay Whitehurst, Director of Secondary Education, participated in several activities which kept her abreast of the development of the Quality Assurance Program (QAP) which is being implemented statewide in the near future. The QAP will require a close correlation between the Personnel Appraisal System, assignment of professional duties and certification, and renewal of certification each five years. As one of her responsibilities, Mrs. Whitehurst helps each professional staff member keep up with the number of renewal credits earned each year and to renew certificates at the end of the five-year period.

There is much participation by the educators of Greenville City Schools in professional growth activities. This is a dynamic, healthy situation which reflects the depth of the commitment of teachers and other educators to provide the best educational opportunity for all children of Greenville.

Pupil Personnel Services

The pupil personnel staff of Greenville City Schools consist of ten counselors, three social workers, a school psychologist, an attendance counselor, an audiologist, and three speech clinicians. Health services are provided by the public health nurses from the Pitt County Health Department.

Services are designed along a three level continuum-school level services, system level services, and community level services. Each level of service involves cooperation, coordination, and involvement of administrators, support personnel, parents, and community agencies. Without this interagency involvement, services would be fragmented.

The system-level guidance plan was approved in 1980-81. During 1981-82 each individual school has been working on the development of their school plan, which addresses the same goals and objectives as the system-level plan. Each school has established a Guidance Committee which is composed of representatives from teachers, parents, and students as appropriate. The function of the Guidance Committee is to assist each school principal, identify the guidance needs of the students in that school, and design a plan to address those needs. All of the committees have been active during the year.

Each member of the pupil personnel staff has a specific role and responsibility in each of the major areas of guidance service-assessment, group guidance, counseling, consultation, coordination, information, placement, and follow-up.

Each of the school level teams meet regularly and help the school administrator deal with individual students or school concerns. These workers provided the communication linkage between school and home and spend a great deal of their time with the significant adults in a child's life. Representatives from other agencies, the Department of Social Services, the Mental Health Center, the Juvenile Court Counselors, and Vocational Rehabilitation Counselors meet with each team when appropriate.

Interns from the ECU Counselor Education Department and the School of Social Work are also placed with various members of the pupil personnel staff for their internship and field training experiences.

One of the highlights during the year was a training program in family therapy offered to the staff through the Mental Health Clinic. Another highlight has been the involvement of personnel from the ECU Department of Psychiatry working directly in our schools with children and their parents. The Mental Health Clinic staff has also been actively involved in regular group activities and seminars throughout the year in several of the schools.

Career planning has received major emphasis during this past year. The elementary counselors have helped students increase their awareness of various vocations and the necessary steps involved in making appropriate career decisions. During the junior high years, youngsters have been encouraged to identify tentative career choices and learn more about these careers through research, exploratory activities, field trips, seminars, and interviews. Secondary counselors have assisted each student in developing a four year plan which addresses both academic and career goals. A copy of this is placed in the student's record folder and is used in individual counseling sessions. Individual testing is also available through the guidance office, when students need more specific information about their aptitudes and interests.

At the community level, there are a number of special interdisciplinary councils or task forces: the Pitt County Juvenile Task Force, the Pitt County Interagency Child Service Team, and the Citizen's Involvement Council. Each group evaluates the needs and existing services for youth within the community, and makes an annual formal report to the County Commissioners.

Such interagency cooperation has resulted in a decreasing dropout rate in the county and better utilization of resources. The work of this interagency group was featured in May at the Governor's Conference on Dropout Prevention.

Exceptional Children Programs

During 1981-82, programs for exceptional children experienced their first real cutback in funding. Three professional positions and eight aides were lost due to this. In order to combat the loss of funds and provide continuing community support for the programs and services, an open workshop was held in October for all parents. Over one hundred parents and professionals attended and prioritized needs in each major area of exceptionality—gifted, mentally retarded, physically handicapped, speech and hearing impaired, and learning disabled.

These needs were shared with the Superintendent, the Director of Programs for Exceptional Children, and the Parents' Advisory Council for Children with Special Needs. This group has continued to provide leadership throughout the year. As a result of the efforts of this group, volunteer services in classrooms have been increased and a summer school for learning disabled students sponsored cooperatively by the Special Education Department of East Carolina University and the Greenville City Schools has been developed. Plans are also being made for a gifted enrichment program in the primary grades (K-3) to be started this fall through the use of parent and community volunteers.

The exceptional children programs continue to be exemplary programs in the state. During the year, representatives from other school systems have visited the gifted programs, the transition classes, and the programs at Fullilove Community School. The Pre-Vocational Activity Program at E.B. Aycock, the Fullilove Community School, the Science for the Handicapped Project (Grades 4-7), and the learning disability screening program (KLAS) have all received national and state recognition during the year. Each of these programs will be featured in a forthcoming national publication.

Community involvement continues to play a significant role in all special programs. Through the Executive Internship Program at Rose High School, gifted students are matched with professional mentors in the community and given an opportunity for firsthand experience in professional careers prior to making career choices.

The Greenville Garden Club has provided horticulture experiences for students participating in the Pre-Vocational Activity Center, and at Fullilove School.

The classes for mentally retarded have involved community volunteers in both pre-vocational experiences and selected field trips to points of interest during the year. Volunteers from the community and Rose High School have also provided tutorial services for many exceptional children.

During the Spring, one of the speech clinicians, with the help of volunteers began an after school signing class. This class has proved very popular with non-handicapped children and adults.

The nursery at Fullilove Community School was licensed during the year. This provides a valuable service to the students in the program, as well as a training site for many students at East Carolina University. This program was also adopted by the Junior Woman's Club, and the involvement of this group continues to provide support and resources.

Over three hundred kindergarten children were screened in March. Over sixty volunteers from East Carolina University and the community assisted with this program which is designed to identify learning strengths and weaknesses of young children and provide instructional support for them, if needed during the early grades. This program was presented to a Legislative Study Commission in April.

Much interest has been generated through the year in the Science for the Handicapped Project. The curriculum developed through this project is designed to improve scientific knowledge and increase students' decision-making and problem-solving skills thus helping them cope more successfully in school. The curriculum is appropriate for both special and regular classes and is currently being field tested in selected classrooms in Greenville City, Pitt County, and Greene County. The Science Education Department and the Special Education Department at East Carolina University have worked with this program for the past three years, providing both technical assistance and student interns.

A full range of services and program options continues to be available in Greenville City Schools for children with special needs. In 1981-82, over 1,000 children received special services through these programs. Through the active participation of all child serving agencies represented on the various interagency councils and task forces, programs and services are continually being reviewed, and gaps and duplications identified. Whenever possible, agencies collaborate and consolidate resources in order to provide services in the most cost effective manner. This type of total community involvement has been extremely beneficial in the past and will be essential in the future, if the current level of service for exceptional children is to be maintained.

Compensatory Report

The Greenville City Schools have been developing and implementing the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of Title I since 1965.

Our annual analysis of needs continues to point out that there is a need for remediation in all of the basic subjects. Our level of funding will not permit this. We feel that reading will make the greatest impact, and we continue to remediate in the area of reading/language. Our annual test data indicates that our students have and are making outstanding progress.

Our compensatory program is a supplementary program. It provides instruction in addition to the regular class. Each student in the program has an I.E.P. (Individualized Education Program) which is developed after the student has gone through a diagnostic process.

Our program is a continuous process extending from grade two through grade twelve. We have been able to serve all of the students needing the service. We have provided inservice for students, parents, teachers, and others interested in education.

We have provided 17½ teachers and 13 aides (one teacher at each of the primary schools and an aide at three of them). We have three teachers and three aides at the two intermediate schools, two teachers and two aides at the seventh grade, two teachers and one aide in grades 8-9, two teachers and one aide at grades 10-12, and one teacher at the alternative school.

We are serving 196 primary, 303 intermediate, 111 7th grade, 96 8th & 9th, 98 10th, 11th and 12th, and 65 students at the alternative school. We also provide a half-time teacher for Title I students at St. Gabriel's School. We have served a total of 869 students this year in our Title I program.

In an effort to provide some additional assistance to school systems with large government property holdings in their school district, Congress passed Public Law 874 which has provided additional funds. We have received funds for three teachers and an aide. They are being used at the junior and senior high schools. Two are being used in math remediation and one for the handicapped.

These funds have provided some much-needed programs that have provided creative and innovative methods of presenting instruction. We have had to make staff adjustments for the past two years due to a reduction in Federal funds. We have done all within our funding capabilities to assist in achieving the mission of the Greenville City Schools.

For each of our programs, we have a Parent Advisory Council. These councils consist of parents and others interested in education. They have provided us with valuable community relations and input. We feel that we have made progress because of the involvement of the home, school and community.

Thanks to our many fine students, parents, teachers, administrators, and community, our Compensatory Program is working.

Adopt-A-School:

Promotes Progress Through Involvement

During the 1981-82 school year the Volunteer Program of the Greenville City Schools was broadened to include the Adopt-A-School Program. This program, administered by the State Department of Public Instruction via the Division of Community Schools, is consistent with the provisions of the Community Schools Act which promotes the use of volunteers in the public schools.

The purpose of the Adopt-A-School Program is to link private and public resources in greater participation in the teaching-learning process through volunteer supportive services and staff. Through strong support at the State, regional, and local levels, resources are being mobilized to provide the assistance and leadership needed to help volunteers enrich educational experiences, not only for students in Greenville, but throughout North Carolina.

An Adopt-A-School Breakfast was held in December. More than 130 friends of the City Schools were in attendance.

Organizations adopting either an individual school or the school system to date include:
Proctor and Gamble Paper Products
Coca Cola Co.
Eaton Corporation
Greenville Cable TV
Wachovia Bank
Home Building Supply Co.
Womack Electric Supply Co.
Pitt County Chapter of SCLC
Sycamore Hill Baptist Church
Greenville Garden Club
Wilson Rhodes Electrical Contracting
Bachelor Benedict Club
ECU Chapter of Omega Psi Pi Fraternity
Garris Evans Lumber Co.
The Pilot Club
Department of Foreign Languages and Literature, ECU

The recruitment process for the Adopt-A-School Program is an ongoing one. Community groups, organizations, and individuals interested in the program should call the Central Office (752-4192).

An Adopt-A-School Advisory Committee has been organized. The committee is composed of representatives from the business and professional community.

The role of the seventeen-member committee is two-fold: First, to advise the staff as plans are made and implemented; and secondly, to assist the school system in recruiting greater involvement by the business and professional community in the schools.

Commenting on the Adopt-A-School Program and the formulation of the Advisory Council, Superintendent Blinson states: "We feel the Adopt-A-School Program offers as much potential for improving the Greenville City Schools as any other we have instituted this year. I sincerely appreciate the willingness of all members to serve."

Changes In Mathematics Equals Achievement In Grades K-6

With the adoption of new math books for the elementary schools for the 1981-82 school year has come a number of changes. These changes have definitely had a positive effect on the overall progress and achievement of the students in grades K-6.

Knowing that the new D.C. Heath Mathematics program/books would be placed in all K-6 classes at the beginning of this school year, the Director of Instruction, the elementary principals, and the K-6 teachers began preparing for this transition last spring with some initial inservice conducted by math consultants from the D.C. Heath Publishing Company. This was followed, during the summer, with the ordering of new math books and other supplementary math materials to be used in the program. The summer was also devoted to the development of a skills "Cumulative Math Profile" to be used for each child's math record. This record lists and identifies the skills or objectives that each student is to master on each grade level and it becomes a profile of each student's progress in math. This record is kept in the student's cumulative records and identifies skills mastered as well as skills to be achieved.

After receiving the suggestions for further inservice needed or desired by administrators and teachers, Mr. Charles Ross, Director of Instruction, organized an inservice program to be conducted in math throughout the school year. The following math resource consultants were recruited to assist staff members in the areas indicated:

1. Mr. Ken White, D.C. Heath Math Consultant-Implementing the new D.C. Heath math program in grades K-6 (Aug. 19)
2. Mr. Charles Ross, Director of Instruction-Effective use of math resource materials (Nov. 11)
3. Dr. Cleo Meeks, Math Consultant, Division of Math, State Dept. of Public Instruction-Individualizing and meeting the needs of gifted and talented students (Jan. 21)
4. Ms. Kay Kemp and Ms. Rebecca Oakes, Math Consultants, Division of Math, State Dept. of Public Instruction-Individualizing and meeting the needs of all children (Jan. 21)
5. Ms. Pam Dickey, D.C. Heath Math Consultant-Follow-up in the implementation of the new math program (Jan. 22)
6. Ms. Joyce Kohfeldt, Innovative Educational Support System's Math Consultant-Developing instructional math materials for use in the elementary grades (Feb. 22-25)

The new textbooks, the new math cumulative skills records for each student and the math inservice have all definitely helped to improve the math curriculum in the elementary schools. This statement is supported by comments from administrators, teachers, and parents. It is also reinforced by the fact that the test scores recently received in math for the 1982 N.C. Annual Testing are higher this year than they were last year for the Greenville City Schools. All are to be praised for their hard work, their dedication to improving the math program and for helping to bring about such accomplishments.

Elementary Schools Experience Progress Through Involvement

In order to provide the basic educational foundation needed by the approximately 2375 students enrolled this year in grades K-6, much involvement on the part of many has taken place. It is evident that someone, some group or something will be inadvertently omitted when trying to recall or list such involvement. However, an attempt to "highlight" the efforts and contributions of many is appropriate in that it has helped to strengthen as well as bring about a better program or curriculum for our elementary children.

The following is no attempt at prioritizing the involvement but a means of "highlighting" group involvement.

Staff members of the Greenville City Schools have been involved in much inservice this year. special emphasis has been placed on improving the communication skills in all grade levels and especially in grades K-3. Inservice in Mathematics has equally been emphasized during the 1981-82 year. The K-6 administrators, teachers, and aides have spent many hours with math consultants trying to implement the newly adopted mathematics textbooks. They have also been involved in inservice that would help provide additional ideas and techniques to better individualize instruction to meet the needs of gifted and talented students as well as every child. Inservice in a number of other subject areas has been available this year but priority has definitely been placed on the mathematics and communication skills. Teachers have willingly devoted many, many hours of their time to trying to learn and identify ideas, methods, materials, and means of helping each child experience success and continuous progress in the K-6 grades.

Parents have highly supported the elementary schools during the 1981-82 school year. They have been actively involved in many types of volunteer services such as:

1. Joining and supporting the PTA and the PTA Council.
2. Tutoring and assisting classroom teachers in various learning activities.
3. Participating in special events such as American Education Week, Children's Book Week, National Library Week, N.C. Heritage Week, Science Fairs, Health Fairs, School Assemblies/Performances, Carnivals, Exhibitions, Spring Flings, Arts Festival, Clean-Ups, etc.
4. Serving on study groups which are directly related to the elementary schools such as:
   a. Parent Advisory Councils
   b. Grouping Policy Committee
   c. Community Schools Program
   d. Science Study Group
   e. Math Study Group
   f. Business Affairs Advisory Committee
   g. Safety Committee
   h. Committee For The Arts
5. Attending parent-teacher conferences, supporting the teachers and the children as well as helping where help is needed.
6. Making financial contributions from time to time as well as giving their time, energy and expertise.
7. Transporting students on field trips and to other special school functions and activities.
8. Assisting with the health screening, and various types of pupil testing, evaluation and assessment.
9. Acting as grade parents, contact persons, or liaison persons.
10. Contributing as resource persons and consultants in their areas of expertise.
11. Daily support and pride expressed over their children's progress and the schools.

The total community support has brought about the involvement of many persons, businesses, agencies, and organizations that have helped to provide a richer and a more comprehensive instructional program for all elementary students. This community support has been given by numerous groups and in various ways such as:

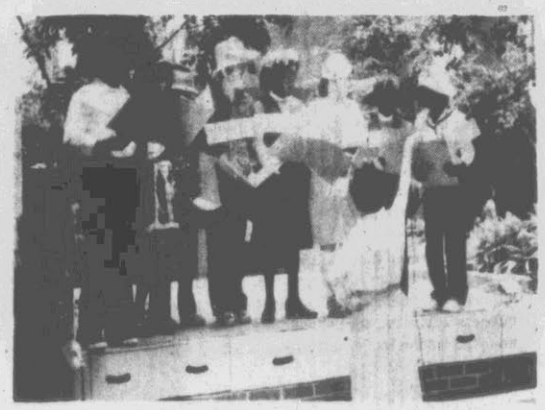

1. Volunteer services as aides, and helpers in many ways and in many areas.
2. Resource people in many areas of expertise and careers.
3. Financial contributions by individuals, businesses, organizations, and clubs.
4. News coverage by the various news media.
5. Places and areas for field trips to reinforce classroom instruction and learning.
6. Day-to-day expressions of support of and pride for the Greenville City Schools.

East Carolina University and Pitt Community College have also truly made a significant contribution by their involvement in the K-6 grades this year. They have definitely supplemented the instructional program through:

1. The many student teachers who have worked in all grades.
2. The interns and other assistants that have aided in the schools.
3. The resources and resource people used in the schools.
4. The various committees that have worked to bring about a more cooperative working relationship.
5. The many projects that have been cooperatively developed to assist all concerned.
6. The mutual support and readily available assistance when needed.

The groups listed above and the involvement cited is by no means conclusive. Many others have assisted in numerous ways and their contributions are truly appreciated. No one can compute the number of hours, the amount of time, energy, and money which have been a part of the involvement mentioned in the above paragraphs. However, all will agree that the elementary schools have greatly benefited from this involvement by the parents, community and school personnel and that as a result of this our children in grades K-6 will have a greater opportunity to receive the basic educational foundation needed for future studies.

For this help and support, the Greenville City Schools is most appreciative and wishes to express many thanks to all who have become involved to help bring about progress in the elementary schools!

Communication Skills Emphasized In The Elementary Grades

Teachers and administrators in the K-6 schools have been dedicated to the improvement of the communication skills during the 1981-82 school year. This has been evidenced by the reading, spelling, writing, speaking, and listening instruction which has been provided each student.

As well as emphasizing the needed skills during the instruction in the language arts classes, the teachers and administrators have been involved in much inservice offered throughout the school year. Most of this inservice has been funded by the State Department of Public Instruction's allocation to the Greenville City Schools for all K-3 teachers and their aides. This communication skills program is what was previously referred to as the State Primary Reading Program.

Following the suggestions and recommendations of the teachers and administrators, Mr. Charles Ross, Director of instruction, organized and coordinated this inservice. The following is a general listing of the many consultants who were recruited to assist with this inservice, their areas of concentration and expertise, as well as other activities which were a part of this K-3 inservice:

1. Dr. Hathia Hayes, Language Arts Consultant-Creative Writing-Nov.11
2. Ms. Peggy McGhee, Language Arts Consultant-Creative Writing-Jan. 22
3. Ms. Jackie Torrence-International Storyteller-Storytelling-Feb. 15-19
4. Ms. Joyce Kohfeldt-Language Arts Materials Specialists-Developing Reading Comprehension Materials-Feb. 22-25
5. E.C.U. Reading Conference (Dr. Donald Graves-Writing Consultant)-Mar. 18
6. International Reading Conference (Charlotte)-Mar. 7-9
7. School Visitations-Observing the Instruction of Communication Skills in Other School Systems-Various Dates

Teachers and administrators have indicated that this inservice has been most worthwhile and extremely helpful as far as giving them new ideas, good suggestions, and additional techniques for helping students improve their communication skills. It is very likely that the students would also "echo" the teachers' feelings because the N.C. Annual Test Results which were recently received will reinforce the fact that students are making progress and are achieving in the language arts.

Safety Committee Organized

Due to the fact that considerable concern and interest had been expressed regardng child-safety and accident prevention and because traffic events had highlighted the need to do something to help protect our children, Dr. Delma Blinson, Superintendent of the Greenville City Schools, organized the Greenville City Schools' Safety Committee. Members asked to serve on this committee are Ms. Joan Shappley, Dr. Clarence Gray, Ms. Jean Darden,Mr. Henry Groome, Chief Glenn Cannon, Ms. Mary Williams, Ms. Floretta Smith, Mr. Steve Hall, Mr. Bob Stewart, Mr. Charles Mayo, Ms. Jean Kivette, and Mr. Charles Ross, Chairman.

The committee was asked to:
1. assess the needs/problems related to safety
2. identify strategies available to meet the need or ameliorate the problems, and
3. make recommendations to appropriate agencies/organizations (especially the school system) those actions or programs which are deemed most effective.

During the school year this committee has met at least monthly as a total group and at other times as sub-committees. In trying to accomplish its objectives, the following are some of the safety themes which have been stressed throughout the school system and the community:

1. Safety During the Opening of School ("Wanted Alive")-August
2. School Bus Safety-September
3. Fire Safety And Prevention-October
4. Safety in Sports-November
5. Safety in the Home-December and January
6. Seat Belt Safety-February and March
7. Bicycle Safety-April and May
8. Water Safety-June

The Greenville City Schools' Safety Committee encourages all to think SAFETY, to act SAFELY because everyone is "WANTED ALIVE" and well!

Involvement In Grades 7-12

Because schools are by evolution, places where groups of people interact in many different ways, there is nothing remarkable about the involvement of adults with young people, of young people with other young people, and of adults with adults. But, each year in the history of a school or school system is unique in the way the involvement develops and proceeds. For the individual the unique experience may be different from that of another individual. Taken all together these experiences make up the unique history of that school year in the collective experience of those who participate in it.

Without having said that, "this year we will improve through involving any person or group of persons," it happened that parents and patrons, students, teachers, support personnel, and administrators looked at school programs in terms of how they could be improved and how they were excellent and needed support in that excellence.

The school system made a commitment to moving further with individualizing the math and reading program through computerizing management of information on student progress. Acquisition of microcomputers and training of personnel at each of the schools was a major commitment of time, funds, and effort. Those in grades 7-12 who were already using the micro for computer-assisted instruction knew the possibility of using micros to keep up with student progress would expand their efforts to keep instruction relevant to the students' needs.

Other equipment was acquired which enhances the learning opportunities for students. Among these were additional color televisions, sewing machines, typewriters and duplicators. Some of the needed equipment was purchased through money raised by parent groups.

Greenville Middle School PTA made a gift of two computers and two color TV's to the school. They also purchased additional books for the library.

Volunteers helped students with reading, math and computer learning. They helped students to broaden their awareness of career possibilities in Greenville and Pitt County. Representatives of twenty businesses and industries conducted a Career Fair for seventh grade students early in the fall. Representatives of twelve businesses and industries participated in the Post Secondary Opportunities Day for students at Rose High School. Local businesses and industries made it possible for nine teachers and counselors to have first hand experience of a job in their setting. Approximately 150 jobs were made available to high school coop students.

Service clubs contributed both equipment and volunteer time. The Pilot Club of Greenville gave a computer to Aycock as well as much volunteer time to the Middle School. The Optimist Club offered students the opportunity to participate in an oratorial contest. Volunteers helped monitor halls, typed for teachers and put up bulletin boards in the schools.

Administrators at the school and central office levels planned together to make the programs at Rose available to Fullilove students. Vocational offerings, library and physical education were the areas of emphasis. But any course offerings would be available to the students.

Sports activities continued to be important in the lives of our students and the students continued to do well in sports. They continued also to do well in academic and art contests. The math contest, the Quiz Bowl, and the regional art contests allowed our students the chance to show the high level of achievement they are challenged to meet. The art exhibits, the musicals, and the concerts in which our students participated were excellent. The support of parents and patrons is indispensable and was generously given.

Students involved themselves in tutoring younger children, in identifying additional ways that the schools can help next year as high school students plan their futures, and in helping in orienting students new to the school.

It is easy to become complacent about the high standards our students achieve. Parents and school staff members know that these achievement standards are the result of many hours of work devoted to the tasks by the students and supported throughout their childhood and youth, by parents and school staffs.

Some of that support came from staff members of ECU and from students enrolled in the Schools of Social Work and Counselor Education at ECU.

It can be seen from the many evidences cited throughout the report that the total community is working together to ensure that students in Greenville City Schools have many opportunities for growth. All of this work is paying off in terms of young adults who take their place in our midst as productive, good citizens whom we can be proud to say we have helped to attain that status.

Advisory Committees

There have been several new advisory committees formed during the 1981-82 school year. These committees are added to the ranks of those already in existence, among which are the Parent Advisory Committee, the Vocational Education Advisory Committee, and the Advisory Comittee for Children with Special Needs. The new committees include the Business Affairs Advisory Committee, the Grouping Advisory Committee, the Science Advisory Committee, the Math Advisory Committee, the Arts Advisory Committee, the Safety Committee and the Adopt-A-School Advisory Committee.

Some of these will be discussed in other sections as they relate to other grades or functions. As the advisory committees relate to grades 7-12, they have made and are making a significant contribution. Each of the committees is composed of parents, teachers, representatives of business and industries and of East Carolina University, administrators and support persons. Each is co-chaired by Charles Ross, Director of Instruction, and Kay Whitehurst, Director of Secondary Education. Each of the committees came into being as a result of a need to address a function or program of the school. Some of the committees meet weekly, some meet bi-weekly and some meet monthly. One of them, the Grouping Committee, met weekly and considered the grouping patterns for the schools.

After much consideration and dialogue between committee members and the principal and staff members of each of the schools having grades 7-12, the committee made recommendations to the Superintendent. Upon completion of this task the committee voted itself out of existence, although members offered to come to board meetings to explain or support these recommendations.

The Mathematics and Science Advisory Committees are still involved in a task that will last into next year and possibly beyond. They support the involvement of Greenville City Schools as one of two pilot sites for Project Change, a state sponsored effort to improve the mathematics and science instruction in North Carolina. In the process of improving instruction in these areas in Greenville City Schools, the committee will develop a model which can be followed by other school systems in their improvement efforts.

The Arts Advisory Committee is engaged in looking at the present performing and visual arts programs and at the same time supporting efforts to strengthen the programs. Many spirited discussions have heightened the awareness of all committee members to the complexity of such a broad program as is available to students in Greenville City Schools.

The continued efforts of the ongoing advisory committees support programs to which they have devoted much time and thought in the past. These new committees add other dimensions to the involvement of the community with and in the schools in Greenville.

Alternative School

Educators operate on the premise that everything can be improved. Thus, each teacher, support person, and administrator thinks more often of what needs to be done than of what has been done. Areas of concern are identified and efforts directed toward whatever improvements are desirable and possible.

It is in this context that cooperative planning has taken place related to the program at Fullilove. Concerns include the fact that a library is not available to students at that school, nor are vocational skill programs, art programs, or physical education programs. The building itself is also an area of concern. Those involved as educators or volunteers have sought ways to meet these needs of the students and the program.

A plan has been developed whereby any and all programs and services on the Rose High campus (including the library and vocational/arts/physical education programs) will be available to Fullilove students beginning in the 1982-83 school year. Additional funds were allocated to be used to purchase books to begin a library. Equipment for the nursery was acquired: audiovisual equipment was purchased to record and use the educational TV programs available.

A study is currently underway which will result in a report to the superintendent of available alternatives for housing the program. The principals of the three eighth through twelfth grade schools, the Director of Instruction, the Director of Programs for Exceptional Children, the Director of the Community Schools Program, the Director of Buildings and Grounds, and the Finance Officer are conducting a study under the leadership of the Director of Secondary Education to develop a list of alternatives and the pros and cons related to each. This report will give the Superintendent and the Board of Education as complete a picture as is possible of the impact of any decision they must make on housing the program.

While these activities have gone on, students attend the school, participate in the instructional programs as well as the guidance and social activities, which are an important component of any school's activities. Teachers, volunteers, and support persons carry out their ongoing duties and the education of young adults moves on. The efforts made toward improvement of any program always have to be in addition to those being made to maintain the quality of the ongoing program.

Driver Education

The driver education program has continued to meet a critical need of our young adults. The two teachers in the regular year program have additional help with the fall and spring early evening classes. These classes, and the opportunity for up to 90 students to complete the course during the summer, serve those students who are unable to take the course during the regular school day/regular school year. One additional teacher is employed during the summer to make it possible for the total 90 students to complete the classroom and behind-the-wheel instruction.

The two state-owned cars are supplemented through the generous help of Greenville's automobile dealers. Without their help it would not be possible to complete the behind-the-wheel instruction required by law as rapidly as is done. All educators, parents, and students in Greenville City Schools have benefited from the continued support of the automobile dealers.

Community Schools:

A Vehicle For Progress Through Involvement

The Community Schools Program is designed to offer educational, recreational and cultural opportunities for all age groups. The Director acts as a liaison between the schools and the community and works closely with agency representatives to provide such opportunities.

During the past year many programs and activities were sponsored or co-sponsored by the Community Schools Program that met the needs of students, teachers, and the community. Some of these programs/activities include: I'm Special, Calligraphy for students and adults, Aerobic Dance for students and teachers, After School Foreign Language, After-School Tutoring, Talent Extravaganza, a professional storyteller, and a professional dancer.

The Community Schools Advisory Council initiated the development of guidelines for community use of school facilities. This information will follow in brochure form to be made available to the public.

The public relations function is an important component of the Community Schools Program. A newsletter published every other month was distributed to all parents in the Greenville City Schools as well as to local businesses and leaders in the community. This has been an excellent vehicle for keeping the public informed and providing a medium for surveys and other useful exchanges of information.

The Community Schools Summer Enrichment Program has been received quite well by parents, patrons, and friends of the schools.

Summer opportunities for students included: a Children's Theatre Workshop, Bird House Building, Puppet Shows and participation in the State-wide Summer Reading Program.

The "regular" volunteers have consistently provided essential services to our teachers and students. A vital element in the Community Schools Program is the recruiting, training, and placing of volunteers who serve as resource persons and tutors in our schools.

To help facilitate this responsibility a parent volunteer coordinator and a staff volunteer coordinator were selected by each principal to work with the Community Schools Director.

Staff volunteer coordinators included were: Brenda Highsmith, Eastern; Anna Tillman, Elmhurst; Paula Dudley, Sadie Saulter; Jackie Adams, South Greenville; Marlee Terry, Third Street; Cynthia Leazer, Wahl-Coates; Frances Johnson, Greenville Middle Scool; Faye Creegan and Pat Sheppard, E.B. Aycock; Brenda Lewis and Leigh Seamester, J.H. Rose; Carlton Floyd, Agnes Fullilove.

School community volunteer coordinators included: Gail Webster, Eastern; Robin Clark, Elmhurst; Emma McIntyre, Sadie Saulter; Betty Barbee and Camille Archie, South Greenville; Cecilia Boklage, Third Street; Frankie Anderson, Wahl-Coates; Linda Seykora, Greenville Middle; Lib Lane, E.B. Aycock; Ernestine Haslirig, J.H. Rose.

School volunteers were honored during National Volunteer Appreciation Week by the individual schools.

A system wide volunteer appreciation program was held in June.

Persons interested in volunteering in the schools should call the school principals.

Vocational Education Program

The Vocational Education Program continues to grow and strengthen and is now proceeding along parallel lines. The first is in the area of career planning and development which has seen the implementation of a project for grades seven through twelve which uses the microcomputer to record, store, and recall information for and about students to assist them in career decision making. The program provides for focusing student interests, aspirations, and aptitudes on appropriate career opportunities. It further provides a means for translating them into a program of successful school and other vocationally related experiences.

The second is to insure the availability of training opportunities for all of the students who want, need, and can benefit from such instruction. During the year there have been 1128 students in grades seven thru twelve enrolled in at least one vocational course. This includes 175 students enrolled in cooperative programs which involved employment in the private sector. In the last school year coop students earned in excess of one quarter of a million dollars which was returned to the community in the form of taxes, savings, and consumer spending. This also includes students with identified handicaps who are being served in the skills program.

The building trades' live project is now approaching completion. The students have been building a passive solar house which incorporates all the features of this emerging technology and has provided them with excellent skills and experiences in this type of construction. When this home is completed it will be sold at a public auction and another project will be started.

Planning has been completed for a new program in Graphic and Industrial Communications which will be offered in the next school year. This course will include instruction in layout, composition, photography, and platemaking, bindery and distribution, job planning and reproduction. The graphics industry is now the seventh largest industry in the United States and the prospects for persons skilled in this field are excellent.

The Health Occupations program has grown to include the second level course and now offers opportunities for clinical practice by the students in various medical settings in the community.

The Job Placement Office is now functional and is providing services to students at all levels in the areas of career planning, self evaluation, improvement and placement. This office is also providing follow up services and job development as well as compiling information to assess future needs, unmet needs, and present progress.

Commitment to construction of a shop building on the Rose High campus will make it possible to move the auto mechanics program to the campus and make the program more available to students within their school day.

Girls' Basketball
Coach Dennis Gibson
The Rampettes, although very young, posted one of the better seasons in several years...8-12 overall and 6-8 in the East Conference, which was good enough for 4th place

Girls' Track
Coaches Butch Wahl and Dennis Gibson
The Girls' Track Team returned several All Conference letterwomen from the previous season. The Rampettes have compiled a record of 29-5 in dual meets over the past three years.

Girls' Cross country
Coach Butch Wahl
Fall, 1981, was the second year of Girls' Cross Country at Rose. The girls compiled a 5-4 record, finished 4th in the big East Conference and qualified as a team in the sectionals and the State meet.

Girls' Softball
Coach Delores Bunting
The girls' softball team was a much-improved, more experienced team this year. The girls are playing with more confidence.

Girls' Volleyball Team
Coach Delores Bunting
Rose had the only volleyball team in our conference, so they had to play in Wilmington's conference. Playing Hoggard High School, Laney High School, and New Hanover High School, they ended up with a record of 2-4 in the conference.

Boys' Swim Team
Coaches Greg and Beth Richardson
The Rose High boys' swim team finished its 1981-82 season with an 8-2 record. In completing its successful season, the team came in 4th place in the State meet, the highest finish ever for a Rose High team.

Rose Wrestling
Coach Gary Niklason
The wrestling team finished the season with an 8-5 record, 8-2 in the conference. The team placed second in the tournament.

Girls' Tennis
Coach Mrs. Gwen Deyton
J.H. Rose girls' tennis team claimed their first undefeated season with a 16-0 record.

Basketball
Coach Jim Brewington
The 1981-82 Rose High School varsity basketball team finished the season with a 14-12 record. The team went to the State Play-offs, losing to Smithfield Selma in double overtime.

Track Team
Coach Richard Phillips
The boys' track team is rolling along toward another undefeated season. At the present time they are 9-0 and have also won the Apex Lions Relays this year. The team is 56-0, extending back over four consecutive years.

Basketball
The Rose High basketball team currently has a 12-0 record. The Rampants were able to win the Pitt County Invitational during the Easter Holidays.

Aycock Sports

Aycock has always maintained a winning tradition in the field of sports. The girls' tennis team went undefeated this year, winning 7 matches and losing one. Aycock's football team ended the season tied for the Conference Championship. The wrestling team finished the season as league champs. Both boys' and girls' basketball teams had good seasons. Aycock's track, baseball, and softball teams had fine seasons also.

Educator Honored

Charles Ross, Director of Instruction, Greenville City Schools, was honored during the 1981-82 school year by the NC Elementary Committee of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools. Ross was presented a "certificate of appreciation" by Dr. Madeline Tripp, Consultant to the NC Elementary Committee, at the fall meeting held at King's Restaurant in Kinston, NC.

The certificate of appreciation was presented to Ross in recognition of outstanding service to the NC Committee of the Commission on Elementary Schools.

Ross coordinated the unit-wide self-study and the Southern Association Visitation Committees to the Greenville City Schools when all the elementary schools in Greenville received their initial accredition by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools in 1979.

Ross has also assisted the Commission on Elementary Schools of Southern Association by serving on a number of Southern Association Accreditation teams for other units as well as acting as chairman for a number of these visitation teams.

ASK THEM YOURSELF

Send the question, on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022.
We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

Scouting out respect for oneself.

FOR JANE FREEMAN, national president, Girl Scouts of the U.S.A.

What are the Girl Scouts doing to combat the permissive trends among young people today? Also, are Girl Scout cookies made from exclusive recipes? —E.F., Niagara Falls, N.Y.

● When a girl becomes a Girl Scout she agrees to live by the Girl Scout Promise and Law, both of which encourage fairness and respect for oneself and others. We believe that Girl Scouting combats the negative influences of society by offering girls a place to learn and grow in a supportive environment. Our cookies are baked from special recipes by bakers licensed by Girl Scouts of the U.S.A., the national organization. In 1981, some 116 million boxes were sold by Girl Scouts. Sales grossed about $200 million to fund new programs.

FOR BOWIE KUHN, Commissioner of Baseball

With the success of inter-league matchups in the National Football League schedule, why hasn't major league baseball done the same? —R.W.H., Wall, N.J.

● I would question whether inter-conference N.F.L. games are any more successful than intra-conference games. In any event, baseball schedules are balanced, meaning all teams play the same schedule. This is obviously the fairest form of scheduling.

FOR JENILEE HARRISON, star of TV's Three's Company

Is it true that you're a real organizer? —D.F., San Mateo, Calif.

● Yes, in the sense that if there's a group of people sitting around, looking bored to death, I'll get them into some kind of activity. But I'm not a bully — I don't tell people what to do, although I tend to be a little loud and aggressive.

FOR GEORGE MICHAEL, author of George Michael's Secrets of Beautiful Hair (Doubleday)

Why is a straight cut better than a layered cut? —M.P., Easton, Pa.

For Carr, father knew best.

FROM THE "ASK" EDITOR

FATHER'S DAY FLASHES: Singer Vikki Carr (now branching out into other areas — she'll host an upcoming revival of the late 50's and early 60's show, Queen for a Day) told of her start in show business: "After long hikes on the road, I'd come home tired. One time Dad said, 'Let's talk.' I complained, 'I'm so tired. How about in the morning?' He replied by telling my sisters and me a story about a couple with a beautiful garden. The man was very proud of his roses. One day one produced a most incredible bloom; he and his wife agreed such a gorgeous sight should be shared with others. They cut the rose and displayed it for the townsfolk to see. Then he was heartbroken because he had plucked it. Sadly he went to the garden and, to his surprise, where he had culled that rose, there was a new bud. Says Vikki: "The moral of his story was, a rose (or me or anything one treasures) should be shared; and also that God has a way of replacing beauty."...Although Nikki, Burt Bacharach's daughter who's going on 16, calls her father "Burt," Burt calls his father — columnist-author Bert Bacharach — "Dad." Explained Burt's Mom, Irma: "Out in California, everyone calls everyone by their first names, but Burt was raised in the East, where things were, and are, different." Are Burt and his Dad in close touch? Yes. They talk for hours, on the phone — often without touching on important matters. (P.S. Bert is too shy to mention this, but we know that his son never once puts down the phone without saying, "Dad, I'm proud of you.")..."My father was such a bundle of energy that he had little trouble keeping slim throughout his lifetime; but I've never been so lucky."

Bacharachs

Truman Daniel

This is Margaret Truman Daniel talking about President Truman....What caused her to make this statement? The new book, The Southampton Diet (Simon & Schuster) by Marcia Cohen and Stuart Berger, which she claims "has been a real boon to me."...Reid Shelton, the original millionaire Daddy Warbucks in the Broadway musical Annie, thought about what he'd do with oodles of money in real life. "I'd order a limo to take me wherever I wanted to go," he decided. "That's what luxury means to me — not having to drive in heavy traffic."

Should There Be a Limit on Social Security Cost-of-Living Payments?

(Question submitted by Sister Florita Waters, Scranton, Pa.)

PRO Peter Germanis, policy analyst, The Heritage Foundation

While Social Security was originally intended to act as a basic floor of protection during retirement, political pressures have led to irresponsible benefit increases which have frequently outpaced inflation. Thus, it is not surprising that the average retiree receives about five times the value of his contribution. A limit on cost-of-living payments could return benefits to levels more in line with contributions and improve the system's current financial status.

CON Representative Claude Pepper (D.-Fla.), chairman, Select Committee on Aging

Price indexing of Social Security benefits is a conservative mechanism for maintaining the purchasing power of benefits. The 18-month lag time before the cost-of-living adjustment is made also erodes the value of benefits, and last year's budget cuts will reduce Social Security protection by $25 billion. Given the more precarious economic circumstances of the retired and disabled, it's not unreasonable to guarantee the real value of a portion of their incomes.

Linskey to Become Publisher, Frank Chairman Emeritus

Editor's note: After 24½ years as a key executive of FAMILY WEEKLY, the last 16½ as Publisher, Morton Frank will become the magazine's Chairman Emeritus on June 22. He'll also be a consultant to CBS, which purchased the publication two and a half years ago from a group of newspaper publishers, organized by Frank, who had bought FAMILY WEEKLY in early 1976 from The Charter Company.

Succeeding Frank as Publisher will be Patrick M. Linskey. The two have worked closely together for the past 11 years, as well as three years in the early 1960's when Linskey first joined FAMILY WEEKLY as an advertising account representative. He returned to the magazine in December 1971 as Vice President/Advertising Director. He became Associate Publisher in 1980 and President on June 21, 1981.

During the period in which Frank has headed the magazine's operations, its circulation has grown from 4,700,000 to 12,400,000 and the number of newspapers delivering it each weekend has increased from 160 to 358.

In most cases, any publication or business or government is a reflection of the policies and practices established and followed by its leaders. We think it may be of interest to you to learn, from a man who has spent the last quarter of a century at FAMILY WEEKLY, what goes into the making of this magazine, why its readership has consistently increased and why it is carefully read throughout the nation.

By Morton Frank

Chairman-Publisher-C.E.O., FAMILY WEEKLY

FAMILY WEEKLY's desire is to inform, educate and entertain you and an estimated 27 million other adult readers plus millions of youngsters. We try to do this, every weekend, with articles, features and illustrations of interest to most people.

Our opportunity to reach you is made possible by the privilege of being a magazine supplement to the other diversified content you receive in your newspaper that includes FAMILY WEEKLY as one of its best-read features.

Most of our editorial pieces cover the phases of living that involve most of us: e.g., health, finance, sports, government, television and movies, science, decorating, housing, food, education, oddities, relationships between the sexes, parents and children and especially family life.

FAMILY WEEKLY is one of the best-read publications in our country. Whether judged by various kinds of readership studies or audience response through mail and by phone or any other standard, the millions who read FAMILY WEEKLY react quickly to what they see in this magazine.

One of the keys to FAMILY WEEKLY's growth and popularity is that we stress the kind of content that will involve you and other readers. Emphasis is on the specific rather than on the abstract, everyday living rather than theory, people and events and issues of concern to residents of the United States most of the time rather than topics that may be of more interest on the other side of the world than in America.

Blessed by conscientious, expert managers and staffs for each department, FAMILY WEEKLY's success depends primarily, however, on you, the reader.

One of the fundamental reasons that FAMILY WEEKLY can look forward with joy and pride to our 30th year, that will start in September, is that most of the time your interests and ours seem to be similar. We hope that will always be.

I take this once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to thank you and the other readers of FAMILY WEEKLY for helping make possible the most rewarding and happiest 24½ years of my life. FW

Observations

Do-dads. Pop's tops this Father's Day–an all-American holiday that was originated by...Guess who? A woman! Back in 1910, Sonora Smart Dobbs of Spokane, Washington, chose the third Sunday in June–the month of her father's birth–as a day to honor all the fathers in her city. What started as an observance promoted by the Spokane YMCA was such a "smart" idea that, in 1916, President Woodrow Wilson made it an official celebration. Over the years, the day has seen fathers accumulate a huge collection of ties, shirts, and socks. But the nation has also received plenty of other gifts, from an array of "fathers."

Honor thy father. We're talking about inventors. Men like Alexander Graham Bell, "father of the telephone," and the two fathers of aviation–Orville and Wilbur Wright. About Americans who invented the transistor, fountain pen, cash register, cylinder lock, LP record, computer, instant photography....And don't forget Walter Hunt. Walter who? The Quaker genius who invented the safety pin in 1832, that's who. And Abe Doumar, whose waffle filled with ice cream became the ice cream cone–a notion that's taken quite a happy licking since Doumar wrapped it up in 1904.

"I call it fire. Don't knock it if you haven't tried it."

Mothers of invention. Time to celebrate the ladies, too–"mothers" whose offspring range from the carpet sweeper (Annie Bissell, 1876) to the hang glider (Gertrude Rogallo in 1948, with an assist from her husband). Lift a glass, also, to Elizabeth Flanagan for the cocktail. It's been said that during the Revolutionary War, the New York barmaid concocted a potent brew of rye whiskey, rum and fruit juice – and decorated it with a feather plucked from a Tory neighbor's rooster. A French officer took one sip and exclaimed: "Vive le coq's tail!"

Proud parent. We're celebrating because since 1965, Mobil scientists have fathered or mothered almost 3,000 patents for inventions that include a catalyst to help transform methyl alcohol, which can be made from coal or natural gas, directly into high-quality unleaded gasoline. Another Mobil catalyst is being used worldwide in refinery processes, enabling Mobil and other refiners to get larger quantities of useful products out of every barrel of crude. We also invented a synthetic motor oil (Mobil 1®). We're proud of American inventive genius, which has improved productivity, helped raise the standard of living, and, most importantly, created jobs for millions of Americans. Ingenuity keeps America going...and growing.

It's a fact: The first U.S. patent, issued in 1790 for a new method of making soap, was authorized by President George Washington. Since then, the U.S. has issued 4.3 million patents.

COVER STORY

My Father, My Self

As a special Father's Day message, a noted sociologist explains how a father and son can grow to be loving friends.

By Lewis Yablonsky, Ph.D.

Mark Twain's wry comment on father-son relationships reveals a deep truth: "When I was a teen-ager," remarked Twain, "I thought my father was ignorant. When I was 20, I was amazed at what the old man had learned in a few years."

In recent years, much attention has been paid to the psychological dynamics between mother and daughter but there has been little interest in the father-son relationship — perhaps because the latter is considered by some people to be much less complex. But the father-son relationship is multifaceted and, as Twain discovered, it changes considerably over the course of time. Now, more than ever, it's important for fathers and sons to understand their roles. As life becomes more complex and forces continue to tear at the fabric of the family, a close relationship between father and son can be a source of mutual stability and strength.

In interviews with more than 500 fathers and sons across America, I have observed three basic evolutionary phases in a typical lifetime father-son relationship. Here is a brief summary of what occurs during each phase.

"What Do You Think, Dad?" (birth through age 12)

The early nuturing period in a child's life has long been considered the almost-exclusive domain of the mother, but now there is ample evidence that young males watch their fathers closely and react to them — and that many fathers closely identify with their sons. It's important, therefore, that this time not belong solely to the mother. A father should relate to the physical and emotional needs of his young son on a daily basis.

I call this phase of the father-son relationship ego blending because during these years the father should try to feel what his son is feeling — and offer him the feedback he needs. A son looks to his father for approval or disapproval constantly, and what his father gives back to him is the foundation of his self-image as a man. When a son says, "What do you think, Dad?" about anything, the father should recognize this query as a very serious attempt to assess the situation. Fathers who take the question lightly or are indifferent are doing their sons an enormous disservice, and could have a detrimental effect on their sons' self-development.

Naturally, a father need not approve of everything his son says or does, but he should think through each response with care, because the cumulative effect of all these interactions profoundly influences the son's personality and point of view.

This period in a son's life is also of great consequence to the father's own personal growth. A man who immerses himself in his young son's development is bound to become more compassionate and loving. As foolish macho attitudes are increasingly put aside, and as men begin to emerge as people who can reveal their deeper emotions, more and more fathers will become emotionally close to their sons in this early phase. It is an experience that should not be missed by any man.

The Struggle for Individuality (ages 13 through 19)

Adolescence is a very significant and emotional time for father and son. It is during this period that the son begins to retreat from the ego-blending relationship between himself and his father and to develop his own identity, in relation not only to his father but also to the world in general. He wants the security of knowing his father is there for him, yet he has begun to strike out on his own and define himself in his terms.

During these years the son will most likely become belligerent about his ideas and opinions, even when he knows he's wrong, and he may even begin to act in a rebellious manner. He wants to do everything his way. His behavior is a reflection of his need to separate from his father and his family and become a person in his own right. More and more of the son's time will be spent with his peers.

During this critical separation phase, many fathers behave foolishly, exacerbating a naturally uncomfortable situation into a dreadful one. Where did that acquiescent little boy go, they wonder. And who is this arrogant monster who, incidentally, is beginning to eclipse his father's physique and physical strength? They believe that by exerting control over their sons, they'll ease the problem. But if these normal expressions of rebellion are squelched by a repressive father, the son's emergence as a full, spontaneous, creative man can be retarded and the father-son relationship can become a lifelong disaster. Serious problems may be avoided, however, if a father and son have a good understanding of what is happening between them in this stage of their relationship.

One way to better understand this phase is to take a close look at the playful physical aggression that occurs between father and son during adolescence — in the form of boxing or wrestling matches. This has all the ingredients of their larger loving conflict that centers around social and emotional issues. In a physical encounter, the father is usually bigger, physically stronger, and a more experienced fighter. He is also more experienced in nonphysical ways. A macho father may hit his son knockout punches because he is stupidly blind to the realities of the mock jousting. He is unaware that his son is testing his social and emotional strength, and that he needs a safe person — the father — with whom he can try out his new views and perceptions of the world.

In contrast, a loving, understanding father lets his son throw a lot of practice punches to test his physical and intellectual strength — without returning a knockout punch. This allows the son to try out a variety of outrageous attitudes and behaviors without being hurt. The father will absorb some of the "blows," and the son learns something about the world around him in a safe situation with his loving father as the "adversary" teacher.

The adolescent period in a father-son relationship may be more difficult now than ever before. In previous generations, fathers and sons had more precise rules for relating to each other and there were fewer value conflicts between them. And in most cases there were certain customs and rites of passage that eased the male's transition from adolescence into manhood. Sons did not have to fight their fathers for autonomy.

Because of the rapidly changing social situation in America today, the expectations of a son are less precise and there is often a generational value conflict. For example, in my adolescent years, probably less than 1 percent of adolescents ever smoked marijuana. Today well over half have tried it. My standards on drug use conflict sharply with those of the society my son lives in. It's essential, therefore, that fathers and adolescent sons communicate regularly about their differences.

Man-to-Man Friendship (age 20 through adulthood)

If the early years of ego blending and the adolescent wars are handled properly, a father and son will emerge as separate entities and loving friends. Unfortunately, this extremely rewarding relationship is not always achieved. Too many father-son relationships become irreparably damaged or they remain stuck in some unresolved phase of development. Man-to-man friendship can be prevented by a number of factors in the earlier relationship. One cause of this problem is a father who, because of his own ego needs or cultural perspective, does not let his son become a man. He has great difficulty letting go of his "little boy." Some fathers behave this way because the "child" is someone they can control. In this situation a son may be mature in other areas of his life, but he remains subservient to his father when in his presence. In general, the father who attempts to keep his son in the dependent-son role is insecure about himself.

This is what had happened to Frank, a young man who at 25 joined my therapy group because he was fighting frequently with his wife. We quickly determined that their problem was most severe when Frank and his wife returned from a visit to Frank's domineering father. In his father's presence, Frank acted like a little boy — with no opinions of his own — and according to his wife, who was also in the therapy group, his voice even changed into something like a teen-ager's squeak. This relationship was not on a man-to-man basis because the father had locked the son into the second phase of development. Frank didn't know how to break loose and he often turned the anger he felt on his wife.

The problem affected not only Frank's marriage but also his role as a probation officer at a correctional institute for juvenile delinquents, where he became a son-type buddy to his wards rather than a more appropriate father figure. Sometimes he would even reinforce his wards' rebellious attitudes toward his bosses, the "fathers" who ran the camp.

Once Frank realized the hold his father had on him, he began role-playing with other members of the group and rehearsed standing up to his father and relating to him on a man-to-man basis. As a result of his new ability, his relationship with his wife and his performance on the job improved significantly.

Initially his father was very upset when Frank used what he'd practiced in role-playing in real life. "At first my dad couldn't believe it when I resisted his usual dictatorial orders on how I should run my life," Frank told the group. "But I stood up to him, much like I did in the sessions. I tried to reason with him and I was amazed at how much sense my arguments made. He listened to me for a change, and did not treat me like a bad teen-ager. We learned how to talk on a man-to-man basis."

Before a man becomes a father, he should consider his relative strengths in each of the three fathering phases. The early years of fathering require time and the ability to be a loving and compassionate person in the nurturing of a young child's developing personality. During adolescence, a father needs to be a knowledgeable, sensitive authority in dealing with a naturally rebellious half-child/half-man who is trying to separate from his father and define his own personality. In the last phase, a father requires the ability to relate to his grown son as an equal without domination.

A father's awareness of the normal problems and the varied expectations of his changing role in the three phases can be of enormous value in striving toward the goal of effective fathering. Another key to harmony is the maintenance of relevant, open and meaningful communciation between father and son — communication that is not contaminated by any exorbitant or set-in-cement dreams that the father has for his son.

If all goes well, a father and son can achieve the desired goal of a harmonious and vital man-to-man friendship. Those who have such a relationship believe that it is well worth the struggle. FW

The Mysterious Terror Of Panic Attacks

By Lisa Anderson

Peter J., a 40-year-old businessman in good health, is playing golf on a Sunday afternoon. Suddenly, on the 13th tee, he begins shaking and gasping. "I can't breathe. I'm having a heart attack. I'm going to die," he stammers to his colleagues. They rush him to the hospital emergency room, but doctors find nothing wrong with him. A few nights later, in a restaurant with his wife, the same thing happens. An ambulance races him to the hospital, where he's admitted for a full series of tests, but again, nothing is found. His family doctor prescribes a tranquilizer which relaxes him, but still the attacks persist. Eventually, he quits playing golf and avoids dining out. He never again wants to be caught helpless and embarrassed when an attack takes place.

Lisa Anderson is a freelance writer who specializes in health topics.

This profile, a composite of case histories, illustrates a frightening but treatable illness called panic disorder. "It's a very common illness," says Dr. Abby Fyer, a research psychiatrist at Columbia University and co-director of the Anxiety Disorders Clinic at the New York State Psychiatric Institute in Manhattan.

Panic attack victims typically will experience a sudden and inexplicable wave of terror, often accompanied by such symptoms as breathing difficulty, pain or a feeling of tightness in the chest, palpitations, sweating, shaking, dizziness and, perhaps most frightening of all, a sense of unreality, of losing control, going crazy or even dying.

Most sufferers have their first panic attacks in early adulthood, although there are those who experience them in their 30's, 40's or even later. The cause of these attacks is not yet understood. However, it is known that after treatment with trycyclic antidepressants, such as imipramine, — a nonhabit-forming drug whose major side effects are dryness of the mouth and constipation — over 80 percent of patients become panic free. The attacks may recur, but can be blocked again with medication.

Recent research suggests this is a physiological illness, that is, panic attacks are not caused solely by such factors as psychological stress, says Dr. Fyer. Doctors have discovered that some people experience such attacks when they become out of breath after exercise. This occurrence is called the "effort syndrome," and doctors hypothesize that these individuals produce more than the usual amount of lactic acid (an organic acid produced in the muscle tissue during exercise), and its presence somehow triggers panic attacks. In a current project at the New York State Psychiatric Institute, Dr. Donald Klein, director of research, has found that roughly 70 percent of patients with a prior history of panic attacks will experience an attack when given an intravenous infusion of sodium lactate solution in a laboratory situation.

In the early stages of panic disorder, the attacks occur randomly and are clearly defined by their symptoms. After recurrent attacks, most victims begin to live in a constant state of dread, anticipating the next panic attack, says Dr. Fyer. If not diagnosed early, panic disorder can ultimately progress to phobias, such as agoraphobia (which is characterized by a fear of leaving home or being alone), fear of flying or fear of riding in elevators.

The initial treatment for panic disorder, says Dr. Fyer, is usually one of the trycyclic antidepressants. Patients are then encouraged to re-enter situations they were avoiding to prove to themselves that they no longer panic. Sometimes this treatment, called desensitization, is given in a group situation. FW

THE SEXES

By Norman Lobsenz

Sexes Divided Over Divorce

Men and women have different reasons for seeking divorce, say family-life experts Gay Kitson, of Case Western Reserve University, and Marvin Sussman, of the University of Delaware. The team interviewed more than 200 men and women who had filed for divorce in Cleveland. While both sexes listed "lack of communication" as their No. 1 marital complaint, men ranked "conflict of sex roles" second and women ranked that eighth. The second most frequent complaint for women focused on conflicts about the need for personal independence.

In general, women were more likely to mention a spouse's infidelity and emotional immaturity as reasons for seeking divorce. Men were more likely to single out overcommitment to work and problems with in-laws. Significantly, men's third most frequent response was, "I'm not sure what happened"; for women, that ranked at the bottom of the list.

Eight out of 10 women blamed their husbands for the breakup; men were more likely to take the blame upon themselves, or to say that they shared it.

Childhood Chores Build Character

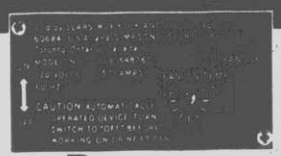

Do children's chores play a significant role in establishing family bonds and values, or are they a burden holding back youngsters from success in their school work and their social life? Sociologists Lynn White and David Brinkerhoff, of the University of Nebraska in Lincoln, interviewed nearly 2,000 Nebraska parents with children under 18. They found, among other things, that nine out of 10 youngsters have regular chores assigned to them by the time they are 10 years old and that boys are more likely than girls to have household tasks they are regularly responsible for.

Until a child reaches adolescence, the researchers say, chores probably mean more work for the parents. Why, then, do parents ask their youngsters to help at home? The main reason most parents gave was teaching responsibility.

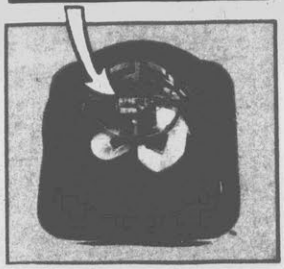

Other parents felt that chores were a means to unify a family. A few parents said they needed the help, or felt youngsters should learn domestic skills. As children get older, there appears to be a change in parental attitude towards chores, the researchers note, from "helping will build a sense of responsibility" to "it is his or her responsibility to help."

Miniature Plates of The World's Greatest Porcelain Houses

Royal Copenhagen . . . Wedgwood . . . Ginori . . . Royal Doulton . . . Haviland . . . Noritake . . . Lladró . . . Coalport . . . Royal Worcester . . . Kaiser . . . Mosa . . . Verbano . . . Hutschenreuther . . . 25 great porcelain houses of the world, each represented by an original miniature plate created by that house expressly for this collection.

A collection of 25 miniature plates — each one different — each designed and produced by one of the world's most famous porcelain houses exclusively for this series.

Now, for the first time, the greatest porcelain houses of the world have agreed to participate in the creation of a collection that has never been attempted before. A collection so unusual — and so fascinating — that it will be treasured today and prized by future generations for many years to come.

Assembling this collection has been a major challenge, involving four years of preparation by The Franklin Mint. Representatives of the mint traveled throughout the world during that time, approaching the most famous porcelain houses and persuading them to become a part of this historic undertaking.

An original collector's plate from each porcelain house

Each of the 25 porcelain houses represented has created a miniature plate solely and exclusively for this collection. Its own master artists have designed the plate, and its skilled craftsmen have produced it to exacting standards of quality. And each miniature plate captures the theme or the traditional style of its maker.

In addition to the unique design, each plate will bear on its reverse the name and identifying mark of the porcelain house that created it.

Each of the plates will be intriguing and distinctive. The Royal Copenhagen plate, for example, portrays the palace of Queen Margrethe II of Denmark. The Wedgwood plate, in Blue Jasper, bears a raised cameo portrait of Josiah Wedgwood. The Okura plate depicts a snowy heron, symbol of good fortune in the Orient. And the Haviland of Limoges plate bears a charming design of birds and flowers. The individual plates have infinite variety. Yet, together, they form a beautiful and harmonious collection.

The price for each plate is $19.50, and this advantageous price is guaranteed despite inflationary pressures.

Beautify your home today . . . cherish for tomorrow

In your home, this unique collection will be a focus of attention and admiration. So that you can display the collection attractively, a handsome hardwood étagère will be provided — at no added charge. And a specially written folder will accompany each plate, describing its design and the porcelain house that created it.

The Perfect Cup of Coffee

By Marilyn Hansen

What makes a good cup of coffee? Aroma, certainly, flavor and a richness and smoothness known as body. There are a few secrets to making the perfect cup of coffee and it starts with proportion and freshness. (See box below.)

Although percolator-brewed coffee is popular, it isn't the best. Coffee brewed by percolator is overcooked. The boiling temperature of water produces the pumping action up the stem of the percolator and over the ground coffee. And boiling coffee means the delicate flavor components break down and other undesirable qualities — namely bitterness and overacidity — surface. Drip methods, on the other hand, produce delicious coffee. The freshly boiled water is poured over the ground coffee, and then it slowly steeps through the grounds — just once. Experts call this filtration. The drip coffee's flavor remains unchanged because the finished coffee never boils.

Ground Rules for Making Coffee

The best recommended proportion of coffee to water: 2 level tablespoons of ground coffee to each ¾ cup of water. This proportion applies to every coffee-brewing method except Turkish, where it's best to follow a specific, traditional recipe.

Coffee Tips

- To keep ground coffee fresh for seven to 10 days, store it in a tightly sealed glass jar in your refrigerator.
- If you buy vacuum-packed coffee, place it in a cool area (it's not necessary to refrigerate it unless the can's been opened.) Once you open the can, store the coffee as recommended above.
- Always freeze coffee beans in an airtight container. There's no need to thaw the beans before grinding them. Remember that coffee beans have three times the life span of ground coffee.
- Keep your coffee pot meticulously clean. Rinse it and wipe off all film and residue daily; once a week, use a special coffee-pot cleaner.
- Use cold, freshly drawn water to brew your coffee.

COFFEE

Different Kinds of Beans

Columbian — from Columbia, the second largest coffee exporter in the world. Supremo, the highest grade, is famous for its well-developed, flavorful brew.

Jamaican Blue Mountain — Jamaican, in origin: Coffee connoisseurs enjoy it for its mellow, almost sweet flavor and deep aroma.

Mocha — from Yemen. One of the oldest and the most renowned coffees in the world, Mocha possesses a marvelous flavor.

Java — from the Indonesian island of Java. Characteristics: heavy body and an almost syrupy richness. Very limited production makes this relatively rare.

Blends — these are combinations of beans, each chosen for their own characteristic brewing qualities to make a satisfying cup. A coffee-specialty merchant or you yourself can perfect blends after experimentation with different unblended varieties. A house blend from a market with a high sales turnover would be a good starting point.

The Variety of Roasts

When first picked, coffee beans are green. It's the coffee roaster who brings out the hidden flavor through his special processes. The longer the beans roast, the darker the beans' color becomes. But roasting only enhances — never produces — the beans' natural flavor.

American roast: The beans turn a dark brown; they'll produce a deep, hearty brew.

French roast: A deep umber (nearly the color of unsweetened baking chocolate) characterizes these beans. Once brewed, they produce an almost espresso-flavored smooth taste.

Espresso roast: These black, shiny beans make a strong coffee, one with characteristic espresso bitterness.

Most beans can be roasted in any of these roasts. If you buy coffee beans and don't know their roast, ask the sales person. FW

Paul "Bear" Bryant

America's Winningest Football Coach

When Paul "Bear" Bryant became Alabama's head coach in 1958, Jim Walter had already been building homes for more than 12 years. Now, 36 years since founding his company, Jim Walter has built and financed more than 210,000 homes for families in this great nation. This means that, over a twenty year period, you can save many, many thousands of dollars compared to a mortgage of only 3 points higher. For example, should you have a new home built, that has a $30,000 cash price, and finance it with a 14% 20 year mortgage, you would pay back over $20,000 MORE than if Jim Walter built and financed a home having this same cash price. And the additional $20,000 could be used for other purposes, or saved each month for 20 years, which would leave much better off you. Budget will be able to afford every month when Jim Walter builds and finances for you.

WHAT IN THE WORLD

By Eliot Kaplan

SHAKEN CONFIDENCE

Over the past 15 years, the public's confidence in major institutions has dropped dramatically, according to a recent Harris Survey. For instance, in a 1966 poll 73 percent of respondents said they had great confidence in the medical field; by 1981, this had slipped to 37 percent.

Charles Waller

Similarly, confidence in Congress had fallen from 42 percent to 16, major companies from 55 to 16, organized religion from 41 to 22 and the military from 61 to 28. Which institutions are we most confident of? Near the top in both the Harris Survey and The Field Institute's California Poll are the medical profession, colleges and universities, the Supreme Court, the military and the White House. At the bottom of both are the oil companies, along with organized labor, law firms and the press. (Respondents show more faith in TV news than in newspapers.)

THE QUICHE OF DEATH

It's tough to find real men today, Bruce Feirstein realized while watching Phil Donahue. Times have changed. As he told us, "Look at movies. In the old days you had John Wayne fighting Nazis for democracy. Now you have Dustin Hoffman fighting Meryl Streep for a 4-year-old."

UPI

Real man.

Quiche eater.

With tongue firmly in cheek, Feirstein elaborates on this concept in a hilarious new book Real Men Don't Eat Quiche. Real men, for instance, are James Garner, Frank Sinatra, Robert Duvall, Pete Rose, Ted Turner and Margaret Thatcher. Quiche eaters include Alan Alda, Dick Van Patten, Jerry Brown, Dick Cavett, Frank Gifford and Halston (real men have two names).

Feirstein, 29, and a former top advertising writer, describes a real man's tastes in vocabulary (he never utters "relate," "personal space" or "laid back'); diet (steak, hamburger, cheeseburger, bacon-cheeseburger); and TV (Mannix, Rawhide, Adam-12).

Feinstein, who insists he's a real man (but don't quiche eaters write trendy books?), gave us these definitive credos. Quiche eater: "Let's discuss it." Real man: "Never settle with words what you can with a flamethrower."

YOU CAN'T LEAVE HOME AGAIN

Some 20 million Americans may suffer symptoms of agoraphobia, a puzzling condition that may so paralyze a person with fear that he or she can't leave the house.

Agoraphobics, for example, may be afraid of going to a shopping mall or driving across a bridge. According to Dr. Eugene Fee, psychiatrist at Philadelphia's Northwestern Institute of Psychiatry, the agoraphobic can point to a specific initial panic attack, and from then on "he is literally afraid of being afraid, afraid of another attack."

Usually, he says, agoraphobics come from rigid, religious families in which the idea that "the world is a dangerous place — don't go out there" is drummed into them. Eighty percent are Catholic, says Fee.

Therapy may consist of learning techniques for dealing with anxiety and includes going to places the agoraphobic fears most. For those who are too afraid to leave home, Fee will begin by visiting them, then gradually move the discussion from kitchen to porch to front yard, until they can come to his office.

CLASSY IDEA

Even as schoolchildren around the country whoop with joy as summer vacation begins, many of the 119,000 students at 90 select Los Angeles schools are still at their desks.

Under an experimental year-round school plan, instituted several years ago to reduce overcrowding in poorer areas, students end up attending the normal 180 days but may go for 90 days followed by a 30-day break or 45 days with 15 days off. Only three-quarters of all students are in school at any one time.

There are no firm data yet on how kids are doing under the year-round plan, but parents say their children are better behaved, less bored and are learning more without the standard three-month summer layoff, reports Joyce King-Stoops, assistant dean of education at U.S.C., who surveyed 150 parents.

As she notes, the traditional school calendar was designed when ours was an agrarian society and children were needed at home for the spring planting and then could return to school after the fall harvest.

SPORTS LOVER KO'D BY WIFE

We've heard of football widows before, but now out of Austin, Tex., comes the case of the sports divorcée. Thanks to ESPN, the 24-hour cable sports network, a 30-year-old (former) husband reports he watched at least two hours of TV sports a day and sometimes eight straight hours. A nightclub doorman, he got off from work at 3 A.M., turned on the tube and nodded off. "I've even watched horse jumping," the poor fellow is quoted as saying. Not surprisingly, his wife got a tad annoyed and, after one and a half years of all games and no fun, sued for divorce. Hubby pleaded nolo contendere and no doubt went home to watch something like the bocci finals live from Barcelona.

CAN YOU TRUST YOUR EYES? There are at least six differences in drawing details between top and bottom panels. How quickly can you find them? Check answers with these below.

Pass. answers: 1. Ex-plane. 2. Ex-posed. 3. Ex-claimed. 4. Ex-pounded.

● Sum Fun! Find a number that when 12 is added to its double the result will be 28. P.S.: It's under 20. What number?

The number is eight.

● All Points! The four cardinal points of the compass are represented in these movie titles: 1. "How the _____ Was Won." 2. "_____ Pacific." 3. "Walk _____ on Beacon." 4. "Mr. and Mrs. _____."

1. West. 2. South. 3. East. 4. North.

PUZZLING TURNOVER

Three hats are placed on a table with the center hat upside-down. Now, a challenging question arises: How is it possible to turn all of the hats upside down in three turns, moving two hats in each turn?

Remember, two hats (any two) may be turned each time, and the hats are all to be face up in the end.

P.S.: Coins placed heads and tails, or playing cards faced up and down may be used instead of hats.

One possible answer: Invert 2 and 3, next 1 and 3; then 2 and 3 again.

OVER LIGHTLY! There is more than one way to skin a cat — or cross a steam. Draw lines to complete picture.

GREAT DAY! Add the following colors neatly to the big moment above: 1—Red. 2—Lt. purple. 3—Dk. purple. 4—Lt. brown. 5—Flesh. 6—Black. 7—Dk. blue. 8—Dk. green. 9—Dk. brown.

Our Story: THE CHILDREN LEARN TO RELAX WITH YUAN CHEN, THIS STRANGE BUT GENTLE SCHOLAR. HE TELLS THEM HOW RAINBOWS ARE MADE AND WHY THE FLOWERS CLOSE AT NIGHT. YUAN CHEN IS VERY WISE. "WHERE ARE YOU FROM?" GALAN ASKS.

YUAN CHEN LOOKS AT A SMALL BOX HE HAS PULLED FROM HIS SLEEVE, TURNS TO HIS LEFT AND POINTS: "OVER THERE, MANY TIMES FARTHER THAN YOUR EYE CAN SEE. BUT LET ME SHOW YOU." FROM HIS BAG HE SELECTS BRUSH AND PAPER.

HE IS AS SKILLED WITH INK AS GALAN WITH KNIFE. "YOU CALL MY LAND CATHAY. THERE IS MY HOME ON THE HILL, WITH THE GREAT RIVER GLIDING BELOW. A WIFE THERE AND CHILDREN I HAVE NOT SEEN FOR FIVE YEARS."

DIPPING HIS BRUSH IN THE POT, YUAN CHEN DRAWS A SMALL SYMBOL IN THE CORNER. "THIS IS THE NAME OF MY HOMELAND, 'CHUNG-KUO,' THE MIDDLE KINGDOM. WE THINK WE ARE AT THE CENTER OF THE UNIVERSE. BUT DO NOT ALL PEOPLES THINK SO?"

NEXT WEEK: Prediction
